THE MOST BEAUTIFUL TULIPS

I offer for 15 cents, a collection of the brightest and best single, early-flowering Tulips—10 splendid named sorts, representing all colors, as follows:

- Artus*, bright crimson-scarlet.
- Adeline*, dark rose, new and fine.
- Bizard Pronkert*, scarlet, striped yellow.
- Grand Duc de Russia*, rosy purple, flaked white.
- Grand Duc de Orange*, yellow, flamed scarlet.
- Joost van Vondel*, cherry red, feathered white.
- Eosamundi Huyekman*, carmine pink, flaked white.
- Queen Victoria*, fine white, faintly tinted rose.
- Vander Veer*, rich claret purple.
- Yellow Prince*, bright yellow, large and fine.

These are all fine blooming-sized bulbs, imported from Holland. They are of the best varieties known, unsurpassed either for house or garden culture. The entire collection, 10 bulbs, mailed for only 15 cents.

Get up a club.—For each additional collection ordered I will send a bulb selected from the Double and Parrot collection named below. Or, for $1.00 I will send seven collections of the above single early Tulips, enough for a gorgeous bed, and add an entire collection of the Double and Parrot Tulips (7 bulbs) offered.

DOUBLE AND PARROT TULIPS.

- Alba Marina*, new, pure white, very large and double; a splendid sort.
- Lady Grandison*, vermilion scarlet, extra double.
- Count Leicester*, orange and yellow; double.

- Purple*, bordered white, a showy double Tulip.
- Admiral de Constantinople*, Parrot, dark red.
- Lutea Major*, Parrot, bright yellow.
- Perfecta*, Parrot, red and yellow striped.

The above collection of brilliant Double and Parrot Tulips, 7 bulbs, mailed for 15 cents, or seven collections, enough for a fine bed, for $1.00. All are hardy, and very showy in garden groups. They are not suitable for house culture. They will be ready to mail the latter part of September. Order early, and the bulbs will be sent you as soon as ready.

The Orchid-flowering Spanish Iris.

A splendid collection of ten named sorts, embracing all colors, together with trial of PARK'S FLORAL MAGAZINE, all for TEN CENTS.

Few persons have any idea of the beauty of a clump or bed of the fine varieties of Spanish Iris. The plants are hardy, bloom freely, and show large, rich-colored, very attractive flowers. I am anxious to have these exquisite named Iris given a trial, and also to introduce the Magazine into many new homes, so make the following offer: For only 10 cents I will send the 10 fine named Spanish Iris, including trial of Park's Floral Magazine. If already a subscriber, send the Magazine as a present to some flower-loving friend, or add some bulb to your order instead. Here is the list:

- Light Blue, Philomela, exquisite flowers.
- Dark Blue, Alexander von Humboldt.
- Light Yellow, Chrysolora, large, early.
- Dark Yellow, William III, fine variety.
- Light Bronze, Le Prophete, yellowish.
- Dark Bronze, Reconnaissance, fine.
- Pure White, Blanche, superb, splendid.
- Cream White, La Tendresse, pretty.
- Sulphur White, Belle Chamoise, fine.
- Variegated, Formosa, olive and lilac.

All of these splendid named Orchid-flowering Iris, 10 bulbs, with trial Magazine, 10 cents. Or, if you get up a club of ten names ($1.00), I will send a collection free for your trouble. Only a few thousand collections on hand. Order now. This advertisement will not appear often.

FINE NARCISSEUS FOR POTTING.

For 35 Cents I will mail one bulb of each of the following splendid named Narcissus:

CORRESPONDENCE.

Mr. Park:—I want to tell the sisters about a Carnation which a friend gave me in the spring. It was one she had had for several years, and it had always bloomed very well until the past year when it ceased to bloom. She thought it was too old and took several slips from it which grew finely, and blossomed in a short time. Then she gave the old plant to me. I took it from the pot and set it in the ground, where it received very little attention, until one day I noticed some buds on it, and counted thirty five at that time. It continued to bloom all summer and there have been something over a hundred blossoms, in all, upon it. My husband says it is the handsomest flower I have ever had, and indeed it was "a thing of beauty." My friend was greatly surprised when she saw it and wanted to know what I had done to it. I told her it must have been either resting, or root-bound. "I am greatly interested in the Magazine, and enjoy reading it very much. It affords me much profit as well as pleasure.

Mrs. L. B. Zastre.

Norfolk Co., Mass., Sept. 12, 1904.

Mr. Park:—When I first began cultivating flowers I am sure I would have failed sadly if it had not been for your Magazine. For awhile I was without flowers and I lost track of your Magazine, but when I took them up again, last year, I at once began searching for your address, and I meanwhile studied some old numbers I had begged of a friend. No one can successfully raise flowers without a good "Floral Guide," and yours is the best I have found, including higher priced Magazines. I have a large collection of house plants besides a flower garden that was the admiration of the whole neighborhood.

One Million Dollars

Have Been Spent to Give Liquozone Free to the Sick.

When we purchased the rights to Liquozone, we decided to buy the first bottle and give it free to each sick one we learned of. We published the offer in nearly every newspaper in America, and 1,800,000 people have accepted it. In one year it has cost us over one million dollars to announce and fulfill the offer.

Don't you realize that a product must have wonderful merit to make such an offer possible? We have never asked a soul to buy Liquozone. We have published no testimonials, no physician's endorsement. We have simply asked the sick to try it—try it at our expense. And that is all we ask you, if you need it.

Kills Inside Germs.

Liquozone is not made by compounding drugs, nor is there alcohol in it. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. This process has for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research.

The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease. It is this fact that gives Liquozone its worth to humanity. And that worth is so great that, after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, we paid $100,000 for the American rights.

Germ Diseases

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

All diseases that begin with fever—all inflammation—all catarrh—all contagious diseases—all the results of impure or poisonous blood.

In nervous debility Liquozone acts as a vitalizer, accomplishing what no drugs can do.

50c. Bottle Free.

If you need Liquozone, and have never tried it, please send us this coupon. We will then mail you an order on your local druggist for a full size bottle, and we will pay your druggist ourselves for it. This is our free gift, made to convince you; to show you what Liquozone is, and what it can do. In justice to yourself, please accept it to-day, for it places you under no obligations whatever.

Liquozone costs 50c. and $1.

A FINE BED OF TULIPS.

THERE is no more attractive spring-blooming flower for groups or beds than the Tulip, and as the bulbs are inexpensive there is no excuse for a home with and in the fourth row twelve bulbs, all of Cottage Maid, a fine rosy Tulip. Now draw cross lines to divide the bed into four parts, just as you would cut a pie, and in each of these quarters place one kind of Tulips, setting them six inches apart in every other row—that is, in the sixth, eighth and tenth rows. For the late ones begin anew, setting a bulb of Bouton d'Or beside the other central bulb; then set three bulbs of the same in the first row and nine in third row. In fifth row set 15 and in the seventh 21 bulbs, all Golden Crown, and 27 of Gesneriana in ninth row. All being set, replace the four inches of soil, covering the bulbs, and the work is done.

Planted as directed it will require 91 bulbs of early, and 76 bulbs of Late Tulips for a circular bed six feet in diameter. When in a bit of ground being without a Tulip display. Planting may be done during the present month, and to have a prolonged show of bloom it is a good plan to group bulbs that bloom at different seasons together. This may be done as follows:

To plant the bed of early and late Tulips shown in the engraving, the soil being deep, rich, porous, fibrous and well drained, throw off the surface to the depth of four inches, level, and with a rope and stake draw ten circular rows three inches apart. In the centre set one bulb, in the second row six bulbs, bloom the early Tulips will appear as represented in the engraving, but the late Tulips will make a show altogether different, the colors appearing in rings. So gradual is the change from early to late flowers that few persons are aware that two classes of Tulips occupy the bed, until the general contrast comes to their attention. Tulips for such a bed, 167 bulbs, named sorts, may be purchased for $3.50.

Agapanthus umbellatus.—This so-called "African Lily" has large fleshy roots, thick Amaryllis-like leaves and handsome blue tubular flowers in umbels at the summit of strong stems. It requires plenty of pot room, plenty of water while growing, and a partial shade during summer. Placed at the north side of the house, the pot standing in a saucer kept filled with water, the plants mostly bloom freely during the summer. The plant is almost hardy. It must be shifted regularly or the roots will burst the pot. When the clumps get large they should be grown in tubs. A rich, rather tenacious, but well-drained soil suits them. Set the plant in a frost-proof place and water sparingly during winter.

The First White Fuchsia.—Some plants of the first white Fuchsia, Mme. Cornellison, were exhibited at a meeting of the Royal Horticultural Society the past summer, the flowers small, with red tube and sepals, and a pure white corolla. Young plants are said to bloom freely, and to make a fine show in beds, their dwarf, bushy habit filling the space and making the bed attractive.

Calamus for Ants.—One who has tried it, reports that Calamus roots dried and ground to powder is an effectual remedy for ants, promptly dispersing them and preventing their visits. The powder is scattered over the infested ground. This might prove effectual in preventing the ravages of other pests that trouble our plants and trees.

OSTRICH FERN.

ONE of the most showy and beautiful of our numerous native Ferns is Struthiopteris Germanica, commonly known as Ostrich Fern. The sterile fronds are bipinnatifid, from three to six feet high, and grow in dense clusters. The fertile fronds appear late in the season, are less than two feet high, brown and much contracted, the pinnæ revolute, giving the frond a neck-lace form. It is found mostly in damp ravines, or along mountain streams, and its graceful habit, rich delicacy and beauty always command admiration and praise.

Occasionally the finer specimens of this grand Fern are removed to a shady bed by the home of a farmer or villager, and where the conditions are favorable the array of exquisite foliage is not surpassed by that of any cultivated exotic. Such a bed is shown on the first title page of this number of the Magazine. This bed was planted and is cared for by Mrs. M. H. Gibbon, of Chenango County, New York, and to her we are indebted for the photograph from which the engraving was made. Her note reads:

"Mr Editor.—This photograph represents a hedge of the Ostrich Fern, a magnificent hardy species needing no protection, and reaching the height of six feet. It thrives in any soil, but grows taller in shade than in full sun. It is very ornamental planted in hedge form or in clumps, and even a single specimen is beautiful, being more graceful and attractive than a Palm."

This Fern is not as common as many other species, but where it can be found the lover of native plants should not fail to have a bed of it. Once established it will make a fine display for years without attention, and that in a dense, shady place where few other plants would live. It is easily transplanted in early spring.

Viola Tricolor.—A sister asks for the botanical name of a little flower like a violet, called "Little Step mother," color, purple with a yellow eye. She doubtless refers to the old form of Pansy, clumps of which are found in many old-fashioned gardens. Its name is Viola tricolor, and it represents the Pansy as it was before the florists improved it. In America it is commonly known as "Johnny-jump-up, but in Europe it is given many names, as the following list taken from Nicholson's Dictionary will show:

"Call-me-to-you, Fancy, Flamy, Garden Gate, Herb Trinity, Jump-up-and-kiss-me, Kiss-me, Kiss-me-at-the-garden-gate, Live-in-idleness, Love-in-idleness, Pink-of-my-John, Three-faces-under-a-hood, Tickle-my-fancy, etc."

Bush Sweet Pea.—A writer in the English garden says: "The Bush (Cupid) Sweet Pea is an American selection, and scarcely worth growing."

CURRANT TOMATO.

SOLANUM racemigerum is often called Currant Tomato, because of its Currant like racemes of scarlet fruit, which resembles diminutive Tomatoes. When started early in spring, and the plants well cared for the vines become a mass of red in the autumn. They thrive either in pots or the open ground, and should have support to appear to good advantage. A correspondent reports her experience with this Solanum as follows:

"MR. EDITOR:—The Currant Tomato was a success in the garden, but a greater success in pots. I trained the vines upon a trellis, and every cluster contained twenty or more of the Currant-like fruits. A specimen plant in a pot was exhibited at our town Fair, and was an interesting novelty."—Mrs. L., New York.

The plants of this Solanum are as easily grown as those of the garden Tomato. The foliage is delicate and pretty, is well retained and contrasts finely with the scarlet fruit with which the vines are loaded in autumn. Properly used they are very satisfactory ornamental trellis plants.

Amaryllis.—When an Amaryllis increases till it becomes a clump it is well to take it out of the pot, divide the bulbs and pot separately. If preferred only the larger or blooming size bulbs need be potted, while the smaller ones are bedded in rich, well-prepared soil in the garden. Of course the bedded bulbs must be taken up and kept in a frost-proof place during winter. They are not difficult to keep. When treated as a bedding plant the bulbs bloom in summer, but when grown in pots the bulbs will bloom in late winter or early spring. Always repot just after the plants have bloomed.

Mimulus Fire King.—This is a brilliant blood-crimson variety of the large-flowering Mimulus, most attractive in color, and effective both in the open ground and in pots. The finest blooms come on plants grown in pots and placed in the open air, where they can be shaded from the sun for four or five hours during the hottest part of the day. Few plants are so floriferous as the Mimulus, and especially so if the seed pods have been kept picked off and the plants have every attention in the matter of watering.—R. D. in English Garden.

Seedling Freesias.—Freesias started from seeds early in the year will bloom the following autumn and winter. If not crowded they will thrive until the blooming season is past, when they may be dried off and kept dormant till wanted for use again.

ABOUT ROSES.

THE English Dictionary of Gardening contains the following notes about the Rose, which may be of interest to many readers:

"The Rose has been immortalized from the most ancient times by authors and poets of all countries. As the emblem of youth it was dedicated to Aurora; of Love and Beauty to Venus; of Danger and Fugacity to Cupid. It was given by the latter, according to classical writers, as a bribe to Harpocrates, the God of Silence; hence, undoubtedly, the origin of the common expression, "under the rose." The Rose is the national emblem of England. Apart from the value of the genus as an unrivalled collection of the most beautiful floral objects, it forms an important factor in commerce. The raising of new varieties, and the manufacture of rose water and attar, gives employment to thousands of persons. It is also a prominent contributor to our Materia Medica, according to Dr. Lindley, "one of the most earnest defenders of its powers has not hesitated to assume the world that the Pharmacopœia should be formed of Roses alone." The Rose is justly designated the Queen of Flowers. Its easy mode of propagation, its adaptability to meet the requirements of most cases where flowers are needed, and its general floriferous habit, under various circumstances are all well-known characteristics. For covering arbors, arches and walls the climbing varieties are admirably adapted; while there are hosts of others suitable for beds by themselves, mixed borders, culture in pots, and for any other purposes where their flowers can be admired. In some places a Rose garden is established, and planted with the various sections of the genus; the original species, and those of more recent introduction, are available for affording much interest and beauty in wild gardens, and often for climbing up tall shrubs and trees; several of the dwarf-growing ones are useful for rockeries. Many of the species are very beautiful because of the numerous bright-colored fruits, called "hips," which succeed the flowers. Even the common Dog Rose (R. canina) is very ornamental in this respect; and the beautiful R. rugosa, where it succeeds, is covered with large fruits towards autumn, while it also continues more or less plentifully to keep flowering. The common Sweet briar Rose and many others, are familiar examples, because of their highly-colored hips."

The genus Rose probably contains only from thirty to forty distinct species, though many more are named and described and the varieties are innumerable. Roses are found widely dispersed over the Northern Hemisphere. Most of the Roses are hardy, of easy culture, and capable of being cultivated in our gardens. They are deserving of their great popularity. The best time to get and bed the plants out is in the spring.

Ivy on Trees.—Many people think Ivy is injurious to the trees it grows upon, and cut it off ruthlessly. I am convinced from long experience, however, that so far from injuring trees, it does them good. I have hundreds of Ivy-covered trees here, all remarkably healthy, and I have never lost one in the worst gales when many other trees, without Ivy, have been laid low. I believe that their wiry and flexible roots act as stays to the trees they are grown on. Nothing adds so much to the beauty of our winter woodland scenery as the glossy green of the ivy-covered trees, and it is very regrettable that so much unjust prejudice exists on the subject.—Mr. B. Veron, in Gardener's Magazine.

UNARMED CACTUSES.

THE Cactuses as a class are objected to by many persons who cultivate house plants because of the disagreeable spines with which many of them are clothed. Some of the most easily grown and beautiful kinds are discarded because of this armour. It should be borne in mind, however, that not all Cactuses are thus objectionable. The species of Epiphyllum and Phyllocactus have smooth, leafy stems, branch freely, and bear large, showy flowers of various colors every season. A plant of Phyllocactus is shown in the engraving, which was made from a photograph sent by Mrs. H. H. Calkins, of Greene Co., Indiana. A well-grown plant of Phyllocactus in a jardiniere is almost as handsome as a Boston Fern, while its attractiveness during its blooming season is not equalled by a simple foliage plant.

—o—
Tuberous Begonias.

—A sister complains that only one of several Tuberous Begonias potted in the spring did well. The others dropped their leaves and seemed sickly. They were in six-inch pots, and the soil was well mixed with rotted cow manure and sand. It is possible the drainage was insufficient, and water too liberally applied. Six-inch pots are mostly too large for Tuberous Begonias, unless the plants are large and well rooted. It would be better to start the tubers in three-inch or four-inch pots and shift them into larger pots as the plants develop.

In keeping the tubers over winter withhold water as soon as the foliage begins to turn yellow, and when the soil is dry set the pots undisturbed in a retired place where the temperature will be about 50 degrees—rarely colder, rarely warmer. Kept in this way they will mostly endure the winter in safety.

Chilled Plants.—It is always well to avoid the chilling of house plants. If subjected to too much cold the growth is checked, and the plants often get such a back-set that they do not recover. In many cases they linger for several months, and then die or are discarded.

DOUBLE DAISY.

MISS Willis, of Phillips County, Kansas, has been successful with the Double Daisy, and reports her experience as follows:

"MR. EDITOR:—Last March I received and planted a packet of seeds of the Double English Daisy. The pot was placed in my cottage window, and soon 33 tiny seedlings appeared. How they grew in the full sunlight. They had to be transplanted very soon, and in June they were full-grown, blooming plants. One can have a bed of these in a cool, damp location for years after they are once started, as they renew themselves from seeds. They are very beautiful in their dainty colorings."

The new large-flowered varieties of Double Daisy are a great improvement over the common sorts, and should always be preferred. The novelty introduced under the name of "Delicata" is lovely, being white with a distinct rose centre. It deserves to become popular.

—o—
Ferns in the house.—A number of handsome Ferns are of easy culture in the house. Various species of Nephrolepis, Pteris and Asplenium can be recommended, and in a shaded window where the temperature is cool the plants develop into beautiful specimens. Lygodium scandens is a climbing Fern, excellent as a trellis plant, and will endure much neglect and ill treatment. When well cared for it is one of the most satisfactory of foliage vines. All Ferns like well-drained, porous soil. Leaf mold, sand and a little rich garden loam make a compost that suits them. Keep the atmosphere cool and moist, water regularly, and avoid a sunny exposure. With this simple treatment many cultivators have met with success, and found much pleasure in the care of this class of choice plants. The new Pierson Fern is a greatly improved variety of Nephrolepis exaltata, commonly called Boston Fern. It is as easily cared for as the Boston Fern, while its plumy fronds give the plant a far richer and handsomer effect. It should certainly be in every collection.

Mesembryanthemum.—Mesembryanthemum Crystallinum, better known as Ice Plant, is sometimes grown in the kitchen garden for use in garnishing fruit.

USEFUL PLANTS.

PANSIES.

MY MOTHER always had a bed of Pansies in the yard, so when I moved to a home of my own, of course, I thought I could not get along without Pansies. I knew she always planted hers in boxes in the house and put them out when danger of frost was over, so I did the same, and had splendid luck with them. I was much pleased, because they were the only seeds I planted that I had much luck with. But I suppose I treated them about right, and then Park's seeds will grow if one gives them any show at all. When the plants had three leaves the box was so crowded I transplanted them into a larger box, and then they were crowded in that before it was warm enough to put them out doors. My husband declared they would die, being moved so much, but they didn't, and we have learned that Pansies do not mind being transplanted if it is carefully done. One wants to take a pen knife and lift the baby plants with plenty of dirt, have a hole ready in the bed they are to grow, put a little water in, then set the baby plant in carefully, not pushing it in with the roots doubled up and maybe the end sticking out, but as near like they were in the earth from which you took them, as possible. Put the fine earth around them and make it firm, and if in a rather shaded place, your Pansies can hardly help growing. Of course, one wants to loosen the earth after a rain, and keep out weeds, but if one is too busy to work with them much they will grow any way. My main trouble was that the dog always wanted to sleep in the bed. I got after him a few times, but still he would lie with his head on my Pansies. My husband said he only wanted a nice pillow. One year it rained so much, and the bed was so rich the white worms nearly killed my Pansies before I discovered them; but I took lime and scattered it over the earth, being careful not to get it on the plants, and was not bothered any more. My husband never paid any attention to flowers until I got to raising them, but he thinks Pansies are all right.

Variegated Hop Vine.—Any one wanting a satisfactory vine for a porch should try the Variegated Hop. I purchased a packet of seeds this spring and now they are beautiful. The leaves are more delicate than the old variety and are beautiful in bouquets. I have a summer house covered with the Commercial Hop, and it is so nice and cool. I made a cot on one side and I take my noon-day nap there every day, and there is not a fly to molest me. On the north side I planted Perennial Peas, red and white, and they have all run together.

ONE thing that makes gardening so delightful is the inexhaustible extent and variety of its possibilities. Fashions may have to repeat themselves every decade or so in despair of ever exhibiting any originality, but the fashion in flowers was perfect from the beginning, and yet ever new. No one person can ever possess all flowers, so there are constant surprises in floriculture, all charming ones, and no possibility of ever palling upon the taste of the lover of flowers. Old friends sometimes surprise us under new conditions. We knew that Acacia lophantha was graceful and altogether beautiful from our experience with it as a parlor adornment, but we did not realize its possibilities until we saw eight splendid specimens, each taller than a man, and developed in extraordinary luxuriance. The seeds were planted in the hot bed in March, and were thence transplanted into a cold-frame. When the weather was warm they were set in a corner almost wholly sheltered from the wind, which is ruinous to the delicate foliage. The soil was highly enriched, and fertility and moisture together were supplied by constant libation of suds from the kitchen. The rapidity of growth was wonderful. These Acacias were sheltered from the mid-day sun by the shadow of a tree which rested upon them through the heat of the day.

Suffolk Co., Mass., Mar. 12, 1904.

[NOTE.—For a sheltered nook about the grounds there are few plants more beautiful or desirable than the Acacia named. It makes a vigorous growth when planted out, and its big, frond-like leaves are as delicate in appearance as those of the Maiden-hair Fern. Its beauty as an out-door plant should be better known.—Ed.]

Hardy Roses.—The past winter was pretty severe on choice Rose bushes, and many persons have lost their finest varieties. Along our drive was a Rose border, and all of our choicest Roses were frozen back, but late in the spring they started up, although not in time to have many blossoms. Those that we pruned back quite severely are doing fine, and are now finer shaped plants than they were a year ago. Those that we did not trim back are ill-shaped indeed. I think it would be a good plan to bank, or cover the roots for winter the same as we do Straw-berries, and Sage. Then we would have the root forces to start up, if the tops were winter killed.

Acacia Lophantha.—I have found Acacia Lophantha a splendid subject for the center of a bed. In a broad bed of deep, sandy loam, with leaf mould or old manure, they grow freely.

HOUSE CULTURE OF BULBS.

MANY flower lovers neglect a very essential feature in floriculture, that of cultivating winter blooming bulbs. If more realized the pleasure to be derived from this source there would be many more flower-wreathed windows during the bleak winter and early spring months. Even the most common varieties of hardy bulbs yield such pleasing results, that it is a mystery that everyone does not try to have a supply of these in readiness to bring to the light about Christmas time when in a few short weeks there will be a wreath of greenery, followed by many blossoms, that cheer the heart as no summer flowers can do.

For those who do not have the bulbs in their own garden to select from, they can be reasonably purchased from reliable dealers. Money cannot be expended in any way that will yield more pleasure. After the bulbs are once purchased they can be enjoyed the first season in house culture, and then be placed in the open ground, where they will increase so rapidly with a little care, that in a few years one can have a beautiful garden, as well as house display. There is really but very little choice to be made in the kinds of bulbs used in house culture. One and all, alike, are equally charming when well grown. But there is a very essential point to be remembered, to produce large, perfectly formed flowers. The temperature must be kept very low, especially so with the Narcissus. These do better in a room kept just a few degrees above the freezing point, the warmth of a sun exposed position being all of the heat required. In too warm a place the foliage will be very luxuriant, but the flowers will be small and imperfect.

[NOTE.—When bulbs are planted out late it is well to tread the soil well after planting, and then apply a liberal coat of stable litter. This will keep the ground from freezing severely till the bulbs are rooted, and also prevent early development in the spring, thus promoting the full expansion and beauty of the flowers.—Ed.]

Narcissus Van Sion.—Some Van Sion bulbs, taken up at the proper season, to be reset in the fall were over-looked until after the ground was frozen. It seemed a pity to let them die for want of a little soil. So they were, rather carelessly, tucked into pots, basins, and boxes, and placed in the cellar. About Christmas time, some of the dishes were brought up, watered, and given a southern window. By the first of February there was a mass of green foliage, and waving buds which soon expanded into bright blooms. By bringing the dishes to the light at intervals a succession of bloom was kept up.

DECEMBER PLANTED BULBS.

SEVERAL years ago I received a package of bulbs, Hyacinths, Tulips, Narcissus, a few Lilies, and several other kinds, about the middle of December. At first I did not consider them worth very much, as it was so late. However, not having a very abundant supply of bulbs that winter I concluded to try them in the house. They were carefully potted in good, sandy potting soil, the earth pressed down firm around them, given a good watering, and placed in rather a cool cellar for about six weeks, when they were brought into the cellar next to the furnace room, where it was somewhat warmer, and where they received very little light from a window. After a month or so there they were brought into the plant room about the first of March, and gradually accustomed to full light and heat. We never had finer bulbs than those were. Everything did well except the Lilies, and some Crocuses.

While it is best to order early in the season, if one has been unable to do so, I would not hesitate about ordering as late as December. With good bulbs to start on, and good care, one can hardly help but be pleased with the results.

Forcing Hyacinths.—Last Christmas morning brought me a package of fine Hyacinth bulbs, and none of my gifts gave more pleasure. I confess it was with some doubts of results that I carefully potted them, for my winter blooming bulbs had always been in soil by Nov. 1st, but I thought, what if they are late, a Hyacinth is always a delight. Instead of setting the pots away in the cold, dark cellar, however, I put them on the top shelf of the dining-room cupboard, where it was dark and neither hot, nor cold. They grew as Hyacinths never had grown for me before, and when the leaves were about four inches high, I brought them gradually to the light. In just two months the first lovely pink bloom had opened. The dark blue one was the largest cluster I had raised, and it lasted unusually well, while three bulbs gave us two big stalks of bloom.

Hyacinths in Beds.—Few persons realize how attractive and beautiful the Dutch Hyacinths appear when grouped together in a bed. The bulb may be arranged systematically according to the color of the flowers, or they may be promiscuously planted in mixture, but the effect is always the same—always pleasing.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

SOME GOOD GERANIUMS.

MY STAND-BY for winter blossoms, is the good old Geranium. Nothing excels it for winter blooming if given sunshine, a rather small receptacle, and a thorough disbudbing in summer. I am a firm believer in old, and consequently many branched plants. I started a cutting of Geranium last spring from necessity, as my plants froze. I picked out the first two bunches of buds, but allowed the third to open, which developed one hundred and four large and perfect florets, pink with red dots. This variety a friend calls "Bird's Egg." Two California varieties are very beautiful. Mars, a dwarf variety, has large clusters of pink blossoms with white edge. The rich green of the leaf with dark brown zone makes a charming combination of color, and beauty. A rival of the good old tricolor, Mrs. Pollock, which I am never without. Beauty, has a creamy edge to its deep green leaf, and a dark brown zone with the loveliest pink markings. Another good variety is Chameleon, which appears to be an enlarged New Life. The same bunch will have red blossoms with white stripes, and salmon with white edge, but I have never seen a plain red one, such as my old New Life used to bear occasionally. Keiber is a fine double Geranium with a purplish cast, and lighter eye. Ohio has a decided scarlet mark in the centre of its carmine blossom. All of these, as well as Madame Bryant and others, are remarkably free winter-bloomers.

Nassau Co., L. I., N. Y., Nov. 5, 1903.

[NOTE.—It may be well to again remind the readers that the New Dryden Geranium is one of special value for winter-blooming as well as for bedding in summer. It is of rather dwarf, compact growth, because its entire energy seems to be expended in developing buds and flowers. So great is the blooming tendency that you can hardly keep it from blooming either in summer or winter. The flowers come in large clusters, are individually of good size, and are a rich scarlet with white centre. It is one of the Geraniums that should be in the possession of every one who cultivates only a few plants. Once known it becomes an "indispensible."—ED.]

Impatiens Sultani.—Last spring my Sultani was so infested with mealy that many of the leaves droppod, and the plant became unsightly. As soon as the weather was warm enough I set it out, pinched it back, and how it has grown. It has been one mass of flowers all summer long; every caller gets a bouquet, or a slip of it. The more I pick the more shoots it sends out. I pick great bunches for my dining room. In a week's time each slip is a fine rooted plant. I have slips started every where in the house, and out of doors. The trouble with it in spring was, I kept it too warm. It is never out of bloom, unless something happens to it.

GIVE your plants all the fresh air possible. Even in winter this can be done every pleasant day. Open a door or window at some distance from them; the fresh air will then lose its chill before it comes in contact with the plants. Aim to keep the temperature for indoor plants at from 65 to 70 degrees if possible. Never use cold water on plants grown indoors. Always have the chill taken off. Apply liquid manure once a week, and when buds appear make it weak. Fertilizers will sometimes cause the buds to drop on some plants, especially if applied too strong. It is best to apply about the color of weak tea.

If jardiniers are used, put something in them for the pot to rest on, to keep the roots from standing in water. Frozen plants may frequently be saved by showering them with water, in a dark room, both room and water to be about frost point in temperature. Stir the soil in your pots frequently to admit air to the roots, and assist evaporation. This will help to keep the soil sweet. Turn your plants at least once a week, that all sides may have a chance at the light and sunshine, otherwise, they will become one-sided and unsymmetrical. Keep all dead and dying leaves, and faded flowers picked off. They help breed disease. Pinch back strongest branches if necessary.

An Odd Cactus.—Mother Nature has her own peculiar ways of performing her duties, one of which has recently come under my observation. Among my Cacti is an Echinocactus, whose native habitat is given as Paraguay, South America, and whose size, which is not an inch in diameter, is out of proportion to its name, which is Schilinzkyanus. I found a bud in the centre of the plant, and having been told that the yellow blossom was nearly as large as the plant, I impatiently awaited developments. One day I thought black ants were devouring my precious bud, and upon brushing at the supposed insects, found them to be seeds which had ripened without a blossom opening. I scattered them around the mother plant, and now have a whole colony of little ones. Another bud gave me fresh hope, but eventually ripened seed in the same way. Now I am watching a third one.

Baby Primrose.—Baby Primrose is, without any exception, my most successful bloomer, and although not a very showy plant, it is always a dainty, ever ready ornament. I have one that was in constant bloom over two years. I have changed and repotted it, and it is still a fine plant.

NOVEMBER.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

They are ghosts of the vanished summer,
Now withered and blowing down.
For the winds of bleak November,
To whirl and drift over the ground.

Some are golden as the Buttercups
That bloom on a summer's day;
Some are orange and some are crimson,
And some are a quite gray.

They are drifting aimlessly downward,
To a slumber under the snow,
To wait for the summer sun to shine,
And the warm, spring breeze to blow.

The yellow leaves of the maple
Still cling to the autumn bough,
But the green garb of the willow
Has withered and fallen now.

High over the garden arbor,
Where the Honeysuckle swung,
And the blossoms of cream and crimson,
In dainty clusters clung.

The leaves have yellowed and fallen,
From the vine to a quiet sleep,
Where they rustle in the night wind,
As the waning shadows creep.

SUMMER RAIN.

Softly, softly, down it comes—the summer rain,
Pelting softly, Buttercups and ripening grain.
Washing all the dust from wayside flower and weed.
How fresh and debonair they look from dust clouds freed.

Frightening the busy bees from fields of clover blossom;
Deep 'mong the shady trees the birds have sought
them room,
While lush and green the grass is springing by the way,
And show above the drooping spurs of blossoms gay.

Softly, softly down it comes—the summer rain,
And gives to earth refreshing coolness in its train.
Lightly pelting at the heart of velvet Rose,
Carrying away a wealth of perfume as it goes.
Scattering larger life and fragrance everywhere,
Leaving cool, delicious perfume in the air.

OLD FASHIONED FLOWERS.

O the Pinks and the Roses of grandmother's garden,
The sweetest of flowers, the brightest I know;
What memories come of the dear fragrant bowers
I loved to enjoy in the sweet long ago.

The Rosemary, Balm, and the Chamomile fringes,
The Lilac, the Phlox and the Southernwood Tree;
The lovely Sweet Williams, the small-flowered
Pansies,
The Columbine, stately, that nodded to me.

These blessed creations, these memory blossoms,
Are favorites still, and I love them as well
As in my childhood I waited and pondered—
Their beauty and fragrance—enrapt by the spell.

The old-fashioned people are never out-dated;
Their smiles are as sweet as the blossoms of May.
May the Pinks and the Roses, the sweetest of flowers,
Bloom over their ashes forever and aye.

Now is the time of drifting leaves,
And empty fields so brown and bare,
For autumn's yield is gathered in,
And cold and frosty grows the air.

Now is the time of withered flowers,
And gardens robbed of summer bloom,
Of leafless trees and cloud-wrapped hills,
The time of sadness and of gloom.

Now is the time of darkening skies,
The heavy clouds a chill dread hold;
The dead leaves rustle in the wind,
And sheep are shivering in the fold.

Now is the time of quiet grief,
Sweet memories of pleasure fled;
The grey skies weep, the sad winds sigh
For summer bright and fair is dead.

Barry Co., Mich., Oct. 1, 1904. Lillian Ludley.

AFTER THE FROST.

The dead leaves flutter, and swerve and drift
Down through the golden haze;
And blackened stalks in the garden lift
A dreary and odorless maze.

Of leaves all limp, and frosted blooms,
And seedpods gray and bare;
And trailing down from its fretted height
The vine is no longer fair.

But an untold splendor of ripeness borne
In the mellow sunlight gleams,
And Earth, like a mother, with work all done,
Retires to rest and dream.

And the nurtured leaves of her hoarded strength,
And plants with their forces spent,
O'er her quiet breast droop low at last
In a mantle of still content.

AUTUMN'S LAMENT.

I hear the wind's sad moan;
The summer gay is dead.
I see no more the Rose
No more the blooming bed.

O, leaves, bright autumn leaves,
Drift o'er the garden bed,
And weave a coverlet soft
To ease the wintery dread.

Winds! Cease to moan and sigh;
The flowers have gone to sleep.
When springtime comes again,
They'll awake—so do not weep.

A ROSE IN THE WINDOW.

There's a red Rose in the window,
Rich with velvet petals gleaming
O'er a golden heart that's brimming
With the sweetness of love's seeming.

Dainty, subtle, is her wooing,
And her meed is homage loyal,
While rough winds from bleak skies wandering
May not touch her beauty royal.

In that window beams a beacon
Making home a haven cheery,
Where unfolds the regal blossom
When the world outside is dreary.

Trees and Shrubs.

THE SPANISH BROOM.

VIBURNUM PLICATUM.

ONE OF the most beautiful and desirable of hardy shrubs is Viburnum plicatum, a fine plant of which occupies a prominent place in the pretty lawn photographed by Mrs. Sadie F. Plunkett, of Sullivan County, Indiana, and reproduced in the accompanying engraving. As most persons know, Viburnum opulus, the old-fashioned Snowball, is so much troubled with aphides that its culture is almost abandoned; but the new Japanese species is handsomer in every way than the older sort, equally as hardy, and is entirely free from pests. In good soil, and well cared for, the plants grow from ten to twenty feet high, the terminal branches often three feet long, bearing the large, white balls so closely set as to appear as an immense wreath.

This shrub may be successfully planted either in autumn or spring. The cuttings do not strike roots readily, but the young plants are easily transplanted, the only secret in transplanting, if such it may be called, is to tread the earth firmly about the plant when setting.

In this connection it may not be amiss to suggest that the Aphid upon the old-fashioned Snowball might be destroyed by dipping the branches into boiling tobacco tea, just after the leaves drop. Do not let the branches remain in the liquid more than a moment, but give them several dips successively. If you will examine a branch you will find the insects in their winter resting state, and if destroyed in autumn they will not appear with the young leaves in the spring. The same treatment may be successfully applied to the scarlet Trumpet Honeysuckle.

The Scarlet Buckeye.—This is a small tree known in Botany as Pavia rubra. It bears freely red flowers in terminal panicles, and makes a fine appearance on the lawn. It has the general form in leaf and habit of the Buckeye, but is low and compact in growth. Its fruit is like that of the Horse Chestnut, and it can be propagated in the same way. It should be better known.

VIBURNUM PLICATUM.

THE Spanish Broom, Spartium Junceum, is a hardy shrub rarely seen in this country, although it is easily grown from seeds, and readily transplanted when young. It is, indeed, a shrub of which few persons have any knowledge, and the following article, from a writer well acquainted with it, found in an English Journal, will be of interest:

The Spanish Broom is one of the showiest and most continuous flowering of all leguminous shrubs, for from mid-summer, or even earlier, until autumn sets in, it is rarely without blossoms. The flowers, too, are remarkable for their bright yellow color, and their size, for in this respect they are equalled by few, and surpassed by none of the hardy leguminosæ. The Spanish Broom naturally forms an upright shrub, from six to eight feet in height, whose small, narrow leaves are very few in number, but their absence is compensated for by the dark green of the young stems, which are slender and rush-like. From the deep, descending nature of its roots this shrub is but little affected by periods of drought, even in dry, sandy soils, so that during an unusually parched up summer it is often by the month of August almost the only shrub in flower. The usual mode of increase is by seeds which ripen readily, and soon germinate when sown. To ensure a bushy habit the shoots should be freely topped when young. As with many of the Broom family, the roots produce very few fibres, so that there is considerable risk in transplanting established specimens. For this reason they should be planted permanently while quite young. The Spanish Broom is perhaps seen to the best advantage when overtopping a belt or mass of shrubs, which form, as it were, a groundwork for the slender shoots and golden blossoms.—W. T. in The Gardener's Magazine.

[NOTE.—The seeds are sold by most seedsmen at five or ten cents per packet. Seedlings show flowers varying somewhat in shade of color, but as yet there are no well-marked varieties. The best time to obtain and sow the seeds is during early spring. They are not prompt in germination, and time must be allowed for the plants to appear after sowing.—ED.]

EPIPHYLLUMS.

THE Epiphyllums are beautiful Cactus plants for the greenhouse, conservatory or window. They are becoming more popular every year for decoration. They are winter bloomers and give an abundance of flowers when properly treated. After blooming water should be gradually withheld, and the plants set in a cool place out of direct sunshine. They should never be exposed to hot sunshine as they scorch very easily. They should not become dust dry, but when slightly flaccid should have a small quantity of water. They should rest at least three months, then remove a portion of the soil, and renew with good garden soil, sand and old fertilizer, or leaf mould, water and place where they will get morning sun. They will soon start growth and prepare for the next crop of flowers. It is a nice point to water properly when blooming. Too much, or too little, will make buds and flowers drop. E. fruncatum is a well known species, commonly called Crab Cactus. Of this, there are two well defined varieties, an upright grower, and a drooping one. The flowers are alike. A light crimson color, about three inches long, somewhat like a Fuchsia. A good plant in a six-inch pot will bear a hundred or more flowers. It is called the Christmas Cactus. E. Russelianum is similar to E. fruncatum, but the stems are smaller, and the Crab Claw not so well defined. The flowers are the same, but it blooms in early spring, and is called the Easter Cactus. E. salmonum is a lovely flower, of a bright salmon color. There are several others, a white and a pink, and white E. Russelianum Gærtneri, called Gærtner's Cactus, is quite a different plant, has a large flower, and plant and flower resemble a Phyllocactus.

Acacia Lophanta.—Acacia Lophanta does better in a pot or can than when set in the open ground. Those which grew in the shed window are strong sturdy plants more than two feet high, while those which were put in the open ground are very slender and spindling, and are not over a foot in height, and the leaves are of no consequence at all.

PLANT WINDOWS.

DO NOT strive to grow all kinds of plants in one window. Some will want lots of sun, such as the Abutilon, Carnation, Petunia, Heliotrope, Geranium and Coleus. These species must be grown in a sunny south window. In a window with an eastern exposure the following varieties grow very well: Amaryllis, Baby Primrose, Begonias, Calla, Bouvardia, Feverfew and Fuchsia. In this east window all the winter-flowering bulbs, suitable for forcing in winter, will come into growth, and bloom to perfection. Among these we may mention, Hyacinth, Tulip and Jonquil Narcissus. In a north window Ferns, Palms, Primroses, and other foliage plants will sometimes grow satisfactory. In the west window very few plants will grow. In fact, this window is no place for plants in winter.

A Window Box of Erfordia Begonias.

—I had a wooden box made five inches deep, nine inches wide and nearly the width of the window in length. This I filled, in the fall, with ten large plants of Erfordia Begonia. The box was placed in a north window until the plants bloomed. I cut them back severely spring and fall, then set them below the sill in a south window. Only the mass of pink blossoms and green leaves showed from the outside. One plant of this variety is lovely in winter, but grown together, they make a most charming display. These were much admired.

LUMINOUS PLANTS.

THERE are many marvelous things about our plant friends, but none perhaps quite so marvelous as the property some have of presenting a luminous appearance. Others may be said to be phosphorescent and still others are surrounded by an atmosphere which takes fire when a light is brought near. It is generally orange or gaudy flowers which possess such phenomena which are discernible only at twilight. A Tuberose has been seen upon a sultry evening after a thunder shower to send out small sparks of flame from its flowers that were fading. The blossoms of the Orange Lily, the Nasturtium, the African Marigold, also other orange colored flowers are said to give out similar flashes.

Dowden says that on the 4th of August, 1842, after a week of warm weather, he noticed a strange appearance in a common Marigold. A light run from floret to floret and made a course round the disk of the flower. While in Greece, Lord Carnarvon says that he saw a pink blossom which was covered with a delicate network and his guides told him that it possessed mysterious qualities.

Cut Worms, Paris Green, and Ammonia.—The cut worms ate off a good many of my Petunias, and I, in my zeal and ignorance, put paris green around some of the rest and so managed to kill more than the cut worms destroyed. I never used any before, and had no idea of its strength. It brought to mind a time when my mother first began to grow house plants. She read or heard that ammonia would make growth, and so she poured some from the bottle directly into the earth. The result may be imagined.

A BEAUTIFUL GREEN MULCH.

POLYPODIUM incanum, is the iron-clad little Fern that dries up and turns brown in dry weather, but revives and becomes bright green when moisture is applied. It covers forest tree trunks and logs with a strong net-work of wiry roots. A green moss always grows with the Fern. Both may be torn off in broad sheets and laid over flower beds, and over pots. It remains a bright green all winter; even when frozen it keeps green. Unsightly surfaces of out-door borders, or of hot-house beds, and pots, are brightened, and beautified by this green mulch. It increases voluntarily by spores, and soon spreads when once introduced.

TO THE ROOTS

Food the Cause and Another Food the Cure of Stomach Ails.

When sickness comes it's best to go to the root of the trouble at once—take away the kind of food used when the person got ill for the food evidently didn't keep the body up. Feed the patient on Grape-Nuts. That is the way to the food cure which has so many remarkable cases to its credit.

"Several years ago my husband became affected by a most disagreeable and painful diarrhea, lost his appetite and grew shockingly thin and haggard. I persuaded him finally to see a physician but after taking a course of medicine he was worse than ever and this discouraged him so he tried a lot of home-made remedies but they gave him only temporary relief.

"Finally I persuaded him to try another physician who treated him for indigestion which he said was the cause of all his trouble, but after several months treatment the physician said: 'You have let it run so long it has become chronic and exceedingly difficult to cure and you will always be troubled more or less.'

"Well you can imagine how this made him feel.

"Sometime after that some friends advised Grape-Nuts food and he thought he would just give it a short trial. To our surprise he began to improve at once. He kept on each day getting better and better until now he can eat anything he likes and declares he never felt so well in his life, has absolutely no trouble with his stomach or bowels and is fleshier than he has been for years. Three cheers for Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Sounds too easy almost to be true but 10 days trial by anyone will prove the value of Grape-Nuts, the most scientific food in the world.

"There's a reason."

PLANTS AND LOCALITY.

WHEN reading articles in the Magazine, I am always careful to notice the locality from whence they come, as I find plants which grow luxuriantly in the vicinity of New York, will sometimes prove a complete failure here in Maine.

The Cupid Sweet Pea is a good instance of this. I have had nice looking plants and several buds, but never more than two or three stunted looking blossoms. Several of my friends make the same complaint, and I think it is very rarely that success with this flower is reported from Maine. If people would only think of the difference in climate that exists in our broad country, there would not be so many complaints about poor seeds and dishonest seedsmen.

I am very partial to vines, and planned to have one of my woven wire fences covered with them the past summer; but alas, for my plans! The vines I chose were evidently not adapted to the climate, for they acted in the most unaccountable manner, and several times I was sorely tempted to pull them all up and pitch them into the street. The vines which proved particularly refractory were Cardiospermum, Bryonopsis, Momordica. They all came up well, and grew very strong and stocky in the extemporized cold frame which I make each spring with the aid of wide boards and storm windows, but when put in the open ground about the first of June, they stopped stock still, and there they stuck all summer long. The Momordicas grew a foot or so, and bore a one-sided green fruit which very much resembled the fruit of Creeping Jenny, except in shape, but the others never grew an inch. This fall I took two of the Cardiospermums into the house, and they are now more than two feet tall, and still growing. We have had an extremely cold, unfavorable summer, and that may be what stunted them, but I have an idea that these vines require warmer weather than they are likely to find in Maine, in the open ground. Adella F. Veazie.

Knox Co., Me., Nov. 27, 1903.

[NOTE.—Regarding the Cupid Sweet Peas the reports from Maine are similar to those from other States. They are generally disappointing everywhere. * * * The Gourd family, Japanese Morning Glories and Cobæa like a warm sheltered situation. The South side of a wall or building is just the place for them, and beautiful vines of them may be grown in such a situation even in Canada. Attention to this matter often brings success where neglect of it means failure.—Ed.]

Flowers a Blessing.—As the years go by I find the culture of flowers a continual enjoyment; something new to watch for each day in leaf and bud. Life is made bright, and sorrows become lighter if we possess but one Pansy plant of our own.

CARDUUS.

A VARIETY of Carduus, known as the Blessed Thistle, had self-sown from year to year in a neglected corner of the wild garden, the plants being pulled up relentlessly when they became too assertive. A flourishing specimen was set in a tub of rich garden soil near the veranda, and when well grown it attracted a great deal of attention. Carriages would stop for the occupants to inquire the name of that beautiful plant. Few were the wiser after they were told. Many desired slips or bulbs, and were incredulous when we told them the seeds could be procured for a few cents a packet, and grew as readily as Corn. It is really an improved specimen with its immense rosette of massive, spring leaves, elegantly mottled and marbled with green and silver. But the flower stalk must be watched for, and seized and executed like a traitor, if one would keep the plant at its best.

COFFEE WAS IT

People Slowly Learn the Facts.

"All my life I have been such a slave to coffee that the very aroma of it was enough to set my nerves quivering. I kept gradually losing my health but I used to say 'nonsense' it don't hurt me. Slowly I was forced to admit the truth and the final result was that my whole nervous force was shattered.

"My heart became weak and uncertain in its action and that frightened me. Finally my physician told me, about a year ago, that I must stop drinking coffee or I could never expect to be well again.

"I was in despair for the very thought of the medicines I had tried so many times nauseated me. Of course I thought of Postum but could hardly bring myself to give up the coffee. Finally I concluded that I owed it to myself to give Postum a trial. So I got a package and carefully followed the directions, and what a delicious, nourishing, rich drink it was. Do you know I found it very easy to shift from the coffee to Postum and not mind the change at all. Almost immediately after I made the change I found myself better, and as the days went by I kept on improving. My nerves grew sound and steady, I slept well and felt strong and balanced all the time. Now I am completely cured, with the old nervousness and sickness all gone. In every way I am well once more." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

It pays to give up the drink that acts on some like a poison, for health is the greatest fortune one can have.

FOR THIS GLORIOUS HYACINTH BED, 91 large bulbs, $5.50; smaller: $3.50, with planting directions.

SPLENDID DUTCH HYACINTHS

Only 30 Cents for 10 Fine, Plump Bulbs. Order Now.

For only 30 cents I offer ten finest named Hyacinths, embracing all colors—shades of white, red, blue, yellow and variegated. They are all sound bulbs of healthy, hardy, easily grown varieties, decidedly the best Hyacinths for general culture either in house or garden. A better selection could not be made by any florist, and I offer the entire collection with confidence that every bulb will bloom. Following is the list:

Deep Pink—Gertrude, compact trusses of graceful flowers; one of the best for pots or beds.

Light Pink—Gigantea, bears spikes of waxy bluish pink bells, closely set and very large; an extraordinary variety.

Scarlet—Gen. Pelissier, splendid truss of bright scarlet flowers; very early; superb sort for pots or beds.

Cream White—Baroness Thuyll, glorious truss of large, graceful bells; white with primrose eye; showy and beautiful; early; none better among white Hyacinths.

Bluish White—Grandeur a Merveille, a superb variety; spikes of good size, well set with rose-tinted waxy bells; very fine.

Pure White—Paix del Europe, long truss and large, drooping bells; one of the best.

Azure Blue—Chas. Dickens, produces a close spike of large bells; bright; superb sort for either pots or beds.

Dark Blue—King of the Blues, splendid spike, closely set with large beautiful clear dark blue flowers; extra.

Lavender Blue—La Peppouse, large spike of bright porcelain or delicate lavender flowers; fine in spike, bells and color; an exceedingly handsome sort; very early.

Bright Yellow—Ida, splendid compact truss of graceful bells; pure bright yellow; very early; the best of yellow Hyacinths.

Everyone of these ten named Hyacinths is a gem—the best of its color—hardy, healthy, producing the finest spikes and finest flowers, deliciously fragrant, and sure to bloom in the most satisfactory manner. I feel assured that everyone who gets this lot of Hyacinths will be surprised that I can supply such fine bulbs at so small a price, and again surprised and delighted when the handsome spikes of sweet waxy bells in all the lovely shades adorn their window in winter or garden bed early in spring. Full Cultural Directions for both indoor and outdoor culture.

Double Hyacinth

I offer the following fine collection of Double Hyacinth, four splendid varieties in four colors for only 15 cents. Each 5 cents, dozen 45 cents.

Bright Rose-pink—Noble par Merite, large, fine, compact spike, bright rose-pink flowers, very double, fragrant and beautiful; very early; handsome.

Pure White—La Tour d'Auvergne, fine truss, closely set with elegant, large, pure white bells; very early; one of the finest sorts.

Bright Blue—Charles Dickens, grand, compact spike and graceful flowers; good for window or garden culture.

Fine Yellow—Goethe, excellent truss and lovely graceful bells; color rosy salmon with pinkish shading; very early, odd and attractive.

As a Premium

I will mail you one Double Hyacinth for every additional order you send for the above 30-cent collection of Hyacinths; thus, for a club of two, one name besides your own, (60 cents), I will send you one Double Hyacinth, your selection; for a club of three (90 cents), two Double Hyacinths, and for a club of five ($1.50), four Double, or the entire collection.

Choice Hyacinths for Beds.—For a circular bed six feet in diameter, (see eng.), fine named varieties, red, 19 bulbs, white, 42 bulbs, and blue, 30 bulbs, 91 bulbs in all, large and sound, $5.50 mailed. Smaller size, $3.50. For 91 Hyacinths in ten sorts, also a doz. early-blooming Daffodils, only $2.75 mailed.

Large Bulbs.—For 50 cents I will supply larger bulbs of the 30-cent collection. These are just such bulbs as most dealers sell at 12c each. They are preferred for show flowers. GEO. W. PARK, LaPark, Pa.

We do Half your Washing Free of Cost

YOU must pay the washer-woman fifteen cents an hour.

It is hard-earned money at that. If you do your own washing, or have the servant do it, this steaming, back-breaking, hand-chapping, cold-catching, temper-destroying work will cost you more than 15 cents an hour in the end.

It takes eight hours hard labor to do the average family wash.

Eight hours, at 15 cents, cost you $1.20 per week for washing.

This means $66.40 per year, without reckoning fuel for fire, or wear on clothes.

We will save you half of that—or No Pay.

We will send you our "1900" Washing Machine on a full month's free trial.

It runs on ball-bearings like a bicycle, and it works with motor-springs.

These motor-springs do most of the hard work.

You can sit in a rocking chair and make them do the washing—think of that!

We don't want a cent of your money, nor a note, nor a contract, when we ship you the Washer on trial. We even pay all of the freight out of our own pockets, so that you may test the machine as much as you like before you agree to buy it.

Use it a full month at our expense. If you don't find it does better washing, in half the time—send it back to the railroad station, with our address on it—thats all.

We will then pay the freight back, too, without a murmur.

But, if the month's test convinces you that our "1900" Washer actually does 8 hours washing in 4 hours time—does it twice as easy—far better, without wearing the clothes, breaking a button, or tearing a thread of lace, then you must write and tell us so.

* * * *

From that time on you must pay us, every week, part of what our machine saves you, say 50 cents per week till the Washer is paid for.

Each "1900" Washer lasts at least five years, yet a very few months, at 50 cents a week, makes it entirely your own, out of what it saves you on each washing.

Every year our Washer will save you about $33.00 that you would have had to spend for labor of your own, or the labor of others.

In five years each machine saves its owner about $165.00. Yet the "1900" Washer won't cost you a cent, under our plan, because we let it pay for itself. You need not take our word for that. We let you prove all we say, at our expense, before you decide to buy it on these terms.

Could we risk the freight both ways, with thousands of people, if we did not know our "1900" Washer would do all we claim for it?

It costs you only the two-cent stamp, on a letter to us, to bring this quick and easy Washer to your door, on a month's trial.

That month's free use of it will save you about $2.00. You thus risk nothing but the postage stamp to prove our claims, and we practically pay you $2.00 to try it.

This offer may be withdrawn at any time if it crowds our factory.

Therefore WRITE TODAY, while the offer is open, and while you think of it. A post card will do.

Address me personally for this offer, viz:

GOSSIP.

Dear Floral Friends:—As I sit and look out on my bed of gorgeous Chinese Asters, I am reminded of several different kinds of Nabby Frosts. In the spring I had an abundance of Aster plants, and I gave to one and all as long as they lasted. They were mixed colors and most beautiful, but note the following complaints from the "Nabbys:" On seeing my bed of beauties, one said, "Oh you mean thing," you kept all of the best ones yourself." (All of the plants I raised, were sown in one bed). "Mine aint like that." I went over and took a look. The plants were sitting, or standing rather, on top of the surface with little cakes of soil adhering to the roots. She had hoed the plants loose, and left them that way, and could not see what was the matter. I had to laugh. Another set her plants so deep that only a little of the tops stuck out. One set six and eight plants in a hill. One Nabby has not watered the plants that I gave her since she set them out. Today she was looking at mine, and said I had kept all the largest ones.* I went home with her. Poor, thirsty Asters, the soil was as hard and dry as flint. One Nabby that I gave seeds to said not a plant came up. Mine came up like grass, and I was puzzled until I found how she had sowed the seeds. She dug a hole and put the dried flower heads in, then covered them up with over a foot of dry earth. She did not even know enough to rub the dry seed out, and says I am to blame because I didn't do it. The ignorance of some of them is disgusting. They want to know if Asters are raised from bulbs, or do I winter the plants or do they live out in the ground all winter; or do they come from cuttings, etc. I asked one some days ago if she would subscribe for Park's Magazine, and she tossed her head and said with a sniff. "No indeedy, "I have not got no time to set around a reading flower books, a wasting time, like some folks do." She is the one that wished to know if Chinese Asters were raised from bulbs.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Dear Mr. Park:—I have taken your Magazine three years, and think more of it all the time. I think the culture of flowers grows on one. Some will say to me, "Plants are nice, but how do you find time to bother with them." I think most of us find time to do what we really like to do, I find your Magazine very helpful to me. I have a beautiful Impatiens Sultana in a bucket. It is over two yards around. I will try and have it photographed and send it to you. Ida Bell.

WHAT FLOWER IS THIS?

The little sketch represents the name of a common, deliciously scented member of the Narcissus family, the bulbs of which should be potted or planted this month if the work has not already been done. When potted the flowers will open in the window during the bleak, cold winter days, making the room cheerful with its clusters of golden flowers, and fragrant with its exquisite perfume. Bedded out the flowers come in early spring, and the bulbs being hardy and tenacious will do duty for many years. What is its name, and why should you not have some in pots to bloom in winter, and a clump out-doors for your enjoyment in the spring, when the golden Willows begin to show their silvery leaves, and the robin returns and sings to its mate in the swaying branches.

SPECIAL OFFER TO OUR READERS.

GOSSIP.

Dear Flower Folks:—When I read the remarks of Ima in favor of collections of flowers instead of specimen plants, I exclaimed, as the old Yankee, "Thems my sentiments." Specimens properly used are all right, if you only want effect, but if you really love flowers each flower has something about it individually to admire and love. We flower-lovers hover over and cherish even a sickly plant, and the loss of one is a source of grief.

A Troublesome Fungus.—A subscriber at Richmond, Virginia, reports that nearly all her house plants have been ruined by a blight that appears as raised black spots upon the under side of the leaves. Hollyhocks, Pansies, Balsams, Mesembryanthemum, Morning Glories, and others all died.

The Big Mail Order House of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, is now offering their enormous and wonderful General Catalogue No. 114 absolutely free of charge. Anyone can get this Big Catalogue absolutely free by simply writing a letter or a postal card and asking for it. It is wonderful what a great business the house of Sears, Roebuck & Co., has built up throughout the country, and the prices they name on the highest quality of merchandise in every line are really astonishing, they are so cheap. Sears, Roebuck & Co. have established a most enviable reputation for honest and fair dealing with the people, and their word is as good as a Government Bond. They are among our largest advertisers, and we take pleasure in adding this word of indorsement to their various announcements that appear in our paper from time to time. We know that not one of our readers can ever lose a single penny by dealing with this big house, and we feel that it is only justice to our subscribers to call attention to this fact, and say to them frankly that it will surely pay them to find out Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s price on any article before they buy elsewhere.

My Earnest Appeal To Wives and Mothers

My Husband Was a Hard Drinker for Over 20 Years, But I at Last Cured Him

Write Me Today and I Will Gladly Tell You How I Did It

My husband was a hard drinker for over 20 years and had tried in every way to stop, but could not do so. I at last cured him by a simple home remedy which anyone can give secretly. I want everyone who has drunkenness in their homes to know of this, and if they are sincere in their desire to cure this disease and will write to me, I will tell them just what the remedy is. My address is Mrs. Margaret Anderson, Box 240, Hillburn, N. Y. I am sincere in this offer. I have sent this valuable information to thousands and will gladly send it to you if you will but write me today. As I have nothing whatever to sell, I want no money.

DRUNKARDS

CURED SECRETLY. Box Sent FREE.

Any woman can cure her husband, son or brother of liquor drinking, by secretly placing this remedy in his coffee, tea or food without his knowledge. It is entirely odorless and tasteless. Any good and faithful woman can wipe out this fearful evil and permanently stop the craving for liquor, as did Mrs. L. Townsend, of Selma, La. For years she prayed to her husband to quit drinking, but found that he could not do so of his own free will, and learning of this remarkable cure, she determined to try it. Mrs. Townsend says that before she gave her husband half a box of Milo Tablets, he lost all desire for beer or whisky; the sight or odor of them now makes him deathly sick. Mrs. Townsend's word of gratitude is only one of the thousands in possession of this company. Anyone who will send their name & address & 4 cents to cover postage to the Milo Drug Co., 33 Milo Building, St. Louis, Mo., will receive by mail, sealed in plain wrapper, a free package of this wonderful remedy and full instructions how to cure this drink habit. It costs nothing to try it.

DOUBLE TULIP.

SINGLE TULIP.

Single Tulip, blooms early in spring; gorgeous and beautiful; a fine named sort, sure to flower; nine inches high.

Double Tulip, very brilliant and attractive flower; opens a few days later than the Single Tulip; fine named sort, sure to bloom; nine inches high.

Single Narcissus, the Campervelle Jonquil, clusters of golden flowers, large, bright and deliciously scented. A superb spring flower, nine inches high.

Double Narcissus, Gardenia-scented, very sweet, double flowers, pure, waxy white, very beautiful, blooms very soon after the Jonquil. Nine inches high.

Crocus, Giant Yellow, the most showy and rich of all early Crocuses; golden yellow in large clusters; six inches high.

Snowdrop, large-flowered, blooming almost before the snow is gone in spring, the earliest of garden flowers, pure white; always welcomed; six inches high.

Scilla Campanulata, the lovely Wood Hyacinth; an early spring flower of great beauty. Color mostly blue; eight inches high.

Chionodoxa, Glory of the Snow, blooms almost with the Snowdrop; superb blue flower in long racemes; very pretty; six inches high.

Muscari, blue Grape Hyacinth, sometimes called Blue-bottle; bears numerous racemes of exquisite blue flowers very early in spring; eight inches high.

Ornithogalum umbellatum, an early blooming bulb with showy star-like white flowers; grows nine inches high.

SINGLE NARCISSUS

DOUBLE NARCISSUS.

CROCUS.

GIANT SNOWDROP.

The above are all beautiful spring flowers, perfectly hardy, and can be bedded out this autumn as soon as received. They are sure to bloom, and will be a revelation to those who see them for the first time. The bulbs I offer are all sound, of good blooming size, and will please all who get them. They are just such bulbs as are retailed at three times the price I ask. The Magazine you need to tell you all about flowers and how to treat them for pleasure and profit. Every flower-lover should be a subscriber. If already a subscriber send the Magazine as a present to some friend. If this is not desirable I will add some bulb, my choice, instead of the Magazine. Order soon. The earlier you get and plant these bulbs the finer will be your display of spring flowers.

For the Window.—If preferred these bulbs may all be placed in boxes or pots and grown in the window. In this way they will bloom in mid-winter, or the vessels may be wintered in the cellar, and brought out in the spring. Full cultural directions for both garden and window will accompany every package.

Special.—Some may wish a potful or garden clump of each bulb, to make a finer display. For 50 cents I will mail 6 bulbs of each kind (60 bulbs), including one copy of the Magazine a year.

SCILLA CAMPANULATA.

CHIONODOXA.

Get up a Club.

For a club of 3 (45 cents) I will send you an extra collection, and the Magazine a year, or 10 Dish Crocus.

For a club of 6 (90 cents) I will send a collection with Magazine a year, also a fine bulb of Amaryllis Johnsoni, such as retails at 35 cents, also 10 Crocuses.

For a club of 10 ($1.50) I will send a collection of six choice Hardy Shrubs. Name what you have to avoid duplication, or 10 Dish Crocus and 10 named Hyacinths.

For a club of 15 ($2.25) I will send bulbs, your choice, from my bulb Catalogue, amounting to $1.20.

For a club of 25 ($3.75) I will send a watch suitable for a boy or for the kitchen or bedroom.

For a club of 35 ($5.25) I will send a lady's or gent's gold-plated watch, a handsome and good timepiece.

Every subscriber of the club will get the ten bulbs and the Magazine a year. See your friends at once. Almost every one will subscribe upon this liberal offer. Send for free blank lists, samples and a full agent's outfit. Address

TO THE CHILDREN.

My Dear Little Flower Folks:—In my State (Pennsylvania) there is a law that fines any man or boy who kills a bird that lives upon insects. Of course the better class of our people keep this law, and try to have it in force by all, but in the fall both men and boys of some homes seem bent upon the use of the gun, and go along the roads and through the fields and forests shooting at any bird or native animal that appears. Just a few days ago I heard a shot near the Seed-house as I came down the steps at my home on my way to work. The thought came to me "can it be that some song bird was the mark of a cruel sport this bright morning, while the trees show their autumn tints, and the larks are singing their sad farewell?"

After noon the thought was not a query when a friend came to me through a field by the road, with a dear little meadow lark in his hand. (See engraving of the bird and its nest) and said, "Do you know who hurt this bird? It seems to have been shot in the wing, and can not fly." With that he let it go, and it went off through the grass, its hurt wing down on the ground. I knew then what the cruel shot had done.

But, my dear friends, is it any wonder the boys want to use a gun? Look over the papers that are printed for boys, and see how page after page (often with pictures), tells of how some boy shot a deer, or an owl, or a poor little squirrel, and how this is lauded as a deed of great merit. One of these papers has just come to me, and I find in it an article with several pictures telling of the sport of a frog hunt, and how to go about it. Now, you know while the frog does no harm, he is of as much use as a bird in eating plant pests. I always keep a few in my plant houses to eat ants, snails, slugs, and sow bugs. You can better rid a place of these bad pests by frogs than by any other means. To catch the frogs the writer tells how to use a hook and a gun, both cruel means that hurt the poor, harmless, dumb creatures. Another article tells of sport of Navy boys; another is a story of a West-point graduate with pictures of a host of boys with guns. Another tells of shooting Indians and starting the French and Indian wars. The same paper has a full dozen of Gun Advertisements, several of Military Schools, and as many of Books on Soldiers, Hunting, etc.

I once saw, at a State College, a West Point Graduate, (who was appointed by the Government to be a member of the Faculty, and had command of the Military work), drilling the boys. As the company passed me a freshman made some blunder, and this "graduate" (unworthy of the name of man), shook the boy, and with an ugly name and dreadful oath corrected him. If this is what they learn at West Point truly the fewer boys we have there the better it will be for our nation and the less we have of the school the better. Oh, may the time soon come, dear friends, when "they shall beat their swords into plow-shares and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. GOSSIP.

Floral Band:—My Living Rock Cacti bloomed this summer and it was grand. It then formed seed pods containing dozens of seeds. I planted them in a cigar box, and in less than two weeks they began to come up. I now have twenty-six little plants and there are more to follow. I think you can almost see them grow. How interesting it is. I have some lovely specimens of these queer plants, and I value them highly. Cereus grandiflora has climbed as high as it can go and has turned to the other way awhile. My pet is M. Lasiacantha, and next is M. Nivia then dozens of others as handsome and dear to me.

Your Fortune Told Free

PROFESSOR EDISON, "The Wizard of the Stars," will tell you just what life has in store for you, how to make the most of your opportunities, and the history of your life, from the cradle to the grave.

HIS GREAT FREE OFFER TO READERS OF PARK'S FLORAL MAGAZINE.

YOU SEND NO MONEY.

Professor Edison's Readings are totally different from ordinary fortune telling, for his work rests on the firm foundations of astrology, which is as old as the Bible. The test horoscope he will send you will be a revelation to you.

Professor Edison will read your fortune from the cradle to the grave, and you can be sure that all he tells you will be true, and exactly as forecasted by his infallible method of astrology. Professor Edison has proven to thousands of unbelievers that astrology is an accurate and infallible science. Even if you also doubt, he will prove it to you, and you are advised not to lose one moment in writing for his free horoscope. It will cost you absolutely nothing, and will put you under no obligation of any kind. He makes his offer by a special arrangement, to awaken among the readers of this paper an interest in this wonderful and mysterious science. With it he will send you, if you write promptly, his full and complete treatise, which will tell you exactly what this science really is—not as fakirs and unscrupulous charlatans would have you believe it is. The book is given free, as an inducement for you to write at once, and get his typewritten horoscope of your life free of all charge. Will enable you to make your life doubly successful and prosperous. Write at once, stating your sex, whether married or single, and the date of your birth, and enclosing 2 cents to pay postage, addressing your letter to PROFESSOR EDISON, 53 11th Ave., Binghamton, N. Y.

FROM THE HISTORY OF YOUR LIFE FROM THE CRADLE TO THE GRAVE

Professor Edison is the greatest and most wonderful astrologer living. No man has done so much to awaken interest in this wonderful and mysterious science as this learned man. So true and accurate are his readings, that he is called "The Wizard of the Stars." He believes that his cunning is one of the most important educational professions, because it enables men and women to know what is in their future, and to make the most of their lives.

By special arrangement, he has decided to give every reader of this paper a FREE horoscope of their lives. He will tell you your characteristics, what career you are best fitted for, and how to make the most of every opportunity that presents itself. How to win your full quota of success, wealth, fame, popularity and position in both business and social life. He will tell you what are the misfortunes most likely to overtake you, so that you can guard against them and avoid them. He will tell you what enemies you are to look out for and what will be your prospects in love, in business, in speculation and in all walks of life. Legacies lost and stolen articles, lucky days and years, etc., fully explained.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Mr. Park:—The Tuberoses you sent me last year were the finest I ever planted, or watched over. I had flowers for so long a time to admire myself and to give away—for the first flower in its beauty, was taken off—and with a bunch of Forget-me-nots, and a back ground of Rose Geranium leaves, made a dainty sweet bouquet. I had the pleasure of giving such bouquets every day to friends for weeks.

THE PERNICIOUS SPARROW.

During the past spring I have noted in the pages of THE GARDEN the customary complaints of the mischief wrought by the house-sparrow, but have regretted to remark that many of the writers appeared almost apologetic in their condemnation. It cannot be too widely recognised that the house-sparrow is a pest, and that the interests of all connected with the land, be they farmers, gardeners, or laborers, lie in the direction of its extermination. Many there are, doubtless, who think that though the sparrow does harm in one direction, he does good in another. To those I would recommend the perusal of a little book, entitled "The House-Sparrow," by Mr. W. B. Tegetmeier and the late Miss Eleanor Ormerod, published in London five years ago by Vinton and Co. At the time of its publication it was exhaustively and appreciatively reviewed in these columns. The authors, who have earned the respect and confidence of the zoological and agricultural worlds, lay before their readers the result of an exhaustive enquiry into the harm done by the sparrow, from evidence collected from all parts of the United Kingdom and abroad. We learn that the amount of grain consumed annually by sparrows in the British Isles "may be estimated, without fear of exaggeration, at from one to two millions sterling in value." A case is quoted where, in a locality that formerly abounded in cornfields, wheat culture has been entirely given up on account of the increase of sparrows. Many instances are given of the damage done to gardens by this bird. The Rev. W. Wilks, hon. sec. of the Royal Horticultural Society, states that in January, 1898, "the sparrows cleared off all the bloom buds on the Gooseberries at the society's garden, and attacked the Plums in February," and adds, "our superintendent despairs of any crop at all." Numerous cases are mentioned of the wholesale destruction by the sparrow of Crocuses, Primroses, Polyanthus, Violets, Lobelias, Lettuces, Green Peas, and Red Currant and other fruit buds.

One of the greatest evils of the sparrow infestation, but an evil likely to be overlooked by the non-observant, is the driving away of insect-eating birds. The adult sparrow is not an insect-eater, one of many proofs of this fact being that at Washington, U. S. A. at a time when the city trees were seriously infested by four species of insects, only two insects were found in the crops of 300 sparrows killed for dissection. I know villages which the martins have now entirely deserted owing to the sparrows appropriating their nests year after year. Last year I found sparrows tearing the top off a wren's nest, the broken eggs being on the ground below. This year a spotted flycatcher's nest has been appropriated by these birds and used as a platform for straw. The substitution of one bird for another may appear a matter of small moment to many, but the birds driven away spend every hour from dawn till twilight in the capture of insects in our gardens and around our dwellings, whereas the sparrow is useless as an insect-destroyer. He will eat Gooseberry buds but not the Gooseberry caterpillar. The following is a summary of a table drawn up after the contents of the stomachs of 694 sparrows were examined.

"About 75 per cent. of an adult sparrow's food during its life is corn of some kind. The remaining 25 per cent. may be divided as follows: Seeds of weeds, 10 per cent.; Green Peas, 4 per cent.; beetles, 3 per cent.; caterpillars, 2 per cent.; insects which fly, 1 per cent.; other things, 5 per cent. In young sparrows not more than 40 per cent. is corn, while about 40 per cent. consists of caterpillars, and 10 per cent. of small beetles."

In the preface of "The House-Sparrow" Mr. Tegetmeier writes: "It is a remarkable fact that there is not one eminent, practical ornithologist of the present day in England or elsewhere who advocates the protection of the sparrow." The late Lord Lilford, facile princeps in ornithology, who at one time took a lenient view of the sparrow's delinquencies, in later years entirely changed his opinion and wrote: "I consider that every bird-catcher who confines his operations strictly to the taking of sparrows is a benefactor, and should be subsidized by the parish authorities." The book to which I have drawn attention can scarcely fail to carry conviction to any reader's mind, and to render him an advocate of a determined and sustained attempt to abate the sparrow plague.—THE GARDEN.

A Thing Worth Knowing.

No need of cutting off a woman's breast or a man's cheek or nose in a vain attempt to cure cancer. No need of applying burning plasters to the flesh and torturing those already weak from suffering. Soothing, balmy, aromatic oils give safe, speedy and certain cure. The most horrible forms of cancer of face, breast, womb, mouth, stomach; large tumors, ugly ulcers, fistula, catarrh; terrible skin diseases, etc., are all successfully treated by the application of various forms of simple oils. DO IT NOW.

Procrastination is thief of time;
Then don't you wait.
For in delay we often find
It is too late.
Don't wait for a convenient day,
But just do it now while you may.
Don't wait until your hair is gray,
For goodness' sake.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

Dear Mr. Park:—Your Magazine reaches me safely every month and those who love the beautiful thoughts and advice can appreciate its value. To me it is a world of sunshine. Seven years ago I sent you an order, and ever since you have remembered the little Kentucky girl. We all know of your flowers, for my dear grandmother, who is dead now, always sent you an order. Now that she is gone I love to take care of her flower garden. Her happiest days were spent with her children and her flowers, she used to say. So I send an order and want some more seeds. I have tried so hard to raise White Petunia for her dear home now out in the silent grave-yard, but they don't do well. Send me some seeds and tell me how to raise them.

Thanking you again for your sweet little guide and may you have many happy days for the pleasure your book gives is the wish of your little Kentucky friend. Gladys Carpenter.
Boone Co., Ky., Feb. 2, 1904.

Dear Mr. Park:—I am a girl ten years old, and love to read the Children's Corner. We never sent for your Magazine. Somebody, I guess, must have sent it to us. I like to hoe and plant in the garden. I have a big garden this year. My favorite flowers are Canary-bird Flower, Portulaca, Stocks, Ice Plant, Sweet Sultan and Pansies.

THAT BIRD-KILLER.

Here he is again—the sneaking, domestic Bird-Killer. The artist shows the innocent little pet that in by-gone days cheered the household with its delightful warbling song, while the stealthy, deceitful old cat, like the brutal murderer that he is, watched for an opportunity to take its life and enjoy its substance. He has committed the murder, but the noise causes his empty, hasty flight to a place of safety, if such can be found. We see in the sketch only his hind feet and the tip of his tail. Oh, that every owner of a cat would enforce a cat law reading "Thou shalt not kill song birds." The crouching, sneaking murderers would then soon become scarce, and the dear little feathered songsters more numerous and happy. In many States a wise law imposes a fine of five dollars for killing an insectivorous bird. Few cats are worth the fine, and if the money-value of each bird they destroyed was given to the household boy he would soon rid the place of rats and mice by the skillful use of improved traps.

Achania—Mr. Park:—I have had Achania in my collection for many years. It is beautiful, and a very satisfactory plant in every way.

Plants For Winter--Last Call.

Eight Fine Plants, Only 25 Cents. Order Before December 10th.

Most Liberal Offer of the Season.

For 25 cents, received before December 10th, I will mail eight fine plants for window decoration, as follows:

New Pierson Fern, the grandest of all Ferns for house culture; as easily grown as Geraniums, and every frond becomes like an immense ostrich plume, fluffy and beautiful. This glorious window plant should be in every home. I offer fine, well-rooted plants, sure to grow.

New Dryden Geranium, the most desirable of all Geraniums for the window, either in winter or summer; flowers large, dazzling scarlet shaded to white at centre, borne in gorgeous clusters; a free and continuous bloomer—you can't keep it from blooming. Plants in bud.

Asparagus Sprengeri, the finest of all plants for a vase or basket; will produce plume-like drooping sprays three feet or more long, of lovely clear green. I offer strong, tuberous plants. If preferred I can give A. plumosus or A. comorensis instead.

Primrose.—As a sure-blooming winter window plant the various Primroses are not excelled, being of easy culture, and always a success. I offer P. Obconica, P. Forbesi, P. Floribunda, P. Verticillata, P. Sinensis and P. Veris. Name first and second choice. Plants strong, well-rooted, many blooming. See engraving.

Boston Smilax.—As a window trellis plant nothing more beautiful can be grown than Boston Smilax. The sprays of foliage are charming, and no plant is of easier culture. You cannot fail to be pleased with it. I offer strong, vining plants.

If any of the above are not wanted select from the following: Geranium Jean Viaud, choice Coleus, Lobelia, Russelia, Heterocentron, Eupatorium, Lopselia, Eranthemum, Daisy, Crassula, Vinca, Achania.

Also, 3 plants of my selection, making in all eight plants. I offer the above bargain, the last of the season in plants, to make room in my greenhouses. Order before December 10th. Get a neighbor to order beautiful can be grown than Boston Smilax. The sprays of foliage are charming, and no plant is of easier culture. You cannot fail to be pleased with it. CHILDREN'S CORNER.

Dear Mr. Park:—I am a girl fifteen years old. I have taken your Magazine for several years, and like it real well. I like flowers, and like to read the Children's Corner. I am living with my brother this year. He has a store and I clerk for him. We have some pretty flowers at home. My home is in Kansas, but my brother lives in Oklahoma. My favorite flowers are Roses, Pansies, Pinks, and all other flowers. I like your Magazine very well.

Salena Butterfield.

Payne Co., Okla., Sept. 12, 1904.

Dear Mr. Park:—As I have not seen any letters from our town yet, I thought I would write a few lines. I am a little school girl of eleven years. I am in the sixth grade. I have no particular pets. My Mamma takes your Magazine, and we have a great many flowers of which Carnations, Sweet Peas and Nasturtiums are my favorites. If this letter does not find the waste basket I will come again.

Anna Lieland.

Shelby Co., Ind., Sept. 29, 1904.

Dear Mr. Park:—My mamma takes your Magazine, and we like it very much. I like to read the Children's Corner. I go to school every day that I can. I am six years old. For pets I have two kittens and a dog. My choice flowers are Sweet Peas, Pansies and Roses. I hope this letter will reach the Children's Corner, as I want to surprise my mamma.

Rhoda E. Askey.

Center Co., Pa., Sept. 8, 1904.

Mr. Park:—I am a little girl nine years old, and go to school. I have five pets. Mr. Park, your seeds have come up and are going to bloom. My Narcissus are just splendid. Everyone admires them. One thing I can say, is, that your seeds grow.

A Wonderful Cure.

Mrs. W. A. Roberts, Windsor Sta., W. Va., was almost totally blind of both eyes. Doctors pronounced case cataracts, claimed no cure without an operation.

Heard of Dr. Coffee's treatment, used it one month as directed—can see as well as ever.

Pronounced Incurable—Sight Restored.

Mrs. Mat Henderson, of Rolla, N. Dak., writes: Your medicine, which I used in my baby's eyes, is simply wonderful.

Doctors told me that my baby would probably be blind for life. I used your medicine in his eyes just eleven days and his sight is perfect. Words cannot praise your treatment enough or express my gratitude.

Saved from Blindness, Cataracts Removed, Sight Made Perfect.

Mr. W. W. Jennings, Linn Grove, Iowa, says: Cataracts on both of my eyes was gradually making me blind, operation was advised by a number of doctors. I would not submit to it. I heard of Dr. Coffee's Mild Medicine Treatment, used it, and obtained perfect sight. I would advise all afflicted that way to try his treatment.

To the Readers The proprietors of this paper have investigated Dr. Coffee of Des Moines, Iowa, and know that he is a physician of highest standing and perfectly responsible for what he agrees to do. Those of our readers desiring one of these books should write to the doctor at once and kindly mention this paper.

Dr. W. O. COFFEE = 871 Good Block, Des Moines, Iowa.

Latest portrait of Dr. W. O. COFFEE of Des Moines, Iowa, who has made many remarkable cures of Blindness and Deafness.

Cured of Deafness.

Mr. C. Schwenk, of Valley Junction, Iowa, says: I was growing deaf rapidly from catarrh and noises in the ears. I used Dr. Coffee's Absorption Treatment and obtained perfect hearing.

74 Years Old—Hearing Restored

Mr. Eli Snyder, of Altoona, Iowa, says: I am 74 years old; was afflicted with catarrhal deafness for a number of years was gradually growing deaf. I took a severe cold recently which settled in my head, making me almost totally deaf. Used Dr. Coffee's absorption Treatment for two months and obtained perfect hearing.

Gradually Growing Deaf From Chronic Catarrh, Considered Hopeless, Cured Permanently.

Mr. Fred Harger of Lovilia, Iowa, was rapidly growing deaf; trouble originated from chronic catarrh. Had given up all hopes of ever being cured. Commenced Dr. Coffee's Treatment, improvements noticed immediately, hearing restored perfectly in short order.

FRED HARGER.
