

INTERIM REPORT OF THE COMMISSION

Fishery Experts Lay Their Recommendations Before Government—Commissioner Brown Strongly Dissents From Findings.

Ottawa, Nov. 24.—The interim report of the British Columbia fishery commission which, as readers of the Times are aware, was appointed by the federal government to inquire into the conditions of the fishing industry of British Columbia, contains recommendations of the utmost importance. The circumstances leading to the appointment of the commission, the proceedings at the numerous meetings and the conference with the special commission of the state of Washington, are, doubtless, fairly fresh in the public mind, and need not be again traversed.

THE FISHERIES COMMISSION.

On no salmon gill-net should exceed sixty meshes in depth. This suggested maximum limit in the depth of net, enforced universally in these waters, would prevent abuses and also facilitate the ascent of increased numbers of salmon. The commission in the second recommendation favors the limitation of the length of salmon gill-nets to 150 fathoms, formerly the net generally used in the sockeye fishery. For some years, however, nets double that length have been permitted outside the mouth of the Fraser river.

MANY PERSONS POISONED BY EATING CREAM PUFFS

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Between fifty and a hundred people living in various sections of Buffalo were poisoned by eating cream puffs yesterday and Thursday. According to reports this morning none will die, although a number are still very ill. The police and the health department are working on the case to place the responsibility for the sale of the cream puffs. It is supposed they contained formaldehyde or that the poisoning was from ptomaine in the filling of the puffs. It has not yet been decided if any arrests will be made.

THE QUESTION OF NEW AMBASSADOR

London, Nov. 24.—Perhaps never before in the history of British journalism has American topics and news taken up so much space as at present. Just now the leading subject of discussion in the English papers is the selection of a successor to Sir Mortimer Durand as British ambassador at Washington, which is brought in under some form or other in nearly all the comment of imperial affairs.

SIR MORTIMER DURAND.

The report further states that at the conclusion of the international conference in Vancouver on September 19th the British Columbia commissioners were assured by the members of the Washington special fishery commission that the foregoing five recommendations would be included in their report to be made at an early date to the state government at Olympia.

CITIZENS' SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

King George and King Victor Spent Part of Day in Royal Preserves. (Associated Press.) Rome, Nov. 24.—King George of Greece and King Victor Emmanuel, accompanied by their suites, were driven in automobiles to-day to Castle Porziano, the royal preserves situated in the beautiful woods near Ostia, which extend to the Mediterranean. After breakfast they were very successful with their hunt the two kings lunched at the royal hunting lodge and then returned to Rome.

ENGLISH SOAP COMBINE HAS BEEN ABANDONED

Liverpool, Nov. 24.—The working arrangement, entered into on October 1st, between the leading soap manufacturers of the United Kingdom, popularly known as the "Soap cartel," was terminated here yesterday on the ground that the combine had been received with great disfavor by the trade and public.

THE OUTLOOK DOES NOT FAVOR SELECTION OF JAMES BRYCE AS SIR M. DURAND'S SUCCESSOR.

London, Nov. 24.—Perhaps never before in the history of British journalism has American topics and news taken up so much space as at present. Just now the leading subject of discussion in the English papers is the selection of a successor to Sir Mortimer Durand as British ambassador at Washington, which is brought in under some form or other in nearly all the comment of imperial affairs.

BOMB OUTRAGE

Constantinople, Nov. 24.—It became known to-day that the explosion of a bomb in the Pera quarter of Constantinople on November 22nd was a second attempt to assassinate Enver Pasha, chief of the secret police of the palace. The bomb exploded near his carriage while Enver Pasha was driving through the main street of the Pera quarter. Two spectators were injured.

Prominent among the industries purposely omitted last Saturday is that of manufacturing lumber. This was treated at some length in these columns early in the summer, but even the passage of a few months has brought many new facts to light, shown such remarkable extensions, that in justice to the information of non-residents, another epitome—truly very short, but not uninformative—will now be given.

should see 750,000 local trees placed on the market and the following year 1,500,000. In a few years we will commence to export. This optimistic expression of opinion is fully supported by actual statistics. In 1902 the total of fruit shipped from British Columbia, by both freight and express, reached 1,956 tons; in 1905 this amount had increased to 4,357 tons. From many points there were large shipments of peaches, strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, etc. In 1905 the total of fruit shipped from British Columbia, by both freight and express, reached 1,956 tons; in 1905 this amount had increased to 4,357 tons. The story has yet to be told adequately of the rise of British Columbia fruit. Thos. G. Earl, of Lytton, demonstrated as a solitary example for many years the productivity of the interior, but it was not until a short time ago that anyone began to realize that the dry lands of Okanagan, the valleys of the Kootenays, and all the more surprising in the delay, many parts of Vancouver Island were admirably adapted for growing the fruits of the temperate zone to perfection. Even sub-tropical species are now being cultivated in many parts of the southern interior as witness Peachland, a veritable paradise for peaches and the large number of apricots and nectarines already exposed. And it must not be forgotten that on the Gorge road, almost within the city limits of Victoria, is an apricot tree, trained to cover two sides of a house that bears amazingly sweet cherries which are not forgotten. Residents of the Royal City know the very first of blossom that decked the old-Pelham gardens in spring, afterwards to be replaced by large bunches of superlative "Whitehearts." But whoever dreamed that Kootenay would outrival New Westminster and the Fraser valley? There is a lively little district going on now between Nelson and Kaslo as to which is the best fruit district. Within the past ten years it was a fight for mineral supremacy alone; anyone who had mentioned fruit would have been sent to contemplate it from the windows of the New Westminster insane asylum.

PEARY AT SYDNEY.

Arctic Explorer is in Excellent Health—Reports to United States Navy Department.

Hullfax, N. S., Nov. 23.—The Arctic steamer Roosevelt reached Sydney at 7 o'clock this morning and immediately upon arrival, Commander Peary boarded a tug and came on shore to meet Mrs. Peary, who has been awaiting him at Sydney for the last two weeks. He appeared in excellent health and not the worse for his perilous exertions up north. He was apparently in the best of health and spirits. The Roosevelt is in a leaky condition and shows the loss of much interior work, ladders, beams and almost everything movable on board having been sacrificed to keep the party warm.

Peary's Report. Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—Acting Secretary Newberry of the United States navy department, received this dispatch from Commander Peary, dated Sydney, N. S., to-day: "I respectfully beg to report my arrival with the Roosevelt this morning. The expedition of the Peary Arctic club, which I have the honor to command, has penetrated the polar basin beyond 87 degrees north, eliminating the probability of the existence of any land between the north shores bordering that basin through ten degrees of longitude between parallels 81 and 83, and secured an interesting series of soundings."

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDED.

One Man Killed and Another Injured While Testing Racing Machines.

Philadelphia, Nov. 23.—Ernest D. Keeler, of New York, demonstrator and professional driver of racing automobiles, was killed, and Henry D. Luton, of Colwyn, Pa., was dangerously injured in a collision to-day while trying out machines of the racing type on the Point Breeze race track.

Running at a 104 clip, Keeler attempted to pass a machine on the rail and a repair cart driven by a negro, who was at work on the track. At the same time a machine driven by James Hamilton, who had with him Henry Luton, a mechanic, attempted to pass through the opening. The car driven by Keeler caught the forward end of the car driven by Hamilton, tearing off the front wheels.

JAPS IN MANCHURIA.

Ill Treatment of Chinese Results in Litter Taking Steps to Institute Boycott.

Chefoo, Nov. 23.—The Chinese in Manchuria are preparing to make an attempt to boycott Japanese goods. The movement originated mainly from the ill-treatment which the Chinese have been subjected to by the Japanese and the latter's continued occupation of Chinese property under the pretext of its being a military necessity. Another reason for the movement is the inability of the Chinese merchants to continue their former trade business in American and European goods on account of efforts of the Japanese to place obstacles in the way of everything but Japanese commerce in Manchuria. A factor in the impending boycott is the establishment in Manchuria of Japanese cigarettes, soap and other factories, which are mainly engaged in imitating European and American products, notably cigarettes.

THE HAMILTON STRIKE.

Riot Followed Attempt of Street Railway Company to Operate Cars Last Night.

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 23.—The street railway company undertook to operate cars for the first time to-night and the expected riot followed. A large crowd gathered at King and James streets, the cars were stoned and the windows of the railway station on James street were also smashed. Then the crowd broke all the windows in the department store of Stanley Mills. About this time the report spread that soldiers were coming from Toronto and the crowd dispersed.

CLERGYMAN ENDS LIFE.

Rev. John Sanford Hanged Himself in Parsonage.

Little Falls, N.Y., Nov. 23.—The body of Rev. John Sanford, aged 26 years and pastor of the Methodist church at Salisbury Centre, ten miles from here, was found hanging in the parsonage at that place by the trustees of the church to-night. The minister had been missing since Tuesday, Mr. Sanford was unmarried and came here from England two years ago. It is believed that temporary insanity caused the act.

CHINESE ANTI-OPIMUM REGULATIONS

EXPECTED TO HAVE FAR REACHING RESULTS

Use of the Drug Must Cease in Ten Years—Trying to Stop Export Trade.

New York, Nov. 23.—A dispatch to the Times says that the regulations issued yesterday at Peking carrying into effect the anti-opium edict are more severe than any regulations ever previously issued in China, and do honor to the enlightened official whose patriotism, supported by the influence of Viceroy Yuan Shi Kai, prompted the issue of the edict. There are eleven regulations. It is provided not only that the cultivation of the poppy but also the use of opium must cease in ten years. No new ground can be placed under cultivation and the ground now under cultivation must be reduced one-tenth annually under penalty of confiscation. All persons using opium must be registered and so must the amount consumed. Only a registered person can buy opium. No one is permitted to begin the use of opium after the issue of the regulations. In regard to the decrease of opium by persons over 60 years old the rules are lenient: Those under 60 must decrease the use of it 20 per cent. annually. If they are still addicted to the drug after 10 years their names will be posted publicly. Shops selling opium are to be closed gradually and the opium dens are to be closed within six months. The officials must distribute to persons addicted to the use of opium prescriptions or medicines counteracting its use, gratuitously or at cost. Anti-opium societies must be established and the existing societies must be encouraged. The officials must set the example. Officials over 40 years old whose cravings are great must be treated leniently. All big officials under 60 years of age, no matter how great their cravings, must abandon the use of opium within six months. If they are unable to discontinue they can retain their rank but must retire from office. Those who falsely pretend to abandon the habit and continue it secretly will be deprived of both rank and office. To all teachers, scholars, soldiers and sailors, throughout all ranks, three months will be allowed in which entirely to abandon the habit. Furthermore, the Kai Wu Fu is commanded to approach the British, French, Dutch and Persian ministers with a view to terminating the export of opium within ten years. The importation of morphia and hypodermic syringes is prohibited. Clauses of the British and American treaties dealing with opium are now brought into effect. The time is well chosen for the issue of the regulations. The press unanimously condemns the opium habit and speaks contemptuously of officials addicted to it. A healthy spirit is abroad and opium has been driven out of foreign other government departments. There is no question that the regulations will be strictly enforced in the metropolitan provinces where viceroy is Yuan Shi Kai.

FATAL EXULSION.

Brandon, Man., Nov. 23.—An explosion of dynamite occurred in the Great Northern construction camp here today by which one man, Lee Reynolds, of St. Cloud, Minn., was killed and others were seriously injured. They were thawing explosives when the accident occurred.

KILLED BY ROBBERS.

Arkansas City, Kan., Nov. 23.—Early today two masked men in an attempt to rob the St. Charles hotel here, shot and killed William Goff, the night clerk, and wounded S. A. Halpin, an actor, so badly that he died a few hours later. The robbers escaped.

SANK AFTER COLLISION.

Barry, Wales, Nov. 23.—The British steamer Hillbrook from Hamburg for New York, arrived in the roads today with its bow extensively damaged, having been in collision with the British steamer Swainby. The Swainby sank but no lives were lost.

SLAIN BY PLAYMATE.

Hosios Falls, N.Y., Nov. 23.—Clifford Mason, 23 years old, was today shot and instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of John Sheffer, a playmate, who did not know the gun was loaded.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse will be repaired at Bremen. The damage is estimated at $200,000.

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters By Using Pe-ru-na.

"I Attribute my Extreme Old Age to the Use of Pe-ru-na."

Mr. Isaac Brock, 117 Years Old Last Birthday.

ISAAC BROCK, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived for 117 years. For many years he resided at Boque Falls, eighteen miles west of Waco, but now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas. Some time ago, by request, Uncle Isaac came to Waco and sat for his picture, holding in his hand a stick cut from the grave of General Andrew Jackson. Mr. Brock is a dignified old gentleman, showing few signs of decrepitude. His family Bible is still preserved, and it shows that the date of his birth was written 117 years ago.

In speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says: "After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so. "One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper thing for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate. For 117 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States.

"I have always been a very healthy man, but, of course, subject to the affections which are due to sudden changes in the climate and temperature. During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds and diarrhoea.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Pe-ru-na, I have found it to be the best, if not the only, reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

"It exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes; it keeps me in good appetite; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation; it keeps me to rally upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine.

"When epidemics of the grippe first began to make their appearance in this country I was a sufferer from this disease.

"I had several long sieges with the grippe. At first I did not know that Pe-ru-na was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh, I tried Pe-ru-na for the grippe and found it to be just the thing."

In a later letter, Mr. Brock writes: "I am well and feeling as well as I have for years. The only thing that bothers me is my sight. If I could see better I could walk all over the farm, and it would do me good. I would not be without Pe-ru-na."

Yours truly,
Isaac Brock.

When old age comes, it brings with it catarrhal diseases. Systemic catarrh is almost universal in old people. This explains why Pe-ru-na has become so indispensable to many old people.

In connection with the statements which have been published by the Colonist predicting a jump in the prices of local grown fruit, the manager of F. R. Stewart & Co. said this morning that the only rise which was expected by fruit dealers was the usual slight advance which generally characterized the winter season, when fruit was scarce. He did not, however, prophesy any permanent rise, nor did he predict that prices would take a jump, but anticipated the ordinary winter conditions.

Last night Prof. Mathews spoke before a crowded audience at the Y. M. C. A. on "How to Learn German in Five Weeks." He demonstrated how simple the language of the fatherland could be made, and the professor kept his audience highly amused for an hour, not only speaking in German but telling a funny story in that language that everyone understood. His offer of a week's trial of his "natural method" was eagerly accepted, and most of those present enrolled as members of the class.

CHARMING FUNCTION.

Miss Dorothy Sehl Banquetted and Presented With Gifts By Choir of St. Andrew's.

Last evening the choir of St. Andrew's cathedral gathered at the bishop's palace and held a banquet in honor of one of their most popular members, Miss Dorothy Sehl, who was married at noon today, to Mr. Charles Wilson.

His Grace, Archbishop Orth, and others, took occasion to present Miss Sehl with their best wishes for her future and to express felicitations upon her coming marriage. The gathering was a select one, His Grace, several of the clergy and members of the choir being the only ones present. Among those present were Miss Emma Sehl, Miss Maribeth, Miss Gertrude Sehl, Miss King, Miss Alice Maribeth, Mrs. Hallam, Miss O'Keefe, Miss Regan, Miss Mary Baylis, Miss May Hickey, Miss Annie Gillis, Mrs. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sehl, Charles Oliver, H. Nyland and A. Lynham.

At the conclusion of the banquet His Grace, on behalf of the choir, presented Miss Sehl with a beautifully finished set of knives and forks with carved pearl handles. He accompanied the gift with a suitable address, in which her long service as a member of the choir was mentioned and congratulations upon her coming nuptials offered.

Miss Sehl made a suitable reply, and in addition to acknowledging the handsome gift of the choir, she also expressed her thanks for the gift of an exceedingly pretty prayer book which was presented to her by the St. Mary Sodality. The usual congratulations were showered upon Miss Sehl when the gathering dispersed, to which she replied with her usual tact.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Regular Meeting of the Association Was Held Yesterday.

The Teachers' Institute met yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, with J. H. King presiding.

Mrs. J. Scott Brock, M. A., of the sub-high school staff, delivered an interesting address on Nature Study. She outlined some of the best methods for employing Victoria pupils were specially favored in having so many of the resources of the province within reach of the city. The museum afforded a splendid opportunity for teaching children, and the animals in the park also could be used to teach natural history.

A discussion followed, when the point was raised that teachers had too few many subjects on the curriculum to give attention to nature study.

Mrs. Young, M. A., of Atlin, formerly of the teaching staff of the High school, addressed the Institute on the geography of British Columbia. By maps and charts she showed the many advantages that this province had along its coast line for harbor facilities.

R. Mathews explained his system of teaching French and German, which he contended could be learnt by any pupil in five weeks.

B. Allen gave a solo during the afternoon.

THE COUNCIL MEETING.

Number of Important Subjects Will Be Discussed on Monday Night.

At Monday night's meeting of the city council the motor vehicle by-law will be discussed, and Aid. Yates, who conferred with the Victoria Automobile Club last week, will no doubt make some recommendations regarding the objections to the by-law as it now stands. The report of the fire wardens recommending an increase of pay for the firemen, the erection of a large fire hall in James Bay, and further equipment for the department in general, will most likely be presented. The report of the special committee on trades licenses, which was discussed at Thursday's special meeting, will also be further considered. Mayor Morley may also present a report on his visit to the Elk lake district yesterday.

"As a result of investigations recently made by expert viticulturists certain districts tributary to Victoria have been pronounced capable of producing grapes on a large scale."

STATURE AND GENIUS.

Intellectual power in its various manifestations takes men as its finds them tall and short, thin and plump—and it seems to rather like height.

Thackeray was six feet four inches. So was Fielding, Scott, Wait-Whitman and Tennyson were six-footers.

Goethe, the elder Dumas, Robert Burns, and Longfellow were five feet ten inches.

Chubbuck and Kipling only five feet six inches.

Edwin A. Abbey has the six-foot height of Barrie; so has Almasada.

Lord Curzon is six feet one inch.

George West, whose name is under six feet two inches.

And now Carnegie is five feet four and a half inches.

President Roosevelt is five feet nine inches.

Mr. Gladstone was five feet nine inches.

Sir Edmund Burke and Oliver Cromwell were five feet ten and a half inches.

Which, by the way, is the height of the present Prime Minister, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman.

Wellington was half an inch taller than Napoleon, who was five feet two inches.

That trio of great admirals—Nelson, Blake and Sydney Smith—were a little under five feet six inches.

Bismarck was a tall man, but not so tall as George Washington, who was six feet three inches.

Sargent, the great painter, is six feet; Carlyle, Darwin, Huxley and Ruskin were six-footers.

Disraeli and Dickens were five feet nine inches.

Which is also the stature of Sir William Crookes.

Sir Oliver Lodge is six feet three inches.

Marco Polo was five feet ten and a half inches.

Emerson, Hans Anderson, Wordsworth, Bulfinch, Audubon, Corot, Molière, Millet, Gounod, Lord Clive and Lord Brougham were tall men.

So were Humboldt and Helmholtz, Lord Kelvin is five feet seven inches.

Conan-Boyle is six feet one inch.

Anthony Hope "three inches shorter." All these figures give the stature of the men in their boots.

King Edward is five feet eight and a half inches.

The Kaiser just an inch shorter.

The Mikado is five feet six inches.

The King of Italy five feet two inches.

The Czar's height is the same as the Kaiser's.

Leopold, King of the Belgians is five feet six inches.

Through the Peace River Valley.

Story of a Journey Through This Remarkable Country.

The Albertian, of Calgary, is printing a series of articles upon the Peace River country, that land of wonderful possibilities, but at present of much mystery.

This is the first time that this country has been thoroughly written up by any newspaper man.

The Peace river, for thirty years the most romantic associations have clustered about that name in the north.

Returning missionaries and traders have had such alluring stories to tell of land and its delightful climate, that it has come to be considered a sort of agricultural El Dorado.

The first night's camp on the river was lone some. Indeed, the silence seemed to press against one's eardrums.

It was very good to come to a hut, a fire, and to hear honest English-speaking voices once more.

One is impressed by the contrast between the endless stream of food-stuffs and wearing apparel poured in to the north through this gateway and the comparatively few loads of furs which are taken out.

How to get through was therefore a problem. However the Midnight Sun came up the river in a day or two and I engaged passage on her for the season.

For fellow-passengers I had two San Franciscans, who having suffered through the earthquake, were seeking out to seek a new fortune in the Peace about fifty years old was an ex-masseur and osteopathist.

The "Midnight Sun" is about one hundred feet long. The accommodations for passengers would hardly be considered luxurious.

The "Midnight Sun" left the landing late one afternoon and after steaming a few miles against the current, then up to the bank for the night. Resuming her journey at dawn, all day she passed between the pine-clad banks of the Athabasca while the passengers and the crew lounged about the cabin swapping yarns.

The character of the shores never changed; we rounded point after point covered with immense pine trees and occasionally poplars; the only breaks were the tracts cleared off by fire.

At a narrow landing was made at Moose Portage for wood and shortly afterwards we approached the most difficult place in the river, where an island divides the channel and the river spreads out wide and shallow on each side.

The end was then secured to a big tree on the shore and further made sure by anchoring down the cables.

The first night's camp on the river was lone some. Indeed, the silence seemed to press against one's eardrums.

My driver was going to the head of the rapids, twenty-five miles further and I continued with him on the chance of having better luck at that point.

In the morning I met two young men who had arrived at Norris' before me. They were the survivors of a party of five who had left the landing with a wagon and team and had struggled up to Moose Portage through unheard-of difficulties.

I decided the only thing to be done was to track my little boat up-stream, but I was hindered by not having anyone to steer while I pulled.

STORIES TOLD BY TOTEM POLES IN THE MUSEUM

Interesting Description From an Unpublished Manuscript by the Late James Deans.

The pride of heraldry; the pomp of power; not confined to European countries in the years that are past. On the northern coast of British Columbia and Southern Alaska, with the adjacent islands, there is an abundance of heraldic devices; difficult of translation, but extremely interesting. There are two types of house poles, one illustrating stories, the other containing the family crests of the man and wife who put the post up. Totem poles they are called but, although many have been and admired them, very few know what they signify.

From an unpublished manuscript, written by the late James Deans, the story of at least one of those in the entrance room of the provincial museum is obtained. It is No. 1 in the accompanying photographs. These photographs represent the poles in their original location before they were removed to the old museum in 1882. No. 1, as pictured, has descended greatly from its former glory. Instead of standing in front of a chief's house at Skidegate, Queen Charlotte Islands, the residence had been pulled down and the totem pole reduced to a fence post. Blankets are hung over the fence to the right, and a few old cedar shakes, that once formed part of the house, lie to the left. Both at top and bottom is the figure of a bear; the one at the base having a salmon in its mouth. The bear at the top represents the crest of the man's wife. An indistinct representation of the eagle surmounts. Mr. Deans tells the story of this totem pole as follows:

"Long ago the bears had no claws on their feet. Then as now, they were fond of salmon, they had to content with their own. To try to catch living ones was out of the question, because they could not hold them.

"One day a poor hungry bear, who had travelled far, came to a stream in which lots of salmon were swimming about. He went into the stream in order to try and get his dinner.

"After trying in vain to catch one, he raised his eyes heavenward to the God-Na-klat-ness and prayed fervently for something to be put on his paws to enable him to hold the salmon. An posture, and wearing a hat with two extra crowns, indicating degrees of honor. On the top of all is a raven, on each side of whose beak is a frog held by the hind legs, hanging head downwards.

From Mr. Deans' manuscript this conclusion is easily reached. He writes:

"All of the Indian tribes in our Northwest coast as well as in Southern Alaska, were formerly divided into crests or gens. These they used to paint on their utensils, boxes, spoons and canoes. They used to tattoo on their bodies, men on their chests, and the women on their legs and arms. These they used also to carve on the columns in front of their houses. In all of their social usages, were long established rules for the guidance of the people. These I shall now proceed to explain. First—Every nation had two phratries or brotherhoods, represented by two birds—the raven and eagle. The raven was generally considered the highest, although in some parts the eagle ranked highest. Now, each of these phratries had as crests the following: I shall take the Queen Charlottes' Hoediv. The raven had the following: The wolf, bear, scannoh or black fish or the black whale, skate, mountain goat, sea lion, cheemosee (a dangerous monster in the rivers) (a dangerous river snag, moon, sun, rainbow and scumoon or thunder bird, etc.) The eagle had the following on Queen Charlottes at least: The eagle, raven, frog, beaver, shark, moose, duck, codfish, whale, owl, dragon fly and dogfish, etc. in all.

"By the social laws of the Haida any person belonging to the raven phratry, could tattoo, paint or carve any crest belonging to the raven, but not to the eagle phratry. In like manner, the eagles were restricted to their own crests. These two phratries also legalised marriages in the following order: A man of one phratry, being the raven phratry was only allowed to take a wife or husband from the eagles, also, the eagles were only allowed to select a spouse from the ravens. Any infringement of these rules subjected the parties to a heavy fine and even to death.

"Connected with these phratries and crests are a secret society, to which the parties wishing to join must be initiated and give presents to the chief, who gives them a new name and also entitles them to red, white and black bars and bands, a sort of heraldry. Also each phratry and crest have musical instruments, in imitation of the calls of the bird, fish or animal representing the crest to which they belong. Any one belonging to either of these crests, would have some representative of the crest to which they belonged, for instance, those belonging to the frogs would have a house built and a large representative frog placed in the center of the house, with boxes all around it, in them would be placed the booties of the frog crest, as they passed away. Others again would have a large post with the body inside and the crest, a bear, on top."

The figures contained in this pole are the thunder bird, raven and frog; the chief need not be considered at present. From the foregoing quotation it will be noticed that the Haidas were divided into two crests or gens, those of the wolf and raven. These were again subdivided into various phratries or brotherhoods. The raven had among his brotherhoods that of the thunder bird, seen on the pole, while one of the brotherhoods of the eagle was the frog, and women of that phratry were permitted to assume this crest. The two additional crowns on the head of the raven figure mean he was a very great chief.

The pole, therefore, pictures a very great chief riding upon the thunder bird, of which phratry he was the leader, while the raven, head of the gens with which the thunder bird brotherhood was a part brings him two frogs, emblematic of two wives from the "frog" phratry of the other great branch of the tribe, that of the eagle.

The totem pole to the left, nearest the door in the museum is also probably merely a family crest. The raven appears here also. The other figure in the entrance room is that of "the man who first brought copper to the Indians." For this great service he was appointed a great chief, and hence this statue in his honor was erected at Bella Bella, from which place it was brought to Victoria in 1882.

At another time some of the other interesting things in the provincial museum, one of the best in Canada, may be illustrated and described.

HOW CHILDREN ARE QUICKLY STRENGTHENED

DEVELOP THEM WITH FERROZONE WHICH MAKES RICH BLOOD, HARDY MUSCLE, STEADY NERVES.

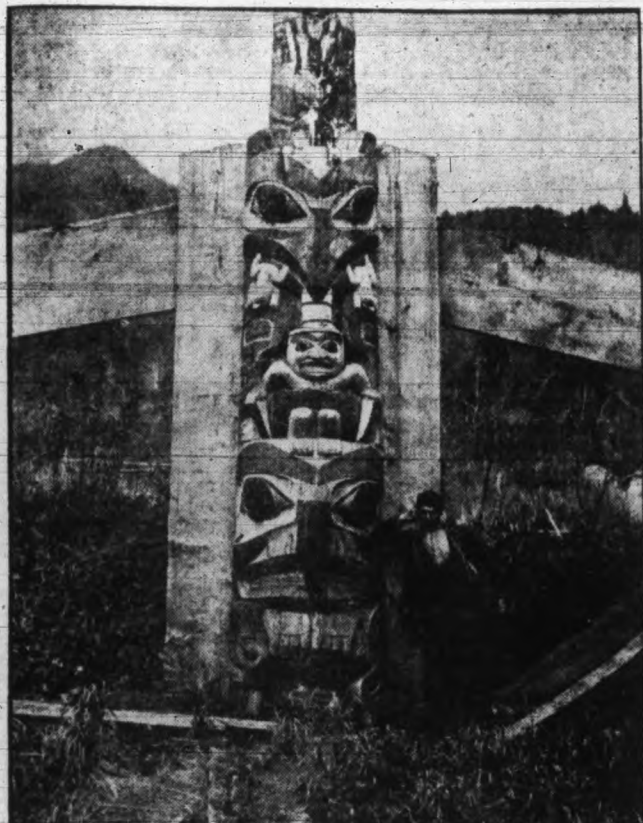

Children brought up on Ferrozone are known by their strong rugged frames, their chubby cheeks and healthful appearance.

Mother find it an indispensable tonic and body builder, and in thousands of homes no other remedy is used.

EVERY CHILD IMPROVES ON FERROZONE. Mrs. E. Montgomery, of Pittsburg, writes: "A little niece came to visit me, and noticing her pale and haggard looks, I started her on a course of Ferrozone. The change that girl underwent in a few weeks was marvellous. Her appetite chirped up, she had more spirit and strength, and a rosy color came into her cheeks that I never saw there before. I weighed my niece about the time she started to pick up, and in seven weeks she gained almost eight pounds, and just looked the picture of health. I think this should be an example to many mothers, and I hope that others will try Ferrozone for their little boys and girls. I am thoroughly convinced that it's the most strengthening tonic. It has my strongest endorsement."

The reason Ferrozone works so beneficially with Ferrozone is that it acts directly on the blood, freeing it of all unhealthy matter, at the same time giving it an additional supply of iron. This at once results in more strength, new spirit and renewed vitality. Just one tablet at meal time works wonders.

Refuse to accept any article the druggist may say is just as good. Get Ferrozone, and the result we guarantee will be satisfactory. Price 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50 at all dealers.

SHOULD ANYONE BE DEBILITATED

SHORT DISSERTATION AS TO BOXING TOURNAMENT

Programme as Arranged—Many Football Games Being Played To-day—Other Items.

Some of the "unco guid" in this city have advertised on the fact that a well known clergyman has become identified with the forthcoming boxing tournament. Have they ever read Carlyle's "Past and Present," and the story of Abbot Sampson? If not, let them do so, and they will cease. Scientific sparring is one of the most healthful pastimes in existence. It teaches, more than any other, except the old-fashioned single stick, self restraint, self reliance, and self defence. But above all a good boxer is good humored, and humor is the spice of life.

The one priest of Western Canada—and the term is used advisedly in its Anglican sense—who remains foremost in the hearts of all that knew him, is "Father Pat," the Rev. Henry Irwin. Once an attempt was made to pen the story of his heroic rescue of three Italians near Field, when fellow countrymen and old, experienced railroad men gave them up for lost beneath a snowslide. It need not again be related here. But the west was then, and it is hoped remains today, the region where real men are appreciated and their active influence in any pastime, especially when exercised by red-blooded gentlemen of sacerdotal authority, will always be for good. Father Pat was a magnificent boxer and gloried in his prowess.

In the days of "merrie England," on every festive occasion "a pairson and a squire" used to head opposing teams in the village green. There was no talk of wasters then. Even the old practice in the Caucasus, of fight for your love to show you have strength to protect her, was to an unprejudiced view, right. The preservation and upbuilding of the body by a healthful exercise will ever remain as proper. His Worship the Mayor may have been drastic in some direction during his term of office, but many acts that have possibly merited derision have been more than balanced by his recent decision to place boxing in this city in competent hands—under the care of those who in the past have proved, and who in the future will accentuate the fact that, under proper auspices, the batle art is as fit removed from "bruising," as the hobby-horse from the automobile.

COMING TOURNAMENT. The date and place have been fixed for the coming boxing tournament. It will take place at the Old Grand theatre, Johnson street, on the evening of Saturday, December 8th. Under the auspices of the Victoria Lacrosse club an evening of good clean boxing is anticipated. There will be three preliminary contests proper, all under 145 pounds, for which the names of Albert Jeffs, former lightweight champion of the province, and Cecil Rhodes, who held the same distinction for the South African station of the British navy, are already entered. Frank P. Slavin has donated a valuable gold medal for competition, in three round contests between boys not under fourteen nor over sixteen resident at Esquimalt. From the other preliminaries the Lacrosse Club will give another gold medal for style alone, at the irrevocable decision of the referee. Owing to the length of the programme the scientific contest between Frank Slavin and Nick Burley has been reduced to ten rounds. In this latter bout, the referee will decide whether the fight is on the square. If he sees the remotest suggestion of a fake about it both fighters have signed an agreement to permit their share of the proceeds to go to a charitable institution to be named by the third man in the ring. It is expected Capt. Wolley will be there.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL. SENIOR GAMES TO-DAY. Two games in the senior league are in progress as the Times goes to press. At Work Point the Fifth Regiment and Y. M. C. A., the two low elevens on the schedule, are playing. At the Oak Bay park field the Wanderers and Victoria West are trying conclusions. If the latter win they will step up a place on the schedule of standing.

INTERMEDIATE, TOO. The final game in the intermediate series is taking place at Beacon Hill, between the Y. M. C. A. and Victoria West. The former team are a couple of points ahead and the only chance for Victoria West to remain in the game is to make a decisive win. This will produce a case of honors even and another game will have to be played. SIXTEENERS. The third game in the replayed series between the Centrals and North Wards started at 1.15 p.m. at Park Bay park. Both of the former matches have been drawn and there will be a big struggle. RUGBY FOOTBALL. SENIOR LEAGUE GAME. The second game in the senior league is going on at Oak Bay park this afternoon, between the James Hays and the Centrals. It is expected to be very close. CALIFORNIA'S NEW CAPTAIN. The San Francisco Chronicle says that W. K. Fuller, captain for 1907, of the California State University Rugby team, comes from the little town of Pomona that has never had a Varsity captain. Haffey, the retiring captain, came to college from Sacramento, the hoodoo college athletic town of all California. With the single exception of Haffey Sacramento has never sent a varsity athlete to either college in all the years, although practically every place on the state map has figured in some of the branches of intercollegiate sport. So it was natural, with such a hoodoo, that Haffey played on three defeated California teams and reached the climax by captaining a beaten bunch. It wasn't his fault. It was the Sacramento hoodoo that hung heavily over the Rugby field when Unmack imposed penalties for discovered faults.

A very successful dance was given in the drill hall on Tuesday night under the auspices of No. 7 company, Fifth Regiment, which was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyed.

Albert Rumsby, the new bandmaster of the Fifth Regiment, is inspiring fresh interest in that organization. He is evolving a plan whereby in time the ranks of the band can always be reinforced when a member drops out, thus assuring a constant efficiency that is difficult when outside talent has to be depended on for occasional support.

A meeting of No. 2 company, Fifth Regiment, was held in the drill hall on Thursday evening, at which it was decided to hold a dance early in January. A committee of three was appointed to make an effort in the matter of arranging a regimental smoker.

A dispatch to the Times from Ottawa says: Capt. W. H. Langley, Fifth British Columbia Regiment, has been transferred to the reserve of officers.

The repairs and renovation to which H. M. S. Shearwater has been subjected for a considerable time have been completed, and the new crew are Three attractions of a most interesting character will be seen at the Victoria theatre next week. On Thursday "The Two Johns," with James E. Marron in the leading role, will be presented, and on Friday another comedy, "The Man on the Box," will hold the boards, with Max Figman as "The Man." The companies presenting these successful comedy plays are of the best, and come to Victoria with many laurels won throughout the Western States.

The star event of the week, however, will certainly be the appearance of James O'Neill, who is making a farewell tour as the Count in his famous play "Monte Cristo," which will be withdrawn at the end of the present season. Among the attractions booked to appear at the Victoria is Maxine Elliott, who will shortly be seen here in Clyde Fitch's great play, "Her Great Match."

At the Empress theatre the stock company holding the boards will produce "Zora," an absorbing society play, which has never before been presented in this city.

The Grand will have an unusually strong vaudeville company in possession, and the big houses that have been of late recorded will doubtless be continued.

Max Figman, who is regarded by the critics of New York as one of the best actors on the American stage, will be the attraction at the Victoria theatre on Thursday, November 29th, in "The Man on the Box," a comedy dramatized by Grace Livingston Furness from Harold MacGrath's book of the same name. Mr. Figman will be supported by a clever company including the dainty actress Helen Holmes, Miss Clara Louise Chapman, Beatrice McCure, Miss Ceta Woodland Bennett and Messrs. Wilson Forbes, John C. Brownell, Morgan Wallace, Frank H. Slinger, Ernest P. Orr, George Centre, Reginald Fife and Marshall Franklin.

"The Man on the Box" was the most pronounced comedy success of last year in New York city, and, in fact, of many years. The action in the play is rapid, the dialogue sparkles with wit and epigram and above all there is a strong heart interest from beginning to end. No one can help but admire the pluck of Lieut. Worburton who took up the challenge of the woman he loved and became her groom and suffered all the indignities a gentleman feels when wearing livery of a lackey, just to be near that woman. It is a situation that permits of lots of comedy and there is a laugh for almost every line.

James E. Marron, the three-hundred-pound comedian, plays one of "The Two Johns" in the play of that name to be seen at the Victoria theatre on Friday, November 30th. His brother, John H., a twin, plays the other John. There is an awful mix-up in the Johns family in the musical farce, "A. C. Stewart," who wrote "The Two Johns," wanted a play that a fat man could appear in as an attraction. He was a clever comedian of the old school, and now comfortably quartered aboard ship. The vessel will now remain in port until the 3rd of next month, and will then leave on a ten-day cruise along the coast, the first to be taken under the new command.

"We possess a fleet of unique strength, and it should be the aim of the admiralty to utilize the newest and most efficient ships for continuous sea-travelling," says the Naval and Military Record. "Practically we have at present 25 battleships which are absolutely first class, each well-armed and of good speed. These ships will be kept in the sea-going fleet, and 20 of them will be concentrated in and about the British Isles. In addition to these men-of-war we shall in future have the home fleet, with the remainder of the battleships on the active list. Therefore we shall possess actually prepared for action at any moment and concentrated in the near seas a battle force which will include every battle unit which can be considered as of first class fighting value. Deducting the Monitor, which has been lost, and the Renown, which has become little more than a vessel of state, and eliminating from the list of first class ships the eight Royal Sovereigns and the four other ships, the fleet in future will consist of 41 first class battleships, which will be ready in commission and always ready for any emergency, and of these 41 ships 24 will next year be in commission in home waters. Behind these vessels there will be the eight ships of the Royal Sovereign type, the Nile, Trafalgar, Barfleur, and Centurion, which will be maintained in the special reserve with what may be described as skeleton crews."

The announcement is definitely, although not officially made, that the joint manoeuvres of the Channel, Atlantic and Mediterranean fleets, in which, of course, the cruiser squadrons will also take part, will be held next February in the vicinity of Lagos Bay. The operations will be directed by Admiral Sir A. K. Wilson, who will thus bring to a close his long and brilliant career afloat, as this distinguished officer attains the age limit in March.

he surrounded himself with other clever artists, among them Paul Dresser, the song writer. Both the producers are dead, and they have been succeeded by younger and more vigorous comedians of the present, who fill the bill quite as well as their original creators did. "The Two Johns" is a satire on musical comedy, or everything pertaining to the material that furnishes this kind of an entertainment.

James O'Neill, who will next year be seen in a new play, will appear at the Victoria theatre next Saturday night, in his great character of Monte Cristo, which he is under contract to play to the coast, where he has not been seen for the past ten years. This will positively be the last time this famous actor will be seen here in "Monte Cristo," a play that has outlived every romantic drama of the age.

Madame Schumann-Heink. The appearance of Madame Schumann-Heink at the Victoria theatre on January 9th, 1907, is being looked forward to with eagerness by local music-lovers. The famous singer, although the mother of a large family and a woman of home instincts, is still one of the leading lights in the operatic world, and her engagement is generally looked upon as one of the biggest musical events of the season.

Empress Theatre. On Monday the Empress Stock Company will present, for the first time in this city, the strong society play, "Zora." The members of the company will have great scope to display their abilities, and will no doubt do justice to the play, which is of a most interesting and absorbing nature. Miss Knatlov will play the title role, and the many patrons of the Fort street theatre who have witnessed and admired her work in previous productions will have an opportunity of seeing the clever young lady at her best. All the other characters have been placed in capable hands, and a good show is assured.

The New Grand. The new show which arrived on Wednesday night at the New Grand has made a great hit, and has been drawing big houses. The closing performance will be given to-night, and the Grand will likely be crowded, as, owing to the late arrival of the performers, those who attended in the early part of the week did not see the new acts. The bill includes Jerome Fremont and Jerome in "Dolly in Frogland," Dick and Alice McVoy, "De Fride of Newspaper Row," Cheverle, trick violinist, who has to respond to numerous encores at every performance; Beauchamp, eccentric acrobat and barrel jumper; Gaffaney Brown, comedian and cigarette juggler; Frederic Roberts in illustrated song, and a number of new moving pictures.

A fine programme has been arranged for next week, to open on Monday night. It is an all-star bill, and includes some of the best performers on the vaudeville stage. The feature act will be that of W. H. Maxwell and Daisy Dudley, who will present the dainty little singing comedietta by Will M. Cressy, entitled "For Sweet Charity."

The German-American stars, Will Tesco and Anna Daniel, return after an absence of two years in what was generally conceded, when they were here last, to be the neatest and best comedy singing and talking act ever presented in the city. C. W. Littlefield, singing and character impersonator, comes with the highest of commendations from neighboring cities; the Bradys, James and Kitty, have a good singing, dancing and novelty bag punching act; the Fishers, father and little daughter, present a spectacular contortion novelty which they call "The Frog and the Lizard"; Frederic Roberts will sing the illustrated song, "Let Me Write What I Never Dared to Tell"; the new moving pictures will include "The Disillusioned Lover," "Electric Current," "The Poisoned Fowl" and "Too Much of a Hurry," and Prof. Nisgel's orchestra will render the overture from "Oberon" by C. Maria Von Weber. There will be no matinee on Monday.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The outcry of the public against motor traffic and its dangers is at length having effect and as a consequence those interested financially are quite aghast at the restrictions and regulations which are to come into force. The authorities at Scotland Yard have evidently been biding their time, but now the time is up and the edict which has gone forth is sufficiently alarming to upset the most optimistic company promoters. No license will be granted to any new motor omnibus unless it passes the test of Scotland Yard. This means that it must run at a recognized speed, with a minimum of noise and a complete absence of smell. It must also be provided with brakes to prevent skidding or any other invention that will act as a non-skidder. Unless this miracle of motorium is forthcoming, motor omnibuses will be seen no more on London streets, for of course those now running will be stopped immediately their licenses expire. The serious aspect of the affair is that hundreds of motor omnibuses are "held up," so to speak, in the motor factories, because the companies refuse to take them under the new conditions, unless some compromise is effected with Scotland Yard, a loss of thousands of pounds is inevitable. In passing, it may be observed that a fortune awaits the man who can invent a non-skidder for motors.

Sufferings of Suffragists. Apparently nobody has much sympathy with the suffragists, but when it was discovered that during their present incarceration in Holloway jail they were treated as ordinary criminals instead of first class misdemeanors, all their misdeeds were forgotten, and British chivalry asserted itself and a great outcry was made. It was found, on the release after agreeing to pay the fine of two of the "martyrs" who had fallen ill from the bad treatment they received in prison, that the suffragists were being subjected to terrible indignities, forced to wear prison clothes and eat prison fare. Very indignantly the home secretary, Mr. Herbert Gladstone, acceded to importunities on the part of the public in general and relaxed the iron hand of the law somewhat, in favor of the imprisoned ladies, and they now receive better treatment. Meanwhile they are not without champions. "Rich" a brilliant writer as Mr. George Meredith has supported their "cause" in a very trenchant article in the Times, and Mr. John Morley has also expressed heartfelt sympathy with their claims.

The Soap Trust. The agitation in the trades affected by the soap combine, or, as it is still persistently called, "The Soap Trust," despite disclaimers, is still as pronounced in its intensity as it was last week, and a complete surrender is imminent. It is significant to note that the consumers are, if anything, more aggressive in their antipathy to the firms involved than the retailers. In many districts in London, particularly those of the wealthier classes, the consumers absolutely refuse any of the productions of the combine manufacturers and firms not in the trust, are inundated with orders not from London only but from all parts of England. That it is merely a ripple says wonder many believe, but even that time is sufficient to enable the factories of the outsiders to do a roaring trade.

Mrs. Eddy III. A few months back the newspapers here were full of a Christian Science case, which showed the so-called "religion" up in no uncertain colors. If the story which now comes from America is true, it ought to be the death-blow to Christian Science in this country. If we are to keep up our reputation as a practical race, for three years, American newspapers say, the high priestess and founder of that religion—the world-renowned Mrs. Eddy—has been the victim of cancer, although such afflictions are held to be illusory by the tenets of her creed. Perhaps the most amazing feature of the story is that an understudy made up to resemble Mrs. Eddy, is paraded every day in a closed carriage for the edification of the faithful few who believe in the cult, while the real Mrs. Eddy is kept a prisoner in a poor wreck of humanity battling with the aid of a Boston doctor, but it noted—against the fell disease which has laid her low. Pity for her sufferings is mingled with relief in most people's minds, that a "religion" which has done widespread harm is doomed by such a revelation.

Officers' Pay. Many times and oft has the question of army officers' pay arisen and its inadequacy to meet the expenses involved. The case of Harold James Carroll, a "ranker," stationed in a garrison town in Ireland, who obtained a commission within three years, is therefore attracting considerable attention in military circles. His pay was 5s. 3d. a day, and his expenses, even with the strictest economy, amounted to 7s. 6d. a day. As a consequence he got into debt, only to be comparatively small amount of 15s. but still sufficient to make him quail at the prospect of getting deeper into the mire. He solved the difficulty by selling his kit and departing for England, where he re-enlisted as a private in the Royal Irish, and was sent to their depot in Ireland. There he was recognized and then made a full statement of the facts. The result of the case, which is under the consideration of the authorities, is of intense interest to military men, especially to "rankers."

More Tubes. Yet another "tube" railway is about to be opened in London—the Piccadilly and Brompton—which has been in course of construction for about two years. The trial trip made this week was in every way successful, and the promoters hope to have a full service of trains running by the second week of December, just in time for the Christmas rush, which will be a good test as to the usefulness of the line for traffic. The new line runs from Hammersmith via Brompton and Piccadilly to Finsbury Park in the north of London, and the object is to unite the north and south of the metropolis. The new "tube" is built on much the same lines as the "Bakerloo" railway, with corridor carriages. A novelty is introduced, however, in the shape of a move staircase, which will be used in addition to the lifts. It will have two spirals, one up and the other down, and will travel continuously. Stepping on the top of the passenger will be quickly transferred to the platform without the trouble of walking a single step and vice versa when he wants to be taken up. The staircase is being tried as an experiment because nervous people have an objection to lifts.

Racing Pump. As a sequel to the Harvard and Cambridge boat race, a member of the Cambridge boat club has ordered from America a pump like the one the Harvard crew used in their boat. The pump was very little noticed at the time, but it kept the boat dry and prevented the friction and retarding motion of the loose water in the rough water between Putney and Mortlake, where much water is shipped, this is a real advantage. Indeed it is hardly too much to say that the Oxford and Cambridge race has been won two or three times by the crew that had shipped less water and therefore had the lighter boat, and for no other reason. But now the question has arisen as to whether circles as to whether there is not a rule against having a pump of this sort in a racing boat, and if it would come under the description of "mechanical aid" and there is likely to be a good deal of discussion on the point.

A Pretty Wedding. A wedding of particular interest to military circles was that of Miss Constance White, the daughter of Field Marshal Sir George White, to Captain Ivor Currie, which took place in London this week. A picturesque element was given to the ceremony by the presence of a large number of old Chelsea pensioner soldiers, who lined the aisle. The bride was charmingly attired in white chiffon over soft satin, and chiffon adorned the court train of white satin which was further ornamented with sprays of orange blossom. She wore a tulle veil over a wreath of orange blossom and white heather. There were eight bridesmaids—two grown-ups and six children. Satin gowns and white felt hats with pale blue ostrich plumes were worn by the former, while the children looked charming in Kate Greenaway frocks of white muslin, draped with fuchsia and soft blue satin sashes. Becoming little caps of Irish crochet replaced the ordinary bridesmaid's hats. Two little pages brought up the rear and struck a note of originality by their attire, which was the familiar costume of the Chelsea pensioners, produced in miniature. Very quaint indeed they looked in their bright scarlet cloth coats, black trousers and black leather hats, giving quite a military touch to the ceremony.

JOSEPH F. SMITH FINED. Salt Lake, Utah, Nov. 23.—Joseph F. Smith, president of the Mormon church, this afternoon appeared in the district court before Judge Ritchie, pleaded guilty to a charge of unlawful cohabitation and a fine of $500 was imposed.

The ash is very injurious to vegetation under its shade. Under the yew hardly any plant will grow.

Most travellers who have written on the subject express disappointment in the stature and features of the women of Montenegro; but I (says the Right Hon. Sir H. Maxwell, Bart., in Blackwood's Magazine), was as much impressed by the beauty of many of the maidens as by the worn and haggard appearance of most of the elder ones. The plain fact is that the lot of women in this Christian country is far harder than that of Mussulman wives, who are kept in seclusion. The Greek Church, despite its veneration for the Virgin Mary, has done little or nothing to modify the Oriental doctrine of the abject inferiority of woman to man. Consequently all the burdensome tasks are thrown upon women, except agriculture and woodcutting, which they share with the men. But even that share is not an equal one. If a man goes to the coupe to cut firewood, it is his wife who binds the load and carries it home, over the steep paths on her shoulders. A family attending market always marches in the same order. The father and stalwart sons stroll along in front, smoking the eternal cigarettes, with no burden except their carefully bloused arms; behind follow wife and daughters, bowed with bundles, and perhaps leading an over-loaded little donkey. It is not from unkindness; I never heard a Montenegrin utter a harsh word or bestow a sour look upon his wretched kind. It is simply the constituted order of things that man is the lord, and he would no sooner think of relieving his wife of a load in the journey than an English squire would propose to groom his own horse after a day's hunting. Neither the Montenegrin wife nor the English groom would appreciate interference with their recognized duties.

You may see evidence in the street of any village of the status accorded to women. When two male acquaintances meet they salute each other most elaborately, bowing low and shaking hands; but if a man meet a woman friend, he extends his hand for a kiss. Naturally, I think, the female part of the population inherits as remarkable a share of good looks as the men; but they marry very young, and hard work soon renders their figures angular and their features drawn. Before marriage there seems to be plenty of pretty love-making, all the prettier to on-lookers because of the graceful costumes of the young people.

Do You Seek Health? CONSULT DR. HAMILTON AND YOU WILL BE SHOWN THE WAY.

Thousands are in the same boat—all sickly, bilious and feeling far from well. Trouble is, the system is clogged with impurities which need to be cleared away. Before downright sickness arrives you should cleanse and purify the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

At once you'll feel their mighty influence building up weak spots, clearing out disease, and putting you again on your feet. These purely vegetable pills change your blood, worn-out condition to one of health and vigor, because they supply the body with nourishing blood that builds up and enlivens the entire system.

Mr. John Whitley, of Statwood, P. O. Ont., knows the merit of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and says: "I wouldn't be alive to-day had it not been for Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Last winter I was sick with grippe, and when spring came I was weak, bilious and rheumatic. I used enough medicine to cure twenty times, but I didn't get any help till I tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They purified my blood, took the yellow color out of my face, put new tone in my stomach, and increased my appetite. The bilious attacks and rheumatic pains gradually departed, and Dr. Hamilton's Pills made a new man of me. I proved their merit, and proclaim them a medicine for all men."

If better health and prompt recovery are important, get Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut today. At all dealers, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

IF! Everybody knows that Cod Liver Oil is a wonderful flesh producer, IF you can take it. Nobody doubts that Iron is the greatest enricher of the blood, IF you can digest it. It is well known that Phosphorus is the ideal nerve and brain tonic, IF it is properly administered. "IF" ah! there's the rub. But everybody does not know that Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus have at last been combined in an emulsion so palatable that anybody can take it, so easily assimilated that the smallest infant can digest it without difficulty and so perfectly and scientifically prepared that the value of the original ingredients is enhanced fourfold. This emulsion is known as FERROL (Iron and Oil). "FERROL" has wiped out the "IF." "FERROL" has brought the wonderful and universally recognized virtues of Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus within easy reach of the multitudes who need them. "FERROL" is the only perfect emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, because it is the only one that contains IRON and no emulsion is perfect without it. That is why FERROL is an unequalled system builder.

Just feed your hair and you will be satisfied with it.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

THE WAGES OF SIN.

The International Sunday School Lesson for November 25th is, "The World's Temperance Sunday," Isa. v. 11-23.

The uncrowning of a man is tragedy; the uncrowning of a nation is a world-disaster. This story deals with the history of the world's temperance movement.

Many times the word "woe" occurs in the prophet Isaiah in setting forth the excess of strong drink and the uncrowning of individuals.

The old prophet was a big man, with wide vision, and instead of devoting himself exclusively to individual drunkards, though he doubtless did his share of the latter, he took a national outlook and saw the connection of the two.

The national conception of the much-misunderstood temperance question is the one for the present hour. In Great Britain it is becoming a national issue.

Socially and economically considered, the drink question is also a national issue in the United States and Canada.

Shrewd observers are pointing out that public interest is being increasingly centered upon the liquor traffic.

As the Japanese made a stubborn, vigorous and varied assault upon Port Arthur, so, with a single aim, very different ways, to overthrow the drinking customs of ages.

The papers and miners have been at work, also by a patient process of education, tunnelling under the very foundations of the mighty institution.

Deprivation has been at work as temperance ally. Society has deprived the liquor dealer and the drinker of its approval.

reach Pierce pond, we already knew we should first have to traverse both the Otter ponds, each about three quarters of a mile long and oval in shape, the lower pond being reached from the upper by a trail about half a mile in length.

I will not describe our adventures in detail. In our attempt to cross the lake in our flat-bottomed red lead boat in the face of the gale, suffice it to say that, before we had got out a quarter of a mile we had our coats off ready to swim, while, as we still kept on, because we did not know how to turn to come back, we dipped our boat's nose constantly into the crests of the short choppy seas.

Two sick and sorry beings, although thankful for our escape, were with us as we gazed at the further coast two miles away, and realized that the wind which blew down from the grand peaks of Higelow mountain was increasing rather than diminishing.

The Proper Position of the Thumb

Don't Use a Pointed Stick

"HANDS" remarked a young girl once, "are such queer things, rather ugly in themselves too, but of course, we couldn't get along without them. I believe," she added naively, "that I like my own better than any I ever saw—probably because I know how to use them." She did know how to use them, and she knew how to take care of them, and in acquiring this knowledge, she had learned the secret of a pretty hand.

No means indicates that this art flowed freely down upon her—a heaven-sent gift, but that she gained it by good hard work.

properly given, it is this position and there is nothing uglier than a "broad-jointed, awkwardly carried thumb." Cultivate flexible fingers—if you find your fingers move slowly and stiffly, and refuse to fall into easy groups of twos and threes, then you need to put them through a light course of gymnastics, and perhaps through a course of treatment as well.

Most physicians agree that the texture of the skin and the consistency of the nails, as well as the condition of the matrix, are affected by the state of the general health, but often you see flabby, moist or over-dry hands upon persons who are apparently in a normal condition, and then it is that local treatment should be used.

preferably those cast aside by the masculine members of the family, for sweeping and dusting or scrubbing rough work, for dirt and grime make ravages upon the hand that weeks of care can't always eradicate. Then she should keep another pair, light in weight and color, to wear when she goes to bed.

scissors for any necessary trimmings, and keep the outline of the finger tips when shaping the nail. Very short nails make a hand look stubby, but over long ones break easily, so seek the happy medium. Pumice stone will remove inkstains, and the value of lemon juice for removing those made by vegetables can not be over-estimated. The woman who has to prepare onions occasionally and has suffered the after effects, will be glad to know that if she rubs her hands thoroughly with lemon juice, then washes them in cool clear water and afterwards in warm soap water, with a final rinsing in cold, she need have no fear of the smell of that odorous bulb clinging to her.

Mrs. Symes' Aids to Correspondents

When the Hair Falls
WHAT shall I do for my hair? It is continually falling out, until from a beautiful head of black hair, I have but a few straggles left. I am 25 years old, and do you think it possible to grow it again?
An troubled some, but much with itching scalp and dandruff, which is very generally brown places come in it, then it breaks and falls out. It is not so much as you would expect it to be, but it is not so much as you would expect it to be.

Bothered With Dandruff
I am bothered with dandruff very much. I shampoo my hair once in three weeks. My scalp is very itchy. I have never used any remedy for it. I was afraid it would affect the color of my hair, but as my hair is falling, will you kindly give me a formula to cure it? "DODO."
The directions given to "Mrs. H. P. T." are exactly suited to your case.

Brown Spots Around Mouth
I have read a number of your recipes, but none of them seem to be just what I want. My left eye has brown spots, one on forehead between the eyes, and others around my mouth. They are very distinct. Will you give me a formula to get rid of them? When is the best time to clip the ends of the hair?
Also my face has dry spots on it. The skin seems to peel off. My complexion seems to have a yellowish tinge. I use a cream and powder together, which will clog up the pores, which is not good for the skin. I would like to use a liquid powder, which is perfectly harmless if you are careful to wash well out of the skin before retiring. It has a tendency to make the skin look fairer.

For Whitening the Skin—A Liquid Powder
Pine oxide of zinc, 1 ounce; glycerine, 1 dram; rose-water, 2 ounces; essence of rose, 15 drops.
Mix the oxide of zinc in just enough of the rose-water to cover it, then add the glycerine, and the remainder of the rose-water.
Mix well and apply with a soft sponge or an antique brush. The face must be washed before the liquid dries, or it will be streaked.
Formula for several cold creams are published frequently in these columns, and the more they are used, the more the skin is benefited. Look over the letters and see if just what you want. If you do not see a cream which seems to answer your need, write whether it is a skin food or cleansing cream or healing cream—I shall be glad to publish a formula for you. It is against my rules to give commercial addresses in these columns. I know to be good.

Shampoo for Light Hair
Will you give me the shampoo and tonic for light hair?
Here is a good shampoo for light hair:
Shampoo
White castile soap, 1 ounce; camellia oil, 1 ounce; lemon juice, 1 ounce; water, 1 quart.
Dissolve the soap in the water and add the other ingredients. Rub well into the roots. Rinse thoroughly in several waters. Use carefully.
Then use the quinine hair tonic given in the answer to "A Subscriber." It will not darken your hair in the least. Apply it only to the roots of the hair—any tonic allowed to get on the hair itself is liable to make it sticky.

Tonic for Light Hair
Will you kindly publish your recipe for tonic for light hair?
I have used the shampoo for the same, and am afraid to try tonics without advice from you.
I see now using your dandruff cure. It is an answer to "V. S." above.

Hair Growing Darker
Will you please be so kind as to print a recipe for a tonic to turn up hair which is very light, but has a tendency to grow darker?
The best way to keep your hair light is by frequent and thorough shampooing.
Shampoo
Potassium carbonate, 1 ounce; ammonia water, 1 ounce; tincture of cantharides, 2 drams; bay rum, 4 ounces; alcohol, 1 quart.
Dissolve the potassium carbonate in the ammonia water, then mix with the bay rum, and rub into the roots. Rinse thoroughly in several waters. Then dry carefully.

Dark Lines About Mouth
I have never applied to you for advice before, but have always read your advice to my heart's content. I have a dark line about my mouth, and have had it for many years. I would like to have the hair removed from my nose to mouth, and have had it removed by electrolysis. I would like to have the hair removed from my nose to mouth, and have had it removed by electrolysis. I would like to have the hair removed from my nose to mouth, and have had it removed by electrolysis.

See Answer to "M. K."
Will you please send me the formula for the "Vaucaire remedy"? I saw the remedy published in your paper, but I was not given the formula. I would like to have the formula for the "Vaucaire remedy".

Hair Seems Dead
The condition of my scalp is dreadful. The scalp, I think, must be diseased, as the hair is so brittle and falls out so easily. I have tried many remedies, but nothing seems to do any good. Will you please give me some instructions as to what to do for it?
Wash the hair thoroughly every week, using the egg shampoo, for which formula is given in the answer to "A Subscriber" above.

How Powder May Be Used Harmlessly
I see in yesterday's paper you say to use powder. "Do not use powder." Is it injurious to the face? Will you please tell me what to use to make the skin look fairer and to take the "shiny" look away from the face?
Will you please advise me what is the best cold cream?
I do not recall the letter you refer to, but it may be that the use of powder was to be avoided because of some peculiarity in the case presented. Any powder tends to clog up the pores of the skin, although the benefits derived from the use of talcum powder are so many that that effect is overshadowed. If you use powder carefully it should do you no harm. Don't apply it if your face is damp from bathing, or if per-

Jaborandi Tonic
Quinine sulphate, 30 grains; Tincture of cantharides, 1 fluid dram; Fluid extract of jaborandi, 2 fluid drams; Glycerine, 2 fluid ounces; Bay rum, 4 fluid ounces; Rose-water, 1 quart.
The quinine should be dissolved in the alcohol, then mix with the bay rum, and the other ingredients added, and the liquid filtered. Rub into the roots of the hair every night.
It is probable that this treatment will make your scalp so healthy that the excess of oil which makes the hair so objectionable may be overcome without recourse to more specific treatment. Both massage and tonic will correct the

Walnut Stain for the Hair
Four ounces of walnut skins beaten to a pulp, in which is added pure alcohol, 16 ounces. Let stand eight days and strain. Filter in size to each quart of hot water; soap the brush precisely as you would were you going to use it for your hands, and scrub the face thoroughly.
In addition, use this lotion:
Lotion for Blackheads
Pure brandy, 2 ounces; cologne, 1 ounce; Agar, 1 dram; After washing the face thoroughly with soap and water. Try buttermilk for whitening your skin, bathing with it frequently and letting it dry into the skin. That is a simple and often very efficacious treatment. Here is a more powerful whitener:
Liquid Whitenor
One quart of water (previously boiled and strained); alcohol, 2 drops; oxide of zinc, 1 drachm; bicarbonate of mercury, 4 grains; glycerine, 2 drops.

A Serious Scar
Can you tell me of something that will heal a scar which is as red as one's lip, caused by an accident in which the skin was torn? I have had it for several years, and it gives the appearance of a burn. I have been using peroxide of hydrogen, but have not been successful with it.
I hope soon to see a skin food recipe in your paper.
I am afraid that treatment by a skin specialist would be the only method of removing so serious a scar as you describe. I have heard of some wonderful cures having been effected by such treatment, although none has come under my personal notice. Consult your own physician about it.

Dr. Wilson's Treatment for Obtinate Freckles
(Recommended by Erasmus Wilson, and though excellent in obstinate cases, does not suit all complexions equally well.)
Eloerow-ointment, 1 ounce; sulphate of zinc, 30 grains.
Mix well and rub the affected parts of the skin at night. In the morning wash the cream off with soap and soft water and afterward apply a lotion thus composed:

Massage Cream for the Bust
Lanolin, 2 ounces; spermaceti, 2 ounces; mutton tallow (freshly tressed), 2 ounces; coconut oil, 4 ounces; oil of sweet almonds, 4 ounces; oil of benzoin, 1 dram; extract of Portugal, 4 ounces; oil of rose, 2 drops. Mix as you would any cream of the sort. Rub on gently at night.
I should have much greater hopes of your success, however, if you took the Vaucaire remedy as well. It is quite harmless and affects no other part of the body.

THE HOUSE WITH THE GREEN SHUTTERS

BY GEORGE DOUGLAS.

"Aye, man," nodded Brodie. "I hadna heard o' that—'curious that I didna hear o' that!"

"It was Drucken Wabster's wife that told it. There's not a haat that happens at the Gourlays but she clypes. I spiered her mysel, and she says young Gourlay has a black eye."

"Aye, aye; there's thinnal hope for the Gourlay in him!" said the Deacon.

"How do you ken?" cried the baker.

"He's no the first youngster I've seen the wisecracks o' the world wagging their sagacious paws over; and, eh, but he was this waster!—according to their way of it—and, oh, but he was the other waster!—and, oh, but he was the wild fellow!—and a' the while they were fit to be his door mat; for it was only the first in the ruffian made him—"

"True!" said the ex-Provost. "I'm still there's a decency in 'datness. And there's no decency in young Gourlay. He's just a mouth! Start canny and you'll steer weel, my mother used to say; but he has strated unco ill, and he'll steer to ruin."

"Dinna spae ill-fortune!" said the baker. "Dinna spae ill-fortune! And never despise a youngster for a random start. It's the blood makes a besneeze."

"Well, I like young men to be quiet, said Sandy Toddie. "I would rather have them a wee soft than rollers."

"Not I!" said the baker. "If I had a son, I would rather an ill-dell sat forment me at the table, than that ratch in poke. Burns (God rest his banes) struck the heit o' it. Ye mind what he said o' Prince George?"

"Yet mony a ragged cowie's been known to msk a noble aiver."

And ye may dootily fill a throne. For a their clishmaclaver.

Few better were or braver; And yet w' funny queer Sir John He was an unco shaver. For monie a day.

"Dinna't, but Burns is gude."

"Hitts man, dinna sweer, sa muckle; frowned the old Provost.

"Ou, there's waur than an oath now and than," said the baker. "Like spic in a bun it lends a briskness. But it needs the hearty manner w' it. The Deacon there couldna let blatter w' a hearty oath to save his withered soul. I kenned a trifle o' a fellow that got in among a jovial game lang-ayns that used to sweer tremendous, and he bude to do the same the bit bodie!—so he used to say 'Din't!' in a wee, sma voice, that was clean riddeous!—He was a lauchable dirt, that."

"What was his name?" said Sandy Toddie.

"Your ain," said the baker. (To tell the truth, he was key-fool.) Alexander Toddie was his name; "Din't!" he used to squeak—for he had been a Scotch cuddy in the Midlands, and while he used the English, "Din't!" said he. I like a man that says 'Din't!'"

"Aye, but then, you see, you're an artist in words," said the Deacon.

"Ye're an artist in spite," said the baker.

"Ah, well," said the ex-Provost. "Burns proved to be wrang in the end o' it, and you'll maybe be the same. George the Fort' didna fill the throne vera doocely for a' their clishmaclaver, and I don't think young Gourlay'll fill the pupic vera doocely for a' ours. For he's saftie and latle baillie, and that's the doddly combination. At least, that's my opinion," quoth he, and smacked his lips, the important man.

"Tuts!" said the baker, "folk should be kind to folk. There may be a post-beelity for the Gourlays in the youngster yet!"

He would have said more, but at that moment his sony big wife came out with oh! such a roughish and kindly smile, and, "Tom, Tom," said she, "what are ye hawering here for? C'way in, man, and have a dish o' tea w' me!"

He glanced up at her with comic shrewdness from where he sat on his hunkers—for fine he saw through her—and "Ou eye," said he, "ye great muckle fat hoteh o' a decent bodie, ye—I'll gang in and have a dish o' tea w' ye." And away went the fine fuddled fellow.

"She's a wise woman, that," said the ex-Provost looking after them. "She kenned no to flyte, and he went like a lamb."

"I believe he'll fear'd o' her," snipped the Deacon, "or he wudny-un went thae lamb-like!"

"Leave him alone!" said Johnny Coe, who had been drinking too. "He's the only kind heart in Barbie. And Gourlay's the only gentleman!"

"Gentleman!" cried Sandy Toddie. "Lord save us! Auld Gourlay a gentleman!"

"Yes, gentleman!" cried Johnny, to whom the drink gave a courage.

"Brute if ye like, but aristocrat treat scalp to beef. If he had brains, and a decent wife, and a bigger field—oh, man," said Johnny, "visioning the possibility. Auld Gourlay could conquer world, if he swalled his neck tillt."

"It would be a big conquest, that!" said the Deacon. "Here comes his son taking his ain share o' the earth at our rate."

Young Gourlay came staggering round the corner, "a little sprung" (as they phrase it in Barbie), but not so bad as they had hoped to see him. Webster and the ragman had exaggerated the condition of their fellow-toper. Probably their own oscillation lent itself to everything they saw. John zigzagged; it is true, but otherwise he was fairly steady on his pins. Unluckily, however, falling to see a stone before on the road, he tripped and went sprawling on his hands and knees. A titter went.

"What the hell are you laughing at," he snarled, leaping up, quick to feel the slight, blatant to resent it.

"Tuts, man!" Tam Wylie rebuked him in a careless scorn.

With a parting scowl he went swaggering up the street.

"Aye!" said Toddie drily, "that's the Gourlay possiblyeely."

CHAPTER XXIII.

"Ah, ha, Deacon, my old cock, here you are!" The speaker smote the Deacon between his thin shoulder-blades; all the hat kept on his startled rump. "No, not a leuchy stay—just get for a flying visit to see my little girl. Dem'd glad to get back to town again—Barbie's ted-quiet for my tastes. No life in the place, no life at all!"

The speaker was Davie Aird, draper and buck. "No life at all," he cried, as he shot down his cuffs with a jerk, and stepped up and down the barroom of the Red Lion. He was dressed in a long fawn overcoat reaching to his heels, with two big yellow buttons at the waist behind, in the most approved fashion of the horsey. He paused in his swaggering to survey the backs of his long white delicate hands, holding them side by side before him, as if to make sure they were the same size. He was letting the Deacon see his ring. Then, pyrring his chin down, with a fastidious and critical regard, he picked a long fair hair off his left coat sleeve. He held it high as he had seen them do on the stage of the Theatre Royal. "Sweet souvenir!" he cried, and kissed it, "most dear remembrance!"

The Deacon fed on the sight. The richness of his satiric perception was too great to permit of speech. He could only gloat and be dumb.

"Waiting for Jack Gourlay," Aird rattled again. "He's off to College again, and we're driving in his father's trap to the express at Skehan station. Wonder what's keeping the fellow. I like a man to be punctual. Business training, you see—yes, by Gad, two thousand parcels a week go out of our place, and all of 'em up to time! Ah, there he is," he added, as the harsh grind of wheels was heard by the gravel of the street. "Thank God, we'll soon be in civilization!"

Young Gourlay entered great-coated and lordly, through the two halves of that easy-swinging door.

"Good!" he cried. "Just a minute, Aird, till I get my mask fitted."

My weapon's primed and ready," Aird said, and slapped the breast pocket of his coat.

John birlid a bright sovereign on the counter, one of twenty old-Gourlay had battered his brains to get together for the boy's expenses. The young fellow rattled the change into his trouser pocket like a master of millions.

The Deacon, and another Miler or two, gathered about the steps in the darkness, to see that royal going off. Peter Riney's bunched-up little old figure could be seen on the front seat of the gig; Aird was already mounted behind. The mare (a worthy successor to Spanking Tam) pawed the gravel and fretted in impatience; her sharp ears were pricked against the gloom, worked in and fro. A widening cone of light shone out from the leftward lamp of the gig, full on a glistening laurel, which Simpson had growing by his porch. Each smooth leaf of the green bush gave back a separate gleam, vivid to the eye in that pouring yellowness. Gourlay stared at the bright evergreen, and forgot for a moment where he was. His lips parted, and—as they saw in the light from the door—his look grew dreamy and far-away.

The truth was that all the impressions of a last day at home were bit-ton in on his brain as by acid, in the very middle of his swaggering gusto. That gusto was lately real, true, for it seemed a fine thing to go spurring-off to College in a gig; but it was still more largely assumed, to combat the sorrow of departure. His heart was in his boots at the thought of going back to accursed Edinburgh—to those lodgings, those dreary, damnable lodgings. Thus his nature was reduced to its real elements in the hour of leaving home; it was only for a swift moment he forgot to spurge, but for that moment the cloak of his swaggering dropped away and he was his baked self, morbidly alive to the impressions of the world, afraid of life, clinging to the familiar and the known. That was why he gazed with wistful eyes at that laurel clump, so vivid in the pouring rays. So vivid there, it stood for all the dear country round which was now hidden by the darkness; it centred his world among its leaves. It was a last picture of loved Barbie that was fastening on his mind. There would be fine-gardens in Edinburgh, no doubt, but, oh, that outhie laurel by the Red Lion door! It was his friend; he had known it all ways.

The spell lasted but a moment, one of those moments searching a man's nature to its depths, yet flitting like a lonely shadow on the autumn wheat. But "Aird was already fidgetting. "Hurry up, Jack," he cried, "we'll need to pelt if we mean to get the train."

Gourlay started. In a moment he had slipped from one self to another, and was the hustler once more. "Right!" he splurged, "hove a blink till I light my cigar."

He was not in the habit of smoking cigars, but he had bought a packet on purpose, that he might light one before his admiring onlookers ere he went away. Nothing like cutting a dash.

He was seen puffing for a moment with withdrawn cheeks, his head to one side, the flames of the flickering vestal lighting up his face, his hat pushed back till it rested on his collar, his fair hair hanging down his brow. Then he sprang to the driving seat and gathered up the reins. "Ta-ta, Deacon; see and behave yourself!" he flung across his shoulder, and they were off with a bound.

"Im-plident!" said the outraged Deacon.

Peter Riney was quite proud to have the honor of driving two such bucks to the station. It lent him a consequence; he would be able to say when he came back that he had been "awa w' the young mesler!"—for Peter said "mesler," and was laughed at by the Barbie wits who know "mesler" was the proper English. The plugging twain rattled him and drew him out in talk, passed him their flasks at the Brownie's Bar, had him tea-heeing at their nonsense. It was a full-blooded night to the withered little man.

That was how young Gourlay left Barbie for what was to prove his last season at the University.

All Gourlay's swaglike chaps had gone with the going of his trap, only Peter Riney, the queer little oddity remained. There was a loyal simplicity in Peter which never allowed him to question the Gourlays. He had been too long in their service to be of use to any other; while there was a hand's turn to be done about the House with the Green Shutters, he was glad to have the chance of doing it. His respect for his surly tyrant was as great as ever; he took his pittance of a wage, and was thankful. Above all he worshipped young Gourlay; to be in touch with a College-bred man was a reflected glory; even the escapades noised about the little town, to his gleeful ignorance, were the signs of a man of the world. Peter did not what he heard them talked of. "Ter-rible clever fellow, the young mesler—and hard, too; infernal hard!" Loyalty Peter believed it.

But ere four months had gone, Peter was discharged. It was on the day after Gourlay sold back Sally, the mare, to get a little money to go on with.

It was a bright spring day, of ever-lasting softness, a fine day, a day when the pores of everything seemed opened. People's brains felt pulpy, and they snuffed as with winter's colds. Peter Riney was opening a pit of potatoes in the big garden, shovelling aside the foot-deep mould, and tearing off the inner covering of yellow straw—which seemed to have a certain softness, somehow, when suddenly revealed by its glittering dryness, beneath the moist dark earth. Little crumbles of mould trickled down, in among the flattened shining straws. In a tree near Peter, two pigeons were gurgling and rocket-cooing, mating for the coming year. He fell to sorting out the potatoes, throwing the best ones on a heap, and "tattle-wain," as they call it in the north. The evaporating softness was at work on Peter's head, too, and from time to time, as he walked, he wiped his nose on his sleeve.

Gourlay watched him for a long time without speaking. Once or twice he moistened his lips, and cleared his throat, and frowned—as one who would broach unpleasant news. It was not like him to hesitate. But the old man, encased in senility, was ill to disturb; he was intent on nothing but the work before him; it was mechanical, and soothing and occupied his whole mind. Gourlay, so often the tramping brute without knowing it, felt it brutal to wound the faithful old creature by trifling at his toil. He would have found it much easier to discharge a younger and a keener man.

"Stop, Peter," he said at last; "I don't need you any more."

Peter rose stiffly from his knees and shook the mould with a pitiful gesture from his hands. His mouth was fallen slack, and showed a few yellow tusks. "Eh?" he asked vaguely. The thought that he must leave the Gourlays could not penetrate his mind.

"I don't need you any more," said Gourlay again, and met his eye steadily.

"I'm sey auld," said Peter, still shaking his hands with that pitiful gesture, "but I only need a bite and a sup. Man, I'm willin' to tak onything."

"It's no that," said Gourlay sourly. "It's no that. But I'm giving up the business."

Peter said nothing, but gazed away down the garden, his sunken mouth forgetting to munch its straw, which dangled by his chin. "I'm an auld servant," he said at last, "and mind ye, he flashed in pride, "I'm a true ane."

"Oh, you're a that," Gourlay grunted; "you have been a good servant."

"It'll be the poorhouse, it's like," mused Peter. "Man, have ye noathing for us to do?" he asked pleadingly. (To be continued.)

LARGE SIZE BOTTLE FERROL Absolutely FREE!

A Daring Distribution

The undersigned Druggist at the earnest solicitation of the Ferrol Co., Limited, of Toronto, has made a thorough and searching investigation into the merits of FERROL, and of the methods of that Company, and he finds that: Every cure claimed by the Company is absolutely genuine; that FERROL is manufactured from the best quality of Munn's Celebrated Cod Liver Oil (the whole of the oil) and is richer in oil than any other emulsion, and while it contains just the right quantity of the best form of Iron and Phosphorous, it is so scientifically prepared, that not one in a thousand finds any trouble in taking it; that the medicine has accomplished the most amazing results in its own city; that its sales in the Home City have been phenomenal; that it is endorsed by all druggists without hesitation or qualification; that it is, in short, all the Company claims for FERROL, and more.

The more I investigated the more enthusiastic I became. It is no longer a question of my willingness to handle the preparation—FERROL—but how can I bring it to the immediate suffering of this city?

It is a heavy responsibility, but I have faith in the honesty and fairness of the Ferrol Company, Limited, of Toronto, and the unequalled merits of their preparation, FERROL.

(Signed) D. E. Campbell

I find also that the druggists in other cities have taken upon themselves the solemn responsibility of standing behind this medicine; and that these druggists have made in each city a daring and remarkable distribution of full-sized bottles.

Impressed by the action of our fellow-druggists, and convinced that they would not have given this remedy such unqualified approval without positive knowledge of its merits, I have decided to follow their example and distribute free of charge

Large Bottles of FERROL Free to the Sick

Commencing Tuesday Nov. 27th, We will distribute 2 gross of this medicine. One bottle being presented to every holder of the coupon shown below. Cut it out and bring to D. E. CAMPBELL'S PRESCRIPTION STORE, COR. FORT and DOUGLAS STREET.

Maintaining a first-class Drug Store, the above named Druggist occupies a commanding position in the retail drug trade of this city, and almost every remedy that is offered to the public seeks an outlet through his store. But with an eye single to the interests of his many patrons he is careful to handle the most reliable preparations. Consequently when a medicine is recommended and endorsed by this Druggist, that medicine must have merit.

The above Druggist, after a rigid investigation, described elsewhere in this announcement, has decided to make, upon his own responsibility, the most remarkable distribution of medicine ever attempted in this city. Convinced by personal experience of the extraordinary merits of

FERROL

He has purchased from the Ferrol Co., Limited, of Toronto, a large number of bottles of this remedy, for free distribution, and he hereby invites every person suffering from any form of blood trouble; any person who is run down, discouraged and in need of a powerful tonic; any person suffering from Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup and all Branchial or Lung Trouble, Chronic Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Insomnia, Loss of Weight and all wasting diseases; any person who has sought relief in any other remedy or Cod Liver Oil preparation, and failed to find it, cut out the certificate printed herewith, fill out the blank lines, present it at the store on the dates given, and get a bottle of this wonderful preparation, FERROL, Free.

It was necessary for me to purchase a large quantity in order to have the privilege of making this free distribution, and the responsibility assumed by me in this matter, I am positive will be appreciated by the public, and the immense sales that are sure to follow will more than compensate me for the expenditure involved.

There is absolutely no sentiment in this endorsement of FERROL. It is merely a business recognition of a preparation that possesses positive merit, and a keen desire on the part of a progressive concern to always supply the best goods at the lowest possible price.

THIS CERTIFICATE,

Properly filled out and signed, entitles the holder to one large sized bottle of FERROL (Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus), if presented at Campbell's Prescription Store Tuesday Nov. 27 from 9 a.m., until samples are exhausted.

FERROL

WHAT IT IS AND WHY YOU SHOULD TAKE IT

THE FERROL CO., LIMITED
CITY
May 24th, 1906

GENTLEMEN,

The bottle of FERROL I secured from you, I have found to do great good. My son used it for a bad cold, and it cured him. I know it to be an excellent remedy for a bad cold and for building a person up after sickness. I might say that it was a prominent doctor friend of mine in the city, who used it for his son, and spoke to me of it. I have since recommended it to a great many of my friends to try.

Yours truly,
J. B. TINSING
T. F. AGT.

WHAT FERROL DOES.—A careful personal of the foregoing will readily suggest to the reader what FERROL does. It builds up the run-down constitution as no other preparation can. It cures Anemia, no matter how chronic, by supplying the blood with just what it requires in the only form in which impoverished blood can be so supplied. It prevents Consumption by fortifying the constitution against its attacks. It restores Nervous Vitality in a manner little short of marvellous. It cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and kindred diseases by building up the constitution so that the system will throw off the disease by natural processes—a very different thing from the usual method of treatment by administering cough medicines and other drugs which are sure to impair digestion and are always debilitating in their effects. FERROL, on the other hand, while removing the disease, at the same time increases the weight, enriches the blood and improves the patient in every respect. It assists in the development of delicate infants and children, and it is particularly valuable for boys and girls at the period of transition into manhood and womanhood, when they are so likely to outgrow their strength and the system is rendered peculiarly susceptible to the attacks of disease. It strengthens the muscles, tones up the nerves, improves the vitality, strengthens the action of the heart, and builds up the whole system so that the germs of disease can obtain no foothold. It has a wonderful recuperative effect on the Brain—bringing it to its proper form. Phosphorus, the Brain's chief constituent; attacks of depression and morbidness; "brain lag," etc., are dispelled—the cure is basic, constructive and complete. WHAT IT IS NOT.—It is not a "Patent Medicine"—the ingredients are freely made known, only the method of manufacture being secret. REMEMBER.—There is only one Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus, and that one is FERROL. If you feel the need of a Restorative see that you get FERROL and do not get put off with something "just as good"—there is nothing half so good—nothing "just the same." Profect yourself! Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus are not new remedial agents; for ages their merits have been known and recognized, and for many years physicians have judged the hope that some day a satisfactory combination of these remedies would be perfected and the full benefit of their life-giving properties made available. In FERROL, that hope has at last been fully realized, and the practical benefits resulting from its use have far exceeded the most sanguine expectations. These agents are combined in a scientifically prepared Emulsion so palatable that even a nursing infant can and will take it readily, and even greedily; so easily assimilated that the most delicate digestive organs will dispose of it with less difficulty than they would experience in the digestion of the plainest food. WHAT IT IS.—FERROL is, as its name implies, a compound mainly of Oil and Iron; it is, in short, a PERFECT Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil AND IRON, with a medium of Phosphorus added, and is positively the only preparation combining these ingredients. The apparently extravagant claim that it has no equal in its peculiar sphere is based on the following common sense reason: It combines in palatable form Cod Liver Oil, the greatest tissue-builder and flesh-producer known to medical science, with Iron, the one and only agent which will supply impoverished blood with the red corpuscles which it must have in order to insure a healthy condition, and Phosphorus, which has no equal as a nerve tonic.

We often forget about our health until we lose it. Fortify your system by drinking

The Cowan Co., Ltd., Toronto

BIRMINGHAM PIGEONS.

Birmingham, like many other English and Continental cities, has its brood of pigeons, Chamberlain Square, with a row of nests in the Art Gallery portico, has been the haunt of Birmingham's feathered tribe. But the presence of the birds has become so offensive to the Art Gallery authorities that nests and young birds have been destroyed, and a wire-netting screen will prevent the old birds returning. The birds make pathetic attempts now and then to return to their old quarters, but already they are settling down to find a new home. The town hall and the Free Library, on the other side of the open space, will in future be regarded as the home of the pigeons.

CASE OF PILOT CHARGES.
Pacific Steamship Company May Cut
Out Victoria As a Point of Call.

A most important matter came before the council of the board of trade yesterday morning in the shape of a letter from R. P. Rithet & Co., which intimated that if the San Francisco steamers which called here had to pay pilotage on this account, Victoria might be cut out as a calling port.

The letter in full was as follows:

Dear Sir:—We are in receipt of a letter from J. C. Ford, vice-president and general manager of this company, in which he makes the following statements regarding pilotage:
"Upon looking over our records I find that our pilotage charges at Victoria amount to about $300 per month. The charges at Vancouver are about $600 per month. We do not use the government pilots either at Victoria or Vancouver and the amounts paid out by us are a tax upon our vessels without any return whatever."
"We could possibly afford to continue to pay tax at Victoria, for which we get no return, were it not for the fact that the pilots at San Francisco have brought suit against us to compel us to pay pilotage there, by reason of the fact that our vessels touch at Victoria, and therefore come into San Francisco from a foreign port. The compulsory charges are very heavy at San Francisco. We do not use the pilots there and there is no reason why we should pay for their services. The matter is now to court and if it is decided that we have to pay pilotage there, by reason of our vessels touching at Victoria, these charges, together with the charges we are obliged to pay in your harbor, will probably cause us to cut out the Victoria call by our San Francisco steamers."

We should be glad if you would have the above submitted to your honorable board for their information.

—After residing for 21 years in New Westminster, Henry Harvey arrived here yesterday to reside permanently. He has sold out his business in the Royal City. Mr. Harvey arrived in British Columbia 23 years ago, and settled in Victoria. Twelve years later he went to New Westminster and started in business on Front street, where he continued until a few days ago, when he sold out his stock to the Fraser River Salvage Company.

MADE INSPECTION OF LAKE DISTRICT

POSSIBILITIES OF
INCREASING SUPPLY

Mayor Morley, T. W. Paterson, M. P., and City Officials Look Over Tributary Water-sheds.

Yesterday Mayor Morley, Water Commissioner Raymur, City Engineer Topp and T. W. Paterson, M.P.P., made a further inspection of the district tributary to Elk lake. Upon their return the Mayor stated that the inspection was not carried out with the intention of securing facts and figures to boost the district but simply in order to obtain information regarding the possibilities of increasing the present supply, which information will be produced when the water question is again discussed and the various propositions compared.

His Worship stated that the lake had risen considerably during the last few weeks and its level was over three feet above the high water mark. He pointed out that when the present Elk lake supply was obtained, no thought was given to the future and only enough water was provided for to suit the demand at that time. There was, in his opinion, a large area of watershed which could have been utilized then had it been considered necessary. This watershed, he believed, still available, and he believed that Mr. Paterson was right in contending that the present supply could be doubled by developing the tributary country, and he did not consider that such work would entail a heavy expense.

Mr. Paterson, speaking to the Times, said that he was of the same opinion as before regarding the possibility of the district. By the erection of a small dam and the following out-of-an-expensive system of catch-water ditching the supply of water in Elk lake could be doubled. There are several small ponds and streams which could be diverted into the lake by these means and he believed that the result would be a supply sufficient for the needs of sixty to a hundred thousand people. "I have always maintained that the city should have the districts tributary to Elk lake properly surveyed," said Mr. Paterson, "and, if it is found that the supply can be greatly increased by the plans suggested, the work should be carried out. If it is found that a sufficient supply cannot be obtained from the lake, it should be dropped as a source of supply, and another location decided upon. There is one thing which, in my opinion, should be taken into consideration when comparing the relative values of the Highland district and Elk lake and that is the indispensible fact that at the latter place there is a square mile of water nearly forty feet in depth below the level of the city's intake pipe which can never become foul. At the Highland district artificial reservoirs would have to be constructed from which the whole volume of the water would be drawn off. This would mean that the bottom of the reservoir would become foul and would necessitate cleaning, at a large expense, at least once a year. There is an extensive watershed to the west and north of Elk lake from which at present water is running to waste. If it is found, upon thorough investigation, that this water can be turned into Elk lake, thereby doubling the water supply at a comparatively small cost, there should be little argument against the adoption of the scheme outlined."

JEANIE LABELLED.

SHEARWATER APPOINTMENTS.
List of Officers and Details of the Last Gunnery Trials.

Special correspondence from London to the Times says: On re-commissioning, Paymaster G. B. Keenan, from the cruiser Sparthite, Portsmouth, has been appointed to H.M.S. Shearwater. Mr. Keenan has served in the clerical department of the Royal Navy since January, 1894, when he became assistant clerk, and reached his present rank just twelve months ago.
The new officers of the Shearwater are: Commander Adrian G. Allgood, commanding; Lieutenant R. C. Dalish, M. A. Bloomfield, O.S.A.D. T. Hodgson (navigating officer) re-appointed temporarily; Paymaster G. B. Keenan; Surgeon C. R. Rieckard.

The Shearwater made very good practice from her 4-inch guns at her recent gunlayers' target practice, her score being 106.65 points, and her place in the list of ships is twelfth. Out of 49 rounds fired from her six guns, 29 hits were recorded, not all at a bad performance. She easily heads the list of her class.
