H. F. Hall, Boston, Mass., President; C. West, Irondequoit, N. Y., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, 508 Walker Building Louisville, Ky., Secretary; M. L. Ruetenik Cleveland, O., Treasurer.

MIAMI, FLA.—The annual meeting of the State Horticultural Society was held here May 14-16, with an estimated attendance of 3,000 grove owners and vegetable growers.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, May 20.—Mushrooms, 20 cents to 35 cents per pound; lettuce, 22½ cents to 25 cents, small cases; cucumbers, 50 cents to 85 cents per dozen.

The Use of Nitrate of Soda.

It has always appeared to us that the use of nitrate of soda is comparatively little understood. Right here where we operate we are in a large market gardening district in the center of one of the central states and we are quite sure that not one of our gardeners uses this material, nor could understand its proper use. We located here four years ago, on a wornout, poorly drained farm of heavy soil, and with the skillful use of chemicals have succeeded every spring in entering the market first with cool-loving crops like radish, leaf and head-lettuce, spinach, beets and cabbage. This year we cleared off an entire spinach field at a good price before a basket of other spinach appeared. Especially in a cool spring like this one does nitrate of soda give excellent results. The underlying principle is simply this that plants need nitrates to grow, and these nitrates are formed in the ground by the direct action of heat. The rains and snows of winter generally wash away a large part of available matter, and hence our crops have to wait for warm weather to produce new nitrates, no matter how much manure we may apply. The same is true with organic nitrogenous fertilizers, such as blood and bone or tankage. While nitrate of soda furnishes us immediately available nitrates regardless of weather conditions. By its use we can force growth in the cool spring which would otherwise be impossible.

In our location we get no response from phosphatic elements for leaf crops, hence we ignore them. But we find that nitrate of soda alone lacks a powerful partner, which is potash. We combine the two always, using twice the weight of soda to that of sulphate potash. These are pulverized and screened through ¼-inch mesh and most thoroughly mixed. A little acid phosphate or bone meal will prevent the mixture from caking if held any length of time, therefore it is well to add some. We apply this mixture broadcast in dry weather on all small plants, such as young onions, lettuce, radish, beets, carrots, etc., just as soon as well up—generally right after the first wheel-hoeing. Later if more is needed we spread between the rows either by hand or with fertilizer drill, for as soon as enough foliage is formed to catch the chemicals, serious damage results from broad-casting. Such crops as cabbage we side dress by hand as soon as the plants show signs of recovering from transplanting. We have fairly covered the ground at times without any damage. Under proper conditions this mixture is certainly a great forcer. Later on we reduce the amount and quit using it, figuring on the manure applied to feed the crops.

Nitrates being easily washed away, and phosphates being retained, a good practice is to plow under whatever phosphatic elements we use—bone meal, acid phosphate or basic slag, either fall or spring. Then we can regulate growth by applying the above mixture. The problem of fertilizers must be studied out by the gardeners of the future in order to make the most of opportunities.

MARKETMAN.

Cultivation of Cauliflower.

In a paper read before the Lenox Horticultural Society, entitled "Cauliflower and Fertilizers," by Peter I. Adams, of Stockbridge, the writer states that the selection and location of soil has much to do with the ultimate success of the crop. An ideal field consists of a well drained soil of lime stone formation, the field to be in sod, the older the better. This should be ploughed in the fall to a depth not exceeding seven inches, the furrows set on edges to assist decomposition and disintegration and also to aerate and neutralize alkaline and acid tendencies. In the spring spread evenly 20 loads of barn yard manure free from litter, and a dressing of 800 pounds of ordinary potato phosphate; then run the wheelbarrow lengthwise, crosswise and diagonally, being careful not to root up small pieces of sod. Follow this with the smoothing harrow until the soil is finely pulverized.

Mark the field out in rows three feet apart and cross section the rows 18 or 20 inches apart. Plant the seed about June 1, five seeds at each crossing, and cover lightly. Ten days after planting the rows should be visible, and the trouble begins, for the little black snipper or gnat is frequently on hand in numbers. Pepper, ashes, soot and Paris green are effective, but must be used promptly. As soon as the hills can be seen a spike-tooth cultivator is run between the rows and the hills worked with a hoe. In a few days thinning and transplanting can be done, the hills thinned to one plant, and plants set in the hills that missed. An application of soluble fertilizer, 5 N—10 P—5 P, using nitrate of soda, fine ground bone and sulphate of potash, applying 400 pounds and 20 bushels of ashes to the acre, and the field thoroughly hoed. The next trouble is the cutworms, and these must be looked for every morning and any plants that are cut off must be reset.

Rapid growth must be maintained, for if the plants get tough they stop work, so the field is given a third hoeing, and if the plants do not appear robust another dressing of ashes and fertilizer is given them. If it is dry cultivate shallow to conserve moisture, but while cauliflowers require a large amount of moisture, they will not flourish in a wet soil; if the season is wet a shallow ditch is ploughed beside the plants for drainage and the soil kept cultivated until the leaves cover the ground. As the nights become cool the heads begin to form and these should be immediately protected from sun and heat by tying the leaves together over them, completely shading them. Every second day they should be gone over and the perfect heads cut when they are smooth, compact and pure white. If allowed to stand they will grow rough or perhaps brown rust or stump rot is present and either will render them unfit in a short time. The heads should be handled and packed carefully. The pressure of a thumb on a head will result in a discolored spot. Cut off the ends of the leaves even with the top of the heads, and rinse in water to remove the green worm and its excretions. When dry, pack and cover the head with parchment paper to prevent bruising in transportation.

Castle Automatic Circulator

WHICH USED ONLY $26.00 WORTH OF POWER

It is positive in action—the flow does not depend upon temperature.
It is insurance—it maintains just the right temperature day and night.
It saves coal—more water goes through the piping—a larger percentage of the heat units are used for heating the houses.

Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Governor Marshall of Indiana issued a proclamation pertaining to Mother's day and commending the beautiful sentiment of wearing flowers for "the best mother who ever lived—your own." Besides this the florists caused articles to be published in the daily papers and this brought a large response from the public. The flower stores were crowded Friday and Saturday, but owing to the inclement weather on Sunday, the trade was not as good as expected. The quality of carnations was very good and the supply was equal to the demand—many of the growers holding back their stock for this day. On the whole we feel that Mothers' day may take its rank among the really big days on the florists' calendar. Business the last week has been very good, taking into consideration the inclement weather the fore part of the week. The demand has been mostly for funeral work. There have been several large weddings within the fortnight that called for elaborate decorations. The supply of stock has been scarcely equal to the demand. There have been some elegant snapdragon on the market lately. Roses are good—particularly the Killarney. Carnations are good but scarce. Sweet peas are getting scarce. Out-of-door lilac has met a good demand. Pansies, mignonette and the smaller flowers have been used a great deal for corsage work. Trade in bedding plants is very good for the late season.

One of the notable wedding decorations of the season was that executed last week for the Hoffman-Hoffman wedding by the C. B. Flick Floral Company. It was a blossom wedding and the church where the wedding ceremony took place was banked with palms and many delicately tinted blossoms. Tall, lighted candles lent their soft radiance to the scene. The reception was held at the Hoffman residence, which had been converted into a veritable woodland bower. The effect was produced by quantities of huckleberry foliage that arched the doorways, covered the chandeliers, grew out of the fire-places and gave a beautiful woody effect, bringing out the exquisite coloring of the huge clusters of enormous snapdragons, fruit-blossoms, flowering almond and lilac which were arranged in tall wicker vases or wicker wall pockets and placed promiscuously through the rooms, some of the blossoms even clamoring up the stairway. An especially good feature of the decoration was the high arrangement of the flowers, so that none of the charming effect was lost after the rooms were filled with the guests. Among the out-of-town guests were Governor and Mrs. Marshall of Indianapolis and Secretary of State Lew G. Ellington.

Another wedding of interest was that of Miss Bon Silene Auger, daughter of Mrs. Lydia Auger, to Herbert P. Coverdale, on Saturday, May 18. Miss Auger has the distinction of being the grand-daughter of the first florist in Indiana and daughter of Louis Auger, the first florist in Fort Wayne. Miss Auger was named after the beautiful Bon Silene rose.

The news of the death of John H. Vesey, which occurred here Friday night, May 17, will be a great shock to his many friends. Mr. Vesey was a brother to Judge W. J. Vesey, the well-known florist here, and he was at one time connected with the Alpha Floral Company of Des Moines, Iowa. His death was due to apoplexy. P. P. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Flowering plants were most in demand with lilies of course in the lead and the increase in the total sales of the Easter business was about 10 per cent, says H. Plath. The supply of plants and cut flowers was adequate to meet the demand and all seasonable flowers sold well. There were all kinds of flowering plants in large supply and exceptionally well grown, but almost everything sold out clean with the exception of a few azaleas.

Wichita, Kans.

Mothers' day occupied the center of an already crowded stage last week. But nobody objected, and the performers put in their best licks to satisfy the audience. But there was nothing left for an encore. The demand was heavy and bore evidence of increased general interest. Many orders received by the florists were from outside towns which have no florist and in which the demand must have been created and stimulated from other sources. There is still much of the idea that the really correct flower for the occasion is the white carnation. The main efforts of the Wichita florists in their publicity campaign was to overcome this idea, and all advertising matter made the point that any flower was correct, and also gave the distinctions for the use of the white or colored flower. This action is bearing fruit, and it seems quite probable that with a little careful and persistent effort the matter will take the proper form to give the best possible service to all concerned. The daily papers sought news along this line and gave the right kind of information to the reading public. Stock was cleaned up to the last flower almost, especially in all suitable lines, and many would-be buyers took what they could get instead of what they wanted. Prices were not advanced at retail, although the retailer had to pay advanced prices in the wholesale markets. There was a decided shortage in white carnations and some of the stock shipped in was received in rather poor condition. The general trade conditions in this vicinity are fairly good. Business in the usual spring lines is brisk and will compare favorably with former seasons. Weather conditions are better than the average

THE QUICKEST WATER HEATER IN THE WORLD

WHAT THE USERS SAY ABOUT KROESCHELL BOILERS

The Kroeschell is the Most Wonderful Heater of All.

I think the Kroeschell is even a better boiler than you recommend, as I have fired a good many other types of boilers, and have never seen a boiler heat up as quickly and as easily as the Kroeschell. A great many of the florists around here have called to see the boiler and are anxious to know where it was built and who built same. They all agree that it is a fine piece of work and the most wonderful heater they have ever seen.

About Cost of Building.

Occasionally some one asks us if we "can't get the price of our Iron Frame House down." To which we always reply: "Of course we can—but we can't."

Can't, because the best of materials and best of mechanics cost just so much, and to cut costs means cheapening either the materials or employing unskilled men.

You simply can't put your prices down and keep your quality up. We have a reputation for building one of the best Iron Frame constructions it's possible to turn out, and just as long as Hitchings & Company is Hitchings & Company, we are going to build the best house it's possible to build.

Such houses can never be cheap; but they will always cost less in the end. And the end begins right at the beginning. Send for catalog.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Pot Chrysanthemums.

The chrysanthemums that are to be grown for bush plants will require constant attention from this time on, for they grow very rapidly both at top and root, and should be gone over regularly and often and have the ends of the growths rubbed out, that they may be kept in shape and grow as bushy as possible. Do not be afraid of their being too short, for all pinching back must stop about July 1, and they will have plenty of time to make a good growth before the buds set. Keep the plants growing and in good health and never allow them to get potbound, for the wood hardens very quickly if this happens, and it is next to impossible to grow good flowers on a plant which has become hard, so shift the plants into a larger size as soon as they require it. Pot firmly and in a good, strong soil. The plant potted good and firm will make a much shorter-jointed growth than one potted loosely, but it is better not to pinch back the tops at the time of potting. Go over the plants carefully two or three days before potting and do all the pinching back necessary. If field culture is undertaken they should be set out as early as possible and tied to a stake to prevent the wind from breaking them down and given good cultivation all summer.

Hydrangeas.

There is always a good call for hydrangeas up to the middle of July and they are as valuable during June as those bloomed at Memorial day and the plants are much better than those that are forced too hard. Give the plants plenty of water and all the ventilation possible, and all the room they require. If the plants are on a shelf or stand it is well to place the pot in a saucer, and when watering fill the saucer, for they are very succulent and the large leaves and blooms wilt very quickly and often before it can be seen that they are dry. Good ventilation will prevent red spiders, for it is in dry, close places that this little insect gets a good hold. The stock for next season should be moving along nicely, that which is intended for early flowering should be grown in pots, while those that are grown for next spring and summer flowering can be planted outside. For the former a good frame with hose and water handy is the best place to plunge the pots and those that are to be planted out should be set as early as possible. Keep the plants shapely by pinching out the ends of the shoots, but this should be stopped by July 1, that the plant may make a finished growth and set the bud by lifting time in the fall.

Crotons.

The croton is very popular for bedding out in some sections of the country and where they grow well they make exceedingly decorative beds, but these plants are heat-loving subjects and where cool nights are the rule they are not wholly satisfactory. They should not be set out until all danger of nights of low temperature are passed, for not only is there danger from frost but a succession of nights in the neighborhood of 40° will cause many leaves to drop. Where crotons are grown extensively propagation is practically carried on all the year round but it is necessary during the winter months to have a propagation bench of great heat. In places where such a bench is not to be had, spring and early summer is a good time to propagate the young stock for next season. The cuttings root readily if kept moist both at top and bottom and it is much better to have a closed bench, that is, one with a sash on top that can be lifted which will keep the temperature and moisture even and prevent draughts from blowing over the cuttings. The cuttings should be made from the end shoots when the plants are in active growth and the leaves tied up with a piece of raffia before being inserted in the sand, and they can then be placed quite close together, and with the sash down the bed can be kept close. When rooted they should be potted in a good turfy loam with a small amount of rotted cow manure added, but not too rich, and placed in a shady location in good heat until firmly established in the soil, when they can be given full sunlight. Too much sun or too strong draughts before they become established will often cause them to drop many leaves. Grown on in the houses during the summer nice stock for the holiday and next year's trade can be obtained.

Water Lilies.

The use of water lilies in floral work has increased enormously during the last few years and any grower that has a natural pond or a brook which can be made into a small pond in which they can be cultivated, is losing a golden opportunity in not undertaking their culture. The making of artificial ponds is expensive and should be left to the large estates, but there are many low places with a brook running through them that could be made suitable for the cultivation of water lilies that are now utilized for no purpose. While the native nymphaeas are used to some extent, it is the improved cultivated plants that produce the attractive flowers that are seen all the summer in the florists' shops in the large cities and are used extensively in floral work. The roots can be obtained at this season and planted either in the bed of the pond or in boxes in good soil rich in vegetable matter and placed in the water two or three inches below the surface until they have made their first floating leaves, when they should be gradually lowered until they are about 15 to 18 inches below the surface. If cultivated in this manner the plants are entirely under control and can be made a good investment.

Celosias.

The celosias that are to be grown for show plants through the late summer and fall will need constant attention. The little plants move very slowly and are subject to damp off in the seed bed, or if they become too dry, will burn off. They should not be allowed to remain in the seed pan until they become drawn, but potted into small pots and kept well shaded until they begin to grow and then moved into a lightly shaded location. As soon as fully established and growing strongly a lightly shaded frame is the best location, where they can be given plenty of air and easily attended. Shift into larger pots as soon as the roots are well through the soil and pot them in a good strong compost. In mid-summer they can be moved into the greenhouse and placed on a light bench with sufficient shade on the glass to prevent all danger from burning the foliage and when the flower spikes appear stake and tie the plants to a good strong stake.

June Weddings.

THE PINK SLIPPER DECORATION.

We will begin with the ballroom and first cover the walls with pale pink silk in long curtain effects, and at the top around the ceiling arrange garlands of southern smilax, and from different points, say at intervals of about five to seven feet, suspend a large ring made of pink sweet peas and lily of the valley. In the center of this ring place a slipper of white rose leaves made so as not to lose its shape, and in the intervals between the rings suspend garlands of smilax.

Bride's Bouquet, by Canger & Gormley, Chicago.

Lily of the Valley and Orchids.

(The rings should be hung from the string of southern smilax and reach about the center of the wall). The garlands should be attached from the center of the string of southern smilax and allowed to drop below the base of the rings, and from the center of these garlands suspend large flat bunches of white lilac and maidenhair fern, using the large variety of maiden hair. Along the wall around the entire ballroom place flowering pink rose bushes and palms to give a finish. Finish the corners with very tall palms, making a group effect of the different sizes. Group the palms in bower fashion where the bride is to stand, using a pink silk drape covered with white lilac as a background; also pink rose bushes in the foreground. Above this suspend a large wedding bell made of pink roses and just above it a full circle made of maidenhair fern in which tiny electric lights should be placed covered with pink catgut. The hammer inside the bell should be of white lilac and can be in the shape of a slipper filled with orange blossoms.

If the ballroom happens to be in a private residence, decorate the balusters at close intervals with huge bunches of white lilac, stretching streamers of pink sash ribbons between each bunch or winding the streamers, if more effective, around the baluster rail. Arch the reception room doors with southern smilax and pink roses, placing tall vases of pink roses throughout the hallway where most effective, and finishing with palms. Cover all chandeliers and arm jets with southern smilax. A slipper made of white rose leaves and filled with orange blossoms can be attached to these different arm jets to carry out the slipper design.

In the different reception rooms the windows may be filled with pink rose bushes, over which southern smilax has been draped, and for a finish use maidenhair at the base of the flower pots. In the fireplaces use blocks of ice over which are spread pink rose buds with their foliage and maiden hair fern, and at the back place electric lights so as to shine through the ice. Use palms where necessary. A large bowl of white lilac can be advantageously placed on a table in the larger reception room.

For the dining room there should be a long bridal table on either end with tall vases of pale pink roses. For a centerpiece make a mound of rose foliage, using some green and partially open buds as a foundation, placing in the center a good-sized slipper made of pink roses and filled with orange blossoms. Around this centerpiece place a garland of pink roses in a thick, loose, graceful fashion. On each of the smaller tables a slipper to correspond with the other tables, and these can be placed on a mirror surrounded with a garland of pink rose buds. Use a pink silk drape on the sideboard with the monograms of the bride and groom, making them of lily of the valley, and arrange a border of maidenhair around the edge of drape. On either side place a large bunch of lilacs, and at the sides bank pink rose bushes. From the dining room windows suspend balls of white lilac, around the center of which a garland of pink roses has been wound, with pink streamers, and place a small curtain drape of southern smilax above each window. Pink rose bushes can be used beneath the windows as well, and palms placed in the corners of the room where necessary as a finish. In all adjoining rooms place pink rose bushes and ferns with bunches of lilac in rustic vases. Or if a variety is wanted pink tulips or pink peonies can be used to advantage in other rooms, where a general effect is desired.

Make the bridal bouquet of gardenias and orange blossoms in a loose, graceful manner. For the bridesmaids, slippers of pink satin filled with lily of the valley, using long loops of pink ribbon so they can be carried over the arm. Or the slippers can be filled with white sweet peas or even white pansies or marguerites. Use slipper favors as souvenirs, making them of roses and fill with bonbons tied with satin ribbons.

FLORISTS' PALMS.

Potting the Stock.

The spring potting should now be in full swing, and always means a busy time and some rather heavy work, especially where there are many of the larger commercial sizes of palms grown. Plants in pots or tubs from eight inches in diameter upwards indicate a good deal of exercise for those who have the handling of them, for even where the work is arranged conveniently the plants have to be lifted and carried for a greater or less distance.

The condition of the stock will control the size of the shift that may be given, but at the spring potting one may be a little more liberal in the pot than would be allowable in the late summer or autumn, from the fact that at the beginning of the growing season there is more chance for the plants to fill out the larger pot than there would be in the autumn. A practical rule for potting palms is to give one inch shifts in the small sizes, for example, from 2-inch to 3-inch pots, or from 3-inch to 4-inch pots, but above 4-inch pots, one may safely shift in two inch steps, as from 4-inch to 6-inch, or from 6-inch to 8-inch pots. This rule applies to strong and well rooted stock in the respective sizes, but weak or poorly rooted stock may better be given a close shift, or else a topdressing of fresh soil, and then be set aside for a potting later in the season.

The practice that is sometimes adopted of potting up everything in a lot of plants without selection, makes a very irregular lot of stock, whereas that of sorting them into grades and then keeping the grades apart will save a great deal of time and trouble when picking out orders later in the season. We have frequently referred to the necessity for some drainage material in the pots when repotting, and the best material for this purpose is broken pots, of which there are usually plenty to be had in a plant growing establishment. But one piece of crock placed properly in the bottom of the pot, that is, with the hollow side down, will do more good in the way of drainage than a handful that is thrown in indiscriminately. Then there is the removal of the old drainage material from the ball of the plant that is to be repotted, for not only do these old crocks occupy space that would better be filled with soil, but they also interfere to a greater or less extent with the thorough watering that the newly potted plant requires.

A good potting stick, or rammer, is a very necessary tool when repotting anything larger than 4-inch stock, for without this tool it is hard to work the soil down firmly and evenly in the pots, and the majority of palms enjoy firm potting. Clean pots are always preferable, not only because they add to the appearance of the stock, but also from the fact that the plants will take hold quicker in them, and that there will be less trouble from either fungoid or mossy growths on the surface of the soil.

After the plants are potted a somewhat closer atmosphere with plenty of moisture will be beneficial, and a reasonable amount of shading on the glass will help to renew that rich, dark green color that plant buyers demand in their palms. When the plants become established in the new soil, say in about a month after potting, they may be aired more freely, so that the growth will be tough, and the foliage capable of enduring much exposure, for the trade not only demands that a palm shall be good-looking, but also that it shall stand some exposure and neglect after it reaches the ultimate consumer.

In the matter of soil, the best ingredient is some rotted sod, to which has been added to the compost heap about one fourth in bulk of good stable manure. Where peat may be had conveniently, it is some help to the average compost, though not absolutely essential for the production of good stock, and if the sod is very heavy in character, owing to a considerable proportion of clay in its composition, then a moderate amount of clean sand will help in the compost. Some bone meal mixed with the soil on the potting bench will add to its value for growing Latania Borbonica, the various phoenix, and the kentias, but Areca lutescens does not seem to utilize this fertilizer to any great advantage.

The question of insects will intrude itself from time to time during the summer and the best way to keep them down is to use preventive measures before they gain too much headway. Grasshoppers and caterpillars sometimes give trouble during the summer months, and watchfulness and hand-picking seem to be among the best remedies.

Tritomas.

There is no more showy plant in the fall than the tritomas, especially T. Pfisteri, and they are grown in quantities near the larger cities for window displays or large store decorations, and a vase of these "red hot pokers," as they are often called, is sure to attract Park Gardening.

Paper read by Xavier E. E. Schmitt before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, 1911.

To cover the subject of park gardening or park ornamentation would require a much more exhaustive essay than the time allotted me would permit, for in no sphere in which the gardener or superintendent is interested, is there a greater opportunity for diversion than in park gardening or ornamentation from a horticultural standpoint.

In years gone by the park was a portion of territory set aside for the admiration of the passer-by and rarely was it permitted to divert from the paths or roads and commit the sin of walking on the grass or even to step near some shrub or plant to make close inspection. Those days have gone by, fortunately, and the rank and file of the public who are sufficiently interested in our public parks and pleasure grounds, are accorded every opportunity to make a study of plants and trees to their satisfaction, which has been a great uplift to the public at large, because of the educational feature as well as recreation. In view of this tendency and desiring to interest the public in our parks we must cater to their wants, or rather introduce new features in floral effects to make our parks and pleasure grounds inviting. Much is being done to use every available space in the heart of the cities in establishing recreation parks and breathing spots for those who will avail themselves of the privilege of using that which the authorities feel have become essential factors for the welfare and comfort of its citizens.

Park ornamental gardening has been for many years a set form, i. e., carpet attention. This plant is not considered perfectly hardy in the northern part of the country, but can be carried through the winter in some locations by covering with manure and straw, but the safer way is to dig the plants in November or before freezing weather sets in and store them in dry soil in the cellar during the winter and re-setting them in early spring. They should be planted in a warm, sheltered location that is well drained and can be planted quite close together in rows, when grown for cutting the flowers.

bedding of high coloring, long lines of strong contrast, and continues to be a leading feature which the visitors admire as the chief attraction. Unfortunately we cannot vary much in the variety of plants as only certain varieties can be used for this work to advantage, but we can change the design and have variety, even though the species are used from year to year. A greater tendency has been of late years to resort more to narrow strips or borders of unique design in scroll work, and to eliminate large beds of special designs; this from two points of view is an advantage, first lessening the number of plants in the work and second, the narrow scrolls or strips are easier kept in shape.

Evergreens are playing a very important part in cluster beds even for color. Retinosporas, piceas, Juniperus, biotas, buxus, pinus, taxus and thuyas (both pyramidal and bush forms) in particular, as they are not only effective for color, they are also interesting in decided character and form. What a fine sight it is in winter to see a group of evergreens or a specimen. We count these beds as special features along drives, and when properly grouped, they become beautiful with age and symmetrical growth. Shrubbery of every known variety can be and is used to great advantage, where trees are not grouped enough to form effect, the shrubs are used for a period with the best results, although they demand much care and attention, to prevent them growing wildly and with injury to themselves.

Interesting and varying features are being adopted in many parks as far as planting and care are concerned, I refer to the plan of flower beds of either round, oval, diamond, or star shaped planted with flowering or foliage plants, these beds are along the walks and drives on either side, and are not duplicated except in one or two instances where formality leaves no other course, i. e., whatever is planted in one bed is not duplicated throughout the grounds; this not only becomes interesting in itself but is one of the strongest means of education. For this purpose every variety of annuals, and also perennials, can be used to advantage. No park should be without its rose gardens and perennial borders which give such a variety and changeable scene, with the many varieties now to be had. I will here name only a few of the leading classes: Delphiniums, peonies, asters, iris, hollyhecks, rudbeckias, hemerocallis, phlox, campanulas, helianthus, etc., rhododendron and azalea groups. We are constantly receiving inquiries from park visitors, asking when certain plants are at their best. This proves to a great degree that the public are becoming more observing and in many cases these inquiries come from those who have their own private places with gardeners in charge. Where conservatories are a part of the park's features much can be done in periodical exhibitions of underglass stock, which will keep up the visiting during the entire year.

We must not lose sight of the fact that the park's most valuable resources and asset is the tree; what would it be without the variation of these towering monarchs in their charming color throughout the year? The gardener or superintendent is an artist indeed who judiciously plants the trees for future effects, and in such variety and variation that will group artistically and enhance their charm as they advance in size with age. Proper planting with open views into the distance, lures the pedestrian and these in vehicles to all parts of the grounds, thus making the park attractive even to its remote corners. With each year's planting we study the weak points and endeavor to overcome them for the succeeding year. Sometimes our plans are thwarted because of extraordinary seasons of either moisture or drought, or even some new or pernicious insect which proves almost beyond control.

In all work of park gardening it must be borne in mind that the most important duty is that of timely preparation for the next season. In Fairmount Park we are equipped with glass, forcing houses, frames, pits, etc.; failure in producing the required quantity of anyone variety of plants often upsets plans seriously, hence the importance of having a supply beyond much variety as possible, and we find that often times a small group gives a great deal of pleasure to the public, things that are not met with in the ordinary lines of the trade. Orchids also come in for a lot of inquiry as most people have in mind only cattleyas and a few cypripediums as orchids and it is a revelation when they see some small flowered or curious orchids in flower. The planting commences with pansies and daisies and a few other spring flowering plants about April 10, which is about the earliest with us that

It has been our aim to have as planting can be done, followed by geraniums the middle of May, and by the beginning of June all kinds can be planted. Then in the fall we plant the tulips just as fast as we can get them planted, as it is a risky thing, for you can never tell when you might get caught and not get your bulbs in, so as they can make some roots before the ground freezes over. We plant May flowering tulips in groups among shrubbery, also in colors in beds along with singles, making a succession which is very pleasing and prolongs the season. They are useful where they are succeeded by foliage beds, in fact, I always felt and advocate the planting of bulbs of all kinds, as such handsome effects can be obtained for such a small outlay.

For a number of years we have been paying attention to cacti and other succulents (of which we have about 500 species and hybrids) and keep a large set of beds for them with a designed ground cover devoted to these during the summer and fall. It is remarkable to note the number of visitors who come to inspect these, while they are odd, grotesque and most decidedly peculiar as plants, yet all visitors will spend some time admiring this odd group of plants. We also give some attention to the aquatic plants among which the following stand out preeminently—Nymphaea, which can be had in all colors and shades in the hardy and tender ones combined, the stately Nelumbiums, the distinct two Victorias and many other minor aquatic plants can be and are used. Centennial Lake is one of the handsomest in the park, where can be seen N. odorata by the thousands as the surface of the water is fairly covered, as it were, with floating stars.

One class of plants I will touch on before closing and they are the rambler roses, which could be used over unsightly cliffs and embankments, where undesirable trespassing occurs. In the latter, as well as beautifying in both could be obtained. It would be a grand sight to come across what had previously been an unsightly wall of rocks to find them transformed with a draping of beautiful green followed by a sheet of blooms later on and in the fall covered by brilliant clusters of fruit which will last nearly all winter, among these I would mention a few such as: Lady Gay, Dorothy Perkins, Gardenia, Evergreen Gem, in fact all the Wichuraiana hybrids and there are many others.

I believe from an educational point of view the public park and its system has much to do in the education of the people, as well as the many schools in and around our city, who visit the park very frequently by entire classes accompanied by their teachers to study plant life, from nature, also the great number who come from afar to study and to admire it. They imbibe civic pride, and, adopt, as nearly as means will permit, better conditions surrounding their own homes—the most frequent visitors are that class of people. While on the other hand the recreation feature of opening the whole park to the public and allowing the freedom of every part of the grounds for public use (with us there are only a few places where people are not allowed on the grass) is the strongest health feature and one which the parks alone afford. Park gardening requires many sided abilities, which when practiced by the up-to-date gardener, give to the visitors from other cities impressions deep and lasting.

Trees and Road Tar.

Observations made by M. C. L. Gatin (C. R. Acad. Sci., July, 1911) leave no doubt with respect to the injurious effect of road tar on trees. M. Gatin's observations, which were made on trees of Catalpa bignonioides and Robinia Pseudacacia, etc., in the Bois de Boulogne, show that the tarring affects the number of leaves, their size and shape. The effective leaf-surface on trees in parts of the Bois where the roads are tarred is just one-half of that on trees in parts of the roads of which are not tarred.—The Gardener's Chronicle.

Insect-destroying Birds.

John T. Timmons, the blind florist of Cadiz, O., has always been a great lover of birds, and he has built several fancy bird houses for the purple martin, one of the greatest insect-destroying birds in the world. These he has for sale and has disposed of many to those who have placed them on their property. He is now planning to build a mammoth bird castle, with the financial assistance he hopes to receive from bird loving friends, the largest of its kind in the world, for a home for these beneficent birds.

What Happened to Flowers in 1913.

Paper read before the New York Florists' Club May 13, 1912, by Phillip Mindel, publicity expert.

This article is supposed to be written in the year 1925, twelve years after the revolution of the flower trade in America—and is purely a flight of the imagination, but not beyond the realm of reason.

To any one conversant with present conditions in America—and especially those in the flower trade, it is scarcely possible to hark back to the times before that famous year 1913, in which the flower trade of the country took on a new lease of life and flowers took their proper position in the home, in the school, in the church, in the business office and even in the factory.

To say that flowers had been forgotten would be to admit that poetry had been killed in the hearts of the people; that beauty and the love of fragrance had been crushed beneath the heel of commerce and that all of the progressive men in the flower trade had been driven out of it into the banks, where the bulk of the national money lay dormant. Such was not quite the case, for there was still a multitude of men and women in whom the finer sensibilities were predominant, and there was still a florist, a grower or two, broadminded enough to see that through uniting to help the many, the few had nothing to lose.

And even at that time the business done in the few blocks around Twenty-sixth street and Broadway and Sixth avenue and Twenty-eighth street and by the growers near New York amounted to a sum far in excess of seven millions of dollars a year. This was in the last year of the fading floral calendar—the year of the transition from business stagnancy to stead-for the florist to wake up and annex some of the millions that were lying idle in the banks and trust companies and safety deposit vaults—that they were not going to go on letting the milliner, the confectioner and the jeweler get all the surplus luxury money, just because they had enterprise enough to push their goods while the florists had not.

Several of the more powerful of these merchants and growers convened at a meeting of the New York Florists' Club, held in the Grand Opera House building on Monday evening, May 13, 1912—and put their heads together—and to a purpose. For had they not done so, it would never have been the privilege of this or any other chronicler of great events to relate the story of "What Happened to Flowers in 1913."

"Gentlemen," said one of the leading members on this memorable occasion, "why should we stand still while others go on and flourish like the fabled green bay tree? Why should men in such an artistic profession as ours drudge along like day laborers? Publicity is what we want—publicity for Flowers. Where would Roosevelt have been if he had not been the greatest press agent since John the Baptist? Where would Mary Garden have landed without the snap-shot camera—and the persistent promotion of her own publicity? What of P. T. Barnum—of Buffalo Bill—of social and civic reforms innumerable—of political movements and candidates—of automobiles and aeroplanes—all made, absolutely made by constant and skillful publicity. Yes, gentlemen," he continued, "publicity is today the vital force of everything that is watered by the hose and sprinkler of public patronage. They cannot live without it, much less ily increasing activity—the memorable year 1912. At the time, whatever advertising of flowers there was, was being done by one or two progressive retailers, who realized that in advertising there is life even to flowers. One of these, who had stands in three widely separated department stores, prospered far beyond his fellows, even with a very small expenditure.

And then the wiseacres among the bigger dealers, wholesale and retail, and among the growers, began to sit up and think—think that it was time thrive and increase as we want the flower trade to do. Incidentally we can make of our Flower Show next March—the biggest success on record. Let us make it a real one—get an early start on its publicity—and have everybody interested. The brick manufacturers have combined to present the advantages of their product, as a building material. Why? Because the success of the cement men's publicity campaign aimed a death blow at their industry—and one that pierced their pocketbooks. And now the wallpaper manufacturers, a trade involving a profit of fifteen millions a year, have done likewise because the paint men have pointed out, in well-written newspaper and magazine articles, the sanitary superiority and the economy of paint as a means of interior decoration. These men have to fight to save a deteriorating business because their more modern competitors are using against them that most effective and most modern of weapons, the public press, which reaches every one who can read—and that is every one worth counting.

"We, gentlemen," continued the speaker, "have something to fight besides our own lack of initiative, our own adherence to antiquated and supine business methods. Do you know that the artificial flower is rapidly becoming a dangerous rival of the natural flower? The paper flower has been superseded by the silk and satin and velvet flower, which looks so much like the genuine article that it can scarcely be detected. The big stores have gone so far as to put in special departments for their sale, and are advertising them profusely. Walk into any department store and see for yourself. Thousands of women are wearing these flowers that do not fade, and are decorating their homes with them. The artificial flower is a menace with which we have to reckon. Let us rouse ourselves from the lethargy into which I, for one, am broad enough to admit we have fallen, and take up the pen, which grows sharper each day as the sword of savagery grows duller—take it up for the increase of sales, for the upbuilding of the florists' business—let us have our share. Let us remind the people of flowers—and they will buy."

The president's remarks were received in silence. He had said some things so true that they hurt. After a moment's silent thought, the members, all of whom were prominent in the trade and interested in its increase, forgot their personal antagonism, which had been aroused by the pointed truths he had uttered and thought only of the good to be gained, by coinciding with his progressive ideas. They organized a fund for the conduct of a campaign of publicity for flowers in general and secured an experienced press agent to take charge of it. Details were left in his hands, but the members were ever ready to assist him in putting before the public the presence of flowers and reminding them of their acceptability. Financial assistance was cheerfully given by the allied trades, the glass firms who furnished lights for the greenhouses, the foundries who supplied the piping.

Articles appeared soon and at frequent intervals in daily and Sunday newspapers and in the weekly and monthly magazines all over the country. These, because of their timeliness and interesting construction and the beautiful illustration to which the subject so readily lent itself, were gladly accepted by the editors, who could not and would not have published them if they had mentioned the names and addresses of special firms of florists. They did not look like free advertising—that bane of the editor's existence—because they advanced the interests and the advantages, not of a commercial house, but of one of God's best gifts to man—one of man's best gifts to woman. They told of the development of plants and flowers, of their growth and care, their charm in the home, in the sickroom, in the garden. They related how the foremost educators and prelates insisted on having fresh flowers in the school and in the church, and how the most progressive business men provided for their presence in the office and in the factory. And, eventually, these ideal, but hitherto little more than imagined conditions, through persistent and adroit striking of the same nail, were driven home in the susceptible minds of the public—and became a fact.

Discreet and original advertisements were also inserted—just prior to each of the holidays when the man is think-were specially mentioned for their artistic enterprise. Department stores were induced to advertise flowers as souvenirs to be given to each purchaser on the special emblem days. And in countless other ways were flowers impinged upon the public mind.

The result was inevitable, as sure as the crowding out of candles by oil-lamps, of oil-lamps by gas, and of gas by electricity. Everyone had flowers, just as everyone has a telephone and a fountain pen. This advertising advanced the price of carnations one-ing what present he can make to the woman he loves—reminding him of flowers, the fairest and purest of gifts. Those days, which had special floral emblems, such as McKinley day, St. Patrick's day and Mothers' day, were emphasized and the newspapers got into the habit of taking it for granted that every one able to do so would wear the prescribed flower of the day. This was as simple of achievement as it had been for the great restaurants, some years before, to force the public into making an all night orgie—with wine at $5.00 per bottle—of election night and New Year's eve, both pure products of combined and organized publicity.

Each day that had no emblem was given one—one in season, too, you may be sure—and Independence day, Labor day, Christmas, New Year's, Thanksgiving, Hallowe'en, Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays, May day and Memorial day were added to the list, which had hitherto been made up—in a half hearted way, of McKinley day, Mothers' day and the seventeenth of March. Carnations, violets and roses which had formerly been neglected from the latter part of September to the middle of December, when "King Chrysanthemum" holds sway, were forced into prominence and no longer faded in the ice boxes.

Floral departments were established in the Ladies' Home Journal, The Woman's Home Companion, Vogue, Town and Country, and in the women's pages of morning and evening papers, window box and floral table decorations were encouraged in the home. Through the hotel and theatrical reporters, the hotels and theatres where flowers were a part of the regular or special decorations and where they were given to the guests as souvenirs of certain events, eighth of a cent the first year, on roses one-fourth of a cent and on plants like geraniums and so forth, an improvement of two cents a piece was brought about. And, instead of doing seven million dollars worth of business, as in 1912, the florists and growers in and about New York, did fifteen millions and have been on the increase ever since.

That is "What Happened to Flowers in 1913."

Color Arrangement in Flower Gardens.

In an address before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society March 30, delivered by Mrs. Francis King of Alma, Mich., with the above title, the speaker advocated the planning of a garden so that the colors would harmonize and enter into the details of planting so that color-groupings of flowers might be made for each month of the season. For April blossoming Scilla siberica and Crocus purpurea grandiflora with Iris reticulata and hepatica gave a composition of blue and purple with delicate pink. May with lilacs and the May flowering tulips which contain no scarlet or orange, such as Clara Butt and Reverend Eubank, and with Gesneriana lutea gave a lavender and light yellow effect. A yellow and white effect could be obtained with the white and yellow tulips and the lighter colored narcissi. In June the Delphinium cantab with white Canterbury bells and the rose pyrethrums with low masses of the grass pinks. July with the common elder for a background and a bed of Lilium elegans with gaillardias below them. August with the glorious phloxes of the heliotrope shade with deep purple verbenas. In September the Gladiolus America with hardy asters of lavender and white shades against a tall clipped hedge or Salvia azurea with Gladiolus America, Sulphur King, Peace, and Baron Hulpt give bewitching color combinations.

New Jersey State Experiment Station.

NEW GREENHOUSES AT NEW BRUNSWICK.

The florists of New Jersey secured an appropriation from the State legislature last year of $20,000 for greenhouses for floricultural investigations at the state agricultural experiment station at New Brunswick, N. J. Eleven thousand dollars of the appropriation was made available last year, and three modern houses 33 x 75 feet, and a service building, were constructed. The houses were not completed in time to be used for experiments during the past winter, but the securing of stock was begun. The remaining $9,000 of the appropriation has recently been made available, and the range will be completed during the summer. The houses, which we illustrate, are of the modern iron construction, with hollow tile foundation walls, covered with cement plaster.

The experiment station has been conducting investigations with carnations and roses for several years, but the greenhouse space available for such work has been very limited until the present time. The results already obtained, however, will be of much value as a basis for the more extended work now to be taken up. M. A. B.

Horticulturalists at Lancaster, Mass.

About sixty-five members of the Worcester County Horticultural Society accepted the kind invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Thayer to view their spacious grounds at South Lancaster, Mass., and were well repaid for the trip. Thirty-two varieties of lilacs are grown here and were in full bloom. Marie Legraye, Alba Grandiflora, Princess Alexandra, Charles X, Aline Mocquery, Ludwig Spath and Macrostachya were among the best. A beautiful specimen of the Japanese cherry, Cerasus flore pleno excited much admiration.

The walled garden containing just an acre of land was the center of attraction. The tulips were in prime condition and made a magnificent showing. Forty thousand bulbs were planted in this garden in seventy varieties. William Anderson, the superintendent, received many congratulations on the grouping of the different varieties and the effectiveness of the color scheme. Some of the best varieties were, Gesneriana Spathulata, Gesneriana Lutea, Picotee, White Queen, Cloth of Gold, Inglescombe Scarlet, Fulgens, Bouton d'Or, Carnation, Royal White, Elegans Alba, Inglescombe Pink, Mrs. Moon, and Scarlet Emperor. The Darwins were especially fine, and used in the borders among the shrubbery made a magnificent showing. The following varieties were noteworthy. Lady Marcony, Julie Vinot, King Harold, Harry Veitch, Harper Crewe, Ph. de Cominet, New York, William Copeland. Ten thousand narcissi were used in the borders combined with iris, peonies and different shrubs. Exocorda Giraldui was in full bloom as were also Syringas Wilsonii and Komorowii. Mr. Anderson has used Narcissus Poeticus, Mrs. Langtry and Leedsii very effectively in the grass outside the garden among the trees and shrubs about 75,000 bulbs have been acclimated and are now in full bloom.

The peach, nectarine and grape houses were in fine condition and the specimen plants of campanula and a bed of Eucharis Amazonica attracted much attention. The frames contained many thousands of seedling kalmias, rhododendrons, azaleas and heather which will be planted on the estate. One lot of ten thousand young white pines were all ready for planting. Another frame containing seedling evergreens from seeds collected in China by E. H. Wilson was a source of special interest. Thousands of young trees are planted every year and on this estate can be seen trees of all ages from the year old seedling to the monarch chestnut which Prof. Sargent estimates to be over two hundred years old. The drive through the pine trees was very enjoyable and gave the party a view of a fine collection of pines, abies, picea, and larch planted twenty-five feet apart so that each tree is a specimen. The visitors were loud in their praise of Mr. and Mrs. Thayer's hospitality and the courtesy of Superintendent Anderson.

American Peony Society.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society will be held this year at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. The date of the meeting has not yet been decided upon, but it will be about June 20.

The society has for some years past been carrying out a very important piece of work on the nomenclature of the peony. Peony growers do not need to be reminded that the names of many of even the commonest varieties have for a long time been under suspicion; that a variety ordered under the same name from half a dozen different growers may bring as many different sorts, or even that the same variety ordered from the same dealer in successive years will not always prove identical. There are many reasons which have combined to produce this confusion in the nomenclature. One of the most potent was that there did not anywhere exist a standard collection of varieties by means of which unnamed or misnamed sorts could be identified; there has not even been any authoritative descriptive list which would answer the purpose.

The American Peony Society decided some years ago to meet this situation by establishing a standard collection of varieties, and by publishing a descriptive check-list. The authorities at Cornell University generously offered to take care of the collection, and on an appeal from the society to growers in all parts of the world, about two less importance; about a thousand varieties in all have come under the attention of the committee. A great deal of confusion has been removed, and countless synonyms discovered.

The work is now nearly complete. After the present season's work is done, it is hoped that it will be possible to publish a final and complete check-list, giving full descriptions of practically all the varieties that are in commerce at the present time. This list will be put out by the society in book form, and will constitute the only authoritative and complete work of its kind in existence. When published it will be offered for sale to the public.

With the completion of this work the collection at Cornell will be broken up. It now occupies a large space, the care of which entails a good deal of labor. A representative collection is to be permanently planted at Cornell, and the rest of the stock will be disposed of. The meeting at Ithaca this year will give the members of the society and all interested in the peony their last chance to visit the full original collection, and as the plants are now of six or seven years' growth, the field offers an extraordinary opportunity of study for the specialist.

For the nurseryman and the amateur not yet awake to the wonderful developments that have been made in peony blooms during the past twenty-five years, the exhibition of the society and the Cornell plot itself will be a revelation.

The following letter has been sent out to all the members of the society:

"To the members of the American Peony Society.—At the last meeting of the society, held in Philadelphia, it was decided to hold this year's meeting at Cornell University, the exhibition at this meeting to be composed largely of blooms from the plants that have been placed in a permanent plot as representative of the identified varieties which have been described in the various bulletins issued. The exhibition and meeting at Cornell have been arranged with the view of giving all the members of the society an opportunity of seeing the actual results that have been obtained, and of comparing the identified varieties at Cornell with their own varieties which they are growing under the same names.

NEW GREENHOUSES AT NEW JERSEY AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION.

thousand named sorts were received and planted. These have now been under observation by the nomenclature committee of the society and by experts at Cornell for the past four or five years, and in addition the committee has worked over most of the larger collections in the eastern part of the country.

The results of these studies have been published from time to time in separate bulletins, which offer to the nurseryman and amateur authoritative descriptions of the named sorts, so far as treated. Up to the present time about ninety-five per cent of all the important commercial varieties have been described, and many others of

"As this will be the most important business meeting the society has ever held, inasmuch as various important questions will come up, it would be to the interest of every member as well as to the society to have as large an attendance as possible.

"Among the most important questions to be decided are:

"1. The method of bringing the first part of this work to a close and the disposal of the plants remaining in the original plot.

"2. The future course and policy of the society to be pursued on the completion of the Cornell work.

"3. The publication by the society of the complete official catalogue or peony manual, which shall be a revision and correction and condensation of the present manuals, this book to be published exclusively by and to be the property of the society with the view of making it a standard work on the peony, which can be placed on sale to the general public, the proceeds of which shall go to the society.

"At the last meeting of the society, held in Philadelphia, it was decided that the plants remaining in the original plot could be put to no better use than to be sold to some private estate and the proceeds of the sale used toward the expense of publishing this book, and a letter has been sent to all those firms who contributed to this experimental work, asking their consent to do this.

"As it is the desire to make the principal part of the exhibition from the Cornell plot, it has been deemed best to forego for this year the usual premium list and to offer in its place the following:

"For the best collection of not less than 100 varieties, a prize of $50 and a second prize of $25. This will be open to commercial growers only.

"For the best collection of not less than 25 varieties, a prize of $25 and a second prize of $15. This will be open to amateurs only.

"For the best new seedling of American origin not previously exhibited, $15.

"A certificate of merit will be awarded to any new variety exhibited, not in the trade previous to 1910, if deemed worthy of the same by the judges.

"The exact date of the meeting will be announced in the trade papers, and each member will receive personal notice by card."

Is the Gardener a Luxury or a Necessity?

(Abstract of paper read before the Monmouth County Horticultural Society Friday, May 10, 1912, by Dr. W. S. Whitmore.)

Having expressed myself, in fact, made the declaration, that I considered the profession of gardener one of the noblest of man, it rests with me to try to prove that assertion, and draw comparisons with other professions in order to make my declaration tenable. I have therefore taken for my theme, "Is the gardener a luxury or a necessity?"

What is a luxury? Anything indulged in for pleasure or gratification—not from necessity. Does the gardener come within the pale of this definition? Let us see. In what is he engaged? In the production of the useful and the beautiful. Luxuries are not always useful, neither are they always beautiful, especially those luxuries which are classed as extravagances or excessive indulgences in the gratification of appetite, such as rich and expensive diet, or costly dress or equipage. These are indulgences and can not be classed with the useful or the beautiful. The product of the gardener is both useful and beautiful. Therefore neither he nor his creations can be classed as luxuries.

It is the ideal of the gardener today to make every man and woman appreciate their aims, their demands and their limitations so that they shall find the road open, and if they may not actively participate, they may still sympathize with and encourage the efforts of the gardener and know the fruit of the tree of knowledge when it falls at their feet. Happy are those who live to see the glory of the garden. The gardener has learned to wrest the fruits of the earth from her bosom, so he seeks to keep the tree of knowledge in eternal bloom. Their profession holds a foremost position among all professions and among all callings. The stern necessity for cold logic, a judicial mind and exacting accuracy of technic may and often must banish for the moment the play of emotions, but the nobler of these attributes, the love for the flower, will always awaken in the heart a sympathetic response, and we forget our care and trouble and our better lives open in response to their beauty. Some day—we hope at no very distant date—it must be realized that the gardener is an absolute necessity and his efforts will be better understood and appreciated.

What is this great production of the gardener that strikes such a sympathetic strain in the hearts of the people? The flower. And why? A flower is like the sun. It shines on a world that would be dark without it, and its brightness is as that of love. The astronomer can span the illimitable space and determine the distance of the sun and the stars, the artist paint glorious creations that are beautiful and grand, and the sculptor carve things of beauty and precious to the eye, but we cannot love the stars, bend caressingly over hills, waves and streams, nor awaken into life the inanimate marble. All the inspirations of the genius of man have a speech and loveliness peculiar to themselves, but they share not in the fond home tenderness as given to flowers.

There is an innate love for the flower in the heart of every being, and in those who seem wholly engrossed by coarser things. Flowers alone of all created things seem given to minister solely to our spiritual life. They wake into being; they unfold their soft petals; they put on the loveliness of perfected bloom; young eyes have grown glad with a deeper light as they gazed upon them, and cold hearts have been warmed with a glow they could not define. Souls weary and worn have remembered anew the eternal bloom and beauty of the Paradise of God, and life has grown fairer in their sight. They have been to the child the first revelation of the infinite beauty and love. They have lifted the infidel out of darkness into God's marvelous light. Flowers have kindred and association with all that is best within us. They interpret and are sacred to our affections. We make them gifts to those we love and wear them for their sake, and plant them above their graves. Clashed in the hand of the child, pressed to the lips of love, wreathed in the tresses of the bride, or lying on the cold bosom of the dead, they have a beauty and a language given to nothing else. I have seen the rough laborer stop in his homeward walk, lay down his heavy implements to pluck a few wayside flowers to make glad a pale sickly face that he remembered lying in a little crib. I have seen the hard-featured speculator, whose spiritual being seemed walled in by stocks and exchange, pause with a sudden impulse and buy the freshest and dewiest roses of some street vender, and I knew there was a place in his heart yet open to the delicate ministrations of beauty, that through the crevices of this wall of custom its winged seeds might reach a not ungenial soil. All of us have among our acquaintances men endowed by nature with the love of flowers, who still find the old joy of their youth in gathering wild flowers on the hills or tending with watchful care the opening blossoms of a garden. Among children an affection for flowers seems universal. The world has shown them no gifts so beautiful as nature's, and when we chance to find in the maturer heart this sympathy and affection undiminished, we can not but feel that it has retained also much of childhood's freshness and truth, its pure vision and simple trust.

The pessimist will say, "Yes, they are beautiful but not useful." There has always been among men a measuring of the useful against the beautiful, as though they were antagonistic, as though the useful were not beautiful in every-day working dress, and as though the beautiful were not the useful in perfumed garments of glory; and so they have strictly begrudged the time and money and space necessary for the existence of the beautiful as if that were so much abstracted from the heritage of humanity. Really and in God's sight, nothing is more useful than the beautiful. He will not exist without it. He turns His holy eyes nowhere that beauty is not. Your practical men are kept in sufficient animation to be enthusiasts by the beauty which is about them. They do not know it any more than the flower knows that it owes its beauty to the sun. Strike out all the beautiful from the world, leave us only the useful, the manifestly useful, and we should lose all strength out of our purpose, all energy out of our arms. It is the thousandfold beauty, meeting our eyes at every turn that saves us: Such as the flower which fills the world with odor, and comes to be monumental when ledgers and bank books are clean forgotten. I say to the rich man, encourage the gardener and cultivate the flower. Let men be, like God. Lavish toward God as God is lavish toward men. Pour out your money on the beautiful. Encourage the workers in the beautiful. I would say to them, do not be afraid that having all your lives had the reputation of being practical, you should now be suspected of being a fool for spending your money on something that can but give you pleasure. You who are rich ought to provide the beautiful both for yourselves and for the poor.

No matter what a man may be or what his talents, accomplishments or wealth, there is latent in his composition a love for the beautiful. No matter what his environments, he turns to nature for her offerings. Who can give them to him? Who can produce them? Who can be the medium through which this love for the beautiful can be enlarged? Is it the tradesman? No. Is it the lawyer, the doctor, the minister, the painter, the sculptor, the mechanic? No. Only the gardener is endowed and in a position to cultivate and instruct us in the creation of new loves and ideas. Hence, the gardener is a necessity. Does it ever occur to the layman what care, what thought, what heartache both the horticultural and the floricultural gardener suffers and undergoes? Is the pittance he receives for his skill and labor the incentive that stimulates him to greater and nobler production? No. Money can only supply his wants. Money could not reimburse him for his untiring devotion, nor could give him the brains and the talent requisite for his office. The employer can never know the sleepless nights and his untiring efforts in the day, watching with expectant heart and thought lest blighting frost or withering germ might blast the tender plant or flower entrusted to his keeping. His is the responsibility, to him we look for results, and our only help is the money to supply his needs. It is all summed up in these few sentences. The agricultural gardener produces the useful by which we live, and the horticultural and floricultural gardener produces the beauties that make life worth the living.

I should wish when the icy hand of death is laid upon my brow that I might be surrounded with a wilderness of flowers whose perfume would be an incense ascending from memories' altar to waft my spirit to the land beyond the stars. I would wish that the angels should be gardeners that I might feel assured that the floral kingdom would be forever perpetuated. Such objects may well portray a state in which hope and fruition become one eternal feeling, and if it be true that the spirits of the just live on in other worlds, it must be true that the gardener who gives the effort of his life to produce results to bless mankind should share the glory of the brightest in the great hereafter.

WE shall be pleased to have reports on Memorial day business for next week's issue.

REPORTS from English growers tell us that hardy lilies, particularly Lilium auratum, planted last fall in heavy soil have done well, and that those planted in sandy soil have winter-killed.

Personal.

London, May 25.—John Evans of Richmond, Ind., a visitor at the International Flower Show here, is lying at the King Edward Hospital in Windsor, suffering from injuries received today at Frogmore, where, with other visitors, he was inspecting the royal gardens on the invitation of King George. When alighting from a coach, Mr. Evans fell heavily to the ground, fracturing his right thigh and sustaining other injuries. Tonight he is reported to be doing well.

National Council of Horticulture.

The fourth installment of the press service of the National Council of Horticulture contains articles upon the following subjects: "Peonies," "Strawberries," "Moonvines," "Water." These articles are timely and instructive and are distributed to florists, seedsmen, nurserymen and the press for the purpose of extending the interest in horticulture. Copies may be obtained of J. H. Burdett, 1620 West 104th place, Chicago.

London International Exhibition.

The grand Royal International Horticultural Exhibition was opened in London, England, on the grounds of the Royal Hospital, at Chelsea, May 22, and remained open until May 30. It was probably the grandest exhibition of horticulture and floriculture ever held, and included all the known species of plants in the world that it was possible to stage at this season. It is 46 years since the large international exhibition was held in 1866. Every firm in Great Britain, and all the prominent concerns of the continent, staged exhibits, as well as representations from America. The space given up to the exhibition was 21 acres of the grounds of the hospital, the large tent was 660 feet long, arranged in five spaces, with an extreme breadth of 300 feet, covering an area of nearly 3¼ acres. Then tents each 140 ft. x 85 ft. were set apart for exhibits from Belgium, Holland and France. A specially heated tent, 250x75 feet was devoted to orchids, the cut flowers tent was 600x40 feet, fruits and vegetables in a tent 140 x70 feet, and other tents were devoted to horticultural sundries, and the exhibits for science and education. Further in various parts of the gardens were hardy trees and shrubs and beautifully arranged rock gardens.

The schedule was divided into 13 sections as follows: store and greenhouse plants, groups and specimens, 53 classes; palms and cycads, 11 classes; orchids, 30 classes; ferns and selaginellas, 24 classes; greenhouse plants—azaleas, pelargoniums, etc., 73 classes; roses, 26 classes; carnations, 15 classes; hardy plants, including rock and alpine gardens, 104 classes; new plants, 16 classes; fruits, 45 classes; vegetables, 35 classes, and a miscellaneous section for non-competitive displays.

The orchid display was probably one of the most attractive features, all the prominent growers of these exotics being represented by beautiful exhibits. The Kings cup for the most meritorious exhibit was awarded to Lieut. Colonel Sir George Holford. (Mr. Alexander, gardener.) This was a grand display comprising mostly hybrids, some of the plants carrying hundreds of blooms. Other exhibitors were, Sanders & Sons, Sir Jeremiah Colman, Charleworth, Stuart Low & Co, J. Cyphn Armstrong & Brown, Hassell & Co., and the American representative, W. A. Wanda. The rock gardens were particularly attractive especially to the Americans, to many of whom it was a novel feature. In the cut flower section the flowers were hardly equal to the green house products of the United States, especially the carnations, but the sweet peas were grand, their flowers being borne on strong, long stems, some with six flowers to the stem. The plant display contained many finely grown specimens of all the store foliage, and greenhouse plants, including beautiful palms, ferns, cycads and exotics from every clime. W. A. Wanda was an extremely happy winner and "his most sanguine expectations were exceeded, winning twenty-two prizes, seven silver cups, six silver gilt medals, five silver medals, and one bronze medal, thereby spreading the United States all over the horticultural map" is the way he puts it to his friends in America by cable.

The list of jurors includes Americans as follows: Oakes Ames, Boston, Mass.; J. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.; E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; C. Moore, Hackensack, N. J.; Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Calif.; A. E. Thatcher, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

On my place, so far as I can see, no material damage has occurred on account of the cold weather, to many trees and shrubs. It is, however, too early to judge correctly. The cold winter of 1898-9 did more damage to the roots of trees and shrubs than to the tops, and at about the same time of the season as now. Many trees and shrubs survived it as far as their tops were concerned and in time leafed out as much as the sap in the wood could allow, but when they called on the roots for a supply they did not respond and were found to be frozen. My roses are in fine condition, being boxed and dry leaves kept dry around them. I understand many are killed back and even where wrapped with straw are girdled by the mice. Mice and rabbits have done more injury than usual. Out of 22 cold frames filled closely I have left about one-half a frame. Even that poisonous plant, the digitalis, seemed to suit the mice. In the frame where they were, a hole like a gopher hole marks where each plant stood. They girdled 14 old grapevines, three trained wall peaches and in some places cut the raspberry stools entirely to the ground. One rose bed near here is cut to the ground.

The main trouble caused by the weather is the rotting of the crown and roots of perennials. The ground froze deeply—in March came two heavy snows which drew the frost out to a depth of six inches, leaving it solid below that. The snow melted and saturated this six-inch zone of unfrozen soil, causing it to be mushy. This caused a rot of the crowns of many plants not liking wet spots. Plants liking moisture like the lobelia cardinalis and the monardas, did not mind it, but others did. It is too early yet to list the plants that suffered, but I fear that it will be a long one.

W. C. EGAN.

Highland Park, Ill.

Upon making investigation we find very little, if anything, in our nurseries damaged by the excessive cold the past winter. We attribute this to the heavy fall of snow in the fall. All our stock is coming through in extraordinarily fine shape.

L. L. MAY & Co.

St. Paul, Minn.

We would say that on the park system, during the past winter the frost killed all privet hedges to the ground; altheas seem to be badly damaged; Crimson Rambler roses are cut to the ground; many of the herbaceous plants are killed, as well as many of the evergreens.

A GREAT MEMORIAL DAY.

With the sudden turn to real summer weather last week and the early part of this, the flowers were shipped into the market in large quantities. While the warm days, and they were warm, the thermometer reaching 90 degrees on one day, were productive of a greatly increased quantity, yet they also were severe on quality, especially the roses, which were received by the thousands and although some of the stock was of fair quality, yet many were small and soft, and the Killarneys, White Killarneys and Richmonds opened very quickly. American Beauties were received in very large quantities and as the weather held warm, and the flowers were bound to open, the "S. O. S." signal was sent out to the large buyers, and the retail stores all had grand displays of this variety, the queen of roses. Peonies were forwarded in large shipments and many of the finest varieties, and the wholesalers who handle them in quantities were taxed to the utmost in unpacking and getting the great quantity received ready for reshipment. Bulbous stock is about through, the yellow narcissi have passed and the only tulips left are the Parrots, Darwins and other late varieties. There is, however, a fine lot of double white poeticus narcissus that came in just right for Memorial day. Carnations are not any too plentiful, that is first class stock, which sells at a good figure, but the held over stock that begins to take on a sleepy look and the small flowers were sold very cheap. Lilies are of very good quality, and there is a fair supply, but the orders for Memorial day will be very large. Lily of the valley is quite plentiful and the quality of most of the stock is first class. Sweet peas are received in large numbers and in various grades, the older vines are now producing nothing but short stems, but there are some beautiful Spencer varieties (Butterfly) to be had with large flowers and long stems. Anterrhinum of the long grade is quite scarce, there being but little that is not short and small. Mignonette also shows the effects of the hot weather. Gladiolus is fine, there being some elegant spikes of Mrs. Francis King, Augusta and America as well as Bride, Blushing Bride, and Peach Blossom of the small flowered varieties. Lilac is not seen in such large quantities, but the windows are full of Spirea Van Houttei, which will come in handy for Memorial day. The stock of greens is still rather short, new hardy ferns are just coming in but they are not yet real hard and the old stock is preferred at higher prices. The warm weather has caused a grand rush to be made on those who deal in bedding stock, and the force has been kept at top notch speed getting the beds and window and porch boxes set out. Everything looks well for a grand Memorial day trade.

NOTES.

The Pulverized Manure Co. is mailing to the trade this week its new wholesale list for dealers and growers, which is effective June 1 and cancels all former lists. After a careful perusal of the pages, which also contains some valuable information regarding the firm's product, the reader begins to believe that the author is right when he says Wizard Brand Manures "help nature hustle." Anyone in the trade who would like to obtain a copy of this list can do so by sending their name and address to the firm's office, 32 Union Stock Yards, in this city.

The wholesale houses are experiencing some difficulty with customers who conduct their business under a firm or greenhouse name, and sometimes order under this name and again under the personal name of the proprietor, which causes much trouble and sometimes necessitates carrying two accounts for the same firm. It will be greatly appreciated by the wholesale men if the buyer will use either his name or the firm's name altogether when ordering, and they feel sure that the buyer will be only too glad to do this now that it has been brought to his attention.

The demand for bedding stock at the Geo. Wittbold Co.'s continues to be good, and a large quantity of plants are now being shipped out. The bay trees and boxwood trees are also moving well and the large assortment of specimens is gradually diminishing.

Wm. F. Schofield had the decoration for the opening of the new buffet in the Palace theatre, opposite the City hall square, on May 25, and the artistic arrangement of the flowers was a credit to the florist and harmonized well with the magnificent $30,000 interior.

James J. Curran, recently of Danville, Pa., is visiting his daughter and son-in-law, G. E. Simpson, 1967 Balmoral avenue, and incidentally calling on some of his many friends in the trade.

The many friends of John A. Evans, of Richmond, Ind., much regretted to hear of his unfortunate accident in London, where he fell in stepping from a carriage and broke his leg.

Fred Strail, with Lubliner & Trinz, arranged the decoration for the banquet which was given in honor of Congressman Mann at the Chicago Beach Hotel on Saturday, May 25.

Miss Rennie Garland returned last Sunday, May 26, from a long visit at Albuquerque, N. M.

Bassett & Washburn are pushing work on their new property at Greets station and the ground is now being leveled, a well being drilled and the carnations have all been planted in the field. This firm is cutting a magnificent grade of Rhea Reid and Mrs. Aaron Ward roses and the large supply is always quickly sold to their best customers. Art. Pasternik and Joe Einveck are working under difficulties this week. Arthur is suffering with blood poisoning and has his left hand bandaged up and Joe has a few of his employer's carbuncles on his neck.

Wietor Bros. are having a fine Memorial day trade and are supplying their customers with extra fancy American Beauty, Killarney, White Killarney and Mrs. Jardine roses. The latter are very beautiful when they are partly in bloom and many can be seen prominently displayed in the windows of the down-town stores. N. J. Wietor says that the spring work is progressing very favorably and that his firm has already planted 60,000 carnations indoors.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association received some new Mexican ivy of good quality this week and also a fine grade of Cape Jasmine, Killarney roses and other, seasonable stock. Mr. Kidwell says that he has leased the fourth floor of the firm's building to a local hardware concern for $65.00 a month and that increasing business has necessitated the moving of the packing department to the second floor.

Nic. Kruchten is cutting a fine grade of "Butterfly" sweet peas and his entire output is sold by his son John at his wholesale store on the local market. Mr. Kruchten was one of the first growers in this vicinity to grow this variety and it is needless to say that he was very successful with it, for the fine quality of the stock that he is now cutting speaks for itself.

Tim Matchen and his force of assistants are very busy at the Peter Reinberg store packing Memorial day orders and the shipping trade at this house this week has been exceptionally brisk. The American Beauties that this house are offering are fine and a good supply of the pretty rose Sunrise was also noticed.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. were busy as bees this week with Memorial day business and a couple of new faces were seen helping out the regular force during the big rush. The genial southerner himself was right on the job with his sleeves rolled up and set the pace for his willing helpers.

E. H. Hunt is featuring a fine grade of Richardson's Rubra Suberba peonies, and C. M. Dickinson says at the first of the week that he had 600 dozen of these choice flowers to offer. A. F. Longren is back from a successful business trip and is now helping out at the store during the rush.

J. A. Budlong's fine blue ribbon lily of the valley continues to arrive in large quantities and fancy Aristocrat and Afterglow carnations are now being used largely on shipping orders.

George Pieser has been engaged as florist at the Hotel La Salle and will hereafter have charge of the floral department.

E. E. Pieser, the Peony King, and his Peony Kids were pretty busy at Kennicott Bros. Co's. store this week and they certainly worked hard and moved a large quantity of stock.

John Sinner says that he did not have any trouble disposing of his peonies this week and that he was well satisfied with the prices that he received for them.

Fred Hoerber is through serving on the jury and his many friends are now pleased to see him back at his old stand again at Hoerber Bros.' store. His firm is cutting a fine grade of Butterfly sweet peas and roses and is fortunate in having good crops for the June weddings.

The J. B. Deamud Co. filled a large number of orders for double white narcissus and peonies for Memorial day and at this writing they were still working and orders were still coming in.

H. Van Gelder has installed another large wall case in Percy Jones' supply department this week and it sure does show that he is going to carry a full line.

Chas. W. McKellar is showing some fine orchids and peonies and his stock in general compares favorably in quality with that of the other houses.

Weiland & Risch are receiving a good supply of roses and carnations and a fine grade of gardenias is now one of the chief offerings.

The E. F. Winterson Co. had a fine line of all seasonable stock for Memorial day and sold a large quantity of peonies and carnations.

Kohout & Merker report that the Lawndale Floral Co. is enjoying a good season and that the demand for plants is very large.

Joe Weis is prospering in the retail business on Southport avenue and his trade is rapidly increasing.

Frank Evert, one of the oldest settlers of this city, died at the home of his son-in-law, Henry Wieter, on Monday, May 20, at the age of 86 years. The late Mr. Evert was held in high esteem by the residents in Rogers Park and a large attendance was present at the funeral which was held in St. Henry's church the following Sunday. The body was laid to rest in the cemetery adjoining the church and the floral offerings were many and beautiful.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. are right in crop with orchids and some magnificent Cattleya Gigas, C. Mossiae, C. Mendellii and C. Gaskelliana are now arriving in large quantities at the store. Long stemmed American Beauty roses and fancy Butterfly sweet peas are also arriving in fine shape and are moving readily. Otto W. Feese says the orders were many for Memorial day and that the holiday business was very satisfactory.

George Reinberg is cutting a fine grade of Richmond roses and the supply on May 23 was very large, the biggest that Robert Northam was ever called upon to handle. The huge ice-box was completely filled with choice blooms and when one opened the door he could see nothing but a solid mass of crimson buds.

H. A. Fischer, of H. A. Fischer & Co., Kalamazoo, Mich., bought 1,000 dozen peonies for his Memorial day trade while he was in the city here this week. His firm's business is ever increasing and a new Schack automobile truck was added to the delivery service this month.

Henry Wittbold and his force of assistants are very busy and the order book shows that they have several large wedding decorations for next week.

Erne & Klingel, the new wholesalers, have added another grower to their list and are now offering a fine grade of lilies.

Detroit.

A review of the trade the past week is a mere recital of complaints from growers, wholesalers and retailers alike. Commencing with Monday, which brought excessive heat, unfavorable to trade and consignment of flowers of all kinds far in excess of the limited demand. This condition continued daily, with increasing aggravation as the end of the week approached, finding the market heavily loaded with immense quantities of lilies, roses, carnations, Gladioli Calvelli and snapdragon, Darwin lilies and sweet peas. Fortunately for the situation, a charitable institution undertook the sale, on the streets, of the accumulated surplus and succeeded in disposing of 30,000 flowers, netting a fair return for much of the week's accumulation, but the retailers had no share in this business so fruitful to the growers. Decoration day promises the injection of new life into the situation and the beginning of the present week marks a strengthening of prices, though no diminution of stock is indicated, carnations alone being the only item that will be probably short of the demand, this being the result of heavy orders coming from the smaller country towns. Roses will be plentiful, with no appreciable advance in price. Gladioli Calvelli will be on the market in great quantities and one grower, who makes a specialty of Darwin tulips, promises a shipment to the wholesale house of 30,000 flowers. Easter lilies cannot, it seems, be moved at any price, and there seems to be no end to the crop, as many growers are heavily in crop. Peonies are received from southern points, but as yet meet with little demand. The Michigan Cut Flower Exchange is handling the finest fancy ferns ever seen at this season of the year on this market. They are shipping thousands of them to all points of the country. Asparagus plumosus is in great demand, especially the short sprays, much of it being used in corsage bouquets now so popular. The plant growers are now deep in the season's work, shipping and planting thousands of geraniums, fuchsia vincas, coleus and other bedding plants. Boxwoods are in good demand and many fine specimens now adorn the beautiful homes of our city. Window boxes are as popular as ever and some of the florists are over-worked with this branch of the business.

NOTES.

E. A. Fetters has purchased a lot 70x200 on Woodward avenue, near Bethune, in the heart of the fine residential district. He will before long build a greenhouse and store on the property and operate the place independent of his Farmer street store. Mr. Fetters, with his wife, enjoyed a trip to Mt. W. B. Brown has made an investment in real estate at Highland Park. This he may later use for a floral store and greenhouse.

Harry Breitmeyer now gets around the city in a new Hupp touring car.

THE MARKET.

According to all indications the Decoration day business should be one of the largest of that day's business that this market has ever known. The supply of everything will be large and there is at the time of writing quite a large number of orders already on file. The peony cut is large and the stock all very good. Carnations are coming in better than was expected a fortnight ago. Other stock is in a good supply. Cape jessamines are now in. Last week business was good, but the supply was as a whole somewhat larger than could be readily used and as a result by the close of the week there was somewhat of an accumulation in roses, carnations, lilies, etc. The accumulation was due in a large part to one of the trains that always carries large shipments to this city getting in about 5 hours late. The wholesalers, instead of receiving their stock at 7:30 a. m., received it at noon. This was, of course, after the principal part of the day's business was over. The outlook for commencement and wedding flowers is good. American Beauties are from a new crop just coming in. Other roses of good quality are in an adequate supply. The lily of the valley offerings are sufficient for requests and a larger supply is promised. Other stock includes miniature and large gladioli, corn flower, pansies and sweet peas.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell has made arrangements for and expects to handle and ship more peonies this Decoration day than he has ever disposed of for this day in previous years. He is also receiving Cape Jasmynes.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Trade was very good the first part of the week but during the latter part the wholesale houses were well stocked in all lines, sweet peas, peonies, roses, carnations, jasmynes could be had at low prices. A few weddings, openings and steamship departures helped some. Prospects for Memorial day are that there will be plenty of flowers to go around.

The pleasant smiles and happy faces of the proprietors of both the wholesale and retail stores shows very plainly that business is again in its normal condition. Large shipments of carnations and roses are continually flooding the market, but they arrive in a soft condition, owing to the hot weather. American Beauties are having a good sale, and the amount of stock is none too large to meet the requests. Lily of the valley is quite plentiful, the quality is very fine and there is a good call. A great quantity of out-of-door lily of the valley is also being brought in. Cattieyas are especially fine this week and find ready sales. Pansies are very plentiful and some very large blossoms are to be had. Baby gladioli are coming in in good quantity. Killarney, White Killarney, My Maryland, Richmond, Kaiserin and Mrs. Aaron Ward roses are very plentiful and are disposed of very quickly. Marguerites are shown in good quantity, both yellow and white, and there is a very good demand for them. Smilax and other greens are short all the time and do not fill the requirements of the retailer.

NOTES.

Harry P. Neun had a very attractive window this week. It represented a room decorated for a house wedding. A bank of palms and hydrangeas was the background and two immense vases of tulips just at the back of the altar rail, the rail being of white enamel with two satin pillows. Large loops of white satin ribbon greatly added to the effect. On the carpet leading to the altar were placed a handsome shower bouquet of white Killarney and a bridesmaid's bouquet of pink Killarney roses. The whole effect was very good and drew large crowds.

The Canadian delegates from St. Catharines, Ont., Can., numbering about 100, visited this city Friday, May 24. They were met at the depot by the mayor and other officials and were taken in specially chartered automobiles to Highland, Seneca and South parks. Most of their time was spent at Highland park, where upwards of 100 varieties of lilacs were in bloom. They expressed much delight in their visit and left at 7 p. m.

The Syracuse Florists' Association were unable to visit this city May 22 as planned, owing to the small number who were able to get away for the day.

The florists just outside Mount Hope cemetery are very busy, crowds of people purchasing bedding-out plants to decorate the graves.

Geo. B. Hart reports that he is having a large sale of spring plants.

Charles E. Sharpe is now working for H. P. Neun. H. J. H.

The warm sunshine of the last few days has caused the roses to pop open and a great many have been brought to the Exchange this week. More roses than demand for them just now. The out-door flowers are coming to the front these days and the florists expect to do a good business on Decoration day, though the trade with us on that day is not what it is in the New England states, especially in towns near Boston, for anything that is a flower sells there at that time.

NOTES.

The A. S. Abell Estate, owned by the founder of the "Baltimore Sun," has been sold to the Roland Park Land Co., and they are getting it into shape preparatory to building fine homes. Ornamental shrubbery has been planted along the whole length of the portion bordering the York road, and draining and grading are being pushed rapidly. We were sorry to see the old landmark, a huge lion, which has guarded the entrance for years, disappear from view. This fine old property, with its magnificent forest trees and park, has been one of the last to go into the hands of the real estate men.

One of the principal attractions this week has been the Horse Show at the Elkridge Hunt Club. Large crowds have been present each day. The beautiful costumes of the ladies are always a feature of the event as well as the fine display of horses and their actions. Miss Elkins, as well as several other prominent society women, rode. The dinners after the show have been numerous, and, of course, this means money in the florist's pocket.

Our parks are looking their very best just now and no prettier spot can be found on a beautiful May day than Druid Hill park, with its velvety lawns, fine old trees and flowers, in the midst of which sits the old Colonial Mansion House, which is visited by all on a day's outing.

The bright warm weather has brought out an abundance of all kinds of flowers, and as always is noticeable, business also fell off. Of course, this does not apply to planting, as many florists are compelled to turn down planting jobs almost every day. Peonies are arriving in good shape, especially the early red varieties. The outlook for Decoration day is exceedingly good.

BUSINESS GOOD.

Things are about the same as last week; some put on a cheerful smile and talk about selling out clean, while others will show you what they had left from yesterday. Big roses this week are not called for and are almost the last thing to move. The small rose seems to be the best seller at present. There is every indication of a fair cut of roses, although there will be no oversupply. The carnation market is up in the air. We were pleased to hear of W. A. Manda taking 22 prizes over in London. This is the case of the pupil beating his trainer, and the world looked upon the old country as being the king pin of plantsmen, especially in dear old London, don't ye know? Boston has known Manda years ago, and they have followed his successes everywhere, and the craft has been elated and pleased, and this latest splurge has made us feel big-chested. Walsh of Wood Hole is to be commended also for beating the Brits. Pretty soon they will own up that we are not all liars over here and that some of the trade can do big things quietly and open their eyes. Boston common is showing the good effects of manure and a change of soil. It looks better than it has for years. The cost has been great, but it has and will more than repay the expense with a deep green carpet. A new band stand has been built of marble. The Weary Willys and Tired Tims can rest under the shade trees and listen to the municipal band rendering anything from rag time to Mozart.

TRADE VERY LIVELY.

The past week has been a busy one with the florists of this city, who have had all they could do with the numerous school commencements which have called for a large quantity of flowers. There are many educational institutes here, and as all have public exercises of some kind, there is a great call for flowers, and the end is not yet; for the public schools and the universities are to have their commencements in the next week, or two. Besides the flowers sent to graduates—and they are not a few—there has in most instances been elaborate platform decorations; and where they had baccalaureate sermons in the churches, there were handsome decorations all calling, not only for palms, but for lilies and roses as well. The blooming hydrangeas have been special favorites for this purpose. American Beauty roses have had a fine sale and no graduate was too insignificant to receive a bunch of them. The old time basket has had some partiality shown it and was often seen in the floral tributes. Added to the annual call there have been several funerals of prominent citizens. The approach of Memorial day does not affect the trade here as it does further north, from the fact that at this season the out-of-door blossoms are most abundant and quantities may be had for the asking, therefore the florists never take into consideration Memorial day. We have two days set apart for decoration, May 30 and June 4, for the Federal and Confederate cemeteries respectively, and each have their ceremonies, flowers and oratory. The very rainy season has dropped to a very dry time and the sun shines down with a seemingly increased ardor that has come upon us suddenly and made it very hard on the flower growing.

FROM THE BRITISH TRADE PAPERS.

Jasminum nudiflorum for Forcing.—This rapid growing climber, which is quite hardy in France and England, is naturally winter blooming and easily to be had in flower by the New Year. It multiplies easily by cuttings or layers, and its single yellow opposite flowers produced on the bare twigs, have an unusual and spring-like effect. To produce plants for this purpose, rooted cuttings or layers made in spring will produce quite good plants by fall; these may be potted singly or several together the following spring to produce a showy potful, sunk in the ground and covered with soil so that the roots may find nourishment outside the pots. After a few ripening frosts, these pots should be taken up and brought inside for ten days or so, when they will bloom freely; they do not require special light or heat. After flowering the pots should be again sunk in the ground to prevent bursting. A severe pruning in spring will remove the branches that have blossomed and provide new shoots for the succeeding year, when the process may be repeated. The plants may be trained upright and trimmed like small trees, with decorative effect.

A New Honeysuckle.—In 1910, when Lonicera pileata was given an award of merit by the Royal Horticultural Society, it was referred to as well worth growing for the sake of its neat bushy habit alone. By comparison with Lonicera nitida—of which there were some charming little examples in Veitch's nursery at Coombe Wood last autumn, and which have since, I believe, been distributed—Lonicera pileata is, as an ornamental shrub, left far behind. Lonicera nitida is of a dense, compact habit of growth. It is said to reach a height of three to six feet, but I was much impressed with some perfect little examples about two feet high. In this state they would form ideal pot plants for decorative purposes where the conditions are too cold and draughty for tender subjects. The leaves, which are very thickly disposed on the shoots, are small, ovate in shape, and of a bright shining green color. The flowers are said to be creamy white and fragrant, but I have not met with them. At all events, its merits as a foliage plant alone are such that the question of flowers may be passed over.

An Interesting New Zealand Shrub.—Although rarely met with outside botanic gardens, Coroeka cotoneaster is sufficiently showy to be brought into general use. In the south and south-west counties it would thrive in the open ground, while in less favored localities it is worth a position against a wall. Belonging to the cornus family, it forms a dense bush of small, twiggy branches, which are rather sparingly clothed with small, rounded, dark green leaves which have a silvery under surface. The yellow, star-shaped flowers are produced during the latter part of April and May. They are nearly half an inch across, and are succeeded by small, oval, orange scarlet fruits, which ripen in autumn. It thrives in loamy soil, and also succeeds in a compost containing peat. Cuttings of young shoots inserted in sandy soil in a propagating case may be rooted during the summer. A well-flowered example is to be seen growing against a wall with a southern aspect near the water garden at Kew.

New Hybrid Saxifrages.—One of the most interesting exhibits at the last meeting of the Royal Horticultural Society was the beautiful and unique collection of hybrid saxifrages staged by Mrs. Lloyd-Edwards. These were mostly of the mossy section, and several varieties were really magnificent. For instance, Sanguinea Superba was the richest color of its kind we have ever seen. The newly opened flowers are rich, glowing scarlet, the color fading somewhat with age. Rose Beauty, with bright rose flowers of medium size and compact habit, and Queen May, pure white, flowers large, were two others of exceptional merit. Then there were two in the raising of which the British saxifrage, Saxifraga granulata, had been used as a parent. One of these was named Mrs. J. F. Tottenham; its habit is compact and good, and the flowers are large, of good form and pure white. The other was taller and had flowers more star-shaped and white. This was named Comet.

Two Fine Astilbes.—There have been numerous introductions from China during the last decade, but two of the best herbaceous subjects are Astilbe Davidii and A. grandis. The former is similar to A. Japonica, so far as the foliage is concerned, but on a larger scale, while the flower-stem reaches a height of four to six feet, the top portion being densely covered with small rose violet blossoms. The latter is very like A. Davidii in general habit, but it produces tall spikes of pure white flowers, and is a charming acquisition. Both are quite hardy, and will succeed in a damp border.

New Rose, Mrs. E. Alford.—This new rose received an award of merit when shown at a recent meeting of the Royal Horticultural Society. It belongs to the hybrid tea section, and as a forcing rose it has many good points. This new-comer appears the embodiment of the best attributes of Mme. Abel Chatenay and La France. There are the well-rolled recurving petals of both of these, wedded to a longer and more pointed flower, such as Mrs. G. Shawyer. In the main the color leans to a rather pale Mme. Abel Chatenay, but the flowers are handsome and well set up on firm, bold stems. The variety is nicely scented.

Deutzia Longifolia.—A delightful novelty and a good garden plant all in one; a plant, too, that must presently be demanded in its thousands. The great charm of the species is the pink coloring of the flowers, these appearing in axillary clusters on every twig and branch, large or small. Bushy and free in growth and flowering, and neat-habited and hardy withal, the newcomer would appear to possess every attribute capable of rendering it immensely popular. It is one of Mr. Wilson's introductions from China and we regard it as an acquisition.

Lewisia Howellii.—A superbly-flowered example of this recently introduced novelty was shown. The succulent leaves are nearly spatulate, with raised, crested, sinuate margins, the stalked inflorescences appearing from the bases of the lower leaves. The plant carried about eleven finely developed inflorescences and a profusion of flowers capable of enduring for weeks. The expanded flowers are of the size of a shilling, buff to apricot in tone and striped with red. By far the most remarkable alpine novelty shown at this meeting.

New Rose, Mrs. C. Reed.—This appears to be a most promising new hybrid tea rose, and certainly it is a fine one for forcing. The flowers are of large size, and fine form, full, broad petalled, and extremely beautiful. The color is creamy-buff, exquisitely suffused with pink, forming an art shade that costumers are sure to imitate quickly. The flowers are borne on long stout stems, and the foliage suggests that the rose has a good constitution.

A New Hybrid Forsythia.—Among the several species and varieties of forsythia flowering at the present time, F. spectabilis, a hybrid of continental origin, is prominent. It is one of the forms of F. intermedia, which is a hybrid between F. suspensa (Fortunei) and F. viridissima. There are at least two other somewhat similar forms—F. densiflora and F. vitellina. F. spectabilis, however, is a golden yellow, quite the richest colored of all the forsythias. The flowers are large and very freely produced on the branches.

Crocus King of the Whites.—This is one of the newer varieties of the Dutch crocuses, which, apparently, are once more taking a stride forward, several new varieties having come into commerce lately. King of the Whites is not only larger, but is better shaped than the old Mont Blanc, which is still a favorite. I have had this beautiful crocus for a few years now, and as my clumps increase in size, so they do in beauty.

Araucaria Excelsa Elegantissima Aurea.—In the small examples as shown this is a very pretty variety, the tips of all the branchlets being of a pale yellow color, which is in marked contrast to the body color of the branches. As an excellent companion to Silver Star, which has whitened or silvery tips, we commend this fine novelty to all.

PREDICTIONS COME TRUE.

The past week's business was in keeping with the predictions of last week for a record-breaking month. All, or nearly all, the peonies used at commencement exercises were shipped stock; local stock is just about coming in, and is now almost an assured fact for Decoration day, some of the early red arriving on Saturday morning for the first time this season. Carnations have been more plentiful, but the extremely warm weather is fading the colors somewhat; otherwise stock is in fine shape. Roses of all kinds are very plentiful, the warm weather bringing them in in large quantities. American Beauties are in full crop, long stem, medium and short, for funeral work. Kaiserine Augusta Victoria roses are in full crop and are in good demand, their excellent keeping qualities during warm weather making them the favorite white rose for all occasions. Sweet peas are plentiful and find a good market. Valley and orchids had a good call the past week, some fine cattleya Mossiae arriving daily. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

NOTES.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange will have a full crop of Beauties and Kaiserine roses for the summer months, as these are considered the best warm weather flowers grown for all occasions. C. F. B.

New York.

A GREAT OVER ABUNDANCE.

Undoubtedly this has been the worst week of the season as far as the wholesale market is concerned. There is an oversupply of all seasonable flowers. Peonies which a week ago were of poor quality are now arriving in large quantities and the blooms are much improved, still they only bring half the prices of former seasons. Outdoor lilac is a glut everywhere. Preparations are being made for a very large Memorial day business, most of the wholesale houses having large orders to be shipped out of town. It is not expected that the prices will be as high as in other years. The orders are principally for carnations, which will be shipped at about three and four cents. Carnations during the week, probably for the first time during the season, were so plentiful and the demand was so light, they were thrown away by thousands, the very warm spell, coming on so suddenly caused so many to soon go to "sleep." The orchid market if possible is in a worse condition than previously, the supply keeps increasing and the call decreasing. It is only the Cattleya Gigas that is bringing a good figure, it seems strange to see so many cattleyas at present being sold by the street men. Good quality gardenias are not so plentiful but it is impossible to dispose of the smaller grades at any fair price. Lily of the valley is over plentiful and spoils quickly on account of the hot weather. Sweet peas are of exceptionally good quality but moving slowly. There is a better market for a few of the choicer grades of roses, such as Prince de Bulgarie, Mme. Chatenay, Mrs. Aaron Ward and My Maryland. Richmond and Killarney show the effects of the weather and many of the best of these blowing open so quickly, have to be disposed of to speculators with large lots of the shorter grades. There is absolutely no call for the top grades of Brides and Bridesmaids. Only a fair demand for the very best American Beauties. There is sufficient supply of the smaller varieties of Gladioli to meet all demands. Spanish and German Iris are moving slowly. Asparagus is selling well and the best quality smilax finds ready sale, but Adiantum is accumulating and hard to move. While there have been a great many orders placed with the retailers for the Commencements and exercises of the private schools during the week, flowers have been so plentiful that these orders, large as they have been, seem hardly to make any impression in the market.

Monday noon, May 27.—No change to any extent in quotations. Weather very warm and business very disappointing. Demand much lighter than it was expected for the Monday preceding Memorial day.

NOTES.

Wallace R. Pierson, who is chairman of the committee appointed by the New York Florists' Club to secure appropriation from the S. A. F. and private sources for a fund to conduct a "National Campaign on Publicity" for the florists' business, was in town Friday, attending a meeting of his committee, to properly organize and map out a plan of procedure. Mr. Pierson is enthusiastic in the matter and will push the matter to a successful termination.

Joseph S. Feurich has the sympathy of the craft in the losses he has sustained in his family. On Tuesday his brother George died at the age of 39 years, and on the same day Mrs. Mary Le Mout, his mother-in-law, died, aged 60 years. Mrs. Le Mout was the wife of the well-known florist, Adolph Le Mout, who for forty years conducted a retail store at 272 Bowery.

Frank H. Traendly, chairman of the Transportation Committee, reports that even at this early date, great interest is being manifested in the trip to the Chicago convention. Already enough have signified their intention of going to insure the engaging of a special train.

A cable report to the New York Herald from London, reports that John Evans, a Director of the Society of American Florists, has met with a painful accident, having his leg broken while alighting from a carriage at the Royal Horticultural Show.

An old friend, A. F. Faulkner, of Washington, is with us this week, and combining business with pleasure, is disposing of large shipments of very fine peonies which are sent to him from Washington. Mr. Faulkner returned home on Monday.

Gunther Bros. are fortunate in having a fine supply of carnations and peonies for Memorial day. In the peonies they are receiving thousands of Festiva Maxima of the very best quality and as usual this variety is most called for.

The stork has been busy lately. On Sunday he visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter McKenney and left a boy, eleven pounds. On Thursday, to Mr. and Mrs. Maurice L. Glass, a girl, nine pounds.

A NORMAL SUPPLY.

Good weather has brought along the outside stock very fast the past week, but in spite of this favorable influence, the peony crop on which so much depends for Memorial day will be a day or two late. This popular flower lends itself graciously to cold storage treatment but no way has yet been found to hurry it along. Business the past week has been fair, the bedding plant men being especially busy, thousands of geraniums have been sent out, everything with a flower selling at sight. Rambler roses for spring planting are now in flower and are very attractive. W. K. Harris having a fine lot of well budded plants. H. A. Dreer says they never had such a sale of potted roses as have gone out this season. The cut flower supply is normal, plenty of roses and a fair offering of carnations. Miniature gladioli have had quite a run and are about over. Sweet peas are plentiful and fine. Peonies appear late and are bringing a good price. Albert Jones, of the Pennock Meehan Co., says they are from one to two days late. The warm weather of Monday will help, but the outlook is that the supply will be short and many orders are going out only partly filled. $6.00 is low and only for fair stock, better grades bringing $8 to $12 per hundred. The volume of business for the holiday is ahead of last season.

EXPORTERS

NOTES.

The large Franklin greenhouse at Yardley is well under way, the glazers now putting in the glass. James Jamison, a brother of Robert Jamison, the rose grower of the Joseph Heacock Co., formerly with the Knorr Brothers, will have charge of the plant, which is not to finish with one house. There is 140 acres of land in the place and it is the intention to expand year by year, as the business warrants.

The Joseph Heacock Co.'s house is entirely completed and planting will be finished about June 10, 22,000 plants will be set out, half pink Killarney, one quarter White Killarney and Double White Killarney, and the balance of the space will be filled with Radiance, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Lady Hillingdon.

A Publicity Campaign for Flowers.

A committee of the New York Florists' Club has addressed the following letter to the different florist clubs of the country:

The members of the New York Florists' Club believing that proper publicity in teaching the public to know flowers, and the proper uses of them, and that by calling attention through proper publicity channels to the various special flower days throughout the year, the flower business as a whole would be greatly benefited by such a movement; and the club having a unanimous vote instructed our committee to ask co-operation from the other florist clubs of this country and Canada, in the belief that such a publicity campaign should be managed and conducted by a committee of the Society of American Florists, we, as the committee of the New York Florists' Club, ask your support and co-operation in this, and that your club also appoint a committee to work in conjunction with our committee at the Chicago convention, in an effort to secure the authorization and organization of such a general publicity committee.

Plaintain Lilies.

Shady beds and borders are generally rather difficult to render attractive in the summer time, for though spring-flowering plants will do as well in such positions as anywhere, that is, doronicums, dielytra, myosotis, Solomon's seal, scillas, the primrose family, etc., the number of summer-flowering plants that will thrive where they get little or no sun is decidedly limited. Funkias form one of the few groups that prefer much shade, doing well even where in June they only get the sun in the early morning or evening, their foliage sometimes developing to a great size under such conditions, if there is sufficient moisture, whereas, if grown in full sun their flowering spikes are often dried up during the first two or three hot days in June. Their main requirement, says a writer in the Gardners' Magazine, is a deep, well-cultivated soil, inclined to dampness, and though some of the larger-leaved sorts are suitable for growing in groups by the waterside, most of them will not do well where there is stagnant moisture. They develop their handsome foliage early in the spring, and keep green till the autumn, throwing up their spikes of bell-shaped flowers, usually of a lilac tint, from June onwards. They are fine plants for the partially-shaded flower border, or for open spaces among shrubs if not too dry, and are excellent for edgings to large beds and borders.

As to varieties, there is one kind, however, which needs different conditions from most of the others, and that is F. subcordata grandiflora, sometimes known as the Corfu lily. While funkias generally are grown principally for their foliage, this is valued for its flowers, which come later in the summer than the others, generally not before August, and, instead of being a shade-loving plant, it needs a sunny spot in a well drained soil if it is to do well in this country. It throws up its spikes of large white sweet-scented flowers in August and September, when most of the other kinds have finished. It is better grown in groups than as an edging. Its young foliage is liable to be preyed upon by slugs and snails, which need to be guarded against, as a leaf which is mutilated at this season is spoiled for the summer, and the plant disfigured.

The best kind of funkia to be grown chiefly for its foliage is F. Sieboldiana major, which has large glaucous leaves, sometimes a foot across, while its pale lilac racemes of flowers rise to a height of three feet. It is best grown in large, bold groups, and if well placed, so that other plants show up its bluish-green leaves, very fine effects may be produced with it. There is a variety of it with yellow-margined foliage, but many consider it no improvement. For the formation of a border to a large bed of sub-tropical plants these two varieties stand apart from the others. F. ovata has large deep green leaves of a glaucous hue, and there are varieties of it with leaves margined white and variegated gold. F. undulata has the leaves waved at the edges, and this, too, has a variegated kind, silver and green.

American Seed Trade Association.

Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago, President; Marshall H. Durvea, New York, First Vice-President; Edgar Gregory, Marblehead, Mass., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, Ohio, Secretary and Treasurer. Next annual convention at Chicago, June 25-27, 1912.

BURLAP used for baling sphagnum is fifty per cent higher than last year.

WE regret to learn of the death of Oscar Younkerman, president of the Younkerman Seed Co., Council Bluffs, Ia., May 23.

ONION SET fields at Chicago are showing a pretty good stand, though very late. The seed has germinated pretty well.

CHICAGO.—Prices on the Board of Trade, May 28, for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $9 to $14 per 100 pounds.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Charles H. Vick has been appointed superintendent and manager of the state fair to be held here in September.

G. C. ELDERING, of W. J. Eldering & Son, Overveen, Haarlem, Holland, sailed from New York for home on the SS. Rotterdam, May 28.

It is thought there are sufficient seed beans of some kinds now carried by the seed trade to furnish more than half a supply for next year.

CABBAGE, celery and beet seeds will be short crop again. In Europe Paris Golden Self Blanching celery seed will, it is said, be even more scarce than last year.

REPLANTING of corn has begun, many farmers not realizing how faulty their seed was. The season in the central west is fully two weeks late. Drought prevails along the Missouri.

REPORTS on the Dutch bulb crop, from the Haarlem district, continue favorable. Rain has fallen there recently and present indications are that the crop should be a good one.

JOHN DE WIT, of Ernst & von Spreckelsen, Hamburg, Germany, recently arrived from Europe and is calling on the trade, with headquarters in care of American Express Co., Kansas City, Mo.

KENTUCKY BLUE GRASS seed of new crop seems to be on the toboggan. Kentucky dealers seem to be quite willing to sell against what must appear now like a bumper crop. The latest figures, May 27, are $1.65 to $1.85 per bushel, according to grade. Holders of old crop are willing to let go gracefully.

WITH a view of assisting the farmers of the flooded district along the Mississippi river, the Department of Agriculture suggests the following crops may be planted: Cotton, of early maturing varieties, up to June 15, cowpeas, peanuts, soy beans, sorghum, watermelons, sweet potatoes, cabbage, onions and beans.

French Bulbs.

TOULON, FRANCE, May 16.—There has been a very important change in the Roman hyacinth outlook. For some days we have had excessive heat and many growers in the bulb region have seen the foliage of the hyacinths shrivel and on investigation found many bulbs diseased. In consequence of this the harvest will be reduced. Notwithstanding this condition the price remains the same as last year because the cultivation of hyacinths has extended to the northward of the former growing district and further because the orders up to this time from foreign countries do not total as large as in preceding years.

American Seed Trade Association.

The thirtieth annual convention will be held at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 25-27, 1912.

A radical departure will be made in the conduct of the meeting, every session being executive, none but members and their representatives being admitted to the meetings. It is felt that at only such meetings can a full and free discussion be had on the many vital subjects that are of interest to the seed trade. Attention is invited to the Question Box, which was revived at the last convention with much profit. Latest crop reports will be presented again this year as they were last—an invaluable feature to be had in no other way as complete and accurate.

The Hotel Sherman has been in use less than a year so that members are assured of every convenience and comfort. The rates are for rooms only, ranging from $2.00 per day to $5.00 per day for single rooms and $3.00 to $6.00 per day for double rooms. Every room has a private bath.

Leather Versus Wooden Shoes.

We understand Uncle Sam is preparing for the free distribution of seed for 1912-1913—a very expensive proposition. About 1,200,000 pounds of vegetable and 50,000 pounds of flower seed, all of standard quality and varieties. Why not go a step further and send out free hogs, horses, sheep and cattle for breeding purposes? We wonder what per cent goes to waste? Do the deserving get the benefit? Why not help the Dutchman, too, and distribute free Dutch bulbs to beautify the lawns of those who know how to get the benefit? This might assist the Hollanders some, as the freight rebates and advance charges are not quite sufficient to pay all expenses during their travels in this glorious free country, although of course what benefit there is at present is all theirs. Talk about protection—it's protection all right, but is it in favor of the Americans or the foreigners? We try to sell bulbs and pay American wages—the Hollanders sell bulbs based on foreign wages. Suppose the Dutchman sold cut flowers, basing their profits on foreign labor—how would you like it? And they'd do it, too, if they could. Would it be fair competition?

What happens to your private trade when the Dutchman "gets on to it"? Why can he compete? Simply because he is permitted to come here and sell his home-grown products, ground out by the sweat of the brows of men, women and children in his country, where the value of an American dollar is worth considerably more than it is here. And we Americans paying taxes, both business and personal, on top of the bargain. And every buyer who buys direct from this class is a party to the transaction—and should be ashamed of himself. There are plenty of good American houses besides ourselves who can take just as good care of your orders. No American firm minds fair competition, but the Holland invasion is un-American, competition no firm cares to compete with. It's about time some concerted action was taken for genuine protection. Or would it be better to wear wooden shoes at 75 cents per? Answer it.—Ward's Horseshoe Bulbology.

THE seedsmen of America were represented on the jurors' list of the International Horticultural Exhibition, held at London last week, by Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Calif., and J. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.

To Destroy Moss on Lawns.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

The moss is killing out all the grass in our lawn, leaving nothing but the clover. Our soil is a sandy black loam. We have used large quantities of lime but without success. What would you advise to destroy the moss? A. H. Washington.

Very many would give a good deal to have moss present in the lawns; it gives the sense of age and is always pleasant to walk on. Its presence is due to one or both of two causes—shade of trees or lack of proper drainage, most likely the latter. This is easily remedied by putting in under drains. Reseeding with a mixture containing 10 pounds crested dogstail, five pounds red fescue and five pounds creeping bent, and the liberal application of wood ashes would help to eliminate the moss even under trees. E. O. O.

Scale on Azaleas.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—Will you kindly inform me of a remedy for scale on azaleas. S. H.

The azalea is a plant that is seldom troubled with scale or any other insect, and there are many different kinds of scale which infest plants. The brown scale can be killed by repeated washings of sulpho-naphthol soap, or kerosene emulsion. W.

Combining Small Lots for Market.

There are forwarding agents whose business it is to collect small consignments at various points in the Mississippi Valley and to ship them to market. The forwarding agent gathers enough produce to make a full carload at a given station, consigns it to himself at the destination, and delivers the contents to various consignees. By this system a small shipment by a producer is carried as promptly as a full carload. The territory served by these forwarders includes stations in Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Illinois, Michigan, and a few points in Indiana. The forwarder, being responsible to the shippers, makes it his business to check the contents of the car as they are taken out, to note their condition, and to report to the shipper any irregularities as to the condition or number of packages. The car manifest of the forwarder shows the names of the shippers and of the consignees, the number and contents of packages. The manifests that happened to be in the office of one of these forwarders one day in July, 1911, and which were apparently not unusual, contained each a long list of separate items; the manifest for one car contained a list of packages for no less than 32 different consignees. A so-called "pick-up" system is conducted by different railroads for collecting less-than-carload lots from various stations and combining them at transfer points into full carloads. Small consignments are collected from a number of stations and brought to a given point to be combined into carloads. Among the typical transfer points for combining small shipments into carloads are Canton, Miss., and Norfolk, Va.

The growth of freight and express service on interurban trolley lines has made it easier to market small shipments of perishable fruits and vegetables promptly. The interurban electric lines gather up small shipments and concentrate them at forwarding points. Large quantities of fruits and vegetables are thus handled from points in southwestern Michigan. The produce is collected from such points as Berrien Springs, Eau Claire, and Mill-burg, and transferred to boats at St. Joseph and Benton Harbor to be forwarded hence to Chicago. This service is prompt; fruit collected one day is on the Chicago market early next morning. A similar traffic is carried through Norfolk, where railroad freight from truck-growing regions is transferred to coastwise steamers for New York and the North.—Yearbook of Agriculture, 1911.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen

J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O., President;
W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass., Vice-President; John Hall, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.
Thirty-seventh annual convention to be held at Boston, Mass., June 12-14, 1912.

SCOTTSVILLE, TEXAS.—We picked our first ripe Mayflower Peach May 17.

THE second annual convention of the California Association of Nurserymen will be held at Oakland, Calif., November 7-8, 1912.

Long Beach, Calif.—G. A. Lindsay, proprietor of Long Beach Nurseries, died suddenly, May 14, aged 64 years. He is survived by a widow and one son.

THE grape leaf hopper has proved an important pest of the grape in Chautauqua county, New York, and the State Experiment Station at Geneva, New York, has issued Bulletin No. 344 descriptive of the insect and the methods of control.

SERIOUS damages to grapevines by frost is reported in German vineyards. The winter was abnormally warm and the vines began to bud and grow in January. This was followed by hard freezing in early February, which so damaged them that in one district 50 per cent of the vines will not bear this year.

WHILE maples are in use in Indiana more extensively for shade tree purposes than all other kinds of trees combined, the Muncie Press states that their use should be discontinued, for they are subject to the deadly attack of several common insect pests and they grow long, slender branches which frequently break off when loaded with ice. Four kinds of maples are used, the silver leaf and red maples being planted on account of their rapid growth. The Norway maple, it is stated, is too low headed to make a desirable shade tree.

A Beautiful Flowering Shrub.

Previous to the commencement of the present century, about four species of corylopsis were known in British gardens; but the introduction of new shrubs from the far east has been pushed so vigorously during the last twelve years that it has been possible to add nine other species to this genus alone, says The Garden. Some of these species were previously known by dried specimens, but were not in cultivation. C. pauciflora is one of the older kinds, although not a common shrub. A native of Japan, it forms an elegant bush a few feet high, with slender wiry branches, which bear bright green, heart-shaped leaves up to 3½ inches in length. The leaves are very beautiful in springtime, for from the time the buds begin to burst and the leaves to show until they are fully developed they are prettily marked with rich brown and pale green. The flowers appear in short, axillary, pendant racemes before the leaves. They are upwards of half an inch in diameter, primrose yellow in color, and scented like cowslips. Unfortunately, it is subject to injury from spring frosts.

EXHIBITS AT THE BOSTON CONVENTION.

Exhibitors at the American Association of Nurserymen's Convention in Boston will have ample room in which to display their goods to best advantage. In addition to exhibition hall in Hotel Somerset, for light exhibits we shall use the Palm Room which opens directly out of the auditorium. Heavy exhibits and those requiring table space against the wall, will be placed in the exhibition hall. As the floor of this hall is polished, heavy implements should have boards beneath.

To secure these extraordinary accommodations we have been obliged to guarantee the hotel management $150 per day, a part of which will be paid by the local committee, and part by the exhibitors. A goodly number have already applied for space so that the expense to the exhibitors will not be a large item. Indications point to a very large attendance at the Boston meeting, and those who have exhibits, will no doubt, reap good results.

Please address all communications, stating the nature of your exhibit, to the undersigned, at Lexington, Mass.

Packages containing goods for exhibit should be sent as far as possible, by express, prepaid, to A. E. Robinson, Hotel Somerset, Boston, Mass.

A. E. ROBINSON, Chairman.

Shrubs at Purdue University.

Having occasion to pass through La Fayette, Ind., and having a little spare time, we visited the grounds of Purdue University, and found Perry Van Landigam, the superintendent, who kindly escorted us around. The grounds are beautifully planted with rare trees and shrubs and the latter were simply grand upon the day of our visit and the arrangement is particularly fine, being planted in groups, and are a fitting example of the artistic landscape ability of the superintendent. We were shown a number of double crossed lilac seedlings, some of last year's seedlings being already grafted on the common stock. The plant which particularly attracted our attention was a new spirea which looked like a ball of snow. The plant is very dwarf, being not more than two feet high, with leaves and flowers smaller than Spirea Van Houttei, the latter being about half the size of that well known variety. The buds before they open have a reddish tint, as have also the stems, but the flowers are pure white and the slender branches are so thickly covered that they bend to the ground with the weight of the blooms. This variety would no doubt be a great acquisition to the florist who forces shrubs during the winter, for it is very early, and being so dwarf could be easily handled. The plant which we saw was in the fifth year and very much resembles Spirea multiflora and is perfectly hardy. We were also shown many other experimental crosses, and Mr. Van Landigam is to be congratulated on the fine lot of shrubs and the admirable landscape work for which he has acquired a great reputation, as well as his ability as a landscape draughtsman. His work at the Philadelphia centennial was renowned and at the World's Fair at Chicago he was awarded the grand prize for Adiantum Farleyense, and was one of the first to show disbudded chrysanthemums in Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, in the early eighties. Since he has been connected with Purdue university his work has been principally landscape draughting.

MR. THOMAS BARSON'S HOUSES AT GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y.

Mr. Barson's Frank Opinion.

"IN the past seven years you have built for me three greenhouses, which I am now using with the greatest of satisfaction. The first house, of Pipe Frame construction, which is my chrysanthemum house, was put up in 1904 and is practically in as good condition now as then. Four years ago, the rose house, also Pipe Frame, was erected and that, too, serves its purpose well.

The pride of my greenhouses, however, is the home of my carnations. This house is of Iron Frame construction, 100x43 feet, and is up-to-date in every way. Although all of my houses are satisfactory, still the improvement in the last one erected over the one put up seven years ago is very marked and if I had it to do over again and knew as much about the houses as I do now, I would have all three of Iron Frame construction, on the same plan as my "Carnation House." I would advise the erection of this kind of house for the growing of all flowers. Right here I want to congratulate you on the skilled workmen sent to build my last house. They were the most gentlemanly lot of workmen I have ever seen together, tending strictly to their own business and showing by their efforts that they were well acquainted with the tasks assigned them."

Tacoma, Wash.

We hear nothing but good reports of business conditions and the call for plants is better than any previous season. Cut flowers have been somewhat short in supply, especially carnations of good quality and white or light color. Roses are always rather scarce and lately the unusually warm weather has injured, while in transit, those that come from California. There has been an unusually plentiful supply of all sorts of outdoor bulbous flowers that were good, and they have been more in demand than usual. Several places throughout the city have fine beds of outdoor tulips. One that was especially attractive was at the Tacoma hotel, containing a thousand bulbs of Rex Rubrorum, bordered with Arabis. The demand for bedding stock has been very good and many of the local florists are practically sold out already. Many more roses have been bedded out than ever before. The rose show last season started an extra call and even though the city parks gave away thousands of cuttings with instructions, most of the florists have sold out of good two-year-old plants, especially the more desirable kinds. The outdoor roses are just beginning to bloom and will help out the stores. Field planting of carnations and asters has been successful and the recent rains will be certain to make them start off right. Call for early indoor vegetables so far has been good, even though regular shipments are received from the south and California. More houses are being erected for vegetables but none for plants and cut flowers.

60 Years of Experience Goes Into Our Houses

You know experience is a sure teacher—also sometimes rather expensive.

Inasmuch as we have so many years' experience in the greenhouse business and have such a reputation for fine, well built, enduring houses, then what's the use of experimenting with concerns and constructions that have limited experience and must of necessity be experimenting on you?

Do you want to be experimented on?

Of course you don't! Send for our catalog and let's get down to business.

Albany, N. Y.

Prof. E. P. Felt, state entomologist, has just issued a bulletin on the subject of spraying to prevent the ravages of the elm leaf beetle. Trees with leaves two inches long or nearly so are in a condition for spraying. Prof. Felt writes that there is nothing better for spraying than arsenate of lead (15 per cent arsenic oxide), used at the rate of four pounds to 50 gallons of water. The solution is to be sprayed on the under side of the leaf.

This week the force under Superintendent Philip Bender of the bureau of parks has been engaged in planting flower beds in Washington park. About 10,000 bedding plants, 6,000 geraniums, 1,200 cannas, 300 palms, 300 cacti and numerous rose bushes and others have so far been set out.

Fred A. Danker, president of the Albany Florists' Club, has been confined for a week to the house with a cold that settled in his throat. He is reported to be on the way to recovery. R. D.

JACKSON, TENN.—The James & Nelson Co. is erecting a greenhouse for the cultivation of plants and flowers.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The regular meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island was held at the club rooms May 20. Prof. E. A. White of the Massachusetts Agricultural College delivered an illustrated lecture on "Flowering Perennials and Hothouse Plants."

Denver, Colo.

Since Mothers' day there has been a good demand for flowers of all kinds. At no time has there been enough to fill all orders, and on some days not half enough. The weather has been warm, so that stock is received in large quantities, and the prospect is that Memorial day business will be taken care of much better than was expected a week ago. There are plenty of lilacs, some early peonies, columbine, spirea, etc. Altogether there is really a good supply, but the demand is also large. Orders keep piling up deeper and deeper. Everyone seems to think he should be the favored one and get ten to fifteen times as much as ordinarily, but the only just way is to divide up and give every one a chance.

NOTES.

Last week a well-known retailer advertised for a boy. A fond mamma of the kind who thinks "it must be so nice to work among the flowers" called up next day, but when informed what the boy would be expected to do, queried anxiously: "Would he have to work long hours? Would the work be hard? Would he have to work Sunday?" But the hard-working florist could stand no more and volunteered this information: "Yes, madam, he would have to work and work hard every day and Sunday, too. Keep your boy at home. We don't want any 'mothers' darlings' in the florist business!" Bing!!!

Thomas D. Long was stricken seriously ill with appendicitis Tuesday evening, May 20. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital. His condition was considered critical for a time, but he is now improving. ROYAL INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION

Held at the Chelsea Hospital Grounds, London, Eng., May 22-30, 1912.

A New Flower Show Record.

Just over three years ago, in April, 1909, a suggestion was made in the Gardeners' Chronicle that it was time an international exhibition was held in London. The seed, thus sown in printer's ink, began to germinate, at first slowly, then more quickly, until at last it blossomed forth under a properly constituted business committee and has at last shed its luster over London. From May 23 until May 30, what is universally admitted to be the finest display of horticultural skill took place on the banks of the Thames, in the historic grounds of Chelsea Hospital, with Battersea Park on the opposite side. From a spectacular point of view the exhibition was simply perfect and was veritably a feast of flowers in the fullest sense of the word. There was not a badly grown plant in the show and the rock-gardens were simply a revelation as to what the British gardener could do when given plenty of space to lay himself out. And yet, at a so-called conference on "Horticultural Education," held May 23, one would have thought to hear the remarks of some self-constituted "scientists" that the professional gardener was one of the greatest fools outside a madhouse. He required to be taught his business, according to some of the speakers who had never grown a plant in their lives. However, I am not concerned with these people at present.

To give some idea of the extent of the exhibition, it may be mentioned that it stood upon about 20 acres of ground, according to the official plans, but it was generally said to occupy 27 acres. The largest tent occupied a space of nearly four acres (nearly 20,000 square feet), and evoked the admiration of everyone. The remaining part of the canvas covered about another four acres, but the tents were of much smaller dimensions.

The rock gardens were set quite apart from the canvas department, and covered some 10 to 12 acres of ground, including pathways. Here the greatest ingenuity was displayed by the various exhibitors. Some chose to display their wares upon the almost level ground, some on the sides of grassy banks, some in nooks in the shrub-beries, while others again took a fancy to the hollow places. Indeed, it is impossible to give an adequate impression in words of the wonderfully realistic arrangement of these rock gardens, and I must leave the later photos to supplement what I cannot express in the way of praise for the great science and skill of the gardeners who designed them. Taking the rock gardens as a whole, something like 2,000 tons of stone must have been used and was so artfully arranged that one could readily imagine the boulders to have been in position for centuries instead of a few days. There were pools of sparkling water, with gold fish and water lilies and bog plants at the margin; there were winding pathways up the mountain side, and there were mountain torrents running down the hillside, dashing themselves into sprays against overjutting rocks ere they reached the silent pool beneath in the valley. Water, of course, was laid on for this particular purpose, but was so carefully concealed that visitors were completely overwhelmed with astonishment at what they saw. The cost of erecting these enormous rock gardens must have been immense. One exhibitor told me that he had used over 70 tons of stone and that £300 would not pay his expenses. Another still larger rock garden used up over 100 tons of stone and the expense was well over £400. It will thus be seen that the exhibitors did not stint themselves in their outlay, and the figures given may even astonish American exhibitors, who, I understand, are accustomed to big things in the way of expense at their own shows. Two or three of the rock gardens covered over one-fifth of an acre (8,000 sq. ft.) each, and even the smallest was of much greater dimensions than we are usually accustomed to see at exhibitions in England.

It cannot be said that the inducement to exhibitors was very great so far as money prizes were concerned. Casting up the cash prizes in the official schedule of the show, only a little over £490 was offered. Considerably over 200 silver and silver-gilt cups, however, were offered and about 100 gold medals. In addition to these, there were any number of silver and silver-gilt medals available for the minor exhibits. There were 428 different classes in the schedule, but a much larger proportion than one would have imagined were not sufficiently attractive to find entries.

The exhibits were divided into 10 main groups, namely, stove plants, palms, cycads, etc., orchids, ferns and selaginellas, greenhouse plants, roses, carnations and pinks, hardy plants, new plants, fruit, vegetables and miscellaneous.

The international character of the exhibition, although not very extensive, was brought out by exhibits from France, Belgium and Holland, for each of which a special tent was provided. America was also well and truly represented by W. A. Manda of South Orange, N. J., who walked off with a few of the prizes for stove and greenhouse ferns, stove and greenhouse plants (first in each case), second prize for 50 orchids in not less than 25 species, and third prize for varieties and hybrids of laelia, cattleya and brassavola. He also won the prize for palms, the fine large specimens of which were one of the features of the big 4-acre tent before referred to.

Japan stood in a corner by itself in a tastefully arranged building octagonal in shape and of quite Japanese design, with thatched roof, trellis work, etc. The interior was decorated with exhibits of ancient looking and distorted specimens of Japanese conifers, oaks, maples and other specialties that are usually so well arranged by Alfred Dimmock for the Yokohama Nursery Co. There were specimens of giant bamboos and confections made from the fruits of the Japanese plum (Diospyros Kaki), which seemed to be highly appreciated by the public who partook of them.

Canada also had a fine building to itself, in which some highly-colored specimens of apples were displayed to great advantage in carefully packed baskets. There were also many kinds of Canadian fruits preserved in glass jars and bottles to show how long they could be kept without being eaten.

The commonwealth of Australia was represented by apples, grapes and preserved fruits in a separate building, the walls of which were decorated by Australian landscapes, representing fruit growing in various colonies.

Coming to the most conspicuous groups of exhibits in the show, perhaps orchids deserve the first place amongst the flowering plants. They occupied a large tent to themselves, and from morning till late at night (the exhibition was open until 10 p. m.) streams of visitors admired them with wondrous gaze. Even the old red-coated pensioners were dumfounded with their beauty, and one old chap who had traveled far and wide, exclaimed: "I never thought there was such extraordinary plants on the face of God's earth!" And in a sense the old fellow was quite right, for the primary and secondary hybrids were in powerful numbers and bore testimony to the wonderful creations of man as distinct from those of nature.

The king's prize—a beautiful silver cup, the largest of all the prizes, standing quite two feet high—was won by Lieut. Col. Sir Geo. Holford, Westonbirt, Gloucestershire, for the best exhibit in the show. This was a magnificent bank of orchids, covering about 1,100 square feet and contained some of the finest grown plants one could wish to see, every one a "specimen" as gardeners say, and not a blemish among them. Laelio-cattleyas, Brassocattleyas, cymbidiums, dendrobiums, cyripediums, phalaenopsis, renantheras, odontiodas and Miltonias composed the group, but a fine plant of Oncidium Marshallianum with 50 spikes of bright yellow flowers stood out conspicuously overhead.

Sander & Sons, St. Albans, staged what I, personally, considered to be the finest group of orchids from a spectacular point of view. It filled some 700 square feet and was so arranged in bays and columns, with splendidly grown plants, that the effect was simply splendid. Overhanging the bays were fine baskets of Phalaenopsis Rimestadtiana with Renanthera Imschootiana mixed with Polypodium ferns. Amongst the plants in this group we noticed some fine hybrid odontoglossums, odontiodas, Miltonias, vandas, laelio-cattleyas, aerides and several other standard orchids.

Charlesworth & Co., Haywards Heath, backed Sander & Sons' group with one almost equally magnificent, and of equal dimensions. This firm is well known for its many beautiful orange-colored hybrids and these were as usual in great evidence, the deep red odontiodas and many heavily blotched odontoglossums being conspicuous. Miltonias, cymbidiums, phalaenopsis, oncidiums, renantheras, cyripediums, etc., made up a group which secured the gold medal offered by Mons. Lambeau of Brussels for the most interesting collection of hybrid orchids raised by the exhibitor.

Stuart, Low & Co., Bush Hill Park, Enfield, won the gold medal in the class for the best and most varied group of species and varieties (hybrids excluded). This covered 200 square feet, and contained masses of phalaenopsis, cattleyas, renantheras, dendrobiums, cyripedium niveum, etc.

Armstrong & Brown, Tunbridge Wells, secured Baron Bruno Schroeder's cup for the best and most varied group of hybrid orchids. It covered 200 square feet and contained some fine forms of Laelio-cattleya Fascinator, Canhamiana, callistoglossa, aphrodite, hyeana, etc. J. Cypher & Sons, Cheltenham, came second and secured a silver gilt cup. These two firms met in other classes with varying luck, but their plants were of high merit. Mansell & Hatcher, Leeds, staged 500 square feet of orchids and secured a gold medal. They arranged their plants in conical groups, and used Laelio-cattleyas (especially Fascinator), Oncidium Marshallianum, cymbidiums, odontoglossums, odontiodas, renantheras, etc., with great effect.

Sir Jeremiah Colman, Bart., Reigate, came second to Fergus Menteith Ogilvie, Oxford, in the amateur class for the best and most varied group of orchids in a space not exceeding 500 square feet. The first prize was a cup and £10 presented by Sander & Sons, the second being a cup and £7, offered by Charlesworth & Co. The first prize group contained finely-grown cymbidiums, epidendrums, cyripediums, more than 300 forms of Odontoglossum crispum, some fine Cattleya Mossiae, several Brasso-cattleyas, dendrobiums, etc. Sir J. Colman's collection was remarkable for fine varieties of odontoglossums, chiefly of the white crispum type, several odontiodas, Miltonias and such botanical things as Catasetum Cliftoni, Bulbophyllums, Restrepias, etc.

At large London shows a big group of Vanda teres is a kind of trade mark of Mr. Leopold de Rothschild, of Gun-nersbury Park, Acton. He arranged a splendid bank of this somewhat fastidious orchid, something like 700 spikes being open when the plants were exhibited.

H. Dixon, Spencer Park Nursery, Wandsworth, made his first appearance almost in competition and won the first prize (gold medal) in the class for 50 orchids, against Mr. Manda, who was second, and got a silver cup.

S. Flory, successor to the late H. Tracy, of Twickenham, exhibited a nice little group, and Gurney Fowler had a group arranged with conical masses of Selaginellas in a unique manner. Odontoglossum crispum was the chief kind shown in this way.

There were several continental exhibitors of orchids, including M. Lambeau, Brussels, with several varieties of crimson-blotched Miltonias; M. Grier, Amiens, with seedling odontoglossums and odontiodas; M. Maron, Brunoy, France, with hybrid cattleyas and brasso-cattleyas, etc.; M. Dietrich, Brussels, with cattleyas, Miltonias, odontiodas, odontoglossums; and M. A. A. Peeters, Brussels, with a fine mass of Renanthera Imschootiana, and hybrid Miltonias of the Memoria G. D. Owens type.

Stove and greenhouse plants are slowly but surely being forced out of existence by the strenuous competition from the hardy herbaceous section. Nevertheless, they are still grown in sufficiently large numbers to make a fine display. Without doubt, the most gorgeous plants in this exhibition were the Hippeastrums (Amaryllis). These brilliant Amaryllids were shown by only a few exhibitors, two amateurs, viz.: Lieut. Col. Holford and J. A. Kenrick, Berrow Court, Edgbaston, Birmingham; and three in the trade, viz.: Kerr & Sons, Aighburth, Liverpool; Bull & Sons, Chelsea, and Veitch & Sons, Chelsea. Col. Holford's exhibit was undoubtedly the finest of all, but it must be remembered that his plants are grown on from year to year and the bulbs attain a size and vigor that is impossible in a trade collection from which plants are being sold every day. In the class for 200 square feet, Col. Holford won the first prize (gold medal), Kerr & Sons coming second with a silver cup. The winning plants were luscious in growth and had magnificent leaves and immense flowers. Among the best of the white varieties were Elsie, Whitewings, Ursula, Snowdrift and Thisbe. The orange-scarlets included Titus, Laus Veneris, Gereant, Phoebus and Pirate. The deep crimson reds were rendered conspicuous by such kinds as Shylock, Robin Hood, Hermes, King Arthur and Chameleon. In addition to these the white grounds barred and feathered with crimson were represented by Apollo, Pretty Polly, Flamingo, Snowdrift and Castor.

Kerr & Sons' group contained Persephone, white ground with carmine veins; Empress, deep velvety crimson; Fire King, crimson scarlet; International, orange-scarlet, flushed with violet; and Magenta Queen, with magenta sheen over the crimson ground.

The most noticeable kinds in Bull & Sons' group were King George, deep crimson; Harmony, crushed strawberry, and the Pearl, white, shaded with green. Mr. Kenrick's collection was unnamed.

J. Veitch & Sons' group was remarkable for its substance and brilliance, and was chiefly of the deep crimson tints. It formed part of a mixed collection.

As might be expected at the time of year, crotons made a good figure, and Fisher, Son & Sibray, of Sheffield did themselves justice in a fine group of 200 square feet. Some of the newer kinds included Heathpendula, Duke of Portland (one of the best yellows), Countess of Donoughmore, and a sport from the older Victoria. J. Veitch & Sons also exhibited these plants in a mixed collection.

Caladiums were shown principally by J. Peed & Sons, Norwood, who are famous for this class of aroid and are always to be relied upon to make a good show. One variety (Silver Queen) attracted attention by its large silvery leaves, which were faintly edged with red. W.

A Dallas Decoration.

The elaborate decorations at the Coliseum, Dallas, Texas, May 31, on the occasion of the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, were carried out very effectively, as shown in the illustrations herewith, by the Texas Seed & Floral Co. This, up to the present time, it is believed, is the largest social reception and ball of its kind given in the south. There were over 6,000 guests. Over 10,000 yards of painted canvas was used to screen entirely the side seats of this large Coliseum, which is over 200 feet long and 150 feet wide. Over 3,000 decorative plants were used, 1,000 silk garden lanterns, 3,000 feet of lattice work three feet wide, making an entire roof over this garden, and over 250 feet of marble railing, newel posts, vases, etc. Also 50 garden vases in this large reception hall, which was decorated with blooming plants, ferns, etc. The grand entrance was all in marble with a marble stairway.

The Texas Seed & Floral Co. spent several thousand dollars on this decoration and did not intend to make a profit, making this a part of its contribution to the publicity campaign for the southwest and for the entertainment of the visitors.

DANBURY, CONN.—E. E. Mathewson opened a new flower store at 241 Main street, May 24.

The Smart Bouquet of the Moment.

The old-time primness reigns in bouquets of all kinds. Some remarkable and striking combinations are used in the pyramid style. One carried by a bride recently had a small cluster of orange blossoms in the center of a pyramid. Around this was circled an arrangement of white sweet peas. This in turn was circled with tiny white rose buds just breaking, and this finished with a loose circle arrangement of lily of the valley. Asparagus vine was used as a green finish, while a full wide ruche of chiffon ribbon was artistically placed in a circle around this green. Streamers of this chiffon ribbon were attached, among which tiny rings of sweet peas were interspersed. The bridesmaids wore the "Mayfair" corsage, viz.: a knot made of varicolored flowers. Pink sweet peas were in the center; lavender sweet peas came next and then a row of pale pink roses (buds just breaking). The knots also had streamers made of pink sweet peas tied with pale pink and pale lavender ribbons.

For the sweet girl graduate a pretty arrangement of the pyramid is obtained by using forget-me-nots in the center, then circled with the paler shade of cornflowers in a full cluster effect, then another row of forget-me-nots and then a final row of fullness of the darker shade of cornflowers. Use the buds of the cornflowers very generously in this arrangement. For the ribbon use the two shades of blue in the cornflowers. Ruche this around finished pyramid; also wind ribbon around the tinfoil and allow two loops to extend below it. This when thoughtfully arranged is very effective.

Again, the pyramid is very striking, made of pink and red geraniums, using paler pink gauze ribbon around each tier, or row of flowers, which must always be in cluster arrangement, using this instead of the green. Or, if the ribbon is not so desired, use the green twigs of the geraniums in good cluster effect. Ruche the pink and red colors in a gauze ribbon around base as a finish. Yellow roses, combined with yellow daisies and the paler blue cornflowers, makes an attractive pyramid. Also, the cornflowers arranged with a center pyramid of lily of the valley is striking, used with streamers of blue and white ribbon. Violets and pansies are also good in the pyramid; also violet and forget-me-nots. Violets encircled in pale pink rosehuds just breaking, using the rose foliage as a finish, will show up well. Use pink gauze ribbon to harmonize with roses.

For the bouquet on the reception table, make a pyramid tree of half-blown buds. Plant this in a Dresden pot. Of course, the buds must be arranged closely together and the stems kept fresh with wet moss. These Vauxhall trees, as they are sometimes called, are also pretty for the bridal table instead of the bouquet arrangement. Made of pale pink roses or even the big American Beauty are most beautiful.

Take the oblong table, for instance, make a basket of American Beauty roses for the center, using the pyramid effect in the arrangement, but not the tall pyramid, but rather low in center and increasing to height at side to meet a Vauxhall tree made of American Beauty roses. Arrange the base with maiden hair ferns, placing American Beauties flat on the table on either side of oblong basket, but not where the trees are finished with maiden hair. This is very rich and beautiful in effectiveness, especially where a large banquet table is to be arranged or the buffet table.

The buttonhole bouquet of the moment is huge in size and is also of the knot or pyramid design. It is made with a single bright bud in the center surrounded with a contrasting flower in two, three and sometimes four different varieties.

The conventional shower bouquets are still extensively used, but the up-to-date wedding or social affair demands something different all the time, and it taxes the ingenuity of the florist to devise something different and something more attractive each time. However, the pyramid is the vogue at all the swell eastern functions. A. E. KLUNDER.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Exhibition Blooms and Plants.

The experienced grower of chrysanthemums for exhibition cut blooms figures that it is to his advantage to be able to get his plants into their permanent quarters at as early a date as possible and aims to have this part of the work finished up by the middle of May. By so doing he is able to have his plants thoroughly under control before the very hot weather sets in. One great advantage of early planting is that by the middle of June the root action of the plants will be in thorough control of the soil together with a corresponding development of the wood. A fine condition with which to start the summer. It is useless to attempt to grow chrysanthemums for exhibition unless they are treated liberally. They require the highest state of culture with a close watch of every little detail. Plants that are to be grown in pots entirely through the season should now be in condition to be given their final potting into 7-inch, 8-inch or 9-inch pots according to the growth and strength of the plants. Varieties with small foliage and light growth can be grown in 7-inch pots, but those varieties that have heavy strong growth must be given the larger size pots. The compost for the final potting or benching, whichever the case may be, should be the best that can be procured, made up of one part manure to three parts soil and of rather a coarse nature, potting the plants as firmly as possible, and with the bench stock making the soil good and firm by treading it down before setting the plants. These plants must also be given ample space for their proper development; twelve inches apart each way is none too much for varieties of heavy growth and foliage, and they must be allowed at least seven feet of head room. Almost directly after being given their final shift they will require attention as regards staking and supports. This must be done as quickly as they show the need of it.

The large specimen bush plants and standards will also require to be shifted into their flowering pots at this time. These also require a live rich soil similar to that used for the cut bloom plants. These plants should also be potted firmly, using care not to overwater directly after potting before the roots have a chance to get hold of the soil. It is also very important that these plants be given ample space at all times for their proper development. Plenty of light and air are also essential for their welfare.

The early commercial varieties should also be planted into the benches as soon as they can be, particularly Golden Glow and Smith's Advance, if very early flowers are expected of these varieties. They need a good live soil but not as rich as that advocated for the exhibition stock. It is well to arrange the planting of these very early varieties so that the blooms can be shaded as they commence to develop during hot bright weather. The stock of the midseason varieties should receive attention as they need it, as regards shifting into a larger size pot, if there is any danger of their becoming hard before the time for planting them comes around. Also follow up the working up of the stock of the late varieties and pay particular attention to keep all of the plants free from aphids by continued spraying or fumigating. C. W. JOHNSON.

PLANT NOTES.

Peonies.

The work on these plants is not finished by any means when the blooms are cut, for they must be taken care of to insure a good crop for another year. Where the plants are grown in rows the constant traveling has packed the soil down hard and the ground should be given a good cultivation in order to lighten it up. The weeds should be kept down all summer and not allowed to rob the soil of its richness. If the plants were severely cut in harvesting the bloom, so that there is not much foliage left on the plant, it is well to spread a mulch of strawy manure on the surface. This is often the case with the officinalis varieties which do not make the heavy growth of the later varieties, and as it is natural for the roots of the peonies to have the shade of the heavy foliage of the plants during the summer, the cutting of the stems and foliage of these varieties robs the roots of this, and a mulch that will protect the ground from the hot summer sun is very beneficial and will also reduce the labor of weeding. Any old blooms left on the plant should be cut and thrown away. Plants that have become broken down by high winds or heavy rains should be tied up in shape.

Small Ferns.

The fern spores that were sown in late winter should now be in condition to transplant into flats. It will be difficult to separate the plants yet into individual specimens, but little clumps can be lifted with a toothpick and planted in flats about an inch apart. The flats or boxes should not be deep, about an inch and a half of soil is sufficient. The soil should be composed of two parts live loam and one part leaf mold, with a generous sprinkling of sand and sifted through a fine sieve. The flats should be placed in a moist house that is well shaded, and the walks kept well wet down all through the hot weather. If a nice warm moist temperature is maintained, the plants themselves will not require much watering, only light sprinklings, and they will very rapidly root into the new soil and send forth their fronds. If the grower has not grown his own ferns, it is a good time now to place an order for them with the fern specialists, for they can be purchased at very low prices and they are very easily grown on, and where there are many fern dishes to be filled in the fall, the difference in cost of the young plants lifted from the flats in mid-summer and those purchased out of small pots in the fall is considerable; plants that will cost three and four dollars a hundred at that time can now be obtained for one-third of that amount, and a thousand or more of this small stock does not take up much space and will be disposed of before the bench room is needed in winter.

Cinerarias.

The sowing of cinerarias is better done in June than later. Many postpone this until July, but during the extremely hot days of that month it is often difficult to obtain good germination, and the seed pans or boxes will have to be watched carefully or they will become dry and the young seedlings burn off. The soil should be well shaded until the young seedlings show themselves, when the shade should be made lighter. As soon as the plants have one or two well defined leaves, they should be potted in small pots and given a nice airy position near the glass, which should be shaded, but care should be taken that the young stock does not get drawn. Always bear in mind that the one thing in growing cinerarias to be on the watch for, is the aphid. These insects quickly infest these plants and rapidly suck the life out of them. Constant fumigation will keep them in check, but if not attended to regularly it will be time and money thrown away to attempt their culture. Cineraria hybrids is the variety most grown, and these are obtainable in some elegant strains with large high-colored flowers. The cineraria stellata is a much larger and more rapid growing plant which is very showy, but is not so well adapted for house culture when in flower.

Solanums.

These little Christmas plants should not be allowed to stand around in the hot greenhouses badly pot bound and drying up every day, for they will grow hard and it cannot be expected to obtain a good plant under these conditions. They will stand lots of abuse and do fairly well, and that is the reason probably that they are so often neglected during these busy days. But it is much better to plant them out in the field than to carry them along in this condition. They can be easily handled in this manner, lifting them early in the fall. They will need to be kept pinched back into shape—any strong leading shoots should be cut back when they are soft. They can be planted fairly close together and will need frequent cultivation. If there is no suitable outside location where they can be planted out they can be plunged in a frame and potted up as it becomes necessary, but outside treatment of some kind is far preferable to the greenhouse, which is too warm, unless shaded, and they make better growth and bloom more freely in the bright sunlight.

Primulas.

The young primulas that were sown early should now be in 3-inch pots and be given as cool and airy a location as possible. To get the best growth on these plants, they should never be subjected to great heat, for the species are naturally a cool growing plant on the edges of the woodland in their native state. Outside in a frame with a lath covering is the best place that they can be grown, the pots sunk in the soil even to the rim. In potting these plants they should be placed in the soil deep enough for them to stand firmly; they will not stand deep potting, but many growers do not pot them deep enough, and they frequently get turned over sideways during the watering. They must be watered carefully and preferably with a can with a fine rose. The later sowings will have to be carried on in the houses until they are large enough to be placed outside. They will have to be shaded, but do not shade them heavily enough to cause them to get drawn.

Buffalo.

CARNATIONS TOO HIGH.

Decoration day, as usual, was rainy, clearing up in the afternoon, but rather late for people who were going away for the day. Trade was about as usual in the down town stores, while the greenhouses near the cemeteries were rushed with work until Wednesday. The rain on Thursday morning curtailed the sale of cut flowers and left the stores over-supplied. Stock was equal to all demands, including tulips and lilac. Carnations, as usual, were away up in price on Monday, ending with a surplus offered at a sacrifice, with few buyers. Some day the growers and wholesalers will find that galax and magnolia wreaths can be sold at a fair price, limiting the sale of cut flowers. Roses could be bought as cheap as carnations in quantity and were good substitutes. Funeral work has been fair, while June has started in with a big list of weddings and receptions, which with school commencements will give all a busy month.

GROUND PLAN OF THE S. A. F. TRADE EXHIBITION, TO BE HELD AT THE COLISEUM, CHICAGO, AUGUST 21-23.

OBITUARY.

Elijah A. Wood.

Elijah A. Wood, well known member of THE AMERICAN FLORIST staff, died rather unexpectedly at his home in Chicago, Saturday, June 1, at 8:30 p. m. Mr. Wood had complained of not feeling well during the previous two weeks but his condition was not considered serious. He was at the office all day Monday of the week he died. Late that night, however, a physician had to be called and during the week it developed that his condition was quite serious but no one suspected that death was so near, even within a few hours of the end. The physicians gave spinal meningitis as the cause of death. The health authorities place such strictures on cases of this kind that no services could be arranged at the residence and the remains could only be held a very short time before removal to the train Sunday afternoon, June 2, whence they were conveyed for interment in the family cemetery lot at Newton, near Boston, Mass. In the meantime, a number of the prominent representatives of the Chicago trade had called at the residence to express to Mrs. Wood and other members of the household their sympathy in her bereavement, including President P. J. Foley, Vice-president Robertson and wife, and Treasurer Winterson and daughter, of the Chicago Florists' Club, J. C. Vaughan, J. B. Deamud, John Muir, T. E. Waters, and M. Barker.

Mr. Wood was a conspicuous figure in American floriculture. His father, E. W. Wood, was a prominent member of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and eminent as a pomologist. His mother was a lover of flowers and took much interest in their culture, so that Mr. Wood's leaning to floriculture came to him naturally. Born at Newton in 1859, he was educated at the public schools. After graduation he was employed for a time in a Boston newspaper office and later was a traveling salesman in the dry goods line, his father's original business. The floral establishment at Newton was a family affair which soon attained such proportions that it required his constant attention and he was among the first to become interested in chrysanthemums, having for close neighbors Arthur H. Fewkes and Henry A. Gane, also devotees of this flower. He was one of the founders of the Chrysanthemum Society of America and was much in demand as a judge at the early chrysanthemum shows in which capacity he officiated with more than ordinary efficiency, having a high sense of justice combined with a keen knowledge of his favorite flower. His information was not confined by any means to chrysanthemums for few men possess a knowledge of floriculture so diversified and so accurate. He was personally well known to most of the prominent florists of his time and he had the confidence of everyone of them for he was a man of honor, assuming nothing which was not wholly his own.

Mr. Wood raised a number of excellent chrysanthemums, including Edward Hatch, which was sold to the E. G. Hill Co., also Golden Hair, distributed by Elmer D. Smith & Co. He was an ex-president of the Chrysanthemum Society of America and rendered the growers of this flower much service in his work on classification, judging scales, etc. He first exhibited cut flowers of chrysanthemums in vases at New York and his example was speedily followed by other exhibitors, relegating the old-fashioned exhibition boards to obscurity. He was a member of the executive committee of the Society of American Florists as early as 1894 and has done good work for all the older floricultural societies. In the early nineties he went to Denver to take charge of the establishment of the South Denver Floral Co., but failed to make a success of this, owing to his lack of knowledge of the climate, as he made clear in a public statement at the time, and returned to Newton. The family estate was dispersed in 1910, some four years after the death of the parents, and Mr. Wood joined the staff of THE AMERICAN FLORIST. In September, 1894, he married Miss Elizabeth Katherine MacDonald, who survives. He was a devoted husband, a loyal friend and a trusty associate. He was a Mason and an Odd Fellow and for some time had planned on joining one of these organizations in the celebration of an anniversary at his home town this month.

EDWIN LONSDALE'S TRIBUTE.

Another good friend gone. He was the embodiment of true friendship. Abundantly personified kindness was a prominent trait. The late John Thorpe's estimate of him as the biggest little man in America was emphasized everywhere. Associated with one as a judge is a trying test and we were together in this capacity 10 days at the World's Fair chrysanthemum show, Chicago, in 1893. It was a pleasurable duty as he was quick to recognize superiority, honest in rendering judgment and bright and cheerful under all circumstances. High-minded, supreme, his spirit is at rest. None knew him but to love him, none named him but in praise.

Lompoc, Calif., June 3.

TRIBUTE OF ELMER D. SMITH.

I am very much grieved to learn of the sudden death of Elijah A. Wood. Having been close friends for the past 20 years the shock could not have been greater had he been a brother. He was blessed with the keenest conception of right and wrong, with courage and integrity to abide by such convictions through the walks of life. The result of his efforts, either for himself or for the public, show his constant and determined desire to do all things well. He said what he meant, no affectation or flattery, and his word was as good as gold. I am sure his many friends will miss him for his many manifestations of true manliness.

AT NEWTON.

Most appropriately the earthly remains of Elijah Wood were laid to rest June 4 in beautiful Newton cemetery, the God's acre of the city he so dearly loved. The services were held in the chapel on the grounds, and although the notice was short there was a large gathering of friends to pay their last respects. The services were in charge of the Odd Fellows lodge of Newton, of which Mr. Wood was a beloved member. Delegations of the order from Natick and Framingham were present, also from the Rebecca lodges. A quartet from the latter rendered beautiful music and the magnificent floral tributes attested the love and esteem in which Mr. Wood was held. For 10 years he was deputy grand master and on going west was presented with a gold watch and chain in recognition of his sterling qualities and devotion to the order. He had planned to come east to attend the celebration of the Newton lodge this month but this was a sad home-coming for his family and friends in the trade. Mr. Wood's gentlemanliness made him friends wherever he went and his sudden death comes as a great shock to us all.

Thomas S. Keenan.

Thomas S. Keenan, the well known florist and seedsman of Chicago, died at his home on Wentworth avenue last Friday, May 31 at 1 a. m. He was 56 years old and was born in Philadelphia, Pa. and was for a long time in the employ of Robert Buist of that city and in 1881 he came to Chicago and entered the employ of Hiram Sibley. He was afterward with Vaughan's Seed Store and still later with James King until 1886 when he opened his first store on Wentworth avenue. In 1900 he opened a second store on East Sixty-third street, which was in charge of one of his sons and he was at the time of his death in the employ of the W. W. Barnard Co. A local order of the Masons, of which he was a member, took charge of the remains and the funeral was held from the home on June 2 and the remains were laid to rest in the Mt. Greenwood cemetery. He is survived by a wife and six children: Ralph, Arthur, William, Ruth, Esther and Florence.

John Lodder.

John Lodder, a prominent florist of Hamilton, O., died at his home in that city on Thursday morning, May 23, from a complication of diseases. He was 78 years old and was born in Germany in 1832 and came from a family of florists and gardeners. At the age of 27 years he came to America and after working in various greenhouse establishments throughout this country he finally located at Hamilton, O., in 1886 and went into business for himself, growing both cut flowers and vegetables. He was married in Cincinnati in 1863 to Elizabeth Dutteman and seven children have blessed the union. After the children had grown up he formed the firm of John Lodder & Sons, and had at the time of his death a well-paying business and four and one-half acres under glass devoted exclusively to the culture of cut flowers. He was well thought of in the community in which he lived and the funeral which was held from the home and the St. Stephen's church the following Saturday was largely attended by his many friends and acquaintances. The interment was in St. Stephen's cemetery.

E. Kitzinger.

E. Kitzinger, another well known florist of Chicago, died at his home at 2852 Fullerton avenue, on Monday, June 3. He had been sick for over three months, although the trade knew very little about it and his sudden death was a surprise to nearly all. He was 47 years old and had for a long time conducted a successful business at his present location and was well thought of by his many friends and acquaintances. The funeral was held from the residence the following Wednesday at 9 a. m., and the body was laid to rest in the family lot at the Waldheim cemetery. He is survived by a wife and one son.

Mathias Froehlich.

Mathias Froehlich, a well known florist of Chicago, died at his home at 5538 Cornelia street on Thursday, May 30 at 9 a. m. from a long siege of rheumatism and dropsy. He was 61 years of age and was born in Germany coming to this country at an early age and locating at Chicago during the time of the big fire. The funeral was held from the home the following Sunday with services at the Presbyterian church and interment at Waldheim cemetery. He is survived by a wife and five children.

Philadelphia.

NOT ENOUGH PEONIES.

Memorial day came with its usual bustle for the wholesale men, who supply the country town florists where the rush appears to center. The stock comes from the country to the city and from there goes back to the country again. The trade center methods catch the business. Peonies were not quite equal to the demand. There were plenty for local consumption but the full crop arrived too late for the large orders of the wholesale men from out of town and many of these had to be cut short. There was a great abundance of all the other stock and most of it was cleaned up at satisfactory prices. The Jersey laurel is now in flower and is much used in window decorations. Outdoor roses are in bloom, many of the beds of hybrid teas being very attractive. In spite of the severe winter they carried over very well and are but little behind their schedule time.

CLUB MEETING.

The June meeting of the Florists' Club was as full of meat as a fresh egg, the feature being a discussion on what help the florist can be to the improvement associations of the various towns and cities and particularly our home city and surrounding suburbs. From the interest shown and the determination to join in the work the old Philly town will take on a new lease of life and by next year become a city of bloom such as has never been seen before. E. A. Seidewitz, of Baltimore, poured in some hot shot that hit the mark and woke up some of the boys to such an extent that committees were at once called for and it does look as if real progress in this line is about to be seen that will grow and become a real factor in the city beautiful movement. A committee to co-operate with the New York Florists' Club's publicity campaign was appointed and the discussion of this work was also very earnest and we hope it will be fruitful.

NOTES.

The city hall flower privilege, for which $460 a month was offered by Samuel Harris, has not been found profitable by the lessee and he has thrown it up. It is also found that the use of the spaces has to be sanctioned by an act of councils and it is likely that the whole thing will fall through and result in the right or privilege being revoked. Why flowers are allowed to be sold on the streets and other merchandise barred has always been somewhat of a puzzle to many, the only solution being that it was found profitable and all obstacles, such as laws on the subject forbidding the practice, were overcome by graft to city officials, whose business it was to see that the laws were enforced. Doorways were rented, sidewalk privileges were also paid for to owners of buildings who had no right to lease them. The plea that every man has a right to make a living is often urged against the enforcement of the laws to regulate the street and sidewalk traffic and force the flower peddler into a store or building. Market street, from Tenth street to the city hall, was at one time overrun with them and they became such a nuisance that the entire crowd was driven away and for a time the street was clear, but doorways and fronts of empty stores and stand privileges are being used again and the dealers' spaces are gradually growing larger so that before long another edict from the city hall will be expected to drive them to the cross streets.

The third annual exhibition of the "Main Line Flower Show" at the Merion Cricket Club, Haverford, which is for amateurs only, was a very creditable display, there being numerous entries in the 35 classes. David Rust acted as secretary of the exhibition, while the judging was in the hands of John Westcott, A. B. Cartledge and Robert Kift. Mrs. James Rhodes took a great interest in the work and the success of the exhibition was greatly due to her earnest efforts. An exhibit by a 7-year-old boy, a small basket of flowers accompanied by a note in his handwriting, saying he had raised the flowers although not scheduled. John Westcott says "He shall have a prize and here it is," handing, at the same time a bank note to the secretary, adding, "Such work should always have recognition. They cannot begin too young to have a love for flowers."

The publicity campaign proposed by the New York Florists' Club should meet with the approval and support of the trade everywhere. Several such movements have been exploited by the Philadelphia Florists' Club for local business and quite an ambitious effort was fathered by the S. A. F. for several years with good results. What is wanted is helping hands, not empty ones, but "there's five dollars for the cause." It is easy to say "I'll write you something," but it is another thing to do it. The proper way is to get a good man on the job and pay him well. A dollar a week, chipped in by interested growers and dealers in any large town or city, would be sufficient to pay a good man, whose plant and flower stories and general floral information would find columns of room waiting in all the large Sunday editions and many of the dailies. Smaller country journals would also be glad to publish anything interesting sent to them.

The trade was pained to hear of the death of Elijah Wood, or Little Woody, as he was familiarly known, in Chicago, June 1. He was the life of the social gatherings at the conventions of the S. A. F. in years gone by. K.

BOSTON.

DEATH KNELL OF PICKLERS.

It is over and there are some yet in a trance who don't know how it happened. We said last week that carnations were up in the air; they were, and so high up that the fall they got hurt them. Monday and Tuesday were good, Wednesday was the Waterloo for the salter, the greatest nuisance the trade has or ever will have. The bottom dropped out of the basket on everything, especially on carnations. It was like an avalanche coming down a mountain, and every hour made it worse. The metal and wax factories backed by judicious advertising of the retailer got in their work. Wreaths and sprays of artificial flowers certainly spiked the guns of the growers. There are decent men in the trade and there are some irresponsible ones. The latter are making a mess of what the others have built up honorable methods. This is strong language, but it is none too strong for the state of things just passed. We did what we could last year to warn the trade of artificial flowers to do business right, but the advice was not heeded. Nero fiddled while Rome burned and the salter salted to reap and take good money for bad goods. Lincoln's memorable words about fooling the people all the time has often proved true and in this city it has been no exception. There were more artificial wreaths sold this year than ever before and they attracted people who in former years had been robbed. They sold for $1.50 to $2.50 and the stores did a rushing business. They were advertised in local and suburban daily and weekly papers, showing the cuts, and they hit the bull's-eye. Unless something is done to stint the tide there will be greenhouses for sale. These are cold facts and facts that "winna ding." Here is a resume of the trade. Spirea did not sell. Peonies not in on time. Single stocks did not sell. Lilac was not wanted. Short lilies were a drug; long-stemmed ones were passe. Carnations kept too long and dropped to any old price. Roses were plentiful and prices did not rule high. We are in a crisis and the pub-belly given the artificial flower and the added attractiveness have put us where we will have to wake up and do something. I am sure the trade press is open for suggestions. We are not in favor of long-winded prize essays, but something crisp from some of our broad, practical men. Then muzzle and handcuff the saller and let us do business right, for he is a detriment to the wholesaler and the retailer and the trade in general.

NOTES.

We are glad to hear that the New York Florists' Club has taken up the matter of flower publicity. We, generally, take off our hat to that club. The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, of course, has not shown any signs of life in the matter. The private gardener element would probably kick about use of funds for that purpose and Boston will probably come in at the tail end and then ask what has happened. By what we heard we thought the new club of 20 was to do great things, but the dinners are about the only good things we have heard that have been done. Poor Boston!

We are glad to hear that the health of Park Superintendent Pettigrew is improving and hope shortly to see him around again. MAC.

THE ADVERTISING DID IT.

Memorial day trade was a pleasing continuation of the activity of trade for Mothers' day, following the special efforts of the florists to boost trade on both these days by unique advertising and on both occasions the results were highly satisfactory. Efforts of the advertising committee were centered on the propriety of decorating with flowers all graves of deceased friends irrespective of army service. This was further elaborated upon by suggestive window decorations by most of the retailers, and the daily papers editorially commended the beautiful practice of remembering with flowers the friends departed, so that with these agencies at work it was no surprise to find the call for flowers far in excess of the demand for the same occasion a year ago. There was no scarcity of flowers except carnations, and on these alone was there advanced prices, bringing $4 and $5 per 100 wholesale, but this advance was not maintained by the retailers who wisely refrained from giving the public even a suspicion of boosting prices, and submitted themselves to the advanced prices without a murmur but avoided the "divine flower" as much as possible, falling back upon the immense stock available of Darwin tulips which could be retailed at 50 cents and 75 cents per dozen and still be profitable to the retailer. The occasion, however, used up the balance of the crop, all of which was grown by Robert Klage, Mt. Clemens. There were lots of Easter lilies, far too many, and equally big lots of Gladiolus Calvillei, roses, snapdragons, lily of the valley and peonies, so that all orders could be filled at prices that did not savor of extortion, and this is most fortunate as it will greatly contribute to the popularity of the day hereafter. No local grown peonies are on the market yet but southern stock is making its appearance and selling fairly well. Carnations continue off crops and these coming in are daily becoming smaller and less attractive.

BUSINESS GOOD.

Decoration day business was very good and satisfactory. The wholesalers cleaned up on practically everything but peonies and lilies. The prices realized were on the whole good. It was only at the last minute that some stock that had then already been held for several days was sacrificed to clean it up. The peony supply was good and large and the quality of the stock was all of the very best. Roses are in a good supply and the choice ones are selling fairly well. However, some mildewed stock that must be sacrificed to move it is forcing down the general price. This can be easily utilized in work. The best are disposed of nicely. The supply of American Beauty roses is large. There has been since Decoration day a large call for carnations, and as a result the market in this line has been kept cleaned up. Deep pink and red especially are not as abundant as they might be. The supply of Enchantress and white is especially large. Outdoor sweet peas are coming in stronger and are selling at sight. The lily of the valley cut is easily sufficient. Other offerings include gladioli, cornflower, gardenia in a very large supply, and a few Spanish iris and pansies. The fern supply is now again adequate and is able to meet the heavy calls promptly.

The Late Thomas S. Keenan.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell says that this year's experience in Cape Jasmine is no different than from other years. The early reports indicate a short crop and when they do come in they are dumped in so heavy that the market can scarcely utilize them.

Tom Barnett cut a large lot of Sweet Williams for Decoration day. They were grabbed at sight. His Dorothy Perkins and Rambler roses are beginning to come in.

The wedding of Ed. Buschle of C. E. Critchell's and Miss Schilderink was duly solemnized Saturday morning at a very early hour.

A. C. Heckman took a flying business trip into Kentucky the end of last week. H.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—It has been decided to combine the second annual exhibition and the annual rose show of the Springfield Horticultural Society, to be held about the middle of June.

Indianapolis.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE GOOD.

Decoration day business is reported equal to last year as to cut flowers. The bedding trade, according to the leading florists, shows a material increase over last year and continues good to the present moment. Landscape gardeners report the best ever witnessed in this vicinity. The quality of the leading cut flowers is unusually good for this time of year. Real good carnations are not overly plentiful and sell well, while inferior grades are hard to move. Tea roses, owing to the continued cool weather, are still of good quality, but the supply of good American Beauty roses is not equal to demand.

NOTES.

A new cut flower store will be opened in this city within 60 days. The promoters are Messrs. Heller of New Castle and Hill & Lemon of Richmond. The new firm has secured a five years' lease on a prominent site on Pennsylvania street, between Ohio and New York, opposite the Federal building. According to the daily papers a one-story building will be erected especially adapted to the business and elaborately furnished.

Secretary H. Junge of the State Florists' Association has handed in his resignation to take effect at the June meeting. Mr. Junge finds it impossible to devote the necessary time to these duties. The S. F. A. plans important changes as to its meeting place and program which is expected to make its meetings more attractive. The association is in a very flourishing condition, having over a hundred members in good standing.

F. Conway & Co. are negotiating with the city, who want another slice of his property for park purposes.

Everybody is sorry to hear of the accident Mr. John Evans had in London.

A. W. Brandt has bought a new pleasure car. H. J.

TORONTO, ONT.—The annual spring flower show of the Toronto Horticultural Society was held in Foresters' hall May 17. The premiums were for bulbous and perennial flowers.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—A disastrous hail storm broke over this city May 27 and greenhouse men suffered heavily, including Samuel Murray, W. L. Rock Flower Co., J. Austin, Nelson Jarrett, Bunker Hill Greenhouse, W. J. Barnes, W. R. Heite, Merriam, Kans., Biederman & Son, and Chas. Laundry.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y.—The first annual flower show of the Oyster Bay Horticultural Society will be held June 18. The committee of arrangements consists of Joseph Raynor, John T. Ingram and J. R. Raynor, who will make all arrangements for the entries, prizes, etc. The fall show will be held October 2.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—The city parks were inspected May 24 by a party of Canadians belonging to the Horticultural Society of St. Catherines. The party, which numbered about 400, included the mayor and other city officials of St. Catherines. They were welcomed by President A. B. Lamber-ton of the park board, Vice-President Wm. C. Barry, Superintendent C. C. Laney and Assistant Superintendent John Dunbar. The places visited include Highland park, Genesee valley and Seneca parks. A banquet in the Duffy Powers building closed the visit. The following members of the Rochester Florists' Association were appointed by President Dunbar to act as a reception committee: Geo. B. Hart, Chas. H. Vick, Colin B. Ogsten, Fred H. Vick, Edwin Wilson and James Logan.

The Last Greenhouse.

The increasing use of artificial flowers, in preference to high priced natural stock from storage, otherwise known as "pickled" or "salted" stock, will surely put the "For Sale" sign on many greenhouses, as one of our correspondents remarks elsewhere in this issue.

American Rose Society.

The American Rose Society has a prize offer as follows:

ROCHE SPECIAL OFFER.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 18, 1911.

To the American Rose Society:—
 I desire to offer prize of $50.00 for a new rose to be grown under glass, to resemble as nearly as possible in color the "Marshall Neil," but with a stronger stem, to be competed for at any show your Society selects after June, 1912.

(Signed) Frances Roche.

THE HUBBARD GOLD MEDAL.

This medal will be given once in five years to the grower or originator of the best rose introduced in the five years previous to the award. The rose must be of American origin. The first five years will terminate in 1914. Mrs. Hubbard has presented to the American Rose Society the sum of $250 to be kept as a permanent fund with the interest to be used every five years to provide the gold medal as stated above.

Now who is there likely to be able to take the prize as above specified? This year, in some parts of the country the ideal weather is bringing on the outdoor roses famously and the damp, warm weather seems to make the bush varieties and climbers develop. But what will the flowers be? Cabbage roses were listed in the year 1596, and so were moss roses, but that was a long time ago. New varieties are constantly being brought forward and roses are yearly more and more in evidence in the dooryard. Home gardening and school gardening are creating or rather invigorating the spirit for pretty dooryards. The florist in any town or village can lead in this by setting the example which stimulates the desire to have flowers.

The Rose Journal, as part of the equipment to keep in touch with the membership of the Rose society, seems to have made a favorable impression, judging from the various comments on the first number and requests for copies. Every grower of plants and flowers should be interested in this Society. President Farenwald is on a trip to Europe. Little escapes his observation and he will be back for the S. A. F. convention in August.

Last winter was the severest in regard to freezing out shrubs, etc., that we have experienced in the western end of the state of Pennsylvania in at least twenty to thirty years. All of the Ligustrum ovalifolium is frozen back. I might mention for instance a privet hedge which was planted some 18 years ago in Highland park, which for the first time in the above number of years we were compelled to cut back to within six inches of the ground. There are a great many of the rhododendrons also frozen in exposed locations, and the foliage of the buxus is all frozen. Most of the forsythia, which had been planted on exposed banks, although not killed, show that they have passed through a very severe winter. Hardy hybrid perpetual roses were killed back hard, and it has required very heavy pruning to come within the live wood. I also noted a great number of the plain trees, which average 4½ to six inches in caliper, with the trunks split open this winter. They will close however, when the trees start to grow, but nevertheless they will be blemished trees. GEO. W. BURKE, Supt. Pittsburg Parks.

A good many of our shrubs were winter killed during the past severe season. Among these are the following: Buddleias, Ceanothus, Cotoneaster pannonica, Hypericum petulum, Hypericum Henryi, Hypericum lysimachoides, Gordonia Altemaha, Berberis Darwini, Berberis buxifolia. In addition we found other shrubs killed back, although they will recover immediately. Among these are the following: Rubus bambusarum, Rubus innominatus, Cotoneaster Wheeleri, Cotoneaster thymifolia, Erica vulgaris, Itea Virginica, Crataegus Pyracantha celandi, Mahonia aquifolia, Cotoneaster newyrensis, Cotoneaster applanata, Cotoneaster Henryi, Buxus, Ilex crenata, Baccharis halmifolia, Genista tinctoria, Morus alba, Tamarix gallica, Carpinus Americana, Colutea arborescens, and some varieties of roses. JAMES B. SIEBA, Asst. Supt. Boston Parks.

The past winter has been exceptionally severe all over the country and especially in the central, western and northwestern sections, and it has been reported that much outdoor stock in the way of shrubs, roses and perennials which are ordinarily hardy has been killed or severely injured. The following communications have been received from those who have large numbers of these plants and are conversant with the conditions:

I have noted that the following plants have been injured during the severe weather of the last winter: Wild roses of all sorts; Ligustrum Iota, badly frozen; Ligustrum Californicum, killed; weigelia, badly frozen; forsythia, blooms frozen. All tender young growth that was green last fall is dead this spring. Bushes generally will need much trimming.

Increasing Cost of Business.

We are passing through a transition period, of which the agriculturist as well as the man in mercantile life must recognize the increased cost of doing business; as an example, 20 years ago the cost of doing a retail mercantile business was 10 per cent; today this costs from 20 to 28 per cent, owing to the size of towns and kinds of business. It has taken years for the merchant to realize why he was not "getting ahead" in business. I have always contended that the trouble with business conditions was, not so much that other people were trying to fool you, as we are trying to fool ourselves.—Rural New Yorker.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE.

The weather was very warm during the week preceding Memorial day and the result was that there was a vast amount of stock of all kinds, such as it was, but of really first-class stock, such as the houses would have liked to supply their customers, there was very little, but everybody did the best they could under the circumstances, with the probabilities that there were many disappointments and that apologies had to be extended. The majority of the wholesale houses report that the trade was very satisfactory with the shipping trade exceptionally good. There was very little doing on the market on Memorial day and a visit to some of the retail stores in the morning also found the employes idle and the ice-boxes pretty well filled. Good peonies sold fine and there was a good call for fancy American Beauties and other roses and carnations, but there was very little call for miscellaneous stock and practically no market whatever for orchids. The supply of lilies was equal to the demand and some late shipments of Cape Jasmine arrived on Wednesday noon, too late for the Memorial day trade, and it is doubtful if the express charges were realized. The talked-of scarcity of peonies failed to develop and the supply of stock that was left over was very large and a disappointment to the dealer. Many of the roses arrived at the stores half-opened and some of the carnations were very soft and in some cases practically unsalable. Trade on Friday was very good with the supply still very large and no shortage of any kind. The market has been very quiet this week and the stock has been accumulating rapidly and the only shortage reported is that of lily of the valley. Five cents is being asked for the best grade and we heard one wholesaler tell his customer that his grower said he should not accept any thing less than four cents. There is a very noticeable over abundance of orchids and it is surprising that these beautiful flowers should be sacrificed at such low prices during June, the month of weddings. American Beauty roses are arriving in good condition for this time of the year and the other roses are also of fair quality. Fine Richmond, My Maryland and Kaiserin Augusta Victoria roses are obtainable and are in good demand. Peonies are seen in large quantities everywhere and carnations are more plentiful and have taken quite a drop in prices. To sum up the condition of the market in a nutshell we would say that there is an oversupply of everything with the exception of lily of the valley as we have mentioned.

NOTES.

O. P. Bassett and wife of Pasadena, Calif., are in the city this week on business and pleasure combined. Mr. Bassett is naturally interested in Bassett & Washburn's proposed building and his mission here was mainly to look over the plans of the firm's new range of greenhouses. He says that this city is all right as far as it goes but that the weather is a little too warm. He leaves on Sunday, June 9, for his home in the southern clime, where the cool ocean breezes blow to watch over his outdoor roses which are something out of the ordinary and the finest in that section of the country. Mr. Bassett says that California is good enough for him and that he would not live any other place on this earth as long as such a beautiful spot as Pasadena is located in the Golden State.

J. C. Craig had a fine Memorial day trade and succeeded in disposing of his large crop of lilies and a good supply of other miscellaneous stock. Mr. Craig is one of the oldest florists in the city and with the assistance of his enterprising sons has built up a good paying business.

The next regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club will be held at the Union restaurant, 72 West Randolph street (tonight) Thursday June 6, at 8 p. m. The ways and means committee will make their report and every member of the club should be present.

George Perdikas is fixing up the room adjoining his store on West Jackson boulevard, with the intention of using it as an ice cream parlor during the summer months.

J. A. Budlong is having a good call for My Maryland and Kaiserin Augusta Victoria roses and is indeed fortunate in having a good crop of these popular summer roses.

Fred C. Hoerber says that the Memorial day trade at Hoerber Bros' store was fine and that his firm succeeded in disposing of about all of their stock.

A. Henderson & Co. has added some new office fixtures and Mr. Crowfoot can now be seen occupying one of the handsome new desks.

The grim reaper was very busy this week and four deaths in the local trade are recorded in the obituary column of this issue.

D. D. Johnson, with the United Fertilizer Co., is calling on the trade in Ohio this week.

The E. F. Winterson Co. is receiving a large quantity of fine home grown peonies.

The Chicago Carnation Co.'s baseball team won another game this week when they defeated the North Stars by a score of 14 to 10 and are now fighting for first place in the Joliet city league. A. T. Pyfer says that the Memorial day trade was fine and some of the letters that he has received this week from his out-of-town customers show that they were well pleased with the stock that they received and many were from customers away beyond the 1,000-mile limit.

The J. B. Deamud Co. report that the Memorial day trade was the finest ever and the proprietor was glad when it was over for the force was obliged to work early and late to properly handle the large supply of stock that was received. This firm received the first chrysanthemum of the season on June 3 and some of trade were inclined to believe it was artificial until they examined it a little more closely and found it to be genuine.

The John C. Moninger Co., will furnish the material for Bassett & Washburn's new range of houses which will, at the start, consist of 5 flat rafter houses, 35x600 feet. The ground has already been graded and it is understood that building operations will be under way in double quick order for the Moninger Co. never loses any time in delivering its material.

Max Cohen, who looks after the cut flower department at McNeilleys' East Sixty-third street store, was pretty busy all last week and says that he filled a good many out-of-town Memorial day orders. Mr. Cohen has an option on this place and we would not be at all surprised to hear soon that he is the new proprietor.

E. E. Pieser, the "Peony King," says that this was the hardest season for peonies that he has ever experienced and that he has never seen so many poor flowers in proportion as this year. His firm had the biggest Memorial day in its history and if the weather had been a little more favorable it would have been a tremendous one indeed.

Fred Lautenschlager has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his sister whose death occurred from heart failure on Monday, May 27. The funeral services were held at the home in this city and the remains were laid to rest in the family lot in the Spring Grove cemetery at Cincinnati, O.

George Economopolis, proprietor of the Alpha Floral Co., and his storemen did a large Memorial day business and succeeded in disposing of a vast quantity of stock. The store was full of customers from early until late and the employes were taxed to the utmost in properly serving the public.

Frank Jerome and George Severance of the American Importing Co. will leave some time this month for Europe to place their import orders. Their firm has offices at 219 South Dearborn street and deals largely in prepared cypress leaves, crepe paper and gold leaf letters.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. had a fine Memorial day trade and the force had about all the work it could properly attend to. About the only stock that was left over when the store was closed on the big flower day was a few gladioli that arrived after the rush was over.

Tony Einweck, E. H. Hunt's cut flower man spent last Sunday at Crooked Lake, Wis. and came back severely sunburned. His weekly visits to that resort are leading some of his friends to believe that there is some attraction in the Badger state.

U S Budlong's E Blue Ribbon Valley.

Julius Zschau says the hot water boiler that he bought from the Boynton Furnace Co., 131 West Lake street, last fall was a dandy and did good service all last winter heating the greenhouses very quickly even in the coldest of weather.

Wendland & Keimel's records show that their cut of roses last month was 25,000 less than for the same month last year but they expect to make up the difference this month as the plants are in fine condition and promise well.

A. F. Longren, E. H. Hunt's traveling representative, started out on another trip this week. "Tell the boys I will be back for the convention" were his last words as he left the store.

The Batavia Greenhouse Co. cut their first peonies on June 1 and according to O. Johnson's records at the firm's city salesroom the season is one week later than last year.

Zech & Mann are receiving a new red peony that is exceptionally fine and it is certainly attracting a great deal of attention at the store this week.

Thos. McAllister, who has been laid up for over a week with a sprained back, is again attending to his duties at A. Lang's store.

Mrs. George Fisher was successfully operated upon for appendicitis at the Wesley hospital last Monday, June 3.

Wietor Bros. had a very fine Memorial day trade and N. J. Wietor says that both the shipping and local trade were good and that they had three crackerjack days moving practically everything in American Beauties, roses and carnations. The supply of American Beauty roses for the occasion was very large and their magnificent stock found a very ready sale.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association have added a few peony growers to their list of consignors and are now receiving a fine assortment of these flowers. Manager Kidwell says that the firm's Memorial day trade was exceptionally good and more than satisfactory. A meeting of the directors was held at the store last Wednesday, June 5.

John Kruchten is receiving a large supply of all kinds of choice reasonable stock with roses, carnations, peonies and Butterfly sweet peas showing up exceptionally well.
Hans Rowold and E. Leslie, proprietors of the Kedzie Florist store, are doing fine in the retail business and are talking about opening another store.

Tim Matchen says that the Memorial day trade at Peter Reinberg's was very good and much better than last year. The shipping trade was exceptionally brisk and large quantities of choice roses and carnations were shipped out of this house on May 27-28-29. Miss Corbett has resigned as bookkeeper with this firm and Miss Barnes has already been selected to fill the position. Miss Corbett did not have very much to say about her resignation but it is understood that she is to be married next Saturday, June 8, and she is now receiving congratulations from her many friends in the trade.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. report their Memorial day trade was the largest ever and was very satisfactory. The cut the few days previous was unusually large and on May 28 alone the shipment from the greenhouses consisted of 286 large sized boxes and these were all completely filled with roses, carnations and all other seasonable cut flowers and greens. Otto W. Frese says that his firm's orchids are now in full crop and one notices that the prices are now very reasonable and within reach of all.

Geo. V. Weinhoeber says that the trade at Fleischmann Floral Co.'s store is very good and that the present year so far has been a most satisfactory one. The old rustic mill scene is still proving to be a great attraction and large crowds of people stop to admire it daily.

John Risch was well pleased with the Memorial day trade at Weiland's new store on East Washington street and says that peonies had a very little call and that the demand was principally for roses and carnations.

Erne & Klingel, the new wholesalers, report a fine Memorial day trade and jokingly add that it was the best ever.

Miss H. V. Tonner was ably assisted by her sister Olga at the store during the holiday rush.

FLUSHING, N. Y.—Lackman the Florist, who recently bought the greenhouses of Alexander Thorne is replacing the old houses, with new ones of modern construction.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—Miss Carrie M. Howell, who has been conducting a florist business for the last six years, has taken her brother, John C. Howell, in as a partner and with his aid intends to build more greenhouses and conduct the business upon a much larger scale than before.

SCARCITY OF CARNATION.

Decoration day, as usual, was a busy day for everybody connected with the flower business, and as this is the general rule for the florist to get busy, almost everyone was well prepared for the same. There was plenty of stock of all descriptions except carnations. The dark weather that set in on Tuesday and Wednesday shortened up these flowers considerably and the price took a jump and the wholesalers had hard work trying to fill their orders. On Wednesday there was plenty of roses to fill all orders, the demand being chiefly for the short-stemmed stock, and the longer grades were sold more reasonable than they should have, but as there was a large supply on hand it was necessary to move them. There was also plenty of sweet peas, tulips, peonies and gladioli of the small variety to help the large demand for cut flowers out nicely. Common ferns are becoming poorer as the new season for this stock is approaching and everybody is looking forward for some of the new stock, for it will take away a lot of extra labor which was necessarily due to their condition and had to be graded continually.

NOTES.

Currie Bros. Co. bought a fine auto delivery car and are well pleased with the machine. Their Decoration day business was large and kept the force busy early and late at both the seed and the flower stores.

Edlefsen & Leidiger Co. report a large trade in bedding stock and cut flowers for Decoration day and also a considerable amount of funeral work.

G. Rusch & Co. report business beyond expectations and have plenty of stock to take good care of their rapidly increasing business.

C. C. Pollworth reports business as good for Decoration day. The demand for bedding stock was fine and they are pretty well cleaned up on the large quantity that they had before the season opened.

Aug. Kellner says he is so busy with work now that he has more than he can handle and all the people want their work attended to first.

Richard Lietz reports the seed trade as good and is kept busy planting the flower beds and other articles which help beautify the homes.

Holton & Hunkel Co. report a fine trade for Decoration day, and they had a fine lot of stock to take care of their large business.

The Fox Point Floral Co. is shipping in some fine gladioli.

Fred Schmeling is cutting some fine carnations.

St. Louis.

SWEET PEAS VERY CHEAP.

The Memorial day business was a hummer. The retailers did a fine trade and the wholesalers also. Flowers were plentiful and reasonable. Now we have June weddings, school closings to help out. Sweet peas are now quoted at 35 cents to 50 cents. Gladioli are now arriving in all varieties.

NOTES.

The Union Florists, with J. A. Ent as manager, has opened a very pretty store in a good neighborhood. J. A. Ent was for quite a while in the employ of Robert J. Windler and is a good artist and landscape gardner and has a good knowledge in all branches of the florist business.

The Florists' Union met Monday evening at House of Flowers, over

U S Budlong's E Blue Ribbon Valley.

Ostertag Bros.' store. The nomination and election of officers was the feature. John Barnard, president; George Wagner, vice-president; Mrs. N. Kingley, secretary; M. Piper, recording secretary; C. Connon, sergeant at arms.

Mrs. Willie Clair McClue, formerly in the employ of Grimm & Gorly, is now with the Volkman Floral Co. This firm is enjoying a nice trade and always receives good prices for its work.

The next meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club will be an important one. The trustees will announce locations for the annual picnic and the site will be chosen by vote. The bulletin committee will meet also. C. D. Wever will lead a discussion on overhead and subirrigation. F. H. Weber, state vice-president of S. A. F., will make a talk on convention matters.

The following wholesalers wish to announce that their stores will close at 5 p. m. on all days except Saturday and Sunday (on which days they will close at 12 o'clock noon), from June 17 to September 14, inclusive: Geo. H. Angermueller, Hy. G. Berning, Chas. A. Kuehn and the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

The Paris Floral Co. will have to find a new location, as their store has been leased to a retail shoe store. They expect to locate in that neighborhood.

George Wagner, with Grimm & Gorly, is very busy these days. Commencement exercises keeps him busy arranging artistic bunches and bouquets.

Martin Reukauf, with H. Bayersdorfer & Co., is with us again; also Sprinkleproof Sam, with Wertheimer Bros., the New York ribbon firm.

Vincent Gorly reports the Memorial day trade as very good. He expects good business throughout the coming month.

Henry Kahrs is now shipping clerk at Grimm & Gorly's and had his hands full all week.

All the West End stores report good trade for Memorial day.

Jim North, with Alex Johnson, reports trade as very good. W. F.

BROOKLINE, MASS.—James F. Quinn was elected selectman at a special election held May 24, winning by four votes from the next highest competitor.

HARTFORD, CONN.—The principal feature of the meeting of the Connecticut Horticultural Society, held May 24 in the County building, was an exhibition of pansies by John Gerard of New Britain. Mr. Gerard gave an interesting talk on these flowers, speaking particularly on the varieties of the pansy. Wm. A. McKanzie of Bristol exhibited a vase of red and white tulips. S. F. Willard of Comstock, Ferre & Co., Wethersfield, spoke of his visit to Europe and particularly of the interest taken in their work by the German florists. The business transacted included the adoption of a new constitution for the society.

MEMORIAL DAY EQUAL TO PREVIOUS YEARS

The Memorial day business was equal to if not exceeding that of previous years. There may have been some disappointment among growers and dealers who were not altogether sold out, but under the prevailing conditions they had reason to be thankful for selling as much as they did. The supply of stock was enormous, and it is a safe conclusion that there was enough cut stock in and around Washington to supply two cities of its size. Peonies, roses, both greenhouse and garden varieties, carnations, sweet peas, lilies, gallardias, gladiola, coreopsis, sweet williams, everything, in fact, that a florist or gardener can reasonably expect at this season was on the market. To all this must be added an immense volume of stock from the woods and fields. In the states of Virginia and Maryland, adjacent to the District of Columbia, there is a large colored population that for the week previous to Memorial day does a thriving business in blooming shrubbery and field flowers. Syringia, laurel, field daisies or any other flowers that they think can be sold are industriously gathered and taken in by the wagon load, being generally sold outside of the market. Those who do not own horses and wagons bring in their stock on foot till they reach the street cars. It is no unusual sight to see a robust colored mammy with two baskets of flowers, either one of which would be a load for the average man. It is true that this stock is sold cheap, but it has an effect on the market. Another feature that to some extent affected the market this year was that everybody that had a garden had flowers of their own. The peonies were very fine and sold well to the better class of customers, but it was impossible to dispose of all of them and even at this writing the retail stores are full of them. The average retail price for Memorial and preceding days was $1.50 per dozen. There may have been some selected stock that sold for $2 and even $3, but that was more than offset by what sold for 75 cents and $1 per dozen. Sweet peas came in great quantities, both from greenhouses and gardeners. The plant trade was no inconsiderable feature. We cannot recall a time at this season when hydrangeas were so plentiful. They were in sizes ranging from five to eight inch pots and retailed at from 50 cents to $1.50 each. Both white and pink spiraea were also on the market. The only stock in general demand that was not plentiful was good geraniums. Good geraniums readily wholesaled at from $1.25 to $2 per dozen. Throughout the past week weather conditions were exceptionally favorable for business, but very dry for the gardens. Rain fell on the night of June 2.

Adolphus Gude, Washington, D. C.

NOTES.

Adolphus Gude, who went to Los Angeles about April 27 to attend the supreme council of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, has returned home after an extended trip through California, Oregon and Washington state. He was accompanied by Mrs. Gude and their daughter Esther. The itinerary included a section of California noted for great trees, San Francisco, Oakland, Portland and Seattle. Mr. Gude was delighted with the trip and much impressed with the horticultural and agricultural productiveness of the Pacific coast states. The oranges, figs and other fruits of southern California were almost a revelation to him. Though he had often read and heard of it all, seeing was believing. The great calla fields was another feature in which, quite naturally, he was interested.

George H. Cooke and a couple of friends have been away for several days on a fishing trip. As visible evidence, they have sent home several large fish and are expected to bring a lot more with them.

George Leissler, whose store is at Twenty-second street and Pennsylvania avenue, N. W., and greenhouses at Livingstone Heights, Va., had a lot of very fine white and pink spireas for Memorial day.

Wm. F. Gude says that Memorial day brought more business to their store than they could well handle. Sixty thousand sweet peas were cut at their greenhouses on May 29.

Geo. C. Shaffer had a decoration for the first secretary of the British legation, June 3, in which 1,500 peonies were used.

John Robertson is handling a very fine new pink peony grown by Geo. Leissler, at Livingstone Heights, Va.

The dry weather is beginning to have a detrimental effect on field carnations, phlox and other stocks.

DEMAND GOOD.

The peony season is at its best. Local stock which is arriving daily is all of a better quality both in size of blooms and colors, than the shipped stock which was about the only kind obtainable for Memorial day, and no doubt this will be the favorite flower for all occasions for June. Orchids have had a good call and will also continue in demand for some time. Lily of the valley and sweet peas are plentiful and of excellent quality. Outdoor stock for decorative purposes can now be had in nearly all colors. Roses of all kinds are abundant and of good quality both as to color and size. Carnations are in full crop, but the sun has already faded some of the Enchantress Pink. Windsor, however, seems to thrive under the same conditions. Centuria, larkspur, Canterbury bells, gladioli, daisies, etc. clean up daily. The extremely cold weather the past winter has frozen much of the stock on the cemeteries, and florists have been very busy replanting. Geraniums have brought a better price this year than for some years past and florists who made a specialty of these flowers claim they will go higher next year as it does not pay to grow them at the old prices. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

NOTES.

Mrs. M. A. Fanning, founder of the "Flower Mission," announced that Wednesday would be flower day at the hospitals hereafter. She wants individuals to help the movement as well as florists. The object is to brighten the hospitals with the presence of beautiful sweet scented flowers. C. F. B.

SOMERVILLE, MASS.—Joseph A. Mahoney, formerly with T. F. Galvin, Boston, will move to a larger store at 219 Highland avenue. Mr. Mahoney is well known in Catholic, K. of C. and Elk circles and is a very popular entertainer.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE UNSATISFACTORY.

With the possible exception of Tuesday the business done on Decoration day week was most unsatisfactory. Those dealers who were fortunate enough to have large shipping orders on Tuesday did very well. It is remarkable where all the good quality carnations came from. The growers who preferred to hold back their shipments until Wednesday and Thursday will find their prices much lower than if they had shipped them in the day before, when they could have been shipped out of town. As it was, thousands of carnations were thrown away the latter part of the week. The market was flooded with peonies, roses, lily of the valley and orchids. Monday and Tuesday peonies sold very well. Festiva Maxima and some others of the finer varieties were bought up quickly, but on Wednesday very heavy shipments from Pennsylvania were received and they had to be cleared out at very low prices. With roses, American Beauties are meeting with the best demand, but there is only a very small percentage of these coming in that are of good quality, the majority being very poor, blooms very small and imperfect foliage. Special grades of Prince de Bulgarie, Madam Chatenay, Mrs. Aaron Ward and My Maryland did fairly well, but the top grades of Killarney and Richmond show the effects of the warm weather and are moved with difficulty. Nothing favorable can be said of the first quality Brides and Bridesmaids, which are more plentiful than ever, and large shipments of roses are disposed of by the box just as received from the grower. The supply of lilies far exceeds the demand and if not disposed of at once spoil very quickly. The orchid market is demoralized and it seems impossible to dispose of the surplus, even to the street men. Cattleya Gigas are doing better than the other varieties. Sweet peas of the best quality meet with a very fair demand, but there are so many shipments of inferior quality flowers that the quotations are very varied. There is the usual supply of antirrhinum and iris, but these, too, feel the effect of the hot weather very quickly. There is a steady demand of double stocks of the best quality and some of these are very fine indeed. Outdoor valley or frame valley is very plentiful and prices realized are very small. Taken as a whole, the week's business has been very unsatisfactory and disappointing.

Monday noon, June 3.—The weather is all that could be desired. Stock of all kinds is plentiful. While there is considerable doing, there is not sufficient demand to advance prices.

NOTES.

Richard Hallaman, who is vice-president of the International Exposition Co. of the new Grand Central Palace and president of the Eden Musee Co., is deeply interested in the coming national flower show and will endeavor to introduce many attractions to interest the public. Recently at the Eden Musee there was presented at a private performance a new Mineto film, showing interesting incidents from the plant and vegetable kingdom, made visible by speed magnification. Some of the subjects named and shown were: A day in the life of a snow drop; Ripening of the edible chestnut; Ripening of the seed pod of a willow herb; Double cottage tulips opening in the sun; Double anemones; Nasturtiums, and Hybrid perpetual roses. These and other interesting subjects will probably be shown at the time of the National Flower Show in April.

BUSINESS EXCEEDINGLY GOOD.

Decoration day dawned clear and bright, an ideal May day. The trolley was crowded with people on their way to the cemeteries to pay tribute to their dead. Especially the soldiers' graves received marked attention. Men have recognized the rose as a warrior's flower, for there is a wondrous rose of orange yellow deeping into saffron that is named for Gen. Robet. E. Lee.; a vivid red rose bears the name of "Admiral Schley"; one of delicate pink is christened "Admiral Dewey." Then there is one tinted red and white, "Flag of the Nation." "My Maryland," a soft creamy pink, and "Virginia," a rose of clear golden yellow. A rose of coral pink is dedicated to Clara Barton. The red roses of Lancaster and the white roses of York drooped above English battle fields. Their beauty has from that time been associated with the ardor of love, the flush of combat and the pallor of death. So the sentiment of flowers is borne to us on that day and we particularly remember those who gallantly fell in battle. Business was exceedingly good on Decoration day. A profusion of both indoor and outdoor flowers. King Peony was there as well as Queen Rose in abundance. The indoor roses are beginning to show the effects of warm weather, being smaller in size, and the foliage is taking on some mildew. The fireman's duty is about over for this season, though these very cool nights a little fire would help to keep off the mildew, which does so much to spoil the appearance of the rose. Many beautiful floral pieces were sent to Elkton from Baltimore in memory of ex-Gov. Crothers of Maryland. The casket was covered and surrounded by beautiful designs from all over the state. Hundreds of men and women came from all parts of the state and his own county to do him honor. He was buried at West Nottingham, Cecil Co., his old home, and much sorrow was expressed by those who knew what an honorable and faithful man he had proved to his state while holding the reins of Governor. This has been a week of commencements and graduating of nurses and a great many flowers are used at these events.

was very enjoyable. A very good musical program was given and dancing was indulged in by the young folks. Refreshments were served and about 300 persons were present. The rooms were decorated with palms and cut flowers and all voted a good time.

The coal men have been paying visits and booking orders for winter fuel. The bituminous coal ranges about the usual figures and the strike does not apply to that quality. No advance over last year in prices. We trust this may hold good among all the dealers and in other localities besides our own.

FINE SALE FOR GERANIUMS.

A very good business is the report from all who have either pot plants, bedding stock or cut flowers. Everyone will have plenty of almost everything left for stock plants. Although each one reports the sale of more plants than ever before, which shows that they were all well stocked on about everything. The call for geraniums has been greater than ever before and only one place has anything like a surplus. Everyone practically sold out and a few even going from the unplanted stock plants. A few years ago, when we first arrived here from Ohio, we found practically no call for geraniums and two or three hundred were plenty for any florist to provide. Even then a goodly number generally remained on hand for stock. The sale of a dozen in a lot was uncommon, but now the sale of a hundred for a bed is not unusual. Practically the one red—sold as "Nutt"—is the variety limit. Back east we always handled the same variety as "John Doyle," but at any rate it is the best red, and that is the one wanted. Not many outdoor cut flowers are available. Lilacs are gone, peonies are too late, bulbous stock about gone and roses and snowballs rather late. Several of our florists have put tomato plants in the carnation beds that are now so far along that the carnations are practically ruined, so the carnations are not plentiful enough to go around. Peonies are coming from Oregon and several other kinds of cut flowers will also be received from there. Every one who has planted asters out has them coming on in extra good condition for a start, as our late rains made them all start right along. Carnations are all planted out and we have never had such a splendid season for this work before.

THE acreage of peas put out in Michigan is said to be light.

PACIFIC COAST reports some drought, carrot crops looking none too well.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA.—Di Giorgi Bros. report that the business this year has been more than double that of last, and they were hardly able to handle it. They will build a one-story building with basement, 46x100 feet, on Third street and Fourteenth avenue.

SASSENHEIM, HOLLAND.—Hyacinths, narcissus and tulips look well and prospects are for a good crop with ripening season a few days earlier than last year. The bulb prices in the green auction sales remain high for nearly all kinds while Darwin tulips will average double last year's price.

NORFOLK, VA.—The Hubert Bulb Co. has just received notice that it has been successful in securing a large portion of the government order for bulbs. The department states that it is willing to place this order, owing to the superior quality of American-grown bulbs, in spite of the fact that the bids of foreign bulb growers were uniformly less.

TOULON, FRANCE.—Immortelle plants have not been damaged during the month of May and should make a fair crop. Those plants damaged in April will not have many flowers. Taken as a whole the growing crop will be less than an average one. It is expected that the wholesale price for colored flowers will be from 60 to 70 francs per 100.

BOSTON, MASS.—Breck's Club held its monthly meeting May 25 in the large hall connected with the store building. Geo. H. Burhart gave an interesting talk on salesmanship. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the July outing. An informal entertainment by the members followed. About 40 members were present and James T. Carroll presided.

CHICAGO.—Inspection of the Northwestern section of the Cook County Onion Set growing district June 1 indicates less than two-thirds stand in some fields and it is believed by those who have seen the fields that the damage is caused by smut. In the southern section maggots are at work in some fields. Information so far received is rather meager.—Prices on the Board of Trade, June 5, for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $8 to $13 per 100 pounds.

Prison Penalty Seed Bill.

The amended prison penalty seed bill will be found on page 1208 of this issue. If this bill becomes law every seedsman is liable to go to jail for accidental breach of the law. The most careful are liable to make mistakes and no doubt the prison bars will close around many seedsmen through no fault of their own. The time to stop this kind of thing is now, writing your congressman at once, protesting against prison penalty bill H. R. 22340. It will be useless to protest when the jailer gets you and puts you in the pen some fine hot August day with the malefactors of all nations. Write today.

Condon Bros., Rockford, Ill.

Condon Bros., wholesale seed dealers, are erecting a warehouse in Cedar street that will facilitate the handling of their large and growing enterprise. The location is 634-636 Cedar street, adjoining the Coan Paper establishment. The new structure will be 40x85 feet, three floors and basement. It will be solid brick and semi-fireproof, and will be a fine addition to the wholesale establishments in this city. It will be equipped with the latest machinery for cleaning, grading and picking. The warehouse will be for the wholesale trade only. It is located on the C. & N. W. tracks, thus giving good shipping facilities.

Condon Bros. have been established in the business one year and that they have progressed to the extent of needing as large a building as they are erecting shows more than ordinary enterprise. They have a retail store in West State street.—Rockford News.

Asking Credit.

The amount of credit a florist should expect should not exceed the amount of money his bank will lend him. Some florists have a horror of banks and banking business and shrivel up as soon as they enter the door. This is wrong. A bank is merely a place to go and buy the use of money, just as a grocery store is the place to buy sugar, and if your bank won't give you the amount you want, try another—that's business.

There is one cardinal principle among bankers and credit men, and that is absolute honesty. It is absolutely necessary that you be honest with your banker, the same as with your doctor or lawyer. There is no happy medium in this respect. Any banker prefers an honest poor man to a dishonest rich man, and the former will always get more than the latter—that is, more actual accommodation. Except in times of panic it is no accommodation for a bank to loan on gilt edge security—you can pawn securities that are good almost any place; but you can't discount your note any place, and therefore integrity is the basis of banking accommodations.

Now if you can get the credit you need at your bank, that's the place to get it; and in the florist business discounts for cash are so large that it pays you to borrow at your bank and discount your bills. If you can and will do this, in a few years you will find you are in a better class—the King of Merchants—besides banks want you to come and borrow money when they know you are good for it; that's the way they make a profit.—Ward's Horseshoe Bulbology.

The Annual Seed Farce.

Have you received your seeds yet? Oh, it doesn't matter whether you have a garden or not. One of the great privileges of our statesmen at Washington is to send to the folks at home tons of seeds, ranging from Japanese morning glories to Indian squash. These, the story goes, are expected to be planted, observed and reported to congress in order that others may learn from your experience.

The other day one Congressman Jackson, of Kansas, proposed that this distribution of seeds be put into the care of the Agricultural Department and that, incidentally, seeds should be tested and be somewhat fresh, before they are sent out to the farmers of the country. His idea, too, was that seeds should only be sent to persons who intended to plant them and that it should be left largely to the farmer whether he should be sent a package of alfalfa or a pound of poppy seeds or a miscellaneous collection of medicinal herbs.

Mr. Jackson's suggestion was offensive to his fellow congressmen. It seemed as direct a slap against personal rights as that other dreadful suggestion of Congressman Prouty of Iowa, who had the temerity to ask that free baths and barber shops for our statesmen be dispensed with. His motion failed of support.

Consequently, if you have been overlooked, send your name in and get your "rights." As far as sending in the result of your observation, that is totally unnecessary. The practice of seed distribution gives seed houses a chance to unload on the government all their old stale stock, adds an enormous amount to the mail tonnage each year, and is altogether a silly farce, but as a "sacred right" the custom must go on until the farmers of the country demand that the seed distribution be made a part of the expert's work in the Department of Agriculture.—Miami Metropolitan.

PLANT TRADE GOOD.

The plant trade business is about over and everyone is glad that it is so, for it has been a strenuous spring. The cold weather kept folks from buying early and so everything came in with a rush the last minute and nearly worked everyone to death. Without a doubt the plant trade this spring was far ahead of last year, nearly every florist cleaning up in nearly all lines. Decoration day was a record-breaker. The weather was cool and bright, and more people took advantage of the holiday than ever before, and in consequence the florists adjacent to the cities of the dead did the largest business for many a year. Everything that looked like a flower was sold long before the day was over, and every plant with even a bud was bought up. Peonies were late by only three days. Everything was done to bring them in on time, but very few were open far enough to cut, and as nearly all other flowers out of doors were gone, with the exception of the iris, there was not very much outside or indoor stock and of course the supply was short and only large enough to reach about half way around, and the disappointed ones were those who had not ordered in advance. All in all, the florists seem to be well pleased with the spring plant trade and the business done on Decoration day. We will now have a little time to straighten things up, plant chrysanthemums and commence to think of the things we would like to have for next fall and winter.

Lime Sulphur Dwarfs Potatoes.

That lime-sulphur solution cannot replace Bordeaux mixture as a preventative of potato diseases are the conclusions drawn from experiments made at the New York experiment station. Orchardists who also grow potatoes hoped that they might use lime-sulphur spray in the field as well as in the orchard and dispense with Bordeaux, but a careful test made in 1911 proves the lime-sulphur harmful to potatoes. The plants in rows sprayed with lime-sulphur were dwarfed by the fungicide, died early and yielded about 40 bushels less to the acre than check rows; while Bordeaux sprayed rows produced 100 bushels to the acre more than checks.

Mechanical Watering.

From excessive moisture we have again jumped into a miniature drought and we can hear the gasoline engines pumping water right and left. We think most of our neighbors are making a mistake in applying water too early in the season as long as there is ample subsoil moisture. In most cases hoeing and cultivating would do more good than watering. At this time of the year the ground is cool and what we need is soil heat which is not obtained by watering. There is a fine use for water in this line in lightly spraying of suffering crops during the noon hour or twice a day during the extreme heat. Such treatment will counteract the fierce heat of the sun without cooling the soil. Further we may again plunge into a wet spell, which would endanger our watered crops. To sum up, we advise beginners to go slow applying water in the field as long as there is subsoil moisture. We believe in thorough watering later on after the lower moisture is exhausted and enough soil heat accumulated.

MARKETMAN.

UTICA, N. Y.—A. R. Wilcox, for 20 years with C. F. Baker & Son, is now connected with the Plantadendron. The Plantadendron is now prepared to carry on a retail florist business along all lines and Mr. Wilcox's numerous friends wish him all possible success.

Oklahoma City.

Retail florists here pronounce the recent Memorial day business as the best ever experienced in this city. A pleasing feature of the trade was the fact that orders as a rule were placed well in advance and the many disappointments were occasional customers who waited until the last moment before making purchases. The "Mothers' day" celebration is believed to be mainly responsible for the placing of orders early for Memorial day. The peony crop was getting well toward the finish, still, there was a fairly good supply and they were in great favor, selling well. Out-door sweet peas were very plentiful as also were roses and candytuft. There was a good demand for high grade roses, gardenias, lilies, carnations and snapdragon, these embracing the chief cut flowers used. In potted plants, hydrangeas, geraniums, asparagus and small ferns were the principal features and for which there was good demand, especially for well grown hydrangeas. Prices for cut flowers ruled about as follows: Roses, $1.75 to $2.00 per dozen; carnations, $1.00 per dozen; peonies, $1.75 to $2.00 per dozen; sweet peas 50 cents per 100. Made up designs ranging in price from $2.00 to $5.00 each were an attractive feature and sold well. It is also worthy of note that our retailers advertised liberally in the daily press and the publicity thus given is without a doubt responsible in a great measure for the general increase in the Memorial day business.

NOTES.

Geo. Stiles, of The Stiles Co., is very enthusiastic over the ever increasing popularity of cut flowers in this southern metropolis. Probably the most notable increase of any is that seen in the call for boxes of flowers for, while the call for made up bouquets, etc., continues good the demand for boxes of miscellaneous flowers gains steadily. Owing no doubt to the preponderance of youth in the city and surrounding territory, and an unusually healthy climate the call for funeral designs is not such an important feature, neither so profitable a one as it is to florists located in longer established communities. The Stiles Co.'s window has been a grand show with peonies, pink snapdragon, gypsophila, sweet peas, roses, carnations and decorative plants.

The flower department of the "Barteldes" store is under the very capable management of Lon Foster, who has been with the firm eight years and who has had charge of the flowers the last three. This house does a general shipping trade throughout the state, in florists' supplies and issues an annual catalogue covering about everything needed in the retail store from wire designs to toothpicks. During the convention of the State Druggists' Association, held in this city recently, Barteldes executed the decorations for that association's annual banquet, which was given in the Lee Huckins hotel, there were 250 covers laid.

Perry De Haven, Tulsa, reports a splendid line of business done for the opening of a new hotel there recently.

Visitors: J. W. Furrow, of Furrow & Co., nurserymen, Guthrie, was in town recently and reports the completion of another greenhouse, which now gives them a total glass area of 45,000 square feet.

S. S. B.

Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A range of six modern greenhouses, Foley Mfg. Co.'s material and design, is in course of erection for F. J. Knecht & Co. near the corner of Fairfield and Rudesell avenues, well to the south of the city, but within easy reach either for trade or shipping. The location is a favorable one in every respect and Fairfield avenue is a fine residence street and automobile thoroughfare. A short stretch of paving remains to be done on this avenue south to Rudesell, and this is promised before the close of the present season, so that by the time cutting is ready to begin in the fall the place will be easily accessible. Mr. Knecht is well known and was formerly manager of the large Vesey plant, where he made more than a local reputation as a highly successful grower of fine stock. Late spring and labor delays have kept back construction somewhat, but now that conditions are improved in both respects the buildings are fast assuming a stage of completion, and it will not be long before the benches are filled and the fine appearing little plant fully under way.

FINE MEMORIAL DAY TRADE.

The exceedingly hot weather for a week or two preceding Decoration day, caused a rush in business of bedding plants. The stock moved very quickly with "all hands at the wheel," and a great deal of planting was done. The stock was of noticeably fine quality this season, and commanded good prices. Geraniums, coleus, fuschias, cannas, salvia and the different varieties in vines, etc., met with good demand. Business for Decoration day was tremendous, all kinds of stock sold well. Peonies were of excellent quality and were eagerly snatched up. Roses were scarce, and the carnations though made plentiful by the warm days were small. There was a good supply of other stock, snapdragon, coreopsis, iris, miniature gladioli, lilies, and sweet peas, all of which met with ready sale. Novelties in wreaths were made up and were much favored by the flower-buying public. In fact by noon on Decoration day the florists were entirely cleaned up on stock. This was owing to the fact that out-of-door stock was not in bloom and made the demand for greenhouse flowers enormous. The supply of greens was good, particularly spengeri. Prices on all stock went up. Orders are coming in for commencements and weddings, and June bids fair to keep all the florists hustling during her "rare" days.

NOTES.

The marked progressiveness of the craft is shown by the number of former florists' employees who are venturing into the business for themselves. Among the recent venturers in the trade are one Herman Leity who was employed by W. J. and M. S. Vesey, for over fourteen years, and Mr. Herman of New Haven, Ind. They will construct several large houses in New Haven, which will be devoted to the growing of general stock for the wholesale trade.

A. E. Sumner, formerly employed by Sullivan, florist of Detroit, Mich., has leased the greenhouses at Garrett, Ind., from the well-known cyclamen specialist Christ Winterich of Defiance, O. He will grow a general stock of plants and cut flowers for the trade in Garrett and vicinity. Mr. Sumner is a very enterprising business man, and has the best wishes of the trade for his success.

The increase in demand for cut flowers in general and particularly for good roses has prompted the erection of two new rose houses in addition to the plant of the C. B. Flick Floral

COMING BOSTON CONVENTION.

We wish to sound the last note possible for us to publish regarding the great convention of this association in Boston, June 12, 13 and 14. Some of our nurserymen readers may think that because the season has been a backward one that that fact will furnish an excuse for absenting themselves from this annual gathering. Let us warn them that they will make a great mistake if they permit themselves so to do. The Boston nurserymen are expecting and providing for a record-breaking attendance, and the event can be made a red-letter mark if members will only turn out.

Secretary Hall has been very industrious in his coaching of members for these past months, and now has published the badge book, certainly one of the finest ever issued by the association. The typographical features are commendable, and a system can be observed running all through the very neat publication. The book was issued in time to reach every member before leaving home, notwithstanding the many provoking delays experienced.

Remember, the headquarters of the convention will be the Hotel Somerset, Commonwealth avenue, Boston. It is within ten minutes' ride of either the Back Bay or Trinity Station, and all Boylston street and Massachusetts avenue street cars pass within a very short distance of the hotel.

Arrangements are all completed, programs are of great excellence, and the Boston brethren will be there with the "glad hand."

May Shrubs in Arnold Arboretum.

The earliest of the American haw-thorns to flower in the Arboretum this year is Crataegus Arnoldiana. This is one of the large-leaved, large-flowered, and large-fruited species, and even in winter is easily recognized by its numerous thorns and by the zigzag manner in which its erect branches grow.
 The flowers open as the leaves expand and the brilliant scarlet fruit ripens toward the end of August and then soon falls. The early ripening of the fruit makes this tree valuable because showy fruits are not common here in summer, says the Bulletin issued by the Arnold Arboretum. C. Arnoldiana grows naturally on a wooded bank in the Arboretum and on the Mystic River in West Medford, Mass. When botanists called all American thorns with red fruits C. coccinea or varieties of that species C. Arnoldiana was included.

The earliest flowering plants of Rhododendron (Azalea) Kaempferi are beginning to show the color of their flowers. This handsome plant is a native of the high mountains of Japan and was first cultivated in the Arboretum where it was raised from seeds collected in 1902 by Professor Sargent.

Viburnum Carlesii, a native of Korea, is flowering in the Arboretum for the first time. It appears to be very hardy and promises to be a first-rate ornamental plant here. The flowers are produced in compact clusters and are very fragrant. The open flower is pure white but the bud is pink, and as all the flowers do not open at the same time the contrast between the pink buds and the white flowers adds to the beauty of the cluster.

A New Flowering Currant.

An interesting shrub, Ribes lauri-folium, was shown before the floral committee of the Royal Horticultural Society and gained an award of merit, and is one of the subjects raised from seed collected by E. H. Wilson in China, states a writer in The Garden.
 Though the flowers are not showy in color, the plant is, nevertheless, peculiarly attractive. The growth, for instance, suggests another family altogether, and the fully-matured leaves during the summer are of a deep bronze color. The natural habit of the plant is dwarf and spreading, and in its native habitat it is found among rocks. I believe it will prove a very useful plant for the rock garden in the near future. It is quite hardy, and a young plant opened and produced its flowers during the week of cold weather, when we registered 20° on two consecutive nights. The flowers are produced in drooping racemes, the individual flowers being of a pale yellowish green, much resembling cowslips, and last in a fresh state for a considerable time. Its early flowering will undoubtedly add to its popularity. Whether the black, oval fruits will mature in this country remains to be seen.

Duty on Fruit Trees

The United States Department of the Treasury has notified the surveyor of customs at Houston, Tex., that the term "tropical and semitropical fruit plants" which are admitted free of duty for the purpose of propagation or cultivation, is limited to such species as are indigenous to tropical and semi-tropical climates, and that cold-enduring species like the apple, pear, cherry and the hardy species of the genus prunus are not commercially or scientifically semitropical plants even when grown in a semitropical region.

WEATHER FAVORABLE.

For the past few days the weather has been most favorable to the growers. Fortunately the heat which we had a week or more ago, has been less severe, and again, as at Easter, the growers were able to bring in some of the best stock shown this season for Decoration day. Two or three days ahead of time fine stock began to arrive and everything looked as though business would boom for that day. Roses of all kinds, including some very fine Mrs. Aaron Ward, were in the market, and notwithstanding the lateness of the season were very good. Carnations in pink and white were exceptionally fine. There was a large demand for red ones for decorating the graves along with other blue and white flowers. Thousands of out-of-door lily of the valley came at the beginning of the week, but is about over now. Sweet peas in lavender and white have fairly long stems, but the majority of pinks are short. A little maidenhair fern is helping to make them more attractive. Plenty of blue and white iris is on the market and peonies are making a fine show, especially the single varieties. Tulips are about over for this season and a shortage of blooming plants makes it difficult to fill the needs of many customers. There still remains, however, a good supply of hydrangeas. Business for the whole month of May has been very good and prices have kept up well.

NOTES.

H. P. Neun is having a series of window displays at his store on North street, this time in memory of the old veterans. It consisted of a huge vase of red and white peonies and purple iris. Draped carelessly, but with much effect, was an immense American flag, and a bank of palms formed an ideal background for this fitting occasion.

Harry Merritt of Irondequoit, N. Y., is growing some extra large carnations. His greenhouse is kept in fine condition and the amount of trouble taken is very evident in the quality of the stock that he grows. He has planted several thousand young plants, which are doing nicely and promise well.

Horace J. Head has left the employ of H. E. Wilson, having been with that firm for just over two years. He sails from New York on June 15 per SS. "Olympic," bound for Southampton, England. It is uncertain as to when he will return.

Miss Lillian Wheeler spent the week end at Hilton, New York, as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Smith.

Miss Myrtle Bradstreet helped out for Decoration day at the Rochester Floral Co. H. J. H.

The Importance of a Right Plan

CONTINUALLY we are up against propositions where the gardener wants one thing and the owner another. Now the question comes up: Shall we build what they want, or try to swing them around to a plan that will work out for economy, endurance, convenience, attractiveness, and that can be added to without looking like a sore thumb?

Naturally, we endeavor to put into use our 60 years' experience the business. Sometimes we run up against a snag and our customers insist on building some unfortunate thing. Every time we carry such ideas out, invariably the owner sees the error when the layout is completed and blames us for it. Even accuses us of not knowing our business.

So, right at the start, it's always best to call us in and talk things over, as we may, in the end, save you many mistakes.

When shall we come?

ROYAL INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION

Held at the Chelsea Hospital Grounds, London, Eng., May 22-30, 1912.

Some of the Striking Exhibits.

Our correspondent's account of the great international exhibition was begun in the issue of June 8, page 1177, and the narrative is continued herewith.

Messrs. Russell, of Richmond, also exhibited caladiums in fine style and Fisher, Son & Sibray, Sheffield, made a very effective display of other aroids like Anthuriums Scherzerianum and Andreanum, the spathes of which were of extraordinary size, and brilliant in color. J. Veitch & Sons, of Chelsea, were the only other exhibitors of note with anthuriums, dieffenbachias, aglaonemas, fine specimens of which were in their large and attractive groups of stove and greenhouse plants.

Amongst the gingerworts shown mar-rantas and calatheas appeared in fair prominence, chiefly from Veitch & Sons, but cannas were shown by several, including the same firm, and also Cannell & Sons, of Swanley. Some of the finest red kinds included Prof. F.
Rober, Adolf Grimminger, Geheimrat Borsig, Furst Weid, etc.

Azaleas of the Indian section were not very conspicuous, the season being almost over for these wonderfully showy plants. One of the most brilliant displays with these came from Louis Van Houtte, pere, Ghent, Belgium, who staged 200 feet of space with 55 plants in 8-inch and 10-inch pots and was awarded the second prize, the first having evidently been withheld. The plants were not so full of flower as they would have been earlier in the year, but they were well covered.
The best crimsons included Vuylstekeana, President A. D'Haene, and President Roosevelt. Among the pure whites were noticeable Niobe, Mdlle.
Fernande de Puynode. alba odoratissima plena and Roi des Blancs.

Begonias of the tuberous section were one of the brightest features of the show and, curiously enough, they were placed in a tent that lacked a good deal of light. But the collections of Blackmore & Langdon, Twerton Hill, Bath, and Ware & Son, Feltham, dispelled the gloom by the gorgeous brilliance of their blossoms. The first named firm took the first prize (a gold medal) and richly deserved it. Among the gems in their collection we noticed Princess Victoria Louise, soft salmon pink, which received further recognition with an award of merit; the best pure whites being Empress Marie and Mrs. J. Thornton. Ware's group had King George, orange scarlet; Countess Cadogan, orange apricot; Patrick Ains-lie, deep crimson; H. R. Whitelaw, scarlet; and Lady Cromer, white de-ply shaded with pink towards the base.

Gerberas are coming to the front of late years in England, especially since it has been demonstrated that they lend themselves readily to the operations of the hybridist. Stuart Low & Co., Bush Hill Park, Enfield, received the first prize (silver gilt medal) for a group of 50 square feet. The varieties were mostly of the deep red colors, but there were also pink, yellow and white sorts. A French firm, the Etablisse-ments Horticoles du Littoral, Cap d'Antibes, also had a fine collection of these South African composites, very varied in color, shades of scarlet, mauve, apricot, crimson, white, salmon and yellow, being represented.
Some of the single flower heads measured over six inches across.

Gloxinias were shown by J. Veitch & Sons and Webb & Sons. Stourbridge, in their non-competitive groups and some fine specimens of culture were displayed, with young plants in 5-inch pots. The foliage was large, fleshy and luscious, while the individual blooms were remarkable for their great size and substance, and for the clearness and brilliancy of their colors.

Schizanthuses are now one of the leading features at a show in England.
The plants are not difficult to grow, and they yield such enormous quantities of bloom and exhibit so much diversity in form and color, that they always attract much attention. The best masses of these plants were shown by Sutton & Sons, Reading, Webb & Sons, and Veitch & Sons, all of whom made magnificent displays with finely grown specimens in 5-inch to 8-inch pots, those of Messrs. Sutton being particularly fine, that they were admired by King George when opening the show.

Another plant that has sprung into prominence like the schizanthus, is the nemesia, of which there are now almost innumerable forms. They were superbly shown by Sutton & Sons, in their group around the famous Chillianwallah obelisk that shot upwards through the center of the huge 4-acre tent. In conjunction with these plants were masses of Primula obconica with immense flowers of white, pink, purple, rose, and intermediate shades, borne on stems about one and one-half feet high. The more one sees of Primula obconica the more one gets to like it for its freedom of bloom and the wonderful shades of color it is developing under the hand of the hybridist.

Cinerarias of the cruenta or stellata type are now so well established that a show without them would look very flat indeed. They are simply gorgeous when well grown, and the specimens put up by Webb & Sons, Veitch & Sons, and Sutton & Sons, were beyond all praise. The plants ran up three feet and more in height, and bore blooms of white, blue, purple, mauve, pink and intermediate shades. In Veitch's group there was a distinct break with a hybrid between a steelate form known as "Feltham Beauty" and Senecio auriculatissimus, the result being a plant of sturdy growth bearing trusses of pale straw-yellow flowers of very attractive appearance.

Calceolarias were not very largely shown, the most conspicuous exhibits coming from Sutton & Sons, Webb & Sons, and one or two private exhibitors. They were mostly of the herbaceous type, but C. Clibrani, of the shrubby section with long sprays of bright golden yellow attracted much attention owing to its graceful habit and free-flowering appearance.

Fuchsias were dotted about here and there, but the most striking feature by far was in Veitch & Sons' exhibit in the center of one of the tents. They had 10 pairs of large specimen plants trained on slender trellises, and so arranged that they stretched outwards from the center of the stage to the pathways like the long arms of an aeroplane, and were so laden with bloom that one could not but stop to admire them. From a cultural point of view they were perfect, and as each pair was a distinct variety from its neighbor, there was an excellent contrast in color.

Pelargoniums of the zonal, fancy, and sweet-scented types were shown in fair quantity. There was keen competition in the zonals between H. J. Jones, Lewisham, Philip Ladds, Swanley, and W. H. Page, Hampton. The first prize for 150 square feet went to Mr. Ladds, who staged a few of the best known market varieties like Paul Crampel, White Queen, Salmon Paul Crampel, etc., all well grown and effective because of the way in which they were together. From one point of view Mr. Jones' group was much more interesting, as it contained over 30 very distinct varieties, almost all raised by himself. The plants were all well grown, and the trusses were large, well shaped, and the individual pips were clear and rich in color. Mr. Page's group was chiefly remarkable for a splendid mass of his new King Edward VII, a large and brilliant scarlet with immense trusses of bloom.

In the "fancy" section Godfrey & Sons, Exmouth, were the most prominent exhibitors. They staged 40 baskets of plants, each basket having a different variety, but deep reds, crimsons, scarlets and pinks predominated, the petals in all cases being conspicuously blotched and veined with colors quite distinct from the ground color.

Leopold de Rothschild, Gunnersbury Park, Acton, and the Hon. Vicary Gibbs, Aldenham House, Elstree, were the only two other exhibitors in this now little grown class of plants. Mr.

de Rothschild's group had the seat of honor on the right hand of the main entrance to the exhibition, but the specimens, though large and well grown, were practically out of bloom at the time, and therefore did not attract the attention their merits deserved. Besides they were part of a fine collection from the same gardens, in which pergolas of fruiting vines and other fruits were tastefully displayed, that the exhibit as a whole should be taken into account. The large specimens consisted mostly of P. radula and P. capitata, and were trained on balloons, and fan shaped trellises, the front of the exhibit being relieved by smaller plants of "Little Pet" in full bloom.

The Hon. Vicary Gibbs was a competitive group and easily won the first prize (a silver cup) because there was no other competitor, and also because the plants were worth it. They covered 150 square feet of space, and included many garden varieties in addition to such species as capitatum, quercifolium, filicifolium, umbellatum, and the queer-looking square-stemmed tetragonum.

Streptocarpus were shown in fair quantity, the most prominent trade exhibitor being Veitch & Sons. They had a grand mass of finely grown plants, sturdy in habit and full of bloom. The colors were also very varied, and passed from pure white to the deepest of crimson into almost scarlet, through pink, mauve, rose, purple, blue and other shades.

It would be impossible to go into detail with other stove and greenhouse plants exhibited, the exhibition was so huge, and the plants were dotted about all over the place. Mention, however, should be made of the groups that were put up by Stuart Low & Co.; Dicksons, Chester; Cypher & Sons, Cheltenham; Peed & Sons, Norwood; Cannell & Sons; and James Carter &

Co., Raynes Park, London, S. W. The latter firm had a unique exhibit on the left hand side of the main entrance. The center represented a beautifully cut lawn in the center of which there was a fountain at play and gold fish in the pool. Four beds of splendid petunias were planted on the lawn and beyond these were beds of a bright rose colored stock called Queen Elizabeth. The background was trellised up with a pathway behind and this was flanked with small conifers, while, the pillars and archways were covered with profuse masses of rose Mrs. W. G. Flight in full bloom.

Ferns.—Twenty-four classes were allotted in the schedule for ferns and selaginellas, and over £22 were offered in prizes, besides four gold medals, nine silver cups and several silver and silver-gilt medals. Only four exhibitors, however, were attracted, namely, H. B. May & Sons and J. Hill & Sons, both firms from Lower Edmonton; and Amos Perry, Enfield, besides Mr. MacIntosh from Romford. Messrs. May's group consisted of two distinct sections, British and exotic, and excellent specimens in both were displayed for the public. The hardy varieties contained numerous examples of beautifully cut and tasseled forms of the lady fern, the Male fern, the Harts tongue fern, the shield fern and many others in which the small but enthusiastic band of pteridologists take a keen delight. In the exotic section both Messrs. May and Hill had specimens of all the most popular as well as many of the rarer and choicer kinds, including of course some of the newer creations of nephrolepis, amongst which N. exaltata Roosevelti was conspicuous in Mr. Hill's group. Mr. Perry's group was mostly British, and Mr. MacIntosh's was awarded first prize in the amateur section for stove and greenhouse ferns.

Annuals.

One of the special features of the show was a large and attractive exhibit of annuals, hardy and half-hardy by Watkins & Simpson, Tavistock St., Covent Garden, wholesale seedsmen. Something like 200 species and varieties were exhibited all in full flower and the trade as well as the public were genuinely astonished that so much display could be got out of such plants as annuals. One of the novelties was a schizanthus grandiflorus maximus, the plants of which stood quite a yard high and were smothered in bloom. The individual flowers were much larger than the ordinary type and were deeply colored and blotched. Clarkia "Vesuvius" was another fine novelty with deep flesh-colored flowers, while "Queen Mary" was another with deep rose carmine. A new strain of nemesia also attracted attention, one variety called "Blue Gem" being very distinct. Forms of Linaria maroccana were particularly effective in bold masses with their yellow, white, purple and lilac blossoms. Dimorphotheca aurantiaca with its bright orange red marguerite-like blooms made a good foil to the many hybrid forms that have now been raised from it and perhaps other species like Ecklonia and others. I must not forget to mention Linaria reticulata aureo-purpurea, a plant about two feet high, with slender stems and leaves, but clothed from top to bottom almost with vivid masses of golden and purple flowers that simply riveted one's attention.

Clematis.

There were two special classes for these plants in the schedule, but the only exhibitor was Geo. Jackman & Son, Woking. With a magnificent display of 400 square feet it was impossible to withhold the first prize of a gold medal and £7. The plants were simply superb and were trained to wire balloons and other designs and were clothed all over in bloom. Special mention may be made of Lord Neville, deep mauve; Mrs. Spencer Castle, lilac double; Mrs. Hope, lavender; and the old Belle of Woking, pale pink, very double. Messrs. Jackman also were awarded the silver cup for 12 clematis, distinct, in flower.

Carnations.

Fifteen classes were set apart in the schedule for Perpetual, Malmaison, and border varieties and prizes in cash to the extent of £42 were offered, besides five gold medals, five silver cups, and numerous medals. Amongst the principal trade exhibitors were Carl Engelmann, Saffron Walden; Stuart Low & Co.; W. Cutbush & Son, Highgate; A. F. Dutton, Iyer, Bucks; C. F. Waters, Hassocks; Geo. Mount, Can-of The Queen, terra cotta, Lady Coventry, scarlet, and Queen Mary, a maroon border variety.

Roses.

Notwithstanding the fact that 26 classes were set apart in the schedule for the "Queen of Flowers," and £36 15s in cash, besides five gold medals and 17 silver cups, were offered in prizes, I don't think I was ever so disappointed at the effect as I was at the "International." While there were large space, with pathways cut through at right angles; Pergoias were built over these pathways and archways were produced covered with a wealth of blossom. Trellis work was also arranged in such a way as to produce the effect of a private garden railed off from the public gaze. The plants were trained as climbers and also as weepers on tall standards. Among other trade exhibitors were Frank Cant & Co., Colchester; Geo. Mount, Canterbury; Cutbush & Son; Paul & Son, The Old Nurseries, Cheshunt; Wm. Paul & Son, Waltham Cross; Stuart Low & Co.; W. & J. Brown, Stamford; C. Turner, Slough; Prior & Son, Colchester; Hugh Dickson, Belfast; A. Dickson & Sons, Newtownards; Dicksons, Chester, and M. Pernet-Ducher and MM. Turbat & Gouchault, from France.

In Geo. Paul's collection we noticed the Lyon rose in fine condition, and a new one called Magnolia, with creamy white blooms. Lieut. Chaure is a new hybrid tea of deep crimson hue, and W. H. Taft is a deep flesh pink of promise. In the group was a standard on which four different varieties were budded, namely, Excelsa, white; Dorothy Perkins, pink and white forms, and Lady Godiva, crimson, all of which seemed to be of equal vigor.

Wm. Paul & Son filled about 500 feet of space with standards, climbers, weepers, and bush roses. Among the newer kinds were Mrs. Chas. Hunter, a hybrid tea which comes crimson in bud and shades off to carmine. King Edward VII. is a dwarf polyantha with soft pinky white flowers. Nerissa is a hybrid tea with very full flesh colored flowers suffused with peach towards the base of the petals. Ophelia has warm flesh rose blooms deepening to salmon at the base; and Paradise is a climber like Hiawatha, but with larger flowers of deep crimson, the petals being white at the base and reflexed at the sides, which give the blooms a distinct look. Rayon d'or, butter yellow, and Lady Down, buff, are two other hybrid tea roses worth mention.

It is really unnecessary to refer in detail to all the charming kinds shown by the various exhibitors, because they were duplicated in several cases. One could not, however, but be struck with the magnificent masses of Hiawatha that were shown by practically every one. This rose seems to have terbury; J. Douglas, Great Bookham; C. Turner, Slough; F. Burnett, Guernsey; and Mr. Blick, Hayes, Kent, all of whom made creditable displays. Perhaps the choicest group of all was that of C. Engelmann who carried off the honors in class 217 for 150 square feet of space with a group that was considered to be one of the finest ever staged. The plants were perfect from the cultural point of view and the flowers were excellent in quality and exquisite in color. Among the most noticeable varieties were Elektra, orange suffused with pink; Salome, pink and mauve; Sunstar, bright yellow flaked with pink; British Triumph, bright maroon; Lady Northcote, salmon pink.

In Mr. Blick's collection Queen Mary, a very fragrant pink, was a great attraction. Caradive, a brilliant vermilion and pale orange picotee; and Victory, pale rose pink and buff, were also admired.

The most attractive forms in Douglas' group were Jean Douglas, scarlet border variety; Mrs. Henwood, white; Miss Willmott, pink; and Elizabeth Schiffner, orange buff.

In Stuart Low & Co.'s collection Baroness de Brienen, deep crimson; Mrs. Burnett, pink; and Cinnabar, smoked scarlet, were the most conspicuous. In the Malmaisons, Princess Juliana, a pale yellow, was also noticeable.

Mrs. A. F. Dutton, one of the best pinks, shone out in Mr. Dutton's group; Edith Waters, bright cerise, and A. E. Manders, orange striped with pale carmine, in Mr. Waters' group; Ruby (the name describes the color) was the sweetest thing in Mr. Turner's lot, while Cutbush & Son made much quite a large number of exhibitors, they were dotted about in such a way that a poor effect was produced in comparison to what we are accustomed to see at the Temple Show. And another striking feature about the roses at the "International" was the great preponderance of the rambler and Wichuriana varieties over the hybrid perpetuals and hybrid tea roses. Almost every exhibitor made a great "splash" with his ramblers, and many were the ingenious ways in which they were arranged to secure the most telling effect. Thus Hobbie's, Dereham, Norfolk, had almost all ramblers in a taken all rose growers by storm, and it is probably one of the best selling climbers at the present time. Tausendschon and Blush Rambler are also very popular, while among the dwarf polyanthas Jessie is at present unrivalled for bedding out and pot work.

One of the roses that had been boomed in the show was Madame Edouard Herriott, in the collection of M. Pernet-Ducher. It resembles the Lyon rose in color but the petals are deeply suffused with vermillion, and are somewhat more reflexed on the margins. It will probably become one of the rages of the future and yet like the Lyon it may not go with such a rush as was anticipated.

Sweet Peas.

Three special classes were devoted to these and several entered the lists. The most prominent exhibitors included Dobbie & Co., Rothsay; Robert Sydenham, Birmingham; C. W. Breadmore, Winchester; R. H. Bath, Wisbech; J. Stevenson, Wimborne; G. Stark & Son, Great Ryburgh, Norfolk; J. Agate, Sea View Nurseries, Havant; S. Bide & Sons, Farnham, and Sir Randolph Baker, Bart, Blandford. The plants had evidently been grown with every care and attention to produce the fine examples shown. Some of the most noteworthy varieties were Dobbie's Scarlet, scarlet; Decorator, old rose; Lady Knox, cream tinted with buff; Lilian, pale salmon pink; Edith Taylor, bright rose; Scarlet Emperor; Aggie Elder, rose cerise; Lord Curzon, bright magenta; Doris Usher, pink; Annabel Lee, a new double lilac with pale center; Bobby Stewart, delicate lilac; Moneymaker, pure white; Chas. Stent, large rose pink, etc.

PLANT NOTES.

Canterbury Bells.

There is always a demand in the spring for something different than the flowers which the buyers have seen all through the winter and many growers have a call for some of the force perennials. Canterbury bells are grown for this purpose and if well grown find a ready sale. Seeds sown now and grown on in pots, being shifted into larger sizes as may be required, will bloom next spring and help furnish the grower with a variety of stock. They should be grown cool during the early winter, a violet house or one of a similar temperature being about right, and then brought into a warmer house with a temperature of 50° in late winter where they will produce fine blooms for early spring. By bringing a few at a time into the warmer house a succession of bloom may be had.

Dracaena Indivisa.

The seedlings of Dracaena indivisa should now be taken from the flats and potted in small pots and placed in a good moist location that they may make a good growth before the fall. A palm or fern house or one with similar temperature is the best for the small stock. The 4-inch stock that was not disposed of during the spring sales can be either plunged outside or planted in a frame, where they will not demand the close attention necessary in the greenhouse. If planted out they should be potted up early, at least by September 1, when the roots are active and will quickly obtain a foothold in the new soil. They should be heavily shaded for a few days after potting or some loss of the plants may result. Any old plants that have outgrown their usefulness may be propagated, the stems cut up into small pieces and laid in a propagating bed with bottom heat where the eyes will open and young plants quickly form.

Ardisia Crenulata.

The seeds of ardisia may be sown at any time during spring and as it will take until another year to grow plants that will fruit it is not material at which particular time they are sown. The seeds are a little slow in germinating and it is better to sow them in the manner of sowing cyclamen, about half an inch apart. In early summer they should be potted in 2½-inch pots and are better grown in a frame than in the greenhouse. In the fall when brought into the houses they should be again potted in three or four inch pots and grown in a temperature of 50°. The plants are of a woody nature and grow slowly and should not be potted into too large pots, for it is far better to allow the roots to fill the pots before shifting. The following spring they will bloom, and should then be potted in 6-inch pots and given a cool location in the houses. After the fruit has formed and grown to good size the plants should be given a good sunny position that they may take on a bright color by Christmas. If the plants are grown too warm the foliage will be thin and lack the substance and lustre which makes them so much admired in the cooler grown plants, and the warmer grown stock gets chilled very easily, when the berries will drop off. The only insect which infects this plant is the brown scale, which, if not destroyed, will cover the plant stem completely. These should be carefully moved and continually guard against. If there are any old plants that have dropped their lower leaves the top of these can be rooted in a similar manner to rooting rubbers, that is, by cutting into the stem and mousing the cut after the roots have appeared in the moss, the top cut off below the moss and potted.

Gloxinias.

The gloxinias that were started in late winter should now be beginning to flower. After the flower buds have set they can be placed in a little shadier location and the danger of burning the foliage be obviated to a great degree. The plants should be spaced far enough apart that they do not touch and a proper circulation of air procured around the plant. If the flowers are to be used in floral work they should be cut as soon as fully open and placed in water away from draughts and they will keep very well; these flowers are very fragile and should be handled carefully. If there are any particularly beautiful flowers that it is desired to propagate, the leaves can be rooted in the propagating bench by placing the base of the leaf in the sand to the depth of about an inch. The seedlings should be potted along for later blooming.

Cleaning Up.

The bedding season is over, the year's work is practically finished, the young stock for another year in preparation, and now is the time to clean house. Don't leave a lot of worthless stock scattered around the houses that takes a man's time to water, but what it is desired to save block all up together where it can be watered in a short time and above all things throw out anything that has passed its usefulness. How often have we seen plants that would never have been of any value left standing in the greenhouses until fall planting; neglected, yet taking more or less room, to be thrown out at last and the houses never thoroughly made ready for the coming crop. Get the plants that need care and attention all together and clean up the other houses. If the stock is grown in benches these will need repairing, and if badly decayed take them down and rebuild. Those that have cement benches are fortunate for they will only need repairs. Throw out all the old soil and clean up under the benches and in all the corners, and any old rotting boards or pieces of crocks throw them out, and thus get rid of the vermin that invariably infests greenhouses. After the benches are cleaned out, give them a good thick coat of whitewash in which sulphur was mixed when the lime was slacking. The advantage of this is too little appreciated by many growers, it costs but little and the prevention from fungus will often amount to a great deal. After the whitewash has died throw a few ashes or a mulch of some kind on the wooden benches to protect them from the hot rays of the sun. Give the inside of the house a good coat of white paint; this should be done at least every other year, for the difference in the amount of light in a clean white house and a dirty one during the dark short days is material, and the increased quality and quantity of stock will more than repay for the expense and labor. Any repairs that the heating system needs should be done at once and the boilers cleaned up ready for fall. Too often the boiler is never thoroughly cleaned out after the last firing and ashes and clinkers left lying around in a moist condition, rusting the boilers. The steam boilers should either be emptied or filled, for if the water is left standing on the water line rust will form inside just above and rapidly eat into the iron. These are all necessary details to be looked after at the earliest possible moment.

Fancy Leaved Caladiums.

It will soon be found difficult to obtain the quality of flowers necessary to maintain a fine window display, so attractive plants will be required, and the show houses leading from the store or office will need something with bright color to attract attention. The fancy leaved caladiums are beautiful plants for this purpose, and should now be nice plants in four or five-inch pots. Nice plants can be grown in these sizes and they are easily arranged in a bed of green sheet moss and are very attractive. For the young stock now coming on a very light house is an absolute necessity to obtain the highly colored leaves, and almost a full exposure to the rays of the sun. While the plants delight in a moist atmosphere, this must not be obtained by heavy shading, but by frequent syringing and damping down the walks and under the benches. The temperature should be kept warm and close, never dropping below 60 degrees at night, even if a little fire heat is required. They will require copious watering to keep the beautiful leaves in good condition, and considerable feeding to

THE ROSE.

Planting.

As a matter of fact, most all of the planting among the small growers is accomplished during the month of June. As one with only a few houses devoted to roses must necessarily carry them along as late as possible before clearing out the houses, whereas the large wholesaler, with an immense amount of glass and with orders to fill requiring a great quantity, must begin planting as early as March, planting one house after another to this, that and the other variety, so as to be prepared to meet any emergency that may happen through the open market demands. We will assume that the soil is in readiness to bring into the houses, properly mixed and broken up finely and protected from the rain, for soil should never be placed in the houses in a soaked condition. If so, it should be thoroughly dried out before handling or packing in the houses.

Now for the houses. See to it that all the benches or beds are carefully repaired, proper drainage made in the solid beds or benches; this is of vital importance. The bench boards should be laid crosswise the tables and 6-inch pecky cypress should be used, spaced $\frac{3}{4}$ of an inch apart. This we consider ideal lumber for benches, and is next to concrete as to durability and much more practical for the small grower at the start, perhaps; yet, if one can possibly afford everything first-class, it is certainly money saved in the long run. The solid beds should by all means be bring the high colors and large, full leaves. Should flower buds form they should be immediately removed, for they will check the growth of the leaves.

carefully drained, especially at this time, when the sub-soil is inclined to hold water the year around. Broken stone is to be preferred for drainage in the borders, or coarse gravel. Clinkers can be used successfully, but we should strongly advise against the use of ashes.

Clean up the houses and give the benches a good washing with the hose. Also a good coat of whitewash. When slacking the lime, add a little carbolic acid and sulphur. This makes an excellent wash for the sterilizing qualities it possesses. Clean out the trash and loose dirt rubbish of any kind from under the benches and start right. We have found straw about the best thing to place on the benches to prevent the soil from sifting through and very little of it will go a long way. For grafted stock we prefer about 5 inches of soil. After it is packed firmly over roots, plants will perhaps do better in from 4 to 4½ inches, excepting American Beauty roses, which will require a full 5 inches.

A good plan is to fill the beds generously and tramp the soil down by walking on it after it is spread evenly. All roses like a firm soil to work in. Four rows to a 4-foot table is advisable when planting anything but Beauties; they should have a 4 to 6 feet table for the four rows. Of course the tables containing three rows can be used, allowing for the same spacing, but it is not practical for many reasons to plant five rows to a bed on table as the center row will be more or less neglected and consequently crowded out. We prefer planting the grafted stocks about 15 inches apart in the row and own root plants can go an inch or so less. Avoid overcrowding; at the same time plants of the Killarney type do not require any more room at any time than the measurement above. Again, American Beauty will require a little more room, at least 16 inches apart in the rows—18 inches would not be too much. All the planting should be done with a trowel, first marking off the beds carefully. A piece of old sash bar or something similar, with nails driven through it for markers and a nail at the outside to act as a guide, will lay off as many rows as desired at one operation with a man on each side of the table.

Give the plants a good soaking before knocking them out of pots; plant all grafts with the splice low enough to be entirely covered with soil when the beds are at their normal level. Be sure to pack each plant firmly, using a tamping stick (a short piece of 2x3 scantling, with a handle shaped at one end and sawed squared at the other, will do the work nicely). By the way, put these useful little tools away when planting is finished; you will need them again.

Some growers prefer leaving the beds level and watering the whole table from the start. We must admit a weakness for leaving a bowl-shaped depression around each plant for individual water for the first three weeks or until the newly formed roots begin to work out into the soil quite freely.

One object in this method is that the soil between the plants is kept fresher for a longer period. That is something gained. Again, it is a good plan to be able to give a plant just the amount of water we may think they require, according to its size, condition, etc., which can be done successfully by using the depressions. When planting the grafted stock be sure to examine the splice of each plant and see that it adheres firmly. A plant partly broken away at the splice or showing decay will rarely amount to anything. The grafted plants if staked in the pots should be planted stakes and all, except the raffia, which should be removed, and these small pot stakes should be replaced by the permanent stakes as soon as possible after planting; in fact, the quicker the plants are staked and given a tie the better. If there is any trash or litter of any kind made through the process of planting, give the house another cleaning and keep it clean. There should be nothing in a rose house but what belongs there. Water carefully and spray early and again at noon. Until the plants begin to establish themselves avoid draughts, as a humid atmosphere is what they will require for at least a few days.

It may be advisable to state that an extra amount of help should be procured in order to push the planting along rapidly. Do not let the work

Planting Mid-Season Varieties.

The major part of chrysanthemums are planted the present month. These in the general florists' business have so much space devoted to bedding stock that bench space is unavailable until the present time. drag. Nothing injures a young plant quicker than to have it knocked out of a pot with the roots exposed to the sun for any length of time, and never plant one dry at the root. Avoid shading of any kind on the rose houses. Keep the walks sprayed and the soil under the benches dampened, especially on hot, windy days, when the air is being reduced. We will undertake in another article to give further directions for the culture of the young stock, also other reasonable suggestions. E.

without delay, otherwise it will be best to devote the space to the midseason kinds and secure the needed flowers from other sources. The midseason varieties are those which are in perfection from October 25 to November 10. In scanning the list of commercial sorts we find Timothy Eaton, W. H. Chadwick, Chadwick Improved (the pure white form). Mrs. Jerome Jones and White Helen Frick are the most popular of the whites. It is true all of these may be had later by planting in July, but if benched by June 15 should in a favorable season be fully developed by November 10. Chas. Razer planted now should be in perfection October 25. Mrs. H. Robinson and Mrs. H. W. Buckbee under like conditions should be ready to cut at the same date. These two varieties are not planted in the north in very large quantity but are both deservedly popular in the south with those who plant out of doors to supply the heavy demand for All Saints' day (November 1.) Lynnwood Hall usually comes with us about November 15 and while an excellent white we think it should be included in the late flowering section.

In yellows we have Col. D. Appleton, still one of the best if it can be planted soon and given fairly liberal space not less than 9 inches apart each way. Some complain of its stems becoming weak near the blooms as they near completion. This defect has not been apparent with us. Golden Eagle, Golden Chadwick, Major Bonnaffon, Golden Wedding, Yellow Eaton are among the best of this color. We are very partial to Mrs. W. E. Kelley on account of its intense color and high percentage of marketable blooms produced. Last year, for want of space, we could not plant this variety until July, but the results were very gratifying, giving us 95 per cent of perfect blooms, most of which were 6 inches in diameter on 3-foot stems. Roman Gold, one of the new ones of last year, seems to be very popular; it is of the brightest yellow with fine upright stem. There is so much red infused into this variety that from very late buds it is penciled with red, giving it a bronzy effect.

With the vast number of varieties disseminated the past 25 years it is surprising how few really good pink ones have materialized. Dr. Enguehard may be had the first week of November by selecting early buds, but such usually fade badly, having a washed-out look and are offensive rather than pleasing. Much has been written upon the instability of the pink varieties. And again we wish to repeat the importance of selecting the late or terminal buds to secure bright clear color tones. We never take buds of Dr. Enguehard before September 5 to 10 and by giving air at all times a bright rosy pink color is assured, which is more important than size when considering selling qualities, at least this is the case in most markets. Other good mid-season pinks are Mayor Weaver, Patty and Helen Frick. The last two mentioned are naturally late, but may be had by November 10 if planted soon. Winter Cheer is another pink which is in a class by itself owing to its peculiar color—a bright cerise pink. This variety, which originated on the other side, and is said to be a sport from Mme. Felix Perrin, once so popular among American growers. Some object to the color, but when used with white or alone is very brilliant and attractive. It will not blend or harmonize with any other pink variety we know of. This variety deserves a thorough trial by the southern growers who experience so much trouble in securing kinds which will produce blooms of a decided pink, owing to the excessive heat during their development. Although Pres. Roosevelt cannot be called pink it has a decided pink cast at the center. It is very short jointed and should be planted within the next 10 days to secure good length of stem and as the wood is very hard it is unwise to cut them to the ground; better plant early so as to have a stem to spare, as they will keep better when cut in the softer wood. It is of a high rounded incurved form, maturing November 10 to 20.

While bronze varieties are generally in fair demand they are not planted largely, but as a rule are scarce before Thanksgiving. Mrs. O. H. Kahn, usually known as an exhibition sort, responds nicely when treated as a commercial. The color is a bright golden bronze from late buds which show less of the dull side or reverse of petals. It should be planted where it is subjected to little or no draft, as it is inclined to mildew. There is little else to choose from in this color unless it is some of the bronzy sports from Mrs. Jerome Jones. The first of these sent out was Henry Nanze 1897, which was soon followed by Pres. Graham and again a few years later by Chautauqua Gold, all of which are synonymous, in fact, a large proportion of those sent these days offered as Yellow Mrs. Jones are not pure yellow but show the bronzy shades.

Dick Witterstaetter and L'Africane are the best midseason commercial reds. Geo. W. Childs is a good red for late October, but is not grown largely, hence cannot be procured in any quantity. ELMER D. SMITH.

Hardy Cypripediums.

The name orchid has become one to conjure with of late years, but it is surprising how many people who are familiar with the ladies' slippers as they grow wild, are unaware that they are of the royal family, and one at least of our wild flowers cannot be excelled for beauty by any other from the tropics, and a few remarks on their culture may be of interest for the reason that they are regarded as difficult subjects usually.

Two eminent men in the horticultural world were here the other day, one, the best known amateur, and the other equally noted as an editor, and we were looking at cypripediums growing in the ravines, and the statement was made that a success had never been made of the culture of C. spectabile, the taming of it rather. The writer did not disagree, it was a day to absorb information, but it is unfortunately true that we rarely see it last long in cultivation but it can be kept with no difficulty if given a suitable situation, we have had it for ten years among rhododendrons in a cool moist soil and shade, but when the beds were removed the roots were lost but C. pubescens was found as it starts to grow earlier in the year and we saved it. Today from northern Michigan we received some fine clumps of C. spectabile where it grows in quantities, these were pulled up out of mossy wet ground, but in our vicinity it is found about half way up the sides of shady ravines with a little humus over the worst kind of clay soil as a medium to grow in, so it seems that given moisture and shade, any but a sandy soil will be suitable, but shade is so essential that even wild plants often get scorched if exposed to the sun in early summer.

Cypripedium pubescens, which we illustrate, grows much more plentiful on these clay banks than C. spectabile. We have never found it in the woods on level ground or down deep in the ravines; always about half way up the slopes, and here in cultivation it is seeding so freely that it is difficult to step without walking on the young seedlings, and there is no trouble in getting collected plants to grow freely if dug late in the fall, running a spade under them to get all the roots and when planting dig a flat hole, place the roots out flat as they grew, then put on a spadeful of the siftings from the burnt rubbish pile and replace the sod as it was before. With this treatment we get them to bloom the next spring and the growth is strong and of a dark green color. This treatment will suit C. parviflorum too, but it should be planted up about on a level with the eye as it is a small flowered species, very fragrant, but should not have bare ground about it as it is liable to get swamped with soil after a heavy rain. It is very suitable for a shady corner among ferns or among stones as in a rock garden. It grows wild with C. spectabile and is often sent mixed with it, but the shoots are very small and are usually in clusters.

As to C. acule and its culture, the writer has no knowledge of any one who has succeeded with it after flowering it once. It is the easiest to procure of any as its distribution is so widespread and it occurs in great quantity, but there is no hardy plant, native or exotic, that has proved as intractable as C. acule under cultivation.

Of the above four species there are two of real value to the florist. C. spectabile comes first, as it flowers in June with pure white flowers, tinted with bright pink, lasting at least two weeks in bloom. C. pubescens is yellow and not as valuable as to color. It flowers earlier in May, but roots of these orchids are as easy to force as lily of the valley and if good crowns are obtained may be easily had in bloom for Easter. They are sometimes seen at the spring exhibitions and are a feature when grown several together in pans.

We are told that the several new hardy kinds, brought home through the efforts of Mr. Wilson from China, are found there in great numbers and these, when obtainable, should be hardy here in our gardens, but it will be always hard to get them owing to the distance they have to be carried to the point of shipment.

Vanilla at the Missouri Botanical Garden.

The vanilla is the only genus belonging to the orchidaceæ that affords an economic product. When a person speaks of orchids, one's mind, of course, turns to the showy commercial varieties, such as the cattleyas, forgetting that orchids produce something more than infallible flowers; and that is the vanilla extract which is used in every house for flavoring purposes. There are upwards of 20 species described, but the one used for commerce is V. planifolia, which is a native of South America. It assumes a climbing habit and is found growing up trunks and branches of trees. In the wet season it is a rank grower, but when the dry season commences, the growth is very shy, its main object being to produce its umbels of light colored flowers, which are pollinated by insects.

A phenomenal plant of this economic orchid can be seen at the Missouri Botanical Garden, St. Louis. It was originally planted in a specially prepared bed in the bromeliad house; it soon established itself and assumed its epiphytic habit, the environments evidently being to its liking, viz.: heat and moisture. The plant first showed signs of flower in April, 1909 (that is, to any great extent), and produced them continually for three months, there being a total of 800 flowers; 400 of these were pollinated by hand, after which the long green pods formed; these take about two months to grow and at least eight months to ripen. The largest bunch contained 20 beans, the maximum length of an individual bean being exactly nine inches. The illustration shows eight bundles of Vanilla planifolia, each bundle containing 40 beans. The triangular bean at the top is V. pompona.

WHEN GROWN COMMERCIALY,

The vanilla is grown very extensively in the Seychelles islands; the export is valued at $300,000 annually. (See U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Division of Botany, Bulletin 21, by S. J. Galbraith.) The plants are grown under small trees, where the average rainfall is 100 inches, distributed evenly during 10 months of the year, the remaining two months being perfectly dry, thus checking the growth and causing the plants to flower. The flowers have to be pollinated by hand, owing to the absence of pollinating insects this tedious operation has to be accomplished in the forenoon to secure success, owing to the flowers only remaining open for a few hours. After the beans have ripened, that is upwards of eight months from the time of fertilization, when a yellowish color at the base is perceptible, they are picked and cured by a sweating process, the method being: Immersing the beans in water at a temperature varying from 170° to 190° for about 10 seconds, repeating the operation three times, then they are wrapped in blankets, and placed in barrels to sweat for about 24 hours. The color will have changed from a greenish yellow to a dark chocolate. They are then placed in a series of drying rooms varying in temperature from 110° down to that of the outside temperature. They are then packed in tin boxes and ready for export.

Coelogyne Mooreana.

As new orchids become more and more rare, a really promising novelty for the trade becomes of increasing interest, as in the case of this new coelogyne; it is as easy of culture as C. cristata and blooms in December and January; its flowers are carried on erected stems, are white with yellow crest garnished with ciliated appendices, like cristata, but they open better and are more effective, as well as last longer, having greater substance. A spray carries six to eight flowers.—Revue Horticole.

OBITUARY.

Jerome Bonaparte Rice.

On Saturday, June 8, 1912, Jerome Bonaparte Rice passed quietly to his rest. Mr. Rice was born in the town of Salem, N. Y., July 19, 1841, and received his education in the district schools and at the Albany Business College, from which he was graduated at the age of 19. When the civil war broke out he was working on his father's farm in the town of Jackson, Washington county. He enlisted from White Creek, N. Y., Aug. 8, 1862, as a private, and was mustered into the service at Salem, N. Y., Sept. 4, 1862, as first sergeant of Co. G, 123d regiment, New York volunteer infantry, to serve for a term of three years. On May 21, 1863, he was promoted to second lieutenant. He was taken prisoner at the battle of Chancellorville, Va., May 3d, 1863, and was confined of the Electric City Bank at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

During the war Mr. Rice incurred from exposure a severe case of rheumatism, which increased as years went by, and for months at a time he was unable to attend to business. The disease continued in spite of all medical skill and for years he was wheeled about in a chair. This condition renders his great business achievements all the more remarkable, and yet his mental energy has never flagged, but indeed has developed as the demand upon it increased, so that he continually performed an amount of work that few physically sound men would be equal to. Both socially and in a business way Mr. Rice was a genial, courteous gentleman, and was universally liked. A caller or a guest soon forgot his physical infirmities because of his personal magnetism, his mental vigor and hospitable manner.

Mr. Rice is survived by his wife, Laura Chandler Rice, whom he married on July 19, 1877; three daughters, in Libbey prison and Belle Isle prison. He was subsequently exchanged. On Aug. 1, 1864, he was transferred to the signal corps, and did duty in the department of the Cumberland under Gen. Thomas until the close of the war. He was honorably discharged and mustered out at Albany, N. Y., June 27, 1865. After receiving his discharge he returned home and worked on the seed farm of his father. In 1866 he bought out his father's interest in the seed business and continued on the farm for two years. During this time and for a few years afterwards he was his own sole salesman, traveling with a horse and wagon from town to town. In 1868 he moved his business to Cambridge, occupying the second story of the old steam mill building on Main street, where he conducted business successfully for eleven years. In 1879 Mr. Rice completed his present large warehouse and moved his business into new quarters. In 1895 a fine office building was erected, where twenty-five bookkeepers and stenographers are employed, over thirty salesmen and representatives are throughout the country, and seeds from this establishment are sold in every state in the Union. The company has a branch house at Detroit, Mich., and at Wellington, Ontario. In 1898 he was the unanimous choice of the American Seed Trade Association for its president. He was president and organizer Mrs. Frederick Wallace, Mrs. Evelyn Rice Lovejoy, Miss Marguerite Hodges Rice, and one son, Jerome B. Rice, Jr., and one granddaughter, Betsy Rice Lovejoy. He was a member of Cambridge Valley Lodge, No. 431, F. & A. M.; also of John McKie Post, No. 309, G. A. R.

JEROME B. RICE, OF CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., AND PARTY, AT CHICAGO, MAY 4, 1912

Charles A. Juengel.

Charles A. Juengel, 57 years old, who was president of the St. Louis Florists' Club during the St. Louis World's Fair, died in his home, 1847 South Fourteenth street, where he had resided 47 years, June 10. Mr. Juengel was born in St. Louis in 1854. At the age of 10, with his parents, he moved to the residence on South Fourteenth street. Soon afterward he entered a partnership with his father, after whose death twenty years ago he conducted the business alone and enlarged the greenhouses, which now extend from 1837 to 1847 South Fourteenth street. He was a pioneer member of the Society of American Florists, member of the Societer Saengerchor, South St. Louis Turner Society and Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church. In 1879 he was married to Justina Seng. His widow and five children—Dr. Arthur H., Charles W., Edwin H., Isabella and Selma Juengel—all of St. Louis, survive. For three months he had suffered from a tumor, which caused his death.

FROST is reported from Boston June 8 and at Chicago on the same date.

IRA HOLT, a landscape engineer of Buffalo, sacrificed his life to save that of a woman companion on the St. Maurice River in Quebec. The couple were canoeing when the craft overturned. When Holt saw that the canoe would not support them both he let go his hold and sank.—New York Commercial.

"MAC" says New England was never so like the Emerald Isle as it is today, so bloomin' verdant. It has been believed that P. Welch and other Celts of that region could and probably would influence the natives by their congenial suavity but heretofore we have not felt that they would attempt to ameliorate the climate.

Lochaber No More.

The increasing use of artificial flowers, in preference to high priced natural stock from storage, otherwise known as "pickled" or "salted" stock, will surely put the "For Sale" sign on many greenhouses, as one of our correspondents remarks in a recent issue.

Chicago Convention Arrangements.

The committee on arrangements for the coming convention of the Society of American Florists, to be held at the Coliseum, August 20-23, are quite active and very satisfactory progress is being made by all of them. Many high-grade entertainment features are under investigation.

Letters are already pouring into the local concerns from all sections of the country asking about plans and accommodations, most of these inquiries coming from the south and west and showing widespread interest in the approaching meeting.

Chairman Asmus of the souvenir album committee promises the most artistic and valuable souvenir ever issued and says advertisers should get their copy in early to insure good location.

Chairman Winterson of the sports committee reports arrangements for the bowling, baseball and shooting well in hand, with many valuable prizes promised.

Chairman Rudd of the badge and ticket committee has plans for handling the great crowd expected well advanced.

PRESS AND ADVERTISING COMMITTEE.

MICHAEL BARKER, Chairman.

Division of Profits.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

One party furnishes the land, greenhouse and live stock and the other party furnishes the labor, expenses for plants, tools, etc., to be paid for by the business. How should the profits of such a business be divided?

Alabama.

J. H. D.

To answer the above query intelligently is rather a conundrum with such meagre information as given above. It would appear on the face of such an arrangement that the owner is first entitled to deduct a fair interest on the actual value of the greenhouses and the land occupied for the use of the business proper, and if the live stock mentioned above means animals used exclusively in conducting the business, their actual value should be included when computing interest charges. On the other hand, if said animals are only used a part of their time, such time should be charged at a fair rate to the working expenses only and not included in the interest account. The plants, tools, etc., are a permanent part of the business and as such should be considered only as a part of it as long as they are used.

If the party managing the business is a successful grower and produces the goods which are to make the business profitable, he certainly should be entitled to a fair compensation for the same, presuming that he receives a fair regular wage for his weekly or monthly labor, then at the yearly accounting a percentage of the profits (after the owner has deducted his interest on the values as given above) should be paid to him as his interest in the success of the business. What proportion that share should be is very hard to determine at the present time without knowing more details of present arrangements.

In several somewhat similar cases where the man in charge has made a fair success, we have known of owners giving them from fifteen to twenty-five per centum, of the receipts, but there is no general rule that we have ever heard of governing such arrangements, but it seems fair to award the amount according to the rate of success the party in charge can make the balance sheet show at the end of the year. Certainly a man making a first-class success and producing a good profit at the end of the year is deserving of a better share of the same than one who can only produce a small profit for the owner.

As an inducement for a man to try his best to get all there is out of the product of a place an arrangement at the starting of the year could be made by which he should get a pro rata share of the profits according to his success, ranging from fifteen to forty per centum, more or less, as the parties interested may mutually agree upon. Such arrangement should be drawn up in a regular agreement form and a copy for each party duly signed by both and witnessed by some disinterested party. This would save any dispute at the end of the year. A scale somewhat as follows may offer some suggestion in fixing the rates:
For net profit of $100, 10% to manager;
For net profit of $250, 15% to manager;
For net profit of $400, 20% to manager;
For net profit of $550, 25% to manager;
For net profit of $700, 30% to manager;
and so on up to any amount it may be desired to name. JOHN N. MAX.

My best answer to your question would be as follows: The first party, furnishing the land, greenhouse and live stock, should be allowed reasonable interest on his money, or rent of the greenhouse, which might be 10% on a greenhouse investment. The other party should be allowed interest on the amount of money he advances to pay the expenses, up to the time business will carry its own expense. I presume from the question that the second party is paid for his labor and superintendence. If not he would be entitled, out of the income, to reasonable pay for such time as he devotes to the greenhouse work and overseeing. After that the profits should be equally divided.

If the investment in the greenhouse was about $10,000 and the man in charge should be paid about $1,000, then the partnership would be a reasonable one to divide as gross profits, without figuring any interest for the owner, or any salary for superintendent. W. H. ELLIOTT.

"J. H. D." does not state what the investment is to be, or what kind of business is to be done. This may make a great difference in the amount spent for labor.

If the first party's investment is $10,000 and the second party's labor worth $1,000 annually, I should think an equal division of profits would be all right, the business, of course, paying for all additional labor as well as other expenses. I have figured on 10 per cent for the first party's investment, as he is taking more risk in case of failure, etc. The second party can get out whole at any time; the first party cannot. I think the business should keep the houses in repair and put money aside for a sinking fund with which to rebuild, renew live stock, etc., so that the $10,000 investment may be kept intact.

JOHN BURTON.

A DULL MARKET.

There is no great perceptible change in the market condition from that of last week except that trade is much quieter and the supply of stock is considerably larger. Peonies are arriving in exceptionally large quantities, with practically no demand, and fancy stock is being sacrificed at very low prices. Much stock is being placed in storage and one firm alone stored away two carloads, while it is said another firm placed away double that amount. Carnations are meeting the same fate as some of the peonies and are sold in large lots at a very low figure to the street men, who in turn dispose of them to the public at whatever price he thinks the purchaser is likely to pay. Good carnations are bringing fair prices, but the supply is limited. Roses are also in oversupply, but the better grades are bringing reasonable prices, especially My Maryland and Kaiserin Augusta Victoria. American Beauty roses are good property and no surplus to amount to anything is left when the day's sales are over. The same can be said of lily of the valley, but they are the only two items that are anywhere near short and clean up well. Orchids have had a little better call and the price has stiffened a trifle, but sweet peas, gladioli, daisies and other miscellaneous stock is having no call to amount to anything, although the quality is fine and deserving of immediate sale. Pond lilies are now received and can be seen displayed in the show windows. The bedding plant trade this season has been very good and some growers report having sold out all their geraniums and orders still coming in. Taken all in all, there is an oversupply of almost everything in cut flowers and an exceedingly dull market. Up to the time of going to press there is still no apparent change in the market, but lilies of very fine quality are arriving in quantity, with the demand very light. Sweet peas are selling better and so are orchids, while American Beauty roses and lily of the valley continue to clean up well. Everybody is talking about the coming S. A. F. convention and the prospects are very bright for a large attendance.

NOTES.

The civil service commission of this city will hold an examination for superintendent of parks on June 17, 1912, in the city hall, room 1006. The salary of this position is $2,500 per annum and persons living outside of the city will be permitted to take the examination. R. A. Widdowson, secretary of the civil service commission, will be pleased to mail applications to interested parties and all correspondence should be addressed to the commission, room 610, city hall.

The conservatory, 40x60 feet, and greenhouse, 60x200 feet, that the John C. Moninger Co. will build and erect for J. E. Tilt, the millionaire shoe man of this city, will be something out of the ordinary, and according to the plans shown us by Philip L. McKee, will be very expensive and nothing will be left undone to make these two of the finest houses that Moninger has ever built.

The George M. Garland Co. will have a large exhibit at the coming S. A. F. convention and will show a section of their wonderful movable greenhouse and their latest invention, not yet made public, in greenhouse construction. B. J. Maynard is back from a western trip with such a large bunch of orders that the firm has decided to keep him here until the work is well under way.

Bassett & Washburn are rushing work at their new greenhouse plant and the grading is all completed. The railroad company is busy laying the switch and the well drillers are pretty well along with their work. Work on the boiler shed, 40x190 feet, will start soon and it is expected that some of the material for the new houses will be ready soon.

Fred Lautenschlager, northern state vice-president of the S. A. F., is doing a great deal of missionary work for his society by securing new members and the Captain says that he has only just begun. The members of the baseball nine have promised him their membership and it is understood that a few of the bowlers will follow suit.

W. H. Pontious informs us that the Superior Machine & Boiler Works has just received an order from Chas. Breiter, Touhy avenue, for a No. 3 Superior boiler. Mr. Pontious is attending to the clerical work this week during the illness of his firm's efficient young office lady.

Baseball practice next Sunday, June 16 at 1:15 p. m. sharp. Meet at the E. F. Winterson Co.'s store and be ready for good hard work. Several games have already been scheduled and as soon as the team gets a little more practice the season will be opened.

N. J. Wieter and John Sinner have given up their fishing trip and are now boosting the coming S. A. F. convention.

Mrs. A. Kindler and daughter Edna, of Raedlein Basket Co., are visiting friends at Salt Lake City, Utah.

All bowlers who would like to qualify for the team that will represent this city at the next S. A. F. convention are cordially invited to participate in the preliminaries which will open at Bensingers East Randolph alleys next Tuesday, June 18. Further particulars can be obtained from Ernest Farley, 160 North Wabash avenue.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is going to install a cold storage plant in their basement, 20x60 feet, and Manager J. F. Kidwell is now busy getting figures and plans for same. Work will be started as soon as possible and it is expected that everything will be well under way inside of another month.

The roof garden at the Hotel La Salle was opened last Saturday evening, June 8, and was artistically decorated with bay trees, plants and large oaks. L. Koropp looked after the plant and bay tree arrangement and Geo. H. Pieser arranged the table decorations, using pink carnations nearly exclusively.

A. L. Vaughan is entertaining his cousin, Dr. J. B. Vaughan of Collings-ton, La., this week and it is needless to say that the genial wholesaler is some entertainer, as a good many florists, both local and out of town, will agree, especially those who had occasion to partake of his generous hospitality.

Wietor Bros. report a very good demand for American Beauty roses and the quality of the stock they are cutting now is very good for this time of the year. Killarney, White Killarney and My Maryland roses are moving well but the supply of carnations is unusually large and greater than the demand.

The Chicago Corollation Co. is placing two carloads of peonies in storage this week, mostly Richardson's Rubra Su-perba. A. T. Pyfer is hard at work at bowling practice and says he expects to carry off the individual honors at the S. A. F. convention. Go to it, but look out for Peter Olsem.

The handsome silver cup that Zech & Mann have donated to the bowling league as a prize to the individual champion is now in the hands of Allie Zech, chairman of the league, and is on exhibition at the store. It is certainly a beauty and one of the most costly cups ever offered.

John Kruchten is receiving some fine Mexican ivy and other greens, also a good grade of everything seasonable in cut flowers. The gardenia crop of this firm's grower is in good condition and this store will in a few weeks again be headquarters for this popular flower.

H. Simpson, the Ogden avenue florist, is very busy with wedding orders this week and reports a very good trade in general. Well arranged window displays are now features at this store and the present wedding scene is very pretty and a credit to the proprietor.

E. E. Pieser of Kennicott Bros. Co. says that he will not sell the peony plants this season as he intended to, that he bought from the Chicago Carnation Co., but will wait until some future date or possibly even retain them for his own farms.

Wm. J. Smyth had a fine week and arranged the decorations for the Steele wedding at 3215 South Michigan avenue and also supplied a large number of bouquets for the Loring school commencement exercises.

Albert Lies of Niles Centre looked so different this week when he appeared on the market minus his mustache that several of his friends failed to recognize him.

Peter Reinberg is right in crop with roses and carnations and is also receiving some fine American Beauties. Tim Matchen, the popular manager, is singing, "My Wife's Gone to the Country."

At a recent meeting of the special parks commission a committee was appointed to consider the advisability of consolidating the positions of city forester and superintendent of small parks.

The S. Wilks Manufacturing Co. is evidently looking forward to a very busy season in the greenhouse line, for it has a large number of hot water boilers in stock.

The Briggs Floral Co.'s new store on West Madison street is a dandy and the proprietors think that they have finally found a paying location.

Harry A. Balsley has advised Chairman Winterson of the convention committee on sports that he will donate a $25 cup in the bowling contest.

Erne & Klingel, the new wholesalers, have a large variety of stock and their bill-of-fare includes practically everything seasonable in cut flowers.

A. L. Randall Co. is having a ribbon and chiffon sale and Frank Johnson says that it is a success, for much stock has already been sold.

Frank Ayers, Chas. W. McKellar's store man, is planning on leaving soon for a camping trip in the Canadian wilds.

Andrew McAdams is having a very busy season and ten men are now employed to assist with the outside work.

The E. F. Winterson Co. received its first shipment of aquatics, commonly called water lilies, this week.

T. E. Waters, Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply man, is recovering from a severe case of blood poisoning.

L. S. Spencer, good old Sherry, of Champaign, was with us this week.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is right in full crop with orchids and some magnificent blooms of cattleyas can now be seen at the store. Those who had occasion to see this firm's orchid exhibit at the club meeting last Thursday, June 6, were well pleased with the specimen plants and cut blooms that were shown, for the flowers were exceptionally large and the plants were some of the finest specimens ever seen in this part of the country. A. K. Anderson, the efficient grower, was present at the meeting and pointed out the superior quality of the C. gigas and also called attention to one plant of C. Gaskelliana. There were seven flowers on one spike on one of the plants and the blooms in some instances were fully 10 inches across.

The J. B. Deamud Co. is featuring a fine grade of peonies and gladioli and the other miscellaneous stock is also of good quality. One of this firm's young store men will soon leave on his vacation and it is understood that the bell which made Des Plaines famous will tinkle when he leaves. 'Nuff said.

Elmer Sigwalt of Arlington Heights will try his hand at growing peonies next year, having already placed his order with Kennicott Bros. Co. for 1,000 plants.

The Geo. Wittbold Co. is using large street poster signs about 4x8 feet.

Nashville.

GRADUATION WEEK.

Reports from all quarters show that trade has been very good and that there has been no diminution in the call for flowers. Funeral work has been plentiful not only in this city but a great deal for out of town orders, as well as for many prominent and highly connected people in the city. The school commencements, which are now about over, proved a rich harvest for the florists. There were one hundred-and-forty graduates at the public school and while the flowers were not presented publicly while the exercises were going on, they could be received either before or after the hours and every graduate was remembered bountifully. The Killarney rose was the class flower and the demand for these roses could hardly be supplied. To add to the demand there has been this week in progress a very brilliant "Kirmess," participated in by the ultra society element of more than three hundred people, all of whom had to have bouquets. The nature of the performance did not permit the interruption of bou-quet throwing, and this feature was given an act all by itself and the performers called to the front of the stage to receive the floral gifts. Booths were fitted up in the lobby of the theatre for the sale of flowers, but they came primarily from the florists.

NOTES.

Geny Bros. also have had a fine trade and sold more for the school commencements than for any two years previously. The one-hundred and forty graduates seemed to be a very popular bunch. They have done good business for the "Kirmess" and have helped out a popular charity by selling them the flowers which they resold in bunches. Many French bouquets were presented the participants. Their sale on the Richmond rose for the public school was unprecedented. They have Killarney, White Killarney, American Beauty, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria and My Maryland. The two latter they have grown for the summer supply and the houses are coming on in fine shape and will give a supply when it will be most needed. They still have sweet peas in good supply but carnations are nearly out.

McIntyre Bros. have had no let up since Easter, but have been constantly busy with "hardly time to sleep" as long as the rush lasted. They had one splendid decoration at the Hermitage Club where the National Hardware Association, which met here last week in convention were entertained. Three floors were decorated profusely with palms, smilax and flowers and also the tables for three hundred guests at the banquet. They had a fine lot of beautiful blooming hydrangea to intersperse effectively amid the palms. The table pieces were made up of Killarney roses and stands of lilies and some of phlox were distributed about the banquet rooms.

The people in Joy Floral establishment say they have been "rushed to death," and have had flowers to meet every call. They have had splendid orchids and their American Beauties were never better, with large perfect flowers and stems from three to five feet long. They had a fine trade in the out-of-town funeral orders shipping to distant points. The "Kirmess" has been a fine field for them and every night they have furnished handsome flowers in great numbers. They are having fine roses, Killarney and White Killarney, Richmond and Lily of the Valley. Haury & Sons have also been kept busy with the abundance of trade and have had good flowers. They have the Richmond, Killarney and White Killarney and plenty of sweet peas and other flowers. M. C. D.

RUTHERFORD, N. J.—Jacob H. Ullmann, of Carlstadt, has turned his business over to Fred Luther, who will conduct it in the future.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held at the Union Restaurant June 6, President Foley in the chair. There was a large attendance, much interest being taken in the preparations for the forthcoming convention of the Society of American Florists. Routine business was transacted and the following were nominated for membership: J. W. Page, Morton Grove; S. G. Anderson, Morton Grove; D. D. P. Roy, 31 West Randolph street; A. L. Randall, 66 East Randolph street; Gustav Raedlein, 713 Milwaukee avenue. President Foley referred with feeling to the death of a member of Fred Lautenschlager's family and Elijah A. Wood and appointed W. N. Rudd, J. C. Vaughan and M. Barker a committee to draw up suitable resolutions on Mr. Wood's death.

Prof. H. B. Dorner spoke of the material progress being made at the University of Illinois in affording facilities for thorough and practical floricultural education.

The Poehlmann Bros. Co. made a fine display of cattleya blooms, mostly C. gigas and C. Gaskelliana.

Until further notice meetings will be held fortnightly, the next taking place June 20.

Chicago Spring Show.

Next year's spring show of the Horticultural Society of Chicago is scheduled for April 1-5 at the Art Institute. The preliminary premium list has just been issued, with over $1,700 in prizes for flowering plants alone. The Society invites and will carefully consider criticisms and suggestions, as it is the wish of the committee to make the exhibition as broad and comprehensive as possible. Copies of the premium list may be had on application to Secretary Chas. W. Deusner, 1101 Buena avenue.

Chicago Bowling.

Several of the bowlers passed the 200 mark in some of the games played last week, John Zech scoring 202, Ernest Farley 203 and 210, Al Fischer 224 and Bill Lorman 212. The individual and team scores for the games played are as follows:

| Carnations. |                | Orchids.  |                |

MARKET QUIETER.

The coming of warm weather is somewhat curtailing the number of society events and the flower business is gradually settling down to summer conditions. Rambler roses are flowering profusely just now and are being utilized freely for decorative work; their season will be materially short, however, as we are needing rain in this section of the country; it has been three weeks since a real good shower visited us. For high grade roses and carnations this city is chiefly dependent upon Chicago and Denver for its supplies during the spring and summer months.

NOTES.

Cornelius A. Prohl, who for a little over three years has had charge of all the park system, with the exception of Wheeler Park, died with Bright's disease on June 6 and was interred June 8. Mr. Prohl was a German, a very capable landscape gardener, and had made a host of friends during his residence here and his work will long be appreciated, as he has laid the foundation for an elaborate park and boulevard system.

The Stiles Co. have their carnations in the field and as they are equipped with a Skinner irrigating system the plants are doing well.

A mushroom growing establishment located on a tract of land south of the stockyards is being built by Fred E. Thomas.

Bartelde's has just completed the planting of chrysanthemums in the benches.

WEATHER PERFECT.

The weather conditions have been about perfect as to personal comfort for the last few days. But the check on indoor roses is noticeable. The cool weather causes them to keep close buds. There is quite a demand now for flowers as June is the month of weddings, commencements and garden parties. The principal flowers for graduates are roses and carnations, though sweet peas and peonies were used last week at some of the commencements. We are sorry to say the fruit season in this vicinity will be of short duration. A glance at the cherry trees finds the fruit rotting. Apple trees did not show much bloom, and the wise ones tell us that all kind of fruit will be scarce. Grapes seem more fruitful and we will be fortunate if we do not have the little insect that destroyed them last season.

NOTES.

The squares in this city and parks are looking excellent. Baltimore is doing much more planting in this year than for a number of years past. The city is taking on a festive air and getting ready for convention. June 25 is looming up and the busy decorators are working hard and trying to make things look beautiful as far as lies in their power.

The greenhouses that are being built are getting on well. Hans Anderson has two well under way. He is getting his place at Towson in good shape, having moved there last April. Stevenson Bros. have received material from Lord & Burnham for the extension of a connecting house and will start to work on it this month.

I. H. Moss has had a very successful season in nursery stock and is about sold out of bedding stock as are many of the other florists. B.

Toronto.

Good general business has been the rule since Easter. The visit of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught for the races kept things going socially and there was a large demand for flowers on many occasions. Stock fortunately has been in very fine shape and good prices have been realized. Roses have been elegant, though the last few days of warmth have had some effect. Carnations have been plentiful enough to fill orders, but as there has been no surplus the prices have kept accordingly. Orchids, lily of the valley and sweet peas are fine and meet with ready sale. Lilac, iris and peonies are now plentiful enough to go around and the stores are taking advantage with excellent displays.

American Beauty roses are now plentiful for the first time this year and are being sold in large quantities. Those who handle bedding stock complain of a great shortage. Many of the growers of the soft wood stock have cut up their places into building lots and by two firms alone the shortage in geraniums is 35,000. This, however, has its good points, as prices are better this year than ever before.

NOTES.

Chas. Tidy has purchased 11 acres outside the city and is erecting a residence, planting trees and will give the place a general shake-up, "just for a home," says Chas.; but it would not be surprising to hear that some glass was going up.

Dunlop's Yonge street, have been making good window displays. Business has been fine, with help scarce. Good supplies of roses and carnations are coming from their own conservatories; in fact, the best for years.

Grobba & Wandrey have been bringing in good Darwin tulips, spiraea, sweet peas and gladioli. Their peony crop is now in, being the first in this locality.

W. E. Mackay of Dundas street is busy clearing out his stock and will soon move to his farm up Yonge street.

Mac. Gammage of London was a visitor who is well pleased with the season's business. H. G. D.

Pittsburg.

We wish some of the experts who are telling us how to overcome the cut flower glut would have been in this city the past week with some practical advice. There did not seem to be enough vases to hold the stock at the wholesale houses, but at that the wholesaler, with untiring efforts, managed to report something to his growers. The plantsmen are still looking for good bedding stock, which is very scarce.

NOTES.

T. P. Langhans has moved to his summer residence at Allison Park. W. A. Clark of the same firm hardly needs one in view of the beautiful lawn and shrubbery he has surrounding his residence in Sheridan.

James Blankensop of Washington, Pa., has sold his store in that city to Murray King, formerly of the A. W. Smith Co. of this city.

E. J. McCallum spent a few days in Cleveland and other Ohio points during the week.

John Jones of Schenley Park complains of the scarcity of labor, and states that his planting is held back badly on this account.

The A. W. Smith Co. made a specialty of seeds this spring and the trade in these more than came up to their expectations.

J. B. Martin starts the vacation season at the McCallum Co. June 15.

Mike Steiner has closed up his business on Frankstown avenue.

B. W. Spragg has opened up a flower store in Waynesburg. J.

FLORISTS' CLUB PICNIC.

The Lancaster Florists' Club will hold its annual outing at Pequa on the Susquehanna river on the 11th of July. Cars will leave Center Square at Lancaster 10:30 a. m., reaching Pequa at noon. This ride has scenery than can not be duplicated anywhere in the United States east of the Rocky Mountains and the river scenery at and around Pequa is the finest water scenery of this country. The cost will not exceed $1.25 for the day, car fare to and from Lancaster, a picnic lunch from 12 o'clock noon to 1:30 p. m., and a real Lancaster County dinner at the Riverview Hotel at 4:30 p. m. The amusements will be games of various sorts, dancing for the dancers, fishing for the fishermen and a trip to the McCalls Ferry power plant (one of the largest propositions of its kind in the country) for those who are interested in wonderful things. This trip is made by motor boat on Lake Tucquan. Florists from Reading, Harrisburg, York and Lebanon and any visiting florists who are fortunate enough to be in this section on the 11th are invited to attend. Dutch treat, that is, "pay your own expenses." A postal card to Secretary Lemon Landis, Lancaster, Pa., that you will attend will insure your being looked after. ALBERT M. HERR.

LYNCHBURG, VA.—Florist Fallon has given the use of his stall at the City market to the Woman's League for 30 days, beginning May 25, with a liberal percentage on all flowers sold and orders taken through the league during that period.

PITTSBURG, PA.—Julius Solten, florist, 35 years old, living at 5206 Dreden alley, dropped dead in his home last night. Mr. Solten had complained of sickness for the past few days. Death is supposed to have resulted from heat prostration.

Prof. Campbell on Ferns and Mosses.

Prof. Douglas H. Campbell, who is at the head of the department of botany in the Leland Stanford, Jr., University and who is the author of "The Development of Mosses and Ferns" and several other works on zoological evolution, returned recently from an extended trip to Europe. He had the following to say concerning matters close to botanists: "I have endeavored to put before the intelligent reader where we botanists stand on fundamental questions. I have discussed the different theories of evolution and the factors that bear upon the evolution of organic forms, and have tried to put them in such form that it will be clear how botanists look upon the work of Burbank and others in the way of experimental evolution with plants. Of course there are other benefits from experimental evolution besides making a pumpkin a little larger. Anything that throws light upon the fundamental question is important. European scientists are working along much the same lines as those in America. The man over there who has done most in that direction is the Dutch botanist De Vries, and his work has stimulated many others in America as well as in Europe. I am trying to study the pedigree of the vegetable kingdom as a whole, and to compare the development of the lower forms of plant life, such as mosses and ferns. They illustrate perhaps better than the higher plants, in which we get more complex forms. I have traveled all over the world in the last twenty years collecting specimens—principally ferns and mosses—because in the course of their development I find transient phases, and mosses in some stages are very close to ferns. Five years ago I traveled 40,000 miles, visiting South Africa, India, the Dutch East Indies and the Pacific islands just collecting specimens and studying them. Such growth as moss and ferns being more luxuriant in the tropics, the latter offer the best field for their study."

JUNCTION CITY, KANS.—A disastrous hailstorm struck here last week. The stones were the size of hen and turkey eggs and did not leave 12 square feet of glass unsmashed in 13,000 feet of glass belonging to E. F. Walter & Son. A large tomato crop and all flowers were destroyed. They have double insurance but their loss will be very heavy, especially on fruit and vegetables.

Tree Seed by the Ton.

The United States Department of Agriculture is using this year in the national forests more than ten tons of tree seed. Most of this seed has already been planted or sown. The rest will be utilized later in the season as favorable conditions are presented.

It takes a great many tree seeds to make ten tons. Jack pine, the most important tree for planting in the Nebraska sand hills by the Forest Service, will average something like 125,000 to the pound. Of western yellow pine, the tree most extensively planted throughout the national forests as a whole, 10,000 seeds will make a pound. Altogether the ten tons of seed to be used this year represents perhaps 300,000,000 single seeds.

If every seed could be depended on to produce a young tree suitable for planting the result would be a supply of nursery stock sufficient to plant 300,000 acres of land, but no such result can be looked for, because many seeds do not germinate. Most of the seed will be sown either broadcast or in seed spots or planted with a corn planter directly in the place where the trees are to stand.

Even when nursery stock is raised a liberal allowance must be made for loss. In the first place a considerable percentage of the seeds will be found to be infertile. Of those which germinate many will die before they leave the nursery beds, and many more will be lost in transplanting. If

BUSINESS FALLING OFF.

Business is fast falling off and the commencements, of which there were quite a few the past week, helped out considerably. The June weddings also called for quite a few flowers, there being several quite elaborate affairs. There is an abundance of stock with the exception of American Beauty roses, which sell up close. The demand will keep up this week, for June 14 the girls' high school graduates adopted this rose as their class flower and all will carry one dozen each of these quality roses and then talk about the great expense of final exercises. All other roses are getting smaller. Carnations are smaller but still in good condition. Peonies are about done except chilled stock, which does not last long enough to be a factor. Spencer sweet peas from outside are now very fine and are great favorites for graduation bunches. Snapdragon is almost over. There is quite a showing of gladiolus America and other similar sorts, which make good decorative effects. Lily of the valley is very fine and some very choice cattleyas are seen. Gardenias are about equal to the demand.

NOTES.

The large new house of the Joseph Heacock Co. is now all planted and the stock of 22,000 plants all came from A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., who are also furnishing the plants, a like number, for the Franklin house, now nearly completed, at Yardsly.

Autos are taking the place of horses rapidly and the Leo. Niessen Co. will soon purchase another new car in addition to the one now in use. The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. will also have a fine new auto which will be of great assistance to their present delivery.

Philadelphia Florists' Club Picnic.

The event of the past week was the picnic and it was held under very adverse conditions. At first there seemed to be very little enthusiasm because Chairman Farenwald, who was the most enthusiastic, ran away to Europe. At the last meeting Secretary Rust said that the responses had come in very slowly, but members present began calling for tickets and the list finally reached 100. On Thursday it poured rain, but at 1:30 about 150 showed up at the wharf. At 2 the boats moved up the river to give a view of the city's waterfront and then down the river to Washington park, where all were safely landed and sought shelter for the time. About 3 p. m. it cleared enough to go to the athletic field, which being sandy had soaked up the water, and a three-inning game of ball between teams representing the Henry F. Michell Co. and Wm. Henry Maule was played, and resulted in a victory for the Michell team by a score of 4 to 0. Considering the condition of the grounds the contest was well played. ladies and girls and also for fat men and boys were ran and afforded much amusement, as did the wheelbarrow race for men. Possibly the most exciting event was the tug-of-war. Two teams of 10 men each were captained by Theodore Shober and Robert Shock and the earnest way they laid down to the work was worth going miles to see. Shober's team won out in the final seconds of the three minutes and both teams looked as if, in this short time, they had gone through a full 10-hour day. The shad dinner was served about 6 p. m. in a large pavilion and was very enjoyable. Taken altogether the whole outing was very enjoyable. The consensus of opinion was that it should certainly be an annual affair to be held from three weeks to a month later and should be announced earlier in the year so that a more detailed athletic program could be arranged. With a little systematic working up there is no reason why the attendance should not reach three to four times the number present on last Thursday. Some very nice prizes were arranged for by the committee, the following ladies and gentlemen being the winners:

Men's wheelbarrow race—Theodore Shober, first; F. Adelberger, Wayne, second.

Race for married ladies—Mrs. Robertson, first; Mrs. Gracey, second.

Race for single ladies—Miss Josephine Michell, first; Miss Geschick, second.

Girls' race—Miss Robertson, first; Miss Koehler, second.

Boys' race—Wm. Robertson, first; Alfred Rust, second.

BEDDING PLANTS IN GOOD DEMAND.

In comparison with the dull times we have had, Memorial day was a great success both as to quantity of flowers sold and prices obtained. The plant trade has been a continual grind for three weeks. We had a late winter with hot weather following within a week of snow and no spring weather intervening, so that everyone wanted their bedding plants and porch boxes at once, insisting they could not wait.

NOTES.

Ben Boldt, one of our most successful growers, and S. R. Lundy, formerly traveling salesman for the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, have opened a retail store at 614 Sixteenth street, one of the best locations in the city. They have fitted up the store in good taste and Mr. Lundy, who has charge of the store, keeps the windows very artistically trimmed, so they have already attracted the favorable attention of the public and business has started off well with them. The place is known as the Boldt-Lundy Flower Shop.

TRADE DULL.

Business is fast settling down to the dull routine of summer quietness. It is true that congress is in session, which keeps a number of people here who would otherwise be away, but congress goes on in a perfunctory manner, with its ear to the ground. While in the flesh the average congressman may be in the Capitol, in spirit he is out in his own "deestric" wondering what his constituents intend to do to him when the ides of autumn roll around. Nearly all the good spenders who are regular entertainers when here have gone to their summer homes. There are a few weddings, the average amount of funeral work and a scattering counter trade and that is about the sum total of business. Quite a number of strangers were in the city the latter part of last week on account of the unveiling of the monument to Christopher Columbus, which stands in front of the new Union Station. Visiting delegations, however, are not good patrons of the florists, and excepting the decoration of Convention hall, where the banquet was held on the night of June 8, there was little business in connection with the event. There was an automobile parade on the night of June 7, in which some of the automobiles were decorated with flowers. The lamented Mark Twain once told us of the tears he shed at the tomb of Adam; well, the people who have taken so much interest in having a monument to Columbus erected in this national capital, can now come here and weep over it if they want to. Stock continues plentiful; though the home crop of peonies is cut, good stock keeps arriving from northern points. There was heavy rain during the past week and the nights have turned cool. Outdoor stock, particularly carnations, has taken a fresh start. Among noteworthy flowers now coming in are phlox and Canterbury bells.

NOTES.

J. H. Small & Sons have closed the old store which they have occupied for so many years at the corner of Fourteenth and G streets, N. W., and are now doing all business in their elegant new store at the corner of Fifteenth and H streets, N. W. This firm had the decoration for the Knights of Columbus banquet at Convention hall June 8. The hall is large and several hundred cedar trees, of medium height, were used as a wall decoration, peonies being chiefly used on the tables.

The monthly meeting of the club was held on the night of June 4 with a good attendance. A tangle in the former election of delegates was straightened out. There was some discussion relating to the annual outing of the club, but no date was fixed.

STORING PEONIES.

Stock of all kinds continues plentiful and big lots of roses and carnations are sold at bargain prices. Peonies are being put in storage by the carload, many are sold on the streets and a lot more are sent to the hospitals. Carnations are in full crop just now, but in about one week's time they are more than likely going to be a little scarce. Colored water lillies are arriving on the local market, and are finding a ready sale, with the demand far exceeding the supply. Ica and Mrs. Francis King gladioli are in good demand. Larkspur, snapdragon, etc., are plentiful in all colors, Easter lilies sell fairly well. Sweet peas are not quite so plentiful as a week ago, but stock is still in very fair condition. Lily of the valley and orchids are moving nicely. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

DEMAND LIGHT WITH HEAVY SUPPLY.

We are reminded of Kipling's "rag and a bone and a bunch of hair." There are rags and bones in the market at present and bunches of seasonable and unseasonable stock can be had for a little exertion or capital. Whether there is not enough June brides to take the surplus or whether the brides have cold feet we do not know. The market just now is in an unsatisfactory state. Carnations are piling up and still they come, and it is a question sometimes of job lots so much a thousand. The reaction has set in and set in with a vengeance and the divine flower is losing popularity it seems with the public. Whether the latter will be induced to take another bite and whether the taste becomes bitter again depends on those who sell the goods. One of the most optimistic men in the trade is P. Welch. He says this dark trade spell will bring more light and we ourselves feel that the growers will realize that the public are the bosses, and the more educated they become to the use of flowers the more discriminating they will be as to the quality. There are new fields to open. The firemen within a few years have begun to decorate the graves of their deceased comrades in June. Children's Sunday in the churches has always used plants. There is an innovation started, giving each child a flower. We know of one case where the children baptised were each given a white rose with the thorns cut off and all the other children were given a rose and a plant. Here is an infant flower industry which will bring good results. Who will rise up and kill it by selling pickled stock? Continued cold weather is with us yet, June 8, frost. Crops are backward, but we never saw New England look so pretty in June. There is a greenness here at present that only could be expected in the Emerald Isle.

NOTES.

There is another innovation started, that of giving children in the public schools in one of our suburbs a cut back rose from the benches. This will help instill a love for flowers which in after years will grow stronger, help the florist, make homes prettier, make garden spots out of eye sores, and place the home on a higher plane by their use.

We noticed a seedling carnation brought in by W. C. Stichel, of Lexington, a big, handsome, strong flower, a cross between Gloriosa and Beacon. It is a nice thing, but Mr. Stichel says it is too slow and rather than foist anything on the trade that would not bring good results he is not going to send it out.

Boston is to have a municipal farm in Franklin Park. The versatile mayor is reported to have started a model farm at his Dorchester home. We may expect to hear some fine points about expert farming now.

Maurice Hambro is out again after his sickness. MAC.

roses, flowers of shrubs and trees, rhododendrons and azaleas, irises and other flowers and plants. This was the largest summer exhibition ever given by the society, much larger than that of last June. Mr. T. A. Havemeyer, of Glen Head, N. Y., made a large and magnificent display of peonies, comprising over 200 vases and about 1,200 blooms. The flowers were large and of excellent quality. A fine display of the flowers of shrubs and trees and of irises were also made by Mr. Havemeyer, who takes an active interest in the advancement of horticulture, superintending himself the arrangement of this large display. It was a little early for roses, but several exhibits were made, the one by Gen. McAlpin, of Ossining, N. Y., being of especial merit. A fine exhibit of rhododendrons was made by the F. R. Pierson Co. There were also large exhibits of shrubs and trees, irises, herbaceous plants and roses by Mr. H. Darlington, Mrs. F. A. Constable and Mr. Henry Siegel. A fine display of orchids was made by Messrs. Lager & Hurrell, and another by Mr. Clement Moore. The weather was ideal, and there was a large attendance on both Saturday and Sunday. A meeting of the society was held on Saturday afternoon, followed by a lecture on "Orchids," by Mr. George V. Nash, who spoke about the structure, classification, distribu-

School closings and weddings form the only outlet for the large supply of flowers arriving in this market. Trade has slackened up considerably. Notwithstanding the cool weather now prevailing, large quantities of roses and carnations are pouring in and prices are low. Outdoor peas are now arriving. Cape Jasmynes are not selling. Peonies are still in; many are of poor quality and too much open.

THE MARKET.

Business is good as a whole. The supply is in most lines larger than the demand for them, but still the clearances are very substantial. The demand from out-of-town for both flowers and greens is large. Local business is not as active as it might be. Toward the close of last week white roses began to run short of the call. American Beauty roses were used in very large quantities and at local commencements they seemed to be the chief flower. The offerings of Killarney and Maids and rambler roses are large. Carnations continue in very large supply. The offerings of Enchantress is large, while the call for white and dark colors is about equal to the demand. Other offerings include gladioli, both large choice forced flowers and out-of-door stock. In hardy phlox the first is being cut and finds only a passive demand. The demand for lily of the valley and orchids is good. There are plenty of Easter lilies with only a fair market. The green goods market is ample and demand only fair.

CLUB MEETING.

The Florists' Club meeting on June 10 was well attended. The following were nominated to be balloted upon at the next, the annual, meeting: For presi-

MARKET IN DEMORALIZED CONDITION.

The wholesale cut flower market seems to be in a more demoralized condition than ever and is flooded with good stock of all kinds. Peonies are everywhere, and the very best are moved with difficulty. Carnations are in very large supply, and many shipments of the inferior grades of these have been thrown away. The finer varieties of gladioli are more plentiful, and prices have a downward tendency. There is the usual large supply of sweet peas, with only a moderate demand for the very best. Lilies are in abundance and of all grades and quality and the supply far exceeds the demand. It is impossible to give correct quotations on roses, with the exception of the varieties My Maryland, Prince de Bulgarie, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Chateaufort, Radiance and Lady Hillingdon. These roses are not so very plentiful and do not accumulate. Killarney and Richmond are now in the class with Brides and Bridesmaid, meeting only with a very light demand. American Beauties are not so plentiful and the good blooms of these meet with a very ready sale. There is no change for the better in the orchid market. Lily of the valley is moving a little better than the previous week. The supply of gardenias is limited. Stocks are gradually getting less in quantity. There is the usual supply of greens, smilax, asparagus and adiantum, which meet with indifferent demand. The asparagus arriving from the south is affected much by the warm weather and drops badly upon arrival. From all accounts there will be a much larger supply another season of the newer roses such as Radiance, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Lady Hillingdon, Prince de Bulgarie, which have met with such a favorable reception the past season. There will also be a good supply of the new yellow rose Sunburst.

Monday, June 10.—The weather is cooler and stock not quite so plentiful. There are no important changes in quotations.

NOTES.

The condition of the orchid market can be well understood when C. C. Trepel, who conducts the flower departments in Loeser's, Brooklyn-Bloomingtons and Gimbles, New York, advertises to give a lavender orchid to each purchaser of fifty cents' worth of flowers. On Saturday Mr. Trepel took seven truck loads of flowers out of the wholesale market. The question is often asked: Under present conditions, what would be the result if it was not for Charley Trepel?

A. M. Westwood of 110 West Twenty-eighth street furnished over one thousand bunches of American Beauty roses which were given away Wednesday at the matinee performance of the "Rose Maid" at the Globe theater. Mr. Westwood will open shortly a flower store in the Pennsylvania Terminal.

The members and ladies of the Astoria Florists' Club on Saturday attended the matinee performance of James T. Powers in the "Two Little Brides" at the Casino. In the evening after dinner at the Knickerbocker they attended the performance at the Winter Garden.

The directors of the Cut Flower Exchange will shortly hold their first annual dinner and preparations are being made to celebrate this important event on a very elaborate scale, the price of tickets being placed at ten dollars each.

Philip F. Kessler is delighted with the outlook for the club's annual outing, already having over four hundred dollars for prizes. The date is July 2 and the place Wetzel's Point View Grove, College Point, L. I.

W. A. Manda, who has been a very successful exhibitor at the International Exposition in London, writes he will sail from Liverpool June 8 on the SS. Lusitania.

The large order of 50,000 roses that Charles Millang furnished during the week to Wannamaker's stores made no apparent impression on the prices.

Sam. Sulzburger has resigned from Henshaw & Fenrich and has accepted a position with Maurice Glass at 55 West Twenty-sixth street.

J. K. L. M. Farquhar and M. A. Patten of Boston arrived in New York from Europe on Saturday on the SS. "Mauretania."

J. V. Cole, who succeeded Fleischman in the Pennsylvania Terminal, closed up the first of the week.

Frank D. Hunter, who has been seriously ill since January 1, is now able to be about again.

John Meisem of Elmhurst, L. I., is cutting 5,000 lilies a day of the very best quality.

Henry Lustgarten is now located on the floor of the Cut Flower Exchange with P. F. Kessler, B. Slum and A. Sauter.

Visitors: George Watson, Philadelphia, and Conrad Schulz, Westerly, R. I.

New York Florists' Club.

There was only a fair meeting on Monday night—70 present. Frank H. Traendly made an elaborate report for the transportation committee and his committee was given full power to complete all arrangements. All those going from the vicinity of New York or points east are invited to join the party. If a party of 100 is made up a special train will be provided, making the trip to Chicago in less than 20 hours, and at the same time the $5 excess fare will be saved. There seems to be no doubt but what there will be more than 100 making the trip, but no delay should be made in communicating with Mr. Traendly, 131 West 28th street, for reservations.

The committee on awards reported on exhibits of peonies as follows: George H. Peterson, Fair Lawn, N. J., certificate of merit, special mention being made of the varieties No. 1 Livingston, Mons. Krelage, Mons. Cahucz and Mme. Louise Mere; John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, L. I., thanks of the club for peonies, Iris Pallida, and collection of Callas by Jno. Lewis Childs, Callas Elliottiana, Rheumaunii, Aurata, Mrs. Roosevelt and Sulfatore.

John Lane, Englewood, N. J., was nominated for membership. J. H. Reock, Walter C. Siebrecht, A. C. Saylor, George C. Siebricht, Charles Schmiege were elected to membership. Messrs. Reock, Schmiege, Artsburger, Bucholz, Saylor, Joseph H. Vocke, Edward A. Manda, recently elected, were introduced and each made brief addresses.

Chas. B. Weathered, Chas. Schenck, A. L. Miller, R. M. Schultz, Robt. Wilson, Bert Chadwick, C. W. Scott, M. C. Ebel, J. Austin Shaw, A. M. Henshaw were appointed entertainment committee to take care of the visitors to the National Flower Show.

J. H. Pepper reported for the committee on publicity in the absence of Chairman Wallace R. Pierson. All florists' clubs had been communicated with, urging concerted action, and the outlook was very encouraging.

Philip F. Kessler gave a detailed report for the outing committee. Everything looks as if this affair would be the most successful in the history of the club.

Chairman I. S. Hendrickson of the exhibition committee announced there would be an exhibition of gladioli at the September meeting.

Resolutions were read on the death of Mrs. Wm. F. Kasting, Mrs. Wm. Eccles and Peter MacDonald.

The club then adjourned to meet the second Monday in September. V.

Albany, N. Y.

BUSINESS EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD.

Business the past two weeks has been exceptionally good. The growers have sold out on bedding stock, the demand for which was heavier than anticipated. For cut flowers the sale is growing on account of the approach of the season of weddings and commencements.

CLUB MEETING.

At the June meeting of the Albany Florists' Club, George Parr of Glenmont, a short distance south of the city, asked the co-operation of the members in connection with floral exhibits at the second annual fair he is to hold about the middle of August. Individual members promised to send plants and flowers from their stock and the outlook is that a creditable exhibition will result. The program may include one day devoted to a floral fete, but details depend largely upon the measure of response. Treasurer Patrick Hyde reported that a draft had been remitted to John Young for membership fee of the Albany club in the new state organization of florists' clubs formed in February. Letters of thanks were read by the secretary from Edmund Hazeltine for a wreath sent to his mother's funeral; from Patrick Hyde for fruit sent during his recent illness, and a word or two was spoken by F. Goldring in behalf of Fred A. Danker, president, who was remembered during his recent illness. J. Wesley Warner, Newtonville, and James J. Moore, Watervliet, were elected members and one application was received to be acted upon at the next meeting. Upon invitation the club will hold its July meeting with Frederick Goldring on the evening of the 11th at his place, Font Grove. R. D.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society's annual exhibition of rhododendrons, azaleas and irises was held at Horticultural Hall, Saturday and Sunday, June 8 and 9. There were also exhibits of early peonies and of other seasonable hardy flowers and early vegetables.

The date of the peony, rose and strawberry exhibition has been fixed for Saturday and Sunday, June 22 and 23. These exhibitions are free to all and will be open Saturday from 12 m. to 6 p. m. and Sundays from 2 to 6 p. m.

SEVERE HAILSTORM.

Memorial Day for 1912 has passed into history leaving a record that will compare favorably with those of previous years. The bulk of the demand followed the usual lines and found satisfactory supply except possibly a shortage in carnations due in at least one case to the spoiled condition of "shipped in" stock. There was good sale for peonies and cape jasmine and adequate supplies of both. Prices held about as usual for the season. There was a good stiff call for cemetery bedding plants for ten days preceding the 30th.

NOTES.

This locality was visited with a rather severe hailstorm the afternoon of May 24. The storm was peculiar in that the quantity of hail was not large nor was it accompanied by very much wind. Thus little damage was done to outdoor crops. What it lacked, however, in quantity, it made up in quality, for the individual hailstones were quite large, many smooth round ones being found that measured one and one-half inches in diameter, with a goodly number of rough, knotty ones measuring up to two inches or more. The storm moved from west to east, W. H. Culp & Co.'s place catching it first. The damage here was light, about 10 per cent of breakage. As the storm moved east it increased in severity, F. Kuechenmeister being also in the beginning of the storm had a comparatively light loss. Chas. P. Mueller's place reports about 25 per cent of breakage. C. A. Rose and the Bixby Greenhouses report slight breakage, being south of the severe zone. Market gardeners with glass came in for their share, too. J. E. Bidleman and Mr. Shick being in the south side, had slight losses, while Ira Blake had over 50 per cent broken.

Norval Kline, "Wichita boy," now with the Schuer greenhouses at Hutchinson, Kansas, is a "June Hubby," having been married last week to Miss Maude Lamont of Hutchinson.

Clifford Pruner, representing E. H. Hunt, was a visitor last week, calling upon the trade in the interest of his

Osmunda Root-Fibre.

There has always existed a need for a proper name for the material used by all orchid growers now, almost to the exclusion of all other kinds. It is well known that the fibre is of the root-masses of the osmundas, preferably the cinnamon fern or O. Claytoniana, the Royal fern does not have the large hummocks of fibrous roots, so that O. regalis does not figure as a factor. In writing on orchid culture it has always been necessary, to be correct, to speak of osmunda-root-fibre. This is too cumbersome, the word peat means quite a different article, fern-root is not descriptive enough, hence the need of a word that will fit the new situation.

Professor L. H. Bailey is about to issue a new edition of his Cyclopaedia of Horticulture, and the time seems opportune to launch a name and he has suggested the word "Osmundine," that is, pertaining to the osmunda. This will be used throughout the work and it is hoped that cultivators will appreciate the spirit of helpfulness in which the suggestion is made. Very few realize to what dimensions this industry, the production of Osmundine, has grown. A leading producer writes me he has sold 20,000 barrels the past year, by far the greater part being sent to Europe; steam power is used to hoist and haul the masses out of the bogs, but it all has still to be cut up and sorted by hand. He also writes that he is glad of a convenient name for the finished article, as doubtless will the most of us later on. There will still be the different grades such as light brown, coarse dark, etc., but the name Osmundine will be used in a generic way.

In the last issue of the English "Orchid Review" we see advertised, "Fortnightly fresh consignments of the best Osmunda regalis fibre, from our own freehold lands, situated in the best osmunda producing territory of the United States of America, per bag eight shillings and sixpence." This on the front cover. It may all be true except the word regalis. Osmundine will be both descriptive and correct.

E. O. ORPET.

European Horticulture.

A New Alpine Auricula.—The new Auricula Roxburgh is a very fine addition to the alpine section and has a stout umbel and bold head of flowers. Moreover, the healthy appearance of the foliage in particular bears evidence of a sound constitution. There is a certain amount of refinement in the flowers, which are of good size, nearly two inches across, shaded purple, and merging to blue at the margin, while the creamy white center is remarkably well defined.

New Hortensia Generale Vicomtesse de Vibraye.—This beautiful variety is distinguished by very strong corymbs of very large bright rose colored flowers. Its habit is upright but graceful and the inflorescence, in spite of its dimensions, holds erect and firm. It is very free-blooming and forces well.

President; Edgar Gregory, Marblehead,
Mass., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel,

Next annual convention at Chicago, June 25-27, 1912.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. J. Brown,
Grand Rapids, Mich.

CALIFORNIA pea crops are reported as looking like an eight to ten fold yield.

S. M. ISBELL & Co., Jackson, Mich., have discontinued the growing of peas for the trade.

Chicago.—Prices on the Board of Trade, June 12, for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $8 to $12 per 100 pounds.

FREESIAs.—It is reported French freesia bulbs will be scarce. Of course much depends upon the demand. The bulb crops will not be harvested before the end of June.

THE tuberose crop is reported to be looking well at this time, although somewhat retarded by the wet weather.
The young bulbs are well started in growth out of the ground.

THE thirtieth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association will be held at Chicago week after next, June 25-27. The local committee having the matter in charge reports excellent progress with the arrangements for the meeting.

BULBS and plants were exported from Amsterdam to the United States in 1910 to the value of $107,039, and in 1911, $100,913. Garden seed amounting to $142,988 in 1910 and $142,779 in 1911 were also received in this country from Amsterdam.

NEBRASKA growers state the sweet corn acreage is somewhat limited this season compared with recent years on account of the high prices of all farm products, especially field corn and small grain, the farmers being able to make more money feeding their grain than by growing sweet corn at the low prices the trade is willing to pay.

KENTUCKY dealers report that the blue grass harvest began June 6 and that the yield is better than was expected. The weather is cool and clear and without question the Kentucky district will harvest the largest crop of blue grass seed ever known. Some jobbers are making prices as low as $1.35 per bushel for wire acceptance.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—S. G. Courteen is erecting an 8-story concrete ware-

South Water will be only 12½ feet owing to the triangular shape of the site. The length of the building on the side near the tracks will be 300 cleaning seeds will be installed and tank storage for 100,000 bushels will be provided. The building is to be ready for occupancy shortly after January 1, 1913.

French Bulbs.

French advices of May 25 inspired by the Syndicate for the Defense of Agricultural Interests claim that the members of that organization will obtain 20 francs for the Paper White Grandiflora narcissus and that white Roman Hyacinths are selling now at 85 francs instead of 80, extra fancy lots bringing as high as 90 francs.
Narcissus Grand Soleil d'Or is reported as hard to find. The syndicate authorities say they will expel those members who sell below the prices fixed.

Jesse E. Northrup.

One of the French jobbing houses suggests that American buyers be on guard against the exporting firms who are offering low prices, saying that such may be obliged to disappoint their customers in quality or unable to make deliveries.

Northrup Retires.

Jesse E. Northrup, president of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minnesota, after 28 years identification with one of the oldest and largest seed firms in the United States, last week completed sale of a large portion of his holdings in the corporation to C. C.
Massie, secretary and general manager, and other heads of the departments who for many years have been connected with the business.

Massie will assume charge. The sale also marks the advancement of others connected with the firm. Mr. Northrup will remain president of the company, and Preston King, active with Mr.
Northrup in establishing the business, will continue as treasurer. The sale marks the taking up of responsibility by younger men. Ill health which compels relief from business burdens is the cause of the change.

The business was started in 1884, occupying at that time the ground floor and basement of a small building near the old Suspension bridge. Bridge square was then the principal retail district of the city. The corporation now occupies a 5-story building at Hennepin avenue and First street, with 75,000 square feet of floor space; has three other large warehouses, one at 724-26-28 First street north, two others at St. Louis Park, and in addition uses large outside storage space.

Mr. Massie, who takes active charge of affairs, has been identified with the company for 20 years, and others for periods of 10 to 15 years.

The Late Jerome B. Rice.

The late Jerome B. Rice, whose death is recorded elsewhere in this issue, affords a striking example of the physical handicap a man of energy, fixed purpose and ambition may overcome. All that man may accomplish in this world was his. Practically helpless in his chair over a quarter century, he built up an industry certainly among the greatest of its kind on the continent. But all this is merely the outward, the commercial, the less important part of a man's life work. Jerome, as he was familiarly known to hundreds of the leaders in the American seed trade, was one who bore his trying infirmities with rare fortitude and cheerfulness, the spirit of the man ever rising out of its frail prison in his work, his play or his friendships. In meeting Jerome B.
Rice one soon forgot utterly the frail body in his vivacity, the great and kindly mind and heart which found expression in his manner, conversation and those glorious eyes.

The personality of Jerome B. Rice will long remain a fragrant memory to his many associates. In his home there was an ideal atmosphere of good fellowship and hospitality, abounding alike in himself and his family. A remarkable man has passed away.

Lilium Harrisii

HERE are conditions, and they occur not infrequently, under which all lily bulbs fail to make good flowering plants. There may be, probably are, more difficulties attending the growing of Lilium Harrisii bulbs than most forcing varieties, and yet those who do them well have found the early blooms very profitable. In many parts of the south where this bulb has been grown over a longer season and without the overforcing sometimes imposed on the plants, Harrisii has given most satisfactory returns. We are contracting, subject to crop conditions, a select strain of Well Grown Bulbs of Lilium Harrisii

Sizes: 5 to 7; 6 to 7; 7 to 9 and upwards

Setting Alfalfa Plants with a Machine.

Prof. N. E. Hansen of Brookings, South Dakota, who has brought in so many hardy plants from Siberia for the United States Department of Agriculture, sends to Secretary Wilson an interesting letter with regard to his new idea of transplanting alfalfa by machinery instead of sowing the seed. He plants them at the rate of 6,000 plants per hour. Prof. Hansen says: "I took a three weeks' tour this spring with two assistants and transplanted a number of acres by this new method, using the machine at Redfield, Lemmon, McIntosh, Ipswich, Eureka and Big Stone. Plants were set with a plow at Faith, Sansarc and other points, favoring mainly the dry western and northwestern parts of the state. I believe this will be a way of doing away with dodder and injury from discing. I see no need of injuring plants that should last several centuries by mutilating them with a disc and harrow, and 20 pounds per acre means 100 plants per square foot. Some of these Russian alfalfa plants had 500 shoots from one crown when given room in the garden.

"Over twelve hundred farmers are now co-operating with me in testing these new plants and I am getting many fine reports showing remarkable resistance to the extreme drouth of last year, when no crops were raised, and the plants are coming in fine shape this spring. The common alfalfa is acknowledged generally to be a failure on high, dry uplands in the western part of the state, and this upland region in our prairie northwest is the country I hope to cover with these new alfalfa plants.

"This machine transplanting I have had in mind for over a year, so I thought I would get at it this spring before anybody else would happen to think of it. I claim no originality for it except that I have combined Oriental methods with an American machine, one of the machines commonly used for tobacco, cabbage, cauliflower and tomatoes. At present I am only speaking of it from the seed-raising standpoint, but believe it will work out also from the storage standpoint.

"On a large area of this western country farmers have had no crop for two years so they are looking anxiously for something of a perennial nature that will be independent of surface conditions. Farmers feel that, it is uncertain to place their main dependence on annual plants like wheat."

THE KROESCHELL GREENHOUSE BOILER

Here is the boiler that is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists and gardeners who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler the highest praise.

10,788,000 square feet of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years. You will find the new 1910 model Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler in every state in the Union and Canada.

Our Eastern business has been exceedingly heavy the past season.

Do You Want True Heating Values?

Many florists, to their sorrow, have made the mistake of buying cast iron boilers, which, because of their ratings, appeared to be cheaper than the Kroeschell boiler.

The extravagant ratings of cast iron boilers are misleading, and during the past cold winter have been the cause of much disappointment and serious trouble to many growers. The fuel waste is enormous when cast iron boilers are used for commercial purposes, such as greenhouse heating, etc., etc.

Do not make a mistake when selecting your new boiler; get a Kroeschell boiler and you will never be disappointed. It's the cheapest and best in the end.

The KROESCHELL BOILER has the Highest Standard of Heating Values Immense Self-Cleaning Heating Surface.

Longest Fire Travel—Perfect Combustion—Free Circulation Thin Waterways—Safety—Durability—Economy Kroeschell Boiler Ratings Are Guaranteed

The Kroeschell boiler will develop more heat per pound of coal consumed than any other boiler on the market, and we do prove it. Read what our customers say about our boilers and be convinced. What we do for them we can do for you. Take our advice on boilers and you will make no mistake.

ORDER YOUR Kroeschell Boiler NOW DO IT TODAY

Kroeschell vs. Cast Iron Boilers

Over 1500 Cast Iron Boilers were replaced by the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler during the past six years. It is a common occurrence for a Kroeschell to replace two to four cast iron boilers at a single place; this is the CENTRAL HEATING SYSTEM PLAN, and has saved many florists hundreds of dollars per season in fuel alone, besides a big saving in labor.

OUR HEATING ENGINEER has probably had more practical experience in this line than any other greenhouse man, and we place his experience at your service.

WHAT THE USERS SAY ABOUT KROESCHELL BOILERS

Cast Iron Boilers break down twice in four years; Moral: Use Kroeschell Boilers -- they are safe.

I bought a No. 2 boiler in 1902. Takes care of 7,000 sq. ft. of glass; would take care of 2,000 more. I have had a cast iron boiler, but it broke down twice in four years—always in the coldest weather. It broke down Dec. 29, 1904, and I lost all my stock in consequence. I have now two No. 2 Kroeschell Boilers and do not worry about their breaking down. GRANT NEWPORT, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

LASALLE, ILL.—There is a good field for a greenhouse or nursery in this city. There are two floral shops but they handle hardly anything but cut flowers. Additional information may be had by writing M. L. H. Odea of the LaSalle Commercial Association.

DEVON, PA.—Florists and residents of this vicinity have organized the Horticultural Society of Devon, with M. J. Bray as president. It is proposed to hold several flower shows, and A. Stanley Stanford, proprietor of Devon Inn, has kindly offered the use of the spacious ball room of the inn for the exhibitions. It is intended to award prizes for the best exhibits and committees have been appointed on flowers, vegetables and fruits.

Mastica is elastic and tenacious, admits of expansion and contraction. Putty becomes hard and brittle. Broken glass easily removed without breaking of other glass, as occurs with hard putty. Lasts longer than putty. Easy to apply.

This is the Number Three Bench. It is inexpensive; goes up quickly.

About Our Benches

We make four distinct kinds of benches for growers' use. Their cost is low, as all parts are cut to fit by machinery, and they can be put up in half the time it takes to put up those you make yourself. Right now is re-benching time — the time to order some one of the four.

Number One is best grade of dressed cypress throughout.

Number Two is made exactly like Number One, excepting it is made of a cheaper grade of undressed cypress known as "common."

Number Three is the cheapest of the four. Pecky cypress is used.

Number Four is a combination iron and cypress bench that is a winner in every sense of the word.

All four are fully illustrated and described in our new catalog. Send for it.

In it you will find a goodly lot of other things besides benches that will be of special interest to you just now.

"LEST YOU FORGET"

We want you to know that we make a wood gutter, and a good one, too. It combines all the good points of other wood gutters. "AND THEN SOME."

Note that the condensation and drip run down the sides and sloping bottom to a drip pan placed under the gutter where it makes no shade.

We know it will do that, for we have tried it. This gutter lends itself to an outside wall, as an eave, most admirably.

Every Once in a While Some Grower Gets a Notion That We Are Slow in Turning Out His Materials.

He tells us about it in rather plain language. Sometimes he even gets a little excited. He seems to think there is nothing doing unless the chips and sawdust are flying in everybody's eyes. He loses sight of the fact that hastily turned out materials must of necessity mean mistakes without number. Such mistakes must be corrected on the job, causing no end of delays and extra expense. Nail this fact down good and hard in your memory box, that any unnecessary time we may seem to be taking at our factories in perfecting our materials, is more than made up by the ease and speed with which all our materials can be erected.

You win in the end—and win big. Five carloads of materials and only two bolt holes wrong, is one of our recent records.

L. & B.'s materials are dependable—that's the point.

ROYAL INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION

Held at the Chelsea Hospital Grounds, London, Eng., May 22-30, 1912.

Trees and Shrubs*.

Apart from the fine exhibits of rhododendrons and azaleas, there were several groups of ornamental flowering trees and shrubs, some in the tents, others in the open air, flanking the broad pathways, or placed in advantageous position where they could not fail to be seen by visitors. The principal trade exhibits came from Sander & Sons, St. Albans and Bruges, who had one of the finest collections of sweet bay trees that has ever been seen in London and for which they received the gold medal. The plants were all in large tubs, and stood in many cases up to 15 feet in height. They were trained in various ways, pyramidal, cylindrical, from the base to apex, others being standards and half-standards with globular, conical and pyramidal heads, the foliage in all cases being of a deep and healthy green. Veitch & Sons also had an exhibit of several bay trees, in addition to which they staged in the "educational" tent one of the most interesting and varied collections of cross-grafted trees and shrubs that has ever been seen at any exhibition.
Over 80 different examples grown in pots were staged to show both stock and graft, and at least a dozen different natural orders of plants were represented. The experiments were carried out both ways, that is to say, that the kind used as a stock in one case was used as the graft in another. Thus the oak was grafted on the sweet chestnut and the sweet chestnut was grafted on the oak. The rosaceæ and oleaceæ were in great evidence, but conifera, sapindaceæ, leguminosæ, cor-naceæ, euphorbiaceæ and ericaceæ, etc., also contributed to the general interest.
Fisher, Son & Sibray, Sheffield, in addition to winning the first prize for a group filling 400 square feet, also had a fine miscellaneous lot including acers, oaks, sumachs, beeches, ailanthus, diervillas, vitis, etc.

R. C. Notcutt, Woodbridge, Suffolk, came second in the competitive class with a good group in which kalmias, pyrus, olearias, cytisus, syringas and many other kinds were represented.

Paul & Son, The Old Nurseries, Cheshunt, took first prize for 36 ornamental leaved trees and shrubs, in which the golden oak (Quercus Concordia), acer atropurpureum, Acer campestre Schwedleri, Pyrus Aria aurea, Alnus imperialis laciniata, and others played a conspicuous part. The Hon. Vicary Gibbs came second in this class and Mr. Chas. Turner, Slough, third.

In the classes for lilacs, Paul & Sons took the first prize for 24 kinds distinct, their plants including such varieties as La Tour d'Auvergne, Miss Willmott, President Carnot, Alphonse
Lavallee, etc.

Carlton White, London, took the honors for 200 feet group of lilacs, which included the best varieties. It may be added that some fine masses of cut lilac were displayed in the Dutch section in ornamental wicker baskets and gave one a good idea of floral arrangement as practiced by Dutch florists.

Another lilac exhibitor, M. F. Stepman, Mohlenbeck, Brussels, carried off the third prize for a group of 300 square feet. Among his best kinds were the lovely pure white Reine Elizabeth; Princesse Clementine, a magnificent double white; Negro, a deep colored form, and Jacques Callop, another fine white.

L. R. Russell, Richmond, had a fine collection of ornamental shrubs chiefly remarkable for the many variegated gold and silver forms of tree and other ivies, euonymus, elæagnus, besides vitis in variety, and bamboos.

R. C. Notcutt, Woodbridge, had a mixed group of acers, maidenhair trees (Ginkgo), variegated dogwoods, etc., and Jackman & Son also had an effective lot of ornamental trees and shrubs.

In the conifer section the principal exhibitors were J. Waterer & Son, Bag-shot; Jackman & Son; J. Jefferies & Sons, Cirencester, and H. J. Elves, Colesborne, Gloster, all of whom made fine groups that compelled attention.
Between them many fine species and varieties were displayed.

*Our correspondent's account of the great international exhibition was begun in the issue of June 8, page 1177, and continued in the issue of June 15, page 1230.

In the Japanese maple classes a very keen struggle took place between J. Waterer & Sons, Fisher, Son & Sibray, and Fromow & Sons, of Chiswick. The first, second and third prizes were awarded in the order mentioned. Taking the exhibits as a whole, they showed what extraordinary variation exists among this particular class of maples and there were well over 300 quite different varieties exhibited, including the finest cut-leaved forms as well as those with fewer dissections.

Special mention must be made of the Hon. Vicary Gibbs' exhibit of new and rare trees and shrubs, mostly of Chinese origin, and raised from seeds sent over by Mr. Wilson, who is now connected with the Harvard Arboretum. For a private garden there is none other to compare with that of Mr. Gibbs for richness and variety and his collection is said to contain specimens that are not even yet at Kew. One of the most noticeable plants in his group was Hydrangea Sargentii. It stood from three to four feet high, has densely woolly pale green stems, and oblong ovate leaves over a foot long, with coarsely toothed margins. The flower heads are over a foot across, the corymbs reminding one forcibly of the cow parsnip (Heracleum) in appearance. The fertile flowers are small and lilac in color and are in great abundance, only a few sterile white bracts of good size being around the circumference. Another plant likely to become popular with the hybridist is Deutzia Schneideriana, with leaves two to four inches long and pure white flowers over an inch across. It is much too early to say whether these Chinese novelties are likely to become good garden plants or not. Many of them are very rare at present and it is not known whether they are sufficiently hardy for the British climate.

Topiary work was in great evidence from Cutbush & Sons and J. Piper & Sons, Bayswater. Numerous examples of clipped boxes, yews, etc., were shown by both firms, and their very quaintness always attracted a good deal of attention. The last named firm also had a fine rock garden display.

Barr & Sons, Covent Garden, James Carter & Co., and the Yokohama Nursery Co. were the chief exhibitors of pigmy Japanese trees and shrubs in ornamental bowls and vases. They included specimens said to be over hundreds of years old of thuyas, quercus, cupressus, acers, larches, etc., and judging by the way these plants have increased in London shows, there must be a flourishing trade done in them.

While touching on trees and shrubs, special mention must be made of a very fine variety of Leptospermum scoparium called Nicholi, shown by the Rev. A. T. Boscawen, Cornwall. Plants about four feet high with wiry stems and slender leaves were wreathed in deep blood red blossoms, with a conspicuous blackish center. An award of merit was given this plant. Another variety, Boscaweni, has larger flowers, pure white, with the blood red calyx lobes alternating between the corolla lobes, and giving a distinct appearance.

Azaleas and Rhododendrons.

Besides the Indian azaleas already referred to, magnificent displays were made by Cutbush & Son, Southgate, with varieties of A. mollis and sinensis and A. pontica. In the class for 300 square feet of mollis and sinensis they took the gold medal and £7; in the class for pontica varieties and hybrids they beat Jackman & Sons, winning the gold medal and £4, the second prize being a silver cup and £3. For 30 A. mollis, Messrs. Cutbush took first prize (silver cup). There were numerous varieties, clear, yet vivid in color, that made one of the most brilliant features of the show and even attracted water color artists to paint some of them in the earlier hours of the day.

In the rhododendron classes John Waterer & Sons, Bagshot, took first prize (gold medal and £7) for a group covering 500 square feet, Himalayan varieties excluded. Fletcher Brothers, Ottershaw, Chertsey, came a good second and secured a gold medal and £4. Many fine varieties were to be seen in both groups, but mention may be made of Doncaster, a brilliant deep crimson scarlet; Helen Paul, a kind of miniature Pink Pearl; Bagshot Ruby, deeper and brighter if possible than Doncaster; Corona, lovely bell-shaped flowers; and Gomer Waterer, clear pinkish purple wash on a pure white ground.

Diseased German Iris.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

A few years ago I got some German Iris from Europe and the following spring they showed signs of disease. The plants are in very good condition, especially the roots, which I examined very closely. The trouble lies in the bud. Just as it is ready to open it withers up and appears like tissue paper. It just laps over and will not open at all. The light lavender shade of the early variety is the worst.

Ohio.

GARDENER.

The light lavender early flowering Iris is probably I. Florentina, the plant from which the Orris-root of commerce is obtained, and not a typical German Iris. The trouble named is unusual, but is probably due to lack of healthy root action. All the rhizomatous section need a very sandy soil to thrive well. This enables the roots to ripen well in the autumn months. We often see trouble follow after a wet autumn, as we had last year, even to the rotting of the rhizomes. I do not think it is disease or this would be visible. Transplant to a sunny situation in August next, adding plenty of sand around and under the clumps. There is a disease that attacks the foliage soon after flowering, and this seems incurable as we cannot get spraying liquids to stick to the foliage. It eventually weakens the plants so they do not bloom well. Possibly your plants were affected with this leaf-disease last summer. E. O. ORPET.

MIDDLETON, CONN.—The collapse of the iron framework of a new greenhouse being built just south of A. N. Pierson's main plant in Cromwell, Sunday, June 9, resulted in a loss of $5,000. It is thought the accident was caused by the high wind. About four hundred feet of framework was already up.

PLANT NOTES.

Calceolarias.

A plant that always attracts attention and is as decorative as a cineraria or other plants of that kind, and yet but little grown, is the calceolaria. The culture is very similar to that of the cineraria and is fully as easy. The seeds should be sown at once and shaded until they have produced one or two leaves when the shade should be made lighter. As soon as large enough they should be potted into small pots and shifted along into larger sizes as fast as is required. They should, as soon as well established, be given a light, airy location not shady enough for them to become drawn, but if in the full sunlight will have to be watched closely that they do not get dry. They will require cool quarters during the winter, if nice stocky plants are desired, and under this treatment fine 6-inch pot plants may be had in bloom in early spring that will surely attract attention. For the last potting a good rich soil will be required and when they begin to bloom watering with liquid manure will be beneficial. Like the cineraria they are quickly ruined by aphid and constant fumigation will be necessary. Many growers stand the plants on tobacco stems which are renewed as the strength is lost.

Freelias.

A crop of freesia, or a few plants in pots in bloom, at Christmas is a valuable asset on that holiday. In order to have them in bloom at that time the bulbs should be planted by July 1. Select the large strong bulbs, and by careful inspection many will be found on which the root eyes are beginning to swell. These will make the earliest blooming plants, and this selecting will produce plants that will all bloom at the same time. The bulbs should be planted in a good soil enriched with well rotted manure with a good proportion of sand, but no fresh manure, it is a well understood principle that bulbs of all kinds do not grow well in soil full of fresh manure. Eight to ten large bulbs in a 6-inch pot will give the best results. The pots should be well watered and placed in a dark, cool place until the shoots appear above the ground, when they should be given a light location. As soon as the growths get tall enough they should be staked and tied. By continual early selection of the bulbs, and keeping the earliest separate, an early strain can be assured.

Bougainvilleas.

The plants of bougainvillea that are through blooming should be cut back into shape and potted in preparation for the next season's growth. Much depends upon the summer care of all hard-wooded stock if nice specimens are to be grown. They should be plunged outside in a frame or placed in full sun in a light airy house. Outside culture is far preferable for all this class of stock in order that a good strong growth, well furnished with foliage, may be assured. Be sure that they never get too dry, the great danger of all hard-wooded stock is letting it dry out, for it does not show it as quickly as the softer growing plants but the check is more severe and the plants seldom fully recover from it. The young stock rooted earlier should be placed in a similar location, and kept well pinched back into shape, until enough shoots have been obtained to insure a good shapely plant, when they can be allowed to grow freely, but any extra strong leaders are better cut back during the season. Any chance flowers that show should be picked off at once, that a good strong stocky plant may be obtained and the strength all retained for that purpose.

Nephrolepis.

Probably no plant that the florist grows gives more return for the labor spent in its culture, or the space that it occupies than the Boston fern and its various sports. The old Boston is still, however, the easiest to handle and grow. The plants should be repotted every year, and with good treatment are sure of making nice plants. Any plants that are in poor condition can be divided and with the young stock planted in a bench of good rich soil. The house should be shaded enough to assure of good color on the foliage but not heavy enough to prevent the house being maintained at a good high temperature. During the day the house should stand at about 80° with a little ventilation which should be closed down before the sun leaves the houses. The plants can be set six inches apart and the soil should be two parts loam, one part leaf mold, and one part rotted manure. The house should be frequently syringed to keep a moist atmosphere. Under these conditions fine plants can be produced from young stock in three months. In September they should be lifted and placed in 6-inch pots, if single specimens are desired, or three or four plants can be placed in a 9-inch or 10-inch pot if larger plants are wanted. In lifting the plants they can be cut around about two inches from the crown, and lifted with a trowel leaving the runners in the bench, if the place they occupy is not wanted at once. The runners will immediately break into small plants which can be placed in flats for young stock for the next season. The finer varieties of this fern such as Whitmani do not submit to the lifting and potting as well as the old Boston and better plants can be obtained by potting along into larger pots as may be required. The only insects that trouble these ferns are the brown scale, and the plants should be kept clean from these either by washing, or spraying with aphine, or a weak nicotine solution.

Oleanders.

A plant that does not receive the attention that it should is the oleander. While there probably would not be a large demand for this plant, yet it is an old time favorite and well grown specimens in bloom are a valuable addition to a porch or lawn. They are too often so sadly neglected that they get unshapely and far from being an ornament, but a little attention to trimming them into shape after they get through blooming will keep them in good condition. They can be wintered in any cool quarters, and if brought into the heat and light in early spring will be full of bloom in June and July and a valuable decorative plant. The cuttings root easily and at any time when the plant is in growth, and grow very rapidly for a hard-wooded plant. Any florist carrying a line of assorted stock should include a few of these in the variety which he cultivates. The only insect which troubles them is the mealy bug, but a good frequent hard syringing will soon dislodge them.

Poinsettias.

The propagation of poinsettias should be pushed to the utmost at this time, for it is the plants that are rooted early in July that make the best single specimens at Christmas. Those that are rooted later in July and during August will make fine plants for pans, placing four to eight plants in a 6-inch or 8-inch pan, for they will be much shorter than those rooted early in July. The plants that were rooted earlier should now be growing nicely and should be shifted into larger pots as soon as they require it; under no circumstances allow them to become pot-bound until the bracts begin to set in November. They should be placed in the bright sun as soon as strong enough to endure it, that the growth may be short and sturdy and the leaves as close together as is possible. A long, drawn plant grown in the shade, with the leaves far apart, is not the typical plant for the holidays and does not meet with approval.

Schizocodon Soldanelloides.

Ever since the introduction of this interesting plant about 20 years ago, by the late Capt. Torrens of Boston Manor, Hayes, it has been one of the chief subjects of interest to lovers of hardy plants, according to the London Gardeners' Chronicle. Those who have been successful in its culture can thoroughly appreciate its beautiful, bronzy foliage and charming pink flowers, which are heavily fringed. The plant belongs to a small, though most interesting Natural Order, Diapensiaceae, members of which are found in widely-separated countries—North America and Japan. Shortia is a well-known genus belonging to the Order. There are two species of Shortia in cultivation: one, S. galacifolia, only found in North Carolina; the other, S. uniflora, only found in Japan. There is also said to be a third species, not yet introduced, which is found in China. Another popular garden plant is the North American galaxaphylla, with its large, beautifully-bronzed leaves, which are so much used in table decoration; while Diapensia lapponica, which gives its name to the Order, is an Arctic plant of prostrate habit, with pinky-white flowers. The last is a difficult plant to cultivate in the south.

Schizocodon soldanelloides is of tufted habit, with rounded leaves on petioles about two inches long, and the plant spreads by means of underground runners, which produce rosettes of leaves at their extremities. The Soldanella-like flowers are produced in racemes of three or four, on stems about three or four inches in height. The plant requires the conditions and treatment which apply to Shortia, namely, a cool, peaty soil, in a sheltered position, protected from excessive sunshine and cold winds. It is an ideal plant for the Alpine house when grown in pots or pans, in a frame with a northern aspect, but it resents disturbance at the roots.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—E. C. Matthes, of Woodside, L. I. N. Y., who recently purchased a farm at Middlebush, has opened a flower store at 96 French street. Mr. Matthes intends to erect a number of greenhouses on his Middlebush farm.

The Flower Cuff Above Elbow.

This is meeting a popular demand at dancing parties and is made on a band of wide stiff ribbon on which the flowers are sewed and is tied to the cuff of dress just above elbow with a jaunty stiff bow loop. Sweet peas, cornflowers, marguerites or any of the smaller flowers lend themselves prettily to this arrangement.

Flowers for Those Lost at Sea.

The recent wreck of the mammoth steamship Titanic when she crashed against an iceberg and carried more than 1,500 persons to the bottom of the sea was the cause of a report which appeared in THE AMERICAN FLORIST in the issue of April 27, stating that the Masons of Chicago had forwarded a large floral wreath on a White Star liner to be deposited in the water near where so many of their brethren had lost their lives. It seemed at once that it was ridiculous to drop into the water something that would be heavy enough to immediately sink below the surface, and this was so considered by those having the matter in charge, and the beautiful design was used at a memorial service held at the temple and although it was eventually sent out to sea and thrown on the water, yet the flowers were removed and statne and other flowers that had keeping qualities were placed in their stead and with it loose flowers were forwarded on the steamer from New York which were scattered on the water over the graves of the brave men who so gallantly stood back and sacrificed their lives allowing the women on the ship to be saved. This certainly was a far better plan than to drop a heavy floral design and more beautifully betokens the sentiment which is universally adopted of placing flowers upon the graves of departed relatives and friends.

The placing of flowers upon the ocean as a testimonial in the memory of those who had been lost at sea was first adopted in the beginning of this century when in decorating the graves of the soldiers on Memorial day, those in charge of the services at Washington cast upon the water flowers in honor of those who gave up their lives in the navy, and this has been adopted in many of the cities on the seaboard and has been made a very interesting and important part of the programme of the Memorial day services after decorating the graves of those who died in the service of the country in the army to then proceed to the ocean and in honor of the naval heroes cast flowers upon the water, and in some places boats have been decorated and laden with flowers and then cast adrift to float upon the water in memory of the sailors. This was done in honor of those who were drowned when the ill-fated battleship Maine went down in the harbor of Havana, and this year when this battleship was raised and taken out to sea and sunk, upon the water where the boat disappeared were strewn flowers in honor of those who lost their lives when she was first sunk in the sea.

Nashville Designs.

The funeral designs illustrated here-with were made by the Joy Floral Co. for the funeral of the late Overton Lea, a prominent citizen and retired capitalist of Nashville, Tenn. Mr. Lea was the father of Senator Luke Lea. He died in Philadelphia, where he had gone for treatment. The flowers at his funeral surpassed anything ever before seen in this city, many beautiful tributes coming from Senator Lea's colleagues in the United States senate. In addition the other local florists were taxed to the limit. The Joy Floral Co. alone supplied five wagon loads of flowers. M. C. D.

Pot and Soil For Asters.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

Kindly inform me what size pot is required to grow asters in. Do they require rich soil? J. F. Ontario.

If it is the intention to grow these plants to be sold in the pots as pot plants the 5 or 6-inch pots are large enough. They do not require a very rich soil to start out with, but as soon as they become well rooted in the pots they should be treated regularly once a week to a liberal application of liquid manure. C. ### Among The Roses in Europe.

Address delivered by Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa., before the American Rose Society at Detroit, January 11, 1912.

It is a real pleasure to live over again in thought the experience of last summer among the rose growers and in the rose gardens of western Europe. I shall try tonight to tell you what I saw of roses and rose growing among the peoples, in the public parks and among the rose growers themselves in the countries of France, Germany, the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, England and Ireland; and to tell you, so far as I can, what they told me. If, in passing, we should take a look at some other phase of horticulture as produced by the Europeans, I trust you will not feel it departing too far from the subject in hand, and possibly a glimpse of the life among the people who do or who do not have roses of their own will serve as a setting of this description of our co-workers on the other side of the water.

Furthermore, may I ask you not to be disappointed if what you hear has to do mainly with roses as produced for open ground culture. Although I think I came in contact with the leading rosarians in each of the countries above mentioned I saw comparatively little of the roses being forced for the cut flower market. To be sure the summer climate in some of these countries permits of such perfect blooms that in England, for example, I recall having visited one prominent grower who was just making a shipment of some thousands, I think, all red blooms for a fete day at the university of either Oxford or Cambridge. All these were being cut from the open ground early in July. But I hope you will be interested in hearing somewhat of the conditions that obtain with those men abroad who are enthusiastically devoting the best of their lives to producing such roses as will meet the demand of our cut flower trade. For example, I just missed meeting one enterprising American rose grower, who was accustomed, every other year, at least, to spend six weeks in the homes and gardens of these particular hybridizers, in watching, comparing, discarding and selecting a rose or roses that he hopes will be a reputation maker in America. And right here comes in another point, which those getting roses from abroad, must bear in mind; that roses that thrive splendidly, in Ireland for example, fail in America and vice versa. Another one of the most prominent members of the American Rose Society was surprised to find in Europe one of his own pet introductions far surpassing anything he had ever seen it do at home.

Ocean travel has become so comparatively common that you will hardly wish to linger long upon our seagoing experiences. Festivities in connection with the coronation year were at their height soon after our arrival and while of keen interest, the rose was both king and queen for us; therefore we turned our steps immediately toward the continent. Tonight, however, with your permission, I would propose considering first the English rose growers and their products; also those of Ireland; and then, afterwards, since it has become quite the habit of enterprising people to cross the channel in flying machines, we will trip directly to Paris, then to southern France, across the lakes and mountain peaks of Switzerland, come down the Rhine into Germany, stop for a day with the great Lemoine, who has since died, and before we say "Good-bye" for home, I ask you to drink with me from the fountain of inspiration that comes from visiting what I suppose is one of the most beautiful and certainly the most complete and perfect rose gardens which I ever saw.

Last summer in England was a very dry one, vegetation suffered and the roses too until late in the season, for I understand the fall shows were a very great success.

Let us go first to Colchester. We arrive at seven in the morning. Nearest the station is D. Prior & Son, the old gentleman having retired, leaving affairs in charge of his son who is manager, with Mr. Heath, the foreman of sixty men. A half mile away are Benj. R. Cant & Sons, among the largest of the growers, I think, in England. They report 100,000 tree roses in 200 different varieties; they had sixty men at work on fifty acres, with a very interesting trial garden showing not less than four or five hundred varieties, the most of them blooming luxuriously. They were also growing climbing roses under glass even in July, and another item of interest came to my attention as I approached their office through the fields when I found the men had just left for breakfast after an hour and a half, or more, at work; and one old gentleman laborer, too lame to walk far with the rest, was eating his breakfast from a pail. He outlined their day's work, which is quite as long as ours, with this difference, that the men left home and started work earlier but stopped oftener through the day with a lower wage than is customary on our side.

Furthermore, rose growing seems to run in families. We cross the road and two fields and come immediately to the establishment of Frank Cant & Co., another many times winner of the coveted trophy awarded by the National Rose Society for the champion rose grower of the year. Mr. Cant is mayor of Colchester at present, and as such had recently taken part in the many processions held in honor of the coronation, so that my photograph of him was about number 56 in less than half as many days. Mr. Nevard and his men referred to Mr. Cant as "The Governor" but this is the customary way of designating the proprietor of all the establishments there.

to inquire especially regarding an order being made ready for the Gardens of the Royal Palace, whom they had as one of their best customers. Two stations beyond, at Chestnut, is another firm, Paul & Son, George Paul, proprietor. Among all these growers one is impressed by the fact that they are handling two or three times as many varieties of roses as are the largest dealers on this side of the water.

Enroute to Ireland we will stop at Somerset at Kelway & Sons and see their splendid assortment of hardy perennials with their sample perennial border for the benefit of their patrons who visit them; and their acres upon acres of peonies, which are so beautifully reproduced in color in their 342-page catalogue. Reaching Liverpool it is a very small matter to take boat at 10 p. m., and if you are an early bird you will be up in time to see the glory of the morning light on the beautiful harbor of Belfast, a fitting birthplace for the ocean liners like the Olympic and the Titanic, the latter of which we passed still stripped and being finished and furnished near her launching place.

If you would see roses abroad at their best do not leave out Belfast but arrange in your going to avoid arriving on Orangemen's day. The American racket on the Fourth of July seems mild in comparison. I had not more than reached my hotel, about 10 a. m., when I was startled by strange sounds outside my window and soon learned that it came from the gathering clans, preparing for the Orangemen's parade. The most memorable feature of that parade, after the great variety of banners and the crowds and the Scotch bagpipes and some really good bands, were the drummers and drums—such as you when a boy may have dreamt of. Their size in my recollection is six feet in diameter, but I suppose that is exaggerated; it took two men to carry them as a rule, and the principal competition of the day seemed to be between these men with their drums, each striving to outbeat the other. The procession was about two hours

ENTRANCE TO NATIONAL ROSE SOCIETY'S SHOW, LONDON, ENGLAND.

London is a most convenient center from which to visit Colchester, Canterbury, the home of George Mount & Sons; Farnham in Surrey, where are S. Bide & Son, specialists in sweet peas and other horticultural lines, as well as an extensive rose business; and most interesting and quite as important as any is Waltham Cross, the century-old place of Wm. Paul and Son, now in charge of Arthur William Paul, whose photograph you will see later as one of the judges at the Bagatelle. During my visit he was interrupted once or twice by his foreman long passing our window enroute to a countryside place, where they spent the day in holiday fashion, repeating the same uproar on their return at night.

There are three great rose growers near Belfast and each one is the best one. Across the street from my hotel was the town store of Alexander Dickson & Sons of Newtonards. They are probably best known to American growers. But of similar prominence there, is the firm of Messrs. Hugh Dickson, the Royal Nurseries of Belfast and the this year winner of the national trophy, and thus declared champion rose grower of the year in the British Isles. The proprietors in both firms are grandsons of the original Alexander Dickson. As you well know, both firms are doing excellent work in producing, almost annually, new roses of unquestioned merit. In Belfast you will find almost everyone knows Samuel McGredy & Sons also. The present proprietor is a cousin of the Dicksons. He does his own hybridizing; he also has a son at college, so that it looks as if there was good promise of good roses to come from Ireland for many years yet, for certainly the climate is what they like, the soil is great and they do grow and are even pruned so that every curl is as perfect as the human touch can make it.

I expect that there is a value in these English flower shows to the prize winner that we cannot fully appreciate; pictures of the trophy are published in their catalogues, a list of the prizes won is played up most prominently in their advertising literature, and unless a grower can show some prizes to his credit his chances for good business are slim. So you see the rose show in England is a very important part of the business; they not only help in advertising the grower but they help enormously to educate the growers and with a huge bouquet in the center; smaller ones around the table, with boutonniere or place roses.

Royalty has the first peep and a real regal peep it is; so we cannot wonder that our fellow growers in England spend time and thought and money and spare no pains in applying manure water to the backward plants and by shading the bleaching sun from some promising blossoms and by inventing every device that will help win the trophy. One other point: that all these shows may work harmoniously, the National Rose Society of England, as I understand, gives its support and co-operation to the local rose societies, and what I believe members of the American Rose Society need to learn is the part played there by the amateur, men of leisure, men of means, society women and many more join with the professional growers, until among numbers of them rose growing becomes a hobby, and their contribution to the success of these shows forms a very important factor, a point which I think our American Rose Society cannot longer afford to overlook. To be sure the interest among the English in horticulture has reached a much higher development than in America. For example, at the annual show of the Royal Horticultural Society held at Olympia, this photograph was taken ten minutes after the doors had been opened and I think there were no less than 2,000 people already in the hall; people whose knowledge of flowers and whose intelligence regarding their own horticultural requirements was evidenced by their close study and deep interest. They were there with note books in hand, already placing their orders for the following season. And here again the value of shows to our English brothers is apparent. And do you wonder that the continental growers publish catalogues in English, send their young men to England to learn their methods and the language, and are making each year a stronger bid for business from the English amateur?

magnificent flowers. I noticed on the lawns around their homes a real riot of roses; Mrs. Roosevelt, for example, a whole bed of them had blossoms twice as big as any I had ever seen growing in the open here. Caroline Testout was quite as fine, if not finer than we have it in Portland, Ore., so that when one was introduced to a new unnamed seedling, and the price of $500 or $1,000 put on it, the question that immediately claimed one's attention is "How will these roses do in America?" But it has to be tried.

I met Alexander Dickson in London at one of the shows, and he told me he had crossed the Irish Sea eleven times in the past fourteen days, going home to cut and make ready his flowers and going back to England to attend the various shows, for in rose season they are scheduled by the National Society to avoid conflict as much as possible between the more important cities, and the prominent growers are usually represented at not less than a dozen or twenty different shows in the early summer. It is tiresome work; the men go out at 4 o'clock in the morning and have orders to cut everything in sight, but this is not the beginning, for weeks in advance they have been watching, watering, shading, and they even go to the trouble of using a bit of candle wick to tie up the petals of a promising bud so that it will not open too soon. On the day of the show or the day before all these carefully watched and nurtured blossoms are cut, brought into the packing shed where the proprietor is busy for hours in simply selecting, discarding and making up the assortment for the show. He usually sends twice as many as are required for the entries and again discards all that are unworthy. When all are in place, and possibly a half hour before the judges are due, the roses that have been tied up with candle wick are freed so that the petals are allowed to open back the amateurs. Go with me to the National Rose Show held in Regent's Park this past year. These illustrations will show the crowd of people who attended. Automobiles lined up, coming and going, a constant line of not less than fifty or sixty people awaiting entrance throughout the entire afternoon to the tent of new seedling roses, and this tent but a small, though very important part of hundreds upon hundreds of entries. A military band in attendance made the affair still more attractive; society counts upon it as their day. Another feature that appealed to me as most particularly suggestive and quite worthy of impression, where possible, was the tent devoted to roses for use in table decorations where there were special combinations worked out. On this table would be a study of yellow

Annual Convention, Boston, Mass., June 12-14, 1912.

Business Meeting.

At the thirty-seventh annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen held at Boston, Mass., June 12-14, a preliminary report of which appeared in our issue of June 15, page 1268, Mayor Fitzgerald's welcoming address had to be postponed until the second day, owing to some duties he had to perform in connection with the elevated railroad strike, but it was none the less cordial and to the point. He expressed the hope that something may be done to stimulate an interest in agriculture in the American youth, and stated that he had caused to be introduced before the legislature a bill for the establishment in the Metropolitan district of an agricultural school, and hoped to have a school of this kind established in the near future. He said further: "With the cost of fruit advancing 20 per cent in a year, and the cost of vegetables constantly increasing, it is deplorable to note that there has been no increase in the acreage devoted to the raising of farm products in this State. I have noticed when I have ridden out Sundays in my automobile around the country hereabout the immense waste of soil. There are thousands of acres that are seemingly abandoned. One would think that with potatoes, for instance, as high as they have been, that many people might profitably engage in the cultivation of them."

The annual address of President Dayton dwelt to a great extent upon legislation to prevent the spread of insect pests and diseases on nursery stock. "We are told," he said, "that automobiles, lunch baskets, outer garments, in fact almost anything passing through certain sections, may carry dangerous insects to another state or section, which may develop to such proportions that that section, or even the entire state, may be quarantined and the shipment of nursery stock prohibited. Under such circumstances it seems to me imperative, not only that we impress on every grower of stock the necessity for eternal vigilance, but also that it is up to him, by every means in his power, individually and collectively, to help secure such legislation as will enable his state not only to inspect, but to destroy all infested stock. Our body ought to be able to help formulate, pass and enforce such laws, and they should be practically uniform in every state."

That nurserymen generally are keenly alive to the importance of this subject was shown by the lively discussion elicited by the report of the Legislative Committee. Mr. William Pitkin presented a report for states east of the Mississippi River, signed by a majority of the committee, also a minority report written by Mr. Irving Rouse, who was unable to attend. Mr. Pitkin's report dwelt on the efforts made by the committee to secure proper legislation. The bill now before Congress, providing that it shall be unlawful to import nursery stock until a permit has been issued therefor by the Secretary of Agriculture, was deemed by the committee to be as good a bill as could be secured at this time. At any rate, the committee feared that if this were not accepted, there might be even worse legislation. Mr. Pitkin called attention to the fact that there will probably not be any legislation on this subject during the present session of Congress. The minority report of Mr. Rouse practically favored abolishing all inspection of imported stock. A motion by Mr. Morey that this report be accepted was lost. Mr. Peter Youngers, of Nebraska, gave a report on legislative matters west of the Mississippi, dealing almost entirely with efforts at getting test cases instituted and court rulings on laws now in existence in several western states. Up to this time no rulings of importance have been obtained.

Thos. B. Meehan.

Pres.-Elect American Association of Nurserymen.

At the suggestion of Mr. Pitkin, a committee was appointed to draw up a resolution formulating the views and wishes of the convention in regard to further action of the legislative committee, and toward the close of the convention the following was adopted:

RESOLVED. That the report of the Legislative Committee on matters of Federal Legislation be accepted and that their endorsement of House Bill No. 24119 be approved, and, further, that the new Legislative Committee be instructed to co-operate with the United States Department of Agriculture in urging the speedy passage of the bill referred to, or any other bill not materially changing the provisions thereof. The convention further voted the sum of one thousand dollars to be expended in the further prosecution of test cases, particularly the case of Mr. W. C. Reid, of Vincennes, Indiana, against the Colorado authorities for unwarranted destruction of a carload of nursery stock.

The Committee on Root Gall reported that in the states of Alabama, California, Georgia, Iowa, Montana, Minnesota, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Texas there had been test plats established in the leading nurseries for the purposes of determining whether or not root gall is injurious to trees. The results of these experiments will be tabulated and presented at future conventions for action.

A brief history of the nursery business in the West was given by Mr. D. S. Lake, of Shenandoah, Iowa, who began business there in 1886. At that time money was plentiful and there was a great demand for nursery stock. First class apples, 5 to 6 feet, wholesaled at $180 to $200 per thousand, and second class at $125. Mr. Lake had paid as high as $350 per thousand for first class pear, and $300 per thousand for first class cherry. Calipers, tree diggers and storage buildings were unknown. Trees were graded by height, tree digging was done with spades and trees for the spring trade remained in the nursery row and were taken up and trenched in after the frost was out of the ground. With the panic of 1873 and drouth and grasshoppers in Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa, the nursery trade became greatly demoralized. But from 1890 on there has been great improvement, and the business is now on a very substantial basis.

Prof. Worsham, who has for some time been identified with the Conservation movement, asked that a representative of the American Association of Nurserymen be appointed as a member of the Advisory Board of the National Conservation Congress, and a motion authorizing the president to make this appointment was carried.

"Should Nurserymen Grow More Varieties?" was the subject of a paper by S. Mendelson Meehan, who gave his views from the standpoint of a mail order business and local suburban trade.

A supplemental report was handed in by the Committee on Transportation, calling attention to the fact that bills of lading should now be stamped, or printed, "dormant trees," "dormant plants" or "dormant shrubbery," as the case may be, as all of the classifications are adopting the uniform classification schedule of nursery stock, which provides for "dormant" and "not dormant," the dormant taking the cheaper rates. On any shipments simply reading "trees," "shrubbery" or "nursery stock," the agents will always bill it at "not dormant" rates, thereby causing the nurserymen to pay higher rates.

The Committee on Standardization of Grades reported that there had been printed in the trade journals a uniform set of grades to be adopted by the Association, one month previous to the meeting of the convention. The standards so printed and submitted by the committee were unanimously adopted.

The Publicity Committee, in their report, said: "It has been made evident to the members of the committee through the investigations they have conducted, that a serious crisis will very shortly confront the trade, unless radical steps are taken to place it before the people of the country in its proper light. It is equally clear to the committee members that such steps may be taken as will render the publicity of every advertising nurseryman more productive of results than it has ever been, and insure a volume of business in proportion to selling expenses altogether out of proportion to that which now obtains. The committee feels that the work of the past year should be carried forward, and that such work, when placed before the members in bulletin form, will constitute a service of considerable importance and usefulness."

The committee further reported that its work had been handicapped by lack of funds, and a motion was carried increasing the membership of the committee to seven, and putting the sum of $500 at its disposal for carrying on the work.

Next Meeting at Portland, Ore.

For the first time in many years the selection of the next place of meeting brought forth no opposition nor discussion, and Portland, Oregon, was selected unanimously as the next meeting place.

The following officers were elected:

President, Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.

Vice President, J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.

Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.

Treasurer, C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y.

Executive Committee: Henry B. Chase, Huntsville, Ala.; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.; P. A. Dix, Salt Lake City, Utah.

It was thought by some that the time of meeting heretofore had been too early, and a resolution was adopted, authorizing the executive committee to fix the time at a later date in June, if thought advisable.

The newly elected president, Mr. Thomas B. Meehan, has attended the meetings of the American Association of Nurserymen for about thirty years, and has served in various capacities on committees and in some of the minor offices. He has also, for twenty-three years, been Secretary of the American Protective Association. The Meehan nurseries comprising some 250 acres devoted mainly to ornamental stock, were founded by the father, Mr. Thomas B. Meehan, Sr., in 1856, and the work is now being carried on by three sons. The wholesale part of the business is now being carried on by the present Thomas B. Meehan, at Dresher, just outside the city limits of Philadelphia.

It was pleasant to note among those present, both this year and last year at St. Louis, a woman "nurseryman," Miss Martha J. Lear, representing the Morris Nursery Company at West Chester, Pa. Miss Lear, besides her work in connection with the nursery, is also prominently identified with municipal improvement work and the Children's playground movement.

Social Features.

Much time was given to the social features of the convention. Many of the members brought their wives, and the beautiful parlors and lobby of Hotel Somerset were always crowded during the intermission with well-dressed people gathered in small social groups. The entertainments provided by the local committee were on a lavish scale. Of especial interest was an auto trip to Arnold Arboretum, where the party was welcomed by Mr. Jackson Dawson and Mr. E. H. Wilson, who both called attention to the great collection of hardy woody plants and trees collected from all over the globe and growing now to great perfection on ground that 40 years ago was still a wilderness. A beautiful sight was presented by the blooming of great masses of rhododendron and mountain laurel, extending for quite a distance along the banks of a little stream, a great forest of hemlock forming a dark green background. The Sargent estate, with its famous sunken garden was also visited, also Franklin Park, and Marine Park.

One afternoon was devoted to a trip around Boston Harbor, and a fish dinner at Nantasket Beach.

As many as could spare the time after the close of the convention went to South Framingham and Abington, where entertainment was provided by the nurseries located there.

Report on Exhibits.

The exhibits this year made up in quality what they may lack in quantity. Many varieties of rare conifers, shrubs and peonies were shown, while catalog makers and supply houses exhibited fine samples of their productions.

OBITUARY.

J. J. Harrison.

J. J. Harrison, president of the Storrs & Harrison Co. of Painesville, O., and an early and prominent member of the American Association of Nurserymen, died June 11, at the age of 83 years, at Eustis, Fla. The funeral services were held June 15 at Painesville. Mr. Harrison was English by birth, having come to this country in early youth with his parents. His early life was spent on the farm, but an injury compelled him to take up another line of work and after completing his education he went into the nursery business, traveling about the country as a tree top grafter. In 1858 Mr. Harrison established a nursery on his father's farm and a little later entered into a partnership with Jesse Storrs. Later the company was incorporated and is now a close corporation, the partners holding the stock. Almost from the start the Storrs & Harrison Co. became one of the most successful seed and plant firms in the country, and now deals extensively throughout the United States. Mr. Harrison had not been actively engaged in the work for about fifteen years, having retired on account of poor health, but still retained his position as president of the firm. A son and daughter survive.

Joseph Labo.

Joseph Labo, of Joliet, a well-to-do florist and active participant in the work of St. John's German Catholic church and the several fraternal societies to which he belonged, died suddenly at his home last Saturday, June 15 of cerebral hemorrhage. He had gone out to his greenhouses as usual at an early hour and when he returned to the house for breakfast, at 7:30, he fell and did not regain consciousness before his death, three hours later. The late Mr. Labo was 43 years of age and came to this country from his birthplace in Germany, in 1891, stopping first at Rochester, New York, and coming then to Chicago, where he was given a position as gardener on the Lincoln park force. A year later he was engaged as one of the florists in charge of the exhibits and grounds of the World's Columbian Exposition and upon the close of the fair he came to Joliet as head gardener of the state penitentiary. In 1896 he was married to Miss Margaret Fisher and went into business for himself. He had many good qualities that won him a high place in the estimation of his friends and aside from his work as a florist he was well known throughout the city for his vocal and histrionic talents and his personal popularity made him a welcome member in the fraternal orders to which he belonged.

John Roscoe Fuller.

John Roscoe Fuller, seedsman and florist, of Floral Park, N. Y., died suddenly on the morning of June 13, after a brief illness. Mr. Fuller was a native of Maine, had lived at Floral Park about 30 years, and was in the sixty-fourth year of his age.

Chicago Convention Arrangements.

Vice-Chairman Fred Lautenschlager of the entertainment committee has negotiations in hand by which it is hoped to secure Ravinia Park for the convention outing August 23. This is Chicago's most select and delightful resort, located about 45 minutes' ride from convention hall. Ravinia affords every accommodation for a gathering of this kind and the attractions include grand opera and Damrosch or Thomas orchestras in a charming setting with all modern appointments. Transportation facilities are admirable in every respect and if the negotiations are brought to a successful close, as anticipated, the visitors may look forward to a most enjoyable occasion.

Envelope stickers and another supply of shipping case dodgers will be ready for distribution next week.

Press and Advertising Committee.

Soil For Geraniums.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

We started our geranium cuttings and then changed to 3-inch pots, using the best soil from the farm (the dirt that comes off the beets) or soil from a swamp (no muck) that is heavy with some decaying elm bark. This latter has some traces of white alkali in it, but our geraniums simply do not grow good in it. We saw no need of fertilizer on such soil and did not use any, and by Memorial day our geraniums were poor and hardly any good bloom on them. This year we got the 4-inch pots out in the cold frame early and used manure water on them once a week consisting of a sack of wood ashes and a small one of hen manure. But the cold, wet, cloudy weather held them back so we had to buy for Memorial day. Now we have some of those small ones in 4-inch pots that will be carried over and would like to know why they do not grow in that rich soil.

J. F. T.

Michigan.

In answer to the question of "J. F. T." I will give a few points on our method of growing geraniums. The demand is for the best plants possible in full bloom in 4-inch pots. The cuttings are put in the sand during September and early in October. They are rooted by the first part of November and ready to take the place made vacant by a batch of early or second early chrysanthemums. We pot them into 2½-inch pots, using a fresh, live soil containing a very small portion of well-rotted manure. They are held in these pots until the middle of January, when they are re-potted into 3-inch pots, using a soil about the same texture as before. This size of pot carries them along to the middle of March. They are then re-potted into 4-inch pots, using a compost containing one-fifth of well-rotted manure.

Geraniums should be potted firmly, grown cool, held a little to the dry side during the winter months and topped as they require it up to the first of March. After this date very little topping should be done or they will not be in good bloom for Memorial day. It is a very easy thing to overdo it as regards fertilizer for geraniums, and cause them to make an over-abundance of growth at the expense of bloom. We have never had to resort to feeding as described in the inquiry, so I do not know what its effect would be, but according to the results given am of the opinion that it was overdone. Let me advise for another season to follow the method as advocated herein, which can be summed up tersely as follows: Start the cuttings in good season, grow cool, hold a little to the dry side during winter, re-pot at the proper time, do not crowd the plants, and avoid any forcing. With a reasonable amount of care to the other little details they should be in good shape for Memorial day.

C. W. JOHNSON.

Society of American Florists.

THE TRADE EXHIBITION.

The trade exhibition at the time of the convention of the Society of American Florists, at the Coliseum, Chicago, will surpass anything of the kind ever held. Exhibitors at former conventions are reserving much more space than in the past. Owing to the height of some of the exhibits of the greenhouse builders and dealers in boilers and heating apparatus, a slight change in the diagram was made necessary. Those interested in these lines may procure a revised diagram of available floor space by application to the Secretary. A special location has now been provided for the exhibition of automobile delivery trucks, and this will be made an attractive feature of the show. Intending exhibitors in any of the classes should not delay in sending in their application. The correspondence from all sections shows that manufacturers in all lines are awake to the importance of this coming convention. Locations have been assigned to:

LONG WHITE ROSES SCARCE.

The market is in about the same condition that it was last week and the general report from nearly all the wholesale houses is that trade is quiet and very unsatisfactory. Carnations are in a great oversupply, but the quality is not up to the standard and in some cases the stock that arrives at the store is, so poor that the blooms are thrown away or sold to the street men in large lots at bargain prices. The demand still keeps up for American Beauty roses and lily of the valley with the supply about equal to the call. Peonies continue to arrive in large quantities and fancy stock is obtainable everywhere at very low prices. Long white roses are scarce and good sweet peas are none too plentiful. Lilies of very good quality are moving slowly and the same can be said of gladioli and even orchids, although the latter are selling much better than they did last week. Gardenias are very scarce and Cape Jasmine are about over. My Maryland and Kaiserin Augusta Victoria roses are arriving in fine condition and are as usual the favorite summer roses. Prince De Bulgarie, Melody and Mrs. Aaron Ward roses are growing in popularity and can be seen prominently displayed in many of the downtown stores this week. Pond lilies are also being used quite extensively in the window decoration and even orchids, both plants and cut blooms, are very common sights these days. Spanish iris, marguerites, field daisies, stocks and feverfew are among the daily offerings and greens of all kinds are plentiful. The republican convention is being held here this week but so far it has not proved to be of any great benefit to the florist. School closings and weddings are now the principal orders, and some of the retailers are beginning to miss the orders from their regular customers who have left for their summer homes or to the resorts further north. The plant growers report an exceptionally fine season and in nearly all cases are pretty well sold out. The weather of the present week has helped trade considerably and the market is much livelier than it has been for many weeks past. The demand for fancy American Beauty roses is very good and some houses say that it was impossible on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 18-19, to fill all orders. The republican convention is now in session and the hotels and headquarters are decorated with flowers of all kinds and is after all proving to be of some benefit to the florist. Out-of-town trade is also a little better and the first out-door asters of the season were seen in the market on June 18.

NOTES.

Vaughan's Seed Store has had an exhibition of very superior peony blooms at the downtown store, 31-33 West Randolph street, the past week. These fine blooms are from the firm's large stock of select varieties grown at the Western Springs nurseries.

J. F. Sullivan made the trip to this city on the S. S. City of Cleveland with the Detroit Commercial Association last week, arriving Saturday morning. He remained over this week for the republican convention.

Nellessen Bros., proprietors of the Niles Center Motor Express, are now delivering the products of the growers in that vicinity to the market in a magnificent new 3-ton motor truck.

Guy M. French and Richard Solm, of the Poehlmann establishment at Morton Grove, were aids to the sergeant-at-arms at the republican convention in the Coliseum this week.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the Union Restaurant, Thursday, June 20, at 8 p. m., when important reports will be presented by convention committees.

John Poehlmann and E. F. Winter-son will celebrate their birthdays June 21, John was born in 1867 and Ed in 1868.

Clifford Pruner, E. H. Hunt's traveling man has returned from his western trip and A. F. Longren is also back from a trip through the south.

The Fleischmann Floral Co.'s novel window scene continues to attract great attention and the water lilies now carelessly distributed in the mill pond and the large beautiful orchid plants in full flower carefully arranged on the rocks bordering the stream, makes it one of the most beautiful and refreshing sights in the noisy loop district.

A. Lange and his 30 assistants are busy as bees with work this month and every department of this firm is taxed to the utmost to keep up with the orders that are coming in. H. A. Stone, the artistic decorator, says that trade in all lines is good and that wedding orders are exceptionally heavy.

The Cook County Florists' Association will hold its next regular meeting at the Tavern, 174 West Washington street, (tonight) Thursday, June 20. A lunch will be served and the life members will be honored by being presented with a suitable token of appreciation by the club.

The J. B. Deamud Co. is particularly strong in fancy peonies and some very choice flowers are now obtainable at this store.

The E. C. Amling Co.'s leaders this week are a fine grade of American Beauty roses and peonies.

The trade in this city was greatly shocked and grieved to hear of the sudden death of Joseph Labo at Joliet, last Saturday, June 15. The late Mr. Labo was well known in this city and the sympathy of the trade is extended to his family in their recent bereavement. C. M. Dickenson, A. T. Pyber and W. E. Lynch attended the funeral which was held the following Monday and one of these gentlemen says that the tragic death a year ago of his small boy was a contributory cause of his death, for since that time he had never been entirely well.

P. J. Olinger, of New Castle, Ind., was a visitor here on June 17, enroute to Aurora to visit his father who is said to be quite ill. He was a member of the Blaine party who came up from Cincinnati on that day and was with the crowd when it was entertained at the White Sox ball park in the afternoon.

The Bohannon Floral Co. had several large weddings this week and the proprietor and H. E. Klunder had about all the work that they could properly attend to. Artistically arranged bouquets of the choicest seasonable flowers ready to be delivered were a common sight at their store this week.

Weilands, Inc., East Washington street, report trade as good with plenty of funeral work. Their firm has one of the prettiest refrigerators in the city and it presents a very beautiful sight when it is filled with the choice stock that this firm always handles.

One of Wieter Bros.' drivers fell off a wagon this week as he was going after a load of tobacco stems and broke his neck. The unfortunate man had no relatives in this country but he leaves a wife and seven children who reside in Germany.

Peter Reinberg is showing a fine grade of roses with American Beauties showing up splendidly. Trade at their house is as good as can be expected for this season of the year and both the local and shipping trade is good.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., is right in full crop with orchids and some very beautiful blooms are to be seen at the store this week. Roses are also arriving in large quantities and fancy stock is obtainable.

Jac. Lederer, 644-48 West Madison street, manufacturer of florists' refrigerators, is building a box for his exhibit at the coming S. A. F. and it will give the trade a little idea of the splendid box that he manufactures.

W. N. Rudd and J. C. Vaughan attended the meeting of the state university advisory board in floriculture at Urbana last week.

W. J. Vesey, Jr., of Fort Wayne, Ind. visited friends and relatives in this city a few days this week.

Lake Geneva Peony Show.

The informal opening of Lake Geneva's horticultural hall took place on Saturday, June 15, with a peony show given by the local private gardeners. The building, which has been erected by the owners of the lake shore residences for their gardeners' various exhibitions and their private entertainments, consists of a spacious main hall 40x60 feet, a club room 24x24 feet, and also cloak rooms and a good sized kitchen. Facing the main building from one side is an open court 90x125 feet surrounded by high walls; inside there is a lawn terrace leading to a sunken lawn with a pond in the center. Around the sides are 16-foot-wide sidewalks, one of which is under an archway that eventually is to be enclosed with glass and gives additional exhibition space. The attendance at the show was excellent, the lake shore residents taking great interest in the various exhibits.

Vaghan's Seed Store, Chicago, was represented by a non-competitive exhibit of 40 vases of 25 choice varieties, making a very attractive display. The varieties were Mad. Boulanger, M. Baral, Modeste Guerin, Augustin D'Hour, Mad. de Galhau, Eugene Verdier, Richardson's Rubra Superba, Cœuronne d'or, Delachei, M. Krelage, Jules Calot, Felix Crousse, Mad. Duclé, La Tulipe, La Rosiere, Mad. De Verneville, M. Dupont, Pulcherrima, Kohinoor, Duchesse De Nemours (Calot), Festiva Maxima, Carnea Triamphans, Mad. Furtado, Octave Demay, Mad. Lebon, Triomphe de l'Expos. de Lille and Meissonier.

Among other plants were a group of well flowered gloxinias; Edw. Swift (Robt. Sampson, gardener), first. Also a nice group of Fuchsia Crinoline; N. W. Harris, first.

The Phoenix Nurseries, Bloomington, Ill., exhibited a number of fine seedlings, some pink varieties being of special merit.

Perennials and annuals were also shown but the lateness of the season made a large display of these impossible.

Two vases of Killarney roses were also shown by Wendland & Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill.

Chicago Parks.

The plan of consolidating the park boards of Chicago into one body has become a live issue again.

The city council committee on judiciary, state legislation, elections, and rules passed favorably on a bill providing for consolidation, with the expectation of presenting it to the state legislature next January. The chief argument in favor of the measure was the saving that would result from the elimination of duplication of work in the Lincoln, the west and the south park boards. The saving in salaries and wages alone was estimated at $417,590 a year. The action marks the revival of one of the issues of the Chicago charter movement, which went to defeat under a referendum.

A tabulation of the annual saving in salaries and wages under the proposed system follows:

|                          | At present  | Under consol'd'n. | Total       |
|--------------------------|-------------|-------------------|-------------|
|                          | Em- ployes. | Em- ployes.       | salaries.   |
| Administration . . . . . | 35          | 8                 | $ 35,530   |
| Professional . . . . .   | 57          | 37                | 76,850      |
| Foremen . . . . .        | 97          | 75                | 117,230     |
| Clerical . . . . .       | 80          | 33                | 77,220      |
| Instruction . . . . .    | 99          | 98                | 87,240      |
| Attendants . . . . .     | 280         | 250               | 201,870     |
| Police . . . . .         | 336         | 157               | 382,340     |
| Engineers . . . . .      | 56          | 38                | 201,870     |
| Skilled labor . . . . .  | 57          | 25                | 65,478      |
| Totals . . . . .         | 1,097       | 751               | $1,158,454 |

The figures were prepared by a sub-committee which recommended the passage of the consolidation bill. "There are so many arguments in favor of it," said Alderman Si Mayer, the chairman, "there is not time to go into them. The question is an old one, and even if it has been beaten once its merit has not diminished and the voters see it now more clearly than ever. In addition to the economy there is the argument that consolidation will place scientific operation where horrible mismanagement now shocks the public by its daily blunders. The worst of these was the construction of a $300,000 electric power plant by the south park board while it was negotiating with the sanitary district for current." Under the provisions of the bill the "board of park commissioners" would have nine members appointed by the mayor with the approval of the city council. They would serve without compensation.

Among the Roses in Europe.

We were due at the Bagatelle June 12 and arrived in Paris the day before. If there are any here who do not know the rose by the name of Gravereaux let me recommend that you cultivate its acquaintance. This rose was named in honor of a French gentleman whose contribution to our profession deserves a more than ordinary decoration. His own garden, about which I will tell you later, should be a Mecca for continental travelers. But it is rather inconvenient of access; and it is a private garden; therefore, with very good reason, I believe, he early advocated the establishment of a rose garden that should be the gem and a jewel in the popular park of the city of Paris. That rose garden is now established and among French rose growers at least, if not of international importance, forms a trial ground and a meeting place for the best of the old and nearly all of the new continental introductions. It was in this garden in the Bois de Boulogne, upon invitation from the city of Paris that last summer as president of the Conard & Jones Co. I went to act as a judge and in so doing was asked to represent America. The Bagatelle is a little park in the Bois de Boulogne; some people might say it is quite a large park. It is surrounded by a high stone wall; more than half of it is covered with woods, the rest in lawns and landscapes laid out with beautiful drives and nearly all well kept. It was built possibly by, and certainly for, Marie Antoinette; after the French Revolution it was sold to an Englishman, and afterwards bought back by the city of Paris for park purposes. The grounds are now in charge of Monsieur Forriestier who seems most affectionately interested in this comparatively new rose garden. It covers, I suppose, two acres laid out with the roses arranged in families, with the climbers mainly at one end or along certain avenues or walks. The roses of the last two years are each grouped separately and will later find their permanent place in the garden.

The system of French judging is different from that in America. After an exchange of greetings, the members of the jury, made up of representatives from England, Holland, the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, Germany, and from the principal growers as well as the officers of the city and of the parks and the editor of the leading horticultural press of Paris, are all assembled in the orangery, standing at one end, off from the garden. And here were given out score sheets with a list of the roses to be judged, showing their origin, classification and label number. The judging was upon roses from the open ground entirely. The judging is done upon a basis of ten points, not separated in any way. There were perhaps 75 roses of 1909 and 1910 to be passed upon and a good number of 1910 and 1911. A rose in which I happened to be particularly interested, American Pillar, while it looked as thrifty as one could wish, was simply in bud and had not yet been blooming; therefore there was no opportunity to judge of its qualities in comparison with the other roses. As a matter of fact it does not seem entirely fair to take the result of these awards as too sweeping, because, although the jury meets again two or three weeks later, they can only pass upon the roses which happen to be in bloom on that day. After each rose out in the garden had thus been voted upon, those receiving in this way the highest number of points were again considered and a vote taken upon the proposition to give a gold medal or a grand prize to the one or ones considered the finest. And I believe it is the plan that for every French rose that receives an award there shall be a corresponding award given to some other nation, and I am happy to say that our honored member, E. Gurney Hill, received certificate of merit for his rose, May Millers. All this required about three hours; after which we were shown the former residence of Marie Antoinette and then taken as guests of the city of Paris to the Cafe d'Armenoville.

The Bagatelle Rose Garden has so much of interest that one could readily spend several days there; and in going to or from one may run across the "Battle of Flowers" or "Fete des Fleurs," in some of the prominent avenues of the park, lined up with people four tiers deep on both sides and carriages and automobiles sumptuously decorated with roses and other flowers parade up and down, prizes being given to the most exquisitely decorated ones, after which the occupants of the vehicles begin hurling their flowers at the bystanders who often toss them back, and this exchange riot of beauty has become known as the "Battle of Flowers." I understand the proceeds, whatever they may be, go to the hospitals. There is much more of interest in Paris, even horticulturally, than one can stop to speak of, and in France, for here one finds rose growers whose names have been associated with flowers in our own American gardens and greenhouses; for example, here was M. Cochet, M. Guillot, M. Gravereaux, all men whose namesakes we grow. Therefore it was with keen interest that we set out to visit the establishments of these prominent rose growers.

Let Orleans be our first stop. Here we find Barbier, in whose well kept gardens we saw blooming not only Alberic Barbier but also the new Wichmoss with its fascinating mossed blossoms and its Wichuraiana foliage. Near by was M. Chenault, and on the same avenue, Levavasseur, whose polyanthas are now well known among our rose growers. They have big blocks of seedling Baby Ramblers and are doing quite a tremendous business. Another friend is M. Benard, who is already well known to many American growers and the variety of whose products makes one wish to stay and study for a week at least.

Our next point was Lyon, down toward the Mediterranean; and here is another famous group of growers, M. Bernaix and M. Guillot, who, I believe, is editor of their journal, "The Friend of Roses"; and the prominent Pernet of Pernet-Ducher, whose Sunburst is only one of a long list of valuable introductions. He with his son and family live in simple French fashion, and the walls of their home are covered with medals and photographs and diplomas of awards received for fine roses. It was most interesting to walk among his seedlings and to see his love for his pets. The climate here seems most genial, quite like our own in many respects, though not so cold in winter, I presume. The soil was quite different in different localities but the culture was most carefully looked after almost universally. I suppose weeds do grow there but we did not see many of them. One is impressed with the hospitality and openness of these men; their cordiality makes one leave with regret that his stay was not longer. I want to show you a picture that I took up in Switzerland right in among the mountains of Interlaken, of a rose which I was told was the Charles Bennett, covering the porte-cochere of the Jungfrau hotel, a perfect mass of deep carmine pink, certainly a grand sight.

It is a longer journey than it looks on the map, through Switzerland and down the Rhine, and likewise a much more fascinating one, over which we should like to linger. So after a few days among the holiday countries of the Europeans and a rapid run past Heidelberg and down historic Rhine to Coblenz we wind our way along the crooked Moselle and come to Trier where Peter Lambert on the banks of this little river is raising roses to decorate the Emperor William's gardens, to say nothing of his many German patrons and his foreign customers. This is a Roman town and many of the old ruins still stand, and the gates of the aforesaid walled city. Mr. Lambert is a cordial host and his trial garden a most interesting one. His hybridizing is on an extensive scale and he is careful to keep records, not only of his own work, but of the work of others. I think his supremacy among rose growers in Germany is quite established, judging from the work he continues to do for some of the more prominent cities in their public parks at Berlin, Baden-Baden and elsewhere. I show a photograph of him holding up Countess Chotee, a new rose, that he says you all will want, and the Countess herself was expected as a visitor the day after my visit with him. Mr. Lambert has studied horticulture in the best of the German schools; he comes to his profession by heredity. He is editor of some works on the rose, one of which I commend to hybridizers, "The Stammbuch der Edelfrosen." He is a very busy man, is raising a grand young family of boys, is building larger offices and a new home, and with all these demands on his time thinks it will be some years before he can come to America. He very kindly made an engagement for me to meet M. Lamesch who is planning a visit to America to study the things that we can tell them about growing cut roses. When he comes I bespeak for him from you your accustomed courtesy to strangers for such they deserve.

Near Trier is Luxembourg, the quaint and interesting old Grand Duchy, an independent principality, with their little army of 200 men, with their own stamps and their own small money, safe in one sense because of their position between Germany and France and apparently on the best of terms with both. But those of you who know the old Clotilde Soupert rose, the Mme. Melanie Soupert and the Souv. de Pierre Notting will be interested in the firm of Soupert & Notting, one of the oldest and still in prominence in their work of introducing new roses. I just missed seeing one Mr. Soupert, as I passed through Interlaken in Switzerland, where he was spending his vacation, but his brother, whose picture I show, was a most enthusiastic lover of roses. Furthermore he was a good salesman; he can offer either this descendant of Mme. Melanie Soupert for $650 or here was an offspring from Lyons rose for which he was that morning asking $1,000.

We next visited Ketten Bros., another family of two generations of rose growers, who have considerable ground outside of the city. The climate of Luxembourg in winter is doubtless quite like our Pennsylvania climate; at least they must dig and store practically all their stock and for this purpose have huge cellars entirely under ground, as a rule, in which they heel in their plants, having men label with lead labels and using their catalogue numbers, every single plant before it is dug. Mr. Lambert does more growing of own root roses than anyone else we met, most growers there, you know, using the budded stock.

A little side trip from Luxembourg down to Nancy gave a most interesting day with M. Lemoine, whose father, at eighty-eight, was lying ill, but whose four young boys, developing splendidly toward manhood, gave promise of more famous begonias, deutzias, lilacs and clematis; in fact, one scarcely knows where to stop in speaking of the contributions which have emanated from this rare and interesting establishment. I did not hear that they called him a wizard there either, but Victor Lemoine certainly deserves the name if ever man did among plantsmen. His recent death is certainly widely lamented.

This brings us back to Paris and let us without fail accept the kind invitation of M. Gravereaux for a day in his rose garden. Take a taxicab for that ten miles, out through the city gate, for embankments surround this modern city and remind one of troublesome times in the past, less than a century ago, too. It is a beautiful ride over the hills to a prominence from which the city itself is in view, and here M. Gravereaux, by special permission, is glad to have you come and luxuriate in his truly wonderful rose garden. M. Gravereaux is said to have become a millionaire from business on the Bon Marche in Paris. Imagine, if you can, 6,000 or more different varieties of roses, arranged in families and classes, grouped into avenues which are bordered with the climbing roses and banked with the bedding varieties and edged with box and neatly kept paths; bits of statuary here and there with the surprise of a playing fountain as you turn a corner, a little thatched roofed summer house for a laboratory, with appropriately placed standard tree roses having stems 12 to 15 feet high and heads of bloom 10 feet in diameter; everything kept with immaculate neatness and every rose carefully labeled with the name, class, date of origin and catalogue number; and in the center of all a museum, in which has been collected not only the documents that are to serve as a history of the rose but specimens of the products of science and art in which the rose has figured and also a collection of literature from the Greek, Latin, Arabic and also the modern languages in which we find mention of the rose. Here indeed one's enthusiasm knows no bounds. We felt filled with the beauty of the place for it seemed that every rose was in full bloom, the day was a perfect one, the air fragrance laden, M. Gravereaux was most hospitable and one felt that one wished the scene impressed indelibly upon one's mind.

It was 5 p. m. we began to think of returning to Paris when of a sudden we heard the noise of applause from the distance, we heard a signal given, and going from whence it came, found what before had been so carefully hidden that we had missed seeing it, a little off from the garden, an exquisitely appointed open air theatre, surrounded by trees. The aisles, seats and his guests so pleased, M. Gravereaux seemed happiest of all.

By the courtesy of your secretary, Benjamin Hammond, I carried with me the credentials from the American Rose Society. Tonight you have my response. Be the verdict what it may my feeling is that a member of this society who has the opportunity to see what has been done and is being done abroad among rose growers and by rose growers, for the amateur and by the amateur, would be disloyal to his own society and false in failing to help it reach a higher plane of usefulness did he not bring back to you some message from this mountain top of vision.

You and I must realize that America is as yet in its infancy, and still more is this true of rose growing in America. The time has come and is already here when we, the American Rose Society, need to broaden our principles, need to open wider our arms and affiliate with us the amateur rose growers of America. From the beginning our motto has been "A rose for every home, a bush for every garden," the first part of this motto we have lived out as "A rose for every home" I take it is what our cut flower members are striving to produce, but have we lived out the second part of our motto, "A bush for every garden"? Thousands if not millions throughout this country of ours, even with its varied climate, might have the pleasure, the inspiration and the uplift which come from knowing and cultivating the queen of flowers. And I take it that it is not only our right and our privilege but it is our duty to develop, to foster and to encourage the love for the planting of roses also among the amateurs in America.

HEAT TELLS ON STOCK.

Real summer weather has made its appearance and all inside stock shows the effect of the heat. The quality for the season, however, is fully up to the average of the time of year, if not better, as the prolonged cool days of spring have been a great help. Roses are still very fair. The White Killarney is, however, going off in color and the double white eastern stock is much in demand. There are still some very fair Beauties. Carnations are going down rapidly. The Spencer sweet peas from outside are fine and find a good market. Choice gladioli are also much in demand. Corn flower, Gaillardia, Double Duetzia and the new white hydrangea, the latter, by the way, a fine florists' flower, are all in good demand. Dorothy Perkins sprays are now seen in all the market stocks and will be a standard flower for the next two weeks. This rose in clusters or longer sprays is the flower for wedding and other decorative works. Valley is about equal to the demand, which is good. Cattleyas and gardenias are to be had in quantity. The bedding plant season is about over and while there are a number of geraniums still in hand in some quarters the season can be seen to have been a fairly good one.

NOTES.

The lover of Rambler roses has a treat in store if he will visit the Speedway in Fairmount Park. Here for over a mile in length are planted many of the best varieties of this beautiful type of the rose. There are over twenty-five varieties, three or four plants of a kind being alternated with other sorts in the distance. They are growing about twenty to thirty feet apart and trained to a fence about four feet in height. A number of the varieties, notably the gardenia, cover a surface of twenty to thirty feet and are loaded down with blossoms. Planted either way they make a very decorative and beautiful showing. It surely will not be long before every park will have its rose garden.

Spray and branches of Dorothy Perkins and other Rambler roses are featured at the S. S. Pennock-Mechan's Market. Peonies from their cold storage rooms look as fresh as if cut yesterday and are largely in evidence.

David Rust says that the past season has been the best in a business way since he began and the firm has earned enough to pay all expenses and leave something over for the interest account.

Easter lilies of first quality are the leader with the Berger Brothers. Some of the athletic talent of this house have already commenced figuring on the next picnic.

Bobbie Shock of the Rice force, who is known to everybody as a hustler, is still talking of that battle of the rope and explaining how they came to lose it.

THE MARKET.

Everything moves along nicely in the market. The receipts are fairly large and clearances are good. The demand from out of town for all lines is good, while locally the demand is very satisfactory. Considerable stock that is not quite all it should be continues to hammer down the prices of that of the better quality. In roses the supply of American Beauties is increasing and all finding a fairly good market. The quality is good. In other roses Killarneys, White Killarney, Brides, Maids and Richmond are good. The carnation supply is still large and for the time of the year very good. The darker ones are now on the wane and others will probably be the same in a short time. Gladioli, in sizes running from the longest and best to medium in length, are now offered in quantity and are proving quite popular. The first asters will by the time this leaves the press be in the market for over a week. Water lilies are also offered in quantity. The supply of lilies is far too large for the market. Hardy Hydrangea and Shasta Daisies are not meeting with the call they enjoyed in past years. Sweet peas, lily of the valley and orchids enjoy a fine call. The green goods line shows the addition of eastern fern. New sphagnum is also in some of the wholesale houses.

NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Pfeiffer and Mr. and Mrs. John Fries have departed on an extended trip to the Pacific coast. They will take in the various points of interest on the way.

WEATHER AFFECTS CARNATIONS.

Carnations are showing the effects of the weather very much, and a great many are coming in that are unsalable. Roses still hold up well although there is a scarcity of white. Hilda is proving to be the best summer pink rose we have, as it keeps its color, and the size of the flower is just as large as during the winter. Commencements take a few Beauties and generally clean up red roses. Very fine Spanish Iris is on the market in quantity, mostly coming from Ohio. A nice lot of swansonias, lupins, marygolds and candy tuft are on the market, but move slowly.

NOTES.

We will have to get along without a Florists' Picnic this year, as at the last meeting of the Florists' Club this was decided on. If a few of the retailers would take an interest in the club we could have a club that would give us plenty of entertainment, but they are content to sit still and leave everything to the growers.

His body was taken to Detroit, Mich., for burial, which occurred on Saturday.

STOCK OF GOOD QUALITY.

There is little change in the condition of business from that of a week ago, though some of the retailers say that it is better than it was in June a year ago. There is no great surplus of stock, but what is at hand is generally of good quality. Cool nights for the past two weeks have helped to keep carnations in good condition where they had been properly shaded and otherwise well cared for. Heavy rains have given field stock a great start. Good sweet peas, grown in the open, are now coming in. The local rose growers are busy throwing out old stock and planting new, which to some extent cuts down the local rose supply. Good stock of roses and peonies continues to come in from the north.

NOTES.

W. F. Gude and his estimable wife entertained the members of the Washington Florists' Club and their lady friends at a garden party at their splendid home on the evening of June 13. A number of prominent citizens other than florists were also present, including Commissioner Rudolph and wife, Major Sylvester, chief of police, and his wife, and Fire Chief Wagner and wife. A pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation to Elmer Mayberry, late president of the club, of a handsome sterling silver table set. It was the gift of the club, among the members of which Mr. Mayberry has always been deservedly popular. The presentation speech on behalf of the club was made by Roe Fulkerson, a local business man and also a witty and versatile speaker and writer. Mr. Mayberry, in accepting the present, made a brief but appropriate talk. Among the entertainers of the evening were Mrs. Barbier of the Columbia Players, a talented musician; Geo. O'Connor, a local humorist, and Mrs. Loeffler, mother of Mrs. W. F. Gude. The grounds, with their beautiful summer houses and pagodas covered with climbing roses, made a fine picture under the mellow light of many Japanese lanterns and tiny electric globes. A good supper was served and both Mr. and Mrs. Gude were tireless in their efforts to make everybody feel at home. In addition to the entertainers previously mentioned, music was furnished by Pol's Orchestra. Among the local florists present were Adolphus Gude and family, Z. D. Blackstone and family, Elmer Mayberry and family, Otto Bauer and family, M. J. McCabe and family; Geo. Field and wife, John Robertson, N. L. Hammer, O. A. C. Oehmler, Geo. Dalglish, A. F. Faulkner, Harry Lewis, John Barry, Mrs. A. M. Hoopes and Miss Herold.

Henry Witte, a young German who for more than a year has been employed at the greenhouses of the Gude Bros. Co., has gone into business for himself and is erecting two greenhouses at Silver Hill, Prince George County, Maryland, which is about three miles from Good Hope, D. C. Mr. Witte, who is a bright and well educated young man, has recently been joined by his brother from Germany and their venture will be noted with interest and good wishes.

JUNE BUSINESS GOOD.

June has been a good month so far as business is concerned. The enormous quantities of stock received has made considerable more work for the wholesaler, who has to handle it coming and going, and while prices have been quite low the large amounts handled have brought the average for the first half of June up to previous years. With commencements in June the average would have been far above.

White and colored water lilies are arriving daily and the demand is good. Lily of the valley, orchids, sweet peas and adiantum is in good demand. String smilax was in good demand the latter part of this week. American Beauties are in good demand. Killarney and White Killarney and Mrs. Aaron Ward are in good demand, and all are showing excellent color and size. Carnations are smaller in size and also much short-stemmed stock is arriving, but they are still very plentiful and selling at very low prices in lots of 500 and 1,000. Peonies, of course, are still favorites, and thousands are sold daily. Gladioli America and Francis King are in good demand. Easter lilies are moving slowly.

NOTES.

The McNairy-Monroe wedding on Euclid avenue was only one of the many large weddings of note that took place the past week. My Maryland roses and American Beauties were the color scheme throughout. Decorations were in Louis XVI. Colonial style. Mrs. Lincoln Brown had charge of the decorative work.

RAIN HURTS TRADE.

The rainy weather continues and transient trade is at standstill. Were it not for school closings, weddings, and funerals there would be a surplus of flowers. The market has been flooded all week, especially with inferior grades of stock. Outdoor sweet peas are in and bad weather will not help them any, as many will arrive water-soaked. Gladiolas are bringing prices according to grade. There is quite a demand for all kinds of greens.

NOTES.

The St. Louis Florist Club met last Thursday. Seventeen members were present. Frank Venneman presided. A committee of three was appointed to draft resolutions on the death of the late Chas. Juengel. The trustees announced that the annual picnic would take place at Priesters Park near Belleville. This location was chosen to help our East side florists to attend on Wednesday, July 17. Will Ossig, a member of the firm of the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., and Charlie Young were appointed to assist the trustees in perfecting the arrangements and arranging the program. The essay to have been read by C. E. De Weaver on over and Sub-irrigation, was postponed owing to the indisposition of Mr. De Weaver. At the next meeting the nomination of officers will take place. F. H. Weber stated he would then inform those who wish to attend the S. A. F. Convention at Chicago in August, as to the route.

C. A. Kuehn went to Detroit to attend the funeral of his brother, George Kuehn, who died in Milwaukee. The deceased was also the father of Oscar Kuehn, manager of the Wire Department of the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. The sympathy of the trade is extended.

Otto Sander has removed to Kings Highway and Delmar. He has a very pretty and neat store and expects his customers will continue their business relations with him at the new location.

Henry Duernberg, with Grimm & Gorley, paid a flying visit to New York to study the latest novelties and styles in floral arrangements. He was royally received wherever he visited.

All the west end florists were busy last week with commencements and some prominent funerals and weddings took up their time.

Harry Young and Son are doing a nice trade at their store on Maryland avenue. W. F.

Resolutions on Death of Chas. H. Juengel.

Your Committee appointed to draw up resolutions in memory of our late brother, Charles H. Juengel, offer as follows:

Whereas death has removed from our midst Chas. H. Juengel, a member of this Club, whereas in the demise of Mr. Juengel the Club has met with irreparable loss, and whereas the deceased was known to us as a man of sterling worth and as a good neighbor and citizen, Mr. Juengel has ever exemplified the highest qualities, therefore, be it resolved that his memory will ever be cherished as an example of faith, friendship and true nobility, an inspiration of public fidelity so to have lived and to have died is not to have lived and died in vain. ## TRADE STILL DULL.

Conditions in the wholesale market remain unchanged. Stock is plentiful. Peonies that are in over-supply are of poor quality. There is a good demand for the white varieties, but the large shipments of mixed sorts have to be disposed of in bulk. From all accounts they will be in good supply for the balance of the month. Outside "Jacks" of the short-stemmed grade are visible everywhere by the thousands. Stocks and Antirrhinum, even of the very best quality, meet with poor demand. Sweet peas have cleared up a little better. There is a glut of lilies in the market, and seldom has better quality been seen, but it is only for a very few that a fair price can be obtained. Gardenias are now plentiful and the quality is better and they find their way principally into the hands of the street men. There is a sufficient supply of lilies of the valley of very good quality to meet all demands. The supply of orchids has shortened up considerably and the demand for these has improved somewhat. The situation as far as carnations are concerned is worse, and even the very best, which are of excellent quality, have to be sacrificed with the lots of the poorer grades. A rather strange sight in Twenty-eighth street during the week was a push cart loaded down with carnations, thousands of them, of good quality, which had been bought for $1 per thousand to be peddled on the streets, but as one wholesaler remarked, "this price was better than seeing them dumped into the ash cart." It has not been so unusual to see this same ash cart leave the wholesale section, in all locations, daily loaded down with stock of all kinds that had to be thrown away. With roses there is no noticeable change. Some of the novelties are selling well at times, but with the possible exception of good quality American Beauties, which are in good demand, the rose market is discouraging to say the least. It cannot be denied that all of the prominent retailers have been very busy, but the large orders they have sent into the market seem to make no impression on the visible supply. With the wholesalers the month of June has always been looked forward to as a very busy month, but this year the month has been disappointing. Even though the amount of stock moved has been tremendous, the prices are so low that when the receipts are figured they do not compare at all favorably with previous seasons. There is no question but that the orders for steamers have been curtailed, and now that flowers are prohibited in the public schools this rule will hurt the smaller stores. It is only a short time before the dull summer season will be here and the main topic of conversation seems to be "early closing" and vacations. Some of the "nabobs" in the commission business have planned extensive automobile tours, some planning to attend the convention at Chicago in their cars. Those dealers who are fortunate in not having automobiles will take fishing trips on their naphtha launches and sail boats.

Monday noon, June 17.—The weather is very hot, and stock of all kinds is showing the effects of the heat. Demand is only fair, stock plentiful.

NOTES.

The temporary embarrassment of a prominent retailer may not be as bad as reported. It is said that a compromise of 50 cents on the dollar has been offered and will probably be accepted. The wholesale dealers as a rule are generous to a fault when they understand that troubles come to a customer through no fault of his own. The retailer in question has been a very good buyer in the market, and has the reputation in the past of always meeting his bills promptly.

The King Construction Company is now settled in its new offices at 1181 Broadway. H. E. Bates, its eastern manager, is delighted with the new location, as he has a better opportunity to meet the many growers when they visit the wholesale market. Mr. Bates reports the closing of several large contracts in the East. It does not take Mr. Bates very long to convince the skeptical grower that there is no such thing as over-production.

Walter F. Sheridan will welcome the advent of the "summer month" so that he may have the time to complete the organization of the alumni of the New York Florists' Club. This matter has been given in charge of Mr. Sheridan. So it goes without saying that this society will be a grand success and be hailed with delight by the ex-officers of the club.

Paul Berkowitz of Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was a visitor this week. He is enthusiastic about the full line of novelties he will exhibit in Chicago at the time of the convention. The house of Bayersdorfer is one that realizes the importance and benefit of exhibition on a very large scale at the convention of the Society of American Florists.

Rapid strides are being made in the remodeling of the John Nicholas stores in Twenty-eighth street, and from present appearances they will be finely equipped for the sale of cut flowers at wholesale. It is intended to let out the upper floors to dealers in florists' supplies.

Philip Kessler, chairman of the Outing Committee, reports tickets going very fast, and if the weather is fine on July 2 the affair will be a great success. Already parties of nine and ten have taken tickets.

Alex. M. Westwood is making extensive improvement in his new store in the Pennsylvania terminal. He will have one of the most attractive stores in the city when it is completed.

P. J. Smith and family will spend the summer at Rockaway Beach. This is in easy commuting distance to the city and will permit Mr. Smith to be at his business daily.

The "boys" in the street are planning to give Harry Bunyard and Charles H. Totty a very warm reception upon their trip next Saturday.

H. J. Maybie, Maywood, N. J., anticipates making a large addition to his greenhouse plant the coming summer.

Peter Wagner and Mrs. Wagner of Flatbush, L. I., will sail for Europe on June 22 for an extended trip.

Visitor: E. J. Fanecourt, Philadelphia.

NOTABLE SEASON CLOSURES.

With the close of the month of June florists feel that the floral season is about over. The middle of the month really sees the close of any demand for flowers, as commencements, weddings and such events that call for flowers terminate by that date. This season, though, has been a notable one here. Quantities of flowers have been used for weddings, which have been numerous, and never has there been a season when more graduates have made their bow to the public.

NOTES.

The Flower Festival and competitive exhibition of the Baltimore county schools took place on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Clifton Park, Baltimore. This is an annual event and hundreds of children garbed as spring fairies, flowers, birds, brownies and wood sprites gambled over the green sward. And flowers! There were hundreds and hundreds of buds and plants—fine specimens—on exhibition. Music, songs, folk dances and games were included in the program. Five thousand or more attended and enjoyed this very interesting performance. The prizes are so divided that each class and each school was rewarded for its efforts during the year.

Flower-raising has been taught in the schools for years and it has been the aim of the teachers to stimulate the children to grow plants, and each child is given a plant to grow for this festival and without any aid to carry it from seedling to blooming plant. Window boxes are placed in school rooms and teacher and pupil cultivate the flowers together. We cannot say too much for this, as we think all nature work of great value.

Miss Alexia Anderson, daughter of Andrew Anderson, florist, graduated from Drexel Institute, Philadelphia, Pa., last week and is at home now with her parents. Miss Anderson is very ambitious and has passed excellent examinations. She expects to become a teacher later on. B.

Boston.

A SUMMER FLURRY.

The outlook is somewhat brighter than that of last week. There have been quite a few weddings of both society and plebeian buds and, with some funeral work, trade has lost its sleepy state. Graduations have, as usual, taken a great quantity of flowers and at some of them class colors predominate, but with dinners and other affairs the trade has much to be thankful for. A variety of flowers are used at the latter. Long-stemmed roses are not much called for. It has been the shorter grades that have sold. There are some very fine sweet peas in the market. The cool weather we have had has been to their advantage. This also applies to the carnations which are, for June, very good. John Barr's and those handled by Herbert Capers at the Co-operative Market are of extra quality for this month.

NOTES.

From his big house at Revere, Thos. Roland is shipping tomatoes by the ton to this city, and the receipts, we hear, beat those of the flower growers to a frazzle. Settlement is made two days after receipt of goods. Between his plant and vegetable successes Tom is certainly on the sunny side of Easy street. Brains and push well directed do wonders. Some of us imagine we own both these qualities, but the result in cold cash doesn't figure up the right totals. We can't all be clever. There wouldn't be anything left for the next generation to do if we did it all now.

Tuesday night the Gardeners' and Florists' Club had a most enjoyable ladies' night. MAO.

This Budding Knife Free

The Unrivaled Henkel Knife Shown Above Ivory Handle and Fine English Steel Blade will be mailed absolutely free to anyone sending in Two New Subscriptions to The American Florist, the new subscribers being persons in the trade or trade employees. This knife cannot be bought anywhere for less than $1.25 and most dealers will probably ask more for it, as the price of ivory has been advanced recently.

Send Post Office Money Order or Express Money Order for $2.00 with the names and addresses of two New Subscribers (persons in the trade, as Florists, Seedsmen or Nurserymen, or their Employees) and we will send them the paper for one year after receipt of subscriptions.

With Canadian orders it will be necessary to send $4.00 with two new subscriptions and $5.00 with two new subscriptions from other foreign countries.

The request for the knife must be made when sending in the subscriptions, giving name and address of person to whom the knife is to be sent.

The knife will be mailed absolutely free if the sender of the New Subscriptions complies with the above instructions.

This offer is good now for present orders.

Prize Apples.

The time draws near for the village flower show, and from Devon the following anecdote has reached us. Mr. Mudge, gardener at "the big house," had a great success last year. He specialized in apples—mixed apples—and found to his joy, on one tree, a perfect monster. Then he paid a round of calls on gardener friends, and the following conversation took place.

"Be showing apples this year, Mr. Dodge?"

"Don't know as I be, Mr. Mudge. Not got many to speak of, and the apple drains has had they something cruel. There's one big one on that tree, but what's the good of showing he?"

"Doesn't stand to reason to show one, Mr. Dodge. Might as well give it to I."

"I'm sure you're mighty welcome." Three such calls and the discovery of two apples of unequal merit on his own trees enabled Mudge to win the prize.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Bowling Perils.

For a Time he kept warm in a Bowling Alley. Drive a Man into a Corner and goad him to Desperation and he will go so far as to Bowl, provided he lives in a sporty Neighborhood.

One Evening he went down to see the east side go against the west side, but the Place was Dark.

The Authorities had interfered. It seemed that the Manufacture of Bowling Balls involved the Destruction of the Hardwood Forests, while the Game itself overtaxed certain Important Muscles ending with "alis," at the same time encouraging Profanity and the use of 5-cent Cigars.—Geo. Ade.

The Traveling Man.

BY BERTON BRALEY.

Wherever the railroad has vouchsafed a station,

And many a place where it's not,
Way out on the fringes of civilization
Or close to its busiest spot,
Wherever a retailer's present to treat with,

His various samples to scan.
Why, that is the place you are certain to meet with

And notice the Traveling Man.

He's easy to spot, for you cannot mistake him,

Take a smart sort of tilt to his lid,
And a dash and devil-may-care-ness that makes him

A person whose trade can't be hid;
Way back in his eyes is a luminous twinkle

And his smile's on a generous plan, Each move and each word and each laugh and each wrinkle

Proclaims he's a Traveling Man.

Despite all the horrors of countryside taverns

Which follow a wearisome ride,
The rooms which are nothing but dreary old caverns

And the dishes eternally fried,
He keeps up his cheer, he's a blithe sunny spirit,

He's built on the joyfulest plan;
The latest stories or styles—you will hear it

From the lips of the Traveling Man.

He's gay and he's flippant, a trifle
flirtatious,

But true, just the same, to his own.
The helpless ones find him both gentle and gracious,

The other kind leave him alone;
Through all kinds of trouble and worry and weather

He tends to the work of his clan, He's a link in the chain that keeps mortals together,

Here's how to the Traveling Man.

The Seed Trade.

American Seed Trade Association.

Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago, President; Marshall H. Duryea, New York, First Vice-President; Edgar Gregory, Marblehead, Mass., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, Ohio, Secretary and Treasurer. Next annual convention at Chicago, June 25-27, 1912.

SWEET peas are reported quite short.

MAGGOTS are busy in the Chicago onion seed fields.

Low temperatures are reported from the western pea sections.

VISITED CHICAGO: R. L. Eaton, of the Girardeau Seed Co., Monticello, Fla.

ROCKY FORD, COLO. — Conditions among our vine seed crops are very fair, good in fact. R.

SENATOR FRANK C. WOODRUFF, of Orange, Conn., is attending the republican convention at Chicago this week.

THE death of John Roscoe Fuller, Floral Park, N. Y., is recorded in our obituary column this week.

F. R. COOPER, of F. Cooper, Ltd., Wellington, N. Z., is starting on an American trip and will call on the seed trade.

Chicago.—Prices on the Board of Trade, June 19, for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $8 to $12 per 100 pounds.

CARL CROPP, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, with Mrs. Cropp and Carl, Jr., left June 19 for Europe and will sail via the S. S. Laurentic from Montreal, June 22.

THOSE in charge of the preparations for the Chicago convention of the American Seed Trade Association report that the preliminary inquiries indicate a large attendance. The banquet to be tendered the visitors is scheduled for Wednesday night, June 26. Automobile rides over the park and boulevard systems will be a feature of the meeting.

California Seed Crops.

Hollister, June 15.—From the present outlook crops will be short generally with all growers. It is of course too early to say definitely, but we do not think sweet peas will average over 30 to 35 per cent of a crop, radish not much better than 60 per cent, carrot not over 40 per cent, parsnip with us about 50 per cent, and parsley 50 per cent. Lettuce seems fair and a delivery nearly in full should be made. Onion also promises well if there is sufficient moisture in the ground to make the seed and the crop does not suffer from hot spells. Altogether the season has been rather unfavorable, but with the exception of sweet peas there will be no extreme shortage of California grown seeds. W.

Nebraska Seed Crops.

Waterloo, June 15.—It is a little early to give very definite information on the crop outlook. There has been a large amount of replanting of ordinary dent corn, not so much among the crops we have growing for seed purposes as there has been among the farmers for regular grain crops. Our seed crops in dent corn are starting out in very good shape. Owing to cold weather the crop was planted a little late, and on account of dry weather seed did not germinate as quickly as usual. The crop has also been held back by cold weather, but is now in a fair way to make good progress. The acreage of flint corn is very fair. Farmers seemed a little more willing to grow flint corns this year than sweet corns. The stand is very good and present conditions fully up to the average for the time of the year, unless the crop might be considered a little backward. Sweet corn acreage is rather light. Farmers were not disposed to plant this season. The stand and outlook is fair.

In vine crops, we have had more damage from the striped beetle than we have ever had before. A few crops have been lost, but most of them have been carried through this critical period and are starting out with fair prospects. R.

Waterloo, June 18.—Corn crops are rather late and backward but have plenty of moisture and require nothing but good warm weather to advance rapidly. The weather is unsettled and is too cool much of the time. Bugs and cut-worms have done considerable damage to vine crops but the necessary replanting was done in fair season and there is nothing at this time to indicate any material shortage. We believe all growers have planted the full acreage required for contracts, and if the weather conditions are favorable from this time on we do not see any reason why returns should not be satisfactory. C.

The Spring Business.

We present herewith a number of reports on the spring business of 1912 from leading centers:

Arthur T. Boddington, New York.—The seed-selling season of spring 1912 has been a very satisfactory one with us. We have done a considerably increased business in spite of the increased prices of vegetable seeds. The great shortage in garden peas was not felt by us as much as we had expected. The season has been most satisfactory as regards the sales of spring bulbs, hardy roses, etc. In these lines we have had the best season in the history of the house. In all ways we think the spring seed season of 1912 was more satisfactory to us than the season of 1911.

James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y.—Our trade, so far as we can estimate, has increased in all departments over last year. There has been a strong demand for all kinds of seeds, plants and bulbs, which has afforded us an excellent season's sale; on the whole, one of the most satisfactory in many years.

Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.—Taken as a whole, our business compares favorably with 1911. Some departments did not come quite up to our expectations. This is brought about, we believe, largely by the scarcity of some varieties of seeds.

A. Currie & Co., Milwaukee, Wis.—Compared with a year ago the seed trade with us has been much better, the volume of business being greater. This was especially noticeable in farm seeds. We had a heavy run on lawn grass seed.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago.—In volume of business done with the trade, by mail and over the counter, our records show a liberal increase over all past years. The largest increase is shown by the first named branch.

A. C. Kendel, Cleveland, O.—Our March business was behind, April was much ahead and May a little ahead of last year; average for the three months shows a 5 per cent increase.

GIANT PANSY SEED

The KENILWORTH Strain

must not be compared with the flimsy Trimardea; it is much larger and of good substance. The immense flowers of 3 1/2 to 4 inches are of perfect form; every tint and shade is produced in striking combinations and endless variations of beautiful colors and markings. The stock plants are most critically selected. ## Lilium Harrisii

THERE are conditions, and they occur not infrequently, under which all lily bulbs fail to make good flowering plants. There may be, probably are, more difficulties attending the growing of Lilium Harrisii bulbs than most forcing varieties, and yet those who do them well have found the early blooms very profitable. In many parts of the south where this bulb has been grown over a longer season and without the overforcing sometimes imposed on the plants, Harrisii has given most satisfactory returns. We are contracting, subject to crop conditions, a select strain of Well Grown Bulbs of Lilium Harrisii

Sizes: 5 to 7; 6 to 7; 7 to 9 and upwards

MUSCATINE, IA.—J. E. Hoopes & Co. report the biggest run on vegetable plants they ever had, having sold over 450,000 sweet potato plants alone, besides cabbage, tomato, celery, egg plant, peppers, etc.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 17.—Mushrooms, 7½ cents to 10 cents per small case; lettuce, 8 cents to 10 cents, small cases; cucumbers, 22½ cents to 35 cents per dozen.

New York, June 15.—Mushrooms, $1 to $3 per 4-pound basket; cucumbers, 50 cents to 65 cents per dozen, $1 to $3 per box; tomatoes, 8 cents to 15 cents per pound.

Crop Rotation.

Our next door neighbor is a gardener of the wrong type. His crops are arranged exactly as they were last year and probably the year before; that is, his tomatoes, potatoes, beans, peas, etc., occupy exactly the same plots as in former years. This is certainly wrong from many points of view and with such a variety as he grows, crop rotation would be very easy. There is some excuse for specialists planting the same thing in the same place from year to year but for a general gardener there is none, and even specialists begin to realize that it would be better for them to combine some firm crops into their plan of operations if they do not wish to bother with various truck crops. Thus, melon growers realize the importance of seeding down melon patches to grass or grain and many other crops could be handled the same way. In the first place, we encourage diseases by repeating our crops on the same spot. In the second place we facilitate the breeding of insects by such a course. And when we come to understand that crops deposit harmful substance, in the soil, then we must admit that repeated cropping is unwise. Rapid and long-reaching rotations is essential to the fullest success in truck farming, and we must also avoid related crops; thus potatoes, tomatoes and egg plants are open to the same maladies; so are cabbage, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, kale, turnips and radishes. We could write on this subject at length, but "a word to the wise is sufficient." MARKETMAN.

BROOKLINE, MASS.—Thousands of people visited Holm Lea, Prof. C. S. Sargent's estate, June 9, when the grounds were open to the public.

KATOMAH, N. Y.—David A. Doyle, postmaster, died at his home here June 4. He was part owner of Deer Park Farm and a prominent patron of horticulture.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—The greenhouses of James Horan and Son were damaged by the heat from a burning paper mill nearby. The fire occurred on the evening of June 8.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y. Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

THE death of J. J. Harrison of the Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., is recorded in our obituary column elsewhere in this issue.

THE continued report of the thirty-seventh annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen will be found on page 1292 of this issue.

Provides for Healing Tree Wounds.

It is always a problem of harvesting sap from trees to protect and heal the wounds to the tree. John T. Gilmer of Mobile, Ala., in patent 1,012,541, describes a method of treating trees for extracting the sap, such as turpentine, by so boring the bark and the sap wood of the trees as to form passages for the sap, that upon the removal of the sap collecting device from the tree, the outer ends of the passages will be closed by the growth of the bark layer over such passages.—Scientific American.

A New Flowering Shrub.

Coryopsis Veitchiana, a new shrub introduced from China, was recently given an award of merit by the Royal Horticultural Society, writes a correspondent in The Garden. The plant shown was raised from seed collected by E. H. Wilson when working on behalf of the Arnold Arboretum. The seed was sown in the spring of 1908, and the plant has since made excellent growth, being now about four feet high and nearly a yard in width. The flowers are produced about the same time as C. spicata, an old favorite among our early-flowering spring shrubs. C. Veitchiana, however, has a delicious scent, resembling a boronia, which characterizes it from the former. The growth is also more upright, and the flowers are slightly paler than those of C. spicata, more loosely disposed and easily distinguished by the tomentose bracts, whereas those of its neighbor are membranous. The wood of this new species is slightly doubt, when better known, become exceedingly popular.

Manna.

A recent issue of the Pharmaceutical Journal and Pharmacist gives interesting particulars of the Manna of the Bible. The plant, Lecanora esculenta, is found over a region covering southwest Asia, extending to southeast Europe and to northwest Africa. It appears on small stones, preferably small chalky pebbles, first as thick, wrinkled warty crusts, greyish-yellow on the outside and having a white mealy fracture. Later the flakes become cracked, detach themselves from the stones, and roll up into bullet-shaped or warty masses of about the size of a hazel nut. When the rain comes the Manna quickly absorbs moisture, and bursts into large flakes which have a mealy interior. When we consider that the dry Manna plants are carried considerable distances by wind, and are often blown together in considerable quantities, this rapid change from hard, dry, almost stone-like substances into a flaky food may well have induced the belief of the Israelites that the Manna fell from heaven. In Persia Manna is used as a food, and is also given under the name of "Chirzade" to feeble and ill-nourished mothers as a lactagogue in daily doses of 150 to 200 grams. The food value of Manna lies in its 20-25 per cent of lichenin.—Gardeners' Chronicle.

Mr. William MacLachlan,
Dist. Mgr. Morehead Mfg. Co.,

Dear Sir:

It is with pleasure that we add a word of praise for the Morehead Trap System which we installed in our plant last fall. We feel that the results obtained fully justify the cost of the system; in fact, we have already saved the cost of the machines in a saving of fuel, in-as-much as we have used no more coal this winter, which has been an extremely long and severe one, than we did last winter which was an unusually mild one.

We have been put to no expense in its upkeep and has given us no trouble whatever. Wishing you all the success that your system deserves, we are,

Yours very truly,

Are you saving the heat and turning it back into the boilers?

He is Prune Tree No Longer.

Nathan Zwetschkenbaum of 85 Lewis street, Manhattan, obtained the right from Judge La Fetra in the City Court to change his surname to Baum. He is of Austrian extraction, and the name in his native tongue means "prune tree."

Many of his acquaintances have used the name in ridicule, much to Mr. Zwetschkenbaum's annoyance, and he therefore filed petition to have his name changed to Baum. He expects that the simpler name will also help him in business, since Zwetschkenbaum is difficult to pronounce.

The Cards Were Transposed.

A young man stepped into a flower store in one of the large cities during the warm days of last summer to order a floral tribute to be sent to the funeral of a friend. At the same time he ordered a box of roses to be sent to a lady friend.

He left two cards, for the first one bearing the word "Sympathy," and for the other, "To aid you in withstanding the terrible heat."

He received an acknowledgement from the young lady, but with the inquiry of why the card of sympathy was sent. From the other he heard nothing.

BUSINESS CONTINUES GOOD.

Trade continues good in spite of the fact that summer heat is upon us. Funeral work has been excellent. One funeral alone—that of Overton Lea, a very prominent and wealthy citizen—gave big business to all the florists, and every one was busy. Other funerals, and not a few good weddings, have kept trade going very satisfactorily. The stock as a rule is very good. There is an abundance of sweet peas of the very best quality and color. They may be cut by the thousand. Roses are pretty good and there are still plenty of Bermuda lilies. Hydrangeas, which have been very fine, are now on the wane and will soon be no more. Gloxinias and tuberous begonias have supplied the demand for pot plants and have sold well. Everything about the floral shops begins to take on a summer-time appearance, and the windows, when made attractive, soon lose their freshness in the hot summer sun. The Japanese lilies are coming in now. In a little while they will be the main dependence for decorative floral work. Asters will soon be on and will take the place of carnations for the summer trade. M. C. D.

Kroeschell Replaces Two Cast Iron Boilers.

ALBERT SENFF, of Menominee, Mich., writes as follows:
"The boiler I bought of you last year gave perfect satisfaction. We had no trouble in holding the temperature at 60 degrees, when the weather was 20 below zero outside with a stiff north-west blowing. This winter was much colder than last, but with your boiler I had no trouble, and expect that I will save 15% of my coal bill. We had two cast iron boilers in use, but we replaced them with one of your boilers, which does more than double the work the two cast iron boilers did.
"With the two cast iron boilers we had, we always had the water up to boiling point, but with your boiler only 160 degrees are needed, which means a great saving of coal to us. Our piping is about the same now as with the cast iron boilers, so it must be that your boiler is the only perfect one for greenhouse heating."

About Cost of Building

OCCASIONALLY some one asks us if we "can't get the price of our Iron Frame house down." To which we always reply: "Of course we can—but we can't." Can't, because the best of materials and best of mechanics cost just so much, and to cut costs, means cheapening either the materials or employing unskilled men. You simply can't put your prices down and keep your quality up. We have a reputation for building one of the best Iron Frame constructions it's possible to turn out; and just as long as Hitchings & Company is Hitchings & Company, we are going to build the best house it's possible to build. Such houses can never be cheap; but they will always cost less in the end. And the end begins right at the beginning. Send for catalog.

AMERICAN PEONY SOCIETY

Annual Meeting and Exhibition, Ithaca, N. Y., June 19-20.

The Exhibition.

The tenth annual meeting of the American Peony Society was held in the Agricultural Building of the New York State College of Agriculture, Cornell University, June 19 and 20. The weather at Ithaca has been unusually cool this season and the peonies in the trial grounds were in excellent condition. The ideal weather enabled a large number of the members in attendance to spend most of their time in the field, studying the varieties that have been described by the nomenclature committee of the society. It was the general opinion that the committee had performed a service of inestimable value to peony growers everywhere. The condition of the plants was a surprise to most growers, for peonies in most localities are now out of bloom. The exhibition of cut flowers comprised the largest number of varieties ever shown at any exhibition of the society. A complete collection of all the varieties in bloom on the Cornell grounds was exhibited. The educational value of this exhibit of 383 varieties was enhanced by having each vase labelled by cards giving the name and a printed description of the variety.

Professor A. P. Saunders staged a splendid exhibit of 100 vases. The flowers showed the result of high cultural skill. Among the new varieties were Beaute de France, blush pink; Coronation, very large light pink; Fujimire, Japanese type, white ground and sulphur center; Glory, Japanese tyrian rose; Professor Budd, large lilac pink; Volcan, dark red; Adolphe Rousseau and Edouard Andre, dark red. This collection easily secured first prize. Mrs. Kellogg, New York Mills, N. Y., exhibited a collection of excellent blooms for which second prize was awarded. In this collection were Madame Galle, Jenny Lind, Triomphe de L'Exposition de Lille, Felix Crousse and Adolphe Rousseau. Among the exhibits not for competition the most notable collection was that of T. A. Havemyer (Mr. Lahody, gardener), Glenhead, L. I. This contained a number of the more recent varieties from Kelway and other growers. Among the varieties were noted Solange, Meteor Flight, Magnificence, Flamboyant, Queen of Spain, Sir Edmund Barton, Beauty Mark, Loveliness, Conqueror and Lucy E. Hollis.

Letters were read from all firms contributing plants for the trial grounds turning over all the plants to the society for disposal. It was voted to sell the plants and use the proceeds in the publication of a book or manual which would complete the peony studies. Messrs. Farr, Harris, Saunders, Brown and Craig were appointed a committee to prepare and, with the consent of the officers of the society, to publish the peony book. Several bids were considered and accepted for the collections of peonies growing upon the Cornell trial grounds. Such collections as remain will be listed and advertised for sale. This will complete the work originally undertaken and according to agreement then entered into by the society and Cornell University, a type collection will be permanently maintained at Cornell University. These are divisions of the identical plant used in preparing the description of each variety and thus they constitute a standard. A publicity committee, consisting of C. S. Harrison, J. H. Humphreys and E. A. Reeves was appointed to prepare cultural information for publication by the press. Mr. M. F. Pierson, Stanley, N. Y., exhibited good blooms of a number of the standard varieties. Two seedlings were exhibited by Professor A. P. Saunders, viz.: Jean Bancroft and Edith Grant. Both are white varieties of merit and well deserved the certificate awarded them.

The business meeting of the society was held in the Horticultural Lecture Room, June 19. The meeting was called to order at 3 p. m., President Farr being in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Secretary Saunders, after which the president delivered his address in which he reviewed the work accomplished by the society during its ten years of existence. He was very optimistic regarding the future of the organization. The secretary's report was then read and showed a membership of sixty-six with fourteen candidates for election to membership. The secretary reported an increasing interest in the work of the society and in its publications. The treasurer's report was read showing the society to be in good financial condition. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, B. H. Farr, Reading, Pa.; vice-president, E. B. George, Painesville, O.; secretary, A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y.; treasurer, J. H. Humphreys, Germantown, Pa.; director, S. G. Harris, Tarrytown, N. Y. Resolutions were adopted thanking the authorities for their co-operation in carrying out the peony studies, to Professor Beal for his work in making the meeting a success, and also one of

and the specimen plant in the permanent planting of identified varieties from which these blooms were taken.

These living witnesses, however, of the results accomplished can only appear to the few who are able to visit Cornell. Of much greater importance as evidence of results accomplished by this society, forming an imperishable and far reaching record of its work, are the bulletins that have been issued from time to time, with their description in minute detail of the hundreds of varieties covering almost a complete list of the variety of peonies to be found in commerce today. The ready and general acceptance of the description work know that it has been carried on jointly by the American Peony Society and the Horticultural Department of Cornell University, the society supplying the thousands of plants used, and assisting in the work of identification, while the care of the plants, the field work, the gathering together of all the literature referring to peonies, the indexing, classification and the publication of the bulletins have all been assumed by the University. The members of the American Peony Society fully appreciate the fact that without the invaluable co-operation of Cornell and the members of its staff, Professors Craig, Coit, and Batcheler, who have worked so ably and diligently in our cause, a successful outcome would have been impossible, and in our gratification at our success we will not fail to give them the full measure of credit that is their due.

The large planting of peonies originally contributed towards carrying on these tests, having served its purpose, the time has now arrived when definite steps must be taken to bring the first series of experiments to a close and dispose of the surplus plants in accordance with the original agreement and the society must map out its future course and decide its plan of action as regards the work next in hand; and it is for this purpose we have met here today. In my opinion our next and most important work should be the gathering together of all the material contained in the several preliminary bulletins which have been published, with such revisions and corrections as is necessary to form a complete book of the peony which shall be the official peony catalogue or manual of the society. This work should be so carefully compiled as to become the standard book of reference on the peony, a book which would doubtless be in demand to such an extent that its sale would eventually cover the cost of its publication.

The publication of the peony book and its control should be assumed by the society and as a step towards covering the cost of its publication it was suggested at the last meeting of the society in Philadelphia that at the completion of the work of identification of the peonies sent to the test plot at Cornell the surplus plants remaining after those for the permanent collection had been removed should be sold and the proceeds be used toward the publication of an official peony manual by the society. #### President Farr's Address.

A full decade has passed since this society was organized and for the third time we are assembled here at Cornell to consider the progress of the work we set out to accomplish ten years ago. Looking back we see that our membership roll of the earlier years contains but few names that are not with us at the present time, showing that the membership of this society, though small, has been steadfast and loyal in their support during these years that have passed. It is with more than usual gratification therefore that I welcome those of you who are able to be present at this meeting, and to those who are absent I can send good reports, for we are here to take an accounting of results, the visible evidence of which is here shown by the exhibit of blooms of authentic varieties shown here in the exhibition hall tions in these bulletins as a standard and the comparatively few errors that have been pointed out by those who have had an opportunity to examine them critically since they have been issued is the best proof of the care that has been exercised in compiling them.

I need not at this time go into the details of classification of the various types of blooms, the application of the color chart and other methods of describing varieties that have been adopted for you, neither is it necessary for me to repeat at length a history of the various steps which have marked the progress of this work here at Cornell. The members of the society and those who have been interested in a committee, consisting of Mr. R. T. Brown and myself, was appointed to go to Cornell and take an inventory of the plants remaining. This committee visited Cornell last June and compiled a list of the varieties showing the number of plants of each variety and the field numbers where they may be found. Negotiations have already been entered into looking toward a sale of these plants and it is probable that a definite action will be taken at this meeting.

In the future the society should use every effort to bring the merits of the peony to the attention of the general public who have yet but a slight knowledge of the many beautiful varieties that exist—their conception of the peony still being based on the few common varieties sold in the cut flower markets or those ordinarily seen on lawns. Whenever people of taste and means have an opportunity to see a fine collection of peonies for the first time they are carried away with admiration for them and they do not hesitate to purchase the most expensive varieties, and once started they soon become numbered among the peony enthusiasts, but as yet only a comparatively few really know the peony and for this reason our exhibitions in the future should be held at points where the largest number of people possible can have an opportunity to view them. As much publicity as possible should be given to these exhibitions and every effort made to attract the public to them. Growers and others interested should consider it their duty to participate in these exhibitions even though held at a considerable distance and in spite of the labor involved; which is always considerable where a creditable display is made.

The amateur membership of our society should be largely increased and they should be given every encouragement possible in our future exhibitions, for it is the enthusiasm of the amateur that is going to keep alive the interest in the peony and it is from his garden that we can look for the finest exhibition blooms, because he can give his plants space, nourishment and care that is impossible for the grower who must sell his roots and therefore be constantly dividing them before they reach their highest development. Recently some of the big seed houses in the largest cities have made a feature of having a large peony show during the season, sending out a large number of invitations in addition to advertising this display, with the result that thousands of visitors have been attracted and sales of roots have been greatly increased, both the public and seedsmen having an opportunity of viewing varieties for the first time that have been a revelation to them. Another method of bringing the peony to the attention of the public would be to establish large collections of plants of the best varieties in public parks in the larger cities where they could be under the care and protection of the authorities and be visited by the masses of people.

Now that the work of identification has progressed so far, the work of elimination may be taken in hand and the continued propagation of inferior varieties discouraged, as well as the introduction of new varieties that are not up to the highest standard. The society should, however, encourage exhibits of new seedlings of merit by American growers, and its standard should be such that its certificate of approval should be well worth seeking by the raiser of any new seedling that he wishes to introduce to the trade.

Ohio Wedding Decorations.

From Canton, Ohio, comes the report of one of the most novel and artistic floral displays ever seen in that city. The Brown Floral Co. completely changed the aspect of St. John's church, from a church into a veritable fairyland, for the wedding of Miss Jessie L. Rider to Chas. Laurenson, of Cleveland. The color scheme carried out was pink and white on a background of green, and rose pink peonies, white lilies, Killarney roses, pink and white sweet peas intermingled with smilax and ferns hid the walls and ceiling of the central altar, while the same sort of decorations were used at the bride's home in conjunction with the reception held there.

The Bridal Breakfast Table.

The bridal breakfast table can be beautifully and artistically arranged by taking two shades of rich red tulle or chiffon laid on the table from corner to corner, tying the ends of the scarf at each corner in a bow. In the center of this, place a cluster of lily of the valley. For the center piece make a large flat basket of red poppies in pyramid shape, using a wide ruche of maiden hair ferns as a finish. Make shades for the candelabra of lily of the valley and arrange the base of each with a circle of red poppies. Or, in place of the candelabra use small low handle baskets filled with lily of the valley. If poppies are not available use red carnations or red roses. Pink roses used in this manner and making the chiffon or tulle of green and using mignonette for the corner bows will be effective, especially if the pink moss rose is substituted and the moss green chiffon is used for sash on table. Cluster moss roses in the corner bows. This will also look well with cornflowers, using the light and dark blue flowers in cluster circles and having the chiffon of the paler shade of blue, with clusters of the dark blue cornflowers in the corner bows. For favors use the small white porcelain tubs filled with cornflowers. Or, if entire blue is not desired, use field daisies in combination, making a small pyramid of them in the center and clustering the cornflowers round them. Delft shoes can be filled with daisies and tied with delft ribbon rosettes; or, the tiny sprinklingpot filled with cornflowers is pretty.

June Floral Arrangements in England.

There is now an abundant supply of flowers for indoor decoration. Any hardy flower garden worthy of the name should provide all that is necessary for room decoration in the late spring and early summer, and only where a change in the character of the decoration is desired should it be necessary to draw upon the resources of the glass houses. Owing to the early season many subjects that are usually at their best in late May are already over. May-flowering tulips have rendered signal service during the last few weeks, according to a writer in Gardening Illustrated, and the more one sees of these beautiful flowers the keener is one's appreciation of their value for cutting. When grouped in masses of one color or of one variety in the outdoor garden, these May-flowering tulips are especially noteworthy. In the midlands and the north there is little doubt that it will be possible to utilize these flowers for some little time yet. For bold and handsome displays these late-flowering tulips are unequalled at this season. Bows and large trumpet vases are well adapted for displaying them to advantage. To shorten back the stems seems nothing short of sacrilege. I have so frequently seen this shortening of the flower stems carried out that I have never hesitated to condemn the practice and would urge all who wish to make the most of their flowers, to refrain from following such an undesirable practice. Hand-baskets filled with a vessel containing water, or water and moss, may be utilized to display these tulips effectively. Crowding of the blooms must be avoided if artistic floral pictures are to be created. Each flower should speak for itself. As the stems vary in length it is a good plan when making a simple decoration to arrange as many blooms as it is proposed to place in a vase, etc., in one hand, keeping the end of the stems together, and then carefully placing them as a whole in the receptacle. So soon as the hand releases its grasp of the stems the flowers invariably settle down in position quite naturally, and owing to the varying length of stem the flowers are naturally adjusted. More elaborate methods may, of course, be adopted, such as placing each individual flower in its proper place, but there is then always a tendency to get a somewhat formal and extremely orthodox arrangement. I have seen arrangements that suggest they have been turned out of a mould, and they are then anything but pleasing. Numerous little specimen glasses, tubes and earthenware bowls are to be found in most homes, and these are well suited to dispose one, two, or three blooms effectively, but do not unduly shorten the flower-stems. In the case of the early-flowering Dutch tulips, I use their own foliage, but in the case of the May-flowering species this is hardly to be expected. Any hardy foliage, from the hedgerow or elsewhere is utilized, and when this is not available recourse has to be made to asparagus, ferns and foliage of a tender kind. Readers who cannot grow their own flowers can get ample supplies from most local florists. I have never seen so many flowers in the florists' windows as there have been during this spring, and their cost has been so low that persons with the most slender purse could not complain.

What is more delightful than a good bunch of wallflowers? These flowers have been, and are still, very beautiful, and one can cut and come again with a bed of good proportions. They must not be left in the water too long without being replenished, however, otherwise they get very unpleasant. Frequent renewal of the water and a fresh gathering of flowers every two or three days are most important. The blood-red and yellow flowers should be about equally balanced for the best effects.

Iris of all kinds are now very fine. Their soft and pleasing tones of color are especially refreshing, and vases well placed in dwelling-rooms are much appreciated. Irises should be gathered with a good length of flower-stalk, and if a few pieces of their own foliage can be acquired so much the better. Although large receptacles display these irises very effectively, I prefer to arrange just a few blooms of one color in some of the smaller receptacles, of which there are so many to choose from nowadays. Rather narrow, deep, earthenware vases, not by any means large, answer the purpose very well, and bronze ware is ideal. For some time past small and moderate-sized vessels have been used for displaying chaste sprays of blossoms of the double-flowered rock cress. Being of such simple culture, and yielding such a profuse display, apart from its value in the open air, this double rock cress must be regarded as especially useful just now. Forced roses and perpetual-flowering carnations also abound, and these flowers need to be used more sparingly in consequence of their cost. Length of stem here plays an important part in a successful decoration, and the grouping of colors should be observed, unless the decoration be confined to one color or one variety only.

Plants Need Regular Attention.

The plants in the field are now at the stage of rapid, vigorous growth, the growing shoots lengthening out in a very little while, making the work of topping them back a very important feature at the present time. So much of the future success of the plants depends on how carefully and regularly this important work is carried on that I would urge a close attention to it right along. The stock that was propagated early with the intention of planting early for early bloom will particularly need close attention to have the plants in the best of shape for planting in the houses the latter part of July or early in August. From now on it will be necessary to go over the plants every week and with some varieties more often, topping back such shoots as need it, following it up regularly so as to insure even, sturdy plants. Varieties differ so much in the character of their growth that some will stand closer and later pinching back than others. The varieties with a long, thin, grassy growth will stand more severe pinching than those of wider and shorter growth. Take as an example the varieties Beacon and Victory. The first named will stand for close pinching, but Victory will curl and thicken up in its growth if too severely topped.

Another very important part of the general routine of the work is to keep the cultivator continually going. After a rain start cultivating as soon as you can get on the land and keep it up regularly while dry enough to operate the machine. In cases where the plants are set in beds that will not allow for working a cultivator, the surface soil should be kept open by frequent hoeings. If you allow the weeds to overgrow the plants you cannot expect fine, sturdy plants for planting.

Many growers do not plant out in the field at all but follow the indoor all summer culture, and are now planting the plants in their permanent quarters. To those who intend following out this method it is now time for the plants to be in the benches, and the work of getting them planted should be hurried along to give the plants a chance to give favorable account of themselves under this style of culture. To make ready for planting these indoor grown plants, it seems hardly necessary to advise a thorough repairing and cleaning up of the houses and washing out and lime washing the inside of the benches, yet this is just as important as it ever was.

After the repairing and cleaning up is done the next thing is the question of soil; and to solve this, consideration should be taken of the fact that freshly planted stock under glass at this season will make a very rapid growth, and a soil that is overcharged with fresh manure is very likely to cause a soft, long-jointed growth, which is one of the important things that ought to be guarded against. A live, moderately fine, and not too stiff soil is the best suited to them. Before bringing it in, spread a thin layer of well rotted manure on the bottom of the bench to prevent the soil running through the cracks and to act as a nourishment for the plants later in the season. Then fill in the soil to the top of the bench firming it down so as to be about five inches deep. Ten inches apart each way is ample room for indoor grown plants, as they do not make as heavy or as much grass as the field grown plants. One very important item to look out for is to make sure that the surface of the bed is even, so that there is not any chance of the water flowing to one place more than another and some of the plants getting too wet. Directly after planting and until the plants have a firm hold in the soil, watering should be given the plants only and not the whole bench, so that the soil will remain fresh and sweet for the roots to work in.

During very hot weather the plants should be syringed two or three times a day to cool the atmosphere and keep down red spider; but do not allow the syringing to be heavy enough to act as a watering, as the soil is very likely to get too wet in a very short while. If a heavy shade has been put on the glass for filling in the soil and planting, do not let it remain on longer than five or six days. The plants need only a very light shade to break the direct rays of the sun. Pinching back the growths is also as essential for these as for the plants in the field, and the success of the undertaking greatly depends on paying strict attention to this work. Very shortly after planting the weeds will begin to show up but they must be cleaned out as soon as large enough to handle properly. When the beds are clean continued scratching of the soil should be followed up to keep it open and sweet.

Piping Greenhouse.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

I wish to pipe two houses for hot water and would like to use 4-inch second-hand boiler tubes. The houses are 25x100 feet inside and 20x100 feet inside, cement walls to eave plate, houses connected and running north and south, south end gable glass, no glass in side walls, potting shed and boiler pit on north end, 25-foot house to be sixty degrees, night, with outside temperature at twenty degrees below zero and 20-foot house to be fifty degrees, outside temperature twenty degrees below. I have a second-hand marine boiler and cannot get top of boiler below benches. Would it be practicable to put all piping under the benches or would it be possible to connect boiler tubes satisfactorily for overhead flows and how many pipes would I need in each house? T. J. F.

Michigan.

Replying to "T. J. F.," we would say that while better results could be obtained if the top of the boiler would be as low as the greenhouse floor, it would be possible to secure fairly satisfactory results by placing one of the four-inch pipes as a flow on each of the wall plates in each of the houses. For the returns use five lines of pipe on each side in the 25-foot house to secure sixty degrees, and four lines on each side of the 20-foot house to secure a temperature of fifty degrees. If preferred, a part of the return pipes could be under the other benches in both of the houses. Care should be taken to keep all of the pipes as high as possible. The flow pipes should be given a very slight fall and a drop of one inch in ten or fifteen feet will be ample for the returns. L. R. TAFT.

THE ROSE.

Roses in the Mississippi Valley.

Paper read by Charles W. Fullgraf before the American Rose Society at Detroit, Mich., January 11, 1912.

In answer to a request by your society to Mr. Otto Koenig, St. Louis, for a brief article on "Roses in the Mississippi Valley," I beg to submit the following paper. It is rather a collection of notes from the representative rose growers in the vicinity and my own ideas, especially in regard to forcing, as I am interested entirely in outdoor work. Presuming that the majority of those present are practical growers, I am only touching lightly on general culture of greenhouse roses, confining myself generally to the varieties, insect pests and plant diseases and the type of houses used in this section. In dividing the subject into forcing roses for cut flowers and outdoor roses, chiefly for home use, I will take up the forcing first.

GREENHOUSE ROSES.

The culture of roses for cut flowers is not carried on very extensively in the immediate vicinity of St. Louis, the majority being shipped mostly from Illinois and Indiana; this is caused by the cost of fuel and also the soil of these states, it being much richer than west of the Mississippi River, which is mostly hard, yellow clay. There are, however, a few growers who are raising very good stock in our vicinity. In sizing up the situation I believe that one of the most important factors is the selection of proper location and the erection of suitable houses. An ideal location is on the south hillside, which is protected on the north and west by buildings or a heavy growth of timber.

unanimous in their selection of wide, high houses, ranging from 25 to 50 feet wide, the majority favoring houses 35 to 40 feet wide with sides seven to nine feet high, respectively, half of which should be glass which is used as ventilation. There are a few large detached houses built in this section, but the ridge and furrow type are more common as they are cheaper to construct and I think give practically the same results. But the two-thirds and three-quarters span houses with the long side to the south are considered more desirable as they give more light when it is needed most. These houses require slight shade during the hotter portions of the year. The high houses give a much better circulation of air and a more uniform temperature can be maintained.

The heating of these large houses should be done by steam, as it is more flexible than hot water and requires less piping; the principal objection to steam being that it requires constant attendance, but as it is necessary to have a man to look after the heating plant of places of this size at all times, that objection is removed. Both low pressure and high pressure at boiler, with reduction valves and steam traps are used, the latter proving more economical as a cheaper grade of fuel can be used. The interior arrangement and soil, etc., are too generally known to be discussed at this time, but one advantage of bridge and furrow type houses is a walk beneath the gutter, as that space is practically valueless for rose growing. The majority of growers use raised benches about three feet from the ground, that height being most convenient for work on the benches.

Members of Society Holding Animated Discussion Among Nursery Collections.

If this cannot be obtained any piece of ground that has an unobstructed southern exposure is acceptable. Where there is no protection from the north and west of course the fuel consumption will be greater. The construction of the houses is, in the opinion of many growers, a most important factor; the principal thing is to obtain all the light possible during the winter months when the crop is most valuable and the growers of this vicinity are

In the selection of varieties, the following are considered by all the growers whom I have consulted as being the most satisfactory: Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond, Maryland, Mrs. A. Ward, American Beauty and a few Ivory and Perles des Jardins. Of these varieties, the first five named are grown very extensively and give good results for three to four years, but it is much better to plant the Beauties and Perles every year. The young plants should be benched as soon after May 1 as possible, but where re-planting old plants they can be moved as late as August 1 with comparative safety. American Beauty plants are used by some growers after they are taken from the benches for pot plants for the following spring. They are planted out in the field, to be potted up and placed in cold frames in the fall, brought out and forced as needed during the winter and spring. They make very good pot plants and demand a good price.

The insects and diseases which have proved the most trouble are the thrip, mildew, black spot, rose leaf roller, and green fly. Of these thrip seems to have caused the most trouble and is generally combated with nicotine in different forms, and one grower is getting results from the use of Paris green and brown sugar, used as a spray. Sulphur painted on the pipes is the chief method of treating mildew, while hand-picking is the best way of checking the black spot. Green fly is easily controlled by fumigating with nicotine preparations, and the leaf roller by the use of arsenic poisons. Hydrocyanic gas has not as yet been thoroughly tested but I believe where the house is air-tight it will come into use in the future, but where houses have many air-holes, the gas is wasted and will not give good results.

OUTDOOR ROSES.

The growing of outdoor roses is divided into two classes, one for cut flowers commercially and the other for home use. The cultivation is practically the same in both cases, except where there are only a few roses grown greater care in the preparation of the beds can be had than when growing in fields in large numbers.

The varieties which are used for commercial purposes are naturally very good for garden and home use, but there are a large number of additional varieties which prove very satisfactory in the garden which are not valuable for the growing of cut flowers. In growing roses in the open, the first thing to be considered is the location, as they must have the most light and sun possible, and, if possible, be protected on the north and west from the winter winds. It is the best to plant them on the south side of a hedge, building or other windbreak. The land should be high and well drained, as the roses will not thrive in cold, wet soil. If the soil is inclined at all to be soggy, it is best to put in artificial drainage immediately, as it will be far less expensive, and save the loss of at least one year's time, than to wait and see if the plants will grow. In case plants do not thrive the first year, it is well to immediately look into the conditions as it is useless to continue under the same conditions.

In preparing the ground for a rose bed, the soil should be removed to about two feet in depth and if the sub-soil is clay, clay should be entirely removed and the drainage, if necessary, put in at that time. It can consist of broken brick, rock or other similar materials, or 4-inch clay tile with cinders which have weathered for a year or two and should have an outlet to a drain or lower ground level. The soil for filling the bed should be made up of about 75 per cent of good clay loam, five per cent of bone meal and 20 per cent of well rooted manure. This should be filled in to within six inches of the top and packed firm, and the remainder of the bed filled with good loam, leaving out the fertilizers as it is desired to have the plants make as deep a root growth as possible. Where the loam is very heavy, it is well to lighten it with sand or humus for the planting of the ever-blooming roses, especially the hybrid teas, but the hybrid perpetuals seem to prefer the heavy soil.

As the roses in this locality should be planted as early in the spring as possible it is best to prepare the bed the preceding fall, mounding it up to allow for settling of the loose soil, and moving the surplus in the spring. Hybrid perpetuals should be planted about two feet apart but ever-blooming roses can be planted 18 inches apart without crowding, but if space permits, I prefer to have both kinds a little farther apart. When planting, the earth should be thoroughly packed around the roots, and the entire bed soaked with water. This applies to roses in the dormant state but in planting roses of the ever-green type, I much prefer plants which have been made from the cuttings the preceding August and kept growing during the winter and planted after the danger of severe frost. These plants should, if properly grown, be in 3-inch pots and given a large amount of loam the first year, and will become thoroughly established with very little trouble. The plants should be kept cultivated until about the first of June when they should be mulched with about two inches of rotted horse manure or leaves to retain the moisture during the hot months of the summer. The watering of roses during the summer is quite important and should not be done until absolutely necessary and then given a thorough soaking about once a week as light watering or sprinkling does more harm than good.

The insects which are the most trouble are practically confined to the leaf roller and the green worm which eats out the buds, though the green fly sometimes becomes troublesome in wet weather. These are easily controlled as before mentioned under greenhouse culture with the exception of the worm which eats the buds and which has to be picked off by hand. The care of roses during the winter months comprises a careful mulching with straw or leaves as soon as the ground is frozen and the pruning which is done in the spring. The pruning of roses is for the purpose of obtaining more or larger bloom and as the flowers are born on new wood produced from the current year's growth, all old wood should be cut away each year except in the case of climbers and other tall growing sorts, where it is necessary to retain the old canes. These should be removed one or two at a time as new ones grow.

It is well to cut ever-blooming roses almost to the ground as they give better results than when only lightly trimmed, and the hybrid perpetuals, if it is desired to have a few large blooms, most of the canes should be removed to the ground and the remaining canes cut back about one-third; but if a large number of blooms are wanted the canes should be practically all left, removing only a few of the older canes which are non-bearing.

The varieties used are governed by the use to which they are to be put. In cases where the owner goes away for the summer and does not come back until late fall, the hybrid perpetual roses are largely planted, but where the place is occupied the entire summer, and where the flowers are used for commercial purposes, the ever-blooming roses are used entirely, except in connection with shrubby roots where a few hybrid perpetuals are sometimes used with Rosa rugosa—which is classed among the shrubs. Planting for commercial purposes is similar to garden culture except that the ground is covered with manure, then plowed as deep as possible and then harrowed instead of digging out and replacing the soil, as this process would be too expensive. The beds are usually made as long as possible, with about six rows of plants between the walks, thus giving easiest manner of cultivation and gathering. The varieties which are commonly used for commercial cutting are Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, White and Pink Maman Cochet, Detroit and Madame Groletz. The best ever-blooming roses for garden use, including the above and in addition are Antoine Rivoire, La France, White Cochet, Pink Cochet, Mrs. E. R. Cant, Gruss an Teplitz, Hermosa, Clothilde Soupert, Rhea Reid, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria and hybrid perpetuals are Paul Neron, Mme. Masson, Clio, Boule de Neige, Anna de Diesbach, Eugene Furst, Frau Karl Druschki, Mrs. John Laing, Ulrich Brunner, Margaret Dickson, while the best climbing roses are Dorothy Perkins, Crimson Rambler, White Dorothy Perkins, Alberic Barbier.

In conclusion, I have found that roses as a whole do not do well in St. Louis owing to the fact that it is quite smoky, but that Rosa rugosa, which is used as a shrub, seems to do exceedingly well no matter where it is placed or in what kind of soil. We do not use many of its varieties, confining ourselves principally to the Japanese type and the white variety. Of the climbers, Dorothy Perkins and Crimson Rambler are most commonly used, Dorothy Perkins being the favorite, as Crimson Rambler becomes mildewed and looks quite shabby late in the summer.

In my capacity as landscape architect, I find that most people desire a rose bed somewhere on their premises, though few care to have a rose garden as they deem it too much trouble.

Tacoma Rose Show.

The Tacoma second annual rose show which closed recently was a success in every way. It was undoubtedly the largest display of the kind ever held in the city and proved Tacoma to be in one of the best outdoor rose growing regions in the country. The show was held in the armory, which was decorated with palms, ferns and hanging festoons, with a background of evergreens in solid banks. More than thirty thousand blooms were shown and though they were grown outdoors thousands of them were the equal of the best greenhouse product. There were nearly eight thousand blooms of the Caroline Testout. No less than twenty-five of the late new varieties were exhibited, many of them being especially adapted to outdoor bedding.

A few of the late sensational roses were shown, practically all of which will be first-class as bedding-out sorts. The display of one hundred and forty or more roses shown as individual flowers of that many sorts by the Lisbon Rose Co., of Portland, Ore., was a fine one and each individual rose seemed a perfect specimen. A. Lingham of Puyallup, Wash., had a very nice display of cut roses of probably sixty-

Canadian Horticultural Association.

The fifteenth annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association will be held in Montreal, Quebec, August 6-9. The convention will open with an address by the mayor of Montreal, followed by the regular routine of business. The morning of the following day will be spent in listening to answers to questions left in the question box, a paper on "The Cost of Production of Florists' Stock," by W. W. Gammage, London, Ont.; report of the judges on trade exhibit, and a discussion of the president's address. In the afternoon visitors will be guests of the Harbor Commission. In the evening the following papers will be given: "Economic Management of a Retail Store," by George M. Geraghy, Toronto, Ont.; "Commercial Orchids," by Thos. Manton, Eglinton, Ont. The next day the city of Montreal will entertain the guests during the morning, while the afternoon will be devoted to completing the unfinished business and watching a practical demonstration on the arrangement of cut flowers, by H. Dillemoth of Toronto. The association banquet occurs in the evening and a visit to Macdonald College the next day will conclude the festivities.

The officers of the association are: A. C. Wilshire, president; Walter Muston, first vice president; H. B. Cordan, second vice president; J. Luck, secretary; J. H. Jangen, treasurer; Geo. A. Robinson, 825 St. Catherine St. West, Montreal, superintendent of trade exhibit.

Hybrid Saxifraga.

Hybrid saxifrages, both in the encrusted and mossy sections, are now so numerous that they have largely supplanted the wild types in gardens. S. cochlearis is a most variable plant, there being in cultivation three well-marked forms, one, known as the type, with medium-sized rosettes, S. cochlearis var. major, which is much larger in all its parts, and S. cochlearis, var. minor, a diminutive variety of graceful habit, which has recently been raised by one authority to specific rank under the name of S. Probynii. S. lantoscana, usually classed as a variety of S. lingulata, is a plant of great beauty, with silvery rosettes of leaves and arching inflorescences, having all the flowers on the upper side. The hybrid is from a cross between S. cochlearis and S. lantoscana; it has the habit of the first-named species, being upright and freely branching, with the larger flowers of the other species. The flowers are white, with a few pink spots and lines near the base of the petals, while the leaves are intermediate in character, being not quite so spatulate as in S. cochlearis. Of free-flowering and graceful habit, the hybrid should prove a welcome acquisition for the rock garden, even although well over 200 distinct members of the genus Saxifraga are grown in gardens.—W. I. in The London Gardeners' Chronicle.

CHATHAM, N. J.—Harry A. Stollery, brother of the Stollery Brothers, Argyle Park, Chicago, has just gone to England on the Lusitania. He is foreman of the Sunnywoods Greenhouses for Frank L. Moore of Moore, Hentz & Nash. While over there, he will visit his old home in Suffolk and call at some of the famous rose and orchid growing establishments.

Albany, N. Y.

Among the June weddings of note was that of Edward P. Tracy of Meane & Tracy, The Rosery, June 24. The bride was Miss Elizabeth F. Houlihan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Houlihan of this city. The ceremony took place in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, where the Rev. Father Kelly officiated. Thomas F. Tracy, brother of the groom, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Tracy are in Washington on their honeymoon.

Residents of Saratoga are making preparations for a historical and legendary pageant to be held in Congress Spring park, August 19-24. The episodes, mainly events in the colonial and revolutionary days of the village, will be enacted upon a level stretch of green with a background of gentle slopes, magnificent trees, and luxuriant foliage. One thousand people will take part in the cast.

John L. Hunt has been elected to succeed Jerome B. Rice as president of the Cambridge Valley fair. Mr. Rice who died on June 11 was a well known seedsman and the leading spirit in the management of the fair. Mr. Hunt was for years confidential assistant to Mr. Rice in the management of his affairs. R. D.

Peony La Lorraine.

Peony La Lorraine is described by Lemoine as the result of a cross between Pæonia lutea, a canary-yellow flowered species introduced from China, and a variety of P. Moutan. Its stems are strong and woody; its foliage has the same appearance as most of the tree peonies grown in the gardens; the color of the leaves is a clear green, with a tinge of purple on the petioles and the midribs. The floral peduncles are rather short and carry large well expanded flowers of a good substance, quite full, the petals, nearly imbricated, being of a soft sulphur yellow with a salmon tinge when opening, the color becoming lighter and purer when fully expanded. This variety, which normally flowers in the first days of June, is perfectly hardy, and by no means difficult to propagate.

Sowbugs.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

Will you please give us information as to what will exterminate sowbugs and other insects without injury to the flowers? This year the greenhouse has been alive with sowbugs, which have proved very destructive to the flowers, especially the carnations. We are remodeling the greenhouse and nearly all the plants are out of doors, therefore, would like to know of something that will clean them entirely up.

Utah.

P. F. C.

In the treatment of sowbugs, poisoned baits are the standard remedies. The fondness of sowbugs for potatoes long ago led to these being used poisoned either with Paris green or London purple; the potatoes are sliced and a thin covering of the powder applied. In addition to Paris green and London purple, arsenate of lead may be used. A still cheaper substitute is white arsenic, which is quite inexpensive, but is, however, dangerous to apply to delicate plants. One or two tablespoonfuls of white arsenic to a bucketful of bran, sweetened with a quart of syrup or molasses, and the mixture placed in small lots on the beds, will prove very effective in controlling these insects. All old boards, broken crocks, and other rubbish should be cleaned out, for under these they congregate and breed. Such precautions will tend to greatly prevent any great damage or annoyance. F. H. ## OBITUARY.

William Roethke.

William Roethke, president of the William Roethke Floral Co., died at his home at Saginaw, Mich., June 9. He was 80 years old and was one of the best known florists in the state. He was born in Prussia and was at one time florist on the estate of the Count of Arnim, a brother-in-law to Prince Bismark. Mr. Roethke came here after financial reverses in the old country and built his business up from a very modest beginning to one of the largest floral firms in the state. Three sons and two daughters survive. They are: Emil, Charles and Otto Roethke, Mrs. Henry Beisterfeld and Mrs. Gustave Granse, all of this city.

Theodore F. Frank.

Theodore F. Frank of Buffalo, N. Y., fell quietly asleep Friday, June 14, on the fifty-third anniversary of his wedding day, aged 82. Mr. Frank was born in Prussia May 6, 1830, served his apprentice term in Erfurt and after gaining experience in different greenhouses in Germany came to America in 1856. After being engaged in different branches of horticulture until 1876 he founded the business which he conducted until his death. Though his health was impaired by accidents which occurred after his seventy-fifth year, his energy and love of flowers impelled him to active labor among them to the day of his death. His was the first break in the family circle and he is survived by his wife and five children. A horror of debt and a pride in being perfectly solvent made him conduct his business in a conservative manner, which proved satisfactory to all who dealt with him. It is expected that the business will be continued in his name as the best monument to his memory.

Resolutions on the Death of E. A. Wood.

Whereas, The death of Elijah A. Wood, June 1, 1912, removes one of our most keenly interested members and a man endowed with a knowledge of floriculture far beyond that of the average plantsman and artist in flowers, he having been noted as a raiser of new chrysanthemums, originating a number of highly meritorious varieties, including Edward Hatch and Golden Hair, also conspicuously successful in the cultivation of these plants, and

MRS. GEO. EBELING of Chicago is suing for divorce on the ground that her husband sent her a box of poisoned flowers. The city chemist examined the flowers and could find no trace of any poisonous substance.

Personal.

J. A. Valentine celebrated his fifty-third birthday June 26.

Next Week's Holiday.

Next week's issue will go to press earlier than usual on account of the holiday and advertisers and correspondents will therefore oblige by mailing their copy one day earlier than usual.

Pickler's Fate.

The increasing use of artificial flowers, in preference to high priced natural stock from storage, otherwise known as "pickled" or "salted" stock, will surely put the "For Sale" sign on many greenhouses, as one of our correspondents remarks in a recent issue.

National Sweet Pea Society.

The final schedule, entry blank and programme of the annual convention and exhibition of the National Sweet Pea Society, to be held at Boston, Mass., July 13-14, is now ready and can be had on application to William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., president, or Harry A. Bunyard, 342 West Fourteenth street, New York, secretary.

National Council of Horticulture.

The fifth installment of the press service of the National Council of Horticulture contains articles upon the following subjects: "Seeds to Sow in Midsummer," "The Madonna Lily," "Watermelons." These articles are timely and instructive and are distributed to florists, seedsmen, nurserymen and the press for the purpose of extending the interest in horticulture. Copies may be obtained of J. H. Burdett, 1620 West 104th place, Chicago.

"Lawn Soils and Lawns."

We are in receipt of Farmers' Bulletin No. 494, entitled "Lawn Soils and Lawns" by Oswald Schreiner and J. J. Skinner, of the Bureau of Soils, and L. C. Corbett and F. L. Mulford of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture. The bulletin of 48 pages contains much valuable data regarding the making and maintenance of lawns, with numerous illustrations. We note such suggestive sub-titles as "Adaptability of Soils," "Influence of Building Debris," "Soil Building for Lawns," "Soil Grading for Lawns," "Preventing Erosion of Terrace Banks," "Grasses Adapted to Lawn Making," "Sodding." "When to Plant a Lawn," etc.

Why Not Patents for Plants?

It took the law-makers of the world many centuries to provide more or less adequate protection for the inventor—the man who gives to the world a useful process, a useful compound, or a useful machine of which it never knew before. Not yet have they realized the necessity of encouraging and rewarding the man who adds to the world's wealth by means no less practical than those of the inventor of steam engines or the designer of new chemical compounds—the man, in a word, who improves the living things of nature instead of fashioning new things out of inanimate matter. We have devised a patent system for the protection of him who invents a novel way of generating power, a novel way of communicating between New York and London, a novel way of weaving; but we have not yet protected the experimenter who gives us a variety of wheat richer in protein than the old, or a variety of cattle immune to the Texas fever tick. By a curious anomaly a man may patent a new instrument for discovering a useful microbe; but if he devises a means for increasing that microbe's usefulness to the world, he cannot patent his discovery. Why not?—Scientific American.

National Flower Show.

The list of premiums to be awarded at the National Flower Show is rapidly increasing. In addition to the prizes listed in the preliminary schedule already distributed, and which amounted to nearly $10,000, there are others which bring the total value to date approximately to $16,000; with others promised and to be provided, the total prize list at the opening of the show will undoubtedly considerably exceed $20,000. In addition to the premiums of intrinsic value, there will, of course, be awarded the usual certificates of merit and culture. Never before in America at a horticultural show has the prize list even approached the value of the one in preparation for the forthcoming show. At the recent horticultural exhibition held in London, the greatest exhibition of its kind ever held, the prize list was roughly estimated, by an English horticultural journal, at £4,000 ($19,480). This amount, it is expected, will be exceeded in the value of the prizes to be offered at our own National Flower Show in 1913.

The prizes in the Rose section are liberal. Over $1,000 is offered for rose plant exhibits, and this amount will be more than duplicated for exhibits of cut roses. The carnation awards will be on the same liberal scale. The orchid section will be most interesting, the many very substantial prizes being calculated to bring out an unusual number of exhibits covering both cut plants and flowers. The twelve classes for bulbous plants and flowers are likely to prove very popular to growers of bulbous flowers, both professional and amateur, and it is not too early for intending exhibitors to plan their bulb requirements in order to enter these classes. The prizes in the classes covering the general groups and collections of flowering and decorative plants are very generous, as well as those for specimen and varietal groups. A preliminary schedule was prepared and sent out several months ago, but this naturally covered mainly the sections entailing very early preparation for exhibits. The schedule covering the classes for cut flowers and exhibits not requiring any length of time for preparation will appear in the final schedule and will be published next fall or before the first of next year. Copies of the preliminary schedule may still be had on application to John Young, secretary of the National Flower Show, at 54 West Twenty-eighth street, New York City. Chairman Charles H. Totty has returned from a visit to the London International Exposition primed with ideas innumerable, many of which should prove of value in the promotion of our "greatest American Show."

JOHN H. PEPPER,
Chairman Publicity Committee.

BUSINESS VERY GOOD LAST WEEK.

Business was very good last week with most of the wholesale houses and the general report is that all kinds of seasonable cut flowers sold well. Trade fell off, however, the following Sunday, and on Monday the demand was very light. American Beauty roses are still in demand and is about the only item that cleans up well. Lily of the valley is having a good call and orchids have advanced considerably in price with a further advance expected. Fancy peonies are bringing good prices and carnations of inferior quality continue to be a drug on the market. Good quality carnations sell at fairly good prices but there is very little stock obtainable. Sweet peas are moving freely but at very low prices, and fine lilies are yet in great over-supply. A shortage in American Beauty roses was reported last week, due mostly to the cool weather and not to the increased demand. Gladioli of very fine quality are arriving in very large quantities and outdoor flowers of every description are obtainable everywhere. Gardenias are scarce and greens of all kinds are plentiful. Prince De Bulgarie, Melody and Mrs. Aaron Ward roses are having a good call and are being used freely in high class decorative work. My Maryland, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria and Rhea Reid roses are arriving in fine condition, and Killarney and White Killarney are in good shape. Both indoor and outdoor asters are plentiful and field daisies, stocks, marguerites, Spanish Iris and feverfew are moving slowly. At this writing stock of all kinds is plentiful with no shortage in anything. The market on Wednesday was a little better, due probably to the cool and favorable weather. Employees are now leaving on their vacation and the principal talk on the market is the coming S. A. F. convention.

NOTES.

The Cook County Florists' Association baseball team was out for practice for the first time on June 23 and is rapidly rounding into form with the intention of trimming up the Chicago Carnation Co.'s crack baseball team at Joliet on July 4. The boys cordially invite the trade to accompany them on the trip and partake of a basket party which will be given on the same day. The train leaves at 11:45 a. m. over the Rock Island railway and all those who intend to make the trip should notify Allie Zech so the proper arrangements for all can be made. Manager Pyfer will be on hand at the other end of the line and will entertain the crowd at his home at Cherry Hill. Be sure and bring your lunch along.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting heavily in Rhea Reid and Mrs. Aaron Ward roses and the quality is exceptionally fine. The cut of American Beauties is also very large and their many customers are well pleased with the quality of the stock that they are receiving.

John Kruchten is handling a fine grade of all kinds of reasonable stock and the flowers are exceptionally fine for shipping purposes. Peonies, asters, gladioli, lily of the valley and roses of unusually good quality are but a few of the many offerings.

John Mangel arranged several large decorations at the Blackstone Hotel last week and says that the Republican convention helped trade considerably and that he had all the work from this source that he could properly attend to.

Peter Reinberg is having a good call for Sunrise roses and the cut of roses in general is large, with American Beauties in heavy supply. Trade at this house last week was very satisfactory.

L. Hoeckner is doing fine this season with his flower booth at Riverview Park and he has everything his way at present owing to the large quantities of flowers now on the market.

Walter Wright, 6221 Rhodes Ave., will be the new secretary of the Small Parks Commission, having received the highest average at the examination before the civil service board.

Fred Sperry, formerly in the wholesale business in this city, left on June 24 for Los Angeles, Calif., where he intends to make his home in the future.

Tony Einweck, E. H. Hunt's cut flower man, will leave June 30 for a few weeks' visit with friends and relatives at Washington, Ia.

The interior of Paul Blome & Co.'s store, was badly damaged on the evening of June 23 when fire broke out in the flat above.

A. S. Whitney, formerly of this locality, returned from California June 19, having spent some years on the coast.

Robert Roberts, formerly buyer for the Geo. Wittbold Co., is now salesman for the Batavia Greenhouse Co.

Ralph Keefe, salesman for the Batavia Greenhouse Co., left June 25 for a few weeks' visit in the east.

The local wholesale stores will close at 5 p. m. during the months of July and August.

H. N. Bruns intends to leave for Europe some time this week.

Joe Welsh and his lady friend spent June 23 in Milwaukee, Wis.

Miss H. V. Tonner will on July 1 turn over her wholesale business to her sister, Miss Olga, who has been with her for the past five years and who will hereafter conduct the business under the old firm name. Miss Tonner wishes to thank her many friends for their kind patronage in the past and sincerely hopes that they will continue to patronize her sister in the future. The trade greatly regrets to hear of Miss Tonner's departure and all wish her much success in her new venture. "Coming events cast their shadows before."

The Cook County Florists' Association held a regular monthly meeting at the Tavern, 174 West Washington street, last Thursday, June 20, with President Kohlbrand in the chair. The by-laws were adopted, luncheon was served, and E. C. Amling and H. E.

Philpott, life members of the association, were presented with a beautiful wallet as a token of appreciation by the club. The coming picnic, which will be given at Karthausers grove, July 14, was discussed and promises to be a banner affair.

Wietor Bros. report business as very good and find both the local and shipping trade brisk. Carnations are arriving at this store in fine condition and the American Beauty roses are of their usual good quality.

James Curran says that this is funeral week in his district and among the many designs that were made up was a regulation size fire-alarm box of lily of the valley and pink roses.

Wm. Kotshonis, the White House Florist, is enjoying a good transient trade at his store on South Wabash avenue.

Al. Lehman, with the E. C. Amling

Co., leaves this week for a well earned rest on the farm.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, was in the city on a few days' pleasure trip this week.

Visitors: Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; Meyer Heller, New Castle, Ind.

Chicago Florists' Club.

Chicago Pastimes.

The Chicago Florists' Club baseball team defeated the crack Kimball Park nine last Sunday, June 23, in a close and exciting game by a 10 to 9 score. The Kimballs had the best of the argument in the opening inning when six of their men crossed the plate through a number of costly errors, but the Florists came back strong and managed to even up the score in the next seven innings and bring in the winning point by an eighth inning rally. Tony Einweck duplicated his feat of the Sunday before by slamming out a four-bagger and sending in two runs. All members of the team are earnestly requested to report for practice at the usual meeting place next Sunday, June 31, at 1 p. m. sharp.

The bowling season closed on June 29, and as usual Al. Fischer carried off nearly all the individual honors, followed closely by Allie Zech. The team prizes were as follows: Orchids, first prize, $25.00; Carnations, second prize, $15.00; Roses, third prize, $10.00; Violets, fourth prize, $5.00.

SUMMER DULLNESS BEGINS.

The past week the retailers were fairly busy but the summer dullness is here. The quality of the flowers is poor. Carnations especially, with but few exceptions, look sleepy and roses are getting small and in some cases show signs of mildew. The wholesalers are closing early and the buyers of two weeks ago are not to be seen. Outdoor peas are arriving slowly, the heavy rains having curtailed the supply. The growers are throwing out, cleaning and preparing for next season. Quite a good many indoor gladioli are in. The outdoor gladioli will be in shortly.

NOTES.

William C. Smith, of the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., spent a few days at Edwardsville, Ill., at the home of his father-in-law. In his absence Wm. Ossig and Frank Windler took care of the business. They are receiving a fine lot of gladioli and a limited supply of outdoor peas.

Ostertag Bros. are adding constantly to the improvements of their store. They have secured additional space for taking care of their large assortment of decorative plants. Henry celebrated his birthday last week at his home, receiving congratulations from his many friends.

H. G. Berning has many carnations and roses notwithstanding the scarcity of good stock. He seemed to move them at the best possible prices. He had a nice consignment of good color long American Beauty roses.

George H. Angermueller, the well known wholesaler, was married last Thursday, to Mrs. Mina S. Myers, who has recently conducted a retail store. Her establishment is now for sale.

The Alexander Floral Co., which has completed its new "rose house," expects to be in line this fall. The company also has a house devoted to the raising of fancy chrysanthemums.

Grimm & Gorly have been doing a large business the last week. Their entire force is still on duty as they have not as yet had to lay any off on account of the dull season.

Mrs. M. M. Ayres of the Ayres Floral Co. will shortly take her vacation. She certainly needs it, as she has been a constant and consistent worker all her life.

The Paris Floral Co. will vacate its present quarters next month. No announcement of the new location has been made, as the deal is not completed.

C. A. Kuehn has a fine assortment of seasonable flowers, including large fancy pink asters, corn flowers, lily of the valley and quite a lot of peonies.

It is reported that the Riessen Floral Co. will move into a new location further west. Mrs. Buechel is well known and trade will follow her.

John Barnard, formerly with Grimm & Gorly, is now in business for himself at Jefferson and Franklin, and is doing well.

Alexander Waldbart & Sons have had a great season, a big increase in plant trade and landscape work.

Charles Schoenle, who has been on the sick list, is around again and is a daily visitor at the market.

Andrew Meyer, Jr., has had a busy time during the past few weeks. Andy seems to have caught on. W. F.

BUSINESS SATISFACTORY.

Business has been good the past two weeks owing to the graduating exercises and numerous weddings. Funeral work has also been good. Roses are getting smaller and poorer in quality, owing to the very cool nights, the temperature hovering around forty degrees. Carnations also are going off. Sweet peas are in their glory and are very fine, due to the wet weather of late. Other out-of-door flowers are scarce and of poor quality, having suffered a great deal by freezing out or nearly so last winter.

NOTES.

Theodore Ewoldt, president of the local flower society, entertained the Tri-City Florists' Club at their annual strawberry supper at the Outing Club at Davenport on the evening of June 20. Every member with the exception of two was present. The committee on the annual picnic reported everything in readiness for the great event and promise everybody the time of his life. The picnic will be held at the summer place of Wm. Knees on the banks of the scenic Rock River a few miles south of Moline, Ill. It is an ideal picnic spot with plenty of room for all kinds of games, races, etc., and also affords a bathing beach and fine boating and fishing. July 11 is the date chosen for the outing and the florists have all promised themselves a day off from business cares.

John Temple has had on exhibition the last week a fine yellow calla which proved quite an attraction. Wm. Goos exhibited some exceptionally fine blooms of Commodore geraniums which seem to be quite an improvement over the usual variety; stems eighteen inches long, trusses at least five and one-half inches in diameter.

BUSINESS EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD.

Business has been exceptionally good the season through with the local trade. For the most part cut flower prices have been maintained. During the past week there has been little call for decorations except for the few weddings that have occurred. With the local greenhouses now replanting, most of the stock used is coming in from outside points, and almost exclusively from Chicago. The plant trade of the season is far ahead of that of recent previous seasons and most of the florists have sold out clean on bedding stock.

NOTES.

The Iowa Floral Co. has had a big plant season with a larger call for coleus and salvias than could be readily supplied. Most of the houses have been already cleaned out and are ready for the season's overhauling. The business of the Iowa Seed and Floral Co., according to Mr. Page, for the first five months of this year has exceeded the corresponding period of last year by $41,000 and he estimates that the business of the year will exceed last year's by fully $50,000. Mr. Page takes considerable pride in the large "showhouse," or his "playhouse" as he prefers to call it. This resembles a private or park conservatory more than it does a commercial place with its rare and curious tropical plants, its fountain, etc. It has, however, undoubtedly proved a commercial success, as it is one of the recognized show places for the townspeople and sightseers who have any taste for exotic plants and flowers. It has also made possible the sale of many a well grown fern or palm that would not otherwise have sold so readily.

J. S. Wilson is planning a trip to Seattle and the coast early in July. He will return in time to let J. S., Jr., represent the firm at the S. A. F. convention. Mr. Wilson reports his spring business is 35 per cent larger than was the season's business of one year ago. He has been able this year to sell out all plants at retail. Another factor that has helped his business was the opening of a flower stand in the Harris-Emery Department Store in April last. This stand has done a big business from the first. One of the conveniences of his business, as well as a pleasure for leisure hours, is an automobile that is readily convertible from what appears to be an ordinary touring car into either a runabout or a delivery wagon. This explains how a florist can readily acquire the reputation of possessing three machines, although owning but one.

Jacob F. Marshall devotes his establishment of three houses almost exclusively to carnations and grows for the local market. Like so many carnationists he has yielded to the allurements of the hybridizer and not altogether without profit to himself. A successful red that he originated five years ago he calls Robert Marshall. This is a cross of Mrs. G. H. Crane on Prosperity. This season 4,000 plants are producing freely flowers that average somewhat better than three inches in diameter and with calices not inclined to burst. May Morning is another cross of Mrs. G. H. Crane on Prosperity. This is a variegated carnation that becomes extremely dark in mid-winter. Lawson-Enchantress will be entirely discarded the coming season as there is no call here for that color. Winsor is a good seller.

William Twillo had the big wedding contract last week. This was the marriage ceremony of Miss Harmie Patterson, daughter of Mrs. A. H. Weber, of this city, to A. Ebert, of Wall street, New York. The wedding took place in St. Paul's church. The chancel was banked with palms, ferns and peonies. Peonies were also used for the decoration of the ends of pews. The bride carried a bouquet of lily of the valley, while the bridesmaids carried Killarney roses. The wedding dinner was given at the Chamberlain hotel. The bride's table in the center had a large basket of Killarney roses, while smaller baskets of Killarney decorated the twenty-five smaller tables in the room. Banks of peonies were used in the reception room and a large basket of peonies was the feature of the room in which the presents were displayed.

The Rush Flower Co. moved last week from 206 Sixth avenue to 609 Locust street, where the firm intends to fit up a modern store with a big double window in time for the fall business. The store from which they have just removed was a part of the old building in which was the trolley system's waiting room. On this site a modern office building is to be erected immediately.

The Des Moines Seed Co. will move in the fall from 114 E. Fifth street to 514 E. Locust street. This will provide the firm with a store on the best side of the street in the best block on the east side. H. K. Guthrie, the manager, adds that this move will necessitate the increasing of their facilities for the handling of cut flowers.

Lozier florist shop has just completed a $500 order for Ingersoll amusement park. Mr. Lozier has just added an auto delivery to his business.

J. Ledig reports a good season's business. Mr. Ledig says he has been a reader of THE AMERICAN FLORIST ever since it was first issued.

A. L. Bebinger, of the Maplehurst Gardens, says he will build a new house, 20x135 feet, this summer.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports a steady seasonable business. H.

Kansas City.

SEASON A BIG ONE.

The present has proved a big season with the local florists. With the advent of real summer weather trade has fallen off, but continues very fair as compared with former years. American Beauty roses have been showing the effects of too much heat and white and pink roses have been short of requirements at times. Carnations have been very plentiful, though prices have been maintained in better shape than usual. Locally grown peonies are over, but peonies are still coming in from the Chicago market. Sweet peas have sold very well up to within the past few days.

NOTES.

Samuel Murray returned last week with Arnold Ringier, of Chicago, from a trip to Excelsior Springs, Mo. Mr. Murray reports an unusual sale of orchids this season. Not only have cattleyas been extensively used in various functions, but for street wear as well. This tendency has been encouraged by liberal displays in the window. A tropical window of cattleyas growing from the bark as in their native woods in conjunction with pineapples, caladiums, etc., was very effective the past week.

Joseph Austin is planning to secure additional room by building later in the season a lean-to, 9x103 feet. Mr. Austin has been suffering the past three years from a severe attack of rheumatism, but is now able to get around to somewhat better advantage. The plant business has been exceptionally good with him this season and the cut flower trade at his store has kept up much better than usual.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. suffered the loss of 500 panes of glass from hail and wind June 14. A big crop of sweet peas is on at this place. No new building is planned for this season, but several houses will be rebuilt.

Henry Kusick & Co., wholesale cut flowers and supplies, report having received very good support from the local trade in the eight months the firm has been located in this city.

L. C. Fields, of Kansas City, Kans., says he had easily twice as many bedding plants this season as ever before and had it all moved by the first of the present month.

The season's business was reported very satisfactory at L. N. Orear's. Mr. Orear was spending a week-end at Stillwater, Kans., fishing.

Your correspondent found E. D. Ellsworth exceedingly busy with the usual Saturday rush as well as with a big funeral order.

P. Larkins is a florist who has located recently at 215 E. Twelfth street. L.

SUMMER WEATHER.

We are having summer weather in keeping with the season. Summer-time flowers are seen in all the stocks. The delphiniums are perhaps the choicest, their beautiful shades of blue being unique and unusual. Coreopsis, gaillardia and cornflower are seen in quantity. Dorothy Perkins roses in sprays and branches have been a feature and were prominent in several large decorations. The old reliables—lily of the valley, cattleyas and Easter lilies—are in stock, the supply being quite equal to the demand, as is the case with the summer rose stock.

NOTES.

The summer outings have begun. Commodore John Westcott threw open the hospitable doors of his club house on the shores of Barnegat Bay, at Waretown, N. J., Friday, June 21. The following were his guests: John Burton, George C. Watson, Wm. J. Stewart, John Flood (all of whom came down in Mr. Burton's auto), David Rust, Henry F. Mitchell, D. C. Donoghue, George Craig, John K. M. L. Farquhar, Wm. F. Gude, his son Ernst, Wm. Westcott, James Dean, George Anderson, Robert Kift and John McKinney. After the raising of the flag the inspection of the farm and meadows which flank the bay for half a mile was in order and showed everything to be in fine condition. There is magnificent woodland and in the meadows wild flowers are seen in the greatest abundance. The native wild rose, covered with its beautiful pink single blossoms, as charming as the best of the cultivated varieties, was seen in large and small groups of plants that were masses of color.

A number of tamarix trees sent on as ornaments for the club house lawn by Wm. R. Smith of Washington were dedicated and labeled at his request in honor of the guests of last season who were present with Mr. Smith when they were planted. A telegram was received in deep sorrow from Washington on Saturday which said that this grand old chief of horticulture was expected to pass away at any time.

Two days spent at this peaceful spot is a cure for all kinds of ills and troubles of all sorts vanish like the morning dew. Sports of all kinds as well as motorboat rides in the beautiful bay kept the party busy, and Sunday afternoon, when the return to the city was made, came all too soon. Long live Commodore John Westcott.

Congratulations are extended to the former president of the Florists' Club, Thos. B. Meehan, who has been elected president of the American Association of Nurserymen. A great honor for Mr. Meehan and also for the association.

Walter P. Stokes is attending the seedsman's convention in Chicago. Tom Potts, Mr. Stokes' city salesman, says they have completed the potting of the table ferns, a block of 50,000 which will be ready about October 1.

Joseph Heacock is attending the democratic convention in Baltimore this week. He is a pronounced progressive in business and a firm believer in the same kind of government policies.

Splendid Cattleya Gaskelliana are seen at the establishment of the Jos.

TRADE MUCK QUIETER.

Business since Memorial Day has been about up to the usual mark for the season—a decided letting up from the strenuousness of the month preceding that date. There has been about the usual crop of June weddings, with probably fewer good jobs for the florist than last year. Funeral work has been fairly steady. Carnations have held up well, thanks to the favorable season. But they are now rapidly approaching the stage where they will not be worth watering and picking. From a weather standpoint the present season is the best for several years. Bedding stock has done well as a rule, and the favorable conditions have been a valuable help in encouraging the buying public to make another effort in spite of the disheartening recollections of last year. A splendid rain recently continued the good crop conditions, and consequently gives promise of good business for next season. The outdoor insect pests have been more than usually troublesome this season. Cut worms, green and brown aphid have caused much damage.

NOTES.

There is a new violet on the list named "Wichita." Mr. F. Kuechenmeister is the introducer. He has had it in cultivation for several years, working up a stock, and giving it a thorough trial. He claims for it all the good points of both Herrick and Wales and that it will beat them both for quality and quantity. The personal observation of the writer the past season verifies this claim so far as to quality. The quantity we had no record of.

W. H. Culp & Co. have been fighting to save their out-door sweet peas from the green aphid, which nearly ruined them before they were beaten. They are also having to fight the webworm from their carnation field.

This week the smiling countenance of "Sprinkleproof Sam" Seligman was in evidence, calling upon the trade in the interests of Wertheimer Bros. He reports good business.

H. A. Hall, one of the successful florists of Joplin, Mo., was a visitor last week. Also A. M. Saunders, representing S. S. Skidelsky & Co., of Philadelphia.

Chrysanthemum planting is the program now. The quantity planted will be about as heretofore.

F. Kuechenmeister is building a showhouse for palms, ferns, etc.

Chas. P. Mueller plans to erect another good sized house for mums. W. I. CHITA.

RED BANK, N. J.—A summer flower show to last several days will open at Asbury Park, July 3. More than $2,000 in prizes will be awarded. Preparations for the show have been under way since December.

FROST, COLD RAINS, CATERPILLARS.

Bedding plants again sold out this year; at times growers were afraid that there would be a serious shortage and consequently began to buy stuff, but found it exceedingly hard. Early customers' orders had to be filled twice in many instances, the plant having been killed by frosts as late as June 7. Serious frosts were reported with heavy continuous cold rain. Very little growth so far has been made. Fruit trees had a fair chance for finishing the blossoming, when an invasion of caterpillars appeared and stripped them bare. This is the worst plague in the memory of the oldest inhabitants. Trade in the retail stores has been very brisk and the demand is larger than the supply. The newly established wholesale place called the "Montreal Floral Exchange" is trying to rectify this, but how far it will succeed the future alone will tell. Last week the closing of the schools brought forth extra demands and adding to the always present call for funeral work, everybody found relief by the closing of the bedding season.

NOTES.

The committee on arrangements for the coming convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association held a session at the President's home and the official program was completed. The trade exhibit will be looked after by Geo. A. Robinson, who will be glad to look after the needs of any one who wants space. Montreal offers the best advantages in Canada for intending exhibitors. The dates of the Convention will be August 6-9.

At the last meeting of the Montreal Gardeners and Florists' Club the whole staff of the Montreal Floral Exchange were added to the membership. The annual picnic will be held at Maple Grove, July 17, arrangements of which are completed. E. Hibbs was prevented from being present with his essay on roses and the time was filled with the question box.

Death has claimed the wife of Tim Martel and the sorrowing husband has the sympathy of the whole craft extended to him.

John Dunbar is convalescent after a severe illness. L.

Washington.

BUSINESS STILL QUIET.

Business continues quiet but some of the florists find diversion in politics and baseball. Most of the eat-'em-alive celebrities of the democratic party are now in Baltimore and it does not cost much to go over, walk around the hotel lobbies and make an effort at looking wise. Stock continues to be as good as can be expected at this season. The Killarney roses are rather poor and there is a preference for Radiance in pink and Kaiserin for white. The American Beauties are of course dependable stock at this season. There is yet a fair quality of carnations. Good stock of the gladiolus America is now being cut in greenhouses. Cold storage peonies continue to come in from northern points. The most noteworthy outdoor stock now on the market is hydrangea arborescence, the variety introduced by E. G. Hill several years ago. It is made very useful in funeral work.

NOTES.

Geo. Field, in addition to being the "orchid king" of Washington, has had a new honor thrust upon him; he is at Baltimore as a delegate to the democratic convention. We sincerely hope that he does not get run over by the steam roller, for he is a useful citizen when he is at home. Incidentally it may be mentioned that this season he is planting another house with the rose Radiance.

Truman Lanham, superintendent of street parking, says that the trees destroyed by the gale of June 16 will be replaced in the fall. This applies only to the trees along the streets which are under the supervision of the District Commissioners. The trees and all that pertains to the parks are under the department of war.

BUSINESS CONTINUES GOOD.

There is nothing to complain about in regard to business conditions. There are no high prices but the cleanup has been satisfactory and business still shows a healthy trend. The market on all kinds of stock is about the same as last week. Peonies are in the last ditch. Asters have made their appearance, H. W. Vose, of Hyde Park, being the first in the market with that flower.

NOTES.

P. Donahue, of the Boston Rose Co., showed us some of the inside workings of the office. A record is kept of each man's goods, the number of each kind is recorded in black ink and the price is carried opposite in red ink. An average is given the grower for each variety along with the price received and total, making a lasting record to which he can refer at any time and an easy way to keep tab on any variety that does not keep up to top notch. Besides this, reports are often sent out every day and not less than three times each week. Welch Bros. use about the same system. There is a general satisfaction in sending to houses like those that the grower like any other business may know where he stands. Mr. Donahue showed us some nice American Beauty roses from the F. R. Pierson Co.'s place at Briar Cliff Manor, N. Y.

Business and banking conditions show a healthy sign in New England and show that the people don't care very much who's nominated or elected. For the week ending June 5, building contracts awarded New England amounted to $85,615,000, an increase of $16,770,000 over figures for the corresponding period of last year and an increase of $31,848,000 over those of 10 years ago. The increase in bank deposits for the past two weeks in Boston was $26,000,000, which is a record of any two weeks in the history of the city. The pessimist and the politician may howl that the country is going to the dogs but the common sense business men are keeping right on and piling up records which knock all theories and presidential years into nothing and, of course, all this means a healthier trade to the florist business.

Natick seems to have taken on the rose craze through the Commercial Club of that town. Alex Montgomery gave each child in the public school a rose plant, that started it. A general array of people came to the greenhouses as the plants were being taken out. All kinds and conditions of people and all kinds of conveyances, from grandpa's wheelbarrow to the 1912 auto. The plants were given free and Mr. Montgomery feels that it is casting bread upon the waters. James Wheeler, of the same town, offers a silver cup to the children of the public schools for the best grown sweet peas. Verily, we are in a flower uprising.

We are pleased to state that, on the request of the New York Florists' Club to our Gardeners' and Florists' Club, a committee has been formed to co-operate on the matter of flower publicity. This shows a step forward and we are pleased to know that our city has at last awakened and got to business. The committee, W. H. Elliott, W. J. Stewart, P. Welch, Henry Penn and F. E. Palmer, are all well known to the trade and we feel the matter has been placed in good hands and hope the seed thus sown will develop large benefits to the florists at large.

Mme. Chas. Russell, as seen in some of the Boston stores, shows it to be a summer as well as a winter rose. The flower has got a good body and the color is still there.

The genial David Welch left June 25, on the Cunard line for the old country on a business trip and also to recuperate his health. MAC.

TRADE TAKES "SPURT."

The first day of this week was very good. All the early receipts cleaned up quickly, also a few that held over from last weeks' close. Even carnations did well and were in demand. While business has been pretty fair this was probably only a "spurt" due to a general replenishing by local retailers. Last week stock sold fairly well. About the only real exception was the case of lilies and that was because the supply was so very large. The choice clean roses, particularly white, are selling well. The same is true of Beauties. White carnations prove very good property, while others do not sell up quite as well, owing to large offerings. This easy carnation market has kept such new flowers as asters cleaning up at sight, for the demand seems reluctant to leave carnations as long as they are as good as at present. Gladioli are finding a good market. Sweet peas are excellent and sell nicely. Orchids and valley sell up each day. Other offerings include nymphaeas, corn flower, coreopsis, etc. The green goods demand is good and there is an ample supply to meet all demands.

NOTES.

Joe Maunders, the Newport florist, had a lucky escape one evening last week. His machine skidded on a turn against the curb, throwing out the occupants, all of whom escaped injury, however.

The outing committee is busy making arrangements for the annual outing to be held at Coney Island Thursday, July 18.

C. E. Critchell has been selling new sphagnum as fast as he gets it in.

J. M. McCullough's Son's Co. have been receiving very choice Beauties.

Visitors are: Mr. and Mrs. Myer Heller, Newcastle, Ind. H.

Rochester, N. Y.

Closing exercises at the public schools have kept the florists of this city very busy this week. There has also been plenty funeral work which cleans up all kinds of cut flowers. The sale of bedding plants is gradually decreasing and the season for them will soon be at an end. Geraniums, coleus and cannas are about the only plants to be seen in front of the stores now. Peonies are being cut in large quantities and are moving slow at low prices. Carnations are plentiful, but show the effect of warm weather. There is an abundance of roses on the market at present, American Beauties being very good. C. G.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.—The New Bedford Horticultural Society held a free peony show June 18. A silver cup was among the awards.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—The annual meeting of the State Horticultural Society, held in connection with the Minnesota State Garden Flower Association, took place June 15 at Excelsior, and was in the form of a picnic. A bronze statue to Peter Gideon, originator of the Wealthy apple, was unveiled on the Gideon farm on Lake Minnetonka.

EVERBODY BUSY.

The past two weeks have been very busy for all, from the retail stores, which have been rushed with weddings, commencements and funerals, to the greenhouses, which have been unusually busy with planting. The cold weather in May retarded the operations of the greenhouse men and this makes all the more work to do now. The weather the last week has been very good, rather cooler than wanted, but fair the last two days and warming up very much. Stock has been equal to all demands. Roses, Killarney and Beauties sold well, while Carnations have been plentiful but rather small. Peonies have played an important part in decorations. Sweet peas and bachelor buttons have been very much in demand. This week will end it all and from July 1 things will be quiet. The only part of the business remaining active will be the expense account, which is always busy every day in the year.

NOTES.

Private residences with verandah boxes, box trees and large pots of geraniums are now very attractive here. Flower beds in all the small parks and at the large parks are looking good. Daily band concerts by the park band in the different parks will start this week. It might almost be called Kasting's band, as Park Commissioner Kasting is a hard worker for the band concerts.

Alterations in Washington market by the city will necessitate the market florists securing other quarters temporarily. The improvements will be very beneficial, however, to the florists, as they will be in more modern stands with cooling boxes and all conveniences.

Many are preparing for vacations. The convention of the S. A. F. will have a larger delegation from Buffalo this year than usual if all go that have signified their intentions of doing so.

There is some talk of a florists' picnic, and a committee has been appointed to make arrangements. BISON.

Cleveland.

WATER LILIES COMING IN.

Water lilies are arriving in large quantities, and their uses are as varied as that of any other flower grown under glass, both in white and in colors. Sweet peas are in good supply, all colors with the possible exception of lavender, of which color there is quite often a scarcity. Valley has sold well all month as has adiantum fern. Peonies, mostly storage stock, are in good demand. Carnations are nearly out of crop with most growers now and will be shorter in supply, and prices will no doubt stiffen somewhat from now on. Easter lilies have a fair call. Snapdragon, delphinia, larkspur, Canterbury bells, etc., clean up daily. Coreopsis and daisies are very abundant. Southern gladioli was shipped into this market the past week. Orchids were in good demand the past week. Roses of all kinds are cleaning up daily and stock is exceptionally fine for this time of the year. American Beauties are in good supply. Good fancy eastern fern are on the market. Other greens are plentiful.

SUPPLY EXCEEDS DEMAND.

There is no change for the better in the wholesale cut flower market. With few exceptions stock of all kinds is of very good quality and the supply far exceeds the demand. The board of education is rigidly enforcing the rule against the giving of flowers in the public schools. In some sections of the city the street men have been prohibited from selling, which cuts off another important outlet for the surplus which seems to get greater from day to day. Carnations, while not quite so plentiful, are moved at prices so low that in many cases they do not bring the express charges. The very best have been sold in many cases at twenty-five cents per hundred. Roses show the effect of the weather and it is only for a few small sales that a good price is obtained. Brides and Bridesmaids are still the most unsatisfactory varieties to sell, especially the extras, fancies and specials, but when these grades are placed with the number ones and twos they clear out as well as the others. There seems to be the same steady demand for the roses that are not so plentiful, such as Chatenay, Bulgarie, Aaron Ward and My Maryland. The quality of Richmond and Killarney is not so good. American Beauty is doing well, but this refers only to the very best quality as there are large lots of long stemmed flowers in the market that have good foliage but the blooms in many cases are no larger than a Killarney. Sweet peas are very much in oversupply and have accumulated with all dealers. Lilies are of very fine quality and very plentiful. Gardenias also have increased in supply very much and as usual there is only call for a few of the very best flowers. If anything the orchid market is slowly improving and the quantity of blooms arriving is much less. This, with a very healthy demand, will permit the dealers in these flowers to clear out to a little better advantage. There is no change in the quotations on lily of the valley. The peonies, with the exception of those coming from cold storage, are very poor. There is an abundance of outside flowers of all kinds.

Monday noon, June 24.—Stock of all kinds is plentiful. Prices are low and the market is very inactive.

NOTES.

The sixth annual outing of the Greek-American Florists' Association at Wetzels Point Grove, Long Island, will be run off on a more elaborate scale than ever. The committee—J. J. Carlatas, Demetrius Sateriades, G. Rontiris, Nicholas Lecakes, P. Velotas and S. Chaugouris—are untiring in their efforts to make this excursion and outing a grand success. Tickets can be had from N. Lecakes, 53 West Twenty-eighth street.

William Duckham, Arthur Herrington, William Tucker, John Young, Mrs. Harry A. Bunyard and Miss Helen Totty acted as a reception committee on Sunday. While the baggage was being examined the committee had an opportunity of getting a hasty look at the beautiful silver cup won by Mr. Tracy at the International Exposition. All of the party are enthusiastic about the Exposition and the good time they had.

Meyer Othile of Badgley, Reidel & Meyer, purposes to publish a book entitled the "Ups and Downs of the Wholesale Business for the Past Twenty Years." No one is more competent to prepare this work than Mr. Othile, and the book should be most interesting. The author will publish in this work photos of the buyers whom he has met during this period.

FUNERAL FLOWERS IN DEMAND.

Decidedly warm weather has prevailed during the last few days and some of the time hot winds have been blowing with great force. This has been particularly hard on all vegetation, though among flowering plants the perennial phlox seems to be one of the best resistants of dry, hot, climatic conditions. These plants are flowering abundantly and are very gorgeous just now. The flower business has been quite good this week. The death of the wife of Mayor Grant brought out a tremendous demand for funeral designs and bouquets. The Stiles Co. believe that the call for flowers for this particular funeral was the largest ever experienced here. Outdoor sweet peas continue in good condition, though it cannot be said that much else of value for cut flower work is being gathered from the outside just now. The demand for bedding plants is almost over, though there is a fairly steady call for potted plants in flower suitable for the window or porch, and for table ferns.

NOTES.

The Barteldes Seed Co. made a shipment of designs and flat bouquets for a funeral at Dover, Okla., Sunday.

J. W. Furrow of Guthrie is sending in some good longiflorum lilies.

S. S. B.

CLEVELAND, O.—The city of Cleveland will in all likelihood have a peony garden as an adjunct to its park system next year. Officials with this end in view recently visited the peony farm of Frank Seither on Bosworth road, S. W.

THE C. W. BROWNE CO

WALDEN, N. Y.

Fredericton, N. B.

SUGGESTS FLORISTS' UNION.

We are having an exceptionally cold, backward time with rain and a sunless sky. Crops have a retarded and stunted appearance; grass seems to be the exception. Farmers say where the land is not light and well drained they have to plant potatoes the second time. The tuberous plants rot with wet and cold. Our closed greenhouses have stood at 40° many nights since June 1. So that we hope the discouraging start will have a good finish later. Oldtimers have often claimed that after a cold, long winter comes a hot summer. This theory does not seem to work this year. All are complaining of high prices in every thing. Masons, carpenters, plumbers and others get good money for a 9-hour day. What about the product of the garden and greenhouse? We need to form a union in regard to our prices or ends will never meet. Some concerns in the trade are foolish enough to sell their product for anything or nothing. J. B.

TRADE IS QUIET.

Business is quiet, but owing to the growers having most of them just planted up with young stock, the supply is also short and just about equals the demand. Outdoor stuff, however, is becoming plentiful. Peonies are wholesaling for from twenty-five to fifty cents per dozen. Outdoor sweet peas are just beginning to make their appearance. The hail storm June 10 did considerable damage in Arvada and Wheatridge. P. J. Manchester reports about 400 feet of glass broken. Some glass was also broken on the Schumann place. The strawberry crop was about ruined as were also some young asters and other tender plants.

NOTES.

Samuel R. Lundy, Jr., beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Lundy, died June 19. Death was not unexpected, as the little fellow had been in poor health for a long time, Mr. Lundy having brought him here for his health.

Miss Jane A. Pearce was married June 15 to Chas. A. Yont. Miss Pearce was well known to the trade, having been for a long time in the employ of the Elitch Long Co.

Mrs. D. J. Sullivan left June 10 to visit relatives in Marcellus, Mich. She expected to get there just in time to celebrate her infant's first birthday.

T. W. H.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J.—A monster agriculture, horticulture and floriculture exhibit, to last from Nov. 15 to Dec. 2, is being planned by the New Jersey Exposition Commission.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—Frank C. Schleichert, a local florist, has been sued by Von Zonneveld Bros., agents for a Dutch nurseryman. The amount asked for is $411 and the claim is based on plants said to have been shipped from Holland and not paid for. Mr. Schleichert has filed a counter claim of $300, alleging that the Holland firm refused to pay the duty, according to agreement, and that the plants were received too late for the Easter trade.

The Seed Trade.

American Seed Trade Association.

Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago, President; Marshall H. Duryea, New York, First Vice-President; Edgar Gregory, Marblehead, Mass., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, Ohio, Secretary and Treasurer. Next annual convention at Chicago, June 25-27, 1912.

TUBEROSE growers report heavy rains the past week.

CHARLES JOHNSON, Marietta, Pa., sailed for Europe June 22 and will return about September 1.

LESTER L. MORSE, writing from San Francisco under date of June 17, says "Crop is in a rather critical condition."

CHICAGO.—Prices on the Board of Trade, June 26, for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $7 to $10 per 100 pounds.

W. ATLEE BURPEE, Philadelphia, Pa., and Hugh Dickson, Belfast, Ireland, passed through Chicago June 24 enroute from the Pacific coast.

TONY STECHER of Rochester says he has given up his early enterprises in the way of branch houses in Japan, although he still longs for cherry blossom time.

TRIMBLE McCULLOUGH of the Santa Ynez Valley, Calif., reports good progress on his new ranch and is continuing his strenuous fight against gophers by the million.

RED WING, MINN.—L. S. Turner and J. M. Shilling, well-known business men of this city, have incorporated the Havana Seed Co., and after this year will grow the seed which they offer for sale.

THE Storrs & Harrison Co., is anxious in regard to the severe conditions called for in the way of catalogue postage by the new parcels post bill, now before congress, and asks that this matter be brought up.

ALPENA, MICH., June 17.—While our peas were mostly planted late, the prospects are favorable as we have had showers the past week both in Michigan and Wisconsin that are very beneficial at this time. R.

REPORTS on Red Top grass seed from the Illinois districts indicate that the growing crop is looking fairly well and the prospects are for an average yield. Some of the farmers complain that there is a heavier weed crop than usual in Red Top.

R. L. EATON, manager of the Girardeau Seed Co., of Monticello, Fla., says their 1,400 acre ranch is worked in 30-acre sections, each cared for by a negro and a mule. Melon shipping in that locality he reports now about finished for the season.

CHINESE NARCISSUS.—Narcissus bulbs are the only articles of export to the United States declared through the consulate at Amoy, China. About 3,000,000 of these bulbs are placed on the American market annually, the declared value in 1910 being $10,514, and in 1911, $7,043.

ALBANY, N. Y.—After July 1 inspectors from the office of the state commissioner of agriculture will take samples of seed offered for sale throughout the state. To sell seeds containing more than three per cent of foul or foreign seeds, unless the amount is plainly labeled, is contrary to the new law which takes effect on that date.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Annual Convention. Chicago, June 25-27.

A Record Breaking Convention.

The thirtieth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, held at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 25-27, was an unqualified success and broke all records in the matters of attendance and interest in the proceedings. The convention was called to order on Tuesday morning, June 25, by President Leonard H. Vaughan, of the Vaughan Seed Store, Chicago, who looked into the faces of probably the largest gathering of Leonard H. Vaughan.

President American Seed Trade Association.

seedsmen assembled at an opening session of the organization to date.

President Vaughan congratulated his hearers that they were at the close of a season which in most lines of the trade had been perhaps the most prosperous that the majority of the members had experienced. He briefly referred to pending legislation affecting seed trade interests as well as the public at large, and was gratified to state that the republican platform had taken progressive ground on the parcels post and that it is likely to be imitated by the democratic convention. President Vaughan recommended among other things that the association print a digest or summary of state seed bills already enacted and keep the same up to date, that a resolution be adopted favoring a uniform federal law on legal bushel weights, the same to be given to the A. S. T. A. delegate to the National Board of Trade for action by that body.

He favored the continuing of state correspondents. He paid a fitting tribute to the "Grand Old Man" of the seed trade, Jerome B. Rice, whose death at the beginning of this month saddened all seedsmen, and whose cheerful optimism, encouraging words, pleasant smile and twinkling eye will be sadly missed at this and other meetings to come, because all loved him. He closed by expressing thanks to the various committees and officers for help extending during the year. There is no business any more important to the welfare of the whole people than the seedsmen's, for agriculture is the nation's backbone, and there are no higher ideals of right and wrong than are found existing in the seed trade. The various recommendations in the President's address were referred on motion of H. W. Wood, of Richmond, Va., to a special committee of Albert McCullough, Cincinnati, O., L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., S. A. Wilson, Madison, Wis., C. C. Massie, Minneapolis, Minn., and Edgar Gregory, of Marblehead, Mass. A vote of thanks was also returned for the address.

Harry L. Holmes, of the Holmes Seed Co., Harrisburg, Pa., read the following tribute to the late Jerome B. Rice, which was on motion of A. McCullough adopted by rising and unanimous vote:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the A. S. T. A.: I feel confident that I but express a sentiment that is unanimous in this body when I say that the seedsmen of this country, and particularly the individual members of the American Seed Trade Association, have suffered in the death of Jerome Bonaparte Rice an irreparable loss, and I personally mourn the untimely passing away of a friend for whom I had an affection as deep and as lasting as for a father.

PRINCIPALS OF THE ALBERT DICKINSON CO., CHICAGO.

I may be pardoned if I retrospect sufficiently to say that when, as an individual with insufficient capital I began a little seed business in the city of Harrisburg, offering to prospective creditors not a sufficient tangible basis upon which to extend necessary credit, the one above all who seemed to deem me personally worthy of such a favor, was he for whose loss I thus publicly express my sorrow.

Through no trumpeting of his good deeds, but through the grateful appreciation of others who have enjoyed like benefits at his hands, I have learned how widespread had been this generous course of action throughout his life.

I particularly admired the unusual degree of fortitude displayed by Jerome B. Rice, despite the affliction of a malignant type of rheumatism contracted while he was a participant in the history making epoch of the American Civil War, and it was marvelous to all his friends how he could forget himself, his excruciating pains, and listen with an unfeigned interest to your troubles and joys as well as to mine. Can we not, with Bayard Taylor, say of this man:

"Sleep, soldier, still in honored rest,
Your truth and valor wearing.
The bravest are the tenderest,
The loving are the daring."

Words fail me in an endeavor to acknowledge my indebtedness to this man, one of nature's noblemen, but in my poor way I feel that common gratitude forces me to pay my small tribute to his worth, and believing that my voice is but the audible evidence of that which is in every heart here, I move that a committee be appointed by the chair for the purpose of drafting suitable resolutions to be published and be spread upon the minutes of this convention, and that a copy of such resolution be suitably engrossed and presented to his family.

The motion carried by unanimous and rising vote as stated, and President Vaughan appointed as such committee H. L. Holmes, C. N. Page and J. C. Robinson.

S. Phillips Landreth, W. G. Scarlett and C. P. Guelph were appointed as Auditing Committee. Albert McCullough, Chairman of Membership Committee presented that committee's report, and the following were elected to membership; Crenshaw Bros., Tampa, Fla.; Ross Bros., Wichita, Kansas; Griswold Seed Co., Lincoln, Neb.; Arthur G. Lee, Ft. Smith, Ark.; Louis B. Reuter, New Orleans, La.; Robert Buist Co., Phila., Pa.; Dakota Improved Seed Co., Mitchell, S. D.; P. Mann & Co., Washington, D. C.; C. M. Wolf & Co., Wash. D. C.; Chauncey P. Coy & Son, Waterloo, Neb.; Missouri Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo.; Rudy-Patrick Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo.; C. F. Saul, Syracuse, N. Y. These new members as far as present were escorted into the convention and made at home by a committee of escort, E. L. Page and J. C. Robinson.

Chas. D. Boyles of the Albert Dickinson Co., chairman of the legislative committee, presented the report of that committee, and he was followed by Curtis Nye Smith, who submitted his report as counsel for the association for the past year. No reports were tendered by the committees on Customs and Tariff, Transportation, and Experiment Stations. C. N. Page reported that nothing from conference with seed analysts had taken place during the year. It developed from the reports on legislation that there was a great amount of ignorance of the actual conditions of the seed trade among our legislators and great need of their being enlightened as to the difficulties under which seedsmen are laboring in their efforts to at all times supply the people with reliable seed. Reputable seedsmen were shocked at the inference that might be drawn from the penalty clause in the bill now before congress as casting a reflection upon a body of men whose only desire is to carry on their business in a legitimate way, and who welcome any laws that will tend to protect the honest and well meaning members of their body. Secretary Kendel's report showed a gain in membership during the year, and the treasury in a healthy condition. The financial part of the report was referred to the Auditing Committee. The reports of the Legislative Committee and of the counsel were accepted with thanks.

Adjournment was now taken until 9:30 Wednesday morning.

Wednesday's Proceedings.

On Wednesday morning papers were read as follows: "Seed Corn Breeding" by L. S. Gould; "Costs and Cost Systems in the Seed Business" by Lester L. Morse; "Recent Decisions on the Seed Trade Disclaimer" by Curtis Nye Smith. There was a brisk discussion on Mr. Morse's paper lead by Kirby B. White, who was followed by S. F. Leonard, E. L. Page, L. L. May, J. C. Vaughan, John L. Hunt, and Watson S. Woodruff. This discussion led to a general agreement that the subject of costs should receive more careful attention and a special committee was named to consider the matter and report at a later session, the committee appointed being L. B. McCausland, C. C. Massie and J. C. Vaughan.

H. L. Holmes presented the following resolutions on the death of the late Jerome B. Rice, which were unanimously adopted.

Resolution on Death of Jerome B. Rice.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in his infinite wisdom to summon to his great reward our friend and colleague, Lieut. Jerome B. Rice, and

Whereas, It is fitting that we, who for so many years have been associated with him and have enjoyed the inestimable boon of his friendship, do suitably express our sorrow, be it therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of Lieut. Jerome Bonaparte Rice the American

Seed Trade Association has sustained the loss of a member second to none in enterprise, in ability, in integrity and in honor,

Resolved, That each individual member of the Association mourns the loss of a personal friend, whose loyalty was unquestioned, whose friendship was constant, whose willingness to befriend was limited only by the recipient's necessities.

Resolved, That the fortitude and patience displayed by this veteran of history's most terrible conflict, the American Civil War, permanently afflicted by a malignant type of rheumatism contracted while at the front, is worthy of our emulation.

Resolved, That this Association extends to the bereaved family its unanimous testimonial of sympathy in their grief and it mourns with them in their inexpressible sorrow; and be it further

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this convention, be published in the several trade journals, and that a copy suitably engrossed be presented to the family.

H. L. HOLMES,
CHAS. N. PAGE,
J. C. ROBINSON, Committee.

A standing vote of greeting was given Jesse E. Northrup. The O. S. Jones Seed Co., Sioux Falls, S. D., and W. E. Marshall & Co., New York, were admitted to membership at today's meeting.

The visitors were guests of the local members on an automobile tour of the parks and boulevards, Wednesday afternoon, terminating with a luncheon at the South Shore Country Club. Some 250 members and friends participated and the visitors were loud in praise of the local hospitalities.

On Wednesday evening there was a banquet at the Hotel Sherman, with W. P. Stokes as toastmaster.

Brown Bag Filling Machine Co., Fitchburg, Mass., bag filling machine and seed packets.

McFarland Publicity Service, Harrisburg, Pa., advertising specialties.

Convention Notes.

Fred Barteldes reports having made a recent visit to St. Joseph, Mo., the original Jesse James town. He was taken in hand by A. R. Chesmore and says that while he saw no one shot there he observed a number who were half shot.

Kirby B. White and Lester L. Morse arrived Sunday morning and toured the parks and boulevards with much pleasure for two beautiful days. Mr. Morse commends the Blackstone as equal to any European hotel.

On Wednesday afternoon an automobile ride was given by the Chicago seedsmen to their guests, taking in a tour through the parks and a short stop at the South Shore Country Club.

Forty-eight automobiles were used by the visitors who participated in the trip to the South Shore Country Club by way of the parks and boulevards Wednesday afternoon, 240 all told.

G. S. Rosenberg, of Milwaukee, exceeded the speed limit during the automobile tour of the park system Wednesday afternoon and had to produce $56 in payment of fines.

O. L. Dailey, with the Leonard Seed Co., a veteran of the Civil war, began the seed growing business with the father of Artie Cleveland in 1866.

The visitors were greatly pleased and interested in the work of the Vacant Lot Gardening Association seen in their trips around the city.

Secretary Kendel reports a record breaking attendance, especially at the sessions. He estimates 15 per cent increase.

There seems to be more big department heads of leading firms than usual, some houses having two and three representatives.

One of the delegates reports that the English seed growers have undergone 72 consecutive days of drought.

Alaska J. Brown, the Michigan bean grower, brought along his family and a new touring car.

L. L. May says the new western pea sections will have a bad effect on the pea trust.

Missouri valley visitors claim their crops this season are the best in the country.

Vaughan's Seed Store decorated the hotel rooms of lady visitors with flowers.

Tuesday afternoon many members took in the big league ball game.

A goodly disposition was shown to get on the membership list.

Fifteen new members were added the first two days.

The following gentlemen have been appointed by the president as members of the committee on seeds for the New York Produce Exchange: Wm. Jacot, M. H. Duryea, Ernst Wehncke, O. W. F. Randolph, Chas. Wimmer.

Danish Seed Crops.

Odense, June 26.—Prospects of new crops are not cheering. Yellow fleshed turnip are expected to be about an average; rutabaga and white fleshed turnip expected to be light. As to ballhead cabbage and biennials, the prospects are disheartening and could scarcely be worse. D.

New York Seed Bill Penalties.

Referring to Assemblyman Wilson's New York state pure seed bill, known as Chapter 297 of the Laws of 1912, which takes effect July 1, 1912, I append a copy of the penalties carried by this law as printed in Department of Agriculture Bulletin No. 27, section 52, page 996.

SEC. 52. PENALTIES.

Every person violating any of the provisions of this chapter shall forfeit to the people of the state of New York the sum of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for the first violation and not less than one hundred dollars nor more than two hundred dollars for the second and each subsequent violation. When such violation consists of the manufacture or production of any prohibited article, each day during which or any part of which such manufacture or production is carried on or continued, shall be deemed a separate violation. When the violation consists of the sale, or the offering or exposing for sale or exchange of any prohibited article or substance, the sale of each one of several packages shall constitute a separate violation, and each day on which any such article or substance is offered or exposed for sale or exchange shall constitute a separate violation. When the use of any such article or substance is prohibited, each day during which or any part of which said article or substance is so used or furnished for use, shall constitute a separate violation, and the furnishing of the same for use to each person to whom the same may be furnished shall constitute a separate violation. Whoever by himself or another violates any of the provisions of articles three, four, six, eight and nine or sections three hundred fourteen and three hundred fifteen of this chapter or of sections one hundred six, one hundred seven and one hundred eight of this chapter shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars, nor more than two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment of not less than one month nor more than six months or by both such fine and imprisonment, for the first offense, and by six months' imprisonment for the second offense.

Colorado Seed Crops.

Rocky Ford, June 17.—From the most reliable information obtainable the acreage in vine seed planted this season does not seem to be more than fifty per cent. of that planted last season. The planting was about two weeks late on account of the cool weather. There is a very good "stand" of both cucumber and muskmelon, particularly cucumber. Some fields of muskmelon have been badly damaged by cut worms. As a whole, however, there is probably better than a 90 per cent crop of both crops mentioned. The great decrease in acreage is accounted for by the heavy surplus of some varieties of vine seeds being carried over from last season's crop. E.

Connecticut Seed Crops.

Milford, June 17.—Although the season has been abnormally late, the growth of root plants at this writing compares favorably with other seasons. For the acreage planted the plants are looking good. Turnip will produce about seventy-five per cent of a crop, many fields looking ragged. The acreage of onion was reduced by the discouragement of other years. That planted looks well. The growth of beet is satisfactory and there is an increase in acreage due to last season's advancing prices. The acreage of parsnip and carrot is light. The sweet corn is two weeks behind because of late planting, but looks good and the "stand" is fine except on low ground. The acreage is increased somewhat. C.

Orange, Conn., June 22.—Kale is under about an average acreage; crop looking exceptionally fine. There is a larger acreage of carrot than for some years; crop looking only fair. Beet is under a considerably larger acreage than normal; crop looking unusually fine at this writing and without unusually bad weather conditions we are reasonably sure of a fair crop. A smaller acreage of turnip than normal; crop looks exceedingly poor, not over one-half or two-thirds normal yield now in sight. There is a reduced acreage of onion; crops looking first-class, but onion always looks well at this season of the year. Too early to estimate with any degree of accuracy what the yield may be. The acreage of sweet corn is about normal, with germination first-class, but exceedingly backward. Have had very cold nights and corn has seemed to stand almost still for two weeks. Plants are healthy, however, but only with a very favorable fall can we expect a normal yield. W.

Wisconsin Seed Crops.

Sheboygan, June 20.—The present condition of the pea crop is, in a general way, fairly good. Alaska and Early peas are very promising, and if favorable weather conditions are continued from this date, the crop should be fully normal and deliveries nearly or quite full. This is also true on all the round, full weight varieties of peas as indicated by present observation. The wrinkled varieties of peas as a general average, as they stand upon the ground at the present time, are not a full "stand" and are very thin on the ground. This probably has been brought about by several clearly understood conditions. First to be mentioned is the evident fact that the average of vitality of the green wrinkled variety is not as high as four years ago. The extreme conditions of weather, which during the last three years, and more especially during the last year (crop 1911) reduced the productions so low that probably not to exceed thirty-three and one-third per cent of delivery was made as an average by all the growers, has also reduced the vitality of the crop that was harvested and its effect is showing in the green wrinkled varieties in the present crop as they now stand. Then the unusually wet, cold weather of the spring and early summer very likely caused quite a percentage of the seed to rot in the ground, and as has already been stated, the stand of the green wrinkled varieties is unusually thin. Offsetting this, we find one very encouraging condition, which may, as to crop return, nearly or quite overcome the undesirable thin stand of these crops. A year ago many of the pods were almost empty, some having only two peas to the pod, others three, four, five, and occasionally six peas, so that the average number of peas to the pod last year would hardly have been four and one-half peas on an average to each pod. This year there are very few of the pods that have set less than six peas, and they run from five, six, seven, eight, and occasionally nine, so that it seems that the peas will average six and one-half to seven peas to the pod, and being thin on the ground will give the crop a chance to develop into an extra fine crop condition, with fully an average if not over an averaged sized grain, and will, in our judgment, largely overcome the shortage created by the thin stand as now seen upon our fields, so that from present conditions there seems no reason to argue that it would be impossible to have a good sufficient crop season. However, many of the peas have not yet come into bloom; others are just in bloom, and the past few seasons have shown to all experienced men in this line that a few hot days with a south wind upon the tender flowers can entirely do away with a favorable start, and leave the crop in a very damaged condition. Also a continuous rainy season, hail storms, lice and bugs are yet to be dealt with unless a kind providence protects us from their damaging effects. A.

The Seed Trade of New Zealand.

The interesting article on the seed trade in New Zealand which appeared in THE AMERICAN FLORIST issue of October 14, page 617, continues as follows:

CONVERSION OF BUSH LAND TO PASTURE.

The preparation of excellent pasture from wild bush lands, which has been going on in New Zealand for many years, and which has been the principal source of the Dominion's great prosperity as a wool-producing and dairying country, is very interesting. Ashes resulting from burning timber after the ground has been cleared are apparently the only fertilizer necessary for immediate profitable results. The grass seed is simply thrown on the ground, which is not loosened or plowed, and in less than a year from the time of sowing the land will be fattening from five to six sheep per acre. All the best forage plants and grasses grow throughout nearly the entire year, and in spring and early summer the pasture lands have such a luxurious growth on them that sheep raisers usually consider it necessary to carry also a certain number of cattle in order to keep the grass from becoming too rank.

The verdant condition of the pastures, even in midwinter, seems most remarkable to those accustomed to winter conditions in other countries at an equal distance from the equator. As an illustration of how grass grows in New Zealand, I might mention that at golf links near Wellington, comprising about 70 acres, I noticed during the month of June, the first winter month here, a flock of about 1,000 sheep being used to keep down the grass, which was growing too rapidly to be kept in check by mowing machines without undue expense.

YIELDS OF VARIOUS SEEDS.

Clover is sown in the spring, and may be fed to sheep or mowed for hay, yielding from two to three tons per acre when cut in November or early in December. The aftergrowth is then allowed to flower and seed, which it does very freely. Thousands of bumblebees may be seen in the clover fields during the months of January, February and March. The seed ripens in March and is then cut and dried and thrashed out by machines known as clover shellers. An acre of clover may yield in hay and seed from $40 to $50. In fertilization of the clover, the red-tailed bee, imported from England five or six years ago, appears to be rendering invaluable service. White and alsike clover are now grown in considerable quantities and appear to yield enormously, as much as 300 pounds of seed being obtained per acre. They are not dependent on the action of the bumblebee for fertilization and mature earlier, and are more easily thrashed and cleaned than cow grass or red clover.

All the most valuable British grasses seem to flourish and improve throughout New Zealand. Cocksfoot is a staple product in country where the soil is vegetable mold and decomposed volcanic rock. It frequently weighs 20 pounds to the bushel, 12 pounds being a standard bushel. Rye grass is usually gathered by stripping, and when the crops are heavy it is cut and tied as corn, and afterwards thrashed by machinery. The yield per acre varies from 20 to 50 bushels, weighing from 25 to 32 pounds per bushel, 20 pounds being the standard weight. A common practice is to graze the land till midsummer, take the stock off for a few weeks, and then run the stripper over the ground. By this primitive method 10 bushels per acre of perennial rye grass seed of the finest quality is sometimes secured. Many of the indigenous grasses of New Zealand are possessed of considerable feeding value, but few of them will stand too close feeding. The action of fire is especially injurious to most of them.

Beans for pig and horse feed and for export, cape barley and winter oats, tares for dairy stock, and linseed are also rather extensively grown, though linseed production is gradually decreasing because of its exhausting effect on the soil and its promotion of weed growth. The cultivation of linseed is now confined to small areas for the manufacture of oil and oilcake and for cattle food.

WEEDS—SEED CLEANING AND TESTING.

While in New Zealand there is always a disposition to experiment with foreign seeds that may prove useful, there is also much caution about accepting those that may not be clean of weeds; moreover, disastrous experience has shown that many kinds of vegetable life which in other countries may be useful, or at least harmless, become in this country weeds of the worst description. For instance, gorse, which was originally imported from Scotland in order to make attractive hedges, and was at first protected by

SEED PACKAGE CASES

That are adaptable to any size package—that's how our Adjustable Display Cases are made. Withstand more knocking about than cardboard and wooden cases, because they are made of metal—and handsomely finished in grass-green enamel. Seeds displayed in this case sell faster than ordinarily, as the entire front of the packages are to be seen all the time. Then they eliminate loss of time hunting for a certain kind of seed, and also disarrangement of display, as is usual in other display cases.

law from pilfering, especially by small boys who were inclined to take it away on account of its bright flowers, has since spread over the country in a most alarming way, and is now considered a noxious weed, and great efforts are being made to destroy it.

There is now a noxious-weed act in New Zealand, which imposes fines up to $100 on any persons who knowingly sow, sell, or offer for sale any noxious seeds. All grass seeds are required, before sowing, to be thoroughly dressed by means of seed-cleaning machines or other sufficient processes for the purpose of removing all noxious seeds. All farmers are required under penalty of fines to clean thoroughly any thrashing machines, clover dressers, or chaff cutters immediately after being used. After these machines have been swept, the second-dressing riddles must be removed and cleaned, the screen opened, the slide below the grain elevator taken out, and all rubbish removed. The principal noxious weeds, all of which have been introduced through imports of useful seeds into which they have been mixed, are blackberry, Canadian or Californian thistle, sweetbriar, Bathurst burr, ragwort, and pennyroyal.

The necessity for clean seeds ought to be appreciated by American dealers who may wish to export seeds from New Zealand, and who may at first be of the opinion that the demand as to freedom from weed seed is too exacting. It is usually customary when buying seeds from other countries to make extremely careful examinations and tests. The New Zealand government is itself willing to test agricultural seeds both for germination and for purity, free of charge, for farmers and seed merchants. Last year over 400 samples were thus examined and reported upon. It is probable that in the near future there will be some further legislation in the direction of seed control.

MACHINERY FOR CLEANING SEEDS.

There is always a good demand in New Zealand for machines for cleaning and dressing seeds. One machine of American invention and construction is much used here for dressing clover seed and grain; locally made machines, however, have the greatest sale. A combined clover and linseed thrasher, sheller, and cleaner which is manufactured at Christchurch enjoys special popularity with New Zealand farmers. It is placed on four high wrought-iron wheels, the largest four feet in diameter and broad enough not to sink in soft ground. The drum is made of steel and large spindles and long heavy brushes are provided. The caving riddle is made extra long; much longer than in grain thrashers. The shelling is done on the centrifugal principle. The machines are fitted with double exhaust fans and all the shelled clover and dust is passed in a finely divided condition away to the front of the machine, and unshelled pugh and seed drop from the leg onto riddles, which separate these, the unshelled pugh being returned to the sheller and the seed going to the second cleaner and screen to be fully dressed and graded. The separations from first and second dressers pass back again into the sheller to be treated and dressed over again till sufficiently cleaned. A revolving screen makes three separations of the seed: First, white clover, alsike, and small seeds, such as chickweed and dodder; second, pure red clover; third, thistle seed, trefoil, wild turnip, etc. Another locally made cleaner for seed and grain, which is much smaller in size, is capable of making five different separations of grass seed, with six different sieves three by two feet, and takes out straw, goose grass, small weed seeds, and other rubbish.

SPECIAL DEVICES FOR CLOVER—NEW ZEALAND MACHINES.

As clover seed in New Zealand has to be thrashed in the winter, at which time the clover is very tough, shelling devices must be used that will overcome this difficulty. The local machines provide for this in their patent centrifugal rubbers, working inside stout woven steel wire cylinders, which allow the shelled clover and husks, to fall through as quickly as they are separated instead of being forced through a common outlet in the end of the solid cylinder, as in the English machines.

The excellent sale of American-made seed-cleaning machinery was what prompted the local manufacturers to specialize on still stronger construction and more adaptability to cleaning grass seeds. These locally made machines are now exported to Australia, and it is said that nearly all the lucerne seed grown in New South Wales passes through New Zealand machines. Large stocks are kept here of perforated zinc of all sizes, and woven wire with meshes of different sizes and shapes, including many special sizes woven for special use to suit New Zealand weed seeds. The largest seed plants in New Zealand are capable of cleaning seeds having a mixture of 35 per cent of six or eight different kinds of weed seeds and of extracting practically the whole of these weed seeds with the smallest mixture of good seed. The combination may consist of five to ten separate machines so combined with elevators and conveyors that, at one passage through the machines, under the charge of one man, the whole of the weed seeds can be placed in six or eight different bags and the perfectly clean seeds can be placed in sacks without the necessity of subsequent recleaning or separations.

Seed Advertising

Requires, above all, a knowledge of seeds, plants, their products, market value and qualities. To present all the good points claimed for seeds strongly through distinctive advertising methods spells success.

Most seedsmen are too busy to study advertising thoroughly. Their business is to produce seeds. Most advertising men do not think it necessary to study seeds—they design advertisements, and juggle words the best they know how.

The services of a trained advertising man who was born and raised as a seedsman, are available through our organization. Seed advertisers are invited to profit by this unusual combination. Ask for facts about the specialized service which we are able to render.

Lilium Harrisii

THESE are conditions, and they occur not infrequently, under which all lily bulbs fail to make good flowering plants. There may be, probably are, more difficulties attending the growing of Lilium Harrisii bulbs than most forcing varieties, and yet those who do them well have found the early blooms very profitable. In many parts of the south where this bulb has been grown over a longer season and without the overforcing sometimes imposed on the plants, Harrisii has given most satisfactory returns. We are contracting, subject to crop conditions, a select strain of Well Grown Bulbs of Lilium Harrisii

Sizes: 5 to 7; 6 to 7; 7 to 9 and upwards

A New Jerusalem Artichoke.

A sport of Jerusalem artichoke, which we illustrate, appeared in a crop grown for Vaughan's Seed Store by that firm's specialist a few years ago and this novelty he has planted and established. It is much larger than the older variety, producing, according to the grower, tubers from six to sixteen inches in length and two inches in diameter. The specialist says that it is a wonderful producer, one hill producing from one small piece almost half a bushel of tubers. They are of excellent quality and very tender, so much so that many are broken in digging. Artichokes are not only appreciated as a vegetable, but are considered one of the best foods for hogs, and where productive one of the cheapest, and the specialist also says that the stems and leaves are good fodder for cattle and horses, who will eat it even after it has been killed by the frost.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.
 Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.
 Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

RICHMOND, VA.—That the Virginia nurseries have improved greatly in recent years as regards the disease of plants is proved by the annual report of State Entomologist and Plant Pathologist E. A. Black. Inspection shows that all of the common plant diseases are less frequent than formerly. All diseased stock is destroyed and it is expected that this will eliminate the danger of infection entirely within a few years. All foreign nursery stock is inspected on its arrival at its destination.

Orchard Speculation.

The Chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Dr. B. T. Galloway, has called to the attention of the Secretary of Agriculture the increasing need for disseminating information which will be helpful to the thousands of city people and others who are being encouraged to put their savings into various land selling, orchard growing, crop producing propositions. Owing to the extensive advertising propaganda, many people with little or no knowledge of agricultural matters are being led to invest money in projects which by no reasonable chance can ever be made to pay the profits claimed for them. Secretary Wilson is very much interested in this matter and has issued instructions that full data be gathered in order that the Department through its publications and correspondence shall be in direct position to aid those who have been attracted by the promise of good investments but who would like to obtain reliable facts before taking action.

FLORISTS
DAYTON, O.

February 27th, 1912.

Mr. William MacLachlan,
Dist. Mgr. Morehead Mfg. Co.,
Ft Wayne, Indiana.

Dear Sir:

It is with pleasure that we add a word of praise for the Morehead Trap System which we installed in our plant last fall. We feel that the results obtained fully justify the cost of the system; in fact, we have already saved the cost of the machines in a saving of fuel, in-as-much as we have used no more coal this winter, which has been an extremely long and severe one, than we did last winter which was an unusually mild one. We have been put to no expense in its upkeep and has given us no trouble whatever.

Wishing you all the success that your system deserves, we are,

Yours very truly,

How do You Handle Steam Condensation?

Are you saving the heat and turning it back into the boilers? Can you take care of condensation without poor steam circulation, leaks or repair expenses?

These are questions that are worth a thoughtful answer—they decide between heating economy or heating waste, good or poor stock, success or failure.

KROESCHELL BOILERS

Cast Iron Boiler Cracked in Two Years.

"We have a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler. It takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass; it would take care of twice that amount.

I first had a new cast iron boiler which lasted two years, when it cracked to pieces. The second was a second-hand boiler.

I consider your boiler the best paying investment I ever made.

You can refer anyone to us.
MARYSVILLE FLORAL CO., Marysville, O.

Cast Iron Cannot be Compared with Kroeschell.

"We bought a No. 2 boiler in 1904. It takes care of 5000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 2000 more. We are very well satisfied. we used a cast iron boiler before we had yours. It cannot be compared with the Kroeschell Boiler. Your boiler has certainly a great capacity for heating water."

HALL & ROBINSON, Montreal, Canada.

Kroeschell Better Than Cast Iron.

"I bought a No. 6 Boiler in 1903. It has now 10,000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 3300 more. This is ahead of five or six cast iron boilers which I have used. I saved $50 per season on the coal bill.

M. C. WARD, Quincy, Ill.

"I bought a No. 4 Boiler in 1902. Has 7000 sq. ft. of glass; could add 2000 more. It is perfectly satisfactory. Would keep only a Kroeschell Boiler. Would not have a cast iron boiler for a gift. GEO. ENGEL, Xenia, Ohio.

Mr. Engel has increased his plant and ordered another No. 4 Kroeschell.

Better Than Cast Iron.

"We bought a No. 1 Boiler in 1902. It is very satisfactory. We had several cast iron boilers, but like yours much better."

E. FERRAND & SONS, Detroit, Mich.

Cost of Heating One-Half Less Than With Cast Iron Boilers.

"I bought a No. 3 Boiler in 1901. We had a corrugated cast iron fire box boiler and a sectional cast iron boiler before we bought yours in 1901. The cost of the heating with your boiler is one-half less than it was with my cast iron boilers. Your No. 3 boiler, which we bought recently of you, is not being run to its capacity."

WM. GEENEN, Kimberly, Wis.
Has enlarged place and installed another No. 6 Kroeschell.

Kroeschell vs. Cast Iron.

"I have one of your new 1910 model Kroeschell Boilers, and same has proven very satisfactory. We have no trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. We fire once or twice during the day, and once at night, and have had the best satisfaction I have ever experienced in a boiler. Formerly I had two cast iron boilers; one cracked and I took both of these boilers out. My coal bill with the cast iron boilers ran from $195 to $207 per season during the past seven years. This year, with your boiler and soft coal, my coal bill was only $103, and I still have some coal left. Your boiler is the best and cheapest on the market, not alone for the price, but also in fuel saving. I am very glad that you are so well known in Buffalo, N. Y. I have never heard anything but praise, in which I join heartily. Wishing you every success, I remain,

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Pot Grown Roses.

The hybrid perpetual or rambler roses after blooming if desired to force another year, in order to bloom them early should be grown in pots during the summer. They can be pruned back after blooming and lifted, or if in pots should be repotted. This will require a good, strong soil, composed of two-thirds loam and one-third manure. When potting be sure to give good drainage and pot firmly, ramming the soil down hard. It is impossible to grow roses successfully in a loose soil. The plants should be plunged to rim of the pot outside where they can be freely watered. Avoid, if possible, placing them against the greenhouse or other building or against a fence, but plant them where they will have a free circulation of air and can be sprayed from either side. If planted against a building or in close quarters, they frequently become infected with red spider during the hot weather and it is nearly impossible to get rid of them.

Asparagus Plumosus and Sprengeri.

It is a good time now to plant, reset or renew the soil of asparagus beds, either plumosus or Sprengeri. If the beds are to be set out with young stock preparation should be started at once. Asparagus plumosus does better in solid beds, well drained, with a good rich compost about two feet deep. The plants should be set 12 to 15 inches apart and the shoots be given strings upon which to climb as soon as they begin to grow. But little cutting should be done the first year as it is necessary that the plants become well established. The old beds should be given a good mulch of half-decayed manure, and if possible, without injury to the roots, removing the top soil. Asparagus Sprengeri can be successfully grown in the bench, but also requires a good rich soil. The young stock the first year should be planted 10 to 12 inches apart, and will produce many stems that can be cut. The beds that have produced this year will require a renewal of the soil. It is better to re-plant than to try to renew the soil in the bench. The plants are great feeders and the bench is generally full of roots after a year's growth and it will be found difficult to keep the bench watered during the spring of the second year. If the plants are too close together they can be given more space in resetting. Good large plants will do better if set about 15 inches apart. If a mulch is attempted, care should be taken to use no fresh manure but manure that is well rotted. The ammonia that arises from fresh manure will affect the plants, turning the foliage light, and in severe cases the foliage will become nearly white, making it worthless.

Mignonette.

To be able to cut fine spikes of mignonette in early winter will require an early start and although it demands care and attention to germinate small seeds during hot weather, yet it will be necessary to sow seed early in July in order to have a cut in by the holiday season. A north propagating house is one of the best locations for the sowing of seeds in summer. Mignonette does not transplant from the seed flats successfully, so it is better to sow it in 2½-inch pots, five or six seeds to a pot, which can be thinned out to one or two plants as soon as they are large enough to select the strongest. Some growers prefer to sow the seed in hills in the bench, but to grow the large spikes of this flower requires a soil very heavily manured, and the constant watering often sours the soil before the plants have pushed out roots enough to absorb the water. As soon as the plants have attained a height of two or more inches the tip should be pinched or rubbed out, that the plant will branch, and again later these branches will have to be pinched off, until there are six or eight good, strong shoots. The plants will grow in most any kind of good soil, but to get the best the compost should be about one-half partly decayed manure well mixed in the soil and this will produce splendid spikes of bloom. After the plants begin to form their leaves a careful watch must be kept for the cabbage worm; these worms are very fond of mignonette and are voracious eaters, and soon denude

the plant. They are a little difficult to find, being of the same color as the leaf, but are generally found along the midrib of the leaf or on the stem. Growers who cultivate large quantities of this crop screen their ventilation with mosquito netting to keep out the moth which lays the eggs. The plants should be set about one foot apart in the bench and staked or tied in some suitable manner to keep the stems straight and erect.

Cyclamens.

The plants of cyclamen should now be growing rapidly, especially those which were grown from seed sown last fall. These plants should now be in four or five-inch pots and the foliage growing full and strong. If the plants are plunged in a frame, they should be lifted out of the soil occasionally to see that the drainage is not stopped up. There is nothing that will ruin a young growing cyclamen any quicker than to have the drainage get closed and have the soil become sodden with water. Angle worms will often cause this and if they are detected should be removed. It is very easy to find whether they are in the pots. If the soil on the top of the pot is rolled into small lumps it is a sure sign that there are worms in the soil. If there are but a few the plants can be knocked out of the pots and the worms removed; if there are many a watering of lime water will soon rid the soil of the worms. The plants that are in small pots should be potted up as fast as they require it that they may be as large as possible for the holiday season, but do not go the other extreme and pot in too large pots. As soon as the roots get around the side of the pot shift them into the next size larger. If the plants are in the greenhouse a close watch for thrips must be kept during the summer. If the foliage is twisted when the leaf begins to unfold it is sure to be caused by insects and the plants should be sprayed with a nicotine solution. To have good plants for the holidays in full bloom they must be constantly watched and well grown.

Compost Pile.

The extra help that is so often employed during the spring trade can be utilized for a few days before they are let go, in getting together a good compost pile, and there is no better time of the year than the present to do this. The sod can be taken off now after the mowing with no great amount of grass upon it, and if stacked at this time the warm summer days will soon rot the sod and make the pile fine and mellow. So many growers will spend their money for coal and labor and skimp on that most necessary thing for good product, the soil upon which the plant depends for its culture, and again put the matter off until the fall when the days are cold, the soil too often full of moisture, and the hauling poor, which makes the work more expensive and in the end not having as good an article for the succeeding year. It is not necessary to stack the manure with the pile at this time, but if ground bone is to be used it is better to sprinkle it into the pile now. Bone dissolves slowly and the earlier it is incorporated in the soil the better, and it also helps the rotting of the sod. Take advantage of the slack time with both the men and teams and get the compost pile up at once.

Yellow Roses and Purple Iris.

Take a large Japanese lamp with the new large wicker shade for the center of table. Cover this large shade with tiny yellow roses or the yellow daisies, using the natural foliage for a foundation, and where most effective allow a few sprays to extend below the shade. Bank around this lamp the large purple iris. A low wire framework of moss or a flat pan of sand can be used in banking the iris around the lamp. Fasten the yellow roses or yellow daisies to the lamp shade by means of invisible wire. At the four corners place candlesticks with similar shades. If this is used in the dining room of a home where the dining room has the high plate shelf, this can be prettily arranged with the yellow marguerites, filling it in completely and using maiden hair as a finish. If a fireplace is to be arranged in the room use the yellow roses, banking it in pyramid style, using also the maiden hair ferns as a finish. Yellow tulle streamers can also be extended from the corners of the room, attaching them to the chandelier in the center with a large ruche. Palms placed in the corners will make an effective setting. A. E. KLUNDER.

Cornucopias.

Suspend over the table four green cornucopias, attaching them to chandelier or whatever is most available by using the heavy green cord covered with asparagus vine. The cornucopias should be of green basket straw. From the cornucopias run green ribbons to corners of table, using asparagus vine with them. Fill cornucopias with Killarney roses, using asparagus where necessary. Bunch roses at corners of the table. Under the cornucopias place a plate glass mirror to reflect and around this circle a garland of pink Killarney roses—the same as used in the cornucopias. Use small cut glass dishes as favors filled with pink candied rose leaves around inner circle of garland, using a fine Killarney as a division line between each favor. From each favor extend a wide pink ribbon on which the name of the guest has been printed in silver. This pink ribbon should not be conspicuous but placed under the garland and extending the necessary length to each guest's plate. A. E. KLUNDER.

Wedding Decorations in Ohio.

One of the largest and most beautiful weddings in Canton, O., took place June 5, when Chas. Laurenson, of Cleveland, and Miss Jessie L. Rider were married in St. John's church. The church was decorated in pink and white against a background of green. The central altar was heavily banked with pink peonies, with a shower effect in front. On either end were tall silver candelabra holding white tapers. The side altars were banked with Easter lilies intermingled with Killarney roses. On the pedestals, which were entwined with smilax, were silver candlesticks and pink peonies. The chancel rail was decorated with garlands of southern smilax and an embankment of palms was used at the base of the altars. The maid of honor and bridesmaids carried bouquets of long stemmed pink roses tied with pink satin ribbon. The bride carried a bouquet of lily of the valley in shower effect. The decorations at the bride's home were also in pink and green. The mantel and fireplace in the drawing room were completely banked with Killarney roses, with a shower of roses falling from the top. The dining room was decorated with masses of pink roses and smilax, there being a shower of roses and sweet peas falling from the chandelier over the bride's table. In the center of the table was a huge French rosette of pink satin ribbon from which four wide streamers extended to the corners of the table where large rosettes were placed. On either end were tall silver candelabras with pink tapers and shades. The other tables had as centerpieces large baskets of pink sweet peas. The stairway in the hall was wreathed with smilax and on the bottom newel post was a large basket of pink peonies with a shower effect falling to the floor. The other newel posts were adorned with smaller baskets of peonies. In the alcove under the stairway was an embankment of palms, behind which the orchestra was stationed. The archways throughout the house were decorated with garlands of smilax. The porch was entirely screened with curtains and decorated with smilax and baskets of pink peonies. The tables arranged there held baskets of pink sweet peas. These decorations were by the Brown Floral Co., which also had the decorations for the wedding of the bride's parents 28 years ago.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society held here June 19 was well attended. The chief attractions were roses and strawberries, but among the other exhibits the orchids were perhaps the most noteworthy.

NEWPORT, R. I.—A stiff-stemmed yellow rose, produced by William Gray, gardener for Mrs. William B. Jeeds, won a premium offered by Mrs. Burke-Roche at the Newport Horticultural Show. The rose is much desired by society women who like that color, as the stem of the yellow tea rose is too delicate to permit its use for bouquet, corsage or vase.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Buds for Early Bloom.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

About March 26 I received 500 rooted cuttings of Golden Glow and Smith's Advance chrysanthemums. I wanted to have these in bloom about September 1 and was told to bench them May 1 and select buds that appeared after July 1. I thought I could have them benched at that date, but in the rush of spring business I could not get any bench room in any of the houses until May 25. They are nice stock in 3-inch pots, not pot bound very much, with one and two breaks, but they are now showing buds. I would like to know when I should select the best bud and when they will be in bloom. The Smith's Advance is not showing bud, only the Golden Glow. SUBSCRIBER.

New Jersey.

Golden Glow is very persistent in forming buds as soon as the roots fill the pots or bench. Not only does it produce the typical crown bud, but all the lateral growth will show buds also. With plants in this condition, there are only two courses to follow: either select the best buds and allow them to develop blooms, or cut the wood back hard within 3 inches of the ground, which will force new growths from the root. These growths may be thinned out from 1 to 3 to the plant according to the liking of "Subscriber," and by selecting the first bud that appears there should be a crop in September, although it will probably be after the first before the bulk will be ready to cut. From the fact the plants are showing buds it is evident they are either pot bound or have been allowed to harden from some cause. Stock planted early in May usually show buds July 1 and finished blooms the third week of August. Buds selected at this date, June 24, should perfect blooms from August 15 to September 1 according to the climatic conditions. If August should be cool they will develop faster and give better quality than when excessive heat prevails. Smith's Advance is not so arbitrary, inasmuch as the crown can be removed and the lateral growth that follows will produce a bud later. July 5 to 10 is best date to select buds for September blooms.

Final Potting.

We are now at an important period in the culture of the large specimen chrysanthemum plants which are being grown for show and exhibition purposes. They should now be in condition to be given the final potting—this means into the pots that will carry them through to maturity. There are no other plants that require closer attention to the little details necessary to bring them to perfection than do chrysanthemums grown as specimen exhibition plants. Their every requirement must be studied out and catered to. An over-abundance of water will quickly put the root action "to the bad" and extreme dryness will result in hardened wood and stunted growth, and if the shoots are not topped back in time the plant will be tall and long-jointed instead of dwarfed, sturdy and spreading, characters that are essential for a well-balanced exhibition specimen.

The size of the pot for the final potting must be governed according to the condition of the plant. Usually either a twelve or fourteen-inch pot is used, but it is well to bear in mind that a large plant will do much better in an under-sized pot than a small plant in a pot that is too large for it. Clean pots should be the rule for these large specimens. The plants will not only grow better, but their appearance will be enhanced. The soil for potting should be the best obtainable because the chrysanthemum delights in a liberal diet and will respond readily to generous treatment, but extra caution will have to be exercised to get the plants well started again, as after potting a rich soil has a tendency to sour quickly. Good drainage is another important feature. After the plants become well established they will use up large quantities of water, and the conditions should be such as to allow it to pass freely away, so that the soil in the pots will remain sweet.

One helpful thing for the rapid recovery of the plant after potting is to "condition" them, or, in other words, hold them a little to the dry side three or four days before potting; they will take hold of the fresh soil much quicker for it. When a plant is potted with the soil at the roots in a very wet condition, the old ball of soil is very likely to sour and many of the roots rot off. Firm potting is also advisable to make the roots work hard, as this leads to a stocky plant growth. One very important feature in connection with growing these plants is to give them ample room to spread themselves and to enable the grower to properly work around them without doing any damage to the shoots. Do not delay the supporting of the plants as soon as they demand it, because every broken or damaged shoot means so much work lost.

The exhibition stock for cut blooms either being grown in benches or pots can now be treated to occasional top dressings of pulverized manure supplemented with a light application of Clay's fertilizer or such other commercial fertilizer as has been tried and found beneficial; and lastly, the supporting of these plants should be given attention right along as needed to enable the syringing to be done properly.

Heating House and Greenhouse.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I am going to erect a small greenhouse 18x25 feet, and workroom about 30 feet from the residence. The house to be even span running east and west, with a propagating bench in one corner and in another a grafting or budding case. I would like to heat both house and greenhouse with hot water, the boiler to be located in the home cellar. The temperature of the greenhouse to be 60° to 65° and the residence 70°, outside the temperature falls to 10 below zero. Would it be advisable to have two boilers or could it be arranged with valves so that one boiler would successfully heat both?

E. R. P. H.

There will be no difficulty in heating the greenhouse and developing from one heater. For the greenhouse run a 2-inch flow pipe about three feet below the ridge and one upon each of the plates. For the returns use five 1½-inch pipes under each of the three benches. Just what sized flow pipe and how many square feet of radiation will be required for the dwelling cannot be determined from the data given.

Florists' Business Makes Big Gains.

Report for Decade Shows Up Well.

The great increase of the florist business, both in number of establishments and value of products, in the decade from 1899 to 1909, is shown by the preliminary statement of the results of the thirteenth census as regards this industry. The statement was issued June 25 by the Bureau of Census of the Department of Commerce and Labor, and the report was prepared under the direction of Le Grand Powers, chief statistician, and John Lee Coulter, special agent for agriculture. The report shows that while there was an appreciable increase in number of establishments, the increase in value of products far outran this. In other words, while there are more florists, they are better off financially, almost twice as rich, as a whole, in fact.

In 1899 there were 8,797 floral concerns, while in 1909 there were 10,614, or 1,817 more. The products of 1899 amounted to but $18,759,000, against $34,872,000 in 1909. This means an increase of $16,113,000 or 85.9 per cent. The percentage of increase in the number of establishments was 20.7. The greatest increase was in the West South Central Division, and there was also a big jump in the Pacific Division. The following table shows the results of the census taken by states:

J. S. Wilson Floral Co., Des Moines, Ia.

One of the most enterprising and successful florists of the middle west is J. S. Wilson, of Des Moines, Iowa, head of the J. S. Wilson Floral Co. Mr. Wilson's spring business this year increased so rapidly it became necessary for him to provide a more convenient means of delivery and he solved the difficulty by the purchase of an automobile with several distinctive features. The car, a handsome and substantial delivery vehicle as it appears in the accompanying illustration, is also an ordinary touring-car and

THE ROSE.*Carrying Over Stock.

Carrying over the rose stock for two or more seasons is something that has become universal and many claim that better stock is cut the second and third seasons than from the young stock plants. According to the result we have time and again found this to be true. However, a great deal depends on the condition of the stock at the end of the first season: whether it is strong, well built up and healthy, or

Splendid results can be obtained by transferring the benched stock to solid beds; this gives one a chance to renew the soil and the plants can be removed without checking them if necessary by very little resting if continuous summer cutting is demanded. Yet by resting for several weeks the results will be far better as the plants will perhaps furnish more and better blooms in midwinter. When resting the stock on raised benches the watering should be withheld very gradually and syringing kept up until the plants are ready to lift. They should be dried until the most of the foliage has dropped, taking care that the wood is never allowed to become wilted. The time required may range from two to five weeks. Richmond requires a thorough resting of about four weeks on benches and two weeks longer in the solid beds. Be very careful in resting the Killarneys, as it weakens the stock greatly to hold them dry for any length of time.

The houses to receive the plants from the benches should now be made ready, the soil cleaned out of the beds and the whitewash applied generously. See to it that the drainage is good. If one has a sandy subsoil under the beds but little drainage is required. Fill the beds quite full of soil and have a man on each side of the bed to be planted; open up a trench across the bed and have the distance marked on the top edge of the siding so as to plant the stock a uniform distance apart. Six inches of soil should be placed in the solid beds and a section of a bed, say fifty feet, planted at a time, then packed firmly and leveled so the water can be given them before the plants or wood gets checked. It is a good plan to provide some kind of shade when planting if the weather is extremely hot. Something that will be removed by the first rain or by spraying with the hose. A wash made of puddling clay or whiting can be quickly applied with a spray pump or hand syringe and besides being a help to the plants it will also be a comfort to the planters.

a runabout. It was constructed especially for such uses as Mr. Wilson has for it and a few minutes suffices to change it from a business conveyance to a machine for pleasure or for family use. These features of the new auto have led many of Mr. Wilson's friends to believe that he was growing wealthy so fast he could afford three machines, but though he says business has been unusually good he is perfectly willing to let the one machine suffice. Always alert and ready to take advantages of such trade conditions as his town affords, Mr. Wilson this spring opened a flower stand in a Des Moines department store for the greater convenience of his customers. The stand has had its part to play in the business increase for the season, which he admits is at least thirty-five per cent of his profits for the same time last year. During the greater part of July and a part of August Mr. Wilson will be away from home on a trip to Seattle and other far west points. One reason he has proved so successful is readily seen by a glance at his beautiful show house as shown in the illustration. The picture was taken the Sunday preceding Easter, and tells its own story of how beauty and convenience may add to the popularity and profits of a florist and his business.

weak, spindling and diseased, with streaked foliage. Plants showing signs of eelworm would be risky to run through a second time. The Killarneys are good varieties to carry over, also Richmond, Taft, and almost any of the hybrid teas. Beauties perhaps will prove an exception, as we think they should be grown from one season only for best results.

The Cut Shows Mr. Wilson's New Automobile, Which May Be Turned into a Touring Car or a Runabout.

HAVERHILL, MASS.—Charles H. Kaulback, the well known florist, has purchased an automobile delivery truck to take care of his increasing trade.

LYNN, MASS.—Two days were devoted to the regular spring show of the Houghton Horticultural Society. The show was held June 14 and 15.

When lifting the plants from the tables they should be cut out in blocks with a sharp spade and turned up by hand, leaving a ball about ten inches in diameter at the roots and then firming the soil around them afterwards; be sure not to crush the ball. The soil should be tramped down firmly with the feet, which is in all probability the best way to avoid crushing the ball. When the beds are planted and leveled the soil should be about three-fourths inch to one inch below the sides of the beds so as to allow for free watering, mulching, etc. Spray the tops over several times through the day for the first few days and keep the house quite close, the walks damped and as prescribed for the young stock in our last issue. A humid atmosphere is desirable for a time or until the plants begin to take hold in their new surroundings. We always move the plants, stalks and all, and fasten the stalks to running wires as soon as planted. Then prune out the bruised or broken wood after they take a start. If they are pruned hard before they are handled they are inclined to start with a weak and sickly growth.

The stock standing in the solid beds can be dried off, pruned and started at any time from now till the first of August. As stated above, by syringing daily while resting them (of course keeping the water off the soil as much as possible) it will not take a great while to ripen up the wood. Then prune carefully, cutting the Richmond back quite hard and Killarney medium. Mrs. Taft stands for a good, hard pruning, also any variety that has a tendency to come away freely at the bottom with strong canes. As a rule own root stock can be pruned a little harder than grafted plants, as in some soils the grafted plants do not break so freely at the ground. One must use one's own judgment in pruning, paying strict attention to the number of canes the plants may carry, as a plant with a single cane will naturally have to be topped out higher up than one carrying three or more canes. Clean the beds off after pruning and tying and give the beds a good sprinkle of bone meal and a light mulch of half decomposed cow manure. After the plants begin to brace up and make new foliage this mulch will be about washed off; then apply another slightly heavier mulch after using a good soil covering, and not much more.

If the plants do not break in good color you may be watering too freely; let up a little and watch the results. If they should be too dry the plants will have a wilted appearance and be extremely slow to start or make new growth. One may desire to carry over a lot of plants on raised tables for the second year. In this case we would suggest resting about the same, pruning rather hard and removing about two-thirds of the old soil from between the plants and replacing with a compost of three parts soil to one of good cow manure. Also add some ground bone, fill in around the plants, pack firmly and give a good watering. If the plants are handled as prescribed here, using a little judgment as to the details, there is no reason why either method shouldn't produce good results, as there is nothing novel in the methods explained here. The thing of importance is not to overdo the resting as they really can be handled while in a growing condition, but of course after a season of forcing a rest is essential and nature's methods are being followed, a thing we must not get too far away from at any time. ## Nurserymen of the United States Are Doing Well.

Census Report Shows Big Increase.

The number of nursery establishments in 1909, according to the preliminary report of the Census Bureau was 5,582, an increase of 591 or 11.8 per cent in ten years. The value is given at $21,051,000, an increase of $10,927,000 or 107.9 per cent in the same decade. This is a very encouraging fact, as it shows the nurserymen to be coming in for a share of the country's increase in wealth. The Middle Atlantic division ranked first and had an increase of 72.6 per cent, which brought the total up to considerably more than four million. However, the greatest increase occurred in the Pacific division, where there was a gain of 377 per cent. In number of establishments the East North Central Division led, although falling to fourth in value, not only the Middle Atlantic but the West North Central and Pacific divisions leading it. The greater value of the florist business over the nursery business in the country as a whole was contributed almost entirely by the New England, Middle Atlantic and East North Central divisions. The comparison by divisions and states is shown in the following table:

Cold Storage of Ferns.

The storage of wild ferns has developed into an important feature of cold storage industry in parts of New England, and doubtless there will be some demand elsewhere for space for their proper handling. Comparatively little is accurately known about suitable packages, handling and storage.

USES AND MARKET.

Ferns are in great demand by florists during winter, and the holiday season in particular, as a background or "backing" for cut flowers. The greater part of ferns so used are picked in the mountainous parts of New England, the Berkshire Hills of western Massachusetts being especially productive, with Hinsdale the chief center. They are stored during the entire year and shipped out on orders to practically all parts of the country. New York city is a great consumer, but other eastern cities also use large quantities, and they are shipped in large lots to Chicago and even the far west.

STORAGE METHODS—OLD AND NEW.

In the early history of the fern shipping business it was customary to store them in barns, in beds about 10x4x1 feet, covering them with moss. Others were stored in cellars, sprinkling with water from time to time to prevent drying out, but owing to uncertain temperature, and various other conditions not under control, considerable loss resulted from wilting and rotting. It was found that as business increased picking must be commenced earlier in the fall, when the weather is too warm to keep the ferns properly, and cold storage was then resorted to. Cold storage has proved to be the salvation of the business on a large scale. At first undertaken in a small and experimental way, the results were so much of an improvement that now the business is wholly handled through cold storage. Under the right handling, packing and temperature, the ferns come out of storage with the fresh green appearance which makes them so attractive when used by the florists in combination with cut flowers.

PICKING TIME AND DETAILS.

Exact data are not now obtainable as to the best time of picking, but it is generally understood among the pickers that the work should not begin until the first frost, and the picking, therefore, takes place mostly during September and October. Picking begins about June 20, but not for storage. It seems that the ferns are toughened by the cool nights of fall, which probably act to lower the moisture content or dry them to some extent. Anyway, it is well understood that the picking for storage should not begin until the first frost, and experience has demonstrated that ferns picked before are not properly matured for storage and shipping purposes. The picking is done mostly by women, children and old men, and as the work is done during a time of the year when rural occupations are least pressing, the work is very acceptable and forms an important industry and source of income in some sections. One and one-quarter to two cents per bunch of twenty-five is paid according to variety, care in picking and quality, and even at this seemingly low rate some of the most expert pickers earn as high as $7 per day.

PACKING, SORTING, ETC.

The wild ferns usually collected are commonly divided into two grades or varieties, "dagger" and "fancy" ferns. The "dagger" variety is the more hardy and easier to pick, and less loss is usual in storing. The leaves are of waxy appearance and coarser than the "fancy" ferns. As the name indicates, "fancy" ferns are very delicate of leaf and finer in every way and easily damaged in picking and handling. The greatest care and skill is necessary in preparing the bunches or bundles. Not all the ferns are marketable, by any means, and the careless picker is penalized. Buyers located at the railroad station receive the ferns from the pickers, and if necessary carefully sort them. Bunches of 25 are standard, and the ferns must be carefully arranged so as to lay flat, to avoid crushing or bruising. None broken or decayed or badly discolored are packed for shipment. As a storage package a wooden box is used (mostly second-hand shoe boxes), and the ferns are packed in layers with moss on top, bottom and sides, about 5,000 to 10,000 to the box. The object is to pack in such a way as to retain the moisture and exclude the air.

TEMPERATURE AND TREATMENT.

A close determination of the most suitable temperature has not been made, but it is more than probable that what is wanted is a temperature which will freeze the moisture in the packing material and still leave the ferns unfrozen. Satisfactory results have been obtained at 30° F., but a temperature of 25° F. to 28° F. is suggested as more suitable, and experimental work along this line is recommended. Ferns picked in August and early September should not be stored at as low a temperature as those picked later. If the ordinary frosts up to say October 15 in the Berkshire Hills will not damage the ferns, it would seem that 25° F. in cold storage should not, but still in the presence of moisture soaked packing material the effect may be different. The moss used in packing is pretty well soaked, and 28° F. to 30° F. will, of course, freeze the packing material and leave the ferns unfrozen.

It is absolutely essential to best results that ferns after picking should be promptly sorted and packed and placed in cold storage. If they are shipped and on the road for several days, heating is likely to result and ruin the ferns. If placed in cold storage the same day, so much the better, but in cool weather a day or two may elapse without damage.

If shipment by rail to a cold storage house is necessary, by all means use refrigerator cars. Far better results may be had, however, by cold storing where picked, or sufficiently near, that the ferns packed one day may be in storage the next. A cool or cold room for sorting and packing is almost a necessity, and this may best be obtained in connection with a cold storage plant.

In piling the boxes in cold storage it is advisable to provide a two-inch air circulating space on top, bottom and sides of the box, so as to allow a quick cooling and freezing. After a week in storage they may be piled more tightly, keeping them from side walls and floor at least two inches.

Results from cold storing have been reported as very irregular, and, as stated at the beginning of this article, the accurate information available is small. It would seem that the irregular results must be due to the condition of the ferns when picked, or the exposure to varying conditions before storing, as it is comparatively easy now to hold uniform temperatures in cold storage. The lack of uniformly successful results cannot be blamed to cold storage, but rather to lack of uniformity in the product stored, probably too early picking or too late picking, or to careless or unintelligent handling before storing.—Madison Cooper in Ice and Refrigeration.

Hill's New Range.

We present herewith two illustrations of the E. G. Hill Co.'s new range of full iron frame flat rafter greenhouses now nearing completion at Richmond, Ind. The range consists of four houses, 34x400 feet each, connected and built on 3-inch I beam posts, with channel iron gutters and malleable iron bar clips. The outer walls are of concrete and the benches of pecky cypress. The 4-inch iron flat rafters are capped with rafter bar caps and the glazing bars between 15-16x1½ attached to angle iron purlins, which are attached to the iron flat rafters by special brackets. The flat rafters are in turn securely bolted to heavy combination gutter, rafter and post brackets, making a very strong structure. There are no interior supports other than the 3-inch I beam gutter posts and the houses are marvels of strength, affording the maximum of air and light.

Joseph H. Hill on his recent visit to Chicago said he could not ask for any improvement on these houses and claims they are as near perfection as it is possible to build greenhouses. The Foley Mfg. Co., Chicago, supplied the material for this range.

The Late John A. Pettigrew.

John A. Pettigrew, who has been superintendent of Boston parks for many years and one of the most accomplished landscape gardeners in America, died at his home July 2. Mr. Pettigrew had been in ill health for some time past.

John A. Pettigrew was born near Newcastle, England, about 68 years ago. He was the son of a gardener and began his own experience in gardening when 10 years of age. At the age of 22 he came to Chicago and for 13 years following he was engaged in various branches of horticulture, mainly floriculture and landscape work. He then entered the stone business and contracting, which he followed for a number of years, but he returned to his first love again, and was soon after appointed superintendent of Lincoln park, in which position he made a most enviable record. His varied experience in all the various branches of horticulture, coupled with a sincere affection for every tree and plant in his charge, his splendid administrative ability, together with his knowledge of landscape architecture as well as gardening, made a rare combination and enabled him to meet with brilliant success every one of the problems that continually present themselves in such a garden as Lincoln park. Withal he was a gentleman in all that the name implies, a botanist of ability and a close student of all that affects the profession he loved.

In 1894, through his failure to execute the wishes of a disreputable gang of politicians who had influence with the governor his resignation was demanded and received over the protests of every daily paper in Chicago, regardless of party affiliations, and despite remonstrance from all representative citizens. He then accepted an appointment as superintendent of the parks of Milwaukee, Wis., until called to the more responsible position of general superintendent of the parks of Brooklyn, N. Y., assuming the still more important charge of the Boston, Mass., park system in 1897.

California Inspection Law.

The California nursery and inspection law recently adopted provides for the inspection of all "nursery stock, trees, shrubs, plants, vines, cuttings, buds, or fruit pits, grafts, scions, or fruit or vegetables or seed" immediately upon arrival, and if found infected with injurious insects or disease, disinfected or ordered removed from the state within 48 hours. Any person violating the act may be punished by imprisonment or fine or both. The law also provides for stringent quarantine against disease or animals destructive to trees, vines, bushes or vegetables.

National Council of Horticulture.

The sixth installment of the press service of the National Council of Horticulture contains articles upon the following subjects: "Japanese Iris," "Celery." These articles are timely and instructive and are distributed to florists, seedsmen, nurserymen and the press for the purpose of extending the interest of horticulture. Copies may be obtained of J. H. Burdett, 1620 West 104th place, Chicago.

Convention Sports.

The prize list for the approaching sporting events to be held in connection with the convention of the Society of American Florists at Chicago next August is now in preparation. Anyone who desires to donate a prize will greatly oblige by sending full particulars as early as possible. It is the desire of those in charge of this department of convention work to make it the biggest and best bowling, shooting and outing occasion ever held in connection with the annual meeting of the national organization. All communications bearing on the convention sports and prizes, therefore, should be addressed to C. J. Graham, 12349 Euclid avenue, Cleveland, O.

The donor should send particulars of their prizes early so as to afford those in charge an opportunity of giving them full publicity.

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be held in connection with the chrysanthemum exhibition of the American Institute at Exhibition Hall, 19-21 West Forty-fourth street, New York, November 6-8. The premium list of the local body and the national organization's list of special prizes may be had on application to W. A. Eagleson, 19-21 Forty-fourth street, New York. The special prizes include the following:

- Chrysanthemum Society of America silver cup for 10 blooms, one variety.

National Association of Gardeners.

The summer meeting of the executive committee of the National Association of Gardeners will be held at Horticultural Hall, Boston, Mass., on Saturday afternoon, July 13, 1912. Notice of the hour of the meeting will be posted in the Hall during the forenoon of that day. William Sim, president of the National Sweet Pea Society of America, has extended an invitation to all members of the National Association of Gardeners to attend the Sweet Pea Exhibition, which will occur on the same day as the meeting of the executive committee, and to participate in the general program that is being arranged for the members of the Sweet Pea Society. Present indications are that a large attendance of National Association members will be on hand, many of them as competitors for the liberal prizes which are being offered by the Sweet Pea Society at their annual exhibition.

M. C. EBEL, Sec'y.

Society of American Florists.

As the date of the Convention which is held in Chicago, August 20-23, draws near, greater interest is being manifested, and the balance of available space is being rented rapidly. During the week large blocks of space have been reserved by the following: Detroit Flower Pot Co., Detroit. W. A. Manda, So. Orange, N. J. Knight and Struck, New York. Cushman Gladiolus Co., Sylvania, O. E. E. Stewart, Rives Junction, Mich. Mead & Sydam, East Orange, N. J. Sup. Mach. and Boiler Wks., Chicago. H. N. Bruns, Chicago. George P. Limbert Co., Chicago. Ill. State Assn., Illinois. Florists Exchange, New York. Universal Portland Cem. Co., Chicago. Vaughan Seed Store, Chicago. American Blower Co., Detroit, Mich. Burl. W. W. Shops, Burlington, Ia. There will also be a fine display of modern ice boxes and refrigerators for florists' use, by the leading manufacturers of the country. This will be one of the attractive features of the exhibition.

JOHN YOUNG,
Supt. of Trade Exhibition.

Chicago's Balmy Climate.

Chicago is known far and wide as an all-the-year-round resort, mild in winter and cool during the summer months. The expansive waters of Lake Michigan render the temperature enjoyable at all times, and the peculiar ozone is rejuvenating as well as bracing, making the old young again and the youthful irresistible. There is a tradition, which can be substantiated only by the mermaids of the Chicago river, of one very hot day in Chicago, viz., July 4, 1776, and the descendants of those who survived that day are not to be found hereabouts, so that it will be impossible to verify this statement when you come here next August to the convention. It will be easy, however, to prove the accuracy of the appended figures giving the normal August temperature of Chicago and other leading cities supplied by the United States Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., as follows:

TRADE RATHER QUIET.

Trade the past week has been rather quiet and stock of all kinds is now very plentiful with the exception of orchids, which are having an extra good call. Carnations are in great oversupply and are still sold in large lots at bargain prices, although the extra select stock is selling at fairly good figures. American Beauty roses, especially the long and medium grades, are more plentiful than they have been for some time and good quality stock is now easily obtainable. Sweet peas are good property and are bringing good prices and lily of the valley is more plentiful, but a shortage was reported all last week. Roses are very plentiful and good stock is selling well. Some exceptionally fine Killarney, White Killarney, My Maryland, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Radiance, Prince De Bulgarie and Mrs. Aaron Ward are to be had and are having a good call. Fancy peonies are moving freely at good prices and gladioli are also selling better. Gardenias are very scarce, asters are arriving in much larger quantities and pond lilies in all colors can be obtained now. Lilium candidum and L. auratum of fine quality are moving slowly and outdoor flowers of every description are arriving in very large quantities. The wholesale stores will close at 5 p. m. during July and August and the out-of-town trade should bear this in mind and send in their afternoon orders early, so they will receive prompt attention. The coming S. A. F. convention is the principal talk in the market and a record-breaking attendance is looked for. Business on Tuesday was very quiet and customers are reported to be very scarce.

NOTES.

C. L. Washburn, the well-known wholesaler of this city, and Miss Helen Van Aken of Hinsdale were married at the home of the bride's parents at 7:30 p. m., Saturday evening, June 29, Rev. Doctor Brown of the Congregational church officiating. The bride carried a beautiful shower bouquet of lily of the valley and white orchids and the maid-of-honor, Miss Louise Washburn, a bouquet of American Beauty roses. The home was artistically decorated with American Beauty and Mrs. Aaron Ward roses by Chas. Samuelson, and only the relatives and most intimate friends were present at the ceremony. The happy couple are enjoying their honeymoon in Michigan and E. B. Washburn has just received a letter from his father in which he states that the firm's customers in Detroit are showing him such a delightful time that the wedding trip is proving to be a very strenuous one. The genial wholesaler's many friends were greatly surprised to hear of his marriage, and all join in wishing him a safe voyage on the sea of matrimony.

J. F. Kidwell says that there will be an annual meeting of the directors and stockholders of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association on July 6 at 3 p. m., and earnestly requests all the members to be present. Eight new directors will be elected, four for one year and the same number for two years.

Wietor Bros. are featuring a fine grade of American Beauty roses and are cutting heavily in fancy Killarney, White Killarney, My Maryland and Mrs. Jardine. N. J. Wietor says that both the cut flower and plant trade are good and that business is very satisfactory.

The Florists' Club's baseball nine was out for practice again last Sunday and the members are rapidly rounding into shape for the coming S. A. F. Convention game. The boys will practice next Sunday and every member is earnestly requested to be present.

L. E. Sharp, of Sharp, Partridge & Co., says that the factories are out of glass at present and that the market is now exceedingly firm. He believes that there will be another advance in prices as soon as the supply that is now in stock is exhausted.

The Cook County Florists' Association baseball nine will play the crack Chicago Carnation Co.'s aggregation at Joliet, July 4. A. Miller is the twirler for the locals and Allie Zeck the receiver.

Louis Wittbold says that everything is going along nicely at his firm's Edgebrook establishment, and that the roses are looking good and those of the My Maryland variety are just beginning to break.

F. J. Simons, with Percy Jones, has returned from a most enjoyable visit at Mt. Sterling, Ill., and Wm. Abrahamson, with the same firm, left on July 1 for a week's visit at Saugatuck, Mich.

Geo. Faber of Kankakee stopped off here for a few hours on June 29 en route to Milwaukee, Wis., to join his family, who are visiting there.

H. W. Rogers, Weiland & Risch's efficient storeman, left on June 29 for a two weeks' visit at Spring Lake and Pentwater, Mich.

J. B. Deamud and his son's prospective father-in-law have returned from a pleasant visit to Dubuque, Ia.

Theo. Miller, with the Fleischmann Floral Co., is visiting his folks at Indianapolis, Ind.

Louis B. Reuter, with Chris. Reuter, New Orleans, La., called on the trade here last week in the interests of U. J. Virgin, while here for the convention of the American Seed Trade Association. He became a member of that organization last week and, being only 21 years of age, is probably the youngest member on the list. No doubt Mr. Frese would be pleased to receive any suggestion from parties interested, and would appreciate it if they would communicate with him immediately.

Phil Schupp and party have returned from a most enjoyable auto trip through picturesque Wisconsin, and the genial wholesaler is again seen attending to his duties at the store.

The Cook County Florists' Association have their picnic well advertised on the market and a large crowd and a pleasant time is looked for at Karthanser's Grove on July 14.

The wholesale stores now close at 5 p. m. during July and August, and out-of-town customers should bear this in mind, for it may save them a little trouble in the future.

John Zech says that Zech & Mann have been enjoying a good business right along, due probably to the excellent quality of the roses that his firm is handling.

JUNE CLOSES WELL.

The close of June brought very satisfactory business. Work has kept up nicely, while some large wedding decorations served to clean up the better stock. The principal item of the wedding decorations was American Beauties. Other roses, too, sold well, and it is only occasionally that they crowd badly and tend to glut. Any chance of this, however, is over, for the growers are replanting and this has occasioned a shortening of the cut. Carnations are in large supply. The sweet peas, all from outdoors, have been in large supply and of good quality. Auratum lilies are now coming in. Other offerings include asters, gladioli, valley, Easter lilies in quantity, and water lilies. Green goods business is good.

NOTES.

According to an item in the real estate notes of a local daily, the Hill-Heller Co., of New Castle and Richmond, Ind., have made arrangements for opening a store at 532-534 Race street, this city, August 1. The location is in the heart of the shopping district. According to the item, "orders were also given for refrigerators of a special design, which will be installed in the local store before the end of thirty days."

Death claimed Charlotte L. Rubenschnoer, wife of Ernest Rubenschnoer, a retired truck farmer, Saturday afternoon. Three of the sons, Ernest, William and John, are successful West Price Hill florists.

C. E. Critchell offered some very fine peonies last week. He has also been receiving excellent Brides and Maids among the roses.

C. J. Jones had one wedding decoration last week at which he utilized close to a thousand choice American Beauties.

Visitors include Geo. Gans and Mrs. Gans and party, of Richmond, Ind.

GOOD FLOWERS SCARCE.

Warm weather has been with us the past week and good flowers are becoming scarce. A fair demand for funeral work has used up most of the stock. Outdoor peas are arriving a little more freely and are quoted at 50 cents per 100. Planting out is about completed. Wholesalers and retailers alike are seeking vacations. After the Fourth the real summer dullness is with us. Outdoor flowers will soon be a thing of the past and then we will be looking for asters and other varieties of flowers, which, although grown from the outside, find a steady market throughout the summer.

NOTES.

The Retail Florists' Association has done considerable work since organizing. Its action in taking up the high prices at holiday times must be commended. If the society could only establish a more uniform price for flowers at all times it would surely be beneficial to grower, wholesaler and retailer.

The Mullanphy Flower Co. has had a good season and has completed the planting out work. A splendid trade in cut flowers and all kinds of floral arrangements has been the rule.

Robert J. Windler was busy last week with closing exercises. His store is always well supplied with novelties and a great assortment in seasonable cut flowers.

The sunken garden recently finished in the rear of the Public Library building at Fourteenth and Olive presents a very attractive appearance.

The Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. is getting some very nice outdoor peas, long stems, lavender, pink and white.

A. C. Canfield of Springfield, Ill., is shipping some light color pink asters to this market.

Geo. H. Angermueller had a fine supply of fancy peonies during the past week.

The retailers in general are talking vacation, as the dull season has fairly started.

The picnic committee is hard at work perfecting arrangements.

FUNERAL DEMANDS HELP TRADE.

During the past week there has been an abundant rainfall throughout this section of the country and bounteous crops of all kinds are now assured. Taking into consideration the time of the year, the flower business is fairly good. Some rather elaborate funeral demands have helped materially in keeping the local florists busy.

NOTES.

The Pikes Peak Floral Co. of Colorado must have something in their native atmosphere that is peculiarly suitable to the producing of carnations during summer, judging from the superior quality of flowers they are now supplying to the Stiles Co. For length of stem, size and other attributes, they are equal to well grown stock seen in the East during February and March.

While speaking of stock that is shipped to this point, we must mention that the Stuppy Co. of St. Joseph, Mo., is sending magnificent long-stemmed sweet peas to Barteldes'. That these are of far better quality than can be produced locally is evident.

A public market has recently been established here and it is proving quite a success. It is going to have a great influence toward developing the trucking industry and incidentally, of course, will help materially the seed trade.

H. S. Clenehan, whose greenhouse establishment is located on East Sixteenth street, is erecting two iron frame greenhouses. Mr. McClenehan is very successful as a chrysanthemum grower.

Both the Stiles Co. and Barteldes had to execute many beautiful designs for the funeral of a very prominent citizen that took place June 25.

Among out-door flowers now available are dahlias, alyssum, candytuft, sweet peas and antirrhinum.

SOCIETY PEOPLE OUT OF TOWN.

There is little that is worthy of comment going on in the retail trade. The few society people that had not gone abroad or to their summer homes spent much time at Baltimore during the past week and they will doubtless be there again this week. There is considerable stock on the market but few really good flowers. Roses, carnations, sweet peas and gladioli are now the staples. It has been predicted that asters would be in by July 1, but thus far we have seen but one flower in bloom. For the past two weeks the weather has been decidedly rainy, with scarcely enough sun to occasionally dry the surface of the soil. Field stock is growing very fast and so are the weeds. Although we have not heard of any losses, it would appear that carnations, if planted on land with a heavy subsoil, must suffer.

NOTE.

Interest is being manifested in Ed. Schmidt's crab feast, which takes place on the night of July 2. The club meeting, it is predicted, will be merely incidental to the feast.

CONVENTION HELPS SOME.

This has been a strenuous week. Convention has been with us and appears to be with us to stay awhile. Crowds of visitors, as well as the delegates and politicians, are here. Great excitement has prevailed since the very beginning and the crisis is not passed yet. The electrical display has been fine. The armory or convention hall was literally studded with electric bulbs. The roof, the sides and every conceivable spot were all brilliant. Flowering plants and vines from window boxes broke up the sombreness of the stone walls and added beauty. The public buildings and department stores are glittering with lights, flags, and drapery. Many of the big department stores have tiers upon tiers of window boxes; hundreds and hundreds of evergreens have been used, so that the florist and nurseryman have been helped. In the way of cut flowers, the sale has not been increased as expected. The sales have been about as usual. The month of June has been brisk. Demand good and flowers exceptionally fine. Carnations are coming in as fine as in the cold weather. Roses are a little small, but the foliage is good and they have been selling right along. The sales from commencement were beyond the expectations. Florists were kept busy. Harry Kline, of Towson, as well as a number of others, said they had had their hands full getting out orders. There have been weddings galore.

NOTES.

I. H. Moss and Fred Bauer have each bought an automobile and have been spinning around during convention week.

The Gardeners' Club held their regular meeting Monday evening. They will hold an outing down the bay in July.

Philadelphia.

MANY OUTDOOR SWEET PEAS.

Outdoor sweet peas are now a strong factor, large quantities being thrown on the market every day. The quality is extra fine, the season having been very favorable to their growth. Prices, on account of the large supply and small demand, range low. Roses are plentiful but of poor quality. Mrs. Taft looks good for summer, Maryland keeps ahead of Killarney in the demand at this time. There are American Beauties but the local stock shows the effect of the heat. Eastern stock is still fine. Easter lilies have become an established summer favorite as they are always to be found in stock and of good quality. Gardenias are first class, but there is not much demand. The commission men report the out-of-town business fair for the season. Belated weddings or an extra demand for funerals here or there keep the shipping clerks' hands in.

NOTES.

The cactus beds of Fairmount Park which are of such interest to the public are being planted this week. The depressed plateau in front of Horticultural Hall, which is considered the finest piece of bedding about this city, is starting off nicely. There is a different planting of some of the beds which Mr. Schmitz thinks will add materially to the effect.

The new houses of the R. Craig Co. at Norwood are progressing. The stock here is fine. Crotons, dracenas and ferns are the leading features; such a complete stock is scarcely to be seen anywhere else in the country.

The Andorra Nursery Co. of Chestnut Hill has sent out a general invitation to the public to view its Iris, Kaeupferi and other Japanese sorts. Their collection is a fine one and makes a beautiful display at this time.

K.

GENEVA, N. Y.—According to reports the Allen-Bailey Tag Co. is considering the advisability of moving its plant from Dansville to this place. S. E. Allen and J. A. Bailey were here recently and conferred with the chamber of commerce. The new location would put the firm nearer the large nurseries of Rochester and Geneva.

HEAT DRIVING PEOPLE AWAY.

There is a general relaxation of business conditions. The past week summer has again arrived and the buying people are flocking to the seashore and mountain resorts, their only thought at present to get away from the heat. Some of the trade are talking vacations; even some of the old patriarchs who used to think vacations were nonsense are bringing themselves to the view that a few days' rest helps brain and brawn. There are preparations being made for the influx of visitors to the sweet pea show. They will find Boston hospitable and our western brethren can enjoy fish dinners and listen to the waves lapping the shore. We think guides ought to be provided to tow the visitors safely through the various cow paths in the city and to steer them clear of the old farmer with the con game and the carpet bag filled with gold bricks.

NOTES.

On and after July 1, Welch Bros. will be Welch Bros. Co., they having taken out papers of incorporation. For 35 years the name has been familiar to the trade of the country. The officers of the company are P. Welch, president; Ed. Welch, vice-president; David Welch, treasurer. The personnel of the company is about the same but with the increase of business and the increase booked ahead they feel it will be more easily handled by using up-to-date methods of all the big business concerns and may rest assured that the name will be perpetuated after the present firm members are gathered to their fathers. Thirty-five years in business means something.

N. F. McCarthy is improving from his recent operation. MAC.

Pittsburg.

There is little good stock, and we are satisfied, as business corresponds. Everyone is now giving his attention to the planning of his summer vacation.

C. H. Puhlman, Carnegie, was married to Miss Anna Thiemal, June 26, and the happy couple are spending their honeymoon at Cambridge Springs.

Geo. McCallum and John Sicily of the sales force of the McCallum Co., were laid up all last week with tonsillitis, which necessitated sending a C. Q. D. call to Jack Martin, who was on his vacation, and who is still on the job.

At a meeting of the creditors of G. & J. W. Ludwig, an offer of thirty cents on the dollar was made to the creditors on his behalf to take over the store. This was satisfactory to the Ludwig firm and to the creditors and was accepted. A committee of Ben Elliott, E. J. McCallum and P. J. Demas was appointed to carry on the negotiations.

Bouvardias.

The bouvardias will demand more or less attention during the warm weather when they are growing rapidly. Keep all the strong leaders pinched back so that they will branch out into more shoots. If planted in the field keep them well hoed that the moisture may be conserved and the weeds kept down. During the hot weather keep a sharp lookout for red spider and if they appear upon the plants spray them heavily night and morning. These minute insects quickly ruin bouvardias and if they once obtain a foothold are hard to get rid of, and during the warm days of fall after the plants are moved into the houses will work havoc with the stock. It is easier to prevent their getting established than to overcome them later.

GOOD DEMAND FOR ROSES.

Candidum lilies will be somewhat less plentiful than last year owing to the extremely cold weather. Most of them are going into storage. Outdoor sweet peas, all colors, are arriving in large quantities; quality is exceptionally fine. Carnations are showing the effect of the warm spell, but the supply is more than equal to the demand. Roses are in full crop, the warm weather bringing them in in large numbers, and many of them pop wide open before they are unpacked. American Beauties are in fine shape, and the demand is gratifying. Easter lilies are in very large supply, with a poor demand. Water lilies are in good demand, the large white and colored (cultivated stock) being exceptionally fine. Valley and orchids are selling readily, the quality being exceptionally fine. Delphinia, Coreopsis, Gysifilium, etc., are part of the daily stock. The demand for peonies is very good, and the supply at the storage house is fast dwindling to only a few pairs. Greens of all kinds are plentiful. Local dagger ferns are arriving; quality good.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The annual summer exhibition of the above society was held at the Nassau Country Club, Glen Cove, June 18. The display was quite up to the usual good standard of previous years, although the roses were a little off owing to the date being a week late. In the class for hardy flowers H. Gant, gardener to H. L. Prate, carried off the premium honors with a very fine display. A. Mackenzie, gardener to Percy Chubb, exhibited a table of orchids and gloxinias which was very attractive; the same was awarded a certificate of culture and J. W. Everett, gardener to John Prate, was awarded a C. C. for a very fine lot of hardy delphiniums and La France roses. Other special awards were: C. C. to L. G. Forbes for collection of roses; H. M. to James Holloway for collection of perennials; H. M. to Percy Chubb for lilies, snapdragons and Spirea Queen Alexandra; H. M. to H. L. Prate for English iris; H. M. to E. Pester for new climbing rose Violet Blue; H. M. to F. O. Johnson for Tuberosa Richardsonii, and H. M. to W. V. Hester for sweet peas. The show was attended by many of the fashionable colony and on the whole was a great success.

JAMES MACDONALD,
Corresponding Secretary.

BOSTON, MASS.—The Massachusetts Horticultural Society's exhibition of roses, peonies and strawberries in Horticultural Hall June 22 and 23 was a complete success.

DULL SEASON BEGINS.

The dull season has now arrived, and it is expected that there will not be much doing until October. During the latter part of the last week, however, the demand was much more brisk in many lines and prices were better. This was especially so with the best grade carnations. Roses of all kinds are very plentiful, but the quantity will shorten up very much from now on, as the large growers are throwing out old stock and replanting. The American Beauties will as usual be the most popular rose for the next two months, and as several growers make a specialty of growing these for the summer months, the outlook is that there will be no scarcity of these from now on. While there is no very great change in the orchid market, the supply is somewhat less. The supply of lilies is enormous and prices have reached even lower figures than previously quoted. Sweet peas are very fine, moving slowly. In only a few cases has it been possible to sell large shipments of crimson rambler roses for enough to cover the express charges. The very best quality lily of the valley seems to be doing better. There has been a very fair demand for the extra fine roses—Pink Killarney, Aaron Ward, Bulgarie and My Maryland.

Monday noon, July 1.—Stock of all kinds is still very plentiful. No demand. The usual summer conditions are prevailing.

NOTES.

July 2 will be holiday as far as the wholesale business is concerned. All the leading wholesale establishments will be closed to permit the employees to attend the New York Florists' Club outing. The outing committee has made every effort to make this affair a "record breaker."

Miss Josephine Traendly, not quite sixteen, the charming daughter of Frank H. Traendly, graduated with the highest honors at the high school in Brooklyn last Thursday. Mr. Traendly's smile seems now to be a little broader than usual.

Already a great many have sent their names to the transportation committee announcing their intention of attending the convention at Chicago. The latest to add their names to the list are Wm. G. Badgley and Myer Othile.

President Richard Vincent, of the Society of American Florists, and Mrs. Vincent arrived from Europe on the "Columbia" Sunday morning. Harvey Papworth of New Orleans arrived on the "Mauretania" Friday.

Orchids are one of the most important departments of Traendly & Schenck's business and the quality of blooms seen here are superb. Cattleya Gigas are especially fine.

Harry Papworth announces that he has engaged the son of Fulton, the king's florist, to take an important position in his retail store in New Orleans.

Peter Reinberg, of Chicago, who is a delegate to the democratic convention at Baltimore, was a caller in Twenty-eighth street the early part of the week.

The Rowayton greenhouses are sending in Sunburst roses from the new crop. Though still short stemmed, they met with fair demand.

Charles Schenck and family have taken a cottage near Port Jervis, N. Y., where they will spend the summer.

Charles Jaeger, the well known Harlem florist, has sailed for France to remain until September.

Leonard Barron was one of the party that returned on the "Campania" a week ago.

Letters received from John Evans, who met with an accident in London,

A large stock of Bay Trees, Boxwoods, Rhododendrons, Azaleas, Roses, Evergreens, Climbing Vines, etc., on sale at our new William Street Show and Salesroom. Inspection invited.

FROM THE BRITISH PRESS.

Calceolaria Veitchii.—This calceolaria was well shown at the International, when it was given an award of merit. It is of hybrid origin, having been raised by Messrs. Robert Veitch & Son, of Exeter, between Calceolaria alba, a comparatively weak-growing species with white flowers, and an albino form of the garden variety Golden Glory, which was also raised at Exeter, and is now extensively grown. Strange to say, the progeny much exceeds in vigor either of its parents, forming as it does a bold, bushy specimen from three feet to five feet in height, and bearing a great profusion of milk-white flowers, which have, when first expanded, somewhat of a yellowish tinge. The foliage bears a considerable resemblance to that of an enlarged form of C. alba, the leaves lanceolate with much-serrated edges. It promises to be of considerable value for the decoration of the greenhouse or conservatory, while in Devon's favored clime it stood out unharmed during the last winter. This calceolaria can be readily raised from seeds, and plants obtained in this way grow with unusual vigor.

side branches, when cut and placed in tall vases as soon as the fruits are fairly well colored, look charming. I used to cut back the side shoots freely every year in this way. Another lovely rose, Mme. Berard, yields many flowers in the autumn, and at the same time the young foliage is exquisite. If placed in water in a dark cellar for one day and night, it will remain fresh much longer than if cut and placed in vases forthwith. The foliage of Dorothy Perkins in some seasons is very beautiful, and may be cut at times with clusters of late flowers.

Manures to Deepen Color in Roses.—All who grow roses in pots and under glass know how difficult it is at times to obtain blooms of the correct color. Some varieties, especially the yellows, are apt to come very pale in the early stages. Pelargonium growers find sheep-manure a very excellent stimulant, and rose growers are also proving this manure to be very good indeed applied as a top-dressing or in liquid form. Most of the older growers relied upon soot in liquid form as an aid to color, and this, in combination with cow-manure, is still one of the best compounds for stimulating roses; but I would strongly advise a trial of sheep-manure if it is available. It can be applied in a far more liberal quantity than guanos and such like, and is much safer to use.

Deutzia Veitchii.—This deutzia, which was given an award of merit at

COMMODORE WESTCOTT AND SOME OF HIS GUESTS AT WARETOWN, N. J.

A second variety, the Bronze Age, was also shown, and very pretty it is. Of a pleasing, loose, open-habit of growth, it bears in profusion good-sized flowers of a bronzy-crimson hue, though in color there is a considerable amount of variation. In some the lid of the pouch is of a deep-yellow tint.

Roses with Beautiful Foliage.—I think Fellenberg should take its place among the roses valuable on account of their decorative foliage. It has many other virtues. I have a bed of it this year making promising and beautifully colored growth. Both haps, foliage and wood of some of our cultivated sweet briars are very beautiful in combination, and I have used them largely on pillars in the garden. The International Exhibition, is a very distinct Chinese species, and one that promises to be a good flowering shrub for the open ground. As an example scarcely in full bloom was shown, it would appear to be somewhat later in flowering than some of the deutzias. It forms a freely-branched bush, about four feet high. The flowers, which are freely borne in clusters, are of a deep pink when fully expanded, but rich rose in the bud state. Individually, they are fully an inch across, with a conspicuous central tuft of yellow stamens. As the various deutzias have of late years been much employed by the hybridist in the production of new varieties, this distinct novelty should prove a decided acquisition.

French Bulbs.

The French bulb situation has changed considerably in the last ten days. A private letter from Ollioules June 14 has the following: "Since my last letter, prices on Roman hyacinths have raised here from five to eight francs per thousand. It is reported that many retail orders, mainly from England and Germany, will not be filled. As soon as shipments to America will have been made there will be no hyacinths left. Of Narcissus Grandiflora it seems there will be enough to satisfy the demand and prices paid by exporters to growers remain about the same, around 18 francs. Freesia refracta is much in demand and it is probable that the stock will be short, especially the mammoth size. Lilium Candidum is bringing better prices than last season, 20-ctm. around 50 francs, larger sizes from 70 to 85 francs. In fact, the scarcity of bulbs (on Roman hyacinths and freesias) seems to be mainly on the larger sizes and it is probable that late orders for these items will find them high in price."

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Annual Convention, Chicago, June 25-27.

Thursday's Proceedings.

As reported in our issue of June 29, page 1372, the thirtieth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, held June 25-27 at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, was a record-breaking one and the proceedings of Thursday were fully up to the standard set by the other two days. Advanced stands were taken on laws before congress immediately bearing on the seed trade and on other questions. The social events with the banquet and after-dinner speeches were prominent features. Immediately on the opening of the morning session the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That this Association endorses the Bill H. R. 22340, entitled: "An Act to Regulate Foreign Commerce by Prohibiting the Admission into the United States of Certain Adulterated Seeds and Seeds Unfit for Seeding Purposes," now pending in the senate of the United States, in the form as passed by the house of representatives of April 15, 1912;

Resolved further, That this Association is opposed to Section Four (4), the proposed Senate Amendment to said Bill, to impose heavy fines and imprisonment, for, among others, the following reasons: First, The Bill provides ample authority (Section one) for the Secretaries of the Treasury and of Agriculture effectively to prevent the importation of objectionable seeds. Second, said penalties are consequently wholly unnecessary. They are liable to impose excessive punishment on importers who are innocent of any intentional violation of the statute because variations in analyses are quite possible though using the greatest care, and because the importer cannot determine that the bulk corresponds with the purchasing sample, and thereby complies with the law, until the importation has been actually accomplished.

And resolved further, That the secretary of this Association transmit a copy of these resolutions to the president of the senate.

The Bourne Parcels Post Bill, Senate 6850, which has been quite fully commented upon in some of our previous issues, came up for its share of attention on the part of the convention and was thoroughly discussed by various members. At the close of the discussion the following resolution recommended for passage by the Committee on Postal Laws was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we, the members of the American Seed Trade Association in convention assembled, representing practically all of the seedsmen of the United States, desire to renew our appeal to Congress for a genuine system of Parcels Post founded on the plans and principles of the Postal Progress League; further

Resolved, That we oppose any temporary substitute and shall deplore the enactment of such portions of the Bourne Bill (Senate 6850) as cater to the interests of any class or attempt to substitute temporary expedients for real reform. We object to any provision which sets aside that fundamental and world-wide principle of the postal service which provides for uniformity of rate without regard to distance; also

Resolved, That we object to the increase of any postage rates for any reason unless it can be demonstrated that the traffic cannot be carried without loss. We appeal to the good judgment of congress to listen to this demand of the people which cannot much longer be denied.

of "Recent Decisions on the Seed Trade Disclaimer," in which he contradistinguished English and American decisions on this subject. The paper, though necessarily of a technical character, was presented in an interesting and intelligible manner and those present found it exceedingly interesting. Crop reports by letter and wire were received from divers sections of the country and were read by Secretary Kendel. This feature of the annual meeting is growing, and the reports are increasing yearly in numbers and in interest. The importance of this feature of the Association's work is fully realized by the membership, but because of the fact that at the present time other agencies are doing considerable work along this line the special committee appointed to consider the advisability of establishing a crop-reporting bureau reported adversely to taking any action in that direction at this time.

Arthur B. Clark, of Milford, Conn., read an interesting paper entitled: "Opportunities for a Young Man in the Seed Business," for which, on motion of Secretary Kendel, he was tendered a unanimous vote of thanks. L. B. McCausland, of the special committee on overhead costs, appointed on the day previous, presented the report of that committee, which was accepted and a vote of thanks returned. It was further voted that a similar committee be appointed at the next annual convention on the same subject. This is in line with the general movement for greater efficiency in the conduct of business, which is now pervading the country generally in all lines of trade. Careful attention to costs stimulates more economical production through which not only seedsmen but the public generally will reap a benefit. Too little attention has been given this subject in the past. The committee on the recommendations, in the president's address reported through its chairman, Mr. Albert McCullough, endorsing the various recommendations by President Vaughan, and the report was accepted and the recommendations concurred in by unanimous vote. Albert McCullough, delegate to the National Board of Trade presented his report, which was adopted as follows:

The McCullough Report.

CHICAGO, ILL., June 25, 1912.

The American Seed Trade Association. Gentlemen:

Your delegates to the National Board of Trade in submitting their report desire to say that they attended the forty-second annual convention of the National Board, which was held at the New Willard Hotel, Washington, January 16, 17 and 18, 1912. There was a goodly number of delegates representing the constituent bodies of the Board at the opening of the meeting, which was presided over by President Frank D. LaLanne. All of the work of the convention was referred to special committees for investigation and consolidation and then brought up in the regular manner for action. Your delegates served more particularly on the committees on postal affairs and on the river and harbor improvement and sewage disposal.

These subjects were up before congress at the time and all that could be done in using the influence of the National Board to take such action as would be beneficial to urge upon congress and the federal authorities with the view of having the Senate Bill 4308, introduced by Senator Burton, and House Bill 17736, introduced by Representative Weeks, sixty-sixth congress, sixtieth session, which provide for a reduction of letter postage to one cent per ounce or fraction thereof, on and after July 1, 1912. To provide sufficient funds commensurate with the needs of our rivers, harbors and inland waters, which should be not less than an annual appropriation of fifty million dollars for the proper improvement and maintenance in accordance with the plans now being prepared by the Board of Engineers.

At the meeting held in January, 1911, there was a committee of eleven appointed by the chair, with the view of reorganizing the National Board, and inasmuch as President Taft had issued a call through the honorable Secretary of Commerce and Labor, for a conference of the representatives of commerce and industrial organizations of the country to be held in Washington, April 15, 1912, it was thought best for the Committee to continue, and, if possible, to arrange so as to take part in this meeting. Unfortunately your representatives were unable to attend this meeting in April, although we had considerable to do with helping arrange for the meeting. The status of the new organization has not yet been definitely fixed and cannot be accurately determined for some time. Therefore, the future of the National Board of Trade is being held in abeyance until circumstances may clearly determine the wisdom of either continuing its useful work as heretofore or merging it into the new organization. Now should the proposed organization fulfill the expectations of some of its earnest champions and become a permanent medium through which congress and officers of the national government may keep in close touch with the prevailing interests and desires of the commercial bodies of the country, we feel certain that the National Board of Trade will be only too glad to merge with that body. But until such time we recommend the membership of our organization be retained in the National Board of Trade. Respectfully submitted,

ALBERT M. McCULLOUGH.

On motion of Mr. Page, of New York, the report was received and placed on record. President Vaughan extended a cordial invitation to members, ladies and guests to visit Vaughan's trial grounds, nurseries and greenhouses at Western Springs, Ill., after the close of the Thursday morning session, an invitation which was very generally accepted, although owing to the lateness of the adjournment of the closing session it was impossible to make as early a start for the grounds as was desired.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the committee on seed trade disclaimer appointed last year for the work done by them, and the committee was discharged. The question of the preparation of a telegraphic code was discussed and it was decided to postpone any action thereon indefinitely. By further motion the Association adopted the A B C code as its official code, it being understood that the latest edition of same would be used. The following telegram was read and greeted with applause:

Minneapolis, Minn., June 26, 1912.

C. E. Kendel, Secretary American Seed Trade Association, Sherman House, Chicago, Ill.:

Accept my sincere thanks for your kind remembrance of me. Had hoped to meet with you this year but illness prevents. Please extend to every member my very best wishes and the hope that the year nineteen thirteen will see the trade drawn more closely together in ties of common interest and progress than ever before.

JESSE E. NORRHURP.

The inquiry was received from the question box as to what is the best way to keep dahlia tubers from drying up, but no answer was forthcoming. The election of officers resulted as follows:

Chas. N. Page, president.

Harry L. Holmes, first vice-president.

Arthur B. Clark, second vice-president.

C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., secretary-treasurer.

J. M. Ford, Ravenna, O., assistant secretary.

Albert McCullough, Arthur B. Clark and J. C. Robinson were chosen for the membership committee and Leonard Vaughan, Kirby White, Chas. D. Boyles, C. N. Keeney and W. D. Ross for the executive committee.

Presentallon.

One of the always pleasing incidents of the annual conventions is the presentation to the retiring president of a gift as a mark of the convention's esteem. The convention appreciated the fact that President Vaughan had proved an excellent administrative and presiding officer and much of the success of the convention was due to his untiring efforts. While the election of officers had been proceeding Kirby White, the humorist of the Association, had several times made mysterious references to a "corpse" in the hall, to which nobody, however, paid any attention, as it was impossible to connect the idea of an undertaker with Kirby White, and if any one noticed his remark at all with reference to a "corpse" he must have thought his hearing had deceived him. However, when the election was over Kirby announced in a loud voice that the "corpse" would now be brought in, and immediately the folding doors opened and the "supes" came in, bearing with sepulchral mien a long and narrow table on which was something or other under a white sheet. Mr. White now took charge as master of ceremonies and ordered Vice-President elect Holmes to stand guard over the alleged corpse, which he did in a mock-pathetic manner.

"Mr. ex-President," said Mr. White, "when you have recovered from the surprise which this unprecedented action aroused in your breast, we ask that you recall the line of that touching poem of Browning's in his usual intricate phraseology, 'Consider, oh cow, consider!' We ask that you consider many things. You may begin to consider, for example, what you are going to say in response to these few words. We ask that you consider next how much pain you may have caused all the way along the line from the time you were a boy until now to that dear old lady who honored us with her presence last evening—your mother. Consider how that poor deluded girl, your wife, has had to suffer all these years. Consider what this Association has had to stand during the last twelve months;

your arbitrary rulings that have driven us to desperation, your loquacity that has nearly sent us to the asylum and your desire for applause and prominence. We ask that you consider also, and consider carefully, that with all your faults we love you still; that despite every one of these defects they rather endear you to us than make you a stranger to our hearts. They are those that lean to virtue's side. And finally I ask you in behalf of this Association to consider that you have the affection and the esteem of every one of us. Stand up here" (to the "supes") "and remove that tablecloth." (The cloth was removed, exposing to view a very handsome cathedral chime clock, which at once got in touch with the occasion by pealing forth a melodious chime.) "This, in spite of all appearance to the contrary, is a clock. It does not in any way measure our regard for you, but as it marks off the hours may its silvery chime ring only serene days and peaceful accomplishment to you. In the name of the Association, God bless you." (Applause.)

A. T. Ferrell.

"Mr. White, ladies and gentlemen," said Retiring President Vaughan in reply, "this is rather taking advantage of me. I may say that my wife has been asking for just such a clock for about six years." (A voice: "Why didn't you buy it?") "It makes too much noise in the early hours of the morning. All I can say is I deeply appreciate the kindly thought of the gift, which will certainly occupy a very prominent place in our family home. I thank you." (Applause.)

Secretary Kendel now read various invitations received for the next place of annual meeting, but the hour being late, no formal vote was taken and the matter was referred, on motion of Watson S. Woodruff, to the executive committee for decision at the regular semi-annual meeting. The officers-elect were now duly installed. Messrs. Woodruff and Stokes escorted President-elect Page to the platform, where he was received and greeted by retiring President Vaughan, who congratulated him upon being elected for the second time in his life to the presidency of that splendid organization, the American Seed Trade Association. President-elect Page responded in a feeling manner, modestly deprecating his own ability to discharge the duties of the office as well as some others who might have been chosen. He called attention to the importance of the work of the coming year and promised to put forth his best efforts.

Past President Woodruff brought the proceedings to an appropriate finale as follows: "Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen, this has been a unique convention. From the rugged shores of New England to the Golden Gate, from Alaska to the Gulf of Mexico, from Great Britain, from France, from Germany, Denmark, and even from far, far away New Zealand we have had in that great banquet last night representatives. I challenge contradiction when I assert that that banquet was the greatest assemblage of seedsmen the world has ever known. It was not simply the American Seed Trade Association, it was a banquet of the seed trade of the entire world. I want to pay homage to the wisdom of our executive committee and to our ex-president in selecting this as our convention city. I know that you will agree with me when I say that we feel under tremendous obligations to the Chicago seedsmen, all of them; and I move you that a rising vote of thanks be extended by the visiting seedsmen for all that they have done for us during the past three days."

The motion was seconded at once from all parts of the hall, and carried by rising and unanimous vote. Thus closed one of the most successful and perhaps the best attended of all the conventions in the history of the Association, which was not marred by a single untoward incident, which not only reflected the greatest credit upon the Chicago seedsmen for its efficient management and for the lavish entertainment extended by them, but also proved convincingly that Chicago offers unusual advantages as a meeting point, since it is common ground on which may meet both western and eastern representatives. This is further evidenced by the fact that during the year preceding the convention the largest accession of new membership was received of any of the later years in the Association's history.

President-Elect Chas. N. Page.

The story of how a poor boy out of work was given a "temporary" job which has lasted thirty-five years, the boy having in the meantime become president of the firm, sounds thrilling enough in fiction, but occurs all too seldom, you will say, in actual fact. Yet that is just what has happened to and through Chas. N. Page, president of the Iowa Seed Co., of Des Moines, Ia., and now president-elect of the American Seed Trade Association. On April 9, 1877, Mr. Page, then but sixteen years old, applied for work at Fuller's Seed Store. As there happened to be more work than employees to do it for the time being, he was given a place, but was told that the position would last only four weeks. Ordinarily a youth of his age and condition in life would have accepted this as final and gone looking for another job when the four weeks were up. But young Page was not so easily driven from his purpose. He had determined that he would go on working at the Fuller store even after the time allotted him had expired, and that he was of strong enough will and personality and withal a good and steady enough worker to attain his ends is evidenced by his subsequent career. He is still with the same firm—or rather what is an outgrowth of the same firm.

It did not take young Page long to catch on at his job, and so deeply did he impress his employer with his worth that when the time came for cutting down the salary list he was not one of those released. Seven years after he began work he purchased one-sixteenth interest in the firm, then known as C. W. Dorr & Co. Two years later he was made manager, the firm having in the meantime assumed the name of the Iowa Seed Co., which title it still bears. With the management of the company in his hands Mr. Page proceeded to stir things up, and from that time to this, the Iowa Seed Co. has enjoyed a steady and consistent growth. It is now one of the leading seed houses in the United States, and the part the sixteen-year-old boy who came there out of work has had to play in its success is well known to the seed trade. Mr. Page has during this time given his personal attention to all the departments of his firm, and has the reins of the whole business securely in his hands. He has become one of his city's influential men, but though the years have broadened his outlook, and tightened his grasp on business affairs, he is still pretty much the same earnest boy with the same determination to succeed that made it possible for him to turn a temporary job into a life work.

Big Cleaner Order.

S. G. Courteen, who is building a very fine new seed warehouse in Milwaukee, Wis., placed his order for his entire line of cleaning machinery with A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, Mich., during the seedsmen's convention at Chicago. This is the second largest order ever given for machinery of this kind, consisting of 32 of the latest improved large size Clipper cleaners and is made up of 20 No. 109, eight No. 29 and four No. 39 machines, making a complete outfit for seed and grain.

Seedsmen at Vaughan's Nurseries.

Quite a large number of the convention seedsmen visited Vaughan's Nurseries, Western Springs, Ill., June 27, including the following: J. N. Albright, Des Moines, Ia.; A. C. Diggs, Richmond, Va.; Wm. Eckholm, Chicago; Edgar Gregory, Marblehead, Mass.; W. H. Grenell, Pierrepoint Manor, N. Y.; W. P. Hall, Louisville, Ky.; H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; J. Harold Hogg, Toronto, Ont., Can.; C. E. #### Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association

Simultaneously with the convention of the American Seed Trade Association at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 25-27, there was held a meeting of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association, at which routine business was transacted and officers elected. The following new members were elected: W. A. Simpson & Co., Baltimore, Md.; S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich., and L. Teweles & Co., Milwaukee, Wis. Officers elected were: A. E. Reynolds, Crawfordsville, Ind., president; Charles D. Boyles, Chicago, Ill., vice-president; William G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., secretary-treasurer. Directors for the term expiring 1915 will be: D. I. Bushnell, St. Louis, Mo.; J. Charles McCullough, Cincinnati, O.; C. C. Massie, Minneapolis, Minn. As many of the members of this Association are also members of the American Seed Trade Association, it was decided to hold the annual meeting in 1913, during the same week and at the same place as the thirty-first annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, but in order to avoid confusion between the two meetings it was decided by the board of directors of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association that they would hold their 1913 meeting one day in advance of the American Seed Trade Association's meeting. Measures were taken looking toward the establishment of a Board of Arbitration. This matter was referred to the Board of Directors, and is expected to be productive of excellent results.

California Seed Crops.

Los Angeles, June 17.—We are threatened with entire failure on Grandiflora and Unwin sweet pea, both named varieties and mixed. We will have a very small percentage on Spencers, probably failure on many varieties. The sweet pea crop lost several months of necessary growing weather last winter, owing to lack of rain. We had irrigated a large portion of our acreage, and the fields were showing up quite well up to two weeks ago, when the aphid attacked them in large numbers. The plants being small, and the aphid spreading rapidly, it is practically killing the crop in passing over it. Other crops are very late, but showing improvement, and we hope to make favorable deliveries on them.

E.

San Jose, June 22.—The writer has just completed a crop inspection tour, covering the Santa Clara, San Felipe and San Juan valleys, and finds conditions as follows: In onion mildew has reduced the crop probably 10 per cent. The ground is very dry and should hot weather prevail during the next three weeks much damage will result. The hot wave June 1-4 reduced radish at least 35 per cent; sweet peas will be hopelessly short; lettuce, not over 75 per cent of normal crop; carrot only fair and not up to expectations; parsnip, salsify, etc., not up to the average. In fact, the writer believes the harvest on all crops will be short.

E.

Santa Clara, June 24.—It is a little early to make estimates on sweet pea deliveries for 1912 crop, but from all indications at the present time it looks as if the delivery will be about 30 per cent, on account of drought and cold weather in the winter and the hot weather the first part of this month. The intense heat caused about one-half of the blossoms to drop, so it will not be possible, we think, to get more than 30 per cent of a crop; at least, we do not expect to deliver more than 30 per cent from present indications, for which we are very sorry. We hope to do better on all other varieties of seeds.

K.

Long Island Seed Crops.

Mattituck, June 17.—The Long Island cabbage seed crop for 1912 seems likely to be somewhat disappointing. A considerable part of the stock was lost by severe freezing during last winter, and while that which was planted out started out well in the spring it is now failing quite badly and prospects seem to be diminishing. A present estimate would not put the crop at better than fifty per cent of an average yield.

L.

Hempstead, June 18.—The winter of 1911-12 was one of the worst ever experienced on Long Island. We lost quite a percentage of cabbage stock for 1912 seed crops, but the wet, cool weather of the spring has been very favorable for growth from the heads saved, and with reasonably good weather conditions, and freedom from insects, etc., for a few weeks more we may not be short more than 25 per cent. Our farmers made such good money last year on potatoes, and with cauliflowerers always a paying crop, they are loth to continue growing cabbage seed at the low prices bid by some of the large wholesale dealers who control the situation.

Iowa Seed Crops.

MUSCATINE, June 15.—We have had a late Spring; everything being about two weeks late in getting started, but we hope to catch up soon. It has been dry and quite cool at night. Pepper plants are starting off nicely and we hope for a full crop. Asparagus is in bloom and setting seed. Rhubarb set about half a crop of seed. Water and musk melons are a good stand and growing fine. Earliana tomato plants are loaded with green fruit, while the later sorts are only in bloom, although planted as early in the fields. Our asparagus fields of one and two-year-old roots are growing well and are clean of weeds. Being dry this spring we have been able to keep the weeds down, but it has been showery the last two days, so it will mean hustling to keep the weeds down. Cut worms have worked on the sweet potato fields and caused a good deal of replanting to secure a stand.

HOLMES SEED CO., Harrisburg, Pa.

H.

Massachusetts Seed Crops.

Marblehead, Mass., June 20.—It has been an extremely backward season for all crops, everything being about two weeks late. Roots that were pitted were damaged by frost and did not come out in the best of shape; those that started to grow are looking fairly well. We think it is safe to say there will be from fifty to sixty per cent of a crop of seed. There has been more or less damage by cut worms but nothing as compared to last season. G.

New Jersey Seed Crops.

Pedricktown, June 24.—Most seed crops with us are backward owing to the late, wet spring, but should, with favorable weather, improve from now on. Egg plant and tomato crops have been bothered more or less by the Colorado beetle and some vines by the striped bug, but not seriously. Full acreage planted to cover contracts and a larger acreage than usual of pepper, squash and pumpkin.

P.

Michigan Seed Crops.

Jackson, June 18.—The Michigan season is rather late and most crops are backward. Beans are now being planted, the soil being in good condition from recent rains. Sweet corn was planted late but the "stand" is fair except for Stowell's Evergreen, which is very uneven. Cucumber, melon and squash are coming nicely. The heavy rains washed out much of the radish seed in the northern part of the state, and the "stand" is very poor. Many fields of tomatoes were hurt by rains and cut worms are playing havoc.

I.

Nebraska Seed Crops.

Fremont, June 17.—It is a little early to tell much about the seed crop, and no general reports from growers have been received. Cut worms and bugs hurt the vine seed crops to some extent, and there has been some replanting. Corn crops have also suffered from the same cause. The vine seed crops, however, are now doing pretty well but corn is backward due to cold and dry weather. There are few weeds and with plenty of rain and warm weather the corn will probably catch up. Unless the weather is favorable, however, frosts will probably damage the crop.

Oklahoma Seed Crops.

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 19.—Mr. Hickey, superintendent and manager of the Bartelde's stores, and also state correspondent of the Seedsmen's League, is much gratified over the continued increase of the firm's business in this state. The forage crop, Feteria, introduced this season from one of the state departments at Stillwater, is being experimented with in the Bartelde's trial grounds, but as yet Mr. Hickey is not prepared to say whether this much heralded drought resisting plant will live up to the expectations of the introducers or not. It is feared that the recent hot winds will affect the vine seed crop materially in some parts of the state.

S. S. B.

English Seed Crops.

Sleaford, June 18.—With regard to crop prospects, it is absolutely impossible at the present time to make any estimate. The whole of this month has been wet and sunless. As you know a great deal of the rutabaga has been plowed under, and we do not suppose, under any circumstances, the crop will be more than a 25 per cent one. Turnip will also be very light, especially American varieties. The rain improved things at first, but now with this dull, sunless time, it is impossible to say how the crops will go. Peas are very thick and need finer weather to insure good samples.

Boddington's Gigantic Pansies

Can be produced only from the giant strains. Our CHALLENGE PANSY seed contains only the giant self-colors, the giant striped and variegated and the giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion. You could not buy better seed if you paid $100 per ounce. Our Challenge Pansy seed during the past season gave unprecedented satisfaction, and every order booked last year was duplicated and increased this year. All the testimonials received mentioned specially the high grade of flowers—color, form and size of the individual blossoms. This year, by adding improved types, intending customers can absolutely rely on a duplication of this season's success with increased satisfaction. Our "mark" for this strain is "Challenge," and it is all the word denotes.

Lilium Harrisii

THESE are conditions, and they occur not infrequently, under which all lily bulbs fail to make good flowering plants. There may be, probably are, more difficulties attending the growing of Lilium Harrisii bulbs than most forcing varieties, and yet those who do them well have found the early blooms very profitable. In many parts of the south where this bulb has been grown over a longer season and without the overforcing sometimes imposed on the plants, Harrisii has given most satisfactory returns. We are contracting, subject to crop conditions, a select strain of Well Grown Bulbs of Lilium Harrisii

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, July 1.—Mushrooms, 7½ cents to 10 cents per small case; 30 cents to 50 cents per pound; lettuce, 20 cents per tub; cucumbers, 25 cents to 35 cents per dozen.

New York, June 29.—Mushrooms, 50 cents to $2 per 4-pound basket; cucumbers, 10 cents to 75 cents per dozen, $2.25 to $2.75 per basket; tomatoes, 8 cents to 15 cents per pound.

Notes on Alternate Cultivation

The careful removal of part of a crop or plant can be made very profitable in many cases, in fact, it is the only way at times when work piles in on us. However, with some subjects it does not work. One of these is leaf lettuce. We want leaf lettuce to grow up straight and bleached and by removing every other one the remaining ones open and flatten down to their injury. However, with most other crops the method is highly desirable. We find we can cut a field of spinach a dozen times by always removing the largest ones and leaving the smaller ones which immediately take advantage of the spaces made, thus greatly increasing the crop. In damp weather when there is danger of yellowing or decaying on account of crowding, alternate removing pays well. We sow most of our celery plants in hot beds in rows two inches apart. When we get ready to transplant these we remove every other row and when we get to the end we begin over again and take out as before. Thus we relieve the crowding and stretch out the work which too often comes in glut. Some apply this to root crops, such as beets and radishes, but we find these second growth roots woody and of poor quality. It is best to thin root crops and depend on successive sowings rather than alternate pulling for a long succession. MARKETMAN.

Principles of Plant Improvement.

When single plants of the self-fertile class (wheat, oats, barley, peas, etc.) are propagated separately in small isolated cultures (so-called pedigree cultures) they breed relatively true from generation to generation provided, of course, they are not the product of a recent crossing but are constant (homozygous) in character. This fact, together with the discovery of the composite character of many of our old varieties has caused most specialists at breeding stations to adopt a system whereby the constituents of these old varieties may be isolated and tested in large numbers separately. By a process of elimination, based on yielding tests and careful studies of each culture, both in the field and in the laboratory, the number is gradually reduced until only the best remains. Further progress is then usually sought by combining the desirable characters of the best strains by means of hybridization.

While the above system is eminently suited to experimental stations, where time and money are specially allowed for such work, yet the old system of mass-selection may still be regarded as the most practicable one by which the average farmer may annually obtain good seed on his own farm. This system will be outlined in detail later. By means of this method of selection a degree of purity may be maintained in large seed cultures which is scarcely possible in any other way. This in itself is sufficient to justify the application of the system. If applied to cross-fertilizing crops such as corn, this method is full of promise of great gains as in this case it may actually produce a cumulative effect; if applied to varieties of self-fertilizing crops which have become mixed, either through the accidental introduction of foreign sorts or through other causes, it provides a means of effecting improvements by at least separating out the inferior strains and effecting an inclusion of the best.

Since selection, be it "pedigree" selection or "mass" selection, according to most modern authorities, does not produce anything new but simply separates out that which already exists, its value after a certain point has been reached would, in the case of self-fertilizing plants, appear negligible. In so far as being able to effect any accumulation of hereditary variations is concerned, this may be quite true. On the other hand, there are certain physiological factors of agencies such as soil, climate, food and moisture supply, which play an exceedingly important part in the growing of crops and which merit the utmost attention. These factors cause what are known as "fluctuating" variations, that is, variations caused by environment and which, according to most modern breeders, are not hereditary. The selection of favorable fluctuating variations may not lead, therefore, to any improvement in the race as such but there is abundant evidence to show that the superiority of the seed from such variations—from plants which have attained the most perfect development and maturity—manifests itself in better crops for one generation at least. In other words, modifications produced by nurture may not be hereditary, but may be re-impressed on each generation by providing the proper cultural conditions.

The seed may be regarded as an unborn plant drawing its nourishment from the mother. If the mother is poorly nourished, the embryonic plant—the seed—is poorly developed. This is a simple case of malnutrition. Experience goes to show that such seed always produces plants of inferior development. This principle is exemplified in the runt of the swine litter.

Such an individual, as is well known, seldom recovers that which has been withheld from it during the incubation or pre-natal period.

While seed from inferior fluctuations—from poorly developed and immature plants—may often be quite effectively excluded by the severe screening and grading of the bulk sample, yet it is considered a better and safer practice to select desirable plants in the first place, in order that the said sample may contain as little poor seed as possible. This fact, together with the fact that purity in a variety may be most effectively maintained from year to year by the annual inclusion or selection of a sufficient quantity of typical heads, panicles or pods to sow a small culture or plot the following year as a base of supply, renders the system of mass selection exceedingly useful and one which every farmer should include as a part of his regular system of farm management.

In view of the importance of obtaining seed from plants which are perfectly developed and matured, the aim of the grower should be to provide such physical conditions in both the surface and subsoil of his land as will enable the plant to attain maximum development.

This fact suggests at once the desirability of every farmer setting aside his best patch of land each year as a seed producing centre or plot and that he allow the crop produced thereon to mature perfectly before harvesting. Another practice, and one which every farmer may follow to advantage, is to locate, or mark off, the best patch or patches in his fields before harvesting, and allow these to stand until thoroughly mature. They may then be harvested and threshed separately, the seed being kept apart for the following year's seeding.—Canadian Seed Growers' Report.

California's Big Trees.

The Forest Service is raising several acres of Bigtree seedlings on the Tahoe National Forest in California, at a more northerly point than any natural Bigtree grove. While the giant sequoias are found in the forests of the Sierras at various points throughout a total range of some 250 miles, in the northern two-thirds of this range there is practically no natural reproduction. It has consequently been a question whether the species would not practically disappear from this region when the present mature trees die. The most northern existing grove of Bigtrees is on the Tahoe Forest, but about 34 miles southeast of the site selected for planting. This site is on a moist flat not far from Nevada City, and is about 2,700 feet above sea level. The first seeding was done in the fall of 1910, with very successful results, and last fall an additional area was seeded.

The method used in planting the seed was that known to foresters as "the seed spot method." Spots about 6 feet apart each way were prepared by pulverizing the earth with a garden hoe. Seeds were then dropped on these spots and lightly pressed in the soil with the foot. The flourishing condition of the young seedlings gives good reason to expect a future growth of Bigtrees at this point. With protection of forests from fire there seems to be no reason why the Bigtrees should disappear, even though scientists regard them as survivals from a past age, botanically speaking.

For Ornamentality
No Greenhouse Equals The U-Bar

This is the U-Bar, the bar that makes U-Bar Greenhouses the Famous Greenhouses They Are.

At a glance that's apparent. The reason is, the U-Bar. To put it another way; you can put a gold plated harness on a heavy draft horse and hitch him to a swell little runabout—but with all his trappings he ambles along draft horse fashion just the same. So by the same token, putting a curved eave on a greenhouse does not make it a U-Bar curved eave house. It only looks something like it from the outside. A U-Bar house is distinctly different and it's the U-Bar that makes it so. Send for a catalogue and find out just why.

READ WHAT THE USERS SAY ABOUT KROESCHELL BOILERS

Kroeschell Saves Twenty Per Cent Coal Replaced Cast Iron Boilers.

Messrs. Kroeschell Bros. Co.; Gentlemen: We wish to tell you how much we are pleased with your boiler we put in last fall. It replaced two cast iron boilers, has done the work very much better, requires much less attention, and besides, as near as we can figure, we use about 20 per cent less coal than we have been using. This coal item is not compared with only one season, but with at least twenty years' experience with several different kinds of cast iron boilers. We are more than satisfied, and have taken pleasure in showing and recommending your boiler to a number of growers. Yours very truly, PENNOCK BROS., Philadelphia, Pa.

Took Out Cast Iron Boilers for Kroeschell

I bought two No. 4 Boilers in 1902. They take care of 24,750 square feet of glass and could take care of one-third more. These boilers are rated at 21,000 square feet. They do very satisfactory work, better than any other boiler I ever had. I took out my cast iron boilers and put these in their place. Your boilers save at least 15 per cent coal. JAS. S. KIRK, Chicago, Ill.

No Trouble to Keep Temperature of Fifty Degrees in the Coldest Weather.

The No. 7 Boiler I bought from you is heating 14,000 feet of glass. I think it can take care of 16,000 feet. I do not have any trouble to keep up a temperature of 50 degrees in the coldest weather. I fire once after 12 o'clock. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. I have four cast iron boilers and yours is the best of all. All I can say is that you have first-class boilers, and if anybody wants a recommendation of the boiler, tell them to write to me, for your boilers are good ones. CHAS. SCHULTZ, Menominee, Mich.

The Kroeschell Does Our Work Easier Than Cast Iron Boilers and Saves Twenty to Twenty-five Per Cent Fuel.

The No. 4 Boiler is heating 10,000 square feet of glass—it would take care of 13,000 square feet easily. Have no trouble to keep temperature of 50 and 60 degrees in coldest weather. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. We had two cast iron boilers, one rated for 1,200 feet of pipe and one rated for 1,500 feet. These boilers never did the work at their best and when the greenhouses were new. According to our experience with yours, we will save twenty to twenty-five per cent of fuel. HILD BROS., Lake Forest, Ill.

Cast Iron Boilers Break Down.

Have fired greenhouse boilers since 1885 both steam and hot water. Yours suits me the best. I have two of your boilers. At one time I had two cast iron boilers working together, and during a blizzard the rear section of one boiler gave out and the front section of the other sprang a crack a couple of months later. No more cast iron boilers for me. I came very close to freezing out in both instances. G. M. THOST, De Soto, Mo.

Would Not Have a Cast Iron Boiler for a Gift Since I Tried the Kroeschell.

The No. 6 Boiler is heating my entire range. I believe it would take care of 18,000 square feet. Have no trouble to keep temperatures of 55 to 60 degrees—I could keep 80 to 90 degrees if I had to. During the coldest nights I fired at 9, 12 and 3 o'clock. The boiler has given entire satisfaction—in fact, more than I expected. Previous to this I had a cast iron boiler, but would not have it for a gift now. If I know of any one needing a good boiler, I shall recommend the Kroeschell Boiler above all. JOHN LIETZAU, Geneva, Ill.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Primulas.

In growing primulas one should always keep in mind that they are cool growing plants and do not require any forcing with heat, but revel in good cool ventilation. The early sown seed should now be fine plants in 3-inch pots and making good growth if given right culture. A shaded frame is the best location for them, but if this is not to be had, the cool, airy end of the greenhouse lightly shaded will grow them very well. Water the plants carefully; if they are growing nicely they will require frequent watering, and if they were potted rightly will be benefited by a light spraying, but this must be done with caution or the plants will be knocked over and become broken if the force of water is too strong. Keep the plants potted up as fast as they need it, so as to get all the growth possible before the buds set when cooler weather comes on. Any flowering shoots that show themselves should be immediately pinched out.

Genistas.

Keep the genistas trimmed into the shape it is desired to have them grow, by continually pinching off all long, strong shoots that grow away from the desired form. The plants can be grown in almost any shape, either globular or pyramidal, by constant pruning. They can also be trained to fancy forms, such as fans or pillars, or even to the shape of baskets with handles, which make very effective pot plants for the Easter trade. These plants, although expensive, always attract attention at that season of the year. A wire frame the form of the handle basket is fastened over the pot and as the plant grows it is tied down to the frame in such a manner that when the side shoots break they will entirely cover the frame. Two strong leaders are selected and tied over the handles. When the shoots reach the edge of the frame they are stopped and the side shoots immediately break all along the length of the growth. These side shoots are kept pinched back to hold the form until mid-winter, when the flower shoots form, and if any of these are too long and stray away from the desired shape, they can be tied in closely so that the form is retained. Keep the plants either plunged in a frame outside or in a cool, airy house and syringe frequently to prevent them from becoming infested with red spider. Keep the plants in a cool temperature throughout the winter, about 45° at night until March, when they can be given a little more heat.

Violets.

The violet plants in the field will need constant cultivation not only for the purpose of keeping the weeds down but also to keep the ground in a fine growing condition and to conserve all the moisture in the lower soil that is possible. The plants will now be sending forth numberless runners and these should be removed, continually keeping the plants to the crowns. The plants often will make three or four crown growths. These should be left upon the plants and only the long runners removed. These runners can be taken off with a knife but should be cut clear back to the point where they branch from the plant. If any joints are left on the running shoots a crop of small weak runners will immediately sprout, taking the strength of the plant. A careful grower can much more quickly and better remove the runners by pulling them out, but care must be taken not to disturb the roots of the plant.
The best way to do this is to grasp the base of the plant with one hand, holding it firmly in its position as growing; take hold of the runner close to the plant with the other hand, and with a sharp pull remove the runner.
The pot grown plants of the double varieties can be now planted in the beds inside, provided the house can be given plenty of ventilation both on the sides and at the top, but if this is not possible it is preferable to keep the plants outside until the very hot weather has passed. Use plenty of old leaf mould or half rotted leaves in the soil, which should be well spaded in.
It is far too early yet to plant any of the single violets inside, in fact, it is better to wait until frosty weather before removing these to their winter quarters. If planted too early they make large quantities of foliage and will not produce either as many or as large flowers as plants that are not so heavily furnished with foliage.

Decorative Stock.

This is the season of the year for those that have a demand during the winter for decorative stock to carefully look over the sales for the past season and the stock on hand and make preparations for the coming year. Stock can now be purchased at lower prices than in the fall and much more safely packed and shipped than after the cool weather has begun. There is also still time to root and get up a stock of small plants that will be of great use in basket work or in fern dishes. The dracenas all root very quickly at this season and a few lengths of cane cut up and inserted in the propagating beds will produce fine small stock for the centre of fern dishes. Many of the fancy leaved begonias such as metallica, argenteo-guttata, maculata and others of the fibrous rooted section of this species, root easily at this season and make fine small plants with which to fill up arrangements and give a good assortment for this work. Any of the older decorative plants that have not received attention should be looked over at once. The plants that are used for rental can surely be given an overhauling and there is yet two good months to obtain a good growth and to get them into condition for another season. We have never been in favor of an outdoor treatment for this class of stock, but believe advantage should be taken of the summer months to get all the growth possible and the plants in suitable shape for the winter rentals. After the growth has been made and the cooler nights have come, they can be gradually cooled down and hardened off so that they will be in condition for the fall and winter decorations.

Lilium Harrisi.

The bulbs of Lilium Harrisi for early winter blooming will soon arrive and preparations should be made to handle them as soon as they are received. They should be potted as soon as they arrive and then placed in a cold frame. They can then be brought forward as they are wanted. The bulbs can be planted either in pots or boxes and later if it is desired set out in the benches to bloom. While it takes a little longer to plant them in pots they transplant much more successfully than when disturbed in moving from the boxes. Place the bulbs for the early flowering in a four-inch pot and dig out a frame, place the pots side by side in the frame and give them a good watering, then sprinkle on the top a thin layer of sand or ashes and cover with three or four inches of soil. Place shutters on the frame to keep them dark and cool until the bulbs have made roots. They can then be brought into the houses during the fall and early winter as they are wanted.

A Decorated Automobile.

The automobile which we illustrate was decorated for the centennial celebration automobile parade at Cleveland by the Smith & Fetters Co., and was awarded the silver cup offered by the Cleveland Leader for the best decorated machine. The car was decorated with pink roses with two shades of pink ribbon and the contrast was beautifully brought out in Mr. Smith's usual good taste. It was highly commented upon by the daily press, and the parade was declared the largest and best that has been held in any city. Mr. Smith can be seen beside the wheel of the automobile.

Funeral Flowers at Nashville.

The above picture shows the flowers at the funeral of the late Col. B. F. Wilson, a capitalist of the city and a brother of the late Richard Wilson, one of the great financiers and millionaires of New York City. The flowers for quantity and beauty surpassed any recent funeral flowers seen here. One of the most striking and beautiful emblems was the crepe at the door. As a foundation there was a broad bow of black crepe. Over this was hung a bow of lavender gauze ribbon and over that a bunch of lavender sweet peas and orchids dropped in a chatelaine with violet baby ribbon, the whole making a very artistic appearance. The pall was made of violet, sweet peas, valley, lilies and orchids, and was very beautiful. Cornelius Vanderbilt, who married Miss Grace Wilson, daughter of Richard Wilson,

Carnation Stem Rot.

Paper read by H. W. Anderson, assistant in Floricultural Pathology at the Illinois State Experiment Station, Urbana, before the Illinois State Florists' Association at Joliet, Ill., March 5, 1912.

In undertaking an investigation of the diseases of floricultural plants the writer was of the opinion that a thorough and complete study of a single disease was preferable to a more or less superficial study of a larger number of the many diseases affecting our floricultural crops. After consulting with a number of prominent florists of the state it was decided that the disease known as "soft" or "wet stem rot of carnations" was of the greatest economical importance to greenhouse men since the fungus causing this disease is also known to cause a number of other diseases of greenhouse crops.

The literature on this disease is extensive, but no thorough investigation has ever been carried out so that a certain amount of preliminary work had to be undertaken in order to confirm such investigations as had already been made. These preliminary investigations have occupied the time of the writer since the first of last July and a few of the results obtained will be given in this report although a number of experiments which have been started are not completed as yet and therefore will not be mentioned here.

There are two recognized stem rots of carnations which should not be confused. One called the "dry stem rot" is believed to be caused by a fungus of the genus fusarium. This same fungus, but perhaps another species, causes the drying of the lower leaves of the carnation plant so often noticed in the benches. So far as I have observed, this disease is not of any great sent a superb cross, five feet long and placed on an easel. It, too, was made of lavender sweet peas, lilies of the valley and orchids, with a gauze bow of lavender matching the shade of the flowers. Large wreaths on easels, pillows, crosses and lovely clusters made up the collection. All the florists were kept busy and all had a share in the work. M. C. D.

economical importance since only the older leaves are attacked. But the fungus mentioned above as causing the dry stem rot seems to work in the interior of the stem and to cause the death of the larger branches and often of the main stem. The stem and branches when attacked by this fungus gradually wilt and the leaves turn to a yellowish brown or about the same color as the leaves dying at the base of a normal plant. This yellowing or dying of the branch is rather rapid compared with the other stem rot. In the dry stem rot the stem remains firm after death, although wilted and shriveled, and if pressed with the fingers the bark does not slough off while the fibers of the stem beneath the bark remain intact as in a dried or normally wilted stem. The contrast to that of the wet stem rot is marked.

The wet stem rot which has caused the carnation grower of this country so much trouble and which has so often been called the most serious disease of carnations is caused by a fungus called rhizoctonia. It is hardly necessary to describe the symptoms of this disease to a convention of florists since they are all only too well acquainted with it. The fungus usually attacks the plant at its crown, that is, where the stem enters the ground. It may enter at this point or lower and growing up one side of the stem may cause the death of only a single branch. This is often the case where the plants are set rather low in the soil, for example when they are finally brought from the field into the house in the fall. Usually, the first indication of the disease is a paler green color of the entire plant or of a single branch. The plant does not wilt at once for the pale bluish green color of the foliage may be noticed for a week or so before any actual wilting takes place. If one presses the stem of such a plant just above the soil between the thumb and the forefinger a soft area is usually felt and a slight twist is sufficient to slough off the bark, beneath which is usually a slimy wet area which gives this rot its characteristic name. Often, however, the stem is dry at the point of attack and upon breaking off the stem at this point the fibers of the stem are seen to be separated, giving a brush like appearance to the broken stem in contrast to the firm stem of the dry rot.

In order to obtain some definite information as to the extent of this latter disease in the state and also to get good material for our studies of the fungus itself, we sent letters to about eighty growers of the state, requesting information and material. The response to this appeal was somewhat disappointing for from these eighty letters we received ten replies and with the ten answers we received six packages of specimens. In four packages were stem rotted plants, in two carnations suffering from other diseases. Since we have seldom visited a carnation greenhouse without finding some stem rotted plants, we believe the lack of material could not have accounted for the above facts. Such material and replies as we have received, however, seem to indicate that this disease is fairly well distributed over the state and we know from other publications that it is found in most carnation beds throughout the United States.

In making an investigation of this disease, it was thought best to study the fungus causing the disease and to learn something of its methods of attack before making any suggestions concerning possible methods of control, for only too often superficial studies lead to recommendations to growers which are not only impracticable, but are often harmful. No suggestions concerning the control of this disease will be made by us in this report aside from merely sanitary precautions which every careful grower should observe.

The organism which causes this disease is a fungus. Fungi are plants just as the carnation is a plant, but they are lower forms of plant life. We are all familiar with the rusts, the mildews and moulds all of which are fungi. This particular fungus lives in the soil and may thus live for years without causing any trouble. It is very abundant in the soil and undoubtedly is present in most greenhouse in the neighborhood of the plant but not in actual contact with the stem we have found infection takes place only rarely. Thus it is evident that in the case of plants brought from the field into the greenhouse bench any injury to the stem, a bruise or cut, makes this plant all the more easily attacked by this fungus. We believe that this partly accounts for the rather heavy loss from stem rot which is usually experienced for a few weeks in the fall when the plants are brought into the house. Other factors such as shade and damp soil, both fa-house bench soils. The question naturally arises: "If this fungus is so universally present, how can we raise any plants at all since it surrounds all the plants in the bench?" There are a number of factors involved in the answer to this question and our experiments are not yet completed along this line.

An experiment to prove that this fungus was the real cause of the disease was undertaken. This experiment showed that when the stem below the soil is injured so as to expose a portion of the stem beneath the bark and the fungus placed in contact with this exposed area, the plants always die from the typical stem rot disease. On the other hand, if plants are so injured and no fungus is added to the soil, the wound heals over and in a few weeks only a callous can be seen at this point. If the fungus was put in direct contact with a healthy uninjured stem it was found that about 75 per cent of the plants died from typical stem rot, while only 25 per cent remained healthy. But in this case the fungus was very much longer in attacking the stem than when it was injured. These plants were old plants and in vigorous condition, but the soil was kept a little damper than in the benches under ordinary cultural conditions. In the few cases where we have merely placed the vorable for a rapid and vigorous growth of the fungus, have their influence also during this period. Our experiments further show that when a plant suffers from stem rot it is an indication that the fungus is abundant in that neighborhood. Further, a rotted plant is a good pasture for the fungus upon which it can gain renewed energy and from which it grows out into the surrounding soil in greater abundance and renewed vigor. For this reason, plants attacked by the stem rot fungus should be immediately dug up, the soil in the area up to the neighboring plants should be carefully removed and taken entirely out of the house. Very often several plants adjacent in the bench are seen to follow a single stem rotted plant. This may often be prevented by the above treatment. Further, moisture is necessary for a rapid spread of this fungus. In the drip of an angle in one of the station greenhouses four plants were seen to follow each other in rapid succession all dying within the course of two weeks. Experiments in the laboratory confirm these observations in nature.

There is one peculiar condition in the life history of this fungus that is of such great, economical importance that we will lay especial stress upon it at this time. This fungus, so far as we know now, never produces spores. Spores are the seed of fungi which are usually much more resistant to drying, freezing and other adverse conditions than the vegetative part of the fungus. Just as you keep your seed over winter in a dry condition which would be fatal to the plant so the spores of the fungi are able to pass long periods of drought and are again able to germinate when placed in moist conditions. Furthermore, these spores or seeds are usually produced on the aerial part of the plant so that the draughts of air scatter thousands of them throughout the house or over the field. Also they are caught on the hands or tools of the workman or on the bodies of insects and so spread abroad to infect other plants. This is the way the rust is spread—the red masses seen on the leaves consisting of thousands of spores. Also the dry stem rot, the spores of which form a pink mass, is spread in this manner. But in the case of the rhizoctonia or wet stem rot no such "seed" is produced and while it is always advisable to use care in removing a plant from the house no great precautions are actually necessary in the case of this disease. As mentioned before, the removal of as much dirt as possible along with the rotted plant is the essential precaution. The fungus spreads by growing through the soil. But this fungus has certain bodies which take the place of the spores in some particulars. If the stalk of a stem rotted plant is carefully examined many little black or purple specks may sometimes be observed in the crevices of the bark or just under this bark next to the "wood" of the plant. These specks vary in size from half the size of a pinhead to a flat cushion like mass  $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch in diameter. These bodies called sclerotia, are made up of more or less resistant cells which have the power of germination just as do the spores. They are often found in the soil independent of the plant and may here be much larger than those next to the stem of the plant. These bodies are in a resting condition and do not germinate except in the presence of abundant moisture. To determine just how resistant these bodies are to drying, heat and chemical reagents is the purpose of a series of experiments now being carried out in our laboratory but not yet completed. Two things are established beyond any doubt whatever: First, the cells of these bodies will not germinate after drying in the open air for several weeks; second, freezing has no harmful effect on them since they will germinate after being frozen for several days.

Among other experiments we have attempted to determine the effect of this fungus upon cuttings. In this experiment the sand was thoroughly inoculated with the fungus shortly before the cuttings were introduced. Cuttings placed in such sand were at once attacked at the cut surface and on the stem where the leaves have been stripped from the node. No chance is given for the formation of a callous or of rootlets so that the cutting soon wilts and dies, resembling in external appearance those cuttings which are not firmly fixed in the sand and therefore wilt in a few days after being placed. Upon closer examination, however, the brown threads of the fungus can be seen covering the lower part of the cutting and often a sclerotium is formed on the cut end of the plant.

It is well known that this fungus often causes damping off of various seedlings, but what part it plays in the damping off of carnation cuttings is yet to be determined. We will be especially glad to receive cuttings suffering from the effects of the "cutting bench fungus" or "damping off." There are several kinds of fungi described as the "cutting bench fungus" and we are anxious to determine what forms are most harmful in this state.

In concluding our report on this particular disease, we will mention a few of the experiments which are being carried out but not yet complete.

1. A determination of the resistance of the sclerotia to various physical and chemical agents.

2. Effect of various methods of soil sterilization both upon the carnation plant itself and upon the fungus. It may be said in this connection that sterilization by steam easily kills the fungus in the soil but so changes the soil that the carnation does not make a normal growth. It is expected that other methods of soil sterilization will overcome this difficulty.

3. Various strains of this fungus taken from plants other than carnation are to be tested in regard to their effect upon the carnation.

4. The infection power of this fungus upon the carnation in various stages of its growth is being investigated.

5. The various physical conditions supposed to increase the virulence of this fungus or the susceptibility of the plant will be considered in a series of experiments.

6. A continuation and duplication of the experiments mentioned in the body of this paper is considered necessary.

Aside from the wet stem rot of carnations which has taken most of our time we have undertaken minor investigations on less important carnation diseases.

One disease, the cause of which is not yet known, has been especially destructive to the foliage of the Pink Enchantress in the Station greenhouse. On the leaves of many of these plants pale green areas, circular in form varying from 1-16 to  $\frac{1}{4}$  inch were first observed some weeks ago. These areas became more sharply defined and turned to a yellowish green and finally to a yellow color. They also enlarged and elongated. The epidermis over the younger spots remained unbroken and the leaf was normal but later the tissue beneath these areas collapsed and soon the epidermis became yellow and broken. As a result of these many diseased areas the leaf often wilted and shriveled up. At first this was thought to be the disease known as "Stigmonose" or "Bacteriose" but samples of the plants sent to the authority who worked out the cause of the above disease, brought the answer that it was not the same disease. Further observations on these plants reveal the fact that many of them had been attacked by red spider, but whether this was the cause of this peculiar disease or not, we will not attempt to say at this time. We attempted to transfer this disease to other plants but failed. No fungus or bacterium could be found associated with it. Cuttings from plants so affected died before they had a chance to form roots. This point will be investigated further.

Another disease sent me by a well-known florist has been received from two other sources since. The carnation plants suffering from this disease have an unusually large stem from the branches down and there are often swellings or tumors—rough, wart-like bodies arising from the stem near the surface of the ground. These tumors remind one of the "galls" in the disease known as the "crown gall." But not all plants have these galls although affected by this disease. The roots of these plants are unusually large and stalky but when broken they reveal a brown rotted area in the center which extends from the end of the roots up to the main stem. A cross section of the stem also shows a brown rotted area beneath the bark and often extending well into the wood of the stem. The cause of this disease was not determined since at the time of receiving these specimens our laboratory was not yet equipped with apparatus necessary for this sort of work.

The two diseases of carnation given above are of especial interest to us since they have been described and they may later become of great economic importance to the carnation growers of the state. For this reason we would appreciate material or information concerning these troubles. Especially would we like some plants sent to us suffering from either of the above diseases.

Diseases of various other plants have been given attention in our laboratory but for the most part these have been either local or well known diseases and we have answered inquiries concerning them by letter. A disease of palm (Kentia Belmoreana), due to a fungus called gleosporium which caused a rotting off of the plant at the surface of the ground was of especial interest.

Our laboratory is now fully equipped and we desire material of all sorts from the florists of the state. Our desire is to become acquainted with your troubles and although we cannot promise instant relief we hope to be able to give you definite information upon which you can depend. All material sent to us should be packed in the same manner you would prepare cut flowers for shipment. We concern ourselves only with diseases due to fungus attacks, but plants will be examined and if we believe the trouble is due to insects we will place the material in the hands of the entomologist who will answer your inquiries. Material may be sent by express at our expense.

FLORISTS' FERNS.

Potting Young Stock.

Those who handle large quantities of ferns for table ferneries find plenty of work to do during the summer, for it is at that period that the seedling stock is ready for potting off, and this work is rather more tedious than the potting of cuttings from the propagating bench. In the first place, the young ferns have to be lifted from the pans or flats in which they have been growing, and then carefully divided, in order to break the tender roots as little as possible. This work should be done in a shady place, and one that is not too much exposed to the wind, for the young ferns wither quite easily, and if this takes place the plants will be much longer in becoming established. Then they require moderately firm potting in small pots, and to be set away and watered as rapidly as possible after potting, some growers using frames covered with shaded sash for the ferns during the summer, while others having space for the purpose place them in the greenhouse.

Either method will produce good table ferns provided they are given proper care, the greenhouse having the advantage before the ferns are established, but the frame providing the best conditions for a short and stocky growth afterwards. A good coating of fine coal ashes on the benches or in the frame is the cleanest material upon which to set the pots, and also retains the moisture and helps to keep the roots cool, a condition that benefits the young plants very much at this season. Watering needs careful attention, that the soil may be kept damp without getting soggy, for a sour soil will discourage even so sturdy a fern as Pteris Cretica while the plants are in the seedling stage. Thrips sometimes attack the young ferns during the summer, but may be disposed of by the use of moderate doses of nicotine, either in the form of spray or by fumigating at intervals of a week or so.

A sufficient variety of table ferns are needed that one may vary the arrangement of the various ferneries that come in for filling, for customers sometimes tire of having the same arrangement of plants for the table month after month, but yet the varieties that are most in demand do not make a very long list, nor have the changes in the list been very frequent of late years. Several Pteris in varieties from the Cretica and serrulata types are among the most useful, and for broad-leaved effects Pteris adiantoides and one or two of the Cyrtomiums are excellent, while Aspidium tsussimense is still such a favorite that many people are well satisfied to have their ferneries filled with this beautiful and enduring fern only. Some few buyers may demand maidenhair ferns and of these Adiantum cuneatum is the most satisfactory; but this fern will not stand the hardships that some of those mentioned above will readily endure, and it is therefore safer in most cases to recommend the hardier sorts for this use.

The various Nephrolepis will also be growing rapidly at this season, and will endure full exposure to the sun if given enough water and air but when grown in houses of the old type, in which the ventilators are few and far between, it is safer to give the plants a light shade. It is not yet too late to pot off runners of the Nephrolepis, either for fall sales or for growing on, many small plants of these ferns being utilized in 3-inch pots and upwards during the winter months, especially in the dwarf forms, such as N. Scottii and N. Scholzelii. If one requires a quick growth on Nephrolepis, the mixture of some spent hops in the soil as a fertilizer will help, but the plants so grown are liable to be somewhat softer in the foliage than those that are fertilized with old stable manure the hops containing a slight excess of nitrogen. Plants plunged in hops in a slightly shaded frame will make a tremendous growth during the summer, but will not wear quite so well when placed in a dwelling as those that are grown in the full light in the greenhouse and without the hops. Chairman New York Florists' Club Outing Committee.

New York Florists' Club Outing.

There were nearly four hundred persons on the steamer "Isabel" when she left East Twenty-fourth street Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The passengers were members of the New York Florists' Club on their annual outing. The committee in charge of the arrangements, of which Phillip F. Kessler was chairman, deserve much credit for the successful manner in which all details were arranged and carried out. The weather was very favorable and the "Isabel" went direct to the grove this time instead of making the long sail up the Sound as in former years. After a group photograph of the party had been taken, all adjourned to the large dining room for breakfast. P. O'Mara in a few witty remarks called attention to the recent wedding of President Joseph A. Manda, stating this was a sort of wedding breakfast for Mr. Manda and his bride. The happy couple were showered with rice, but "Joe" could not be induced to make a speech. Charles H. Totty, Harry A. Bunyard and John Young were the judges of the girls', boys' and ladies' races. The bowling was in charge of Louis Schmutz, Jr. After dinner had been served a very enjoyable trip home was made and it was the unanimous opinion of all present that it was one of the best managed "outings" of the club and one of the most enjoyable. The committee responsible for the success of the affair was composed of Philip F. Kessler, chairman; Charles Schenk, Louis Schmutz, Jr., E. Schloss, P. J. Smith, W. E. Marshall, A. Demeusey, Jr., A. ### The Green of the Garden.

It is during summer droughts, when the green of the countryside is scorched and faded into brown, that we realize the true value of the color, which can still be observed in perfection in well-kept gardens. Without derogating from the merit of gay flower hues, or the brilliance of white blossoms under sunshine, it may be claimed that green is the tint we could least do without, says a writer in London Gardeners' Magazine; when the sun rises the pale greens of lawns, hops, primroses, calendulas, sunflowers, and countless others, take on a flush of rose that the grey-greens of the sweet peas, centaureas, and pinks cannot receive; when the sun sets even dark ivy will blush to a copper hue, and evergreen oaks and firs glow crimson.

Refinements of choice in planting trees and shrubs should be more practiced; before the season comes for new introductions, we should do well to ponder over the nature of leaves, even as to texture and substance. A dusty high-road garden will not look refreshed during dry weeks if the foliage in borders and on walls is of the dull or rough-surfaced order; climbers and shrubs are needed of shining quality from which a slight shower, or the morning dew, is sufficient to detach the dust. Mossy saxifrages, violets, and Veronica spicata alba are instances of plants upon which dust seems reluctant to lie. A north garden, that receives scarcely any sun from the sides, requires the gayest of greens to cheer it, and, fortunately, the primrose family, and the summer calceolarias and tobacco plants, that will thrive in it, supply this. A pale green ivy is the best wall climber, but the Snowberry Tree (Symphoricarpos racemosus) can be trained against brick, and will offer several of the loveliest effects, the pea-green of early spring, the pink coral-suggesting blossom, and white cherry-shaped fruit in abundance.

A dank, dark garden often suffers in these respects because the climbers and shrubs, trees, even the tall plants are too uniformly heavy-foliaged. It should be remembered that one leaf of a nearly black-green ivy gives denser shade than a dozen leaves of a light verdant variety through which sun-color penetrates. Similarly, a small laurel bush has a more darkening influence than a tall tree of beautiful guelder rose, with its yellow-green leaves and branches, that sway and part under each breeze.

When gazing over a distant landscape how vividly do special fields or plots stand out from others by their colors. We may call cabbages green, but their massed effect is pale blue, plantations of peas are a deeper shade, young wheat a grandly joyous yellow, but most verdant of any expanse will be a field of trained raspberries, or loganberries, such as may be seen upon the Sussex Downs, where slopes look south to the sea. In gardens immense care should be taken to locate striking green shades where they will not clash with others, or where they can form charming contrasts.

One illustration of the use of foliage edgings may be suggested: mossy saxifrages and thrift, violas and primroses or polyanthuses, will never be quite satisfactory round lawn beds, because the contour of those beds will be obliterated by the union of green leaves with green grass, whereas for gravel-cut beds, or those against stone or brick walks, they are ideal subjects; in beds in turf the use of grey-green, blue-green, silver, or gold foliage edgings and carpetings is infinitely more artistic, and allows the handsome shapes to be clearly defined.

During summer countless evergreen and deciduous shrubs and climbers can be quickly propagated by layers and cuttings. A survey of the garden should be made and sites marked where the green either needs adding to by young stuff, or lessening by winter removals.

Half the secret of good preparation for winter bedding is the cultivation of plants, also miniature shrubs, that will present an evergreen appearance; most of the hardy campanulas carry their leaves throughout the year; wallflowers, hardy stocks, pansies, pinks, sedums, heucheras, irises, arabises, hypericums, vincas, and double red and white daisies are of this nature.

The summer care of foliage is an important task. Evening syringings should be given to palms and all the leaved beauties of the beds, also to the too frequently neglected wall and trellis climbers, while any roadside beds or borders that have suffered from dust can, by a sprinkling through a fine-rosed can, be restored to their pristine excellence.

Each year sees foliage bedding-out displays more valued, but in innumerable cases the pattern designs made with leaf yellows, reds, pinks, maroons and silvers would be greatly softened in effect if the true green of Herniara hirsuta and the curled saxifrages had been freely added.

KOKOMO, IND.—W. W. Coles is at his summer home at Oden, Mich., with Mrs. Coles and family.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The Robert Craig Co. of Norwood will soon erect eight greenhouses, each 50 by 100 feet.

VINCENNES, IND.—W. A. Reiman attended the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society at Ithaca, N. Y., June 19-20.

NILES, O.—Fire wrecked the greenhouse of Charles Adgate recently. The building was almost totally destroyed. How the blaze started is a mystery.

GREENPORT, N. Y.—The Harlowarden greenhouses, owned by I. Merwin Raynor, were sold June 29 at public auction to satisfy creditors. The purchaser was J. Clarence Wells, of Brooklyn.

JAMAICA PLAINS, MASS.—Robert Seaver was the winner of five first, three second and one third prize for roses at the annual rose, peony and strawberry exhibit of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

MADISON, N. J.—Madison florists are interested in a plan to catch and domesticate one hundred hummingbirds and turn them loose in greenhouses to exterminate the insects and aid in cross-fertilization. The experiment will be made by Miss Katherine E. Dolbear, a student at Clark University.

OBITUARY.

William Robertson Smith.

William Robertson Smith died at his cottage home in the United States Botanic Garden, Washington, D. C., at 1 a. m., July 7, aged 84 years. He had been ill for about six months. While heart disease, as attributed by his physicians, caused the end, there had been for some time a general breaking down incidental to old age.

William R. Smith, eighth president of the Society of American Florists, was born in the village of Athelstoneford, Haddington, a town fifteen miles from Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1828. His parents died during his early childhood and he served his apprenticeship as gardener near the village where he was born. His desire for education, however, was a paramount characteristic and in order to obtain this he walked three times a week from St. Andrews to Mount Melville to attend night school. After serving his time of apprenticeship, he worked as journeyman on the estates of several Scotch noblemen, among them being the gardens of Lord Elcho, near Haddington, and then, to complete his education in his chosen calling, went to Kew Botanic Garden. In 1853, at the age of 25 years, he left his native land and came to America, a stranger in a strange land, but with indomitable pluck and courage and well recommended by his former employers. He first found employment at Philadelphia and served a short time on the estate of Mr. Dundas, then a famous place. The Botanic Garden had just been established at Washington and three small greenhouses had been erected on what was at that time a swamp, and were in charge of W. D. Breckenridge. These contained the rare plants collected by the Wilkes exploring expedition and that was about all, but here he was induced to go by Robert Buist, the eminent plantsman of Philadelphia. The following year Mr. Breckenridge was promoted to the position of landscape gardener of the public grounds, and a special appropriation having been made for the garden, Mr. Smith was appointed superintendent in 1854, which position he had held ever since. Under his direction the growth of the Botanic Garden, its importance to the country in furnishing rare plants to every section, in determining by practical experiment the species most suited to different climates and the making known those that are most suited for shade trees in the cities, are strong testimonials to his industry and devotion to his work. This swamp, where he first began his labors, has been transformed through his efforts until it is one of the show places of the Capital city.

When the Society of American Florists was founded Mr. Smith was one of the earliest to enroll his name in its membership, joining in 1886, the second year of its existence, and became one of its most ardent supporters and a constant attendant at the conventions. In 1891, at the convention held in Toronto, he was unanimously chosen vice-president of the society. In placing him in nomination Ex-President Craig said of him as follows: "From the very inception of the society this gentleman has manifested the warmest interest in its welfare. With an enthusiasm worthy of emulation by the younger members he has missed no convention and no meeting. He has always been ready to advise and to counsel with the active members of the society and they have found his counsel always valuable." The following year he was elected president of the society, again unanimously. He immediately began his efforts to obtain a national charter for the society and he labored indefatigably to accomplish that object. His acquaintance and friendly relations with the government officials he brought to his aid and at first succeeded in getting the act passed only to be vetoed by the president, but after nine years of constant effort the charter was obtained and to the labors of Mr. Smith more than anyone else the society today owes the ability to perform its acts under a charter granted by the national government, which was signed by President McKinley in 1901.

Of commanding presence, standing all of six feet in height, unobtrusive dignity, a most genial companion, an accomplished story teller and full of wit, Mr. Smith quickly ingratiated himself with those that he came in contact and his friends were legion, among whom were presidents, statesmen and other distinguished men of the day. His fund of stories and anecdotes of prominent men were interestingly told and would entertain a party of friends by the hour. Well versed in plant life and botany it was a great pleasure to him to impart that knowledge to those who sought it and many an attendant at a flower exhibition has been regaled and informed of flower secrets by one whom they did not know when he found them seeking information.

Always regarding America as his home and believing fully in the land of his adoption, yet he never forgot the land of his birth, and was always a friend of the Scotsman, and an ardent lover and admirer of the immortal Robert Burns. While a lover of good books and the possessor of a large library, containing professional, historical and biological literature, yet as he has said, "it was especially a paper monument to his beloved Robert Burns." It contained 600 editions of and bearing on Burns, nearly 5,000 volumes. Of every book that Burns owned (he had ninety pounds sterling at his death) and of every book which he borrowed or loaned, a copy was in this library with but few exceptions. He not only possessed these but they were all carefully read, and he could quote any of Burns' writings at call.

The funeral took place at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, Third and E streets, n. w., Washington, D. C., Tuesday afternoon, July 9, at 2:30 o'clock. The burial services at the cathedral were conducted by the Scottish Rite bodies, of which he was a member, he being a thirtieth degree Mason. Interment was in Rock Creek cemetery. The commitment was by Washington Centennial Lodge No. 14, F. A. A. M., Wallace Streater, Worshipful Master, officiating. All funeral arrangements were directly in charge of Wm. F. Gude, a long-time friend and companion of Mr. Smith. Mr. Gude some years ago accompanied Mr. Smith on a visit to the latter's warm friend, Andrew Carnegie, at Skibo Castle, Scotland. Immediately on the death of Mr. Smith a cablegram was sent by Mr. Gude to Mr. Carnegie. His very complete Burns library was willed to Mr. Carnegie, but it is understood that it will remain in Washington.

Robert Craig's Tribute.

As a youth Wm. R. Smith was studious and anxious to acquire knowledge. While in England he frequently acted as an assistant to the famous Charles Darwin, who made many observations of plant and insect life. He was one of the three commissioners of street tree planting and helped to make Washington the most beautiful of American cities. Every city should have such a commission to secure harmonious and intelligent planting. When he went to Washington the neighborhood of the Botanic Garden was a swamp and fever and ague were very prevalent. The late Thaddeus Stevens of Pennsylvania introduced the bill granting him an appropriation which enabled him to drain and fill up the ground to the great improvement of the health of the locality.

"The grand old man of horticulture" as Wm. R. Smith was popularly known in America, has passed away after a very active life of more than fourscore years. He had a great intellect and absolutely the kindest heart of anyone I have known. In his work at Washington he became intimate with nearly all the famous men who have guided the political destiny of the nation in the past half century. His great mind, his scholarly attainments, his uniform courtesy and tact—for he was a diplomat of a high order—gave him great influence with the men who were in a position to help him in his work, which he pursued so constantly and enthusiastically, from pure love of it, and not for any hope of pecuniary gain. His greatest pleasure was derived from the distribution of rare shrubs and trees to all parts of the United States. The good work he has done in awakening a sense of the beautiful in plants and trees cannot be estimated. A great horticultural authority told the writer that what astonished and interested him most in a trip along the Pacific coast, from Seattle to San Francisco, was the great number of collections of valuable trees and shrubs he found in out-of-the-way locations, of which, he was invariably told, the nucleus had been sent from the Botanic Garden at Washington. The results of his work will long keep his memory green and the love of beauty which he kindled in so many will be transmitted to countless generations. He is one of the immortals. ROBERT CRAIG.

Charles E. Brinton.

He was a son of the late Geo. W. and of Martha Brinton and was 51 years old. He had gone West a year or more ago for his health. Mr. Brinton was unmarried.

Convention Sports.

The prize list for the approaching sporting events to be held in connection with the convention of the Society of American Florists at Chicago next August is now in preparation. Anyone who desires to donate a prize will greatly oblige by sending full particulars as early as possible. It is the desire of those in charge of this department of convention work to make it the biggest and best bowling, shooting and outing occasion ever held in connection with the annual meeting of the national organization. All communications bearing on the convention sports and prizes, therefore, should be addressed to C. J. Graham, 12349 Euclid avenue, Cleveland, O.

The donors should send particulars of their prizes early so as to afford those in charge an opportunity of giving them full publicity.

RAISER'S DESCRIPTION.

Variety originated with John L. North, Sewell, N. J.; cross between Jean Viand and Alphonse Ricard; habit is semi-dwarf, bushy and erect in growth, bearing from 4-5 clusters of immense flowers on well-grown 4-in. pot plants. Color bright intense scarlet, without any tendency to scald in bright sunlight, and showing no traces of pink, a great improvement on all scarlet varieties. JOHN YOUNG, June 28, 1912. Secretary.

National Sweet Pea Society.

The final schedule of the fourth annual exhibition and convention of the National Sweet Pea Society of America, to be held at Horticultural Hall, Boston, Mass. July 13-14, has been issued and shows many interesting events and a most pleasing programme. The convention will begin at 3 p. m. Saturday with an address of welcome. President Sim will then deliver an address, which will be followed by the secretary's report. Prof. A. C. Beal will make a report on the society's trial grounds at Cornell University. The treasurer's report and the nomination of officers will come next. Prof. J. J. Taubenhaus of the Delaware College agricultural experiment station will speak. His subject will be "Our Present Knowledge of the Sweet Pea Diseases and their Control." The election of officers will follow. At the evening session, which opens at 8 p. m., there will be a vote on the next meeting place, addresses and discussions, a question box and action will be taken on such unfinished business as there may be. The lectures for the second day will be announced later. A proposal of the executive committee to change the society's name to the "American Sweet Pea Society," will be voted on. The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston will entertain the members at a luncheon at 7 p. m. Saturday.

American Rose Society.

The annual term of officials of the American Rose Society dates from July 1. President Adolph Farenwald has been attending the International Horticultural Exhibition with the company of 100 from America. During his trip little has escaped his notice, and the entire Society will no doubt benefit by his trip, as he does duty for the second term. Frank H. Traendly, of New York City, becomes vice-president. Ex-President Robert Simpson, of Clifton, N. J., and Frank R. Pierson, of Tarrytown, are to serve a term on the executive committee. This eastern concentration of officers is expected to strengthen the Rose Society during the National Flower Show to be held in the City of New York next spring. The Rose Society is after members. This morning a letter came from Pennsylvania saying: "Can you send me a dozen copies of the Rose Journal?"

I want them for prospective members." A week ago a convention of the New York state bankers was held at Lake Mohonk. The two large rose gardens were so attractive that when the time came for the morning session, which is the chief business session, there were scarcely enough members present to hold the meeting. When a search was made it was discovered that the bankers and trustees were in the rose gardens and more interested in the beautiful bloom of the Queen of Flowers than they were in the active business which called them to the convention. Probably no one has seen such a sight before, the variety of roses seemed endless. There will be a meeting of the American Rose Society in Chicago at the S. A. F. Convention in August. BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Secretary.

Phosphorus Slag as An Insecticide.

The slag or dross formed in the removal of phosphorus from iron ore has been for years used as a fertilizer, on account of the phosphorus that it contains, and also on account of the lime. Recent investigation has shown that the use of this slag is even more profitable than had at first been supposed.

The cultivation of the sugar beet in Germany suffers great damage from the plant louse. The depredations of these bugs are destructive to a large number of plants. All mixtures or liquors used for spraying plants as a protection against these insects have been applied in vain. The "false brown rust" or "curl" of the peach is caused by the plant lice, and it cannot be successfully fought because neither liquors nor powders can be made to reach the little animals. When the beet plant is attacked, the leaf curls up and protects the insect against any treatment the farmer may apply.

It has been found that by the application of large quantities of nitrates after rains, the beet is stimulated to push out new leaves, which take the place of those destroyed by the plant lice. But this method has its dangers since an excess of nitrogen in the soil may be just as harmful to the plant as the action of the insects. J. P. Wagner, a sugar beet expert, recently told the National Society of Agriculture in France of a successful attempt to fight these insects by means of phosphorus slag. He spread about 1,400 pounds of the phosphorus slag to the acre on fields that were infested with the plant louse. Not only did this treatment prevent the insects from attacking the leaves, but they were driven away from leaves they had already attacked. On another field the slag was applied in larger quantities. Every plant was already attacked by the insects when the dross was applied. Within eight days all the insects had disappeared, and the plants recovered their healthy appearance and color.

The method by which the phosphorus slag operated in these cases is not known. Wagner thinks that the compound forms a thin layer on the leaf, spreading out over the whole surface, and that it is either distasteful or injurious to the insect. It is well known that many lime compounds are injurious to animals with soft, naked skins such as snails, caterpillars, naked larvæ; but it has not been shown that a similar effect is actually produced in the treatment against plant lice with phosphorus slag.—Scientific American.

OUTDOOR GLADIOLI ARE IN.

The extremely warm weather and Fourth of July have affected the market conditions considerably, and the usual lull that is always experienced after a holiday is here now. Stock of all kinds is very plentiful and the first outdoor gladioli of the season, Mrs. Francis King, Augusta and America, made their appearance in the market this week. Asters are arriving in much larger quantities and the general report from the growers is that the crops are very large this season. Some of the larger growers are now cutting roses from their young stock and plenty of short and medium American Beauties, Killarney and White Killarney are now obtainable. Long-stemmed American Beauty roses are very plentiful and the quality is good, but the demand is very light. The demand for orchids and lily of the valley has also fallen off considerably and carnations are still being sacrificed in large lots at bargain prices. Radiance, Prince de Bulgarie, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Melody roses are having a good call but choice My Maryland, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria and Killarney are moving well. Pink and white snapdragons and lilies are arriving in fine condition but are not moving. Gardenias are none too plentiful and sweet peas are now showing the effects of the severe warm weather. Storage peonies are having a pretty fair call and some fresh cut northern grown stock is still arriving. Daisies, coreopsis, gypsophilla candytuft, gailardia schillea, feverfew and larkspur are very plentiful and pond lilies are seen prominently displayed in many of the down town store windows. The severe warm weather is proving to be too much for some of the flo-

GLADIOLI.

Gladioli, forced for early bloom, have been quite a feature of the market this season, and the spikes were remarkably fine. The varieties most generally employed for this purpose are America, Augusta, Mrs. Francis King and Shakespeare, and the season and prices (per dozen spikes) ran about as follows:

| Variety.        | Apr. | May.   | June.  |
|-----------------|------|--------|--------|
| America .....   | $ — | $1.50 | $1.00 |
| Augusta .....   | 1.00 | .75    | .75    |
| Mrs. F. King..  | 1.00 | .75    | .75    |
| Shakespeare ... | —    | .75    | .75    |

The first out-door gladioli, Mrs. Francis King, Augusta and America, were shipped to this market on July 4 and the extra fancy stock is quoted at 75 cents per dozen spikes.

HARRY GARLAND IN THE SOUTH.

Harry S. Garland, of the Geo. M. Garland Co., Des Plaines, is making a trip from the Lakes to the Gulf, studying southern greenhouse construction, of which we expect to hear later. Mr. Garland arrived in Galveston, Sunday, June 30, and was taken in hand by J. D. Pruessner and his two sons. A stroll was taken on the great seawall and boulevard; the new million-dollar hostelry, Hotel Galvez, was selected as the stopping place, where a sumptuous supper was spread and thoroughly enjoyed, the Gulf breeze and the waves furnishing the music. After supper a dip was taken in the surf. Monday morning Mr. Garland left for Houston, San Antonio, thence to the Pacific coast, full of gratification with the things that he had learned in the south.

Finest Roses in Chicago

We are receiving some exceptionally fine roses, which are, without question, the finest stocks now obtainable, especially our Pink and White Killarneys, which are equal to winter grown stock. This stock is particularly fine for shipping orders and the out-of-town buyers would do well to favor us with a trial order. We are also well fixed on lilies, lily of the valley, and everything else in seasonable cut flowers.

The second annual meeting of the board of directors and stockholders of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association was held at their store on North Michigan avenue, on July 6, when Fred Schramm and Fred Stielow were elected directors to fill the vacancies which occurred by the resignations of Joseph Schoos and J. Meier. All the old officers and other directors were re-elected and much important business was transacted. A complete report of last year's business was not ready in time to be read at this meeting but it will be mailed to the stockholders of the association this week. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: J. F. Kidwell, president; E. Meuret, vice-president; A. Then, treasurer; G. C. Weiland, secretary, and A. Jurgens, C. McCauley, Fred Schramm and Fred Stielow, directors.

Aug. Jurgens sent a basket of peaches to his friends on the local market this week from his farm at Richland, N. J., and it was surprising to see how quickly the choice fruit disappeared.

Wm. Sgoros, of the Madison Floral Co., is back from Benton Harbor, Mich., where his friend, George Knockout Brown, battled for middleweight honors with Eddie McGoorty on July 4.

Chas. Klehm expects to finish up his peony season at Kyle & Foerster's store in about another week and the supply of stock now in storage is gradually diminishing.

Adolph Bensch, manager of the supply department at Winterson's Seed Store, and family are visiting friends at Kansas City, Omaha and other western cities.

H. Van Gelder, of Percy Jones, made a business and pleasure trip to Milwaukee and Lake Geneva, Wis., in his auto on July 4.

The Batavia Greenhouse Co. cut its first outdoor gladioli, Mrs. Francis King, Augusta and America, on July 5.

Weiland & Risch are cutting from a nice crop of gardenias and are now receiving a large supply at the store.

Frank Kral says that business is pretty good and that he is having his share of the summer work.

J. F. Kidwell's family will leave on July 15 for an automobile trip to Bloomington, Mich.

George Economopolis says that trade is very quiet now at the Alpha Floral Co.'s store.

Clarence Hoffman, with the E. C. Amling Co., is away on his vacation.

The A. L. Randall Co.'s employes and friends had a most delightful time at the picnic which was given at the Tonner home in Galewood, on July 4, and nearly 100 people were present. The crowd left the store in automobiles at 11 a. m. and the afternoon was devoted to athletic games of all kinds. It was 6:30 p. m. before the happy crowd broke up, and all present enjoyed themselves immensely and agreed that it was the best time ever.

Zech & Mann are supplying their customers with an exceptionally fine grade of Killarney, White Killarney and My Maryland roses and the quality is equal to that of winter-grown stock. Business has been pretty good at this house considering the present market conditions and the proprietors are well satisfied with the amount of business that has been done.

A. F. Longren (Flannigan) is back at E. H. Hunt's from a successful business trip through the central states. R. H. Starbuck, with the same firm, says that the demand for greenhouse supplies is very good and that his house is selling a large quantity of paint, putty and hose.

A. L. Vaughan left this week for a fishing trip to Fremont, Mich., and will not return until he catches a 20-pound musky. His firm is receiving a large supply of gladioli and asters and the latter are of exceptionally fine quality.

Roswell Schupp, of the J. A. Budlong force, is enjoying his vacation at Lake Geneva, Wis.

Frank Ayers, Chas. W. McKellar's storeman, will leave on July 13 for a month's outing in the Canadian wilds.

Wm. A. Engbrecht is back from a successful fishing trip in Wisconsin.

Visitors: Andrew Peterson, Hoopes-ton; Harry Balsley, Detroit, Mich.; Wm. Markey, with Markey Bros., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

WILMINGTON, DEL.—The St. Andrews Bay Nursery and Orchard Company has incorporated with a capital stock of $250,000.

SEATTLE, WASH.—F. L. Ziegler, 8 South Lincoln street, filed a petition in bankruptcy July 5 and claims assets of $8,136, liabilities $6,607. Frank T. Manahan has been appointed receiver and will continue the business until fall. He says the place is in fine condition and that creditors' prospects are good.

St. Louis.

WARM WEATHER STOPS DEMAND.

The warm weather is with us and shows indications of staying. As to market quotations, there are none. There is no demand and the retailers are shy and refrain from buying except to fill orders. The stock from the growers of the local market is very poor, especially carnations, and some of the growers to make matters worse will persist in bunching their carnations to shove in two or three poor and miserable blooms, thus causing them a loss in sales in many cases. Sweet peas grown from the outside a week ago were scarce and sold at fifty cents per one hundred. Last Sunday they were a positive glut. Downtown retailers were selling them at five cents per bunch. Two bunches for five cents were offered by one retailer who thus displayed his philanthropy. "Why"—the poor picker, buncher and grower scratched his head and asked himself—"why is a sweet pea?"

NOTES.

Grimm & Gorly, who had expected to vacate their present location, have decided to remain and have obtained a seven-year lease on the premises. Some important and material changes will be made in the store during the dull months. The firm has given to its employes a two-weeks' vacation with pay. This is a good way to reward good and faithful service.

The retailers, wholesalers and growers are all talking picnics and vacations. The wholesalers are praying for rain to keep cool or something to make a stir. The coming convention at Chicago is talked all over and a record-breaker in attendance is expected from St. Louis and vicinity.

Fred Alves and Al. Gumz, of Geo. H. Angermueller's force, will be at the picnic and Will Ossick, Frank Windler and Paddy Patton will represent the Wm. H. Smith Floral Co. George Schriver at Kuehn's and Otto Berning at H. C. Berning will have their hands full.

The Paris Floral Co. has closed. F. J. Foster, manager, will conduct business through the telephone at his residence at Kinlock. He expects to open up a new location in September, but will not reopen during the dull months.

Mike Mitchell, formerly of the M. & S. Floral Co., is taking things easy now. Mike comes daily to the market but does not plunge these warm days.

A meeting of the picnic committee and trustees was held at the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. last Friday and final arrangements made for the picnic. Programmes are out and a good time is assured.

J. F. Ammann of Edwardsville, Ill., has nearly completed his new carnation house. He has remodeled his rose houses. His crop has for years been consigned to the well-known firm of C. A. Kuehn.

Andrew Meyer, Jr., is doing some touring. He uses his machine for business as well as pleasure.

George Waldbart has donated a special prize for the Florist Picnic.

A. C. Canfield of Springfield, Ill., is shipping his crop to C. A. Kuehn.

Outing at Joliet

The Cook County Florists' Association's baseball nine played a pretty good game against the Chicago Carnation Co.'s crack aggregation at Joliet, on July 4, but were badly beaten by a 19 to 0 score. The locals had practically no practice whatever but gave Peter Olsem's "champs" a bad scare in the opening inning when the penitentiary city boys thought they were up against the real article. A. Miller did the twirling for the locals and struck out the first two men that came up to bat with his unrivaled saliva shoot, that even Allie Zech admitted was some clever. A. C. Kohlbrand acted as umpire and Tim Matchen made a couple of hits, but the rest of the nine were fortunate if they reached first base. About 20 people accompanied the team and all there enjoyed themselves immensely and all are very grateful to Messrs. Pyfer and Olsem for the splendid way in which they entertained the crowd. To reach Mr. Pyfer's home it was necessary to cross the river on a swinging bridge and it was very amusing to see the people cross it, especially F. F. Scheel, who lost his balance and nearly went pitching headlong into the stream.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—The Ziedler Floral Co. is building a new range of greenhouses.

ST. JOHNSVILLE, N. Y.—M. O. Dockerty has built a greenhouse containing 1,700 square feet of glass and another, which will contain 1,200 feet, under construction.

PEOPLE DESERTING CITY.

We have just passed the driest June since the records have been kept and they go back forty years. Last year Boston broke records and this July we are breaking records for heat in the whole country. The famous east wind has deserted us and we are sweltering at 94 degrees. Trains, steamboats and automobiles have taken the human freight out to the seashore and the hill country to board at farmhouses and feast on fresh vegetables, eggs and milk. Flowers for the present are forgotten. The only thought is to get somewhere out of town. Some of the department stores are showing life by advertising carnations at twenty-five cents per dozen. The market is lifeless; except for a stray funeral there is nothing doing. We like to send cheerful reports, but there is no chance just now. However, we are all hopeful for the future. Dun's report shows a healthy state of trade, with a higher average than that of 1911. The best gaillardias we have seen are handled by Geo. Cartwright at the Boston Flower Exchange. In orchids, Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., holds the palm, the shipper, Seth Borden, sending in some fine Cattleya gigas and labiata. In American Beauty roses, those shipped to Welch Bros. Co., from Carl Jurgens, Newport, R. I., are for July something unusual for stem, foliage and flower.

NOTES.

We are sorry to report the sudden death July 4, of Mr. McManus, of the Galvin Back Bay force. Death came while he was out walking with his son and heart trouble was the cause. For twelve years he had charge of the plant department of the Galvin stores. Before that he was assistant to Mitchell Galvin at Forest Hill cemetery. Mr. McManus was born in Boston fifty-four years ago. He leaves a wife, four children and a brother, who is manager at Galvin's Tremont street store. The funeral was held from St. Thomas' church, Jamaica Plain, Saturday, July 6.

The Fourth of July was celebrated here very quietly. In a tent on Boston Common, under the auspices of the Floral Emblem Society, 7,000 children received flowers, plants and flags and A. Sherman, the philanthropist, gave 500 white carnations to the society in memory of his wife, Hettie Lang Sherman. She was one of the earliest members of the society and the Fourth was her natal day. In Franklin park, the city gave away ice cream and plants to thousands of children. This was a safe and sane Fourth.

The Gardeners and Florists' Club are to hold their annual picnic at Cunningham Park, East Milton, July 24. This affair has always been good and it promises to be better this year. Henry Penn offers a silver cup to the lady winning the egg and spoon race. For the benefit of the lady readers of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, we inquired of President Pegler just what kind of race it would be, but he declared he did not know.

The funeral of the late J. A. Pettigrew was held from the family residence, Friday, July 5. Several of the state and municipal officials were present, also those high and low in the horticultural ranks.

Three of the Galvin force have gone on their vacation, Mr. Moran to Quebec and Geo. Dunn and Mr. Kerrigan to Nantucket for a month.

A. Roper, Tewksbury, says he will have something in seedling carnations that will surprise the boys at the national show.

CORNING, N. Y.—Wm. Johnson is building another greenhouse.

HOLLISTON, MASS.—All the buildings on the 100-acre farm of the Eastern Nurseries Co. were destroyed by fire June 30. The loss is estimated at $5,000.

ALBANY, N. Y.—H. Louis Menand has bought the interest of his partner, Charles Carson, in the flower store at 464 Fulton street, Troy, and will continue the business himself.

SUPPLY EXCEEDS DEMAND.

Summer dullness has the market tight in its grasp and at present there seems to be little chance of it releasing its hold. The supply is too large for the demand and as a result there is no single line that cleans up effectually. Carnations are the worst offenders and as soon as they are completely out everything should be better, for now most all those shipped in arrive soft and in poor condition. The local stock in this flower is still good. None of it realizes anything like a profitable price for the grower and it keeps down the prices on the other flowers. In addition to the splendid large pink asters that have been coming in, early white ones are now arriving regularly but so far have not found a very ready sale on account of the general slack conditions. Gladioli move fairly well. Sweet peas are still offered in quantity but sales are slow. Roses are in very good condition and are about the only flower that sells in any quantity. The list of them includes My Maryland, Kaiserin, Brides, Maids, Ivory, Richmond and Killarneys. The American Beauty market is good. Other offerings are lilies, both Easter and auratum, valley and water lilies. The business in green goods is excellent and includes a large call for fern, smilax and leucothoe.

CLUB MEETING.

The Cincinnati Florists' Club held its annual meeting and election of officers at the clubrooms on Monday evening. The successful candidates were Gus. Adrian, president; James Allem, vice-president; Alex Ostendarp, secretary; E. A. Forter, treasurer. and A. C. Heckman, Jr., trustee. Papers concerning publicity in the florist business, and very clever ones, too, were read by Herbert Greensmith, Ed. Schumann, A. C. Heckman, Jr., and O. H. Hoffmeister. After adjournment the club enjoyed the eats, refreshments and "smokes" that had been provided under Alex Ostendarp's guidance.

RESOLUTIONS ON THE DEATH OF WM. R. SMITH.

At a meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society in regular session news of the death of Wm. R. Smith of Washington, D. C., was received with feelings of deep regret. Words of praise were spoken concerning the noble, stalwart life he had lived, the inspiration and help he had always so freely given. His large and varied storehouse of knowledge on many subjects was commented upon. The benefit of the experience he had gained in the profession which he so justly loved and in which he so profoundly excelled he was always to the last ready to share with others. The great help and impetus he has given to the horticultural world cannot be over-estimated, especially his help and assistance to the S. A. F. and O. H. from its inception. In view of these, a few of his many-sided qualities, therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the decease of W. R. Smith, horticulture has lost one of its most ardent and loving patrons; and be it further

Resolved, That the Cincinnati Florists' Society in full assembly express their deep sorrow and extend their heartfelt sympathy to all the bereaved relatives and friends; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the trade papers and be spread upon the minutes of this society.

CINCINNATI FLORISTS' SOCIETY.

NOTES.

The Misses Weiland of Evanston, Ill. who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Olinger for a month, leave for their home this week.

The J. M. McCullough Sons Co. is receiving some very fine carnations that find a very good call.

C. E. Critchell has been receiving very fine lilies from Popp Bros. of Covington.

B. P. Critchell seriously sprained his arm in a fall on Sunday.

Visitors: Arthur Harbison and sons, Harisburg, Ky.; W. C. Nolan, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Buffalo.

HEAT BRINGS DULL SEASON.

The always expected and never failing hot spell has arrived and Buffalo is its headquarters. Fortunately, school commencements, weddings and other events have all been taken care of. Now it is wait for work to come, and try to keep cool. Summer stock is as usual, open roses, fresh sweet peas and some good carnations. Candidum lilies are a pleasant change and ere long the aster, the florist's salvation when the stock is good will be here.

NOTES.

Palmer and son have the Genessee street window of their branch store given over to a very pretty arrangement of a log cabin, windmill, rookery and pond. The mill runs and the water falls over the rookery where the pond is filled with pink and white water lilies, cyperius and several ferns of different varieties.

Vacations are in order. S. A. Anderson and family are at Farnham, W. F. Kasting is at Erie, and proprietors of the different stores are enjoying a needed rest at different places.

This week will see two large weddings. "Jack" Frost—the name sounds familiar, but not many of us have seen the real article recently—is to be one of the bridegrooms.

The event looked forward to by all is the annual picnic of the Buffalo Florists' Club, July 17. The picnic will be held at the Bedell House on Grand Island.

For the last two weeks South Park has been the beauty spot of Buffalo and is viewed by thousands each Sunday.

J. Fiebelkorn, of the Broadway Flower Shop, is contemplating some improvements at his place this summer. J. H. Rebstock has given up his Elmwood store and is devoting all his time to his Allen street store.

Miss Redmond, of Anderson's is sojourning at Sobeski Park. BISON.

Milwaukee.

MARKETS ARE LOADED.

For the past week business has been very quiet and the markets are loaded with all kinds of stock. Carnations are selling at any old price and the grade is becoming poorer each day. The hot weather that prevailed for the past week naturally is spoiling the stock very fast and the growers are beginning to throw out. Sweet-peas are also coming in heavily as a number of growers are beginning to cut from the out-door stock. Valley is plentiful again and all orders can be filled. Easter lilies are selling at reasonable figures. There are plenty of greens to fill all orders.

NOTES.

Heitman & Baerman have agreed to dissolve partnership. E. Oestreicher, who has been connected with all the branches of the florist business and now is associated with Mr. Heitman, will carry on the business, making a specialty of carnations.

C. B. Whitnall who is well known to the local florist trade was married June 26 to Miss E. Kattnauer and will be at home at 1184 Humboldt Ave.

The annual florists' picnic will take place Sunday, July 21, at Staperfeld Grove, and not on June 14 as announced. Everybody is invited to attend.

WEATHER MAKES BUSINESS DRAG.

Everything shows the effect of the intense heat, flowers and clerks both look wilted and sleepy, and business drags a little. Stock of all kinds still remains plentiful and it seems there will be no shortage of any kind to speak of this summer, as many asters are already coming on, and carnations are still hanging on. Roses, Easter lilies, water lilies, sweet peas, Lily of the valley, all are in abundant supply with only a limited demand.

NOTES.

A new horticultural and floricultural society has been formed here by such well known men as W. G. Mather, who is president; L. E. Holden, vice-president; John Stockwell, secretary and treasurer, for the purpose of holding flower shows. The first show, possibly a chrysanthemum exhibition, is to be held this fall. They have asked the co-operation of Cleveland florists through Adam Graham, Sr., president of the Florists' Club. The club at its meeting Monday evening appointed a committee of three to wait on Mr. Stockwell, secretary of the new society, and express the wish

SUMMER DULLNESS PREVAILS.

The usual summer conditions are prevailing in the wholesale cut flower market. There is a demand only for a very small percentage of the large shipments that still continue to arrive. There was comparatively nothing doing on the Fourth, and one shipment of twelve thousand roses and twelve hundred carnations of the very best quality was sold by one dealer for thirty-three dollars, or twenty-five cents per hundred. This was considered by many to be a good sale. The demand was no better Sunday and good special American Beauties were sold in some cases at five cents each. During the week there has been only a very light demand for any of the different varieties of roses; even the novelties have to be disposed of with the large lots to the department stores. Carnations are still very much in evidence but the quality is rapidly getting poorer, so that it will be only a very short time before the growers will find it will not pay to continue shipping. There is no perceptible change in the orchid market except that the supply is less. There are still more lilies on the market than can be disposed of to advantage. Only a fair demand for lily of the valley, which is very plentiful and of very good quality. Sweet peas are of very fine quality, with prices lower. The consensus of opinion seems to be that there are entirely too many flowers on the market for the season of the year and it will be necessary to throw away large quantities as it does not pay to try to keep them from day to day during this very hot weather.

Monday, July 8.—The Greek-American Florists' picnic has taken all of the florists of that nationality out of town for the day, and their buying was very light. The weather is very warm; stock of all kinds plentiful with very little demand.

NOTES.

The Bedford Flower Co., of Bedford Hills, N. Y., has completely overhauled the greenhouses and are now through planting. Included in the planting are many of last year's novelties in roses. The aim here will be to have quality rather than quantity. Just at present this firm is sinking an artesian well on its property.

A very interested visitor in the "street" during the week was Harry H. Francis, formerly a well known grower of Madison, N. J., but for the past few years engaged in the fruit growing business in Florida.

E. J. Lemon, Richmond, Ind., and Meyer Heller, of Newcastle, Ind., are in the city endeavoring to secure managers for their new retail stores which they will open in Cincinnati and Indianapolis.

The outlook at present is that there will be a large delegation to go by boat from New York to Boston to the Sweet Pea Exhibition which opens July 13.

Chairman Frank Traendly is much pleased with the favorable replies he is receiving from those going to the Chicago convention with the New York delegation.

John Miesmann of Elmhurst, L. I. has been in Philadelphia all the week with the German Singing Society of Brooklyn.

C. Albert Small and family are now occupying their cottage at Sea Gate, L. I., and will remain there until Oct. 15.

Another recent visitor was E. Koffman, formerly of Walden, N. Y., and known for years as the "Smilax King."

Charles C. Trepel and Mrs. Trepel are staying at Patchogue, L. I., for the month of July.

LITTLE BUSINESS ON ACCOUNT OF HEAT.

It is red hot. Everybody is depressed by the torrid and close atmosphere and there is little business. The supply of cut flowers is more than enough. Sweet peas, which have been a factor for the past two weeks, are deteriorating, the heat and dry weather affecting the quality and quantity. Roses move slowly. The growers who are keeping in the old plants are sending in their cuts, in which are few species and much low grade stock that hardly pays the freight. My Maryland is preferred to Killarney, there being more body to the flower at this time. White flowers sell better than colored, as the principal summer business is for funeral work. Double white peonies are now in fine shape and find favor with the design makers. Kaiserin have stood the competition of the White Killarney but there is nothing like the quantity of former years. American Beauties are the best shipping rose but the local stock is much below form. The eastern shipments of this rose are fine and seem to carry very well. Eastern Kaiserin are of fine quality but generally are badly bruised. It takes three months to produce the buds and 10 minutes of bad packing to undo the good work of the grower. Now that correspondence schools for various lines find much favor, there appears to be a good field for a correspondence course on "How to Pack Flowers," taught by mail. Let the growers and their agents buy these courses for many of their men. There should be demand enough to keep one instructor busy mailing them out the rest of his natural life. Carnations are still in demand and it is surprising how good some of them are still to be seen. Lily of the valley and Easter lilies are to be had in quantity. In fact, one firm was throwing out lily of the valley which they have many times sold for $3 per hundred. There are cattleyas and gardenias sufficient for all demands.

NOTES.

Hugh Dickson, the great rose grower of Ireland, spent a few days in the city as a guest of Alexander Scott. As a compliment he was tendered an auto ride to inspect our parks and surrounding suburban beauty spots. John Burton and his son George provided the cars. Besides Mr. Dickson the party consisted of John Burton, George Burton, Alexander Scott, John Westcott, S. S. Pennock, George C. Watson and Robert Kift. The trip was delightful. A stop was made for Commodore Westcott, and then the route lay through the beautiful drives of the park and Wissahicken, on up into Montgomery country, passing on every side the well kept lawns and landscapes of Philadelphia's "four hundred." A lunch was enjoyed at Fortside Inn, after which the ride was continued to the Wanamaker, Newbold and Widener estates, where the various bedding and rose gardens were inspected. The trip wound up at Wyndmoor and all were much pleased with the ride, Mr. Dickson being the most enthusiastic of the party. Mr. Dickson and his wife, together with Alexander Scott, sailed for Ireland on July 6. Mr. Scott goes to the rose gardens of the Dickson Co. to spend a month with the seedlings, selecting from the thousands as they flower such as he thinks will become good forcing varieties for cultivation in America.

The trade hears with deep regret of the death of that grand old man, William R. Smith, of Washington. His has been an experience that falls to the lot of few men. His mind was a veritable storehouse of horticultural knowledge, from which he was always taking for the benefit of his fellow men. K.

BUSINESS VERY SLIGHT.

There is little to be said about business because there is but little business, the average amount of funeral work being about all there is to depend upon. As good a quality of stock as can be expected at this season keeps coming in. The weather of the past week, while not reaching the point of killing heat, has been warm and very dry. Sweet peas in the open are doing little unless regularly watered. Carnations in the field are making good growth, but would now be better for rain. Asters are growing well, but not yet flowering. The old stock of carnations which has held out well, is now about finished and most of the growers are throwing them out, and making preparations for planting the new stock.

NOTES.

The Florists' Club held a brief session on the night of July 2. Several names were proposed for membership. The event of the evening was the crab feast tendered the members of the club and others of its friends and associates, by Edward S. Schmid. The feast was held in the large cool basement of the Gude Brothers Co.'s store. There were about fifty guests and short speeches were made by Mr. Schmid, W. W. Kimmel, W. F. Gude and others. Some amusing stunts were pulled off by a professional entertainer. Handsome souvenirs to which unique designs were attached were presented by Mr. Schmid and he was unanimously voted a jolly good fellow.

The death of W. R. Smith creates a vacancy in the office of Superintendent of the U. S. Botanical Garden. Quite naturally there is some speculation as to whom will be Mr. Smith's successor. One of those mentioned is Leslie Reynolds, who for many years has been a valuable assistant to Mr. Smith and who has been acting superintendent since Mr. Smith became critically ill. Mr. Reynolds is a man of fine character and is thoroughly informed on the great variety of matters on which the superintendent of such an institution is called to pass judgment.

Mrs. Joseph Holland, wife of an Alexandria, Va., florist, well known in Washington, died July 5. She leaves three children, the oldest being only five years. Mr. Holland has the sympathy of the trade in this great affliction.

The Washington Florists' Club will join Kallipolis Grotto No. 15, Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm, in their annual outing to Chesapeake Beach, July 24.

"Horticultural Advertiser"

This is the British Trade Paper being read weekly by all the horticultural trade; it is also taken by over 1000 of the best continental houses. Annual subscription, to cover cost of postage, 75c.

As the H. A. is a purely trade medium, applicants should, with the subscription, send a copy of their catalog or other evidence that they belong to the nursery or seed trade. Money orders payable at Lowdham, Notts.

Oklahoma City.

The Fourth of July seems to have been the termination of the season as regards social events and society weddings, for now there is nothing doing in the flower trade, aside from an occasional funeral order.

NOTES.

We shall probably have two representatives from this city in attendance at the S. A. F. convention in Chicago next month. If the S. A. F. should have any idea of invading and doing missionary work in the great Southwest this city would be the ideal spot for the meeting. We are located quite as favorably for big business as are either Omaha or Asheville when conventions were held at those places. As a business proposition this matter of holding a convention here is worthy of some investigation.

Lou Foster of the Barteldes store is actively interested in politics and it is quite within the bounds of possibility that some day he will have a seat in the state legislature.

Geo. Stiles of the Stiles Co., is the owner of a very fine automobile and takes a good deal of pleasant recreation touring around the adjacent country. S. S. B.

FIRST DULL TIME SINCE EASTER.

For the first time in many weeks or in fact since Easter, trade has been what might be called dull and there has been little or nothing doing. The flower supply has been most excellent, and for this time of year has been of good quality. The summer blooming roses are coming on finely and are furnishing a good class of design work, the stems being yet too short for cut flowers. Sweet peas are about done after having been on in a great glut for some weeks. Asters are coming in but are not very large in size, as they never are at first. Gladioli are being used a great deal now, and are a favorite for funeral bunches as well as for decoration purposes. They are very fine and of every known color. There are some Easter lilies still on hand but the Japanese lily is coming in to take their place. The florists have lots of candy-tuft and sweet alyssum that serve well in funeral work. There is still some sale on pot plants, such as gloxinia, tuberous begonia and odds and ends.

NOTES.

The home of Leon Geny was the scene of a beautiful children's party the evening of July 3, when Mrs. Geny's little daughter Christine celebrated her ninth birthday. The beautiful new home on Twenty-second avenue was exquisitely decorated with a profusion of cut flowers and potted plants, palms and hydrangeas. In keeping with the Fourth so near at hand, flags and bunting were also used. About seventy-five little boys and girls were present and when gathered on the front lawn and veranda rivaled a most beautiful and effective display of Easter flowers. American Beauty and other roses were used in the decorations, and every child was given a flower.

Geny Bros. still have some fine hydrangeas and they say their roses My Maryland and Kaiserin are giving great satisfaction and will soon give them an abundant supply. The continuous rain with which this section had been favored has not injured their supply of cut flowers and has made the out-of-door stuff grow out of all reason.

The Joy Floral Company has very good American Beauties as well as other roses and not a few carnations still.

BOZEMAN, MONT., July 10.—The pea crop prospects are only fair here.

THE tuberose crop condition is reported to have improved during the last 15 days.

VISITED CHICAGO: C. E. Leiser, of the Leiser Seed Co., Little Rock, Ark., and family.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Pea vines show some inclination to rot this very hot, wet weather.

NEW crop seed of winter vetch is reported as likely to be as light as last year with prices about the same.

FRENCH advices of June 26 report a seamen's strike at Marseilles. If it is soon settled liberal shipments will be made during the first third of July.

WILMINGTON, DEL.—The Dickinson Seed Co. of this city has been incorporated with a capital stock of $1,250,000. E. E. McWhiney, William J. Maloney and Herbert E. Potter are the incorporators.

SOME French bulb shipments will be early this year, as it is reported that the Sant' Anna carried several consignments from Marseilles July 5. Other shipments will not be ready until the steamer sailing July 12.

STURGEON BAY, WIS.—T. A. Hopkins arrived recently from New York and after attending to some business matters left June 27 for St. Anthony, Idaho, being accompanied by Will Ives, who will remain in his employ. Mrs. Hopkins and family will spend the summer East and some time in September will return here to get Mrs. Ives, after which they will also go to the new home in Idaho to remain permanently.

MISS RENEE DENAIFFE, daughter of Henri Denaiffe, senior of Denaiffe & Son, Carignan, France, was married June 4 to Jean Collee, agricultural engineer, graduate of the Beauvais Institute. Mr. Collee succeeds to the interest of the late Clement Denaiffe in the old seed growing establishment of Denaiffe & Son, which now is owned and managed exclusively by Henri and Maurice Denaiffe (father and son).

DUTCH reports on parsley, turnip and rutabaga are that these crops have suffered very much from the extraordinary drought of last autumn and further by the severe frosts in the spring. Much acreage has been destroyed. Beet, sugar beet and mangel wurzel also failed to attain proper size last autumn. In consequence the acreage is smaller than usual. While the present stand is fairly satisfactory the product will be too small to cover the demand. The cabbage crop will be light.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Annual Convention, Chicago, June 25-27.

Social Features.

On Wednesday afternoon the members, ladies and guests were tendered by the Chicago seedsmen an automobile ride through the extensive boulevard and park system of Chicago, the route covering about forty-five miles through Lincoln, Humboldt, Garfield, Douglas, Washington and Jackson parks, and passing Sherman and Gage parks. The long procession of some forty automobiles all traveling at about the speed limit and carrying something like two hundred and fifty people was an inspiring sight. It being vacation season, Chicago's young people were largely in evidence in the various parks, and the the whetted appetites of the visitors for the banquet later. Everybody returned to their hotel in ample season to prepare for the night's festivities.

The Annual Banquet.

At 8:00 P. M. in the Hotel Sherman an elaborate banquet was laid at which some two hundred and fifteen guests were seated as at the afternoon luncheon. The banqueters were disposed in groups at small tables, one long table being reserved for the past presidents and guests of honor. At this table were seated the following: Albert Dickinson and Mrs. Dickinson, Leonard H. and Mrs. Vaughan, George S. and Mrs. Green, W. P. and Mrs. Stokes, Albert McCullough, J. C. and Mrs. Vaughan, Charles N. Page, President-elect, W. H. Grenell, H. W. Wood, Watson S. and Mrs. Woodruff, J. C. Robinson, E. L. and Mrs. Page and Mr. S. F. Leonard. All of the gentlemen named were past presidents with the exception of Albert Dickinson and S. F. Leonard. Walter P. Stokes of Philadelphia acted as toastmaster. A highly appreciated feature was the music by the Imperial Quartette, both vocal and instrumental. The songsters and instrumentalists certainly were not idle a moment and they caused the time to pass like magic. A satisfactory menu having been disposed of, retiring President Vaughan smote the table with the gavel and was received with an outburst of applause and a chorus of shouts: "Who's all right? Vaughan's all right! What's the matter with Vaughan? What's the matter with Chicago?"

In introducing the toastmaster of the evening, retiring President Vaughan said: "Ladies and gentlemen, at Marblehead last year we were all full of onion sets. Tonight we have with us a representative of that peaceful, quiet city of 'Brotherly Love,' Philadelphia. I take great pleasure in introducing at this time our toastmaster for the evening, our Association's official photographer, Mr. Walter P. Stokes." (Applause.) "It is not necessary for me to tell you anything about him, you all know him." (Applause.)

Toastmaster Stokes said in reply: "Ladies and gentlemen, members of our Association, I am sure I express the feeling of every one of us who are guests on this occasion when I say that we most heartily appreciate and reciprocate the cordial hospitality that has been extended to us by our Chicago friends, not only on the occasion of this visitors noted with approval the care that the city fathers take to make life enjoyable for the young. The tennis courts, the baseball diamonds and the various lagoons and natatoriums all testified to Chicago's munificence in this respect. The seedsmen also noted with approval the fact that the city had utilized vacant grounds by planting vegetable gardens, the proceeds of which are given to charity. At about four o'clock the party arrived at the rendezvous, the South Shore Country Club, where a delicious luncheon was served with the design of not spoiling banquet but on the automobile ride that they gave us this afternoon, in which we had a splendid opportunity to see the great city with its wonderful system of parks. The one thing that impressed me upon that ride was the evident care which the city fathers here are taking to look out for the coming generation in providing for them suitable opportunities for their pleasure and pastime. The early settlers of this great city who made this all possible did not enjoy such opportunities, and it is wise in them as well as kindly to give to the coming generation these splendid parks and these splendid opportunities for play that we have seen on our afternoon ride.

"But I am not here tonight to tell you about onion sets, or to talk about Philadelphia. I am here merely to see that you are properly entertained with speakers who can give you some valuable information. I am sure there is no one subject in which this whole assembly is more interested than in the question of adequate transportation. Particularly is this the case since our beloved growers are all moving thousands of miles away from us, and we shall have to look to the transportation companies to deliver their product, as they and we are anticipating. It gives me very great pleasure to introduce to you tonight the first speaker of the evening, Mr. Henry C. Barlow, of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who will speak to us on expedited transportation, something he is well fitted to do, since he is the traffic director of the organization to which he belongs."

The Spring Business.

We present herewith a number of reports on the spring business of 1912 from leading centers:

Currie Bros. Co., Milwaukee.—Our seed business for 1912 was as large as any we have ever done. The business was very slow in starting up, but the orders received later far exceeded our expectations, both in number and in financial returns. A little more, and we would have done twice as much business this year as last. In this respect, it has been a very satisfactory year. However, business was delayed a couple of months on account of the late season.

J. Steckler Seed Co., New Orleans.—The business compares very favorably with other years, considering the fact that we have had about four months rain out of five and large portions of the state have been under water. But for this we feel that the spring business would have been far above the average.

Leonard Seed Co., Chicago.—The season of 1912 has been very satisfactory. The increase over last year is gratifying. The fact that our policy has been to eliminate the mail order and packet adjuncts of the business and confine ourselves to dealing with the trade, has contributed to our increase.

Wm. Elliott & Sons, New York.—Trade in seeds has been far in advance of last season, although crops were short last year. Considering the extreme shortage of carrot and beet seed we were lucky enough to have carried over sufficient stock to cover our wants.

Wood, Stubbs & Co., Louisville, Ky.—The seed business with us has been considerably better than in 1911, both in the garden and field seeds. The volume of business has been larger and the sales considerably more than last year.

John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y.—Our business this spring has been almost the same in volume as last year, notwithstanding the fact that our expenses in catalogues and advertising were cut down some $30,000. The volume of business during April and May was about as large as we have ever experienced during those months

Visitors at Floradale Farm.

Lompoc, Calif.—California has been favored with visits recently of seedsmen who are interested in seed crops, some of whom called at Burpee's Floradale seed ranch. In the accompanying illustration by David Burpee, many faces will be recognized. With David Burpee came W. A. Burpee, Jr., and Douglas Earl, son of Howard M. Earl, business manager of W. Atlee Burpee Co. All the boys have come to stay awhile, spending their vacations here, and lending helping hands where necessary, and to learn by doing the numerous details always present on a seed farm.

Sweet peas will be a short crop, owing to the lack of rainfall early in the winter and a hot wave striking some of the ranches, when they were in bloom, thus blasting their blossoms. There are several meritorious novelties among sweet peas being developed at Floradale, which it is to be hoped will be heard from favorably in the future. A white without a name also a lavender, are both quite promising.

Some varieties grown here for seed, as, for instance, Earl Spencer, Barbara, Melba, and all color shades in which "orange" is a component part, are liable to burn or scald under the influence of the bright sunlight, but when shaded slightly, are strikingly beautiful. Thomas Stevenson, after the same color tone, burns less than any of the others named. Some entirely new color shades and combinations are being tried at Floradale, for the final time, among which may be mentioned, Afterglow, Prince George, Floorie, Charles Foster, and a few others. It might be well for florists to try these in small quantities at first for they must when better known appeal to all esthetic ists and their patrons, for early summer cut flowers, and its ruffled double and sometimes triple standards resulting in bunching gracefully when so used. When mentioning "wavy" and double and triple standards we must not forget a foundling, greeting us during our first season at Floradale. It came among Primrose Spencer and the coloring is more nearly the desired yellow than any so far among the Spencerized types, and in addition to its more intensified coloring, the ruffles are more pronounced than any other. For the present it is known as Floradale Fairy. Hugh Dickson, Lester L. Morse and Frank G. Cuthbertson, are most warm and enthusiastic in its praises, and we are all hoping it may prove as beautiful and desirable away from home as it is at Floradale. From my personal experience it appears unmistakably that the development of this most popular flowering annual is only in its infancy.

The advent of the Countess Spencer marked an era in sweet peas that is unparalleled. I believe in the history of horticulture. Let the good work go on. It is true, the Spencers are frequently erratic, and are sometimes hard to "fix," but this, to many enthusiasts and experts, is an added charm, causing them to be drawn even closer in touch with their favorite flower. A variety developed at Floradale, has been named "Charm." It is a selection from Irish Belle or Dream, and in effect it is a very delicate blush. It comes mostly in four flowers on a stem and with us at Floradale, it is practically fixed. It is now in its third year out here. Some selections, as might very readily be supposed, are easier to handle than others. As a part of the history of Charm it ought to be mentioned that Irish Belle is one of Hugh Dickson's, and he saw indications of its coming with "Charm" tendencies, but it remained for Floradale to keep it on its way toward its present status. We are expecting greater developments in tastes. Some shading over these when in bloom, would, I believe, bring out their various and peculiar color tones. Among enthusiasts in Great Britain they are frequently referred to as "pastels."

May Campbell is a new one worth trying. It is the result of a cross between Janet Scott and Sunproof Crimson. In color marking the standard is blotched with rose, on a cream ground. The blotch reminds one at first glance of the markings in the old, one-time favorite (which ought to be yet) pelargonium. The new "duplex" types are promising, Duplex Spencer being of that shade of pink popular with florthe future for encouragement is in the atmosphere. EDWIN LONSDALE.

Canadian Pea Crop.

Toronto, June 24.—Peas on low lying fields are very badly damaged. On high and sandy soil conditions are thus far very good, but to insure a crop from lighter soils, conditions from now on will have to be ideal, while damage done to peas on heavy soil can not be repaired. H.

J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York.—The past season with us has been fully up to the average.

Lilium Harrisii

THERE are conditions, and they occur not infrequently, under which all lily bulbs fail to make good flowering plants. There may be, probably are, more difficulties attending the growing of Lilium Harrisii bulbs than most forcing varieties, and yet those who do them well have found the early blooms very profitable. In many parts of the south where this bulb has been grown over a longer season and without the overforcing sometimes imposed on the plants, Harrisii has given most satisfactory returns. We are contracting, subject to crop conditions, a select strain of Well Grown Bulbs of Lilium Harrisii

Sizes: 5 to 7; 6 to 7; 7 to 9 and upwards

Boddington's Gigantic Pansies

Can be produced only from the giant strains. Our CHALLENGE PANSY seed contains only the giant self-colors, the giant striped and variegated and the giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion. You could not buy better seed if you paid $100 per ounce. Our Challenge Pansy seed during the past season gave unprecedented satisfaction, and every order booked last year was duplicated and increased this year. All the testimonials received mentioned specially the high grade of flowers—color, form and size of the individual blossoms. This year, by adding improved types, intending customers can absolutely rely on a duplication of this season's success with increased satisfaction. Our "mark" for this strain is "Challenge," and it is all the word denotes.

Pansy—Boddington's "Challenge"—All Giants

This mixture contains all the finest Giant strains—of the leading Pansy Specialists in the world—the Giant self-colors, the Giant striped and margined, and the Giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion—the finest that money can buy—the finest your money can buy. ### Etherization and Forcing of Strawberries.

For some years past M. M. G. Bultel has been experimenting on the value of etherization for forcing early strawberries. His earlier experiments, published in 1906, appeared to show that the method is capable of commercial application, and this conclusion is confirmed by the results of experiments carried out on a more extended scale during the present year. In the latter experiments, M. Bultel used 600 plants of the variety Vicomtesse Hericart de Thury, all of which plants were obtained from layers taken at the same time, and grown under precisely similar conditions. Of the 600 pot plants, 300 were placed in a heated frame on November 25, and the other 300 were etherized on that date. One hundred and fifty of the latter were treated for 48 hours with a full dose of ether (400 grams per cubic metre), and the remaining 150 were exposed for 40 hours to half this quantity, and then for 20 hours to the full dose. In describing the results, we need not distinguish between the two lots of etherized plants beyond saying that the more gradual treatment produced slightly better results. The etherized plants were placed in heated frames, with the non-etherized strawberries, on November 27 and November 28. When the plants showed signs of flowering, they were brought into the forcing house and subjected to a temperature of 15° C. (59° F.), which temperature was raised gradually, first to 65° F., and later to 68° F.

The difference in time of flowering between the etherized and unetherized plants was striking. Thus, on January 8, 213 of the 300 etherized plants were showing flower-buds; whereas only 33 of the 300 unetherized plants were in a similar condition. Of the etherized strawberries, 238 flowered and 62 failed to flower; whereas, of the unetherized plants, the corresponding numbers were 224 and 76.

The fruits of etherized plants began to swell on February 21; whilst those of the non-etherized plants did not begin to swell till March 6. Finally, the etherized plants bore ripe fruits on March 15-17; whereas, no fruits were ripe on the unetherized plants till 15 days later.

M. Bultel makes no mention in the account which he gives of his experiments (Journal de La Soc. Nat. d' Horticulture de France, April, 1912) of the respective yields obtained from the two crops. We are bound, therefore, to infer that that from the etherized lot of plants was at least equal to that from the plants not subjected to this treatment.

Assuming that the yield is satisfactory, it certainly seems probable that, as M. Bultel observes, etherization may prove profitable to those growers who desire very early crops, particularly in years when, owing to the absence of cold autumn weather, the plants have not "ripened" well. We hope that more experiments of this kind will be undertaken, and would commend the subject to the notice of those in this country who have facilities for this kind of experimental work.—Gardeners' Chronicle.

American Association of Nurserymen.
 Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President;

 Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

More Nursery Varieties Urged.

"Should Nurserymen Grow More Varieties?" was the subject of a paper read at the Boston convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, June 12-14, by S. Mendelson Meehan, who gave his views from the standpoint of a mail order business and local suburban trade.

"One thing is certain," said Mr. Meehan, "that nurserymen, bound by fixed habits of production and sale, are running far short of their opportunities. It is along the line of specialization that our nurseries should increase the number and assortment of varieties. Some are wholly unfitted to grow certain kinds of plants, while other plants are adapted to peculiar soil and climate. Some propagators have special success with some plants and not with others. Hybridization and the production of new varieties is some one's forte; others with great practical ability should simply be producers. The general public is very ignorant about plants, and therefore conservative in making selections. Rather than risk disappointment in a plant with such an awkward name as Koelreuteria paniculata, they will turn to something familiar,—maple, copper beech, or even poplar. The result is that a regular demand is created for a limited few things, which every nurseryman is forced to carry. It requires moral courage and deep-laid plans to keep out of this on-rushing current.

"Some will insist that this line of least resistance is the practical one; but in my opinion it is a living death. In the first place, it breeds unhealthy competition. The man who is always following has little hope except through lower prices, and you all know that profit margins are commonly below par anyhow. Then, too, the public is entitled to more than it is getting. Scores of nurseries have for fifty years either contained or had knowledge of any number of plants with sterling merits and of great interest, but in the demands of limited knowledge, and in the race to keep pace with the other fellow, these valuable plants with untold merit and attractiveness are securely locked up, perhaps for centuries.

"I would not have any one misunderstand me. I do not mean to cry down those familiar plants which have been found necessary and profitable, but do not be tied down to them, and do not let them lead you to cut prices. If you cannot get profitable business for them without such methods, look elsewhere for your specialty—the plant you can grow better than others—the things that will individualize your business.

"Nor yet do I urge nurserymen to go to the extreme. Where there is so much ignorance about our goods, we must maintain a proper degree of conservatism. New or unknown plants must be faithfully described. A list that is increased must show good reason for it. Confidence in the nurseryman must be established and he must take pains that he deserves it. On lines such as these I feel confident I can safely say that nurserymen should certainly grow more varieties."

READ WHAT THE USERS SAY ABOUT KROESCHELL BOILERS

Fires Twice During Night in Coldest Weather; Kroeschell boiler Far Better Than Cast Iron Boilers.

With your No. 14 boiler I am heating 27,000 sq. ft. of glass, but have no doubt this boiler would take care of 37,000 sq. ft. We have not had the least bit of trouble to maintain proper temperatures. In very cold weather I fire twice during the night. I had two cast iron boilers before but yours are far better. Last winter I heated 17,000 sq. ft. of glass with my small boiler, your No. 7, maintaining a temperature of 50 degrees when outside temperature was 5 degrees above zero (the regular rating of No. 7 boiler without generator, is 15,000 sq. ft. of glass) with the Kroeschell piping system in connection with the Kroeschell Generator. This piping system and the Generator are entirely satisfactory. I take pleasure in recommending the system and boilers to anyone.

ANTON J. PAULY, Attica, N. Y.

Kroeschell Boiler Gives Perfect Satisfaction.

I will say that I am very well pleased with the Kroeschell boiler which I purchased 5 years ago. It has given perfect satisfaction to this date.

A. W. BELCHER, Winthrop, Mass.

The Kroeschell is a Coal Saver.

In regard to the Kroeschell Boiler will say that we are well satisfied, as it heats quickly and also is a coal saver.

H. KEITSCH & SON, Buffalo, N. Y.

Get a Kroeschell—It Gives Excellent Satisfaction.

Your favor of the 17th inst. received and in reply will state that the Kroeschell Bros. Boiler is the best on earth. It gives excellent satisfaction. I have run their No. 10 boiler now for 5 years and it is as good as new. I would suggest that you purchase their boiler with shaker grate and Generator and you will not be sorry. Then follow their instructions as to the care of same, and you will have a friend that will do the business. I most heartily recommend the Kroeschell Boiler above all others.

J. F. HETLER, Crookston, Minn.

Kroeschell Boiler—Half the Coal and Half the Work.

Your No. 13 Boiler is carrying 25,000 sq. ft. of glass, and I can keep it at 60 degrees in the coldest weather without any trouble. I have three other types of boilers also, heating a range of 25,000 sq. ft. of glass, but the No. 13 Kroeschell Boiler only takes half the coal and half the work to get the same results.

J. G. FRISZ, Vincennes, Ind.

P. S.—Mr. J. G. Frisz, of Vincennes, Ind., has the largest range of glass in Indiana devoted to vegetable forcing.

Kroeschell Boiler Durable.

Have 20,000 sq. ft. of glass. Can keep 60 degrees in coldest weather. Have one boiler 15 years, only expense one set of flues. Kroeschell Boiler is so satisfactory that I do not care to try any other.

"LEST YOU FORGET"

We want you to know that we make a wood gutter, and a good one, too. It combines all the good points of other wood gutters, "AND THEN SOME."
 Note that the condensation and drip run down the side and sloping bottom to a drip pan placed under the gutter where it makes no shade.
 We know it will do that, for we have tried it. This gutter lends itself to an outside wall, as an eave, most admirably.

AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY

Annual Convention and Exhibition at Boston, Mass., July 13-14.

The Exhibition.

The fourth annual meeting and exhibition of the National Sweet Pea Society of America, hereafter to be known as the American Sweet Pea Society, was held in the hall of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Boston, Mass., July 13 and 14, 1912. Despite the severe hot weather with its lack of rain, for the last month there was a rare display of gorgeous flowers. The hall was crowded with exhibits and the show was unquestionably the largest exhibition of sweet peas ever held in America. There were more than nine hundred entries and nearly one hundred exhibitors. Notwithstanding the extreme heat of the last week the quality of the blooms in many cases was all that could be desired. Some experts two years ago thought that it was impossible to produce in the eastern states sweet peas to equal those of California, but every one at this exhibition agreed that as good sweet peas can be produced in New England, at least, as can be grown anywhere in the United States. The number of exhibits for competition as well as those not for competition was larger than in any previous exhibition of the society.

Entering Horticultural Hall, the first exhibit was in the lobby, where the Henry F. Michell Company, of Philadelphia, Pa., had a tastefully arranged exhibit. Four white pillars supported a green canopy of foliage, underneath which were arranged vases of a large number of varieties of sweet peas. In the main hall, down the center aisle, was a large collection of sweet peas grown in boxes and tubs by D. Finlayson. At the end of the hall was an exhibit of very large specimen hydrangeas and palms from the estate of William Whitman, Brookline, Mass. Other exhibits in this hall were splendid collections of Japanese iris from Dr. Harris Kennedy, Milton, Mass., and the Mt. Desert Nurseries. The Eastern Nurseries staged a fine collection of hollyhocks. The Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., had an exhibit of several species of orchids. Thomas J. Grey exhibited vases of especially fine lily of the valley. This firm also exhibited a large collection of sweet peas. Peter Henderson & Co. staged a very large exhibit of sweet peas. The flowers were well grown and added much to the success of the exhibition. The Stump & Walter Co., New York, exhibited a collection of sixty-five varieties of sweet peas and was awarded the National Sweet Pea Society's bronze medal. Joseph Breck & Co. had a tastefully arranged exhibit of fine hollyhocks, snapdragons and sweet peas.

W. Atlee Burpee had the finest exhibit in the show, magnificently arranged by that unrivalled sweet pea exhibitor, G. W. Kerr. It was awarded the gold medal. Among the new varieties were: Captivation Spencer, a rich wine red; Lavender Queen, soft lilac; Vermilion Brilliant, bright scarlet; Juliet, pale apricot on lemon ground; Mrs. Warren, veined light blue; Earl of Chester, orange; Dorothy, lilac rose; Iolanthe, fine large white; Isobel Malcolm, rich primrose; and Prince George, lilac rose with red-violet wings. Another exhibit notable for excellence of arrangement was that of Arthur T. Boddington. Among the varieties were noted the following: John Ridd, a large purple self; Carene, orange; Loyalty, violet flake on white; Perdita, veined crimson heavier on the wings; Hercules, large pink self. He was awarded the National Sweet Pea Society's silver medal. The Fottler, Fiske Rawson Co. showed a good collection of sweet peas with gypsophila. John Lewis Childs exhibited one vase each of calla auranti and calla eliottiana. The lecture hall was filled to overflowing with the various exhibits in the competitive classes. R. and J. Farquhar had a large and meritorious exhibit of Liliun myriophyllum, which filled the stage. This exhibit well earned the gold medal of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. The same firm received a first class certificate of merit for a vase of Liliun Duchartrei and honorable mention for a vase of Lilium Sutchuenense and for plants of aurancaria excelsa "Silver Star." A first class certificate of merit was awarded Arnold Arboretum for Liliuin Chinense and honorable mention for Liliuin Bakerianum.

There were four entries in the table decorations. Duncan Finlayson, gardener to Larz Anderson, won first prize and the silver medal. Helen Lewis sweet peas with gypsophila were used. The second prize and bronze medal was awarded the Mt. Desert Nurseries for bluish pink and picotee edged varieties of sweet peas with grasses. Mrs. C. J. Rice was awarded third prize. Mixed sweet peas were used. Four mantel decorations of sweet peas were offered and the first prize was won by Wax Bros. The Boston Cut Flower Co. received second honors. The Boston Cut Flower Co. and Sidney Hoffman won first and second respectively for corsage bouquets of sweet peas. There were five entries. Those winning the prize were of lavender varieties. There were six entries of bridal bouquets. The first and second prizes were won by the Boston Cut Flower Co. and Henry R. Cornley. The most interesting feature of the show and certainly one of high value was the exhibit of sweet peas made by school children. This is a field of work which our national societies are beginning to recognize and it was an opportune time to show the growers the results of many years' effort along this line by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. The sweet peas shown were very creditable and the success of the young gardeners this year should stimulate increased interest next year.

The Business Meeting.

The business meeting was held in Horticultural Hall Saturday afternoon, July 13, with President Sim in the chair. An address of welcome was given by W. J. Stewart. President Sim read his address, in which he referred to the weather conditions under which the local growers had labored. He recommended the issuing of a publication giving the latest information about sweet peas. The work of the society was outlined and that of the trial grounds at Cornell was commended. A brief report of the work at the trial grounds was presented by Professor A. C. Beal. This report showed a larger number of new varieties and seedlings under test than in past seasons, and an invitation was extended to the members to visit the trials at Ithaca. The election of officers resulted as follows: Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., president; J. C. Vaughan, Chicago, vice-president; H. A. Bunyard, New York, secretary; G. H. Pepper, New York, recording secretary; A. T. Boddington, New York, treasurer. Invitations for the next meeting were received from Chicago, Asbury Park, N. J., and Boston, Mass. The society voted to hold the next annual meeting and exhibition in 1913 in Boston again. The society voted, after some discussion, to change the name to the American Sweet Pea Society. Professor J. J. Taubenhaus of the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station then read an interesting and instructive paper upon the Diseases of the Sweet Pea. A request from Professor Taubenhaus for an appropriation to assist in the further study of methods of controlling the diseases of sweet peas was referred to the executive committee. In the evening the visiting members of the society were entertained at an informal luncheon. A program of toasts interspersed with vocal and instrumental musical selections followed.

Present Knowledge of Sweet Pea Diseases.

Abstract of a paper read by Prof. J. J. Taubenhaus, of the Delaware College Agricultural Experiment Station, at the annual meeting of the American Sweet Pea Society, Boston, Mass., July 13-14.

Most amateurs for reason of either lack of space or unknowingly grow their sweet peas in the same lot year after year. The result is that diseases set in and make it impossible any longer to grow sweet peas on that same place. Immediately the seeds are blamed and the customer begins changing trade from seedsman to seedsman but with no better results. Thus lack of information from the grower or amateur on the one hand and the slowness of the seedsman to admit that the sweet peas can be troubled by diseases on the other causes the trade thus invariably to suffer. Hence, when considered purely on an economic basis the seedsman are the losers. Whatever disease the seedsman is willing to admit he usually throws the blame to high feeding or to the dry weather. From inquiries sent out to most of the seedsman who grow sweet peas in this country only two very vaguely admitted that their sweet peas are troubled with blight. We do not for one minute doubt the truth of the statements of all these gentlemen, but we believe that if the seedsman took this matter more seriously they would soon realize that their interest is at stake. It is sometimes good for all of us to be from "Missouri" in order that we may be shown. We would feel highly gratified and our efforts well repaid if we could impress you with the fact that sweet peas suffer from diseases which are caused by either insects or parasitic fungi. It is to the benefit of the seedsman and the well being of the trade to admit these facts and recognize the necessity of investigating these diseases and finding remedies for them, and of disseminating broadcast the results of these findings to all those interested in them.

In dealing with the diseases of the sweet pea we have to recognize two classes: First, diseases of the sweet pea grown under glass; second, diseases of the sweet pea grown out of doors. Under glass, sweet peas are not as extensively grown as out of doors. The time is undoubtedly rapidly approaching when the market will call for more sweet peas in the winter. We have no information as to how many are actually engaged in growing winter sweet peas, and the success or failure with which these growers meet. We know of a few growers who have attempted to grow sweet peas under glass but who have failed. For the benefit of the rest of us we will here consider some specific cases in order to bring your attention some of the possible diseases which trouble sweet peas under glass. A grower (I cannot give you the name) erected a forcing house for the purpose of growing winter sweet peas. His first attempt was a failure. His plants began to die in spots and only here and there did a plant remain alive. The grower soon complained to his seedsman and the latter kindly referred him to us. We immediately asked for a complete history of the trouble and for specimens of diseased plants and soil. The following is the story of the trouble as told by the grower himself: "The house the peas are in was built last summer on a piece of ground which had been in grass for over five years. I had bought the ground six years ago from a farmer who had corn in it for several years but always very poor. I gave it a heavy dressing of horse manure and had it ploughed and sown with Kentucky blue grass and red clover seeded on it. The grass was a failure and the clover did not come at all. When I planted the peas I manured very heavily, using about four inches of cow manure and some little horse manure. Those that did grow did very finely; the rest were a failure. It is altogether a puzzle to me, and I hope you will be able to get at the root."

Prof. J. J. Taubenhaus.
American Sweet Pea Society Essayist.

The diseased specimens which this grower sent us revealed some very interesting things. It was plainly seen that the plants suffered from more than one disease. At the exterior the plants looked healthy but a closer examination revealed a yellowish sickly appearance. The seat of the trouble in some cases was confined to the roots only, and in others that part of the stem just above the roots. In the first instance we found a typical case of eel worms (Heterodera radicum) better known as root-knot disease. Those of you who grow violets have surely met with this trouble. It is evident that roots crippled with eel worm cannot make much headway. Of the other specimens where the seat of the disease seemed to be located at the junction between the roots and the stem the latter was found to be covered with a white web of fine mycelium threads of a fungus. In splitting open the stem it was found to be filled with the same white mycelium and intermixed with small sclerotia. Cultures of this mycelial growth readily gave a pure culture of a sclerotinia, resembling in all appearances the sclerotinia libertinia, a fungus which causes the damping off of lettuce and so many other plants. In order to establish definitely the relationship of this sclerotinia fungus to this disease of sweet peas under glass, sterilized seeds were planted in sterilized pots and soil in the laboratory. All the seeds germinated and the plants were allowed to grow for three weeks with no disease appearing on them. Then the pots were divided in two lots. One was left as a check and the other was inoculated with the pure culture of the sclerotinia by introducing pieces of the fungus in the soil. Both lots, check and infected plants, were covered with bell jars to imitate the moisture condition of the greenhouse. After four to six days wilting of the inoculated seedlings began, whereas the checks remained healthy. This was repeated several times with always the same results. This conclusively shows that the fungus sclerotinia libertinia produces a disease on sweet pea under glass when present in the soil. This fungus is usually brought in the greenhouse with the soil or with the manure. From the account which the grower gave us it was purely a case of infected soil. Cross inoculations with this fungus from the sweet pea and the one from lettuce produced typical cases of wilt in each, thus proving conclusively that this fungus from the sweet pea is the same as the sclerotinia libertinia of the lettuce, and that the sweet peas are at stake if they are made to follow a crop of lettuce which suffers from this disease.

Several other fungi were isolated from the diseased stems and roots above discussed. Inoculations with pure cultures of these fungi on healthy seedlings proved to be active parasites. We are not here giving our final word on these fungi as more experiments are still under way. While working on the diseases of the roots and stems we have also investigated the soil which was sent to us by the grower. Accordingly, a few sterilized pots were filled with the soil and sterilized seeds planted in it, and a few other sterilized pots were filled with sterile soil and also sown with sterilized seeds. The same amount of seeds were planted in both lots of pots. After ten days the seeds in the sterile soil germinated and grew well while the seeds in the sick soil germinated but very sparingly. Upon closer examination these non-germinated seeds were found to be rotted and of those few plants which grew one half had their roots nearly rotted. In culturing these roots the same fungi were obtained. Cultures made from this sick soil produced the same fungi as those found on the diseased roots and stems. Our experiments are as yet incomplete but the results obtained so far point to the fact that these fungi in the soil are the cause of this soil sickness. The debris found in this sick soil also readily yielded a pure culture of the sclerotinia libertinia of which I have just spoken. All these fungus diseases just described can also at any time and under certain climatic conditions attack the sweet peas grown out of doors.

Complaints of another grower of sweet peas under glass reached us. The following are his own words which speak for themselves: "I grow sweet peas under glass for cut flowers and have been seriously troubled with a disease that spots or mottles the foliage with a yellow color, disfiguring the foliage and flowers and as it becomes pronounced a diseased plant never recovers. Both the weak winter blooming and the stronger Grandiflora or Spencer type are subject alike to it out of doors as well as under glass. We know nothing of this trouble, every grower we have spoken to having a different theory, some believing the puncture of green fly or aphid the cause. Our observations led us to believe the use of green manure is responsible. Any light you can turn on this trouble will be very welcome. Early in the spring of 1911 it started in greenhouses and spread rapidly, destroying fully one-third of our crop. Last fall it showed up again. We carefully pulled out all plants showing it and gradually it disappeared. As the weather became hot this spring, much of it was noticed, but it was too late to do much harm."

As this same spotting or mottled disease is also a very serious trouble of outdoor sweet peas we shall discuss it later under the heading of diseases of the sweet pea out of doors. Before taking up these diseases it would not be out of place to mention the insects which are parasitic on the sweet pea, although this could constitute an address in itself. Among the biting insects we have "the corn root worm beetles" (Diabrotica longicornis) so called because the larva often injures the corn crop in the South. The beetle is greenish yellow with six black spots on its back. It resembles the cucumber striped beetle. Another biting insect is the striped potato beetle (Epicanta vittata). The cut worm when present often causes great annoyance, sometimes destroying the entire crop. The wire worm also is to be dreaded, especially when sweet peas are planted on a soil which was previously in sod. Among the sucking insects we have the red spider (Tetranychus telarius) which is especially troublesome to peas under glass. Finally the green aphid, which is also very troublesome, is more to be feared in dry weather. So much for the insects. I have mentioned them not only for the harm they inflict by themselves but as you will soon see for the important role they play in spreading the fungus diseases of the sweet pea. As to the fungus diseases, it seems that some erroneous belief has crept into the minds of some growers and even into those of some of our sweet pea specialists, namely, that the sweet pea is a plant unusually free from diseases, that the diseases if ever present are induced by dry weather or excessive feeding and that when the plants are growing naturally they are practically immune from the attacks of any diseases. We do not mean to deny that high feeding may predispose the plants to diseases, although this has to be experimentally proven before we can accept the statement as valid. We believe that growing sweet peas under natural conditions will not immunize them from diseases of any sort. In fact, our own experimental plantation of sweet peas which we have at the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station is as free from excessive feeding as one could ask for. The soil is of ordinary clay loam. It bore two years ago a crop of hay and last year a crop of potatoes. The potatoes last year received a regular potato fertilizer and this year no manure of any kind was applied. The sweet peas are of course given the necessary cultivations and no more. Yet in spite of this they are suffering from two of the worst diseases, and of which I am about to speak presently.

I have already mentioned to you the spotted or mottled disease of sweet peas under glass. This is a new disease to this country and it is a very dangerous one. This disease in its attacks is not restricted to greenhouse conditions alone but it is also a serious disease of sweet peas out of doors. For convenience sake we will call this the mosaic disease. It is readily distinguished by a yellow dotting or mottling of the leaf, presenting in some instances a beautiful mosaic structure, hence its name. Affected leaves seem to linger for a time but they eventually lose all the chlorophyll and soon drop off. A better symptom of this disease is a curling of the leaves at the tips, very much resembling the curling of leaves induced by green aphid, but in this case the aphid has no association. The disease makes its appearance after the seedlings are from three to four weeks old. Often the disease is so bad and the curling so pronounced that the plants thus affected cannot make any headway and remain dwarfed. An attempt is made by these curled parts to produce a few flowers, but the latter, however, are borne on very short peduncles as compared with the long peduncles of healthy plants of the same variety. Frequently, however, the affected plants outgrow the disease entirely, and thus a distinct line of demarcation can be made between the previously diseased part and the healthy part of the new growth. At other times infected plants keep on growing and even flowering with the disease keeping pace. Attempts to culture and to isolate the organism which caused this mosaic disease have failed. Like the peach yellows, the mosaic disease of the tobacco and tomatoes, this mosaic disease of the sweet pea too can be reproduced by a puncture with a sterile needle from a diseased into a healthy leaf. Yet no organism could be obtained in culture nor can it be detected with the microscope. Nevertheless this disease is contagious, as is the peach yellows.

When this disease first made its appearance in our experimental sweet pea field the diseased areas were immediately located in order to learn something of its spread. They formed two small areas, one in about the center of the field, the other in the southeast corner. Within a lapse of ten days another survey was made and the whole field was found to be contaminated. With the exception of the dwarf cupid varieties which are seemingly immune, all the rest were found to be affected with the mosaic. When first investigating this disease we thought that perhaps this mottling of the leaves was merely a variegated condition of the leaves. We also thought that perhaps the curling of the tender tips as well as the mosaic effect was due primarily to the presence of aphides, which at the beginning of the season was so plentiful. Experiments were then undertaken to determine definitely these points. Accordingly sterile pots with sterile soil were planted with sterilized seeds. Each pot was isolated in a glass chamber and the plants were allowed to grow for three weeks to see if any disease would develop on them. However, these plants remained very free from any diseases. These pots with plants were then divided in four lots. Into lot number one were introduced a few stem mothers of green aphides from affected mosaic plants in the field. In lot two were introduced a few stem mother aphids from apparently healthy plants in the field. The plants in lot three were punctured with sterile needles by pricking a mosaic affected leaf and then puncturing with the same needle the healthy leaves. Lot four was merely punctured with sterile needle and these were designed to serve as checks. In each lot there were pots with plants in order to duplicate each experiment. After ten days the lots which were inoculated with the aphids from diseased and healthy plants both began to show the symptoms of mosaic. This would therefore seem to show that the mere puncture of aphids would be responsible for the mosaic disease. However, this is not the case, as we will soon see. Moreover, it is easy to suppose, and that on very good ground, that the aphids taken from seemingly healthy plants in an infected field might themselves have been infected before. But this would be no valid proof. Lot three which was infected with needle punctures from diseased leaves began after 10 days to show the mosaic disease, while the check punctures remained all healthy to the end of the experiment. This definitely proves that the aphides are not the cause of the trouble but they are merely the carriers of the mosaic disease.

It seems therefore that any steps taken to control the aphides may also serve to control the mosaic. From this too it seems that not only the aphids, but also any biting or sucking insect may help to spread the disease. It has been also definitely proved that the mosaic disease is a contagious one, since it can be produced at will by artificial inoculations. Your present speaker believes with Professor T. F. Manns, chief pathologist and bacteriologist of our Delaware Experiment Station, that the mosaic disease is caused by a protozoic organism which our present microscope and our present cultural and straining methods are insufficient to detect. The symptoms produced in artificial inoculations of this disease are similar to those in the field, namely, a yellowish spotting or mottling of the leaves and a tendency of the leaves of the tips of the plant to curl. Judging from all our observations it does not seem probable that this mosaic disease of the sweet pea is either introduced or carried with the seeds. The mosaic disease has not once made its appearance in the laboratory during two years' work on the sweet pea diseases, and in sowing both sterilized and unsterilized seeds were used all the time. However, it must be added in this connection, that we have always used sterilized pots and soil. This at once suggests the possibility of the soil being the source where the organism is harbored. On this point we are now working. Should we find the soil to harbor the organism then we shall be on the road of discovering some means of treatment.

The Anthracnose of the sweet pea is another new American disease of this plant. It was first described by Prof. Sheldon of the West Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station. This disease, although recently worked out, is apparently an old disease known under the names of wilt or drop. In the little booklet of "Sweet Peas up to Date," published by Burpee & Co., it is spoken of as Buldrop and is attributed to well-cultivated and heavily manured plants and also to wet seasons. A rich soil and wet climates cannot produce the drop. These are only factors which help the disease in its destructive work. The cause of the anthracnose disease is a fungus (Clemerella rufomaculans) which is the cause of the bitter rot of the apple. Tree inoculations have been carried on with these two organisms and their identity definitely established. This means that if your sweet peas grow near some apple orchard and if the latter suffers from the bitter rot, it will be carried readily by the wind or some insect to the sweet peas and produce the anthracnose disease. We have also proven that the organisms which cause the anthracnose of the pepper, the persimmon fruit and the May apple fruit will also produce the anthracnose disease of the sweet pea and the bitter rot of the apple. It is thus seen how serious a proposition this becomes when we consider the many hosts which can communicate this disease to the sweet pea.

The symptoms of the anthracnose of the sweet pea are diverse. Sometimes the disease is manifested as a wilting and dying of the tips. These diseased parts become whitish and brittle and soon break off. Sometimes the dying works downward and this involves the entire branch. Often times the leaves are attacked and they soon die. On the leaves the disease soon starts as a white spot which enlarges and involves the entire area. On the blossoms the fungus either attacks the junction between the flower buds and the peduncle (in this case the bud drops off, leaving the peduncle intact) or it attacks both flower bud and the peduncle and this time both dry up but do not fall off. The seed pods are also attacked in all their stages of development. In this case the fungus works inward until it reaches the seeds. The fungus is capable of living over winter on diseased parts of the plants, in the soil or on the seeds, as was definitely proven in our experiments.

There is another disease known as mildew. This is caused by a fungus which lives on the surface of the leaves and sends in suckers into the interior tissue of the host. This fungus attacks both indoor and outdoor sweet peas. However, it need not be feared as it is easily controlled by sulphur dusting.

Little is done or known in the way of controlling the diseases of the sweet pea. There are, however, certain measures of control which we can adapt from methods of other plants which suffer from diseases of natures similar to those of the sweet pea. For the nematodes and all the other root and soil diseases of the sweet pea we would recommend the same treatment as that recommended in Ohio by Prof. Selby for lettuce disease under greenhouse conditions. The treatments recommended are of two kinds, namely, steaming the soil and formalin treatment of the soil. The formalin treatment consists first in spading the soil and bringing it to a good tilth condition as to moisture content. Then the soil is treated with a solution of formalin made of two pints of 40 per cent formalin in 50 gallons of water, at the rate of one gallon of the preparation to each square foot of the surface. The application may be given with an ordinary watering can. After the "heavy wetting down" the soil should be left free for about two weeks until all the formalin evaporates. This treatment will rid the soil of all fungus pests. But it will not be effective in controlling the nematodes. Hence, the heating method is the best. It is as follows: It is essential that the soil should be sufficiently moist and at the same time fairly loose. The steaming consists in burying a series of pipes in the soil and letting live steam pass through them. The pipes are perforated with cross head and boiler connection. The surface soil is then covered with canvas and the steam passed into the pipes. The temperature for best results is 181 to 212 F. maintained for a period of one hour.

For cut worms the following treatment is recommended: bran, 15 to 20 pounds; middlings, 10 pounds; white arsenic, 3 pounds; molasses or any cheap syrup, one gallon; freshly chopped green clover, alfalfa, etc., enough to make the mixture of a greenish tint. Mix thoroughly, add just enough water to allow of moulding into small balls. Put a pinch of this at different intervals of the row.

The biting insects could be controlled by the same methods used to control the cucumber striped beetle, namely, a sprinkling of paris green and flour. Considering the important role aphids play in carrying the mosaic disease it is very important that the sweet pea aphid should be kept in check. There are two ways of accomplishing this: The first is spraying with any compound of nicotine, the other is to have nature do it for us. In nature the green aphid is devoured by several species of lady bird beetles. The latter can be seen to feed voraciously on the aphid, hence, lady beetles should not be molested. Green aphids are also parasitised by a small Hymenopterous minute blackish or brown wasp-like insect. We now have a series of experiments under way on different spray mixtures to control the anthracnose. Although it is early yet to reach any conclusions it seems that potassium permanganate is the most promising fungicide. A one-half solution will control the anthracnose. The solution has a wine color but is more or less colorless when applied to the plant. It spots the flower, therefore it should be applied after picking the flowers. Spraying at intervals of two weeks will be sufficient.

Joseph Heacock Co.'s New Houses.

Joseph Heacock is certainly one of the live wires of the profession. With him it is go ahead all the time, and at an ever quickening pace. Two years ago he purchased a farm at Roelefs, as the quite extensive grounds at Wyncote had been entirely covered with glass, the business was growing fast, and more stock was necessary to meet the demand. Roses, palms and orchids were the specialties. It was determined to give up the old place entirely to palms and orchids while an entirely new plant at Roelefs would provide space for roses. A house 52x600 feet was erected by the Lord & Burnham Co. and was planted almost entirely with pink and white Killarneys. The results from this were so satisfactory in the two seasons that on April 1 last ground was broken for a much larger structure which was erected by the Lord & Burnham Co., and which has been put through in record time, as it was completed and planted by June 14, just ten weeks after it was begun.

There are some unique features in the construction. The roof, which is of even span, is supported on two angle iron posts, about fifteen feet from either side of the center, with a connecting bar across the top. A row of pipe posts between these and the eaves on either side, which, together with the other supports, are individually anchored in cement with the cement walls, make the structure very rigid and secure. The end doors are not hinged but slide so that in severe weather they may not swing or be left open. There are twelve ground beds four feet wide and the full length of the house, less the cross, center and end walks. Cement walls two inches in width border these ground beds, which are about one foot above the walks. It took 23,000 roses to fill these beds, white and pink Killarney having the preference, with a few thousand of the newer good ones being given a trial. Heating is by steam, the condensation being returned to the boiler by an automatic pump.

Although this house covers within a few feet of an acre of ground it is very well proportioned and has every appearance of being as staunch as the old 20x100 structure of years ago, whose "huge" roof frequently had to be propped up to bear the heavy falls of snow. Everything about the Heacock establishment, both at Roelefs and Wyncote, looks up to date and prosperous. The stock of palms, about one-third larger than last season, on account of the increased space, is in superb condition. We doubt if there is another home-grown collection like it in this country. Nothing is imported, everything being grown on from the seed. Kentias are the specialty and all sizes over six-inch pots are grown in tubs. Cibotium ferns are also a feature and are exceptionally well grown, all being finished on posts or pedestals. Orchids are fast becoming a factor, several large houses being filled with them; all are forced for the flowers. Much of the stock is shipped to other markets. K.

Morehead Canadian Company.

The Canadian business of the Morehead Mfg. Co. of Detroit, Michigan, manufacturers of the Morehead system of steam line drainage and boiler feeding has grown to such proportions in the past few years as to make necessary the organizing of the Canadian Morehead Mfg. Co., Ltd., with headquarters at Woodstock, Ontario. The new company is incorporated under the laws of Ontario with the following officers: A. Fitzgerald, president; D. E. Stott, vice-president; Geo. H. King, secretary, treasurer and general manager. The Morehead line of steam traps will be manufactured under the direct supervision of Geo. W. Cole, who has represented the Morehead Mfg. Co. for the past nine years and is regarded as one of the oldest in experience and best posted steam trap and drainage men in the business. One of the new products of the company is the condenser trap, designed for use on low pressure and exhaust steam heating lines. This device is in general appearance similar to the old and well known Morehead return steam trap. In detail, however, the condenser trap differs from the return trap in the addition of a cold water connection made through a flexible tube with the tank of the trap. The flexible connection terminates in a perforated pipe inside of and running the length of the trap tank. In short, the condenser trap is nothing more or less than a combination of the principles of the jet condenser and the Morehead automatic return steam trap.

The condenser trap is held to dispense with the use of vacuum valves and pumps continually used on such systems, and it may be installed at less cost than others, claim its manufacturers. Connected to the return line of vacuum heating systems where a difference of pressure is maintained between the ends of the system, the line condensation and accumulating air is taken into the tank of the condenser trap as in the case of the return trap, but with the added pulling power of the vacuum created in the tank of the condenser trap. When the steam is turned on in the heating system, the various lines of which are full of air, the cold water supply valve is opened slightly. As the condensation from the return lines and the condensing water fills the tank the latter tilts, opening the live steam valve, allowing the steam pressure to enter and discharge the water contents into a return steam trap above the boiler or into an open heater. As soon as the water is discharged the tank containing the steam which is left resumes a horizontal or filling position. The tank returning to its horizontal position automatically opens the control valve on the cold water inlet and allows the cold water spray to come in contact with the live steam contained in the tank. This cold water condenses the steam and forms a vacuum in the tank of the trap which in turn performs the usual functions of created vacuum in heating systems, of pulling the condensation from the lines to be drained. The cold water supply is furnished either from city water works or a tank or other source that is available for that purpose. Particular attention is called to the fact by its manufacturers that a surprisingly small amount of water is required in the condensing process. A receiver is always used in connection with the condenser trap, the water seal in the receiver taking the place of thermostatic valves on the heating system. The condenser trap is used as the lower trap, taking the place of the return trap in the Morehead standard double trap installation, the lower or condenser trap discharging to the return trap placed above the boiler.

The M. Winandy Co., Mfgs., Chicago.

The M. Winandy Company, consisting of M. Winandy and his daughter Virginia and two sons, Alfred and M. Winandy, Jr., was recently incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000 for the purpose of manufacturing and placing their new bench and heating system on the market. The new system was invented by Michael Winandy after he had been in the greenhouse construction business for over 30 years, and during the last 10 months he has installed this system in 45 greenhouses with an area of over 200,000 square feet of glass. The heating system is so arranged that the return pipes rest on a concrete post and form the foundation of the benches, and the accompanying illustration will give the reader a little idea of what the system really is. The cost of the system is very reasonable and is recommended most highly by the following growers who are using it and are located in the vicinity of Chicago: J. Schelden, Harry Modaff, Matt Evert, J. B. Karles and Mike Linder.

Smith Monument Proposed.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

New Orleans, La., July 13.—It was with regret that we read of the sad news of the death of Wm. R. Smith. The Society of American Florists has lost a true friend. Everyone knew Mr. Smith. He was a great man. He was a friend to us all, not only to us, but to all throughout the whole horticultural world. It would be a credit to us indeed if we should erect a monument to his memory, and I shall gladly start the subscription with $25 so that such a monument may be erected, this monument to be in Washington. He was a great man, an ardent supporter of our society, and it is but just that we perpetuate our regard for him in this fitting manner.

Convention Sports.

The prize list for the approaching sporting events to be held in connection with the convention of the Society of American Florists at Chicago next August is now in preparation. Anyone who desires to donate a prize will greatly oblige by sending full particulars as early as possible. It is the desire of those in charge of this department of convention work to make it the biggest and best bowling, shooting and outing occasion ever held in connection with the annual meeting of the national organization. All communications bearing on the convention sports and prizes, therefore should be addressed to C. J. Graham, 12349 Euclid avenue, Cleveland, O.

The donors should send particulars of their prizes early so as to afford those in charge an opportunity of giving them full publicity.

Two Civil Service Examinations.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces two examinations of interest to practical seed and plant growers and nurserymen. One examination is for the securing of a garden and field superintendent in the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, to have charge of the Miami (Florida) Plant Introduction Garden and Field Station. The position pays $1,200 a year and the appointee will be provided with quarters at the station. His duties will consist of the testing of foreign seeds and plants to ascertain their suitability for introduction into this country. There will be practical questions in plant propagation and orchard work (counting as forty "weights") and education, training, experience and fitness will count the other sixty "weights." A person is desired who has had practical experience in nursery or orchard work and who is expert in budding, grafting and other forms of propagation. Applicants must have reached their twenty-fifth and not their forty-fifth birthday on the date of examination. Application and examination forms will be furnished by the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or the secretary of the board of examiners at any of the places where it is held. Any citizen of the United States who complies with the requirements may take the examination which takes place Aug. 7, 1912.

The other position to be filled is that of nurseryman at the Western Navajo School, Arizona, and vacancies requiring similar qualifications as they occur. The position pays $840 a year and physical ability counts forty "weights" while training, experience and fitness count sixty. A practical knowledge of irrigation is necessary. The department desires an appointee who is unmarried and has no dependents. Applicants must have reached their twentieth but not their fiftieth birthday. The application must be filed in complete form with the Commission at Washington, by Aug. 3, 1912.

THE J. M. Gasser Co. of Cleveland, O., has a way of reducing its surplus stock and avoiding a glut that helps to make the world happier and should appeal to other florists who find themselves overstocked at this season. Every year when the hot weather strikes town and there are more flowers than can be sold, instead of throwing them away this firm gives them to people who most need the message of cheer they bring. Last year the patients at the Cleveland hospitals were recipients of these surplus flowers, and this year the Gasser Co. sent white roses directly into the homes of the poor. The joy of many a poor child who never possessed a rose before was unbounded when the flowers were distributed by visiting nurses. Doesn't this seem to be a pretty good way to get rid of surplus stock?

NOTHING DOING.

Nothing doing is right and nearly all the wholesalers will agree that the past week has been the quietest one of the year and many are taking advantage of the dull times by repainting their stores and enjoying their vacations. The weather was very cool the first part of the present week, but the local trade is still very quiet and there has been considerable falling off in the shipping business. The peony season is nearly over and another week will see the end of the cold storage stock. Carnations are still in great oversupply and are selling at 1 and 2 cents, sometimes by the bunch and sometimes by the bunch. Lily of the valley is of very poor quality, gladioli are arriving in good condition and asters are now more plentiful. Orchids are not plentiful but are equal to the demand and lilies of fine quality are in great oversupply. Roses are of good quality, especially Killarney, White Killarney, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, My Maryland and Rhea Reid. The new roses, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Radiance and Prince De Bulgarie are good summer roses and are selling well. Cut blooms of hydrangeas and phlox are obtainable and there is still a large surplus of gaillardia schillea, feverfew, daisies, gypsophilla, candytuft, larkspur and marigolds. The cut of roses from the young plants is much larger and good choice blooms of American Beauty, Killarney and White Killarney are very plentiful. Ferns are very good this year and the same can be said of galax. There is plenty of asparagus strings and smilax and the only item that is scarce is "demand." The coming S. A. F. convention is the principal talk on the market and everyone is anxiously looking forward to this big event.

NOTES.

C. L. Washburn's residence in Hinsdale was robbed one night this week when a porch climber raised the window screen and entered the house some time between the hours of midnight and morning. The burglar took a gold watch and chain valued at $100 and $65 in cash from Mr. Washburn's pocket and stole Mrs. Washburn's diamond engagement ring, gold beaded necklace and purse containing a considerable sum of money. The loss amounts to about $500, but Mr. Washburn is protected by burglary insurance and it is expected that the loss will be paid in full by the company. The well known wholesaler says that this particular individual was such a high grade robber that he would like to present him with a box of cigars from the splendid manner in which he got away with the goods. The only thing the unwelcome visitor did not take was Mr. Washburn's trousers, for which he is very thankful.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a fine grade of roses and Otto W. Frese says that the shipping trade is holding up very good this summer. The plant department at Morton Grove is well under way and this firm expects to have a large supply of decorative stock for sale next fall.

Chas. A. Simonson and wife, of McPherson, Kans., are in the city on a combined business and pleasure trip. John Poehlmann gave them an automobile ride through the city on July 15 and the visitors were most favorably impressed with the many beauties of the Windy City.

John Zech attended the picnic of the United Societies of the St. Gregory's parish on July 17, and as usual was right on the job at his old stand with the wheel of fortune. Mr. Zech is a great church member and is always ready to devote a little of his time to help a good cause along.

Art. Christianson, with Paul Blome & Co., will leave next week for the farm to take a much needed rest. Some of Art's friends are inclined to think that it is rather queer that Princess Charming and Herald should both take their leave of absence at the same time. Oh, you Joliet!

The Raedlein Basket Co. has just received a large shipment of baskets from its large factories in Germany and Curtis Kindler is now busy selecting an assortment for his firm's display at the coming S. A. F. convention.

The Chicago Florists' Club's baseball team will practice again next Sunday, July 21, and all members are earnestly requested to be present. The players will meet at the E. F. Winterson Co.'s store at 1:30 p. m. sharp.

Fred Lautenschlager has returned from a week-end trip and during the three days that he was away he sold enough Kroeschell boilers to heat 142,000 feet of glass.

The next regular meeting of the Cook County Florists' Association will be held at the Tavern, 174 West Washington street, Thursday, July 15.

Wm. Lubliner, formerly with Lubliner & Trinz, but now of Toledo, O., is renewing old acquaintances here this week.

John Kruchten and wife and George Gobel will leave on July 20 for a fishing trip at Big Sand Lake, Wis.

Wilder Deamud, L. Hoekner and Art. Blome spent July 11 at St. Joseph, Mich.

Wieter Bros., Zech & Mann and Hoerber Bros. are giving their stores a new coat of paint.

Wm. J. Smyth and family are spending the summer at Antioch.

TRADE AT STANDSTILL.

The very warm weather continues and trade is at a complete standstill, funeral work being the only outlet for the disposal of flowers. Carnations are arriving in a sleepy condition and roses are small and poor keepers. Quite a number of good Harrisii lilies are in, also Lillium Auratum. Sweet peas are getting shorter stems and are smaller. The retailers are busy cleaning and painting their stores. Their helpers are in many instances taking their vacations. Convention matters are being talked over and it will be shortly known how many the delegation from St. Louis will number. A severe rainstorm at 3 a. m. Sunday morning prevented many of the county growers from getting in with their flowers.

CLUB MEETING.

The St. Louis Florists' Club, thirty-five strong, met last Thursday afternoon. Robert J. Windler, president, was in the chair and all the other officers were also present. Dr. Wever led the discussion on over and sub-irrigation and Henry Hunends, of Belleville, Ill., on growing early and late chrysanthemums. The feature of the meeting was the nomination of officers, which was as follows: F. H. Weber, Jules Bourdet, for president; C. Young, G. Grossart, vice-president; W. C. Young, J. J. Beneke, secretary; W. C. Smith, C. Bergersmann, treasurer; Frank Fillmore, Wm. Ossig, John Connon, Frank Vennemann, trustees. The following gentlemen applied for membership: F. W. Pape, L. Baumann, Frank Windler, C. Fullgraf, Gus Egging, J. J. Windler, Max Herzog, Al. Gumz.

The Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad has been chosen as the official route to the S. A. F. convention at Chicago. It is hoped that all intending going will go this route and enjoy a pleasant ride. Some of our local florists can avail themselves of this opportunity. All desiring information can get it through F. H. Weber, vice president for Missouri, Boyle avenue and Lindell street, St. Louis, Mo. The train will leave on the evening of August 19 at 9 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Angermueller leave this week for Denver, Colo. They will go in their touring car. Mrs. Angermueller will go by way of Kansas City to visit her father. They expect to be at the florists' convention.

Edwin G. Westmann, formerly with F. H. Weber, has started up for himself in South St. Louis. We wish him success. He has a good knowledge of all the branches of the florist's business.

Arthur Waldman has built up a very nice trade at his store on Delmar Boulevard near Hamilton. He has a large trade in plants and house decoration.

W. J. Pilcher is shipping gladioli to Chicago. He consigned a large quantity in St. Louis to the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

Alex. Siegel and wife have gone to Mackinac Island for the summer. Their store will be kept open during their absence.

Max Herzog is doing well at his store on California avenue. He has an automobile delivery.

Several trees were blown down in the parks early Sunday morning during the storm.

The Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. is painting and renovating the store.

Quite a number of the growers at Kirkwood have lost their violets.

Al. Gumz, with Geo. H. Angermueller, has left on his vacation.

At H. G. Berning's all the employes are taking vacations in turns.

Chicago Florists' Club.

An adjourned meeting of the Florists' Club was held at the Union Restaurant July 11, President Foley in the chair. There was a very large attendance, much interest being taken in the arrangements for the coming convention. New members were elected as follows: James Fisher, 31 West Randolph street; Paul Dieball, Hubbard Woods; Tony Einveck, 131 North Wabash avenue; A. L. Randall, 68 East Randolph street; S. G. Anderson, Morton Grove; G. Raedlein, 713 Milwaukee avenue; J. W. Page, Morton Grove. Chairman Rudd of the committee on by-laws revision presented the new code, which was ordered printed and submitted to the members.

HEAT HURTS OUTSIDE FLOWERS.

The heat of the past week has been terrific, the glass ranging from 90° to 96° in the shade. This continuous spell of hot weather, together with lack of rain, has about wound up some of the outside flowers. The sweet peas are fading badly, the stock now offered being very poor indeed. Asters are, however, coming to take their place, and some very nice lavender and white ones showed among the stocks of last week. Gladioli are seen in such quantities that they can now be depended on for orders at any time. Roses are very small, the buds being cut tight, as they open so quickly. There are cattleyas and lily of the valley equal to the demand. There is also a plentiful supply of Easter lilies with fine large flowers, but rather weak stems.

NOTES.

Arthur Niessen, who is an expert on prices of cut flowers at wholesale, when asked to compare the general average for all flowers for the season of 1910-11 with that of 1911-12, said that the difference was fully 10 per cent in favor of 1910-11 over that of the last season. In fact, he said, this statement he felt was most conservative, as the difference was probably nearer 15 per cent. He thought the reason was a combination of a low or dull business condition of the country and an over-production of cut flowers. This latter, he said, was mostly due to the ambition of the growers, who ran up houses without looking ahead to see if they had a good market for the stock they would produce. He said the danger of too much glass should be brought to the attention of the growers in some way so as to make them call a halt, and there was probably no better plan than the expensive one of their realization through the poor returns which they could not but see was due to over-production. Some seem to think that a larger place is the remedy, producing more flowers when there is a great scarcity and trimming out in the general average through a saving in expenses of running a large place over a small one. He believed that growers who undertake to better conditions by going into the retail and keeping up two separate organizations to sell their products would come out at the small end of the horn. He had seen this tried by a number of men and nearly always with disastrous results. The florists of the small towns who grow and retail their products are a class by themselves and generally buy far more than they sell at wholesale. Mr. Niessen thought that the business in spite of the comparative difference in favor of a year ago was in a healthy condition,

Mr. Craig said that 50,000 begonias at one time looked like a large stock, but that now, on top of the large quantities of both varieties that had gone out this season, they could easily sell 50,000 more Cincinnati, if they had them, as orders for this variety were being turned down with every mail.

Davenport Club Has Outing.

The eighth annual picnic of the City Florists' Club was held at Wm. Knees' summer home on Rock River, Thursday, July 11, and proved a grand success in every way. The day was pleasant and clear as a bell, and the most of the florists and their families took advantage of the outing. There were eighty in all and they enjoyed themselves to their hearts' content. The morning was given over to getting acquainted, boating and trying for a few fish, but mainly in getting up an appetite for dinner, which proved appetizing and was certainly appreciated. After dinner was over and the boys had rested up a bit there were a baseball game and other sports. Moline won the game by the score of 9 to 3, and the only excuse the Davenport-Rock Island team has is that Moline furnished the umpire. However, the game was an interesting one in spite of the fact that the men only play about once a year.

The winners of the races were:
Married ladies—Mrs. T. Shaffer, 1 pound box of candy.

Single ladies—Miss Alma Goranson, 1 pound box of candy.

Girls—Grace Pauli, 1 pound box of candy.

Boys—Robt. Pearson, baseball.

Young men—Carl Hanson, knife.

Bachelors—E. P. Zimmerman, pipe.

Married men—C. Sorensen, box of cigars.

A launch was provided for all those that cared to take a ride on the river. The launch proved popular and it was kept busy all day long, as were also several rowboats. Supper was served at 6:30, and like the dinner was heartily enjoyed. The committee in charge should be complimented for the way everything was carried out. It was the most successful outing the club ever had.

LITTLE STOCK AND LESS DEMAND.

The market seems to be rapidly approaching the conditions of a year ago, except in one particular. Then there was a good demand with good prices, where now there is a slow demand with low prices. So far we have had easily plenty of stock, but now the size of the cuts has decreased so that the aggregate volume of receipts is small. It is well that it is so, for there is hardly a large enough demand to take up the offerings. The rose market is well supplied with very good stock. The request for American Beauties is good and all that could be desired. Carnations are on a very rapid decline, most of the blooms are small and of only fair quality at the best. The hot sun is having a telling effect. It has already made sweet peas a back number. Some very choice Easter lilies and auratum are coming in daily. There is also almost always a good supply of nymphaeas on hand. Gladioli sell well and include some very fine blooms. Snapdragons are also offered. The supply of green goods is adequate. The call for cut ferns is strong.

NOTES.

Among the vacation-takers this week are Miss Christine Bossmeyer, at C. E. Critchell's, and Miss Margaret Anstead, at E. G. Gillett's.

NOTES.

The real estate men say Wm. Walker is looking for a suburban tract to move his greenhouses to, as his business has outgrown his present quarters and his present location can be sold to advantage as building lots.

W. H. Leeming, Shively, has erected a greenhouse 35x150 feet. He expects to grow a big lot of the Mrs. Sanders daisies and to go in heavy on shrubbery and hedge plants.

The death of a wealthy capitalist, J. B. Spud, caused a great demand for cut flowers. Jacob Schulz supplied a grave cover for $200. F. Walker & Co. also had a big order.

The floral parade in June was such a success that the promoters have decided to have this event annually.

Lancaster County Florists' Picnic.

The club had an ideal day for its outing and the members greatly enjoyed the trolley ride from Lancaster to Pequa as a start. After lunch the McCalls ferry power plant was inspected and a trip was made to Cold Cave. The cave is greater in area than several city blocks and cold enough to keep flowers in on the hottest day of the year. Dinner was served at 4:30 and was followed by dancing and games. Paul Weaver, son of Elmer Weaver, won first in the peanut race and Paul Kohr, son of Frank Kohr, was second. In the children's running race Francis Moore won the prize and in the running race for women Mrs. A. M. Herr won first and Mrs. Brandt of York second. In the men's race Wm. Bemenderfer of Elizabethtown won first and the treasurer of the club, Harry Rohrer, second. In the peanut scramble for all Miss Weaver won the prize. The committee of arrangements were Frank Kohr, chairman; Elmer Weaver, Willis Girvin, Edw. F. Law, Lemon Landis and Albert M. Herr. Among the out-of-town guests were: Wm. Swayne, P. Bernard, E. C. The sweet pea exhibition was a big success. W. Atlee Burpee & Co.'s exhibit, which received the gold medal, was especially fine. R. & J. It may interest many to know something about the express business. A published report shows that in the past five years four express companies paid a total of $66,320,000 in dividends. That may account for the extra charges imposed on the florists in the past few years and the extra expense incurred by having to put the boxes on the trains themselves.

Thursday was fishing day for the Boston Flower Market. Some forty-five, under the guidance of W. Hastings, sailed down the bay to catch thunder, lightning and rain and get thoroughly drenched.

LESS SURPLUS STOCK.

Though the weather continues very warm and stock very plentiful, conditions the past week have been a trifle better. But saying conditions are better does not mean that prices will be much increased. It means that there was not so much stock thrown away. Carnations are getting very poor in quality and with the exception of a few orders for the very best of them they have to be closed out at very low prices. The same conditions prevail with roses. The supply of lilies far exceeds the demand and the quality of these is extremely good. Asters are gradually getting more plentiful. Gladioli are now seen at all the wholesale houses. Lily of the valley are very plentiful, quality not so good as it has been. There is no perceptible change in the orchid market except that there is a good demand for Cattleya gigas, the quality of which at present is very fine. All outside flowers are very plentiful. Prices that are realized for these at times, it would seem, would hardly pay the express charges.

NOTES.

A fire which might have been very disastrous occurred in the store of N. J. Hills, 56 West Twenty-eighth street, Thursday night about 11 o'clock. Mr. Hills' store was completely gutted out, and he unfortunately carried no insurance. The next evening a fire occurred on the top floor of the building occupied by William P. Ford, 45 West Twenty-eighth street, but was quickly extinguished.

It is reported that the home of Wm. G. Badgley, the well-known grower and wholesaler, who resides at Chatham, N. J., was broken into by thieves on Wednesday night and completely cleaned out. In addition to taking the previous week's returns, which Mr. Badgley had just received, they took also Mr. Badgley's badge of office as chief of police of Chatham.

The outing of the Greek-American Florists' Association on Monday, July 8, was a great success in every way, and N. J. Lales, the president of the society, and his committees, deserve great credit for the very successful manner in which all arrangements were carried out. All of the prominent wholesalers were present and participated in the sports.

Charles H. Totty, chairman of the National Flower Show committee, since his return from Europe has again resumed active work in flower show matters. Mr. Totty is very enthusiastic and is confident that this show and the trade exhibition in connection will eclipse anything of the kind ever held.

Walter F. Sheridan, organizing director of the alumni of the New York Florists' Club, will call a meeting of all the ex-officers of the club shortly, and it is expected that this organization will be well established before the advent of the next national flower show in April.

Interest in the coming great national flower show in New York seems to be growing in all quarters. The secretary's office during the past week was flooded with inquiries regarding the trade exhibition in conjunction with the show and there were many requests for the preliminary schedule.

President Joseph A. Manda of the New York Florists' Club has appointed the following as members of the nominating committee: Frank H. Traendly, C. B. Wethered, W. F. Sheridan, C. H. Totty, I. S. Hendrickson, Robert Koehne, A. L. Miller.

Mrs. Minnie H. Burns, wife of Alex. S. Burns, retired florist of Woodside, L. I., died Friday, June 12, in the German Hospital, New York, after an operation which was performed the previous week. The funeral services were held Monday morning at 10:30.

President Richard Vincent, Jr., of the Society of American Florists, was a visitor on Thursday and Friday, completing with the secretary the details of the program for the next convention. One of Mr. Vincent's granddaughters accompanied him.

Growers in this vicinity are complaining very much of the dry weather and the carnations that are in the field are suffering very much from the drouth. Already it seems there will be a scarcity of carnation plants this fall.

The International Exhibition Co. is also making every effort to see that the project gets the proper publicity and there is no question but that the new Grand Central Palace is an ideal building in which to hold a flower show and trade exhibition.

All of the new stores now in course of erection by Jno. S. Nichols in Twenty-eighth street, have been rented. Several important changes in locations by some of the wholesale dealers is anticipated as a result.

The news of the death of Wm. R. Smith was received with great regret by all in the trade here. Frank R. Pierson, Tarrytown; A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., and John Young attended the funeral.

Wm. A. Haupt, for many years with Young & Nugent, has opened a retail department in the store of A. L. Young & Co., where he will cater to a select patronage.

The annual outing of the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers Association took place at Brighton Beach July 18.

There was a very large party going by the all-water route to Boston Friday night to attend the exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society.

Henry C. Riedel and Mrs. Riedel will spend the month of August in Canada.

Henry and Paul Dailedouze are expected home from Europe this week.

Albany, N. Y.

CLUB MEETING.

Members of the Albany Florists' club, in large numbers, journeyed out to the establishment of Frederick Goldring, Font Grove, eight miles from Albany, on the evening of July 11 for the monthly meeting. Among the interesting discussions was one on the annual clambake. George Parr, a local authority on this subject, was given the floor and in a few sentences explained what could be done for the members in the line of an old-fashioned Rhode Island affair with trimmings, a program of sports, and a general good time, under shelter, if necessary. Mr. Parr's remarks were followed by comments and by vote it was decided to hold the bake on a Saturday afternoon, probably late in August, and to make it a family affair. The entertainment committee, Louis H. Schaefer, chairman, was instructed to take charge of details and to report at the next meeting. Otto Suecker and R. D. Griffin made brief remarks. President Danker named E. P. Tracey, F. R. Bilson, and L. H. Schaefer a committee to inquire into the subject of exhibits at a fair to be held at Glenmont, below Albany, this fall. John Coffey, Cohoes, was elected to membership and one application was received to be acted upon at the August meeting. The club accepted the invitation of Henkes Bros. to hold the meeting at their place, Newtonville, on the evening of August 1. Following the business session a very pleasant social hour was spent.

NOTES.

Architect R. D. Macpherson, 910 Myrtle avenue, has prepared plans for a greenhouse, 25 feet by 50 feet, to be built on the grounds of St. Vincent's Catholic male asylum, 391 Western avenue. It will replace one now in use upon which is cast the shadow of a large new building in course of construction. The greenhouse will be devoted to the instruction of boys in the rudiments of horticulture. A feature will be benches fitted up for the use of a class of 12 boys at one time.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Eyres have opened their summer home at The Hague, Lake George, for the season.

William Hannell, Watervliet, is completing a rose house 30x150 feet, which will be stocked for the winter.

USUAL SUMMER CONDITIONS.

Business has simmered down to the usual summer condition; funeral work or nothing, mostly nothing. Roses and carnations are of an indifferent quality and supplies about equal to demand. Carnations are selling at 80 cents to $1, tea roses from $2 to $5 a hundred. Good American Beauties are scarce but seem less in demand than last summer. Two weeks of rainy weather and severe storms have damaged outside stock considerably; sweet peas, especially, suffered heavily, so that no salable ones have been available for the last six or eight days. Gladioli and asters have not yet appeared on the market in quantities.

NOTES.

The State Florist Association at their last meeting accepted the resignation of Secretary Junge and unanimously elected Mr. Steinkamp, of Baur & Steinkamp, to succeed him. Mr. Junge, in tendering his resignation, explained to the members that the demands of his business at present were such as to make it impossible for him to give the affairs of the association the necessary attention.

The employes of Bertermann Bros. Co. have held their annual picnic at the Bertermann country place. The committee on arrangements, favored by ideal weather, made the affair a grand success. The most important event was the baseball game in which the plain clothes men beat the uniformed squad by a score of 12 to 4.

John Elsner is remodeling his place, replacing his small greenhouses with large modern structures with the latest improvements in heating and ventilating apparatus.

A hail storm, passing west of the city, did considerable damage to outside stock, destroying a patch of fine asters and other outside flowers belonging to Mrs. Hurley.

Homer Wiegand and Mrs. Wiegand took an automobile trip to the lakes of northern Indiana.

Mr. Fachmann, the pioneer wire worker, has resumed his business here after a trip east.

Mr. Lawrence leaves tomorrow on a trip to Colorado.

STORM DAMAGES GLASS.

All greenhouse stock is showing the effects of the hot weather. Outside stock, such as sweet peas, gladioli, asters and all annuals was exceptionally fine previous to the severe storm of Friday, July 12. It was the worst storm in this locality since the cyclone about ten years ago. The city suffered a heavy loss in property; also several lives were lost. As the hail was severe most all florists in the city lost some glass. The dwelling house of Max Kaiser, proprietor of the Merriam Park Floral Co., was struck by lightning. Fortunately the loss was light, as it was confined to the roof. This firm also lost considerable hotbed sash through the hail and wind. The greenhouse of Henry Krinke & Son on Jessamine street was badly demolished. One end of his range was completely blown to pieces. He hasn't yet been able to estimate his loss. A great number of other florists had more or less glass broken, but all were members of the association, so their loss will not be so heavy. Business has been dull except funeral work, which keeps up well. Many owners are remodeling.

NOTES.

St. Paul's flower show to be held in the fall is shaping itself well. All the committees are working well and the growers are enthusiastic. No doubt this city will have as fine a show as was ever staged. With all the facilities of a large auditorium and a lot of enthusiastic florists here and in Minneapolis we are bound to have a fine show. The last meeting of the show committee disclosed the names of the judges that have accepted to date. They are J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, Iowa; Wm. Rock, Kansas City, Mo., and W. N. Rudd, Chicago.

C. Bussjaeger, who, for the past five years leased his greenhouses to Mr. Topel, has again resumed the management and is remodeling his entire place. Mr. Topel has purchased the place of Otto Hiersekorn on Seventh street and is doing business there.

Holm & Olson received a large shipment of orchids the past week. This firm is now growing a great many orchids and they have no trouble disposing of them.

NOTHING BUT FUNERAL WORK.

The extreme hot weather since the first of the month has brought business almost to a standstill and except for funeral work the florists of this city would have nothing to do. Carnations are in good condition, but bring low prices and roses fall apart almost as soon as cut. Sweet peas are plentiful but there is no demand for them. There is quite a sale of porch plants at present, such as Boston ferns, Aspidestras, etc.

NOTES.

Mrs. C. R. Quereau, formerly Miss Gibson with the H. E. Wilson firm, was in town July 1 on her wedding trip. The wedding took place June 29, in Philadelphia, where Mr. and Mrs. Quereau will make their home.

George T. Boucher reports business about the average for this time of year. Mr. Boucher will leave shortly on a motor trip to New York, Philadelphia and other cities.

Miss Rose Brown is in Dayton, O., on her vacation. She will visit Chicago before she returns.

Miss Gugelman and Miss Maher, of the Rochester Floral Co., are taking vacations. C. G.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Clifford Digmond, charged with stealing a plant from the William Craig greenhouse, won a verdict of acquittal but the jury was ordered from the box by Judge Carr and the accused held under bail of $600 to keep the peace. The court scored the jury, which he said should have convicted the prisoner without hesitation.

Next annual convention, June, 1913.

VISITED CHICAGO: Henry A. Salzer, La Crosse, Wis.

LEXINGTON, KY.—James B. Haggin is erecting a cleaning plant for the handling of bluegrass seed.

S. F. LÉONARD, Chicago, is starting this week on a trip to Idaho to include the new seed-growing sections.

EASTERN gladiolus bulb growers report that the growing season has been dry and that the crop is late.

CHICAGO.—Prices on the Board of Trade, July 17, for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $7 to $9
per 100 pounds.

IDAHO pea crops in the vicinity of St. Anthony are reported looking better than near Bozeman. Some Gradus are estimated at twelve to one and some Alderman at six to one.

R. GODINEAU and wife, of Angers, France, in leaving New York for home last week, expressed warm appreciation of the many courtesies shown them by the trade during their American tour.

PARIS seed growers report very serious shortages in best seed, the prospect being that May varieties will yield only one-third of a crop. Most kinds of early cabbages are a total failure; carrots, one-fifth of a crop; parsley, one-fourth crop; swedes, one-third to one-fourth crop.

JAPANESE advices of July 2 report the lily crop condition to be good, the weather thus far having been favorable, and the condition of the crop in all varieties excellent. They say if no heavy rain prevails prior to harvest time a good crop should result, although large sizes in most kinds will be scarce.

NEWARK, O.—The firm of Osborn & Kerr, prominent grain and seed men of East Newark, has dissolved partnership. Hereafter it will be known as the C. S. Osborn Co., as Mr. Kerr retires from the trade. The company has been one of the city's most thriving business institutions and Mr. Osborn will no doubt be quite as successful as in the past.

THE tuberose crop is reported to be making rapid improvement, although the weather is still unusual for the tuberose-growing section. It is hot and very rainy and the land is so wet that it is hoped the fall will be extremely dry, as otherwise it may prove disastrous to the crop. Grass has injured many acres as because of the scarcity of labor it could not be kept down. However, on the whole, the crop is looking very well July 10.

STURGEON BAY, WIS.—Jno. B. Davis took his departure June 26 for St. Anthony, Idaho, where he will spend the ensuing month or more in looking after some peas his company has planted in that vicinity. His duties will be principally to see to the roguing of the crop and it will probably be some time in August before the work is finished.

ALBANY, N. Y.—A new law affecting the sale of grass seeds in this state went into effect July 1. A fine of $50 is imposed as a penalty for the sale of grass seeds that contain in excess of three per centum by count of foul or foreign seeds unless the proportion of such foul or foreign seeds is plainly stated upon the label. The seedsmen are anxious to know how this law affects lawn mixtures, the composition of which is usually kept secret. Commissioner Huson, of the department of agriculture, will announce a decision upon this point in a short time.

FRENCH BULBS.—Advices of July 5 report delayed curing of French bulbs because of continued rains and constant dampness in storage. White Roman hyacinths of 13 centimeters and up are not obtainable at any price.
Freesias are also a short crop, some growers making only 50 per cent deliveries. Alliums are reported almost a crop failure. The above difficulties are added to by the strike of the sailors. No American importer can yet state positively just what he will receive on his orders for Romans and freesias, but it is thought that orders for narcissus paper white of the ordinary size will be filled in full.

Protest Against Bourne Bill.

That the passage of the Bourne Bill (Senate 6850), now before congress, would work untold harm to thousands engaged in the seed and book business has been contended from the first by interested persons who are alive to their needs and the dangers that threaten their means of livelihood. That there is a grave necessity for concerted action by those it would harm most directly, however, lest the bill pass unamended, has only recently been realized by the great mass of the people. The passage of a parcels post law becomes more necessary each year, but such a law should tend rather to aid those whose mail would come under its provisions than to prohibit by excessive rates their use of the mails. Anything that affects harmfully the mail order business and the catalogue business is bound to affect the general public quite as much—if not so directly—as the firms engaged in such business.
Excessive rates mean a smaller revenue to the government instead of a greater, because excessive rates mean practically the destruction of many a business as now carried on. It is time for every one interested to protest to congress and meantime it would be well to read the following letter written by W. Atlee Burpee, of Philadelphia, to Senator Penrose, member of the senate committee on post office and post roads:

Honorable Boies Penrose,

U. S. Senate,

Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:—

Having been called home by wire from California I could not remain as intended in Chicago for the annual meeting of the American Seed Trade Association then about to convene.
Calling to pay my respects to the President, Mr. Leonard Vaughan, you may imagine my surprise (and disgust!) when he handed me a copy of the enclosed circular.

It seemed almost impossible to believe that the Senate Committee on post offices and post roads, of which you were so long the able chairman, could even seriously consider such a measure as the Bourne Bill (S. 6850).
Even its author, the Honorable Jonathan Bourne, Jr., of Oregon, surely must admit upon second thought that it is little short of ridiculous to make a rate of 12 cents for 7 ounces of third or fourth class matter when the same weight of first class mail at full letter postage would only cost 14 cents.

Such legislation would seem almost to justify the thought of extreme radicals that this is NOT a "Government of the people, by the people, or for the people!"

The passage of this Bourne bill would mean practically the ruin of the business to which I have devoted thirty-six years of strenuous work. It would spell ruin also (or necessitate complete reconstruction) of thousands of others in the seed and book business, as well as to houses in many other lines who now depend upon the mail to distribute catalogues as their "Silent Salesman." The injury to lithographic, printing and allied trades would also be incalculable.

The first edition of our retail catalogue in December each year is more than four hundred thousand copies.
These, weighing 8 ounces each, are now conveniently mailed and routed direct from the Burpee Buildings without trouble or labor to the Philadelphia post office—the wrapper containing each catalogue bearing the indicia:

4c. Paid

Philadelphia, Pa.

Permit No. 6.

With stamps affixed this catalogue is mailed also all over the world at the same rate of 8 ounces for 4 cents.

Now, by Senator Bourne's so-called "Parcels Post Bill" the cost of postage upon a large percentage of the issue would be trebled—12 cents instead of 4 cents. Is there any reason for the United States wanting to charge three times the rate recognized and long established as fair by every civilized nation on both books and pamphlets?

The Government of the United States recognizing that seeds, like books, must frequently be ordered by mail and that their proper distribution is vital to the welfare of the people, established the same rate on both, two ounces for one cent. We would welcome an increase in size of packages from four pounds to twelve pounds, but neither ourselves nor our customers could be expected to welcome an increase of fifty per cent in charge for service together with rates on small packages that are absolutely prohibitive. We would certainly (as would all seedsmen and publishers) prefer to have four pound packages remain the limit at the present rate.

At the rate of 12 cents per pound for two thousand miles or more it is hardly likely that the P. O. Department would get much business, as the present prepaid express rate to California is only 8 cents per pound—unless, as is quite likely, the express companies profit by the opportunity to advance their rates.

Trusting that you and the other members of the committee, including Senator Bourne himself (to whom a copy of this letter is mailed) may realize the injury this bill would work upon your fellow citizens and also the protest that would be aroused should its passage be recommended, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) W. ATLEE BURPEE.

THE BANQUET ADDRESSES.

In preceding issues we have given an extended account of the proceedings at the Chicago meeting of the American Seed Trade Association, closing last week with Toastmaster Stokes' opening address at the Hotel Sherman banquet Wednesday evening, June 26, and other speakers are reported as follows:

Mr. Barlow in response to this happy introduction gave an interesting account of what Chicago's Association of Commerce has done for the merchants of Chicago as well as for their patrons in expediting transportation so that shipments to points covered by Chicago's trade are now made at an immense saving of time through improved methods. Weekly bulletins are published showing the movement of cars, and the result of this has been to so stimulate the transportation companies that delays in deliveries have been reduced to a minimum and a saving of time effected which the speaker estimated to be worth over $3,000,000 per day, if expressed in terms of interest charges. Northern points in Texas are reached in three days, southern points in the same state, four days. Delivery is made in the city of Jacksonville, Florida, on the fourth morning from Chicago. South Carolina points are reached within the fourth and fifth morning; Knoxville, Tennessee, second morning delivery; Jackson and Meridian, Mississippi, third morning delivery, etc. It is to be regretted that space will not permit the publication of Mr. Barlow's remarks in full, but the work of his Association is unquestionably an object lesson which many other cities would do well to follow. Toastmaster Stokes congratulated the company upon the remarks which they had listened to and expressed pleasure that in Chicago they are finding a way to reduce delays in transportation. Now that some of the growers are going west this was especially good news. He announced that the remainder of the speeches of the evening would be from members of the Association, but he warned the speakers that they must not exceed the time limit of five minutes, and he called upon Fred Barteldes as one of the most able men in the room to hold the stop-watch.

In introducing the next speaker, Albert McCullough, President of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association, and Chairman of the Membership Committee of the A. S. T. A., Mr. Stokes pleasantly referred to the fact that Mr. McCullough had enjoyed two terms of office as President of the American Seed Trade Association, but those terms were twenty years apart. It was difficult for the new members to believe that Mr. McCullough from his youthful appearance could have served two terms twenty years apart, and especially when they saw the active manner in which he moved about. It is especially embarrassing for the reporter to attempt to condense Mr. McCullough's speech in a few sentences, since the manner of the speech played as great a part as the actual language itself. As usual, Mr. McCullough made a pleasing impression and left his hearers in a good humor and ready to listen to the next man who came on.

J. C. Vaughan, another past president of the Association, was next called on, and spoke briefly as follows: "Mr. Toastmaster, ladies and gentlemen, it is something over twelve years, Mr. Green tells me, since the Chicago people had the pleasure of entertaining the American Seed Trade Association. They say that 'Absence makes the heart grow fonder.' I want to assure you in behalf of the Chicago people that while we much enjoyed your meeting, that is, those of us who remember it, at the Chicago Athletic Association some thirteen or fourteen years ago, we are enjoying tonight, I believe, as many times more that pleasure as the number of years intervening in having you all with us again, both the older members and all the younger and newer men who are coming on, together with the many ladies that are with us tonight." (Applause.)

"You know there is an old saying that they who go away are happier than those left behind; so I believe it is with those who entertain, they are more blest in the giving than those who receive. I want to assure you for the Chicago people that we are awfully glad to have you with us now, as we always are to have you here. I hardly know what I can say to you at this time. I must confess that the Vaughan family are never able to support more than one speaker at a time—I mean with oratorical power. At the Athletic Association banquet I had the honor of being your toastmaster, and at that time had the support of my better half, now sitting at my left, and of all the talent that I could secure from my young sons who were then at college. With this combined support I managed to pull through that affair. Later on the Woman's Club became prominent in the west, and Mrs. Vaughan needed all the support she could obtain from the Vaughan family when she became President of the Woman's Club. Still later, at the last convention you made my son your president, and the Vaughan family rallied again to furnish you all that we could offer. So you surely must not expect much further from me." (Applause.)

Lester L. Morse of San Francisco, California, was next introduced by the toastmaster as one of the most popular members, and he told a story of his boyhood Sunday school days when he derived his first ideas of the New Jerusalem. When later on he visited the World's Fair in 1893 in Chicago and saw the magnificent creations of architectural genius there he could not help but connect them with his early impressions, and he had never been able since to separate the idea of Chicago from the New Jerusalem. He added that the California people of the Golden Gate hoped to borrow the New Jerusalem idea in their Panama Exhibition celebration in 1915, and he extended to the Association a very cordial invitation to come out to San Francisco and walk its golden streets on that occasion. He was glad to have had this experience of seeing how Chicago entertained and felt that they had set a pace that San Francisco would find it hard to equal, but they would do their best.

Toastmaster Stokes complimented Mr. Morse on the modesty of the Californians and called for a few airs from the orchestra to relieve the tension, and to smooth the way for "Happy Charlie," or Charles D. Boyles, of The Albert Dickinson Company, who, he declared, was equal to handling any subject from automobiles to onion sets. Mr. Boyles began his oration by a feeling reference to the uncertainties of the blue grass seed market, and having covered that subject he concluded that there was little else to say, and sat down. The toastmaster by way of variety next called for a representative of the canning industry, Thomas Scott of the Chisholm-Scott Company, Cadiz, Ohio, but there was no response, until finally the silence was broken by a voice which said "He beat it." The toastmaster inquired, "How about the other gentleman, Mr. Gorell?" And the same voice replied, "He is an also-ran." The toastmaster retorted: "We ought to have canned them."

Henry W. Wood of Richmond, Va., was called upon as a representative of the Sunny Southland, and in rising said that he had hoped to have remained one of the "silent majority." His heart had been cheered by the warmth of applause that had greeted an old familiar southern melody earlier in the evening, and he was sure that the pathos and beauty of the southern melodies always had a pronounced effect upon any audience. This led him further to the reflection that the Southern melodies had played a peculiar part in molding the character of the Southern people and giving to them that love of the sentimental which is their recognized characteristic. He believed that such music played its part in stimulating brotherly feeling and strengthening the social instinct. He referred in terms of commendation to the work that the Chicago Association of Commerce was doing as it had been recounted by Mr. Barlow earlier in the evening, and believed that if similar work were done in Richmond that instead of its being a city of 172,000 population, it would in time rival the Chicago population of two million and a half. He felt that he had learned a great deal from Mr. Barlow, and hoped to be able to carry the good work back to his home city.

Arthur Bryan Clark, President of the Everett B. Clark Seed Company, was the next speaker. Mr. Clark referred in a happy manner to the hospitality enjoyed during the afternoon at the South Shore Country Club as one of the many manifestations of Chicago hospitality. He said that ever since the oratorical powers of Retiring President Vaughan had been demonstrated at Marblehead a year ago, when he cast such a poetic glamour over onion sets, he himself had felt outclassed and disqualified as an after-dinner speaker, and he deplored the fact that the company who were privileged to sit under the spell of such orators were to be subjected to the feeble imitation thereof that he himself could present. He felt like emulating the example of the gallant young gentleman in a crowded street car when there entered a very corpulent lady, and the young man promptly rose and announced: "I will be one of three to give the lady a seat!" Mr. Clark referred to the harmony characterizing the deliberations of the American Seed Association which stood out in sharp contrast with the recent political convention in Chicago and the one then on at Baltimore. He drew a parallel between the early pioneer who broke the ground, the militiamen who protected the early settlements and the legislators who formed the political autonomy of the early commonwealths of this country, to the grower, the dealer and the planter.

The grower was the pioneer who in the face of great hardships and harassed by the vagaries of the weather clerk brought the seed to perfection. The dealer was the soldier who fought the good fight of trying to make the seeds of the grower satisfactory to the planter. He wasn't quite sure what the parallel was between the lawmaker and the planter, but the lawmaker had planted our institutions firmly in the political soil of the new world just as the planter must plant the seeds that he obtains from the dealer. Mr. Clark closed by referring to the great value of the Association's work in bringing isolated seedsmen together and teaching them to interchange ideas and experiences and to get out of the notion that ideas will ever grow so long as they are kept in the innermost recess of the mind. They must be planted in the soil of social environment before they will fructify, following out the Biblical injunction, "Give and it shall be given unto you." It is a good thing to get together and engender, Mr. Clark said, what Mr. Wood referred to as brotherly feeling. Certainly nothing but good could come from such experiences.

Theodore Cobb was the next speaker. Mr. Cobb, in rising, said that he was generally seen and not heard, and that the talking for his firm was generally done by their worthy secretary, who had a reputation as a silver-tongued orator. (Needless to say, Mr. Cobb referred to Kirby White.) He then paid his respects to the beautiful ladies and their gallant escorts, and wound up with an Irish story which was received with laughter.

L. L. May, of St. Paul, Minnesota, made the next response, and paid a tribute to the royal entertainment extended by the Chicago seedsmen, which he said had got him to wondering as to what the "overhead charges" were. He only regretted that Mrs. May had been prevented by illness from participating in the pleasure of the automobile ride, banquet, and other delightful functions, but she had commissioned him to express her regrets and she would enjoy the pleasure second-hand when he got home to relate his experiences to her. His son was also unable to be present, but he had with him his youngest sister, who was enjoying the occasion greatly, and joined with him in appreciation of Chicago hospitality.

The toastmaster now complained that he was having difficulty in checking the flow of oratory. It was easy to turn it on, but somewhat hard to shut it off, yet he was fearful that he could not, owing to the lateness of the hour, call on all whom he would like to. He insisted, however, on hearing from E. L. Page, the immediate past president of the organization. Mr. Page declared that he would with great regret surrender his allotted five minutes to his successor, President Vaughan. Mr. Vaughan declared that he had already made his speech and gave way to Kirby White. Mr. White swore that Mr. Vaughan had spent four hours in preparing his speech and that Theodore Cobb had been preparing for the occasion for a year, and that he didn't believe he could add anything to what had been said by those two able gentlemen. The toastmaster yielded gracefully to the situation, and after complimenting the company upon their exceeding patience and courtesy to the speakers announced that the exercises of the evening would close with a standing vote of appreciation for the magnificent hospitality of the Chicago hosts. The company thereupon rose and drank a toast to the Chicago seedsmen, and the toastmaster rang down the curtain on a most pleasurable and enjoyable function.

Vice-President Holmes.

Harry Leonard Holmes, vice-president and general manager of the Holmes Seed Company, Harrisburg, Pa., and the newly elected first vice-president of the American Seed Trade Association, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., April 10, 1859. His early years were passed in the city of Pittsburgh, where his father was paying teller in a bank. In 1876 he moved to Philadelphia, where for a time he was engaged in the printing trade. In 1878 he entered the employ of W. Atlee Burpee. He filled various positions until he became manager of this house and continued in Mr. Burpee's employ until 1895, when he went to Harrisburg and established a little seed business of his own at Second and Chestnut streets. This business was incorporated in 1902. With Mr. Holmes as general manager it has grown and grown and then grown some more and is still growing, so that from the initial business during the first year of $10,000.00 it will require to correctly estimate the business during 1912 six figures on the proper side of the decimal point. A picture of Mr. Holmes graces the opening of this little sketch, and proves that truthfulness and honor that are in evidence in this picture have been the fundamental reasons for the enviable success in this business which has been achieved almost solely by his own efforts. Mr. Holmes is a bang-up salesman, and an affable, courteous gentleman—a true friend and a man of the first grade of ability in the seed business. His success as the head of the business which bears his name is in all probability prophetic of what he will endeavor to accomplish for the American Seed Trade Association as its vice president.

Spring Business.

Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., Boston.—We wish to say that there is no comparison whatever in the seed business of 1912 and 1911, as this year it greatly exceeds that of 1911 in the orders by mail, cash over the counter, and the charge accounts on our books. We are well pleased with this season's business.

Burnett Bros., New York.—Our business has been very satisfactory. At the present time we can not say what our increase over last season has actually been but feel that it has been considerable.

Miss Mary E. Martin, Floral Park, N. Y.—Business was a little slow in January and February, but March, April and May did very good. In 1911 we got it a little earlier.

STORM BREAKS HOT SPELL.

Extremely hot weather prevailed during the past week, but it was to some extent broken on the night of July 14 by a violent storm. So great was the rainfall that railway traffic into the city was for the time being made unsafe. In some fields and gardens situated on sloping ground there was damage from washouts to crops. There was considerable funeral work during the last week and a few weddings and luncheons that called for decorative work. There is a fair amount of stock of all kinds and the asters are now beginning to come in. In roses American Beauty and Radiance seem to have the call in the matter of usefulness.

NOTES.

J. H. Cameron, for the past six years a trusted employe of the U. S. Botanic Garden, has accepted a position with the Argentine Republic and will soon sail for Buenos Aires, where he will work in the experiment office of the Botanic Garden.

C. Leslie Reynolds, favorably mentioned in our notes of last week as successor to W. R. Smith, received the appointment July 13, and is now superintendent of the United States Botanic Garden. A. F. F.

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

The regular meeting of the society was held in Greenwich Friday, July 12. Two members were elected and two propositions received. Sweet peas were in evidence and exhibitors were awarded a vote of thanks. The annual outing of the society will take place August 7 at Edward's Hotel, Rye Beach. Particulars and tickets can be procured until July 25 from the outing committee secretary, W. J. Sealey, Port Chester, N. Y.

OSCAR E. ADDOR, Cor. Sec'y.

INDIANA, PA.—S. Taylor Shaffer and Earl H. Snyder both of Punxsutawney have purchased land near here on which they will erect four commercial greenhouses. Two will be built this fall and two more next spring. Each will be 30x150 feet.

Must Not be Compared with the flimsy Trimardeau

It is much larger and of good substance; the immense flowers of 3½ to 4 inch s are of perfect form; every tint and shade is produced in striking combinations and endless variations of beautiful colors and markings. The stock plants are most critically selected. It is rich with shades of brown, bronze, red, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

Christmas=Flowering Sweet Peas

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once.

Mr. William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great sweet pea specialist sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stocks of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliness of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3,000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

The varieties preceded by * we can make immediate delivery.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. F. Hall, Boston, Mass., President; C. West, Irondequoit, N. Y., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, 508 Walker Building, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; M. L. Rustenik, Cleveland, O., Treasurer.

ON June 29 at the London docks seasonable shipments of mushroom spawn were being held up, with a prospect of from two to three weeks delay.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, July 15.—Mushrooms, 25 cents to 40 cents per pound; lettuce, 20 cents to 25 cents per box; cucumbers, 35 cents to 45 cents per dozen.

The Striped Melon Bug.

This is a formidable enemy; in fact he is the hardest insect to control we have to deal with. He is alert and cunning, as sly as a fox, and has a tendency to colonize which makes him very destructive. We wish to emphasize at this time that the wilt disease of melons, cucumbers and squashes is attributed to these bugs, as they lay their eggs at the root of the plants and the resulting worm enters the stem and cuts off sap circulation. We must therefore fight this enemy if we want success with vines. Of all the remedies we have tried the best is air-slaked lime and good fresh tobacco dust mixed half and half. We use this with the hand, throwing it forcefully into a hill, the aim being to unsettle the bugs and get the powder on their underside. By using this mixture faithfully we can drive the bug off the place and later on we use pure tobacco dust around the root to kill any of the worms that may have hatched. The greatest danger is in rainy weather, which washes our dust off, and allows the bugs a chance to pounce down and do much damage in a remarkably short time. We have known growers using a cheese cloth or wire cloth cover for each hill to be on the safe side.

PREPARING FOR FALL.

The hot wave has done much to subdue business in this locality. The one thought is to be comfortable these stifling days—the thermometer is around 95°. Not much in the way of entertainment is going on. Card parties and swimming parties do not call for many flowers. But the season has been rather longer than usual. The cool weather in the early summer kept up the sale of flowers and also kept the flowers in good condition. Many of our florists are getting ready now for autumn—drying off the plants and resting them up preparatory to tying down and pruning them into shape. By this I mean those that are going to carry their plants over another year in the same beds. Carnations are looking fine in the fields. Many are planting them in the houses now.

NOTES.

About twelve or fourteen florists and their families will attend the Chicago convention in August. All expect to have a royal time. This time last season Baltimore was thinking about the convention which was held here and which was enjoyed by the home people and we hope by the visiting delegates also. We hope we may be honored again before long.

H. F. Michell, of the Henry F. Michell Co. of Philadelphia, visited the florists in this community last week.

The florists' club of Baltimore go on their outing July 18, by boat to Chesapeake City. B.

Cleveland.

LITTLE CHANGE IN MARKET.

Market conditions have varied but a trifle since last week's report. Stock is still very plentiful and the demand none too good. However, sweet peas and carnations have been in better demand the latter part of the week than for some time. A few asters are arriving, but most of them are short stems. The following is a part of the week's offerings on the local market: Candidum lilies (storage stock), Easter lilies, water lilies (all colors), peonies (storage stock good), sweet peas, swainsonia, lily of the valley, roses (all colors), carnations (all grades and colors), Salpiglossis, Centuria, yellow daisies (blackeyed Susans), Scabiosa, Canterbury bells, asters, dagger and fairy fern, adiantum and asparagus plumosa and sorengeri.

NOTES.

John Kirchner, Tim Smith, Charles Kirchner and George W. Smith motored to Akron in the Smith machine Wednesday. While there they were the guests of Henry Heefe and brother. They visited the lakes and camping places around Akron and had a very enjoyable time, returning late at night.

Miss Evans, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., is away on a long vacation, visiting Oregon and other western points.

The city of Cleveland is advertising for bids for greenhouses to be erected at the Warrensville farm.

Chas. Graham and family are motoring in Canada on an extended vacation.

F. Burger is the latest addition to the auto squad. B.

The Manufacturer Says.

In a paper read by Prof. Taubehaus of the Delaware Agricultural Experimental Station on sweet pea diseases, before the meeting of the American Sweet Pea Society in Boston, on Saturday last, he stated that while he had tried many remedies to control what is commonly known as wilt and mildew which affects the sweet peas, he had, however, not yet found anything which would give satisfactory results as a cure.

The writer approached the speaker after the meeting to inquire of him whether he had ever tried the fungicide Fungine. He admitted that he had never heard of it until that day, but had been approached by several gardeners who had spoken favorably of this product and told him of their results obtained, and he expressed a willingness to try out this material to learn for himself of the merits of Fungine.

I will say Fungine is used today by men who have been prize-winners at the two important sweet pea shows, here in the East, and who do not hesitate to endorse it highly for the blights which at times overtake the sweet pea plants.

You undoubtedly will give space to the article read by Prof. Taubehaus, and I ask that you give some space to this communication to avoid any misapprehension going abroad that there are no remedies today for the sweet pea diseases. I do not believe that it was the speaker's intention to create this impression, but what he really meant was that he had not yet come across a remedy. I believe that after his next year's experiments he will readily report otherwise.

National Association of Gardeners.

The summer meeting of the board of directors of the National Association of Gardeners was held in Horticultural Hall, Boston, Mass., July 13. After disposing of the routine business before the session and deciding on holding the annual convention during the early part of November, the exact date and place to be announced later, adjournment followed to enable the members of the National Association present to attend the meeting of the American Sweet Pea Society, to which they had been earlier invited. In the evening the members were entertained at an informal banquet, together with the members of the Sweet Pea Society, by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston. On Sunday, the day following, the members of the association were the guests of the Boston Park commission. Automobiles were provided and a tour of the city's parkways and parks with a visit to the Arnold Arboretum took up most of the day. The newly-elected superintendent of parks, James P. Shea, entertained the visitors at luncheon at one of the park inns. Our members returned to their homes impressed with Boston's hospitality.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Fillington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y. Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

CHARLES WILLIS WARD has interesting articles on "Our Trees" and "Pine Woods and Cypress Glades" in recent issues of the Illustrated Outdoor World.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—H. C. Irish, formerly of the Missouri Botanic Garden, has joined Henry C. Muskopf to form the Muskopf & Irish Co., landscape architects and engineers, with offices at 709-11 Title Guaranty building, Seventh and Chestnut streets.

BANGOR, ME.—The partnership in the raising and selling of nursery stock, existing between Robert F. McCabe and John C. McCabe, known as McCabe Bros., has been dissolved by mutual consent. The business will be continued by R. F. McCabe at Machiasport.

WESTMINSTER, VT.—The Connecticut Valley Orchard Co., organized, among other things, for the purpose of dealing in nursery stock and fertilizer, has filed articles of association. The capital stock is $50,000 divided into fifty shares, and the stockholders are Ernest Y. Tuthill, George A. Dascomb, Mrs. Geo. A. Dascomb and J. Dascomb.

DULL SEASON BEGINS.

Business continues normal, which at this season means dull; outside of the usual routine of funeral work or counter sales there is nothing doing to cause brain fag among the florists. The wedding of Miss Jennie Crocker, the esteemed patroness of the flower shows, which will take place soon, promises to be the event of the season. A local grower is said to have booked an order for orchids that runs into four figures. The pretty custom of presenting flowers to fair young graduates has noticeably increased the last few years in the grammar schools of this city, and while the flowers used are not usually expensive the exercises take place at a season when flowers are plentiful and any avenue for their disposal is welcome. The week opens with all kinds of florist stocks plentiful, roses and carnations dominating and only fair in quality. American Beauties, firsts, are quoted at $1.50 a dozen. Killarneys, Richmonds and Brides bring 50 cents a dozen. Carnations average 20 cents a dozen and valleys are plentiful at $3.00 a 100. Good dahlias average 50 cents a dozen, a few specials bringing 75 cents and $1.00. The same figures apply to gladioli, the specials being excellent.

CLUB MEETING.

A well attended meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society was held Saturday evening, July 6. Vice-President William Kettlewell presided in the absence of President Rossi, who is in Portland, Ore., attending a convention of the Elks. Fred Henkel of Burlingame and Geo. Paulson of Golden Gate Park, newly elected members, were introduced to the society.

The Mac Rorie & McLaren Co. exhibited a remarkable specimen plant of Vanda sanderiana. Standing four feet high, well balanced with six leaders well clothed and each surmounted with a fine spike of high colored bloom aggregating 63 blossoms, it appeared worthy of the 100 points awarded it by the judges. H. Flath of the "Ferneries," showed a basket grown asparagus over 3 ft. in diameter which received 95 points. The plant shown is a sport of the Sprengerii type and originated in the "Ferneries" about 3 years ago. It is more compact, graceful and far more beautiful than A. sprengerii and is surely a "comer." The entertainment committee was instructed to arrange for a grand smoker to be tendered next month as a "send off" to the society's president, Angelo J. Rossi, and to those sterling members, Dan Mac Rorie and H. Plath, who are going to the convention of the S. A. F. and O. H.

NOTES.

Despite the high cost of living and the low cost of flowers there is much activity in the building line, as is shown by the four new houses building for R. Grove at San Leandro, six more at the Hayashi Nursery at Elmhurst, four new houses for adiantum and baby roses for young Rocco at Elmhurst, besides the reconstruction of three houses by H. Plath at the "Ferneries," and three houses on Schwerin's place.

The Pacific Nursery, the oldest establishment in this city, is being moved by the owner, H. Kempf, to Colma. The present site is included in the grounds of the Panama Pacific Exposition.

R. Schmidt, the popular rose grower, has left the Sanborn Nursery Co. and is putting up a range of houses for the growing of maidenhair ferns and roses. He has the best wishes of all.

It is a pleasure to note that Ed. Schwerin is rapidly recovering from the illness or injury that puzzled his physicians. Ed. has evidently solved it by getting well.

The Serveau place has been purchased by the Rossi & Bros. Co.

Visitors: Mr. Rahn of Rahn & Herbert is in town; T. Wright is visiting friends before returning to his home in Los Angeles. T.

READ WHAT THE USERS SAY ABOUT KROESCHELL BOILERS

The Kroeschell Is the Most Wonderful Heater of All.

I think the Kroeschell is even a better boiler than you recommend, as I have fired a good many other types of boilers, and have never seen a boiler heat up as quickly and as easily as the Kroeschell. A great many of the florists around here have called to see the boiler and are anxious to know where it was built and who built same. They all agree that it is a fine piece of work and the most wonderful heater they have ever seen.

FRANK H. HAMILTON, Robbinsdale, Minn.

Heats up Some, and Quick.

Gentlemen: I thought I had better let you know something about the heating plant you sold me. Well, we had a blizzard here the last three days and nights and the thermometer went down to 11° below zero. Most everything in town froze up and people lost all their plants, but we are doing business at the old stand. We had no trouble to keep up the water in boiler to 170 and maintained growing temperatures in houses with part of the piping turned off. We are sure we can hold the temperature at 20 below zero. This boiler and piping system surely heats some, and quick. Yours very truly,

W. R. MAXWELL, Alva, Okla.

Works Like a Charm with Soft Coal.

The No. 2 Kroeschell Boiler has been in operation for some time, using soft or bituminous coal, and it works like a charm. We are very much pleased with it indeed.

J. T. LOVETT, Little Silver, N. J.

Try the Kroeschell First, It's Ahead of Them All.

I have had eight or ten other types of boilers. The Kroeschell is the best I have ever used. Your boiler heats the water very quick; almost as fast as steam.

H. K. LEWIS, Dorothy, N. J.

Kroeschell Boiler, Generator and Heating System: Insure Perfect Results.

Having promised you a letter, as soon as we passed through a good fair test, I consider it now almost timely. We had the thermometer 18° below and we've just gone through a blizzard had enough for most any season, and am very well pleased to inform you that our heating system was equal to the occasion. So far as we have gone, am certainly well satisfied with the Kroeschell Boiler, Generator and Heating System.

J. E. MATTHEWSON, Sheboygan, Wis.

Saves One-Third Coal

"After two years' experience with an internally fired boiler, I am of the opinion that the Kroeschell Boiler is one of the most practical and easiest heating boilers, as well as most saving in coal, of any boiler in the market.

It has all other boilers beat all the way through. With the waterback and the general construction of the boiler, there is no waste of heat. The boiler is easy to fire and easy to take care of. With proper firing, it saves about one-third of the coal generally used.

RANDOLPH & McCLEMENTS, Successors to has. T. Siebert. Baum & Beatty Sts., Pittsburg.

The above is an illustration of the cross and side view of the improved heating and bench construction for greenhouses and conservatories.

This new system, when well understood, will satisfy anyone that this is the best arrangement for economy and gives better service than anything known of before in this line, whether for new greenhouse construction or reconstructing new benches in old houses. It was invented by Michael Winandy after he had been in the greenhouse construction business for over 35 years and he was always held as an expert in greenhouse construction.

The new invention was patented April 9, 1912, and by right of this patent the only manufacturer and constructor of this new system for the United States is the M. Winandy Co., Mfgs.

During the last 10 months we have built 45 new greenhouses, covering a space of 200,000 square feet of glass, with this heating system and we can refer you to all these owners as to the truthfulness of what we claim for the new system.

The Truth About Boilers

It Being The First of Three Frank Talks

BUYING a boiler for that greenhouse of yours is a pretty serious matter.

When you want heat you want it—that's one side. But you want it with the least care and least coal expenditure—that's the other side.

Every boiler man claims his "the wonder of the age"—"the modern coal saver." Who and what can you believe?—that's the question. Don't believe—settle it for yourself—settle it by common sense deduction.

Let's take the kitchen range and the tea kettle for a talking comparison.

First, there's the fire itself; if it is shallow, it needs constant attention or it dies down; so is it only common sense that a boiler must have a deep fire pot if you want the fire to keep humming long intervals without attention. The Burnham's made that way.

Then there are the so-called "indirect surfaces;" which in a tea kettle is the part coming in contact with the flame—you know that the broader the bottom and shallower the water in a kettle, the more quickly it heats up. Exactly the same principle, in modified form, applies to an economical boiler.

With the Burnham boiler there is at least three times more fire surface in proportion to the amount of with yourself and send for our catalog and be mulling things over in your mind?

And so this is the tea kettle.

And this The Burnham as it is from the outside, looking in water than there is in a tea kettle. On looking carefully at the interior view of the boiler you will see this result is accomplished by deep corrugations, or water-ways, which the fire surrounds on three sides. These water-ways carrying a thin, narrow body of water, that heats quickly just as does the small amount of water in the kettle.

If it were possible to put some hollow pipes through the kettle leading from the fire to the chimney of the range, the water would heat still more quickly from the same amount of coal burned, because a still greater amount of heat would be coming in contact with the water—These tubes would be called indirect surfaces. In the Burnham the heated gases do not at once reach the chimney, but first must pass back and forth through water lined flue openings, extending three times the length of the boiler, giving to it tremendous indirect surfaces.

These flue openings are called "The Burnham's Fire Travel," and the longer the fire travel, the shorter your coal bill. Burnhams are made for Hot Water or Steam.

Next week—another frank talk. In the meantime, why not be frank

Where We Stand on Boilers

FOR ranges up to a certain size there is no boiler as economical as a Cast Iron Sectional Boiler. —Economical to handle and install.

- Economical in fuel.
- Economical because there is no retubing expense.

Some cast iron boilers are, of course, more economical than others. Our new improved model, after the severe test of last winter, has proved itself to be so much better than we anticipated, that we are almost inclined to blow a little about it.

On second thought, however, you better write us and we will write you fully concerning it.

Now, a word about Wrought Iron Boilers—they are all right in their place—but that place is not in ranges of moderate size.

- They are expensive to install,
- expensive to run with a small fire,
- expensive to keep the tubes in repair.

Our Cast Iron Boilers connected in battery give you a control for the varying requirements of light firing that you can't possibly have with one wrought boiler.

Large wrought boilers require expensive chimneys.

Write us and give us a chance to thresh this question out with you.

We have some facts and figures that will surprise you.

We will freely advise you which boiler is best for your particular needs.
