THE CALENDAR

THE JULIAN CALENDAR

The calendar is a method of identifying the passage of time and thereby regulating our civil life and religious observances.

Days, months, and years are based on astronomical periods. The day is the time it takes the earth to make one revolution on its axis, the month is associated with the period of rotation of the moon around the earth, while the year has to do with the rotation of the earth around the sun.

Many religious ideas and observances have been connected with the changes of the moon, and in ancient times the calendar took account of the moon rather than the seasons. From new moon to new moon is 29.530 days, and from one spring equinox to the next is 365.24219 days. Since the two are incommensurable, the modern calendar disregards the moon.

June in January sounds very well in a song but having summer coming in a winter month in actual life is not desirable.

When Julius Caesar came to power, the Roman Calendar was hopelessly confused. With the advice of the Alexandrian astronomer, Sosigenes, Julius Caesar established the Julian Calendar. The length of the year was taken as $365\frac{1}{4}$ days, and in order to account for the $\frac{1}{4}$ day, an extra day was added every fourth year. From 45 B.C. each month has had its present number of days. In the old Roman Calendar which was based on the moon an extra month was inserted to straighten out the difference between twelve lunations, 354.37 days, and 355 days, which they called a year. This was inserted when necessary after February 23rd. In the Julian Calendar the extra day was added by repeating the sixth day before the Kalends (1st) of March, whence comes our word bissextile for leap year.

Calendar trouble was not over. Due to a misunderstanding about inserting the intercalary day, by the time 8 B.C. came, the year began three days too late. Augustus rectified this by omitting all intercalations till A.D. 8 and no further change was made till the reform of Pope Gregory XIII in A.D. 1582.

The Julian Calendar is known as the "Old Style" and after the change made by Pope Gregory as the "New Style"; the difference between the two is 13 days. The Calendar so arranged is known as the "Old Style" and is now used by the Eastern Orthodox Church in Russia, Ukraina, Syria and Palestine.

Many Canadian citizens of Russian, Greek, Ukrainian or Syrian descent, thus observe their Christmas Day on Jan. 7 Gregorian.

THE GREGORIAN CALENDAR

But as the Solar Year is 11 minutes, 12 seconds less than the Julian Year of $365\frac{1}{4}$ days, it followed in course of years that the Julian Calendar became inaccurate by several days, and in 1582 this difference amounted to 10 days. Pope Gregory XIII, at the suggestion of Aloysius Lilius, an astronomer of Naples, determined to rectify this, and devised the Calendar now known as the Gregorian Calendar. He dropped or cancelled these 10 days—October 5th being called October 15th—and made centennial years Leap years only once in 4 centuries; so that whilst 1700, 1800 and 1900 were to be ordinary years, 2000 would be Leap year. This modification brought the Gregorian year into such close exactitude with the Solar year that there is only a difference of 26 seconds, which amounts to a day in 3,323 years. This is the "New Style". The Gregorian Calendar was adopted in Italy, France, Spain, Portugal and Poland in 1582, by most of the German Roman Catholic states, Holland and Flanders in 1583, Hungary in 1587. The adoption in Switzerland began in 1584 and was not completed till 1812. The German and Dutch Protestant states generally, along with Denmark adopted it in 1700. British dominions in 1752, Sweden in 1753, Japan in 1873, China in 1912, Bulgaria in 1915, Turkey and Soviet Russia in 1918, Yugoslavia in 1919, Romania and Greece in 1924, Turkey in 1927. The rules for Easter have not however, been adopted by those oriental churches that are not subject to the Papacy.

The difference between the two "Styles" will remain 13 days until A.D. 2100.

THE JEWISH CALENDAR

The Jewish Calendar from the institution of the Mosaic Law downward was a lunar one, consisting of twelve months. The cycles of religious feasts commencing with the passover depending not only on the month but on the Moon; the 14th of the month of Abid or Nisan was coincident with the full moon; and the new moons themselves were the occasions of regular festivals; the commencement of the month was generally determined by observations of the new moon, but twelve lunar months would make but $354\frac{1}{2}$ days, the years would be short twelve days of the true year and it was necessary that an additional month Veader, be inserted about every third year.

The modern Jewish Calendar is based on fixed rules and not on observation. A common year may contain 353, 354 or 355 days and the Leap year 383, 384 or 385 days. The intercalary month always contains 30 days and is inserted next before the month Adar which name and place it takes. Adar itself is called second Adar or Veader. Tishri 1 is the Jewish New Year and it cannot be a Sunday, Wednesday or Friday. Tishri 1 is not necessarily the day of new moon but is governed by a mean new moon which is calculated from the value of a mean lunation. It is complicated as compared with the Gregorian Calendar. The intercalary month is introduced seven times in every nineteen years.

The identification of the Jewish months with our own cannot be effected with precision on account of the variations existing between the lunar and solar month. The Jewish Calendar is given on page 3.

THE MOHAMMEDAN CALENDAR

The Mohammedan Calendar is called also the Calendar of Hegira (i.e. Migration) and is attributed to the primary migration of Mohammed, the Prophet of Islam, on September 20th, 622 A.D. from Mecca, his native city in the land of Hejaz, Arabia, to the city of Medina in the north of the same land. In Medina the Prophet and Founder of the Islamic Faith died and was buried.

Each year consists of 12 lunar months, and since no intercalation is made the months go round the seasons in between 32 and 33 years. In civil life there seems to be confusion as to the beginning of the month and unless both the day of week and day of the month are stated it is impossible to give an exact interpretation to a date.

The Mohammedan Calendar is observed by all the Moslems in Arabia, Yemen, Iraq, Transjordan, Persia, Afghanistan, India, Syria, Palestine, Egypt, Tripoli, Tunis, Algeria, Morocco, and in Turkey both Asiatic and European.

The year 1373, according to the Hegira Calendar began on September 9th, 1953; the year 1374 on August 29th, 1954 Gregorian.

OTHER CALENDARS IN USE

Other calendars in use at the present day, in addition to those above, include the Coptic, Hindu, Persian.

CALENDAR REFORM

Reform of the calendar, so that it may be balanced in structure, perpetual in form and harmonious in arrangement, has long been under discussion.

In 1937, international opinion as to the desirability of calendar reform was explored by the League of Nations. Of 45 replies received, 14 governments indicated their willingness to adopt the perpetual calendar known as The World Calendar. Only 6 governments took a definite stand against such a reform.

The World Calendar comprises equal quarters in which the first month of each has 31 days and the other two 30 days each. These quarters contain exactly 91 days, 13 weeks and 3 months, with 13 Sundays and 78 weekdays, while each month has 26 weekdays. The 365th day becomes the Year-End Day, between December 30th and January 1st. In leap years a Leap-Year Day is interposed between June 30th and July 1st. Every January 1st falls on a Sunday, as does the first day of the other quarters. Thus the calendar is symmetrical and in keeping with the solar year and the seasons.

A suggestion has been made that the Year-End Day, a world holiday dedicated to international friendship, be called United Nations Day.

The World Calendar is sponsored by the World Calendar Association, 630 Fifth Ave., New York, and by affiliated calendar reform organizations throughout the world; in Canada by The Rational Calendar Association of Canada, which is listed in this volume; see index. These associations are striving to win favor for reform by lectures and publications and suggest its adoption to start on Sunday, January 1st, 1956. This is the earliest date on which the Gregorian calendar and the New World Calendar meet.

On July 15, 1946, the Hon. Karl E. Mundt, Republican, introduced a Bill in the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States, being joined by the Hon. John Kee, Democrat, for adoption of The World Calendar by the government of the United States. The proposed legislation also directed the President of the United States to seek international adoption.

The Inter-American Economic and Social Council of the Pan American Union placed The World Calendar on its agenda and referred the subject to its Committee on Commerce for further study and report.

THE WEEK

The division of the week is found only among Aryan nations and in regions into which they have penetrated. The day is, for convenience, divided into 24 equal parts and is the period of a single rotation of the earth upon its own axis.

A Solar or Astronomical day commences at midnight, and is divided into two equal portions of 12 hours each—those before noon being termed (A.M.) those after noon (P.M.).

The Chinese week consists of 5 days, which are named after iron, wood, water, feathers and earth; they divide the day into 12 parts of 2 hours each.

The Anglo-Saxons named the days of the week after the following deities; Sunday, the Sun; Monday, the Moon; Tuesday, Tiesco (God of War); Wednesday, Woden (God of Storms); Thursday, Thor (God of Thunder); Friday, Freya (Goddess of Love); Saturday, Saturn (God of Time).

The word week is from Wikon (German); = change, succession.

In The Soviet Union up to June 27, 1940 the six-day week prevailed in many factories, etc.; that is, five days of work followed by a day of rest. The free days were usually the 6th, 12th, 18th, 24th, and 30th of the month. In some industries where there is continuous production (steel mills, chemical plants, mines, etc.) there was a five-day week—that is four days of work followed by a rest day. On June 27th, 1940, by ukase of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. the seven day week was introduced everywhere in the Soviet Union, Sunday being observed as a day of rest.

Dominical Letter

The Roman Calendar makers placed the letters A,B,C,D,E,F,G. against the day of the year. The letter which stands against the Sundays is known as the Dominical Letter. In Leap year since no letter is set opposite the added day one letter appears for January and February and the letter preceding for the remainder of the year.

Example—

	A	B	C	D	E	F	G
1952	Tu.	Wed.	Th.	Fri.	Sat.	Sun.	Mon.
Jan.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Feb.	26	27	28	29
	A	B	C	—	D	E	F
Mar.					1	2	3

Jan. 6 (Sun.) is F. F therefore is the Dominical letter for Jan. and Feb. Since no letter is assigned for Feb. 29, Sunday from then on comes under the preceding letter, E, which is the letter for the remainder of the year.

Golden Number—The calendar for the phases of the moon is nearly the same every 19 years which is known as the Metonic Cycle. The Golden Number is its number in this Metonic Cycle. To find the Golden Number for 1952 add 1 to 1952 and divide by 19. The remainder, 15, is the Golden Number.

Epact is the age of the moon on some fixed day of the calendar year. (January 1 Gregorian Calendar).

Solar Cycle

In the Julian Calendar the days of the year recurred on the same days of the week in 7 x 4 years; 28 years was called the Solar Cycle. It is little used now.

The Cycle of the Indiction, is a non-astronomical cycle of 15 years. Following Diocletian's reconquest of Egypt in A.D. 297 a provincial census was taken and repeated every 15 years.

Julian Period

This is a combination of the Solar Cycle of 28 years, the Metonic or Lunar Cycle of 19 years, and the Cycle of the Indiction, 15 years. These are all supposed to begin on January 1 of the Julian Calendar which was 4713 B.C. The Julian days are numbered consecutively from Greenwich mean noon on January 1, 4713 B.C.

STANDARD TIME ZONES IN THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA

SOLAR, SIDEREAL AND STANDARD TIME

Apparent Time. — By apparent noon is meant the moment when the sun is on the meridian, and apparent time is measured by the distance in degrees that the sun is east or west of the meridian. Apparent time is given by the sun dial.

Mean Time. — The interval between apparent noon on two successive days is not constant, and a clock cannot be constructed to keep apparent time. For this reason mean time is used. The length of a mean day is the average of all the apparent days throughout the year. The real sun moves about the ecliptic in one year; an imaginary mean sun is considered as moving uniformly around the celestial equator in one year. The difference between the times that the real sun and the mean sun cross the meridian (i.e. between apparent noon and mean noon) is the equation of time.

Sidereal Time. — This is time as determined from the stars. It is sidereal 0 hours when the Vernal Equinox or First of Aries is on the meridian. In accurate time-keeping the moment when a star is on the meridian is observed and the corresponding mean time is then computed with the assistance of the Nautical Almanac or by the help of the table on page 19. (See notes, pages 6-7). When a telescope is mounted equatorially the position of a body in the sky is located by means of the sidereal time.

Standard Time. —

Owing to the great breadth of the Dominion the difference in solar time in various parts of the country is adjusted by the creation of Standard Time Zones, one hour in width, fixed between arbitrary lines running north and south, 15° of longitude apart, the time observed in each zone being an exact number of hours slow from Greenwich.

Example: When it is 8 a.m. by Pacific Time it is 12 noon by Atlantic Time and 4 p.m. at Greenwich.

There are seven zones divided as follows, reckoning from Greenwich:

Newfoundland Standard Time	} Newfoundland, including Labrador, $3\frac{1}{2}$ hours slow.
Atlantic Standard Time
60th Meridian Time
Eastern Standard Time
75th Meridian Time
Central Standard Time
90th Meridian Time
Mountain Standard Time	} Saskatchewan except in the southeasterly part; throughout Alberta and in N.W.T. between the 102nd and 120th Meridian, 7 hours slow. (Railway time changes going west at Jasper, Crow's Nest and Field.)
105th Meridian Time
Pacific Standard Time	} Throughout British Columbia and in N.W.T. west of the 120th Meridian, 8 hours slow.
120th Meridian Time
Yukon Standard Time
135th Meridian Time	} Throughout Yukon Territory, 9 hours slow.

Standard Times as used by the railways in traversing these Zones are in general use. Solar time around the globe varies four minutes with each degree of longitude.

The Standard Time Zones in Canada and the United States are shown on the map above

DAYLIGHT SAVING OR SUMMER TIME

Prior to the war, Daylight-Saving Time in Canada was a matter of local regulation. Railways ran on Standard Time. Many cities and towns adopted Daylight-Saving Time for the summer months, especially in the east, but probably most towns and rural communities throughout the Dominion observed normal (Standard) time.

In September 1940, a Dominion order-in-council required municipalities in Ontario and Quebec which had been observing daylight-saving time, to continue to do so indefinitely, throughout the year, as a power-conserving measure.

On January 26th, 1942, by Order in Council P.C. 547, Daylight Saving was made obligatory on all municipalities in Canada throughout the year.

On Sept. 30th, 1945 this order was revoked and Canada reverted to Standard time, subject, as before the war, to local regulation. In subsequent years many cities in Canada, went on Fast time from the end of April to the end of September.

In Great Britain Summer Time was originally enacted by law in 1916. An Act of 1922 specified that the time should be advanced 1 hour at 2 a.m. G.M.T. on the morning of the day following the third Saturday in April, or if that day is Easter-day, the day following the second Saturday, and should end at 2 a.m. G.M.T. on the morning of the day next following the third Saturday in September. The Act, renewed in 1924 and 1925, was made permanent and modified by substituting the first Saturday in October for third Saturday in September. The Act applies to Great Britain, Northern Ireland, Channel Islands and the Isle of Man.

During the war, Summer time in Great Britain and Northern Ireland was extended beyond its normal period, later made continuous throughout the year and finally increased an extra hour (double Summer Time) during the summer months.

In 1946 normal Summer Time was resumed and was in effect from April 14th to October 6th.

In 1947 Double British Summer Time was re-introduced and became effective between April 13th and August 10th, when normal Summer-Time, i.e., one hour in advance of Greenwich Mean Time, was resumed and remained in operation until October 31, when Normal Greenwich Time came into force again.

In 1948 British Summer Time, i.e., one hour ahead of Greenwich Mean Time was in operation from March 14th to October 31st.

Practically the same arrangement was in effect from 1949—1952. In 1953, summer time was operative between April 19 and October 4.

In the United States Daylight Saving Time is a matter of local legislation; on February 9, 1942, legislation became effective placing the entire nation on Daylight Saving (War) Time but this legislation was rescinded on Sept. 30th, 1945.

ECLIPSES DURING 1954

In the year 1954 there will be 5 eclipses, three of the sun and two of the moon. Three of these will be visible in Canada.

1. An annular eclipse of the sun on January 5. This eclipse will be visible in Antarctica and in the southern parts of the Indian and Pacific Oceans, but not at all in America.

2. A total eclipse of the moon on January 18. The beginning of this eclipse will be visible in North America except the extreme western and north-western parts, and the ending will be visible over the whole of North America. The moon enters the umbra at 19 50, mid-eclipse is at 21 32, and the moon leaves the umbra at 23 14, all these times being E.S.T.

3. A total eclipse of the sun on June 30. This eclipse will be visible, at least as a partial eclipse, over all of Canada except the west coast. The path of totality will cut across north-eastern Canada, extending from Lake Superior to the tip of James Bay and thence to the northern Labrador coast and across the north Atlantic, past the southern parts of Scandinavia, across Russia and ending in India. The path of totality will be only about a hundred miles wide, elsewhere the sun will appear partially eclipsed. In eastern Canada the eclipse will begin just after sunrise, in western Canada the sun will be already partially eclipsed when it rises.

4. A partial eclipse of the moon on July 15. This eclipse will be well seen in South America, Europe and Africa. The ending will be visible in the eastern parts of North America just after moonrise, elsewhere on this continent the eclipse will be over before moonrise. The moon leaves the umbra at 20 31 E.S.T.

5. An annular eclipse of the sun on December 25. This eclipse will be visible in South Africa and Australia and over the ocean between; no part of it will be visible in North America.

ECLIPSES, PLANETARY CONJUNCTIONS, ETC., IN THE YEAR 1954

A list of astronomical symbols and abbreviations is given on page 6.

UNIVERSAL TIME OR GREENWICH MEAN TIME. (To change to Standard Time see page 4.)

Table with columns for month (JANUARY to DECEMBER), day, hour, minute, astronomical symbols, and numerical values. Includes sub-sections for each month and specific astronomical events like 'Total Eclipse' or 'Stationary in R. A.'.

NOTES ON THE ASTRONOMICAL TABLES

The purpose of the following notes is to explain the tables and charts which are not self-explanatory and to illustrate the uses to which they may be put.

Sunrise, Sunset, Moonrise and Moonset (see tables pp. 9 to 15). These tables give Standard Times of risings and settings for the places to which they apply (i.e. E.S.T. for Toronto and Ottawa, C.S.T. for Winnipeg, P.S.T. for Vancouver). The calculations are for the upper limb (edge) of the sun and they are made for the astronomical (sea) horizon. Accordingly, the times will not be correct if the observer is below or above the level of his visible horizon at the point of sunrise or sunset.

The times of sunrise and sunset for a place other than those given in the table can be obtained with a fair degree of precision by proceeding as follows: Choose two places in the table which bracket your latitude; take the times of sunrise (or sunset) of each of these; change each to Local Mean Time by adding (or subtracting) 4 minutes of time per degree for the number of degrees of longitude by which that place is east (or west) of the standard meridian of its time zone. Then, by finding the change per degree of latitude difference, find the local Mean Time for your own latitude. Finally add (or subtract) 4 minutes for each degree of longitude which you are west (or east) of your standard meridian to obtain Standard Time.

If the place has a latitude nearly equal to that of one of the places listed (say within half a degree) the procedure may be simplified: For each degree by which the place is west (or east) of the listed place add (or subtract) 4 minutes to the tabulated value of the listed place. This gives the time of sunrise or sunset in the Standard Time of the listed place; change to the Standard Time of the required place if it is in a different time zone.

Example: Required to find the time of sunset on Jan. 1, 1954 for Quebec City (lat. $46^{\circ} 48' N$. long. $71^{\circ} 13' W$).

From tables: Ottawa 16 30, Winnipeg 16 37. Ottawa is about $\frac{3}{4}^{\circ}$ west of 75th meridian; Winnipeg is about 7° west of 90th meridian. Therefore L.M.T. for Ottawa is 16 30 - 3 = 16 27, and L.M.T. for Winnipeg is 16 37 - 28 = 16 09. Difference in latitude of Winnipeg and Ottawa is about 5° . Thus sunset is earlier from the latitude of Ottawa northward by about $3\frac{1}{2}$ minutes per degree of latitude and, since Quebec is about $1\frac{1}{2}^{\circ}$ farther north than Ottawa, the L.M.T. of sunset at Quebec is 16 27 - 5 = 16 22. Since Quebec is about $3\frac{3}{4}^{\circ}$ east of the 75th meridian the E.S.T. of sunset at Quebec is 16 22 - 15 = 16 07.

Note: Since Montreal and Ottawa are at about the same latitude the E.S.T. of sunrise and sunset for Montreal may be taken as simply 9 minutes earlier than at Ottawa.

The times of moonrise and moonset are not easily obtained with precision for places other than those listed in the tables because of the more rapid motion of the moon. However, by using the Ottawa, Winnipeg or Vancouver values for Eastern, Central or Western Canada respectively, the errors will usually be less than half an hour.

Azimuth of the Sun at Rising and Setting (see table on page 18). Only twice a year, namely about March 21 and September 23, does the sun rise and set more or less exactly in the east and the west respectively. It is of interest and sometimes of value to know the position of sunrise and sunset at other times. The table on page 18 tabulates these positions in degrees east of north and west of north for sunrise and sunset respectively for a selection of latitudes and dates. For latitudes and dates other than those tabulated take simple proportions.

Time when the Sun is on the Meridian (see table on page 19). If Standard Time is to be obtained from a sun-dial or from a noon marker or, conversely, if direction is to be obtained by the sun from a knowledge of time, it is necessary to know the time when the sun is on the meridian, i.e., due south. The correction to the sun-dial is given for every third day in the table on page 19. (Take simple proportions for intermediate days.) Add this to Apparent Solar Time to obtain Local Mean Time. To obtain Standard Time add (or subtract) 4 minutes per degree of longitude by which you are west (or east) of your standard meridian.

Example: At Toronto on February 3rd what is the Eastern Standard Time when a vertical peg casts a shadow due north?

It is then noon Apparent Solar Time. Correction to the sun-dial from table is +13m.49s. Therefore Local Mean Time is 12h. 13m. 49s. and since Toronto is $4\frac{1}{2}^{\circ}$ west of the 75th meridian, the Eastern Standard Time is 12h. 13m. 49s. + 17m. 40s. = 12h. 31m. 29s.

Sidereal Time (see table on page 19). For any given moment the local sidereal time may be obtained with an accuracy of a second or two from the table of the Ephemeris of the Sun as follows: In this table choose the date next preceding the given moment. For this date apply the correction to the sun-dial with sign reversed to the sun's apparent right ascension, then add or subtract 12 hours. The result is the Greenwich Sidereal Time (G.S.T.) for 0h G.M.T. on the tabular date. Advance this time by the G.M.T. of the required moment and by 3m 57s per day (about 10s per hour) for the interval between the tabular date and the required moment; finally retard the time by the longitude west expressed in hours, minutes and seconds.

Example: Required to find the local sidereal time for Toronto (longitude 5h, 17m 40s W.) at 22 40 E.S.T. Sept. 12.

G.M.T. of required moment is 3 40 Sept. 13. From table 0h G.M.T. Sept. 13 is 11h 22m 02s + 3m 51s + 12h = 23h 25m 53s G.S.T. Therefore 3h 40m G.M.T. Sept. 13 is 23h 25m 53s + 3h 40m + $3\frac{3}{4} \times 10s$ = 27h 06m 30s or 3h 06m 30s G.S.T. Therefore local sidereal time is 3h 06m 30s - 5h 17m 40s = 21h 48m 50s.

Altitude of the Sun at Meridian Passage (see table on page 19). For architectural or gardening purposes it may be of value to know the maximum (i.e. noon-time) altitude of the sun at various seasons. This is obtained from the table of the sun's apparent declination which is listed for every third day. (Take simple proportions for intermediate days.) Proceed as follows: Subtract your latitude (presumed in the northern hemisphere) from 90° ; add or subtract (as indicated by the sign) the value of the sun's declination for the proper date.

Example: How high is the sun at noon on November 24th at Quebec City (latitude $46^{\circ} 48'$)? $90^{\circ} - 46^{\circ} 45' = 43^{\circ} 12'$. Sun's declination on Nov. 23 is $-20^{\circ} 24'$. Therefore sun's altitude at noon is $43^{\circ} 12' - 20^{\circ} 24' = 22^{\circ} 48'$.

Direction obtained from the Pole Star (see table on page 19). A previous note explained how the sun may be used to obtain the north-south direction. If a theodolite or telescopic sighting device is available, a north-south line may be laid down more accurately by means of the Pole Star. This star is exactly north only twice per day, namely at upper and lower transits. The table on page 19 lists the Local Mean Time of the upper transit of Polaris for every third day. (Take simple proportions for intermediate days.) The lower transit is 11h. 58m. later. To find the corresponding Standard Time add (or subtract) 4 minutes per degree of longitude by which you are west (or east) of your standard meridian.

Example: During the night of February 15-16 when is Polaris due north at Toronto (long. $79^{\circ} 24' W$)?

From table, upper transit is at 16 10 L.M.T. on Feb. 15. Lower transit therefore is at 4 08 L.M.T. on Feb. 16. Toronto is about $4\frac{1}{4}^{\circ}$ west of the 75th meridian, therefore the corresponding E.S.T. is 4 08 + 18 = 4 26.

Note: Although the table of upper transits of Polaris was calculated for longitude $90^{\circ} W$, little error will result in accepting these values for the whole of Canada. Working to the nearest whole minute of time the errors made in the direction of Polaris by this method will seldom exceed 10 seconds of arc.

ASTRONOMY IN CANADA

During the past fifty years Canada has established and maintained a prominent place in the field of astronomy, both professional and amateur.

Canada possesses three major astronomical observatories: the Dominion Observatory at Ottawa, the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Victoria, and the David Dunlap Observatory at Toronto. The Dominion observatories are operated under the Department of Mines and Resources and the David Dunlap Observatory is operated by the University of Toronto.

The Dominion Observatory at Ottawa has been operating since 1905. Its principal astronomical functions at the present time are the time service, solar research, and meteoric research. Its largest telescope is a 15-inch refractor.

The principal telescope of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory is a 72-inch reflector completed in 1918. With this instrument much important research concerning the motion and nature of stars has been accomplished.

The David Dunlap Observatory was completed in 1935, a gift to the University of Toronto from the late Mrs. David Dunlap in memory of her husband. The large telescope at this observatory is a 74-inch reflector. Research problems include stellar motions, stellar spectroscopy, and the study of variable stars.

The telescopes at Toronto and Victoria are exceeded in size only by the Mount Palomar 200-inch telescope, the Mount Wilson 100-inch telescope, both in California, and the 82-inch telescope of the McDonald Observatory in Texas.

As well as these major observatories where telescopic observations are made every clear night, there are a number of observatories primarily devoted to astronomical instruction. Among these are the Hume Cronyn Memorial Observatory of the University of Western Ontario at London (10-inch refractor), the Observatory of the University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon (7-inch refractor) and the Observatory of the Royal Astronomical Society of Quebec City (16-inch reflector).

Public visiting hours at these observatories are as follows: Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Victoria, Saturday evenings throughout the year; the Dominion Observatory, Ottawa, Saturday evenings throughout the year; David Dunlap Observatory at Toronto, Saturday evenings April 1 to October 31, and Wednesday afternoons throughout the year; Hume Cronyn Observatory at London, first Saturday evening in each month; University of Saskatchewan Observatory at Saskatoon and the R.A.S.C. Observatory at Quebec, one hour every clear evening.

There are other smaller observatories at Universities and Colleges which are reserved for student instruction.

In addition to professional astronomers there are many amateurs in Canada who follow this interesting study. Most of these are members of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada (see Index), membership in which is open to all who are interested in the subject.

METEORS, METEORITES, AND METEOR SHOWERS

A meteor or "shooting star" appears momentarily in the sky when a particle from beyond the earth enters the earth's atmosphere at a high velocity. Most visible meteors are caused by particles smaller than a grain of wheat, and these small particles are completely vaporized in the atmosphere at a height of about 80 miles. A spectacular meteor, known as a fire-ball, is caused by a larger body which may fall to the earth's surface in one or more pieces. Particles seen thus to fall, or subsequently found by analysis to be of this nature, are called meteorites.

Meteorites may be divided into two main classes—the irons, which are almost pure nickel-iron, and the stones. Any meteorite is characterized by a dark, smooth crust caused by the fusion of the outer part.

Meteors may be observed on any clear, moonless night at an average rate of about ten an hour. At times there occur meteor showers, when meteors are seen with much greater frequency and appear to radiate from a particular part of the sky which is called the radiant. This is an effect of perspective, the radiant being the vanishing point of the parallel tracks of the meteors. Meteor showers usually repeat themselves annually, and have nearly always been associated with the orbits of comets. When the earth passes through or near the orbit of a comet it intercepts straggling particles which cause meteors. The principal meteor showers for the northern hemisphere are listed below.

The study of meteors and meteorites adds to our knowledge of the nature and origin of the solar system and also to our knowledge of the earth's outer atmosphere.

MAGNETIC DECLINATION

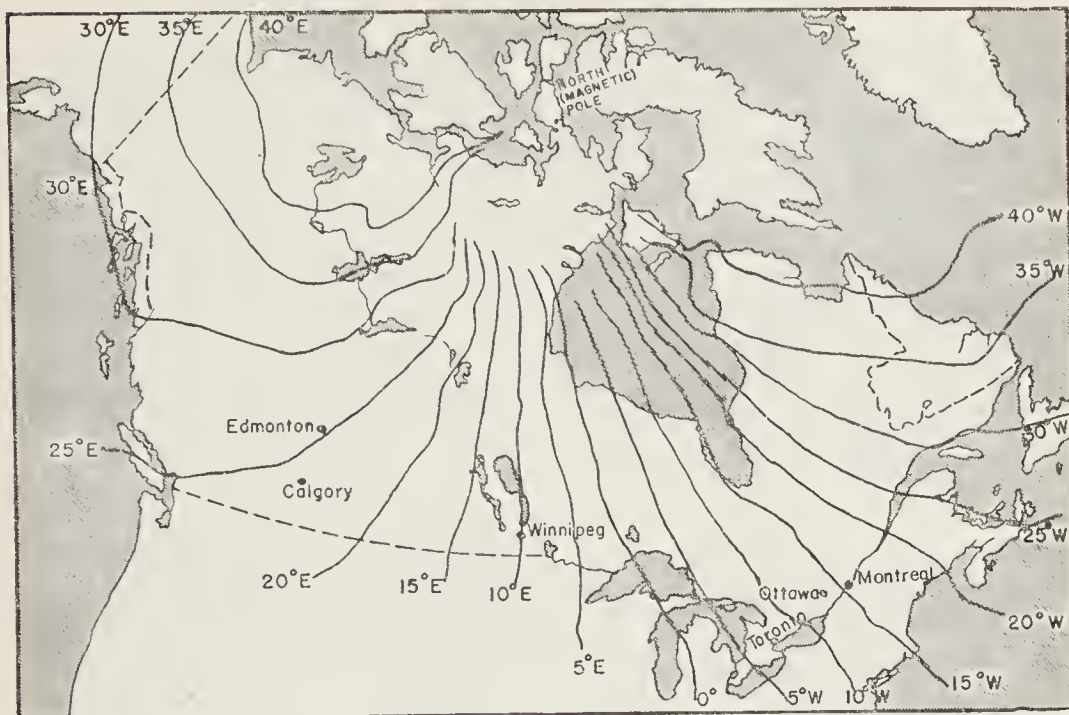

CHART OF MAGNETIC DECLINATION

A compass needle, even when unaffected by extraneous magnetic field, does not in general point due north. The amount and direction by which its direction differs from true north is called magnetic declination or variation. The declination varies with the position of the observer and also varies slowly with time. The above chart gives the values of declination over the Dominion as of 1940. These values may be used for 1951 unless accuracy of better than 1° is required.

Example: What is the direction of the compass needle at the southern tip of Lake Manitoba?

From the chart this point is about 1/4 of the way from the line of 10°E declination towards the line of 15°E declination. Therefore the declination is 11°E, i.e., the needle points 11° east of true north.

A large map of Canada showing lines of Equal Magnetic Declination and Annual Change in Canada for 1940 is obtainable from the office of the Surveyor General, Ottawa, for 25 cents.

LEGAL WEIGHTS AND MEASURES IN CANADA

In Canada the law provides, with respect to weights, that the unit shall be the standard pound (avoirdupois) of 7,000 grains, one-sixteenth part of the standard pound shall be an ounce (437½ grains), one hundred pounds a cental, and two thousand pounds a ton, and that four hundred and eighty grains shall be an ounce troy. As regards measures—That the unit or standard measure of capacity, as well for liquids as for dry measures, shall be the gallon, containing ten standard pounds of distilled water, weighed with the water and air at a temperature of sixty-two degrees Fahrenheit with the barometer at thirty inches, the quart shall be one-fourth part of a gallon, and the pint one-eighth part of the gallon, and eight gallons shall be a bushel. The 1/160th part of the gallon by volume shall be the fluid ounce.

This gallon, commonly known as the "Imperial gallon," contains 277.42 cubic inches.

The standard measure of length is the yard, one-third part of which it is provided shall be a foot, and the twelfth part of such foot shall be an inch.

The legal cord for the measurement of wood, is 128 cubic feet.

IMPERIAL MEASURE

Special note should be made of the fact that certain standards of weights and measures used in some of the states of the United States are not legal, though frequently used, in Canada. These standards are not so large, being about 16.6 per cent. smaller in capacity than the legal standards in Canada, i.e., the Imperial pint, quart and gallon. Imperial measure is 20% larger than U.S. measure.

To convert a given number of U.S. gallons into Imperial gallons, subtract 1/16th or divide by 1.2. To convert a given number of Imperial gallons into U.S. gallons, add 1/5th or multiply by 1.2.

United States liquid measure is based on a gallon containing 231 cubic inches. United States Fluid ounce = 1.04 Canadian Fluid ounce. United States Bushel = 0.9694 Canadian Bushel. The United States bushel contains 2150.42 cubic inches

EGGS

The regulations respecting the grading and marking of eggs, put into effect by the Federal Government, being in use throughout Canada, are of general interest to consumers.

The Canadian standard grades for eggs are as follows:— A1, A, B, C. — a candling definition being specified for each grade.

Grade A—The highest commercial grade; very good internal quality, clean and sound in shell; packed in three weights as follows—

Grade A Extra Large Eggs weighing individually at the rate of 27 oz. or more per dozen. (Optional)

Grade A Large—Eggs weighing individually at the rate of 24 oz. or more per dozen.

Grade A Medium—Eggs weighing individually at the rate of 21 to 24 oz. per dozen.

Grade A Small—Eggs weighing individually at the rate of 18 to 21 oz. per dozen.

Grade B.—The second grade, reasonably clean and sound in shell, weighing individually at the rate of 21 oz. or more per dozen.

Grade C.—The lowest grade, comprising all eggs, including cracks or dirty or stained eggs not permitted to be graded in Grades A and B, but which are still not of a condition unfit for human consumption.

Grade A1.—A super grade, available only on some markets. This grade is marketed only from farms holding a permit which is based on the suitability of production conditions; packed in three weights, Large, Medium and Small, the weights of which are the same as for Grade A.

Fresh—The word "fresh" shall be used only in conjunction with eggs which have not been cold stored

Measure of Length

French or Paris Foot..... = 12.789
The Arpent..... = 180 French Feet

Square Land Measure

The Arpent..... = 32400 Square French Feet
French Feet and Arpent usually apply only to territorial measurement in those parts of the Province of Quebec originally granted under the seigniorial tenure.

MEASURES OF TIME

60 minutes..... = 1 hour
24 hours..... = 1 day
(23 h. 56 m. 4 s. of mean solar time = 1 Sidereal Day)

52 weeks..... = 1 year
12 months..... = 1 year
365 days..... = 1 year
366 days..... = 1 leap-year
100 years..... = 1 century

The mean solar year is equal to 365 days, 5 hrs. 48 min. 45.7 sec., or nearly 365¼ days.

Every year whose number is divisible by 4 is a leap year, unless the number of the year ends in two ciphers, in which case the number must be divisible by 400. Thus, 2000 and 2400 will be leap years, but 1900 was not a leap year.

Solar time around the Globe varies 4 minutes with each degree of longitude.

MEASUREMENT OF SHIP TONNAGE

Followed by the British Board of Trade; applying to all ships in the British Merchant Service, including Canadian registered vessels. The U.S. merchant service use a different method.

GROSS TONNAGE is the unit of volume containing 100 cubic feet in the internal volume of a vessel under the tonnage deck to which is added:—

- (1) the 'tween deck space, if any, above the tonnage deck.
- (2) the volume of permanently closed-in spaces above the upper deck available for cargo stores, or for passengers and crew and
- (3) any excess of hatchways.

NET GR REGISTER TONNAGE. The Net or Register Tonnage is the Gross Tonnage as found above less deductions for crew space, stores, navigation spaces, allowance for propelling power and other deductions allowable under the Merchant Shipping Act.

DEADWEIGHT TONNAGE is the amount of cargo, bunkers, reserve feed water, domestic and sanitary water, provisions, consumable stores and effects on board, and is expressed in tons of 2240 lbs. each; or alternatively it is the difference in the displacement at a given draft and the displacement of the vessel "lightship" with water in boilers to working level and ready for steam but with none of the above mentioned items on board.

DISPLACEMENT is the amount of water displaced by a vessel floating in equilibrium in still water. The weight of water displaced is equal to the total weight of the vessel with everything on board and known as a displacement tonnage. If expressed in cubic feet it is known as the volume of displacement.

CHARTERED BANKS

Chartered Banks in Canada are incorporated by Special Act of the Canadian Parliament and governed by the Bank Act (Chapter 30 of the Statutes of 1944), which continues in force the charters of the banks until July 1, 1954. The Act specifies clearly the transactions in which banks may or may not legally engage, and embodies regulations designed to ensure the proper conduct of the bank's affairs. They are prohibited from engaging in any trade or business, from loaning money on the security of or dealing in the shares of any bank and from loaning more than $10,000.00 to any of their officers or clerks. Subject only to the provisions of Section 88 of the Bank Act and of the Farm Improvement Loans Act, 1944 (Chapter 41 of the Statutes of 1944), banks are also prohibited from lending upon the security of immovable property, although this may be taken as additional collateral for debts already contracted to a bank in the ordinary course of its business.

The note circulation privileges formerly held by the banks were gradually reduced from January 1, 1936 to January 1, 1945 and since the latter date no bank has been permitted to issue or re-issue notes in Canada. In January, 1950, the banks paid to the Bank of Canada an amount equal to the face value of the notes issued by them for circulation in Canada and outstanding. Bank of Canada then became liable to redeem all of these notes thereafter presented to it. The foreign note issues of a bank are limited to ten percent of its unimpaired paid-up capital.

At one time in the event of the property and assets of any bank being insufficient to pay its debts and liabilities, each shareholder was liable for the deficiency to an amount equal to the par value of the shares held by him in addition to any amount not paid up on such shares. In 1934 it was provided that this liability of a shareholder, apart from any amount not paid up on his shares, should not exceed that proportion of the par value of his shares which the amount of notes which the bank was authorized to have in circulation in Canada bore to the paid-up capital of the bank. All extra liability on bank shares ceased in January, 1950, upon payment to the Bank of Canada of the outstanding Canadian note circulation balance.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES

The Government Annuities System was set up in 1908 to encourage persons resident or domiciled in Canada to save for their old age by the purchase of deferred annuities and to enable older citizens to stretch out their accumulated savings by the purchase of immediate annuities. Canadian Government Annuities are payable for life and may be guaranteed for a period of years certain. Under deferred annuities, premiums are returned with interest if the annuitant dies before the annuity commences. The maximum amount of annuity obtainable is $1,200.00 a year. It may be obtained with the income reducing by $40.00 a month at 70, thus fitting in with the Old Age Security Act.

Employers may operate their pension plans through the purchase of Government Annuities for, or on behalf of, their employees. There are 940 such pension plans in operation, covering 137,537 working employees. In addition, there are 108,187 individual deferred annuity contracts in force. Annuity in the annual amount of $28,218,017 is being paid under 61,238 individual contracts and group certificates.

The premiums are moderate and annuities may be purchased through Canadian Government Annuities offices in 43 communities across Canada, or directly from Head Office.

For full particulars apply to C. R. McCord, Director of Annuities, Department of Labour, Ottawa.

TRUST COMPANIES AND LOAN COMPANIES IN CANADA

Trust Companies act as Executors, Trustees and Administrators under wills, or by appointment, as Trustees under marriage or other settlements, as Agent or Attorney in the management of estates of the living, as Guardian of minors or incapable persons, as Fiscal Agent for municipalities and companies, and, where so appointed, as Authorized Trustees in Bankruptcy. Some Trust Companies receive deposits and funds for guaranteed investments, and the loaning of such trust funds is restricted by law to securities authorized by the Trustee Act. The loaning of Company Funds is not so restricted.

The principal function of Loan Companies is the loaning of funds on first mortgage security, the money thus made available for development purposes being obtained mainly by the sale of debentures to the investing public and by Savings Department deposits. During and since the war years, however, there has been a substantial decrease in the amount of mortgages and real estate, and a corresponding increase in the percentage of Canadian Government bonds held.

FISHERY REGULATIONS, GAME LAWS, CLOSE SEASONS, LICENCES, &c.

The Canadian Government has the sole legislative authority over the fisheries of Canada, both coastal and inland, under which laws are made for the protection and conservation of the fisheries in all the provinces. The provinces, however, have property rights in the non-tidal fisheries. Over a period of years various arrangements have been made between the Dominion and the provinces dividing the administrative (but not the legislative) authority over fisheries. Under these arrangements the Federal Government not only legislates but also administers the fisheries in all Canadian tidal waters except those of Quebec. In the non-tidal waters of Canada the Federal Government administers the fisheries of the Yukon, Northwest Territories, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. The non-tidal fisheries of the other provinces are administered by the provincial authorities who enforce, on behalf of the Federal Government, the Federal laws regulating the fisheries as such.

Fisheries in National Parks of Canada are under the administration of the National Parks Service of the Federal Department of Resources and Development, Ottawa.

For further information as to fisheries regulations apply to the Department of Fisheries, Ottawa, or, in the case of National Parks, to the National Parks Service, Ottawa. For information as to fishing licence fees in any area apply to the administrative authority indicated above.

GAME LAWS

Migratory birds are protected under a Federal law known as the Migratory Birds Convention Act, which is administered by the Canadian Wildlife Service, Department of Resources and Development, Ottawa, Canada, in conjunction with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and in co-operation with the provincial game authorities. This Act is based upon the Migratory Birds Treaty with the U.S.

With this exception, and except in National Parks, game laws are under the administration of the various provinces and territories.

A Federal Law, the Game Export Act, passed in 1941, prohibits the export of game from any province or territory without permit from the province or territory. It has been proclaimed for all provinces and territories except Prince Edward Island.

Details as to closed seasons, licences, etc., are not given here, owing to the fact that regulations for the ensuing months are, in some cases, not available when this volume goes to press and where available are often subject to changes before the opening of the season.

Full information concerning the Federal laws mentioned above may be obtained by writing to the following address: Chief, Canadian Wildlife Service, Ottawa; and respecting provincial game laws by writing to the addresses given below:

POST OFFICES AND RAILROAD STATIONS
IN THE DOMINION OF CANADA

The Offices printed in Italics are authorized to issue and pay Money Orders, and to dispatch and Collect C.O.D. parcels. The Offices marked * are Savings Bank Offices. † Places marked thus are not Post Offices. Capital letters on right of the Electoral District column indicates the several Provinces of the Dominion, thus:—A, Alberta; BC, British Columbia; M, Manitoba; N B, New Brunswick; Nd, Newfoundland; NS, Nova Scotia; NWT, Northwest Territories; O, Ontario; P E I, Prince Edward Island; Q, Quebec; S, Saskatchewan; Yu, Yukon.

The population of all cities, towns, and organized villages is shown to the right of places, according to the Census of 1951. A large number of post offices and railway points are not incorporated, consequently have no population figure shown. The population of Dominion Electoral Districts is shown under House of Commons, see index.

Elsewhere in this volume is a comparative table of census figures for cities and towns of 1000 or over.

Where a street address occurs in the centre column it indicates that the place name is the name of a sub-post office of a larger place, the street-address being that of the post office.

The numbers and names placed opposite every place indicate the Railroad, Steamship, or Air-line on which the place or nearest rail, water, or air point is situated. See list of Railroads, Steamboats, and Air Lines on pages 81 to 87. For Express Companies, see pages 78 to 80.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR ELECTORS IN DOMINION AND PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS

ELECTIONS FOR THE DOMINION HOUSE OF COMMONS

According to The Canada Elections Act, and subject to certain exceptions, the general rule as to the qualifications of electors at a Dominion election is that every person in Canada, man or woman, is qualified to vote and entitled to be registered as an elector on the list of electors for the polling division in which such person ordinarily resides at the time of the issuing of the writ ordering a Dominion election in the electoral district if such person (a) is of the full age of 21 years, or will attain the full age of 21 years on or before polling day at the appropriate pending election; (b) is a Canadian citizen or other British subject; (c) has been ordinarily resident in Canada for the twelve months preceding polling day at the appropriate pending election, and (d) at a by-election only, has continued to be ordinarily resident in the electoral district until polling day. Among persons disqualified are Indians living on a reserve who have not executed a waiver of exemptions from taxation, prisoners, persons under restraint owing to mental disease, and Doukhobors in British Columbia. Indians residing on an Indian reserve who have served in World War I or World War II, and their wives, are entitled to vote without the requirements of executing a waiver of exemptions from taxation. Doukhobors, residing in British Columbia, who have served in World War I or World War II, and their wives and descendants, are entitled to vote.

Whenever an election is ordered an entire new list of electors is prepared, according to The Canada Elections Act, under the general direction of the Chief Electoral Officer, and supervision of a returning officer who is appointed for each electoral district. There are two classes of polling divisions which are called Urban and Rural. Generally speaking urban polling divisions are those comprised in cities and towns of over 5,000 population, the other polling divisions are rural. In urban polling divisions, a pair of enumerators representing different political interests, is appointed for each polling division. They make a house-to-house visitation immediately after the issue of the writ for the appropriate pending election, to secure the necessary information to complete a list of electors for their polling division. In rural polling divisions, the list is similarly prepared by one rural enumerator. Writs for a Dominion election are issued about two months before the date fixed for polling day, except at by-elections when such writs may be issued about 6 weeks before polling day.

Chief Electoral Officer, Nelson J. Castonguay, Ottawa.

Liquor can only be sold in sealed packages through the Government stores. A permit is required for spirits, wine and beer.

By local option vote, beer and wine by the glass or open bottle may be served with meals during meal time by hotels which have been licensed to do so, in those areas which voted for the privilege. In the same manner, beer by the glass or open bottle may be sold for consumption on the premises in taverns, the operators of which have been licensed to do so. In the case of a hotel, the tavern premises must be so constructed as to be entirely separate from the hotel proper.

ONTARIO

In Ontario spirituous liquor is sold by the bottle in Government stores operated by The Liquor Control Board. Those desiring to purchase such liquor must secure a liquor permit which authorizes the purchase and consumption in the residence of the holder of the permit. Wine may be purchased from Liquor Control Board Stores, Ontario Wine Stores, and Wineries for consumption in the residence of the purchaser. Beer is procurable from Liquor Control Board Stores, Breweries and Brewers' Retail Stores for consumption in the residence of the purchaser.

Under the liquor licence laws of Ontario, liquor may be sold by the glass under a "Lounge Licence" and with meals under a "Dining Lounge Licence" in municipalities having a population of over 50,000. This privilege may be extended to smaller municipalities, provided that the municipal electors have signified their approval thereof by a vote. Beer may be served by the glass in licensed "Public Houses" and beer and wine may be served with meals in licensed "Dining Rooms" and "Restaurants". Clubs, railway trains and steamships may be issued licences for the sale of spirits, wine and beer. In clubs, the sale is restricted to members and their guests.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

Intoxicating liquors in sealed packages may be obtained on Individual or Temporary Permits from retail vendors under the Prince Edward Island Temperance Act.

Chairman of the Temperance Commission is B. J. Haywood, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

QUEBEC

Spirits and wines are sold and delivered by the Quebec Liquor Commission stores only.

Spirits and wines so obtained may be sold to the public, by hotels, cafés and clubs under licenses, provided these are consumed on the premises.

Beer is obtained directly from the breweries and may be sold to the public by inns, taverns and restaurants under licenses, provided it is also consumed on the premises.

A grocery store duly licensed may sell beer at such store on condition: that not less than one bottle be sold; that beer be not consumed in that store or dependency thereof.

Municipalities may declare by by-law that no alcoholic liquor of any description may be sold within their territory.

SASKATCHEWAN

The sale of spirituous liquor and wine is restricted to the Liquor Board's stores. The following quantities may be purchased in any one day:

- Beer..... 2 gallons
- Wine..... 1 gallon

Any other Liquor..... 40 ounces

The quantity of beer, wine and any other liquor that may be sold at any one time or in any one day to a purchaser may be increased to an amount not exceeding twice the quantity that would otherwise be sold in any one day under the provisions of subsection (1) of section 29 of The Liquor Act, provided that in case of a sale of such increased quantity no further purchase shall be made by the same person on the next following day when stores are open for the sale of liquor.

No permit required.

Sales of beer are made through Liquor Board Stores and in licensed premises. Licensees holding a license to sell beer by the glass may also be granted a license to sell beer in closed packages to be consumed off the premises.

NORTHWEST TERRITORIES

The Northwest Territories Act, Chapter 142, R.S., 1927, prohibits the manufacture of any intoxicating liquor or intoxicant in the territories except by special permission of the Governor in Council.

The Governor in Council, as authorized by Section 10 of the Northwest Territories Act has designated the control, regulation and sale of intoxicants in the Northwest Territories as a subject in respect of which the Commissioner in Council, subject to the provisions of the Northwest Territories Act and of any other Act of the Parliament of Canada applying to the Territories may make such Ordinance or Ordinances as conditions or circumstances may to the Commissioner in Council appear to warrant.

By virtue of this authority the Territorial Liquor Ordinance has been passed and Territorial Liquor Stores have been established at Yellowknife and Fort Smith, N.W.T. Licensed premises for the sale of beer include a hotel beer parlour and the Canadian Legion premises at Yellowknife, and a hotel beer parlour at Hay River. Beer and other liquor may be sold in a cocktail lounge at Yellowknife and in a few service messes and canteens in the Territories.

Authority to manufacture intoxicants has only been granted in isolated instances, the product manufactured being wine for sacramental purposes.

YUKON TERRITORY

The Yukon Act, Chapter 215, R.S., 1927, authorizes the Commissioner in Council of the Yukon Territory to make Ordinances for the control and regulation of the sale of and traffic in intoxicating liquor in the Territory.

By virtue of this authority Territorial Government Liquor Stores have been opened at Dawson, Mayo and Whitehorse and beer parlours and cocktail lounges at various places in the Territory.

TRADE MARKS

THE UNFAIR COMPETITION ACT, 1932

22-23 GEORGE V, CHAP. 38

A brief summary follows. A copy of the Act may be procured from The Registrar, Trade Marks Office, Ottawa Ont. It is suggested a competent attorney be consulted. The names of a number of such appear in these pages.

This Act came into force Sept. 1st, 1932, and repeals An Act respecting Trade Marks and Industrial Designs (see Chapter 201) in part as follows: Sections 3, 4 to 21 inclusive, 23 and 53 are repealed; and sections 42 to 52 are amended by striking therefrom the words "trade mark" and "trade marks" and any other words exclusively relating to said words.

TRADE MARK

TRADE MARK means a symbol which has become adapted to distinguish particular wares falling within a general category from other wares falling within the same category, and is used by any person in association with wares entering into trade or commerce for the purpose of indicating to dealers in, and/or users of such wares that they have been manufactured, sold, leased or hired by him, or that they are of a defined standard or have been produced under defined working conditions, by a defined class of persons, or in a defined territorial area, and includes any distinguishing guise capable of constituting a trade mark.

WORD MARK

WORD MARK means a trade mark consisting only of a series of letters and/or numerals and depending for its distinctiveness upon the idea or sound suggested by the sequence of the letters and/or numerals and their separation into groups, independently of the form of the letters or numerals severally or as a series.

DESIGN MARK

DESIGN MARK means a trade mark consisting of an arbitrary and in itself meaningless mark or design, or of a representation of some object or objects, or of letters or numerals in series or otherwise, or of a combination of two or more of the foregoing elements, and depending for its distinctiveness upon its form and colour, or upon the form, arrangement or colour of its several parts, independently of any idea or sound capable of being suggested by the particular sequence of the letters and/or numerals, if any, forming part, thereof, or by their separation into groups, and includes any distinguishing guise capable of constituting a trade mark.

DISTINGUISHING GUISE

DISTINGUISHING GUISE means a mode of shaping, moulding, wrapping or packing wares entering into trade or commerce which, by reason only of the sensory impression thereby given and independently of any element of utility or convenience it may have, is adapted to distinguish the wares so treated from other similar wares and is used by some person in association with his wares in such a way as to indicate to dealers in and/or users of similar wares that the wares so treated have been manufactured or sold by him.

OWNER

OWNER in relation to a trade mark, means either the person who has an exclusive right to use the mark in association with his wares in such a way as to indicate to dealers in and/or users of such wares that they have been manufactured, sold, leased or hired by him, or, in the case of a trade mark adopted for use in such a way as to indicate only that the wares in association with which it is used are of a defined standard or that they have been produced under defined working conditions, by a defined class of persons or in a defined territorial area, means the person, trade union, commercial association or administrative authority by which the said standard, working conditions, class of persons or area has been defined.

UNFAIR COMPETITION

No person shall knowingly adopt for use in Canada in connection with any wares any trade mark or any distinguishing guise which

3. (a) is already in use in Canada by any other person and which is registered pursuant to the provisions of this Act as a trade mark or distinguishing guise for the same or similar wares;
- (b) is already in use by any other person in any country of the Union other than Canada (i.e. any country which has acceded to the Union for the Protection of Industrial Property under the Convention as revised at the Hague on Nov. 6, 1925) as a trade mark or distinguishing guise for the same or similar wares, and is known in Canada in association with such wares by reason either of the distribution of the wares in Canada or of their advertisement therein in any printed publication circulated in the ordinary course among potential dealers in and/or users of such wares in Canada; or,

- (c) is similar to any trade mark or distinguishing guise in use, or in use and known as aforesaid.
4. (1) The person who, in association with wares, first uses or makes known in Canada, as provided in the last preceding section, a trade mark or a distinguishing guise capable of constituting a trade mark, shall be entitled to the exclusive use in Canada of such trade mark or distinguishing guise in association with such wares, provided that such trade mark is recorded in the register existing under the Trade Mark and Design Act at the date of the coming into force of this Act, or provided that in compliance with the provisions of this Act he makes application for the registration of such trade mark within six months of the date on which this Act comes into force, or of the date of his first use thereof in Canada, or of the date upon which the trade mark or distinguishing guise was first made known in Canada, as provided in the last preceding section, and thereafter obtains and maintains registration thereof under the provisions of this Act.

TIME FOR APPLICATION

- (3) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection one of this section, the person who first uses or makes known in Canada, in association with wares a trade mark or a distinguishing guise capable of constituting a trade mark may apply for and secure registration thereof after the expiration of any of the periods of six months specified by subsection one, provided the same or a similar trade mark or distinguishing guise has not been registered by another for use in association with the same or similar wares, but such application shall not be allowed or the registration of such trade mark made before the expiration of a period of six months from the date of such application.

REGISTER OF TRADE MARKS

22. (1) There shall be kept under the supervision of the Registrar a register of trade marks in which, subject as hereinafter provided, any person may cause to be recorded any trade mark he has adopted, and notifications of any assignments, transmissions, disclaimers and judgments relating to such trade mark.

(2) The register shall specify the date upon which each of the trade marks recorded therein was registered, and shall contain an abstract of the statements contained in the applications for the registration of such marks respectively, and of any documents deposited with such applications, or filed with the Registrar subsequent to the making of the applications and affecting the right to such trade marks respectively.

23. (1) The register now existing under the Trade Mark and Design Act shall form part of the register maintained pursuant to this Act, and, subject as hereinafter provided, all entries therein shall hereafter be governed by the provisions of this Act, but shall not, if properly made under the law in force at the time they were made, be subject to be expunged or amended only because they might not properly have been made hereunder.

(2) The Registrar may at any time, and shall at the request of any applicant for the registration of a trade mark under this Act, by notice in writing require the owner of any trade mark or union label on the register at the date of the coming into force of this Act to furnish to him within four months from the date of the notice the information which would have been required on an application for the registration of such trade mark under this Act.

(3) If such information is not furnished pursuant to such notice, the Registrar shall by a further notice, fix a reasonable time within which, if the information is not furnished, the record of the registration shall be liable to be expunged, and it may be expunged accordingly by the Registrar if no objection is made by the owner of the mark, or by judgment, declaration or order of the Exchequer Court of Canada if he enters an objection.

(4) Any such notice as aforesaid shall be deemed to have been sufficiently given if sent to the person appearing from the record to be the owner of such mark addressed to him at his address as stated in the application for the registration of the mark or for the last renewal thereof, and if any other later or more accurate address is known to the Registrar, at such later or more accurate address, and also addressed to him in care of the person to whom the certificate of registration or of the last renewal thereof was sent at the time of its issue.

(5) Marks registered before the coming into force of this Act shall be treated as word marks or as design marks according to the following rules:—

- (a) Any mark consisting of words and/or numerals only without any indication of a special form or appearance shall be deemed to be a word mark;
- (b) Any other mark consisting of words and/or numerals only shall be deemed to be a word mark if at the date of its registration the words and/or numerals would have been registrable independently of any defined special form or appearance and shall also be deemed to be a design mark for reading matter presenting the special form or appearance defined;
- (c) Any mark including words and/or numerals in combination with other features shall be deemed to be a design mark having the features described in the application therefor but without any meaning being attributed to the words or numerals, which shall, however, also be deemed to constitute a word mark if and so far as they would at the date of registration have been registrable independently of any defined form or appearance and without being combined with any other feature;
- (d) Any other mark shall be deemed to be a design mark having the features described in the application therefor.

REGISTRABLE TRADE MARKS

26. (1) Subject as otherwise provided in this Act, a word mark shall be registrable if it

- (a) does not contain more than thirty letters and/or numerals divided into not more than four groups;
- (b) is not the name of a person, firm or corporation;
- (c) is not, to an English or French speaking person, clearly descriptive or misdescriptive of the character or quality of the wares in connection with which it is proposed to be used, or of the conditions of, or the persons employed in, their production, or of their place of origin;
- (d) would not if sounded be so descriptive or misdescriptive to an English or French speaking person;
- (e) is not the name in any language of any of the wares in connection with which it is to be used;
- (f) is not similar to, or to a possible translation into English or French of, some other word mark already registered for use in connection with similar wares; and
- (g) is not such as to suggest the name in French or English of some feature of a design mark already registered for use in connection with similar wares which is so characteristic of the design mark that its name would not be unlikely to be used to define or describe the wares in connection with which the design mark is used.

(2) An application for the registration of a word mark otherwise registrable shall not be refused on the ground that the mark consists of or includes a series of letters or numerals which also constitute or form part of the name of the firm or corporation by which the application for registration is made.

27. Subject as hereinafter provided, any design mark may be registered if it

- (a) is not identical with or similar to any design mark already registered for use in connection with similar wares;
- (b) is not such as to be likely to mislead dealers in and/or users of the wares in connection with which it is proposed to be used as to the character or quality of such wares or as to the conditions of or the persons employed in their production or as to their place of origin;
- (c) is not such that, by reason of one of its principal characteristics being a representation of something which obviously suggests a word mark already registered for use in connection with similar wares, it is likely that such word mark, or some word resembling the same, would be used to define or describe the wares in connection with which the design mark is used.

APPLICATION FOR REGISTRATION

30. (1) Any person who desires to register a trade mark under this Act otherwise than pursuant to a judgment, order or declaration of the Exchequer Court of Canada shall make an application in writing to the Registrar in duplicate containing

- (a) a statement of the date from which the applicant or named predecessors in title has or have used the mark for the purposes defined in the application and of the countries in which the mark has been principally used since the said date;
- (b) a statement that the applicant considers that, having regard to the provisions of this Act, he was and is entitled to adopt and use the mark in Canada in connection with the wares described; and
- (c) the address of the applicant's principal office or place of business in Canada, if any, and if the applicant has no office or place of business in Canada, the address of his principal office or place of business abroad and the name and address in Canada of some person, firm or corporation to whom any notice in respect of the registration may be sent, and upon whom service of any proceedings in respect of the registration may be made with the same effect as if they had been served upon the applicant himself.

(2) If the mark is intended to indicate that the wares in association with which it is used have been manufactured, sold, leased or hired by the owner thereof the application shall so indicate and shall contain

- (a) a concise description, expressed in such terms as are ordinarily and commercially used by the applicant, of the wares with which the applicant is commercially concerned;
- (b) a concise description in like terms of the specific wares in association with which the applicant has used the mark.

- (a) a statement that the applicant is not engaged in the manufacture, sale, leasing or hiring of wares similar to any wares in association with which the mark is used;

AMENDMENT OF RECORD OF REGISTRATION

42. If the person who at any time appears from the record of the registration of a trade mark to be the owner of such mark represents to the Registrar that any amendment is required to any statement theretofore recorded relating to the wares in which the owner of the mark is commercially concerned, or to the use of the mark, the address of the owner, or the person upon whom service may be made of proceedings in respect of the registration, the record shall, subject as hereinafter provided, be amended or added to accordingly.

(1) Whenever it is made to appear to his satisfaction that any person who appears on the register to be an owner of a registered trade mark has ceased to be so and that some other person has become by assignment or transmission the owner of such mark, the Registrar shall note the change of ownership accordingly on the record of the registration.

(2) A registered trade mark shall not be assigned or transmitted except in connection and concurrently with an assignment or transmission of the good will of the business carried on in Canada in association with the wares for which such mark has been registered, and in any case such trade mark shall be terminate with such goodwill; provided however that any registered owner of a trade mark whose headquarters are situate in Canada and who is entitled to its exclusive use in connection with a business carried on in Canada may assign the right to use such trade mark in any other country, in association with any wares for which such trade mark is registered, in connection and concurrently with his assignment of the goodwill of the business carried on in such other country in such wares, provided that the grant of such right is forthwith recorded by the grantor of such right in the register maintained pursuant to this Act.

NOTICES OF PROPOSED AMENDMENT OR CANCELLATION AFTER NOTICE

49. (1) The Registrar may at any time, and shall at the request of any person who pays the prescribed fee, notify the person appearing from the register to be the owner of any trade mark that he considers, or that it has been represented to him that such trade mark has ceased to be used as a trade mark in Canada, or for any other specific reason to be set out in the notice, the registration of such mark should be cancelled or that an entry relating thereto should be struck out, corrected or amplified, and request him to advise whether he has any, and if any, what objection to the amendment of the register accordingly.

(3) If, within three months from the despatch of such a notice as aforesaid, no reply to it has been received from the person to whom it was addressed, the Registrar shall send such person a second notice enclosing a copy of the first and stating that if, within a reasonable time to be fixed by the notice, no objection to the proposed amendment of the register is received, such amendment will be made, and, unless an objection is received within the time limited, the Registrar shall amend the register accordingly.

(4) Except as in the next following section provided, the Registrar shall not cause any amendment to be made in the register to which the person appearing therefrom to be the owner of the mark makes any objection.

PATENTS IN CANADA

The Patent Act, 1935, Chap. 32, 25-26 Geo. V, 1935, as amended by Chap. 23 II Geo. VI, 1947 (assented to 14th May, 1947).

A synopsis of the principal provisions of The Patent Act are given below:—

For a copy of the Act apply to the Commissioner of Patents, Ottawa, who receives all applications and has charge of all records.

As it is difficult for an applicant to properly comply with the regulations of the Patent Office unless he is conversant with the process of obtaining a patent, any person contemplating obtaining a patent is advised to consult one of the patent solicitors whose cards appear in this volume.

DEFINITION OF INVENTION

The Act defines "invention" as any new and useful art, process, machine, manufacture or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement in the same.

WHO MAY OBTAIN PATENTS

Subject to the various provisions of the Act, any inventor or legal representative of an inventor, of an invention which was:

(a) not known or used by others before he invented it, and

(b) not described in any patent or in any publication printed in Canada or in any other country more than two years before presentation of the petition, and

(c) not in public use or on sale in Canada for more than two years prior to his application in Canada may obtain a patent granting him an exclusive property in such invention.

Any inventor or legal representative of an inventor who applies in Canada for a patent for an invention for which application for patent has been made in any other country by such inventor or his legal representative before the filing of the application in Canada, shall not be entitled to obtain in Canada a patent for that invention unless his application in Canada is filed:

(a) before issue of any patent to such inventor or his legal representative for the same invention in any other country; or

(b) if a patent has issued in any other country within twelve months after the filing of the first application by such inventor or his legal representative for patent for such invention in any other country.

No patent shall issue for an invention which has an illicit object in view, or for any mere scientific principle or abstract theorem.

APPLICATIONS FOR PATENTS

An applicant for a patent shall state in his application, if resident in Canada, his address in Canada. If not so resident, the name and address of some person resident in Canada who has been nominated to represent the applicant or patentee for all purposes of the Act including the service of all proceedings taken under any provision of the Act. This representative may be changed if necessary.

Each application for a patent shall be completed and prepared for examination within twelve months after the filing of the application, and in default thereof, or upon failure of the applicant to prosecute the same within six months after any examiner's action thereon of which notice shall have been given to the applicant, such application shall be deemed to have been abandoned, but it may be reinstated within twelve months after the date on which it was deemed to have been abandoned, if the failure to prosecute the application within the time specified was not reasonably avoidable. An application so reinstated shall retain its original filing date.

TREATY OR CONVENTION RIGHTS

Section 27 (1). provides that an application for a patent filed in Canada by any person entitled to protection under the terms of any treaty or convention relating to patents to which Canada is a party who has, or whose agent or other legal representative has, previously regularly filed an application for a patent for the same invention in any other country which by treaty, convention or law affords similar privilege to citizens of Canada, shall have the same force and effect as the same application would have if filed in Canada on the date on which the application for patent for the same invention was first filed in such other country, provided the application in this country is filed within twelve months from the earliest date on which any such application was filed in such other country or from the thirteenth day of June, 1923.

No patent shall be granted on an application for a patent for an invention which had been patented or described in a patent or publication printed in Canada or any other country more than two years before the date of the actual filing of the application in Canada, or which had been in public use or on sale in Canada or more than two years prior to such filing.

JOINT APPLICATIONS

Section 32 (1), new in 1947, provides that:

(1) Where an invention is made by two or more inventors, and one of them refuses to make application for a patent or his whereabouts cannot be ascertained after diligent enquiry, the other inventor or his legal representative may make application, and a patent may be granted in the name of the inventor who makes the application, on satisfying the Commissioner that the joint inventor has refused to make application or that his whereabouts cannot be ascertained after diligent enquiry.

Where an applicant has agreed to assign a patent when granted to another person or to a joint applicant and refuses to proceed with the application; or where disputes arise between joint applicants as to proceeding with the application, the Commissioner may grant a patent to either one of the parties. Procedure is also outlined when a joint applicant retires or is added.

ASSIGNMENTS—APPLICANTS NOT INVENTORS

A patent may be granted to any person to whom an inventor has assigned or bequeathed by his last will his right to obtain it and the assignee may register such an assignment, after which the application cannot be withdrawn without the consent of the assignee.

IMPROVEMENTS MAY BE PATENTED

Any improvement to a patented invention may be patented.

TERM OF PATENT

The term limit for the duration of patents issued by the Patent Office under this Act is 17 years from the date on which the patent is granted and issued but if the application for the patent was filed prior to the coming into force of this section of the Act, the term is 18 years from the date on which the patent is granted and issued.

REFUSAL OF PATENTS

Where a patent is refused, the applicant may any time within 6 months' appeal the decision to the Exchequer Court. (Sec. 43)

INVENTIONS BY PUBLIC SERVANTS

Section 46 deals with the restriction and regulations of the rights of an inventor if he is in the public service of Canada.

GOVERNMENT OWNED PATENTS

Sections 19a, 19b, and 19c are new in 1947, dealing with secret patents and patents relating to Atomic Energy. Section 19a (1) provides that:

to such minister on behalf of His Majesty all the benefits of the invention and of any patent obtained or to be obtained for the invention; and any other person who invents any such invention may so assign to such minister on behalf of His Majesty all the benefits of the invention and of any patent obtained or to be obtained for the invention.

Provision is made that an inventor, other than those mentioned in the preceding section, shall be entitled to compensation. Persons making assignments or having knowledge thereof are deemed to have information entrusted in confidence. Other provisions deal with secrecy. Subsection (15) provides that:

The Governor in Council, if satisfied that an invention relating to any instrument or munition of war, described in any specified application for patent not assigned to the Minister of National Defence, is vital to the defence of Canada and that the publication of a patent therefor should be prevented in order to preserve the safety of the State, may order that such invention and application and all the documents relating thereto shall be treated for all purposes of this section as if the invention had been assigned or agreed to be assigned to the Minister of National Defence.

INFRINGEMENT

Anyone infringing a patent shall be liable to the patentee and to all persons claiming under him for all damages sustained by the patentee or by any such person by reason of such infringement; and the Court may issue an injunction restraining the opposite party from the further use, sale, etc., of the article.

Provision is made that a person who, previous to the granting of the patent has purchased, constructed or acquired any invention shall have the right of using and selling the article, etc.

IMPEACHMENT

If any person has reasonable cause to believe that any process used or proposed to be used or any article made, used or sold or proposed to be made, used or sold by him might be alleged by any patentee to constitute an infringement of an exclusive property or privilege granted thereby, he may bring an action in the Exchequer Court of Canada against the patentee for a declaration that such process or article does not or would not constitute an infringement of such exclusive property or privilege.

PRIORITY OF INVENTIONS

No patent or claim in a patent shall be declared invalid or void on the ground that, before the invention therein defined was made by the inventor by whom the patent was applied for it had already been known or used by some other inventor, unless it is established either that,

(a) before the date of the application for the patent such other person had disclosed or used the invention in such manner that it had become available to the public; or that

(b) such other person had, before the issue of the patent, made an application for patent in Canada upon which conflict proceedings should have been directed; or that

(c) such other person had at any time made an application in Canada which by virtue of section twenty-seven of this Act had the same force and effect as if it had been filed in Canada before the issue of the patent and upon which conflict proceedings should properly have been directed had it been so filed.

PATENTED ARTICLE TO BE MARKED OR STAMPED

Every patentee under this Act shall, if possible, stamp or engrave on each patented article sold or offered for sale by him notice of the year of the date of the patent applying to such article, thus—Patented, 1935, or as the case may be.

When, from the nature of any patented article it cannot be so stamped or engraved the patentee shall, if possible, affix to it, or to every package wherein one or more of such articles is or are enclosed, a label marked with the like notice.

When any patented article or material is, from its nature or character, such that it cannot be so stamped or engraved and cannot, reasonably, be packaged or labelled the patentee shall, in all descriptive or advertising matter published by him and relating to such patented article or material, insert the like notice.

ABUSE OF RIGHTS UNDER PATENTS

NOT WORKING A PATENTED INVENTION

The Attorney General of Canada or any person interested may at any time after the expiration of three years from the date of the grant of a patent apply to the Commissioner alleging in the case of that patent that there has been an abuse of the exclusive rights thereunder and asking for relief under this Act.

The exclusive rights under a patent shall be deemed to have been abused in any of the following circumstances:—

(a) If the patented invention (being one capable of being worked within Canada) is not being worked within Canada on a commercial scale, and no satisfactory reason can be given for such non-working;

Provided that, if an application is presented to the Commissioner on this ground, and the Commissioner is of opinion that the time which has elapsed since the grant of the patent has by reason of the nature of the invention or for any other cause been insufficient to enable the invention to be worked within Canada on a commercial scale, the Commissioner may make an order adjourning the application for such period as will in his opinion be sufficient for that purpose;

(b) If the working of the invention within Canada on a commercial scale is being prevented or hindered by the importation from abroad of the patented article by the patentee or persons claiming under him, or by persons directly or indirectly purchasing from him, or by other persons against whom the patentee is not taking or has not taken any proceedings for infringement;

(c) If the demand for the patented article in Canada, is not being met to an adequate extent and on reasonable terms;

(d) If, by reason of the refusal of the patentee to grant a licence or licences upon reasonable terms, the trade or industry of Canada or the trade of any person or class of persons trading in Canada, or the establishment of any new trade or industry in Canada, is prejudiced, and it is in the public interest that a licence or licences should be granted;

(e) If any trade or industry in Canada, or any person or class of persons engaged therein, is unfairly prejudiced by the conditions attached by the patentee, whether before or after the passing of this Act, to the purchase, hire, licence, or use of the patented article, or to the using or working of the patented process;

(f) If it is shown that the existence of the patent, being a patent for an invention relating to a process involving the use of materials not protected by the patent or for an invention relating to a substance produced by such a process, has been utilized by the patentee so as unfairly to prejudice in Canada the manufacture, use or sale of any such materials.

LICENSE WHERE INVENTION NOT BEING WORKED

If a case of abuse is established the Commissioner may order a grant to an applicant of a licence on such terms as the Commissioner may think expedient; or if he is satisfied that an invention is not being worked on a commercial scale within Canada, he may under certain circumstances order the grant of an exclusive licence to an applicant able to provide capital for the working of the patent; or he may order the patent to be revoked.

In granting an exclusive licence a royalty shall be arranged payable to the patentee.

CAVEATS

Any intending applicant for a patent who has not yet perfected his invention and is in fear of being despoiled of his idea, may file in the Patent Office a document setting forth a description of his invention so far as it has proceeded, with or without plans, at his own will; and the Commissioner, on payment of the prescribed fee shall cause that document, which shall be called a "caveat," to be preserved in secrecy with the exception that he shall deliver copies thereof whenever required by the applicant or by any judicial tribunal. The secrecy of the document shall cease when the applicant obtains a patent for his invention.

THE CANADIAN LAW OF COPYRIGHT

by HAROLD G. FOX, Q.C.

WHAT IS COPYRIGHT? Copyright, as its name implies, is merely the right to restrain copying. By the terms of the Canadian Copyright Act, which came into force on January 1st, 1924, copyright subsists in every original literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic work. The work must be original and its author must, at the date of its making, be a British subject, a citizen or subject of a foreign country which has adhered to the Berne Convention, or be resident within the British Dominions; and if in the case of a published work the work was first published within British dominions or in a country which has adhered to the Berne Convention. A work is deemed to be first published in such a country if published there and in some other country simultaneously. The last word is interpreted as allowing fourteen days interval between the publication in the two countries.

Publication means the issue of copies to the public. It does not include the performance in public of a dramatic or musical work, the delivery in public of a lecture, the exhibition in public of an artistic work, or the construction of an architectural work of art. Nor does the issue of photographs and engravings of works of sculpture and architectural works of art constitute publication of such works.

Copyright is defined by the Act as the sole right to produce or reproduce the work or any substantial part thereof in any material form whatsoever, to perform, or in the case of a lecture to deliver, the work or any substantial part thereof in public; if the work is unpublished, to publish the work or any substantial part thereof. Copyright as conferred by the statute includes the sole right to produce, reproduce, perform, or publish translations of the work, the sole right to convert from a dramatic work to a non-dramatic work, to convert from a non-dramatic work or an artistic work to a dramatic work, by way of performance in public or otherwise, to make records, perforated rolls, cinematograph films or other contrivances by means of which the work may be mechanically performed or delivered; to reproduce, adapt and publicly present the work by cinematograph, to communicate it by radio communication, and to authorize any of these acts.

ORIGINALITY. The originality required by the statute relates to the expression of thought. The form in which the work is clothed should be original although the idea or concept upon which the work is based need have no originality whatsoever. Originality in copyright law means that the work must be in a form created by its author and must not be copied from any other work. An illustration of this principle may be furnished in simple terms by reference to copyright in paintings. An artist may paint a particular scene, let us say, in the Laurentian mountains. A second artist may set up his easel on exactly the same spot as the first artist and may paint exactly the same scene, as he sees it. Whatever similarity the two works may have is irrelevant. The second work is an original work and entitled to copyright. If, however, the second artist does not go to the scene itself, but paints his canvas from a view of the first artist's canvas, the second artist not only infringes the first artist's copyright, but is not entitled to copyright in his own work. The same principle, of course, applies to photographs.

In order to understand this principle it will be useful to refer to copyright in compilations and anthologies. An author may decide to write, as an example, a history of the Roman Empire. He cannot know that history other than by reading the sources, original and secondary. From these he compiles a work based upon the works of others, but to which he has lent an original character by his own mental labours, and is therefore entitled to copyright in that work. A second author may go to the same original and secondary sources and compile a like work. He is entitled to copyright in it and does not infringe the copyright of the first compiler provided he uses the first compiler's work fairly and only for checking the accuracy of his own without copying any substantial part of it.

LITERARY WORKS. Literary works are those which are expressed in print or writing such as books, maps, plans, tables and compilations. Copyright in a work includes the title of the work if that title is original and distinctive, but the mere taking of a title apart from any substantial part of a work does not constitute infringement. It is only when the title has become so far identified with a work as to mean that work and that work alone in the minds of the public; that such a taking can be restrained on the ground that the second work is passed off on the public as and for the first work.

DRAMATIC WORKS. Dramatic works include any piece for recitation, choreographic work, or entertainment in dumb show, the scenic arrangement or acting form of which is fixed in writing or otherwise, and any cinematograph production where the arrangement or acting form or the combination of incidents represented give the work an original character. Copyright subsists not only in the actual words of the work but in the dramatic incidents created. In order to be protected as a dramatic work there must be some dramatic action. On this basis a dance step or piece of dramatic action may be protected by a written description of the acts of the performer. In that case there is a double copyright, one in the writing itself as a literary work and the other in the reproduction of the dance or drama, which is thus fixed in writing.

MUSICAL WORKS. Musical works are defined as any combination of melody and harmony, or either of them, printed, reduced to writing or otherwise graphically produced or reproduced. There is, therefore, no copyright in an impromptu until its notation has been fixed in writing or print by the composer. There then exists the right to restrain either its copying in printed form or its public performance.

ARTISTIC WORKS. Artistic works include works of painting, drawing, sculpture and artistic craftsmanship, and architectural works of art and engravings and photographs. Engravings include etchings, lithographs, woodcuts, prints and other similar works not being photographs. An architectural work means any building or structure having an artistic character or design in respect of such character or design, or any model for such building or structure, but the protection is confined to the artistic character and design and does not extend to processes or methods of construction.

INDUSTRIAL DESIGNS. Certain works fall within the definition of artistic works but will not be subject to copyright owing to certain conditions. These are such works as are designs capable of being registered under the Design Act, and used or intended to be used as models or patterns to be multiplied by any industrial process. Designs which do not meet that definition are not industrial designs but artistic works and are subject to artistic copyright. A design is deemed to be used as a model or pattern to be multiplied by an industrial process when it is reproduced or intended to be reproduced in more than fifty single copies not together constituting a set or is to be applied to (1) printed paper hangings, (2) carpets, floor cloths or oil cloths manufactured or sold in lengths or pieces, (3) textile piece goods or textile goods manufactured or sold in lengths or pieces or (4) lace, not made by hand.

LITERARY OR ARTISTIC MERIT. In no case need the subject of copyright possess any degree of literary or artistic merit. It would be highly improper if copyright were to depend on the opinion of any court as to the presence or absence of such an elusive quality, depending solely on individual taste, value, or discretion. The writer of doggerel verse or the mystery novel is entitled to the same copyright as the winner of the Nobel prize in literature, and the author of the comic strip cartoon receives no less protection than do those whose works are hung in the galleries of the nation. In this regard the applicable maxim is De gustibus non disputandum.

IMMORAL WORKS. There is one minor qualification to the above remarks. The courts will not protect immoral, indecent, obscene, or blasphemous works. What falls within the scope of these terms is impossible of definition and must depend upon the susceptibilities and sensibilities of any court adjudicating upon the matter. Thus, thirty years ago Elinor Glynn's Three Weeks was held to be an obscene work disentitled to protection. Within the present decade Judge Wolsey, in the United States, promulgated his now famous decision holding that Joyce's Ulysses was not an immoral work. Tempora mutantur nos et nutamur in illis! It may safely be said in principle that a work which is not purely pornographic but is honest work endeavouring to create an atmosphere, to depict life or to delineate the author's or artist's concept of things as they are or ought to be, would not be held to be immoral and would be entitled to copyright.

OWNERSHIP OF COPYRIGHT. The author of the work is, in general, the first owner of the copyright. The author is the person who actually writes, draws, paints, carves, models, fabricates, or composes the work, unless he is a mere amanuensis or workman. A person who suggests the idea of a work is not its author or even joint author. A ghost writer, therefore, is the author of the biography which he writes and the possibly famous person of whom he writes and who supplies the facts and recollections upon which the biography is based is not entitled to any share in the copyright—unless, of course, there is an agreement to the contrary. It should always be remembered that copyright is a property right and, therefore, contracts can be made respecting its ownership and disposal.

A work of joint authorship is one produced by the collaboration of two or more authors in which the contribution of one author is not distinct from the contribution of the other author or authors. Joint authors, in general, own copyright in equal shares.

In the case of photographs the person or corporation owning the original negative from which the photograph is made is deemed to be the author and therefore the owner of the copyright. The same principle applies in the case of the owner of the original plate from which any records, perforated rolls and other contrivances for mechanically reproducing sounds were derived.

Where a plate or other original of an engraving, photograph or portrait is ordered and made for valuable consideration and pursuant to the order, then, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, the person giving the order and not the author of the work is the first owner of copyright. This is an important principle. In the case of a portrait painter, the subject who gives the order and pays for the portrait receives not only the finished portrait for which he pays, but the copyright in his portrait as well. In the case of photographs the same principle applies. But where the photographer takes photographs on speculation and then endeavours to sell them to the subject, it is the photographer who owns the copyright.

Where the author of the work is in the employment of some other person under a contract of service or apprenticeship and the work was made in the course of his employment by that person, the person by whom the author was employed is, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, the first owner of the copyright. Where, therefore, a writer on a newspaper or magazine holds a position on the staff of that publication for which he is paid a salary, and writes, let us say, feature articles, the copyright in those articles belongs to the owner of the publication. If, however, an independent or freelance writer is retained to write a series of articles for which the owner of the publication contracts to pay him a certain sum of money, the copyright in those articles belongs to the writer and not to the owner of the publication, because the writer is under a contract for service and not a contract of service.

Where an article or other contribution to a newspaper, magazine or similar periodical, is written by a staff writer acting in the course of his employment and there is no agreement to the contrary, although the copyright in the article resides in the owner of the publication, the writer nevertheless has reserved to him a right to restrain its publication otherwise than as part of a newspaper, magazine or similar periodical. Thus a staff writer may contribute to his newspaper or magazine a series of twenty or thirty articles. It is then decided to publish those articles in book form. The owner of the publication cannot publish without the author's consent, and the author, not being the owner of the copyright, cannot publish without the consent of the owner of the publication. The only way publication can occur is by mutual agreement, and in such case it is presumed that the author will make his bargain to his best advantage.

There is a distinct cleavage between the intangible right known to the law as copyright, and the ownership of the physical embodiment in which that right resides. This is of particular importance in the case of artistic works. Many painters and sculptors are unaware of the fact that when they sell one of their works they do not necessarily part with the right to reproduce it or, in other words, to issue copies of it to the public. It must also be said that many purchasers of artistic works, particularly art galleries, national and otherwise, take an arbitrary view of the rights they acquire when they purchase an artistic work. Copyright is something entirely apart from the piece of canvas and pigment composing a painting and from the mass of bronze, marble or other material forming a work of sculpture. The sale of the physical object and the transfer of property therein do not of themselves transfer copyright. Copyright is a separate and distinctly existing right and can only be transferred by contract, express or implied. For this reason authors, artists, composers, sculptors and other creators of original works would be well advised to ensure that every sale of their works is made in accordance with a written memorandum. If such a procedure were generally adopted the present habit indulged in by art galleries of selling photographs and other reproductions of artistic works in their possession without compensation to the artist would promptly cease.

But, since the practice of selling photographs is to the publicity advantage of both gallery and artist, artists would be well advised to enter into an agreement with galleries to continue to issue photographs on a royalty basis.

TERM OF COPYRIGHT. The general term of copyright in works published and performed in public during the author's lifetime is the life of the author and fifty years after his death. In the case of a literary, dramatic or musical work or an engraving in which copyright subsists at the time of the death of the author, but which has not been published nor performed, nor in the case of a lecture, been delivered in public before that date, copyright subsists till publication or performance or delivery in public, whichever may first happen, and for a term of fifty years thereafter. It will thus be seen that copyright in unpublished works may extend almost indefinitely.

In case of works of joint authorship copyright subsists during the life of the author who dies last and fifty years after his death. The term of copyright in photographs is fifty years from the making of the original negative. In the case of records, perforated rolls, and other mechanical contrivances for the reproduction of sound, the term is fifty years from the making of the original matrix, plate, or negative.

Copyright in Government publications is fifty years from the date of first publication. This term is provided by statute, but one would be well advised to remember that the Crown may well claim a prerogative right of copyright in perpetuity.

In all cases of published works the term of copyright is subject to a statutory right for any person to reproduce the work on statutory terms at any time after the expiration of twenty-five years or, in the case of works in which copyright subsisted on June 4, 1921, thirty years, from the death of the author. The statutory terms require notice of intention to publish and the payment of royalties calculated at 10 per cent of the published price of the work.

ASSIGNMENT AND LICENCE. Creators of original works may assign their copyright either wholly or partially and either generally or subject to territorial limitations and either for the whole term of the copyright or for any part thereof, and may grant any interest in the right by way of licence. No such assignment or grant is, however, valid unless it is in writing signed by the owner of the copyright or by his duly authorized agent. The owner of copyright may, therefore, split the right into as many component parts as he desires. He may assign or license the right to publish, to produce or to reproduce his work on one or a million occasions. He may allow reproduction in one or a dozen countries or in one or a thousand cities. He may assign or license to different persons the right to reproduce a work of art by photography and by colour process. He may license its reproduction to one person for a calendar and to another for a Christmas card. In fact there is hardly any limit that can be placed upon the dealings which a copyright owner may have in his copyright if he can find someone who desires a particular part of the right and is willing to pay for it.

Where part of the copyright is assigned, the assignee becomes the owner of that part of the right. If, therefore, the composer of a musical work assigns the right of public performance, the assignee can restrain everybody else from performing the work in public. He cannot, however, restrain the author or the person to whom the author may assign that particular part of the copyright from issuing printed copies of the musical score to the public.

An assignee or licensee is wise to register his assignment or licence in the Copyright Office at Ottawa.

DROIT MORAL. The moral right of an author is recognized by the Canadian Copyright Act which provides that, independently of the copyright and even after the assignment, he shall have the right to claim authorship of the work and to restrain distortion, mutilation or other modification in the work which would be prejudicial to his honour or reputation. The statute does not say who is to decide what amount or what quality of distortion, mutilation or modification would be prejudicial to an author's honour or reputation. This is a subject which has received wide treatment in the European and South American countries. There is no corresponding section in the British Copyright Act and, despite the quarter of a century during which the section has found its place in the Canadian statute, no case has been heard by the courts in which this section was invoked. It is interesting to speculate whether the reason for such lack of interest in the section lies in the honesty and integrity of Canadian publishers, performers and owners of other reproducing media or in the apathy and indifference of Canadian authors, artists, and composers.

FORMALITIES. Copyright under the Canadian Copyright Act is automatic and the author of a work need comply with no formality whatsoever in order that he shall possess copyright in his work. The statute contains provisions for registration of copyright but these are permissive only and no registration need take place. There is one minor point on which registration might possibly benefit the author but it is involved in such legal technicalities that it need not be discussed further. It may safely be said that an author is perfectly protected if he entirely neglects to register his copyright.

BERNE CONVENTION. Once a work is made, copyright subsists not only in Canada but throughout the British Commonwealth and all countries which have adhered to the Berne Convention. By arrangement with the United States, Canadian authors are entitled to apply for copyright in that country but their copyright is not automatic. It must be registered and all other requirements of the United States Copyright Act complied with including publication within the United States if the work is a literary work in the English language.

INFRINGEMENT. Infringement consists in doing without the consent of the owner of the copyright anything the sole right to do which is by the Copyright Act conferred on the owner of the copyright. It will thus be seen that it is infringement, without the consent of the owner of the copyright, to issue copies of a work to the public, to perform it in public, to reproduce it in any manner, to make a translation of it, to convert a novel into a dramatic work, to convert a dramatic work into a novel, and so on. But it must be emphasized that copyright is not an absolute monopoly, but is only the right to restrain copying, and if some other person produces a similar work independently of the owner of the copyright, there will be no infringement.

Importation of infringing works constitutes infringement as well as their being made in the country. There are effective provisions in the Copyright Act and in the Customs Tariff Act for preventing importation of infringing copies.

The making of only one copy of a work will constitute infringement and it need not be an exact copy. A colourable imitation is sufficient. There must, however, be a substantial part of the work taken or a substantial part of the work performed in public. In one case the reproduction of the march Colonel Bogey consisting of so much as was played in twenty seconds was held to be an infringement. In another case dealing with the musical work Walking my Baby back Home sufficient was played to allow the court to recognize the tune, although the evidence was so conflicting that the plaintiff claimed that thirty-two bars had been played and the defendant claimed only five bars had been played.

There are specific provisions relative to infringement in cases of making records and other mechanical contrivances for the reproduction of sounds. They are somewhat complicated but, in general, they provide that the making of such contrivances shall not constitute infringement if similar contrivances have previously been made by, or with the consent of, the owner of the copyright, and the person who makes them gives notice of his intention to make them and pays the stipulated royalty of two cents per perforated roll or playing surface.

LAWFUL USE OF COPYRIGHT. By statute there are certain lawful uses of copyright and no person is permitted to complain if the use of his work is made under the following circumstances:

1. Any fair dealing with any work for the purpose of private study, research, criticism, review or newspaper summary. The use must be fair. Thus in one Canadian case an entire article was printed in a newspaper as the basis upon which a criticism was printed following it. The court held that this was not fair dealing.

2. The author of an artistic work who is not the owner of copyright therein may use any mould, cast, sketch, plan, model or study made by him for the purpose of the work, provided that he does not thereby repeat or imitate the main design of the work.

3. Paintings, drawings, engravings, or photographs may be made of a work of sculpture or artistic craftsmanship if permanently situated in a public place or building. The same thing may be done in connection with any architectural work of art so long as such drawings, etc., are not in the nature of architectural drawings or plans.

4. Short passages from copyright published literary works which are not themselves published for the use of schools may be published in a collection mainly composed of non-copyright matter bona fide intended for the use of schools and so described in the title and in any advertisements issued by the publisher. But no more than two of such passages from works by the same author may be published by the same publisher within five years and in each case the source from which such passages are taken must be acknowledged.

5. A newspaper may publish a report of a lecture delivered in public, unless the report is prohibited by a conspicuous notice affixed before and maintained during the lecture.

6. The reading or recitation in public by one person of any reasonable extract from any published work. Note the limitation to "one person." This precludes the public performance by more than one actor of even a small scene in a dramatic work.

7. Any musical work may be performed without motive of gain by the directors at any agricultural, agricultural-industrial exhibition or fair which received a grant from or is held under Dominion, provincial or municipal authority.

8. Any church, college or school and any religious, charitable or fraternal organization may perform any musical work without payment if done in furtherance of a religious, educational, or charitable object.

9. A report of an address of a political nature delivered at a public meeting may be published in a newspaper.

REMEDIES FOR INFRINGEMENT. In case of infringement the owner of copyright has two remedies. He may sue the infringer in the civil courts for damages incurred by him, as well as the profits made by the infringer, and may ask for the delivery to him of all infringing copies. Such an action is to be brought within three years after the infringement takes place. In addition, the owner of the copyright may prosecute the infringer criminally for his acts. This should give the copyright owner little, if any, personal satisfaction and no gain would accrue to him other than the satisfaction of personal animus. The first remedy is the proper one and is that which ought to be followed.

WORKS MADE BEFORE 1924. Copyright as we now know it came into effect with the new Canadian Copyright Act on January 1, 1924. But copyright subsisted in many works in Canada at that date, and in such cases they received copyright under the new Act by virtue of a special transition section.

It would be difficult to express in any moderate space the principles upon which copyright subsisted in Canada prior to 1924. There was in existence a Canadian Copyright Act prior to that date which required registration and any work registered under that Act would naturally be the subject of copyright. But copyright might also have subsisted in certain works prior to 1924 which were not registered under that Act. We may state the position shortly as follows:

1. Copyright subsisted at the effective date (January 1, 1924) in all works then unpublished whatever their nature.

2. Literary works published in the British Dominions were the subject of copyright whether registered or unregistered either in Canada or at Stationers' Hall in London.

3. Dramatic works were protected as literary works in their printed form, but so far as their performing right was concerned copyright subsisted during the life of the author and seven years after his death, or forty-two years from the date of first performance of the work. If the work fell within that definition on the effective date copyright subsisted in that work provided it had not been first performed in a foreign country to which the Imperial International Copyright Act did not extend.

4. Musical works enjoyed copyright in printed form as literary works, whether registered or unregistered and so far as concerned their performing right were treated the same as dramatic works.

5. Artistic works were protected prior to 1924 only if they were registered under the then existing Canadian Copyright Act.

6. Mechanical contrivances for reproducing sounds, if made before January 1, 1924, are by special provision treated as if the present Copyright Act had been in force at the time they were made.

The above is not intended to be an exhaustive statement of the law of copyright prior to the commencement of the present Copyright Act. It is, however, of the utmost importance when considering works in existence before January 1, 1924 to understand what was their status at that effective date because the new Act contains a transition section which conferred copyright under the new Act upon all works in which copyright subsisted at the effective date. The first thing to decide, therefore, is whether a work was or was not the subject of copyright on January 1, 1924. If it was, no matter what the nature or term of the copyright to which it was then entitled, it is now entitled, generally speaking, to copyright as established by the new Copyright Act.

It is a matter of no little difficulty to endeavour to explain the principles of the law of Copyright within the short compass of this article. Many subjects have obviously been left untouched and there will naturally remain many pitfalls for the unwary. The intention of this article is to give to the author, artist, sculptor and composer, a very broad and general idea of the rights he possesses in his original creations. Those rights ought to be protected and their owners will find that an appreciation and understanding of those rights and an insistence upon their recognition will earn them respect in this commercial world, while at the same time according to them some measure of reward for their labours. Those labours have produced and are producing great works for the benefit and enjoyment of mankind and as a famous jurist said nearly two centuries ago, "It is wise in any state to encourage letters and the painful researches of learned men. The easiest and most equal way of doing it, is, by securing to them the property of their own works. Nobody contributes, who is not willing; and though a good book may be run down and a bad one cried up, for a time; yet sooner or later, the reward will be in proportion to the merit of the work. A writer's fame will not be the less, that he has bread, without being under the necessity of prostituting his pen to flattery or party, to get it. He who engages in a laborious work, which may employ his whole life, will do it with more spirit, if, besides his own glory, he thinks it may be a provision for his family."

DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION OF PROPERTY

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO

A CONDENSED SUMMARY OF THE LAW OF INTESTATE ESTATES

All real and personal property which is vested in any person without a right in any other person to take by survivorship shall, on his death, whether testate or intestate, and notwithstanding any testamentary disposition, devolve to and become vested in his personal representative from time to time as trustee for the persons by law beneficially entitled thereto and, subject to the payment of his debts, and so far as such property is not disposed of by deed, will, contract or other effectual disposition, the same shall be administered, dealt with and distributed as if it were personal property not so disposed of.

"A husband who, if The Devolution of Estates Act had not been passed, would be entitled to an interest as tenant by the curtesy in the real property of his wife, may, by deed or instrument in writing executed, and attested by at least one witness and delivered to the personal representative, if any, or if there is none, deposited in the office of the Registrar of the Supreme Court at Osgoode Hall, within six months after his wife's death, elect to take such interest in the real and personal property of his wife as he would have taken if the said Act had not been passed, in which case the husband's interest therein shall be ascertained in all respects as if the said Act had not been passed, and he shall be entitled to no further interest thereunder.

The real and personal property of every man dying intestate and leaving a widow whether or not he leaves issue shall, where the net value of such real and personal property does not exceed $5,000.00, belong to his widow absolutely and exclusively. The term "net value" means the value of the real and personal property after payment of the charges thereon and the debts, funeral expenses and expenses of administration, including succession duty.

Where the estate of the husband consists in whole or in part of real property, then notwithstanding anything set out above or anything hereinafter set out with respect to the benefits to the widow, such benefits shall not accrue to her and she shall only be entitled to her dower unless she elects to take her distributive share, as set out herein, in lieu of dower. The term "dower" means the right of the widow, for her life to one-third of the rents and profits from the real estate owned by her husband at his death.

By the provisions of The Devolution of Estates Amendment Act, 1952, the 1918 Enactment, as it stood in our present Devolution of Estates Act, (Chapter 103-R.S.O.-1950) was repealed and it was further provided that any real property which but for the provisions of the 1918 Enactment, would have vested in the persons beneficially entitled thereto, shall be deemed to have vested in such persons notwithstanding such provisions.

The Devolution of Estates Amendment Act, 1953, was passed so that an illegitimate child or the mother of an illegitimate child, under certain circumstances, shares in the estate.

Subject to what is set out above, the estate of a person dying intestate is distributed as set out below, according to the Devolution of Estates Act, being Chapter 103 of The Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1950. It will be noted that where the widow takes a share, the net value of the estate is presumed to be in excess of $5,000.00. Where there is no widow to take a share, the net value of the estate is immaterial.

DISTRIBUTION

If the Intestate die leaving,—

1. A widow only, the widow gets $5,000.00 plus interest thereon at 4% from date of death until payment and two-thirds of the residue. Remaining one-third of the residue equally to the next of kin of the deceased husband and those who legally represent them. For example, if the next of kin were a father, mother, brother and sister, or any of these and if there were children of a deceased brother or sister, the said one-third would be divided equally among all of these, save that the children aforesaid would take per stirpes and not per capita,—that is the^y would take equally the share which their father or mother would have taken had he or she survived the intestate. If there are no kindred to inherit, the said remaining one-third of residue would go to the Crown.

2. Widow and one child or legal representatives of child. $5,000.00 and interest as above and half residue to widow. The other half to child or equally among legal representatives.

3. Widow and children and legal representatives of deceased children—$5,000.00 and interest as above and one-third of residue to widow. The other two-thirds equally among the children and the legal representatives of deceased children, the latter taking per stirpes.

4. Widow and father or mother or brother or sister, $5,000.00 and interest as above and two-thirds of the residue to widow. The remaining one-third of residue to the father or mother or brother or sister.

If the intestate die leaving,—

1. A husband only,—half to the husband and remaining half among next of kin of deceased wife and those who legally represent them and in same proportions as mentioned in No. 1 above. If there are no kindred to inherit, the said remaining one-half would go to the Crown.

2. A husband and child or legal representatives of child,—one-third to husband. The remaining two-thirds to child or equally among legal representatives.

3. A husband and children and legal representatives of deceased children,—one-third to husband. The remaining two-thirds equally among the children and the legal representatives of deceased children,—the latter taking per stirpes.

4. Husband and father or mother or brother or sister,—one-half to the husband. The remaining half to the father or mother or brother or sister.

If the intestate die without leaving a spouse, but leaving,—

(a) a child or legal representatives of child,—all to child or equally among the legal representatives.

(b) Children and legal representatives of deceased children,—equally among all,—the legal representatives taking per stirpes.

(c) Children by two spouses,—equally among all.

(d) Child and grandchild of a deceased child,—half to child and half to grandchild who takes by representation.

If the intestate die without spouse or issue but leaving,—

(a) A father, mother, brother and sister or any of these and children of a deceased brother or sister,—equally among all,—the said children sharing per stirpes.

(b) A father or mother, or brother or sister,—all to the one who survives.

(c) A grandparent or grandparents,—all to him or her or equally among these.

(d) Brother or sister of the whole blood and brother or sister of the half blood, equally among the two.

(e) Posthumous brother or sister and mother, equally among the two.

(f) Brother and grandfather,—all to brother.

(g) Grandniece or grandnephew and niece or nephew,—all to niece or nephew.

(h) Brother and aunts or uncles,—all to brother.

(i) Uncles or aunts children and brother or sisters grandchildren,—equally among all.

(j) Grandparent and uncle or aunt,—all to grandparent.

(k) Uncle and deceased uncle's or aunt's child,—all to uncle.

(l) Nephew or niece by brother or half-brother and nephew or niece by sister or half-sister,—equally among the two.

(m) Children of deceased brothers or sisters or children of deceased brothers and sisters,—equally per capita.

Where the intestate dies without lawful heirs, all of his estate will go to the Crown."

SUCCESSION DUTIES IN CANADA

THE DOMINION SUCCESSION DUTY ACT

The following is a resume of some of the principal provisions of the Act, 4-5 George VI, Chap. 14., assented to June 14th, 1941, and amendments up to and including 1952. The information hereunder is only partial, is not interpretative, and legal advice should be sought in specific cases.

SUCCESSION

(SEC. 3.) A succession includes:

(a) property and income therefrom voluntarily transferred by grant, bargain or gift or by any transfer made in general contemplation of death.

(b) where the deceased was at the time of his death domiciled outside of Canada, upon or in respect of the succession to all property situated in Canada.

RATES OF DUTY

INITIAL RATES

(SEC. 10) There shall be assessed, levied and paid to the Receiver General of Canada, upon or in respect of each succession mentioned and described in section 6 (Duties on Successions) of this Act an initial duty at the rate set forth under the heading "Initial rates dependent on aggregate net value" in the First Schedule to this Act which corresponds to the aggregate net value, in the said Schedule, and the duty so levied shall be payable by each successor in respect of his succession: Provided that there shall be no duty levied under this section where the aggregate net value exceeds $5,000. but does not exceed $25,000.

ADDITIONAL RATES

(SEC. 11) In addition to the duty imposed by section 10 of this Act, there shall be assessed, levied and paid upon or in respect of each succession mentioned and described in section 6 of this Act a duty at the rate set forth in the First Schedule to this Act which corresponds to the dutiable value in the said Schedule, as follows:—

(a) under the heading Class A of the said schedule where the dutiable value exceeds $5,000. and where the successor is the widow or child of the deceased;

(b) under the heading Class B of the said schedule where the dutiable value exceeds $1,000. and where the successor is the grandfather, grandmother, father, mother, husband, son-in-law or daughter-in-law of the deceased or any person who is included within any of the classes of persons described in subparagraphs (i), (ii), (iii) or (iv) of paragraph (b) of section two but is not a child coming within paragraph (a) of this section.

(c) under the heading Class C of the said Schedule where the dutiable value exceeds $1,000, and where the successor is a lineal ancestor (except a grandfather, grandmother, father or mother), a brother or sister of the deceased or any descendant of a brother or sister, or a brother or sister of the father or mother of the deceased or any descendant of such brother or sister;

(d) under the heading Class D of the said Schedule where the dutiable value exceeds $1,000, and where the successor is any person in any other degree of consanguinity to the deceased than as mentioned in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this section, or is a stranger in blood to the deceased.

1948 AMENDMENT

(4A.) Where, on the death of a predecessor on or after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, the aggregate net value exceeds fifty thousand dollars, if the total amount of the duties otherwise payable under this Act exceeds the amount of the difference between the aggregate net value and fifty thousand dollars.

(a) the total amount of the duties is, notwithstanding anything in this Act, an amount equal to the amount of the difference, and

(b) the amount of the duty payable by each successor is an amount equal to the proportion of the amount of the duty otherwise payable by him that the total amount of the duties payable in accordance with this subsection is of the total amount of the duties otherwise payable.

1952 AMENDMENT

11A. (1) In this section

(a) "provincial Act" means any provincial Act that imposes Succession Duties and "provincial duties" means the duties imposed by such a provincial Act;

(b) "total duty" means the total amount of duty that, but for this section, would be payable under this Act on the death of a predecessor mentioned in subsection two in respect of all successions to property on which duties were paid under provincial Acts, and;

(c) "total provincial duties" means the total amount of duties paid under provincial Acts in respect of all property the succession to which is subject to duty under this Act upon the death of a predecessor mentioned in subsection two.

(2) Where provincial duties have been paid in respect of property the succession to which is subject to duty under this Act upon the death of a predecessor, the successor may deduct from the duty otherwise payable by him under this Act in respect of the succession to that property the amount of that duty multiplied by the lesser of (a) one half; or (b) the total provincial duties divided by the total duty.

(The purpose of this provision is to permit the allowance of provincial duties as against the Dominion duties up to but not exceeding one-half of the Dominion duties. It came into force on June 15th, 1952.

EXAMPLE

An example of the way the two classes of rates i.e., the "initial rates" and the "additional rates" apply in the case of an estate of $100,000, of dutiable value descending to two adult children. Each child's bequest is $50,000. The "Initial Rate" (dependent on aggregate net value) for $100,000 is 4.9%. The "Additional Rate" (dependent on dutiable value of the individual benefit) for a bequest of $50,000, in Class B (the Class for Adult Children) is 7.9%. The total of 4.9% and 7.9% is 12.8%. A total rate of 12.8% is thus the duty applicable to the dutiable value of each bequest of $50,000. (We have here doubled the original rates, in accordance with the 1946 amendment; but note section 11A respecting 50% deduction.)

FIRST SCHEDULE

RATES OF DUTY—DOMINION SUCCESSION DUTIES

(Partial Table Only)

The following is a partial table of rates omitting many of the intermediate steps. The complete schedule in the Act progresses by very small increases, both of values and rates. There are, for instance, 9 intermediate rates of duty between the 10% and the 12% rate shown below under Class A, and a similar close progression between other rates of duty here shown.

The rates in this schedule give effect to the 1946 amendment by which, in respect of any succession upon the death of a person after Dec. 31, 1946, the rates were doubled, with a provision for allowable deductions in respect of duties payable under the laws of any province or provinces. See above, Section 11A.

The rates appearing below apply only to successions derived from persons dying on or after the first day of January, 1947.

AVOIDANCE OF DOUBLE TAXATION

A Convention between Canada and the United States of America was signed at Ottawa on June 8th 1944, having as its purpose the avoidance of double taxation in federal succession duties. This was amended by a Supplementary Convention taking effect on November 21st, 1951. A schedule outlining a similar agreement was signed between Canada and the United Kingdom on June 5, 1946. In 1948 an amendment to avoid double taxation in case of convention was adopted, the wording being as follows:

(4b.) Where Canada has entered into a convention or agreement with another country for the avoidance of double taxation pursuant to which duties are assessable under this Act exclusively in respect of the property situated in Canada where the deceased dies domiciled in that other country, the aggregate net value for the purpose of subsections four and four A means, in the case of a predecessor who dies domiciled in that other country, the aggregate net value of the property wherever situated.

EXEMPTIONS FROM SUCCESSION DUTY, WHETHER OR NOT THE ESTATE AS A WHOLE IS EXEMPT.

By section 3 of The Succession Duty Act the following are exempt from duty but the property and dispositions with respect to which there are exemptions are nevertheless included for the purposes of arriving at the "Aggregate Value":

(a) Any property situate in Ontario passing on the death to any one person where the value of all the property so passing to such person does not exceed $500.00;

(b) Any person to whom there is a transmission, with respect to such transmission, where the value of all the transmissions to such person, does not exceed $500.00;

(c) Any person to whom a disposition is made, with respect to such disposition, where the value of all the dispositions to such person does not exceed $500.00;

(e) Any person to whom there is a transmission, with respect to such transmission, where all the property in respect of which there are transmissions to such person consists wholly of an annuity not exceeding $100.00 or of an estate or interest for life or for a term in any property the yearly income from which does not exceed $100.00;

(f) Any person to whom a disposition is made, with respect to such disposition, where all the property in respect of which dispositions to such person are made consists wholly of an annuity not exceeding $100.00, or of an estate or interest for life or for a term in any property the yearly income from which does not exceed $100.00;

(g) Any property situate in Ontario passing on the death of the deceased to any member of the stranger class or where there is a trans-

(h) Any money payable as a result of the death of the deceased and any interest by way of annuity or otherwise accruing or arising on the death of the deceased, under any contract of insurance within the meaning of The Insurance Act where the deceased was domiciled outside Ontario at the date of his death.

NOTE: By further provisions in section 3, the total amount in respect of which no duty shall be levied under clauses a, b and c shall not exceed $500.00;

The total amount in respect of which no duty shall be levied under clauses d, e and f shall not exceed an annuity or yearly income of $100.00; and

Where by reason of clauses d, e and f no duty is levied, clauses a, b and c shall not apply.

SPECIAL REMISSION OF DUTY

Section 46 of the Act provides as follows:

Where the deceased dies from wounds inflicted, accident occurring or disease contracted within twelve months before death while in the active naval, military or air service of Her Majesty, the Treasurer may, if he thinks fit, remit the whole or any part of the duty for which the husband, wife, father, mother, child, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother or sister of the deceased is liable.

NOTE: If any remission is made under section 46 the property, transmission or disposition with respect to which such remission is made must nevertheless be included in the aggregate value.

FURTHER EXEMPTIONS

By section 4 of the Act there are exemptions with respect to the following and the property and dispositions concerned shall not be included in the aggregate value nor included for the purpose of determining any rate of duty.

(a) Any disposition for religious, charitable or educational purposes to any religious, charitable or educational organization which carries on its work solely in Ontario;

(b) Any property devised or bequeathed by the deceased for religious, charitable or educational purposes to any religious, charitable or educational organization which carries on its work solely in Ontario;

(c) Any disposition for religious, charitable or educational purposes to any religious, charitable or educational organization which carries on its work both in and outside Ontario to the extent of that portion in value of the property in respect of which the disposition is made as is in the same ratio to the whole that its expenditures for carrying on its work in Ontario bear to its total expenditures during such period as the treasurer may determine;

(d) That portion of any property devised or bequeathed by the deceased for religious, charitable or educational purposes to any religious, charitable or educational organization which carries on its work both in and outside Ontario as is in the same ratio to the whole that its expenditures for carrying on its work in Ontario bear to its total expenditures during such period as the treasurer may determine.

(e) Any property devised or bequeathed by the deceased to and any disposition to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Dominion of Canada, the Province of Ontario, or any municipality in Ontario;

(f) Any disposition for necessities or education to or for any member of the family of the deceased where it is shown to the satisfaction of the treasurer that such member was dependent in whole or in part on the deceased for such necessities or education;

(g) Any disposition to any person made more than five years before the date of death of the deceased, where actual and bonafide enjoyment and possession of the property in respect of which the disposition is made, was immediately assumed by the person to whom the disposition is made and thenceforward retained to the entire exclusion of the deceased or of any benefit to him whether voluntary or by contract or otherwise, provided that this clause shall not apply to any disposition resulting in the making of any periodic payments, except such payments made more than five years before the date of death of the deceased;

- (h) Any money paid to or enjoyed by any member of the family of the deceased on or after the death of the deceased out of or in respect of any pension fund or scheme of general application to employees by reason of the employment of the deceased by the Dominion of Canada, the Province of Ontario or any municipality in Ontario;
- (i) Any non-commutable annuity, income or periodic payment effected in any manner other than by will or testamentary instrument and paid for by the deceased during his lifetime and paid to or enjoyed by the wife or dependent father or mother or any dependent brother, sister or child of the deceased after the death of the deceased, to the extent of $1200.00 per annum with respect to any one person and to the extent of $2400.00 per annum in the aggregate;
- (j) Any property devised or bequeathed by the deceased to and any disposition to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, the Canadian Red Cross Society or any Patriotic Organization or Institution in Canada which receives the written approval of the Secretary of State of Canada; and
- (k) Any property passing on the death of the deceased to any religious, charitable or educational organization for religious, charitable or educational purposes carried out in any Province of Canada other than Ontario which is shown to the satisfaction of the Treasurer to allow the same exemption on property, given, devised or bequeathed to any religious, charitable or educational organization for religious, charitable or educational purposes carried out in Ontario.

NOTE—Notwithstanding anything set out above, with respect to "Further Exemptions", Clauses (a), (b), (c) and (d), in so far as they apply to religious organizations shall apply to such organizations as if the word "Canada" were substituted for the word "Ontario" wherever it appears in such Clauses.

The original enactment with respect to the above appears in the 1949 Amendments to the Act. A similar amendment was made in 1952 with respect to educational organizations. These amendments favor, to a considerable extent, religious and educational organizations throughout Canada so far as exemption from Ontario Duty is concerned.

Note 1—In addition to what is set out above the following will be in the Preferred Class, in so far as all Ontario Succession Duty Rates are concerned, by virtue of The Adoption Act, being Chapter 7 of the Revised Statutes of Ontario 1950:

- (i) a person adopted, at any age, under The Ontario Adoption Act and taking property by will or lifetime disposition from the adopting parent;
- (ii) the spouse of a person adopted and taking as in (i);
- (iii) the issue of a person adopted and taking as in (i);
- (iv) the adopting parent of a person adopted as in (i) who takes from the adopted person as in (i);
- (v) the adopting parent of a person adopted as in (i) where such adopting parent takes from the issue of such adopted person as in (i);

Note 2—If the spouse of a person, adopted under the Ontario Adoption Act inherits in his or her own right, on intestacy, from the adopting parent, he or she will be treated for all purposes of the Succession Duty Act, according to the natural relationship.

Note 3—The issue of any person, adopted under The Ontario Adoption Act, do not inherit, as such, on the intestacy of the adopting parent but they may inherit, on such intestacy, in their own right, in which case they will be treated for all purposes of The Succession Duty Act, according to the natural relationship.

There is one exception to what is set out immediately above. An example will clearly illustrate. Let us suppose that A were to adopt his nephew B when the latter was under the age of 12 years or that A stood in loco parentis to said adopted nephew for a period of at least five years during such nephew's infancy. Subsequently the nephew B dies leaving lawful issue. Say a son—C. Afterwards A dies intestate and C (his grandnephew) as A's next of kin, or one of them, inherits from A. The grandnephew C has then inherited in his own right from A but in such a case he will not be treated for purposes of Ontario Succession Duty according to his natural relationship to A but on the other hand will, for all purposes of The Succession Duty Act be treated as a child of A and so will be in the preferred class.

Note 4—An adopting parent who has adopted under The Ontario Adoption Act and who takes under the will of or lifetime disposition by the spouse of the person adopted is not entitled, as such, to the preferred rates. Such adopting parent will be taxed at whatever rates are applicable by reason of natural relationship, if taking by any means from such spouse.

Note 5—Where an adopting parent dies intestate, the person adopted by him under The Ontario Adoption Act, at any age, will inherit on such intestacy, the same as if he were the natural and lawful child of such parent. If under twelve years of age when so adopted or if the adopting parent stood in loco parentis to the person so adopted for a period of at least five years during the infancy of such person, then such person is a "child" under Clause (d) of Section 1, of The Succession Duty Act and would be in the preferred class for purposes of succession duty. Otherwise, the person so adopted will be taxed at the appropriate rates according to the natural relationship.

Note 6—An adoption order under The Ontario Adoption Act does not deprive the person adopted from inheriting on intestacy from his natural and lawful parents or other relatives or from taking under the will of or under a lifetime disposition by any person and the person so adopted will be taxed at the appropriate rates according to the natural relationship prevailing between him and the person from whom he inherits or takes.

Note 7—Where a person adopted under The Ontario Adoption Act dies intestate, his property acquired by himself or by gift or inheritance from his adopting parent or from the kindred of such parent, shall be distributed as though he had been born in lawful wedlock to his adopting parent but the beneficiaries shall be taxed at the appropriate rates, according to the natural relationship.

Note 8—Where a person, adopted under The Ontario Adoption Act dies intestate, the property acquired from his natural parent or kindred shall be distributed the same as if no adoption order had been made and the beneficiaries shall be taxed at the appropriate rates, according to the natural relationship.

Additional duty charged on amount passing to any one person in preferred class.

For the purposes of the Ontario Succession Duty Act, the term "child" shall mean,—(a) Lawful child of the deceased; (b) lineal descendant of any such child born in lawful wedlock; (c) person adopted by the deceased either under the Ontario Adoption Act, the Act of any Province, State or Country or informally, where such person was under the age of twelve years when adopted; (d) person to whom the deceased, during the infancy of such person, stood in loco parentis for a period of not less than five years; or (e) lineal descendant of the persons described in (c) and (d).

MAKING RETURNS

Section 12 provides that every person to whom or for whose benefit any property situate in Ontario passes on the death of the deceased or to whom there is a transmission or to whom a disposition is made shall make returns to the Succession Duty Department. Such returns shall be made within three months after the death of deceased or within such further period as Treasurer may allow.

Section 12 also provides that the applicant for probate, administration or other grant shall, at the time of making application, make and file with the Succession Duty Department an affidavit containing,—

- (a) an inventory of all the property passing on the death of the deceased and particulars of all dispositions and such inventory shall show the value of such property and dispositions; and
- (b) the name of every person who benefits by any property passing on the death of the deceased or to whom a disposition is made, the place of residence of such person and the degree of relationship in which such person stands to the deceased.

NOTE—The terms "disposition" or "dispositions" where used under the above caption—"Making Returns" mean lifetime disposition or lifetime dispositions made by the deceased and do not include any disposition which he may have made by will.

WHEN AND HOW DUTY PAYABLE

Where an annuity, term of years, life estate, income or interest in expectancy is not involved, the duty levied shall be payable at the end of six months from the death of the deceased and for default there shall be added to such duty, interest at the rate of 5% per annum from date of death till payment.

In the case of an annuity, term of years, life estate or income which is not an interest in expectancy, the duty with respect to such shall be payable in a number of equal annual instalments equal to;—

- (a) the number of years
 - (i) of expectancy of life of the person who benefits, or
 - (ii) for which such annuity, term of years or income is to run, as the case may be; or

(b) ten, whichever is the lesser and such instalments shall commence one year after the death of the deceased and for default in payment of any of such instalments, there shall be added thereto interest at the rate of 5% per annum from the date on which such instalment became payable, until payment.

Duty with respect to any interest in expectancy may be paid as provided in paragraph 1.

The duty on any interest in expectancy, where an annuity, term of years, life estate or income is not involved, if not sooner paid, shall be due when such interest comes into possession and payable at the end of three months thereafter and in case of default there shall be added to such duty, interest at rate of 5 per cent per annum from the date of coming into possession until payment.

In the case of an annuity, term of years, life estate or income which is an interest in expectancy, the duty with respect to such, shall, if not sooner paid, be payable in a number of equal annual instalments as set out in Paragraph 2 above and such instalments shall commence one year after the date when such annuity, term of years, life estate or income commences to be enjoyed and for default in payment of any of such instalments, there shall be added thereto interest at the rate of 5% per annum from the date on which such instalment became payable, until payment.

ALLOWANCE FOR DUTY PAID IN OTHER JURISDICTIONS

For the purpose of avoiding double taxation on residents in Ontario an allowance shall be made for duty levied and paid on personal property situate in the jurisdictions mentioned below where the deceased owner died domiciled in Ontario, where such property passes to Ontario residents and where duty is levied on such residents, by Ontario, with respect to the transmission of such property. The allowance made by Ontario in such circumstances will be the amount of duty levied on such property by the foreign jurisdiction; provided however that if the duty levied on such property by the foreign jurisdiction exceeds the duty levied by Ontario with respect to the transmission of such property, the allowance will be the amount of the Ontario Duty.

The jurisdictions concerned are as follows:

- (a) The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland;
- (b) The Union of South Africa;
- (c) The Commonwealth of Australia;
- (d) Eire;
- (e) The Dominion of New Zealand;
- (f) The other Provinces of the Dominion of Canada, save and except Newfoundland;
- (g) The District of Columbia; and
- (h) Each of the States of the United States of America.

The allowance to be made by Ontario, as aforesaid, shall apply where the deceased died on or after June 21st, 1946 and with the object of relieving Ontario citizens as far as possible, in this respect, the allowance shall be applicable whether or not the foreign jurisdictions, or any of them, make similar provisions in converse cases.

RE 1951-1952-1953 AMENDMENTS

There were a few amendments made to The Succession Duty Act in 1951. Among these was a very important re-enactment which provided that no duty would attach to the disposition mentioned below and that such disposition would not be included in the aggregate value nor included for the purpose of determining any rate of duty. The disposition in question is as follows;—

Any disposition where actual and bona fide enjoyment and possession of the property in respect of which the disposition is made, was assumed more than five years before the date of death of the deceased by the person to whom the disposition is made, or by a trustee for such person, and thenceforward retained to the entire exclusion of the deceased or of any benefit to him whether voluntary or by contract or otherwise.

In addition to the 1952 Amendment referred to above, there was another amendment made to the Act in 1952 which provides that any person may make payment not exceeding $1500.00 under any pension fund, plan or scheme of general application to employees of whom the deceased was one, without the consent of the Treasurer, where payment is made to or for the benefit of any member or members of the family of the deceased, and notice of the making of payment shall be transmitted forthwith to the Treasurer.

The 1953 amendment referred to above in relation to preferred rates was designed to take care of a situation where the aggregate value was say, $51,000., all going, e.g. to the widow. The duty at the applicable rates would be more than $1000. The amendment in such cases, automatically reduces the duty to $1000., thus leaving a clear $50,000.

THE QUEEN'S CIVIL LIST

Until George III. came to the throne in 1760, the income of the sovereign was derived chiefly from Crown lands, from a variety of landed property in England and Wales, Scotland and Ireland, in which the sovereign had a life-interest, and from which he received the rents. In the feudal ages these lands constituted a princely patrimony. In later times this Crown property was greatly reduced by lavish grants to royal favorites. At the Restoration the income from Crown lands was ascertained by a committee of the House of Commons to amount to £217,900 a year, in addition to £4,000 from the Forest of Dean. By the time Charles II. had been on the throne three years he had by his lavish bestowal of the lands on favorites reduced the income to $100,000. William III., by his grants to favorites who had accompanied him from Holland, made further havoc with the Crown domains; so much so that at the accession of Queen Anne, Parliament endeavored to save the remnant by an Act (1 Anne, c. 8) which prohibited alienation of Crown lands, and enacted stringent provisions in regard to the length of the term for which they might be leased and the rents reserved.

In the year ended March 31, 1952, the sum of £880,000 was paid to the Exchequer by the Commissioners.

Queen Anne, George I. and George II. derived the larger part of their income from their life-interest in the Crown property, but when George III. came to the throne he surrendered his life-interest in the Crown lands. It was turned over to the nation in return for a fixed Civil List of £800,000, subsequently increased to £900,000. George IV., William IV., Queen Victoria and Edward VII., on their accessions, surrendered their life interest in the Crown lands in return for a Civil List. The same course has been taken by each subsequent monarch on coming to the throne.

Certain hereditary revenues have also been surrendered to the Exchequer. These amounted to £370,000 in the year ended March 31, 1952.

In 1910 the King's Civil List was fixed at the yearly sum of £470,000, which was the same amount as that granted to King Edward VII.

By the Civil List Act of 1937, the civil list for King George VI was fixed at £410,000 subject to certain abatements which the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall vested in His Majesty.

The Civil List Act, 1952, fixed the Civil list for Queen Elizabeth II at £475,000, allocated as follows:

H. M. Privy Purse.....	£ 60,000
Salaries of H. M. Household.....	185,000
Expenses of H. M. Household.....	121,800
Royal Bounty, alms and special services.....	13,200
Supplementary Provision.....	95,000
	£475,000

This sum is subject to a reduction equal to a proportion of the net revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, so long as the Duke of Cornwall is a minor.

In addition to the Civil List as above, provision is made for other members of the Royal Family on a per annum basis as follows:—

Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, £70,000.

The Duke of Edinburgh, £40,000.

The Princess Margaret, £6,000, to be increased to £15,000 per annum in the event of marriage.

The Duke of Gloucester, £35,000.

The Princess Royal, £6,000.

From the above should be deducted the total of hereditary revenues, amounting to some £650,000, handed over to the state.

The revenue of the estates of the Duchy of Lancaster (which have been attached to the Crown since 1399), is paid over to the Keeper of Her Majesty's Privy Purse.

THE UNITED KINGDOM GOVERNMENT

The constitution of the House of Commons in the United Kingdom is governed by the Representation of the People Acts (1885-1948).

From 1801 to 1885 the membership stood at 658. This number was increased by the Representation of the People Act, 1885, to 670, and by a similar Act, 1918, again increased to 707. Following the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, membership was decreased to 615 as the result of reduction in the Irish representation. The Representation of the People Act, 1945, created 25 new constituencies and by a similar Act in 1948 the future membership was fixed at 625. University representation was abolished and former two-member constituencies were divided.

The House of Commons, as now constituted (1953) has therefore 625 members, with distribution of seats as follows: England, 506; Wales and Monmouth, 36; Scotland, 71; Northern Ireland, 12.

The present (40th) Parliament was elected at the General Election held on October 25, 1951.

The state of the parties resulting from this Election was: Labour, 295, Conservatives (and associates), 320; Liberals, 6; Irish nationalists, 2; Irish Labour, 1; The Speaker, (non-party), 1.

The maximum duration of Parliament is five years. Members receive salaries of £1,000 per annum and travelling facilities between London, home and constituency on Parliamentary duties.

THE GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS

THE OFFICE OF PRIME MINISTER

10, Downing Street, Whitehall, S.W.

Until comparatively recent times the office of Prime Minister was not recognised officially. It had developed as a consequence of the establishment of responsible government under a party leader, but the Prime Minister, as such, had no official rank and no precedence. It was not until 1905 that the Prime Minister was given precedence, by Royal Warrant, next after the Archbishop of York and over every member of the Government except the Lord Chancellor. There was no salary attached to the office of Prime Minister until the passing of the Ministers of the Crown Act in 1937, and the holder usually combined with it some other appointment, such as First Lord of the Treasury, which carried a salary.

THE TREASURY

Great George Street, S.W.1.

The Treasury is the Department which deals with all matters of public finance, home and overseas; gives sanction for expenditure by the spending departments, civil and military, and is responsible for personnel questions throughout the Civil Service. The Treasury presents the estimate of all the Civil Departments to Parliament, but, after presentation, the responsibility for defending them in Parliament rests with the Parliamentary Heads of the Departments. The control of the Treasury is nominally in the hands of the Lords Commissioners consisting of the First Lord of the Treasury (who is also the Prime Minister), the Chancellor of the Exchequer and five Junior Lords. The Prime Minister and first Lord is not primarily concerned in the day-to-day aspects of Treasury business nor are the Junior Lords and the Parliamentary Secretary who are Government Whips in the House of Commons. The higher departmental direction of Treasury business devolves on the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who is assisted at Ministerial level by the Financial Secretary and the Economic Secretary.

THE COMMONWEALTH RELATIONS OFFICE

Downing Street, London, S.W.1.

In July, 1925, a Secretaryship of State for Dominion Affairs was created, and as a result the Dominions Office was set up, to take over from the Colonial Office, business connected with the self-governing Dominions including the Irish Free State (now the Republic of Ireland), the self-governing Colony of Southern Rhodesia, the South African High Commission Territories (Basutoland, the Bechuanaland Protectorate and Swaziland), and business relating to Newfoundland. One Minister combined the duties of the new post with those of Secretary of State for the Colonies until the 13th June, 1930, when Dominion Affairs became the entire charge of a principal Secretary of State.

In July, 1947, the Secretaryship for Commonwealth Relations replaced that for Dominion Affairs and, in August of that year, the responsibility for the conduct of relations with India and Pakistan was transferred to the Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations from the Secretary of State for India, the latter post being abolished. In February, 1948, the Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations took over, from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, responsibility for relations with Ceylon which became an equal Member of the Commonwealth on February 4, 1948.

COLONIAL OFFICE

Church House, Great Smith Street, S.W.1

The Colonial Office dates back to 1660, when a Committee of the Privy Council was appointed for "The Plantations", as the Colonies were then called. A Secretary of State was first appointed in 1768, but when the United States secured their independence in 1783 the office of Colonial Secretary was abolished and colonial affairs were managed from the Home Office. The War Department assumed responsibility for the Colonies from 1794 until the post of Secretary of State was revived in 1854. In 1907, a new department of the Colonial Office was set up to administer the affairs of the Dominions and the self-governing Colonies.

A separate Dominions Office was established in 1925, which became in 1947 the Commonwealth Relations Office.

THE MINISTRY OF EDUCATION

Curzon Street, London, W.1

The Education Department exercises supervision over the various departments of state-aided education, and distributes the grants for education annually made by Parliament (apart from the Universities, which receive grant through a Committee of the Treasury). These grants date from 1833. In 1839 the Committee of Council for Education was established. The Vice-President was always a member of the House of Commons, and his office was a forerunner of the present office of Education.

In 1900 the Committee of Council for Education came to an end and its powers were transferred to the Board of Education. This was not a "board" in the usual sense, but an ordinary Government Department. The political Head was called President of the Board of Education and he was assisted by a Parliamentary Secretary, who, like the President, was a member of the Government and sat in Parliament.

In 1944 a new Education Act was passed by Parliament. This measure, regarded as one of the most outstanding in recent British legislation, framed the complete reconstruction of the public system of education in England and Wales. The Act set up a Ministry of Education, and defined the Minister's duty as being "to promote the education of the people of England and Wales and the progressive development of institutions devoted to the purpose, and to secure the effective execution by local authorities, under his control and direction, of the national policy for providing a varied and comprehensive educational service in every area".

Among its many reforms, the Act re-organised the local administration of education; provided for raising the age of compulsory school attendance to fifteen; laid down the principle of free secondary education for all; and established school meals and school health services.

health. It also took over from the National Health Insurance Commissioners the administration of the National Insurance Acts.

In 1945, the National Health Insurance was transferred to the newly formed Ministry of National Insurance. In January, 1951, the responsibility for

The town and country planning work of the Ministry includes the framing of general policy concerning the use and development of land throughout England and Wales, and the guidance of local planning authorities, New Towns' Development Corporations, and the National Parks Commission in the carrying out of the planning functions allotted to them. The Ministry also co-ordinates the interests of Government Departments in the development of land.

The Acts provide several unemployment and welfare benefits.

The day-to-day administration of the Departments is conducted in Edinburgh, but each Department has representatives in London for liaison and Parliamentary duties. INCOME TAX RATES AND DEATH DUTIES IN GREAT BRITAIN, 1953-1954

The standard rate of Income Tax in the United Kingdom (Great Britain and Northern Ireland) for the year 1953/54 imposed by the Finance Act, 1953, is 9/- in the pound.

Earned Income Allowance etc.—Two-ninths of the earned income up to a maximum allowance of £450; where total income does not exceed £250 a deduction of two-ninths of total income is allowed; persons aged 65 and upwards whose total income does not exceed £600 are allowed a deduction of two-ninths of total income; certain marginal provisions apply to incomes immediately above the limits of £250 and £600.

Personal Allowance.—Married man £210, other persons £120.

Additional allowance for wife's earned income, 7/9ths of that income up to a maximum of £120.

Child Allowance.—£85 for each child under 16 years of age, or over 16 if receiving full-time education, or, in certain circumstances, full-time vocational training.

Housekeeper Allowance.—£60 for a widower's or widow's housekeeper; an unmarried person's widowed mother or other female relative taking care of children; or, in certain circumstances, a female person employed or maintained to take charge of children.

Dependent Relative Allowance. Where incapacitated by old age or infirmity, not exceeding £60. In certain other circumstances not exceeding £40.

The income remaining after deduction of these reliefs is known as the taxable income; the first £100 of taxable income is charged at 2/6 in the £, the next £150 at 5/- in the £, the next £150 at 7/- in the £ and the remainder at the standard rate. Where the taxable income includes earned income of the wife, the amounts of taxable income chargeable at the reduced rates of 2/6, 5/- and 7/- in the £ may in certain circumstances be increased to £200, £300 and £300 respectively. Certain relief from tax is given in respect of life insurance premiums paid, in accordance with statutory provisions.

A portion of the tax payable by individuals for years 1941-42 to 1945-46 has been earmarked as a Post War Credit to be made available to the Taxpayer at a date to be determined. The Post War Credit for all five years is now being made available to men taxpayers aged 65 and over and to women taxpayers aged 60 and over.

RATES OF INCOME TAX

The standard rates have been as follows from 1914:

1914	1s. 8d.	1936	4s. 9d.
1915	3s. 0d.	1937	5s. 0d.
1916-17	5s. 0d.	1938	5s. 6d.
1918-21	6s. 0d.	1939	7s. 0d.
1922	5s. 0d.	1940	8s. 6d.
1923-24	4s. 6d.	1941-5	10s. 0d.
1925-29	4s. 0d.	1946-50	9s. 0d.
1930	4s. 6d.	1951-52	9s. 6d.
1931-33	5s. 0d.	1953	9s. 0d.
1934-35	4s. 6d.

SUR-TAX

On incomes in excess of £2,000 a further charge or tax is imposed, called the Sur-tax, which is payable as a deferred instalment of Income Tax on the 1st January following the year of assessment. Thus the Sur-tax in respect of the year 1951/52 is payable on the 1st January, 1953. The additional rates charged on these incomes begin at 2s. 0d. in the £ on the first £500 of the excess over £2,000, and rise by steps to the rate of 10s. 0d. in the £ payable on the excess over £15,000.

PROFITS TAX

The tax introduced in 1937 as the National Defence Contribution has, as from 1 January, 1947, been renamed the Profits Tax. The Profits Tax is imposed on the profits of all trades or businesses (excluding professions); as from 1st January, 1947 it applies only to corporate bodies and unincorporated societies and as from that date investment income is included in computing profits. The rate of tax is 22½% on distributed profits and 2½% on undistributed profits. If the profits are less than £2,000, no tax is payable. If the profits exceed £2,000 but are less than £12,000, an abatement is allowed.

EXCESS PROFITS LEVY

The Levy, which is chargeable in addition to Income Tax and Profits Tax, is charged upon the excess profits for the period beginning Jan. 1, 1952 and ending Dec. 31, 1953, of bodies corporate resident in the United Kingdom, and in the case of non-resident bodies corporate, on the excess profits of any trade or business carried on in the United Kingdom. The excess profit is the profit in excess of the standard profit. The standard profit is, in general, the average profits for any two of the three years 1947, 1948 and 1949. Where profits in any one of the two years are low, 8% of the average paid-up share capital in that year may be substituted for the actual profits. Alternative standards may be chosen based on 10% of paid-up share capital or 8% of net assets at either 31st December, 1946, or 31st December, 1951. New businesses are, in general, entitled to a standard of 12% of paid-up share capital. All standards are subject to an adjustment for new share capital or capital repaid, and for undistributed profits or any over-distribution of profits. There is a minimum standard of £5,000. The amount of the Levy is 30% of the excess profits, subject to an over-riding limitation of 15% of total profits. Where profits in any year fall short of the standard the deficiency may be set against previous or future excesses.

DOUBLE TAXATION RELIEF

Relief from United Kingdom income tax (including sur-tax), profits tax and the excess profits levy is allowed in respect of taxes of a similar nature in Commonwealth or foreign countries.

As between the United Kingdom and Canada there is a special arrangement, signed on 5th June 1946, under which certain classes of income derived from one country by a resident of the other country are exempt from tax in the former country. Where both countries continue to tax, full relief for the double taxation is given by the country of residence of the taxpayer. The United Kingdom has similar arrangements with the United States and a number of other countries.

Where no such arrangement is in operation, a person resident in the United Kingdom is entitled to relief in respect of tax paid in the country in which income arises. This relief is limited, where the country is within the Commonwealth, to three quarters of the total United Kingdom tax on the income, and in other cases to half of the total United Kingdom tax. This new relief, which applies as from the year 1950/51, supersedes a previously existing scheme for relief in respect of taxes paid in Commonwealth countries.

An agreement between the United Kingdom and Canada for avoidance of double death duties was signed on 5th June, 1946.

BRITISH CUSTOMS DUTIES ON IMPORTS

Under the British Import Duties Act, 1932, a duty of customs, known as the "general ad valorem duty", equal to 10 per cent of the value of the goods, is chargeable on all goods imported into the United Kingdom, with certain exceptions. On specified classes of goods "additional duties" are chargeable as well as the general ad valorem duty. These additional duties are imposed by Treasury Orders made in accordance with the provisions of the Import Duties Act, 1932. Certain goods are exempt.

The Ottawa Agreements Act, 1932, provided for the charge of duty on certain goods, mainly foodstuffs, of non-Commonwealth origin.

Under the Safeguarding of Industries Act, 1921, Key Industry duty is chargeable on goods such as optical glass and optical instruments, scientific instruments and synthetic organic chemicals of non-Commonwealth origin.

Duty is also chargeable under other enactments, the main classes of goods liable being, Beef and Veal, Beer, Hydrocarbon Oils, Silk, Spirits, Sugar, Tobacco and Wine.

Goods (except Hydrocarbon Oil) of approved Canadian origin coming within the scope of the above Acts are admitted either free of duty or at a preferential rate.

IMPERIAL PREFERENCE

The general conditions governing admission of imported goods to Imperial Preference are that the goods must be shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioners of Customs and Excise to have been consigned from and grown, produced or manufactured in the British Commonwealth. Manufactured articles are not entitled to Preference unless a prescribed proportion of their value is derived from expenditure of a prescribed kind which has been incurred in the British Commonwealth or the United Kingdom in respect of materials grown or produced or work done in the British Commonwealth or the United Kingdom. Different proportions of value have been prescribed for different classes of manufactured goods.

Full information as to the qualifications for and method of claiming preference may be obtained from the Secretary, H. M. Customs, King's Beam House, Mark Lane, London, E.C. 3, from any Collector of Customs and Excise or from H.M. Trade Commissioners and Trade Correspondents in the Overseas Dominions; also from Department of Trade and Commerce Foreign Tariffs Division, Ottawa.

Schedules of all dutiable goods and rates of duty are included in the "Customs and Excise Tariff of the United Kingdom and Northern Ireland," published periodically by H. M. Stationery Office, York House, Kingsway, London, W.C. 2, with amendments.

IMPORT LICENCES

Under the Import of Goods (Control) Orders 1940, as amended, no goods (other than goods consigned from the Channel Islands) may be imported into the United Kingdom except under the authority of a licence granted by the Board of Trade. Separate licences are not, however, required for limited lists of goods consigned from all countries or Empire countries respectively where Open General Licences have been issued.

Details of the goods covered by these Open General Licences are published from time to time in the Board of Trade Journal and in "Notices to Importers" issued by the Import Licensing Department of the Board of Trade.

PURCHASE TAX

The United Kingdom Purchase Tax is a single-stage sales tax charged at ad valorem rates on specified classes of goods. In general, liability to tax arises when the goods pass from the wholesaler to the retailer. Manufacturers and wholesale merchants dealing in chargeable goods must be registered. This enables them to deal with one another freely in the goods, or to export them without liability to tax. Tax becomes chargeable when the goods are sold by the registered manufacturer or wholesaler to an unregistered person, generally the retailer, or where there is no retail stage, to the public.

Purchase Tax is levied on chargeable goods imported into the United Kingdom, with the exception of goods imported for a registered wholesale merchant or a registered manufacturer as stock for his business or as materials. Such imported goods would become chargeable with tax (in the same way as goods of United Kingdom origin) if subsequently sold by the registered trader to an unregistered person.

The tax was first imposed by the Finance (No. 2) Act, 1940, and came into operation on 21st October, 1940, at two rates—16 $\frac{2}{3}$ % and 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ % of the wholesale value of the goods. Successive legislative changes in later years altered the schedules of taxable goods and at one period raised the number of rates to five, the highest rate then being 125% of the wholesale value. The rates are now fewer and lower, and at present (July 1953) there are three rates—25%, 50% and 75% of the wholesale value. In the case of cloth, apparel, household textile articles and furniture, relief from tax is allowed, wholly or in part, by means of a scheme introduced in 1952 under which the tax is charged only on the amount, if any, by which the wholesale value of the article concerned exceeds a fixed sum.

Latest information about the tax is set out in Notice No. 78 and related Notices, obtainable from the Commissioners of Customs and Excise, King's Beam House, Mark Lane, London, E.C. 3.

IMPERIAL AND COMMONWEALTH CONFERENCES

The "Imperial Conference" was constituted under the terms of a resolution of the "Colonial Conference," 20th April, 1907.

Prior to the Conference of 1907 there were four Colonial Conferences (three in London and one in Ottawa) in the years 1887, 1894, 1897 and 1902.

Imperial Conferences were held in: 1911, 1918, (Imperial War Conference) 1921, 1923, 1926, 1930, 1932 (Imperial Economic Conference, Ottawa) and 1937.

The Imperial Conference of 1937, held in London, discussed: (1) Foreign Affairs; (2) Defence; (3) General review of the progress of Empire Trade; (4) Colonial Affairs. No "Imperial" Conference, as such, has been held since.

On 1st November, 1939, the first of a series of informal War Conferences was held in London, attended by the British Prime Minister with Ministers of the War Cabinet and Dominion Ministers.

On October 11, 12 and 13, 1943, a conference of representatives of Britain, the Dominions and India met to form recommendations to be made to their Governments respecting post-war civil aviation.

On May 1, 1944, a meeting of Dominion Premiers was opened in London for consultation on war problems and post-war plans.

In 1945, prior to the meeting of the United Nations at San Francisco, a British Commonwealth Conference was held in London, from April 5-14, 1945.

In 1946 a Conference of Dominion Prime Ministers was held in London in May-June which was attended by the Prime Minister of Canada (Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King).

During the Sessions of the Peace Conference in Paris, which opened on 29th July, the Canadian Premier with other Dominion leaders met the British Foreign Secretary of State at an informal gathering to discuss problems of the Conference in general and aspects of the five draft peace treaties of special interest to the Dominions.

Other Commonwealth Conferences took place during 1946 in which Canadian delegates participated.

Empire Conferences in 1947 in which Canada participated included a conference of representatives from British Commonwealth countries to discuss citizenship, (February); the British Commonwealth Forestry Conference (London, June); Commonwealth and Empire Health and Tuberculosis Conference (London, July); and a Conference of Empire Survey Officers (London, August).

In 1948 the African Conference was held at Lancaster House, London, from September 29th to October 6th. It marked the first time that the African peoples, represented largely by those of their own race, met together to plan the future of a large part of their continent.

A Conference of Commonwealth Prime Ministers was held in London from October 11th to October 22nd. In addition to Great Britain, the countries represented were Canada, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand, Southern Rhodesia, India, Pakistan and Ceylon.

Vital problems of common concern to the countries of the Commonwealth were reviewed. These included: Foreign affairs in relation to Communist activities in various countries; economic recovery and reconstruction in Europe and in the Near and Far East; Western Union and the Berlin impasse; Commonwealth defence; improved machinery for Commonwealth consultation; the status of High Commissioners; world trade, with particular reference to the dollar deficit and the universal need throughout the Commonwealth for more capital goods; and the maintenance of world peace.

During the same month (October 1948) a Commonwealth Parliamentary Conference was also held in London. Twenty Commonwealth Parliaments were represented including delegates from Canada. Recent constitutional developments in India and elsewhere were discussed. Other problems examined included the position and rights of back benchers, the appointment of Ministers outside Parliament, the effect of the growing power of the Executive on Parliamentary institutions, the working of the party system, and the composition and role of Second Chambers.

In 1949 the Commonwealth Prime Ministers met in London (April 22nd to April 28th) to discuss constitutional problems relating to INDIA, under the Chairmanship of Mr. Attlee, Prime Minister of Great Britain. At the conclusion of this Conference, the following declaration was made:

"The Governments of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan and Ceylon, whose countries are united as Members of the British Commonwealth of Nations and owe a common allegiance to the Crown, which is also the symbol of their free association, have considered the impending constitutional changes in India.

"The Government of India have informed the other Governments of the Commonwealth of the intention of the Indian people that under the new constitution which is about to be adopted India shall become a sovereign independent republic. The Government of India have however declared and affirmed India's desire to continue her full membership of the Commonwealth of Nations and her acceptance of The King as the symbol of the free association of its independent member nations and as such the Head of the Commonwealth.

"The Governments of the other countries of the Commonwealth, the basis of whose membership of the Commonwealth is not hereby changed, accept and recognise India's continuing membership in accordance with the terms of this declaration.

"Accordingly the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan and Ceylon hereby declare that they remain united as free and equal members of the Commonwealth of Nations, freely co-operating in the pursuit of peace, liberty, and progress."

These constitutional questions were the sole subject of discussion at the full meetings of the Prime Ministers. The conference declaration was acclaimed as the most important development in the history of the Commonwealth since the famous Balfour Declaration at the Imperial Conference of 1926.

At the Conference of Commonwealth Foreign Ministers held at Colombo, Ceylon, from January 9th to 15th 1950, attended by Ministers and delegates from the United Kingdom and all countries of the British Commonwealth, Canada was represented by Mr. L. B. Pearson, Secretary of State for External Affairs.

Eleven plenary sessions were held under the chairmanship of Mr. Senanayake, Prime Minister of Ceylon, during which a comprehensive review was made of the political and economic problems of South East Asia and the Far East.

The Conference gave particular attention to the current situation of Indo-China, Burma and Malaya, and discussed the question of the recognition of the new régime in China and the future relation of Commonwealth countries with China. They also reconsidered, in the light of subsequent developments, the provisional conclusions reached at the Commonwealth Conference held in Canberra in 1947 on the conditions for a peace settlement with Japan. Finally, the Conference were informed of the political situation in Europe and the Middle East, and of steps which were being taken to promote closer political and economic co-operation among the countries of Western Europe and between them and the United States of America and Canada. The Conference agreed that there need be no inconsistency between the policy followed by the United Kingdom Government in relation to Western Europe and the maintenance of the traditional links between the United Kingdom and the rest of the Commonwealth.

The seventh Imperial Press Conference, opened at Quebec City in June, 1950, was attended by delegations, including prominent newspaper owners and editors, from Britain, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, South Africa and India. Other Commonwealth countries represented by one member were Pakistan, Ceylon, British West Indies, Bahamas, Bermuda, Fiji, Gibraltar, Malta and Malaya. Discussions covered the freedom of the Press, developments in the field of telecommunications, inter-Commonwealth rates for press messages, and other subjects of common interest.

In June 1951, a Conference of Commonwealth Defence Ministers was held in London. The main purpose of this Conference was to consider certain defence problems of world strategic importance. Shipping facilities, military training and the adoption by Britain of the new 0.280 rifle, were also subjects of discussion.

Shortly after the conclusion of the Conference held by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council at Ottawa (September 1951) when, for the first time, member Governments were represented by Foreign Ministers, Defence Ministers and Economic or Finance Ministers, a Conference of Commonwealth Ministers concerned with the supply of raw materials and manufactured goods, opened in London (September 24). The British Minister of Materials, Mr. Stokes, presided. This Conference, lasting for one week, considered means of increasing production of scarce materials at stable prices within the Commonwealth and of assisting the Dominions and Colonies in planning their programmes for exported equipment. The needs of rearmament had first consideration but deliberations of the Conference included a survey of the demand for raw materials when defence needs had been met; a review of the prospects for production consumption and prices of raw materials in relation to world economic trends; the effects of shortage of materials in the supply of manufactured goods; Britain's export prospects, and other cognate subjects.

The Commonwealth Economic Conference held in London in the autumn of 1952, preceded by meetings of representative financial advisers and officials, was convened to co-ordinate measures for increasing the economic strength of the Commonwealth countries, including the Colonial territories.

This Conference agreed to seek the co-operation of the United States and European countries in a plan incorporating international action for the progressive removal of import restrictions by both creditor and debtor countries and the restoration by progressive stages of the convertibility of sterling when conditions permitted. Agreement was also reached on (a) development in the sterling area to be concentrated on projects contributing to the improvement of the area's balance of payments with the rest of the world; (b) Britain undertaking to try to provide additional capital for Commonwealth development by facilitating the financing of such projects, and to make sterling available for loan by the International Bank for certain projects.

The British Foreign Secretary, summarizing the results of the Conference, said that the Commonwealth Economic Conference had concentrated on three main objectives—the avoidance of recurrent economic crises, the ending of restrictive policies and the promotion of internal financial stability. These ends could be attained by sound internal policies, economic development, and freer trade and payments. The Commonwealth countries did not seek the creation of a discriminatory economic bloc but wished to strengthen themselves, to benefit the world economy generally.

After the coronation in 1953 there was a Prime Ministers' Meeting in London from June 3 to June 9 which discussed foreign affairs, particularly the state of relations with the Soviet Union, the Korean negotiations, and the position in the Middle East. The Prime Ministers agreed that no opportunity should be lost of composing, or at least easing, the differences which divided the world, but recognized that the democracies must maintain their strength and exercise unceasing vigilance to preserve their rights and liberties. They exchanged views on steps which should be considered after the end of hostilities in Korea for the promotion of stability and progress throughout the Far East and Southeast Asia. They recognized the international importance of the Suez Canal and of the effective maintenance of the military installations in the Canal Zone, and agreed that it was in the common interest that the outstanding issues in the Middle East should be settled on the basis of ensuring the peace and security of the Middle East countries consistently with the sovereignty of each, and promoting their social and economic development. In the economic field, they reviewed developments since the Commonwealth Economic Conference of 1952, and agreed that the Commonwealth countries should adhere to the long-term objectives and lines of policy then laid down.

Particular attention was given to the need for stimulating economic development, expanding exports, and, consistently with the maintenance of adequate reserves, removing progressively restrictions on trade over as wide an area as possible and especially within the Commonwealth and the sterling area.

THE ROYAL NAVY

ADMINISTRATION

The Royal Navy is governed by the Board of Admiralty in Whitehall, headed by the First Lord of the Admiralty, who is a Minister of the Government. The Naval members of the Board consist of five Sea Lords, a Vice-Chief of Naval Staff and Deputy Chief of Naval Staff. Other civilian members of the Board are the Parliamentary and Financial Secretary and the Civil Lord, who are also Ministers of the Government, and the Permanent Secretary, who is a Civil Servant.

The Royal Marines are administered by the Commandant-General, Royal Marines, under the direction of the Board of Admiralty. Although not a member of the Board, the Commandant-General has access to the various members of the Board on matters affecting the Royal Marines.

The Women's Royal Naval Service is administered by the Director, W.R.N.S., under the direction of the Board of Admiralty. H.M. Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, is Commandant-in-Chief.

ORGANIZATION

A large proportion of the ships of the Royal Navy is distributed amongst the following Fleets and Squadrons:—

- The Home Fleet, based on the U.K.
- The Mediterranean Fleet, based on Malta.
- The Far East Fleet, based on Singapore and Hong Kong.
- The East Indies Squadron, based on Trincomalee, Ceylon.
- The America and West Indies Squadron, based on Bermuda.
- The South Atlantic Squadron, based on Simonstown, South Africa.

Many other ships are used for training purposes and local duties in Home Waters and the remainder, not required for operational service, are attached to the Reserve Fleet. Ships of the Reserve Fleet are kept in various degrees of readiness for operational duty according to requirements.

The Royal Navy maintains a large number of shore establishments in the U.K., and to a lesser degree abroad. At home, these shore establishments consist mainly of barracks, air stations and training and research establishments. Dockyards, which are manned largely by civilians, are maintained at the following places:

- Home:* Portsmouth, Chatham, Devonport, Rosyth, Sheerness and Portland.
- Abroad:* Gibraltar, Malta, Singapore, Hong Kong and Simonstown.

Each of the Fleets and Squadrons of the Royal Navy is under the command of a Commander-in-Chief, who is an Admiral or Vice-Admiral. A Commander-in-Chief is also in charge of each of the Home Ports (Portsmouth, Chatham and Devonport) and of the training establishments in his Command.

Amongst others, there is a Flag Officer at the head of the Submarine Service and another is in charge of the Fleet Air Arm at home.

PERSONNEL

Active Service. At the beginning of the current financial year (1953/54). Active Service personnel in the R.N. totalled 151,000, made up as follows:

The Royal Fleet Reserve, which consists of Naval ratings and Royal Marine Other Ranks who have completed their Active Service engagements and who, voluntarily or as part of their contract, serve in the R.F.R. for a specified period.

The Royal Naval Reserve, which draws its members from the Merchant Navy and the fishing fleets.

The Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, which is sub-divided into Divisions, Air Divisions and Squadrons, the Royal Naval Volunteer (Wireless) Reserve and the Royal Naval Volunteer (Postal) Reserve consists of men in civil life who volunteer to serve in the R.N. in time of an emergency and who undertake part-time Naval training.

The Royal Marine Forces Volunteer Reserve, which is the Royal Marine counterpart to the R.N.V.R.

The Women's Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, with arrangements for training similar to those of the R.N.V.R.

The Royal Naval Special Reserve, which consists of National Servicemen from the Royal Navy which is the Royal Marine's counterpart to the part-time service.

The Royal Naval Volunteer Supplementary Reserve, the Royal Naval and Royal Marine Emergency Reserves, and the Women's Royal Naval Reserve which consist of men or women who undertake to serve in the Naval forces in an emergency but who do not carry out part-time training.

The Royal Naval Minewatching Service, which is a civilian organization administered by the Admiralty and which was formed early in 1952.

ENTRY INTO THE R.N.

Officers. The main form of officer entry into the R.N. is through Cadetships to the Britannia Royal Naval College, Dartmouth. The cadetships are awarded according to marks gained in a written examination and in tests of personal qualities. There are two types of cadetship—one open to 16 year old boys and the other to those approximately 2 years their senior. Both apply to the Executive, Engineering and Supply & Secretariat Branches and the latter to the Electrical Branch in addition.

In both types of cadetship, training, board and accommodation are free and parents are required only to reimburse the Admiralty for a cadet's uniform, clothing and personal expenses, on a basis decided by their net income.

THE BRITISH ARMY

HISTORICAL

Before the Norman Conquest every freeman between the ages of 15 and 60 capable of bearing arms, was bound to bear arms in defence of his country at the call of the King. This national militia was partially, but never wholly, superseded by the feudal system, introduced by William I, under which lands were held in return for units of cavalry and infantry which had to serve for 40 days at the cost of the lord. In addition, kings frequently maintained mercenaries, first out of their private funds and later out of the royal revenues. Parliamentary consent to the maintenance of an army was established in the seventeenth century as a result of a struggle between the Commons and the Stuarts. The standing army became a national institution under Charles II, and the Mutiny Act, passed at the accession of William III, in 1689, formed the basis of army discipline. The Mutiny Act, after enlargement and change from time to time, is now replaced by the Army Act, constitutional control being assured by the Army and Air Force (Annual) Act, which goes annually before Parliament and brings the Army Act into force for one year.

ORGANIZATION

The British Army is made up of (a) the Regular Forces with their reserves, including the Army Emergency Reserve, and (b) the Territorial Army and the Territorial Army Reserves.

The Secretary of State for War is the President of the Army Council. Other members of the Army Council are responsible for different aspects of army organization and administration, such as the organization and disposition of troops, all personnel matters, armament and maintenance, and expenditure.

The British Army at home and overseas is divided into commands, of which the more important are commanded by generals or lieutenant-generals, who control a number of districts or areas each under a major-general, and fighting formations located in their localities.

In time of war an army in the field is commanded by a general or lieutenant-general. It is made up of Chaplains, Doctors, Dentists and Schoolmasters are offered short service commissions on completion of their professional training, with opportunities of obtaining a permanent commission.

A proportion of Fleet Air Arm pilots and observers also serve on short service commissions. These officers enter for a period of 8 years on the Active List with the opportunity of obtaining a permanent commission during their career. Entry is open to suitably qualified candidates between the ages of 17 years 4 months and 26 years, and the rank on entry is Naval Cadet.

Ratings. Ratings may engage for 12 years service in the R.N. or for 7 years in the R.N. and 5 years in the R.F.R., with opportunities to transfer to the longer engagement. 12-year ratings may volunteer to serve an additional 10 years, to qualify for a pension and terminal grant.

Entry into the R.N. as a rating is open to those between the ages of 15½ and 23.

Good opportunities are offered to ratings to become officers—either by promotion direct to Sub-Lieutenant or to Branch rank and thence to Lieutenant on the General List. There are also opportunities for promotion within the Branch List. Up to 25% of the officers entering the Executive and Supply Branches and 15% in General List in the Engineering and Electrical Branches may be promoted from the Lower Deck.

Entry regulations and promotion prospects for the Royal Marines are broadly similar to those of the R.N., except new entry officers enter as 2nd Lieutenants (on probation) and do not go to Dartmouth. Members of the W.R.N.S. enrol for four years and may re-engage for further periods. All W.R.N.S. officers, with the exception of a few with special qualifications, are selected from ratings.

Cost

The Naval Vote for the current financial year amounted to £364,500,000 as compared with £357,250,000 for the previous year.

two or more corps, and army troops consisting of supporting arms and services. An army group, of two or more armies, is commanded by a general.

A corps is commanded by a lieutenant-general. The headquarters controls a varying number of divisions of any type, together with its quota of corps troops.

There are three types of divisions, armoured, infantry and airborne, all commanded by major-generals. The armoured division has one armoured and one lorried infantry brigade, the infantry division three infantry brigades, the airborne division three parachute brigades, and all three have divisional troops.

An armoured brigade consists of three armoured regiments and a motor battalion. An infantry and parachute brigade each has three battalions. All types of brigade are commanded by brigadiers.

An armoured regiment has a headquarter squadron and three squadrons of tanks. An infantry battalion has a headquarter company, four rifle companies and a support company. Armoured regiments and infantry battalions are commanded by lieutenant-colonels and all squadrons and companies by majors.

Besides the major fighting arms—Royal Armoured Corps, Royal Artillery, Royal Engineers and Infantry—there are a number of technical and specialist corps.

THE REGULAR ARMY

The Regular Army comprises officers and other ranks commissioned or enlisted for full-time service. Normal regular engagements are for (a) three years with the Colours and (for men) four years in the Royal Army Reserve and (b) twenty two years with the Colours. A soldier enlisting on a twenty-two year engagement has the right, on giving appropriate notice, to terminate his colour service at the end of every three successive years. Termination at the end of three or six years carries a liability (for men) for four and three years service, respectively in the Reserve. National Service men are compulsorily enlisted into the Regular Army for a period of two years' service between the ages of 18 and 26. At the termination of their whole-time service they have then to do part-time service for three and a half years in the Territorial Army or the Army Emergency Reserve.

THE ARMY EMERGENCY RESERVE

The role of the Army Emergency Reserve is to provide for the National Army those specialist units of the administrative tail, which for reasons of economy cannot be included in the Regular Army in peacetime. It also holds individual specialists. It is composed of a cadre of volunteers together with national service men completing their part-time service. It can only be called out on permanent service in an emergency.

THE TERRITORIAL ARMY

The Territorial Army was reconstituted in 1947 and with the Army Emergency Reserve it forms the Reserve Army. In time of war the Reserve Army is integrated with the Regular Army to form a National Army. Towards the National Army the Territorial Army can find an expeditionary force containing armoured, airborne and infantry divisions and a proportion of corps and army troops. It is also responsible for the bulk of the anti-aircraft and coast defences of the country.

The framework of the Territorial Army is provided by the cadre of volunteers, who are mostly officers and n.c.o.s. with war experience. The numbers are made up by national service men who carry out 3½ years part-time training with the Territorial Army after completing two years whole-time service with the Regular Army. Each Territorial Unit is based on and draws its recruits from a particular area of the country.

The Territorial Army can only be called out on permanent service in the event of actual or apprehended attack, but in the event of war may be sent anywhere at home or abroad.

WOMEN'S SERVICES

Queen Alexandra's Royal Army Nursing Corps, under the direction of the Director General, Army Medical Services, is organized to carry out the nursing of any Army personnel and their families and the training in nursing duties of other ranks of the R.M.A.C. and QARANC. It consists of Regular and Territorial officers and other ranks, with other Reserves. Officers are required to be State Registered Nurses. Other ranks are trained in many trades suitable for women in Medical Service at home and overseas.

The Women's Royal Army Corps has superseded the war-time "Auxiliary Territorial Service". Employment in both home and overseas commands includes many trades suitable to women, enabling them to replace and release men for combatant duties in the Army. They also provide at home and in certain overseas theatres personnel for "mixed" A.A. units, and skilled technicians, tradeswomen and signal operators. The Corps has Regular Army and Territorial Army elements.

THE ARMY CADET ORGANIZATION

The Army Cadet Organization consists of the Combined Cadet Force (CCF) (Basic and Army Sections) and the Army Cadet Force (ACF). Both Forces cater for boys between 14 and 18, and are entirely voluntary.

The objects of both Forces are to develop the character and power of leadership of boys, and to produce good citizens, potential leaders for the fighting Services, volunteers for the Regular Forces and entrants for National Service who understand true discipline and who are already well-grounded in basic training.

The Army Cadet Force is organized on a County basis in units and sub-units and is administered by the County Territorial and Auxiliary Forces Associations. Most units are "open" ones for both school and working boys who train in the evenings and at week-ends. There are also "closed" units at schools confined to members of the school. The officers come from all walks of life and do their Cadet work outside business hours. Units and sub-units are affiliated to local T.A. Units or sub-units.

The C.C.F. exists only at schools where education continues until age 17 or over. Only members of the school can belong. The officers come from the staff of the school. The boy joins the Basic Section and after passing a test of individual training can join the Naval, Army or Air Sections of the school contingent, dependent upon which of the latter exist at the school.

On January 31, 1953, C.C.F. strength was 65,392 consisting of 2,653 in the R.N. Section, 55,811 in the Basic and Army Sections and 6,928 in the R.A.F. Sections.

The strength of the A.C.F. on January 31, 1953 was 4,999 officers and 53,886 cadets.

Although the Cadet Forces are not part of the Armed Forces of the Crown, they are supplied by the War Office with clothing, equipment, arms and ammunition for training in shooting, such services as free travel to Annual Camps and to courses, and certain funds.

THE ROYAL AIR FORCE

The separate existence of the Royal Air Force dates back to April 1st, 1918.

The Royal Air Force is administered by the Air Council which consists of:

The Secretary of State for Air (President of the Air Council).

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State (Vice-President).

The Chief of the Air Staff.

The Air Member for Personnel.

The Air Member for Supply and Organisation.

The Vice-Chief of the Air Staff.

Deputy Chief of the Air Staff.

The Controller of Supplies (Air) in the Ministry of Supply.

The Permanent Under-Secretary of State (Secretary).

"Additional" Members appointed by the Secretary of State under powers given to him by the Order in Council which lays down the constitution of the Air Council.

The Secretary of State is responsible to Her Majesty the Queen and Parliament for all the business of the Air Council.

THE AIR MINISTRY

The Air Ministry is organised in five departments, as below:

The Department of the Chief of the Air Staff (C.A.S.).

The Chief of the Air Staff is the senior Air Member of Council and principal adviser of the Secretary of State on all the Service aspects of the administration of the Royal Air Force. He is responsible for all questions of Air Force policy and planning, for advice on the conduct of air operations for all training other than technical training, and for the fighting efficiency of the Royal Air Force. He is assisted by the Vice-Chief of the Air Staff, the Deputy Chief of the Air Staff, and the Assistant Chiefs of the Air Staff, each of whom is responsible for certain duties.

The Department of the Air Member for Personnel (A.M.P.).

The Air Member for Personnel is responsible for the personnel policy and administration, other than training, of the Royal Air Force, its reserves and auxiliaries, and the Women's Royal Air Force and the Air Training Corps. This includes questions of manpower; conditions of service for all types of R.A.F. and W.R.A.F. personnel; discipline; ceremonial, honours and awards; appointments; exits, promotions and postings; and casualties. He is also responsible for the welfare of R.A.F. and W.R.A.F. personnel including the religious, educational and medical services.

The Department of the Air Member for Supply and Organisation (A.M.S.O.).

The Air Member for Supply and Organisation is responsible for the organisation of the Royal Air Force; for the provision of equipment, stores and foodstuffs; for transportation; and for works, buildings and land.

The Department of the Permanent Under-Secretary of State (P.U.S.).

The Permanent Under-Secretary of State is the Accounting Officer of the Air Ministry and as such is responsible for financial advice and for the control of all expenditure; for accounting to Parliament for the expenditure of public money and stores; and for the negotiation and placing of contracts. He is also Secretary of the Air Council and in that capacity is responsible for the efficient working of the Air Ministry as a Department of State, for Parliamentary and legal business and for public relations.

The Meteorological Office is organised as part of the Air Ministry. It is responsible for meteorological research and for supplying meteorological information to all users, including units of the Royal Air Force.

UNITED KINGDOM COMMANDS

The Commands of the R.A.F. in the United Kingdom are as follows:

Bomber Command, its function is defined by its title; it also controls photographic reconnaissance units.

Fighter Command. Responsible for the control of offensive and defensive fighter operations; also for operational control of Royal Aux. Air Force Squadrons, Royal Observer Corps and of A.A. Command.

Coastal Command. Responsible for reconnaissance over the sea; in conjunction with the Royal Navy, for protection of shipping at sea and for attack against enemy shipping and submarines; also for meteorological reconnaissance, and air/sea rescue.

Transport Command. Responsible for the study, development and training of all air transport operations, including airborne assaults; the organisation and control of air transport operations in support of the R.A.F. and other services; and for operations along the trunk routes, including flight delivery of aircraft between theatres.

Flying Training Command. Responsible for the training of flying personnel. Also controls the Royal Air Force College, Cranwell, the R.A.F. Flying College, Manby (a specialist Flying Training Unit for officers of all the Commonwealth Air Forces, which combines certain aspects of the work of the discontinued Empire Flying School, the Empire Air Navigation School and the Empire Air Armament School) and various schools for the training of instructors in flying, navigation and the use of weapons.

Technical Training Command. Responsible for the training of ground personnel. Also controls the R.A.F. Technical College, in which the specialist training of technical officers is carried out.

Maintenance Command. Responsible for the storage and issue of the whole range of equipment used by the R.A.F.

Home Command. Responsible for the Reserves (including the R.A.F.V.R.), the Royal Auxiliary Air Force, University Air Squadrons and the Air Training Corps.

OVERSEAS COMMANDS

Overseas Commands are forces of various types of Squadrons and Service Units assigned to specific areas. The main overseas Commands of the R.A.F. are the Middle East Air Force, the Far East Air Force, and the 2nd Tactical Air Force. (This latter Force until September 1, 1951, was called the British Air Forces of Occupation, Germany, but following the decision that the operational resources of B.A.F.O. should be placed at the disposal of the Supreme Commander, Allied Powers in Europe, the role of the Command became primarily that of a tactical air force. It was therefore considered appropriate to restore the historical name of 2nd Tactical Air Force).

Women's Royal Air Force. Following the decision that the Women's Forces were to be continued on a voluntary basis as a permanent feature of the Forces of the Crown, provision was made under the Army and Air Force (Women's Service) Act, 1948, which was brought into operation on 1st February, 1949, for women to be commissioned and enlisted in the Royal Air Force and its reserves and auxiliaries. Women officers and airwomen accepted, under the new conditions, for the Royal Air Force are fully integrated into that force and are not organised as a separate corps.

His late Majesty, King George VI, approved the title of Women's Royal Air Force for use where it is necessary to provide collectively for women in the Royal Air Force.

The Air Force Act applies to such women in the same way as it applies to men, subject to adaptations and modifications made by Order in Council.

The Royal Auxiliary Air Force and the R.A.F. Volunteer Reserve are voluntary organisations in which men and women render part-time service while continuing to follow their civilian occupations; the R.Aux.A.F. being composed of flying and other units which form part of the first-line defences.

The Royal Observer Corps is a uniformed civilian body which is a vital part of Fighter Command's raid reporting and fighter control system. The duties of the members, who serve on a spare-time basis in peace, include the identification and plotting of aircraft flying over Great Britain.

The Air Training Corps gives boys of 14 and over experience in gliding and air matters, with special advantages if they join the Royal Air Force.

OVERSEAS TRAINING

During 1950 arrangements were made between the Governments of Canada and the United Kingdom for the Royal Canadian Air Force to train R.A.F. pilots and navigators in Canada. This scheme came into effect in January 1951. These arrangements are an extension of plans under which the R.C.A.F. are already training a number of air crews of the North Atlantic Treaty nations.

BRITAIN'S AUXILIARY AND NATIONAL SERVICES

A list of Civil Defence organizations, which were active during World War II, with descriptions, names and addresses of directors, etc., was included in the Canadian Almanac for 1945 and previous years.

CIVIL DEFENCE CORPS

Civil Defence (established 1949) is part of Britain's plan to improve defensive measures by enrolling volunteers to form the nucleus of a national auxiliary service.

The four Services concerned are the Civil Defence Corps, The Auxiliary Fire Service, the National Hospital Reserve and the Special Constabulary.

The first three train recruits (men and women as part-time volunteers) in peace-time for service if war should break out. The Special Constabulary provides training for recruits to assist the regular Police in peace as well as to establish additional trained reinforcements in emergency.

The Civil Defence Corps is a Crown service for which The Home Secretary and the Secretary of State for Scotland are responsible. Its local organisation is a function of the local authorities. Each division (outside the County of London which has its own arrangements in conjunction with the Metropolitan Boroughs) comprises five sections: Headquarters, Warden, Reserve, Ambulance, and Welfare.

Civil Defence training schools have been established but the National Hospital Service Reserve (recruited by the Minister of Health) concentrates the available medical and nursing man-power on the hospitals in co-operation with the St. John Ambulance Brigade and the British Red Cross Society.

MALTA, G.C.

Population (1953) 316,883

Malta is a self-governing colony with a representative assembly, and responsible ministers.

On April 15, 1942, in recognition of the fortitude of the people of Malta, King George VI awarded the George Cross to the Island.

By Letters Patent dated September 5, 1947, Responsible Government was re-established in Malta and the new Legislative Assembly was opened by His Royal Highness The Duke of Gloucester on November 10, 1947. The Maltese Legislature may not pass laws touching the public safety or defence of Her Majesty's dominions and the general interests of British subjects outside Malta. In addition to this general reservation certain subjects are specifically withheld from the Legislature's competence. The principal subjects so reserved are matters dealing with the defence of the Island, and naval, military or air force matters generally, aliens, immigration, currency and treaties and relations with foreign states except insofar as it may be necessary for laws to be made in Malta to enable effect to be given to any treaty extending to Malta. Laws dealing with "reserved matters" may be made by the Governor subject to Her Majesty's approval, or by Order in Council.

The Governor is assisted by two Councils, the Executive Council, consisting of the Cabinet, and the Nominated Council, consisting of the Lieutenant-Governor, the Legal Secretary, (who are ex officio members) and three officers chosen from the Navy, Army and Air Force. There is a Privy Council which consists of the members of the Executive Council and the members of the Nominated Council and the Governor may, as occasion may require, appoint a Joint Committee of the Privy Council consisting of three members of the Executive Council, nominated by the Prime Minister and three members of the Nominated Council selected by the Governor.

WORLD ORGANIZATIONS

THE UNITED NATIONS

The United Nations is a world organization for the maintenance of peace and security and for the promotion of the welfare of humanity built around the wartime union of free peoples in defence of civilization.

Through a series of conferences, at Dumbarton Oaks (August-October 1944), at Yalta (February 1945) and at San Francisco (April-June 1945), the Charter of the United Nations was produced. The detailed plans for setting up the Organization under the Charter were then drawn up by the Preparatory Commission and its Executive Committee.

The main organs of the United Nations are: the General Assembly, the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, the International Court of Justice, the Secretariat. Subsidiary organs are established as and when required.

The General Assembly is composed of representatives of 60 Member States with one vote each. It is the only organ of the United Nations on which all Members are represented. It is a deliberative body where the Members have the opportunity to exchange views and state their problems. Decisions are taken by a two-thirds majority on important questions and a simple majority on other questions. The Assembly deals with its work through six Main Committees on which all Members have the right to be represented: First Committee (Political and Security, including the regulation of armaments); Second Committee (Economic and Financial); Third Committee (Social, Humanitarian, and Cultural); Fourth Committee (Trusteeship, including non-self-governing territories); Fifth Committee (Administrative and Budgetary); Sixth Committee (Legal). The Assembly has also established procedural, standing and ad hoc committees. David M. Johnson is Canada's permanent representative at United Nations headquarters in New York.

The Security Council is composed of five permanent members, China, France, the United Kingdom, the United States and the Soviet Union. In addition, there are six non-permanent members elected by the General Assembly for a term of two years. The principal function of the Security Council is to examine questions endangering the maintenance of international peace and security, and to adopt and apply means to solve dangerous international situations or disputes. Each member of the Security Council has one vote. Decisions on procedural matters are made by an affirmative vote of seven members. On all other matters an affirmative vote of seven members, including the concurring votes of the five permanent members, is required (unless, in certain circumstances, a permanent member abstains from voting). Thus, the negative vote of one permanent member is sufficient to prevent the taking of a substantive decision. This is the "veto" power.

The Charter provides that a Military Staff Committee, consisting of the Chiefs of Staff of the permanent members of the Security Council or their representatives is to advise and assist the Security Council on all questions relating to the Council's military requirements for the maintenance of international peace and security, the regulation of armaments or possible disarmament.

On 11 January 1952 the General Assembly established the Disarmament Commission to replace the Atomic Energy Commission and the Commission for Conventional Armaments and to combine the work of both. The composition of this Commission is the same as that of the former Atomic Energy Commission, namely, the members of the Security Council plus Canada when that State is not a member of the Security Council.

The Economic and Social Council is composed of representatives of eighteen Member States elected by the General Assembly for a term of three years. Its function is to study and report on social and economic problems throughout the world, and to suggest means for their solution. Its decisions are taken by a simple majority vote. It is authorized to enter into agreements with specialized agencies for the purpose of bringing them into relationship with the United Nations. Such agreements are subject to approval by the General Assembly and the appropriate body of the specialized agency concerned. Agreements with the following agencies are in force: International Labour Organization (ILO); Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO); United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO); International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO); International Bank for Reconstruction and Development; International Monetary Fund; World Health Organization (WHO); Universal Postal Union (UPU); International Telecommunication Union (ITU); World Meteorological Organization. An agreement with the proposed Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization (IMCO), approved in 1948 by the United Nations General Assembly, will come into force when approved by the Assembly of IMCO, after that Organization is officially established. An agreement has also been authorized with the International Trade Organization (ITO) if and when that body comes into existence.

The Economic and Social Council is aided in its work by several expert bodies, called commissions and sub-commissions, which keep international problems in their respective fields under review. These bodies cover such questions as transport and communications, fiscal, statistical, human rights, social, population, status of women and narcotic drugs. The Council has also set up regional economic commissions for Europe, for Asia and the Far East, and for Latin America. The Council, in addition, has made arrangements for consultation with non-governmental organizations which are concerned with matters within its competence.

The Trusteeship Council consists of Member

Nations administering territories under trusteeship, the permanent members of the Security Council which do not administer trust territories, and as many other Members elected by the General Assembly as may be necessary to ensure that the total number of members in the Trusteeship Council is equally divided between those which administer trust territories and those which do not. The purpose of the Council is to study and report on political, economic, social, educational and cultural conditions in each territory under trusteeship, and supervise the application of trusteeship agreements. Its decisions are taken by a simple majority vote.

The International Court of Justice is the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. It consists of fifteen members elected for a term of nine years by the General Assembly and by the Security Council voting independently.

Mr. John E. Read, Canada—is one of the judges.

The Secretariat, under a Secretary-General appointed by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council, serves the United Nations. It is divided into the following departments: Political and Security Council Affairs; Economic Affairs; Social Affairs; Trusteeship and Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories; Public Information; Legal Affairs; Conference and General Services; Administrative and Financial Services. There is, in addition, the Executive Office of the Secretary-General and the Technical Assistance Administration under a Director-General, Hon. Hugh L. Keenleyside of Canada.

THE VICTORIA CROSS

THE VICTORIA CROSS was instituted by Queen Victoria at the close of the Crimean campaign, 1856. It is a Maltese cross, made of gun metal, with a Royal Crest in the centre and underneath it an escroll bearing the inscription "For Valor," and is awarded, irrespective of rank, to members of any branch of Her Majesty's services, either in the Imperial Forces or those of any British dominion, colony, dependency or protectorate, the Mercantile Marine, nurses or staffs of hospitals, or to civilians of either sex while serving in either regular or temporary capacity during naval, military, or air force operations. It is awarded only "for most conspicuous bravery or some daring or pre-eminent act of valour or self-sacrifice or extreme devotion to duty in the presence of the enemy." For additional conduct of similar bravery, a Bar is added. The ribbon was formerly red for the Army and blue for the Navy, but is now crimson for all services. An annuity of £10 a year accompanies the decoration, plus £5 a year for every Bar granted; payable to ranks below commission ranks from the date of the act which concerns the award. Navy, Army and Royal Air Force regulations provide for the annuity to be increased to the maximum of £75, including any other pension from public funds where officers and other ranks are incapable of earning a livelihood by reason of age or infirmity occasioned by a cause outside the recipient's control. Since June 17th, 1943, the financial responsibility has been assumed by the Canadian Government, and the pound sterling is deemed to have a value of $5.00 in Canadian currency where this is concerned.

TITULAR HONOURS

For some years honours involving titles have not been bestowed on Canadians living in Canada.

On May 22, 1919, during the premiership of the Rt. Hon. Robert L. Borden, a resolution adopted by the House of Commons requested His Majesty to refrain from granting titular honours to Canadian citizens in the future. This policy was reversed in 1933 when, during the premiership of the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, the Canadian Government recommended a number of such awards, which were duly granted on New Year's Day, 1934. Although titular honours were again conferred in 1935, the new administration which took office later that year under the premiership of the Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King revived the previous policy of the Government of 1919, and no titular honours have been recommended or awarded since that time.

On July 24, 1942, a Special Committee on Honours and Decorations reported to the House as follows:

- "As a result of their deliberations your Committee desire to make the following recommendations:
- (1) That His Majesty's subjects domiciled or ordinarily resident in Canada be eligible for the award of Honours and Decorations, including awards in the Orders of Chivalry, which do not involve titles.
 - (2) That His Majesty's Government in Canada consider a submission to His Majesty the King, of proposals for the establishment of an Order limited in number but not involving a title, for which His Majesty's subjects domiciled or ordinarily resident in Canada shall alone be eligible."

The arms are those of England, Scotland, Ireland and France, with a "difference" to mark them as Canadian, namely on the lower third of the shield, a sprig of maple on a silver shield. The crest is a lion holding in its paw a red maple leaf, a symbol of sacrifice. The supporters are, with some slight distinctions, the lion and unicorn of the Royal Arms; the lion upholds the Union Jack, and the unicorn the ancient banner of France.

The motto—A MARI VSQVE AD MARE—"From sea to sea"—is an extract from the Latin version of verse 8 of the 72nd Psalm—"He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth."

There is a tradition, that the Fathers of Confederation derived the designation "Dominion" from this verse.

PETITIONS TO THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

A petition to the House of Commons must be presented by a Member, and such Member shall be answerable that the petition does not contain "impertinent or improper matter". One person may petition the House of Commons. Petitions may be either written or printed. When there are three or more petitioners, the signatures of at least three shall be subscribed on the sheet containing the prayer of the petition.

Long usage both here and in the United Kingdom has sanctioned the rule that every petition should commence with the superscription "To the Honourable the House of Commons in Parliament assembled". Then should follow the formula "The Petition of the undersigned — humbly sheweth". The subject matter of the petition then follows in the third person throughout and each paragraph should commence with the word "That".

The conclusion should be the "prayer", briefly and clearly expressing the particular object which the petitioners have in view in coming before Parliament. The petition should close with the formal words "And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray".

FEDERAL PARLIAMENT REPRESENTATION

The Parliament of Canada consists of the Senate and the House of Commons.

THE SENATE

Senators are appointed for life; must be Canadian Citizens or British subjects and 30 years of age; must own lands worth net $4,000 in the province which they represent, and must be worth $4,000 above all debts. They must be residents of the province for which appointed or of the electoral division in the Province of Quebec.

The Speaker is appointed by the Governor-General.

The Senate as originally constituted at Confederation consisted of 72 members. Through the addition of new provinces and the general growth of Canada it now has 102 members, the latest change in representation having been made at March 31, 1949, with the admission of Newfoundland to Confederation. By provinces, representation is as follows: Newfoundland 6, Prince Edward Island 4, Nova Scotia 10, New Brunswick 10, Quebec 24, Ontario 24, Manitoba 6, Saskatchewan 6, Albert 6, British Columbia 6; total 102.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

The members of the House of Commons are elected by the people. The ordinary legal limit of duration for each Parliament is five years, sitting at least once a year. The Speaker is elected by the House.

In the 21st Parliament, elected June 27, 1949, the House of Commons consisted of 255 members. A Redistribution Act, passed after each decennial census readjusts the representation in the House of Commons in accordance with rules laid down in Section 51 of the British North America Acts, 1867 to 1952.

By virtue of the Representation Act, 1952, membership in the House of Commons was increased from 255 to 265 effective at the general election held August 10, 1953.

Representation in the House of Commons for the 22nd Parliament is as follows: Alberta 17; British Columbia 22; Manitoba 14; New Brunswick 10; Newfoundland 7; Nova Scotia 12; Ontario 85; Prince Edward Island 4; Quebec 75; Saskatchewan 17; Mackenzie District, N.W.T. 1; and the Yukon Territory 1; making a total of 265.

THE FARMERS' CREDITORS

ARRANGEMENT ACT 1943

Director—C. A. Port, Department of Finance, Ottawa.

This Act was passed by Parliament July 21, 1943, and proclaimed as coming into force December 15, 1943, replacing The Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, 1934.

The legislation is designed with a view to effecting compromises or rearrangements of the debts of farmers with the object of retaining them on the land as efficient producers and also to simplify the operation of the Bankruptcy Act with respect to farmers generally. The compromise provisions are available only to farmers in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The simplified bankruptcy provisions are available to farmers in all ten provinces.

All Clerks of the County and District Courts throughout the Dominion are Official Receivers for the purposes of the Act. In districts where the Clerk of the Court was unable to act as Official Receiver, substitutes have been appointed.

A farmer may submit a proposal to an Official Receiver who calls a meeting of creditors and endeavours to effect an amicable settlement. If successful, he applies to the County or District Court Judge for approval. If unsuccessful, a request may be signed that the Court formulate a proposal binding on all parties, subject to appeal.

An Appeal Court has been constituted in each of the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

INDIAN AFFAIRS BRANCH

The administration of Indian Affairs was under the direct control of the Imperial Government until 1860, when it was transferred to the Province of Canada. By the British North America Act Indians and lands reserved for Indians, were placed under the Dominion Government. For six years after Confederation, Indian Affairs was attached to the Department of the Secretary of State. In 1873 it was transferred to the Department of the Interior, and in 1880 a separate Department of Indian Affairs was established. On Dec. 1, 1936, under the Department of Mines and Resources Act it was replaced by the Indian Affairs Branch of the Department of Mines and Resources. In January, 1950, the Indian Affairs Branch became a part of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration. The Indians today number approximately 145,000 and are located on some 2,200 reserves comprising approximately five and a half million acres of which about 300,000 acres are under cultivation. The department operates schools for Indians comprising both day and residential institutions, the latter being conducted in co-operation with various religious denominations interested in the work of Indian education. At the present time there are 460 in all of these schools educating some 29,000 children. An important part of the administration is the Indian Trust Fund, which amounts to over $21,000,000 and is derived from sales or leases of land, timber, and minerals, and from other miscellaneous sources.

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL HEALTH AND WELFARE

The Department of National Health and Welfare was established in October 1944, under the Department of National Health and Welfare Act, 1944. It is composed of three separate branches, Health, Welfare and Administration.

The Health Branch is divided into four directorates: Health Services, composed of a number of divisions dealing with different aspects of public health; Health Insurance Studies, which administers the National Health Program and in which departmental planning for health care is centred; Indian Health Services, which administers health services to Indians and Eskimos; and Food and Drugs. The Department is responsible for the administration of the Food and Drugs Act, the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act, the Quarantine Act, the Leprosy Act, the Proprietary or Patent Medicine Act, and those sections of the Canada Shipping and the Immigration Acts dealing with the care of sick mariners and the medical examination of immigrants. It administers the National Health Program, under which grants totalling $49 million for 1953-54 were, or are, made available to the provinces for the improvement and extension of health services. In addition advisory and co-ordinating services are provided to provincial health departments and grants are made to a number of national voluntary health organizations. The Department has certain responsibilities in international health matters and provides information and assistance to the World Health Organization and other specialized agencies of the United Nations. It is responsible for the enforcement of any public health regulations made by the International Joint Commission concerning boundary waters between the United States and Canada.

A number of federal-provincial committees act in an advisory capacity to the Department on health matters. The most important of these, the Dominion Council of Health, is composed of the Deputy Minister of National Health, who acts as chairman, the chief health officer of each province and five persons appointed by the Governor-in-Council. Federal-provincial committees of a technical and advisory nature supplement the activities of the Council.

The Welfare Branch administers the Family Allowances Act, 1944 and the Old Age Security Act, 1951, and is responsible for administration of the federal aspects of the Old Age Assistance Act, 1951, and the Blind Persons Act, 1951. The Old Age Assistance Act and Blind Persons Act provide for Advisory Boards consisting of federal and provincial representatives. Under the Physical Fitness Act of 1943 a joint federal-provincial program of physical, cultural and recreational activities is conducted. The National Council on Physical Fitness acts in an advisory capacity on fitness matters.

Grants are made by the Department to a number of national voluntary health and welfare organizations.

The Department is also responsible for federal civil defence planning; the Civil Defence Co-ordinator reports to both Deputy Ministers.

The Administration Branch consists of divisions whose activities cover both the health and welfare fields, such as research and information services, legal and library services, and of divisions providing administrative and personnel services to the Department.

ALLOWANCES FOR THE BLIND

The Blind Persons Act, effective January 1, 1952, provides for federal reimbursement to the provinces for allowances to blind persons, payable by the provinces to needy blind persons age 21 to 69, subject to a residence requirement of at least 10 years. For an unmarried person without a dependent child or children, the maximum income is $840 a year, and with a dependent child or children, $1040 a year. For a married couple, the maximum is $1320 where one is sighted, and $1440 where both are blind. Indians are not excluded from the benefits of the Act.

Within the limits of the Act, the province is free to fix the amount of the maximum allowance payable and the amounts of maximum income allowed. The federal government contributes 75 per cent of $40 a month or of the amount paid by the province, whichever is the lesser. Federal reimbursement is made through the Department of National Health and Welfare. Implementation of the program requires an agreement between the federal and provincial governments. The province must pass enabling legislation and provide for provincial administration of the allowances.

All provinces and the Northwest Territories have signed agreements with the federal government for the payment of allowances. In August, 1953, the allowances were payable to 8,224 persons at an annual rate of $3 million of which the federal share was 75 per cent.

OLD AGE SECURITY PROGRAMMES

Social legislation concerning persons in the older age groups was greatly extended in January, 1952. The Old Age Assistance Act, passed by Parliament in June, 1951, provides for federal grants-in-aid to the provinces for old age assistance payments to persons in need, between the ages of 65 and 69. The Old Age Security Act, passed in December, 1951, provides for a universal pension scheme for persons 70 years of age and over. These two measures replace the former federal-provincial old age pension program under which pensions, subject to a means test, were payable at the age of 70 years.

Old Age Security

Under the Old Age Security Act, the federal government pays a pension of $40 a month to persons age 70 and over, subject to a residence qualification of 20 years (or more in certain cases). The universal pension is the financial and administrative responsibility of the federal government, and is financed by a 2% sales tax, a 2% tax on net corporation income, and a 2% tax not to exceed $60 a year on the net taxable income of individuals required to pay income tax. In August, 1953, pensions were payable to 700,711 persons at an annual rate of $338 million.

The regional offices of the Welfare Branch of the Department of National Health and Welfare, which administer family allowances, are used for the administration of universal old age pensions. Application forms are available in all post offices in Canada. Application for the pension may be made to the Regional Director of Old Age Security in the capital city of each province. Residents of the Yukon Territory and the Northwest Territories are required to send their applications to the Regional Director of Old Age Security, Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa.

Old Age Assistance

The Old Age Assistance Act provides for federal reimbursement to the provinces for old age assistance, payable by the provinces to persons in need, between the ages of 65 and 69, subject to a residence qualification of at least 20 years. Indians are not excluded from the benefits of the Act. For an unmarried person, the total income, including assistance, cannot exceed $720 a year, and for a married couple, $1200 a year. Where one of the spouses is blind, within the meaning of The Blind Persons Act, the total income of the couple, including assistance, cannot exceed $1320 a year. Within the limits of the Act, each province is free to fix the amount of the maximum assistance payable, the amounts of maximum income allowed, and other conditions of eligibility. The maximum assistance established in all provinces, except Newfoundland, and in the Northwest Territories is $40 monthly; in Newfoundland, it is $30. The federal government's contribution is 50 per cent of $40 a month or of the assistance paid, whichever is the lesser.

Implementation of the programme in a province is contingent on the province's passing enabling legislation and signing an agreement with the federal government. Old age assistance is administered and paid by the provinces with federal reimbursement through the Department of National Health and Welfare.

In August, 1953, assistance payable to 90,606 persons was at an annual rate of $22 million of which one-half was the federal share.

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL REVENUE

From Confederation on July 1, 1867, until May 17 1918, Customs and Inland Revenue Acts were administered by two separate government departments known as the Department of Customs, constituted by statute (31 Vic. Chap. 43), and the Department of Inland Revenue constituted by statute (31 Vic. Chap. 49). On May 18, 1918, by Order in Council these two Departments were amalgamated and combined under the name of the Department of Customs and Inland Revenue and under one Minister of the Crown.

On April 1, 1921, the name Inland Revenue was dropped and the Department of Customs and Excise constituted (11-12 Geo. V. 26).

The collection of Income Tax was placed under the control of the Minister of Customs and Excise on April 1, 1924, and by the Department of National Revenue Act (17 Geo. V. Chap. 34) the name was changed to the Department of National Revenue.

CANADA'S ARMED SERVICES

THE ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY

The Canadian naval forces are divided between the Royal Canadian Navy and the Royal Canadian Navy (Reserve). The strengths of the two forces as of June 1, 1953 were:

RCN	Officers	2,189	Men	13,481
RCN (R)	Officers	1,286	Men	3,190
	Wren Officers	67	Wrns	697

Cadets of the University Naval Training Divisions, an integral part of the RCN(R), numbered 1,269, making the total strength of the two forces, 22,179.

The RCN is composed of ten branches. They are: Executive, Engineering, Electrical, Chaplain Services, Instructor, Medical, Supply, Constructor, Ordnance and Special Branches.

The RCN(R) has the same branch divisions and is also divided between the Active and Retired Lists. Officers and men of the Active List undergo periodic training and may perform special duty or Continuous Naval Duty in the RCN in lieu of an officer or man of the RCN of like or higher rank, authorized by complement but not borne.

Officers of the Retired List and men of the Emergency List (its "lower deck" equivalent) are not required to undergo periodic training but may do so. They may also perform special duty or Continuous Naval Duty in the RCN under the same conditions as members of the Active List.

THE NAVAL ESTABLISHMENT

The RCN is composed of four Commands:

Headquarters Command, established in Ottawa, is the administrative headquarters of the RCN. Its establishment is commissioned as HMCS Bytown.

Atlantic Command is organized with headquarters in HMC Dockyard, Halifax, N.S., and is the operational and administrative authority, under naval headquarters, for the RCN ships and establishments in eastern Canada.

Pacific Command is organized on the same basis as the Atlantic Command with headquarters in HMC Dockyard, Esquimalt, B.C.

Commanding Officer Naval Divisions is responsible for the administration of all establishments, and the training of all personnel, of the RCN(R). The command headquarters is in Hamilton, Ont.

A list of RCN and RCN(R) shore establishments is included under "Naval Establishments, Department of National Defence, Departments of Government", See Index.

There are 32 ships in commission or preparing for service; 41 ships in reserve; 9 ships on loan to other departments of the federal government, and 34 ships building or to be built under present plans.

There are also seven Fairmile patrol craft and 11 other ships in commission and approximately 200 lesser craft both in service and in reserve.

THE CANADIAN ARMY

DEFENCE

The National Defence Act, the organizational portions of which were proclaimed to come into force on the first of August, 1950, provided for a Department of National Defence presided over by a Minister. The organization of and terms of service in the military forces of Canada, collectively called "The Canadian Forces", are prescribed in the National Defence Act Chapter 43, Statutes of Canada 1950.

Military Command and Administration of the Army is exercised by Army Headquarters, Ottawa, through five Commands: Western, Prairie, Central, Quebec and Eastern.

There are seven Areas within and subordinate to Commands.

ORGANIZATION

The National Defence Act provides the Canadian Army shall consist of:

(a) The Active Force consisting of personnel permanently employed and comprising field units and training, staff and service elements. The Active Force supersedes the pre-war Permanent Force.

(b) The Reserve Force consisting of personnel not enrolled for continuous service except in an emergency, but liable to undergo annual military training. The Reserve Force supersedes the pre-war Non-Permanent Active Militia.

(c) The Supplementary Reserve consisting of personnel not enrolled for continuous service except in an emergency and not obligated to undergo annual training except as may be specially ordered. The Supplementary Reserve contains the pre-war lists of Reserve personnel.

(d) The Canadian Officers Training Corps consisting of contingents of officer cadets in Schools, Colleges, Universities and units. The Canadian Officers Training Corps is liable to undergo annual military training.

(e) The Cadet Services of Canada consisting of commissioned officers for the purpose of administration and training of the Royal Canadian Army Cadets. Such officers are liable to perform annual training.

- (iii) Such training centres as may be authorized from time to time by the Minister.
- (iv) Royal Military College.
- (v) College Militaire Royal de St. Jean.

ROYAL CANADIAN ARMY CADETS

Colonel-in-Chief: Her Majesty the Queen

Address—Directorate of Military Training, Army Headquarters, Ottawa, Ont.

The Army Cadet organization stems from the "Drill Associations" formed in Colleges and Schools during and after the American Civil War, 1861-1866. Such corps were first authorized by an Amendment to the Militia Act, dated 9th June, 1862.

In 1942, the Department of National Defence expanded the Cadet Movement, regularized the training, clothing and equipment, and began associating corps with the Reserve Force.

In 1948, the Department reorganized the Cadet Movement on a permanent peace time basis, authorizing a peak enrolment of 50,000 cadets.

In 1951, this establishment was raised to 65,000, and the training was aligned more closely with that of the Reserve Force. Nearly all corps are now affiliated with Army Units.

Cadets receive realistic pre-military and citizenship training. In addition, courses are conducted at summer camps for training about 3,500 selected cadets in a few Army trades or as cadet leaders.

The total strength of the RC Army Cadets, June, 1953, is 56,000 in 530 corps. Many of these corps are still sponsored by secondary schools. The uniform is khaki with the red Maple Leaf badge on the upper arm and either a beret or a wedge cap with a red flash.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE

The Royal Canadian Air Force originated as the C.A.F. in 1920, was granted the title Royal in 1923, and was re-organized as a permanent force on April 1, 1924. Originally consisting of two components, Regular and Auxiliary, it was expanded during the war to include a Special Reserve, a Women's Division, and the Air Cadets. The pre-war strength of the Force was approximately 4,600 officers and men; during the course of the conflict the strength rose to a maximum of over 215,000, including more than 15,000 members of the Women's Division.

One of the R.C.A.F.'s most valuable contributions in the War was the development and administration of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, under which 131,553 aircrew personnel were trained in the Dominion for the air forces of Britain, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand. Of the graduates of the training schools over 55% were members of the R.C.A.F., 32% of the R.A.F., and the remainder came from the R.A.A.F. and R.N.Z.A.F. The B.C.A.T.P. agreement, which had been signed at Ottawa in December 1939 and extended in June 1942, expired on March 31, 1945.

Between September 1939 and May 1945 units of the home establishment, operating from bases on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, in Alaska and the Aleutians, Newfoundland, Labrador and Iceland, were engaged in coastal patrol, convoy protection, anti-submarine and fighter duties. Overseas 47 R.C.A.F. squadrons served in the Western European, Mediterranean, Indian and Burmese theatres. Fourteen heavy bomber squadrons comprised No. 6 R.C.A.F. Group in Bomber Command; another was in the Pathfinder Force. Twenty day fighter, fighter-reconnaissance, fighter-bomber, night fighter and intruder squadrons fought over Western Europe as components of the 2nd Tactical Air Force and Fighter Command. Another day fighter squadron flew with the Desert Air Force in its campaigns from Egypt to Italy. In Coastal Command there were five R.C.A.F. units, including one based in Ceylon. Three transport squadrons carried troops and supplies in Western Europe and Burma, while three A.O.P. units worked with the Canadian Army in the Netherlands and Germany during the last weeks of the war. In addition to the personnel of these squadrons there were many thousands of R.C.A.F. aircrew and groundcrew who served with R.A.F. units overseas. Plans for the Force's participation in the "second phase" against Japan—in addition to the two transport squadrons and R.C.A.F. personnel serving in the Far East—were cut short by the termination of hostilities.

For a time the R.C.A.F. contributed a number of squadrons for the British Air Forces of Occupation in Germany and for transport work. The last of these overseas units was disbanded in June 1946.

PERMANENT FORCE

Control of the RCAF is carried out from Air Force Headquarters, Ottawa, and the permanent force is divided into 4 Commands and 4 Groups. Air Defence Command, with headquarters at St. Hubert (Montreal, P.Q.) has as its primary role the air defence of Canada with its attendant operational problems. Air Defence Command is also responsible for a subsidiary headquarters, 12 Air Defence Group, Vancouver, which is responsible for air operations on the west coast of Canada. Training Command Headquarters, located at Trenton, Ontario, has as its responsibility the basic training of air and ground personnel. 14 Training Group at Winnipeg is controlled by Training Command and administers the training units in Western Canada. Air Transport Command, with headquarters at Lachine, P.Q., directs and supervises the operation of RCAF transport and photographic activities. Air Materiel Command is located at Ottawa and is concerned with the logistics problems of the RCAF. Fundamentally, this involves equipment, supply, aeronautical engineering, construction engineering and aeronautical inspection. The problems and activities concerning the RCAF participation in Maritime warfare are the responsibility of Maritime Group, Halifax, N.S. Tactical Air Group at Edmonton is responsible for the formation of plans and policies related to airborne support of the Army and their coordination with Army requirements. Strength of the Regular R.C.A.F. as of June, 1953 was more than 41,000. Operational elements in existence include Fighter, Fighter Bomber, Photo and Transport Squadrons, Search and Rescue Flights and other special flying units.

RESERVE FORCE

Twelve Auxiliary Squadrons have been formed: Montreal, P.Q. - 2, Toronto, Ont. - 2, Hamilton, Ont. - 1, London, Ont. - 1, Winnipeg, Man. - 1, Saskatoon, Sask. - 1, Edmonton, Alta. - 1, Calgary, Alta. - 1, Vancouver, B.C. - 2. Reserve ground training is conducted by various types of units, including Radar and Communication Squadrons, Technical Training Units, are included in the Auxiliary with the flying squadrons; also part of the reserve scheme are the Reserve Squadrons at the universities and a refresher flying training programme handled for the R.C.A.F. by the flying clubs.

ROYAL CANADIAN AIR CADETS

Air Cadet activities in Canada are sponsored and administered by the Air Cadet League of Canada. The League is a voluntary civilian organization created solely for this purpose and was formed in 1940 to provide preliminary aviation training for potential members of the Royal Canadian Air Force. In peacetime the object of Air Cadet training is to produce better citizens through air-age education. The Royal Canadian Air Force works jointly with the League and provides training personnel, syllabi and equipment.

During the war, the Royal Canadian Air Cadets reached a peak enrolment of 30,000. The peacetime strength is currently being increased from 15,000 to 22,500. The enrolled strength in June, 1953 was approximately 18,200 cadets in 240 squadrons.

THE CANADIAN SERVICES COLLEGES

Royal Military College of Canada, Kingston, Ont.

Royal Roads, Royal Roads, B.C.

Le Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean, Saint-Jean, Que.

The Royal Military College of Canada was founded in 1876 at Kingston, Ont. Royal Roads was established in 1941 near Victoria, B.C., as a school for naval officers. In September, 1948, both Colleges were constituted as the Canadian Services Colleges to provide a joint educational and training program for the three Armed Forces of Canada. Le Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean was opened in 1952 at Saint-Jean, Quebec, as the third member of the Canadian Services Colleges.

The purpose of the Canadian Services Colleges is to instruct cadets in appropriate skills and to encourage the qualities essential to continued development after graduation as officers in the Regular or Reserve Forces of the Royal Canadian Navy, Canadian Army, or the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Courses of instruction are designed to develop character, to provide a balanced and liberal education in Arts and Sciences, and to provide a broad basic military education. The tri-service program at Royal Military College, Royal Roads and Le Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean recognizes the fundamental qualities common to the training of officers whether for the Navy, Army, or Air Force, and thereby, seeks to weld a common understanding in matters of national defence.

On entry into one of the Canadian Services Colleges, applicants are enrolled as Regular or Reserve Force subordinate officers in the Armed Force of their selection. On graduation from the four year course, subordinate officers are promoted to Commissioned rank.

Candidates must have reached their 16th, but not their 21st, birthday on the first day of January preceding entrance with the exception of candidates for Le Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean who must have reached their 16th, but not their 20th, birthday on the first day of January preceding entrance.

CANADIAN FLAGS AND BADGESFLAG OF GOVERNOR GENERAL

In 1930 His Late Majesty King George V approved the design of a Flag for the Governor General of Canada which would be symbolic of the position of the Governor General as the Sovereign's personal representative. The Flag so approved is of the following description:

"On a blue field, the Royal Crest,—the Imperial Crown proper, thereon a lion statant-guardant or, "erowned proper—subscribed 'CANADA' in black on a yellow scroll."

THE UNION JACK

Is the Flag to be flown by British subjects on land and may be flown in all Her Majesty's realms. With the shield of the Provincial coat of arms it is the official flag of the Lieutenant-Governor of that province. The Union Jack may be flown on selected forts, armories, drill halls and other buildings occupied by the Canadian Army in Canada. (Refer also to paragraph "The Canadian Red Ensign").

THE CANADIAN RED ENSIGN

With the Shield of the Arms of the Dominion of Canada in the fly, was authorized by Admiralty Warrant of the 2nd February, 1892, to be used on board Canadian registered merchant vessels. Following the authorization of a new Coat of Arms for the Dominion of Canada in 1921, it was provided by Order in Council (P.C. 843, 26th April, 1922) that the Shield of the Arms of Canada appearing on the fly of the Canadian Red Ensign should be the Shield of the new Canadian Coat of Arms. In 1934, by Chapter 89 (1) of the Shipping Act, Chapter 44, Statutes of Canada, 1934, statutory provision was made for the flying of the Canadian Red Ensign on ships of Canadian registry.

The Canadian Red Ensign will normally be used by the Canadian Army when stationed outside of Canada and may be flown at the discretion of the officer commanding a command on selected forts, armories, drill halls and other buildings occupied by the Canadian Army in Canada.

The Canadian Red Ensign as a National Flag

By Order in Council (P.C. 134, 26th January, 1924) the display of the Canadian Red Ensign was authorized from "all buildings owned or occupied by the Canadian Government and situated without Canada."

On Sept. 5, 1945, Order in Council P.C. 5888 was issued as follows:

"That, until such time as action is taken by Parliament for the formal adoption of a national flag, it is desirable to authorize the flying of the Canadian Red Ensign on Federal government buildings within as well as without Canada, and to remove any doubt as to the propriety of flying the Canadian Red Ensign wherever place or occasion may make it desirable to fly a distinctive Canadian flag;

Therefore, His Excellency the Governor General in Council, on the recommendation of the Prime Minister, is pleased to order and doth hereby order that the Red Ensign with the shield of the Coat of Arms of Canada in the fly (hereinafter referred to as "the Canadian Red Ensign") may be flown from buildings owned or occupied by the Federal government within and without Canada.

His Excellency in Council, on the same recommendation, is further pleased to declare and doth hereby declare that it shall be appropriate to fly the Canadian Red Ensign within and without Canada wherever place or occasion may make it desirable to fly a distinctive Canadian flag.

Nothing herein shall be deemed to alter in any way the provisions now in force with respect to the flying of the Blue Ensign with the shield of the Coat of Arms of Canada in the fly on Canadian Naval vessels and other government vessels, nor with respect to the flying of the Canadian Red Ensign on Canadian Merchant vessels."

THE CANADIAN BLUE ENSIGN

With the Shield of the Arms of the Dominion of Canada in the fly, is used on the Jack staff of all ships and vessels of the Royal Canadian Navy and has also been adopted as the official flag for vessels in the Canadian Government Service. Ships operated by provincial government departments, ships and yachts attached to Royal Yacht Clubs in Canada, and merchant ships carrying a specified number of naval reservists as part crew, may wear the Canadian Blue Ensign on authority of a Warrant to do so, issued by the Minister of National Defence.

WHITE ENSIGN

Under agreements made between the Canadian Government and the Government of the United Kingdom at the Imperial Conference 1911, Ships of War of the Dominion of Canada hoist at the stern the White Ensign as a symbol of the authority of the Crown.

NAVAL BOARD FLAG

In 1943, approval was given to a flag to be flown by the Naval Board of Canada. The design is: The Admiralty anchor in gold in the centre of the flag, on red and blue, bisected diagonally with the blue portion nearest the staff, and the red portion uppermost. The flag may be flown both day and night from Naval Headquarters and shall be flown both day and night in H.M.C. ships and establishments when (i) two or more members are present in their official capacities, or (ii) His Excellency The Governor General of Canada is embarked.

This flag, if flown at Naval Headquarters, shall only be struck at Naval Headquarters when the Board as a whole is absent.

R.C.A.F. ENSIGN

This was approved by King George VI, July 5, 1940. The flag is light blue. In the upper quarter next to the flagstaff the Union Jack and in the centre of the fly two roundels, white upon dark blue, and upon the centre of the white roundel a red maple leaf. Royal Canadian Air Force Orders provide that the Royal Canadian Air Force Ensign is to be flown daily at all Royal Canadian Air Force formations, units and detachments.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN NAVAL BADGE

It consists of an oval-shaped shield of deep blue upon which is a fouled anchor in gold. The shield is encircled by a wreath of ten golden maple leaves, five on each side, and is surmounted by the Royal Crown.

THE CANADIAN ARMY BADGE

A new badge for the Canadian Army was approved in 1947 by King George VI. This badge is for the use of the Canadian Army as a whole and will replace the present Coat of Arms on army stationery, publications, etc. The following is a description of the approved design: It consists of two crossed crusader's swords with points upward, blades and grips in natural colours and guards and pommels in gold upon which are three red hard maple leaves joined on one stem. Above, is the Royal Crown properly coloured.

THE R.C.A.F. BADGE

This was approved by King George VI in February, 1943. The official description of the badge is: within a dark blue circular band edged with gold and inscribed in gold the motto "PER ARDUA AD ASTRA," a light blue roundel. In front of the whole a gold eagle flying forward with head lowered and to its left with wings extended beyond the circular band. Beneath, a dark blue riband edged gold and inscribed in gold with the words "ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE." The whole is surmounted with the Royal Crown.

NOVA SCOTIA FLAG

The official flag of the province of Nova Scotia is the blue cross of St. Andrew on a white field, with the Royal Lion mounted thereon. The flag was originally authorized by Charles I in 1625. In 1929, on petition of Nova Scotia, a Royal Warrant of King George V was issued, revoking the modern Arms and ordering that the original Arms granted by King Charles I be borne upon shields, banners and otherwise according to the laws of Arms. Since that time, the Nova Scotia Flag has been in continual use.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC FLAG

The official flag of the Province of Quebec was adopted by Order-in-Council No. 72 on January 1st, 1948. The flag thus adopted is generally known as the "fleurdelisé" flag. It is a white cross on a sky blue ground, with the fleur-de-lis in an upright position on the blue ground in each of the four corners of the flag.

ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE

Honorary Commissioner, HER MAJESTY QUEEN ELIZABETH II

In 1873 the North West Mounted Police was constituted (36 Vic. Chap. 35) to provide Police protection in the unsettled portions of the North West. In 1904 the title "Royal" was given to the Force. In 1920 the Dominion Police was amalgamated with this Force and the name changed to "Royal Canadian Mounted Police." The headquarters was moved from Regina to Ottawa and the Force may now be called upon to perform duties in any portion of the Dominion. In 1928 the Royal Canadian Mounted Police absorbed the Saskatchewan Provincial Police and in 1932 the Provincial Police Forces of Alberta, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island were absorbed in like manner. During the year 1932, the Force also assumed the administration of the Preventive Service Branch of the Department of National Revenue. On August 1, 1950, the duties of the Newfoundland Rangers and certain members of the Newfoundland Constabulary were taken over by the R.C.M.P., and on the 15th of the same month the British Columbia Provincial Police were similarly absorbed. These arrangements were made by agreements between the respective Provincial Governments concerned and the Federal Government. The term of engagement in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police is five years. Recruits are trained at Regina, Saskatchewan, Rockcliffe (near Ottawa), Ontario, and "Fairmont", Vancouver, B.C. At a recent date the Force had 157 horses, 14 Police Service dogs, 227 Sleigh dogs, 1,040 cars, 8 aeroplanes, and 61 ships and boats. The strength, including civilian clerks and reserves, was 5,800.
