Kootenai National Forest

A Tree For The Nation's Capitol

by Jeanne Spooner, Public Affairs Specialist

On December 13, 1989, the Capitol Christmas Tree, a 61-foot Engelmann spruce from the Kootenai National Forest, was lit on the west lawn of the Capitol Building in Washington, D.C.

The lighting by Speaker of the House Thomas Foley, culminated an effort begun in 1987 when the Kootenai was selected to provide the Capitol Tree. The basis for selection was to honor Montana's Centennial year and the Christmas tree industry of Northwestern Montana.

Although the Capitol Christmas Tree is provided by a national forest each year, there are no federal funds involved. Forests that receive the honor must get funds for cutting, transportation and site erection through public participation and donations. Besides providing the Capitol Tree, the Forest also provides about 25 smaller trees for various offices and buildings in Washington, D.C., such as the Supreme Court, Secretary of Agriculture, Chief of the Forest Service, Senators, etc. The people in Lincoln and western Sanders counties were most helpful in getting donations, and providing trees and support to the Kootenai NF for this endeavor. The Custer NF provided trees for the Supreme Court and the Senate Private Dining Room in honor of North Dakota's centennial.

Each year in June the Capitol architect, Paul Pincus, travels to the Forest which is to provide the Capitol Tree and selects his top choices from among several trees offered by that Forest.

The Kootenai became the center of media attention November 18 during the tree cutting ceremony near Libby when the selected tree broke as it fell. This "disaster" made headlines nationwide! A second selected tree, less than two miles away was then easily cut and transported to Washington, D.C.

Agreement Reached on the Yaak

Successful negotiations between an environmental group and the Forest Service has resulted in modification of an injunction to allow timber sales in the Upper Yaak area of the Kootenai NF.

The injunction was ordered May 1, 1988, as a result of a lawsuit filed by the Protect the Yaak Committee. The court ruled that the Forest Service had violated federal law by not giving sufficient consideration to the environmental consequences of its timber harvesting and road construction plans.

While the Forest was working on an FEIS for proposed harvesting in the area, Congress attempted to ease the timber supply crunch in the Yaak area with special legislation directing the harvest of lodgepole pine. The legislation also called for 60 days of negotiations aimed at producing an agreement on resuming timber harvest, pending completion of the FEIS.

On December 21, just one day before the 60-day period of negotiations was to million board feet of timber, allowing the harvest of lodgepole pine which is dead or threatened by the mountain pine beetle.

More than half of the 748 acres involved would be selectively harvested for lodgepole trees only; sales would comply with standards from the Kootenai NF Plan, and will not involve any new road construction.

Vance said, "The most important aspect of this agreement, from our viewpoint, is that we were able to provide a sales package that has the size diversity to meet the needs of small, local mills and contractors who are wholly dependent on the Yaak for their timber supply." He said, "From an environmental perspective the most important part of the package is the lodgepole pine selective cutting, and a caribou habitat rehabilitation prescription being built into some of the sales."

end, an agreement was signed between Don Vance of the Protect the Yaak Committee and Kootenai NF Supervisor Jim Rathbun. The next day the Federal District Court for Montana modified the injunction.

The Forest Service will offer 12 timber sales with a total of approximately 15

A New Look at Wilderness

The Forest Service is launching an impressive new program to provide greater emphasis to wilderness management throughout the Region. The program will begin with changes in the organizational approach at the Regional level, with each program area assuming additional responsibilities for the management of wilderness. This means that wilderness will be the concern of all program areas, rather than just recreation - a total Forest Service responsibility and commitment, giving wilderness management much more emphasis than it's had in the past.

"With more energy and resources focused on wilderness across the board," said Director of Recreation, Wilderness and Lands, John Drake, "we should be able, ultimately, to focus more energy and resources toward on-the-ground wilderness management and thus help Forests meet their Forest Plan objectives." "That's the real purpose of this effort," he said. "We need to recognize wilderness as an important resource and manage it as such.

"The entire Regional Leadership Team is involved in and supporting this effort," said Regional Forester John Mumma. All 12 directors on the RLT are members of a new "Wilderness Council," headed up by Deputy Regional Forester John Hughes.

"The attitude of wilderness 'taking care of itself' has prevailed too long," said Hughes. "There is a lot more that should be considered in wilderness management than we have done in the past. This effort is similar to the Recreation Initiative," he said. "It could be called the Region One Wilderness Initiative."

A coordinator will be assigned to work full-time on wilderness management for the Region, rather than only 25% as in the past. This person will work with the council, staff groups, Forests, and outside agencies and organizations.

"We will be working with each of the Forests on this," said Drake. "The council will set overall policy, develop a charter, and coordinate on a Regional basis, but we'll need help and input from each staff group and Forest as we move forward in this effort."

Watch for more details about this new emphasis on wilderness in coming issues of the NRN.

Chief Applauds The Northern Region

On December 6, 1989, the extra effort Region One has put into resolving appeals was recognized in an award signed by Chief Robertson, and presented to Randy Phillips, Regional Appeals Coordinator.

The award recognizes all of those in the Region who have worked to resolve appeals by stating that the Northern Region had done an outstanding effort at rendering appeal decision on new appeals filed, and in abolishing the backlog of appeals pending at the beginning of the year.

Representatives from the Flathead and Kootenai Forests, as well as appeal coordinators from Regional Office staff units were also in attendance when the award was presented at the Appeals/NEPA Workshop in San Diego.

The Region processed more than 100 appeals in fiscal year 1989, including appeals settled at the Forest level. This represents a significant effort by both the Forests and the Regional Office to complete appeals in the time frame set forth by the new appeal regulations. The average time needed to complete appeals used to be 220 days; with the new regulations the average time is 120 days.

I am also pleased to see the outstanding effort taking place on many Forests to reach an understanding with our interested publics to prevent many appeals, and the efforts to reach negotiated settlements once an appeal is filed.

We are beginning to see a number of successes around the Region and I really appreciate your efforts.

Native American Heritage Week Celebrated

by Kim Crowley, Student Intern, University of Montana

On November 30, 1989 Forest Service employees, Native American tribal members, students from Salish Kootenai College, representatives of Kicking Horse Job Corps, and others, joined together to celebrate Native American Heritage Week, at the Regional Office in Missoula.

Heritage Week is an annual event sponsored by the Forest Service to promote a better understanding of the unique relationship between the agency and Native Americans. The U.S. Government, through treaties and agreements, has a legal and ethical responsibility to American Indians and tribal lands.

John Hughes, deputy regional forester, explained that we need "to gain an understanding and appreciation of the culture, religion, beliefs, and practices of Native Americans. We consider these values to be an important part of the management of the national forests and a part of our mission."

Ira Jones, Regional Native American Program Director, addresses attendees at Native American Heritage Week.

Salish religious leader, Pat Pierre gave the opening prayer at the gathering and then asked the audience how many of them were born in the U.S. When Mr. Pierre saw everyone's hand raised he said, "Everyone of you then is a Native American." He went on to say that American Indians are a very unique and special group of Native Americans, and he stressed how important it is that everyone work together.

Henrietta Mann-Morton, a full-blood Cheyenne from Oklahoma, talked of the importance of diversity in our culture. "We belong to Grandmother Earth, we are one with her and each of us is unique and very important. Each of us has a purpose. That is where we get our cultural diversity."

Other activities of the day included a round dance with the Pistol Creek drummers and singers, Indian tacos for lunch, and a panel of speakers moderated by Ira Jones, Regional Native American Program Director.

Some Forest Service Christmas Projects

Helena National Forest

For the past five years, Helena NF supervisor's office employees have conducted "Project Santa Claus" as a way of helping others during the holiday season. The project has grown over the years. The first year one needy family was adopted and provided with food, clothing and toys for Christmas. This year the employees adopted 15 children who are patients at Shodair Children's Hospital; a physically challenged, elderly lady with no family; and a lady with two teenage sons and two nephews.

Money and goods were gathered from direct donations and by raising money recycling aluminum cans, holding a chili feed and auctioning hand-crafted items.

Especially grateful were the children at Shodair Children's Hospital, who are children who have been abused in some way, many having no reason to believe in Santa. Those employees who had the privilege of playing Santa and his elves for these children received as much happiness as the children.

Trapper Creek Job Corps Center

Spreading the Christmas spirit by caroling has become a tradition with Trapper Creek Job Corps Center. For the 19th year in a row, these students have visited the Regional Office, Lolo NF supervisor's office, Sula Ranger District, and several nursing homes and businesses, singing Christmas carols. Participation is entirely volunteer and on the students' own time.

Regional Office

This year the Recreation, Wilderness and Lands staff group in the R.O. participated in the Salvation Army's Christmas Adopt-a-Family program. The group responded very generously to the program by donating $208 for purchasing toys, clothes and food for a Christmas dinner for the family. Employees Scott Bixler and Carol Maier from RnWL, and Jan Bixler from the Missoula Fire Sciences Lab are commended for organizing the project, buying and wrapping gifts, and delivering them.

The program works this way: the Salvation Army first supplies a questionnaire to the donors asking preference of family size, children's ages, and method of purchase and delivery of gifts. Then, when a family is selected, the Salvation Army provides first names of family members, ages of the children, and clothing sizes so appropriate gifts can be purchased. Anyone interested in adopting a family next Christmas can contact Richard Moraskie of the Salvation Army at 549-0710.

A Helping Hand From Our Partners

Nez Perce and Clearwater National Forests

Travelers of backcountry trails in north-central Idaho may have a more pleasant trip next time, thanks to the efforts of the local chapter of Backcountry Horsemen (BCH). About 114 members volunteered 1,087 hours of work for the Clearwater and Nez Perce NFs in 1989. They built 1 1/2 miles of new trail, improved 5 miles of existing trails, constructed 2 trail bridges, and removed 23 mule loads of metal bridge girders and other debris.

BCH groups promote the responsible use of backcountry areas. Since the North Central Idaho chapter was formed three years ago, it has completed numerous wilderness cleanup, trail construction, and trail maintenance projects for the Forest Service.

Helena National Forest

The Last Chance Backcountry Horsemen have been very active on the Helena NF. They constructed a 15-foot bridge, hitchrails and an unloading ramp in the Elkhorn Mountains of Helena Ranger District last summer. Resource Assistant Chuck Neal said "the Helena District is trying to improve recreation opportunities in the Elkhorn Mountain Range, and this group volunteered to roll up their sleeves and help us." He said their volunteer services are a perfect example of the cooperation resulting from the emphasis on Recreation Strategy and partnerships.

Nez Perce National Forest

Thanks to Grangeville Boy Scout Troop 768, the Fish Creek Meadows cross-country ski trail on the Nez Perce NF has a new bridge. Scouts worked evenings and weekends last October to construct the bridge over a bog, replacing a rotten log corduroy unsuitable for year-round use. Supported by railroad ties, the new 8-foot wide, 75-foot long bridge will provide a safe crossing year-round for skiers, hikers, and mountain bikers. The Scouts' efforts saved the government about $500.

Fenn Ranger Station Gearing up for 50th

Fenn Ranger Station is planning a special celebration for the station's 50th birthday anniversary. The station, an outstanding example of craftsmanship, was built by the Civilian Conservation Corps in the late '30's. The event will take place at the station on June 30, 1990, rather than the originally advertised date of June 28. It's an all-day affair (9:00 - 4:00) with activities planned for the evening as well. Visitors can expect displays, demonstrations of skills seldom seen these days, tours, speakers, keepsakes for sale, and more. T-shirts are for sale now for $8.00.

Anyone who would like to volunteer to help in any way can contact the Nez Perce NF office in Grangeville (208) 983-1950 or Selway Ranger District, Kooskia (208) 926-4258.

A TPIA Winner on the Flathead NF

The General Federation of Womens' Clubs -- Century Chapter was named one of Montana's winners in the Take Pride in America campaign for their tree planting efforts last summer on Hungry Horse District. Their project is eligible for the national award to be announced in the spring of 1990.

SAF to Meet in Bozeman

The Society of American Foresters will hold their annual State meeting for Montana in Bozeman, March 23 and 24, at the GranTree Inn. The theme of the meeting is "Images of Resource Managers: the Public, Professional Interface." The focus for March 23 will be looking at resource managers through the eyes of others; on March 24, conflict resolution will be the primary topic. Anyone may attend, whether or not a member of SAF. For more information contact D.J. Bakken (406) 444-3633.

Employees Honored

by Lorraine Parrish, Public Affairs Specialist

L. to R.: Judy Crowder, Sally Hoskinson, and Donna Sheehy.

For the past few years, Helena NF has recognized a special employee each month for professional excellence, as well as for the positive effect these employees have in the workplace.

Judy Crowder, computer clerk on Helena District, was employee of the month for October, 1989. Judy was selected from a list of 19 nominees for her cheerfulness and willingness to pitch in to help wherever needed.

Sally Hoskinson, resource clerk in the supervisor's office, was selected in November. Though only employed for a few months on the Forest, Sally was chosen because "she is a cheerful, friendly ray of sunshine who is always willing to go the extra mile in helping those around her."

Donna Sheehy, civil engineer in the supervisor's office, was December's honoree. Donna "gives freely of her time and talents to help others, be they co-workers or strangers, with equal compassion and tact."

Congratulations to these three individuals for boosting the quality of work-life on the Helena NF!

Retirements

Ron Hendrickson, regional fire coordinator, retired in December after 30 years with the Forest Service. He worked for Missoula Ranger District and the Lolo NF Supervisor's Office from 1953 to 1973. He was promoted to assistant regional fire coordinator in 1974, and to regional fire coordinator in 1980.

Earl Reinsel, Jr., forest planner in the Regional Office, retired in December after 34 years of Federal service. After a number of field assignments, Reinsel was promoted to district ranger for Kelly Creek District, Clearwater NF. In 1973 he transferred to the planning staff in the Regional Office.

Tom Blunn, district ranger for Pierce District, Clearwater NF, for nearly 20 years, retired December 31 after 31 years of Federal service. Blunn worked on a number of Forests in the early years of his career, including assignments on the Custer, Lolo, Coeur d'Alene, and Colville NFs.

Roger Helms, budget analyst at the Regional Office for the past 6 years, retired in December after 33 years with the Forest Service. He worked on the Kootenai, Flathead, Lewis and Clark, Nez Perce, Helena and Gallatin NFs before moving to the Regional Office as manpower specialist in 1977.

Jim Brotnov, maintenance worker on Selway District, Nez Perce NF, retired December 30 after 25 years of government service. Brotnov was a lookout, packer and trail foreman for Selway District early in his career, then worked for the logging industry for 19 years, and returned to the Forest Service in 1967 as maintenance worker for Cedar Flats Job Corps Center at Kooskia. In 1974 he transferred back to Selway District.

John Smith, forestry technician for Selway District for nearly 18 years, retired in December. Smith had served in many functions on the District, including fire, recreation, and, during the last six years, reforestation. Prior to joining the Forest Service, Smith was self-employed.

Robert Banner, range technician for Sula District on the Bitterroot NF, retired December 30, after working for over 20 years for the Federal government. Banner worked on the Sawtooth NF in Idaho before moving to Sula District in 1969, where he worked primarily in range and recreation.

Norm Davis, soil scientist in the Bitterroot NF supervisor's office, retired December 30, after almost 35 years with the Federal government. He worked for the Soil Conservation Service before transferring to the Forest Service in 1969 as soil scientist at the Regional Office. He transferred to the Bitterroot NF in 1974.

Wilma Finlayson, support services specialist at West Fork District, Bitterroot NF, retired December 30 with nearly 23 years of service to the Federal government. She also had assignments on the Sawtooth and Humboldt NFs. She returned to West Fork District in 1985.

Clarence (Lee) Mattson retired December 30 from his civil engineering technician position in the Bitterroot NF supervisor's office after more than 35 years of Federal service. He began his career on the Targhee NF in Idaho, transferring to the Bitterroot NF in 1953.

Clair (Buck) Varner, forestry technician at West Fork District, retired December 29 with over 29 years of Federal service. Varner began working for the Bitterroot NF in 1960, transferred to Trapper Creek Job Corps Center in 1965, and returned to West Fork District in 1972.

Editorial Policy

The Northern Region News is published by the Northern Region Information Office for employees and retirees. Its purpose is to provide an opportunity for you to share your projects and successes, and to read about others in the Region. As editor, I look forward to receiving your news, and assisting you in sharing your stories.

Following are guidelines for you to follow when submitting stories.

- Articles should feature Forest Service employees and retirees involved in Forest Service activities and projects.

- Articles must be concise and timely. All articles are subject to editing, and may not be used if outdated, inappropriate, or if space does not permit.

- Photos should be black and white, glossy prints; however color prints may be used if contrast and quality is good. If slides are sent, prints will have to be made from them.

- Send articles to D.Riebe:R01A on the Data General if possible.

They can then be transferred directly to the Macintosh computer, on which the Northern Region News is compiled. Hard copies of articles and photographs should be sent to Deanna Riebe, Northern Region Information Office, P.O. Box 7669, Missoula, MT 59807. The public affairs officer on your Forest may want to preview articles before they are sent. If so, please follow that process.

Region Recognizes Black History Month

by Jacqueline Myers, Regional Federal Women's Program Manager

He is known by many as the father of Black history. More than any other individual, Carter Godwin Woodson was responsible for bringing to light the contributions Blacks have made in science, art, music, literature and education.

Woodson devoted his life to educating Black Americans about their history and culture. He wrote more than 100 articles and 125 book reviews for the Journal of Negro History, a scholarly publication he started in 1916. He also founded the Association of the Study of Negro Life and History, which was the first organization created to simulate original research on Black history.

He believed the roots of racism were buried in ignorance. His research highlighted Black contributions to modern society that formerly had been ignored, distorted or misunderstood.

Woodson was responsible for creating an annual celebration of Black achievement called, "Negro History Week." Today, as a result of his efforts, Black History Month is commemorated nationwide to highlight Black contributions to society.

Black Americans are being featured during February in the "Black Presence" exhibit in the Regional Office. This exhibit focuses on 10 individuals in the areas of history, business, literature, inventions, the military, folklore, music, arts and sports, who have made, or are making, significant contributions toward the successful development of our country.
