PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN OPENS.

Florists' Club of Philadelphia, at Interesting and Largely Attended Meeting, Starts National Movement for 1919 Auspiciously.

Prominent Men of Trade Urge Progress.

The January meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, held on the roof garden of the Hotel Adelphia, that city, January 7, was with its attendance of some 250 members of the craft, many of them from out of town, a very important gathering. There was a great galaxy of speakers of national fame, whose subject, "Publicity," made this meeting truly the opening gun of the 1919 campaign.

Over 90 members of the club, with the speakers as guests, enjoyed a dinner which was served at 6 p. m. An exhibition of cut flowers, new varieties of roses and carnations, was also a feature.

In opening the meeting, Charles Grakelow, of Philadelphia, who took the gavel at President Harvey's request, made a short address of welcome in which he emphasized the importance of publicity, and the progress that was being made by such gatherings as these, which would soon place it in the niche of importance to which it is entitled. In his introductions of the various speakers, Mr. Grakelow was at his best, the audience receiving a fulsome measure of what to expect, generally emphasized with appropriate stories.

Penn Tells of Success During 1918.

Henry Penn, of Boston, Mass., was the first called on. He thought that men who stood back of the campaign under the distressing business conditions of the past year, were very long-headed, as the results had been wonderful, and if kept up with renewed interest, would show much greater returns. He had been greatly impressed at the get-together movements of the trade, growers, retailers and wholesale men particularly in some of the Eastern cities, citing Cleveland, O., and Detroit, Mich., as examples, where publicity had worked wonders in increasing the business. Retailers should take the lead in this campaign, and all other interests should back them up, as all benefited alike from any movement that helped to increase the demand for plants and cut flowers. He particularly emphasized the importance of the use of the slogan, "Say it with Flowers," and of living up to the well planned campaign of the committees, by retailers using the electros of the ads., as they appeared in the magazines in their local papers. His story of a customer wanting the very best roses in the shop for his mother-in-law, who was ill at a time when they were the scarcest, and who paid the price, raised a great laugh. He cited the old days, with business being done in a leisurely way, when 12 to 15 customers a day was satisfactory. Now all was life and activity when stores catered to the multitude, and the greater number of sales, many of them small, made up the volume of trade. It was up to the retailers to follow the publicity campaign outlined by Major P. F. O'Keefe; the whole trade would then feel the great impetus to the business. The growers and other interests should back up the committees, until instead of $50,000, the fund would be $150,000 with corresponding benefits. Great interest was taken by other lines of trade in the florists' campaign. Mr. Penn said he thought we were on a plane with that of the sun-kissed oranges, which history and success he described. He liked to see contributions to the fund, no matter how small. A $5 pledge showed that interest was being taken. His part in the work as chairman of the publicity committee was not mercenary. He wanted it to succeed and did all he could to help it along. His business showed an increase over the year before, of over 50 per cent, while Thomas Roland, a large grower of Boston, had told him he was sure he had felt the impetus of the campaign in much better business. He closed with an appeal for all to cultivate the co-operative principle of working together and an increased fellow feeling from which all would benefit.

O'Keefe Gives Interesting Data.

Major O'Keefe, of Boston, made a very forceful address, saying he felt that all branches of the craft should be interested in this campaign, which in his years' experience, was the most unique he had ever undertaken. Advertising men generally were watching the outcome, and there was no adverse criticism. Twenty-five years ago, advertising was much misunderstood. He had grown up with the business since a boy. A man that spent $50,000 then was a plunger. The largest accounts were patent medicines, which sold as long as the ads. kept up the interest. Stop these, and sales diminished rapidly. There is no mystery about advertising. To his mind, it is salesmanship on paper. Application of common sense to the publicity problem. Any store that existed alone on the people that passed its doors, would fail. Advertising interests and brings the necessary additional business. Phonographs could not be retailed from the factory, but advertising finds customers everywhere in this country of 107,000,000 people.

Some think an advertising man a genius, who can dash off an ad. in a minute; others like to experiment with the work as they run their business. Both are wrong. One must first know all about the article, also be well grounded in methods of publicity, and then carefully prepare his selling campaign. If it is as good as you say it is, you are creating good will and good will is a definite, tangible asset. A mill or factory can burn down and its contents totally destroyed, but that is only an inconvenience. The public know nothing of the fire, the good will you have created cannot burn; it is still a living, tangible and valuable asset. Five thousand dollars a page for a single issue of the Saturday Evening Post, looks like a lot of money, but people who are not crazy, keep using this space year in and year out. Million dollar a year advertising campaigns are now quite common. Examples of successful large campaigns were given, notably that of the Liberty Loan, which could never have been so quickly successful without such publicity, or if depending on word of mouth. The Waterman Fountain Pen Co.'s first advertising account amounted to $65 borrowed money. Compare their great success with the much greater start of the florists' publicity fund and its possibilities.

People claim that advertising adds to the cost of the article; on the contrary, it cheapens, by enlarging its market and increasing the supply which lessens the cost of production. To send a postcard to each person reached by a $5,000 page of the Saturday Evening Post would cost $23,000 and not tell the story nearly as well. Thirty to thirty-five thousand dollars of the florists' publicity fund money, spent last year, went into magazines of nation-wide circulation. Other similar campaigns are financed by taxing the advertised articles. One cent a box was levied on sun-kissed oranges, which was gradually paid, and raised a very large sum. Philadelphia retailers had seen the day when they said "What is the use to advertise now, when flowers are so scarce?" To combat this idea, Major O'Keefe cited that $150,000 is being used to advertise Irish linens, of which we could not buy a dollar's worth at this time, but they are taking time by the forelock, and as soon as the ocean liners are ready to bring the goods over, they will have made a market for them.

Publications of about 2,000,000 circulation must go to press two or three months before date of issue in order to get their immense quantities out and in the hands of dealers all over the country on time, so that all advertising has to be prepared for long in advance. Matter put in now, will not be out before early spring, when it is hoped there will be plenty of flowers. It is the men who look ahead that win out. Florists ought, and no doubt are, proud of their business. They should therefore interest people in flowers and make them like them. Advertising in the face of the unfavorable conditions of last year was a bold thing to do, but it turned out wonderfully successful. Even had it kept business up to normal, it would have been a great achievement. This is the time to keep it up, each year building on and adding to what has gone before. The January and February campaign will be carried in 36 magazines with a circulation of 11,000,000 at a cost of one-twentieth of a cent to each number. In each ad, the slogan, "Say it with Flowers," will be featured.

You cannot force, but you may advise a customer. Flowers are words even a babe can understand. Flowers will talk for you, "Say it with Flowers." The trade should by all means tie up with the campaign advertising, using it on bill boards, in their windows and newspaper notices. Three hundred and fifty thousand of the magazine circulation is in Philadelphia homes. Retailers in the local field should make the most of it. Advertising is an investment. Even when flowers are scarce, the interest must be kept up, so as to retain the good will. Once they buy, they are new customers, and will continue. Flowers must be made to take the place of other things. There are 3,000 birthdays in Philadelphia's population every week, an opportunity in everyone of them. Major O'Keefe closed with an earnest appeal for the success of the campaign in Philadelphia.

Pierson Discusses Past and Present.

Wallace R. Pierson contrasted the standing of the greenhouse employe of the early days with the same position to-day. The pioneer had to do all kinds of work and sleep in the shed over the boiler. Two dollars a day was high wages for the most skilled men. That was the status for many years. Now the tail is wagging the dog, and the growing of flowers is entirely a different business. Growers can claim a right to an honest and respectable living. American people claim as a right, won by the experience of the war, a love for that which is better and the nicer things of life. There is one thing certain—and the speaker was very positive in this—that we will never get back to the old scale of wages prevalent before the war. Living costs have increased very much. Our employes can now save and enjoy better living conditions. It is their right, as they stood by and saw us through the trying experiences of war times.

Wholesale prices of cut flowers are higher, and they must be maintained to keep pace with the greater cost of production. The majority of the money subscribed for publicity comes from the growers, who should be organized or of one mind in seeing that we get the money we are entitled to as producers, that will enable us to give our men a living wage. Flowers are worth so much. Growers must not let the retailers have more than their share. There must be an equitable division. The retailer is absolutely dependent on the grower, and the wheels of business have now to run true, or somebody will throw a wrench into the machinery.

Gude Predicts Great Future.

W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C., president of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, opened his address with the Rotary slogan, "He who serves best, profits most." Make friends, and customers will follow. If the florists of the country had taken hold of the F. T. D. idea 20 years ago, as they have during the past five, the benefits to the business would have been wonderful. Service should come first. Give satisfaction, please the customers, and the profit will follow. The publicity campaign will be a great factor in stimulating the business. Everyone benefits, so all must contribute. Do not stand to one side and "let George do it." Send your check at once. Take an interest in the work, tie up to it, make it your personal campaign, and watch your business grow. Read the trade papers. Follow them closely, they are full of good suggestions. He doubted the wisdom of the present great increase in prices, three times as much as a year ago, but it seems inevitable on account of the short supply. The growth of the business in Washington for the past 25 years had been wonderful. War conditions had greatly handicapped the trade as in the Gude establishment, 32 men wearing the uniform. He predicted a great future for the business, which was rapidly rising along a higher plane into that of a magnificent profession working eight hours a day instead of 16. The percentage of failures in business was much greater in other lines than in the florist's trade. It was an important factor in the industries of the country, consuming a year ago 1,750,000 tons of coal. In closing, he said: "My message to you is, take new heart, boost your business, believe in it, advertise and keep up your stock. Give the public optimistic stories of plants and flowers. Ask a price that gives a reasonable profit, and the public will pay it. I anticipate a great business the coming spring."

Secretary Young Tells of Work Done.

Secretary John Young of the Society of American Florists, said: "We are all, I believe, agreed that this publicity campaign has been the greatest movement ever organized for the benefit of the trade. It originated in this city, and I am glad to see, after a year's trial, such interest taken as shown here to-night. The florists of the country feel that the S. A. F. is doing something for them. The live men of the trade, all over the land, are actively in the campaign contributing their time and money to make it a success. A fine showing was made last year, and I feel sure it will be better the coming season, as the movement is growing rapidly. The first two days' mail after the bills had gone out contained $3,000, and there was a pledged fund of $27,000 to start with. Those who contributed and tied up with the campaign received the most benefit. The electros, glass signs, window cards, stickers and the literature are sold practically at cost, and all are great business bringers. A part of the work is moulding public opinion through timely articles and interesting stories about flowers, which are sent to the newspapers, many of which gave them place in their columns, which is the best kind of advertising at only the cost of preparation."

He urged the retailers, who advertise in newspapers, to use the electros and connect up with the magazine ads. as they appeared. The S. A. F. journal, with up-to-date news of what the society is doing, will soon make its appearance. The numbers should be kept and filed for future reference. He asked for support of the publicity fund and membership in the society, which now numbered 2,600, but which he hoped would ere long reach the coveted 5,000, which was but a small proportion of the 20,000 members of the trade in this country.

Craig Urges Support of Entire Trade.

Robert Craig, introduced as the noblest Roman of them all, was given an ovation. This, he said, was an inspiring and gratifying moment, as he saw so much optimism in this great gathering after the many trials of the past two years. The publicity movement, which was doing so much good, and deserved the support of the entire trade, reminded him of that master mind in advertising, Peter Henderson, who many years ago, among other successes named, featured, and advertised the moon flower to such an extent that the whole trade was greatly benefited. Mr. Henderson gave a druggist, who helped him rid his place of rats, a slogan or name for the preparation, "Rough on Rats," which made the man a millionaire.

Credulity underlies the principle of much of the advertising seen in the newspapers, people believing in the wonderful stories of the cure-alls. How much safer ground are we on, whose products reach the strings of the human heart. Love of beauty exists in every mind. Some admire pictures, or jewels; others like horses or dogs, but everybody loves flowers. Emerson said nobody has been able to define beauty in the abstract. We see the beauty of the grain covering the ground with green, and later its full clusters of golden brown. There is beauty in the full-sailed ship outlined against the blue sky of the distant horizon. But the countless forms of beauty to be found in the wondrous coloring and fragrance of the flowers is irresistible.

Therkildson Says Boost the Slogan.

W. F. Therkildson, presented as the father of the publicity movement, is a great believer in slogans. "Say it with Flowers," he considers a wonderful slogan. He cited the slogan, "Burpee's seeds grew," which had been a wonderful trade success. The publicity campaign was a splendid idea and should have everybody in the trade back of it. He thought the most should be made of the present moment, and asked those who had faith in the movement, to come forward now with their money. Secretary Young was on hand with the blanks, and in a few minutes over $2,000 in four annual payments was secured.

Addresses were also made by Victor Rideneur and Robert Pyle. Everyone in attendance was delighted with the speaking, and the great enthusiasm and inspiration of the meeting, which was declared the most interesting ever held by the club.

Out-of-town visitors included the speakers, Major P. F. O'Keefe and Henry Penn, Boston, Mass.; Wallace

NASHVILLE, TENN.—The annual conventions of the state florists', nurserymen's, fruit growers' and beekeepers' associations will be held in this city January 28-31 respectively. The programmes include many interesting features.

ERIE, PA.—With prices 25 per cent higher than in 1918, this year's Christmas business showed a corresponding gain. The supply of cut flowers was short of the demand with quality about as usual, according to J. V. Laver. Plant sales showed an improvement over former years.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

After the excitement and hustle and bustle of the holidays, business seems very quiet. On no account, however, must the machine be allowed to stop. Shake off the lethargy, put your best feet forward, make the store in all its departments most inviting. Feature the various items of stock that are likely to be most saleable at this time; many articles are sold by bringing them to the attention of customers in this way, that otherwise would remain on the shelves.

While cut flowers are so expensive, it is well to push plants. Very well flowered cyclamens, that failed to make the holidays, will be good stock to carry, as will primulas of the malacoides type with their wealth of bloom, also the obconica, which are now coming well set with flowers. Freesia in pots is also a great favorite.

Pussy willows should always be on hand as additions to boxes of cut flowers, both inside, and also as an outside decoration after the package is tied up. A spray or two, with a cone bearing branch of pine or other fancy evergreen, costs but little and makes a finish that is sure to attract attention. They are also useful in featuring small pot plants. Two selected sprays opposite one another in a pot, bent over and entwined, make a handle, to which can be tied a knot of ribbon the color of the flower. A few sprays can also be stuck in at one side to fill up where it is necessary to round out the plant. They also arrange nicely and add greatly to the appearance of the small baskets of cut flowers. Bunches of the willows will themselves sell better, if tied and spread out fan-shaped with a fluted sheet of wax paper as a background.

The little post card notice is a great factor in keeping one's trade awake to the fact that the store is eager to serve them. The first daffodils are in, also the fragrant freesias and a new assortment of ferns to freshen up the table fernery, as well as the full flowered cyclamens and other plants that will bring cheer to the sick-room. It only costs $1 a hundred to mail these printed cards, which are sure to get at least a once-over glance that calls the shop to mind and perhaps suggests that one of the items is just what is wanted.

Canton flannel bags or sacks open at both ends, of various diameters and lengths as will admit of being drawn up over pots or tubs from eight to 12 inches or larger, will be found useful in quickly covering plants for decorating purposes these cold days. Many an expensive palm has lost a leaf or had the tips frozen, that would have carried safely with this protection. The cover is quickly drawn up over the plant, holding the leaves together and protecting them from the frost. A drawing string, or stout rubber band, ties the sack at the top and bottom, if necessary. It is quickly removed by loosening the bottom and pulling up over the top.

In the clean-up, putting away and rearranging of the stock after the first of the year, it is well to make a different setting of the movable store furniture. Display tables that have occupied one position for awhile, can be changed about to make a different setting and the groups of plants rearranged to fit in with the new order. Customers appreciate such changes, at least, they often speak of them, and say they look better. One of the best furnishings for the store is a good swinging cheval glass or mirror, before which a lady can arrange or pin on the corsage bunch. A handsome folding screen is also decorative, while a choice majolica jardiniere or two on pedestals, which, if kept clean, never look shopworn, add an air of refinement and furnishing that is well worth their price.

The new year is now under way, and the outlook is one of great promise. The S. A. F. publicity campaign committees need the support of everyone in the trade. They are working and giving their best thoughts to increase your business. Help them now with your money. Connect up your advertising with theirs and identify your shop with their large ads. It will help your customers to want to "Say it with flowers."

Edward Scery.

Edward Scery, well known among the leading retail florists of this country, and who has a fine retail business in Paterson, Passaic and neighboring cities of New Jersey, was, on January 8, chosen for the twelfth consecutive term as president of the park commission of Paterson. This is a fine tribute to Mr. Scery and a favorable contrast of Paterson to some other cities, where park business is the football of politics. But he deserves it, as he has good executive abilities, is a good florist, and last, but not least, a good citizen.

A. F. F.

ITHACA, N. Y.—February 10-15 will be farmers' week at the Cornell College of Agriculture.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—A new flower shop known as the Kirby Flower Palace has been opened in this city.

WINDSOR, ONT.—The business of G. H. and Emma Emery has been purchased by Miss Lucretia J. Bamford.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—A branch store at the corner of Golden Hill and Main streets has been opened by John Reck & Sons.

TORONTO, ONT.—W. McClure, formerly of the Dale estate, Brampton, is now on the staff of H. G. Dilleuth, of this city. D. J. Cooke, after two and one-half years' service in France, has again taken his position at this establishment.

LINCOLN, ILL.—Gullett & Sons are having labor trouble, 13 day and night shift firemen being on strike. The firemen have the support of the Miners' local and other unions in their demand for an 8-hour day and overtime, which is equivalent to $175 per month.

New York Florists' Club.

The monthly meeting of the above named club was held in its rooms on the night of January 13. The meeting was called to order by retiring President Schenck, and after the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, he read his address, which was heartily applauded. He said:

PRESIDENT SCHENCK'S ADDRESS.

"As this will be the last meeting at which I shall have the honor to preside, I want to take advantage of the occasion, to thank every member of the club who has attended our meetings during my administration for his assistance and kind support. The past year has been fraught with many vicissitudes for the florist, and I might say that if it were not for the organized action of the New York Florists' Club and the Society of American Florists, a great many growers today would have had empty and desolate houses staring them in the face. However, while it may not appear on the surface, and a great many who have not taken an active part in our work may not realize it, I can state, on positive authority, that the persistence of our committees made the government take notice of the importance of our industry, which they termed as purely non-essential; and so modified their terms that we at least could keep our ranges going. In proof of this, I can safely state that there is not a greenhouse establishment, managing to secure more than the allotted 50 per cent of coal, which was molested by the local fuel administrator. Other businesses did not fare so well, as we had proof daily, in our papers, of dealers who were fined and had to pay penalties for violating the rules, the government had laid down.

"Our annual flower show has been postponed until 1920 simply for the reason that the government has taken over the Grand Central Palace, and there was no other suitable building. But I do hope that every member will take a keen interest in the 1920 show, that it may keep its place as the leading society affair in the great metropolis.

"Our work in the sale of Liberty Bonds was another example of what organization can do. When we were given a quota of $250,000 the committee stood aghast, yet we sold over $350,000 of the third bond issue, and over $400,000 of the fourth. We were highly commended by the government, and the florists' and allied trades stand high in the estimation of the government today.

"In the work of assistance to the soldiers, both over here and over there, we have done a goodly share. Besides liberal money donations to the Red Cross, we have sent an automobile to France. We have liberally donated flowers in the past year to the sick soldiers in the base hospitals, and we have taken part in a great many other affairs for the relief and entertainment of the soldiers.

"To the various committees, I wish to extend my sincere thanks; and particularly to the chairman of each, who have so ably assisted in the consummation of a successful year for the club. I wish to inform them that the club, as well as myself, has recognized their ambition to keep the morale of the organization at the peak of the high standard made.

"To our secretary, John Young, I shall feel that I owe an everlasting debt of gratitude. It was a pleasure to work with him. Through his knowledge of the different works of the craft gained by so many years of experience, he was always ready and willing to assist in dealing with any of the perplexing questions which occasionally arose during my administration. I believe the club is well served by a thoroughly experienced and able secretary.

The club during my administration has taken a step which for some years has been felt to be a necessary one—it has secured office quarters, where all our business can be transacted in a manner befitting its dignity as the largest and most influential club in the trade. The need of an office and headquarters could scarcely be better demonstrated than during our last Liberty Loan drive, when it was the seat of direction for our entire division.

"It has been pleasing to note that there have been many additions to our membership from the retail trade. I am sure that the representatives of this branch of our calling have seen that our work is in their interests as well as in the interests of the various other branches, and we ought to have a very much larger representation of the retail ranks in our organization.

"Our club has been particularly well represented in the service, made necessary by the gruesome war just ended. Our honor roll carries the names of members who have been called from their activities in the trade, and I trust it will be our good fortune to welcome all of them back, safe, sound and hearty.

"Gentlemen, it is with sincere regret that I relinquish my honorable position, but if in your opinion, I have served you faithfully during my occupancy of the chair, I am well satisfied. I regret exceedingly to realize that there are many things for the good of the club which I have not done. However, in my capacity as an ex-president, I am still yours to command. I sincerely hope that my successor will receive the support you have given me, and with it I can surely bespeak a continued success for the New York Florists' Club."

President Kessler was then escorted to the chair by Alexander S. Burns.

oldest ex-president of the club. President Kessler read his address, as follows, which was also well received:

PRESIDENT KESSLER'S ADDRESS.

"I have the honor tonight to be installed as the thirty-third elected president of the largest and most important local organization of florists in this great country. In taking over the reins of office, I deeply appreciate my responsibility for a continuance of the successful progress of the club in the various lines of work so ably directed by my predecessors, work which has given our body the prestige it enjoys today, as an important factor in the development and advancement of American horticulture. Happily, the adverse conditions under which your retiring president labored during the year just passed have ended, and we may look forward to peaceful and prosperous times, favorable to our projects and conducive to the healthy development and growth of our organization.

"While our membership is large in comparison with that of many similar institutions, it is by no means as large as it might be. Of, perhaps, 2,500 florists who, in their own interests, should be connected with us, we have only about one-fifth of this number. The benefit accruing from organization, needs no exploitation from me. The day when an individual could raise his voice in protest against trade evils or unjust legislation passed many, many years ago, and its passing resulted in the establishment of this club as a most necessary organization for the protection of our interests as a whole, and the advancement of our business as one essential to home life.

"During my administration, I feel assured that I shall have the support of my fellow members in the promotion and carrying out of whatever is decided upon as a necessary part of our work. It shall be my object to encourage and help any endeavor which may come from our younger members as likely to increase interest in our meetings and promote our usefulness as a trade body. Our discussions are free and open, and none should feel that because his membership is more or less new, his views or ideas should not be presented. The motto of our club, "All one," is intended to be taken literally. We are really all one, and no one more than another.

"We shall have many things to engage our attention this year, not the least of which will be the securing of more adequate accommodation for our meetings. All must admit that we have outgrown our present quarters, but what we can do, in the present rather congested housing conditions so apparent in our city, is a matter for serious consideration.

"In taking the gavel of office from my worthy predecessor, I realize that there is a surrender from an officer who has been tried in the fire and found absolutely true; and when I am called upon to make a similar surrender, it is my fondest hope that the same can be said of me, and I shall do my best to have it said worthily."

The vice-president, P. W. Popp, Secretary John Young, Treasurer Wm. C. Rickards, Jr., and Percy B. Rigby, trustee, were in turn introduced and made appropriate remarks. President Kessler announced his committees as follows:

Treasurer Rickards read his report for 1918, showing the club to be in good financial condition, with a balance on hand in bank deposits and Liberty Bonds of $15,566.12.

Appropriate resolutions were read and adopted, on the deaths of Mrs. Milliot, of Yonkers, N. Y., and Captain DeLamare of Glen Cove, N. Y.

The following new members were elected and presented to the club, each making brief remarks: R. H. C. Bard, Syracuse, N. Y.; F. G. Sealey, 3056 Perry avenue, Bronx, N. Y.; O. J. Van Bourgondien, 147 Magnolia avenue, Arlington, N. J.; Bornatt Klugman, 3917 King's Highway, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Simon Schnierow, 3917 King's Highway, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Isadore Landsman, E. 38th street and Lenox road, Brooklyn, N. Y. Eleven names were proposed for membership. D. J. Pappas, who was elected some months ago, was present and introduced, making appropriate remarks. Secretary Young read his report. He also reported on the recent publicity meeting at Philadelphia, which he said was successful. G. E. M. Stumpp made an interesting talk on the slogan, "Say it with Flowers." Wallace R. Pierson

State Florists' Association of Indiana.

A successful and largely attended meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held in the palm room of the Claypool hotel, Indianapolis, January 14, among those in attendance being President J. F. Ammann of the Society of the American Florists and William Walker and son of Louisville, Ky., the out-of-town guests being entertained at a luncheon at the Commercial club. The annual banquet of the association was held in the Florentine room of the hotel at 7 o'clock.

A feature of the meeting was a fine display of flowers, among them the new carnation, Ruth Baur, grown by Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, which will be disseminated in 1920, and which scored 88 points. This variety was also well received when shown at a meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club January 9, where it was awarded a certificate of merit, and also received a certificate at a meeting of the Cleveland Florists' Club, December 2. It is larger than the average commercial variety, of a pink color similar to Gloriosa, with perfect calyx. It is said to be a free bloomer with long, wiry stems and does not split.

The E. G. Hill Co. staged Rose Premier, and some excellent plants of cyclamens and primulas were exhibited by local growers. A new seedling of the Chatelaine type, named Christmas Gift, the product of E. E. Temperly, is almost identical to Chatelaine but the color is a beautiful light red. W. Frank & Sons, Portland, exhibited a splendid vase of assorted roses.

In the election of officers for the ensuing year, Anders Rasmussen was chosen president. The other officers are: Herman Junge, first vice-president; E. E. Temperly, second vice-president; O. E. Steinkamp, secretary; Charles P. hud, treasurer, all of Indianapolis.

LIGHT SUPPLY AND DULL BUSINESS.

A light demand has been the rule during the past week, with just about enough stock being received to fill the few orders that come in. Roses are very scarce and about the only item called for. Carnations are quite plentiful, but prices have held up fairly well. With increased arrivals, a drop will be in order. It is believed that lower prices will help the general situation. Paper Whites are in good supply and are now down to $4 per 100. Sweet peas are arriving in larger numbers and there are also calendulas, violets, mignonette, lily of the valley, primroses and other miscellaneous stock. American Beauties are off crop, but there is little call for them. Funeral work constitutes the bulk of the business just now.

CLUB MEETING.

The regular meeting of the florists' club was held January 7 and the following were placed in nomination, the election to take place at the February meeting: For president—Fred Hop-ton, James Moore, Neil McCallum and August Frishkorn. Vice-president—E. P. Reinemann and A. A. Leach. Secretary—Carl Becherer and Neil McCallum. Treasurer—T. P. Langhans and Carl Becherer. Trustees—William Semple, August Frishkorn, P. S. Randolph, J. W. Ludwig and James Moore. The topic for the evening was "Carnations" and two exhibits were made, one of Laddie, extremely large flowers, by James Murphy, of Sewickley, and the other of Ruth Baur, a cross between Laddie and Pink Delight, staged by Baur & Steinkamp, of Indianapolis. It is a very pleasing pink of the Winsor shade, a little darker than Laddie, and will be disseminated this year. Mr. Steinkamp, who was present, gave a very interesting talk on carnations, and another visitor, Walter Cook, of Cleveland, O., also spoke, urging the members to fight the nursery embargo regulations recently adopted by the federal horticultural board. The following committee was thereupon named to present the club's protest to the congressmen in this district: E. J. McCallum, Samuel McClements and T. P. Langhans. A committee consisting of Neil McCallum, T. Tyler and A. Leach gave prizes for the exhibits. A certificate of merit was awarded Laddie, and a first-class certificate was given for Ruth Baur. The flowers were donated to the government hospital at Hoboken, Pa. The installation of officers will be celebrated by a smoker; the president and secretary being authorized to make all arrangements.

NOTES.

Most of the stores have found plenty of time to redecorate and make necessary changes and present the appearance of spring housecleaning time.

Oliver Langhans has received an honorable discharge from the army and arrived home January 12.

William Loew and Joseph Thomas are planning a trip to the southern states next month.

ACTIVE DEMAND FOLLOWS HOLIDAY TRADE.

Ever since experiencing the best Christmas demand in the history of this city, trade shows no let up at all. New Year's business was the best ever, and no previous occasion showed the buying public more eager to invest in flowers and flowering plants. Since then trade has been excellent. There is no let up in the demand for flowers. Roses are still on the short side and bringing very high prices, but all are eagerly bought up. We must say the splendid quality of the stock offered is one of the chief factors in the ready sale of all roses. Russells were never better. Ophelia and Hadley are also fine. American Beauties are sold occasionally, but not of the old time quality. Killarney is more prominent just now than for many months. When this old time favorite is well done, it is just as popular as ever. Red Radiance is among the varieties on sale. Shawyer is a sort that is now at its best in this market and is in great demand, owing to its pleasing color. Mrs. Aaron Ward is always popular. Very few Cecile Brunners are coming in at present. Freesia is a flower that has helped out wonderfully during the past few weeks. They are of the best quality and the call for them is steady. Gardenias have improved very much of late and are in moderate supply. Sweet peas were being offered rather freely during the past week. The quality is poor, but they are a welcome addition to the limited supply of flowers. Violets are again becoming plentiful and are having a steady call, especially from the shippers. Some fairly good white chrysanthemums are to be had, but are quite expensive. Gallardias are finding a ready market at $3 per 100. Phalænopsis amabilis is now at most of the prominent stores and is eagerly sought for all weddings, as it so readily takes the place of lily of the valley, of which we have none at all. Cattleyas are not very plentiful and have a brisk call. In pot plants, ericas, in variety, and cyclamens have first call. Poinsettias sold out almost completely at the holidays. Good cyclamens are in great demand, as there was not enough to go around at Christmas. Lorraine begonias are to be seen at all stores, as also are Primula obconica. Farleyense ferns were offered more freely by the stores this year than at any other season, and cleaned up in great shape.

NOTES.

Henry Maier, manager of the Hillsborough Nurseries at Burlingame, is in the hospital as the result of an automobile accident at San Mateo. Mr. Maier had just been discharged from the hospital after recovering from an automobile accident several months ago and on his first day out was again injured. We hope to see him about soon and trust this will be his last misfortune in this respect.

Joseph B. Lynch, superintendent of buildings and grounds of the University of Nevada, at Reno, spent the holidays in this city, accompanied by Mrs. Lynch. This was his first visit for a number of years and he was warmly greeted by the trade. He expects to return to his duties at the university after a few weeks' vacation at his old home at Menlo Park.

Manager Jack Sievers, of the J. B. Boland store on Kearny street, is enthusiastic over the amount of holiday trade handled by his firm. He reports the heaviest call for pot plants to be for those ranging in price from $4 to $6. Larger sizes did not sell so well. Louis Matroni, who for many years owned a store in this city, is Mr. Sievers' chief assistant.

The Chas. C. Navlet Co. of San Jose, recently opened a large store on Market street, and report themselves as greatly pleased with the way business is opening up. They are planning to carry a full line of cut flowers, plants and fruit trees. Mr. Navlet formerly operated the flower stand in the Emporium in this city.

An instance of the great variations in the price of flowers may be gleaned from the fact that carnations, which in former years were very plentiful at this season of the year, are now retailing at $2 per dozen. The short supply of this flower is no doubt the cause.

Pellicano, Rossi & Co. have been showing some grand orchids and Farleyense during the past week. Frank Pellicano, of this firm, says they had a wonderful Christmas trade and the only complaint he had to offer was the shortage of cut flowers.

Mrs. E. Ferrari, widow of the late Emil Ferrari, has applied for letters of administration upon the estate of her late husband. The estate is valued at $75,000.00 and was bequeathed to Mrs. Ferrari and her children.

M. H. Ebel, of Sacramento, is in town, and tells us he had the largest holiday season in the history of his business. Like all the rest, he was short on most items, and cleaned up completely.

G. Rossi is mourning the loss of his sister, Mrs. K. Salvatore, who was a victim of the influenza.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

WEATHER CONDITIONS UNFAVORABLE.

Weather conditions have been very poor for producing flowers during the week just passed, as we have had several snowstorms, with zero temperatures, the thermometer dropping to six degrees below. Carnations, which are inclined to be soft, wholesale at $6 per hundred. Roses are very short in supply, the local production falling far short of the demand. Narcissi and freesias are getting more abundant. Sweet peas are increasing in numbers. The supply of orchids is large and the quality, especially of the cattleyas, is excellent. Blooming plants are helping out in the scarcity of cut flowers. The demand since the first of the year has been very satisfactory in all lines of the trade. Wedding work has been good and the call for flowers for funerals quite heavy. Counter trade continues good.

NOTES.

Miss C. B. Flick, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., is in this city for a few days visiting relatives and friends on her way to Los Angeles, Calif., where she will spend the remainder of the winter.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting some fine specimens of cattleyas. They report a heavy demand, with the supply all out of proportion to the call.

The Flick Floral Co. has had a number of weddings, including decorations, and funeral work has made heavy inroads on the stock.

The Doswell Floral Co. had a number of good weddings lately, and are showing some fine cyclamens, primroses and begonias.

Henry Freese, of the Freese Floral Co., is suffering from a nervous breakdown and is confined to his bed.

H. K.

Cleveland.

ROSE SUPPLY SHORTENS.

The most noticeable feature of the cut flower market the past week was the scarcity of roses. White seemed especially short of the demand. Carnations were quite plentiful, but moved well. Paper White narcissi are in good supply, and so far have been cleaning up nicely. A few sweet peas arrive and move quickly. Freesias, calendulas and mignonette are part of the daily receipts. Callas and Easter lilies have met with a better call the past week. Greens are plentiful and in good demand.

NOTES.

Fire originating in rubbish surrounding the ice box in the rear of W. Q. Potter's wholesale store, 421 High street, did an estimated damage of $50, January 10. Several bales of moss were burned, and the balance of the damage was done by water and smoke.

John Knor, of the Brookline Floral Co., Parna, O., will spend a few days visiting friends in Sidney, O.

OBITUARY.

Lieutenant William Aherne.

Lieutenant William Aherne, a well-known florist of Columbia, Pa., died at his home in that city January 9 of valvular disease of the heart. He enlisted as a private in the Pennsylvania national guard on October 6, 1878, and was subsequently promoted until he reached the rank of first lieutenant in 1891, and commanded his company during the Homestead strike.

As a florist, he was of the old school, with a knowledge of plant life and culture that one seldom meets with today and a deep love for his plants and flowers that made it a pleasure to see him among them. He was a member of the Lancaster County Florists' Association, was prominent in church circles, honored and respected by all who knew him, and his loss will be keenly felt. His wife, who preceded him to the "great beyond" several years ago, was Miss Mary Brady, of County Wexford, Ireland.

ALBERT M. HERR.

Thomas E. McAllister.

Thomas E. McAllister, for many years in charge of the plant department at the establishment of A. Lange, Chicago, died suddenly of pneumonia at his late place of residence, 849 Cass street, January 11. He was at business in his usual good health the previous Wednesday evening. He was ill at home Thursday, but in answer to telephone inquiry, was reported better Friday. Early Saturday morning he was found dead in bed, to the great surprise and sorrow of a host of friends.

Mr. McAllister was born at Spenny-moor, Durham, Eng., of Irish parents, 52 years ago. In early life he was employed in various gardens in the vicinity of his birthplace. Coming to the United States, he arrived at Boston, Mass., in 1888 and was engaged for a time in various parts of that state. Later he was with Pitcher & Manda, at Short Hills, N. J., and was employed at various commercial establishments in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and other places on his way west. He had a good knowledge of indoor plants and their culture.

Mr. McAllister was a member of the Chicago Florists' Club and well known to the trade throughout the country. He was popular with his associates, always agreeable about taking the other fellows' Sunday or night work, sympathetic and helpful to those in distress. He was a trusted and loyal employe, beloved by all who knew him for his unflinching courtesy and blameless character.

Some distant relatives reside at Worcester, Mass., and Uniontown, Pa., and it is said his father and a brother survive in England.

Funeral services will be held at the Holy Name cathedral, January 16, with burial at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

W. W. Seley.

W. W. Seley, of Waco, Tex., patron of horticulture, honorary life member of the Texas State Florists' Association, and one of the most prominent bankers in the state, died at his home, December 26, age 65 years, succumbing to an attack of pneumonia. In every community enterprise that has ever been inaugurated for the upbuilding of Waco during nearly 50 years that he had lived in the city, his name was always prominent. One of his gifts to the city was the C. M. Seley park, a memorial to his father. He had great faith in the future of central Texas and as president of the Brazos River and Valley Improvement Association, accomplished much for that section. He was also head of the Texas Conservation and Reclamation Association, and was selected as chairman of the fund raised for bringing relief to farmers of the state following the drought that wrought great havoc last year. He held numerous offices of trust both city and state, was city treasurer for 20 years and prominent in many fraternal organizations. An example of his public-spiritedness is shown in his activities in connection with the work of the Red Cross in his community, acting as chairman of a big organization, and setting aside all of his business to devote his entire time to this worthy cause.

Mr. Seley was a man of sterling character in all that the term implies.

The Late Thomas E. McAllister.

No man in Texas had friends that clung to him more loyally, and his passing is a great loss to the community in which he lived a long and useful life.

John H. Slocombe.

John H. Slocombe, widely known as an originator and grower of dahlias and chrysanthemums, passed peacefully to rest on the night of January 11, at his home, 555 Townsend avenue, New Haven, Conn., aged 74 years. He had been ill for about a year. He was born in Devonshire, England, and came to this country in 1873. For two years he lived at Morristown, N. J., and then removed to New Haven, where he worked with Robert Veitch for five years. For the next 17 years, he was gardener for Mr. Mitchell, a member of congress. In 1899, he started in business for himself, and soon became prominent in the trade. He had, during his commercial career, been awarded many prizes at various shows, for his fine stock in dahlias and chrysanthemums. The deceased was a man of fine character and had an honorable career.

He is survived by a widow, three sons, William and Herbert, of New Haven, and the Rev. Edwin Slocombe, of Worcester, Mass., and one daughter, Miss Emma Slocombe; also, four sisters who reside in England, Miss Annie Slocombe, Mrs. Mary Dobson, Mrs. E. Taunton, and Mrs. Ellen Fowner, and one brother, Nathaniel Slocombe, of Farmington, Conn. The funeral was held at the family home on the afternoon of January 14, Rev. R. L. Tucker and Rev. William Roberts officiating. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery, New Haven.

Mrs. Thomas Page.

The many friends, throughout the United States, of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Page of Great Barrington, Mass., will be shocked to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. Page, on Saturday, January 4, 1919, following an operation at the House of Mercy hospital, Pittsfield, Mass. Mrs. Page is survived by her husband and three young children. She was a charming and accomplished Edinburgh woman and will be gratefully remembered for her wholesouled hospitality and kindness to visiting horticulturists at "Brookside." She had been active in Red Cross and other women's war work since 1914. Her death is a severe loss to Great Barrington and to her multitude of friends everywhere.

ARTHUR T. BODDINGTON.

Mrs. Patrick McGovern.

Mrs. Patrick McGovern, widow of the late Patrick McGovern, who was for many years a well-known florist of Brooklyn, N. Y., died after a lingering illness, at her home, 122 Prospect Park, West Brooklyn, January 7.

A. F. F.

OLNEY, ILL.—The trade will regret to hear of the death of Gus Schlegel who had been ill for some time. He was laid to rest in Waldheim cemetery, Chicago. Mrs. Schlegel will continue the business.

BOISE, IDA.—With prices 25 per cent better than in 1917, this year's volume of Christmas business was about equal to that of previous holiday periods, due to a shortage of stock in all cut flower items, throwing the big demand to pot plants, is the report of the Boise Floral Co. There was no complaint regarding prices.

HARRISBURG, PA.—With a good supply of roses, carnations and violets, although bulbous flowers were not at hand, Charles L. Schmidt reports that Christmas trade here was better than in 1917 with prices twice as high, and the quality of the stock offered much better than a year ago. Everything in cut flowers sold well and an increased demand was noted in the call for flowering plants. Foliage varieties went slow.

SEDALIA, MO.—The State Fair Floral Co., reporting on the Christmas trade in this city, says that prices charged for flowers were about 75 per cent higher than in 1917, while the volume of business showed an increase of but one-third. The supply of cut flowers was only 50 per cent of normal, and when this was exhausted, plants moved fast, with poinsettias in the lead. It is feared the great advance in prices will create a bad impression among the flower buyers here.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Christmas sales were 25 per cent better than in 1917, with a complete cleanup by the night of December 24 at prices double those of last year, according to C. W. Eichling. The supply of cut stock was limited and the quality in general excellent, especially in carnations. No bulbous stock was offered. There seemed to be little preference for any particular kind of flower and there was an increase in the demand for flowering plants. People knew in advance what prices would be and these were paid without complaint.

CLASSES ADDED TO PREMIUM LIST.

By request of the Cleveland Florists' Club, the following classes have been added to the premium schedule for the exhibition of the American Carnation Society to be held at Cleveland, O., January 29-30. Entries for these classes may be made any time previous to the time set for staging, which is one o'clock, January 29. The prizes in each class given below are first $8, second $4 and third $3.

- Fifty blooms any variety, white.
Fifty blooms any variety, light pink, being not darker than Winsor.
Fifty blooms any variety, dark pink, being darker than Winsor.
Fifty blooms any variety, red.
Fifty blooms, any other color.

Please bear in mind that entries for all classes except the above should be in the hands of the secretary not later than January 19. This date falling on Sunday, all entries in Monday's mail will be accepted as having been made within the time limit. After Monday, $2 will be charged against each class in which entry is made.

Entries are especially desired from growers in the middle west. For several years past, the growers in this section have failed to hold up their end, leaving the making of the exhibition largely to the growers from the far east. Cleveland is centrally located and easily reached from all directions, therefore there is no reason why we should not have entries from all sections. Come and bring an exhibit with you.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING, DETROIT.

President Ammann authorizes the call for a meeting of the executive committee to be held at Detroit, Mich., January 31-February 1, following the meeting of the American Carnation Society at Cleveland, O. the name of the hotel or meeting place to be announced later.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEES MEETING.

Henry Penn, Boston, Mass., chairman of the publicity committee, and George Armus, Chicago, chairman of the publicity finance committee of the Society of American Florists, have issued a call for a session of said committees during the meeting of the American Carnation Society at Cleveland, O., January 29, 1919.

PRESIDENT'S ADDITIONAL APPOINTMENTS.

Arno H. Nehrling, Crawfordsville, Ind., has been appointed state vice-president for Indiana. North, vice W. J. Vesey, Jr., previously appointed, but who is still in the service of the United States army.

President J. F. Ammann has reappointed the committee on memorial resolutions, as follows: Michael Barker, Chicago, chairman; John G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J., and J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, O.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Public notice is hereby given that the Conard & Jones Company, West Grove, Pa., submits for registration the new plants mentioned below:

Canna Nokomis: A hybrid of the famous Firebird, without any of the bad habits of the parent plant. Height, five feet. The foliage is a combination of emerald green and bronze, beautifully veined, making a lovely setting for the large, vivid crimson flowers. The flowers are most attractive, having a rich silky sheen on the petals, and the color is darker than that of any other bronze-foliaged canna with bloom near this size.

Canna The President. Height four feet. In color it is a rich, glowing scarlet, and the immense, firm rounded flowers, seven inches across when open, are produced on strong, erect stalks well above the large, rich green foliage. The President is superior to any other red variety in the quantity, and also quality, of bloom, and the firm flowers are able to resist drought and heat to a remarkable degree.

Any person objecting to this registration, or to the use of the proposed names, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

JOHN YOUNG, Secretary.

January 15, 1919.

High Prices May Change Flower Customs

The recent and even present great scarcity of flowers is being viewed seriously by thinking men of the trade, who see in this dilemma a condition that might bring about a change of customs, such as, far instance, the sending of flowers to funerals. Flowers may be wanted to convey sympathy for a deceased friend, but on consulting the florist, prices are found so extraordinarily high that a wreath of magnolia, decorated with artificial flowers, is made to do, or just a letter or card of condolence, is sent in place of the flowers. At the funeral, it is seen there are few flowers and those who sent cards of condolence are satisfied that the customs are changing, and they have done the right thing. In trying to bridge over these harmful conditions, some retailers, in order not to frighten their customers away, are selling carnations for which they paid $12 per 100 at $2 per dozen, practically, with the overhead expenses, at cost. Other stocks are also sold on the smallest margin of profit possible, in the hope that flowers will soon become more plentiful with a corresponding decline in prices.

EXPERTS familiar with the coal situation say buyers should not take in over two week's supply at a time except through fear of congestion in deliveries, as all indications are for continually lowering prices.

WAR losses due to acts by the enemy to American merchant shipping from the beginning of the war until the signing of the armistice was 145 vessels, a total of 354,449 gross tons, with the sacrifice of 775 lives.

LEAD is down to 5 1/2 cents per pound. According to tinfoil makers, prices of that article are based upon the cost of tin, which is still sold at about 75 per cent of mid-war high figures, and an early decline in the tinfoil market is not anticipated.

LIVELY CLUB MEETING.

Protest against the horticultural import prohibition by the federal horticultural board at Washington, was an important feature of the January meeting of the florists' club. In addition to a lively discussion during the regular business session of the club, the members enjoyed the annual dinner at Keeler's, State street. The action of the club in the matter of the import prohibition was due to the presence of James J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia. Mr. Karins handed the secretary at the meeting a copy of a circular embodying the reasons for the protest of the horticultural trade against the action of the federal horticultural board that would prohibit the importation into this country, after June 1 next, of the most valuable stock that the wholesaler has to offer and the retailer can use to hold his trade. The circular was read in full, after which a motion was put by Frederick A. Danker, that a petition be drawn up and signed, and that copies of the petition with letters accompanying be mailed to the congressional representative from this district and to John Young, secretary of the Society of American Florists. The petition was signed by all present, 35 in number. President William Newport named a committee of four to present the matter to the Hon. Martin H. Glynn, editor of the Albany Times-Union, formerly representative in congress from this district, and later governor of the state, for his assistance. The committee is made up of: Frederick A. Danker, chairman; William C. Gloeckner, Edward P. Tracey and Frederick Henkes.

The club committees for 1919 were announced by President Newport as follows: Finance—Frederick Henkes, Frederick Goldring and Edward P. Tracey; Entertainment—Louis H. Schaefer, John J. Haggerty and Fred A. Danker; Sick Visitation—Thomas F. Tracey, Harvey Woodland, Samuel Hanson and John A. Murnane Jr.; Flower Show—Fred A. Danker, Frederick Henkes, William Hannell, Byron C. Holmes, Howard Menard and George E. Nagengast, Jr.

At the dinner Fred A. Danker was toastmaster. The number present was 40, most of whom made short responses when called upon. A telegram was read from Roman J. Irwin, of New York, who sent word from Larchmont that he regretted his inability to be present this year. The three traveling men present, James J. Karins, Philadelphia; Stephen Green Philadelphia, and Morris M. Cohen of New York, also spoke. Mr. Karins enlarged somewhat upon the remarks made earlier in the evening on the horticultural import prohibition, and urged each of the growers and retailers present to get in touch with the congressional representative for this district. After he sat down, somebody remarked that he had never heard Karins say so much in his life—a point well taken, from the fact that at previous dinners of the club no one had ever been able to persuade him to get on his feet to respond to a toast. A local entertainer by the name of Dennis McCarthy made a hit during the dinner by a parody on "Smiles." Mr. McCarthy, who was the guest of Thomas F. Tracey, of the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, sang the following:

"We get plants and ferns from Karins,
We get baskets from Steve Green;
We get heather fine from Hannell;
And Fred Henkes' carnations are supreme;

We get ribbons from our old friend
Cohen.

And from Goldring cut flowers too.
But the retailers' salvation was the Dear old plague, the Flu."

NOTE.

The society columns of the local newspapers have carried the announcement of the engagement of Miss Harriet Isabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Eyres, of 19 Chestnut street to F. Leigh Hichman of Little Falls, N. Y. Miss Eyres is a graduate of the Albany Academy for Girls and of St. Margaret's School, Waterbury, Conn. The date for the wedding has not been announced.

Holyoke and Northampton Club.

The monthly meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists and Gardeners' Club was held January 7 at Butler & Ullman's greenhouses at Northampton, Mass., with a good attendance. The club decided to offer a prize for the best exhibit at each meeting for the coming year to stimulate interest. Being carnation night, there were displays of 23 vases from four growers in the vicinity. Butler & Ullman won the first prize with Laddie and were also awarded a certificate of merit for the extensive decorations at their establishment for the occasion.

ROSES ARE IN SHORT SUPPLY.

Business has been good the past week and stock of all kinds cleaned up nicely in all lines at satisfactory prices, especially roses, which are in short supply. American Beauty roses are moving nicely at high prices and there is seldom a surplus in this variety. Mrs. Chas. Russell cleans up early regularly and the same holds true for Columbia. Roses in general are very scarce and continue to command high prices. Carnations are in large supply, but are moving much better now than they have since the holidays. Lilies are seen at some of the stores in large numbers, but are selling well, and while they need pushing, there are very few left when the day's business is over. Callas are included in the offerings, but not in any great quantities. Sweet peas are in brisk demand and are not arriving in great numbers. Violets have been quite plentiful the past week, but did not move any too lively considering the general scarcity of stock. Lily of the valley, orchids and gardenias appear to be holding their own at the advertised quotations with very little stock obtainable. White and yellow narcissus, freesia, pansies, daisies, stevia, mignonette and calendulas are among the offerings together with a limited supply of Proserpine tulips and single and double stocks. Greens are plentiful and while a scarcity exists at times in one or two items, there is pretty nearly always plenty to go around. Some especially fine leucothea and galax are noticed at some of the stores, where they find ready buyers owing to the high quality. The shipping trade was unusually brisk the past seven days and the city demand was better than it has been for the past two weeks. Large quantities of stock, especially carnations, were shipped to eastern wholesale houses the past 10 days, especially to Boston, where stock was scarce and prices high. One of the large rose growers for this market was more than pleased with his returns for October, November and December, which helped to offset the first nine months, which, taken as a whole, were as poor as the last three were good.

NOTES.

Philip Foley, Jr., who enlisted in the aviation department at the Great Lakes naval training station shortly after war was declared, has been honorably discharged and is now attending to his duties as vice-president of the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Company. James Foley, who is in the quartermaster's department, is hoping for an early mustering out so he can also get back on the job with his father and brother in the near future.

The suggestion that a memorial statue of Theodore Roosevelt be erected somewhere in the forest preserve district of Cook County has met with the enthusiastic approval of Peter Reinberg, president of the county board and head of the forest preserve commission. Mr. Reinberg is in favor of the idea that a committee of bankers be named to receive subscriptions to the fund for the monument so that the job can be done speedily.

George Wienhoeber devoted his entire window space on South Wabash avenue the greater part of last week to the memory of the late Theodore Roosevelt, former president, soldier, adventurer, possessor of many other titles too numerous to mention, and last, but not least, the idol of the majority of the local people.

Under the heading of "Bankruptcy Petitions" in the daily papers the past week was that of Irene Williams, doing business as the Atlas Floral Shop, 176 North Wabash avenue; liabilities, $8,428.40; assets, $618.

Frank Schleiden, formerly with Chas. W. McKellar, who enlisted in the navy shortly after this country entered the war, was mustered out at the Boston navy yards recently and is visiting friends here.

Ernest Farley, who has been with the colors at Camp Wadsworth, S. C., was mustered out at Camp Grant, Rockford, this week. He was with the 6th anti-aircraft company.

First Lieutenant Chas. T. Johnson, son of C. W. Johnson, recently relieved of army work, resumed his former position at Mt. Greenwood cemetery, January 2.

A. S. Brouton's retail store at 3201 Fullerton avenue was destroyed by fire January 12, together with several other business concerns in the same building.

F. A. Zenke, well-known to the local trade, especially with the growers, is back in the game again and is representing The Excell Laboratories.

Adolph Benesch, manager of the F. F. Winterson Co.'s supply department, was confined to his home the past week with the Spanish influenza.

Herman Rogers, with Gust H. Taepke Co., Detroit, Mich., was here on a combined business and pleasure trip this week.

Ed. Martin, with Kennicott Bros. Co., has been confined to his home for several weeks with rheumatism.

John Ziska, of Joseph Ziska & Sons, left January 12 to take the bath treatments at Excelsior Springs, Mo.

H. N. Bruns has been elected director of the Madison and Kedzie State Bank.

The next monthly meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the Randolph Hotel, Thursday evening, February 6, when the annual novelty show will take place. Every one in the trade who has anything new or worth while to offer is cordially invited to make an exhibit and if they intend to do so, notify the president, Allie J. Zech, care of Zech & Mann, 30 East Randolph street, or A. T. Pyfer, care of A. T. Pyfer & Co., 164 North Wabash avenue.

Fred Henoch, Harry Henoch and George Hussman, of the Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind., attended the Victory banquet given by the Florists' Club at the Hotel Randolph, January 9. Mr. Gnatt passed through here this week on his way back from the east, where he made a short business trip.

Practically all the local wholesale houses received a letter from the Retail Florists' Association asking them to co-operate with its members for the general betterment of the business. Everyone appears to be willing to do so and have signified same in writing.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. reports business from out-of-town points as very satisfactory, many orders being received from eastern cities right along, which evidently means a scarcity of stock or an unusually brisk demand in that section.

Oscar Hamchild, formerly florist at the Hotel McAlpin, New York, arrived in this city from France with the Black Hawks January 13. Mr. Hamchild expects to start business in his home city as soon as released.

It is rumored that one of the leading local retail florists will retire February 1, when his business will be continued as a stock company. Further particulars will be announced later.

H. Van Gelder was more than pleased with the business that Percy Jones, Inc., enjoyed during 1918, when the total sales established a new record.

Vaughan's Seed Store is moving gladiolus bulbs in considerable quantities, while travelers' mail carries very liberal flower seed orders.

J. A. Budlong reports a brisk demand for lily of the valley, which has been scarce all the past year at high prices.

The Chicago Retail Florists' Association held its regular monthly meeting January 14 at 75 East Monroe street.

Wieter Bros. are making deliveries of carnation cuttings.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Randolph, January 9, President Lautenschlager in the chair. There was a good attendance, the special occasion being the club's Victory banquet with the ladies in attendance in celebration of the close of the great war in favor of the allied nations.

A feature of the short business session was the installation of the new officers elected at the previous meeting, Allie Zech, president; Walter Amling, vice-president; Otto H. Amling, treasurer; A. T. Pyfer, secretary; F. Lautenschlager, trustee. The annual reports of the secretary and treasurer were presented, showing a substantial balance in the club's favor. A letter was read from Secretary John Young, Henry M. Robinson, Boston, Mass.; A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, and Fred Henoch, Henry Henoch and George Hussman, La Porte, Ind.

Baur & Steinkamp, of Indianapolis, Ind., exhibited a splendid vase of their new carnation, Ruth Baur, a fine rose pink of good form and average size, the flowers well carried on long stiff stems. The club's special committee consisting of C. W. Johnson, Geo. Asmus and A. T. Pyfer, awarded this new variety a certificate of merit with a score of 87 points.

Chairman T. E. Waters of the good-of-the-club committee then announced the feast. Tasteful menu cards had been distributed showing the American flag in colors and gold in front and the badge of the club on the back. Each lady and gentleman was presented with a bow of red, white and blue and Mr. Waters was constantly on the alert to see that every one was well supplied with the good things provided. The various courses were well interspersed with music and nothing seemed to escape the wary chairman's eye which would tend to make this part of the programme in every way pleasant to those who had the good fortune to be on hand.

When coffee had been served, Toastmaster P. J. Foley made a few remarks in his usual happy style and called on A. F. J. Baur, of Indianapolis, who reminded the audience of the coming convention of the American Carnation Society at Cleveland, O., January 29-30, urging every one to attend.

George Asmus spoke of the great publicity campaign of the Society of American Florists and thought the committee in charge had done remarkable work in securing $45,000 for publicity purposes the past year, when everybody was busy raising war funds. The committee, he said, expected to raise $100,000 this year, and he believed there would be no difficulty in doing so if the florists realized that this publicity work had done much to keep their business going during the gloomy wartime.

C. C. Pollworth said the representatives of our trades had given a good account of themselves on the battle fields abroad, while those at home, ably assisted by the ladies, rendered splendid service in holding the business together.

President W. J. Keimel, of the Illinois State Florists' Association, called attention to the annual meeting of that organization to be held at Urbana, March 4, requesting that all present arrange to be there with good exhibits.

State Vice-President Paul R. Klingsporn, of the Society of American Florists, made a strong plea for membership in the national society.

Other speakers included Messrs. Robinson, Frauenfelder, Waters, Wolf and Pyfer.

FAIR SUPPLY AT REASONABLE PRICES.

Stock of all kinds is in fair supply. The quality is improved, with prices reasonable. The supply of roses could be a little stronger, to meet the demands, but business is slow and the shortage is not felt very much. Russell and Columbia are the leaders. Ophelia is also coming in good color, but the supply is a bit short. Carnations are very fine, and with the prices correct, are in steady demand for cut flowers, bouquets, funerals, etc. Sweet peas are still an uncertain quantity and need a few more weeks to bring in the big cut. Violets, too, will have to get a move on in order to be a factor in the Valentine business. Callas and Harrisi are equal to requirements. Lily of the valley is scarce, and what there is, is very poor. Greens of all kinds are equal to the demand.

NOTES.

The florists' club January meeting was held at the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. A good attendance turned out and an interesting session resulted. Julius Schaefer and Chas. Cannon were elected to membership. A general discussion resulted from the publicity committee's report. After the meeting Messrs. Lurie and Pring presented their special lecture on "Hearticulture." This proved to be quite a hit and entertaining to all.

Oscar May, of Sappington, Mo., has quite a collection of animal skins, which he has gathered this winter on his various hunting trips. He expects to realize quite a few dollars on them. Included among them are skunk, muskrat, coon, and 'possum.

Eddie Eisner, of the Grimm & Gorly staff, is on the sick list. Frank Gorly has been taking his place on the market, buying the necessary stock for the firm.

C. W. Wors' two sons, who have been home on furloughs, have returned to their respective services. Army and navy life seemed to agree with them.

The local florists are contemplating a banquet to be sponsored by the publicity committee, to be held some time in the early part of February.

Richard Tubbesing, of the Ayers Floral Co., is back on the job after serving some time in the United States navy.

Lon Rowe, of Kirkwood, has been doing quite a bit of hunting this season, according to his stories.

FLORISTS' CLUB REVIEWS TRADE.

The club meeting, January 8, was well attended, about 40 members being present, and the proceedings were most interesting and instructive. Philip Breitmeyer presented his paper on "Christmas business and Its Lessons," in which he unfolded, without reserve, his close observation of the unusual conditions surrounding this, the most unique holiday business ever experienced. While the high prices prevailing were in most cases unavoidable, he sounded a note of warning to those who appeared to believe that apparently prohibitive prices were justified by the alleged high cost of production. He said we should not be unmindful of the danger of driving away trade because of this impediment. He said in confirmation of this idea, that he popularized carnations by selling them for $3 a dozen to allow no one who wished them to go without some flowers. Seasonable plants, he claimed, were so popular because of the unusual prices asked for most items in the cut flower list. He thought it a great mistake to charge $12 a dozen, the wholesale price for poinsettias, as that compelled a retail price that would and actually did allow the stock to be unsold. He deplored the giving of so much time, at such a busy season to the making up of corsage bouquets, as a quicker and easier disposition of this work should be devised. Violets were not such good sellers this year in comparison with other flowers and effects. He designated the "order taken" and delivery department of a floral store at such a time as of far more importance than clever salesmanship, as the items and effects themselves commanded the sale, but the correct, timely and careful delivery of the article was of prime importance. The discussion brought out by Mr. Breitmeyer's address was quite general and covered most of the points referred to by the speaker and much valuable data and information needed was relished by the members, particularly the retailers, who composed most of the attendance.

F. P. Walker read an address upon "Greater Efficiency," which treated particularly of the great importance of system and its application in the details of retailing. This subject, too, was thoroughly discussed, and the many participating showed the great interest now taken by most retailers, many of whom showed a realization of the actual necessity these times of knowing the precise condition of their business more intimately. By the expressed views of all retailers, it developed that with all its anxieties, and real and imaginary apprehensions, the holiday business this year was in the final results most satisfactory, even if in some cases the volume was not as great.

Resolutions of regret were adopted upon the recent passing of George A. Rackham, who had served the club as president two years and was at all times most active in its behalf until his retirement from the florist business. Similar action was taken regarding the death of Charles Warnecke, Jr., whose obituary appeared in these columns last week.

A. L. Lamond, Sunnycroft Greenhouses, Birmingham, Mich., showed a sport of Enchantress Supreme. The flowers were large, on stiff stems, but the color as seen in these did not appear so desirable. The defect, however, may be because of the age of the flowers, which had been cut several days previous.

MARKET CLEANS UP QUICKLY.

The market has tightened up again. A heavy demand combined with receipts that averaged about the same as those of the previous week kept the market cleaned up throughout the period. The demand from out of town continues heavy. The cut of roses has shortened again since the last writing. All that come into the market clear readily. The supply of carnations has increased over what it was the previous week, but all the receipts meet with a steady demand. Sweet peas are becoming plentiful and meet with an active call. Easter lilies, callas and rubrums are coming into the market. All meet with good sales. The bulbous list now includes Paper White narcissus and freesia. Snapdragon and stevia both sell well. Other offerings are violets, lily of the valley, orchids, calendulas, forget-me-nots, baby primroses and mignonette.

BUSINESS SHOWS STRONGER TONE.

Trade during the past week has shown some improvement and prices have dropped to normal figures. Carnations are now offered at $6 to $8 per 100 and roses have declined to $5. Sweet peas are high at $4 and $6. Stevia is about over and violets are more plentiful at $2 per 100. Social functions are starting again and this is encouraging to the retailers who have had very little work of this character during the past two years.

NOTES.

Among the daily receipts on this market are excellent carnations, including the varieties Benora, Matchless, Pink Delight and Morning Glow.

Joe O'Donnell is back from the army and has taken his former position at Thomas Rowland's.

Joseph Sloane has been transferred from Camp Greenleaf to Camp Devens awaiting discharge.

SLIGHT INCREASE IN SUPPLY.

There has been a slight increase in some lines of stock, notably carnations, which have become fairly plentiful in all the commission houses, and in consequence now range from $6 to $10 per hundred, with $8 as the price for the best medium grade. Roses are a trifle scarcer, but these also have fallen in price about 10 per cent, starting at $6, and from that up to $20 and $25 for special Hadlevs and Russells. Paper Whites are now a regular stock. There is a fair amount of calendulas and mignonette, still a little stevia, violets enough, callas and Easter lilies, which still bring $25, and quite a lot of snapdragons. Sweet peas have suffered from the dull, damp weather of a week ago, dropping their buds badly. They are very popular and another week will see them in improved form and greater supply. Pink Japanese lilies appear to be good stock, their orchid-like flowers on long stems, working in to good advantage with callas in funeral clusters. Cattleyas and white lilac are two dependables that are very popular in the stores, and of which there appears to be good daily supply. Southern asparagus is keeping up with the demand. While there are signs of an increased supply of cut flowers, it is so slow in materializing that many retailers despair of ever getting into their stride again. One retailer stated that he was going to get his cash register jingling again by offering carnations that cost 8 cents, at 10 cents each, or $1.20 per dozen. Many others say that they are compelled to sell almost at cost to hold their trade and keep things moving in the sale of cut flowers. They are still able to get a fair increase in prices for funeral flowers. There is a very good demand for all kinds of flowering plants, particularly cyclamens and primulas. Malacoides is very popular and is seen in all the shops, some growers being almost sold out of a stock that they thought would last through February.

THAT HORTICULTURAL EMBARGO.

The great hardship as a result of the federal horticultural board excluding from importation so many plants grown only in Belgium is, as the time approaches for this embargo to go into effect, coming home to the florist's industry and arousing an indignant protest that should be encouraged and developed, and find expression through every congressman and senator in the United States. The department of agriculture at Washington should be required to state the reason for the appointment of this board, who requested it, and also to explain the peculiar ruling that bars some Belgium products and admits others, that are equally available as a carrier of insects or fungoid diseases. Everybody get busy at once and combat this injustice by protesting to their senators and congressmen, and explaining the great harm it will be to their business and that of the country.

BIG BOOST FOR NATIONAL PUBLICITY.

and the food and service could not have been better. The roof garden accommodations were ideal for both the dinner, floral exhibition and meeting. The Florex Gardens display of roses was exceptionally fine, considering market conditions. There were large vases of Columbia, September Morn, Prima Donna and Hoosier Beauty. John Cook's new white rose looks like a comer. It attracted great attention. Stevenson Bros., also of Baltimore, staged a very pretty sport of Ophelia, which in its deep orange shade was very striking. The vase of 100 blooms of Belle Washburn carnation from the Bickmore Greenhouses, Wallingford, Pa., was the best ever seen here. White Benora, from Patton & Co., at Tewksbury Center, Mass., looked very promising, while Gude Bros.' Democracy, a salmon pink, all flowers coming up to John Thorpe's dream of four inches in diameter, is a record breaker in every respect. The plant section contained splendid plants of the bird's nest fern, from Wm. K. Harris, which were first used with good effect as a decorative feature of the dinner tables, and well flowered plants of Primula malacoides Townsendii, exhibited by A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y. A box of the new rose, Premier, from the E. G. Hill Co., of Richmond, Ind., unfortunately was delivered with the flowers frozen, while a box of Peter Fisher's new carnation, Red Cross, arrived too late for the exhibition.

NOTES.

James Heacock, Robert Jamison and Carl Cortis, of the Jos. Heacock Co., paid a visit to the Duckham-Pierson Co.'s establishment at Madison, N. J., January 11. They found the roses in splendid condition. The five houses each 61x500 feet, are all planted to roses. Most of the stock is growing on benches four feet in width, in which the roses are planted only 12 inches apart each way. In one house, a block of Double White Killarney, had, in one crop during October, averaged 10 flowers per plant. Ten thousand Mrs. Ward had also produced something like 100,000 flowers. A house of Ophelia had given a wonderful crop, and was in splendid preparation for another, as was a house of Mrs. Russell, which were breaking in a way to please the heart of any grower.

A wholesaler, in discussing the price problem in selling cut flowers, said it was impossible of regulation, depending entirely on supply and demand. If he had several thousand roses in stock, which at current prices were not moving, he would very soon find out the reason why, and, if necessary, shade his prices so as to be in the game with his competitors. On the other hand, any increase in the demand was sure to send prices higher. Quality was also a factor, as there were always buyers ready to pay top prices for the best stock.

The troublesome question as to how to maintain prices when flowers are plentiful, has been solved by Edward Reiger. His plan is to grow less of them, and grow them better, so that each shall be a good flower, which will bring a fixed price for certain seasons. This will require less labor, fuel and other costs that will produce a greater net return to the grower.

"Here is something fine," said a salesman in a wholesale house to a customer, holding up a bundle of 25 roses. "Yes, it is," was the answer. "but I wouldn't take that man's stock at any price. We have found more short count and cheating in the grading of his roses than we can stand for. We have his number all right."

C. U. Liggitt reports all kinds of florists' plant stock to be getting scarcer. Quotations are being moved up, but orders continue to come. Rooted carnation cuttings are not nearly up to quantities usual at this time, the flowers having been bringing such high prices that shoots were allowed to run to bud.

Alfred M. Campbell has taken a lease on the Elmwood Farm Greenhouses, with some 50,000 feet of glass, all modern construction, to run from April 1. These are situated near Hatboro, Pa. This, in connection with his large range at Strafford, will make his product quite a factor in the supply of this market.

H. Bayersdorfer says the troubles of the retailer have been relieved with high grade artificial flowers which are perfect in form and coloring and keep until they are used, and in many cases answer the purpose as well as the natural.

H. I. Faust, Merion, Pa., plantsman, is completely sold out, which condition is very unusual at this season. He will erect a new house, 26x200 feet, as soon as the weather is favorable in which to grow large cyclamens.

The market is said by the Leo Niessen Co. to be in a satisfactory condition. Roses are a trifle short, but carnations are coming stronger, as is snapdragon. White lilac and cattleyas are features.

Jack Deutscher, of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange, is very proud of Champ Weiland and Ward roses, which grade high. Lily of the valley is also a choice feature.

Benjamin Gibbs, of Eugene Bernheimer's, is laid up for repairs, as is Clarence Watson, chief of the shipping department of the Leo Niessen Co.

Edward Reid is well pleased with his carnation and sweet pea growers, whose crops are increasing. His rose men are also cutting very well.

The S. S. Pennoek Co. has put a new panel body delivery car on the street. "Say It with Flowers" is prominent on both side panels.

Jack Berger, of Berger Bros., is still at home sick, but on the mend. Easter lilies, snapdragons and carnations are quantity stocks. K.

DEMAND CONTINUES LIGHT.

Business, compared with what it should be at this season, was light during the past week. The weather was mild, with rain in the early days, but a cold wave arrived on the evening of January 9, and before morning, the temperature dropped to eight degrees above zero. The supply of roses has not increased, and though there is activity in the shorter grades, the special teas move slowly. Special American Beauties keep around $1 each, wholesale rates. Carnations are more plentiful, and the price has dropped, good stock now wholesaling at $8 per 100. There have been sales of the best lilies at $25 per 100 flowers, but the buyers are shy at that price. Cattleyas continue plentiful. A few of the best bring $75 per 100, but many more go at $40 to $60. Sweet peas are more plentiful, and while long stems bring good prices, the shorter grades are likely to be cheaper at an early date. Shipments of lily of the valley pips have recently arrived at this port, and the scarcity has been relieved. There is an unfortunate tendency—unfortunate for the trade in natural flowers—among the great middle class, to buy artificial stock. Like nearly every other question, there are two sides to this one. Some of the friends of natural flowers say that many of the retailers are slack in pushing the natural stock. The retailers retort that prices, particularly on roses, are beyond the reach of people of ordinary means; that they sell artificial stock in preference to selling nothing. The prophets and apostles of publicity should take this matter under consideration. A few tulips are on the market, but are short. The supply of Paper White and yellow narcissi is on the increase.

January 13.—The retailers must necessarily stock up on a Monday morning, but there is no unusual movement; in fact, business is rather quiet, though roses in particular maintain good figures. Carnations will be cheaper from now on. There is plenty of green, and smilax has taken quite a drop from Christmas prices.

NOTES.

The Park Garden Club of Flushing, a part of this city, is composed entirely of women. Mrs. John W. Paris was its organizer, and has ever since been its president. The object of the club is stated to be to help those who love gardens to make them more beautiful. Flower shows are held twice a year, spring and fall. The club has arranged the following program for the winter: January 20, Mrs. James Nash Webb, hostess, Mrs. Isaac W. Smith will talk on "Pruning of Roses, Flowers, Shrubs and Trees;" February 3, at the home of Mrs. C. S. Laney, Mrs. A. S. McLoughlin will talk on "Planting and Culture of Asparagus;" February 17, Mrs. Edward A. MacDougall, hostess, Mrs. Ellis Parker Butler will talk on "Preservation of Our Native Wild Flowers and Ferns;" March 3, at the home of Mrs. A. S. McLoughlin, Miss Maude M. Wilson will talk on "The Value of Small Fruits in the War Garden;" Mrs. Clarence M. Lowes will talk on "Culture and Growing of Mushrooms" at the home of Mrs. William T. Yale; April 7, Mrs. C. G. Hambridge will be the hostess when there will be a discussion of planting problems; April 14, Miss Susan Homans will talk on "The Rose and Spring Flower Market," at the home of Mrs. Fred T. Hepburn; May 5, at the home of Mrs. C. A. Nesmith, Mrs. Harold A. Vivian will talk on "Some Interesting Gardens on Long Island;" May 19, Daniel Carter Beard will talk on the "Relation of Birds and Insects to Plant Life," at the home of Mrs. John W. Paris.

The dinner given by President Philip F. Kessler, of the New York Florists' Club, on the night of January 11, to the ex-presidents and officers of the club and representatives of the press, was a most enjoyable affair. After ample justice had been done to the choice viands, the host surrendered his seat at the head of the table to Patrick O'Mara, who acted as toastmaster. The toastmaster's well-known eloquence and versatility added much to the pleasure of the occasion. Everyone had something to say, and the company voted and sang the new president a jolly good fellow. President Kessler sprung a surprise by having placed at each plate a handsome souvenir of the occasion. The ex-presidents were represented by Alex. S. Burns, Patrick O'Mara, Walter F. Sheridan, Frank H. Traendly, Charles H. Totty, Charles B. Weathered, A. L. Miller, John B. Nugent, Joseph A. Manda, Wm. H. Siebrecht, Sr., Wm. H. Duckham, Henry Weston, G. E. M. Stumpp, Charles Schenck, retiring president, and P. W. Popp, vice-president; John Young, secretary, and Wm. C. Rickards, Jr., treasurer. The press was represented by A. T. De La Mare, A. F. Faulkner and J. H. Pepper. Many good wishes will follow President Kessler through his term of office. W. A. Manda, an ex-president, was unavoidably absent.

Brooklyn to the front! In the past, some people have broadly intimated that Brooklyn was a little slow. But if any city in these United States can produce a fur coat worth $75,000, let it now speak or forever after hold its peace. But perish the thought of such a coat being worn in Brooklyn! That city is too democratic to wear such a coat, but Brooklyn is "in trade," and will make a fur coat for any one that has the ducats to pay for it. The coat is being made for Mrs. W. E. Corey, wife of the "steel king." It will be worn in Paris—probably at the celebration attending the formation of a "League of Nations," after which kings, republicans, democrats, socialists, Sinn Feiners and Bolsheviks are all expected to behave and treat each other like gentlemen. Since fur coats are going so high, we see no reason for a kick on a slight advance in the price of flowers.

A very noteworthy decoration was noticed in the Church of the Sacred Heart, in West Fifty-first street, on Sunday morning, January 12. Mgr. Mooney, the pastor, and two of his assistants, Father Harry Meyer and Father Francis Corcoran, had previously arranged an elaborate decoration for the Feast of the Epiphany. The altar, a large one, was banked with pink roses and the shrine of the Sacred Heart was beautiful with a mass of red roses.

William H. Kuebler, of Brooklyn, says that some of the florists of that borough should give more encouragement to the public to buy natural flowers, roses in particular, instead of pushing artificial stock, as they are now doing.

J. A. Peterson, the noted plantsman of Westwood, Cincinnati, O., called on Traendly & Schenk, January 9. In his visit to this city, he is accompanied by Mrs. Peterson, who is president of the Ladies' Society of American Florists.

Friends in this city of Edward Sceery, the Paterson and Passaic, N. J., florist, are well pleased over his reelection as president of the park commission of Paterson. He is a good business man, and a good friend.

George C. Siebrecht, 100 West 28th street, has been handling fine cut stock of Acacia pubescens and other varieties.

At the store of James Weir, Inc., Fulton and Pierrepont streets, they are kept busy with funeral work.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolziano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June, 1919.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF.—Lieut. and Mrs. Peter Henderson, New York, are here on a visit.

J. C. VAUGHAN, Chicago, was re-elected director of the Bowmanville National Bank, January 14.

LILY OF THE VALLEY pips arriving on the S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam last week are reported considerably sprouted.

JAPANESE labor in the California seed growing districts will be as high this year as during 1918, if not higher.

L. W. WHEELER, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif., was in Omaha, Neb., January 12, bound east.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; Raymond Shumway, Rockford, Ill.

J. C. BODGER, of the John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif., expects to reach Chicago this week on his eastern trip.

CALIFORNIA seed growers have experienced two weeks of frost. The first plantings of radish have been killed and replanting is in progress.

THE British embargo against the importation of Japanese lily bulbs was raised December 17, to the extent of permitting entry of 10,000 cases.

GRASS SEED.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade January 15 were as follows: Timothy, $8.00 to $10.25 per 100 pounds, a drop of 25 cents in the high price of last week.

W. W. JOHNSON & SON, Ltd., well known seed growers of Boston, Eng., have placed at the disposal of the Belgian government £1,000 worth of seeds for distribution amongst the Belgian farmers and gardeners.

TOLEDO, O.—Clover closed 20 cents lower January 13, at $25.25, a gain of 10 cents during the week. April timothy was 2½ cents lower. Cash was offered at $4.90, January $4.90, February $4.95, March $5.10, April 5.10, and September $5.70.

SEED PURCHASES.—Buying at an early date of garden and truck crop seeds for next spring is urged by the department of agriculture. Seed will not in any probability be cheaper at that time and there is nothing to be gained by waiting.—B. F. L.

ARSENIC LICENSES.—A proclamation has been issued by the president, removing the necessity of all persons engaged in the importation, manufacture, storage and distribution of white arsenic or insecticides containing arsenic of securing licenses.—E. F. L.

THE department of agriculture has under consideration the promulgation of an amendment to the regulations under the proposed plant quarantine which will permit the importation of lily bulbs from Japan when packed in soil which has been sterilized by heat.

British Seed Trade Boycott Enemy.

At the annual meeting of the Agricultural Seed Trade Association of the United Kingdom it was decided not to trade with the Germans for five years. Attention was also called to the possibility of growing in that country, grasses previously imported and the question of seed testing was discussed in connection with the decision of the board of agriculture to establish a national institute of agricultural botany at Cambridge. Members of the trade, through the association, contributed £15,596 to the institute and two of its members were elected on the council.

Seed Experts Sent to Europe.

Interest is now being centered on the possible export policy of the United States with respect to various kinds of seed. The department of agriculture has sent two of its experts to Europe to gather information and statistics concerning clover, grass and vegetable seed stocks, and to ascertain the requirements of the various countries who were our allies in the late war, as well as the needs of the neutral European nations.

The department points out that the supplies of several kinds of seeds in this country must be carefully conserved to maintain crop production. Dr. A. J. Pieters, of the bureau of plant industry, and W. A. Wheeler, of the bureau of markets are to visit Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Holland and Denmark.

The government may find it necessary to take chances on incurring a shortage in this country to meet pressing needs of the nations with whom we fought. On January 4, the war trade board removed from the export conservation list, garden, Mammoth clover, pea, sugar beet and vegetable seeds. These allied nations will look to the United States for seeds with which to renew their horticultural activities, and, with a shortage in this country, some action will be necessary to see to it that the seeds get to those countries, friendly to us, where the need is greatest.

B. F. L.

Washington Rulings and Regulations.

All vegetable and field seeds, except red clover, have been removed from the export conservation list by the war trade board, and shipments may now be made to England, France, Italy, Japan and their colonies, Belgium and the Belgian Congo. Exports to these countries will require no individual licenses, which, however, must still be procured before exports can be made to other countries. Exports of seed must be made solely for seed purposes and not for food, and statements that such is the case must be made on export declarations. All grass seeds and garden seeds, such as peas and beans are included, as well as all grain seed such as wheat, barley, rye and oats. Red clover is excepted because of the serious shortage of that seed in the United States.

The United States shipping board has announced that it is now prepared to give its freight rates for all overseas traffic, both outward and inward bound, and also through rates from foreign countries via ports of the United States. The following telegram has been sent to the assistant directors of operation at New York, New Orleans and San Francisco:

"To avoid any chance of misunderstanding or absence of advice to parties interested, please give widespread notice through commercial associations, that the division of operations is prepared to name freight rates for all overseas trade, both outward and homeward; also, through rates from foreign markets via the United States or direct to all world markets in cargo or parcel lots. This division will also make forward quotations

Big Seed Company is Distributing New Catalog.

AGGELER & MUSSER SEED COMPANY OF LOS ANGELES ISSUE 26TH ANNUAL BOOK.

The Aggeler & Musser Seed Company, the large Seed House of Western America, is distributing broadcast its 1919 Big Annual, which is claimed to be the most complete and finest yet issued.

Among the many new features incorporated is a department on "More and Better Potatoes." Important data are given on Home, School, Field and Demonstration Garden Work. Data concerning correct tools and implements to use for best results. Marketing notes on each subject, telling how and where to market. Hints on poultry, spraying, fertilizing and the use of insecticides. It is in reality several books in one, for it includes the important "Garden Manual." 1000 questions are answered and valuable information on all varieties of plants is given.

The Aggeler & Musser Seed Company has opened a large store right in the center of the shopping district, 620 South Spring street, Los Angeles, Calif., a great convenience to rural customers. A special Call Department has been installed to accommodate customers in town for a short time on business. Orders left on arriving are ready when called for. The big Mail Order Department and General Offices are all situated at the new store, while the general milling, cleaning and warehousing will continue at the big warehouse, Sixth and Alameda streets. The new catalog explains fully all the new departments and why our service has been improved 100 per cent. Sent free, postpaid, anywhere. Write for copy at once.—Adv't.

over the entire year, when circumstances warrant, all with the purpose of giving every aid and facility to American commerce and industry consistent with national interests."

Frost Damage in California Uncertain.

The cold wave resulting in heavy frosts in parts of California may cause damage to fruit crops. At Riverside, producers representing 90 per cent of the citrus crop have signed an agreement to pick no fruit for two weeks, the object being to protect the market against frozen oranges. Just what damage has been done to freesla and calla bulbs has not been determined.

Imports on S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam.

The Holland-America steamer Nieuw Amsterdam, which reached New York from Brest, January 5, and began to unload cargo the following morning, brought considerable horticultural stock, including rhododendrons, spiraeas, boxwood, roses, lily of the valley pips, bulbs, etc. Quite a number of cases are in bond for Chicago importers and various New York brokers, florists and seedsmen had shipments on board, among the growers being W. H. Siebrecht, of Astoria, and Anton Schultheis of College Point, N. Y. There were also consignments for Spielman & Son, Hoboken. Others in the list of consignees included:

F. Rynveld's Sons, 65 bags vegetable seeds.

F. B. Vandergrift & Co., 30 cases plants.

P. Ouwerkerk, 142 cases shrubs and plants.

McHutchison & Co., 8 cases roses, 111 cases trees and shrubs.

Van Waveren & Sons, 597 cases roots, 179 cases bulbs.

Zonneveld Bros. & Phillips, 35 cases bulbs, five cases roots.

Dreer's Reliable Flower Seeds

New crops of most of the important items are now ready and the balance are expected shortly. Do not delay ordering your supply of the kinds that should be sown early, such as Ageratum, Alyssum, Antirrhinum, Centaurea, Cobaea, Dracaena, Heliotrope, Moonflower, Lantana, Lobelia, Maurandia, Petunia, Pyrethrum, Salvia, Thunbergia, Verbena, Vinca, Etc.

We call the special attention of Florists to the following:

NEW SCARLET SAGE

"America" or "Globe of Fire"

This is without doubt the finest Scarlet Sage ever sent out. It is the earliest to come into bloom, and flowers continuously till the end of the season, and what is equally as important, it is absolutely uniform in growth, about 16 inches high, with the brilliant scarlet spikes thrown well above the plant making a total height of about 2 feet. The seed we offer is our own saving. 50c per trade pkt.; $1.00 per oz.

Dreer's Superb Large Flowering Fringed Petunias

Our own unrivaled strain, and too well known to require description, we offer

Double-flowering fringed, 75c per 500 seeds; $1.50 per 1000 seeds.
Single-flowering fringed, 50c per trade pkt.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky.,
Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids,

BULLETIN No. 281, issued by the Ohio agricultural experiment station, Wooster, gives the results of soil experiments with tomatoes, cucumbers and lettuce.

RAINS have been of wonderful benefit to winter truck in South Texas. If cars can be obtained, the shipments of produce to market during the next few weeks will be the heaviest for several years.

THE California agricultural experiment station, Berkeley, has issued Bulletin No. 303, entitled "Grape Syrup," a product that would save about 250,000 tons of wine and table grapes that cannot be used in the usual way next season.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables

Chicago, January 14.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $3.50 to $5.00; celery, crate, $1.75 to $2.00; head lettuce, crate, $4.50 to $5.00; radishes, per dozen bunches, 50 to 60 cents; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $3.00 to $5.00.

New York, January 13.—Celery (state), per bunch, 50 cents to $1.00; cucumbers, 75 cents to $2.00 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $2.00 per basket; tomatoes, per pound, 12 to 30 cents; lettuce, per package, $2.50 to $4.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $5.00.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports received by the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, for the period January 7-14, indicate prices generally higher with increase in volume of shipments as compared with the previous week. Potato prices showed an advance of from 10 to 30 cents in consuming markets, but weakened at the end of the period owing to accumulated supplies at some points. Carlots of New York, Michigan and Wisconsin whites advanced 25 cents, reaching $2-$2.25 per 100 pounds at Chicago, but weakened to $2-$2.10. Other carlot markets made similar gains. Eastern and western sacked yellow onions advanced 20 to 50 cents, reaching an equivalent range of $1.75-$2.25 in consuming markets. New York yellow and red stock reached $1.50-$1.55 at shipping points in producing sections, closing strong. In cabbage, New York Danish Seed advanced $3 in shipping sections, closing at $25-$30 per ton bulk. Holland Seed stock sold at $28-$32 f. o. b. and reached a top of $40 at Chicago, but closed the week at $35. Golden Heart celery continued to advance, reaching $1-$1.15 in northern producing sections and 75-90 cents in the south. Prices in consuming markets also averaged higher, ranging $8.50-$13.75 per crate, but showed a weaker tone at the close. New York Golden Heart advanced about $1 in consuming markets, reaching $6-$12.

Adaptation of Vegetables.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society's winter course of lectures opened January 11 at Horticultural hall, Boston, with an address on "Varietal Adaptation of Culinary Vegetables to Local Conditions" by Dr. W. W. Tracy, superintendent of the testing gardens of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Dr. Tracy said in part:

"My study and work for over 50 years have been devoted to seed breeding and growing, and I have carefully examined and watched the growth of thousands of samples of varieties of vegetables and flowers grown from the same original stock, but under different climatic and soil conditions, and selected by different people. I have inspected hundreds of crops grown from seed in different locations from Maine to California and thus have had abundant opportunity to notice differences in strains grown in this country or Europe from the same original stock but under different conditions of soil and climate, which had resulted in the development, without crossing or even careful selection, but simply as the result of differing soil and climatic conditions of very distinct strains, each adapted to certain cultural conditions or consumers' requirements and often as well worthy of being distinguished by distinct varietal name as those already found in seedsmen's catalogues.

Dr. W. W. Tracy.

Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

"Through this experience, it has become the conviction of my later years, that every individual seed carries the same sort of potentiality and limitation of development as an egg or a new born rabbit. When we hatch the hen's egg under a duck though the chick will not take to the water though the duck and the rest of the brood do so and leave it alone on the shore. Nor can we by putting a still blind young rabbit to nurse with a litter of pups, teach it to bark.

SEEDS FIXED IN CHARACTER.

Every seed is made up of a certain balanced sum of ancestral influences and fixed in character beyond the possibility of change by growth conditions before it left the parent plant. There are often distinct differences in the varietal character of seeds from individual plants of the same breeding as well as in the yield of seeds in different locations. Although the varietal character of every seed is fixed at its maturity, it is sometimes modified by climatic and other conditions while developing, and in some cases such modifications are transmitted to succeeding generations, so it is sometimes the case that local-grown seed will give a different return from that matured under other conditions, and not infrequently seed grown in one's own garden will give better returns than that grown elsewhere.

"The social conditions and ways of modern life have changed the general aims and practice of seed growing. Formerly the housewife looked each morning to her garden or called upon some nearby market gardener for her day's supply of vegetables, and table quality was of greater importance than appearance. Now, the cook orders what she may need from the gardener, or the market, and low cost and appearance are of the greatest importance. Then, the greatest interest was taken in the saving of seed from the best plants and the development or possession of a superior strain was a matter of family pride. Many of the best strains had been in the possession of certain families for many years. Now, both home and market gardeners look to the seedsmen for their supply and yield and shipping quality, and last, but by no means least, the price at which it is offered, determines the stock used.

SELECTION AND BREEDING.

"Different species and varieties, and even individuals, of both animals and plants, differ greatly in the extent to which variety of form or habit of growth occurs naturally or can be secured by cultivation and breeding. Selection and breeding have given us less than a dozen but slightly different varieties of parsnip compared with scores of distinct sorts of carrots and beets, differing in size, form, color and adaptation to certain uses.

"Although the varietal character of a seed is fixed at maturity, its development may, in some cases be modified by the climatic and other conditions in which it was matured, and it is often possible to secure local-grown strains of seed which will give better returns when planted in that vicinity than can be secured from stock equally well grown elsewhere. I think the greatest possible betterment in vegetable growing is through its greater varietal uniformity and adaptation to local conditions. I have been impressed with the uniformity of varietal character seen in some of the houses of lettuce in this vicinity, and have been told that they were from home grown and selected stock seed, and I believe that was the most important feature of their success.

POOR SEEDERS DISAPPEAR FROM USE.

"Again, I think I can say, without exaggeration, that in the aggregate, though varying somewhat in different vegetables, fully 10 per cent of the very best and most useful varieties I have ever known have never come into general use, or have disappeared and are no longer obtainable because, though heavy producers of market products or of superior quality, they were such poor seeders that seed could not be profitably handled by the seedsmen at the prices paid for most sorts. We think that the demand of gardeners for uniform prices for standard varieties, with cut rates in years of over-production, is one of the most unfortunate conditions in the trade, and we hope that the high prices asked and paid last year for some species may lead to a change in this respect.

HOW TO SAVE SEED.

"The home-growing and saving of seed of garden vegetables is quite practical and by no means as difficult as is commonly supposed. The principal requisite is a wise choice of superlative plants and the thorough curing of the seed before storing. The way to accomplish this varies in different species. With peas and beans, selected plants should remain in place as long as possible without serious loss from shattering, then, while still damp from dew, should be gathered and stored where there is good circulation of air until the seed is perfectly dry, when it may be thrashed out and stored in muslin bags.

"In saving seed of sweet corn, as early as the probable character of the grain can be determined, strip down the husks on one side sufficiently to enable you to make a selection; turn back the husks and hold them in place by a rubber band. Mark the selected ears by covering them with a paper bag, which will also save them from the sparrows. Allow the plants to stand in place until there is danger of a killing frost, then cut the stalks, store under shelter until thoroughly dry and save either on the ear or shelled, in paper bags.

"In saving seed of tomato, pepper, eggplant, cucumber, melon and squash, selected fruits should be left on the vine without their becoming so soft as to be disagreeable to handle, or being exposed to even a light frost. Then opened, the seed scraped out with as little of the pulp as possible and allowed to sour and ferment from one to four days, when the seed should be washed, using plenty of water and repeatedly pouring it off until seed is perfectly clean, when it should be spread out not over two grains deep until perfectly dry, when it may be stored in muslin bags and kept in an airy place.

"Selected plants of lettuce should be allowed to stand in place until there is danger of serious loss from shattering, then each plant covered with a large inverted paper bag, the lower end tied

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Aton, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-four annual convention will be held at Chicago in 1919.

A. H. HILL, of the D. Hill Nursery Co., Dundee, Ill., is scheduled to deliver an address on the "Culture of Conifers" before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at Boston, January 18.

National Association of Gardeners.

CONFERENCE AT PITTSBURGH.

A gardeners' conference will be held under the auspices of the Pittsburgh district members of the National Association of Gardeners at the Hotel Chatham, Pittsburgh, Pa., Thursday evening, January 30. Following a reception from 6 p. m. to 6:30 p. m., David Fraser, a director of the national association, will introduce the speakers of the evening, who will include Robert Weeks, of Cleveland, O., president of the association; M. C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., secretary; William Falconer and Neil McCallum of Pittsburgh. A general discussion of the problems confronting the gardener and his profession will follow the speakers. Gardeners and all interested in the profession of gardening will be welcomed.

A supper will be served at the conclusion of the business session. David Fraser, of Pittsburgh, is chairman, and John Barnet, of Sewickley, Pa., is secretary of the conference committee.

An executive meeting of the trustees and board of directors of the association has been called by President Weeks to meet at the Hotel Chatham, Pittsburgh, at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of January 30. A special invitation is extended by the gardeners of Pittsburgh and vicinity to the officials attending the executive session to attend the conference.

Viburnums.

The viburnums, of which the old-fashioned garden snowball and the black-haw of the roadside are the two best known examples, number in all somewhat over 100 species growing in North America, Europe, Asia and northern Africa, according to W. E. Bontrager in the Monthly Bulletin of the Ohio agricultural experiment station. Like many other good things, the value of viburnums in lawn plantings has never been properly recognized. Even in the better planned parks and cemeteries in the state they are noticeably scarce. Most shrubs display their full ornamental and landscape value only when the outline of the individual plant is merged in the mass, and this is especially true of viburnums.

Few shrubs yield richer results in the group than such species of viburnum as lantana, dentatum, prunifolium, cassinoides, acerifolium, and tomentosum (the Japanese snowball). The last named has blooms almost identical with the common snowball and is one of the most strikingly handsome flowering shrubs in cultivation, somewhat difficult to transplant, but after becoming established is long-lived and thoroughly satisfactory. V. lantana, which is called the wayfaring tree in Europe, is a rather large shrub which grows better in this country than most trees and shrubs from Europe. Viburnum lentago, the sheep berry, is an exceedingly fruitful species whose black berries when thoroughly ripened after frost are considered quite palatable by some. V. prunifolium, better known as the black-haw, is a choice native bush that ought always to be used in naturalistic, semiwild plantings. It is a first-class companion plant for the

Plant Imports Danger.

Unless the plant growers and nurserymen of the United States take prompt and vigorous action, it is likely that all imports of palms, azaleas, roses, rhododendrons, box and bay trees, etc., also general nursery stock, from Europe will be shut out under the proposed plan of the federal horticultural board unless the present programme of that body is changed.

What To Do.

Every florist, nurseryman and seedsman should at once telegraph protests to his representatives in Congress, both Senate and House of Representatives, also to Dr. C. L. Marlatt, Chairman Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D. C.

Do It Today.

flowering dogwood and the red bud. V. cassinoides, the withe-rod, which the northern states, bears showy pink berries and glossy green leathery leaves that take on a fine autumn coloring. The maple-leaved variety, V. acerifolium, is a low shrub which has its home in low, moist lands of a unique value on account of its shade resisting properties, and hence is one of the best to use as an underplanting. V. tomentosum is the fertile form of the Japan snowball (V. plicatum) and while valuable for grouping with the Japan snowball is less showy in flower. All these viburnums, including the very largest ones, may be restricted to a height of six to eight feet by a light, occasional pruning.

Rochester, N. Y.

SLOW DEMAND FOLLOWS HOLIDAYS.

Following the holiday rush, business has taken on a rather dull tone, although funeral orders have been fairly numerous. Cut flowers are very scarce with roses higher in price than they have been for many years. The carnation supply is also limited and the quality is poor but they bring good returns. Narcissus, freesias and violets are among the plentiful offerings. A few single daffodils have begun to arrive. Pot tulips and hyacinths have made their appearance during the week. There is a strong demand for flowering plants, but there is a meager supply.

NOTES.

George T. Boucher had an unusual window display representing a prairie scene, with the typical horse-drawn "schooner" and a herd of miniature buffalo. Mrs. Alma Keyes is now a member of the store force.

Charles Hoyt has returned from training camp and Mrs. Hoyt has resigned her position with J. B. Keller Sons. The newlyweds have gone to housekeeping.

Thomas J. Sullivan has returned from Montrose, Scotland, where he has been serving with the United States air forces, and is now with Geo. B. Hart.

The Rosery Flower Shop did a big holiday business. Pussy willows grown at Oswego were featured during the week.

Wallace Eiss, of the Wm. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y., was a visitor, January 9. CHESTER.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.—With prices showing a slight increase over those asked last year, the 1918 Christmas demand gained from 15 to 20 per cent in volume of sales. Cut flowers were in limited supply, no bulbous stock offered, and the quality generally was better than in former years. Calendulas enjoyed a heavy demand. Plants showed fine quality, but the call did not go over the average, according to the Pikes Peak Floral Co.

THREE MONTHS OF UNUSUAL ACTIVITY.

Business in this city during the past three months showed an increase of from 25 to 50 per cent compared with the corresponding period of the preceding year, deaths resulting from the influenza epidemic being an important factor, with good trade at Thanksgiving and remarkable activity at Christmas, purchases being made freely at prices asked. Consequently it will take three weeks or a month for production to become normal. During the holiday rush all stocks cleaned up at prices never before heard of and some of the trade are pessimistic as to whether the figures during the past three months can be maintained for any length of time. Florists have long feared to raise the price of their product, regardless of the fact that cost of operation, etc., has doubled, but the few pioneers who took action found that the public paid the advance cheerfully. During the Christmas period, carnations sold at $3 per dozen, while in former years they were offered at $1.50 and $2. This year American Beauties ranged from $24 to $36 per dozen.

STATE FLORISTS' MEETING IN DOUBT.

Whether the state florists' association will hold a meeting this winter, as previously arranged, seems to be at present somewhat in doubt, due to the influenza epidemic, which has a tendency to discourage large gatherings. Local florists are now seeking information of C. H. Frey of Lincoln, president of the association, as to whether the organization will convene in January as usual.

A. E. L.

Waco, Tex.

T. J. Wolfe, the well-known florist of this city, reports that conditions for the trade throughout the state look very promising. The most beneficial rains have fallen since 1913, and if one good crop results, everything will be satisfactory. Due to the drought last season, chrysanthemums were not up to standard, but prices on what were produced more than surpassed those of previous years and florists of the state should feel grateful for the business they have had. The influenza epidemic, while to be deplored, brought a lively demand.

Among the recent deaths in this city, none is more regretted than that of W. W. Seley, a prominent banker and an honorary life member of the state florists' association, extended mention of which is made in our obituary column this week.

SEEDS FOR SPRING PLANTING.

Plan Now for Season's Needs.

The seedsmen's advertisements in the pages of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, offering the numerous varieties of flower seeds, reminds us that now is the time to get busy with the sowing of the seed of such plants as are needed for spring planting. There ought not to be any further delay in attending to this work, because a very considerable number of the plants raised from seed for bedding purposes are slow of growth after germination, needing all the time from now until early in May to grow into salable stock ready for planting out. This refers particularly to plants that are wanted to be nicely in bloom when offered for sale. There is still plenty of time before it will be necessary to attend to the sowing of asters, antirrhinums and other stock needed for planting out for summer flowering.

There is no part of the gardener's work that requires to be done with greater pains than that of sowing seed and its care afterwards. Carelessness in the work of sowing and after attention is more often the cause of failure than that of poor seed. Many of the flower seeds are so small that they should not be covered deeply with soil, the only covering needed being just enough finely sifted soil so that the seed is barely covered and cannot be dislodged or scattered about when the boxes have to be watered. This means that they must be watched very closely to prevent any withering up of the seed germ from dryness just as it is starting into action. Other seeds are hard of shell, needing considerable moisture to soften up the bark to enable the life germ to start into growth. The question of temperature also enters largely into the success or failure of raising flowers. Some varieties need a high temperature to germinate, while others germinate readily in one more moderate.

Shallow boxes or pans are best suited for this purpose. The regular seed pans two inches deep are best to use for small quantities of choice small seeds, but for larger lots it is best to use boxes of the same depth, but not too large. Two medium sized flats are better than one extra large one; they can be handled easier, and when set on shelves do not shade the growing plants underneath. For quick action with seeds that need bottom heat to start them a good plan is to fit up a part of the greenhouse bench into sections, so that they can have the necessary heat for their germination.

Drainage and Soil.

It is very important that every box or pan used for seed raising be provided with proper drainage so that the water can pass freely through the soil and not settle to sour it or cause a scum to form on the surface. First, be sure the receptacles are fitted with ample vent holes in the bottom, then place some broken pot shreds or coarse gravel over the holes, and on top of these a thin layer of coarse, fibrous compost. There will then be no danger of anything going wrong with the seed pan from poor drainage.

The best soil for seed raising is a light, open, garden loam, with a liberal amount of clean sand added to it, so as to keep it porous. Avoid using, as much as possible, any soil that contains any great amount of decayed vegetable matter. In preparing the boxes or pans, after the drainage and coarse material has been placed over the bottom, sift the soil through a fine sieve, then fill the boxes up to within one-half inch from the top. Press firmly and evenly, water thoroughly and allow them to stand an hour or two before sowing the seed. Sow thinly, it being far better to use an extra box or two than to sow thickly, the young seedlings being very apt to dampen when they come up in a thick mass. The covering of the seed is a point where so many fall down. The seed should not be covered any deeper than their own size so far as is possible. Press the covering down firmly, but do not pound. Water carefully at time of sowing, and watch the boxes closely each day to see that they do not get too dry, and on the other hand, do not allow them to become saturated.

Varieties to Sow Now.

A large number of the flowering begonias are used for bedding purposes, especially the gracilis, luminosa and the semperflorens varieties. The seed should be sown now. They are slow to germinate and very slow to get into growth afterwards. They need a bottom heat of 65 to 70 degrees. Our plan with these seed is to sow them in a bench where they get the necessary heat, then as they come up, pot them into two-inch pots, treating them to the same temperature as the seed bed until they have made reasonable growth, when they are transferred to a slightly lower temperature.

Vinca rosea is another plant that is slow to get started from seed. Treated the same as the begonias, they can be grown into nice plants for planting out late in May.

Centaurea, or Dusty Miller also needs all the time from now until May to grow into plants large enough for bedding. Treat the seed the same as advised for begonias.

For Memorial day and summer flowering, pansies sown now are better than the fall sown plants. The best place for the seed is on a shelf in a temperature of 56 degrees. Transplant the seedlings as soon as large enough to handle, and give them plenty of light and air.

If pot plants of verbenas in flower are wanted for sale in May, the seed must be sown now, transplanted into flats, then when large enough, about April 1, potted into two and one-half inch pots. The same quarters as advised for pansies will do for verbenas.

Carnations, marguerites, lobelias, antirrhinums, ageratum, alyssum, celosias, salvias, stocks and all other plants of this character, wanted to be worked up into pots for sale in May, should be sown now and pushed along as they attain growth. Give plenty of air at all times and do not let them suffer from dryness or overwatering.

Seeds of the foregoing or any of the annuals to be grown for sale from flats as seedlings, can be sown about March 1 at the same time as the asters and other stock for outside cutting, but it is none too early to get all the seed needed so that it will be on hand when ready for sowing.

C. W. JOHNSON.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—This city had a good supply of cut flowers for the Christmas trade. The quality was very good and commanded prices 30 to 40 per cent higher than last year. There was little call for the limited quantity of bulbous stock offered. Large blooming plants were in favor, and sales were good for cyclamens, poinsettias, begonias and ferns. Everything considered, business was very good, according to the Miller Floral Co.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

Now that prices are easing up a trifle, one can stock up and take a chance on a better assortment. What a siege the past month has been; conditions were unprecedented, as nothing approaching such a scarcity of flowers has ever been experienced before. The situation has, however, had its advantages. Methods of careful buying, with an economical handling of stock that was not before thought possible, together with unheard-of prices received for flowers, which were more or Anders Rasmussen, New Albany, Ind.

President-Elect State Florists' Association

less cheerfully paid, opened up the possibilities of the business that brings hope of seeing it placed on a higher plane. In spite of the difficulty of keeping up the stock and greatly increased values, the volume of trade has diminished but little, if any, and in some sections there has been a marked increase. Every measure should be taken to maintain a good portion of this gain in prices, which will encourage every branch of the trade to do business better.

Sweet peas are now coming strong and will soon be at their best. Feature them in small vase baskets or low bowls where they will show to the best advantage. Do not crowd too many together; it bruises the petals, and there is no beauty in a solid mass. They are ideal for a luncheon decoration, work up nicely in sprays, and are one of the best flowers for the corsage.

Calendulas are now in good supply. The best grades of Orange King and Orange Queen are good stock to carry. Fine table decorations and basket effects can be made with these flowers. Orange snapdragons and mignonette work in nicely with the calendulas.

Primula malacoides, with its profusion of lovely pink spikes or whorls of blossoms, is one of the best of the season's pot plants. Cyclamens are also very showy at this time. The addition of a mat cover, with its frayed edges, of a size to fit small or large pots or pans, or a covering of two-toned paper, finishes a plant and gives it a selling value that it would never have in the bare pot. All flowering plants offered in the store should be featured in some such manner.

Always have in stock a well made bronze or green galax wreath or two, also a few bronze magnolia and autumn leaf wreaths, which are then ready at a moment's notice for decorating when there is a funeral call for something in a hurry.

Just a word on the quiet. A number of the wise ones are already inquiring about Easter stock. Indications are that there will be a great scarcity of almost everything except hydrangeas, and the largest wholesale growers, who sell this stock to be forced, are entirely cleaned out. Bulb stock, which is always such a feature of the Easter assortment, will be very scarce. Easter lilies are being eagerly asked for, and when possible, the order given at the future market price.

The use of ornamental foliage in connection with cut flowers, such as cut sprays of crotons, fancy dwarf ferns of the pteris type and adiantums which, with soil washed off and roots wrapped in moss, can be worked into wreaths and baskets, is fast coming into vogue. Small plants of Pandanus Veitchii, from three to four-inch pots, are also useful. The above material will supplement the meager supply of cut flowers and make very artistic work.

It is none too soon to look up last year's left-over stock of Valentine accessories and rack your brains for something new in this line. While one of the minor flower holidays, it is quite important and always a busy time for those that feature and prepare for it.

Good window pieces are small plant baskets and hampers filled with a variety of foliage, and Primula malacoides, or cyclamens from four-inch pots. These, while not large, can be quite artistic, and will last much longer than cut flowers. They are sure to attract attention and will be found quite salable.

Push the Florists' Telegraph Delivery idea. It will be productive of much good business. The orders you originate in your store to be filled by florists in other cities, are your best card. These increase your trade at home, as well carried out orders of this kind induce other business.

Stumpp's Telegraph Delivery Experience.

G. E. M. Stumpp, prominent New York retailer, says "the Florists' Telegraph Delivery is in its infancy, and there are today chances of making fortunes through the machinery that has been set in motion and kept going largely through the efforts of that livest of wires, Albert Pochelon, Detroit, Mich., secretary of the organization." Mr. Stumpp tells of an advertisement placed by him in the European Herald of Paris and arrangements made with the American Express Company and the Y. M. C. A., making it possible for our soldiers overseas to simply write the card and address, deposit the amount of money they wished to spend, and the flowers were delivered to mother, sweetheart or friend anywhere in the United States or Canada. As it was impossible to send anything else from Europe at that time, the amount of business that came through this channel was beyond all expectations. The national publicity campaign in magazines in which the slogan, "Say Being first in this big, new European war field, Mr. Stump naturally secured the cream of the business.

Concordia Greenhouses.

One of the show places of Concordia, Kan., and one of the most modern establishments of its kind in that part of the country is that of the Concordia Greenhouses. During the past season a new office building was erected at a cost of $5,000, the interior containing office, salesroom and workshop on the first floor while above is commodious space for the display of baskets, wreaths, etc., and a room than can be used for sleeping quarters. The basement has a storage room for coal in addition to the space occupied by two large boilers. The store interior is faced six feet with rough art brick, the balance plaster which is colored old ivory, making an attractive setting for the floral arrangements. All stock at the range is looking especially fine at present.

PETERSBURG, VA.—While prices were better than in 1917, according to W. S. Young, the volume of Christmas trade was about equal to that of a year ago. The supply of cut flowers was limited, the quality was not as good as in former years and no bulbous flowers were available. Everything in pot plants cleaned up.

Cypripedium Insigne.

While cypripediums, particularly insigne, are not considered very high grade in the orchid family, they are orchids and have a value, and exclusive color shades, which together with their lasting qualities, make them valuable as a cut flower.

One of the largest commercial collections of the insigne is grown by John Burton, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, who has several thousand plants, many of them of such size as to fill 12-inch azalea pots. A large crop has been taken from these for the holidays, but not as many as in the past few years, as, for some reason, the plants, although appearing healthy, did not carry more than 15 to 18 flowers, while 25 to 30 have often been counted; and some have borne as high as 40. The accompanying illustration, taken December 17, is of one of the houses filled with cypripediums, from which over half the flowers have been sold.

The natural flowering period of the cypripediums, if grown in ordinary greenhouse temperature, is in February or March. Their best market as a cut flower is, however, at the Christmas holidays, and the growth has to be so ordered as to have the buds set and open during the last of November and up to the first of the year. Mr. Burton's plan is to lower the temperature gradually after the flowers are cut down to 50°; and later to 45° at night. They are then kept on the dry side until March, being given a two months' rest. More heat is then turned on, and as they pick up, additional water. They are potted in sphagnum moss and soft osmundi fibre, on a drainage of broken crocks. The pots are on raised ground beds, remaining there the year round. The glass is shaded with a whitewash or naphthaline during the summer. The sides of the house are removed to admit a draft and keep the plants as cool as possible. About July 1, the new shoots appear mature, although Mr. Burton says, with all his experience, he is not yet able to determine just when a plant can be said to have attained its full growth. During this growing period great care must be taken to see that each plant receives the proper amount of water, some more, others less. The growth so covers the pot that it is hard to tell this without close inspection.

After July 1 water is gradually withheld to harden or ripen the growth or wood. In September, they are started again, given more water and slowly rising temperature, which is increased as necessary to get them in full flower before the holidays. They are repotted as they seem to need larger quarters or are divided to increase the stock. Plants that for one reason or another lose vigor are hard to get into normal condition, being very slow to make new roots, without which there is little or no progress. K.

Rambler Roses for Easter

Among all the growers of rambler roses for the Easter market in this country, there is probably no greater expert, or one who has had a larger or more successful experience than that grand old veteran, Robert Craig, Philadelphia, Pa. He was one of the first to see the possibilities of the Crimson Rambler as an Easter plant when it was introduced some 25 years ago, and grew it by the houseful. After having grown Dorothy Perkins successfully with equal good judgment, he later saw in that sterling variety, Tausendschon, a novelty of great merit, and was the first to grow it in quantity.

A visit to the greenhouses at Norwood, Pa., the middle of January, found him surveying a large house of roses, comprising ramblers, baby ramblers and Magna Charta, which were being staked and trained into the many forms in which they are grown. When asked for the secret of his success, he said there is no secret about growing roses. Of course, one must have a knowledge of soils, temperature, watering and a practical experience, gained both by failure and success. Many books and treatises have been written on this subject, which are excellent for the novice, but without any actual experience these instructions cannot at first be carried out with any great measure of success.

The Craig stock is all grown outside in the field and left to be two, three and four years old. This season it was lifted the last week in November, partly pruned, potted and placed on tables in the houses with a temperature at first of 40°. The plants were laid on their sides and kept well syringed, which is done several times a day to keep the wood plump. Their position prevented the pots from becoming too wet, and also encouraged the bottom shoots to break. After the Christmas rush, they were staked and trained to the various forms, being seen in pyramids, globes, umbrellas, baskets, fans and to single stakes. The stakes used are bamboo, dyed green. The umbrellas and baskets are trained to forms made of wire, painted green. The tying is with raffia, dyed green. The four-year-old plants take 9 to 10-inch pots, and 10 to 12-inch tubs are used for large pyramids, globes and umbrellas. The two to three-year olds are planted in six to eight inch pots, making natural grown and smaller pyramids.

As they begin to show good root action, and the buds break nicely, they are stood up straight, and the temperature is gradually increased up to 65° at night, which is about as high a forcing night temperature as is safe. Care must be taken to avoid sudden changes in temperature, which should be kept as regular as possible. Watering is important, as when the bud setting period is at hand they must never suffer for water or be allowed to get thoroughly dry, as the buds will be affected or scorched and fail to open.

Fumigation is with nico-fume, which is used by being diluted about half with lime water and brushed on cold steam pipes, which, when the steam is turned on, evaporates the fumes into the house. This is done about once a week.

If possible, the plants should be ready the week previous to Easter week and the temperature lowered to harden them off. This also brightens the color. All the pink varieties, if brought into flower in strong heat, will open light in color. When half the flowers are open, the plants, if placed in a cool house, will slowly open, the remaining flowers of a much darker color. With two shades of pink in the same plant, the beauty is greatly enhanced.

The varieties grown here are Tausendschon, Hiavatha, Dorothy Perkins and Excelsa. The two latter are later than Tausendschon and require an early start, particularly when the holiday comes the last of March or the first week in April. They are also best for a late Easter when, during the hot spells which often occur about the middle of April, they hold their flowers much better than the earlier sorts.

The Baby Rambler type are also grown in quantity. Baby Tausendschon, Orleans, a strong grower that makes large clusters of bloom; Ernest Techendorf, a good dark color; also Ellen Paulson, a good pink, which holds its flowers well and is one of the best of this type. At all times, and particularly after they become well covered with leaves, they are given all the room possible to induce a good showing of buds at the bottom and sides of the plant.

In speaking of the old way of fumigating with tobacco stems, Mr. Craig said that these used to be had in quantity for the hauling, but that now they are held at $21 per ton.

There are many interesting things to see at this large place, where plants are grown on such a large scale, 140,000 cyclamen seedlings being one of the features. Great numbers of flats contain plants with four leaves, which is a condition well advanced for middle of January. The seed for these had been sown in August and the flats kept on pipe shelves up near the glass. They were stocky little plants, ready now for two and a half inch pots. Forty thousand leaf cuttings of Cincinnati and Mrs. Peterson begonias were wonderfully vigorous with a fine bunch of roots and a circle of breaks at the base of each leaf stem. There was not a bad leaf in the whole lot, which were being potted off as they got the time. Dracena Massangeana was another quantity plant which was grown in batches of 10,000. It was all sold as fast as finished in small pots, there being a great demand since the European supply had been cut off. Other varieties are also grown in large quantities, for sale as young stock to the trade to be grown on, or finished here into the larger salable sizes for retail stores.

Chrysanthemum Novelties of 1918.

Among the chrysanthemum favorites of the 1918 season worthy of mention, were a number introduced by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., illustrations of several of which are presented herewith. A collection of seedlings, the result of work started a few years ago, and made by crossing Baby with other pompon varieties, made an excellent showing and about 25 more sorts will be tested out during the coming season.

Among the 1918 commercial novelties were Sun Glow, an early bright yellow of the Major Bonnaffon type, which matured October 25; Loyalty, a naturally late-flowering, bright yellow which produced a uniform crop about November 20 from buds selected September 15-25, and Victory, a pure glistening white, with a decided waxy luster, which matured November 15 and later.

Among the exhibition varieties were Cheyenne, a strong growing Japanese with fine stem and foliage, also good as a commercial sort. The color is quite distinct, being chamois or nearer an Indian tanned huckskin. It matured November 1 and later. Titanic, as its name implies, is very large, even surpassing Odessa and William Turner in this respect, a good white which matured early in November.

Elmer D. Smith & Co. report the 1918 trade very satisfactory with all indications for the coming year most promising.

National Publicity for Flowers.

Our promotion bureau is daily in receipt of letters from subscribers to the campaign fund highly commending the work of the committees. Wm. L. Rock, of the William L. Rock Flower Co., Kansas City, Mo., a letter from whom was recently published in these notes, writes, with a cheque for $200 as his subscription for 1919: "I wish to state no bill or obligation has come in to our establishment that has given me more pleasure to meet than this one. I sincerely hope the florists throughout the land will be able to see the benefits that they will derive from this campaign. The awakening will perhaps be somewhat slow; the realization will be sure to follow. Your committees are perfectly right in requesting that remittance of subscriptions be made promptly, so that they themselves can see just exactly where they stand."

A. Washburn & Sons, Bloomington, Ill., write: "We enclose cheque for $25 to cover our pledge for 1919. We are pleased with the way the work is carried on, and wish to express our appreciation to the men looking after it. Our sales the past year showed an increase of 10½ per cent over those of 1917. Possibly some of it is due to the national campaign."

Contributors to the fund for 1919 should clearly understand that their contributions are to be used toward the publicity planned for this year. The 1918 campaign was conducted and financed wholly through the fund provided last year, consequently there is no deficit, to be made up from this year's fund.

postcard to each person reached by a page in that publication would cost $23,000, and then not tell a story so well. There was spent last year on magazines of nation-wide circulation, about $35,000 of the florists' publicity fund. It was necessary to interest peo-

One cannot force, but may advise a customer. The January and February features of the campaign would be carried in 33 magazines, at a cost of about one-twentieth of a cent per number of each, the slogan, "Say it with Flowers," predominating in all matter. Philadelphia's share alone of the circulation was estimated to be 350,000, and retailers should make the most of it. There were 3,000 birthdays every week in the population of that city, a florists' opportunity in every one of them.

Wallace R. Pierson's remarks were chiefly directed to growers, whose interest in the campaign should be paramount, as they were the producers of the flowers to be exploited.

Wm. F. Gude declared that the publicity campaign was a great factor in stimulating the florist business. Everyone was benefited, so everyone should contribute, and not stand aside and "let George do it." All should tie up at once to the campaign, and make personal endeavor as well.

Secretary Young spoke at considerable length, dwelling chiefly upon the advantages to be derived from a liberal use made of the various aids provided by the promotion bureau—signs, electrotypes featuring the magazine advertisements, lantern slides, stickers and so forth, all provided at cost, and found to be great business bringers. The live members of the trade throughout the country were actively interested in the campaign, contributing their time and money to make it a success. The results last year were excellent and would be better this year, as the movement was growing rapidly. As showing the interest already in evidence, he mentioned that the first two days' mail after the bills to subscribers had gone out contained $3,000 and there was a pledged fund of $27,000 to start with. #### CAMPAIGN RALLY IN PHILADELPHIA.

There was an enthusiastic rally of the florists of Philadelphia and neighboring cities as part of the programme of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia for its meeting on January 7. Over 250 members of the trade were in attendance, and interest ran high. Among the speakers on "Publicity for Flowers" were Henry Penn, Boston, chairman of the publicity committee; Major P. F. O'Keefe, Boston; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; Secretary John Young, New York; Robert Craig, Philadelphia; and W. F. Therkildson, Philadelphia. Charles Grakelow, presided at the request of the club's president, Alban A. Harvey, and in a most able manner introduced the speakers.

Henry Penn told of the wonderful results obtained from the 1918 campaign. Particularly surprising were they under the distressing business conditions experienced by all trades. With the work kept going, much greater returns now were to be expected. He emphasized the importance of an extended use of the slogan, "Say it with Flowers," and a general linking up with the campaign publicity through the use of the service offered by the promotion bureau. He advocated an extension of interest in the campaign so that instead of $50,000 the fund annually should reach $150,000, and bring a corresponding increase in benefits. Evidence of wide returns from the campaign, Mr. Penn fully demonstrated.

Major O'Keefe outlined the campaign at considerable length. Some of the points he made were as follows: Advertising interests, and brings necessary additional business. The cost of a single page in the Saturday Evening Post, $5,000, looked like a lot of money, but people who were anything but crazy were keening on using such space year in and year out. To send a ple in flowers, and make them like them. Advertising in the face of the unfavorable conditions of last year was bold, but turned out to be wonderfully successful; even had it kept business only up to normal, it would have been a great achievement. It was advisable each year to keep on building prestige and adding to what had gone before.

and tied up with the work of the campaign received most benefit.

Robert Craig, who was given an ovation, made one of his characteristic addresses. Speaking of flowers, he said that love of beauty existed in every mind; some admired pictures, or jewels, others horses or dogs, but everybody loved flowers, therefore, the thought of flowers should be constantly before the public.

W. F. Therkildson, to whom credit was given as the real originator of the campaign, expressed his great belief in slogans, and remarked that he considered the slogan, "Say it with Flowers," really wonderful in conception. The campaign, he said, should have everybody in the trade back of it.

Quite a large sum was subscribed at the meeting.

Florists from other cities present were: Wm. F. Keys, Jr., J. Stevenson, W. F. Ekas, W. E. McKissick, M. Lohr, Wm. Lehr, T. H. Cook, R. L. Graham, Jr., and Isaac H. Moss, all of Baltimore, Md.; T. H. Thompson, Harry Palmer, J. E. Barnard, all of Kennett Square, Pa.; John Horn, Allentown, Pa.; Wm. Geiger and R. Mayhew, North Wales, Pa.; H. Darlington and J. M. Andre, of Doylestown, Pa.; A. M. Herr, H. K. Rohrer and B. F. Barr, of Lancaster, Pa.; Adolph Gude, Jr., and G. W. Hess, of Washington, D. C.; D. B. Edwards, Atlantic City, N. J.; M. J. Brinton, Christiana, Pa.; W. H. Vance, Wilmington, Del.; A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; W. H. Fox, Parkers Ford, Pa.; Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa. and H. C. Huesman, Reading, Pa.

Among the many communications of a commendatory character received by our promotion bureau in the second week of the 1919 campaign, it is pleasing to notice those from the following:

G. E. M. Stumpp, New York; "Enclosed please find my cheque for $300 in payment of my share for the 1919 publicity campaign to promote the sale of flowers. I consider it a pleasure to pay this bill, but feel that this act alone is not enough to make the campaign a success. Personal interest has helped immensely and accomplished more than anyone can tell. Our slogan, "Say it with Flowers" is now heard all over the United States, and the response has been wonderful. I feel that the funds have been judiciously spent, and I am more than satisfied with the results obtained in such a short time."

Wm. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y.: "Could confidence in the campaign work be better expressed? We enclose you herewith a cheque for $200 to take care of our subscription to the national publicity campaign. We sent you a cheque for $100 which took care of our 1919 subscription. The enclosed $200 is to take care of our 1920 and 1921 subscriptions."

Nordwall, Florist, Fort Dodge, Ia.: "It is a pleasure to mail you my cheque for $10, doubling the subscription made to the publicity fund of the society by the North Floral Co., which business I am conducting under my own name. There is no doubt in my mind but that the publicity work undertaken during the past year has made a wonderful change in flower sales throughout the entire country. When we take into consideration the fact that the majority of florists do practically no advertising, being content to take such custom as comes to them naturally, the raising of the publicity fund has meant no small task for the committees to undertake; and although my own contribution is not large, I do appreciate the work the committees have done and are doing."

Philip Breitmeyer, of John Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit, Mich.: "I enclose herewith cheque for $100 in payment of our subscription for 1919 as per agreement. I realize that as the season advances, and if the work is kept up, it will be necessary to have further subscriptions, and I am sure that your 'old reliable' can be looked upon for his share as the time goes on." It may be mentioned here that the subscriptions from this house in 1918 amounted to $750.

G. E. Schulz, president of Jacob Schulz Co., Inc., Louisville, Ky.: "I am pleased to enclose herewith cheque for $25.00 covering our 1919 subscription to the publicity fund. There is no question but what every florist in the country has received some benefit through the national campaign and all should contribute their mite."

The campaign for 1919 is well advanced. The 33 national magazines are carrying our slogan, "Say it with Flowers" to many millions of homes, with accompanying suggestions regarding the use of our products for gifts, for messages of sympathy to those in hospital and sick room, birthday remembrances, weddings, and other purposes. Can you, Mr. Non-Subscriber, think for one moment that publicity such as this is not going to help your business, no matter where you are located? Have you, yourself, never forgotten a birthday you would have liked to observe with a floral tribute, an anniversary, a wedding, even the interment of a dear friend in hospital or sick room? And would you not have been pleased to get such a pertinent reminder as ours when turning over the pages of your favorite magazines? Of course, you would, so is it not quite natural that the general public is equally interested? It is! Results last year proved it.

The florists whose communications we have published did not write those nice letters merely for the sake of excusing their contributions. They have realized to the full the great benefit of our publicity and in his heart every florist who has not yet subscribed realizes it, too. Then why the hesitation in the matter of a subscription? The money provided is not given away, it is simply invested in the interest of the subscriber, in a co-operative way. Such publicity cannot be purchased piecemeal; it is only obtainable through co-operation and the organization which has been made possible through our committees.

We want more co-operation. We want to see a greater willingness to provide ammunition for our publicity guns—the intervals between firing should be short, and activity continuous. Now is the time to subscribe, when planning to the best advantage is possible. Come over and help us—everybody.

It is hoped that those florists who have not yet considered the advisability of subscribing to the campaign fund will realize the immense importance of so doing, and send in a subscription without delay. The following contributions for 1919 are reported:

THE CARNATION.

American Carnation Society.

CHICAGO TO CLEVELAND.

The Chicago Florists' Club has chosen the New York Central (Lake Shore) railroad for conveying members and friends to the convention of the American Carnation Society at Cleveland, O., January 29-30, leaving La Salle street station, Chicago, Tuesday, January 28, at 11:00 P. M., due in Cleveland at 8:15 the following morning.

The fare each way, including tax, is $11.08. Pullman fares are: Lower berth, $2.20; upper berth, $1.76. For further information regarding reservations, etc., address O. W. Crapser, United States consolidated railway ticket offices, Insurance Exchange building, Chicago; telephone Wabash 4600.

As the club will invite the American Carnation Society to hold its 1920 convention in Chicago, a large delegation to the Cleveland meeting is desired.

January Care of Plants.

The month of January is a critical time for all greenhouse plants, and carnations are no exception to the rule, the success or failure of the season's crop depending greatly on the attention the plants receive during the next few weeks. January and February are generally months of short supply of all lines of cut flowers, so that any carnations put on the market in first-class shape are bound to bring a good price, but to do this the plants must now be in good condition and receive the closest attention to their needs. We must now expect dark weather or days when the glass will be frozen over or covered with snow. These conditions quickly tell on the plants' growth and on the texture and keeping qualities of the flowers as well as having a tendency to weaken the stems and cause the calyxes to split. To overcome these difficulties, so far as is possible, the grower should give his close attention to the plants' requirements to enable them to keep up a steady production of flowers.

TEMPERATURE.

An even night and day temperature in the houses is one of the important factors connected with successful carnation growing. The plants are now carrying a heavy crop of buds, flowers or shoots in various stages of growth, and the main object for the time being is to encourage their steady development. Extremes of temperature must be avoided or the plants will receive a check in their growth which will take them a long time to recover from. The temperature best suited to the plants' welfare for this time of the year is 48-50 degrees night, 54-56 degrees on dark cloudy days and 60-62 degrees on bright days when it is not necessary to use very much steam heat and the ventilators can be opened a little. It is very important to watch the temperature closely on a morning following a night of severe firing, so that it does not raise too high in the houses with the rising of the outdoor temperature. Also reduce the day temperature gradually early enough in the afternoon so that when the night man takes over the work he will find the temperature about 52 degrees with enough steam turned on to maintain it. This will give him a chance to arrange his work before any sudden drop in the outdoor temperature will seriously affect that inside.

WATERING AND DISBUDDING.

Steady use of steam heat under the benches necessary to keep up the temperature during severe weather will cause the soil to dry out much quicker than when less steam had to be used, and unless a close watch is kept on the from insects. Spraying with the nicotine (as instructed on the container) is another good plan. We start spraying our plants from the time they are brought inside, using a knapsack sprayer throwing a fine mist spray, and have very little trouble from insects, but this takes a great deal more time than painting the pipes, and during the dark days of mid-winter it is not good to wet the foliage of the plants, so during January and February resort to the vaporizing from the painted steam pipe to keep the plants clean of insects.

FEEDING THE PLANTS.

Feeding the plants by applying fertilizer in the way of mulching or liquid form, is a question that every grower, to a certain extent, must determine for himself, according to the conditions of his plants and the soil he has to deal with. A plan advised for plants in one section of the country may be all wrong for another, generally speaking, though when careful preparation was done for the compost, which the plants are growing in, they ought not to have needed any additional food up to this time, but from now on, provided the plants are in a first-class growing condition, they will be greatly benefited by additional feeding. We favor light dressings of pulverized sheep or cattle manure over the surface of the soil to applying liquid manure during the next two months, because the plants get the benefit of it gradually, whereas with the liquid manure, the soil is very likely to get soured. A plan that we find works well with the soil to guard against souring, is to give the beds a dressing of ground limestone about a week before putting on any manure. This sweetens the soil and prevents any scum from forming on the surface.

PROPAGATING.

The propagation of the cuttings for next season's requirements is one of the important parts of a carnation grower's work at this time. Every effort should be put forth to get every available cutting that is needed into the sand during the next four to six weeks. The best of cuttings are to be obtained now, and they root much better than later on. Use a clean, sharp sand and be sure the propagating bed has proper drainage so that the sand does not become stagnant from not drying out as it should. The temperature best suited to rooting carnation cuttings is one as near as possible to the same as that which the plants are growing from which the cuttings were taken, with a few degrees higher for the sand bed as a bottom heat to hasten root action.

SELECTION OF THE CUTTINGS.

There is no more important factor connected with the growing of carnations than the selection of the cuttings for propagation. Be sure the cuttings are taken from clean, healthy plants that are true to type of the variety. This applies particularly to the deep pink and reds, in every batch of which you will find some that are not up to the color standard or else they are streaked. The same holds good with the plant's growth. One plant will grow away strong and free, being in the best of health, while its neighbors may be away behind in growth and productiveness. The latter are usually the ones that have more shoots on, because they are behind in their growth and have not been producing as many flowers.

beds they are very liable to get too dry. A dryness caused by steam heat is very severe, both on the roots and the plants themselves, and is one of the causes of the lower leaves drying up and attacks of red spider. The soil should be held to an even moist condition, avoiding the two extremes of wet and dryness.

Disbudding should be attended to as it is necessary. Any neglect will retard the flowers considerably as well as reducing their size.

FIGHTING THE INSECTS

The only sure way of keeping the plants free of insects is by a systematic plan of using the nicotine preparation. A good plan is to make it a practice once every two weeks, when the crop is cut off close, to paint one of the steam pipes with the nicotine. This should be done when the pipe is cold, then the steam turned on. By attending to this regularly, the plants are kept clean and there is no trouble

THE ROSE.

Mid-Winter Care of the Plants.

As we look back month to month to the beginning of 1918, it makes one feel rather downhearted, for it has been a "war year" and there are many homes that are saddened by the sacrifice of a son or father to whom the "price of peace" will always come high. Again many familiar faces, our comrades in the craft, men who have spent a great many years in the betterment of the business in general, have passed away. From coast to coast the toll has been heavy. Other losses and hardships that have beset us during the year seem trifling in comparison—a thing apart from the casualties of war and disease. The labor situation has of course caused us some inconvenience, as has the coal shortage, but we have much indeed to be thankful for and the writer is glad to say, as far as his personal observations are concerned, that there has been little complaining, so let us make this a happy, prosperous and thoughtful year.

Getting back to our subject, if there has been any very heavy cropping for the holidays there is no better time than now to tie the cut plants back. Plants in this cut-down condition will not require quite as much water, especially during these short days, but they should be syringed frequently and thoroughly, as at no other time is it so easy to get a dose of spider. The firing is generally unusually heavy during January and February, and the little devils glory under these conditions, so do not wait until they show up. Get under the foliage good and hard. Bend your back. If you know of anything much worse than a lot of plants infested with red spider, you have got one on the writer.

Keep up the fumigating regularly also. We have yet to find a more economical method than applying nicotine (full strength) to the heated pipes. It not only kills them when the pests are established, but its economical qualities are positive when used as a preventive instead of a cure.

The next important step, perhaps, is the feeding problem, in mid-winter particularly, on the small range that may not have the same conveniences as the "big fellows," nor the money for that matter, but if no preparation has been made for the regular mulching, and if the manure pile is frozen, etc., do not become discouraged, for if no manure water system is available, a few half barrels can be substituted and a Kinney pump used. This practical little contrivance has proved to be worth more than its weight in gold to many a small grower, and it has accomplished wonders on a comparatively large range where a breakdown has occurred to the system. This little pump (which is not really a pump), but a contrivance to fasten on the hose bib with two other outlets, one to the hose, the other to the supply of liquid manure, which should always be full strength, as the action of the pump (or syphon) is caused by the water rushing through the short "T" shaped tube, causing a suction from the intake side or the supply end. Naturally, the slightest obstruction will greatly interfere with the proper working of the pump, so the liquid manure should be made several days before using and the clear liquid drawn off. This may seem to be going to a lot of trouble to accomplish a little feeding, yet it is a sure and a practical way to do the work when, as stated above, one has not the facilities to do the feeding otherwise. The writer has personally used one of these little contrivances temporarily with remarkable results on a range comprising eight houses, 30x20 feet, but it delivered the goods. Generally speaking, there has been a tendency in the last four or five years to mulch everything. This is due principally to having most of the stock planted to solid beds, where it seems rather a hard thing to over water when once the plants have become established, and again perhaps it was the Killarney strain that caused us to water on the sloppy side. Whatever the cause, the fact remains that the copious watering and the mulch have superseded the use of the liquid manure systems with many. We have always advocated the use of manure water as a feeding medium for the beginner, as the safest method in mid-winter. We still use it regularly between mulches, and at times when it is next to an impossibility to mulch a house, last winter being an example. One cannot go far wrong on the small range, as the feeding can be varied. Cow or sheep manure, tankage, dried blood, nitrate of soda, lime and other agents can be employed with excellent results, if used intelligently and carefully. Liquid manure can be safely applied once a week from December to March. After March 1, or perhaps Feb. 20 (according to the season) it will be advisable to use the mulching method as a protection to the soil surface, surface roots, etc.

Propagating preparations are now in order. Spare no pains in these preparations. Have all decayed wood removed from the benches and give the house a thorough cleaning and all boards a good coat of lime wash using freshly slaked lime, to which add some sulphur when slacking same. See to it that there is enough bottom heat to bring the temperature up to 65 to 70 degrees at zero weather outside. This heat should be enclosed. Black Nonset building paper of good quality makes a good non-conductor of heat and will be a cheap and efficient substitute for boards. A house temperature of 58 to 60 degrees overhead will be about right. Use a medium grade of bank or quarried sand, free from vegetable matter, or a good, clean washed sand. The depth of the sand should be about three inches, packed as firmly as possible. By soaking the sand previous to firming, it will pack more firmly, care being taken to have the surface perfectly level. We would suggest propagating by cuttings this season unless one has perfectly good manetti stocks, English or Irish stocks preferred, and from several different sources of reliable introducers of manetti. We have not received any assurance as to getting over a supply of good stocks from the other side and until we have experimented further with manetti growing here, it will be more than risky to work up any amount of stock on the home-grown article. Again, the introducers of several of the new varieties strongly advocate growing them on their own roots, claiming very little difference, if any, after six months planted, as a great many of our standard varieties are now being grown on own roots. It will not be a detriment, only in localities where only light sandy loams are found. The heavy clay soils will usually grow fine stock on own roots, showing very little difference by grafting. So if the soil should be too sandy or light, by all means procure some clay or heavy subsoil to mix with the compost for best results.

PLANT NOTES.

Fuchsias.

It is a good time now to start the old stock plants of fuchsias, for there is plenty of room in the propagating bench, and it is the early struck cuttings that make the fine plants for vases and boxes, and if cuttings are taken in spring they immediately produce a flower and it is difficult to get a good growth, the plant often remaining short with a stunted appearance, yet bearing flowers. If the old plants have been thoroughly ripened, shake the soil off and pot in a good new loam, cut back the wood and place them in a warm house and syringe plentifully. The young growths will shortly appear and should be made into cuttings as soon as they have attained a length of an inch and a half or two inches. As soon as rooted pot in 2-inch pots and give the young stock a warm temperature. When growth commences the top can be taken off and another cutting made, and the plants shifted to 3-inch pots. Another stopping will be necessary in late winter to make nice, bushy plants that will be full of bloom in early spring. Keep them clean from mealy bug by constant spraying.

Geraniums.

After the holiday trade there will be room enough to space out the geraniums and other bedding stock. The cuttings that were placed in flats, and the young stock in 2-inch pots, should be shifted to the 3-inch size and spaced on the benches so that a good growth is encouraged. As soon as well established in these pots the top can be cut off and another cutting obtained. All the young stock possible should be taken from the plants selected in the fall for propagating purposes, for all the cuttings from which it is expected to produce good sized plants should be in the propagating bench by February 1. Any rooted after March 1 will make small plants for bedding purposes. The best stock for late May and early June planting should be in 4-inch pots by April, that they may be well enough established by the middle of May to begin to flower, and should have at that time three or four good branches so that a succession of bloom is assured.

Cyclamens.

"What can we do with the old cyclamen plants?" is a question often asked by many growers. As a rule the answer is, "Throw them away," for a plant can be grown to a 6-inch or 7-inch pot size in 16 months. That is, seed sown in September will produce such a plant for Christmas the following year, and it is uncertain how the old plants will carry through the spring and summer. There is a limited demand for cyclamen plants in larger sizes than 7-inch pots and they must of necessity bring a good figure to make them remunerative. After they are through blooming the best way to handle them is to shake the old soil out and pot them up in fresh soil, two parts loam, one part well rotted manure and one part leaf mold, with a good sprinkling of sharp sand. If the soil is inclined to be heavy and sticky add more sand. They can frequently be potted in a pot a size smaller than that in which they have been growing. Place them in a cool temperature, that is, in a house from 45° to 50° at night, so as to encourage root action and slow growth. It used to be the custom to dry the bulbs off so that they lost all their foliage, and start them in the spring, but growers have found that our springs and summers are too hot and dry and it is often difficult to make the bulb, after it has been dried off, break a good luxuriant foliage, and it is far better to keep the plant growing all the time. As the warm, sunny days of spring come on, the plants should be slightly shaded and as early as possible placed in cold frames and the glass shaded. The shade should not be made too heavy or the leaves will become drawn and an unshapely plant will be the result. After the plants have begun to grow care should be taken that they do not become pot bound, but shifted into large sizes as soon as necessary. The watering of this stock will require constant study and attention. They should never become too dry and it is very easy to over-water, so they will require looking after very closely until a good growth has been encouraged.

North Shore Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the North Shore Horticultural Society took place January 3, Lake Forest, Ill., President Thomas Head opened the meeting, and after the usual business called upon President-Elect W. E. Fisher to take the chair. Mr. Head, acting as installing officer, welcomed the officers for the coming year, Mr. Fisher, president, and G. Wilson, vice-president, replying with suitable speeches. The members gave Mr. Head a rising vote of thanks for the excellent work he has done for the society during his term of office.

The exhibits for the evening were 12 spikes of oncidiums, 95 points, shown by Thomas Head; one pot of Primula malacoides, 90 points, shown by Robert Chalmers; 12 tomatoes, shown by J. H. Francis, 91 points; one pot of Lilium Melpomene, 90 points, shown by J. Riley. Mr. Riley also exhibited some fine freesias and narcissi for which he received a cultural certificate. The judges for the evening were Messrs. Wilson, Claussens and Bollinger.

The members were invited to partake of refreshments kindly provided for by President Fisher. Two new members were admitted to the society, bringing the active membership to a total of 70.

MARKET CONDITIONS UNCHANGED.

The supply of stock is about the same as it was at the last writing. Some lines have shortened up somewhat, while others have become a little more plentiful, and as a whole have kept the market at the point it was last week. Prices are more reasonable than they were. Shipping business is good. Roses are not very plentiful, and they clean up readily. Carnations are not as numerous as they were just after the holidays. Sweet peas are coming in a good supply and are finding a ready sale. Easter lilies arrive at the wholesale houses regularly and prove good property. Rubrum lilies and callas may be had. Bulbous stock is in a fair variety and is becoming more plentiful, from week to week. It includes Paper White and yellow narcissi, Dutch hyacinths and freesias. Other offerings are violets, snapdragons, stevia, lily of the valley, orchids, calendulas, wallflowers, forget-me-nots, and baby primroses.

NOTES.

The William Murphy Company have been showing some exceptional Ward carnations.

C. E. Critchell had a fine lot of yellow narcissus last week.

DAILY CLEANUP OF FAIR SUPPLY.

Mild weather has been with us during the past week, springlike in fact, and of the kind that should make flowers plentiful. The supply cleaned up daily last week with the demand a trifle in excess of receipts. A few daffodils have arrived, the advance guard of this popular idol. Tulips are also being shown and freesias and Paper Whites meet with a good call. Carnations and roses are easily disposed of and sweet peas and Easter lilies are short of requirements. Callas are eagerly sought. Calendulas, swainsens and violets are good property. The street merchants were out January 18 for the first time since the first of the year offering narcissi.

NOTES.

The meeting of the American Carnation Society in this city, January 29-30 should be a great success and all who are in a position to do so should get busy at once and be sure to attend the banquet.

The Cedar Flower Shop is a new establishment at 10,007 Cedar avenue, under the management of Jos. Squillaciot.

M. Hiplar, formerly with C. M. Wagner, has opened a flower shop on Le-rain avenue.

OBITUARY.

Conrad Frauenfelder.

Conrad Frauenfelder, well-known Chicago retail florist, died Sunday morning, January 19, at 2 o'clock from pneumonia, following a week's illness. He and his family attended the Victory banquet given by the Chicago Florists' Club at the Hotel Randolph, January 9 and was apparently in the best of health then, when he expressed himself as having enjoyed one of the most pleasant evenings in his life. He was born in Switzerland, May 12, sixty-two years ago, and has made a host of friends in the trade here as well as elsewhere since he engaged in business at 3343 West Madison street in 1884, where he has been located ever since. He was a man of sterling character and was one of the most highly respected citizens in the community in which he lived. He leaves a wife and two children, Edna and Hazel, and a brother, who resides in Pennsylvania. The funeral was held Wednesday, January 22, at 1:30 p. m., at the West Chicago Masonic Temple, 12 South Oakley boulevard, under the auspices of Chicago Commandery, No. 19, K. T., with masonic services at 3 p. m. at Forest Home cemetery chapel, in charge of Pleiades Lodge, No. 478, A. F. & A. M. The remains laid in state at the West Chicago Masonic Temple, one hour previous to commandery services. He was a member of Pleiades Lodge, No. 478, A. F. & A. M.; Wiley M. Egan Chapter, No. 126, R. A. M.; Chicago Commandery No. 19, K. T.; Oriental Consistory, Medinah Temple; Rose Croix Chapter No. 409, Eastern Star; Iroquois Court Independent Order Foresters and Homan Lodge, K. of P. He was also a member of the Chicago Florists' Club. Interment was at Waldheim cemetery, and a large circle of friends attended the private services at the home at 11:30 a. m. and also those held later. The floral offerings were many and beautiful and both the retail and wholesale trade was represented. The bereaved family have the sympathy of everyone in the loss of a loving husband and father.

Funeral of John H. Slocombe.

There was a large attendance at the funeral of the late John H. Slocombe, whose recent death was recorded in THE AMERICAN FLORIST of Jan. 18. The funeral was held at his late home, 555 Townsend avenue, New Haven, Conn., on the afternoon of January 14. There were many beautiful floral tributes. In addition to those from relatives, neighbors and fellow church members, the New Haven Horticultural Society and practically every florist of New Haven, sent fine designs. The services were conducted by the Rev. R. L. Tucker, pastor of St. Andrew's church, of which the deceased was a charter member, assisted by the Rev. Robert Bell and the Rev. William Roberts, the latter reading several of Mr. Slocombe's favorite scriptural selections. He also spoke on the work of the deceased while active in the florist business, saying that within the past 10 years he had taken more than 100 first prizes at flower shows throughout the country. Rev. E. M. Slocombe, son of the deceased, offered prayer. A quartet composed of Miss Ethel Stonewhite, Miss Florence Keitch, Frederick Roberts and Mr. Perkins, rendered two of Mr. Slocombe's favorite hymns, "Crossing the Bar" and "There's a Wilderness in God's Mercy." The bereaved family received many letters and telegrams of sympathy.

GREENHOUSE builders report a heavy volume of inquiry.

LEAKY PIPES.—Leaks in steam and hotwater pipes are said to be easily stopped by the use of automobile tape.

A LETTER from the department of agriculture indicates that by 1923, no more nursery stock or bulbs will be imported into the United States.

THE war committee of the Union league club, Chicago, has issued a plea for the deportation of enemy aliens, and asks that all loyal citizens urge their congressmen to order such deportations.

Society of American Florists.

PLANT IMPORT HEARING.

At a meeting of interested parties of the trade, held at the office of the Society of American Florists, January 21, a brief relating to the regulations against the importation of bulbs, nursery stock and other plants in soil, effective July 1, 1919, to be presented to the secretary of agriculture, was completed and will be submitted to the executive committee of the society for official approval at its meeting in Detroit, Mich., January 31, after which, action to secure a proper hearing at Washington will be taken.

MEETING OF EXECUTIVE BOARD.

Vice-President E. A. Fetters has made arrangements for the meeting of the members of the executive board to be held at the Hotel Statler, Detroit, on Friday and Saturday, January 31-February 1 next. All who expect to be in attendance at the meeting should make hotel reservations early, by communication with Mr. Fetters, 17 Adams Ave., E. Detroit, Mich.

MEETING OF THE PUBLICITY COMMITTEES.

The publicity committee and the public finance committee will meet in joint session at the Hotel Hollenden, Cleveland, O., on Thursday, January 30. President J. F. Ammann will preside. All expecting to be present should make hotel reservations without delay, as the American Carnation Society will be in convention at the hotel at the same time.

A CORRECTION.

Edwin A. Harvey, Brandywine Summit, Pa., president of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, has been appointed director under affiliation of the Society of American Florists, to serve one year, not Alban A. Harvey, as published in the announcement of officers for 1919, in our issue of January 4.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Dangers of Department Rules.

An address which has a bearing on the government's proposed embargo against plant imports was delivered before the New York state bar association by the Hon. Charles E. Hughes, retiring president, January 17. He said in part:

"In increasing measure we are ruled not by congress or by the executive, not by state legislatures or by governors, but by department officials, whose personal will, whose favor or disfavor, measures for practical purposes the rights of American citizens. This condition is aggravated by the constant and necessary practice of giving to administrative order the sanction of the penal law.

"Disobedience to the bureaucrat is a crime and the citizen prefers to obey rather than to chance the disgrace of an indictment. For him due process of law is largely an unreality, for reputation is too dear to enable him to risk the displeasure of a bureau chief or even of a subordinate who can enforce his will by the threat of a criminal charge.

"There is not the slightest doubt that administrative agencies will have to be multiplied in order to meet the needs of public work and to enforce public rights which cannot be maintained without adequate administrative supervision. And wherever an adequate remedy is found through administrative discretion in applying rules, there is also an open door to serious abuses. Recognizing this danger, what can we do to minimize it?

"No relief can be found short of a sound public opinion with respect to administrative standards. It should be treated as axiomatic in a free government that necessity is the only justification for the creation of administrative agencies which are virtually lawgivers in their respective spheres. Each new proposal should show cause to a people instinct with the love of liberty."

Good Times Coming.

"We are in for a long period of great times coming," say Gary, Vanderlip, Schwab, Replogle and Ryan. These men are not liars. If they were they would not be where they are. If they were short-sighted they would not be where they are. Keep your courage all shined up for 60 days and you will see a great sunburst of prosperity.

Boiler Prices Lower.

A cut of 25 per cent in prices of radiators, boilers and other staples of its manufacture was announced recently by the American Radiator Co. Vice-President Busch says he hopes the reduction will quicken and increase new building and remodeling and assist builders to resume the full volume of their operations. Mr. Busch said that the war sent their prices up about 45 per cent, but that while labor and other manufacturing costs remain high, he thought it good policy to stimulate building by the cut in prices.

C. O. D. Express Collections.

F. S. Webb, manager of the Wholesale Florists' Credit Association, Chicago, after persistent efforts covering a period of four months, has just received information from the United States Railroad Administration and the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C., that express companies have no right whatever to deliver C. O. D. packages without first collecting for them, the contrary having been the case, for sometime. The communication also advises that the opening of C. O. D. packages for examination will not be permitted hereafter.

Washington, D. C.*CLUB MEETING.

Nominations for officers of the florists' club will be in order at the February meeting. The January meeting was devoted largely to a discussion of "Cost of Production." The club had been requested by the president of the Society of American Florists to appoint a committee to make a study of conditions in the District of Columbia and vicinity and render a report to Secretary John Young.

It was pointed out that it is important that a grower should know the actual cost of production, in order that he may determine how much money he must receive for a crop covering a given period, to make it a profitable proposition. Some of the local members, agreeing that it is important to have this information from a business standpoint, stated, however, that the cost of production was hardly a factor, unless, perhaps, one sells direct, because of the grower being dependent upon the wholesaler for the movement of his stock, and also because of the changing markets. Cost of production would not necessarily influence selling prices. It was also suggested that even in this limited territory, the cost of fertilizers, labor and coal differs considerably. It was decided, after lengthy discussion, to hold the matter over until a future meeting.

I. W. Staalman, of Oakton, Va., offered for the approval of the members a vase of lilacs, declared by judges to be as fine as any ever seen in this city. The membership roster of the club was lengthened by the addition of the names of W. E. West, of Suitland, Md., and Walter F. Bottger, of the Center market.

NOTES.

The name of William F. Gude is again to be found in the list of directors of the National Metropolitan Bank. Frank W. Bolgiano holds a similar position with respect to the Continental Trust company. The latter is also vice president and member of the board of directors of the Park Savings bank. Mr. Gude polled the highest number of votes given to the various candidates for the board of directors of the chamber of commerce. Fred H. Kramer is again a member of the board of directors of the Union Savings bank.

William F. Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., has been investigating the question of street car advertising, after having been asked to allot a portion of the firm's advertising appropriation for that purpose. Mr. Gude states that he has asked people everywhere whether they read the street car advertisements, and if so, if they are in any way influenced by them to the end that they purchase the articles or commodities advertised. He states that he finds very few people who are swayed in favor of an article by these car advertisements.

R. J. Lacey, florist, of Morris road, S. E., recently received a very interesting letter from his son, Robert Hilton Lacey, who was on the Marne, at Chateau-Thierry for 40 days. He said it was "tough" for a soldier to be killed in action without having seen a German, but that lots of the boys have "Gone West" without a view of their foe. During the period he was on the Marne, the Germans were on one side of the river and the Americans on the other side, and the boys never saw a Hun until they started their last drive on Paris.

Some of the boys at the Gude Bros.' store have just recently heard from Sergeant Ben Carrick, a former co worker at the store. He was badly gassed during one of the many engagements in which he participated and fell into the hands of the Germans who confined him in one of their notorious prison camps. He was released following the signing of the armistice. Nearly the whole of the company of which he is sergeant was wiped out in the engagement in which he was gassed.

Adolph Gude, Jr., who has been an aviation instructor at Brooks flying field, near San Antonio, Texas, is back again and has laid aside his uniform, which bore a lieutenant's shoulder straps, until Uncle Sam may again have need of his services. He has made application for a commission in the reserves. Milton Redman has returned to the store of the S. S. Pennock Company after securing his release from the Marine Corps.

Mrs. Augusta Gerstenberg, wife of Ernst Gerstenberg, for many years a member of the florists' club, passed away at her late home, January 10, as the result of a paralytic stroke. Mr. and Mrs. Gerstenberg came to this country 35 years ago. They owned a large place at Suitland, Md., where a good part of their time was spent.

Arthur J. Shaffer and wife announce the arrival of little Miss Frances Lorraine Shaffer December 24. Mr. Shaffer is the brother of George C. Shaffer, proprietor of the florist store at Fourteenth and I streets, N. W., with whom he is connected.

The business of Z. D. Blackstone at Fourteenth and H streets, N. W., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $20,000 by Z. D. Blackstone, Sarah V. Blackstone and Herbert M. Sauer, president, secretary-treasurer and vice president, respectively.

Toronto, Ont.*BUSINESS GETTING INTO NORMAL STRIDE.

Business is again returning to normal, and with the continued social functions, there is a decided increase over pre-war days. When it is considered that during the past four years we were often running on 40 to 50 per cent of our usual trade, it can be seen that the advance has been rapid. Stock since the holidays has been decidedly scarce, more so than ever noticed in this section before. Stock of all kinds has been scarce and prices remain firm with the holiday advance continuing. Roses have been off crop with all growers, and the cut on many a large range has been only a handful, so that in the division of the spoils, some of the regular customers were getting an average of 10 blooms to the 100 on their regular orders. Carnations are more plentiful, but the scarcity of bulbous stock keeps them used up as fast as they open. Green goods are scarce, and pot plants, both flowering and foliage, are few and far between. For the past week we have been favored with continuous mild weather with considerable sunshine, so that more stock is expected soon.

NOTES.

The retail florists' club will hold a box social at Dunlop's hall January 27 and the annual dance at the Metropolitan assembly room, February 5. There is keen interest being taken in the dance and a large attendance and good time are assured.

Carl Grobba, who for years has made it a practice to come to the city daily to market his stock, has lately found the demand so brisk that his trucks are only delivering orders and he is devoting more time to the green-houses.

James Mathews, who went overseas in 1916 with the 20th C. E. F., has returned to his former position at Allen Gardens. James was promoted to sergeant and will address the florists at the club in the near future.

The gardeners' and florists' club is experiencing unusual activity and 20 members will be enrolled at the next meeting.

This year's L. longiflorum arrived in good shape and from their appearance, they will be plentiful at Easter.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the above society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., January 8, President Adler in the chair. The judges appointed for the exhibition, Thomas Henderson, W. G. Carter and Thomas Twigg, made the following awards: Six ears of field corn, William Milstead, first and thanks of the society for another entry of like character. A beautiful vase of Carnation Laddie, staged by John F. Johnston, was awarded a certificate of culture. Two petitions for admission to active membership were received. A letter of sympathy was ordered sent to the widow of our late honorary member, Theodore Roosevelt. All present stood at attention in token of our respect and esteem. This society was honored by having this great man as one of its members, and words fail in expressing the loss we feel in his passing.

President Adler presented the silver medal of the National Association of Gardeners for the most meritorious exhibit at the fall show to Robert Marshall, who suitably responded. An extremely interesting essay was ably read by Ernest Westlake, the subject being, "The Gardener and His Recompense," written by M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J. A short discussion followed and a vote of thanks was ordered sent to the author. Several members of the society now in the service were heard from and it is hoped they will soon rejoin us. The competition for the next meeting will be 50 single violets, 25 carnations and a pot cyclamen. The date is February 12 at 7:00 P. M.

Tennessee State Florists' Association.

Secretary G. M. Bentley, of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, announces that arrangements are completed for the annual convention of the association to be held at the Hermitage hotel, Nashville, January 28. From the long list of exhibitors, including florists' supply concerns, from all parts of the United States and the reservations made at the hotel for members and visitors, the success of the convention is assured. The proceedings, the Floral Journal of the society, will be ready for distribution at this meeting. Among the papers and discussions included in the interesting programme are the following: "Can We Assist Each Other in the Matter of Securing and Holding Expert Help?" by H. G. Bramm, Bristol; "How Can We Develop Landscape Work Throughout the Smaller Cities and Towns?" by W. N. Kessler, Birmingham, Ala.; "Growing Plants," by C. H. Tritschler, Nashville; "Chrysanthemums," Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; "The South and the Part She Will Play in the Future Flower Market," by R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; "Can We in Combination Arrange to Purchase a Satisfactory Line of Pots and Save Money?" by T. H. Joy, Nashville; "Making our Home Surroundings More Beautiful," by Miss Mary B. McGowan, Nashville; "Seedling Carnations," by Rolfe F. Smith, Nashville; "Why All Florists Should Become Members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery," by Karl P. Baum, Knoxville.

MARKET AND DEMAND NORMAL.

For the first time in many weeks, the demand for flowers, while good for this time of the year, has reduced to such an extent that prices have gradually crept back to something near normal. At this writing, flowers are more plentiful than they have been since September. This, of course, is due to the reaction after the holidays, and in great part to the diminishing influenza. Carnations are now very plentiful and the demand does not entirely absorb the supply. They are selling as low as $1.25 per dozen. Their quality is fair. Roses are also fairly plentiful and stock is good. Plants are still quite scarce.

1918 GREAT YEAR FOR FLOWERS.

Representative florists in this city, when interviewed by the writer, stated that 1918 was the best year they had ever experienced, and this contrary to what they had expected as a result of the war. While flowers, to many people, have always seemed to be a luxury, the demand for them increased greatly last year and nearly every florist and grower in this locality reports a substantial and very encouraging increase over the preceding year. However, one of the greatest contributing causes to this unusual demand was the influenza, which held this city in its grip during the greater part of the fall and took a heavy toll in lives. While some florists were attacked by this insidious disease, and one concern was forced to close during the holidays, the trade was extremely fortunate in not losing a single representative. Florists are now taking inventory with a view of finding out whether they made any money out of the big rush. Almost everything that a florist uses in his business, including labor, jumped considerably last year and naturally, the business man who does not keep track of this, cannot make the right profit. With the national publicity campaign in its second year, prospects are bright for another good year for those florists who are progressive and wide-awake.

NOTES.

Frank, George and Leo Schramm, of Schramm Bros., have recovered sufficiently from their recent attack of influenza to be about again. Manager Frank Schramm told the writer, that despite the fact that they were forced to close during Christmas week, that a splendid gain in business was recorded for 1918 over 1917 and he looks forward to a continuance of prosperity. Schramm Bros. have charge of decorating the mammoth terminal building for the annual auto show to be held here in the last week in January.

John Lambert, the very able decorator for Mrs. J. B. Freeman, is a very enthusiastic worker for anything that would improve the florists' business or raise the standards of merchandising in this community. His latest idea is to form a retail florists' club to promote a better feeling of harmony and co-operation among retailers.

Opinion here is somewhat divided on the effects of the import law, but the majority of retailers seem to think that it would be a calamity and decrease sales if plants, such as the azalea, were permanently excluded from this country. Hence many of them are wiring protests to their representatives in congress.

Harry Heint reports a very prosperous year in which he had no difficulty in disposing of all the stock he could raise at substantially increased prices. However, he is seriously considering switching from the high grade rose, of which he has been making a specialty, to carnations.

Henry Krueger, who has taken over the retail store of Krueger Bros., located at Clark and Nevada streets, in East Toledo, says business is coming along fine. East Toledo is a prosperous section of the city and he has no competition in this vicinity.

The La Salle & Koch flower department is offering a 10 per cent discount on all flowers and plants during January in common with other departments throughout the store.

The Mussbach Sisters, florists, located on Oliver street, are still on the map and report a brisk and profitable business. A. C. K.

GOOD MOVEMENT AT HIGH PRICES.

With stock more plentiful and although prices continue high, trade is increasing daily. The demand for plants is good and the offerings now include flowering apple, cherry and quince as well as Japanese prunus. Dutch hyacinths and chorizemas have arrived and are selling well.

NOTES.

Arnold & Fisher are cutting heavily in Matchless, Red Cross, Benora, Laddie, Alice and Pink Delight carnations.

William Nicholson has been cutting mignonette, freesias, myosotis, stevia and carnations in variety.

STOCK IS NONE TOO PLENTIFUL.

Stock in general is none too plentiful and cleaned up early in practically all lines all last week, especially roses, which were in exceptionally brisk demand and short supply. The city demand was surprisingly good all day January 18 when the market probably never was so well sold out in all items as it was then. Roses are bringing high prices but the quality is good and it is a question with the buyer whether he is going to get as many as he wants and not how much he is going to pay. Killarney are reaching the market in splendid condition and the same holds true for Champ Weiland, which is in brisk demand at all times. Carnations are selling much better this week and there is no great surplus to speak of when the stores close for the day. Lilies are cleaning up nicely and so are callas at the advertised quotations. Sweet peas are in better supply but the demand continues to clean them up quickly at very satisfactory prices. Violets are moving better than they have been but there always appears to be plenty to go around at $1 per 100 or thereabouts. Freesia is quite plentiful and is selling well at prices ranging from $4 to $8 per 100. White and yellow narcissi, pansies, daisies, mignonette, snapdragons, tulips, daffodils, orchids, gardenias, lily of the valley and other miscellaneous seasonable stock not already mentioned is cleaning up right along at good figures. Greens are in good supply although at times one or two items may be found scarce for a short period. Brown magnolia leaves evidently were scarce in this market the latter part of last week judging from the number of customers inquiring for same.

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES

56 E. Randolph St.,

CHICAGO

The Retail Florists' Association met Tuesday evening, February 21, when it was decided to extend the membership campaign for 30 days so that all the retail florists may have an opportunity of joining without paying the initiation fee of $25. The members present guaranteed a certain sum of money which will be used in connection with a like amount subscribed by the Wholesale Cut Flower Association for local advertising during the period of gluts. This campaign everyone figures will do away with the ridiculously low priced sale of cut flowers by the department stores which have caused much unpleasantness in the past and was unfair competition to the legitimate retail florist. Vincent Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, Mo., gave an interesting talk on what the retail florists were doing in his city, which is somewhat along the plan that this association has in mind and summed up in a nutshell means co-operation of all branches of the trade for a general betterment of the florist business.

C. L. Washburn says that the proper way to store screenings is not to mix the shipments from the different mines, but to keep each one intact. One pile of 12 to 15 cars of mixed screenings has been on fire off and on ever since Thanksgiving, while another lot of 98 cars which all came from the same mine never caused any trouble.

Allie Zech, president of the Florists' Club, will attend the exhibition of the American Carnation Society to be held at Cleveland, O., January 29-30 and the executive committee meeting of the Society of American Florists at Detroit, Mich., January 31-February 1.

Nicholas Moga, gardener at the Saddle and Cycle Club, was placed on trial

January 20 on the charge of manslaughter. It is alleged he threw a pair of pruning shears at William A. Ulrey, 15 year old boy, who subsequently died from the wound inflicted.

Chas. C. Dorigan, who has been with the colors at Canfield, Tex., for sometime, was mustered out recently and is again attending to his duties at Dorigan Bros.' flower shop at 6242 South Ashland avenue.

John Ziska is back on the job at Joseph Ziska & Sons, after spending a week at Excelsior Springs, Mo. He brought back the beautiful cane that a number of his friends presented him with the night he left.

A. I. Simmons is supervisor of the industrial section of the division of social hygiene of the state department of public health, with headquarters at Springfield.

Miss Clara Burckhardt is again attending to her duties at Pochlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department, after being on the sick list for some time.

Otto W. Freese and Walter Stockloss, of Pochlmann Bros. Co.'s cut flower department, were on the sick list for several days this week.

A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., who returned from a business trip east this week, attended the funeral of the late Theodore Roosevelt.

Victor Young, who was mustered out of the army recently, is with William F. Schofield, 738 North State street.

Abe Iralsen is planning on leaving in the near future for California to inspect the almond growing districts.

E. C. Amling, wife and daughter left January 22 for Orange, Calif. They expect to return about Easter.

Wolf's Flower Shop, 7 West Monroe street, had the order for the casket cover for the Busse funeral.

Charles L. Hutchinson was elected temporary chairman of the Roosevelt memorial commission January 21, at the meeting called by President Reinberg of the county board. Present were many of Chicago's most prominent citizens, among them John G. Shedd, Harold Ickes, Merritt Starr and James A. Patten. Allen B. Pond was elected temporary secretary. The meeting was held in a typically business fashion, the entire proceedings taking only 12 minutes. More than 200 members of the committee attended. The action of the committee put at rest the fears of many people that some preconceived plan would be rushed through without giving time for an expression of public opinion. Mr. Hutchinson said that all members would be given opportunities to express themselves. Many people have protested the use of the forest preserve as a site for the memorial, urging some place in the city within the easy reach of all.

William Johnson says that carnations have been in brisk demand at A. L. Vaughan & Co's. store all week and that prices have had a tendency to strengthen, instead of weakening.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. report that sweet peas continue to be in brisk demand at high prices and the average so far this season has been surprisingly high.

BUSINESS RETURNING TO NORMAL.

Business with the retailers is assuming normal winter conditions and the supply of flowers is about equal to the demand. Roses are not over abundant, but carnations are beginning to be, at times, over plentiful and much improved in quality. Violets are also showing the benefit of the bright, clear weather now prevailing and the daily receipts are easily disposed of. Pot plants of Dutch bulbous flowers are making their initial appearance, but the supply as yet is limited and they are in good demand. Some belated cyclamen stock, intended for the past holidays, are now available and find ready sale. Fine sweet peas are now added to the list of seasonable cut flowers and are much appreciated.

NOTES.

Philip Breltmeyer, Thos. Browne, R. Raheley, E. A. Fetters, Geo. Doemling and A. J. Stahelin visited the growers of Mt. Clemens, January 17, in Mr. Stahelin's new Packard Sedan. They report the growers of the "Bath City" having fine stock and unusually good prospects for a season of real prosperity.

Henry Raheley of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, and Norman Sullivan, are visiting the florists in Philadelphia, New York and Boston.

Frank Holznaple, Highland Park, is preparing a big stock of bedding plants, which he feels sure will be in good demand next spring.

Interest attaches to the approaching carnation meeting at Cleveland, January 29-30, and a good delegation will attend from this city.

John Warncke has purchased the business of the Woodmere Floral Co., formerly conducted by the late Charles Warncke, Jr.

HIGH PRICES CURTAIL DEMAND.

Business continues quiet, especially transient trade, due largely to the high price of flowers and plants. Bulbous stock is becoming more plentiful and carnations are more abundant and of excellent quality. Violets are also much improved. Freesias and narcissi are in great demand. Flowering plants such as cyclamens, azaleas, primroses, daffodils and tulips are selling well.

NOTES.

The monthly meeting of the florists' association was held January 13, with a good attendance, the principal event of the evening being the election of the following officers for 1919: Harry E. Bates, president; George T. Boucher, vice-president; Ambrose H. Secker, secretary; James Sproul, treasurer. The federal plant importation restriction ruling came up for a lively discussion and James J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, Pa., pointed out various ways in which the order would affect the trade throughout the country. George B. Hart, E. P. Wilson and Charles Vick were appointed a committee to draft resolutions to be sent to congress condemning the ruling.

At a joint session of the Western New York Horticultural Society and the New York State Fruit Growers' Association, January 15-18, the two bodies were merged under the name of the New York Horticultural Society. Thomas P. Gore, of Oklahoma, chairman of the agricultural committee of the senate, addressed the meeting.

HIGH PRICES THROTTLE FLOWER DEMAND.

The great problem that confronts the trade in this city is the extremely high prices of flowers which is forcing the sale of plants wherever they can be substituted. Pink and White Killarneys of ordinary grade with 18 to 20 inch stems wholesale at from 18 to 25 cents, while Russell, not at all up to standard, go as high as 35 cents, although the usual price has been not more than 12 or 15 cents. The prices would not be so bad if the quality was in keeping. Carnations are the only offerings that are half-way right but they are not up to grade. They wholesale at from six to 10 cents. Paper Whites are bringing the highest figures ever known here. There is still good stevia on the market and sweet peas show improvement.

SATISFACTORY TRADE AND FAIR SUPPLY.

We are pleased to report normal conditions as to demand for the past week. Shipping is good and the local trade is becoming more active as time goes on. All roses are still short of the demand, while the receipts of sweet peas, violets, snapdragons, freesias and Paper Whites are not large enough to cut much figure. Carnations are plentiful, and of good quality, but due to the scarcity of the other lines, are holding their own nicely. Lilies are good property as the supply is limited. Lily of the valley is getting scarce as time goes on. There always is a demand for all the calendulas that reach this market. The weather the past week has been ideal, being clear and not too cold, saving the growers a good many tons of coal and the labor of handling it.

NOTES.

An auto party consisting of Adam Zender, Chicago; W. A. Moore, Jefferson, Wis.; Nic Zweifel, Wm. R. Schroeder, Fred H. Holton and H. V. Hunkel, made the rounds among the North Milwaukee growers, January 16, winding up at the Holton & Hunkel range at Brown Deer. All the growers are running full capacity, and their stock is reported looking fine.

John Roessel, formerly with the Heitman-Oestreicher Co., received his honorable discharge on January 15. He was drafted on July 5, and spent all his time in Camp Hancock, Ga., where he made good, having been machine gun instructor for some time before being mustered out.

John Nosacek, who for many years past made wire work for the trade at his place of business at Sixth and Chestnut streets, has now been engaged permanently by Gust Rusch & Co. Bryan Seely, of the same firm, reports the arrival of a baby girl, January 13.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. reports a heavy call for chrysanthemum stock plants, also rooted carnation cuttings. Business with this firm has been quite satisfactory for some time past.

Cards received from Sergeant Louis Eberfeldt, a Milwaukee florist's son, about a fortnight ago, were post-marked Wurtemberg, Germany. He writes all is well with him.

The first of a number of dwellings to be erected on the Hummel property on Pabst avenue and 54th street, formerly occupied by greenhouses, is under way at this time.

We have been unable to get a line on the local boys who will attend the carnation convention at Cleveland next week, but this city will be represented.

Harold Baumgarten, who is in France at this time, writes that he is longing for the "good old U. S. A."

kept clean every day. Roses, carnations, Paper Whites, sweet peas and stevia are leaders here. Shipping trade is good. They are refusing orders for wire work, being months behind in their work in this department.

T. J. Noll & Co. report good local and out-of-town business. The quality of the stock is not up to standard and prices are high is the complaint made by this firm. The supply consists of roses, carnations, stevia, Paper Whites and calendulas.

Arthur Newell reports that his son has arrived home, having been relieved from military service and is assisting his father at the store. Business is good, but with the rest of the trade the high prices make unsatisfactory conditions.

Charles Thomas and wife, who have been seriously ill with influenza are now out of danger, but on January 19 their two-year-old baby was stricken and is not expected to live.

With funeral orders, hospital flowers, and decorations, W. J. Barnes and his staff have had a busy week. Pot plants are moving nearly as well as at the holiday season.

Miss J. E. Murray says funeral work constitutes her heaviest demand but orders for hospital flowers and parties have held up very well.

BAUMER ELECTED PRESIDENT.

At the January meeting of the florists' society, August R. Baumer was elected president of the organization. He had held the position of secretary, has hardly missed a meeting in years, and has always been one of the foremost workers for the society's success. He always has a smile and a good word for everybody. The meeting was addressed by H. G. Walker and H. Kleinstarink in regard to the plant and bulb exclusion act and on motion it was decided the society should use its influence in trying to have this restrictive measure rescinded, the president stating that he would appoint a committee for the purpose.

NOTES.

The George Schulz Co. greenhouses that have not been in operation during the past two years have been sold and it is reported that they will soon be in operation again.

Roy Pontrich, who was injured in an automobile accident, suffering a fractured skull, is improving rapidly and will be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

The New Nanz & Neuner Co. had the order for the floral decorations at the opening of the Liberty Insurance bank, recently re-modeled and refitted.

FUNERAL FLOWERS PRINCIPAL DEMAND.

Business is rather dull outside of funeral work, but this keeps up strong enough to compensate for the otherwise slow January demand. Prices remain off on all blooms as compared with the last three months of 1918. Roses come near being an exception, as they now bring from $3 to $7 per dozen. Carnations are in oversupply at $1.50. Sweet peas are good stock at a minimum of 75 cents per bunch. There are plenty of pot plants in the way of cyclamens, primroses, freesias and narcissi. All florists' displays still lack the variety and profusion that prevailed before production was cut down by war restrictions. With growers making great plans for the coming season, complete recovery is looked for in this respect, which it is believed will add greatly to popular trade.

NOTES.

Manager A. Newland, of the Fifth Avenue Floral Company's store, has been removed from his quarters at the Railway Y. M. C. A. to a local hospital.

While not fully recovered from an attack of the influenza, Mr. Newland took part in the holiday trade and suffered a relapse, which has kept him in bed for several weeks. Upon being able to make the trip, he expects to go to relatives in Michigan for care until he gets strong again.

Rudolph Czish, who has been with the Livingston Seed Company, has taken the position as manager for the Columbus Floral Company, wholesale growers. This is accepted to mean that the latter's large plant, the future of which was in some doubt, will become an important factor in the trade.

Officers of the Columbus Horticultural Society announce that they will take active part, financially and otherwise, in advancing locally the movement for planting permanent Christmas trees. J.

St. Louis.

GENERAL DEMAND IMPROVING.

The market during the past week was a little more active. Business seems to have picked up somewhat, with a slight increase in funeral work.

The general demand is increasing also. The supply of stock is very near normal, and the grade is good. Carnations form the bulk of the offerings and clean up daily. A slight increase in the supply of roses is also noted, but it is still short of the demand. Sweet peas, violets and bulbous stock have a good call. Snapdragon is in poor supply and a good cut would sell readily. Callas are coming in fine and move quickly. Lily of the valley is still scarce.

NOTES.

The publicity committee at its last meeting decided to do some advertising for Valentine's day and also some propaganda work in the newspapers to counteract the ill effects on the buying public by the adverse criticism appearing recently in the daily press.

The local florists are arranging a banquet to be held at the Planters' hotel, February 5, to which all florists are to be invited. A fine programme has been arranged, both entertaining and intellectual.

DEMAND SUFFICIENT FOR CLEANUP.

There does not appear to have been much excitement in the market, but the demand was well maintained throughout the week, which closed with everything sold out. There was a little backing up of carnations in the middle of the period with prices as low as $1 to $6, but the quotation at the week end was $6 to $8. Roses are a trifle offrop. This is particularly true of the shorter grades; anything worth having, bring $8. High grade Russells are exceptionally fine, as are the best Hadleys. These appear to be plentiful on account of the limited demand for such expensive grades. They are all used up, however, at satisfactory prices. Snapdragons, calendulas, daisies, freesias, and white and yellow narcissi are all good stocks that bring top figures. Easter lilies are still fairly plentiful, as are callas, at the record price of 25 cents each. There appears to be plenty of cattleyas and a goodly supply of splendid hlac, which always finds ready buyers. Violets are quite plentiful, there being a good lot of the Hudson River brand of doubles. Southern asparagus comprises fully two-thirds of the stock sold in this market. It arrives, as a rule, in very good condition. Why it is that men will spend good money for bulbous stock, use their expensive facilities and skill in bringing it to almost salable condition, and then lose all the fruits of their labor through a lack of judgment in cutting and marketing the stock? Bunches of fine, stout, long-stemmed sprays of freesia, cut with one flower open, one half developed, and some eight buds, most of them quite green, were offered in the market the past week. The stock was so green as to be almost unsalable. If cut with four flowers opened, and the remaining buds so developed that they would all open out in water the grower would receive at least 50 per cent more for his labor. As it was, he had to suffer a discount of at least 25 per cent. There is just as much skill in knowing when to cut flowers, in caring for and properly preparing them for handling in the market as there is in their successful culture. One-half the junk that accumulates in the wholesalers' ice boxes, and goes to the street men in their Saturday bargains, falls to this low condition through errors of some kind in its preparation at the finish, before it leaves the hands of the growers.

PROFITEERING.

In speaking of the resentful attitude of some retailers to the continuing high prices, a large wholesale dealer said he could not understand their point of view. They should endeavor to accustom their patrons to higher prices, not by apologies, as that only made matters worse, but by featuring their flowers and plants and giving better service. Where it was necessary to explain, compare the advance with that of any other business, which result would be favorable to flowers. There is no use in the retailer bucking market prices as they are controlled absolutely by supply and demand. Many storemen, because flowers cost more, wanted to increase of 50 cents. When they pay eight cents and at the same ratio get $2 per dozen, the gross is $1 for giving exactly the same service. Why should they then as a number of them do, increase their selling price from 50 cents to $1 per dozen more? They are not satisfied to make 100 per cent gross as when the stock cost four cents but now at the advanced prices, for exactly the same service, they jump their profit from 50 to 100 per cent more. Then they rail at the wholesalers and growers because of conditions over which neither have any control and by reason of which he, the retailer, has greatly profited. Take a man who did $3,000 a month a year ago at a cost for stock of $1,500. This year, at the increased prices, he does $6,000 at a cost for stock of $3,000, leaving a $3,000 gross, while last year his gross was only $1,500. His overhead, if increased 25 per cent, which is not likely, would still leave him $2,250. A handsome gross gain, due entirely to the advanced cost of flowers.

NOTES.

Charles Grakelow, in discussing conditions in the retail store, declares that no one now buys flowers unless they absolutely must have them, such as for funerals or other imperative occasions. When prices again become normal, the flower-lovers and casual buyers would all have to be educated over again and have their feet turned toward the flower shop, instead of at present straight in and hurriedly by on the other side. Frank Ross, who also keeps in close touch with the public pulse, through the medium of his three stores, says the epidemic is still a factor in the present demand for flowers. It is, however, gradually dying out and he expects prices to soon ease up. He is emphatic in his belief that supply and demand absolutely rule market prices, and that any combination to control such a perishable stock as flowers is impossible.

C. U. Liggit, who keeps tab on florists' plant stock, says that $50 a thousand for rooted geranium cuttings is in sight. They are not to be had at present at any price. Two-inch pot stock is eagerly sought for at these figures. These prices are fully 100 per cent over those of a year ago. Carnation stocks are rapidly advancing, and will likely soon reach $50 per thousand for all standard sorts; in fact, some are ahead of these figures now. Own root roses in all the standard varieties are in such demand that $100 per thousand will soon be the current price. This is also almost a 100 per cent increase over a year ago.

Edward Reid, whose experience as a wholesaler dates away back, claims to have been the first to use cleats in boxes of flowers to hold the ice in the center, which incidentally also strengthened the box. He also states that the asparagus growers of Florida, who followed his advice in their methods of preparation and packing, have their bunches arrive in the northern markets in the best possible condition.

Robert Craig said he never knew of florists' young stock for growing on to be as scarce as it is at present. Nobody wants to sell anything, most growers who usually have seedlings and rooted cuttings to offer not being able this year to accumulate any surplus.

Exceptionally fine Russell roses, snapdragons and carnations were features of the stock of the Leo Niessen Co. Mr. Niessen states that there is a healthy market condition, demand and supply being about evenly balanced.

The Jos. Heacock Co. is fortunate in securing additional practical men for their Roelf rose plant. There is an insistent demand for their entire cut; in fact, they could sell twice the stock if they had it.

Jos. Neidinger finds an enormous demand for his painted pinks and roses. He says he has kept many a florist alive, who, but for his hand made flowers, would now be out of business.

John Berger, of Berger Bros., is getting around, and was at the store for a time last week. Easter lilies, callas, carnations and sweet peas are quality stocks.

Lily of the valley and Champ Weiland roses are features of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange. Manager Deutscher reports business very good.

PRICES WEAKEN UNDER LIGHT DEMAND.

Business was slack in the wholesale district during the past week, up to January 17, when it showed more life. Although there is an increase in the supply of carnations, sweet peas, and various bulbous stock, there is no surplus of roses, the supply fluctuating and prices but little lower. The tendency in rose prices is downward, rather than upward, and as the supply is likely, henceforth, to be on the increase, lower prices may be expected. The call for special rose stock is not heavy which shows that society business is light with the retail stores. Eight dollars per 100 is about the top price for carnations and many are selling for $6. There is a good supply of Paper White narcissus on the market, and the yellow stock is on the increase. Prices on Easter lilies, rubrums and callas are easier. The demand for violets is light and they are going cheap. There is little change in conditions in orchids and gardenias. The light supply of stock is all that holds up the market, as, aside from funeral work, of which there is considerable, the majority of the retail stores are doing but a light business.

January 20.—The supply of stock is light and the market in an unsettled condition. The weather continues mild, but the supply of stock does not greatly increase.

NOTES.

A brief item that appeared in January 18 issue of THE AMERICAN FLORIST is worthy of general attention, and we here reproduce it: "Charles Cotter, in charge of the Lake View Rose Gardens, Jamestown, N. Y., has volunteered to co-operate with the Red Cross and the federal vocational educational board in teaching maimed soldiers to grow flowers and garden vegetables." We hope that many other growers will follow the example of Charles Cotter. Even before we entered the war, there was much talk among growers about the difficulty in securing proper help. The conditions during the war are too well known to require comment. Labor is one of the chief requisities, we might say the chief requisite, in the florist and gardening business. Men who stayed at home during the war and gained an advantage through the nation's necessity, may now fume and threaten, as some of them are doing, but one fact stands out clear, that all these returning soldiers that are willing to work, and we take it that most of them are willing, must and will be provided with work. The maimed ones should be particular objects—not of charity—but of sympathy and assistance. It is the opinion of the writer that the Society of American Florists, the American Seed Trade Association, the American Association of Nurserymen, the Vegetable Growers' Association and all horticultural societies and clubs, should have committees to seriously consider and act in this matter of assisting maimed soldiers who show an inclination to take up any branch of the business.

George D. Nicholas, the well-known retailer of Seventh avenue and 123rd street, sailed recently for Europe and a large delegation of Greek-American florists went to the pier to wish him bon voyage. He was accompanied by A. Stephanides, a lawyer. They go to Paris as a committee from the Greek-Americans of this country that were born in Turkey, to be present during the sessions of the peace conference. Mr. Nicholas was born there and possesses a large stock of first hand knowledge relating to Turkish misrule. He is an educated man and a fluent speaker in both our own and the Greek language. The Greeks are the leading merchants and comprise a large part of the population of Constantinople and other Turkish cities. The present Greek population of Constantinople is 300,000. Mr. Nicholas and his associate will co-operate with other committees and the Greek delegation to the convention in pushing the claims of Greece to have restored to her that part of Turkish territory which she formerly controlled.

Relating to the prospect of the country going "dry," W. G. Badgley, the wholesaler of 34 West 28th street, and who is also mayor of Chatham, N. J., says: "The whole traffic has been absolutely void of anything of a constructive or progressive nature and its passing can result in nothing but eventual national advantage. It is true that in the days of readjustment there will be some disturbance in capital, labor and real estate markets, but when these great elements are finally diverted to clean and constructive channels, the benefits to our country and to mankind will be very great. Gambling, robberies, murders and the costs of maintaining public institutions will be greatly reduced, moral and social standards will be advanced and family life elevated.

Although it was requested by Mrs. Roosevelt and the family, that no flowers be sent to the Colonel's funeral which was held at Oyster Bay January 5, many arrived. An eye witness states: "Flowers, coming in on trains, and on motor trucks, were heaped in many rooms at the Roosevelt home on Sagamore Hill; they were piled up in the little church, and were stacked in the Oyster Bay post office. This in spite of the family's request that there be no floral tributes.

On January 14, Frank E. Campbell, 1970 Broadway, arranged on the order of the "Lamb's club," an appropriate casket cover for the funeral of the late John Mason, a popular actor, and a grandson of Dr. Lowell Mason, formerly a noted musical composer. A number of fine designs were also arranged on the order of professional friends of the deceased actor.

We have heard no complaints from the florists over the prospect of this country going "dry." If there were any good reasons for extending sympathy to the wailing brewers and saloon-keepers, we would do so, but we can think of none. Figuratively speaking, the liquor business has dug its own grave.

The range at Flushing, recently conducted by the Knight & Struck Co., was sold under foreclosure proceedings, January 8. It was bid in by Mrs. H. D. Darlington, who we understand, held the mortgage. She and her husband were the former owners.

At Hession's, Madison avenue and 76th street, we have recently noticed evidence of business activity. Though he has two greenhouses in the rear of his store, we found them practically cleaned out of plants and a fresh lot arriving.

A second meeting of the creditors of Anglin & Walsh, bankrupt, will be held in the office of Seaman Miller, referee in bankruptcy, No. 2 Rector street, this city, January 30, for the purpose of electing a trustee and other business that may come before the meeting.

The Jewett City, (Conn.) Greenhouses are shipping to George C. Siebrecht a fine quality of the red carnation, Merry Christmas. Manager Van Reyper, of Siebrecht's, says that they will keep in good condition for one week.

Jack, the Florist, 3604 Broadway, advises us that he is selling strawberries and can make them pay better than flowers, at the present prices of flowers.

Fred Lenz, buyer for David Clarke's Sons, has been on the sick list for the past two weeks. Marshall Clarke, a member of the firm, has in the meantime, been making occasional visits to the wholesale district.

Ralph Armstrong, 400 Madison avenue, who last fall sustained a bad fracture of one of his legs, is about again, almost as good as new, and says he has no complaint to make about business.

J. J. Coan, 115 West 28th street, has recently filled a number of good out of town orders. He is carrying a stock of Easter lilies, forget-me-nots and carnations.

Chris E. Zervakos, who has two good retail stores, one at Madison avenue and 92nd street, the other at Columbus avenue and 86th street, is now a proud father.

Peter F. McKenney, Fifth avenue, and 42nd street, reports good business. His store is small, but in that location, he is in no danger of being overlooked.

A new retail store has been opened at 406 East 167th street, in the Bronx, by Smith & Weninger. Both are experienced men in the business.

In addition to other stock, William Kessler, 113 West 28th street, is receiving shipments of sweet peas.

J. P. McCormick, formerly of Chicago, is now in the retail store of J. V. Armstrong, 713 Eighth avenue.

William Mackie, 105 West 28th street, is receiving Spencer sweet peas and Golden Spur narcissus.

Riedel & Meyer, 49 West 28th street, have been showing a particularly fine stock of iris. A. F. F.

PIITSFIELD, MASS.—The Flower Shop, 40 Fenn street, has been incorporated. Stanley S. Barnes, while retiring from active management, will still retain his interest, and Charles D. Mackie, formerly of Cromwell, Conn., will become identified with the new organization.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June, 1919.

BAGS are lower.

THE advance guard of the California growers are talking $1.50 onion.

CANNERS say the large 1918 pack is hanging heavy on their hands.

DILL has been talked of as a remedy for influenza. Ask Len Wheeler for details.

"STURDY SEEDS" are those offered by Weeber & Don in their new trade list for 1919.

JOBBERS in Japanese stocks say there will be no delivery in this country of 1918 crop lily bulbs.

IMPORT and export houses are disappointed at the continued lack of ocean shipping facilities.

J. C. BODGER, of John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif., reached Chicago, January 22, bound east.

L. W. WHEELER, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif., left Chicago for Minneapolis, January 22.

TENERIFFE advices are that the new crop of onion for seed is coming along in normal fashion except for lack of rain.

FRED H. HUNTER, of the Hunter Seed Co., San Francisco, Calif., is accompanied by Mrs. Hunter on his eastern trip.

ALLING WOODRUFF, of S. D. Woodruff & Sons, New York, expects to proceed to California, via Seattle, after the canners' convention at Chicago.

HOWARD M. EARL, lately of F. W. Bolgiano & Co., Washington, D. C., is now with the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., and expects to sail for Europe, January 25.

TOLEDO, O.—Clover was steady January 18, at $25.15, a drop of 10 cents during the week. April timothy was 10 cents lower. Cash was offered at $4.90, January $4.90, February $4.92½, March $5.00, April $5.00, and September $5.50.

GRANDPA MASSIE, president of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., stopped off at Chicago this week, returning from Washington, D. C., where he attended the winter meeting of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association executive committee.

THE PIETERS-WHEELER SEED Co., Gilroy, Calif., says the A. J. Pieters and W. A. Wheeler, now in Europe securing information for the department of agriculture on seed supplies and crops as representatives of the government are in no way identified with the firm's business.

A. L. ROGERS, of Alpena, Mich., who attended the canners' convention at Chicago this week, has about completed shipments from Idaho, where he was laid up temporarily by an attack of influenza. Mr. Rogers has lately concluded the purchase of a Chicago warehouse site, 250x600 feet, with railroad connections in the west part of the city.

The Late Henry W. Wood.

Henry W. Wood, senior member of the firm of T. W. Wood & Sons, Richmond, Va., died suddenly at New Orleans, La., January 14, while enroute to California where he was going to regain his health. The exact cause of his death is not known at this time.

Mr. Wood was born in Newark, Eng., in 1864, and came to America with his father, the late T. W. Wood, who founded the firm in 1879. The deceased had long been actively engaged in the business and was prominent in social and church circles. He had always taken a keen interest in gining of that organization, was elected its president at the twenty-fourth annual convention at Toledo, O., in 1906, and had been a member of the board of directors of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League. He also served two years as president of the Virginia State Agricultural Society, had held a like position on the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, was a director of the First National Bank of that city and president of the Richmond Implement Co. He possessed a buoyant personality and made friends everywhere.

Mr. Wood is survived by three sons, Robert W., H. R. and Gordon F. Wood; by two brothers, William P., of Richmond, and C. Frank Wood, of Chicago, and by one sister, Mrs. H. Stuart McLean, of Richmond. His remains were laid to rest in Holywood cemetery, January 17.

New York Seed Trade.

Great activity is now noticed in all the seed stores in preparation for the spring trade.

One of George Burnett's sons who has been in the service has been given his honorable discharge, and is back in the store of Burnett Brothers.

A force is now busy at Weeber & Don's sending out catalogues.

A. F. F.

HARRY A. BARNARD, the genial representative of the Stuart Low Co., London, Eng., in sending holiday greetings to his numerous American friends, says the big town on the Thames is crowded far beyond comfortable capacity with British, Colonial and American soldiers and sailors, the vast throng joyous in the main, the gladness dimmed in many places, however, by the grief of those who look in vain for the coming of their loved ones. Referring to business, he adds, the wonder is they have not suffered more and that the cheeriest prophet could never have predicted that they would have held their heads above water after four years of such terrible war havoc.

BABSON says when the new crops throughout the world begin to mature, foreign demand will diminish and most grain prices will fall. This remark, of course, applies equally to seed crops.

CANDYTUFT QUEEN OF ITALY, according to a careful seed grower, has all the earmarks of being a perennial.

Dreer's Reliable Flower Seeds

New crops of most of the important items are now ready and the balance are expected shortly. Do not delay ordering your supply of the kinds that should be sown early, such as Ageratum, Alyssum, Antirrhinum, Centaurea, Cobaea, Dracaena, Heliotrope, Moonflower, Lantana, Lobelia, Maurandia, Petunia, Pyrethrum, Salvia, Thunbergia, Verbena, Vinca, Etc.

We call the special attention of Florists to the following:

NEW SCARLET SAGE

"America" or "Globe of Fire"

This is without doubt the finest Scarlet Sage ever sent out. It is the earliest to come into bloom, and flowers continuously till the end of the season, and what is equally as important, it is absolutely uniform in growth, about 15 inches high, with the brilliant scarlet spikes thrown well above the plant making a total height of about 2 feet. The seed we offer is our own saving. 50c per trade pkt.; $1.00 per oz.

Dreer's Superb Large Flowering Fringed Petunias

Our own unrivaled strain, and too well known to require description, we offer

Double-flowering fringed, 75c per 500 seeds; $1.50 per 1000 seeds.

Single-flowering fringed, 50c per trade pkt.

Our new Wholesale Price List, just issued, containing a complete list of all the Seeds, Plants and Bulbs we offer, has been mailed. If you did not receive a copy, we will be pleased to send one to any Florist on application.

President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky.,
Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids,
Mich., Treasurer.

HUNDREDS of thousands of dollars have been sunk in the Hackensack Meadows in efforts to drain them and turn them into gardens as would be done in Holland.

SPOKANE, WASH.—The range of Walter Phillips and brother, who have been engaged in war work, will be reopened in its entirety and devoted principally to cucumbers, tomatoes and lettuce this season.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—Owing to unsettled labor conditions and an unfavorable season, the sweet potato crop was very short and prices are extremely high. But few are stored here, not enough for home supply.

CHARLES L. PACK, president of the war garden commission, says that the 5,000,000 gardeners of 1918 must be doubled this year to show that this country means business in producing an antidote for Bolsheviki poison.

Seed Potatoes Barred from Oklahoma.

Oklahoma has placed a quarantine on seed potatoes, both Irish and sweet, including plants and cuttings. Every shipment from outside the state must carry a tag bearing a copy of the certificate of inspection made during the growth of the potatoes offered. The state needs ordinarily 350,000 bushels of seed potatoes. The problem of securing that amount of certified seed is a hard one.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, January 21.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $5.00 to $6.00; celery, crate, $1.75 to $2.25; head lettuce, crate, $5.50; radishes, per dozen bunches, 50 to 60 cents; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $3.00 to $4.50.

New York, January 20.—Celery (state), per case, $3.00 to $10.00; cucumbers, $1.00 to $2.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.85 per basket; tomatoes, per pound, 15 to 35 cents; lettuce, per package, $2.00 to $4.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $5.00.

Vegetable Markets.

There was a heavy movement for the time of the year according to reports received by the bureau of markets of the department of agriculture for the period January 14-21. There was a sharp reaction in the potato situation the gain of the previous week being practically lost under pressure of liberal supplies. Declines of from 10 to 70 cents were quite general and more severe in the west than in the east. Carlots of New York, Michigan and Wisconsin No. 1 sacked white stock averaged a 25-cent loss at Chicago. Sales to jobbers fell to a general range of $2-$2.35. The cabbage market also tended downward in producing sections. New York Danish Seed weakened to a closing range of $24-$26 per ton f. o. b. and followed a fairly wide range of $25-$40 in consuming markets. Wisconsin Holland seed declined about $5 to a range of $22-$26 and closed at an average of $23. Florida stock advanced 25 cents ranging $1.75-$2.25 per hamper in northern markets. Texas flat type held at $3-$3.50 per 100 pounds. The onion market showed a strong tone strengthening in New York producing sections to $1.75-$2 f. o. b. for best yellow stock. Consuming markets ranged $1.75-$2.25 for eastern and midwestern yellows; California brown and yellow stock averaged 25 cents higher. Celery was fairly steady. California Golden Heart ranged 75 to 95 cents per dozen in producing sections. Prices in consuming markets ranged fairly steady at $9-$12.50 per case. California Iceberg lettuce continued to advance reaching a range of $3-$3.25 in producing sections. Consuming markets advanced to $5-$5.50 per crate. Florida head made a similar advance.

Possibilities of One Acre.

We notice that this old topic is again popular. The proper answer, off-handed, is, of course, that there is hardly a limit. The most important factor is the man behind the gun, and then come many conditions, some controllable and others not. We have had one select acre last season, which has set a new record with us. However, we wish to state that circumstances were all in our favor. First in hand came long experience, both in growing and marketing; second, an excellent piece of land; third, an unusually dry and hot season, bringing out all there was in mechanical watering; fourth, unusual market conditions, heavy demand, high prices, low supply in general; fifth, an unprecedented long growing season, extending from April 15 to December 1. All these factors may never again appear together in a life time.

As an example, for intensive gardening, we measured off one-seventh of an acre. This was planted to Longfellow string beans in April. Immediately after, the two and one-half-foot rows between the beans were drilled to Scarlet Globe radishes. After removing the beans, the land was replowed, planted to celery in five-foot rows and the spaces between the rows, drilled to leaf lettuce. All these crops were a success; the beans sold for $2 to $2.50 per bushel; the radishes for 40 cents per dozen bunches; the lettuce sold at 12 cents per pound, and the celery all the way from 75 cents to $1 per dozen, all wholesale. In figures, the radishes sold for nearly $75, the beans $125, the lettuce $100 and the celery $150, a total of $450 for the one-seventh acre.

The other parts of this acre did as well under different arrangements. A favorite combination with us has been Crosby beets, early, followed by late celery, intercropped by lettuce.

We have also had these combinations go all wrong. We have had the beans killed by frost when in bloom, the radishes destroyed by maggots, the celery came hollow and worthless, and the leaf lettuce strike a glutted market with no demand whatever. We write this side of the story to caution the enthusiast to prepare himself for bitter disappointments. This class of farming is a gamble, pure and simple.

as agencies are at work for or against us, over which we have no control. Too often we read of such successful crops as being the rule, not the exception, when in fact, they are the exceptions. But in the long run the patient and skillful operator will manage to come out on top. The past season, we believe, was the first season in our affairs when more work was done in the packing room than in the fields; in other words, the crops came on so heavy, and with little labor, that it took more time to prepare for market than to produce them. MARKETMAN.

Tomato Seed for Canning Varieties.

Every grower of tomatoes for the factory, may to his advantage, build up his own strains particularly adapted to his own local conditions, according to S. N. Green in the Monthly Bulletin of the Ohio agricultural experiment station, Wooster. With little labor, one may grow his own stock seed, which is more valuable, and usually costs less than any that can be bought on the open market. In making such selections, the whole plant, not a cluster nor a single fruit, must be considered a unit. As tomatoes begin to ripen, look over the field carefully and mark such plants as most nearly meet your ideals as to perfection. Inspect these marked plants carefully in midseason; take seed only from those meeting requirements, and save the seed before the plant has exhausted itself by bearing and seed becomes light in weight.

It is well, in order to do careful work in breeding up strains, to save seed from each plant individually, and the following season place the progeny from such plants in a row or plot by themselves, about 50 plants being all that under usual conditions will be required. In this manner an accurate idea as to the relative merits of each selection can be obtained. By keeping pickings separate and weighing the crop the relative production of each strain can also be measured. Also resistance to blight and other diseases can be noted.

The saving of tomato seed in quantity is a simple operation and no grower need fear to attempt it. At present high prices of seed it is a dejected economy. One can cut the fruit in halves, exposing fully the cells, from which the pulp with adhering seed may be quickly squeezed into a barrel or crock. Allow this pulp to ferment, a day or two being sufficient in warm weather. Then add at least its volume of water; stir thoroughly; allow the seeds to settle, and pour the water and pulp off. Repeat this operation until the seeds are perfectly clean, when they can be drained and dried. Sack the dried seed and carefully label, and you have your next season's stock seed, and for several seasons if sufficient seed is saved, as it will retain its vitality for three or four years.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

A joint meeting of the association and the ladies' auxiliary was held January 16 in the rooms of the chamber of commerce. After the routine business was gone through with, members were called for from those members who attended the publicity meeting in Philadelphia. Harry K. Rohrer said that all present were impressed with the good features of the work done and the necessity for the future, and added that he thought it would be a good thing if every one interested in the business would give one cent out of each dollar received during the year. This would be an infinitesimal tax in proportion to what other businesses are doing and yet would bring in a good working revenue for the publicity committees. B. F. Barr said that he fully realized the benefits of the publicity of the past year and that no doubt much more would be accomplished in the year to come, that his business has shown a steady increase each month since April when business was not influenced by the conditions prevalent in the fall and said that he was going to double his subscription of the past year.

A. M. Herr remarked on the enthusiasm that was shown at the Philadelphia meeting and was sorry there were not more of our members to attend as he believed that could they have heard the history of this work, and the outline for the coming year, that this club would come forward with a good big subscription, and that he was going to give all the members a chance to subscribe within the next 60 days. President Elmer Weaver vouched for all that had been said, and added that he believed in the moral of W. F. Therkildson's story, that the important part was to get the money for this work first. He insisted that no grower, no retail man, no supply house, no one connected with this business, could afford to stay out.

The visiting committee announced a trip to Strasburg for the meeting, February 20. The following committees were appointed: Programme—B. F. Barr, Chas. M. Weaver and M. J. Brinton. Membership—Chas. B. Herr, Ira Landis and Rutter Hess. Visiting—H. K. Rohrer, Lemon Landis and W. E. Girvin. Exhibition—A. K. Rohrer, Rudolph Nagle and J. Wade Galey.

President Weaver then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Albert M. Herr, president of the ladies' auxiliary, who read a very interesting paper on war gardens, giving her experiences in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and other cities as a member of the emergency aid. She asked for a discussion as to the relation between the war gardens and the florists' business. D. J. Keohane, of the Henry F. Michell Co., said they had a good market for vegetable plants, but the profits for the ordinary greenhouse man were nothing extraordinary. B. F. Barr said that the retail man had to carry vegetable plants to accommodate his customers, and that the war gardens helped increase the demand so that they made an important addition to the spring's business. Some of the growers who attend the local markets find them a profitable side line, but those who attempted them as a wholesale proposition, will have none this season.

Mrs. E. F. Barr, Mrs. A. K. ## The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward M. on, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-four annual convention will be held at Chicago in 1919.

BOSTON, MASS.—The annual meeting of the New England Nurserymen's Association will be held at the Hotel Bellevue, this city, January 28-29. An interesting programme has been arranged.

AMERICAN nurserymen are complaining that even with the high freight rates from England, packing charges are still worse, small manetti cases being charged for at the rate of $11 each and upward.

P. S. RIDSDALE, secretary of the American Forestry Association, points out that the reforestation of France is an important part of the reconstruction programme. Of the 900,000 population in the devastated area, about 50 per cent were dependent upon forests during six months of the year. Fifteen pounds of fir seed, which will raise 50,000 trees, worth $1,000,000, have been sent to France by the association.

Illinois Nurserymen's Association.

The second annual meeting of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association will be held at the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, February 5-6. A splendid programme has been prepared and this promises to be a better convention than that of last year, which in the opinion of all who attended was an exceptionally interesting and profitable meeting.

A. M. AUGUSTINE, Sec'y.

Tree Memorials for New Jersey Heroes

Camp Dix, Wrightstown, N. J., as a permanent army post will have a living tree as memorial for every New Jersey boy who has died in the service, under arrangements announced this week by the committee on camp beautification appointed by Major General Hugh L. Scott. Shade tree experts will complete details so that every main avenue and cross road through the great cantonment can be lined with magnificent sylvan columns of triumph which will stand through future generations as a tribute to the part taken by boys from the "Garden State" in the war.

The committee, of which Frank Wandel, general secretary of the Knights of Columbus, is chairman, announces that the project will be submitted soon to every municipality in New Jersey. Cities, boroughs and townships will be asked to present a tree for every man from their respective municipality who has died while in the service. The committee will select the varieties of trees to be planted, so that it can carry out a universal scheme of beautification.

Arbor day probably will be selected as the date for planting the trees, either by home town delegations at designated points or to be forwarded to the camp and planted by soldiers of the permanent garrison.

Berckmans' Nursery Sold.

The nursery and landscape interests of the P. J. Berckmans' Co., Inc., Augusta, Ga., has been sold to Sigmund Tarnok, who has also purchased the home and farm of R. C. Berckmans, opposite the Fruitland Nurseries, by which name the Berckmans place has long been known. The deal is one of the largest to be consummated in Augusta in many years, but the figures are not given out.

In addition to the purchases already made, Mr. Tarnok has leased the nursery lands of R. C., L. A. and P. J. A. Berckmans, Jr., with options to buy later in the season. The new owner has retained the complete field and office force of the concern and it will be conducted as heretofore by experienced employes.

The sale does not in any way affect the property of the Berckmans Broth-

URGENT.

Plant Imports Danger.

Unless the plant growers and nurserymen of the United States take prompt and vigorous action, it is likely that all imports of palms, azaleas, roses, rhododendrons, box and bay trees, etc., also general nursery stock, from Europe will be shut out under the proposed plan of the federal horticultural board unless the present programme of that body is changed.

What To Do.

Every florist, nurseryman and seedsmen should at once telegraph protests to his representatives in Congress, both Senate and House of Representatives, also to Dr. C. L. Marlatt, Chairman Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D. C.

Do It Today.

ers, at Mayfield, where they have one of the finest orchards and farms in the south. In addition to devoting their time to this property, L. A. Berckmans and P. J. A. Berckmans, Jr., will do special work as consulting horticulturists, and they have already been retained as experts by several of the largest orchard interests in the south, both being famous as experts in this line.

Sigmund Tarnok, the new owner of Fruitland Nurseries, is a native of Switzerland, but has been in America about five years and is well versed in this line of work in the south. He married a daughter of J. B. Reeves, of Macon, and he has been employed by the Central City for the past year as landscape artist. He is a graduate of Stuttgart University and of School of Landscape Gardening and Architecture at Budapest.

The change of ownership and management of the Fruitland Nurseries comes after over half a century of progress and success, the concern now being known throughout the world. The retiring owners bespeak for Mr. Tarnok the highest consideration of the public and they are confident he will demonstrate his ability to the satisfaction of the old and new patrons of the nurseries.

It will be gratifying to the countless friends of the two brothers in Augusta and vicinity to know that they will retain their residences there R. C. Berckmans, the other of the trio, has been in Macon for the past year where he is engaged in a business that is making great strides throughout the south.

Silk from Trees.

The process of turning trees into silk stockings through the transformation of wood pulp into cellulose, to produce the artificial silk threads, is simple. The wood pulp is treated with caustic soda to form a sodium cellulose and then dissolved in carbon disulphide. The product, alkali-cellulose-xanthate is a viscous solution popularly called viscose and, after being filtered and allowed to ripen by standing, is forced through minute openings in a metal plate into a liquid which solidifies the threads, which are when completed similar in appearance, dimensions and chemical qualities to the fiber produced by the silk worm.

Salt Lake City.

FUNERAL WORK ABSORBS SHORT SUPPLY.

Trade since the holidays has been limited to funerals. These, however, have been numerous. Stock continues scarce and prices have declined but little. The retailers have to depend largely upon receipts from California, which condition is very unsatisfactory owing to stiff prices charged by the coast growers, the high express charges, and where one good shipment is received two show the effects of pickling, especially flowers from the southern part of the state.

NOTES.

The trade in this city were grieved to hear of the death of Charles Adams of Butte, Mont., who died January 5 of influenza. The deceased was well-known among the craft having been foreman of the Salt Lake Floral Co's. range from 1906 to 1914. He had the distinction of growing the first good roses in this state. He leaves a widow and one daughter, who now resides in Los Angeles and one son, Arthur, who is now with the United States troops somewhere in Germany.

The Sanders Floral Co. has moved into its handsome new store at Main and Second South street and is much pleased with its new location.

UTAH.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The florists' club has elected the following officers to serve during 1919: W. F. Bultman, president; S. C. Baker, vice-president; L. J. Mulhauser, secretary-treasurer.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Annual Meeting and Exhibition, Cleveland, O., January 29-30, 1919.

The Opening Day.

As we go to press, the American Carnation Society opens its twenty-eighth annual meeting and exhibition at the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, O., the dates being January 29-30, a more extended account of which will appear in our next week's issue. Despite the many hardships that have confronted growers during the past season, the exhibits promise to be excellent with a representative attendance from various sections of the country.

When the exhibition opened Wednesday afternoon, there were staged awaiting the action of the judges, more than 6,000 blooms, transportation difficulties being responsible to a large extent that the number of exhibits was not greater.
In the majority of the displays the consensus of opinion was that the quality was fully up to standard and in some instances better than in previous years.
An excellent display came from as far west as Denver, Colo., staged by the Washington Park Floral Co. of that city. Among the other exhibitors who arranged entries the opening day were the following: Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind.; Jos. H. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C.; J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland,
O.; W. D. Howard, Boston, Mass.; Peter
Fisher, Ellis, Mass.; Joy Floral Co.,
Nashville, Tenn.; Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O.; A. J. Stahelin, Redford, Mich.; Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Charles S. Strout, Biddeford, Me., and S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass.

Excellent exhibits of other stock were made by the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., who featured Rose Premier; Fred
H. Lemon & Co., of the same city with Primula malacoides; the Wm. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y., with Chrysanthemum Hamburg Late White, as well as the pink variety; the American Bulb
Co., Chicago, whose display included 27 varieties of gladiolus bulbs; Carl Hagenburger, who had primroses and Freesia Purity, while there were excellent table arrangements by local firms, including the J. M. Gasser Co.,

Smith & Fetters Co., Knoble Bros., A.
M. Albrecht and the Jones-Russell Co.

President Strout's Address.

It has been our privilege to meet in convention in this delightful city of Cleveland on former occasions. It is my pleasure to bid you hearty welcome to this twenty-eighth annual convention. We are all conscious that the past year has been the most difficult year we have faced since our society was formed. The conditions produced by the great war found us in a field of uncertainty, in which many of us were doubtful as to whether we should plough and set our plants to grow, or whether we should retrench and wait a more favorable time. The problem of Hamlet, "To be or not to be," was ours. The air was filled with forebodings of a coal shortage. Dame Rumor said the florists' business was to be shut down as a non-essential. To meet the situation, the American Carnation Society and the Society of American Florists sent a delegation to Washington and, partly as a result of their arguments, the dictum of the fuel administration was that growers using more than 40 tons a year should be allotted 50 per cent of the average amount used for the past three years;
those of 40 tons or less, the full amount.
Private growers were denied the use of coal.

The fuel shortage has not been an unmixed evil. To illustrate, one of our well known growers reduced his glass one-third, yet produced 30,000 more blooms than the previous year in the same period with all his glass. This he brought about by careful, intensive work and conservative use of fuel.

Charles S. Strout, Biddeford, Me.
President American Carnation Society.

A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind.
Secretary American Carnation Society.

Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O.
Vice-President American Carnation Society.

The spirit of patriotism among our younger men led them into the army or navy; the draft laid its hand upon some, and a labor shortage added its problem for many growers, among those who entered the service of the United States being our then president, W. J. Vesey, Jr., and David Ward, one of our judges.

Like all other lines of business, we were affected by the scarcity of supplies and prevailing high prices. Difficulties of transportation made the delivery of express companies uncertain. We were beset on all sides, and to add to the story, the high percentage of sunless days has made the past year an exceedingly difficult one.

In spite of all, however, this has been one of the most profitable seasons for florists. The old law of supply and demand has led to higher average prices, and the phenomenal amount of sickness created a quick demand for all we could offer. The circle of clients has been largely increased by the advance in wages produced by special war work in shipbuilding, ammunition factories and mills. This increased demand has enabled both grower and retailer to secure a reasonable price and profit, and brings to our minds once again the question as to whether or not we can bring about a minimum and maximum price in the interests of both grower and retailer. These are days of co-operation; a league of interests should help us solve this question.

The fact that florists the country over have generously donated flowers to Red Cross drives and campaigns for Y. M. C. A., K. of C. and similar organizations indicates the spirit of patriotism and the opportunity for service outside our regular field of business. There are several growers of whom I know in New England, who have contributed flowers which have netted $1,500 each for such work.

Early in November brought the glad tidings of the signing of the armistice and the removal of restrictions on travel, and with it our energetic secretary took up the plans for this convention. You are all well aware that the railway administration had frowned on gatherings similar to ours. Traveling was discouraged in every way, and our plans had been more or less tentative. Thanks to the executive ability of Mr. Baur, and the interest of the local committee on arrangements, there is every indication of one of the most successful anniversaries we have had.

It has seemed to me that the phenomenal circumstances under which we have labored the past year, called for review for permanent record. Believing it will meet with the approval of this society, I suggest to you that steps be taken to furnish fitting recognition of the members of the society who have entered the service of the United States. What form this recognition should take I think could readily be determined by a committee appointed for the purpose.

As an aid in reconstruction, and as a mark of our respect and sympathy for our brave allies, I would suggest that this society correspond with French floral societies and offer them carnation stock to replace that destroyed by the ravages of war. I am sure individual growers will be happy to send stock for this purpose.

I further recommend that the American Carnation Society go on record as urging carnation growers, in groups or sections, to try for more uniform prices and more accurate grading of stock. Well grown carnations are worth the average price paid this season, and all things considered, should command a better price than has been paid in the past few seasons. But the extreme prices, high or low, demoralize the market and react unfavorably on all branches of our business. Growers and retailers can improve the present conditions and perhaps the American Carnation Society can aid in the matter.

Secretary Baur's Report.

The past year has been a memorable one for the carnation industry. On account of the uncertainty in business generally, the restrictions imposed by the government in the early part of the year, and the subsequent release from all restraint toward the close of the year, there has been a chaotic condition running through the entire period. The depression caused by the restrictions was reflected clearly in the lack of enthusiasm among the craft, and this naturally affected the interest shown in the activities of the trade societies. At the time of the Boston convention, in January, 1918, conditions were at their worst, resulting in a convention which was almost entirely local, and while our New England members staged a splendid exhibition, the benefits accruing from a large and enthusiastic attendance were lacking. Receipts fell off, while prices on everything needed by the society advanced, causing a depletion of the treasury which gave more or less concern. The printing of the annual report was deferred, pending the collection of sufficient funds, but thanks to the generosity of our president and a number of our New England members, who contributed some $60, the report appeared only three months late. It is gratifying to note, however, that since the great revival of business, due to the return of peace, and the extraordinary demand caused by the influenza epidemic, our members are showing a quickened interest in the affairs of the society. Receipts have increased to such an extent that the year's total receipts are about normal, but still not enough to cover the increase in expenditures. It is hoped that the saving effected in the coming year's expenditures may be sufficient to put the treasury back to a normal condition.

During the past year we have collected from membership assessments, $628; from advertising, $150.20, and miscellaneous, $96, a total of $874.20, all of which was turned over to the treasurer and his receipt taken therefor. The books of the secretary and treasurer were audited by a public accountant and found correct, the auditor's report being submitted along with these reports.

A complete list of our members was submitted to the Society of American Florists, who reported that 223 of our members are also members in that society, entitling us to representation on their executive board. President Strout has been appointed to represent our society on that board during the year 1919. A change was made in the conditions for filling this office, enabling the vice-president to serve in case the president is unable to serve.

The national flower show, which was to have been held in St. Louis, Mo., last spring, was postponed indefinitely. The preliminary expenses incurred on account of this proposed exhibition, less the profits from the convention held there in August, were $5,984.95. Ten per cent of this amount is charged up against our society and remains a liability until the fifth national flower show is held, after which a final accounting is to be made. The S. A. F. has agreed to carry this liability until that time.

The summer meeting of the board of directors was set for November, in order to gauge better the conditions that would likely prevail at the time of this convention. The influenza epidemic prevented a meeting at that time, and the meeting was finally dispensed with altogether, the arrangements for this convention being made by mail.

On account of the unsatisfactory express service and the scarcity of stock, the board deemed it inadvisable to attempt an exhibition of the size and scope of former years. The premium schedule was modified in such a way as to encourage the staging of the new varieties, with a few classes for the standard sorts. This list was later augmented by a number of open classes, for which the Cleveland Florists' Club agreed to stand sponsor. This change is intended for only this year's exhibition, in the hope that a return may be made to normal conditions during the present year.

Our convention being the first meeting of national scope since the signing of the armistice, the board invited the S. A. F. to join us in a peace celebration at our banquet. This invitation was accepted and arrangements have been made to carry out the idea. This society may take just pride in the fact that a number of our members went into the military service and give thanks to a divine providence for their safe return. No casualties among our members have been reported up to the present time.

There were submitted, during the past year for registration three seedlings and one sport. No registrations were sent over from Europe.

To the trade press is due our thanks for the publication of all matter sent to them. They have been of material assistance to the society during the past year.

Early Awards.

The gold medal of the American Carnation Society in Class 1, for the best vase of 100 blooms of any variety, scoring not less than 88 points, was awarded to the Joseph H Hill Co., for Laddie. In Class 2, Strouts carried off the silver medal for the best vase of 50 blooms of any undisseeded variety of American origin scoring not less than 88 points, with Sunshine, formerly designated as Seedling S09. The Fred Dorner Memorial gold medal for the best vase of 100 blooms of any undissemated seedling variety (sports not eligible) which has been in cultivation at least three years, scoring not less than 85 points, was awarded to Baur & Steinkamp for Rùth Baur.

Carnation Democracy.

The accompanying illustration is one of three houses of Carnation Democracy, from a photograph taken January 20, 1919. This is the carnation that took the first prize over all comers at the Grand Central Palace last spring, and the growers hope to have it on exhibition at the meeting of the American Carnation Society at Cleveland, January 20-30. It is said to be a great money maker, the cut from the 25,000 plants being beyond expectations. None of the flowers have been sold for less than $16 per 100, and the majority of the cut retailed at from $3 to $5 per dozen. None of the stock is being offered at the present time. During the past season, quite a number were cut with 30-inch stems, with flowers measuring from four and one-fourth to four and three-fourths inches in diameter. The color is in a class by itself, reminding one of a magnificent, glowing, light-pink peony, and it is said that for wedding work and funeral clusters it has no equal. If it had no other virtue than that it does not split, it is spoken of as a wonderful variety, far surpassing Enchantress.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—George C. Saltford, prominent florist, of this city and widely known in the trade, died suddenly at his home January 10.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

St. Valentine's Day.

One of the mid-winter floral holidays, which should be featured and made the most of by all retailers, is February 14, St. Valentine's day, when hearts are trump and sweethearts reign supreme. St. Valentine, poor fellow, was beheaded, February 14, in Rome, way back in the time of Claudius. His name became attached to the day, and as it was about this time of the year that birds began to mate, the sweetheart that was selected on that day was called a valentine. Love and sentiment are the salient features of the day, expressed in many ways, but in none better than the sending of flowers. Everything should be done by the trade to encourage this custom and emphasize the fact that flowers are the ideal medium with which to carry messages of love and sentiment. It is unfortunate that to many of the trade, the day dawns and passes, without any kind of recognition or apparent knowledge of its possibilities. Business has literally to be forced on some people, as they do little or nothing to encourage it.

Valentine's day offers a great opportunity to the wide-awake florist to draw attention to his store; by clever manipulation, his stock takes on an entirely different appearance, his plants and flowers are for the day valentines, appropriate, and the very thing to carry messages of love and devotion to the youngest, or the oldest and best sweetheart of all.

The day should be featured well in advance. The circus does not wait until the day it comes to town to put up its flaring posters of "the greatest show on earth." They are up fully two weeks ahead, telling their story every day, again and again, to the passers by. The florist's windows should have displayed, the first week in February, good sized red cardboard hearts with the date, February 14, in the center. Others with the slogan, "Say it with flowers," diagonally across the center, will be found very effective. These hearts should be at least 12 inches in diameter, with white or gilt letters. The posterette of the Chicago Florists' Club is a splendid idea, which, if used universally, would do much to advertise the day.

The most popular floral valentine is the corsage of violets, cattleyas, sweet peas, gardenias, Ward or other roses. Pins, with heart shaped heads, are most appropriate for the day. The ribbons should also have attached, small heart and cupid seals. They should also be packed in heart-shaped boxes. Heart-shaped hampers, filled with cut flowers, make appropriate gifts. The box of flowers with its valentine card or message enclosed can, with the aid of heart and cupid seals, be made very attractive.

Medium sized baskets of foliage and flowering plants will be found very popular as valentine gifts. Small hampers, filled with three and four-inch pot crotons, dracenas, crested ferns, Primula malacoides and cyclamens, and decorated with ribbons, pussy willow sprays, etc., make attractive combinations. Valentine seals, arrows, and the like, attached to the ribbons, associate them with the day.

All the flowering plants of the season can be featured in the same way, the pots covered with mats or crepe paper, or plain papers, white outside with an inner sheet the color of the flower. The various Valentine emblems attached designate their purpose. The plant decorated with white paper, should first be placed in a good sized saucer. This is set in the center of a square of paper, which is then drawn up loosely, the ends extending well above the pot. The colored paper is placed inside and held in place with the tie, preferably of fibre ribbon, that binds the outside sheet. This decoration costs but a few cents, but adds 25 per cent to the selling price of any plant. The difference between a dozen plants in plain pots or featured in this manner, is very marked.

The various small receptacles, such as vase or tumbler baskets, cardboard or wooden figures, called "Valentine Kiddies," with tins at the back for flowers, fill nicely, and will, with a touch of ribbon, be found attractive and salable.

The window for the week before February 14, should be made to feature the day in every possible way, with empty cut flower and heart-shaped boxes, some open with a sample corsage, others tied and decorated, with address tags all ready for delivery. Plant baskets and hampers and decorated plants, all artistically arranged, will attract attention and be productive of much new business.

It is a good time to circularize one's trade. The various firms who make a specialty of florists' advertising, furnish very attractive matter that, being issued in large quantities, is furnished to separate firms, with their imprint, much cheaper than they could have them printed locally. Nicely worded messages can, however, be printed on colored cards, slightly larger than postal size, that cost but one cent to mail, and are sure to be read. These reminders that one is ready, right up-to-date and anxious for business, are well worth while.

Florists' Telegraph Delivery members should make this a great day for getting new business. Not one flower buyer in 10 knows of the facilities of the association. Everyone has a sweetheart somewhere, and thousands would avail themselves of this service if it was properly featured to bring it to their attention. It is these orders, that one influences and takes in their own store, that brings new business, as this first sale has connected the customer up with the shop, where, if the service is satisfactory, he or she is likely to call again. The more this system is used, the greater the publicity, and the novelty of it will extend its usefulness. Feature this service in every possible way, all the time. It will soon become very profitable.

TABLE DECORATIONS.

Valentine dinners for the young folk are always popular and call for more or less elaborate decorations. The plateau of maidenhair ferns, with red carnations for the centerpiece, is perhaps old style, but frequently called for. A tall vase, bedded in the center with long stemmed flowers that stand above the line of vision, makes this more elaborate. Two slender open hearts of red carnations for half centers with a vase of the same flowers in the center of each, are very showy.

Pink sweet peas make a pretty table. A round willow dish basket that will fit the top of a tall vase, is loosely filled as a center. Rose bowls at either end of the table, and from which are run two gradually diminishing curved sprays, all of sweet peas, which terminate either side of the center vase, carry the decoration the full length of the table. This, when nicely arranged with adiantum or asparagus, is very artistic.

Flat or shallow handle baskets which when filled with flowers, projecting from ends and sides almost cover the frame, have a plateau like appearance, but when decorated with ribbons on the handles, that can be run out on the cloth, look very different.

A tall, loosely filled center vase, surrounded at the bottom with a wreath of ferns and flowers just inside the plate line, is suitable for a round table. In place of the wreath, small rose bowls may be used, which well filled and placed equal distance apart, make a very pretty effect.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

Everybody since the holidays has been looking for a falling market, but it appears to keep on like the famous tanks, which lay their own foundation as they progress. Now, the latest from the rose growers is that there will be no substantial increase in the crop until after the middle of February. Owing to the scarcity of labor last summer, which period is a critical time in the life of forcing roses, they did not receive the careful attention required, in consequence of which the plants lack the vigor and strength to come back quickly, after the severe cutting at the holidays. While prices much higher than those of a year ago are unavoidable, they should be tempered in the telling. Where it has been the practice to ask what is commonly called a profit of 100 per cent, as carnations costing four cents, selling for $1 per dozen a gross gain of 50 cents. Many since the price has advanced want to increase their ratio of profit, which is a great mistake. Selling carnations that cost eight cents for $2 per dozen, shows a gross gain of $1, instead of 50 cents, practically at the same cost of handling. In order not to drive out the occasional buyer, who is not familiar with the extreme change in prices, there should be a graduated scale. When cost prices are six, eight and 10 cents, we have carnations from $1.50 to $3 per dozen. If these figures appear too high, as just a few are wanted for a sick room, then suggest a small vase with three or four roses that cost 25 cents each, or a half dozen carnations, with a little green. Perhaps a small cyclamen or Primula malacoides, with a paper cover tied with a fibre ribbon, will answer in place of the flowers. Flowers, in spite of their necessarily increased prices, must not be allowed to lose their popularity. It is a good augury that through the extraordinary conditions existing the past year the demand for flowers has really increased; people were willing to pay higher prices which standard should be maintained and kept up by quality of stock and better service. The motto should be, "Not how cheap, but how good."

Small plant baskets of foliage and flowering plants are good stock to feature at this time. Four-inch pot cyclamen and Primula malacoides are now in good flower, and with a few small crotons, ferns and dracenas make very pretty combinations in small hamper and handle baskets. Decorated with ribbon and pussy willow sprays, they will be found very attractive and salable. Single specimen plants should be featured with paper or mat covering around the pot; the little four-inch primulas or cyclamen, or several together in a pan, can all be made much more noticeable if featured in this way; in fact, no plant sent as a gift should ever be delivered without a cover of some kind to conceal the pot.

A little assortment of cut flower vases will be found good stock to carry, particularly if they are occasionally featured together, some containing a few choice flowers of probably the first of the season. The shallow flower bowls, with the glass or china perforated holders or blocks, are very attractive when artistically filled. Many a sale is made with these and other flower holders when their usefulness is demonstrated in this way.

Every opportunity should be taken of passing events, matters that are for the moment in the public mind. Windows that feature the home coming of the soldiers as they arrive, in appropriate decoration, will be sure to attract attention. The death of Theodore Roosevelt was made a feature of many window decorations in all branches of trade. His portrait in an effective setting, with palms, ferns, flags and a choice wreath, was a fitting tribute to his memory and sure to receive favorable commendation.

Florists who pushed the sale of Paper White narcissus bulbs, have found them good business bringers. As one lot are flowered out, there is a visit to the store for more to keep the little dish of pebbles working. Anything that brings visits to the store, or keeps it in mind, is almost sure to result in additional business.

Plant Decorations in Hotel Commodore.

What is doubtless the finest plant decoration ever seen in any public place in New York was arranged in the new Hotel Commodore, which opened its doors, January 27. The work was under the supervision of Marius Mutilod, decorator for the Dards store. Through the public room, which is about 100 feet in length, two rows of narrow benches, finely finished, extend the length of the room in the spaces between the walks and have been placed as permanent fixtures. All of these are covered with boxes containing small palms, ferns, crotons, dracaenas and other plants. In the corners and alcoves, are large palms. The balcony, which extends clear around the room, is filled with similar boxes of plants, in all the spaces between the columns. We have no official figures, but would roughly estimate it a $10,000 job.

BALTIMORE, MD.—The business of B. C. Fox, 753 Columbia avenue, has been purchased by Henry Baynes.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—J. Christensen has reopened his rose houses on Dale street, which were closed for the winter.

TORONTO, ONT.—Following the departure of its manager for England, the Allen Flower Shop has closed its doors.

SOUTH BEND, IND.—R. Williams has bought all interests in the firm of Williams & Co., and as sole proprietor will continue the business under the old firm name.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.—The New Bedford Horticultural Society has elected the following officers for 1919: Leonard J. Hathaway, Jr., president; Joseph A. Nolet, vice-president; Walter K. Smith, financial secretary; J. M. Taber, secretary; Walter A. Luce, treasurer.

National Publicity for Flowers.

A close examination of the advertisement clippings which come to our promotion bureau, shows that a large number of florists, who use the advertising columns of their local newspapers, have not incorporated our slogan, "Say it with Flowers," in their copy. We wonder whether they properly realize the value of a slogan or trade mark which, through the expenditure of large sums of money, has been publicized. Only the other day a discussion was reported, in a prominent literary publication, as to the probable value, from a sale standpoint, of the well-known mark applied to certain syndicated productions of California citrus fruit, "Sunkist." The most conservative value, as evolved from the discussion, was $1,000,000, while many valued it at amounts nearer the $10,000,000 mark. Why? Because it has been thoroughly impressed upon the public mind, and has thus become an investment of inestimable value.

Our committees last year spent nearly $50,000 to establish in the same way our slogan, "Say it with Flowers." And, without the slightest doubt, the slogan was driven home, in force greatly in excess of what our really small investment might be expected to generate. This year our campaign fund will not only maintain the impression created last year, but at least double the force. And yet we find florists advertising liberally in the newspapers who are not using the slogan, which has cost so much and has proved so effective, and which they are privileged to use, without cost—although we do recommend that they use the uniform script, as furnished in the electrotyped headlines our promotion bureau supplies at prices barely sufficient to cover the foundry charges.

We are sure the florists who neglect to use the slogan, do not realize their loss by the omission. The more the public sees of it, the better it is for the business. It focuses public attention upon a very important reason for buying flowers—expression of sentiment. And who shall say that this reason is not the keystone in the foundation of the retail florists' business?

We have a folder describing a series of little aids to a direct drawing down of benefit from our advertisements in 33 magazines, and shall be glad to mail a copy to anyone on request.

Our 1919 fund is mounting, but ought to mount faster. The committees were seriously handicapped in their plans for magazine publicity through uncertainty as to the funds at their disposal. Magazine space, in many instances, must be booked months in advance, and the committees could hardly be expected to incur responsibility themselves, although, as a matter of fact, in their faith they have done so. Florists who have not subscribed can help the campaign work greatly by making early subscriptions. We cannot do much in the dog days, but a lot can be done now and in fall. Help us to meet our problems with money in hand, and we can get still better results than we are doing.

Give now, and give generously, for the more you give the more you get.

The March of Progress.

In the days of old, it was considered undignified for the florist to advertise. There were many fine shops, we remember, then, too, but as time rolled on and the demand of flowers increased, may we not lay claim to the fact that advertising, properly done, dignifies the store as well as any one power we know of, and that those who have adopted advertising in a dignified manner have greatly prospered thereby? Where one may have succeeded without, what might he have done with it? And those who are using advertising in conjunction with the sale of flowers, may still see greater results day by day. There can be no doubt about that.

Another striking factor in the history of flowers is the number of florists who are using the columns of our trade journals to stimulate business in their home towns the past few years. It surely shows which way the wind blows, and if this is good business for those who use trade journals, why would it not be good judgment to use your own local papers for still more business? Think it over. Never was there a better opportunity than now for florists to develop their industry than by expending a portion of their sales for the furtherance of still more sales. There are more people who are frequenting flower stores than ever before, and the store that shows the most progressive policy will undoubtedly get the benefit of this new advertising if he couples up with our national "Say it with Flowers" campaign.

These are great days for the florists, and the national campaign should be used to help you in the effort if you will use it locally. Make up your mind to tie-up and stick to it. You are bound to win. Good flowers and good advertising make a team that is hard to beat. Sloganize your business, "Say it with Flowers."

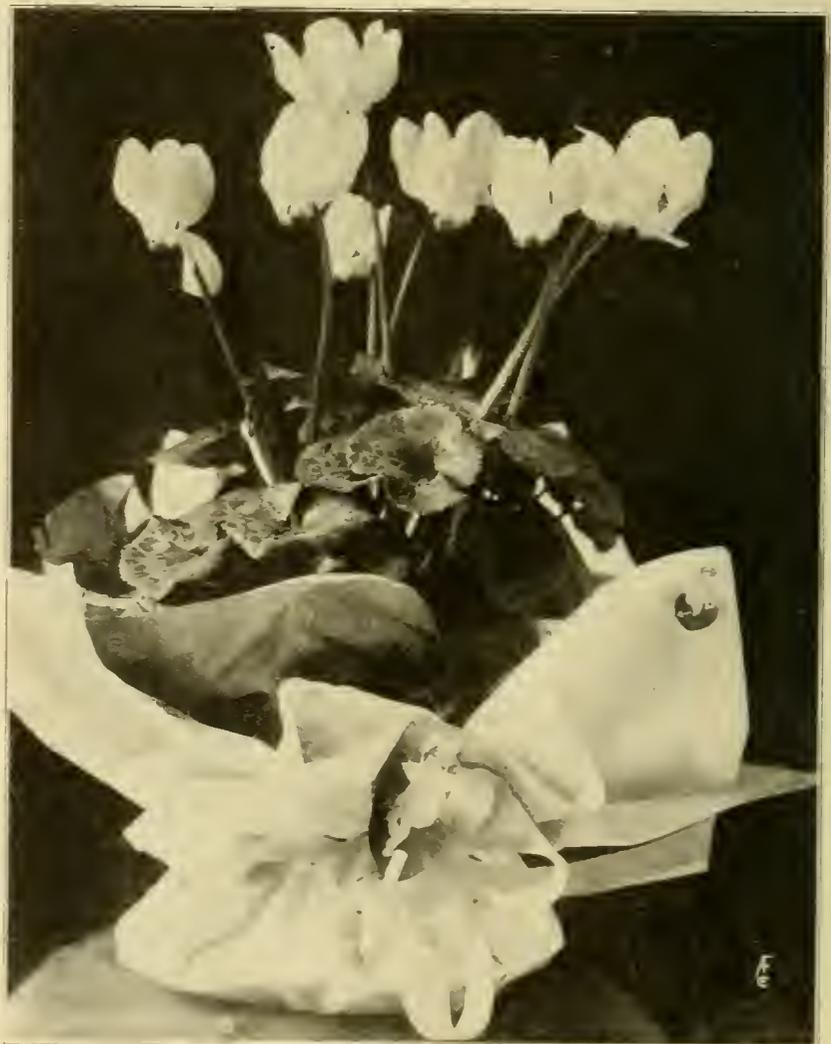

There is an old saying that behind every business that keeps up with the times is an individual that keeps ahead of them, and the stores that have adopted our slogan, and use it liberally, are in that class.

HENRY PENN.
 Chairman Nat'l Pub. Campaign.

Seeds for Present Sowing.

There are a number of plants that in order to obtain the best stock it is necessary that the seeds be sown during January. Centaurea gymnocarpa is slow in making its growth and to have nice plants for edging the beds of geraniums and other plants an early start is required. Vinca rosea should be sown in January to obtain a good blooming stock at planting time. Lobelias should be sown by February 1 that fine stock plants may be had. If it is proposed to reset the smilax beds next year this is the time to get the seed started. Begonia Vernon and the other summer blooming varieties, if sown early, make fine plants by May, full of flowers. Gloxinias and tuberous begonias can be sown at this time and blooming plants had for the coming summer. Many growers have given up the propagation of verbenas from cuttings and depend upon seedlings and to have a nicely branched plant by June 1 the seed should be sown the last of January. Another useful border plant is Pyrethrum aureum (golden feverfew) and this should be sown early to get good sized plants at bedding out time. There are not many cannas these days grown from seed, but anyone intending to grow them in that manner should sow the seeds in January. These seeds will germinate much more readily and evenly if soaked in water for 24 hours before planting. Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri should be sown now when there is good heat in the greenhouses, and these seeds, like the cannas, start much more evenly if soaked.

Boston.*DARK WEATHER AFFECTS SUPPLY.

Five dark days during the past week held stock back and prices have advanced. Business continues good and a big improvement is bound to come with the arrival of spring flowers and plants. Carnations have taken a jump to $8 per 100, with a few special such as Ladic going at $12. Roses remain high at $25 to $40 per 100.

NOTES.

Paul Richwagen is shipping his entire cut of Virginia snapdragons to the New York market, where he is getting better prices than can be obtained locally.

Thomas Roland has been having heavy cuts of Ophelia, Ward, Killarney and George Elgar roses.

Gene Sullivan, formerly with Thomas Galvin, is now with Dolansky & McDonald.

Alfred Hudson is again at the market after a severe attack of pneumonia.

Wm. Sim is sending large crops to this market. S. K. G.

St. Louis.*MARKET CONDITIONS NORMAL.

Business conditions continue about normal, stock moving fairly well with the exception of bulbous offerings. Narcissi, freesias, Romans and jonquils drag somewhat, due to the extra heavy cuts. The weather has been so exceedingly fair and warm for January that all bulbous stock is coming out faster than was expected. Carnations are scarce, everybody seemingly being off crop at the present time. Sweet peas are coming in heavy, but hold up in price. The same condition prevails as to violets. Roses are none too plentiful, and with a good demand, the prices hold up. Ophelia and Russell are the bulk of the stock. In greens, the market is fairly well supplied.

NOTES.

President Hummert of the florists' club will attend the directors' meeting of the S. A. F. to be held at Detroit the last of the month. He says he may take a run over to Cleveland to attend the carnation meeting if some of the local boys will go with him.

The carnation exhibition scheduled for the February meeting of the florists' club has been called off, the trustees report. The meeting coming one day before Valentine's day, they did not think it would be an opportune time to have this exhibition.

The florists' Victory banquet is going to be quite a big affair from all reports. A fine programme has been arranged and everybody seems to have February 5 reserved for the big eats. J. J. W.

Toronto, Ont.*BRISK DEMAND WITH SHORT SUPPLY.

Business continues active and the shortage of stock is noticeable, especially in rose lines, which have been off crop since the holidays. Carnations are a little more plentiful, but only about 50 per cent of the orders are being filled. This also applies to other varieties of stock, all of which are not plentiful enough to fill orders. Bulbous stock is conspicuous by its absence. The mildest winter on record is helping in the fuel supply, and the larger dealers are today soliciting orders at reduced prices for their oversupply.

NOTES.

The gardeners' and florists' club held a well-attended meeting, the largest in years, at St. George's hall, January 21, when 26 members were added to the roll. The evening was mostly taken up with the embargo placed by the United States government, the Canadian florists thinking it possible that our government may adopt a similar embargo, as they were accustomed to do in war times, but we have been advised, in answer to our inquiry, that no such embargo is at present contemplated nor will any definite measures be taken without first consulting those in the trade who are interested. This will enable those in the trade to again stock up on many lines which are depleted. Sgt. James Matthews, who went overseas in 1916, with the 204th C. E. F., was invited to the platform and neatly told his fellow members he was glad to be back with them. A social night will be held March 18, when the executive board of the Canadian Horticultural Association meets here.

The retail florists held a box social at Dunlop's hall, and a jolly evening with dancing and games was had by all, the club adding considerable to the exchequer. Mrs. Moore was auctioneer of the boxes and realized holiday prices. In a mock trial, popular Secretary James was given sentence to wind an eight-day Seth Thomas mahogany chime clock, presented him by his fellow members.

John H. Dunlop, at Richmond Hill, is cutting good blooms of his new pink rose, Frank Dunlop, a seedling of Russell x Shawyer. This rose has been blooming well all season and has been a great help throughout the continued shortage since the fall. The sweet peas here are getting more plentiful and quality is good for the season.

J. H. Dunlop will attend the carnation meeting at Cleveland, being accompanied by Wm. Gammage, of London. H. G. Dillemath will attend the F. T. D. directors' meeting in Detroit and continue to Cleveland and then to Chicago.

A. Sherridan, of Yonge street, has, through failing health, decided to give up the retail part of the business and will start into the growing, having taken over the plant of Colin Nesbitt. The Dale Estate is strong on orchids. Carnations have done very well, but roses are, and have been, off crop since the holidays.

Lew Waters has returned from his Ohio and Michigan trip. Stock seems to be more plentiful there from his observations.

Fred Good, who joined Geo. Bonnett to look after the landscape department, has decided to conduct a business of his own. H. G. D.

OBITUARY.*Charles Fox.

In the sudden death of Charles Fox, which occurred from heart failure, January 24, while riding on a street car, the craft of Philadelphia, Pa., loses one of its best beloved members. He had lived to the ripe age of 80 years. Although he retired several years ago, he was frequently to be found in his store, which business had been purchased and is now conducted by Richard Umfrid.

Mr. Fox was born in Baden and was brought to America by his parents, when eight years of age. His apprenticeship in the business was with Robert Buist, where he became skilled in raising tropical plants which were his great delight. In the early 70s he became superintendent for Hugh Graham, with greenhouses at Eighteenth and Thompson streets. Later he and Joseph Beavis, also an employe, were taken into the firm. When this partnership was dissolved, Mr. Fox bought a property on Broad, above Master street, where he carried on a very successful business, making a specialty of decorations. After a number of years he sold this property for church purposes, and located on Broad, above Thompson. Mr. Fox was a thorough artist, his funeral design work, and in fact, all floral arrangements, having exceptional finish. His store was noticeable for years with splendid specimens of Cibotium Schiedel, which filled the show windows, and in which he took great pride.

Mr. Fox, while a hard worker, was of kindly disposition, beloved by all who knew or came in contact with him. His funeral, January 28, at which there were many beautiful floral pieces, was largely attended by members of the craft. He is survived by two sons and two daughters. Charles Henry Fox conducts a successful cut flower business on South Broad street. His brother, Dr. Frank A. Fox, is a dentist.

James L. Regan.

James L. Regan, the well known Chicago printer, founder and head of the Regan Printing House, died at his home in that city, January 25, after a protracted illness. Mr. Regan was quite familiar to the trade, having printed catalogues for many seedsmen and nurserymen. He also printed THE AMERICAN FLORIST close upon 50 years.

Mr. Regan was born in London, England, in 1850 and came to the United States in 1865. The first six years of his life in America were spent in New York and the remainder in Chicago. During his stay in New York, he printed the first coupon theatre ticket, the occasion being the introduction of Jenny Lind to the American public by P. T. Barnum.

Mr. Regan was one of those upright, aggressive, stick-to-it men who have made Chicago. He was generous and benevolent to a fault, and in his all too little leisure, one of the most lovable of men.

William Vogt.

William Vogt, Fourth and Penn streets, Camden, N. J., was struck by an automobile at Fifteenth and Diamond streets, Philadelphia, Pa., January 22, receiving injuries from which he died the night following. This was a great shock to his many friends in the trade by whom he was highly respected.

Mr. Vogt was 64 years of age. He succeeded his father, an old time florist, at his death some years ago, and has since conducted the business.

HORTICULTURAL assistants are more available for both seed and flower establishments.

GLASS manufacturers throughout the country will resume general operations February 8. It is estimated that more than one-half of the capacity will be working by that date.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, has received a letter written in Belgium by one of its customers, dated December 27, 1918, acknowledging receipt of letter which left Chicago on April 21, 1915, and which had just arrived in Belgium.

Spring Blooms at Bloomington.

Early spring flowers such as tulips and flag lilies were reported coming up at Bloomington, Ill., January 23, due to the long period of mild weather.

At Clairville, Ont., pansies were growing in gardens and dandelions were blooming by the roadside, January 26.

Society of American Florists.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Public notice is hereby given that as no objection was filed against the registration of Geranium General Pershing by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., the same became complete on December 23, 1918. JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

C. O. D. Express Claims.

Regarding C. O. D. claims, there has been a ruling made by the interstate commerce commission and the director general of railroads at Washington, which will compel the express companies to pay all outstanding C. O. D.'s and the violation of rules by which employes have permitted the examination of C. O. D.'s without authority, will be prevented in the future.

Mealy Bug on Coleus.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

What is the best treatment for coleus infested with mealy bug? J. D.

The surest means we have found to keep coleus free from mealy bug is to syringe the plants frequently with cold water. Syringing every day or two with full force from the hose will soon clean the plants. It is also a good plan when making the cuttings, or potting them up from the sand, to wash them off in cold water. C. W. JOHNSON.

Roebling Orchids May Be Sold.

Before a settlement of the estate of the late Charles G. Roebling, Trenton, N. J., well-known patron of horticulture, can be effected, it is probable that the Roebling orchid collection, one of the finest in the United States, must be disposed of, probably by private sale. This collection has long been noted for its general excellence, and despite the shortage of labor the past season, are well up to their usual standard. In addition to the old favorites, the collection has recently been enhanced by the addition of many up-to-date hybrids, together with several thousand home grown seedlings that have reached the flowering stage.

Horticultural Society of New York.

A spring show of the above society will be held March 28-30 at the American Museum of Natural History. In order that this exhibition may be a success, it will be necessary for all to put their shoulder to the wheel and do their bit. Co-operation is now the spirit of the age. Let horticulturists prove they are alive to this spirit by making this show a big success by individual effort and co-operation. All, whether members of the society or not, are invited to exhibit. Schedules are now ready for distribution and may be had by addressing the secretary, care of New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York.

GEORGE V. NASH, Secretary.

Plant Quarantine in Congress.

The federal horticultural board does not show any disposition to amend its recently-announced regulations governing the importation into the United States of nursery stock. This fact was made evident in a letter just received by Congressman Stiness, of Rhode Island, in answer to a communication from him, inquiring into the matter. Congressman Stiness had received a letter from Superintendent of Parks Frederick C. Green, of Providence, protesting against the action of the board. Like all other park superintendents, Mr. Green realizes that the parks of his city must suffer if the drastic rulings of the federal horticultural board are retained in force. Mr. Stiness has been informed that the board, after careful consideration from investigations in progress since March of last year, has had to exclude certain plants because of the danger of importation with them of dangerous insects and plant diseases. The congressman states that he is ready to take the matter up again, with a view to having some action taken towards having the regulations rescinded. Members of Congress are receiving a great many complaints from their constituents against the arbitrary action of the board, and it may be that there will be some very interesting developments after March 4, next. With the democrats in power at the capitol, little can be expected, but with the republicans in the saddle, anxious to show up all of the autocratic moves of the other party, it should not be difficult to secure remedial legislation.

B. F. L.

Detroit.

ROSE SUPPLY UNUSUALLY SCANT.

A distinct famine in roses is the outstanding feature of the local flower market. The quality of the few roses coming in is excellent, but the supply distressingly short of the call, which seems to increase as the season advances. There is a fair supply of carnations, good freesias and enough violets to meet the daily needs, but these items would suffer some if the rose supply was greater. Sweet peas are becoming a factor now and daily receipts are quickly disposed of. Pot plants of bulbous flowers are making their appearance and find ready sale, as the supply is as yet limited. Fine weather has, for the past two weeks, been enjoyed by the growers, whose consumption of coal this winter is only a fraction of what was used the corresponding days a year ago.

NOTES.

E. A. Feters, vice-president of the Society of American Florists, called a meeting of the florists for January 23 to make preliminary arrangements for the convention to be held here August next. There were present E. A. Feters, Walter Taepke, R. Rahaley, Chas. Plumb, Philip Breitmeyer, Jos. Streit, M. Bloy, A. Pochelon, J. J. Karins and J. H. Sullivan. Tentative plans were made for the proper entertainment of the visiting florists, and a substantial fund was subscribed, by those present, for the purpose. The abandonment of the state fair grounds for the meeting place and outdoor exhibit of plants was decided upon as impracticable, as war conditions last year prevented preparation of the grounds then and the enlistment of probable exhibitors' interest in the project as originally proposed. The selection of Arcadia hall for the meeting and trade exhibition was practically decided upon, subject to the approval of the executive meeting to be held here January 31-February 1.

The ladies' auxiliary of the Detroit Florists' Club will give its annual dancing party in the Hotel Statler, Wednesday night, February 5. Extensive preparations now being made for it, indicate a successful and enjoyable affair.

Fred Pautke, for many years regarded as a skillful and successful grower, has sold his greenhouses and will in the future give his entire efforts to the development of his retail business at Grosse Pointe, Mich.

Philip Breitmeyer went to New York, January 24, to welcome home his son, Harry, from overseas. Harry will be mustered out of the service in a few weeks, and will re-enter the florist business with his father.

Alexander McCommon is afflicted with erysipelas and confined to the Herman Kiefer hospital. In his absence Mrs. McCommon bravely cares for the trade at their store on Grand River avenue.

The Michigan Cut Flower Exchange will tender the local trade a banquet at the Hotel Statler the latter part of February.

August Von Boeslager, Mt. Clemens, is on the sick list, but at this writing is much improved.

Visitors: Walter E. Cook, Cleveland; J. J. Karins and J. P. McCarty, Philadelphia. I. F. S.

STAMFORD, CONN.—The Stamford Horticultural Society, at a meeting January 3, installed officers for the ensuing year as follows: Henry Wild, president; J. Foster, vice-president; Owen A. Hunwick, secretary; G. C. Boon, recording secretary; A. Peterson, treasurer.

Buffalo.

MARKET HAS FAIR SUPPLY.

This market has been fairly well taken care of with a variety of stock, but no particular flower has been in oversupply. Carnations are about equal to requirements and Ward is showing a rivalry with ordinary roses. Narcissi are plentiful and some tulips of very fair quality are being offered. Roses are improving in quality. Russell, Columbia and Ophelia are fine, but there is no surplus. Sweet peas are scarce, but of good quality. Plant sales continue very good, in place of roses and flowers of the better grade. Primulas are good property, as are begonias.

NOTES.

The recent banquet of the retail florists was very well attended, but it is to be regretted that there were not more present. While it is frankly admitted that advertising for Mothers' day and other occasions has proved beneficial, it is a wonder that more of the trade do not join this organization and get broadened.

S. A. Anderson has opened his Elmwood avenue establishment for business. It is very attractive. John Fiebelkorn has been at this store for the past two weeks installing the handsome fixtures and much credit is due him.

Albert Reichert is in New York looking after the floral work for the delegation from this city that will attend the opening of the new Hotel Pennsylvania.

Charles Felton has gone away for a much needed rest.

Visitors: F. C. W. Browne, Cleveland, O.; J. J. Karins, Philadelphia, Pa.; Paul Klingsporn, Chicago.

STOCK CONTINUES SCARCE.

Stock continues scarce, especially roses, which are in exceptionally good demand, but exceedingly short supply. The shipments of this flower appear to be decreasing at most of the houses, which clean up what few are arriving every day in double quick time at high prices. Carnations are in brisk demand at very satisfactory figures and clean up completely in all varieties right along. Lilies are good property and are bringing fine returns. Orchids are quite plentiful, but are moving well considering the large quantity offered. Lily of the valley is exceedingly scarce, which is causing a brisk demand for cut Roman hyacinths, of which a limited supply is offered. Freesias are arriving in larger quantities, but are holding their own at good prices, with practically none left when the stores close for the day. Sweet peas continue to clean up early at high figures, with some very choice stock now arriving. White and yellow narcissi are quite a factor in the market and still find ready buyers at surprisingly good figures compared to former years. Snapdragons are seen in limited supply and a few forget-me-nots are to be had. Pansies sell well to the local trade. White and yellow daisies are in larger supply, but the receipts of mignonette have dropped off considerably. Callas are in fair supply, but clean up early. Calendulas, tulips, jonquils, single and double violets, gardenias, pussy willows, and a few other miscellaneous items arriving, but not already mentioned, are included in the daily shipments, but not in any such quantities as to permit a surplus. Green goods are in large enough supply to meet all demands in practically all items. Business has been good all this month with the wholesalers, and the retailers report a great improvement in trade with a strong demand for wedding flowers and funeral work.

NOTES.

President Zech, of the florists' club, has appointed judges for the annual novelty show, February 6, as follows: Carnations, C. W. Johnson, Harry Blewitt, P. W. Peterson; roses, N. J. Wietor, W. J. Keimel, W. G. Earle; miscellaneous, Albert Erlekson, Geo. Ball, Geo. Asmus. The entire arrangements for this exhibition are in charge of Chairman T. E. Waters of the good-of-the-club committee. President Zech, George Asmus, August Pohlmann, and Fred Lautenschlager will talk on the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society at Cleveland, O., and the S. A. F. director's meeting at Detroit, Mich. Everyone in the trade is cordially invited to attend, regardless of whether they are members of the club or not. Be sure and come.

Frank Ayres, for many years with Chas. W. McKellar, is now with Archie Spencer. His many friends wish him every success in his new undertaking.

He left January 27 for Detroit, Mich., and from there he intended to go to Cleveland, O., to attend the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. received a letter from Jack Byers this week, who is with the American troops in Germany, in which he stated that he expected to be back home some time in February. It is rumored that one of Zech & Mann's employes will join the ranks of the benedicts in the near future. Only two guesses are necessary.

Leon Glow, formerly employed in the cut flower department of the A. L. Randall Co., who is at present with the colors at San Diego, Calif., is expected back on the job soon. Miller, of the American Bulb Co.; Arthur Dietsch, of A. Dietsch Co., and Arthur Hansen, of the A. L. Randall Co., are attending the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society at Cleveland, O. this week. Among the out-of-town people who made the trip with the local delegation were George Blackmann, Evansville, Ind.; Samuel Seligman, with Schloss Bros., New York, Blaine and Glen Wilcox and wives, Council Bluffs, Ia.; C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis.

A committee appointed by The Retail Florists' Association and a committee appointed by the Wholesale Cut Flower Association met together on the afternoon of January 28. The committee representing the wholesalers agreed to eliminate the so-called "red violets" and confine their efforts to doing a strictly wholesale business. The committee representing the retailers agreed that they should in turn buy their cut flowers and green goods direct from the wholesalers. The Retail Florists' Association organized recently is growing by leaps and bounds, and a special campaign will be made next week to secure all the dealers who have not yet joined. One may become a member for $25 by joining now, which eliminates the initiation fee of $25, or become an associate member for $10. An advertising campaign will be made for St. Valentine's day, in one of the daily papers, from which the entire trade should derive benefit.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, and wife, will leave soon for a month's visit at Pasadena, Calif. E. B. Washburn and wife are expected here shortly from Pasadena. Ned will look after the firm's business here while his father is away.

George A. Kuhl of Pekin is progressing as nicely as can be expected at the Presbyterian hospital. He is in room 556 and no doubt would appreciate a call from his many friends in the trade here.

Miss O. A. Tonner, of O. A. & L. A. Tonner, has been home for over a week with inflammatory rheumatism, but is doing nicely at this writing, and is expected back at the store in a few days.

V. Bezdek, of Wilmette, is building a new three-flat building near his range there. He has just invested in a new Ford delivery truck and is planning on buying a new touring car.

James G. Hancock, for many years with Frank Oechslin, is now in the insurance business with headquarters with George N. Wright & Co., in the Insurance Exchange building.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., received a telegram this week from

E. C. Amling and party, announcing their safe arrival at Orange, Calif.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. received word this week from Mr. Vaughan and family that they are at present at Tampa, Fla., and are having a delightful time.

The A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co. is featuring a very appropriate soldier and sailor design Valentine box that is bound to be a winner.

A. Henderson & Co. have bought out Winterson's Seed Store and will concentrate its business at 166 North Wabash avenue.

Miss Edna Frauenfelder will continue the business of her father, the late Conrad Frauenfelder, at 3343 West Madison street

Wietor Bros. have had such a strong demand for rooted carnation cuttings that they are already sold out in some varieties.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is back from a trip to New York.

Louis Finnermann, of the Grossberg-Tyler-Finneman Co., is back from a Wisconsin business trip.

H. N. Bruns announced the arrival of an importation of 300 cases of lily of the valley pips

T. E. Waters' daughter, Mildred, is recovering from a severe attack of pneumonia.

D. D. P. Roy, of the America Bulb Co., is calling on the trade in Michigan.

Herman Wendland is back from a business trip to Oklahoma.

Cincinnati.

BUSINESS IS SATISFACTORY.

Business is good; more stock is the only thing that can be desired. Everything is selling readily and more could be used if available. Prices are good, while shipping business is excellent. Roses clear readily as fast as they arrive and many more would sell if they could be obtained. Carnations are in fair supply and generally clear from day to day. Bulbous stock, including Paper White and yellow narcissi, freesias and Dutch hyacinths, is proving a welcome addition to the supply. Sweet peas are fairly plentiful and meet with a good demand. Easter lilies, callas and rubrum lilies are proving good property. Snapdragons sell well. Orchids are finding a good market. Other offerings are calendulas, forget-me-nots, some mignonette, baby primroses and wallflowers.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell and E. G. Gillett intend to attend the meeting of the carnation society at Cleveland, this week. The latter is going by way of Springfield, O., to attend to business there.

Milwaukee, Wis.

MARKET CONTINUES SATISFACTORY.

The market continued in a healthy condition all of the past week, with demand brisk, and the supply generally sufficient to fill orders in good shape. Due to a week of cloudy and mild weather, the cut of roses is still on the short side, thus throwing the demand to carnations, which are more plentiful, but due to unfavorable growing conditions, quite a few weak stems are noticeable. Good stock has been bringing five cents all week, and there was none to spare. The supply of orchids is better than the demand. Lilies kept moving at $2.50 per dozen. Miscellaneous stock, such as snapdragons, sweet peas, calendulas, etc., is still arriving in small lots, while there is enough stevia to go around.

NOTES.

Geo. Valke, Minot, N. D., received a telegram from Madison, Wis., informing him of the serious illness of his brother, who is attending the university, and asking him to come at once. In passing through he stopped off at our city January 27, saying his brother's condition is improving.

The next regular meeting of the florists' club will be held February 6. Officers for 1919 will be installed, as no quorum was present at the January meeting. Reports from those who attended the carnation convention in Cleveland point to a good attendance.

Win. Edlefsen, formerly of this city, but now living at Lorane, Oregon, celebrated his seventy-third birthday January 19 in good health. He is well known to the older members of the local craft.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. received a consignment of spirea from abroad, January 25. Their last cold storage lilies have been potted for Easter.

Nashville, Tenn.

GOOD DEMAND, BUT OFFERINGS LIMITED.

Trade is very good, but the supply of stock is limited, according to reports from all quarters, roses being very shy. Carnations are seen in larger numbers and with narcissi have to meet the greater part of the demand. Some lilies are offered, also callas, but the latter are rather rare now, being grown in limited numbers.

NOTES.

Geny Bros. report quite a heavy run on funeral work, both in this city and from nearby towns. They are using a generous supply of prepared magnolia leaves.

The Joy Floral Co. continues to be able to supply the requirements of its trade both locally and at its Chattanooga branch.

The McIntyre Floral Co. have quite a fair supply of roses and carnations and are featuring well grown azaleas.

L. H. Haury & Son are well supplied with flowering plants.

M. C. D.

Cleveland.

SUPPLY INCREASES MODERATELY.

Market conditions continue as last reported with roses and carnations short of the demand, although the supply was slightly increased. Bulbous stock is also more plentiful, with Paper Whites, tulips, daffodils and freesias cleaning up nicely. Sweet peas and calendulas are none too plentiful. The lily demand is brisk. Good lily of the valley is scarce. The shortage of other stock caused a heavy call for violets the latter part of last week.

NOTE.

Visitors: Oscar Leistner and H. W. Miller, Chicago.

Elyria, O.

A recent visit to this city showed the writer that the local flower shops were very busy and up-to-date. At the Elyria Flower Shop, the establishment presented a very attractive and businesslike appearance and Miss Fern reported trade had been most satisfactory. An electric sign flashes the message, "Say It with Flowers."

At the Hecock Floral Co.'s stores, both in this city and Lorain, the forces have been kept busy. In addition to using all the stock they can grow themselves, Mr. Hecock is a frequent visitor to the Cleveland wholesale houses.

San Francisco.

LIMITED SUPPLY AT HIGH PRICES.

Activity in the florist trade keeps up much the same as during the past few weeks. Stock of all kinds is scarce and prices are high. Roses are still away up, with no prospect of a reduction in prices for some time to come. American Beauty, which has been out of the market all season, is now arriving in limited quantities. The quality is very good and it is quickly moved. It would be hard to excell the Russells that are now being received. Some of them are wonderful, both in length of stem and size of flower. Ophelia is not in such evidence as it was during the past few weeks. There is quite a cut of red roses coming in, particularly Red Radiance. It must be said that it is about the only rose lacking in quality, the greater part of them being weak necked. Shawyer is popular and brings excellent prices. Mrs. Aaron Ward is about the only yellow to be had. Cecile Brunner has practically disappeared from the market. Carnations have come into their own of late and are now bringing $1.25 per bunch of 25 flowers. They have brought fine figures all during the year. Strange to say, the best red variety to be had is Victory, one of the old standards which has withstood the comings and goings of many much heralded newer varieties. Violets are in great demand. The bunches offered are very small, mostly composed of leaves. Orchids are appearing in quite a variety of lots. Just now we have trianae in large quantities. They have moved a bit slowly the past week because the public was unable to absorb the large offering. Phalanopsis amabilis and Schillerianum are arriving in the market freely, and are quickly disposed of. Gardenias are better and more plentiful, but in common with cattleyas are dragging somewhat. Roman hyacinths are coming along very slowly, but sell on sight. Dutch hyacinths are being shown this week and are going nicely. Freesias are in heavy demand. Prices to the growers are of the best. Paper White narcissi are about over. Gaillardias and marigolds are in limited supply. Sweet peas are coming in regularly, but of poor quality. Ferns are scarce and high. The same applies to asparagus and other greens. Pot plants, with the exception of Boston ferns, are on the short side also.

NOTES.

George C. Roeding, owner of the California Nursery Co., at Niles, and the Fancher Creek Nurseries at Fresno, in a recent interview, said that his nurseries are just now experiencing the heaviest plant business in their history. The demand for all varieties of fruit trees has exceeded all expectations and they are now supplying some of the largest plantings in the history of this state. The demand for ornamentals is also showing a decided increase.

ly became manager, was the largest buyer of space in the annual advertising issue of the "Chronicle." Mr. Sievers has always been a great exponent of publicity, and is a great believer in the daily newspaper as a business getter. He reports that the "ad" has repaid his firm handsomely.

Albert O. Stein's beautiful store on Sutter street presents a beautiful appearance these days. He has a splendid lot of specimen decorative plants, every one of which is perfect. His cibotiums are especially fine, as also are the ericas and nephrolepis. Manager Patrick Orr always has paid great attention to the quality of the plants handled by this firm.

Avensino Bros.' Geary street store has attracted much attention the past week, owing to the splendid specimen Streptosolon Jamesonii, which they have on display. They are over four feet in height, splendidly shaped, and with a wealth of orange flowers. This firm is also receiving large shipments of Marie Lousie violets.

Frank R. Mills, of Palo Alto, is shipping an extra good grade of Roman hyacinths lately. He has had a splendid cut of carnations all winter and is at present making heavy shipments. He says the nursery trade is improving very materially and that there is every prospect of a heavy plant trade this coming spring.

Martin Poss, of San Mateo, is greatly impressed with the opportunity offered this season in the plant line, and is preparing to get his share of spring business. His greenhouses have been producing heavily of the best grade carnations all winter. His stock of flowering plants is also very complete.

F. C. Jaeger & Son are greatly pleased over the steady increase in business over last season. They tell us that funeral trade has been exceptionally heavy right along. They have a fine showing of flowering plants this week and are also handling some extra fine American Beauties.

M. H. Ebel, of Sacramento, who has recently been convalescent from an attack of influenza, was in town during the week, visiting his growers.

Pete Ferrari, who has entirely recovered from his recent illness, is sending in Russells to the stores here that have rarely been equaled for length of stems and size of flowers. He is cutting a fine crop of freesias and gardenias. His orchid houses are also producing heavily.

A. Picette, manager of the Chas. C. Navlet Co.'s new store at 423 Market street, is enthusiastic over the way business is progressing at his new store. Large shipments of fruit trees and rose stock are arriving at the store from various parts of the state.

The recent rains will be a great boon for the violet growers. The prolonged cold spell has cut down the supply of these flowers greatly during the past week, but with the coming of warmer weather, the supply may reasonably be expected to increase greatly.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is sending large shipments of violets to the east every day. Manager J. A. Axell is receiving a splendid lot of American Beauty now. He reports trade as very good, but finds it difficult to fill all orders, especially for roses.

Manager Walter Hobb, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., says funeral work is quite heavy with his firm. He reports a great scarcity of good roses. Many fine decorative plants arrive here daily from the firm's greenhouses at San Mateo.

The Lynch Nursery Company, of Menlo Park, is shipping a splendid grade of Nelrose and Keystone snapdragon at present. They have several houses of these favorite flowers and they all look to be in the finest condition.

Manager P. Vincent Mairala spent several days during the week quail hunting. He reports an enjoyable outing and returned with the limit of birds, which is as we expected, as he is noted as being an expert marksman.

Kenneth S. Murray is in with a heavy cut of freesias. His Killarney is of very good quality also, and is in much demand. This rose has always been one of his favorites and he grows it to perfection at all seasons.

The Bay Counties Seed Co. is receiving large shipments of trees and shrubs at their nursery. They have gathered together a very fine lot of specimen boxwood and tell us that these are moving rapidly.

Ferrari Bros. are in with a heavy cut of gardenias and Cattleya trianae. They are cutting some of the finest roses coming into this market, the Russells just now being particularly good.

Demoto Bros. are having a difficult time of it in filling all orders for stock. While they are handling a large supply of all seasonable stock, it is not sufficient for the heavy shipping trade.

Caruso Pillardi, of the Art Floral Co.'s staff, besides a high-class floral artist, is also a noted singer. His services are in great demand for concerts and entertainments of all kinds.

Pete Rosalia has resigned his old position with the Art Floral Co. to accept a similar one with Pelicano, Rossi & Co. on Kearny street.

Alfred Cuneo, recently with Joseph's, on Grant avenue, has taken a position with the Art Floral Co., on Powell street.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

DEMAND ABSORBS ALL GOOD OFFERINGS.

There is not much change in the situation over that of a week ago. If anything, flowers are shortening up instead of getting more plentiful, as has been predicted. A good healthy demand, that appears to take everything offered, is encouraging. Roses are in shorter supply than last week, and on January 25 the carnations were so scarce, that to get even a bunch, was considered quite a favor. The first daffodils were offered during the past week. Cattleyas are fairly plentiful, but are all used at fair prices. Excellent lilac sells as high as $2 per dozen heads of bloom. There is still a little stevia. Easter lilies and callas are equal to the demand. White and yellow narcissi, calendulas, freesias and mignonette clean up every day. Flowering plants, with the exception of Primula malacoides and cyclamens, are very scarce. The former are now in fine bloom, and a factor in all the shops against which the high prices are no barrier. There is a good out-of-town demand for cut flowers.

January 27.—The two days' accumulation brought a fair amount of stock to the market, but the local and out-of-town demand soon took it all. Carnations have jumped $2, and all good stock brings $10 a hundred. Exceptionally fine freesia sells for $12 per hundred. Cattleyas are a quantity stock, good Golden Spur narcissi are grabbed up at 10 cents.

SPRING BEDDING PLANTS.

The situation as regards all kinds of stock for outdoor planting looks very promising for those who have been able to weather the storm, and are now supplied with the "makings" of a good variety, particularly geraniums, of which young stock is at present very scarce. One grower turned down an order for all he could send from two-inch pots for $10 per 100. It is said that four-inch geraniums, the ordinary bedding size, will easily bring $15 per hundred, and are likely to go to $20, which compared to $7 and $8 of a year or two ago, is certainly a bit progressive. All kinds of plants grown from cuttings are expected to sell for $10, and the two and one-half inch pot seedling stock, $6 to $8. Pot roses will bring good figures, as on account of nothing more coming from abroad, growers will need to hold on to a good portion of their stock for propagating purposes.

NOTES.

The meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticulture Society, held January 21, was splendidly attended. President J. W. Boyd delivered a lecture on "Flowers as a Hobby," which was a great treat to all present. Peonies and irises are his favorites, and he kept his hearers entranced with his descriptions, and the splendid slides shown on the screen. He followed these garden favorites from their first opening in the trial grounds at Washington, D. C., through the various stages, up until six weeks later in Michigan. His description of the care of the cut blooms was very interesting, particularly the revival of apparently worthless blooms by placing the ends of the stems in boiling water. All the lectures now cations and books on kindred subjects of value are to be added to the library.

The next meeting of the florists' club to be held in the roof garden of the Adelphia hotel, Tuesday, February 4, at 8 p. m., will be a memorable occasion. It is to be retailers' night. All members of the trade, however, but particularly retail florists of this city and surrounding country, men and women, are invited and requested to bring their employes along. Max Schling, one of New York's greatest artists, will address the club and give a demonstration in artistic floral arrangement with the aid of accessories from his own store and flowers of the local market. Mr. Schling is a most interesting and inspiring speaker, and one of the most enthusiastic members of the craft. Do not miss the inspiration of this meeting.

Edward Reid, the Ranstead street sage, says that many retail florists rent a store, put in some fixtures, and then wait until they get orders before they risk their money for flowers. People do not come into flower shops to buy hay ricks, harrows and the like. What they want is flowers, and they expect to see them. Florists must carry stock if they want to do business, and it has taken a lot of them a long time to find this out.

The trade were shocked to learn of the death of Wm. Vogt, of Camden, N. J., who was struck by an automobile at 15th and Diamond streets, this city, January 22, and died the following night in a hospital to which he was taken.

Albert Saxer, who conducted a retail store in Frankford, and the past year worked with John Andre, Doyle-town, was last week a victim of the dreaded influenza. His widow and one child survive him.

Karl Certs, of the Jes. Heacock Co., says: "We do not try to sell flowers these days. Our trouble is to make the stock go around. A good supply of cattleyas is a feature."

The Leo. Niessen Co. finds a strong demand for everything in the list.
Choice Russell and Ophelia roses, high grade carnations and cattleyas in quantity, are features.

Jack Berger is back on the job again.
Southern asparagus is a feature, together with Easter lilies, fine carnations and snapdragons.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is featuring good roses and sweet peas. Lily of the valley is also a top liner. K.

VICK'S FAMOUS ASTERS

THREE GLORIOUS NEW VARIETIES

Just at this time, the dawn of a new era of peace, and just when the world has been released from the stress and the expression for its joy and hope in beautiful flowers, we are very fortunate in being able to offer three new varieties. We have offered at any time three more attractive varieties than Heart of France, Silvery Rose and Peerless. Every florist needs to make his offerings for the coming year most attractive and unique. Prepare to fill the demand for flowers, which has already been indicated by the splendid trade in carnations this past year. These beautiful Asters ever produced in your market. It is the florist with the proper perspective who will take advantage of this opportunity and will reap a rich reward and will be enabled to serve his fellowmen in a very real fashion. Plan to make this year the best.

Heart of France Aster.

The most glorious rich, red Aster ever introduced. All others have somber shades of blue or too much yellow in the color pigments. Heart of France opens red as the purest ruby, deepens with age and retains its remarkable beauty to the very end. The petals appear strikingly changeable, showing now a glow and sheen quite unique, now a soft warm velvety texture. In any light, natural or artificial, Heart of France is startlingly beautiful and will command instant admiration. The flowers are large and full with never a trace of hollow center. The plants are of branching type and very robust habit. The stems are long and strong and have very few laterals. The plants begin to bloom quite early in the season and open fully with the mid-season varieties. They retain their brilliancy and luster for a longer period than almost any other color. This will be a tip-top variety for florists as well as home gardeners for the reason that the flowers and stems are so large and vigorous and their shipping and long keeping qualities are such as to make it a winner for almost any purpose. Heart of France will surely supplant all other reds and near reds of either branching or upright types because of its marvelous beauty and other satisfactory characteristics. In packets only, 25c; 2 for 40c.

HEART OF FRANCE ASTER.

Vick's Silvery Rose

Here is another robust, 1 Every petal is a combination of threaded with white. Do not slightest change in light will show a silvery rose. The plants are long and the flowers very large are sure to make Vick's Silvery Rose a winner. In packets only, 25c; 2 for 40c.

Vick's Peerless

The most satisfactory yellow beautiful chrysanthemum yellow shaped, with centers deeply colored. The plants are of branching type and plant with from 20 to 30 good flowers of ample size for extra large are the flowers that the dome. It is certainly a winner. 2 for 40c.

We have introduced more new varieties of Asters than all other American Seedsmen combined.

Vick's Seed Farms.

Situated in one of the garden spots of America, where quality, hardiness and productiveness predominate, over 600 acres devoted to growing high-grade vegetable, farm and flower seeds. Our farms constitute one of the show places of Rochester and Western New York, with their vast expanse of beautiful flowers of which we grow many other kinds than asters. Flowers, vegetables and farm crops are grown under conditions that produce seeds of the most desirable type. Every effort is made to keep up the standard of excellence that the name Vick implies.

SUPPLY INCREASES BUT PRICES FIRM.

There was no material change in the condition of the wholesale market during the past week. During the week ending January 18, there were some indications of lower prices, but on January 20, the market had a stronger tone, particularly in roses and carnations, the supply of both stocks being light. In sweet peas, freesias, Paper White and yellow narcissi, the supply has been on the increase, but not enough to have much effect on prices. Orchids and violets are the only stocks that approach a surplus, and sometimes drag. A noteworthy feature in several stores is the fine quality of iris, some of the best wholesaling up to $9 per dozen. Besides the above mentioned stocks, there is on the market a considerable supply of calendulas, mignonette, snapdragons and cut pansies, all of which move at good prices. Funeral work is the larger part of the business of most of the retail stores, consequently lilies and all other suitable funeral stock is in demand. There were a number of good dinner decorations during the past week that called for good quality.

January 27.—The market is fairly active and prices firm, particularly on roses, carnations, lilies and callas. A larger supply of Paper White and Golden Spur narcissi is arriving and prices are a little easier. Good tulips are now arriving and the best wholesale at $2 per dozen. In minor stocks, there is no change worthy of note.

NOTES.

Although flowers are said to be scarce, one who visits the Dards store, Madison avenue and 44th street, would hardly believe it. At no time of year have we ever noticed a larger or finer stock in a retail store. In the large show window, a fine display of acacias, orchids, heather and other flowers, were recently noticed, on a background of large cibotium ferns. In addition to a well filled ice box, in the store, several tables were covered with vases of sweet peas, snapdragons and the various spring flowers. Pans of tulips arranged in handsome baskets were another feature. Around the walls the national colors were conspicuous. This is one store that is patriotic all the year round.

John V. Phillips, 272 Fulton street, Brooklyn, will soon have rounded out a half century in the retail business in that city. He has been active until a month ago, when an abscess formed on one of his ankles, but we hope to see him around soon. His son, William A., is managing the store.

At the Hession range, Flatbush, they are cutting fine stock of their pink sport of Enchantress, Enchantress and white Enchantress. The sport is a deeper and brighter pink than Enchantress. They have a considerable area in Mrs. Ward, but are tired of it as a producer.

William H. Foddy, 8 Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, has a large and attractive store with a conservatory attached. He says he has no complaint about business. Dame Rumor has it that he has considerable of the "purchasing power" laid by for a rainy day.

One of the most attractive retail stores of Brooklyn is that of Isaac Abrams, 123 Seventh avenue. His show window and ice box are always well filled with good stock, which is good "publicity" for any retailer.

Mrs. S. Trepel, who is a constant buyer in the New York wholesale district, has an attractive store at 295 Seventh avenue, Brooklyn. In its management she is assisted by her very clever young daughter.

The death of Mrs. Charles H. Lohr, wife of a well-known retail florist of the neighboring city of Mt. Vernon, was reported, January 22. She is survived by her husband and other relatives, but no children.

Dailledouze Brothers, Flatbush, are making some changes in the interior of their range that will increase their rose area. This range is now almost completely devoted to roses.

The Flatbush Flower Shop, 2607 Church avenue, which is owned and conducted by Mrs. A. T. McCanna, is showing good features and has been having much funeral work.

G. Messeberg, Flatbush, has a good crop of carnations and callas. He always has a stock of Easter plants and this year has a house of cinerarias coming on.

Paul Klingsporn, who when we first knew him was, so to speak, a Philadelphia student, and who eventually went to Chicago and graduated, spent several days of the past week in this city.

Alfred Demunsky, Flatbush, has a sport of the Enchantress carnation, of his own raising, bright pink in color and a good producer and keeper.

A. T. Bunyard, 413 Madison avenue, always has fine stock and an attractive show window, and he does not get "cold feet" over high prices.

Under the name Victory Florist, a new retail store has recently been opened at 2851 Church avenue, Flatbush, by Chacalos & Hayes.

M. A. Bowe, 332 Fifth avenue, has been keeping his show windows attractive with orchids and spring flowers. He reports business active.

Thomas Daniel, the popular florist of 212 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, keeps his store well stocked with fresh flowers and reports good business.

CUT FLOWERS

118 W. 28th St., NEW YORK

West of 6th Ave. Open 6 a. m. every morning.

It is stated that both state and national agriculturists will address the farmers of New York at Cornell University, Ithaca, February 10-14, including Dean Eugene Davenport of the Illinois State College. Elwood Mead will represent Secretary Lane. Oliver Wilson, the head of the national grange, is coming from Illinois, and Capt. F. A. Waugh, formerly head of landscape art at Massachusetts Agricultural College, will illustrate his lectures with moving pictures, showing the value of horticultural training for wounded soldiers. Dr. W. H. Jordan of the Geneva experiment station, Seth J. Lowell, master of the state grange, and several other well-known agricultural authorities will also be present.

Paul A. and Peter J. Blei, twin brothers, who before they entered the United States army were employed by the E. G. Hill Co., Cincinnati, O., and Richmond, Ind., were in this city, January 26-27, on furlough from Camp Mills, where they have been stationed since entering the service. They called on THE AMERICAN FLORIST, Young & Nugent, and others. They expect their discharges in a short time, and will return to their former positions.

"Roses budding; coal men grave; birds nesting; bees busy and Chicago plumbers worried," are the headlines of a weather article in a local newspaper. As to the coal men, the florists and many other people did the worrying last winter, so it is but fair that the coal men should have their turn. If the Chicago plumbers are like the New York plumbers—but why pursue the subject? Everyone knows a plumber.

A meeting of the leading orchid growers who ship to this market was held at the store of George C. Siebrecht, 109 West 28th street, January 25, to consider action on the impending plant embargo. Julius Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J.; Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J.; George Baldwin, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and other well-known growers attended.

The twelfth annual entertainment and ball of the Greek-American Florists' Association will be held at the Palm Garden, 58th street, near Lexington avenue, Thursday, February 27, at 8:30 p. m. This association has an established reputation for good entertainments and the promoters say that this will eclipse all their previous events.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held on the night of February 10 in the Grand Opera House building, Eighth avenue and 23d street. As President Kessler's administration has already made a good start, it is expected that the next meeting will be interesting and well attended.

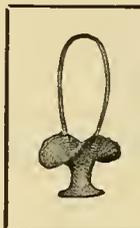

The following delegation left this city on the Lake Shore Limited on the afternoon of January 28, to attend the annual meeting of the American Carnation Society at Cleveland, O.: Roman J. Irwin, Wallace R. Pierson, A. L. Miller, John Young, David Ward and Joseph Hill, the latter of Richmond, Ind.

The retail store at 2251 Broadway, near 80th street, formerly known as the "Colonial Flower Shop," is now owned and conducted by Macres Brothers under their own name. One of them has recently been honorably discharged from the United States army and has resumed his place in the store.

The new Hotel Commodore, 42nd street and Lexington avenue, in the block with the Grand Central station, has a flower stand, under its own management, which is being conducted by Robert Whitaker, well known in the trade of this city.

Charles R. Brown, financial and news editor of the Journal of Commerce, died at his home, Tenafly, N. J., January

INCREASED SUPPLY LOWERS PRICES.

Business conditions are again becoming normal. The supply is increasing steadily and prices, which up until two weeks ago retained their holiday advance, are now dropping considerably. Although the demand is brisk, there is not the inflated call of the past few months, which was caused mostly by the influenza epidemic. Funeral work is still the main support of the trade. The supply of medium grades of roses is quite plentiful, but the select grades are very scarce. Carnations are much more plentiful than during the first of January, and the quality is excellent. There are still a few prim roses and cyclamens being offered in the plant line, but the majority of pot plants are the bulbous stock, which, on account of the recent high prices of cut flowers, have sold unusually well.

NOTES.

Henry Freese, of the Freese Floral Co., returned to the store last week, after an absence on account of illness. Miss Margaret Sturm, of the same firm, has also returned to work, following an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. R. W. Doswell was severely shocked and internally injured last week when the automobile in which she and Mr. Doswell were riding, collided with two other machines.

The New Haven Floral Co.'s greenhouses are making a fine showing at present. They are having a fine cut of roses and carnations, but are not able to meet the big demand.

The Flick Floral Co. had a number of handsome table decorations and weddings last week, which, with a large amount of funeral work, used up all available stock.

Clem Lanternier and Roy Brown, of the A. J. Lanternier Co., are both "on the job" again after an attack of influenza.

Edgar Wenninghoff reports a brisk trade, especially in funeral designs.

RETAILERS FORM CO-OPERATIVE BODY.

Proprietors of retail florists' shops in the city to the number of a dozen met on the night of January 22 at the Hampton hotel to discuss organization. The following officers were chosen: William C. Gloeckner, president; William C. Kurth, of Kurth & Burke, vice-president; Edward P. Tracey, The Rosery, 23 Steuben street, secretary, and Howard Menand, treasurer. President Gloeckner announced the following committees: Constitution and by-laws, William C. Kurth, Frederick A. Danker, and Harry Riggs, of Whittle & Riggs; Advertising St. Valentine's day—Frederick A. Danker, Howard Menand, and George Russell. The association will meet on the third Wednesday evening of the month to discuss matters pertaining to the retail florists' business. Following the business of the evening dinner was enjoyed. For some years there has been talk among the retailers, members of the florists' club, to form an organization to be devoted entirely to their interests. The meeting on January 22 was the most important step to that end yet taken. The retailers' association will not conflict with the regular florists' club, and the two bodies are in harmony.

NOTE.

George E. Nagengast, Jr., has been granted a permit by the municipal bureau of buildings to remove two greenhouses from the property at 436 Western avenue to his establishment at 806 Washington avenue. The greenhouses will be re-erected in the spring upon concrete foundations.

Rochester, N. Y.

DEMAND QUIET BUT SPASMODIC.

Trade is rather quiet, although there are occasional spurts and rushes. Roses have been scarce and poor in quality, but prices hold firm, American Beauty especially. Carnations are of good quality, but the supply none too abundant. Bulbous flowers are seen in nearly all of the shop windows. Violets, which have been plentiful, have begun to diminish. Flowering plants are now in good demand.

NOTES.

Due to the unusually warm weather, cherry and peach trees and flowering shrubs have begun to bud.

George T. Boucher recently arranged a fine window display of cibotiums.

H. E. Wilson has been making a feature of basket arrangements.

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June, 1919.

THE Dutch steamer Rotterdam is reported having sailed from Holland, via Brest, for New York, January 22.

PEA and bean contract growers report deliveries sufficiently completed as to ease their demands for bank loans.

D. I. BUSHNELL, of D. I. Bushnell & Co., St. Louis, Mo., enjoying a vacation in the south, is now at the Arlington hotel, Hot Springs, Ark.

LEM W. BOWEN, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., has averaged a grand-sun every six months the past four years. Pretty fair average.

ONION SET prices in the Chicago district are somewhat easier, run of the warehouse stock colors, $2.00; whites, $2.65; special grading 25 to 35 cents higher.

A. T. FERRELL, of A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, Mich., and Mrs. Ferrell, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Marie, to Mr. Raynor Sears Judd, January 22.

THE Amoskeag Mills at Manchester, N. H., makers of grain bags in quantity, employing 15,000 workers, will operate five and one-quarter hours a day, effective at once.

MOOSE JAW, SASK.—At the recent provincial seed fair at the Saskatoon University, W. J. Mathewson won first prize for Marquis wheat in the standing grain competition.

VISITED CHICAGO: R. L. Templin, of the Templin-Crockett-Bradley Co., Cleveland, O.; L. P. Hogue, Ventura, Calif.; S. P. Landreth, of the D. Landreth Seed Co., Bristol, Pa.

GRASS SEED.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade January 29 were as follows: Timothy, $8.00 to $10.25 per 100 pounds, a drop of 25 cents in the high price of last week.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Manager William Holmes, of C. C. Morse & Co.'s Market street store, reports a heavy demand for all seeds, especially garden varieties. The call for sweet pea is much earlier than last year.

PETER HENDERSON & Co., New York, in their 1919 catalogue, have changed, in an appealingly effective manner the motive power behind their well known wheelbarrow of vegetables, from an elderly man to an athletic young woman.

J. S. MICHAEL, of the Sioux City Seed Co., Sioux City, Ia., who stopped off at Chicago, January 29, returning from a contracting trip, reports good business. Prices on his specialties are about the same as last year, a few items being slightly lower.

CONTRACT orders for 1919 garden seed crops are being placed slowly, it is reported. Growers face conditions which they claim do not admit of much reduction, while seedsmen are waiting for evidence that they can unload present supply at a profit.

Clover Prices Advance.

Following a report from Washington that the government will permit the export of 3,000,000 pounds of clover seed to meet the seed requirements of Europe, prices at Toledo advanced 25 cents, January 28, closing at $24.75, a drop of 35 cents, however, during the preceding seven days. January was quoted at $24.75, February $24.50 and March $23.75. Timothy was steady with cash offered at $4.75, January $4.85, February $4.87½, March $5.05, April $5.00, May $5.10, September $5.55.

Barteldes Has Disastrous Fire.

The warehouse and office of the Barteldes Seed Co. at Oklahoma City, Okla., was the scene of a disastrous conflagration, January 19, the entire building and stock being a total loss. The firm is fortunate, however, in having in that city a retail store, another three-story warehouse and a grain elevator nearby, and the warehouse is already being equipped to continue the garden seed and small field seed business, complete stocks being shipped from the warehouses at Lawrence, Kan., so orders can be filled without delay. The carlot and heavy field seed business will be taken care of for the time being from the grain elevator.

A serious loss is the destruction of the entire mailing list, both wholesale and retail, and while the wholesale price lists and retail catalogues were not in the fire, it will be necessary for customers to write for them.

New York Seed Trade.

A large force is at work in the annex of Vaughan's Seed Store getting orders ready. While calling it an annex, it is in fact a separate store on the opposite corner of Barclay and Church streets, and has been well fitted up for the purpose for which it is being used.

Frank Woodruff and wife have gone to Florida for an extended stay. Mr. Campbell, who has for years been bookkeeper for S. D. Woodruff & Son, is seriously ill of pneumonia. Considerable improvements have recently been made in the internal and office arrangements of this firm's store.

Henderson Acquires Seed Business.

A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, well known jobbers in seeds, plants and bulbs, have purchased the retail business known as Winterson's Seed Store, and will take possession February 1. The Henderson business, formerly conducted at 211 North State street, will be concentrated at the new location, 166 North Wabash avenue, in the heart of the wholesale cut flower market. John P. Degnan, who was with Winterson's Seed Store many years, will be retained by A. Henderson & Co., in the same capacity.

Imports at New York.

During the week ending January 25, horticultural goods were received at the above port as follows:

S. S. Talthytris, from London, Eng.—Dunkirk Seed Co., Dunkirk, N. Y., 32 bags seeds.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass., 12 hags seeds.

Bertrand, Johansen Seed Co., Cincinnati, O., 10 bags seeds.

DREER'S FINE SWEET PEAS

We offer below a line of the very best Orchid-flowered and Grandiflora sorts. For complete list including the Early Forcing kinds see our current Wholesale Catalogue, copies free to florists on request.

Orchid-Flowered or Spencer Sweet Peas

This type is distinguished from the grandiflora sorts by the extraordinary size of their flowers and by the standard being crinkled and wavy. They usually bear four blossoms on a stem, and are as easy to grow as the commonest sorts. Owing to their being shy seeders, they will always be higher in price than the grandifloras.

Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President;
C. W. Waid, Grand Rapids, Mich., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

ONTARIO vegetable growers claim they have suffered during the war through competition with amateur gardeners, but believe they will eventually benefit through a more general use of vegetables.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, January 28.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $6.00 to $7.50; celery, crate, $2.50 to $2.75; head lettuce, crate, $5.50; radishes, per dozen bunches, 50 to 60 cents; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $7.50 to $8.00.

New York, January 27.—Celery (state), per case, $4.00 to $10.00; cucumbers, $1.00 to $2.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.85 per basket; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 40 cents; lettuce, per package, 50 cents to $6.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $5.00.

Onion Movement and Values.

The outstanding feature of the movement of the northern onion crop this season was the large amount of stock shipped before the first of January, the final report of the bureau of crop estimates of the United States department of agriculture reduced to carlots of 600 bushels showing a crop of 22,365 cars in 1918 of which 12,351 cars had been shipped by January 1. During the corresponding period of the preceding crop season 9364 cars had been shipped out of 21,213. In respect to the earliness of the shipping movement, the season so far is comparable with that of 1916-1917, when as again happened this year, more than one-half of the estimated crop was moved before the first of the year. Early shipments this season were due to various reasons. Storage buyers, remembering the losses of the preceding season, hesitated to commit themselves heavily, while on the other hand, growers found the crop maturing early and some of it doubtful in keeping quality, and not having facilities for long storage, started an early, active shipping movement. Apparently these liberal shipments have been consumed or sold to dealers. Without doubt much stock remains to be shipped if prices warrant. Apparently 10,000 cars of the total crop remained in producing sections January 1. Markets have been reported dull throughout most of the season in both producing and consuming sections. During the last part of December the market situation improved, supplies becoming moderate and many markets advancing 25-50 cents from the low point. The improvement continued into January of the present year. On January 9 the general jobbing range of the large city markets was $1.75-$2.25, an average gain of 50 cents over the season's low points. Tops of $2.50 were reached in some sections on that date, while demand was reported good in New York and Chicago, but continued limited in most other markets.

The Tomato Crop.

Where tomatoes are intended for a spring crop under glass, an early start is necessary. Lettuce growers generally start their plants in December, owing to the low temperatures carried in lettuce houses. However, where a warmer house is available, we prefer a later start. Any time in January to early February will do; we would prefer younger plants to those that have become overgrown or pot-bound. When no warm house is available, a hot-bed can be built right in the greenhouse. Build a box of a suitable size and 18 inches deep and tramp full of fresh horse-manure. When hot, put in four or five inches of cinders or sand and place the flats on this warm bottom. If sash are at hand, put them on the box, same as a hot-bed, and the young tomato will walk right along. At this time of the year, seedlings damp off readily, and it must be remembered that the more manure is used in the soil to fill the flats, the more danger from this malady. If manure is used, it should be old and fine, or from an old hot-bed, and much sand is needed to correct it; one-quarter loam, one-quarter manure, and one-half sand would do well. Gradually, growers are learning to shift their plants as little as possible. The proper way, as some would have it, is to pick out the seedlings, 2½x2½, and from these flats, plant directly into the lettuce beds in March. This means that the sooner the seedlings can go into their permanent quarters the better. This is correct. However, when tomatoes are used as a companion crop to cut flowers, such as carnations, sweet peas, etc., it is often necessary to pot the plants and to shift them. In this case, a rich compost should be used to pot them into, and the growth should then be controlled by limiting the water supply, for a starved tomato plant will never be a heavy cropper. By reducing the water supply, we can control them in pots until needed for benching. We have had such plants wilt for the lack of water for weeks and come out all right in the end. The only precaution we use is to syringe them once or twice a day in hot sunshine to prevent their burning. Last year, many florists for the first time tried their tomatoes among carnations. We have seen some very good crops that way, and the practice will, no doubt, be continued. As one grower told us, "We got 800 pounds of tomatoes out of that house, which sold for 20 cents per pound, which money came in handy at a time when our flower business is at a low ebb."

MARKETMAN.

Tomatoes for the Canning Factory.

Four main factors enter into the production of a profitable crop of tomatoes for the canning factory: viz., growing of good plants, the use of proper fertilizers, careful preparation and cultivation of the soil, and the selection of the seed, according to S. N. Green in The Monthly Bulletin of the Ohio agricultural experiment station, Wooster. In this article, however, only the last point will be considered, namely the relation of the variety to the yield of the crop.

A century has passed since the tomato was first offered to the public by seedsmen as an edible vegetable. Many varieties have been developed, named and renamed until today the early types and nomenclature have been almost lost sight of. As the canning factory has become the chief channel through which the tomato is marketed, it is not surprising that we have a considerable group of varieties adapted to planting for canning purposes.

The pure food laws of Ohio forbid the use of artificial coloring matter; hence, with the tomato for canning, one of the prime requirements is a skin having a bright red color. This eliminates largely from our consideration the so-called "purple varieties" and certainly all of the yellow skinned sorts. The extremely early types, of which the Earliana may be considered the standard, may be largely discarded in Ohio, as they are of delicate growth, much subject to disease of leaf and fruit, are thin walled, seedy and rough, and while very good for early markets, are poorly adapted to canning uses.

The shape and size of the tomato are of small importance to the factory which pulps its stock to be worked up later into catsup, soup, etc., and the grower selling to such canneries does not need to consider a small or uneven size objectionable, nor are the rough flat types unsuited for this purpose. However, factories which put tomatoes in tin cans after removing the skins are insistent that the size be fairly uniform, not greatly above medium, and that the shape be such that peeling is not difficult and without excessive waste. Hence, in general, the varieties suited for the cannery are also those of a bright scarlet color, also popular for midseason markets and the grocery trade.

The average length of growing season at Wooster is 147 days, according to records extending over more than 30 years. For the northern tier of counties in Ohio, excepting a narrow belt along Lake Erie modified by that great body of water, 150 days may be considered the average length of growing season. It is therefore advisable for tomato growers in northern Ohio to select varieties that ripen the bulk of the crop early in order that the yield be not cut short by frosts. At the same time the variety should not be lacking in any other desirable qualities.

Bonny Best and Landreth may be considered typical of such varieties, while Stone and Matchless may be classed as late, the heavy pickings from Stone not being made until a short time before frosts kill the vines and soften the fruits. In the latitude of Columbus and southward the length of the growing season is about three weeks longer and therefore, in the central and southern counties, varieties of which Stone is typical is reasonably certain for a satisfactory crop.

BUSINESS SHOWS GENERAL IMPROVEMENT.

Trade since the holidays has been good, with stock more plentiful but still high in price. Funeral work continues heavy and social functions are beginning to call for flowers for the first time in four years, there being a big demand for corsages last week. The quality of the cut stock shows general improvement, and the demand is in excess of the supply.

NOTES.

McKenna, Ltd., were heavy sufferers in a fire which originated in the packing shed and destroyed about two-thirds of their splendid establishment. The greatest damage was caused by cold, the glass at the ends of the houses being destroyed. James McKenna contracted a severe cold and Leo J. McKenna was injured by falling glass while doing salvage work. The loss is estimated at $25,000 with $12,000 insurance. The range will be rebuilt.

The gardeners' and florists' club, in order to renew interest and enlarge the membership, will hold a series of meetings at members' places of business or residences. The social side of the organization will be featured.

Joseph Bennett, who closed his houses, is dismantling some of them and the material is being disposed of.

F. C. Smith, for many years gardener for Sir William Van Horne, has retired for a long earned rest.

W. J. Smith is able to attend to business again after an attack of influenza.

Mrs. James Kean is still a sufferer with the prevailing epidemic.

NOTES.

Several florists in this city have been victimized by a swindler who has been disposing of a worthless fertilizer called "Ironitis," which he claimed would supply food for roses and carnations and would remain in the soil for years without renewal. He fraudulently gave the name of a number of rose growers of national prominence as reference.

Kingsley Walker is in charge of the F. Walker Co.'s range at Camp Taylor, having received an honorable discharge from the officers' training school at Camp Hancock.

It is reported that the C. B. Thompson Co. will have to look for another location, its lease having expired and the building taken by a shoe concern.

Several large houses at the range of Anders Rasmussen, New Albany, Ind., now devoted to lettuce, will soon be planted with roses.

G. L. Nance has leased the range of the F. Walker Co. at New Albany and will grow roses, violets and bedding plants.

Nicholas Riehlman, who has been a sufferer from influenza, is now recovering.

The Jacob Schulz Co. has discontinued its branch store at Camp Taylor.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-four annual convention will be held at Chicago in 1919.

VISITED CHICAGO: Burton J. Vandervort, president of the Illinois Landscape Association, Bloomington, Ill.

RIVERSIDE, CALIF.—Citrus fruit crops in this vicinity have been reduced 10 to 15 per cent by severe frosts. The forecast for the fruit belt of southern California is 31,000 cars of oranges and 7,000 of lemons.

"RECREATION Uses of the National Forests" is the title of an interesting booklet of 44 pages by Frank A. Waugh, recently issued by the forest service of the United States department of agriculture.

Western Association of Nurserymen.

The Western Association of Nurserymen met in annual session at the Coates house, Kansas City, Mo., January 22-23, with representatives from 49 companies in 12 states in attendance. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Earl D. Needham, Des Moines, Ia., president; E. P. Bernardin, Parsons, Kan., vice-president; Geo. W. Holsinger, Rosedale, Kan., secretary-treasurer. Executive committee: H. D. Simpson, Vincennes, Ind.; C. G. Marshall, Arlington, Neb.; C. C. Mayhew, Sherman, Tex.; E. E. May, Shenandoah, Ia., and J. H. Skinner, Topeka, Kan. A resolution was adopted to the effect that nurserymen should discourage the practice of free replacement of trees that do not grow, and also went on record as being opposed to the practice of newspapers accepting advertisements for stock at killing prices. Trade was reported brisk, but supply of stock short due to labor conditions.

New England Nurserymen's Ass'n.

The annual meeting of the New England Nurserymen's Association was held at Boston, Mass., January 28-29, President Robinson occupying the chair. The roll call and the report of the membership committee showed a gain of 50 per cent in the enrollment. Two of the subjects on the programme were of unusual interest, "Quarantine Regulation" and "Market Development." A resolution was adopted and sent to Secretary Houston of the department of agriculture, asking that Order 37 of the federal horticultural board be withdrawn. Curtis Nye Smith, of Boston, counsel for the American Association of Nurserymen, commented on this quarantine ruling, stating that in it the federal horticultural board had exceeded its authority and that this order was as unnecessary as the killing of a dog to eradicate the flea which may live on it. J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., president of the American Civic Association, advised united action by nurserymen and the placing of protests with Secretary Houston rather than with the federal horticultural board.

F. P. Rockwell, of New York, and Robert Pyle and J. Edward Moon, members of the Nurserymen's National Service Bureau, spoke for the support of this bureau. W. H. Wyman, of Massachusetts, advised waiting until the movement was financed with at least $100,000 per year. Mr. Moon replied that what was needed now was leaders and that if a few would start the movement for market development upon a small scale, it would rapidly grow and receive much stronger backing.

The annual banquet was well attended by members and guests. The public illustrated lecture by J. Horace McFarland was attended by the members and about 100 guests from garden clubs, horticultural societies and improvement societies. He demonstrated

URGENT.

Plant Imports Danger.

Unless the plant growers and nurserymen of the United States take prompt and vigorous action, it is likely that all imports of palms, azaleas, roses, rhododendrons, box and bay trees, etc., also general nursery stock, from Europe will be shut out under the proposed plan of the federal horticultural board unless the present programme of that body is changed.

What To Do.

Every florist, nurseryman and seedsman should at once telegraph protests to his representatives in Congress, both Senate and House of Representatives, also to Dr. C. L. Marlatt, Chairman Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D. C.

Do It Today.

by word and picture what could be done to make New England more fruitful and more beautiful. He insisted that greater thought be spent in making plantings so that the results will be pictures rather than chromos; that the results should be original and not mere apeings.

The second session was given over to papers upon the growing of high grade ornamentals. The feature was a paper by Wm. H. Judd, of Arnold Arboretum, on the subject of "New Ornamentals of Value." At the final session, C. H. Greaton, of Rhode Island, read a paper on the "Nurserymen's Outlook for 1919." His opinion was that the future is very hopeful, and that as soon as the building boom starts it will be exceptionally fine. Wm. W. Colton, city forester, of Newton, Mass., presented the subject, "Living Monuments for Our Soldiers." He advised the carrying out of this movement and recommended the best sorts of trees for this purpose.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: C. R. Burr, Manchester, Conn., president; Charles Adams, Springfield, Mass., vice-president; H. M. Wyman, Framingham, Mass., secretary; V. A. Vanicek, Newport, R. I., treasurer.

Forest Fires in Texas.

Texas loses something like $2,000,000 a year in forest fires. The state appropriates about $10,000 a year with which the state forester and his aids endeavor to keep this loss at a minimum. Fortunately the larger part of Texas forests is in the rain belt. Were that not so, the yellow pine would be burned up in the next 10 years.—Houston Post.

OSHKOSH, WIS.—N. A. Rasmussen, of this city, has been elected president of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society for the ensuing year.

CHATHAM, CONN.—Samuel Stewart, superintendent of the Howard Taylor estate, has been elected to the general assembly of the state legislature.

CLEVELAND, O.—At a meeting of the local florists' club, January 6, resolutions protesting the proposed federal horticultural board restrictions were unanimously passed and copies sent to congressmen representing this district.

BEACON, N. Y.—Benjamin Hammond, the well-known manufacturer of insecticides, greenhouse paints and putty, at a meeting of prominent citizens, January 23, was chosen chairman of a committee to formulate plans for a suitable welcome to the returning soldiers from this city and vicinity.

HIGH PRICES RULE LIMITED SUPPLY.

There has been little change in market conditions during the past week, with prices still high, the supply none too plentiful, and a heavy demand, especially in funeral work. Rose prices range from eight to 35 cents, with quality not up to standard, while carnations are a little better both in quality and supply, and are used largely in the cheaper lines of work, in addition to stevia and yellow and white narcissi. Sweet peas are more plentiful and of improved quality. Calendulas are still taking well. Pot plants continue popular. The demand, both local and out-of-town, is brisk.

NOTES.

H. Kusik & Co. are rebuilding their office. The old quarters will be used as a supply room.

J. J. Hess, of Omaha, Neb., visited his friends in the trade in this city last week. E. J. B.

JAMESPORT, N. Y.—J. Ebb Weir, Jr., proprietor of the Elklawn Greenhouses, after serving nine months as chief boatswain in the United States navy, has been released and is back on the job again. The range, which has been under Mrs. Weir's management during her husband's absence, is in fine condition.

The Exhibition.

The ball room of the Hollenden hotel, the scene of many former floral exhibitions and florists' meetings, was the place happily selected for the twenty-eighth exhibition of the society, and when the entries, completely staged, were turned over to the judges at 1 o'clock Wednesday there was, according to many recognized expert growers, displayed blooms that excelled in size, beauty and substance any ever before exhibited. Records show that in some former years a greater number were shown at the annual exhibition, but in face of the most adverse conditions for the growers that they ever experienced, this show was deemed a triumph of skillful, well-directed effort that was born and fostered in the optimism that saw so far in advance the happy results obtained for it was in the cloudy, uncertain days of early last summer that the initial efforts were put forth by the growers, which included the officers of the society. The local management was most excellent, and as a result it is doubtful if ever before the exhibits were kept in such uniformly good condition to the closing hours of the convention, which terminated with a banquet in the same room with the full exhibition in sight to greatly add charm to the event.

As indicating the success of the exhibition, comments were heard as follows:

"The show is far beyond expectations under such trying conditions. The quality of the blooms most excellent."—R. C. Kerr.

"The show is great and Laddie is the finest variety ever produced."—A. N. Campbell.

"Up to the standard of former years. Laddie stands out superior to any variety in the history of the flower."—Alfred Baur.

"Agreeably surprised at the number of exhibits and the quality of blooms. Unfavorable growing conditions make the result the more praiseworthy."—W. W. Gammage.

"A good exhibition; a greater improvement in quality could not be expected."—A. J. Stahelin.

"The quality of flowers shown is most excellent, but we cannot expect as big an exhibition as in former years."—Elmer D. Smith.

"A surprising exhibition in view of the conditions that harassed every grower the past season."—Wallace Pierson.

"It is a splendid show, and I am glad to see it so successful."—W. J. Palmer.

"It is a great show. I am glad I came over to see it. The blooms are wonderful and holding up finely."—Fred Breitmeyer.

"Every visiting florist seems glad of the success of this show. That is a surprise to the most sanguine."—A. Miller.

Wednesday's Business Session.

The opening of the business sessions of the convention in the assembly room of the Hollenden hotel, Wednesday evening, were marked by the absence of any preliminary ceremonies whatever. President C. S. Strout occupied the chair, and to the 50 members present, read his address, at the conclusion of which he appointed C. W. Johnson, Fred Lemon and Ernest Saunders as a committee to report on its recommendations the following day. Secretary A. F. J. Baur then read his annual report, which was followed by that of Treasurer T. E. Dorner, read by Secretary Baur. This was followed by the report of an auditing firm verifying the foregoing reports and highly commending the systematic work of both officers.

Fred Lautenschlager, speaking for the trade of Chicago, extended an invitation to the society to hold its next annual meeting in that city. J. F. Ammann followed in an urgent appeal to accept the invitation. A letter was read from the Cincinnati Florist's Society, urging the society to meet in that city, and assuring the members genuine hospitality and excellent facilities for the holding of the meeting and exhibition there. This was supported by J. W. Rodgers. However, the evident inclination of the members to prefer Chicago prompted E. G. Gillette, Cincinnati, to withdraw the invitation of the florists there, but reminded those present that at a future time, insistence would be made for the privilege and pleasure of the Ohio city florists to entertain the American Carnation Society.

The nomination of officers for the ensuing year then followed. S. J. Goddard nominated Theodore Dorner for president and many supported the name. J. F. Ammann nominated C. W. Johnson for vice-president and E. G. Gillette supported it. For secretary, E. G. Gillette nominated A. F. J. Baur, seconded by C. W. Johnson, E. Saunders nominated Fred E. Dorner for treasurer. For director to succeed Fred Burki, retired, S. J. Goddard nominated W. D. Howard, for the same office, Adam Kohankie nominated Carl Hagenburger. The two retiring, C. W. Johnson and David S. Ward, were nominated to succeed themselves for a period of three years.

Secretary Baur then read the judges' report on the awards and followed with a letter from C. Engelmann, Saffron Walden, England, reciting in detail the many trials of the growers there during the period of the war. Adam Kohankie, Denver, Colo., stated, that while not complaining of the decision of the judges in making awards, he thought, however, that more consideration should be given to exhibits coming from far-distant points when in competition with the like entries from more favored localities, and referred to the variety, Denver, that came nearly two thousand miles. The discussion of this thought, which was well received, led to the offer by R. C. Kerr of a special prize of $25 for the most successful keeping variety shown at the future exhibitions, judged according to relative distance traveled, and to be distinct from the conditions of the Fred Burki's special prize as now scheduled. Mr. Kohankie, further commenting upon climatic conditions of Denver, said that country suffered very much the past year from little sunshine and the severity of the weather in the early fall.

Irwin Bertermann was profuse in his praise of all the blooms shown at the exhibition, and called particular attention to the variety Laddle. A general discussion followed on the variable keeping qualities of carnations, and high commendation was given the variety Denver that was shown in such good condition after having been cut eight days. It was thought the high altitude of Colorado may have been responsible for the vitality that was evident in this variety.

Thursday's Proceedings.

At the opening of the Thursday morning session, it was decided to defer the judging of the exhibits to determine the winner of the Burki special prize, until evening and report the result at the banquet later. The selection of Chicago as the next meeting place was made on the motion of E. G. Gillett, which received unanimous support.

The report on the president's address was read by Chairman C. W. Johnson. It heartily approved president Strout's suggestion that some permanent recognition be given these of the society's members who entered military service, and to that end the president appointed E. G. Gillett, Geo. Noyes and R. Witterstaetter to draw up suitable resolutions in conformity to the president's recommendation. The committee recommended the president's recommendation to extend aid to the growers of our allied countries in their efforts of reconstruction, and gave it the form of requesting Secretary Baur to at once correspond with floral societies and individual growers in those afflicted countries, and learn whereby the brother growers here can aid them in the contemplated gratuitous contribution of stock for that purpose. The president's recommendation of a system of grading was approved, and led to the appointment of a committee consisting of C. W. Johnson, Fred Lemon and S. J. Goddard to devise a means of standard grading to be known as the American Carnation Society system. The president's suggestion to attempt the regulation of prices did not meet the approval of the committee, who stated that the old standard guide dent's recommendation to contribute cuttings and plants to the growers of our allied countries.

David S. Ward, who was in the service in France, was called upon to relate his experience while "over there." His dramatic recital of some of the exciting events he witnessed in that unfortunate country, was listened to with keen interest and left no doubt in the mind of anyone present as to the wisdom and justice of President Strout's recommendation to extend substantial aid to the afflicted florists there.

Discussing the president's suggestion as to the regulation or maintenance of prices, an attempt was made to arrive at an understanding of what may be regarded as a profitable average price that carnations may be grown for, but the great diversity of growing conditions in the widely separated parts of the country, particularly in the cost of coal, made the efforts indefinite, but the trend of thought, as developed, was directed to great carefulness in growing and marketing that would insure profit to the growers. To this end, J. F. Ammann made the suggestion, that found approval of those present, to form organizations of growers in the different parts of the country to keep in touch with their local conditions and make prices based upon such conditions and maintain them. "Do not have gluts," he warned. "If necessary, give the unavoidable excess to hospitals and the poor, but maintain the stability of the industry." Geo. Asmus, commenting upon it, said: "The growers are generally careless and know little about the actual cost of their productions, which is the basis of all the trouble in making prices." In an ef-of supply and demand is, as yet, the only method to determine this much mooted question. The committee highly commended Secretary Baur's report, his optimistic attitude throughout the year in the face of adverse conditions, and his successful arrangements for this meeting and exhibition. The same report included due recognition of Treasurer Dorner's efficient custody of the society's funds.

J. H. Dunlop, R. Witterstaetter and Irwin Bertermann were appointed a committee to carry into effect the president's recommendation to contribute cuttings and plants to the growers of our allied countries. President Strout appointed a committee, consisting of J. H. Dunlop, A. Kohankie, S. J. Goddard and E. Saunders. Henry Penn, speaking from the retailers' point of view, said: "Strengthen the prices; make it possible by more publicity. Get more people to use flowers and there will be no glut with depression of prices. We are up now, and let us stay up, not to the highest point but to fair figures that will be remunerative to both growers and retailers."

Officers Elected.

The election of officers resulted in Theodore Dorner, Lafayette, Ind., being chosen president for the ensuing year. C. W. Johnson, Morgan Park, Chicago, being the selection for vice-president. A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., secretary, and F. E. Dorner, Lafayette, Ind., treasurer, were re-elected.

Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., collection of seedling carnations.

Wm. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y., Chrysanthemums Hamburg. Late White and Late Pink.

The Retailers' Exhibits.

The table decorations by six of the local florists added much to the attractiveness of the show and many were the words of admiration and approval of the visiting ladies. The tables were round and of uniform size. C. M. Wagner treated his most effectively by the use of deep crimson carnations in a low basket effect with pussy willows and a profusion of maiden hair fern. The J. M. Gasser Co. had a centerpiece with high effect, using cerise carnations, acacias, maiden hair and pussy willows. It was tastefully executed.

CARNATION LADDIE.

Winner American Carnation Society's Gold Medal at Cleveland Exhibition, January 29-30, 1919.

W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., was chosen a director and David S. Ward and C. W. Johnson were elected judges to succeed themselves.

and much admired. Knoble Bros. used Gloriosa carnations in a low glass bowl with pussy willows and maiden hair and yellow freesias. Smith & Fetters, in their decoration of colonial effect, used light pink carnations in a low arrangement of almost solid formation. Rich, straw-colored, wide ribbons reached from it to four points of the table, the whole being most effective. A. M. Albrecht used a centerpiece of deep pink carnations in a high vase with the base similarly treated. The Jones-Russell Co. used the new carnation, Democracy, in a high vase, terminated with a candle of the same shade of pink. The base of the vase was liberally treated with the use of bronze leucothoe and carnations. The flowers used were large and fine, though the whole called for a larger size table to maintain more consistent proportions. This table attracted considerable attention.

The Banquet.

Seldom, if ever, have we seen such a beautiful setting as was presented for the banquet tendered the visitors Thursday night after the close of the business sessions. The tables, at which were seated 175 persons, were arranged along the outer walls of the ball room, leaving the spacious center for the dancing that followed. Herman Knoble acted as toastmaster, and ably so. Music, dancing, recitations and speeches alternated with pleasurable frequency and continued until a late hour. The splendid opportunity permitted also the display of the publicity films shown by the local committee in the same room during the F. T. D. meeting last October.

Chas. S. Strout, retiring president, the first speaker, had assigned to him the subject, "The Carnation," which he treated briefly, but most interestingly. He claimed the rare merit of the blooms on exhibition was the result more of the extreme care of the grower than of skill. The president-elect, Theodore Dorner, modestly thanked the members for the honor shown him and was pleased to see such splendid carnations. Referring to the gold medal prize winner, Laddie, he hoped it would be grown for many years. He urged all to work hard in the interest of the society. Carl Hagenburger said: "I am happy tonight for having invited the society here a year ago." J. F. Ammann, president of the Society of American Florists, was called upon to respond to the toast, "Peace," and while he is usually serious, he injected some humor into the beginning of his address that aroused much enthusiasm in his plea for one hundred per cent Americanism. Education, he said, of our people in pure American spirit will itself bring and maintain the true peace the world yearns for. And this assured, he hoped florists will get some of the good results of the readjustment period now to speedily follow. Geo. Asmus responded to the "Retail Flower Business, Past, Present and Future." He reviewed interestingly the primitive methods of the past and the rapidly changing conditions that signifies all that is modern. He pleaded for more publicity to maintain the progress of the business. Department stores dealing in our product is a mistake, he said. Florists themselves should use their methods to advertise. The future is rosy, get together, organize, and demand a fair price for flowers. He was most gracious to the local florists for their hospitality and co-operation.

Miss Andrews' recitations and humorous anecdotes preceded W. W. Gammage in his response to "Our Friends and Neighbors." He said: "We in Canada rejoice in your success. We now see the Union Jack side by side with the American flag." He paid a glowing tribute to President Wilson, whose proclamation and efforts makes the world safe for democracy. Chas. Grakelow, who yielded to the urgent telegram of Herman Knoble to stop here on his way to Detroit, praised the Cleveland "boys" for their achievements and was eloquent in his tribute to the growers responsible for such magnificent blooms. He urged them all to develop publicity for the product of their greenhouses and skill, and make flowers become a real necessity, and then it will be easy to educate the buyers to the justice of advanced prices. He concluded by the recital of "Your Flag and My Flag." Henry Penn used to splendid advantage the opportunity to advance the publicity campaign, which this year will involve the expenditure of $100,000. He said: "We will create a new desire for flowers that will consume our entire product, and avoid the dreaded glut." He closed with praise to the local craft and wished other cities would emulate them in behalf of publicity. The festivities concluded with the singing by all of "The Star Spangled Banner" and the reading by John H. Dunlap of the final resolutions.

Report of Committee on Final Resolutions

Your committee on final resolutions at this, the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Carnation Society, begs to report as follows:

To the Cleveland Florists' Club, for the ample and satisfactory arrangements made for the convenience of those attending the convention, for having secured the Hollenden hotel, which has proved so admirably suited for the purposes of the convention, both in the magnificent exhibition hall, also the hall in which the business meetings were held; the care that was exercised in maintaining the proper temperature in the exhibition hall, which was evidenced by the superb condition of the entries at the close of the exhibition; for the painstaking efforts of individual members of the club in assisting in every way to facilitate the arranging of exhibits, and in making the visit from outside points both pleasant and profitable.

To the proprietors of the Hollenden hotel, for the use of the several rooms for exhibition and business purposes of the society; the care that was exercised in all details that had for their object the success of the convention.

To the local press for the extended notices and publicity given the meetings and exhibition, offering the citizens of Cleveland an opportunity to view some of the finest carnation blooms ever exhibited at any meeting of the society, which, no doubt, was appreciated, therefore, be it

Resolved, that the hearty thanks of the American Carnation Society be hereby tendered to these several bodies, and that these resolutions be incorporated and spread on the minutes of the society, all of which is,

Respectfully submitted,
J. H. DUNLOP, Chairman,
W. R. NICHOLSON,
R. WITTERSTAETTER.

NOTES.

The local publicity committee took advantage of the occasion to enlist the support of the daily press to advertise the convention, and many people visited the show as a result.

It was a happy coincidence that the show was held on the birthday anniversary of the late President McKinley, who so much loved the carnation.

The flowers were distributed to the soldiers of the 331st regiment as they passed through the city Friday on their way to Camp Sherman.

The Joy Floral Co.'s exhibit of meritorious seedlings showed that the south is not behind in advancing the divine flower.

Nearly every exhibitor brought his stock with him, fearing to entrust it to the express companies.

Additional Visitors.

In addition to the visitors announced in last week's issue the following were among the later arrivals:

Karl P. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn.
Fred Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.
F. Dorner, Lafayette, Ind.
Theodore Dorner, Lafayette, Ind.
John A. Evans, Richmond, Ind.
Charles Frueh, Saginaw, Mich.
John Frueh, Saginaw, Mich.
D. S. Geddes, St. Louis, Mo.
Charles Grakelow, Philadelphia, Pa.
Harry Heintl, Toledo, O.
Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind.
Alfred C. Hottes, Columbus, O.
R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.
E. C. Ludwig, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Mrs. E. C. Ludwig, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Wm. C. Manke, Milwaukee, Wis.
Major P. F. O'Keefe, Boston, Mass.
S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.
Henry Penn, Boston, Mass.
J. L. Schiller, Toledo, O.
Charles A. Schmitt, Cleveland, O.
Elmer D. Smith, Adrian, Mich.

Calendulas.

The calendula is becoming one of the standard winter stock flowers, the introduction of the varieties, Orange King, and the lighter yellow, Orange Queen, which when well grown, cut in the right stage, and marketed properly, find ready sale. The flowers must be almost full blown before being taken. Frequently they are cut too tight. About a third of the bottom leaves should be removed from the stems, and if the flowers are large, tied in bunches of six to a dozen each. When ready for shipping, the bundles should each be wrapped in a sheet of paper the length of the flowers and stems, open at both ends, and tied snugly in the center. They will then handle without bruising, the paper also keeping the moisture in the foliage while they are being handled or lying about on the counter or in the open boxes at the commission houses. What is wanted in the calendula is perfect flowers. All weak, side buds should be removed and the strength thrown into the leading shoots in order that each shall be a finished flower.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The continuing high prices of flowers is the bugbear of many florists; that is, of the retail persuasion, all others being "dee-lighted" with the situation. Bugbear is defined in the dictionary as "anything that causes needless fright." Now, is this not true of the present situation? Flowers are like every other kind of merchandise, such as the most staple articles of food; eggs, for instance, have sold as high as 90 cents per dozen, which price the dealer asks without the slightest compunction. Eggs are his stock in trade. He sometimes sells them for 35 cents a dozen, and less, his net profit being not much, if any, greater at either extreme. Flowers, however, are sold on percentage of cost, which ratio increases as prices advance, until a sale of $2 for 12 carnations, which formerly brought $1, shows a gross gain of that amount as compared with only 50 cents. The increased percentage of overhead expense is not, at the outside, 25 per cent more than last year, so that the net gain in all transactions should be much greater.

It is not policy to quote dozen prices unless they are asked for. The blunt announcement scares some people, to whom, if the prices were diplomatically tempered by graded figures, and "what did you desire to use them for?", an idea of about the amount to be spent would be obtained, which the clever salesman soon turns to account.

Funeral flowers are the mainstay of the business. Without this patronage, many retail stores would have to close. There should be a good profit maintained for all this class of work. The use of galax, fresh or prepared magnolia and crested ferns in wreath foundations, provide an inexpensive ground work on which to make an artistic finish, with the various seasonable flowers and variegated foliages of the greenhouses, that should bring a good price and look fully worth the money.

Anything is easy to the one who knows how. Some apparently make money easily, because they have business instinct, which asks a profit insuring price and they get it. Others are too timid, and for fear of losing the sale, do not ask a price showing a just profit, which in all likelihood would have been paid. It is not the volume of business, but the net profit of each transaction, that counts.

Baskets are as salable as anything in the shop at this time. Pots of flowering freesia are made more attractive by the addition of pussy willow sprays, several of which around the pot, support a band of fibre ribbon, holding the flowers in place. Hyacinths are now coming into flower; a number of bulbs placed together in a pan, with a covering of growing lycopodium, will be found salable.

As St. Valentine's day approaches, everything should be done to feature the event. The more it is advertised, the greater the business. It should and could, be made one of the greatest flower days of the year. What is necessary is individual action and enthusiasm by every member of the trade. Let each one do his best, this year, in the beginning of a great propaganda to make this a memorable floral holiday.

Forsythia sprays are now coming in good flower; they are very decorative and popular with many flower lovers as the first blossoms of spring.

Pansies are favorites with many. When arranged in low shallow baskets, they show to good advantage. Combined with white and yellow daisies they will find ready sale.

The miniature colonial bouquets, with paper border, made up of Sweet-heart roses, forget-me-nots and other small flowers, and tied with narrow ribbons, are always sure to be admired. It should be one person's job to keep a supply of these and other small floral conceits made up.

Cattleyas are now plentiful. They are first choice for many arrangements, particularly for the corsage, and for quality additions to all kinds of floral work. Do not keep them on a top shelf in the flower case. Baskets of the Glory fern, the near Farleyense, with narrow glass flower tubes through the ferns, and on the handles, filled with cattleyas, display these flowers to the best advantage.

"Would it Pay to Move?"

Under the above title, Prof. Ralph E. Heilman, department of economics, Northwestern University, has in System Magazine for December an interesting article on rents in their relation to retail business. Charts and illustrations of business houses variously located are features.

The writer takes the ground that to save money it is not always best to move to cheaper quarters; rather pay higher rent to put one's business before more people, and by the ratio of increased sales, cut down overhead expenses. Many factors enter into the reason for variations in rents. Certain lines of trade can afford to pay high rates for small stores on crowded thoroughfares. Cut-rate drug, shoe, candy and tobacco stores are cited as examples of those who have great numbers of small sales, trading quickly with each customer.

The better class of trade, those whose automobiles line the curbs of such thoroughfares as Boylston street in Boston, Michigan boulevard in Chicago, or Fifth avenue in New York, during shopping hours, want the best and are willing to pay well for exclusive things in any line. High rents are paid here by men catering to select trade because it is the retail center for this class of business.

The tendency of rents in the loop or central shopping districts of all the large cities is ever upward. Certain lines which thrive on the multitude can afford to pay more than others whose business is better conducted on less crowded streets. "Working for the landlord alone," keeps one's nose down to the grindstone. The matters of location and rent should receive most serious consideration. It is often found that moving to a less central location materially lessens the rental without appreciable loss of sales.

Instances are given in which certain lines of business have profited both by moving into and out of congested retail centers. Grocers, as a rule, thrive best in the business centers of residence districts. The Harvard Bureau of Business Research investigated the retail cost of the grocery and shoe business, in various parts of the country, their conclusion being that efficiently conducted grocery stores could pay 8 per cent rental while a standard of 3 per cent was right for the shoe business.

Every business should give the same careful consideration to its rent problem that it does to its buying or selling activities. The essential thing is to see that the advantages of site and location and of access to any particular group of purchasers are commensurate with the rental price for the conduct of a particular business. The rent problem is puzzling, but proper understanding of it may mean the difference between failure and success.

Conifer Culture.

The above was the subject of a very instructive lecture given by A. H. Hill, evergreen specialist, of Dundee, Ill., at Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass., January 18, the second in the winter course of lectures on horticultural subjects held under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. Mr. Hill predicted that the day was soon coming when American growers would produce the stocks needed for American needs, and the money now sent to Europe to purchase stock would be kept at home and aid in the upbuilding of American horticulture. Mr. Hill divided his subject into four general divisions as follows: Seedlings, cuttings, grafts and layers and divisions. He said, in part:

"In the growing of conifer seedlings, generally speaking, the first point of importance in mapping out plans for production on a commercial scale is to locate a reliable and unfailing source of seed. It is easy enough to talk about producing a million little conifer seedlings, but in order to make this possible, there must be seed of good quality and plenty of it. At first thought, it would seem easy to secure the seed necessary, when one thinks of the native evergreen forests with their range covering the whole country. The problem, however, is different from that which confronts the farmer when he wants wheat or agricultural seeds.

"Too much importance cannot be laid on the necessity of obtaining strains of seeds from the localities which produce the best and hardest types, and this requires constant research, traveling and experiments. We have had collectors ship several hundred pounds of Juniperus berries, and not a berry in the consignment contained a live germ. It requires two years for the berries of some of the juniper varieties to develop.

COLLECTING THE CONES.

"It is found that there are three methods of collecting cones: From felled trees, from standing trees, and from the squirrel boards. Where logging is going on, it is often possible to pick cones from felled trees on the ground. In collecting from standing trees, it may or may not be necessary to climb. Squirrels' caches are often excellent places from which to get cones. The squirrels do not confine their collecting to a few species, but appear to relish a large variety. Usually, however, the cones of but one species are found in a single cache.

"The white pine grows naturally over the New England states. It is also scattered generally over Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and portions of Canada. In certain years the white pine in Canada will bear a good crop of cones, while the cone crop elsewhere is a failure; it is therefore necessary to have a number of collectors in all sections of the country where the desired conifers are growing.

"Seeds are collected in quantity during the seeding year, which occurs only two, three or more years apart. In most varieties of conifers it is necessary, therefore, to secure seed during the seeding year, to store until fresh seed is again available. The yield of seeds from the cones depends upon the quality of the cones, the thoroughness of drying and extracting and the manner of cleaning.

THE CUTTING TEST.

"The usual test for quality of conifer seed made by the propagator is what is known as the cutting test, which means counting 100 seeds and cutting them with a sharp knife. This will determine the percentage of sound seed, but it will not tell their power to germinate.

"The method of sowing, and more especially the treatment of seeds before sowing, are of great importance. Generally speaking, the practice of causing the various seeds to germinate before being sown will insure the successful culture of many varieties, which, without treatment, are almost impossible to grow. Steeping, sweating, and stratifying are the various methods used to force seeds to germinate. I prefer the slow stratification treatment to the quicker methods of applying artificial heat, together with moisture, causing steeping and sweating to stimulate rapid germination. The usual method of stratifying seeds is to mix the seed with sand or soil, with a sufficient amount of moisture added to prevent drying. Store the seeds thus treated in a bin for a sufficient length of time to allow the germ to become well started. There is seldom loss from seeds that have started growth in the stratification bin. Through the skilful handling of the seed before sowing, it is possible to produce maximum results with a minimum quantity of seed.

THE TIME FOR SOWING.

"For some varieties, the best results are obtained from sowing the seed in late autumn; others respond and give better germination when planted in the early spring. However, in spring planting the propagator must bear in mind the fact that the little seedlings should be well above the ground before the hot sun of summer beats down upon them.

"In preparing the area which has been set apart as ground suitable for the production of coniferous seedlings, it is necessary to have enough land to take care of an annual planting for five years. Under this system, you will be in a position to remove the seedlings, clean from the beds at the end of the third year, thus leaving the area vacant for the application of fertilizer or the growth of a clover crop to have the soil in fine condition to receive the second planting of seed beds. The physical condition of the soil is of as much importance as the chemical composition.

WINDBREAKS FOR PROTECTION.

"Plant evergreen windbreaks completely around the area selected for seed beds. These windbreaks temper the cold, drying winds of winter and assist in maintaining a more uniform temperature over the enclosed area in summer. They should take the form of neat, well grown hedges, six to 12 feet high.

"To place the soil in the best possible condition for planting and growing of conifer seedlings, one or more cover crops should be plowed into the soil. Cowpeas or red clover give very good results. The decayed vegetable matter keeps the soil from packing and furnishes plenty of food for the young seedlings.

"Among the points to keep always in mind, the following stand out as the most important:

(First), good seed; (second), well-drained soil; (third), proper amount of shade to prevent sun-burning; (fourth), plenty of water when the seed is germinating; (fifth), keep the beds free from weeds; (sixth), winter protection to prevent heaving; (seventh), accurate records.

REPRODUCED BY CUTTINGS.

"Many of the conifers are reproduced by cuttings. This is necessary from the fact that seeds are not available and some varieties seldom come true from seed. The greenhouse should be well planned with provision for water supply and a good supply of sharp, clean sand.

"The propagation of conifers by grafting is the most interesting mode of culture, and the work in the greenhouse can be carried on throughout the winter and early spring. Here all conditions are under the control of the propagator and the work is most successful.

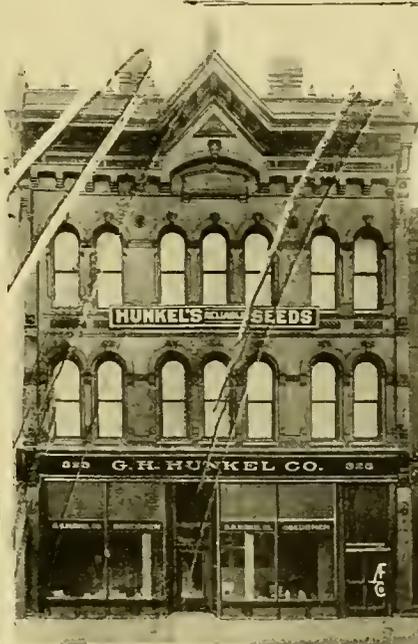

"Conifers are sometimes propagated by layering and divisions although this method is usually confined to the prostrate and dwarf forms. A portion of the branch is covered with soil and roots develop along the stems. The rooted stems are removed from the plant and planted in beds of prepared soil. The usual time required is one year and is an easy and inexpensive method for the propagation of some varieties.

GROWERS ENTITLED TO SUPPORT.

"Right here in America there is a loyal, brave little band of growers who are entitled to encouragement and support. They have struggled on for years with hardly any recognition. There are more than 100 propagating firms in America, big and little, who, with a half-way, fair chance at their own market, would have been world-famous. I mention such names as Jackson Dawson, J. R. Trumpy, Josiah Hoopes, Robert Douglas, Berckman's, Farquhar's, Meehan's, Robert George, E. Y. Teas, E. M. Sherman, Eliwanger & Barry, Thomas McBeth, and F. M. Carr, who have supplied American horticulture with traditions rich with accomplishment. We have only to look back to the horticultural achievements of 30 and 40 years ago when Parsons Nurseries at Flushing, N. Y., were supplying the growers of Europe with choice hardy varieties of conifers and rhododendrons, which are today, in many cases, the sorts grown in Europe for export to America.

"The United States department of agriculture, through the forest service has established in various parts of the west, government nurseries for supplying young trees for reforestation and eight individual states maintain state nurseries to supply material for planting state-controlled lands and for distribution to property owners.

G. H. Hunkel Co's New Store, 323-325 Chestnut Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

FIGHTING FOREST PESTS.

"It is a matter of interest that the federal horticultural board has recently promulgated a very valuable protective measure to secure this country against depredations of European and Asiatic insect pests and diseases. While there are some objectors at present, we believe that eventually everyone will realize the wisdom of this action. It is preposterous to think of endangering our extensive horticultural, agricultural, forestry and nursery interests, worth hundreds of millions of dollars, for a few thousands spent each year on imported nursery stock. It was only through quick, concerted action on the part of our department of agriculture that our American white pine forests were saved from utter destruction, by reason of the white pine blister rust which was imported on nursery stock from Europe.

"With all this energy being expended on the propagation of young stock, the American nurserymen are assured of a constant and increasing supply. There has already been established on the Pacific coast an extensive plant with over one million dollars invested for the culture of azaleas, bulbs, boxwoods and other florists' forcing and decorative material which have hitherto been imported. I predict that the next few years will see a number of decided changes with American growers producing the stocks required for American needs, and the money which was sent to Europe, will stay in America to build up and develop horticulture in our own country."

Dis'act of Columbia Plant Regulations.

Florists and plant growers in the District of Columbia, will be regulated in their handling and shipping of plants, nursery stock, etc., affected by plant diseases or insects, under legislation which is appended to the department of agriculture's appropriation bill for the purpose of amending the plant quarantine act.

"To order further to control and eradicate and to prevent the dissemination of dangerous plant diseases and insect infestations and infestations," reads the bill, "no plant or plant products for or capable of propagation, including nursery stock, hereinafter referred to as plants and plant products, shall be moved or allowed to be moved, shipped, transported or carried by any means whatever into or out of the District of Columbia except in compliance with such rules and regulations as shall be prescribed by the secretary of agriculture.

"Whenever the secretary of agriculture shall determine, after investigation, that any plants and plant products in the District of Columbia are infested or infected with insect pests and diseases and that any place, articles and substances used or connected therewith are so infested or infected, written notice thereof shall be given by him to the owner or person in possession or control thereof and such owner or person shall forthwith control or eradicate and prevent the dissemination of such insect pest or disease and shall remove, cut or destroy such infested and infected plants, plant products and articles or substances used or connected therewith, which are hereby declared to be nuisances, within the time and in the manner required in said notice or by the rules and regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture.

"Whenever such owner or person can not be found, or shall fail, neglect or refuse to comply with the foregoing provisions of this section, the secretary of agriculture is hereby authorized and required to control and eradicate, and prevent dissemination of such insect pest or disease * * * and the United States shall have an action of debt against such owner or persons for expenses incurred by the secretary of agriculture in that behalf.

Provision is made for inspections by the federal horticultural board of plants, and places whenever such inspections are considered necessary, and for search, by warrant issued by court, or places and packages or other containers suspected of containing plants or plant products infested or infected.

Hunkel Co.'s New Building.

The accompanying illustration shows the new building of the G. H. Hunkel Co., well known seedsmen of Milwaukee, Wis. The structure consists of three floors and basement, each 50 x 100 feet. Offices and salesroom occupy the first floor, the second floor is used for packing and filling while above is the storage and cleaning departments. An electric elevator and all the latest appliances for handling and quick filling of orders have been installed and the entire establishment is modern and up-to-date.

The G. H. Hunkel Co. was established in 1904 and absorbed the Wernich Seed Co., also of Milwaukee, in 1912. The officers of the company are: E. P. Hunkel, president; H. V. Hunkel, vice-president, and G. H. Hunkel, secretary-treasurer.

National Association of Gardeners.

CONFERENCE AT PITTSBURGH.

The gardeners' conference, held at the Hotel Chatham, Pittsburgh, January 30, under the auspices of the Pittsburgh and vicinity members of the National Association of Gardeners, brought together a representative gathering from western Pennsylvania. Following the reception from 6 to 6:30 o'clock, David Fraser of Pittsburgh, chairman of the conference, introduced Robert Weeks of Cleveland, president of the national association, who spoke on the "Gardener's Relation to His Employer," presenting the subject in a very able manner. After a discussion of Mr. Weeks' address, Adolph Kruhm was introduced by the chairman to speak on the inconsistencies of the plant import exclusion act, and he presented some incontrovertible facts on the absurdities of the measure, which were embodied in some correspondence that passed between the federal authorities and himself. A general discussion ensued, which resulted in the passing of a resolution instructing the secretary of the national association to wire a strong protest to Secretary Houston of the department of agriculture.

Wm. Falconer, that venerable gardener of Pittsburgh, was the next speaker, who chose as his subject the "Gardener and His Profession," reviewing the work of professional gardeners in this country. Mr. Falconer referred to a number of men holding high positions in the public service and commercial fields who came from the ranks of private gardeners. M. C. Ebel, secretary of the association, spoke on the activities of the National Association of Gardeners and its general purposes. His remarks elicited a general discussion, which drew forth some interesting and profitable ideas. At the conclusion of the addresses of the evening a buffet supper was served, which was preceded by a social hour.

The conference was in charge of a local committee of which David Fraser was chairman and James Barnett of Sewickley secretary.

The following protest was telegraphed to Secretary Houston at Washington after the conference:

"At a conference of the National Association of Gardeners held in this city, which association represents the profession of gardening in this country, a resolution was adopted most emphatically protesting against the plant import exclusion act, known as Quarantine Bill No. 37, as being not only most unfair, unreasonable, and detrimental to American ornamental horticulture, but also most inconsistent in its construction, casting a slur on the ability and intelligence of American entomologists and pathologists, which reflection, strange as it may seem, appears to have the approval of the scientists themselves. The resolution urges that you reconsider this arbitrary act, which is certainly not in harmony with the spirit of democracy our government is endeavoring to introduce to the whole world."

Express Service Betterment Campaign.

A nation-wide effort to reduce the amount of waste attributed to inadequate packing, wrapping and marking of express shipments is to be undertaken by all employes in the express business, the campaign to start February 10 in every city and town in the country. No new packing or marking rules have been adopted but express employes will be instructed to insist hereafter that the rules already in force be more carefully followed. Suggestions for preparing perishables for shipment include the following:

Always show your own name and address as well as the person or firm to whom the shipment is being made. It is also well to enclose your name and address inside of the shipment.

Place plain, legible marks directly on each shipment by use of crayon (not chalk), brush or stencil. Erase old marks of every description. Never rely on a single tag. Avoid use of tags if possible, but never be satisfied with less than two. Never use a tag when the name can be written directly on the package.

Catalogs Received.

Cincinnati.

SUPPLY IS LIMITED.

The demand for stock is holding up well and is keeping the market cleaned up. The supply, on the other hand, is rather short and more could be utilized if it were available. Prices are far better than the average for this time of the year. The rose supply is unusually short. The receipts are not equal to the demand. The carnation receipts are shortening and all that come into the wholesalers' hands, if at all good, sell very readily. The cut of sweet peas is increasing. Many excellent blooms may be had and all clean up readily. The Easter lilies cut is limited and all that do come find a ready sale at top prices. Some Rubrum lilies and callas may be had. Small bulbous stock is selling well. The list now includes daffodils, a few tulips, Dutch hyacinths, Paper White narcissus, yellow narcissus and freesias. Other offerings are snapdragons, orchids, violets, calendulas, mignonette, wallflowers, baby primrose and forget-me-nots.

NOTES.

All of the Cincinnati delegation to the Cleveland meeting last week have returned home. Those who attended were W. Ray Murphy, C. Alfred Murphy, J. Chas. Murphy, E. G. Gillett, Henry Shepherd and C. E. Critchell. The last named returned home after a visit to Detroit and Richmond, Ind.

Miss Mamie Ruttle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ruttle, of Latonia, Ky., passed away February 2. The many friends of the family in the trade sympathize with them in their bereavement. H.

Cleveland.

BULBOUS STOCK RULES MARKET.

Bulbous stock is now the big item on the local market. Tulips Proserpine and Cottage Maid, and a few yellow varieties, Paper White narcissus and daffodils, being in large supply with a good demand. Carnations and roses clean up as before. Sweet peas, violets, calendulas, freesia, stevia and a few snapdragons meet with a good sale and generally clean up early. Adiantum and asparagus are a little short of the demand.

NOTES.

Several of the boys have now returned from camp and "over there." Joe Kolisky, formerly of the Taylor Flower Shop; Frank Ritzenhaller and Phil Brock, from Knoble Bros.; also Donald Koehl, whose father owns the Brookline Floral Co.

Mrs. Anna Nosek, florist at 5307 Broadway, gave away her daughter, Lillian, in marriage to Samuel Crawford January 23. C. F. B.

N. Y. and N. J. Ass'n of Plant Growers.

The annual dinner of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers will be held at the McAlpin hotel, New York, February 18, at 7:00 p. m. The committee consisting of John H. Flessler, Herman C. Steinhoff and William H. Siebrecht, Jr., have arranged the details for a very enjoyable evening for which the association's banquets have long been noted. Dancing will be a feature as usual. The committee will consider it a favor if those intending to be present will communicate with the secretary, William H. Siebrecht, Jr., Queens Plaza, Court, Long Island City, at once advising the number of persons for which tickets are desired.

TORONTO, ONT.—The R. H. Corney Co., dealers in florists' supplies, has opened a store at 68 Claremont street.

Boston.*SUNNY WEATHER IMPROVES OUTLOOK.

Business in this city is showing improvement, and with the sunny days stock is looking better and flowering more freely. The trade in plants is better than ever and flowering shrubs, pans of freesias, hyacinths, jonquils and tulips are in great demand. Azaleas, cyclamens and Romans move slowly.

NOTES.

Fred Ringdahl, formerly with Thomas Roland at the Nahant range, has bought an establishment at Rome, N. Y., and will go into the plant trade extensively.

The delegates from this city to the meeting of the American Carnation Society at Cleveland are loud in their praise of the hospitality of the Ohio brethren.

Charles E. Evans is sporting a new Buick runabout. He is planning a Florida trip and will incidentally look over a tract of land he purchased last fall.

Houghton & Gorney are attracting attention to their store with fine window displays featuring colonial bouquets and baskets of spring flowers.

Dolansky & McDonald will remove to much more commodious quarters in Winthrop square.

Philip L. Carbone will sail for Europe February 8 to look after his importing business.

Penn. The Florist, is unusually busy with wedding and dinner decorations.

San Francisco.*EXCELLENT BUSINESS CONTINUES.

Trade is in very good shape here since last report. The demand is steady and shows no signs of abating. While prices are high, the public seems to have become accustomed to this and are buying nearly everything that is offered. There has been a slight increase in the supply, owing to favorable weather conditions, but at that, prices are much higher than at the corresponding period of last season. Roses are now at their very best. American Beauty may now be seen at all the leading stores for the first time this season. The stock offered is very good and clean and no difficulty is found in moving all that is offered at good figures. Mrs. Chas. Russell is being grown in wonderful form. It is bringing the highest prices and is very popular. The supply of red roses is still quite large and good stock goes rapidly. Some of the short, weak-necked Radiance find a market on the street. Ophelia is the leading pink, closely followed by Shawyer. Mrs. Aaron Ward is very fine just now, and is about the only rose of its color to be had in quantity. Baby roses are practically out of the market as yet, but it is expected that cutting will begin shortly. Carnations are still scarce, with the possible exception of red, which just now is not in much favor. Prices are being well maintained. Acacias are now coming into the market in large quantities. A. Baileyana, which is the earliest to bloom here, can be had in large quantities. Cattleyas are to be seen everywhere, but notwithstanding the large cut, prices are about normal. Phalenopsis amabilis and Schilleriana are to be had in limited quantities. They move quickly at high prices. Very few other orchids are in the market. Gardenias are very good the past week and rather high in price. Violets are now very plentiful and can be had in almost any supply. The street peddlers use many thousand bunches daily. The shipping demand is steady. Sweet peas show little improvement over last week. Freesias are none too plentiful and are bringing fine figures. Roman hyacinths are not seen much of late. Dutch hyacinths are coming along in large quantities. They are much in demand. Ferns of all kinds continue to be very scarce, also asparagus. Very little smilax is used here. Pot plants are in unusual supply, with the demand chiefly for Bostons and cyclamens.

NOTES.

The trade was shocked during the week to hear of the death of Mrs. Alfred Serveau, wife of Alfred Serveau, manager of the E. Serveau establishment on Fillmore street. Mrs. Serveau was a woman of charming personality and refinement, and her sudden demise will be sadly felt by her host of friends. She was a native of the city, aged 27 years. Besides her husband, she leaves a little daughter to mourn her. Her funeral was largely attended by the trade, and the great wealth of floral offerings, showed in a small way how deeply her loss is felt. Mr. Serveau has the sympathy of everyone in the trade in his loss.

Capt. W. G. McCann, who for many years was horticultural commissioner of Placer county, died at Auburn, January 25. Capt. McCann was favorably known by all the nurserymen throughout the state. He was 80 years old and leaves a widow and five children. He won his title of captain in several years of service in the British army in India and Gibraltar.

Owing to a greatly increased business, the Art Floral Co., of which P. Vincent Matraia is the efficient manager, has been compelled to take over a large portion of the building now occupied by them on the Geary street side. When completed this firm will occupy more ground floor than any floral establishment in the west.

The Francis Floral Co. is making an unusually fine display of baskets in the pastel shades. These are all the work of Mr. Schlauthauer, manager of the company. He has been developing this work for a number of years, but has never been able to turn out enough to supply the demand for them.

The annual banquet of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, to be held some time next month, promises to be the most elaborate affair of its kind ever held by the society. P. Vincent Matraia, of the Art Floral Co., is the manager of the affair and he promises many innovations this year.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. is showing a splendid lot of dwarf arbor vitae in pots this week at their Powell street store. They are all perfect specimens and make a very attractive showing. This firm is also making a strong display of orchids in baskets.

Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., says his firm has been very busy with funeral work all week. His beautiful store on Kearney street has always something of interest to the flower lover. His display of Russell roses and American Beauties was excellent.

Louis Hansen, employed at the nursery of Schwerin Bros., is recovering from a beating he received when he was attacked by two highwaymen near the nursery. He was robbed of his watch and money also.

W. B. Brown, of Brown & Kennedy, has received his discharge from the army and is a welcome assistant at the 16th street store. The firm reports plenty of funeral work.

Emelio Dentoni, of the E. W. McLellan Co., has obtained a furlough of three months from the army, and is proving of much assistance to his firm in these times.

G. Scatena, who has been chief packer for the E. W. McLellan Co., on Bush street, has resigned to accept a similar position with the Art Floral Co.
JAS. T. LYNCH.

OBITUARY.*John P. Shaffer.

After an illness of 16 months, John P. Shaffer, age 70 years, of Washington, D. C., father of George C. and Arthur Shaffer, well-known florists of that city, died at his late home recently. The deceased had been afflicted with hardening of the arteries and his death had been expected for some time. The funeral services were attended by a large delegation from the Florists' Club of Washington and others in the trade and many handsome floral tributes were sent. The remains were laid to rest in the Congressional cemetery.
B. F. L.

Walter Meldrum.

Many friends in the trade will regret to hear of the death of Walter Meldrum, a well-known florist of Sacramento, Calif., who passed away December 27. As secretary of the Sacramento Florists' Society, which position he had ably filled from the time of the formation of the organization until his death, he made many close friends, as well as many others outside of floral circles, whose high esteem he enjoyed.

Milton Alexander.

Milton Alexander, of Lion & Co., New York, died there January 30 from pneumonia contracted while making a western trip. He had a host of friends in the trade all over the country and was one of the most gentlemanly fellows that ever carried the grip. He leaves a wife and child.

Mike Chronis.

Mike Chronis, who has been engaged in the retail florist business at Pittsburgh, Pa., died January 28 and was buried there the following Friday. He was about 60 years of age and had quite a host of friends in the trade in that city and elsewhere.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—Frank X. Stuppy and Mrs. Stuppy are at Miami, Fla., for their winter vacation.

HOUSTON, TEX.—R. C. Kerr is on a tour of southern and eastern states and will address a number of florists' organizations on the subject of national credits.

MUNCIE, IND.—Eric Buchholz and Frank Wilson have bought the business of the Williams & Clark Floral Co., with 22,000 feet of glass and three new houses will be added this spring.

BRIDGEPORT, W. VA.—The boiler house and pump station at the range of the Hayman Greenhouse Co., were almost completely destroyed by a gas explosion, January 21. The loss is estimated at $2,000.

ELKHART, IND.—Sergeant Otis L. Bullock, son of Mrs. E. M. Bullock, well-known florist of this city, writes that his division now at Camp McClellan, Ala., is being mustered out and he expected to be home soon.

FENVILLE, MICH.—The annual mid-winter meeting of the Michigan State Horticultural Society will be held here February 11-12. An excellent programme has been prepared, particularly of interest to fruit growers of the state.

STOUC FALLS, S. D.—The South Dakota Horticultural Society, in annual session, January 24, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: D. B. Gurney, Yankton, president; John Robertson, Hot Springs, vice-president; Prof. N. E. Hansen, Brookings, secretary-treasurer.

AN order removing all restrictions on anthracite coal is expected soon.

MILD weather like that of January, 1919, over such a wide area, has not been experienced since 1880.

WITH 2,000,000 wonderful girls waiting for 2,000,000 heroes, do you think there will be any weddings in June?

CHRYSANTHEMUMS were plentiful in Paris this year but were sold at prohibitive prices, 40 cents to $2 per bloom being the American equivalent.

Spring Blooms in Nebraska in January.

In Nebraska, where winters are severe and blizzards were made famous, H. W. Bullington, a pioneer of Fremont, has peonies and jonquils blooming in his yard. He has devoted considerable time during many years to producing early blooming flowers, but the warm weather during January this year has enabled him to hang up a new record.

A. E. L.

Plant Regulations Menace Increases.

The proposed regulations appended to the appropriation bill of the department of agriculture, governing the handling and shipping of plants, nursery stock, etc., in the District of Columbia, details of which will be found on another page, delegates to the secretary of agriculture sweeping authority to take whatever action he may see fit to prescribe in the matter of plants or plant products, if "declared to be nuisances" and may be but the forerunner of what may later affect the entire country. Now that the war is over, the federal horticultural board and the department of agriculture will "make the world safe for plants"—if their stock of regulations holds out.

Raffia Free From Control.

The following communication dated December 31, 1918, reprinted from the British Horticultural Advertiser, was received from the food production department by Charles H. Curtis, secretary of the British Florists' Federation, London:

"In further reference to your letter of November 14 regarding the release of raffia, I have to inform you that the raffia (control) notice, January, 1917, and the raffia (prices) order, July, 1917, have been cancelled. The position, however, has not changed greatly for the better, although in the near future it may be expected that the usual wholesale houses will be importing from Madagascar. Now that the order in question has been rescinded, there should be no difficulty in securing by next May, or perhaps earlier, an adequate supply of raffia, and I hope that it may not be impossible to obtain the release of the small military supply. This matter is receiving attention.

FREDERICK KEEBLE,
Controller of Horticulture.

Agricultural Bill Appropriations.

The appropriation bill for the department of agriculture for the fiscal year beginning July 1, next, has been reported to the house of representatives by the committee on agriculture. The measure contains the usual provisions for appropriations for carrying out the work which has been prosecuted by the department during the past few years. Large sums are provided for the various activities of the bureau of plant industry. The sum of $139,780 is provided for the purchase, propagation, testing and distribution of new and rare seeds, and $82,700 for investigations in foreign seed and plant introduction; $62,020 for investigations of plant diseases, and $82,315 for the investigation of diseases of ornamental trees and shrubs for the purpose of developing new methods of control. An appropriation of $358,980 will be required for the purchase of seeds for the annual congressional distribution, and $36,680 for studying and testing commercial seeds purchased in the open market from time to time. These investigations are made for the purpose of protecting the public from adulterated or misbranded seeds, reports being published when such seeds are discovered, giving the names of persons offering them for sale. The bureau of markets is to continue its investigation and development of methods of manufacturing insecticides and fungicides, the sum of $25,000 being set aside for that purpose and for the investigation of various chemical problems connected therewith. The work of enforcing the act preventing the manufacture, sale or transportation of adulterated or misbranded Paris green, lead arsenate and other insecticides and fungicides will be continued by the bureau of markets, and $94,790 will be appropriated for that purpose. The regulation of the importation by the federal horticultural board of nursery stock and other plants and plant products will be continued, $47,700 being provided for that purpose.

B. F. L.

Dracaena Canes Denied Import.

In a communication from the federal horticultural board to McHutchison & Co., the well known importers of horticultural goods, New York, under date of January 8, 1919, it is stated that dracaena canes will not be permitted to be imported into the United States on and after June 1, 1919, on which date the sweeping embargo of the board goes into effect.

In a communication to the board dated December 12, McHutchison & Co. in asking whether dracaena canes would be included in the embargo, explained among other things that the imported stock represented varieties that cannot be propagated or produced from seeds or cuttings, or in any other way than by canes; that when imported the canes have no roots or tops, being simply living sticks; that since none of the varieties produced from these canes, can be grown outside of greenhouses in this country, there is no likelihood of injurious insect pests or diseases being introduced through them, and that no good purpose is served by excluding them; that the living plants from which the canes are cut are from four to 15 years old, and that the cutting off of such importations will kill this growing industry and absolutely stop home production.

The reply from the federal horticultural board follows:

"January 8, 1919.

"McHutchison & Co.,
95 Chambers street,
New York.

"We have your letter of the 12th ultimo inquiring whether dracaena canes may be permitted entry after June 1 next, as scions or as exempted nursery stock. In reply thereto I regret to advise you that on and after June 1, next, the importation of dracaena canes will be prohibited.

"I note your understanding that one reason for the prohibition of plant importations is to encourage home production. In this connection it should be said that Quarantine No. 37, with regulations, was formulated by the board for the sole purpose of protecting the agricultural and horticultural interests of this country from dangerous plant diseases and insect pests.

LESTER E. PALMER,
In charge of Entry of Plants and Plant Products Under Restriction."

Cold Weather In Mexico.

During the second week in January, Mexico City experienced one of the coldest periods in many years, the thermometer in many sections going to eight degrees below the freezing point. In some locations, however, the most delicate flowers and plants were not injured.

STOCK MORE PLENTIFUL.

Flower shops here are presenting the greatest variety and selection of both flowers and plants that florists have been able to offer for many months, and it is a real delight to the eye to enter a shop and see the riot of beauty and colors there displayed. The artificial stock, so prominently exhibited recently, has been removed, as is right, and natural flowers have once more come into their own. While roses continue scarce to a degree, carnations have been quite plentiful ever since the holidays, and they are being used extensively for funeral work and general purposes. Good stock can be had for $1 per hundred. Sweet peas, the first to be offered on this market for a long time, are coming in good quantity, and the stock is excellent. These, too, are in brisk demand and move rapidly. Violets are plentiful enough to supply the demand. Snapdragons are to be seen in splendid quality and there is a good supply of narcissi, rubrum lilies, orchids, and plenty of greenery. January was a clear, warm and sunny month, which not only saved coal bills, but helped relieve the flower shortage. Bulbous stock is coming out much earlier than expected and is enjoying a fair sale. Business during January was fine, and from reports, substantially ahead of the same period last year. Florists here are optimistic concerning St. Valentine's day and are making preparations for a big trade.

NOTES.

John Lambert, decorator at Mrs. J. B. Freeman's, seized the occasion of the annual auto show held last week in the Terminal building to link up his window with the event. The front part represented a landscape, with a sand road leading through it and to the exposition building reproduced in miniature in the rear. On the road a small auto threaded its way. Flowers, plants and basket effects enhanced the background. It was an arrangement that attracted a lot of attention from passersby.

The sunshine and warm weather has brought out a fine lot of snapdragons, jonquils and tulips in Schramm Brothers' greenhouses, which they are using to good advantage to supply an unusual demand for funeral work, which shows no signs of abating.

Mrs. E. Suder, pioneer florist of this city, is still in good health and enjoys nothing more than showing visitors through her handsome conservatory on Cherry street, which is one of the finest in the state. She says her business last year broke all records.

Will Krueger is in his element now that he is specializing on the growing end of the business. Since Krueger Bros. dissolved partnership, he has given his entire attention to his rose houses, and is sending in some fine stock.

A. G. Imobersteg reports a heavy demand for funeral work, and has had quite a few good sized wedding orders to fill. His Western avenue greenhouses are producing a fine stock of bulbous plants.

St. Louis.

BUSINESS VERY GOOD.

Business during the past week was satisfactory from all reports of the retailers. The wholesale market showed quite a bit of activity also. Everything moved well with the exception of some of the bulbous stock. Carnations and roses clean up very quickly. Sweet peas and violets are quite plentiful, but sell well. On the shorter grades, the prices are down a trifle, in large lots. Callas, while in good supply, have a steady demand. Harrisii are scarce, as is also lily of the valley. The plant growers report a good trade, with the Boston and kindred varieties of ferns shortening up in supply. In greens, the market is well supplied.

NOTES.

The retail florists' association will hold its first bi-monthly meeting at the Knights of Columbus hall, February 10. A resolution was adopted at the last meeting to hold bi-monthly meetings instead of monthly. Nomination of officers will also take place at the next meeting.

H. G. Berning and A. L. Hummert are back from the meeting of the American Carnation Society, and the meeting of the S. A. F. board of directors. This was the inaugural meeting of our good friend, J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, as president of the S. A. F.

Otto Deutschman, of Des Peres, Mo., has been relieved from army service and is back on the job, cutting their big crop of sweet peas. He says army life is great, but it is also nice to be home cutting sweet peas again.

Phil Goebel, Jr., of Des Peres, says in a few weeks he will be cutting a big crop of callas, and we will not miss Easter lilies at all.

Carl Beyer has a fine lot of Primula malacoides well flowered. This is a good seller with the retailer.

The next florists' club meeting will be held February 13.

J. J. W.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—Charles Conte & Co. have added one house to their establishment which will be devoted to carnations exclusively.

STOCK CONTINUES TO CLEAN UP EARLY.

Stock of all kinds is in short supply and cleans up at an early hour each day at high quotations. Roses are exceedingly scarce and command exceptionally high prices with very little stock available. Carnations are in fair supply but clean up quickly at good prices every day. Sweet peas are arriving in larger quantities and are in such good demand that there is never a surplus when the stores close at night. Lilies are selling fast at $20 per 100 in the better grades. A few callas are arriving and find ready buyers. Lily of the valley is scarce. Orchids are quite plentiful but are in good demand and are seen featured prominently in the window displays of nearly all the leading stores. Gardenias are holding their own at the advertised quotations. Freesia are in good supply and in strong demand at very satisfactory prices. Violets are in good supply but are moving nicely right along and clean up fairly well. Tulips are bringing as high as $6 to $8 per 100 in the fancy grades and no trouble is experienced in moving what few are arriving. Jonquils are in heavy demand and the same holds true for snapdragon, white and yellow daisies, iris, stevia, calendulas, white and yellow narcissi, forget-me-nots pussy willows and other miscellaneous seasonable stock not already mentioned. Taking everything into consideration stock in all lines is scarce and commands high prices. Business has been very good the past week with both a heavy local and out-of-town demand. The buying for St. Valentine's day should be extra heavy this year and no trouble is expected in disposing of what little stock there will be to offer. Everyone will do well to

NOTES.

H. V. Hunkel, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis., stopped off here to visit his old friend, Adam Zender, this week on his way home from the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society at Cleveland, O. He reports business very good in the Cream City, and remarked that his firm's sales the past year were most satisfactory considering the conditions that the growers in general had to contend with.

The civil service board of the West Chicago park board will hold an examination for the position of gardener, Class G, Rank 11, Division Z, at 9 a. m. February 14 in the general offices in Union park. The position is open to men 21 years of age or over, regardless of residence. The pay is 37½ to 50 cents per hour. Applications must be filed in the offices of the board, Union park, before 5 p. m. February 13, 1919.

Peter Pearson, the well-known grower, is having wonderful success with his bulbs produced at Jefferson Park, which he demonstrated at the last meeting of the florists' club. In speaking of tulips he says that the variety Prosperpine produced by him, and now in bloom, is showing a true bright red color minus the blue tint so noticeable in some of the imported stock of this variety.

Andrew Chronis reports that the Alpha Floral Co.'s total sales for last month were by far the largest of any January on record. Saturday, February 1, was the best transient day the firm ever experienced and reminded one of the good old days when the retail florist business was in its prime.

Tom Fogarty, with O. J. Friedman, has been confined to his home for several weeks with a severe case of blood poisoning in the left hand contracted from a scratch while handling artificial flowers. Mrs. Fogarty and the two children have also been on the sick list for a couple of weeks.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. reports a strong demand for orchids, especially catleyas, which are in large crop. August Poehlmann and Adolph Poehlmann are again on deck after attending the annual exhibition and convention of the American Carnation Society at Cleveland, O.

H. Van Gelder, manager of Percy Jones, Inc., is well pleased with the demand for cut flowers which cleans up the supply regularly. In speaking of the present conditions he asks the question, what shape the market would be in if the supply was normal.

Miss Olga Tonner, of O. A. & L. A. Tonner, has been unable to report for duty as she expected to this week, being still at home with inflammatory rheumatism. Miss L. A. Tonner is doing double duty at the store during her sister's absence.

George Valker, of Valker's Greenhouses, Minot, N. D., was here on a short visit February 3, leaving the same evening for Madison, Wis., to visit his brother, Clarence, who is seriously ill there.

George A. Kuhl, of Pekin, who has been at the Presbyterian hospital for several weeks, is doing so nicely that he expects to be out in about another week, which his many friends are pleased to hear.

M. E. Poletsos, proprietor of the store known as the Chicago Florist at 37 East Adams street, has just renewed his lease for five years. He will conduct the business under his name in the future.

Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, brought home some blooms of the new carnation, Democracy, which was on exhibition at the Cleveland flower show last week, and remarks that it is a wonderful keeper.

Harry Gardiner, formerly with A. T. Pyfer & Co., who has been with the colors at Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga., has been honorably discharged, and is visiting his old friends here this week.

George Wienhoeber is on the job early with a very appropriate St. Valentine's day window display. A charming young lady wearing a corsage of flowers plays the leading role.

James Foley, of the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., who has been with the colors, is again on the job, having received an honorable discharge last week.

A. Henderson & Co. are overhauling their new quarters on North Wabash avenue, which will present a much improved appearance after the job is completed.

Mirk Jensen, son of Hans Jensen, a former florist at McHenry, who has been with the colors, was mustered out last week at Camp Custer, Battle Creek, Mich.

GOOD SUPPLY AND MODERATE DEMAND.

As to market conditions, there is nothing new to report for the past week; demand good and supply adequate, due to the bright weather. The cut of sweet peas and violets was hastened enough to bring the receipts equal to requirements. Roses are still on the short side, while some of the split and weak-stemmed carnations hung around longer than was desirable.

NOTES.

Notices have been sent out by Secretary Seel, of the Florists' Advertising Club, calling attention to the first annual meeting to be held at the Republican House, February 10, to start with a seven o'clock dinner. This club has just passed through its first year of activity, and without doubt has been the best means of co-operative work that has yet been planned and found successful by any other body that we have heard of. It is highly necessary that all members attend, as new officers are to be elected and other matters of importance will come up for discussion.

With hardly any frost in the ground and all the snow gone, we enter into the shortest month of the year with a grateful heart, for the weather for the month of January certainly could not have been more favorable if made to order. So far, so good, with the feeling of satisfaction that the long part of the winter season is a "has been."

The A. F. Kellner Co. had the decoration for the sixty-fifth annual masquerade ball of the Turn-Verein February 1. The effect was very tasty and delicate, and again proved the artistic workmanship of the firm.

The local automobile show, which came to an end January 31, having run one week, was a great success, except

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETINGS.

The meetings here, January 31-February 1, of the executive officers of the Society of American Florists, and a similar meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, was a most interesting affair to the local trade. The sessions of both societies were held at the Hotel Statler, and there were present the following, which included six of the ex-presidents of the national society: President J. F. Ammann, Wm. F. Gude, R. C. Kerr, Geo. Asmus, E. G. Hill, Chas. H. Totty, Philip Breitmeyer, Secretary John Young, Treasurer J. J. Hess, Vice-President E. A. Fetters, A. Zech, Jos. H. Hill, Benjamin Hammond, W. L. Rock, H. G. Dilleuth, W. J. Palmer, Chas. H. Grakelow, Fred Lautenschlager, Chas. S. Strout, Major P. F. O'Keefe, Jos. Manda, August Hummert, A. Pierce, Chas. Graham, S. S. Pennock, Karl P. Baum, Philip Kessler, Chas. Critchell, Edmund A. Harvey, C. C. Pollworth, Irwin Bertermann, W. R. Nicholson, Geo. Arnold, George Hess, also many of the local florists. The work of the delegates commenced early Friday morning and continued all day, not being interrupted even for the luncheon, which was for convenience served in the meeting room. At 6:30 Friday evening, Philip Breitmeyer entertained the entire party with dinner at the Detroit Athletic Club, where the night session of the officers was held. At this meeting, Major O'Keefe awakened much enthusiasm by his powerful plea for publicity, and presented copies of colored illustrations with the advertisement text to be employed in the coming publicity campaign. The Arcadia hall, where the coming S. A. F. meeting and exhibition will be held, was visited by the committee, and its selection by Vice-President E. A. Fetters and his committee, heartily approved. The local florists were privileged to witness the admirable work of this able body of progressive men, who so energetically and enthusiastically plunged into the work before them and with rare devotion to the cause they represented, laid the plans for the August convention and devised methods of procedure that are designed for the continuous success of the society. President J. F. Ammann conducted the deliberations of the meetings with tact, diplomacy and most evident conscientious purpose to advance the interests of the society to the utmost, and his rulings prove him to be equal to his reputation as a parliamentarian. We look for most brilliant work at his hands as president of the S. A. F. Some of the directors present acted in the dual capacity of also the F. T. D., whose officers held some meetings simultaneously with the S. A. F. at Hotel Statler.

NOTES.

Roses continue scarce and high priced, while carnations are becoming quite plentiful and barely avoiding a glut. Sweet peas are becoming more plentiful and find ready sale. The supply of violets is about equal to the demand and the cut of freesia is all used to advantage.

Robt. Rahaley and Thos. Browne left February 1, for Palm Beach, Fla., where they will be the guests of Harry Balsley, who is spending the winter there. Deep sea fishing and other diversions will occupy their time for about 10 days or two weeks.

Frank Delsky, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, who has been in military service in Seattle, is again on duty handling flowers.

Henry Rahaley and Norman Sullivan, who were on a lengthy visit in the east, are again back much enthused by their trip.

Chas and John Frueh, who attended the carnation meeting at Cleveland, spent a few days here on their way home.

J. M. Corey, the dealer in "Dependable Flowers," is the proud father of a girl. Mother and child doing well.

Harry Breitmeyer is expected back soon from Camp Custer.

Tennessee State Florists' Association.

The fourteenth annual convention of the above association was held in the Hermitage hotel, Nashville, January 28. There was a fine attendance, excellent exhibits of flowers and a very interesting programme, the opinion being expressed on all sides that the gatherings were gaining in interest and importance, and that the meeting of 1919 was the best yet held by the organization.

The loggia of the hotel was used for the exhibits and the local florists brought in some of their finest blooms. It would seem hardly possible that there was a scarcity after seeing the roses, carnations and azaleas on display. One of the best collections was shown by the McIntyre Floral Co., who had a large vase of Russell roses that were unsurpassed. These were as large as American Beauty with very long stems. The vases of Columbia and Ophelia were equally as handsome. This firm also had a number of pot azaleas in luxurious bloom and the cyclamen plants were fine.

The Joy Floral Co. had three immense vases of splendid roses, Russell, Columbia and Ophelia, and some fine specimen carnations in magnificent form, one of pure white very large and handsome, another of mixed colors, seedlings, produced by their own growers. They also staged many pot plants and a good assortment of birch boxes. Geny Bros. confined themselves to an exhibit of pot plants, cyclamens in all colors, and beautifully decorated birch boxes filled with cyclamens, ferns and primulas. Charles H. Tritchler staged a fine showing of ferns and foliage plants and the first blooming cinerarias of the season. The Victory fern, a sport of Verona, attracted much attention.

The supply dealers were also well represented, among those who had space being Lien & Co., Cohen & Hiller, B. G. Pratt Co., all of New York, the Jas. W. Harris Co., and the Skinner System of Irrigation.

THE BUSINESS SESSION.

The business session was held in the assembly room of the hotel with President Leon Geny occupying the chair. Secretary-Treasurer G. M. Bentley was also in attendance. The papers read were ably prepared and full of helpful suggestions. One subject that claimed particular interest was that of the ruling of the federal horticultural board and it was the opinion of all present that this drastic embargo would work a great hardship and curtail the activities of the trade. After an animated discussion a committee was appointed to confer with the legislative committee of the Society of American Florists and work out a plan to secure a modification if possible.

The Veteran grower, Edward Truitt, who built the first greenhouse in the state in 1845, complained of the inability of florists in the smaller towns to secure flowers when needed and suggested that a clearing house be established in Nashville for the purpose of directing this supply. Harold Joy, of the Joy Floral Co., and A. Day McAnnis approved of this idea, as did a number of others present. The meeting also endorsed the action of the state legislature regarding the adoption of a state flower to be selected by public school children.

R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex., past president of the Society of American Florists, made a stirring talk on publicity and spoke of the great future ahead for the trade, and urged that the slogan, "Say it with Flowers," never be lost sight of. He also advocated the profit-sharing idea. The second Friday in April was suggested as "flower, bird and tree day"—arbor day—to take its place with Mothers' day, and November 11 was offered as "Hero day." Another idea introduced was that in connection with the thousands of flowers growing in the natural woods. Thomas Joy said he had had very good results in using the Michaelmas daisy and golden rod to help out last summer.

At the afternoon session, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: H. G. Bramm, Bristol, president; A. J. McNutt, Knoxville, vice-president; G. M. Bentley, Knoxville, secretary-treasurer. Knoxville extended an invitation for the 1920 convention. M. C. D.

Columbus, O.

GOOD VALENTINE SUPPLY IN SIGHT.

Sweet peas are now the most plentiful feature of stock, the crop being just in its prime. The bright weather of the past two weeks has hastened maturity in other flowers, and there is no lack of anything, although roses are expected to become scarce before the new crop is ready for cutting, which will be near the first of March. There promises to be an adequate supply of flowers for St. Valentine's day, in the way of violets, sweet peas and carnations, especially. This trade is being boomed by early window displays of filled baskets. Funeral work has dropped off, but business as a whole is satisfactory for the time of year. Glass that had been idle for some time is being utilized for Easter stock. Labor conditions are getting well back to normal.

NOTES.

Members of the Columbus Horticultural Society recently in a body inspected the greenhouses and horticultural building at Ohio State University. A picnic was held in the greenhouses, at which the care of fruit trees for city yards was discussed.

The Munk Floral Company, which gives much attention to roses, will soon introduce Columbia and Premier. E. A. and E. R. Munk, accompanied by their foreman, W. G. Engel, recently made a trip to Richmond, Ind., the home of these roses.

After sticking close to business all during the war period, H. M. Munk, of the Munk Floral Company, will shortly leave for a vacation of a month or two, which will include Florida, Cuba and the Isle of Pines.

F. A. Ritchey, a local florist, who has recently returned from overseas, has been home on furlough, but is still attached to the service at an eastern camp. J.

Providence, R. I.

Trade during the past week has been good, with stock plentiful and of good quality. Rose prices remain practically unchanged, while carnations have taken a slight drop. Paper Whites are also lower and sell well. The quality is excellent. There has also been a little pot stock offered. Floral work continues good and this helps to use up the stock which arrives daily. #### DROP IN DEMAND NOTICEABLE.

The reaction seems to have set in, for retail business has dropped off to a considerable extent, and this in face of the fact that last week saw twice as much stock in the market as during the preceding seven days. Many of the growers who seemed cut out earlier in the season, are now bringing in increased quantities of flowers. Those who sell locally and deliver their own stock to the stores, are offering many varieties again. The market cannot begin to handle the sweet peas that have been coming in, although the prospects of an improved condition are good, due to changing temperatures. These huge stocks must necessarily find outlet among the street sellers, and such sales, force the average down to a low level. The favorite is the shell pink. It is by far the best seller and without difficulty brings $2 per hundred. The others go for less, although there is hardly ever a call for blue, only when the retailer wants to fill out a color design or when there is a general shortage. White varieties hang fire, and no one wants the straw-colored sorts at all. The market is short on roses, and there is not enough to go around. These are the only flowers, aside from Easter lilies, on which the wholesalers are compelled to turn down orders. Prices remain high, Hadley bringing up to $40 per hundred. The lowest prices for very short-stemmed stock are $8 and $10 per hundred. The average run of Killarney Brilliant and Ophelia, the leading roses in this market additional to Hadley, sell at from $15 to $25 per hundred. There are other scarcities, of course, but none that affect the market. Orders for gardenias, for instance, go unfilled, and for many months, lily of the valley has been almost off the market, but with prices so high as to discourage the prospective buyer. Last week asparagus was very scarce. Through the foresight of some of the growers realizing the effect of the lack of shipping space on the supply of Easter lilies, there are plenty of callas to be had. They have been moving well at $2.50 and $3 per dozen, this price being much in advance of quotations at this time last year. The spring flowers are beginning to make their appearance, and one now sees in the stores, daffodils, tulips, Roman hyacinths, narcissi, plenty of pussy willow, extra fine lilacs, good pansies, etc., and among other offerings well worth mentioning, are freesia and mignonette, of which extra fine stock is to be had. American Beauty roses are bringing from $6 to $12 per dozen, according to grade.

NOTE.

Henry Gottenkenny, for many years with Gude Bros. Company, but who left the business some months ago, is back in the game again with Harry Payne, "Bill" Sawyer, also an "old timer," having been with Fred H. Kramer before leaving for the south, is with the Louise Flower Shop. Zack Carrick, who was with the Louise Flower Shop, and Frank Weaver, who put in several years with the Leo Niessen Company, are about to go into business in the Centre market.

INCREASED SUPPLY MODERATES PRICES.

"There is a change coming in the market, sure as you're born," said a close observer, and one whose business it is to keep in constant touch with the situation. Stock is becoming more plentiful and prices are softening all along the line. There is nothing radical, just a gradually increasing supply, a let up now and then, in the demand, and a consequent shading of prices. There are more roses, yet the market takes them all at good figures. Richmond is now coming with several growers who had it a little too early for Christmas. Russell is as popular as ever, all medium sized stock finding a quick market. The increase is perhaps more noticeable in carnations, which are now at their best. Very good stock is seen; $8 is high, and large buyers are talking $40 per thousand, but the market hardly warrants such figures as yet. Freesia has been exceptionally fine the past week; there has never been anything better seen in this market. Sweet peas are also increasing, both in quality and quantity, and are in good demand. Easter lilies, pink Japanese and callas move with the market, and clean up well every day. Snapdragon is popular; some special stock, 36-inch stems, is offered in limited quantities. Daffodils are coming from several new growers, and there is quite a supply of Paper Whites, also Roman hyacinths. The beautiful Iris tingitana has arrived. Cattleyas are plentiful and prices hold fairly good. They have become an unusual flower. The market takes them by the hundred now, where dozen lots used to be sufficient. Violets are more than equal to the demand.

February 3.—There were good shipments of all varieties of cut flowers this morning, sweet peas and carnations being particularly noticeable. Roses are not any too plentiful. The demand was not very active, but prices held about the same as last week. Some special carnations brought as high as 10 cents.

CLUB MEETING.

February 2 was "Retailers' night" at the meeting of the florists' club which was held at the Adolphia hotel. It proved a great success, the attendance being close to 200, including members in this city and visitors. Max Schling, the well-known New York retailer, the speaker of the evening, was at his best, delightful in his expression and demonstration of the art of arrangement of cut flowers. His many examples, as finished, were received with applause. His last effort, a loosely arranged large bouquet of garden cluster put together without string, capped the climax. His description of the Florist Telegraph Delivery and the possibilities of the sale of flowers through its system opened the eyes of many who had never given much thought to the association. Mr. Schling said that he felt fully repaid for his visit, inasmuch as 10 persons asked for membership in the F. T. D. before the meeting came to a close. Charles H. Grakelow made a splendid speech backing up the remarks of Mr. Schling, and spoke of the great progress of the F. T. D. and the methods of publicity in the ladies present. Vases of choice sweet peas, grown by W. H. Thompson, Kennett Square, were exhibited by Edward Reed and a large vase of exceptionally fine freesias was staged by the S. S. Pennock Co.

NOTES.

George Craig, in speaking of the unusual demand for funeral flowers and the continuing high prices of the season, says: "We felt the first impetus September 30. It came almost like a cyclone, the demand was so unusual. We had our ordinary supply of flowers, but they were soon used up, and we found on trying to replenish, that the wholesale houses were entirely sold out. The next day prices jumped, and in a week seemed almost prohibitive. We have had many go out of the store, scared at the high prices. Still our business in dollars and cents foots put greater than last year. The growers should certainly be satisfied with the prices they are getting this season."

Frank Ross is an expert in color combinations. He particularly favors a mixture of greens and yellows. The golden tones of Uncle Sam's certificates, he likes to see well supported with his more modest but by no means despised greens. He is getting quite a collection of these famous flowers of trade.

Choice Ophelia and Double White Killarney are the high lights of the Edward Reid stock. These, and his good advice to the retailers that the way to do business was to carry a good and sufficient supply, were the interesting items of this busy shop.

S. S. Pennock, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Campbell, Charles Grakelow, S. S. Skidelsky and Martin Reukauf represented this city at the carnation convention. Mr. Grakelow also attended the directors' meeting of the F. T. D. at Detroit.

"I think the market is going off a little," is the comment of Manager Duetscher, of the Philadelphia Wholesale Flower Exchange. We have a good demand for all that comes in. High grade Matchless carnations were a feature.

Richmond and Hadley are features of the Jos. Heacock Co.'s stock. Columbia is also seen. Cattleyas are a quantity item.

Berger Bros. clean up well every day. Easter lilies, callas and carnations are headliners here.

AMERICAN BEAUTY SCARCITY NOTICEABLE.

A feature of the wholesale market during the past week—if a scarcity can be called a feature—was the short supply of American Beauty roses. It is doubtful if the arrivals in the whole market averaged 100 good blooms per day. That is easily accounted for by the heavy Christmas cut. Specials brought $1.25 each, wholesale rates, with opportunities for higher prices in cases of necessity. In tea roses, there was no appreciable increase in arrivals and prices continued firm. What seems to be an anomaly in the trade is that, while roses continue scarce and high, many orchids are practically going a begging at 15 and 20 cents each, wholesale. We do not mean that the best stock is going that cheap, but passably good cattleyas are. There has been a slight increase in the carnation supply, but the best stock is holding up to $5 to $8 per 100, but if clear weather continues, they will soon be cheaper. Violets move slowly, a few of the best bringing $1 per 100. In sweet peas, tulips, Paper White and yellow narcissi, freesias, cut hyacinths and various minor stock, there is a fair supply with prices somewhat easier. A continued and heavy demand for funeral stock keeps lilies and callas moving at good figures. Lily of the valley prices are easier, due probably to recent heavy arrivals of pips.

February 3.—The supply of nearly all stocks is on the increase, and with a light demand, indications point to lower prices, though no great reduction is to be expected. American Beauties are in very light supply, so are gardenias. There is a marked increase in the arrivals of sweet peas and narcissi and prices are lower. There is also some increase in the supply of carnations, but prices are firm on the best. Up to the present the receipts of stock have so nearly equaled the demand that any predictions would be uncertain. A week of mild weather, with good sunshine, might greatly change conditions, and on the other hand, a week of rain and fog might make a greater change in the opposite direction.

NOTES.

The various balls and entertainments that in former years were given under the broad mantle of charity, had to be omitted last year on account of the coal shortage and other war conditions. But now they will be resumed. The first, what the society reporters call "the time honored Charity Ball," will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria on the night of February 7. The ball committee is an imposing list of prominent society ladies, and there can be no doubt that many stunning costumes will be seen. Just where the florists will come in—or come out—in these charitable entertainments, we are unable to state, but it is unlikely that their net profits will be large. No reflections on the managers of the charity ball are here intended, but during the war many of our citizens learned that the scriptural definition of charity had in one respect been fulfilled in this city, i. e., it covered "a multitude of sins."

W. N. Rudd of Chicago was a visitor in the wholesale district February 1. On the previous evening he had met the incoming London steamer, and

A new store in the wholesale district of this city, at 152 West 28th street, has hitherto attracted little attention, but seems to be doing business. It is managed by Al Dorn, and the prospector states that it has "Greeneries at Willowemoc, Sullivan Co., N. Y." It is called the "Cash Floral Company," which is a good name, if it can be lived up to.

The Marguerite Flower Co., Zarnow & Jacobs, has two stores in Brooklyn, one at 1392 Broadway, the other at 5124 Fifth avenue, in the Bay Ridge section. Calling recently at the latter store, which is conducted by M. Zarnow, we found business active.

William Young, who has been connected with the florist business in Brooklyn for a number of years, has bought the retail business formerly conducted by the late Theodore Kronbach at 4519 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn.

James McManus, 105 West 28th street, whose specialty is orchids, has a side line of large plants of Marguerite daisies from the range of Madson & Christensen, Wood Ridge, N. J.

J. Ebb Weir & Co., in addition to a good store, have a large glass area near Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, and are actively pushing the propagation of bedding plants.

Mrs. Henry Murphy, who has an attractive retail store at 5205 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, has printed on her business cards: "Everybody Loves Flowers."

J. W. Hawkins has sold his retail store, at 1708 Church avenue, Brooklyn, and is now located at Jamesport, N. Y., engaged in other business.

J. Tryforos & Co., who have an attractive store at 482 Willis avenue, near 146th street, report activity in funeral work.

In addition to a good stock of cut flowers William Kessler, 113 West 28th

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June, 1919.

NEW YORK.—The Wholesale Seedsmen's League will hold a meeting at the Hotel Astor, February 14, at 11 a. m.

EUGENE SCHIAETTEL, of Vilmorin-Anrioux & Co., Paris, France, is making an extended business tour of Alsace-Lorraine, his native land.

CHARLES DICKINSON, of the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, has been made a member of the waterways committee of the Association of Commerce.

MISS NINA ISABELLE PECK, for several years past of the office force of Vaughan's Seed Store, New York, was married at Jersey City, N. J., February 1, to Reginald A. Lawrence.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Chris Reuter reports mail-order business has opened up well, and while orders are not as numerous as last season, they are larger in amount, indicating that real war gardeners are planting as much if not more than last year.

VISITED CHICAGO: W. H. Small, of W. H. Small & Co., Evansville, Ind.; Carl Chesmore, of Chesmore Seed Co., St. Joseph, Mo.; J. W. Edmundson, of California Seed Growers' Association, San Jose, Calif.; Wilfred Olson, representing Filer Seed Co., Twin Falls, Ida.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover market closed fairly steady February 3 at $24, registering a drop of 75 cents during the preceding seven days. February was quoted at $23.80 and March at $23.25. Timothy declined 10 to 15 cents during the week, cash being offered at $4.70, February $4.80, March $4.85, April $4.90, May $4.95 and September $5.45.

Seed Appropriation Bill.

The appropriation bill for the department of agriculture for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1919, reported to the house of representatives, contains the usual provisions for appropriations for carrying out the work which has been prosecuted by the department during the past few years. The sum of $139,780 is provided for the purchase, propagation, testing and distribution of new and rare seeds and $82,700 for investigations in foreign seed and plant introductions. An appropriation of $358,980 will be required for the annual congressional distribution, and $36,680 for studying and testing commercial seeds purchased in the open market from time to time. These investigations are made for the purpose of protecting the public from adulterated or misbranded seeds, reports being published when such seeds are discovered, giving the names of persons offering them for sale.

B. F. L.

New York Seed Bill Objectionable.

Marshall H. Duryea, of the Nungesser-Dickinson Seed Co., New York, state correspondent of American Seed Trade Association, in a communication dated February 3, calls attention to a new seed bill introduced in the New York state assembly known as "No. 185, Int. 183. An act to amend the agricultural law in relation to agricultural seeds and the sale thereof," the objectionable features of which are as follows:

The bill calls for an absolute percentage of purity and germination, which is an impossibility, as a margin of tolerance is always necessary. It has been requested, therefore, that where the word percentage is used it be preceded by the word "approximate."

Section 344, which deals with the exemptions from the provisions of the act, reads: "When seeds are not sold from a place of business where agricultural seeds are kept for sale, as such, it shall be presumptive evidence that such seeds were not sold or exposed for sale for seeding purposes." This exemption would permit farmers to buy seeds from each other and sell them, which would act as a discrimination against the seed dealer.

As the bill is of vital importance to everyone in the state handling seeds, it is urged that a telegraphic request for a copy of it be made to assemblymen at once and views on same addressed to Marshall H. Duryea, P. O. Box 202, City Hall station, New York.

Nicholson Increases Facilities.

Robert Nicholson, well known seedsmen of Dallas, Tex., has leased for a period of 10 years a building at 2118 South Lamar street. The structure, which has two floors and basement 100x100 feet, is being supplied with equipment of the most modern type, the cost of which will be approximately $10,000. A seed laboratory has also been installed under the supervision of an expert analyst. The new building, with the quarters now occupied, gives a storage capacity of about 50,000 square feet. Trackage, with a capacity of six cars will be a decided advantage during the rush season in caring for the heavy carload business in field seeds.

Government Seed Contracts.

That the market is very unsettled is indicated by the range in prices quoted to the United States department of agriculture, February 4, for the congressional supply, with figures greatly in excess of those quoted last year. That there is plenty of seed is evidenced by the fact that on the California items, beet, carrot, lettuce and onion, every seedsmen who put in a proposal, bid on these. The range of prices thereon is wide. In some instances, bids are just double one another. In peas, one was for about $8, another for $16, while usually the variation has not been more than 10 per cent.

The following firms appear in the list of bidders: Aggeler & Musser Seed Co., Los Angeles, Calif.; Barteldes Seed Co., Lawrence, Kan.; W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; Beaver Park Commercial Club, Penrose, Calif.; John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif.; F. W. Bolgiano & Co., Washington, D. C.; Henry Bradley, Palmyra, Mich.; Braslan Seed Growers' Co., San Jose, Calif.; A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn.; C. # DREER'S FINE SWEET PEAS

We offer below a line of the very best Orchid-flowered and Grandiflora sorts. For complete list including the Early Forcing kinds see our current Wholesale Catalogue, copies free to florists on request.

Orchid-Flowered or Spencer Sweet Peas

This type is distinguished from the grandiflora sorts by the extraordinary size of their flowers and by the standard being crinkled and wavy. They usually bear four blossoms on a stem, and are as easy to grow as the commonest sorts. Owing to their being shy seeders, they will always be higher in price than the grandifloras.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 4.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $5.00 to $6.00; celery, crate, $2.75 to $3.25; head lettuce, crate, $4.50 to $5.00; radishes, per dozen bunches, 50 to 60 cents; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $9. to $9.50.

New York, February 3.—Celery (state), per case, $5.00 to $10.00; cucumbers, $1.00 to $2.50 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.25 per basket; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 45 cents; lettuce, per package, 50 cents to $6.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $5.00.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports received by the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, for the period January 28-February 3, indicate the movement of vegetables is still decreasing with a decline in prices. The drop in potato prices in the middle-western markets was severe and moderate in the east. Chicago carlot offerings were especially weak, declining 30 cents to a closing range of $1.50-$1.55 per 100 pounds for No. 1 sacked northern white stock, which also ranged lower in jobbing markets at $1.70-$2. Waupaca ranged 10 cents lower, closing at $1.50-$1.55 f. o. b. Maine Green Mountains lost five cents at shipping points. California fancy white stock strengthened to a range of $1.85-$2.10. Onion values were sustained at the prevailing range of $2-$2.25 for good sacked red and yellow stock in consuming markets with extremes of $1.75-$2.15 in a few cities. Western New York shipping points closed firm at $2-$2.10 for the best stock. Cabbage was slightly lower, New York Danish seed weakening in producing sections and closed at $21-$24 per ton in bulk f. o. b. and $18-$28 in consuming markets. Wisconsin Holland seed weakened to $18-$20 f. o. b. shipping points. Florida stock went at $1.50-$2.25 per hamper in eastern markets. Celery was nearly steady. California Golden Heart was firm at 85 cents to $1 per dozen bunches f. o. b. producing sections and ranged $7.50-$9 per crate in most consuming markets, although reaching $10-$12 at New York and in a few southern markets. Florida stock sold at $7-$8.50 in northern markets. Bean prices continued weak.

Lettuce Troubles.

Lettuce conditions have been abnormal for some time. Owing to high prices in the late summer and early fall, and expected scarcity of coal, growers rushed in an early crop in October, which struck a flat market, owing to outside competition. With no freezing weather up to December and ample moisture, outside competition was kept away beyond the normal time. Then the cloudy weather had its effect in December, and at present growers are "off crop" and prices soaring. To sun up, we have never seen the market as bare, prices as high, and quality as poor. We have visited some of our growers, and find the practice of the unpardonable sin in lettuce growing, forcing the crop by the aid of high temperatures and ventilators closed. The fact is that a "good warm house" is no place for lettuce; what lettuce needs is the sleeping porch treatment, which is plenty of air and low temperatures. We have seen houses of lettuce all down as if a storm had laid the plants over, simply because they are too weak to stand up. This condition also invites disease, of which there is plenty. With empty houses ready for replanting and a scarcity of plants, the same treatment has been handed out to the young stock with the same result. One grower told us: "We never had such weak plants before." It takes a good deal of self-control to keep cool under pressure, but that is just what is necessary at present. Go slow; keep cool; open the ventilators; is sound advice. With coal easier and cheaper, circulate fresh air.

Another feature is the replanting of dry houses. It is bad practice. Before resetting a house, replace the needed moisture down to the bottom. Rather wait a week in replanting than set into a dry bed. To figure adding all the needed water after plants are set is bad practice also. "Dry feet" has as much to do with lettuce rosette as any other factor and probably more.

MARKETMAN.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

FEBRUARY BUSINESS GOOD.

The call for flowers has been active and finished a month of satisfactory business. Many social activities are again starting and flowers are in demand for Jances. There has been a steady counter trade and normal demand for funeral work. The sunny, warm weather has increased the supply to quite an extent, and this increase had affected prices in some instances. Roses are scarcer than any other flowers. Callas are in very good supply, and Easter lilies show an increase. Cattleyas are quite plentiful. Spencer sweet peas are fast becoming a factor. Some very fine tulips, and Golden Spur are bringing $5 and $6 per dozen. Violets are in good supply.

NOTES.

The Flick Floral Co. is specializing in handsome pot bulbous stock in fancy receptacles. They are receiving some excellent Columbia and Shawyer roses from their greenhouses. This firm is also harvesting a good crop of lettuce. Miss Marguerite Flick has returned to the store, after spending three weeks as the guest of her aunt, Miss Helen F. Patten, of the Patten Flower shop, Toledo, O., and at Detroit, Mich.

The Doswell Floral Co. had a very active week. They are showing some fine Spencer sweet peas and Columbia roses. Mrs. R. W. Doswell, who was injured recently in an automobile accident, is reported to be recovering very satisfactorily.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. have the florists' slogan "Say It With Flowers" on their new Overland delivery car. They are featuring some fine bulbous stock, particularly tulips and hyacinths.

F. J. Knecht & Co. are cutting a very fine crop of roses, and are experiencing an excellent demand for them.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-four annual convention will be held at Chicago in 1919.

VISITED CHICAGO: Henry Chase, of Chase Nursery Co., Chase, Ala.

LE ROY, N. Y.—With mild weather causing fruit trees to bud, it is feared freezing weather will destroy the prospects for a fruit crop.

NEW YORK.—Three thousand dead trees in the city parks have been cut down during the last year and the wood will be distributed to the poor.

A. H. HILL, of the D. Hill Nursery Co., Dundee, Ill., delivered an excellent address on the "Culture of Conifers" before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, January 18. Abstract of the address will be found elsewhere in this issue.

COLUMBUS, O.—The twelfth annual meeting of the Ohio Nurserymen's Association was held here January 29, and the following officers elected for the ensuing year: H. S. Day, Fremont, president; W. N. Scarff, New Carlisle, secretary; A. R. Pickett, Clyde, treasurer.

The lumber interests are said to be the principal promoters of the proposed regulations against the importation of nursery stock, etc. Forest fires, well within the jurisdiction of the department of agriculture, will, we believe, account for much greater loss of our native and home grown timber than all imported insects and diseases.

Illinois State Nurserymen's Association.

The second annual convention of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association opens at the Hotel LaSalle, Chicago, the meeting continuing two days, February 5-6, with a good attendance and a well-balanced and interesting programme giving every indication of profitable deliberations. The visitors will be welcomed to the city by a member of the Association of Commerce, and following the address of Guy A. Bryant, of Princeton, president of the state association, A. H. Hill, of Dundee, will speak on "Methods and Propagation in Relation to Federal Embargo." The subject will also be discussed by George Klehm, of Arlington Heights, and B. J. Vandervort, of Bloomington. "How to Make the Most Money from an Acre of Peonies" will be the topic of William Peterson, Chicago, and with the discussion to follow led by L. F. Dintelman, Belleville, should prove interesting. Other features of the programme include "Plant Industry of Illinois," by Hon. Charles Adkins, director of agriculture, Springfield; "What are the Ethics of the Nursery Trade?" by J. A. Young, Aurora; "Nurserymen's Credits," by F. S. Webb, Chicago; "Evergreens, Their Planting and Use," by Thomas A. McBeth, Springfield, O.; "An Accounting System for Nurserymen," by Alvin E. Nelson, Chicago; "The Inspection of Nurseries in Illinois," by P. A. Glenn, chief inspector, Urbana; "Propagation of Host Plants of the San Jose Scale and Wheat Rust," by F. W. Von Oven, Naperville; "Standardizing Prices in the Nursery Trade," by E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Iowa.

THE VISITORS.

The following were among those in attendance: A. M. Augustine, Normal; Miles W. Bryant and Guy A. Bryant, Princeton; Henry B. Chase, Chase, Ala.; A. J. Cultra, Onarga; L. F. Dintelman, Belleville; C. G. Ferguson, Shenandoah, Ia.; T. J. Ferguson, Milwaukee, Wis.; Paul V. Fortmiller, Newark, N. Y.; A. H. Hill, Dundee; D. Hill, Dundee; V. D. Hill, Dundee; B. J. Harms, Libertyville; George Klehm and George C. Klehm, Arlington Heights; Clyde Leesley, Chicago; F. J. Littleford, Downers Grove; Thos. A. McBeth, Springfield, O.; Robt. C. Mecke, Harvard; Alvin E. Nelson, Chicago; Chas. A. Palmgren, Glenview; Wm. A. Peterson and N. H. Peterson, Chicago; Wm. Saddle, Bloomington; B. J. Vandervort, Bloomington; F. W. Von Oven, Naperville; E. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Geo. A. Washburn, Bloomington, Otto Wittbold, Chicago; L. E. Worth, Aurora; J. A. Young, Aurora.

Tennessee Forestry Association.

Tennessee must preserve her forests, and to this end there has been organized the above association. The organization has been perfected by the adoption of a constitution and the election of the following officers: J. M. Overton, Brentwood, Tenn., president; Thomas Le Sueur, Nashville, W. B. Townsend, Townsend, and J. W. McClure, Memphis, vice-presidents; J. H. Whaley, Nashville, secretary-treasurer. The constitution provides for a board of council to direct the affairs and the following have been elected: J. K. Williams, Fayetteville; Fred Arn, Chattanooga; Harry Weir, Memphis, and R. S. Maddox, state forester, Nashville. It is believed much good in the preservation of the forests of the state will be accomplished by this organization.

Tennessee State Nurserymen's Ass'n.

The annual convention of the above association was held at Nashville, January 30. Experts in shrubbery, forestry and landscape gardening made interesting talks, and the large gathering of nurserymen from the state and outside points derived many benefits from the interesting discussions. George W. Poague, of Graysville, presided, with Secretary G. M. Bentley in charge of the minutes.

George P. Moulder, of the city park commission, advocated the planting of oak and fir trees, which are a long time in maturing, and which would create permanency in landscape work, and prepare a way for future generations.

"How to Make Tennessee more Fruitful and Beautiful," was the subject of an admirable paper by Miss Mary McGowan. It was claimed the state surpasses any other in the matter of natural scenic advantages with its many trees, plants and vines and the spruces and cedars of the hills, the greatest and richest in the world.

M. C. D.

Barberry Quarantine Proposed.

Through the co-operation of the department of agriculture with state officials, local organizations and individuals, the susceptible species of berberis and mahonia have been very largely eradicated from some states, but these plants are still prevalent in many of the regions of the United States. It appears necessary, therefore, according to the department, to quarantine the states of Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

A public hearing will be held at Room 11, Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D. C., at 10 o'clock February 24, 1919, in order that any person interested in the proposed quarantine may be heard either in person or by attorney.

JANUARY BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

January was a good month for the local florists, with the volume of business showing an increase probably better by 30 per cent than the same period last year. The weather has been unusually mild, with plenty of sunshine, and greenhouse stock has done well and was disposed of at good figures. Social functions have begun to take on life and this has helped considerably. Funeral work is still the big item and the variety and colors used are governed mainly by what is to be had. Local florists have long since drawn away from any particular fad for light colors only or any special shade for funeral flowers.

NOTES.

C. A. Rose, Charles P. Mueller and W. H. Culp & Co., all of whom conduct city stores, are surely doing their part in decorating their windows to keep up the interest in flowers. It can truly be said that these establishments rarely fall behind in having the most attractive displays in this city.

Visitors: Berthold Guintert, Newton, Kan.; Wm. Hasselmann, Independence, Kan.; W. T. Smith, New York.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Sweet Peas.

A bed or bench of sweet peas sown at this time will produce a nice crop of flowers in spring when the winter-blooming plants are nearly through flowering and the blooms beginning to grow small and before any outside can be had. The newer Spencers make splendid varieties to plant at this time and, while they will not bloom as early as the winter flowering varieties, yet will flower before the warm summer weather, and the beautifully formed flowers make a welcome change. Select a bench with plenty of head room, for these easily grow to a height of six or eight feet under favorable conditions. The seed can be sown six inches part in rows, with about three feet between rows, and lightly covered. It is just as well to sow two or three seeds together, and when they begin to grow, thin out to one plant. The beds must be watered sparingly until the plants are large enough to twine on the supports, for they damp off easily, even when five or six inches high, if over-watered. As soon as the tendrils on the vines appear provide some support for them to twine upon and keep the plants growing erect throughout their culture, or crooked stems and worthless flowers will be the result. A cool house is far better for these plants than one having a warm temperature. Aphis is often troublesome in growing sweet peas, and a spray is far better with these plants than fumigation.

Chrysanthemum Stock.

This is the time to look over the chrysanthemum stock to see how the cuttings are breaking. There may be some varieties that are not throwing as many cuttings as they should, or some that are not in good health and there are yet some growers that have stock plants for sale, so where from either cause it looks as if the supply might not be sufficient, new stock should be purchased at once. Where the stock plants are in good health but there are not enough to furnish the requisite number of cuttings, the early cuttings may be taken and rooted and these grown in flats until it is time to propagate the plants for blooming, and cuttings made from these. There are also some varieties of which good cuttings can be procured at this time, but after the first growths are removed do not break satisfactorily. These should surely be taken now and grown on in flats. Notable as one of this class is Miss Virginia Poehlmann, and some varieties, such as President Roosevelt, are short-jointed and slow in their growth, so early cuttings are preferred. It is a good time now to look the stock over and be sure of good plants and enough of them for another season.

Stocks.

The demand for flowers at Memorial day is in many cases for bunches or sprays to lay upon the graves of the departed relatives and friends, and as much show as can be made is often the object, therefore the grower must have a quantity of what are called the cheaper flowers, and stocks are one of the best at this time, for they are large and prominent, make up well in bouquets or sprays, and are quickly and easily grown. The seed should be sown by February 1 to be sure to have them in flower by the end of May. The seed germinates quickly and as soon as large enough should be potted. Many grow them in flats, but to have them early pot culture is better, for they do not receive such a severe shock when transplanted in the benches. The planting in the benches should be done in the month of March and the plants can be grown in two ways, to the single spike which will produce a much larger, handsome bloom, or eight to 10 lateral spikes. The former method allows of planting from three to four inches apart, while in the latter the plants should be set eight to nine inches each way. Growing the latter way, that is, to eight or 10 spikes, is the culture most often practiced, and in order to cause the plant to branch as soon as the terminal flower forms it is rubbed out, and the laterals will grow at once. To have these laterals in bloom for Memorial day the terminal bud should show by the last of April, which will allow about four weeks for the growth of the laterals and the finishing of the bloom. Constant fumigation will be necessary to keep the plants clean of aphids, which very rapidly accumulate on the succulent growth unless kept in check.

Hydrangeas.

The plants of hydrangeas that are to be in bloom for Easter should be started at once, for it is much better to grow them along slowly than to wait and bring them in later and force them much harder. This will give the plants more natural conditions and they will finish with shorter-jointed growths, being not nearly so tall, and well furnished with large heavy foliage completely covering the stems. The plants started at this time should be first placed in a greenhouse having a night temperature of 40 to 45 degrees and if the buds and stems look very dry, frequent syringings of the branches will quickly make the buds fill up. After the first leaves are fully formed the plants can be moved into a warmer house and they should come along nicely for Easter—a house with carnation temperature should bring them in bloom by that time, but if the buds are not well set early in March a still warmer temperature will be required. If grown in a warm temperature keep a sharp lookout for red spiders, which gather on the blooms and quickly ruin them.

Begonias of Lorraine Type.

For the large plants for next winter's flowering we are placing the cuttings in the propagating bench now. The plants were selected before Christmas and strong, healthy specimens taken for propagation. The flowers were removed and the plants given a warm location that the best vigor might be maintained. Any leaf showing blemish is discarded, only clean, healthy leaves being used from which to raise the young stock. A warm propagating bed is chosen for these plants and the stems are inserted in the sand deep enough so that about half an inch of the leaf is below the surface. They are kept moist and warm until they are rooted, when they are potted in 2½-inch pots and placed in a warm house and shifted along as required. This may seem a trifle early by many growers to start the propagating of these plants, but there is always demand for some large specimens and fine leaves are obtainable at this time and they root easily during January and February when the propagating bench is warm. The plants will require considerable care and attention during the heated spell of July and August, but with plenty of ventilation and a light shade, they are easily kept moving and make fine plants for the holidays.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Freesia Spray.

At this time, when freesia is at its height, and cattleyas are plentiful, the combination as shown in the accompanying illustration, makes a very good funeral arrangement. Freesia, when well grown, with from four to five open flowers to a truss, borne on long, stout stems, is wonderfully effective in all kinds of loose spray and design work. Many growers spoil splendidly grown stock by cutting too soon; it should always carry from four to five opened flowers before being ready for market, then the remaining buds are white in appearance and will all open in water.

Max Schling's Bit of Palm Beach.

Floral Arrangement and F. T. D.

The February meeting of the Florist's Club of Philadelphia deserves more than passing mention, as it had much in it to interest the whole craft. It was retailers' night, of particular interest to this artistic branch of the trade. There was an attendance of about 200, quite a few of whom, were ladies, nearly all active workers in stores. There were also a number of retailers from nearby cities and towns.

Max Schling, of New York, who addressed the club on the arrangement of cut flowers and color combinations, was at his best. He said he did not claim to be an artist, but only a plain gardener. He had now been 20 years in business, and while he had worked hard, had tried to keep young and smiling. He said the florist should learn to work quickly in placing his flowers, and be able to make something out of pretty nearly nothing. On an already prepared magnolia wreath, made on a single flat wire frame, and covered with salt hay instead of sphagnum, which was scarce, he quickly arranged several forms of decorations, all with fresh flowers. One of 12 cattleyas was very showy, another of a variety of a half-dozen kinds, together with some croton sprays, was effective. Flowers for funerals should be as bright and attractive as for any other occasions, in his opinion; they are not to remind one of their sorrow, but, if possible, to cheer them. A smaller, closely made magnolia wreath, full round, alike on both sides, was, with a spray of well berried holly, a little mistletoe, together with a red bow, sold at Christmas for $10, which while it showed much better than 100 per cent profit, was a proper reward for this rush period. These wreaths should be made in quantity during dull periods. In speaking of prices, he said the customer should always be treated fairly. He tried to give a little more than he promised, and return the customer's confidence with good service.

Last winter everybody preached economy, for many gifts. He had found a basket of fruit and flowers a success, the fruit being used to sell the flowers which were attached to the handle in tubes of water. This sold from $15 to $35 depending on the flowers used.

Florists should be prepared to execute the small order. Fibre and paraffine cups, gilded, cost but a trifle, in which a few flowers nicely arranged, made quite a showing, much more so than when in a box. They were all ready to be placed at the bedside in a hospital. Such an order could be made up to show a good profit and sold for $3. All 10-cent stores sold small glass vases which answered the same purpose. A small handle or tumbler basket was filled. The flowers in this, he said, should be arched over by the handle to show as in a frame. It was a mistake to cover the handle; just a small bow of narrow ribbon was all that was necessary. Croton sprays were used to good advantage in this and other work. Small home-made boxes, decorated with hand painted Japanese panels on nice paper, when filled with flowers were quite salable.

Mr. Schling demonstrated that all colors looked well together, if used in the right combinations; the addition of a spray or two of maidenhair smoothed and modified colors wonderfully. He had arranged a Palm Beach scene in his window, but this, while it attracted considerable attention, did not bring people into the shop. He always liked to make the window attractive with floral arrangements that were complete in themselves and salable. Along the same line, he made by means of a tin pie plate, with an upright tin pipe soldered a little off the center, which held a glass tube, a miniature Palm Beach. Sand and pebbles covered the plate, a small kentia was cut off, and with some flowers filled the tube. At the foot of this palm tree, reclining on the sand, was one of the little "splash me" French dolls. The flowers used were of good quality. These little conceits at once became popular, and were priced at $7.50 to $10 each. There had been a large advance sale for them to be used as Valentines. He also showed a Valentine kiddie, which attached to a flower tube filled with flowers, with a red ribbon bow, made a very pretty and salable Valentine. Be sure the ribbon is red, as that is the color of love.

In speaking of the business, he said, the florist must put his heart and soul into his work. In working with flowers, he must make his fingers respond instantly and follow the bent of his mind. A man who is busy at his work, has his mind on it, and if you ask him about something else, he will give you an absent minded answer. While talking, Mr. Schling was arranging all the flowers he had been working with in a large loose cluster, picking up one after another without selection, each seeming to fit in as he placed it until all were used up, the result being a large, handsome loosely arranged bunch that was held in one hand without string or other wrapping. String, he said, cut into the stems and should only be used when the bunch was finished and just enough to hold them together, then the flowers could be easily separated, if the recipient so desired. He laid no claim to any special gift of art—anyone who loved flowers could soon learn to arrange them. If they were happy in their work, and put their mind, and enough energy into their business, they were bound to be successful. Mr. Schling was frequently applauded, and at the close, received a standing vote of thanks. He was then asked to tell of his experience with the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, which he did, going into very interesting detail, and incidentally describing his methods of advertising. The F. T. D., he said, was as yet in its infancy. It had made good strides in the past few years, which proved that it had great possibilities. In every large store, there was work enough now to keep one clerk employed just to look after this business. About 15 years ago, he had first been asked to deliver flowers in San Francisco, and later in St. Louis. He shipped these from New York, using cypripediums, cattleyas, etc., which had carried safely. He had shipped made-up wedding bouquets to Cuba, which had arrived in good condition, as well as 1,400 carnations, not one of which was spoiled.

Comparatively few people know anything of this telegraph system of delivering flowers through florists' agencies in other cities. Every florist should tie up to this system; the more agencies the more business. The man who does not join, loses out. His competitor, being a member, features the association and customers order here, thinking that as their florist having said nothing about it, he does not use the system, and this order and perhaps others are lost. The longer they wait, the worse it will be, as initiation fees are to be raised. A man cannot lose, he only gains if he joins. His firm had filled 750 orders during last December amounting to $11,000. Of this, $5,000 came from Europe. The orders originating in one's store were most profitable as there was a clear 20 per cent in it, without any risk, the distant correspondent having to furnish the flowers and do the work. The membership in the F. T. D. gives a man prestige. It is a society of one for all, all for one.

Mr. Schling is a great believer in printers' ink. His advertising in New York papers alone for last year was $11,000. He advertised very extensively all over the world, both in newspapers and by posters, which were to be seen in consulate offices, hotels, express depots and other prominent places everywhere. Last year his business was over $180,000, of which $42,-

FREESIA SPRAY.

000 was spent in various forms of advertising. All kinds of annual events, birthdays, wedding anniversaries, and everything of importance, was kept in the minds of customers by means of follow-up letters. All orders were minutely recorded so that they could all be duplicated to the flower if necessary. In closing, Mr. Schling said he believed the F. T. D. will grow to be bigger than the S. A. F. The public will welcome the organization, because it gives service. Compare the service given by the florist with that of any other trade. The florist handles a very perishable stock, and frequently has the shortest kind of notice to execute orders for flowers which he is expected to have on hand. The F. T. D. will educate the public to order in advance and put more system in the business, so that the hours of service will be shortened. It will be raised to a higher plane and become a profession that men with college education will be glad to enter. It will be supported on all sides, both by the grower and producer of flowers, and the public, who will both give and get the right kind of service.

President Harvey, who had attended the recent S. A. F. executive committee and the F. T. D. meetings in Detroit, spoke of the great publicity movement in the western cities, where in the local advertising in the various sections, very encouraging results have been obtained. If only  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  of one per cent of each man's annual business was set aside to be used by the national publicity committees of the S. A. F. and this would scarcely be felt by anyone, they would have more than they could use for anything they now have in mind. Some surprises in this publicity movement were coming that were almost revolutionary.

Charles Grakelow, a director of the F. T. D., who also had attended the Detroit meeting, was full of enthusiasm. Some wonderful work had been done in Detroit, both by the F. T. D. and S. A. F. to advance the cause of publicity. Everybody was optimistic, particularly the growers, who were all anticipating great crops next season. He said all retailers should get on the F. T. D. handwagon, join and pay their dues, and not to then sit down and wait, but to be active and hustle and boost the organization to the limit. A wheelbarrow is a very useful article, but is of no use if you do not push it, so do not join the F. T. D. just to become a member, but to be also a worker. There are about 700 members in the United States; 40 new ones joined in January. There were those who expected to see 2,000 in the ranks in another year. It is not what we gain, but what we give, that eventually counts. In the west, great success had followed their efforts in publicity. In Milwaukee, Wis., $6,000 had been raised last year, all spent locally with great and direct benefits. He wanted to see retail florists everywhere become members of the F. T. D., particularly his fellow members of the trade in Philadelphia. They had shown what they could do in the great national flower show, when they had piled up a record attendance of over 100,000. By pulling together they could also make Philadelphia the greatest F. T. D. city in the United States.

As a result of the information brought out and the enthusiasm of the speakers, 10 new members were secured for the F. T. D.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The season is at hand when special displays are in order, when stock is becoming so plentiful that one thing can be featured after another, and the interest kept up so continuously that business will be just one good customer after another, marching to the merry jingle of the cash register. Sounds optimistic, does it not? But there are stores in every large city in the land, and in many of lesser size, of which the above is a good description. Where they are not satisfied with one success, but have another planned to follow on, and others waiting like runners in a relay race, so that excitement or interest shall never be allowed to lag.

No two men do business exactly alike. They may cater to the same class of people, yet have a very different way of presenting almost the same line of plants and flowers. One will attract notice by attention to small things, always having some little conceits made up all the time—something that looks inviting and ready at once to take along. The other does not find time to bother with such small matters. Of course, they are made up when ordered. "We do not do much of that kind of work—there is nothing in it anyhow." Such a man wants to wake up. There is "something" in it, sometimes a great deal, as one small sale will lead to others, and when a transient buyer becomes a regular, a great gain has been made.

It is an important matter to have the store clean and inviting early in the morning. All water in the jars or vases in the case should be changed the last thing at night. This, if left to the morning, is often interfered with by a run of early phone orders, which demand immediate attention, and then this usually sloppy operation is going on when customers are about. It is very bad practice to be taking off outside petals and damaged foliage in the presence of those who want to know if the flowers they are getting are fresh. Nothing passe should ever be allowed to remain in the case. There should be a box in the rear or the basement for all such stock, which may be good enough for some purposes.

Sweet peas are good to feature at this time. They are about at their best and moderate in price. Small vase or tumbler baskets, holding a bunch or a little more tied with a narrow ribbon bow, can be made very attractive. A window of these baskets, a number suspended from the ceiling to fill the space from top to bottom, is sure to attract attention, while a special price card is quite sure to start them on their mission. Bunches of sweet peas, wrapped or displayed in cornucopias of wax paper, a number in a bowl or bowls on the end of the counter, or on a table together, will be found much more salable than if packed in jars or vases on the shelves of the case.

Make a daffodil week. They are to be had now in quantity, both cut and in pots. Sprays of pussy willows, stuck in the pots, or in small baskets of the cut sprays, are good company. Decorate the pots with white and yellow paper, the yellow inside, and tie with yellow fibre ribbon. Such decoration will add 50 per cent to their selling value.

J. J. Trevis.

Pres. Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club.

Primula obconica is a good seller. When well done, it is very showy. Trim these pots with white and pink paper inside to match the flowers. Arrange two or three dozen in a decorative grouping and see how quick they will move.

Are you a member of the F. T. D.? If not, you are standing in your own light. When your name gets on the list, you are in line for promotion until step by step you get up among the leaders. Any man, who gets in line, and will work and feature this association and its work will add 10 per cent to his business each year. This is not "hot air." It is cold facts right from men who have seen the light and are now on the track, speeding ahead.

Have you heard from the S. A. F. publicity committees? They have hitched their wagon to a star twice as bright as that of a year ago. They are planning for a campaign to cost $100,000. If you are not now in this movement, you have just got to come along. Identify yourself with it at once. Send in your good will check. It will come back many times over.

Washington's Birthday.

One must be up and doing these days, going after business in every possible way. Taking advantage of all current events and anniversaries by featuring them in advance, calls attention to the store. Frequent changes in decorative effects will be noticed by the hundreds, and perhaps thousands, that are passing daily, until they will oftentimes go out of their way to view this window. The decoration in honor of the birthday of the "Father of his Country" furnishes an opportunity that should be made the most of. It is a legal holiday, a time when many have leisure, and the streets are full of pleasure seekers.

While the observance of the day has not much prestige as a floral holiday, yet it has possibilities. All winter holidays are festive—Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's, St. Valentine's day, Washington's birthday, and Paddy's day are all celebrated by social or club dinners or other anniversary celebrations, at which the florist is almost sure to be asked to furnish plants and flowers, without which no public or social function is considered complete.

Many patriotic individuals and societies celebrate February 22 with meetings and dinners, at which the decorations are always a feature, all of which should be encouraged by a good stock of flowers in the national colors, worked up in various ways, previous to the day, so that its coming is heralded and brought to the attention of the public.

The mythical story of the cherry tree appears to be irrevocably attached to the day, so that a plentiful supply of the artificial fruit should be on hand. Of course, the hatchet is also a feature, which must be largely in evidence.

For the window, a small four-foot dogwood or cherry tree (the dogwood is the best shaped in small sizes), trimmed with cherries and leaves, and set into a tub, is attractive. A good sized bust of Washington, placed on or draped with a large flag, is a good feature. A number of small trees, made up in the same manner and placed in 6-inch pots covered with crepe paper, tied with a bow of red, white, and blue ribbon, and a small hatchet thrown in will be found decorative and at the same time salable. A small branch with a dozen or so cherries, tied to which with a narrow red, white, and blue ribbon is a miniature hatchet, makes a good finish to the top of a box of cut flowers. Larger hatchets, to which red and white carnations and some cornflowers are tied with the tri-color ribbon, are quite salable. Fans of from three to a dozen Dutch hyacinths, red, white and blue in color, with crepe cover and tied with a narrow ribbon are nice for the table, to be used instead of the fernery.

For the more elaborate function, a center of ferns, from which rise cherry trees and a small bust or two of Washington, with small vases of red and white carnations and cornflowers, is appropriate. Boutonnieres of the same flowers, with very narrow tri-color ribbon bows, should be at every plate.

Even if not much business is expected, the decorated window, as a remembrance of the day, is always an attractive feature, calling attention to the store and its handiwork. Small baskets are now offered by the supply houses with plastic cherry and hatchet ornaments, which can be filled nicely and tied with tri-color ribbon bows and a small branch of cherries.

Primula Obconica.

One of the most satisfactory winter flowering plants of the primrose family is the obconica. Planted out on a table, or grown in pots, it will give from the middle of January two to three months' continuous bloom, furnishing trusses of flowers ranging from white to deep pink, that are very useful for wreaths and other funeral designs. As a pot plant for house decorative purposes, it has a large sale, and is included in many florists' stocks.

The degree of perfection to which this plant may be grown is shown by the accompanying illustrations of stock in four and five-inch pots. To have such a showing of bloom by January 20, when the photographs were taken, is quite a feat. Such stock as this could be sold by the thousands to retail florists all over the land. The single florets on the smaller plant were two inches in diameter, of a beautiful light shade of pink. The large plant is in a five-inch pot and carried eight heads of bloom of a bright pink.

The illustration gives no idea of their bright, fresh, vigorous appearance. They were so different from the obconica as generally seen as to seem like an altogether different variety. They show a finish and quality that wins the blue ribbon of approval from all who see them, and stamps the grower as a genius in his profession. The plants are undoubtedly given something of a stimulating character, but we venture that it is not ground wishbones.

President J. J. Trevis.*MONTREAL GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB

President Trevis, whose life has been practically devoted to growing flowers, has been a resident of the Dominion for the past 10 years, the first three of which were spent in the employ of Hall & Robinson, who conduct an up-to-date establishment at Outremont, Que., the remaining period in the capacity of private gardener. Previous to coming to America he was in charge of one of the most attractive estates in Sussex, Eng., with eight acres devoted to flower gardens, a rock garden and other features, one of the most attractive of which was a pergola 1,500 feet in length covered with rambler roses. He also took pride in the old English style of herbaceous borders of handsome shrubbery. President Trevis says that from the time he was apprenticed, the growing of flowers to perfection and the science and study necessary to attain success and do justice to both himself and his profession have guided his endeavors, and he adds: "A gardener never gets through learning."

THE CARNATION.*Carnation Novelties at Cleveland Show.

The exhibition of the American Carnation Society at Cleveland, January 29-30, may be said to have been made up largely of novelties and seedlings, very few of the standard or better known varieties being represented by more than one vase of flowers. In the classes calling for 50 blooms to a vase, we found one vase each of Matchless, Enehantriss Supreme, White Enehantriss, Belle Washburn, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Pocahontas and Rosalia. The rest of the varieties exhibited were either novelties sent out during the last year or two, or undissemminated seedlings, among the latter being some that showed great promise.

The salmon pink variety, Laddie, made a wonderful showing, and the large vases of these were a leading feature of the exhibition. The color, form and size of flower, as well as its strong, rigid stem, entitles Laddie to be classed as the leader among carnations of today. While it is not to be expected that so large a flower will be as free of production as a flower of average proportions, yet, considering its size, Laddie is a clean-cut grower and a good producer. The best blooms of Laddie on exhibition were shown by the Joseph H. Hill Company, Richmond, Ind., and S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass.

Ruth Baur, a beautiful light pink, showed up well and proved to be a good keeper. This variety looks like a good commercial flower. It has fine color, good form, excellent stem and made a very fine showing. Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., were the exhibitors.

Donald is one of the most promising among the new crimson or maroons. The color is good, the size of flower above the average, of good form, and carried on the best of stems. It is a very fine variety of this color. Exhibited by Strout's, Biddeford, Me.

Sunshine, a yellow that is in a class by itself, is a very fine variety in every respect. It is well named as to color, which is bright and clear, without any tracings of red in the petals so pronounced in the other yellows that we have had. The flowers are of good size and fine form, with strong, rigid stems. It was exhibited by Strout's.

White Delight is a white sport of Pink Delight. Growers who are successful in growing Pink Delight will find its white sport a good variety, with the best of keeping qualities. Also exhibited by Strout's.

Bernice appears to be a good commercial crimson. This variety has been shown at the carnation exhibitions before in equally as good form as at Cleveland. It is a fine variety for anyone desiring a good commercial crimson. Exhibited by W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass.

Topsy is another new crimson of the largest size and good form, a very fine large variety of good keeping qualities and stout stem. Exhibited by Joseph H. Hill Co.

Red Cross is a fine looking red commercial variety on the order of Beacon, of which it has every trace of being a seedling. A promising red variety, exhibited by Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass.

Edna, a very bright red variety of good form, is a little undersized when compared with some of the other new ones on exhibition, but all of its other points are good. Exhibited by Nie Zweifel, Milwaukee, Wis.

Democracy, a very large, flesh pink variety that looked fine when first staged, went down after the first day. It showed the appearance of having been grown too warm and close. Exhibited by Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C.

Denver is a light pink sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward, somewhat on the color of Cottage Maid, though a little lighter. This variety has the fine keeping qualties of the Mrs. C. W. Ward. Shipped from Denver, Colo., after having been cut two or three days, it was in fine condition at the end of the show. Exhibited by G. Brenker, Denver, Colo.

S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., jointly with Fred Dorner & Sons Company, Lafayette, Ind., exhibited several very fine seedlings under number. Especially noteworthy were two or three of the light pink shade and the bright reds.

Rolfe Smith, with the Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., put up a table of seedlings, three and four of a kind, among them being some very promising looking flowers.

A. J. Stahelin, Redford, Mich., staged a rose pink seedling, and a variegated seedling, both of which were good flowers and looked to be good commercial varieties.

Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O., exhibited a very large red seedling, which, if it had a brighter color, would attract considerable attention.

Increased Production Will Be Profitable.

Never before, in the history of the florist industry, has there been such a demand for practically every line of stock, and never has there been such a marked shortage of supply. The war ended (so to speak) almost as suddenly as it began. At the beginning, there were large stocks of everything, but these gradually dwindled, and in many instances, were lost entirely. Upon the signing of the armistice, it was of course impossible for a florist (like a manufacturer), to turn to raw material and either increase or decrease the supply on short notice, so that today, coupled with the many restrictions that hampered the florist business, they find themselves far from meeting the demands of their trade because there are not enough stocks to work on. It has been stated that the nursery business does not return the profit it should. Personally, I feel it is this way to a large extent with the florist business, especially with the grower. No one can deny that it calls for hard and constant effort with an "always on the job" idea. There is considerable waste of product, that cannot always be avoided, and for that reason alone, it behooves every florist to educate the flower and plant buying public that they will have to pay a fair price for cut flowers, etc.

An important point to keep in mind is that during the period of the war, due to many reasons, not a few florists quit business. Some few will resume, while others will not. This has created two effects that are now apparent: The first is a shortage of cut flowers, and the second, good prices for what is available.

The war has taught the trade valuable lessons. It has discouraged waste, it has encouraged a closer application to business, and really, many of us wonder how we went through it and survived. For 1919, every florist should resolve upon a few important things, remembering that it is our business that really keeps us, and I have always dwelt on the theory that it should command the most and our best attention. First, do not grow surplus for speculation; it has a tendency to lower prices. Second, get fair prices for your products, especially where fine quality and good trade demand it. Third, avoid waste in all forms; it surprises one to know how this pulls down the credit side of the ledger, and fourth, try and have what your trade demands. Get back gradually into your regular channel of crops, eliminating the things that do not pay, and keeping in vogue the methods that you found made you, during the war, help yourself.

One might go on indefinitely citing suggestions that would prove valuable, and let me conclude in saying, "Keep the florist industry on a high plane." Do not make it a cheap business; make it a paying proposition. Just think how many of you spent some years of apprenticeship to learn the business, some serving without pay. Are you not entitled to the same return of profit as any other line? Certainly, yes, and it lies within the province of every florist to make his business profitable. Study market conditions as applied to cut flowers and plants; observe the law of supply and demand, as is done in every industrial business; and then make your price. Because carnations brought a dollar a dozen a year ago, that has no bearing on what you can get today. Grow sufficient stock to meet all normal demands, and which will be taken at a profitable price. Do not grow stock just to fill up benches, unless you are sure you can sell it at a profit. Remember it costs time and money to produce it. Try to figure a market before you grow it, and after all, do not have empty greenhouses; nothing deteriorates more rapidly. Make them work for you.

Sergt. Otis L. Bullock.

Son of Mrs. E. M. Bullock, Elkhart, Ind., Who Expects to be Mustered Out Soon.

I did not want to use the words spoken today by a prominent grower in Philadelphia, but it might not be amiss, although I never believe in rubbing it in. He said that many florists were ill; they needed a tonic that would boost them. Now, it is better to take the medicine yourself than to have it administered, so let us all wake up, if we have been sick, and prepare for a larger spring trade than was ever experienced.

A BOOSTER.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Chrysanthemum Season of 1918.

Paper by Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., read at the annual meeting of the Tennessee State Florists' Association at Nashville, January 30, 1919.

The chrysanthemum season just closed was noted for the prices obtained and the rapidity with which the crop was moved, once it was in shape to handle. Several factors contributed to this. Undoubtedly, the influenza epidemic was considerably of an influence during the month of October, but that does not explain it for the month of November, when the demand for flowers and the phenomenal prices still kept up. A factor that has not been considered by some men, because they have not given the matter thought, is the publicity campaign of the Society of American Florists. At the convention in August, we had the matter of publicity before the committees and decided that there would be a great many more chrysanthemums than the market could assimilate, due to the fact that many florists figured on growing a crop and then closing up their houses for the winter on account of the fuel restrictions. These conditions prevailed to a greater or lesser extent throughout the country and the publicity committees devoted $10,000 for the purpose of advertising the beauty and uses of the chrysanthemum. I have heard men say this advertising did no good to them as individuals, and they could see no direct benefit from it. They do not stop to figure that the creation of a sentiment in favor of this or that article is all that any national advertising campaign is planned to do. The details take care of themselves later. All national publicity can do is direct the thoughts of men and women to some particular thing or channel and the results will speak for themselves. I am positive the results spoke for themselves in no uncertain voice in moving the chrysanthemum crop this fall. There were more chrysanthemums grown than ever before in the history of this country.

We were favored with a specially good fall last year. It was ideal weather for the perfect development of chrysanthemums, especially the early flowering type which are now grown in large quantities in many sections for the New York market. I presume the members of the Tennessee State Florists' Association are more or less familiar with this type and varieties, but if not we will give a list of a dozen which we found very profitable. They are as follows:

Pink—Chas. Jolly, Belle Mauve and Madame Marquis.

White—Cranford White, Normandie and Smith's Advance.

Yellow—Yellow Advance, Cranfordia and Etoile d'Or.

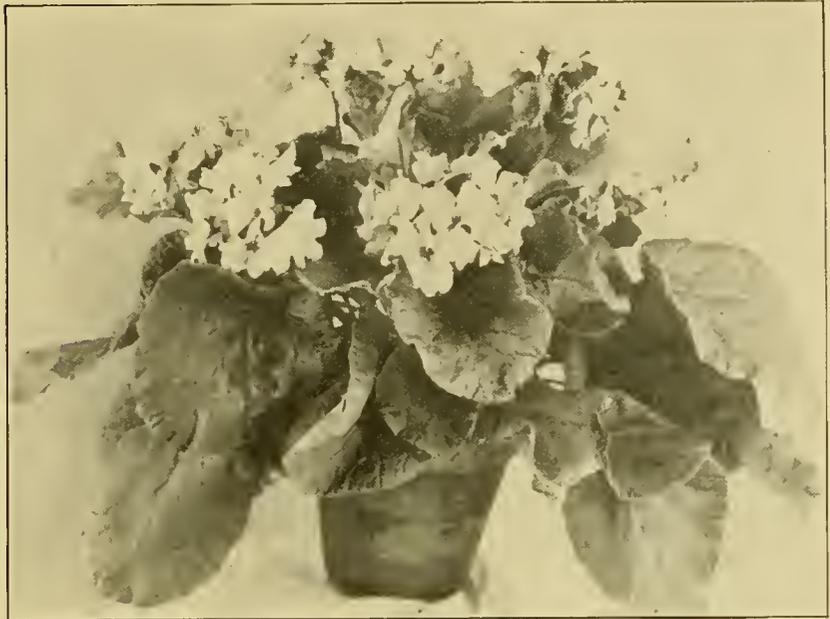

Bronze—A. Barham, Mrs. H. Craig and Crimson Pride.

These bloomed magnificently outdoors, and with the phenomenal demand coming at the time they flowered, on account of the epidemic, were a very profitable proposition. We also had some side benches in the greenhouses planted with these varieties. They were set out a foot apart and the plants pinched several times and then allowed to come, on the average of a dozen blooms to a plant. Not one of these flowers did we wholesale less than $2 per dozen, and if some of our large growers with a million feet of glass could follow this record, the flower business should be on a much more profitable basis than it is at the present time. One man of my acquaintance made a small fortune out of the Caprice chrysanthemums which he planted out in the field. Undoubtedly, the Caprice or Cap family, as they are called, is known to all on account of their wonderful adaptability as pot plants. There are eight sorts, all sports of the French variety, Caprice du Printemps, which I introduced to American growers some eight years ago. The flowers are large and spreading and are splendid for making up funeral designs. The plants are of ideal, dwarf habit, so dwarf, in fact, that they need no staking.

GREENHOUSE TYPES.

The varieties grown in greenhouses naturally differ in many states. We will give a short list of what we found very profitable with us. In white our varieties were Smith's Advance, Alice Day, October Queen, Wm. Turner and Louisa Pockett. These flowered with us in the order named. Smith's Advance, during the early part of the season, made a hard, scrubby growth, almost refusing to grow at all, consequently our plants all ran out into sprays which proved to be just what the market was looking for since the early asters were gone and the epidemic made a tremendous call for white flowers of any description. The other varieties also gave us splendid returns. The two last named, Louisa Pockett and Wm. Turner, averaged us $9 per dozen wholesale, for some 800 blooms. This is a phenomenal price for they were grown a foot apart, exactly as they would be for exhibition purposes, and therefore, as a business proposition at this time, the price does not begin to compare with the returns from the early flowering varieties mentioned above at $2 per dozen. In yellow, the most profitable sorts were Golden Glow, Chrysolera, Marigold and Yellow Turner. The Turner varieties, yellow, and Wm. Turner, the white, will be enriched in 1920 by a pink sport, having all the Turner characteristics, for which we predict a record-breaking sale. Bronzes do not figure so largely in the wholesale florists' list, and I think wrongly so, because there is a strong call, at least in the New York market for chrysanthemums that will blend with the autumn foliage. The most profitable sorts are October Herald, President Everitt and W. H. Waite, all of which give an excellent account of themselves. Pink, were the least profitable of all sorts, and the only kinds we considered really good this year with us were Unaka and Pacific Supreme. The former must be taken on a very early bud or its lack of petalage is not at all satisfactory. Some growers of my acquaintance tell me they did splendidly with McNeice, and others made considerable money from Chieftain. We always considered Chieftain was hardly large enough to bother with. Three late varieties for our last cutting were Autocrat, white; Tekensha and Glenview, bronzes, and these can be recommended to any florist looking for Thanksgiving flowers. In this late list I do not mention Chadwick, because I do not grow it and am simply giving you our experiences of the season just closed. Chadwick is such an unsatisfactory variety to reproduce that we were compelled rather regretfully to close it out.

POMPONS AND SINGLES.

During the past fall, these types had a splendid sale, and were disposed of at a profitable price in large quantities. I know our records show Connie Dick, and Pink and White Dety wheeled at 75 cents per bunch of only four sprays in a bunch. These were wonderfully fine with us this year and were ahead of anything else in the pempen section, as regards returns for the space covered. Western Beauty and Mary also did well with us in November. Mrs. Frank Wilcox, or Mrs. Frank Beu, as it is sometimes called, came near swamping the market the latter part of November, there was so much of it grown. I am sure it will pay any man who wants pompens for Thanksgiving to grow plenty of Western Beauty, a first-class pink variety and Pink and White Dety and Connie Dick for his early varieties.

Singles are equally as profitable as pompens, but much of the stock seen in the market last year was absolute trash, although under the conditions existing at the time, was disposed of at some price or other. The ideal single must have a strong, robust habit with the flower stalk perfectly stiff in order to hold the flower upright and the blooms must have three or four rows of petals in order to give them texture enough to be bunched and shipped around as is necessary in the wholesale market. Where a grower grows and sells his own flowers he can take some of the elder singles with just a single row of petals and use the sprays for decorative work without too much handling. They are beautiful, but not of much value in the wholesale market on account of having but a single row of petals and being unable to withstand any rough treatment.

We have for years made a specialty of singles and are now getting the results of our experiments in discarding long lists of these we did not consider of value. While we catalogue some 70 varieties, I have trimmed the list down for a commercial man to some 12 or 14 sorts, which are as follows:

White—Mrs. Waite, Mrs. A. Phillips, Veronica, and Mensa.

Yellow—Mrs. Lou Thempson, Golden Mensa and Vivian Cook.

Bronze—Bronze Buckingham, Ida Katherine Skiff and Portia.

Red—H. Marie Totty and Supreme.

Pink—Charlotte Waite, Ivor Grant, W. Buckingham and Mrs. E. D. Godfrey.

The last named, Mrs. E. D. Godfrey, was grown by the thousands for the New York and other eastern markets, and was the only chrysanthemum left in good shape for Christmas. It was raised by Wm. Waite, a private grower, in Seabright, N. J. We procured the stock from him and introduced the variety to the trade seven or eight years ago, and neither the originator nor myself made $5 out of it, yet today it is the most largely grown single in commercial cut flowers. I just mention this in passing as one of the reasons why the introducers of novelties are not especially worried over their income tax returns.

In conclusion, gentlemen, the chrysanthemum has a well defined place in American horticulture, and while, in common with other flowers, it has its "ups and downs," it is the kind of a crop that can be grown with a minimum of expense, and after it is cut the space can be used for another crop for winter work. I spent many years growing the largest collection of orchids in America, and the rose is my second choice, but somehow every fall I turn to my first and only love—the chrysanthemum.

National Publicity for Flowers.

The two publicity committees met in joint session at the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, O., January 30, with President J. F. Ammann presiding. Two members only were absent, for reasons meeting the approval of the assembly. A full report of the proceedings must, necessarily, be deferred until receipt of the transcript of the notes of the official stenographer, but the following may be advanced:

The minutes of the conferences of the chairmen of the two committees, the president of the society, and the secretary, held in Buffalo last June, and in Cleveland last October, were submitted and approved. Secretary

Young presented a financial report covering in detail the work of the promotion bureau and the status of the publicity fund, from its inception to the close of last year, which received the careful consideration of the committees, and was, on motion of Chairman Asmus, of the publicity finance committee, referred to the society's executive board, with the request that that body appoint a committee to audit it.

Major P. F. O'Keefe, of the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, Boston, submitted a report of the work accomplished through advertising placed for the months of January and February of this year, covering 33 magazines, with a circulation of, approximately, 21,000,000. The report was wholly satisfactory to the committees. Major O'Keefe had prepared, and submitted, a very complete plan of campaign for 1919, with sketches and other material, which was warmly commended by the meeting, and adopted. The committees also entered into a contract with the O'Keefe Advertising Agency to take charge of the advertising during the 1919 campaign.

Upon the recommendation of the publicity committee, concurred in by the publicity finance committee, the O'Keefe Advertising Agency was authorized to proceed with the spring advertising, according to the following schedule, at a cost, approximately, of $20,000, which is in addition to $5,000 expended during January and February.

Reports forthcoming from all sections of the country were so favorable and endorsed so highly the work and management of the campaign, that the committees decided to set the mark for the fund to be raised and expended this year at $100,000. The committees also authorized the secretary to continue his trip through the country as soon as the duties of his office would permit.

Next week details may be given covering the enthusiastic support given to the publicity campaign by the society's executive board, at its recent meeting in Detroit. Readers will be interested to know what prompted Hon. Philip Breitmeyer of Detroit to subscribe $50 per month, or $600, to the fund for 1919; how other members of the board who were present increased their subscriptions to $500 per year; and how each member present doubled the subscription he had made for 1918. The board was most enthusiastic in its endorsement of the action of the publicity committees in deciding that the fund to be aimed for in 1919 should be $100,000, all to be expended during the year for publicity.

SUPPORT FROM ABROAD.

That the publicity campaign is exciting interest abroad is evidenced in a cheque for £2 ($10) which C. Engelmann, the well-known carnation grower of Saffron Walden, England, sent to Albert Pochelon, secretary of the F. T. D., as a contribution to the publicity fund, with his best wishes. As Chairman Henry Penn, to whom Mr.

Pochelon remitted the cheque, says, "This shows the relative interest of our English brethren, of which our home folks should 'sit up and take notice.' If florists in England send money towards a campaign for publicity for flowers in this country, what should we expect from our own?" Mr. Pochelon remarks, "This certainly shows the spirit of joining hands across the sea. It should wake up some of the boys on this side of the ocean who have not yet seen fit to contribute towards this most beneficial work, carried on for everyone engaged in the growing or distribution of the products of our industry."

Mr. Nonsubscriber, the campaign for 1919 is well planned and is under way. Are you going to support it, as, surely, your conscience dictates that you should? If you are in doubt on any point, will you not communicate with this office and have that doubt removed?

Your Opportunity.

A real campaign for more uses of flowers is now on, and your publicity committees, have much to tell the American public that the florists of the United States and Canada, are preparing to serve them. Will you be prepared locally to also tie up to the campaign of "Say it With Flowers" so that you may make the present campaign a producing one?

Just think of the time when everyone felt this was an impossibility. Now look at those who have contributed, and who still further show faith by increasing, and others by doubling their subscriptions after reviewing the benefits of last year's publicity. Are you among the "also ran" class, or among those who contributed and felt its pulse?

Work with the campaign locally and nationally. The florists, who are contributing to this fund, are making flower-history for the future, for by their conduct of giving, they are unconsciously widening the channels for more flower-buying and helping everyone connected with the development of flowers. Can you afford not to give to this unselfish cause which is for the good of all?

The florists have always proven themselves worthy in every cause that was a worth-while one, and we have every reason to feel this campaign will succeed beyond our fondest hope. "Say it With Flowers" will be a household word when one is in doubt as to the query, "What shall it be?" so that all who connect themselves with it will be eventually rewarded.

You can make its scope as broad as you wish by simply doing your duty in contributions. Will you permit your neighbor to do it or will you help?

HENRY PENN,
 Chairman Nat. Pub. Committee.

SUPPLY NOTICEABLY SHORT.

The market is very short on stock. All receipts are meeting with a good demand, cleaning up readily and are bringing satisfactory prices. Shipping business continues good. The rose market is very short of stock. All growers who furnish this flower to this market seem to be off crop. Carnations are not as plentiful as they were and are cleaning up from day to day. Sweet peas, however, are fairly plentiful and meet with a good call. The Easter lily receipts are somewhat short of the demand for them. Rubrum and callas have a ready sale. Bulbous stock is becoming fairly plentiful and the next two weeks should see a good supply in this line. Receipts include jonquils, daffodils, tulips, Dutch hyacinths, Roman hyacinths, yellow narcissi, Paper Whites and freesias. Some excellent snapdragons may be had. Other offerings are orchids, single violets, calendulas, baby primroses, wallflowers, and forget-me-nots.

NOTES.

Dan Gray and Harry Gray are at Hoboken, N. J., having returned from overseas.

Geo. Kessen has received his discharge from the service and is with the William Murphy Company.

After C. E. Critchell's return from the Cleveland meeting of the American Carnation Society, he had as his guests Allan Pierce, Waltham, Mass.; George Arnold, Boston, Mass.; Jos. Hill, Richmond, Ind., and William Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.

MOULTRIE, GA.—The Moultrie Floral Co. has added one large house to its range and has opened a downtown retail store.

San Francisco.

INCREASED SUPPLY AND DEMAND WEAKER.

Trade has slackened up a little since our last report. The supply of flowers is increasing considerably. Roses are becoming more plentiful every day, but as yet there has been very little decline in prices. They are about the same as last quoted. Outdoor flowers are coming in freely, particularly acacias and a few of the flowering peaches and almonds. From now on these can be expected in large quantities. Daffodils and hyacinths are to be seen everywhere, but no tulips are in yet. Sweet peas are improving a good deal and some excellent stock of the winter flowering specimens are now in the market. The sale for them is good and at fair prices. Carnations are much more plentiful and prices have gone down considerably. Reds, in particular, are in over supply. The street peddlers are using a great deal of them. While violets are now at their height, and though large quantities are being shipped away, there seems to be quite a surplus every morning. Cattleyas are quite plentiful, more so than at any time during the season. The call was very brisk for them last week. Gardenias are in ample supply, but prices are firm. Snapdragons have been coming in during the week and sell readily. Fine prices are being obtained by the growers for good stock. Cut ericas are in large supply. Ferns of every description are still scarce, and so is asparagus. Just now there is not much demand for pot plants.

NOTES.

At the greenhouses of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., a large stock of flowering plants is being put into shape for Easter. The azaleas are extra good and a very large quantity is being grown here this year. Nursery trade is also good at this establishment.

The J. B. Boland store had the large decoration aboard the Dutch war ship which has been in port for a week. It was the work of Manager John Silvers, and was splendidly executed.

Pellicano, Rossi & Co., had a very heavy run of funeral work the past week. Trade is all that could be wished for at this store.

Shellgrain & Ritter are much gratified at the way business has kept up with them since opening their new store on Kearney street.

M. H. Ebel, the Sacramento florist, was a visitor this week. He reports a brisk trade in his city, chiefly funeral work.

NOTES.

The Society of Kentucky Florists has sent a protest to the chairman of the federal horticultural board in regard to the embargo to be placed on plants effective June 1, but have as yet received no reply. A similar protest was also sent to Senator Shirley and the Hon. J. C. Cantrill, and both of these gentlemen have replied to the effect that they will do what they can to secure a modification of the ruling.

Willis B. Reynolds, formerly with the F. Walker Co., and brother of P. A. Reynolds, the well-known florist, has the sympathy of his many friends in the sad death of an infant son, who was burned recently, his clothing catching fire while playing with matches.

Oscar F. Kleinstauer of the United States navy, was picked up uninjured after the vessel on which he was one of the crew was sunk by a mine. The boat he was on previously was sunk by a submarine.

Walter Kleinstarink, who has returned from service in France as a member of a hospital headquarters company, is now at Camp Taylor and expects to be mustered out soon.

John G. Bettman & Son are adding one house, 25x130 feet, to their establishment, to be devoted to roses. Ferdinand Graham is now with this firm.

John C. Ruysenaars, formerly with the F. Walker Co., is now in charge of the landscape department of the Jacob Schulz Co.

The F. Walker Co. is adding one house, 26x230 feet, to be devoted to roses and cut flowers.

MARKET REMAINS UNCHANGED.

The market has changed very little during the past week. Carnations are more plentiful and somewhat cheaper, the best being offered at six cents, the balance at four and five cents. Roses are still in short supply and are high in price, ranging from 10 to 50 cents. Lilies are coming a little stronger, but clean up at $25 per 100. The best sweet peas of the season have arrived and command $3 per 100. Paper Whites are plentiful, but the price remains at five cents for fancy stock. Jonquils have begun to make their appearance and are quoted at eight cents. Violets are not very good and the same is true of the demand. A few irises are offered at from 12 to 15 cents each. Other offerings are limited and prices are high.

NOTES.

At the florists' club smoker and luncheon, February 4, the election of the following officers for the ensuing year was announced: Neil McCallum, president; E. C. Reineman, vice-president; Carl Becherer, secretary; W. A. Clarke, treasurer. Trustees—R. H. Semple, P. S. Randolph and August Frishkorn. Thanks to D. W. Ludwig, a splendid lunch was served and E. C. Ludwig received a vote of thanks for the finest sweet peas grown in Butler county. The following awards were made: J. H. Thompson, certificate of merit for fine cyclamen; Schenley Park, cultural certificate for amaryllis and Iris tingitana; M. Curran, cultural certificate for fine carnation seedling, which he was asked to display again for first class certificate.

George Marshall, for many years associated with the wholesale trade in this city has resigned his position with the McCallum Co. to go into the retail business at Okmulgee, Okla. He has the best wishes of a host of friends. Earl Tipton, of the above firm, has taken over his interests here.

Charles Grakelow and S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, Pa., stopped off here for a few hours, returning from the American Carnation Society's meeting at Cleveland. Both say the exhibition was one of the best they have ever attended.

Ed Niggel entertained the male members of the McCallum Co.'s force at a stag at his residence in Wildwood, where a very enjoyable evening was spent.

Morris Stein of St. Paul, Minn., formerly of this city, who has recently been mustered out of the navy, visited friends here on his way home.

The decorations for the victory banquet of the Chamber of Commerce were in the capable hands of Mr. James of the William Penn hotel.

William Loew, of this city, and Joseph Thomas, of Greensburgh, left February 6 on a two weeks' trip to Florida.

OBITUARY.

Marius Mutillod.

Marius Mutillod, proprietor of the Secaucus, N. J., Exotic Nurseries, died at his home in Secaucus on the morning of February 10, of pneumonia, after an illness of one week. The news of his death came as a shock to many of his friends, the writer included, for but few of us knew that he was ill. In our issue of February 1, there was published a brief sketch of the decoration in the new Hotel Commodore, which was probably his last important work. On the evening of January 28, the writer, in company with ex-President Totty of the S. A. F., called at the hotel to look over the decoration, and by accident met Mr. Mutillod, who had just finished the final details. We had a short talk with him, and after we came away, President Totty, who has had wide acquaintance and experience, remarked, "That is one of the ablest men we have in the business," a remark that has been echoed by many others. For versatility and originality and the ability to successfully carry out his ideas, he had few equals in the trade of this country, and certainly no superiors. A grower, landscape gardener and decorator, and a greenhouse builder, there was no branch of the business that he could not take up and turn out good work. Leading architects and hotel men of New York have paid tribute to his genius. He was born in France about 50 years ago, and has been connected with the trade of New York and vicinity for over 20 years. He had held the position of landscape gardener and decorator for Charles A. Dards, and at the same time built a range at Secaucus of about 100,000 square feet of glass which has always been well stocked with palms, ferns and a variety of other plants. He had also built a fine home.

He is survived by his widow, a clever and educated lady, who is also well informed on horticultural matters. A brother was, some years ago, associated with him in business at Secaucus, but he removed, we believe, to California.

Mrs. Mattie McFarland.

Mrs. Mattie McFarland, wife of William P. McFarland, well known florist of the firm of McFarlands, Florists, Akron, O., died at her late residence, January 31, aged 60 years. Mrs. McFarland was an estimable woman, highly respected in the community in which she lived and was prominent in fraternal circles. Funeral services were held February 2, with interment in Glendale cemetery. Many handsome floral tributes accompanied the remains to their last resting place.

William R. McClane.

William R. McClane, one of four brothers who were associated and succeeded to their father's business at his death, passed away, February 9. He leaves a wife and four children. All of the brothers have been sufferers with the influenza during the past two weeks and their two stores had been closed. The funeral was held February 12. There was a profusion of flowers from his many friends in the trade.

NEW ALBANY, IND.—Anders Rasmussen has a fuel reserve of 600 cords of wood.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—Dr. Richard Ernest Kunze, famous as a grower of cactus and a writer on plant life, died here recently, age 81 years.

LEAD is now five cents per pound.

COAL prices are declining. Buy only a limited supply at a time.

COTTON twine has declined in price from 71 cents to 59 cents per pound.

At the annual meeting of the National Rose Society of England, January 21 last, it was stated the society had 4,860 paid up members.

Personal.

Harry A. Barnard, the veteran representative of the Stuart Low Co., London, Eng., is making preparations for his annual tour of the American trade. His firm has just issued its first orchid catalogue since the outbreak of the war.

THE senate and legislature of Tennessee have introduced bills to recognize Mothers' day, the second Sunday in May, and requesting its observance by the wearing of flowers and in church services.

Plant Embargo Situation Unchanged.

From statements made by the federal horticultural board, following a conference with a delegation representing the Society of American Florists, February 6, little change may be expected in the proposed plant quarantine. C. L. Marlatt, chairman of the board, presided, and G. B. Sudwarth and K. F. Kellerman, members, were also present. The trade interests were ably represented by William F. Gude, Washington representative of the S. A. F.; Secretary John Young, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., and J. D. Eisele, Philadelphia, Pa. The conference lasted six hours, but the delegation was told that it had presented nothing that would add to the testimony and evidence previously furnished to the board which sought to meet all of the contentions advanced in the interests of the trade. The committee had originally requested an interview with Secretary of Agriculture Houston, but they were referred to the federal horticultural board. The conference was far from satisfactory, the board showing little inclination to make any move to meet the wishes of the florists, and holding to the belief that American horticulturists and nurserymen could produce all stocks of vital need to continue the industry. It agrees that there are some things that perhaps cannot be produced, but there will be other things to take their place. Even though the board declines to recede from the stand it has taken, the trade is not without hope that more satisfactory action will be taken in the near future, as congress is being literally flooded with protests petitioning legislative action, and from their number they cannot very well be overlooked.

Senator Peter F. Gerry, of Rhode Island, has taken up with the secretary of agriculture, the protest of the Newport Horticultural Society against the embargo, it having the signature of the five officers of the organization and sent on behalf of the 140 members who for the most part are commercial gardeners, florists, nurserymen and superintendents of estates. The action of the Newport society is similar to that which is being taken in all sections of the country. B. F. L.

Window Glass.

The French government has placed an order in Pittsburgh for 107,000 cases of window glass, amounting to 214,000 boxes, with assurances that much larger orders are coming in the near future. The first of the glass is to be on shipboard in New York by March 15. It is understood the order was divided between the American Window Glass Co. and the Consolidated Window Glass Co. The first named will furnish one-half of the order, the Consolidated one-quarter and the balance will be divided among smaller companies. The price is understood to be $6 per box. The window glass production of the country is about 10,000,000 boxes annually. This is the first time glass in any such quantity has been sold to Europe. It is believed that a year will elapse before factories in France and Belgium can take care of the home market.

American Dahlia Society.

There was a meeting of the executive committee of the American Dahlia Society, at the Grand Hotel, New York, February 10, at which were present President Richard Vincent, Jr., James Duthie, P. W. Popp, Geo. L. Stillman, I. S. Hendrickson, A. H. Langjahr, and the secretary, John H. Pepper. The affairs of the society were discussed at length, and its work was found to be in progressive order. It was decided that the society's next bulletin be published about the first week in March, and thereafter be published bi-monthly.

Rules governing the society's trial gardens at Storrs, Conn., in connection with the Connecticut Agricultural College, were considered and adopted. A committee was appointed to prepare a memorial resolution on the death of J. H. Slocombe, New Haven, Conn., a prominent member.

Preparations for the holding of the annual exhibition were discussed and a committee appointed to make arrangements as to housing accommodation.

The committee adjourned to meet again in New York about the middle of March.

JOHN H. PEPPER, Sec'y.

British Florists' Federation.

The annual meeting of the British Florists' Federation, held in Essex hall, London, January 23, while not as largely attended as usual, due to difficulties of travel, was an interesting session. George Munro, Jr., was re-elected president. Strong protests were passed against the importation of flowers from Holland and against the American proposal to prohibit the importation of European plants and bulbs into the United States. The president stated that the board of trade had been asked to maintain the prohibition against Dutch flowers and bulbs and that the chamber of horticulture had already taken up the American question. The successful efforts to have the control of raffia removed and to allow the importation of Japanese lily bulbs were also recorded.

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

DEPARTMENT OF REGISTRATION.

The L. M. Smith Quality Flower Co., Laurel, Del., submit for registration:

Chrysanthemum January Gold, golden yellow sport of the variety Mistletoe, a good clear yellow, deeper in color than Major Bonaffon, incurved full to the center. Begins blooming December 20 and continues to March 1, of great substance, keeping in good condition for three to four weeks.

Chrysanthemum Dr. Hitch—sport of the variety Mistletoe; color between white and lavender pink shading to yellow in the center. Blooms at the same time as January Gold and of the same good keeping qualities.

CHAS. W. JOHNSON, Sec'y.

Ice Shortage.

New York is threatened with an ice shortage of from 600,000 to 700,000 tons, due to mild weather. The normal needs of the city are about 4,000,000 tons, while the manufacturing plants' capacity is but 2,500,000 tons. Natural ice in the past years has averaged about 1,500,000 tons.

FLORISTS' CLUB NOMINATES OFFICERS.

It looks as though there would be something of a contest incident to the election of officers of the florists' club for the ensuing year. This became manifest when the following named were placed in nomination for the various offices: Z. D. Blackistone and Adolph Gude, to be president; Harry B. Lewis and George E. Anderson, for vice-president; Captain William H. Ernest and E. P. Rodman for secretary. There will be no contest for the office of treasurer, for William F. Gude was nominated to succeed himself, and George Field and Captain William H. Ernest were nominated to succeed themselves as members of the executive committee to serve for three years.

The principal discussion of the evening had to do with the advertising campaign of the S. A. F., following a talk given by William F. Gude on the results to be obtained from co-operation by the florists all over the country, as a result of which President Z. D. Blackistone appointed a committee composed of R. Lloyd Jenkins, chairman; Otto Bauer and William Marche to go among the florists and solicit three-year subscriptions to the fund. Mr. Gude also reported on what was being done with respect to seeking the withdrawal of the proposed regulations of the federal horticultural board which go into effect on June 30 next, and under the terms of which foreign importations would be cut off. It was declared that with the horticultural trade up in arms all over the country, congress and the department of agriculture cannot but help take cognizance of the matter and take steps to rescind, revise, or modify the regulations. Z. D. Blackistone stated that he would shortly name a committee to take up the question of cost accounting for retailers, wholesalers and growers, in response to the request from President Totty, of the S. A. F. He is also to name a committee to engage in a membership drive while another committee will make arrangements for a banquet to be held in connection either with the annual election on March 4 or the installation of officers at the April meeting.

TRADE CONDITIONS SATISFACTORY.

Reports of retailers, and the movement of an available stock at the wholesale houses, indicate a satisfactory condition of business the past week. Occasionally, some carnations of the poorer grades accumulate, and are finally disposed of at a correspondingly poor price, but roses are bringing as high figures as prevailed during January, and sometimes even higher. The bright weather is greatly responsible for the wearing of violets; and their use also in funeral work causes the heavy daily receipts to rapidly disappear, though the prices realized are not up to the other items on the list of seasonable flowers. Freesias are still coming in from several growers, and their popularity, despite high prices, is most marked. Holland bulb stock is now everywhere to be seen, but chiefly in pots and pans, and is bringing prices never before realized by all who handle them. Sweet peas are becoming more plentiful daily, but are all easily sold with no indication of a glut or excessive supply. Hardy cut ferns are still scarce and high priced, but the retailers are using satisfactory substitutes freely to even up matters somewhat on the item.

NOTES.

The ladies' auxiliary of the florists' club, gave their annual ball at Hotel Statler, February 5. The affair was a brilliant and successful one. The ball room was tastefully decorated for the occasion, and nearly 250 attended. Nearly all the florists of the city were there, and with their friends, had a most enjoyable time. The society is much interested in the coming convention of the S. A. F., and the funds realized from the ball will be used for the entertainment of the ladies expected to attend the convention August next. Mrs. John Warneke is president and Mrs. A. J. Stahelin, secretary.

Michael Bloy is assisting Secretary Pechelon in his F. T. D. work. A large room on the second floor of the L. Bomb store will hereafter be used exclusively for the fast accumulating work of this energetic society.

Harry Braitmeyer is back again after nearly a year in military service in France. He is scheduled for an address before the florist club, giving an account of his overseas experience.

Robert Rahaley and Thomas Browne are still in Florida, and frequent reports from their seaside abode tell of their enjoyment of the southern climate and fishing success.

The popular Phil Foley spent several days here the past week booking orders for both commercial and private greenhouses to be built soon in this district.

Frank Dulsky, formerly of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange force, has opened a retail store on West Jefferson avenue, Delroy.

BRISK DEMAND FOR VALENTINE'S DAY.

The demand for St. Valentine's day is brisk, and from present indications, stock in all lines will clean up completely at very satisfactory figures. Roses are in short supply and command high prices in all varieties, particularly American Beauty, Mrs. Charles Russell and Columbia. Carnations are in good supply but are cleaning up nicely at fair figures, although prices have had a tendency to weaken the past week. Sweet peas are arriving in larger quantities but the demand is keeping pace with the supply and no trouble is experienced in selling what stock is reaching the market. Orchids are plentiful, especially cattleyas and phalenopsis, of which some especially fine spikes are being offered. Snapdragones are to be had of fine quality and command high prices. Lilies are holding their own and the same holds true for callas. Iris is a factor in the market and so are tulips and narcissi. Freesias are in brisk demand, and the colored varieties now make up a big part of the shipments. White and yellow narcissi, pansies, white and yellow daisies, calendulas, single and double violets, gardenias and lily of the valley are obtainable, but there is hardly ever any surplus in any of these items. The shipping trade was very good last week, but the city demand fell off considerably although it is very good at this writing, owing to the brisk St. Valentine's day business. The window cards and large streamers issued free to all the local florists are being used on a large scale for the event and should result in much business. "Say It With Flowers" is prominently displayed in both, and also in the two advertisements

NOTES.

Fred "Mickey" Krauss, who returned recently with the American troops from overseas, is back on the job at E. F. Winterson Co.'s store. Edgar Winterson is also on the job here and is taking to the wholesale cut flower business like a duck does to water. The Winterson store was completely overhauled and looks spick and span in its new dress of paint.

Brooding over his recent conviction on the charge of having killed 15-year-old William Ulrey on the grounds of the Saddle and Cycle club, Sheridan road and Foster avenue, Nicholas Moga, the club gardener, hung himself Friday, February 7, in the horse shed of the club.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, George Ball, Frank Schramm, W. P. Kyle, Rudolph Ellsworth and B. Abrams, visited the E. G. Hill Co.'s greenhouses at Richmond, Ind., this week to inspect the new roses.

N. J. Wietor reports that Wietor Bros. never had such a brisk demand for bench rose plants or carnation cuttings as this season, meaning to some extent that many of the houses that were closed last winter are about to resume operations.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, and wife, will leave February 15 for Pasadena, Calif., where they have engaged rooms at the Hotel Green. E. B. Washburn and wife are expected here from California about March 1.

John Bruckner, 248 West 59th street, has the sympathy of the entire trade in the loss of his mother, whose death occurred at Milwaukee, Wis., last week at the advanced age of 84.

A. S. Brouton, formerly at 3201 Fullerton avenue, has purchased the store of L. Pehlke at 3121 Logan boulevard and is now in possession.

Peter Hille, formerly with the John Kruchten Co., has enlisted in the navy as fireman.

Harry Garland is now employed in the supply department of Poehlmann Bros. Co.

The Wholesale Cut Flower Association held a meeting at the Hotel Sherman, February 10, when dinner was served and much important business was transacted. An appropriation of $1,000 was made to the local advertising fund being conducted by this association in conjunction with the Retail Florists' Association. The first two advertisements appeared in the leading morning daily this week for St. Valentine's day. The bulk of the money will be spent during the periods of plenty, so as to avoid gluts in the future.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. received word this week from Mr. Vaughan and family that they are at present in Louisiana, which leads us to believe that they are gradually traveling homeward and are likely to arrive here any day now.

Harry Gardiner has taken a position with A. T. Pyfer & Co., where he was employed up to the time he joined the colors. It is rumored he will join the ranks of the benedicts in the near future.

The Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co. will open a downtown office in the new building on the corner of State and Lake streets, one block from the great central wholesale cut flower market.

The Central Floral Co.'s window display for St. Valentine's day is a winner and commands the attention of all the passers-by. A dirigible with Dan Cupid in control is the eye-catcher.

Peter Showsboe, superintendent of the Peter Reinberg greenhouses, and his men are busy planting and quite a number of the benches are now filled with young rose stock.

H. B. Kennicott and J. W. McNeely, of Kennicott Bros. Co., will leave for Florida in the near future. J. E. Pollworth, of the Kennicott Co., is on the sick list this week.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., visited Alois P. Frey's greenhouses, home of the colored freesias, at Crown Point, Ind., this week.

The Retail Florists' Association had a 10 1/2-inch triple column St. Valentine's day advertisement in the leading morning paper February 11.

Morris Grossberg, of the Grossberg-Tyler-Finnermann Co., is back from a business trip through Wisconsin and Michigan.

There have been rumors of a number of changes that are about to happen in the wholesale cut flower market which so far have not developed to such an extent that the interested parties are ready to release the news for publication. One might use the information obtainable and betray somebody's confidence and still have the news pretty nearly correct, but so far, according to all concerned, nothing definitely has been done. Rather than do anyone an injustice the news referred to will be withheld for another week.

The daily papers are beginning to take notice of the local advertising campaign by the trade and the clever work of some of the writers in making use of feature stories well illustrated shows that they are making a strong bid for the advertising. One of the morning dailies featured an illustrated article on the front page of the second section, Wednesday, February 12, which should result in much business for St. Valentine's day.

The Retail Florists' Association held its regular monthly meeting, which falls on the second Tuesday of each month, February 11, when 35 new members were elected.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Randolph, February 6, President Zech in the chair. The novelty exhibition, staged by Chairman Waters, of the good-of-the-club committee, was an interesting feature and attracted a large attendance, about 100 members being present. Twelve new members were elected: John G. Poehlmann, 72 East Randolph street; J. O'Keefe, 1213 West Madison street; Nick Lemperis, 72 East Randolph street; Frank McCabe, 180 North Wabash avenue; Frank E. Matti, 1677 Olive street; Leopold Romansky, 716 North Paulina street; L. R. Bohannon, 75 East Monroe street; George Gobel, 6126 Michigan avenue; George J. Walther, 6428 Lowe avenue; William Wichtendahl, Maywood; Ove Ghatt, LaPorte, Ind., and Thos. S. Wilson, superintendent of parks, Indiana Harbor, Ind. Vice-president Walter A. Amling, who was unable to be present at the last meeting, was installed and pledged his support to the club, after thanking the members for the honor conferred upon him.

President Zech appointed the following as chairmen of the various committees for the ensuing year, permitting each to select their assistants: Garden—J. C. Vaughan. Publicity—Fred Lautenschlager. Transportation—Michael Barker. Coal—C. L. Washburn. Booster—Samuel Seligman. Membership—Arthur A. Craig. Good-of-the-club—T. E. Waters. Mr. Waters immediately notified all the members that they were all on his committee, and requested them to assist him in every way possible during the following year. A committee consisting of James Morton, Eric Johnson and E. A. Ollinger, was appointed to draw up suitable resolutions upon the death of the late President William H. Amling. Nic. Karthausner, Thomas McAllister and Conrad Frauenfelder. The committee was instructed to mail a copy of these resolutions to the families of the deceased members, together with one of the four magnolia wreaths donated by Poehlmann Bros. Co., occupying a separate table, alongside of which were placed four chairs in honor of the memory of those recently called from the roll of membership.

Chairman Lautenschlager, of the advertising committee, gave a very interesting talk on the work of his committee, mentioning that there was a balance of about $1,100 in the publicity fund. The sum of $500 of this fund was donated as the 1919 club subscription to the national publicity campaign, and $200 toward the local advertising campaign of the Retail Florists' Association and the Wholesale Cut Flower Association. Owing to the absence of A. Lange, chairman of the publicity committee, George Asmus spoke in his place. He told of the campaign that the local florists had in mind, and mentioned that the greater proportion would be spent in the daily papers during the period of gluts. A start was to be made for St. Valentine's day when two advertisements would appear in one of the dailies, copies of which were read at the meeting, together with an advertising sign that could be used on delivery trucks, store fronts, etc. "Say it with flowers" was prominently displayed in all the copy, showing that the committee was wide-awake, and utilizing all the publicity possible that had already been exploited in the national campaign. Vice-president Amling suggested that all the florists should carry the "Say-it-with-flowers" banner on their autos, especially the design issued by the local florists for St. Valentine's day. L. R. Bohannon, president of the Retail Florists' Association, asked the support of all those present to aid his organization in securing new members and help his association in every way, as the results achieved would be of benefit to everyone in the trade. E. H. Mazey, Minneapolis, Minn.; George Blackman, Evansville, Ind.; A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., and Thos. S. Wilson, Indiana Harbor, Ind., addressed the meeting.

WE believe in the spirit and practical application of co-operation between the grower, wholesaler and retailer, with an adjustment of profit for all three.

The grower is the source of supply.

The commission wholesaler is the best and most economical means of distribution.

The retailer is the most direct means of reaching the consumer.

A service between these three factors, that is most profitable to all these interests, requires a spirit of efficiency, loyalty and co-operation.

Whether a grower or retailer, when you ship or buy, Kennicott Bros. Co. offers you all the advantages.

The club voted to send a bouquet of flowers from the exhibits at the meeting to George A. Kuhl, Pekin, who is at present in the Presbyterian hospital in this city, and T. E. Waters was instructed to see that they were delivered with the compliments of the club. President Zech spoke briefly of the executive committee meeting of the Society of American Florists, held at Detroit, Mich., recently and Paul Klingsporn, northern state vice-president of the Society of American Florists advised everyone to join the national organization, and that he was ready to receive applications from those who are not already members. Miss Lillian Stuart, publicity manager of the Arcadian Way Society, addressed the meeting with the object of interesting the members in the plan of building a road from the lakes to the gulf, and from the pines to the palms, so as to furnish employment to the returning soldiers. Owing to the lateness of the hour, it was impossible for her to go into the plan as fully as she wished to, so she asked permission from the club to meet with them at some future date.

An original design by T. E. The committee found a very fine idea in an 18-inch, gold magnolia leaf wreath with a bow of golden violet ribbon, which was displayed in memory of the four recently departed club members. The committee recommended that this feature be encouraged as meritorious and that the publicity committee be instructed to take up the matter of exploiting it with the various publicity officials. Honorable mention was also given to Poehlmann Bros. Co., (A. Anderson, grower) for the large display of very fine sprays of phalaenopsis and cattleyas.

Alois Frey, Crown Point, Ind.—Three vases of colored freesias. A very fine yellow named Yellow Prince, an excellent lavender known as Viola and a beautiful pink called General Pershing. All three varieties were awarded a certificate of merit.

E. H. Blameuser, Niles Center—Three vases of carnations. Two promising pink seedlings, No. 27 and No. 9, also a sport of Good Cheer. The latter was highly commended and attracted much favorable attention.

Peter Pearson—Vase of Sir Watkin and Emperor narcissi and a pot of Proserpine tulips grown from bulbs produced at Jefferson Park, honorable mention.

Jos. H. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.—Vase of Carnation Laddie, which scored 89 points.

Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind.—Vase of Carnation Ruth Baur, which scored 89 points.

FLORISTS' ADVERTISING CLUB MEETS.

The first annual meeting of the florists' advertising club was held at the Republican house, February 10, with a very gratifying attendance and President H. V. Hunkel in the chair. After the inner man had been satisfied by a sumptuous dinner, the reports of the secretary and treasurer were read. Through this plan, which originated in this city, which assessed all growers one-half of one per cent, and all retailers one per cent on all goods consigned to or bought from the wholesale houses for one year, the sum of about $5,000 had been collected. This was mainly used in newspaper and street car advertising and proved to be a good beginning. Mr. Dunlap, a local advertising man, gave a short talk, which readily bore fruit, in relating some of his experiences in advertising. He proved, without a doubt, that it pays and he congratulated the Milwaukee boys on their fine beginning, saying that they had only just scratched the surface, and urged them to constantly keep it up.

The following directors for the coming year were elected: A. Leidiger.

A. McDonald, Hy Marquardt, W. R. Schroeder, Wm. Mauke, A. F. Kellner, G. Rusch, H. V. Hunkel and C. C. Pollworth. Realizing after hearing Mr. Dunlap and others, that more money would do more good, a motion to increase the rate of contributing to one per cent for growers and two per cent for retailers, was carried by secret ballot, with only two voting against it. One member present deplored the fact that more of the local craft did not have the slogan, "Say it with Flowers," on their stationery. This is one form of advertising, which costs practically nothing, and if used to the utmost, will help to "sink it in."

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

The regular meeting of the florists' club was held February 6, with nearly half of the members present. There having been no meeting in January, due to a lack of attendance, the treasurer and secretary read their annual reports, which proved that the club gained numerically as well as financially; further, that nearly half of their assets consisted of United States Liberty bonds and War Saving certificates. E. J. Harame, of Wauwatosa, was elected a member. The following officers for 1919 were installed: Wm. A. Kennedy, president; Nic Zweifel, vice-president; James Livingstone, treasurer; Eugene Oestreicher, secretary, and A. Reinhardt, trustee for three years. C. C. Pollworth acting as master of ceremonies. In his genial, yet forceful way, he reminded everyone what was expected from them, and they in return promised with the hearty cooperation of all members to do their best and try to make the coming year the best ever. The chair appointed A. Hare, W. Holliday and Henry Marquardt, as the entertainment committee for the ensuing year.

A letter from ex-President Totty of the S. A. F., asking that a committee be appointed to ascertain the cost of production, as well as the cost of operating a flower store, was next taken up. The discussion brought out the point that it would be a rather difficult matter to say how much it could cost to raise a certain crop of cut flowers, as some of the help would at some time be occupied with other work. Especially would this be the case in a smaller place, where a man, say the driver, would deliver, haul manure, cultivate and water several crops, etc. The chair later appointed Nic Zweifel, A. Leidiger and Eugene Oestreicher as the committee to bring up and report on this matter at the March meeting. Four of those present, who attended the carnation convention at Cleveland, made a brief report. Nic Zweifel gave a detailed report of the carnation exhibition, while C. C. Pollworth dwelt on the proceedings of the S. A. F. directors' meeting at Detroit.

NOTES.

A recent statement by Secretary Remmey now assures us that the state fair will be held in September this year.

and that they promise to eclipse all former affairs. We trust the local craft will feel the same way, and make this year's horticultural display something extra fine. It is for your own benefit.

Otto Grade, of the Fox Point Floral Co., mourns the loss of his six months' old baby girl, who died February 9. We herewith extend our heartfelt sympathy. E. O.

St. Louis.

SUPPLY CONSIDERABLY DIMINISHED.

Stock of all kinds diminished somewhat the past week. Carnations, particularly, felt the shortage, although the majority coming in are good. The cut of sweet peas has been large and of extra good quality. The price has held up remarkably well this season, in spite of the fact that large quantities arrive daily. Narcissi and freesias have let up a bit, and are quoted slightly higher than last week. Roses continue to be scarce. Violets are in fair supply, and with a few sunshiny days, we will be able to get along on the St. Valentine's day supply. Not near the amount are being grown compared with other years. This will be keenly felt. Jonquils are beginning to come in heavier and will help considerably. Greens of all kinds are ample for the demand. Business conditions the past week were improved over the previous week. A little period of colder weather seemed to put a little life into it. Since the first of the year prices have been more or less stable, and it has done a whole lot to stimulate business after the disastrous experience of November and December. The lack of good blooming plants is felt keenly by the retailer. Good sized stock is almost impossible to obtain. In the bulbous varieties, nothing good has been produced as yet, with the exception of jonquils. Tulips and hyacinths, particularly, are very poor in this vicinity. Some of the growers seem to think it is the fault of the bulbs being on the road too long.

NOTES.

The banquet given by the local florists last week proved a huge success. About 200 of the trade and their ladies participated. The banquet was excellent, with fine speakers and music, and to top it off it was followed by an informal dance. Let's make it an annual event.

A number of local growers are cutting some extra good sweet peas. This crop has been very profitable this year, especially with the shortage of carnations.

Mrs. William C. Smith is still at the Deaconess hospital. She has shown a slight improvement. J. J. W.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

GENERAL DEMAND IS STEADY.

The advance demand for St. Valentine's day has been very good, and the indications are that there will be a very satisfactory call for flowers for this holiday, with plenty of everything, with the possible exception of roses. Trade during last week was very steady, with a good amount of funeral work. Pot plants have not been any too plentiful since the first of the year. Carnations are very plentiful, but prices remain about the same. There are some excellent quality roses on the market, with Hoosier Beauty, Sawyer, Russell, Ophelia, and Sunburst varieties in the lead. Violets are in fine supply.

NOTES.

The Doswell Floral Co. is making an unusually fine display of baskets filled with spring flowers, and colonial bouquets. Their out-of-town demand for Valentine flowers has exceeded all expectations.

Ed. Wenninghoff is on the job with a very fine St. Valentine's day window decoration. Basket arrangements, and novelties of various kinds are combined with quality flowers.

The Flick Floral Co. reports a heavy demand for orchids, especially cattleyas. Two handsome cattleya wreaths were sent out by this firm last week.

The Freese Floral Co. reports a good demand for funeral work, and excellent counter trade.

Rochester, N. Y.

GOOD SUPPLY AND IMPROVED DEMAND.

Business during the past week has been good and the supply more plentiful than it has been for several weeks. Daffodils, narcissi in yellow and white, and Murillo and La Reine tulips have begun to arrive in larger numbers and prices have dropped in consequence. Carnations are improving in quality due to sunny weather. Roses continue high in price.

NOTES.

The ladies' florist club at a meeting at the home of Mrs. W. L. Keller has elected the following officers for 1919: Mrs. John Frey, president; Mrs. H. P.

Neun, vice-president; Mrs. Charles Suher, secretary; Mrs. H. W. Wilson, treasurer.

The flower committee of the industrial exposition and the local florists' association are endeavoring to stimulate interest in the organization of a rose society in this city.

E. P. Wilson, Horace Head and E. C. Armbrust were workers in the Y. M. C. A. campaign last week when 2732 names were added to the membership.

Philip Riley, father of William S. Riley, commissioner of parks, died February 1. He was an old and respected resident of this city.

A well written article on "Pruning Trees and Shrubs in Springtime," by Ambrose Seeker, appeared recently in the local press.

George T. Boucher had the decorations at the armory again this year for the policemen's ball.

SHORTENED DEMAND NOTICEABLE.

There was a perceptible let up in the demand the past week, also a more limited supply in almost all lines. Under these conditions prices might have held, but somehow they weakened, going off about 20 per cent. The quality of all the stock is fine. Daffodils, narcissi and freesias have added not a little to the market assortment the past three weeks, and these, with an increasing quantity of sweet peas, have been the means of lowering prices. Roses are none too plentiful. Special American Beauties bring 75 cents each, while the teas range from six to 20 cents. Calendulas, with good length of stem, sell well, but there is too much short stock that is hard to move. Growers should contrive, either by selection or disbudding, to increase the average of long stems. Easter lilies and callas are about equal to the demand at prices that are shaded a trifle. There are not quite so many cattleyas, but enough for the market. Very good lilac takes the place of lily of the valley, which is about out of the market. Special sweet peas are in demand, while the cheaper grades all go for funeral work. Greens of all kinds are moving at good prices. Asparagus, both southern and local, cleans up every day.

February 10.—There were good shipments of stock in all lines except roses, which continue scarce. Carnations, calendulas, sweet peas, Easter and calla lilies, lilac, cattleyas, violets, freesias, daffodils and other small flowers appear quite plentiful at about the same prices as the close of last week.

NOTES.

J. Otto Thilow is a busy man these days. As his great ability as a lecturer becomes known, he is in great demand. Coming engagements are; February 12, Ruxton Garden Club, Baltimore, Lecture "From Snow to Snow"; February 13, before the soldiers of Ft. McHenry, near Baltimore, on "Garden Food Production"; February 14, Collingwood Horticultural Society, Collingwood, N. J., "Life and Vegetation of the Hawaiian Islands"; February 15, Williamsport, Pa., lecture on "The Perennial Garden"; February 18, lecture on "Life and Vegetation of the Hawaiian Islands," before the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society. All these lectures are illustrated with numerous colored lantern slides, which, together with Mr. Thilow's splendid description, serves to make his talks most enjoyable.

The retailers' night at the meeting of the florists' club, proved to be very enjoyable. Quite a number of out-of-town members of the craft were present. Among them were J. A. Pennyacker, son and daughter, Phoenixville; John Ribsam, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clark, and J. Goeller, Trenton, N. J.; W. Guy Payne, Pottsville, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Bauder, Paul Blackman, Fred Franks and Harry C. Huesman, Reading, Pa. J. Otto Thilow, of the essay committee, announces that the meeting to be held March 4, will be "Carnation Night." Efforts are being made to secure exhibits of all the newer varieties, also up-to-date arrangements of carnations, the work of some of the retail members of the club.

other western cities in pushing publicity, and also of the way in which they feature the F. F. D. He believes there are great possibilities in this method of intercity business, and that all retail stores should become members and then push and advertise the idea, which would surely give a great impetus to business.

The February meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, to be held in Griffith hall, Tuesday, the eighteenth, at 3:30 p. m., is to have, in addition to the splendidly illustrated lecture on the "Life and Vegetation of the Hawaiian Islands," given by J. Otto Thilow, an exhibit of flowering plants and cut flowers for which good prizes are offered. These monthly competitions have brought out the best skill of the private gardeners of this city, many of the specimens being exceptionally fine.

Clarence Watson, of the Leo. Niesen force, stated that this had been a great season for the cattleya, as there had been a good supply when everything else was scarce. Many small stores who had as a rule not handled orchids, bought them because they could get nothing else. Now, since they have learned how to make them up, and use them to advantage in funeral work, they had become regular buyers, and it would not be much trouble to handle a surplus in the future.

Abraham, James, Jr., and Harry McClane, who have been ill with the influenza, are improving and their stores on South Fifth street and Snyder avenue, which have been closed for two weeks, will open for business again in a few days.

The Century Flower Shop of H. H. Battles, which has opened up again, being closed for the duration of the war, looks fine in its new dress and large stock of cut flowers and blooming plants.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. had a very large sale on their various valentine specialties. Easter is looming up, as offerings for use at this spring holiday are being looked up by wide-awake florists.

The Jos. Heacock Co. reports no material increase in the rose supply. Choice Columbias are a feature. Cattleyas are a quantity stock.

The London Flower Shop is featuring valentines. Notwithstanding the high prices, business has been very good this season.

The Berger Bros.' market finds a good sale for all their stock. K.

BUSINESS SUFFERS FROM HIGH PRICES

There has been a marked falling off in business and wholesale prices since our last notes were written. It is true that there is an increase in the supply of stock, but it has not been so great as to make much difference if the demand had kept up. The high prices of the past four months have turned many people to buying "something else just as good," at least, that is the way many view it. They are fond of flowers, but can get along without them, and fruit, candy and other luxuries are reaping an advantage. Many of the leisure class have gone to Florida or other mild climates, so their business is temporarily lost to the trade of this city.

February 10.—Buying is light, and there are indications of a dull week. The weather is fair, and all stocks, excepting American Beauties and gardenias, are on the increase.

NOTES.

Just before leaving for a long stay at Palm Beach, Mayor Hylan appointed Philip Berolzheimer, who for the past few months has held the office of park commissioner, to the office of city chamberlain, which pays a salary of $12,000 a year. If there is any real work connected with the office, no one seems to have a definite idea of what it is. Francis D. Gallatin, a lawyer, of 160 Broadway, was appointed park commissioner; the salary is $5,000 a year. No statement has been issued relating to Mr. Gallatin's qualifications for park commissioner.

A petition has been filed by the trustee in bankruptcy in the matter of Alexander McConnell to consider an offer made to purchase the premises, 61 West 69th street, and a meeting of creditors to consider said petition has been called for February 18 at 3 p. m. in the office of MacGrane Coxe, reference in bankruptcy, Room 1305 Woolworth building, 233 Broadway.

The "University Florist," George D. Fritz, has an attractive retail store at 2445 Jerome avenue, near Fordham road. It is managed by Frederick Zahn, who for over 25 years was in business for himself at Seventh avenue and 126th street. He was reared in the business, his father having been a New York florist in the early days.

I. L. Johnson, the retailer, of 29 Nevins street, Brooklyn, was in former years an employe of John Weir, and has pleasant recollections of his association with the "boss." Which reminds us that John Weir, though now 70 years old, is yet active and is in the wholesale district every week day as a buyer for the Colonial Florist.

Harry Payne, a well known retailer of Washington, D. C., spent February 8-9 in this city, made some good purchases in the wholesale district and paid a most agreeable visit to THE AMERICAN FLORIST. It is always a pleasure to receive a call from Harry.

The trade was shocked on the morning of February 10 by the news of the death of Marius Mutillod, proprietor of the Secaucus Exotic Nurseries and decorator for the Dards store. A more extended notice will be found in the obituary column.

W. A. Biedel Sons, 402 West 23d street, who are located near the North River steamship piers, have taken time promised to write a special letter on orchids, giving reasons for their proposed exclusion. Maurice Fuld stated that in several recent lectures he had given before garden clubs, he had called attention to the plant exclusion matter, and that some of the clubs had passed resolutions to bring the subject to the attention of their respective members of congress. Richard Vincent, Jr., spoke on the same subject, saying that the proposed plant exclusion was being more and more discussed each day.

CUT FLOWERS

118 W. 28th St., NEW YORK

West of 6th Ave. Open 6 a. m. every morning.

The following were elected to membership in the club. Hans Schwartz, Riverdale, N. Y.; James Morais and Anthony Morais, Rye, N. Y.; Robert H. Lickman, East Islip, N. Y.; Joseph Lee, Islip, N. Y.; Frank Laban and Matthew Sampson, Jr., 55 W. 26th street; Max Lehman, 29 Grand street; Robert La Bau, 55 W. 26th street; Isaac Abrams, 123A Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Wm. Doyle, 55 W. 26th street. Several were present and spoke briefly.

Charles Schenck reported for the dinner committee that the annual event will be held at the Hotel Biltmore, March 15.

Appropriate resolutions were read and adopted on the death of Mrs. McGovern, whose sons are club members, and on the death of George Allen, son of J. K. Allen, a member and former treasurer of the club.

Harry W. Libby, representing Stouts', of Biddeford, Me., was introduced and in a pleasing vein extended cordial greetings from that state. President Kessler, ex-President Totty and J. A. Manda spoke of their recent trip to Detroit on official business, commenting on the hospitality of the Detroit florists, even though Detroit is now "dry." Wallace R. Pierson spoke on the publicity campaign, and gave statistics along the line of pushing publicity. Mr. Totty also spoke favorably of the movement.

There were a number of creditable exhibits staged. For S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., the carnation Laddie, was exhibited. Emil Savoy, Secaucus, N. J., showed a new strain of Bougainvillea Sanderiana. John Weston, Valley Stream, N. Y., had a collection of orchid flowered sweet peas. C. T. Guenther, Hamburg, N. Y., staged Chrysanthemum Hamburg Late Pink. This, it was announced, will be disseminated by the W. F. Kasung Co., of Buffalo in 1920. Richard Hughes, Flushing, N. Y., exhibited the carnation, Laddie. Strouts', Biddeford, Me., exhibited Carnations Sunshine. Donald and Improved Ward, Floral Hill Gardens, G. F. Neipp, prop., Chatham, N. J., exhibited the new pink carnation, Lucy.

For the exhibits, votes of thanks were extended to S. J. Goddard and Richard Hughes, for Carnation Laddie; Emil Savoy, for bougainvilleas; John Weston, for sweet peas; Strouts', for Carnations Sunshine. Donald and Improved Ward; Floral Hill Gardens, for Carnation Lucy, having previously scored; C. T. Guenther, for chrysanthemum.

The following list of new life members was announced: George Cottonas, Aubrey S. Nash and Costos Sakelos, New York; George Astus, Chicago; Henry Hentz, Jr., Madison, N. J., and Marius Matheron, Hempstead, N. Y.

SUPPLY IMPROVES WITH LOWER PRICES.

Trade during the past week has been good. The demand for floral work continues active and stock is plentiful, several growers having sent in good crops. Carnations of good quality are now arriving and prices run fairly low. Violets are better than they have been and are offered at moderate figures. The outlook for bulbous stock for the Easter trade is none too good, some growers having none at all and others but a very limited amount.

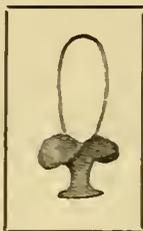

NOTES.

Johnson Bros., on Dorrance street, arranged a very attractive window last week, pot plants being the feature.

M. Iannotti, of Thornton, has been sending in some very good stock.

CLUB DISCUSSES ITEMS OF INTEREST

Discussions on trade subjects enlivened the meeting of the florists' club on the evening of February 6. Frederick A. Danker, of the club flower show committee, reported that the next exhibition will be held at the April instead of the March meeting. He gave as a reason that the time is not far from Easter and stock will be in much better condition. Mr. Danker asked the retailers to take part, and said that some out of town exhibits will be sought. The wives and women friends of the members will be welcome at the exhibit and refreshments will be served.

In the discussion about the prohibition of importation of horticultural and nursery stock into this country after June 1 next, Joseph Traudt, of Canajoharie, remarked that as a young man he worked in a large nursery in Germany. The owners tried repeatedly to grow azaleas, but never could equal the Belgian product because of the fact that the soil and weather conditions in Belgium favored the growing of the plants to a greater extent than in Germany. Mr. Traudt and others in the club were of the belief that the growing of azaleas in this country will meet with doubtful success until somebody locates the place with soil and climatic conditions equal to those of Belgium.

Frederick Danker reported that the retail florists of the city had lately formed an association and held two meetings. At the second meeting, the retailers decided to take a one-quarter page advertisement in the Albany Sunday Press, February 9, in the Albany Times-Union, February 11, and in the Evening Journal, February 12, all advising the use of flowers for St. Valentine's day. The cost will be $70.77, to be divided equally among the retailers. The advertisement will contain a cut and some of the material furnished by the publicity committee of the S. A. F.

The club unanimously agreed to send a check for $25 to be devoted to the 1919 publicity fund of the S. A. F. Mr. Danker said that the results of the advertising during 1918 were noticeable and that the retailer who has not observed a difference in his business is dull indeed.

NOTES.

Fred A. Danker, of this city, was on the programme for the meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs at Ithaca this week for a paper. His subject was, "Retail Trade." S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa., was down for a paper, "The Wholesale Trade."

A considerable drop in wholesale prices of flowers as compared with those that prevailed during the holidays is noticed by the trade.

Several Greeks from New York have opened a retail store at 37 South Pearl street. The local manager gives his name as Harry Matthews.

R. D.

CEDAR FALLS, IA.—Joseph Bancroft & Son, well known florists, in calling attention to the appropriateness of flowers for valentines, sent out a very attractive folder in colors, calling attention to suitable flowers and plants, with prices.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June, 1919.

VISITED CHICAGO: J. W. Ratekin, of the Ratekin Seed Co., Shenandoah, Ia.

SOUTHAMPTON - NEW YORK steamer service will help seedsmen's importations.

A. T. FERRELL, of A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, Mich., and wife are now at Belleair Heights, Fla.

THE California legislature now has a "pure seed" bill on the stocks, the old attempt to regulate germination by law.

WILLIAM MEGGATT, past president of the American Seed Trade Association, died February 8, age 83 years. Further particulars next week.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N. Y., have adopted the title of "America's First National Seedhouse" in the firm's newspaper advertising.

CLAY & SON, London, Eng., report January 21 that it will be some months before raw materials will be sufficiently plentiful to supply their fertilizer for export shipment.

VISITED PHILADELPHIA: John Bodger, of John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif.; F. L. Hogue, Ventura, Calif.; Mrs. V. Johansen, Los Angeles, Calif.; L. W. Wheeler, of Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif.

Two Chicago firms, Gundestrup's Seed Store, 4913 Milwaukee avenue, and the Everett R. Peacock Co., 4013 Milwaukee avenue, are advertising in the New York Sunday Sun to indicate to the effete east where to procure seeds.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Future licenses for the export of American goods to neutral countries, under a decision announced February 11 by the war trade board, will be good until used instead of bearing the limitation of 90 days imposed heretofore.

The following was received by cable from London by the department of agriculture: "Seed situation satisfactory here. Italian and French clover being received and re-exported. French supplies ample. No outlet apparent for carrot and beet here or on continent."

MT. PLEASANT, MICH.—In the matter of the dissolution of the Harris Brothers Seed Co., insolvent, Walter W. Russell, receiver, has notified creditors and stockholders that on February 18 in the circuit court of Isabella county, he will apply for an order directing that the assets of the concern shall be sold at private sale.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover market closed fairly steady February 10 at $22.65, registering a drop of $1.35 during the preceding seven days. February was quoted at $22.65 and March at $22.40. Timothy declined 25 cents during the week, cash being offered at $4.45, February $4.55, March $4.57½, April $4.60, May $4.60 and September $5.25.

THE Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa., says all indications point to a busy season, there being great activity in all departments. More gladiolus bulbs were sold in January than during the entire year past and there is a wonderful demand for cannas and dahlias as well as all flower seeds.

Gladiolus Imports Into Great Britain.

In consequence of numerous inquiries received respecting the possible importation of gladiolus bulbs into Great Britain, Charles H. Curtis, secretary of the British Florists' Federation, wrote to the Board of Trade on the subject, and the following reply, reprinted from the British Horticultural Advertiser, was received from Carew Robinson, deputy controller of import restriction:

"In reply to your letter of January 1, respecting the importation of gladiolus bulbs from the United States and Holland, I have to say that in the case of both countries the importation is prohibited, and that no concession is being granted in respect thereto."

Burpee Official Honored.

In appreciation of the loyal and efficient service of William F. Bougy, assistant treasurer of the W. Atlee Burpee Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a dinner was given in his honor February 6 by David Burpee, president, and W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., of the company, at the Union League club in that city. Managers of all the departments were present.

Mr. Bougy is the oldest employe of the company and this occasion celebrated his thirty-fifth anniversary in its employ. He came as an office boy and has remained all through the firm's development. At the time of his first employment the company kept no books. As business grew he opened the first set of accounts, some 70 years ago, and has had charge of the accounting department ever since, resulting in his promotion to his present position.

French Bulb Outlook for 1919.

We give below an analysis from a well-known jobbing firm in the bulb growing district of southern France, our readers to form their own conclusions as to the accuracy of the predictions made, keeping in mind, however, that there are few, indeed, possessed of the gift of prophecy. As regards the matter of a decline in prices, our correspondent reports that none may be expected during the year, and gives the following reasons:

"This year the planting of bulbs was done under normal conditions; but the lack of labor, which will continue to be felt as long as our troops are not demobilized, resulted in bulb crops not receiving proper attention and some items, such as Roman hyacinths, lillium and Narcissus Golden Spur, which require careful attention to their needs while growing, will suffer considerably from having been neglected.

"The English market will be completely open next season and we anticipate the volume of shipping to that country will be three to four times greater than in 1918, during which year it was almost insignificant, due to lack of transportation facilities.

"The cost of living has been increasing day by day, owing to the scarcity of foodstuffs, which will result in a further advance in the wages of the laborer, which, with the increased cost of fertilizers, will be additional reasons for higher prices asked by the growers." [Other countries look forward to early decrease in prices of food and labor.—Ed.]

"When peace is concluded, transportation limitations between the United States and France will certainly decrease, which will help the sale of our products and we therefore expect larger orders than in 1918. The disposal of our stock being easier, the demand may exceed the production."

Wheat Supply.

Just previous to the war rye was selling at 58 cents, barley at 50 cents, corn at 69 cents and oats at 37 cents. It took three years to put corn to a dollar. In figuring the world's wheat supply for 1919, there is in prospect 800,000,000 bushels of winter wheat and 350,000,000 bushels of spring wheat. Add to this 250,000,000 bushels for Canada and 150,000,000 bushels carry over for both countries gives 1,500,000,000 bushels. Deduct 650,000,000 bushels for home requirements, which leaves 900,000,000 bushels. If we export 1,000,000 bushels for every business day in the year, it still leaves 600,000,000 bushels, or two years more exportable surplus on hand.

Retail Catalogue Prices.

The following table from the Government Seed Reporter, giving the retail prices on vegetable seeds for the three years, 1919, 1918, 1917, has been compiled from the catalogues received from a large number of representative mail-order seedsmen. Although considerable variation may be found to exist between the prices being quoted by individual seedsmen and the average prices given in the table, the prices quoted by dealers for specially selected or improved strains of various kinds of seeds and all so-called novelties, were eliminated, and the average price of several of the standard varieties only of each kind of seed was taken.

Weeber & Don's Historical Calendar.

Weeber & Don, 114 Chambers street, New York, are distributing an attractive calendar, embodied in which is much of historical interest regarding the origin and important dates of the great war, covering the period from August 1, 1914, when Germany declared hostilities against Russia, until the signing of the armistice, November 11, 1918. The battle line at different times during the hostilities is shown by four excellent maps.

Forage Plant Seed Imports.

The following table prepared in the seed laboratory of the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, shows the amount of the various kinds of forage plant seeds subject to the seed importation act permitted entry into the United States during the month of January, 1918, as compared with January, 1919.

Burpee's Seeds Grow

Bedding plants and flowers to beautify the homes and gardens of the American public will be in greater demand this spring than ever before.

Every wide-awake florist should now be making preparations to make good on the shortage that is going to be so noticeable this spring.

Bedding plants of every variety are going to be scarce. This scarcity is largely due to the lack of help and the fuel shortage. There are, however, a great many varieties that can be easily grown from seed sown now, and this will help to make up the shortage of Geranium and other popular bedding plants.

The most suitable varieties to grow from seeds and those which always do well in American gardens are: Ageratum, Alyssum, Asters, Begonias, Celosia, Centaurea, Coleus, Petunia, Salvia, Verbena, Vinca and Zinnia.

The House of Burpee is famous for its superior strains of flower seeds. The stocks of some of the varieties mentioned are short. Consequently, we advise ordering early.

Choice Florists' Flower Seeds for Present Sowing

AGERATUM. Tom Thumb, Blue. Tom Thumb, White. Admirably adapted for bedding, blooming freely until frost.
ALYSSUM. Little Gem, Lilac Queen. Sweet Alyssum.
ASTERS. All the best new and standard varieties. See Catalogue.
BEGONIAS for Bedding. Seed sown now will make perfect plants for spring sales.
Duchess of Edinburgh. White edged rose.
Gracilis Alba. Pure white.
Prima Donna. Coral-pink.
Vernon. Deep red.
Vulcan. Fiery-scarlet.
CALENDULA. Burpee's Improved Strains are unexcelled. The flowers are fully double and of great size.
Lemon Queen. The best lemon.
Orange King. The best orange.

CELOSIA. Our Fordhook Strain of the plumed Celosia Magnificent is, we believe, the finest in the country.
Carmine. Rich carmine-crimson.
Golden Yellow. Rich Yellow.
Orange-Red. Reddish-orange.
Reddish-Plum. Warm plum.
All colors Mixed.

CENTAUREA. The following are foliage varieties or Dusty Millers:
Candilissima. Silvery-white foliage.
Gymnocarpa. Finely cut silvery leaves.

MIGNONETTE. This favorite has been a Burpee Specialty for many years. The following are the varieties we offer:
Goliath. Massive spikes, coppery-red florets.
Machet. Large florets of gray color.
Giant Bouquet. Fine for cutting.
Common Sweet.

PETUNIA. The American bedding plant par excellence.
Balcony White. The best white bedder.
Balcony Blue. The best blue.
Balcony Rose. The best rose colored.
Burpee's Defiance. The largest of all ruffled Petunias.
Giants of California. Our own growing.
Stacks, Ten Weeks. The indispensable "bedder" for cool sections.
 Largest Flowering Globe Pyramidal in the following separate colors:
Crimson Rose, Dark Blue, Pure White, Light Blue, Golden Chamis, Salmon-Rose, Canary-yellow, Darkest Crimson, Lilac-Rose.

VINCA. The Madagascan Periwinkle is excellent for pots or bedding.
Rosen, Rosen Alba and Alba Para.
CHRYSANTHEMUM. Burpee's Fordhook Strain of Early-flowering Single Perennial varieties. Sown during spring the plants will bloom from August until frost. Excellent for cutting.

BURPEE'S SWEET PEAS ARE KNOWN THE WORLD OVER. Sow now for Decoration Day.
BURPEE'S EARLY-FLOWERING SPENCERS. See catalogue for full list and description of varieties

DREER'S FINE SWEET PEAS

We offer below a line of the very best Orchid-flowered and Grandiflora sorts. For complete list including the Early Forcing kinds see our current Wholesale Catalogue, copies free to florists on request.

Orchid-Flowered or Spencer Sweet Peas

This type is distinguished from the grandiflora sorts by the extraordinary size of their flowers and by the standard being crinkled and wavy. They usually bear four blossoms on a stem, and are as easy to grow as the commonest sorts. Owing to their being shy seeders, they will always be higher in price than the grandifloras.

OTHER AMERICAN ASTERS

Heart of France. Heart of France opens red as the purest ruby, deepens with age and retains its remarkable beauty to the very end. The petals appear strikingly changeable, showing now a glow and sheen quite unique, now a soft, warm velvety texture.

Lavender Gem.....	The flowers are of a true lavender shade and the petals are gracefully curled and twisted.....	.25	2.00

Peerless Pink. The flowers are globular in shape many five inches across, of a most delightful and pleasing rich shell pink.

Crimson Giant. This shade has been one which has seemed to lack intensity of color, but in this variety the blood red blossom is particularly bright.

Sensation. The reddest of all red asters, the color being a dark rich garnet or ox-blood red which glistens in the sunshine like a live coal; free branching.

Mammoth Non-Lateral Branching White. 2 ft. This is without doubt the largest Aster on the market. Many of the flowers will measure four inches in diameter. The plants grow about two feet high with a low branching habit, and the flowers which are borne on non lateral stems are full, with petal curled and incurved, making the flowers appear like a cross between an Ostrich Feather and a Giant Branching.

Mammoth Non-Lateral Branching Blue. 2 ft. Very like the preceding except the flowers are a medium shade of blue.

American Beauty. Rose Pink. 2½ ft. Is similar in type of flower and growth to the well known Late Branching Astera, but differs in that all the large blossoms are produced on much longer and heavier stems. It is the first of a new strain of late branching habit, and of robust growth. The flowers are fully double to the last and are a most lovely shade of bright carmine-rose, almost identical with the World Famous American Beauty Rose. Each plant forms a perfect bush.

Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President; C. W. Waid, Grand Rapids, Mich., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

MOOSEHEART, ILL.—The range at the home of the Loyal Order of Moose, closed last fall due to labor and fuel shortage, will be opened about March 1, devoted to vegetables.

ALBANY, N. Y.—The market gardeners' association of this city, dissatisfied with conditions at the public market, are planning to combine with growers in Troy and Schenectady to establish a market of their own.

OWING to the destruction of two bridges by washouts, the shipment of tomatoes from Los Mochis, Mexico, the crop, nearly all of which is marketed in the United States, has been delayed three to four weeks. The crop this year is estimated at 900 cars.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 11.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $5.00 to $5.50; celery, western, crate, $9.00 to $10.00; head lettuce, crate, $4.50 to $5.00; radishes, per dozen bunches, 50 to 60 cents; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $8.00 to $9.00.

New York, February 10.—Celery (state), per case, $4.00 to $7.00; cucumbers, $1.00 to $2.50 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.50 per basket; tomatoes, per pound, .20 to .50 cents; lettuce, per package, $1.50 to $4.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $5.00.

Soil Fertility.

At the recent meeting of the Ohio State Vegetable Growers' Association, probably the most interesting study was that delivered by the Rhode Island experiment station, on their attempts to substitute either green crops or fertilizers for manure, or reduce the amount of manure by adding chemicals. The results, so far, are exceedingly interesting to us, for the reason that their work covers the same ground we have gone over ourselves. The lecturer admitted that the proper way to make an experiment is to make it once only, for then you know something, for if you make it several times the knowledge you have gained is likely to receive a big jolt. In other words, so many factors enter into an experiment of this nature that the results are never the same.

Yet, admitting this great difficulty, there are some general points which indicate the way. We will briefly mention these as they appeared to us.

1. That celery makes a very indifferent crop, following a green crop plowed in. In other words, green manuring is not desirable immediately before a celery crop.

2. That cabbage can be grown with chemicals as well as with manure.

3. That 1,500 pounds of good truck fertilizer in many cases is equal to 15 tons of horse manure; that is, for the immediate crop under way, not considering after effects.

4. That for spring crops, nitrogen was plainly the controlling factor, but for fall crops, potash gave better results.

5. That beets, lettuce, celery and cabbage need large amounts of lime in addition to plant-food.

6. That some crops will not do well following a certain crop grown before, no matter what fertilization is used; that is, we must know more about crop succession than we do at present.

These experiments were started, owing to the threatening shortage of manure, and are therefore of general interest. The speaker mentioned that eastern growers are now paying $4 per ton for manure and at that price the amount available is small. This condition is likely to apply to all parts of this country in the near future. Therefore, every grower should prepare for the coming change.

MARKETMAN.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports received by the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, for the period February 4-10, indicate a lighter movement with prices tending to recover. Potato markets for northern stock gained quite sharply, while other markets continued weak. No. 1 northern white stock, sacked, nearly regained the decline of the previous week, reaching $1.75-$1.80 per 100 pounds for carlots at Chicago, about 25 cents above the closing price of the former period. Wisconsin shipping points advanced five cents, closing strong at $1.50-$1.60 f. o. b. Michigan shipping points also closed strong. Cabbage markets also showed some recovery, steadying to a range of $20-$25 per ton bulk f. o. b. producing sections and advancing $2 in consuming sections to a range of $20-$30. Wisconsin Holland seed stock was $25-$30 per ton in middlewestern consuming markets and Florida stock closed at 80-90 cents per hamper in producing sections. Onions were nearly steady with a range about as quoted last week. Western New York shipping markets quoted $1.90-$2.10 f. o. b. for the best sacked yellow and red stock. Celery was irregular with California Golden Heart at 80-85 cents per dozen in the El Monte district, while Florida stock ranged steady at $4.50-$5.00 at shipping points and advanced to $5.50-$6.50 in northern markets. Florida head lettuce ruled $2.25 per hamper f. o. b. shipping points and was steady in northern consuming markets at $3.75-$4.75. Bears showed further declines.

Boston.

BUSINESS GOOD AND PRICES LOWER.

A great change has come over the market, with prices about cut in half and the demand especially good. The plant trade was never better. Easter lilies hold firm at $25 per 100 and are very scarce.

NOTES.

A large number of former employes who have been relieved from military service found their positions awaiting them and are now at work with better spirits than ever.

Large shipments of roses are arriving in this market from Nahant growers. Among the best are the Killarneys, Ophelia, Ward and Richmond.

The New England Floral Supply Co. has added a new truck to its delivery system.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-four annual convention will be held at Chicago in 1919.

"LANDSCAPE ADVISER" is what they call them now.

It is reported that there will be no crab apple seed exported from France.

DENVER, COLO.—Wm. Hennenhoef, formerly of Pueblo, has opened for business as a landscape gardener at 2116 East Seventeenth avenue.

GEORGE BUNYARD, the well known nurseryman and pomologist, of Maidstone, Kent, Eng., died January 22, age 78 years. The firm of which he was the head was founded by his grandfather in 1796. Harry A. Bunyard, of New York is a nephew of the deceased.

BALTIMORE, MD.—The establishment formerly owned by H. Clay Primrose, has been incorporated as the Loudon Nurseries. The directors are: H. Clay Primrose, president and general manager; R. D. Hopkins, vice-president; W. G. McLaren, secretary; W. Smith Chambers, treasurer. The authorized capital stock is $50,000.

Memorial Trees for Soldiers Donated.

A merchant of Rockford, Ill., C. J. Boehland, will donate a tree to be planted as a memorial for every soldier or sailor from Winnebago county who died in service. He will also provide a metal plate to be attached to the tree, giving the name and character of the service of the dead hero. He urges that other counties in the state take similar action.

European Borer Control Urged.

The first step to cope with the European borer, a dangerous insect pest that has gained a foothold in certain areas of eastern Massachusetts and whose ravages it is feared may extend over the United States and destroy valuable crops, was a resolution adopted by the New Hampshire legislature and presented to the United States senate by Senator Moses, urging congress to make immediate appropriations whereby adequate measures of suppression of this pest may be undertaken without delay by proper federal authorities. B. F. L.

National Apple Show.

At a general meeting at the Hotel LaSalle, Chicago, February 7, attended by about 30 representative apple growers from a number of states, plans were formulated for a national show at Chicago next fall, which will become an annual event. It is announced that prominent growers in 20 states have already expressed their interest and will make exhibits. In addition to a president and secretary, a committee of five, chosen from the principal producing sections of the country, will be named, and in whose hands all details of the management of the exhibition will be vested. The interest shown in the Illinois first great apple show, staged in the Morrison Hotel, Chicago, last November, augurs well for the coming exhibition, which it is planned shall be truly national in its scope. A. M. Augustine, Normal, Ill., secretary of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association, to whose untiring efforts in behalf of the show last fall much of its success must be attributed, is one of the most interested workers for the big event this year.

Illinois State Nurserymen's Association.

At the closing session of the second annual convention of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association at the Hotel LaSalle, Chicago, mention of which, including the programme, was made in last week's issue, page 182, officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: Guy A. Bryant, Princeton, president; A. E. Nelson, Chicago, vice-president; A. M. Augustine, Normal, secretary; Charles Leesley, Chicago, treasurer. F. W. Von Oven, Naperville, who has given much attention to the San Jose scale and wheat rust, made a very interesting talk on these diseases, devoting considerable time to ways and means for the extermination of Berberis vulgaris and its susceptible varieties and mahonia, urging thorough cooperation, both with the authorities and individuals, pointing out that it was only through coordinate effort that relief could be secured, especially in view of the fact of the meager appropriation made by the state to the bureau of plant industry for carrying out its work. Mr. Von Oven's presentation of the situation was listened to with much interest and the points were a matter of discussion. Among the later arrivals at the convention in addition to the list of visitors previously published, was C. R. Burr, Manchester, Mass.

Plant Embargo Endorsed

BY ILLINOIS NURSERYMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

Perhaps you will be interested in the subjoined, which is a copy of the resolution recently passed by the Illinois Nurserymen's Association, duly assembled in convention, February 5-6. This shows which way the wind blows. This also shows that sentiment is slowly but surely developing in favor of the embargo as promulgated, as a valuable protection to strictly agricultural, horticultural, forestry and nursery interests.

THE D. HILL NURSERY CO., INC.,
Dundee, Ill., February 10, 1919.

GREETINGS

To the Honorable Chairman and Members of the Federal Horticultural Board,

Washington, D. C.

We, the members of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association, duly assembled in convention, February 5, 1919, heartily endorse the action of your board in establishing the federal quarantine No. 37, restricting the importation of nursery stock and other plants and seeds on and after June 1, 1919.

Realizing that this quarantine is the result of your thorough investigation, we request that this quarantine be made permanent so as to safeguard the development of the agricultural, horticultural, and forestry interests of America, as well as the nurserymen and growers, propagating and distributing such nursery stock, plants and seeds as are being excluded by this quarantine.

ILLINOIS NURSERYMEN'S ASS'N.

Farm After The War.

The world is in delirium. The world-war fever makes it so. Business is abnormal and subnormal. Some industries are at high speed and others at low tide. Price levels have mounted high. Wages have climbed to dizzy heights in shop, factory and furnace. The city has lured the human moth into its belly. The reaction is as sure as Nature's law that day follows night.

After the war, what? Will the fever leave the patient emaciated and lean? Will city industry be hit and hurt? To a large extent—yes. The one industry that is always safe to follow is the husbandry of the farm.

When the war has had its way and waste, nations will turn instinctively to the soil as the source of natural wealth and prosperity. The fires of many furnaces will die out. Countless chimneys will cease to vomit smoke. The makers of machinery and munitions of war will languish and cease to fatten. The farm and farmer will be the cornerstone upon which will be builded a new nation, with new ideals of living. The meal-ticket grower will have a front seat and be in the limelight as never before.

Own the land. Wed the soil. Tie to the farm. The tide will reverse and flow from city to rural regions. Think it over. Get a vision of the future.—Toledo Blade.

STOCK SCARCE AND OF MEDIUM QUALITY.

Market conditions show but little change, with the supply limited, the quality not up to standard and prices high, but nevertheless, due to prevailing conditions stock moves freely. Carnations show a little improvement but roses are scarce. Sweet peas are getting better. Some jonquils and tulips are coming in, and as novelties, are finding good demand. Pot plants and baskets are popular. The prospects for St. Valentine's day business are satisfactory.

NOTES.

H. Kusik & Co. have been experiencing difficulty in getting enough good stock to meet requirements. The daily receipts usually are depleted early in the morning. This firm is still behind in orders in the wire work department.

Arthur Newell has no complaint to make regarding business. His supply is gone by the end of the day. He is making preparations for a good St. Valentine's day trade.

W. J. Barnes had a big week of funeral work.

A. F. Barbe reports excellent business.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Early Annuals.

During the warm days of June the carnations deteriorate very rapidly and there is often a great need for some flower to take their place, and an early bench of asters is a great boon at such a time, especially for those who have a good call for funeral work. Seed planted during February and grown in pots or flats until after Easter can be then transplanted to the benches in which the Easter crops are grown and they will be in bloom at the time when most desired. A good strain of early flowering varieties, either Comet or Victoria, should be selected and with good care a paying crop is assured. A sowing of candytuft by March 1 will also produce plants that can be benched after Easter in the same manner and a good cut for Memorial day be had. The strains of White Giant candytuft now offered make splendid spikes for the filling in of sprays at that great flower day. There are many annuals that can be grown for early spring blooming that are greatly appreciated by the trade, among which might be mentioned calendulas, nasturtiums, scabiosa, sweet sultans and bachelor's buttons.

Dahlias.

The forcing of early dahlias has been practiced successfully by growers the last few years, and roots started at this time will produce flowers for Memorial day and during June. A good, deep bench, in a house not too warm, should be selected, and while the plants are great feeders in the open ground, it is better not to have the soil too rich in the houses, for the plants grow very tall inside, and with a rich soil make a strong, rampant growth, which will not bloom as early. They can be fed when the buds begin to form by giving them a mulch of half-decayed manure, which will materially assist the flowering and also provide a covering that will prevent evaporation. They will require but little attention except that long, strong stakes will be necessary to keep the plants growing erect, to which they should be firmly tied, and then disbudded to produce the better blooms. Any varieties of which it is desired to increase the stock can be planted in the house and the young growths made into cuttings, which root easily at this time.

Cannas.

One of the most decorative beds for summer, especially if it is of large size, is a bed of blooming cannas, for they are very showy and will bloom throughout the summer until frost cuts them down, and the varieties have been greatly improved during the last decade. To make the best showing the plants should be started early enough to have good, strong stock at bedding-out time in May and June. The plants should be started by March 1 and now is the time to procure stock of varieties of which the grower is short or which he has not on hand. The clumps when removed from the winter storage should have all the old soil shaken off, the dried up stalk and roots cut away. They are then cut up into small pieces and if the stock is plentiful two or three eyes can be left to each piece, but where stock is short they are cut up to single eyes, although with single eyes many weak plants will be produced. Often the clumps have started into growth and where this has happened the eyes should be sorted, those already started being planted together and the dormant eyes by themselves. Have boxes all ready and place an inch of soil on the bottom and then place the divisions on this closely together and cover with light, sifted soil and then water thoroughly. Keep the varieties separate and properly labeled, each box to contain but one variety and the name plainly marked on the box, for labels are often lost or misplaced. Place the boxes in a warm location—where hot water heating is used they can be placed on the return pipes. In two or three weeks the plants will have made sufficient roots to be placed in 3½ or 4-inch pots, when they can be grown on in a house with a temperature of 50° to 60°. In planting cannas outside it should always be remembered that they are very tender and should not be set out until all danger of late frost is past.

Marguerites.

As the warm days of spring approach the marguerite plants will bloom profusely and those in pots will have, to a great extent, exhausted the plant food in the soil, so to keep up the size of the flower and length of stem watering with liquid manure will be necessary. Liquid cow manure can be safely used in frequent waterings with no danger of any injury if the plants are in a healthy condition. The flowers should be cut daily and placed in water; they will keep much longer than if allowed to remain on the plants, where they quickly fade if not picked when the warm spring days come on. This should be prevented, for it not only gives the plant an untidy appearance but takes the strength of the plants and the following flowers are often much shorter in stem. A few well bloomed plants are very decorative at Easter, especially in churches, where they make a splendid showing. Propagation for next year's stock should now be carried on; the cuttings root easily and there are plenty to be obtained at this time. As soon as rooted they should be grown on in good soil, and to secure the best results another year given the best of culture.

Spiræas.

The spiræas are always a very useful plant at Easter, but they are classed among the cheaper plants at that time, so should be grown in such a way that they do not occupy valuable space any more than necessary. They should be brought into a cool house by the middle of January and until the foliage begins to grow can be placed along the edge of the walks if room is not available, but they must not be left standing in this location too long, for when the leaves begin to unfold they quickly draw toward the light and a plant growing to one side of the pot will be the result. So as soon as growth starts they should be placed on the bench in full light. They can be grown quite close together for some time, but when the foliage begins to touch that of the plant beside it they should be spaced out and given room enough for the plants to grow shapely. Spiræas require a large quantity of water during their entire culture, especially those that are potted in as small a pot as possible, which is the general custom with all growers. To make the large specimens, two or three clumps are planted in the same pot when started. These will make large plants for church decorations at Easter. If the plants are grown in a house which is to be fumigated by tobacco smoke they should either be removed from the house or well covered with papers; the foliage quickly burns when subjected to tobacco smoke and the plants are blemished.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

Carnations are now at their best, and as prices have declined materially, are good stock to carry in quantity and feature. The way to sell a thing is to push it; a variety of stock is desirable in limited lots, but when any particular flower is plentiful, and good money can be made by selling it in quantity, that is the flower to carry. Carnations are not handled in many stores, except just a few for those who may ask for them. Retailers say the reason is because they do not keep or give satisfaction to their customers. Others have an altogether different experience, saying that except at holiday seasons, carnations will keep for a week and still be good to work up. Sewer, coal and illuminating gases are all fatal to the carnation. In some ice boxes, they go to sleep over night; in others, they keep a week. In a cool greenhouse shed, we have known carnations to open out and develop and at the end of two weeks, still look good, except that they had paled out or lost color. In the retail store, carnations can be kept satisfactorily in a box open to the outside air. A number of stores have a stock storage room or box, in the rear of the shop, in which to keep their surplus flowers. In the winter season, this requires little, if any ice, a window admitting cold, fresh air sufficient to keep any desired temperature.

Iris Tingitana.

Flowers Six Inches in Diameter.

The man who does not handle this fine stock, because it will not keep, had better experiment a little, and find out what there is in or about his store that makes this foul atmosphere injurious, not only to the flowers, but to all who occupy the premises. When once discovered and corrected, all will then be plain sailing and profit.

Sprays, baskets and wreath decorations can be made just as effective with carnations as with roses, as at the price, many more can be used. Set designs that require short stemmed flowers are fast going out. When they must be made, good stiff prices should be the rule on account of the valuable time they consume in their preparation, together with the quantity of flowers required. A successful retail florist stated recently that most storekeepers were afraid of their trade. He had always made it a point to push the flower, that at the time, he could buy to sell to the best advantage. It was the salesman's business to tell the customers what they wanted. They might have this or that in their mind, but what he offered, or the way in which he talked it up, made it just the flower for them, and they went out entirely satisfied, without knowing they had suited the convenience of the store.

The coming week will give a good opportunity to try out this idea. Look over the market and select the quantity flower,—sweet peas, carnations, lilies, freesias, snapdragons, whatever can be handled to the best money advantage, either singly or in combination. Then, with this stock in hand, or readily obtainable, feature it. Make up a sample spray, finished in every detail, ready packed for delivery, also a decorated galax or magnolia wreath. These are to be shown to prospective customers, or given a chance to be seen in the window. These are to be the dominating stocks, for either funeral or festive occasions for this period.

Do not buy anything unless you are convinced that it will work in with your economic campaign. Better prices are always secured on quantity lots and the dealer is always open to a bid on stock that is more or less plentiful. The careful buyer is sure that he is getting rock bottom quotations. Buying and selling is a game in which each player tries to get the advantage. The buyer who stands ready with cash in hand, or who is there with a check the moment the statement is presented, is fully 10 or even 20 per cent ahead of Mr. Slowpay, when it comes to price or preference.

Push the Florists' Telegraph Delivery. Just think, you have the whole of this great United States for your market. Let your trade, and all that pass your store, know that you can deliver flowers for them in any city or town from Maine to California as quickly and as satisfactorily as if the flowers were sent to their own home. If every florist would feature this idea, and demonstrate its possibilities, it would so increase the business as to be of incalculable benefit to the entire trade.

Iris Tingitana.

Iris Tingitana, first offered in the market during the winter of 1916, one of the most beautiful forcing cut flowers of recent years, and now proving deservedly popular, is in effect a glorified Spanish Iris, the flowers being much larger and borne on long, stiff stems varying in length from 18 to 36 inches. The color is a beautiful blue shading to lilac and has been described as a lilac purple. The flowers, which have excellent lasting qualities, are from five to six inches in diameter, a bright yellow spot covering half of the surface of each of the three broad petals, and with their long stems are very decorative in vase and basket arrangements. If the stems are kept well in water and the flowers protected from drafts, they will last several days. With its beautiful coloring and orchid-like effect, it holds a place of its own during January and February, or until the larkspur, with its long light blue spikes becomes a formidable competitor in March.

Strong, vigorous bulbs can be brought in for Christmas, but they must be on hand early and started at once to make the holidays. The percentage of blooms will not be very large in the first batches. The bulbs are treated much the same as the Spanish iris, planted in flats and kept under the benches in a cool house and afterwards moved for forcing into a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees at night. They will not stand frost, as their native habitat is Tangiers in Northern Africa. They were introduced into Europe in 1873. Good, strong bulbs or corms only should be forced. The best stock comes from France. Holland grown bulbs have not been found as productive as the French. There is but a limited stock of this fine variety, but a number of growers are working it up as fast as possible. There are many varieties of iris, and the favor with which Tingitana has been received will no doubt result in the trying of a number, in the hopes of finding others equally as good. The flowers in the accompanying illustration were six inches in diameter.

THE CARNATION.

Seasonable Work.

The best time for the propagation of the plants for the coming season's planting is fast drawing to a close. There are still two or three weeks left when the cuttings will root readily and a good stand can be assured, but after that time, as the season advances into March, it becomes more difficult to root the cuttings and there is not time enough remaining to make strong established plants ready for planting out the end of April or early in May. Therefore, to be able to have a good stock of young plants to meet the requirements for the season's planting, any propagating yet to be done should be attended to without further delay. Do not make the mistake of estimating too close on the number of plants needed, it being a good plan to allow considerable of a surplus for selection or doubling up, because it is not reasonable to expect that all of the plants will grade No. 1's and it is far better to have some plants left over after the benches are filled than to run short; also, there is every indication that field grown plants of carnations will be in good demand when the time comes for planting into the houses. Cuttings put in the sand from this time on, will need particularly close attention for them to root in good shape. Owing to the more moderate weather, there is not the need of as much bottom heat under the sand bed, and unless the temperature of the bed is raised a few degrees, there will be several days at a time when the underneath heat cannot be used, which will make the cuttings slower to take root.

As the weather becomes brighter and more ventilation is used, it will be necessary to protect the cuttings from draughts by shading closer. Also, with less bottom heat, the sand should not be kept as moist, but held a little to the dry side, allowing the cuttings enough moisture to keep them plump, but guarding against a saturated condition, which quickly causes the cuttings to rot or make weak roots. As soon as the cuttings become rooted, they should be potted, boxed or benched in soil, whichever is the method followed for growing on the cuttings. Personally, the writer is greatly in favor of potting up the young carnations, believing that they do better and are more easily handled than when benched or grown in flats; also, there is not the danger of them becoming overwatered at the roots, which is a very important point to consider, because when the soil at the roots is allowed to remain very wet for any length of time, the growth of the plants is thick and succulent, whereas when care is taken in the watering so as to hold the soil a little to the dry side, it remains fresh and sweet for the roots to work in. The growth of the plant is also more robust and the shoots branch out freely.

Other essential factors necessary for the well being of young carnation plants are a cool, light place for them to grow in, ample ventilation on every favorable occasion, and particular attention to keep them clean of insects. After the young plants become established in the soil, they grow rapidly, and in a very short while they will be in need of attention as regards topping back the growth. This should be attended to whenever needed, so as to assist the plants to make nice bushy stock for planting out.

As we approach spring, the conditions pertaining to the care of the carnation plants now flowering in the benches are changing with each passing week. As the days lengthen and the temperature rises, the growth of the plants becomes more active. They are now at the height of their productiveness and our principal aim should be to encourage them to continue along the same lines. The plants are now recovering from the soft growth made during the midwinter days, and if given careful treatment, will respond with stiffer stems and better keeping qualities in the flowers. Ventilate freely every day when the weather will permit and be particular to maintain an even temperature. The weather is now such that the plants can be given an occasional syringing to keep the red spider in check.

The demand for first class flowers at good prices still continues, so there is no reason for any to be left on the plants until they get beyond their best. The flowers are worth taking care of, and should be cut as soon as they are ready. After cutting, select out the flowers according to their grade, and take particular pains to see that they are sent to the market in the best possible condition. At this season of the year, the insects increase rapidly and unless frequent fumigating with the insecticide is carried on, the plants will soon become infested.

The Florists' Success.

Just to think that the florists' body, as a whole, have united to develop their business in a more national way by using national magazines to exploit our slogan "Say It with Flowers," to the extent that we are going to expend $100,000 for our national publicity campaign. What a vision for florists as contrasted to a year ago, and it is only the beginning of a brilliant future for all who are interested. If the florists are to continue on the basis in which we are co-operating, it means ultimately one big success, especially to those who undertake to help spread our new propaganda, because by virtue of interest, morally and financially, all must benefit.

Now, in furthering this campaign of "Say It with Flowers," we show evidence of our confidence in our business by doubling the appropriation after one year's trial, and who will not agree that this optimistic step, taken by the florists generally, will be more productive of uses for flowers by the public because the florists themselves will be more encouraged, and so will the circle widen more and more until our industry will have come into its own, "the best business in the world." From a standpoint of environment and beneficial results, flowers and plants create by their influence.

It is well said that people partake of the character of their surroundings. Now it is up to us to raise the character of our surroundings by way of making a bigger and better field for our product and this can best be accomplished by tying up to our national publicity campaign first; and secondly, by doing locally what is now being done nationally, that of selling more flowers to more people than ever before.

Now, if you will sell the public, will you not sell to yourself the one essential cog in the wheel of further progress, the subscription to the publicity campaign? Give it now, and show by your evidences, your desire to participate in the activity that everybody agrees is the first big thing we have all been asked to co-operate with. Will we raise that $100,000? It is up to you.

HENRY PENN,

Chairman Nat'l Pub. Campaign.

National Publicity for Flowers.

In the notes furnished by our promotion bureau last week, was the schedule covering the national magazine advertising planned for the spring campaign. In that schedule, a page and a half page were apportioned to the Saturday Evening Post. It is disappointing to have to change our plans in respect to this publication. The proprietors of this magazine decline to accept advertising necessitating such large blocks of space until their mechanical conditions are such as to enable them to take care of more than pre-contracted space. There is a limit to everything, even the mechanical possibilities for turning out popular magazines. In the emergency our committee have arranged to use two other magazines which more than fill the circulation gap. But there is a lesson to come from the turn-down, one for the trade, rather than our executive forces.

None of us realizes the immense amount of foresight and preparedness which the modern magazine of large circulation must bring to bear on the publication of each number. The proprietors must know weeks, perhaps months ahead, exactly what an edition is to demand in the way of pages, and mechanical preparation is made accordingly. It is big work, and the problems are always onerous. Now, here is the lesson. We are desirous of having our publicity appear at times when we think it will be most beneficial. To fulfill our desires we must act betimes. If our committees have not the assurance of financial support sufficient to warrant the making of contracts three or more months ahead, they lose out on prestige in so far as selection of mediums is concerned. With them it is not a matter merely of spending money; it is rather a question of getting the most for the money they expend.

The committees are grateful for the continued, and, in the majority of cases, added support of a large number of florists whose vision is clear enough to see that the work of our campaign has actually, and without question, benefited the florist trade to an enormous extent. It is known that thousands in the trade have not yet subscribed a cent toward this greatest of all movements for our common good. If they will but come into line—there is no dictation as to what their contributions shall be—our committees can better look ahead and make arrangements which bespeak greater proficiency in their service. It is, of course, comforting to know that a certain sum can be expected, but this is not a case where personal liability can be pledged, and we should have our drawing needs in hand.

We are at the end, almost, of the first two months of 1919, and we have, altogether, $100,000 to raise for this year's publicity. Of this amount about $30,000 is already raised. The balance is big, but heavy with possibilities for the florists' trade. As Wallace R. Pierson said at a recent trade meeting: "Through this publicity we are entering the 'promised land,' where we shall get the best from our endeavors."

Freesias.

One of the best greenhouse crops of the present season has been Freesia Purity, the bulbs of which cost little, if any, over the stock of a year ago, while prices of the cut flowers averaged 100 per cent better.

The bulbs or corms are planted about the middle of August, 10 to a six-inch pot. These are placed outside in cold frames where they make a good root and top growth. They are brought in during October, being placed on tables following early chrysanthemums as the latter are cut out. They are generally all in by the middle of the month or before danger of frost. They are then staked with 12-inch hyacinth sticks, one string around, and placed on the bench about two inches between the rows. They are kept and brought along at a carnation temperature. Carnation wires are then run the length of the bed and divided into squares with string from one side of the bed to the other, much the same as for carnations. As the plants increase in size, this net work is raised about six inches at a time, until the flower buds set. This single network, raised to support the growth as necessary, is found satisfactory, and offers no obstruction when cutting. Chicken wire netting is used by some growers, but the meshes are so close that foliage often catches and makes it difficult to pull out the sprays when cut, and on wide benches it is difficult to get at the center rows.

About 20,000 bulbs are forced each season by one grower in the vicinity of Philadelphia, Pa. This year he had 10,000 fresh California stock, and the balance, bulbs left over from last season, which if well cared for, produce very good flowers. The California bulbs are stronger and come along faster than the home grown, the first cutting being on January 24, the last being marketed before February 10. The stock was exceptionally fine, large heads of bloom being carried on straight strong stems, 24 to 30 inches in length. The sprays are not cut until they carry three open flowers.

The accompanying illustration from a photograph taken February 5, is of a table of home grown bulbs brought from California and flowered last year. These are 24 inches in height and carry a splendid crop of buds and flowers just coming in. When cut off, the pots are placed on the floor of the house under the tables until thoroughly dried, when they are shaken out and the bulbs stored in shallow boxes ready for planting when August comes again.

Freeseias Improved.

The past winter has been the best ever for this popular cape bulb. Since the development of the variety, Purity, and the production of the bulbs or corms in quantity, on the Pacific coast, there has been added to the grower's list, a dependable forcing stock that makes one of his best winter rotation crops.

Freeseias were first imported into this country for commercial purposes by Steen Edwards, of Bridgeton, N. J. This was about 1880. He was quite successful with them in a small way. Richard Bagg, living in Bridgeton at that time, who was fond of hybridizing fruits and flowers, and who has several good things to his credit, the most notable being the tea rose named in honor of Wm. R. Smith, also took up the freesia and continued the work of hybridizing with a limited stock. He always aimed for size of flower and purity of color. The accompanying illustration is of a vase of 12 sprays, nearly all cut with short stems or without foliage, in order not to impair the ripening of the bulbs. As arranged, the bunch measured 16 inches across the front. None of the flowers on these sprays measure less than two and a quarter inches in diameter, most of them two and one-half to three inches. The heads of bloom measure four and one-half to five inches in length and carry from eight to ten buds and flowers. They are all pure white, without a trace of yellow. On all the large bulbs, the stems are stiff and strong, holding the heads of bloom erect. It will take some time to work up a commercial stock of this fine variety, but the market is here now, for just such a novelty, which is sure to bring a handsome return.

Outlook for Floriculture in 1919.

Paper by S. S. Pennock, read at the meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs, Ithaca, N. Y., February 11.

The subject assigned to me on this auspicious occasion, namely, "The Outlook for Floriculture in 1919," is a pleasing one to me for more than one reason. In the first place, as you are no doubt aware, floriculture has been my business from boyhood, but it has been more than that to me—it has been my pleasure also, and my spare hours have mostly been spent in the delightful company of my roses and other denizens of my garden, and my next best delight to communing with my flowers, is to talk about them to my friends.

Another reason why this subject is a pleasing one to me at this time is because the world has been passing through such a cataclysm the past five years that mankind had but little thought to spare for the beautiful in life. But now that the dark cloud is passing and the sunshine is beginning to glimmer through, once more, the outlook is so much improved that one can discourse with a clear conscience on the subject of floriculture. We may even have a spray of apple blossoms on the breakfast table in 1919—a thing tabooed during the war. The idea back of the taboo was, of course, an economic one, namely, that the apples were the important thing, and that food for the body was more desirable than a feast for the soul.

Now the indications all along the line in ornamental horticulture, trees, shrubs, flowers, conservatories, landscaping, and the many allied industries appertaining thereto, show signs of awakening, and good judges are of opinion that the year will be the greatest ever experienced, and that the pent-up soul of man will rebound from long confinement and go a-gardening once more with redoubled energy. Cabbage has been king, but Queen Rosa will now ascend the throne.

In regard to the branch of floriculture with which I am most intimately associated in a business way, that is, the wholesaling of cut flowers, I may say that it has been a long time since we have had more encouraging prospects than the outlook for 1919. The trade has gone through a great many vicissitudes, labor and coal troubles probably being the florist's most serious troubles. The conditions have been very materially changed since the signing of the armistice, and every thing is getting back to a better businesslike basis. The cost of doing business, though, remains high, and probably will remain high for some time to come. The only thing that will bring prices down very materially would be a panic, and that, of course, we do not want, but we do think the cost of doing business will lessen as the months and years go by, but there will not be any marked decrease for some little time to come, not much of any in 1919.

With the returning of the men who have been in the war, it is bound to bring more business, and more general business, to the florists of this country. These boys will want to be entertained by their relatives and friends, which will mean flowers.

This war condition has brought into the market a new class of buyers; buyers who will soon feel that flowers are not a luxury, but a necessity in their homes, and that the home is not complete without a few flowers which give an added touch of joy and pleasure that cannot be brought into the home in any other way, so flowers come to be a necessity and not a luxury.

In launching the publicity campaign of the Society of American Florists last year, some felt it was an inopportune time to conduct such a campaign, but those who had charge of this campaign felt it was one of the best times to get the flower business before the public, and there is no doubt that the campaign has worked a wonderful amount of good, and will make for better results as it progresses. The thought is for the coming year to raise, instead of $50,000, $100,000, just double the publicity as planned for this year. No commodity, if advertised judiciously and regularly, can but be helped in the sales of that commodity by this advertising, continually bringing before the public the slogan which the publicity committee is using, "Say it with flowers," and will be stamped indelibly, I think, in the minds of every one as other trade marks, such as, Cream of Wheat, Uneda Biscuit, and other trade marks that we are all so familiar with.

"Say it with Flowers," means so much, and it is a wonderful slogan for each and every florist to use in his local advertising. This local advertising, coupled with the national advertising, cannot help but benefit every live and up-to-date florist. Some of our more optimistic friends in the flower business feel that the trade today is only in its infancy, and in a few years, with this publicity campaign in good working order, will bring the business up to a point undreamt of.

The publicity campaign is very ably managed, and there is no question that the money will be judiciously spent, and spent where it will do the most and the best good. This campaign, and the business generally getting on a better and more sound basis, is going to mean that we are going to have not the old-fashioned ways of doing business, not a slipshod way, but up-to-date business methods right straight through, both in the growing, wholesale and retail ends. Each florist will realize that it is absolutely essential and necessary that he keep things up in a businesslike manner in order to live, and stay in the swim.

Another point that is being worked up, which will result in good, and be nation-wide in its benefits, is a system of credits. The credit business in the past has been very lax, and in fact, any one who was a good fellow could get credit. The S. A. F., back of the collection and credit committee, in starting a campaign of education along credit lines, will eliminate all the old loose practices which have been used in the past. This habit was to run up a bill on one man, stop buying from him, and run a bill on the next one, and then, when they had gone the rounds, start in paying the first one, and then so on down the line again.

There is no reason why every florist cannot pay his bills promptly when they become due. Other lines of business do it, and it has come to the point where, if the florist wants to live and do a prosperous business, he will have to pay his bills promptly or go out of business. This is going to make one more careful in the credits he gives, and going to give him an incentive to watch his collections very much closer and not have so much dead wood on his books. Then, too, it will give him an incentive to organize his establishment in a more up-to-date way. In fact, it will be absolutely necessary for him to organize his establishment in such a way that he can keep abreast of the times.

The growers, wholesalers, and retailers have passed through the last five or six months of very good business, probably giving them as prosperous a season as they have ever had, particularly for the fall and midwinter months, and I can see no reason why the spring should not be equally as good, and with a large increase in the volume of business. Summer business, as usual, probably will not be anything wonderful, but it ought to be fully up to other years, in fact, better, the fall starting in, in good shape. I cannot see but that the flower business for 1919 will be a very healthy one in every way.

The Zinnia As a Florist Flower.

There is no other flower with such a wide diversity of color as the zinnia; it ranges from pure white, through all shades to bright intense yellow, from lightest pink down to and through all the reds to deep maroon. In fact, there is scarcely a shade of color but what can be found in the zinnia. They are among the easiest of the summer flowers to grow and bloom continuously from early summer until frost. By a little care in disbudding extra large flowers on long stems are possible.

The zinnia deserves much more attention than it has received at the hands of the trade. Very few of this summer flower, which is at its best in August, are ever seen in the market. As a flower for table decoration, wonderfully fine effects could be worked out with its brilliant coloring. While the regulation shape is double and globular, yet there are, as in the dahlia, quite a variety of forms. Some miniature with button-like flowers and others of gigantic size, up to six inches in diameter. A number of the sorts are double fringed and others curled and crested.

To grow for market, certain desirable colors should be selected and seed saved or purchased so as to have stock sure of a ready sale. There are also single varieties that are very attractive and by some considered more artistic than the double sorts. A box of selected zinnias will be appreciated by any lover of flowers, as no matter how great the variety in color, they seem to arrange harmoniously. They fit in nicely with all the work of the store, for a special, to run off a lot of baskets or vases, for the decoration of wreaths for funeral work; in fact, for every purpose they are quite the equal of any other flower of the season. They should never be allowed to get wilted or remain long out of water. Before handling, it is well to see that the stems and flowers are filled with water from being in water several hours or over night in a cool place. A few drops of formaldehyde should always be put in the water, as zinnias foul the stems and leaves even more than asters.

They are displayed nicely in the low Japanese bowls, their stiff stems, well clothed with foliage, holding them erect. A Japanese basket in dark mahogany tones looks well when filled with reds and maroon touched up with orange shades.

Look up zinnias; get your growers of outside flowers to raise a few of the choicer varieties. You will find them good stock to carry during August.

New York Flower Show, 1920.

An enthusiastic meeting of the flower show committees of the New York Florists' Club and the Horticultural Society of New York was held at the headquarters of the New York Florists' Club, 1170 Broadway, February 17, 1919. Only five members of the committees were absent. The following were present: Theodore A. Havemeyer, F. R. Newbold, Richard G. Hollaman, F. R. Pierson, C. H. Totty, W. H. Duckham, Jos. A. Manda, George V. Nash, P. W. Popp, John Canning, Philip F. Kessler, Charles Schenck, F. L. Atkins, J. Scheepers, Max Schling, W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., A. L. Miller, and Secretary John Young.

At this meeting, the committees merged into a joint committee and unanimously decided to hold a spring show in 1920, the opening date to be Monday, March 15, and the closing date, Sunday, March 21. The show will be held in the Grand Central Palace, which is shortly to be re-converted to exhibition use. Fifteen thousand dollars was voted to be set aside for premiums. C. H. Totty was appointed chairman of the schedule committee. Theodore A. Havemeyer was elected chairman of the joint committee, with John Young as secretary, and F. R. Newbold, treasurer. The secretary is to have charge of selling the trade space and will also have charge of the preparation of the official programme.

Many novel features to be introduced at the show were discussed, and it is expected that the programme will be unique in this respect. F. L. Atkins, W. H. Duckham, and Max Schling were appointed a committee to design the official sign for the exhibitors, with directions that the slogan of the publicity campaign, "Say it with Flowers," is to be featured at the head of every sign. No other design of signs is to be permitted. It was decided to offer a prize of $100 for a poster design and this announcement is to be made forthwith.

Arthur Herrington was appointed manager of the show and also was added to the committee. E. F. Korbel and Worth F. Colwell were appointed publicity managers.

F. L. Atkins, for Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., was first to book for exhibition space, taking 200 square feet; Max Schling was a close second to book for the same amount.

The meeting went on record as disapproving the recent action of the federal board of horticulture in establishing a quarantine against importation of plants and flowers. It was considered that such action will rob lovers of horticulture of the opportunity to see many desirable European and other foreign productions in plants and flowers, and would undoubtedly take away some educational interest which has always been attaching to flower shows.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

CONCORDIA, KAN.—Harry L. Hunt, of the Concordia Greenhouses, is contemplating the addition of a palm house and conservatory to his establishment, also one house 36x100 feet, which will be devoted to carnations.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

The schedule of prizes and exhibitions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and the premiums offered by the state department of agriculture for the year 1919, the dates being as follows:

March 8-9—Fruits and vegetables.

May 17-18—Flowers, including tulips, hardy narcissi, pansies, lilacs, hardy flowering shrubs and wild flowers. Vegetables — Asparagus, cauliflower, lettuce and collections of six varieties.

June 7-8—Iris exhibition, also rhododendrons, hardy azaleas and hardy herbaceous flowers. Vegetables in all varieties, also collections.

June 21-22—Roses, peonies, strawberries, cherries and vegetables.

July 5-6—Sweet pea exhibition, also Iris Kacmpferi, hollyhocks, perennial larkspurs, collections of wild flowers, fruits and vegetables.

August 9-10—Gladioli, phlox and asters, fruits and vegetables.

August 30-31—Products of children's gardens.

September 11-14—Dahlias, hardy herbaceous flowers, Japanese anemones, wild flowers, apples in thirty-four classes, ten classes for pears and awards for plums, grapes, quinces and melons. The premium list for the exhibition also provides first, second and third prizes for vegetables of nearly every kind.

November 8-9—Autumn exhibition of fruits and vegetables.

Copies of the schedule may be had upon application to the secretary, Wm. P. Rich, Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass.

Horticultural Society of New York.

The Horticultural Society of New York has issued a schedule of classes and premiums for an exhibition of plants and cut flowers with classes open to both commercial and non-commercial growers to be held in the American Museum of Natural History, Central Park West and 77th street, March 28-30.

Leading the commercial classes, like awards are offered for groups of spring flowering plants, occupying 150 square feet arranged for effect and for groups of orchid plants, 100 square feet, arranged for effect, decorative plants permitted. There are numerous classes for roses, carnations and other cut flowers as well as plants.

In the non-commercial group, first and second prizes of $100 and $50 respectively are offered for groups of spring flowers, 100 square feet, arranged for effect and groups of foliage plants covering a like space.

Copies of the schedule may be had upon application to George V. Nash, secretary, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York.

Kansas City.*BUSINESS BETTER THAN USUAL.

The St. Valentine's day demand proved better than was anticipated and in some stocks the supply was exhausted early. This was especially true of violets and sweet peas, of which three times as many as were available could have been sold. Carnations and roses were quite plentiful and the quality was good. The demand for corsages was unusually brisk and pot plants took a big lead in sales. They are becoming more popular every day.

NOTES.

Miss Hayden, of Samuel Murray's attractive establishment, says pot plants were the best sellers and that the demand for them is increasing with every holiday. Fancy cut stock also went well for valentines.

ZINNIA VICTORY.

One of the Best of the Giant Quilled Types of This Popular Annual.

Arthur Newell reports the St. Valentine's day demand came along in fine shape and that he could have disposed of more stock, both cut flowers and plants, had they been procurable.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. reports they had all they could do to handle the St. Valentine's day demand on time. There was a big call both for cut stock and plants.

T. J. Noll & Co. report a splendid demand, both locally and out-of-town. They moved a larger quantity of stock for St. Valentine's day than in any previous year.

H. Kusik & Co. had a large stock on hand for valentine demands and sold out completely.

Miss J. E. Murray reports she has no complaint to make. E. J. B.

Pittsburgh.*BUSINESS GOOD FROM ALL REPORTS.

St. Valentine's day is a thing of the past, and while there was no great rush, every one reports business as having been good. It rained the day previous, and for a while it looked blue, but everything cleaned up nicely, and at the end of business February 14, the wholesale houses did not have a flower left. Stock is coming a little stronger, but there has been no change in prices from last week. Lancaster county sweet peas are now arriving in larger quantity, and are selling for $2, $3 and $4 per 100. American Beauties are still poor and scarce, while other roses are more plentiful, especially the shorter grades. Irises, jonquils and tulips are very scarce, and it does not look as if we were going to have many of these popular spring flowers this season.

NOTE.

At a party given by E. J. McCallum, in honor of Geo. Marshall, who is leaving for Oklahoma, he was presented with a silver vase with the names of all the employes engraved on it.

Ontario Horticultural Society.

An interesting feature of the monthly meeting of the above society held in Foresters' hall, Toronto, February 7, was an address by W. D. McPherson, provincial treasurer, with reference to providing work for the returning soldiers of this vicinity. Dr. A. H. Scott of Perth also had a paper bearing on the same subject and Miss M. E. Blacklock gave an illustrated talk on "Hardy Herbaceous Perennials" that was very interesting. During the afternoon the visitors inspected the Oster greenhouses, an attraction to all visitors. W. T. Macoun of Ottawa read an interesting paper on raspberries and black currants for small gardens and J. S. Wallace, of West Toronto, made a few practical remarks on dahlia growing. Others who made short addresses were Messrs. MacLennan and Zavitz of Guelph, R. Whorley of Hallebury, E. Buck of Ottawa and Miss Mary Yates of Port Credit. J. E. K.

San Francisco.*TRADE SHOWS SLIGHT DECLINE.

There has been a slight falling off in trade during the week just past. Flowerers are now coming along much more plentifully than at any other time during the season. The arrival of outdoor stock has probably cut down the demand somewhat. Fruit blossoms and acacias are very plentiful and cheap. Daffodils from outdoors are now abundant, too, and very cheap. Violets are in great oversupply. The street peddlers move great quantities of this flower every day. Prices range from 50 cents to 75 cents a dozen bunches, according to quality. Freesias are also in heavy supply just now and prices have had quite a drop. Colored freesias, especially the lavender shades, are in good demand and bring the highest prices. Dutch hyacinths in all colors are very plentiful. The white varieties are the best sellers. Sweet peas have been improving very much in quality right along, and fairly good stock is now coming in. Prices being received are satisfactory. After a long absence from this market lily of the valley is now to be seen in the shop windows. The supply is, of course, rather limited and high prices are being received for all offerings. Roses are quite abundant at this writing, and no more shortage of this flower is anticipated for the balance of the season. Shawyer is off crop, but there is an ample cut of all other pink roses. American Beauty is about the only thing that is on the short list. Red roses have improved a great deal of late, but the sale of them seems to lag. Carnations are very much in evidence again, with prices lower. Boston ferns are on the short side, but plenty of good cyclamens are arriving. Primulas are being largely featured by all the stores. Azaleas in all colors are to be seen everywhere. Ericas are also plentiful, and are one of the most popular flowering plants we have in this market. Rododendrons are coming in and sell readily. Ferns, which have been scarce for a long time, are now coming in freely, and so is asparagus. Most of the stores made elaborate preparations for St. Valentine's day. Many beautiful and unique windows are being shown. Alfred Cuneo, head designer of the Art Floral Co., had many striking window effects during the past week.

NOTES.

Antonina Avensino, well-known to the trade in this city for many years, died at his home in Berkeley, February 8. Mr. Avensino was the father of Henry, Louis, G. B., John and Davis Avensino, all prominent florists of this city. The deceased was 80 years of age at the time of his death. Funeral services were held in this city and attended by large numbers of the florist trade. He was a native of Italy and a man of sterling character and worth. His genial manner always made him a great favorite among his large circle of friends. His passing will be greatly deplored by all who knew him.

B. M. Joseph, the well-known florist on Grant avenue, is receiving the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his mother, which occurred February 7. Mrs. Joseph was greatly beloved and respected by all who knew her. She was a native of Alsace-Lorraine. She is survived by two sons and a daughter. Interment was private. Many costly floral designs were sent by loving friends.

The State Nursery Company, of Fresno, has been authorized by the state commissioner of corporations to sell 1,503 shares of its stock at $100 per share. The company proposes to acquire and improve a large tract of land in Fresno county to be devoted to the growing of fruit and citrus trees. Ornamentals are also to be grown on a large scale.

Nurserymen, as a class, say they have never before experienced such a busy season as the one that is now at its height. This is particularly true of those engaged in growing fruit trees. During the past few years, the orchards of this state have been remarkably prosperous, and this has been a tremendous incentive to planting fruit trees.

George C. Roeding, president of the California Nursery Co., at Niles, and the Fancher Creek Nurseries, of Fresno, has been appointed by Governor Stevens on the committee to co-operate with the federal officials in the matter of securing employment for discharged soldiers. Mr. Roeding is also president of the state board of agriculture.

Bert Norris, formerly with B. M. Joseph, on Grant avenue, has joined the decorative staff of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. on Powell street.

St. Paul, Minn.*TRADE GOOD DESPITE BAD WEATHER.

St. Valentine's day was ushered in with its usual storm, but fortunately the blizzard that had raged south and west of the Twin cities had practically spent itself when it reached here. The demand, nevertheless, was unusually good and stock of all kinds sold well. Roses and carnations were of good quality and bulbous flowers were plentiful. Good orchids and violets were short of the demand. Plant stock, especially azaleas and primroses sold perhaps better than in former years, owing no doubt to the advanced prices of cut flowers. Valentine novelties of various sorts added to the day's sales. Pretty window displays, as usual, were in evidence. Taking business as a whole, it far exceeded that of the 1918 period.

NOTES.

The Minnesota State Horticultural Society has drafted a forceful protest against the proposed quarantine regulations of the federal horticultural board giving some good reasons why the effects of its operation will be baneful to horticultural interests in general.

O. R. Eckhardt & Co. report a fine business both in and out of the city, with plenty of stock of all kinds to meet the call.

Holm & Olson showed some fine stock which was displayed in profusion and, as usual, had attractive valentine window displays.

Visitors: J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, Pa., and Fred Longren of Chicago. C. R. F.

Nebraska State Florists' Society.

The winter meeting of the Nebraska State Florists' Society will be held at the Lincoln hotel, Lincoln, February 25. In the forenoon, the rooms of the Commercial club will be decorated with plants and cut flowers in conjunction with the state horticultural society, and in the afternoon prizes and diplomas will be awarded and old acquaintanceships renewed. At the banquet, which will be held at the Lincoln hotel at 8 p. m., President C. H. Frey will deliver the address of welcome, the secretary will make his report, and the following papers will be read, each followed by a short discussion: "Why We Should Grow More Cut Flowers and Plants," C. H. Green, Fremont; "Growing Geraniums and Other Bedding Plants," C. E. Berthold, Nebraska City; "Why We Should Support the Florists' Telegraph Delivery," J. J. Hess, Omaha; "How to Make a Small Greenhouse Establishment Pay," Edward Williams, Grand Island; "Seasonable Suggestions," Clem Frey, Lincoln. Election of officers and new business will close the session.

LEWIS HENDERSON, Sec'y.

Boston.*BUSINESS CONDITIONS VERY SATISFACTORY.

St. Valentine's day aided in making one of the busiest weeks of the year, although the weather was inclement both on that day and the Saturday that followed. Nevertheless business was good. The call for colonial bouquets, violets, pansies and English primroses was greater than in previous years. Roses, carnations and spring flowers did not sell as readily. The plant trade was good, with a fine call for pans of hyacinths, jonquils and primroses. The slow items were flowering shrubs and azaleas. Stock is now arriving on the market in larger quantities and prices remain about the same as quoted last week.

NOTES.

At the store of Penn, The Florist, business has been very good with numerous orders for weddings and dinners. For St. Valentine's day this establishment disposed of 40,000 violets in heart-shaped boxes.

Dolansky & McDonald are meeting with success in their new store, where they have six large windows for display purposes and ample floor space. They report a fine St. Valentine's day business.

Houghton & Gorney made a feature of colonial bouquets for valentines, with very good results. Sales were reported far ahead of last year.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report good business with an increase in the out-of-town demand.

Welch Bros. Co. had a heavy week with numerous out-of-town orders.

Toronto.*ADVERTISING HELPS SALES.

St. Valentine's day with most of the local florists, proved the best for years and a large increase in sales is reported. The weather was wet, not the kind to encourage people to go seeking for love tokens, and the increase is attributed to the concerted advertising by the members of the retail florists' club. Business generally has been very good, with a great shortage of roses, but these are now becoming more plentiful and a lowering of prices is taking effect. Russell, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Sunburst and White Killarney are most prominent, but clean up daily. Carnations of good quality are becoming more plentiful, and the prices have dropped a little. Sweet peas, daffodils, tulips, mignonette, orchids and violets are all to be had in fairly large quantities.

NOTES.

Social affairs, which have been dormant for the past four years, have again become active, and there are numerous decorations, though none out of the ordinary. The retail florists' club, to help encourage the spirit, gave a dance in the Metropolitan assembly rooms which proved an enjoyable event to the 300 guests who were fortunate enough to attend. The decorations were artistic and a credit to the club.

The longiflorum lilies imported last fall for this year's Easter crop, are looking the best that we have had for years. At one prominent grower's establishment some 25,000 plants are in the best of condition and are at present from six to 12 inches above the pots. Palms, ferns and foliage plants all look well, and would be hard to beat.

C. Grobba, of Mimico, has added one house to his range and the material for another is on the ground. This is a model establishment with concrete walks throughout and excellent facilities for taking care of all details.

The People's Florist, of Queen street, West, reports business very good, with a large amount of funeral work.

H. G. D.

Detroit.*FLORISTS' CLUB PLANS ADVERTISING.

The Florists' club meeting, held February 12, brought out a fair attendance that included a full force of the hard workers in the club. The feature of the meeting was an address by S. C. Goodman on "Co-Operative Advertising," for the purpose of stimulating the spirit of florists' publicity, and designed to be coupled locally with the S. A. F. National publicity work. Mr. Goodman represents the Art Klan Advertising Agency here, and his outline of a plan of action to enlist the local florists was well received. A publicity committee will be appointed, and a fund provided for continuous co-operative work and a fair ratio of the fund will be contributed to the national publicity fund.

A letter was read from Mrs. John Warncke, president of the ladies' auxiliary of the club, in appreciation of the florists' valuable assistance in making their ball, February 5, a success.

On motion of C. H. Plumb, the florists will hereafter make weekly contributions of flowers to the hospitals here for the returning soldiers. These flowers will be taken in charge and distributed to the hospital inmates through the ladies' auxiliary.

NOTES.

The Garden Club of Michigan, after a period of inactivity during the war, will inaugurate a series of lectures and instructive meetings by an address on "Gardens," by Mrs. William A. Hutchinson, February 21, at 3 p. m., at the home of Mrs. John S. Newberry.

J. F. Sullivan was called to Philadelphia, Pa., February 15, by the serious illness of his son, Ernest, who lives in that city. J. F. S.

Cleveland.*GOOD SUPPLY MOVES WELL.

The local market has been cleaning up daily, though fairly well supplied with a variety of good stock. Roses have been the one short item in cut flowers since the holidays, and have all along brought good prices. Carnations are in better supply, but the demand has kept them moving nicely up to the present writing, some of the better reds, Ward and Rose Pink, bringing as much as eight cents each for St. Valentine's day. Callas have had an excellent call. The demand for that day was very good, all stock practically cleaning up, with an excellent demand for the Saturday after. Tulips, daffodils, sweet peas and violets were in good demand and constituted the larger part of the supply. Stevia is still one of the offerings. Paper White narcissus meet with an excellent sale. A little snapdragon and mignonette arrived, also some calendulas. Asparagus has been short of requirements. Plants, both green and flowering, have sold well, some retailers claiming their plant trade exceeded their cut flower trade for St. Valentine's day.

NOTES.

Chas. Macuga, of the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co.'s force, is now spending part of his time on the road selling the retail and greenhouse trade. He is perhaps the youngest man in the business following this line, and began to work at his present place while still attending school, as delivery boy, later joining the sales force of the store, and now visits all points in northern Ohio. He is having wonderful success, due to his intimate knowledge of the requirements of a retail store.

Percy Piggott, back from France, where he was wounded and spent two months in a hospital, is again helping his father, Frank Piggott, 2236 Meyers avenue, with his greenhouses and store.

R. W. Wasko, of Ravenna, O., reports a fine season. Though growing a variety of plants and cut flowers, he is a frequent buyer at the various wholesale houses. C. F. B.

Cincinnati.*STOCK MOVES OUT FREELY.

Everything that comes into the wholesale houses finds a ready sale. As a whole, stock is somewhat limited and short of the demand for it. Prices are holding up. Roses are very scarce. The carnation supply is fair but not up to actual requirements. Sweet peas are plentiful but are finding a good market and are clearing from day to day. Easter lilies meet with a good demand. They are not as plentiful as they were for a time. The supply of bulbous stock is becoming heavier. It is selling well and bringing good prices. Tulips, jonquils, daffodils, Dutch hyacinths, freesias and Paper White narcissi may be had. Snapdragons find a ready sale. Other offerings are callas, rubrums, violets, orchids, calendulas, forget-me-nots and baby primroses.

NOTES.

The business of the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange is running ahead of that of other years, in spite of the general scarcity of flowers.

OBITUARY.*The Late William Meggat.

William Meggat, one of the organizers of the American Seed Trade Association, and its president in 1887, announcement of whose death was made in last week's issue, page 220, passed away February 8 at the age of 83 years at his home in Wethersfield, Conn., of which city he had been a prominent citizen for many years. He had been in failing health for about four years.

Mr. Meggat was born at Farm Hill, Scotland, in 1835, and came to this country in 1859. After spending a year in Canada, he located in Wethersfield in the capacity of manager of Comstock, Ferre & Co., continuing in this position until 1868, when with the late Samuel Wolcott he founded the well-known firm of Meggat & Wolcott, which gained a nation-wide reputation during a successful career extending over a period of 30 years. Upon retiring from the seed business, M. Meggat engaged in the sale of antique furniture and had one of the best collections in the state with buyers representing practically the entire country.

In 1860, he married Susan A. Roberts. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Harry B. Strong, and two sons, James and William Meggat, a sister and nephews in Scotland, and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Funeral services were held from his late residence, February 10, with interment in Cedar Hill cemetery, Hartford.

APPRECIATION.

John Fottler, of the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., Boston, Mass., writes as follows:

"My old friend, William Meggat, was one of the original promoters of the American Seed Trade Association. He consulted with me in the matter of drafting the constitution and the original set of by-laws of that body, and was one of its presidents when the association was yet young. I knew him as an honest, straightforward man, and he had a fine sense of humor. One of his business principles was this: 'There are many things lawful that are not expedient.' More than once he told me that he tried to live up to that principle. He was a warm hearted, sympathetic man, and he would go a long way to do a favor for any of his friends, and he had many of them."

Charles Schneider.

Charles Schneider, a grower of Woodside, N. Y., died February 9 of pneumonia, aged 23 years. He was a nephew of John Schneider, president of the Cut Flower Exchange of New York. His father, Charles Schneider, died a number of years ago, the mother of the family passing away several years later. Since the death of both parents, the business has been conducted by an aunt, assisted by the boys. The death of this young man will be a great bereavement to his aunt, who has taken a mother's interest in the family. A. F. F.

Laban A. Truett.

The death of one of the veteran florists and nurserymen of Nashville, Tenn., occurred February 14, when Laban A. Truett passed away at his home in that city, aged 82 years. He was one of the founders of the firm of Truett, Sons & Mergan, which operated the Riverbank Nurseries in that city, and in its day well and favorably known throughout the state. The business was dissolved a number of years ago.

INTERNAL REVENUE.—Commissioner of Internal Revenue Roper announces that corporations which cannot complete tax returns by March 15 will be permitted to return estimated tax and make a revised return within 45 days.

Plant Quarantine.

A further meeting of the interests affected by the embargo against plant importations was held at the offices of the Society of American Florists, 1170 Broadway, New York, February 14, at which were present J. D. Eisele, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Riverton, N. J.; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; C. B. Knickman, of McHutchison & Co., New York; Robert Pyle, of Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.; Leonard H. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; John Watson, Princeton, N. J.; W. H. Moon, Morristown, N. J., and Thos. Meehan, Dreshertown, Pa.

The situation was fully discussed, and the matter of further action in an effort to have the embargo lifted considered at length.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Shipping Notes.

Announcement has been made that steamers of the Canadian Pacific ocean services have been released and will resume their fast passenger service from Hongkong to Vancouver in February or March and will thereafter operate on their regular schedules.

We understand that all Holland-America line boats will stop at France for troops, which may occasion considerable delay, as in the case of the S. S. Rotterdam. Caution is advised in ordering stock that might perish on a prolonged trip.

Robert Dollar, a shipping authority, believes that America will come into keen competition with Japan. "Japanese shipowners," he said, "have made enormous profits during the war, and therefore that competition will be backed by plenty of money supported by subsidies for shipbuilding and for carrying of mails."

Glass Production.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Referring to your article under the caption of "Window Glass," on page 198 of your issue of February 15, the article is substantially correct as to the amount of the foreign order which was recently placed in this country, but you are incorrect as to the production of glass at the present time. Last year, owing to government restrictions, window glass factories were permitted to produce only 50 per cent of their average production or, in round numbers, about 6,000,000 50-foot boxes. This year, owing to the uncertain conditions, the manufacturers voluntarily curtailed their production to 50 per cent of normal, or about 6,000,000 50-foot boxes for this year. This curtailment, coupled with the fact that the stocks in the hands of the manufacturers are practically nil, and the foreign demand is the reason why prices will rule high for probably a long time in the future. As all are aware, fuel and labor in our industry is very high, and this is probably 80 per cent of the cost of glass. So one can readily see that prices will not go back to a pre-war level for a long time to come—if ever. BAUR WINDOW GLASS Co., Eaton, Ind., February 15, 1919.

"Say It With Flowers" in Europe.

Private Herbert W. Russell with the machine gun company of the 115th Infantry, A. P. O. 765, in France, who learned the florist business at the range of E. A. Seidewitz, Annapolis, Md., of which his uncle was manager for more than 30 years, writes interestingly from Fresnes, France, of the stimulation being given to the florist business in Europe, especially in England, through advertising, the slogan, "Say It With Flowers" being seen in many shop windows and in numerous publications.

Soil Diseases.

There is a possibility of the introduction of soil-infecting diseases, injurious nematodes, and hibernating insects, the department of agriculture announces, from the earth ballast which for a long time a great many ships coming from Europe into the port of New York have been dumping along the shores of the East river, the Hudson river, and elsewhere around New York harbor. The department has started an inquiry to determine the extent of this risk and to provide safeguards against it. It is said that unless preventative measures are taken, these diseases and insects might spread over the country or considerable parts of it.

Potash Imports.

A proposal to require licenses for the importation of potash as an aid to encourage an adequate and permanent domestic supply, is contained in a bill introduced into congress by Senator Charles B. Henderson, of Nevada. Under the terms of this bill, no potash would be permitted to come into the United States unless covered by a license stating the amount permitted entry under it, the license only to be issued on condition that the applicant has purchased or contracted, under guaranty satisfactory to the secretary of the interior, to purchase an amount of potash produced in the United States bearing the same ratio to the amount which he is permitted to import as the estimated total production of potash in the United States bears to the difference between this estimated total production and the estimated total requirements of this country. The law, if enacted, would remain in effect until two years after the proclamation of peace.

Roses Favored When Carnations High.

A florist in one of the large mid-western cities, in calling attention to the lack of interest in carnations at the high prices prevailing during the recent holiday season, says that of 1,500 on hand, which cost $15 per 100, not more than 500 were disposed of, it being easily observed that roses in the short grades which wholesaled at $10 per 100 and $30, $40 and $50 for longer stock easily held their place in public favor, flower buyers evincing little interest in carnations when asked to pay $3.50 and $4.00 per dozen for them.

VALENTINE BUSINESS SHOWS INCREASE.

Cupid's day was a great one for flowers, which easily led in popularity. There was a heavier demand than ever for everything the florists had to offer on this occasion and it was noted that the popularity of the day is increasing with married people. Through judicious advertising, the business transacted has been increasing every year with young and old. However, the possibilities of St. Valentine's day have not been exploited by local florists as they should be, and there should be a great deal more advertising done than was the case this year. There was a sufficient amount of stock on hand to easily take care of all demands, and retailers were able to offer their patrons a splendid variety for the first time in many months. Violets were on hand in quantity and of good quality sufficient for all needs. These were great favorites for corsages and the market cleaned up fine. Sweet peas were at their best and shared favor with violets. They brought better prices than usual. Roses were plentiful and there was a surplus of carnations. Freesias, narcissi, snapdragons and daffodils helped out considerably. Plants, such as begonias, cyclamens and tulips, enjoyed a brisk sale. While a good share of the call was for roses, violets and cut flowers in the usual Valentine boxes, there was a better than ordinary demand for the novelties of which a comprehensive variety were on display in the florists' windows. There was an encouraging number of telegraph orders, both incoming and outgoing.

NOTES.

Schramm Bros. advertised the day thoroughly, using folders in colors, liberal newspaper space, window cards and displays. As a result, a fine increase was noted. This firm had a fine display of novelties and also plants. Violets and sweet peas were favorites here. Theodore Pryzblski, grower formerly employed here, has returned from Camp Taylor and has resumed his old position.

Other florists who report a fine St. Valentine day trade are Miss Helen Patten, Metz & Bateman, A. G. Imobersteg, Mrs. E. Suder, the Feniger Flower Shop, S. N. Peck and the Scottwood Greenhouse. Tom Magee of the last-named establishment, is recovering from a serious attack of boils which nearly put him hors-du-combat for three weeks.

John Lambert, designer for Mrs. J. B. Freeman of "The Flowers," was agreeably surprised at the volume of Valentine trade. His window again reflected the artistic ability of which he is capable. The novel arrangements of corsages and basket effects displayed at this shop were responsible for a substantial increase in business.

Max Spanner has received word from France that his sister, Bessie, formerly connected with him, has made such a good record as a Red Cross nurse that she has been selected as a permanent welfare worker of the Jewish War Relief Association.

Max Spanner reports a fine increase in business for St. Valentine's day. His new window trimmer and designer, Nathan Goodwin, arranged a very attractive window display of novelties and corsages which enjoyed a brisk sale.

Growers are pleased over the mild winter, which has saved them much money on their coal bills, and also over the sunshine, which has greatly increased their output.

VALENTINE DAY BUSINESS SHOWS GAIN.

The demand for flowers for valentines in this city was better than a year ago, with prices increased at least 25 per cent. The quality in nearly every case was good. Violets, as usual, had a great call and carnations, daffodils and tulips sold well. Roses and orchids were not much sought, the higher prices doubtless being responsible. The quality of the roses was excellent. Primula obconica, hyacinths, tulips and lilacs were popular in the plant section and there were numerous calls for basket arrangements. All stores had attractive windows for the occasion.

NOTES.

At the monthly meeting of the florists' club the following nominations for officers were made: For president, Mark Palmer; vice-president, Edward Slattery and Walter Amey; secretary, Wm. Legg; financial secretary, J. M. Fiebelkorn and E. Stratmeyer.

E. C. Brucker and W. A. Adams attended the Rotary conference at Hamilton, Ont.

C. T. Guenther attended the meeting of the state societies at Ithaca last week.

W. J. Palmer is again on the job after an illness of two weeks.

BRISK ST. VALENTINE'S DAY TRADE.

The St. Valentine's day business was brisk this year and stock in all lines cleaned up completely at very satisfactory prices. The out-of-town demand was particularly heavy and while the city call for stock exceeded all expectations the rainy weather did not help the trade in any way. Violets had a heavy call and cleaned up rapidly at high prices. Orchids were in brisk demand and sold up well at high figures considering the exceptionally large quantity offered. Sweet peas were good property and commanded the advertised quotations with no surplus at any time. Gardenias and lily of the valley were in short supply. Roses were very scarce which was expected and brought high prices, although the wholesalers were none too anxious to boost them in this line over those that have prevailed in this market for the past several months. Carnations cleaned up well at good prices although at times considerable pushing was needed to keep them moving, owing to the unsatisfactory weather here. Freesias, tulips, forget-me-nots, pansies, daisies, calendulas, jonquils, narcissi, mignonette, iris, stevia, snapdragons, Roman hyacinths, and other miscellaneous seasonable stock not already mentioned had a brisk call and, like everything else, was disposed of before the rush was over. Business after St. Valentine's day was even better than it was before, especially as far as the local demand was concerned and which means that the retailers must have cleaned up completely for this occasion, judging from the heavy buying February 15. Green goods sold exceptionally well and from all reports heard about the city the demand was greater than expected and no one is heard complaining of poor business notwithstanding the unfavorable weather that was experienced.

NOTES.

Philip C. Schupp, Jr., who was manager for J. A. Budlong, Jr. for 14 years, has purchased the wholesale business from that firm and will conduct it hereafter under the name of the J. A. Budlong Co., continuing at the same location.

184-186 North Wabash avenue. Albert H. Budlong has purchased the J. A. Budlong greenhouses and will consign his stock to Mr. Schupp, so the only change in the entire transaction will be in the ownership. The trade joins in wishing both parties every success in their new undertakings.

Herman Schiller, who has been doing his bit for his country in the merchant marine since early last fall, is again managing Schiller's north side store and everyone is glad to hear that he is back on the job. He tried to enlist in the marines and other branches of the service but was rejected and only succeeded in landing where he was through sheer persistency.

Eddie Hunt, who has been at the Great Lakes naval training station for some time, was granted an honorable discharge recently and is back on the job at the Chicago Flower Growers' Association store.

Victor Bergman, who has been on the sick list, is back on the job at O. J. Friedman's. Tom Fogarty is also on deck after being confined to his home for several weeks with blood poisoning.

Mandy Doetsch, who has been with the colors for sometime, was discharged recently and is again filling his old position in the retail department of the George Witthold Co.

Miss Helen Zender and Valentine Seng were united in marriage at St. Henry's church, February 22.

Tom Fagan, who was overseas with the American troops, is back on the job with A. Henderson & Co.

The E. C. Amling Co.'s store is being all dolled up with a brand new dress of white and green paint.

Philip Dahm, of Niles Centre, was honorably discharged from the army last week.

Special Notice

TO THE TRADE

Philip C. Schupp, Jr., for fourteen years manager for J. A. Budlong, has purchased from that firm the wholesale branch of the business and will continue to conduct business in the same quarters at the southwest corner of Wabash Avenue and Lake Street, known as 184-186 N. Wabash Ave.

Albert H. Budlong has purchased the greenhouses of said firm.

While the ownership has changed hands there will be no change in the management whatsoever. Albert H. Budlong will run the greenhouses under his own ownership and as before will ship the output to the wholesale headquarters formerly managed but now owned by Philip C. Schupp, Jr.

The firm will be known as the J. A. Budlong Co., Mr. Schupp having taken over all accounts of the old firm's books. The new firm will serve its many patrons with the same quality of Cut Flowers and Greens, handling the orders with the same personal care and attention as before.

Remember, no change in management—only in ownership. The ownership going over to the managers of the old firm. Last but not least, we desire to thank the many Budlong patrons for their support and hope for a continuation of our past, pleasant business relations.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. had a strong demand for cattleyas for St. Valentine's day, which cleaned up practically all it had to offer for the occasion. The trade is beginning to use phalenopsis more heavily in this vicinity, where it is now being grown more largely than ever before.

Joe Erringer, of the Zech & Mann force, was married February 19, and has the best wishes of his many friends for a safe voyage on the sea of matrimony. It is rumored that two more young men in the trade are going to follow suit in the near future.

A. L. Vaughan and family are back from a delightful trip to Florida and a brief visit to his old home in Louisiana. Mr. Vaughan was well pleased with the amount of business that the force did while he was away, which exceeded all his expectations.

J. E. Pollworth, general manager of Kennicott Bros. Co., has been confined to his home for nearly two weeks, where he has been under the constant care of an eye specialist. He is blind in one eye and almost lost his sight in the other.

E. F. Luhman of Muskegon, Mich., has been in the city for several days on business connected with the new store that he is planning on opening there in the near future.

George Husmann, of The Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind., called on the trade here this week. He had an exhibit at the Palmer House.

C. C. Pollworth and wife, Milwaukee, Wis., were here on a combined business and pleasure trip February 18.

North Shore Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the North Shore Horticultural Society was held at Lake Forest, Ill., February 7, President William E. Fisher occupying the chair. After disposing of regular business the question of holding a banquet later in the year and a social session later in the present month was discussed. The exhibits for competition made a very bright display and the judges for the evening made the following awards: Primula obconica, shown by Robert Chambers, 98 points; vase of Carnation Laddie by J. H. Francis, 98 points; Dendrobium densiflorum, by Thomas Head, 95 points; vase of narcissi, by J. Kiley, 90 points; vase of Acacia Baileyana, vase of nemesis and vase of violets, exhibited by Thomas Head, honorable mention; vase of carnations, vase of callas and vase of Roman hyacinths, by J. Kiley, honorable mention. The judging was in the capable hands of F. Kuehne, J. Newbore and R. Claussens. Mr. Newbore was elected a trustee for 1919 in the place of K. Lofving, deceased. One new member was admitted and at the close of the session refreshments were served.

BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

According to reports on the volume of business done last week, and especially for St. Valentine's day, we admit "it pays to advertise." This was done on a large scale by the florists' advertising club in the daily press, and had the desired effect of cleaning up everything in the form of a cut flower or blooming plant. The latter seemed to move more briskly than a year ago, while in cut flowers, spring blooms and others of the smaller size took the lead. Roses were scarce, while the supply of good carnations was adequate, the inferior grades being used for funeral work, which was very active throughout the week. The demand for sweet peas was heavy, but the supply limited. Violets were on hand in quantity and sold well. The good cut of orchids had their inning, and no orders were refused. Both callas and Easter lilies are becoming very scarce and the same can be said of greens.

NOTES.

Gust. Rusch, of the firm bearing his name, attended the state bowling tournament at Green Bay, Wis., February 9-10. On his way, he stopped off at Fond du Lac. The new up-to-date store of the Haentze Floral Co. made a very favorable impression. It is finished in oak. Gust says everything cleaned up in good shape at good prices the past week.

WE believe in the spirit and practical application of co-operation between the grower, wholesaler and retailer, with an adjustment of profit for all three.

The grower is the source of supply.

The commission wholesaler is the best and most economical means of distribution.

The retailer is the most direct means of reaching the consumer.

A service between these three factors, that is most profitable to all these interests, requires a spirit of efficiency, loyalty and co-operation.

Whether a grower or retailer, when you ship or buy, Kennicott Bros. Co. offers you all the advantages.

We do as we say.

Our policy is based on the principles of the "Golden Rule."

Good Supply of Everything You Need in Cut Flowers and Greens

Stock in general is scarce, but we are managing to take mighty good care of all of our customers.

Beauties, Roses, Orchids, Sweet Peas, Lilies, Callas, Jonquils, Calendulas, Tulips, Freesias, Narcissus, Snapdragons, Violets, Daisies, Carnations, Forget-me-nots, Gypsophila, Pussy Willows, Greens, Etc., Etc.

The Holton & Hunkel Co., besides having a good supply of bulbous stock, also had quite an assortment of other blooming plants ready for February 14, and needless to say, they were "sold out." They were right in crop on orchids, which proved a good item.

Edlefsen-Leidiger Co. say they disposed of more pot plants in bloom, February 14, than in former years. While the sale of cut flowers was very satisfactory, the unfavorable weather on that day no doubt reduced transient business some.

"Though we had a large supply of cut flowers and plants last week, the demand was brisk enough to move all," is the report from the C. C. Pollworth Co. They ran short on sweet peas.

Walter M. Maas & Co. report a most satisfactory week. While the demand for St. Valentine's day was fine, a rush of funeral work helped to show a fine total. Plants also moved well.

J. M. Fex & Son, Inc., who do considerable advertising of their own, report last week's holiday business better than ever before.

BEST VALENTINE DAY TRADE IN YEARS.

The St. Valentine's day business of 1919 will go down in the history of the trade here as the greatest on record. Without an exception, the florists report a tremendous demand for this holiday, not only for blooming plants but for cut flowers as well, in spite of the prevailing high prices. Valentine novelties of all kinds sold on sight, and there was an extra heavy demand for corsage work. Basket novelties filled with sweet peas, violets and bulbous flowers were in heavy demand. Roses were very scarce, and many florists sold blooming plants in their stead, on account of their inability to procure roses, and the high prices of them. Business since the holiday has been fair, with a good plant trade.

NOTES.

The florists' club used co-operative advertising in the daily newspapers for St. Valentine's day, and reaped splendid results. Posterettes and Valentine stickers were also employed by the florists, as well as the slogan, "Say it with Flowers."

The Flick Floral Co. had a good sale on single violets, and heart baskets filled with Rainbow freesias, and other bulbous flowers. The volume of business was very heavy here, with an equal demand for cut blooms and pot plants.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. report a very satisfactory Valentine demand. The interior of the store has been entirely decorated, with a color scheme of light green and tan and new mirrors have been installed.

A complete line of blooming plants was entirely sold out for St. Valentine's day at the store of the Doswell Floral Co. This firm reports the demand for plants much heavier than for cut flowers.

An extra delivery force was employed at the store of Ed. Wenninghoff to handle the Valentine deliveries. Business here showed a heavy increase over any previous Valentine day.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey report the Valentine business this year fully 50 per cent greater than last year. This firm cut 1,000 orchids last week for the St. Valentine's day trade.

Columbus, O.

VALENTINE BUSINESS BEST EVER.

With less newspaper advertising than usual, the St. Valentine's day trade proved to be the best ever experienced. This is accounted for only by the growing love of flowers and the emphasis given their association with the day in past years. Stock was equal to demand, running strong to sweet peas and violets and fancy baskets, but a good cleanup was made, from which there has been only partial recovery. Carnations are now rather scarce. Pussy willows, hyacinths, tulips and other spring reminders are being shown in florists' shops, and are in large favor. There is an especially strong demand for all kinds of pot plants. All growers are making extra efforts to meet what is believed will be a banner Easter business. General trade is very satisfactory, and displays are improving in variety and attractiveness.

NOTES.

James Underwood, florist and superintendent at Franklin park, has received an anonymous letter containing 75 cents conscience money. The unknown writer explains as follows: "While living in Columbus a few years ago, I took some slips from geranium plants in Franklin park, but since that time the Lord has saved me from a life of sin, and I am now trying to obey the word of God. We are told in the Bible to restore again the things we have taken."

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY HITS HIGH MARK.

The St. Valentine's day business in the national capital this year eclipsed all previous records. There was a general shortage of all classes of stock, particularly of roses, although there was practically no advance in wholesale prices. Early in the week there was an over-supply of sweet peas, but the situation changed with the advent of rain and cloudy weather. Violets sold out completely at $1 and $1.50 per hundred, singles being the most popular. Carnations are of fair quality and readily bring $8 per hundred. The demand for orchids improved, and some of the retailers had difficulty in getting all that they needed. There was no lily of the valley to be had and Roman hyacinths sold, when offered. There has been an increase in the supply of spring flowers. Daffodils are moving at $6 to $8 per hundred. Southern stock has made its appearance, but is small and of not much value, although the price quoted is $2 per hundred. Generally at the commencement of the spring season, daffodils will move at $6 and $8. This condition usually lasts one week, and as the season advances to the point where it is now, the price is generally $2 and $3. Doubt is expressed if these latter prices will be reached at all this year. There is a considerable quantity of pussy willow offered, the reason for this being that the market will absorb a certain amount only. Pansies are more in favor this year. Other flowers seen in the St. Valentine's day offerings, all of which cleaned up, were mignonette, forget-me-nots, narcissi and tulips. It is said that more corsage bouquets were made up last week than ever before in the history of the flower business in this city.

NOTES.

Captain Charles E. Fraser, who holds a commission in the engineer corps, was a visitor at some of the local stores last week, having just returned from France, where he has been serving on the S. S. Agamemnon. He is a resident of New York. G. W. Svenden, of Williamsport, Pa., S. F. Dawson, and William B. Lake were other visitors.

Alexander Sharper and Miss Emma Belt, both of Suitland, Md., were married last week by Rev. James W. Many. Mr. Sharper is a grower of carnations and chrysanthemums.

Illinois State Florists' Association.

The thirteenth annual convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held in the floricultural building at the University of Illinois, Urbana, March 11-12, the opening session at 2:30 p. m. to be followed by another at 7:30. The second day will be devoted to conferences and inspection of experimental greenhouses. An interesting programme has been arranged, among the important topics which will be discussed being publicity, cost of production, fertilizers and insecticides.

It is earnestly requested that those who attend bring with them anything new they may have, either in flowers or ideas.

J. F. AMMANN, Sec'y.

Lake Geneva Gardeners' Association.

At the February meeting of the Lake Geneva Gardeners' and Foremen's Association, held at Lake Geneva, Wis., it was decided that all of the usual exhibitions of the association be resumed during the present year. They are as follows: Peonies, date open; iris and other seasonable flowers, date open; sweet peas, June 28; midsummer show which will be open to all sweet pea classes, July 19; chrysanthemums, November 8-10.

Many additions and revisions have been made to the schedule, covering both indoor and outdoor productions.

FRED W. SPARKS, Sec'y.

Morris County Florists' Society.

The following officers of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society of Madison, N. J., have been elected for 1919: Otto Koch, Greystone Park, N. J., president; Samuel Golding, Morristown, N. J., vice-president; William H. Duckham, Madison, N. J., treasurer; Edward Reagan, Morristown, secretary.

Last year, on account of war conditions, the society held no fall show, but plans are now being made for an elaborate summer exhibition and a fall show up to the usual high standard of the society's events in the past. Monthly exhibits are also held, divided into four classes, as follows: Indoor grown flowers, indoor fruits and vegetables, outdoor grown flowers and outdoor fruits and vegetables. The exhibitor receiving the largest number of points during the year will receive the society's silver medal, in each class as the case may be. A bronze medal is awarded for second honors. The National Association of Gardeners is to give the society a grand sweepstakes medal.

The society has the membership and financial backing and now that conditions have changed for the better is making plans for rapid strides forward.

EDWARD REAGAN, Sec'y.

St. Louis.

SUPPLY SHORTENED; DEMAND INCREASES.

The market shortened slightly last week with the increase in demand. Carnations were also limited in the supply, not enough arriving to fill current orders. Sweet peas came in heavy and of very fine quality, but cleaned up daily on account of the clear weather. Roses have been short in supply for some time. Orchids and lily of the valley were equal to requirements. Callas have a good call and bring fancy figures. Bulbous stock is plentiful, but prices are holding up well. Greens of all kinds are plentiful. From all reports the St. Valentine's day business was excellent. Violets were a little too high priced to be the leader they generally are. Sweet peas took their place in popularity, and thousands of sweet peas were sold in place of violets. Assorted spring flowers ran a close second to sweet peas in the various valentine arrangements of baskets, boxes and novelties. Shipping business also seemed to be larger than in previous years, evidently presaging good results from the advertising given the business. The plantsmen also had an excellent business in blooming stock.

NOTES.

The retail florists' association, at their last meeting, nominated the following for the various offices for this year: President, F. C. Weber, Jr., and Theo. Miller; vice-president, A. Meyer, Jr., and Wm. Kruse; secretary, Oscar Ruf and Fred Hermann, and for treasurer, Andrew Hofman. Election will take place at the next meeting, which will be held February 24.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., continues to be the carnation king this year. His stock has been all the while season. We suppose that is the reason he won two firsts at the carnation show at Cleveland.

Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. and H. G. Berning handled the bulk of the violet supply for St. Valentine's day. They had no trouble disposing of their consignments at fancy prices.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

SUPPLY MORE THAN MEETS DEMAND.

With the exception of roses, the market can be said to be fully supplied, a little ahead in fact of the demand, and prices have eased off a trifle from last week, although holding up very well. Roses are not at all plentiful. The lowest grades bring $6 per hundred, up to $20 for specials and as high as $50 for Russell and Hadley. The top for American Beauties is 75 cents. Some very good flowers of this rose are now offered. Carnations are the quantity stock, but do not back up to any extent, moving well at last week's prices. Sweet peas also bring satisfactory figures. Snapdragon will be a factor from now on, the sprays having attained full length. Very fine bronzes and pinks are now seen. Select calendulas find a ready market. Why is there so much single and indifferent stock? One-third the amount, but of a better grade, would surely bring more returns for the grower. Forget-me-nots have been popular the past week. There is good mignonette, but freesias appear to be going out. Golden Spur, daffodils and Paper White narcissi are quite plentiful. Cattleyas are shortening up a trifle, but there are plenty for the demand. Lilac is good stock, while violets are a bit draggy, but had a good Valentine day demand. Plenty of Easter and calla lilies are seen, but they hold well to their record price. There is a good call for all kinds of greens.

February 17.—The morning shipments brought in fairly large quantities of stock with the exception of roses, which are still short of requirements. There was considerable activity among local buyers at last week's prices which placed the market, as one of the large dealers put it, "In a very satisfactory condition."

LOOKING FORWARD TO EASTER.

Every foot of available greenhouse space is now being filled with plants for Easter. There must have been a gigantic stock of left-over gigantesms. Many growers are taking a "flyer," or, as described by some, "a desperate chance," with a few thousand of these second year cold storage bulbs. It is interesting to see the vitality that is still shown in these cold storage bulbs. Boxes planted with seven to nine bulbs at one establishment, November 9, were seen February 12, with a strong growth, nearly every stem showing from two to four buds. Several thousand, planted two bulbs to a six-inch pot, were just breaking through the soil. These were for Easter and were coming so evenly that the outlook was very encouraging. A large house of hydrangeas, nearly all French varieties, were seen in splendid shape, many of the stronger shoots showing six to eight leaves. What looked like a good catch crop, was on a large table the length of the house, across which candytuft was sown on ridges of soil. When in flower, this is expected to completely cover the bed. It is aimed to have it at its best at Easter.

concern to the trade generally. This we take it is an error, as if the would-be purchaser walks out, because of the excessively high price, and concludes to buy something else. This money is lost, not only to this retailer, but to the whole trade. At the time this article was published, January 25, the market was not as be claimed, bare of stock; there was a very good supply in quite a number of lines and prices had declined correspondingly. The fact that this is a matter vital to all the trade is proved by his almost closing sentence, "If all the florists charge too much, the people will stop buying. Flowers are not like bread or clothes; people do not have to have them. They simply want flowers, if they can be had, within certain limits of price." The retail florist is one of the cogs in the wheel; the machine cannot be run without him, and that this particular part is not projecting too far, is of great concern to all the other segments.

NOTES.

The March meeting of the florists' club at the Adelphia hotel, March 4, will be of equal interest to those of January and February. It is to be a carnation night and efforts are being made to have a display of all the new varieties as seen at the recent Cleveland convention. It is also hoped to have up-to-date arrangements suitable for funeral and festive occasions exhibited by some of the enterprising retail members of the club. A prominent carnation expert is expected to address the meeting. The dining club will be here inaugurated, having its first dinner in the roof garden of the hotel at 6 p. m. sharp. Tickets $2. This may seem a trifle high for the popular and informal "meet around the table" affairs we hope these before the meeting gatherings, to be, but it is the best price we could get at this time. Everybody is invited to come and bring a friend.

A recent dinner decoration, which was a great success, was composed entirely of callas and lavender sweet peas, a combination that would be thought unsuitable for such a festive occasion by many, but in the hands of the artists, it looked anything but funereal. It's easy when you know how.

S. S. Pennock delivered an address on "The Floricultural Outlook of 1919," from the standpoint of the wholesaler before the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Florists' Clubs at Ithaca, N. Y., February 11.

NO GREAT DEMANDS FOR VALENTINE'S DAY.

Several of the leading retail stores have reported a fair amount of St. Valentine's day business, but it was not heavy enough to create any perceptible flutter in the wholesale district. We have noticed that the retail stores that had the best business were those that made preparations by displaying in advance, in their show windows, various reminders of the day, such as appropriate bouquets, flower boxes and posters. A good retailer should be a sort of walking calendar, with particular reference to public holidays and any other days when it might be possible to attract the public and push business. Lincoln's birthday was a public holiday, and many people were on the streets, but business seemed to be slow with most of the retailers. In the show window of one store, we noticed a bust of Lincoln and a miniature log cabin on a background of the national colors, and it was a pleasing sight. Now, every business man should be patriotic and he is not lowering his standard of patriotism if he shows it in a manner that helps his business. Every florist, and every other man that breathes the air of this free country, should thank God for the day that such a man as Abraham Lincoln was born. The foregoing is not written as criticism, but as a suggestion. It is not disrespect, but thoughtlessness that causes many people to think lightly of such anniversaries as the birthdays of such men as Washington, Lincoln and McKinley, men who did so much to make this a country fit to live in. There was no great increase in the arrivals of roses during the past week. American Beauties continue scarce. In the tea roses, there was an ample supply to meet the demand at considerably reduced prices. Carnations, sweet peas and practically all the bulbous stocks, are more plentiful and cheaper, though all special stock brings a good price. A few Darwin tulips are on the market, and some of the best have wholesaled for $2 per dozen. In considering St. Valentine's day business, it would not be just to compare it with that of last year, as February, 1918, left both a war and a zero record. It can, therefore, be stated that the retailers, who in the past have catered to St. Valentine's day customers, report the business quite as good as in previous years. On the other hand there are many stores that never have had much of such business. Possibly if they would follow our previous suggestions they might increase their business. It is interesting to note that at present, excepting American Beauty roses and gardenias, there is an abundance of stock on the market, much of it of excellent quality. While there are good carnations and double violets on the market, it seems to the writer that the general average of quality in both stocks has fallen off. The single violets are now more attractive features than the double, one reason being that their perfume lasts longer. A double violet, if a little stale, has a smell, but not a perfume. Orchids, which have been selling all winter at reasonable figures, had a considerable part in St. Valentine's day business. While there are many short stem sweet peas on the market, there is also exceptionally fine stock, which is always in demand. The tulips, both cut and in pans, are popular features, and several stores have reported good sales in pans of tulips and pots of primroses. The acacias are now exceptionally attractive features, both as cut stock and pot plants. In the window of a leading Broadway store, we have recently noticed several large and wonderfully beautiful plants of A. pubescens. Two or three such plants, running to a height of six or eight feet, with their great drooping mass of yellow flowers, furnish an unexcelled window decoration, with lower plants or vases of cut flowers at the base. We cannot recall a year when there was such a fine stock of iris on the market. If there was nothing else to save, it would be worth while to fight the embargo for sake of the irises.

February 17.—There is about the usual amount of Monday buying for stocking up, but no unusual features in the market. The weather is fair, and there is likely to be an ample supply of stock throughout the week.

NOTES.

Enthusiasm reached a high pitch in this city, February 17, when Colonel "Bill" Hayward's regiment, the old 15th—the negro regiment—marched up Broadway. As a matter of course, it was the colored brothers and sisters that furnished the most heartfelt applause, but they were joined by many leading Anglo-Saxons. The joy overflowed into the wholesale district, and Mrs. William Kessler, of 113 West 28th street, stepped into Broadway and presented Colonel Hayward with a large bouquet.

Dards' store was closed, February 13, the day of the funeral of their late employe, Marius Mutillod. Manager Perry and a number of the young men of the store acted as honorary pallbearers. Charles A. Dards has been absent from the city for some time. Funeral services for the deceased were held at the Secaucus Roman Catholic church, and the remains placed in a vault until suitable arrangements are made for shipment to France.

Joseph Kostozewski, gardener to Mrs. H. J. Luteher, of Orange, Tex., visited leading floral establishments of this city and vicinity during the past week, in company with his friend, Joseph A. Manda, of West Orange, N. J.

New London Horticultural Society.

The New London Horticultural Society held its first meeting under the newly elected officers at New London, Conn., February 13, with a good attendance. Secretary Stanley Jordan read the protest against the proposed plant quarantine ruling, and it was unanimously voted to support such protest and present it to the representative in congress from this district. It was the consensus of opinion that such quarantine would make it very hard for all interested in floriculture and horticulture if enforced. The March meeting of the society will be in the nature of a social gathering.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June, 1919.

CALIFORNIA growers returning from the east report satisfactory business.

RECENT abundant rains insure sufficient moisture for the California seed crops.

SANTA ANA, CALIF.—A. B. Haven, of the Haven Seed Co., is planning an eastern trip.

RADISH has been largely resown in California and needs a long, cool spring to make a crop.

DETROIT, MICH.—Lem W. Bowen, of D. M. Ferry & Co., is making a trip to South America.

BALTIMORE, MD.—J. Bolgiano & Son report garden seed trade running well ahead of last season.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—W. F. Therkildson, according to report, is no longer with the W. Atlee Burpee Co.

It is said 160 carloads of onion sets were shipped out of South Holland, near Chicago, during January.

EVERETTE R. PEACOCK, Chicago, has returned from New York, where he was engaged on export business.

H. N. BRUNS, the well known lily of the valley man, of Chicago, is in New York inspecting arrivals of his specialty.

D. I. BUSHNELL, of St. Louis, Mo., is at Biloxi, Miss., and likes that place. Later he expects to proceed to Pensacola, Fla.

AN advance of 10 per cent in wages at the Union stock yards, Chicago, retroactive to November 10, 1918, may affect fertilizer costs.

NEW YORK.—Lieut. Peter Henderson has received his discharge from the army, and with Mrs. Henderson is at the Marie Antoinette hotel here.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Mrs. M. W. Johansen, of El Monte, Calif., is at the National Homeopathic hospital in this city, a sufferer from influenza, but is reported to be safe on the road to recovery.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co., general mail order house of Chicago, is again in the seed business with an elaborate catalogue. It will be recalled that this firm tried to establish a seed department some years ago.

VISITED CHICAGO: C. W. Scott, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., New York.; L. W. Wheeler, of Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif.; F. L. Hogue, Ventura Calif.; John T. Buckbee, Rockford, Ill.

HENRY FIELD, of Shenandoah, Ia., had an illustrated 12-page advertisement in the Weekly Kansas City Star of February 5, covering the full line of catalogue stocks—vegetable, flower and field seeds, implements, fruit and ornamented trees and shrubs, etc. An advertising specialist estimates the cost of the advertisement at $12,000.

Wholesale Seedsmen's League.

A meeting of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League was held at the Hotel Astor, New York, February 14, with the following in attendance: F. W. Bolgiano, of F. W. Bolgiano & Co., Washington, D. C.; Charles H. Breck and Manager Gardner, of Jos. Breck & Sons Corp., Boston, Mass.; David Burpee, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; E. Bruggerhoff and Mr. Smith, of J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York.; Lee Don, of Weeber & Don, New F. Willard, of Comstock, Ferre & Co., Wethersfield, Conn., and Watson S. Woodruff, of S. D. Woodruff & Sons, Orange, Conn.

There was considerable criticism of the offering of surpluses at greatly reduced prices, also the conspicuous trade paper advertising of contract quotations to the disadvantage of dealers and jobbers.

New York Seed Bills Objectionable.

Under the above caption in our issue of February 8, page 174, Marshall H. Duryea, of the Nungesser-Dickinson Seed Co., New York, state correspondent of the American Seed Trade Association, called attention to a new seed bill containing a number of objectionable features introduced in the New York state assembly. In a further communication, dated February 13, Mr. Duryea has the following:

"Since writing, February 3, advising you of Assemblyman Witter's proposed seed bill, No. 185, Int. 183, there has been another bill offered by Senator Adon P. Brown, known as Senate bill 309, 'an act to amend the agricultural law, in relation to agricultural seeds and the sale thereof.' Senator Brown advises that there will be a joint hearing before the senate and assembly committees on agriculture on this bill February 26, at Albany, New York.

"While no definite date has yet been fixed for Assemblyman Witter's bill, he has advised me that it will come up before his committee on agriculture on February 19 or 26, probably the latter date. It is important that there be a good representation of New York state seedsmen at the hearing, as these bills are of the utmost importance to all seed dealers."

DATE OF HEARING.

Senator Brown has advised that there will be a hearing on his bill, No. 309, before the agricultural committee at Albany, February 26. Assemblyman Witter's bill will probably come up for a hearing at the same time and it is important that we have a full representation at these hearings.

Imports at New York.

S. S. ROTTERDAM ARRIVES.

The long expected—and if reports are true—long delayed S. S. Rotterdam of the Holland-America line, from Rotterdam, via Brest, reached New York February 17. It was about three weeks ago, possibly four, that it was rumored in the seed trade district of that city that the steamer was nearing port and the rumor was repeated from time to time. The humorist of the trade press who has to sustain his reputation—as a humorist—formed the habit of joking with the state question: “Has the Rotterdam arrived?”

Included in the steamer's cargo were horticultural goods as follows:

W. E. Brown, 255 cases plants, two cases bulbs.

F. B. Vandegrift & Co., 53 cases plants.

W. Van Dorn, 71 cases plants and shrubs.

McHutchison & Co., 228 bundles trees, 452 cases plants.

N. F. McCarthy & Co., 70 cases plants.

P. C. Kuyper & Co., 195 cases plants.

P. Ouwerkerk, 169 cases plants.

Bobbinck & Atkins, 52 cases plants and trees.

Van Zonnweld & Phillippo, 30 cases bulbs.

Van Waveren & Sons, 85 cases bulbs.

R. F. Lang, 200 cases bulbs.

Seed Wheat—Slow Seed Trade.

Local seed dealers report an increased demand for spring wheat for seed from all sections of the country that have never sown any before, according to the Chicago Tribune of February 15. Some inquiries come from as far south as Kentucky. It will be interesting to watch how the spring wheat comes out in the non-spring wheat sections. Some is being seeded already in southern Illinois. Farmers seem to have but one idea, and that is to take advantage of the $2.26 guarantee of the government. The general seed trade is slow for this season.

COLUMBUS, O.—George D. Stewart, salesman for the Livingston Seed Co., of this city, died February 14, aged 67 years.

GRASS SEED.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade February 19 were as follows: Timothy, $8.00 to $10.50 per 100 pounds.

SAVANNAH, GA.—The plant of Southern Fertilizer & Chemical Co. was completely destroyed by fire February 14, including 19,000 tons of nitrate of soda, valued at $1,500,000.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover market closed 25 cents higher February 17 at $24.50, registering a gain of $1.85 during the preceding seven days. February was quoted at $24.50 and March at $24.00. Timothy was a trifle higher, cash being offered at $4.67½, February $4.67½, March $4.70, April $4.77½, May $4.80 and September $5.40.

DREER'S FINE SWEET PEAS

We offer below a line of the very best Orchid-flowered and Grandiflora sorts. For complete list including the Early Forcing kinds see our current Wholesale Catalogue, copies free to florists on request.

Orchid-Flowered or Spencer Sweet Peas

This type is distinguished from the grandiflora sorts by the extraordinary size of their flowers and by the standard being crinkled and wavy. They usually bear four blossoms on a stem, and are as easy to grow as the commonest sorts. Owing to their being shy seeders, they will always be higher in price than the grandifloras.

TEXAS potato growing counties report reduced acreage.

SOME Florida points report potato acreage equal to that of last year.

REPORTS from Los Angeles, Calif., state the cauliflower crop has been damaged by rain.

RIVERSIDE, CALIF.—A joint meeting of horticultural commissioners from several counties and a committee of packers met here February 11, to adopt a programme to facilitate the movement of marketable oranges.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 18.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $1.00 to $5.00; celery, Florida, crate, $5.50 to $6.00; head lettuce, crate, $4.50 to $5.00; radishes, per dozen bunches, 50 to 60 cents; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $6.00 to $7.00.

New York, February 17.—Celery (Florida), per case, $2.00 to $5.00; cucumbers, $2.50 to $3.00 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.25 per basket; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 50 cents; lettuce, per package, $1.50 to $4.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $5.00.

Vegetable Markets.

The carlot movement of vegetables for the period February 11-17 was heavier with the trend of prices continuing irregular, according to reports received by the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture. Potatoes declined five to 25 cents, bringing the level to about the low point of last November and to that of about two weeks ago in the west, but below that point in the east. Northern white stock sacked declined 25 cents at Chicago, closing at $1.50-$1.55, and $1.40-$1.45 f. o. b. Wanpaca. Colorado No. 1 sacked whites again declined five cents, closing at $1.10-$1.20 f. o. b. Greeley. Cabbage was fairly steady. New York Danish Seed followed a wide range, but was somewhat stronger at $20-$30 per ton in both shipping sections and consuming markets. Wisconsin Holland Seed also ranged $20-$30 in consuming markets in the middle west. Florida stock held steady in shipping sections at 75-90 cents per hamper and advanced to a range of $1.25-$2.00 in northern consuming markets. The onion market was firm at the prevailing range of $2-$2.25 in both producing and distributing sections with a top of $2.50 in the north. Lettuce was higher, advancing to a range of $3-$3.75 per 1½ bushel hamper at Florida shipping points and gained 25-50 cents in consuming markets, closing at $4-$5. California iceberg ranged $2-$3 per crate f. o. b. shipping points. Celery was fairly steady. California Golden Heart ranged firm in producing sections at 85-95 cents per dozen but was weaker in consuming markets at $7-$10 per crate. Florida stock weakened slightly at shipping points but was firm in markets at $5.75-$6.25. The bean market continued weak in all sections.

Lettuce Temperatures.

There has been much discussion in regard to proper temperature for growing lettuce under glass. That no agreement has ever been arrived at is perfectly reasonable, as local conditions have a great deal to do with results. We have this winter had a striking example in this line, one which has convinced us that in this connection, not all conditions are given the consideration they deserve. We were compelled on account of the shortage of labor last fall to use a soil in one of our greenhouses that, in our judgment, contained entirely too much humus for the best results. This humus, although originally produced by manure, yet was very fine, old, and had been cropped for years, thus reducing its disturbing possibilities. This soil was almost an ideal soil for any purpose, only what we call a little too good. However, we used it and were determined to counteract its bad qualities by lower temperature, more ventilation and less watering. The results so far have been that we have not come to the limit of low temperatures or lack of moisture, save by a complete freeze-up or drying out. In other words, our lettuce has made rapid progress in such a low temperature and with so little moisture that the whole process is a revelation. Besides, even with extreme care, this lettuce has always got a little away from us, grows too soft and tall to suit us exactly, and the danger line of a freeze-up has been kept so near that no further reduction in temperature was possible.

Agricultural writers have dwelt at length upon the value of humus to induce coolness outdoors, claiming the humus attracting the sun's rays to heat up the soil, and owing to its porous nature, the water absorption being great, long periods of dry weather could be bridged over without harm; however, we have not run across a statement that plant growth would proceed at a much lower temperature in a soil rich with humus than one poorly supplied. This experience demonstrated why some growers produce about the same kind of lettuce under 40 degrees that others do at 50 degrees. It is plain that the less humus a soil contains, the higher the temperature can be carried. We have often noticed that pot bound plants in poor soil dry out more rapidly than others in rich soil. This also holds good outdoors: that in order to produce a good crop on poor soil, much more moisture is needed than on rich land. Under glass, another factor is the amount of light; the less shade in the roof, the higher the temperature can be carried and vice versa.

One grower recently told us that he has lost thousands of dollars by using too much manure under glass, to which statement we may add that he probably did not balance up his humus with other elements, which would include light, heat, moisture, ventilation and additional elements, such as bone meal, lime and clay. When black soils are in use and much manure is added year after year, a small addition of yellow clay is a great corrective.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-four annual convention will be held at Chicago in 1919.

Plant Embargo Protest.

BY MINNESOTA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Minnesota State Horticultural Society, having a membership of 3,200 men and women interested in horticultural work and progress, does herewith emphatically protest against the enforcement of Quarantine Order No. 37, made by the federal horticultural board.

Under the ruling of this board, the above quarantine order will take effect June 1, 1919, and will put an embargo on nearly all plants which have in the past been imported from foreign countries and are still needed in the future for the benefit and enjoyment of the people of our country.

We submit the following reasons why this embargo is unfair, unjust and should not be enforced.

1. The purpose of the embargo is to prevent the importation of plant diseases and insect pests; which purpose will not be accomplished unless importation of all plants is prevented.

2. If there is danger in importing trees and shrubs, there is also danger in the importation of scions and buds; against which there is no embargo.

3. There is as much danger in importing rose stock for grafting as there is in grafted stock and plants on their own roots.

4. If lily bulbs, lily of the valley, narcissi, hyacinths, tulips and crocuses can be imported, why are snowdrops, irises, orchids, anemones, astilbes, begonias, gladioli, gloxinias, etc., excluded?

5. We know of no good reason why azaleas, rhododendrons, araucarias, boxwood, bay trees, dracaenas, palms, orchids, etc., should not be imported.

6. Until plants needed can be produced here in the desired quality and quantities, their importation should be permitted. A large number of these plants will, most likely, never be satisfactorily produced in this country.

7. The enforcement of the embargo will deprive this country of the benefits of horticultural progress made in foreign countries and deny us the introduction of novelties produced abroad by horticultural establishments of world-wide reputation, which are as much interested in having their plants free of disease and insects as we are ourselves.

8. Last, but not least, it is possible to prevent the importation of diseases and insect pests through proper inspection and precautionary measures made and taken at the points of shipment and ports of import.

For the reasons herein stated we consider the ruling of the federal horticultural board to be arbitrary and unwarranted. We respectfully protest against the enforcement of this embargo, because we know that its results will be detrimental to the horticultural interests of the United States.

As individuals, and as an association, we are devoted to unrestricted progress and development of horticulture, which is facilitated and made possible through intercourse and close affiliation with other progressive countries and interests.

Climbing Roses.

In spite of their many excellent qualities the older climbing roses, such as Baltimore Belle and Prairie Queen, have been displaced to a considerable extent by those of the rambler type, like Crimson Rambler and Dorothy Perkins, according to W. E. Bontrager in the Monthly Bulletin of the Ohio agricultural experiment station. Dorothy Perkins, light pink, is a strong grower, has good foliage and at present is the most popular of the ramblers. By grouping it with Red Dorothy Perkins, also called Excelsa, and White Dorothy Perkins, a charming and unusual effect may be secured. Dr. Walter Van Fleet has particularly fine, glossy foliage and large, semidouble roses in a clear, dainty shade of light pink. Almost identical with Van Fleet in other respects is the variety Mary Lovett, the blooms of which are pearly white. One of the most profuse bloomers of all is Tausendschon (Thousand Beauties), a nearly thornless plant producing double roses in several shades of light pink. Although it does not flower freely until several years old and well established, Gardenia, known to some as Hardy Marechal Niel, is the only hardy yellow climber worth mentioning and by reason of its uncommon color is likely to be quite generally planted when better known. Climbing American Beauty has large, showy, double, deep pink roses and when at its best has few superiors. Silver Moon is a new rambler with large, showy semidouble, white flowers and prominent stamens, and a very good foliage.

For those who prefer single forms American Pillar and Hiawatha, both pink, will doubtless be found suitable. The former bears its bloom in close clusters, while the roses of Hiawatha are more evenly distributed over the plant. The wild Prairie Rose (Rosa setigera) is an excellent bush for training over low walls and fences, although not a true climber. While they are promising in many respects, most of the ever-blooming climbers appear to lack hardiness and should be planted sparingly until more extended trials of them have been made.

Nashville, Tenn.
 ST. VALENTINE'S DAY DEMAND GOOD.
 Flowers continue scarce, especially roses, which are almost out of the market, with no early prospect of an abundant supply. There are quite a lot of sweet peas and Paper White narcissi, while carnations are doing their best to make up for other deficiencies. Business, while not lagging, had an added spurt by the call produced by St. Valentine's day, and all the dealers enjoyed a fine trade. The condition of the flower supply made anything and everything acceptable as a Valentine flower. Some of the stores had a goodly supply of violets, but these were not home grown, coming from near about cultivators, who just happened to get them in at the right time. There were all kinds of attractive novelties in the way of baskets, birch boxes, vases and pot plants of many kinds. Some brilliant combinations were made in the birch boxes with red cyclamens, yellow jonquils and Primula obconica, which proved to be very good sellers. Plants of all kinds that were in the market had a good sale. There were some nice lilies, both the Bermuda and calla, and some lily-of-the-valley, which combined with orchids were very popular for corsage bouquets.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Sweet Peas from Cuttings.

New sweet pea varieties being always expensive and not always seeding freely, multiplication by cutting may be made to increase the production from a certain amount of seed four or five fold. First of all, the mother plants must be grown short and stocky, for cuttings from weak plants would be worthless. When the plants are four to five inches high and have five to six joints, make the cuttings with a good pair of scissors, just above the third joint. Scissors are better than a knife, on account of the fibrous stems, which, resisting the knife, are apt to tear or pull the roots. Remove the leaves from the cutting, except the upper two, and pot in sand in thumb-pots, taking care to place them near the edge. Water before and after potting and cover with glass; wipe the glass now and then, to remove superfluous moisture, and shade if too hot, though the cuttings like the light. They will be rooted in two or three weeks, when the glass may be removed, and a week later they may be repotted and treated they will give the same results and will be the same as seedlings, well cared for, bloom about the same time.

Hydrangeas.

The greatest demand for hydrangeas is in May and June, and to have them in the best condition at that time the plants should be started before March
1. While they may be started later and forced harder, yet the plants so grown are not as sturdy and do not give so good satisfaction after they are placed on the porches. Start the plants in a cool house and if the wood has become dry in their winter quarters frequent syringing will assist in softening it. When they begin to grow do not crowd them. Crowding and too much heat are the principal causes of the long, ungainly plants so often seen.
If they are grown in a cool house, with plenty of room, the plants will be sturdy and short-jointed, covered with beautiful foliage and shapely, and are a great ornament, which surely cannot be said of the tall plants with small foliage and bare stems toward the base. When the plants begin to grow rapidly they will require plenty of water, and during the warm, sunny days of spring, when the houses are hot, all the ventilation possible, and at this time watch carefully for red spider, which gather in great numbers on the young growths and blooms and quickly spoil them. If they appear, syringe heavily until they are overcome. Keep the plants staked and tied as soon as required.

Easter Lilies

The one important crop to the plantsman at this time is the lilies for Easter, for they must be properly timed to be at their best on that date.
Easter this year comes April 20, and most growers like to see buds on their plants six weeks before that time. If the buds are not showing, the temperature will have to be increased to 70° at night. This will do the plants no harm if they have good sunlight during the day and are given all the ventilation possible, but the ventilators should not be opened unless the sun is shining and the thermometer at least at the same degree as the night temperature, and avoid all draughts possible, for the plants grown so warm are very tender. It is next to impossible to bring a lot of lilies in all together, so it is better to grow them so the slowest ones will be in on time, and move those that are more advanced into a cooler house and retard them, but this should not be done until the buds are nearly full grown. A lily retarded when the buds are forming is very difficult to start into active growth again, but after the first buds begin to turn white the plants can be moved into a house of 50° or lower and they come on slowly and will be of better quality than those grown warmer. The plants should be all tied to a neat stake as soon as the buds form, if not already done, for the buds add considerable weight to the top of the stems and they bend over very quickly. When the buds form, if the plants are pot bound, a watering of liquid manure will increase the size and substance of the flower. It will be a continued fight against aphids from this time on, and fumigation or spraying with nicotine will have to be regularly and continually practiced to bring the plants into bloom in the best condition.

Mignonette.

The grower will always find some plants in his beds of mignonette that produce exceptionally large spikes of bloom; the plants are more vigorous in foliage or the blooms of better form, and these spikes that show special characteristics should be selected and the seed saved, and in this way the grower can procure a strain which, after two or three years' selection, will be far ahead of any seed he can buy. This seed should, however, be saved before the bees and other insects are flying around and attracted to the houses, for they will cross-fertilize the flowers with undesirable strains. The seeds of mignonette do not ripen all at once, and as the pod remains open the ripe seed falls out and is lost, so special preparation must be made to receive it. Select the spikes that are to be saved for seed and tie them to strong stakes and mark them. The flowers should then be cross-fertilized by rubbing a camel's hair brush up and down the flowers. This should be done every bright day, so as to secure a thorough pollination. To catch and hold the seed, take a piece of heavy brown paper and roll it into a cone shape, and after winding a piece of cotton around the stem and stake below the flowers tie the small end of the cone-shaped paper around the cotton, the paper spreading upward so as to catch all the seeds that drop out of the seed pods. This can remain until all the seed has ripened, and as the spike grows the cross-fertilization continues, but care should be taken that no water gets into the paper to wet the cotton, and the seed must be gathered before the days become so warm that insects and bees are in the houses.

Violets.

With the approach of spring the violet plants grow rapidly and quantities of runners will spring from the old stools and propagation of the runners at this time will save much time and room later in the season when the spring stock is insistently demanding space, and much better plants are procurable from cuttings taken now than from divisions in May, when the days are often warm and the plants more or less exhausted. And if the young stock is procured now the old plants can be thrown out as soon as through blooming, securing available room at once. These runners or laterals root easily at this time in a propagating bench or can be taken off with a few small roots and either potted or placed in flats and will take but little room, and as early as possible placed in a cold frame. Treated in this manner, splendid stock may be obtained for planting out early, either in the field or in the houses, and with good strong stock to start with much better results are sure to be attained than by being obliged to plant small, weak stock later in the year. As the warm days approach the houses will need to be shaded, for the sun bleaches the flowers, and a watering of liquid manure will greatly assist in maintaining the size of the blooms and also keeping up the color.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

Now that the first days of spring are almost here, there is an increase of assortment and quantity, both in cut flowers and blooming plants, that should be featured and displayed to the best advantage, so that the store should present, in a sense, a spring-like appearance. Bulbous stock, in pots and pans, cinerarias, Primula obconica, chorizemas, heather, genistas, yellow callas, etc., present a variety which will make a small spring exhibition in themselves. Medium-sized plant baskets, filled with variegated foliage and some of the above mentioned flowering plants are very decorative, sure to attract attention, and frequently buyers.

The trade as a rule does not realize the usefulness and profit in carrying a line of fancy foliage plants in moderate sizes, such as three and four inch pot crotons, dracenas, marantas, the near Farleyense, or Glory fern, bird's nest fern, cocos, etc. These, with care, keep in the ordinary store for from two to three weeks and furnish a stock, useful in plant baskets, in all kinds of spray or design work, splendid for table decorations, either in pots or used in cut sprays. Many standing designs have their bases greatly improved by the addition of such stock, which takes the place of, or is used in connection with cut flowers. Good sized wreaths, plateau baskets, and even clusters, are given much needed variety with a judicious use of these plants cut off at the ground line of the pots to get as long a stem as possible.

What is being done through general or personal publicity to keep your store in the memory of flower buyers? The accounts from the various large cities of the country, where St. Valentine's day was featured by the well planned window decorations, and collective advertising of the craft, showed splendid results. The publicity had much to do with the success; it created a desire, while the beauty of the flowers, and their tasteful and appropriate arrangement, exactly suited the sentiment of the day, brought the business.

Extra efforts every week or two, when the condition of the market in plants or flowers allows of featuring the first of this or that plant or flower, or a quantity lot of something popular, adds an impetus to business. The list of customers, regular and casual, as well as possible buyers in good neighborhoods, should be told of these events by means of the neatly printed post cards which only take a penny stamp for delivery. These should be in different colors, sufficient of a kind to cover the list. Addressed during the summer months, or at leisure moments, they are, when returned from the printer and stamped, ready at once for mailing. With the stock on hand, well displayed, and these store messengers out working, there is almost sure to be a gratifying response, and good business results.

Do not overlook the opportunity there is in the convalescent baskets of fruit and flowers, made up, just a sample of a size at a time. A little choice fruit, arranged so that all pieces shall show to advantage, and as many flowers as can be used decoratively, with their stems in hidden glass tubes, there is presented a good selling article that is almost a novelty, and is especially suited for a friend under the weather at home, or the patient in the hospital.

The little stork baskets or cradles are in season at all times and can be featured quite often with good results. Many may admire them without being especially interested, but later hearing of the good bird's visit to a friend's house, the little cradle with its Sweet-heart roses or other small flowers is remembered, and a sale is made.

It is not too early to be up and doing about your Easter plant stock.

CALCEOLARIA HYBRIDA.

Plant in 8-Inch Pot. Grown by James Livingstone, Milwaukee, Wis., From Seed Sown June 30, 1917, and Carried in Cool Temperature. It Measures 40 Inches in Diameter. Good Subject For Easter.

Certain lines are pretty sure to be scarce this year, and the first responsible man on the job will be in the best position when the delivery time rolls around. One can plan better for this big event with a knowledge of what the market affords. Many good growers will meet the storeman half-way in carrying out his ideas in potting or panning up desired stock if he is given the order in time. With no Belgian azaleas, comparatively little spirea, and a great shortage of lilies, hydrangeas will be in great demand, as will rambler roses. As such stocks can only be sold once, it is surely advisable to be early on the ground.

Have you joined the ranks of the F. T. D.? If not, you are standing in your own light. This system is no experiment. It is bringing thousands of dollars worth of extra business to many individual firms. Join this industrial army; work for and with them; send orders from your store and receive theirs in return. Write to Secretary Albert Pochelon, Detroit, Mich. Do it today.

Flowers in Decorative Display.

While flowers are of themselves beautiful, they can be made more attractive, or at least more noticeable to possible buyers by displaying them in simple decorative effects that are known to all, or nearly all, in the retail trade. Flowers are bought and handled by many in the trade as if they were something to keep, to put away until wanted. They are kept in the original bunches, put in jars and into the case, often out of sight, and there left like parcels in the package room of the railroad station until called for.

If flowers are given half a chance they will sell themselves, so from the moment they are brought into the shop, if not wanted for some specific purpose, they should be given every opportunity and the best handling possible to show off their beauty in various decorative ways.

ARTISTIC ABILITY NOT NECESSARY.

A man or woman needs no especially artistic sense to arrange flowers so as to give the shop a good business-like appearance. What is first wanted is a clean bright interior. Nothing invites like cleanliness. A carelessly kept, dusty shop is very repelling to customers, particularly ladies.

Flowers should be displayed in wide-mouthed glass or terra cotta vases or bowls in shades of blue, green or brown. Pink flowers look well in light blue receptacles, yellows in green or brown. Bowls are for the short stemmed stock, such as tulips, daffodils, narcissi, sweet peas, short calendulas, mignonette, etc. Vase baskets also show this stock off with decorative effect, from which it can be sold separately or with the basket.

It takes but a few minutes, when the flowers and jars are in readiness, to present them in a way that is far more decorative and inviting than in the bunches as they come from the grower. Two bunches of daffodils loosened, the stems given a rinse off in a bucket and dropped together in a medium sized bowl, with the addition of a few short pussy willow sprays, at once take on a dressed appearance. Place a dozen sprays in a tumbler or small vase basket, with a knot of ribbon on the handle, and something salable at once awaits a customer. Tulips can be handled in the same way. A number of other flowers will require the addition of a little foliage, ferns, asparagus, short leucothoe sprays, etc., none of which is, however, wasted. A number of bunches of sweet peas, each in a short wax paper cornucopia, standing in bowls of water, while not exactly decorative, look larger and more salable than if not featured in this way.

DENDROBIUM THRYISIFLORUM.

Grown by James Livingstone, Milwaukee, Wis., in 6-inch Pot, Showing 10 Beautiful Racemes of Flowers Open at One Time.

A decorated mantel, or the shelf in front of a mirror, is a good place to arrange a vase or two of flowers in connection with a few ferns.

To give variety to the store's interior, a folding screen, with a palm or two, and a ciborium at the back or at one end, together with a vase or two of cut flowers, one of tall snapdragons and another lower, and a blooming plant, will receive favorable comment. Each day's decorative effects should, as far as possible, be planned out the day before. So much more can be done and in shorter time when it is known what flowers are to be used and how.

FEATURE SEASONABLE STOCK.

Keeping in close touch with the market helps, as stock that is seasonable and can be bought in quantity to sell to advantage, should be kept to the front and made the most of in the store. The money is not in variety; it is in specialties, things that are seasonable. Just now it is bulbous stock, sweet peas and carnations. Later on roses will be plentiful. Cattleyas are good stock to carry at all times. No high class shop is ever without them, and many whose trade is almost entirely with the salaried people, find them necessary in all good work. There is no better way to display the cattleya than in a basket planted with the Gloriosa fern, the near Farleyense. Glass tubes, filled with water, stuck in among the ferns, and tied to the handle of the basket, concealed with an orchid ribbon, will, when filled with cattleyas, make a beautiful ornament, from which the flowers can be sold as well as from a shelf high up in the flower case, where they are not readily seen.

Flowers are bought to be sold not to keep, and the above described methods should be applied and used at all times to have them moving as fast as possible. If this matter of arranging the stock is given into the hands or in charge of one person, they will become in a measure expert, taking a pride in the work and always have the store looking in good business like order with the stock arranged and displayed to the best advantage. This department will have its hands full on all busy days as selections and sales very quickly disarrange the groups, particularly plants, which should always be replenished or kept in good shape so that customers shall not get the impression that the best have all been picked out.

Try some of the methods as outlined. They can be applied to the smallest stock, and will be found just as effective in the store that does $5,000 a year, as when the value reaches $100,000.

Correction.

In the report of Max Schling's lecture and demonstration before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, we failed to correctly note some important facts. Their business of $180,000 and $42,000 spent for advertising was for 1913. Now the business for the year almost doubles these figures. The amount of F. T. D. or telegraph business for last December was as follows: 780 orders amounting to $11,000 were transferred in the different states and Canada, and $5,000 in addition, to and from Europe. The orders received in December from florists in the different states and Canada to fill in New York and vicinity amounted to $5,100, a grand total of telegraph delivery business for one month of $20,100.

Fertilizer Bill Introduced.

Congressman A. F. Lever of South Carolina on January 29 introduced in the house of representatives a bill known as "H. R. 15327" to authorize the secretary of agriculture to establish standards of classification for fertilizer; to regulate the sale and shipment thereof in interstate and foreign commerce; to prevent deception with reference thereto, and for other purposes."

The bill which was referred to the committee on agriculture is designated as "United States Fertilizer Act." Among other features, it provides that no shipments for sale in a container, other than in a loose lot in the vehicle of transportation, shall be made unless marked, tagged, branded or labeled as prescribed in the regulations so as to plainly show the net weight in pounds, the per cent in weight of available nitrogen, phosphoric acid, potash and other ingredients, together with the source, the term "available" being defined as "readily available for plant assimilation as ascertained in accordance with methods prescribed in the regulations." In shipments for sale of loose lots, the same information must be stated on the invoice or other instrument relating to such shipment sent to the purchaser or consignee. In all cases, the name and address of the manufacturer or manipulator must be given if the fertilizer be prepared in the United States, and the name of the importer, if imported. It is also provided that authority be given the secretary of agriculture to ascertain the demand for, the supply, consumption, cost and prices of, and the basic facts relating to the ownership, production, transportation, manufacture, storage and distribution of fertilizers, substances designed or intended for use as fertilizers, and raw materials entering into the composition of such fertilizers, and that every person engaged in the business of shipping, or selling for shipment in commerce, any fertilizer or substance designed or intended for use as such, shall keep such records and statements of accounts and make such reports or returns as may be required under the regulations, failing in which a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, may be imposed. The same penalty is provided for shipments which are misbranded, if refused by the consignee. No dealer, however, is to be prosecuted when he can establish a guaranty signed by the wholesaler, jobber or manufacturer, or other party residing in the United States from whom he purchased such fertilizer or substance and such party shall be amenable to the prosecutions, fines and other penalties which would in due course attach to the dealer.

The bill asks for an appropriation of $250,000, to be used in carrying out the measure should it become a law.

Testimonial Banquet to John Westcott.

The outspoken sentiment of all those who attended the banquet given to commemorate the seventy-ninth birthday of John Westcott at Dooner's hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., on the night of February 22, was that of love and admiration of his sterling character. He is truly a man who loves his fellow men, and is loved by them in return. More than 60, all intimate friends, sat with him around the beautifully decorated tables, on which was served an excellent dinner.

A. B. Cartledge was chairman and Robert Craig, toastmaster. The former told of his association with Mr. Westcott from boyhood, when he worked under him in the store, and had early learned to esteem and love him. Robert Craig spoke of his lifelong friend in terms of great admiration and affection, told of many of his achievements from the first meeting of the Society of American Florists in Philadelphia, and held him up as a bright example for the younger generation. Dr. P. H. Lane, on behalf of those in attendance, presented Mr. Westcott with a beautiful gold watch, chain and compass charm. His words were splendidly fitting and expressive. Mr. Westcott, in acknowledgement, said they were doing too much for him, more than he deserved. He claimed that in all he did, he had a selfish motive; he liked to have his friends about him and enjoy their company, and it more than repaid him to see them happy. He thanked them for this evidence of their esteem and their beautiful gift.

Commodore John Westcott.

W. F. Gude responded to the toast "Our Country." After referring in affectionate terms to the honored guest, he pointed to the glorious victory of the sailors and soldiers just won, and expressed the hope that the president and congress would be given the wisdom to do their part as well in a conclusive peace. Daniel Donoghue, whose toast was "Our City," referred to florists as men who bring out the best traits of human nature and that it was always a great pleasure to be with them. He called on all to use the power of the ballot, and also to teach it to their children, so that there shall be a real government by the people and not misrepresentation by bosses. "Philadelphia," he said, was "the City of Brotherly Love," which was exemplified in the life of Mr. Westcott towards his fellow men." He hoped many more years of life with his friends were open for him.

Charles H. Totty spoke of the great work of the Society of American Florists in its usefulness in the coal and other problems which had so seriously menaced the craft. He asked united support of the trade for Henry A. Dreer, Inc., in their protest before the horticultural board. Referring to Mr. Westcott he said he believed that his farm work and activities at Barnegat Bay, and the pleasure of having his friends about him, prolonged his life.

Charles H. Grakelow spoke of Mr. Westcott's life as an inspiration, an example in the various stages of his career for all young men to follow. He was all he seemed to be, with character back of him. It was a most glowing tribute, delivered in his most effective manner. J. Otto Thilow called attention to the great benefits to the florists' and seedsmen's industries that came with the foundation of the Society of American Florists, which had called into being the florists' clubs of the country and had been such a factor in promoting the business. He said to Mr. Westcott, "The love and affection instilled in us by your actions is worthy of you living your life over again, if that were possible."

S. S. Penneck expressed his great pleasure in being present and his high regard for Mr. Westcott. He also read a beautiful original poem written by Mrs. Penneck entitled, "King John, of Barnegat." Charles Seibold spoke of Mr. Westcott's great interest in the convention sports, and what a factor he was in keeping up this spirit. Antoine Wintzer spoke of the wonderful strides in the business and of the crying demand for stock of all kinds. He said we must not forget the men, now gone, who had laid the solid foundations on which the business had been built up.

A number of letters and telegrams were read from friends in all parts of the country, each full of regard for Mr. Westcott and regretting the writers' inability to be present. There was good music from a quartet and solos by Robert Craig and Dr. Lane, and an original song by Robert Kift. The menu took the form of a well arranged programme. An appropriate souvenir of the event, with a speaking likeness of the guest on the front cover. It was illuminated with quotations that especially fitted the event

KING JOHN OF BARNEGAT.

Original poem by Mrs. Samuel S. Penneck, Lansdown, Pa., in honor of Commodore John Westcott, and delivered by S. S. Penneck at Mr. Westcott's seventy-ninth anniversary celebration at Dooner's hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., February 22, 1919.

There's good King John, down Barnegat way
Whose castle stands, close by the bay,
His heart's as big as the ocean wide
And filled with love for all,—inside.

This genial monarch in his fortress hold,
Has the spirit of kindness, I've been told,
He sends his call both far and near
Oh come, come away, my subjects dear.

Come from your work, your cares,—and rest,
'Tis often good for e'en the best;
Let's sail a-far on the waters blue
And try our luck with fishing—too

So he gathers them in, these subjects true,
Under summer skies of azure hue
He shelters them, in his castle there;
They draw deep breaths of salt sea air.

And when they return to the haunts of men
Back to the city to work again,
They dream of John, their grand old king,
And ever and anon his praises sing.

If many kings there were like him,
Many less eyes with tears would dim,
Many less broken hearts there'd be,
Many less mourning bands we'd see.

If, o'er the sea there were such kings
The world would echo joyous rings,
And battlefields not strewn with dead
If all thrones held a wise, crowned head!

Good luck, King John, good wishes, too—
The best of earth should be for you;
We take this time,—to let you see Your faithful subjects,—we would be.

We wish for you a long, glad,—reign,
A life of joys that ne'er, shall wain
Where seasons shall be,—only spring,
God bless you, John, our noble king!

TESTIMONIAL BANQUET TO COMMODORE JOHN WESTCOTT, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

National Publicity for Flowers.

In a letter enclosing a cheque for $250 as the yearly subscription from his retail store to the publicity fund, and another cheque for $50 from his seed department, Max Schling, the well-known New York retail florist, remarks as follows:

"I am very glad to say that the advertising of our organization begins to be felt. People are constantly talking about it, and I hope that the longer we keep up our efforts the more we shall merit the support of such florists, growers, and others engaged in associated lines who have not already joined us in our work, so that we can not only increase our advertising but also force more and more the attention of the public to the fact that flowers can be used for any and every occasion; that their minds should turn to ourselves and our flowers in every case where courtesy to others is to be extended; and that whenever they want to express sentiment, it should be with flowers, and their gifts, also, should be floral."

Mr. Schling's views are shared by hundreds of other florists throughout the country; were evidence of this needed, it could not be better presented than in the very large demand lately experienced by our promotion bureau for the various items in its list of direct service aids: signs, stickers, movie slides, and electrotypes for use in newspaper advertisements and other forms of publicity. In the last four weeks there have been despatched over 300 packages of this material.

Our slogan, "Say it with Flowers," is declared to be the best ever devised, eliminating, as it does, anything approaching a direction, and embodying pure and simple suggestion. The promotion bureau notices a general increase on the part of the trade in the use of this slogan, but there are still great numbers of florists who do not seem to realize the value it is to them in their local publicity. It should appear on all stationery, packages, shipping tags, delivery cars, and in all local advertisements. But the original slogan design should be adhered to, the one the public is accustomed to see in the magazines. Line slogans in various sizes are supplied by the promotion bureau, and cost but little, and every florist who uses printed matter of any kind should provide himself with one or more to cover his needs.

As already announced, the campaign fund this year is to be $100,000. A goodly portion of this is already subscribed and the year is yet young. The great majority of those who subscribed last year are subscribers again this year, very many of them increasing their subscriptions. The campaign was more or less experimental last year, but the success attained has enthused the supporters of our movement to such an extent that they now consider their subscriptions as most profitable investments—and so they are.

There are very many florists who have not yet contributed to the fund. The reason, no doubt, is that they wanted to see how the first efforts panned out. They need have no misgivings as to the efficacy of the work. The returns for the money expended have been remarkably profitable. By means of our publicity the florist trade was carried safely through a period dark with anxiety and unrest. The good influence exerted remains with us, and will remain as long as it is nurtured and kept vigorously at work. Times are improving and response to our public overtures should be proportionately greater. But we must have the wherewithal to make these overtures. You can help us, Mr. Non-subscriber, with your subscription; and please do not forget that in helping our project you are helping yourself most of all as our promotion bureau is but the "clearing house" for your own effort, and which you owe it to yourself to make.

Carpe Diem.

If this were my last day I'm almost sure I'd spend it working in my garden. I would dig around my little plants and try to make them happy, so they would endure long after me. Then I would hide secure where my green arbor shades me from the sky, and watch how bird and bee and butterfly came hovering to every flowery lure. Then, as I rested, 'haps a friend or two, Lovers of flowers, would come, and we would walk about my little garden-paths, and talk of peaceful times, when all the world seemed true. This may be my last day for all I know: What a temptation just to spend it so!

South as Cut Flower Market.

Paper by R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex., read at the annual meeting of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, Nashville, January 30, 1919.

To say the least, this is a subject that is almost past the imagination of the most optimistic. When we undertake to try to predict or analyze the future this country of sunshine, fertile soil and of unbounded possibilities the south possesses, we undertake a subject that not only requires a great deal of study and thought, but also of experience and travels. While I have given the subject considerable thought, I dare say that my predictions along these lines will hardly do justice to what is in store for this southland, which is naturally a flower growing climate.

Let me say in the beginning that the increased demand for flowers, plants, shrubbery and other stock to beautify the home and lend to the home environments, has been increased beyond the expectations of the most optimistic. I believe I am conservative when I say, we have had an increase on an average, covering the entire south, about 40 per cent in the past 12 months. Yet with this tremendous increase, the shipping in of flowers to the south has only been decreased about 15 per cent. With the increase of 40 per cent in demand, and the decrease of shipping in of stock, we still have an increase in demand and over the supply of 25 per cent. Then, to summarize this, it is easy to conceive that our production is losing ground in proportion to our increase in business. In other words, the growing end of our business is not keeping up with the progress made in the increased demand for stock. Why is this, with all of the advantages in our favor? The good Lord has blessed us with sunshine, has made this land of ours most fertile, has given us everything that we need, and still we are neglecting our wonderful opportunities.

The war has brought about many changes, has taught us many lessons; more particularly along the lines of home-made and home-grown products. We have been cut off from Europe in supply of many bulbs, plants, trees and shrubbery in the past four years. Now comes the quarantine law which will permanently eliminate many of our valuable crops that have hitherto been imported from Europe. This is the one great opportunity for the south to wake up and produce a great deal of this stock. The field is unlimited; it is up to us. The day will soon pass when you will see greenhouses that are poorly built and of the poorest material. No heating system to speak of, stock grown on benches that are unprofitable, labor employed that is inefficient and unexperienced, the manager a man who is the chief designer, book-keeper, delivery boy, grower and jack of all trades, and as the saying goes, "good at none." He did all of these jobs half way, forgetting his financial obligations, knew nothing of the actual cost or profit of a single crop he is growing. If you should walk into his place, he would have a very good excuse for this or that cause of failure, when as a matter of fact, the trouble lies with him. Now, I am taking a rather extreme case; but there are a hundred of florists where this extreme condition exists that are operating at a loss to themselves and a discredit to the business. This particular florist ought to make money, where he is losing. Tear down the old greenhouses that are a waste of labor and time, erect modern houses, employ an experienced grower, put a bookkeeper on the job that can tell him where leaks exist and what department is making money, a delivery boy on the car of neat appearance who can render services to the customers, and let the manager give careful consideration to the development of his business, and there will be a radical change in the production, and a wonderful increase in business that is far beyond expectations.

I see signs in every community of better growing conditions; old greenhouses coming down, new ones going up, more up-to-date implements are being employed, better growers are being secured. Closer and more scientific study of growing conditions in the south is being made by every progressive florist. It is only a matter of a short time until the tables will be turned, and instead of shipping enormous amounts of cut flowers and stock from the northern markets; we will not only be supplying our own demands, but be making shipments into the larger markets of the country, and why shouldn't we? As stated before, conditions are all favorable to the grower of stock, our coal bills range from 10 to 40 per cent less than those of growers in the colder climates. We need not take all the precautions of having our houses caved in by heavy banks of snow, and excessive low temperature; our deliveries can be operated on a smaller cost, due to the mild climate, the packing of stock is at a minimum cost, more particularly interstate southern shipments, due to our favorable climatic conditions, and when it is all said, the south should, and will be, the flower market of the United States. What we need reminds me of the story of the young man in swimming with the young lady: Mary said, "John, why don't you kiss me?" John says, "I can't, my mouth is full of sand." She says, "Swallow it. You need it."

There is another greatly undeveloped field, and that is the introducing of our native flowers into the commercial market. About four years ago an old gentleman walked into my office and placed on my desk a bundle of wild flowers he had gathered from his pasture. A beautiful blue cup-shaped flower, striking in appearance and of unusual keeping qualities. On first sight I realized this flower had a commercial value, and from that day until this the Texas blue bell is playing an important part in the commercial summer cut flowers. There are numerous native flowers that are of great value; it is up to us to create the demand and find the market. Are we going to do it?

Now, just another important subject that we are all interested in, and that is our enormous express bills paid every month. I can employ two good growers and two helpers at a nice salary for the amount of money paid to the express company every month. The express, which runs about 20 per cent of the invoice adding 10 per cent for loss, we have an increase cost of 30 per cent over and above the man who buys his flowers on the market. This alone is enough to make you sit up and take notice. How long are we going to allow this condition to exist? I say to you, the time has come when this condition is changing. We are waking up to the situation. There is a fortune in store for us, if we will only take advantage of it.

There is another important factor of our business that is being revolutionized in a hurry, and that is the matter of credit. The only genuine power which an individual or group of individuals can gain, is that arising from the confidence reposed in him or them. A power whose circuit is too often broken by negligence and carelessness on the part of the florist in meeting his obligations promptly. Credit, as a matter of fact, is one of the harassing elements in business today. It can either fortify or weaken business. Credit to the retailer of flowers and allied merchandise, is for one purpose only; a temporary convenience granted by the wholesaler because of his confidence in the buyer—and is tendered to the buyer just so long as the wholesaler's trust in him and in his record for reliability and prompt payment, remains unblemished. Conditions, today, demand the prompt exchange of currency for merchandise purchased more than ever before. It applies as much to the man engaged in the floral business and allied businesses as any other.

During the past you have received through the credit tendered you, flowers and supplies on the basis of the wholesaler's confidence in your ability, and integrity to pay for this merchandise—and pay promptly. Are you going to fortify and maintain this credit confidence? You would not permit your credit to become impaired at your bank by "slow pay." For the same reason, you should meet your floral and supply bills as promptly as you meet your obligations at your bank. Upon this principle rests the very foundations of the commercial world today. Take credit or credit confidence from the transaction of the floral business, and it would disrupt it instantly.

You buy flowers and supplies on credit. You get those flowers and supplies without delay, and at a time when you want the stock and need them most. It is only fair to assume that you will meet your obligations when they become due, and with the same promptness that the wholesaler delivers the goods to you. Why should you keep the wholesaler waiting when you get what you need and when you want it? Reverse the transaction and then figure how long you could remain in business under the same conditions. In all fairness to the wholesaler and his service, we must pay our bills promptly. From our standpoint, we cannot afford to allow our credit to lapse into a state of careless delinquency by putting off the payment of our bills. This is overdrawn on credit confidence, and this confidence once shattered, is hard to regain.

Under certain conditions, it can be understood how a florist might be slow in meeting his current obligations. A lot of exigencies may arise which very often thwart his pre-arranged plans, but if the florist has the same confidence in the wholesaler that the wholesaler has expressed in him by granting credit, the explanation of these conditions to the wholesaler would oftentimes maintain credit rather than impair it.

Credit is for the florist who pays promptly. If the florist has been negligent, or slow, his promises to pay promptly are but mere "scraps of paper." The wholesalers in general are always glad to extend credit accommodations to the florists for their convenience, but delinquent and careless florists who "pay as you please," have created a condition which must be rectified for the benefit of the trade at large. Carelessness is very often the cause of bad credit. Carelessness is the great crime against good credit. The great trouble is there are too many pigeon holes in our "rell top," which closes unceremoniously on a number of past due accounts which "I will pay tomorrow." Good intentions, filed thoughtlessly in pigeon holes, become a bad habit. The florist must change the habit.

National Association of Gardeners.

MINNEAPOLIS CONFERENCE.

The members of the National Association of Gardeners, of Minneapolis and vicinity, held a very interesting conference at the residence office of Theodore Wirth, which was well attended. Mr. Wirth was elected chairman, and George H. Instone, of Lake Minnetonka, secretary. The programme for the day was outlined by the chairman, who briefly referred to the several subjects to come up for discussion.

The first matter was the impending embargo on importation of trees, shrubs, bulbs, etc., from foreign countries. The opinion prevailed that this action was unwarranted, especially at this time, and that the federal horticultural board was exceeding its power conferred by congress. All present pledged themselves to send a personal letter of protest to their respective senators and representatives in Washington, D. C. Mr. Wirth read a letter of protest which he sent to the Minnesota members of congress in the name of the board of park commissioners. The secretary was instructed to write a letter to the secretary of the national association, suggesting that he write a letter to every member of the association to interest himself in a similar way in this matter. The chairman was instructed to present this question before the Minnesota Horticultural Society at their annual meeting to be held in Minneapolis.

The work of the war garden, as conducted in this part of the country, was brought to the attention of the conference. The Minneapolis Garden Club, it was found, had a most successful year.

After luncheon at Mr. Wirth's residence, the conference took up the question of forming a gardeners' club of Lake Minnetonka. It was the opinion of all present that there were enough gardeners in the locality to warrant the forming of such an organization, and that the interests of the gardeners and their employes would be served through such a club. Mr. Klapotz was appointed chairman to take the matter in hand, with the privilege to select his own fellow members. He agreed to get busy, and intimated that he would make arrangements for the organization of such a club in the near future.

The fact that many estate owners do not give year-around employment to their gardeners in this section of the country, and that they do not know what the real qualifications of a good gardener are, were made the subject of a long discussion. It was the opinion of all present that the gardener, himself, is greatly to blame for such conditions and underestimation and lack of recognition of his profession and its value. One of the first topics to be taken up by the club to be formed will be the question of how to educate the estate owners along those lines, and how to establish better and closer relationship between the employers and employes in this field of work.

The matter of exhibitions and field meetings was also given consideration and it was predicted that such shows and gatherings would be of great help toward the solution of this and many other questions of general progress and mutual benefits.

GEORGE H. INSTONE, Sec'y.

OBITUARY.

William J. Stewart.

In the death of William J. Stewart, which occurred at his home in Winchester, Mass., February 23, horticulture has lost one of its most faithful, earnest and indefatigable workers, who throughout his lifelong connection with the craft, was at all times in the front rank in all matters concerning the uplift of the trade. As secretary of the Society of American Florists which office he administered with great fidelity for 19 years, resigning in 1907, to accept the presidency of the society which he so dearly loved, he was a prominent factor in uniting and welding together the various interests of the business, which resulted in many great achievements wrought through the agency of the society with the horticultural press while eastern representative of THE AMERICAN FLORIST for many years, and later as editor and manager of Horticulture. He was a voluminous and forceful writer, always exalting the worthy accomplishments of the trade, and free with criticism when he felt it necessary. He loved the flowers of the field alike with the cultivated beauties of the greenhouse and having a wonderful knowledge of everything pertaining to horticulture, his writings on these subjects were always full of valuable information. As a man among men, Mr. Stewart was a brother to all, truly a man who loved his fellow men. He made friends everywhere, and never lost them.

William J. Stewart was born in Cambridge, Mass., March 17, 1838. His parents were from the North of Ireland. In his early manhood, he was employed in the botanical garden of Harvard University and his first connection with the trade was with Strong, Spooner & Goodwin in North Beacon, Boston, in 1870. Two years later he formed a partnership with Strong and Spooner and a store was opened at 98 Vermont street. In 1877, the firm of Stewart & Spooner was formed as wholesale florists, N. F. McCarthy being their assistant. Later Mr. Stewart bought out the Spooner interests and moved to 13 Beacon street. Some time afterward he disposed of the business and engaged with the Waban Rose Conservatories, selling their flowers. Two years later he resumed business on his own account at No. 4 Park street and in 1882 opened a branch store in Philadelphia, Pa., with N. F. McCarthy in charge, which establishment he continued for about five years. A widow and three daughters survive.

APPRECIATION.

The following eulogy is from his friend, Robert Craig, Philadelphia, Pa.: "We shall all miss William J. Stewart. He was a man of vast horticultural knowledge and one of the most generous and unselfish of men. Much of his life was freely given to the service of others."

S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, said: "To me, William J. Stewart had an attractive personality, and once your friend, he was always your friend. He was most hospitable, and there was always a welcome in Boston for any visiting member of the craft. As a young man, I always received from him the attention generally accorded to older persons, as it seemed to be his desire to assist the rising generation and give a feeling of confidence."

Samuel Murray, Kansas City, Mo., writes: "I loved the late William J. Stewart, and am truly grieved I cannot attend his funeral as a last mark of devotion and respect."

Abram H. Cushman.

Abram H. Cushman, a well known seedsman of Rochester, N. Y., died at his home in that city February 17, age 82 years. He was born near Troy, N. Y., but began his residence in Rochester at the age of 14, at which time he entered school there, later becoming identified with the seed business in the capacity of manager of the Cleveland Seed Co. of New York. At the end of eight years he returned to Rochester and became engaged in the seed industry there, continuing until the time of his death. One son, William G. Cushman, survives.

Gustav Poehlmann.

Gustav Poehlmann, brother of August, Adolph, George and the late John Poehlmann, died just as we are going to press, Wednesday afternoon, February 26, at the Grant hospital, Chicago, following a general breakdown. He was about 60 years of age and was associated with Poehlmann Bros. Co., being employed in the Morton Grove office for many years.

BELOIT, WIS.—N. S. Wilson will erect one's house in the near future.

DUNKIRK, N. Y.—The range of Gilray Bros. was damaged by fire February 13 to the extent of $1,200.

ROCK ISLAND, ILL.—William Gaethje, son of Henry Gaethje, the well known florist of this place, died here February 26.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—Chas. R. Riedinger and William E. Bock, both well known to the trade, will open a flower shop in the new Market Street Arcade.

MT CLEMENS, MICH.—Robert Klagge, who has operated a range on Floral avenue for several years, has sold his establishment to Doemling & Schumell of Detroit.

EVERETT, WASH. — The Western Washington Horticultural Society has elected officers as follows for the ensuing year: Robert T. Reed, Bellevue, president; M. L. Dean, Olympia, first vice-president; G. P. Stuart, Monroe, secretary; Mrs. R. A. Small, Everett, treasurer.

Co-operative Advertising at Houston.

Co-operative advertising by the trade of Houston, Tex., for St. Valentine's day, increased sales for that occasion about 50 per cent. This took the form of space 16 inches deep and five columns wide in the daily press, calling attention to the appropriateness of floral valentines and the service available through the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, the slogan "Say it with Flowers" being a predominant feature in the well written and attractively illustrated "copy." The following firms were represented in the advertising: Kerr, The Florist, Brazos Greenhouses, Boyle & Pendarvis, Carroll, the Florist, Q. & C. Florists and the Kuhlmann Floral Co., Inc.

Garden Plant Quarantine.

If a proposed quarantine of the Federal Horticultural Board, a hearing on which has been set for February 26 at Washington, D. C., becomes a reality, growers of dahlias, gladioli and chrysanthemums in certain portions of Massachusetts and New York will be seriously affected as to interstate sales. The purpose of the proposed measure is to control the European corn borer, which it is claimed has made its appearance in the sections mentioned and attacks cultivated garden and flowering plants, including, among others, those above mentioned. Its ravages are said by the department of agriculture to be more severe in some sections than those of the gypsy or brown tail moths. This quarantine also affects herbaceous perennials.

Income Tax Due.

Work on the collection of $6,000,000,000 has been begun by the bureau of internal revenue. This is the estimated yield of the new revenue bill. The income tax provisions of the act reach the pocket-book of every single person in the United States whose net income for 1918 was $1,000 or more, and of every married person whose net income was $2,000 or more. Persons whose net income equalled or exceeded these amounts, according to their marital status, must file a return of income with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which they live on or before March 15.

Here is what will happen to them if they do not; for failure to file a return on time, a fine of not more than $1,000 and an additional assessment of 25 per cent of the amount of tax due.

For "willfully refusing" to make a return on time, a fine not exceeding $10,000, or not exceeding one year's imprisonment, or both.

For making a false or fraudulent return, a fine of not more than $10,000, or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, together with an additional assessment of 50 per cent of the amount of tax evaded.

For failure to pay the tax on time, a fine of not more than $1,000 and an additional assessment of five per cent of the amount of tax unpaid, plus one per cent interest for each full month during which it remains unpaid.

In addition to the $1,000 and $2,000 personal exemptions, taxpayers are allowed an exemption of $200 for each person dependent upon them for chief support if such person is under 18 years of age and incapable of self-support. Under the 1917 act, this exemption was allowed only for each dependent "child." The head of a family—one who supports one or more persons closely connected with him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage, or by adoption—is entitled to all exemptions allowed a married person.

The normal rate of tax under the new act is six per cent of the first $4,000 of net income above the exemptions, and 12 per cent of the net income in excess of $4,000. Incomes in excess of $5,000 are subject also to a surtax ranging from one per cent of the amount of the net income between $5,000 and $6,000 to 65 per cent of the net income above $1,000,000.

Payment of the tax may be made in full at the time of filing return or in four installments, on or before March 15, on or before June 15, on or before September 15, and on or before December 15.

Revenue officers will visit every county in the United States to aid taxpayers in making out their returns. The date of their arrival and the location of their offices may be ascertained by inquiring at offices of collectors of internal revenue, postoffices and banks. Failure to see these officers, however, does not relieve the taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay his tax within the time specified by law. In this case, taxpayers must seek the government, not the government the taxpayer.

CHICAGO

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

Thursday, February 20, a party of 14 took the Strasburg car for a visiting trip to that borough. The first stop was made at Amos Rohrer's, where in addition to a very fine lot of carnations, we found the stock for next season in better shape than any of us ever saw before the middle of February. White Wonder has always done so well here that he sticks to this variety for his main crop of white and sees no reason to change.

A cut across fields brought us to the range of J. Wade Galey, who has by far the finest lot of plants and cut blooms that this section of the universe ever produced. Mr. Galey sticks to Beacon for a red and his benches are proof that he uses good judgment in doing so. He also swears by Alice, which most of our growers have discarded. The only one over which he is not so enthusiastic is Albert Roper, of which he has a section of bench now in good shape. He likes it for late spring and summer, but does not consider that it pays to grow a carnation all winter for blooming then.

Getting back to Strasburg the establishment of our genial friend Chas. B. Herr was the Mecca for a bunch of weary pilgrims and although he has one large house cut out in order to comply with the fuel regulations of the early season, we found enough to occupy us for a little over an hour. His carnations are always good and this season's crop is no exception to the rule, but he is up against a proposition to get enough stock for another season as they are making so few cuttings and the varieties he would like to buy are unattainable. The 42-year-old callas, still in the best health and blooming every season, is one of the curiosities of this place. Not that Chas. B. is 42 but it is an heirloom handed down to him from a former generation. His place is a model one from an artistic point of view and shows what can be done to make a greenhouse attractive and a permanent advertisement for beautiful grounds and buildings.

At 7:30 in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, the first order of business was the staging of a wonderful lot of sweet peas that Messrs. H. K. Rohrer, Chas. M. Weaver and Elmer J. Weaver brought with them. They were all good with the following as specials: Zephyr, a true lavender; Day-break, a salmon pink; Snowstorm and Sankey, whites, and Gypsy Maid, a fine pink. Other varieties shown were Glorious, Lavender King, Luster, Illuminator, Enchantress, Mauve Beauty, Blue Bird, Albatross, Fordhook Rose, Rosy Morn, True Blue, Fairy, Fantasy, Pink Beauty, Empress, Dazzler, Orange Beauty, Cherry Ripe, Loveliness and Splendor.

Harry K. Rohrer, who made a few remarks on a trip to Burpee's establishment, said that the sweet peas were the result of crosses between summer blooming varieties and Yarrowa, a winter variety from Austria. The ones from which these blooms were cut were sown October 8, and in early January started to bloom. If planted out doors in the fall, as many of our Lancaster growers do, they would bloom the latter part of April, at least four weeks earlier than the ordinary varieties.

The paper of the evening was written and delivered by Harry B. Haverstick, who had charge of the laying out of the parks and grounds at Hershey, now with the B. F. Barr Co. as landscape man. The title of the paper, "Beautifying Home Grounds," was well received, and Mr. Haverstick was under a fire of questions for some time afterward.

Mr. Dyer, who was instrumental in getting J. Wade Galey to go into carnation growing, made a few remarks on the butchering of city trees by wire men and also stated that this country would wake up some day and find itself a forestless nation. He thought that for every tree cut down there should be one planted, and being one of the largest lumber men of the east, he knew whereof he was talking.

Communications were read from Secretary John Young, one on publicity, and this club is going to make a pretty good showing along this line. The other, an appeal from Chas. H. Totty to help on the cost problem, and on this committee the president appointed Harry K. Rohrer, John Shoemaker and Albert M. Herr.

In order that a real picnic could be held some time this summer, the president appointed a committee to arrange for an outing to which the Reading florists will be invited, and the committee was instructed that they had plenty of time to prepare but should get busy at once Albert M. Herr, Harry K. Rohrer and B. F. Barr comprise the committee.

Dennis Connor was the only visitor, and always a welcome one. Arrangements were made for a party to take in the Philadelphia meeting in March with a visit to Strafford in the afternoon. Our meeting in March will be as the guests of the ladies' auxiliary, at the home of B. F. Barr.

ALBERT M. HERR.

Washington, D. C.*FEBRUARY MARKED BY HIGH PRICES.

February closed with prices higher than ever before seen in the history of the local trade during the same month. If even one year ago someone had predicted that tulips would bring as high as $12 per hundred, he would have been looked upon as somewhat queer, yet that price was obtained by one local grower for Couronne d'Or, and the ordinary varieties are scarce at $7, $8 and $10. Daffodils are bringing $7 and $8. There is a quantity of Paper Whites to be had, but even these have been selling at $6. In previous years $2 and $3 per 100 would be about the right price, and at the end of the season they have been known to go on the street at $7.50 per 1,000 and even less. The retailers are having difficulty in filling the orders they receive for roses. Reds in particular, are very scarce, and Hadley brings up to $40 and Richmonds run from $12 to $25 per 100. American Beauty is so scarce that orders are turned down. There is no standard quotation at this time. Ophelia is a very good seller at from $12 to $25. White Killarney at the present time is in over supply, although bringing from $10 to $20. Large quantities of sweet peas have been arriving, but they have cleaned up daily and the stores have sold more of these, probably because of the rose and carnation shortage, then ever before during February. Carnations are not overly plentiful and clean up daily at about $6. Orchids are also among the week's shortages, and they were in good demand. There is quite a little call for snapdragon and good stock brings from $20 to $30 per hundred. It sells as fast as it comes in. Mignonette is good and brings $6 and $8.

NOTES.

Jesse C. Powell, of 723 Florida avenue, had the large display window of his store broken when an unruly automobile ran up on the sidewalk in the wee sma' hours and tried to make its way into the store. Window insured; Twenty-six dollars worth of lettering Jesse's loss.

Visitors: Thomas Harold Coffman, of Parkersburg, W. Va., who has been with Battery B, of the Seventh Field Artillery; Leonard J. Seiger, of the Robert Craig Company, Philadelphia; James F. Smith, Philadelphia, and P. M. Kester, of Boskoop, Holland.

B. F. L.

Providence, R. I.*AMPLE SUPPLY MOVES FREELY.

Business during the past week has been very good with stock in ample supply. Carnations are of satisfactory quality and sell at $5 and $6 per 100. Roses are arriving in good shape and move well at moderate prices. Freesias, callas, Easter lilies, violets, sweet peas and pansies with numerous other offerings in small flowers are now being received and find ready buyers. The supply of pot hyacinths, tulips and daffodils is increasing daily and with foliage plants sell well. Ferns are scarce and many more could be disposed of if they were available.

NOTES.

A protest against the proposed plant quarantine was circulated among the local florists last week.

T. J. Johnston & Co. are altering their show windows.

Boston.*BUSINESS OF FAIR VOLUME.

Market conditions have been fair during the past week. Although there have been a number of social functions, the life of former years seems to be lacking. Sweet peas have glutted the market and are offered at almost any price. Carnations hold their own at from $4 to $6 per 100. Roses continue high and bulbous stock does not vary to any extent. Violets have dropped to $1 and $1.25 per 100.

NOTES.

The residence of Frank Reynolds, manager of Welch Bros. Co., was destroyed by fire last week, his three children, who were ill in bed at the time being rescued through the heroic work of the firemen.

The flower show in Horticultural hall, while a small affair was quite a success. S. J. Goddard and William Sim were among the principal exhibitors and carried off their share of the honors.

Albert Strunk is now managing the new store of the Boston Artificial Flower Co. on Otis street.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report good business and are well pleased with the outlook.

Visitor: Thomas Pegler, Brunswick, Me.

S. K. G.

Louisville, Ky.*NOTES.

Anders Rasmussen of New Albany made a contract last fall to supply the Idlewild Greenhouses with their weekly requirements of carnations at $40 per 1,000. When the demand became so great and growing conditions so unsatisfactory, the Idlewild Greenhouses voluntarily raised the price to $60. When such spirit is shown the term "Brother Florist" becomes a reality not an imagination.

Sergeant Herbert Raynor, formerly with the F. Walker Co., has returned from France and is now at Camp Taylor awaiting his discharge from the army.

E. L. Kunzman, proprietor of the Indiana Dahlla Farms, says the demand is better than in previous years.

J. G. Bettman & Sons of New Albany, Ind., have about completed one new house 30x144 feet.

RITO

THE ENERGIZER FOR SOIL BACTERIA

IS COMING TO AMERICA.

WONDERFUL RESULTS have been obtained by the use of RITO in Great Britain during the last three years. Owing to the war it has been impossible to export, but now we are free to do so, and feel sure that the Horticulturists of the U. S. A. will at once avail themselves of this unique method of increasing their products and of getting their stuff ready for the market some weeks earlier than they have hitherto done, and so secure a much higher price.

WHAT IS RITO?—RITO is a humus, organic or natural fertilizer, a stimulant and energizing medium for soil bacteria.

WHAT IS HUMUS?—Humus is a complex substance or mixture of substances present in the richest of soils. It is black in colour, and hence renders the soil darker. RITO contains Humus in the right form for fertilizing the soil.

WHY ADD HUMUS?—Because most soils contain very little (if any) Humus, and it is necessary for the proper development of the useful soil bacteria. The bacteria find in the Humus constituents a suitable medium for their robust propagation.

That is, Humus is a source of food and energy for the soil bacteria.

WHAT IS THE ANALYSIS OF RITO?—It has very little chemical analysis and it does not come in the same category as fertilizers. It is essentially an energizing medium for soil bacteria. Phosphates and potash are present in all soils, but in the ordinary way they are not readily available. RITO, by energizing the soil bacteria, is calculated to make the phosphates and potash available for the plant. It also stimulates the nitrogen-fixing bacteria into action, so that the consequent development is out of all proportion to its analysis.

RITO takes the place of farmyard manure, or it may be used in conjunction with farmyard manure or any recognized artificials. RITO is free from weed seeds, spores and germs, and from the eggs or larvae of noxious insects.

It is well known that the soil is not a dead inert mass of matter, but that it teems with bacteria, which only need to be treated properly to be called into activity. There are millions in every spadeful of soil.

RITO may be used in the open or under glass.

What RITO Users Say:--

"I used RITO in the soil for my Tomatoes this year. The result was the best crop I ever had, and I started picking two to three weeks earlier than usual from seed sown same date as previous years."

A market gardener says that his RITO-treated lettuce were ready for the market a month before the untreated ones, with the result that the treated ones brought 2s. 6d. per dozen and the untreated ones, when they were ready for the market, brought 1s. per dozen.

"I tried RITO last year on Potatoes, and they yielded 30 per cent better than those not treated."

"Every ounce of fruit from both the treated and the untreated Tomatoes has been gathered and carefully weighed. The weight of fruit gathered from the treated portions averaged just five times the amount as from the untreated portion."

"I have used RITO in the Peach Houses, and find that it greatly improved both the quality of the fruit and also the growth. I also find RITO very good if used when mixing soil for potting various plants, and I have also used it on my Vines with excellent results."

"I have pleasure in testifying to the merits of RITO. It is 'Right Ho' and no mistake. I never saw Tomatoes do so well as when your RITO was applied as a top-dressing mixed with the soil; the roots of the plants made in this way were extraordinary, and the crops correspondingly good. The same applies to Cucumbers, also Chrysanthemums and to plants generally. It seems to consume the moisture, hence less watering is required."

"RITO treated Chrysanthemums made a much quicker and better start than they have usually done—in fact, the plants show a great improvement."

RITO is packed in double bags, and the price is 17 6 per 100 lbs, free on board Liverpool. Terms—Cash with order.

Please address your orders at once to The Molassine Company, Ltd., East Greenwich, London, England.

DEMAND LIGHTER AND PRICES DECLINE.

Business has fallen off a little of late, and with a larger supply of most seasonable stocks, prices in nearly all lines have taken a small drop. The large supply of out-door stock, such as freesias and daffodils, has weakened the prices of these items very materially. There is an unusually heavy cut of daffodils coming into this market, and only the best grade stock goes to the stores, the balance going to the street peddlers. Good roses are among the few items holding their own as regards price. American Beauties are very fine, but not in sufficient supply to satisfy the demand. Good Russell roses are also firm. Ophelia Hadley and Columbia are in large cut at present and of excellent quality. The deep pink, Cecile Brunner, is seen in limited quantities and bids fair to become very popular. Mrs. Aaron Ward is the best in any other color. Carnations are very plentiful and cheap. Large quantities are being handled on the street. Good Matchless is not plentiful and is about the best white. Violets are in great over-supply, owing to the mild weather. Large quantities are being shipped away daily, but still there remains a large surplus. Sweet peas are on the short side this week and good stock is selling well. Lavender freesias are also in good demand. Cattleyas are not in such large supply as they have been. This has caused prices to stiffen considerably. Very few phalanopsis are left in the market. Quite a few oncidiums and cypripediums are to be seen. Gardenias are coming in slowly. Lily of the valley may also be had in limited quantities. Cut cyclamens are in ample supply and meet with much favor. Fruit blossoms are coming in quite freely this week and sell rapidly. Cut ericas are plentiful and reasonable in price. They have been used largely in the better class of funeral work this season. Acacia blooms are in over supply, and the variety now being offered has poor keeping qualities. Ferns are still rather scarce and asparagus is also. Large quantities of finely colored Oregon grape is being handled by the stores and is much more attractive than galax leaves for funeral work. The supply of azaleas in pots is limited. Good stock finds a ready market. Some fine cyclamens are now arriving and move quickly. Pink rhododendrons are excellent value and are soon disposed of. Boston ferns in the medium sizes are quite scarce.

NOTES.

The new improvements at the store of the Art Floral Co., P. Matraio, manager, are almost completed. The new space is being devoted to show rooms for cut flowers and supplies. The windows that are being put in by this firm attract crowds daily and reflect great credit on the designer, Alfred Cuneo.

Manager J. A. Axell of the E. W. McLellan Co. reports that shipping trade is continuing to be steady with them. A large part of the cut of roses from the company's greenhouses at Burlington is shipped away to the north daily.

Chas. C. Navlet, of San Jose, was a visitor during the week at his new store on Market street. He is greatly pleased with trade since opening up here. He is using large space in the daily papers.

F. C. Jaeger & Son, on Powell street, have no complaint to make about business and are looking forward to a heavy trade this Easter.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee is shipping quite heavily to distant points.

GOOD ST. VALENTINE'S DAY TRADE.

Business for St. Valentine's day exceeded that of last year by a comfortable margin despite very unpleasant weather, a 50-mile gale, snow and freezing temperature keeping many buyers at home. The Saturday following rolled up good sales so that the week as a whole looked good from the cashier's desk. No one flower seemed to lead in favor, but there was a noticeable call for corsage clusters. Made up plant baskets went well and there was a good call for flowering plants properly trimmed. A moderate supply of bulbous stock cleaned up well.

NOTE.

A few representatives of the Dutch bulb houses have been recent visitors. Judging from appearances, the quotations on stock I.o.b. dock in Holland does not meet with much favor on the part of the moderate consumer.

STOCK CONTINUES TO BE SCARCE.

Business was good the past week and stock in all lines cleaned up completely at high prices. Roses continue to be very scarce and command high figures in all varieties with never a surplus. Carnations are in brisk demand and clean up early right along at the advertised quotations. Orchids are plentiful, but are moving exceptionally well considering the large quantity offered. Cattleyas and phalaenopsis are in heaviest supply. The latter are being used more extensively than ever, and are to be seen featured in all the leading stores where they are playing an important part in the daily offerings. Gardenias are holding their own at all times and no trouble is experienced in disposing of the cuts as fast as they arrive. Sweet peas continue to clean up each day at high returns to the growers, but so far this season the supply has not been equal to the demand. Lilies are somewhat scarce and are good property. Callas are seen in fair sized quantities at a few of the houses, but are in such brisk demand that there is never a surplus. Lily of the valley is arriving in larger quantities, but the call is heavy and it moves fast. Snapdragons are in strong demand and the same holds true for Iris Tingitana, which is a big factor in the market at present. Violets are moving well and there is a brisk call for stevia, calendulas, pansies, mignonette, forget-me-nots, daisies, freesias, tulips, jonquils, narcissi and other miscellaneous stock not already mentioned here. Greens are in brisk demand. No one is complaining of poor business, and while considerable talk is heard from some of the retailers in regard to the high prices, the majority concede that the grower is entitled to all that he is receiving, considering the high cost of production. One of the leading retailers says that it is merely a question of supply and demand, and that he was agreeably surprised when he closed his books for the season that he made more money during the period of scarcity than he did for the same length of time for the many years of plenty in the history of his business. Many of the ranges and houses that were closed down for the winter are resuming operations, but one of the large growers who keeps pretty close tab on conditions, remarks that he does not look for any great overproduction until along in the early part of May unless the demand falls off almost entirely which is not likely to happen considering the great shortage in plants throughout the entire country.

local commission houses and the store will be disposed of as soon as possible. Paul Amling will be in charge of the greenhouses which are at present devoted to roses. Everyone wishes the young men success in their new undertaking. The entire trade regrets to hear that Hoerber Bros., who have been engaged in the wholesale business here for the past 10 years, will retire from the florist business for they made many friends during that time and had a reputation that anyone might well be proud of. Their many friends while sorry to lose them extend their best wishes to them in whatever enterprise they may engage in some time in the future. The transaction was a cash proposition and involved considerable money the sum of which both parties do not care to disclose for publication.

Henry Arnold was granted an honorable discharge from the navy at the Great Lakes naval training station this week and will be back on the job at O. A. & L. A. Tonner's March 3.

A large number of the young men in the trade who have been serving with the colors, are returning home right along, and in almost all instances find their jobs awaiting them. One hears from many quarters that the boys who are being discharged are not particularly anxious to return to work, but this does not appear to be true of those called to the colors from the trade for they are back on the job almost as soon as they are mustered out. Practically all of them are better employes than when they left, due to training that they received while in the army. A few that are still overseas are expected back soon, and will find their jobs open when they return.

The Florists' Club will meet at the Hotel Randolph, next Thursday evening, March 6, when there will be an exhibit of novelties for St. Patrick's day and Easter. Peter Pearson will read a paper on "Home Grown Bulbs" and the good-of-the-club committee under the leadership of T. E. Waters promises to make things so interesting that everyone will have a good time. President Zech extends a special invitation to all the local retail florists to be present and the secretary, A. T. Pyfer, will have a new list of applications to read.

Math. Schiltz, one of the A. L. Randall Co's, popular young traveling representatives, who has been with the colors for quite a period, was honorably discharged last week and is back on the job.

N. J. Wieter says that the labor situation at present is in such condition that Wieter Bros. are experiencing no trouble in securing more than sufficient competent help at the greenhouses.

Peter Reinberg has purchased a new Mack delivery truck to haul his stock from the greenhouses to the store. Mrs. Reinberg is recovering from an attack of the Spanish influenza.

WE believe in the spirit and practical application of co-operation between the grower, wholesaler and retailer, with an adjustment of profit for all three.

The grower is the source of supply.

The commission wholesaler is the best and most economical means of distribution.

The retailer is the most direct means of reaching the consumer.

A service between these three factors, that is most profitable to all these interests, requires a spirit of efficiency, loyalty and co-operation.

Whether a grower or retailer, when you ship or buy, Kennicott Bros. Co. offers you all the advantages.

We do as we say.

August Poehlmann is more than pleased with business and reports one of the best periods that Poehlmann Bros. Co. ever enjoyed. He takes great pride in showing visitors through the palm houses where an exceptionally fine stock of these now fill a large range by itself. Adolph Poehlmann has everything in the pink of condition at Plant B where 10 of the rose houses that were closed for the winter are again being placed in operation.

The Consumers' Company has stored less than 10 per cent of its requirements for natural ice as a result of the mild weather, the warmest in 39 years. The greatest possible output of artificial ice will no more than satisfy household requirements, leaving the great wholesale and catering supplies very short indeed. It is said that nothing but severe cold weather for several weeks can prevent a grave shortage of this important commodity.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. received a letter from Jack Byers this week in which he stated that his regiment had received the British medal of honor and last but not least he was the possessor of the much coveted Croix de Guerre. He is still in Germany with the American troops but is very anxious to get back to his friends here. There is one young lady in the wholesale district anxiously awaiting his return.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association and the A. L. Randall Co. will each receive one-half of the output of the Hoerber range at DesPlaines, which changed hands this week.

SUPPLY CLEANS UP WELL.

Market conditions are becoming more favorable of late, instead of weakening, which, no doubt, is of benefit to all concerned. The last half of the past week, the weather became cloudy and wet, and with a steady demand for funeral work, all stock was quite well cleaned up each day. Roses must be ordered ahead of time in order to get them, while good stiff stemmed carnations are the exception. Due to the mild winter thus far, most of the carnation specialists claim it was next to impossible to keep them at the regular temperature, hence the weak stems at this time. With the dark days, the sweet peas suffered the most as the buds drop in a short time. Lilies arrive in small quantities and keep right on moving. The demand for bulbous and other spring stock is greater than the supply.

NOTES.

Arthur Leidiger, president of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his father, who passed away February 20 at the age of 67 years. The funeral was from the residence, 779 Hackett avenue, February 22, with interment at Forest Home cemetery.

Otto Sylvester, Sr., of Oconomowoc, Wis., says that his eldest son is still with the enlisted boys at Washington, D. C., and with the advent of spring, the work is beginning to crowd him.

Wm. Zimmermann reports business to date for the month of February better than any yet experienced since he is in business. For St. Valentine's day it was exceptionally fine.

On and after March 1, the assessment rate for the florists' advertising club will be doubled, the retailers paying two per cent, while the growers contribute one per cent.

The monthly meeting of the florists' club will be held at the regular quarters, March 6. Important subjects are on the programme for discussion.

Wm. A. Kennedy, of the C. C. Pollworth Co., made a brief business trip to Indianapolis February 20.

SUPPLY MOVES AT GOOD FIGURES.

Stock continues scarce and everything that comes into the wholesale houses cleans up at prevailing prices, which are stiff for the time of the year. The demand for shipping is very heavy. The supply of roses is picking up and is much better than it was at the last writing. All carnations that come into the market clean up quickly. Sweet peas are in a good supply and sell well. Snapdragons are in a fair supply and move readily each day. Easter lilies, rubrums, and callas find a good market. The supply of bulbous stock is fair and meets with a good call. Southern daffodils were added to this line last week. Other offerings are calendulas, orchids, violets, forget-me-nots, baby primroses and wallflowers.

HIGH PRICES HURT VALENTINE SALES.

St. Valentine's day was ushered in with rain and snow which made deliveries very difficult in some localities. The volume of business, both cash and credit, was much larger than in previous years with prices considerably higher. The stock was of fine quality but in many instances customers who had intended to buy liberally, cut the order in half when told the prices and this made necessary the delivery of many small packages. Violets and sweet peas took the lead in popularity, the former being sold in bunches of 50 for $1.50 while 25 sweet peas brought the same figure. Roses ranged from $3 to $6 per dozen and carnations were $2, which price was also received for narcissi, daffodils and tulips. Plants were in demand although the variety was limited to cyclamens and primroses.

NOTE.

C. V. Abeele has sold the establishment known as the Terre Haute Rose & Carnation Co., to Howard E. Henley, a practical grower of Hartford City, Ind., who will cater exclusively to the wholesale trade. The consideration is said to have been $25,000. Mr. Abeele will devote his entire time for the present to the management of the Rosery and will later go to Belgium, his native country, to look after the interests of his father's estate. The father and two sons were killed in the war, the affairs being looked after at present by the widow and one daughter.

SUPPLY IS SHORT.

This market is, and has been for some time, far short of the demand in both cut flowers and plants, and retailers are hard pressed to get enough stock to take care of their orders, of which funeral work is perhaps the largest item. Local wholesalers are usually cleaned out of everything early in the day, advance orders taking all stock which arrives. The carnation supply has not improved to any noticeable extent, neither have roses. Sweet peas are arriving in good supply, some stock being of exceptionally long stem and large blooms. Bulbous stock consists of tulips, narcissi and daffodils, also a few freesias, mignonette, pansies, wallflowers, etc., arrive in limited supply only. Asparagus and adiantum are scarce. Violets, both single and double, are finding a good sale. Callas and Easter lilies are good stock.

TRADE CONDITIONS VERY SATISFACTORY.

Business during the past week has been good with a few orders for social functions. Stock of all kinds has been quite plentiful with the exception of carnations. Good lily of the valley is not available and the same is true of Harrisii. Callas are to be had in quantity and command high prices. Sweet peas are plentiful, and considering the quantity, hold up quite well. The supply of roses has increased somewhat and quotations are more reasonable. Violets move slowly and the same can be said of bulbous stock. The market is well supplied with greens.

NOTES.

Miss Elsie Marty, with Windlers' Flowers, has been confined to her home for 10 days with the influenza, but expects to be out in a few days to welcome home her fiancée, Herman Knoll, who has been in an eastern army camp for the past year. He was in the florist business before he left and expects to open a new store on his return.

It is hoped that all carnation growers in this vicinity will send a vase of stock for display at the next meeting of the florists' club, March 13. Any flowers for this purpose, may be sent to any of the wholesalers who will see that they are properly staged.

Mrs. W. C. Smith, who has been at the Deaconess hospital, is steadily improving and expects to be able to be moved to her home in a few days. Her many friends will be very glad to hear that she is well on the road to complete recovery.

The ladies' florist club will hold its next meeting March 4 at 2:30 p. m. at the Y. W. C. A. building, 14th and Locust streets. All ladies interested are invited to attend.

A number of the leading downtown florists have conducted special sales on sweet peas which has relieved the congested condition of the market on this item.

DARK DAYS SHORTEN SUPPLY.

The local market has had a serious shortage of cut stock during the past week, the weather being dark and unproductive. The demand has been excellent, with funeral work heaviest, on account of the outbreak of the influenza epidemic, which has claimed a large number of persons. Counter trade, and flowers for the sick room, have also had a good call. Carnations are in very limited supply. Sweet peas have fallen off considerably, with the absence of sunshine. Roses have been in very short supply for some weeks.

NOTES.

At the store of the Flick Floral Co. wedding work and funerals kept all hands busy during the week. This firm also sent out a number of baskets and bouquets for dancing recitals.

A good general demand, with out-of-town funeral orders in the ascendency, is reported at Ed. Wenninghoff's store.

Plants were featured last week by the Doswell Floral Co. Their window decoration was especially good.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. report a very good counter trade, and heavy demand for funeral pieces.

RETAIL FLORISTS' CLUB MEETS.

At a meeting of the local retail florists held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, February 19, the members decided to form a permanent organization to be known as the Albany Retail Florists' Association. The results from advertising the use of flowers for St. Valentine's day were declared by the retailers to be excellent. It was then decided to use space in all the local newspapers for display advertising of the use of flowers for St. Patrick's day. William C. Gloeckner, president of the association, named a committee of three to devise means of preventing duplication in deliveries of orders to the outskirts of the city and to suburban towns. The committee is made up of B. C. Holmes, James Lascaris and P. A. Vauch. The committee will endeavor to have the florists co-operate in sending all their orders to the same locality in one delivery to be arranged for once or twice daily as conditions may demand.

ALBANIAN HONORED AT STATE MEETING.

Frederick A. Danker returned from the midwinter meeting of the New York State Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs, held at Ithaca, as a member of two important committees. He was named with F. R. Pierson, of Tarrytown, on an augmented committee, Earl A. Bates, chairman, to seek the co-operation of every agency in the state allied with horticulture to induce the legislature to appropriate $350,000 for the construction of a building on the state fair grounds, Syracuse, for the use of the fruit, flower, vegetable, seed, bee, and nursery interests of the state. The building would be the largest on the grounds and adapted for the use of conventions during the 11 months of the year in which the state fair is not held. F. R. Pierson was authorized by Chairman Bates to select a committee to call upon Governor Smith at Albany to lay before him the merits of the proposition. The subject of a floricultural and horticultural building on the fair grounds has been before the New York federation at its meetings since 1916 when Mr. Bates was appointed chairman of the original committee which included also Charles H. Vick and George B. Hart, of Rochester. Mr. Danker was named also with Prof. David Lumsden of Cornell University, a committee to prepare prize lists for flowers to be exhibited at the state fair in September. The flowers must be from American or New York state grown stock or seed.

SUPPLY PLENTIFUL AND DEMAND GOOD.

The past week's business appears to have been very satisfactory to all branches of the trade. There was a plentiful supply in all lines. Even roses, which are now on the increase, promise from this time forward to be sufficient in their spring crops for all demands. Sweet peas are now at their best, some wonderfully fine stock being offered in quite a variety of colors. Carnations are also a quantity stock, but there is no backing up, there seeming to be a demand for all at prices that would have raised great protests a year ago. Snapdragon is good stock. It is coming fine and is seen in all the stores. Callas are at their best, while Easter lilies appear to be losing in quality, the declining vitality of the cold storage giganteums being very apparent in some stocks, while in others results are still very good, some stocks carrying three and four flowers. Iris Tingitana sells well at 25 cents per spray. It is one of the best of the blue flowers. Bulbous stock, which tells of the approach of spring, is popular with flower lovers. Good calendulas are also in demand. Single violets are at their best, but for some reason are not eagerly sought. Cattleyas are popular with more buyers than ever before, no elaborate floral arrangement seeming to be considered finished without more or less of these beautiful flowers.

February 24.—The various shipments arriving at the morning market were full and in good variety with the exception of roses, which are still short in quantity. Sweet peas and carnations were particularly fine. There was a good local demand, which, together with the regular Monday shipping orders, kept an even balance.

THE ROAD TO SUCCESS.

The road that leads to success in the retail cut flower business is paved with receipted bills. This is the opinion of one of the largest wholesale florists whose long experience has convinced him that the man who pays his bills promptly, has all the other necessary qualifications that are essential to success. He is careful in his buying because he does not order more than he can pay for. He is also certain that there is good value for his money. You cannot call such a man on the phone and load him up with a lot of stock which he takes just to oblige you. He must see a possible return for every dollar he puts out. My advice to every young man entering into business for himself, is to pay as you go. Make your business earn the money that it takes to run it. A man is much more careful of the earned than of the borrowed dollar. Credit is a most precious possession, but to the man who has not earned, or does not protect it by the prompt payment of his bills, it soon becomes a millstone round his neck, dragging him down to destruction.

NOTES.

The meeting of the florists' club, March 4, will be one of the most attractive of the season and should bring out the largest attendance. It is to be held in the roof garden of the Adelphia hotel opening with a dinner at 6 p. m. at a cost of $2 per plate.

nearly all the new varieties of carnations that were prize takers at the recent Cleveland carnation show. The Burpee collection of new varieties of orchid sweet peas will also be a feature which should be especially interesting to commercial growers. M. J. Brinton, Christiansa, Pa., will read a paper on "Carnation Ideals and Successes." Mr. Brinton is a very practical and successful grower whose treatise will contain much valuable information. Charles H. Grakelow will also address the club on the "A. B. C. of the Florists Telegraph Delivery Association," showing its benefits to all retail florists irrespective of their volume of trade.

The February meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society had the largest audience of these gatherings up to date. J. Otto Thilow's illustrated lecture on "The Flora of the Hawaiian Islands," was the feature. His beautiful slides and graphic and interesting description was a delight to his hearers, who roundly applauded him at the close. There was an attractive exhibition of arranged cut flowers in vases and also blooming plants of which Cinerarias hybrids and stellata were exceptionally fine.

The testimonial anniversary dinner given to John Westcott at Dooner's hotel, February 22, was a fitting recognition of a man who did much for the business in his busy life, and has since added to the pleasure and enjoyment of his friends during their leisure hours at his bungalow in Waretown on Barneget Bay. A full account of this event will be found on another page.

In referring to southern grown asparagus, and its effect on the locally grown, a prominent wholesaler held that it helped the local grower, as he could time his crop for summer when he had the market to himself, and got a good price for his stock at a time when he did not have to burn coal to produce it.

Robert Lockerby, a former Philadelphian, but now located in Charlotte, S. C., has been in this city the past week, making arrangements for stock for his new greenhouses which are soon to be opened up. He reports trade in the south very good, there seeming to be plenty of money in circulation.

That flowers are becoming more plentiful is seen in the increased offerings on the street stands and also in the stocks of the curbstone dealers, who generally handle passe or left-over flowers for week end sales.

NEW YORK

A prominent retailer, who, after considerable deliberation, connected up last week with the F. T. D., cleaned up a profit in the first three days' business that paid his entrance fee and annual dues, and now wishes it had not taken him so long to make up his mind.

Washington's birthday gave a little impetus to the business, there being a number of holiday dinners, at which the decorations were more or less elaborate. Cherry trees and hatchets were in evidence in some of the florists' windows.

M. Baylis, West Grove, Pa., Stanley Giles, Reading, Pa.; Lewis Radcliffe, and Mrs. Schiltz, Charlotte, N. C., were recent visitors reported by Edward Reid.

One of the leading wholesale houses reports that Iris Tingitana is one of the best of the choice offerings, being in demand in all of the best stores.

The Philadelphia Record gave a nice account of the life and activities of John Westcott, illustrated with his portrait, in last Sunday's edition.

James Higgins, of Pittsburgh, was in town the past week representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. He is much pleased with his new occupation.

Samuel Sproul, in addition to his 60th street shop, has opened a branch at 5617 Chester avenue, at which the business is very encouraging.

The Jos. Heacock Co. says there is room for a new rose of the Killarney type, a trifle better, but with good mid-winter blooming qualities.

The Roxborough florists are satisfied with their winter's business and are looking forward to a good Easter.

Visitors: J. C. Blexom, Hampton, Va.; W. F. Gude and Adolph Gude, Washington, D. C.; C. B. Weaver and Elmer Weaver, Ronx, Pa.; H. Rohrer, Lancaster, Pa.; Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; Charles Seibold, Wilkesbarre, Pa., and Antoine Wintzer, West Grove, Pa.

MODERATE WHOLESALE DEMAND.

Business had a quiet tone throughout the past week. There was a moderate demand in the wholesale district with an occasional ripple when some stocks carried in a little lighter supply, but such is the rule rather than the exception. The increase of business on Washington's birthday was scarcely perceptible. As on St. Valentine's day, a few retail stores reported increased sales; others experienced a falling off as the holiday took away some of their best customers. American Beauty roses and gardenias continue scarce and the few that arrive bring high figures. While tea roses are cheaper than they were a month ago, there are fluctuations in prices. Quotations stiffened on carnations and jonquils, February 22, due to a somewhat lighter supply, but both are likely to be back at old figures in a few days. Lily of the valley has so far fallen from its high estate of last summer that the hucksters are displaying the shorter grades on their trays, along with quantities of double violets. There is some uneasiness among retailers over the prospect of a light supply of pot lilies for Easter.

February 24.—There is considerable activity in the wholesale district this morning; the weather is clear and bracing, and the market has a cheerful tone. Prices on staple stocks are fairly firm, with American Beauties and gardenias still scarce and high. Remarkably fine stock of the giant narcissus, Emperor, is attracting much

NOTES.

The writer has sometimes been reprimanded for wandering away from the discussion of cut flowers, plants, greenhouse building, the price of coal, etc.; but in truth there are other subjects with which the florists are intimately concerned. One of these—a very important one—is how a man may live to a great age in the enjoyment of all his faculties. The following is an editorial note from the "Sun" of February 20: "To have been born 10 months before the Monroe Doctrine was declared, to have rescued New York in civil war time from the filth that had disgraced her, and to be practicing medicine today—what a span has been covered by Dr. Stephens Smith, now entering his ninety-seventh year! 'Keep alert, keep in touch with active men and women,' says this marvel, uttering the prescription for eternal youth."

At a dinner given by Philip Berolzheimer in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel on the night of February 19, plans were discussed for, as one reporter put it, civilizing the city's 6,000,000 people to the point of using the public parks without wrecking them." Francis Gallatin, who succeeded Berolzheimer as president of the park board, was present with others. It is not to be supposed that all the people of this city are vandals, but it has its share. There are two classes of thieves and vandals. One class will steal or destroy anyone's property; the other seems to think that the property of the United States or any other government is common loot.

The next meeting of the florists' club will be held in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building on the night of March 10. In these days of reconstruction, and the impending prohibition of plants—and rum—it is easy to find something to talk about, so there is sure to be entertainment of some kind. A number of new members will be installed. Chairman Schenck of the dinner committee is likely to report on the arrangements. The dinner will be held in the Hotel Biltmore on the night of March 15, and we learn that tickets are going fast. Several business houses connected with the trade have taken a table each.

Frank Golsner, son of George Golsner, of College Point, has been honorably discharged from the United States army and has taken his former position as a salesman with Hentz & Nash, Inc., 55-57 West 26th street.

Frederick Marquardt, who has a range and store at Middle Village, and another store at 2413 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, has been in poor health for some time, is now in the south and is said to be improving.

The optimistic and smiling Henry Penn, of Boston, was a visitor February 24. Henry believes that Boston is all right, which has been a big factor in his success there. A. F. F.

SUPPLY INCREASING IN QUANTITY

Due to sunshine and mild weather the supply of flowers now coming into this market is on the increase with roses, carnations, sweet peas, narcissi and all bulbous stock quite plentiful. The sale of violets seems to be improving and orchid sweet peas are also used in considerable numbers. Pot plants find a ready sale. Asparagus is in short supply and receipts of galax are only fair.

NOTES.

George T. Boucher arranged a very attractive St. Valentine's day window. Salter Bros. recently had a window of forsythias which attracted much attention.

E. C. Armburst has been elected president of the Western New York Hferman club.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-seventh annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June, 1919.

MAIL orders in Chicago and vicinity are better than expected. Market garden trade is dull.

THE American Bulb Co., Chicago, says some importations of hardy Japanese lily bulbs arrived at Seattle this week.

GRASS SEED.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade February 26 were as follows: Timothy, $8.00 to $10.50 per 100 pounds.

GILROY, CALIF.—L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., returned from the east February 26 with contract order books well filled.

HOWARD M. EARL, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., reached England safely February 3 after a very pleasant voyage.

AN obituary notice of the death of Abram H. Cushman, a well-known seedsman of Rochester, N. Y., will be found elsewhere in this issue.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—C. C. Morse & Co. have been using considerable space in the local papers and report an excellent call for plants and garden seed.

LAWRENCE, KAN.—A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., stopped off here February 23 to spend the Sunday with his old-time friend, Fred Barteldes.

LAWRENCE S. PAYN, the well known representative of Simon Louis Freres & Co., Bruyeres-Le-Chatel (Seine et Oise) France, is among those to be discharged from the French army this month, and expects to see his numerous friends in the American trade the coming summer.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover market closed steady February 24, at $24.90, registering a gain of 40 cents during the preceding seven days. February was quoted at $24.90 and March at $24.40. Timothy was a trifle lower, each being offered at $4.65, February $4.65, March $4.65, April $4.65, May $4.72½ and September $5.45.

ONION SET prices in the Chicago district are unsettled, variations being caused by quotations lacking uniform definiteness regarding grading, condition and delivery dates. Coarse or sprouted sets, run over a 1¼-inch screen, are offered in carlots as low as $1.50 for colors. Other dealers are asking $1.75-$1.90 for choice 1-inch stock; whites about $2.50 for merchantable sets.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; Edwin B. Northrup, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; J. C. Bodger, of J. C. Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif., returning from the east; J. W. Edmundson, of the California Seed Growers' Association, San Jose, Calif., and Fred H. Hunter, of the Hunter Seed Co., San Francisco, and Mrs. Hunter, also returning from the east.

French Bulbs.

A grower of French bulbs writes from Toulon as follows: "Bulbs, generally sold at moderate prices, such as Narcissus grandiflora, will be scarce because the present high cost of labor does not allow a profit in the handling of this stock. Laborers working eight hours a day are paid 12 to 15 francs and are scarce at that. To this must be added the cost of a horse for seven hours' actual work, which brings the total up to 40 francs. It is impossible for the grower to produce stocks under such expense and sell them at the average prices of the past two or three years and the result will be reduced plantings."

A French cable message just received is to the effect that the bulb supply should be sufficient, but that no prices can be made yet.

Seed Testing by Government.

Nearly 17,000 samples of seed were received for test last year at the seed-testing laboratory of the department of agriculture, according to an announcement made by Secretary Houston, and 11,349 samples at the five branch laboratories maintained in co-operation with state institutions. All of these samples were examined to determine the quality of the seed and the presence of adulterants. The enforcement of the seed importation act has served to prevent many shipments of imported seed, unfit for seeding purposes, from being distributed in their original condition. Among these shipments over 675,000 pounds of red clover were prohibited entry on account of the presence of weed seeds and dead seed. Approximately one-half of this was re-cleaned in bond, the weed seeds and other refuse removed being destroyed, while the seed of good quality was allowed to go into the seed trade. The other half of the prohibited red clover was rejected because it contained so much dead seed as to be of practically no value for seeding purposes. Three shipments, aggregating enough seed to sow 16,000 acres at a normal rate of seeding, contained no weed which could be expected to grow in the field.

Because of the difficulties of trans-Atlantic shipments, imports of almost all kinds of seed have fallen off, bluegrass from Canada and winter raps from Japan being the only two items of imports which have exceeded those of the previous year.

Nitrate of Soda.

A meeting was held at Washington, D. C., February 18, for the purpose of devising means to handle the surplus stocks of nitrate of soda held by the United States government, consisting of approximately 224,000 tons in the United States and 120,000 tons in Chile, and it was decided that importers should dispose of the former in this country, and that the government should endeavor to sell the latter in Chile to foreign interests. In respect to the stock here, a plan has been evolved on the lines of the recent arrangements through the War Industries Board by which the government will fix the price probably in the neighborhood of $4.25 per 100 pounds, maybe lower, to cover the cost of selling and during this liquidation, which may take until June 1 next, importations will not be permitted. On the other hand, pending contracts bought under governmental control, now in force, will probably be automatically cancelled March 1, after which date buyers will be able to purchase as needed through the same channels as heretofore at prices which will be published later in a circular issued by the importers, as soon as necessary details are completed, which will probably be early next week.

Passports.

Importers of horticultural goods and supplies seeking to go abroad at this time are being informed, that at the request of the British and French governments, the state department has adopted a policy under which passports for travel will hereafter be refused to all persons other than those having business in the countries named. Both Great Britain and France recently made formal requests that passports to travelers be limited as rigidly as possible because of transportation difficulties and abnormal conditions.

Wartime Seed Prices in Europe.

In a recent communication, a representative of a prominent firm of French seedsmen gives much interesting information regarding the seed trade in Northern France and Belgium during the German occupation. He said in part:

"During the first year, seeds could be procured through the leading German firms, who must have had fairly good stocks, but during the second year the situation became more difficult, and when the Germans prevented export or granted it only on license in rare cases, prices advanced to incredible figures. In consequence, many German soldiers returning from furloughs in that country, smuggled into France and Belgium seeds of very poor quality and low germination."

Following are some of the prices which prevailed in the territory mentioned, last year, the figures given being per kilo, equivalent to a trifle over two pounds:

	Francs
Carrot, Nantaise and Careutan.....	300
" St. Valery .....	220

ACCORDING to reports, the S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam will leave Rotterdam, February 23, to be followed by the Noorddam, March 8.

IT is said some government agents are in trouble about bean prices, buying late at 6½-7 cents and turning over the beans at 9 cents per pound, the earlier price.

SEEDS FOR GERMANY.—An office has been opened in Copenhagen, Denmark, with a German in charge, for the purpose of buying seeds for Germany, especially cabbage and cauliflower.

ASIDE from surplus lists, this year the seed trade generally is bombarded with a lot of contract price lists from many new growers, trying out the business for the first time, on a contract basis. This applies especially to peas and beans.

ONE of the peculiar features of the season is the sudden development of extreme shortages. An item will appear in good supply one week and the next week it is impossible to obtain it. Good recent examples of this are Black Mexican sweet corn, Ponderosa tomato and Fordhook bush lima beans.

BURPEE'S AMERICAN BEAUTY ASTER.

First offered by us two years ago, and named on account of its similarity in color to the famous American Beauty Rose. A distinct type, having larger and heavier flowers than the Late Branching Asters, while the flowers are borne on much longer and heavier stems.

It is also the latest of all Asters to bloom and, therefore, prolongs the season by several weeks. Indispensable to cut flower growers.

Burpee's American Beauty. Pkt., 10 cts.; ¼-oz., 50 cts.;
Bright carmine-rose, Pkt., 10 cts.; ¼-oz., 50 cts.;
Burpee's Purple Beauty. Pkt., 15 cts.; ¼-oz., 60 cts.;
Rich Purple. Pkt., 15 cts.; ¼-oz., 60 cts.

CREGO'S GIANT ASTERS.

Resembling choice Chrysanthemums. This is at once the most beautiful and graceful of all American Branching Asters.

	Pkt.	¼-Oz.	Oz.		Pkt.	¼-Oz.	Oz.
Giant Shell-Pink	$0.10	$0.45	$1.50	Giant Rose-Pink	$0.10	$0.45	$1.50

WOOD'S FAMOUS Southern Ensilage Corns

SILAGE and good concentrates have proved the most economical for producing beef and butter-fat. In these days of high priced feed a full silo is all-important, and good ensilage corns are in great demand.

Wood's Famous Southern-grown Ensilage Corns enable farmers to grow more silage on every acre. For years these corns have enjoyed a splendid reputation for ensilage purposes, particularly in the North and West—making larger crops and better crops than corns grown in other parts of the country.

The past year was very favorable for curing and maturing our ensilage corns. We offer corns cured under natural conditions—unsurpassed in vigorous germination. All seed corns are tested for germination before being shipped.

“As a Silo Filler it Has NO Equal”

—that's what one farmer says about it. An Ohio farmer says, "It's the best silage corn I ever raised." A New Jersey farmer says, "It is leafy, sturdy, and ears well in this section—better than other varieties." Another farmer writes, "Some of the strongest land made 100 bushels to the acre."

Write for catalog and prices of these corns that produce the most silage from the least land and labor.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President;
C. W. Waid, Grand Rapids, Mich., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 25.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $4.00 to $5.00; celery, Florida, crate, $5.00 to $6.00; leaf lettuce, per box, 30 cents; radishes, per dozen bunches, 50 to 60 cents; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $5.00.

New York, February 24.—Celery (Florida), per case, $2.00 to $5.00; cucumbers, $2.50 to $3.00 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.25 per basket; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 50 cents; lettuce, per package, $1.50 to $4.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $5.00.

Vegetable Markets.

During the period, February 18-25, reports to the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture, indicated a steady active movement of vegetables with an upward price trend, shipments being about 20 per cent heavier than during the corresponding period last year. The potato distributing markets strengthened somewhat. At Chicago, No. 1 northern sacked white stock in carlots gained 15 cents and sold at $1.65-$1.70 per 100 pounds. Wisconsin shipping points declined five cents to $1.35-$1.40 f. o. b. Michigan shipments held at $1.45 and Moorhead, Minn., weakened to $1.15-$1.20. Colorado No. 1 white sacked declined to $1.05-$1.20. Old cabbage was quoted higher. New York Danish seed strengthened to $23-$30 f. o. b. per ton in bulk for fair to choice in shipping sections and advanced fully $5 in consuming markets with a range of $30-$35 and reached $40 in Cincinnati. Wisconsin Holland seed advanced $5-$10 and was quoted $30-$40 in leading northwestern consuming markets. Values for new cabbage reigned fairly steady. Sharp advances occurred in the New York state onion shipping section and stock is reported moving out of the growers' hands rapidly. A few fancy lots reached $3.10 per 100 pounds f. o. b. The general range for good yellow stock was $2.75-$3. Celery prices held firm and lettuce showed a tendency to advance.

Head Lettuce.

Head lettuce is gaining in importance from year to year. When we stop for a moment and consider the amount of head lettuce handled 10 years ago, and compare with today, the strides taken are wonderful. This crop promises to rival celery in importance. One of the chief reasons for this popularity is found in the fact that solid heads are easily shipped long distances; this ready transportation makes it possible to supply the demand almost every day in the year, as almost some section of the country is sure to be on with a crop. There are some hills, however, and he who can bring in a good crop during an off spell is lucky.

In our location, Ohio, we have for many years been able to hit such an open market during the month of May. At this time, the southern shipments are either poor in quality or absent entirely and the home grown crop is not in. To get this result, we bend every effort to produce the right kind of plants, use the right kind of land and fertilizers, and also varieties. We have had many imitators in our locality, but so far no one has been able to carry away the honors. Some day, of course, we expect to lose our championship, but if we do, the new comer has earned his position. In other words, it is no easy road to success.

One of the chief stumbling blocks is constant ventilation of the young plants. They are so impatient in this respect that the least neglect is liable to ruin them. What is wanted is a low temperature and plenty of air at all times. At night 40° is right and in the day time 50° is ample. We prick the young seedlings out 2x2 inches and in a month these should be strong plants, with as much or more root system as top. They are exposed to full air as soon as possible, it being absolutely necessary to be able to remove the glass entirely at this time. When properly hardened, these plants will stand hard freezing with no injury. We have had them come through storms when the temperature dropped to 20° and the ground froze hard enough to carry a wagon. In order to get on this early market no time or pains must be spared. We would rather risk a freeze up in March than a hot wave in June. We transplant these plants into the field any time after March 20, when moisture conditions are right; 12x12 is our favorite spacing, and planting boards are used in the field the same as indoors to prevent packing the soil. As regards variety, we use May King, Unrivalled and Big Boston. May King is the earliest, but too small. Unrivalled is a green type of Big Boston, and many strains exist, some of them being very good. Big Boston is the standard sort. We have so far had no luck with Iceberg, but hope to bring this kind to terms some day. Iceberg will be the leader if it can be produced in good shape.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., President; J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-four annual convention will be held at Chicago in 1919.

FRESNO, CALIF.—The State Nursery Co., of this city has received its charter authorizing a capital stock of $10,000.

CALIFORNIA nursermen anticipate a heavy demand for fruit stocks to replace grape vines following national prohibition.

SPRINGFIELD, N. J.—William Flemmer, Jr., of the F. & J. Nurseries, who has been serving in France with the American forces, has been awarded the Croix de Guerre for bravery under intense bombardment.

THE agricultural experiment station, Berkeley, Calif., has issued Bulletin 304 on the effects of freezes on citrus in that state, showing changes that take place in frozen oranges and lemons, and a test of the efficiency of orchard heating.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The Rhode Island Nurserymen's Association has been organized with the following officers: C. H. Greaton, Providence, president; C. W. Morey, Woonsocket, vice-president; D. A. Clarke, Fiskeville, secretary; V. A. Vanicek, Newport, treasurer.

YUCCA, found in large quantity in Arizona, the plants having an average weight of 50 pounds, requiring from 25 to 40 years to attain that size, is being used to advantage in reducing the mortality among range cattle during periods of drought in the semi-arid regions.

"ROSES for the Home" is the title of Farmers' Bulletin 750, issued by the United States department of agriculture, with information as to soil, fertilizer, planting, pruning, etc., required by varieties for lawn and border, arbor and trellis, for cutting, and for other ornamental purposes.

Tree Planting Urged.

The project of a widespread and concerted planting of trees has been sympathetically discussed by the press of the country in connection with memorializing our sacrifices in the war, and the suggestion has been greatly stimulated for the moment in the public mind by the lamented death of Theodore Roosevelt. But there has resulted no plan for recognition and concert of action in a much to be desired general undertaking of a work so easily to be put under way and so engaging and responsive in its results. Let us plant trees, and in the public service the best use of trees is to put them on our public roads, where in so many parts of our own state they are conspicuous by their absence, and in our parks and other public places, where feasible, to renew and replant defunct and depleted plantations, and our public school grounds in the rural districts, where opportunity should be found and which have been sadly neglected by our state educational department.—New York Sun.

Plant Quarantine Protest.

At a spirited meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in Horticultural hall, Boston, February 15, the matter of plant exclusion as embodied in the proposed ruling of the Federal Horticultural Board, was the subject of a lively discussion entered into by W. N. Craig, W. H. Wyman and others of the society, and Dr. B. T. Galloway, of the foreign seed and plant introduction division of the department of agriculture. A number of questions had been prepared by Mr. Craig calling attention to numerous inconsistencies in the proposed embargo, but the answers of the government's expert failed in the main to change the opinion of those present that the regulations were unfair to horticultural interests. As a result, the following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That this public meeting in Horticultural hall, Boston, February 15, 1919, comprising many members of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and others keenly interested in horticulture, believes that the horticultural interests of the United States will be very seriously affected if Quarantine No. 37 is put in force.

Since the opening of the great world war, imports of European nursery stock have been very much restricted, and growers here have not stocks on hand of the excluded plants from which to propagate. A very long period would be necessary to produce much of the stock we have been importing, and our climate and labor conditions are such that few men would have the temerity to undertake work which a new Federal Horticultural Board would probably unsettle if not destroy.

The opinion of the Federal Horticultural Board that debarred plants can all promptly be produced at home is one which no one possessing practical horticultural knowledge would for one moment consider. Orchids, bay trees, boxwood, rhododendrons and other debarred plants require from 7 to 25 years from seeds, cuttings or grafts to be of suitable size for the American trade. We have no growers here willing to wait for these long years for financial returns.

Proof is entirely lacking that our most serious pests and diseases have come on foreign nursery stock. If inspectors had, in the past, performed their duties more carefully, many of them would have been excluded. With a total prohibition of all plant imports, there remain ample opportunities for both pests and diseases to be introduced and, as long as we have foreign commerce, there are probabilities of additional trouble from such sources.

There seems no valid reason why careful inspection by properly trained men before shipment and after arrival should not amply safeguard our growers at home.

We consider this quarantine unjust, unfair and very discriminating. In it Germany is distinctly favored, while friendly nations have practically all their products debarred.

We do not believe that congress endowed the Federal Horticultural Board with any fiscal powers, and the efforts of a few nurserymen and florists in supporting this measure are more with an idea of excluding plants from abroad that they may charge higher prices for inferior articles produced at home.

It is our earnest belief that, under any circumstances, this quarantine should not go into effect on June 1 next, and that no action be taken which does not properly safeguard the increasingly important horticultural interests of America.

Resolved, That these copies be forwarded to Dr. C. L. Marlatt, Chairman of the Federal Horticultural Board, Hon. D. F. Houston, secretary of agriculture, Senators Lodge, and Weeks, Senator-elect Walsh and the 16 Massachusetts congressmen.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the above society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., February 12. There was a large attendance with President Joseph Adler in the chair. Philip Lucking of Oyster Bay and Peter Stroyer of Brookville, were elected to active membership and R. C. Hallock was admitted as an associate member. The judges for the monthly exhibits, Wm. Milstead, Chas. Young and Geo. Gilder, made the following awards: To Robt. Jones, first for pot of cyclamen and 50 single violets.

It was unanimously agreed that the society go on record as being against the proposed horticultural import prohibition and a letter of protest was ordered sent to Senator Calder and Congressman Hicks, representing this county.

It was decided to hold the annual dinner at the Glen Head hotel, February 26, the arrangements to be in the hands of Ernest J. Brown, Ernest Westlake and John W. Everitt.

An interesting essay, entitled, "The Value of a Scientific Education" was ably read by John F. Johnston and a vote of thanks was ordered sent to the author, Arthur Smith, a member of the society. Among the visitors present were: R. H. Lickman, president, W. C. McCollum, secretary, and A. Knight, a member of the Islip Horticultural Society, each of whom spoke briefly on horticultural subjects. Competition at the next monthly meeting, March 12, will center in one pot or pan of tulips, six heads of celery and 12 stalks of rhubarb.

Frederickton, N. B.

The winter just passing has been very favorable to the growers in the matter of fuel saving. Coal dealers say that they have difficulty in making sales and wood has also dropped in price. The influenza epidemic seems to have abated and funeral work is now about normal. Stock is also more plentiful and prices are more reasonable. Some carnations may be had at $1.50 per dozen and roses bring from $2 to $3. Pot cyclamens bring from 75 cents to $1 and hyacinths in 4-inch pots vary from 25 to 50 cents. Cinerarias in the same size go at 50 cents to $1. Callas are quoted at 25 cents each. The opening of the local house of assembly which occurs in March generally creates more or less demand for flowers. J. B.

TEAGUE, TEX.—Owing to a shortage of water, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Hibbert have been compelled to discontinue their establishment.

DAYTON, O.—At a meeting of stockholders and creditors of the Miami Floral Co. at the court house, February 27, announced by the receiver, R. G. Corwin, an order will be asked authorizing the sale of real estate belonging to the defendant company.

PLANT EMBARGO HEARING.

Florists and Nurserymen Present Their Case to Secretary Houston, of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Spirit of Fairness Manifest.

The legality of quarantine order No. 37 was attacked, and the action of the federal horticultural board criticised, March 2, when representatives of the florists and nurserymen of the United States, 10 in number, led by Curtis Nye Smith, of Boston, Mass., appeared before Secretary of Agriculture David F. Houston. This opportunity had been sought for some time, without results, until this appointment was made by Senator William M. Calder, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Senator Calder, at the last minute, found that he would be unable to accompany these men to the department and they were taken in charge by Representative Isaac Bachrach, of Atlantic City, N. J., who has been very active with Senator Calder in this matter.

At the department, practically the entire argument was made by Curtis Nye Smith. He denied that the nurserymen were in favor of the quarantine regulations, as had been stated by the board, but had not been given an opportunity to express their views at a fair meeting. He stated that he had been informed, at first, that the intention was to quarantine only earth balled plants and horticultural stocks coming from the Orient. When the provisions were extended to cover everything he had asked for a hearing, but aside from a semi-official meeting in October, during the influenza epidemic, when attendance in Washington was discouraged, nothing had been done.

He claimed he had been prevented from discussing the legality of the regulations with the board. He accused it of having exceeded its authority, the evidence obtained by the board failing to prove the case. Briefs setting forth these contentions were filed with Secretary Houston by both the florists and nurserymen. Secretary Houston stated that he would put the matter before the solicitor of the department of agriculture for legal decision. He also said that if it were as the nurserymen felt, that they had not been given a full hearing, that it was greatly to be regretted and should not be permitted. He declared that he did not favor quarantine regulations as a general thing, and was not disposed to agree to their adoption in cases other than where there is a danger that pests or diseases may come to the United States. He was told that the pests came over in ways other than upon horticultural stock, as in the case of the European corn borer, which made the trip to the United States on bagging consigned to the navy yard at Charlestown, Mass. This has since spread to a considerable extent and is causing alarm in that state.

The Washington correspondent of THE AMERICAN FLORIST was assured by the committee members, following their conference with Secretary Houston, that they were truly well pleased with their trip. "It was well worth time and expense to come here on this occasion, and we are leaving with the thought that we will receive fair play at the hands of the secretary of agriculture. The conference was a delightful one, and we have every reason to hope that the regulations will be withdrawn. We think we have made a good case before Secretary Houston, particularly since the record of the hearing held by the board will not show up very well in favor of the board's action. Then, also, pressure is being brought to bear by the European governments, who are not going to permit the exportation to the United States of fruit stocks, as favored by the board, while shut off from the business involving other horticultural products. In fact, they have adopted resolutions to this effect."

Extracts From Brief.

We reproduce herewith some important extracts from the brief presented by the tariff and legislative committee of the Society of American Florists:

"While this committee has not seen the numerous letters which we are told are on file in possession of the federal horticultural board from various nurseries, urging that this quarantine be established, we are in possession of the following facts: On the same day on which the Holland Nurserymen's Association received a cablegram notifying them that Quarantine No. 37 had received your signature, four different firms in Boskoop, Holland, each received a cablegram from one of the very few nurserymen who, in open session, endorsed this prohibition act of the federal horticultural board in which said firm asked for a quotation on 100,000 evergreens and conifers, which is conclusive proof that this concern was not giving its support for the purpose of guarding the country from insect pests. It was ready to let the country take the chance by importing evergreens by the hundred thousand before the doors were closed—simply petty profiteering at the expense of the public. This committee does not wish to even insinuate that all of these endorsements received by letter were prompted by selfish motives, but this committee, and the public, should be permitted to see and pass on these endorsements, the same as on evidence given in open session, in order that it might point out to the board where selfish or profiteering interests prompted such endorsement.

EXCEPTIONS TAKEN TO BOARD'S RULING.

"That the board is unjust to the horticultural trade as well as to the public in making such sweeping restrictions as are ordered in Quarantine No. 37; that the actual conditions existing do not, and dangers from past invasion did not, warrant such drastic measures; that if restrictions are known to be necessary against the importation of stock from certain countries or sources, it should have specified the country or source from which such danger threatened and not unjustly close the doors of the entire world to the American people.

"The board's action should have been taken in accordance with Section 7 of the plant quarantine act, which says:

"That, whenever, in order to prevent the introduction into the United States of any tree, plant, or fruit disease or of any injurious insect, new to or not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States, the secretary of agriculture shall determine that it is necessary to forbid the importation into the United States of any class of nursery stock or of any other class of plants, fruits, vegetables, roots, bulbs, seeds, or other plant products from a country or locality where such disease or insect infestation exists, he shall promulgate such determination, specifying the country and locality and the class of nursery stock or other class of plants, fruits, vegetables, roots, bulbs, seeds or other plant products which, in his opinion, should be excluded."

"We insist upon it that we are entitled to intelligent enlightenment why these equally harmless bulbs are excluded. Why can a crocus or hyacinth come in and why must the equally innocent gladiolus, snowdrop or beautiful Spanish iris be excluded?

"Item 3 in Quarantine Act No. 37 permits the importation of rose stocks for propagation, including manetti, multiflora, briar rose and rosa rugosa. These new regulations, while permitting the import of rose-stocks for grafting and budding, prohibit the importation of named varieties; this in spite of the fact that the possibility of introducing or not introducing insects or diseases is the same on one, as it is on the other.

"According to the department's records, there were imported during the off year ending June 30, 1918, 1,056,000 named roses and 3,500,000 rose stocks.

Calla Spray

These were probably sent to every state in the Union and we cannot find a single record where a shipment of these plants was held up for quarantine by any inspector, which shows that this stock was apparently clean and safe to distribute.

"We contend that when the federal horticultural board makes a rule on roses, this ruling must be the same on the stock as on the finished product, as one is precisely a counterpart of the other, and the board has no right to distinguish between them.

"Roses have been coming to our country from foreign shores ever since the Pilgrims landed, and up until 1912, without even being inspected. In all that time they have not been guilty of bringing in any kind of trouble or disaster, and they are just as untainted now as they were then, and since 1912 they have run the gauntlet of careful state inspection. Where is the justice of excluding them now?

"At a recent meeting of the New Jersey State Nurserymen's Association, the state inspector of New Jersey, Harry B. Weiss, who has filled this important position since 1911, and through whose hands possibly 50 per cent. of the roses imported into the United States pass made the statement that he has never found a rose or rose-stock that was infested with a dangerous pest.

"We take the liberty, Mr. Secretary, of quoting from a letter bearing your signature, addressed to the Honorable William M. Calder, in which you say:

"It is true that, as a general rule, plants coming to the United States from Holland have been in better condition than those from any other country, and much freer from pests than those from Belgium. Nevertheless, many injurious insects have been detected in connection with stock imported from Holland since August 20, 1912, when the federal plant quarantine act became effective. During the period of six years of enforcement of this act and inspection of imported plant materials, no less than 148 different species of injurious insects have been discovered on Holland nursery stock, much of which was house-grown. Many of these insects are not now established in the United States and would constitute new elements of danger to the horticulture and agriculture of this country.

"One of the members of our committee has tabulated the number of importations made by his company during the six years you refer to and finds that his concern alone made 1611 separate importations during that period. These were distributed among 19 different countries and consisted of anywhere from one up to 100 or more cases each. All of these imports were inspected by state inspectors under federal regulations and in the entire lot there was not one shipment that was held up for quarantine.

"It seems strange that out of this lot of over 1,000 individual shipments the inspectors have not reported a single dangerous infestation and this, in view of the fact that a record has been given to you of the discovery of 148 different species of injurious insects having been found in Holland stock alone.

"We must quote part of this letter again—'No less than 148 different species of injurious insects have been discovered on Holland nursery stock, much of which was house-grown.' Please note the sentence: 'Much of which was house-grown.' We must take positive exception to this, it not being a statement of actual facts. While the bulk of the Belgium product is house-grown, there is practically no stock for export grown under glass in Holland. What greenhouses the exporters in Holland have are used exclusively for propagating purposes. While some of their plants are grown in pots, this is done in the open air and not in houses.

"Finally, in coming before you, Mr. Secretary, we do so as American citizens, representing an important industry. We have not come to you to beg for favors or mercy from the federal horticultural board, but we ask for justice. This can only be done by Quarantine No. 37 being rescinded and if necessary a new regulation be sub-

Dahlias of Promise.

The accompanying illustration shows one section of a field of dahlias, near Philadelphia, Pa., taken last September. The center row contains the variety Jean Kerr. It is one of the finest white dahlias for cutting and garden decoration, the type being midway between a decorative and show or ball variety, held erect on long, stiff stems quite clear of all foliage. Neither adverse weather conditions, white fly or insects appear to trouble it in the least. Its flowering period began in August, many weeks ahead of other varieties. At the right is a row of seedlings of a stiff-stemmed pure white peony-flowered variety, named Fordhook White, possessing practically the same qualities as Jean Kerr.

Gripping Stuff.

Could anything be more fascinating than the daily reports of winter baseball? Answer: Yes, a seed catalogue. To test the notion we read a column about the trial of the baseball cause celebre yesterday. Then we read two pages of a seed catalogue. The seed stuff was gripping.—B. L. St. Patrick's Day.

While people do not exactly jostle one another in buying cut flowers or plants for "Paddy's day," yet it presents an opportunity, on account of the sentiment, that connects it with the home land of many, to feature the anniversary to advantage. Whatever is uppermost in the public mind, or even a racial part of the same, that calls for an annual celebration, should be made the most of in a decorative way. The store that goes to the trouble, is quite sure to be remembered by the interested parties. Stationers and confectioners make a point of catering to the demand for this celebration. They do this because it is bound to pay. They make up their lines in good season, and by displaying them call to mind the occasion and create the demand. Florists can do the same; each dealer gets a return for his efforts, according to the enthusiasm and force he puts into them. If he has the stock and features it in advance by novel and conspicuous display, he is almost certain to mark up satisfactory results.

The Irish flag contains a harp, so a good sized harp of green leucothoe leaf segments, or small magnolia leaves gilded, studded with miniature green electric lights, will make a showy window piece. This used in connection with Irish flags, shamrocks in pots, and shamrock-shaped pans, and a number of the small conceits to be found in the stocks of the supply dealers, such as miniature high hats, wheel barrows, Irish lads and lassies with vase attachments for shamrocks or flowers should make up an interesting window display.

One of the conceits that always finds a ready sale is a good sized potato, hollowed out on the top at one end, sufficient to hold a one-inch pot of shamrock, pot and all. If the hole is made greater inside than the opening, a larger plant or section of the same may be squeezed in and look very well. Decorated with a green ribbon and a miniature clay pipe, this will bring a price that shows a very good profit. Display these in connection with boxes that fit, some tied up and addressed to out-of-town points, and card, "Shamrock Souvenirs,—Mailed to Any Address."

"Greened" carnations have a popularity for this day that is worked to advantage by those who do not mind the trouble and dirt their manipulation makes. They are used to such an extent as to make an appreciable advance in the price of white flowers for this purpose.

Blooming plants in the market at this time, with the exception of anything yellow, can be given the significance of the day by little decorative touches, such as green crepe, small Irish flags, miniature pipes in bows of green ribbon, etc.

The day is nearly always celebrated with dinners of the various Irish organizations, at which the decorations are more or less elaborate. At some, the table takes the form of the Irish harp, while on others, decorated harps are often used, some flat and others standing to give the national significance. Pots and pans of shamrocks, greened carnations and other flowers, and small Irish flags, are principal features of these decorations.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

As spring is so near at hand, it is well to feature all kinds of blossoming branches, such as forsythia, Pyrus japonica, double flowering almonds, dwarf apples, crab apples, cherry and peach blossoms, etc., all of which are very attractive when well covered with their beautiful flowers. While but little of this stock is handled or offered in the commission houses, the enterprising florist, who desires something a little different, and not found in every store, will be amply repaid for his trouble in forcing or interesting some one to bring it in for him.

The activity of the retail florists in getting around among the growers the past week, looking up stock for Easter plant orders, proves that our warning in last week's issue was not a bit too early. This will be an unusual year: there is not too much of anything, while a number of the standard stocks will not half meet the demand. Owing to the very forward season, the Holland bulb situation is beginning to look serious to many growers who fear they may not be able to hold the stock, particularly should April prove warm. This would cause great loss and inconvenience to all concerned, particularly the storekeepers who use this stock to such an extent in their plant baskets, and which delivered, ready for sale in pots and pans, are at once an attracting addition to the stock.

It is good business to commence to feature the Easter stock: just a little of this or that, sufficient to call the event to the minds of customers and casual visitors, which will bear fruit later on. The more planning and preparation, the larger volume and better results when the day arrives.

Let this be sweet pea week. They are now at their best. Nothing could be finer than the stock coming daily in quantity to the market. They are dainty, fragrant and popular with nearly all flower buyers. If featured in the various ways to which they lend themselves, displayed in shallow flower bowls, in small vase baskets, in a pyramid stand composed of small vases that hold one bunch each, in shower effects in hanging vases in the window, and in many other ways, they are sure to attract the attention that soon carries them off. For special drives, such as a week end sale, at a quick moving price, but also showing a good profit, there is nothing better. Many of the funeral pieces, sprays or set designs, are as well made of sweet peas as any other flower, and should show a better profit at this time. We recently saw a large pillow, the ground work of which was beautifully, and yet loosely, made of white sweet peas. A space diagonally across the center was filled at the top with Iris Tingitana, the center was a large bow of lavender orchid ribbon, below which was a half dozen cattleyas. The ribbon ends and loops were artistically placed among these center flowers, and used as well to take up the space and add to the general effect. It was a very artistic piece of work, composed of seasonable flowers. Single and double sprays of all sweet peas are effective, and also work in very well in connection with callas or Easter lilies. They are now the flower of the day, and should be kept to the front because of the profit in handling that is possible with their artistic arrangement. While one must or should know the exact cost of the flowers used in every order, the price to the consumer, should in addition to the regular store percentage of profit, contain an artistic fee, if it might so be called, which has been earned and made possible by the superior arrangement of the flowers. The house deserves this recognition, and the artist as well, for his clever workmanship.

Do not neglect the publicity of your business. You cannot too often impress on your trade the fact that your store, well stocked with the best of the seasonable plants and cut flowers, stands ready to serve them. Their telephone is the front door to your shop, always open to welcome their orders, which will receive the best attention. New business can be obtained through the medium of the newspapers. Florists all over the land find splendid results in well planned advertising in connection with the national "Say it with Flowers" campaign. If you have not contributed to this good work, do so at once. It is for your benefit, and is surely the best money investment you can make. #### LILY BULB PRODUCTION IN THE UNITED STATES.

Seedling Easter Lilies at Government Greenhouses, Arlington Farms, Va. Photographed February 11, 1919, Representing Individual Progeny of Selfed Plants Selected from Best Florists' Stocks, the Seed Planted in July 1916, and Transplanted into Benches Where They Did not Make as Good Growth as the Pot Plants During the Summer of 1917, the Soil in the Benches not Being in Proper Condition. In the Autumn of 1917, the Potted Bulbs of the Same Progeny were Forced and Produced 3 to 7 Flowers. See Text.

Lily Bulb Production in United States.

By David Griffiths, of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

In early July, the department sent out some preliminary notices regarding Easter lily work, with suggestions regarding how the florist might produce his own bulbs of superior merit in one year's time from seed. It seems desirable again to call the attention of florists, who have an opportunity to visit Washington between now and Easter, to the investigations being conducted in the greenhouses at Arlington Farm, near Washington. The stocks that are now of interest are as follows:

I. A lot of 500 bulbs which were grown out-of-doors the past season are being forced. They went through the winter of 1917-1918 out-of-doors, and had no artificial irrigation during the summer. These bulbs are the smallest of the seedling bulbs, germinated in the summer of 1916. They were small when potted, all being under florist sizes and ranging from 9 to 15 cm. (three and one-half to six inches in circumference).

II. A few seedlings forced last year and which produced a crop of seed are being forced again this year.

III. Seeds sown the middle of July are now three-inch pots and 20 to 40 per cent will blossom in June.

IV. Seeds are sown in December are now in thumb pots.

V. A few plants of two lots of the Creole lily of the south are being forced also. One lot has been growing undisturbed until last autumn for the past 45 years.

VI. A few seedlings produced with candidum pollen are in three-inch pots.

Attention should be called again to the desirability of those who have facilities and an opportunity, to start seedling generations of Easter lilies this spring. The seed thus produced, if well handled, can be sown in July and by the following June a few blossoms will appear, but not in commercial quantity. In September of 1920, if well handled, 60 per cent will be large enough to force for the following Easter.

For seed production, the florist should select the best plants he can find, and probably should cross plants which have the greatest degree of similarity, in order to arrive at as large a degree of uniformity as possible in the progeny. There will be in all events diversity enough, but no more diversity than is found in any similar batch of imported stocks.

On the other hand, one would expect a greater degree of uniformity if the plants were selfed. The first generation produced by the department and the ones described under (I) above, are individual progeny of selfed plants. If such a generation of selfed progeny is produced, it is quite likely the matter of uniformity can be advanced in the next generation by crossing from the selfed progeny the plants, which meet the grower's ideal of perfection most closely. It is also possible that uniformity may be still farther advanced by using Lilium candidum pollen. Such a "cross" has in the past resulted in the production of nothing but Lilium longiflorum, the seed parent, which has led breeders to think that we have in effect such "crosses," a parthenogenetic seed production. If this is true, it would seem that uniformity of progeny might be advanced by deliberately using such pollen as will result in seed production but not in fertilization. Of course, the question of maintenance of vigor is to be considered, but on this point we have no practical information.

This matter, however, is in all probability for the breeder's consideration. The florist will depend on the ordinary process of pollination, which will give plants satisfactory from a florist standpoint, although they may vary in stature. But such variation is as useful as the uses of the Easter lily is varied. It is really questionable whether close uniformity is imperative in florists' stocks of Easter lily.

There is need, however, for the breeder's attention being directed to the possibilities here. The department's seedlings produced with candidum pollen are now in three-inch pots and are expected to blossom in June. There are only a few of them, but they are at present more uniform than any lot we have raised and do not differ from ordinary longiflorum seedlings.

Our out-of-door plantings of lily bulbs are in apparently perfect condition, although planted earlier than we would have planted had cold storage facilities been available for holding the bulbs dormant. The possibility of home production of Easter lily bulbs is forcing itself upon us more clearly as time goes on, and we are looking with considerable confidence to the water tempered climate of the Chesapeake, and adjacent Atlantic coast regions, as holding promise for this production.

Florists who wish to see these seedling stocks can call at 220 Fourteenth street, S. W., where arrangements can be made to visit Arlington Farm greenhouses, or, if more convenient, can take the electric line near the government postoffice, changing at Arlington Junction for the farm, where either Mr. Butterfield or Mr. Meyer will show them the stocks.

Double Cosmos.

The accompanying illustration shows a rose bowl filled with sprays of a double form of this beautiful and popular fall offering, which is sure to come into general use as a florist's cut flower. It is grown from seed planted at the same time as the older variety. Some are entire double, while others have an anemone center with a single row of ray florets. The white are particularly chaste and very desirable for sprays and all kinds of funeral work. It comes into flower at the same time as the single, and lasts until frost.

Bedding Plant Work for March.

The bedding plants are beginning to occupy a great deal of the bench space at the greenhouse establishments that grow them in large numbers. As they are shifted along much more space has to be given over to them. But, if the expected higher prices are to be realized, first class plants must be offered in return, or the customers will greatly curtail their purchases. The out-of-date "three for a quarter" geranium plants, that used to be slipped from a 2½-inch pot into a 4-inch after the Easter stock was out of the way, will not be acceptable to the customers at the present day prices. They want a thrifty, well-established plant, nicely in bloom. For such plants, they do not complain at the advanced prices, but ask a quarter or even 20 cents for a puny geranium plant and they will quickly call you a robber.

Easter comes so very late this year, that even if it were a wise plan to hold over, shifting along the bedding plants until after the Easter stock is out of the way, it could not be done with any certain degree of success and have the plants ready for sale by May 15-30. This is the time of the year when greenhouse shelves are a great asset to a grower; they provide space for a lot of stock, especially the flats of transplanted seedlings, and it is a good plan to fit up shelves wherever it is practical to utilize them. According to reliable information, there is a shortage of some of the popular varieties of bedding, particularly geraniums. This should cause an increased demand for a greater assortment of plants, and anyone who has a good stock of cannas, petunias, salvias or any other plants that can be used for outside planting, will do well in working up a good stock of them.

ANNUAL SEEDLINGS.

Under this heading can be placed a long list of plants that should receive attention at this time. There are pansies, verbenas, lobelias, petunias, ageratums, sweet alyssums, bellis, vincas and begonias, seed of which, having been sown since the first of the year, the plants should now be either transplanted into flats or ready to be attended to. Do not delay this work. When the young plants have attained sufficient size as transplanted plants, they will be ready for potting up to make nice, sturdy stock in flower when needed for sale or planting out. The shelves are the place for the flats of these transplanted plants, and it is wonderful the number a shelf will hold.

March 1-15 is the time for sowing seed of asters, antirrhinums, petunias, verbenas, zinnias and all other plants that are to be sold from flats as transplanted seedlings. These seed boxes do not need to take up bench space; a shelf is just as good a place for them. They need to be shaded from the bright sunlight by laying a sheet of newspaper over them. After the seedlings are up through the ground, allow them to have full sunlight.

GERANIUMS.

The geraniums should now be ready for shifting up from 3-inch to 4-inch pots, and as geraniums form the bulk of the bedding plants on most places, the repotting is one of the big jobs at this time. Of all the bedding plants, geraniums are the ones that use up the most space; 25,000 geranium plants in 4-inch pots cover a large amount of bench space, even when standing pot to pot, and it is only a very short while before they will need to be given more room. But they are the leaders among the bedding plants and require plenty of room and good care to get them into short, stocky plants in full bloom.

Geraniums need a live, fresh soil and firm potting, and do best when grown cool with full light and plenty of ventilation on every favorable occasion. Do not let the shortage of stock tempt you to take any cuttings from the geranium plants after March 10, and expect the cut-back plants to make up and be in good bloom by May 15 for under the most favorable weather conditions, they will not do it. To nip out the top of a growth that has run up too fast is all right, but it is too late to cut a growth far enough back to make a cutting.

CANNAS.

Clean up the stock of these, shaking out the soil and divide up the roots into two or three eye cuts. Start up in the propagating bed of sand or in flats, hold a little to the dry side until they have made roots, and as soon as the top growth is well started, pot up and give them a light, warm place.

POTTING MISCELLANEOUS BEDDING PLANTS.

This heading refers to all the stock now in 2, 2¼ or 2½-inch pots of such plants as Mme. Salleroi, begonias, ageratums, fuchsias, heliotropes, lantanas, marguerites or any plant wanted to be in bloom in 3-inch or larger pots for May sales. Pot them up in a medium light soil and give good treatment. Cuttings of all of these plants can still be propagated. They will make nice plants in 2½-inch pots for Memorial day or later. They will be far better for summer sales than the earlier propagated stock.

Cuttings of alternantheras, put in the sand now and given a bottom heat temperature of 65-70 degrees, will be ready by the end of March to be potted up and transferred to the hot-bed. They grow rapidly and make just as good plants for late in May planting as those propagated last fall and carried over winter. The brighter days are causing the fall struck plants to start up into growth. It is yet too early to transfer them to the hot-beds outside, but, by the end of March, the beds should be put in readiness to take care of them.

With the exception of the geraniums, all of the bedding plants are very susceptible to the attack of green aphids, and should receive regular fumigations as a preventive to guard against their becoming infected.

FALL SOWN PANSIES IN FRAMES.

It will not take many of the bright days before the frost when pansies will all be out of the beds in the frames and will need to receive some attention. Some of the plants may have been worked up out of the ground by the frost. These should be attended to and the surface of the beds gone over and levelled up a bit, and any weeds cleaned out of them. As the days become warmer, the sash should be lifted to give air to the plants, and later on, during bright, warm periods, they can be removed to keep the plants dwarf and robust.

C. W. JOHNSON.

Corn Borer Quarantine Hearing.

About 25 persons were present at the hearing of the federal horticultural board at Washington, D. C., February 26, at which was discussed the proposed quarantining of New York and Massachusetts because of the presence in those states of the European corn borer. The board has learned that in addition to corn, all herbaceous plants, including such cultivated garden or flowering plants as celery, Swiss chard, green or string beans (in the pod), beet tops, spinach, turnip tops, dahlias, including stems and tubers; gladioli and chrysanthemums are subject to infestation by this insect, and during the course of the hearing, geraniums and wild hemp were also added.

State agriculturists joined with the florists and nurserymen in urging that the board take no action at this time, but leave the matter in the hands of the state. Appearing on behalf of Massachusetts, its commissioner of agriculture, Winfield Wheeler, of Boston, declared the pest could be taken care of there, with the assistance of the federal authorities, without imposing drastic federal quarantine measures. There is now pending in the Massachusetts legislature, he told the board, a measure that would give the agricultural commission authority to impose quarantine measures within the state and ample funds would be provided by the state for combatting the pest. Mr. Wheeler stated that it was proposed to enforce a rigid quarantine in the section where the pest has been discovered. The gardeners and others in that territory, that are at interest, have expressed a willingness to co-operate with the authorities in stamping out the borer and probably no corn will be grown in the infested area during the next season.

It developed during the conference that the European corn borer was not in evidence in the greenhouses, and that it did not attack other than corn except where vegetation was in growth near a cornfield that was badly infested. The borer has been found on products other than corn, including all of the commodities named above, but the preference of the borer is corn.

The insect has been found in Chelsea and Topsfield, Mass., and in the counties of Schenectady, Montgomery and Saratoga in the state of New York. Because of this, and in order to prevent the further spread of this injurious pest, it is proposed to quarantine the whole of both of these states. Such drastic action would work tremendous hardship, it was pointed out, on florists, nurserymen and gardeners located at points far distant from the infested area, yet subject to the provisions of such a quarantine, because of residence within the states named. For instance, John Lewis Childs, Inc., according to Isaac S. Hendrickson, would be restricted to business within the state, although located at Flowerfield, on Long Island, many miles from the infested area. A similar situation would be present in the case of T. C. Thurlow's Sons, Inc., said David C. Stranger, despite the fact that this concern is located at West Newbury, Mass., almost on the Vermont line. In the opinion of M. Ernest Moore, representing the Boston Market Gardeners' Association and the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange, a state-wide quarantine would have the effect of driving all of the market gardeners of Massachusetts out of business. This was corroborated by Commissioner Wheeler. Both gentlemen pointed out that a large bulk of the business of the market gardener was out of the state—to Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont—while the florists and nurserymen stated they did business all over the United States, from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It is plainly to be seen, they said, that if they could not ship out of their states their business would be gone.

Doubt was expressed as to whether or not the borer, the European type, had actually invaded New York, and certainly there was no evidence to prove that it had. There was considerable talk on this point, with nothing definite in sight in the absence of specimens. George G. Atwood told of explorations made by him in New York and of the finding of the pest in small quantities. There seems to be nothing very alarming about the New York situation and the authorities of that state have ample power to take any needed action, to say nothing of the probable allotment of $200,000 from the state funds to help stamp out the pest.

Everyone present agreed that the pest is dangerous; that quick action is needed, but the agitation was rather for state control than for federal intervention. It was quite plainly shown that much better results could be obtained by the department of agriculture withholding any quarantine action and by co-operating with the state authorities through furnishing funds and labor for clean-up work and educational campaigns. At the same time, the various branches of the industry will be saved a loss of millions of dollars.

Various suggestions were made as to how the proposition could best be handled. These suggestions, together with the information furnished by the different speakers, will be taken under advisement by the board. The meeting was presided over by C. L. Marlatt, chairman of the federal horticultural board. He declined to state what action the board proposed taking, although making it clear that there was no desire to do any more damage than actually necessary under the circumstances.

Among those present many of whom participated in the discussions, were: David C. Stranger, representing T. C. Thurlow's Sons, Inc., West Newbury, Mass.; Isaac S. Hendrickson of John Lewis Childs, Inc., Flowerfield, N. Y., representing also the New York Horticultural Society; A. E. Robinson, of the Breck-Robinson Nursery Company, of Lexington, Mass.; W. H. Wyman, representing the Bay State Nurseries, of North Abington, Mass.; B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass.; P. M. Koster, of Boskoop, Holland; H. Langelier, representing M. Van Waveren & Sons, New York; George F. Mead, M. Ernest Moore and Arthur P. Wyman, representing the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange and the Boston Market Gardeners' Association; Luther A. Breck, of Joseph Breck and Sons Corp., Boston, Mass.; William Pitkin, chairman of the legislative committee, and C. H. Perkins, president, New York State Nurserymen's Association; Leslie B. Smith, Hadley, Mass., representing the Massachusetts department of agriculture and the Massachusetts state grange; Commissioner of Agriculture, of Massachusetts, Winfield Wheeler, of Boston; George Atwood, inspector for the bureau of plant industry, Albany, N. Y.; D. J. Caffrey, inspector of the bureau of entomology, Boston, Mass.; W. R. Walton, bureau of entomology, Washington, D. C.; P. R. Taylor, Providence, R. I., representing the Providence Market Gardeners' Association and the Providence Farmers' Exchange; R. H. Allen, nursery inspector of Massachusetts, Boston, Mass., and Dr. L. O. Howard, chief of the bureau of entomology, Washington, D. C. The board was represented by Chairman Marlatt, George E. Sudwarth, W. A. Orton and Dr. K. F. Kellerman.

Seasonable Suggestions.

Paper by Clement E. Frey, Lincoln, Neb., read at the annual meeting of the Nebraska State Florists' Society, Lincoln, February 25, 1919.

I have been asked to give at this time a few seasonable suggestions. We have just passed through a very strenuous, though prosperous winter, owing to the great demand and scarcity of flowers, and we are looking forward to the Easter time and spring rush.

It has been evident for some time that we are to have an Easter without Easter lilies, without spiraeas and many other plants which we have been accustomed to have at this season, and that we are to have but a limited amount of bulbous stock. To off-set this somewhat, we are growing a large quantity of schizanthus, also a good supply of cinerarias. It is also time to pot up and bring into a warmer house any hydrangeas that we have been keeping in a cellar or cold house. It will soon be time to cut back and pot up any roses which we may be holding dormant, such as baby ramblers or any dormant stock of this kind which you may have on hand. Any smaller sizes of cyclamens given a shift, will help to hold and keep them in bloom for Easter. Pot up a few geraniums into large sizes, for from the present outlook, most anything will sell for Easter. On account of the scarcity of good stock, we should have on hand a supply of young ferns and asparagus, with which we can make up some baskets and mixed pots, which will help out our Easter display.

It is now that season when we should keep the propagating bench well filled at all times. It is also a good time to root carnations and to keep in all available geranium cuttings. See to it that you are getting plenty of salvias on hand, also coleus, for there seems to be quite a shortage of this kind of stock. It is also time to sow verbenas, smilax, petunias, snapdragons, Shasta daisies and any perennials which you may have need of this spring. It is a good time now to give your carnations a little feed or to dress up anything upon which you are depending for cut flowers. We will need all the flowers we can get hold of for Easter. If you have any snapdragons benched, a little extra care at this time will give you good returns. It is also time to plant in gladioli if you have not already done so, for they will be a valuable crop this year. Pansies should be ready to prick off from the seed bed if you did not attend to this last fall, for it will soon be time to put them in the frames outside. It is a good time to propagate a few heliotropes, lantanas, lemon verbenas and any such stock as you may need.

LANSEING, MICH.—J. A. Bissinger, well-known florist of this city, is spending the winter in California.

RICHMOND, IND.—Paul Weiss, of the Weiss-Meyer Co., Maywood, and Eugene Dramm, of Elmhurst, were visitors at the Hill ranges March 5.

Vocational Education.

S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa., in a communication dated March 1, writes that his attention has been called by the federal board for vocational education to the fact that a great many disabled soldiers are finding trouble to get employment, the business men of the country not responding in the patriotic way they should, and that if each firm would endeavor to make a position if only for one man, it would solve the question without a doubt. Greenhouse work would offer opportunities in many cases, particularly where the men have been doing heavy work in the past and are disabled and only able to do light work now. Many of these men have been hard workers, and any work they could do would probably be done well.

In a letter to Mr. Pennock, Jerome B. Scott, supervisor of replacement of district No. 3, located in Philadelphia, calls attention to the following points:

"In reference to the kind of work wanted for the men, and the class of men that are disabled, I desire to state that many of the men we are coming in contact with are fellows that have done strenuous work before enlistment, and who, because of healing wounds and other minor disabilities, are unable to take up this kind of work, but require jobs of a lighter nature. In some cases, they require sitting-down work and in other cases the men have been gassed and require outside positions. As I stated the other day, work in your line is particularly well suited for this class of men. They will not be men of any great industrial experience; they will not be men of any particular skill.

"It is the hale and hearty chap who had lived a rough and strenuous life prior to enlistment who because of this rugged, enthusiastic spirit, was the man who managed to get himself in the front lines, and in the first dash over the top and, in many cases, the one most ready to do the seemingly foolhardy things, whom we have to deal with. The reward for this spirit of dash and bravery is a weakened constitution, for a time.

"It is here that we are appealing to the employer to follow up his splendid work and backing that he gave to these fellows during the war, and to now do his "after-war bit" and continue to back him up until he is established again in civil life and is self reliant. Do you know that many of these fine fellows that you see pictured on the screen leaving the transports are roaming the streets without jobs and compelled to go to the Red Cross, Rotary Club and other institutions to ask for a bed and a meal? The hero that returns to a home and loved ones is truly fortunate. How about the fellow that bared his breast to the Hur and returned to these shores wounded and cheered for a day, but realizes upon the following day that the cheers have subsided?

"A great problem confronts the nation at this time, that is, the problem of unemployment, and the greatest element in this unemployment is the wounded men. Please do not offer them $10 a week jobs. Can you live on $10 a week? These fine fellows do not want charity—they simply want a chance to make an honest and fair living—to make good."

Mr. Pennock adds: "It seems to me that this should appeal to those among our profession who have any patriotism about them, and I feel that it is the duty of everyone to do their 'after-the-war bit!'"

[National Publicity for Flowers.

JOINT COMMITTEE SESSION.

When the publicity committee and the finance publicity committee met in joint session at the end of January, the financial status of the campaign was thoroughly discussed, expenditures minutely examined, and everything found in first-class shape. All accounts had been audited by a firm of certified accountants, and were approved by the committees. The committees did not appoint an audit committee from their own body, it being decided that as the campaign was conducted under the auspices and direction of the S. A. F., the official audit should be made by a committee to be appointed by the society's executive board which was to meet next day at Detroit. The secretary was directed to prepare and send to every subscriber, as soon as possible, a summarized report covering receipts and expenditures.

At the meeting, also, an appropriation of $20,000 was made to cover the magazine advertising for the spring season a schedule of which has already been published in the trade press, and the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, of Boston, was given a contract for the preparation and placing of the campaign advertising for the year 1919. The meeting was characterized by a feeling of great optimism as to the campaign outlook for the year, as was demonstrated in the decision of the committees to set $100,000 as the amount of the fund to be aimed for this year.

PUBLICITY AND S. A. F. EXECUTIVE BOARD.

The enthusiasm of the publicity committees was echoed at the meeting of the executive board of the S. A. F. next day at Detroit, when the subject matter of the publicity campaign came up for discussion. Never in the history of the board was such interest shown in a particular phase of the society's work. So enthusiastic were the members of the board that, although already liberal subscribers annually to the publicity fund, they added in the aggregate $2065 to their 1919 subscriptions after the reports of the committees and secretary had been read and discussed. The accounts in the secretary's report, in accordance with the recommendation of the publicity committees, were presented to the board with the request that the board appoint a committee from its members to audit the same, and such committee being appointed the report was made that the same were correct in every way, and commendation was due for the accuracy and neatness with which the same were presented.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

The report of the publicity committee was presented by Chairman Henry Penn, and was as follows:

"The first 12 months of the national publicity campaign of the Society of American Florists have passed, and if any doubt existed before we entered upon it, I feel that I voice the sentiments of not only the members of the publicity and finance committees, but those of every progressive up-to-date man in the country, who is engaged in the growing and selling of flowers when I make the statement that it has greatly exceeded our expectations. Despite the obstacles which every business had to contend with during the past year, particularly those encountered by the florists, we should feel greatly pleased that we launched the campaign when we did.

"I have talked with many florists located in different parts of the country, and the almost universal opinion has been that their business was better than ever before. Granting that this is so, let us consider the local curtailment which was faced, other contingencies due to the war, and the fact that flowers were in the so-called luxury class; and then if the publicity campaign did nothing more than to keep business normal during the trying year just passed, the society has taken a great step in advance.

"We had planned to expend $50,000 during 1918, and this amount was to cover expense. Adverse conditions, however, prevented raising the full amount, but taking everything into consideration, we believe that the sum raised was very satisfactory. John Young, our secretary, will give in his report the exact sum raised and expended, and you will see by this, that during the year, we used for advertising in the national mediums less than $30,000, the balance of the expenditure being used for the work of the promotion bureau in New York, printed matter and other incidentals; and right here, I want to pay tribute to the wonderful work accomplished by the promotion bureau under the direction of Secretary Young. Headquarters have been established in New York, where the florists of the country who visit that city can transact business, obtain information and keep in touch with business generally. Hundreds of columns of reading matter have been obtained in the newspapers and magazines of this country absolutely free, and every co-operation extended to help build up our business.

"The trip of Mr. Young from coast to coast, not only increased subscriptions to the publicity fund, but tended to keep the florists of the country in closer touch with each other and with their business. I believe that on his trips he also obtained new memberships for the society to the number of several hundred, which in itself, is quite an achievement. His work in enlisting the co-operation of the Red Cross Society was a great gain for our industry, and taking it all in all, I feel that the close co-operation of the promotion bureau with the publicity campaign has been the means of placing our business on a higher plane than ever before.

"Now that conditions in business are approaching normal, it seems to me that not only should we have a publicity fund of $50,000 per year, but it should be closer to $100,000, and if the florists of this country will only realize the possibilities for more business, which I feel sure they will, I believe that subscriptions will increase as time goes on. As some members may possibly think that this national advertising is expensive, I call your attention to one item as showing how little it does cost in comparison with the results accomplished. For instance, we expended about $20,000 during the spring of 1918, and about $10,000 during the fall season. Let me dwell for the moment upon the fall expenditure of $10,000, and permit me to tell you that for that $10,000 we appealed to over ten million readers of the national magazines at a cost of less than one-tenth of a cent per person. Just compare this with any form of direct contact that you can think of and realize how much more inexpensive are the results obtained through the medium of the national campaign.

"As we were somewhat delayed in getting the finance and publicity committees together to consider the 1919 campaign, it was decided that during January and February of 1919, we should concentrate our advertising efforts upon our slogan, "Say it with Flowers," and with this idea in view, we are inserting this slogan during January and February in practically every magazine of prominence in this country. We are using small space it is true but we are obliged to do so on account of the fact that we did not want to expend more than $5,000 during the entire two months, and felt that, if we could impress our slogan, "Say it with Flowers" upon the minds of over 11,000,000 people during these two months, that we would be helping all future publicity work tremendously, because, after all, to my mind, this slogan, "Say it with Flowers" is one that is worth a great deal to the florists of this country, and the more we can make people remember and think of it, the more business will it make for us all.

"It is regrettable that so few of our members have contributed to the publicity fund, and yet many are enabled to participate in the benefits of this campaign, and I hope that as time goes on we will find some method of educating the public to patronize those retail florists who display the sign "Say it with Flowers" just as the United Cigar Stores and other institutions are enabled to direct people to their establishments.

"In closing, I wish to repeat what I have said before, that I believe one of the best things we have done as business men during my connection with the Society of American Florists, has been in carrying on the publicity campaign, and I feel that its benefits will become more evident and we will all be glad to be identified and have it known that we are engaged in the business that we all love so well."

Mr. Penn then announced the decision of the publicity committees to make an effort to raise $100,000 this year for the campaign fund.

PUBLICITY FINANCE COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

Chairman George Asmus, of this committee, reported as follows:

"I am going to make some remarks verbally, and ask the secretary to substantiate them from the records. You have heard from Mr. Penn that there has been given to this committee the task of collecting $100,000. It will be a big job, but I think we can do it. Had it not been for the unusual conditions experienced in October, there is not a doubt in my mind but that I would have pulled over the $50,000 campaign as we figured, and which we came close to doing. I am going to report to you that yesterday we again contracted with the O'Keefe agency to carry on our work for the coming year; and we have appropriated the sum of $20,000 to start this work. The report of the secretary will show you how the trade of this country have appreciated this publicity by coming across with their second subscriptions, and you will hear some of the nice things that have been said by those who did come across.

"I want to ask the presidents of the affiliated organizations in this board to take every opportunity to spread the gospel of publicity, and get contributions from every brother florist in their communities to carry on this important work. I want to impress that upon the various officers of the organization who are a power in their communities and in their organizations.

"It is true that in some instances wonderful work has been done; but in other cases we have met with a very luke-warm reception. Of course, the plan we adopted of sending the secretary about the country is possibly the greatest thing that we did. In considering it among ourselves, we figured that the average cost per day in traveling expenses of the man who went out—Mr. Young accepted this job—would be from $10 to $15 a day. Mr. Young will substantiate what I am telling you now, that there were but very few days that we did not average from $200 to $400, and in some instances $600 a day receipts. Now any ordinary merchant in selling goods has to figure on a margin of about 5 or 6 per cent profit, or perhaps 10 per cent on his merchandise, and he thinks that does not seem much. But we have realized 100 per cent. If the secretary went into a town and secured the membership of but one man who signed up for $10 for four years, that meant $40 collected from that man; and if he secured $500 or $600 worth of subscriptions—which in many cases he did—you should multiply that by four years. Another thing that he did was to get the money for the first year's subscription right then and there, which saved our committee a lot of expense and trouble.

"It must have been surprising to you gentlemen when you heard the secretary's report read to see what a large percentage was sent in of the amounts subscribed. He started out receiving voluntary subscriptions, not money; but those subscriptions were all collected within a few hundred dollars of $45,000 subscribed, which was almost marvelous, considering the financial condition of most florists before the turn for the better came, and when the results of our publicity campaign showed up for this year.

"Now in 1919 we are going to aim at a higher goal. Everybody is interested in our object; we have a wonderful article to sell, and at cheap prices. The talking points are so numerous and so good that every one of you gentlemen can well feel proud to talk about them. Everything connected with this publicity campaign is above reproach. The expenses connected with the work have been as nothing when compared to the gratifying results obtained. The man who subscribes $100 a year and pays $8 a month, or $2 a week, most likely may be a man that is doing $100,000 or $150,000 worth of business. Just think how little he is paying, yet how much he is doing; but the great thing is that we are trying to get everybody to pay their just share. It is indeed unfair to expect some big-hearted man in this country like Philip Breitmeyer, for instance, to subscribe $500 to this fund; unjust in proportion to what some of the other men who are supposed to be good florists are doing. Some do something, and others very little. It seems to me that we ought to seek to find some means whereby everybody shall participate to the same extent as Mr. Breitmeyer does in that fund, or in proportion to their means. This trip of the secretary has given us a further opportunity. Taking the state of California, before Mr. Young visited there he had committees appointed in every section. I had the state vice-president suggest the names, and we tried in every way to get the liveliest wires possible, men who had been former officials and correspondents; and the first trip of the secretary around the country proved its real benefit by putting the question to men direct, shaking them by the hand, and, in nine cases out of 10, getting their subscriptions. We hope to get the secretary on such a trip again, to interest the California section of the country, because we have only scratched the surface. For that reason I do not think our committee will hesitate to say that we are going to increase the fund to $100,000. We expect all of you gentlemen to be mouth-pieces whenever the secretary gets into your neighborhoods. We want you to turn out and help him, because he is doing your work, and I hope he will meet with the response from all of you and that you will all help us in this task because it is some task to collect $100,000."

THE SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Secretary Young then read the figures of receipts and disbursements, accompanying the same by comments on various items, stating that much of the money had been received since the first of the year, and that he did not believe that there would be more than $200 or $300 that would not be collected, and that from the replies that he had received from subscribers he believed they would probably pay two subscriptions at the same time. He stated that a great deal of the postage had been incurred in sending out "Dealers' Helps" which postage naturally ran into an enormous amount of money, the postage rates having been increased; but the "Dealers' Helps" had paid expenses and showed just a little profit. It was the intention of the publicity committee to make no profits on these "Dealers' Helps," but it was required that they should pay their way. The more florists could be induced to use stickers, glass signs, and so forth, the better help it would be to general business. In addition to the financial report, the secretary read the report of the certified accountants, Edwards & Bouton.

It was after the reading of the reports that the directors showed the real enthusiasm before noted, and one after another added sums to their 1919 subscriptions until the amount previously mentioned was reached.

PHILIP BREITMEYER'S VIEWS.

Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit, said, in a hearty endorsement of the campaign: "I feel that our slogan is the most wonderful thing that has ever been introduced in the florists' business or any other business. To "Say it with Flowers" is just exactly what everybody wants to do. The florists' business has been increased, as you know, since this slogan has been adopted, fully 25 per cent. The business had been in a state of quiescence, had not been doing anything in the way of its advancement for the past 50 years. It seems to me strange that just at this time, when the people are awakening, this should come to us and prove such a tremendous success. I, for one, am very grateful that this suggestion has been made to us, and its good effects are going to continue, I know, and will mean prosperity which we older florists never dreamed of. I class myself as one of the older florists because I have been in it some 40 years. The last two years have brought about, by this slogan, more business for the florists than I ever dreamed was possible. I hope every florist in the country, not simply those who are here, shares in the sentiment of gratitude that I have given expression to, and will contribute to the cause, which, in my opinion is, a privilege, not only the advertising but the privilege of tying up with and working with it to make this business of ours 10 times what it has been in the past."

The following subscriptions have been received and are in addition to those previously announced, annually for four years, unless otherwise stated:

Emil Glabner, Denver, Colo. (2d sub.)	$ 45.00
Lorgus Company, West Chester, Pa.	20.00

OBITUARY.

C. S. Harrison.

C. S. Harrison, of York, Neb., who for nearly 50 years was a well-known figure in horticultural circles following a long and useful career as a minister, which calling he was compelled to give up owing to failing health, died at his home in that city, February 23, age 87 years.

Mr. Harrison was born in Otsego county, New York, in 1832, and at the age of 12 years he moved with his parents to Chicago and was employed on a farm near that city until he attained his majority. He entered college at Beloit, Wis., and in 1857 he began his career in his chosen calling as a missionary in Minnesota, continuing in active church work for more than 40 years, assisting in colonization work and was one of the founders of Franklin College. Entering the horticultural field, he embarked in the nursery business and showed a strong preference for the production of irises, peonies and other perennial flowers. In addition to this work, he gained renown as a writer, among his best known efforts being "The Gold Mine in the Front Yard," "The Undiscovered Country at Home," "Adorning the Beulah Land of the Hither Shore," "The Gospel of Beauty and the Intelligence of Trees" and manuals on the peony, phlox, iris and evergreens. He became totally blind last year, following an operation on one of his eyes, and at that time turned his business over to his sons by whom it will be continued under the same policy followed for so many years by their father with such full measure of success.

The Late William C. Gaethje.

William C. Gaethje, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gaethje, Center Station, Rock Island, Ill., brief mention of whose death was made in last week's issue, page 291, passed away at his home in that city, February 26, of pneumonia, age 34 years. Surviving are a widow, one child, his parents and one sister who have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends. The death of William C. Gaethje is the second sustained by the family the past winter, an older brother having died in November. The funeral, which was February 28, was largely attended, the Tri-City Florists' Club being present in a body. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. W. G.

Mrs. Jasper McMullen.

Mrs. Jasper McMullen, wife of a well known grower of Whitestone, N. Y., died in the Flushing hospital on the morning of February 28, after a brief illness of pneumonia, following influenza, age 48 years. Mrs. McMullen was a most estimable woman, and the bereaved husband and children have the sincere sympathy of a large circle of friends. She is survived by her husband, five daughters and one son. A. F. F.

SPRING, TEX.—H. H. Kuhlmann is moving to Kerrville on account of his health.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—The new flower store recently opened by John Hepler in the Irvington district is enjoying good business.

ROME, N. Y.—Carl Rangdahl, for many years foreman at Nahant, Mass., has bought a range here consisting of 35,000 feet of glass.

The first number of the Journal of the Society of American Florists is out.

A NEW list of members of the Ladies' Society of American Florists has been issued.

THERE were still a few chrysanthemum flowers on the London market, February 10.

THE Florists' Hail Association has levied its thirty-first assessment, payable April 1. Members should apply for notice, if not received.

LEAD.—Since the lead committee went officially out of business December 21, prices have been falling, now holding firm at 5½ cents per pound.

EUROPEAN papers record the death, January 25, of C. G. von Thibergen, the well-known specialist in hardy plants and bulbs, of Haarlem, Holland, age 74 years.

Personal.

The many friends of William F. Gude, Washington, D. C., will regret to learn he is on the sick list.

THE import plant and bulb embargo has taken its place as an important question in international affairs. All English exporters of nursery stocks and bulbs covered by the order, who have not already done so, are urged to send to the Secretary of the Chamber of Horticulture, in confidence, figures giving the total annual turnover of their American export trade and the volume of stocks which have to be kept on hand to meet American requirements.

Illinois State Florists' Association.

CHICAGO TO CHAMPAIGN.

The thirteenth annual convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held in the Floricultural Building, University of Illinois, Urbana, March 11-12, the opening session at 2:30 p. m. to be followed by another at 7:30. The second day will be devoted to conferences and inspection of the experimental greenhouses. An interesting programme has been arranged and every florist in the state is invited to be present. Those who attend are earnestly requested to bring with them anything new they may have, either in flowers or ideas.

The Chicago party will leave the Park Row station via the Illinois Central railroad, March 11, at 8:45 a. m. due at Champaign, 11:59 a. m. The fare in each direction to Champaign, the railroad station for Urbana, is $4.08, war tax included. No reduction is made for round trip and there is no party rate.

Other trains are as follows:

Leave Chicago	Due Champaign
1:15 A. M.	5:06 A. M.
7:20 A. M.	12:10 P. M.
4:50 P. M.	8:45 P. M.
6:15 P. M.	9:25 P. M.
8:15 P. M.	11:20 P. M.

New York Flower Show.

MARCH 15-22, 1920.

The schedule committee of the flower show to be held in the Grand Central Palace, New York, next year, is entering upon the preparation of the premium schedule, and in order to make the scope of the exhibits as extensive as possible, suggestions are invited from those who can make small exhibits, or exhibits of but one variety, as to classes to be provided and the probability of filling the same. Any suggestions which may be forthcoming should be plainly stated and submitted to C. H. Tottv, Madison, N. J., chairman of the schedule committee, not later than March 20 next.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Price Stability.

The secretary of commerce announces this week the organization of a federal conference to meet the problem of price uncertainty during the readjustment period. Confidence in the stability of prices means resumption of public and private improvements and stimulation of general business. Government price fixing in time of peace may be unwarranted, but the proposal that prices be established by agreement of manufacturers under federal auspices gives promise of a workable plan. Business is optimistic. It is concerned with conditions, not theories. It is ready to assist in a programme that is reasonable and will get results.

American Rose Society.

Professor E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y., secretary of the American Rose Society, advises that while it is probable that no exhibition of the society will be held this spring, the annual meeting which, according to the by-laws is scheduled for the fourth Wednesday in Lent, March 26, may be held in New York, although this has not been definitely decided upon, and further information will be forthcoming later.

From present plans, the 1919 American Rose Annual, the publication of which is in the hands of J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., will be issued the last of March.

Pot Packing.

IMPORTANT TO POTTERIES.

A manufacturing concern, in shipping crockery ware, used straw to prevent breakage in transit. With increased cost of straw it used paper scrap. "We can buy two 380-pound bales of clean, white paper clippings, for what one 150-pound bale of straw used to cost," said the manager. "When you consider that out of 160 cases of dishes in one shipment, only three articles were broken against 108 pieces with straw as a buffer in a shipment of the same proportion last month, the slight increase in freight charges is worth paying."

Club Meetings Next Week.

Nebraska State Florists' Society.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Nebraska State Florists' Society advance announcement of which was made in our issue of February 22, page 244, was held at Lincoln, February 25-26, the attendance being fairly good considering the cold weather. There was an excellent display of flowers which was arranged in the rooms of the Commercial club. The banquet was held as usual in the evening at which President C. H. Frey of Lincoln acted as toastmaster in an able manner. Secretary Lewis Henderson, of Omaha, who has been ill for some time, but who now shows every sign of being in old-time form again, read the minutes of the last meeting which were adopted, and regaled the festive board with the recitation of some beautiful poetry for which he is noted.

J. J. Hess, treasurer of the Society of American Florists, made a rousing speech urging all members to join the national organization and also to become members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery. He dwelt at length on the publicity of the S. A. F. and the good being accomplished through its advertising and the slogan, "Say it with Flowers." Edward Williams, Grand Island, state vice-president of the national society, who came to the state during the days of Buffalo Bill, gave an interesting talk, his topic being "How to Make a Small Greenhouse Pay," and made quite a hit with his verbal picture of the pleasures of a beginner some quarter century ago, when Omaha did not have a 14-story telephone building and flower sales were more on the order of the prices of farm products at that time.

Phil Feley, Sr., of Chicago, was present and urged the members to redouble their efforts to build up the state society, as with proper organization they could receive the consideration to which they were duly entitled. There then followed a lively discussion entered into by Messrs. Chapin, Frey, Henderson, Hess and others, who expressed views on the proper way to handle the state fair flower exhibition, premiums, etc.

Another interesting topic was "Seasonable Suggestions," ably handled by Clement E. Frey, of Lincoln, who warned against the possible shortage of plants to supply what promises to be a heavy Easter and spring trade and gave numerous helpful hints to meet the situation.

Resolutions were adopted showing the sentiment of the society as being against embargo legislation and asking senators and representatives of the state in congress to use their best efforts for an amendment of such regulations. A large delegation of the florists of the state also met a committee of the law makers in session at the State House and asked for the defeat of house bill 361, which certain cemetery interests were endeavoring to have passed to enlarge their scope of operations, and which would permit them to engage in the retail florists' business in an unfair manner to the detriment of the trade who are required to pay taxes, etc. The committee have the matter under advisement.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Clement E. Frey, Lincoln, president; Wm. Rogers, Blair, vice-president; O. H. Emslow, Lincoln, secretary-treasurer.

The meeting was most harmonious and each member present departed feeling that much good had been accomplished and firmly resolved to get his full quota of new members for the state as well as the S. A. F. and the F. T. D. Nebraska never knew such prosperity as it now enjoys. Farmers have become large buyers of flowers and others, who in other years spent money freely for "the cup that cheers" now "Say it with Flowers."

C. H. Frey carried off the majority of prizes and diplomas for both plants and cut flowers in the display arranged in the club rooms.

Following the discussion on the plant embargo ruling of the federal horticultural board, the secretary was instructed to send a telegram to William F. Gude, Washington representative of the Society of American Florists, embodying a vote of thanks for his untiring efforts in the interests of the florists of the country, and a vote of thanks was also ordered sent to the officers of the national society for the great work that has been done in stimulating the sale of flowers through the national publicity campaign. Before the session closed, a vote of appreciation was tendered to the retiring officers for their good work during the past year, and especially to Secretary Henderson for his labors in the best interests of the state society. The second day of the meeting was given over to inspections of local growing establishments, all of which were found in excellent condition.

Many regrets were heard that G. E. Berthold, of Nebraska City, who was on the programme for a paper on "Growing Geraniums," was prevented from attending the meeting on account of illness.

SECRETARY HENDERSON'S REPORT.

It is a little over a year since last we met, and I believe that we are nearly all here with the "smile that won't come off," all determined to do our best that flowers shall bloom, and their fragrance shall be scattered to all parts of our great country, especially through the agency of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery and the slogan, "Say it with Flowers." We and the flowers have a great mission to perform and we are their administrators.

RITO

THE ENERGIZER FOR SOIL BACTERIA

IS COMING TO AMERICA.

WONDERFUL RESULTS have been obtained by the use of RITO in Great Britain during the last three years. Owing to the war it has been impossible to export, but now we are free to do so, and feel sure that the Horticulturists of the U. S. A. will at once avail themselves of this unique method of increasing their products and of getting their stuff ready for the market some weeks earlier than they have hitherto done, and so secure a much higher price.

WHAT IS RITO?—RITO is a humus, organic or natural fertilizer, a stimulant and energizing medium for soil bacteria.

WHAT IS HUMUS?—Humus is a complex substance or mixture of substances present in the richest of soils. It is black in colour, and hence renders the soil darker. RITO contains Humus in the right form for fertilizing the soil.

WHY ADD HUMUS?—Because most soils contain very little (if any) Humus, and it is necessary for the proper development of the useful soil bacteria. The bacteria find in the Humus constituents a suitable medium for their robust propagation.

That is, Humus is a source of food and energy for the soil bacteria.

WHAT IS THE ANALYSIS OF RITO?—It has very little chemical analysis and it does not come in the same category as fertilizers. It is essentially an energizing medium for soil bacteria. Phosphates and potash are present in all soils, but in the ordinary way they are not readily available. RITO, by energizing the soil bacteria, is calculated to make the phosphates and potash available for the plant. It also stimulates the nitrogen-fixing bacteria into action, so that the consequent development is out of all proportion to its analysis.

RITO takes the place of farmyard manure, or it may be used in conjunction with farmyard manure or any recognized artificials. RITO is free from weed seeds, spores and germs, and from the eggs or larvae of noxious insects.

It is well known that the soil is not a dead inert mass of matter, but that it teems with bacteria, which only need to be treated properly to be called into activity. There are millions in every spadeful of soil.

RITO may be used in the open or under glass.

What RITO Users Say:--

"I used RITO in the soil for my Tomatoes this year. The result was the best crop I ever had, and I started picking two to three weeks earlier than usual from seed sown same date as previous years."

A market gardener says that his RITO-treated lettuce were ready for the market a month before the untreated ones, with the result that the treated ones brought 2s. 6d. per dozen and the untreated ones, when they were ready for the market, brought 1s. per dozen.

"I tried RITO last year on Potatoes, and they yielded 30 per cent better than those not treated."

"Every ounce of fruit from both the treated and the untreated Tomatoes has been gathered and carefully weighed. The weight of fruit gathered from the treated portions averaged just five times the amount as from the untreated portion."

"I have used RITO in the Peach Houses, and find that it greatly improved both the quality of the fruit and also the growth. I also find RITO very good if used when mixing soil for potting various plants, and I have also used it on my Vines with excellent results."

"I have pleasure in testifying to the merits of RITO. It is 'Right Ho' and no mistake. I never saw Tomatoes do so well as when your RITO was applied as a top-dressing mixed with the soil; the roots the plants made in this way were extraordinary, and the crops correspondingly good. The same applies to Cucumbers, also Chrysanthemums and to plants generally. It seems to consume the moisture, hence less watering is required."

"RITO treated Chrysanthemums made a much quicker and better start than they have usually done—in fact, the plants show a great improvement."

RITO is packed in double bags, and the price is 17 6 per 100 lbs., free on board Liverpool. Terms—Cash with order.

Please address your orders at once to The Molassine Company, Ltd., East Greenwich, London, England.

Manufacturers and Importers of

Preserved Foliages, Baskets and Florist Supplies

The question is, "Have we made any money during the past year? Have we prospered?" The public in general seem of the belief that the florists have made all kinds of money and are surfeited with it. I wish this were only true. We have had our drawbacks during the year as well as our pleasures. We have borne our share of war restrictions, and have closed down part of our establishments, and later on had cause to regret this after it was too late. Imports have been restricted as we well know, and we have suffered from high costs, a shortage of stock, during periods of great demand, limited labor and increased cost of living. And now a threatened shortage of lilies for Easter impends, but I believe we will all go on sowing and growing and living in hopes of better days and that restrictions may be lifted and that improved conditions will soon come.

One thing has been accomplished during the past year, an all important one of securing better prices for our products and it is to be hoped that they will be maintained, for better prices to the grower mean better quality and an opportunity to educate the public to flowers in their full beauty. Better prices maintain for all commodities, and the buying public realize that flowers must of necessity also be higher. In maintaining prices, we can pay better wages and give to the public better service.

Another matter to bear in mind is our agreement two years ago to stand by the agreement to pay 20 per cent to our agents which as far as I am aware is being maintained. We have in this state about 75 firms or floral establishments listed in 35 cities and towns and they seem to be thriving or at least doing well.

San Francisco.

TRADE SHOWS GRATIFYING IMPROVEMENT.

Business has picked up considerably of late, and now it may be said to be very good. Social activities have increased largely, and this has been very beneficial to the florist trade. All the stores present lovely spring appearances these days. Tulips are now to be had in all colors, both cut and pot grown. At present, the yellow varieties seem to be most in demand. Dutch hyacinths, both pink and blue, are the most called for in this flower. They are very fine this season, and are meeting with steady sale. Freesias are still plentiful. Pink and lavender are quite prominent. Yellow freesias are now at their best and are excellent sellers. Roses were never better than they are now. They are quite plentiful, and only the highest grade stock is being handled by the leading stores. Prices are about normal. Carnations are in large supply. Some excellent stock is noted for which fine prices are received. Benora, while an old-timer, is now at its best and is being prominently shown by all the stores. Sweet peas of the Spencer type are fine just now. Prices are good, but there is not enough stock to go around. Pink seems to be the predominating color offered. Gardenias are getting more numerous every day, but prices continue firm. Cattleyas are not over-abundant at the present writing. Violets are very plentiful and cheap. Cut ericas are in large supply, as is acacia and cherry blossoms. There is no lily of the valley offered this week or any lilies of any kind. Daffodils are seen in large numbers with prices unchanged. Some fine pot cinerarias and primulas are adding color to the florists' windows. The supply of ferns and asparagus is increasing slowly.

NOTES.

P. Vincent Matraia, of the Art Floral Co., who is chairman of the committee of florists of this city who are arranging for a "homecoming banquet" for all members of the trade who have been in the service of their country, called a special meeting held February 28, at 8 o'clock, at Sachem hall, 240 Golden Gate avenue, for the arrangement of final details and securing the names and addresses of any florist who has returned from service. It is planned to make this the most elaborate affair of its kind ever held in this city. Albert O. Stein, Frank Pelicano and Victor Podesta are assisting Mr. Matraia on the committee. One thing that will appeal strongly to the soldier boys is the statement that all their old positions are open to them. Mr. Matraia is entering on this with his characteristic energy and spirit. The date of the banquet will be announced later.

The Lynch Nursery, of Menlo Park, is cutting heavily these days and good prices are being received. Percy Ellings says the demand for chrysanthemum plants is much in excess of former years. Daniel O'Neill, of the landscape department, reports a great demand for ornamentals of all kinds.

John H. Sievers has resigned his position as manager of the J. B. Boland store on Kearney street. Mr. Sievers is as yet undetermined as to his future activities, but is contemplating opening up his own store in the near future.

Schwerin Bros report a largely increased demand of late. Their large range of glass will shortly be shipping a full supply.

The E. W. McLellan Co. reports continued heavy shipping at their establishment.

Eric James, of Elmhurst, is sending in novelty plants. JAMES T. LYNCH.

STOCK IS MORE PLENTIFUL.

Stock in general is more plentiful but is cleaning up well every day at good prices so there is hardly ever any surplus to speak of. Roses are in larger supply but not overplentiful. American Beauty roses are in strong demand with the supply of fancy stock limited. Carnations continue to clear at the advertised quotations, which is surprising considering the general market conditions. Orchids are plentiful and fancy stock is obtainable in this line at very attractive figures. Lily of the valley is holding its own and so are gardenias. The receipts of sweet peas are heavier and clean up surprisingly well although prices on this item dropped considerably the past week. Lilies are in short supply and the same holds true for callas. Tulips, narcissus, jonquils and freesias sell quickly and the demand for snapdragons is so brisk that they move almost as soon as they arrive. Violets are in large supply and in good demand. Daisies, mignonette, calendulas, iris, pansies, forget-me-nots and other miscellaneous seasonable stock are having a good call. Green goods are scarce with the exception of ferns. Smilax is at a premium with very little obtainable.

NOTES.

The thirteenth annual convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held in the floricultural building at the University of Illinois, Urbana, March 11-12, the opening session at 2:30 p. m. to be followed by another at 7:30. The second day will be devoted to conferences and inspection of experiment greenhouses. An interesting programme has been arranged, among the important topics which will be discussed being publicity, cost of production, fertilizers and insecticides.

WE believe in the spirit and practical application of co-operation between the grower, wholesaler and retailer, with an adjustment of profit for all three.

The grower is the source of supply.

The commission wholesaler is the best and most economical means of distribution.

The retailer is the most direct means of reaching the consumer.

A service between these three factors, that is most profitable to all these interests, requires a spirit of efficiency, loyalty and co-operation.

Whether a grower or retailer, when you ship or buy, Kennicott Bros. Co. offers you all the advantages.

We do as we say.

Our policy is based on the principles of the "Golden Rule."

YOUR

PROTECTION

J. F. Ammann earnestly requests that those who attend bring with them anything new they may have, either in flowers or ideas. From present indications it appears as if there will be a good sized crowd from this vicinity, many having signified their intention of attending.

The local committee in charge of arrangements has secured the banquet hall and ballroom of the LaSalle hotel for the annual convention of the American Carnation Society, with such additional space as may be needed. The dates are January 21-22, subject to the approval of the organizations interested. The Illinois State Florists' Association will be requested to hold its annual meeting at the same time and place.

The Weiss-Spandikau Co. has been incorporated for $15,000 and will enter in the growing business in this vicinity in the near future or as soon as a suitable strip of land is secured. Mr. Weiss has been in the market for a large range for some time, but finally decided that a new place would best suit his needs, after looking over several of the places offered for sale here. He is very optimistic in regard to the outlook for the florist business and in addition to being a partner in the Weiss-

Meyer Co., at Maywood, he is secretary of the Fort Dearborn Coal Co.

Chas. W. McKellar, who has been engaged in the florist business for the past 32 years, sold out to Archie Spencer, March 3, who took possession on the same day. Mr. McKellar is undecided as to what his plans are for the future. Mr. Spencer has certainly been stirring things up lately, and now has three stores on the second floor of the Atlas building, two of which are for rent, but both of which are spoken for.

Record was made of the transfer by Hoerber Bros. Co., to Ernest C. Amling, of the greenhouse property of 34 acres in the township of Maine, between Desplaines and Riverview, for an indicated cash consideration of $67,500, according to the revenue stamps on the deed.

Martin Goerger, of Georger Bros., Arlington Heights, received a letter from his brother, Albert, who is at present in, Alsace-Lorraine, France, stating that he is well, and anxious to get back home again.

W. N. Rudd's famous seedlings in all shades. We are exclusive agents for his stocks. Try us on your regular orders.

Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s store was closed for a few hours, Saturday, March 1, in honor of the memory of Gustav Poehlmann, whose remains were laid to rest in Memorial Park cemetery that day. The floral offerings were many and beautiful, and the trade was well represented by a large number of handsome designs. An account of his death appeared in our obituary column last week.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, celebrated his sixty-first birthday at Pasadena, Calif., February 27. The employes at the local wholesale store celebrated it here in grand style as in former years, and the only drawback to the affair was the absence of Mr. Washburn.

Thomas Hopkinson, for many years at Vaughan's Greenhouses, Western Springs, has removed to Springfield, Mo., where his family has been located for some time. The best wishes of the company follow this faithful and loyal employe.

A. C. Kohlbrand of the E. C. Amling Co., celebrated another birthday last week, when he treated all his friends to a good smoke. He is like all other men over 50, who do not care to give their age when asked.

Joseph Ziska & Sons have repainted their store and will move their office to the front, which greatly improves the appearance of their place. Everything is all ready here for the spring rush.

Harry Manheim, who was with Hoerber Bros. for many years, is now with the J. A. Budlong Co. Myron Webb is the latest addition to the force in Budlong's shipping department.

Harry C. Rowe, who has been upstairs in the Mallers building, Madison street and Wabash avenue, is opening on the ground floor, Madison street side.

Clarence Hoffman is back on the job at E. C. Amling Co.'s store after being with the colors for many months.

D. S. Musser, of Miller & Musser, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his father, whose death occurred in Indiana last week.

Allie Zech and Matt Mann, of Zech & Mann, will attend the annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association at Urbana next week.

The E. F. Winterson Co. reports business good with a splendid demand for carnations, especially W. N. Rudd's fancy seedlings.

H. A. Wolf has taken a position with the Chicago Flower Growers' Association and will report for duty March 10.

N. J. Wietor is well pleased with the demand for carnation cuttings at Wietor Bros., this season, the heaviest in years.

E. B. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, who was expected here this week from California, has deferred his departure.

H. E. Brandt, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York, stopped off here a day last week enroute to the coast.

Julius Kline, formerly with Peter Reinberg, is now employed in Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department.

Herbert Hansen is back on the job at Peter Reinberg's store after being with the colors for many months.

Joe Stezka, of the E. C. Amling Co.'s force, was operated upon for rupture this week.

The Wholesale Florists' Credit Association is incorporated.

DEMAND SHOWS SATISFACTORY INCREASE.

Encouraging words are heard on all sides as to the present trade conditions. Some retailers report continuously increasing business, and but few complain of poor trade. The growers are particularly well pleased and everything is sold readily and satisfactory prices realized. Immense quantities of sweet peas are daily coming in and easily disposed of. Violets are plentiful and is the only item that moves rather slowly, owing to the strong competition of the excellent sweet peas. Roses continue in short supply, but prices are moderating, due to the daily increasing supply of other flowers. Bulbous stock, too, is now a factor and some elegant flowers are nearly always available. Carnations are in good supply and form the major part of the funeral work that all the florists are doing.

NOTES.

The Doemling & Schimmel Co. has purchased the greenhouse establishment of Robert Klagge, Mt. Clemens, Mich., and will take possession July 1 next. The place is modern in construction and has a glass area of about 80,000 square feet. Ten and a half acres of ground and two dwellings are included in the purchase. The present working force will be retained, and Mr. Doemling will still conduct personally the Indian Village Greenhouses on Van Dyke avenue here.

The regular meeting of the florists' club will be held at the Hotel Statler, Wednesday night, March 12. The features of the meeting will be an address by W. S. Wells, botanist of the University of Michigan, on "Plant Fertilization," and Harry Breitmeyer will give a talk on his experience in khaki overseas. Harry Taylor, of the Breitmeyer firm, who also was in the service, will relate his observations while attached to the signal corps.

J. Breitmeyer's Sons are opening a distinct department in their main store on Broadway, devoted to decorative art. It is their purpose to carry receptacles for flowers and plants that will embrace the most modern designs and complete in variety. Harry Breitmeyer will have charge of this novel department, which will open in good season for the Easter trade.

The Michigan Cut Flower Exchange will give a complimentary dinner and entertainment to the members of the florists' club and local trade at the Hotel Statler, Monday evening, March 17. Robert Rahaley, of the firm, is back again from his extended Florida trip. Thomas Browne, who accompanied him, is still there.
