MUSSOLINI TO CONFER WITH BRITISH PREMIER ON REPARATIONS PLAN

Italian Premier Is Expected to Arrive in London Tomorrow; Millerand Says France Will Not Change Policy of Coercion in Ruhr.

London, July 9.—It was reported here this evening that Premier Mussolini of Italy would arrive in London tomorrow to consult with Premier Baldwin.

London, July 9.—There is an increasing impression that the British Cabinet cannot much longer delay a declaration of its policy on the reparations question. Rt. Hon. L. C. Amery, First Lord of the Admiralty, and Rt. Hon. Arthur Neville Chamberlain, Minister of Health, in speeches made at Birmingham, stressed the imperative necessity that Great Britain should make her position clear without delay.

It is understood Premier Baldwin devoted much of his time yesterday to a consideration of Lord Curzon's latest report of his interviews with the French, Belgian and Italian Ambassadors, and it was assumed that Mr. Baldwin would be likely to lay the results of his deliberations before the Cabinet to-day.

Declaration by Millerand. Clermont-Ferrand, July 9.—That France would not change her coercive policy toward Germany was a declaration made yesterday by President Millerand. The President said the country must remain united behind the Government. But he added, "Let us not hide the truth from ourselves that this policy is one of a long haul."

Steel Works Occupied. Dortmund, July 9.—The Hoechst steel works near Dortmund, one of the largest metal plants in the Ruhr, were occupied by the French yesterday. A large quantity of finished products was taken over, as was also the coal supply of the plant, on which the tax imposed by the occupational authorities had not been paid.

Possible Prohibition of Canadian Exports Being Discussed. The Washington correspondent of The Post says there are prospects of an interchange with the Canadian Government, with possible development of tariff retaliation on Canadian imports of coal and other necessities.

Strike Funds Seized. Düsseldorf, July 9.—The German railroad strike fund amounting to 17,000,000 marks, has been seized by the French at Maximilienau, near Ludwigshafen.

HARRISON GARSIDE DIES IN ENGLAND

Famous Shakespearian Collector Passes From Scene. Funeral From Church Identified With the Master Poet.

Harrison Garside, famous Shakespearian collector, is dead in England at an advanced age. He passed away suddenly in Stratford-on-Avon on June 15 and was buried from Holy Trinity Church, the shrine of Shakespeare.

Mr. Garside, who had one of the most famous collections of Shakespearian relics in the world, had for many years almost the life of a recluse in his residence at Portage Inlet, surrounded by his collection.

Recently he decided to go to the Old Country to dispose of part of his remarkable objects, which comprised every variety of relics associated with the great poet, however, he intended to return to Victoria in August.

The Provincial Library acquired his copies of the second and fourth folios from Mr. Garside, and he also left behind him in storage some portion of the general collection.

Famous British authors and actors, among them Sir Johnston Forbes Robertson, Clement Shorter and Sir John Martin Harvey, went out to see the veteran and hear from his own lips the story of his treasures.

It was intensely gratifying to him to meet these notable men of similar interests to his own, and they in turn assured him it was one of the greatest treats their visits to the Dominion had afforded them to examine and pore over his nearly Elizabethan quarrels.

WOMAN STRUCK BY BASEBALL MAY DIE; BOY HURT. San Francisco, July 9.—Mrs. George Medbury was probably fatally injured yesterday and Dennis Burke, a boy, was seriously injured by batted balls while they were watching a ball game at Golden Gate Park.

Mrs. Medbury was injured internally. It was said at the hospital where she was taken. She was struck in the abdomen.

The Burke boy has a broken shoulder, but will recover.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC ABLE TO REPORT SURPLUS. Montreal, July 9.—The financial surplus of the province of Quebec for the fiscal year ended June 30 last amounted to $1,000,000, Hon. Jacob Nicol, Provincial Treasurer, announced to-day. Mr. Nicol said the revenue from the sale of liquor by the Government Commission would show an increase over that of last year.

NEAR EAST TREATY IS TO BE SIGNED SOON

Lausanne, July 9.—An accord has been reached between the Turks and the Allies and peace probably will be signed within a week.

Thus the Near East Conference, which has been in continuous session for more than three months, will have a successful outcome. For a considerable period the settlement hung in the balance on the question of the Ottoman debt, concessions and the evacuation of Constantinople and other Turkish territory by foreign troops.

It was after several hours of discussion last night that the delegates reached their accord, and, barring unexpected difficulties, over minor points, peace should be declared at Lausanne almost immediately.

Statement issued. An official communique issued after the session declared that private meetings had succeeded in establishing an accord in principle on the three questions in dispute—the Ottoman debt, concessions and evacuation. An agreement was arranged in the morning whereby all foreign troops will be withdrawn within six weeks after ratification of the treaty by Ankara, and the warships, arms and munitions belonging to the Ottoman Government now in the hands of the Allied forces will be restored to Turkey.

No Debt Clause. As to the Ottoman debt, the Allies agreed with the Turks that all reference to the debt should be removed from the treaty. This is a great undertaking for the Allies, because it means they will not go on official record as confirming the obligations of the debt. The Allies, however, will make a declaration before the conference that the debt contracts cannot be modified except by mutual agreement between Turkey and the bondholders.

Mr. Beatty said that while the trip was hurried, it was extremely informing. "The opportunities for Canada to obtain settlers from England and Scotland, particularly Scotland, are splendid," he said. "The same applies in a lesser degree to several of the continental countries. Immigrants of a good class can be obtained from the countries just as soon as the Governments provide means of assistance. This is receiving consideration, but much remains to be done if we are able to counteract in a practical way the false impression that has existed that we do not really want new settlers. Young Scotsmen of the most desirable type, trained farmers, can be obtained in substantial numbers."

Taxation. "Another fact which acts as an inducement to migration is the desire of many men of means to come to a country in which the taxation is less."

Strait Settlements. An invitation will be immediately dispatched to the Russian Government to send representatives to Lausanne for the signing of the Straits convention. Considerable interest is manifested in Lausanne as to whether Moscow will accept or refuse.

SENATOR H. THORNE DIED IN MONTREAL. New Brunswick Legislator Was Nearing Seventy-Nine. Death Creates Third Vacancy in Senate.

Montreal, July 9.—Senator William Henry Thorne, of St. John, N.B., died at the hospital here yesterday from a complication of diseases. He had been under hospital attention for the last six weeks.

Senator Thorne was born in St. John September 12, 1844, of United Empire Loyalist stock on both sides. The original family came from New York at the close of the American Revolutionary War, settling at Grandview, N.S. He was a leading worker and member of the Liberal-Conservative Association of both St. John and the province of New Brunswick, and was appointed to the Senate during the Borden administration in 1913.

Three Vacancies. Ottawa, July 9.—The death of Senator Thorne creates the third vacancy in the Upper Chamber. There is a vacancy in the Quebec representation caused by the death of Senator J. Godbout, and one in the Alberta representation, resulting from the death of Senator A. E. Forget, of Banff. Senator Thorne's death makes a vacancy in New Brunswick. He was unmarried.

NEW YORK WOMAN SENTENCED TO DEATH. New York, July 9.—Mrs. Anna Buzalski was sentenced to die in the electric chair during the week of August 6 for the murder of Frederick Schneider, a Bronx contractor, with whom she lived for eight years.

NAVAL TREATY IS GIVEN APPROVAL

French Chamber Ratifies Washington Agreement Now Before Senate; Pacific Treaty Approved

Washington, July 9.—(Associated Press)—Word that the French Chamber of Deputies had ratified the naval limitation treaty was received here as one of the most encouraging pieces of news that has reached Washington from abroad for many a day.

For many reasons, not all of which have been apparent on the surface of events, favorable action by France has been awaited with unusual concern. Although the French Senate still must give its assent before the treaty is ratified, powers are complete, there appears to be little apprehension among United States officials of serious opposition or delay in the quarter.

Pleading to Harding. Foremost among the causes for gratification here is that French acceptance of the treaty will put the cap on the most portentous diplomatic undertaking of the Harding administration by actually giving vitality to the Washington Conference plan to end competitive building of first line ships of war.

That part of the Washington naval accord dealing with limitation of armaments and capital ships which created the most bitter opposition in French parliamentary and political circles during the last year was jammed through the French Chamber of Deputies on Saturday in record time by the Poincaré-Briand alliance. The half-hearted opposition from the Socialists and Communists was completely swamped and the treaty was adopted 460 votes to 106.

Paris, July 9.—The Chamber of Deputies to-day voted the bill approving the Washington treaties relating to the Pacific. The bill approves the treaty concluded on December 12, 1921, by France, the United States, Great Britain and Japan, covering their island possessions in the Pacific and the declaration adopted on the same date relating to the Pacific mandates.

It also accepted the complementary agreement made in Washington on February 6, 1923, in which application of the treaty was precisely defined as it concerned Japan.

Port Stanley, Ont., July 9.—The body of Lieut. L. J. Roth, pilot of the ill-fated United States navy balloon A-6698, was found in the basket of the airship in Lake Erie fourteen miles south-southwest of here this forenoon.

The balloon itself was brought here last night by the tug Frank I. Stanley, which found it collapsed and waterlogged in Lake Erie about twenty-five miles southeast of here.

The balloon, piloted by Lieut. L. J. Roth and his aide, Lieut. T. B. Null, started from Indianapolis July 4 in the national elimination race.

The basket of the balloon was not found when the bag was picked up by the tug. Clothing of the missing airman was found in a bag attached to the rigging of the gas bag.

A small clock, part of the balloon equipment, was found. It had stopped at 2:44. Roth's watch, found in his clothes, had stopped at 4:30.

Escaped 2R-2 Disaster. Denver, July 9.—An echo of the disaster in which the giant dirigible 2R-2 fell into the Humber River at Hull, England, on her trial flight two years ago, is heard following the loss of the balloon A-6698 in Lake Erie.

Lieut. Null, a former Denver man, was assigned to the crew of the 2R-2 and was reported among those killed when the air Leviathan caught fire and plunged into the Humber April 24, 1921. Null, however, had not gone aboard the airship for the test flight.

Lieut. Null was a veteran pilot. A student at Harvard when the United States entered the World War, he joined the naval air forces and served at Cape May, N. J., and Key West, Fla.

WHISKY CRAFT OFF CALIFORNIA. Three Are Said to Have Cargoes to Land. Near Farallone Islands; Await Favorable Weather.

San Francisco, July 9.—Three vessels, said to be laden with whiskey from Canada, were hovering off the Farallone Islands last night, according to San Francisco papers. Coastguard officials would neither deny nor affirm the report.

The rum-runners are said to be awaiting favorable weather conditions before attempting to land or transfer their cargoes.

Two of the vessels are said to be schooners and the other a tramp steamer flying the British flag. One of the schooners is said to be the vessel which landed a cargo of whisky at South San Francisco last February when three San Francisco policemen were captured, later being tried and convicted of conspiracy to violate the Volstead law.

According to the papers, coastguard boats are patrolling the coast inside the three-mile limit, watching the rum-runners.

ERNEST JUDET ACQUITTED TO-DAY BY PARIS JURY. Paris, July 9.—Ernest Judet, charged with having conspired with the enemy during the war, was acquitted to-day after only ten minutes' deliberation by the jury.

Water and gas are gaining slightly in the coal mines of the district, as is natural when the pumps and fans are largely stopped.

Men going to work at the steel plant this morning were not interfered with and there were no disturbances during the night in the coalfields. The situation remains absolutely unchanged.

Further detachments of troops from the west were expected to arrive by special train at 12:30 p.m.

Halifax, July 9.—When D. Livingstone, President, and James B. MacLachlan, Secretary of District 26 of the United Mine Workers of America, appeared in police court to-day MacLachlan, who gave his age as fifty-five, and the place of his birth as Scotland, was first arraigned on the initial charge of having in the city of Halifax on July 6 published a false statement.

The following additional charge was read to him: "That he did in the said town of Glace Bay on or about the fourth day of July, 1923, publish a seditious libel concerning His Majesty's Government of the Dominion of Nova Scotia and the Provincial Police, established under the laws of the said Province, containing the following seditious matter: 'Here the United Mine Workers circular letter, already published, was read. The crown prosecutor said that on the new charge the accused, if found guilty, would be liable to a maximum penalty of twenty years, owing to a change made in the Criminal Code in 1919 in consequence of occurrences in Winnipeg during a strike there. The magistrate said he would not take the responsibility of granting bail on the more serious charges.'"

1,200 MEN AT WORK IN SYDNEY, N. S., STEEL PLANT DESPITE STRIKE

Halifax, July 9.—Dan Livingstone, president, and James B. MacLachlan, secretary, of the United Mine Workers of America, District 26, who arrived here in custody from Sydney yesterday, were before Stipendiary Magistrate M. B. Archibald in the police court this afternoon and were remanded without bail until Thursday afternoon.

Sydney, N.S., July 9.—Twelve hundred men were at work in the coke ovens and blooming mill of the Sydney steel plant this morning, it was announced at the British Empire Steel Corporation headquarters.

The company has sufficient stock on hand to continue operation of the mill indefinitely and no difficulty is anticipated in getting coal for the ovens.

IMPRESIVE CEREMONY WITNESSED IN BELGIUM YESTERDAY

Ypres, July 9.—(Canadian Press Cable)—A number of Canadians went out from Ypres with others yesterday along the dusty highway leading to the junction of the Poeselappelle Road, where the Duke of Connaught unveiled the memorial erected by the Canadian Battlefields Commission to perpetuate the honor of those who fell in the Second Battle of Ypres.

"We bow our heads in humble gratitude for their worthiness, for their lives and the nobility of their sacrifices; we commend their souls to the gracious keeping of Our Heavenly Father, and we ask for their loved ones the tender sympathy and comfort of the compassionate Saviour."

The foregoing sentence, taken from the dedicatory address by Canon Eshford, Montreal, was the embodiment of the sentiments which were uttered also by other speakers.

Tributes to Heroism. The Duke of Connaught, Marshal Foch, Lieut.-General Turner, and Vicomte Brierre, Belgian Minister of the Interior, in turn rendered with an eloquence which rang all the more true for its restraint their tributes to the heroism of the parent division of the Canadian army when assailed by the deadly fumes of the enemy in April, 1915.

Placing of Settlers. "Coupled with that, we shall require the assistance of an organization such as the Western Canada Colonization Association, which has come to assist in the placing of immigrants and adapting them to their new surroundings, upon which the possibility of success greatly depends and the ability to do which has contributed so largely to the success of the Salvation Army and other similar organizations which have been successful providers of good settlers for Canada."

Grand Trunk. Mr. Beatty said that while there was a deep-seated conviction on the part of many Englishmen that the Grand Trunk shareholders had been unfairly treated by the Canadian Government, he did not think the sentiment would be continued, especially if the Government made an early decision in regard to the Grand Trunk, with joint action in many cases.

Europe's Problems. In Europe, Mr. Beatty said he had found a pessimism in the countries, the Governments and people struggling valiantly with new problems which had grown out of the geographical realignments. In spite of the fact that many of the countries had been reduced in area and in population to such an extent as to be mere fractions of their former size, the difficulties were not lessened.

JURORS THINK TRIAL TOO LONG. Case for Crown at Delorme Trial Drags Into Fourth Week. Restless Juror Makes Appeal to Presiding Judge.

Montreal, July 9.—When the Delorme trial was resumed this forenoon, R. Calder, K. C., crown prosecutor, called as witnesses Oscar Haynes, juror, and Dr. Delorme, medico-legal expert.

Full Inquiry. "I recognize the impatience of the jurors and their desire to return to their homes and their business," said Mr. Calder, "but in a case of this importance, it is necessary to have the trial go to the bottom. If I omit a single piece of evidence where would the jury be and where would the crown be? I will do my duty to the end; but I would humbly pray that all efforts be extended to finish the case this week. This is the fourth week we have been here."

Judge's Statement. "Your desire to complete the case is proper," said the Judge. "I, too, am kept away from my family for a period of five weeks. I have come here after going to the assizes at Athabasca, and I can assure you that it is a very laborious judicial production. Nevertheless, since their case of this importance, where translation has to be undertaken and where lawyers have the right to put all the questions they wish in order that justice may be done, we must bear up."

Statement by Defence. Aliey, Esq., K. C., counsel for the defence, said he had taken only the time necessary to put questions he had thought essential in the interest of his client. There was another subject on which the Judge had the right to judge. The crown had employed experts in the case. Unless they employed experts, it would not be affording proper protection to the crown.

OLIVER CHECKS UP SENATOR ON LOOSE TALKING. Premier Plans to Have B. C. Well Represented Before Grain Commission.

As he was leaving this afternoon on a speaking trip to Merritt and Ashcroft, Premier Oliver replied to Senator Barnard, who stated that the Oliver administration has declined to put to the people the issue of prohibition of private liquor imports, and that the attitude of the B. C. Government was defenceless.

"When did we decline?" the Premier bluntly asked Senator Barnard. "The matter was put to the people. Let us recall what was the question put to the people in the plebiscite of 1920. It was like this: Which do you prefer, the present prohibition act, or an act to provide for government control and the sale of spirituous liquor in sealed packages?"

The people in 1920 expressed themselves emphatically and control of imports is necessary to have effect to the expressed will of the people. How is the Provincial Government to blame?"

Before he took the boat the Premier had a talk with G. G. McGeer, K. C., Government freight rates counsel, about getting forcible representation of B. C. before the Royal Grain Commission, which is now talking evidence through the West. The Premier said that after the Ashcroft meeting Wednesday night he may take the train on to Calgary and meet members of the Commission there and find out just what they are doing, and their scope. Just what representation B. C. will have will depend on what he finds out there. He will also meet W. B. London, chairman of a special section of the Vancouver Board of Trade, and discuss the issue with him.

The Premier is due to open the Community Carnival at South Vancouver on Thursday, which is being put on by the chief civic public organizations, but because of the importance of getting the flow of grain started to Vancouver in large volume, he will have to cancel participation in this function if he should have to go to Calgary to meet the commission.

THE SENATOR'S APOLOGIA

"Probably the important measures before the House this session were the three bills relating to the returned soldiers and their pensions. There seems to have been an impression abroad that the Senate was endeavoring, by referring these bills to a special committee, to prevent their passage.

The contrary was the case. The committee which was appointed and given a very short time in which to deal with most important and complicated questions, to my knowledge sat night and day, on several occasions meeting after the House rose at ten or eleven at night, and sitting until the small hours of the morning, in order to be able to report before the close of the session, so that the bills might go through this year."—Senator Barnard in The Colonist.

The Ralston Commission spent many weeks in an exhaustive inquiry into the pensions situation touching at the different important centres from Halifax to Victoria, hearing evidence and investigating hundreds of individual cases. It then prepared a report which formed the basis of the Bills introduced by the Hon. H. S. Beland, Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment in the House of Commons, and unanimously passed by that body. Then the Senate Committee which, according to Senator Barnard, "was given a very short time in which to deal with these most important and complicated questions," mauled the Bill, in many essential particulars, out of all recognition.

The Senate did not accept all of its committee's recommendations, but the majority—"watchdog of the treasury," as our morning contemporary so admirably describes this interesting group—saw to it that sufficient substantial alterations were made to impair the usefulness of the legislation. And it took a "very short time" to do it. Indeed, less than a week was required for the masterminds of the Senate and its Committee, to shoot full of holes Bills based upon the report of a competent Commission which had worked for months and whose recommendations were adopted by the House of Commons without opposition. There need not be the slightest doubt that the Senate majority, responding to the crack of the whip in the hands of Sir James Loughheed, who appointed the Pensions Board and is still its enthusiastic patron, would have swallowed the Senate's Committee's proposal holus bolus if it had not been for the wave of indignation which had arisen throughout the country.

Senator Barnard's contention that in the main the principals of the legislation as introduced in the House of Commons were retained by the Senate in violent conflict with the report of the proceedings which came from Ottawa. For just one example, the provision for provincial boards of appeal was shelved in favor of a central travelling board. This change is vital, for no central travelling board can begin to function with even a semblance of thoroughness. There are 15,000 appeals at Ottawa now. The travelling central board will be little better than a joke.

We presume Senator Barnard will give those who are most vitally affected by the pension legislation a fuller explanation of what happened in the Senate than is contained in his interview in the morning paper. The fact that he and his colleagues from this Province no longer need to appeal to the electorate for its support at election time does not entitle them to disregard public opinion as expressed by the elected representatives, and they should explain why they did it in this instance.

For a very large part Senators are pensioners of the "Z Class," which is to say, political pensioners. Their pensions are $4,000 a year. What a howl they would raise if somebody introduced legislation limiting their special privileges! What would the "watchdog of the treasury," as our morning contemporary calls the Senate, do to a measure, say, reducing the annual pension from $4,000 to $2,000?

NOTHING TO GET EXCITED ABOUT.

It was a foregone conclusion that the remarks of the Governor-General of the Irish Free State would set a number of people's teeth on edge. He considers that Ulster should take her part towards settling the boundary question. But they should make allowances for the peculiar state of affairs that exists between Ulster and the rest of Ireland. And it is by no means uncomplimentary to Mr. Timothy Healy to say that he differs in temperament and outlook to most personages who occupy similar positions in various parts of the British Empire.

It may be quite improper and almost unprecedented for the King's representative to let himself go in the form of public criticism which Mr. Healy adopted. At the same time he has not said anything very new; his statement looks as if it had been made more in sorrow than in anger because he is very keen on getting the boundary question settled and is a little impatient because the Ulster Government still refuses to appoint a Commissioner to act with the British authorities and the Free State.

There is nothing in the incident for Sir James Craig to become unduly alarmed about. He might even have refrained from suggesting to a London newspaper that "it would be improper for him to take notice of the utterances of the King's representative in the Free State." And his "woe betide any man who stirs up trouble or creates chaos in a part of the Empire which desires to remain under the King's constitution" was hardly necessary.

Mr. Healy has accepted his responsibilities in the knowledge of their significance. He is not the man to evade them or underestimate the position he has been called upon to occupy. And sooner or later a Commission of some sort will have to draw the line that is to define Ulster and the Free State in territorial terms.

SENATOR BARNARD IS OFF THE MARK.

When Senator Barnard went to Ottawa to attend the session of Parliament that has just been brought to a close he knew perfectly well that he was going to vote against any measure that should at least resemble that anti-import bill which incurred his displeasure last year. Just why Victoria's especial representative in the Upper Chamber should be so totally unmindful of the wishes of the people of this city and Province will always be beyond the comprehension of the average individual. But the fact remains that upon two distinct occasions he has spoken and voted in a manner thoroughly inimical to the interests of British Columbia.

Senator Barnard declares that when the people of this Province voted for Government control they must have known that they voted to retain the right of private importation. To which suggestion it may be permitted to reply in two ways. In the first place Senator Barnard knows full well how the people interpreted the two questions that were placed before them in 1920, and if he were honest with himself he would recognize in the defeat of the old Prohibition Act a clear mandate to do away with all its provisions—including the right of private importation—so that the new plan would not be shackled by any part of a measure that proved to be unworkable. In the second place most people will wonder what right the Senate possesses to ignore two distinct requests for a measure that would give to this Province the sole right of importation. In other words they will naturally want to ask Senator Barnard if he thinks two resolutions from the local Legislature—supported by all its members except Senator Barnard's own political friends, and spoken to and supported by the elected representatives of the people—mean anything at all or whether they should be regarded as additional proofs that the electorate of this Province is still in swaddling clothes and does not know its own mind. He knows perfectly well that the action of the Conservative members of the Senate was nothing else but a childish display of political bias. To take cover behind the Manson letter is a fair sample of the tactics adopted by himself and his friends.

And then we are told that the Government of this Province could wipe out the export house by merely withdrawing its consent for their existence and asking the Customs Department at Ottawa to perform the final act of abolishment. Is Senator Barnard merely bluffing or does he expect to make his point by setting himself up as an authority superior to the country's Department of Justice? This is the official judgment of the latter in reference to the export warehouse:

Neither the Government of British Columbia nor this (the Dominion) Government has power to prohibit the establishment or maintenance of export liquor warehouses. Importers have the right under Section 81 to enter the imported goods for warehouse, subject only to such rules and regulations as are from time to time prescribed by the Governor-in-Council in that behalf. It is clear that under this statute the Government has power to regulate and control such warehouses, but not to prohibit them. The suggestion that the Government could bring about the abolishment of these warehouses by refusing to license them does not appear to be in point as I am unable to find any provisions of the law providing for the licensing of such warehouses. They have their existence by virtue of the statute and not by license of the Government.

This statement was furnished by the Assistant Deputy Minister and approved by Mr. E. W. Newcombe and read to the Upper Chamber by Senator Dandurand. To which we may be permitted to add that when it comes to an interpretation of the law, as between the Department of Justice and Senator Barnard, we must ask to be excused, and we think that most people will feel inclined to excuse themselves, for showing a certain preference for the views expressed by the former.

Senator Barnard and his friends could have got rid of the export liquor warehouses if they had supported the bill to give this Province the sole right of importation when the amendment proposed by the Minister of Justice had been inserted. They can be got rid of in no other way. But neither he nor they could get over the desire to indulge political bias—even at the expense of incurring the displeasure of the people of British Columbia.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If Senator Barnard wanted to be candid he would say that the "watchdog of the treasury," that is, the Senate majority, is really the watchdog of one Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

John D. Rockefeller was eighty-four yesterday. He still plays golf and drives and does not know to a hundred million or so just what he is worth. Ordinary newspapermen do not run a very serious risk of being afflicted with the last part of "John D.'s" combination "malady."

An Ottawa magistrate has given an opinion on what is negligent driving. For instance if one arm of a mere male who is at the wheel of a motor car is resting round the waist of a fair companion there is nothing to constitute negligent driving as long as such an action does not distract the attention of the driver. Our readers may have noted cases in which there has been a very sharp division of attention between mechanical management and automobile courting.

ASKS ACT OF APPOINTMENT OF COMPTROLLER

Mayor Will Lay Reorganization Plan Before Council This Week

Mayor Reginald Hayward announced to-day that he would ask the City Council, at a special meeting late this week, to tackle the comptroller problem again and settle it.

"The appointment of a Comptroller has been delayed for some time by the pressure of business surrounding the new business license by-law and other kindred matters," the Mayor explained. "This week, however, I expect to get action on it and will ask the Council to take under consideration the report of the special committee which has been drafting a code of duties for the new official and for the City Treasurer."

The new regulations governing the work of the city's financial chiefs have been completed by the Mayor, Alderman David Leeming and Alderman W. J. Sargent, who were named by the Council to do this work. These regulations provide in detail exactly what each official shall do and involve a complete re-organization of the city's financial machinery.

Mayor Optimistic.
"I believe that the Council will accept the proposals we have to make with slight alterations," the Mayor said. "We have framed the duties of the financial officials along the lines desired by the Council and believe that they will meet with general approval."

After the Council has approved or amended the regulations governing the duties of the financial officials it will proceed to appoint a new comptroller. Numerous applications for this position already have been received by the Mayor but they will not be considered until the duties of the comptroller have been definitely fixed. It is planned to advertise for applications for this position shortly.

It is this "definite action" that the appointment was taken," the Mayor asserted to-day. "It has been impossible before this, however, to bring the matter to a head on account of the pressure of other business."

The only other representative from the Province named by the Ministerial body is Rev. A. M. Sanford, D.D. The meeting is summoned for Monday, and is called by Rev. E. D. Chown, D.D., general superintendent of the church.

Among the delegates are Sir Joseph Pavey, Hon. N. W. Rowell, and Sir William Hearst, leading Methodist laymen. Following the Union committee meeting there will be a joint meeting to discuss matters with the union committees of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches.

WINEMAKERS TO BEGIN WORK
Press to Start in Presence of Public Men

On Wednesday morning the Growers' Wine Company, through its manager, N. H. Lamont, will formally inaugurate its business of the manufacture of wine.

The press will be started by Hon. F. A. Pauline, as member for Saanich, in whose constituency the bulk of the produce is to be raised. Mayor Hayward and a representative of the Chamber of Commerce have been invited to attend.

The old Hudson's Bay Company's storehouse on Wharf Street has been leased for the manufacture of loganberry wine, the intention of the company being to supply the order of the Liquor Board and also commercial business. It is the intention to test later for the preservation of loganberry juice. As far as present plans are made it is intended to restrict production to the fruit of the logan. A good market is expected on the prairies.

THORNTON WILL BE INVITED TO SPEND THREE DAYS HERE

Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, will be invited to spend three full days on Vancouver Island shortly to see the island's resources for himself as a result of a decision reached by Chamber of Commerce Directors today. A committee which interviewed Sir Henry recently reported to-day that the C. N. R. head would be glad to come here for a visit shortly. The committee also reported that Sir Henry had declared that Victoria had nothing to worry about as far as C. N. R. development here was concerned.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A meeting of the Real Estate Board of Victoria will be held to-morrow evening at 317 Pemberton Building.

All ex-Service men are invited to a smoker at the G.W.V.A. rooms, Fairbanks-Morse Bldg., this evening at 8 o'clock, when Canon Scott will give an address on his "Tour in France" last year.

Members of the Tourist Trade Group of the Chamber of Commerce will hold a picnic at Elk Lake, July 11. They will meet at the entrance to the Chamber of Commerce rooms at five o'clock on that day.

The proposal of the Victoria Committee of the G.W.V.A. that Victoria merchants display French flags and colors July 14, the anniversary of the Fall of the Bastille, was approved by the Chamber of Commerce directors at their luncheon today.

During the band concert at Beacon Hill yesterday afternoon one of the audience, a young lady, was seized with a fainting fit and was revived by the efforts of W. B. McDonagh. She was afterwards driven to her place of residence by Harry Howard.

Charged on remand in the City Juvenile Court to-day with the seduction of a minor, Theodore Handman was committed for trial. R. C. Lowe appeared for the accused. The hearing was in camera, the complainant being a juvenile.

That a blind pig was to be found at Ross Bay was the report that drew the city police to the scene over night. The pig was blind, found the police, by reason of the fact that it had been dead a long time. It was flotsam of the tide at the cemetery seawall.

Though the city police failed to lift the tug-of-war event in the annual sports, Chief of Police Fry ploughed through 100 yards of heavy going in the Chief's race and brought home the bacon. The prize was a handsome stuffed leather chair which now graces the office of the Chief, and is the centre of attraction today.

The executive of the Retail Merchants' Association of this city will meet to-morrow at Cornwall's Restaurant Fort Street at a luncheon after which they will discuss important business. H. O. Kirkham, chairman of the meeting, has asked that those attending the affair will be present at 12.15 p. m. that the business which must be discussed will not be delayed.

At a meeting of the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada this evening at 8 o'clock, Canon Scott, rector of St. Mathias's Anglican Church, Montreal, will give an interesting address. Canon Scott is a well-known figure among returned men and kindred organizations, and has long been a champion for the cause of the soldier and his dependents. At the Dominion convention of the G. W. V. A. in Vancouver last week, Canon Scott was elected Honorary Captain of the Association of Canada.

He was invited to speak here, during the convention in Vancouver. His visit to this city is heartily appreciated by the ex-service men.

Besides being a prominent man in religious circles, and a popular figure amongst the returned men of Canada, Canon Scott is a splendid speaker. The address given at addresses on the mind, all of which proved his great earnestness and ability.

Colonel Ross Napier will officiate as chairman at a night meeting. Canon Scott is accompanied here by Dr. Sharpe, the new Dominion President of the Great War Veterans' Association. In all probability the local organization will also hear Dr. Sharpe speak on the late convention's progress and the matters of interest which were discussed there. L. Lapp, editor of The Veteran, also is accompanying Canon Scott. Delegates from the convention are expected to attend this meeting.

BEER HAS PASSED, SAYS COUNSEL

Ownership of $2,000 Worth of Beer Question Before Court

That the Liquor Control Board was lawfully in possession of the beer seized on the Emma H. in the raid on Smugglers' Cove, Chatham Island, on June 2 and that the Rainier Bottling Works had now no just claim in law to its return contended H. A. Macdonald, K.C., for the Crown today in the resumed trial of that hearing before Magistrate Jay.

The applicants, the Rainier Bottling Works, asked the return of 632 dozen of beer taken on the boat. Examined by Frank Higgins, K.C., for the applicants this morning, Harry Emery described himself as the agent of Thomas Clark and Norman Halliwell, of Seattle, the consignees of the beer in question. Since the beer had passed to the agent of the consignees it was no longer the property of the applicants, said Mr. Macdonald, and they had a right in law only as a lien against the beer for payment.

Further, submitted Crown counsel, the beer had not yet been received by the Crown for contravention of the Act as it applied to warehousing. The Emma H., the bulk ship, sequestered at Smugglers' Cove, Chatham Island, an island in dangerous waters, was hardly a warehouse as contemplated by the Act, he contended. He further submitted in support of the claim. Magistrate Jay reserved judgment, and will give his decision on Thursday.

On the stand to-day Harry Emery said he was a carrier, owner of the Emma H., which he had just purchased before the raid of June 2. He was to be paid by Clark and Halliwell, of Seattle, at the rate of $4 a barrel freight on each shipment. Clark had paid $100 in advance, he said, and then had not returned to the Seattle liquor enforcement people, so that he did not show up to get the beer prior to the police raid. Witnesses in Vancouver, trying to straighten things out when he received the wire from Cochrane to say both the sender and the beer were under lock and key.

FIFTY-SEVEN CASES LISTED

Crop of Lawsuits to Arise From Merville Fire Last Summer

Apparently a crop of law suits is to follow the disastrous fire at Merville last July, when so many settlers in that neighborhood lost valuable property.

Counsel states that fifty-seven suits are to be inaugurated against one company, the Comox Logging and Railway Co.

These suits are brought through Messrs. Bird, Macdonald & Co., of Vancouver, on behalf of Merville and Courtenay settlers.

The principal destruction was occasioned July 6 to Merville, founded by the Provincial Land Settlement Board for returned soldier farmers and to settlers of Courtenay and that locality.

The writs will be served on Davis & Co., that firm having retained to defend on behalf of the logging company.

Negligence is Charged

Negligence is charged against the Comox Logging and Railway Company, the cause of a fire, which was not extinguished. The claimants' legal position is based on the declaration of the Supreme Court of Canada in the Coquitlam fire case, which held that corporation liable for permitting a fire to spread from their premises to adjoining privately owned buildings.

If the litigation proceeds as expected, it is anticipated the trials will be heard in October.

In addition to claims for loss of stock, buildings, crops, equipment and permanent damage to the soil, there is an action by Jonathan Clifford, a settler of the Merville area, who seeks compensation for the death of his sixteen-year-old son Jack, burned in the fire.

Permanent disability is alleged in support of J. S. Fenwick's claim for damages. He was a Courtenay farmer. The wall of flames swept over him as he crouched in the waters of Black Creek after he had been there for all day on the road. He escaped, but burns have necessitated medical and hospital treatment since.

There are several other claims for minor injuries.

Two court hearings arising out of the Merville fire have already been heard. These were claims by policy holders against fire insurance companies for payment on policies held on barns and stock lots in the flames. Decision in the first of these cases was found in favor of the plaintiff, while the second matter is still pending judgment.

C. P. R. TRIES TO MAKE PASSENGERS STOP OVER IN CITY

"If you are going to get travellers to stop over at Victoria you must tell them about this city when they buy their tickets, not when they get on the boat," Capt. J. W. Troup, manager of the B. C. Coast Services, Chamber of Commerce directors at their meeting to-day. He said that the C. P. R. had made vigorous efforts to induce tourists to stop over at Victoria and was doing every thing possible to this end now.

According to reports read at the directors' meeting, Capt. Troup recently told a Chamber of Commerce delegation that there was no real basis for the complaint that C. P. R. steamers did not stop over here the full time provided for on through timetables. Only on a few occasions had this occurred, it was stated.

Capt. Troup promised to look into the complaint that extra charges had been made by the C. P. R. for stop-over tickets here.

ASK APPROPRIATEMENTS TO FERRY WHARVES

Chamber of Commerce to Urge Dr. King to Repair Sidney Slips

Improvements to the Sidney ferry slip at which the C. P. R.-Bellingham motor ferries berth will be urged upon Hon. J. H. King, Federal Minister of Public Works, immediately by the Chamber of Commerce.

The necessity of repairing the ferry slips was impressed upon the Chamber of Commerce directors to-day by Capt. J. W. Troup, manager of the B. C. Coast Services. Capt. Troup was asked to draft a memorandum outlining the improvements needed, and this will be laid before Dr. King by the Chamber, while he is on the coast.

Capt. Troup was assured at the directors' meeting to-day that the Victoria and Island Public Bureau in giving out information on ferries mentioned both the Bellingham and Anacortes motor ferries. The Bureau, it was stated, is determined to give equal publicity to both ferries, particularly through direction signs.

Dong Wing pleaded guilty to the charge, and the remaining defendants were found guilty by the jury. Christine Smith, who was charged with murder, was found guilty by the jury. Mr. Justice Morrison presided.

PUBLIC SHOULD BE EDUCATED TO TOWN PLANNING SCHEME

Said J. E. Umbach in Address to Gyros To-day

"I think that as far as British Columbia is concerned all that is required to make town planning a success is to educate the people to the advantages of it," J. E. Umbach, Surveyor-General, to-day, "Town Planning" was the subject chosen for his address, and at the commencement of his Mr. Umbach wished the Gyro Club success in the proposed campaign which is to be organized to foster and educate the public to the advantage of town planning.

"Town planning," stated Mr. Umbach, does not necessarily mean the tearing of a town down and rebuilding. Provision must be made for the development of a city, and this can be best done by town planning.

Speaking in reference to Victoria's growth in the future, Mr. Umbach stated that he could see no better time to commence town planning than now. Real estate was at its lowest, which property had returned to the city and adjacent municipalities during the past few years. This would enable the city to secure tracts of lands and make reservations in order to develop the city in the future much cheaper than at a later date, when the estate was much needed.

Citing the various developments in town planning, Mr. Umbach stated that outside of British Columbia there was only one other province, the Dominion of Canada that did not possess town planning legislation. This was Quebec, he intimated. The entire province of Quebec had made the best progress with town planning, and in that province the scheme had proved a success. The bill for town planning legislation in British Columbia had been brought in to the Legislature last session, but only reached the committee stage. The bill for town planning in Vancouver and would be placed before the House again this year.

However, he said, not wait for the legislation. Mr. Umbach said, "town planning can go ahead without it, provision having been made for this by the Municipal Act."

"First of all, the most essential factor is to secure public approval, and to get this the public must be educated to its advantages," he declared.

Kenneth Angus rendered two delightful vocal selections, which were much appreciated by the present. Mrs. Wain accompanied on the piano. Chris Wade arranged the musical features and also directed two orchestra numbers.

SEEK TO START WORK IN CHOLBERG YARD

Chamber of Commerce to Try to Settle Legal Difficulties Now

Cholberg Has Work in View for Six Months' Activity

In an effort to get the Cholberg Shipyards operating as a permanent industrial enterprise here Chamber of Commerce Directors, at their meeting to-day, appointed a committee to investigate the position of the yard, and arrange a settlement of its legal difficulties. J. O. Cameron and J. W. Spencer will conduct this investigation.

The assistance of the Chamber in getting the yard into operation was asked by Chris Cholberg in the following letter to the Chamber:

"In the recent trial of the case of the King vs. Cholberg Shipyards, you have doubtless read, in the local newspapers, of the learned judge declining to give judgment against the defendant (Cholberg Shipyards); and suggesting, from the Bench, that the parties at interest arrive at an agreement between themselves prior to September 17th, and thereby dispense with all further legal proceedings.

"I therefore seek the assistance of yourselves, and of the Chamber as a whole, and respectfully ask if you will appoint a committee to investigate the present status of affairs of the Cholberg Shipyards, said committee to report to the Chamber at its next meeting on Monday, July 9th."

"The city of Victoria, and adjoining municipalities, would be benefited by an immediate settlement of this contention, thereby permitting me to have possession of the yard, immediately, without interference, to then proceed to put yard in condition to carry out work that I have negotiated.

"At the present, I have option for immediate acceptance, to take on work which would probably keep the yard engaged in construction for six months from the date of commencement. But I must have an immediate settlement with the Government, for it is impossible to take on such work under present conditions, nor being in possession of the yard. I believe that it would be possible to secure further marine construction work; thus probably making it a going industrial enterprise, benefiting the community in general. I believe you can, without much expenditure of time, aid me in restoring this industry to an active basis, and solicit your help."

Victoria, July 4, 1923.

A GRAVE JEST.

An ancient tombstone standing in the graveyard of an old world-village bears an unusual inscription. It is evident that at the foot of the stone the sculptor originally inscribed the words, "Lord, she was Thine"; but the hand of time has since been at work, and the stone has become weather worn and chipped down the sides with the result that the letter E has fallen from the word "Thine."

MUSICAL EVENT

WAS ENJOYED

Special to The Times. Langford—The musical recital given at the home of Mrs. H. Simpson on Saturday afternoon was well attended and much enjoyed. The chair was taken by the Rev. H. Pearson, and the pupils of Mrs. Simpson who took part in the recital were Ruth Thom, Betty Smedley, Margaret Smedley, Stella Hinch, Irene Peatt, Margaret Peatt, Muriel Pearson, Ada Simpson, Genevieve Pearce and Miss Dick.

The programme consisted of piano solos and duets, organ recitals, and a duet with organ and piano. Assisting were Mrs. Chivers-Shaw, of Victoria, who rendered three vocal solos, and Mrs. J. Moore, who gave selections on the violin, accompanied by Mrs. G. Deaville.

Mrs. Simpson was the proud recipient of a handsome little gift as a token of appreciation from her pupils, while Mrs. Chivers-Shaw and Mrs. Moore were each presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers. The prizes for attendance and progress were presented on behalf of Mrs. Simpson by the Rev. H. Pearson, to Margaret Peatt and Margaret Smedley.

Delicious ice cream and afternoon tea were served to the guests, this bringing a very delightful afternoon to a close.

At the last baby clinic there were ten babies examined, and both Dr. Barty and Mrs. Lucas were both pleased with the results. The next clinic will be held on the afternoon of July 20, in Marigold Hall.

Mrs. Hall reported on three laws: The Deserted Wives' Act, the Venereal Diseases Act and the Equal Guardianship of Children Act. The Institute picnic will be held at Mt. Douglas Park, July 15.

A bus will leave Marigold Hall at 10 a. m. and tickets at fifty cents each for adults and twenty-five cents for children will be for sale at Marigold Store.

IN WOMAN'S DOMAIN

MRS. RALPH SMITH TO TOUR EUROPE TO GET SETTLERS

Woman Member of Legislature Is Sept to Lecture by Dominion Government

Vancouver, July 9.—Mary Ellen Smith, of Vancouver, only woman member of the B. C. Legislature, is going to tell the people of the British Isles, Norway and Sweden about British Columbia.

Mrs. Smith has just been instructed from Ottawa to pack up and proceed to her latest assignment. Sending of Mrs. Smith as a settlement envoy extraordinary to Europe has been mooted for some time. But until the Government had decided upon a definite immigration policy, Mrs. Smith, who was asked to undertake the work, could not get away. As it is she will not have much time for, she said this morning, she will return to Vancouver in time to resume her legislative duties. She plans to leave Vancouver for Ottawa next Saturday. Just what her itinerary will be she could not say, as that is being arranged in Ottawa.

She was last in the Old Country in 1911. Mrs. Smith is well acquainted with England, as she was born there and she has seen two kings crowned—King Edward and King George. Her public life in this Province has given her an intimate knowledge of the possibilities British Columbia has to offer settlers.

H.M.S. Curlew Is Welcome Visitor at Naval Base Here

After Flitting About the Coast For Some Weeks British Light Cruiser Curlew, From West Indies Base, Safely at Berth in Esquimalt Harbor; Arrived in Port Yesterday and Will Remain Two Weeks.

After an easy run up from the Columbia River the British light cruiser Curlew, resembling a lean greyhound, passed into Esquimalt Harbor yesterday afternoon and took up a berth at the naval jetty at the dockyard.

The Canadian destroyer Patricia also steamed into the naval harbor as the escort of the British warship.

The ships arrived in the absence of a demonstrative greeting, but they were nevertheless welcome visitors to Esquimalt, the home of British naval history on the North Pacific.

The Curlew passed into the harbor at 1:30 p.m. Sunday and with-out any fuss proceeded to the berth assigned to her at the dockyard landing stage. Capt. L. Stanley Holbrook, M.V.O., directed the berthing of his trim craft.

The Curlew was welcomed here by Commander Charles T. Beard, R.C.N., commander of the Esquimalt Dockyard, who boarded the ship following her arrival in port from Portland.

During the next two weeks the officers and men of the Curlew will be the guests of Victoria, and arrangements for their entertainment are now in hand.

R. C. N. V. R. MEN FROM SASKATOON ARRIVE IN CITY

Detachment Looks Forward to Training On Shipboard

Twenty-four members of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve from Saskatoon arrived in the city today en route to Esquimalt to take up their annual training. The party, which was commanded by Petty Officer D. Wilkinson, was of youths ranging in age from eighteen to twenty-two, and presented a smart appearance.

The Saskatoon company boasts a membership of fifty naval volunteers and the members ascribe credit for the success of their organization to Wilfred J. McKeown, who holds a lieutenant's commission in the British navy. The boys expressed great admiration for the leader and regretted his inability to accompany them, but stated that he might arrive later with another detachment.

Two weeks is the official training period, but some of the boys intend to stay for four months. The conditions are attractive as they include $1.65 pay, ration, traveling expenses and three uniforms.

REFUGEES FOUND QUOTA EXHAUSTED

Russians From S.S. President Jackson Finally Admitted to States

A tremendous scare was given the 412 Russian refugees when they were notified on arrival at Seattle on the liner President Jackson that the July quota had been exhausted. The refugees were detained for some time at the Seattle docks until Washington advised that they could enter the country in the August quota. OBJECTIONS BASED ON MISUNDERSTANDING SAYS ROBB ABOUT RATES

Ottawa, July 9.—(Canadian Press)—Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Trade and Commerce, stated that reported objections to lake shipping companies to filling their lake freight rates with the Board of Grain Commissioners at Port William, as required by the act passed last session, can only be based on a misunderstanding. "The Government does not contemplate drastic action, nor does it desire to restrict grain traffic," the Minister said. "On the contrary, the Government is anxious to facilitate in every way the dispatch of grain in such a manner as to distribute the charges on the transportation of grain as fairly as possible to all concerned." The Minister emphasized that all the Government is asking is that the rates be filed so that the rates may be open to all.

ALL HE WORE WAS A SMILE—Whoopie! Every fire-plug in the big cities of the East brings joy to kiddies these hot days. The improvised shower-bath idea was started last year in New York, and has since spread all over the country.

PRESIDENTIAL LIMITED—President Harding decided to try his hand at wheat binding when he passed through the wheat fields of the middle west on his way to British Columbia en route to Alaska. The "demonstration" of presidential efficiency at a tractor was given on the Chester O'Neil farm.

FORMED IN 1872, the Ancient and Honorable Hyack Battery of New Westminster, British Columbia, will retain the old custom of firing a salute in honor of the memory of Queen Victoria as each anniversary of the late British Queen comes along. Possibly in no other part of the world is so novel a form of firing a royal salute by twenty-one "guns" used as by the Hyack Battery. The photograph shows two blacksmiths' anvils placed on end. Inserted in the small receptacle to be found in every anvil is a small quantity of powder with a train laid leading several inches away from the hole. The second anvil is then placed in position and the order is given by the commander, ex-Mayor Thomas Owens, who first organized the battery. Inside the blacksmith's shop one of the members heats an iron rod attached to a wooden pole and on the order "Ready" being given he rushes outside in the street and touches off the gun-powder on the command "Fire" from the officer.

"SOULS FOR SALE" SHOWING TO-DAY

Capitol Presents Notable Feature With Rupert Hughes's Picture

Rupert Hughes has undoubtedly made his biggest picture out of the screen version of his novel of life in the motion picture colony in Hollywood, "Souls for Sale." This Goldwyn picture will be the attraction for six days at the Capitol Theatre, beginning to-day. It is an absorbing tale of everyday, human life made picturesque through its depiction of motion picture people, their activities and relationships.

"Souls for Sale," which attracted unusual attention when it was published serially in the Red Book Magazine and later in book form by Harper Brothers, has been one of the best sellers of the year. Mr. Hughes himself prepared the continuity for his screen version of the story, selected the cast in association with Goldwyn officials, directed, edited, cut and titled it.

Mr. Hughes usually introduces some new photographic effects into each of his pictures and "Souls for Sale" is no exception in this respect. The circus scenes contain some photography that has never been surpassed in any production yet put before the public. Much of the credit of this is due to Mr. Hughes' cameraman, John Mescall, but the idea for the effects was originated by Mr. Hughes. James Flood was the assistant director and Cedric Gibbons, Goldwyn's art director, prepared some of the most unusual settings that this studio has yet put out.

For the interpretation of the story some of the most noted players in the film world were engaged. Eleanor Boardman, young, beautiful and charming, who was selected out of 2,000 young women in New York City desirous of acting for the screen, was given the leading role of Remember Steedon because of the spirit of youthful charm which she imparted to her role in Mr. Hughes' "Gimme" and "The Girl in the Red Velvet Dress." Her co-actress, Amelia Sedley in "Vanity Fair" and because of her remarkably vivid and authoritative acting as Jean McPherson in Marshall Neilan's "The Strangers Banquet."

As a reward of merit for their fine acting in "The Christian," Richard Dix and Mae Busch were cast respectively for the role of the motion picture director, Frank Claymore, and the picture star, Robina Teele. Both give performances which prove the sound judgment of production officials was sound in selecting them. Barbara La Marr was especially signed to play the part of the screen vampire, Leva Lemaire; Frank Mayo acts the part of the screen hero, Tom Holby; and Lew Cody plays the part of the villainous Owen Scudder. Other famous names occur in the cast, notably, Arthur Hoyt, Roy Atwell, William Orlamond, Forrest Robinson, David Imboden, Dale Fuller, Edith York, Smita Edwards, Yale Boss, Ruth Outward, Aileen Pringle, Sylvia Ashton, Margaret Bourne and a motion picture crew of eleven of the most beautiful girls that could be found in the picture colony in Hollywood.

MUSIC LOVERS' NIGHT AT ROYAL

Novelty Sea Overture Will Be Rendered

A. Prescott, the conductor of the Royal Orchestra, has just received from the composers a novelty overture that will fit the presentation of "The Isle of Lost Ships," which is the feature this week as though it was written for it. The overture describes the life on board ship from the time it is commissioned until the time returns to port. The following is a short synopsis of "A Life on the Ocean," and of the different pieces to be rendered during the playing of the overture: Overture, A Life on the Ocean, Blindfolded, The Lass That Loved a Sailor, Preparing For Sea, All in the Downs, In Caswell Bay Lying, Leaving England, The Anchor's Weighed, Outward Bound, Come, Come My Jolly Lads, Gale, Bay of Biscay, Action, Hearts of Oak, Death of Nelson, Victory, Saucy Arethusa, Homeward Bound, Farewell and Adieu Ye Spanish Ladies, Arrival in England, Home Sweet Home and Rule Britannia.

In addition to this, other numbers will also be given that will greatly enhance the showing of this very fine picture.

MILTON SILLS ON ACTOR'S PERILS

Royal Will Present "Isle of Lost Ships"

The general impression current among the patrons of motion pictures that the life of a movie actor is pretty soft will find no champion in Milton Sills, one of the most popular of leading men, and who can now be seen at the Royal Theatre in "The Isle of Lost Ships," a First National attraction produced by M. C. Levee and personally directed by Maurice Tourneur.

"If you hate hard work and are afraid of danger—don't try to become a movie actor," is Sills' advice to those youths who are ambitious for a screen career. "Choose some easy and safe job like a stevedeck, making dynamite or aviation."

"Of course there is nothing particularly strenuous or dangerous about clasping the heroine in your arms at the end of the picture and pressing a kiss on her lips, but even then you get somewhat weary of the taste of lip rouge."

"When I leave home in the morning which are not very comfortable, I assure you. Then I had to dive off the deck of a large steamer into one of the roughest seas I've ever seen and swim through the waves to rescue Anna Q. Nilsson. I was dashed against the side of the ship with such force that I thought I was a goner. Boy, but wasn't I glad when that part was over!"

In addition to Sills and Long, the cast of "The Isle of Lost Ships" includes Frank Campeau, Anna Q. Nilsson, Bert Woodruff and Aggie Herring.

STORM RAGES AS MEN FIGHT DEATH

Hurricane at Sea Depicted at Columbia

Did you ever consider, while viewing a storm in a motion picture, what a tremendous task it must be for man to realistically duplicate the fury of the elements?

One of the most terrifying electric storms ever screened in which two men are engaged in a death struggle is to be seen in Alice Brady's latest Paramount picture, "The Leopardess," which is now showing at the Columbia. It is a storm at sea, the realism of which has surpassed in any previous production. If one could have stepped into Paramount's Eastern studio during the filming of this picture they would have observed a most interesting spectacle.

Over the set that was being used were stretched many lengths of pipe reaching from one side of the scene to the other. This pipe was generously perforated with small holes through which the water, when turned on, came spurting in huge sprays. On either side were two large aeroplane propellers which swept the down-coming flood mercilessly. Four immense lights, next to the wind machines, proved most realistic lightning reproducers. With all going at once the result was a storm of terrible fury similar to that shown in "The Old Homestead." And as the storm raged two men engaged in deadly battle on a steamer yacht.

Don't fail to see this splendid picture of a thrilling story by Katharine Newlin Burt, which tells of a South Sea Island girl who is forced to wed a disreputable white man and who, after suffering many hardships, regains her freedom through a vengeful leopardess. Edward Langford and Montagu Love portray the principal roles in support of the star.

SOLID.

"What are you going to do when you get through college?"

"I'm going to be a concrete engineer."

"Well, you've got the head for it." The Brown Jug.

New Capitol Organist Delights Audience

Percy S. Burraston, the new Capitol organist, has already made himself a big favorite with Capitol audiences. His feature organ numbers are receiving nightly big applause. He is getting wonderful results from the Capitol concert organ, the combinations of which he is a master, being remarkable for their sweetness of tone and melodious charm. The storm scene in "Souls for Sale," as played by Mr. Burraston, is also made very realistic and shows off the capabilities of the organ to full advantage. Melody is a strong point throughout this play's entire programme, hence his music is always entertaining and pleasing.

MANY THRILLS IN CROOK PICTURE

Betty Compton Is Starred in "The Woman With Four Faces"

One of the most thrilling dramas ever shown on the screen is "The Woman With Four Faces," featuring Betty Compton and Richard Dix, which will be the attraction at the Dominion Theatre this week. It is a Herbert Brenon-Paramount production.

To bring to book a ring of dope traffickers, men of wealth and powerful, the district attorney resigns his job and gains the aid of a clever girl crook to open a safe which contains a paper incriminating these nefarious operators.

She tells him there is but one man who can do the trick and he is in prison. An escape is effected by means of an aeroplane, but the crook, believing the district attorney is trying to win the girl's love, refuses to aid him. Then they go after the paper by different tactics. It is the centre of a mad struggle for its possession, and a series of climaxes are piled on top of one another ere the attorney secures the document and sends the guilty ones to prison. In the end, the girl reforms, wins the love of the district attorney.

Betty Compton as the girl, Richard Dix at the district attorney, and a cast of favorites in the other parts make this a super-excellent mystery drama. The supporting company is quite capable.

CHAPTER I. Andrew Tallente stepped out of the quaint little train on to the flower-bedded platform of this Devonshire hamlet, among the hills, to receive a surprise so immeasurable that for a moment he could do nothing but gaze silently at the tall, ungainly figure whose unpleasant smile betrayed the fact that this meeting was not altogether accidental so far as he was concerned.

"Miller!" he exclaimed, a little aimlessly. "Why not?" was the almost challenging reply. "You are not the only great statesman who needs to step off the treadmill now and then."

There was a certain quiet contempt in Tallente's uplifted eyebrows. The contrast between the two men, momentarily isolated on the little platform, was striking and extreme. Tallente had the bearing, the voice and the manner which were his by heritage, education and natural culture. Miller, who was the son of a postman in a small Scotch town, an exhibitioner so far as regards his education, and a mimic whose social gifts were concerned, had all the aggressive bumptiousness of the successful man who has wit enough to perceive his shortcomings, in his ill-chosen tourist clothes, untidy collar and badly arranged tie, he presented a contrast to his companion which he seemed, in a way, bitterly conscious.

"You are staying near here?" Tallente enquired civilly. "Over that Lynton. Durrey has a cottage there. I came down yesterday."

"Surely you were in Hellesfield the day before yesterday?" Miller smiled ill-naturedly. "I was," he admitted, "and I flatter myself that I was able to make the speech which settled your chances in that direction."

Tallente permitted a slight note of scorn to creep into his tone. "It was not your eloquence," he said, "or your arguments, which brought me to Lynton. It was partly your lies and partly your tactics."

An unwholesome flush rose in the other's face. "Lies!" he repeated, a little truculently. Tallente looked him up and down. The station master was approaching now, and the whistle had blown, his conversation at an end.

"I said lies," Tallente observed, "most advisedly."

The train was already on the move, and the departing passenger, seaward, hurriedly into a carriage. Tallente, waited upon by the obsequious station master, strolled across the line to where his car was waiting. It was not until his arrival that he realized that Miller had offered him no explanation as to his presence on the platform of this tiny seaside station.

"Did you notice the person with whom I was talking?" he asked the station master. "A tall, thin gentleman in knickerbockers? Yes, sir," the man replied. "But of your description is correct," Tallente remarked drily. "Do you know what he was doing here?"

"Been down to your house, I believe, sir. He arrived by the early train this morning and asked the way to the Manor."

"To my house?" Tallente repeated incredulously. "It was the Manor he asked for, sir," the station master assured his questioner. "Begging your pardon, sir, it is true that he was Miller, the Socialist M. P."

"True enough," was the brief reply. "What of it?"

The man coughed as he deposited the dispatch box which he had been carrying on the seat of the waiting car.

"They think a lot of him down in these parts, sir," he observed, a little apologetically.

Tallente made no answer to the station master's last speech and merely waved his hand a little mechanically as the car drove off. His mind was already busy with the problem suggested by Miller's appearance in these parts. For the first few minutes of his drive he had been again in the turmoil which he had left. Then with a little shrug of the shoulders he abandoned this new enigma. His solution must be close at hand.

Arrived at the edge of the dusty, white strip of road along which he had travelled over the moors from the station, Tallente leaned forward and watched the unfolding panorama below with a little start of surprise. He had passed through acres of yellowing gorse, of purple heather and money turf, fragrant with the aromatic perfume of sun-baked herb-lage. In the distance, the moorland reared itself into strange promontories, out-flung to the sea. On his right, a little farm, with its cluster of out-buildings, nestled in the bosom of the hills. On either side, the fields still stretched upward like patchwork to a clear sky, but below, down the hollow, blotting out all that might lie beneath, was a curious sea of rolling white mist, soft and fleecy yet impenetrable. Tallente, who had seen very little of this newly chosen country home of his, had the feeling as the car crept slowly downward, of one about to plunge into a new life, to penetrate into an unknown world.

A man of extraordinarily sensitive perceptions, leading a life out of the ordinary political world in which he fought the battle of life, he was conscious of a curious and grim premonition as the crawling down the precipitous hillside, approached and was enveloped in the grey shroud. The world which a few moments before had seemed so wonderful, the sunlight, the distant view of the sea, the perfume of flowers and shrubs, had all gone. The car was crawling along a rough and stony road, between hedges dripping with the dew, and the sun was like a spectre. At last, about three-quarters of the way down to the sea, after an abrupt turn, they entered a winding avenue and emerged on to a grassy lawn. The car had followed the strain of the drive, ran a little past the front door and pulled up in front of an uncurtained window. Tallente glanced in, dazed by a little spray of water which had fallen on his face. Then he understood the premonition which had set shivering in his heart during the long descent.

The mist, which had hung like a spectral curtain over the scene, the dome of Martinhoe Manor, had almost entirely disappeared when, at a few minutes before eight, with all traces of his long journey obliterated, Andrew Tallente stepped out on to the stone-flagged terrace and looked out across the little bay below. The top of the red sandstone cliff opposite was still wreathed with mists, which he had been looking forward to the flower gardens below, and the rocks almost covered by the full, swelling tide. Tall, and looking slimmer than ever in his plain dinner suit, he had his hand upon the door of the house, and he was looking forward to the long journey down from town, he had felt an unusual and almost boyish enthusiasm for his coming holiday. He had the light of his tennis racket and fishing rods, wondered about his golf club and his guns. Even the unexpected encounter with Miller had done little more than leave an unpleasant taste in his mouth. And then, on his way down from "up over," as the natives called that little strip of moorland which he had vanished into in the mist and had come out into another world.

"Andrew! So you are out here? Why did you not come to my room? Surely your train was very punctual!" Tallente remained for a moment tense and motionless. Then he turned around. The woman who stood against the threshold of the house, framed with a little cascade of drooping roses, caught his eyes almost hungrily. He realized how she must be feeling. A dormant vein of excitement parted his lips as he held her fingers for a moment. His tone and his manner were quite natural.

"We were, I believe, unusually punctual," he admitted. "What an extraordinary mist! Up over there was no sign of it at all." She shivered. Her eyes were still watching his face, seeking for an answer to her unasked question. Blue eyes were, which had been beautiful in their day; a little hard and anxious now. She wore a white dress, simple with the simplicity of supreme and expensive art. A rope of pearls was her only ornament. Her hair was cut in a simple, carefully curled, there was a touch of rouge upon her cheeks, and the uncreased evening sunlight was scarcely kind to her rather wan features and carefully arranged complexion. She still had her claims to beauty, however. Tallente admitted that to himself as he stood there appraising her, with a strange and almost impersonal regard—his wife of thirteen years. She was beautiful, notwithstanding the strained look of anxiety which at that moment disfigured her face, the lurking fear which made her voice sound artificial, the nervousness which every moment made fresh demands upon her self-restraint.

"It came up from the sea," she said. "Oh, how I remember the day when I was sitting out under the trees to get away from the sun, and the next we were driven shivering indoors. It was just like running into a fog bank in the middle of the Atlantic on a hot summer's day."

"I found the difference in temperature amazing," he observed. "I, too, dropped from sunshine into a strange chill."

"She tried to get rid of the subject. "So you lost your seat," she said. "I am very sorry. Tell me how it happened."

He shrugged his shoulders. "The Democratic Party made up their mind, for some reason or other, that I shouldn't sit. The Labor Party generally were in the sinking of running a candidate. I was to have been elected unopposed, in accordance with my work on the Nationalisation Bill. The Democrats, however, ratted. They put up a man at the last moment, and—well, you know the result—lost."

BIG REFORMS PUTTING CITY'S GOVERNMENT ON NEW EFFICIENCY BASIS

Council Now Rounding Out Sweeping Improvement Programme Which Will Speed Up City Hall Departments; Drastic Changes Have Created New Financial System and Reformed Annual Budget System.

When the City Council completes the re-modeling of the City Financial Department soon with the appointment of a new City Comptroller it will round out a far-reaching re-organization programme which has stretched over eighteen months and put City Hall business on an entirely new basis of efficiency.

Results of the re-organization work effected since the beginning of 1922 were summarized by Council members to-day as follows:—
 Complete reform in budgeting methods so as to make the annual estimates cover all anticipated expenses and avoid annual deficits which have been occurring regularly for years.

Installation of a new accounting system which enables the Council to know at any time exactly how its current finances stand.

Deflation of the City Land Assessment by gradual reductions.

Alteration of the dates on which the Court of Revision sits so as to give the Court plenty of time to deal with assessments.

Successful refunding of $2,400,000 in Sinking Fund shortages.

Inauguration of measures to aid land owners delinquent in taxation payments under the ten-year instalment plan.

Revision of city business licenses. Speeding-up of reverted land sales and the conversion of the Lands Department into an important revenue source.

Inauguration of a tax on one-third of the value of buildings.

Short Report is Basis
 Since young Victoria business men took hold of City affairs at the beginning of 1922 this reform programme—the most sweeping undertaken in the history of the city—has been brought into effect gradually and quietly until now city business has taken on an entirely new complexion. The tremendous improvements brought about in the last eighteen months were based largely on the recommendations of Dr. Adam Shortt in his celebrated report on City Hall conditions here. Although this report has often been overlooked in City Council discussions it has formed the foundation for the complete shake-up which will be complete when a new Comptroller with new and wider powers is appointed and City Treasurer E. C. Smith is given unrestricted control over the City Treasury.

Instead of taking Dr. Shortt's reports and suddenly putting all its provisions into effect—the Council has made the changes that he recommended over a long period as the time seemed opportune. As a result, Dr. Shortt's proposals for the reform of Victoria's civic government actually are in operation to-day, although this fact is not generally realized.

Budget Reforms
 Probably the most important reform effected in the last two years is the complete re-organization of the Council's budgeting method. Investigations by Finance Committee members at the beginning of this year showed that for years the Council's budgets did not include sufficient money to cover the expenses that had to be met. Large sums that never could be collected were set down under the head of revenue, and expenses that were bound to occur were not estimated on the expenditure side of the budget. As a result of this and shortage in tax collections, large deficits have been occurring every year for a long period. These deficits reached such a large total by the beginning of the year are being paid off by a loan over a long period.

In this year's budget, for the first time in years, the Council faced the situation and is levying in its current taxation for its entire needs. While there may be a deficit as a result of a shortage in tax collections, this deficit is small as compared to previous deficits and probably will be covered in any case by payments on old tax arrears. It was the Council's determination to levy for all its needs that caused the substantial increase in the general taxes this year.

Speed Up Estimates
 Besides reforming its actual budgeting methods the Council speeded up its estimates and got most of them framed within the first few weeks of the year. This the Council delayed fixing the tax rate until the last day allowed by law this delay was caused by the necessity of submitting bridge loan and other financial estimates before the budget was however, every department knew how much money it had to spend during the year. The system started by this year will enable the city to get its financial picture shaped early and so eliminate almost entirely the period during which city officials do not know how they stand.

New Accounting System
 The new accounting system which went into effect at the beginning of this year also will help to prevent the occurrence of deficits. With the new system Council members can see at a glance just how much of every appropriation in the estimates has been spent and how much remains to be spent by City Auditor Ismay and Assistant City Comptroller Muirhead after they have investigated up-to-date methods in other Western Canadian cities. If no department can over-extend any of its appropriations and all department heads will know at any time exactly how much money they have left to spend during the year.

Assessments Deflated
 Heavy cuts in the land assessment of the city's credit in the bond markets of the world. These bonds were floated to refund shortages in the local improvement sinking funds which ran low during the worst of the war years. Bonds to the amount of $1,000,000 were sold last year and $1,400,000 more were disposed of this year. These securities were sold at 95.75, which is considered an excellent price and which is thought to reflect the city's splendid position in the eyes of the financial world. Johnson Street Bridge bonds floated recently brought 98.25.

Check Up Slackness
 Warned by City Treasurer E. C. Smith, the Council this year discovered and checked up former mistakes and faulty handling of certain city securities floated years ago. These securities were floated for repayment in Britain. Shortly after their flotation was authorized bond companies asked the city to authorize the repayment of the loans and interest on them in American funds. A letter bearing the city's seal and promising to make these payments in American money was forwarded by city officials to the bond companies without the authorization of the Council.

This promise, the present Council was advised by City Solicitor H. S. Fringle and City Counselor H. H. Robertson, was quite illegal and could not change the terms of a city loan. During the years when Canadian money and sterling were at a heavy discount in the United States the city, by paying interest in American funds, lost considerable amounts. Now that it understands the situation the Council has ordered its officials to make all future payments in British money as provided on the face of the bonds.

Land Owners Aided
 The city's new measures to aid land owners who were finding it difficult to meet taxation payments under the ten-year instalment plan undoubtedly have enabled many owners to hang on to their property. The new relief scheme allows owners to consolidate all taxation arrears into a capital sum and then pay the total off over a period of fifteen years with interest.

The plan is unusual in that owners do not have to meet regular instalments but may pay off their total obligation as they please so long as they meet annual interest charges and complete the total payment in fifteen years. The success of this
