The Easter business began with a rush, April 18. In the wholesale cut flower district little business is expected until a day or two before the holiday; throughout the week the retailers are busy arranging their plants and pushing them, and buy as light of cut flowers as possible. Last week, bad weather that prevailed up to April 17, prevented the retailers from doing much business and threw practically all the demand into two days. The dark, cool and rainy weather to some extent lessened the supply of cut stock, and throughout the week prices kept advancing and took a big jump April 18. Special American Beauty roses went to $1 and $1.25 each, wholesale rates. Russell and Hadley to 75 cents and $1; Columbia No. 2's $10, and specials, $50 per 100; Prima Donna, $10 to $50. Such roses as Ophelia, the Killarneys, Stanley and Shawyer ranged from $10 to $30 and $35 per 100 though the demand was strongest for the shorter grades. Carnations went to $12 and $15 per 100; sweet peas, $3 to $5 per 100, according to quality. Violets were scarce, and many of them miserably poor, but the best brought $2 and $2.50 per 100 and callas $4. to $6 per dozen. The cut Easter lilies started well at 35 cents bud and flower for ordinary stock and 50 cents for specials, but by the afternoon of April 19, they were going slow, and ordinary quality was down to 25 cents with lower prices by midnight. Special cattleyas went at $1.25 and $1.50 each, wholesale rates; lily of the valley, $8 to $15 per 100; Liliun candidum held at 50 and 75 cents per stalk, but slow. Darwin tulips were about finished before the Easter business started. The best of the other tulips were 50 and 75 cents per dozen. Yellow narcissi, snapdragons, delphiniums and stocks were all slow, with no advance in prices. Smilax, which had been selling well for some time, utterly fell down April 19, and the market was glutted with it. The supply of all cut flowers was much lighter than for Easter, 1918, but prices were much higher, so it may be assumed that growers and wholesalers held their own. It is yet too soon to make a fair comparison. Early reports from many retail stores in this city and Brooklyn, Newark, N. J., and the Oranges, N. J., indicate that the retailers had excellent business in plants, and were generally sold out. All the wholesale stores were open throughout the night of April 19 and until noon of Easter, but it was merely a matter of holding out for prices. At lower figures, all the stock on the market could have been easily cleaned up by 6 p. m., Saturday. As it was, there was some left over. A considerable supply of cut Easter lilies and L. candidums remained unsold as well as a limited quantity of special grade roses, snapdragons and delphiniums. Violets were finally pushed up to $3 per 100, and some of the No. 2 roses of such varieties as Ophelia and the Killarneys, brought $12 per 100. Later reports from the retailers are unanimous that they had fine business in plants, but were greatly dissatisfied over the high prices of cut flowers. In a great city like this, there are tens of thousands of transients and other people that are not householders. To such people, plants do not appeal, because they cannot keep or take care of them. The greatest aggravation to the retailers was the high price of violets. Numbers of them had taken orders in advance, and now say that they sold at cost. At the best, the quality was poor and they had not the "face" to charge their customers $4 or $5 per 100. The matter of high prices at Christmas and Easter has long been a bone of contention, in this city between whole-salers and retailers. The business of a trade paper, as we understand it, is to be impartial, and state the facts; therefore, we are not proffering advice to any branch of the trade. If the trade, as a whole, is satisfied for the sake of a few days of abnormally high prices to be denounced by the buying public, then let the bands play, the clowns tumble and the elephants go round and round.

April 21.—The market is quiet and prices generally down to normal conditions, though the supply of stock is light. No violets are in, and they may as well be forgotten for this season. It develops that a considerable stock of the highest priced tea roses hung fire on the Easter market. Easter Sunday was an exceptionally fine day, as to weather, and corsage business was good with the retail stores, orchids, lily of the valley and sweet peas moving well. A shipment of lilac came in from Washington, D. C., this morning.

NOTES.

In the wholesale district, there is general satisfaction over Easter business. Traendly & Schenck state that they sold everything that they had in cut flowers at good prices. Philip F. Kessler said it was the best Easter business he ever had. He sold 35,000 cut lilies during the week preceding Easter. Walter F. Sheridan sold out everything, and was well pleased with the business. P. J. Smith said that it was the first Easter of his many years in the wholesale trade, that he did not open on Easter Sunday. He was sold out at midnight of the 19th. George J. Polykranas said it was his best Easter business since he became a wholesaler. J. K. Allen said that his business was good, and compared favorably with former years.

N. Christatos, Sixth avenue and 58th street, had an excellent stock, including azaleas. He had good business in plants, but states that, April 19, at least 100 people refused to buy cut flowers on account of high prices.

The Dards store, Madison avenue and 44th street, had a fine stock of lilies, roses, hydrangeas, rhododendrons, daisies, etc., and handsome combination baskets. The stock sold well.

The National Florists Board of Trade has removed its offices to 48 Wall street, where it will continue as heretofore under the management of Edward McK. Whiting. Telephone Hanover 6758.

Wadley & Smythe, Fifth avenue and 42d street, had a good stock of all seasonable plants. Noteworthy features were their fine fuchsias and geraniums grown to standards.

Hession, Madison avenue and 76th street, had, as usual, a fine stock and sold out well. He expressed dissatisfaction at the high prices on cut flowers.

At both the Broadway stores of Malandre Brothers, there were fine displays of all seasonable stocks, including excellent lilies.

C. E. Zervakos, who has stores on Madison and Columbus avenues, had a fine stock and good business.

D. J. Pappas, Inc., Broadway and 106th street, had a fine Easter stock and their business was good.

It is stated on reliable authority that some of the churches used artificial lilies for Easter decorations.

Heary Hart, 1000 Madison avenue, said he had excellent business in both plants and cut flowers.

Hugo H. Jahn, Nostrand avenue, Brooklyn, was well satisfied with Easter business.

Manager McCarty, of James Weir, Inc., Brooklyn, stated that business was good.

SHIPPED DAY ORDER IS RECEIVED*Fort Wayne, Ind.*EASTER TRADE MAKES RECORD.

The Easter business this year was a record breaker. Everyone of the local florists was completely sold out of flowering plants on Saturday, and many report that they were completely cleaned up in all the cut flowers that they could obtain. The weather was ideal. Saturday was fair, and business was enormous. Prices were higher this year on almost every variety of stock. Easter lilies sold for 50 cents for each bloom, hyacinths for 50 cents per bulb, and tulips for 20 cents per bulb. Hydrangeas brought $3, $5, and $8 each, and the rambler roses, dwarf variety, sold for $2, $3, and $5 each, while the climbing ramblers and Tausendschon brought from $5 up to $10 and $12 each. In cut flowers, there were plenty of roses of excellent quality, and these brought from $2 up to $6, while Russell and Columbia sold for $6, $7 and $8 per dozen. Russells took the place of American Beauties entirely for this holiday. Carnations were not so plentiful, and brought $2 per dozen. Cut Easter lilies were very scarce, but callas were in good supply. Cattleyas were in excellent demand, and the call for them was far beyond the supply. Although it is impossible, at this early day, to ascertain the exact increase in the Easter business this year over last, the florists of this city are convinced that there was a substantial gain, in spite of the fact that there was a shortage of plants. On this account, it is believed, many more cut flowers were sold than would have been otherwise.

NOTES.

Specimen antirrhinums were featured at the Flick Floral Co.'s store for Easter. This firm had a fine lot of Easter lily plants, which were entirely sold out long before Sunday. Rambler roses and yellow daisy plants were very fine. They report the trade far heavier this Easter than ever.

Corsage work was a leader at the Doswell Floral Co.'s store. This firm featured special Easter corsages, and used thousands of sweet peas for this work. Their large supply of flowering plants was entirely sold out.

The Freese Floral Co. reports a bigger demand this Easter than ever, with plants all sold out on Saturday. They had an excellent supply of cut flowers for the holiday, and a good amount of funeral work.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. report a scarcity in cut lilies, but a fine supply of other cut flowers. The trade here showed a substantial increase over previous years.

The New Haven Floral Co. had a heavy crop of that popular corsage flower, the sweet pea. This firm enjoyed both a fine wholesale and retail trade.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey could not begin to supply the heavy demand for orchids, although they had large quantities of Cattleya Mossiae.

Ed. Wenninghoff reports that marguerites and the larger plants took well, and he also had a record sale of Easter novelties.

The Freese-Knecht Co. cut a fine large crop of roses for Easter. They report the holiday trade the best in years. H. K.

DULUTH, MINN.—The Northeastern Minnesota Horticultural Society has arranged for a series of lectures on subjects of interest to amateur gardeners.

Boston.*EASTER BUSINESS SHOWS GAIN.

Business in this city during the past week has been good despite the telephone strike and a holiday on Saturday. Easter lilies were scarce and most of the stores were asking 75 cents per flower and sold out quickly. Azaleas were in great demand and the same was true of the French hydrangeas, roses and lilac. The bulbous stock was about over and cleaned up early. White marguerites and bougainvilleas moved slowly. The demand for sweet peas was greater than the supply. Orchids and gardenias moved easily. Roses were plentiful and prices low. Taking everything into consideration, the Easter demand was better than last year.

NOTES.

Houghton & Gorney had a good trade and cleaned out their lily supply before the week was half over. The cut flower trade at this establishment was far ahead of that of last year.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report good Easter business. A late importation of Bermuda lilies, which arrived minus foliage, cleaned up well in funeral work.

At Philip L. Carbone's business was much better than last year with kalmias, lilac, roses and azaleas in good demand.

Thomas F. Galvin's stores report much business lost to them due to the telephone strike.

Welch Bros. Co. had a good trade and cleaned out a large stock early.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 24-26, 1919.

THE price of bags at Chicago April 23, is $52.00.

NEW YORK.—There is a glut of onion sets here and they are hard to move at any price.

J. J. SLUIS, of Sluis Bros., Chicago, sailed for Europe on the S. S. Rotterdam, April 23.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—C. C. Morse & Co. report a continued heavy demand for sweet pea seed.

GARDEN BEET seed crops in California are not promising, a condition attributed to excessive moisture.

EVERETTE R. PEACOCK, Chicago, reports a record season thus far and the rush still on in full volume.

THE federal horticultural board's ruling on sterilization of soils for packing will be found elsewhere in this issue.

It is reported difficult to secure passports for European travel, these documents being issued only in urgent cases.

HARRY A. BARNARD, the well known representative of Stuart, Low & Co., London, Eng., reports cyclamen seed in short supply.

GRASS SEED.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade April 23 were as follows: Timothy, $8.00 to $10.75 per 100 pounds.

THE War Trade Board announces that vegetable seeds may now be exported to Holland. Applications for export licenses will now be considered if accompanied by the proper import certificate number.

JOHN BODGER & SONS Co., Los Angeles, Calif., have acquired an additional farm in the El Monte district for the growing of asters, zinnias and other annuals. The popular annuals are selling well this year.

WHILE it is generally reported that extra early named tulips and some other sorts have been advanced 10 per cent, nevertheless most Dutch houses are maintaining former "bond" prices to regular customers.

THE department of agriculture says there is a shortage of sugar beets, which may become serious in 1921. The present shortage of sugar beet seed for 1920 will amount to 25,000 to 40,000 bags of sugar, it is predicted.

VISITED CHICAGO: Owen F. Trott, representing Kelway & Son, Langport, Eng.; A. Luck, of S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich.; Harry A. Barnard, representing Stuart Low & Co., London, Eng.; Wm. A. Ward, of the Valley Seed Co., Sacramento, Calif.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover market closed steady April 21, at $30.00, registering a drop of 50 cents during the previous seven days. April was quoted at $27.00 and October at $17.75. Timothy was steady, cash being offered at $5.12½, April $5.25, May $5.22½, September $5.65 and October $5.47½.

Onion Sets.

The onion set campaign has made a disappointing finish. All handlers of this stock, growers, warehousemen, jobbers, and even small country dealers, can generally look back upon the season as distinctly unsatisfactory. Everyone concerned must regret that the marketing of this stock is not regulated in some manner to prevent wholesale dumping at critical dates and at prices below cost, thereby bringing loss, not only to the seller, but to communities not otherwise affected, and where stocks, if not interfered with, would have moved fully at a fair profit.

In the Chicago district this week, colors, repicked, well graded and free from sprouts, were worth $1 per bushel, whites $2.25. Growers are hauling sprouted lots to the dumps. Cook county may dump several thousand bushels.

McKenzie Co.'s Opening.

The formal opening of the McKenzie building, the modern 12-story home of the A. E. McKenzie Co., Ltd., Brandon, Man., April 18, was a well attended and enjoyable occasion, arranged at the request of the Brandon Board of Trade. The programme began at 2 p. m., and from that hour until four o'clock, guests inspected the building and its up-to-date equipment. Following this, with the entire first floor comfortably arranged as a forum, a number of interesting addresses were listened to, among them the following: "Our Industries," by J. Howard Rankin, president of the Board of Trade; "Our City," by Mayor A. R. McDiarmid; "Importance of Good Seed," by J. B. Reynolds, president of the Manitoba Agricultural College, and "The Relation of a Seed Institution to Agriculture," by C. W. Speers and the Hon. Crawford Norris, Premier of Manitoba. The programme was interspersed with excellent orchestra selections, and closed with singing "God Save the King."

The building, which is a model of completeness, stands as an example in

Free Seed Appropriation.

The agricultural appropriation bill as passed by the house of representatives provided for the continuance of the congressional seed distribution, with a 50 per cent increase of the funds carried by the appropriation act for the current fiscal year. The bill as reported to the senate by the senate committee on agriculture provided for the continuance of the distribution without increasing the funds over the current year.

As the agricultural appropriation act, along with a number of others, was not completed before the end of the session, this item with all others affecting appropriations for the department of agriculture remains open for determination at the forthcoming special session of congress.

Export and Import Licenses.

The war trade board announces (W. T. B. R. 699) that the many relaxations which have been made in the export and import regulations of the board since the armistice, and the recent changes and reductions in the enemy trading list, have made it possible that applications for export and import licenses may now be considered favorably which in the past it has been necessary to refuse. Applicants, therefore, who have heretofore received refusal notices of export or import licenses, and who are still desirous of making shipments, may reapply, and their applications will be given prompt consideration.

Trade License and Blacklist Lifted.

Paris, April 22.—The supreme economic council today authorized announcement of abolition of the blacklist, licensing and rationing systems as applied to neutrals, crowning the efforts of the American economic delegates since January for the removal of trade restrictions. This will grant freedom of intercourse without which resumption of foreign commerce, so urgently required in the United States and the world, has been almost impossible.

Imports at New York.

Horticultural goods were received at the port of New York, during the week ending April 19, as follows:

Via S. S. Saxonica, from Liverpool, Eng.—

Albert Dickinson Co., 100 bags clover seed.

C. C. Morse & Co., one bag cauliflower seed.

John Scheepers & Co., five cases plants and flower seeds, one bundle plants.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., 34 cases greenhouse plants.

To others: 20 double cask seeds, one box begonia bulbs and live plants, 10 cases trees.

Via S. S. Lancastrian, from London, Eng.—

Vaughan's Seed Store, nine cases mushroom spawn, 10 bags radish seed.

H. F. Darrow Co., one bale and one sack seed.

American Seed Co., two bags seeds.

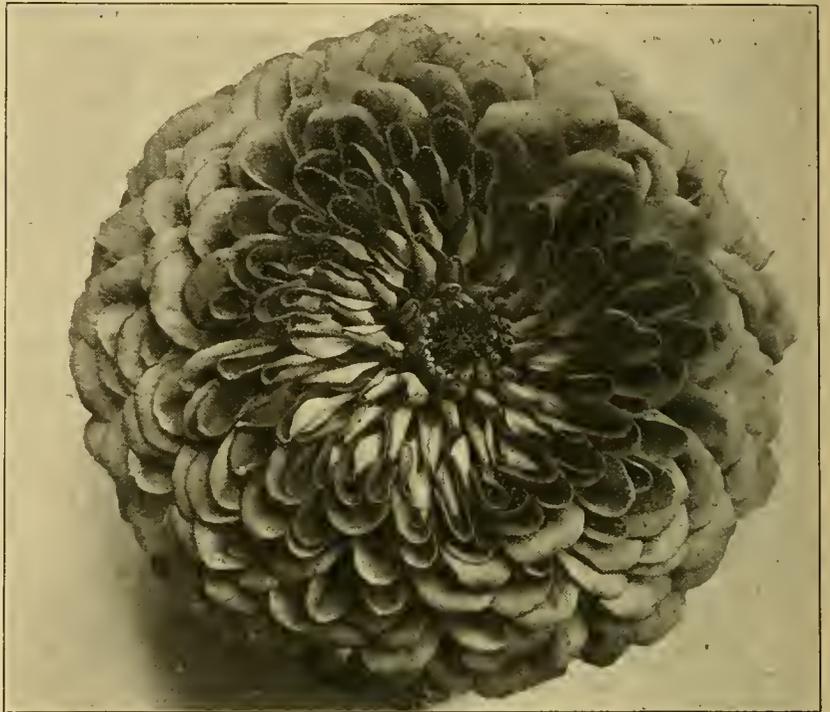

W. R. Coe, 13 cases nursery stock.

To others: One case and 79 bags seeds, one bundle fruit trees, nine cases nursery stock.

SHENANDOAH, IA.—According to the Henry Field Seed Co., business this season is breaking all records and is well distributed over all departments. For four days ending March 20, there were 15,740 orders as compared with 12,494 for the corresponding days in 1918, the volume of sales for the period being $71,843.42 as against $43,100.47 last year. Orders are averaging much larger than a year ago.

LA CROSSE, WIS.—The John A. Salzer Seed Co. reports that the demand at this time is now so heavy that difficulty is experienced in handling it, sales being considerably ahead of last year, with the exception of oats, field peas, field beans and corn. Shortage of labor is a handicap, and the force is taxed to the utmost to keep from getting behind on orders. If the present volume of business continues, it will be the largest in the firm's history.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The mail order trade is holding up steadily up to the present time, although it opened earlier than in the past two seasons, according to the St. Louis Seed Co. The trade in general is buying staples and not novelties, as in former years. Counter sales have been brisk in all lines of field seeds, and unusually heavy in garden and flower seeds. Potatoes are not having the good demand of former years, doubtless due to the low price at which this crop is now offered. If the present good call continues a banner year, equal to that of 1917, is expected.

Paris Seedsmen's Window Displays.

Aside from the exquisite displays that are arranged daily in the windows of the flower shops of Paris, the visitor will find much that is attractive in the windows of the Parisian seedsmen. A custom, which has been growing for several years, is that of arranging window displays in season, collections of irises, tulips, summer annuals, etc., being shown in imitation beds, the pots plunged in rich turf, the whole being made doubly attractive with a background of shrubs or perennial borders. All the artistry of an attractive horticultural display is used to gladden the eye as well as to educate the public, in the arrangement of these windows.

Burpee's Home Garden Plans.

The W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., is sending out planting plans for home and country garden areas varying from 600 to 10,000 square feet, showing the arrangement of the rows, dates of planting, a list of seeds with directions for sowing and following up the work week by week throughout the season.

We are in receipt of the second number of "Nicholson's Notes," a little magazine for seed dealers published every now and then by Robert Nicholson, of Dallas, Tex. This issue contains much valuable information, attractively presented, with enough good humor to make all the reading a genuine pleasure.

CLEVELAND, O.—A. C. Kendel's Seed Store reports that on account of being located in the north, it is a little early to forecast what the trade will be. Thus far, there has been an average demand, with no noticeable complaint as to high prices and indications point to good business, as workers will have more time available.

LAWRENCE, KAN.—While the demand has been rather backward up to about two weeks ago, business since then has been very good, although orders from dealers are smaller than usual, is the report of the Barteldes Seed Co. Merchants appear to be carrying very small stocks of field seeds, preferring to order in limited quantities as needed. Mail order business is good, and a splendid garden seed trade is looked for as soon as the weather permits extensive planting.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President;
C. W. Waid, Grand Rapids, Mich., Vice-
President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky.,
Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids,
Mich., Treasurer.

FAIRMOUNT, IND.—The Snyder Preserve Co. is propagating more than 2,000,000 tomato plants at its establishment here.

CHICAGO.—The Vegetable Growers' Supply Co., 1815 Birchwood avenue, has increased its capital stock from $25,000 to $75,000.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 22.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen boxes, $3.00 to $4.00; celery, Florida, crate, $6.50 to $7.25; leaf lettuce, per box 40 cents; radishes, per barrel, $4.00 to $5.50; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $4.50 to $6.00.

New York, April 21.—Celery (Florida), per case $4.00 to $7.50; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $3.00 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 35 cents; lettuce, per strap, $2.00 to $5.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $3.00.

Tomato Prices.

The price of greenhouse tomatoes varies with the supply and demand. The lowest price received for midwinter crop at the agricultural experiment station of the Maryland State College of Agriculture, College Park, as shown by Bulletin 222 of the station, was 20 cents per pound and the highest 35 cents. The spring crop does not sell for quite such high prices on account of being in competition with the outdoor grown Florida stock. The greenhouse stock, however, will always sell for a higher price than the southern grown stock, because it is of much superior quality.

Hardening Plants.

Under the old system of gardening, the term, "hardening off," simply meant the gradual exposure of plants in frames to the full outdoor air. The general practice was to increase the air supply gradually by raising the sash more and more each day, and then on fine days removing the sash entirely for several hours in the warm part of the day, then the sash were removed entirely, and only replaced during frosty nights.

Under present difficulties, with scarcity of labor and high wages, together with almost total disappearance of manure, a different course must be practiced. More and more the plants needed are produced under greenhouse roofs and the hardening process must be different. We have for many years paid great attention to this part of the work, partly owing to the fact that we are shippers of plants. Our plants must withstand long trips, come out sound, and produce a paying crop or our trade will suffer. The fact that we have repeat orders from the same parties year after year, proves that our methods are right.

To economize labor, our plants are all produced under glass; they are produced with the minimum amount of moisture that will sustain them without injury, and when they approach maturity, water is withheld to such a degree that a firm plant is the result. This method also develops a powerful root system, owing to the constant search for moisture. On hot days, we syringe such plants once or twice to prevent sun scald, being sure they are dry before night. Such plants are superior to those produced under outside conditions, as tests have proved they will stand more frost and re-root more rapidly.

MARKETMAN.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports received by the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture indicate a higher trend in prices with moderate shipments during the period April 15-22. Following the recession of the previous week, potato markets again became strong with sharp advances, especially in the east. New York Round Whites in bulk closed with a top of $2.50-$2.52 per 100 pounds at shipping points, a gain of 50-60 cents. Consuming markets closed at $2.35-$2.00. Sacked Maine Green Mountains made equally sharp gains, reaching $2.68-$2.78 f. o. b. producing sections and closing $2.65-$2.95 at New York and Boston. No. 1 northern sacked white stock rose 30 cents in the Chicago carlot market, closing at $2.15-$2.25 per 100 pounds. Colorado No. 1 sacked whites gained 10-25 cents closing at $1.70-$1.85 f. o. b. Greeley. The cabbage market was slightly stronger with an advance on first-class stock. Texas Flat Dutch strengthened slightly to a range of $120-$140 per ton in middle-western markets. South Carolina Wakefields ruled $5 per barrel f. o. b. shipping points and was strong in consuming markets at $6.25-$7. Florida stock declined fully $1 in producing sections to a range of $4.75-$5 per barrel crate and weakened in northern markets at $6.50-$7. Onion prices tended upward. Western New York shipping points held at $5 per 100 pounds and advanced $1 in leading consuming markets to a range of $5-$6. Texas No. 2 yellow Bermudas were $2.75-$3.25 per standard crate cash f. o. b. Good Florida tomatoes strengthened slightly in producing sections to $3.50-$4.50 per six-basket crate f. o. b. shipping points. The range in northern consuming markets increased to $4-$5.50.

COVINGTON, KY.—Charles C. Miller, a well-known florist here, died March 23 of pneumonia, age 42 years.

COLUMBUS, O.—The Cottage Rose Garden Floral Co. has leased a store at Main street and Capitol alley, and will be ready for business May 1.

LOCKPORT, N. Y.—Percy Rogers, for many years a resident of this state, and formerly a florist in this city, died March 29 at his home in Albion, N. Y., age 61 years.

This "Velvet" Comes in Mighty Handy

Yep, collected my Liberty Bond interest today. Seems like finding money to clip off the old coupon and shove it in the window like a certified check. That "velvet" will sure come in handy. Some way or another, I never felt so set up and idly rich in my life as I do now, with Liberty Bonds drawing interest regularly.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-four annual convention will be held at Chicago in 1919.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—The city and county authorities are planning a nursery.

THE Virginia peach crop was badly damaged, April 1, by a temperature of 24 degrees.

MISHAWAKA, IND.—William F. Bollager, a landscape gardener, well known in Cleveland, O., where he was engaged for a number of years, is now making his headquarters in this city.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—The Bloomington Nurseries Co. has been granted permission to sell $200,000 of seven per cent preferred stock. The officers of the company are: W. E. Rossney, president; Sidney Tuttle, vice-president; A. M. Augustine, secretary. The capital stock is $600,000.

Norway to Aid French Reforestation.

Norway intends to help out the restoration of the devastated part of France, in the front zone by planting a belt of Norwegian forest trees. Much enthusiasm has developed for the plan, and it is intended to begin this spring. It comprises the planting of 250 acres annually, for five years. The idea is to send a forestry party of about 50 Norwegians, fully equipped with trees, tools, tents, and stores, so as not to impose the slightest burden on France. The tentative zone for planting the belt of trees is from Adrennes toward the Belgian frontier, behind Arras, where there formerly was fine forest; but action will be taken in accordance with the desires of the French.—Canadian Lumberman.

Berberis and Mahonia Quarantine.

The fact has been determined by the secretary of agriculture, and notice is hereby given, that the common barberry (Berberis vulgaris) and its horticultural varieties, as well as other species of berberis and mahonia, are capable of harboring the black stem rust of wheat, oats, barley, rye, and many wild and cultivated grasses. Through the co-operation of the department of agriculture with state officials, local organizations, and individuals, susceptible species of barberry and mahonia have been very largely eradicated from the states of Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Montana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Wyoming, and Colorado.

Now, therefore, I, David F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture, under the authority conferred by Section 8 of the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912 (37 Stat., 315), as amended by the Act of Congress approved March 4, 1917 (39 Stat., 1134, 1165), do hereby quarantine, effective May 1, 1919, the states of Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada,

New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia, and by this Notice of Quarantine No. 38 do order that no plants of the following species, Berberis aethensis, B. altaica, B. amurensis, B. aristata, B. asiatica, B. atropurpurea, B. brachybotrys, B. brevipaniculata, B. buxifolia, B. canadensis, B. caroliniana (carolina), B. coriaria, B. cretica, B. declinatum, B. fendleri, B. fischeri, B. fremontii, B. heteropoda, B. ilicifolia, B. integerrima, B. laciflora, B. lycium, B. macrophylla, B. neopalensis, B. neubertii, B. siberica, B. sieboldii, B. sinensis, B. trifoliolata, B. umbellata, B. vulgaris, including its subspecies and horticultural varieties, Mahonia aquifolium, M. diversifolia, M. glauca, and M. repens, shall be moved or allowed to move interstate to points outside of the quarantined area.

This quarantine shall not apply to the movement by the United States department of agriculture of the products named for experimental or scientific purposes.

D. F. HOUSTON,
Secretary of Agriculture.

BALTIMORE, MD.—Mrs. Caroline Hess, widow of the late Conrad Hess, a well-known florist of this city, who passed away within the past year, died at her home March 30, age 69 years.

CHARITON, IA. — The Rosa Greenhouses have been purchased by the Kemble Floral Co. which already has branches in seven cities in this state. Additions will be made to the range here.

OHIO'S CELEBRATED CYCLAMEN SPECIALIST

After using your No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler I came to the conclusion that had I to install more boilers it would be the Kroeschell and no other. It really is a pleasure to heat, no trouble to get the desired heat in a very short time.

Mothers' Day Preparations.

See Last Week's Issue for Mothers' Day Suggestions, Maxims, Advertising, Etc.

Enthusiasm for the Day.

THE DATE IS MAY 11.

To push Mothers' day to its limit, with the idea of making it one of the best flower holidays of the year, one must believe in and see its possibilities. The successful tradesman has his mind at all times on his business; he is always working out new ideas, one success leads to another, each new thought being carried out with more enthusiasm. What greater opening for business can be conceived of than this grand idea, which if carried to the full, means that every one of the 110,000,000 inhabitants of this country becomes a flower buyer or recipient on the second Sunday in May. It is enough to enthrone the most lethargic or pessimistic retailer in the land.

It is very hard to get some people out of the beaten path, but enthusiasm for Mother's day if it is possible to get them to believe in it, will do it. They are not asked to try experiments; the holiday is an assured fact. Florists in many localities, where they are alive to their opportunities, have by their advertising and displays, so featured the idea, that it has become the custom to such a degree, they are hardly able to supply the demand.

A better period for the observance could not have been selected, as flowers are always plentiful in May. It is not a certain date which ever changing in turn falls on each day of the week, but is always on the same day, the second Sunday in May dedicated as a national adoration day for the mothers of the land.

Be a Mothers' day man, study up its great future, and boost it in every possible way. Talk to the would-be objector, the man who never sees any good in a new idea, meet his arguments with favorable facts, bring him around, and he will soon be pulling instead of knocking.

Individuals, for their own benefit, should make the most of the holiday, and will also feel the impetus that comes from the combined efforts of the whole trade. Feature the day for at least a week before by appropriate window displays, in which Mothers' day cards are to be conspicuous. Do not show white carnations, but use a number of vases, each containing popular flowers with a card, "Which is your mother's favorite flower?" Decorated foliage and flowering plants, marked, "Gifts for Mothers' day," will be found popular and salable.

A portrait of Whistler's mother can be purchased at any art store. This, placed in the window and decorated, will attract attention and suggest a similar treatment for the portrait of mother at home.

Interest the papers in the home town. They will be glad to print articles descriptive of the significance of the day. People have to be told again and again of many things that deeply concern them before they finally take action. Advertising campaigns in introducing new things, which cost immense sums, have at times almost failed, but been saved from disaster by another hard push which turned the tide. Not one in 10 knows of Mother's day, but when the ratio is increased to one in five, the rest will be easy.

Now, boys, all together. Let every branch of the business pull with all our might for Mothers' day, and make it the greatest floral event of the year.

Mother's Favorite Flower.

With the present scarcity of carnations, and the high prices they reached at Easter, there is every reason to suppose that for white carnations on Mother's day, the sky will be the limit. If they are featured, as some, in fact many stores appear to think necessary, there will not be one-tenth enough to supply the demand, with the inevitable result of prices that will "kill the goose that lays the golden egg." In all the propaganda and advertising that is used to establish and make popular the second Sunday in May of each year, as a day for the adoration of the mothers of the country, and establishing the custom of sending them flowers, it should be emphasized that the flowers to send are "your mother's favorite flower." Everything possible should be done to discourage the use of the white carnation; it is the bugbear, around which hangs all the high price objections to the day. Eliminate this flower in connection with the observance and adopt the slogan "your mother's favorite flower," and the whole list with its great variety, is offered in almost unlimited supply.

To make a distinction in the color of flowers for mothers living, and those who have passed away, is also objectionable. The preference is to be at all times that of "mother," or placing on her grave, those known to be her favorites.

The custom of wearing flowers on that day will, of itself, if it can be established, cause a tremendous demand. These are worn in honor of Mothers' day, in adoration of one's own mother, and the selection should be that of "your mother's favorite flower." This particular feature of the day should be emphasized in every retail shop by a display of made-up boutonnieres of various flowers, and a card calling attention to the proper observance of the day in the selection of "your mother's favorite flower" to be worn that day in her honor.

The possibilities of the extent to which the volume of business of this floral holiday can be raised, has not yet dawned on many in the trade. In a few communities the craft have rallied together to urge, and by their united action, establish the custom of sending and wearing flowers on Mother's day. The results of these first efforts have been surprisingly large, the demand created being beyond their fondest expectations.

"The Lord helps them that help themselves," is being demonstrated everywhere, when initiative and well directed energy is put behind any real business proposition. Mother's day, on account of the beautiful sentiment that inspires its observance, and which is to be expressed or carried out in flowers, has given the business an impetus, wherever there is knowledge of the custom, without any assistance from the trade. As it is as yet known to comparatively few, the response in an increased demand, immediately follows well directed and illustrated newspaper advertising, and reading column notices giving in detail the object and sentiment connected with the observance of the day.

The trade could not as a body invest money in a better way or one likely to bring greater returns than in advertising and establishing the custom of sending or presenting on Mother's day, "your mother's favorite flower."

MADISON, WIS.—The Rentschler Floral Co. has increased its capital stock from $60,000 to $75,000.

WARREN, O.—H. W. Starr, traveling representative of the Monarch Floral Co., is in a serious condition as the result of an automobile accident.

MONONGAHELA, PA.—The Keystone Greenhouse Co. has been incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000 by James Crall, Edgar J. Lyda and Robert H. Robertson, and will grow vegetables and fruit.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

A retail florist, who has made quite a success of his business, declares the good results are due to the training he received from his father, from whom he learned, early in life, the importance of close attention to details, particularly in the conservation of all material used in the business. Plants were never allowed to get dry. If in bad condition when returned from decorations, they were given the best care possible, to revive the flowers which might then be cut off and used in work. He was always careful to use up the stock of yesterday, if any, before touching that of today. Whenever possible, he kept his customers' attention directed to the flowers he was most anxious to sell, or in which there was the most profit. If certain styles of baskets or vases did not seem to take, they were put in the best condition, a sample or two filled with plants and flowers and a ribbon decoration, and featured in this way, he generally got them going. He had found a quick turnover, with a limited and constantly changing stock, much better than a great lot of goods that gave too much variety and were likely to become shopworn before they could be moved.

All kinds of shrubbery will now soon be available which can be used in sprays and design work to good advantage. The spiraeas, with their graceful sprays, and the deutzias, should be important items of stock while they last.

The calla came into its own this season. They attained a prominence never reached before, and as far as possible, they should be kept in the first division. They are especially adapted for large sprays and baskets, either by themselves, or in connection with other flowers. A very effective combination seen recently was a pillow made with callas, pink snapdragons and a center of white Spanish iris.

It is now predicted that carnations will be scarce until after Memorial day. There will be a great scramble for the white ones for Mothers' day. The wise florist will cut them out altogether, and make use of and emphasize the slogan, "Your Mother's Favorite Flower." Each individual mother has her preference, and would very likely, if given her choice, prefer a foliage or flowering plant to the more perishable cut flower. Make up a few foliage and fern baskets with vases in them for cut flowers, which when filled with available blossoms, and labeled "Mothers' day baskets" or "For Mothers' day," will be found salable. It is up to each florist to push the Mothers' day propaganda to the limit. All the other holidays of the year have features that are taken advantage of by various lines of business, but the second Sunday in May is purely a floral holiday, which can and should be made of great advantage to the entire trade. Let all get back of and push the slogan, "Your Mother's Favorite Flower."

It is now time to plant the window and porch boxes and the lawn vases. Stock is scarce and much higher this year, as is labor, soil, manure, etc., and prices showing a good profit should be obtained. The feeling that people will not pay increased prices is a great hindrance to business. Values are only relatively high, because money is plentiful and has only 50 per cent of former buying power. Do not be afraid to ask a reasonable profit on all orders, no matter how high they total. If your customer wants or needs the work they will pay your price, as they cannot do better elsewhere. Early last fall, when prices of cut flowers took such a radical rise, many at first were averse to ask a reasonable profit for fear of losing their trade, thinking the increase was but temporary. Later, however, they found it necessary, if they were to continue in business, to ask higher prices, and to their surprise, with but little protest, they were able to sell at the advanced figures. It was the same at Christmas, and at the Easter business just closed, 75 cents and even as high as $1.25 each per flower was obtained for Easter lilies on the plants, this latter figure being the price with some of the florists in the national capital. The way to get a good profit is to have things you have faith in, that you know are all right, and according to the market, worth every cent you ask for them. You can then state your price with confidence, not in an apologetic way, as if you knew it was very dear, but you could not help it. Such an attitude is a great detriment to the business of any store.

Preparations for Memorial day should fill in all or any of the spare time.

BASKET OF POLYANTH

There is much that can be done in making up magnolia and oak leaf wreaths and other special badge designs that take so much time later on, when even the minutes are so valuable.

Everyone in the trade should concern himself with the publicity campaign. In the various cities and large communities, where the trade have gotten together for local advertising for special days, results have been, in a number of instances, surprisingly good, showing direct benefits greatly in excess of the investment. The national campaign, if backed up in this way by all the trade, would show even greater results. Let everyone contribute nationally and back up the movement locally by using the electros, literature and window signs that cost so little and promise so much. Do not forget the F. T. D. There is a gold mine in it for every one who ties up to and exploits the work of this organization.

Spring Specials.

Spring, with its holidays, Easter, Mothers' day and the Memorial of May 30, which events give a wonderful impetus to the business for the time being, extends for a period of three months, in which the days and weeks between must needs be lived through, when rents fall due, salaries have to be paid, and a hundred and one other expenses have to be met. Of course, there is the inevitable mortuary demand, which is really the backbone of the business, and furnishes half the work, and for many nearly all.

To keep things moving, and to at all times stimulate the demand, there must needs be extra attractions, not that something new is to be shown each week, as that would be almost impossible, but all the old familiar and popular flowers, which as they arrive in their season, appear new, can be made very attractive and presented in some novel way that is sure to be noticed, commented on and talked about.

A special of Killarney roses in small vase or tumbler baskets of a blue tone, each with a little knot of blue ribbon, will, with a number grouped together in the window, and some suspended in shower effect above, be sure to stimulate sales. A price card should be conspicuous.

Pot geraniums, three good sized, 4-inch, planted together in an 8-inch azalea pot, will, after a week's growth in the greenhouse, be well filled with flowers, and a number together will make a very attractive showing for a window display. The price, conspicuously displayed, will do the rest.

Another good plant special, due about this time, is the shrubby calceolaria, which with its cloud of yellow blossoms, makes a wonderfully showy specimen, entirely different from anything else to be seen at this time.

The coming of the stork, which busy bird seems to be always on the job, is an event of great importance that florists should turn to good account. The window or store should never be without something made up of small flowers in some of the many receptacles provided by the wholesale houses. In many small cribs or cradles, a low vase or two of Sweetheart roses, pansies, marguerites or sweet peas can be placed without damage to the flowers. The showing of these little conceits will often call to mind an event that had been overlooked, and a sale is made. It should be much more the custom to send these flowers of congratulation than is now considered necessary, and it is up to the florist to bring this about by his frequent displays that keep it in mind.

TUMBLER BASKET OF SPRING FLOWERS.
Daffodils and Daisies.

Garden vases will especially appeal to all who have room for them. In many small grass plots a pedestal vase of flowering plants and vines is just what is required. A few of these, well filled, will make ornaments for the outside front of the store. If there is room to carry a line of these garden and lawn ornaments, quite a trade can be worked up annually at this time.

Another decorative feature that is popular at this season is the hanging basket. These receptacles for plants and vines can be offered in great variety from the small galvanized or green wire moss lined basket, the wooden patterns with their rustic facing and handles, to the more elaborate light iron ornamental designs. When started in the greenhouse, these soon make a fine showing that, when displayed in the front of the store, is sure to attract attention. Balancing two baskets one at each end of a cord that runs over two pulleys, makes them very easy to water and care for, as when one is pushed up, the other comes down to be plunged in water, over which it can be raised to drain. This will appeal to many who object to the old step ladder method necessary for such work.

National Publicity for Flowers.

There are many ardent supporters of our campaign who have followed up the work closely enough to assure themselves that our efforts to increase business are yielding a bumper measure of success. The following letter, from a well known firm, vouches for a direct benefit resulting from the publicity campaign:

Lincoln, Ill., April 19, 1919.

"John Young,
New York.

"Dear Sir:

"Enclosed please find our check for $50 in payment of our subscription for 1919 to the florists' publicity fund. We are finding evidence of substantial returns from this advertising from a source we had little thought of, until we began to notice such evidence in the increase of orders from it. This source is the better class of magazine readers in a number of little towns. We can only attribute the increase in the number of accounts from these smaller towns to the attractively planned advertisements placed in the various magazines of wide circulation.

"It is our belief that while there will not be the great scarcity of flowers during the next year which has prevailed since the summer of 1918, nevertheless, demand will be so largely augmented by the highly intelligent advertising campaign now being prosecuted by our national society, that prices will be at least in a considerable measure sustained. "GULLETT & SONS."

If it were needed, this letter might be taken as a direct endorsement of the policy of our committees to confine our advertising to the national magazines of general circulation. Our subscribers are to be found in practically every section of the country, therefore our advertising mediums must cover equitably every bit of territory of the United States, in which case they also, necessarily, cover Canada. To every million subscribers to these magazines, it is safe to add at least four million readers, for it is universally admitted that the average of readers for each copy put out is five persons. Small wonder, then, that our publicity is far reaching.

If non-subscribers would give a little thought to these facts, and, as well, make it their business to inspect our advertisements in magazines which surely come to their hands in some way, considerable impetus would be given to the campaign. The "broadside" recently sent out by our promotion bureau, and which is now in the hands of the trade in every section of this country, gives full information as to where our advertisements are to be seen and also describes the various aids for making local connection with them. It is to the interest of every florist to make this connection, either through the newspaper electrotypes provided, or by projection in moving picture theatres of the lantern slides furnished for this purpose. Anyone who has not received a broadside should make immediate application to the secretary for one.

JOHN YOUNG, Secy.

Is Average Florist Good Business Man?

This is the question that I have often heard discussed—and cussed. Well, it is really hard to say, but there is no doubt that the majority who are good business men, have made a success of their venture in the florist business, despite poor conditions and lack of proper organization; and then there are some who will have to be classed as successful, because they made money "without the foolish expenditure of money for advertising," or the help of the national organization or any of the large trade organizations. Such a man is in a class that is known the world over as "selfish," feeling that there is some one else spending his time and money, and he will get results just the same. By comparison, we class him just as an American does the uneducated and, perhaps, unfortunate of some of the trouble burdened countries for whom America went into the war, with the hope of some day taking him by the hand and say, "My friend, my work has not been in vain, for now you see the light."

How few of the craft know of or care for the great work done in their behalf in protecting them from bad legislation, or from fraud, through lack of knowledge of losses they would have sustained without that knowledge? There are those who do untiring work for the benefit of all in the trade and ask for their reward—results. So when you are asked for your just share of expense as a contribution toward the national publicity campaign, you are enjoying a distinct privilege.

The slogan, "Say it with Flowers," is given you to use without question. Are you so ungrateful or short sighted as not to see what it all means to you? The moneys contributed are used mostly in national magazine advertising contracts. In order to secure space in the leading publications, copy must be given two or three months in advance of publication, which means if we are to spend money for the starting of a vigorous campaign when the late summer and fall crops are in, we must have assurance that we can meet our obligations, that's all.

That's the story. Now it is up to the trade, all concerned in every branch of our industry. Let us hear from you.

Houston Flower Show.

The flower show held April 12 at Houston, Tex., under the joint auspices of the Houston Horticultural Society and the Houston Post, attracted large crowds to what was one of the best exhibitions ever staged in that city. The displays were advantageously arranged on long tables in the corridors of the Post building. Roses were, it would seem, the predominant feature, but there were many other flowers that found favor. The exhibits arranged by the local florists presented a profusion of choice stock in cut flowers, pot plants and baskets. The R. C. Kerr Co. took the highest honors for roses produced at its local range, the effectiveness being enhanced by their splendid arrangement in extra large vases under the direction of E. W. Eichling. The firm's rose specialist, A. F. Koehle, was responsible for the fine quality of the blooms, stems varying in length from 24 to 48 inches, the outstanding varieties being Red Radiance, Pink Radiance, Hoosier Beauty, Mrs. Charles Russell, White Killarney, Sunburst, Ophelia, Mrs. George Shawyer, Killarney Brilliant, Richmond and Cecile Brunner. The Kerr exhibit, which was the largest in the show, also included geraniums, pelargoniums, sweet peas and a variety of other flowers. Paul M. Carroll staged the best hydrangeas in the exhibition, the home grown plants in six varieties having wonderful heads of bloom. He also featured yellow and white callas, Spanish and Japanese irises in baskets, and some fine ferns and palms. His display was much admired. R. G. Hewitt, of the Brazos Greenhouses, had a novel exhibit, showing what could be done in amaryllis culture. His baskets of snapdragons in many varieties and colors were equally fine. Dracenas and Spanish irises also showed splendid form. R. F. Lawson, of the Oaks Floral Co., had a basket of pansies three feet in length, containing a great variety with some of the flowers three inches in diameter. He also had fine specimen bougainvilleas white callas, petunias and Whitmani ferns. This display, while not large, was not lacking in quality. Clarence L. Brock, superintendent of the city greenhouses, exhibited several vases of choice outdoor roses, noteworthy being J. B. Clark and President Taft. One of the closest decisions made by the judges, S. J. Mitchell, C. L. Brock and Charles Hogan, was in the choice of the best rose in the show. While a fine specimen of J. L. Mock carried off the honors by unanimous verdict, a magnificent Paul Neyron was a close second. There were in all 14 classes, all of which had numerous entries. After the close of the show, the flowers were donated to hospitals. The management of the exhibition was in the capable hands of P. M. Carroll, R. G. Hewitt, John Bell, E. W. Eichling, A. F. Koehle and Henry Carter.

SHEFFIELD, ALA.—The Tri-Cities Floral Co. will be opened here by G. W. Reddus and Charles Switzer. A range will be erected in the near future.

HYDRANGEA FOR EASTER.

Two 1-year Plants in 11-inch Tub.

HYDRANGEAS FOR EASTER AT FLORACROFT GARDENS, MOORESTOWN, N. J.
Elevated Plant in 8-inch Pot.

Easter Hydrangeas.

The Floracraft Gardens, Moorestown, N. J., make a specialty of hydrangeas for Easter and do them well; such an even lot, every plant well flowered, nearly all of them with a bud on every shoot, is seldom seen. They are a mixture of the French varieties, and without chemical assistance, show quite a range of colors from light pink to shades of dark blue.

The stock is all worked up on the place. Young plants rooted in February and March are planted out in the field in May. Those to be made up into large plants for 8-inch pots or tubs are planted two together. The young stock left over, or not required for the field, are placed in 4-inch pots and plunged in a frame outside where they grow all summer, and when winter sets in, are covered with sash, but receive no other protection. In January, they are brought in and furnish all the cuttings for the season's planting.

The Easter stock is grown on the same piece of ground year after year. The soil is very sandy, but gets bone meal and other fertilizers and is sown with rye in the fall, which is turned under in the spring. A pipe watering system insures the necessary moisture. The plants are cut back but once, which is always done the last day in July. The shoots are not pinched, but cut back to good eyes or buds, so that the next growth shall be strong and vigorous. They make their greatest growth in September. Early in October, they are lifted and potted in good stiff soil. All the earth in which they are grown is so light and sandy that it falls from them when lifted, leaving the roots entirely bare; this does not check them, and they soon take hold of the new soil.

They are placed as soon as potted in high board frames, the pots resting on the ground set close together. None of the foliage is removed, and the plants pack in pretty closely together. As hard frosts set in, the frames are covered with sash. In severe weather they freeze hard and gradually drop their foliage. They are brought inside the first week in January, given a temperature of 40° which is gradually raised to 60°, but never any higher, as Mr. Ross, the superintendent, feels that extra heat retards rather than accelerates growth. Why shoots become blind, or fail to produce buds, he thought was due to unripened or weak wood. He is always particular in cutting back for the last or flowering shoots, to prune so that the strongest buds or eyes were left the first to start, which insured a strong sturdy growth that was pretty sure to set buds.

An experienced grower can tell when the growth is finished in the fall, about what proportion of buds were set to the plant.

Last summer, he made cuttings from a lot of the shoots cut from the plants, which rooted nicely. These were potted in 2½-inch pots and later in fours. They were grown on inside in a cool house and brought on along with the frame stock when moved inside. Nothing could be more beautiful than these single stem four-inch pot plants, which stand about 12 inches high with good foliage, each crowned with one large head of bloom of a beautiful shade of pink. There are only 500, but 5,000 could have been sold. None of this stock in any size is staked, as the stems appear to be firm and strong enough to hold the flowers in position.

The accompanying illustrations show how wonderfully well flowered these plants are. They are but one year old, the larger plants, as stated above, being placed two together when planted in the field. Eight-inch pots carry 15 to 18 heads, while the 11-inch tubs have 28 to 35.

Easter lilies are also a specialty here the year round. Three thousand Azores and about the same number of Bermudas and cold storage giganteums are all in good shape. The illustration shows a pot of each variety, giving an idea of their vitality and flower producing capacity.

GREELEY, Co.—With a good supply both in plants and cut flowers and prices advanced 25 per cent over the Easter period of 1918, the Gardner Floral Co. says there was an increase of 50 per cent in its sales. In plants, the best call was for bulbous stock and in cut flowers everything sold well.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. — Bertermann Bros. Co. was well supplied with Easter stock in all lines and sales showed a good increase over last year both in volume and number. In plants, lilies maintained the lead in popularity followed by hydrangeas and spiraeas. Bulbous stock was least sought. Lilies brought 50 to 60 cents per bud and flower and fortunately there were enough to supply the city demand. Many Bermudas were among the offerings. Reports in general from other cities in the state show a splendid business and excellent results from the advertising being done by the Society of American Florists and the Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

EASTER TRADE.

Wonderful Business in all Sections.

Reports which have reached us during the past week from practically every section of the United States, and also from several cities in Canada, leave no doubt as to the wonderful business enjoyed by the trade during the 1919 Easter period, and which appears to be a good criterion in planning for the Mothers' day demand. As stated in last week's issue, page 695, the increases reported ranged from 20 to 100 per cent, with 35 per cent as perhaps a fair average. The shortage in lilies, while in a measure disappointing, in reality seemed to have little effect, as the stores as a rule closed with clean shelves and counters when the rush was over. As will be seen from the following condensed reports, business was, with very few exceptions, most gratifying, and better than in previous years:

SEATTLE, WASH.—Paul E. Lange reports Easter prices much better than in previous years, especially lilies, which advanced about 100 per cent, but with a short supply of these and all other plants and the same condition existing in cut flowers, the volume of business fell 20 per cent below that of 1918. Lilies cleaned up first with large baskets and boxes least salable. A heavy call for cut stock left little choice for favoritism. The weather, which was inclement during the week, had a bad effect on business, there being heavy rains on Friday and Saturday and showers on Sunday. It was the best Easter for growers in many years. Prices were good and everything was cleaned up a week in advance. The temporary flower stores and stands that usually spring up each year at this time were missing and with this competition eliminated, the trade had the field to themselves.

SPOKANE, WASH.—The best Easter in the history of the firm is reported by Hoyt Bres. There was more business with less of the long hours and tired feeling. The absence of Easter lilies was responsible to considerable extent for this as many more plants of other kinds can be sold and wrapped in the same period of time. The total sales in money value were about 30 per cent greater than in 1918 with prices stronger and an ample supply in all lines. With no lilies to offer, hydrangeas, roses, cinerarias, genistas and tulips ran a close race for the lead in favor, with genistas left far in the rear. In cut stock the best call went to roses and carnations although yellow narcissi and tulips sold well.

WORCESTER, MASS.—Easter business was about the same as in 1918. While prices were better than at that time, a shortage of low priced lily plants held the volume of sales down, according to H. F. A. Lange. Aside from small pot lilies, the plant supply was equal to requirements, and violets were the short item in cut flowers. Rose plants were the most popular, with spiræas least in demand. All cut stock sold well. The telephone strike interfered somewhat with suburban orders, and bad weather early in the week also had its effect. The last two days the rush was so heavy that it was almost impossible to handle the trade.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Clark Bros. report 1919 Easter business recorded a gain of 20 per cent over last year's sales with a general advance in prices. In plants, Easter lilies were in limited supply and a shortage of cut flowers also existed, especially carnations. French hydrangeas and rambler roses were the best sellers.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.—With prices 25 to 50 per cent in advance of those of a year ago, Easter business at the establishment of the Pikes Peak Floral Co. showed a gain of about one-third. The plant supply, with the exception of Easter lilies, was plentiful, but 50 per cent more cut stock was needed to fill all orders, with no special demand for any particular flower. Large plants were the least desired. Roses in baskets went well as did 6-inch fuchsias and heliotropes, also pans of hyacinths, tulips and spiræas. Lilies sold at 50 cents per bloom.

BRISTOL, TENN.—The Fairmount Gardens increased their Easter business 45 per cent over that of last year with prices more satisfactory than ever before. Easter lilies were very scarce and one-third more cut flowers could have been disposed of had they been on hand. Carnations and roses sold well and there was a strong demand for corsages which depleted the supply of lily of the valley, violets, sweet peas, etc. Hundreds of soldiers from this city have returned from overseas and everyone that had money bought flowers.

EAST AURORA, N. Y.—A greater demand than last year by 35 per cent and prices from 25 to 50 per cent higher are features of the 1919 Easter trade reported by Fred W. Wise. The supply of small plants was short of requirements, but there was ample cut stock with the exception of sweet peas. While the general call was for medium priced plants, buyers took the more expensive ones rather than go without. Roses and carnations did not have a heavy sale, corsage flowers being the leaders.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—At the close of business Saturday, the Easter demand had practically resulted in a complete cleanup of cut flowers in every retail shop in this city, according to the F. Walker Co. The plant supply was equal to requirements, but more cut stock could have been moved had it been available. Hydrangeas, begonias and cinerarias were popular and there was a good call for corsages. Very few lilies were grown for this market and few lily plants were offered.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson had about the same volume of business as in 1918, with plant prices advanced, but cut flowers selling lower and the latter were plentiful. There did not seem to be the usual demand for variety. The lily shortage caused disappointments, but about 75 per cent of the buyers accepted substitutes. In cut flowers roses were the favorite with sweet peas least in demand. Hydrangeas were not much in favor.

HAVERTHILL, MASS.—Although prices were better than in 1918, the volume of Easter trade this year fell below anticipations, due to the telephone strike. The plant supply was limited but there was a good offering in cut flowers according to W. F. Abrams. With the shortage of Easter lilies and prices high, added to other conditions, there were bound to be disappointments. The Memorial day trade promises to be a record breaker if nothing happens.

FORT SMITH, ARK.—George Rye, "Some Florist," had his fine range well filled with excellent Easter stock and enjoyed good business, telegraph orders being quite a factor. He is an enthusiastic member of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—The Arizona Seed & Floral Co. reports Easter business about on a par with that of 1918, with prices somewhat better but stock limited, both plants and cut flowers. Roses were in great demand. There were no Easter lilies.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—With prices higher than for the Easter period last year, and an adequate supply of stock in general, business showed an increase of about 45 per cent, as reported by Samuel Murray. In plants, Easter lilies were least in demand, the favorites being roses, hydrangeas, yellow callas and heather. With the exception of lilies, all cut flowers went well. It was demonstrated that good business could be done without lilies in pots.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—As reported by the Wm Blackman Floral Co., 1919 Easter business showed a gain of about 40 per cent with prices better than a year ago. The supply of plants was about equal to requirements, but there was a shortage in cut flowers. All flowering plants sold well and roses, lilies, and corsages were the cut flower leaders. Considering the length of time the lily bulbs were in storage, there were some very good blooms.

AUBURN, N. Y.—With prices showing an increase over last year, Easter sales, compared with those of 1918, marked a gain of about 100 per cent, even with a short supply of stock, both cut and in pots. As to demand, everything moved unusually well. There was a heavy call for callas, Easter lilies, sweet peas, violets, roses and carnations. Pot roses, hyacinths, daffodils, and in fact everything that showed a blossom, found a ready buyer.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Although prices were better this year, the amount of Easter business held to about the same volume as in 1918, according to G. Bartholme. In neither plants nor cut flowers was the supply sufficient to meet the demand. In the former, hyacinths, tulips, daffodils and pot roses had the best sale. Sweet peas, violets and roses held the lead in cut stock.

FALL RIVER, MASS.—With the supply of plants and cut stock both very short, a 50 per cent advance in prices over last year resulted in a 25 per cent increase in Easter business at the establishment of C. Warburton. Lilies were favorites in the plant demand. Bulbous stock was very short being too late to hold in good condition. Sweet peas and carnations went fast.

MUSKEGON, MICH.—Twenty-five per cent better Easter business at prices higher than a year ago is the report of L. Wasserman. The supply in plants and cut flowers was short. Lilies, tulips and daffodils sold best, the first named in good supply. In cut flowers the heavy call was for lilies, bulbous stock, roses, carnations and snapdragons.

SEDALIA, Mo.—The State Fair Floral Co. had a much better Easter trade this year than in 1918, although plants did not move as well as usual. Geraniums and hydrangeas led the demand. The cut flower supply was sufficient for all needs, roses being first in favor, followed closely by carnations. The call for corsages was greater than ever before.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Abele Bros. report 1919 Easter trade about 75 per cent greater than last year. Prices were slightly higher than usual as a rule with considerable advance in lilies. The plant supply was ample, but in cut flowers, carnations were in short supply. Lily plants led in popularity but everything of good quality sold readily.

JACKSON, MISS.—Better prices and a 50 per cent increase in the Easter business over last year, notwithstanding a shortage in the supply, is reported by the McKay Floral Co. Everything available in plants sold easily and in cut flowers the favorites were carnations, roses, dahlias, asters, spiræas and lilies.

Columbus, O.

MARKET CLEANS UP WELL.

Trade has been holding up well enough since Easter to absorb nearly all the flowers that reach the market. Roses appear to be in great favor just now, and the public shows a willingness to pay the higher prices for the choice cuttings rather than to accept less perfect blooms at smaller cost. The display of Russells is especially fine. Silver Pink snapdragons are very popular. There is no real scarcity in anything, but florists are able to clean up fairly well from day to day. The supply of bedding stock will be far below that of last year, but as prices will run about 50 per cent higher, the demand is expected to be cut down to the point where there will be enough to go around. The quality is exceptionally good. Pot plants are limited in variety, and make rather a meagre show in flower stores considering the time of year.

NOTES.

Frosts did extensive damage in this region April 24-25, to outdoor flowers and to vegetables. Market gardeners report almost complete destruction of some of their early crops, although the injury was not uniform. The bureau of markets and gardening of the state agricultural department estimates that the damage to fruit in Ohio will reach $1,500,000.

A small whirlwind struck the greenhouses of the Munk Floral Company, April 24, blowing down some stacks and breaking a quantity of glass. The loss was placed at between $400 and $500. No damage was reported from any other local growers.

H. M. Munk, president of the Munk Floral Company, has returned from a trip of two months spent in Florida and Cuba, and reports having had a very delightful vacation. J.

West Hoboken, N. J.

The John Birnie property, long associated with the name of the late John Birnie, is now offered for sale. Members of the Society of American Florists will recall that Mr. Birnie died suddenly while attending the Baltimore convention of 1911. The range has since been conducted by a son, also John Birnie. The property is well located in a residential section, and if sold, it is his intention to acquire another site further out of the city, remove the glass and rebuild.

Fred Engeln is probably the oldest working florist in this part of the state, being now near 80, but he keeps busy making cuttings and doing other light work and seems to enjoy it. A son has the active management of the range.

Henry Bauman, who makes a specialty of table ferns, has added geraniums to his output.

The West Hoboken growers have become so hemmed in with residences and lines of business peculiar to a rapidly growing city, that it is unlikely that more greenhouses will ever be erected here. Herman C. Steinhoff has already taken time by the forelock and established a range and nursery at West Norwood, N. J. A. F. F.

Dallas, Texas.

In the northern part of the state Easter brought the most phenomenal business ever known. The interchange of mail and telegraph orders practically amounted to a business in itself. As lily plants were scarce, these as a rule were not sold unless included with some other plant or ferns. The plan took well and sales were easily made. The cut flower supply was good with the exception of a shortage of carnations. Business was much better than anticipated.

NOTE.

The Lang Floral & Nursery Co., Inc., were well prepared with a good assortment of plants and arranged a large number of baskets of all shapes and descriptions. Business at this establishment during the Easter period totaled several thousand dollars. Hydrangeas, Easter lilies, spiræas and even snapdragons and marigolds enjoyed a good demand.

Wichita, Kan.

APRIL MAKES GOOD SHOWING.

The month just past will show up well in comparison with that of previous years. There has been good business in shrubbery and landscape work, and prospects are fair for at least the average spring business in the bedding plant line. Easter sales probably totaled in volume those of last year, which, considering the shortage of lilies and several other special Easter items, is at least all that could be expected. Prices were, and still are, higher than in previous years, roses, especially, remaining stiff. Carnations are in good supply and prices are back near the old level. Plans for a public observance of Mothers' day are already under consideration, and the occasion bids fair to surpass all previous records for general and elaborate celebration of this event.

NOTES.

C. M. Newens, until recently with W. H. Culp & Co., has taken charge of the Salisbury Greenhouses at Eldorado, Kan. A. H. Myhre, of Sioux City, Ia., has taken the position as foreman at the greenhouses of W. H. Culp & Co.

Harrie Mueller, erstwhile soldier, is back on the job in the landscape department with his father, Chas. P. Mueller.

Chas. P. Mueller is driving a new Hudson car, a beauty, and one of the niftiest styles on the streets. C.

Decatur, Ill.

Philip Daut, of Daut Bros., was given a welcome home party here recently when he was honorably discharged from the army and it is needless to add that everyone present had a most enjoyable time. Among those who attended and some of whom were former employes of Daut Bros. were: P. J. Daut and wife; R. O. Augur and wife; Ed. Quintenz and wife; Mrs. Kate Jenison; Mrs. Mary Johnson, and the Misses Isabel McGinty, Daisy Mahan, Helene Hill and Nancy Veech; Frank J. Daut, Roy Dawson, Bill, Ed. and Cal Pisell of this city; Jess Michl, of Taylorville and F. H. Michl of Vandalia. Ed. Jacob, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, was here for the occasion.

Providence, R. I.

STRONG EASTER BUSINESS.

The Easter stock this year was excellent with a fine demand, everything in plants having practically a clean-up. Very few were carried over. Roses were exceptionally good and wholesaled from six to 20 cents each. Carnations ranged from eight to 12 cents. Violets, marguerites, orchids, sweet peas, lilies and lily of the valley also brought good returns. The stock of plants was complete but tulips, hyacinths, daffodils, bougainvilleas, genistas and azaleas, were scarce items. Rose bushes, palms, ferns, primulas, spiræas, rhododendrons and other small plants had a good call. Prices were very satisfactory and higher than in former years. H. A. T.

OBITUARY.

James M. Bulst.

James M. Bulst, for nearly 40 years a florist in New York, successively at 807 Broadway, 429 Broadway, 631 Broadway and at Thirteenth street and Broadway, retiring from business several years ago, died at his home in Milford, Pa., April 18, age 95 years. The deceased was born in Scotland and came to America when 25 years old, his first employment here being with Andrew Reid, a then well known florist on Fourteenth street, New York, and upon the death of his employer, he bought the business.

Oliver B. Coombs.

Oliver B. Coombs, formerly in the nursery business in Queens, N. Y., died there, April 25. He was born in Longmeadow, Mass., 82 years ago. He located in Queens in 1871. In later years, he had engaged in real estate transactions and was well known on Long Island. He is survived by six sons and one daughter. One son, Oliver B. Coombs, Jr., is a florist of Jamaica, N. Y.

A. F. F.

BRANDYWINE SUMMIT, PA.—The old section of the E. A. Harvey & Sons' range will be rebuilt in the near future.

ELMHURST, ILL.—The Forest Park Floral Co. has purchased the Hoskins Floral Co. and will continue the business.

CLEVELAND, O.—The Lord & Burnham Co. has reopened its office in the Swetland building with H. P. Merrick in charge.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Three new houses to cost $12,000 will be erected by Hembreiker & Cole at State street and South Grand avenue.

LOGAN, UTAH.—Horticulturist M. E. Merrill, of the Utah Agricultural College experiment station is asking for bids on an additional greenhouse, 20x75 feet.

TORONTO, ONT.—E. H. Sanderson's Little Grey Flower Shoppe, rearranged and redecorated, is now one of the most attractive stores in the downtown section.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.—John Dunn, formerly superintendent of the Edward Scott estate at Lansdowne, Pa., has taken charge of the estate of Mrs. Wm. A. Reed here.

RIPLEY, MICH.—The range of the Lakeside Floral Co. is being removed from Chassel to this city, increasing the size of the local establishment to 35,000 square feet.

SAC CITY, IA.—James Albert Reeder, who has just returned from overseas service in France, has received an honorable discharge and has resumed his former position with the Montgomery Gardens here.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The feature of the April meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was the illustrated lecture of Joseph J. Pillsbury, of the state board of agriculture on "Insect Pests and Plant Diseases."

DETROIT, MICH.—At the Belle Isle conservatories, Superintendent Robert Flowerday had a splendid display of plants which were much admired by many visitors on Easter Sunday. While lilies were conspicuous by their absence this year, hyacinths, azaleas, tulips, daffodils and other spring flowers came in for a full measure of admiration.

THE eleventh annual meeting and exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society will be held at the American Museum of Natural History, New York, June 21-22.

POTASH.—A Washington dispatch quotes Senator F. M. Simmons, retiring chairman of the finance committee, as saying the United States will not permit Germany to unload great quantities of potash and other specialties in this country. The potash industry here developed rapidly after the war started and $50,000,000 was invested in plants, including about $15,000,000 in Nebraska.

Rooted Cuttings not Plants.

WARNING TO BROTHER FLORISTS.

Louisville, Ky., April 26, 1919.

In answer to an advertisement, we sent a check for $200 for 1,000 "good 3-inch pot Columbia roses." What we received were merely rooted cuttings with a ball of soil on the roots. They had not made a particle of growth over the cutting stage, as each so-called plant had only two leaves and showed little, if any, root action. They could not even be called first-class 2½-inch pot stock. We consider ourselves as having been deliberately swindled.

National Association of Gardeners.

NEW YORK OFFICE OPENED.

The executive board of the National Association of Gardeners for some time past has had under consideration the advisability of establishing headquarters in New York, and having considered the present time opportune, it has opened an office at 286 Fifth avenue, that city. The secretary's hours will be from 10 a. m. until 3 p. m., excepting by special appointment. This step has been actuated to a large extent by the increasing interest that is being manifested towards the service bureau of the association by country estate owners, which makes it desirable to be more conveniently located for these clients of the association.

The members of the National Association of Gardeners in Boston and vicinity will hold a spring conference, May 16, at 6 o'clock in Horticultural hall in that city. An interesting programme is being arranged and all interested in the profession of gardening are most cordially invited to attend. Those who have been present at previous Boston conferences, know how interesting and entertaining these meetings are.

It is proposed to hold the annual convention in Cleveland, August 26-28. This date is suggested as horticulture in the vicinity of Cleveland is to be seen at its best, and weather conditions are usually favorable at this season of the year. The executive board will take final action on the convention date the latter part of May, and President Weeks will then appoint the convention committees.

Geranium Troubles.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Will you kindly tell me what disease is affecting my geranium plants and what measures can be taken for its control? My house is 6x52 feet and there are 17 hot frame sash six feet deep and one bench three and one-half feet high. Geraniums and heliotrope are the only plants in the house. Heat is supplied by six hot water pipes fastened by chain to the concrete wall, and above the heating pipes is one shelf of 8-inch boards also filled with geraniums. The temperature never goes above 60 or lower than 40 degrees. The geraniums were propagated about the middle of September, 1918, and carried through the winter in 4½-inch pots. All were in good condition until about March 1, when it was noticed that the green leaved plants on the shelf over the pipes began to show red on the oldest leaf stem and then worked further into the leaf. Later the red turns to yellow and the leaf at last dries up. I at first attributed the trouble to hot sunlight from a window but now nearly all plants appear diseased, some well advanced and others just starting. The plants have not been overwatered and the soil is not bad. J. B. New York.

The above statement hardly furnishes enough detailed information to enable one to come to any definite conclusion as to the cause of the trouble. For instance, it is not stated what fertilizers were used or whether the plants have had fungicides or insecticides sprayed upon them or liberated in the air of the house. If it were possible to be in the house for a few minutes, observe its construction and the details as to method of treatment, we might arrive at the cause of the trouble, but as it is, we can only surmise.

The plants sent for examination are badly dwarfed, prematurely branched and full of withering red and yellowing leaves. The stems are packed with starch. We have been unable to find any parasites on the foliage or on the roots which would account for the disease and are inclined to believe the trouble is due to the soil or else mismanagement of heat and water. It is also possible that excess of bone meal, acid phosphate or gas liberated in the air may be to blame. If these fertilizers have not been used, and the same is true of insecticides and fungicides, the trouble may be that the plants are too close to the pipes and have had too much bottom heat. On one or two of the specimens are certain indications that this may possibly be the explanation. If so, the remedy would be to put the bench farther from the piping. If the disease is caused by excessive use of fertilizers, knock the earth from the roots and repot in other soil. If this is the cause of the trouble, there is still time to make good plants of them.

GOOD EASIER SUPPLY MOVES FREELY.

Easter trade surpassed all expectations and averaged about 25 per cent ahead of last year. We were fortunate in having a large supply of pot plants and cut flowers of nearly all varieties. As was expected, the supply of Easter lilies was very limited. There was no cut stock offered at all. None of the stores received more than one hundred plants of pot lilies apiece. Prices ranged from $2 to $5 per plant. As a rule, the stock was short stemmed. Rambler roses were the best sellers of all Easter plants. Stock that sold from $5 to $7.50 each moved best. There were very few azaleas other than Hinodigiri offered. This is a popular variety here, and it cleaned out completely, owing to its reasonable price. Rhododendrons sold well except in large sizes. Ferns were also in good demand. In cut flowers, the stores were fortunate in having a large crop to draw from. Prices were raised only a trifle and an enormous quantity found a ready market. Russell and American Beauties were the best sellers, closely followed by Ophelia and its sports. White roses were rather scarce. There was plenty of red and dark pink varieties, all of which met with good call. White carnations were in splendid supply and sold out completely, owing to the scarcity of white roses and lilies. There was a large cut of callas. This stock was chiefly used for church decorations. Cattleyas were in large supply and sold out at splendid figures. Gardenias were on the short side. Sweet peas were to be had in limited quantities and sold well. Lilac was also largely used. Irises were popular with all buyers. Violets were in large supply with no increase in prices. Very few hyacinths were offered. Tulips were to be had in any quantity and cleaned up well. Peonies were another popular flower. There was a large supply of all decorative greens and great quantities were sold.

NOTES.

Fred Bertrand, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., says his firm sold out completely on pot plants, and were compelled to go into the open market to buy enough to fill orders. They did the largest business in the history of the concern. They featured ericas in variety and they sold very well. Superintendent Andrew McDonald of the firm's greenhouses, certainly turned out some grand stock this year. Their shipping trade in plants was so heavy that the greenhouses were cleaned out.

Benjamin M. Joseph is receiving the congratulations of his many friends because of his marriage during the week to Miss Gladys D. Rule. He is the proprietor of "Joseph's" on Grant avenue. The bride is a very estimable young lady, whose attractiveness and charm of manner, have won her a host of friends. The happy couple are spending their honeymoon at Del Monte.

Manager P. Vincent Matraha, of the Art Floral Co., says this year's Easter trade was ahead of expectations, and he is greatly pleased over the volume of business transacted. A novelty in his Easter display was specimen lemon trees in full bloom. M. A. Ephraim and William Coste were added to the sales force during the Easter rush.

Pellicano, Rossi & Co. were fortunate in securing a large store adjoining theirs to take care of the immense stock of pot plants. Frank Pellicano says trade was ahead of last year. Plants at popular prices moved quickly, while large specimens did not find so much favor.

Adante Bacegalupi returned from France with the 363rd Infantry and was accorded a great reception by his former fellow workers of the Podesta & Baldochi store. Upon his discharge

MOTHERS' DAY BUSINESS LOOMS LARGE.

Neither wholesalers nor retailers have much time for resting up after the Easter rush as Mothers' day, May 11, comes so soon and many orders have already been booked. From present indications, business for that day will be exceptionally good. Stock during the past week was in good supply, due to a little sunshine, although there were several dark days. Roses were plentiful, and the same was true of bulbous stock, including Easter lilies. White carnations were in good supply and cleaned up daily. Sweet peas were also seen in large numbers. Some very good calendulas, snapdragons, ranunculus, pansies and mignonette arrive daily. Lily of the valley and violets are short items. Outdoor stock, which is now coming in, helps the supply considerably. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

NOTES.

This city and vicinity were visited by a severe windstorm, April 23, which in many places amounted to a cyclone. At Avon-on-the-Lake, a suburb, the Grullemans Co. had the roof of its bulb house blown off as well as the west wall. The damage to the house is about $2,000, and with the freezing weather which followed the storm, the loss to bulbs will probably reach $1,000 more.

The arrival and parade, April 26, of the 312nd Division, which had seen service in Italy, was the occasion for

RITO

THE ENERGIZER FOR SOIL BACTERIA

IS COMING TO AMERICA.

WONDERFUL RESULTS have been obtained by the use of RITO in Great Britain during the last three years. Owing to the war it has been impossible to export, but now we are free to do so, and feel sure that the Horticulturists of the U. S. A. will at once avail themselves of this unique method of increasing their products and of getting their stuff ready for the market some weeks earlier than they have hitherto done, and so secure a much higher price.

WHAT IS RITO?—RITO is a humus, organic or natural fertilizer, a stimulant and energizing medium for soil bacteria.

WHAT IS HUMUS?—Humus is a complex substance or mixture of substances present in the richest of soils. It is black in colour, and hence renders the soil darker. RITO contains Humus in the right form for fertilizing the soil.

WHY ADD HUMUS?—Because most soils contain very little (if any) Humus, and it is necessary for the proper development of the useful soil bacteria. The bacteria find in the Humus constituents a suitable medium for their robust propagation.

That is, Humus is a source of food and energy for the soil bacteria.

WHAT IS THE ANALYSIS OF RITO?—It has very little chemical analysis and it does not come in the same category as fertilizers. It is essentially an energizing medium for soil bacteria. Phosphates and potash are present in all soils, but in the ordinary way they are not readily available. RITO, by energizing the soil bacteria, is calculated to make the phosphates and potash available for the plant. It also stimulates the nitrogen-fixing bacteria into action, so that the consequent development is out of all proportion to its analysis.

RITO takes the place of farmyard manure, or it may be used in conjunction with farmyard manure or any recognized artificials. RITO is free from weed seeds, spores and germs, and from the eggs or larvae of noxious insects.

It is well known that the soil is not a dead inert mass of matter, but that it teems with bacteria, which only need to be treated properly to be called into activity. There are millions in every spadeful of soil.

RITO may be used in the open or under glass.

What RITO Users Say:--

"I used RITO in the soil for my Tomatoes this year. The result was the best crop I ever had, and I started picking two to three weeks earlier than usual from seed sown same date as previous years."

A market gardener says that his RITO-treated lettuce were ready for the market a month before the untreated ones, with the result that the treated ones brought 2s. 6d. per dozen and the untreated ones, when they were ready for the market, brought 1s. per dozen.

"I tried RITO last year on Potatoes, and they yielded 30 per cent better than those not treated."

"Every ounce of fruit from both the treated and the untreated Tomatoes has been gathered and carefully weighed. The weight of fruit gathered from the treated portions averaged just five times the amount as from the untreated portion."

"I have used RITO in the Peach Houses, and find that it greatly improved both the quality of the fruit and also the growth. I also find RITO very good if used when mixing soil for potting various plants, and I have also used it on my Vines with excellent results."

"I have pleasure in testifying to the merits of RITO. It is 'Right Ho' and no mistake. I never saw Tomatoes do so well as when your RITO was applied as a top-dressing mixed with the soil; the roots the plants made in this way were extraordinary, and the crops correspondingly good. The same applies to Cucumbers, also Chrysanthemums and to plants generally. It seems to consume the moisture, hence less watering is required."

"RITO treated Chrysanthemums made a much quicker and better start than they have usually done—in fact, the plants show a great improvement."

RITO is packed in double bags, and the price is $5 per 100 lbs., ex Quay Boston or New York. Terms—Cash with order.

Please address your orders at once to The Molassine Company, Ltd., East Greenwich, London, England.

Washington, D. C.

HEAVY SUPPLY DEMORALIZES PRICES.

The market cannot begin to absorb the amount of stock of all kinds being shipped in from the nearby greenhouses and there are no fixed wholesale prices. The weather up to Thursday night was very warm, bringing in all of the hold-over stock that flowered too late for Easter, consequently prices dropped. Retail business has been very good with heavy booking of wedding decorations, extensive funeral orders, and considerable social activity following the conclusion of the Lenten season. Tulips are gone except for Darwins, which sell at $4 to $6 per 100. The wholesalers are getting in quantities of Narcissus poeticus from the south, but this is not a very desirable flower just now and $5 per 1,000 is a high price. Gladioli find limited sale. Sweet peas are poor in quality and undesirable. Roses are cheap and for the most part of very good quality. American Beauty roses bring $6 and upward, per dozen. Cut Easter lilies find no market.

NOTE.

Notices are being sent out by the secretary of the florists' club for a meeting to be held May 7, at 8 o'clock in the clubrooms above the store of Edward S. Schmid, 712 Twelfth Street, Northwest. B. F. L.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES HOLD UP DEMAND.

There was not the usual lull that follows a holiday last week, as the Easter social festivities created a splendid demand for cut flowers and plants for decorations, and corsages. This called for immense quantities of flowers, roses particularly, and sweet peas, which were next in popularity. Out-of-town commencements also called for large quantities of cut flowers, and violets particularly were in demand. Funeral work was steady, and flowers were in fine demand for the hospitals. A few lilies are coming in since the holiday, and these are going well, especially for funeral clusters. Carnations are more plentiful at this writing than roses.

NOTES.

It was notable that there were an unusually large number of Florists' Telegraph Delivery orders in the Easter business this year, not only sent into this city, but also from here to other cities in the United States. A. J. Lanternier & Co., and W. J. & M. S. Vesey are recent members of this organization.

Miss Margaret Vesey, who, for the past year has successfully conducted a hostess house at Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., will leave within two weeks for New York, from where she will go overseas, to do Y. M. C. A. work in France.

The Victory loan campaign is in full blast here this week, and the florists are doing their share in this patriotic work. H. K.

Petersburg, Va.

The Easter trade in this city was about 20 per cent better than a year ago, although both plants and cut flowers were not in quantity to meet the demand. The wholesale price situation was very unsatisfactory due to the fact that after quotations had been received, before the orders could be placed prices were advanced from 50 to 100 per cent. The retailer has to stick to the prices he makes in taking orders and if the wholesaler wants to stay in business he should adopt the same policy. The charging of outrageous prices for our product and driving customers away, and then putting a "Say it with Flowers" sticker on everything you send out is the wrong way of doing business. W. S. Y.

Warren, Pa.

The flower shops in this city presented a very attractive appearance for the Easter trade and all enjoyed excellent business. Pansies were used in many corsages, brought in by the warm spring weather, and for the first time in many years so early in the season. Easter lilies were extremely scarce, the total supply amounting to about 75 plants, and prices went to about 60 cents per flower as compared with 35 cents in former years. All flowers sold at advanced prices.

NOTES.

The Schiller Greenhouse had thousands of flowers which were sold direct from its establishment.

The Crescent Floral Gardens had over 20,000 pansy plants in bloom for the Easter demand.

The Kidder Flower Shop made a very fine display and enjoyed excellent business. H. C. T.

SCHECTADY, N. Y.—A number of local gladiolus growers are planning an organization here.

MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS OF
PRESERVED FOLIAGES, BASKETS AND FLORIST SUPPLIES

Albany, N. Y.

EASTER SALES SHOW GOOD GAIN.

On the results of Easter trade for 1919, the local florists express themselves as exceptionally well pleased. Business was, on the whole, better than a year ago—some say 20 per cent. Prices were good and the trade reports that the public made little complaint about the amount paid for plants and flowers, provided the stock sold was right. Many buyers ordered early in the week and the step facilitated business considerably. In cut flowers, sweet peas, violets and orchids sold best in the order named. Some dealers said that they found roses and lilies too high priced to sell readily. The demand for corsages was heavy and many sweet peas, violets and orchids were disposed of in that form. In plants, hydrangeas, ramblers and spiraeas sold in largest amounts. Azaleas were scarce and brought good figures. Telegraph orders were received in considerable numbers. One dealer, E. P. Tracey of The Rosery, said that he was asked to make deliveries in almost every city of importance in the country from coast to coast. Summed up in words of H. G. Eyres, a local retailer, "It was a wonderful Easter."

NOTES.

Frank R. Lanagan, city engineer, as chairman of the municipal Victory garden committee, has asked, through the newspapers, all persons who have idle ground in this city to notify him if they will permit the use of it for the growing of vegetables and flowers during the season. The vacant lots will thus be utilized by school children and others in their vicinity for kitchen and flower gardens. Many adults and children last year took advantage of the privilege of making plantings in vacant lots in the city. In some cases the results were creditable. Mr. Lanagan also announces that literature on what to plant may be obtained free at his office.

Albanians in large numbers accepted the invitation of Fred A. Danker, the Maiden Lane florist, to visit his greenhouses at 744 Central avenue, on Palm Sunday. No flowers were sold and no orders were taken. The large number of plants and blooms made an excellent impression on the crowds of well dressed men and women who thronged the greenhouses during the afternoon. The visit of the public to the Danker greenhouses on Palm Sunday has become a local custom.

Seventy-one Schwoder maples, a variety of the Norway maple, have been received by Philip Bender, superintendent of parks, and set out in the Plaza near the river front. The Schwoders replace the Oriental planes which were killed by the severe winter of 1917-18. The few planes that survived, struggled along fitfully last summer, and died before the end of the year.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Easter business came back with a rush and although great preparations had been made the trade was pushed to the limit. Corsage work seems to be ever on the increase as shown by several hundred deliveries from one establishment before church time which kept the force on the jump. There were quite a number of lilies, both cut and in pots, but general publicity as to their scarcity held back any unusual demand and other plants such as hydrangeas, etc., were easily substituted. Nothing unusual in the line of stock was offered but a good supply of irises, hydrangeas, spiraeas and roses were disposed of.

NOTE.

The Saltford Flower Shop started an innovation last fall by the closing of its store daily at 5:30 p. m., including Saturday and not opening on Sunday.

Surprising as it may seem, instead of there being any decrease in business, sales have shown an improvement. The experience has been that early closing is practicable. W. A. S.

Frederickton, N. B.

While prices advanced from 25 to 50 per cent as compared with Easter, 1918, the volume of business was about the same in this city. This was due partly to the shortage in the supply of stock, both plants and cut flowers. Twice as many of the former could have been disposed of. The absence of bulbous stock was noticeable. Anything with a bloom found a buyer and there was a heavy call for roses and carnations. There were some fine Easter lilies and these were used in church decorations. There were also good callas. A number of impatiens, salmon color, sold at $2 each. Perennial balsams, 18 inches in diameter, were in fine condition.

NOTES.

J. Bebbington & Sons had to put up a "Sold Out" sign at 4 p. m. Saturday, something never before necessary in the 40 years' business career of this firm.

While the spring trade has been dull, with cool, sunless weather during the past 10 days, present indications point to a good Mothers' day demand

STOCK IS IN LARGE SUPPLY.

Stock is in large supply, but is moving well, considering conditions, and while trade the past week has not been as brisk as it might have, no one is complaining, but most of the dealers attribute the general quietness to the Victory Loan campaign, which is occupying the attention of everyone. American Beauty roses are plentiful, but are selling well at good prices, owing to their splendid quality. Mrs. Chas. Russell is somewhat on the short side, but the receipts of Columbia are considerably heavier. Ophelia, Killarney, Sunburst, Killarney Brilliant, Milady, Richmond and all the other roses grown for this market are in large enough supply and more than meet the demand. Carnations are arriving in good sized quantities, and continue to clean up nicely. Sweet peas are plentiful and the same holds true for snapdragons which are quite a factor in the market this season. Tulips, jonquils, narcissi, trailing arbutus, daisies, lupines, pansies, forget-me-nots, irises, calendulas, mignonette and other miscellaneous seasonable stock is seen in quantity. Some indoor gladioli, especially Mrs. Francis King and Mrs. Frank Pendleton, are arriving and meet with ready sale. Orchids, gardenias and lily of the valley are on the short side and clean up regularly. The first peonies of the season reached the market the past week, but not in any great quantities. The outlook for stock for Mothers' day, Sunday, May 11, is rather uncertain, but some of the larger growers report that they will be in good crop for this occasion. If the demand is anywhere near as brisk as it has been in previous years, everything should clean up early at the advertised quotations. Everyone will do

Exceptionally fine White Killarney, Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, My Maryland, Richmond, Sunburst, Ophelia, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Milady and Champ Weiland.

CARNATIONS

Good Supply of White, Pink and Red

While we will have a good supply of Carnations, there will not be enough flowers to supply the demand, so push roses on that day. You will find that the public in a great many cases prefer them to carnations, so make allowance for the scarcity of carnations and substitute roses. They will move just as quickly. J. L. Denmead, of Marshalltown, Ia., spent several days here last week on a combined business and pleasure trip. He met Mrs. Denmead and children here who had just returned from a pleasant visit in Florida. Business has been very good with him since he started to be a florist about five years ago, and he now has a well paying retail store and greenhouse range in that city.

H. B. Kennicott reports that Kennicott Bros. Co. received word from its peony farm in Villa Ridge this week to the effect that some of the stock will be ready to cut for Mothers' day, which is considerably earlier than last season.

Boehm & Winterson have opened a real estate office at 426 South Crawford avenue. E. F. Winterson, Sr., of the E. F. Winterson Co., is one of the proprietors, and is well and favorably known to the trade.

O. Johnson, manager of the city salesrooms of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., is planning on investing in a new Elgin-Six. He is a stockholder in the Elgin Motor Works.

Rudolph Kurowski, of the John C. Moninger Co., reports business as exceedingly brisk in the greenhouse building line, with new inquiries arriving every day.

Pete Kellen is the proud owner of a National 12.

Admirers of Mayor Thompson filled the city hall with flowers April 28 in honor of their leader's second inauguration. City Clerk Igoe and City Treasurer Stuckart, who also began new terms, celebrated without flowers. As for the new aldermen, they merely stood and admired the mayor's gifts. The most imposing of the floral pieces in the mayor's office was a seven-foot elephant of laurel leaves, standing on a base made of roses. It was presented by the officers of the Independent Voters' Association. A card conveying "best wishes" was signed by William Kramer, Henry F. Runkel, Martin Flucke, Adolph Gill and Albert C. Wehrwein. The Firemen's Association of Chicago presented a gigantic copy of a fireman's badge, worked out in red, white and blue flowers. A basket of roses four feet high was the gift of the Twenty-fourth Ward Woman's Republican Club. The flowers were the first seen in the city hall in many years, for the practice of presenting them had been discouraged as needlessly expensive in the past but the custom no doubt will be revived after the profound impression they created this week.

George Wienhoeber, the well-known South Wabash avenue retailer, recently attached a Victory loan subscription of $1,000 to a bouquet of roses and handed it to Lieut. Cameron Wright, army flyer. The lieutenant dropped it from his aeroplane with remarkable accuracy. It fell almost at the feet of a loan worker in front of the Congress hotel.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, has recovered his auto, which was stolen recently and found abandoned on the south side.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. received their first shipment of peonies this season as early as April 24. They have added another telephone to handle their increasing business. A red sport of Laddie, shipped in from the J. L. Denmead greenhouses at Marshalltown, Ia., was on exhibition at this store last week, where it attracted much favorable attention.

John Weiland, Fischer Bros., M. Weiland and N. K. Welter, all Evanston florists, did some co-operative advertising April 17 when they used a page in the leading paper there. It was cleverly constructed and one of the most appropriate ads for Easter that was ever issued. It is a credit to all the florists whose names appear in same.

Gust Alles and wife celebrated their twenty-sixth wedding anniversary April 26. Mr. Alles has been with Wieter Bros. for a great many years and his many friends in the trade here joined in wishing him many happy returns of the day.

Allie Zech, who is bowling with the Elks this season, and Fred Price, William Wolf, John Huchner, William Lorman and Peter Olsem, who represent the trade, are participating in the state bowling tournament, now being held here.

William F. Schofield, the North State street florist, celebrated his thirty-ninth birthday, April 28. He has been engaged in the retail business here for over 20 years, but looks just as young as ever.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are pleased with the way the out-of-town demand is keeping up, and have made preparations to handle their usual large Mothers' day business.

N. J. Wieter, of Wieter Bros., in speaking of the supply of carnations for Mothers' day, expects they will be more scarce for this occasion than at Easter.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is filling a large number of orders for baskets for Mothers' day and new ones are arriving in every mail.

Mrs. Ray Holt, of Des Moines, Ia., returned home April 27 after spending several days here with friends and relatives.

Eric Johnson, manager of the A. L. Randall Co.'s cut flower department, is back from an out-of-town business trip.

Peter Reinberg is having a heavy out-of-town call for stock, and is now booking orders for Mothers' day.

One of the leading lily growers in this vicinity averaged over 30 cents per flower for his stock Easter week.

James Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, Pa., called on the trade here last week.

The May meeting of the Florists' Club was held last Thursday evening at the Hotel Randolph.

George Peterson, of C. Peterson & Sons, Escanaba, Mich., was a welcome visitor this week.

Arnold Ringier was confined to his home the early part of this week with a severe cold.

A. Large has placed the order for a new Kroeschell ice machine to cost $2200.

Visitors: C. Kranz, Ottumwa, and George Kranz, Muscatine, Ia.

DECIDED DULLNESS FOLLOWS EASTER.

The most successful Easter business ever experienced by the local trade was followed by a week of extreme dullness. Saturday, some activity was revived, and the stock that was available sold out fairly well. Sweet peas are coming in nicely, and the supply of roses seems also to increase as the season advances. Snapdragons and carnations show much improvement in quality with plenty of both to meet the present modest demand. A recent importation of box-wood trees in various sizes and shapes has been distributed to several of the retail stores and are attracting ready buyers, though the prices are prohibitive to many.

NOTES.

The Garden Club of Michigan will hold its annual exhibition of narcissi at the country club, Grosse Pointe, May 1. M. Bloy, Chas. H. Plumb and Herman Kuape are the judges of the blooms in the various classes, which include some very rare varieties.

Mrs. Joseph Streit was taken suddenly ill with appendicitis two weeks ago, requiring an immediate operation at the hospital. She is now out of danger and recuperating at her home.

Harry Taylor, of John Breitmeyer's Sons, made a trip to Washington, D. C., last week, returning via Buffalo, his former home.

Harry Breitmeyer, with his wife, will go to their summer home at Pine Lake, Mich., May 1.

BUSINESS MAINTAINS GOOD TONE.

The usual lull after a flower holiday was not in evidence the past week. A good many cut flowers, retarded by the unfavorable growing conditions the forepart of Easter week, and did not make it, arrived in quantity, but with a brisk demand, both in and out of town, everything was kept moving, but of course at prices somewhat lower than the Easter list. Roses, snapdragons and Eucharist carnations were heaviest in supply. The death of several prominent people caused a good call for stock, a little out of the ordinary, and helped to uphold the tone of the market. With Mothers' day only two weeks hence at this time of writing, there is much speculation as to the supply of cut flowers, especially carnations. With the exception of a few, most of our carnation specialists are just between crops, and will not cut heavily for some time to come, and with Memorial day and then the June weddings and school commencement exercises following so close to each other, we have good reasons to expect the best up to about the first of July, thus proving the motto: "All's well that ends well." With the approach of May, we find most of the growers working up a big stock of spring plants, more so than ever before, and if they will get the prices in proportion to the wholesale lists of spring stock sent out by a committee of the florists' club, it surely will be a paying proposition.

NOTES.

The Heitman-Oestreicher Co., who specialize in carnations, report a good cut for the past holidays. They further comment on the unusually small number of splits ever since they were planted. A bench of Schizanthus Wisetonensis in full bloom, contains quite an assortment of beautiful shades.

F. Ernst, on North avenue and 37th street, was fortunate in having a fine lot of own grown tulips in pots and small boxes for Easter, which, as he says, went like hot cakes. A great deal of funeral work also had to be turned out just about the time it was not very agreeable.

Chas. Menger, at 536 Twenty-seventh street, says he never was so rushed as the day before Easter, especially after supper. The throng was so large that they were lined up to the curb on the outside for their chance to be waited on.

J. M. Fox & Son, Inc., were very busy with large funeral orders, April 24-25, for the Robinson funeral at Kenosha, Wis. To insure first class service, they took the work down in their auto cars.

Frank Sylvestre, formerly in the cut flower department of J. M. Fox & Son, Inc., has moved to Oconomowoc, Wis., and is now active at his father's range on Silver Lake street.

EASTER TRADE BEST IN MANY YEARS.

The weather during the past week has been about as variable as one could imagine. From balmy spring days to four inches of snow was enough to make every one take notice—especially florists. Thursday, Friday and Saturday of Easter week were ideal however, and business was at least 30 per cent better than in any previous year. Bulbous stock was in very short supply with the exception of hyacinths and a few Easter lilies, but other stock took their places. Never were baby rambler and hybrid roses in finer shape while spiraeas, deutzias, genistas, heather and hyacinths were equal to all requirements. Murillo tulips were about the only offerings in that flower and the quality was inferior. No daffodils were to be had. The few lilies offered were superb. In cut flowers, roses, carnations and sweet peas were good and the supply was sufficient. Violets were great favorites and cool weather helped them considerably. The call for made-up boxes and trimmed baskets was better than ever before, the arrangements being entirely different as to color and variety, adding much to their attractiveness. Everything brought better prices than in former years and there were few complaints regarding the increase as everyone seemed to want to make this an unusual Easter and a welcome to those returning from overseas.

NOTES.

While lilies were the unusually scarce item, S. A. Anderson had about 3,000 plants in perfect condition which he reserved for his two stores, selling none at wholesale. W. J. Palmer & Son also had some fine stock but not as many as in former years. The Wm. Scott Co., L. H. Neubeck, Stroh's Flower Shop and Charles Sandiford were also fortunate, although in common with others, the supply was limited.

The local trade is anticipating a treat this week when Henry Penn, chairman of the national publicity campaign of the Society of American Florists and recognized as one of the live wires of the industry, is to be the guest and deliver an address. As several visitors are also expected from Detroit, Mich., Cleveland, O., and Rochester, N. Y., it is anticipated that the occasion will be a most enjoyable one.

STOCK IN HEAVY SUPPLY; PRICES LOW.

Business has not been so brisk the past week, and the receipts of all kinds of stock have been heavy with the exception of carnations. American Beauties are of fine quality, but the demand is light, and they did not realize what they were worth. Other roses are arriving in large quantity and could be bought at from $3 to $15 per 100 with the exception of Milady, Columbia and Russell, which command a higher price. Receipts of callas have been heavy, with a light demand. Easter lilies are about done, as are also jonquils and tulips. Violets are a thing of the past, which is good, as the stock received in this city the past season has not been up to the standard of former years. Sweet peas have been of poor quality with heavy receipts, consequently the street boys have benefited. Some very fine snapdragons and Spanish iris are arriving, but the demand is light. Yellow daisies are the best seen this season and bring from $2 to $4 per 100. The receipts of mignonette, pansies and calendulas have been heavy, with no sale for same. Southern plumosus and Sprengeri have been arriving in large quantity. The retailers all report the largest Easter business in their history. Their only complaint is that they could have done more had they been able to get the stock. They also report that very few of their customers complained about the high prices. It is understood that the supply of carnations is going to be short and the price high for Mothers' day, which will give them a chance to push other stock and explain to the public that any flower is suitable for that day. The writer knows from experience that when a customer goes into the average retail store and asks for carnations for Mothers' day, they are sold to him without trying to push anything else. This year it will be different as there will not be enough to go round, and in order not to lose the business the salespeople will have to talk something else. The carnation shortage will be a good thing for the day in years to come, if it is the means of educating the public to the fact that all flowers are appropriate for the day.

GOOD SUPPLY WITH SLOW MOVEMENT.

The market during the past week was well supplied with stock in general, although sweet peas shortened up toward the end. Roses have been good, but have moved slowly. In fact, nothing is moving very briskly as the demand has slowed up considerably following Easter. Lilac, after a short season, has virtually disappeared. A few lilies are coming in and callas are also to be seen in limited supply. Snapdragons constitute the quantity offering. Greens are plentiful in all varieties, but prices are high. Ferns are poor in quality.

NOTES.

Herman Knoll, recently discharged from military service, is now getting back into the harness. He has started to build a new store and conservatory at his old stand on Kansas street in Carondelet.

The 25th field artillery, a local unit, will parade this week, and many flowers will be used for the occasion, much of the stock to be donated by the florists to strew the path of the victors.

L. Jules Bourdet is recuperating from a severe case of grippe with which he had to contend during Easter week. He is now looking forward to a good fishing trip.

W. A. Rowe of Kirkwood, and A. W. Gumz, of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., took the thirty-second degree in Masonry last week.

A meeting of the retail florists' association has been called for this week at the Mission Inn.

GOOD AFTER-EASTER DEMAND.

Trade following the Easter rush has been quite brisk. As is usual, there was a shortage following that occasion, but roses and carnations are becoming more plentiful and prices have lowered. Daffodils and tulips are scarce, although a few of the outdoor varieties are coming in now. Sweet peas are of excellent quality and the supply is plentiful. Violets are very poor and the season for them will soon be over. Blooming plants are scarce.

USUAL LIGHT DEMAND FOLLOWS EASTER.

The week following Easter is, as regards business, always more or less of a speculation; prices generally take a drop that look very low as compared with those of the holiday. The past seven days has been no exception; while there appears to have been quite a number of weddings, the demand from other sources has been light. With the Easter stocks coming in that failed to make Easter, one of which, strange to say, is quantities of Easter lilies, which are a drug on the market, prices have taken a decided slump, quite below pre-Easter quotations. Easter lilies fell from their dizzy height of 35 cents down to 15 cents and lower, and were hard to move. Carnations were in light demand at from three to six cents. Callas are also plentiful. Snapdragons, calendulas, sweet peas, etc., are also offered in quantity. About the only scarce item is the cattleya, of which the supply is very light. The rose stock is coming strong, and these will be the quantity offering for the next month. Easter Saturday, American Beauties were scarce at $1 each. On April 26, they were handled by the street men in quantity, selling for less than half this figure. One of the large wholesalers said that the past week's business, while it appeared slow, showed a larger volume than for the same period last year. Another, explaining the cause of high prices on certain items of cut flowers, said it was due entirely to a shortage in supply. In their price list, they always quoted scarce articles at top prices in the hope of keeping down the demand. High figures for any plant or flower did not last long, as other growers in the same line were soon alive to the opportunity. All the dealers shrug their shoulders when asked the price of white carnations for Mother's day. No actual figures are given, as so much depends on the weather, but one house said they would predict they will be higher than ever before. A wholesaler laid the light business of the week to the use of fruit blossoms, which took the place of greenhouse flowers in wedding decorations.

April 28.—Shipments were rather full this morning, particularly in roses, carnations and sweet peas. There was not a very brisk demand, but still enough to keep things from stagnating. Prices were about as closed last week.

ROSE MEETING OF FLORISTS CLUB.

The display feature of the next meeting of the florists' club to be held in the roof garden of the Hotel Adelphia, May 6, at 8 p. m., will be an exhibition of new varieties of forcing roses. Exhibits have been assured from John H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont.; E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; Frank R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; John Cook, Baltimore, Md., and Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa. The new varieties of the Montgomery Bros. Co., Amherst, Mass., are also expected. In addition, there will be vases of special stock of standard varieties from the local growers whose products have made this city famous.

The literary feature will be an address by Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., on standard and new varieties. His knowledge and experience as a grower and disseminator of new roses, will make this a most interesting and valuable treatise. Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., will also be present. An invitation is extended to all in the craft, especially women in the business, who are now admitted to membership in the club.

NOTES.

Now that Frank Ross has connected up with the F. T. D., he is becoming more enthusiastic every day, as he finds the business better than he had hoped. That he has faith in the system as a business bringer, he has had prepared and installed in his 52nd street store, a large map of the United States, which is about seven feet in diameter. This shows the various states in colors with all the large cities standing out prominently. About 35 of these are designated, each with a small electric lamp. Two large telegraph poles at the rear carry bright copper wires to each city. These, by an electric motor, are one at a time being connected, flashing up alternately with Philadelphia. Appropriate signs calling attention to the quick transmission of orders to any point in the country are a feature of the display. This wonderfully effective demonstration began to pull immediately, drawing crowds to the window all day and evening, as it works almost as well during the day as at night. Its installation cost over $500, but Mr. Ross feels it is money well invested and bound to make a good return.

Wm. H. Wyatt has found it is good economy to take off the tires of the Ford trucks every week or two and reverse them outside in, as their continuous use in one position wears down the outside flange of the shoe by continuous running in the cartracks. If changed around, they wear down evenly. It is also good policy to alternate the wheels from front to back as there is always more strain on the rear or driving wheels.

Very quick recoveries have been made at all the Easter plant growing establishments. The Robert Craig Co. now has its 49th street range almost entirely filled with bedding plants which will be in fine condition for planting out as soon as the weather is settled.

In speaking of carnations for Mothers' day, some dealers, from growers' advices, believe there will be a fairly good supply if the weather is favorable, but as yet no prices are being quoted on which orders are being taken.

New York.

PRICES SUFFER RAPID DROP.

The usual after-Easter reaction prevailed during the past week. Prices went down faster than they rose for the Easter business and all stocks moved slowly—if they moved at all. To make matters worse, a cold wave swooped down on this state on the night of April 24, bringing a sharp frost. The weather bureau has stated that April 25 was the coldest day of similar date that its records show. At 6 a. m., the temperature was 28 degrees, and the average temperature for the day was 34, with a strong wind. Up state and New Jersey districts report heavy damage to fruit blossoms and young plants in the fields and gardens. Making allowance for the usual exaggerations, there can be no doubt that damage has resulted. April 26, so far as weather was concerned, was little improvement over the 25th. The cut flower trade was particularly slow on both days. The cold snap is sure to reduce the supply, which will bring some relief to the market. American Beauty roses, specials, dropped to the rate of $50 per 100 and tea roses in like proportion; carnations and sweet peas shared a similar fate. If suggestions that have been made relating to Mothers' day are followed, that is, to feature all cut flowers and plants, there will be plenty of stock.

April 28.—The market is stagnant. In addition to the after-Easter reaction, the activities in pushing the Victory loan draw the best buyers of flowers into that worthy enterprise. As the florists have had a good season, they can stand a little dullness and are expected, in addition, to place good subscriptions for the loan. Special roses are particularly slow. In the morning, a little fresh stock moves at moderate prices, but does not clean up, and what goes over to the next day, goes for a song. In American Beauties, there is a considerable stock of short stems on the market, the shortest going as low as $1 per 100. The cold wave to some extent cut down the supply, which in a sense, is fortunate. The market is flooded with sweet peas, but the supply of long stems is limited. Large quantities of lilac is now arriving, and as the retailers sell a good sized bunch for 25 cents, it takes well with the buyers that want something cheap. The supply of orchids is light, but for reasons above stated, they are slow.

NOTES.

A special meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held on the night of April 28 for the purpose of speeding up subscriptions to the victory loan. President Kessler opened the meeting with appropriate remarks, after which he introduced Mr. Rogers, prominent in the financial district of this city, who made an earnest appeal for the loan. Charles Schenck and Joseph S. Fenrich, of the club, spoke along the same line. A large amount of "Victory" literature was distributed, subscriptions were taken and further arrangements were made for carrying on the work. On account of threatening weather, the attendance was not up to expectations. Emile Fardel, of Great Neck, N. Y., exhibited a fine specimen flowering plant of Amaryllis vittata hybrid.

"Moquin's on the Block," was the headline of an item in one of the newspapers, April 26. Moquin's is the well known restaurant at 454-458 Sixth avenue, in the heart of the wholesale cut flower district, and has been known as "Moquin's" since 1897. Previous to that date it was a restaurant under the name of the Knickerbocker Cottage. A grower in town visiting his wholesaler was particularly honored if taken to Moquin's for dinner. "The gnawing tooth of time" has made inroads on the old frame building which was erected over 100 years ago. The property is to be sold at auction under Supreme Court foreclosure and the restaurant will be closed.

George D. Nicholas, the retail florist of Seventh avenue and 125th street, recently returned from a stay of four months in Paris, where he went as an adviser to the Greek delegation to the peace convention on the affairs of the Greeks in the Turkish empire, which was his birthplace. He enjoyed his stay in Paris and believes that the Greeks in Turkey will eventually come into their own. He formed a big opinion of the character and abilities of M. Venizelos, head of the Greek delegation. It seems to have been the unanimous opinion that Venizelos was the greatest among them; even President Wilson is said to have acknowledged it.

William Sullivan and Hugh Peak, who were formerly salesmen in the wholesale cut flower district, returned from France, April 21, with their regiment, formerly the 69th New York. Both of them enlisted when the United States entered the war. This regiment lost in killed, 23 officers and 602 enlisted men. Albert L. Bowker, formerly a salesman for Riedel & Meyer, was killed in action. William Halpin, also a former employe of the same firm, was severely wounded and returned some time ago. Hugh Peak, previous to his enlistment, was with Walter F. Sheridan. William Sullivan had been with P. J. Smith for a number of years.

W. A. Blaedel Sons, who have a fine store and conservatory at 402 West 23rd street, state that they had an excellent Easter business. Being located near to the piers of all the great steamship lines, they are looking forward to an early return of the steamer trade in cut flowers.

Peter Theopine, of the Boulevard Floral Co., 2391 Broadway, was taken seriously ill at Easter, with influenza, but we are pleased to state that he is rapidly recovering. He is a good man, an ex-president of the Greek-American Florists' Association, and popular in all branches of the trade.

John Strates, who for a number of years has conducted a retail business at 176 West 23rd street, has given it up and will hereafter devote his attention exclusively to his candy store, located at 174 West 23rd street.

A meeting of the 1920 flower show committee was held in Secretary Young's office on the afternoon of April 28 and further progress was made on the schedule.

James McHutchison and wife are rejoicing in the arrival of a baby girl. Mr. McHutchison is again at his desk after an illness of several months.

Cut Asparagus Plumosus Sprays a Specialty

Salt Lake City, Utah.

The Easter trade in this city was most satisfactory, resulting in practically a general cleanup in all lines and the supply was one of the largest ever seen here with quality exceptionally good. With the exception of spiraeas and callas in pots, plant sales were excellent when it is taken into consideration that there was a large stock of roses, spiraeas, hydrangeas, azaleas, rhododendrons, bulbous stock and all kinds of baskets. In cut flowers, roses and violets went exceptionally well and snapdragons, Cecile Brunner roses and orchids were in great demand. Carnations were also called for but the demand was less than for other flowers.

NOTE.

The Miller Floral Co. carried one of the largest and most complete stocks, both plants and cut flowers ever seen in any one store in this city. More than 1,000 lilies sold readily, although prices were practically double those of former years.

Connecticut Horticultural Society.

The Connecticut Horticultural Society is planning a fall flower show that will be an "eye-opener" for Hartford county. A committee of seven has been named: E. M. Smith, gladiolus grower of East Hartford; Alex. Cumming, Jr., of Cromwell; Joseph Mc-

Manus, of Spear & McManus, Hartford; Alfred Dixon, of Wethersfield; O. F. Gritzmacher, an amateur dahlia grower of New Britain; B. M. Mason, of the Pope estate, Farmington, and W. W. Hunt, of W. W. Hunt & Co., Hartford. John F. Huss, superintendent of the Goodwin estate, will act in an advisory capacity to the committee.

The place will be Foot Guard Hall, one of the finest exhibition halls in the city of Hartford. The dates are September 9-11. This is the second week of September. The schedule of prizes will be ready in the course of a week or so.

ALFRED DIXON, Secy.

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 24-26, 1918.

THE price of bags at Chicago April 30, is $47.50.

CANADIAN seedhouses report the best season of recent years.

CALIFORNIA growers report mildew attacking onion in some sections.

BLACK WAX beans have been offered recently at $10.00 per 100 pounds.

MICHIGAN bean contracts are being made with farmers at $6.00 to $7.00 per 100 pounds.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Seedhouses catering to the local trade report March and April business excellent.

JAPANESE reports of early April are to the effect that giganteum lily bulbs will be only one-fourth of a crop.

DEPARTMENT stores at Chicago say their seed trade diminished, but the shrubbery sales increased this spring.

YOKOHAMA, JAPAN.—Two thousand buildings were destroyed here by fire, April 28, including part of the business section.

COUNTER trade in Wisconsin and Minnesota is 50 per cent behind that of last year, attributed to the recent cold weather.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, has made a new lease covering the retail store, 31-33 West Randolph street, for a 5-year term.

VISITED CHICAGO: R. C. McGill, of R. C. McGill & Co., San Francisco, Calif.; F. I. Meyers, representing Chris. Reuter, New Orleans, La.

NORFOLK, VA.—The trucking industry in this vicinity has been hard hit by labor shortage and seedsmen here report business below the average.

ONION SETS.—About 75 per cent of the seed for onion sets, in the Chicago district, has been sown and about 20 per cent is showing above ground.

H. E. MEADER, of Dover, N. H., has acquired four-fifths of the stock of Kunderd's new white gladiolus, Lily-white, at quite a respectable figure.

BLACKLISTS of firms friendly to enemies to America have been withdrawn. Trade relations are now open to all firms everywhere, except in Germany and Hungary.

THE national war garden commission on April 28, sent out garden making propaganda through the associated press, which should benefit the seed dealers generally.

BENTON HARBOR, MICH.—Wm. Westerbeek and August Pruyser, of the Michigan Bulb Co., have acquired 175 acres additional land here for growing gladioli, peonies and dahlias.

RAFFIA shipments are expected to arrive this week, according to McHutchison & Co., New York. These are the first shipments to reach this country since a few months after the war began.

Southern Seedsmen's Association.

President Louis Reuter, of the Southern Seedsmen's Association, has announced that the first annual meeting of the organization, scheduled to be held at Montgomery, Ala., May 19-20, announcement of which appeared in our issue of April 19, page 674, has been postponed to May 26-27.

French Bulbs.

Growers writing from southern France, April 10, state they had sufficient rain in March. With a little more rain in May, the narcissus should be fine. The quantity, however, will not be large on account of reduced planting during the war.

Roman hyacinths have not had sufficient care, and disease has made some ravages in the stock. The crop will be short and not of first quality.

The growers' syndicate prices are due, but no cables have been received up to the time of going to press.

Western Cannery Association.

The Western Cannery Association held its thirty-fifth annual meeting at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, April 24-25 with a fair attendance. Some of the seedsmen at the meeting were: A. L. Rogers, of Rogers Bros., Alpena, Mich.; Alex Mathers, representing the Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn.; H. A. Johns, of the Sioux City Seed Co., Sioux City, Ia.; Theodore Cobb, representing D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.; A. H. Goodwin, of the W. W. Barnard Co., S. F. Leonard, J. C. Leonard, Edward Leonard and A. H. Smith, of the S. F. Leonard Seed Co., and Arnold Ringier, Chicago.

New York Seed Trade.

While as a matter of course there is always something doing, and some of the seedsmen say that their business has been better than last year, one may reasonably suppose that April was not as good as in former years.

The month, in fact, in weather was more backward than March throughout. There was a succession of cold winds. A few warm days brought good business then a cold wave would give it a check. The latest of these was on the night of April 24 and throughout the day following. A high north wind brought flurries of snow and on the night of April 24 the temperature in adjacent districts is said to have registered from 22 to 25 degrees; that is, from seven to 10 degrees of frost. This put a strong check on the vegetable plant trade. The war being over and with seed prices high, there does not seem to be the same enthusiasm that prevailed last year for sowing and planting.

Washington Rulings and Regulations.

TRANSPORTATION MONOPOLY.

Charges of endeavoring to create a monopoly in the interstate transportation of fresh fruits and vegetables under refrigeration have been made by the federal trade commission against the Fruit Growers' Express, of Chicago, engaged in leasing to railroad companies refrigerator cars for transporting these commodities. It is alleged that the express makes exclusive clause tying contracts with railroads and has been cited to make answer to the charges by June 4. The effect of the complained-of clause in the contracts has been to prevent other car lines from competing, and to prevent shippers who own their own cars from using them over the lines of various railroads named in the complaint.

FERTILIZER CONTROL.

The purchasing public and the trade are to be apprised of the fact that the Farmers' Co-operative Fertilizer Company, through stock ownership, is con-

Imports at New York.

The following horticultural goods were received at the port of New York during the week ending April 26:

Via S. S. Vitellia from Glasgow, Scotland:

Albert Dickinson Seed Co., 75 bags seeds.

To others: 16 bags rape seed, one package apple trees, 50 cases palms and five cases plants.

Via S. S. Adriatic, from Liverpool, Eng.—

John Scheepers & Co., Inc., six cases roots and bulbs.

To others: 29 cases plants.

Via S. S. Manhattan, from London, Eng.—

Delmar Nurseries, 14 cases nursery stock.

McHutchison & Co., 10 cases nursery stock.

P. Sanders, one case plants.

To others: 10 cases orchids, three cases greenhouse plants, four cases trees, 29 bags seeds.

Via S. S. Auburn, from Antwerp, Belgium.—

Chas. Schwake & Co., 40 cases plants.

C. B. Richards & Co., 73 cases plants, 824 tubs laurel trees.

Free List for Switzerland.

The attention of exporters is called to the fact that shipments of commodities on the free list should be consigned, not to the S. S., but to the actual purchaser in Switzerland. Applications for export licenses for such commodities should show the actual purchaser as the proposed consignee.

Alcohol in Seed Germination.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please advise how alcohol can be used to advantage in hastening the germination of asparagus and other similar seeds.

Kentucky.

E. P. H.

While we know of no experiments that have been made which bear directly on the seeds mentioned, E. Verschaffelt, in a paper entitled "The Chemical Treatment of Seeds Which Take Up Water Slowly," published in 1912, says in regard to canna seeds, that they do not take up water readily, and neither do they take up alcohol. However, it has been found that a number of seeds, including some of the legumes which do not take up water readily, if immersed in dilute alcohol for a short time and then put in water, soften without injuring their germination. Careful experiments should be conducted, however, to determine the exact conditions under which this practice should be applied to make it of real value.

British Export Embargoes Removed.

The British government has removed all prohibitions upon the export of cabbage, cauliflower, celery, clover, grass, leek, mangold, onion, swede turnip, vetch or tare seeds.

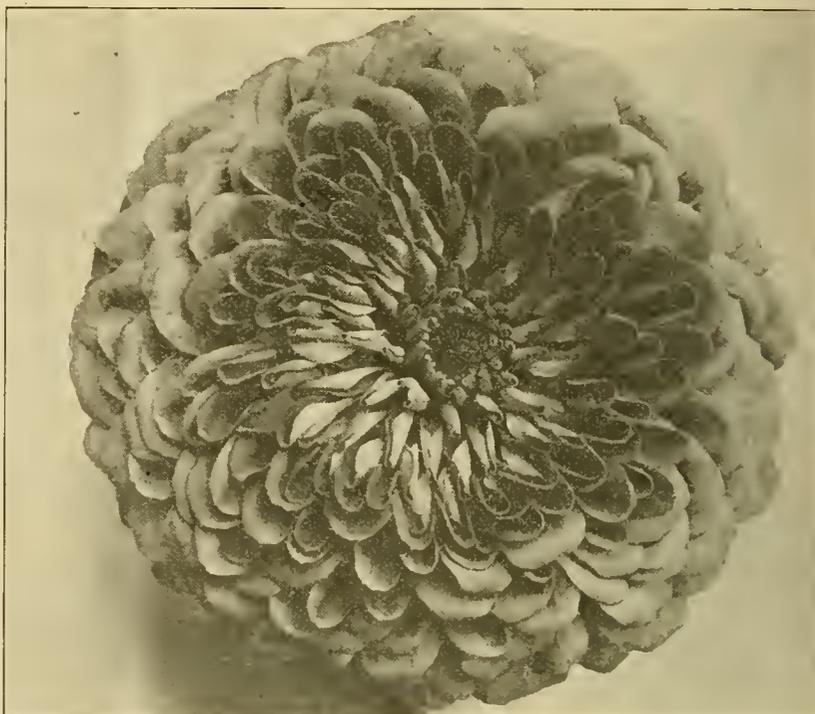

NEW YORK.—Spot canary seed is worth 25 cents per pound here, wholesale.

ARTHUR L. DEAL, representative of W. W. Johnson & Son, Ltd., Boston, Eng., sailed from New York for home last week and expects to return in July.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Geo. C. Thomson, of Northrup, King & Co., continues to improve in health, and he is now very busy with the work of his department.

THE postmaster general advises that the bar to commercial code messages has been removed. Cables will be returned to the cable companies about May 10.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover market closed unchanged April 28, at $30.00, registering no change during the previous seven days. April was quoted at $26.00 and October at $18.40. Timothy was steady, cash being offered at $5.25, April $5.25, May $5.25, September $6.00 and October $5.80.

TOMATO growers in northern Indiana lost many plants by frost the night of April 24.

NEW YORK.—Tender vegetables were injured in the suburbs here by a heavy frost the night of April 24.

SPOKANE, WASH.—The H. L. Olson Co. is building one house which will be devoted to tomatoes.

WICHITA, KAN.—The Menges Green-houses recently shipped one full carload of cucumbers to a northern market.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 29.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen boxes, $2.50 to $4.00; celery, Florida, crate, $6.50 to $7.00; leaf lettuce, per box 40 cents; radishes, per bushel box, 75 cents to $1.00; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $4.00 to $5.50.

New York, April 28.—Celery (Florida), per case $4.00 to $8.00, cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $2.50 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 15 to 25 cents; lettuce, per strap, $2.00 to $5.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $3.00.

Vegetable Markets.

A fairly steady market prevailed with shipments increasing during the period April 22-29, according to reports received by the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture. Old potatoes continued to advance, price gains of from five to 25 cents being quite general. No. 1 northern sacked white stock in the Chicago carlot market reached $2.20-$2.35 per 100 pounds and $2.25-$2.45 in middlewestern jobbing markets, while Michigan shipping points quoted strong at $2.12-$2.22 f.o.b. New York round whites in bulk strengthened slightly, reaching $2.52-$2.57 f.o.b. shipping points while consuming markets gained 20 to 50 cents, closing at $2.55-$3.15. New Florida Spaulding Rose declined nearly $3 in leading northern markets, reaching $8-$9.50 per barrel and closing in producing sections at $7-$7.50. Texas Bliss Triumphs declined slightly at Chicago to a range of $3.75-$4 per bushel hamper and held at $4 in New Orleans. Cabbage was fairly steady, Texas Flat Dutch being held at $125-$140 per ton in a few middlewestern markets and also ranged $6-$6.50 per 100 pounds. South Carolina Wakefield still ruled at $5 per barrel f.o.b. shipping points, but was slightly lower in consuming markets at $5.75-$6.50. Florida stock was steady at $4.75-$5 per barrel crate but declined about 50 cents in northern markets. California Wimmingstads declined $20 in producing sections to $70-$80 per ton and closed at Chicago at $5-$5.50, a decline of $1. Onion declines were noticeable in western markets apparently due to the increasing supply of new stock. The range of old yellow stock weakened slightly in leading eastern consuming markets, ranging $4.50-$5.75 per 100 pounds, sacked, but were lower in middlewestern cities at $3.75-$4.75. Texas No. 2 Bermudas declined about 50 cents in producing sections and closed at $2.50-$2.60 per crate f.o.b. cash. Eastern consuming markets ranged $4.25-$5 per crate. Tomatoes were steady to firm. Good Florida stock closed at $4.25-$4.50 per six-basket carrier at shipping points. The price in northern markets was $4-$5.25. Best grade South Carolina asparagus was $5-$6.50 per dozen in terminal markets. Georgia stock ranged $4.50-$5 in New York. Florida celery advanced to a range of $6-$6.50 at point of shipment. California Golden Heart ranged strong at $10-$12 per crate in Chicago and Kansas City.

Sweet Potato Production Cost.

The cost of growing an acre of sweet potatoes will depend upon the method of growing and the regions where grown, according to Farmers' Bulletin 999 of the United States department of agriculture. Owing to the variation from section to section in cost of labor, rent of land, cost of growing plants, fertility of the soil, rotation followed, storage facilities, and distance to markets, no definite statement of the cost of growing sweet potatoes can be given that will apply to the industry at large. The cost of growing an acre of sweet potatoes in the eastern sweet-potato section will average about as follows: Rent of land, $8; plowing and fitting the land, $5; 10,000 plants at $1 per thousand, $10; fertilizers, $15; setting plants with tongs, $1.25, and cultivation, $3. Harvesting a 100-barrel yield; picking up potatoes at 15 cents per barrel, $15; 100 barrels at 25 cents each, $25. This gives a total of $82.25 per acre, not including the cost of hauling to market. In many sections of the south, the cost of growing an acre of sweet potatoes will not exceed $40.

The price received from sweet potatoes is seldom less than $1.25 per barrel, and $2.50 to $3 is not uncommon. At this rate $100 to $150 is often realized from a single acre of sweet potatoes; the discouraging side of farming is sometimes met with in this industry as well as others, and when crop failures or overproduction occur little or no profit is realized.

At the present time (1919), owing to the high price of labor the cost of production will probably exceed the figures given above, but the returns are also greater.

The practice of crop rotation to cut down the fertilizer bill and yet increase the yield, the use of up-to-date storage houses, the ability to choose markets, and the knowledge of how to market, all have a direct bearing on the success of the grower in raising sweet potatoes as a money crop.

SWEET POTATO SLIPS

Nancy Hall, Porto Rico, Early Triumph, Dooley and Pumpkin Yams, Large, healthy plants, free from weevil and disease. 1000, $3.50; 10,000 at $3.00; 25,000 at $2.75; prepaid. 10,000, $25.00, not prepaid; 25,000, $56.25, not prepaid. Better prices on larger shipments.

The Sentry Who Waits Not in Vain

A SHAGGY, white head with the keen eyes of the warrior—a frame touched by the years and great hardships—there he sits in the great chair before the fire, motionless. We couldn't have kept him through the year, but for this one fact—he won't let go till he sees the boy again.

He fought with Phil Sheridan. The rattle of musketry and the ping of flying bullets, the sudden, rushing sweep of the horsemen in full charge—these are his cherished memories. That night before Missionary Ridge when southern heavens were livid with the flare of battle, a bursting shell carried his right arm away. And now he wants to see the boy and hear the story of this last, our war.

He's coming back tomorrow, the boy. He's coming back because the war ended ahead of time. Another year and the sentry would probably have waited in vain for his return. He's coming back tomorrow, and today I'm going to subscribe to the Victory Liberty Loan to help pay the bills that brought him back safe and sound.

Our sentry's weary watch is nearly over—and he smiles pridefully as he thinks of the boy's return.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.
 J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Meon, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-four annual convention will be held at Chicago in 1919.

NORTHERN SPY apples sold at $19.00 per barrel, wholesale, in Chicago the last week of April.

RESTRICTIONS on the exportation of forest tree seeds from France have been removed according to the Interim Forest Authority.

DURHAM, N. H.—The Granite State Nurseries, established here in 1914, have been purchased by the Dow Nurseries, of North Epping, this state.

JAPANESE IRISES are offered by jobbers now at 17 cents per root and buyers are assured that no more can be imported into this country after July 1.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—William Speed, well known as a landscape architect, has returned from two years' service in France, and will reopen his office in this city.

MEDINA, N. Y.—A bulletin issued April 25 stated that the western New York fruit belt suffered from a freeze which it is feared will destroy the peach and possibly the apple crop.

JENKINTOWN, PA.—William Robertson, for more than 20 years superintendent on the J. W. Pepper estate here, has resigned his position. His plans for the future have not been announced.

ORCHARDISTS in Santa Clara county, California, have been warned to take immediate steps to destroy tent caterpillars, discovered in that section, and which unless prompt action is taken, are capable of causing serious damage.

Tree Registration.

"The American Forestry Association, through its campaign for planting memorial trees, is educating the American people to the values of forestry. The association aims to register every tree planted and a marker has been designated for them.

Magnolias for Northern Lawns.

Classified as to season of flowering, magnolias resolve themselves into two groups, the early and the late, according to W. E. Bontrager in the Monthly Bulletin of the Ohio agricultural station. Those of the early flowering groups put out their blooms in April and May, before the leaves appear, and hence usually attract much attention on account of this peculiar characteristic. Most of the early flowering section are of Asiatic origin, one of the first to bloom being the shrubby stellata, a very prolific, hardy bush not often more than 10 feet high. Stellata is followed by the showy conspicua. A trifle later comes M. soulangeana, a handsome species which has probably been planted in the North more than any other flowering magnolia. The flowers are white with a purple blotch at the base of each petal. Two of the Chinese sorts to flower last of all are Leneei and purpurea, both bearing purple blossoms.

Of the magnolias which come into flower in late spring and early summer, the Japanese hypoleuca is one of the finest in foliage, bearing in June milkwhite blossoms that are followed by showy red fruits. During its earlier years hypoleuca greatly resembles our native tripetala in leafage and habit of tree, finally growing into a specimen 50 feet or more in height. The sweet bay (M. glauca) grows in swamps and moist lands in a region extending from Massachusetts down along the Atlantic coast to the southern states, where it is an evergreen. The finest in flower of all the late flowering section is M. parviflora, a small tree with fragrant cream-colored blossoms having pink sepals.

Many of the summer flowering magnolias have a massiveness of foliage which makes them outstanding examples of tropical richness on a northern lawn. For genuine luxuriance M. macrophylla with thick leaves two feet long has few close competitors. Nearest to macrophylla in size of its leaves is M. tripetala, known also as the umbrella tree. Both are showy in flower and make trees 40 to 50 feet tall, macrophylla being the larger of the two. Our beautiful native cucumber tree (M. acuminata) also is renowned for its clean, glossy luxuriant leaves and in fact is one of the choicest large lawn and park trees native to the temperate zone.

The Boiler of Unequalled Fuel Economy

Kroeschell Boilers, the best by test since 1879. Forty years' experience.

THE QUALITY PLACE OF BOSTON

Regarding the Kroeschell, it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerably already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration.

OHIO'S CELEBRATED CYCLAMEN SPECIALIST

After using your No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler I came to the conclusion that had I to install more boilers it would be the Kroeschell and no other. It really is a pleasure to heat, no trouble to get the desired heat in a very short time.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Begonias of the Lorraine Type.

Begonias of the Gloire de Lorraine type, both the young rooted stock and the older plants, will now begin to make active growth. There is still time to propagate much stock; many growers prefer the May-rooted plants to those propagated earlier, for the plants start right off into growth at this time, while those rooted earlier grow very slowly during the late winter and early spring months. The young shoots that break from the old plants make fine cuttings at this time, and if the plants are in good health are just as good as the leaf cuttings made earlier. As soon as rooted they should be potted in a light, fibrous loam in 2¼-inch pots and placed in a light, well ventilated house, but should be protected from all chilling drafts. They cannot be successfully grown in a stuffy, moist temperature, and to have strong, healthy plants should not be forced in too warm a temperature. They will require a house in which the night temperature does not fall below 60° and should be given all the air possible without chilling during pleasant, bright days, carefully avoiding drafts. They will need to be watered carefully, for the roots are very fine and are growing slowly yet, and over-watering quickly shows in the growth of the plant. It is now a good time to procure young stock if the grower is not supplied, for those making a specialty of this plant will have the best of stock at this time.

Gladiolus.

The gladioli that are being forced for spring blooming will soon begin to open their flowers, and to have good clean stock they will require attention. The spikes should first of all be kept erect, for if they get bent and crooked half their value is gone, and this will occur very quickly on the bright, sunny days when the plants lean over, so they should be kept tied either to stakes or wires to prevent this. The spike should be cut when the first flower opens and placed in water and the other flowers opened in the office or store-room. These flowers spot very quickly if water is sprinkled upon them in the greenhouse, and at this season of the year syringing on bright days is a necessity or red spider is sure to obtain a foothold, and if these pests become once well established it is almost impossible to eradicate them. Considerable discussion is often heard as to whether the corms of gladiolus forced are of any value another year. If the plant is not cut too far down on the stem and the corms are given an opportunity to thoroughly ripen, there is no doubt but that the bulbs may be grown another year and good results obtained, but if the plant is cut off clear down to the ground the corm has no chance to make its full growth or to ripen, and the corms will be practically worthless. Corms that are forced this year and the spike cut so as to leave three or more leaves, if properly ripened, can be planted outside another year and the following year first-class corms will be the result. The Gladiolus Colvillei can be forced year after year if grown properly.

Preparations for Memorial Day.

With the Easter stock out of the way, there will be room available for the plants that have of necessity been crowded more closely together for the last few weeks, and the next great day before the grower is Memorial day. In those sections of the country where the late frosts are past, the bedding stock must be ready for planting out at that time, and the demand will be for plants to flower, for the customers will desire plants that will make a good showing by May 30, and the stock must be grown with that object in view to have a good sale. The geraniums and other blooming plants should be placed in their blooming pots, spaced out and given a good sunny location, that they may be full of bloom by the last of May. It is next to impossible to sell plants that are not in flower at Memorial day. The production of flowers for that day must also receive prompt attention. Much of the floral work for Memorial day is what is called "cheap" work, that is, flowers that make a great show and are not expensive. So, although there are many roses and carnations used, yet large quantities of the cheaper flowers are employed to fill in and make the sprays and bouquets larger. Early outdoor flowers and blooming shrubbery can be used, but in some sections these cannot be depended upon, so flowers must be grown in the houses. Stocks make a splendid flower for this purpose, and should be benched at once. The plants should now be about three or four inches high and growing rapidly. Candytuft is grown in large quantities by some growers for Memorial day. Seedlings can be transplanted in early April and brought into flower the latter part of May. Spiraea, both as a pot plant and for cut flowers, is very useful at this time; six to eight weeks will bring them into flower at this season. There are other annuals that can be raised for Memorial day blooming, but the two mentioned are grown in largest quantities.

Asparagus Plumosus and Sprengeri.

Small stock of Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri are now a necessity with all plantmen, for they are freely used in fern dishes and in plant baskets, being very satisfactory plants for house culture. Fresh seed can now be obtained and the stock grown on through the summer, which will make fine stock for the next winter. The seed will germinate more readily and evenly if soaked in lukewarm water placed in a warm location for 24 hours before planting. Instead of sowing the seed broadcast, it is better to sow them about three-quarters of an inch apart, and they can then be allowed to remain in the flats until they are strong enough to transplant. Do not cover the seed too deeply; an eighth of an inch of soil sifted over the seed is ample. The first potting must be carefully done, for they make a long tap root, with very few small roots, and the soil does not adhere to it, and in the young stage this root is easily broken. A warm house with plenty of moisture and careful watering with a slight shade is all they require after being potted. Over-watering will always cause the fronds to take on a yellowish hue.

MUSKOGON, MICH.—Otto Kweekman, 220 Apple street, is planning to erect glass in the near future for cut flowers.

HOLLAND, MICH.—The Holland Floral Shop has purchased the adjoining property and the business will be enlarged. Peter Pluim and Henry Hulzenga are the proprietors.

ITHACA, N. Y.—Elmer O. Fippin, professor of soil technology at Cornell University, will, at the close of the present collegiate year, become director of the agricultural bureau of the Lime Association, Mather building, Washington, D. C.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Thomas D. Long, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York, who called on the trade here recently, expressed surprise at the development in the demand for decorative plants since his last trip south.

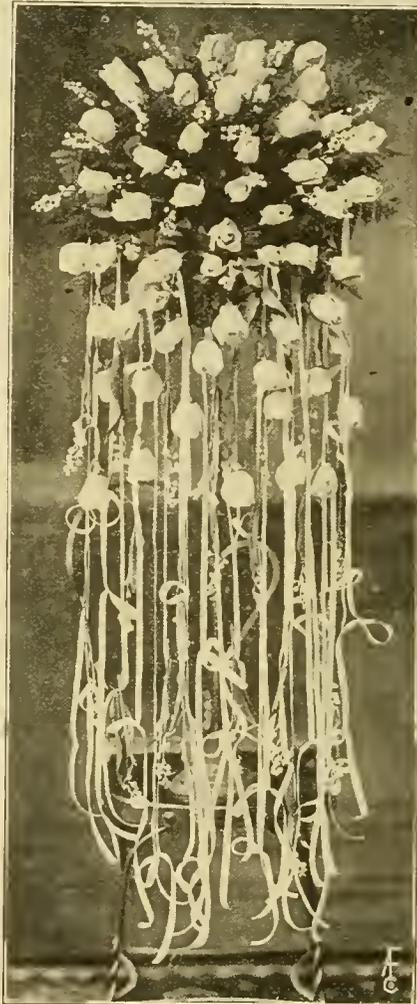

SAGINAW, MICH.—The Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Michael Doran, Saginaw, president; Charles Hamilton, Saginaw, vice-president; Henry Goetz, Saginaw, secretary; Albert G. Boehringer, Bay City, treasurer.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phlla., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

"The best laid plans o' mice and man aft gang alee." This was true in the days of Bobbie Burns, is just as certain today, and likely to continue to the end of time. Another philosopher coined the maxim, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." Each Bride's Bouquet, by S. Kramer.

Roses and Lily of the Valley.

new day brings with it opportunities, and quite likely, disappointments. As long, however, as there is a possibility of attaining success, one should not give up. Success is bound to come to the man who diligently works for it, who overcomes one obstacle after another until he reaches the goal. One well thought out selling idea makes a great hit, another, with as careful preparation, fails, or appears to, and we hardly know how to account for it. Perhaps there is no business in which there is so much opportunity for change and variety as in that of the retail florist. The seasonable plants and cut flowers that come and go in the market from one year's end to the other, if properly featured, give great variety to the stock. The wide-awake, alert florist, who is first in offering each seasonable flower as it comes along, presenting it with the various accessories which are constantly changing, and not failing to call the attention of his own, and other likely buyers, to these first "showings," as they say in the movies, is almost sure to soon have the trade coming his way.

The public likes novelty, and they like change; the same store appearance, and the same stock a month at a time, awakens no new interest. They sent, or received, this or that last week, and they want something new or if that is not possible at the time, then present the old staples in a new way so as to give them a novel effect.

The rose stock in the case seldom shows the varieties in their perfection; they are buds of promise, to come out later on and give their best as they develop. Place half a dozen of each variety in separate vases, and carefully bring them to their best, well displayed. These will be sure to attract attention and as compared with the tighter buds, gives the latter an added value.

The greatest asset in all grades of the florist's stock is quality and finish. This cannot be impressed too strongly to the average retailer. It is not quantity, but quality that counts. Every plant or flower should be, like the dollar note, 100 per cent perfect, full value for every penny paid for it. Whatever waste there is in handling plants and flowers is due, to a large extent, to the desire of the grower to hurry the stock along and offer it before it is at its best or finished. The results of a hurried, forced growth is stock without stamina or quality. It is the perfection of form and color, the flowers or the buds so far advanced that all will open, that attract purchasers. The stock is so unusually beautiful that they feel compelled to buy. The green, immature stock that is so common in the cut flower market, is what keeps down what is called general average when prices are summarized. If growers would sacrifice buds and small side growths on very much of their stock, they would reduce quantity but add greatly to quality, and with careful and intelligent cutting, bunching and preparation of the various items, find much more satisfactory returns. It is not that prices are to be raised to any great extent, but that stocks shall all be good enough to sell, and in this condition, be more attractive to all who see them.

A good special for the coming week will be the hybrid and shrubby calceolarias. These are now in good flower, and of all the pot plants, there is nothing more showy or unique. Feature each plant with some sort of a pot cover, if only white paper drawn up with irregular edges around the pot, and with an inside top lining the color of the flower the plant will look much more salable.

Pans of geraniums of several 4-inch pots together are very showy. They can be used in the house as window ornaments to be planted out later.

There must be something of interest such as these plant specials to offer continuously to be alternated with seasonable cut flower displays such as small vase or tumbler baskets of sweet peas or short stemmed roses, which are quickly arranged, and one of the most satisfactory offerings when flowers are plentiful.

Beautiful and artistic effects are now possible with dogwood blossoms, which should be freely used at this time. These should be well soaked so that branches and flowers are full of water, and the ends of the branches placed, wherever possible, in vases or jars of water. Painted green tubes of tin, 10 to 12 inches in length and two inches in diameter with wire hook, are very useful for all kinds of decorative effects, as they can be attached to the edges of pot covers or tied amongst the palms or other foliage plants in decorations, and furnish holders for all kinds of cut flowers in color effects.

Buying Inducements.

There are various methods, in fact, innumerable devices and plans that are employed in many lines of trade to influence buyers, and give them an idea that they are getting something for nothing. The expense of the printing of the necessary coupons, the handling, bookkeeping, and other charges incident to their use, from issue to redemption, has to be paid for and falls, of course, on the buyer.

Fortunately, there is but little, if any, of this shady gift giving carried on by the retail florist trade. A plan which entails no extra expense, is purely legitimate, and has been found beneficial in holding customers, has been used for several years by a Philadelphia, Pa., retailer. All his business is done on a cash basis, each sale made being subject to what is called a 10 per cent cash discount; that is, a discount for the cash payment. A printed cash register slip showing the amount of sale states that 10 per cent of this sum is good in payment of purchases at any time for goods of the store. Many will say to sell entirely for cash is impossible in the cut flower business, but this firm's business is constantly increasing. The discount gives the inducement or excuse for the practice. Those who get the slips, feel they have a credit at the store, and return at the first opportunity to buy it out. In reality, the net discount is then not over five per cent, which the profit from the new purchase that is nearly always much more than the credit slip, far more than covers.

This is a purely legitimate, profit sharing idea that can be carried out without additional expense, as the cash register sales checks containing this discount announcement are furnished without extra charge. Every such credit slip, or check, is carefully laid away until flowers or plants are wanted, and ties the customer to this store, as every new sale is completed with a credit slip that to be made good, requires a return visit to the store.

Warren G. Matthews, Dayton, O.

"Say It With Flowers"—how trite the expression today, and yet—

Close your eyes and see a little lad of nine who has been "hound out" to such Christian people as see to nightly prayers and administer whippings alternately with good advice or scoldings.

Watch the child as he hoes the twenty-acre field, in the hot sun of early summer; his hickory shirt open at the throat; his little grimy hands clutching the handle of the hoe as he works rapidly, lest from the house, not far distant, he hear the urging not to be lazy! Watch him as he digs about the root of some low-growing flower in order that it be not disturbed; watch his eager glance as he comes abreast the wild rose bush, laden with its delicate bloom, and see the eager lighting of his face as he touches the blossoms tenderly, yet destroys none.

AZALEA HINODIGIRI IN POT.

Given Basket Effect with Pussy Willow Sprays and Ribbon.

A dear little lad who hopes one day to be able to have all the flowers he wants; flowers to love, to touch; to work among, and as the pinkly vivid bush is left behind in the hoeing of a new row there still comes, in spite of fear of reproof, the backward look at the roses, and a smile is sent across the space to greet the blossoms.

"Say it with flowers"—a common expression today, but when the small boy, now the grown Warren G. Matthews of the greenhouses, came to his older youthful days and flowers became possible, how great his joy, how complete the sum of his earthly happiness!

It began this way: He was a baby of two when his father died. The mother, as the years passed, found herself unable to take the proper care of her children, and the little Warren was given over to the Christian family for whom he says he still has much affection in his memory, because of what the years have brought him since.

There were hot days when hoeing was to be done; cold days when cows had to be milked; rainy days when roads were impassable and household "chores" had to be accomplished; and freezing days and nights when the slight form shivered, with prayers a-plenty and scoldings, ditto.

The only thing to interest were the flowers which he loved, and from the earliest opening of violets through the gorgeous season of roses, time passed lightly; it was only winter that brought dismay because there were no blooms to cheer—scoldings and nightly prayers and church-going, but no flowers!

Then his mother married an Englishman who was a skilled horticulturist, and the boy Warren felt nothing but joy. Here was the opportunity to be near the beloved colorful things he so ceaselessly had hoped and desired might one day be his to cultivate.

Then began happy years of study; of growing; of breeding new species; of grafting; pollinating, and the watching of living things.

"If I had my way," he said the other day, as we wandered through the greenhouses on the other side of the river, "I would grow but one kind of flower—roses! What else but roses are worth so much love?"

"You know one can never set a commercial value on flowers? There is the splendid growing mass; the fragrant things breathing forth a loveliness incomparable. Some one grieves, and you send flowers, which give their greeting of sweetness. Who could measure that gift by any monetary value? You want to acknowledge a favor—how much better it is expressed in wonderful roses; in violets; in any kind of blooms. Not because I grow them; not because they are sold over a counter, but because they tell a story the recipient reads with ease. They carry a message the sender breathes into the petals.

"One day, when I was not yet nine," he said musingly, as though looking across the years from now to then, "a peddler came to our house, and in his pack was a pair of pink 'galluses'—not suspenders, mind you, but simply 'galluses'—which I wanted. Oh, how I wanted them! But I was ordered to go about my work, and the peddler left the premises. Some days before I had picked four gallons of gooseberries and earned 40 cents in shinplasters, and the four ten-cent slips were in my small wallet. I followed that peddler and bought the rose-colored 'galluses'; they were the color of my wild roses by the fence, and there could be nothing lovelier than that pink. Then I put them on beneath my hickory shirt; it was hot, and the perspiration caused the color to run and stained the shirt. I received a terrible thrashing for spending my 40 cents, but I think it was the desire to have the pink of the roadside flowers next me that prompted the purchase of the 'galluses.'"

The man who loves dogs and horses cannot care very much for the man who does not; the lover of animals has a largeness of soul others do not possess, and so it is with Mr. Matthews, in his love for flowers. "I cannot have confidence in a man who doesn't love them," he comments, and there is about him the something that gives the impression of bigness of heart; of love for his fellow men, and, above all things, adoration for his flowers, which, in the long ago, he determined to have and to hold for his very own.

There are statistics about flowers, as we know; it is interesting to know that Mr. Matthews sold $56,000 worth of flowers last year for funerals alone; that he sells 30,000 carnations a week, and every flower that leaves his greenhouses goes with the love of its grower!

From the boy who loved the hedge-row bush and who wanted all the flowers he could love, to now, is a far cry, but the man has what the lad desired; as much a lad at heart as when he smiled happily at the flying petals and caught them in his hands, seeing in his vision the serried rows of loveliness that are now his.—Dayton, Ohio, Newspaper.

MINOT, N. D.—The Valkeer Greenhouses, established here in 1908, have made a splendid record for steady growth to the front rank in establishments of its kind. In addition to a large range, an attractive flower shop is conducted at 121 South Main street with a branch at Williston. A seed department, added in 1916, was successful from its inception. Business extends to Minnesota, South Dakota, Montana and Canada as well as this state. H. H. Valkeer is in charge of the greenhouses while F. M. Sullivan is in charge of a force of experts at the store.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Seasonable Suggestions.

Working along the young plants for the coming season's planting is the most important part of the chrysanthemum grower's work at this time. The Easter plants, being now out of the way, more space will be available for caring for the stock. The first thing in order is to figure up the number of plants needed to meet your requirements, then arrange to have them in stock, either by propagating or purchase, always allowing for a reasonable surplus, so that a good selection of clean, healthy plants can be made at time of planting. If there is any doubt of the stock plants on hand not giving enough cuttings, the young plants should be arranged for at this time when the growers who make it a business to furnish the young stock have plenty of good plants to dispose of. Many growers make the serious mistake of waiting until part of their plants are benched, then have to send off a hurry up order to obtain enough plants to finish planting the bench, which means that under the most favorable conditions, the crop will be uneven. One other matter to which the growers' should give their particular attention is to use judgment in the selection of the varieties to be planted. Every indication seems to be working toward making November 11 a special day for the use of white and yellow chrysanthemums. The increased demand for flowers for special occasions is what puts life into the florists' business. Heretofore they have not come during the chrysanthemum season, but now it would seem to be to chrysanthemum growers' interest to make a special effort to have a good stock of white and yellow flowers for Armistice day. Some of the finest of the midseason varieties are at their best at that time, so there is no reason why a good supply of fine blooms can not be arranged for. It may have a tendency to shorten up the chrysanthemum season and cut into the supply for Thanksgiving, but these are minor matters. The demand is what all are after. When that is in sight, the supply can be very easily attended to by the growers. Another thing which chrysanthemum growers should avoid to a certain extent is that of planting such vast quantities of the same color, both in the large varieties, as well as the pompons. We all know that white, yellow and pink are the staple colors, but the line should not be drawn too tight around these colors. Some of the autumn tints of bronze as well as the old gold and red shades, have been in good demand during the last three or four seasons.

CARE OF EARLY PROPAGATED STOCK.

The young plants which were potted from the sand three or four weeks ago, are now well established and need shifting along into larger pots to carry them over three weeks or a month to planting time. Like all other stock under glass, young chrysanthemums grow very rapidly at this season of the year, and unless they are shifted along into larger pots as they need it, they quickly become drawn and spindly. These young plants should be given a fresh, live soil which does not contain an overabundance of fresh manure to cause a hurried growth. Pot firmly at every potting and pay particular attention to airing the houses and grow cool. Very little, if any, steam heat will be needed for this young stock from now on; the cooler they can be grown, the better plants they will make. They also should be allowed a few inches of space between each plant to keep them sturdy and prevent drawing up. Be particular not to water more than is necessary and pay strict attention to keeping the plants clean of insects which are very troublesome, finding particular delight in sapping the strength out of the tender tops of the young plants.

CARE OF CUTTINGS IN SAND.

The cuttings in the sand need closer attention at this time than they did a few weeks ago under more cloudy and cooler conditions, when steady bottom heat could be kept on the propagating bed. Now weather conditions are such that very little steam heat is needed, and lots of air has to be given every day. This means that the cuttings will have to be more closely shaded to prevent wilting and save watering so often. The cuttings have to be kept plump for them to root well, but if they can be kept firm without having to saturate the sand too often, it is very much better for them. It is very important that the cuttings be taken from the sand as soon as rooted and not allowed to stretch out into growth while in the propagating bed. Be sure and arrange for a good supply of the newer pompons, there being some fine things among those covering the season from early to very late. The same can be said of the anemone varieties which are very beautiful, especially when grown moderately in sprays. The single varieties are also grown in larger numbers each year, particularly for private conservatories and for home retail trade. Most of them are very beautiful and greatly admired by the best class of customers.

Publicity, System and Costs.

MANY INTERESTING BUSINESS FEATURES.

At the close of the meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, April 1, President Harvey voiced the opinions of all present, that as an aid to publicity, every florist' club in the country should hear Dr. H. W. Hess on advertising and salesmanship. There were three other features equally as interesting and valuable. Dr. E. P. Moxey, Jr., emphasized the importance of cost accounting, and H. Farley, lecturer of the National Cash Register Co., aided by moving pictures, brought out the errors of loose storekeeping and the great advantages of correct system. The remaining feature was a comprehensive display of samples of the best Easter stock grown for this market. This was staged early in the afternoon, being greatly admired and minutely inspected by the large audience of over 200 members and visitors.

SYSTEM IN ACCOUNTING.

Dr. Moxey, who is professor of accounting of the Wharton School of Finance, of the University of Pennsylvania, stated that theory and practice must go hand in hand, as neither would be successful by itself it was like trying to propel a boat with but one oar; it made no headway. While the basic principles of business were the same, yet each particular line needed a system worked out to meet its peculiar requirements. No two banks even, kept their books exactly alike. Examples of bad system were shown, in which cash sales and money received for goods sold months before, were all counted in as the day's business. Books or records need not be cumbersome or intricate. A mechanical recorder, such as a cash register, can be used to handle the small business, but it must be used intelligently. A system of keeping accounts or departments separate, by using different colored sales slips, and entering same on similar colored record sheets, had its advantages.

To get at costs, different departments should be kept separate, and their proportion of rent charged as an expense. The time of making up designs should be charged for, as well as the frame, flowers, etc. Recording sheets should have daily cash and charge business added to the respective columns daily, as well as the various expense items, so as to see at a glance how the business is going. Every working proprietor or partner should charge the business for his services. If the store property is owned and an asset, its rent should be charged up. Both these items are, by some, overlooked in their cost accounting. Delivery is another expense. The cheapest large department stores can send home a package is 16 cents. If retailers would segregate their various expenses, they would soon find the costs of handling the different departments, such as designs, decorations, plants and cut flowers and obtain much valuable information that would soon make their business more profitable. Advertising is not to be considered an expense, but an investment as it stimulates the old and brings in new business.

MIDDLEMEN'S ADVANTAGES.

The wholesaler, jobber or middle man is considered by some as a necessary evil, but this is a great mistake. The manufacturer would rather sell to the jobber, giving him a commission or slightly lower price, so as to avoid small accounts, while the wholesaler whose entire energy is given up to selling, increases his business by encouraging and securing a large number of customers.

Growers are in the same class as manufacturers. They get at costs of producing various kinds of plants and flowers by keeping records of temperatures, labor, stock, fertilizers, pots, etc. Some plants, taking higher temperature than others, cost more to grow on this account. Carnation, rose or plant growers, can, by keeping simple records of the various items of cost in columnar lined sheets, which were not allowed to run behind, get an idea of their business that would be satisfying and profitable.

ADVERTISING AND SALESMANSHIP.

Dr. Hess, also of the Wharton School, head of the department of advertising and salesmanship, is a wonderfully inspiring speaker. There were, he said, three generations that affected the business of today—the past, the present and the future. The fathers of the present generation, founded the business in their day, which was taken up and improved by the men of our time with increased production and greater profits, they to be followed by the rising generation, who will get still another vision. He cited an instance where the two generations clashed, in the case of a young man just from a college business course, who had vision. He did not like the old methods of his father's factory, and much against his wishes it was closed for a time and remodeled, with new machinery taking the place of the old, which soon proved its worth.

Dr. Hess spoke of the value of ideals and vision: of how Edison and Bell, men of vision, had created the electric light and the telephone. How in the old days, Daguerre, who discovered the principles of photography, had been imprisoned for his nonsensical ideas. The conception of any gathering of people is an ideal.

Advertising has become a profession which develops possibilities of business. The cry is for leadership to keep us all busy. Why cannot we, as a people, develop the same energy in peace times as we did in the period of the war? All can be kept busy. We must produce and sell, more and more abundantly. We are now passing through a transitional stage, as does all nature, the clouds, the rain and the ice, the flowing stream and then clouds again. In times like this, we are vaporizing; we get conceptions and find ideals. What is life, unless we can feel and take a part in its unlimited possibilities? Every article in the world is manufactured and sold to satisfy a desire for it and in many a case this desire is created solely by advertising.

IMPORTANCE OF PUBLICITY.

The florist business has not nearly come up to its possibilities in this country. People must be taught to think flowers. You cannot ride in the street car without seeing crackers staring you in the face, or Tootsie rolls, hosiery and other things, out of which millions have been made. People were made to think, made conscious of them, by advertising. That is the process. It did not just happen; it took millions of money to do it, and flowers can be sold in the same way. It can be made the custom to use flowers for many purposes as they are now considered necessary for funerals, weddings, etc. An example was cited where with a flower shop open in a hotel, many purchased flowers for their tables. The store closed, the proprietor going to war. With no flowers before them, no more were placed on the tables. It was not a question of money, but they did not think flowers, because they no longer saw them.

What are you doing in a large commercial way to get people to buy flowers? Have a definite system and keep at it. The people that have been made to buy other things can be taught in the same way to buy flowers. You can get it over. Your show window must reflect the spirit of flowers, heavenly, cooling, refreshing. There are too many who rent a building, put in fixtures, whiten it up and call themselves florists, and we know of no business that can be started on such small capital. He cited John Wanamaker's small beginning and great struggles, while building up his wonderful success, and how such achievement was possible to every man who would pay the price. He spoke of the careless, slouchy-looking salesman, with no conception of how to meet or sell to customers, a you-can-take-or-leave-it manner; no sympathy, no feeling. It is not a question of price, green or no green; it is flowers and service.

The costs of producing and handling flowers should be covered by a reasonable profit. If people are treated in such a way that you gain their confidence, they will pay your price. The Gillett razor costs but 65 cents and sells for $5. You make no such profits as this but advertising does it.

Good clerks are necessary in the store. Customers should not be compelled to have to hunt people to wait on them. Such an atmosphere is very detrimental. Do not be afraid to ask good prices, many judge quality by the price. It is conception of values in a store that gives dignity. Try advertising, spend money intelligently, and have faith in the result. If you have the goods, it will sell them. Large campaigns spend $500,000 without at first much results, but later it pays handsomely. Florists can co-operate and derive wonderful benefits individually from advertising, the people gradually coming to think in terms of flowers.

GROWERS ARE MANUFACTURERS.

Growers of plants and flowers are manufacturers. In other lines, men make a market or demand for their goods by advertising, and growers of flowers can help in a flower publicity campaign to their advantage. Men never fight for anything without being obliged to get together, when all are benefited. Flowers sold on the street benefit the business, as they increase the love for them. It is up to us to analyze, to know the possibilities, to create flower consciousness, to work co-operatively, without a feeling of competition.

MOVIES COMPARE STORE SYSTEMS.

Mr. Farley's address was illustrated with a moving picture series of views of actual business in retail stores using slipshod methods, and later showed their great improvement, when the cash register system was used, and the whole atmosphere of the store changed. The careless manner of the clerks, the mistakes made, neglect of charging goods sold, temptations offered by handling uncounted money, the worried proprietor who was losing money, and other incidents of careless methods, were graphically shown in such a way as to bring these possibilities home to many of those present. It was a running story, which in Mr. Farley's hands pointed a great lesson.

Features of the Easter plant display were handsomely flowered Tausendschon ramblers grown by Zeiger & Sons, exhibited by Robert Craig Co. There were also polyanthus and forget-me-nots from Zeigers'. H. I. Foust staged gesnerias, Azore lilies, and Hinodigiri azaleas. The Robert Craig Co. had a large exhibit of roses, hydrangeas, chrizemas, heather, gardenias, oranges in blossom, and many other plants. W. K. Harris staged bougainvilleas, Tausendschon roses and hydrangeas. Macaw Bros. showed a table of their new fern, a sport of Scottil. Floracraft Gardens, Moorestown, N. J., had fine hydrangeas. Albert M. Campbell exhibited hydrangeas and Delphinium Belladonna in pots, very well grown. Emil Savoy, Secaucus, N. J., displayed a new dark bougainvillea. Robert Scott & Son staged two new seedling roses, both very promising. K.

Detroit Florists Advertising Plans.

A special meeting of the florists' club was held at the Hotel Statler, May 1. This session was devoted to the subject of publicity and the large attendance and animated discussion resulted in a definite method of collecting funds for co-operative advertising that will hereafter be employed to develop increased trade for the several holidays throughout the year commencing with Mothers' day. The stereopticon pictures shown at Cleveland, depicting features of the trade there, were used on this occasion, and were an inspiration for the enthusiastic support later given the plan of raising a big fund to be placed in the hands of the publicity committee, A. Pochelon, E. A. Fetters and Wayne C. McLaughlin. This plan divides the whole number of florists of the city, including growers and wholesalers, into four groups. This division is based upon the estimated gross sales of each, and an assessment is made of two-tenths of one per cent of the maximum gross sales, but each florist is permitted by the plan to name in which of the four groups his annual sales places him, and is assessed accordingly.

A team of 15 solicitors under the captaincy of Robert Rahaley will immediately begin a canvass of the whole city and splendid results are looked for. Banners for both sides of more than 100 delivery autos will be displayed, and posters for every florist's window with stickers for all their packages for delivery the previous week will be part of Mothers' day announcements, and all the daily papers of the city, and also the weeklies of the suburbs, will carry advertisements of Mothers' day as the first fruit of this co-operative advertising campaign. A finance committee consisting of E. A. Fetters, Harry Taylor and Wayne C. McLaughlin completes the organization. About 20 members of the ladies' auxiliary of the club were present evincing their interest in the proceedings. J. F. S.

Boston.

BUSINESS SHOWS GOOD TONE.

Business during the past week has showed improvement with everything auguring well for Mothers' day. Carnations are holding up to $8 per 100 while rose prices are reasonable. Sweet peas vary from 75 cents to $4 per 100. Darwin tulips now bring $8 per 100. Easter lilies have dropped to 15 cents. Among other excellent stocks being received on this market are Mrs. Frances King gladioli, delphiniums, irises, Roman anemones and lavender and white stocks.

NOTES.

Henry R. Comley is rejoicing in the arrival of his son, Lester, who has returned from France in the best of health and spirits.

William Penn and Sidney Hoffman are doing grand work for the publicity of the trade in behalf of the Victory loan.

William Carr, salesman at the flower market, who has been suffering with pneumonia, is recovering.

The Boston Floral Supply Co. has been showing an attractive arrangement of specialties.

W. A. McAlpin has purchased a 30-acre farm at Sicetuch, and will move his family there.

Welch Bros. Co. has had a very busy season. This will be one of their best years. S. K. G.

St. Louis.

BIG SUPPLY CROWDS QUIET MARKET.

The market the past week was quiet. Trade conditions generally are slow, the only live business being funeral work. The supply of cut flowers has been heavy, particularly sweet peas, which are beginning to show the effect of the heat. Carnations are still plentiful and the indications are there should be a good crop for Mothers' day. Roses of all kinds are in good supply. Ophelia, particularly, has been very good lately. Callas have very little demand outside of funeral work. Snapdragons are coming in heavy, but have a good call. Spanish iris has a very good demand. Outdoor stock does not amount to much as yet. In greens, the market is well supplied.

NOTES.

St. Louis county and parts of this city were visited by a severe wind and hail storm May 4. Among those having considerable loss by hail are W. A. Rowe, W. J. Edwards, and A. S. Cerny, of Kirkwood; Wm. C. Smith and Pierre Schneider. They all report that they carry hail insurance.

The Windler Wholesale Flower Co. has finished moving their natural foliage plant and warehouse, which is now situated opposite their cut flower establishment on Pine Street.

The publicity committee is figuring on a good line of community advertising for Mothers' day. Results of past advertising on special days have stimulated trade a whole lot.

Everybody in the trade was glad to welcome Maurice Levine back on the job, after an absence of about 10 months in the great war. He reports a splendid business. J. J. W.

Cleveland.

MARKET CLEANS UP FAIRLY WELL.

The demand during the past week has kept the market fairly active. While stock is a little more plentiful, growers in general have been holding back in order to take care of Mothers' day requirements. Prices for that occasion will not be raised to anything near Christmas or Easter figures as the better supply at this time will hold them nearly normal on all varieties. Advance orders clearly indicate the supply will be inadequate. Roses have been in good supply all week and the demand has kept them moving nicely. Carnations have been short of the call all week. Sweet peas, although in good supply, are far behind requirements. Daffodils clean up daily. Easter lilies and callas move slowly. Retailers are asking $3 and $3.50 per foot for filling window and porch boxes, most of them soliciting no new business, being content to take care of their regular customers only.

NOTE.

Damage amounting to approximately $15,000 to greenhouse property, four persons injured and hundreds of trees blown down resulted from a near tornado which swept the district south of Cleveland, O., May 4. At the range of the Brookline Floral Co., Wooster pike and Smith road, Louis Koehl, proprietor, four of the 10 houses were razed to the ground, a barn on the property was split in half, the boiler house moved about 10 feet and a 40-foot chimney blown over. All of the windows in the house occupied by John Knorr, the superintendent, were blown out and his 18-months old baby cut by flying glass and broken chinaware. From all reports the blast only lasted two or three seconds. The Brookline Floral Co. grows stock for the wholesale market, its product being consigned to the Cleveland Cut Flower Co. C. F. B.

Milwaukee, Wis.*CARNATIONS ONLY SHORT ITEM.

It is surprising how business is keeping up these days. While there is a good supply in all lines, except carnations, there is little carried over to the next day. Roses seem to be on crop with everybody, and not all of them bring the good prices which they should. Prices on carnations went up a notch at the end of the week, due to their scarcity. Easter lilies and snapdragons are plentiful, but with quite a bit of funeral work, they keep right on moving. There is also a good cut of calendulas, which move fairly well. The indoor bulbous stock is gradually coming to an end. At this writing, May 5, there is some speculation as to the supply of cut flowers and plants for Mothers' day. The latter were mostly disposed of for Easter, yet there will be quite a few spring plants in bloom which can be utilized for baskets and made up pots. In cut flowers, everybody is trying his best to steer clear of the carnation, the flower which became popular, or rather appropriate, for Mothers' day. Still, the advance shipping orders all call for the divine flower in quantity. The unfavorable growing weather during April, and so far this month, will result in a pronounced shortage in this line; in fact, if we do not get quite a bit of sunshine this month, the total cut will not even reach the Easter quantity. The cut of sweet peas is still adequate, and the quality good.

NOTES.

The regular meeting of the florists' club was held, May 1. James Livingstone, our worthy treasurer, gave a highly interesting and beneficial talk on the growing of calceolarias from the time of seeding to the finished plant. He now has a specimen in bloom which measures 40 inches across, so he ought to be some authority on his subject. He said they are very easy to grow. If that is the case, why do we not see more of them, even if they are not quite so large as the above mentioned specimen. At this meeting, the entertainment committee were busy distributing tickets for the club's May ball to be held at the Calumet club, May 15. Out of town visitors are especially requested to be with us on this occasion.

It was reported that a committee appointed by Mayor Hoan will make a start at beautifying the streets by asking merchants along East Water and Market streets from Biddle to Oneida, to place window boxes along the second floor just opposite the city hall. The estimated length is about sixteen hundred feet. A committee of the florists' club will try to see to it that as far as color effect and other details are concerned, this first venture will be a credit to all concerned.

day. It rained 15 days, and on the monthly report of the local weather bureau for April shows April 25-26 were the only days on which the sun shone continuously throughout the others there were traces of rain or it was cloudy. These conditions have held back vegetation to a marked degree. Shrubs and trees are just about getting green at this time.

The directors of the advertising club held a meeting, May 1, at the Blatz hotel. Plans for near future work were mapped out and agreed upon. From reports, everything is moving along nicely.

Washington, D. C.*STOCK PLENTIFUL AND PRICES LOW.

Several days of cold weather and rain stopped the heavy influx of stock of all kinds and by the end of the week the wholesale houses were cleaning up each day. Carnations have dropped in price for immediate use, but wholesalers and growers have been booking orders for Mothers' day at $12 per 100. It is predicted that the wholesale price of white carnations will move to $15 per hundred before May 11. Outdoor lily-of-the-valley is to be had at $4 per hundred. Violets have gone on their way. Enormous quantities of pansies find their way into the local market, but the sale is very limited. There are some good Darwin tulips in and these are bringing $6 per hundred. Cattleya orchids are scarce at $1 each.

NOTE.

Congratulations are being bestowed on J. Harper Hetherington, manager for the Washington Floral Company, upon the arrival of a young lady at his house. Mr. Hetherington celebrated the event by investing in a new Chevrolet sedan.

Wilmington, Del.

Easter trade in this city was excellent, although good stock was scarce and consequently brought high prices. Lilies, tulips and hyacinths were particularly shy. All of the flower stores made a fine showing and much more stock could have been disposed of if it could have been offered.

Growers in this vicinity are making the most of every hour of daylight in anticipation of an unusual demand for bedding stock. At the establishments of G. W. Brinton & Son and J. Elmer Betty are to be seen the finest line of bedding plants they have ever produced.

Owing to the rush of work after Easter and preparations for the spring trade, the April meeting of the florists' club was postponed.

The Delaware Tree & Garden Co. recently opened offices at 815 Orange street and will specialize in tree surgery and landscaping.

The Century Floral Shop has opened at 102 West Tenth street. R. G. B.

Decatur, Ill.

All of the florists in this city report the heaviest Easter business in many years, orders coming in steadily during the whole week with the result that stocks were depleted when the stores closed Sunday and customers who forgot to "Say It with Flowers" until the last hours had a poor selection to choose from. Lilies were scarce and some of the stores had none at all. The price was 50 cents per bud and bloom. Rose plants seemed to lead in favor and hundreds of these were sold. Callas, marguerites, hydrangeas and other offerings also found eager buyers. Cut flowers were almost as popular with roses first to sell out and carnations did not linger long. While no estimate can be given as to total sales, it is believed they will amount to several thousand dollars.

At both Torrence and Fairview parks great numbers of tulips have been making a wonderful display and hundreds of persons accepted the invitation of Park Custodian Torrence to see the flowers while they were at their best.

Louisville, Ky.

Many thousand carnations planted in the field at the establishment of the F. Walker Co., are looking exceptionally fine just now. As a stimulant to Mothers' day business, this firm has issued a very attractive folder in colors suggesting suitable plants and flowers and prices and calling attention to the guaranteed service of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, of which this firm is a member. The slogan: "Say It With Flowers," is prominently featured.

In the window dressing contest featuring the Victory loan, one of the prizes was awarded to the C. B. Thompson Co.

Mrs. Ella Lee Able, sister of Mrs. C. B. Thompson, the well-known florist, died May 1, aged 56 years. H. G. W.

OBITUARY.*John D. Ramaley,

John D. Ramaley, a retired florist of St. Paul, Minn., passed away at the home of his son at Wayzata, Minn., April 30, age 85 years. Mr. Ramaley entered the flower business about 20 years ago, opening a store in the Flatiron block, Seventh and St. Peter street, St. Paul. He continued in the business until about three years ago when, on account of poor health, he was obliged to retire. He will be kindly remembered by everyone in the trade who had dealings with him. He was very active for a man of his years, and took a keen interest in all things pertaining to the florist business. Owing to his removal from the city when he retired from business, there were not many of his florist friends at the funeral which was held at Oakland Cemetery chapel, on May 2. Mr. Ramaley was the oldest florist, in point of years, in the Twin Cities.

Mrs. Agnes D. Mellis.

Mrs. Agnes D. Mellis, of Flatbush, Brooklyn, N. Y., passed away, April 28. She was the widow of David G. Mellis, who for many years previous to his death, which occurred several years ago, conducted a successful growing and retail business on Snyder avenue, opposite Holy Cross cemetery, Flatbush. Since his death, the business had been continued by Mrs. Mellis and her daughter.

Born in Scotland 73 years ago, she came to this country at an early age, and for over 50 years was a well known and respected resident of Brooklyn. Throughout that half century of active life, she had been practically identified with the florist business. She is survived by three daughters and two sons. Funeral services were held at the family home on the evening of April 30.

A. F. F.

George Goodman.

We greatly regret to record the sudden death of George Goodman, son of F. C. Goodman, of Kemble & Goodman, Mason City, Ia. The deceased was a very promising young man, having been one of the most successful of the students in floriculture and landscape gardening at the University of Illinois. Mr. Goodman was born at Marshalltown, Ia., in 1899, and was serving in the army officers' school at Camp McArthur, Waco, Texas, when the armistice was signed, having enlisted in 1918. He was honorably discharged last December and had been very busily employed in the work of the Kemble & Goodman establishment up to the time of his death, April 23. The bereaved parents have the sincere sympathy of a wide circle of friends in this great loss.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The Pinchurst Floral Co., Pleasant Hill, who purchased the business of the Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., has located wholesale headquarters at 1109 Grand avenue, this city.

MARION, KAN.—Fred Girven, for several years a well known grower at Kansas City, Mo., and Omaha, Neb., and who has recently been released from army service, has purchased land here and intends building several houses to be ready by next winter. He is also interested in a $5,500,000 oil company in the Texas field.

Ladies' Society of American Florists.

At the St. Louis meeting, a motion was made and carried that the society be required to vote at the next annual meeting on the question of discontinuing payment to the secretary for her services as heretofore.

"Chrysanthemum Manual."

The fourth edition of Elmer D. Smith's "Chrysanthemum Manual" has just been issued. This is the best American treatise on chrysanthemums and their culture, and the various subjects are brought down to date in the new edition. The contents include chapters on "History," "Stock Plants," "Propagation," "Specimen Plants," "Miscellaneous Plants," "Packing Plants," "Commercial Flowers," "Exhibition Blooms," "Blooms Grown Out-of-Doors," "Insects," "Diseases," "Seedlings and Sports," "Preparing Exhibits," "Staging," "Exhibitions," "Classification," with many excellent illustrations and a very complete index. All the facts are carefully condensed and presented in Mr. Smith's best style. No grower, commercial or amateur, can afford to be without it.

National Publicity for Flowers.

The following from President Ammann is interesting at this time when florists everywhere are wondering as to the future:

"Do you not still hear the echo of the Easter trade. Better than Ever. Good Sales at High Prices. Easter Trade Makes Record. Complete Cleanup. Supply Insufficient. Little Complaint at High Prices. Big Increase Over Last Year, etc.?"

"Say, brothers, does not that sound good? It means so much for you and your loved ones' better living—better labor and better environments, wonderful in contrast to just a short time ago.

"But, after all, is it not what we are entitled to? Are we not just coming into our own largely because we have taken time by the forelock and advertised? Publicity, that is it. 'Oh well,' you say, 'not altogether'. No, but 99 per cent of the increased business is directly creditable to it.

"Say, brother, are you on the honor roll? If not, why not? If you are on it, are you doing your full share; are you putting one per cent of your gross receipts into publicity, either local or national? Well, if you are not, you are still short of your full share of the work.

"Did you ever stop to think why people buy so many flowers? Do they use them for others? You say, 'Yes, that is true.' What are you doing toward the cause that is educating people as never before in all history, to give flowers to make others and themselves happy, and to help make the echo as quoted in the opening of this article ring in your ear. Do we hear that you are doing, or will do, your full share? If so, then you are certainly a happy person, along with the rest of the "publicity boosters", and we shall reach the $100,000 goal before the snow flies. You, no doubt, have a subscription blank. Fill it out, and send it to Secretary Young today."

President Ammann knows what he is talking about. If our campaign produced such good results when prices, necessarily, were high, what may one expect it to do when production is in excess of demand. The public has responded to the suggestions we have sent broadcast, and it will continue to do so—just as long as we continue the effort we have launched. The response is general, and all in the trade share in it. Are you not, Mr. Nonsubscriber, willing to bear your part of the expense as well as to share in the benefit which is surely ours? Our committees think you are, and that your neglect is not intentional. Why not sit down right now, and send to the secretary that cheque which you know you have all along been intending to send in?

HAIL.—The Kansas and Nebraska losses by hail are reported unusually heavy this season.

JAPANESE BASKETS, matting and bamboo canes will be affected by the reduced freight rates mentioned elsewhere in this issue, page S22.

MOTHERS' DAY.—Observance of Mothers' day was commended to the members of 150,000 Protestant churches in the United States in an announcement by Rev. Charles S. MacFarland, secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, made public recently.

LEAD.—While prices last week were five cents at New York and 4 1/2 cents per pound at St. Louis, outside interests, on account of light demand were quoting about 1/4 cent less. Dull business is attributed to delay in signing the peace treaty and the failure of the industrial board to stabilize prices.

CLUB MEETING.

Reports on 1919 Easter business and the exhibition held by the club on the night of April 3 were features of the May meeting of the florists' club. Howard Menand for the retail florists of the city said that Easter business was exceptionally good and that the florists were well pleased with the sales made. Mr. Menand believed that a portion of the success was due to the advertising campaign that the retailers conducted in the local newspapers the week before Easter Sunday. The cost of this advertising was assessed among the retailers. President William Newport spoke of the exhibits at the April meeting and said that the auction sale afterward brought about $90 into the club treasury. Fred A. Danker, chairman of the flower show committee, reported that he and his associates are planning for a club exhibit in November. John Skinner, retail florist, 214 Central avenue, was unanimously elected a member. The club voted to buy a $100 Victory bond, fifth issue, from the treasury through one of the local banks.

NOTE.

Eighty applications for garden plots on Westerlo Island, south of the city, have been received by Frank R. Lanagan, city engineer. Of the applications 36 have been granted. The city purchased the island several years ago, and has just established on it a sewage disposal plant. The island is overflowed in the spring by Hudson river freshets and the soil in consequence is alluvial. Last year some of the Italian families residing in the southern section of the city grew remarkable crops of vegetables on the island plots assigned to them.

MARKET IS UNSTEADY.

Business and prices both slumped during the early part of the past week but recovered Friday and Saturday. American Beauty roses, although of good quality, did not move well and with shipments of Columbia, Milady and Russell none too heavy, prices on these remained firm. Sunburst, Hilda, Ophelia, My Maryland and Pink and White Killarneys arrived in large numbers and were hard to dispose of. Carnations continue scarce and prices remain high, the best selling for $8 per 100, with a prospect of going to $15 and $18 for Mothers' day. Spanish iris cleans up daily at $10 and $12 per 100. The call for mignonette and snapdragons is very light. Calendulas are of good quality but do not move well. Calla receipts are heavy but owing to the shortage of Easter lilies, clean up in good shape. Yellow daisies are arriving in large numbers and bring from $2 to $4 per 100. Southern plumosus is being received in large quantities but some of it is of very poor quality. Everyone is prepared for a heavy Mothers' day business, which it is expected will be the best in the history of the trade in this city.

GOOD DEMAND CONTINUES.

Trade is keeping up in a splendid way. After the heavy business of Easter week, it was naturally supposed that the usual dullness that follows would prevail, but happily to say, such is not the case, and this writing finds everybody busy. There is a splendid assortment of fine roses to be had, and with reasonable prices being the rule, a large amount of stock is being moved. Several large funerals during the past few weeks have been of great benefit to the trade in using high grade stock. There is a splendid cut of Mrs. Russell rose and American Beauties are also coming along freely. Both are in good demand. Ophelia is plentiful again and Columbia is always a good seller. In red roses, Hadley and Red Radiance are in ample supply. Mrs. Aaron Ward is the best to be had in yellow. White roses are beginning to be seen quite frequently of late, and are selling readily. Cecile Brunnner roses are now at their best from outdoors and the supply is large. Carnations are in heavy supply with prices about the same as last noted. Sweet peas are now coming in in a large variety of colors. Pink Spencers and lavender are the most popular. Many orange varieties of the Spencer type are now to be had also. These colors have always been very popular here. There is a large cut of Spanish iris in all shades. They are in large demand and at present are bringing good money. Bride and Peach Blossom gladioli have also made their appearance. Both move well. Violets are slowly dropping out of the market. While there is an ample supply as yet the demand in a shipping way has fallen off considerably. It has been a long time since the market has been so liberally supplied with such a grand cut of cacteyas. The quality offered is simply grand. They are one of the best selling flowers in the market. Gardenias are not very plentiful and prices maintain. Quite a few lily of the valley are noticed. This stock is held at pretty stiff figures. There are not many lilies to be seen anywhere. Lilac is plentiful and cheap. Peonies are about over for a while. Calla lilies are plentiful. In flowering plants the heavy Easter business cleaned up nearly all available stock. Rhododendrons are coming in rather freely and are making a wonderful showing in the stores. Japanese azaleas are about the only offering in this plant. Quite a few primulas are being used. There appears to be somewhat of a shortage of nephrolepis in salable sizes. Ferns and asparagus are in large supply with a good demand.

NOTES.

Another prominent member of the trade has forsaken the ranks of the bachelors. This time it is Victor A. Ferrari who was married last week to Miss Lucinda Hall, of this city. Mr. Ferrari is the son of the late Emil Ferrari of Ferrari Bros., the wholesale growers. He is associated with the above firm. He has only recently been discharged from the navy. Both the young people have the best wishes of a large circle of friends in the trade for a happy married life.

The annual convention of the California Nurserymen's Association will be held at Riverside on the 26th of next month. Many prominent men in the trade will be in attendance. C. L. Marlatt, chairman of the federal horticultural board, has also promised to attend. Owing to the great activity in nursery circles in this state the attendance is going to be the largest in the history of the society.

It is probable that a date for the banquet to the returned members of the trade who have been in the service will be held this month, as it is believed that nearly all of them will have returned by that time. P. Vincent Matraia, manager of the Art Floral Co., is in charge of the affair, assisted by Frank D. Pelicano, Victor Podesta and Albert O. Stein.

The Art Floral Company says its out-of-town business has been quite heavy this week, especially for floral designs. Telegraph orders from the members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery also show a large increase. Designer Alfred Cuneo always maintains splendid window decorations here, every few weeks bringing out unique and attractive surprises.

Dr. P. B. Kennedy, of the University of California, who is a national authority on grasses, is arranging a very complete exhibit at the forthcoming wild flower show, May 9-10. Luther Burbank has also entered a large exhibit of wild flowers. The daily papers are giving this exhibition a great deal of publicity and it promises to be a great success.

Among the florists who had a large Easter business in the Polk street district was Charles Stoppenbach, who does business under the name of "The American Florist." His beautiful store was charmingly decorated and he sold out completely on all pot plants. His sales of cut flowers were also large.

Manager J. A. Axell, of the E. W. McLellan Co., says that the Easter trade done by his company was the largest in their history. Their express shipments were very heavy. They were fortunate in having a heavy cut of roses and other seasonable stock, easily filling all orders received.

The Thomas Floral Co., at Leavenworth and James streets, always keep up a very attractive display of flowering and foliage plants. They say they are greatly pleased with the amount of trade they have built up in this locality since establishing their store here.

RITO

THE ENERGIZER FOR SOIL BACTERIA

IS COMING TO AMERICA.

WONDERFUL RESULTS have been obtained by the use of RITO in Great Britain during the last three years. Owing to the war it has been impossible to export, but now we are free to do so, and feel sure that the Horticulturists of the U. S. A. will at once avail themselves of this unique method of increasing their products and of getting their stuff ready for the market some weeks earlier than they have hitherto done, and so secure a much higher price.

WHAT IS RITO?—RITO is a humus, organic or natural fertilizer, a stimulant and energizing medium for soil bacteria.

WHAT IS HUMUS?—Humus is a complex substance or mixture of substances present in the richest of soils. It is black in colour, and hence renders the soil darker. RITO contains Humus in the right form for fertilizing the soil.

WHY ADD HUMUS?—Because most soils contain very little (if any) Humus, and it is necessary for the proper development of the useful soil bacteria. The bacteria find in the Humus constituents a suitable medium for their robust propagation.

That is, Humus is a source of food and energy for the soil bacteria.

WHAT IS THE ANALYSIS OF RITO?—It has very little chemical analysis and it does not come in the same category as fertilizers. It is essentially an energizing medium for soil bacteria. Phosphates and potash are present in all soils, but in the ordinary way they are not readily available. RITO, by energizing the soil bacteria, is calculated to make the phosphates and potash available for the plant. It also stimulates the nitrogen-fixing bacteria into action, so that the consequent development is out of all proportion to its analysis.

RITO takes the place of farmyard manure, or it may be used in conjunction with farmyard manure or any recognized artificials. RITO is free from weed seeds, spores and germs, and from the eggs or larvae of noxious insects.

It is well known that the soil is not a dead inert mass of matter, but that it teems with bacteria, which only need to be treated properly to be called into activity. There are millions in every spadeful of soil.

RITO may be used in the open or under glass.

What RITO Users Say:--

"I used RITO in the soil for my Tomatoes this year. The result was the best crop I ever had, and I started picking two to three weeks earlier than usual from seed sown same date as previous years."

A market gardener says that his RITO-treated lettuce were ready for the market a month before the untreated ones, with the result that the treated ones brought 2s. 6d. per dozen and the untreated ones, when they were ready for the market, brought 1s. per dozen.

"I tried RITO last year on Potatoes, and they yielded 30 per cent better than those not treated."

"Every ounce of fruit from both the treated and the untreated Tomatoes has been gathered and carefully weighed. The weight of fruit gathered from the treated portions averaged just five times the amount as from the untreated portion."

"I have used RITO in the Peach Houses, and find that it greatly improved both the quality of the fruit and also the growth. I also find RITO very good if used when mixing soil for potting various plants, and I have also used it on my Vines with excellent results."

"I have pleasure in testifying to the merits of RITO. It is 'Right Ho' and no mistake. I never saw Tomatoes do so well as when your RITO was applied as a top-dressing mixed with the soil; the roots the plants made in this way were extraordinary, and the crops correspondingly good. The same applies to Cucumbers, also Chrysanthemums and to plants generally. It seems to consume the moisture, hence less watering is required."

"RITO treated Chrysanthemums made a much quicker and better start than they have usually done—in fact, the plants show a great improvement."

RITO is packed in double bags, and the price is $5 per 100 lbs., ex Quay Boston or New York. Terms—Cash with order.

Please address your orders at once to The Molassine Company, Ltd., East Greenwich, London, England.

BUSINESS UNUSUALLY GOOD.

The past week has been one of changeable weather from extremely cool to warm and rainy. Stock continues plentiful and of good quality. Trade, despite the excitement of the Victory loan, has been unusually good. Several weddings have brought considerable work to the florist shops and there has been little chance for resting since Easter. The coming week also promises good business with several weddings and bank openings calling for elaborate displays of both flowers and plants. Greenhouses are getting ready for spring planting with a busy season in sight. Many of the varieties used in bedding this year will be scarce.

FLORISTS' CLUB ENTERTAINS HENRY PENN.

The event of the season from the florists' point of view was April 29 at the Hotel Statler, when the local craft had the pleasure of tendering a banquet to Henry Penn, of Boston, Mass., chairman of the publicity committee of the Society of American Florists, already so well known throughout the United States that he needs no introduction. Many interesting articles bearing his signature have appeared in THE AMERICAN FLORIST. To those who on this occasion heard his masterful address on "National Publicity," illustrated with slides of advertising matter that he had used at different times in the newspapers of Boston, there was brought home the old saying that "The pen is mightier than the sword." The publicity presented was adaptable to such occasions as Easter, Memorial day, Christmas, New Years, Mothers' day, weddings, receptions, etc. All were of unusual excellence and showed that he was firm in the belief that following the plan already showing such good results would place the florists on the same plane with the largest Industries in the country. There were about 300 present, among them J. H. Dunlop, George Geraghty, H. G. Dillemath and J. B. Higgins of Toronto, Ont.; F. C. W. Browne of Cleveland, O.; Frank Mahoney, George Kramer and several others of Rochester, N. Y. There were also a number of visitors from Jamestown, Olean, Lockport and Niagara Falls. The banquet hall and the tables were elaborately decorated by the local trade, among the artists being Charles Felton, J. M. Fiebelkorn, A. Kowalski, A. Relchert, James Longley and others from the different local stores. Most conspicuous was a vase of the new rose, Frank W. Dunlop, staged by J. H. Dunlop. This variety was seen here in March but seems to have improved very much in size and color in the interim. President Mark H. Palmer acted as toastmaster and as usual did himself proud. Messrs. Dunlop, Geraghty, Brown and W. A. Adams, the latter of this city, made short addresses and Congressman Clarence McGregor made a stirring appeal in behalf of the Victory loan.

GOOD BUSINESS FOLLOWS EASTER.

Trade since Easter has kept up well with a sale for everything that arrives daily. Prices continue high and there is no sign of an early reduction. Roses are more plentiful and are of good quality. The Killarneys, Columbia, Russell, Ophella and others are in evidence. Carnations are excellent and many of them are on hand. Home-grown out-door lily of the valley is very abundant and of unusually fine quality with well developed bells. This is sold largely by street peddlers and retail stores, being received in quantity from country gardens. The price is 25 cents a dozen. The stock is good enough and plentiful enough to ship to northern markets. Snowballs, too are abundant and were used in a church decoration for a recent wedding. The arrangement with other flowers and bouquets showed the usual good taste of the Joy Floral Co. The plant season is in full swing and bedding stock seems plentiful but like cut flowers is high in price. Petunias, verbenas, geraniums, begonias, asters, and many other favorites are on sale daily at the market house. The carnation supply for Mothers' day promises well, and there will be a larger observance of the event, no doubt, than ever before. In many pretty ways the attention of the public is being called to its observance. The national Memorial day, May 30, and the Confederate Decoration day, June 3, will be observed as usual in this city. M. C. D.

JENNINGS, MO.—George Hamm, a wealthy florist of St. Louis county, and a resident for 40 years, died April 23, age 75 years.

TWO RIVERS, WIS.—Christ. Hansen, formerly of Menominee, Mich., has leased the range of Louis Hartung, who will engage in landscape gardening in the south next fall.

MILWAUKEE, WIS. — Hauserlitz-Gelhausen Co. is the name of a new retail concern which is planning to open a store here shortly. Mr. Gelhausen, whose home address is 645 Twentieth street, has just returned from army service in France.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR MOTHER'S DAY.

The demand for stock for Mothers' day is heavy and from present indications all lines will clean up early at the advertised quotations and possibly higher. The cold weather the latter part of last and the opening of this week held back a lot of stock that would have otherwise been in. Practically all the houses are finding it necessary to refuse shipping orders, owing to the great shortage, and only the most favorable weather will help conditions for the local buyers who are expecting a big rush owing to the extensive advertising done by the local trade for this occasion. Carnations are selling fast at this writing at $10 to $12 per 100 and higher in the fancy grades, with very little stock available. Roses are in strong demand and command high prices, especially Mrs. Chas. Russell, of which the supply is none too large. American Beauty roses are moving nicely, and the same holds true for all the other varieties grown for this market. Sweet peas are scarce and clean up quickly at high figures. Peonies have made their appearance in good sized quantities and will come in handy. Gladioli are more plentiful and are attracting the attention of the city buyers, owing to their splendid quality. Orchids are on the short side and easily bring from 75 cents each and up. Lily of the valley is scarce and the same holds true for gardenias. Snapdragons are quite a factor in the market and good sized quantities of irises are offered at a few of the houses. Narcissi are to be had in large numbers and so are tulips and jonquils. Stocks, calendulas, lupines, daisies, lilies, mignonette, callas, forget-me-nots, pansies and other miscellaneous seasonable stock is included in the many offerings, including a good supply of static. Greens are in strong demand at high prices. The outlook never was brighter for a brisk Mothers' day trade than right now, and it will be a question of whether or not the wholesalers will be able to supply all of the regular customers satisfactorily this year, without taking on any new ones who only look to this market for their supply during the holiday periods. Many out-of-town buyers were in the wholesale market looking for stock this week, but found it a rather difficult task, owing to the great shortage.

The Central Floral Co. has had a very appropriate window display at its North State street store that attracted much favorable attention the past week. An elderly lady watering a bed of geraniums in the front yard of her home occupied the center of the scene, while overhead the trees were in full bloom, with robins perched here and there among the branches as well as on the fence that sort of put the right finishing touch to a cleverly designed piece of work. The one responsible for the display must have had a fine recollection of his boyhood home and, while he probably did not intend it as a business getter for Mothers' day, one would have to admit that it is rather a remarkable coincident to feature it at this particular time.

E. F. Winterson is spending considerable time at his place at Highland Park, where he is kept busy filling orders for perennials for the E. F. Winterson Co. The demand has been most satisfactory for phlox of the improved Lingard variety. His son Edgar, who looks after the store during his absence, reports that the call for common ferns is so heavy at present that it leads him to believe that the supply in some sections of the country must be exhausted.

Philip Schupp, proprietor of the J. A. Budlong Co., is enthusiastic over the demand for stock for Mothers' day, which is the best in years. His firm was fortunate in having a large supply of roses for Easter, and the shipments that have been arriving all week appear to be as heavy as they were then.

Allie Zech reports that the demand for stock for Mothers' day is the heaviest in years at Zech & Mann's store, and that stocks in all lines is cleaning up every day. Mrs. Zech is rapidly recovering from her recent operation and will be able to be about again soon.

Ed. Armstrong, formerly with Alfred Fischer, 2737 North Clark street, has resigned to go into business for himself. He is opening a new store at 2810 North Clark street under the name of Armstrong's Shop of Flowers.

H. Van Gelder reports that business is exceptionally good at the store of Percy Jones, Inc., especially for Mothers' day. He points with pride to the fine strain of sweet peas included in his offerings in quantity.

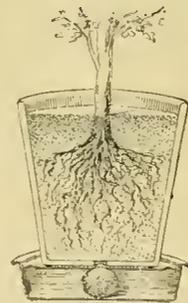

Wietor Bros. are experiencing the heaviest demand for Mothers' day on record owing to the fact that they are in crop for this occasion with roses, especially Richmond and Ophelia.

Kennicott Bros. Co. received its first shipment of peonies from Villa Ridge, Monday, May 5, which followed by more, come in handy for the Mothers' day trade.

Robert Newcomb, who is representing several of the leading supply houses in this vicinity, started out this week on another business trip.

Chas. S. Stewart, 3223 West North avenue, has sold his store to J. Feder-

Joseph Foerster and Al. Fischer made a very good showing in the doubles last week in the state bowling tournament now being held here and have a fine chance to carry away some of the prize money. Allie Zech and Harry Hyman, representing the Elks, are also in the running in the two-men event with a total of 1,090 pins for the three games rolled. Mr. Zech rolled 562 and Mr. Hyman 1,090. Mr. Foerster rolled 618 and Mr. Fischer 568, leaving them 1,186 pins for the three games played. Several others in the trade will participate in the tournament and all promise to make a good showing.

Peter Reinberg has had a good call all this week for outdoor lily of the valley which one of his customers sent him in good sized quantities.

Foehlmann Bros. Co. is having its share of the Mothers' day trade which is cleaning up stock in all lines each day almost as fast as it arrives. The ideal weather prevailing at this writing should increase the supply for the late buyers.

William Reed, representing the A. L. Randall Co., is visiting friends here this week. It is rumored that he will join the ranks of the benedicts in the near future. The young lady lives on the west side and is in the florist business.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. have received word from their peony growers to the effect that they may look for the first shipments of stock this week, which probably will arrive in time for the late demand for Mothers' day.

George A. Kuhl of Pekin is again at the Presbyterian hospital in this city where he is getting along very nicely. His health permits him to receive visitors.

chair. Lieut. Parkinson, of the naval service, Fred Lautenschlager and others made such stirring, patriotic addresses that Chairman Bohannon, ably assisted by T. E. Waters, had little difficulty in securing subscriptions aggregating $100,000, the amount needed to put the florists' quota of $230,000 over the top. John Poehlmann led off with $10,000 for the Poehlmann Bros. Co. and $1,000 on his personal account, being closely followed by the A. L. Randall Co. ($10,000), Peter Reinberg ($5,000), N. J. Wietor ($5,000), Allie Zech ($5,000), Andrew Chronis ($5,000), O. J. Friedman ($5,000), Homer Lange ($5,000), L. R. Bohannon ($5,000) and others in similarly liberal amounts until the required total was reached. The German helmet presented by Leonard H. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, to be raffled at this meeting, was won by H. C. Wullbrandt.

ADVANCE MOTHERS' DAY DEMAND HEAVY.

The demand for Mothers' day is very heavy and the business promises to be good. Many orders have been placed with the wholesalers. Orders for carnations, in particular, are very large. Except in carnations, prices have advanced moderately. The demand from out-of-town is very brisk. Roses are fairly plentiful and generally of a high quality. Carnation receipts are only fair. The daily arrivals in sweet peas are rather heavy. Easter lilies are in a good supply. Callas and rubrums are available in fair quantities. Gladioli are selling well. Iris met with a good market. Snapdragons have many calls. Other offerings are outdoor lily of the valley, candidum lilies, larkspurs, calendulas and forget-me-nots.

NOTES.

The publicity and finance committees of the Society of American Florists held a successful meeting in this city last Thursday. The open meeting for the local florists, in the evening, was well attended and was a spirited one. Over $1,900 for the publicity fund was raised at the meeting and many new memberships as well as some life memberships in the national society were received. Among those present from out of town who addressed the meeting were Major O'Keefe, Boston, Mass.; President J. E. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; Secretary John Young, New York; Herman Knoble, Cleveland, O.; George Asmus, Chicago; Henry Penn, Boston, Mass.; Thomas Joy, Nashville, Tenn.; Jos. Hill, Richmond, Ind., and Guy French, Chicago.

The Rivard Flower Shop, 340 Gra-toit avenue, opened for business May 2 under the management of Amos Rideout, a colored man who has been a faithful and efficient employe of John Breitmeyer's Sons the past 10 years. This store is an enterprise of Harry Breitmeyer's, and is designed to reach out for the trade of a large community of prosperous Italian and colored people. The slogan "Say It With Flowers" is emblazoned across the entire length of the large show window of this unique and admirably equipped store. Further extending their chain of stores, John Breitmeyer's Sons opened their latest and most attractive one at 435 Woodward avenue, May 5. The strong feature of this shop is the replica of an Italian chateau for the storage of flowers instead of the usual refrigerator, and which requires

BUSINESS NOT SATISFACTORY.

The past week's business was not very encouraging, supply being away ahead of demand. The last few days, carnations, particularly white, have been an exception; something seems to have affected the white varieties all at once, and they are reported to be "off crop." It is claimed, however, that if the weather is favorable, they will come around all right for Mothers' day. Roses are the quantity stock at this time, and in face of the light demand, prices rule low. All the grades are of good quality. Snapdragons are now at their best, with an over supply that is hard to dispose of. Spanish iris, as offered from some growers, is very fine. It is as beautiful as an orchid of its size. Outside lily of the valley is now plentiful. Nothing better could be desired, winter or summer. It is as fine as the best imported—much better than the forced Holland now offered. Sweet peas are plentiful, and are favored by many buyers. Cold frame stock will be along in a couple of weeks, followed by the earliest outside, which will insure a continuance until midsummer. Easter lilies and callas have had their day of high prices, and $10 to $12 are now the best figures for the choicest stock. It is a matter of surprise where all the giganteums come from. Cattleyas are real aristocrats, now bringing Easter prices. There is not any too much green, which will soon shorten up when the hot weather cuts out the southern shipments.

May 5.—The quantity stock this morning was roses, all varieties being plentiful, and owing to the sudden burst of summer weather, rather open. Snapdragons, sweet peas, southern gladioli, hardy outdoor iris, Easter lilies and callas were all largely in excess of the demand. Prices ruled about as last week.

CLUB MEETING.

The meeting of the florists' club, May 6, at the Adelpia hotel, was a great success. Among the distinguished visitors were Earl Mann, Richmond, Ind.; J. H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont.; W. B. Elliott, of New Hampshire; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., and Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J. In addition to the addresses, there was a fine display of new roses, among them Frank Dunlop, Premier, the sensational new pink with splendid flowers; Pilgrim, a truly grand light pink, and Crusader, the new red, an improved Hadley. There were also several fine vases of Russell and a number of seedlings from Robert Scott & Son, some of great merit. Prina Donna and other choice local stock made a fine showing. The feature of the evening was the splendid address of Wallace R. Pierson, who told of his experiences with both old and new varieties in an intensely practical way, and other visiting rosarians also threw much light on rose growing problems of the day which will be treated more fully in a later issue. At the close of the meeting, an appeal for the Victory loan was led by J. Otto Thilow and later by Charles Grakelow, with the result that $15,000 was subscribed. Thirty new members were elected to membership.

NOTES.

The wholesale houses are all fighting shy of naming prices for Mothers' day white carnations. If the trade all over the country would put a certain limit, say $8 to $12 per hundred, and portion their stock out to their regular carnation buyers, it would do away with much of the profiteering that is very injurious to the sentiment and business of this holiday. Mothers' day has wonderful possibilities, but to scare away with high prices those who are anxious to assist in its observance by wearing or presenting flowers, is surely the height of folly. It is all very well to talk of supply and demand, but in this market, where white carnations were offered on Saturday night and Sunday morning of last year's Mothers' day at $2 and $3 per hundred, as against $12 and $15 of Friday and early Saturday, it is very certain that prices were manipulated and not regulated by the demand. The whole trade, growers, wholesalers and retailers, should work together to encourage the love for and sale of flowers. Mothers' day is the most sentimental of all floral holidays, and flowers should be so priced as to be within the reach of all who desire them.

Florists or supply dealers who can use tin, zinc, or wooden boxes of various sizes such as were used for holding ammunition and shells, etc., a number of them just right for window boxes and for growing plants such as are usually placed in six inch pots, can get them at almost junk prices, as they are being burned up at the munition factories to get them out of the way.

The allied horticultural trades group in the Victory loan campaign are daily adding to their sales of bonds and have subscriptions for about half their quota of $250,000 now in hand. While the enthusiasm is not apparent in this campaign, yet many are doubling their subscriptions of the fourth loan.

James McLaughlin, manager of the wholesale cut flower department of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O., stopped over for a day in this city. He was east, visiting his old home and friends in West Grove, Pa. He reports a splendid Easter business, and general all around good trade.

Edward Reid put a new delivery car on the street last week. A prominent feature is the slogan "Say it with Flowers," which covers the entire side panels.

Earl Mann, of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., is in town, attending the meeting of the florists' club. He brought along a fine exhibit of the new rose, Premier.

John Kuhn is making a hit with his hybrid and shrubby calceolarias. They are a very showy pot plant at this season. K.

DEMAND CONTINUES QUIET.

Business continued quiet in the wholesale district during the past week, with a light demand and, as a rule, low prices. American Beauty roses were not plentiful, and the best specials brought the rate of $50 per 100, but the special tea roses were very slow. Orchids, too, though not plentiful, were slow. The supply of carnations was not heavy and prices for good stock kept around $5 per 100, with $6— for some good Wards. Sweet peas continue to arrive in large quantities, but the bulk of the stock is short stemmed, and while there is always a movement, it has been hard to clean up. Quantities of cut pansies are on the market, and to a considerable extent, they are replacing violets in palls and other funeral work. There is a normal demand for lilies and callas for the same purpose. There have been quite a number of weddings since Easter, and although but few of the decorations have been very elaborate, they have helped to hold the market together. Business was fairly active May 3. The weather was springlike, and being with many a half holiday, conditions were favorable to counter trade.

May 5.—Unseasonably warm weather is bringing in heavy supplies of stock with consequent falling prices, particularly noticeable in tea roses. In sweet peas, stocks, snapdragons and various minor items, there is a heavy supply, everything moving slowly. The supply of carnations continues rather light, but is likely to be on the increase for the remainder of the week.

NOTES.

J. H. Small & Sons had the decoration and bouquets for the wedding of Miss Ray Slater to Dr. James Murphy, at the New York home of the bride, 270 Park avenue, April 28. The columns and arches were made beautiful with rambler roses entwined. The altar was appropriately decorated and many baskets of Ophelia and Russell roses were placed throughout the mansion. The bridal bouquet was of phalaenopsis showered. The bridesmaids carried shower bouquets of rambler roses. At the reception, at the request of the bride's family, Frank Deary of J. H. Small & Son's staff, sang selections from Schubert and Gounod. He has a fine voice and has a permanent engagement with one of the leading churches in the Flushing section of this city. The Slater family own extensive manufactories in Massachusetts, and it is worthy of mention that all the employes were given a holiday the day of the wedding. Dr. Murphy, a native of the south, is connected with the Rockefeller institute.

William Howland Hussey, who died at his home in East Orange, N. J., May 2, was a man whose passing at the age of 96 years deserves special mention. Born in Broome street, this city, when that part of New York was the fashionable residential section, he was educated at Haverford College, Pennsylvania. In early life, he engaged in the whaling industry, in banking and finally the plumbing business, but throughout he found time to study and enjoy the beauties of nature. It is said of him that when he came to a fine tree he always took off his hat to it. He was a member of the American Forestry Association of New York and the American Geographical Society. He was reared a Quaker.

Captain Gilmore D. Clarke, son of Gilmore Clarke, of David Clarke's Sons, retailers at Broadway and 75th street, returned from overseas the past week where he has been connected with the American Expeditionary Forces, having gone to France soon after our entry into the war. His last station before leaving for home was at Coblenz, Germany. For some time he was secretary to the main staff of the American army. He went over as a second lieutenant and was promoted to the rank of captain. He will resume his profession of landscape architect.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' club will be held in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building, Eighth avenue and 23rd street, on the night of May 12. Reports of the activity of the club's Victory loan committee are likely to be heard. Secretary Young, who has been out on a trip, is expected to be present and have some new stories—at least it is so hoped—and there may be other forms of entertainment. The June meeting will be the last one until September, July and August being "vacation."

In the New York Sun of May 4, Max Schling is quoted in an interview as a champion of Quarantine No. 37. Quite a number of men born in this country, who have since their school days been engaged in the florist business, have conscientiously opposed this quarantine, but they must now see that they have been mistaken. Max Schling, the inspired oracle has spoken, and who is there that can say him nay? However, some of us have lived in Missouri, and there acquired the habit of asking to be shown.

The Horticultural Society of New York will hold an exhibition at the botanical garden, Bronx park, May 10-11, of herbaceous plants, collections of trees and shrubs, tulips, narcissi, orchids, sweet peas, antirrhinums, pelargoniums and calceolarias. The premiums offered are from the income of the William R. Sands fund. Special prizes will also be offered by the society for meritorious exhibits not provided for in the schedule.

The annual meeting of the Cut Flower Exchange was held May 3. Five retiring directors were re-elected as follows: Frank Millang, W. H. Siebrecht Sr., Anton Schultheis, Fred Smith and John Schneider. Inspectors of elections: Adam Greener and Thomas Jackson. The last named will, June 1, have completed 14 years of service as clerk and superintendent of the market.

David Clarke's Sons have arranged quite a number of wedding decorations since Easter. They have also had a large amount of funeral work. On May 2, they arranged a pall in which 8,000 pansies were used.

Frank Spervin, formerly in the retail business at 127 Sixth avenue, Brooklyn, who has been with the American overseas army for the past year, is now with one of its hospital units in Germany.

J. K. Allen, 118 West 28th street, has been exhibiting in his window a handsomely illustrated poster which reads:

We regret to learn that G. E. Bennett, the retailer at 794 Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn, is in a serious condition from a stroke of paralysis.

Louis Kaiser, formerly a Brooklyn retailer, has opened a good retail store at the corner of Park avenue and East 86th street, Manhattan.

Herman Spitz, the retailer of Knickerbocker avenue, Brooklyn, has taken a new building and is fitting up an exceptionally fine store.

L. B. Coddington, of Murray Hill, N. J., who ships his roses to H. E. Froment, is erecting two new houses, each 60 by 500 feet.

The Yorkville Rosary, 127 East 86th street, is now under new management, and has been christened the D. & D. Floral Co.

James Dagleish, manager of J. H. Small & Son's Washington store, was a recent visitor to this city.

THE POWER OF CREDIT

The First of a Series of Articles on

Prompt Payment of Bills

“The only genuine power which an individual or group of individuals can gain is that arising from the confidence reposed in him or them.”

A power whose circuit is too often broken by negligence and carelessness on the part of the florist in meeting his obligations PROMPTLY.

The S. A. F. & O. H. today would be a greater power—if—there was instanter response on the part of its members in PAYING BILLS PROMPTLY.

CREDIT as a matter of fact is one of the harassing elements in business today. It can either fortify or weaken your business.

CREDIT is for one purpose only—a temporary convenience granted because of confidence and is tendered the buyer just so long as his record for PROMPT PAYMENT remains unblemished.

If The Florists

could but realize this, it would help to solve many of the problems in the floral and allied businesses today.

To promptly awaken the florists to the necessity of meeting their obligations PROMPTLY, the S. A. F. & O. H. is going to run a series of educational advertisements covering the PROMPT PAYMENT of BILLS.

This series will deal with the subject in a manner which will prove beneficial to every member.

ARE YOU A MEMBER of the S. A. F. & O. H. CREDIT BUREAU—if not, join immediately. Write Mr. F. S. Webb, Sec’y, 168 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, for further information.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 24-26, 1919.

THE price of bags at Chicago May 7, was $47.00.

NEW YORK.—Peter Henderson & Co.'s advance import hulf catalogue is out.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., is in New York this week.

VISITED CHICAGO. Jacques Courtine, representing A. & L. Bremond Freres, Ollioules, France.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Several carloads of yellow onion sets were consigned to this market last month.

THE spring meeting of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League will be held at the Hardware Club, New York, May 22.

CINCINNATI, O.—J. Charles McCullough has returned from his Palm Beach winter home; no more dips in the gulf stream at sunrise.

THE Chicago office of the Stecher Lithographic Co., of Rochester, N. Y., is now located in the State-Lake Building, State and Lake streets.

CHICAGO commission houses are bidding 55 cents per bushel for onion sets, but warehousemen say the stock cannot be repicked for this price now.

SNOW.—Five inches of snow which remained on the ground fell in the vicinity of Ely, Minn., May 6, and similar conditions are reported from other parts of the iron belt.

"NICHOLSON'S NOTES," issued May 1 by Robt. Nicholson, of Dallas, Texas, are at hand and include many interesting items, with a forceful plea for investment in Victory bonds.

BOSTON, MASS.—The entire stock of the Ames Plow Co. will be offered at public sale May 12-17. This firm has been located in the one salesroom, Quincy hall, over Faneuil hall market, 73 years.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover market closed steady, May 5, at $26.50, registering a drop of $3.50 during the preceding seven days. October was quoted at $19.75. Timothy was firm, cash being offered at $5.15, May $5.15, September $5.95 and October $5.77½.

THE Everette R. Peacock Co., Chicago, reports mail order and wholesale business five times greater than last season and retail store trade promises an increase of several times last year's volume. Onion set sales have been very satisfactory, with supply about balancing the demand. A large force is now busy planting onion on the company's 150 acres at Norwood Park.

THE ruling of the federal trade commission last June, that Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, must not sell sugar at less than cost has been modified by the United States court of appeals, who, while sustaining the commission's contention that the company must not injure competitors by advertising low prices were due to large buying power, held the concern could sell at any price it chooses.

LEONARD H. VAUGHAN, chairman of the Chicago seedsmen's division in the Fifth Liberty Loan campaign, reports his quota, $120,000 over subscribed. This does not include board of trade seedsmen, who are in another division.

Freight Rates Reduced

FROM PACIFIC COAST TO EAST.

A rate of $1.50 per 100 pounds in carlots, and $2 in less than that amount has been named by the railroad administration on bulbs, plants, etc., from the Orient, between the Pacific coast and eastern territory. The rate on seeds from the Orient is placed at $1.25 per 100 pounds.

Teneriffe Onion Seed.

A 50 per cent destruction of the Teneriffe onion seed crop is reported. In 1917 and 1918 over 90 per cent of this crop was exported to America; the value in 1917 being $133,264 and in 1918 $99,036. The new crop was caught in full bloom by the drought and a great deal of it was badly burnt by southerly winds. Although this is largely an irrigated crop, the plant can not reach its best condition without rain.

French Bulbs.

Cable advices of May 1, indicate that French Syndicate growers of Ollioules have fixed White Roman hyacinth prices, whole crop, 180 francs per 1,000; Paper White narcissi, 13 cm., and up, 50 francs; 14 cm., 55 francs. The foregoing figures indicate an advance of at least 30 per cent above 1918 prices. Following the price fixing by the growers, jobbers and dealers in these bulbs make their own trade rates. The jobbing prices are not yet definitely settled.

Paper White narcissus freights on the 1250 to the case size, figure between $3.20 to $3.75 per case laid down from growing district to New York. The next size, 14 cm., runs about $4.30 to the case.

Bean Growing in Michigan.

A well-known bean specialist writes as follows: "I note in the Seed Trade Department of the issue of May 3 that Michigan bean contracts are being written with farmers at $6.00 and $7.00 per 100 pounds. This may be true in some instances, where farmers have not the money to buy seed and where the ground is more or less impoverished and unfit for beans. The better class of farmers will not grow garden beans for less than eight, nine and ten cents a pound, and they are receiving these prices from some seed concerns, therefore, your article would be misleading to the trade and we think it should be corrected. Another thing I might mention, that in addition to the contract prices paid farmers, there comes the cost of hand picking and other expenses which is not less than one cent a pound and more often two and three cents a pound. You can readily see that some small dealers might think the grower was making too much profit when he figures that contracts are being written at six cents a pound and he is paying his grower 12 to 14 cents per pound."

[Seedsmen reached by THE FLORIST, we believe, understand that farmers' growing prices are never the same as those of the contract dealer, for reasons stated above and others.—Ed.]

Insurance.

MOST POLICIES NEED REVISION.

Merchants who own the property in which their stores are located should protect themselves from serious fire loss by keeping their insurance at an amount as nearly as possible commensurate with the cost of replacement. Most of the fire insurance policies now effective throughout the country, according to experienced insurance men, are for amounts for which the properties were originally underwritten prior to the war, although the cost of building is today more than 50 per cent greater than at that time.

Recent large fires have demonstrated the wisdom of keeping insurance policies up to date. In several instances, property destroyed was originally insured for from 75 to 80 per cent of its value; when the policy was paid, however, it was found that it would cover less than 50 per cent of the cost of replacing the property destroyed.

Building construction has increased 50 to 80 per cent in cost, yet most owners have not increased their insurance. Insurance men, in communications to clients, have sent brief notices hinting at the advisability of a revaluation of buildings and replacement cost of other property, especially machinery, and fire insurance companies, it is declared, fully recognize the increased value of buildings, owing to the costs of material, labor and other items entering into construction, and will accept additional insurance.

Before increasing insurance, however, property owners should consult builders or friends who understand values and the appreciation in buildings, in order not to overinsure. As a general rule, however, any building not depreciating too greatly from age, is worth not less than 50 per cent more today than three years ago.

Reports from material manufacturers indicate that the cost of lumber and other basic construction materials will advance in the near future, while union labor is also demanding higher wage scales. The outlook, accordingly, is that the present high property values will continue for at least a year or more, and property owners should protect themselves from the serious loss which would result from the destruction of property insured under pre-war values.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President;
C. W. Wald, Grand Rapids, Mich., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

NEW ALBANY, IND.—Anders Rasmussen recently disposed of one truckload of lettuce weighing 1,000 pounds for $290, indicating that while labor is scarce and high the crop pays better than flowers. Eight houses, 35x300 feet, were devoted to lettuce during the past winter.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, May 6.—Cucumbers, two dozen boxes, $2.00 to $3.25; celery, Florida, crate, $5.00 to $6.50; leaf lettuce, per box 32½ to 35 cents; radishes, per bushel box, 75 cents to $1.00; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $3.50 to $6.00.

New York, May 5.—Celery (Florida), per case $4.00 to $6.50; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $2.75 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 12 to 35 cents; lettuce, per package, 60 cents to $2.25; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.25 to $2.75.

Vegetable Markets.

Fairly steady prices and an average movement prevailed during the period, April 30-May 6, as indicated by reports received by the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture. Potato prices registered losses varying from five to 25 cents which about offset the average gain of the previous week. No. 1 northern white stock, sacked, closed 20 cents lower at Chicago at $2-$2.15. The range in middlewestern markets was about steady and southern markets held firm closing at $3.25-$3.50 in New Orleans and $2.85-$3 at Atlanta. Michigan shipping points quoted No. 1 sacked whites at $2.10-$2.15. Cabbage continued fairly steady in producing sections, generally close to $5 per barrel crate. Texas Flat Dutch continued nearly steady in middle western markets at $120-$140 per ton and $6-$6.50 per 100 pounds at Kansas City. Florida stock is nearly out of the market but weakened slightly in consuming centers to $5.50-$5.75. California Winningsstadt declined further in producing sections, ranging $50-$60 per ton with demand slow and market unsettled. New onions declined slightly, consuming markets ranging 50-75 cents below the previous week. Texas No. 2 yellow Bermudas continued to hold at $2.40-$2.65 per crate f. o. b. shipping points, closing with sales mostly at the high point. Old onions were in light supply and the price of sacked yellow stock tended to advance considerably ranging $5.50-$6.75 in the east, while Chicago quoted $4-$5. Red stock ruled $6 in Kansas City. Good Florida tomatoes followed a slightly stronger range closing at $4.25-$4.75 per 6-basket carrier f. o. b. shipping points. The range in northern consuming markets strengthened to $4-$6 with considerable inferior stock offered. Celery still sold at $6-$6.25 per crate at shipping points but continued rather weak in consuming centers at $5.50-$7. Florida White Spine cucumbers declined about 75 cents and ranged $2-$3.25 per hamper in northern markets with slow movement. Lettuce was considerably lower than the previous week in consuming markets.

SOCIAL EVENTS AID IN GOOD BUSINESS.

Business during the last week of April was fine, partly on account of the continued celebration of Easter week in the form of dances, parties, etc., and also from an increase of funeral work, which had been light for the past several weeks. Decorations and corsages formed the chief demand, and every available flower was used for the corsage work. Flowers are scarce and prices are high. Carnations are especially short, and callas and snapdragons are also behind the demand. Sweet peas are far from plentiful on account of the continued dark weather. Cattleyas are having an excellent call for corsages. Azaleas are being offered at $3 to $5 each. Rhododendrons will be on the market for Mother's day. Pelargoniums are meeting with a brisk demand. Some fine Lorraine begonias and pansy plants are also offered.

NOTES.

Miss Helen F. Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, Ohio is in this city visiting her mother, Mrs. Mary B. Patten, at the Flick home. Miss Patten is highly pleased with her Easter business, and says it was far out of proportion with the Easter trade of any other year.

Mrs. Henry Freese is back at the store of the Knecht-Freese Co., after an illness of several weeks, during which she suffered from a severe attack of bronchitis. A fine line of bedding plants, including some excellent pansy plants, are being shown at this store.

Preparations for a record-breaking Mother's day trade are being made here. The florists' club is advertising in a co-operative way in all of the daily papers, and individual firms are also advertising this great occasion.

The Flick Floral Co. had a record demand for flowers for funerals and social occasions. French hydrangeas are meeting with a good sale here, and a fine lot of Lorraine begonias were also noted at this store.

All kinds of spring bedding plants, and some excellent pansies are being shown at A. J. Lanternier's flower shop. Corsages have been especially numerous here during the past week.

Edgar Wenninghoff had a heavy amount of funeral work last week, being obliged to work all day Sunday to get out the orders.

I'm a bond-holder. Time was when I saved a few dollars, drew the money and spent it on some needless affair. It's quite different now—I own six Liberty Bonds. I collect the interest with the feeling of a youngster at a Christmas tree. I walk about among my fellow men with a well-founded pride. I'm a substantial citizen—I'm a bond-holder.

I'm going to subscribe to the Victory Liberty Loan—it's the best savings proposition I have ever heard of.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-four annual convention will be held at Chicago in 1919.

RIPLEY, O.—Victor Thomas, well known nurseryman, and Miss Minnie Lauerman were married April 10.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—Horticulturists in this city aided by the Utah Automobile Association are making plans for the planting of flowers along the canyon roads adjacent to this city.

THE proposed rigid quarantine for all herbaceous plants, etc., on the states of Massachusetts and New York on account of the cornstalk borer, has been modified, it is reported, and such local action as may be necessary is left to the discretion of the state commissioner of agriculture.

DENVER, COLO.—An elaborate exhibition of chrysanthemums, carnations and cut roses will be held in this city the first week in November under the auspices of the Denver Society of Ornamental Horticulturists. Park Superintendent Adam Kohankie has been appointed general manager.

Foreign Countries Agree on Inspection.

The following are among the leading countries which have provided for inspection of nursery stock in accordance with the requirements of the United States: Australia, Belgium, Bermuda, Canada, Cuba, Denmark, England, France, Germany, Holland, Hongkong (China), Ireland, Jamaica, Japan, Scotland, Spain and Switzerland.

Prunus Concinna.

The earliest cherry to bloom in the Arboretum this spring was Prunus concinna, a small tree discovered by Wilson on the mountains of central China. In the Arboretum it first flowered when less than three feet high; it is perfectly hardy, and although the flowers, which are white with a wine-colored calyx, are less beautiful than those of several other Asiatic cherries it does not seem possible for any plant of its size to produce a more abundant crop. There has always been misunderstanding about this plant in gardens as it was distributed by a London firm of nurserymen as Prunus subhirtella.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 1, 1919.

Grape Grafting in Florida.

J. Peitro, of Walton county, has grafted seven varieties of native wild grape stock with favorable results, which he describes as follows:

"America is very prolific, black, pulp melting, juicy; Armalaga produces fine robust clusters, large and compact, clear, yellowish white, skin thin but tough and does not crack; Muscat of Alexandria, cluster and berry very large, color greenish yellow, of highest quality, both in sweetness and peculiar rich flavor; Ciresa de Piedmonte, comparing favorably with the black Hamburg fruit, black, firm, meaty, of excellent quality; Fern Munson, black, catawba; Carmon, black, with fruit of pure, rich quality, much superior to Concord and hanging on vines many days after ripening without deteriorating, and lastly, Ellen Scott, exceedingly promising as a splendid commercial variety of which a most luxuriant yield is expected. This variety is unexcelled as a dessert fruit with a translucent violet color. On one vine are 90 branches of these grapes with all clusters very large and from five to nine inches long. The estimated yield from each vine of Ellen Scott is 30 to 40 pounds."

The treatment of the soil, according to Mr. Peitro is important. Ditches two feet wide and two to three feet deep are dug along the line of the rows and these are filled half way up with brush, palmetto roots and top leaf mold, after which the soil is plowed back to fill the ditches. After waiting a few days for the dirt to settle, plantings are made.

WENATCHEE, WASH.—C. H. Roney, well known in the trade, now assistant superintendent of the Pacific-Dearborn Co., motor truck distributors here, says he has never seen business in all lines throughout the entire Pacific coast in such a flourishing condition. Fruit growers have done well the past two years and prospects at present look bright for heavy crops and good prices. Money seems to be plentiful and is spent freely.

Bailey's*New Standard*Cyclopedia*Of Horticulture*Six Splendid Volumes

This work is Prof. L. H. Bailey's latest and greatest achievement and will undoubtedly stand as a monument to him. This is not a revision of the old Cyclopedia but a brand new work containing features not dreamed of at the time of publication of the original cyclopedia which was a pioneer work. The old cyclopedia of Horticulture, it will be remembered, was a cyclopedia in fact as well as in name, whereas the new Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture is a gardener's manual as well as a cyclopedia and contains features that make it equally adapted to the amateur and to the professional, to the man without education or the man with high literary tastes.

The Boiler of Unequaled Fuel Economy

Kroeschell Boilers, the best by test since 1879. Forty years' experience.

THE QUALITY PLACE OF BOSTON

Regarding the Kroeschell, it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerably already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration.

(Signed) WM. W. EDGAR CO., WAVERLEY, MASS.

No Masonry—No Tubes

TUBELESS BOILER

When You Buy—Get a Kroeschell

3,016,286 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with Kroeschell Boilers during the year of 1916.

OHIO'S CELEBRATED CYCLAMEN SPECIALIST

After using your No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler I came to the conclusion that had I to install more boilers it would be the Kroeschell and no other. It really is a pleasure to heat, no trouble to get the desired heat in a very short time.

(Signed) CHRIST. WINTERICH, DEFIANCE, OHIO.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., 452 W. Erie St., CHICAGO.

Of Gardens.

Oh, Mary, give my garden grace
To be his fit abiding place.
I would not have his small heart miss
One least thing of thy garden's bliss,
Nor know regret in any wise
For the starred lawns of Paradise.
That sweet enclosure where you sit—
Oh, tell me what blooms flower in it!
There will be lilies there I know,
Tall silver trumpets, row on row,
And roses blowing white and red
(All tender words of lovers, said
On Earth, zone up to Heaven to be Thy garden's joy eternally)
And humbler blossoms as beguiled
The laughter of Another Child,
Where his dear stumbling feet shall pass
I will set daisies in the grass,
Pied, tender things of pink and white,
And jonquils for his quaint delight,
There shall be borders proud and fair,
With clove-pinks spicing the clear air
Beneath the larkspur's azure lance,
And gilly flowers and Maids of France;
Here the white foxglove spires and there
The clouds of misty lavender.
And all day long a golden bird
Within the hawthorne shall be heard.—Anne Atwood Dodge in North American Review.

MEMORIAL DAY PREPARATIONS.

Memorial Day.

The 30th of May, which this year falls on Friday, furnishes another golden opportunity, this season greater than ever, for the trade all over this broad land, from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Memorial day was founded in 1868 by the Grand Army of the Republic, the veterans of our Civil War, who selected May 30 each year when in many localities there was an abundance of shrubbery in blossom for the decoration of the graves of their fallen comrades with flowers. It was but a step from this to the placing of flowers on graves of other loved ones, and then in some localities the custom became general, until it seemed as if one deserved reproach for neglect of this duty. The center of this great observance is the New England states where in all the large business centers, notably the city of Boston, there is a phenomenal sale of all kinds of flowers for this purpose. Large stocks of flowers are grown and timed for this holiday, all of which are sold at good prices.

Mainly to be able to prepare stock in advance and that could be shipped without danger in case of delay, the enameled tin, very lifelike flowers in wreath form, had a large sale, followed by the less expensive magnolia leaf wreaths, decorated with waxed paper flowers. These latter artificial absurdities, notwithstanding they are purely make-believe, have had a remarkable sale. The public appears to look at the general effect and the fact that they are cheaper and accept them as satisfactory. It is generally conceded where they have been most used that they have emphasized the custom and opened the way for a larger sale of natural flowers. Throughout New England, these artificial wreaths and sprays are now extensively advertised and sold in the department stores, who find them, on account of their imperishable nature, a profitable stock to handle.

The patriotic sentiment for the decoration of soldiers' graves with flowers, is a custom which is of distinct advantage to the florist business, a pure gift, coming to them without any effort on their part. As demonstrated in Boston, however, it is but a stepping stone to something far greater, that of the decoration of all graves, and the putting of all cemetery lots in order.

If it were possible that the business of this holiday was in the hands of one firm, as are many nationalized industries, how it would be fostered, prepared for, advertised and so featured, that the custom would become universal and sales phenomenal.

Every community should plan a campaign to exploit this event, which has the greatest possibilities. Each, in his way, should push the sale of plants and flowers, featuring the day well in advance, not half-heartedly, but enthusiastically and earnestly, because it is a good thing to do, and sure to prove profitable. In addition, there must be newspaper service, both educational, in the reading columns, and well worded and illustrated advertisements calling attention to the character of the decorations. This the trade is to do collectively. It may be difficult to get such movements started in some localities, but if this became general all over the country, the custom would grow by leaps and bounds, with results wonderfully satisfactory to all concerned.

The G. A. R. would assist in the educational work, while the cemetery associations, who would also be greatly benefited, would no doubt contribute to the florists' advertising campaign.

It is good business to furnish flowers, and in other ways help the G. A. R. The members still living are feeble, and it will soon fall upon the new veterans of the European war to take their places.

It is well on all holidays to have just a few specials which have features that are not to be seen everywhere. A certain sized crescent, and a full round wreath of oak or of magnolia leaves, to be decorated with fresh flowers, or others with boxwood and small flags or bow of red, white and blue ribbon, are stock which will show a good profit. These wreaths are, of course, to be prepared long before, to have the finishing touches put on when they are ordered. Palm leaf sprays can also be tied up before, ready as a background for peonies, or other flowers. Palm leaves with Japanese snowballs and greenhouse flowers, where a red, white and blue bow is tied, makes a good spray and is quickly gotten together.

Peonies play a large part in the Memorial day demand, they frequently being sold by the dozen, to be laid loosely on the grave. A red, white and blue vase basket, with a high handle, and a tin that holds water, when filled with peonies, is a good seller. This will require several stout wires with a square hook at the end to catch the rim of the basket, which, when stuck in the ground, prevents it from falling over.

Avoid, as far as possible, all orders for set pieces, corps marks, badges, shields, etc. These, unless the orders were secured well in advance, take a lot of valuable time; dozens of sprays and clusters of peonies and outside flowers, can be made and wreaths decorated, while one of these tedious designs is being worked out.

THE CEMETERY FLORIST.

It is the big week of the year for the florist who enjoys a cemetery trade. Every lot must be in order, with grass cut, vase or hanging basket filled, and in place, and bedding, if any, planted, all finished for Memorial day. Pans of all geraniums, and others made up of variety stock, will be found in demand for grave decoration. These being low and flat, do not dry out soon, and will not overturn in the wind.

Memorial day's trade is not one of high prices; it is not a day of gifts. Friends do not send flowers to one another at this time. All purchases are made for the decoration of the graves, and the demand is generally for sums of from $1 to $3, and as high as $5. The spray of 12 peonies for from $1.50 to $3, and the magnolia or oak leaf wreath from $2.50 up to $5, is about the average. Small flags will sell, as they can be combined nicely with any of the arrangements and add a patriotic tinge.

The decorations of the store and window should begin two weeks before the event to call attention to it, and for the last seven days it should be particularly strong. Flags as a background, and decorated wreaths of the size one is featuring, can be arranged in good combination. A vase or two of choice peonies, with tricolor ribbon bow and long streamers, is showy. Red, white and blue tumbler baskets, with a few flowers of the same colors and tied with a small bow of tricolor ribbon, will attract attention. A framed copy of Lincoln's Gettysburg address, draped with a flag, makes a good window center. A handsome magnolia or oak leaf wreath, on an easel, tied with a large bow of red, white and blue ribbon, is a showy window piece, or placed in a prominent place in the store. Several neat cards, with the inscription, "Memorial day, Friday, May 30th," with a pompon of tricolor ribbon on one corner, are good to place on any select pieces.

A neatly printed flag post card, or a well worded card that can be mailed for one cent, announcing the day and your readiness to fill orders for all kinds of cemetery decorations, should be mailed to all in the store list. It is almost sure to bring a good response, and at any rate shows the customers that you are there, waiting to serve them.

The Plant Trade.

The man who grows bedding plants in quantity, whether it be for cemetery planting or for his customer's home garden, is a busy man at this season of the year. Memorial day, designated as a day by which the planting on the graves and lots of the cemeteries shall be completed, has also become to be accepted by most people as the time when the flower beds of their homes shall be planted as well. Consequently, as soon as the weather will permit, it is one big rush to get the orders finished up. In some parts of the eastern states, planting out commences soon after May 1, but in the central states and lake regions, very little planting outdoors of the so-called bedding plants should be attempted before May 20, and for the more tender plants, such as coleus, begonias, etc., June 1 would be much safer, but a majority of the customers persist in wanting their work done by May 30. It is, therefore, up to the florist and gardener to accept the situation and do the best he can.

The weather at time of writing these notes is more of the variety of early March than the first week of May, and does not present a very favorable outlook for early planting. Cold, dark days with lots of rain prevail, so that much time is lost in not being able to prepare the ground and beds. These dark days are also hard on the plants that are standing crowded together in the greenhouse. Usually by this time, quite a few of the stock plants of the hardier kinds, such as carnations, vincas, asters and stock geraniums are planted out, releasing a lot of space on the benches as well as in the cold frames, giving a chance for the crowded plants to have more room, but so far this work has been held up by bad weather and cold wet ground.

Advantage should be taken of the delay in outside planting by attending to everything that can be done under glass. One of the most important jobs is to keep the plants clean. Under crowded conditions and dark weather, a good many of the lower leaves will turn yellow. These should be removed, not only to add to the appearance of the plants, but also to give them the benefit of a little more air. Geraniums are especially referred to as regards their lower leaves becoming yellow when crowded. It spoils the appearance of the plants and a few days hence, when the selling season is at its height, there will be very little time for cleaning the plants, so that any of the work that can be done now is time well spent. Another job that can be done before the rush commences, is to see that every plant that needs it is properly staked up to give them time to straighten themselves before being offered for sale. Four-inch pot plants of fuchsias, heliotrope and petunias are among those that need a light stake to support and hold their branches in place. The larger plants of rambler and other roses should also be neatly staked. The same applies to the hydrangeas; a neat stake to each branch with their large heads of bloom, will keep them from topping over and greatly improve the appearance of the plants, but all staking should be done neatly so that it will not give the plants a rough and ungainly appearance.

MEMORIAL DAY WREATH,
Oak Leaves, Callas, Tulips, Daisies and Peonies.

Pay particular attention to keeping the weeds down. This most particularly applies to the hot-beds. The weeds are always very plentiful where there is a good bottom heat, quickly crowding out the young plants, causing them to draw up and become spindly as well as bringing on a good deal of plant rot. It will also be a good plan to rip out the tips of any coleus, achyranthes or any other quick growing plants that are inclined to be drawing up and becoming lanky. This should not be necessary when the plants have received proper attention in this respect, as they have been growing along, but under the best of care, a shoot will get away here and there and spoil the general appearance of the plants. The growth of these shoots is very rapid at this time, it taking only a very few days for them to get beyond bounds.

It is very important that the plants be well in bloom at time needed for sale. To be sure of this, close attention must be given to the temperature and airing of the houses, avoiding as much as possible the extremes of high or low temperatures, especially during times of dark, cold, wet weather. As soon as it can be done safely, the artificial heat on all kinds of bedding plants should be done away with to harden them off so that they will stand the transferring to the outside with as little check as possible, but while it is necessary to use any heat at all, the temperature can be kept moderate by the free use of the ventilators.

The show houses are a very important part of any establishment where a large number of customers come and select their own bedding plants. They should be so arranged that a good display of all the stock to be sold can be kept on view, thus saving a lot of time by not having to take the customer to the other end of the place for any certain kind of plant. The stock for the planting orders can then be reserved in the other houses without reducing them beyond the number necessary for the orders on hand, and also saves drawing on the stock in the show houses when an order has to be planted. The best way to handle pansies, bellis and other plants of similar nature from cold frames, is to put them up a dozen in a basket, getting up enough baskets every morning for each day's requirements. This makes a fine display for the customer to see, and saves a lot of time by not having to go to the frames for every sale. The man that fixes up the baskets of pansies should be instructed to be particular in the selection of varieties put in each basket so that they do not contain too many of one color, unless they are intended to be all of one variety. Many customers prefer to do their own selecting of bedding plants, carrying them and planting them. A good supply of market baskets should be provided for them to carry away the plants, a small fee being charged for the basket to be refunded if basket is returned.

One of the important tasks is to keep the plants arranged properly in the show house so that the necessary watering can be attended to in good order. After each day's business, the benches should be gone over, the plants rearranged, and a fresh lot put in to fill up the empty spaces so that there will be a good display for the next day's business.

Memorial Day Clusters and Designs.

To get the most out of Memorial day, or in fact any time of great demand, one must look well ahead, plan out the work, and be prepared with a good stock of designs, as nearly complete as possible, requiring only the finishing touches. For this occasion, the call is for articles of medium price, and as nearly everything is for the decoration of the grave, wreaths and clusters are most in demand. The prepared magnolia or oak leaf wreaths are the most profitable items, as these can be made up long before; in fact, many stores put in their dull summer time in making up almost enough wreaths to last the entire season.

Galax can be stemmed up and kept in a cool place, free from drafts, for about two weeks, but soon dries out in the air and cannot be delivered to the cemetery before the day or they will shrivel. Palm leaf sprays can be tied together to be used as a backing for natural flowers and save time when every minute counts.

The laying out of the work, and arranging for the special wreaths or sprays to be featured, depends, in a measure, on the season. The great outside flower is the peony. When this is in full flower, it is the foundation of much of the work. A half dozen or dozen of these can be jabbed into a prepared wreath in a minute, or in the same time made into a spray for a palm leaf background. Sprays of Japanese snowball make a white ground for peonies, Darwin tulips, carnations or roses, depending on the price. Spiræas, deutzias and Wiegalias are also very good shrubbery. Flags and tricolor ribbon give a patriotic touch and add much more to the pieces than they cost. The supply houses have introduced a red, white and blue basket that fills up to good effect. Red, white and blue muscus can be used to take the place of immortelles, which this year are very scarce. The accompanying illustrations give examples of arrangements suitable for Memorial day.

There is no question but the demand will be much greater this year than ever before on account of the many who have died so nobly for their country, whose friends and relatives will decorate a place for them in their home cemetery lots. There were also many soldiers died in camp here of influenza, who were buried in their home cemeteries, and thousands of fresh graves of the civilian population, due to the ravages of that dire disease, all of which will no doubt receive this floral decoration.

Everything of a publicity nature to feature the day, should be done, both individually and collectively by the trade. The opportunity is here, and the custom of decorating all graves, civilians as well as those of soldiers, can be brought about if the idea is intelligently handled. It must be talked up in the newspapers. Every office has its writers, who for a compensation paid for by the trade, would prepare good reading matter, which would find free access to the columns of the paper. Backed up by appropriate advertising, well illustrated, there is no question but the effect would be beneficial. To be successful, however, it must be taken up with enthusiasm. Half-hearted, "wonder if it will pay?" methods will not do. Make up your mind to do it, and do it right, and then go at it with all your might, and success is sure.

Postal Changes Coming.

"The little old red 2-cent stamp is coming back. Told a year and a half ago that he was no longer considered heavy enough to carry letters from city to city, he turned over his keys, moved to a plainer section of the post office and accepted temporary work carting post cards about the country and letters within the municipalities," says the Chicago Journal. "But his friends were loyal. They wanted him back. His successor, they said, was a profiteer. They brought Uncle Sam to see it their way and on July 1 the little red sticker will move back to his old cubby hole, while the 3-cent usurper will be left to shift for himself. With the return of the 2-cent letter carrier will come that of his little green brother, who for months has been doing odd jobs here and there as a helper—sometimes doubling to get a post card through and at other times helping the red one with a letter in the absence of the blue 3-center. Now he is to have the postcard as his own. The extent of the resultant decrease in postal revenues with this change can only be estimated. From tests made over a period of six months after the postage rate increase became effective it is figured that stamps are cancelled on 40,000,000 letters a month at the Chicago post office. One cent off per letter would mean a loss of about $400,000 per month, or $4,800,000 in a year."

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Refrigerator Cleaning.

Many people who thoroughly believe in the sanitary qualities of paint, never think of giving the interior of their refrigerators a coat, notwithstanding paint dealers sell an enamel especially intended for refrigerators. It is difficult to think of anything which it is more important to keep thoroughly clean and sanitary than a refrigerator. Of course, this advice to paint applies particularly to refrigerators having galvanized iron linings; those having porcelain or enameled linings require only frequent washing with soap and water to keep them clean and sanitary.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

Now that we are nearing the last holiday of the season, it is necessary to speed up, if one is to make the most of it. For all such events as Memorial day, it is preparedness that counts; to be ready when the rush comes with stock on hand to fill orders as received, greatly expedites the business. There is still time the coming week to work up stock that needs replenishing or get supplies that may be running low. One of the popular pieces for grave decoration, for those who desire natural flowers, is the spray. This can be backed up with sago leaves to look much larger and command an added price that makes their use as profitable as the flowers. Prepared sago leaves are now made to look so natural that they are accepted as fresh by most people. A good stock of these should be assured, as there is no waste, if any are left over.

The publicity of Memorial day is a great factor to its success, particularly from the florists' point of view. The observance of the day is with flowers; they are taken to the last resting places of the heroes, those who gave their lives for their country, and placed upon their graves, or used to decorate the monuments erected to those high in command who won distinction. This is a beautiful custom which it is to be hoped will never die out. There must, however, be a spirit of love and devotion as well as patriotism, to keep alive this sentiment which has established and perpetuates the day.

The graves of the soldiers are, however, numerically very small. Not over five per cent of those buried in other than military cemeteries are soldiers. But through this patriotic custom, there is an opportunity to extend the decorative feature to all graves. The soldier or sailor is no more loved by his family or friends than are other near relatives, whose graves are not to be neglected, and it is this feature of the day, that if the observance could be made general, would be of enormous value to the trade.

Now this can be done. It is no experiment as in some parts of the country, notably in the New England states, it is so general that Memorial or Decoration day is their best floral holiday of the year. The florists in every community should get together, and by all the means in their power encourage the use of flowers for this purpose. No one appears to know just how it has been brought about in New England. The patriotic spirit was very strong in the early days, from the first shots at Lexington on. There is the record of throwing the tea overboard in Boston harbor. "Don't shoot until you see the whites of their eyes" at Bunker Hill. Paul Revere's ride, the associations of Old Faneuil hall, etc. There is now, with the returning victorious heroes, and patriotism rampant everywhere throughout the land, a grand opportunity to awaken a new spirit, which if it could be made to find expression in this way, and there is no question but what it can be brought about, if everyone in the trade becomes enthusiastic and thoroughly imbued with the idea and then work together until the end is attained.

There appear to be a goodly number of weddings for the month of May, and June promises to be a record period in this respect. To be up-to-date on everything pertaining to these important events so as to receive and offer suggestions, and show that all phases of the work are thoroughly understood is very important in these days of close competition. Many an order is lost because of delays in preparing plans and estimates and determining prices. The well informed salesman has all details so at his fingers' tips, that they are furnished at once, and the order given and off the mind of the customer, almost at the first interview.

It is still window box time, and many orders for these house adornments can be secured, if possible customers are shown how much their properties will be improved by these flowering plants and vines. It is business well worth the trouble of securing, as many valuable customers are added in this way.

Go over the accounts and get after any slow ones before they get out of town, as the summer exodus is now about due. Courteous, well-phrased letters are better than soliciting, but they must be closely followed up by others, if there is no response. Use plain envelopes for all such work. Uncle Sam is usually a welcomed visitor. His service will get your message across, which will in most cases, bring the desired answer.

Put some of last winter's profits into the S. A. F. publicity fund so as to insure another good season. Secretary Young is now touring the country with good results, but do not wait for him. Send in your quota at once. The more you give, the more interest you will take, and the greater your return. Save it with money, and do it today.

Atlantic Steamers of the Future.

Great changes are taking place in trans-Atlantic travel. No new leviathans of the type of the torpedoed White Star liner Britannic, of 48,000 tons gross register, and the Cunard liner Lusitania, of 32,000 tons, are being built. The White Star had under construction the Homeric when the war broke out, but apart from this single exception the building of great liners is not in contemplation by any British company. A standard vessel of the Franconia type has been adopted by the Cunard, carrying both passengers and cargo, and probably oil driven. This kind of vessel will be put in the Liverpool-New York service when the Aquetania and Mauretania have been transferred to the Southampton-New York service. The next additions to the White Star fleet will be five vessels ranging from 10,000 to 24,000 tons each. Luxury travel is not to be the first consideration.—London Daily Mail.

PLANT NOTES.

Rambler Roses.

The rambler roses for Memorial day will demand constant attention, for at this season of the year aphids and red spider increase very rapidly if the conditions are propitious. It is far better to keep these insects down by proper culture than to be obliged to resort to measures to kill them. Give the plants all the ventilation possible, but drafts will often cause mildew on the soft foliage, so these must be guarded against especially, and low ventilation, such as open doors with the wind drawing through the houses. Syringe thoroughly on bright days. There is no better prevention for red spider than a good syringing that will reach the under side of the leaves, which will quickly break up the colonies of spiders that gather there. If the plants require fumigation it should be light, for often the young foliage is very tender and heavy fumigation with smoke quickly burns it. Where the pots are full of roots a watering with liquid manure or a mulch of sheep manure mixed with sifted soil will be found very beneficial and will add a lustre to the foliage and deepen the color of the flowers.

Pansies.

The sale of pansy plants will soon be at its height and there is nothing that the florist or grower sells upon which more time is wasted than in selecting a small order of pansies if the customer is shown a frame of a few thousand plants. The better way is to have boxes or baskets holding a dozen plants all made up for the customer. It is not necessary to put up more than will be required for one or two days' sale, but as fast as sold keep the stock replenished. There are many patrons who will be well satisfied with a good selection already placed in a basket, who will take an hour of a salesman's time in making their choice out of a frame. Any late seedlings should be planted in the frames at once, and these will make fine plants for late May or June planting when the older plants are either sold or have become too large for bedding purposes.

Primulas.

For plants of both P. sinensis and obconica for blooming next spring, May is the best time to sow the seed, which germinates very readily at this time, but if it is delayed until June it will often be found quite difficult to get the seed to start well, and as the young seedlings grow very slowly they will require constant attention during the warm weather, for a few hours' sun when they are dry will cause the loss of all the plants. The soil should be sifted in a fine sieve, as the seed is very small, and they should not be covered with the soil, but sown thinly on the soil when loose and then pressed flat with a board. Watering should be done with a very fine rose on the can, so as not to wash the seeds or soil. At this season of the year the seed will germinate readily in almost any greenhouse, but it is well to cover the seed pan or box with glass to prevent too rapid evaporation and until the plants begin to make growth keep the pots well shaded. Many growers wrap a piece of paraffine paper around the glass that is placed on the seed pan. This allows plenty of light to germinate the seed and will prevent the direct rays of the sun from burning up the young seedlings when they start to grow. As these young plants grow very slowly, some soils will often become caked or scaly, and if this occurs the top should be carefully broken up to allow the air to enter. As soon as three or four leaves are formed, pot in 2½-inch pots, not too deeply, but yet deep enough to have them stand erect. They should then be placed in a cool house, and much of the success of their culture depends upon the care and watering in their early growth. They are a moisture-loving plant and should never become dry; yet they are easily over-watered and will not make a good growth if continually kept soaked. Frequent and light waterings are the best. A light shaded frame with the pots plunged in the soil and the sash lifted at top and bottom for a free circulation of air is the best location for summer culture.

Asters.

The early and midseason asters should be planted out as early as the season will allow. If the plants are hardened off for two or three weeks in a cold frame and gradually given night air as soon as safe, they will endure the outside temperature much better than those carried directly from the warm greenhouse. The land should be prepared at once, and while asters will grow on almost any piece of ground, the success or failure depends much on the proper preparation of the soil. Land that was manured last fall and plowed is by far the best, and all that will be required in the spring is a shallow plowing or disking and then leveled. It is well not to level off too large a tract at once, for heavy rains occur at this season which pack the soil down hard. Before planting give the young plants a thorough watering and if in boxes or on the bench, cut through the rows with a knife a day before planting. Lay the field out in rows from 15 to 20 inches apart, giving the branching varieties the greater distance, with a wider space every fifth or sixth row to provide a walk when cutting the flowers, and set the plants from 12 to 18 inches apart. Plant with a trowel for the plants set in a dibbled hole will not take hold as quickly, and with the early asters the slight difference in time taken in planting is more than made up in the early blooming; the dibble packs the soil around the plant and the roots do not grow into it as freely, and the roots are also contracted in the small hole made by the dibble. As soon as the field is planted, if possible, give the plants a good watering and then cultivate lightly with a wheel hoe to loosen up the soil. Suggestions for may 24

THE CARNATION.

Planting in the Field.

The wet, cold weather during the latter part of April has delayed the planting out of the carnation plants, and in many sections of the country the land is in such a wet condition that it is impossible to plough and get it into fit shape for planting. While the weather remains as wet and cold as for the past three weeks, it is better for the plants to remain in the cold frames or cool house, but the first opportunity should be taken of any improvement of the weather conditions and the plants transferred to the field as soon as possible. Every day the planting has to be delayed shortens the field season for the plants, which is none too long, even if we should have the most favorable weather from now on. Be sure that the drains or ditches on the land are opened up, to give the water a chance to drain away and help the soil to become workable. There will be nothing gained by working the land while it is very wet, because it will dry out lumpy and remain so for the balance of the season. It will be far better to take a chance and wait a few days until the ground becomes a little drier and can be made finer and better for planting.

When preparing the planting ground be sure that all the low places are filled up even and level with the rest of the land so that there will not be any chance for the water from heavy rains to remain in pools and cause the plants to become too wet, a condition that is sure to bring on disease. The distance apart to plant in the field is governed to a great extent by the area of ground at the growers' disposal, but there is nothing to be gained by very close planting, especially if the plants are to remain in the field until late in August. Under the plan of setting the plants in rows, with the idea of cultivating the ground with a hand cultivator, they can be planted 12 to 14 inches apart in the rows and the rows 16 to 18 inches apart. When the grower has only a limited amount of space at his command, and the plants have to be planted in beds, depending on the use of the hoe to do the cultivating and keep down the weeds, the plants can be set in rows 12 inches apart and 12 inches in the row, leaving a space of 18 inches at every third or fourth row for working and a walk, thus forming beds three to four feet wide, which allows for the work of topping and anything else that is necessary.

Do not neglect the young plants while they remain in the frames or house. They will need close watching as regards watering, wiring and keeping free of insects. It is often the case, that unless the young shoots that are opening up on the plants are examined occasionally, the aphids are very likely to get a foothold down in the heart of the growth before they have a chance to unfold. This will cripple the growth, giving it a check that will take considerable time to remedy. The topping of the growths should also be watched closely and not allow any shoot to draw away to an unreasonable length before pinching out its top. Allow plenty of air on the frame or house both day and night so as to keep the plants in a sturdy, hardened condition. Any element that has a tendency to soften up the growth of the plants will react against them after they are transferred to the field.

WREATH OF IVY LEAVES.

Spot of Cattleys.

When the weather conditions will permit, be prepared to finish up the planting in as short a time as possible, putting enough help on the job to knock the plants out of the pots, setting them in flats not too large, but what they can be carried easily. This work should be done at the frame or greenhouse, and the flats of plants carted to the planting field. Then see that the planters are furnished enough plants to keep him busy at planting and not have to get or lay out their own plants. Be sure that the plants are planted firmly and in straight rows. Then after a reasonable number of rows have been planted, give the ground a shallow cultivating to loosen up the surface.

CARE OF THE OLDER PLANTS.

The older plants now in bloom on the benches should still receive the best of treatment. The demand for good carnation blooms takes every one at a good price that can be produced, and the prospects appear to be good for these conditions to last throughout the next eight or 10 weeks, so that any encouragement given the producing plants will more than repay itself. The plants are now in a higher state of vigor than at any time during their existence, but at no other time will they more quickly get out of control unless given the closest attention. The growth is now more rapid, and the shoots much stouter than earlier in the season. This refers not only to the main branches, but to the side growths as well. Therefore, unless the side surplus buds and shoots are kept picked off, the main bud is bound to suffer and the flower be undersize. Careful watering of the plants also goes a long way toward keeping up the plants' productiveness. They should be watered every time they need it, but they should never be allowed to become extremely dry or carried to the other extreme by flooding the soil before the plants are in need of watering. Another important point is to maintain, as near as possible, the regular carnation temperature. This, of course, cannot be done during bright, warm weather, but plenty of ventilation can be given, and the temperature kept as low as possible to prolong the plant's usefulness. Just as soon as a high temperature continues for any length of time, carnation blooms commence to deteriorate. Unless the beds have been mulched recently or the plants highly fed with liquid manure, it will be a good plan to put on a mulch at this time to add stimulation to the plants and give the roots fresh material to work in.

It seems hardly necessary to touch upon the care of cutting the flowers, but it is a very important item in connection with the care of the plants at this season of the year. The flowers should be cut before they become fully matured or, in other words, when the outer petals have developed out to correct form and the center ones about two-thirds expanded, and every flower that is under grade or beyond its freshness, should be removed from the plants. Do not allow the flowers to remain out of water for any length of time after being cut, but get them into vases of fresh, clean water and placed in the cellar as soon as possible. When the weather becomes very hot, it will be necessary to shade the glass, but during the dark, wet weather which we are having at this time, the plants are better off without any shading.

Carnation Planting.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Will you kindly inform me whether now would be the proper time to put carnation plants in their permanent places in the greenhouse or should they be placed in the field until August?

New York.

R. S.

If the inquirer is familiar with the method of indoor culture of carnations, the plants can be put in their permanent places in the greenhouse at this time. If not, I would advise planting in the field, and lifting the plants late in July or early in August.

There are two very important questions that should be considered before deciding on indoor culture of carnations during the summer months. First, are the plants specially prepared for the purpose, by being at this time (May 15) strong, healthy plants in 3- or 4-inch pots with an abundance of shoots breaking away? Second, has the grower the space ready, so that the plants can be given their permanent quarters before June 10 at the latest, without too much of a sacrifice on any other stock? To these questions, should be added the knowledge of indoor culture. Otherwise, I would advise planting in the field for the summer.

THE S. A. F.

Detroit Convention Plans.

Before starting on a trip in the interests of the national publicity campaign, the secretary, April 23, visited Detroit for the purpose of laying out a floor plan of Arcadia Auditorium to cover the requirements of the convention and trade exhibition. In this work he was rendered material assistance by Vice-President E. A. Fetters, and Wm. Dilger, of the Breitmeyer Landscapè & Nursery Co.

The preparatory work in connection with the housing of the convention and its auxiliaries is well under way, and the various details necessary for the success of the meeting and the comfort and enjoyment of the visitors are in course of arrangement by Vice President Fetters, Philip Breitmeyer and others among our Detroit enthusiasts.

Arcadia Auditorium is an ideal building for purposes of the convention, as it presents an opportunity for holding the meetings and the trade exhibition on the same floor, without interference of one with the other, yet at all times connecting. It may be necessary, however, to locate the cut flower exhibits, and the offices of affiliated organizations on the second, or balcony floor.

Floor plans showing available spaces in the trade exhibition will be issued this month, and the outlook at present is that every square foot will be reserved long in advance of the time of opening.

JOINT PUBLICITY COMMITTEE MEETING.

Pursuant to a call by President Ammann, a joint meeting of the publicity finance committee and the publicity committee was held at the Hotel Sintou, Cincinnati, O., May 1, at which the following were present: President J. F. Ammann, ex officio, member of both committees, Publicity committee; Henry Penn, Boston, chairman; Thos. H. Joy, Nashville, Tenn., and Guy W. French, Morton Grove, Ill., Publicity finance committee; George Asmus, Chicago, chairman; Herman P. Knoble, Cleveland, O., and Secretary John Young, New York. There were also present, Director Charles E. Critchell, Cincinnati; Director Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, and Major P. F. O'Keefe, Boston, Mass.

The session lasted continuously from 9:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. The visitors were entertained at lunch by Director Critchell, the repast being served in the same room, so that the proceedings were unbroken by adjournment. At the conclusion of the meeting all present were guests at a dinner given by Director Hill at the Hotel Gibson.

In opening the proceedings, President Ammann announced that the meeting had been called at the suggestion of Chairman Asmus and himself. As far as the publicity work itself was concerned, he said, it was well organized and was working splendidly, but, in his opinion, organization on the matter of procuring subscriptions to the fund was weak, and the meeting was considered necessary in order that some plan might be devised whereby this part of the work could be advanced. All knew of the variety of ideas which had been presented looking to this end, but, it seemed to him, there were big enough men available to formulate a plan that could be worked out either from the executive headquarters or through committees, tending to bring about greater uniformity in the solicitation of funds. The publicity work was a great thing, and, he said, none need have any hesitancy in approaching anybody in reference to it.

The president's remarks started a very lengthy discussion, in which all in attendance took part. Of many suggestions made a few were held for further consideration. The chair proposed that the proper way to get definite action in the matter would be to designate a committee of two or three to formulate a plan on a percentage basis, such as had been repeatedly suggested during the discussion, and particularly by Herman Knoble, and there being no objection he appointed Messrs. Asmus and Knoble such committee. On the suggestion of Henry Penn, Joseph H. Hill and C. E. Critchell were added to the committee as representing growers and wholesalers respectively, and the committee was directed to report during the afternoon.

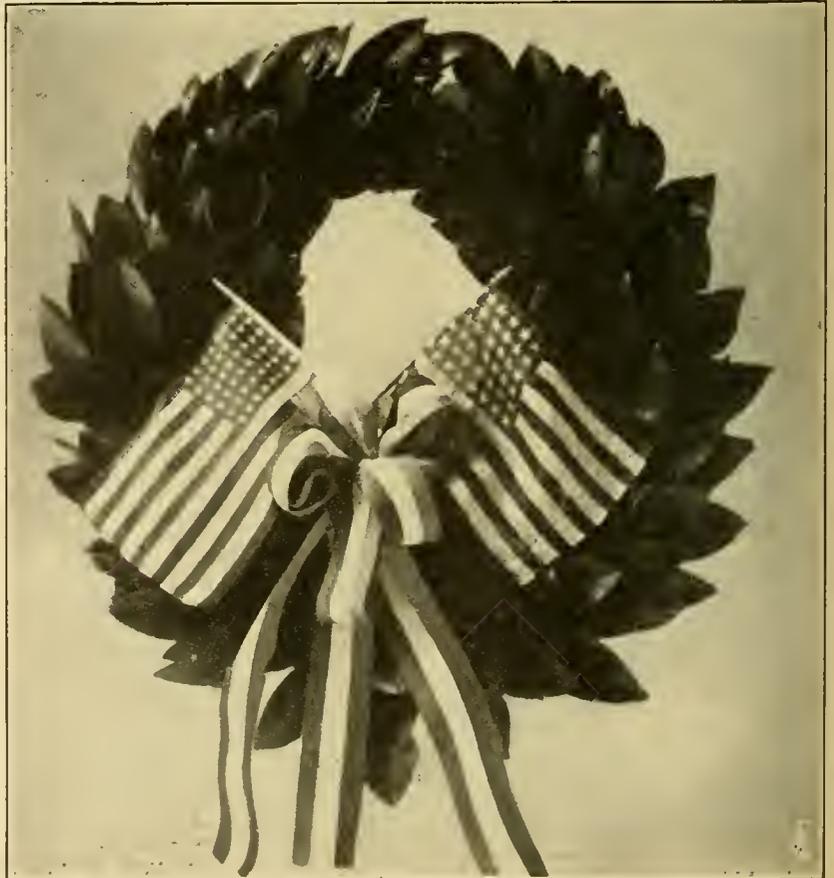

The meeting then proceeded to discuss a suggestion emanating from Major O'Keefe, that in order to intensify the work of collection of funds, four representatives of the society be empowered to start out in different sections of the country to work on lines such as followed by the secretary on his recent trips. This plan appealed to the meeting for the reason that if successfully carried out the 1919 fund would be completed, and any other plan formulated could, if found acceptable, be put in operation for another campaign. Mr. Asmus was particularly earnest in his support of this plan, which, he said, he had anticipated to an extent sufficient to warrant him, as chairman of the publicity finance committee, to enlist the services of two capable representatives for this very purpose. Rising from lunch, the committee appointed to formulate a plan for especial discussion retired to engage in the work. Meanwhile the remainder of the meeting went into committee to further consider the plan of sending our representatives.

Later in the afternoon, the two committees having ended their deliberations, the meeting proceeded as a whole. The meeting adopted the plan covering the sending out of representatives, and made provision for the necessary expense. The details in regard to this work were placed in the hands of the chairmen of the two committees, Messrs. Asmus and Penn, in connection with the president and secretary.

The committee on apportionment, through Herman Knoble, chairman, presented a report which showed careful thought on the part of the committee to the business entrusted to it, and its adoption was, on motion, unanimous. The figures, however, are considered to be tentative until the committees report at the Detroit convention. The meeting then took up the matter of a continuance of the magazine advertising, and an appropriation was voted to cover a series of advertisements in the magazines to keep the slogan "Say it with Flowers" constantly before the public during the summer months. The meeting then adjourned.

It may be added that the calling of this meeting should in no way be considered as a reflection on the work of the publicity finance committee, which has been most ably conducted and carried out. Chairman Asmus' idea in urging the holding of the meeting was to accelerate the collection of the fund by more intense work, the scope of which must necessarily be decided by the committees jointly.

The Cincinnati Meeting.

There was an enthusiastic meeting of the florists of Cincinnati and vicinity, at the Hotel Sinton, on the evening of May 1, with a splendid attendance. Director C. E. Critchell opened the proceedings with a rousing address of welcome, putting the audience in a good humor which lasted for the remainder of the evening. Addresses were made by President J. F. Ammann, Chairman George Asmus of the publicity finance committee, Chairman Henry Penn of the publicity committee, and Major P. F. O'Keefe, of the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, Boston, Mass., who outlined the programme for magazine publicity to be followed until the opening of the fall campaign. Director Jos. H. Hill, Richmond, Ind., Herman Knoble of Cleveland, O.; T. H. Joy of Nashville, Tenn.; Guy French of Morton Grove, Ill., Secretary Young and others also took part in the proceedings. The main topic discussed was, of course, the publicity campaign, and in the end annual subscriptions for four years amounting to $450 were forthcoming. Several applications for membership in the S. A. F. were received, including two life memberships. Director Critchell assured the publicity committees that a much more generous financial support could be counted upon from the Cincinnati interests in the very near future. The meeting adjourned at a very late hour. The success both of this meeting and the meeting of the publicity committees held throughout the day was remarkable, as showing the intense interest taken in the campaign.

National Publicity for Flowers.

Leaving Detroit, Mich., the secretary, April 24-25, was in Toledo in the interest of the campaign fund. The genial Thomas Magee, of the Scott-wood Greenhouses, gave generously of his time in escorting the secretary to the establishments of various growers in the vicinity, all of whom subscribed to the fund. Calls were also made on all the retail florists of the city, and many glass and other signs covering the slogan, "Say it with Flowers," will hereafter be on display. The Toledo florists evinced considerable enthusiasm over the large Easter business accomplished, much credit for it being given to the work of the campaign. Several new members were secured for the Society of American Florists.

In Columbus, O., next day, the secretary was in charge of H. Wilson and Carl O. Jagsch, who devoted much time in an effort to see that as much territory as possible was covered, and all in the trade in Columbus called upon. Several substantial subscriptions to the fund were recorded, and requisitions for the various aids provided by the promotion bureau booked. Quite a few new members were obtained, including one life member.

April 28 found the secretary in Dayton, O. Practically all the florists in this city are already enrolled as members of the society, and many have contributed to the publicity fund. All in the trade were called upon and expressions of their appreciation of the society's work were many and sincere. The secretary regretted missing the veteran, Warren G. Matthews, a life member of the society for many years, but he had the pleasure of a cordial reception by Mrs. Matthews.

Indianapolis was the next city on the itinerary, where April 29-30 were spent under the tutelage of Irwin C. Bertermann, A. F. J. Baur and his partner, O. E. Steinkamp. These gentlemen gave up business for the best part of two days in the interest of the society and its work, seeing to it that the secretary visited all of the florists in Indianapolis and vicinity. He was delighted to realize that all of the florists here were well posted as to the work of the campaign, and to record their appreciation of it by liberal subscriptions to the fund. Many new members were secured, and orders booked for promotion bureau service aids. The subscriptions in number and amount have already been published in the trade papers.

All things considered, the trip to this point had proved most successful in every way. At Indianapolis, the secretary was notified telegraphically by Chairman Asmus of the publicity finance committee, that in compliance with a recommendation of President J. F. Ammann, a meeting of the publicity committee with the president and secretary had been arranged for Thursday, May 1, in Cincinnati. Particulars as to the result of this meeting are given separately.

From information obtained in the different centers visited, the secretary feels fully assured that the florists realize to their complete satisfaction that the national publicity campaign has been the means of greatly increasing their sales of flowers and plants. A much greater interest is now evident in the progress of the campaign, and subscriptions are being made more freely. With a continuance of this interest, there should be no difficulty in obtaining the $100,000 fund required for the work of this year.

WORTHY OF NOTICE.

Everybody in the trade will do well to make it his special business to look at the publicity campaign advertisement in the June issue of The American Magazine, and the full page advertisement, in colors, in the June Metropolitan.

The following subscriptions have been received and are in addition to those previously announced, annually for four years unless otherwise stated:

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Rose Meeting of Philadelphia Florists.

The Florists' Club of Philadelphia has held many interesting gatherings, but the rose meeting, May 6, has rarely, if ever been excelled by that organization in the value and quality of the exhibits and the excellence of its literary features. The exhibition tables contained vases of 50 each of the wonderful roses, Premier and Frank Dunlop, each of which were remarkable for size and beauty. They looked as if they would score on all points—size, color, form, texture, fragrance, foliage and stem,—almost, if not quite, 100 points. The Montgomery Bros. Co., Amherst, Mass., staged its new ones, Pilgrim and Crusader, very beautiful flowers of great promise. Pilgrim is an iridescent shade of light pink with petals of a satiny texture and regularly formed flower that at once attracts attention. It has good stem and foliage. Crusader, the color of Hadley, having the same velvety sheen, with a very perfectly formed flower, of good size, is said to bloom on every shoot and is much easier to handle than Hadley. John H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont., also exhibited a sport of Ophelia, more double and of deeper color. There were vases of splendid grown Russell from Alfred Burton and Victor Groschens, The Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., staged two vases of choice "Prima Donna. Vases of well grown Lady Alice Stanley, Ophelia, My Maryland and good larkspur, were exhibited by John Welsh Young. Edward Towill's vase of Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury was very showy. Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa., staged a collection of seedling roses, all under number, which were very interesting, and some, quite promising. There were also pots of Calceolaria Stewartii, and hybrids from Wm. Kleinheinz and John Kuhn.

The speakers, all rosarians of national fame, Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., Earl Mann, Richmond, Ind., John H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont., and Wm. H. Elliot, Madbury, N. H., came their respective long distances to attend this meeting.

W. R. PIERSON TELLS OF PROGRESS MADE.

Wallace R. Pierson was the first speaker. Referring to the increasing number of forcing varieties appearing annually, many asked the question, "Must we buy all the new ones?" to which he replied that if growers had stuck to "brides and maids" they would have been out of business long ago. Men who did not think it necessary to keep up with the times, soon passed down and out. He said he had spent more money advertising and trying to sell their last two thousand Bride and Bridesmaid than they were worth and finally threw them out. Pink Killarney, which had been such a money maker, had its day, and was fast going out. It was a remarkable fact that none of the hybridizers had been able to use Killarney, either as a pollen or parent plant, and there is yet to be produced a good seedling of Killarney. The introduction of Ophelia, a chance seedling of Antoine Rôche, was a great boon to hybridizers, he said, as nearly all the recent new varieties are the result of crosses with this plant of robust habit and other good qualities. "This progeny is building up an entire new race, which are making a place for themselves. None of them, however, come white, the most desired color in the world today in a forcing rose. White Killarney blood is no better than pink, so where is the white to come from? The list of modern roses is about as follows: Ophelia, English; Mrs. Aaron Ward, French; Mrs. Sawyer and Lady Alice Stanley, both English, and Mrs. Russell, American, all of one generation. Referring to the plant quarantine, he said there was a clause which permitted the importation of new varieties in small quantities. He looked for greater success in American bred roses in the near future. Referring to roses of today, light and dark pink Killarney and Mrs. Sawyer had run their race. Mrs. Russell is likely to be succeeded by Premier. J. H. Dunlop's new rose will find a place as it does not conflict in color. Maryland is still good. Mrs. Aaron Ward is the best yellow with Sunburst and Mrs. Collette Martinet, next, the latter, while weak stemmed, being a wonderful producer. There is no good red rose. Hadly pays the men who do it well. Milady is largely grown in the west, as is John Cook's red seedling, which has done well in the vicinity of Chicago. Montgomery's new red, Crusader, looks good, it being a wonderfully strong grower. Some one proposed the name, Lucky Strike. "What," said he, "after I have spent 25 years trying to get it?"

The question of stocks for grafting is now becoming acute. They are not to be had in any quantity. Mr. Pierson said his firm had tried roots of Dorothy Perkins, grafting Columbia on them with good success, the plants now growing splendidly. Wichuriana and Rosa multiflora japonica, would, he thought, be satisfactory for grafting or budding outdoor roses. He hoped growers would experiment along these lines and also take up the growing of manetti stocks. They had found the best results with grafting on Perkins by using portions with fibrous roots. Varieties long under cultivation play out, lose vitality and become unprofitable, so that there is necessity, and profit, in a change. They had found the best way to keep up strength and vigor in roses was to plant out on benches rather late and grow close together until late September, when they cut off all wood and got splendid scions. It was, however, a great proposition to get together $80,000 manettias in one season for grafting. With these at $45 per 1,000, only the best scions would do. Resting Double White Killarneys, as Mr. Elliott did Kaiserin, had been found to give wonderful results. In a case where it had been compulsory, from want of coal, the crop, when it came in, was one of the best ever grown. Where to now get baby rambles was a problem as most of the stock had been imported. John Prince claimed they could, if started or grown into 4-inch pots early in the summer, and then planted and watered in hot dry spells, make good 6-inch stock by fall.

C. H. TOTTY CHAMPIONS NEW VARIETIES.

Charles H. Totty agreed with Mr. Pierson that there was no offspring of Killarney. He said constantly crossing cultivated varieties appeared to make them sterile. Crossing back on natural species gave good results. Mrs. Aaron Ward and Sunburst were seedlings from crosses on Austrian briar, Irish roses do not appear to have the vigor they used to. White Killarney is but a sport of the pink, and just as sterile, and as there is no other white, nearly all seedlings come red or pink. There was an almost unlimited demand for outside garden roses which growers would find profitable if they would grow the plants in quantity. It was a mistake to turn down new varieties of forcing roses. New sorts, being succeeded by others, shows progress. He gave an instance of a conservative grower whom he induced to try out a new variety on a rather large scale, which in the September returns paid for the stock, and by December, 70 cents per plant. He had since bought 25,000 Premier. The public are always after something new. The plant embargo will reduce the number of varieties, so growers had best try to grow the new ones and get out of the rut. He believed Killarney was as good as ever, but he had seen fine stock go begging in the New York market, because the public are tired of it. In grafting roses, in his opinion, we have much to learn. Sunburst often does not unite perfectly and often breaks away from the stock. California growers, in grafting, are doing well with outdoor stock, but for forcing roses, it is different.

EARL MANN TELLS OF DIFFICULTIES.

Earl Mann, of the E. G. Hill Co., stated that the demand all over the country for new forcing varieties was wonderful, most growers showing a desire to keep up with the times. Going after new varieties is a lottery. Only two of these, Columbia and Premier, were obtained from 2,000 crosses on Ophelia. There were two white, but neither good enough. They were going back to old Niphetos, and try and work up stems and vigor and retain the color. He spoke of Mr. Hill's work, saying there is scarcely a day passes that he does not make carefully thought out crosses. Three thousand seeds of Columbia and Ophelia crosses had been sown. Only 250 started, and the rest were resown. When hybridizing, Ophelia is nearly always the mother plant.

J. H. DUNLOP URGES HOME PRODUCTION.

John H. Dunlop stated that seeing an advertisement of the Dingee Conard Co. had been the means of his getting into the business. It was some 35 years ago when he bought these first rose plants for his garden. His hybridization had commenced 10 years ago. Working in a haphazard way, he said he crossed on the plants growing on the benches and experimented with Sawyer and Russell in the hope of getting the best qualities of each, and believes he has it in this seedling. Roses can be grown this side of the ocean, in his opinion, and that the record of the past seven years had proved this. The vase of Rose Frank Dunlop had been cut on the Friday previous and were then, Tuesday night, at their best. The co-operation of the trade in the United States and Canada was a source of great satisfaction; it seemed as we were all one people, the boundary line being only imaginary.

W. H. ELLIOTT'S REMINISCENCES.

Wm. H. Elliott, in speaking of his early experiences, told of learning the business with Alexander Montgomery, whom he considered one of the ablest rose growers of the country. In those days of 40 years ago, 50 cents each was obtained for Cornelia Cook and Marechal Niel, length of stem making little difference. There were no seedlings then, only sports, such as Bridesmaid, Waban and the Bride, from Mermet. Bride and Bridesmaid had to give way to Killarney. This latter was the only rose that was turned inside out, that is, the inside of the petals darkest, and which, as they opened, made the rose appear fresher. It is a pity, he said, that we cannot reproduce this feature. Deterioration of roses, he felt, is due to intensive methods of propagation. In grafting, wood was taken in weak time of winter, or cuttings taken at the same time, which is repeated year after year with stock gradually losing vitality. The roses that pay him the best is a house of Kaiserin, in which the same plants had been growing for 20 years. He thought this year they had given him the finest stock he had ever cut, stems running 36 inches long, with splendid flowers. They are rested each winter with Easter as the first crop. The successful grower, in his opinion, is the man with the best judgment in picking a winner. To grow just a few for trial, of this or that variety, was not practical. Make up your mind as to the best, and then plant not less than a house, so that you can study it, with no other variety to interfere. Marry yourself to your choice, and learn all its likes and dislikes. He thought young stock of all kinds of plants should be bred from dormant stock, citing success in this way with chrysanthemums. He believed houses of roses should be grown for cuttings alone, and that it would pay.

FARENWALD CREDITS CO-OPERATION.

Adolph Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa., spoke of the great strides from the Bon Silene and Safrano to the magnificent stock of today. There was, and always had been, great co-operation and helpfulness among rose growers. John N. May in the early days, and others, always gave freely of their experience to help beginners.

At the close the various speakers were given a rousing vote of thanks.

Flowers or Candy.

The following reprinted from the Retail Public Ledger is self explanatory and is only a fore-runner of what will eventually crop up throughout the country as most of us have seen it in similar lines:

"Hazleton, Pa.—Druggists and candy dealers here are cutting into the florists' trade with their campaign to induce young men to buy 'her' confectionery. Most of their cards have the laconic line: 'She can eat the candy.'"

Our publicity campaign has already caused many lines of industry to sit up and take notice, even more than it has some of the florists, who from their silence, have not heard the call for more funds which would be more constructive for bigger things florally than we have yet seen. If we can continue on present lines, our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," will do more for greater upbuilding of the flower industry than all else, providing we give it the proper support. Lend your ear to the movement and see if you can hear something about that which was started, and if not, do something to help the hearing that will be beneficial to yourself, by contributing to the cause that will be the greatest factor toward building a bigger and better field than we even now enjoy. Do it now.

Cornell University Winter Courses.

Now that the country is emerging from war-time activities and we are again resuming a normal life, there is a large call for experienced men in commercial floriculture and gardeners on private estates. The department of floriculture, of the College of Agriculture at Cornell University, is endeavoring to equip men to meet the call by offering unusually attractive short courses next winter, beginning November 5 and closing with farmers' week, which is about the second week in February.

This is a rare opportunity for young men, especially the sons of florists who have had considerable practical experience, to get a scientific training at comparatively low cost. For these men especially interested in commercial floriculture, there are given courses in greenhouse construction and heating, the general principles which govern greenhouse practice, and the methods followed in the best cultural practices in growing florists' crops. Those students who desire a certificate of proficiency are required to take in addition to the courses mentioned, courses in agricultural chemistry, soils and plant diseases. Courses in plant breeding, injurious insects, extension work and rural improvement may also be selected. Certificates of proficiency are not given, however, until the student has subsequently spent a full year in floricultural work.

For outdoor gardeners there are special courses in gardening and garden flowers as well as a large list of general courses which are necessary for proficiency in work in parks or on private estates. There are also courses specially planned for those who are interested in growing flowers for the home in an amateur way.

Now is the time to make plans for next winter, and the secretary of the College of Agriculture at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., or Professor E. A. White, department of floriculture, will be glad to give any information desired regarding the courses.

HEAVY SOCIAL AND WEDDING DEMAND.

Trade in this city is in very good shape, due to the large amount of social functions and weddings. Funeral work has been keeping up steadily also. This continual demand leaves the market in a very healthy condition. The great outdoor cut of spring stock is also over. This also has strengthened the market for all good indoor items. Roses, while in large enough supply for all seasonable demands, are not in such heavy cut as a week or two ago. There is not, however, any difference in the prices. American Beauties and Hadley are very fine and in ample supply. The same is true of every other variety. Outdoor Cecile Brunners are very plentiful. If the present weather continues, we may expect Ulrich Brunners from out of doors in a short time. This rose grows to perfection in this vicinity out of doors and is very popular. It requires quite an extensive acreage to supply the demand for this market. There is a heavy cut of carnations. White and light pink move fairly well, but the call for red varieties is very slow. The street peddlers dispose of the greater part of the cut of the last named color. Sweet peas are coming in rather freely, due to the warm weather. Some excellent stock is being received and it all meets a ready market at good figures. Outdoor grown stock is much the best and will continue to be so from this time forward. Herbaceous peonies are being handled in large quantities. Many of the varieties are of the finest quality and they all bring fine prices. Spanish and Japanese irises are being given much prominence by the retailers this week. Many beautiful windows have been shown. The Japanese varieties are very popular and many are being grown for this market. Violets are still hanging on, but are not in much demand. Cattleyas are still arriving in large numbers. The unusually excellent quality of the stock commands very steady figures. Gardenias are slowly becoming more plentiful, but prices are firm for all stock. There is still quite a cut of tulips, but returns for this stock are unsteady. Snapdragon is coming in freely and is one of the best selling flowers in the market.

NOTES.

The following federal plant pathologists will represent the department of agriculture at the Riverside horticultural convention, May 26-31, under the auspices of the state commission of horticulture, according to advices received by Commissioner George H. Hecke from the bureau of plant industry: Professor W. T. Swingle, Professor S. C. Mason, A. D. Shamel, Professor W. W. MacKee and Dr. George W. Reed.

The Lynch Nursery Co. is cutting several houses of first grade snapdragon. Most of this stock is shipped and very little of it reaches this market. Keystone, Nelrose and Rainsburg's Pink are the leading varieties with this firm. They were the first to grow them here under glass and have had great success with them.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. have had a very busy week with decorations. They are showing some of the finest cattleyas in the city at the present time. This is one of their leading specialties and they handle a large quantity of this favorite flower. Mr. Pelicano has been one of the heaviest buyers of Victory bonds in the trade.

The Art Floral Co. made a beautiful display of herbaceous peonies last week. Immense vases of all the leading varieties grown here were featured and they attracted much attention from the growers and others in the trade. Manager P. Vincent Matraia says he is well satisfied with the way business is keeping up.

At Avensino Bros.' store on Geary street, one may always find a very choice collection of flowering plants. The rhododendrons that we saw there this week were worthy of special mention, owing to the size and color. They tell us plant business has kept up steadily with them since Easter week.

Almon Wheeler, of the Reuhl-Wheeler Nursery, of San Jose, was a visitor this week. His firm had a most successful season and sold out on most lines completely. They are planning to increase their acreage again this coming season. He told us the demand for roses exceeded the supply.

At Albert O. Stein's store on Sutter street, we found the force very busy. This beautiful place is always worthy of a visit and some of the best grown stock in town can always be seen here. They usually carry a large supply of foliage and decorative plants.

W. B. Clarke, manager of the San Jose branch of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, says his firm has done a very satisfactory business this spring. Many thousand azaleas and rhododendrons were disposed of, as well as a large stock of evergreen.

Norman Pollard, proprietor of Pollard's Flower Shop, at 259 California street, says he is well satisfied with trade since opening up his store. His place is not large, but is tastefully arranged and he carries a nice stock of both plants and flowers.

Roseville, Calif., held its annual rose show last week. Many thousands of blooms were used. The attendance was satisfactory. Quite a lot of stock was shipped from this city to supply the show, especially the newer varieties of roses.

J. A. Axell, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., says the orders placed for stock for Mothers' day were much in excess of those of last season. His firm handled a very large cut of roses from their greenhouses at Burlingame.

F. C. Jaeger & Son report a steady demand for orchids and gardenias for weddings. They had several important functions during the week, which called for large quantities of these flowers.

Kenneth S. Murray, of Redwood, is sending in a large cut of fine roses these days. He says funeral work has kept his force busy right along.

Benjamin M. Joseph has returned from his honeymoon, and is receiving the congratulations of his host of friends.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

MOTHERS' DAY CLEANS UP MARKET.

Mothers' day business was wonderful and took up everything that came into the market. As a result, there was a decided shortage the early part of this week. However, before the end the receipts will be heavier and ample to take care of all needs. Roses are in heavy supply and can care for all immediate demands. Carnations are fairly plentiful, although they ran short of the demand last week. Sweet peas are in a good supply. Excellent Easter lilies, rubrums and callas may be had. Peonies are in the market and are becoming fairly plentiful. Gladioli are selling well. Cape Jessamine from the south came into the market last week. Other offerings are snapdragons, stocks, outdoor lily of the valley, iris and marguerites.

NOTES.

The William Murphy Company reports that their Mothers' day business was the best that they have ever had for that day.

The Florists' Society met at H. W. Sheppard's place on Monday evening.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in some excellent iris and stocks.

Visitors: Miss Mary Stockley, Portsmouth, O.; H. Cheeseman, representing Ralph M. Ward & Co., New York; G. W. Frisch, Jr., Dayton, O.; Martin Weber, Brookville, Ind., and H. G. Haverkamp, Rising Sun, Ind. H.

SHORTAGE MARKS MOTHERS' DAY.

While inclement weather during the last few days of the week curtailed the supply of flowers, white carnations were extremely scarce with a heavy demand. Wholesalers were all oversold and it was not difficult to dispose of other offerings and there was little attention paid evidently to the message of Miss Jarvis to the local press to purchase thrift stamps instead of flowers.

NOTES.

There is more or less building among the growers in this vicinity. Henry Witt, of Silver Springs, Md., has practically doubled his glass and C. L. Jenkins & Sons will start improvements at their range as soon as necessary labor is available. Lieut. Clifford H. Jenkins, has arrived from overseas and will return to business upon discharge from the army.

Many local florists are getting back to a full crew basis with the return of former employes from service. Among those returning are Robert Murdock, Jesse E. Baker and James R. Daly of Gude Bros. Co.; Clyde Sauer, of the George C. Shaffer force and Harry West and his brother, Raymond, of Suitland.

Detroit.*MOTHERS' DAY BEST EVER.

Mothers' day business was declared by all florists to be the best ever experienced. Preparations were made for a record breaking day and none were disappointed except possibly some dealers whose trade is chiefly in pot plants, for these were in meager supply in comparison with the exceptionally brisk call for them. All seasonable stock available sold, both cut flowers and plants, and many shops were sold out long before the demand ceased. The day and its significance to everyone was well advertised, and in the florists' efforts in this, they were ably supported by the daily press, the pulpit, the schools and many social organizations. Banners carried by every florist delivery auto, and across the windows of all florist shops proclaimed the day in an effective way. Weather conditions during the whole of the week or 10 days previous were very unfavorable to the growers, cloudy, cold and rainy, combined with off crop conditions with some growers gave poor promise of a supply to meet the certain demand previously indicated. Prices accordingly soared high, but dealers did not hesitate to yield, nor did the public, who more freely than ever before paid the prices asked and satisfied their eagerness to give tribute to Mother.

J. F. S.

Milwaukee, Wis.*MOTHERS' DAY MAKES WONDERFUL.

Words cannot describe the excitement on the part of the local retailers in trying to supply the unusually heavy demand for Mothers' day. Everyone, young and old, seemed to take more notice of the day than in any previous year and with ideal weather on both Saturday and Sunday, the volume of sales was far ahead of expectations. The supply of carnations at $12 per 100 was extremely limited and it soon became a question not of variety but anything that was a flower was eagerly sought. Plants also came in for their share of popularity, especially where they were available in the brighter shades. To say the least, Mothers' day business was far ahead of any holiday thus far this season, including Christmas and Easter.

E. O.

Columbus, O.*ROSES IN LEAD FOR MOTHERS' DAY.

Lack of sunshine had the effect of making stocks skimpy for Mothers' day. This was offset to some extent by good prices and the fact that any kind of a flower sold, even to geranium blooms. With carnations short, roses took the lead in volume of sales, but there was almost a complete cleanup on everything. In view of the heavy mortality from the epidemic during the past winter, florists look forward to a record-breaking Memorial day business. Peonies will be abundant if a switch to high temperature does not cause them to come in too early. At present, roses and snapdragons are the most conspicuous features of display. Demand for house plants has slackened, but there has been very little with which to satisfy it. Bedding is being held back by the tardy season. Geraniums and some of the other usual standbys will be scarce.

NOTES.

The Neil Floral Shop, located in one corner of the Neil House lobby, opened for business during the past week. The color scheme is buff and rose, with all fixtures new and up-to-date, as is also the stock of baskets and other accessories. A very handsome effect has been realized. Though not partitioned off from the lobby, the shop has a street entrance of its own, which with its ample working space in the rear, makes it a real store and not merely a flower stand. Herman Kropp is proprietor, and assisted by two clerks will give it his personal attention. He is owner of the Cottage Rose Garden, one of the oldest ranges in the city.

In honor of the Rainbow Division, just returned from overseas, and which paraded in this city, May 10, a number of the leading dealers contributed the flowers for a seven-foot floral rainbow and bore the expense of making and placing it in position on the memorial arch which stands in Capitol square. A considerable trade was realized in the sale of wreaths and flowers on the order of friends of dead soldiers as decorations for the arch.

The Munk Floral Company has received from the architects, plans for the complete reconstruction of their retail store room in the Huntington Bank building. The work will be done sometime during the summer. These quarters have been occupied by them for the past eight years and have proved to be very valuable. The new store will be second in appearance to none in this city.

Toledo.*ADVERTISING BRINGS BIG RETURNS.

The second Sunday in May, which a few years past was just an ordinary day in the month in the eyes of the florists, was certainly a red letter event this year. Flower shops throughout the city cleaned up with a completeness that was most gratifying to all concerned and despite the difficulties of obtaining sufficient stock to meet the demand, a substantial gain was made. The good day's business must in the main be attributed to the co-operative advertising done by the retail florists in the daily papers. Wholesalers and growers, with great shortsightedness, refused to help the retailers promote the day. However, the fact is apparent to anybody that this is a day that will require educational publicity each year if it is to remain a good flower day. Telegraph orders were more numerous than ever before. The weather during the week was cloudy and cool which held back stock of all kinds. The average florist was nevertheless able to gather together quite a presentable stock of cut flowers and plants. Carnations were of course scarce and some retailers, rather than charge much higher prices did not handle any. They found that this flower was not necessary for a record-breaking trade. Roses were fairly plentiful of fair quality and were pushed. Cloudy weather held back local sweet peas. Plants were none too plentiful and cleaned out completely. There was a fair supply of hydrangeas and they enjoyed a brisk sale.

NOTES.

Max Spanner had a splendid stock of roses and plants and states Mothers' day was the best he has ever experienced. He contributed generously to the advertising campaign and attributes his big business to the publicity. He recently purchased a new delivery car.

Schramm Brothers advertised the day heavily, had a great stock of cut flowers and plants, and cleaned up. This firm does not believe in handling carnations at prevailing prices and made out very nicely without them.

Feniger did not handle carnations, but succeeded in gathering a tremendous supply of roses, which he had no difficulty in disposing of at good prices.

Other florists reporting a fine trade are Metz & Bateman, S. N. Peck, Paul Timm, A. G. Imoberstag, Scottwood Greenhouse, and Miss Helen Patten.

Wichita, Kan.*MOTHERS' DAY CROWDS EASTER RECORDS.

Mothers' day set a new record for volume, and while exact figures are not available, will probably surpass the Easter just past. Conditions for retail selling were good, and the number of buyers was legion. Prices were about the same as at Easter. There was a heavy call for carnations, although the buying public is gradually getting away from this flower exclusively in this connection. They retailed for $1.50 to $2 per dozen, and roses, $1.50 to $10. Peonies were in moderate supply, selling for $3 per dozen. Pot plants were good property, even pansies and geraniums finding good sale, while fuchsias, daisies, pelargoniums, longiflorums and callas and even well filled hanging baskets, found much favor as something to send mother that she could keep awhile.

NOTES.

W. H. Culp & Co. cut some fine gladioli, which cleaned up at $5 per dozen. Mrs. Culp was struck by an automobile about 10 days ago, resulting in an ugly scalp wound and a broken bone in the right arm near the wrist. However, except for the time spent at the hospital for the surgical care of the injuries, she has not missed any time at the store, and is getting along nicely.

Chas. P. Mueller was in for Mothers' day with a fine cut of carnations, over 20,000, and is smiling about it. He was in general charge of the street decorations for the demonstration and exercises in honor of the returning soldiers who paraded last week, and has been comfortably busy.

F. Kuechenmeister and his family enjoyed a visit from their soldier boys. Emil and Walter, who were among those who visited the city last week, after which the soldiers went to Camp Funston to be discharged.

C. A. Rose reports business for Mothers' day the best ever, with everything cleaned up.

C.

Boston.*MOTHERS' DAY BELOW STANDARD.

Mothers' day business was a disappointment, falling short of last year's mark. Stock was plentiful and prices were held firm until a heavy storm broke and the business was at a standstill. The average price of carnations was $12 per 100 with sweet peas quoted at $2 to $4. Roses were offered at reasonable figures. All of the stores are now working overtime preparing for Memorial day, which it is believed will set a new record this year.

NOTES.

The florists' club will hold its first dinner at the Parker house, May 20. The speaker of the evening will be Seaman Ryan, United States Navy.

At John J. O'Brien's store business has been unusually good. Many orders have already been received for Memorial day.

Henry M. Robinson reports a good advance trade for Memorial day in both natural and artificial flowers.

Frank Edgar is now devoting his time to delphiniums, calceolarias and bedding plants.

W. W. Edgar & Co. report the arrival of a large importation of boxwood.

S. K. G.

LAUREL, DEL.—L. M. Smith & Co., the well known local florists, did some very effective advertising for Mothers' day, calling attention to the limited supply of white carnations and consequent high prices, and suggesting the fact that a box of sweet peas with one or two carnations would carry out the idea of remembrance equally as well.

Florists' Club of Washington, D. C.

At the May meeting of the above organization, business, pleasure and patriotism combined to make it one of the best gatherings in many months. The house committee on quarters recommended that the offer of a commodious room Ed. S. Schmid had fitted up be accepted and the thanks of the club be tendered him for his generosity. An entertainment committee composed of George C. Shaffer, chairman; Fred H. Kramer, Harry B. Lewis, Louis E. Hoover and Walter Bottgerm was entrusted with the task of perfecting arrangements for the outing to be held in July. Seven applications for membership were received. Some excellent Laddie carnations, grown by Albert Campbell of Philadelphia, Pa., were displayed by Otto Baur, who pointed out the main features of this variety. A letter of thanks was ordered sent to Mr. Campbell through the secretary.

Following the business session, refreshments and entertainment occupied the balance of the evening, the former consisting of Salvation Army doughnuts and coffee and cigars as an aid to enlisting the help of the florists in the drive for funds to be made by that organization during the week of May 19. Jack Connolly, secretary to Congressman Carter of Massachusetts, until he entered the armed service, was present and told of some of the engagements in which the troops of the District of Columbia took part, while even more to the point were his stories of horticulturists he met in France and Spain. A vaudeville show staged by Privates Nolan and Rivers was well received.

Following a short talk on the work of the Salvation Army, a committee consisting of William Marche, H. Harper Hetherington and Otto Baur was appointed to secure donations of flowers to be sold on the streets by the Salvation Army.

MOTHERS' DAY SUPPLY INSUFFICIENT.

The Mothers' day business this year was immense, but the florists could have made it a much greater holiday had they been able to obtain sufficient stock with which to meet the demand. The call was almost overwhelming. The florists' club used large, co-operative advertisements in the daily papers, and several retailers also carried individual ads, but such an influx of business was not anticipated. Plant combination baskets met with a fine sale. There was an unusually good plant line, which included handsome white and pink hydrangeas, American Beauty plants, Dorothy Perkins and Tausendschon rambler, marguerites, pelargoniums, pansy plants, and begonias. When the supply of carnations was exhausted, which happened before Sunday morning, the public took roses, and when these were gone, blooming plants sold well. Since Sunday, funeral work has been moderate. Many orders are being booked for June weddings, and the florists are now busy preparing for a record Memorial day business.

NOTES.

The Flick Floral Co. will remodel and add to their greenhouses to quite an extent. Plans are being formed, and the work is expected to be begun very shortly. It is planned to expend about $5,000 in the extension of their range, and the firm will specialize in growing Columbia, Sawyer, Ophelia, and other popular varieties of roses for the ever-increasing trade.

Edgar Wenninghoff reports the Mothers' day demand very brisk. He completely sold out of cut roses and carnations, but had a fine supply of blooming plants. Rhododendrons were notably good.

Carl Hagenburger, of West Mentor, O., shipped some fine cut flowers and plants to this market for the Mothers' day trade, including hydrangea plants of unusual beauty.

A fine lot of orchids was cut by the W. J. & M. S. Vesey greenhouses for Mothers' day. They also had large crops of carnations and roses.

The Freese-Knecht Co. showed fine blooming plants, and report this one of the greatest flower days of the season.

Peonies were offered at the A. J. Lanternier store, and these, as well as other cut flowers were all sold out.

Handsome Rambler roses of large sizes sold with a vim at the Doswell Floral Co.'s store. H. K.

Providence, R. I.

LIMITED MOTHERS' DAY STOCK CLEANS UP.

Trade during the past week has been unusually good. Floral work has been in good demand and all stock has moved rapidly. With the arrival of Mothers' day, prices advanced considerably, but it had little effect on the buying, as everything available met with good demand. The sales for the day were of good volume, but would have been better if weather had been favorable. Rain fell all day on both Saturday and Sunday and interfered somewhat with buying. Sunday, however, brought many small purchases which cleaned up much of the stock. White flowers were not as much sought as in former years and there was little trouble in supplying those who insisted upon them.

NOTES.

There are many temporary shops springing up that plan to handle wax and magnolia wreaths for Memorial day. Local department stores are also preparing to enter this line of the business and this may destroy the wax flower business for future similar occasions.

One Attleboro florist disposed of 1,000 white carnations for Mothers' day, paying the highest price received for them in this city.

Jensen, the Florist, featured pansies in large numbers for Mothers' day. He plans to grow a fine lot of outdoor stock during the summer.

Macnair, the Florist, has invested extensively in souvenir thermometers. They are going fast and are very popular. H. A. T.

Newark, N. J.

In addition to a fine Easter trade, Philips Bros. have recently had a number of good wedding decorations. For one, they had in addition to the decoration, two dinner arrangements, one at the Robert Trent hotel, Newark, the other at the New Pennsylvania hotel, New York, the whole running well up in three figures.

William Zois, who also has a store at Lenox avenue and 125th street, New York, spends part of his time at his Newark store, known as the "Washington Florist."

We learn that James Plunkett, formerly of the firm of Connelly & Plunkett, has engaged in other pursuits.

The Rosery Floral Co. reports good Easter business and fair trade every day. A. F. F.

Horticultural Society of New York.

The fall exhibition of this society will be held October 30-November 2 at the American Museum of Natural History. The announcement is made thus early so that those desiring to exhibit may have ample time in which to prepare. Schedules will be ready shortly, and may be had by addressing the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York City.

OBITUARY.

Michael Weiland.

Michael Weiland, employed in the vicinity of Chicago as a rose grower for many years, died May 13 from the effects of nicotine fumes inhaled while spraying stock in the greenhouses of the Weiland-Risch Company at Evanston. He had been ill for three weeks as a result of the poisoning. The trade probably will know him best as the brother of one of the proprietors of the Weiland-Risch Co. He was 41 years old and the beloved husband of Margaret, father of Mathilda and Leo, son of John and the late Elizabeth Weiland, and brother of John P., Mrs. Frank Pauley, Nicholas, Frank, John and the late Catherine Weiland. The funeral will be held May 16 at 9:30 a. m. from the late residence, 6411 Ridge avenue, to St. Henry's church. Burial at St. Henry's cemetery.

M. J. Wragg.

M. J. Wragg, pioneer Iowa nurseryman, died at his home in Des Moines, May 3, at the age of 61 years, following an illness of several weeks. He had been a respected resident of that city for the past 18 years, being previously connected with his father, at one time a well known grower of nursery stock at Waukee, Ia., and a past president of the Iowa State Horticultural Society. The deceased is survived by a widow, three sons and three daughters.

E. S. Carriker.

E. S. Carriker, proprietor of a range at Raymond, Ill., one of the best known florists in that section and for many years a respected citizen of the community, died at his home in that city, April 30, age 61 years. He had been in poor health for several years but his condition was not regarded as serious until a few months ago. He was a prominent Odd Fellow and Woodman. He is survived by a widow, two sons, one daughter and a sister.

TORONTO, ONT.—Mrs. H. G. Dillemath and children, who have been enjoying an extended visit in California, have returned home.

VALLEY CITY, N. D.—Leonard Weeks, formerly of Detroit, Minn., who has returned from overseas service, is now with the Valley City Greenhouse.

CEDAR FALLS, IA.—Joseph Bancroft & Sons have issued an attractive illustrated folder with suggestions and prices of plants, cut blooms, etc., appropriate for May flower days.

SALEM, ORE.—The range of Carl Reuf consisting of 30,000 feet of glass has been purchased by C. B. Clancy and will be conducted in connection with the flower shop now operated by him.

HARTFORD, CONN.—Richard H. Phillips has been appointed temporary receiver for George F. Lane and Andrew W. Welch, co-partners in the florist business at 18 Asylum street, in bankruptcy.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Mrs. George Togo, wife of a florist at 1615 West Washington street, was robbed of $53 recently when a burglar entered the house in the guise of a customer for flowers growing in the yard.

SAC CITY, IA.—C. H. Hollied, of Eldora, Ia., with many years' experience as a grower, has purchased the range of C. A. Nokes and will take possession June 1, at which time the former proprietor and his family will move to California.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST started the campaign which made Mothers' day a special time to buy and give flowers.

To forget mother's flowers on Mothers' day is now quite as unpardonable as the omission of similar tokens of love and esteem on her wedding anniversary or birthday.

Correction.

The Cleveland, O., office of the Lord & Burnham Co., has been reopened in the Frederick building, 2063 East Fourth street, instead of the Swetland building, as erroneously reported in our issue of May 3.

Mothers' Day Trade.

Reports received covering the 1919 Mothers' day trade indicate a satisfactory increase in volume of business in most cases as compared with last year, deserved credit being freely given to the "Say it With Flowers" publicity of the Society of American Florists, and as in former seasons, where local advertising was employed individually and in a cooperative way, the results were still more gratifying. In almost every instance, flowers, especially carnations, were in supply far short of requirements, the limit of trade being governed by the amount of available stock. Some shops, rather than discourage buying where carnation prices were unusually high, offered none for sale, and found that roses and other blooms were readily accepted, and as in former years plants were also popular. Observance of the day in many churches with appropriate services was more general than ever before, resulting in increased interest. As has been demonstrated many times, well directed publicity proved its value, as in the cities where the trade worked concertedly, and took advantage of all the possibilities the day offered, the amount of business compared favorably with Easter and Christmas.

Rasmussens Honored.

One does not see much in the newspapers about Denmark, possibly because it has no Bolsheviviks. If we may believe cable messages, the Bolsheviviks are now co-star performers with the Peace delegates. But Denmark has reared many good men and some of them have made their homes in this country. All florists know, or should know, Anders Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind., president-elect of the State Florists' Association, of Indiana, whose portrait appeared in our issue of January 25, page 46. Mr. Rasmussen was born in Denmark in 1870 and started to learn the florist trade when 15 years of age. He came to the United States in 1893 and engaged in business in 1897, the establishment at that time embracing 5,000 feet of glass. The range today consists of 250,000 feet of modern construction. The establishment has survived three hail storms and one major as well as one minor cyclone.

Also of the same name, and prominent, is N. A. Rasmussen who was recently elected president of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society for the ensuing year and who is a well-known and highly respected citizen of that state.

And now another Rasmussen has been honored. Governor Sproul of Pennsylvania has named Professor Frederick Rasmussen as secretary of agriculture for that state. He is widely known as a writer and speaker on agricultural subjects and has much to do with the national agricultural activities of the council of defence. He won the especial commendation of Howard Heinz, the state food administrator, to whom he was of great assistance. Prof. Rasmussen had practical farming experience in Denmark and in Iowa, where he resided in his youth. He was graduated from Iowa College in the agricultural course and taught there for a time, afterward going to New Hampshire, where he was in charge of the state farm work, coming from there to Pennsylvania State College, where he has been the professor of dairy husbandry and has very successfully managed the large dairy establishments of the college. Gov. Sproul recently said of him: "I consider Prof. Rasmussen a particularly able man, with tact, force and industry, and I believe that with the ideas that he has in mind he can be of great service to the department of agriculture."

Luxuries Booming.

According to a well-known authority on commerce, four major lines of business activity report great prosperity—jewelry, musical instruments, automobile and tobacco—non-essentials so-called. Business in general seems positively on the eve of a great expansion, awaiting only the final signature to the peace treaty before starting in dead earnest. This condition is but a reflection of the great wealth created by war wages and war profits. Proof is seen in a recent statement from Washington that the war had made 17,000 new millionaires as indicated from income tax returns. But it is not the millionaire alone who is huying luxuries. The wage earner is enjoying spending powers before undreamed of. He it is who is back of the present extraordinary activity in the trades above mentioned and his number is legion. He can deny himself high cost flour easier than he can go without tires for his motor, the latest record for his phonograph, etc., and just now he is buying with astonishing prodigality. At present, the luxuries merchants seems to be the only ones enjoying a boom, but it is expected that slowly, but steadily, our great manufacturers will rise to the golden opportunity within their grasp until all departments of industry catch the step.

State Parks.

The great agricultural state of Iowa has appealed for a national park in every county and has mapped out the sites. This piece of picturesque country, large or small, may be only a bit of a creek valley, but it is to be a preserve for birds and natural vegetation. Although all other states have valuable farm lands, there is hardly a county but has its small section of rugged land unfit for farming which might be a natural preserve, picnic ground and state park for community meetings. It is evident, therefore, that there is something to do among the people in the various states. Let us wake up and save the ravines and creek banks from the rubbish heap. Artificial pleasures will not make a public-spirited or contented people. We must go back to reverential regard for nature and to plain living and high thinking.

Club Meetings Next Week.

[Secretaries of clubs and societies are requested to send change in time, date and place of meetings.]

Orange, N. J., May 19, 8 p. m.—New Jersey Floricultural Society at J. O. W. A. M. hall, George W. Strang, secretary, 84 Jackson street, Orange.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR MOTHERS' DAY.

The demand for stock for Mothers' day was the heaviest on record, and everything in all lines cleaned up so completely that many of the wholesale houses did not have a flower left Saturday evening, May 10, when the stores closed for the day. The shipping trade was surprisingly large, and it was impossible to fill anywhere near all the orders that were booked. A great improvement in the weather the latter part of last week brought on a good supply of stock for the city buyers, who were waiting to take it as fast as it arrived. Carnations were exceedingly scarce at $10 to $12 per 100, and at even higher prices in the fancier grades. American Beauty roses sold fast at high prices, and the same holds true for roses in general, which cleaned up rapidly at the advertised quotations. Sweet peas were good property and brought high figures, but were in short supply. Orchids and gardenias were on the short side, and the same holds true for lily of the valley, which was scarce, notwithstanding the outdoor shipments that were received. Snapdragons were quite a factor in the market and found ready buyers. Gladioli cleaned up quickly at satisfactory figures, and the demand for peonies, which were more plentiful than in other years for this occasion, easily took care of all that were offered. Peonies never brought such high prices before, but at that were big value for the money. Lilac cleaned up early. Daisies had a heavy sale and so did stocks, calendulas, irises, pansies, tulips, narcissi, lupines, jonquils, statice, mignonette, forget-me-nots and other miscellaneous seasonable flowers not already mentioned here. The retailers all enjoyed a wonderful business, and like the wholesalers, cleaned up all the stock they had to offer at an early hour. The daily papers all gave a large amount of space to Mothers' day in the form of write-ups and cartoons, which, with the local advertising that was done, had much to do with the wonderful results that were realized. This city celebrated Mothers' day with a unique parade on May 11, when the gold-star women reviewed the marchers. In the morning, "mother" was eulogized from 1,500 pulpits, and everywhere one went a flower of some kind was worn in some shape or form by men, women and children. The parade held in the afternoon was one of the grandest tributes to the day that was ever witnessed in the city and consisted of over 40 bands, headed by the police and followed by many military organizations. It would take over a column to fully describe the great parade, which was one of the greatest forms of advertising that the trade could probably receive and money possibly could not buy. Everyone was happy over the success of the Victory loan, when both the country and the city oversubscribed it to the amount of six billion dollars. This city went over the top by 50 million and the trade by many thousands. Prosperity is in the air everywhere, and those who are planning on a large Memorial day trade, will have to get busy and place their orders immediately, for the demand promises to be heavier than ever. Stock appears to be in good supply for the occasion, but there is no doubt in anyone's mind that there will not be any great surplus to speak of. Play safe and order early. Look over the advertisements in this issue and send in your orders immediately.

NOTES.

Morris H. Le Vine's many friends here were pleased to learn that he was back on the job with Lion & Co., New York, when he called on them last week. He was wounded severely in action on the French front when a piece of shrapnel several inches long and about an inch thick struck him on the right leg fracturing the bone. A suit asking that the Concordia association be enjoined from leasing a building now in the cemetery in Forest Park to a flower store was filed in the Circuit Court May 10. The bill states that A. H. Schneider opened a flower shop and greenhouse in the cemetery last month. It further states that the cemetery was incorporated in 1884 "for the purchase and sale of real estate for burial purposes only."

Schiller's two stores cleaned up everything they had to offer for Mother's day in all lines. George Asmus attributes the strong demand to the extensive advertising that was done for this occasion and advises everyone to contribute a share of their profits to both the local and national campaigns now being conducted.

Reports that recent high water in the Desplaines river had submerged graves in Waldheim cemetery are denied by Superintendent Jacob Schwab. That part of the cemetery exposed to flood has been properly protected and with the water receding during the past few days, any danger that may have threatened has passed.

The Alpha Floral Co. made a great showing of stock for Mothers' day and cleaned up entirely. Manager Chronis says that his telegraph business was the heaviest he ever experienced since he has been in business and that orders kept pouring in from all sections of the country for delivery here and in this vicinity.

When the steering gear of an automobile driven by Frank Fortman, a Rogers Park florist, became unmanageable, May 5, the machine swerved to the sidewalk, injuring a pedestrian.

Local shippers of merchandise criticize the American Railway Express as being in a general state of chaos. It is said that delay in delivery of shipments has become intolerable.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. subscribed for over $29,000 worth of Victory bonds, which does not include the personal subscription of August Poehlmann which helped to put Morton Grove over the top. This firm has just added two new trucks to its delivery service and purchased 30 acres of land in Morton Grove.

H. B. Kennicott was more than satisfied with Kennicott Bros. Co.'s business for Mothers' day, which was the best on record. A large quantity of peonies from the firm's farms at Villa Ridge cleaned up completely at high prices and came in handy for the occasion.

Pte. Peter F. Mahon, formerly of THE AMERICAN FLORIST office staff, now with the American Expeditionary Forces, writing from Tours, says "it is sure some town to spend a furlough in, but it is not Chicago."

Ronsley, the East Jackson boulevard florist, reports his Mothers' day trade as the best ever with the total sales exceeding all expectations.

John Muir had a big Mothers' day trade with a particularly heavy call for plants. A cleanup in both cut flowers and plants is reported.

A. Miller, president of the American Bulb Co., left this week for San Francisco, from where he will sail for Japan, May 20.

H. C. Rowe reports that his cash business for Mothers' day was greater at his East Madison street store than it was at Easter.

Lubliner & Trinz, formerly well known florists, now moving picture theater owners, subscribed $100,000 for Victory Bonds.

Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, reports an excellent Mothers' day trade with an early clean-up in stock.

Julius Dilloff, representing Werthelmer Bros., New York, called on the trade here this week.

Mrs. George Gobel has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of her father, John Schaffer, whose death occurred last week. Mrs. Gobel will probably be remembered best through her connection with Bassett & Washburn, where she was employed as stenographer for many years.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. received several large shipments of peonies this week, which leads them to believe that their growers will be right at the height of their cut for Memorial day. The Mothers' day sales at this establishment were the best ever.

Zech & Mann cleaned up completely in all lines of stock for Mothers' day when the total sales for the week established a new record. Mrs. Allie Zech visited the store for the first time this week since her operation.

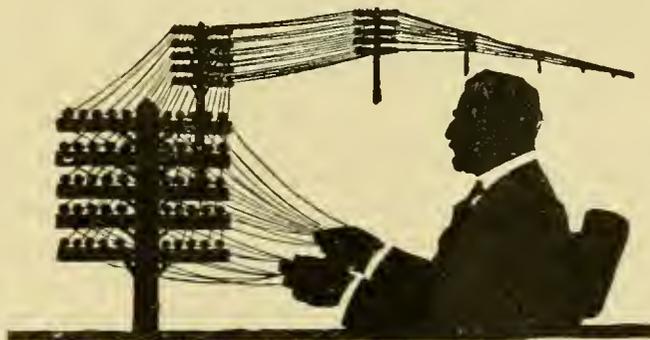

Bassett & Washburn never experienced such a brisk call for stock as they did for Mothers' day, when everything sold like hot-cakes. Roses, especially, were in heavy demand at this establishment.

Paul Klingsporn says that the demand for stock was so heavy for Mothers' day at the Chicago Flower Growers' Association store that an early cleanup in all lines was experienced.

Erne & Co. had several good sized shipments of peonies and lilac for Mothers' day which added to their regular line of stock made their Mothers' day trade the best ever.

C. L. Washburn says that the Hinsdale florists had such a heavy call for stock for Mothers' day that it was impossible to handle all the customers. William Hansen is the latest addition to the office force at E. C. Amling Co.'s store.

The John Kruchten Co. received their first large shipments of peonies this week.

Miss Olga Tonner was unable to be at O. A. & L. A. Tonner's store during the Mothers' day rush, owing to an ulcerated tooth that caused her considerable pain. The business was taken care of properly, however, by her sister and Henry Arnold, who worked like beavers to handle the rush.

Percy Jones, Inc., never did such a large Mothers' day business as this year, when the total sales were most encouraging and greater than expected. Some of the finest sweet peas seen in this market for some time were a leader at this house for this occasion.

Miss Marguerite McNulty, who has charge of Peter Reinberg's office reports that her brother "Don", who was with the American troops in France, has arrived safely in New York. Her brother Archie, who also saw service abroad, is on his way home.

A. Lange had all the business that he could conveniently handle for Mothers' day and was seen in the wholesale market as late as 9 p. m. in search of stock to fill all his orders. His East Madison street store was filled at all times with customers.

N. J. Wietor was enthusiastic over Wietor Brothers' business for Mothers' day, which was a record-breaker and exceeded all expectations. This firm sold their large cuts of roses and carnations as fast as they reached the store.

W. K. Partridge, with the W. W. Barnard Co., has been seriously ill the past week, but is improving somewhat at this writing. His condition for a time was so critical that his two sons were called here from Cincinnati, O.

Miss Edna Frauenfelder is pleased with business at C. Frauenfelder's store on West Madison street, which she is in charge of, and says that the demand for Mothers' day was exceptionally heavy.

Victor Bergman says that O. J. Friedman never filled so many telegraph orders for a holiday before as he did for Mothers' day this year. It was the best ever was the report at this establishment.

The A. L. Randall Co. was fortunate in having a large supply of peonies for Mothers' day which brought unusually high prices and helped out wonderfully, owing to the general scarcity of all other stock.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. disposed of a good supply of peonies in addition to their regular line of stock for Mothers' day and were more than satisfied with their total sales, which were the best on record.

George A. Kuhl, of Pekin, who has been at the Presbyterian hospital for a few weeks, was able to leave May 14, and will spend several days with friends here before going home.

The Joseph Foerster Co. had such a strong demand for stock for Mothers' day that it did not have a flower left in the place when the store closed May 10.

J. A. Budlong had a grand cleanup in stock for Mothers' day, which was exceptionally heavy and far greater than the firm expected.

A. P. Fontana will open a new store at 2159 Lake street in the near future under the firm name of The Lake-Leavitt Floral Shop.

The North Shore Floral Co. reports a splendid Mothers' day business, which included quite a number of telegraph orders.

Louis Wittbold is becoming so popular that Billy De Beck featured him in his "Bulla Bulla" cartoon this week.

Ice was advanced 15 cents per 100 pounds this week, making the price 40 cents to retail florists.

E. F. Winterson, Sr., has been suffering from an attack of lumbago the past week.

One of the department stores had a special sale on palms for Mothers' day. Alois Frey, Crown Point, Ind., was a visitor, May 14.

Visitors: Al. Barber, Cleveland, O.; H. M. Eurt, Jackson, Mich.; Chas. Graham, Cleveland, O.; Mrs. E. A. Moore, Harvard.

BEST MOTHERS' DAY IN HISTORY.

Mothers' day in this city proved a tremendous success, the best ever experienced here, several causes contributing to this result. In the first place, the day was beautiful and served to make it generally observed. Judicious advertising also held the attention of the public to the occasion and the splendid flowers and appropriate cards in the shop windows resulted in a good demand for everything offered both cut and in plant form. Peonies were in with their first blush of beauty and were available in almost any color, a few red, many pink and an abundance of white. Large baskets filled with them were offered for sale on the streets and went at $1.50 per dozen, while the florists were receiving $3, double former prices. Roses were in good shape and while the carnation was the flower of the day roses and peonies moved well. Saturday looked like a return of the Easter trade, so numerous and eager were the buyers. Carnations were on hand to meet the heavy call and cleaned up completely in both red and white. There was a fine call for pot plants, baskets and birch boxes. Geraniums proved a great favorite and all that were offered found ready sale. Many of the stores sent back to the green-houses again and again for additional supplies of stock during the day. The market house was also filled with a fine assortment. Hydrangeas, while not as plentiful as desired, were eagerly sought. Many irises were still in bloom, although the earlier varieties had passed out. In all of the stores satisfied expression were heard as to the volume of the day's business.

HORTICULTURAL APPROPRIATION.

The state legislature at its last session aided the horticulturists of the state to the extent of $5,000, the appropriation to be in the hands of the state horticultural society. Eliminating the usual preliminaries, the text of the act in general, is as follows:

"The sum is to be expended in uniting the fruit growers of the state and providing meetings for the exchange of ideas of value and to publish in annual form a record of such meetings; to assemble and display educational and horticultural advertisements of state advantages; to act as a medium of distribution of scientific knowledge acquired by experiment stations and other co-operative agencies; to encourage better methods of production, handling and marketing horticultural products, together with such other legitimate action as in the judgment of its directors will promote horticultural development in the state."

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Co. had peonies in immense quantities in many colors, innumerable vases of roses in all varieties and a fine cut of carnations as well as a splendid miscellaneous assortment. Their showing of pot stock was a strong feature.

During the past week there was an almost continuous downpour of rain, which was badly needed in this section, as growing crops were beginning to suffer. Everything will now take on a tremendous onrush of growing and the bedding plant trade will become more brisk.

Geny Bros. had fine carnations, a good cut of roses and an excellent supply of peonies, in addition to very fine pot geraniums and hydrangeas, both of which brought good returns. M. C. D.

Texas State Florists' Association.

President W. J. Parker, of the Texas State Florists' Association, has called for a meeting of the association to be held in Austin, July 9-10. The florists of that city have already begun preparations to entertain the visitors and a very enthusiastic meeting is expected.

The Texas florists have not held a regular meeting for two years on account of conditions brought about by the war, and the July meeting is expected to again put things in order and get the association back into working trim. There will be ample provision made to give all the space necessary to those who wish to make trade exhibits at the convention, and just as many as can arrange to bring or send exhibits of any stock, supplies, building material, or anything else used by florists, are invited and urged to do so. The space will be furnished free to exhibitors. The florists of the state and adjoining states will be urged to come to the convention to place their orders for supplies for the next season, hence this is going to be an excellent opportunity for the trade to get in touch with the florists of the southwest.

The exhibit hall will be adjoining the assembly hall and ample time will be given to all visitors to examine the displays and place their orders with those in charge. All who will make exhibits are requested to immediately write Secretary Louis J. Tackett, Austin, Texas, so that choice space may be reserved for your exhibit. This is expected to be one of the largest meetings of florists ever held in the southwest, and no one can afford to miss it. Do not wait for the secretary to write to you to make an exhibit, for if you do you may be overlooked, but write him at once that you will be on hand with a display and a sharp pencil and be ready to book orders.

For any information concerning the convention, write Louis J. Tackett, secretary, Austin, Tex.

SMALL INCREASE ON MOTHERS' DAY.

The past week has been one of expectation. Aside from a few weddings and the inevitable wreaths and sprays, the demand was light. Almost everything, except carnations, was in full supply. These latter were scarce all week, all colors selling from six to eight cents. After Thursday, the whites brought 12 to 15, and it is said, would have reached 20 cents had the day been clear. Good judges say there was a shortage of at least one-third, as compared with the supply of last year. They were all agreed that there was not enough to go around, even at the high prices. Pinks and reds sold on Friday and Saturday for $10, and nothing like enough for the demand. New York was drawn on for whites, several of the dealers and a number of the street men were bringing them over in large quantities. Last year the market broke badly on Saturday, flowers selling down to three and four cents, but this year all were cleaned up at the quoted prices. While there was but little increase in business on account of the holiday, prices on all flowers stiffened and were possibly 10 per cent higher.

May 12.—The morning receipts were rather light. There were very few carnations, as they had been cut so close on Saturday. Roses were also not in oversupply, owing to the past four days of rain and cold, cloudy weather. Southern irises and gladioli are a feature. Prices, which had been advanced about 20 per cent for Mothers' day on nearly the whole list, held fairly well. Carnations dropped from their high pinnacle back to eight and ten cents. There was the usual Monday morning demand to provide something for the empty show cases.

NOTES.

Scarcely any of the retail florists featured Mothers' day with the exception of Frank Ross, who displayed large placards calling attention to the day in the windows of his three stores, and Charles H. Grakelow, who sent out thousands of well-worded circulars. The opportunities of Mothers' day appear to be apparent to but few of the trade in this city, notwithstanding the fact that where the retailers get together in a number of other communities the business is immense.

The bedding plant men are very busy, and for the most part, have their houses well filled with stock that has taken, almost over night, the place of that sold at Easter. The Robert Craig Co. filled two large houses with geraniums Easter week, putting them up between the loading of wagons and cars. All kinds of Boston ferns are scarce. Anything saleable in a 6-inch pot brings $12 per dozen, an advance of 100 per cent in two years.

Miss Jarvis was in Cleveland, O. this year, attending a congress of mothers, and from there sent out word through the press that Victory bonds and saving stamps were to be bought instead of flowers for Mothers' day. Judging from the demand in the eastern markets, her ukase had little effect in deterring the sale of flowers. Let us hope it speeded up the demand for Victory bonds.

C. U. Liggit finds growers everywhere short of plants, there being a steady demand throughout all the standard stocks. It was impossible to supply the call for carnation cuttings; taking the country over, at least 50 per cent more could have been sold. Two-inch pot rooted cuttings are quoted at $80 per 1,000, while plants from the field have at times been well sold at $50 per 1,000.

The trade is still talking about the fine display of new roses at the florists' club meeting on Tuesday last. A second lot of 50 flowers of the Rose Frank Dunlop, which arrived too late for the exhibition, has been the attraction in Pennock Bros' window all the past week. H. H. Battles had the honor of displaying Pilgrim and Crusader. All three kept splendidly.

The American Rose Society is to visit and inspect the beautiful rose garden of Capt. George C. Thomas, Jr., Chestnut Hill, June 4, at 2 p. m. They will also hold a meeting at that time. The tentative date of the opening of the national trial rose gardens at Arlington Farm, Washington, D. C., is set for June 3.

Harry Crawford, who was overseas with the Young Men's Christian Association, has returned safe and sound. His work took him into Spain, Italy, and Southern France. He was in Nice when the acacias were in flower, which he describes as a beautiful sight.

The trade has rallied nobly to the call to buy Victory bonds. The quota of the allied horticultural trades, florists and seedsmen, was $250,000. They went over the top in great shape, their subscriptions figuring close up to $400,000.

De Forest Ludwig and wife, of Pittsburgh, were in town Thursday, en route to meet Mr. Ludwig's brother, who has just returned from service abroad.

John Walker and wife, Youngstown, O., passed through this city this week for a visit to Mr. Walker's brother, near Atlantic City.

James Kilgallen, of the S. S. Pennock Co.'s force, arrived home last week from service in France.

MOTHERS' DAY BUSINESS LACKS LIFE.

It seems like a long time since the wholesale market in roses went as bad as during the past week. When one sees a sidewalk merchant with a large box of roses in front of him, selling out of the "original package," as they say in wet goods circles, one does not have to ask the price, for that is a sure sign of cheapness. It is unnecessary to go further with roses, as that illustrates the condition of the past week. Business was slow on all stocks. From the fact that in greenhouse lily of the valley, there was little or none on the market, frame stock, if good, brought $8 per 100. Practically no effort was made by the florist trade of this city to arouse enthusiasm for Mothers' day—unless raising the price of carnations could be called an effort. The Mothers' day window posters, frequently seen in former years, were rarely noted. One retailer told the writer that he supposed there would be some place in the city where such posters could be had, but could find none. On May 8, several newspapers published items advising people not to buy flowers, but to buy Victory bonds. That was another case of the misdirected energy which has been so conspicuous since the beginning of the war. Even at the highest rate, the price of a carnation would not go far in a bond purchase. This city has never been strong on Mothers' day, but in the past there have been large sales to out-of-town buyers. On account of a strike of their drivers, the American Railway Express, May 8, refused all flower shipments. About the middle of the week, carnation prices began to move upward, and by May 9, $10 and $12 per 100 was being asked for the best whites and Wards. On the morning of May 10, for an hour or two, prices held up, but soon dropped to $8 and $10, then to $6 and $8, and by the middle of the afternoon some ice boxes were full and no buyers in sight. The situation was aggravated by a pouring rain, which continued without intermission throughout the day. As a matter of course, all other stocks were at a standstill. The market was full of sweet peas, snapdragons, stocks and other features that could not be sold. From the fact that up to and including Easter, prices were good throughout the season, the situation seemed particularly bad to the wholesalers, and it was bad enough, but might have been worse.

May 12.—Further reports from retailers are to the effect that this was the best Mothers' day business that this city has ever had. The fact that so many of the churches have become interested has unquestionably helped the business. As a body, the churchgoers support what appeals to the best in human nature. One retailer has said that it was hard to persuade many people to take other than white carnations, but other stores did not find them so particular. The retail trade should reason with its customers on this point. An exclusive demand for white carnations will, if persisted in, for obvious reasons create dissatisfaction all along the line. Greenhouse tulips and narcissi are finished, but good Darwin tulips, grown in the open, have been, and are yet, arriving and they go fairly well. So much lilac and other spring stock is on the market that it has put the sweet peas, particularly the short ones, in bad, and many are going to waste. The frame lily of the valley is generally preferred to the greenhouse stock. It is cheaper and, if good, looks better. On account of a lighter supply, roses have advanced somewhat in price.

The express strike which held up shipments a couple of days, was settled May 13.

MOTHERS' DAY OBSERVANCE.

Although May 11 was a cool and dreary day, and Sunday base ball—a great asset to rowdyism—has been revived, a number of retail stores reported good sales of carnations and roses. In some of the churches, white carnations were distributed to the mothers of men who were in the service. In the Fort Washington Presbyterian church, in the morning, Miss Bernetta A. Miller made an address on "Mothers' Day in the Argonne." She recently returned from France. Rev. Dr. Harris, acting pastor of Grace Methodist church, took for his morning subject: "In Remembrance of Her; the Sacrament of the White Flower." At the Broadway Presbyterian church, Rev. Dr. Walter D. Buchanan took "Our Mothers" for his theme. In Rev. Dr. Edwin A. Kegwin's church, the West End Presbyterian, at both morning and evening services, the music selected was intended to impress the audience with the honor due the mothers. Kathleen Norris' story, "Mother," was shown, in the evening, in motion pictures, in the St. James Methodist church. The New York Herald published a poem by Mary Coutant Young, entitled, "The Name of Mother." In an editorial, the Herald said in part: "This year, Mothers' day takes on a new significance throughout the land, for in the last twelvemonth new depths in the devotion and sacrifice of the mothers of America has been sounded, new springs of their love revealed." In the afternoon, the Jewish Welfare Board held a Mothers' day entertainment and reception at 89 Park avenue. The Sun, more practical than sentimental, published the following: "The fact that this, the second Sunday in May, is Mother's day is known to every one in the vicinity of New York, owing to the enterprise of the retail florists of the city, who have made the day a household word by their liberal advertising. This sarcasm may make local florists angry, but if it wakes them up to the possibilities of newspaper advertising I will be satisfied for the benefit done the trade, even though it may not be appreciated now. New York florists, as a whole, are the poorest advertisers in any city in the country, and they are where the possibilities are greatest. The use of flowers on Valentine day and other special days might be greatly increased. The sale of flowers and plants at Christmas is about one-quarter what it should be. There are but two days in the year when the demand is what might be expected, Easter and Memorial day, and the demand on the latter day should be greater than it is. The florists themselves are to blame for the fact that flowers in New York are not commonly used for decorating homes, stores, desks of business men, show windows and many other purposes. Nothing gives as distinctive and an artistic appearance to a home as a few flowers rightly placed." The writer of these notes is not disposed to be severely critical. It is true that for some months past the florists have been prosperous, but they could nearly always have done more business. On the other hand, there have been many calls on their resources. For more than a year the publicity committee of the S. A. F. has been making urgent appeals for funds to carry on advertising in the magazines that are bought largely by readers of fiction. It seems to the writer that it would be practical and remunerative to the trade, for this committee to appeal to the people through the newspapers, to support the Christmas, Easter, Mothers' day and Memorial day trade.

NOTES.

The heavy storm of wind and rain, May 10, had an unfortunate effect on the exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York, at the Museum building, Bronx park. The weather was so bad that but two exhibitors put in an appearance. Mrs. F. H. Allen, Pelham Manor, N. Y., (James Lenane, Gr.) staged six pots of pelargoniums of herbaceous flowering plants, a group of flowering shrubs and trees, and collection of tulips. Awarded first prize for each exhibit. Mrs. F. A. Constable Mamaroneck, N. Y., (James Stewart, Gr.) had three exhibits, a collection and six pots of calceolarias, both exhibits being exceptionally fine. First prize for each exhibit. The botanical gardens made a good exhibit—not in competition—of a large variety of flowering stock, including the following: Iris, in variety; centaurea, bleeding heart, alyssum, candy tuft, Primula polyantha, leopard's bane, Narcissus poeticus, summer snow-flake and Darwin tulips. Of the latter, a particularly handsome variety was Cottage Maiden's Blush, a white with a thread of pink around the edge of the petals.

Here is an item that is not, strictly speaking, horticultural, but it should interest some of our horticultural readers. The "Sun" of April 10 says: "An anxious and expectant public will be forced to wait several days at least before the weighty question of whether the skirl of bagpipes in the hands of an experienced Highland Scotch piper is real music or just noise." A real estate corporation has asked for an injunction against the New York Caledonian Club, and Justice Whitaker, in Supreme court, has heard evidence and reserved decision. The club's lawyer stated in court that it was the strains of the bagpipes that had made the Highlanders fight so gallantly in the late war, and the many wars in which the race had been engaged. Opposing counsel countered by saying that the noise of the bagpipes would make anyone fight. We are for the bagpipes and would have a band of pipers attend every Bolshevik meeting that is held in this city.

A contemporary publishes a letter from James McHutchison, member of the S. A. F. legislative committee, and head of the well known firm of McHutchison & Co., of this city, in which he asks a number of pertinent questions of Dr. Marlatt, chairman of the federal horticultural board. In his preface, he says: "Knowing that Dr. Marlatt has access to government and customs records on the subject, I will confine my questions to those he can answer, and if he answers them frankly and fairly, it may remove much of the misgiving with which No. 37 was received in trade circles."

Having the plant quarantine in mind, Anton Schultheis, of College Point, says that he has figured three years ahead. He has finished planting out in the field about 6,000 young lilac plants of his own propagation, which he says are of the best varieties. He keeps a large stock of young rose plants ahead, grows palms from seed, and aims to make his business a strictly American industry.

May 9, Malandre Brothers, on an order, delivered to the steamer George Washington, a box of American Beauty roses and a box of gigas for Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Paris, France. They had preciously filled a similar order, and have a letter from Mrs. Wilson stating that the flowers arrived in good condition. They have a clever device for shipping flowers for long journeys.

C. H. Fleming, formerly in the florist business at Bridgeport, Conn., was in this city, May 9, and called on Charles Millang, Frank Traendly and other old friends. He is now engaged in real estate, ship brokerage and other marine activities. Though yet a comparatively young man, he is said to have been very successful in business.

Benjamin F. Hickok, an employe of J. H. Small & Sons, has constructed a clever model of the S. S. George Washington, and placed it on exhibition in the window of George C. Siebrecht's store. That is a more laudable occupation for Ben and the rest of the boys than playing "African golf."

Deseff Alexander, assistant buyer for Christatos & Kester, 717 Madison avenue, was married April 29 to an attractive and estimable young lady, and the happy couple, accompanied by the

New York Florists' Club.

The New York Florists' Club met in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building on the night of May 12. President Kessler in the chair. There was a good attendance. A. L. Miller, for the transportation committee to the convention of the S. A. F. at Detroit, reported a rate of $26.98 over the New York Central R. R., including berth and war tax; Lackawanna R. R., $23.63 rail and boat from Buffalo. There was a discussion on the proposed railroad connections of the trip in which J. G. Esler, J. A. Manda, C. H. Totty, Frank Traendly and Secretary Young participated. It was voted to travel over the Lackawanna road.

C. H. Totty, for the flower show committee, reported progress and believes that matters are going well. Frank Golsner, College Point, N. Y., and Clarence Peterson, 491 Fifth avenue, New York, were elected members. Henry Wild, of Greenwich, Conn., gave an interesting talk on "Perennials from the Florists' Standpoint." He thinks florists could make more and better use of them. Some questions were asked the speaker at the close of his address and a discussion followed. He was given a vote of thanks. Evidently a number of members were not interested in perennials, as they dropped out during the discussion.

It was reported that the New York City florists had subscribed $317,800 to the Victory Loan.

Roman J. Irwin, New York, exhibited his giant pansies, lavender, white, yellow, Beaconsfield, Masterpiece mixed and florists' mixture. The collection was very fine, "giant" being the proper word. It was highly commended by the committee. S. G. Milosy, grower for George Schlagel, Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, exhibited two pans of flowering orchids, C. gigas, which were highly commended.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 24-26, 1919.

BURLAP is advancing.

THE last sugar beet crop was 1,500,000,000 pounds.

HARRISII lily bulb asking prices this season as compared with last year are double.

PATRICK O'MARA, of Peter Henderson & Co., New York, is taking an extended vacation on account of impaired health.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. L. Rogers, of Rogers Bros., Alpena, Mich.; A. M. Van der Schoot, of R. A. Van der Schoot, Hillegom, Holland.

GRASS SEED.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade May 11 were as follows: Timothy, $8.00 to $11.25 per 100 pounds.

THOS. J. GREY and wife of Boston, Mass., report much enjoyment in the vicinity of Los Angeles, Calif., their health being greatly improved.

A LARGE attendance is anticipated at the next annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, to be held at Chicago June 24-26.

THE price of bags at Chicago May 7, was $47.00. There is an unconfirmed report that the mills will shortly advance the price five cents per bag.

H. CRESSON PRICHETT, formerly with the Southern Seed Co., Indianapolis, Ind., now representing The Everette R. Peacock Co., of Chicago, covering Indiana territory, reports good business.

L. W. WHEELER, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif., and Mrs. Wheeler have just returned from a hunting and fishing trip in Idaho, where they secured a good catch of fish and a small bear.

THE John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif., now has 200 acres devoted to flower seeds in the El Monte district. The season's rainfall is much below normal and irrigation has been necessary considerably earlier than usual.

NEW YORK.—The firm of I. L. Radwaner will be known hereafter as I. L. Radvaner Seed Co., according to an announcement by Frederick S. Radway-Radwaner, for many years owner of the firm and now the controlling member of the new company.

MANAGER C. W. SCOTT, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., New York, estimates the total Lilium giganteum crop at eight million bulbs as against 16 to 18 million in a normal season. The L. formosum crop is estimated at 400,000 bulbs.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover market closed steady, May 12, at $27.00, registering a gain of 50 cents during the preceding seven days. October was quoted at $19.85. Timothy was firm, cash being offered at $5.35, May $5.35, September $6.15 and October $5.85.

Onion Set Prospects at Chicago.

Inspection of the south side district, May 10, shows 15 per cent of the acreage up with good stand and 25 per cent up with a fair stand. Many growers, after 14 days' drenching weather, are watching for a bright day and soil dry enough to sow. The soil works up very poorly after such a continuous rain. On the other hand, seed in the ground and not yet showing, has a poor chance to come through the hard crust unless frequent rains keep the soil moist.

Cabbage is in poor shape all around the city. It is the general opinion that more "over runs" than usual of flat type have been planted for seed. The quality of "overs" shipped west is poor. The crop should be watched.

J. Chas. McCullough's Sail Fish.
Caught at Palm Beach, Fla., April 1919.
Mr. McCullough in Center.

French Bulbs.

Jacques Courtine, representing A. & L. Bremond Freres, Ollioules, France, who is in this country on his annual visit in the interest of his firm, reports the situation in France in general at the time of his departure was rather unsettled. Only one-half of the army has been demobilized, and with all men between the ages of 20 and 32 still under arms the shortage of labor is still acute. Higher prices prevail than in America due in a measure to increased freight rates, the congestion of railroads and steamships lessening very slowly and until the transportation problem is solved little relief may be expected. Last year, growers in the South of France made considerable money selling wine at one franc a liter, while olive oil brought seven francs a liter. Last fall, potatoes sold at prices never before heard of and flowers, especially Paper Whites, were disposed of on the wholesale markets at ridiculously advanced figures.

During the five years of war, all plantations have been more or less neglected; the old people, the wives and children of the growers did their best, but it was impossible for them to keep everything in order for so long a time. Roman hyacinths, which require special care, being subject to disease, suffered heavily with the result this year's crop will scarcely be one-tenth of what the firm handled in 1914. Paper White narcissus, while less subject to disease, must be dug every year to produce a good crop, the salable bulbs being disposed of and the smaller ones replanted for the following year. If, for any reason, they remain in the ground for two years or more, they split, reducing the percentage of good stock. During the war, many growers were unable to dig all or in some cases part of their fields on account of lack of labor and this year, even if half of the men have returned from the army, the quantity lifted will be smaller than in 1914. Even last year, when orders were withheld owing to the uncertainty of the situation, the crop was insufficient to meet all requirements. Now, when florists are ordering more freely, like conditions are certain to prevail. Growers, quick to realize the situation, have advanced prices about 20 per cent, but in Mr. Courtine's opinion, it will be good policy to place orders early to avoid disappointment. Cable advices received by him, dated May 8, report very dry weather in southern France, a condition unfavorable to bulb growing, indicating a shortage with probably a further increase in prices.

The prohibited entry into the United States of lilies, freesias, alliums and ornithogalums by Plant Quarantine No. 37 is severely felt by the French growers as is the packing and inspection regulation which it is feared will cause an excess of annoyance for all concerned.

[Of course it is to be remembered that the foregoing are the views of sellers. Buyers are not so sure that the trade is going to stand a 30 per cent advance over last year's prices, which were already excessive.—Ed.]

Enemy Trading Lists Withdrawn.

Acting concurrently with competent authorities of the associated governments, Vance C. McCormick, chairman of the war trade board, has announced that effective April 29, all enemy trading lists heretofore issued or compiled by said board were withdrawn. The foregoing action does not affect or modify in any respect the present restrictions against trade and communication between the United States and Germany or Hungary, nor does it authorize trade with respect to any property which heretofore, pursuant to the provisions of the trading with the enemy act, as amended, has been reported to the alien property custodian, or should have been reported to him, or any property which the alien property custodian has seized or has required to be assigned or delivered to him.

Imports at New York.

Horticultural goods were received at the port of New York during the week ending May 10, as follows:

Via S. S. Lieut. J. Laurent, from Antwerp—

C. B. Richards & Co., 54 cases plants, two tubs laurel trees.

To others: 98 tubs laurel trees, 23 cases and one package plants.

Via S. S. Baltic, from Liverpool—

T. A. Meadows & Co., 14 cases plants and shrubs.

To others: Seven cases plants.

Supposing You Got $50.00 This Way

An ounce of Cabbage Seed produces about 5,000 plants. The list below shows it costs from 25c to 60c per ounce. 5,000 plants is about 400 dozen. Sell 400 dozen at 15c per dozen. 400 times 15c equals $60.00.

Newark, N. J. Seed Trade.

J. J. Wilson, of the J. J. Wilson Seed Co., Inc., reports that business has been better this year than during the corresponding period of 1918 and the best season since the firm opened in this city. Trade in flower seeds (annuals) was exceptionally heavy.

At the Edward C. Eaton seed store in Centre market it was stated that business had been good. In and about the outside of this market, one finds a large stock of both vegetable and flowering plants offered for sale.

At the John H. Ferdinand store on New street it was reported that business had been good. He has another seed store in New York.

Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President; C. W. Waid, Grand Rapids, Mich., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, May 13.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen boxes, $2.00 to $3.25; celery, Florida, crate, $3.00 to $7.00; leaf lettuce, per box 30 cents; radishes, per bushel box, $1.00 to $1.25; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $5.50 to $7.00.

New York, May 12.—Celery (Florida), per case $1.50 to $6.50; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.25 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $3.00 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 15 to 40 cents; lettuce, per package, $1.00 to $4.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $3.00.

Farm Course for Girls.

The mid-west branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association has transferred the equipment used last summer at Libertyville to Blackburn College, Carlinville, Ill., where a farm school will be opened June 10 and continue until September 5. Girls will be taught agriculture, both in the classroom and in the field, and will be instructed in animal husbandry, poultry raising and crop rotation. Girls who are seriously considering farming as a vocation, and yet who cannot afford to pay the $50 tuition, may apply for scholarships to the association at 112 West Adams street, Chicago.

Tomato Pollination.

The first crop of tomatoes which were planted in the greenhouse of the Maryland State College agricultural experiment station, September 15, 1912, yielded a much larger crop than did the first crop of 1913, which was planted November 5, according to Bulletin No. 222 of the college. This is, no doubt, mainly due to the early fall weather being more suitable for the production and distribution of the pollen.

Of the 10 varieties tested, Stirling Castle set the largest number of fruits under either the hand or natural pollination, with the exception of Carter's Sunrise which set more under hand pollination. Farquhar's Bountiful yielded the most ounces under hand pollination, but Stirling Castle yielded more than any other variety under natural pollination.

Apparently, varieties like Stirling Castle that have quite short styles so that the stigmatic surface does not protrude beyond the stamens, sets fruit more readily than those which have long styles like Farquhar's Bountiful.

• The jarring method, as practiced in the season 1916-17, resulted in a very fair crop. Carter's Sunrise set the largest number of fruits, but on account of the larger size of the individual fruits, Hubert's Marvel gave the largest yield.

Hubert's Marvel is of good size, shape and quality for midwinter sales and can be recommended as very suitable for greenhouse culture.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports received by the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, for the period May 6-12 indicate prices generally lower with a decrease in shipments. The potato market was weak with further declines of from 15-25 cents per 100 pounds. No. 1 northern sacked white stock ranged 25 cents lower in the Chicago carlot market, closing at $1.80-$1.90. Michigan shipping points declined 15 cents, ranging $1.95-$2 for No. 1 sacked white f. o. b., closing at the top price. Sacked Maine Green Mountains made similar declines, closing in New York and Boston at $2.40-$2.75. Shipments of old stock show steady decreases. The price trend on onions was upward. Texas yellow Bermudas closed at an advance of 20 cents in producing sections, ranging $2.65-$2.80 per crate f. o. b. Consuming markets strengthened in the east and were steady in the middle west, closing at $4-$4.50 and $3.25-$4 respectively. Old stock was still offered in a few markets. Good sacked northern and middle-western yellows brought $4.50-$5 in New York, but some inferior stock sold as low as $1 in Colorado. The cabbage movement is increasing, but is only about two-thirds that of a year ago. Texas Flat Dutch stock lost $1 in Kansas City, ranging $5-$5.50 per 100 pounds and weakened in St. Louis, closing at $80-$90 per ton. South Carolina Wakefields included much poor stock and declined to $3-$4 per barrel crate at shipping points, but followed a wide weak range in consuming markets. Alabama cabbage ranged $3-$5 in producing sections. Mississippi cabbage ranged $3.90-$4 f. o. b. Tomatoes were fairly steady, track side sales closing at $4.25-$4.50. In northern consuming markets the prevailing range strengthened to $5-$5.50 per 6-crate basket carrier, but New York declined to $4-$4.50, while Pittsburgh and Cleveland advanced to $5.50-$7.

RINGTOWN, PA.—The greenhouse of Benjamin Zimmer, together with its entire contents, was destroyed by fire, May 1, entailing a loss of approximately $5,000.

AKRON, N. Y.—W. C. Bryfogal, manager of the Newman Greenhouses for several years, has leased the property and will make improvements which will increase the capacity.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Counsel; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia., Treasurer; Chas. Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., Secretary. Forty-fourth annual convention will be held at Chicago, June 25-27, 1919.

THE death of M. J. Wragg, well known nurseryman of Des Moines, Ia., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

TORONTO, ONT.—Following a suggestion of the parks committee, returned soldiers will receive vocational training at the city parks during the coming summer and will be paid by the government.

THE American Forestry Association, 1410 H street, N. W., Washington D. C., is asking for donations to be used in the purchase of forest tree seed to aid in the restoration of the devastated forests of France and replanting in Great Britain, Italy and Belgium.

LOCUST trees can be successfully protected from borers and grown profitably on a commercial scale if the trees are planted in thick stands or mixed with other trees so as to produce a densely shaded condition during the first 10 or 15 years, according to Bulletin 787 of the United States department of agriculture.

Ferris Nursery's Heavy Fire Loss.

Fire, which it is believed started in second-hand burlap in the basement of the storage room, resulted in damage amounting to between $40,000 and $50,000 at the nursery of Earl Ferris, Hampton, Ia., recently, the office and packing sheds being destroyed. The property was only covered to the extent of $2,600 insurance. One of the burned structures, 32x90 feet, contained about two car loads of fruit trees, 150,000 evergreen seedlings, 65,000 overbearing strawberry plants and a large supply of evergreen seeds. All of the tools were also completely destroyed. In the office building, there was a large loss of stationery, in addition to a number of Liberty bonds and thrift stamps and about 20 per cent of the mailing list of over 75,000 names which were in two safes which at the time of purchase were represented to be fire proof. Another loss, much felt, was the destruction of several hundred negatives and 500 slides of Ferris windbreaks throughout the United States.

Azaleas From Korea.

Two of its most beautiful plants have come to the Aboretum from Korea, Rhododendron (Azalea) Schlippenbachii and R. (Azalea) poukhanense. The former is a shrub which on the wind-swept, grass-covered cliffs of the Korean coast rises only a few inches above the surface of the ground, but in the forests of the north is a shrub 12 or 15 feet high with a tall, stout stem. The leaves of this azalea are clustered at the ends of the branches, and are broadest at the apex; they are larger than those of most azaleas, becoming sometimes three inches long and an inch or an inch and a half wide. The flowers, which appear before the leaves, are in clusters, pale pink with dark spots at the base of the upper three lobes of the corolla, and three inches in diameter. There can be little doubt of the hardiness of this azalea, for in northern Korea it grows to its largest size where the thermometer falls to 30° below zero Fahrenheit and a freezing temperature is not uncommon in August. In the Arboretum the flower-buds were not injured by the cold winter of 1917-18 on plants growing in an exposed position. Although known to Russian botanists as long ago as 1870 this plant does not appear to have attracted the attention of western gardeners until 1892 when the late J. H. Veitch found a plant growing in a nursery in Tokyo and sent it to England. In the catalogue of the Yokohama Nursery Company, of 1901, Azalea Schlippenbachii appeared, and at about this time it was imported by Thomas E. Proctor and planted in his garden in Topsfield, Massachusetts, where the plants are still growing. These are the oldest and largest in the United States, for the Arboretum plants were raised here from seeds brought home by J. G. Jack from Korea. R. Schlippenbachii, although it has remained exceedingly rare in western gardens, will probably be much better known in a few years, for in the autumn of 1917 Mr. Wilson sent from Korea a large quantity of the seeds to the Arboretum. These were distributed among the best gardeners in the United States and in Europe, and as several thousand seedlings have been raised in the Arboretum nurseries, there seems now to be no reason why this beautiful plant should not become one of the chief beauties of spring gardens in regions too cold for the successful cultivation of any other azalea with such large and beautiful flowers. The other Korean azalea now in flower, R. poukhanense, is a smaller plant, rarely growing more than three feet high on the pine-covered mountain slopes of the central part of the peninsula. It was first raised at the Arboretum from seeds also brought home by Mr. Jack, and its beautiful rose-lilac, fragrant flowers have been freely produced here now every spring for several years. As it grows in the Arboretum this azalea is a low, broad, round-topped shrub with its lower branches close to the ground. Roots are produced by such branches and would, if cut off and planted, probably soon produce flowering plants. Rhododendron poukhanense, although practically unknown as a garden plant beyond the limits of the Arboretum, deserves a place in all New England collections. These two azaleas are now in bloom on Azalea path where R. (Azalea) Kaempferi will soon be covered with its red or salmon-colored flowers, and R. (Azalea) rhombicum has been in bloom during the past week. This is a hardy Japanese species with rose-purple flowers which are beautiful on plants so placed that the color of the flowers does not conflict with that of other azaleas.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 10, 1919.

PERU, ILL.—The flower shop of Miss Emma Broz has been moved to 1810 Fourth street, directly opposite.

AUSTIN, MINN.—A. N. Kinsman and wife are returning on their yacht from Miami, Fla., by way of the Atlantic coast, Hudson river and Great Lakes.

ALBANY, GA.—A new range will be built on South Jackson street in the near future by J. C. Smith and J. E. Hudson, formerly of Columbus, Ga., the establishment to be known as the Jack Smith Greenhouse Co.

Bailey's*New Standard*Cyclopedia*Of Horticulture*Six Splendid Volumes

This work is Prof. L. H. Bailey's latest and greatest achievement and will undoubtedly stand as a monument to him. This is not a revision of the old Cyclopedia but a brand new work containing features not dreamed of at the time of publication of the original cyclopedia which was a pioneer work. The old cyclopedia of Horticulture, it will be remembered, was a cyclopedia in fact as well as in name, whereas the new Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture is a gardener's manual as well as a cyclopedia and contains features that make it equally adapted to the amateur and to the professional, to the man without education or the man with high literary tastes.

WINDOW AND PORCH BOXES.

Window Boxes.

Nearly everyone loves flowers. They admire them as they grow and blossom, everywhere. In the large cities, on all pleasant days, the public parks are filled with visitors, who go out to enjoy the shrubs and plants in blossom and the beautiful lawn effects. As a nation, however, the American people are far behind those of the greater part of Europe, in the adornment of their homes, particularly with window boxes, which are a decorative feature of many of the humblest cottages in Great Britain, France and other continental countries. There is a great field open here to the florists of this country in a publicity movement, or propaganda, to increase the use of receptacles of various kinds to be filled with plants and used for the adornment of the home, particularly the houses of the crowded city streets, where there are no yards or lawn spaces, and only the window ledges and stoops or step landings which admit of such ornamentation.

While many such residences belong to the well to do, the great majority are occupied by the middle classes or wage earners, who are not blessed with much more than the necessities of life, but who love flowers, and if it were shown that in the intensive use of the facilities at hand they could have and enjoy them, many of their window ledges would soon be covered with flowering plants and vines. The possibilities in such a movement are unlimited; once it became an established custom, the business created would be a great factor, not only in the sale of such plants, but its educational value by their display in creating a love for plants and flowers, would extend to other branches until the whole trade would greatly benefit.

This is a movement that should become a part of the national publicity campaign, and also be taken up by the trade collectively in their various communities. Good stock articles on the advantages and beauty of window and porch boxes, and vases and hanging baskets for house adornment, would find access to the columns of all local papers. Many of their writers, or reporters who are always on the lookout for seasonable stories, for their columns, would be glad to have pointers and correct information, and in many cases staff photographers would be sent to take pictures of good examples of work of this kind, and all without expense to the trade. A little reciprocity would then be in order in co-operative advertising with a sum raised by the trade for the purpose.

The benefits to be obtained by a country wide propaganda, with the craft of each community, large and small, working together along these lines, would be phenomenal. It requires initiative and the forming of an advertising committee of members of the trade, who must have enthusiasm and confidence in the movement so as to give it the necessary push and energy to overcome the objections of lethargic florists who are, unfortunately, to be found in every community. The great work that is being done in advancing the interests of the trade by the progressive, live-wire committees of the florists of Cleveland, O., Detroit, Mich., Milwaukee, Wis., and other cities, which has greatly increased the sale of plants and flowers for St. Valentine's, Mothers' day and other floral holidays, should wake up and stimulate other communities to go to it in the same way.

There is nothing particularly new to be said about the window box. Each season brings out something unique, a receptacle somewhat different in form or construction. An offering this season is a wooden box sand coated with a partial facing in a recess of about half the surface of pebbled cement, which gives an ornamental finish. The birch and cedar bark lined wooden boxes are popular, which, if kept well painted on the inside, will last several seasons. Those of cement and terra cotta material are almost permanent. These should be made in short sections, as being so heavy, they are otherwise difficult to handle. Their supports should be sufficiently strong to hold them securely in place. There are sectional iron boxes of ornamental design which, kept well painted, are long lived. Some of these contain reservoir compartments at the bottom, from which plants obtain moisture through sponges. The porch boxes are generally of wood, but should also be in suitable lengths that are easily handled, and always when in place, rest on cleats that admit of free circulation of air beneath, which protects both the boxes and the floor of the porch.

For the filling, there is a great range and variety of plants. In the hot, dry streets of the city, they will require to be renewed several times to be always at their best. From the last of March until the middle of May, pansies make a good showing to be succeeded with geraniums, marguerites, flowering, trailing and semi-trailing plants and vines, such as nasturtiums, verbenas, petunias, sweet alyssum, variegated vincas and tradescantias. Boxes of all ferns of the Boston types, with vinca vines and Asparagus Sprengeri, make a satisfactory showing if they are kept well watered. For the shady side of the street, Begonia Rex adds variety to the ferns. Crotons, with their showy foliage, can also be used to good advantage in combination with geraniums and other plants for sunny situations.

The embellishments of store fronts of select retail establishments offers a field that is not worked or looked into by the trade as it should. Many a progressive firm would add such a decorative feature if its advertising value were made clear. There is one point that must be emphasized to insure success, and that is, the constant care in watering. After installation, they should be looked after by the florist until the man in whose charge they are placed, is thoroughly skilled in this work.

Porch Boxes.

One of the most showy ornaments about the suburban home is the porch box, which, with its wealth of blooms and vines on the outer edge of all the porches and on the borders of steps and landings, gives a wonderful color effect. To be attractive the season through, these receptacles should be of good width and depth, resting on cleats at least one inch thick so as to raise them from the floor of the porch, which provides an air space and preserves both the boxes and the porch.

Plants for these are much the same as used in vases; geraniums, petunias, verbenas, lobelias, sweet alyssum, ageratum, nasturtiums, Vernon begonias, for color; with crotons, acalyphas and Boston ferns for foliage. Asparagus Sprengeri, variegated vincas and tradescantia are the best to hang over the front of the box. Small asters may be planted in the rear of the boxes which come into flower in the late summer and give variety of color. In the shade, the same vines are good with Boston ferns, Pteris argyrea, and Begonia Rex, together with fuchsias and tuberous rooted begonias.

Boxes over the gate posts are very showy and ornamental when filled, if of good size, with dwarf cannas, geraniums and plenty of vines. The space along the wall which marks the edge of the lawn and the surface of which is level with it, can be planted with good effect with nasturtiums and vinca vines. When in luxurious growth and flower, the appearance from the street or road is fine.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Mothers' Day Advertising.

A fine feature of the publicity that played an important part in the excellent Mothers' Day business reported by the trade in Salt Lake City was a well illustrated full page advertisement in the daily press by the associated florists of that city placing special emphasis on the slogan, "Say It with Flowers" and the fact they could be delivered to any city in the United States and Canada through the Florists' Telegraph Delivery. Included in the text was considerable interesting information regarding the observance of the day generally throughout the nation in accordance with its official recognition by an act of congress and the proclamations of the governors of nearly every state in the Union.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

Now that the weather is settled, there will be a great demand for bedding plants. These are good stock to carry even in the case of the storeman without a greenhouse, but he must limit his assortment to just a few of the most popular varieties and must see that each plant is in salable condition. Porch plants are also interesting to customers at this season, especially rubbers, small to medium sized palms and the various types of the Boston fern.

Feature a sale of wire hanging baskets filled with vines, sweet alyssum, lobelias, trailing coleus, petunias and other odds and ends of flowering plants. Growers will be glad to fill such a number of these as will make it worth their while, and after a few weeks' growth at the greenhouses will deliver them at a price that should show the dealer a good profit and insure ready sale.

Shrubbery in variety is now coming in, as well as candytuft and other hardy plants. This can nearly all be used to advantage in funeral work at least as a foundation. It will always be found profitable to make use of the various garden flowers as they come into season throughout the year. Peonies will now be at their best for the next fortnight and are one of the most decorative of the outside flowers. They should be carefully prepared before being used, that is kept over night in deep jars of water, so as to insure flowers and foliage taking up all the water they will hold. It is best to remove the bottom foliage from the stems, as this takes nourishment from the blossom. They should never be placed subject to drafts as this quickly dries out the foliage and causes the flower to wilt. Dipping the ends of the stems in boiling hot water is said to be very beneficial, seeming to act much the same as with the poinsettia. Ornamental and showy decorative effects are made with long stemmed peonies placed in tall flower vases, standing by themselves, or in groups of palms or tied in clusters at the ends of pews in church wedding decorations. They also make effective sprays for funerals. Large vase baskets, when filled with peonies in various color schemes, such as pink in blue baskets, white in green toned or in yellow, tied with appropriate ribbons, are effective in many house decorations.

The earlier school commencements are now taking place. These, particularly in the young ladies' seminaries, are well worth going after. In nearly all such schools, there are class day exercises at which bouquets of the class colors or other flowers are carried. If the florist is early on the ground, he can be quick to explain how impossible it is to get this or that flower, now out, or almost out of season, and recommend sweet peas, pink roses, snapdragons, yellow or white daisies, etc. Class colors may be, if necessary, carried out in the ribbons.

There are, and will be for some time to come, patriotic entertainments, receptions, dinners, etc., on account of the boys returning from abroad. At such functions there is always a display of bunting and flags as well as floral decorations. Comparatively few florists understand the correct draping of such materials; in fact, many do not even know how to make a good looking ribbon bow. It should be taken up in each establishment and given into the hands of one man, who with a little study and practice, and instruction from an experienced decorator, would soon become proficient. With a stock of these accessories on hand, which can be used a number of times, they will be found quite an asset to the business in the course of a year. Letters and figures made of electric lights are frequently used in public entertainments. These can also be carried in the florists' stock and form part of the decorations. A handy man can soon acquire all the knowledge necessary to attach these to the frame and make the electrical connections.

LOW WINDOW BOXES WHICH DO NOT OBSCURE SIGNS.

WINDOW BOX IN CHICAGO.

Keep the show windows up to their best. Comparatively few realize the worth of these displays or their advertising value. It is of the utmost importance that each decoration or display should be planned with the purpose of selling the goods of the store. Do not forget the cards or notices, which while carrying information of the special features, catch the eye of the passersby, and hold them for a moment. The printed word has great power, while prices are oftentimes silent salesmen.

Always feature flowering plant stock with some kind of pot cover. There is nothing better or more effective than square sheets of white paper. Place the pot in a saucer in the center, and draw the paper up around and tie with tape the color of the flower. The irregular edges should extend about six inches above the rim of the pot. Tie in with this on the inside near the top, a sheet of paper the same color as the flower. This decoration adds very materially to the attractiveness of the plant.

Two things if not already attended to, should be done before the week is out. First, send in your subscription to the publicity campaign. The larger it is, the more you will be interested and therefore benefit. Second, connect up with that bunch of live wires called the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. These are two of the greatest factors that you can possibly engage or enlist to increase and extend your business.

Cost Computing.

One of the successful retailers in a large city, in speaking of the business, particularly in reference to others in his line who worked hard, but never appeared to get ahead, said: "Some men forget what they are in business for. They go home at night, tired out with their day's work, and satisfied from the volume of trade that things are going all right, when, as a matter of fact, there was little or no profit, scarcely a new dollar for an old one.

Comparatively few men know what it costs them to do business. The rent is high, because it is nearly always difficult to meet it. It costs a lot to keep the car going, with its continual repairs, new tires, etc. Boxes have gone up almost out of sight, and paper as well. In fact, everything seems to have so increased in price that something must be done in the way of advanced charges to meet the situation.

First, there must be an accurate and detailed account of expenses, including, among other salaries, those of the acting or working proprietors. Many do not count their labor as an expense, just charging themselves with what they take out, so as to balance the cash. If they were working for someone else, with part of the profits as a bonus, their salaries would be an expense before any profits could be shown, and must also in their own case be figured in overhead expenses, so as to determine the ratio of profit necessary to be added to the cost price of their stock for the coming season.

Where books are kept, which show exactly how every dollar handled in the course of the year is spent, the overhead charges are found to be between 25 and 50 per cent. If the property in which the business is carried on is owned by the proprietor, the rent should be charged up as part of the carrying charges. Many, who do not keep track of such expenses, will say, "It does not cost me 50 cents out of every dollar's business I do to carry it on. Let such men decide during the next month, or longer period, to keep an accurate account of exactly how every penny is expended. This will be no easy job for those who have not found it necessary. There are men who count up the money in the drawer at night as the day's receipts. Several good sized accounts may have been received during July from bills sent out on the first for goods sold during January or later, yet they are counted in as the day's business. Such firms are generally family managed, and are often quite successful. Accurate bookkeeping has proved that it costs at the very least 25 cents each and often much more, to deliver every package that goes out of the store, so that all articles of plants costing this amount, are gifts to the customer, as they return nothing to the business.

It is the custom, or has been with many in the trade, to double the actual cost, which is to then be the retail price. This may work out on all such stock as baskets, ribbons and similar supplies, but when one considers the loss from damaged and unsold stock, together with the overhead charges, it is not sufficient, even in these comparatively staple goods. It is clearly not enough profit for plants and cut flowers, which on account of their perishable nature, commence almost at once to deteriorate. Roses and carnations that cost $3 per 100, should sell for $1 per dozen. Roses and lilies, or other flowers that cost $8 per hundred, should bring $3 per dozen. It is the same in made up work, clusters, designs or baskets. Put at least 100 per cent over the cost of the frame or basket, and always include the ribbon. If the frame or basket is to sell, filled for $10, costs $1, it is figured at $2; of the $8 left, one-third, or $2.66 can be spent for flowers and the necessary bow of ribbon. In some shops, the time of the artists is always counted in all kinds of made up work and figured in the cost.

In justifying their lower prices, dealers are often heard to say: "We never could get such prices from our trade," and of course as long as they feel that way, they never will. They make the great mistake of judging, from conditions, what they think their customers can pay. They should find out first just what they can afford to sell their goods for, and make a legitimate profit, and with this knowledge, they could easily bring their customers to see the value in the prices asked. Again and again, we hear complaints by others in the trade, of dealers who will hire out palms to undertakers for 25 cents each, which also includes pedestals and pot covers. The delivery, and calling for immediately after the funeral, is special service which really costs more than the amount charged and leaves nothing for the hire of the palms and pedestals. The excuse is, "We get the other work," but frequently it goes to the other fellow, the undertaker not being able to control it.

The successful business is built on a sure foundation, the corner stones of which are accuracy in knowledge of costs of production and handling the product. With a legitimate profit added, there is then sure to be a comfortable surplus, a just reward for services rendered.

ALFEO, ILL.—The Whaley Gardens is a new florist establishment here.

DOWAGIAC, MICH.—Everett Davis, formerly of Bangor, this state, has purchased two acres of land and is building one house 25 x 100 feet.

WEBSTER CITY, IA.—The Curtis Floral Co. will move its range at Hampton to this city, adding 10,000 feet of glass and bringing the total of the range here to 50,000 square feet.

PLANT NOTES.

Peonies.

The peony is one of the most important flowers to the florist during the early part of summer, and they are used in large quantities for decorations and other floral work. In cutting peonies for market, especially those that are to be shipped, it is best to cut them when the first petals unfold, and allow them to open in water. They ship much better in this condition and also last much longer. Where they are allowed to remain on the plant until open, the flowers not only bruise more or less in transportation, but the petals drop more easily when the flowers are unpacked if they are open when cut and made ready for shipment. In cutting the flowers from the plant, many growers make the mistake of cutting too low. The demand of the customers is, of course, for long stems, but for the good of the plant there should be left two well-formed leaves upon the stem when the flower is cut off. This will allow enough foliage for the plant to continue its growth and thoroughly ripen off. Where the plant is cut back too severely the root action is injured and a diminished number of flowers will be the result in the succeeding year. Keep the plants tied up by stakes and strings outside of the row; a severe rain when the plants are heavy with buds will often knock them down and ruin many of the flowers.

Ficus Elastica.

While the rubber plants do not enjoy the popularity that they did 10 or more years ago, yet there is always more or less demand for good small plants every fall, and cuttings rooted now and given good culture can be grown to fine stock at that time. Every plantsman will have plants of Ficus elastica that have outgrown the salable size or have lost many of the lower leaves, and the tops of these can be propagated during the warm weather. The best way to root the young plants is on the plant by mossaing the cut. Make an incision in the stem about half way through, in which insert a small stick about the size of a match stick to keep the cut open. Bind around the cut wet moss, which should be firmly tied on with raffia and kept wet constantly. The plant should then be placed in a warm, moist house, kept fairly close, and in two or four weeks the roots will be seen protruding from the moss. The top should then be cut off and potted in a 4-inch or 5-inch pot and grown in a warm, close house until the roots have become established in the soil. If a number of these plants are being grown, a mild hothed can be made up outside, built up with boards so as to allow 18 inches of room between the soil and glass, and covered with a shaded sash. Plunge the pots in the soil, and if the frame is kept close, allowing air only on the warmest days, the plants will grow rapidly. As fall approaches more air can be admitted, the plants gradually hardened off and splendid stock will be the result.

Dahlias.

Although the dahlia is of very robust growth and comparatively easy of culture, yet it is one of the most tender plants and will not stand any cold treatment, for the slightest frost will check the growth and almost invariably kill the plant back. It is, then, too early yet to plant the clumps except where all danger of late frosts has passed, but the eyes may start into growth during the warm days of May, so they should be kept in safe and warm quarters. Where the grower has a good, tight frame that is frost-proof the clumps can be taken from storage and placed in the frame and the tubers will grow plump and the eyes break ready for planting as soon as the weather grows warm enough. The place selected for growing them the coming season should, however, be prepared, the ground spaded deeply and, if not manured last fall, some well rotted manure spaded in. Many growers do not advise heavy manuring when the clumps are planted, and especially no fresh manure, much preferring to get a fair supply in the ground the previous fall, so that the rankness will be dissipated in the soil, for too strong manure causes a rank growth and the plants do not bloom as early. With enough manure incorporated in the soil to produce a good hard growth, and not too soft, then mulch with manure when the buds begin to set, is the manner of some of the most successful growers. The young stock that was propagated from clumps started in March should now be good, stocky little plants, and the last of the propagating should be done early in May to have good stock for June planting. Keep the young plants under safe cover and plunge the pots in soil to keep them moist and not require too frequent or too heavy watering.

Callas.

As the summer weather approaches the callas will cease producing flowers and will require a rest to prepare them for another year. They should be dried off gradually until they become "dust dry," when the roots will be thoroughly ripened. If watered the calla will grow all the year around, but plants grown in this way will not produce as many flowers as those that are rested. Those grown in pots can be laid on their sides in the greenhouse until all danger from freezing weather is passed, when they can be removed outdoors, still placing the pots on the side in full sunlight. Those grown on the bench can be lifted with as much soil as possible and placed under the bench, where they will dry out gradually, and later planted in the full sun outside in a dry location, and as soon as thoroughly ripened shaken out and stored until wanted to start for another season. The yellow calla, Ricardia Eliottiana, is being grown more largely and the blooms have been used the last winter in many elaborate decorations. The culture of these is in pots and similar to the older varieties.

Marguerites for Winter.

To have good marguerites for winter flowers the plants must have a good start in the spring. For large plants the stock should now be in 2½ or 3-inch pots and growing vigorously, but if the cuttings have not been made they can now be propagated in a cool bench and good-sized plants grown, or stock should be secured at once. Do not allow these plants to become pot-bound, but shift them into 4-inch pots as soon as they require it and pot very firmly. Keep the plants pinched back, that they may branch more freely, and keep all flowers and buds picked off. For many years these plants were grown in the open ground, but in some localities they have been attacked with a club root in field culture, and inside culture has become necessary for success. A cold frame in which the pots are plunged is the culture successfully practiced by many growers. In late summer they should be potted in large pots, 8-inch or 9-inch, or planted in the bench in good, rich soil, so that they will be well established for fall and winter flowering. The plants grown in pots are more prolific in flowering, and the size of the flowers can be maintained with liquid manure. Aphid should be kept down by fumigation, while the leaf miner is a very destructive insect if once firmly established, but persistent spraying with a strong nicotine solution will eradicate this pest.

American Dahlia Society.

A meeting of the executive committee of the society, in conjunction with the nomenclature committee, was held at the Grand hotel, New York, Monday, May 12. A report from the treasurer was presented showing the finances of the society to be in good shape. A resolution in memory of the work and activities in the dahlia world of the late J. H. Slocombe, New Haven, Conn., was presented and adopted.

The members of the two committees, with all the officers of the society, were constituted a board of judges to inspect and pass upon the new varieties of dahlias planted this year in the society's trial garden, conducted by the Connecticut Agricultural College at Storrs. It was also decided that the day to be selected for the official inspection should be a society day, when all members and friends would be welcomed at the garden.

A preliminary schedule of classes for the fall show, to be held under the auspices of the American Institute, in the Engineering Building, 25-33 West 39th street, New York, September 23-25, was prepared and adopted. It was arranged that in all classes calling for decorative arrangements the use of other flowers, grasses, or foliage will be allowed, to bring out the colors of the dahlias, but dahlias must predominate.

The matter of registration with the society of names of new dahlias was discussed at considerable length. It had been reported that duplication of names was becoming so general as to cause regrettable confusion in catalogue descriptions. For instance, three varieties had been given the name of General Pershing, each different in color and classification. It was decided to inaugurate a department of registration, which, it was hoped, would at least minimize this evil. Raisers of dahlias are requested, at naming time, to send to the secretary, a description of the dahlia to be named, with the proposed name, and an application for registration. The application will be advertised, and if no objection should be received within a specified period the name selected would be registered. All dahlias presented for registration must be distinct varieties, mere varietal differences not being considered. The co-operation of local societies and horticultural organizations is to be solicited in this work, and in the case of an award of a certificate to a variety, it is to be recommended that the name of the variety be submitted to the American Dahlia Society for registration prior to the issue of a certificate.

TRIAL GARDEN RULES.

The following rules governing plantings in the trial garden were adopted:

1. Dahlias can only be entered by the raiser or introducer.
2. Dahlias shall be new varieties not less than two years old.
3. Tubers cannot be received after June 1; plants to June 30.
4. All tubers or plants must be sent prepaid. The clumps to be returned at the end of the season, if desired, at owner's risk.
5. Tubers and plants shall be properly planted and taken care of throughout the season. The name of the variety and of the raiser posted on the stake.
6. A charge of $1 shall be made for each variety entered.
7. Exhibitors can only enter three plants of any variety.
8. Flowers from the trial gardens to be exhibited at the annual American Dahlia Society show.
9. The American Dahlia Society to appoint judges to score and classify the flowers in the garden.
10. The American Dahlia Society's certificate of merit to be awarded to the varieties scoring the necessary number of points.

JUDGING SCALE.

The nomenclature committee recommended for acceptance, the following scales of points in judging dahlias, and the same were duly adopted:

JOLIET, ILL.—The machinery and heating system at the range of the Davis-Joliet Co., formerly the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co.'s property has been damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars, the work of vandals, the brass work being stolen, evidently for junk.

SIoux CITY, IA.—Rocklin & Lehman, well known local florists, replying to an article printed in the Sioux City Tribune regarding high prices charged for flowers for Mothers' day, call attention to the fact that the highest price they asked for carnations was 25 cents per flower for Laddie, and short stemmed stock was sold as low as 10 cents. They emphasized the fact that the quality was better and prices lower than any city in the country.

Say It With Money.

Say it with money,
The campaign is new,
The good work has started,
How about you?
Hundreds are helping,
Put down your name,
Get your handful of chips
And sit in the game.

Say it with money,
Help the boys out,
Let them all see
That you're a good scout.
Just get it a going
It never will stop.
Over the top with it,
Over the top.

Say it with money,
Publicity counts;
You'll get it all back
In goodly amounts.
Come now, loosen up,
Get out of the rut,
Join in with the speed boys,
They'll help you up.

Say it with money.
There's nothing else talks
Or has such a pull
When everything balks.
A five or a ten spot
Starts you in fine;
Get your name on the list
And stand in the line.

Say it with money,
The call has been made
Broadcast through the country
To all in the trade;
Come, do your full duty
In this hour of need,
Each man his utmost
In spirit and deed.

Say it with money,
And spread everywhere
That the message with flowers
Can be sent through the air.
It will start the trade moving;
And coming your way.
Come now, get busy.
Send that check in to-day.

Say it with money;
You know what they mean;
Far too many flowers
Are born unseen
To waste their fragrance—
Ah! what's that, Oh joy!
Put you down for twenty?
Fine! Good work, old boy!

Say it with money
And let's have it quick!
The way that you hold back,
It makes us all sick!
There's just a month more
We must get it across,
So come all you slackers,
Shake off the moss!

Say it with money,
And say it like men;
Help on the good work
Of John Young and Penn.
Mail to that office
'Leven seventy Broadway;
The check that's been due there
This many a day.

What is the Matter?

The florist of today is enjoying greater prosperity in spite of the many ordeals we have passed through during the last 18 months, than any time in the history of flowers. During this period the national publicity campaign has brought about unusual activity that has aroused many a florist out of his slumber into one of qui vive all the time until even the present moment. Now while the national publicity movement does not take the entire credit for this unusual business that has been hovering over us all, may it not receive partial credit for putting over the idea that it was essential to the local man to try a little of it, and incidentally tying up to the campaign so that the slogan, "Say it With Flowers," has linked the florist from the north to the south and from the east to the west, to feel the merits of its work all over by building up more business by telegraphing and otherwise?

Now, if it has helped you just a little, whether you be grower, wholesaler or retailer, do you not feel you ought to reciprocate by helping the campaign fund so that the work may be furthered to even greater circles? The contribution is a voluntary one and the benefits obtained—well, enough said.

HENRY PENN,

Chairman Nat'l Pub. Campaign.

National Publicity for Flowers.

Interest in the national publicity campaign is broadening, as the benefit resulting from it becomes more and more apparent. It is not strange that many reports come to the promotion bureau pointing out specific benefit from the national magazine advertising. A prominent florist when discussing the future of the campaign spoke of the early days when the initial advertisements appeared. In that season, he said, business had just dragged along, very little doing, until the opening of February, when there was a very noticeable spurt, with a big St. Valentine's day trade, and this good business continued until the end of the season. If this was not due to the magazine advertising, he said, to what was it due, for it certainly was remarkable?

Florists who are closely watching the progress of our work are loud in their praises, realizing that the results are plainly to be seen. In many communities week-end business has increased wonderfully. Birthday business, too, has gone forward by leaps and bounds. The slogan, "Say It with Flowers," is having a far reaching effect, as it was intended it should. Such a reminder is very necessary to some people. How many orders do you suppose the slogan sign you are displaying—if you are displaying one—has brought into your establishment. You might be astonished if you had kept a record, which would not have been difficult, for most people impressed by the sign make reference to it when its message gets home in this way.

In this connection we wish to draw the attention of every florist to our page in colors in the June Metropolitan, which went on sale about May 14. Do you suppose this advertisement will be missed by the half million purchasers of that issue—a half million of flower-buying prospects scattered over the country? And, remember, it is generally conceded that each copy of a high class magazine has five readers.

If you have not a sign, do you not think it time to secure one, either in glass or transfer form? Several of our large supply houses are carrying stocks of glass signs, which they supply to their local trade at the advertised cost, $2, without profit to themselves. S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia; M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; Geo. B. Hart, Rochester, N. Y.; Wm. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y.; Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., McCallum Co., Chicago; St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., and Welch Bros. Co., Boston, are among them. The secretary would like to hear from other wholesale and supply houses who would undertake to place among their local trade a few of these signs. To see one is to buy one, if a retailer.

Need it be again said that our publicity committees cannot carry out their plans for publicity unless they pay as they go? It is all right, Mr. Nonsubscriber, to commend the work which your brother florists are doing for you, but wouldn't it be better to cash in on the good intentions you undoubtedly have, and send to the secretary your cheque for the amount you know you are willing to contribute? Get wholly into the game, it needs you. We are trying to raise $100,000 this year, to give back to the contributors very many times that amount in increased business. Every subscription is recorded, and every item of expense laid before the subscribers. If you want to see what your neighbors have subscribed, write to the secretary for a subscription list to date. If you find they have not yet subscribed, heat them to it—be a whole-souled, up-to-date florist who desires to see the florist trade at its best.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Plant Quarantine No. 37.

ENTRY OF PLANTS OF NOVELTIES, ETC.

Regulation 14 of the regulations relative to the importation of nursery stock and other plants and seeds has been revised and reissued. In its new form it is essentially an interpretation of the old regulation 14 rather than an enlargement of powers under the quarantine, inasmuch as the regulation, as worded in the quarantine as originally issued, was intended to cover exactly what is now more clearly stated in the new regulation. This regulation provides for the importation under a special permit from the Secretary of Agriculture, of limited quantities of otherwise prohibited stock for the purpose of keeping the country supplied with new varieties of plants and stock for propagation purposes not available in the United States. This amendment, however, does not apply to a few plants which have been specifically prohibited entry under other quarantines, as, for example, pines, ribes and grossularia from certain countries, and citrus, banana, and bamboo stock.

The following explanations of regulation 14 are given to indicate the limitations under this regulation and the procedure to be followed in making importations of the two classes of plants specified, namely, new varieties and necessary propagating stock:

The expression "New Varieties" is understood to mean plant novelties; that is, new horticultural or floricultural creations of new discoveries.

"Necessary Propagating Stock" is understood to mean stock of old or standard varieties imported for the multiplication of the plants in question as a nursery or florist enterprise, as distinguished from importations for immediate or ultimate sale of the stocks actually imported, and such importations will be restricted to stocks which are not available in this country in adequate quantities.

The expression "Limited Quantities" used in regulation 14 is understood to mean with respect both to new varieties and to standard stocks, such quantities as will supply reasonable needs for the establishment of reproduction plantings which may be thereafter independent of foreign supplies.

There is no limitation as to the number of permits for different plants or classes of plants under regulation 14 which an individual may request, but the applications will all be passed upon both as to necessity for the particular importation and as to the quantity adequate for the purpose intended, by experts of the department, for the information of the board prior to the issuance of the permits.

All importations under regulation 14 must be made under special permits through the office of foreign seed and plant introduction of the department of agriculture, but for the use of the individual importer. The importer will be required to meet all entry, transportation and freight-handling charges. The department will make no charge for inspection and supervision. The necessary procedure for making such importations is as follows:

1. The federal horticultural board will supply, on request, an application upon which request may be made for a special permit to import. This application embodies an agreement on the part of the importer that if the imported material is found on examination by an inspector of the department of agriculture to be so infested or infected with insects or disease that it cannot be adequately safeguarded, it may be destroyed, and such destruction will not be made the basis of a claim against the department of agriculture for damages. The application must be accompanied by a statement certifying that the plants to be imported are novelties, or if standard varieties of foreign plants, that stocks in adequate quantities for their propagation are not available in this country, and that in either case they are to be imported for the establishment of reproduction plantings and not for immediate or ultimate sale of the stocks actually imported. In exceptional cases the importation of novelties may be made for personal use, but not for sale. The application must also give the name and address of the exporter, country and locality where the stock was grown, the name and address of the importer and the name and address of the nursery or other establishment in which the plants are to be reproduced on release.

2. If the permit is issued, the applicant will be furnished shipping instructions and shipping tags to be forwarded with his order to the exporter. The plants will, in consequence, be addressed in bond to the United States department of agriculture, bureau of plant industry, Washington, D. C., United States of America, and endorsed, "Foreign Seed and Plant Introduction, for (insert name of importer)", and arrangements must be made with some responsible agency in Washington for the clearance of the plants when received through the custom house at Georgetown, D. C., together with the payment of all charges involved.

3. Upon clearance through the Georgetown custom house, the material will be turned over to the office of foreign seed and plant introduction by the authorized agent of the importer, and in the specially equipped inspection houses and under expert care as to the welfare of the plants, be carefully examined by inspectors of the federal horticultural board. If found free from dangerous insects or diseases, the shipment will be immediately and carefully repacked and forwarded by express, charges collect, to the importer.

4. Cleaning and disinfection will occur for slight infestation, but should the material be found to be so infested or infested with either disease or insects that it cannot be so adequately safeguarded, it will either be destroyed, or, when possible and desirable, returned to the point of origin.

C. L. MARLATT.
Chairman of Board.

Gladiolus Tristis.

A graceful but not commonly-grown species of gladiolus is G. tristis, a native of South Africa. It is a plant known to cultivation for a long number of years and recorded as flowering in the Chelsea Botanic Garden in 1745. The species is variable as to color, a common form being buff or light sulphur-colored, with penciling of light purple on the three lower segments, the middle segment generally having a median band of this color. Although the flowers are not strikingly effective the coloring is scarcely so somber as to warrant the name of tristis, given by Linnaeus in the days of long ago.

G. tristis is quite hardy in the south of England, and is probably the earliest of gladioli to flower out of doors. Moreover, it is easy of increase either from seeds or "spawn," i. e. small corms, and seeds ripen readily in Devon and Cornwall. More attractive than the type is G. tristis concolor, also known as G. t. sulphureus, which has clear, light, sulphur-yellow flowers.

The form of the blooms and their disposition on the slender spikes was well shown in some flowers which came from France to Covent Garden market in the ordinary way of business, tied in bunches and packed closely together in the usual wicker pads. After a day in water the flowers expanded beautifully and emitted the delightful fragrance for which the species has had a reputation for the better part of 200 years. The spikes were over two feet long, and carried three or four expanded flowers at one time. No large quantities of these gladioli spikes are sent from France, but some arrive with almost every consignment of flowers over a period of about three weeks. It is generally considered that none but gay blooms or those with decided colors are salable in Covent Garden flower market, but this is scarcely true, because Gladiolus tristis and Iris tuberosa have been on sale for several weeks and, apparently, never have had to be thrown away for lack of a purchaser.—London Gardeners' Chronicle.

North Shore Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the North Shore Horticultural Society was held at Lake Forest, Ill., May 2, with President Wm. Fisher in the chair. The exhibits for the evening were excellent, some very fine specimens being staged by the members. The committees working upon the summer and fall shows made their reports as did the picnic committee. After some interesting discussions by the members, the judges, Messrs. McNaughton, Bollinger and Geppert made the following awards: Twelve spikes of Iris Tingitana, by J. Kiley, 95 points; Laelia purpurata, by Thomas Head, 98 points; one calceolaria, by J. H. Francis, 95 points; one calceolaria, by T. Dobbins, 96 points; vase of Nemesia strumosa, by R. Chalmers, 95 points. Mr. Head also exhibited a very fine calceolaria, a vase of anthers and some beautiful strawberries. These were awarded a cultural certificate. Six specimen calceolarias and one rhododendron, shown by T. Dobbins were also awarded cultural certificates. A display of Narcissus King Alfred, tulips, etc., by J. Kiley received like honors.

J. H. FRANCIS, Cor. Sec'y.

Holyoke and Northampton Club.

The monthly meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held May 6 at the range of G. M. Sinclair, Smith Ferry, Mass., the chair being occupied by D. G. Gallivan in the absence of President Harold Keyes. A discussion of plant prices was the principal feature of the session. The exhibits were rather few and not up to the usual standard and members were urged to greater effort to keep up the good record of the past. H. E. Downing was the winner of the monthly prize, his exhibit being a Mme. Thibaut pelargonium which scored 80 points.

Washington, D. C.*SIDEWALK PLANT DISPLAYS PROHIBITED.

An ordinance passed some time ago will after June 10 prohibit the display of bedding plants in front of florists' stores in this city. The measure which places florists in the same class in this respect as grocers, butchers and other similar trades, brought an order last week to clear the sidewalks in two hours, but a hurried conference by a committee of the florists' club with the district commissioners, secured a modification to withhold the order until the end of the bedding season this year in order to prevent loss of the plants. Arrangements will have to be made next year, however, to conform to the ruling.

NOTES.

Everyone attending the memorial service, June 9, for those who died in the great war is to be asked to carry a bouquet according to a letter received by George C. Shaffer. It has been suggested that the florists' club decorate the platform.

Edward P. Rodman, secretary of the florists' club, has purchased an attractive home in Chevy Chase, Md., at the corner of Brookville road and Primrose street. B. F. L.

Buffalo.*RAIN HURTS MOTHERS' DAY TRADE.

During the past week there has not been a great deal of trade activity although bank openings and a few weddings and receptions have added to the general business. The supply is good and the quality excellent. Sweet peas are plentiful and good. Prima Donna roses are now arriving in splendid condition and the same is true of Russell and Ophelia. Mothers' day as a whole was better than last year notwithstanding it was only three weeks from Easter and in the most important period of the Victory loan campaign. Also, one of the heaviest rains that this city has had for some time continued three days, ending on Monday. Had it not been for this, business would have been equal to if not better than the Easter demand. Carnations sold at $3 per dozen, higher at wholesale than ever before, and left small margin of profit for the retailer. For this reason the sale of other flowers was encouraged. Attractively arranged baskets, boxes of plants and other plant offerings will be used in future more than ever before. The trade here have learned that it is not necessary to feature carnations for Mothers' day. The drop in carnation prices after the event was something to be marveled at.

NOTES.

There will be no removals among the trade in the near future. All seem to be well located in good locations and modern stores.

David Scott is reported steadily improving following an operation at a local hospital. BISON.

St. Louis.*TRADE SLOW EXCEPT FOR MOTHERS' DAY.

The market, the past few weeks, has been slow, with occasional spurts of funeral or wedding work. Mothers' day business was wonderful, showing a substantial increase over last year. The buying public is getting away from the carnation idea gradually, and using all sorts of flowers for the occasion. The supply of stock has been short the last few weeks, due mostly to the inclement weather conditions. Quite a few of the county growers suffered from the recent hail storm, and the continued rains are ruining the stock in so far as the flowers are concerned. Sweet peas, particularly, are off crop on this account. Roses have been coming in fair supply with a slow demand. Outdoor stock is not of the best. Peonies are starting in heavy supply, and unless the weather improves, many will be lost on account of becoming waterlogged. Smilax continues to bring good returns. Southern stock has appeared on the market and ferns have dropped considerably in price.

NOTES.

The retail florists' association held a meeting May 12, discussing Mothers' day business. They protested against the high price of carnations. However, the local market was no higher than other large flower centers. In fact, many were quite a bit higher.

The past few weeks have seen quite a few weddings, especially of returned soldiers. Some of them have been very profitable for the retail florist. The lack of lily of the valley on this market has been felt very keenly.

O. C. May, of Sappington, Mo., states he will begin to cut heavily on his gladioli at an early date. He planted more this year than ever before.

The past week was very poor for the plantmen. It rained most every day, which discourages the sale of bedding stock.

R. J. Windler, formerly of this city, but now a grower in Chicago, spent a few days here visiting his mother.

Visitor: Julius Dilloff, New York.

J. J. W.

Nashville, Tenn.*MOTHERS' DAY SETS HIGH MARK.

The trade in this city is still talking about the phenomenal Easter trade, unusual both in supply and quality of stock, surpassing any previous event in flower sales here. Mothers' day was equally satisfactory and very nearly as large in every way. The supply of flowers is now much better than it has been for several months. Both roses and carnations are coming in more freely and there is an excellent supply of Easter lilies. Although peonies appear to almost glut the market, the situation does not prevent them from bringing $3 per dozen. They are magnificent specimens and of every color from rose and crimson to pure white.

NOTE.

That the florist business is thriving in this city is evidenced by the fact that all of the leading firms are constantly adding to their capacity. In the past few years there has been wonderful development at the range of the McIntyre Floral Co. Beginning with a small place of about six acres, then on the outskirts of the city, which location is now almost in the corporate limits, where land sells by the foot instead of acre, they have now established themselves on the Nolenville road and have 36 acres. In one ranga they have seven houses 30x218 feet, three filled with fine roses, Russell being probably the leader. This firm is now finishing another house 30x270 designed for chrysanthemums. They have thousands of small plants of this stock as well as large quantities of cyclamens coming along for next season. Hundreds of young hydrangeas are also a feature. Just now they are rushing the plant season and thousands of petunias, verbenas, salvias and other bedding stock are being brought along in cold frames 5x200 feet. M. C. D.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—An attractive flower store on North Salina street has been opened by A. Savine.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—John Reck & Son are preparing to move into their new store, a handsome structure erected on the site formerly occupied by the firm.

OBITUARY.*John Ingram.

John Ingram, well known and popular florist of Oyster Bay, N. Y., died in the Huntington, L. I., N. Y., hospital, May 15, following an operation for blood poisoning. The circumstances that caused his death were particularly sad. About a week previous he sustained a slight wound on one of his hands from a piece of galvanized wire. Being a busy man he paid little attention to it until the hand began to pain him. He visited doctors but gained no relief, as it would appear that they did not understand the real cause of his suffering.

He finally went to the hospital where the doctors said then the only chance of saving his life was to amputate the arm above the elbow, which they did, but the poison had progressed too far and he only survived two days.

Mr. Ingram was born in the north of Scotland 45 years previous to the day of his death, May 14 being his birthday. He located in Oyster Bay about 12 years ago, being the town florist, both growing and retailing. He was genial and obliging, and soon had practically the whole population as his friends. His funeral was held in the Presbyterian church of Oyster Bay Sunday, May 18, the church being filled to capacity. Nearly 1,000 persons, several from New York, attending. Interment was in the Roslyn, L. I., cemetery, with full Masonic honors. He is survived by his wife and five young children, for whom a profound sympathy is felt by the citizens of Oyster Bay and many other friends. A. F. F.

Edward H. Freis.

Edward H. Freis, for many years a well known florist of Fort Thomas, a suburb of Cincinnati, O., died at his home recently of heart trouble following an attack of influenza with which he suffered during the epidemic last fall. He was 50 years of age. Early in life he entered the business with his father, and later built a large range in St. Thomas, which he conducted for eight years, disposing of the same at the time of his father's retirement and taking charge of the original establishment. He leaves many friends who will hear of his death with sincere regret. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Hattie Freis.

Mrs. John Trepel.

Mrs. John Trepel, wife of a well known Brooklyn, N. Y., florist, died May 13 of pneumonia, aged 27 years. Mrs. Trepel was an amiable lady, and her early passing away has caused grief in her home and many expressions of sympathy for the bereaved husband. A. F. F.

CELINA, O.—J. A. Ernsberger has disposed of his range to a company composed of A. W. Boslog, O. Rentsch, C. A. McKim, W. T. Palmer and others.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—The Hendrickson Farm Greenhouses at Northfield, N. J., have been purchased by D. B. Edwards who will grow a general line of stock for the Edwards Floral Hall Co., his retail establishment in this city.

PANA, ILL.—The Pana Engine Manufacturing Co., which will construct engines for the United States shipping board, has been organized here, among the officers being P. L. McKee, H. H. Putnam and Adolph Neilson of the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. of this city.

HEAVY SUPPLY DURING PAST WEEK.

Stock of all kinds was in heavy supply the past week, owing to the warm weather, but cleaned up fairly well at satisfactory prices considering the condition of the market taken as a whole. Roses were seen in quantity everywhere and were obtainable in large lots at some of the houses at attractive prices by the buyers. Some particularly fine Mrs. Charles Russell and Columbia are included in the shipments, as are Ophelia, Champ Weiland, Sunburst, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Killarney, White Killarney, Double White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Milady, Richmond, Hoosier Beauty, Hadley and all the other varieties grown for this market. American Beauty Roses are a factor in the market and are arriving in splendid condition. Carnations are seen in large numbers, but appear to be moving well alongside of all the other stock and are easily holding their own. Sweet peas were in exceedingly heavy supply the past week, but were in strong demand, although the prices realized on this item were nothing like those that were received heretofore. Orchids cleaned up completely the past week when a shipment of 500 blooms was made to one of the eastern markets. Peonies are more plentiful, and many are being placed in storage to meet the Memorial day demand. Lily of the valley does not appear to be any too plentiful. Snapdragons, tulips, calendulas, statice, daisies, lilies, callas, pansies, stocks, candytuft, sweet alyssum, lilac, lupines and other miscellaneous seasonal stock is included in the offerings. Many orders have already been booked for Memorial day and new ones are arriving every day. Some of the dealers are inclined to believe that stock in some lines will be plentiful, while others are figuring on a scarcity. One thing is certain, that the peony supply will not be as heavy as last year, owing to the fact that one of the large dealers sold at least one-half of his cut for Mothers' day, and several more disposed of large shipments, which in other years were placed in storage, but were sold as fast as they arrived this season, owing to the high prices prevailing. Some of the peony growing sections were hit by a heavy frost recently which will also help to reduce the supply considerably. Regardless of all the reports that are being heard, everyone will do well to place their orders immediately, if they have not already done so, for everything points to a heavy call with a good clean-up if the weather is at all favorable.

NOTES.

Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department reports business as brisk with a heavy demand for made-up wreaths for Memorial day. The out-of-town demand is particularly heavy and the city call is increasing as the big event approaches.

Miss Charlotte Paradise, cashier at A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store, is expecting her brother, Eugene, back home almost any day now. He was with the famous Thirty-third that made such a brilliant record abroad.

Joe Einweck, of the Bassett & Washburn force, is still with the American troops in Russia. It would not be at all surprising if Uncle Sam ordered the boys home from there in the near future.

A. E. Turner, of Mosinee, Wis., called on the wholesale trade here this week.

N. J. Wietor's son, Leo, who is attending college at Milwaukee, Wis., with his brother, Harry, wrote the following, which he sent home on Mothers' day: The noblest thoughts my soul can claim, The holiest words my tongue can frame, Unworthy are to praise the name, More sacred than all others. An infant, when her love first came, A man, I find it just the same, Reverently I breathe the name, The blessed name of Mother.

Allie Zech and wife, and George Asmus, wife and daughter, Beatrice, attended the dance given by the Milwaukee Florists' Club May 15, and report one of the best times ever. The trip to the Cream City was made by auto.

Bill Collignon writes from Le Mans, France, to T. E. Waters, that he is in good health, which his many friends here are pleased to learn. He has been promoted to lieutenant since he was overseas.

Peter Reinberg reports such a brisk demand for carnations for Memorial day that there is no question in any one's mind as to whether or not they will bring the advertised quotations.

Bassett & Washburn bought a new White truck this week. Mr. Washburn reports that business is good and that many large orders have already been booked for Memorial day.

Fred Price and Allie Zech will bowl a match game for the individual championship of the trade at the Wabash alleys, Saturday evening, May 24. The winner will be $50 to the good.

A. Lazeroff, who was formerly employed in the local wholesale market, was honorably discharged from the army recently after serving many months overseas.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. received a shipment of asters as early as last week, which attracted the attention of all the city buyers who visited their establishment.

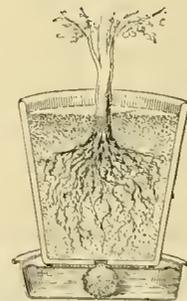

Sam Cohan, formerly employed in Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s office, has been honorably discharged from the army after serving many months abroad.

Miss Olga Tonner, who has been at home with an ulcerated tooth for over a week, is expected back in a few days at O. A. & L. A. Tonner's store.

Walter Stoklos received several large shipments of strawflowers the past week. The stock was some of the finest ever offered in this market.

L. T. Chrisman, of the Alpha Floral Co., Des Moines, Ia., is spending a few days here this week on a combined business and pleasure trip.

Mention the American Florist when writing

According to one of the daily papers, 1,000 girls will march at the head of the Prairie Division parade next week, strewing flowers in its path, and, in order to get enough, every citizen who can get into the country next Sunday, May 25, is urged to pick wild flowers and send them to the 149th F. A. headquarters, 22 East Washington street, which will distribute them to the girls. All city park boards have agreed to pick and send every wild and greenhouse flower in the parks for the parade. The florists called a special meeting to see how many they could furnish, but the shortage of greenhouse flowers will make necessary the addition of all the wild flowers obtainable.

Jack Beyers, who probably did as much fighting as any other American soldier abroad, is due to arrive at New York this week. There will be one grand time in the old town when he gets back.

Eddie O'Neil, formerly with the Ernst Wienhoeber Co., has taken a position with the Park Flower Shop, Cleveland, O., and will report for duty in a few days.

Vaughan's Seed Store reports unusual demand for gladiolus bulbs for late planting from florists who plant for their own summer counter trade.

This market is unable to make express shipments to Winnipeg, Can., and Detroit, Mich., owing to the strikes in those cities.

At Erne & Co.'s store, double white narcissi have been arriving in good supply the past week and in splendid condition.

Miss Schmuck, of the Taepke Floral Co., Detroit, Mich., was a visitor at the Weiland-Risch Co.'s store last week.

Mrs. P. J. Foley, who has been in the hospital, returned home May 17 and is progressing favorably.

Many residents of this city are being enrolled in the "Grow More Roses" campaign being conducted by the Commercial club, it being pointed out that most varieties will with ordinary care survive the winter in this climate. A. B. Kesler, a local expert in flower growing, is a member of the campaign committee who has taken a great interest in the movement and is offering valuable information regarding planting.

STOCK BECOMING MORE PLENTIFUL.

For the first time during the month the supply in all lines became more plentiful last week but the demand kept pace with the arrivals and there was not much decline in prices. The absence of funeral work, which has been unusually brisk for some time, was noticeable.

FLORIST CLUB'S MAY BALL.

In spite of inclement weather, for it rained nearly all of the afternoon, the dancing party which was held May 15 at the Calumet club was well attended and proved to be a most enjoyable affair. The fire place near the entrance and the main hall were decorated with palms, ferns, etc., kindly donated by club members. During several intermissions Mme. Lurad entertained with vocal selections which made a decided hit. Refreshments were served in the course of the evening. Unstinted credit is due President Kennedy and Messrs. Hare, Halliday and Marquardt who comprised the entertainment committee and to Mesdames Wm. A. Kennedy and Henry Marquardt of the ladies' reception committee, for the success of this enjoyable event, a real treat in every way. George Asmus, wife and daughter, and Allie Zeeh and wife of Chicago were among the out-of-town guests, making the trip by auto and returning home the following day after calling on friends in the forenoon.

NOTES.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. had a brisk demand for spring stock during the past week. Although their supply was larger than in former seasons, they are sold out on some lines at this time, with further orders being received daily.

With the backward season showing its effect, the growers in this vicinity are working overtime to get the young carnations into the field. They are two weeks behind as compared with other years.

The Holton & Hunkle Co. reports consignments shipped to its Canadian customers, May 12, were returned from St. Paul, Minn., due to an expressmen's strike in the Dominion.

Gust. Ruseh & Co. report business is keeping up in good shape with a plentiful supply to meet all requirements.

BAD WEATHER AND STREET CAR STRIKE.

Mothers' day will go on record as the best in the history of the trade in this city. It rained every day for a week previous to the occasion, but in spite of inclement weather, everything cleaned up with the exception of American Beauties. Carnations, as usual, were in greatest demand and returned from $10 to $15 per 100. The first shipments of southern peonies arrived in time and met with quick sales at $1.50 and $2 per dozen. The street car employes went on a strike May 14 and as a wheel has not been turned since that date, coupled with bad weather, business has been nearly paralyzed. The death of H. J. Heirz caused a flurry the latter part of the week and some of the retailers had very good orders. American Beauties have been of fine quality and the demand at present is somewhat improved. Receipts of Columbia, Russell and Milady have been light but equal to requirements. Pink and white Killarneys, Ophelia, Sawyer, Sunburst and Hilda are being received in large numbers and are quoted at from $3 to $15 per 100. Carnations are now in plentiful supply and the price has dropped to $6 and $8 for the best while poorer stock goes for much less. The receipts of Easter lilies and callas are not heavy and they clean up each day at 20 and 25 cents. Snapdragon is poor as its season is about over. Yellow daisies are very good and are sold at $2 and $3 per 100. The supply of peonies is not nearly adequate. The call for other flowers is light.

NOTES.

Joseph Seaman, formerly with Randolph & McClements and the Alpha Floral Co., is now representing the McCallum Co. on the road. Earl Tipton of the latter firm has returned from a business trip to Philadelphia and other points in the state.

SPRING PLANTING IN FULL BLAST.

The spring planting season, which has been retarded by the unusually cool temperature, is now on in full blast with the arrival of more seasonable weather. Greenhouses and growers who make a specialty of out-of-door planting report a brisk demand for all kinds of bedding stock which is in good supply this year. Geraniums are sold before they can come into bloom and are bringing the highest prices in years. This plant had always been valued too cheaply in this vicinity, but the war forced a change. The five cent sale, which so demoralized the market in other years, is a thing of the past. Hanging baskets, window and porch boxes, shrubbery and vines of all sorts seem to be in a good demand and all indications point to a splendid clean up this year. Business continues excellent and there is a healthy and continuous call for wedding decorations, graduation bouquets and funeral work. Stock is coming in fine quality and equal to the demand. Roses are exceptionally good and clean up. Carnations and sweet peas are of splendid quality and sell briskly.

extensively advertised the slogan, "Say It With Flowers." #### LULL FOLLOWS MOTHERS' DAY.

There was a lull in the trade last week following the Mothers' day business, and most of the florists were glad for a brief respite, with only a normal amount of work to keep them busy. As stock was decidedly scarce, they could not have filled a great many more orders, at least until the middle of the week, when the supply showed a substantial increase, due to the warmer temperatures. Funeral work was about normal, and there was a moderate demand for stock for pre-nuptial affairs, and a very good call for flowers for the hospitals, and small weddings. Counter trade has been brisk, due, no doubt, to the pleasant weather. The supply, particularly in roses and carnations, had been very short, and the scarcity of carnations continues, with prices stiff. Roses were more plentiful the latter part of the week.

NOTES.

The advance preparations for Memorial day are more in evidence than ever, and the florist is an exception who does not have a nice stock of all kinds of marketable wreaths, baskets, bouquets, etc., in readiness for the Memorial day rush. Advance orders are already numerous, both through the F. T. D., and local orders.

A splendid cut of America gladioli is a daily occurrence at the Flick Floral Co.'s greenhouses. This firm is having a heavy spring trade in all lines. Some fine Darwin tulips and peonies were also noted here.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey report an overwhelming business on Mothers' day, which far surpassed last year, in spite of the shortage of flowers. They are now doing a big business in bedding plants.

The Doswell Floral Co. is having a fine sale of porch boxes and baskets and good trade in hospital flowers.

BUSINESS UNUSUALLY ACTIVE.

Florists in this city have had no respite from the rush of business during the entire spring season but of course there are no complaints heard on this score. The winter brought heavy trade occasioned by the influenza epidemic and this was followed by Easter, Mothers' day and events of less importance closely crowding one another. And now Memorial day is close at hand. At this time a monster demonstration is being planned for this city's returning soldiers and the programme will include the strewing of the line of march with flowers. The trade is already wondering where they are to secure the blossoms for this event. Stock is much higher priced than last year, but under the conditions which have made such advances necessary the public have paid the increase with but little complaint and more flowers are sold here than ever before.

Jersey City, N. J.

John F. Madden, 768 Bergen avenue, had quite a lot of work for the parade of the home-coming Jersey soldiers, May 19. He made a large American flag of immortelles, and a large heart inscribed, "We welcome you with all our heart." He also had other decorations. William Grote, formerly with McKenney, Fifth avenue and 42nd street, New York, is now designer for this store. Madden has a large cemetery patronage, and is now busy with Memorial day preparations. They had fine Mothers' day business and sold 3,000 carnations besides other stock.

First Sergeant Alfred F. Kendall, of the 496th Aero Squadron, landed at Hoboken, May 5, after 18 months' service "over there." He is a brother of Miss May F. Kendall, the popular florist of 532 Jersey avenue, who, with the rest of the family, was rejoiced to see him safe home again.

James A. Sullivan, 277 Grove street, reports good business. Joseph Williams, who was with Fred Wolfinger, of Newark, for four years, is now the designer at the Sullivan store.

E. Bonnot, who for a number of years was located on Montgomery street, has now a good store at 115 Monticello avenue.

H. G. Weidemann, 222 Monticello avenue, states that he had good Mothers' day business.

TRADE ABOVE COMPLAINT.

Business, although somewhat quiet, is fairly satisfactory. Supplies are large and fully adequate for all present wants. The rose supply is good and of high quality. Carnations are fairly plentiful, but include only a fair amount of fancy stock. Gladioli are coming along nicely and are proving good property. Peonies have been finding an excellent market. Easter lilies, callas and rubrums are all meeting buyers. Sweet peas are fairly plentiful. A part of the receipts of this flower are of a high quality. Others offerings are snapdragons, which are extremely plentiful, calendulas, cornflower, Cape Jasmine and marguerites.

NOTES.

GOOD MOTHERS' DAY TRADE AND PRICES.

The volume of business transacted by the stores of this city on Mothers' day was far in excess of all expectations. The advertising campaign during the latter part of the week was no doubt a good business venture. There was an ample supply of nearly all stock. Carnations, which all week were wholesaling at 50 cents per bunch, jumped to $2.00 a bunch of 25 flowers on Friday. It was impossible to get white carnations for less, but even at that high figure all were sold. Colored carnations shared in the jump and brought $1.50 per bunch. Even at this writing, they are still bringing the same high figures. Roses did not share in the advance enjoyed by the carnation, but owing to the high price of the latter flower, the stores pushed the sale of other stock and cleaned up completely. There was a large cut of red and pink roses. Quite a lot of American Beauties were sent into the market and sold readily. Red roses and Cecile Brunners were in great demand. Mrs. Ward was also in good favor. Mrs. George Shawyer, a great favorite here, sold out early in the day. Good snapdragon was in short supply. Wherever available, it was bought up eagerly at fine figures. Every color was in favor. Iris was in great demand and no finer stock has ever been handled here than was sent into the market. Some of the stock had stems over four feet long, with splendid foliage. White, yellow and lavender were the quickest to sell out. Gardenias were also good property, but the receipts were not quite adequate for the large demand. A large supply is expected shortly, however. Cattleyas sold at $1 per bloom, with the sales very brisk. Peonies in all colors were in splendid supply. This season's stock is the best ever received in this market and they have jumped into prominence at a bound. Very few violets were received. This flower has disappeared from this market until next fall. Little, if any, bulbous stock was offered, owing to the lateness of the season, callas, both white and yellow, being about the only thing in this line to be had. Sweet peas are now at their best here. Large quantities were sold at attractive prices. Nearly all colors of the newer Spencers were represented. In flowering plants, rhododendrons were about the only thing to be had. Medium and small sizes sold out quickly, but the large plants dragged a little. There was a large offering of decorative greens and an immense quantity was disposed of.

NOTES.

The fifth annual California wild flower exhibition was a great success in every way. It was held May 9-10 and attracted large crowds. Wild flowers, plants, trees and native grasses from every corner of the state were on exhibition. The purpose of this show, which is an annual affair, is to educate the public to the importance of the native flora of the state and to urge the importance of their conservation. Since the automobile has become common, on the hidden highways of the state, many of the choicest varieties of flowering shrubs and wild flowers have come near to extinction. It is the great object of these shows to educate the public, so that the ruthless destruction of our native flowering shrubs can be prevented in some degree. John McLaren showed a large collection of flowering plants from Golden Gate park. Luther Burbank also made an interesting exhibit. Harold B. Parks, of Santa Clara, showed a large collection of fungi and mushrooms. Dr. Chas. Francis Saunders, of Pasadena, exhibited a collection of edible and medicinal plants formerly used by California Indians. The society is meeting with such success that these shows are to be repeated every year in this city.

The Art Floral Co. is displaying some very well grown orchids in pots this week. The Mothers' day business was excellent and a large amount of stock was shipped out of town. The shipping department in the basement is being enlarged and every convenience arranged for this end of the business. George Matraia, son of P. Vincent Matraia, is now associated with this company.

The California State Floral Society held its spring show May 10 at Yosemite hall. There was a beautiful display of roses and all other seasonable flowers. The showing of perennials was also excellent for so early in the year. The attendance was very good and the show voted a great success.

The large space used by the florists of this city in the daily papers contributed largely to the great increase in Mothers' day business. The co-operative advertising that the leading stores used of late has no doubt enriched the florist stores in every section of the city.

Inquiries among the growers would seem to indicate that the supply of gladioli for Memorial day will fall short of requirements. This is very popular here for shipping purposes, and large quantities are used for this day.

The Mission Florists report a splendid trade for Mothers' day. The high price of carnations helped the sale of other stock in fine shape, and they sold out completely in cut flowers. Funeral work always keeps this firm busy.

Podesta & Baldocchi are showing great quantities of cattleyas this week. The size of the flowers is one of the principal attractions. It is as finely grown stock as we have ever seen in this city.

The Francis Floral Co. is specializing in irises this week and is displaying many beautiful varieties. Business continues good at this pretty store. A large trade in baskets is always done here.

M. H. Ebel is in town from Sacramento, arranging for his supply of cut flowers for Memorial day. He says trade in that city on Mothers' day was much heavier than anticipated.

Domoto Bros. are receiving a large cut daily from their greenhouses across the bay. Shipping trade is keeping up in a satisfactory way with this firm.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

The Kentucky Society of Florists.

The Kentucky Society of Florists held its monthly meeting on the evening of May 14 at the Y. M. H. A. building. The meeting was well attended, full of interest and worth while. The excellent talk by "Billy" Mann on "Good Fellowship," and the lively discussion which followed, was the big feature of the evening. President Baumer appointed a committee to look after the details for the trip to Indianapolis in November when the Kentucky Society of Florists will meet with the State Florists Association of Indiana. The committee consists of Dave Walker, chairman; Milton Reimers, and Joe Able. It was decided that the society give an outing during the coming summer, and H. Kleinstarink, as chairman, Louis Kirch, Dave Walker, Anders Rasmussen, and Lewis Pleiss were appointed as a committee to make arrangements. Dues were then collected, and after several minor matters of business were disposed of, the meeting was adjourned.

BETTER SUPPLY IN GOOD DEMAND.

There has been a steady supply in all lines the past week, with an increasing number of gladioli and Spanish iris. Roses are in good form, and considering the time of year, bring very fair prices. Hadley, Russell, Ophelia, Columbia and American Beauty are of splendid quality. Sweet peas, while short stemmed, are in good demand. Cattleyas are gilt edged: nothing less than one dollar and no selection, big and little going together. The giganteums are practically done, there being but a few stragglers. What an experience growers have had with these bulbs the past year. They proved to have much greater vitality than expected and were profitable to all who had the courage to handle them. Snapdragon is now at its crest, fine stock being offered in all the houses. High grade peonies are now in, the first lots coming from the neighborhood of Washington, D. C. Local stock is now said to be practically safe for this market as the buds are well developed and the early ones are fully expected to be open by May 22 or the first of the following week. There is an abundance of shrubbery, deutzias, spiraeas and snowballs, which is in great favor with designers and decorators. Outdoor lily of the valley has been very plentiful. It is as good as the best imported.

May 19.—There was a fairly good demand in all lines this morning. Shipments from growers were normal, with the exception of roses, which were rather scarce, although not sufficiently so to affect prices. Carnations are quite plentiful and only the highest grades brought six cents. There are fairly large shipments of southern peonies, irises and gladioli. Cattleyas are behind the demand and anything worth while brings $1 each.

OUTERBRIDGE TALKS ON BERMUDA LILIES.

Theodore R. Outerbridge, of Sunnyslands, Bermuda, the Easter lily expert of the island, was a recent interesting visitor. In speaking of the introduction of the lily to Bermuda, he stated it was sent there by W. R. Buchanan, a prominent florist of New York about 50 years ago. The variety was Tokashima with striped foliage, a native of Japan. They were sent as a present to the public librarian in Hamilton, John Richardson, who planted them out, and as they grew and multiplied, gave them away to his neighbors until they were grown quite extensively in many yards and in the cemeteries. After a time they lost their variegation and there was a change in the shape of the flower. There was no movement to grow these commercially, until one summer a young man by the name of Kift, from the United States, suddenly appeared, and going from one garden to another bought up all he could get his hands on. This set the people thinking and before long little patches of lilies were seen in many gardens and small farmers added lilies to their onion patches. The production increased until it reached over 1,000,000 bulbs per annum. Then over cultivation produced weakness in the stock, and this, together with the ravages of a minute insect in the bulbs, so injured their vitality that the demand fell off and they proved unprofitable. Of late years, however, the bulbs have, by periods of rest, reclaimed their vigor and are quite satisfactory. Stock furnished to growers the past season gave excellent results.

SMOKER AT JUNE CLUB MEETING.

Hugo Niessen, chairman of the house committee of the florists' club, reports that his committee is busy with the programme of the smoker, which is to be the feature of the June meeting. He declares it will be a hummer, and that every member of the club should be present as they will surely enjoy it.

NOTES.

The past week was largely given up by the people of city and state to welcoming its soldiers, 18,000 of whom arrived safely home and marched through crowded thoroughfares, lined, it is estimated, with 2,000,000 people. It was a general holiday with but little business except for restaurants, hotels and transportation companies. There was not much in the way of floral decorations, except at Independence Hall, where elaborate grandstands were decorated with large hemlock and magnolia wreaths. There were also well designed borders of planted evergreens extending from the curb to the hall either side of the main entrance. In the center of this space was placed the Liberty Bell on a platform or base handsomely decorated with green wreaths. This setting was very effective.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., had an enormous catalogue business the past two months. At one time they were 13 days behind with their orders. This has now been cut down to eight days, the cool weather of the past two weeks causing an easing up in the demand. The labor situation is more satisfactory this year which is also a great help. This firm has been fortunate in being able to secure a large stock of kentias from England, which, with another consignment sufficient to fill their houses, now on the water and due to arrive before the fatal embargo, will round up their stock of florists' decorative plants.

The feature of the June meeting of the florists' club is to be a smoker, a regular old time affair, but up to date in every particular. There will be special features as well as good local talent from the ranks of the club. The gold room of the Adelphia hotel, in which the rose meeting of May was held, has been engaged. A tempting luncheon will be served at 10 p. m. Everybody is invited. Come and bring your best girl. Hugo Niessen, chairman of the house committee, says this will be the best ever. Tickets $2.00 each person.

Finding Leo Niessen in a reminiscent mood the other day, he stated that his first sales as a wholesale florist were made, August 1, 1884, 35 years ago. From carrying his stock in a basket from store to store to managing a business of over $1,000,000 a year with 50 employes, conducted in an eight story building of his own, is some progress. Few men in the business can equal this record. The firm of Leo and Arthur Niessen have been ably assisted by their two brothers, Hugo and John.

The Pink Killarney, which for a long time was the best bread winner for the Joseph Heacock Co., who grew this rose remarkably well, is now being discarded. The house of 20,000 plants is to be replaced with Ophelia, Columbia and the new Premier. White Killarney will still be grown.

John Walker and wife, of Youngstown, O., is now in the city visiting old friends. He has sold his establishment in that city to a corporation and the business will be continued as the John Walker Co., wholesale growers, in which he retains a small interest.

Edward Reid spent several days last week motoring through the mountains of Pennsylvania, making a trip of about 500 miles. He called on a number of the trade whom he found had all enjoyed a very good Mothers' day business. K.

SHORTENED SUPPLY AND BETTER BUSINESS.

There has been no cause for complaint over the condition of business during the past week. The previous cool and dark weather had a noteworthy effect in cutting down the rose supply, and add to that the probability that the growers have been too saving of coal, would seem to cover the situation. Carnations, having been forced and cut heavily for Mothers' day, were also on the light side and moved freely. In roses there was a stronger demand for the grades from No. 2 to extra than for special stock, consequently there has been an advance in prices. The few Cattleya gigas that are on the market bring the wholesale rate at 75 cents and $1 each, but other cattleyas are plentiful and cheap, running from 35 to 50 cents. Garuanias (native) are nearly out of the market and there seems to be room for the Cape Jessamines. Great quantities of sweet peas and lilac are arriving and the lilac seems to be "putting it over" on the former, as the latter are largely short stemmed. In double white stocks (Matthiola incana), there is a better supply and quality than is usually seen in this market and they move quite well. A few southern peonies are offered, but neither the quantity nor quality warrants calling them factors. It is stated by those who have investigated, that the Pennsylvania peonies will be in this market for Memorial day. In delphiniums, marigolds, lupines and various other minor stocks, there is an abundant offering. There is a light supply of lilies on the market, and most of them are short. At present the demand is moderate. There are rumors of the cold storage bulbs being pretty well exhausted. Greenhouse lily of the valley, of which there is some good stock on the market, is slow. There are quantities of the outdoor stock about, and as it does well in funeral work and is cheaper, the buyers seem to prefer it to the greenhouse stock. Quantities of dogwood, apple blossoms and other tree flowers are on the market.

May 19.—The week opens with clear and warmer weather. Business is not active and indications point to an increased supply and a quiet week in the trade.

NOTES.

The arrival of mild weather has created activity among the Brooklyn retail florists located near the cemeteries. Evergreen cemetery is said to contain land enough to permit burials for the next 50 years, consequently there is room for the expansion of the florist business in its vicinity. The Rodmans have two stores on Conway street, one being comparatively new with a fine conservatory attached. The business formerly conducted by the late W. H. Hall is now conducted by F. G. Van Mater, who, by marriage, is related to the Hall family. This business has enjoyed a long and prosperous career. Three new stores have recently been opened in the immediate vicinity of Evergreen cemetery. E. Miranda is located at 25 Conway street, A. Tanzer at 36 Conway street, and J. J. Ryan at 1943 Broadway.

John S. Donato, a clever young man well known in the wholesale district, recently returned from France where he spent 18 months attached to Company B, 117th United States Engineers, 42d Division (Rainbow). May 16, 1918, at Banal Woods, he was wounded by a bullet that went through his left leg. September 28, 1918, he was wounded in the face by shrapnel, but the surgeons fixed him up so nicely that even his sweetheart did not notice the scars when he reached home. He saw service at Leunville, Champagne, Chateau Theiry, St. Mihiel, Sedan, the Argenne and other notable sectors, and was with the army of occupation for four months. He has been given his former position with Young & Nugent, 42 West 28th street.

John S. Nicholas, the Grand Central florist, says that his Mothers' day business was exceptionally fine. He sold 3,000 carnations and could have sold another thousand if he had had them. Possibly having July 1 in mind, he has at an expense of $12,000 fitted up on one side of his store elaborate arrangements for dispensing soft drinks. There is a long marble counter with the fountains and all other necessary appliances for the business.

The Nostrand Avenue retailers, Brooklyn, of which there is quite a number, report good Mothers' day business. One of the oldest—not in years, but time in service—Hugo H. Jahn, had good business and is keeping busy with funeral work. A. Gilas, who recently located at 526 Nostrand avenue, states that his Mothers' day business was equal to Easter Sunday. He had window posters made to order, calling attention to the day.

The annual dinner of the Past Presidents' Association of the New York Florists' Club was held at "Billy, The Oysterman's," May 19, at 5:30 p. m. After the dinner, Frank Traendly and Charles Schenck, both of whom are past presidents, entertained their associates at a theatre party in the Winter Garden.

W. H. Kuhn, Jr., son of Herman Kuhn, the retailer of Sixth avenue and 50th street, who was with the United States overseas forces, attached to Company B, Ammunition Train, 27th Division, has returned and resumed his position in his father's store.

Arthur Kerrigan, employee by William P. Ford previous to entering the United States army, has returned from overseas. He was a member of Company C, 306 Machine Gun Battalion, and was "over there" one year, being cited for bravery.

Malandre Brothers state that they had good Mothers' day business. They have sold their store located at Broadway and 103d street, and all their Broadway business is now conducted at their main store, Broadway, near 72d street.

The Galvin store, Fifth avenue and 16th street, reports good Mothers' day business as well as much other work. Robert Hale, formerly of Boston, is now manager, assisted by August T. Roth, formerly with David Clarke's Sons.

Manager McCarty, of James Weh, Inc., Fulton and Pierreport street, Brooklyn, stated that they had good Mothers' day business and that in order to popularize the day, they sold carnations at a small profit. A. F. F.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 24-26, 1919.

THE price of bags at Chicago May 21, was $50.

MRS. M. W. JOHANSEN, of El Monte, Calif., is still in the east.

VISITED CHICAGO: George C. Thomson, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis Minn.

C. HANSEN, representing A. Hansen, Copenhagen, Denmark, is calling on the American trade.

W. K. PARTRIDGE, with the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, who is in the hospital, is reported improving.

At least four leading western packet commission houses will put out boxes for 1920 based on retailing vegetable packets at five cents each.

THE reduced freight rates from the Pacific coast to eastern points, details of which were given in our issue of May 10, page 822, are effective May 20.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—A. H. Hummert, of the St. Louis Seed Co., and others in the trade, were recent visitors to the capital in the interest of a seed bill.

THERE is talk of making Chicago headquarters for future meetings of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League, giving that body a wider influence in the trade.

NEW YORK.—Harry A. Barnard, representing Stuart Low & Co., London, Eng., has booked passage for home on the S. S. Aquatania, June 2; Thos. Madsen, of this city, will sail for Denmark, May 24.

IT is said European seed growers will be well represented at the Chicago convention of the American Seed Trade Association, June 24-26, or later, and a break in prices of some important American stocks is predicted.

THE passenger list of the S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam, which sailed from New York last week, included C. J. Speelman, G. Krowle, B. Rynveld, Geo. Van Zyverden, H. Wilden, J. Vander May and other Holland bulb specialists.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover market closed steady, May 20, at $27.00, no change during the preceding seven days. October was quoted at $20.05. Timothy was firm, cash being offered at $5.39, May $5.30, September $6.05 and October, $5.70.

CALIFORNIA seed reports indicate that though onion has been damaged some, the crop promises well. Beets are very poor, but with large acreage. Both carrot and lettuce look fairly well, radish generally good. Of course, it is a long time to harvest.

SEEDSMEN who have not received Department of Agriculture Circular No. 775, "Some Effects of the War Upon the Seed Industry of the United States," by W. A. Wheeler and G. C. Edler, reprinted from the 1918 Yearbook of Agriculture, will find it worth while to write for a copy.

Union Sets in Bags.

Chicago, May 21.—It is reported that the railroad administration has called a hearing, May 27, at 11:50 a. m., at the office of the consolidated classification and transportation committee to pass on the question of adopting a rule prohibiting the use of sacks for onion sets in L. C. L. shipments. Onion set shippers should certainly be represented

Southern Seedsmen's Association.

The first annual convention of the Southern Seedsmen's Association, advance mention of which was made in our issue of April 19, page 674, will be held at Montgomery, Ala., May 26-27. The first session will open at 10 o'clock a. m., the address of welcome being followed by that of the president and the report of the secretary, after which Professor J. F. Duggar, director of the Alabama experiment station will address the meeting, his subject being, "The Production and Supply of Velvet Beans for Seed Purposes". The afternoon programme will include addresses by Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass., counsel for the American Seed Trade Association on "Seed Laws"; Fred. I. Meyer, advertising manager for Chris Reuter, New Orleans, La., whose topic will be "Advertising", and W. A. Wheeler, of the seed reporting service, United States department of agriculture, who will speak on "The Relation of Seed Reporting Service to Southern Seedsmen."

The second day will be given over to a paper on "Co-operation", by Dick O'Bannon of the O'Bannon Co., general talks on the benefits of the association, admission of new members, and election of officers for the ensuing year. The present officers are Louis B. Reuter, president; E. A. Martin, first vice-president; R. B. Buchanan, second vice-president; Frank S. Love, secretary-treasurer, and H. H. Gardner, field agent.

Bulb Notes.

Louis Robert, Hyers, France, well known bulb grower, writes: "The United States forbids the importation of irises, jonquils, alliums and freesias under the pretext that they carry insect pests. We have never known in France that these bulbs were attacked by any kind of insect."

Reports have been circulated to the effect that applications for importing bulbs from the Azores have been refused because no legal inspection exists at that point. We think, however, the regulations provide for inspection at certain United States ports of entry.

French cables this week report recent drought which, they say, is likely to reduce the expected harvest of Paper White narcissus.

It is said the Fabre Line will charge 75 shillings per ton, plus 10 per cent, plus 8 shillings per ton lighterage.

Ninety-three thousand lily bulbs were exported from Bermuda during 1918.

New York Seed Bill Vetoed.

Marshall H. Duryea, New York state correspondent of the American Seed Trade Association in a communication dated May 13 says that Governor Smith granted a hearing at Albany, May 7, on Assemblyman Witter's seed bill, as a result of which, the measure, the objectionable features of which were mentioned in our issue of February 22, page 268, was vetoed.

Kimberlin Makes Large Land Purchase.

What is said to be one of the largest real estate transactions in seed circles in California was the recent purchase by the Kimberlin Seed Co., of San Jose, of 800 acres in the delta region near Stockton. The land is in onion, carrot and other vegetables for fall crops, and at present is in fine condition. The company formerly operated this property under lease.

Platt Company Sells Warehouse.

The Frank S. Platt Co., of New Haven, Conn., has sold its extensive warehouses on Dixwell avenue. The business was founded by Mr. Platt in 1877 and incorporated in 1902. Mr. Platt entered the employ of the Robert B. Bradley Co., agricultural and wood-warehouse house, as the "generally useful" in the spring of 1867, and having served the public for 52 years, proposes to retire from active duties, although he will retain a substantial interest and advisory connection with the young men now of the firm or in its employ who will perpetuate the good name and reputation so widely established at the Central stores on State street. The sale of the Platt property to the Yale Tire & Rubber Co., a new million dollar corporation, was a great surprise to every one interested in agricultural and horticultural enterprises, as he had been prominent in the New Haven County Agricultural Society and is still treasurer, a member of the Agricultural Extension Farm Bureau and a former member of the Connecticut state board of agriculture. He owns 1,500 square feet of glass, mostly Lerd & Burrham construction, now leased to the Kelsey Floral Co.

Mr. Platt is the recognized pioneer of the Lima bean growers for seed in California, having in the 70's started in this business when the threshing was performed by the burro which trod them out, but was unsatisfactory to Mr. Platt, as too much culling was necessary to remove the soiled ones. The next year's crop was threshed out with light flails. That, however, cracked and broke them badly, wasting too large a proportion of the best and largest, until finally improved processes were evolved from the primitive slow hand methods to the accepted conditions of the present day. The first Bush Lima put on the market was offered by Peter Henderson & Co., and Mr. Platt paid $125 for a bushel of them, planting all for seed. From this crop he realized a handsome profit. During the subsequent years he contracted and supplied many of the largest houses, and there are some still drawing supplies who have not missed a year since 1877.

The record of success is a marked tribute to Mr. Platt's persevering industry and indomitable will.

Philadelphia Seed Trade.

C. W. Gloeckner, in charge of the bulb department of the Henry F. Mitchell Co., is in receipt of a recent communication from C. L. Marlatt, head of the federal horticultural board in Washington, in which he makes the statement that gloxinias and tuberous rooted begonias can be grown to a flowering size in a few months from seed, so that it is quite unnecessary to import them. It is now required that lists be furnished to the authorities at Washington of all seeds that it is desired to import before permits will be issued allowing them to be brought into the country.

The Henry A. Dreer seed department reports a wonderful counter trade, which is now beginning to ebb a little. First it was vegetables and later flower seeds. There has also been a strong call for all kinds of vegetable plants.

I. N. Simon & Son say their business is constantly increasing. They have an extensive display of vegetable and bedding plants on their Market street front, making the store very conspicuous.

"Sunshine Garden Seeds" and "Sunshine Border Flowers" are the attractive names on all packages of seeds of the Stokes Seed Store. A very satisfactory spring trade is in progress.

NEW YORK.—Old potatoes to the amount of 100 carloads have been shipped from this city to Russia.

THE reputation as the champion potato country on the western slope is retained by Olathe, Colo., having shipped out 861 carloads of humble spuds during the period from August 1, 1918, to February, 1919. Montrose is a close second with 727 cars to its credit.

YAKIMA, WASH.—A thousand tons of spinach, which will make approximately 1,000,000 cans, will be handled this year by the Libby, McNeill & Libby cannery here. A machine which will handle 75 tons of spinach per day, similar to those used by the concern in its large California establishments, has been installed.

Canned Vegetables to England.

A general license allowing the importation of canned, bottled, dried and preserved vegetables and pickles into Great Britain has been issued according to the British Board of Trade Journal for May 1.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, May 20.—Cucumbers, 2 dozen boxes, $2.00 to $3.00; celery, Florida, crate, $4.50 to $6.00; leaf lettuce, per box 30 cents; radishes, per bushel box, $1.25 to $1.50; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $5.70 to $7.00.

New York, May 19.—Celery (Florida), per case $1.50 to $3.00; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.25 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $3.00 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 15 to 35 cents; lettuce, per package, 50 cents to $4.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $3.50.

"Red River Ohio" Potatoes.

The food products inspection service of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, having been asked to define exactly what constitutes genuine "Red River Ohio" potatoes, has made careful investigations to determine the facts involved and reports as follows:

"The Early Ohio, probably more than any other commercial potato, varies in appearance when grown in soils of different types. Stock of this variety grown in western Nebraska, in black soils of the Red River Valley, and in sand lands near Minneapolis, is recognized as distinct by the wholesale trade in the markets, and lots usually are designated by the points of origin. Clay county, Minnesota, in the Red River valley, where the soils are chiefly dark loam and gumbo, first advertised "Red River Ohio" potatoes. Probably this was the principal reason for associating the name with the particular type of stock produced by such soils. But other counties, both on the Minnesota and North Dakota sides of the river, lie partly or wholly within the Red River valley, and there is no exact definition of the extent of this district, although points as distant from the river as Fergus Falls are usually included. In the Red River valley the soils range from light sand to dark loam and gumbo, these different soils producing varying types of Early Ohio potatoes. Consequently it is possible for entirely distinct types of this variety to be grown in the Red River valley proper, and for stock to become more or less mixed before being shipped, yet any of these potatoes may properly be designated as "Red River Ohios."

"Nevertheless, under certain conditions and for certain purposes, buyers prefer Early Ohios grown in dark soils, and will pay a premium for them, in which case they are entitled to protection in securing such stock. It is recommended, therefore, that in placing their orders or contracts they specifically state "Black Soil Red River Ohios" when this sort is desired, thus leaving no opportunity for the substitution of "Red River Ohios" grown in sandy soil.

Inspectors of the United States bureau of markets will certify as "Black Soil Early Ohios" only potatoes actually grown in black soils.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports to the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture for the period May 13-20, indicate an upward trend of prices following a two weeks' declining movement with generally increased shipment. Potato prices rallied with advances of from 10-30 cents per 100 pounds. Moderate supplies of old stock and a light movement of new imparted a strong market undertone. No. 1 northern sacked white stock advanced 30 cents in the Chicago carlot market, closing at $2-$2.20 and strengthened in middle-western jobbing centers to a closing range of $2.25-$2.40. Michigan shipping points advanced 10 cents to a range of $2.05-$2.10. New York Round Whites in bulk advanced 25 cents, ranging $2.40-$2.70, and sacked Maine Green Mountains made a similar recovery closing at $2.75-$3 in New York and Boston. Texas onion shipments were lighter than anticipated and markets responded promptly to the condition of moderate supplies. Yellow stock advanced 50 cents at shipping points and ranged $3.15-$3.50 per crate f. o. b. Consuming markets advanced 25-50 cents to $4-$5 per crate in the east, but New York reached $3.50. Middlewestern markets ranged $3.75-$4.25. Fancy old yellow stock reached a top of $10 per 100 pounds at New York, but Chicago quoted $4.50-$5. Liberal cabbage shipments, including considerable poor stock, kept the markets weak. Texas flat stock declined fully $2 further in Kansas City, ranging $2-$3 per 100 pounds, compared with $6-$6.50 the first week in May. St. Louis quoted $40-$50 per ton. South Carolina Wakefields followed a wide range both in quality and prices. Tomatoes were slightly higher. Fancy Florida stock ranged $3.50-$4.25 per 6-basket carrier at point of shipment. In northern consuming markets, west-coast stock was $5-$6.25 and east-coast $4.50-$5.50. Lettuce prices were irregular.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—A commodious building at Main and First streets has been purchased by the Chambers Seed Co. and will be equipped with modern cleaning machinery.

MOUNDSVILLE, WEST VA.—A prisoner at the penitentiary here who has served 19 years and was offered a pardon five years ago but asked to be allowed to remain on account of his love for flowers, being in charge of the prison greenhouses, left the institution recently at the age of 65 years.

GOOD BUSINESS CONTINUES.

Business of late has been very brisk with Mothers' day trade all that could be desired. The day preceding the observance was very inclement, with a downpour of rain, but in spite of this sales were most satisfactory. In face of the fact that some patriotic citizens advocated giving Victory bonds and thrift stamps in place of gifts of flowers, which had some effect, the day was a big one. All flowers were much higher in price than they have been for many years. Carnations were a trifle short of the demand, but quality was excellent. Flowering plants were limited in assortment and those available together with the basket arrangements sold freely.

NOTES.

The Rochester Floral Co. has removed to its new quarters at 9 North street. The new store is finished in white enamel throughout with two large refrigerators for display purposes. Trade is opening in fine shape at the new stand and Mothers' day business was excellent.

H. B. Stringer, who has been with George B. Hart for a number of years, is ill at his home and his many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

Felix Alberts has opened a new stand at Main and Franklin streets which will be known as Albert the Florist.

John Dunbar is still in the Habnemann hospital, but we are glad to report is making rapid improvement.

CHESTER.

Providence, R. I.

TRADE QUITE SATISFACTORY.

Carnations are coming into this market at a rapid rate and the quality is good. There is a good demand for them. Roses are holding up well in price warranted by excellent quality. Sweet peas have weakened but continue to sell well. Yellow marguerites and outdoor lily of the valley are also good property and have a steady call. Geraniums, what there are of them bring good returns, four-inch stock being quoted at $25 per 100 up to $75 for five and six inch, wholesale, but there does not seem to be an unusually heavy supply that will be ready for Memorial day and they will of course go at good figures. Butcher shops, markets, novelty stores, and in fact every kind of a retail shop seems to be preparing to sell magnolia and wax flowers as indicated by the displays that are being made. One out-of-town concern is said to have sold two carloads of wax designs to one of the largest department stores last week.

NOTE.

James A. Foster, proprietor of the Warwick Greenhouses, died last week. His place was well known for its beautiful grounds and a fine farm. There were many handsome floral tributes sent from his friends in and out of the trade.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Counsel; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia., Treasurer; Chas. Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., Secretary. Forty-fourth annual convention will be held at Chicago, June 25-27, 1919.

WOODSTOCK, ONT.—In memory of this city's fallen heroes, 150 six-foot oak trees, shipped from England are being planted here.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Dennis Dwyer, formerly with F. R. Quinlan, has been appointed superintendent of the state fair grounds.

RIVERSIDE, CALIF.—The annual convention of the California State Nurserymen's Association will be held in this city May 26-27.

NEW YORK.—Lewis & Ballantine, of Roslyn, N. Y., have leased a vacant lot, 27x100 feet, at 1010 Fifth avenue, which will be arranged as a garden to display their plants and shrubs.

ONE of the live topics to be discussed at the coming convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, to be held at Chicago June 25-27, is free trade or protection as applied to the importation of nursery stock.

AUGUSTA, GA.—Following the retirement of Robert C. Berckmans, from the business formerly conducted by Berckmans Bros. at Mayfield, Ga., the business will be continued by L. A. and P. J. A. Berckmans, Jr., as consulting horticulturists, 1212-1213 Lamar building, this city and entirely separate from the nursery and landscape operations previously conducted under the name of P. J. Berckmans Co., Inc.

Frost Damages Missouri Crops.

Jefferson City, May 16.—One-fourth of Missouri's apple crop has been destroyed, while the other fruit crops have been damaged from 10 to 28 per cent by the late frosts, according to the joint report of E. A. Logan and Jewell Mayes of the federal bureau of crop estimates and the state board of agriculture, respectively.

Municipal Nursery Planned for Columbus

A municipal nursery is being advocated for Columbus, O., with the idea of growing flowers, shrubbery and trees to be planted in the various parks. The estimated cost is $12,000. All plants for the present season were grown by Superintendent James Underwood at Franklin park. Over 100,000 bedding plants are soon to be distributed from this source. The total park area of Columbus, under public supervision, is 306 acres.

Shrubs in Bloom.

The earliest of the lilacs to bloom, the Chinese Syringa affinis and S. oblata were in full flower last week, according to the Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, and the lilac collection will probably be at its best about May 24. The red-flowered Japanese azalea (Rhododendron Kaempferi) is just opening its flowers on Azalea Path and foothergillias, many spiraeas, pearl bushes, many honeysuckles, barberries and other interesting plants will be in bloom this week.

Forsythias.

Forsythias, after having lost a part of their flower-buds in three of the past five winters, are again covered with flowers which have not been injured by the cold of the past week. The Arboretum collection contains specimens of all the species and varieties, and of many hybrids, and is interesting as indicating possibilities in plant breeding, when hybridizers enter a broader field than the one to which they have generally confined their efforts. The natural crossing of species of forsythias has produced plants with handsomer flowers than those of their parents. This is true of some lilacs and crabapples, and of many spiraeas, deutzias and rhododendrons, and it is not improbable that from the new material which has come into gardens in recent years handsomer garden shrubs and more valuable trees than those we now possess will reward the patient labors of the plant breeder. To the hybrid forsythias the general name of intermedia has been given. The parentage of these plants is not perfectly clear, although one of their parents is certainly the Chinese F. suspensa var. Fortunei, the plant which is most often cultivated in American gardens. The handsomest of these hybrids and the handsomest forsythia in the Arboretum collection, F. intermedia spectabilis, came here several years ago from a German nursery. The flowers of this form are bright yellow. Other handsome hybrids are var. primulina, with primrose-colored flowers, and var. pallida, with pale straw-colored flowers. The former appeared spontaneously in the Arboretum a few years ago. The flower-buds of all forsythias are often killed in severe winters, but those of these hybrids were for a long time believed to be hardier than those of the species, although in the winter of 1917-18 they suffered even more than those of their parents.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 1, 1919.

Blueberry Improvement.

F. V. Coville, of the United States department of agriculture, and Miss Elizabeth C. White, of New Lisbon, N. J. who for several years have been working to produce new and better varieties of blueberries by cross breeding the best wild plants, are at present trying to find a number of unusually fine wild plants for this work and will pay $50 for especially fine plants with very large berries and smaller prices for plants that have many berries of slightly smaller size if these berries are of unusually fine flavor. There are doubtless thousands of bushes in the country with berries three quarters of an inch or more in diameter, and many other bushes with berries just a trifle smaller, but of unusually fine quality, but it is only by having persons on the watch for them that these fine specimens can be discovered. All persons interested in finding such plants are requested to write to Miss White at New Lisbon, N. J. who will send full directions, with measuring gauges, and bottles of formaldehyde for mailing large berries that are discovered. The fine varieties developed by cross breeding will be distributed by the department of agriculture to persons who have learned enough about cultivating wild blueberries to show they can handle new varieties with success. Through the efforts of Mr. Coville, in cooperation with Miss White, the cultivation of blueberries will probably be established in a few years. Inasmuch as the department of agriculture is not permitted to award prizes for wild plants, those offered above are generously donated by Arthur E. Morgan, president of the Morgan Engineering Companies, City National Bank Building, Dayton, O.

Nursery Stock Names Under Fire.

Congress has been asked to enact legislation making it a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, to ship in interstate commerce any nursery stock improperly labeled. The bill in question was introduced into the House of Representatives by Congressman Cramton, of Michigan, and reads as follows:

"It shall be unlawful for any person to ship or deliver for shipment from any state or territory or the District of Columbia, to any other state, or territory or the District of Columbia or to receive in any state or territory or the District of Columbia from any other state or territory or the District of Columbia, and having so received, to deliver in original or unbroken package, for pay or otherwise, or offer to deliver to any person, any nursery stock which does not bear on each tree, shrub or plant or on the original unbroken package thereof, a label stating the true, accepted and correct name of the variety of such nursery stock, the name of the person who grew the same, and the place where it was grown. The accepted name of a variety shall be the name accepted by the recognized authority for each class of nursery stock in question, such as, in the case of fruit trees, the American Pomological Society. 'Nursery stock,' for the purpose of this act, shall include all field and greenhouse grown plants, such as fruit trees, fruit tree stock, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings, grafts, scions, buds, and all other plants or parts of plants for planting or propagation.

"Sec. 2. No person shall so ship or deliver for shipment or shall receive and deliver or offer to deliver to another, any nursery stock that is not true to name or that is wrongly or improperly labeled in a manner that will tend to mislead or deceive.

"Sec. 3. That any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this act or who shall forge, counterfeit, alter, deface, or destroy any label, certificate or invoice provided for in this act or in the regulations of the secretary of agriculture, made and promulgated under the authority of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $200, or by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or by both fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. Upon conviction of any person of violation of any of the provisions of this act, the secretary of agriculture shall publish the name of such person.

"Sec. 4. That it shall be the duty of each district attorney to whom the secretary of agriculture shall report any violation of this act, or to whom any director of experiment station or any official of any state or any other person shall present satisfactory evidence of any such violation, to cause appropriate proceedings to be commenced and prosecuted in the proper courts of the United States without delay for the enforcement of the penalties herein provided for.

"Sec. 5. That the term 'territory' as used in this act, shall include the District of Alaska and the insular possessions of the United States. The word 'person' as used in this act, shall be construed to import both the plural and the singular, as the case demands, and shall include corporations, companies, societies, and associations. When construing and enforcing the provisions of this act, the act, omission, or failure of any officer, agent, or other person acting for or employed by another corporation, company, society or association, within the scope of his employment or office shall in every case be also deemed to be the act, omission or failure of such corporation, company, society, or association, as well as of each other person."

GOOD MOVEMENT IN MOST STOCKS.

The long continued rainfall has had a bad effect on outdoor stock which now arrives full of sand and dirt. This is especially true of tulips. Lilac, both white and lavender, is now in large supply and meets with a good call. From present indications, local peonies will not be in for Memorial day, but a change in the weather may bring them along. Easter lilies and callas are scarce and clean up daily. Sweet peas are in good supply and some excellent stock is being received which enjoys a brisk sale. Short stock goes slowly. Carnations have been more plentiful but the demand has kept them moving out of the market as fast as they are received. Roses are also in more generous supply. Hilda, Ophelia, Sunburst, American Beauties and Pink Killarney constitute the bulk of the offerings in this line and the demand has been very good. Many weddings are taking place and there is a heavy call for bridal bouquet stock, white roses, lily of the valley, violets, sweet peas, orchids and adiantum. Some good snapdragon is now seen on the market and is disposed of quickly.

NOTES.

Reports continue to arrive regarding damage from the recent windstorm. At the Thomas Lisy range on East 99th street much glass was broken and several ventilators blown off. Several ventilators at the range of R. Emsley were also wrecked. The Brookline Floral Co., who suffered probably the greatest damage in this section, will probably build one large modern house to replace the four that were destroyed. Plans and specifications have been submitted by the Lord & Burnham Co., through its office in this city.

Members of the florists' club were entertained at the Hollenden hotel, on the evening of May 5 as guests of the J. M. Gasser Co. Adam Graham, one of the best known members of the trade, spoke of fruit and flower growing on the Isle of Pines, where he has spent

Rochester Florists' Association.

The monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held at 95 East Main street, May 9. There being no business of importance up for consideration the committee on entertainment, E. P. Wilson, chairman, decided upon a musical event to which the wives and lady friends of all members were invited and the affair proved a complete success. About 100 were in attendance. The programme included piano numbers by Miss Florence, Sweeney, quartette selection, solos by George T. Boucher, president of the association, Horace Head, also a member of the quartette, whistling by Joseph Woerdln and dancing by two young ladies who proved adepts of the art. Ice cream and cake were served after the programme and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to all the entertainers.

Bailey's*New Standard*Cyclopedia*Of Horticulture*Six Splendid Volumes

This work is Prof. L. H. Bailey's latest and greatest achievement and will undoubtedly stand as a monument to him. This is not a revision of the old Cyclopedia but a brand new work containing features not dreamed of at the time of publication of the original cyclopedia which was a pioneer work. The old cyclopedia of Horticulture, it will be remembered, was a cyclopedia in fact as well as in name, whereas the new Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture is a gardener's manual as well as a cyclopedia and contains features that make it equally adapted to the amateur and to the professional, to the man without education or the man with high literary tastes.

The Boiler of Unequalled Fuel Economy

Kroeschell Boilers, the best by test since 1879. Forty years' experience.

THE QUALITY PLACE OF BOSTON

Regarding the Kroeschell, it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerably already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration.

(Signed) WM. W. EDGAR CO., WAVERLEY, MASS.

When You Buy—Get a Kroeschell

3,016,286 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with Kroeschell Boilers during the year of 1916.

OHIO'S CELEBRATED CYCLAMEN SPECIALIST

After using your No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler I came to the conclusion that had I to install more boilers it would be the Kroeschell and no other. It really is a pleasure to heat, no trouble to get the desired heat in a very short time.

(Signed) CHRIST. WINTERICH, DEFIANCE, OHIO.

THE MONTH OF BRIDES.

The June Wedding.

The month of June, when outdoor roses are at their best, is one of the most popular wedding periods of the year. Some brides consider May unlucky, and the selection of the time for the spring wedding is the week directly following Easter or early in June. Because it is the season that all nature is seen at its loveliest with an abundance of flowers, particularly the bush and rambler roses, there must be no dearth of such beauty in the decorations.

Most of these important functions are now held at the country estates, to which the family have moved for the summer, but in some cases this is not feasible, and the event takes place in the city, the ceremony in the church, and the reception at the house.

Church Decoration.

While there are scarcely any two church edifices exactly alike, there is a general principle underlying the decorative work that can be applied to any situation. The salient features are the banks of palms and flowering plants or vases to add life and color in the chancel to form a suitable background for the wedding party, a liberal treatment of the main aisle with arches or standards of cut flowers, the same at ends of pews, and all side windows filled with palms and flowering plants.

Various forms of architecture demand different treatment. In many Episcopal churches, the pews for the choir boys take up much of the room of the chancel. These pews face the main aisle. The ends, as seen from the church are good decorative points, which when well arranged, do not interfere with a view of the ceremony.

Where there is a wide pulpit platform, which extends well into the church, it is at times found necessary to remove some of the front pews to make room for the bridal party. A raised platform, a foot high, in this space is well worth the extra cost. The pulpit platform, when well banked with palms and flowering plants, will give a fine decorative effect. The center of the ceremony platform, at the head of the aisle, should contain a well decorated kneeling stool. On this is focused the eyes of the assemblage, and behind which the officiating clergyman awaits the bridal procession as they enter the church.

The center aisle is subject to many decorative features. Standards, holding vases of flowers well above the heads of the guests, are attached to the pew ends either side. These can be any distance apart. Arches across the aisle give an elaborate and finished effect. Bunches of flowers, tied to the pew ends, finished with generous bows of ribbon, are striking. At times, these are used only on the section reserved for the families of the contracting parties. Where there are large columns, these branches, or they can be placed in the effect with southern smilax and sprays of rambler roses which are arranged as if growing. Green wooden strips tied against the columns with twine, provide spaces in which to tuck these branches, or they can be placed in small, green tubes holding water, and suspended inside the cords from a wire hook soldered at the top.

In the plant arrangements, each specimen used should as far as possible stand out individually. Particularly is this true of cibotiums, than which there is nothing with greater decorative value.

A pretty finish to a church wedding is the laying of a white muslin cloth the length of the center aisle just before the bridal procession. It requires but a minute to do this. It is in a roll at the head of the aisle, one end tacked to the floor. It unrolls easily as two men carry it down the aisle, where it is stretched to catch several low broad-headed nails.

The features of the decoration at the dwelling are a profusion of cut flowers in vases used at every vantage point—on mantels, tops of cases, on the piano, the hall rack, sideboards, etc., clusters of southern smilax over doorways, and over all mirrors, the decoration of all chandeliers, and an especially showy vase or basket for the center of the bouffe table.

Vases of flowers on the dressing tables in the guest rooms should not be overlooked. There should also be an effective background of plants and tall vases of cut flowers in the parlor, or wherever the reception takes place, in front of which the bridal party will receive.

The Bouquets.

The bouquets are generally a source of much concern as the colors of the flowers, the dresses, and the ribbons must be matched or of such unison as to produce a harmonious effect. There is nothing better for the bride than orchids with lily of the valley or white sweet peas. A short shower effect, with plenty of tulle and some narrow ribbons, to which flowers are tied, is now the vogue. The maid of honor's bunch is of roses or any chosen flower, generally self-colored. The bridesmaids carry spray bunches of pink roses or pink sweet peas. At times, the selection is all white or all yellow daisies, snapdragons, pink or blue hydrangeas. It is all a matter of fancy, one flower being as beautiful made up as another. Shepherd's crooks with flowers tied to them, and hat and handle baskets, are all popular and add variety.

The Country Wedding.

When the ceremony is at the country home, it is often planned to take place on the lawn, in which case much depends on the weather. An alcove or group of palms is arranged at a suitable location on the lawn, a short distance from the house, or perhaps a floral canopy is erected, underneath which the ceremony is performed. An open tent or awning to cover the seating space is sometimes erected, which is garlanded with green and flowers. A decorated kneeling stool is also indispensable here. Posts driven in a short distance from either side of the path leading from the house, festooned with garlands of green and flowers, is a pretty feature. At such a function, the guests are served at small tables placed under the trees or about the lawn, each of which is to have its vase or basket of flowers.

The bridal party is served on a separate table large enough to seat them all. This can be set under an artificial arbor of rambler rose sprays, arranged as if they were growing and a part of the permanent decorations of the lawn.

All the rooms on the first floor of the house are to contain good sized vases of flowers of such kinds as might have been cut from the garden border. There should also be palms in reserve, and tall floor vases, so that if necessary, on account of sudden changes in the weather, an alcove or background must be quickly built up in the largest room of the dwelling.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Plants and Flowers as Wedding Gifts.

Presents to the young couple, whose wedding is announced by invitations to the ceremony, begin to arrive at once and continuously until the date of the event. Nearly all the gifts are useful and ornamental, objects of art or things more practical for everyday use in the new home.

It has always appeared that retail florists do not realize the opportunity that is open to their trade in the furnishing of plants and flowers as gifts for these numerous all-the-year-around events. While wedding gifts are, as a rule, articles that have permanent value, there are many received that have little, if any, utility and soon find a place in the storage closet.

There are many items in the florists' stock that are lasting and beautiful, and at the same time, useful and likely to enter into the everyday life and enjoyment of the new home. Jardinieres, with or without pedestals, that contain a specimen palm or fern, are an almost necessary decoration for the living room, and to the lovers of plants, one of their most cherished possessions. The indoor window box on a stand nicely filled, will make a good showing in the gift room, as will that necessary fixture, the cut glass or silver fern dish.

The vases and other receptacles for holding cut flowers are carried in good assortment in every well stocked store. These, while of themselves ornamental, are doubly so when nicely decorated with choice flowers and used for the purpose for which they are intended.

Dealers in very many lines of goods make a point of catering to this trade, during the fashionable wedding months, as in the early fall, at Easter and in June. Florists could get a share of this business that would, in time, become quite an important item. It must, however, be sought after and worked up. By circulars, advertising, window displays, etc., the fact that plants and flowers are especially appropriate as wedding gifts should be kept to the front at all times, and particularly during the periods when the majority of these events take place. The trade is just waking up to the possibilities of publicity. Results of well directed newspaper advertising in various communities, principally the middle west, at Easter and Mothers' day have been almost phenomenal. If this was to become universal in all the cities and towns of the country, and conducted with the same co-operative spirit and enthusiasm, results would be such as to tax the facilities of the trade to the utmost.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

With the season's holidays past, and a matter of record, there is but the more or less busy days on which the various school commencements make an extra demand for decorations and gifts of bouquets and baskets. To make a specialty or cater to these events by keeping a record of dates, planning ahead and circularizing the homes of the students, is well worth while, as it gives the idea that flowers are necessary, and the enterprising man gets the business. College and school colors, in ribbons, are good stock to carry. Corsage bouquets, made up and tied with college colors, are especially appropriate and salable on commencement day.

Peonies are now at their best and should be featured. They are very showy and appropriate for all kinds of sprays, large baskets and decorations. In delivering one or two dozen loose peonies, large stiff sheets of white paper, wrapped into a cornucopia, with the flowers showing and tied at the handle with a piece of tape, and a bulldog clip to hold the edges of the paper, there is a neat looking package that takes the place of the more expensive box. If peonies become wilted, remove all superfluous leaves and stick the ends of the stems in boiling hot water, then put in a cool place free from drafts, and they will revive quickly.

Keep a good display of well-filled window boxes, vases and hanging baskets on the street front. They will sell and attract other trade. Do not wait for inquiries; everything in the plant line that is seasonable, is salable at this time. If it is just a little better than ordinary, and well featured, it will attract attention, and interest persons to the extent of purchasing, who, until they saw the articles, had no thought of needing them.

Cornflowers are good stock, being now at their best. Feature a special of the cheaper grades of pink roses in small tumbler or vase handle baskets together with cornflowers. The pink and the blue are very effective, particularly in a basket with tones of blue and white.

Next week will usher in the June weddings, and as flowers are now most plentiful and moderate in price, there should be much profitable business. A wedding window display, with sample bride's bouquet, bridesmaids' baskets or clusters, flower girls' small baskets, decorated kneeling stools, etc., artistically arranged, will be sure to attract attention and prove a good business bringer. The house that keeps itself before the public in this way, featuring the various events of the seasons, is sure to be classed as up-to-date and worthy of confidence.

Gladioli are now becoming a factor in the market. The greenhouse stock is much to be preferred to the outdoor southern flowers, which, as a rule, are cut very tight and rarely open uniformly. These gay colored spikes are useful and quite decorative, either by themselves or when arranged in combinations with other flowers. They are used to good advantage in all kinds of sprays and in wreaths. The spikes should be as open as possible. It is best to carry them in buckets or wide mouthed jars will allow plenty of space for the buds to expand. Far too often, particularly in the commission houses, they are seen squeezed into jars so closely together as to bruise all the open flowers.

A sample cutflower box or two, made of zinc or tin, painted the color of the store's boxes inside and out, when filled with flowers can scarcely be distinguished from the pasteboard folding or made-up box. Such boxes used to feature $2 or $3 boxes of flowers, as displayed in the case, can be kept wet, and used continuously. By grasping the paper lining, the contents is easily transferred as a whole to the paper box. Such boxes, nicely arranged, are sure to attract attention and induce sales that would otherwise not be made. A price card is a great help.

Mountain laurel is about due. Well flowered sprays or branches of this native shrub are as showy and decorative as much of the greenhouse stock. It is popular with many who like to take a bunch home for the library or dining table.

Wonderfully favorable Mothers' day business results are reported in last week's issue as being directly traceable to the co-operative advertising of the trade. Cleveland, Milwaukee, Detroit and Chicago are conspicuous examples of what can be done in large cities, which communities are not as a rule considered emotional. It has been clearly demonstrated that the demand is there, and that the people will respond to well directed appeals. Truly the business' is only in its infancy. The men who are withholding their support from the national publicity fund, are surely standing in their own light. All who contribute and take interest will be greatly benefited.

Commencement Flowers.

College and school commencements are quite a factor in the business of many of the trade, and would be interesting to others if they would give a little of their time in looking up the decorations and gift flowers that are always an important part of these affairs. To begin with, there should be a list of every college and school in or around the city or town. The name of the president or principal and other officials of each is important. A list of the students in each school, with home address, may be difficult to obtain, but there are a number of diplomatic methods that will succeed. As a rule, there are courses of several years. The names of students of first and second terms are frequently printed in the annual commencement programme with name of home city. Well written circulars concerning commencement flowers, mailed to the homes of students and to themselves as well, will be sure to bring good results.

Proposals for the decorations, such as palms for the platform, flags and bunting, of the school colors, for the room or hall, will always be well received and quite frequently secure the order. Class days, previous to the day of commencement, are often quite rich in floral decorations and, in the young ladies' seminaries, the order often includes a bouquet for each member. The flowers are in class colors, or tied with ribbons of these shades.

In all work of this character, particularly in the matter of the bouquets, great care must be taken to see that the flowers desired are readily obtained. To have to furnish several hundred bouquets of red roses about the middle of June is almost impossible, in any market, as by that time they are very small and pop open over night. There are several shades of pink that will be acceptable, if the order is pink roses. Sweet peas are also safe, as are snapdragons. The daisy is another popular commencement flower.

Flowers for gifts, ordered by family and friends, take the form of bouquets and baskets, not as a rule elaborate, but still in the aggregate are quite important. Baskets are to be recommended, as with their tins, containing water or saturated moss, they keep the flowers in much better condition than the bouquets, which soon dry out and wilt.

All the seasonable flowers, both outdoor and in, can be used for this work. Strive for bold, striking color effects that put a punch to the arrangement, that is sure to attract attention. Delivery tags must be correctly written and the donor's card securely attached.

Punctuality is important. Have the deliveries on time. Make out a list of baskets and bouquets, with names of recipients, and have it signed when flowers are delivered. Such receipts convince customers who are about to claim their order not filled, that the fault lies elsewhere.

Garden Vases.

Florists whose stores are situated or who cater to the trade of dwellers in the semi-suburban districts, where all houses have small lawns and porches, will find garden vases good stock to feature and carry in assortment. There are many graceful patterns from the old tulip form up to the more elaborate fancy designs with ornamental handles. They are made of terra cotta, cement and iron, with pedestals of the same material. All are very durable, doing duty in winter filled with evergreens. A well filled vase is just the thing for the center of a small grass plot. It requires little or no care, except watering, and will look well the entire summer. From August on, manure water is a good stimulant, which can be given once a week with good results.

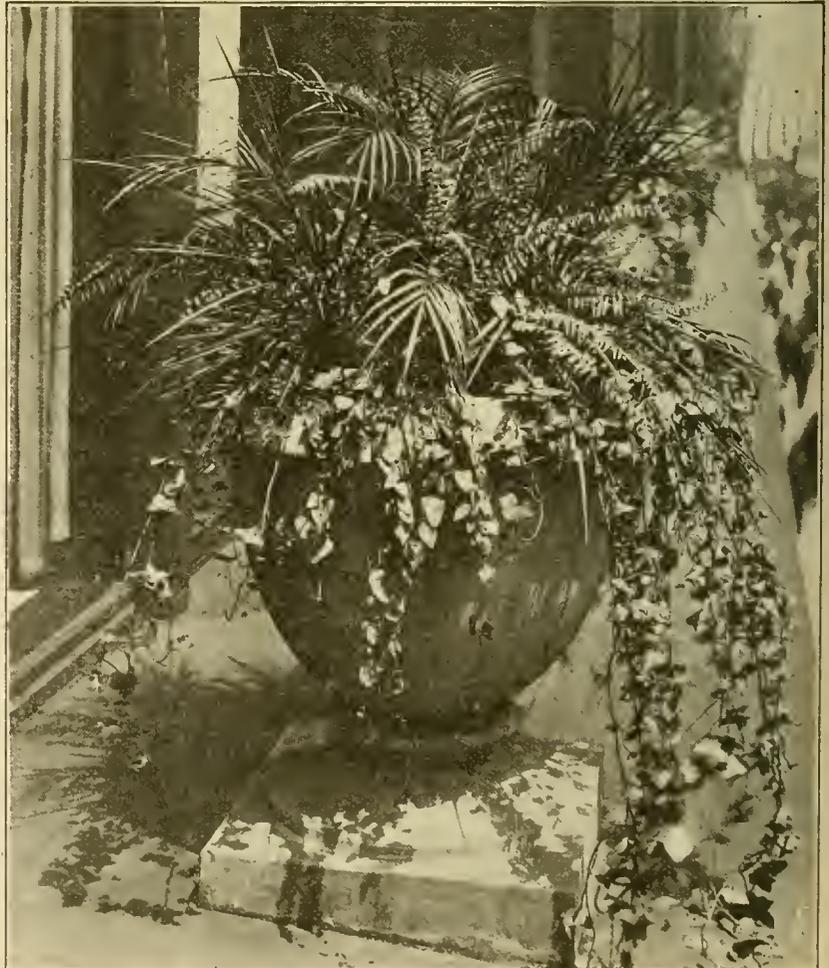

While almost all bedding plants will do well planted in vases, there are some that seem to be more especially adapted for the purpose. For the center, Dracena indivisa is considered best. Pandanus Veitchii is also good, its white striped foliage giving contrast to the colors of the flowers. Vincas and ivies, together with tradescantias, trailing coleus and abutilons, alternated with lobelia and sweet alyssum, are planted next to the edge to hang over, while the space around the center plant is filled in with geraniums, coleus, crotons and acalyphas. *Ageratum*s, *nasturtium*s, verbenas and petunias are also useful and give a wealth of color in a sunny situation. For special effects, vases can be planted to one color, as all pink, all red, all white, or in combinations such as pink and blue, red and white, etc. All are better if started in the greenhouse for a few days so as to allow the roots to take hold before they are placed in the open.

There are a number of self-watering contrivances which no doubt have merit, but all require attention, and there is no better plan than to advise a good watering every evening. The garden vase would be a much more popular ornament if its sale was pushed and featured by florists, with examples of well-filled vases used in the ornamentation of their own grounds. Everybody knows about such lawn ornaments in a general way, but their use and advantages in giving beauty to the surroundings of the residence have to be impressed on the great majority of people before they begin to take notice. Such vases are popular as ornaments for the cemetery. Many of the craft who cater to this trade carry a large stock suitably grown entirely for this purpose. The entire month of May finds some men engaged all the time filling vases which have all to be in place and looking their best for Memorial day.

PLANT NOTES.

Small Ferns.

The fern spores that were sown in last winter should now be in condition to transplant into flats. It will be difficult to separate the plants yet into individual specimens, but little clumps can be lifted with a toothpick and planted in flats about an inch apart. The flats or boxes should not be deep; about an inch and a half of soil is sufficient. The soil should be composed of two parts of live loam and one part leaf mold, with a generous sprinkling of sand, and sifted through a fine sieve. The flats should be placed in a moist house that is well shaded, and the walks kept well wet down all through the hot weather. If a nice, warm, moist temperature is maintained the plants themselves will not require much watering, only light sprinklings, and they will very rapidly root into the new soil and send forth their fronds. If the grower has not grown his own ferns, it is a good time now to place an order for them with the fern specialists, for they can be purchased at very low prices and they are very easily grown on, and where there are many fern dishes to be filled in the fall the difference in cost of the young plants lifted from the flats in midsummer and those purchased out of small pots in the fall is considerable; plants that will cost $3 and $4 a hundred at that time can now be obtained for one-third of that amount, and a thousand or more of this small stock does not take up much space and will be disposed of before the bench room is needed in the winter.

Cinerarias.

The sowing of cinerarias is better done in June than later. Many postpone this until July, but during the extremely hot days of that month it is often difficult to obtain good germination, and the seed pans or boxes will have to be watched carefully or they will become dry and the young seedlings burn off. The soil should be well shaded until the young seedlings show themselves, when the shade should be made lighter. As soon as the plants have one or two well defined leaves they should be potted in small pots and given a nice, dry, position near the glass, which should be shaded, but care should be taken that the young stock does not get drawn. Always bear in mind that the one thing in growing cinerarias is to be on the watch for is the aphid. These insects quickly infest these plants and rapidly suck the life out of them. Constant fumigation will keep them in check, but if not attended to regularly it will be time and money thrown away to attempt their culture. Cineraria hybrida is the variety most grown, and these are obtainable in some elegant strains with large, high-colored flowers. The C. stellata is a much larger and more rapid growing plant which is very showy, but it is not so well adapted for house culture when in flower.

Winter-Flowering Geraniums.

With all growers having a greenhouse and doing a retail business there is in the fall a good demand for pot geraniums for house culture. Plants lifted from the open ground and potted in the fall are not very satisfactory, for the plants recover from the later transplanting slowly and go out of bloom and often do not flower again until spring. It is better to grow plants for this purpose in pots through the summer, and these, with good culture, will bloom all winter long if in a sunny position. Cuttings taken at this time will make nice stock for this purpose, or small plants left over after the spring sales can be used. The plants should be potted firmly, so that they will make a short, stocky growth, and kept well pinched back throughout the summer, that as many branches may be procured as possible. All buds should be picked off as soon as formed, allowing no blooms until the plants are firmly established in blooming pots, in which they should be planted the last of August. A 6-inch pot makes the best size for house culture, and the plant can be easily grown so that it will fill this size nicely. A frame outside is the most convenient and best place for growing them through the summer.

Ardisias.

One of the most popular berried plants for Christmas is the ardisia, but it is not grown as generally as it should be, the production being left to a few plant growers, for it is of very easy culture, the only drawback being that it is of very slow growth. The seeds of the old plants are now thoroughly ripened and should be sown at this time. They germinate slowly, and should be sown about an inch apart, in rows the same distance apart, and they can be left in the seed box until early summer and potted in 2½ or 3 inch pots and grown in a warm, lightly shaded location. They should be potted in good fibrous loam and kept in a moist, close house, that all the growth possible may be obtained at this time, for the plant naturally checks in winter. In early spring these young plants will flower and produce a crop of berries for the next winter. The plants that have been grown for three years or more have generally passed the ornamental stage, for they lose their leaves and have a "leggy" appearance. When they reach this stage the tops can be rooted and fine plants obtained. This can best be done at this time of the year by cutting into the stem and wrapping the cut with wet moss firmly tied around. Keep the plants in a warm, close atmosphere and the moss continually damp, and in four or five weeks new roots will grow in the moss, when the tops can be cut off and potted, still keeping the plant in the same temperature until new growths start. This operation will not in any way interfere with the plants blooming, for they frequently set an abundance of buds while the top is making new roots. The brown scale is the greatest enemy of ardisias, even in the young stage, and they must be removed at once when found, for they sap the growth of the plant. The older plants should be frequently sponged with a strong nicotine solution.

A Garden of the Brave.

That was a beautiful and moving conception of Sir John Fraser's spoken at the Pilgrims' luncheon that the burial lands of the war in France should be made gardens of flowers. In his eloquent words:

"I would like to see—and I do see sometimes in my vision—the flowers of America growing over where lie so many of your gallant sons.

"I know there will be mighty stretches of fleur-de-lys marking the sleeping places of 1,500,000 brave Frenchmen. I would like to see the blooms of Belgium nodding over the graves where brave Belgians sleep, and I know that out there I would like to see a mighty avenue of maple trees, all glorious with their crimson and with their gold, telling the place where the Canadians rest, and there will be mighty masses of the wonderful Australian wattle showing where the Australians are sleeping; yes, and I know that out there, too, will be great sheaves of green, the shamrock coverlet for the brave Irish; and there will be roses everywhere, the white rose and red rose, the roses of old England, of Lancaster and of York, telling where 500,000 brave Englishmen lie.

"Perhaps out in that Garden of the Brave I would come across stretches of heather, beautiful gold-purple heather. I know there were Scotchmen buried there. There would be playing—I would hear the sound of the pipes, for the pipes always play where dead Scotch soldiers lie; that is the vision that comes to me."

There would be many American symbols to join the pageant—goldenrod, California poppies, wild rose, among the rest. Certainly no more glorious and fitting memorial could be imagined than such fields of mingled beauty.

Sir John Fraser spoke of his idea as a vision that could never be realized. Perhaps he is right. Yet more difficult projects have come to pass when their appeal was strong. All such plans must wait upon practical problems, of course. No one knows as yet just how completely the ruin of the farm lands of France has been accomplished by shell and trench. The plan of planting forests in the worst afflicted areas has already received support in France. Land is too precious in France to devote large areas to non-productive uses. Yet, when the survey of conditions is completed, is it not altogether possible that certain great battlefields, perhaps the major part of that great line which held against every shock of Hun attack might be commemorated in fields of flowers representative of the countries that gave their best and youngest there?

Certainly the proposal is too appealing to be easily yielded. France will be the shrine of American pilgrimage for generations. The planting of flowers could be easily undertaken by our government or by our garden clubs or by the states. We shall hope the idea may appeal to France as both fitting and practicable.—New York Tribune.

THE S. A. F.

The Society's Advertising—Correction.

Referring to the advertisement of the credit and collection committee which appeared in our issue of May 10, page S16, Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Tex., chairman, in a communication dated May 22, has the following:

"The last paragraph of this advertisement should have been omitted. It was struck out at the meeting of our members in Detroit, but through some error was allowed to slip by. We are not affiliated with the Webb bureau, having severed our connection with it at that meeting."

National Publicity for Flowers.

We are entering June with less than one-half of our required fund of $100,000 subscribed. It is quite obvious that we must speed up the campaign. Are our clubs and other organizations doing as much as they might? Why cannot they put on a "publicity night" occasionally, and thus arouse a local interest in the campaign? Any club, or organization that is willing to do this, can have the assistance of our committees, who, out of their membership, will supply speakers who can intelligently present the subject and meet any discussion. All that it is necessary to do is to notify the secretary of the requirement, and the speakers will be forthcoming. There are 60 or more organizations of florists in the country, but few only have, so far, made a push for the campaign fund through the "publicity night."

We ought, by this time, to be a long way towards our goal. Thousands of florists throughout the country have, as yet, given the fund no support whatever. As a subscriber said the other day, "What must be the feelings of those who have not subscribed when they see our superb advertisements in the magazines? They must, indeed, be hard shelled if they do not immediately send a contribution to the secretary. They know that certain of their trade brethren are providing the campaign ammunition, and they should be proud, rather than otherwise, to contribute."

As has been said scores of times, the money collected is wholly expended for publicity for flowers. As fast as sufficient is collected for a magazine crusade, one is planned and put into execution. But we should keep continually at it, there should be no lulls. It is just as important that our slogan, "Say it with Flowers," be seen everywhere in summer time as in winter. People have birthdays every year; it is estimated that there are daily about 20,000 in a city like New York, and, naturally, they occur in summer as well as at any other time.

Our committees have prepared a plan of campaign for the summer, and are putting it into execution. We have to place our magazine advertisements well ahead of publication dates, consequently the committees sometimes are called upon to anticipate income. This is not fair to them, but, Mr. Nonsubscriber, you are at fault for this condition. Of course, you know that you intend to make a contribution, and would do it in a minute if you received a personal call for it. Will you not dispense with the necessity for this, and send to the secretary forthwith whatever you wish to contribute? If you would first like to see a list of subscribers, one will be sent to you upon request.

The following subscriptions have been received and are in addition to those previously announced, annually for four years, unless otherwise stated:

Plant Quarantine No. 37.
PEONY SOCIETY PROTEST.

(The accompanying protest adopted in substance at the meeting of the directors in New York, March 24, is submitted to the members of the American Peony Society for their consideration, with the recommendation that, if it meets with their approval, they should endorse it and send it with such additional memoranda as they may wish, to their own senators and congressmen.)

The directors of the American Peony Society at their annual meeting in New York in March, 1919, adopted the following protest against the above-named quarantine regulation:

The directors of this society, representing almost all American growers of peonies on a large scale, whether professional or amateur, register their protest against the proposed regulation for the exclusion of foreign nursery stock, commonly called Quarantine No. 37.

The protest is based on these considerations:

First, from the available published accounts of the preliminary public hearings of May and September last, as well as from the emphatic protests which have appeared in the horticultural press in recent months, it is evident that the nurserymen of the country are strongly opposed to the measure. It is they who will suffer by it. It is not too much to say that the quarantine will remove a considerable part of their means of livelihood. Now it is contrary to the genius of a democratic government that such a board as the federal horticultural board, in which professional horticulture is entirely unrepresented, should hold power as it were of life and death over such a considerable class of the community. This is autocracy, not democracy. And it is apparent from the progress of events that the trade has no effective way of making its protests heard, unless indeed it shall prove possible to bring about congressional action.

The horticultural profession is not opposed to such methods of quarantine as can be shown to be necessary and effective, and would be open to conviction if the board were willing to enter into a friendly and thoroughgoing discussion of the situation. But the attitude of the board towards the trade in connection with the present measure has been, to say the least, unfortunate.

The measure is therefore to be condemned on the ground that it is imposed in a despotic spirit, without due regard to the objections of those who are made to suffer by it.

In the second place the regulation is unreasonable in its discriminations.

A careful reading of the document and the literature that has grown up around it, reveals the fact that the board has lacked a sound and general idea from which to proceed. It appears that at the time of the public hearing in May, 1918, it was intended only, or mainly, to exclude plants shipped with earth on their roots. The underlying theory then apparently was that it was in the earth that insect and other pests were most likely to be brought to the country. The board should at that time have been clear as to whether the danger lay chiefly in the plants themselves or in the earth about their roots; and apparently the board had indeed decided that the worst danger lay in the earth and not in the plants. Unfortunately the board does not seem to be very well informed as to what groups of plants are imported with earth on their roots and what are not. This is illustrated for instance by the allusion in a communication from the chairman to "peonies together with all other plants with earth," whereas peonies are generally washed free from all earth before shipping, and there is no reason why they should not always be shipped quite free from earth.

It would seem then that if the earth on the roots is the source of danger the energies of the board might more profitably have been directed to framing regulations that would insure the removal of earth from plants that were to enter the country, and prohibit the importation of those only which could not be shipped without earth. Instead of this the board has later extended its original restrictions so that now they cover not only all plants with earth but also almost all without earth—though lilies, tulips, narcissi, a few other bulbs, and a very few classes of plants are to be admitted. Since certain of these cannot well be shipped without earth, the board has recently published an amendment to the quarantine in which express permission is given to use earth in packing certain bulbs, provided the earth has been "previously sterilized in accordance with methods prescribed by the federal horticultural board."

It thus appears that some bulbs or roots may be imported with earth, whereas other bulbs and roots are forbidden even though free from earth.

The impression can hardly fail to be produced that the board instead of intelligently selecting for exclusion only those plants most likely to introduce pests, sought rather to exclude everything, whether involving any serious danger or not, in the belief that by spreading their net wide enough they would be sure to catch what they were after. They were then apparently induced in some way to make a few exceptions to the general rule of exclusion.

The board does not seem to have stopped to consider that this method will work most serious harm to the large business interests involved, as well as unnecessarily deprive the flower-loving public of America of many beautiful plants.

The choice of the few plants and bulbs selected for admission when considered side by side with similar ones that are excluded only awakens a sense of wonder as to what were the considerations which dictated the selection; and the statement issued by the board in defense of its action does not make the mystery any less.

In the third place, it is to be said that such a sacrifice of horticultural interests could only be justified—if at all—on the ground that the protection afforded by the measure was reasonably near to being complete. But no measure that could be framed would guarantee protection against the introduction of pests. Every boat that brings a cargo to one of our ports, which the board considers innocent, still brings material in which pests of one sort or another may be hidden—in fruits, even if it does not carry a shipment of the particular plants in packing, in hemp, in ballast, in the very vessel itself. It is to be noted that the quarantine specifically provides that "fruits, vegetables, cereals, and other plant products for or capable of propagation, intended for medicinal, food, or manufacturing purposes * * * may be imported without permit or other restrictions." It is very much open to question whether the dangers from these sources may not be quite as serious as those from shipments of well washed roots of peonies or other perennials and indeed in the case of imported vegetables, a good deal more so.

Z. D. Blackistone, Washington, D. C.

Furthermore, the countries to the north and south of us, having no such quarantine in force, would easily provide a way for the introduction of pests. It would seem almost futile to enact so stringent a regulation unless the co-operation of the Canadian government could be secured for similar regulations in Canada.

It comes therefore to this, that the horticultural interests and the gardening public are to be required to pay a high price for an immunity which is not a real immunity.

Finally, it is proposed to put into effect the restrictions on importation without allowing the growers of the country any adequate time in which to prepare for the new conditions. Importations have been very much curtailed during the past two or three years, so that stocks of imported material are now low; and at the same time labor conditions have been such that it has been impossible for the nurserymen to undertake any additional work whatever, looking to the growing of American stocks to take the place of what usually comes from Europe. The argument of the board in this connection is that since Belgium and other European countries have been sending us little or nothing for some time past, the present is a particularly good time in which to enact a general prohibition of importations from them. This argument may look simple and convincing from the point of view of plant inspection and control, but it is the reverse of convincing from the point of view of the nurseryman, who draws a very different conclusion from the same premises. His need is now more urgent than ever to be allowed a few years in which to build up a stock from which he might be able to propagate sufficient material to meet his future requirements.

The directors of the American Peony Society therefore respectfully present the following recommendations to the secretary of agriculture, to the horticultural board, and to the members of the Senate and House of Representatives:

That the Quarantine regulation No. 37 should be at once suspended.

That a new quarantine measure should be framed with the co-operation of the nursery and greenhouse interests, which should contain only such provisions of exclusion as are demonstrably and convincingly necessary, and such as would be really effective.

That where important classes of foreign plants are to be excluded, several years' notice of such exclusion should be given, in order that the cultivation of stock in this country may have reached a fairly adequate development before the foreign sources of supply are cut off.

The following officers of the American Peony Society were present at the meeting at which these recommendations were, in substance, unanimously adopted: James Boyd, president, Philadelphia, Pa.; A. H. Fewkes, vice-president, Newton Highlands, Mass.; A. P. Saunders, secretary, Clinton, N. Y.; A. H. Scott, treasurer, Oak Lane, Pa.; B. H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa., and L. R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, Ohio, directors.

Z. D. Blackistone, Washington, D. C.

Ten dollars and a reputation for integrity constituted the entire capital of Zachariah D. Blackistone when he started in the flower business back in 1898. The even $10 represented the amount saved and deposited by Mr. Blackistone in the old Union Savings Bank on F street, after seven years of work for a local flower dealer. Mr. Blackistone came to Washington in 1891 and started to work for $3 a week in S. C. Redman's grocery store. During the several years following, he held positions with various firms, contributing almost all his salary to family support; but none of these suited him until he began work with a florist. This was the beginning of success for him, for he later branched out for himself and established his present place of business, which is now rated as one of the largest and best-known floral establishments in the country.

Mr. Blackistone was born 45 years ago in Maryland on the lower Potomac, opposite Blackistone's Island. This island and the immediate vicinity have always been associated with the Blackistone family since the colonial days, when they received the original grant. He attended the public schools of the county and the Charlotte Hall Military Academy. Mr. Blackistone has one great hobby—his family. He has a wife and three children, with whom he spends much of his leisure in the woods, studying the birds, trees and flowers in their native haunts. He is president of the Florists' Club of Washington, and a member of the Society of American Florists. He is connected with several Masonic orders.—Washington Herald.

American Peony Society.

The seventeenth annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society will be held in the Board of Commerce building, Wayne and Lafayette boulevard, Detroit, Mich., June 17-18. This exhibition will be managed by the Detroit Florists' Club as a result of a meeting of some of the members at Detroit May 21, and the approval of the officers of the society, who were unable to be present.

This announcement is made in advance of the premium list, which will soon be sent to the members and growers who are requested to make preparations to send flowers for competition and exhibition. Members of the American Peony Society are especially requested to urge growers in their immediate vicinity to attend this meeting, if possible, and also to make an exhibit of blooms in competition or otherwise. For the benefit of those who cannot come with their flowers, such growers may ship them by express prepaid, addressed to the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, 264 Randolph street, Detroit, Mich., where a competent committee will receive and properly care for them, including the staging in the exhibition hall.

It is the desire of the society to make this exhibition the largest and most interesting in its history and to that end the Detroit florists are working hard and giving wide publicity through the daily press to the event, which will assure a big attendance at the exhibition of all lovers of peonies. The prizes to be offered will be sufficiently attractive to encourage growers from all parts to make exhibits which may be entered in whichever class the grower may elect.

Some of the awards will consist of roots of the most valuable varieties extant and amateurs and professional growers will have a chance to add some rare sorts to their collections by this method which are not available by purchase.

Among these may be mentioned the Le Cygne, by President James Boyd, and the great sensational variety, Jubilee, shown at the Philadelphia meeting two years ago, offered as a prize by Lee R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, Ohio; also, the celebrated varieties Elwood Pleas and Lady A. Duff will be offered by Chas. F. Wassenberg, Van Wert,

Foreign Trade Conciliation.

To successfully develop American foreign trade an arrangement is necessary for settling the disputes which will invariably arise in all buying, especially during the first stage of establishing trade abroad. It is evident that there is now a most serious intention on the part of the American manufacturer to develop foreign trade on a large scale. It is equally evident that in the face of an open world competition a workable system of arbitration or conciliation is necessary in each of the foreign centers where goods are to be shipped, according to Erwin W. Thompson, commercial attache of the United States department of commerce, Copenhagen, Denmark, in a communication dated March 28, 1919.

The fundamental difficulty at present is that the manufacturer, as a rule, honestly believes the goods he ships are exactly according to the order received. Likewise the average large foreign buyer honestly believes in his own judgment concerning the goods when they arrive. These honest opinions are often at variance. A few standard organizations, like the London Corn Exchange, have been successfully utilized in some special commodities which have standard specifications. But, even in the best cases, an arbitration at a distance from either buyer or seller often leaves traces of dissatisfaction which militates against future relations.

To successfully reconcile differing opinions on opposite sides of the ocean, it is necessary to have some unified agency with offices on each side in which local influences and acquaintanceship can inspire confidence in the decisions. This agency might be operated as a special department of a large New York financial institution already having branches or offices in important foreign centers. This department should be so staffed that the report of the foreign agent on the character of any given American shipment, on arrival at destination, will be considered authoritative and, above all, trustworthy.

Sales might be made under a standard clause something like—"all differences to be arbitrated and settled through the international adjusting agency." Such a clause might be stamped on the draft in a way to automatically bind both drawer and drawee, wherever and however negotiated. A difference between buyer and seller may be (1) only financial, legal, and commercial, or (2) technical. Financial, legal, and commercial differences may easily be arbitrated by some existing committee of the chamber of commerce or similar organization at the place of destination. The important point would be to have the adjusting agency represented on this committee, or at least be in a position to review the findings.

As to technical differences, each of the foreign agency branches should find in its locality some responsible expert in each line of merchandise whom it could call in on occasion and pay a fee to examine any given question. Generally speaking, a technical dispute would involve (a) a physical or chemical question as to the composition of the article; (b) a mechanical question, such as the adaptability of the article for the purpose intended. Disputes relating to the physical or chemical composition of the material could very easily be submitted to the public testing laboratory of the foreign government, and its decision, being purely one of facts, should be reasonably convincing to both parties. Disputes relating to adaptability must necessarily be settled by expert opinion, and the agency would call in the proper expert and obtain a written opinion, comprising a judicial explanation as to the compliance or noncompliance of the article with the terms of sale. This and all other findings should be subject to review by the agency, which should submit one copy with its indorsement to the local buyer and transmit one copy to the head office in New York for its indorsement and submission to seller.

At the foreign end it would be the business of the agency to cultivate the goodwill and confidence of all local buyers of American goods, so that its decision would be accepted on a friendly basis. Such buyers as would not willingly accept these decisions could be card-indexed for future reference. From the buyer's standpoint, it would obviously be good business to keep in proper relations with the agency.

At the American end, the decisions received from the agency abroad would be passed on to the sellers, who would look favorably on them because of the personal chain of responsible endorsements—foreign expert, agency abroad, agency in New York, exporter, manufacturer, superintendent of works, individual packer and workman. Such sellers as might not be satisfied with this arrangement would be card indexed for guidance in any succeeding transactions.

Gardening Course for Ohio Women.

In response to an agreement by prominent Cleveland women to furnish a minimum of 20 students, a summer course for women in gardening and poultry at the Ohio State University, Columbus, for four weeks beginning June 23, has been arranged. Members of the Cleveland and Shaker Lakes Garden Clubs and the Women's Land Army committee of Cleveland have raised $1,000 to provide 20 scholarships at $50 each, the cost of the course, which will include a general study of vegetable gardening, fruit growing, beautification of home surroundings, poultry raising, care of milk and butter making. There will also be special classes for canning and drying surplus supplies of vegetables, the culture of truck crops and the study of flowers. In order that other women may attend and that other organizations may provide additional scholarships, the number of registrations that will be accepted has been raised to 40. There will be no entrance examination, no tuition fee and the only age requirement is that the students shall be over 18 years of age. Further information may be had upon application to Dean Alfred Vivian of the College of Agriculture, Columbus, O.

Kansas City Flower Show.

The fourth annual show of the Amateur Flower Gardeners' Association, held at the Hotel Muchlebach, Kansas City, Mo., May 17, was said by both visitors and officials to have surpassed any previous exhibition, being larger than in previous years with 71 entries including showings from St. Joseph, Liberty, Independence, Mo., and Lawrence, Kan. Irises had an important part in the exhibition, 100 varieties being arranged along one side of the hall. The columbine also proved to be a strong favorite. Peonies and Oriental poppies also vied with each other for the visitors' attention. There were in addition splendid displays of indoor flowers by Mrs. Melville Hudson and roses by the Longview Farm. Other exhibits included delphiniums, specimen anemuses, sweet williams, pyrethrums, flowering shrubs and greenhouse plants, and well arranged bouquets and table decorations. The officers of the association are Mrs. Massey Holmes, president; Mrs. Henry D. Ashley, vice-president, and Mrs. Alfred Hurlburt, secretary-treasurer. A fall exhibition will be held which will include classes for vegetables.

Horticultural Society of New York.

There will be an exhibition of flowers held by this society June 7-8 in the Museum building, New York Botanical Garden. Premiums are offered for peonies, roses, flowering shrubs and trees, and herbaceous plants. Schedules are now ready for distribution, and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, New York.

THE S. S. Westpool, recently arrived at New York from Antwerp carrying 1900 bay trees in tubs.

THERE is talk of a big chrysanthemum show at Chicago next fall in connection with the $50,000 national apple show.

FRESIA flowers, both white and colored, are said to have sold well in the Covent Garden market, London, the past season.

WE are in receipt of the proceedings of the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the American Carnation Society, held at Cleveland, O., January 29-30, 1919.

A REPORT from London May 28 is to the effect that on Memorial day the English will decorate with flowers the graves of 3,000 American soldiers who died on British soil.

Personal.

Fred H. Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Calif., is on the way to Paris, where, on invitation of the French government, he will officiate as judge in the rose trials at Bagatelle next month.

UNITED VERDE EXTENSION, the Arizona copper concern, is offering a one-eighth acre garden patch to any employe. Ground ready for seeding, water furnished free and a professional agriculturist employed by the company to assist and advise.

Boston Orchid Show.

The preliminary premium list is out for the important exhibition of orchids and other plants to be held by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at Horticultural hall, Boston, March 24-28, 1920. Prizes amounting to more than $5,000 are offered. Copies of the schedule may be had on application to the secretary, Wm. P. Rich, Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass.

New York Show Preliminary Schedule.

The first preliminary schedule of the New York flower show to be held in the Grand Central Palace in that city, March 15-21, 1920, has been issued and copies of same or further information may be had upon application to Secretary John Young, 1170 Broadway, New York. Included in the schedule in the division for private growers are 31 classes for plants in flower, 10 for palms and foliage plants, six for ferns, 11 for bulbous plants, six for orchids and two for roses in pots and tubs. Commercial growers will be well provided for with awards ranging from $500 to $10 in similar classes. An important feature of the show, as usual, will be the trade exhibition, floor plans of which are now available for reservation.

British View of Plant Quarantine.

In commenting on Plant Quarantine No. 37, the British Horticultural Advertiser of April 23 has the following: "The trade press on the other side reports an amendment (?) of the Prohibition act, under which a number of bulbs and lily of valley will be allowed entrance if packed in sterilized soil. The authorities over there appear to possess a somewhat limited knowledge of the trade, as they state 'dry earth is the only suitable material known for packing these bulbs.' We have, of course, seen auratums packed in clay, but who ever saw Dutch bulbs packed in this way? The weight would double expenses for freight, and surely buckwheat chaff is as clean and free from infections as any soil, whether sterilized or not."

American Rose Society.

Professor E. A. White, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., secretary of the American Rose Society has announced two rare treats for members of the society during June, as follows:

WASHINGTON TEST GARDEN MEETING.

June 3 is the date of the fifth annual inspection of the national rose test garden at Arlington Farms, Washington, D. C. Those attending will meet at 10:30 a. m. at the store of Gude Bros. Co., 1214 F street, N. W., and proceed to the test gardens, the inspection commencing at 11 o'clock. At 1:00 p. m., luncheon will be served at the Ebbit House, and at 2:30 p. m., a start will be made for "Twin Oaks," where the visitors will be received by Mrs. J. C. Bell. The Florists' Club of Washington, through its president, Z. D. Blackstone, has most kindly offered to act as hosts, in an informal way, to the American Rose Society for the day, in much the same manner as heretofore. All those who will attend should, therefore, notify the chairman of the reception committee, Otto Bauer, care of the S. S. Pennock Co., 1216 H street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

June 4, Captain George C. Thomas, Jr., invites members of the society to inspect his splendid rose garden at Chestnut Hill, near Philadelphia, Pa. In addition to the sight of this notable garden an interesting rose programme has been arranged. It is believed that this is the most important invitation ever extended to members of the American Rose Society, not only to see roses, but to meet Captain Thomas, whose knowledge of roses is unique.

J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., editor of the Rose Annual, urges that more of the comment cards mailed with the annual be returned as he is anxious to make the annual reflect still more closely the desires and observations of the members.

Secretary White calls attention to the fact that the membership privilege, permitting a 1919 member to send in a new $2 membership for a friend expires July 1. The new member will also receive both the 1919 and the 1918 annuals if remittance is received before that date.

MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS OF

PRESERVED FOLIAGES, BASKETS AND FLORIST SUPPLIES

Boston.

LIGHT DEMAND AND HEAVY SUPPLY.

Business during the past week has been very quiet with a large supply on hand. Prices, in consequence, are reasonable. Everyone is looking to the largest Memorial day trade on record. Several of the department stores are carrying heavy lines of prepared wreaths and sprays, advertising them at prices ranging from 69 cents to $4 each.

NOTES.

Due to inclement weather, the May exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society was not as large as would otherwise have been the case. There were, however, flowers of rare beauty and specimens showing the possibilities of scientific culture, both in flowers and vegetables. One of the most interesting features was the large exhibit arranged by James Marlborough, gardener for the Thomas E. Proctor estate at Topsfield, which included his collection of geraniums grown in tree form. A miniature rock garden on a space 30 inches square shown by Miss Marian Case also presented interesting possibilities.

The florists' association held its second meeting at the Parker House, May 20. After a splendid dinner, the business session and a clever talk on "Americanism" by Sailor Ryan followed. Chief Yeoman Harry Manliff, formerly a florist, but now a war-made orator, spoke at length regarding the future of the florist trade.

May 22 was flower day at Liberty court in aid of the Salvation Army drive. Messrs. Cohen, Liebman, Sleane and Hastings collected from both markets and all of the surplus stock was sold during a heavy rain storm and brought $800 for the worthy cause.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. are unusually busy, working night and day shift trying to keep pace with Memorial day orders.

John Rogers, formerly in charge of the flower stand in the Copley Plaza, will open a flower shop in the Little building.

Thomas Cox, one of the pioneers of the trade in this section, died, May 20, from heart trouble, age 72 years.

N. F. McCarthy's auction room is well patronized these days. A large stock is well displayed. S. K. G.

Ontario Gardeners' and Florists' Ass'n.

The monthly meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association of Ontario was held in St. George's hall, Toronto, May 20, President H. G. Dille-muth in the chair. The coming convention and flower shows were the principal business of the evening. The date of the coming convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association was fixed for August 12-14. The programme was outlined, and it was left in the hands of the executive committee of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association and the executive committee of the retail florists' club to secure a hall, and to allot floor space for trade exhibits, for which several applications have come in from American firms. An entertainment and sports committee was appointed, and every member is looking forward to a very large and enjoyable convention.

T. Manton reported on a meeting of the horticultural section of the Industrial National Exhibition. There are a few main changes in the exhibition. The class of perennials and annuals, formerly calling for 25 varieties, now calls for 20 distinct species. The decorated tables' class is confined to floral decorations, the silver being omitted. There is a new class open for competition, which will prove very popular, an exhibition of rock gardens. Space is allowed for a decorated bride's table not in competition, open to all.

The date for the chrysanthemum show is fixed for November 11-15. This will be a great start for the show. November 11 being the date set for Thanksgiving day. The retail florists have decided not to compete at this show, but to use the prize money allotted to them in decorating that section of the hall set aside for them. This departure from competition in this section will be very popular and a great benefit to the public and trade alike.

The winners in the evening's show were: Geo. Thompson, eight points for six calceolarias; Wm. Hermiston, nine points for a Davallia fern; Thos. Crisswell, eight points for a basket of tomatoes. ALEXANDER SIMPSON, Sec'y.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held May 14, with Vice-President Frank Wilson in the chair. There was a fine display of tulips on the exhibition tables and keen competition in the 14 classes. John F. Johnston, S. J. Trepass and Alex. McKenzie were appointed judges and the following awards were made: Best three varieties, six of each, Jas. McCarthy; also first for entries of 18 and 12 breeder tulips and first and second in several classes of Darwins. F. C. Johnson received both first and second honors in the Darwin and Picotee sections and Ed. Harris also secured several awards for Darwins. At the next meeting, which will be held June 11 the competition will be for 24 pods of peas, 12 strawberries and vase of outdoor flowers, not an annual or shrub.

DULLNESS PRECEDES MEMORIAL DAY.

Trade during the past week has been rather quiet. Indications, however, point to a brisk Memorial day trade. Stock has been quite plentiful but the demand has been lighter than at any time since Christmas, causing an accumulation that was cleaned up by the street men on Saturday. They are doing a thriving business. Lilac is very plentiful and has been in fair demand. Outdoor tulips and Narcissus poeticus have practically no call. Carnations clean up daily. Sweet peas are in heavy supply. Roses are equal to requirements in all grades and varieties, with the exception of white sorts, for which there is a good call for weddings. Lily of the valley is none too plentiful, but some good outdoor stock is arriving, however, and helps to fill the orders. The supply of snapdragons is also limited. Good southern ferns and dagger ferns are new in. A few single violets, daisies, wallflowers, swainsona, etc., add to the variety.

MARKET RECOVERS AFTER DROP.

Prices took a tumble the early part of the week owing to a heavy supply, but Friday and Saturday they were back to normal. American Beauties are of excellent quality, but the demand is light. Russell, Columbia and Milady remain the rose favorites with Ophelia a close second. Sunburst, Pink Killarney, Hilda and Sawyer are hard to move at times. Carnations are good and clean up easily. Some very good peonies are arriving daily and bring from $9 to $10 per 100 with Festiva Maxima quoted at $12. Easter lilies and callas are seen in small quantities and it is believed that next week will be their end. The supply of Spanish iris is short of the demand. Snapdragons, mignette and calendulas are of poor quality and do not move fast. The peony outlook for Memorial day is not very encouraging, due to the cold, rainy weather during the past two weeks.

NOTES.

Henry Blind, road salesman for the McCallum Co., has purchased a fine salesman's car which he will use in visiting the trade this summer.

BEDDING TRADE IN FULL SWING.

The warm weather of the past week has ushered in the spring bedding season, which is now in full swing. The prices on geraniums are higher than at any other time in the history of the trade here, but they are sold before they can come into bloom. Hanging baskets and porch boxes are selling fast. If the weather continues warm, there is no doubt of a complete clean-up within a fortnight. Cut flowers are fairly plentiful. Roses are of excellent quality, and show an increase over last week. Carnations are generally of good quality and prices are high. Peonies, locally grown, are bringing $2 and $3 per dozen. They are not very plentiful, but are expected to be in the market in full force for Memorial day. Handsome sweet peas continue to meet a fine demand. Outdoor shrubs are seen in the flower stores, where they are used for decorating. Lilacs, of the home-grown variety, are now offered here, and double Poeticus narcissus are meeting with public favor.

NOTES.

At the theatrical performances given at the Palace theatre several thousands of cut flowers were sold for the benefit of the Soldiers' Community House, for which the performance was given. These flowers were donated by the local florists.

BAD WEATHER HURTS PLANT DEMAND.

Continuous rains and unseasonable weather have interfered with planting and for that reason the plant business has not been up to expectations, although prices hold up well. Geraniums in four-inch pots are bringing $3 per dozen, coleus, verbenas and alternantheras, proportionate figures, while roses of the same size return 50 to 75 cents each. Peonies have been damaged by late frosts and there will be a light supply of these.

NOTES.

The New Nanz & Neuner Co. will reglaze and paint their entire range this summer. Although the price of coal in this city is from $4 to $4.70 per ton, the firm was able to purchase several carolads at 70 cents per ton, due to a railroad wreck near this establishment.

After a successful business career of half a century the business of J. G. Bettman & Sons is being discontinued, the range and seven acres of ground being sold to L. Karl Guettig. Will Bettman is said to have made several hundred thousand dollars in oil.

Anders Rasmussen of New Albany is planting carnations in solid beds at his new range and will carry them through instead of planting in the field.

The J. Schulz Co. recently featured a display of irises with name cards attached which proved a good attraction and was a business getter.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

The demand for Memorial day was heavy this year and it was impossible to fill anywhere near the many shipping orders that were booked. Carnations easily brought the advertised quotations, which was surprising to many of the dealers but was predicted in these columns a few weeks ago. Peonies never were in such short supply for Memorial day as this year, nor did they bring such high prices. Roses were scarce, taking the market as a whole, and some of the houses which were long on peonies offered to exchange them for roses. Miscellaneous stock had a good call owing to the scarcity of roses, carnations, peonies, etc., and cleaned up nicely in all lines. Lilac sold as quickly as it reached the store at high prices. Orchids were in short supply and commanded high figures. The supply of lilies was limited and what little stock reached the market found immediate buyers. A few callas were among the offerings. Tulips were quite a factor in the market and so were snapdragons, stocks, candytuft, iris, narcissi, lupines, statice, daisies, poppies and a few other items which were used to good advantage during the general scarcity. Many out-of-town buyers visited the market personally to protect their supply and found conditions exactly as they were reported in regard to the great shortage which many could hardly believe true. The warm weather which has prevailed all week may possibly help conditions for the local buyers if it continues, but from present conditions it appears as if everything will clean up completely in all lines, for there is no surplus in the market at this writing and many orders are being filled short or refused altogether. The daily papers are devoting considerable space to Memorial day this year and the florists are naturally reaping the benefit. Made-up wreaths never had such a brisk call and will play an important part in the cemetery decorations this season. One of the department stores offered sweet peas at a song last Saturday, May 4, which it is reported were secured from the wholesale market and again brings up the old evil that everyone thought was eradicated for good when the retailers organized for their mutual protection.

DEPARTMENT STORE PLANT TRADE.

The loop stores operating plant departments, report a great scarcity of bedding stock this season, with a strong demand for what they have to offer. Hillman's discontinued the sale of plants entirely this season, owing to the great scarcity, and the other stores, especially The Fair, Boston Store and Rothschild's, are making every effort to meet the demand, although they realize it is practically useless, considering conditions. The line is limited to geraniums, cannas, coleus, begonias and salvias. Geraniums in 4-inch pots are being sold for 15 cents each or $1.62 per dozen. All the stock offered is practically in 4-inch pots with cannas, coleus, begonias and salvias priced at 10 cents each. Boston ferns in 8-inch pots sell for $1.75 each. The buyers for these stores mention that they never experienced so much trouble in securing stock as this season, and one in particular said that the growers probably favored them with what they got in order to protect their business next year.

Veterans of the world war will march with heroes of other wars in the annual Memorial day parade, May 30. Special exercises in honor of the 200 of this city, killed in action, the 2,047 other dead, and the 418 missing, will be held. At the same time, the graves of men who fought in the Civil war, the Philippine insurrection, the Boxer uprising and the Spanish-American war, will be decorated. The parade is expected to be the longest ever held here, for every returned soldier was asked to march.

Clarence Enders, son of John Enders, with Poehlmann Bros. Co., arrived home this week from France, where he served with one of the infantry units of the famous 33d division, which was given such a rousing reception here May 27. Jack Byers, Leo Koropp and Luke Schrer, who are also members of this division, are expected here shortly and there is no doubt but what all their friends will be glad to see them again.

John Poehlmann has returned from a business trip through Tennessee, Arkansas and several other western states. He was the guest of Kirby Boersler, of Kirby's Flower Shop, Little Rock, Ark., for two days at the state farm at Columbus, adjoining Governor Lowden's plantation.

Ove Gnat, of The Ove Gnat Co., La Porte, Ind., was here on business this week. He reports trade exceptionally brisk and has no complaint whatever to make in regard to dull times the past year, which was a "humdinger" with his firm.

Miss Olga Tonner, who has been on the sick list for several weeks, was able to visit O. A. & L. A. Tonner's store May 27 in time to witness the welcome to the 6,000 33rd Division heroes.

Allan Humason, E. C. Pruner and Fred Longren are back from out-of-town trips, and are spending a few days here with their families.

MUCH ARTIFICIAL STOCK DISPLAYED.

Artificial flowers in wreaths, sprays and bouquets seem to predominate for this year's Memorial day trade, almost everyone having large stocks of them for the occasion. In natural flowers, roses, carnations, sweet peas, etc., are still good and are meeting with fair sales. Boston has been shipping in good short roses during the week. Outside flowers are also meeting with a heavy call. Geraniums bring good prices.

NOTES.

TRADE CONTINUES ACTIVE.

While there has not been any special activity along any lines this week, business has showed much steadiness. With the first great cut of outdoor roses and other flowering stock about over, the public has turned its attention to the stores, the steady source of supply for their requirement. Stock in nearly all lines, with the possible exception of roses, is beginning to shorten up considerably. There is, of course, a large cut of roses and Ulrich Brunner is expected next week. This rose, which at this season is probably the most popular of all varieties, will be had in large quantities daily throughout the summer months. American Beauties are splendid at this writing. The prices being received are very satisfactory. The one flower that has jumped into popular favor here in practically one season, is the peony. It has never appeared in such quantity or quality heretofore, owing in a great measure, to the erroneous opinion that it could not be grown here successfully commercially. As the contrary has been proven this season, we may expect to find it one of our leading spring features in the future. Spanish irises are still in great favor and a very fine lot of stock is arriving. Large quantities are being disposed of every morning at good figures. Carnations are being more largely used during the past few days, owing to the scarcity of other stock. Prices are about the same as last quoted, with a steady call. Some splendidly grown delphinium hybrids are being displayed in the store windows. Cattleyas are beginning to shorten up again, and prices remain very firm. Gardenias are coming along more freely of late, but prices remain as usual. Scabiosa caucasica is one of the perennials which are now in great favor. Ageratum hybridum is also being shown all over town. In pot plants, hydrangeas are most in evidence and seem to meet with ready favor. Rhododendrons are still to be had. A few azaleas are also coming in. There is an ample supply of all decorative material.

NOTES.

One of the most remarkable collections of water color paintings of American flowers ever displayed in this country is being shown at the Stewart hotel this week by George B. Mendell, of Australia. The collection, which includes close up studies of 211 American flowers and more than a score of Australian native flowers, is the work of Mrs. Ellis Rowan, an Australian, and represents 11 years' work. Recently she refused an offer of $75,000 for the set. The paintings are done with such life-like exactness that several Australian professors of botany have used them extensively in their class work. The paintings are to go to Leland Stanford University.

The largest contributor in the trade to the Victory loan was C. C. Morse &

Co. Their subscription amounted to $50,000. This firm says business is very good. Sweet peas are expected to be in bloom shortly at the company's farm at San Juan. Many valuable novelties that have been held back owing to the disturbed conditions will probably be put on the market this coming season.

The plantings of chrysanthemums made by the Lynch Nursery Co., of Menlo Park, are very extensive this year. Superintendent Ellings is planting largely of many of the latest novelties, particularly Louise Pockett, which it is expected, will displace Wm. Turner, owing to its having a stiffer stem and neck. All the plants are being grown under cheesecloth houses.

John McLaren, superintendent of Golden Gate park, has been designated to select and design a grove in the park to be known as "Heroes' Grove." It is to be planted to Sequoia gigantea and sempervirens, a tree for each of this city's sons who have given up their lives for democracy. When completed, it will be one of the scenic spots in Golden Gate park.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. has been giving a great deal of prominence the past week to window displays of the new Leptospermum Nicholii. This beautiful variety, with its red foliage and crimson flowers, was shown to great advantage and attracted much favorable comment among the trade.

Many out-of-town florists have been here placing orders for their Memorial day supply. Prices quoted have been fairly stiff, but no questions are being asked. There is no doubt but the trade this year will be the heaviest ever experienced.

The Art Floral Co. is rushing work on the shipping department extensions which has been going on for several weeks. They are hoping to have it completed in time to take care of the Memorial day business.

The Menlo Park Horticultural Society is going ahead, formulating plans for a fall floral exhibition. A large prize list will be issued, as usual, and the exhibition committee is busy at work arranging the schedule.

Milton Tonini, owner of the Bay Counties Seed Co., is an enthusiastic yachtsman after business is over. He is the owner of one of the fastest yachts on San Francisco bay, and is a very generous host to all his friends.

The prospects for a large cut of gladioli by the bulb growers are very promising this season. It is doubtful, however, if the supply from this district for Memorial day will be very large.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is practically booked up on Memorial day business. Manager J. A. Axell says it promises to be the heaviest Memorial day business in the firm's history.

Ferrari Bros. are cutting heavily on roses at present. Their crop of gardenias and cattleyas is fine just now. They find the demand for all stock to be excellent.

MEMORIAL DAY SHORTAGE FEARED.

Memorial day business promises to be very good. As a whole the supply of flowers is good, and fairly large, but it is not up to that for this occasion in the past several years. The market tightened up at the beginning of this week and prices in some lines took a decided jump. Roses are in good supply. The general quality of the offerings in this line is very high. The carnation receipts shortened up somewhat at the beginning of this week, but this was due mainly to an effort on the part of the growers to begin to accumulate a supply for the demand the middle of this week. Sweet peas are fairly plentiful. Practically no Easter lilies may be had, while offerings in rubrums and callas are somewhat limited. Some candidum lilies are available for the Memorial day business. Gladioli are finding an excellent market. The few peonies that come in sell readily. The cut for Memorial day is far below that of other years. Iris has been selling fairly well. Other offerings are stocks, calendulas, marguerites and cornflowers.

NOTES.

P. J. Olinger was in New Castle, Ind., at his greenhouses a part of last week. He states that his prospects for Memorial day are very bright.

Texas State Florists' Association.

Texas florists anticipate the greatest convention in the history of the organization at Austin, July 9-10. The trade throughout the state has had a prosperous season and from reports so far received there will be a large attendance. The various establishments are preparing to stock up for big business next year and it is expected that there will be a large trade display at the convention from which to make their fall purchases. The programme is now being arranged and will be a most interesting one.

George Asmus, Chicago, chairman of the publicity finance committee, will be at the convention in the interests of the national publicity campaign and Texas expects to "go over the top" in the quota. Mr. Asmus will make a report of the work up to the present time and will stress the importance of every florist co-operating in this great work. In fact, this is already well understood by the craft in this state and a large portion of the increased

GOOD DEMAND BUT PRICES FALL.

There has been considerable business the past week in the various demands for cut flowers, but prices have ruled low in comparison with those following Mothers' day. This is accounted for by lighter demand, and the competition of the outside flowers, mostly shrubby and peonies, which latter have been received freely from the south. The first of the large flowered, long-stemmed varieties from local growers were seen in the market, May 24. Carnations are now the quantity stock. Two weeks ago, white varieties sold for from $10 to $15 per hundred; they close this week at $2 to $4, and very much less in cleanup thousand lots. A few of the choicest colored varieties sold as high as $6. Roses are now going off in quality. Russell, Ophelia and Columbia are still good, but the Killarneys are distinctly second class, all the short stock going in cleanup lots at bargain prices to the street men. The Ward is good stock, as is Maryland. American Beauty is commencing with its frilled edges, which is the beginning of the end, although it will be fairly salable until the middle of June. There is a good supply of indoor southern gladioli, also plenty of Spanish iris. Snapdragon is plentiful with high grades of splendid quality. Cattleyas are away below the demand; at one time, two sold for a dollar, and they would then buy a bushel of wheat, but now $1 each is the price, and a pair of them is not equal to the single measure of the grain. Cornflower is plentiful and of fine quality. Lily of the valley is almost over. Outdoor stock has never been better than this season. The status of the peony is still in doubt. One large dealer, with orders of close onto 50,000 flowers, is afraid they are about three days too late, while others think they will be about on time, particularly if a hot spell, which is now due, sets in. There has been an abundance of rain, which is favorable to good quality.

May 26.—There was an abundance of flowers in the market this morning and not a great deal of demand. Carnations were plentiful, with prices ruling low. Roses were not much in excess of the demand and are beginning to feel the effects of the warm weather. All kinds of outside shrubby were plentiful. The peony situation worries the wholesalers. Wednesday is the great shipping day, and if the stock is not ready by that time, it is as good as lost, as flowers that readily bring $6 per hundred on Wednesday, are hardly worth $2 with only local demand, later in the week. Two days' very hot weather would bring them, but it looks now as if the bulk of the crop will be at its best early next week.

ROSES OF THE COMING SEASON.

The problem of many rose growers is the number of and the varieties to be forced for the coming season. Russell, Columbia, Ophelia, Maryland and White Killarney are the sure winners. American Beauty and Hadley only seem fitted for those who have made a study of them. Mrs. Ward finds favor with many. Richmond is a cropper that must make Christmas, or it does not pay. Prima Donna has done well with a number, but if Premier, which is being planted so extensively, turns out a winner, there will be no room for the singer. Sunburst is the best yellow, but few growers are satisfied with their returns. It should be held until something better in its color shows up. Sweetheart is good stock, if not in the hands of too many growers. It is popular for many purposes. Pink Killarney and Killarney Brilliant are going fast, this being their last season with many. Mrs. Sawyer is also falling behind. Scott Key and Mock are fancies, that will pay the growers who understand them. Old stock plants in all varieties lifted to make room for others, are no longer thrown out, as on account of the embargo, these are quickly grabbed up, to be grown on as pot plants for next season's spring sales, at a price that helps materially to pay for their successors.

NOTES.

The store men expect a good business for Memorial day, as it is thought that all the recently made graves, of which there are so many on account of the influenza, will all be visited on that day, and be provided with some sort of floral decoration. As with all the other holidays, no effort is being made by the trade to feature or encourage the celebration with the use of flowers. Evidences of what collective or co-operative advertising has accomplished for those who have studied the matter, and spent their money intelligently, are seen in many recent instances, the trade generally in these centers being delighted with results. The public spirited men who are trying to put across national publicity are having up-hill work. There are some who are doing much more than is to be expected of them, but thousands do nothing, and sorry we are to say it, for too many live in this city and vicinity. Philadelphia is one of the richest cities in the country, but the wholesale cut flower men of this burg, say it has the smallest demand, according to population, of any town on their list. The trade is here, but people must be awakened up to the fact that flowers are essential, that they are necessary to right living and the full enjoyment of life. The proper amount of well directed propaganda through the reading columns of the city newspapers, together with well planned campaigns in line with or in connection with that of the S. A. F. publicity committees, would be sure to show good and satisfactory results.

Frank Ross, who keeps his finger on the public pulse in the demand for flowers, declares that the business is now back to normal, and there will be just good plain meals from now on—without pie. The extra demand of last summer, fall and winter was directly due to the influenza. It started in May, and gradually increased, but was not recognized until the great culmination in October. It hung on for a long time, but is now over. Any extra demand in one's business must now be due entirely to his own efforts. It will be a case of hustle from this time on. On Saturday last, Mr. Ross started a special fern sale in each of his three stores, with some 1,800 6-inch pot Scottii and Teddy, Jr. The wholesale price for these, if they have any quality, is now about $1 each. Mr. Ross, on account of these having been grown under contract, given last December, is able to sell them for 65 cents each. His claim is that prices for the season have been so high that he wants to give his customers a genuine bargain. It will be interesting to see how long they will last.

There are many good men in the trade in and about this city whose names have not as yet appeared in the list of subscribers to the S. A. F. publicity fund. There is no question but to tie up to this movement, and work in accordance with its well laid plans, making use of its electros, literature, signs, etc., will be of the greatest benefit to all retailers, and incidentally to the entire trade. Send your subscription for all you feel you can. Give as you would like to be benefited, and it will come back to you. The address is John Young, 1170 Broadway, New York.

An important deal in greenhouse property covering seven Lord & Burnham iron-frame houses, with a total of 40,000 square feet of glass, was closed when Clarence Allwire, Alden, Pa., purchased seven acres of ground and the above described houses situated at Seacane, Pa., from Robert Crawford, Jr. While these houses have been idle the past year, they are in good condition, and will be first planted with chrysanthemums, and then for the forcing of other cut flowers.

Victor I. Ridenour says: "Count me in as one who is a believer in Mothers' day. I pushed and featured the idea, sending out over 2,500 circulars, which I am glad to say, brought in very good returns. I was well pleased with the business, and its increase over that of a year ago."

Macaw Bros., Norwood, Pa., are about to erect a new house, 35x150, to be used principally for Christmas cyclamens and Easter rambler roses. Pot ferns are a specialty here, principally Scottii and Teddy, Jr., for which they have had a great demand.

Walter Mayer, of the engineers, and Charles Marbello, a sergeant in the gas defense corps, both of whom saw service in France, are back on the job with the Leo Niessen Co. They look and feel all the better for their experience.

The beautiful rock gardens at the John Wanamaker estate in Jenkintown are now at their best. Manager John Dodds planned and planted this well arranged feature, which adds so much to the beauty of the grounds.

C. U. Liggit's increasing business has necessitated larger office facilities. He moves this week to Room 303 of the same building, which increases his space about 100 per cent.

Visitors: Dr. H. Dux, Jacksonville, Fla.; Wm. H. Knoll, Tampa, Fla., who is returning from service overseas; L. Evenden, of Evenden Bros., Williamsport, Pa. K.

ALL GOOD STOCK MOVES WELL.

The wholesale market, on the average, was not particularly active during the past week, but there was an ordinary amount of business for this season of the year. The peonies are now arriving in greater supply, and the quality of the stock is improving. Taken in conjunction with the lilac, they are making it slow for the carnations, which though moving, have dropped off in price. As a matter of course, all greenhouse stocks have lowered from winter prices, but there is a fair movement in everything that is good, including roses. One cannot recall a year when so much good lily of the valley, grown in the open, was seen in this market, and it sells. The best retail stores buy it, and for the time being, the greenhouse product has almost disappeared. The prospects for Memorial day business are good, and the outlook for the wholesalers is encouraging. In Manhattan (the original New York), the retailers have had but little business for that day, in the past, but it is hoped that this year, for obvious reasons, may bring an improvement. From Brooklyn and Queens boroughs, where many cemeteries are located, there is always a strong demand, which there is every reason to believe, will be greatly increased this year. The nearby cities, such as Newark, Paterson and Elizabeth, N. J., are all good customers of this city's wholesalers, so there is every reason to expect good business.

May 26.—After a week of rain and fog the weather has cleared and there is a cheerful tone to the market. There is an abundant supply of all stocks, and unless the demand for Memorial day is extraordinary, there will be no shortage. A heavy supply of peonies is expected for this week. Carnations dropped low the latter part of last week, day-old stock cleaning up at $1 and $2 per 100. A heavy supply of iris is also on the market, much of it going cheap. Easter lilies are almost out, small lots of 25 and 50 occasionally arriving, but with May peonies about, the lilies are not greatly missed. Cornflowers and various other minor stocks are in reasonable supply. A considerable amount of deutzia, wild spiraea and other outdoor flowers of that nature is going to the cheap trade.

NOTES.

"Getting acquainted with water as a beverage will be one of the good things that this summer has in store for quite a number of our fellow men," writes Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk in the New York Herald Magazine. In a half-page article, he intelligently discusses the benefits of water drinking, at the same time pointing out dangers that may lurk in impure water, from ice, and from excessive water drinking. It may be said in passing that but few city people are in any danger from the latter excess. Dr. Fiske closes his article as follows: "Let the man who has been accustomed to depending on beer as his hot weather draught take heart. He may perhaps not find water so pleasing to his palate, at least for a little while until his taste becomes normal, but he will find himself a healthier man if he adopts water as his favorite beverage, and he will also find that he will not require the copious draughts demanded by the beer drinker."

"Gone, but not forgotten," was the headline of a memorial noticed in the office of Hentz & Nash, Inc., May 26. It continued: "In loving memory of our beloved friends who left us three years ago: Mr. Jonathan Nash, May 27, 1916; Mr. John Kral, May 22, 1916." It was signed by Aubrey S. Nash, son of the late Jonathan Nash, now member of the firm of Hentz & Nash, Inc. Jonathan Nash was for years the active member of the firm of Moore, Hentz & Nash, and John Kral was for a long time their foreman.

A drive to raise $13,000,000 for the Salvation Army is the leading feature for this week, the money being needed for its home work. Although it is doubtless true that all the organizations that engaged in war relief work accomplished much good, some of them have, justly or unjustly, been criticized. The noteworthy exception is the Salvation Army. Within the memory of the writer, the Salvationists were a "feeble folk;" now the whole civilized world is proud to honor them.

The Shakespeare Garden, in Central Park, near West 51st street, is now attracting attention. It was established several years ago by Prof. Edward Brook Southwick, then entomologist of the park department. It is a real old-fashioned garden and contains over 200 herbs and flowers that are mentioned in the poems and plays of the "Bard of Avon."

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held on the evening of June 9. This will be the last meeting until September, as a recess is taken for July and August. Chairman Miller, of the transportation committee for the Detroit convention, is likely to have further information concerning the trip, and there will be other features of interest.

Thorley's House of Flowers, Fifth avenue and 46th street, for which he paid a rental of $30,000 a year, has been rented to another concern at a much higher rate. A new building will be erected and a candy store will occupy the corner. Thorley's lease expires May 1, 1920.

Adolphus and William F. Gude, of Washington, D. C., were in this city May 22-23, and also visited several of the large New Jersey ranges. It is pleasing to note that William F. has so far recovered from his recent illness as to be able to travel and call on his many friends.

David Clarke's Sons, Malandre Brothers, Ralph Armstrong and other retailers arranged good designs for the funeral of Bishop David H. Greer of the Protestant Episcopal church, which was held at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, May 23.

Frank R. Martin, bookkeeper for the Henshaw Floral Co., has been quite ill from an attack of stomach trouble, but is now improving. Everyone will be glad to see him back on the job, as he is a high-class man.

William P. Ford, 107 West 28th street, who has a farm at Chaddsford, Pa., and makes frequent trips there, expects to have a fine supply of peonies for Memorial day.

Patrick Welch, of Boston, was a visitor, May 23, and was in his usual cheerful frame of mind. He reports favorable conditions in the trade of Boston.

Noe & Sampson, the wholesalers, have been, and are now receiving fine stock of the carnation, Laddie, which brings exceptionally high prices.

Julius David Nigh, rosarian of Berkeley, Calif., and father of William Nigh, motion picture director of this city, died May 13.

Mack Brothers, Nostrand avenue and Halsey street, Brooklyn, state that they had good Mothers' day business and sold out.

Manager H. G. Perry, of Dards', with Mrs. Perry, has been to Vermont for a much needed vacation.

W. M. Hunt & Co. have taken the eastern agency for the Excell Laboratories of Chicago.

Vaughan's Seed Store received 22 cases of bulbs by the last Bermuda steamer.

Tarrytown Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the Tarrytown, N. Y., Horticultural Society was held May 21. President Russell was in the chair and was in his usual amiable humor. A long list of entries for the November show was handed in. Tarrytown has always been popular and successful with its fall shows, and this promises to be its banner year, and many friends will hope it may be so.

GARDEN CLUB'S TULIP SHOW.

The Garden Club of Michigan, aided by the Detroit Community Garden Club and the Ann Arbor Garden Club, gave a successful exhibition of tulips at the Hotel Statler, May 24. The exhibition was made chiefly by amateur growers, and the flowers, many of them, indeed most of them, were of extraordinary merit. Chester Jay Hunt, commercial tulip grower of Little Falls, N. J., was present with an exhibit of several hundred blooms, all correctly named, which was of particular interest to the visitors. Of special merit were the efforts contributed by the local florists, consisting of table decorations, bouquets, baskets and elaborate vases of flowers. These were exhibited by John Breitmeyer's Sons, Bomb Floral Co., W. B. Brown, Central Floral Co., E. A. Fetters, and J. F. Sullivan. An entrance fee of 25 cents was charged, and the income from this devoted to the Memorial tree planting fund. Nearly a thousand tickets were sold and the affair was pronounced a great success. The judges of the tulips were R. J. McKinnon, Chester Joy Hunt, and Mrs. W. Walcott. Among the private gardeners who made exhibits, and were prize winners in the different classes of the tulip exhibits were: J. J. De Carteret, John Bain, Julius Wallet, James Baddeley, Joseph Van Zien, Albert Stahl, John Flanders and John Chaene.

CLUB MEETING.

The florists' club held a well attended meeting at the Hotel Statler, May 27. Preliminary work, incidental to the meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society which is to be held here, June 17-18, was transacted, after which the meeting was devoted to matters pertaining to the S. A. F. meeting, August 19-21. The various committees reported satisfactory progress in all efforts being made to make the Detroit meeting the greatest in the history of the society. Vice-President E. A. Fetters and ex-President Philip Breitmeyer are making strenuous efforts to get a great number of new members for the organization, and many of them will become life members. Joseph Streit, having in charge the bowling tournament, reports the entries of many teams for the contest which takes place on the finest alleys in the country on the top floor of the Recreation building, said to be the finest and best equipped structures of the kind in the United States. The boat ride on the magnificent steamer Britannia, Wednesday night, will be a feature of the local entertainment that will be specially delightful for all. It is expected many parties will auto to Detroit for the convention, and to that end special provisions are being made to care for the autos thus used.

The Meyer Green SILKALINE

Used by Retail Florists for mossing funeral designs, tying bunches, etc., is the only article that should be used by growers for stringing Smilax and Asparagus, as it will not fade or rot in the greenhouse. It is handled by the best houses everywhere, but it should be ordered by name, Meyer's. Price for any size or color, $2.00 per lb. Sizes: "F" fine, "FF" medium and "FFF" coarse. Do not take any fake green thread. Use the genuine Silkaine and get more thread and less wood.

John C. Meyer Thread Co., Dept. FF, LOWELL, MASS.

Rochester, N. Y.

SUPPLY GOOD WITH MODERATE SALES.

Trade has been somewhat dull during the past week, although there were occasional stimulations in the way of special work, such as weddings, funerals, etc. Cut flowers have been plentiful in spite of the long period of cloudy and rainy weather. Carnations are excellent and prices hold firm. Roses in all grades are good, but there has been no oversupply. Poeticus narcissus, tulips, etc., are offered now with daffodils and jonquils at an end. Sweet peas of excellent quality are taking the place of violets which are now very poor. Callas and Harrisii lilies are scarce. There is a good call for larkspurs, snapdragons, calendulas, marguerites and similar stock. A few ramblers are still offered, also hydrangeas and calceolarias.

NOTES.

The Wilson Floral Co. and the H. E. Wilson Co. will consolidate with headquarters at 88 East Main street, June 1, with Horace J. Head in charge of the wholesale end. Extensive alterations in the premises are being made to accommodate the business.

H. E. Wilson and E. C. Armbrust conducted the exercises at Convention hall when 500 young ladies placed a like number of white flowers in a large wreath in the memorial services for this city's fallen heroes.

Joseph Nerdein is assisting in the spring rush at George T. Boucher's.

George T. Boucher is building an addition to his conservatory.

Visitors: Frank S. Baker, Utica, N. Y.; Julius Snyder, Boston, Mass., and Wm. Cahill, New York.

THE Broadway Limited of the Pennsylvania railroad resumed running between Chicago and New York, May 25.

CABLE advices of this week indicate that Narcissus Paper White grandiflora damage is greater than first expected.

A. J. BROWN, of the Alfred J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., is planning to start on a California trip, June 7.

ONION SET acreage in the Chicago district is looking better. Rains have stopped this week and growers can now get on to the ground.

WASHINGTON state cabbage, turnip and rutabaga growers are out this week with price lists, reducing former values nearly 50 per cent.

CHICAGO.—William Schoen, book-keeper for the Illinois Seed Co., was drowned May 23 when colliding automobiles threw him from a bridge into the river.

VISITED CHICAGO: H. A. and H. P. Johns, J. S. Michael and J. R. Wise, of the Sioux City Seed Co., Sioux City, Ia., enroute to the firm's Michigan seed farms; A. L. Rogers, of Alpena, Mich., considering plans for his new warehouse here.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—The largest contribution to the Victory loan in the trade in this city was that of C. C. Morse & Co., amounting to $50,000. Many valuable novelties of the firm, held back due to disturbed conditions, will probably be placed on the market the coming season.

GEO. S. GREEN, of the Illinois Seed Co.; Leonard H. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, and John T. Buckbee, of Rockford, were at Springfield last week representing the seed trade in connection with legislative matters. The proposed new seed law (House Bill 476) has been referred to a sub-committee of the senate committee on agriculture.

THE local committee representing the Chicago jobbers in onion sets who attended the hearing of the railroad administration classification committee, May 27, are of the opinion that those in authority intend rather to raise the rates on onion sets than to make any definite regulations regarding the kind of package to be used. Well posted men in the trade say that the right way to prevent onion sets from rotting in transit is to expedite delivery, and believe the railroad administration can do nothing better than to arrange for quick service on perishable goods.

Onion Sets Hearing.

Onion set shippers, principally of Cook county, pursuant to an announcement that the consolidated classification committee of the railroad administration had called a hearing for May 27, notice of which appeared in last week's issue, page 926, the object of the session being to consider the question of the adoption of a rule by the committee prohibiting the use of sacks in L. C. L. shipments, met with the consolidated committee in its office, 1830 Transportation building, Chicago, and after an extended discussion of the proposed ruling in which the shippers' point of view was ably presented, the committee announced that it would reserve its decision.

Chairman Fife, of the classification committee, held to the opinion that much loss would be saved by the elimination of bags as means of shipment as well as decrease in freight claims, due to stock being received in poor condition through lack of ventilation, and shortage through theft. He also called attention to the fact that in shipments in bags, valuable car space was lost, as in less than carlots, damage could not be avoided where other articles of shipment were placed on top of them.

The shippers' interests were ably set forth to Chairman Fife by R. B. Howe, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, whose brief is reproduced herewith.

F. C. Hansen, traffic manager for Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., who attended the session, called the attention of the committee to a number of excellent reasons why the bag as a container should not be discontinued.

George Reeves, of the Geo. Reeves Co., went on record as being in favor of crates, which in his experience caused little trouble in the way of breakage and were less liable to heat than bags, resulting in fewer claims for damage from this source. In his case there had also been more claims for shortage in bags than in crates. Many of his shipments, however, were in carlots.

CHICAGO CONVENTION PROGRAMME.

The thirty-seventh annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association will be held at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 24-26, the first session opening at 10 o'clock, the programme being as follows: "The Needs for Critical Study in Seed Production," by R. A. Oakley, United States department of agriculture; "Is Seed Trading Worth While," by Edgar Brown, and "Our Seed Trade with European Countries," by W. A. Wheeler, also of the department of agriculture; "Concerning Article 2," by Kirby B. White, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.; "Commissions," by Leonard H. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; "The Garden Army and Its Purpose," by Lester S. Ivins, bureau of education, Washington, D. C., followed by the usual order of business.

Secretary C. E. Kendall has given notice of a proposed change in by-laws, adding the following section: "No appropriation of money shall be made from the treasury of the association until the sum to be expended has first been referred to the executive committee for its consideration and recommendation."

The secretary also calls attention to the fact that proper provision and distribution of badges requires that as many names of those who expect to attend the convention be sent to him as soon as possible, but by June 15 at the latest. Hotel reservations should be made at an early date on account of the number of other conventions in the city at that time.

MOTION PICTURE FEATURE.

One of the features of interest that will be shown at the convention will be a moving picture exhibition with subjects of special interest to the trade. In this connection there will be thrown upon the screen, pictures of members or sons of members of the association who took part in the war, as far as it is possible to obtain photographs of such persons. There are quite a number who have not responded with photographs to the committee having this in charge. It is requested that any who have not done so, mail such pictures immediately to Watson S. Woodruff, Orange, Conn., together with as many facts relative to the subject, as possible, including full name and address, branch of service, when and where located, and if duties overseas or domestic, in order that a record as complete as possible can be shown representing the association.

Southern Seedsmen's Association.

The first annual convention of the Southern Seedsmen's Association, announcement of which, with programme, appeared in last week's issue, page 926, was held at Montgomery, Ala., May 26-27. The attendance was most satisfactory, in addition to members, there being present representatives from several allied lines and seedsmen from other sections of the country, notably F. W. Bolgiano, of Washington, D. C., president of the American Seed Trade Association. The visitors were welcomed by W. A. Gunter, mayor-elect of the city, the response being made by G. B. McVey, of Montgomery. President Louis B. Reuter then read his address which was followed by the report of the secretary, after which Professor J. F. Duggar, director of the Alabama experiment station, spoke interestingly on "The Production and Supply of Velvet Beans for Seed Purposes." The afternoon programme held much of interest. Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass., counsel for the American Seed Trade Association, had for his topic, "Seed Laws," and brought out many points of interest during his address. Fred I. Meyers, advertising manager for Chris Renter, New Orleans, La., was an interesting speaker, his ably handled theme being, "Advertising." The session closed with a talk by W. A. Wheeler, of the seed reporting service of the United States department of agriculture, on "The Relation of Seed Reporting Service to Southern Seedsmen." The banquet, which was held at 6:30, was an enjoyable get-together occasion, 50 being seated. The menu was excellent, and the tables were attractively decorated, the flowers being furnished and arranged with the compliments of the Patterson Floral Co., of Montgomery.

The opening business at the morning session of the second day was the acceptance of several new members. Dick O'Bannon, president of the O'Bannon Co., Claremore, Okla., made an interesting address, his well-chosen sub-

Onion Sets Hearing.

Among the shippers in attendance were the following: L. F. Rau, of L. F. Rau & Son, Chicago; R. B. Howe, representing the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; John Leonard, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago; George Welch, representing Budlong Gardens, Chicago; Geo. Reeves of George Reeves & Co., and F. C. Hansen, representing Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

R. B. HOWE'S BRIEF.

To the Chairman of the Consolidated Classification Committee:

1. We are representing, acting as spokesmen, for the Cook County onion set shippers, whose shipments aggregate annually approximately 49,000,000 pounds, with an estimated value of $2,500,000.

Development of the Onion Set Industry.

2. The first commercial onion sets were grown in Chicago 33 years ago. At that time the barrel was the package used. As the industry grew and the number of packages used increased, the trade began to discard the barrel for the burlap bag which had proved a very satisfactory package.

2-a. It was also found that barrels and other wooden containers were not always to be had at the proper time in sufficient quantities. From that time to the present, the larger shippers of onion sets have found that, with the exception of a very small percentage of the entire total, onion sets shipped in bags went through to destination with practically no deterioration.

Thus the burlap sack has grown to be the customary package, and to eliminate the bag as a shipping container, will cause a radical readjustment of the onion set industry. The bag is used largely for the shipment of onion sets on account of:

1. Low cost.
2. It is a package convenient to handle.
3. It is economical of time and labor in packing.
4. It affords sufficient circulation of air.
5. It affords large quantity buyers an economical package because of less expense to unpack and re-store in trays.

(1) The bag is an economical package, 2-bushel sacks cost at present about 6 cents each, while 1-bushel crates, on present quotations, cost approximately 30 cents each. There is thus an increase of at least 600 per cent in the cost of the package, which means a corresponding increase in the cost to our trade. It hardly seems justifiable to us that the industry should be penalized to the extent of possibly $350,000.00 annually by the elimination of the bag as a container.

(2) Because the gross weight of a sack of onion sets is not quite 65 pounds, it affords an opportunity to be easily grasped and loaded into the car, thus enabling the railroad as well as our own employes to handle this commodity in minimum time.

(3) One of the reasons why the bag has become so popular is that it is the most economical package to fill and complete for shipment. It is quickly filled and weighed, and it takes but a few minutes' time to sew up a sack so that it will carry safely to destination, while other packages call for a certain amount of coo-perage, nailing, etc., which is slow and expensive work.

(4) The sack affords a sufficient circulation of air throughout the sets, either in carload or less than carload shipments, than do the other packages provided for in the classification. The very structure of the bag is such that it will allow air to permeate the contents from all sides, while this is not so readily done in the case of barrels or boxes. Even more circulation is afforded where a deck is built into the car as was practiced by one large dealer last year.

(5) We have a certain class of trade which comes to Chicago from Louisville, and other cities to purchase their onion sets in the fall with the idea of storing them in their own warehouses for the spring trade. The onion set sack proves a very acceptable package to these gentlemen, as it enables them to ship their sets at a very low expense for the package, and to unpack them and re-store them in their own warehouses at a minimum expense.

2-b. An examination of the claims which have been presented by two shippers covering the crop seasons of 1917-1918, show that the reasons for these claims have been largely delays or losses in transit, which are factors affecting the operating conditions of the roads, and would have occurred irrespective of the package used.

Exhibit A—Section 1, represents claims filed by one large shipper during the season of 1917-1918, as follows: 3,200,000 lbs. of onion sets were shipped, consisting of 48 straight cars weighing 1,152,000 lbs. and L. C. L. shipments weighing 2,048,000 lbs.

48,500 bags were used.
3,000 crates were used (no baskets or barrels.)

6 claims were filed.
$173.70 amount involved in these claims.
2784 lbs. involved in these claims.

We beg to announce to our friends and patrons that we have removed from 1004 Lincoln Bldg., Philadelphia, to

50 Park Place, New York City

where we will be located in the future

This important change in our business has been necessitated by conditions which we could no longer ignore.

Our increased importations of foreign stock, such as Japanese, French and Holland bulbs, etc., impel us to be at the port of entry. Other reasons, more or less of a private nature, likewise served to bring about this change.

We take the opportunity at this time to announce that our representative, Mr. E. F. Hoehl, has secured an interest in our business, and will continue traveling as heretofore.

We thank you for all past favors, and confidently believe that with improved facilities we shall be enabled to serve you more promptly and efficiently than ever before.

Whereas, the consolidated and western classification committees of the United States railroad administration has now under consideration the question of discontinuing the bag as a container for onion set shipments, and

Whereas, in view of the nearly universal practice and custom among onion set shippers of using the bag as a container it being the best, most economical and efficient one known to shippers as proven by years of experience, and use, and

Whereas, Among the principal reasons for its use in preference to any other form of container are:

1. The result of the 30 odd years' experience of the onion set growers and shippers of Cook county, which comprises the largest producing and shipping center of the United States, is that the bag is the most desirable package in which to make shipment of onion sets.

2. Onion sets in bags can be delivered more easily and quickly and the bags have a longer life as a container than one made of wood or other material.

3. Onion sets in proper condition and under proper inspection shipped in bags will remain sound if shipped to any part of the United States; on the other hand, if they are soft or sprouting and have not been properly cured, they will deteriorate and rot, irrespective of the package in which shipped. The losses that have occurred when shipped in bags have been either due to delays in transit or lack of ventilation. Inasmuch as probably 90 per cent of the entire shipments go out in sacks, it is natural that the greater apparent loss is on shipments made in sacks.

4. During the shipping season our experience has been that we were unable to secure other than bag containers in the quantity and at the times needed, and owing to the perishable character of the goods every delay is very serious. Again, in the present situation where a new building era is beginning on a scale more extensive and stupendous than ever known in the history of this country, it means that lumber will be more difficult to secure when needed and more expensive than ever, and will cause an added drain on the lumber resources, when in our judgment every foot of lumber is now needed for building purposes.

5. The weight of a bag is at least one-twelfth less than a wooden container for a like quantity of onion sets. For instance, a two-bushel bag weighs less than one pound, a one-bushel crate of wood weighs from six to eight pounds.

6. That the cost of a wooden crate as compared with the cost of a bag carrying a like quantity of onion sets is cheaper by at least 600 per cent, which makes a direct saving of whatever the difference in cost is to the consumer.

Therefore, be it resolved, By the onion set shippers of Cook county, Illinois, that we are unalterably opposed to discontinuing the bag as a container for onion set shipments for the reasons above set forth, but are ready and willing, as we have always been, to ship in wooden crates or barrels or baskets where the purchaser so desires, and we now earnestly urge that you do not discontinue the use of bags as containers for onion set shipments.

We further resolve, That the bag as a shipping container should be retained for all shipments, and onion sets in bags take the same classification as heretofore.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, May 27.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen boxes, $1.50 to $1.75; celery, Florida, crate, $4.50 to $5.50; leaf lettuce, per box, 20 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $2.00; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $4.00 to $5.00.

New York, May 26.—Celery (Florida), per crate, $1.50 to $3.50; cucumbers, 75 cents to $1.00 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.50 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 12 to 25 cents; lettuce, per package, 30 cents to $5.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.00 to $2.00.

Scotch Potato Prices.

The food controller announced that the maximum grower's prices for potatoes in Scotland, according to Commerce Reports, were increased as from March 1, as follows: For potatoes delivered during March, $37.20 per ton f. o. r.; for potatoes delivered during April, $39.60 per ton f. o. r.; for potatoes delivered during May and subsequent months, $42 per ton f. o. r. In each case the price at which the food controller will purchase Scottish potatoes from growers for export to England and elsewhere will be $3.60 per ton less than the maximum price. These increases correspond with the increases which have been granted to growers in England and Wales.

Vegetables Under Glass.

Under glass, the tomato and cucumber crops should have our best attention. Owing to the widespread cool, rainy weather, these crops will be very slow outdoors, hence the greenhouse product will have an open market for a long time to come. Where lettuce has been grown late, it is still possible to start cucumbers. We have seen some such late crops of cucumbers come in handy and pay handsomely, as from now on little heat is needed.

When cucumbers and tomatoes are setting fruit, we must look after feeding these crops. There is nothing better for these two than a good coat of bone meal, followed by a mulch of coarse manure. However, the greenhouse grower will soon have to face the scarcity of manure, the same way as the outdoor man, and even now many places may be short of this material. In the absence of manure, use sulphate ammonia. We have made it a practice to mix ammonia with the larger bulk of raw limestone, thus improving its condition, and adding some lime to our crops as we go. In this form ammonia is safely applied as a top dressing any time, indoors or outdoors. Ammonia and bone meal in most cases will fill the bill. Outdoors, owing to the long-continued rains, nitrogen will be lacking to a great extent, and a top-dressing of ammonia will do wonders.

MARKETMAN.

Vegetable Markets.

Weak and irregular markets with increased shipments were reported to the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, for the period May 21-27. Western potato markets advanced with new stock higher in most instances, but eastern sections were weak and unsettled owing to heavy receipts. No. 1 northern white stock, sacked, gained 10 cents in the Chicago carlot market and closed at $2.15-$2.30. Michigan shipping points also gained 10 cents, reaching $2.10-$2.20 per 100 pounds. New potatoes also advanced. Florida Spaulding Rose averaged $1 higher in consuming markets, reaching $8.50-$9.50 per barrel. South Carolina Cobblers closed at $8.50-$9 per barrel at New York and Baltimore and ruled $8.25 f. o. b. shipping points. Onion quotations at Texas shipping points strengthened. Yellow stock ranged $3.50-$3.75 per crate f. o. b. The general range of jobbing sales was $4-$5, but New York declined $1 and the prevailing tone was weak. In cabbage most lines were lower, but the range was irregular. Jobbing sales of Virginia Wakefields were generally between $2-$3 per crate at the close. Alabama stock was quoted $2.25-$2.50 per barrel crate in producing sections and weakened to $3-$4 in consuming markets. The tomato demand was fairly good at shipping points. Fancy Florida stock ranged somewhat lower with northern consuming markets generally slow and weak with declines of about 50 cents.

Tobacco Fertilizer Experiments.

In southern Maryland, crops of tobacco ranging from 1,300 to 1,600 pounds per acre will remove from the soil approximately 35 to 55 pounds of nitrogen, 10 to 12 pounds of phosphoric acid and 55 to 70 pounds of potash, of which something like one-third will be contained in the stalks and therefore should be returned to the soil, according to Bulletin 225 recently issued by the agricultural experiment station of the Maryland State College of Agriculture, College Park. From experiments conducted by the station, phosphates have not given any increase in yield of tobacco but have shown marked effects in hastening the growth and promoting the proper ripening of the crop. They also tend to give lighter colors to the cured leaf. Potash has only given small increases in yield on rested land but under continuous cropping to tobacco, this crop has shown decided need of potash. The proper ratio between the nitrogen and phosphoric acid is probably the most important fertilizer problem before the tobacco grower. Except on very fertile soil or where a legume crop has been plowed under, the content of nitrogen should be half to two-thirds of the phosphoric acid content.

The quantity of fertilizer to be used will necessarily vary with the state of fertility of the soil but for the average soil it is believed that an application furnishing about 25 or 30 pounds nitrogen, 50 pounds available phosphoric acid and 25 pounds potash will give very profitable returns. A fertilizer analyzing four or five per cent nitrogen, eight per cent available phosphoric acid and four per cent actual potash when applied at the rate of 600 pounds per acre will furnish approximately the above quantities of plant food.

Liming the soil for tobacco will usually give an increased yield when nitrogen is not liberally supplied in the fertilizer, but this response is due chiefly to the nitrogen made available and is at the expense of the reserve supply in the soil which is seldom large.

Strawberry Varieties.

The varieties of strawberries selected for extensive commercial growing should be those which, after several years' trial, show the best average record for productiveness and ability to stand shipment and possess other characteristics of commercial importance according to Farmers' Bulletin 1043 of the United States department of agriculture in which recommendations are made based upon the experience of growers, nurserymen and experiment station workers throughout the country. Observations have also been made in important representative strawberry growing regions and on breeding grounds and test plats at the time the berries were ripening and the condition of the fruit on arrival in the large markets has been studied.

In the selection of a variety for a given locality it should first be determined whether it is suited to its climate. Thus the Missionary, which is a good shipping variety in central Florida, is not a good shipping variety in the Mississippi valley. In the southern states the Missionary and Klondike make quick growth in the early spring, producing large crops of early berries, and in those parts of the south suited to them, are excellent shipping sorts. Neither of them, however, is adapted to the climatic conditions of the north. In like manner, the Dunlap, a leading northern sort, when grown in the south is too soft for shipping and sometimes for the local markets. Other varieties, such as Glen Mary, William Belt, and Marshall, which are grown to a considerable extent in the north-eastern states, are not adapted to conditions further south, because of susceptibility to leaf-spot diseases. It is important, therefore, to know the climatic adaptations of the different varieties before selecting them for extensive planting.

The soil requirements are also important, although to a less degree than climatic conditions. Certain varieties, like the Klondike and Dunlap, are adapted to a very wide range of soils.

while others such as the Aroma and Gandy, are much more exacting. The Aroma seems best suited to a fairly heavy soil, such as a heavy silt loam, while Gandy does best on a clay loam. The reason for these differences in soil adaptation seems to lie, in part at least, in the amount of moisture the different sorts can get through their roots, and the root systems differ greatly.

For the purpose of obtaining information on the varieties best adapted to the different regions, a large number of commercial growers in the important producing districts in all parts of the United States were requested to give information as to the leading sorts in their respective localities and the merits of each. In addition, experts of the department visited many important commercial sections and most of the state experiment stations assisted in furnishing data which have been tabulated in the bulletin above mentioned. From this it is noted that about 25 sorts constitute about 90 per cent of the commercial strawberry acreage of the United States, or did in 1916, the first two, Klondike and Aroma, being credited with 41 per cent. Both have exceptionally healthy foliage and produce berries which are firm enough to be shipped to distant markets.

Cucumber Beetle Control.

The striped cucumber beetle which causes damage to cucumber, watermelon, cantaloupe, beans, peas and other crops, by far the most destructive cucurbit pest the farmer and gardener have to fight, is the subject of Farmers' Bulletin 1038 recently issued by the United States department of agriculture. While there is no specific remedy for its control, entomologists of the department declare prevention is more effective than cure. Spraying will destroy the beetles when they occur in moderate numbers but is not effective in cases where the plants are seriously attacked. Lead arsenate is the most effective spray, although arsenite of lime and zinc arsenite are also used. Every part of the plant must be covered with the spray. The covering of young plants is very effective but these must be made tight enough to keep out the beetles. Clean cultivation should be practiced and beans, gourds, early or late varieties of squash and pumpkin should be planted with cucumbers for trap plants. The growth of the plants should be stimulated with manures and other fertilizers and they should be watered in drought and in hot weather. The co-operation of all cucumber and melon growers in the destruction of the fall brood of beetles in their respective vicinities will accomplish much in a few years.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Counsel; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia., Treasurer; Chas. Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., Secretary. Forty-fourth annual convention will be held at Chicago, June 25-27, 1919.

ALEX. B. LAMBERTON, former park commissioner of Rochester, N. Y., died at his home in that city May 24, age 80 years. He was a native of Ireland.

St. JOSEPH, Mo.—A. H. Bobbink, formerly with Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., has been appointed superintendent of St. Joseph parks.

NOTICE of the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society, to be held at Detroit, Mich., June 17-18, will be found elsewhere in this issue.

VINCENNES, IND.—Recent frosts have so seriously damaged the buds at the 20-acre peony farm of W. A. Reiman that the supply is barely equal to the local demand, while in former years the production was not less than 250,000, the greater part of these being shipped outside of the city.

California Association of Nurserymen.

The eighth annual meeting of the California Association of Nurserymen was held in the convention hall of the Mission Inn hotel, Riverside, May 26-27, there being a good attendance and the proceedings proved of more than ordinary interest. The opening session was called to order by President Max J. Crow, of Gilroy, the visitors being welcomed to the city by Mayor Horace and the association's pleasure and appreciation being fittingly expressed by George C. Roeding of Fresno. An interesting programme had been prepared, among the speakers and their topics being the following: W. S. Shamel, Riverside, "Bud Selection; Are We Far Enough Along to Show Conclusive Results?" Professor W. L. Howard, Davis, "What Root Stocks Are We Using? New Varieties of California Fruits"; E. J. Wickson, Berkeley, "California Nurserymen of the Fourth Decade"; F. O. Popenoe, Altadena, "Avacados and Sub-Tropical Fruits"; Dr. C. L. Marlatt, Washington, D. C., "Federal Quarantine: It's Purpose"; A. W. Morrill, Phoenix, "What Constitutes Ground for the Rejection of Nursery Products?"; George H. Hecke, Sacramento, "Co-operation and Common Sense in Application of Horticultural Law"; A. L. Wisker, Grass Valley, "Real Co-operation: Is It Possible Within This Association?"; Wm. T. Kirkman, Jr., Fresno, "The Nursery Craft and Profession"; J. E. Bergtholdt, Newcastle, "What New Varieties Shall We Grow, What Old Ones Discard?"

On Tuesday afternoon the association was the guest of the citrus experiment station. At the evening session, reports were made by regular and special committees followed by a round table discussion.

The association adopted a resolution indorsing Plant Quarantine No. 37.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: William F. Kirkman, Jr., Fresno, president; M. R. Jackson, Fresno, A. I. Wisker, Grass Valley, Charles W. Ward, Eureka, D. W. Coolidge and Edward Rust, South Pasadena, vice-presidents; H. W. Kruckeberg, Los Angeles, secretary-treasurer.

The ladies' auxiliary of the association also held its second annual meeting on the same dates, the session being called to order by Mrs. John Vallance, of Oakland, president, the programme including reports of the officers, papers, discussions and itineraries.

Nursery Stock Names Under Fire.

Congressman Louis C. Cramton's prison penalty bill designed to regulate the naming of nursery stock and other plants, printed in our issue of May 24, page 932, is considered far too drastic, showing little knowledge of business conditions in the nursery and allied trades. The Michigan and other congressional representatives would do well to consult the business interests affected before framing laws for their regulation. In the meantime, our patrons (nurserymen, seedsmen and florists) would do well to write to the Hon. Louis C. Cramton, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., also their own representatives in congress, giving their views of the present bill. This should be done without delay.

We have received a number of comments on the bill, one well-known nursery firm writing as follows:

"We note the article in the May 24 issue of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, calling attention to the bill introduced in Congress by Congressman Cramton.

"If this legislation were enacted, it would certainly be the hardest nut that the nurserymen and florists have had to crack for some considerable time, and the bill, as stated, is so unfair as to seem ridiculous.

"As the business is carried on today, plants being delivered to the consumers on orders taken by traveling salesmen, it would be impossible that every tree or package should show the name of the person who grew the tree and the place where the trees were grown. Nowadays, it is necessary for nurserymen to buy varieties all over the country in order to get the sorts which are necessary to fill orders, and to follow these through to the original source, would be an impossibility.

"Furthermore, it makes the nurseryman responsible for any mistakes, intentional or otherwise, that may be made by his employees; and a nurseryman would be placed in such a precarious position that it would practically force him to discontinue the business. In our opinion, there has never been a time in the history of the business when nurserymen were as careful and conscientious in filling orders as at the present time. Nevertheless, it is impossible to avoid more or less mistakes, varieties becoming mixed in the process of propaganda, etc., so that to be absolutely certain about the trees and plants, would be beyond the power of human man.

"The little damage which may occur from time to time by planters getting varieties not true to name would be infinitesimal compared with the loss which would come to the country in general by having the business of furnishing plants practically given up, and it certainly would be, if such drastic laws were enacted."

August Rolker & Sons, New York: "Such bills are not likely to be pushed in the early sessions of the 66th congress and we may get some time to learn more of the opinions of the trade on this subject."

J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., says: "The proposed legislation is too drastic and ought not to prevail."

FROM J. C. VAUGHAN, CHICAGO.

May 24, 1919.

Hon. Louis C. Cramton,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.:

We note that you are introducing a bill regarding the shipment of nursery stock. On reading Section 3, it occurs to us that you have made this law a matter of police regulation. Further, because two or more dealers may sell and ship the same lots, they cannot know through their own knowledge the conditions which your proposed law requires. It would seem that in the first line of Section 2, after the fifth word, which is the word "shall," the words "willfully and knowingly" should be inserted. Then it would read, "The person who shall willfully and knowingly violate any of the conditions of this act." etc. This would make it a reasonable regulation, not a police regulation.

It seems to the writer that police laws, fines, imprisonment, etc., should apply to disregard of moral laws rather than ordinary merchandising. For the regulation of the latter, fines increasing in amount with repeated violations, if such occurred, would be ample protection for the public.

"We read on page 932, May 24 issue, about the bill introduced by Congressman Cramton of Michigan. The nurserymen are paying pretty high prices for French seedlings these days, and we wonder how much they would pay for a case containing 60,000 cherry seedlings, if each seedling had to bear a label showing the true variety, the name of the grower, and where it was grown. The same thing might apply to any other shipment of fruit or rose stocks which run into the millions every season. Our hands are full just ### Heating Efficiency.

"How to increase the efficiency of heating systems—to lower fuel consumption and keep the steam heated machine at uniform, maximum heat—is receiving as much consideration today from florists as a year ago when a coal shortage existed and prices were high," asserts A. Fitzgerald, general manager of the Morehead Manufacturing Company of Detroit. "With present prices of fuel prevailing, florists are confronted with a serious problem. Their coal bills will be far above the average unless their greenhouses can be heated with less fuel than required in previous winters. As a result, we are receiving more requests for information from florists regarding the Morehead Back-to-Boiler System than ever before. And when we refer these florists to greenhouses that have lowered their fuel consumption 15 to 20 per cent after installing Morehead traps, orders are forthcoming from practically every one who makes inquiry. Florists are pretty well satisfied that fuel prices will not drop and if a saving can be effected, they are sufficiently progressive to take advantage of the opportunity. We will install twice as many Morehead traps in greenhouses during the next few months as were placed in operation during all of 1918 which was a record-breaking year for us."

SAYVILLE, N. Y.—O. L. Ecluse & Son are erecting a range on their West Main street location.

OCALA, FLA.—This city has been selected as the place of the annual meeting of the Florida State Horticultural Society in 1920.

MARYSVILLE, KAN.—H. R. Fisher has a fine new Dodge delivery car, on which the florists' slogan, "Say It With Flowers," occupies a prominent place. Mr. Fisher's Mothers' day business broke all records and a big Memorial day rush is now on.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

Bailey's

New Standard

Cyclopedia

Of Horticulture

Six Splendid Volumes

This work is Prof. L. H. Bailey's latest and greatest achievement and will undoubtedly stand as a monument to him. This is not a revision of the old Cyclopedia but a brand new work containing features not dreamed of at the time of publication of the original cyclopedia which was a pioneer work. The old cyclopedia of Horticulture, it will be remembered, was a cyclopedia in fact as well as in name, whereas the new Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture is a gardener's manual as well as a cyclopedia and contains features that make it equally adapted to the amateur and to the professional, to the man without education or the man with high literary tastes.

The Boiler of Unequaled Fuel Economy

Kroeschell Boilers, the best by test since 1879. Forty years' experience.

THE QUALITY PLACE OF BOSTON

Regarding the Kroeschell, it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerably already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration.

(Signed) WM. W. EDGAR CO.,
WAVERLEY, MASS.

No Masonry—No Tubes

TUBELESS BOILER

When You Buy—Get a Kroeschell

3,016,286 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with Kroeschell Boilers during the year of 1916.

OHIO'S CELEBRATED CYCLAMEN SPECIALIST

After using your No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler I came to the conclusion that had I to install more boilers it would be the Kroeschell and no other. It really is a pleasure to heat, no trouble to get the desired heat in a very short time.

(Signed) CHRIST. WINTERICH, DEFIANCE, OHIO.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Primulas.

The young primulas that were sown early should now be in 3-inch pots and be given as cool and airy a location as possible. To get the best growth on these plants, they should never be subjected to great heat, for the species are naturally a cool growing plant on the edges of the woodland, in their native state. Outside in a frame with a lath covering is the best place that they can be grown, the pots sunk in the soil even with the rim. In potting these plants they should be placed in the soil deep enough for them to stand firmly; they will not stand deep potting, but many growers do not pot them deeply enough, and they frequently get turned over sideways during watering. They must be watered carefully and preferably with a can with a fine rose. The later sowings will have to be carried on in the houses until they are large enough to be placed outside. They will have to be shaded, but do not shade them heavily enough to cause them to get drawn.

Peonies.

The work on these plants is not by any means finished when the blooms are cut, for they must be taken care of, to insure a good crop for another year. Where the plants are grown in rows the constant traveling has packed the soil down hard, and the ground should be given a good cultivation in order to lighten it up. The weeds should be kept down all summer and not allowed to rob the soil of its richness. If the plants were severely cut in harvesting the bloom, so that there is not much foliage left on them, it is well to spread a mulch of strawy manure on the surface. This is often the case with the officinalis varieties, which do not make the heavy growth of the later varieties, and, as it is natural for the roots of the peonies to have the shade of the heavy foliage of the plants during the summer, the cutting of the stems and foliage of these varieties robs the roots of this, and a mulch that will protect the ground from the hot summer sun is very beneficial and will also reduce the labor of weeding. Any old blooms left on the plant should be cut and thrown away. Plants that have become broken down by high winds or heavy rains should be tied up in shape.

Solanums.

These little Christmas plants should not be allowed to stand around in the hot greenhouses, hadly pot bound and drying up every day, for they will grow hard, and it cannot be expected to obtain a good plant under these conditions. They will stand lots of abuse and do fairly well, and that is the reason, probably, that they are so often neglected during the busy days. But it is much better to plant them out in the field than to carry them along in this condition. They can easily be handled in this manner, lifting them early in the fall. They will need to be kept pinched back into shape—any strong leading shoots should be cut back when they are soft. They can be planted fairly close together, and will need frequent cultivation. If there is no suitable outside location where they can be planted out, they can be plunged in a frame and potted up as it becomes necessary, but outside treatment of some kind is far preferable to the greenhouse, which is too warm, unless shaded, and they make better growth and bloom more freely in the bright sunlight.

Larkspur.

Larkspur, or "poison weed," is treated of in a bulletin issued by the department of agriculture, in which it is pointed out that many losses are suffered each year by western ranchmen by reason of the stock eating the weed. There are two groups of these larkspurs on the ranges—the tall and the low varieties. The low larkspurs prefer the hills and rather dry ground, while the tall kinds grow in the canyons and gulches. Among the tall species are Delphinium barbeyce and D. cucullatum. The tall larkspur is easily distinguished after it blossoms, but in the early stages is often confused with the geranium and aconite. Of the low larkspurs, D. Nelsoni is a type. It grows in considerable abundance in Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico and Utah. The root is short and tuberous and the plant never exceeds a foot in height. The blossoms are a violet-blue. They appear, arranged in a loose raceme, in May.

Growers' Work in Progressive Steps.

Growing flowers from the time the plants are set out until the flowers are ready to cut, and then on until their final disposition, is one progressive step after another, until the flowers are ready to cut, and then too often backward to such an extent that all the advance is lost. There are many excellent growers who fail to realize the importance of caring for and handling their cut flowers in an earnest business-like manner, they seem to think that when they have brought them to a state of perfection, their mission has been fulfilled, and it is up to some one else to turn them into cash.

The fact is that the most precarious time in the life of cut flowers is that between the time of cutting and when they are placed on the market for sale. First there is the cutting. It is very important that they be cut just right, neither too close nor too open. It cannot be put down on paper just how to do it. The Russell rose was pronounced a failure by many until it was left to develop on the plants, and then it became a general favorite. Scott Key is another of the same character. American Beauty is often cut so tight that it fails to develop, or if it finally opens, is so off color that it is unsalable.

Each variety has its peculiarity in this respect; it must be cut just right to present its best market value at the trade, yet it is far from universal. Those who do go to this trouble, however, are amply repaid by the much better returns.

Many growers make the mistake of putting one or two imperfect flowers in with others, either from carelessness, or with the hope that they will not be noticed. The fact is, however, that these are first to catch the eye, and the bunch is condemned at once.

Violets and sweet peas are flowers that should be picked when at their best, neither too green or allowed to stand on the plants too long. Many make the mistake of holding off before holiday seasons when the market is oftentimes bare and then sending in large shipments of overripe stock for which there is no sale. Violets picked too green, or before fully expanded or after losing color, have no fragrance. Sweet peas are frequently seen with half the buds of the spray unopened; compare a bunch of these with another of fully opened flowers. One brings good money, the other becomes junk.

It is finish that counts. The man only one foot ahead at the tape wins the race. So it is with flowers in the market; the grower who having made a good run with his stock and is ready for a final burst of speed with effective preparation, wins out, while his competitor has to be satisfied with second place.

Window Boxes Up-To-Date.

The latest is a "Victory" or Peace" window box. This is made from a box that was built in quantity to carry shrapnel for war purposes. Now it seems proper to celebrate the victory, or the peace brought by victory, with flowers, and these boxes being of the right size, have been camouflaged with cedar bark slabs, and when planted as seen in the illustration, make a splendid ornament for the window or porch.

The other illustration is of an imitation cement box, being of sanded wood, with an insert along the front which is filled with cement and large sea-shore pebbles. The effect is very pleasing.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

Weddings and commencements are the features that count the most at this time. When the weddings come consecutively for several days at a time, there is considerable velvet, as much of the stock, if well cared for, can be used several times over. Quite frequently, when the groom comes from a distance, the bouquets are ordered at short notice. Getting on the job before, or immediately after he arrives, gets the business, which otherwise might go elsewhere.

There is of course the almost continuous demand for funeral flowers, which is the backbone of the business. As the callas will soon be cut out, and few, if any, Easter lilies until the fall bulbs arrive and can be forced, something will have to take the place of this summer staple. Gladioli of the better grades will be good stock, also Kaiserin roses. Until the hot weather sets in, sweet peas should be a factor as they can be used in so many different ways.

It is a good plan to get the summer residence addresses of customers. There may be anniversaries during the summer period to which, by circular, you desire to call their attention. A prepared circular letter, emphasizing and calling attention to your facilities for summer business, and that all orders, either for local or out-of-town delivery, will have just as good service as if personally selected, is sure to be well received. It being directly addressed, shows the firm to be up-to-date and particular in such matters. Emphasize the telephone and give your numbers.

Keep after the delinquents. Well written letters will be found effective. Uncle Sam is sure of a hearing, and your letter a perusal, provided it is, as it should always be, in a plain envelope, while your messenger will very often find the customer, not at home. Never let a bill get old, that is remain unpaid after it is seen to receive no attention. Do not be afraid of annoying your customer; 60 days will shut them out of all department stores. Frequently they will go elsewhere, while owing you, whereas if the bill is paid, they are free to come back.

Convalescent baskets, not large, but containing a dozen buds and a few other choice flowers, combined with a box of choice strawberries and fine cherries, artistically arranged, will be just the thing for a sick friend at the hospital or at home. One or two of these in the window occasionally, will be sure to attract attention and result in immediate or later sales.

It will soon be vacation time, and if the wishes of the employes are ascertained, the summer schedule can be determined and announced, a course that will be most satisfactory to all, as then plans are laid by each, and their outings looked forward to with pleasure.

Have a good looking screen door at the main entrance. It has an up-to-date, as well as a cool appearance, keeps out the dust and flies, and is altogether worth while.

If so unfortunate as to be on the sunny side of the street, there must be the inevitable awning. Make the most of this with the slogan, "Say It With Flowers," in facsimile script its full length over the top surface. If last season's awning is in good shape, except faded, give it a coat of plant shade or olive green paint outside, and white underneath. It then looks brand new and makes a background that will show off any lettering to advantage. It then can be brushed occasionally or given a good hosing at night, which will keep it bright and fresh looking.

Larkspur, gaillardia and the early white hydrangea are now in, and are among the best of the outside flowers. Larkspur belladonna, with its light shade of blue, while beautiful in itself, works up in fine color effect in sprays or baskets with pink gladioli or pink snapdragons, and also with pink roses.

Water lilies are about due. They are an ideal summer flower, especially fitted to grace either the counter or window in hot weather. They should always be shown floating on the water.

This is the year of money campaigns, Victory, Salvation Army and others. Chief, and as far as the trade is concerned, first, among which is our own little publicity affair with its modest $100,000. It would seem to be a good plan to adopt Uncle Sam's idea and to give each community its quota according to the importance of the trade. Local committees could then work and get it together in a two weeks' campaign, or perhaps less, all working at the same time in every state. It should be done voluntarily, as results everywhere in collective local advertising have brought wonderful returns. Do not wait to be asked. Send in your check now. Give as generously as you would like to have it returned. It will come back two fold.

Victory Flower Box.

The accompanying illustration shows the good use that has been made of shrapnel shell cases, which since the close of the war have lost their job, and instead of spreading death and destruction for the enemy, are serving as carriers of peace and good will in the form of plants and flowers. Filled with flowers of the national colors, or in fact, all suitable plants, they provide ideal decorations with which to celebrate the victory.

For their purpose, they were made of good lumber, very well put together, many of the corners being dove-tailed. They are now camouflaged with cedar bark slabs, covering up their war time signs, and giving them a rustic appearance. Their length, 24 inches, permits of easy handling. Each box, placed against another, can be made a section of any length. Three two-foot boxes with end and center spaces of six inches, will fill an eight-foot space even better than one box eight feet in length.

The pebbled front pattern is a novel design made in imitation of cement, being of wood sanded, with a front insert in which is placed the large rounded pebbles imbedded in cement.

There is no one branch of the business, which if its use could be made universal, would do more to spread the gospel of plants and flowers than the window or porch box. In all the large cities, and in many small towns, the only space visible to the street is the porch or window ledge. If it should become the custom or fashion to adorn these spaces with boxes of growing plants, it would give the business an enormous impetus. There are thousands of well-to-do homes all over the country where such form of decoration, if it was thought to be the proper thing to do, would be installed at once. To bring about this situation, the desirability of boxes of plants, in building up a civic pride in their home town, in each doing his part to make it a "city beautiful," should be emphasized at every opportunity.

It is the work of the trade to build up this sentiment, first by their own example in specimens of work of this kind, in encouraging its use in public places, and wherever possible, in all city improvement associations, etc., offering prizes for the best work of this character.

In every community, well written articles with the idea of creating a "city beautiful," would find space in the reading columns of the local papers, which augmented with some liberal advertising by the trade, would certainly bring good results, which if kept up year after year, would in a cumulative way, greatly increase the custom.

Japanese in California.

The natives claim the Japs are bad tenants—destructive leaseholders who will overwork the land to barrenness. Turned proprietor, the same Jap will care for the earth with maternal devotion. Before the land tenure law was passed by the legislature the Japanese had in hand about 3,000 farms, embracing approximately 200,000 acres. California had 75 per cent of the farmlands controlled by the Japanese. Most of the acreage in the eight counties of the south had come under their control. Actually they have a monopoly of the berry industry and dominate the vegetable market.

Birds and Crops.

Protect the birds and the insects will be in their crops. Destroy the birds and the crops will be in the insects.—London Punch.

THE S. A. F.

Increased Production and Glut.

With the wonderful progress of 1918-1919, and the renewed confidence now being instilled into growers on account of success of the past 18 months, is there not a possibility of the return of more flowers than buyers as in the days of yore? It is but natural that with success comes an era of over-production, caused by optimistic and over ambitious growers who feel they should take advantage of the new condition.

How are you handling the situation from the standpoint of creating new buyers from the consumer's ranks to market this extra production? If we do not keep making new customers to use up this extra supply, how long before that increased production will become a glut? More publicity will make more buyers, and more buyers will keep your products at their proper price level. Shall we slow up in our publicity? Your subscription is your answer.

HENRY PENN.

Chairman Nat. Pub. Campaign.

National Publicity for Flowers.

The following letter, from Spokane, Wash., attests to the benefit resulting from the publicity campaign in a marked manner: "Enclosed please find my check for $10, doubling my subscription to the national publicity campaign. I am glad to subscribe this amount for the good of the cause. I am also glad to say that I have felt the effect of the last year's campaign. I hope to see this work continued, and you may call upon me for my subscription yearly. Yours truly, H. E. Reimers."

A press agency, through a regular dispatch, has also seen fit to publish an item dealing with the demand for flowers. The dispatch, sent out from Chicago, which has been widely printed, states that the flower business has had an unprecedented boom in recent months, according to information received, and the situation was declared to be true not only of Chicago but all other cities.

Could anyone, in the face of this, truthfully assert that our campaign was not producing the results sought? What else could have caused a remarkable stimulation in trade, at a time when it would be least looked for? Not only has it been noticed by our florists, but outside interests, marveling at the condition, think it worth reporting. And yet there are thousands of florists who yet show no sign of willingness to share in the expense which such success entails. By this is meant growers as well as retailers. Take the carnation growers, for instance. We would ask them whether they had ever heard of a demand for carnations such as experienced this season—and also whether they would ever have dreamed of the possibility of such magnificent returns for their products as have been theirs this season. They may say, "Well, not so many carnations have been grown." None will believe this. Very many of the largest carnation growers, in spite of the fuel restrictions, planted their houses as usual, taking a chance on the lifting of the restrictions—and they won out. Most of the rest curtailed on other plantings, but stuck to their carnations. What was the result? Our markets received the usual supply; if there was any diminution, it was negligible. And we have had no market gluts anywhere, a wonderful statement to make when we think of the gluts of other years. Still, there are hundreds of carnation growers who have not supported the campaign fund. We all know that it is not because they cannot afford to do so.

Our committees have decided to put into the field, representatives from the society to make personal solicitation of all who have not subscribed. Louis J. Reuter, one of our life members, has very kindly volunteered to take up such work in New England. The assistance of all in the trade is asked wherever he may travel, in support of Mr. Reuter's efforts to increase the fund, in order that he may cover his territory to the best advantage. He is fully accredited, both in the matter of obtaining subscriptions for the fund, and memberships for the society.

All local committees are urged to redouble their efforts in the interests of the fund. Time is passing, and if we are to have the bumper business next season, which we expect, and which our campaign is surely bringing us, we must complete our plans in time—but our fund must very quickly be advanced to a point which will justify our committees in placing advertising contracts the necessary time ahead. The following subscriptions have been received and are in addition to those previously announced, annually for four years, unless otherwise stated:

The Clover.

Some sing of the lily, and daisy, and rose,
And the pinks and the peonies that the summer time throws
In the green grassy lap of the meadow that lays Blinkin' up at the skies through the sunshiny days:
But what is the lily and all of the rest
Of the flowers to a man with a heart in his breast
That has dipped brimmin' full of the honey and dew
Of the sweet clover-blossoms his babyhood knew?

I never set eyes on a clover field now,
Or fool round a stable, or climb in the mow,
But my childhood comes back, just as clear and plain
As the smell of the clover I'm smellin' again;
And I wander away in a barefooted dream,
Where I tangle my toes in the blossoms that gleam
With the dew of the dawn of the morning of love
Ere I wept o'er the graves that I'm weepin' above.

And so I love clover—it seems like a part
Of the sacreddest sorrows and joys of my heart;
And wherever it blossoms, oh, there let me bow,
And thank the good God as I'm thankin' him
now;
And I pray to him still for strength, when I die,
To go out in the clover and tell it good-bye,
And lovingly nestle my face in its bloom, While my soul slips away on a breath of perfume.

—James Whitcomb Riley.

Improving One's Position.

One of the most important steps in a man's business life is getting or changing his position. Most men in the retail business began as errand boys, some to run errands after school hours and on Saturdays, while others were compelled to work after the scantiest education, as even their small earnings were necessary at home.

When one's bread and butter depends on his individual labor (and the men who have made the greatest success are generally those who had nothing but their brains and brawn to assist them), he values his job and tries to make the most of it. Naturally, the majority of men try to better themselves when they see an opportunity. They believe, as they gain in age and experience, that they are worth more to their employers and ask for a raise. The wide-awake firm, as a rule, appreciates the efforts of the faithful and progressive employe, who will at intervals find a welcome addition to his salary in the pay envelope.

When a man feels that he is worth more than his salary, but his employer declines the advance, then he is free to offer his services elsewhere. In no case should he do this, however, without giving his old employer the first opportunity.

Quite frequently a position at an increased salary does not net as much as the old one, the hours being found longer with perhaps greater living expenses. Men are sometimes approached and offered increased salaries to move with their families to other cities. Such offers should be weighed very carefully, as so often the position turns out not to be as expected or represented. Living expenses are higher and altogether the move is regretted.

When an offer has been made to an employe by another house, he should before making his decision consult his employer. Loyalty to the firm with which he was glad to obtain a position compels this. A man is worth what he gets; many are plodders, good in their way, attending faithfully to their work, but lack ambition. Others with initiative are always striving to forge ahead, to make themselves more able and valuable. In this way they show their worth and salaries rise and keep pace with their ability.

The man who proves himself to be an artist, who can handle and arrange flowers, has business ability and good habits, can land a "top of the ladder job" in any city of the land.

Babson's Business Outlook.

The Babson statistical report for May says: "The movement in business, is uneven. Most of the metal industries remain lethargic. Jewelry, and other luxury lines, on the contrary, exhibit great activity. Building has begun to stir in earnest, with resulting improvement in scores of related industries. Lines stimulated by war have declined; lines depressed by war have advanced. This is merely the inevitable operation of the law of equal and opposite reaction." In the opinion of the Babson staff the immediate trend should be a horizontal drift. In another survey the Babson house says: "Nine out of 10 prospects who look for appreciable price reductions are chasing rainbows."

Chrysanthemum Chadwick Culture.

There are various methods to be pursued in growing the same class of plants, and in none is this more necessary than the chrysanthemums, some of the varieties of which are so different in their habits of growth and flower production as to be a study in themselves.

While Chadwick is an old variety, and still one of the best, producing, when well grown, superb flowers in white, yellow and pink, yet comparatively few growers are successful with this old timer, and have dropped it from their lists. Another reason is the scarcity of young stock, as for some reason, it does not, as a rule, produce many cuttings.

A Philadelphia, Pa., grower has had very good success with the Chadwicks, having learned to humor them as it were, and besides getting good crops of fine blooms, seems also able to secure cuttings in quantity. His methods colors, from which the grower expects to root some 60,000 cuttings.

He claims, to dig these plants in the fall, and box them, disturbs the very slender roots so that they take a long time to recover, and for that reason produce very few cuttings. By his method of leaving them in the bed, they will make a good growth of bottom shoots which root freely.

VICTORY FLOWER BOX FOR PORCH OR WINDOW.

of culture are about as follows: He aims to have strong young plants in 2½-inch pots, ready generally from his last lot of cuttings. These are planted out in the house August 15-20, not before. They take hold of the soil at once, and keep going at full speed without a check, setting buds and producing flowers that come to perfection for Thanksgiving. When the crop has been marketed, iron pipe frame supports across the ground beds, which in no way interfere with the chrysanthemums, support a temporary table raised about 18 inches above the ground, on which this year was placed the Easter crop of pot hydrangeas, the temperature being kept just above freezing. About February 1, these were placed in a warmer house, and the boards over the chrysanthemums removed, which not having been disturbed, are at this time, March 10, shooting up well from the bottom, and from these one crop of cuttings has already been taken. There are 1500 plants of the three Tables of callas were interesting. These had produced quantities of flowers. They contained plants in 5-inch pots almost entirely bedded in soil. The roots were, in a measure, confined in the pots, but they also rooted into the soil which held the pots in place so they could be watered or syringed with the hose without falling over. Anemones fulgens and St. Bridget, in pots for Easter, looked very good. Although not in any sense new, they are almost a novelty in this market. Polystichum coriaceum is a splendid fern for cutting. It should be more largely grown by the trade. Spiræas, hydrangeas and pot roses were quantity items of Easter stock that looked in prime condition. K.

ROUND LAKE, N. Y.—Elmer S. Morris, proprietor of the Peterson Greenhouses for the past four years, died May 12 from a paralytic stroke. He was 47 years of age and well known in the community.

American Peony Society.

The seventeenth annual exhibition of this society which takes place in the hall of the Board of Commerce, Lafayette avenue and Wayne street, Detroit, Mich., June 17-18, already gives indications of being the best in the history of the society. The date fixed for the event this year is over a week later than that of the exhibition at Cleveland a year ago. Many growers who wished to make exhibits in the different classes then were unable to do so, owing to the date, which was found too early for the great number of growers adjacent to the lake region. The cold weather that has prevailed so far this season, has been most favorable to the growers in the north central states, and many of them will take advantage of these exceptional conditions and make extensive exhibits.

This year, no charge will be made for admission to the exhibition, and the greatest efforts will be made to have a big attendance of the flower loving public, which will further popularize the peony, to the end that everyone with even a small plot of ground will hereafter grow some of these flowers.

The Detroit Florists' Club is co-operating in this event with the American Peony Society, and will have full charge of the exhibition, and peony growers everywhere are urged to their utmost to make exhibits. Those who are unable to bring their flowers, may safely address them to the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, 264 Randolph street, Detroit, Michigan, with charges prepaid, and marked "For the Peony Exhibition." These will be given special care and properly staged in the exhibition hall. All entries for competition and correspondence in connection with the same may be addressed to J. F. Sullivan, 361 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich.

NOTICE TO CANADIAN EXHIBITORS.

Arrangements have been made with the internal revenue office at Detroit whereby Canadian peony growers may send their exhibits free of duty. Simply mark the shipment, "For the Peony Exhibition," care of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, prepaying express charges.

The Arnold Arboretum.

MORE LAND NEEDED.

To the Board of Overseers of Harvard College:—

Your committee appointed to visit the Arnold Arboretum has the honor to render its report.

Founded in 1874, the Arboretum, which has been managed with intelligence, energy and economy, has established a world wide reputation and attained an influence which is remarkable when it is remembered that it is the work of one generation and that it is still controlled by the man to whom it was first entrusted by the corporation. The $100,000 given to the university by the trustees under the will of James Arnold of New Bedford to establish an arboretum has been increased by the generosity of friends to more than $700,000, and in addition to the income of this endowment between $1,200,000 and $1,300,000, including the money contributed by the city of Boston, have been spent in the establishment and scientific activities of this department of the university.

To Mr. Arnold's trustees an arboretum was a collection of trees able to support the climate of eastern Massachusetts and they probably did not realize that their gift was to make possible in less than 50 years a scientific establishment with few rivals in its particular field and one of the best known departments and chief ornaments of the university. The collection of trees and shrubs arranged for convenient study in its outdoor museum is already the most important in America. The Arboretum is equipped with a library of 40,000 books and pamphlets and a herbarium of nearly 200,000 specimens. By its explorations, principally in North America and eastern Asia, undertaken for the discovery and introduction of unknown plants, it has increased the knowledge of trees and introduced into the gardens and parks of the United States a large number of trees and shrubs before unknown in them. We are told that the collections which the Arboretum has brought together make it the best place in which to study the trees of North America and of China and Japan. It is certainly interesting that Chinese students who wish to become familiar with the trees of their native land come to study them in the Arboretum.

Several books prepared in the laboratories of the Arboretum have been finished during the last two years. The most important of these is perhaps the Bradley Bibliography, in which are found the titles of all the books and articles in periodicals devoted to the description, history and uses of woody plants published in all languages before the end of the nineteenth century. It is a book in five volumes of 3,895 quarto, two-column pages, and 18 aration. The Arboretum has also re-vears have been occupied in its pre-ently published an account of the great collection of plants made for it in western China by E. H. Wilson, a monograph of the pine trees of the world, books on the cherries of Japan and on the cone-bearing trees of Japan, and a two-volume catalogue of its library. "The Bulletins of Popular Information," which the Arboretum has now issued during the spring and autumn for eight years, carry information of its new plants to all parts of the United States and to many foreign countries.

So much for the past. The future of the Arboretum is of more interest to your committee, for it believes that from the beginnings which have been made it is possible greatly to extend this department of the university during the long life which is assured to it by its contract with the city of Boston and to make it a much greater power for good than it is today. The changes which will follow the ending of the war must make the United States a greater center of intellectual and educational activity, and it is evident that American universities will be called on even more than they are now for public service of a scientific nature such as the Arboretum now performs. Such work can only be safely entrusted to the great universities, for experience shows that in this country such work to be successful must be free from political influence and the uncertainty of political support.

The Arboretum should be in a position to explore all the countries of the world as carefully as it has explored North America and Japan, to gather material and information which will make it possible that any question which may be asked of it about any tree growing in any part of the world may be answered, and to offer better facilities for the scientific study of trees than can now be found in America.

As a museum, the ground occupied by the collections is already too crowded, and large additions of land will be needed for it in the near future for the proper display of the new trees which are constantly discovered or may be created by the art of the hybridiser. A larger endowment is needed now and much more money will be needed from time to time in the future if the Arboretum is to meet the increasing demands which are made on it.

The Arboretum is national in the scope of its work. It has been as active and successful, for example, in supplying new trees and information about them to planters in Illinois or California as in its efforts to improve the parks and gardens of New England. It is fair, therefore, that financial support for it should be as national as its activities. Your committee feels, therefore, that it is its duty to appeal to persons interested in trees in all parts of the country to help it improve this department of the university and to increase its usefulness.

An immediate and pressing need of the Arboretum is the land, about 16 acres in extent, between South street, Jamaica Plain, and the Dedham branch of the N. Y., N. H. & H. Railroad, the property of the president and fellows of the university. This land is needed by the Arboretum for its large collection of poplar and willow trees for which it has now no proper or suitable location. Poplar trees are valuable, for they are the only trees of large size which can be successfully grown over thousands of square miles in the drier regions of the United States. Opportunity should be found in the Arboretum to study these trees growing under the most favorable conditions. Many willows are important trees and all willows are of particular interest to students of trees and shrubs.

The present condition of the collection of poplars and willows is not a credit to the Arboretum. These 16 acres of land which are perfectly suited for these collections are not used by the university. A large part of it is low meadow without drainage, unsuited for agricultural experiments or for a garden.

This is not the first time your committee has called your attention to the importance of this land for the Arboretum, and through some of its members it has made various efforts to obtain the consent of the corporation for its use by the Arboretum. It takes this opportunity to express again its belief that the best interests of the university will be served by devoting it to the uses of the Arboretum.

HEAVY SURPLUS OF OUTDOOR STOCK.

Trade slackened up somewhat last week, owing to the great influx of outdoor stock. Funeral work was about the only thing that helped out. Roses have been in very strong supply during the past few days and move fairly well as the great outdoor crop is over for a while. American Beauties are numerous and are selling at steady prices. Mrs. Chas. Russell is also plentiful. There is a large stock of all other varieties. Irish Elegance is one rose that is coming in freely, but sells almost on sight. Of baby roses, there is a large cut, both from under glass and outdoor stock. Peonies are still coming in freely. They are as popular as ever. Pink and rose colored varieties are most in demand. Gladioli America and Mrs. Francis King made their appearance during the week and were very welcome additions to the cut flower list. They are bringing fine returns. Peach Blossom and The Bride are in large supply, and may be seen everywhere. Sweet peas are now at their best. The receipts are quite heavy, and it is only the best stock that commands good figures. A great deal of the offerings are off color and are sold on the streets. There is a large cut of carnations. Only the best stock is now bringing remunerative returns. However, the prices are sure to take a jump upward next week. Scabiosa caucassica is a perennial which is largely seen and has proven to be a money maker. Delphiniums of fine quality are also being received. Catechys are still to be had in sufficient quantity for all needs. Prices remain unchanged. Gardenias are offered freely, and it is not expected that there will be any shortage of this flower from now on. A few dahlias have also been noticed. They are of rather poor quality as yet, being short stemmed and of poor texture. Nearly all outdoor herbaceous stock that has any market value may be noticed in the various stores. Boston ferns are coming in more freely again.

NOTES.

George C. Roeding, president of both the Fancher Creek Nurseries, of Fresno, and the California Nursery Co. at Niles, is both a nurseryman and a patriot. He has just refused a commission of $50,000 for the purchase of nutshells and fruit pits, used during the war in the manufacture of gas masks for the American soldiers. Mr. Roeding contracted with the government to supply fruit pits, such as peach and apricot, for $12.50 a ton. He later managed to corner the market at a price of $6.00 per ton. The remaining $6.50 a ton he has refused to accept from the government for purely patriotic reasons. Secretary of War Baker has written Mr. Roeding thanking him for his efforts and lauding his patriotism.

The E. W. McLellan Co. was ready with a very heavy cut of all seasonable stock for Memorial day. They are receiving a good supply of Gladioli The Bride and Peach Blossom. They are expecting heavy cuts of the large flowering gladioli from their growers in the Santa Cruz district. Spanish iris will also be handled in large quantities. Manager J. A. Axell says prospects for a heavy shipping trade are particularly bright.

The Chas. C. Navlet Co., on Market street, has been showing some finely grown Tamarix africana, grown in tubs, during the past week. They were splendid specimens and met with ready sale. They have made arrangements to handle a large business this coming week, according to Manager Picetti.

Luke Uzick, who is now manager of the J. B. Boland store, on Kearny street, was prepared for a great rush of business for Memorial day. This firm expects to remove to larger quarters about July 1. And yet, they have not decided upon a suitable location, but expect to do so shortly.

Martin Poss, of San Mateo, says spring business has been extra good this season. The call for bedding plants was quite heavy. He has completed the shipping of his young carnation plants, and is now putting his stock for the coming season in the field.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. used the daily papers in a campaign to push their Memorial day business. They report themselves as greatly pleased with the results of their advertising. They are showing a splendid cut of Gladioli America and Mrs. Francis King.

G. Rossi & Co. booked up heavily on Memorial day business. Large shipments of wreaths were handled by this firm. They expect a large cut of stock from their greenhouses at Colma. Both the Oakland and San Francisco stores are very busy just now.

P. Scatena, who is in charge of the shipping department of the Art Floral Co., was kept busily engaged preparing for the Memorial day rush. The shipping rooms have been greatly enlarged of late and they expect to do a heavy out-of-town trade.

Among the guests at Byron Springs this week are the following members of the trade from this city: Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., Peter Ferarri, of Ferarri Bros., and Julius Eppstein, of the St. Francis hotel flower shop.

Frank R. Mills, of Palo Alto, is fully booked up on business for the coming week. He is cutting heavily of excellent Spencer sweet peas. His crop of carnations is large, and of their usual excellence.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. says trade at their branch store in the Palace hotel is keeping up steadily, owing to the numerous social functions that are always occurring at that popular hostelry.

Victor Ferarri is handling his firm's business here in town during the absence of Peter Ferarri, who is at the springs. He brings a heavy cut of orchids to this market every morning.

M. H. Ebel, of Sacramento, was in town during the week purchasing stock. He says trade promises to be quite heavy in the northern part of the state.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

Boston.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE BETTER THAN EVER.

Memorial day business exceeded that of previous years, with the demand for prepared wreaths and sprays greater than anticipated. Cut flowers were in good condition and reasonable in price.

NOTES.

H. M. Robinson & Co.'s Memorial day trade was 100 per cent. better than last year, with demand generally good in all departments.

Frank Edgar had an unusually good Memorial day business and sold up completely in specimen plants, roses and hydrangeas.

B. A. Snyder & Co. had fine sales and were well supplied with roses, carnations and peonies.

Horticultural Society of New York.

The Horticultural Society of New York will hold an exhibition of peonies, roses, hardy flowering trees and shrubs and collections of hardy herbaceous plants in the Museum building, New York botanical garden, Bronx Park, June 7-8. Cash prizes will be awarded in all classes and there will also be awards for meritorious exhibits of plants not provided for in the schedule.

OBITUARY.

James Hay.

James Hay, for many years a prominent florist in East Greenwich, Conn., died at his home in that city, May 31, age 50 years. He suffered an attack of influenza last fall, which with a recurrence of the disease this spring affected his heart, and since that time he had been able to devote only part time to his business. The deceased was born in Scotland and came to America at an early age. At one time, as gardener for Mrs. Jack Gardner at Boston, his work attracted much attention and he later became head gardener at the Goddard estate at Potowomut, Conn., later engaging in the florist business. He is survived by a widow, one son and three daughters.

Thomas A. Cox.

Thomas A. Cox, one of the oldest and best known florists in New England, having been engaged in business at Dorchester, Mass., since 1873, died at his home in that city, May 19, of heart trouble at the age of 78 years. He was born in England and came to the United States in 1868 and occupied the position of gardener on the Tucker estate at Dorchester until he embarked in the trade for himself. His genial disposition made for him many friends and he was recognized as an expert grower of cypripediums, maiden hair ferns and snailax.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—H. I. Whiteside is in bankruptcy.

ADA, O.—Harry Mohler is building a new retail store at the front of his establishment.

HERMOSA BEACH, CALIF.—O. H. Drew, formerly at Hibernia, N. Y., is now located here.

RIPON, WIS.—Brown Bros. will increase their glass area to 12,000 feet this summer.

CHESANING, MICH.—The Chesaning Floral Co. is adding a rose house to its establishment.

SPOKANE, WASH.—Peters & Sons will add two chrysanthemum houses to their range this season.

OWOSSO, MICH.—The Owosso Floral Co., it is reported, will add to its glass during the summer.

BLITHEVILLE, ARK.—J. Nick Thomas is planning to build a range on six acres of ground on Barfield road.

RIVERTON, N. J.—The Henry A. Dreer greenhouse forces are working to full capacity in all departments.

TORONTO, ONT.—Mrs. C. A. Urbach has disposed of her establishment at 490 West Bloor street to H. Durks.

LANSING, MICH.—The Smith Floral Co. is adding two houses to its range at 1100 Mount Hope avenue, Moninger construction.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—Dr. A. J. Knapp says the cold, damp weather is responsible for material shortage in his peony crop this year.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—According to the trade in this city, the Memorial day demand was greater than ever, with the supply of flowers below normal, due to cold weather. The greatest shortage was in peonies, frost having destroyed thousands in the bud.

INSPECTION OF NATIONAL TEST GARDEN.

The annual opening and inspection of the national rose test garden at Arlington Farm, Washington, D. C., June 3, was well attended, there being visitors from a number of states. The day was fair, but very warm. The garden never looked better, particularly the ramblers, which were in splendid flower, and while many of the hybrid teas were past their best, the combined effect, with the fine showing of the variety Dr. Van Fleet over the arbor, which was full of flowers, was unusually good. The visitors met as usual at the store of Gude Bros. Co., and under the hospitality of the Florists' Club of Washington, left at 10:30 o'clock via automobiles for the garden. After the inspection, they returned to the Ebbitt House, where luncheon was served. Dr. E. M. Mills, Syracuse, N. Y., in the absence of President Hammond, who sent a letter expressing his regret at being unable to be present, made a very excellent toastmaster. There were short addresses by Professor E. A. White, Dr. Corbett, E. G. Hill and Thomas N. Cook. A rising vote of thanks was given J. Horace McFarland for his work on the last issue of the Rose Annual. All of the visitors were glad to shake hands with William F. Gude, who was present to welcome them.

Following the luncheon, autos were taken for a visit to the rose gardens at "Twin Oaks," which were found in splendid flower. After the inspection, and refreshments had been served, the party was taken through Rock Creek park and other environs of the city.

The executive committee and a number of the early arrivals thoroughly enjoyed a visit to the trial grounds of Dr. Van Fleet at Glendale, Md., Monday afternoon, several hours being spent in examining his latest creations, some of which are remarkably fine.

At the executive meeting, held Monday evening in the Ebbitt House, there was a discussion as to the possibility of a national rose show garden, for which the time is now propitious, and which is hoped will soon be a reality. Ground has been selected on Potomac drive between the trolley and the railroad bridge, and it is expected that this will be one of the most attractive spots in the national capital. This garden will contain only proven varieties which are to be planted decoratively.

Prominent among those in attendance were E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; S. C. Hubbard, Ithaca, N. Y.; P. W. Woodcock, Spencer, Ia.; Thomas N. Cook and wife, Watertown, Mass.; Professor E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y.; B. H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa.; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.; Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.; Dr. E. M. Mills, Syracuse, N. Y.; E. Allan Peirce, Waltham, Mass.; Alex. Cumming, Cromwell, Conn.; J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa.; Dr. C. G. Lewis, Syracuse, N. Y.; Harry A. Norton, Ayers Cliff, Quebec. The meetings were attended by all of the professors of the department of agriculture and the members of the florists' club saw to it that the visitors received every attention.

American Sweet Pea Society.

The American Sweet Pea Bulletin and Schedule, 1919, the official organ of the American Sweet Pea Society, has been issued and contains much of interest. Included in the contents is the final and complete schedule for the exhibition to be held in connection with the eleventh annual convention at the American Museum of Natural History, New York, June 21-22, the financial report for the year ending January 1, 1919, and a number of excellent papers, among them the following: "Failures and Disappointments—To Date," by W. Cuthbertson; "Sweet Peas Under Glass," by Wm. Sim; "Long Stems vs. Quality and Refinement in Sweet Peas," by E. R. Janes; "Decorative Value of Sweet Peas," by R. F. Felton. In memoriam are the names of J. Harrison Dick and William J. Stewart.

Rose Victory.

The new gold medal rose, Victory, of McGredy & Son, Portadown, Ireland, according to the British Horticultural Advertiser, in color out-Richmonds Richmond. It is a hybrid tea and resembles Richmond in form, size and pose.

LIMITED MEMORIAL DAY BUSINESS.

The market has been in fair shape the past few weeks. The supply of stock has been more or less limited on account of the continued rains, but sales have been correspondingly low, and the shortage of stock has not been felt. Carnations have fallen off in quality, and the grades coming in now are very poor. Roses are in good supply, but a few days of hot weather shows in the poor keeping qualities. Sweet peas are very poor at the present time. Peonies were quite a disappointment this year in this vicinity. The continued rains, of course, were the cause of this. Gladioli are in fair supply, the quality is fine, and they have a ready call. Other outdoor stock, such as coreopsis, gaillardias, etc., are fair, but will improve with the discontinuance of the rains. Southern ferns are on the market and have practically displaced the fancy stock for the present.

NOTES.

Memorial day business was slow as usual. In fact, there was very little of this with the exception of those florists who are located at or near the cemeteries. They did a very fine trade with the weather favoring them. Outside of this, the business was nil. This is a sort of southern city and the day is not as widely celebrated here as in some of the northern localities.

W. A. Rowe announces a big dance at his Denny road plant, June 14. He promises a big time. He need not do that, because his parties always are big times. Ask anyone who has ever been to one.

The next florists' club meeting is scheduled for June 12. This, more than likely, will be an outdoor meeting, but the trustees have not as yet announced the place.

May saw an unusual number of weddings, which helped swell the retail florists' sales. This, no doubt, was aided somewhat by the large number of soldiers returning during the past month.

Geo. Waldbart has been quite ill again, but the boys at the store report that he is improving. J. J. W.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE UNUSUALLY GOOD.

The Memorial day trade so far out-classed that of other years that one can hardly make any comparison. There was a greater amount of cut flowers sold than ever before, and, in fact, it may be said to have been a cut-flower holiday. The sale of bedding plants was very heavy all during the week. There was a notable decline in the sale of foliage wreaths compared with other years. The mail order business, and the F. T. D. orders were very numerous. The supply of flowers was satisfactory in some instances, but some varieties were very short. Peonies were conspicuous by their absence. The few that were shown were of very poor quality. They sold for $12 per 100, wholesale, and retailed for $2.50 and $3 per dozen. Carnations were also short, and brought varied prices, from $1.50 to $2 per dozen. Roses were plentiful, and of good quality, and retailed from $1.50 per dozen up to $5. Greenhouse gladioli met with a fine call at $3 per dozen. Such plants as hydrangeas, gloxinias, etc., met with a good sale. The weather was very favorable for a record business. Since the holiday, there has been an even call for flowers for funerals and weddings, and there are a large number of advance orders for weddings for the next several weeks.

BUSINESS BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

Memorial day business seems to have been limited mainly by the capacity of florists to handle the work. The supply of stock held out fairly well, but a shortage in carnations developed by Thursday noon. Peonies and Cape Jasmynes were in good supply, and also were of fine quality and sold readily. The best peonies retailed generally at $3.00 per dozen, with quite a few extra fancy selling at $4.00. Greenhouse gladioli, sweet peas and various items of outdoor stock, sold well at profitable figures. "Prepared" stock, such as magnolia, albas, and cycas wreaths, found a good demand. Prices, as a rule, were about the same as last year, with probably a slight increase on the fancy grades. Weather conditions were fine and much appreciated. Taken altogether, it was a very good week and the volume of business done will show a nice margin above that of last year. The month just past was one of steady business. The bulk of the spring bedding trade falls in this month. This, with Mothers' day and Memorial day, makes May the heaviest business month of the year. This, combined with the florists' own necessities in the planting line, has certainly made a busy period for them, and the entire craft hail with a slight degree of satisfaction, the prospect of the usual let-up in June, which will give them a chance to catch up with their own work, although June usually shows some good business days, with a fair total for the month. Gentlemen: I am pleased to say a little in praise of the work done by your men on Mr. O. G. Jennings' estate at Fairfield, Conn., especially in the treatment of cavities, the Davey treatment being much superior to any work executed here by three or four other companies. In fact, I consider it marvelous tree surgery.

After the expiration of one year I cannot see the least imperfection that might, in work improperly done, be caused by weather conditions, but the thorough cleaning and water-proofing of the cavities insures work of long standing, I am convinced.

I wish you great success,

Sincerely yours,

MEMORIAL DAYS BRING LITTLE BUSINESS.

Memorial day was observed here as usual at the national cemetery. The graves of 16,650 soldiers were marked with American flags and were decorated with wreaths brought by friends. The occasion was also observed at the cemetery near Murfreesboro in a like manner. Another decoration or memorial day was held for the Confederate heroes at Mt. Olivet cemetery, June 3. The flowers for all these decorations are from home gardens, however, and very little extra business goes to the flower shops. Trade in general has been very good, many social events causing renewed activity and there have been not a few weddings. In addition, there are the school commencements, while the call for funeral orders continues normal. The supply of flowers has improved wonderfully and it is looking better than for some weeks past. In roses, Columbia is coming in with large fine flowers and with Ophelia and Killarney, white and pink, furnish quite a good supply which cleans up daily. Carnations are not as good as they were and have about finished their season. Sweet peas are very good, although the continued rainy weather shortened the crop considerably. Cape Jasmies were received in limited supply, met with ready sale and were much valued for funeral work. The plant trade has been very fine and the growers have been able to dispose of all the stock they had on hand. At the market house everything is available from verbenas to rose plants. The weather has been very favorable to this branch of the trade.

NOTES.

Geny Bros. have been cutting unusually fine Columbia roses and had no difficulty in disposing of them as soon as they arrived at the store. The call for bedding plants here is very brisk. The Joy Floral Co. has of late made some unusually attractive and unique window displays, featuring local events. This firm is always public spirited. M. C. D.

MEMORIAL DAY SHORTAGE FELT.

Demands upon florists for Memorial day were very heavy and caused some disappointment, owing to limited supply of some of the flowers most wanted. The greatest shortage was in peonies. Some dealers were unable to get more than a third of their orders filled by the wholesaler, and sales were cut down by thousands of blooms. Roses and carnations proved to be almost adequate in meeting the heavy rush of business. The volume of trade was somewhat larger than last year and prices a little higher. Peonies brought $2.50 a dozen, but have now slumped under the big supply which has come in within the past few days, and are a drag at $1 to $1.50. The warm wave is maturing all kinds of garden flowers rapidly. Dealers have plenty of everything. Gladioli grown under glass are now an attractive feature of stock. Bedding stock has been pretty well cleaned up at prices running from 25 to 50 per cent over last season, due to the scarcity. Wedding and graduation business is very flattering in outlook and florists expect a big June.

NOTES.

The local Jewish population are making preparations for the sixth annual flower day, authorized by the Jewish national fund bureau, Sunday, June 8. Young women will make a thorough canvass of the city selling flowers.

E. D. Ludwig, son of T. J. Ludwig, has resumed his position in the store after two years' service in a munition plant. C. C. J.

Louisville, Ky.

The force of the F. Walker Co. had to work until midnight the day before Memorial day in order to get orders out on time. This firm has contracted for its supply of mine run coal of good quality at $4 per ton.

The Joseph Schulz Co. is planting out roses in the field. These have just been received from Holland, together with a large importation of choice varieties of dahlias.

Memorial day business was by far the best ever known in this city, general reports indicating sales four or five times greater than in any previous year.

Walter Kleinstarink, who was on the firing line in France, has returned and will resume his duties at the Kleinstarink greenhouses.

Henry Fuchs, who has been laid up for several days, threatened with blood poisoning, will be able to return to work in a few days.

George L. Nance has all of his chrysanthemums planted and is making a fine showing of geraniums.

Mrs. C. B. Thompson recently made a fine showing of corsage and wedding bouquets in her window. H. G. W.

CLINTONVILLE, WIS.—M. C. Sadewater and Walter Bartlett, of Rockford, Ill., will erect a range here in the near future.

BEAVER, PA.—Excellent business is reported at the Thomas M. Fitzgerald Greenhouses. Established 20 years ago, this range now occupies about five and one-half acres of ground with over 45,000 square feet of glass, under the management of Miss Fitzgerald. Approximately 50,000 bedding plants and 800,000 cut flowers are produced here. Numerous orders are received through the Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

Carelessness Makes "Good Credit" a Mere "Scrap of Paper"

Much has been said and written about a mere "scrap of paper."

Through a seemingly generous supply of paper and much abuse, this "scrap of paper" wasn't taken seriously. Simply because some one hadn't kept faith and a pledge was violated again and again.

Today the florists' business, in a degree, is being impaired—for much the same reason. Promises to pay PROMPTLY have been broken again and again.

PROMPT PAY

Begets confidence, and you'll find practically every firm doing business in the floral market glad to extend CREDIT accommodations—but delinquent and careless florists who "pay as you please" must, in protecting the interest of the society at large, change their method of payment.

Carelessness is to a large extent the cause of bad credit. The great trouble is, there are too many pigeon holes in our "roll top" which closes unceremoniously on a number of accounts which should have prompt attention.

Your bills must be paid PROMPTLY.
You must make your promise to pay more than a mere "scrap of paper."

WATCH YOUR BILLS WHEN THEY COME IN.
PAY THEM PROMPTLY.

HEAVY SHIPPING FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

The out-of-town demand for Memorial day was exceptionally heavy and some of the wholesale houses found it impossible to fill all their orders in full on certain items, owing to the great scarcity that existed at the time most of the orders were shipped. Prices never were so high for Memorial day as this year when fancy peonies sold at figures ranging from $1 to $2 per dozen and carnations in the better grades at $8, $10 and $12 per 100. Roses brought high prices and so did what few callas and lilies that were offered. Cape Jasmynes were among the offerings, but not in any great quantities, but what few were seen, appeared to have arrived here in splendid condition. Tulips, lilac, daisies, snapdragons, calendulas, pansies, stocks, lupines, iris, statice, candytuft, narcissi and other miscellaneous seasonable stock came in handy at times. Gladioli were quite a factor in the market and commanded high prices. Sweet peas were in strong demand and moved fast considering the supply. Orchids and lily of the valley were scarce. Made-up wreaths were in good demand this season and played a large part in the Memorial day trade. The shipping demand exceeded all expectations, and while the local trade bought quite heavily, business, especially among the loop florists, was not anywhere near as great as expected. The warm weather brought forward a good supply of stock for the local trade, but the bulk of it arrived after most of the dealers had made arrangements to push made-up wreaths, owing to the uncertainty of the supply, consequently much stock was left unsold or moved at the lower prices at the eleventh hour, that the wholesaler would have liked to furnish his customers with and was unable to the day before. Taken as a whole, business for Memorial day was surprisingly heavy from out-of-town points, but the local demand was not as brisk as many expected it would be. Now that it is all over, everyone is devoting their attention to the weddings and school-closings. Stock at this writing is in large supply, but is arriving so fast on account of the warm weather, that there may be still more or a great deal less before the week is over, but one will not have to worry about not being able to secure all that he wants.

NOTES.

One of the local retail florists said that one of the street peddlers in the elevated stations in the loop last week cost him at least $1,000 the day of May 29. This florist, who is located within a stone's throw from the station, must have had a good reason for making this statement, but did not mention whether it was on account of the business that he lost on actual sales, or the fact that the peddler was selling so cheap that the public could not understand why prices should be so high when the quality, to their eyes, was nearly equal. The fact that the retailer bought his supply when the market was tight in order to protect his needs, is hard to explain, or to make them believe, when they encountered the peddler on the elevated, who waited until the buying was over and secured what they did not want or could not get in job lots at bargain figures. The retailer in question considers it unfair competition which ought to be stopped, while the wholesaler who sold the stock, probably figures that it is better to get what he can for the grower while it is salable than to dump it into the garbage barrel and pay the driver to haul it away. There are many different opinions on this subject which some say is as broad as it is long, and while they sympathize with the dealers who are forced to meet this competition at times, one grower, who is also a retailer, cited several instances where some of our leading florists got their start in the same way, and are today considered among the best merchants in the trade. J. B. Deamud is seriously ill at his farm at Caro, Mich., and fears are entertained for his recovery. He was formerly in business here under the name of the J. B. Deamud Co., and has a host of friends in the trade here as well as elsewhere. William Wienhoeber, in speaking of business for May, mentions that the Ernst Wienhoeber Co.'s sales for that period were double those of the same month of 1918.

Bert J. Zender, beloved son of Adam and Lena Zender, nee Reinberg, and brother of Amy, Anna, Rina, Helen, Ceal, Edward, Lucy and William Zender, was drowned at Lake Zurich, Sunday, June 1. He dove from a rowboat, and after one dive he came to the surface for a moment and sank and was not seen again until his body was recovered late that evening. The funeral was held from the late residence, 6757 Ridge avenue, Rogers Park, Wednesday, 9:30 a. m., to St. Henry's church, thence to St. Henry's cemetery. The Zender family is well known to the trade through its former connection with the florist business, and has the sympathy of everyone in their bereavement.

Allie Zech reports that Zech & Mann's total sales for May 28 were the largest of any one day in the history of the firm, including all the previous holidays. Jack Byers will join the staff at this establishment as soon as he is discharged from service.

The florists made a better showing in the recent Victory Loan campaign than any other line of industry in Division 19, which is a great credit to L. R. Bohannon, who was chairman of the trade committee.

Wietor Bros. had a very satisfactory Memorial day business, with a heavy out-of-town call for stock. They report a strong demand for chrysanthemum plants with new orders arriving in every mail.

J. A. Budlong Co. had one of the heaviest Memorial day businesses on record, when stock in all lines cleaned up completely, especially during the shipping period.

Archie McNulty, brother of Miss Marguerite McNulty, of the Peter Reinberg store force, who was with the American troops in France, arrived home this week.

Frne & Co. had a fine Memorial day business, when stock in all lines cleaned up completely. Their out-of-town demand was exceptionally heavy.

The 6,000 men of the 33d division, who paraded here June 2, received even a heartier welcome than their comrades last week. It seemed as if the whole city turned out to meet them, and the flowers that were strewn in their path was probably the largest supply ever donated by the wholesalers for a worthy cause. The market was completely loaded with stock, owing to the warm weather, and the dealers gladly gave what surplus they had to the committee that collected them to present to the returning heroes. After giving the committee a large supply, several of the dealers in the Atlas building decided to welcome their own boys with a barrage of stock at Randolph street and Wabash avenue, and were ably assisted by Miss Nettie Parker, who handed out armful after armful as fast as the boys brought them over to her. Jack Byers, formerly with A. T. Pyfer & Co., and later with Zech & Mann; Luke Schrer, formerly with Percy Jones, Inc., and later with Kennicott Bros. Co.; Leo Koropp, son of L. Koropp, manager of the Ohio Floral Co.; John Hoerber, son of J. L. Hoerber, one of the proprietors of Hoerber Bros., who sold out recently, and Herbert Budlong, son of Bert Budlong, were with the troops that marched, and it is needless to add that everyone in the trade was glad to have them arrive home safely. Louis Anrola, with Walter Stocklos, was a member of this famous division, but was honorably discharged several months ago, when he recovered from being gassed at the front. Miss Paradise, cashier and bookkeeper at A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store, welcomed her brother home with the last crowd of the 33d to arrive, and Walter Scott, of La Grange, was on hand to meet his son, Wilfred. It might not be out of place here to extend our sympathy to the family of Sigmurd Misciewicz, who gave his life to the worthy cause, and many missed him in the ranks of the happy crowd that returned this week. O. J. Friedman filled an order delivered to the Great Lakes Naval Training Station for 31 Memorial day wreaths, which helped pile up the receipts considerably. Miss Cassaretto, who has charge of the office of this store, returned recently from a pleasure trip to New York. Mr. Friedman and family will leave shortly to spend the summer at their cottage in Michigan. All the boys in the trade who served with the colors are finding their jobs open for them when they return. The florists are certainly a fine bunch of fellows and stand well in the eyes of the government officials for the splendid assistance they rendered whenever called upon during the trying period of the great struggle. Harry Gardner, formerly with A. T. Pyfer & Co., left this week for Sacramento, Calif., where he will make his home in the future. He has the best wishes of his many friends here for success in the structural steel business, which he will follow. Mrs. Gardner will join him in the near future.

Members of the Society of American Florists and the local florists' club are eligible to bowl in the S. A. F. tournament at Detroit, Mich., August 19-21, convention week. A meeting will be held Tuesday, June 10, at 8 p. m., at Bensinger's West Randolph street alleys for the purpose of selecting a team to represent the club. Those wishing to participate in the try-out will meet every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the same place, and the five having the highest scores will compose the team. The next five highest men will be selected as alternates.

Peter Duris, of the Central Floral Co., reports that its Memorial day business was about 35 per cent greater than that of last year, with a strong demand for made-up wreaths of magnolia leaves, static and strawflowers, ranging in prices from $5 to $20 each. Many orders were booked early, which he attributes to the window displays arranged especially for this occasion.

The E. F. Winterson Co.'s Memorial day business was the largest in seven years. Mr. Winterson is dividing his time between the store and his home at Highland Park, which is one of the beauty spots in that section. It is rumored that Ernst Wienhoeber, who has a place near him, is offering it for sale at a price said to be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Henry Neve, of Des Plaines, who took over Fletcher James' place several years ago, is doing nicely, and was more than pleased with business the past year. His brother, Albert, who was overseas with the American troops for many months, returned home recently.

Chas. Kruchten, brother of John and Henry Kruchten, and son of Nic. Kruchten, well-known grower, who was in France for sometime with the American troops, landed in New York the other day and is expected home this week.

William F. Schofield, the North State street florist, filled orders for quite a number of odd designs the past month which included an aeroplane, elephant, fawn and a nine-foot wreath with a set of crossed bats and a baseball in the centre.

Walter Kreitling, son of O. Kreitling, 317 South Cicero avenue, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his wife whose death occurred this week. He is a nephew of Walter Kreitling, 77 East Van Buren street.

Robert Brenton, formerly with Kennicott Bros. Co., returned recently from France, where he served with the colors for almost a year. He volunteered shortly after war was declared on the Central powers.

Chas. Samuelson had a patriotic window display for Memorial day arranged by Ed. Enders, which was in keeping with the spirit of the times, and caused much favorable talk in the market.

Morton M. Hirsch, son of M. B. Hirsch, former proprietor of the store known as the "Willard Florist," arrived home this week with the famous 33d division.

Wilfred A. Scott, son of Walter Scott, of La Grange, who was overseas with the famous 33d division, arrived here June 5, with the troops that were given such a royal welcome on that date.

Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, finds in checking over his Memorial day sales, that they were 100 per cent. better than those of the same period in 1918.

T. E. Waters, manager of Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department, leaves this week on a business visit to several of the large eastern markets.

Demosthenes Papatony, proprietor of the Briggs Floral Co., is recovering from injuries sustained when his auto collided with a street car.

Fletcher James is planning on visiting relatives at Baltimore, Md., in the near future. He is adding two houses to his present range.

Percy Jones, Inc., had a splendid out-of-town demand for Memorial day, which was the heaviest in the history of the firm.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, president of the Society of American Florists, was a welcome visitor this week.

C. L. Washburn says that Bassett & Washburn's receipts of Columbia roses have averaged 2,000 per day this week.

H. B. Kennicott says that Kennicott Bros. Co.'s total sales for Memorial day were the largest on record.

Sixty-three florists are running advertisements in the Herald-Examiner.

A. L. Vaughan, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., celebrated another birthday, June 1. He was born at Bastrop, La., in 1864, and in the fall of 1887, started in the wholesale commission business when he entered into partnership with Chas. W. McKellar and E. F. Winter-son, under the firm name of Vaughan, McKellar & Winter-son. He was later in business with Fred Sperry, under the name of Vaughan & Sperry, but bought his interest in 1912, when the present name was substituted. Mr. Vaughan is one of the "old reliables" in the business, and has a long list of customers in this city and shipping vicinity.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. reports a very satisfactory Memorial day trade. John Poehlmann says his firm never had a better supply of wedding and commencement flowers to offer than this week, including orchids and lily of the valley.

N. J. Wietor, who attended the Zender funeral, June 4, reports that it was largely attended by members of the trade and that the floral offerings were many and beautiful.

It is said some plants from the collection of the late C. G. Roebliug, Trenton, N. J., will be acquired for the Garfield park orchid houses.

Jens Jensen gave an illustrated address at the City Club luncheon June 5, showing his plans for a greater west park system.

Fred Holton and H. V. Hunkel, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis., attended the Zender funeral here, June 4.

HEAVY MEMORIAL DAY SUPPLY.

Memorial day business was exceptionally good. Receipts were heavy and sufficient for all demands on them. However, the substantial part of the supply came in rather late and it was impossible to move all of it. Since that time, the supply in the market has been large, and while business is fairly good, still it is not sufficient to take up all offerings readily, and prices have dropped. Rose receipts are heavy, and generally are of good quality. Carnations are showing the effects of the hot weather that we are having. The best of them, however, find a good market. The peony supply has become large and is more than the market can use readily. Gladioli are selling well. A limited number of good sweet peas may be had. Easter lilies are practically out of the market at the time of this writing. Lily of the valley is selling well. Other offerings are snapdragons, stocks, cornflowers, marguerites, callas and rubrums. New ferns are finding a market that is exceptionally good.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell is having an excellent market for his galax. This appears to be selling as well as earlier in the year when flowers were very scarce.

J. W. Rodgers, Dayton, O., while in this city last week on a buying expedition, among other items, purchased an auto delivery car.

Cliff Merland, formerly with Fred Gear, has returned to this country from overseas, and is in camp awaiting discharge.

P. J. Olinger had an excellent cut of carnations for Memorial day and for the week immediately preceding that day.

Chas. Wiethorn has taken charge of Peter Weiland's local office, vice Louis Davis, who had resigned.

Visitors: Sam Seligman, representing Schloss Bros., New York; R. E. Blackshaw, representing Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind., and Karl Heiser, Hamilton, O.

MEMORIAL DAY BREAKS RECORD.

Memorial day, 1919, will long be remembered as the largest in the history of the trade here. The weather was ideal and stock was of the best quality. Plants were scarce, especially geraniums in bloom and prices were high. Peonies were the best ever handled in this market for this occasion and there was an ample supply to meet all requirements with prices varying from $6 to $12 per 100. At present writing, the market is flooded with this flower with no demand whatever. Carnations were of good quality and returned $8 per 100 for the best. There was a big supply of roses, but they cleaned up easily at good figures with the exception of long stemmed American Beauty. The supply of yellow daisies about balanced the demand. Snapdragons were good and met with ready sale. Mignonette, calendulas and sweet peas were poor and a drug on the market. There were a few Easter lilies and callas but not nearly enough to supply the calls. The retail stores are now ready to handle a large number of June weddings, several large decorations having already been booked well in advance.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE DISAPPOINTMENTS.

Memorial day business may be said to be somewhat of a disappointment to many of the florists here. Early in the week, the call for wreaths for shipment to small towns gave an indication of a much greater demand for the day itself than was realized. Florists near cemeteries, having a stock of plants suitable for graves, report an excellent trade throughout the week, but the call for cut flowers, even with them, was not as brisk as was expected. Cut stock of all kinds was quite plentiful and the medium, and even low prices asked by the wholesalers, clearly indicated the fact that cut flowers were not a material factor in Memorial day trade this year, if they ever were before. All items in the list continue to be plentiful and prices of the same, correspondingly low. Saturday, May 31, more sidewalk vendors of roses and sweet peas were seen on the streets than for a long time. Growers of pot plants seem for the present immune from this sudden reaction in the prices of greenhouse products and are apparently satisfied with present conditions.

NOTES.

Joseph Streit, chairman of the S. A. F. bowling tournament, is already receiving advance notice of teams from many parts of the country, who will enter the contests here convention week. He is arranging the different games with suitable awards which are the donations of public spirited men of the trade. The Recreation building, where the games will be rolled, is the largest, finest and best equipped of any similar place in the entire country. Special provision will be made for the ladies who are expected to participate in great numbers.

A party consisting of W. L. Rock, Kansas City, Mo., I. Bertermann, Indianapolis, Philip Breitmeyer, E. A. Feters and A. Pochelon went to the F. T. D. log cabin at Grayling, Mich., June 4, for a week's outing as the guests of Mr. Pochelon. They will auto the distance of nearly 200 miles.

M. Bloy is hard at work with A. Pochelon in F. T. D. matters, and has already absorbed much of the enthusiasm of his chief.

Providence, R. I.

MEMORIAL DAY SUPPLY CLEANS UP.

Despite all of the competition that the local florists had to contend with this year, the supply in practically all of the stores cleaned up quickly. Geraniums moved fast and brought good prices. Bouquets of both natural and wax flowers sold well, and in fact there was a brisk demand for practically all offerings. Several of the "fly-by-night" stores that were here for Memorial day only, carried over considerable stock, however. June wed-

NOTES.

The Hampden Meadow Greenhouses made heavy cuts for Memorial day, especially in gladioli, carnations and marguerites.

PEONIES PLENTIFUL FOR ALL NEEDS.

The Memorial day business is confined, or the great bulk of it, at least in this market, to May 28. While there is a good demand for all classes of medium priced stock, the peony is the great flower of the day. They were handled by the hundred thousand, "Flower of a day" is the correct expression for the peony. If it makes the 28th, the great shipping day, it readily brings $6 to $10 per hundred, or did this year, but if it carries until the 29th, it will not command half these figures. This refers to the local market, where the patriotic spirit and the use of flowers in decorating soldiers' graves at one time was as strong as any in the country. There was, and always will be, speculation as to the quantity of peonies that will be ready for the great shipping day. They came in with a great rush just at the last this season, and there was enough to fill all orders. Prices ranged from $6 to $12; probably the great bulk brought or averaged $8. On Thursday, about noon, the market broke badly and continued to sag, until on Saturday they were offered, very good flowers, at $30 per thousand. One of the large growers said it would have meant $2,000, more to him if they had been one day sooner, to which a large dealer replied: "Now be satisfied. You would have had more work, but your net returns would have been the same, as the market would not have cleared up as it did with an extra day's supply from all the growers." There was a fairly good supply of carnations, which were in demand at from $5 to $8. Sweet peas were seen in quantity and sold well. Iris, southern gladioli, stocks, snapdragons and calendulas were quite plentiful. The out-of-town shipping demand was immense. The express company stationed a man in the large wholesale houses, who labeled and receipted for packages, which were then sent direct to railroad stations to make the trains desired. In volume of receipts, and possibly in quantity of stock sold, it was the largest trade ever experienced in this market. The local demand, while not at all what it should be, showed considerable increase over that of the past few years. When the trade wakes up to the possibilities of a carefully planned newspaper information bureau, which shall prepare interesting matter for the daily and Sunday papers, having a hearing on the celebration of the day until it becomes almost an imperative duty to visit the cemetery, then there will be a genuine demand that will take everything in sight.

NOTES.

The smoker of the florists' club was very successful and made a splendid closing of the season. The committee had secured excellent talent and every number of the programme, some of which were from the Keith circuit, was enjoyable. Charles Marbella, baritone of the "Niessen circuit," made a splendid impression, and was loudly encoored at both of his appearances. Charles H. Grakelow, who was master of ceremonies, is a host in himself, and covered himself with glory in his appeal for the Salvation Army, which netted over $300 collected on the spot.

It will soon be demonstrated whether the Columbia rose is to be a good summer keeper. The Russell is one of the best in this respect, there being a substance to the petals that seems to defy "Old Sol." Maryland is a capital summer variety; there is really not as much interest taken in the hot weather roses as their importance demands. So many rest or throw their houses out of crop, that there is always a demand for stock in any color that grades up at all.

The rose men are wearing expansive smiles. You cannot find one who is not in good humor. We wonder if this expansion will go farther. We hear rumors, they all have limousines. The surplus must go somewhere. Keep your eyes open. It will not be long. They have their eyes on one another. The first that makes a break, will have the others at his heels.

Robert Craig has been laid up for the past two weeks for repairs. He was much interested in the spring bedding plants, worked too hard, and took a severe cold, which locked bad for a few days. He is, we are glad to say, now much better, and proposes soon to take a recuperative rest, to which he has the consent of all his friends.

Nelson T. Geiger will spend two weeks this month on the Rangely Lakes, in Maine, trout fishing. He found a good remedy for the black fly, a pest there which is very annoying, is to wear white or light colored clothes on which the flies will not alight, preferring the dark colors in which they can hide.

There has been such a demand for the scarlet geranium, Helen Michell, that the H. F. Michell Co. is making it a leader for the coming season. A table of this variety, exhibited at the recent Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's Main Line show, attracted great attention.

Jos. G. Neidinger has put out a "Peace" or "Victory" window box. He bought 10,000 strong wooden boxes, which were to do duty for holding shrapnel. They are now camouflaged with cedar bark slabs and made into excellent boxes for the window or porch.

Edward Reid said: "We thought we would be short of our orders for peonies, but that hot Tuesday was a great help. They were one day late, but that saved the price, and I think everybody was satisfied. It was the best Memorial week trade for a long time."

The young cyclamens in which Harry I. Faust takes such interest, are rapidly getting into four-inch pots. These are to fill a new house 25x200 feet now going up, and will, he says, be the best he has ever grown.

Blue California statice is a novelty with the Leo Niessen Co. May 28 was sure their busy day. It seemed as if half the peonies of the United States passed through their hands.

Berger Bros. had their counters piled high with peonies all through the week. A splendid business was the report, until Thursday noon, when the market broke.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange were strong on peonies and also roses. "Well satisfied with business and prices," was the good word.

The Jos. Hescoek Co. has a great run on roses. All colors sold well, and at better prices than ever before for the season.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE GOOD AS RULE.

Interviews with a number of retail florists who are located near the large cemeteries, indicate that their Memorial day business was better than last year. Both May 29 and 30 were hot days, and it is reasonable to suppose that as the 31st was practically a holiday, many additional orders would go in on that day. Taken as a whole, the business of the wholesale district was unsatisfactory to most of the dealers; possibly they had too great expectations. The greatest fault was that too many peonies were shipped to this market, and to make conditions worse, arrived too late. Hundreds of cases arrived on Memorial day, and having been two days on the road, were in poor condition. It has come to be too much of a habit with growers of distant states to make this market a dumping ground for surplus stock. Under normal conditions this is a good market, but a good horse can be over-worked. But regardless of the surplus of poor peonies, there was other peony stock on the market that was good and that brought good prices. It rarely happens in any holiday trade that everything is satisfactory. Although, as previously stated, so many peonies had a bad effect on other stocks, practically everything brought better prices than at Memorial day of last year. Carnations and roses, if slow, were better. On May 29, good carnations went as high as $5. and $6. per 100, whereas last year they were hard to move at half those figures. We are, therefore, confirmed in our predictions of several weeks ago that the Memorial day business has exceeded that of any previous year. An encouraging feature of the business was reports from retail florists located in the heart of the city, that their Memorial day orders exceeded those of any previous year. Heavy supplies of roses, sweet peas, carnations and minor stocks were also in evidence. May 29 was a fairly active day in the wholesale district, but there was very light business on the morning of May 30. As Memorial day business calls for the cheaper stocks, roses were slow.

June 2.—There is a fair amount of buying this morning, but the tendency of prices on roses, carnations and peonies is downward. The weather is warm, which is unfavorable to above stocks. It appears that peonies will swamp the market by the middle of the week. Outdoor lily of the valley is finished, and the supply of greenhouse stock being light, it has taken a rise. Practically all early summer flowers, such as white bouvardias, gaillardias and others are now in, and swell the surplus, but the glut is in peonies. Reference to our market table will tell the tale. Many are being lost, and others are going to peddlers at prices we cannot quote as such stock is of little account.

NOTES.

Flushing—not Flushing of the Netherlands—Flushing, of the city of New York, is a part of this city of which the residents of the other sections may well be proud, particularly if they are what Hermione calls "serious minded thinkers." Long before it was taken into the "greater city," it was, with its neat homes and shady streets, a pleasant place to visit. Our particular interest in Flushing at the present time is its Park Garden Club. It is composed of prominent women, and has just celebrated its fifth anniversary. Since its organization, the club has given seven flower shows, has carried on a war garden campaign, and assisted in organizing garden clubs in a number of other Long Island sections. Now it has started a magazine, the Garden Bulletin, to be issued quarterly, which will tell all about the club's activities, and will contain other interesting features. The first number, which is edited by Mrs. Harold A. Vivian, is out and contains interesting reading. Ellis Parker Butler, who is a resident of Flushing, has contributed a special article in his inimitable style. All who have read that classic production of Mr. Butler's: "Pigs Is Pigs," will agree that he will always be able to see the funny side of a garden or conservatory, and if there is no funny side, he can make one. We welcome the Garden Bulletin. Our horticultural contemporaries have been rather dry reading of late, and we feel sure the new publication will have plenty of "ginger."

S. Masur, the retailer of 256 Fulton street, Brooklyn, recently got ahead of the "rent profiteers" by buying the house on Brooklyn Heights in which he has lived for the past seven years. It is of brown stone construction, three stories high and covers a lot 26½x101 feet. He started in business 20 years ago when he was quite young and has always had the same business location, having become a popular man in his neighborhood. He is a member of the Royal Arcanum, a Mason and an Elk, and is also a life member of both the Society of American Florists and the New York Florists' Club. One secret of his success is that both he and Mrs. Masur are great workers.

James Murray and George George, formerly with the Kervan Company, have returned from overseas and resumed their positions with that company. They were on the other side about a year with the A. E. F. and saw hard service. Julius Mason, another former employe, was wounded in action and cited for bravery, and is yet in an hospital in France, recovering. John Cowper, who was the engineer of their cold storage house before he joined the United States army, is yet on the other side. All told, this firm had nine men in the great war.

Charles J. Schultheis, son of Anton Schultheis, the well known grower of College Point, was married May 23 to Miss Senie Bersteking, also of College Point. The bride's father holds a good position with a large manufacturing concern. The marriage is said to have followed an elopement, the parents thinking the couple were too young; but all is now forgiven. As for Pana Schultheis, he could not stay any very long if he tried; that's what we think.

Joseph L. Barnitt, Jr., son of Joseph L. Barnitt, of the staff of David Clarke's Sons, arrived at Hoboken, May 31, on board the United States S. S. Louisville. He is a member of the 213 Aero Squadron, U. S. A., and enlisted December 11, 1917. He, with many others, was on the S. S. Tuscania, which was torpedoed off the coast of Scotland, and a number of lives lost. He escaped unhurt. His squadron is now at Camp Mills.

The florists located near Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, were kept busy during the past week filling Memorial day orders. A number of them have a considerable glass area devoted largely to bedding plants, though cut flowers are also grown. At the range of J. Ebb Weir & Co., Inc., in addition to many plants, a bed of double white dahlias were noticed which had flowered in about six weeks after being planted in the bed.

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 24-26, 1919.

THE price of bags at Chicago, June 4, was $50.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are badly in need of rain, ground hard and dry.

VISITED CHICAGO: Mrs. L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif.

LATEST cables regarding French bulbs say the crop is very small and prices still uncertain.

GUADALOUPE, CALIF.—Dr. Franklin, of the L. D. Waller Seed Co., has returned from military service.

HOTEL reservations should be made early for the American Seed Trade Association convention at Chicago, June 24-26.

GRASS SEED.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, June 4, were as follows: Timothy, $9.50 to $11.50 per 100 pounds.

CARL SCHMIDT, proprietor of Haage & Schmidt, Erfurt, Germany, died last March. In early life Mr. Schmidt was employed for a time by the late Peter Hendersen.

HJALMAR HARTMANN & Co., of Copenhagen, Denmark, are reported to have profited to the extent of several millions of dollars by the sale of seeds to Germany during the war.

MOST of the western seedsmen, it now appears, are in favor of the 5-cent commission packet, with a selling price of $25 per thousand to the trade. One firm expects to retain the $30 price to the trade, giving larger packets.

THE Western Seedsmen's Association growers' reports of May 19, sent out by Howard Webster, secretary, makes very interesting reading. Reports are included from California, Washington, Florida and Georgia seed growing sections.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover market closed steady, June 2, at $27.35, an advance of 35 cents during the preceding seven days. October was quoted at $21.80. Timothy was firm, cash being offered at $5.50, May $5.50, September $6.25 and October, $6.05.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—In its issue of May 22, The Birmingham Age-Herald printed an interesting article with portraits, among them that of Leon E. Harris, vice-president of the McVay Seed & Floral Co., prominent in the Kiwanis club, an organization of live business and professional men of this city.

THE army worm, which gets its name from the fact that it moves in immense hordes, leaving a trail of destruction, has appeared in large numbers in the general vicinity of Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex. It is busily engaged in destroying the wheat and oats crop in that state, according to reports to the department of agriculture.

Free Seeds Again.

Approximately $1,000,000 will be expended in matters of interest to florists by the department of agriculture during the coming fiscal year, which begins July 1, under the appropriation bill, which has just been passed by the House of Representatives, and is now awaiting action by the Senate. As usual, there will be the purchase and distribution through the members of Congress, of free seeds, bulbs, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings and plants. This work, during the fiscal year 1920, will cost $358,980, and will be carried out in

For the investigation of diseases of forest and ornamental trees and shrubs, $82,315.

For the study and testing of commercial seeds, and for carrying out the provisions of the act prohibiting the admission of certain adulterated grain and seeds unfit for seeding purposes, $33,680.

For the cultivation and care of the gardens and grounds of the department of agriculture in Washington, $11,690.

For continuing the necessary improvements to establish and maintain the time-honored manner. As usual, efforts were made to have this feature of the work eliminated, on the ground that it is free advertising for the congressmen at the expense of the people, and that most of the seeds distributed are never used, but, again as usual, these efforts failed. Among the other items included in the bill, of interest to florists, are the following:

A. T. FERRELL ON THE PACIFIC COAST.
Inspecting Seed Crops for Cleaning in Clipper Mills.

For investigations of plant diseases and pathological collections, including the maintenance of a plant-disease survey, $62,020.

the general experiment farm and agricultural station on the Arlington estate, $21,900.

For investigations in foreign seed and plant introduction, including the study, purchase, propagation and distribution of rare and valuable seeds, bulbs, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings and plants from foreign countries and from our possessions, $82,700.

Dutch Bulb Green Auction Sales.

All hyacinths, tulips, crocus and narcissi have brought good prices at the green auction sales. Every dealer seems to entertain the thought that the stock is scarce and the supply will be short because of expected European demand. However, it is known that England will not take any narcissi or late tulips. Close observers are inclined to doubt that there will be any scarcity provided shipment can only be made to America and Scandinavia.

Tulips Couleur Cardinal, Flamingo, Proserpine, Mon Tresor, Vermilion Brilliant, Couronne d'Or, Murillo, etc., are in good supply and the prices are not higher than in March. However, varieties like Artus, Chrysolora, Cramoie Brilliant, La Reine, Yellow Prince and some other similar varieties are advancing in price daily and will soon reach the minimum exporting price.

Narcissi, on the average, are not as plentiful as in previous years. Good stock of Von Sion is obtainable only from a few growers. Empress, Emperor, Sir Watkin and Ornatus are in better condition; Golden Spur and Victoria are plentiful; still there is good demand for the last six of these varieties and prices pretty stiff. Cash terms for toproots.

Blue hyacinths are more plentiful than the white, but the pink are likely Bulbs in a general way are looking strong and healthy, and if weather conditions are favorable, a good harvest may be expected of better than average quality.

Onion Set Hearing.

At a hearing called by the consolidated classification committee of the United States railroad administration at Chicago, May 27, to consider the question of a ruling to prohibit the shipment of onion sets in sacks in less than carlot movements, an extended account of which appeared in our last week's issue, pages 972-977, F. C. Hansen, traffic manager for Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., who was in attendance, as were representatives of many prominent shippers of Cook county, ably presented to the committee a number of excellent reasons why the bag as a container should not be discontinued, among others the fact that it is in universal use, is economical, easily handled and allows ample access of air to prevent heating.

F. C. HANSEN'S ARGUMENT.

By eliminating the bag as a container, we have the choice of shipping in barrels, boxes, crates or baskets. Why do you consider a bag as being inferior to these containers? If a barrel or a box is considered a good container from the standpoint of permitting ventilation and be accorded a third class rate, then a bag should certainly be so considered.

A box or a barrel, when filled and ready for shipment, is practically air tight, allowing no ventilation for the contents. Onion sets must have some ventilation to carry off the moisture which they are continually throwing off, which is not provided by either one of these containers and are, therefore, undesirable. On the other hand, a bag permits of considerable air to penetrate inside and is far better for the transportation of perishable freight than is a box or a barrel. The objection to the crate is that we would not be able to use it in making re-shipments. Practically all of our customers demand that their shipments come to them in baskets. If we were to ship in crates, therefore, from the growing field, we would have no outlet for the thousands of empty crates that would be on hand after the onion sets had all been taken up. To protect ourselves under the circumstances, we would be obliged to use baskets as containers, to get the maximum use with the minimum expense.

The western classification allows onion sets to be shipped in bulk in carload lots. If it is permissible to ship this commodity in bulk, there certainly can be no reasonable objection to shipping in sacks, in carloads.

When loaded in bulk, no ventilation whatever is provided, except possibly on top of the load, and next to the floor, in case a false floor is used. If loaded in sacks, the sacks may be piled so as to permit of a free circulation of air between and all around the bags.

The average refrigerator car when loaded to the roof will hold a little better than 600 baskets, or about 19,000 lbs. This is 6,000 lbs. less than the present classification minimum. If the proposed change is made, it will be necessary to reduce the minimum to 19,000 lbs. It is not to be expected that a minimum weight which is in excess of the capacity of the largest refrigerator car made would be published.

In reducing the minimum to allow for the changed conditions, you would also be reducing the earnings of the carriers, and injuring the shipper at the same time. I believe that it is against the policy of the railroad administration to make any reductions at the present time. Nevertheless, if the reduction in minimum were not volunteered, we would be forced to file a complaint with the interstate commerce commission. To secure the reduction, there is no question but that the petition for a change would be granted. This change would necessitate the use of a greater number of cars, fully 40 to 50 per cent more, to handle the same volume of tonnage that is handled at the present time under the 24,000-lb. minimum.

Onion sets in sacks may be loaded 24,000 to 30,000 lbs. with safety, while, as stated, the maximum weight of onion sets in baskets would be approximately 19,000 lbs.

Shipping in crates, barrels, boxes or baskets from growing fields in carloads would mean an enormous and useless expense. We would be obliged to either build the boxes or crates on the grounds or ship them to the growing fields and store them in warehouses, to be erected or rented. This additional expense would, of course, be added to the price of the onion sets.

Any damage to onion sets in transit is invariably due to the perishable nature of the sets themselves, to heating, account of delay and long time on the road, and not to the fact that they were packed in any certain kind of containers. Onion sets in any kind of a container, regardless of its suitability for perishable freight, would deteriorate if subjected to prolonged delays in transit. The way to avoid damage to onion sets is not by eliminating the most desirable container, but by giving prompt service, and refusing to allow carload shipments to be re-assigned to distant points, after having been in transit for several days.

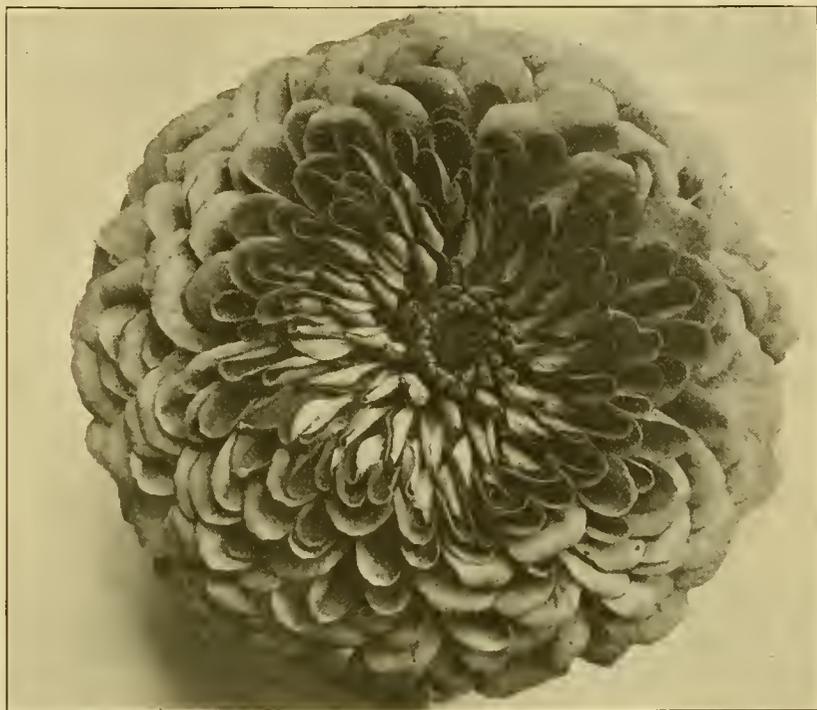

In the fall of 1918 we took in 65 cars of onion sets, all told. Every car, with one exception, was in excellent condition and the sets were all shipped in bags. The bags are small sugar bags and hold two bushels of sets, weighing from 65 to 70 pounds when packed. The material is durable and yet has open mesh, allowing the air to penetrate inside. These bags when properly loaded and piled allow air to circulate freely through the car.

The car that was not in good shape came in nested. The original load had been transferred into a refrigerator car and all the ventilators closed, allowing no circulation of air. The sets were steaming when the car door was opened. This condition would have been just as bad if the sets had been in baskets, crates, boxes or barrels. The car was transferred by the carriers, and they were responsible for the condition of the sets when they arrived at destination. The condition was not due to the fact that the onion sets were in bags, but due to negligence on the part of the carrier.

We have discovered that the ideal way to ship onion sets in the late summer or early fall is to load them in stock cars, placing a false floor in the car to permit of free circulation under the load, and free passage of air straight through the car. This provides excellent ventilation and we have found that the sets reach us in a better condition than they were in when shipped. How much good do you suppose an open car of this kind would do the onion sets if they were packed in boxes or barrels, or in bulk?

Artichoke, tubers, beets, large onions and cabbage,—all fully as perishable as onion sets and containing as much moisture, under the classification may be shipped in bags at the third class rate. If these commodities may be shipped in bags, then onion sets should also be permitted to move in bags.

I can think of no argument that would justify the proposed change, and repeat that the bag is universally used as a container for innumerable articles, and while it is not theft proof, it affords good protection for the contents, is a secure container, conveniently handled, and desirable in every way, allows considerable air to penetrate inside, thereby protecting the contents against heating in a properly ventilated car. On the other hand, a box or a barrel, while it may provide secure protection against theft, and may be handled conveniently, does not provide any ventilation whatever for the onion sets. If these two containers are desirable, then the bag is doubly desirable.

Money in Spinach.

Yakima, Wash., May 29.—F. E. De Sellem finished delivering his spinach crop to the cannery yesterday and received a check for $810.47 for the tonnage grown on 4.97 acres. He produced a little better than eight tons to the acre and will now plant the ground in potatoes, getting two crops from the land this year. This is his first experience with spinach, and he thinks he will double the acreage next year.

New York, June 2.—Celery (Florida), per crate, 75 cents to $2.00; cucumbers, 75 cents to $1.00 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $3.50 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 13 to 25 cents; lettuce, per package, 50 cents to $5.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.00 to $2.00.

Drug Garden at College of Pharmacy.

The state college of pharmacy, Brookings, S. D., has established a drug garden in charge of Anton Hogstad, instructor in pharmacy, who is placing under cultivation such plants as sage, rhubarb, foxglove, nightshade, jimson weed, marjoram, dill, fennel, caraway, lavender, spearmint, poke-root, castor oil beans, poison hemlock, tansy, pennyroyal, valerian, and many others. These drug materials will be collected at the proper time and treated for manufacture of pharmaceutical preparations in connection with the course in pharmacy. The drug garden is arranged in beds, and all varieties will be indicated by appropriate signs, giving the name of each plant, country of which it is a native and its medicinal use and action.

Muskmelons in Michigan.

The muskmelon is grown commercially in certain sections in the southern and central portions of Michigan. It is a favorite garden crop in all parts of the state where it can be matured. It is a heat loving plant and does best where the summers are long and warm. By starting the plants in a greenhouse or hotbed and transferring them to the open ground as soon as the weather will permit, muskmelons may be successfully grown where the summers are too short for the fruit to reach maturity when the seeds are planted in the open ground. The fruit will be of better quality when the rainfall is light than when it is excessive during the period of later growth and maturity of the melons, although a uniform supply of soil moisture is essential for best results.

The muskmelon may be grown on a variety of soils. As a commercial crop it is usually raised on loamy soils. A warm sandy loam, because of the ease of working and earliness of maturity of the melons, is especially well suited to this crop. Practically any soil which can be used for gardening may be put in condition to produce melons. The location should, however, be free from danger of late spring and early summer frosts. The essential soil requirements are thorough drainage, an abundant supply of readily available plant food, and a mechanical condition which is like that of a virgin soil. It is fully as necessary that the soil be mellow and well supplied with organic matter, as it is that a good supply of plant food be available.

If a rotation of crops is possible it will be advantageous to plan a system in which melons follow clover. Such a system helps add fertility, improves the mechanical condition of the soil and lessens the danger from melon diseases. Even if a crop rotation is not practicable, as is usually the case on truck areas, the growing of clover or other legumes as a cover crop will help to keep the soil in good condition for other crops as well as for melons. A rotation of crops on a truck farm should be followed which will avoid the necessity of growing melons after melons. On small garden areas the hills of melons should be changed from one place to another each season.

Careful consideration must be given to the selection of varieties whether grown for home use or for market. If the crop is grown commercially the market requirements must be known. For a local market in the southern part of the state the large fruiting sorts such as Osage (Miller's Cream) and Tip Top will usually be satisfactory. They are of superior quality but are not as suitable for long distance shipments as are some of the smaller varieties. In selecting varieties for the home garden, quality comes first. The early maturing varieties must be selected for the cooler parts of the state.

Emerald Gem is a high quality extra early variety with fruits of medium size, nearly round and heavily ribbed, the flesh very thick and salmon in color, with small seed cavity and thin rind, and while too soft to ship well, because of its earliness and good quality, is well suited to the home garden; Extra Early Hackensack, a light green melon of good quality, is adapted to the home garden and suitable to ship, its chief merit being early maturity; Paul Rose or Petoskey, a cross between Osage and Netted Gem, of larger size than Rocky Ford with deep orange flesh is well adapted to shipping in baskets or crates; Rocky Ford, the variety that made Colorado famous as a melon growing state, is flesh green and when grown from pure seed and under good conditions, is of fine flavor, very uniform in size and especially well suited to the shipping trade; Hoodoo, or "Hearts-of-Gold," listed under the former name in several seed catalogues, and grown on a large scale near Benton Harbor, Mich., by the originator, R. Morrell, under the latter name, is an accidental cross between Osage and Netted Gem, with vines vigorous and productive, fruit very uniform in size and nearly round, netting very dense and fine, extending over the entire surface, rind firm but thin, flesh thick, salmon in color, of fine texture and superior flavor and is an excellent shipper; Osage or Miller's Cream, a popular green skin, salmon flesh variety of excellent quality, a favorite with consumers when they learn to know its superior merit, although sometimes inclined to crack when the soil moisture is variable, is well suited to the home market and garden; Tip Top, a large sized salmon flesh melon of excellent quality, requires a long season for its development.

Bulletin No. 95 of the Michigan experiment station, East Lansing, contains much other interesting information regarding muskmelon culture in that state. Other bulletins recently issued by the station are as follows: No. 37, Raspberry Culture; No. 38, The Culture of Currants and Gooseberries, and No. 94, The Financial History of a Twelve-Year-Old Peach Orchard.

Vegetable Markets.

The general trend of produce markets continued somewhat irregular with the movement fairly steady during the period May 28-June 3, according to reports received by the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture. In old potatoes there were further general declines. Much poor stock was included in the receipts. No. 1 northern white stock, sacked, closed about 10 cents lower at $2-$2.25 per 100 pounds in the Chicago carlot market. Minneapolis reported similar declines to $2-$2.10. Colorado No. 1 white stock was draggy at $1.90. In new potatoes, South Carolina cobblers averaged 75 cents higher in consuming markets, reaching $9.25-$9.75 per barrel in leading cities and $9 f. o. b. producing sections. Florida Spaulding Rose made similar gains with a general jobbing range of $9-$11 per barrel. Onion markets were fairly steady. Texas Yellow Bermudas again averaged 25 cents lower in consuming markets at $3.75-$4.75 per crate. Fancy California Bermudas weakened slightly, ranging $3.50-$3.75 per crate f. o. b. Louisiana Creoles brought $6.50-$7 per 100 pounds in middle-western markets. Cabbage values were irregular. Virginia Wakefields recovered somewhat from the declines of the preceding week, ranging $3.25-$4.25 per barrel crate in consuming markets. Alabama stock weakened to a range of $3.25-$3.50, and went as low as $1.50 in St. Louis. Mississippi Wakefields were very weak in producing sections. Texas stock continued irregular and went as low as $25 per ton in St. Louis. California Winningstadts closed at $30-$35 per ton at shipping points. Fancy Florida tomatoes ranged 25 cents lower at shipping points at $3.25-$3.50 per 6-basket carrier. Mayflowers were offered at $2.25-$3.50 in northern markets.

BUSINESS GENERALLY SATISFACTORY.

About the last large flower holiday of this season, namely Memorial day, is again figured in past events, and it proved to be more of a plant than cut flower affair, which, of course, is only natural. During the week preceding, and including May 30, the weather turned unusually hot, thus softening most of the indoor crops that it was not advisable to use much for long distance shipment. It also increased the cut rapidly and exceeded the calculations of the growers. More orders could have been filled had one known on time about how much stock would have been available. To make a long story short, there was plenty of everything in cut flowers to go around with business fine. As we have had no rain to speak of, of late, there was an abundance of outdoor stock of good quality, which naturally reduced the demand for the greenhouse product. The bedding season is in full swing at this time, June 3, and the predicted shortage of stock, with the exception of geraniums in flower, did not materialize. The demand for spring stock is brisk, even at the advanced prices.

NOTES.

Mrs. Chas. Menger, 538 27th street, mourns the loss of her mother, who died May 29, at the ripe age of 77 years. The beautiful and many floral offerings were evidence of the many friends who extend their sincere sympathy to the remaining members of the family.

Leon B. Thorpe, who as foreman, has been with the Greenwood Carnation Co. since its inception, resigned a short time ago to go into business for himself at Binghamton, N. Y. He is a practical grower of broad experience, and has our best wishes for a bright future.

Local friends of Adam Zender, of Rogers Park, Ill., extend their heartfelt sympathy to the Zender family in the loss of their oldest son and brother, whose accidental death occurred June 1, according to word received Monday.

Three of the florists' craft, all members of the florists' club, are serving on the Milwaukee civic commission, appointed by Mayor Hoan some time ago. They are: James Currie, C. B. Whitnall and Herm. V. Hunkel.

MEMORIAL DAY CUT FLOWER SALES LIGHT.

Memorial day business was, as a rule, very brisk, with the entire week a very good one. Wreaths and plants for grave decoration sold better than cut flowers. The latter were unusually high in price. Carnations were plentiful and of good quality, but retail prices ranged from $1.50 to $2.50. There was not a great call for roses. Tulips, lilac, outdoor lily of the valley and Narcissus poeticus sold well. Darwin tulips are now of excellent quality and bring good returns. Peonies have begun to arrive in small quantities and there is an ample supply of lilac, daisies and pansies.

NOTES.

Miss Myrtle Bradstreet, a popular young lady, for several years with the Rochester Floral Co., was married May 31, to Cyril B. Imberry. The trade extends congratulations.

The park board sent a handsome basket of American Beauty roses and lilac for the funeral of the late A. E. Lambertson.

John Murrell has begun to cut from his carnation plants outside, which is unusually early.

Harry Merritt reports an unusually heavy Memorial day business.

Announcement

We beg to announce to our friends and patrons that we have removed from 1004 Lincoln Bldg., Philadelphia, to

50 Park Place, New York City

where we will be located in the future

This important change in our business has been necessitated by conditions which we could no longer ignore.

Our increased importations of foreign stock, such as Japanese, French and Holland bulbs, etc., impel us to be at the port of entry. Other reasons, more or less of a private nature, likewise served to bring about this change.

We take the opportunity at this time to announce that our representative, Mr. E. F. Hoehl, has secured an interest in our business, and will continue traveling as heretofore.

We thank you for all past favors, and confidently believe that with improved facilities we shall be enabled to serve you more promptly and efficiently than ever before.

Nursery Stock Names Under Fire.

In addition to the communications printed in last week's issue, pages 980-981, in protest against Congressman Louis C. Cramton's bill, (H.R.392), providing for the naming and labelling of nursery stock and other plants under penalty of imprisonment and fine, to which THE AMERICAN FLORIST called the attention of the trade in its issue of May 24, page 982, the following expressions from prominent firms and individuals are generally in accord that the proposed legislation, by its unfairness and impracticability, would be a serious menace to the industry.

Congressman Cramton says his interest in this matter was first aroused by the complaints of many farmers in his district, who have suffered very serious losses by reason of nursery stock, particularly fruit trees, when they come to bearing, proving to be of an inferior or different variety than what they ordered.

Congressman Cramton represents the Seventh District, Michigan.

FROM STORRS & HARRISON CO.

"We suppose there is no possible way to stop the introducing of such bills in state and national legislation every little while, by parties who know nothing whatever about the nursery business, and take no pains to find out.

"The requirement of a label, stating the name of the grower and place where grown, is practically impossible. Every wholesale nurseryman, and practically every retail nurseryman, buys stock from different parties, and some of it passes through three or four hands before it is finally delivered to the planter. To keep a card record and a label that told the truth about every tree, shrub and plant that was shipped, where it was grown, and who did grow it, would be utterly impossible in the rush of the busy season.

"We certainly have no suggestion for the punishment of parties who deliberately mislabel a tree for purpose of fraud, and we do not believe there is a responsible nurseryman in the country who would do such a thing. Mistakes will sometimes occur in any nursery, trees will be mislabeled, and some stock sent out, probably, mislabeled. In most instances, it is utterly impossible to tell this until they come into bearing. Any irresponsible workman in a budding field, or in a packing house, could do considerable mislabeling and it would be impossible for the nurseryman to detect it.

"Where nursery stock is sold at fair prices, and proper precaution is taken by the sellers to protect their stock in every way, there is no reason why the orchardists should not, on a square deal, take their chances on a guarantee of replacement or refund of money, in case errors should be made. If they want insurance on their stock to be true to name, they should be willing to pay enough extra to cover.

"The facts are, that if such legislation went on the books, and was enforced, it would place the sales of fruit trees, etc., in the hands of irresponsible parties, whose guarantee would be no good, and financial responsibility null, and would drive out the men who tried to be honest, and who were responsible for their contracts."

W. T. WOOD & CO., RICHMOND, VA.

"This measure, if enacted into law, would prove a great hardship on nurserymen generally, although no concern would object to attaching tags to trees, shrubbery, etc., sent out by them, stating the true, accepted and correct name of variety, the concern shipping stock, and place where it was grown, if such stock is grown by the concern shipping the same.

say, by practically very nurseryman in the country, there being practically no nurseryman growing every item he sells. We have to buy pecans, figs, some varieties of grapes, and often apples, peaches, etc., from other concerns, varieties that we sell out of, or do not grow. To be forced by legislative enactment to label stock we buy with the name of the concern from whom we buy, and the place where such stock was grown, would work a hardship and cause loss of trade. This applies to every nurseryman who has to purchase short items from another.

"We label all trees, and guarantee the varieties true to label. This is done by all nurserymen. But to label a tree which we might secure from another nurseryman, with a tag showing the name of concern from whom we purchased, his address, etc., would be bad business, indeed, and would mean the practical elimination of some of our best nurserymen. The purchaser of such stock would immediately infer, after seeing such labels, that the nurseryman from whom he purchased his stock was simply a middleman or dealer, and was not a grower to any extent, and in future, when wanting stock, he would write for quotations and place his orders with the concern who grew such varieties as were shown by name on label, thus causing a loss of business to the original nursery of whom he purchased.

"In our mail today we received several letters from reliable nurserymen wishing to purchase apple, peach, pear, cherry, etc. These concerns are absolutely responsible, but are short on trees, owing to various causes, and when they secure their shorts, you will readily understand that their business would be very much injured, if upon delivery of stock, their patrons observed labels on trees showing that they purchased the stock of other concerns.

"There were, quite a number of years back, some unscrupulous dealers in the business who bought stock and labeled the same to suit varieties sold. This, however, is a thing of the past, these fellows having run their course. We are sure that all nurserymen endeavor by every means possible to have their varieties true to label, and when they have to buy stock to fill shorts, they buy of reliable concerns, and if errors in labeling are made, they are not intentional.

"The measure, as introduced by Congressman Cramton, we do not consider a wise one, but one which would cause much hardship on a class of tradesmen who have done as much, if not more, to develop an industry and received less, financially, than any other industry we know."

SHERMAN NURSERY CO., CHARLES CITY, IA.

"We consider the measure referred to in your issue of May 24, as thoroughly objectionable from the fact that it would be next to impossible for a nurseryman to prove himself innocent, should action be brought against him, years after the goods were delivered.

"This measure is in accord with the action of a certain coterie of entomologists, who have been using other means for years past to put an end to the inter-state commerce in nursery stock. They have succeeded in hampering matters by state laws and by quarantine regulations from the department of agriculture, and we presume that this is just one step farther in this direction.

"There is no need for any such legislation as this, as the laws with regard to fraud in most every state are sufficient to cover anything of this kind."

WESTMINSTER NURS., WESTMINSTER, MD.

"If this drastic measure, as introduced by Congressman Cramton, should become a law, it would cause great hardship to the nursery trade, as no matter how careful one may be in growing and handling the many varieties of stock of similar appearance, mistakes will happen, due to labor, and especially in times like the present, when many, disinterested in their work, could very easily, and unknown to the proprietor, mislabel trees and shrubs, and this under the proposed bill would render the dealer liable to indictment and a fine of $200 and imprisonment.

"Nearly all responsible nurserymen try to have their stocks true to name, yet as stated above mistakes may occur, and we do not believe there is a person alive who is 'mistake-proof.' We trust the measure will not become a law. If it does, it will seriously affect the nurserymen as less business will be done and at higher prices."

KNOX NURSERIES, VINCENNES, IND.

"Regarding the bill introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman Cramton, which puts a penalty on everyone engaged in the selling of nursery stock, we are certainly against such a bill, and shall be glad to aid in any way we can to prevent its passage. We hope that some way can be found that will prevent this bill from ever getting out of the committee. We have written our congressman."

AURORA NURSERY CO., AURORA, ILL.

"Concerning a bill introduced into the House of Representatives by Congressman Cramton, of Michigan, as per your issue of May 24, I do not believe that the bill in its present form will get very far. There is no reason why there should not be a penalty for shipping stock which is untrue to label. There has been altogether too much wrong committed, and it is now time that nurserymen generally should see to it that the business of growing and selling nursery stock should rise to a very high level. I do not think, however, that we have very much need to worry over the passage of such a law, and it ought to be called strongly to the attention of the Legislative Committees of the American Association of Nurserymen and the Society of American Florists."

VAN LINDLEY NURSERY CO., POMONA, N. C.

"In regard to the bill introduced by Congressman Cramton of Michigan, will state that if you will give us further information in regard to this, we will write our congressman and senators, asking them to use their influence to kill the bill. Of course, nurserymen cannot operate under such legislation as this. It is entirely unreasonable. Even if a mistake was made, we could be held just as responsible as some fellow who deliberately acted in an unfair way."

PRINCETON NURSERIES, PRINCETON, N. J.

"We consider the proposed bill of Congressman Cramton of Michigan absolutely impractical and impossible to enforce. A law such as this would practically prohibit interstate commerce in nursery stock. If there is any way in which we can help in having justice done to the nursery trade, we would be only too glad to do so."

The Boiler of Unequalled Fuel Economy

Kroeschell Boilers, the best by test since 1879. Forty years' experience.

THE QUALITY PLACE OF BOSTON

Regarding the Kroeschell, it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerably already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration.

(Signed) WM. W. EDGAR CO.,
WAVERLEY, MASS.

When You Buy—Get a Kroeschell

3,016,286 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with Kroeschell Boilers during the year of 1916.

OHIO'S CELEBRATED CYCLAMEN SPECIALIST

After using your No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler I came to the conclusion that had I to install more boilers it would be the Kroeschell and no other. It really is a pleasure to heat, no trouble to get the desired heat in a very short time.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Summer Meeting at Washington, D. C., and Chestnut Hill, Pa.

National Rose Test Garden Inspection.

The chief points of interest at the annual opening and inspection of the national rose test garden at Arlington Farm, Washington, D. C., at the time of the visit of members of the American Rose Society, June 3, an account of which appeared in our issue of June 7, page 996, were the ramblers most of which were fairly blanketed with blooms. American Pillar was just coming into its full flower. Bess Lovett, Mary Lovett and Alida Lovett were wonderful, as was Silver Moon, all raised by Dr. Van Fleet, while the arbor in the center of the garden was covered with a mass of flowers of the splendid near-white rose which bears his name. It also was beautiful, grown as a pillar rose along the western walk. Paul's Carnine Pillar is a wonderful, dazzling scarlet. When older the plant will make a great showing. The baby ramblers were mostly past their best but had been a gorgeous sight. The rugosas and briars were in full flower and very interesting. Tausendschon was showy, and there were a number of others which were equally as profuse in flower.

THE LUNCHEON.

When rosarians who have the love of roses in their hearts as did those who enjoyed the luncheon at the Ebbitt House get together, there is a feast indeed. President Hammond, to the regret of everyone, was unable to be present. Dr. E. M. Mills was asked to officiate as toastmaster and proved himself to be a past master in this art. Z. D. Blakistone, president of the florists' club, welcomed the visitors in a great speech. Secretary E. A. White read a telegram of greetings from John H. Dunlop, of Toronto, Canada, and lauded and praised the great work of J. Horace McFarland in the last Rose Annual, which was one of the most valuable features of the American Rose Society. The membership, he said, was growing rapidly, there being now 1350 active members with 60 life and eight honorary. It is his hope in the near future to publish a treatise giving detailed information on varieties and culture that would be available for all rose growers. A list of all known varieties is contemplated.

Prof. Corbett was loud in his praises of the work of Dr. Van Fleet, and his progress in the newer crosses, which gave great promise. The cold storage plant, adjoining the garden, he thought would develop new methods in keeping cut roses. He said the new show or decorative rose garden in Washington, would, he hoped, soon be under way.

E. G. Hill was introduced as a great American rosarian, and Dr. Mills, by right and authority of his office, conferred on him the title, "Our Brother of the Roses." Mr. Hill said he saw a great future for the rose in the light of what such hybridizers as John Cook, whom at his age was remarkable, and Dr. Van Fleet were doing, the latter's work that he had just seen at Bell's Station, showing great strides which would revolutionize rose growing. Some of his seedlings showed great vigor with wonderful colors.

Thos. N. Cook, Watertown, Mass., represented the amateurs. He stated that a show garden, such as was contemplated in Washington, was also being planned for the Arnold Arboretum.

In addition to those in attendance mentioned in last week's report, were Ernest, Edwin and Edgar Gude, Otto Bauer, George E. Anderson, Peter Bissett, Dr. E. F. Gersdorf, J. Bidwell, F. L. Mulford, Dr. N. Shoemaker, George C. Shaffer, members of the Florists' Club of Washington, and officers of the department, whose many attentions were greatly appreciated by the visitors.

Visit to Capt. Thomas' Garden.

Upon invitation of Captain George C. Thomas, Jr., Chestnut Hill, Pa., members of the American Rose Society inspected his notable rose garden and enjoyed a most interesting programme, June 4, following the visit to the national test garden at Arlington Farm, Washington, D. C., an account of which was given in our issue of last week, page 996.

At the luncheon given in honor of the officers and executive committee of the society, Captain Thomas regretfully declined the honor of the presidency to which he had been elected, as he felt he would not be able to give the necessary time, and that he could be more useful to the organization along other lines. Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa., was then elected to the presidency, Dr. E. M. Mills, Syracuse, N. Y., after reviewing the great work in the interest of the society by Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y., as its secretary for 12 years and as its president for two years, presented him on behalf of the society with a de luxe bound volume of "Outdoor Rose Culture," by Capt. Thomas, a very handsome book, which Mr. Hammond received with words of thanks and appreciation. Captain Thomas then christened the new seedling red climber, the pride of his garden, which he named in honor of the eminent rosarian of Philadelphia, Pa., Dr. Robert Huey. This is truly a wonderful rose, a rich red slightly darker than Grus an Tep-litz. It is semi-double, with three rows of petals and is three inches in diameter with a large fluffy bunch of stamens in the center. It is a very strong grower and a wonderfully profuse though annual bloomer. When disseminated, it will surely be a catalogue headliner.

There could not have been a better date selected to see the garden at its best, particularly for the hybrid teas, which were splendidly in flower. In their narrow beds of two plants across, with grass walks between, there is every opportunity for inspection. All varieties are conspicuously labeled with metal tags attached to wire supports. All the new varieties, as introduced, are given a place. Golden Emblem was at its best. Los Angeles, Leon Rain, Duchess of Wellington and Harry Kirk, were in blocks of from six to a dozen, full of buds and flowers. The plateau below the office is divided in the center with a wide grass avenue, from which the beds extend at right angles. On the edges of the lawn, the fences carry all the noted varieties of ramblers, while in adjoining borders are planted one or more of all known rose species from all parts of the world.

In front of the office, next to the greenhouses, are a number of beds, each filled with selected seedling varieties thought good enough to be tried out. Alongside the greenhouses are five beds, 100 feet in length, all of which are planted with selected seedlings, all with characteristics which it is desirable to perpetuate. Quite a number in this collection are good enough to grace any garden and would have wonderful catalogue descriptions if owned commercially. A pink seedling in this collection might be called a glorified Little Sweetheart, it having buds much the same in shape, brighter in color, and twice the size. It is always covered with buds and blossoms and is Capt. Thomas' favorite, being considered one of his best. A seedling white, at the corner of his office, might be described as an everflowering Cherokee, although it has no Cherokee blood in it. Dr. Huey declares it to be most valuable, as it is so continuously in bloom. Its flowers are single, three and a half inches in diameter, with a large bunch of yellow stamens in the center.

An auditorium had been arranged for a meeting under the trees, presided over by ex-President Hammond, who, after a short address, in which he spoke very optimistically of the society's future praised the great work of their host and his beautiful garden and his energy in producing new varieties. He thanked him on behalf of the society for his kind invitation and reception. Captain Thomas, in response, expressed his satisfaction of seeing so many present and hoped they would make themselves at home.

J. Horace McFarland was introduced as the man who, through the magnificent issues of the Rose Annual, had spread the fame of the society all around the world. Mr. McFarland made a fine address, referring to the great progress made in the raising of American seedlings in the past few years, said that only four years ago he had made an inventory of cultivated roses of American origin, and found only 28, as against 588 imported varieties. He said E. G. Hill and Dr. Van Fleet had made valuable contributions in new roses. The American people were the product of many crosses, and the purely American rose would be worked up in the same way. Mr. Hammond's ideal was a "bush for every garden," and Dr. Van Fleet was working along the lines of making the rose a shrub that would be hardy anywhere and bloom the entire summer. Captain Thomas, he said, held high ideals and had already produced hardy varieties that are perpetual bloomers. This had not seemed possible a few years ago. But a short time ago, there were only two varieties of ramblers, the old Crimson and Dorothy Perkins. The Crimson rambler had been succeeded by Excelsa and American Pillar, and there were now dozens of new roses of this type of American origin that would soon be grown universally. He referred to the beautiful public rose gardens of Hartford, Conn., with 30,000 visitors on "Rose Sunday"; also to Minneapolis and other centers. A public rose garden, kept up at the public expense, would be the greatest asset of any city or community, and he hoped the day was not far distant when such ornamental gardens would be considered a necessity. Pleasant environs were conducive to good health, as children had actually added to their stature because of such surroundings. He said that America was very far behind England in rose growing, likening American cultivation to a square yard as compared to a square mile in England. What was wanted was to get the love of roses in our hearts, and then we would progress rapidly. E. G. Hill said he had seen in this garden on this occasion what he felt was coming, but had not thought he would live to see it. He had met Captain Thomas for the first time, and now, after a talk with him, had an insight into his soul and he knew from his efforts, a new era was coming. He coupled Captain Thomas with Dr. Van Fleet, as two of our greatest rosarians. It was the duty, he said, of every member to spread the love for roses. He spoke of the great waste in spending $33,000,000 to build the Battleship Indiana, now under construction, which had a life of only nine to 10 years. Wars were now, he hoped, a thing of the past, and rose gardens would soon mark the dawn of a new civilization.

Robt. Pyle spoke of the great advantage of ornamental or landscape effects in rose gardens, and of the great advance in the last 10 years in the raising of hardy outdoor varieties. Examples like that seen here would do wonders to increase the love for roses, so that millions more would be planted and redound to the glory of our splendid American nation. Mr.

RAMBLERS IN THE ARLINGTON ROSE GARDEN.

Hammond closed with a strong appeal for new members.

In attendance in addition to local rosarians, there were nearly all who had attended the opening of the test gardens in Washington. There was also a delegation from New York and vicinity, Leonard Barron, A. L. Miller, Brooklyn, John H. Fiesser, North Bergen, and Oscar Boehler, West Hoboken. K.

Secretary White's Report.

June 2-4, 1919, were "red letter" days in the annals of the American Rose Society. On Monday, June 2, the members of the executive committee, with friends, met Dr. W. Van Fleet in his test gardens at Bell, Maryland. The afternoon was spent looking over the recently-introduced novelties and the seedlings which Dr. Van Fleet has under his supervision. The exhibit was indeed an interesting one. Among the recently-introduced species were setipoda, with large clusters of showy pink flowers about two inches across; blanda, variety Willmottiae, with bright coral pink flowers; gentiliana, a hardy climbing species with medium sized white flowers, resembling Banksiae; rosabella, a light pink bush form with moss calyx; multiflora cathayensis with pink flowers about one and one-half inches across in large flat corymbs. Dr. Van Fleet showed the party many attractive seedlings which were under number. One of these was a cross between Double Rugosa and Triomphe de Orleans, a continuous bloomer with lacinate petals; Engelmannii crossed with Moyesii, an early-flowering variety with rich red flowers nearly three inches across; several Hugonis and altaica seedlings of promise, crosses between Wichuraiana and hybrid teas, among which was a promising seedling with Lyon as the pollen parent, and another cross between Wichuraiana and Irish Fireflame, No. W. M. 213, a clear pink containing blood of Caroline Testout crossed with Wichuraiana, was especially good as was also No. W. M. 5, a rich single dark red, the parentage of which was Wichuraiana crossed with Moyesii.

In the evening the executive committee and the Arlington rose test garden committee held a session at the Ebbit house. Plans for the following day were perfected, and consideration was also given to increasing the efficiency of the rose garden. The opinion was expressed that there should be established in Washington an exhibition rose garden where there should be a display of those varieties best suited for the section. The rose test garden is fulfilling its purpose by a demonstration of what varieties will do in the particular soil and climate, but from the nature of its purpose, it can never be made to appeal to the eye because of its beauty. Individual plants of a variety will do this, but there must be vacant spaces where varieties die out. A committee, composed of J. Horace McFarland, Frederick Law Olmsted, Representative James R. Mann and S. S. Pennock, was appointed to confer with the proper officials of the United States department of agriculture in formulating plans, and in locating such an exhibition garden. A committee was also appointed to consider the best methods for disseminating the varieties of roses bred by Dr. Van Fleet.

At 9:30 a. m., June 3, the following judges visited the Arlington rose test garden to note the comparative value of varieties of climbers, bush and cut roses: A. Cumming, Cromwell, Conn.; E. H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa.; G. S. Kidwell, Washington, D. C.; Dr. E. M. Mills, Syracuse, N. Y.; S. C. Hubbard, Ithaca, N. Y., and George E. Anderson and Charles E. Gersdorff, Washington, D. C. At 11 o'clock, a large number of members of the American Rose Society visited the garden and spent the remainder of the morning noting the numerous varieties. A committee from the executive committee and from the Arlington rose test garden committee remained to welcome and to explain the work to 75 soldiers from the reconstructive department of the Walter Reed general hospital who visited the garden in the afternoon. Professor David Lumsden, who supervises the work of the section devoted to agricultural training, was in charge of the party. The other members of the party returned to the Ebbit house for luncheon. In the absence of President Hammond, Dr. E. M. Mills presided as toastmaster. President Z. D. Blackstone, of the Washington Florists' Club, cordially welcomed the members of the society to the capital, and Secretary E. A. White responded by expressing the appreciation of the members for the many courtesies extended to them. Professor L. C. Corbett told of the work which is being done in the garden and of the need of a show garden. He was followed by E. G. Hill of Richmond, Ind., who spoke of the introduction of roses suited for commercial culture, and Thomas N. Cook of Watertown, Mass., spoke of rose culture from the viewpoint of an amateur.

Following the luncheon, automobiles carried the party through the beautiful Rock Creek park to the home of Mrs. Charles G. Bell. Here the visitors spent a delightful afternoon among the roses, herbaceous perennials and the many natural beauties of "Twin Oaks."

At 9:30, June 4, the executive committee of the American Rose Society met at the beautiful estate of Captain George C. Thomas, Jr., at Chestnut Hill, Pa. The morning was spent with a session of the executive committee. At the annual meeting of the society, Captain Thomas was elected president, but he found it impossible to serve during the coming year. Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa., was therefore elected to serve as president for the year beginning July 1, 1919. Important changes in the constitution and by-laws were considered.

Captain and Mrs. Thomas entertained the officers, executive committee and friends with a delightful luncheon. After the coffee, Dr. E. M. Mills, in his wonderfully pleasing manner, presented the retiring president, Benjamin Hammond, with a beautiful leather-bound copy of Captain Thomas's "Outdoor Rose Culture" as a token of appreciation from the officers and executive committee for his 14 years of valuable service to the society, 12 years as secretary, and two years as president. Mr. Hammond responded, expressing the pleasure which the token of esteem gave him, and spoke of how highly he should value the book because of the associations it would recall to him, and the fact that it was presented to him in the beautiful rose garden of the author. Following the presentation, Captain Thomas christened his seedling No. 720, a beautiful rich red, single climber, "Dr. Huey," in honor of Dr. Robert Huey, because of the fact that it was through Dr. Huey that he first became interested in roses and rose breeding.

By 2 o'clock about 150 rose lovers had gathered in the garden. The heat was intense, but it was with difficulty that the guests were lured from the living beauties to the shade of the trees, where President Hammond introduced Captain Thomas, who spoke a few words of welcome. He expressed the pleasure it gave him to share his roses with others, and he hoped the guests would make the garden theirs for the afternoon. J. Horace McFarland discussed "American Roses," emphasizing the value of the work Dr. Van Fleet and Captain Thomas are doing in introducing types of roses suited for all American conditions. He was followed by the "Silver-tongued orator from Indiana," the rosarian who is universally known and loved, E. G. Hill. He also paid a tribute to Dr. Van Fleet's, Captain Thomas's and John Cook's work in rose breeding, stating that the infusion of the hardy "blood" of the rugosas and Wichurianas with the teas and hybrid teas was sure to develop new varieties suited for outdoor growing in the middle-west. Robert Pyle, the newly elected president, closed the somewhat formal programme of the afternoon, emphasizing the value of the work the society is doing in reaching a large number of rose lovers, and in carrying to them information which is of value in rose growing. The remainder of the afternoon was spent among the roses. Among the seedlings, a single white was accurately described by Captain Thomas as a "hardy bush Cherokee." The flowers were pure white and nearly four inches across. 46-A was a very promising single white climber. 51-A, a single vermilion, 96-C of the shade of Crimson Champion, 36-M a pink free-flowered variety with long pointed buds in large clusters, and 89-A a single pink climber. In the garden of standard varieties, McLaine Nedieck, a salmon yellow with long-pointed buds, was exquisite. Other beautiful varieties were Constance, an intense canary yellow; Frau Bertha Kiese, a pink on yellow ground, and Donald McDonald, an intense orange carnation.

The American Rose Society is deeply indebted to Captain Thomas for his cordial hospitality and the day in his garden will be long remembered by the members of the society whose privilege it was to accept the invitation.

Rose Scoring at National Test Garden.

The judges at the national rose test garden, Arlington Farm., Washington, D. C., scored the roses there that appeared best June 3. The following were at the head of the respective lists with the number of points scored:

Tea and hybrid tea—Red Radiance, 97; Mme. Jules Grolez, 96; Ophelia, 95; Radiance, 95; Isabella Sprunt, 94; Mrs. Wakefield, Christie Miller, 93; Lady Ursula, 91; Lucien Chaire, 91; Hadley, 90; Mary, Countess of Ilchester, 90; Mme. Camille, 90; Prince de Bulgarie, 90; Cook 512, 90.

PLANT NOTES.

Cleaning Up.

The bedding season is over, the year's work is practically finished, the young stock for another year in preparation, and now is the time to clean house. Do not leave a lot of worthless stock scattered around the houses that takes a man's time to water, but what it is desired to save hock up all together where it can be watered in a short time, and, above all things, throw out anything that has passed its usefulness. How often have we seen plants that would never have been of any value left standing in the greenhouses until fall planting; neglected, yet taking more or less room, to be thrown out at last, and the houses never thoroughly made ready for the coming crop. Get the plants that need care and attention all together, and clean up the other houses. If the stock is grown in benches, these will need repairing, and if badly decayed take them down and rebuild. Those who have cement benches are fortunate, for they will only need repairs. Throw out all the old soil and clean up under the benches and in all the corners, and throw out any old, rotting boards or pieces of crocks, and thus get rid of the vermin that invariably infest greenhouses. After the benches are cleaned out, give them a good, thick coat of whitewash in which sulphur was mixed while the lime was slacking. The advantage of this is too little appreciated by many growers. It costs but little and the prevention from fungus will often amount to a great deal. After the whitewash has dried throw a few ashes or a mulch of some kind, on the benches to protect them from the hot rays of the sun. Give the inside of the house a good coat of white paint; this should be done at least every other year, for the difference in the amount of light in a clean white house and in a dirty one during the dark short days is material, and the increased quality and quantity of stock will more than repay for the expense and labor. Any repairs that the heating system needs should be made at once and the boilers cleaned up ready for fall. Too often the boiler is never thoroughly cleaned out after the last firing, and ashes and clinkers are left lying around in a moist condition, rusting the boilers. The steam boilers should either be emptied or filled, for if the water is left standing rust will form inside just above the water line and rapidly eat into the iron. These are all necessary details to be looked after at the earliest possible moment.

Canterbury Bells.

There is always a demand in the spring for something different than the flowers which the buyers have seen all through the winter, and many growers have a call for some of the forced perennials. Canterbury bells are grown for this purpose, and if well grown find a ready sale. Seeds sown now and grown on in pots, being shifted into larger sizes as may be required, will bloom next spring and help furnish the grower with a variety of stock. They should be grown cool during the early winter, a violet house or one of a similar temperature being about right, and then brought into a warmer house with a temperature of 50° degrees in late winter, where they will produce fine blooms for early spring. By bringing a few at a time into the warmer house, a succession of blooms may be had.

ROSE DR. VAN FLEET.

As a Pillar Subject in the Arlington Rose Garden.

Ardisia Crenulata.

The seeds of ardisia may be sown at any time during spring and, as it will take until another year to grow plants that will fruit, it is not material at which particular time they are sown. The seeds are a little slow in germinating, and it is better to sow them in the manner of sowing cyclamen, about half an inch apart. In early summer they should be potted in 2½-inch pots, and are better grown in a frame than in the greenhouse. In the fall, when brought into the houses, they should again be potted in 3 or 4-inch pots and grown in a temperature of 50°. The plants are of a woody nature and grow slowly, and should not be potted into too large pots, for it is far better to allow the roots to fill the pots before shifting. The following spring they will bloom and should then be potted in 6-inch pots and given a cool location in the houses. After the fruit has formed and grown to good size the plants should be given a good, sunny position, that they may take on a bright color by Christmas. If the plants are grown too warm the foliage will be thin and lack the substance and luster which make them so much admired in the cooler grown plants, and the warmer grown stock gets chilled very easily, when the berries will drop off. The only insect which infests this plant is the brown scale, which, if not destroyed, will cover the plant stem completely. These should be carefully removed and continually guarded against. If there are any old plants that have dropped their lower leaves, the tops of these can be rooted in a similar manner to rooting rubbers, that is, by cutting into the stem and mossing the cut end, after the roots have appeared in the moss, the tops cut off below the moss and potted.

Calceolarias.

A plant that always attracts attention and is as decorative as cineraria or other plants of that kind, and yet but little grown, is the calceolaria. The culture is very similar to that of the cineraria, and is fully as easy. The seeds should be sown at once and shaded until they have produced one or two leaves, when the shade should be made lighter. As soon as large enough they should be potted into small pots and shifted along into larger sizes as fast as required. They should, as soon as well established, be given a light, airy location, not shady enough for them to become drawn, but if in the full sunlight they will have to be watched closely that they do not get dry. They will require cool quarters during the winter, if nice, stocky plants are desired, and under this treatment fine 6-inch pot plants may be had in bloom in early spring that will surely attract attention. For the last potting a good, rich soil will be required, and when they begin to bloom watering with liquid manure will be beneficial. Like the cineraria, they are quickly ruined by aphid, and constant fumigation will be necessary. Many growers stand the plants on tobacco stems, which are renewed as the strength is lost.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The active business season is fast going out; hot weather is a reality, and the vacation time of the year is about to open. House plants are now all out in the yards, and excepting something for porch decoration, there will be little demand for plants until fall.

There is still a good opportunity open until July for the sale of window and porch boxes, particularly in the outlying residence districts. Wm. Scott, years ago, made Buffalo noted for its beautiful window and porch boxes. By his individual efforts and enthusiasm, and elaborate displays of examples of the best he knew how at his own establishment, he built up a wonderful trade in this line. Competition is the life of business, and the beauty of a well planted yard or lawn, or porch made conspicuous with boxes of flowering plants and graceful vines, influences adjoining properties, whose owners soon want theirs to look as good as their neighbors. Each new example adds impetus to the movement, which properly nurtured, will, in any live community, soon become a matter of custom and a considerable source of revenue to the trade. Much of the left over bedding stock can be planted in cheap window boxes, which in a week's time, are full of flowers. These features in flower shops or markets, or on the streets in residence or business centers, would at this time, find ready sale at prices showing very good returns. One must, however, do this in a big way. It might take a week to sell one, but display two dozen, and they may all go off in a day.

There is such a quantity of stock in the market at this time that careful buying must be the rule. Vases of outdoor flowers, such as rambler rose sprays, larkspur, irises, cornflowers, sweet williams, etc., can be displayed decoratively about the store and sold from the vases.

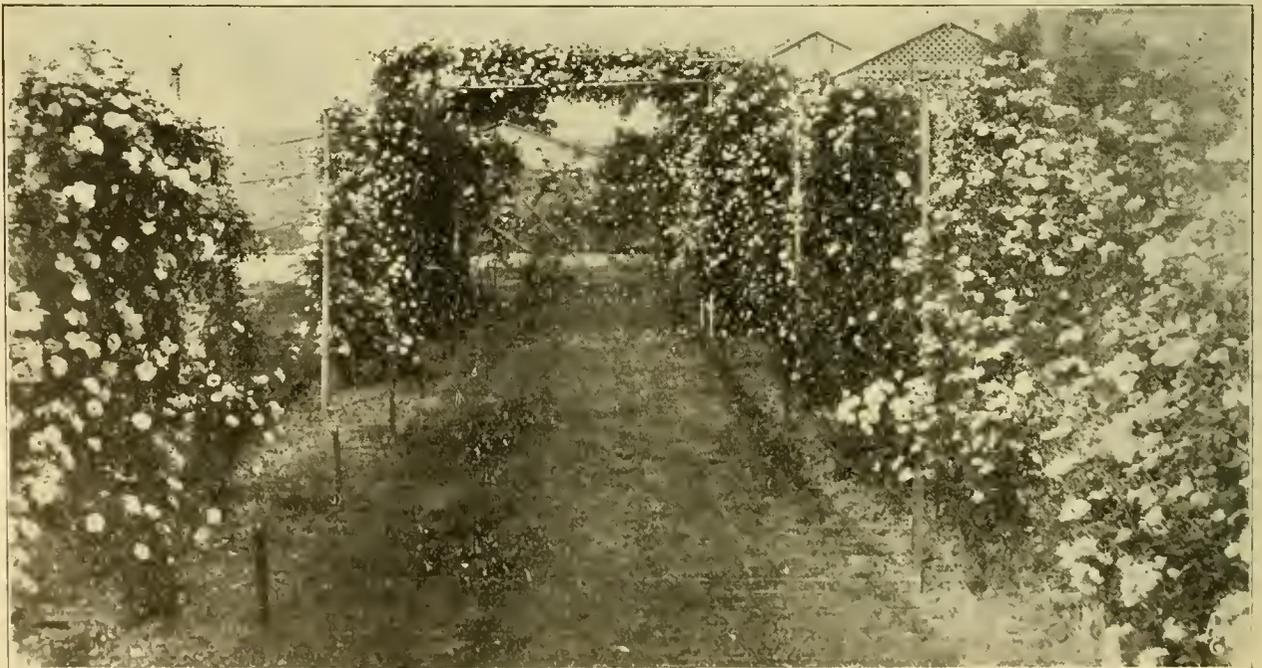

Always have a few baskets of the miniature tumbler or vase pattern filled in the case or on the counter. These are quick sellers. A few Ward or pink roses, with cornflowers, and a little knot of ribbon, give the basket an artistic look, only takes a minute to fill, and is sure to attract attention.

There are still weddings and school commencements which should be looked after. Much of this work can be secured by a little diplomatic maneuvering. Being early on the job, is a great advantage. Nothing is lost by trying, and much may be gained. In these days of declining trade, it is the fellows that are called hustlers who are seen buying in the market. There is always some work around, if one keep on the alert for it.

Keep up the stock of magnolia and oak leaf wreaths. A little run of funeral work, and some sizes soon get depleted. To have to stop and make these up on a busy day, frequently throws the order late.

A good border for inside the summer window is low, narrow boxes that fit close to the glass. These are planted with green or golden selaginellas or tradescantias, which soon fill into a solid mass, making a pretty finish to any arrangement of the window.

Gladioli will now be standard stock for the balance of the season. They are ideal for spray work, combining with all the other summer flowers. They look very well arranged in the shallow bowls, with the large-holed flower blocks as supporters. To show best, the stems want to be cut rather short with at least half the spike open.

AT THE PATH'S END, ARLINGTON ROSE GARDEN.

INSPECTING THE ROSE GARDEN OF CAPT. GEORGE C. THOMAS, JR., CHESTNUT HILL, PA.

The small-leaved Caladium argyrites is good stock at this season. Its beautifully white-veined foliage is very useful to work into wreaths and clusters. Shaking the soil from the roots, and binding them with a little wet sphagnum, will keep them in fresh condition as long as the flowers. Begonia Rex is another plant that is useful. Well-grown stock in three-inch pots will, with its beautiful foliage, work up nicely. It must have wet moss about the roots to keep the leaves fresh.

If you are not a member of the F. T. D., send in your application at once, and then hustle for the business. It is what you create in your own store that helps the most.

Japanese Matting.

The Japanese export trade in printed mattings, says the Japan Chronicle, is very inactive owing to the fact that foreign merchants are selling their holdings at a loss in anticipation of a further decline in price, and accordingly Japanese are withholding their purchases. The domestic demand for printed matting is increasing lately, chiefly because of the high price of tatami. Consequently manufacturers are catering to the home taste, the more readily as this avoids the ordeal of inspection by the export merchant, which they resent. The market price is 10 per cent lower at present than during the winter, but no satisfactory transactions are reported. This state of affairs is expected to continue until June, the end of the season for the domestic matting trade.

THE S. A. F.

National Publicity for Flowers.

Our Maryland state vice-president, W. F. Ekas, of Baltimore, has sent us clippings from the Baltimore newspapers, covering a proclamation by Mayor Broening in regard to the parade of home-coming troops, May 31. The proclamation is remarkable for the fact that liberal use is made of our slogan, "Say it with Flowers." It was as follows:

Mayor's Office,

Baltimore, Md., May 28.

"To the People of Baltimore:

"To the end that the home-coming troops may have every physical evidence of the joy in the hearts of Baltimoreans over their safe return, I call on everybody along the route of the parade on Saturday, May 31, as well as throughout the city generally, to decorate liberally.

"'Say it with Flowers' is particularly applicable to the present home-coming, and it would be a splendid idea if pot plants and flowers are placed in front of dwellings, as expressing the love we bear our heroes, who translated patriotism into service, and as honoring the memory of those brave boys who gave the last full measure of devotion.

"Every home in Baltimore should fly a flag and enter into the spirit of this great occasion."

It is suggested that as there will undoubtedly be many home-coming troop parades in various cities and towns throughout the country, the florists in such communities bring to the notice of their mayors, the action of the Baltimore mayor, with the idea of getting over similar messages, the beneficial effect of which for the florists' business would be incalculable.

It may be that they could also be induced to issue similar proclamations for "Armistice day."

And yet the florists themselves are not using the slogan nearly as much as they might. From the newspaper clippings which come to our promotion bureau, and which cover very largely the newspaper advertising done by retail florists throughout the country, it is evident that the percentage of florists who incorporate the slogan in their copy is small. What a wilful waste of prestige? Advertising experts assert that the value of this slogan today could not be estimated at less than a million dollars—and the use of it is free as air.

Why not see to it that the slogan is used in every piece of advertising sent out, or advertisement placed? And get the proper electrotyped lines from our promotion bureau. These lines are in the familiar script form used on the magazines and in our display signs. There are seven sizes available, 1½ inches to 9 inches long, covering practically all requirements.

Our committees are now formulating plans for speeding up the campaign. As we have before stated, many times, the committees must prepare months ahead for the insertion of magazine advertisements. They spend as they go, and it is quite obvious that unless the money is forthcoming they cannot proceed with their publicity plans. Marvelous results have been secured for what generally is admitted to be a very small sum. A fund of $100,000 is required to extend these results and make them permanent. It is not a great sum. If the 20,000 florists believed to be in business paid per head assessments it would only cost them $5 a piece. And yet we are obliged to stick around the $40,000 mark, even when some of our liberal minded florists have given as much as $200, $300, and $500 cash this year.

We are sure that many intend to subscribe, but do not seem to get to the point of writing a cheque. The consummation of full publicity arrangements is highly important in the month of June.

Will you, Mr. Nonsubscriber, help to make this possible? Just remember that our work is all done in your interests—you share in the resulting benefit equally with your brother florists. It is for all of us, and that is why we use purely national mediums. Out of the millions of magazine readers we reach there is a proportionate number in your own locality. If we arouse their interest in flowers, as we most surely do, are you not going to derive advantage from it?

Think the matter over, seriously, and your conscience should prompt you to make a contribution—and make it quickly. JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Trade Exhibition Rules.

We present herewith floor plan of the indoor trade exhibition of the Society of American Florists to be held at the Arcadia auditorium, Detroit, Mich., August 19-21, 1919. The rules governing the exhibition are as follows:

1. The society shall, through its board of directors, control all the features of the trade exhibition.

2. The secretary shall act as superintendent of the trade exhibition with an advisory committee of three. Said secretary shall have general charge of all details of the annual exhibition. He shall receive all applications for space and assign the same in the order in which they are received by him. He shall furnish the judges a list of the exhibitors and exhibits by 1:00 p. m. on the day of opening the convention. He shall also furnish the judges with a list of novelties and new devices submitted for awards.

He shall keep full detailed records of receipts and expenditures and other matters of importance relating to the exhibition. Immediately after the close of the convention, he shall make a complete report, which, after having been audited and approved by the advisory committee, shall be filed with the records of the society. All the moneys collected by him shall be forwarded from time to time without undue delay to the treasurer. All bills incurred shall be indorsed by him and submitted to the advisory committee for approval, after which they shall be paid in the usual manner as provided.

The advisory committee shall act as an advisory board and audit board, subject to instructions of the board of directors and in case of disagreement between them and the secretary their decision shall be final except it be reviewed by the board of directors.

3. Exhibition space shall be designated in square feet. The charge for space shall be as follows:

Minimum charge ..... $20.00
Flat rate, per square foot..... 40 cts.

Exhibition space shall be limited to six feet six inches above the floor, except for plants, greenhouse structures or other exhibits which necessarily extend to a greater height. Plant and cut flower exhibits may be also built up to any height authorized by the superintendent. All exhibits except as above specified, which extend above six feet six inches in height, shall be charged 20 per cent additional on the exhibit. All signs must be kept within the space limit. Where tables are against the wall, wall space up to six feet six inches above the floor and of the length of the table, will be furnished the exhibitor without extra charge. Wall exhibits extending above this height will be charged for. Signs on the wall or elsewhere, shall not extend higher than six feet six inches above the floor in any exhibit.

Wall exhibits shall not project over one foot from the wall.

Exhibitors must furnish at their own expense all tables, cloth and other accessories and incidentals. The secretary will be willing so far as his other duties will permit, to assist exhibitors in securing tables and other needed articles; but neither the secretary nor the society will pay for or assume any financial responsibility for the purchase or placing of such articles.

4. Applications for space: All persons, firms, companies or associations desiring to exhibit must file a written application with the secretary of the Society of American Florists, who is the superintendent of the trade exhibition, and each applicant must furnish the information asked for on the face of the application blank, and agree by his or their signature thereto to be bound by the rules and regulations herein set forth.

5. Payment for space: Twenty-five per cent of the total amount shall be paid upon signing the contract, and the balance before the exhibitor takes possession. Neither the superintendent of trade exhibition nor the advisory committee shall have power to suspend or change the above requirement as to payments. Any exhibitor who shall fail to make either the initial or final payment as aforesaid, whether such exhibitor desires to exhibit or not, shall thereby and thereupon forfeit his right in and to the use of such space, as well as the money already paid, if any; and the management shall have the right to dispose of such space as it considers for the best interest of the exhibition.

6. Subletting of space: No exhibitor shall assign, sublet or apportion the whole or any part of the space allotted, nor exhibit therein any other goods than those sold in the regular course of business by the exhibitor, without permission of the secretary.

7. Roll top desks will be furnished to those requiring them at a rental of $5.00 each.

8. All signs shall be uniform in character and be furnished by the superintendent of the exhibition, at a cost not to exceed $3.00, and no other signs to be permitted. Three lines of lettering allowed, viz.: name of firm, business and address.

9. Allotment of space: All exhibition space shall be allotted by or under the authority of the superintendent of trade exhibition.

10. Shipments: All exhibits must be consigned to the exhibitors, care of the Convention, Society of American Florists, Arcadia auditorium, Detroit, Mich. The superintendent must be promptly advised of all shipments by freight or by express, such advice to be accompanied by a copy of the bill of lading or express receipt. All freight and express charges must be prepaid. Goods shipped charges collect will be refused unless the owner is on hand to pay the charges. The draying charges from the traffic terminal to the exhibition hall will be charged to the exhibitor.

11. Exhibition classes to be arranged as follows:

- A.—Plants.
- B.—Cut blooms.
- C.—Boilers and heating apparatus.
- D.—Greenhouse structures.
- E.—Florists' supplies (including fancy earthenware).
- F.—Bulbs, seeds and garden requisites.

G.—Miscellaneous.

12. Exhibitors showing novelties or other improved devices which they wish to have examined by the judges for such special notice or award as they are deemed worthy of, shall make an itemized entry thereof with the secretary in advance. Firms or corporations desiring their exhibits considered for award must state the name of a member of the firm or company who is a member of the society.

13. The president shall appoint in advance of the convention the following judges:

Three for Classes A, B and F.

Three for Classes C and D.

And three for Classes E and G, who shall serve without compensation. They shall examine specially entered exhibits and make detailed reports thereon promptly to the secretary on the afternoon of the first day of the convention. The judges are authorized to recommend to the board of directors any exhibits they deem worthy for award of the society's medals, such exhibits to be of unusual merit, but action not to be made public until passed upon by the board of directors.

14. For exhibits deemed worthy thereof, diplomas of three grades may be given as follows: Certificate of merit, honorable mention, highly commended.

15. No distinction as "first," "second," "best," or "largest," or other mention indicating comparisons with other exhibits shall be made, and diplomas of equal value may be awarded to several exhibits in the same class.

16. Each award must be accompanied by a statement indicating on what special points of excellence it was based.

17. In case any article or device has received an award at a previous S. A. F. exhibition, awards shall cover subsequent improvements only.

18. No award shall be made covering the quality of seeds, fertilizers, paints and other articles of such a nature on which an intelligent opinion cannot be had without a practical test.

None but flower pots conforming to the society's standards will be considered for award by the judges.

19. No award shall be made to exhibitors who are not members of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists.

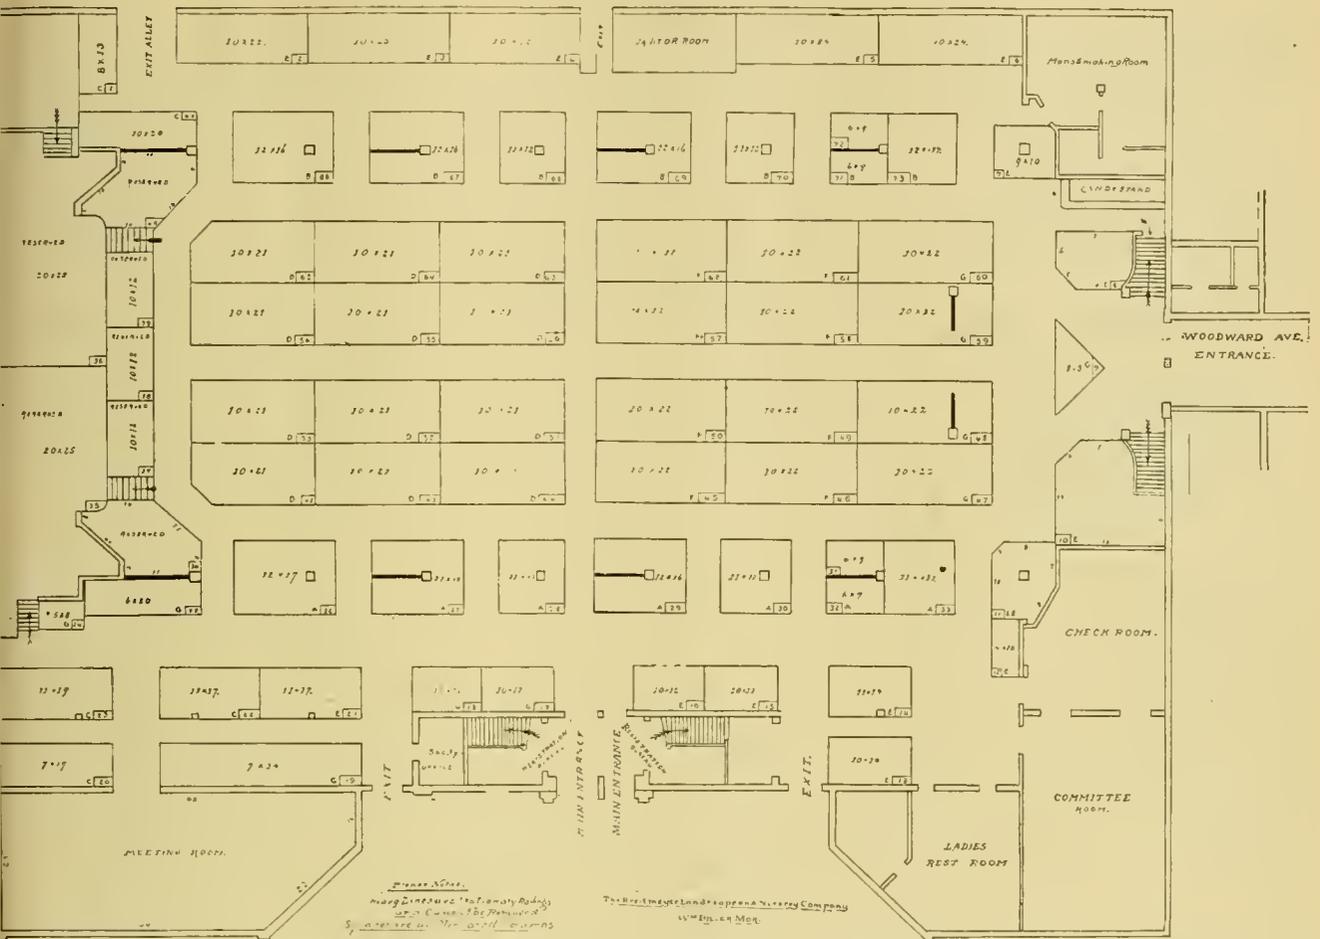

All protests and complaints must be presented in writing before the close of the exhibition, and complaints or protests not so made will not be considered.

20. The matter of opening or closing the exhibition will be left to the discretion of the board of directors.

21. Exhibits not in position before 1:00 p. m. of the first day of the convention, may be excluded from mention in the superintendent's report or consideration by the judges.

22. The exhibition shall be open not less than two hours before the opening session, to remain open until 10 p. m. each day except as provided in Section 14.

23. All articles exhibited must be left in place until the close of the business session of the convention, which shall be 10 o'clock p. m. on the third day, except by permission of the secretary.

24. While the society will exercise all due care to safeguard the exhibits, it will not assume any responsibility or liability for any loss or damage to any of the exhibits.

25. The selling of goods by persons not having engaged space shall be prohibited unless such person or firm shall have secured a permit or license from the secretary, the same to cost not less than twenty dollars ($20).

26. When more than one exhibitor joins in the same space there shall be an additional charge of $20 for each additional exhibitor.

27. The board of directors will make such further rules as it may deem necessary for the proper conduct of the exhibition.

28. All adjustments not covered by rules or published action of the board of directors shall be referred to that board.

29. Character of exhibit: The management reserves the right to decline or prohibit any exhibit, exhibitor or proposed exhibit which, in its opinion, is not suitable. This reservation concerns persons, things, conduct, printed matter, souvenirs, catalogs, and all other things which affect the character of the exhibition. No exhibitor may show goods in operation if same are noisy or objectionable to surrounding exhibitors, nor may exhibitors show special exhibition apparatus that is mechanically operated or illuminated without special permission of the management.

30. Extra labor: Exhibitors must attend to the unpacking of their goods. Additional labor required by them for this purpose will be furnished by the superintendent at a reasonable fixed price upon application.

31. Fuel: No gasoline or other fuel will be permitted in the building.

32. Smoking: No smoking will be permitted in any part of the building except in such places as are set apart for that purpose, during the hours of exhibition. Exhibitors are particularly requested to aid the management in the enforcement of this rule, in deference to the large number of ladies who attend the exhibition.

33. Liabilities: The S. A. F. and O. H., the management or their representatives, will not be responsible for any injury that may arise to loss of or damage to any goods from any cause whatsoever, while in transit to or from the building, or while in the exhibition buildings.

34. Insurance: Exhibitors who desire insurance on their exhibits must place same at their own expense.

35. Exits: No exhibitor will be allowed to so arrange his exhibit that it will obstruct clear passage to any exits required by the authorities of the city, or to block off a clear view of any signs indicating such exits.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Orders for signs, desks, etc., should be sent to the superintendent of trade exhibition as early as possible, in order that same may be ready for the exhibitor upon arrival at the hall.

OBITUARY.

Bertha Eves.

Bertha Eves, for eight years secretary of the Brooklyn, N. Y., botanical garden, died June 4 in St. John's hospital, Brooklyn. She had been active in canteen work for the soldiers. Before locating in Brooklyn, she had been employed as a secretary in the west and in Florida. Funeral services were held in Brooklyn, June 7, and the body taken to Neosho, Missouri, for interment. Her mother, Mrs. M. A. Stevenson, resides at Neosho.

John R. McIntyre.

John R. McIntyre, for the past 40 years in the florist business at Morristown, N. J., died at his home in that city, June 5. The deceased was born in Scotland but had been a resident of the above city for more than 54 years and was an active member of the First Presbyterian church. He is survived by a widow and eight children.

THE gate receipts at three days racing recently at Chester, England, amounted to $295,000.

THE British Chamber of Horticulture has started serious work with a view to providing protection for the producers of new plants.

Personal.

June 25, 1919, will be "some day" at Chicago with those two veterans in horticulture, Robert George and E. G. Hill, on the speakers list for papers at the session of the American Association of Nurserymen at the Hotel Sherman, just 35 years after these boys helped to organize the Society of American Florists in the same hotel.

Inspection of Mailed Plants, Etc.

A bill known as H. R. 1127, introduced by Congressman Raker, "to provide for the inspection of any parcel sent by mail which contains fruit, plants, trees, shrubs, nursery stock, grafts, scions, peach, plum, almond, or the pits of other fruits, cotton seed, or vegetables, at point of delivery in any postoffice of the United States that requests such inspection, and where the requisite inspectors are provided by the states to perform such service," was referred to the committee on agriculture, May 20, 1919.

The bill provides that it shall be unlawful for any postmaster or postal clerk to receive any parcel of the above character to be sent by mail unless same be plainly labeled showing the contents of the parcel, the name of the person who produced it and where grown if possible, and also the name of the sender. Postal officials are also forbidden to deliver any such parcel until the same has been inspected and released by any regularly appointed state inspector. If the presence of pests is evident, the contents may be treated and destroyed as the state officials may direct.

Plant Quarantine Amendment Sought.

The amendment of the law regulating the importation of nursery stock, etc. (plant quarantine act approved August 20, 1912) is sought in a bill which has just been introduced into Congress by Representative Raker of California. This measure provides for the addition of a new section to the present law, under which no plant or plant products for or capable of propagation, including nursery stock, shall be moved or allowed to be moved into or out of the District of Columbia except in compliance with rules and regulations to be promulgated by the secretary of agriculture. It is also provided that the secretary of agriculture shall promulgate regulations surrounding the removal or destruction of such commodities infested or infected with insect pests and diseases, and shall take steps to see that such regulations are enforced and complied with.

Similar legislation was brought before the last session of Congress, which adjourned, however, before action was taken upon it. At present, the transportation into or from the district of infested or infected stock is not strictly regulated.

National Association of Gardeners.

MEETING OF NEWPORT BRANCH.

The Newport branch of the National Association of Gardeners, recently organized, held its monthly meeting, June 6, with Andrew L. Dorward in the chair, and a good attendance of members. After Secretary Frederic Carter read the report of the May meeting, which he had sent to the national secretary, William Mackay, who attended the gardeners' conference in Boston last month, reported what took place at that session. M. C. Ebel, secretary of the national association, who came from New York to attend the meeting, reviewed the history of the association and briefly outlined the activities of his office. He also spoke of the negotiations now under way to bring about cooperation between the country estate owners and the national association, the plans for which, it is believed, will take definite shape before the annual convention to which they are to be submitted. Mr. Ebel urged that all who can arrange their affairs to be away during the last week in August, should make every effort to attend the annual convention which will be held in Cleveland, August 26-28. A number of those present declared their intentions of doing so.

Memorial Day High Prices Protested.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

The price of flowers for Memorial day should be kept as low as for any other holiday. Many flower buyers cannot afford to pay more than $1.50 per dozen for carnations, and when they cost the retailer that much, how is it possible to make a profit?

MRS. C. M. ELLIS.

Wyoming, Ill.

Roebling Orchids Sold.

The well known orchid collection of the late Charles G. Roebling, of Trenton, N. J., has been sold intact to a private grower prominent in Philadelphia society. This sale of orchids, probably the largest of the kind in this country, was made by A. M. Van Den Hoek, manager of the Wm. H. Moon Nursery Co., Morrisville, Pa., who declines to state the price paid. The collection includes upwards of 600 species and varieties, with several thousands of flowered and unflowered seedlings.

James Goodier, the accomplished grower and hybridizer, will accompany the plants to their new home.

Pulverized Coal.

Carefully conducted tests show that a saving of 23 per cent in fuel burned could be made by using pulverized coal. From this deductions must be made for expense of operating pulverizing plants, which with present undeveloped machinery is less than 50 cents a ton. Already there are some 200 powdered fuel installations on stationary plants successfully operating throughout the country. These are chiefly in power and lighting stations, with mining companies, hotels, schools, laundries, etc., also getting good results. The main obstacle against increased distribution of fuel thus granulated is efficient apparatus for preparing, storing and transporting it.—The Wall Street Journal Straws.

LIBERAL SUPPLY MOVES WELL.

Considered from every standpoint. Memorial day trade was the heaviest ever experienced in this city. There was a great abundance of stock of all kinds, but notwithstanding the large supply, it cleaned up in great shape, and nearly all the stores sold out completely. Prices of nearly everything took quite a jump. Roses were about the only item that did not raise in price. There was a very heavy cut of all grades. All the cheaper grades cleaned up rapidly. Vast quantities of all varieties were used. Ulrich Brunner from out-of-doors proved a very popular seller. The shipping demand for several days previous to Memorial day was heavy and kept the market here in the best of condition. Carnations sold out completely in all light colors. Only a few of the red varieties failed to meet with a brisk demand. Prices advanced in a satisfactory manner also. There was a heavy cut of sweet peas. These cleaned up on all sides at good figures. The public was not very particular as to choice of colors, so every variety sold out. There was a great demand for The Bride and Peach Blossom gladioli. Prices received for this popular flower were fine and more of this stock could be used if it were available. The finest stock of America and Mrs. Francis King that we have ever received came along in limited quantities, and sold on sight at $3 per dozen spikes. A few reds were received also and sold equally well. There was not a very heavy cut of peonies, owing to the advanced date, but they sold rapidly at fine prices. The higher grade flowers, such as orchids and gardenias, did not move so well during the week, but as the supply is shortening up somewhat, prices remain firm. There was a heavy cut of delphiniums, scabiosa and other outdoor stock. Campanulas were also quickly disposed of. Large quantities of memorial wreaths were used for cemetery work. The call for decorative plants was rather slow. The demand seemed to be for cut flowers only.

NOTES.

The Menlo Park Horticultural Society held its annual display of outdoor roses last week at Menlo Park. It was by far the best effort the society has yet made in showing roses. There was a large entry list and all that is newest and best in roses was shown. The annual sweet pea show of the society will be held this month. Much preparation has been made for this show, and it no doubt will be of great interest and largely attended.

The America gladioli that the Art Floral Co. received Memorial day were remarkable for the size of the flowers and length of stem. They sold almost on sight at high prices. This firm cleaned up entirely on all stock. Manager Matraia says it was the best Memorial day he has yet experienced. His shipping trade was quite large, and all things considered, he is greatly elated over the amount of business done.

Otto Guetersloh, who for years conducted the Millbrae Nurseries in Millbrae, died at his home at that place last week from cancer. He was well known and respected in San Mateo county, and had many friends who will regret to hear of his passing. He is survived by a widow and two stepsons. Many members of the nursery trade attended his funeral at Cypress Lawn cemetery.

Dr. Ernest A. Grauman, who is associated with the Royal botanical gardens at Buitenzorg, Java, arrived in this city during the week. He is to make a prolonged stay in this country, visiting all the botanical gardens of note before proceeding to Europe. The doctor, who is a noted authority on oriental plants, is accompanied by Mrs. Grauman.

All the florists in the Mission district say that this Memorial day called for more flowers than any previous one. The chief demand was for cheap funeral stock, and great quantities were moved. Practically all in this district sold out completely on that day.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. report a splendid Memorial day trade. They say their sales were far in excess of last year. They sold and shipped great quantities of wreaths. The sales force worked nearly all night to get the large number of orders out on time.

Ricordie Lee Murray has been handling a fine lot of genistas. This is quite a favorite here, owing to its beautiful color and splendid keeping qualities. Memorial day trade was very satisfactory at this establishment.

Chas. Ehrlich, a prominent member of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society, has purchased five acres of land at Menlo Park. It is expected that he will engage in the wholesale growing business some time in the future.

So far, the department stores of this city are letting the bedding plant trade severely alone. It has been tried here occasionally by different stores, but apparently has never received any substantial support from the public.

P. Conchi, of Colma, is beginning to cut from his large field of Ulrich Brunner roses. His stock is of his usual high standard, and good figures are being received for all he is able to supply.

Milton Tonini says that the demand for bedding stock has been so heavy that his large supply is nearly exhausted. The demand for vegetable plants has been excellent.

Chas. C. Navlet, of San Jose, was a visitor at his Market street store this week. He reports trade in San Jose on Memorial day to have been the best ever experienced.

The MacRorie-McLaren store displayed a great variety of made-up baskets during the past week. They are artistically done, and have been greatly admired.

Frank Pelicano and Peter Ferrari have returned from the springs greatly benefited in health.

BUSINESS RATHER SLOW

The market is more than well supplied with all kinds of seasonable stock. Receipts are very heavy, while business is somewhat quiet. Prices have dropped to a low point. Roses are in heavy supply, larger than the market can use at this time. Carnations are plentiful, but many of them have been affected by the extreme heat we are experiencing. Some, however, for the time of the year, are very good. Easter lilies are again in the market. Rubrums and some callas may be had. The heavy receipts in peonies are about at an end. Gladioli sell well. Other offerings are snapdragons, lily of the valley, corn flowers, coreopsis, feverfews, sweet williams and candytuft.

NOTES.

Gus, Adrian sold all of his bedding plants this spring and had to buy stock to take care of his late orders.

This month marks the fifteenth anniversary of the time when C. E. Critchell embarked in business.

The meeting of the florists' society was held June 9, at H. W. Sheppard's.

The marriage of Joseph Durban, of Clifton, and Miss Sarah McGurn will be solemnized this week.

Florists' Club of Washington, D. C.

A discussion of types and habits of peonies took up a large portion of the time devoted to the business meeting of the florists' club at Schmid's hall, June 4.

A large number of new members were favorably reported upon and applications for membership were received from Charles A. and Arthur I. Shaffer, Alexandria, Va.; and J. E. Krayer, and David Hanlon, both of Washington.

Those who were able to make the trip to Arlington, Va., with the American Rose Society told their less fortunate friends of what they had seen and done. The gardens, it was reported, were at their best and especial mention was made of the summer house which is covered with Dr. Van Fleet roses. The trip to beautiful Twin Oaks, the estate of Mrs. Charles G. Bell, was also spoken of, and George E. Anderson, head gardener, a prominent member of the club, was thanked for the courtesy shown the visitors.

It was decided that the club should arrange for the decoration of the stage at the central high school for memorial exercises to be held under the auspices of the War Camp Community Service, for those who lost their lives in the war.

The entertainment committee served refreshments, and through the courtesy of Kallipolis Grotto, a Masonic organization of which many of the florists are members, a regular vaudeville entertainment was furnished.

CLUB MEETING.

Thirty minutes sufficed to complete the business of the florists' club at the June meeting. The attendance was small and the night sultry. Jared S. Horton, proprietor of a range in Watervliet, and J. W. Siebert, a retail florist in Troy, were elected members. The secretary read a number of communications, one of which was from John J. Moore, formerly of Watervliet. Moore wrote that he was employed at the Adirondack Greenhouses, Saranac Lake, N. Y. He said that during the past year he had been in France with the American expeditionary force, and had recently been discharged. This is the first information the members of the club had of him in over a year, and his recital of service in France came as a surprise. The invitation to hold the July meeting at Fred Goldring's place, Font Grove, was accepted. On account of July 4 falling in the week of the next meeting, it was decided to postpone it until the night of July 10.

NOTE

The Lord & Burnham Co., Irvington-on-the-Hudson, have taken a contract to build a greenhouse, 25 by 158 feet, for George E. Nagengast, Jr., at 806 Washington avenue. Work will be begun about July 1. In addition, Mr. Nagengast will build a one and one-half story frame workroom in connection with the greenhouse. It is expected that the structures will be ready within 60 days after work is begun.

STOCK IS NOT SO PLENTIFUL.

Stock in general is not so plentiful as it was last week when the market was completely glutted in almost all lines and the street peddlers and large department stores reaped the harvest. Flowers came in so fast that the dealers donated three large truck loads to the committee that had charge of collecting the blooms to be strewn in the path of the returning heroes of the famous 33d division. One large truck loaded to the brim with petals and carrying the sign, "Say It With Flowers," headed the parade, and it is estimated that over 1,000,000 people read the national slogan. The young men who had foresight enough to grasp the opportunity to derive the advertising by placing the signs on the truck, did a clever piece of work and accomplished something that money could not possibly buy. Stock began to clean up toward the end of last week and some 93,000 flowers were sold to be used on Jewish tag day which is a yearly event here. Business was good Saturday, June 7, when the market was pretty well cleaned up, considering the enormous supply seen at all the stores earlier in the week. Stock last week was worth whatever the dealers could obtain for it, which varied in most instances in regard to the stem, grade and quantity desired. While stock is in good supply at this writing, and there is plenty in almost all lines to go around, there is no great surplus to speak of. American Beauty roses are seen in large numbers at a few of the houses. A few Premier are arriving and the receipts of Columbia and Mrs. Chas. Russell are quite heavy. Roses in general are seen in quantity, but appear to be moving this week at fairly good summer prices. Carnations are not selling any too well, although fancy stock in this line, which is somewhat scarce, is commanding good figures. Orchids and lily of the valley are holding their own. Peonies are selling nicely considering the general market conditions, and in some instances, are really bringing high figures, although the majority of the stock offered is being sold at greatly reduced prices. Gladioli are quite a factor in the market and are in good demand. Sweet peas have seen their best days. Daisies, irises, calendulas, snapdragons, stocks, lupines, poppies, static, callas, candytuft, pansies, jasmies, cornflowers, gypsophila and other miscellaneous reasonable stock is included in the offerings. Green goods are scarce, especially smilax and asparagus. New ferns from Wisconsin, Michigan and Massachusetts have made their appearance in good sized quantities and the storage stock still on hand is rapidly diminishing at the advertised quotations. Laurel and huckleberry are having a good call.

NOTES.

Zech & Mann have placed an order with Kroeschell Bros. Co. for a new ice machine to be installed in the near future. Jack Byers, who was with the famous 33d division, is back on the job at this establishment. This firm took all their men back that were with the colors, and is now operating with its entire, old crew, in addition to several new hands.

WHOLESALE FLORISTS

160 N. Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL.

All those who attended the dance given by the florists' club at the Randolph hotel, Thursday evening, June 5, had a most enjoyable time. Among the out-of-town visitors present were J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, president of the Society of American Florists; C. C. Pollworth and wife and William Kennedy and wife, Milwaukee, Wis.; Dr. Dux, Jacksonville, Fla., and Arthur Schwerin, of the Burlington Willow Ware Co., Burlington, Ia. Miss Edna Frauenfelder rendered several vocal selections.

H. G. Hancock and wife left this week for Worcester, Mass., to visit their daughter, Franc, who has charge of the demonstration department of the Worcester County Agricultural Society's food conservation committee. Paul Klingsporn secured life memberships in the Society of American Florists last week for Guy French, James Psenica, Paul Weiss and Joseph Schoos, all within the space of a few minutes. Jack Jacobs, who was with the American troops in France for seven months, was honorably discharged last week, and is back on the job at E. C. Amling Co.'s store. The Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. announces the formal opening of its new down town offices, Suite 318, State-Lake building, 190 North State street, last week. A. Lange is moving this week to his new store, 77-79 East Madison street, second door from Michigan avenue. T. E. Waters, manager of Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department, is calling on the trade in the east.

The Chicago Retail Florists Association held a meeting Tuesday evening, June 14, which was largely attended. All the growers shipping to this market are invited to meet with the members of this association next Tuesday evening, June 17, at 8 p. m., at the Hotel Randolph. A subject of vital interest to the growers and retailers will be discussed so everyone is urgently requested to be present. L. R. Bohannon, president of this association, says that all the members are in favor of closing Sundays during July, August and September and many will do so regardless of whatever action others may take.

A. Lange made the floral tribute that was placed on the shoulders of Sergeant Jake Alex for Morris & Company during the parade last week, who took this means of showing their appreciation of the man from their great army of industry who became one of the greatest heroes of the war, having won seven decorations including the congressional medal, the rarest of them all. The wreath was made of lily of the valley and corn flowers and carried the inscription "Welcome Home." It attracted much attention and was arranged by Mr. Lange's chief designer, Herbert Stone.

The bowlers had their first meeting at Bensinger's West Randolph street alleys, Tuesday evening, June 10. They will meet at the same place on the same day of the week at the same time until a team is selected to represent the florists' club in the bowling contest at the Detroit convention.

Frank S. Ayres, formerly with Chas. W. McKellar, and later with Archie Spencer, will open a store in room 201 in the Atlas building in the near future. His many friends wish him every success in his new business venture.

W. N. Rudd has filed $100,000 damage suit against Edmond B. Bronson, defeated candidate for mayor at the last Blue Island election, for alleged libel.

N. J. Wietor is pleased with the condition of Wietor Bros.' carnations in the field, the weather having been very satisfactory for growing purposes to date.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are handling a good supply of home-grown peonies which command high prices in the fancier grades.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report a great improvement in trade over last week with a surprisingly large number of sales June 7.

Sam Cohan, who was honorably discharged from the service recently, is back in the employ of Poehlmann Bros. Co.

The E. F. Winterson Co. is handling quite a supply of outdoor stock from the Ridgewood Gardens at Highland Park.

Peter Reinberg's shipping trade is holding up remarkably well with a strong demand for roses.

A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., was due to arrive in Japan, June 9.

BUYER'S PRICES RULE LIFELESS MARKET.

The warm weather of the past week caused the bottom to drop out of business and all lines of the flower trade are at a standstill and stock consigned to this market has been sent to the various hospitals. Peonies flood the market and cannot be moved at any price. Carnations are very poor and will not last much longer. Sweet peas are plentiful but sell slowly at 50 cents to $1 per 100. Snapdragons and baby gladioli find no buyers. The quality of roses is good but they go at any figure offered, no price being refused.

BUSINESS ASSUMES SUMMER TONE.

The market is beginning to assume a summer atmosphere. Business seems to be slackening considerably, except for weddings and graduations. Funeral work has slowed up very much in the last few weeks, and whenever this happens it has a depressing effect. The supply of flowers has not been so great, but in spite of this, the counters are slow in clearing up. Gladioli are beginning to arrive in larger quantities, and the next few weeks should see the largest supply. Roses have fallen off considerably in quality, with Russell the best. Carnations are going fast and will be off of the market entirely within a few weeks. Indoor sweet peas are over with, with a limited supply of outdoor stock coming in. Outdoor flowers of all kinds are in fair supply, and on account of the frequent rains and hot spells, are only of fair quality. In greens the market is well supplied, southern ferns still being the only good stock obtainable.

NOTES.

It is being whispered about that our friend, Herman Kaoli, is about to take unto himself a helpmeet. Herman got back from the army a few months ago and immediately started work on his new store on Kansas street. We have suspected that he intended to get married some time in the early summer, and think we have the right dope on him for sometime next week. Good luck, Herman. We know you are getting some girl.

L. Jules Bourdet entertained a number of florists at a crawfish "feed" last week. Some friend of his promised him a mess and certainly sent him some—about a bushel. He also had some of his private stock wine on tap, and they certainly had some time.

MARKET HITS BOTTOM.

Market conditions have reached the lowest level during the present season. The hot weather drove in the crops in such large quantities that it was impossible to move them, and then the quality too became poor. Sweet peas, as well as the pink carnations, showed the bad effects most. There is no funeral work to speak of, and business for the remaining part of this month, principally school exercises and weddings, will call mainly for roses, sweet peas and other specialties. The committee in charge of the "Red Arrow" day asked for flowers to give to the disabled soldiers, and to be used in other ways June 6. There being an abundance of stock, the florists took the occasion and were liberal in spreading the slogan. "Say it with Flowers."

NOTES.

J. M. Fox & Son, Inc., after 37 years, during which they carried a select line of staple groceries, have discontinued this end of the business and hereafter will devote their interest to what is known as "Fox Specialties," flowers, plants, art table decorations, teas, coffee and condiments. Invitations were sent out for the opening day, June 4, at which time the spacious store was beautifully decorated to fit the occasion, having large windows on Milwaukee street and one on Mason street in which to make elaborate displays. Their business in the flower line should increase in proportion.

The A. F. Kellner Co. executed one of their largest decorations last week, at which time they decorated practically the whole Auditorium for the reception entertainment of the "Red Arrow 32" Division, which took form of a holiday, June 6. All business houses closed at least half a day, and the large parade was the big attraction. The Kellner Co. is now working overtime trying to catch up with their bedding and box work, which is greater than ever before.

There being no quorum present, the regular florists' club meeting, called for June 5, has been postponed until July. The lack of attendance was due to the fact that an invitation for a dancing party had been sent by the Chicago Florists' Club, and a good many who could not attend, thought there would be no meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Kennedy and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Pollworth were the only ones from here who were not too busy to attend the Chicago Florists' Club meeting and dance June 5.

MARKET IN GOOD CONDITION.

The market has been in better shape since Memorial day, than for some weeks. There is a good supply, and the quality of the flowers in general is good, with the exception of a few varieties which are showing the effects of the abnormally hot weather which we experienced the first part of last week, when the thermometer went up to 110 degrees under glass, and to over 90 degrees out-of-doors. Sweet peas suffered the most from this hot spell, and the quality of snapdragons was also impaired. Carnations are showing the effects of the heat slightly. Roses are in good shape, and some fine stock of Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Russell and Shawyer are coming in. These are the principal varieties, although there are many more on the market. The demand for cut flowers slowed up a bit during the hot spell the first part of last week, but showed a marked improvement the latter part of the week, especially in wedding bouquets and funeral work. Decorations for pre-nuptial affairs were also in excellent demand. There are a large number of weddings booked for the next two weeks. Reports continue to come in from the Memorial day business that there was an increase of at least 100 per cent over last year.

NOTES.

The Flick Floral Co. had a record week with weddings, having had three large affairs in one day. This firm also sent out several casket covers last week of roses and sweet peas. They are receiving some excellent Hoosier Beauty, Russell and Shawyer roses from their greenhouses.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. had an unusually good Memorial day trade, and were sold out completely on specimen plants, hydrangeas, and roses. They are having a satisfactory number of June weddings, and a steady run on funeral work.

Doswell, the Florist, at Lindenwood cemetery, did a thriving business for Memorial day. Plants and cut flowers alike met with a ready sale here, and far outclassed the business done for the same holiday last year.

SHOPS CLOSED ON SUNDAYS.

On June 8, although it was Sunday, all representative flower shops and greenhouses of this city closed their doors to business and will remain closed on all Sundays throughout the year when no flower day happens to fall on Sunday, such as Easter, Christmas or Mothers' day. This history making step was taken as a result of a very enthusiastic meeting of florists held June 3 at the store of S. N. Peck on Superior street. Prime movers in calling the meeting were Wm. Feniger and Frank M. Schramm. The resolutions adopted at the meeting stated, that in order to keep abreast of the advanced and progressive spirit of the times, and to cooperate with the early closing movement in this city, florists close their places of business on all Sundays throughout the year. Frank M. Schramm and Wm. Feniger were appointed a committee to see the florists who were not present at the meeting, and to solicit their approval. They were successful in getting every florist of prominence and enrolled 26 names on the resolution. All seemed to be eager for a day off, not only for themselves, but also for their employes. The long hours of the trade have become particularly burdensome and unattractive of late when most other lines are offering shorter hours and more attractive working conditions. Florists reason, that if grocery stores and meat markets can close on Sundays, why not they? A liberal sum will be spent in publicity to acquaint the public with the new rule. Many flower shops which previously remained open every night, are now closing at 6 o'clock, and are well satisfied with the change.

FORM PERMANENT RETAILERS' ASS'N.

Another important step taken at this meeting was the filling of a long felt want of unity in action to counteract destructive tendencies and other evils that undermine the healthy growth of the business. The Toledo Retail Florists' Association was organized to promote a better spirit of cooperation, maintain harmony, counteract harmful publicity on flower prices, and to educate all on the best interests of the trade. Officers elected were Miss Helen Patten, president; Wm. Feniger, vice-president; S. N. Peck, secretary and treasurer. A former club was composed of both retailers and growers, but since it was felt that these have diverse interests, it was decided to make this a retailers' organization. The society will hold meetings once a month and hopes to accomplish much for the good of the business in this vicinity.

MEMORIAL DAY BUSINESS FAIR.

Memorial day business this year was not as good as florists had expected, and some of the downtown stores in particular state that they had plenty of stock left and were quite disappointed with the demand. Different reasons are assigned for the falling off, chief of which seems to be the big strike at the Willys-Overland automobile plant, where 15,000 workers are idle. They have been out for three weeks, and all lines of business are beginning to be affected by this loss of purchasing power. Others contend it was to the nearness of Mothers' day and the high prices that prevailed then. Some, however, report a business equal, if not better than that of last year. Stock was more plentiful than had been expected with the exception of peonies, which either failed to arrive in time or came in poor condition. Roses were in good quantity, as was other seasonable stock. Since that day, the weather has been unusually warm for this time, and the demand for flowers has been very light. Graduation and weddings are about the only source of business now, and funeral work has lightened. Bedding stock is still moving. There are plenty of flowers now, but the market cannot absorb all that are offered. A. C. K.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

Via trolley and automobile, a trip was made to the B. F. Barr farm for an inspection of his peony fields, that should have been in full bloom for Memorial day, but which were just in their prime, June 5. One plot of about five acres contained the regular assortment of about 50 varieties, ranging in price from 10 cents to $10 for single eye divisions. To attempt a description of them would be to issue a catalogue, with adjectives and exclamation points the main feature of the book. Mr. Barr kindly told us to help ourselves to cut blooms, and every one of the 20 visitors availed themselves of the offer. On the southern slope of a hill, about an acre was planted for cut flower purposes only. These furnished about 50 for Memorial day, and thousands for the week after, but better luck next year. Right in the same line of vision with this field are several acres of blue spruce, and it certainly makes a beauty spot on the landscape. In fact, the thousands of the several varieties of evergreens make this one of the show spots of this section.

After an inspection of the formal garden, which always has some new attractions in it, the meeting was held on the porch with T. J. Nolan and Dennis Connor as visitors. After the usual routine of business, the picnic was taken up and the committee instructed to make final arrangements for an outing at Wild Cat, with a chicken and waffle dinner. A committee consisting of three from this club and three from the ladies' auxiliary, were appointed to arrange for a second picnic to be held at Rocky Springs for the children; this one to follow the other within a month. After the regular business, P. K. Murphy, who has just returned from overseas, where he served two years with the Ambulance Co. 111, and saw some of the hardest work of the war, gave us a very interesting talk on his experiences with some new views of the situation, and also gave his experiences with the French flower shops, a talk well worth hearing, and one long to be remembered. John Schmuckli, another returned employe of Mr. Barr's, reached Lancaster, June 5, and came right out to see the florists, saying he was mighty glad to get back to where there were real houses, and where he could understand what the people said to him. He was connected with the 304th engineers, and told us of his many experiences in a talk following Mr. Murphy's and so graphically that the meeting did not adjourn. It simply dissolved after he was through, and like one of Mr. Schmuckli's ex-

THE LEO NIESSEN CO., 1201 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia.

DULLEST PERIOD IN MANY MONTHS.

There is generally one week in the season in which the poor business takes the stamina out of everyone, and by common consent the past seven days has been called the poorest week of the year. The extreme bursts of heat of the first three days, were very hard on flowers of all kinds, both indoors and out. Carnations have suffered, roses, and in fact everything in the greenhouses. American Beauties are fast going off, the filled edges of the petals being a sure sign of their closing efforts. Maryland and Russell are both seen in fair condition. While this is the season for outside flowers, they, too, have felt the heat, notably sweet peas, which have gone off badly through the week. The demand has been light; in fact, as one dealer put it, there is no demand, nor stability to prices. The street men are doing their best to help keep down the surplus. Carnations were bought (?) by the wagon load, and roses carried out in large quantities. It was the first condition approaching a glut experienced this season. Peonies are still very plentiful, but they lack quality and prices are poor. About the only flower with any stamina is the cattleya, which is held firmly at $1.00 per flower. One of the dealers, in speaking of the situation, said there was so much poor stock around outside that it fairly made one dizzy just to look at it. For all the light demand, one of the commission men said: "We can sell all the good roses we can get. The trouble is there is so little high grade stock."

BEDDING PLANT SURPLUS.

Now that the planting season is nearly over, there are in some places, quite a lot of unsold bedding plants, due, it is said, to the high prices, which it is claimed have been hoisted a trifle too high and kept there with the idea that the public would have to come across. The season started out well, as a good demand developed at much higher prices than ever before. With this in mind, should there be any surplus, rather than throw it out, it should be placed where it will do the most good, with donations to worthy charitable institutions, and every vantage point about each florists' establishment should be planted and made to look its best. These demonstrations, which show the possibilities of the decorative effect with plants and flowers, are good trade bringers and salvage the stock which would otherwise go to waste. Window boxes filled with this surplus, after a short start will be found very salable. It is never too late to put up a window or porch box, and wagon loads of these offered at their doors could be disposed of in a short time in the residence districts.

ABOUT THE CARNATION.

Charlie Theiss appears to have started something in his paper on why retailers do not push carnations, read at the March meeting of the florists' club. The knowledge that carnations sometimes go to sleep, is as common as the sunrise, but the reasons why are as varied as the number of people who offer them. The grower is at fault when he keeps the stock too warm or gives rich fertilizers, which induce a strong, spongy growth, with large flowers, but which soon go to sleep. Flowers are allowed to stay on too long to get large size, which are then short lived. When cut, they are not immediately placed in water or are not, at times, in water long enough to allow stems to become filled up; are often not graded properly, giving what might be termed, short weight, in the short and weak stemmed stock tied in and counted with the good. They are also often packed or crowded into boxes too small, so as to heat or become bruised during transportation. The wholesaler is at fault in the handling, as when the boxes are opened, stock often is allowed to lie around on draughty counters until it becomes wilted, and often crowded into vases much too small for the quantity, breaking stems and bruising flowers. The retailer sometimes keeps his carnations in too warm a place subject to a gas laden atmosphere which is fatal to the flower. There appears to be indisputable evidence that carnations will keep a reasonable length of time and give excellent results as a commercial cut flower. If this is true in many instances, why should it not become possible in all? For the great good to be gained, the retailer should certainly look to his gas leaks. The wholesaler can easily improve his methods in handling and storing, and it will then be up to the grower to work out his problems of temperature, fertilizers, condition of flowers when cutting, and their proper curing and packing for transportation. It is to be hoped that the discussion that this paper has awakened all over the country, will result in more careful methods in all three departments of the business, so that "sleepy carnations" may become a thing of the past.

NOTES.

Larkspur of very superior quality, is the leader with W. J. Baker. He was the first to specialize with this fine border perennial. It should be allowed to open its entire length of spike before cutting and is then one of the most decorative cut flowers.

Gladiolus America is handled in large quantities by the Leo. Niessen Co. It is offered as a substitute for Easter lilies and callas, which are fast going out.

MARKET IN BAD SLUMP.

In the "Penny Dreadfuls", which in past years we used to read—behind the barn or some other secluded spot, as a safety first proposition—when anything fell on the villain's head, it usually fell with "a dull sickening thud," and that is about the way prices fell in the wholesale district the past week. With particular reference to peonies, it was unquestionably the worst week that the oldest men of the wholesale district have ever experienced. With a temperature every day up to June 6, running near to 90 degrees, and sometimes higher, peonies came in by the tens of thousands and more went to loss than were sold. One prominent wholesaler has stated that never again will he handle peonies, and there were probably others who feel the same way; but time is a great healer for injured feelings. Excepting lilies and lily of the valley, which were practically out of the market, there was a surplus of all other stock. The hot weather played havoc with many of the roses and carnations, and they arrived practically unsalable. Roses, as a rule, opened so fast, that if not entirely lost, they went at greatly reduced prices. But there was another side to the medal. The retailers, who for the past eight months have been complaining of high prices, had reason to feel that they had again come into their own. And the street vendors, who have had pretty dry picking since the beginning of the war, were alive to the emergency. Those fellows may be aggravating to the retailers, but they are amusing, providing one has a sense of humor. At least two of them invaded the heart of the wholesale district, secured the privilege of using vacant stores, and drove a thriving retail business, while others were scattered all over the city. It is probable that many of the middle class and poorer people viewed the situation with equanimity, as the person was indeed poor that could not buy flowers.

June 9.—The weather is much cooler and business is fairly active. There is some let up on the flood of peonies, but yet more than enough to supply the demand. Good stock brings fair prices. The hot weather about finished the greenhouse sweet peas, but some good outdoor stock is beginning to arrive. What little lily of the valley is on the market, is bringing at the rate of $15 to $20 per 100, and $25 has been asked. In roses, the hot weather has had a bad effect on Ophelia, the Killarneys, excepting the white, and Shawyer. Russell, too, seems to be losing color. Prima Donna and Columbia, if well grown, seem to be the best pink roses now on the market. Many American Beauties are of inferior quality and are selling cheap. All carnations are cheap, and many of them are poor. A flood of dianthus (sweet williams), delphiniums and other outdoor stock is arriving. Many weddings are taking place, and though there are but few elaborate decorations, retailers, as a rule, report business better than June of last year.

NOTES.

The New York Sun, June 8, devotes two-thirds of a page, with illustrations, to Carl C. Olsson, whose official title is "foreman gardener of the park department of Manhattan and Richmond;" but to one who knows Mr. Olsson, and is acquainted with his various activities, the title seems vague. He is superintendent of the city's greenhouses in Central park, a draughtsman, a botanist, a florist, a landscape gardener, and to crown all, a gentleman. He is one of the very few men that we can think of holding a prominent position in the park department of this city, who arrived strictly on his merits instead of climbing or being boosted up under the auspices of ward and precinct politicians. The Sun says: "It is about time the city heard something about its gardener. He being too modest, the Sunday Sun will have to tell it." C. C. Olsson is a native of Sweden, but has been many years in this country. Before coming to the New York parks, 23 years ago, he worked for a time in the Joseph Heacock range, Wyncote, Pa., was a landscape gardener at the Chicago exposition of 1893, and held other important positions.

Hitchings & Co. have closed a contract with the Joseph Heacock Co. for the erection of an iron frame house at their Roloff, Pa., range 70x600 feet. It will have their new reconstructed type of rafters. They will also erect for Jesse King, Mt. Airy, Md., three houses 40x32 feet each. They have also under contract a fine conservatory for the city of Bridgeport, Conn., the first greenhouse that city has ever erected. They have also contracts with Herman Komitsch, Seaucus, N. J., for new houses. Also a contract with J. Ash of Vineland, N. J., for a house 32x100 feet.

Orchid and other plants have reached this port since Quarantine No. 37 took effect. Dr. Marlatt of the federal horticultural board is said to be in California, whereas the importers think he should be in Washington at such a time as this. Our latest advices are that the importers are yet uncertain as to whether or not the stock will be admitted. Considering the uncertainties of sea voyages, it would seem reasonable that the stock, being but a few days late, should be admitted.

Charles Huber, the retailer of Bedford avenue, at Fulton street, Brooklyn, sustained quite a loss from a fire, which originated in a wig factory over his store on the morning of June 1. He had a fine Japanese garden, which was ruined. The heroine of the fire was Susie, his pet monkey. Susie had a little bell in her cage which she had learned to ring when she wanted water, and as water is the essential at a fire, she vigorously rang the bell and gave the alarm.

The following well known members of the trade were in this city during the past week and called at Secretary Young's office: Frank Stuppy and mother, St. Joseph, Mo., stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria; E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., stopping at Hotel Breslin, who also visited C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., and other growers; W. H. Ritter, Fitchburg, Mass., and Dr. Walter A. Moore, Hollywood Gardens, Seattle, Wash.

Fred Lenz, who for the past 25 years has been with David Clarke's Sons, much of that time as their buyer, has transferred his services to J. G. Leikens. He is a clever man and has had long experience with a good firm, and wherever he goes, we wish him success.

At a meeting of wholesalers, held June 6, it was decided that, beginning July 1, all wholesale stores will close at 3 p. m., excepting Saturday, when they will be open till 6 p. m.

Growers Shipping to The Chicago Market

are invited to meet the Retailers of Chicago at the Randolph Hotel, Tuesday, June 17, at 8 P. M., for the betterment of trade conditions.

Chicago Retail Florists' Ass'n

New York Florists' Club.

The club met in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building on the evening of June 9, the final meeting until September 8. New members were elected as follows: F. E. Betheuser, 43 Barclay street, F. F. Rockwell, 220 West 42nd street, Derrill W. Hart, 58 West 51st street, Edward Koenig, 445 East 58th street.

Chairman Miller, of transportation committee, reported on trip to the convention of the S. A. F. at Detroit. Twenty-one persons have signified their intention of making the trip, and that number insures a special car, and there is a prospect that others may go. The train, over the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western R. R., will leave Hoboken at 8:55 p. m. August 17 and arrive at Buffalo at 7 a. m. the following day. The party will spend that day at Buffalo and Niagara Falls, leaving for Detroit by boat at 6 p. m., and reaching Detroit on the morning of August 19. The fare from New York to Buffalo will be $12.83 and by boat from Buffalo $5.94, including stateroom.

Arthur Herrington reported that the preliminary schedule for the flower show to be held in New York in the spring of 1920, had been distributed. He also spoke on the visit which the members of the flower show committee recently made to the estate of T. A. Havemeyer, by invitation of the latter. He spoke highly of the horticultural features of the Havemeyer estate, which is situated near Glen Head, L. I., also of their cordial reception. A vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Havemeyer was unanimous.

President Kessler, who has been active, in spare time from his business, in adding subscriptions to the Salvation Army fund, spoke on the subject. He had raised over $500 in the trade and on motion of Sergeant Edward Manda, the club voted $50 to complete the $500. Sergeant Manda, who is the son of Joseph A. Manda, has but recently returned from France, where he spent a year in the A. E. F., and till the armistice was signed, at the front. His report on personal experiences with the Salvation Army was highly favorable. He made an interesting talk on his experience in the army.

The president appointed the committee on nominations as follows: A. T. De La Mare, Walter F. Sheridan, Wallace R. Pierson, Emil Schloss, Edward Koehne, John B. Nugent, Jr., Joseph S. Fenrich.

The committee on new place of meeting through Chairman Henshaw, reported what was believed to be a suitable hall at 8 West 28th street. The committee was continued.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolglann, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, 216 Prospect Avenue, S. E., Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.
The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 24-26, 1919.

THE price of bags at Chicago, June 11, was $52.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Fred S. Plant spent May in California.

SALSIFY is reported a short crop and there is aphid in it now.

VISITED CHICAGO.—John D. Moore, of the John D. Moore Co., Billings, Mont.

THE winter wheat production predicted at 900 million bushels, is a record crop.

ONE California grower has under cultivation four hundred acres of sweet peas of various kinds.

BICOLOR VICTORIA narcissus is said to be one of the very short Dutch items. La Reine tulip is also scarce.

FRENCH BULB prospects are poorer than before, according to recent cables. Drought is the cause.

VISITED NEW YORK.—L. W. Wheeler and wife of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif.; A. Henderson, Chicago.

DENVER, COLO.—Fred Barteldes says his establishment at 1616 Champa street is the best equipped seed and flower store in the west.

GRASS SEED.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, June 11, were as follows: Timothy, $9.50 to $11.50 per 100 pounds.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Mr. and Mrs. Grove W. Comstock, announced the marriage of their daughter, Gladys Marshall Searle, to Edwin B. Northrup, June 2. At home after July 15 at 1931 Fremont avenue, south.

THE Seed Reporter of the department of agriculture, according to announcement in its issue of June 7, will probably be discontinued after that date, no provision for its further publication having been made by congress.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover market closed steady, June 10, at $27.00, a decline of 35 cents during the preceding seven days. October was quoted at $21.65. Timothy was firm, cash being offered at $5.45. September $6.07½ and October, $5.95.

WITH 1,000,000 acres planted to sugar beets, the United States will produce this year, it is estimated, a sugar crop of 11,000,000 tons, an increase of 30 per cent over 1918. Predictions not only on acreage, but upon condition of the fields. Reports indicate that the yield per acre will be 10 per cent to 25 per cent larger than last year.

Safety for Seedsmen.

Chicago.—"No accident week." June 22-28 inclusive, has been decided upon by the safety representatives of railroads in the central western region.

BLUEGRASS OUTLOOK.—From present indications, the Government Seed Reporter estimates the production in Kentucky should about equal that of last year, 350,000 bushels, the crop depending, however, on weather prevailing during the next two weeks. In Missouri, Kentucky bluegrass, from present appearances, will have about 85 per cent of the normal acreage stripped for seed, the reduction resulting from grazing and tilling other crops. The few reports received from Iowa indicate a generally short acreage with other conditions about normal.

Colorado Seed Crop Injury.

J. C. Robinson advises that a destructive frost visited Rocky Ford, Colo., June 1, destroying all tender vegetation above the ground. A majority of the seed crops were up, although some had just been planted. All crops above ground will have to be replanted and in many cases, farmers are refusing to plant, feeling they can put in safer crops in the form of sugar beets. This will cut acreage down considerably, but the extent of the damage cannot yet be estimated.

Onion Sets in Cook County.

In the northern section of the county, early seeding averages 50 per cent of a good stand, late seeding 75 per cent stand. Ninety per cent of the crop was in early.

In the southern section, the early seeding is 60 per cent good. Seventy-five per cent of the crop was in early.

Smut is worse than ever before, appearing on the old and some new fields.

Maggot is noticeable in all the fields but is not yet serious.

A favorable season will produce coarse sets, dry weather, a light crop.

IN OREGON.

Smut seems to be so seriously affecting the fields in the vicinity of Corvallis that many growers who formerly produced large yields have planted their acreage in potatoes and other crops.

New Seed and Bulb Bill

WITH PRISON PENALTY.

Congressman James F. Byrnes, of Aitken, S. C., has introduced a bill known as H. R. 478 in the House of Representatives, which was referred to the committee on agriculture, May 19, 1919, "to regulate commerce in adulterated and misbranded seed and prevent the sale and transportation thereof, and for other purposes."

The bill provides a penalty of a fine of $200 for the first offense and upon conviction for each subsequent offense not exceeding $300 or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both for any person who shall ship or deliver for shipment from any state or territory in the United States or the District of Columbia to any state or territory or the District of Columbia, or who shall receive and having so received, shall deliver in original unbroken packages, for pay or otherwise, or offer to deliver any seed or bulbs adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the act. It provides that the secretary of agriculture shall make uniform rules and regulations for carrying out the provisions of the measure, the examination of specimens to be made by the department of agriculture or under its supervision. According to the bill seeds and bulbs shall be deemed adulterated if they contain dead seed or weed seed or dead bulbs, or any other substance materially reducing the value for seeding and planting purposes. Seeds and bulbs shall be deemed misbranded when one kind or distinguishable variety shall be offered for sale under the name of another distinguishable variety, or if the article is falsely labeled or branded as to the state, territory, locality or country in which it is raised or produced, but no dealer shall be prosecuted who can establish a guaranty, signed by the wholesaler, jobber or other party residing in the United States from whom

Lily Bulb Import Permits.

Referring to the importation of lily and other bulbs in soil, sand, etc., the federal horticultural board writes as follows, May 24:

"We are unable to issue a permit for the importation of these bulbs through the port of Chicago. Permits for the importation of bulbs packed in sand, soil or earth are issued only for ports at which the board maintains inspection service, namely, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, New Orleans, San Francisco, and Seattle.

"There is no objection by the board to the issuance of a permit to the collector of customs at New York for the entry of these bulbs at that port for immediate transportation in bond to Chicago, provided the bulbs are held at New York long enough for inspection by an inspector of this board, or at least for an inspection of the entry papers to see that compliance with the regulations, in so far as foreign certification and sterilization are concerned, has been made. It is believed that such an arrangement can be made without breaking the through freight rate to Chicago."

Bribery in Commerce Legislation.

Congressman T. W. Sims, of Linden, Tenn., has introduced a bill known as H. R. 263 in the House of Representatives which was referred to the committee on interstate and foreign commerce May 19, 1919, "to further protect interstate and foreign commerce against bribery and other corrupt practices."

The bill provides for a fine of $2,000 or imprisonment for not more than two years, or both, in the case of any person, while engaged in interstate or foreign commerce, or in competition with others thus engaged, who shall give, offer, promise or loan to another individual, who is the employe of a customer or a prospective customer, or who is connected with any corporation, association, firm or partnership, money or anything of value for himself to influence the action of such recipient in relation to the business of his employer or principal. The bill also provides like penalties for any

California Seed Crop Conditions.

California vegetable seed growers, according to the Government Seed Reporter of June 7, report that prospects for a good crop are not as promising as at the corresponding time last year. The effects of the continuous drouth are noticeable in some sections, although the February precipitation was excessive in the upper coast, Santa Clara and delta districts. In San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties, a large part of the acreage is under irrigation and not entirely dependent upon rainfall. The present climate conditions have considerably checked the onion mildew, generally reported in the Santa Clara district, and to a lesser extent in the delta section. The aphid has caused considerable damage in certain fields of peas and radish, while some plantings of spinach have shown attacks of the ordinary cabbage louse. Radish fields in the majority of cases are in good condition with a normal yield in sight, although some crops were lost by drought in the southern part of the state and others washed out in the delta district. Onion growers believe that the yield of seed will fall below normal. It is too early to estimate the damage from mildew, but the plants seem to be affected throughout the Santa Clara valley from San Juan to San Jose. Favorable weather has arrested the trouble somewhat, but a few damp days without dry, may render the situation serious. Parsnip fields are in good condition with prospects of a normal crop. Garden peas, when planted early, and escaped being washed out by heavy rains, will produce fair yields, but below normal. Aphid has appeared in some of the later planted fields and considerable damage has resulted. Salsify is generally reported in good condition with a normal yield anticipated. Spinach suffered considerably from rains early in the season. Practically all tomato plants were set in the field by June 1 under favorable conditions and the acreage is considered about an average. In the section where the greatest acreage is planted, the dry spring increased the cost as irrigation was necessary. Beet, in the delta district, suffered from cold damp weather early in the season and the lack of rain since February has resulted in the tops not branching out as well as usual. However, rapid growth during the present month, will put many fields beyond the danger line. Bean-seed crops were practically all, in the ground May 24. Deficiency of moisture confined a large part of the acreage to land under irrigation, and some growers estimate the total acreage will be considerably shortened and the unusually dry spring may reduce the yield per acre. Carrot is generally reported to be in satisfactory condition and prospects are for a good crop. Growers estimate a decrease in acreage of 25 to 30 per cent as compared with 1918. Lettuce fields are all in very good condition, many being replanted following the dry spring in the southern part of the state and the heavy rainfall and cut-worm damage in the northern sections which caused a considerable loss of acreage early in the season.

Hardy Corn for Canada.

Winnipeg, Man.—After experiments lasting five years, Manitoba Agricultural College has developed three hardy species of fodder corn which mature early and are suited to a climate that has heretofore barred corn as a successful crop in this province. Government aid and encouragement in the raising of live stock, it is expected, will thus be strongly supplemented by enabling farmers of the province to raise the fodder that has played so large a part in development of live stock in Iowa and other states in the United States.

Sugar-Beet Seed from Germany.

The war trade board announces (W. T. B. R. 764) that applications for licenses to import into the United States sugar-beet seed from Germany, or which originated in Germany, will be considered. Licenses covering such importations, however, will not be issued until the importer in the United States has made effective arrangements to make the purchase price of such commodity available for the purchase of foodstuffs for Germany by depositing said purchase price with the American Relief Administration for remittance through said administration to the persons thereto entitled. The duplicate receipt issued by the American Relief Administration must be submitted to the bureau of imports of the war trade board when applications for licenses are filed.

Forage Plant Seed Imports for May.

The following table prepared in the seed laboratory of the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, shows the amount of the various kinds of forage plant seeds subject to the seed importation act permitted entry into the United States during the month of May, 1919, as compared with May, 1918:

Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President; C. W. Waid, Grand Rapids, Mich., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

GARDEN TRACTORS costing about $350 each are being used in Iowa trucking sections. They will work in tall crops late in the season when horses cannot be used.

Farms for Soldiers and Sailors.

Governors Robertson of Oklahoma and Davis of Idaho have added their endorsements to Secretary Lane's project for farms for soldiers and sailors. Testifying before the House public lands committee, Governor Robertson said the measure should be enacted because it offered something practical to the soldiers and helped agricultural development. Governor Davis told of letters he had received from soldiers indicating a great demand for farm lands.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 10.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen boxes, $1.50 to $2.25; celery, Florida, crate, $3.50 to $4.50; leaf lettuce, per box, 10 to 15 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $2.00; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $4.00 to $6.50.

New York, June 9.—Celery (Florida), per crate, 75 cents to $2.50; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.25 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $5.00 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 5 to 18 cents; lettuce, per package, 25 cents to $4.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.00 to $2.00.

Stem-End Rot of Watermelon Control.

The United States department of agriculture calls attention to a simple and inexpensive treatment of the stems at the time watermelons are loaded for shipment which will prevent stem-end rot, the most menacing disease that melon growers in the south Atlantic states have to contend with. The treatment consists of applying with a brush to the freshly cut stems a disinfectant paste made of common starch with which has been mixed six per cent of copper sulphate, commonly called bluestone.

In making the disinfecting paste, use a large kettle of enameled ware, as the bluestone attacks iron or tin. Place 3½ quarts of water and eight ounces of bluestone in the kettle and bring the mixture to a boil. While it is heating mix in a separate vessel 4 ounces of starch with one pint of cold water, stirring until a milky solution free from lumps is obtained. As soon as the bluestone is entirely dissolved and the solution is boiling, add the starch mixture, pouring it in a slow stream and stirring the hot solution vigorously to prevent the formation of lumps. Continue boiling and stirring until the starch thickens evenly, which should not require more than two minutes after the addition of the starch. It may be tested at intervals by allowing it to run from the end of a paddle.

Before loading the melons the car should be well bedded with clean, dry straw. Pine needles may be used if they are entirely dry, although straw is better. Wet straw should not be used, as the moisture will hasten the decay of the melons. Loading should be done the same day the melons are clipped from the vines. Only those melons should be loaded that have a firm, green stem. As soon as the melons are packed in a car the stem should be recut and the paste applied with a round brush to the freshly cut stem, care being used not to smear the melon.

Vegetable Markets.

As indicated by reports received by the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, for the period June 3-9, carlot shipments were about one-fourth heavier than during the preceding week with markets irregular and weak. Old potatoes showed further declines and the supply included much sprouted and inferior stock. No. 1 northern white stock, sacked, ruled five cents lower in the Chicago carlot market at $1.75-$2 per 100 pounds. Minneapolis closed $1.60-$1.65. New York round white in bulk ranged $1.75-$2.50 in leading markets. Maine Green Mountains declined sharply, closing at $1.50-$2.25. New potatoes were generally weaker. South Carolina Cobblers followed an irregular fairly steady range of $9-$10 in leading consuming markets. North Carolina Cobblers went at $8.50-$10 in terminal markets and $7.50-$8 to growers. Florida Spaulding Rose followed a jobbing range of $9-$9.50 but reached $12 in Boston, Mass. Texas Yellow Bermuda onions averaged 25 cents lower in consuming markets at $3-$4.50 per crate and offerings included considerable damaged stock. California Bermudas ranged steady at $3.50-$3.75 f. o. b. and closed at a general jobbing range of $4-$5. Cabbage markets continued weak and prices fell sharply in all sections. Virginia Wakefields ranged $2.50-$3 per barrel in consuming markets. Mississippi stock declined 50 cents in producing sections to $1.75-$1.85 per crate f. o. b. Fancy Florida tomatoes followed a slightly weaker range in northern consuming markets at $3-$4 per 6-basket carrier. New York continued very weak closing at $1.50-$2.

Cleveland.

HEAVY SUPPLY GLUTS MARKET.

With a shortened demand since Memorial day, and a decided increase in the supply of all kinds of flowers, the market is now suffering from a glut of no small proportions. Sweet peas and calendulas, as well as carnations, show the effects of the heat and their keeping qualities are below par. Peonies are arriving in large numbers and thousands are going into storage. Even department stores are handling them, which is something out of the ordinary here. Local fancy and dagger ferns are now being received. Asparagus and adiantum are equal to all requirements. Lily of the valley is none too plentiful as the outdoor stock is about done for.

NOTES.

In order to take care of its increasing business, the Christine Flower Co. has moved to a more commodious store four doors east of its former location. A new Buick car has been added to the service, and is to be seen in the down town district daily in care of Mrs. Keres, who owns and manages the business.

Frank Rigo and wife, of East 79th street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Rose, to Julius Lesnianski. After the wedding, the young couple plan to open a flower store in Akron, in which city they will make their home.

E. A. Wilhelmy, who has been in the florist business since boyhood, is going to retire. Several good real estate deals recently have placed him on "easy street."

Frank Ritzenthaler, of the Knoble Bros. Co., has purchased a new Essex since his return from France.

Mrs. Walter Rohusek is confined to her bed with an attack of rheumatism. C. F. B.

Rochester, N. Y.

WARM WEATHER STAGNATES BUSINESS.

Extremely hot weather characterized the past week, the thermometer mounting to 88 in the shade, with the result that there was a marked falling off in transient trade. Funerals, weddings and commencements kept the stores busy, however. All outdoor stocks, such as peonies, irises, sweet peas, etc., showed the effect of the heat. Roses flew open almost as soon as cut. Outdoor lily of the valley also deteriorated.

NOTES.

June 1 was lilac day at Highland park and thousands of visitors from this city and vicinity viewed the magnificent masses of bloom on the hill-sides of the park which are fairly ablaze with color. Hundreds of varieties were in full flower and the effect was heightened by the fine showing made by the rhododendrons and azaleas. With the background of evergreens, the effect was complete.

Aubrey L. White, president of the park board of Spokane, Wash., was a visitor to this city. Commenting on the lilac display, he said it was worth the trip of 3,000 miles to see this wonderful collection. CHESTER.

Holyoke and Northampton Club.

The regular meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held, June 3, the members being the guests of George Strugnel, head gradener at "Bonny Briar," Holyoke, Mass. President Harold Keyes occupied the chair. It was voted to omit the July and August meetings. The members present had an opportunity to see the result of many years' excellent work at "Bonny Briar" by Mr. Strugnel and the inspection of the grounds was thoroughly enjoyed. A. H.

The Nickel's Discoverer.

At the age of 25 years the late Frank W. Woolworth, several years after he had left the farm, was a clerk in a country store. His salary was $8.50 a week, and on it he supported a wife and child and saved the capital of $50 with which he started in business. He lived to see his company operate 1068 stores in the United States, and to erect and give his name to the loftiest habitable edifice ever erected. The beautiful structure, towering 751 feet, is the familiar first sign and symbol of the imperial city and its material wonders. And all this in a short life from nickels and ten-cent pieces. The Ford of the merchandising world, the flivver of trade, the great fortune came from the savings of superior organization and a multitude of transactions. The pessimists steadily croaked that the old America is no more—that opportunity's door is shut. But when a leader of the business world dies and his biography is read there is commonly a repetition of the old, old story. Yet Lenin cannot understand why America will not go Bolshevik, and the alien class-shrieker curses as he meets incredulous smiles.—New York Tribune.

Golden Period for Farmers.

Thomas Reynolds of the Quaker Oats Co., who recently returned from eastern Canada, says that despite a fairly large supply of wheat in that country and the United States, the price of wheat will not go down. Peace will bring all America greater prosperity. European nations need all the ### American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Counsel; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia., Treasurer; Chas. Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., Secretary. Forty-fourth annual convention will be held at Chicago, June 25-27, 1919.

WAUKEGAN, ILL.—The well known Douglas Nurseries of this place have been acquired by Emil Bollinger of Lake Forest.

A FINE display is anticipated at the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society at Detroit, Mich., next week, June 17-18.

JAPANESE BARBERRY HARMLESS.—The Japanese or dwarf barberry (Berberis Thunbergii) does not rust according to department of agriculture experts, and, being entirely harmless, should not be included in the eradication campaign against the common barberry.

Shrubs Useful for Drives and Borders.

Two plants useful for covering the margins of drives and the borders of shrubberies, Rhus canadensis (aromatica) and the yellow root (Xanthorrhiza apifolia) are covered with flowers. Those of the former are small, pale yellow, arranged in compact heads, and appear before or with the unfolding of the leaves composed of three leaflets; those of the yellow root are purple in long drooping, terminal racemes. The flowers of these two eastern American plants are attractive, but their great horticultural value is in their habit of growth. The height of the rhus is from two to four feet, with spreading branches, the lowest flat on the ground, and with an irregular top. In the autumn the leaves turn bright scarlet. For road borders and to plant when it is desirable to make a connection between larger shrubs and the ground no other plant which has been tried here has proved so successful. The yellow root is a dwarf shrub which soon spreads over a wide border and forms with its erect stems and divided leaves an excellent ground cover. Unfortunately it has failed to grow well in those parts of the country where the soil is strongly impregnated with lime.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 6, 1919.

Japanese Nursery Stock.

United States Consul General George H. Scidmore, writing from Yokohama April 1, says:

"For the first time in the annals of Japan's foreign trade Japanese merchants of Yokohama and Tokyo recently received, through the medium of the Yokohama plants and vegetables inspection bureau, orders from the United States for 2,000,000 young persimmon trees, according to the Eastern Commerce. Several experts from that bureau are now making an inspection of such trees brought to Tokyo from Angyo, Saitama Prefecture, and other districts of eastern Japan, where the trees are largely grown. The merchants concerned have found it difficult to execute all the orders, and it is expected that only half of the number will be shipped during this year.

"For many years past dried persimmons have been exported from Yokohama to the United States in large quantities. It is reported that last year a method for extracting astringent juice from persimmons was invented in the United States, and this is the reason for the large order of young persimmon trees from Japan. In addition to persimmon trees, the Yokohama Nursery Co. and other parties have received large orders from America for the shipment of azaleas and other flowering plants."

Nursery Stock Names Under Fire.

Supplementing the expressions of the trade on Congressman Louis C. Cramton's bill, providing for naming and labeling nursery stock, published in our issues of May 31 and June 7, we are in receipt of the following:

WM. H. MOON CO., MORRISVILLE, PA.

"You are indeed alert in so promptly calling the attention of nurserymen to the bill now pending in Congress regarding the naming of nursery stock.

"We have read a copy of this bill, as published in your paper, but have not conferred with any nurserymen about it. It occurs to us, however, that we should not take exception to the act, as any of us, attempting to do a legitimate business, intend to use every effort and precaution that we can, to label our products truthfully. We, of course, are not fond of having penalties put over our head, when any employes should carelessly, or any one intentionally, in our organization, mislabel a plant. These things will sometimes happen, without the management's knowledge.

"We do, however, believe that the majority of nurserymen use every precaution possible to label their products honestly. This law will not affect such, unless mistakes inadvertently occur. It will, however, tend to make some people a little more careful, for it has been reported, that in the rush of seasons, rhubarb roots have been sent out for pæonies, or gooseberries for Persian Yellow roses. Practices like this we have to stop, and it is well that it should be so.

"Will not this act do for nurserymen, very much the same thing the pure food and drugs act has done for those industries? If it will, we do not think that we should oppose the act. We would very much dislike to be put in a position of opposing an act which, after all, merely requires honesty, of a firm or individual.

"Of course, the attorney for the National Association of Nurserymen, and the executive committee of that association will, however, peruse the bill, and see if there are objectionable features in it, that could be modified.

"Let us congratulate you again, however, in so promptly calling the attention of the trade, to matters of this kind."

J. F. JONES, LANCASTER, PA.

"While substitution and willful misrepresentation is very much to be deplored, mistakes will happen in the best regulated nursery practice, and this bill, as proposed, would be ruinous to the legitimate nursery trade and work hardship on the tree planter, as it would tend to weed out reliable men from the trade, and the crook would be willing to take a chance, as he would have nothing to lose. According to the wording of this bill, if enacted into law, a nursery firm would be liable to punishment for mistakes made by their employes who would not have the work at heart, and in many cases make willful misrepresentations, contrary to the wishes and orders of the firm.

"The agitators, who are either law-makers or would-be lawmakers, have gone crazy on reform laws, so-called. What we need is more common sense and a broader understanding of each and every business nationally. It's a safe bet that the author of that bill has not informed himself properly on the nursery business.

"I would very much like to see willful misrepresentation and substitution, and all other crooked practices, stopped if it can be done, but those who have made a careful study of the situation have agreed that it is practically impossible to enact laws that will cover these matters satisfactorily; in other words, laws that will not punish alike the crook and the honest dealer or nurseryman, for, as I have said, mistakes will happen in the best regulated nursery business.

"I would be glad to see laws enacted that would punish the willful crook if it can be done without working hardship on the honest man at the same time."

SARCOXIE NURSERIES, SARCOXIE, MO.

"We consider this proposed bill unreasonable. According to the reading of it, intention is immaterial, and a mistake of labeling even one tree or plant, would incur the penalty. We consider the requirement that the variety be labeled with the person who grew it and the place where it was grown to be an unreasonable request. We see no necessity for such, and it would make a vast amount of work for those handling stock grown by several growers. If the stock is well grown, what difference does it make who grew it, or where it was grown?"

"We believe that the requirement that each plant, or the original unbroken package thereof shall be labeled, will cause confusion. Will they construe it that a bunch is an unbroken package and one label is sufficient? Or if there is a bale containing two varieties in two separate bundles, would the bale be considered the unbroken package, and would one have to label each individual tree or plant? In the latter case, you can see what a nuisance it would be if there were say a thousand carnations rooted or a thousand strawberry plants.

"It strikes us that every once in awhile, sometimes twice in awhile, some congressman who does not know anything about a given line of business, thinks he has to regulate it. We are in favor of keeping the nursery business on a high plane, but unreasonable regulation does not tend to that end."

E. P. BERNARDIN, PARSONS, KAN.

"The vicious feature of the proposed bill is in the provision for the regulations of the secretary of agriculture. This makes it virtually a one man's law, and gives him the privilege of making some very drastic regulations, that would be almost impossible for any one to comply with, and it has been this feature in our inspection laws of the different states that has caused so much trouble, and so many misunderstandings between the inspectors and the inspected. The bill will also raise the question as to what is an original package, and this of course will come under the secretary's regulations. If every tree, or bundle changed or killed outright. Some action will undoubtedly be taken at the association meeting to be held in Chicago, June 25-27.

W. B. COLE, PAINESVILLE, O.

"This bill is too absurd to be taken seriously, were it not for the fact that legislation and regulations nearly as foolish have been enacted and enforced against nurserymen in the past. Such a law as proposed, if enforced, would destroy the nursery business. No nurseryman would feel safe in selling a single plant that could not be positively identified by appearance, and very few plants can be so identified at the time they are offered for sale. No nurseryman would dare to grow and offer more than one variety of a class for fear of misplacement or mixing of sorts,

"Here's hoping that such a bill does not pass, and if it should, that nurserymen be given ample notice to wind up their affairs."

HOOPEE, BRO. & THOMAS CO.

"Referring to the Cramton bill, published in your issue of May 24, no doubt this is being taken up by the proper parties in the American Association of Nurserymen. We, however, have called the attention of the parties in charge of this class of work in that body to the new bill.

"We are having so many laws and regulations passed that it is very difficult to tell just where the business is going to land. It seems to us as if Congress had better commence to unmake a lot of the useless laws they have on their books now, and attend to the business of reconstruction of the country, instead of trying to tear down one of the oldest and most important industries that the country has."

SWAN RIVER NURSERY, PATCHOGUE, N. Y.

"We do not see how a measure of this kind can justly be enacted, as it is not possible for nurserymen to always state definitely that the trees he is shipping are true to name, nor can he always tell where the trees he is shipping come from, nor whether the original grower labeled them right or not. It might be all right to condemn a nurseryman who wilfully did any of these acts, but since he cannot be responsible for others, it is unjust and discriminating, in our estimation."

DENNY TAG CO., WEST CHESTER, PA.

"In connection with a new bill which has been introduced into the House, proposing a law that would require the tagging of all nursery stock, it would, of course, be decidedly to our advantage to see a law of this kind go into effect for the reason that it would probably have a tendency to make quite a larger demand for tags. In addition to this, it would prevent, to a great extent, any possibility of a fraud in the way of wrong marking of trees, shrubbery and plants."

ANDORA NURSERIES, CHESTNUT HILL, PA.

"Regarding the legislation referred to in your May 24 issue, this is the first we have seen of this, and we have read it very carefully. We cannot see but what it will not be a prison penalty, but a mighty good thing for every nurseryman who is doing a good clean business and selling what he agrees to sell. This is a piece of legislation which we should by all means favor. The only people who object to it are the crooks who sell a man a Baldwin apple and ship him something else."

Hort. Society of New York Exhibition.

The Horticultural Society of New York held an exhibition of peonies and miscellaneous stock in the Museum building, Bronx park, June 7-8. The hot wave of the week ending June 7 had a bad effect on all peonies, very noticeable in exhibition stock. Under more favorable weather conditions, the peony exhibits would have been fine, as good varieties were shown, and in fact they held up better than might have been expected under the conditions, though a cool wave arrived June 8.

But show or no show, a visit to Bronx park at this time of year is worth while. To get away from the city's "maddening crowd," breathe purer air, and walk among the splendid trees is rest and recreation. The trees are now at their best, and though it is impossible to here enumerate even a small number of varieties that are in the wide expanse of the park, the short walk from the train to the museum shows beautiful maples, fine specimens of Koster's spruce, tulip and many other trees.

Again referring to the peony exhibition, the only displays were those of the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y.; T. A. Havemeyer, Glen Head, N. Y., and Theodore R. Hoyt, Stamford, Conn., the awards being as follows: Three white varieties, six blooms of each—T. A. Havemeyer, (A. Lahodney, Gr.) first; Cottage Gardens Co., second. Three light pink varieties, six blooms of each—T. A. Havemeyer, first; Cottage Gardens Co., second. Three rose varieties, six blooms each—

HEAVY SUPPLY AND LITTLE DEMAND.

Business has been at a standstill since Memorial day, with more stock than at any time during the season and no demand for it. Most of the receipts are not of good quality and are beginning to show the effects of warm weather. American Beauties are arriving in large quantities but as they are not very good they are hard to move. Of other roses, Killarney in pink and white are the favorites for June weddings, with Ophelia a close second. Sunburst and Hilda are poor and go slowly. Russell seems to be the best shipper, but the supply is limited. Carnations are becoming small and sell for almost any price. The local crop of peonies is in and although of very good quality, the demand is light. Some very good gladioli are being received and move easily at $10 and $12 per 100. A few poor quality callas are seen. The supply of yellow daisies, irises and snapdragons about meets requirements.

Seventeenth Annual Meeting and Exhibition, Detroit, Mich., June 17-18.

Good Show Despite Adverse Conditions.

The seventeenth annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society, which was held in the hall of the Board of Commerce, Lafayette avenue and Wayne street, Detroit, Mich., June 17-18, was staged under the most adverse conditions, chief among which was the extremely warm weather during the past 10 days, not alone at the place of exhibition, but at the locations where the flowers were grown. Despite this severe handicap, the stock showed remarkably good form in most classes. Local growers, however, except in a few cases, were unable to make displays, owing to the fact that their blooms, affected by the high temperature, had advanced beyond the condition where the stock was available for exhibition purposes. One of the features of the show was the fine display of T. C. Thurlow's Sons, Inc., West Newbury, Mass., proprietors of the Cherry Hill Nurseries, consisting of more than 2,000 blooms, the car in which they were brought to the exhibition being iced, the stock placed in tubs of water. The expense connected with transporting this shipment, which arrived in perfect condition on the morning of June 16, was $300. George C. Thurlow and Winthrop Thurlow were on hand to see to its effective arrangement. Lee R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O., also accompanied his flowers, which were staged with the least possible delay, and their condition maintained well until the hour of judging, and even later. All in all, there were about 5,000 blooms on display and many exhibitors present expressed the opinion that the quality was the best seen at the shows of the society during the past three years.

This year no admission fee was charged, and the special effort of the Detroit Florists' Club, through newspaper publicity and other means, resulted in the public attending the show in great numbers, and much interest was manifested as indicated by the number of persons who made notes of the winning varieties and others that met their favor, while the amateur growers, who were well represented, as well as those interested from a commercial standpoint, seemed to realize the increasing importance of this flower.

T. C. Thurlow's Sons included in their extensive display some well grown plants in bloom of mountain laurel, which were very attractive and a distinct feature of the general exhibition.

The Business Session.

At the business session, presided over by Past-President B. H. Farr, which was held on the evening of June 16, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Lee R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O., president; A. H. Fewkes, Newton Highlands, Mass., vice-president; Professor A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., secretary; A. H. Scott, Oak Lane, Pa., treasurer. B. H. Farr was chosen director to succeed himself, and T. A. Havemeyer was elected to fill the unexpired term of Lee R. Bonnewitz. The report of Treasurer Scott showed the society's finances to be in good condition with $1,243.10 cash on hand and $500 invested in Liberty bonds. President Boyd's address was read and well received. G. K. Schultz and Retiring-president Boyd were elected auditors and the report of the judges was read and adopted. It was decided to hold the next annual meeting at Reading, Pa.

A banquet tendered to the visitors on Tuesday evening, previous to the business session, was a most enjoyable occasion.

The Awards.*OPEN CLASSES, CUT BLOOMS.

Collection not more than 100 named varieties, one bloom each—T. C. Thurlow's Sons, West Newbury, Mass., American Peony Society's gold medal; Lee R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O., 2nd; B. H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa., 3rd.

Vase or basket of peonies, not less than 100 blooms, arranged for effect—T. C. Thurlow's Sons, 1st; Bomb Floral Co., Detroit, Mich., 2nd.

Collection of 25 varieties, double, three blooms each—T. C. Thurlow's Sons, 1st; B. H. Farr, 2nd.

Collection of single varieties, one bloom each—T. C. Thurlow's Sons, 1st.

Twenty-five blooms, white or cream, double, one variety—T. C. Thurlow's Sons, 1st; B. H. Farr, 2nd.

Twenty-five blooms, light pink, or pink and cream, double, one variety—B. H. Farr, 1st; T. C. Thurlow's Sons, 2nd.

Twenty-five blooms, dark pink, double, one variety—Miss Blacklock, Meadowdale, Ont., 1st; T. C. Thurlow's Sons, 2nd.

Twenty-five blooms, red or crimson, double, one variety—B. H. Farr, 1st; Miss Blacklock, 2nd.

Six specimen blooms, double, any variety—A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., 1st; T. C. Thurlow's Sons, 2nd.

One specimen bloom, double, any variety—A. P. Saunders, 1st; Lee R. Bonnewitz, 2nd.

Collection of new varieties, double, introduced since 1900, one bloom of each—A. P. Saunders, 1st.

Specimen bloom, new seedling of American origin, not yet in commerce—A. P. Saunders for Grace McLean.

New seedlings—A. P. Saunders, first class certificate for Grace Loomis; B. H. Farr, honorable mention for seedling No. 6.

Most artistic arrangement of not more than 25 peonies in vase, bowl, or basket—Bomb Floral Co., 2nd.

Best vases American varieties, three blooms each—A. P. Saunders, first, for Milton Hill, Walter Faxon, Grandiflora, Longfellow, Martha Bullock; D. W. Rupp, St. Paul, Minn., second; for Martha Bullock.

ADVANCED AMATEURS, CUT BLOOMS.

Collection of not more than 100 named varieties, double, one bloom of each—L. R. Bonnewitz, 2nd.

Collection of not more than 50 named varieties, double, one bloom of each—A. P. Saunders, 1st.

Collection of 10 named varieties, double, three blooms of each—A. P. Saunders, 1st; L. R. Bonnewitz, 2nd.

Vase of 15 blooms, double, one variety—Will McClellan, Saginaw, Mich., 1st; Jacob Baumann, Birmingham, Mich., 2nd.

Collection of Japanese varieties, not more than three blooms of each variety—A. P. Saunders, 1st; L. R. Bonnewitz, 2nd; Herman Schmidt, Detroit, Mich., 3rd.

Collection of white varieties, double, one bloom of each—A. P. Saunders, 1st; L. R. Bonnewitz, 2nd.

Collection of light pink, or pink and cream varieties, double, one bloom of each—L. R. Bonnewitz, 1st; A. P. Saunders, 2nd.

Collection of dark red or crimson varieties, double, one bloom of each—L. R. Bonnewitz, 1st.

NOVICE AMATEURS, CUT BLOOMS.

Vase of three blooms, white, double, any variety—Harry Eckenberry, Van Wert, O., 1st; L. R. Bonnewitz, 2nd; Joseph A. Schulte, Detroit, Mich., 3rd.

Vase of three blooms, light pink, or pink and cream, double, any variety—Alice Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O., 1st.

Vase of three blooms, dark pink, double, any variety—Harry Eckenberry, 1st.

Vase of three blooms, red or crimson, double, any variety—Alice Bonnewitz, 1st.

SPECIAL CLASSES.

For the best four white peonies grown in the city of Detroit—Joseph A. Schulte, 1st.

For the best four white peonies grown in the state of Michigan outside of Detroit—Will McClellan, 1st.

James Boyd, Haverford, Pa.
President American Peony Society.

For the best four pink peonies grown in Detroit—Joseph A. Schulte, 1st.

For the best four pink peonies grown in the state, outside of Detroit—Will McClellan, 1st.

PRIVATE GARDENS ONLY.

Best collection of 25 blooms, not less than five varieties—A. P. Saunders, 1st; Will McClellan, 2nd; Mrs. Lenora Kudner, Lapeer, Mich., 3rd.

"Brown Patches" on Lawns.

Objectionable "brown patches" appear on fine lawns, greenswards, and the putting greens of golf courses usually during the hot, moist weather of summer, the disease being most noticeable when the weather is hot and muggy, and on ground which is kept too moist by insufficient drainage or heavy sprinkling. The brown spots, caused by a fungus, are at first more or less circular and grow in centrifugal fashion, becoming a foot or more in diameter.

Prevention is the practical way of decreasing the damage wrought by this turf disease, according to the United States department of agriculture. Preventive measures consist in providing thorough drainage, both of the surface and subsoil. Watering should be done in the morning, in the case of golf courses, the purpose being to have the courses as dry as practicable during the night. The growing of turf plants immune or highly resistant to the disease—Bermuda grass in the south and blue grass and white clover in the north—is the ideal method of prevention, but the last two are not the most desirable for putting greens or for lawns of superior quality. The fescues and the bents, the peers of all fine turf grasses, are markedly susceptible to the "brown patch" disease. Persistent spraying with Bordeaux mixture, in amount just sufficient to moisten the leaves and crowns of the grass, without thoroughly wetting the ground will check the damage but frequent applications are necessary. The difficulty attending the use of Bordeaux or any similar fungicide is that as soon as it has been removed from the plants by rain or by continued mowing, the fungus breaks out in new places, undeterred by the fungicide which is on the surface of the soil or on the older stems and leaves. As a rule, mixed grasses on putting greens or lawns are less injured than individual settings of pure-bred varieties. However, mixtures will never result in the fine turf which comes from setting such grasses as velvet bent, carpet bent, or red fescue. Incidentally the high susceptibility of mouse-ear chickweed, or "creeping Charlie" is a special reason for eradicating all patches of these plants from putting greens or high-quality lawns.

The common lawn plants seem susceptible to the brown patch disease in about this order: Mouse-ear chickweed, red fescue, red top, velvet bent, carpet bent, rough-stalked meadow grass, speedwell and yarrow. Frequently, especially in the case of mouse-ear chickweed and speedwell, the disease does not spread beyond the boundaries of the plant attacked, but in other cases several species of plants may be involved in the same spot.

Making the Most of Summer.

The dull season of the year is approaching. It will soon, with its "nothing doing" increasingly long intervals, take possession, and, if let alone, run things with all possible lassitude. The man who is on the job, however, who has planned for a record-breaking business for the year, who is determined to make the most of the summer months, has no time for "Mr Dull Season;" the flies, dust and cobwebs find no secure landing place in his shop, and the "nothing doing" periods are so few and far between as to be scarcely noticeable.

As long as enthusiasm for the business lasts, there will be work planned out ahead that will tax the facilities of the establishment and bridge over the dull season nicely. Ideas are constantly being created in the active mind, the result of previous successes, that appear to follow one another logically, and nearly always prove to be a step forward. During the so-called busy season, the working force have their daily routine more or less varied, according to the demand, but each has his or her work to do to the best of their ability.

When this period has past, and the business narrows down to the mortuary and other light summer demands, the energy of the store force is to be turned into other, and what might be called preparatory channels, working up stock for the coming season, according to a well-planned schedule, that utilizes and turns to good account the full value of the workers in making up all kinds of imperishable material, such as oak and magnolia foliage wreaths, Japanese chenille wreaths and crosses, statice and rusus wreaths, etc.

All work of such a character created at this season, is time saved, or turned to good account, and as time is money, it can be said to be truly earned, for every $100 worth that goes into stock is just like so much money added to the bank account. When the active demand rolls round again, the stock is found prepared, ready, salable, and the effort necessary to produce it, is then free to engage in other equally important lines that require immediate attention. When the inventory is taken, which, by the way, is one of the most important matters of stockkeeping, and should be finished in detail showing every item of stock contained in the building, from the basement to the roof, on or before July 1, there will be found much that is unsalable and so shopworn as to be totally unfit for a place on the shelves. While some of the articles have been carried over, year after year, in the hope that they would come in some time, they are for the most part junk and should be thrown out. Anything that can be salvaged, should be set to one side, and the time given to its repair and putting in a useful or salable condition, is well worth while. All kinds of decorative material, such as plant stands, pot covers, or floor vases, that have seen another year's service will be the better for a nail here and there and a coat of paint; a dark olive or plant green is best, as all such material should be as inconspicuous as possible.

WEDDING PRESENTS IN FLOWERS AND PLANTS.

Japanese Bamboo Vase of Snapdragon, Iris and Calendulas—See Issue of May 31, Page 942.

A great help to the wicker pot cover with the wooden bottom, is a coil or band of stout rattan, nailed to the base close up to the wicker edge. This guard acts as a buffer when the covers with plants in them, come down hard on the floor at an angle, which often splits the bottom. A ring of rattan outside and in, will make a very good repair for such a break.

In nine shops out of 10 the painting of the interior woodwork is done by the handyman of the store, who gets to be quite an adept, and puts up a very good job. This finish, unless necessity demands it, is best left for the early autumn so as to be bright and fresh when the season opens.

It is well to keep in touch with customers during the summer season, with an occasional circular letter, offering a good stock of seasonable flowers, and reminding them that the store is ready with its best service, their orders by mail receiving the same attention as when personally selected.

Every store should have a list of anniversary events, particularly those for which they have had business, and see that none of this work gets away from them. Scarcely a day passes that celebrations of this character are not recorded or featured in the newspapers. To have a number of such affairs coming along during the summer months, will add not a little to the business and help to keep things moving.

Do not neglect the window. Somebody is always passing. Several cibotiums will make a fine setting for a centerpiece. It may be a large vase or vase basket of outdoor flowers, or a handsome large magnolia or oak leaf wreath, trimmed with sago leaves, all or partially gilded. Such wreaths are very attractive as show pieces. Pond lilies and lotus flowers are good for a change. The main point is always to have something that is worth while stopping to look at, and which keeps the store in mind.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The hot summer days are here when the sudden bursts of heat are distressing, particularly to customers who have been shopping around town. There should be a chair or two handy for such to rest themselves and a fan, together with a glass of cold water. Such attentions are appreciated.

The gladioli America and Mrs. Francis King, are now in fine form, particularly the indoor stock. America with larkspur, which is also plentiful, make very decorative vases for window or store display. Dorothy Perkins, American Pillar and other rambler roses can also be used effectively. Hydrangea aborescens is fine for all kinds of design work as is Lilium candidum.

Weddings and commencements are still a factor and make good business while there are such quantities of flowers. Keep a stock of made up small vase baskets at hand, displayed in the window and on tables or counter. They are sure to attract attention and are just the thing for those who do not know exactly what they want.

Be particular about the appearance of the store. There should be nothing in sight, that is not salable. Change the interior frequently; customers will notice and comment on it. They like to see a clean and tidy shop. Odd color combinations of bright flowers massed in a vase basket from which they can be sold will be effective. A few studied examples of this character will be sure to be called artistic.

Use the seasonable outside flowers in funeral work. Beautiful sprays may be made with such stock, if artistically put together. When an idea is obtained as to the price, then the florist should advise a cluster, wreath or basket, which as he describes it, is quite sure to be satisfactory. It is the art as much, or more than the flowers, that brings the money. The variegated leaves of the funkia or the golden privet can be used very effectively with outside flowers.

Water lilies and the lotus have a very summery appearance. Floating in large bowls of water, they are in a class by themselves. The lotus should be placed in vases that will hold them erect. They are both very showy. The large white water lilies can be used effectively in early morning funeral pieces, as they will not close up until late in the day.

Oak leaf branches can also be used with good effect, standing in vases of water and fibre jars, covered with cedar bark, make good receptacles. Young well shaped trees, cut off and stood in water, will keep fresh for quite awhile. Where the store room or show windows are large, such material gives a cool and seasonable appearance. Its use conserving that of more costly plants and flowers.

Color effects in the store room or window that is well lighted, are wonderfully effective. Yellow and white, blue and white or shades of yellow, make a good background.

Lattice work for certain walls, or for movable screens, painted a medium to light shades of blue, with pedestals or vases the same color, are especially fitted to hold, or as a background, for pink flowers. Pink water lilies are greatly enhanced if floating in a shallow blue bowl.

Bring out the picture frame and let your painting consist of a blue shallow bowl of water, on which are floating pink and white water lilies. A pink or blue velvet cloth, a lighter shade than the bowl, should be used as a setting and also for a background. Such a picture is, for the day, a rose arranged in a black or rose to take its place at night.

A little conceit is the miniature fruit bouquet to be made of cherries, strawberries, blackberries and the like. With a pretty lace paper, it looks finished and very tempting.

The national campaign publicity committee are crying help! help! Stop, look, and listen. Help them with a ten dollar bill, and at the same time take a great stride forward in your business. There will be many more flowers the coming season, and it is up to all branches of the trade to help make a market for them. If each man will do his part, it will give the business a great impetus. Do yours, and do it now.

THE ROSE.

Care of the Young Stock.

Easter has come and gone, and from all accounts, the receipts were of the record-breaking order. So we can pick up the work at the loose ends and get busy straightening up again. Now is the time to get the young stock planted. Make up your mind if you have not already done so, what you are going to throw out, and get the beds emptied, refilled and planted, just as quickly as the work can be handled properly. Now is the time to get the extra help, and get enough so that the emptying and refilling can go straight through without a hitch. By getting sufficient force, the regular help can keep right along with the planting by getting several beds in readiness before starting to plant. There is some difference of opinion as to the proper amount of soil required on raised benches for best results. We have always found that six inches of soil, leveled off before packing, will settle down to about four inches along toward fall, which allows for mulching without having the mulch washed off when using the hose. Of course, when levelling off the soil on the raised benches, the earth should be pulled against the sides of the bench and pressed quite firmly, otherwise it will settle too much. Then when leveled off it is a good plan to press the soil down by walking on it. It may take longer to plant in soil packed in this way, but the rose plants must have a good firm soil to work in, in order to make roots rapidly.

Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.
President of American Rose Society.

When ready to lay off the rows, take a strip 1x2 inches and one foot wider than the bed. Let about six inches extend on either side of the bed; drive a nail through the strip the two inch way for a guide, then drive a nail for each row using a 20-penny nail for each row and drive them just far enough through so as to make a distinct mark on the soil. With a man on each side of the bed, holding the strip straight across and keeping the outside guide nail always against the bench facing, the rows for the whole bed can be laid off almost as fast as the men can walk, and they will be absolutely the same distance apart. The solid borders can, of course, be laid off in the same manner. For spacing the plants in the row, about 14 inches will be sufficient for the average indoor roses such as Ophelia, Shawyer, Sunburst, Double White Killarney, Ward, etc., but for American Beauty most growers prefer from 16 to 18 inches; also Mrs. Russell will require more room.

Grafted stock can be planted quite deeply, placing the union so it will be covered at least an inch after the beds are leveled. Own root stock should be planted just deep enough so the ball will be covered nicely after leveling. Also, when cultivating, the ball will not be disturbed or at any time exposed by watering, etc. Grafted stock will require staking immediately after planting, for the raffia ties must be removed entirely when planted and to avoid breaking the stake at once.

Do not plant in wet or sticky soil. It should be slightly moist for quick working, and for best results, following planting. Stock planted in wet soil seldom makes the desired growth as the earth never gets into the ideal condition afterwards. It will be advisable to trim off the top of the soil from the ball if there is any green scum on same, as the beds will green over quick enough without propagating it. Leave a slight depression around each plant for individual watering, and pack the soil firmly around each plant. This can be done with a tapering stick made of a piece of 2x3 scantling, eight or ten inches long, with a handle shaped at one end. Water in the depressions for several weeks after planting, but keep the surface soil moist also, but not wet. After weeding twice, the soil can be leveled for the last time, and the water applied to the whole bed. This can be done usually in about three to four weeks after planting.

The plants to be carried over should not be neglected. They should now be mulched and syringed regularly, kept tied and in a growing condition, and made to work right up to within a week or two of the time for pruning. If this is done, a good bit of money will be taken from these right along, and the plants will be much stronger and show much better wood for pruning later on, consequently more and better flowers next fall and winter.

Another very important thing to remember is to not let the young stock get starved in the pots. If they need shifting, where for some reason they can not be planted for two or three weeks, shift them by all means, and keep them jumping along. And spray, spray, spray. Do not give them a big handieap by allowing the red spider to infest them before planting. Last, but not least, do not be in any great rush to cut out the firing. Keep the steam or hot water circulating just as long as there is any danger of condensation forming on the foliage. This usually occurs between 3 a. m. and sunrise when the fire has been looked at at midnight, perhaps, and left to run the rest of the night without attention. Do not do it, for it is false economy.

NEW ROSE PILGRIM.

Raised by Montgomery Bros., Amherst, Mass.

Rose Mrs. Charles Russell.

One of the best of the summer forcing roses is the Russell, always of good size and color. When the intense heat dwarfs the flowers and pales the color of the other varieties, Russell comes up smiling, with a continuous service of buds and blossoms, all through the fall and on up almost to Christmas. Then, those who have studied this variety, find it needs a rest. After the first week in December, the beds are dried off, the wood gradually ripened, and the house held cold until middle of February, then cut back and started up with increasing temperature up to 60 degrees. Under these conditions, the growth after the long rest is wonderfully strong and vigorous, with every shoot setting a bud. Such were conditions in a house of Russell seen at the establishment of Alfred Burton, Chestnut Hill, Pa. There are several other houses of Russell, some kept going almost continuously, but with a rest of a month or two at some period of the year. Those started in February, come into full bloom just after Easter with a wonderful crop of superb buds that averaged four high grade flowers to the plant. In addition to the first crop, there were quantities of strong shoots coming up from the bottom. These, when from 24 to 30 inches in height, were snapped off about six inches from the top. The wood then ripened up and produced two good breaks, each of which carried a high grade flower on a 24 to 30-inch stem.

A house in which roses had been propagated since the first of the year, was then being planted with year-old Russell plants from three-inch pots. These will be ready to cut from in early August and give a fine crop up until Christmas when they will be potted up and held for spring sales. The house will then be ready for propagating.

Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa., grew a range filled with Russell which was handled in much the same way. They managed, however, to make Easter and marketed a crop of 10,000 very fine flowers in the one week. A light pink sport of Russell is a novelty here. There are a number of plants which look very promising. This extensive place is now in full running order, a large range having recently been planted with Opbelia. The cuttings for these plants were about six inches in length. They rooted easily, and on being planted out in the house on ground beds, have made a vigorous start.

A table of seedling roses, 150 feet in length, all the result of careful crosses, is an interesting study. A number of these produce very good looking flowers, but those good enough to associate with the leaders of today are very scarce. A house is planted to a new blush that looks to be in the running, the flowers of which will be offered to the trade, and if accepted, will be sent out next year.

How to Cut Roses.

There is a right and a wrong way to cut roses. The choice of the latter may seriously injure the blossom-producing properties of the plants, it is pointed out by specialists of the United States department of agriculture. This applies particularly, of course, to rose plants chosen and grown especially for cut-flower production. Such roses will be largely of the perpetual blooming sorts.

When a rose is cut from such plants—tea roses or other perpetual bloomers—only two or three eyes of the current season's growth of that branch should be left on the plant. This should give the roses very long stems. Succeeding blossoms should be cut close to the ground. It will seem like destroying the bush to take so much off it, but if the object is the production of roses, the cutting away of the surplus wood will attain the desired end.

If the spring pruning has not been sufficiently severe the plant is likely to have long, naked stalks and short stems to the flowers. With this character of growth only one or two strong leaf buds should be left on the branch when the flower is cut, so as to stimulate as much growth as possible from the base of the plant.

The greatest temptation to leave wood is where there are two or more buds on one branch, some being small when the terminal one is open. This temptation to follow a bad practice can be avoided by pinching off all side shoots after a bud has formed on the end of a branch. This prevents the formation of two or more buds on one stalk. This summer pruning will encourage additional blooms on varieties which bloom more than once a year.

Rose Midge Control.

The rose midge, which annually destroys thousands of dollars worth of roses, can be eliminated from greenhouses by simply applying tobacco dust to the soil in which they are grown, say entomologists of the United States department of agriculture. Experiments have been made in commercial greenhouses to find a way to reduce the enormous losses caused by this serious insect pest. It is found helpful to supplement the tobacco-dust treatment with a nightly fumigation of the greenhouse with tobacco in some form. Tobacco stems, nicotine papers, or one of the volatile nicotine preparations may be used. Where there are earth walks, it is advisable to spray them with a five per cent or 10 per cent kerosene emulsion. The tobacco dust serves two purposes. When applied at the proper season, it prevents the larvae of the rose midge from entering the soil to hibernate, and it also fertilizes the soil. The record of the experiments and results in controlling this greenhouse pest has been published in Bulletin 778 of the United States department of agriculture.

Rose Pilgrim.

The accompanying illustrations give a good idea of the new pink rose seedling of the Montgomery Brothers Co., Amherst, Mass. It has been christened Pilgrim. In color and form, it somewhat resembles Lady Alice Stanley, being of a beautiful soft shade of pink, but has a wonderful brightness or sheen that gives it a life not seen in many roses. Those who have seen it growing, say it shows great vigor and wealth of bloom which is carried out as shown in the photograph. It was one of the features of the exhibition of the recent rose meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, where it was much admired.

A Blush Rose Seedling.

The accompanying illustration is of a seedling rose raised by Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa., and exhibited at the April meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia. In color, it is much the same as the popular outdoor variety, Malmaison, white with blush center. It is as large as Russell and a trifle more double, with buds borne on stout, straight stems of good length, and clothed with large leathery, dark green foliage well up to the bud. It looks like a candidate for first division honors.

PLANT NOTES.

Dracaena Indivisa.

The seedlings of Dracaena indivisa should now be taken from the flats and potted in small pots and placed in a good moist location that they may make a good growth before the fall. A palm or fern house or one with a similar temperature is the best for the small stock. The four-inch stock that was not disposed of during the spring sales can be either plunged outside or planted in a frame, where they will not demand the close attention necessary in the greenhouse. If planted out they should be potted up early, at least by September 1, when the roots are active and will quickly obtain a foothold in the new soil. They should be heavily shaded for a few days after potting or some loss of the plants may result. Any old plants that have outgrown their usefulness may be propagated, the stems cut up into small pieces and laid in a propagating bed with bottom heat, where the eyes will open and young plants quickly form.

Poinsettias.

The propagation of poinsettias should be pushed to the utmost at this time, for it is the plants that are rooted early in July that make the best single specimens at Christmas. Those that are rooted later in July and during August will make fine plants for pans, placing four to eight plants in a 6-inch or 8-inch pan, for they will be much shorter than those rooted early in July. The plants that were rooted earlier should now be growing nicely and should be shifted into larger pots as soon as they require it; under no circumstances allow them to become pot-bound until bracts begin to set in November. They should be placed in the bright sun as soon as strong enough to endure it, that the growth may be short and sturdy and the leaves as close together as is possible. A long drawn plant grown in the shade, with the leaves far apart, is not the typical plant for the holidays and does not meet with approval.

Nephrolepis.

Probably no plant that the florist grows gives more returns for the labor spent in its culture or the space that it occupies than the Boston fern and its various sports. The old Boston is still, however, the easiest to handle and grow. The plants should be repotted every year, and with good treatment are sure of making nice plants. Any plants that are in poor condition can be divided and with the young stock planted in a bench of good rich soil. The house should be shaded enough to assure of good color on the foliage, but not heavy enough to prevent the house being maintained at a good high temperature. During the day the house should stand at about 80 degrees with a little ventilation, which should be closed down before the sun leaves the houses. The plants can be set 6 inches apart and the soil should be two parts loam, one part leaf mould, and one part rotted manure. The house should be frequently syringed to keep a moist atmosphere. Under these conditions fine plants can be produced from young stock in three months. In September they should be lifted and placed in 6-inch pots, if single specimens are desired, or three or four plants can be placed in a 9-inch or 10-inch pot if larger plants are wanted. In lifting the plants they can be cut around about two inches from the crown, and lifted with a trowel, leaving the runners in the bench if the place they occupy is not wanted at once. The runners will immediately break into small plants which can be placed in flats for young stock for the next season. The finer varieties of this fern, such as Whitmani, do not submit to the lifting and potting as well as the old Boston, and better plants can be obtained by potting along into larger pots as may be required. The only insects that trouble these ferns are the brown scale, and the plants should be kept clean from these by washing or spraying with aphine or a weak nicotine solution.

Freelias.

A crop of freelias, or a few plants in pots in bloom, at Christmas is a valuable asset on that holiday. In order to have them in bloom at that time the bulbs should be planted by July 1. Select the large, strong bulbs and by careful inspection many will be found on which the root eyes are beginning to swell. These will make the earliest blooming plants, and this selecting will produce plants that will all bloom at the same time. The bulbs should be planted in a good soil enriched with well rotted manure, but no fresh manure; it is a well understood principle that bulbs of all kinds do not grow well in soil full of fresh manure. Eight to 10 large bulbs in a 6-inch pot will give the best results. The pots should be well watered and placed in a dark, cool place until the shoots appear above the ground, when they should be given a light location. As soon as the growths get tall enough they should be staked and tied. By continual early selection of the bulbs and keeping the earliest separate, an early strain can be assured.

Oleanders.

A plant that does not receive the attention that it should is the oleander. While there probably would not be a large demand for this plant, yet it is an old-time favorite, and well-grown specimens in bloom are a valuable addition to a porch or lawn. They are too often so sadly neglected that they get unshapely and far from being an ornament, but a little attention to trimming them into shape after they get through blooming will keep them in good condition. They can be wintered in any cool quarters, and if brought into the heat and light in early spring will be full of bloom in June and July and a valuable decorative plant. The cuttings root easily and at any time when the plant is in growth, and grow very rapidly for a hardwooded plant. Any florist carrying a line of assorted stock should include a few of these in the variety which he cultivates. The only insect which troubles them is the mealy bug, but a good frequent hard syringing will soon dislodge them.

Gloxinias.

The gloxinias that were started in late winter should now be beginning to flower. After the flower beds have set they can be placed in a little shadier location and the danger of burning the foliage be obviated to a great degree. The plants should be spaced far enough apart that they do not touch and a proper circulation of air produced around the plant. If the flowers are to be used in floral work they should be cut as soon as fully open and placed in water away from draughts, and they will keep very well. These flowers are very fragile and should be handled carefully. If there are any particularly beautiful flowers that it is desired to propagate, the leaves can be rooted in the propagating bench by placing the base of the leaf in the sand to the depth of about an inch. The seedlings should be potted along for later blooming.

NEW ROSE PILGRIM.
Raised by Montgomery Bros., Amherst, Mass.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Benching Plants for Cut Flowers.

Early attention should now be given to the work of planting the chrysanthemum plants intended for commercial cut flower purposes into their permanent quarters in the benches. It is already getting late for the early flowering as well as the earliest of the mid-season varieties. These two sections are the ones that ought, therefore, to receive first attention. To be sure of having the early varieties mature their flowers in their proper season, it is necessary to plant as well as propagate early, and any plants benched after the middle of June, are working under a big handicap so far as producing fine full flowers in their season is concerned. This same rule applies to the earliest of the mid-season varieties, which should all be in their permanent quarters by June 20, followed up closely, first with the medium late, and then with the very late varieties, so that by July 15, there will be very few, if any, of the varieties left to be planted. This rule applies to the long stem, solid, high grade commercial flowers. Quite a number of growers, who have their market near at hand, or can dispose of the blooms in a retail way, grow large numbers of average size flowers, one flower to a plant, on short stems from very late propagated stock, but only a few of the very double, quick growing varieties adapt themselves to this method of culture. They are taken from the sand as rooted cuttings during June, potted into 2½-inch pots and planted in the benches the latter part of July. Select for this purpose the incurved commercial varieties that are sure to come double from any bud. The varieties Tiger, White Chieftain, Early Frost, Alice Day, Whittier, and December Queen are especially suited for growing in this way.

CARE OF PLANTS BEFORE PLANTING.

There should be no let up in the care of the young plants standing in pots because their planting season is near at hand. They should receive just as close attention as at any other time. Some of them, as the wood becomes a little hard, will commence to throw out side shoots. Keep these picked off before they develop large enough to sap the strength from the main stem. Another important detail is to keep a close check on any weeds growing up in the pots to smother the lower foliage of the plants. Careful watering is also very necessary; the plants should be watered as they are in need of it, but avoid allowing them to become either the extreme of wet or dry. When held too wet, the plants stretch out with a thin growth, and when very dry they quickly become covered with red spider. Clean off any spotted or yellow leaves at the base of the plants before planting, and do not fail to spray regularly to keep the plants free from aphids. The leaf tyer is proving to be very troublesome to some chrysanthemum growers, chewing up the foliage growths badly. Unless the plants are badly infested, hand picking, with the assistance of the regular nicotine sprayings, will keep them in check, but if they get too bad, spraying with a solution of arsenate of lead will have to be resorted to.

USE BEST SOIL IN BENCHES.

In these days, when insects and disease seem to be attacking the chrysanthemum plants as never before, it is a poor policy to plant them in old worn-out soil that has served its purpose for some other kind of plants. We read occasionally of a grower here and there having good success in growing his chrysanthemums in beds where the soil has not been changed for three or four years, but on the other hand there are equally as many or more failures, and one of the surest means of keeping any insects under control is to clean out all soil and rubbish from the houses each year and start with everything fresh and clean. Then the grower has not taken any chances, and any trouble that comes afterward cannot be traced to careless preparation. There is no better compost for chrysanthemums than that advised so many times through these columns, which is one-fourth well-rotted manure to three fourths well-rotted loamy, sod soil. To this can be worked in a light dressing of bonemeal and limestone screenings after the soil is in the benches, just before planting. The depth of soil to use in the benches is governed to a great extent according to the time of planting, the early planted stock needing a greater depth than the later planted and I find for June and July planting, the best results are obtained when the five-inch benches are filled evenly full and pressed down to about four inches for planting. Then, if later on the plants need more, it can be applied as a mulch. Be sure to plant firmly, keeping the rows as straight as possible to enable the plants to be properly staked. Another very important matter is to be sure there is plenty of head room for each plant's growth in the space where it is planted. After planting, be particularly careful in the watering and syringing so that the plants will take hold of the new soil quickly.

Trade Exhibition at Detroit.

Floor plans of the trade exhibition in connection with the coming convention were mailed, June 6, with the result that the secretary's office on the Monday following was deluged with telegrams and letters making reservation of spaces. Already 20 per cent of the available floor space has been engaged. Among the exhibitors will be: American Bulb Co., Chicago; American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Pana, Ill.; H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia.; Duro Paper Products Co., Chicago; John A. Evans Co., Richmond, Ind.; Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., Chicago; Ove Gnatt Co., LaPorte, Ind.; Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.; A. Henderson & Co., Chicago; Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.; Kanawha Mfg. Co., Chicago; Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago; The McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Jos. G. Neidinger Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago; Raedlein Basket Co., Chicago; A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Schloss Bros. Co., New York; Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York.

If anyone interested has not received a copy of the floor plan, same may be procured upon application to

National Publicity for Flowers.

That the work of our publicity committee is appreciated by the trade generally is well known, but it is cheering indeed to receive an endorsement such as the following, from Samuel Murray of Kansas City, Mo.: "President Ammann is right; we are all prosperous, and it is largely due to publicity. Any man engaged in the florist business ought to contribute his share to the fund. Through proper publicity, we certainly have a great future. Please accept my cheque for $100 additional, assuring you of my appreciation of your efficient efforts for horticulture."

The success of our campaign is believed to be phenomenal. It is not only within the observation of florists, it is talked of in many other lines of industry. Our slogan, "Say it with Flowers," is said to have a "punch" that is to be envied—just the right thing, not mandatory, but so strongly suggestive. Are we taking full advantage of it? There's the rub. We know that we are not, for the reason that too many florists are not sufficiently wide awake to lend a helping hand in spreading it. Our committees, officers and many of our enthusiastic members have "worked like beavers," for a year and a half, incessantly, in an effort to make all florists see the wisdom and far-reaching effect of our publicity campaign, but there are some "logs" on which the teeth as yet have failed to leave a mark. While it is felt that this labor has not been lost, it is fervently hoped that response will materialize very quickly now. How much nicer it would be were those whom we are obliged to designate "nonsubscribers" would voluntarily send in the subscriptions we know they are prompted to make, rather than wait until a personal representative should call upon them.

To be obliged to cease effort simply for the reason that the requisite funds were not forthcoming would mean nothing less than disaster. Our regular and persistent reminder to a forgetful public has worked wonders for the florists' trade. We must keep the work going and you, Mr. Nonsub-scriber, surely will not refuse to share in the expense. Think of Mr. Murray's generosity and farsightedness. Think of the many liberal-minded and level-headed business men whose names and generous contributions appear in our subscription list, which has been, and will again in a few days be sent broadcast among the trade, and decide whether you cannot follow their lead. If you want to be stingy, let your stinginess show in some other direction. Do not refuse to put your mite into the palm of the hand which is helping your business so much—your business just as much as that of anyone else. Cheer up! Have a thought to the morrow! But today send in your contribution, and keep the publicity ball a-rolling.

The following subscriptions have been received, and are in addition to those previously announced, annually for four years, unless otherwise stated:

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

While Summers Pass.

Summer comes and summer goes,
Buds the primrose, fades the rose;
But his foothall on the grass,
Coming swiftly to my door,
I shall hear again no more,
Tho a thousand summers pass.

Once he loved the clovers-well,
Loved the larkspur and bluebell,
And the scent the plum-blooms yield;
But strange flowers his soul beguiled,
Faded lilies, laurels wild,
Blooming in a crimson field.

So he plucked the laurels there,
And he found them sweet and fair
In that field of blood-red hue;
And, when on a summer night
Moonlight drenched my clovers white,
Lo! He plucked Death's lilies, too.

It may be that e'en to-night,
In the Gardens of Delight,
Where his shining soul must dwell,
He has found some flowers more sweet
Than the clovers at my feet,
Some celestial asphodel.

But while summer comes and goes,
With the primrose and the rose
Comes his foothall on the grass—
Gladly, lightly to my door—
I shall hear it echo o'er,
Tho a thousand summers pass.

HEAVY SUPPLY CROWDS QUIET MARKET.

Business continues quiet, with too much stock arriving in the local market. Roses and carnations are showing the effects of the warm weather. American Beauties are small and off color, and at times are hard to move. Ophelia and Russell seem to stand the heat better than the other varieties and bring a better price. Pink and White Killarney, Shawyer, Hilda, Sunburst and Columbia are small, and at times it is hard to sort out sufficient that are good enough to fill shipping orders with. Carnations are small and hard to move at any price. Gladioli are more plentiful and meet with ready sale, as they are one flower that is not affected by the weather. Delphiniums are arriving in limited quantity, but the demand is light. Peonies are about done, and while there are a few still coming in, not enough to flood the market. There are still a few Easter lilies and callas, but they are not the best. Spanish iris is of good quality and cleans up daily at a fair price. Snapdragons, daisies and mignonette are poor and a drug on the market.

NOTES.

Thompson, The Florist, of Rochester, Pa., has opened his new store. It is up-to-date in every particular, and as Mr. Thompson believes in advertising, he is sure to make it a go.

The wholesale houses have started early summer closing hours, 5:00 p. m., and remaining closed all day Sunday.

E. J. McCallum and Homer Wood, of the McCallum Co., are in New York on business.

Randolph & McClements have several large weddings booked for this week.

John Harris, of Harris Bros., has just returned from New York and Atlantic City.

Visitors: J. W. Glenn, Kittanning, Pa., and W. Carey, New Brighton, Pa. M.

Boston.

BUSINESS SHOWS MARKED IMPROVEMENT.

Business during the past week has shown wonderful improvement, with numerous weddings and graduation orders. Stock has also advanced in price. Peonies, however, have flooded the market and are moved at any price offered. Roses are quite plentiful and cheap. Lily of the valley is scarce and has advanced to $16 per 100. Swainsona is now in great demand with not enough offered to meet requirements.

NOTES.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society held a good exhibition of peonies at Horticultural hall, June 14-15, among the principal entries being those of T. C. Thurlow's Sons, H. F. Chase, J. K. Alexander, G. N. Smith, Mrs. D. W. McKissock, E. J. Shaylor, R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Hillcrest Farm and G. Gardner, Jr.

The Boston Rose Co. is now in crop with Russell, Hadley, Ophelia, and the new variety, Boston. Thomas Roland is also sending in some fine stock of the leaders.

A party of growers and salesmen from the flower market are planning an auto trip to Cape Cod and the south shore.

Fred Roberts, manager of the J. J. Cassidy store on Beacon street, is enjoying a rest at the White mountains.

William Penn will leave June 26 for a five weeks' vacation in Maine where he will enjoy salmon fishing.

Bernard McGinty, accompanied by his family, is taking a vacation at Adam's shore, Quincy.

Wm. Nicholson is cutting heavily in several items all showing excellent quality.

Wm. Elliott is having a good call for Christy Miller, Victoria and Mig-non.

Wm. Carr is slowly improving from his recent illness.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report business better than ever.

Texas State Florists' Association.

Plans are complete for one of the greatest conventions of the Texas State Florists' Association in the history of the organization at Austin, July 9-10 and reports coming in from every section of the state indicate an attendance of several hundred. The present year has been one of the most prosperous for the trade and the florists feel like getting away from their establishments not only for educational purposes but for recreation. The state is rapidly coming into its own in growing cut flowers and the progress along these lines during the past few years has been marvelous.

Great activity in building and other lines of expansion is anticipated and the craft naturally want to get together and talk over such matters.

The visitors will be the guests of the Austin Florists' Club, one of the liveliest organizations in the south, and the meeting place is the capital of the state. Plans have been made for great entertainment and a pleasant and instructive session is assured.

Indications are that the trade exhibition will eclipse all former displays in this line. Reservations for space are coming from all parts of the country and the florists will take advantage of this in purchasing fall supplies.

Buffalo.

EXTREME HEAT HAS ITS EFFECT.

This city, like many others, has suffered from extreme heat and lack of rain, and flowers are of course suffering from the unfavorable conditions. There is much difficulty in securing choice stock, but the best that can be done under the circumstances seems to prove satisfactory. In roses, Maryland, Scott Key and Ophelia seem to hold up best. Carnations are very small. Peonies are unusually good, and gladioli of fine quality are being received. Sweet peas are holding their own and filling a necessary place in wedding work. The matrimonial month, so far, has been quite active, but more so in bouquets than decorations. This city has been favored with a number of conventions, and the call for table arrangements has been gratifying. With lawn vases, verandah boxes and general work, the greenhousemen have work enough ahead to last until July 1.

NOTES.

There are rumors of a florist picnic at the automobile club in July. We hope it is true.

HATFIELD, PA.—Herman Aafjes, formerly with Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., has bought the George Samtman range here and will grow carnations and chrysanthemums.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Hembreiker & Cole are completing three new houses, 36x154 feet each, American Greenhouse Mfg. Co.'s construction. This firm's aster crop promises well and will be ready about July 1.

OBITUARY.

Joseph G. Leikens.

Joseph G. Leikens, a well known retail florist of New York, died suddenly at his home, 29 Claremont avenue, that city, June 11, from an attack of heart disease. The news of his death came as a great surprise and shock to all branches of the trade, as he had visited the wholesale district, June 9, apparently in good health. He was only 45 years old, and of fine figure, tall and well proportioned.

The Late Jos. G. Leikens.

Joseph G. Leikens was born in California of Belgian-French parents. He went to New York over 22 years ago, and soon secured employment with the then existing firm of Siebrecht-Wadley, Henry Siebrecht being the senior partner. After several years' experience, he started in business for himself on 33rd street near Fifth avenue, removing later to Madison avenue and 57th street, and finally to Madison avenue and 55th street, where the business is now located. For several years during the summer season he had also conducted a retail store at Newport, R. I.

Mr. Leikens early took an interest in military affairs, and for some years previous to the Vera Cruz expedition, had been a member of the Seventh Regiment, National Guard of New York. During the Mexican troubles, his regiment was sent to the Texas border, and he accompanied it, remaining there for several months. He was also a member of the Old Guard of Veterans, a military and social organization; a member of the B. P. Order of Elks, of the Society of American Florists and the New York Florists' Club. He is survived by his wife, who had given him constant and active assistance in his business career, and by two sisters, who reside in California.

The funeral was held at St. Patrick's cathedral, June 14, at 11 a. m., with solemn high mass. The Old Guard Veterans' Battalion, of which he had been captain, escorted the remains to the cathedral, the band playing the "Dead March." Veterans of the Seventh Regiment, N. G. of N. Y., were also in attendance, and a number of florists. On the casket was the national colors and a cross of cattleyas and there were many other floral tributes from the various organizations and from friends.

Roland W. Cotterill.

Roland W. Cotterill, secretary-treasurer of the American Association of Park Superintendents, which position he had held for five years, widely known as a landscapist and prominently identified with a number of related interests, passed away at his home in Seattle, Wash., recently, following a throat affection which began in 1918 and soon became malignant, resulting in his death. He was 41 years of age.

Mr. Cotterill was born at Montclair, N. J., removing with his parents when nine years old to a farm near Seattle, and at the age of 18 secured a position with the park system of that city, patrolling bicycle paths. He was soon promoted to the post of executive secretary of the park board, remaining in that capacity for more than 10 years, until elected city councilman in 1918. During his term as secretary of the park board, he developed the system from a comparatively small undertaking to one of the most extensive among American cities, about $7,000,000 being expended in the creation and maintenance of parks, playgrounds, community houses and public places of recreation. In addition to his work as secretary-treasurer of the American Association of Park Superintendents, he was always deeply interested in the development of all kindred projects, and was also editor of the association's official organ, "Parks and Recreation." He was a member of many fraternal societies and his funeral was largely attended by both civic and lodge organizations. He is survived by his widow, mother, a four-year-old son, one sister and two brothers.

Joseph E. Simpson.

Joseph E. Simpson, Lansdowne, Pa., died June 14 of uremia. The deceased, but 40 years of age, was foreman for C. & G. L. Pennock. He was a skilled rose grower, having learned the business after a six years' apprenticeship under his uncle, Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J. He was later two years with George Reinberg, Chicago, four years with Fred Breitmeyer, Mount Clemens, Mich., and had occupied the position as foreman and rose grower with the Pennock Co. for two years with very satisfactory results. He was ill but one week. He leaves a wife and three children.

Joseph C. Forbes.

Joseph C. Forbes, prominent in floricultural circles in New England, and well known as the introducer of Dahlia Ruth Forbes, a prize winner at many eastern shows, passed away at his home in New Bedford, Mass., June 7, following a serious illness of several months. He was 53 years of age.

REDUCED postage day is coming, July 1.

THE Garden Club of America will meet at Lake Forest, Ill., June 25-26.

DAYLIGHT-SAVING REPEALED.—A rider repealing the daylight-saving law, effective when the clocks are turned back in October, was added to the agricultural appropriation bill, June 12.

FIVE students in floriculture will graduate at the University of Illinois this season, among them W. G. Poehlmann, of Morton Grove, Ill., and R. H. Mueller, of Wichita, Kans. There are also five graduates in landscape gardening.

Chicago's Window Boxes.

Making the loop attractive is a problem, but certain banks are solving it in a measure by decorating the buildings with vines, shrubbery and flowers. Last year there was a mile frontage of floral displays which gave color and freshness to otherwise unattractive buildings.

The civic industrial committee of the Association of Commerce is much encouraged this year by the co-operation of owners of banks and other public buildings in primping up the downtown district. Getting away from the drab monotony of business fronts is easily accomplished and it bespeaks the civic pride of the citizen who helps. It is recognized, too, that ornamentation is a business asset and the impression created on citizens and visitors is well worth the cost entailed.

The floral embellishment of many business houses has called forth many words of praise, and other cities have inquired how Chicago has accomplished so much. As a matter of fact, the civic industrial committee believes the movement is in its infancy. It does not intend to stop until the loop will bloom like a rose garden.

Back in 1916, and for several years before, business houses, banks and public buildings each spring brought nature into the loop through the medium of the window flower box. During the war we were justified in temporarily suspending this activity, but now there is every reason why we should all co-operate in its revival.—Chicago Herald-Examiner.

New York to Detroit.

The New York Florists' Club, for its route to the convention of the Society of American Florists at Detroit, Mich., August 19-21, has decided upon the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad to Buffalo, then by boat to the convention city. The party will leave New York, August 17 at 8:30 p. m., Hoboken, 8:55 p. m., due in Buffalo 7:30 the following morning, spending the day in that city, and leaving on the 6:00 p. m. boat, arriving in Detroit Tuesday morning.

The railroad fare, New York to Buffalo, is $12.85; berths, $2.16, including war tax. Boat fare, Buffalo to Detroit is $4.32; state room accommodating two persons, $3.78.

Applications have already been received by the committee, which consists of A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., chairman; John G. Esler and P. W. Popp, to fill two cars, and it is most important that those who are going to travel with the club party notify the committee at once in order that the necessary reservations may be made. This is going to be the banner convention, so reservations should be arranged for at the earliest opportunity. Communicate with the chairman of the committee should any further information be desired.

Roebling Orchids Sale.

The orchid collection of the late Charles G. Roebling, of Trenton, N. J., considered to be one of, if not the finest, in the United States, the sale of which was reported in our issue of June 14, page 1046, is now the property of Mrs. Frederick E. Dixon, Elkins Park, Pa., the consideration said to have been $28,000, a small sum compared to what the former owner must have expended in getting it together and maintaining it during the years previous to his death. Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, mother of Mrs. Dixon, and her husband, Dr. Rice, are about to start on an exploring expedition on the Amazon river in South America, and it is believed they may secure additions to the collection. Mrs. Rice, previous to her recent marriage, was the widow of George D. Widener, lost on the Titanic.

Publicity Through Flower Mission.

Following the action of the United States railroad administration in prohibiting free transportation of goods for charities, which ruling resulted in the closing of the New York flower mission which since its establishment nearly 50 years ago has made generous free distributions to hospitals and the sick and shut-ins of the tenement districts of that city, mention of which was made in our issue of June 14, would not this be an opportunity where the publicity fund of the Society of American Florists could be used to splendid advantage in paying the express charges necessary to enable this worthy institution to continue its good work after a half century of usefulness?

Gardening Cure for Shell Shock.

Landscape and gardening work is one of the most effective methods of treating psychopathic cases, according to Maj. Reagle of the Fort Sheridan base hospital, speaking recently before the Art Alliance. Men afflicted with shell shock and other mental disorders resulting from war service have planted 4,000 shrubs around the hospital grounds, Maj. Reagle said, and the work has had a quieting effect on their disorders.

The Harrisil Boat.

The British steamship, Bermudian, formerly in the New York-Bermuda passenger service, arrived at New York, June 10, having been salvaged after it was accidentally sunk in the harbor of Alexandria in February, 1918. The vessel was in government service when it went to the bottom. On its way here from Europe, the Bermudian carried 1,700 home-going Jamaican troops.

Wind Damage at New Castle, Ind.

During a recent windstorm, three houses at the range of the South Park Floral Co., New Castle, Ind., were practically destroyed with their contents, entailing a loss of approximately $3,000. The Dawson Greenhouses also suffered a loss of $500, the smokestack being blown down, glass broken and the heating system badly damaged.

UNUSUALLY GOOD SEASON GENERAL REPORT

The past week found the growers cleaning up the balance of their bedding stock. The season on the whole has been exceptionally good, some firms reporting increases as high as 50 per cent over last year's business. The general run of plant stock was excellent. Cut flowers continue to have a heavy demand and choice quality is maintained. Local peonies are just coming into this market and were perhaps as fine this week as ever seen here, but the almost continuous rains and excessively hot weather will doubtless shorten their season. Roses are plentiful and the quality is good. Carnations are scarce and only fair. Specialty stock such as gladioli, calendulas, stocks, etc., are good and the demand is adequate to move the supply. Orchids and bridal flowers are scarce and there is a good call for them. Funerals and the usual number of June weddings move a good supply of cut stock. Business in general is good and the public does not seem to object to paying about 20 per cent more than last year.

NOTES.

Holm & Olson are just winding up the heaviest season by far that this firm has experienced. They contemplate extensive changes in their store this summer, adding about 1,500 square feet of ground floor space by acquiring a store on St. Peter street. This will give them an "L" shaped shop with entrances on both Fifth and St. Peter streets.

The Hazel Park Greenhouses are bringing fine sweet peas into this market and the demand readily exhausts the supply.

The Warrendale Floral Co. is bringing in a fine assortment of specialties and their quality makes them ready sellers.

The St. Paul Floral Co. is well cleaned out of bedding stock, and is pleased with the season's business.

The Snelling Floral Co. have their bedding stock well cleaned up and experienced a heavy season.

O. R. Eckhard reports an exceptionally heavy country business and a decidedly good season. C. R. F.

Columbus, O.

LOCAL SUPPLY IN STRONG COMPETITION.

Trade is more quiet than it has been for some time, owing to the competition of home-grown roses and other flowers. The weather has been favorable for quick maturing, inside and outside of glass, with the result that there is more or less stagnation. There is an abundance of everything that is seasonable, and prices are inclined to slump. June weddings, and functions of various kinds incident to graduation time, are helping out what would otherwise be a dull retail market. Indoor gladioli are an attractive feature of florists' display, but are limited in quantity. A lively demand exists for geraniums and similar plants for window-box purposes, but the supply is lame and prices are very much higher than ever prevailed before.

NOTES.

Neighborhood rivalry between two residence streets over the matter of which one kept its lawns in the best condition led to a public grass-cutting contest, June 3. The event took place on the athletic field of Ohio State University, with the mayor of the city present as one of the judges. Over 2,000 spectators were gathered in the grand stand. The prize was a silver cup, which had been donated by a daily newspaper. Each street was represented by a team of 15 men, equipped with lawn-mowers. A section was assigned to each team, and the contest started at the crack of a revolver fired into the air. One team finished its section in 42 minutes, but the decision was given its rival which came in eight minutes later because of the greater neatness with which it had performed its work. The teams were composed mostly of business and professional men. One member was in his eighty-second year. In awarding the prize, the mayor predicted that the event would have a far-reaching effect in inspiring greater regard for beautiful lawns in other parts of the city. The contest is claimed to be the only one of its kind on record.

Much interest was displayed in the second annual rose show of the Columbus Horticultural Society at the Cadillac Company's show rooms, June 7-S. There were about 300 entries. The first prize of the kind to be received by a Columbus rose-grower, was a silver medal, awarded Miss May Fraser by the American Rose Society for the best collection of roses at the show. Prof. Alfred C. Hottes, of Ohio State University, is president of the local society. There are 100 members.

The Livingston Seed Company held its annual peony show at its retail store, June 5-7. It included the many varieties grown by the company, and was made to serve the purpose of a trade-getter, through visitors being solicited to leave orders for next fall delivery of roots.

Stephens & Son, whose establishment is at the gate of Greenlawn cemetery, have announced through the newspapers, that they will give away flowers for the time being to worthy societies and organizations.

Carl Huber is planning to add one house to his establishment on Lockburne avenue. C. C. J.

Chicago.

STOCK IS VERY PLENTIFUL.

Stock of all kinds is very plentiful and obtainable in large quantities at low prices. Peonies are in exceptionally heavy supply and selling at ridiculously low figures. The street men and department stores have been selling them as low as 10 cents and 19 cents per dozen the past week. One department store advertised a special sale on peonies for June 14 at 19 cents per dozen and disposed of over 35,000 flowers in short order. The warm weather certainly brought this flower in fast, and many dealers disposed of them at low prices in order to make room for the new shipments that kept rolling in. Some of the wholesalers placed quite a number in storage, and while it is rather difficult to state in exact figures how many there are held in reserve for later use, one thing is certain—that there will be plenty to go around for several weeks to come. Fancy peonies brought good prices and the market should not be judged from the ridiculously low prices quoted by the department stores in their advertising in the daily papers last week. Roses have been in large supply, and like peonies were sold by the department stores at low figures and on several occasions at one cent each. One department store advertised a special sale of 30,000 roses at one cent each for June 14, which cleaned up almost as soon as they were offered for sale. Fancy roses brought good summer prices, and the dealers will find it somewhat difficult to explain to their customers why fresh stock should command such high prices when the department stores are quoting them so cheaply. In justice to the dealers, the stock offered by the department stores, in most cases, was of inferior quality compared to that supplied to the trade and consisted of varieties that a florist would hesitate to carry during hot weather. Mrs. Chas. Russell and Columbia have been in good demand, considering the market conditions, but did not bring anywhere near the figures that they should. Carnations have seen their best days, but there is a good supply of stock suitable for shipping purposes obtainable at some of the houses. Sweet peas are moving well and clean up at times after considerable pushing, although good stock is in demand at all times, but the season is practically over. A few lilies are seen, and the same holds true for callas. Orchids are moving well as is the supply of lily of the valley. Gladioli are quite a factor in the market and some real fancy indoor stock is seen. Daisies, stocks, snapdragons, pond lilies, lupines, pansies and a long list of other indoor and outdoor stock is available. Greens continue to be good property with some items in short supply. Business has been fairly good considering market conditions and while there is a glut prevailing at present a change for the better may be expected next week.

NOTES.

Harry Garland, formerly with the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., and family left this week for Denver, Colo., where they expect to reside permanently. Mr. Garland will have charge of the western territory for a structural steel concern and has the best wishes of his many friends in the trade for every success in his new venture.

George Gobel, of A. T. Pyfer & Co., and wife, will leave this week for Eagle River, Wis., to spend their vacation.

WHOLESALE FLORISTS

160 N. Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL.

F. A. Zenke, representing the Excell Laboratories, is back from an eastern business trip, which was most successful in every respect. His firm reports business as exceptionally good, with new orders arriving steadily from all sections of the country.

H. B. Kennicott says that Keunicott Bros. Co., has not sold any cut flowers to the department stores for some time, notwithstanding reports, if any, to the contrary.

Ralph A. Anderson, undertaker of Traverse City, Mich., well known to wholesale florists here, was in the city last week and mysteriously disappeared from the steamer Alabama returning home.

The bay trees recently imported from Europe by Vaughan's Seed Store, look just as trim and luxuriant as those offered before the war.

A. Lange's new store, 77-79 East Madison street, is adorned with three of the handsomest bay trees coming from Belgium this year.

Growers and farmers in the suburbs made extensive sales of peony blooms to auto parties Sunday, June 15, at 50 cents a dozen.

John Mangel's window on Monroe street, with adiantum and bubbling water pools, is very soothing these hot days.

A. L. Vaughan and family will spend their vacation somewhere in the northern country, where bass are plentiful.

The handsome old Pullman conservatory at Calumet avenue and Eighteenth street is going to ruin.

Vaughan's Seed Store has made a fine display of peonies at the retail store the past week.

Conventions alone bring more than 400,000 visitors to this city annually.

HOT WEATHER BRINGS DULL SALES.

Business slackened considerably last week, when the hot weather caused the bottom to drop out of the market. With the exception of some funeral work the early part of the week, and a few wedding orders throughout, there was great dullness, and much stock found its way either to the hospitals or churches, or to the dump heap. Carnations suffered severely, both in size and color. Sweet peas are also about at the end of their season, and a few more days of such torrid temperature will finish them up. Roses have not suffered as much as other flowers. Gladioli are quite a factor on the market. They are of excellent quality, and bring good returns. Peonies are almost flooding the market. Many are in unsalable condition on account of the recent rains coupled with the intense heat, and are used for decorative purposes only. However, some beautiful blooms are shown, and those of good quality command excellent prices.

NOTES.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. report a number of weddings last week, with a plentiful supply, especially of garden flowers. They are busy planting the carnations in the benches at the greenhouses, and expect to have some fine flowers early in the fall.

An extensive publicity campaign is being carried on by the Flick Floral Co., both in the daily papers, and also in special forms of advertising. Wedding decorations and bouquets, and funeral work have kept all hands busy the past fortnight.

TRADE QUITE SATISFACTORY.

Trade since Memorial day has kept up in a fairly satisfactory way. The supply of flowers, as is to be expected, is quite large and it is a difficult matter to move stock that is not of first-class quality. June weddings and other social activities use most of the high grade flowers. The supply of roses is large enough to meet all requirements. Short stock moves very slowly, if at all. American Beauty roses are quite plentiful, but since the Ulrich Brunner roses have arrived, the public seems to have overlooked them in favor of the later variety. Good stock is bringing the growers fine prices. There is an abundance of short stock, all of which goes to the street peddlers. The warm weather has brought gladioli in with a great rush. The smaller flowered varieties are about over for the season. There has never been handled a better grade than is now being offered this season. All the newest and best of the large flowering varieties are coming in freely and are bringing good prices. Carnations are a great drug on the market at present. Any price offered is eagerly accepted for the ordinary run of stock. It is only the finest blooms that are bringing the grower any returns. Dahlias are to be seen more freely of late, but are lacking in length of stem and vigor as yet. The cut of sweet peas is quite heavy. Like other stock, prices of these have dropped considerably. Spencers are the only varieties salable. The supply of cattleyas is steady, and these remain at the same firm prices. Some very good Phalenopsis amabilis were seen during the week. Gardenias are in ample supply with prices normal. There is the usual large cut of perennial stock that one expects at this season of the year. Delphiniums are probably the most popular of this class of stock and are largely used for basket work and other decorations. There are plenty of genistas being used in basket work also. In pet plants, Boston ferns in variety and palms are about the only arrivals. The former is always a good seller and the growers report a steady call for them. Smilax is out of the market for the season. The supply of asparagus and ferns is ample for all requirements. Quite a lot of Mahonia aquifolia is being used instead of galax leaves.

NOTES.

Even at this early date, the trial grounds of the California Dahlia Society at San Rafael are beginning to attract many visitors to have a first look at the latest novelties. The weather has been very favorable to their growth this year, and quite a few of them are in flower. The preparations being made for the annual show in September are nearing completion, and no doubt the society's show this year will excel all its former efforts.

The Art Floral Co., on Powell street, showed quite a novelty in the way of cut flowers this week when a splendid lot of hunnemannias were offered. The beautiful bright yellow color of this flower was a source of much attraction. They showed up in fine shape when arranged in vases. This firm completed a large plant decoration in the California theatre during the week.

Eric James, the prominent plant grower, has several houses filled with a splendid lot of young cyclamen plants for next season's trade. This is one of his specialties, and as a grower of this popular flower, he has few equals. All his palm and nephrolepis houses are doing splendidly and will be in fine shape for the fall trade.

Reports from sections where asters are being grown for this market are encouraging. Quite a large acreage is planted again this season, almost exclusively by the Chinese growers. The weather has been very favorable to the growth of this flower, and there is every indication that the crop will be of excellent quality.

B. M. Joseph is showing some finely arranged baskets at his store this week. One can always expect to see something quite out of the ordinary at this shop, and needless to say, we are never disappointed in that respect. Mr. Joseph has had several large wedding decorations, which kept his force quite busy all week.

H. Kempf, proprietor of the Pacific Nursery, at Colma, has a fine lot of young ericas coming along for his fall trade. This is one of the specialties of this firm and many thousand are raised here annually. Mr. Kempf says his spring trade was very satisfactory.

Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., spends a lot of his spare time looking after his new seedling dahlias at his trial grounds and nursery on Guttenberg street. We expect Frank will uphold his honors again this season on the exhibition boards.

Enomoto & Co. have completed the planting of pompon chrysanthemums. All are large flowered varieties, are making vigorous growth and promise well for the coming season. They are also cutting a heavy crop of gladioli and carnations at present.

C. Kooyman & Co. report a very good demand for freesia bulbs. They also are large handlers of calla bulbs. They tell us that their shipping trade is keeping up steadily, and that they are well pleased with this season's business.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee is making large shipments of gladioli at present. Most of the stock is sent to distant points. She is having her violet fields put in shape for next season's crop, which she says will be the largest she ever handled.

The Parodi Floral Co., on McAllister street, have a very attractive store and report a steady business. They are handling large quantities of fine gladioli and say the demand for this class of stock is steady.

The Union Florists, on Sixteenth street, are greatly pleased over the amount of business done this season. Their pretty store is always attractively arranged with the best stock the market affords.

E. Serveau, on Fillmore street, is bringing in a fine cut of perennials from his country home at Redwood City. Business has kept up splendidly with him. He says funeral work has been brisk of late.

P. Conchi is sending in the finest Ulrich Brunner roses that come to this market. The greater part of his stock averages over a five foot stem, with perfect foliage and blooms.

John J. O'Connor, on Mission street, has been very busy with funeral work this week. This is one of his specialties, and his force can always be found busy getting out orders.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

Baltimore, Md.

BUSINESS GENERALLY SATISFACTORY.

Almost all the stores in this city, both wholesale and retail, report a satisfactory business. W. E. McKissick, manager of the Leo. Niessen Co., thought that notwithstanding the unsettled conditions of the past year, results in all branches of the trade have been very good. The demand had held, after the unusual influenza conditions, for the most part, a little ahead of the supply until the past few weeks, when the outside flowers had overstocked the market. Mr. McKissick believes there is as much judgment needed in preparing stock for market as in growing it. When it is cut, hunched, and reaches the market at its best, it is half sold and almost walks away itself. J. L. Fowner, manager of the Baltimore Wholesale Florists' Supply Co., an organization of growers, was well satisfied with the season's business. Extensive improvements were being planned for in the alteration of their store building, which would greatly increase its facilities. New cases and other improvements were in progress in the S. S. Pennock Co.'s large store room. Manager Perry reported business very satisfactory for the season, but now slowing up. With his family, he enjoyed an auto trip over the week end, to Frederick, Md., visiting relatives.

NOTES.

His many friends will be grieved to hear of the serious illness of Robert Halliday, who is confined to his home with a nervous breakdown. Kind, genial Bob Holliday, who did so much to uphold the prestige and hospitality of his city to visitors of the trade. That he may soon be restored to health, is the prayer of all who know him.

Seik & Glik, wholesale florists, must move, are all ready to move, but have no place to go. Litigation keeps them out of a building on which they had secured a five years' lease. They hope to have matters straightened out soon. They have done well, and have a good outlook for the coming season.

Ritter & Son had enjoyed a good trade the entire season. It had meant hard work, early and late, but they had pulled through, and were well satisfied with results. Pink rambler roses and larkspur were effectively arranged in the window.

S. Feast's Sons' central window piece was an electric fountain. Pink and blue hydrangeas, yellow daisies and pink rambles were also artistically arranged. Chas. Feast reported a very good season.

Wm. J. Halliday's decorative feature is ferns, cibotiums, Bostons and Scottii. He finds the cibotium a valuable decorative plant. The past had been one of his best seasons.

The Parkway Flower Shop had kept busy the past winter. Since joining they had found the F. T. D. quite a factor in their business.

At John Cook's handsome store, business had been excellent. An effective window decoration consisted of pink rambler roses, larkspur and sprays of the mist tree.

Jesse P. King, Mount Airy, is adding a new range of houses, to be planted with roses for the local market.

The Edwin Seldentz store had a window full of flowers. Business was reported very satisfactory. K.

Rochester, N. Y.

PEONIES LEADING FEATURE OF MARKET.

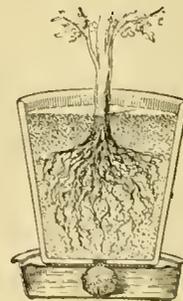

The peony is the queen of the market this week, great quantities of all varieties being received, with Festive Maxima the favorite. Roses, with few exceptions, are of poor quality. Sweet peas are excellent and meet with a good movement. There are a number of June weddings, but no great call for stock for decorations. Hardy ferns have been scarce and greens of all sorts have been pressed into service as substitutes. Smilax is again plentiful and asparagus, galax, etc., are of good quality.

NOTES.

At a meeting June 14 the Rochester Rose Society was organized and plans are under way for a rose exhibition to rival those of Portland, Ore., and Los Angeles, Calif. The officers of the organization are: John Dunbar, president; F. G. Barry, A. Schoenfelder, Calvin E. Laney, Erickson Perkins, Miss Hattie Gleason, Mrs. T. A. Whittle and Wm. T. Morse, vice-presidents, C. L. Shepard, secretary-treasurer.

Hart & Vlek are adding one house, 32x27 1/2 feet, to their range at Fairport. Hubert Stringer is showing great improvement in health since working in the open at this establishment.

THE LEO NIESSEN CO., 1201 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia.

BUSINESS RECUPERATES SOMEWHAT.

The past week showed quite an improvement over that of the week before, which was the "low water mark" for the season. The great burst of hot weather played havoc with both outside and greenhouse flowers, particularly roses, carnations, and sweet peas. Stock that has been well cared for, owing to more favorable weather, has recovered the past week and is now in good salable condition. There has been an increased demand, which has put the market on a much better footing. American Beauty roses have been very disappointing the past month, being low in quantity, and sadly lacking in quality. Growers do not seem to know how to account for these conditions. Special Russells are now leaders, with Columbia a close second. Ophelia, Sunburst and Ward are all in good shape, also Hadley. Carnations are fading fast, although there are still some considered worth $4. Cold storage peonies are seen in all the stocks and look very well; their recuperative powers are astonishing. Gladioli Mrs. King and America are seen in splendid form, all greenhouse stock, the southern supply being cut out. Outside flowers, larkspur, feverfew and gaillardia, are very plentiful. Outdoor sweet peas are not up to the mark in quality or quantity, owing to the hot weather. Dorothy Perkins roses are in good demand for weddings and also for store decoration. They are in good form, showing little mildew. There are still a few callas which meet with good demand. Easter lilies are practically done.

HONESTY, THE BEST POLICY.

At times of oversupply, the stock that is put in neat packages, properly graded, and packed to reach the market on time and in best condition, is sure to show up well on the return sheet. Roses that are properly graded and wrapped in bundles of 25, with the paper projecting an inch or two to protect the points of the buds, are sure to return the grower very much more than the cost of this preparation. But, and this said a large dealer, is most important, one must be honest in his grading and in his count. It greatly facilitates business to be able to handle the roses in bundles of 25 without having to sort and count them over. The less they are handled, the less danger from bruising. They are also protected from drying out when lying on the tables, etc. When, however, the purchaser comes back with a bunch one or two short in the count, or containing several distinctly inferior or short stemmed buds, it is a clear case of dishonesty in which the offending grower loses much more than he sought to gain. Honesty is the best policy, and all growers should be as careful, both in quality and count in their packages, as if they were selling by the quart or pound. They expect every dollar bill they receive to be 100 per cent value, and should give as good as they get.

THE JOS. HEACOCK CO. BUILDS.

The break has come. Some four years ago, ground was leveled at Roelefs, adjoining the last 600 foot house, for one of a similar size, but later it was decided to wait another year. Then came the war, shortage of coal and labor. Now these hindering conditions are to a great extent removed, and the new house 72x600 semi-ion construction, is to be built immediately by the Hitchings Co., to be finished by October 1. This addition, it is thought, will reduce overhead charges on the entire place, as it can be heated from the same steam plant, and the only additional expense will be coal and labor. It will not be planted with roses this season, but will perhaps have a catch crop of sweet peas or other quick growing flowers and be ready for an early planting of roses of proven worth early next year.

NOTES.
 Elmer Gaehring, Jos. G. Neidinger and Fred Deitrich accompanied Charles H. Grakelov to the Shriners' convention at Indianapolis, Ind., last week. One of the local merchants put up a unique decoration, bringing a lot of phoenix from Florida, which were set up on his sidewalk in banks of sand. In these trees, he had coconuts tied in bunches as if growing. To give a real tropical effect, he had monkeys chained up in the branches.
 J. Zimmer, Collingswood, N. J., believes the seashore resorts are expecting a great season, as they are large buyers of bedding plants. This is good business, coming as it does after the local demand is about over. A house of callas here has been kept going instead of, as usual, drying off at this time. By keeping them wet, they make new growths and throw flowers which are in good demand, now that Easter lilies are done.

Henry Pennock, who has six acres in Asparagus plumosus at Jupiter, Florida, spent the past 10 days visiting his old home and friends in this city. He had found a good demand in the northern markets the past winter, but increased labor and shipping expenses had kept down the profits. Jupiter is 17 miles from Palm Beach.

Russell, Ward and Sunburst roses are choice stock with the Philadelphia Wholesale Florist Exchange. Peonies are also handled in quantity. Manager Deutscher is much pleased with business.

Edward Reid is back on the job again after a rest at Atlantic City recovering from a bad cold. Ophelia roses in quantity and choice cattleyas were features the past week.

Berger Bros. reported having passed through the bad week, and that now it is plain sailing. Gladioli, carnations, and cold storage peonies are headliners.

Special Russell and Ophelia roses were quantity stocks with the Leo Niessen Co. Cold storage peonies were also a feature.

Robert Craig is recuperating at the Craig cottage at Ocean Grove, N. J., where the sea air is doing him a world of good. K.

Paterson, N. J.

The Paterson Floricultural Society held an excellent show, largely roses from private growers, in the rooms of the Paterson Savings Institution, June 7. The leading prize winners were William S. Cole, Edward Vandercliff, William Blair, Albert Francke, Charles F. Walker, F. Glatzel and James Connor. In the commercial section, a gold medal was awarded to Cross Brothers for the best collection of roses which consisted of 40 varieties. Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., were also awarded a gold medal for the best collection of hardy flowering plants. After the show, quantities of the flowers were sent to the hospitals and churches. Arthur Vesceilus, a retail florist of Paterson, was one of the judges.

STOCK BRINGS FAIR RETURNS.

The weather of the past week continued cooler. The supply of peonies was lighter and good stock brought fair figures, but much of it was of indifferent quality. There was an abundant supply of roses, and the buds have grown smaller, but they came in better shape for handling than during the previous week. Good roses always bring fair prices, and this summer is no exception, but many are going at low figures. There has been a heavy supply of carnations and they have been very cheap, large lots as low as $1 per 100, but allowance must be made for that from the fact that it was all they were worth. Many carnations will scarcely keep one day at this season and many arrive in poor condition. Some of the best stock has sold up to $3, possibly $4 for a few of the very best. Orchids continue plentiful with little change in prices. Lily of the valley continues on the light side, and the best stock has sold for $25 per 100. There is the usual June supply of Gen. Jacqueminot roses, feverfew, coreopsis and other outdoor stock. Good sweet peas move fairly well.

June 16.—There is the usual Monday morning activity in the market, with an abundance of stock, but all good flowers, particularly roses, are bringing fair prices for the season. A few lilies are seen but not enough to class them as factors. Lily of the valley continues high.

NOTES.

It is reported from Massapequa, Nassau county, L. I., that the seventeen-year locusts have arrived in great number. They are not only hearty eaters, but also disturb sleep by their "humming and buzzing." We can think of but one remedy to offer our Nassau county friends. Eat 'em. A lady, who had traveled in the Orient, recently wrote to one of our city papers, saying that locusts were fine eating, and she gave several recipes for preparing them for the table. Who knows but that this might be a good way to give the "Beef Trust" a jolt? We hope our Nassau county friends will notice if any of the locusts have a "W" on their backs. If they have it means war, and the peace conference or the United States senate, or both should be immediately advised. There must be inspiration in locusts as food. Read this of John the Baptist: "And the same John had his raiment of camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins, and his meat was locusts and wild honey."—Matthew 3d chap., 4th verse. As Ex-President Taft is the John the Baptist of the league of nations, send him some locusts.

On August 1, James Mallon's Sons will remove from their location, corner of Fulton and Willoughby streets, opposite the Hall of Records, Brooklyn, to their other store, 20 Smith street, where for a time all their business will be transacted. Many improvements are being made in the Smith street store. The cause of their vacating the old quarters is that the property has been sold and a new building is to be erected. John P. Mallon, the only surviving member of the firm, says that he feels as though he was leaving the old homestead. He was born in the block over 59 years ago, played and fought there with the other boys, went to school from there—in brief, his whole life has been associated with that block, and his father and grandfather were there 64 years ago.

Under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York, a peony show was held at the American Museum of Natural History, June 11-13.

There was no prize list, it being simply an exhibition of good stock by the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y.; the Cedar Hill Nursery (T. A. Havemeyer), Glen Head, N. Y.; John Lewis Childs, represented by I. S. Hendrickson, Flowerfield, N. Y., and the Rose-dale Nurseries, Tarrytown, N. Y. Many good varieties were in the exhibition.

Seaman Miller, referee in bankruptcy, has called a meeting in the matter of Isadore A. Fight, individually, and John R. Walsh, copartners, trading as Anglin & Walsh, to be held at his office, No. 2 Rector street, June 26 at 1:30 p. m., at which time the trustees' account will be examined, and if found correct will be allowed, and the amount, if any, remaining for dividends will be declared, outstanding accounts will be sold and any other proper business transacted.

Frank Millang, Jr., son of Frank Millang, the wholesale florist of the Cut Flower Exchange, who is associated with his father in the business, was married June 11 at Narberth, Pa., to Miss Esther Elizabeth Miller of that place. It was a church wedding, after which there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. The happy couple are now on their honeymoon.

Joel G. Hayden, a retired florist of Floral Park, N. Y., and well known in the wholesale district of this city, is one of the jury that is hearing evidence in the trial of Dr. Walter K. Wilkins, charged with the murder of his wife at their Long Beach home several months ago. The trial is being held at Mineola, county seat of Nassau County, L. I.

Governor Smith, on the request of the district attorney of Onondaga county, recently appointed Charles E. Norris, a special commissioner to investigate charges of mismanagement and corruption that had been made against the state fair commissioners and various contractors. His report clears the parties concerned of the charges.

Many expressions of sorrow have been heard relating to the sudden passing away of Joseph G. Leikens—see particulars in obituary column. "Joe," as he was called by his intimates, had long been a familiar figure in the wholesale district. He was always cheerful and companionable, and had many friends.

Meyer, Madison avenue and 58th street, recently arranged an elaborate decoration at the Plaza hotel for a dinner given by the United Booking Office, a vaudeville concern. The centerpieces were umbrella decorations, and at the close of the entertainment they were bestowed on the guests as favors.

Charles Spengler, the retailer of 342 Second avenue, who recently underwent a serious operation, is now, we are pleased to state, so far recovered as to be able to attend to business.

Mrs. J. G. Laikens will continue the New York business of her late husband, but we understand that the summer store at Newport, R. I., will be discontinued.

BUSINESS SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Business the past week seemed somewhat improved over the previous month. At least, it seemed so from the amount of stock used. The counters cleaned up fairly well every day. Weddings have been quite numerous, and in the absence of lily of the valley, roses have been having a great call. Carnations still hang on but the quality is very poor. Outdoor stock has been somewhat improved with a little dry weather. This was broken June 16, by a heavy rainfall. Gladioli are coming in fine but the supply is none too great and the cut is commanding a very good price. New fancy ferns have appeared on the market and certainly are welcome to the retailer after using the southern stock for a while. Other greens are in good supply.

NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Marty have sent out announcements of the marriage of their daughter, Elsie, to Herman Knoll, the well-known Carondelet florist, at St. Boniface church, June 19. Both are well known in the trade. Miss Marty was with Windler's Flowers for quite a while. She is a girl of high character, always of a sunny disposition, seeing only the bright side of life, and Mr. Knoll is certainly to be congratulated on his good luck.

The florists' club held its June meeting at the greenhouses of W. I. Pilcher, a very interesting session, with quite a bit of discussion about exhibiting at the state fair and publicity matters. Mr. Thomas representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, was an applicant for membership. After the meeting, Mr. Pilcher served refreshments, lunch and cigars. The attendance was very encouraging, and everyone seemed to have a fine time.

W. A. Rowe's dance given at his Denny road place in Kirkwood certainly was a great affair. About 150 of the local florists and their friends attended, and Lon certainly is one genial and well providing host. We voted the cats to be the best bet yet.

The June wedding appears to have come into its own again this year. It seems to be nothing unusual for a retailer to have anywhere from three to six weddings in one day.

A number of the local retailers are getting new delivery trucks. Among those noticed, are Grimm & Gory, Bentzen Floral Co., Mulanphy Florists and Windler's Flowers.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, 216 Prospect Avenue, S. E., Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 24-26, 1919.

THE price of bags at Chicago, June 18, was $54.

SEEDSMEN'S CONVENTION at Chicago, next week, June 24-26.

CORN weather is grand in the middle west now, with hot nights.

VISITED CHICAGO: W. C. Marlowe, of the Marlowe Seed Co., Wichita, Kans.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The Henry F. Michell Co. reports the volume of business for the 1919 season about equal to that of last year.

GRASS SEED.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, June 17, were as follows: Timothy, $9.50 to $11.50 per 100 pounds.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—D. I. Bushnell, of D. I. Bushnell & Co., will attend the Chicago convention. R. W. Pommer will leave shortly for a trip to California.

A. T. FERRELL, the Clipper Cleaner man of Saginaw, Mich., is in California and regrets inability to meet his many friends at the seed trade convention next week.

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, Floral Park, N. Y., who has just returned from California, says the seed crops generally look promising with the outlook for a good harvest.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, says the business closing with the end of June, 1919, shows a percentage of decline as compared with 1918. The mail record, however, shows an increase.

TORONTO, ONT.—Anton J. G. Simmers, president of the J. A. Simmers Co., one of the best known seedsmen in the Dominion and a life-long resident of this city, died suddenly June 4.

ONION SETS.—Latest reports, June 17, indicate crop prospects in the north part of the Chicago district are poor while on the south side the outlook is better. On the whole, the acreage should be sufficient to take care of the trade.

NORWALK, O.—The W. C. Pressing Seed Co. says that although the weather has been quite dry for some time, the seed corn crop looks good and with favorable weather will make up time lost in lateness of planting. Eight acres of gladioli are in fine condition.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover market closed steady, June 17, at $27.00, no change during the preceding seven days. October was quoted at $22.70 and December $22.60. Timothy was firm, cash being offered at $5.50, September, $6.10, October, $5.90, December, $5.90 and March, $6.00.

W. W. BARNARD, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, is taking a pleasure trip east, via Buffalo, and A. H. Goodwin and wife will spend August in the Adirondack mountains. Ralph B. Howe, of this firm, succeeds to the position vacated by M. S. Smith, who has rejoined his former employers, the M. G. Madsen Seed Co., Manitowoc, Wis.

DAVID BURPEE, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., is in California inspecting seed crops.

PROMINENT financial interests are said to be looking for a relaxation in the money market at an early date.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—The Arkansas party, investigating industrial conditions, headed by Gov. Brough, recently visited the Funk seed farms here.

Chas. L. Kunz,
President Madsen Seed Co.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—According to the J. Steckler Seed Co., Ltd., the trade throughout the entire south was not 25 per cent of the volume of that of 1918. While the orders were as numerous, the amount in dollars and cents was less, as practically no potatoes, peas or beans were planted during the first three months of the year, due to very unfavorable weather and a shortage of labor. An improvement in fall trade, however, is looked forward to.

Madsen Seed Co. Reorganizes.

The M. G. Madsen Seed Co., Manitowoc, Wis., has been reorganized, its capital stock increased to $150,000 and all departments of the business will be continued on a more extensive scale under the old firm name. New buildings will be erected and branches established in Minnesota. Charles L. Kunz, who has been connected with the M. G. Madsen Seed Co. for 23 years, is president and general manager of the new organization, associated with him being Frank A. Miller, general manager of the Wm. Rahr Sons Co. and the Cereal Products Co. of Manitowoc, vice-president, and W. L. Hamilton, for the past five years in charge of the case department of the Hamilton Mfg. Co., Two Rivers, Wis., secretary-treasurer. These officers constitute the board of directors.

M. S. Smith, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, formerly with the Wisconsin firm, will take an important position with the reorganized concern in the near future.

A. J. Schumacher, formerly of Cincinnati, O., is now with the firm in the capacity of field and greenhouse superintendent.

T. M. Fagan, for some time with A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, has joined the Madsen Seed Co.'s traveling force.

Colorado Crop Conditions.

Supplementing its report on crop conditions in Nebraska dated June 13, the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb., in speaking of the situation in Colorado, says the frost damage early in June was fully as severe as at first reported. Probably 80 per cent of the cucumber acreage has been replanted but a much smaller acreage of muskmelon, farmers feeling that it was too late to put in this kind of a crop with a reasonable prospect of its maturing.

Stokes Closes Philadelphia Store.

The Stokes Seed Farms Co., Moorestown, N. J., has decided to develop the mail order end of its business to the exclusion of all other departments, except in certain districts of New Jersey, and in accordance with its new policy, will close the Philadelphia store it has conducted for nearly 40 years.

Tariff Legislation Hearings in July.

The seedsmen's tariff committee will do well to fortify itself for summer work in Washington as the following item indicates that general tariff hearings will begin within a month. The heat in Washington in mid-summer is proverbial.

"First hearings on proposed protective tariff legislation were held June 10 by the house ways and means committee. Chairman Fordney said hearings on a general revision of the tariff would be begun in about a month."

Season in Cincinnati and Vicinity.

In commenting on business during the past year, the J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., in a communication of June 16, says:

"On the whole, the seed trade for Cincinnati and surrounding territory has been satisfactory. The season started early and has been favorable up to date. There was an exceptionally strong demand for clover seed, and we were unable to meet the call for alsike. Owing to the high price of the former, there was an unusually heavy trade in sweet clover and alfalfa, many farmers sowing one of these in the place of red clover, which seemed to them almost prohibitive in price. The demand for timothy and blue grass has been very active. Owing to the high price of clover, many people have used commercial inoculation in order to insure a stand. The clover seeded in the wheat looks very fine. The wheat looks very fine.

"The early seed corn trade was moderate, probably due to the fact that more farmers have saved their own seed than ever before, due to last year's experiences. Owing to the rains which lasted for a period of three weeks, during corn planting, many farmers were unable to plant the acreage they had intended, and are now seeding this land to soy beans, cow peas, millet, and sorghum. This has made a very active demand for all of these seeds.

"The wholesale garden seed trade is holding up well and there has been a late demand for late varieties of seed potatoes, and a very heavy sale of vegetable plants.

"Now that the war is over, many people who have been spending their time in war activities, are interested in hot house plants and shrubbery. We have been unable to supply the demand for roses.

NEW YORK CITY

"Owing to the cold rainy weather during April, we have had an exceptionally severe scourge of plant lice, as well as other insects on fruits and vegetables. This has created a strong demand for insecticides and spraying equipment."

Baltimore Seed Trade.

The trade in this city enjoyed a very prosperous season and there is still considerable activity. J. Bolognino & Son, who handle roses and bedding plants in the spring, in connection with their immense seed business, have great faith in newspaper publicity, using columns of space daily and entire pages for week end sales. A national campaign has been undertaken, this being the first year, and results have been very satisfactory, although the full benefit is not expected to be felt for three years. The field and garden seed situation for next year is a problem, owing to changing conditions following the end of the war, with the trade now facing a falling market. Because of the government's guarantee as to the price of wheat, many farmers plowed down hay and clover crops, with the result that red clover seed advanced to a record price of $30 per bushel. Next year, with no guaranteed price, the situation will be different, and normal, or before the war conditions will, to a great extent, prevail. The year's business, however, is reported very satisfactory.

The W. A. Simpson Co. found the farmers willing to pay high prices for field seeds. Although the wheat price guarantee had reduced other crops, the resultant high prices for hay, make heavy planting of this crop for next year a certainty. Selected lawn grass mixtures have been discontinued for the present by this establishment owing to the shortage of the finer varieties from Holland.

Field seeds, particularly red and alsike clover, have been factors in the business at Blumberg Bros., Inc. While stock was scarce, owing to increased wheat production, nothing could be exported, and this, together with the fact that there was no carry-over from last year, saved the market.

Meyer & Stisser report an increasing demand for their entire line at better prices than ever before. Grass and flower seeds and bedding and vegetable plants had a wonderful sale.

principal points in the new Ohio seed law affecting the trade in that state:

"Everyone handling agricultural seeds as defined in the law, which includes 'cabbage,' must pay a license fee of $5 per year; any kind or grade of agricultural seeds may be sold, but must bear a label with the percentage of pure seed, the percentage of weed seed and percentage of foreign seeds or matter, and if there are more than one of any or all noxious weed seeds in five grams of the small seeds, one seed in 25 grams of the next coarser or one seed in 100 grams of such seeds as wheat or rye, then the names of such noxious weeds must be mentioned on the label. Mixtures must give the varieties, but not the percentage and the amount of pure seed, weed seeds and foreign matter, and all agricultural seeds must give the percentage of germination, together with the month and year when made. It affects mixtures of eight ounces or more, and agricultural seeds of 10 pounds or more."

Potash Duty and Licenses.

Hearings have been begun by the ways and means committee on a bill to increase the duty on potash and license its importation so as to protect the new potash industry in the United States. Witnesses stated that it cost $5 a unit to produce potash in this country while the imported product could be sold for $1.50 a unit. Lewis Emery of Pennsylvania said that he with other Americans had invested more than $50,000,000 in developing the industry so that the government might have potash during the war, and that the country owed it to them to protect them against German competition. He suggested not only a licensing system, but also a tariff.

C. W. Waid, Grand Rapids, Mich., Vice-President;
S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary;

DAYTON, O.—Lack of rain in this section is reported to have caused considerable loss in vegetable crops.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 17.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen boxes, $1.50 to $2.25; celery, Florida, crate, $3.50 to $4.50; leaf lettuce, per box, 10 to 15 cents; radishes, per doz. bunches, 12 to 18 cents; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $6.00 to $6.50.

New York, June 16.—Celery (Florida), per crate, 75 cents to $2.50; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.25 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $6.00 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 10 to 25 cents; lettuce, per package, 25 cents to $1.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.00 to $2.00.

Mulching Vegetables.

To keep vegetables growing vigorously through the hot dry spells of summer without an irrigation system is made possible by means of a mulch around the plant. Grain, straw, corn-stalks, leaves, lawn clippings, etc., may be used for the mulch, says J. T. Rosa of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. It should be placed to the depth of several inches between the rows and around the plants.

A good mulch applied to tomatoes in June will reduce the amount of the destructive blossom-end-rot, and it will improve the quality and size of the fruit, keeping it from coming in contact with the soil and becoming infected with decay or stained with mud. Eggplant, strawberries, peppers, and potatoes are other crops especially benefitted by mulching between the rows. Rhubarb and asparagus may be mulched with stable manure. Experience has shown that the increased returns secured by mulching pay handsomely for the slight expense of applying the mulch.

Cold Pack Canning.

To those who have tried the various methods of canning fruits and vegetables, there is none so easy and satisfactory as the "single-period cold-pack" process, according to the June 4 issue of Leaflets published by the Brooklyn botanic garden. The term "single period" refers to the method of cooking the food for one continuous period of time instead of for a shorter length of time on two or three successive days. The jars having been filled to overflowing with the food to be canned are partly sealed and placed on a rack in warm water in the boiler having the water at least one inch above the tops of the jars. Bring to the boiling point and then time the boiling period to meet the requirements of the vegetable or fruit under process. When done, remove the jars from the boiler, seal completely and turn upside down on a table well padded with paper or cloths and away from drafts. Cover with a towel while cooling. Watch for leakage or for rising of air bubbles, while jars are inverted, which would indicate a break in the rubber ring or an imperfect seal.

Spraying.

We are all familiar with the phrase—"This is the worst season I ever saw"—but in our opinion this is almost true in regard to central Ohio as it applies to insects. Almost all plant growth is covered with aphids, green, pink and black ones. It seems there is a special breed for each kind of plant. We believe it was three years ago when we first saw the pink aphid on tomatoes. This pest is now a regular visitor, and the result is that as long as it controls the fields, tomatoes will be high in price. Where formerly tomatoes averaged probably 75 cents per bushel, $2.00 has been the rule. Of course, there are other factors, but this pest does seriously shorten the production. It is at once hard to get at and hard to kill. We know from experience that this pest does not yield to nicotine as readily as the green kind. Outdoors, owing to the rapid evaporation and large air circulation, nicotine is less effective than inside. Therefore, it is best to spray late in the evening, using stronger solutions, and repeating the operation at short intervals. Thus we like to go over a field in one direction and reverse shortly after. The first application generally disturbs the pests which compels them to travel looking for relief; in this condition if hit a second time, they are generally disposed of, where with only one treatment, they often recover.

As regards materials, we generally prefer Black Leaf 40 for outdoor work as it does not evaporate as quickly as the free nicotine preparations used under glass. For the striped melon bug, we employ two remedies, dust and spray. Our dusting material is tobacco dust and air-slaked lime in proportions somewhat like  $\frac{1}{4}$  tobacco and  $\frac{3}{4}$  lime. This cheapens it and we can use it freely. We prefer to throw a small handful into each hill with great force, hitting the bugs as hard as possible. This will imbed the powder under their wings and they will speedily leave for parts unknown. This method, if faithfully practiced, will carry any of the vines through. However, owing to frequent showers, this method is faulty at times. Therefore we aim to spray with some material that is poisonous and that sticks well. For this purpose we know of nothing better than pyrox. The only fault to pyrox is that it poisons only to a mild degree. This we rectify by adding a small quantity of Paris green to each mixture. An imitation of pyrox, home-made, would be the standard 4-4-50 Bordeaux with arsenate of lead and some Paris green. The lead arsenate gives the sticking quality, but we do like to add some Paris green for efficiency. This spray will soon teach the melon bugs to pack and depart. They have a tendency to colonize and thus destroy hills in a few minutes—but with this poisonous spray on our vines such tactics are impossible.

Sweet Potatoes.

The stimulus of high prices both for the early fall crop of sweet potatoes and the storage house stock during the past few years has caused a considerable increase in the acreage in the state, according to the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. Many truck growers located on sandy loam and gravelly loam soils are finding that this is one of the easiest and surest crops to grow, besides being highly profitable. The Nancy Hall has become the leading market variety. The St. Louis market frequently pays as much as 25 cents per bushel premium for this variety. The high quality of this potato, both from the consumers' and growers' standpoint, are being recognized. To the grower, the Nancy Hall appeals strongly because of its good yielding power. The fact that it does not make such luxuriant vine growth as other varieties, makes it easier to cultivate and to harvest. Other varieties are being grown to a lesser extent. The Red Bermuda is quite popular for the extra early market as this variety is extremely hardy, and makes a fair crop of tubers of marketable size earlier than almost any other variety. The Southern Queen, Early Triumph, and Yellow Golden (Strassburg) are also popular. The Porto Rico Yam was grown in several places last year, and proved quite a success, especially on the light sandy soils. The Jersey varieties have not proved popular in most places. Besides growing $1,000,000 worth of sweet potatoes each year, Missouri grows tens of millions of sweet potato plants. These are distributed to some extent within the state, but probably the bulk of them are shipped to adjoining states on the south, where the prevalence of disease makes it difficult to obtain good plants.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports received by the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture for the period June 10-17, indicate that prices weakened under heavy shipments. Supplies of old potatoes were liberal for this time of the year and prices suffered further declines. The Chicago earlot market closed 35 cents lower than the previous week at $1.40-$1.65 for sacked and Minneapolis closed at $1.75. New York round whites ranged $1.50-$2 in bulk at New York and Philadelphia, but held to $2.35-$2.50 at Baltimore. Green Mountains were steady at $1.50-$2.25 sacked. Most markets reported heavy supplies of new potatoes and considerably lower prices. Eastern shore of Virginia stock declined to $5-$5.50 f. o. b. for top stave barrels. Leading consuming markets quoted $5.25-$7.25 at the close. Best North and South Carolina Cobblers reached a low point of $4.50-$6.50 in terminal markets. Shipping points quoted $5. Texas Bliss Triumphs averaged $1 lower in middle-west consuming markets. Onion values were firm. Texas Yellow Bermudas have declined about 25 cents, each of the past three weeks, reaching a level

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Counsel; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia., Treasurer; Chas. Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., Secretary. Forty-fourth annual convention will be held at Chicago, June 25-27, 1919.

NURSERYMEN'S CONVENTION at Chicago, next week, June 25-27.

LONDON, ENG.—Lack of rain is spoiling the British apple crop and a continuance of the drought will completely ruin the yield.

BARABOO, WIS.—All of the buildings and contents of the Great Northern Nursery, M. F. Foley, proprietor, were destroyed by fire, June 9. The loss is $30,000; insurance, $5,000.

ROLAND W. COTTERILL, Seattle, Wash., secretary-treasurer of the American Association of Park Superintendents, died May 6. Mr. Cotterill had been in ill health for a considerable time.

Tariff Legislation Hearings in July.

The nurserymen's tariff committee will do well to fortify itself for summer work in Washington as the following item indicates that general tariff hearings will begin within a month. The heat in Washington in mid-summer is proverbial.

"First hearings on proposed protective tariff legislation were held June 10 by the house ways and means committee. Chairman Fordney said hearings on a general revision of the tariff would be begun in about a month."

Raspberries Profitable in Scotland.

Scottish raspberry growers are said to be realizing immense profits on their crops these days according to Commerce Reports. The raspberry production of Scotland totals about 3,300 tons. Of this fully 2,000 tons are raised in the Blairgowrie and Alyth districts, and Auchterarder district contributes from 600 to 700 tons, leaving a balance of about 600 tons raised throughout other parts of the country.

Syndicates, including preserving concerns south of the border, have purchased practically the entire crop of the Blairgowrie and Alyth districts. About 1,000 tons have been sold for this season only, but of the remainder more than half has been sold for five years and the remainder for three years ahead. The prices paid are sensational. Prior to the war the rate per ton ranged from £15 to £22 (from $73 to $107). Where the five years' crop has been disposed of the prevailing figure is £50 ($213) per ton; those who have dealt on a three years' basis are getting slightly more than this, and where this year's crop alone has been sold the average is not below £60 ($292). In transactions involving smaller quantities and this season's crop only, as high as £68 ($330) per ton has been paid.

To the ordinary householder all this is of great concern. It is obvious that any supplies of berries available this season for retail in the ordinary way will, in the absence of control, exceed the high rates prevailing last year. If no steps are taken to secure a portion of the fruit supplies for domestic preserving it may well be that, despite better facilities for obtaining sugar, there will be little jam making by housewives this year.

Roses of Interest.

The Boursault rose (Rosa Lheritieranea) has not before carried more flowers than it has borne this year. This rose, which was raised in France early in the last century, is believed to be a hybrid of R. chinensis and the European R. pendulina, and owes its popular name to Monsieur Boursault who a hundred years ago had a garden in the Rue Blanche, now Chaussee d'Antin, famous for its collection of roses. There have been several forms of the Boursault rose; the one in the Arboretum collection, which has pale rose red, partly double flowers, is not an uncommon plant in old New England gardens. It is a tall, vigorous and perfectly hardy shrub with gracefully spreading stems. Rosa Marretii has not before flowered so freely in the Arboretum; it is a tall, broad shrub with arching stems, pale green leaves, and large pink flowers. It is a native of northern Hokkiado and of Saghalien where it was discovered by the late Abbe Faurie who sent seeds to the Arboretum in 1908. This plant, which is probably still rare in cultivation, promises to be a good addition to the single-flowered roses which can be successfully grown in this climate. The single-flowered Chinese form of R. Roxburgii (var. normalis) is flowering this week for the first time in the Arboretum and proves to have larger flowers than any other rose in the collection, with the exception of R. rugosa and its varieties. The petals are pale shell pink and conspicuously notched at apex. The fruit of this rose will probably be almost as ornamental as the flowers, as it is bright red, and thickly beset with long sharp prickles. One of the hardiest and best growing of the new roses, Rosa bella, raised at the Arboretum from seeds collected by Purdom in northern China, is a plant which when better known will be popular. It is a large shrub with bright red flowers an inch and a half in diameter, and showy red fruit. The only plant in the collection is with the other Chinese roses on Bussey hill. Unfortunately the flowers were ruined as they opened by the excessive heat of last week. Rosa multiflora cathayensis is again covered with its great clusters of pink flowers and expanding flower-buds. The Chinese representative of the white-flowered R. multiflora of Japan, it is, one of the most beautiful roses of its class, and interesting as the wild type from which the Chinese derived the now well known Crimson Rambler rose and another old-fashioned garden plant, the Seven Sisters rose (Rosa multiflora platyphylla). Rosa Helenae, which some persons consider the handsomest of the roses discovered by Wilson in western China, will be in flower again in a few days. It is a large shrub with slender arching stems furnished sparingly with small red spines and many-flowered clusters of pure white delicately fragrant flowers an inch and a quarter in diameter. It well deserves a place in any collection of single-flowered roses, however small.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, June 12, 1919.

MOUND CITY, ILL.—Henry Hillich contemplates moving to more commodious quarters in the near future.

NARBERTH, PA.—An excellent flower show under the auspices of the civic association was held here, June 7. There were 34 groups of exhibits in which prizes were awarded.

Practical Greenhouse Work

calls for the best equipment obtainable to gain the most profitable results. Ordinary make-shift greenhouses may answer the purpose, but harder work is required of the owner and smaller returns for his labor and investment.

Every piece of material that enters into the construction of Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouses is the result of much experience on the part of our detail men. The members are cut to exact measure and shipped to you with the plans; all so simple that any man with an ordinary knowledge of greenhouse construction can set them up perfectly.

Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouses

are made of selected Louisiana Red Gulf Cypress, to best withstand the heat and moisture required in greenhouse work.

The Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouse is a practical answer to the market grower's needs, and will give you a lifetime of service at a small expenditure.

No frills no fancy work; just solid, useful, up-to-date construction at low prices.

American Sweet Pea Society.

Eleventh Annual Meeting and Exhibition, New York, June 21-22.

Fine Exhibits in all Classes.

The eleventh annual exhibition and convention of the American Sweet Pea Society was held in the American Museum of Natural History, New York, June 21-22. In both commercial and private sections and classes, fine stock was shown. The American Sweet Pea Society's medal for the finest and most meritorious exhibit—by the seed trade—was won by the W. Atlee Burpee Co. of Philadelphia, Pa. It was an elegant display of many varieties arranged for effect with grasses, on a background of dark cloth. The arrangement was by George W. Kerr of Fordbrook Farm, who is also president of the society. In this collection, some of the varieties noticed were Illuminator, pink; Miss Barnaby, light pink; America, pink; Lavender Beauty and R. Sydenham, salmon; Royal Purple, Margaret Atlee, light pink; King Alfred, salmon; Pathfinder, salmon; the Lady Emeline, purple; Queen Victoria Spencer, white; President, red; Prince George, pink, and other good varieties.

In the private gardeners' section and classes, the Hutchins memorial cup, valued at $250, to be held one year, for the finest 12 distinct varieties 20 sprays to a vase, was won by C. F. Cartledge, Locust Valley, N. Y. (W. C. Noonan, Gr.). This exhibit also took the W. Atlee Burpee Co.'s prizes, silver cup, valued at $25, and $10 additional. W. C. Rickards, Jr. superintended the exhibition.

The absence of commercial florists as exhibitors is to be regretted. It would appear that the society would do well to consider means to interest them.

The amateurs should feel encouraged. W. G. Taylor, who took numerous prizes, is said to be a navy man. There is a story of a lady who did not think her husband qualified for secretary of the navy because he could not swim; but it is possible for a navy man to be useful ashore.

The lists of prize-winning varieties, elsewhere given is, in general, a good index to their merits, though in several collections there was some rather inferior stock. Of several varieties there can be no question as to their worth, and of these we may mention Constance Hinton, Hercules, Royal Purple, King Edward and Pathfinder, the latter a salmon pink.

At least one exhibitor who took first prizes seemed to have overlooked the necessity of water—and he was not an amateur. On the second day, his stock was about finished.

The John Scheepers Co., New York, exhibited a small collection of lilies, irises and erinus.

The Convention.

The annual meeting of the society was held in the assembly hall of the American Museum of Natural History on the afternoon of June 21, with a fair attendance. President Kerr called the meeting to order and read his address. Secretary Gray followed with his report. Treasurer Sim was unavoidably absent. There was some discussion on the proposal to reduce the dues to $1 per year, but no action was taken.

All the officers were re-elected as follows: George W. Kerr, president; Edwin Jenkins, vice-president; Wm. Gray, secretary; Wm. Sim, treasurer. E. C. Vick was added to the executive committee. It was suggested that if the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will finance the show, it be held in Boston next year. Professor A. C. Beal, chairman of the nomenclature and trials committee, was unable to attend the convention. The secretary was instructed to write and thank him for his former co-operation, and request him to notify the society of the results of trials and experiments. On motion of J. Robinson, Oyster Bay, N. Y., it was voted to offer a sweepstakes prize for the best sweet peas grown by members of any horticultural society.

Letters of condolence were ordered to be sent to Mrs. Wm. J. Stewart and Mrs. J. Hairison Dick.

President Kerr's Address.

It is again my privilege and pleasure as president of the American Sweet Pea Society to welcome the members present to the eleventh annual meeting and exhibition of our society. For the fourth time in the comparatively short life of our organization, the exhibition is again staged in New York, and being as centrally situated as any city we could fix upon, at least for the eastern growers, I have become convinced that the annual convention should always be held here. By having a fixed residence, so to speak, and also, as near as possible, a fixed date, growers, both north and south, would then be in a position to make their arrangements accordingly. As we are all aware weather plays an important part, assisting and helping in some seasons, or in others entirely upsetting our best laid schemes. Such chances, of course, the grower has always to run. For instance, three weeks ago, my flowers were at their best. Receiving field culture only, and no water except what nature provided, which has been very little since they came into bloom, they are naturally on the down grade. On the other hand, where plants are grown on the cordon system, exhibition flowers may be reasonably expected over quite an extended season. However, the help question in the majority of gardens has been a rather perplexing one for some time past, and, to grow sweet peas on the cordon system, where any quantity is cultivated, takes up considerable time, so that it has in some gardens been entirely dropped during the past two seasons. Let us hope that as the world's affairs become stabilized, and we return to normal conditions, this form of culture may be more largely followed, for, we want to see our beautiful annual grown at its best, and this is certainly the way to do it.

That the sweet pea still holds its pride of place among annuals, there can be no doubt. Largely due to the use of the early-flowering varieties, their charming blooms may be purchased in our markets for practically 10 months out of the 12. The fact that sweet peas are so much in evidence in our florists' windows during the spring months, is a great incentive to all flower loving owners of gardens, large and small, to take up their cultivation, and it is our duty to assist the amateur growers and encourage wherever possible, by advice as to the best methods of culture. The professional gardener is supposed to know all about sweet peas, but, if our society is to improve its standing and position in the horticultural world, we must do our utmost to help our amateur brothers.

The specialist in all horticultural lines is ever busy, and, needless to say, the sweet pea is receiving due attention as testified by the many new and improved varieties which are annually introduced. Each year we are getting new colors, larger and finer flowers of existing colors, and in both the early and summer-flowering types. With such a continuous improvement always going on, this is surely a stimulant to sweet pea growers. Such being the case, it should also in a great measure further the interest in our society, and I would ask all members to assist the officers in increasing our membership, which with comparatively little effort might be doubled in a season.

I take this opportunity of thanking our worthy secretary for his untiring energies on our behalf, also the members of the executive committee who have at all times been ready and willing to further the welfare of the society. We are also indebted to C. C.

Sweet Peas at Adolph Farenwald's, Roslyn, Pa.

Merse & Co., Stumpp & Walter Co., and Weeber & Don for financing Sections B. and C. of the schedule.

With our finances now in a fairly flourishing condition, it remains with the members to still further increase our usefulness in the horticultural world, so that we may realize the hope that there is a great future ahead for the American Sweet Pea Society.

Secretary Gray's Report.

Five years have elapsed since the last convention and exhibition of our society was held in this city, and during the interval conventions and exhibitions have been held in Newport, Bar Harbor, Boston and Philadelphia. While many horticultural bodies curtailed their activities during the troublous times we have just passed through, the officers of your society thought it best to keep up our activities, and although the interest had lessened to some extent, the policy was undoubtedly a wise one. Considerable differences of opinion exist as to the wisest course to pursue in times of stress, still, after the first hysterical outburst against the growing of flowers in war times, the great need for their soothing influence in the home and hospital was recognized, and who will say that they are not just as essential to our well-being as the things we eat? I remember reading somewhere about the wounded British soldiers lying in the hospital whiling away the dreary hours by separating the different colored sweet peas in the bunches sent in, and naming the varieties of which the bunch was composed. No doubt they were former sweet pea enthusiasts before entering the army, and it is just this kind of enthusiasm we should strive to arouse to a greater extent in our own land.

I have heard our society referred to as of little consequence, owing to the mistaken idea that organizations like ours should have large reserve funds. I look upon horticultural bodies in general as being of a more or less philanthropic nature, and the funds should be expended to further the objects and aims for which they are organized, retaining from year to year a balance sufficient for them to continue to function. Too often it is the case that the most hearty applause is heard when a large sum at the end of the year is turned into the treasury and scant notice given the report of what has been accomplished in the way of promoting horticulture, no matter how wisely the money may have been spent. In our bulletin, you will find a clear and concise report each year of the financial condition of our society and under the expenditures an explanation of how the money has been spent.

For a society of national scope, a very modest sum is involved, and this suggests that an effort should be made to increase the interest and make our society assume the importance it should. The members should grasp every opportunity to induce sweet pea lovers to join our organization for it is only through interesting others that we will be able to build up a strong organization. In these days of increased expenses on every hand, it may seem dubious to suggest the lowering of the dues to $1 a year, but at this more popular figure, it might be possible to so greatly increase our membership as to warrant the change. The heavy call made upon us all for war activities during the past two years is no doubt the reason that a considerable number of our members are behind in their dues and with brighter days ahead, it is hoped that all will renew their interest in the society.

Your society has received generous support from the firms advertising and offering prizes in the bulletin, and this has enabled us to print and distribute 1,000 copies which have been mailed to members and prospective members all over the country.

I take pleasure in reporting the affiliation of two societies with ours, the Lake Geneva Gardeners' and Foremen's Association of Lake Geneva, of the secretaryship of your society, Wis., and the New Trier Horticultural Society, of Winnetka, Ill.

In closing, may I ask to be relieved for I believe the time is ripe for you to choose someone who can devote more time to the work than I. When I took the office, it was to fill in the gap between the resignation of your former secretary and the next convention, and on the expiration of the present term, January 1, 1920, I will have served you for three years. I am sure you can get better service from someone who does not have to drop the spade to take up the pen.

Geo. W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa.
President American Sweet Pea Society

American Peony Society.

PRESIDENT BOYD'S ADDRESS.

I regret exceedingly that important matters requiring my attention here will prevent me from attending the annual meeting this year. I think we all look forward to these meetings and exhibitions with a great deal of pleasure, and I assure you that my disappointment is great. Unfortunately, however, the time and place cannot be made to suit everybody.

We now have a membership extending from Maine to California and from Tennessee to Manitoba. I believe that the secretary's report will show that the growth of the society during the past year has been greater than ever before, but our membership is still small in comparison with what it should be, and I hope that during the next year, every member will make strenuous efforts to secure at least two additional members. A larger membership will give us more money to promote the popularity of the peony, which we all so much desire. I suggest that we consider offering substantial prizes to the members who secure the greatest number of new members during next year. If this suggestion is adopted, there should be two classes of competition—commercial and amateur. Our commercial friends should insert a card in their catalogues explaining the aims and purposes of the society and requesting their friends and customers to forward applications to them. Many of the rose dealers are advertising the American Rose Society in their catalogues, and there is no reason why the peony dealers should not do likewise. As this might involve some slight expense for printing, the prize should be a substantial one, but should not be awarded unless a minimum number is secured. The amateur, who would doubtless secure a smaller number, should be content with a smaller prize—possibly a silver cup in addition to the thanks of the society. I also suggest a revision of our constitution and by-laws. This is of great importance for many reasons which our secretary will explain to you.

Our secretary has called the root disease "a perennial topic of discussion."

Wm. Gray, Newport, R. I.
Secretary American Sweet Pea Society.

and so it will have to remain until we learn how to control or conquer it. Last year, I mentioned that in the preceding autumn, I had transplanted about 1,000 plants, placing them in a new field. I had carefully cut away all diseased parts from the roots of those that showed the slightest infection and had dipped them in Bordeaux mixture. By this plan, I have greatly reduced the percentage of diseased plants, and am much pleased with the results. I have, however, noticed a few cases where plants are showing signs of disease that were previously absolutely strong and healthy, and I am at a loss to know exactly how it is conveyed from one plant to another. I feel sure that certain varieties are more prone to it than others. I have occasionally had a bad case of it in a single plant which was completely surrounded by strong, healthy ones and how or why that individual plant was attacked remains a mystery to me. I suggest that the society consider offering a substantial prize of say $100 for the best paper on the cure and prevention of this disease. These papers should all be submitted to the secretary by August 1 and published either in a regular bulletin, to be issued before the planting season, or in a special circular, and a committee be appointed at the annual meeting in 1920 to award the prize after learning the experience of members who have tried the suggested treatments.

I wish to remind the members again of the society's garden at Arlington, near Washington, D. C., and suggests that contributions of varieties which the garden does not possess will be thankfully received. A list of those most desired was published in one of letins a short time ago and is, therefore, available to all members.

In electing the district or regional vice-presidents, I hope it may be understood that the vice-president, in whose territory the next annual meeting and exhibition will take place, is to have charge of the arrangements pertaining thereto. In other words, if a certain city or town desires to have our exhibition next year, they must secure the approval of the vice-president for that territory, and must send a representative to the meeting of the directors in New York next winter to arrange for all the details. When this is accomplished, the matter should be turned over to the regional vice-president, who should co-operate with the local committee in regard to all matters pertaining to the show and meeting. I can assure you it is much too difficult for your secretary and president to undertake to arrange for a show at a distance of several hundred miles. It is necessary that somebody, who has had experience, and is conversant with the requirements, should visit the show city immediately before the exhibition and be satisfied that all details are being attended to.

Our prize schedule for the past year or two has been practically the same, and it should not be changed from year to year except at the urgent request of several members. Such requests should be sent to either the president or secretary before the meeting of the directors in midwinter. If any changes are made in the schedule, notice of such change should be sent to all members well in advance of the exhibition. I wish to take this opportunity to make an explanation in regard to special prizes which have been added to the schedule this year. Through some misunderstanding, the schedule states that I have offered to give a root of "Le Cygne" as a special prize for the "four best white peonies grown in Michigan outside of Detroit." By some mistake this prize was offered in my name without consulting me. At the meeting of the directors in New York, it was proposed that roots should be given as prizes in certain classes, but I did not approve of the proposition, because I thought it would interest only a limited number of possible exhibitors and perhaps draw criticism of the size and healthfulness of the roots donated. Furthermore, I believed it better to offer cash, and permit the winner to purchase the roots he desired. I was, therefore, much surprised when I found the prize offered in my name. As it is, I have only one plant of "Le Cygne" that is fit for division, and I have already promised as much of that as I care to part with. A good root of "Le Cygne" is worth from $15 to $20, and I consider a prize of this value much too high to offer for the "best four white peonies grown in the state of Michigan outside of the city of Detroit." An entry of blooms of a very inferior variety might secure such a prize. Under the circumstances, however, I will agree to give the winner in this class an order on some dealer for a root of "Le Cygne," or for other roots of the same total value. This will enable him to purchase "Solange" and "Therese," or indeed, if he wished to, he could secure "Therese," "Marie Crousse," "Baroness Schroeder," "Mme. Emile Lemoine" and "Mons. Jules Elie" in place of a single root of "Le Cygne." I trust this arrangement will be satisfactory to all concerned.

I hope that all the members of the society have taken as much interest in the symposium, compiled by our secretary and published in the last bulletin, as I have. I think it is worthy of much study and consideration. I thoroughly agree with Professor Saunders that it would be advisable to establish an index expurgatorius that shall contain the names of all varieties which the society recommends for the rubbish heap. The sooner we eliminate these undesirables the better it will be for the general reputation of the peony. Dealers should be urged to keep progress with the times, discard the old and undesirable, and advertise and disseminate the new and improved varieties. Of course they should cling to what they know to be good, but they should not continue to increase varieties which they know are inferior, simply because they happen to have stock on hand. We should all remember that high class stock requires no more room and no more care and cultivation than inferior stock.

HANNIBAL, Mo.—J. E. Null, florist, has departed without leaving his address.

SEATTLE, WASH.—The Burdett Floral Co. left about 20 per cent unpaid claims to its creditors.

DENVER, COLO.—Prospects for a dividend in the W. W. Wilmore bankruptcy case are said to be poor.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Henry L. Phelps, 70 years of age, who has conducted a florist establishment here for 30 years at 228 East Jackson street, was struck by an automobile June 13, suffering a fractured hip and cuts on the head and hands.

THE S. A. F.

National Publicity for Flowers.

What efforts are the florists making to keep up, through their local newspapers, a connection with the campaign advertising in the magazines? This "linking up" by individual florists is of great advantage to them, and, as well, helps along the campaign. As has often been pointed out, the very wide publication in the magazines of our slogan, "Say it with Flowers," with hints as to daily uses of flowers, necessarily conveys our message to prospective customers in the community of every florist, and these same people are more than likely to connect a reproduction of the advertisements by a local florist in a local paper with the magazine advertising, which, undoubtedly, would result to the benefit of the local florist; in fact, many who have followed this course, assure us that it does.

In view of the splendid results following the publication of the series of small advertisements published in 33 national magazines during January and February, and in order to keep our slogan before the public during July and August, ordinarily dull months for the florist—which really need not be the case, for there are nearly as many uses for flowers in those months as in any other—our publicity committees have decided to run a similar series during these summer months. There will be six advertisements in the series, and by using one of the slogan line electrotypes provided by our promotion bureau, a local florist can reproduce the wording of any or all of the advertisements without further expense, and include his own name and business address, with any other matter desired.

To enable anyone to see what these advertisements are, we give here the list of the magazines in which they will appear, and the dates of the issues. Where a magazine is given more than one date, it is meant that a different advertisement is used on each date. The large monthlies are on sale from one to two weeks or more ahead of the date; the weeklies about two days ahead.

These magazines will have a total circulation of about 20,000,000, confined very largely to the class of people from which flower buyers are drawn. If, as is generally conceded by advertising experts, every copy of a magazine is read by five persons, on the average, there is a clear circulation of 100,000,000. Is it not worth while for every florist to connect with this publicity in every way possible?

Landscape.

A bit of sandy hillside beneath a summer sky,
A breeze that sohs a love song and flutters softly by;
A glimpse of sunlit river swift moving to the sea,
And, somewhere in the distance, a bird's heartbroken cry.
A glimpse of sunlit river swift moving to the sea,
And clouds that hold the terror of storms that are to be.
Slim trees with leaves aquiver, that stand serenely high,
And memory's slender fingers that touch the soul of me.
Slim trees with leaves aquiver, that stand
serenely high,
Deep in their silent shadow a buried dream may lie;
A glimpse of sunlit river swift moving to the sea,
A bit of sandy hillside, a love song and July.

Lines of An Australian Soldier.

Ye who have faith to look with fearless eyes,
Beyond the tragedy of a world at strife,
And know that out of death and night shall rise
The dawn of ampler life,
Rejoice, whatever anguish rend the heart,
That God has given you a priceless dower,
To live in these great times and have your part in Freedom's crowning hour;
That ye may tell your sons who see the light
High in the Heavens—their heritage to take—
I saw the Powers of Darkness put to flight,
I saw the morning break.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Building Up Confidence and Good-Will.

Does not the fact that the florists have entered into a publicity campaign put an atmosphere of confidence and good-will up to the public that immediately places the florists on as high a level as other business creators have done. The best known way to build up this wonderful asset must necessarily be by two channels. First, you must have the product for distribution, and then, you must advertise it, and when you have done this, you have taken the most essential step.

Are we not all proud to think that we have the product, and every retail flower store, all over the land, is a distributor? Then comes your national publicity campaign to do your advertising to help stir up the sales

Start That Advertising

Mr. Retailer:

If you wish the public to know about your goods and your store,

If your store is inviting and your employes courteous and obliging,

If you give one hundred cents on the dollar in trade,

If you wish the buying public to have confidence in you and your store,

Start your Advertising Campaign right now.

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
W. B. WILSON, Secretary

and all you have to do is to tie up to it locally and get the benefits. How well pleased we may all be to think we entered into this advertising campaign is well illustrated by the announcements Uncle Sam is paying for in space in the newspapers to tell the business men of America to advertise, and we herewith reproduce one of a series of paid advertisements that ought to greatly interest all.

Now do you not feel as one of the participants in our glorious campaign that we had vision enough to start before even Uncle Sam advised it?

Think it over and incidentally, if you have not as yet subscribed, do you not think it ought to merit it, so we can go on with our national campaign?

Yours very truly,

HENRY PENN,

Chairman Nat. Pub. Campaign.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The greatest factor in developing new business is an attractive, up-to-date looking shop. The old maxim, "clothes make the man," can be applied with equal force to the flower store. Artistically arranged windows, together with a clean, well-stocked show room, makes a good impression and frequently creates a desire which leads to new business. It is not necessary to carry expensive stock at this time, but the most, in a decorative way, should be made of what is available and suitable for the character of the business. Flowers of any kind, invitingly arranged, that is, instead of being shown in the original bunches, loosened and given room to spread out and develop, are much more attractive. Ornamental jars or vases or vase baskets and hampers are a great help. Flowers are taken from these as from the fibre jars, and will sell, when in the original bunches, they might pass unnoticed.

There are preferred customers in every store, some that call frequently, and others only occasionally, but whose trade is equally valued. When the various seasonal flowers first arrive, it is a good plan to send just a few to this selected list, marked "The First of the Season." One hundred choice glad-ioli spikes, distributed in this way, will be appreciated, and return in business much more than they cost.

Growers who have bedding stock left over, will be glad to make up small collections in baskets to be retailed from $1 to $2, which if displayed in front, should still meet with ready sale.

Even at these dull times, there is business about if one is alert and on the lookout for it. The columns of the daily papers are continually describing or foretelling events that mean trade for the florist. Much can be done by mail with letters or well worded circulars, calling attention to the stock and the facilities of the store, and asking the privilege of submitting estimates for any decorative work desired.

An attractive Fourth of July window will be well worth while the coming week. Everybody celebrates and hangs out the flag on the Fourth, and a well decorated, patriotic window done in flowers in the national colors, together with a liberal use of Old Glory, is sure to attract attention. White hydrangeas, larkspurs, and red carnations are good colors that can be arranged as an effective centerpiece. Such a window is good for all week, with a sign, "Closed All Day on the Fourth."

While there are plenty of outside flowers, a handsome, large wreath of magnolia or oak leaves, decorated with such stock, will make a good showpiece for the window. Small vases or tins can be mossed in at the side or top, into which the stems of the flowers can be placed and insure their keeping the day out.

The trade is gradually absorbing the fact that there is something in the Florists' Telegraph Delivery business. Many join and let it go at that, sitting down as far as this feature is concerned and waiting for the other fellow to get them the business. There are now over 800 members, and it would be interesting to know how many of these display their F. T. D. emblem, or make any effort to create business in their own store. This is the greatest asset to the organization and of most profit to every member. Only one additional order a week in each store, which could be obtained by a little hustling, would mean 1,000 transactions, and demonstrate to that many flower buyers the advantage of this service.

It is inventory time. Many firms close their books July 1, those who simply rely on memorandums, count what is in the stocking or look at their balance in the bank to find out how much more they have than last year at this time. Primitive as this seems, it is still the practice of far too many. Aside from ascertaining values, the inventory shows the number of the various articles on hand. There is much trash or out-of-date articles on hand carried over year after year, cluttering up the shelves, that if one has the courage to throw out, their stock is the better for it. Careful managers watch their various lines closely, and no matter how promising an article, if it does not take after a reasonable time, down goes the price, lower and lower, until it is cleaned out at cost, or less.

There will be a greatly increased stock to handle the coming season which the entire trade must work individually and collectively to dispose of at prices that will show a good return. Publicity will be a big factor, and the well organized S. A. F. committees are planning right now for a vigorous fall campaign. Advertisements are being set up for the October and November magazines, which require spot cash. Every man, grower, wholesaler, retailer, or supply dealer, should contribute to this fund right now. It is not an expense—it is seed sown, from which plants grow that will, like grain, become laden with golden fruit. It is right now that the money is wanted. Turn in some of that surplus and insure a good business for the coming year. Send your check today to John Young, secretary, 1170 Broadway, New York.

The Floral Picture.

Artists are continually painting pictures in which flowers more or less artistically arranged are the feature. Well executed water colors of flowers are the centers of attraction in the art shows of all the large cities. The famous pictures of flowers, marvelously true to form and color, and artistic triumphs in the matter of arrangement, painted by the late Paul de Longprey, of Los Angeles, Calif., are water colors of the highest type, which are greatly prized by their fortunate owners.

One of the most attractive decorations for the florist's show window is a flower picture, made with choice flowers all of one kind, or in assortment, arranged with accessories, such as baskets, vases, miniature stands or tables, cloths, etc. When used, this should be the central feature, the other decorations being secondary as a support or background.

A medium-sized gilt frame with an opening 18x24 inches is as large as necessary; many beautiful arrangements, showing artistic color effects, are possible in this space. A box frame about 12 inches in depth with two openings large enough to admit light from an electric bulb should form the rear of the frame. This is to be covered with black or dark blue velvet. The openings for light are to be at one side and end, so that the frame may be used in a horizontal or perpendicular position. Ground or opal glass should be used over this and the bulb kept an inch or two above, as otherwise the continuous heat will wilt the flowers.

A proper illumination is very important, particularly at night, when such a feature is sure to attract attention and has great advertising value. All kinds of color effects are possible with the aid of velvets of different shades as a background. A light blue velvet, in front of which are arranged pink roses in a low rose bowl, will be found a good setting. A darker shade of the blue used with calendulas and an acacia spray or two and green is a good contrast. An old gold shade of velvet is a good background for sprays of larkspur, calendulas, orange tulips and lavender pansies. A light green velvet works well with white or light colors.

The shallow flower bowls, which are now finished in such great variety of colors, can be filled to make very artistic pictures for showing in the frame. Small baskets of good patterns, some with high vase-like structure, look well with long-stemmed flowers, while the shallow oval or round, with low handles, can be very artistically arranged with pansies and other short-stemmed blossoms.

The closely made colonial bouquet, with fancy paper and ribbons, is an attractive centerpiece. Corsages, rather elaborately made, with ribbons and pins, are always admired.

All arrangements for the frame should be well finished in their various details, the effect aimed at being to make a picture as if done with the brush. When the effect produced is very good, an added feature is to suspend below a painter's palette with spots of color and a number of brushes. This carries out the idea to those who have to be shown.

When not on view in the window, the frame can be used on an easel in the store, making an attractive showing almost anywhere that room can be found for it. A vase of flowers or a basket, and at times a well-flowered begonia or cyclamen, will answer very nicely.

The frame should be supported as shown on an easel which admits of its being placed at any height, to be in keeping with various decorative effects.

The illumination should be made wherever possible in lieu of something more elaborate. As a wall decoration it can be filled or used to display an arrangement of everlasting. In fact, it will be found the most useful of the store's accessories for decorative effects.

Accounts Past Due.

Every dollar's worth of business in the flower shop should be so safeguarded that all sales are virtually cash transactions. The various items purchased through the month are carried for the convenience of the responsible customer to be paid for immediately on presentation of the bill.

This is the theory, but reducing it to practice shows it has never been possible to make it work out without considerable loss, mainly for the reason that credit is given where it is not deserved. Many persons will buy articles that they fancy if they do not have to pay the spot cash; without the credit there would be no sale.

Good book accounts are a valued asset to any business, showing that numbers of patrons have confidence in the firm and give it their business. No new accounts, however, should be opened without references and these should be looked up at once. Not infrequently the "beat" will carry a few small accounts, which are kept promptly paid up to be used to show his responsibility.

In all charge accounts it is very important to get correct initials and spelling of names, as well as street number and direction, north, south, east and west. The vital principle in collecting bills is to get after them immediately they are overdue. If the account is a one day transaction, as for a funeral piece in which several are interested, and they have not all paid up, the bill should be sent at once and followed up daily, as the longer it stands, the less chance there is of getting it.

A successful retailer, interviewed on this subject, said: "I never let a bill get old. We get after it the moment it is overdue, and there is no let up until it is paid or we find it entirely worthless, which is seldom the case with a fresh account. We lose very little now from charge accounts, being careful to get cash from transient customers or send C. O. D. We are glad to open regular accounts, but only people whom we know to be responsible get on our books. We do not take chances, preferring to lose the trade rather than the money."

One of the best methods in bringing in accounts is the mail. A well written letter, mild at first, but calling attention to the fact that our prices are based on cash, and charge accounts for 30 days are for the convenience of customers, will stir up a large percentage of delinquents. After this, letters gradually stronger should follow every seven days. Requests are much better than threats. All correspondence should be in plain envelopes, as if one knows from the outside, the character of the contents, it may not be opened. In fact, all bills should be sent out in plain envelopes, so that busybodies may not wonder to whom he or she is sending flowers. Customers who pay no attention to repeated requests, may be handled by the information that the bill for articles delivered to this or that person, will be sent to them if check is not immediately received.

In cases where the size of the bill warrants the expense, it is well to get judgment and enter it up. Accounts considered worthless have been obtained in this way through legacies in settlement of estates, in which property titles could not be made clear until such judgment was paid.

Wisconsin State Florists' Association.

The Wisconsin State Florists' Association will hold its summer meeting at Fond du Lac, June 27. The organization which was formed at Milwaukee last year includes in its membership many of the most prominent members of the trade in the state. An interesting programme has been prepared and all indications point to a large and enthusiastic gathering. The present officers of the association are C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, president; H. J. Seal, 462 Milwaukee street, Milwaukee, secretary, and Gust. Rusch, Milwaukee, treasurer.

Minnesota State Horticultural Society.

In connection with the Minnesota Garden Society, the Minnesota Flower Society and the Northwestern Peony and Iris Society, the Minnesota State Horticultural Society staged an excellent exhibition at the university farm June 21, the occasion being also the summer meeting of the last named organization. The American Peony Society awarded a silver medal, in addition to numerous cash prizes offered. The rose display is said to have been better than in any previous year. There were also fine exhibits of vegetables.

San Francisco.*WEDDINGS LEADING FACTOR IN DEMAND.

Trade has been somewhat quiet this week, and about the only activity displayed is for the usual number of June weddings. As one of our prominent florists says: "One day we are very busy, and the next day finds nothing doing." The supply of roses has fallen off greatly, owing to the extreme heat of a week ago, and to the fact that replanting time is now at hand and many of the growers are busily engaged in filling up their houses for the coming season. Ophelia is about the only variety that can be had in quantity. Russell is practically out of the market as is American Beauty since the advent of Ulrich Brunner. There are quite a few red and pink rambler roses to be had, as well as a bounteous supply of Cecile Brunner. Carnations are not so plentiful as in past weeks, but there is enough to go around and no change in prices. Sweet peas have passed their best, so far as this market is concerned. There is a lot of inferior, off color stock arriving, but good, first class Spencers are nowhere to be seen. The dahlia is coming in very freely and of greatly improved quality. Of all varieties being received, Delice is the most popular. There is a fine supply of gladioli in all the large flowering sorts being offered. They are a much needed addition to the market and receive quite a lot of attention. The small flowered varieties are now over for the season. Zinnias have begun to come in freely, and considering the earliness of the season, the quality being offered is quite good. Lavender stocks are seen freely of late and together with the pink and white varieties are being largely used in funeral work. Cut blooms of Hydrangea hortensis are now being largely handled and are very popular for basket work and other decorations. It may be had in pale blue also. It is very acceptable as a pot plant as the market is rather shy of good flowering plants. Cattleyas and other orchids are to be had in limited quantities only, and good stock of this flower now practically sells, on sight. The supply of gardenias shows no sign of increasing and prices remain firm. There is no lily of the valley in the market at all. Statice is seen and finds much favor. There is still to be had a splendid assortment of outdoor perennial stock, all of the finest quality.

NOTES.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co., reports much activity in the landscape department of their business. They are busily engaged on plans for several orders of much magnitude, and predict that the plant trade the coming season will be the heaviest in many years. Superintendent Andrew McDonald has the nurseries looking in the most attractive condition. The greenhouses also show his great skill as a plantsman.

Harry Goertzshain is displaying a fine batch of tub grown hydrangeas. He is featuring both the pink and the blue. He intends to try some of the newer French varieties next season as specimens. He is shortly to begin the replanting of his carnation houses, but will probably carry a couple of them over until late in the fall. He says trade remains quite satisfactory with him.

Richard Diener, of Kentfield, is very enthusiastic over his new seedling gladioli. He has developed a splendid strain of giant flowered varieties, of which he expects great results this summer. His strains of hybrid delphiniums are also showing up wonderfully well. He expects to have enough stock of his gladioli to be able to fill all demands the coming season.

The California Nursery Company, of Niles, is preparing to propagate the heaviest amount of fruit trees this coming season that were ever raised by this nursery. With the coming of prohibition, and the loss of hundreds of thousands of acres of vineyards, it is expected that the growers will plant fruit trees, wherever conditions are suitable.

Alfred Cuneo, chief designer of the Art Floral Co., has returned from his vacation spent in the northern part of the state. Mr. Cuneo made the trip in his new touring car which he purchased a few days previous to starting away. He is already an accomplished driver and plans many short trips throughout the summer months.

Large shipments of gladioli are beginning to arrive from the Santa Cruz district. The greater part of this stock is handled by the E. W. McLellan Co., on Bush street. Manager J. A. Axell says that his firm plans to handle this stock on a large scale this season, the greater part of which will be used in their shipping business.

Richard Lehrmann, of San Rafael, who is well known as a dahlia specialist, has several new seedlings which will be shown at the Dahlia show in September for the first time. They are said to be very meritorious as commercial varieties, and dahlia growers are anxiously awaiting their appearance.

The Park-Presidio Dahlia Society has decided to hold its annual show again this fall in the Richmond district. This display is always largely attended by the dahlia enthusiasts in this part of the city, and many valuable prizes will again be offered to the successful competitors.

N. Sunyi, a Japanese grower of Redwood City, sustained serious injuries during the week, when he lost control of an automobile he was driving and dashed into a fence. He was removed to a hospital in this city where it is said he will recover.

Albert O. Stein, of Sutter street, had the misfortune to lose his large limousine by fire last Tuesday. The garage in which it was kept, was destroyed and all efforts to save Mr. Stein's car were futile. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

The immense range of the E. W. McLellan Co., at Burlingame, is now a busy place. The large force is engaged in replanting most of the rose houses. Quite a few varieties that are grown in solid beds, will be carried over until next season.

Podesta & Baldocchi report business quite steady with them. They say that many more orchids could be used if they were to be had. They are receiving some finely grown snapdragons and gardenias from their growers.

H. Platt, proprietor of The Ferneries, is busily engaged getting his fern and palm houses into shape for the fall season. His stock is large and varied, and is all in the finest possible condition.

The Shibley Floral Co., on Sutter street, is displaying dahlias and gladioli of the best quality. Manager Frank Shibley says funeral trade has been quite brisk with his firm of late.

Samuel Matraia, of the Art Floral Co.'s force, is spending his vacation in Sonoma county, accompanied by his wife and family.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

MURPHYSBORO, ILL.—Claude Wisely is adding one house 50x150 feet to his establishment.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Alexander B. Garden, who has been in the florist business in the District of Columbia for a number of years, has disposed of the range on Minnesota avenue, S. E., and will retire.

OBITUARY.*The Late Anton J. G. Simmers.

Suddenly and without warning, death called Anton J. G. Simmers, president of the well-known firm of J. A. Simmers, Ltd., seedsmen, Toronto, Ont., during the night of June 3, as reported in our issue of June 21, page 1116. The shock of his passing came to his many friends with greater force on account of his unusually strong physical appearance. He was attending to business as usual during the day previous to his death, and was apparently in the best of health. When he retired at night, his only complaint was that of weariness, but when he failed to appear at his usual time in the morning, members of his family, on going to his room, were shocked to find him cold in death.

Mr. Simmers was born in Toronto, and spent the 58 years of his life there. After finishing his education at Upper Canada College, he entered business with his father, the late J. A. Simmers, and the seed business became his life work, to which he applied his entire energy. Not only was he strong physically, but he also possessed a remarkable business ability, and his capacity for keeping in touch with the markets was one of his outstanding characteristics.

The business of which he was the head, was established in 1856, and from small proportions it gradually increased in size and volume until it reached from coast to coast. After the death of his father, in 1883, Anton Simmers, in connection with his brother, Herman, took charge of the business, and carried it on with great success until 1910, when it became incorporated under the name of "J. A. Simmers Limited," the two brothers still retaining the controlling interest.

He is survived by his widow and a family of five sons and one daughter, who mourn the loss of a devoted husband, and a kind and indulgent father, whose only thought outside of business, was for his home and family. Three of his sons have given their services to their king and country during the recent war, two of them having returned home shortly before their father's death, the third being still overseas.

This sudden removal caused a serious loss, not only to the business of which he was the head, but to the seed trade in Canada generally.

Albert Wittman.

Albert Wittman, 47 years old, a grower of Richfield, N. J., died June 16, from injuries received June 12, when a horse which he was driving became unmanageable and threw him out of the wagon, which ran over his head. Mr. Wittman was a native of Switzerland, where he learned the business. He came to America 20 years ago, locating first at Elmhurst, N. Y. Seven years ago, he removed to Richfield, where he had erected a considerable area of glass, growing general stock. He was a stockholder in the Cut Flower Exchange of New York, where he marketed his products. He is survived by his wife and one son, who will continue the business.

A. F. F.

John M. Franzoni.

John M. Franzoni, Trenton, N. J., died June 22, of cancer of the stomach, age 35 years. The deceased had been for a number of years connected with M. C. Ribsam, in charge of the cut flower department. Mr. Franzoni was well versed in the business, of a genial disposition, and very popular with all of his business associates. He was a member of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia.

We are in receipt of the proceedings of the seventeenth annual meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, held at the American Institute, New York, November 6-8, 1918. Chas. W. Johnson, secretary, 2242 West 109th street, Chicago.

The latest available statistics from the railroad administration show that the shrinkage in traffic handled by the railroads in the first four months of the year, as compared with 1918 figures, was in the neighborhood of 10 or 12 per cent.

Fathers' Day.

Washington, D. C., June 25.—The third Sunday in June would be set aside as "Fathers' day" under a bill introduced by Representative Snell (rep.) of New York. His measure also would direct the president to request general observance of the day, flags to be displayed on homes and public buildings. The rose would be designated as fathers' flower.

Postage Redemption.

Following the reduction in the rate of letter postage, effective July 1, concerns and individuals having on hand large quantities of two-cent postal cards and three-cent stamped envelopes, may have them redeemed, according to announcement of the post office department, provided they are presented by the original purchasers. Postmasters will furnish in exchange for such cards and envelopes, postage stamps, postal cards or stamped envelopes of other denominations or varieties selected by the owner, or may apply them in payment or part payment for two-cent special request envelopes. No postal cards or stamped envelopes will be redeemed in cash. Three-cent stamps will not be redeemed, as they will continue good for use on mail of all classes requiring that amount or more. The public will be allowed one month from July 1 to present their three-cent envelopes and two-cent cards for redemption at full value. After the expiration of that time, postage value only will be allowed for envelopes, and three-fourths of postage value for cards.

New York to Detroit.

The New York Florists' Club, for its route to the convention of the Society of American Florists at Detroit, Mich., August 19-21, has decided upon the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad to Buffalo, then by boat to the convention city. The party will leave New York, August 17 at 8:30 p. m., Hoboken, 8:55 p. m., due in Buffalo 7:30 the following morning, spending the day in that city, and leaving on the 6:00 p. m. boat, arriving in Detroit Tuesday morning.

The railroad fare, New York to Buffalo, is $12.85; berths, $2.16, including war tax. Boat fare, Buffalo to Detroit, is $4.32; state room accommodating two persons, $3.78.

Applications have already been received by the committee, which consists of A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., chairman; John G. Esler and P. W. Popp, to fill two cars, and it is most important that those who are going to travel with the club party notify the committee at once in order that the necessary reservations may be made. This is going to be the banner convention, so reservations should be arranged for at the earliest opportunity. Communicate with the chairman of the committee should any further information be desired.

Cancer on Marguerite Plants.

In its May, 1919, issue, the Missouri Botanical Garden Bulletin calls attention to plant cancer, which for several years caused considerable damage of marguerites grown under greenhouse conditions. In 1904, a number of white and yellow varieties of this flower received by the bureau of plant industry, indicated that both young and old plants were attacked, the latter being more seriously affected. The appearance of galls was noted outdoors in summer, and in the houses in the winter. The size of the galls depends upon the state of nutrition of the plant, those overfed being subject to more rapid growth. Up to the present, no remedies have been devised, for although the organism is susceptible to germicides, it is impossible to reach it through the outer covering of the gall. Complete removal and burning of affected parts may reduce the prevalence of the disease.

Chicago Growers Billboard Nat'l Slogan.

Ed. AMERICAN FLORIST:

For your information, we wish to state that the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago are planning an advertising idea in the nature of the erection of billboards displaying the slogan, "Say It With Flowers." One of these is to be placed on the main traveled highways, at or near each grower's establishment. With the heavy traffic on the streets, and these signs greeting passersby everywhere, we think it will carry tremendous advertising value, and yet, unlike regular billboard advertising, would be inexpensive. We believe, therefore, the plan should be universally adopted.

COMMERCIAL GROWERS OF CHICAGO.

Ammann to Address Texas Meeting.

One of the big features of the convention of the Texas State Florists' Association, which will be held at Austin, July 9-10, will be the address of President J. E. Ammann of the Society of American Florists, who will have for his topic, "National Publicity and Other S. A. F. Matters." Texas florists are looking forward to President Ammann's visit, and as many matters of importance to the trade in the south in general will come before the meeting, a record breaking attendance is anticipated.

ROBERT C. KERR,
Chairman Welfare Committee.

Guide to Enjoy Extended Vacation.

William F. Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., who is fast recovering from his illness brought on by overwork, will leave July 1, accompanied by Mrs. Gude, for an extended vacation, during which he will visit Buffalo, N. Y., Niagara Falls and Toronto, Ont., thence to Banff and Lake Louise in British Columbia, with stops at Winnipeg and Calgary. Returning, they will visit Yellowstone national park, Minneapolis, Minn., and other middle western cities. B. F. L.

Are You In It?

"Say it with Flowers"

¶ As evidence of the influence which the "Say it with Flowers" Campaign is having upon the thoughts and sentiment of the people, have you noticed the numerous magazine covers with their displays of flowers? And in other lines of advertising, have you noticed that flowers are being worked into the drawings? No room is shown, where the artist desires to create an impression of correct taste, that cut flowers or plants are not depicted.

¶ Yes, and because one success is sure to attract attention and followers there is an attempt every once in a while to cash in on the "Say it with Flowers" popularity, and we have candy people trying to make the public "Say it with Candy," greeting card people want them to "Say it with card" and jewelry people attempt to use it for jewelry going so far as to copy our calendar idea for birth stones.

¶ All of this attracts more attention to the advertising and centers the public attention on flowers.

¶ Are you doing your share in defraying the cost of this advertising? You are getting a direct benefit from it. Do you think it fair to allow the full burden of cost to fall upon a few of the florists? Don't put it off any longer. We know that it is merely a case of forgetfulness in most cases, or thoughtlessness.

How Does Your Conscience Feel ?

---

¶ The success of the National Advertising Campaign is so pronounced that every florist, retailer, grower, or wholesaler testifies to the increased business brought him.

¶ But all who share in the benefits are not doing their share in supplying the sinews of the Campaign, which is money.

¶ There are not many who refuse to contribute. They simply neglect to send in their subscriptions.

¶ Do your part. Do not sit back and let others pay the whole shot. The advertising should be kept going because it is generally conceded that in the slogan "SAY IT WITH FLOWERS" the florists have an asset worth many thousands of dollars in business. It will depreciate in value unless used in print.

¶ Have you seen the full page in colors in the Metropolitan Magazine? Are you linking up with this advertisement? Are you a real partner in the business it will bring, knowing that you helped pay for it?

¶ Drop a line to the undersigned, telling him how much you will donate annually towards the Publicity Campaign.

Toledo.

BUSINESS REVIVES SLIGHTLY.

The numerous graduation exercises held last week caused a temporary flutter of business which was also increased by numerous weddings. However, trade has been more than ordinarily quiet this June, due to the fact that extremely hot weather arrived about three weeks too soon. Outdoor flowers are plentiful, which naturally decreases the demand for the florists' product. Stock is very plentiful, but shows the effects of the hot weather. Carnations are short and of poor quality. Sweet peas are done. Roses are of fair quality, and enjoy a good demand for weddings and graduations. Gladioli are of excellent quality and are bringing good prices. Bedding stock is still enjoying a brisk sale, but this week will probably see the finish of this business, which was quite profitable this season, because better prices were received.

NOTES.

Now that the flower shops are closed on Sundays, it is no uncommon sight to see many faces familiar in the trade at the ball park or out at the Willard-Dempsey training camps. Florists will be well represented at the historic bout for the championship of the world which will be staged in this city, July 4. The Sunday closing has proven a wonderful boon to employer and employe alike, and it is a question whether florists here will ever be content to go back to the old ways of working day in and day out. Let other cities now follow Toledo's fine example and get into the swim.

Schramm Brothers are still selling quite a lot of bedding stock, of which they had a large quantity. This firm reports the best six months' business of its career, in which every month registered surprising gains over the same period of last year. They will rebuild two of their greenhouses this summer in anticipation of a continuance of good business. Frank M. Schramm will leave July 5 for a vacation trip to the northern Michigan lakes to recuperate.

Max Spanner uses these hot days to trim his handsome display window in a seasonable manner. His present arrangement is appropriate for the season, consisting of a garden scene, with a miniature pond in the center. Ferns and plants are used lavishly as a background. Many pedestrians stopped to admire this effective display.

Gertrude Swartz, for many years bookkeeper for Miss Helen Patten, has resigned her position to take a well deserved rest. She enjoys a wide and favorable acquaintance with the trade in this city. Miss Patten plans to leave on her annual vacation to the Maine woods as soon as the wedding rush is over.

John Barrow had a wonderful crop of splendid peonies this year, but the premature hot weather forced him to dispose of many of them at a loss. However, his business has been increasing every month in a very profitable manner, so he is not losing any sleep over this.

The display window of Mrs. J. B. Freeman can always be expected to show high art in the decorative use of plants and basket effects. This store reports a heavy demand for commencement bouquets and has also enjoyed some good sized wedding decoration orders.

William Feniger, Adams street florist, is fortunate in that he has no rent to pay since he leased half of his large store to a jewelry company. He has one of the best locations in town, and does a big business.

S. N. Peck has been quite busy with graduation work during the past week, and has also had a good call for funeral work.

St. Louis.

BUSINESS SLACKENS UP.

Business in general slowed up a bit again the past week. The hot weather, which seems to have hit us now, has a depressing effect on trade in general. The only bright side now is the large amount of weddings taking place. They seem to continue well toward the end of the month, and this has been a very nice business. The condition of stock is none too good. Everything seems to suffer considerably from the heat. Even gladioli, which usually stand up well, are showing the effects, and have no keeping qualities. Roses are good only for quick turnovers. Carnations are just about through. Sweet peas are very poor. It seems we are due to have a shower every day or two, and the hot sun beating down on the sweet peas, seems to cook them. Outdoor stock is fair, such as coreopsis, cornflowers, etc. Some very good Shasta daisies have been coming in, and these have a good call. In greens of all kinds, the market is well supplied.

NOTE.

O. C. May, of Sappington, escaped serious injury a few days ago when a large touring car crashed into his machine and completely wrecked it.

J. J. W.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The Hammond Floral Co. has purchased the property on which its greenhouses are located, the consideration said to be $12,500. A large palm house and flower shop will be added.

Chicago.

STOCK IS IN LARGE SUPPLY.

Stock is in large supply with one or two exceptions, but is moving fairly well considering conditions, and while business is not as brisk as it might possibly be, the sales compare favorably with those of former years. American Beauty roses are arriving in good sized quantities, but are cleaning up nicely at prices ranging from $3 to $5 per dozen. Mrs. Chas. Russell and Columbia are having a good call and do not appear to be in any great oversupply. Roses in general are plentiful and are to be had at times during the week in large lots at bargain prices. Lily of the valley is in exceedingly short supply and commands high figures. Orchids are in good demand and there hardly ever appears to be any surplus. Peonies are a great factor in the market and are to be had at low prices, which have had a tendency to increase the past few days, especially in the fancier grades. There are a large number of peonies in storage, some of which are in excellent condition, but the greater part appears to have suffered from the extremely warm weather. There will be plenty for several weeks to come, so no shortage need be looked for in this item. Indoor gladioli are reaching the market in splendid condition and are selling well at good prices. One large firm is growing these in quantity this season and so far is well satisfied with their investment. The first outdoor gladioli grown at Villa Ridge made their appearance in this market this week. Carnations are in fair supply, but good first-class shipping stock is somewhat on the short side. Lilies are seen in limited numbers, and the same holds true for callas. Sweet peas, mignonette, calendulas, daisies, snapdragons, corn flowers, candytuft, feverfew, pansies, statice, larkspur, lupines and other miscellaneous seasonal stock are included in the many offerings, not to forget pond lilies, which help to freshen up many a window display during the hot summer months. Green goods are in strong demand, especially ferns, which are none too plentiful in the desirable grades. Fancy smilax is selling as high as $4 per dozen and is scarce at that figure.

Lublner & Trinz will open the largest motion picture theatre in the country with a seating capacity of 4,500. The site at Madison street and Kedzie avenue was purchased from the estate of Byron L. Smith for $257,500. Plans for the building are being completed by Walter W. Ahlschlager. It is to cost $1,000,000 and will be on the Italian renaissance style. The plans provide for an orchestra—the largest of any moving picture theatre in the world—and a $50,000 pipe organ. They call also for engagement of opera stars from time to time to add to the musical programme. The owners of the new theatre will provide a big nursery and playroom for the children, with a staff of nurses to care for them while the mothers are attending the performance. It is said that the Madison-Kedzie State Bank is interested in the deal and may purchase part of the land upon which it will build a permanent home. This, however, has not been decided, according to Benjamin Kulp, president of the bank. Construction of the theatre will start at once, with a view to its completion by the first of the year.

Beginning July 1 two cents will carry a letter clear to Europe provided the destination is in the postal union for the government has decided to worry along without the extra cent demanded during the war. Penny postal cards are to be available also after their long absence.

The executive committee of the Florists' Club, Retail Florists' Association and the Commercial Flower Growers' Association held a meeting at the Randolph hotel, Tuesday evening, June 24, when the chief subject discussed was the betterment of trade conditions.

E. F. Winterson, the well-known wholesaler, celebrated another birthday June 21. He was born in 1868 and is active at the store besides looking after his farm at Highland Park.

A. Lange is gradually getting comfortably located in his new store on East Madison street, which is a great improvement in many respects compared with his old stand.

J. Pehrson, formerly of this city, now growing Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri for cutting at Jupiter, Fla., was a visitor this week and reports business prosperous.

John Mangel has the order for the Dick wedding at Lake Forest, which will help swell his summer sales considerably, as no expense will be spared on the decorations.

EXCELLENT SUMMER DEMAND.

There was an active demand for flowers for commencements, weddings, entertainments and the like during the past week. Practically all the receipts of greenhouse stock sold fairly well, but at low figures. Arrivals of outdoor flowers continue to be rather heavy. The supply of roses, as a whole, is fair. White sorts are meeting with a big call and there is not enough of them to go around. Carnations are in a fair supply. Some excellent gladioli may be had. They are selling well. Easter lilies are very scarce. Some rubrums may be had. During the last week, cornflowers and coreopsis met with a good sale. The few sweet peas that come into the market, sell rather readily. Other offerings are water lilies, feverfews, snapdragons, larkspurs and candytuft.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell has been finding an excellent market for his galax, ferns and sphagnum during the past several weeks.

L. Pfeiffer's Sons are cutting some fancy America gladioli.

WEDDINGS BRING GOOD DEMAND.

The week just past has been a record one for the florists here, as not only weddings kept them busy, but a large amount of funeral work, a heavy demand for corsages for the high school commencement dance, and various other commencements in the city. The demand for corsages for the members of the class, and hundreds of guests, far outclassed the graduation bouquet orders of other years. There has been a plentiful supply of flowers, both greenhouses grown and outdoor varieties, but the quality has been greatly impaired by the heat. Carnations are quite small for this early in the season, and considerably faded in color. All varieties of roses are suffering, even Russells, which seem to open before they are fully developed, and are also of a lighter color than usual. Prices, however, do not decline, possibly on account of the large demand. There is very little variety in the way of pot blooming plants. Begonias, gloxinias, hydrangeas, and pelargoniums is about all the variety offered. The call never ceases, and it is to be deplored that some progressive growers do not devote more time to cultivating, and putting on the market, summer blooming stock.

NOTES.

Herman Leitz, owner of the New Haven Floral Co., has recently purchased a large range a few miles from this city, at Hicksville, O., and will devote his time to the two ranges, growing commercial varieties of flowers at both plants. He has made a pronounced success at his range in New Haven, and has the good wishes of all in the trade in his new location.

Miss C. B. Flick, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., is spending a couple of weeks in this city, visiting her niece, Mrs. Mildred Flick-Euchanan, and other relatives, and resting from a heavy spring trade.

Wedding work has kept all hands busy at the Doswell Floral Co.'s store during the past week. They are receiving some fine outdoor flowers from their West Main street range.

Heavy corsage work for the commencement dances last week, and weddings kept stock on the move at Edgar Wenninghoff's. He is handling some good Russells.

The decorations of the ballroom for the high school dance were executed by the Flick Floral Co., and this firm furnished numerous corsages for the affair.

CAPITAL CITY HAS HANDSOME SHOPS.

In several visits to the capital city, whether on business or pleasure, I have always felt like looking around for a house to let, so that I might become a resident and enjoy continuously the beauty of its tree-lined avenues and parks and the wonderful architecture of its many magnificent buildings. The florists here are a credit to the business, maintaining beautiful and well conducted stores, many of them occupying choice corner locations with extensive windows which are always showily filled with the flowers in season. The second week in June, the pinks and blues of the outside flowers predominate. Gude Bros. Co., on F street, in their large store always carry an immense stock of plants and cut flowers, the product of their large greenhouse establishments of over 300,000 feet of glass. Both the store interior and the large show windows are always tastefully and artistically arranged in made up baskets of various sizes that are at once salable. Their combinations of larkspur and pink roses were striking, as were the small fruit bouquets.

NOTES.

The Louise Flower Shop has a very showy location at Connecticut avenue and N street. The store might be called an enlarged show window, being entirely surrounded by glass. The interior is very artistically fitted up, the color tone being blue relieved with yellow and white. Pink vases filled with larkspur were features. Blue, yellow and red toy balloons were floating from strings stretched above the head line and gave a Parisian touch. A feature was a large window made into an aviary and filled with canaries and other small birds with beautiful plumage.

F. H. Kramer's busy shop is always interesting. The palm garden restaurant in the rear is well fitted up with a Phoenix Roebelenii on every table. This is an innovation, but Mr. Kramer says it pays. A specialty is made of funeral work, of which a large quantity is turned out daily.

Blakistone, Inc., on H street, has a very showy corner store with continuous show windows and wide pavement, all of which are made good use of in displaying his plants and flowers to the best advantage. Flowers are his hobby and his business, which played together are sure winners.

Fourteenth street has several fine shops. The Washington Floral Co., at New York avenue, has a well appointed store, which A. Hetherington, a Philadelphia boy, manages in up-to-date fashion. A military window to greet returning soldiers of the district, was a feature.

The Dupont Flower Shop, at Dupont circle, has a wealth of windows at front and the full depth of the store at the side. It is an ideal shop for a residence district. It contains many fine plants, and floor vases of cut flowers and oak branches.

At 14th and I streets, in George C. Shaffer's beautiful corner store, one is always sure to see a great profusion of flowers, and something made up ready to go out. His windows, both side and front, are always a great show of flowers.

The Flower Shop, formerly Freeman's in the same block as Gude Bros. Co., is conducted by H. T. Payne. The window here, and in fact, the whole front was attractive with its wealth of well arranged plants and flowers.

The S. S. Pennock Co. and the Leo Niessen Co., almost adjoining on H street, are branches of the Philadelphia firms of well known wholesalers. Both reported a great demand for flowers the past season.

George H. Cooke features plants, both inside and out of his well arranged shop. A fine five-crowned Phoenix Roebelenii, valued at $150, and other specimen palms and cibotiums were very showy.

Marche & Co.'s corner is always attractive with selected evergreens in tubs nicely arranged on the wide pavement, through which the well decorated windows show to the best advantage.

F. Leapley, Ninth and G streets, is near a busy corner. Funeral work is a specialty, which a good display of made-up wreaths helps materially. Bedding plants are also a feature.

J. A. Phillips, "The Flower Store," 2926 14th, N. W., is also a showy corner in the home district, which presents a nicely fitted up interior, well stocked with plants and flowers.

J. H. Small & Son's beautiful corner store has always on view the best the market affords. Theirs is a large business, which includes landscaping.

Beautiful white herbaceous phlox were seen in all the shop windows. The racemes were covered with bloom that made it very showy and effective.

The Oehmler Floral Co., on G street, in the retail district, has a nicely arranged shop with two well decorated show windows.

There are a number of other retail stores, all of which have had very good business, the past season. K.

SCARCITY OF STOCK NOTICABLE.

Due to commencement orders and weddings, roses were a scarce item during the past week. Carnations were small and met with little favor. Garden flowers have come into their own, especially larkspur and Spanish iris, and many combinations are being offered. Peonies and outdoor roses are nearing their end.

NOTES.

The first rose show of the Rochester Rose Society was held June 20 at the Chamber of Commerce. The park department staged more than 100 vases and individual gardens were represented by about 150 varieties notwithstanding the extreme heat of the previous week which brought the flowers along earlier than usual. The entries were unusually well staged and the show was well attended. Members of the society have decided upon another show in connection with the industrial exposition.

The florists' association held its last meeting of the season June 13. The annual picnic was announced for August 6 at Nine Mile Point. The programme will be announced later. CHESTER.

CEDAR FALLS, IA.—Wm. Resinger has purchased 10 acres on Crandall road and will erect a modern range.

ENID, OKLA.—The Oklahoma Floral Co. has been granted a charter and will erect a new building at once.

President Joseph Adler in the chair, Joseph Mulér, Geo. E. Baldwin, Arthur Adams, Thos. Wade, Harry Baldwin and Dennis Minogue were elected to active membership and two petitions were received.

Ernest Westlake tendered his resignation as secretary of this society. Mr. Westlake has held the office for over six years and during that time has proven himself a faithful workman and member of the craft. It was with exceeding regret that his resignation was accepted.

It was decided to hold the dahlia show at the Matinecock neighborhood association rooms, the executive committee to make the necessary arrangements. It was also decided to hold a basket picnic sometime during August, the final arrangements to be made at our July meeting. Harry Jones and P. W. Popp, visiting members from Connecticut were present and each spoke briefly on various horticultural subjects connected with their locality. Mr. Popp generously donated $5 to be used as prizes at the dahlia show for the best 25 assorted, any type.

The next meeting will be known as "sweet pea night" and will be held July 9 at 7 o'clock. Competition, 25 sprays of sweet peas, white, 25 pink and 25 any other color.

Pennsylvania Hort. Society's Garden.

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society in making great strides in their plans for a flower garden on a large scale in Fairmount park. Three prizes of $1,000, $400 and $200 were offered for the best landscape designs of the tract in front of Horticultural hall, as the large park conservatory is called, which runs to the Belmont drive and is divided in the center by the sunken garden. This comprises some 14 acres of the best planted and cultivated portion of the park. Six elaborate sketches were received of which three have been selected and each is being considered by the committee composed of President James Boyd, C. H. Kuhn, S. W. Keith, C. F. C. Stout, Mendleson Meehan and J. Otto Thilow.

The commissioners of the park desire they make their garden here, which the society is willing to do provided it is given the entire charge of the hall, together with its annual appropriation of $25,000, which is the present cost of its upkeep.

If this is obtained it is proposed to hold all the society's exhibitions in this building. It now contains a number of valuable palms and other tropical plants, some of which are much overgrown and can be removed to advantage. There is also a fine collection of orchid plants. The society will

SUPPLY BORDERS ON SCARCITY.

Stock in nearly all lines shortened up the past week to such an extent as to scarcely provide enough for the normal demand. Anything at all choice, or that graded up, was quickly sold at good prices, the universal opinion being that business was very good for the season. Roses have improved since the hot period of two weeks ago. Maryland is coming into its own, as is Victoria. Scott Key is also good. Columbia is worthy of its name. Russell suffered severely, but the next growth promises better. There are still some very fair carnations. Gladioli, indoor stock, is fine. Good cattleyas still bring $1 each. Larkspur, gaillardias, Dorothy Perkins roses, Iris Kaempferi, spiraea, candytuft and feverfew are the best of the outside flowers, for all good stock of which there is sale, particularly sprays of Dorothy Perkins roses, which are a favorite for wedding decorations. Peonies are about done, the cold storage stock seeming not to have kept as well as usual.

FERN'S GOOD STOCK.

There has been an unusual demand for ferns of the Boston type, all the large growers having sold out in their various sizes as never before. Boston, Teddy, Jr., Scottii, Harrisii, Norwood, Macawiana, Verona, etc., are leaders and many houses, filled with young stock of these varieties, are being brought along for the fall trade. Prices are double those of two years ago, six-inch pot stock in fair condition, readily bringing $1 each.

NOTES.

S. S. Pennock is a lover of roses. Not only does he like those grown by others, but takes great pride in those of his own production. At his home in Lansdowne, he has five acres of ground, about two of which is lawn bordered with trees, fancy evergreens, ornamental foliage and flowering shrubbery, and many beautiful pillar and rambler roses. Of these, he has 35 varieties. Some of the crimson ramblers, Hiawatha and others of the Walsh seedlings, were among the first planted in this section. There are also many beds filled with the hybrid teas, to which are added all the new varieties as they appear. Columbia and Premier are the latest additions. The list numbers over 150 varieties. These beautiful grounds have been a bower of beauty for the past three weeks.

Making good use of the pavement in front of the store, is the practice of the H. F. Michell Co. Philip Freund, in charge of the bedding and vegetable plants, ran a display pavement sale of 4-inch pot geraniums out of pots, six to a basket, at 75 cents and sold 900 baskets last week. A very good salvage sale. Three hundred Excelsa roses in 6-inch pots were also disposed of at the same time. Neither of these articles were delivered, all had to be carried away by the purchasers. These articles were not advertised.

Wm. K. Harris, taking advantage of the opportunity, brought in their usual fall importation of azaleas early in June. The stock carried well, and under their careful methods will, no doubt, be well set with buds by fall.

Mark P. Mills and George Williams, accompanied by their wives, returned June 21 from a successful two weeks' fishing trip in the Roconos, Pa., where there are well stocked trout streams. Both gentlemen are experts with the light rod and flies, and report some excellent catches.

Samuel Sproul has closed his flower shop on 60th street, and will devote his whole energies to his new store at 57th and Springfield avenue. He has a well appointed store with a wide pavement on which to display plants, and is much pleased with his increasing business.

An exciting sport feature will soon be on in baseball games to be played by teams of the Leo Niessen Co. and the S. S. Pennock Co., for the wholesale florists' championship of this city. These contests will be worth going miles to see.

Robert Glass, of the Edward Reid force, cannot see why flowers, when scarce, should not increase for they cannot go down fast enough when the market is overstocked. Ophelia, Victory, and Maryland roses are quantity stocks here.

The Leo Niessen Co. is offering the first asters of the season, small as yet, but much better are promised soon. A very good demand for commencements and weddings is reported.

Adolph Farenwald has had a fine crop of scientifically grown Dorothy Perkins roses. These were ideal sprays in every way. They were handled by the Leo Niessen Co.

The summer closing hours of the wholesale houses go into force this week. Doors close at 4:00 p. m., except Saturday, when business is over at 1:00 p. m.

John Prince has opened his summer home at High Point, near Barnegat, N. J., where he will spend the week ends throughout the summer with his family.

Peonies are still a feature with the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange. Very good achillea and choice Ward and Sunburst roses are leaders.

W. K. Harris has moved his family to Ocean City, of which place he has been a summer resident for a number of years.

Berger Bros. are featuring gladioli, sweet peas, and very fair carnations. A good line of outdoor stock is seen.

ADVENT OF SUMMER FELT.

Although it is rather early for old "midsummer dullness" to arrive, his spirit seemed to pervade the market during the past week, as business was dull. The retail stores have an occasional wedding or funeral order, but such fall far short of cleaning up the wholesale market. The hot weather of the first week of June seems to have taken many of the good customers of the retailers away from the city. A great amount of outdoor stock is on the market, such as coreopsis, gaillardias, feverfews, cut rambler roses, etc., and while much of it sells, it necessarily goes cheap and some of it is lost. The peonies will be about finished by the time this goes to press. There are a few good roses on the market, but even some of the much praised "good summer roses," are not popular with buyers. Francis Scott Key is not generally grown for this market, but a few dealers have it. If price is an index to quality—and it is pretty sure to be—Scott Key is at the head of the pole as the special stock of it is selling up to $35, and at times, $40 per 100. If business was active, orchid prices would soar; as it is, good C. gigas are wholesaling at $12 per dozen. Lily of the valley has reached, what to many buyers is prohibitive prices, $25 to $30 per 100, and we have heard of more being paid in an emergency. This disposition of some dealers to charge an exorbitant price, simply because a customer needs an article, savors too much of certain phases of the clothing trade. Various agencies in the florist business are making great efforts to educate the people to the use of flowers; but who will educate some of the florists in the principle of common honesty and fair dealing among men? A few lilies are arriving, and bring good prices. As a substitute for lily of the valley many white sweet peas are being used. As may be expected, the carnations are a failing proposition and many go to the street men.

June 23.—This being graduation week in the schools, business is active and prices have taken a sharp advance, as our price list will show. The new pink rose, Premier, is now arriving in sufficient quantity to attract attention and some experts pronounce it the best summer rose. The weather is cool and favorable to business and stocks. A. F. F.

NOTES.

E. J. Hession and wife celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage June 20. Many congratulations were extended to the estimable couple. The genial E. J. is not old, but has the advantage of having grown up with the florist business of this city, and being an authority on the "old timers" and the old style methods of the business.

One of the attractive floral establishments of Brooklyn is that of George I. Laird, 3010-3018 Fulton street. To be located practically in the heart of a large city, there is a considerable glass area, which annually turns out a great stock of bedding plants, while the retail department does a fine business in designs and decorations.

In our notes of June 21, an error inadvertently appeared. It was stated that Mrs. J. G. Leikens would probably close her summer store at Newport, R. I. It is now stated that the store will be continued with all its former attractions. Fred Lentz, formerly with David Clarke's Sons, will be the leading designer and decorator.

Charles Lawrence, who before he enlisted in the Seaforth Highlanders for the war, had a store on Columbus avenue, has been honorably discharged and returned here to again be a florist.

Emil Schloss, the well known dealer in florists' ribbons, has been suffering from a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, but is now believed to be improving.

Frank G. Seymour, who has a neat retail store at 17 McDougal street, Brooklyn, reports good business. Frank is a real American as well as a good florist.

M. Martin, a florist of Havana, Cuba, accompanied by his wife and little daughter, is in the city, and they plan to spend two months in this country.

Edward Nedomansky, of Geo. H. Cooke's staff, Washington, D. C., was a recent visitor.

EXCELLENT TRADE IN GENERAL.

As a rule, the spring bedding trade has been the best in many years, the stock being of fine quality, and prices advanced over former seasons. Outdoor cut flowers have never been better than during the month now closing, the stems being exceptionally long and the blooms large. They have sold especially well. Colorado carnations of pleasing quality are retailing at $1.50 per dozen. In roses, Ophelia, Russell and American Beauty are very good.

NOTES.

The Pinehurst Gardens, formerly the Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co.'s establishment, are sending large quantities of cut stock to this market.

James Payne reports a complete cleanup on bedding stock, and is much pleased with the volume of the season's business.

W. J. Barnes reports one of his most successful seasons in the bedding plant trade, and the business was easily handled.

H. Kusik & Co. have been showing fine offerings in roses and carnations which moved freely.

A. F. Barbe reports an excellent spring business. He is now cutting a fine crop of roses.

A. Mehr says his only complaint is that he did not have sufficient stock to fill orders.

S. Bryson Ayres, of Independence, is now cutting excellent stock of garden flowers.

T. J. Noll & Co. state that business has kept up well throughout the season.

Visitor: T. D. Long, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago.

SUMMER BUSINESS UNUSUALLY GOOD.

Trade has kept up wonderfully well and the daily supply cleans up without effort. Weddings have been numerous. Lily of the valley for the most part has been of the home-grown variety and the orchids and roses also came from the local growers. Funeral work is always good and there have been the usual number of calls along this line. Stock is none too plentiful. Carnations will soon be a thing of the past with the exception of small field-grown varieties. Roses are getting small and are none too plentiful. Gladioli is playing a wonderful role and helping in many lines. Pansies,

C. H. Tritchler will give his range a complete overhauling this season. He has purchased a lot on West End avenue and will build a retail store, at which location he will handle seeds, shrubbery and pot plants. He expects to leave in a few days for an extended trip to the northern and eastern markets to purchase supplies.

LIBERTY WINDOW BOX SPECIAL

10,000 Extra Strong Wooden Window Boxes

THESE boxes are 24 inches long, 8 inches wide and 6 inches deep. They were made to hold shrapnel. We have camouflaged them with cedar bark slabs into the most strongly built window or porch box we have ever made. Placed end to end they will fill almost any desired space. We are making a special drive on these boxes and offer them net F. O. B. Philadelphia at $12.00 per dozen.

In advertisement of June 7, we erroneously quoted the price on these boxes as $6.00 per dozen.

in the recent hail storm. Frank Cornell, another small grower, suffered some loss.

There is little building going on but growers are refitting and making over their houses in many cases. The plant trade continues good and the market house florists are doing good business in bedding plants.

The Joy Floral Co. suffered from a very destructive hail storm this week, which caused damage of $5,000 to its range. This firm is building one new house, 24x150 feet. M. C. D.

Pittsburgh.

MARKET IN GOOD CONDITION.

At present, the market is in better condition than at any time since Memorial day. The arrivals are lighter and the demand greater. While prices are not high, they remain firm, and all good stock cleans up at the list figures. There are not many American Beauties, and what there are, are small and off color. Russell is the best rose arriving in this market. The color is almost as good as it was during January and February, and they command a good price for this season. Of the other roses, Hilda, Shawyer and Ophelia are the best and have the largest sales. Carnations are small and of poor quality in general, but are cleaning up daily, owing to the absence of any stock to take their place. Callas are still on the market, but do not arrive in very good condition. Candidum lilies are now at their best and command a good price. Gladiolus is the favorite at present, because it seems to be the only thing that will stand up during the warm weather. Delphinium is more popular than ever this season, and there seems to be more on the market than ever before. Garden flowers, such as coreopsis, gaillardias, phlox and larkspur, have been arriving in large numbers. Smilax is scarce and not of very good quality.

NOTES.

Although the S. A. F. convention is not for some time yet, there seems to be a lot of enthusiasm among the florists and every indication points to a large delegation from here.

Wm. Colligan, formerly of The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., of this city, and Poehlmann Bros. Co., of Chicago, is visiting friends here. He has just been mustered out of the service.

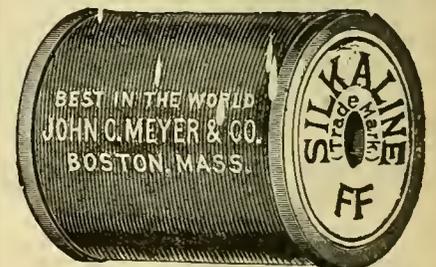

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is figuring on adding several stories to its building in the near future.

North Shore Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the North Shore Horticultural Society was held at Lake Forest, Ill., June 6, with W. E. Fisher in the chair. The business of the evening consisted in considering the reports of the various committees working in connection with the flower show and picnic. It was decided to hold the summer show at the Art Institute, Lake Forest, July 23. The outing will be held at Round Lake, Ill., July 16. Members and friends are invited and conveyances will be arranged for by the committee in charge.

The exhibits for the evening were as usual very fine and the judges, R. Preston, W. E. Fisher and John Newbore, made the following awards: T. W. Head, 98 points for Cattleya gigas; J. Kiley, 97 points for vase of irises; R. Chalmers, 95 points for calceolarias; W. Mitchie, 95 points for vase of irises; O. Petterson, 90 points for vase of irises. Cultural certificates were given to T. W. Head for a fine group of pelargoniums, R. Chalmers for group of calceolarias, J. Kiley for gladioli and carnations and O. Petterson for collection of irises. Several members were proposed and elected.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Thirty-Seventh Annual Convention, Chicago, June 24-26.

The Opening Session.

The thirty-seventh annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association was another proof that all roads lead to Chicago, the attendance being the largest on any opening day in the history of the association, numbering about 400 by the close of the day. The first session was opened in the Louis XVI room of the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, at about 10 o'clock a. m., June 24, and was called to order by President F. W. Bolgiano, of Washington, D. C., now serving his second term in the presidency. In his preliminary remarks, after calling the convention to order, the room being filled to capacity, and some standing, President Bolgiano congratulated the members on the large attendance of the representatives of an industry that is daily growing to be more and more important. He said that the work that has been done by the organization during the last year was of vital importance to all American seedsmen, and the proceedings of this convention will prove equally important and vital to all attending, so that it would be unwise for any seedsmen to miss a single session. He then delivered his annual address.

Secretary-Treasurer C. E. Kendel read his report on the membership, showing a total of active members at present of 231, honorarv. 3, making a grand total of 234, and his financial statement, showing balance in the treasury of $1,196.35. On motion, the financial portion of the secretary-treasurer's report was referred to an auditing committee appointed by the chair, composed of Francis Stokes Moorestown, N. J.; M. A. Wheeler, Gilroy, Calif., and T. M. Landruia, San Francisco, Calif.

The membership committee, J. C. Robinson, chairman, presented a report on 15 applicants which were duly posted as provided in the constitution and by-laws for action later. The committee gave notice of time and place where they would receive comments or criticisms, if any to be offered by any member upon the qualifications or eligibility of the applicants for membership in the association. President Bolgiano gave notice that all applications for membership must be in the hands of the membership committee not later than Wednesday, as no eleventh hour applications would be entertained, the desire being to give ample time for examination into the eligibility of all applicants.

Edgar Brown, of the United States department of agriculture, addressed the convention, and incidentally extended an invitation to all seedsmen who wished to attend the seed testing laboratory at Washington during July and August, beginning July 7, to do so, hoping that such as came would stay long enough to really derive some knowledge of the departmental methods of seed testing, and all would be welcome. President Bolgiano asked if any one present desired to ask any questions of Mr. Brown. J. M. Lupton remarked: "The paper by Mr. Brown contains a statement, that after having had what was termed a 'gentleman's agreement' with the department of agriculture, but 10 per cent of the seed trade complied with the agreement. It seems to me that this is a matter which the American Seed Trade Association should recognize, and I would move you, sir, that a committee be appointed to look into this matter and report to this association at its executive session." At once there were several seconds to the motion from various parts of the hall.

President Bolgiano replied: "I hear seconds from all parts of the house. It has been moved and seconded, gentlemen, that a committee be appointed to investigate the statement made by Mr. Brown that only 10 per cent of the seedsmen lived up to their promise, and that a committee report to the American Seed Trade Association in executive session, Wednesday afternoon. You have all heard the motion, all in favor will say 'Aye,' those opposed, 'No.' The ayes have it and the motion is carried unanimously. It is now in order to take up the proposed amendments to the constitution and by-laws that were brought up at our last meeting in Chicago; if the secretary will read the amendments the chair will be glad to entertain a motion with respect to them."

Secretary Kendel said: "There are two amendments to be voted upon. Notice of one was given at the last year's convention in the discussion that took place with regard to increasing the number of members of the membership committee. Notice was presented at that time by Mr. McCausland that the amendment would be presented for action at this meeting. I read from the minutes of last convention, page 117: 'I move that at the next convention the membership committee be increased from three to five members: that the by-laws be changed so that beginning with June, 1919, the members of the committee be increased from three to five members.' I move the adoption of that amendment." Seconded by Mr. Hastings, and duly carried.

President Bolgiano said: "The next one you have received notice of by mail," to which Secretary Kendel replied that the amendment was offered by E. L. Page subsequent to the executive committee meeting last November, and is as follows: "That a section be added to our by-laws as follows: No appropriation of money shall be made from the treasury of the association until the sum to be expended has first been referred to the executive committee for their consideration and recommendation." Notice of 30 days was sent out to all members in accordance with the provisions of the by-laws relating to amendments. If this were adopted, Article 5 would be changed to Article 6, and the new article, as above be inserted, as Article 5. This would simply be making the articles read in proper sequence. The actual change is, that no appropriation of money shall take place without previous reference to the executive committee. The adoption of the amendment was moved, and seconded by L. L. Olds.

H. G. Hastings asked whether the passage of the proposed amendment would interfere with the ordinary payment of current bills. Secretary Kendel replied that the intention was not to have this apply to minor items of current expenditure, nor to such items as had been ordered and would naturally infer their being paid for when the service was rendered, but to check the voting away of money indiscriminately, without regard to the fact as to whether or not the conditions of the association was such financially as to permit the same.

President Bolgiano warned the members that they should give this matter careful attention, because there might come a time when to meet some sudden emergency, it might be necessary for the president of the association, whoever he might be, to call his advisers together hurriedly, and incur some expense in so doing which there might not be time to consult the executive committee on, and which if this amendment were adopted, would hamper the executive officer of the association, and in a measure tie his hands. Instances of this had been more or less frequent during the last two years. While not opposed to the amendment, President Bolgiano thought all should understand before taking action exactly what they were voting on and what it would mean. He called for a general discussion.

Secretary Kendel said that he admitted that at present money expenditures were pretty well safeguarded, inasmuch as it required that all bills before being paid must be O. K'd by the president or by committee chairmen, but the point was that last year the association started in spending money, as he had put it to the president in conferring with him, "like drunken sailors," although in so characterizing it, he might have slightly overdrawn the picture. Our funds, however, at the present time, are in pretty good shape. J. C. Robinson inquired whether from the remarks that the president had made, he wished it inferred that a brake was necessary on expenditures? He judged not from the remarks that had been made. President Bolgiano replied that he had not, whenever he felt it necessary, hesitated to ask advice from the executive committee, and this frequently called for expenditure of money. Any man who might be elected to the presidency would perhaps feel under a like necessity for quick action, and he thought it inadvisable that the president be placed in such a position that he would be handicapped and his usefulness possibly be impaired. The passage of the proposed amendment would mean that the president would probably have to put his hands in his own pocket or be subjected to embarrassment.

J. C. Robinson said he did not think it good policy to throw any obstacles in the way of efficient administration and the doing of those things which might be considered for the best good of the association. The organization had passed through a strenuous period, one that probably none of us will ever see the equal of again, but he believed it best to leave the by-laws as they are now in respect to this question and trust to the good sense of the officers. E. L. Page said that it was the sense of the executive committee when they talked this over, not to curtail the presiding or other officers of the association in any way, but as Secretary Kendel had stated the idea was to stop reckless expenditures of money, regardless of whether the money was on hand and subject to call. The report of the secretary-treasurer showed that he had had to sell a bond to meet the extra expenses of the year.

Kirby White said there were times, with all due respect to Mr. Kendel, when the "drunken sailor" was more admirable in his conduct than the "tight wad," but there are also times when a little thought might entirely change the mood of a group of men. Suppose, for example, that some one in the convention proposed that the salary of the hard-working secretary be increased, how many would have the courage to get up in the open meeting and oppose it? On the other hand, such matters could be given attention that they should properly receive in the sessions of a small committee, and the members of the committee would no doubt freely express what they thought as to the wisdom or otherwise of a proposed expenditure of the money of the association. If we are careful in the selection of our presidents, although it must be admitted that some-send out a little questionnaire with the object of getting the opinions of the members who had been longest in the association as to whether some more equitable method of adjusting the dues of the association might not be arrived at, based upon the amount of gross yearly business done by the various members, and in this way raise more money with which to carry on work that could not be done with the funds as at present. He had had in mind a plan something like this: To establish different classes of members. Class D, those doing a business of $100,000 to $150,000, the dues to be $35 yearly; Class C, doing a business of $150,000 to $250,000, dues to be $50; Class B, those doing a yearly business of $250,000 to $350,000, dues to be $75; and Class A, all over $350,000, dues to be $100. Out of 25 members consulted, replies were received from only 15 or 16. Such a plan would raise a yearly revenue of about $10,000, and had been found practicable in other associations with which the speaker was familiar and had membership in.

President Bolgiano said he did not wish to be misunderstood, and admitted that the executive committee might be consulted by wire and get replies possibly in four to eight hours relative to expenditures, but speaking personally, at times, rather than even be subject to such a necessary delay, he would prefer to pay the bills himself. He had experienced a similar feeling on the part of committeemen who frequently had paid necessary expenses themselves, refusing absolutely to make any bill against the association.

Watson Woodruff thought a pretty good place for the resolution was to lay it on the table, and he would not object if at any time it was desired to take it from the table, but in the meantime it would afford time for some of the members to talk the matter over a little further before acting. He moved it be laid on the table. The motion was seconded, and being put, was lost. A rising vote was called for with the same result. The question was then taken on the original motion to adopt the proposed amendment and the motion was lost by rising vote.

times we have made mistakes—this amendment would create no trouble. He could see no possible injurious effect from it. Further, the personnel of the committee had never heretofore been accused of being "tight wads." They could be consulted within a matter of five hours' time.

Secretary Kendel explained that if the executive committee had been consulted many times in the past, and expenditures authorized, it would have saved him from the mortification arising from the fact that many times members of committees and others had made perfectly legitimate expenditures for the benefit of the association, for which they had never sent in any bills, but had paid themselves uncompromisingly, and he felt that they ought to have been reimbursed many times, and that the association was really getting something for which, in such cases, it was not paying as it should; it had at times made him feel uncomfortable. He explained that he had taken it upon himself last winter to

VAUGHAN'S GIANT PANSIES

VAUGHAN'S INTERNATIONAL PANSIES

Vaughan's International Pansy Mixture was first offered by us in 1889. We import from all the best European sources. Each year has added to the quality of its flowers and variety of the colors. We buy every year novelties of known merit to improve the mixture; it is always complete, always the latest and always the best mixture. We add to all Pansy Mixtures which we now buy more than 50 per cent of the choicest named kinds obtainable, each in correct proportion. This is one of the Specialties that has established the reputation of Vaughan's Flower Seeds, and one which we maintain most carefully. Trade pkt., 50c; 1/2 oz., $1.50; 1/2 oz., $5.00; oz., $10.00.

Vaughan's Giant Pansy Mixture.

Embraces, besides all the separate shades and colors, five special strains not listed elsewhere, and which can only be had in this and our International Mixture. This mixture includes the richest reds, coppers and bronzes, together with the most delicate rose and pink shadings, all the distinct colors of Trimardeau and the splendid Cassier strain.

Trade kt., 50c; 1/2 oz., 75c; oz., $5.00; 1/4 lb., $18.00.

Vaughan's Cut Flower Mixture

This mixture is put up by ourselves and contains mostly light colored sorts. We have sold this mixture for several seasons to some of our Chicago cut flower growers, who have realized big returns from the sale of flowers. Pansies are easily grown as violets, require less care and bring better results. Trade pkt., 25c; 1/2 oz., 60c; oz., $4.00.

New Early-Flowering Giant Pansies

The new strain produces its giant flowers about four weeks earlier than other known types. In March, when the old type pansies hardly show any buds, the plants of the new strain bore from 3 to 5 of their giant flowers. Early-Flowering Giant White, Yellow, Light Blue, Dark Blue and Mixed (Four Colors). Trade pkt. (500 seeds), 35c; 1/2 oz., 70c; oz., $5.

Chicago Parks Bedding Mixture.

This is a mixture made by ourselves from 20 different and distinct varieties of this type. While the flowers of this strain do not grow as large as those of the Giant Pansies they excel them by a much greater number of flowers to a plant. Trade Pkt., 25c; 1/2 oz., 50c; oz., $2.00.

Vaughan's P. P. (Popular Price) Mixture of Pansies

This mixture, like all "Vaughan" mixtures, is made up by ourselves from separate colors and strains of the Giant and Chicago Parks Bedding types and will furnish a large variety of colors with a good proportion of giant flowers. Trade Pkt., 25c; 1/2 oz., 50c; oz., $3.00.

AT THE SEEDSMEN'S CONVENTION, CHICAGO, JUNE 24.

W. F. Therkindson, chairman of committee on postal laws, was now called on to present his report, and did so. He gave notice, that on account of a change in his business relations, and no longer being in the seed business, he felt compelled to resign the chairmanship of the committee, but would hold himself in readiness if called upon to serve on the committee in a minor capacity. He strongly urged the co-operation of all interests opposed to the Raker bill to bring about its defeat. On motion of E. L. Page, the matter was referred to the committee on president's address to be appointed later. Mr. Therkindson suggested that as the nurserymen were to hold concurrent sessions during at least part of the time that this convention is in progress in the same hotel, they should be consulted through their president, and an endeavor made to unite the two associations in opposition to this very dangerous legislation.

J. C. Vaughan suggested that the Society of American Florists' assistance be also invoked and included in Mr. Therkindson's recommendation.

Watson S. Woodruff moved that a committee on the president's address be appointed with recommendation that they report promptly Wednesday morning, the committee to be named by Secretary Kendel. The motion carried and Secretary Kendel named at the opening of the afternoon session this committee, namely, Watson S. Woodruff, J. L. Hunt and E. L. Page.

E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., submitted samples of catalogue bags and envelopes, which had been prohibited from the mails because the postmaster had construed they came within the prohibition of a ruling of the third postmaster general under date of June 3, 1918. This ruling reads: "Space should be left on the address side of all mail matter sufficient for a legible address and for all directions permissible thereon, for postage stamps, for post-marking, rating and any words necessary for forwarding or return." * * * "It is preferable that all envelopes be made of white paper. When paper of any other color is used, it should be of very light tints of pink, yellow or blue." * * * "In every case, not less than three and a half inches of clear space should be left at the right hand end of the address side of all envelopes in order that there may be ample space for postage stamps, post-marking, address, directions for forwarding or return, etc." * * * The foregoing applies with equal force to the use of advertising cards, folders, and similar matter of unusual size or irregular shape as set forth in the instructions of this office in Article 14, page 4, of the February, 1918, Postal Guide, entitled 'Use of Large Advertising Cards Objectionable.'

The interpretation to be placed on this paragraph 3, section of the postal laws and regulations, might in some cases subject the sender of catalogues or catalogue envelopes, etc., to great financial loss, and necessitate the destruction of entire issues of such envelopes, and, therefore, Mr. Dungan pointed out the necessity of having a construction placed on proposed catalogue envelopes by sending to postmasters before same are finally printed. In the case of a proposed printing of some 400,000 catalogue bags, Wm. Henry Maule, Inc., had consulted the third assistant postmaster general direct in order that there might be no misunderstanding, enclosing to him samples of proposed printing. The printing was of course held up until a reply was received. Mr. Dungan advised seedsmen to see their postmasters, and if necessary consult the third assistant postmaster general in all such cases. Mr. Therkindson remarked that he had had a case involving quite a little trouble with a local superintendent of mails who could not agree with his interpretation of this section of the postal laws.

R. A. Oakley, of the department of agriculture, having prepared a paper to be read before the convention, and not being on hand to present it personally, it was read by Secretary Kendel. President Belgiano before the paper was read commented as follows: "I want to make a few remarks relative to the attitude of the department of agriculture in general toward the American seedsmen during the past unpleasantness between the other half of the world. Never in a single instance where we have gone to the department of agriculture with a reasonable request, have they spared either their time or patience to assist us in getting through anything that was reasonable. Last winter, when the coal regulation was in order, there were something like 15,000 or 20,000 representative firms that came to Washington to see about getting coal. It was in reference to the "fuelless Mondays." We went to the department of agriculture and were given every courtesy and had comfortable seats when there were 250 people at one time on the outside of the fuel administration building waiting to be heard on their official complaints. The department of agriculture helped us out, and did telephoning and accomplished what we thought best for the interests of the country, even without taking into consideration the interests of the seed business. Mr. Oakley was one of those who pre-eminently assisted us in getting what we needed. Sometimes during the past year, you gentlemen have called up Washington, either by phone or wire, and asked your president to do something for you, for which he received the credit when he would go to the department of agriculture on your behalf. I was always allowed to go right in without having to go through any circumlocution office, or through lackeys. For that reason, I think that the department of agriculture should have due consideration from us, and from all American seedsmen, and wherein we erred in not living up to what Mr. Brown has thought we did not live up to, we are sorry. We want him to feel that it was not due to any willingness on the part of the American seedsmen to do that which was not square, but when we come to look around and see that a large government department (not the department of agriculture), which has been going on for years so efficiently, the post-office department, failed and fell down so utterly at times, often taking as many as five days for a letter to reach Washington from Baltimore or return, we think that the departments should look with compassion upon the seedsmen, and I feel sure from the results that we received, after sending out a circular this year relaare used by all large seedsmen in the United States, also in many foreign countries.

The No. 147 Cleaner shown herewith is equipped with our new Variable Air Regulator. A perfectly uniform air blast, abso lutely under control and entirely free from fluctuation is one of the most essential and important considerations in cleaning seeds and grains.

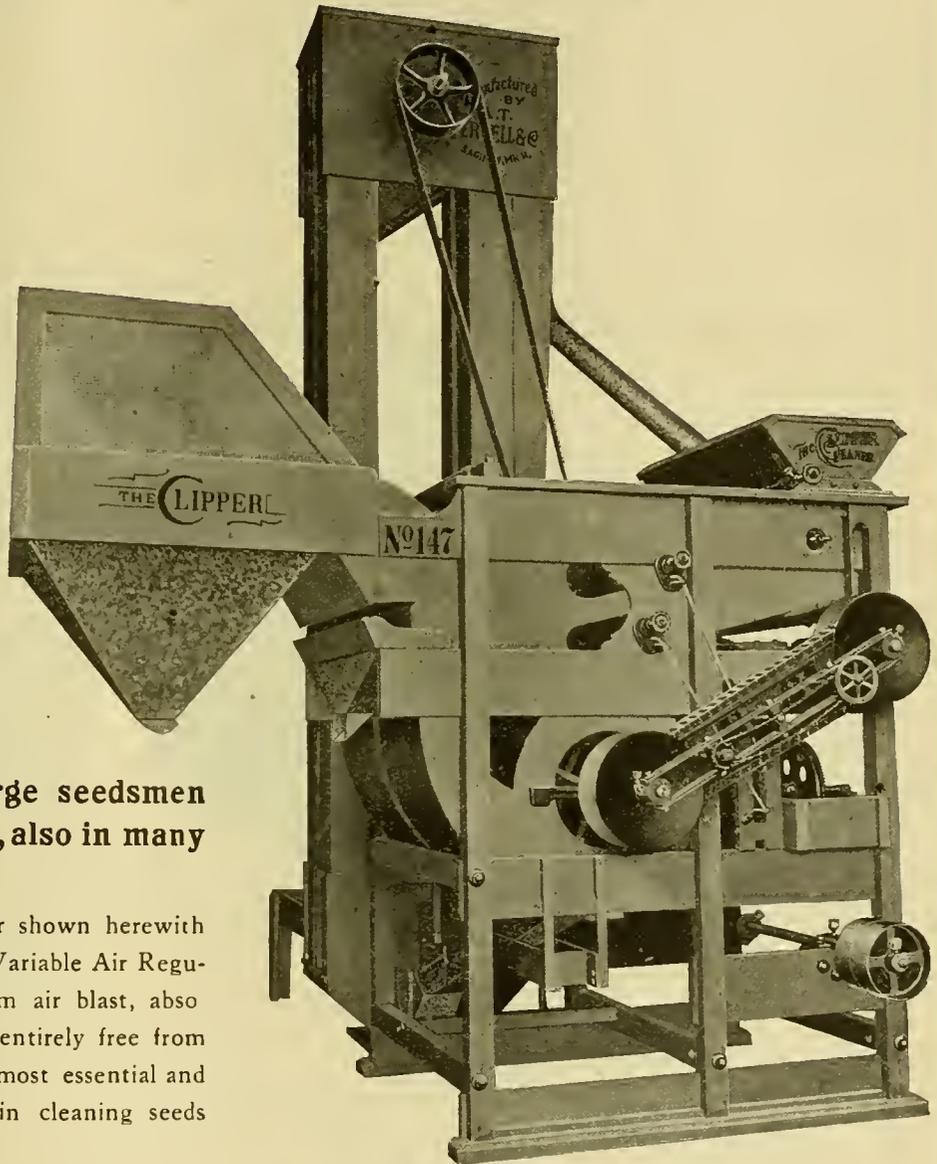

Different kinds of seeds and grains, and, different conditions of the seeds or grains, call for varying strength of the air blast used in separating the dust, chaff, and light shrunken seeds or grain from the heavy, perfect seeds and grain. The Clipper Variable Air Regulator gives exact control of the air blast at every desired point. "From a Zephyr to a Hurricane" exactly describes the range of air blast that can be secured by this mechanical device. We can produce a blast strong enough to blow out the heaviest grain, or peas or beans, and by an adjustment requiring but an instant reduce the blast sufficient for handling the lightest seeds such as timothy, red top or blue grass.

tive to the complaint made by Mr. Brown that all of the errors that were made in that respect were owing to lack of ability to get the proper working force into condition like we had previous to the war; and I want the department of agriculture to feel that when a "gentleman's agreement" is made, we are going to try and do by them as they have tried to do by us, and it is with pleasure that I asked our secretary to read the paper by Mr. Oakley.

Leonard H. Vaughan, for the local hosts, announced the entertainment features as follows: Luncheon Wednesday noon for the men in attendance at the convention at Hotel Sherman; luncheon for the ladies at the Edgewater Beach hotel, Wednesday, with song recital, and following, automobiles to leave with the ladies at one o'clock at Clark street entrance to Hotel Sherman. Banquet for all at the Chicago Athletic club, Wednesday night, for which every preparation has been made to insure its being the most complete affair that the A. S. T. A. has ever enjoyed at any of its conventions, many surprises being in store for the guests. There were to be no longwinded speeches, but entertainment of the most pleasing character. It was also guaranteed that the desert will not be dry, but an agreeable oasis provided.

At the suggestion of Past President Watson S. Woodruff, the closing of the morning session was marked by a pleasing feature, the rotary "plan" of each man rising in his place and announcing his name, business and location, in order to facilitate general acquaintance. President Bolgiano and Secretary Kendal modestly brought up the rear in this matter.

At 12:30 the convention adjourned until 2:00 p. m.

Tuesday Afternoon's Session.

The convention reassembled at two o'clock, President Bolgiano in the chair. He introduced as the first speaker of the afternoon Lester S. Ivins, who delivered his paper on "The Garden Army and its Purposes." "Anything that comes from Washington is O. K.," said President Bolgiano, evoking laughter and applause.

L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., submitted his report as chairman of the committee on experiment stations, remarking by way of prelude that this is the sixth year that he had the privilege of presenting as chairman the report of this committee, and he was impressed particularly with the fact that the experiment stations were deeply interested in all that seedsmen are doing, and desire in every way to co-operate in our work. It is certainly up to us as seedsmen to pay close attention to what they are doing, and to any advice that they may have to give us, and to show our appreciation of their efforts in helping to introduce the best seeds.

President Bolgiano invited the Canadian seed commissioner, who has heretofore appeared before the association with valuable contributions to its literature, to make a few remarks unless he wished to take up more time, which he would be welcome to do. Commissioner George H. Clark referred to the advisability of using northern grown seeds which are well known to be of superior quality, and are available in Canada, particularly seed grain and seed potatoes. In Canada, they are working away from the type sample basis of merchandising and instead are establishing grades of definite quality. Canadian seed merchants are now able with grass and clover seeds and seed grain and potatoes, to make deliveries with their bills of lading with weight certificates and official inspection certificates covering the grades. Large supplies of seed potatoes are available in the northern areas of Canada which are grown under such climatic conditions as insure the greatest freedom from such potato diseases as leaf curl, mosaic, and black-leg. Mr. Simmers asked the commissioner whether it was the intention of the Canadian government to continue the merchandising of seed after the war, and Mr. Clark replied that he believed that such merchandising by the government was not a proper function, except under stress of war conditions, a statement which brought forth instant and hearty response from the seedsmen present in a round of applause, which Mr. Clark smilingly acknowledged.

Carl Cropp, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, read a paper which Leonard H. Vaughan asked might take the place of the one he had intended to read on "Commissions."

Announcement was made by President Bolgiano, that Wednesday afternoon would be devoted strictly to business, and an executive session would be held to which only members would be admitted. He then asked E. L. Page to announce the special entertainment for the members, guests and their ladies. Mr. Page stated that a number of moving picture reels would be displayed showing first, "How plants are born, live and die"; how blossoms open; the culture of bulbless flowers; plants which eat; mushroom culture as carried on in France; views of the Morse seed farms in California, and finally pictures of seedsmen in military service during the recent great war.

President Bolgiano called on J. L. Hunt to make a report for the war service committee, promising the audience that they were about to be entertained by a very eloquent speaker. Mr. Hunt responded by saying that the only report he had to make was that somebody had gone "over there" and stopped the war, and with the stopping of the war the work of the war service committee ceased, and it was now out of business. The president said that after that report, nobody could gainsay Mr. Hunt's eloquence. Mr. Hunt replied that if the war had not stopped, he certainly would have had more to say!

J. C. Vaughan was called on to report as chairman of the regular committee on customs and tariffs, and remarked that the committee had nothing to report at this time directly coming under its assignment; there has been no call for any hearings on matters affecting seedsmen. He understood the fertilizer interests, especially the potash people were anticipating something coming up, and their interests involved something like $50,000,000. The government has, in a recent appropriation, included money for potash to be used by it. So the potash producers are naturally interested in any hearing that may be called. Probably there will be general hearings before long, and our trade will be called as well as others. The last time a hearing was called affecting seed interests, we were fortunate in having combined all organizations of seedsmen, florists, and nurserymen. We secured a hearing and proper consideration that we could not otherwise have secured. The speaker was confident that favorable action might have been had on the recent embargo, if all interests had combined and put their whole aggregate weight of influence back of the protest; but there was a lack of uniformity of action among the nurserymen, seedsmen and florists as a whole. It is very important that all of these great industries be heard as national organizations working together as one unit when occasions like this arise and congressmen or government bureaus cannot and will not disregard their reasonable requests.

J. C. Robinson, chairman of the membership committee, reported several additional applications for membership, which like the others reported previously during the day, were posted for action under the rules, Wednesday. Mr. Robinson again requested that all members knowing anything about the qualifications or eligibility of applicants, make same known to the membership committee, whose desire it was to be fully informed before passing on any applications.

The convention then adjourned until 8:00 o'clock p. m., at which time a large body of ladies and gentlemen assembled in the convention hall to witness the moving pictures as promised by Mr. Page and which proved most entertaining, being in colors and showing actual plant life of weeks or months condensed into as many seconds on the screen. The experiments with the mimosa or sensitive plant were perhaps most interesting of all, showing how the plant instantly responds to a touch, and can be chloroformed like an animal, and afterwards recover from the shock.

Wholesale Price List for Florists and Market Gardeners

An invitation to the seed farms of the Everette R. Peacock Co., Chicago, was extended during the evening, to take place Thursday afternoon.

In introducing the moving pictures relating to the soldier boys Watson S. Woodruff said:

"One year ago at the American Seed Trade Association convention, statistics were gathered after taking a census showing the number of members, sons of members and the total number of employes that had entered the service up to that time in the great war. There were 14 members, 46 sons of members and 621 grand total, this compiled up to June 1, 1918. The total number entering the service after that date we have no record of. Invitations were sent to all members and the families of members requesting photographs of those men who had been in the service, and we will now attempt to show you on the screen the faces of the men, together with their ranks, time and branch of service. The screen will show you and tell its own silent story in pictures."

On motion, adjourned to 10:00 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President;
C. W. Waid, Grand Rapids, Mich., Vice-
President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky.,
Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids,
Mich., Treasurer.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Charles J. Brand, chief of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, since its inception in 1913, has resigned to become vice-president and general manager of a commercial firm in Pittsburgh, Pa.

THE New York agricultural experiment station, Geneva, has issued Bulletin No. 459, entitled "Missing Hills in Potato Fields; Their Effect Upon the Yield." The experiments described are designed to show how much of the loss due to missing hills is made up by the increased yield of adjoining plants.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 24.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen boxes, $1.50 to $2.25; celery, Michigan, crate, 50 to 75 cents; leaf lettuce, per box, 15 cents; radishes, per doz. bunches, 12 to 18 cents; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $8.00 to $8.50.

New York, June 23.—Celery, per crate, $1.75 to $8.00; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.25 per dozen; mushrooms, 50 cents to $2.00 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 12 to 25 cents; lettuce, per package, 50 cents to $1.75; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.00 to $2.00.

Aphis and Nitrates.

IN THE AMERICAN FLORIST of June 21, page 1122, under the caption, "Spraying," we called attention to the vicious attack on all the vegetation in Ohio, by aphis, and gave some general rules for combating these insects. This time, however, we wish to view the subject entirely from the theoretical side. We wish to state right here that we have no proof whatever that what we will say is based on facts. The case is simply this, that for many years we have had an idea grow on us, that there is some relation between aphis attack and nitrate. The facts are that aphis do come and go in a marvelous way, for which condition it is hard to find an explanation. Yet the careful observer will notice that aphis increase as conditions for growth become unfavorable; and we do now believe that the absence or shortage of nitrates has a great deal to do with this trouble. We are all familiar with the saying "outgrow insect attack." By outgrow, we mean rapid growth caused by favorable conditions. If this is true, then the opposite is true also—that unfavorable conditions tend to increase insect trouble. We also know that a cold wet spring retards nitrification in the soil, and that excessive rains deplete the soil of available nitrogen. We can prove this by permitting ventilators in greenhouses to remain open during heavy rains. Very soon these over-soaked spots can be noticed by their lack of productivity, caused mainly by the lack of nitrates. To prove this we have made many experiments. A proper application of ammonia has always recovered these spots. The question arises, can we control aphis attack by adding nitrates? We say, to some extent, yes. Maybe we could be more positive, but we wish to be conservative.

Recently, we nitrated a field of staked tomatoes that were covered with aphis, and now the fruit is practically clean and the picture of health. We are now considering the application of nitrate of soda to our potato fields rather than spray with nicotine. At the present rate of prices for nicotine, field spraying is too expensive. If we could accomplish our aim by nitrating the fields, it would be much better than spraying.

Maybe the readers will think we have this season put too much emphasis on nitrates. We think not. We believe this subject is of the utmost importance to market gardening, more so than is generally understood. Right here is the point why many gardeners fail with commercial fertilizers—they buy farm brands, which with their one or two per cent nitrogen, are not suited to our needs, and it is not only the amount of nitrogen but the form of nitrogen. We want at least four per cent, and often six per cent would be better and we want it immediately available to rush our crops. Therefore, we must demand either ammonia or nitrate of soda, and the cooler the season, the more important this subject becomes. There is in this article food for thought for any market grower.

MARKETMAN.

Southern New Potato Losses.

Very large losses of southern potatoes result from injurious practices at digging time, when through carelessness, lack of labor or other causes they are allowed to lie exposed to the hot sun for many hours after they are dug, resulting in potato scald, according to Farmers' Bulletin 1050 of the United States department of agriculture. Although the damage may not be evident at time of packing, the injured potatoes usually develop soft rot and become mushy and worthless during transit or soon after arrival at destination.

Potatoes should not be dug more rapidly than they can be picked and placed in the shade. If possible, it is even better to dig only during the cooler parts of the day, so that they can be placed in a shady spot without any exposure to severe heat. This is a general practice in some sections of the country. Whether potatoes are dug with hoes, plows, or machines, care should be taken to reduce the number of field cuts. These offer an entrance for disease, besides damaging the appearance and causing waste. The majority of the fungous diseases that cause decay of potatoes and other vegetables can not develop when the skin is free from cuts and bruises. Careful handling is fundamental, therefore, for the prevention of deterioration and waste. In this respect probably no single factor is equal in importance to proper handling, and none is more generally ignored by the average grower, or by the labor which he employs.

Bruising is a very common cause of loss in new potatoes. This may be caused either by poor handling methods or by poor containers.

The double-headed ventilated barrel appears to be the most satisfactory package now in general use for potatoes. If properly made, it is sufficiently strong to carry the weight of its contents and fully protect the potatoes. Investigation shows that there is much less breakage in cars where the barrels are loaded on end than when loaded on the bilge.

The cloth-topped barrel carries best when loaded on end as described for double-headed barrels, but when the second layer is placed on top there is, of course, a good deal of bruising of the top potatoes of the lower barrels. When the cloth-topped barrel is loaded on its bilge, the weight of the load is thrown upon the potatoes themselves, resulting in considerable crushing and bruising. The top layer of barrels, however, may safely be loaded on bilge. When this is done, the cloth top should face the inside of the car, particularly in the doorway. This lessens danger of injury by the sun and loss by pilfering.

The sack is not as suitable a container for tender new potatoes as the barrel. It offers less protection from bruising and makes a load that is difficult to ventilate, but has the advantage of being lower in cost than barrels or crates.

Hampers are not suitable packages for potatoes. They do not have the necessary strength for the weight of their contents and afford little protection. As long as hampers are used for potatoes and other heavy produce, severe losses from breakage in transit will ensue. If hampers for any reason must be used, they should be loaded on end with alternate baskets inverted. Great care should be taken to make the load tight, with no slack space either endwise or across the car. This precaution will lessen but not entirely prevent shifting. The practice of loading hampers on their sides can not be too severely condemned. Complete and careful inspections show that in cars loaded in this manner an average of fully 60 per cent of the hampers are more or less crushed and broken on arrival at market, with consequent severe damage to their contents.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports to the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture for the period June 17-23, show a slightly downward price trend, with movements active. Old potatoes remained conspicuously weak, with stock offered for sale generally inferior and hard to move at any price. Several markets reported demoralized conditions. Chicago carlot sales declined 15 cents further to $1.25-$1.40, closing unsettled. No. 1 northern sacked white stock in northwestern markets covered a wide range of $1-$2. New York round whites were $1-$1.50 in New York and Philadelphia. New potatoes were fairly steady, with average prices slightly lower than the previous week, but general market conditions were fairly steady. Eastern shore of Virginia stock closed unchanged at $5-$5.50 per barrel f. o. b. Consuming markets averaged $5-$7. North Carolina Cob-

Onion markets continued firm. Texas Yellow Bermudas included some inferior stock and averaged slightly lower, going at $4-$4.25 per crate in eastern consuming markets and $3-$3.75 in the northwest. California Yellow Bermudas were weak in New York, but steady in most other markets. Cabbage made fair recovery to a jobbing range of $1.50-$2, with a wide range of quality and conditions. Mississippi Wakefields recovered fully 50 cents, reaching $2.75-$3.75 per barrel crate in consuming sections. Tennessee Wakefields continued steady at $1.25 per 50 pound crate f. o. b. shipping points, and were firm in terminal points at $1.75-$2, and $2-$2.25 at Chicago. There was little change in tomatoes.

THE OPENING SESSION.

As we go to press, the American Association of Nurserymen is holding its forty-fourth annual convention at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, the meeting opening June 25 and continuing three days. The attendance at the first session was large, and the interest manifested in the proceedings from the start indicates that the programme, timely and well-balanced, will be followed with more than usual interest throughout, and that the meeting will go on record as one of much accomplishment.

The opening session was attended by about 200 members, and was called to order by the president, J. R. Mayhew, of Waxahachie, Tex., promptly at 10 o'clock. There was an invocation by Rev. G. L. Robinson, of McCormick Seminary, Chicago, and an address of welcome by Wm. R. Moss, of the Chicago Association of Commerce. M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn., responded, saying that Chicago was selected as the meeting place of the association because of its geographically central location, and expressed the opinion that it would probably be chosen as the permanent meeting place.

President Mayhew, in his address, laid special stress upon the necessity for thorough organization, stating that the aim of the association should be to make its organization so thorough that no nurseryman in the United States could afford not to be a member.

A committee to present greetings to the American Seed Trade Association, in session in Chicago at the same time, was appointed, consisting of J. W. Hill, Peter Youngers, M. R. Cashman, W. B. Munson and John Dayton.

The president then introduced Mr. Letshell, of the Butterick publications, who spoke as an advertising man. He said that publicity was first started by the fakir, then used in selling specific, tangible articles, and now we are entering into the third phase, that of selling ideas, and this has led to the practice now being adopted by many organizations, of national advertising.

A report was presented by the joint committee, consisting of the directors of the national organization for market development and the executive committee of the American Association of Nurserymen, and this committee presented the following resolutions:

Whereas, it is deemed expedient that all association activities should be under the direction of the officers of the association, and,

Whereas, the problem of financing the plans of a national market development campaign can best be met by making this one of the activities of the association rather than separate therefrom, be it

Resolved (1) that amendment to constitution Act 7 be amended to read as follows:

Resolved, that the American Association of Nurserymen shall take over from the national organization for market development, their subscription pledges, amounting to approximately $20,000 per year, until June 1, 1920, with their money on hand and other effects, on condition that the American Association of Nurserymen shall assume all responsibility of conducting the work of the Nurserymen's National Service Bureau.

Resolved, that the annual membership fees shall be $10 per annum, and additional dues for members of one-fourth to one per cent, based upon annual volume of business, provided the maximum dues shall not exceed $500 in any one year.

A motion to adopt the resolutions as presented was made and seconded, and the president declared the subject open for discussion.

J. W. Hill expressed the view that it was not quite fair to place the maximum dues at $500, as there were firms whose business amounts to from $250,000, $500,000 up to $1,500,000, and the man with a business of $200,000 would be paying just as much as these, J.

Horace McFarland thought the provision was a fair one, because the smaller men are closer to the 7,000,000 families who constitute the bulk of the consumers, and would profit more in proportion by the publicity gained through the association. F. E. Griesa, Lawrence, Kan., made a motion to strike the provision for maximum dues from the resolution. J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., said he hoped this motion would not prevail, as the committee had given the matter very careful thought, and had come to the conclusion that the publicity work so far done by the large corporations in their own behalf had helped the smaller dealers; also that the smaller men were in the majority, and in a position to vote on the disposition of funds which the larger men would be obliged to contribute, and it might result in some of these men withdrawing from the association.

voted down. William Pitkin then made the suggestion, that inasmuch as the whole matter of policy of the association in this regard would come up at the afternoon session, that action be deferred, and it was so voted.

PROGRAMME OF THE FOLLOWING DAYS.

The programme announced for the morning of the second day, beginning at 9:00 o'clock includes a number of topics in the hands of well known authorities, and which should prove of unusual interest, among them the following: "The Propagation and Growing of the Rose," by E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; "The Propagation and Growing of Nursery Stock," by Robert George, Painesville, O.; "The Growing and Preparation of Evergreens for Landscape Planting," by Chas. L. Seybold, forester, department of parks, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and "The Nurserymen's Opportunity in Reconstruction," by Dr. A. F. Woods, president of the Maryland State College of Agriculture, College Park. The afternoon session beginning at 2:00 o'clock will be devoted to executive business at which time the reports of the various committees will be received. A meeting of the state vice-presidents will be held at 8:00 p. m.

At the Friday morning session, beginning at 9:00 o'clock the report of the subscribers' organization for market development will be the principal feature. The afternoon meeting will open at 2:00 o'clock with the reports of the state vice-presidents, followed by the election of officers for the ensuing year and the selection of the place for the 1920 meeting.

PRESIDENT MAYHEW'S ADDRESS.

President Mayhew ably reviewed the activities of the association during the past year, showing that he had given careful thought to the numerous problems that confront the trade today in the trying times of restriction and reconstruction. He expressed his opinion that during the coming fall and the spring of 1920, nursery stock will command prices never before known; in fact, it was no longer a matter of prices, but the question of procuring stock, and it was the duty of nurserymen to co-operate with each other to make the shortage serve the unprecedented demand. He urged that the present schedule of dues be maintained, as it would not be long before the advantages of a connection with the association, and the high standard of its membership, would be appreciated by every eligible nurseryman of the country, regardless of cost. He called attention to the good work accomplished by the credit and collection bureau, at the same time regretting the fact that more members of the society did not avail themselves of this service, which is free.

President Mayhew spoke at some length on legislation, especially Plant Quarantine No. 37, saying that while a number of small nurserymen throughout the country were not members of the national association, he felt that the organization has a right to speak for the trade in general, as its membership represents probably 90 per cent of the money invested in the industry in America. He said, in the light of this reasoning, a number of unfortunate statements had appeared in the press, and unfair criticisms had been made. He called to mind the fact that in 1917 a resolution was unanimously adopted that the association does not approve of the exclusion of foreign grown nursery stock; the executive committee and the legislative committee were given power to act accordingly, and it was understood that until such authority was otherwise delegated, no individual or corporation had authority to speak for the organization. He added, in dealing with the questions of legislation in general, that he believed some improvements could be made, one in particular, as regards the feeling among some that our law-making bodies are antagonistic to the industry, which is as untrue as it is unfair. If what is wanted is right, and is gone after in the right way, there are not many times it is not granted. Some things that have been asked for, should have been, and were, denied. The reason that legislation such as the Arkansas fraud act has to be fought, is because of fraudulent practices on the part of a large number of dealers in nursery products. With the membership of the association representing 100 per cent efficiency, character and service, a committee sent to Washington, or into the legislative halls of any state, would always be heard, not so much for its speaking, but for its honesty of purpose.

In speaking of the labor situation, he said it was probably the greatest problem confronting the world today, and none were more vitally interested in it than the nurserymen. While for a number of years there has been growing up throughout the land, an unfortunate antipathy between capital and labor, there was no industry where the rights of the employe were as well regarded as in the nursery trade, and he urged that time might be found at this convention for a full discussion of this important question.

He mentioned the progress made during the past two years in the matter of market development, and added that while at present the stock on hand was limited in quantity, within three years the surplus list will exceed the want list, and that the work so auspiciously begun should be continued. Determine as nearly as possible the normal needs in all items, together with the supply, present and contemplated, and endeavor through educational campaigns to keep the supply well within the demand, and if it is possible to accomplish this, in even a measure, the trade will be greatly benefited. In his closing remarks, President Mayhew urged his hearers to be conservative, but to prepare today to make the prosperity of the present permanent by stabilizing the business.

Nursery Stock Improvement Bill.

The sum of $30,000 is to be appropriated under a bill just introduced into congress by Representative Gould of New York, to be expended by the secretary of agriculture in assembling, growing and testing plant material deemed desirable or suitable for use in propagating fruit, nut and ornamental trees and other plants, for the purpose of determining stocks better adapted to the climatic soil and other conditions under which they are grown. The secretary is authorized by the measure to establish and maintain mother orchards or plantations for the purpose of providing domestic sources of seeds, cuttings or other propagating material, in order that the future of the American fruit, nut and ornamental plant interests may be insured and placed under domestic control.

B. F. L.

A FAVORABLE report was ordered June 18 by the senate public lands committee on a bill by Senator Smoot of Utah to establish Zion national park, comprising 76,000 acres in the southern part of that state.

THE New York agricultural experiment station, Geneva, in Bulletin No. 451, entitled "Leaf-hoppers Injurious to Apple Trees" states that apple trees in the state are especially subject to the attack of three species of this pest and tells of methods of control.

IMP SOAP SPRAY
Sure Insect Killer

IMP Soap Spray is a scientifically prepared compound that is destructive to insects without injuring plants or roots. Does not spot leaves, fruit, glass or deface paint work. It is clean and colorless. May be used on fruit trees; shade trees; flowering shrubs; vines; garden truck; and on all sorts of plants, both under glass and out of doors.

It is most effective against rose bug; mill bug; white, black, green and rhododendron fly; red spider; thrips; aphids; fruit pests; elm leaf beetle and moths. Used in country's biggest orchards and estates. Very economical, one gallon is mixed with 25 to 40 gallons of water. Full directions on each can. Genuine can has Ivy Leaf trade mark. Your money back if Imp Soap Spray does not do as claimed. Order direct if your dealer cannot supply.
