Technical and Bibliographic Notes/Notes techniques et bibliographiques

The Institute has attempted to obtain the best original copy available for filming. Features of this copy which may be bibliographically unique, which may alter any of the images in the reproduction, or which may significantly change the usual method of filming, are checked below.

L'Institut a microfilmé le meilleur exemplaire qu'il lui a été possible de se procurer. Les détails de cet exemplaire qui sont peut-être uniques du point de vue bibliographique, qui peuvent modifier une image reproduite, ou qui peuvent exiger une modification dans la méthode normale de filmage sont indiqués ci-dessous.

The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

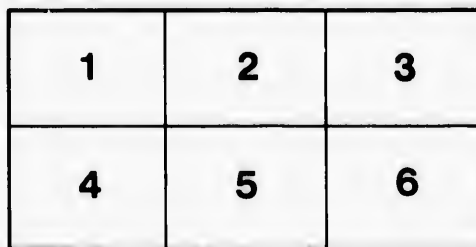

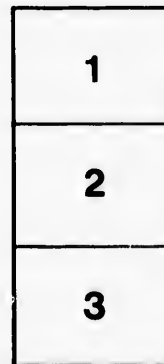

Library of the Public
Archives of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol \rightarrow (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ∇ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

La bibliothèque des Archives
publiques du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole \rightarrow signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ∇ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

SAINT JOHN:

PRINTED AND SOLD BY HENRY CHUBB, MARKET-SQUARE.

ECLIPSES IN THE YEAR 1827.

THERE will be four Eclipses in the Year 1827: Two of the Sun and two of the Moon, in the following order—

1st. The first will be of the Sun, on the evening of the 25th of April, at 10 hours 38 min. δ 's lat. $51\frac{1}{2}$ min. north; the Sun will be centrally eclipsed on the meridian at 11 hours 16 min. in long. 125 deg. east, and lat. 87 deg. 31 min. north.

2d. The second will be of the Moon, on the morning of the 11th of May, partial and visible as follows:

Beginning at 2 hours 23 minutes. Middle 3 hours 56 min.

Ecliptic Opposition δ 4 hours 1 minute.

Moon sets 4 hours 55 minutes.

End of the Eclipse, 5 hours 29 minutes.

Digits Eclipsed, 11 five-sixth on the Moon's southern limb, or from the north side of the Earth's shadow.

3d. The third will be of the Sun on the 20th of October—the conjunction will take place in the morning at 11 hours 23 minutes, in long. 6 signs 26 deg. $28\frac{1}{2}$ min.—Moon's lat. $48\frac{1}{2}$ min. south; the Sun will be centrally eclipsed on the meridian at 11 hours 57 min. A. M. in long. 65 deg. 14 min. west, and lat. 69 deg. 40 min. south.

4th. The fourth and last will be of the Moon on the morning and evening of the 3d November—the Opposition δ will take place at 55 minutes in the afternoon, consequently invisible. This Eclipse will be visible to every part of Great-Britain and Europe; the obscuration will be about $10\frac{1}{2}$ digits from the Moon's northern limb.

δ Venus will be Morning Star until the 7th of October, from that time Evening Star throughout the year.

SIGNALS made at Partridge Island, on the approach of Vessels to this Harbour.

- One Ball close, for one square rigged vessel,
- One Ball half hoisted, for two ditto,
- Two Balls close, for three ditto,
- Two Balls separated, for four ditto,
- A pendant of any colour for five ditto,
- A do. under a Ball, for six ditto,
- A do. over a Ball half hoisted for seven ditto,
- A do. under two Balls close, for eight ditto,
- A do. between two Balls separate for nine, ditto.
- A flag of any colour, for ten or more ditto.

[The above are hoisted at the East or West yard arm, according to the quarter the vessels first appear in, with the addition of a Ball at the centre of the yard until the Rig of the vessels can be made out, when one or more of the following descriptive colours will be hoisted at the mast head :]

An Union Jack for a Flag Ship, with or without a squadron.

Do. with a red pendant over, for a two decker.

Do. with a blue pendant over, for a Frigate.

Do. with a white ditto ditto, for a small armed vessel.

A blue pendant, for a Merchant ship.

A red pendant, for a Merchant brig.

A white pendant, for a topsail schooner or sloop.

A flag blue and white horizontally, a neutral fleet.

A pendant white and blue, a neutral man of war.

A blue flag, a neutral merchant ship.

A flag, red, white and blue, an enemy's fleet.

A pendant, red, white and blue, an enemy's man of war.

A red flag, an enemy's merchant vessel.

An Union Jack, over Neutral or Enemy's signals, the vessel is detained, or a prize.

A white flag over any signal, vessel bears a flag of truce.

A red flag pierced white, for the Digby packet.

A ball at the mast-head, vessel is on shore, or in distress ;—

 Should immediate aid be necessary, guns to be fired.

In thick weather, a gun will be fired at Partridge Island, in answer to each gun heard at sea.—When a vessel requires a pilot, her descriptive pendant will be shewn at a yard arm, instead of the ball.

FARMERS' CALENDAR,

From an AMERICAN ALMANACK, for the Year 1827.

JANUARY.—Sisters and Brethren of the Household of Agriculture, let me give you glad greeting, and wish joy to your homes, on the return of another New-Year. Peace, innocence, health, happiness, gratitude, be yours, during its progress. Abundant crops crown your labours. Contentment sweeten all your enjoyments. Charity spread wide your hands in succour to the destitute. Benevolence urge you to interpret the deeds and words of others as favourably as you can; forbidding you at all times, and in the most doubtful cases, to put the worst constructions on any one's conduct; and teaching you the forgiveness of injuries and enemies, as you yourselves would hope to be forgiven. Love expand your hearts to the embracement of the whole human family. And devotion lift them up, in awe, humility, and grateful adoration, to the Great Father of all, the Mightiest, the Wisest, the Best, whose bounty, mercy, and love, shower plenty and joy throughout the universe.—His goodness may you experience in life, his mercy in death, and his boundless, universal love in that brighter and better world, where felicity will be as perfect as it will be endless.

Hark! the cattle have risen from their "recumbent posture," and seem to hint that their fodder is not where it should be, and that the good men and alert lads are somehow where they ought not so long to be—in the house and in bed, instead of in the barn, distributing the morning meal to their horney and hairy and hay eating family.

FEBRUARY.—'A calendar, a calendar! look in the almanac; find out moon shine, find out moon-shine.' Search too for portents and prodigies. "When these prodigies do so conjointly meet, let not men say, These are their reasons,—They are natural; For, I believe, they are portentous things, Unto the climate that they point upon."

"The 17th of Februar (1598) the king (James 6th) being in the great kirk (i. e. Saint Giles) of Edinburgh at the ceremone, Mr. Patrick Galloway red out likit the forme or maneer of the divisione of the foure kirkis of Edin. ane quarter of the tonne to every kirke. The said 17th Februar, betwixt 9 10 in the morning, ane grate darknes be reasone of eclipses, sick ane darknes hes net beine sene, for the hail pepell within Edin. yat knew what it was, yat it had beine duimsday. Merchantis and otheris yat war ignorant, stekit ther buit doris, and ren to the kirke to praie, as gif it had beine the last day."—Birrel's Dairy, p. 45.

The superstition of the ancients in regard to eclipses, was carried to an excess almost surpassing belief. Philosophical treatises were written to show against what regions the malevolent effects of any particular eclipse were aimed; and the writers affirmed, that the effects of an eclipse of the sun, continued as many years as the eclipse lasted hours; and those of that of the moon as many months.—In 1133, on the 2d of Aug. there was a terrible eclipse of the sun, during which the stars were seen—and the awful consequence was a schism in the church, three Popes at once, assuming each, to be the legitimate successor of Saint Peter. The great solar eclipse in 1801 made a most melancholy and baneful change in the seasons, if we may believe the fanciful family of the croakers.

Don't keep your cattle constantly on salted fodder; they will tire of it. Give your forward cows good hay and occasionally some potatoes.

MARCH.—Every farmer should mind his p's and q's in these times, which try men's purses and prudence; he should neglect neither his vespers, nor his vigils, nor his matins; business should, at times and seasons all, be his primum mobile: his motto should be semper paratus; when his affairs demand instant attention, delay should not be permitted to obtrude his ungainly, burly bulk into his company; when his interest and duty both unite, and lie plain and straight before him, he should never say, as Peregrine Pickle, when over hazy, was wont to do—"I have my doubts"—though it was natural enough in Pere, for when Sir Richard, the skilful bowler, had given him a fit of the ninpins, and he was tumbling and rolling about in all the dignity of dirt, he might well be troubled with doubts of his own identity. Yes; every farmer should possess as much decision of character as our American traveller Ledyard, who surprised the official person that asked him how soon he could be ready to set off for the interior of Africa, by replying promptly and firmly, "To-Morrow." Every farmer's wife, too, should cheerfully bear her share in the heat and burden of the day, and beautifully carry her yoke evenly with her yoke fellow. Neither gadding nor gossiping ought to lead her to forget the high duties of her calling. When the one or the other lures her astray, we would accost her, as Homer tells us Hector, the hero of Troy, did his wife Andromache—"Go home, and mind your own business. Follow your spinning, and keep you maids to their work." Their Penny of observation should go to the purchase of experience. Every merchant should be a fair, yet cautious dealer. Every parson should have at least as anxious a solicitude for the flock as for the fleece. Every doctor should avoid making unconscionable bills, and holding our false hopes to patients who can never recover.

If not done in the fall, now dress your grass grounds with some well rotted manure. Two loads in the fall are as good as three in the spring; but even now it is not too late to secure a good crop.

APRIL.—"When first the tender blades of grass appear,
And buds, that yet the breath of Euras fear, Stand at the door of life, and ask to clothe the year;"

The farmer ought to get his implements of husbandry in readiness for the duties of the busy season. His summer fuel must be cut, and his wood-house filled. It is also high time for him to house his sleigh, sled, and all his matters and things that appertain to stern winter's surly reign, till the next return of earth's whiteness. Safe bind, safe find, is the word. Examine the condition of your bees. Attend to your fences and stone walls. Give them all a thorough repair as speedily as the frost will allow. Whatever kinds of fencing materials are the cheapest and most plentiful, will be also the most generally used. But stone walls are unquestionably the best kinds of fence. Let a fence, however, be made of whatever materials it may, it ought always to be well and properly built. Never try to build a fence by any slight of hand tricks, hocus, pocus, or black art. To conjure up a good and substantial fence out of a few pieces of rotten sticks, and oppose it as a barrier to breachy cattle, is a notable undertaking, at which some persons have a mighty fine knack.—Such ingenuity deserves the reward of sitting down at the first table of the Bernicide's feast, in the eastern tale, and banqueting with him and Shacabac on their invisible dainties. These patent congru-ation fences are excellent horn books to teach cattle the a, b, c, of unruliness, and the abs of jumping over, or shoven down, all opposition; like some of our more sturdy politicians, when fully bent on caraying a point.—Some begin with a weak fence, perhaps three rails high.—When their cattle have learned to leap over or throw down this, they add another rail, and now and then a stake or a prop. Even all this the tractable animals soon learn to make nothing of.

Whatever kinds of

MAY.—“Promising is the very air o'er the time: it opens the eyes of expectation: performance is ever the duller for his act; and, but in the plain-er and simpler kind of people, the deed of saying is quite out of use. To promise is most courtly and fashionable: performance is a kind of will or testament, which argues a great sickness in his judgement that makes it.”
Ay, promises are a crop much cultivated in the knowing fields of this every-one-be-sharp world of ours, and they are as plenty as blackberries will be by and by, but though, like compliments, they cost nothing, and are easily raised from the most unpromising soil of cool heads and colder hearts, yet they are a very unprofitable crop, seldom going for more than they are worth; the vender may plume himself on his knack at bargaining, when the vendee pockets his purchase, and smilingly trips away; but the imposee may often discover the article to be damnified, and, with a different show of con-tenance, may happily turn it upon the imposer's hands: then will there be accusation, velitation, litigation; and the planter in these fields will find to his cost, that of raising many promises there is no end, and that much fib-bing is a weariness of the flesh.—The promising voice of the people is most wofully misnomered vox Dei!—Never depend too much on promises or ver-balisms, in the transaction of business. Ink in such cases is preferable to wind. If it is proposed to you to make a wordy agreement, exclaim, as Napoleon was wont frequently to do, “bah!” words are wind, let us have it in black and white, according to the precise understanding of the thing, and “reduced to a demonstration,” so as to elout effectually the harpy tal-ions of the law; otherwise, in a day or two hence, we may ‘have our doubts.’”
Attend to potatoes, peas, beans, cucumbers, corn, oats and barley. Set early cabbages, and don't forget turnips. Planting time is here: no spots on the sun—no cooling eclipses—and corn will do nicely—with good hoeing. Soak the seed in copperas water, for about forty-eight hours, putting an ounce or more to every quart of the seed soaked.

JUNE.—“A man may see how this world goes with no eyes. Look with thine ears: see how yon justice rails upon yon simple thief. Hark, in thine ear: change places; and handy dandy, which is the justice, which is the thief?—Thou hast seen a farmer’s dog bark at a beggar? and the creature run from the cur? There thou might’st behold the great image of authority: a dog’s obey’d in office.—The usurer hangs the cozener. Through tattered clothes small vices do appear; robes and furred gowns hide all. Plate sin with gold, and the strong lance of justice hurtless breaks: arm it in rags, a pigmy’s straw doth pierce it. Get thee glass eyes if thou art blind, and seem to see things thou dost not, as many a scurvy politician oft will do.”—If one method of treating seed corn, in order to its preservation from worms, birds, &c. be found not to succeed well, some other of the various modes ought to be tried. One way of protecting it against the assaults of these marauders, is, to soak it in water, then roll it in sulphur, and plant it immediately: sulphur is of itself a manure, but by no means so efficacious for maize as plaster: it should always, therefore, after being soaked some hours, be rolled in plaster before planting. The effect of this application on the growing crop is very great indeed.—Remember that the largest and best seed-potatoes will produce the largest and best crops.—Break off the most thrifty shoots of your seed-cabbage-stumps, and set these shoots out as you do plants; they will produce very early and large cabbages: break them from the stumps, not cut them, as the broken fibrous parts will the more readily form roots. Don’t plant your corn too deep, for deep planting deprives it of much of the influence of the sun and atmosphere, and exposes it to a weight of cold earth that contains little vegetable food, and that becomes so baked by the sun as to keep the feeble plant from starting to the surface. Water young plants in the evening. Weed flax. Weed your gardens thoroughly.

JULY.—If you intend to thrive, ’tis now time that you were all alive; no hermitizing sure will do, when you’ve much business to go through; where corn and grass start full in view, and ask a brisk and jovial crew, to treat them as injustice due, you must not sit and ruminate beneath the sycamore, or prate about what you have seen or done, for haying now should be begun. So, to it, boys, with sithe and rake, and let the best precedence take the leaders of the fragrant field, to whom the rest are bound to yield. Before the sun has risen, rise, and to your mowing hie, for thus they work it who are wise, and from their slumbers fly. It will be the best way in the cool of the day to husband your strength; and then, when at length the sun’s scorching rays set you all in a blaze, you can relax from your toil, and repose you awhile, beneath the dark sycamore, which we told of before, till the heat shall diminish, when the day’s work you may finish. But shun cold water’s deadly chill, though thirst is urging you to swill, if you don’t wish yourself to kill; and let not run too freely flow, and set your gizzard in a glow, lest you become unskilled to mow, or get too hazy e’en to go.

So said Alexander the great. But all seek pleasure in one mode or another, and fancy they obtain it, while few look for contentment, or, if they do, ever think they find it. All, then, should be in action, since they wish for pleasure. To action, too, should all resort, if they wish for health, without which no pleasure can be enjoyed. Exercise is the true elixir of life, so long sought for in vain by the ancient alchemists, while sweating at midnight over their crucibles, and watching the birth of the grand arcanum. The Persian physician was well aware of this, who ordered a hollow battle-door to be made, in which he enclosed his medicines, and requested his king, on whom luxury and indolence had fastened a complication of disorders, to play daily with the instrument at shuttlecock.—Hear what the famous German doctor Siegfried Schroeder Schoenderbrohgendostruger, says to this very point, in the 999th page of the 222d fol. vol. of his immortal work, entitled, “Ich Den Eifrigen Lehrer Der Wahrheit Beit Der Froh Die Hand,” or, Physic brought home to every one's business and bosom; the idea is no less grand than original.—“Keep no more cats than will catch mice; if you do, my word for it, you will have a sickly house, overrun, not only with the mice aforesaid, but, what is much more to the purpose, with as many powders, and drops, and pills, and boluses, and nostrums, as if pomp itself had determined to listen to poor king Lear, and take physic in earnest. No; and if they won't rat it nor mouse it, I would join issue with my brother San-grago of Spain, and prescribe warm water, till the house became too hot to hold them.” Perhaps, had this celebrated Æsculapius lived in our day, when steam is applied to so many and various uses, he might have ordered them to be got steamy, and then sent packing.

Dig ripe potatoes, and such as have dead vines. Inoculate fruit trees. Pull flax.—Drain marshes. Be not too fond of finery.

SEPTEMBER.—“Cassius is a-weary of the world!” cries Peter Piper; “ay? why so, Cassius?” questions uncle Rubby, “becayse I've nothing to wet my whistle, and 'tis pugnacious hard work to beat Nicky's tattoo along these dusty by-paths, with not a tester in one's pouch; I'm every moment ready to exclaim, somewhat in king Richard the hunchback's despairing note, my kingdom for a—dram!—Archimedes or Pythagoras was a pinguidacious dolt to horrah, and cry eureka, only for having, like a simple school-boy, figured out a sorry problem; had it been a tose of whiskey that he had clutched, he had had reason to cry, “I have found it.” And I submit it to the great belligerents of Congress, whether gin, whiskey, brandy, and porter ought not to be considered articles contraband of war, and may not be lawfully seized as such on the grand highway to the several territories of the high contending powers; and whether such matters and things ought not specially to be reserved for the aid, comfort, and sustentation of us, the busy yeomanry, who are plodding our weary way on the neutral ground of our own fields and forests, peaceful and temperate as cows on a common, or geese on a green.—I, one of the sovereign people, want whiskey, and will have it, peacefully if I can, forcibly if I must.” “Here, take this fourpence,” says Rubby; “cease your rant and cant, get your morning, and guzzle it; and then away to the forest to felling the trees."—Mix straw, in layers, with green or new-cut clover, grass, or corn stalks.

Gather corn-stalks. Get off the flax-seed. Put the cider-mill in order for making good Old Orchard, the true yanky whiskey. Gather the apples as they fall. Sow winter grain, if not done already. Don't let the pigs go to digging your potatoes, nor the hens, hawks, and squirrels to shelling the corn, nor the cattle to picking the apples, as they are bad workmen, and apt to do the business in a slovenly way. Spread out flax to rot. Gather your white beans. Pull seed hemp, and secure it in your barns.

OCTOBER.—Many evils are in the world, and if they cannot be cured, they must be endured. The king's evil we have all heard of, if we have neither seen it, nor suffered it. And kings themselves are great evils; but with them we have not been much troubled in our happy country, in these latter days.—Anciently, kings became quacks, and as they claimed their sceptres by divine right, they assumed the divine right also of curing the king's evil, and other disorders, which the cowardice, ignorance, and superstition that could servilely submit to their pride and tyranny, were not at all disposed to call in question. But enough of kings—monarchs and courts are all the same, from Macedonia's madman to the Swede, from a German duke's to a Russian tzar's—they are all quackery. Another evil is the queen's evil, a disorder to which many of the fair sex are often subject. It generally arises from a too frequent use of the snuff box, the pipe, the tobacco-box, the aqua vitae bottle, and the Waverley novels; and manifests itself in an utter aversion to cold water, ivory combs, soap-suds, close caps, cropped tresses, and short nails. The most probable mode of effecting a cure is, to substitute lavender for the snuff-box, wormwood for the pipe, sweet flag for the tobacco box, spruce beer and diet drink for the aqua-vitae, and the Bible for Waverley. And during this gradual change in the routine of enjoyments, the patient should be cajoled to frequent use of the cold bath, as every thing depends on ablutions and absterstions' being performed with mussulman exactitude; while soap and sand, the comb, the scissors, and the flesh-brush, should be daily resorted to, in aid of the great work of subduing this hydra evil. One more for the present, and we will forbear, for we dearly love the last best gift of Heaven to man, when we behold them neat, thrifty, cheerful, and unloquacious. Our beloved friends are sometimes attacked, like ourselves, with the cacoethes loquendi, after the manner of poor Xantippe of old, and when the fit is on them their loveliness is all eclipsed.

NOVEMBER.—"Count de Bussy," says the English reviewer of his memoirs, "lent a manuscript to a lady, who was then in a convent, and whom he thought one of his best friends, for four-and-twenty hours." Now, 'truth will often mock grammar, and it does so here. In 1663, the best friendships, we may suspect, lasted even 24 hours, especially when formed between a courtier, and a lady who was an inmate of a convent. But is it possible friendship in any age, ever existed so long? Nowadays, such a circumstance appears quite incredible. In these modern times, friendship is remarkably longlived; if, with the kindest nursing, it survive the period devoted to dining at a fashionable dinner-party. Like Jonah's gourd, it grows in a night, and lies in a night. A gentleman went to congratulate a friend on his gaining some preferment. The friend, puffed up with his promotion, pretended he did not know who the gentleman was. Not in the least disconcerted at so strange a reception, he changed his tone, and said, 'I am come to condole with you upon the great misfortune that has befallen you:—yours is, indeed a desperate case: you are so completely deaf and blind as not to know your old friends!'—Sovereign remedies: For the gout, to and water; whooping cough, ipecacuanha; bile, exercise; corns, easy shoes; les vapeurs noirs, blue ruin; rheumatism, new flannel and patience; tooth-ache, pluck it out;

debt, oxalic acid; love, matrimony; scolding wife, smoking; closefistedness, plenty of aqua-vitæ. But we have done, or we shall enlighten the world as much as Dr. Radcliffe said he would do, who used to threaten some of his brethren of the faculty, that he would leave the whole mystery of physic behind him, written on half a sheet of paper.—Dig carrots, beets, turnips, parsnips, cabbages, &c. early in the month, if not done the last of October.—
Make bees under shelter. Carry celery into the cellar. Finish ploughing before the ground gets too hard.

MEMBER.—Innocent mirth, gayety, and recreation, are surely not criminal. Pastime and amusement, at suitable seasons, and not unduly extended, are proper, and even necessary; for youth. Nor ought any age to be entirely excluded from an occasional and rational participation in them.
Relaxations of toil, and unbendings of the mind from study, serve to reinvigorate and reanimate the corporeal and mental powers, and give them new energy and ardour for the renewal of their labours. They conduce to health, to cheerfulness, and to philanthropy; and inattention to health bears near affinity to the crime of suicide, and a want of cheerfulness, or of philanthropy, is forbidden by the Founder of the Christian Faith. Let not then the croakings of moroseness and of beetle-browed bigotry frighten you into dumb, smileless melancholy, or drive you only to grin horribly a ghastsmile once a month, and be obliged to mourn for the unnatural exhibition for a month to come, as if it were the unpardonable sin.—The gravest beast is an ass; the gravest bird is an owl; the gravest fish is an oyster; and the gravest man is a fool. But don't, while engaged in your sleighrides, or seeking pleasure in any other mode, do not fly to strong liquors as a means of promoting cheerfulness. Do not let the Dalilah Rum lure you too often to her fiery embraces, and while she lulls you to sleep in her lap, shear close your locks of reason, depriving you of both bodily and mental strength; least, when you go helplessly from her dalliance, every stick, and stone, and straw on your path should prove a Philistine in the way.—FAREWELL.

To observe an Eclipse of the Sun, without injury to the Eye.

Take a burning glass, or spectacle glass, that magnifies very much; hold it before a book or pasteboard, twice the distance of its focus, and you will see the round body of the sun, and the manner in which the moon passes between the glass and the sun, during the whole eclipse.
