THRILLING INCIDENT IN BORDER LIFE.—CHRISTIE MILLER.—The old settlers of Kentucky are familiar with the name of Captain Christopher Miller. He was one of those bold and dauntless spirits to whom we are indebted for the rescue of our State from the dominion of the bold and bloodthirsty savage. History has recorded many of his heroic deeds and melancholy privations; but one of the most thrilling and mysterious incidents in his eventful life never met our eyes until we found it in Findley's Autobiography; and, as many of our readers may never have seen it, we will give a short account of it:
Christopher Miller and his brother Henry were taken prisoners by the Indians when they were quite young, and remained with them until they had learned many of the customs of those wild inhabitants of the forest. They were expert hunters, and had learned to love the savage freedom of their captors. They were adopted into an Indian family and it seemed they were indeed much attached to their mode of living, hunting and fishing being their chief and almost only employment. Finally, Henry began, when about twenty-four, to think of returning to the white settlements; and he mentioned his thought to Christopher, but, he would not think of returning with him; so Henry set off alone, and after much suffering and privation he reached Kentucky, where he lived several years; when, in 1794, the Indians becoming troublesome, an expedition was gotten up under Gen. Wayne to chastise them. Henry joined this expedition and set out with it. On the march, Gen. Wayne, in order to avoid the possibility of an ambush, ordered Capt. Wells to select four rangers to keep in advance and reconnoitre the country. The keen judgment of Capt. Wells did not fail to detect in Henry Miller the very man for such an expedition, and he was accordingly selected. During the march, Henry found little to do, no Indians being found on the route. On reaching Greenville, Gen. Wayne, having no intimation as to the future intentions of the subtle foe, determined to send out Captain Wells and his daring comrades to capture the Indians, in order that through him the plans of the Indians might be discovered. They accordingly set out across the country, crossing St. Mary's and proceeding to the Auglaize, they turned up the river for several miles, when the keen eyes of the rangers discovered a smoke. Hitching their horses, the gallant little band left two of their party to guard them, while the other three, Henry Miller being one of them, crept along in the direction of the smoke, which they found to be on an elevated piece of open ground, surrounded by three Indians engaged in roasting venison over the fire.

They were now far out of gunshot, and our gallant rangers, discovering a fallen tree behind which they thought they could approach in gunshot of the Indians undiscovered, retraced their steps, and, going around, got to the fallen tree (the top of which was covered with leaves,) between them and the enemy.
They then stole along as lightly and noiselessly as panthers, until they reached the point desired. Here their plan was quickly arranged. It was agreed that Miller and one of his comrades should shoot each his man, leaving the third, who was swifter than an Indian on foot, to give chase to and capture the remaining Indian. Miller was to shoot the one on the right, and his comrade the one on the left.
The sharp, piercing crack of two rifles was heard, and the fated red men lay lifeless on the ground.
Before the smoke had cleared away, the reserve one McClelland, was far in the direction of the Indian who was doomed to be captured. The Indian observed him as he came bounding toward him with the swiftness of a roebuck and he set off at the top of his speed. McClelland was rapidly coming up with the retreating Indian, when coming to a bend in the river, the latter saw he must soon be overtaken, and leaped off into the river, a distance of twenty feet, where he sank up to his middle in the mud. McClelland made a leap on to him, and sunk down in like manner, when the Indian drew his knife and McClelland his tomahawk. A parley ensued and the Indian threw down his knife. In the meantime Henry and his companion came up, the two were rescued from the mud, and the prisoner bound securely. He appeared sullen, and refused to answer any question asked him. He was then washed, to rid him of his coat of mud, when it was discovered that they had taken a white man instead of an Indian.
The party returned to their horses, and began at once to retrace their steps toward the camp at Greenville. On the journey the prisoner continued moody and silent, until Henry recollecting that he had a brother with the Indians, and thinking this might possibly be him, he approached and called him by his Indian name, when he answered with seeming surprise, when the two brothers immediately recognized each other; for the prisoner was none other than Chris. Miller. He had been in the middle when the fatal messengers of death had overtaken his associates, and by this trifling circumstance was saved to answer the wise ends of an Allwise Providence. He returned to Greenville with his captors, determined to remain; and afterwards rendered the white settlers the most important aid in their future contest with the wily savage. Most of his descendants still live in our midst, and enjoy the fruits of his well spent and eventful life, and to enjoy the reputation of his name.

BLACK MATT; OR, HOW A SLAVE SOLD HIS OWN MASTER.—Mathew Hobson (generally called "Black Matt" on account of his complexion) was well known among the inhabitants of the seaboard of Virginia, some years ago, as a slave dealer, and an accomplished "breaker-in" of bad flesh. He once purchased a bright molatto by the name of Sam, at a very low price, on account of his numerous bad qualities, such as thieving, lying, and drunkenness. Sam was intelligent, with all his faults—could read and write, and ape the airs of a most polished gentleman. He was so far removed, too, from the pure African; that he could scarcely be distinguished from a white man. On becoming the property of the slave dealer, he received several severe admonitions, in order that he might have a foretaste of the temper of his master. Secretly he vowed vengeance for these striking proofs of Matt's affection, and in a short time an opportunity offered to gratify his vengeance.
Matt made up his gang, and shipped them at Norfolk. The barque arrived safely at New Orleans, and was brought to the wharf. In order that Sam might bring a good price, he was togged off in fine clothes—calf-skin boots, and a silk hat, and kid gloves. Matt thought by this external show to realize at least $600 for the mulatto, as the body servant of some rich planter. Sam was consequently allowed to go on shore in order to show himself off. He proceeded to the Alhambra, and there strutted along among the best of them. Hearing a portly gentleman remark that he wished to purchase a good body servant, he went up to him, and, with an independent swagger, said: "My dear sir, I have got just the boy that will suit you."
"Ha!" rejoined the planter, "I am glad to hear you say so, for I have been looking for one for several days. What do you ask for him?"
"Nine hundred dollars," replied Sam, "and cheap as dirt at that. He has every quality—can shave, dress hair, brush boots, and is besides polished in his manners. I could have got fifteen hundred dollars for him, but for one fault."
"Ha!" ejaculated the planter, "and pray what kind of a fault is that?"
"Why, sir, a ridiculous one. He imagines himself a white man."
"A white man!" exclaimed the planter, laughing, "that is a funny conceit, indeed; but I can soon cure him of that—I've had considerable experience in training and managing gentlemen of color."
"Oh, sir!" continued Sam, "there is but little doubt that he can be cured—though you may find some trouble at first."
"Well, sir, you appear to be a gentleman," said the planter, who was rather too anxious and confiding. I will take him on your recommendation. Where is he now?"
"On board the barque—yonder at the wharf; you can see him at any moment," replied Sam.
"Good!" exclaimed the planter; I am much pleased with your honesty and candor, and in order to save time—here are nine hundred dollars—pleased to give me a bill of sale."
Sam got the clerk to draw up a bill of sale, signed the name of Samuel Hopkins, pocketed the money, and told the planter to ask the captain for Black Matt; he would himself be on board as soon as he closed a bargain with another gentleman who was desirous of purchasing one of his field hands.
The purdy planter made his way to the barque, and demanded of the captain to see the boy Black Matt. The officer pointed to Matthew Hobson, who sat on the quarter deck, smoking his cigar and superintending the debarkation of his slaves.
"Are you Black Matt, my fine fellow?" asked the planter, addressing the slave merchant.
"Folks call me so at hum," was the reply; "but here my name is Matthew Hobson. What do you want?"
"I'll tell you Matt, what I want. I want you. You're a likely looking fellow, and will just suit me."
"What's here, stranger," said Matt, firing up, "maybe you don't know who you are speaking to?"
"Yes I do, though—you're my property; I bought you of your master, Samuel Hopkins, just now, and"

"You bought me!" exclaimed Matt, standing up at full length before the planter. "Hell and the devil, sir—I'm a white man!"

"Come, come, now," calmly said the man, "it won't do—I know you—you can't humbug me with your conceit—I'll teach you!"

Here Matt drew back and aimed a blow at the ruddy nose of the planter, who seized him by the throat, and bellowed for the police. An officer happened to be on the levee—he, at the instance of the planter, seized the refractory slave and bore him to the calaboose, where he remained until evidence could be procured identifying him as a free-born white citizen of the United States.

Sam, in the meantime, got on board a ship that was just weighing anchor for a European port, and never has been heard of since. Thus has the rascal had his revenge—Matt lost his slave, and the "green" fat gentleman his money.

A YOUNG lady reprimanded her shoemaker for not following her directions respecting a pair of shoes she had ordered; and, among others, insisted that they were not fellows. Crispin replied, that he purposely made them so, in order to oblige her, well knowing the modesty of her disposition, and that she was not fond of fellows.

A GENTLEMAN in a steamboat asked the man who came to collect the passage money if there was any danger of being blown up, as the steam made such a horrid noise? "Not the least," said the sharp collector, "unless you refuse to pay your fare."

"How much money have you?" said a rich old curmudgeon to a gay young fellow courting his pretty daughter. "Oh, I have 't much of anything, now, but I have a very rich prospect, indeed." The wedding occurred, and the old chap learned from his fine son-in-law that the rich prospect was the prospect of marrying his daughter.

THE celebrated artist, who crowed so naturally that the sun rose three hours before its time, has recently finished a picture of the moon, that's painted with such wonderful fidelity to nature that it can't be seen in the day time.

THE following occurred in a school near London: Teacher—What part of speech is the word egg? Boy (hesitating)—Noun, sir. Teacher—What is its gender? Boy (perplexed)—Can't tell, sir, Teacher—Is it masculine, feminine or neuter? Boy (looking sharp)—Can't say, sir, till it's hatched.

"I SAY, John, where did you get that rogue's hat?" "Please yer honor," said John, "it's an old one of yours that Missis gave me yesterday, when you were to town."

A YANKEE bragging of having killed a young panther, whose tail was "three feet long," Brown observed that the animal died seasonably, as the tail was long enough not "to be continued."

THERE is a man in New York whose memory is so short that it only reaches to his knees. Per consequence, he has not paid for the last pair of boots.

A MR. LYON declined fighting a duel, and was called a dog for it. "Ah, you may call me a dog, but a live dog is better than a dead Lyon."

"HUSBAND, I don't know where that boy got his bad temper; I am sure not from me." "No, my dear, for I don't find that you have lost any."

If you think it an easy thing to square the circle, just go and settle your wife's bills for hoops.

SOMEBODY says that the best way to keep food upon a weak stomach is to bolt it down.

It may fairly be contended that inveterate laziness is the most effective labor-saving machine ever invented.

SOME author tells us that "much is said about the tongue." True, the thing is in every body's mouth.

IN what ship, and in what capacity do young ladies like to engage? In courtship, as marry-ners.

THE young lady who burst into tears has been put together again, and is now wearing hoops, to prevent the recurrence of the accident.

ROBBERY NEAR IOWA HILL.—As the stage from Iowa Hill was on its way to Sacramento, on Monday morning last, and when it was about five miles from the former place it was stopped about two o'clock by six men and robbed of about $11,000, of which amount $8,300 was for T. S. Fisk & Co.; which amount was paid that firm by W. H. Simmons, Agent of Wells, Fargo & Co., in this city. The treasure chest, which was taken from the coach box, was afterwards found with all the contents except the treasure.—See Union.

RETURNED VOLUNTEERS.—On Wednesday two detachments of the Sacramento volunteers to Washoe returned to the city. Among the first party were D. Morgan, F. Rhoads, I. T. Grant, J. Butler, J. W. Moore, F. Rooney, W. Magee and several others. The company disbanded on Friday last, and reached Placerville on Tuesday. From thence they traveled, some on foot and others on horseback, to Sacramento.

PASSENGERS OVERLAND.—The regular mail stage left San Francisco on Monday last, loaded with passengers, and an extra one had to be dispatched with more passengers. John Figg, E. B. Davis, G. H. Davis, H. C. Rowland, W. R. Hammond and W. S. Cook were through passengers. There were ten passengers for Los Angeles.

EXPECTED.—It is stated that reliable intelligence has been received in San Francisco that this popular actress Charlotte Cushman will start for California during the summer.

OWING TO THE rains a few days ago a large amount of Hay in this vicinity was badly damaged. Some farmers were so unfortunate as to lose nearly their entire crops.

REWARD.—Wells, Fargo & Co. have offered a reward of $2,500 for the recovery of the treasure taken from the stage near Iowa Hill on Monday; and an equal amount for the arrest and conviction of the robbers.

CHILE.—A second line of steamers has been established between Valparaiso and Panama, touching at all the intermediate ports, and henceforward there will be four English steamers every month, instead of two.

"HARRY MEIGGS."—A gentleman recently arrived from Valparaiso, informs the Call that Harry Meiggs is getting on swimmingly in Chile. He has had a number of valuable contracts with the Government and capitalists, and is now supposed to be worth at least $50,000.

SUICIDE.—J. Mc Donald, a discharged soldier, in a fit of delirium tremens, jumped overboard from the Golden Gate, on her late downward passage to Panama, and was drowned.

A NEW STEAMER.—A steamer called the J. T. Wright is expected soon in San Francisco from Washington Territory.

METEOROLOGICALLY.—The weather for the last week has been unusually cold and disagreeable for the time of the year.—There must be going on some inexplicable phenomenon in the celestial spheres to cause such a variation of temperature, dependent, perhaps, upon the intercommingling revolutions of the different grand systems of the Universe. Let the phenomenon be what it may; it is none the less mysterious.

Here is a large field for the Philosophical Astronomer whose analytical investigations will no doubt ere another century be able to explain clearly and fully this, and a hundred other phenomena, equally strange and mysterious.

[For the News.]
A few years since, when I was residing in one of our mountain towns, the following amusing legal incident occurred. In the Village, was a Judge R—, a practitioner of the legal profession, who claimed the honor of being Judge of the Court of first Instance? under the Military Government, preceeding the organization and admission of California as a sovereign State, (reader, excuse my ignorance, but I really don't know whether there ever existed such a Court or not.) Judge R— had been employed as counsel in a case before one of the Justice's of the Peace in the village. As the sequel implies the principal of the party to whom he was opposed, had, before the case came before the Court, taken the Judge aside, and threw out some threatening insinuations, towards him, provided, he, (the Judge) bore down to heavy on said party's character. The Judge in his address to the jury, after alluding to the above statement of facts, threw himself back on his dignity, and with an air of outraged, yet unimpeachable virtue exclaimed! Gentlemen of the Jury! When I was Judge of the Court of first Instance, of the Territory of California, I was offered a bribe of fifteen thousand dollars, and I assure you, I was not half so highly insulted, as when that man, dared thus, to try to intimidate me. The roars of laughter that convulsed Court, Jury and spectators, may be imagined, but cannot be described.
D. W. L.

DEPARTURES FOR CENTRAL AMERICA.—The brig Persevere left San Francisco on Wednesday last, for Tigre Island and La Union, in the Bay of Fonseca, having on board about twenty-five passengers, some bound to San Salvador and Honduras, and others for Nicaragua. Most of these are Americans seeking homes there. Among them are a number of the celebrated "Harmonial Brotherhood"—(two or three ladies,) who go to join the delectable "Free Lovers" of Messrs. Llewellyn and Tyler. Mr. George H. Boley, formerly a merchant of San Jaun del Sud, Nicaragua, is another of the passengers. He is the proprietor of a number of valuable gold mines in Matagalpa, Nicaragua, and having visited California for the purpose of examining the method of working our mines, returns to Central America to renew the developing of his gold placers. We have before us a number of specimens of gold quartz from the Leonessa and Concordia mines, showing evidence of being very rich. The curious can examine them, if they wish, at our office. Mr. Richard Trapet, a native of Switzerland also sails in the Persevere, to land at Amapolia, Tigre Island, and will thence proceed to Comayagua, the Capital of Honduras, and to the City of Tegucigalpa. He intends becoming a citizen of Honduras, with the view of working silver mines there, and goes well fortified with letters of introduction to influential persons in that republic. Our readers may expect a series of interesting letters from Mr. Boley in relation to Nicaragua, and as to the re-opening of the Transit Route. We have some facts respecting this subject, which we are not at present at liberty to publish. Considerable freight goes on the Persevere. A regular established line of packets commences with the departure of this vessel between Central America and California, and persons desirous of visiting the former country will hereafter be able to do so at stated periods.—Alta.

COMFORTABLE VERY.—The steamer John L. Stephens brought some 1300 or 1400 passengers—although only 1004 names appear on the books. There were three or four hundred children on board. From 4 o'clock every morning, when the "standee bunks" were taken down so as to "wash decks" the row and squalling commenced and continued until night! The gentlemen passengers were everlastingly stopped by distressed looking women with "Please hold my baby a moment." Pleasant wasn't it? and the way the passengers were stowed—like pickled herrings in a cask—must have been caution! so says the Call.

NO PAPER AT VIRGINIA CITY.—It is understood that no newspaper will be published at Virginia City for the present. Liberal subscriptions were made to start one under Soule and Lovejoy, but the money was not forthcoming.

BIRTHS.
In Washington, Yolo County, May 25th, the wife of Leonard Spurr, of a son.

DEATHS.
In the vicinity of Knight's Landing, May 29, William Elsey, aged 30 years.

THE INDIAN DIFFICULTY IN WESTERN UTAH.—A letter upon the origin and nature of the Indian difficulties in Western Utah, was received yesterday by a gentleman of Sacramento, to whose courtesy we are indebted for a copy says the Union. It was written by a Californian of high standing, who has been for some months past in Carson Valley, to his friend, and contains the matured views of the writer upon the origin, preparations for, and prospects of the continuance of war just commenced in Utah. The letter was a private one, but it contains information and suggestions about Indian affairs in that region of public interest, which the friend to whom it was addressed thought would justify its publication. Dated Virginia City, May 26; Justice to the dead as well as the reputation of the living, requires that a correct statement should be given of the origin and nature of the difficulties that we are having with Indian tribes of this Territory. It is a well known fact that for many months past that the Indians have been procuring powder, lead and guns wherever they could be procured, and for this purpose mixed freely with the whites, trading them dressed skins and all kinds of game, and doing menial labor, and that during all this time they were stealing and running off cattle, killing them and drying the meat, also catching and drying large quantities of fish, and refusing to sell any to the whites. It is also well known that the Pah-Utes and the Shoshones, between whom war has existed for years past, have some time been cultivating friendly relations, and mingled freely together. Six weeks or more since, the Indians suddenly and simultaneously absented themselves from the towns and settlements of the whites. This circumstance was often a subject of remark in our cabin, and was regarded by us all as an omen of evil, and we were not surprised when we heard of the massacre of the Williams brothers. That a general war had been determined on by the Indians, I think is clearly established by the fact that previous to this massacre so large a number of Indians, composed of several and hitherto hostile tribes, had concentrated at Pyramid Lake. I see a writer from Gold Hill, near this place (and to which the editor of the UNION appears to give credence), to a friend in California, states that some time previous to the murder of the Williams, that they had tied an Indian and violated his squaw, and that a few days after the Indians came to the house in force, told a woman and some one or two unoffending parties that happened to be there at the time to leave, which they did, and that they then took the men who had been guilty of the wrong, and tied them and burnt them alive in the house. There was a story current here for a few days that the Williams had violated an Indian woman, and that probably their murder was an act of local or private vengeance on the part of the Indians, but on inquiry no evidence of its truth could be found. There were but four men living at the house—no woman had been living there—the bodies of three of them were found in the ashes of the consumed building; the other was missing, nor has he been heard from. If the outrage was committed, it could only have been witnessed by these four men. It is not probable, if the story is true, that they ever published their own degradation while living, and there is no witness to publish it now they are dead. That they were tied and burnt alive in the house is refuted by the fact that the bloody axes with which the murder was committed were found by those who buried their remains. I have not the least doubt that this massacre was the throwing down of the gauntlet on the part of the Indians for a general war. I am, in addition to the foregoing related circumstances, warranted in this conclusion by the fact that it is now ascertained that a prospecting party, consisting of seven men, of whom a Mr. Gibson of my acquaintance was one, was murdered by the Indians at Red Bluffs, on the Truckee river, about fifteen miles from Pyramid Lake, at the same time. A Mr. Irish, with two gentlemen from San Francisco, started about the time that the above party did to prospect in the same direction; the provisions they took with them could not have sustained them until now. They have not been heard from, and the worst fears are entertained for their fate. It is said that when our party came in sight of the Indians they displayed a white flag. This story depends for its truth on the statement of McIntyre. Whether a white flag or battle ax, all concern that it was continued to be waived to the close of the fight; and if a white flag, it is perhaps the only well authenticated instance, either in civilized or savage warfare, where a party displayed one in the moment of victory.
