Demonstrative Welcome To Princess Louise on First Northern Cruise

Northern British Columbians and Alaskans Warmly Greet Advent of New Coastwise Liner On Skagway Route; Remarkable Scenes at Ketchikan and Juneau Demonstrate Popularity of C. P. R. Service to Northland.

Since the romantic days of '98 innumerable vessels have traversed the waters of the famous Inside Passage to Alaska, but to the S. S. Princess Louise falls the notable honor of being accepted by British Columbia and Alaska as the Queen of the Northern Seas. The Princess Louise returned to Victoria last evening after her maiden round voyage to Alaska ports. It was a voyage that will live long in the memory of Northlanders.

Always sincere, the Alaskans welcomed the Princess Louise on her initial trip to the Far North with extended arms. Nothing finer, nothing more graceful in marine architecture and nothing embracing the comfort and super-excellence of service of the newest addition to the Canadian Pacific coast service ever churned the waters of the northern coast. On her maiden trip just completed the Princess Louise represented to the Alaskan more than the numerous excellent features contained within her steel hull and housework, her speed and magnificent appointments.

Link With North. They realized that she was a dependable link in the future development of the great northland. They are conscious of the fact that by placing such a fine type of ship on the Skagway route the Canadian Pacific line is giving tangible expression to its confidence in Alaska and the development of the northern trade.

The Alaskans are a most appreciative people. The Canadian Pacific Railway has many friends in Alaska. It has probably done more than any other transportation concern for the North. It was sentiment in these channels that seized the Alaskans when the Princess Louise ploughed her way northward beyond Prince Rupert to Ketchikan, Wrangell, Juneau and Skagway, to extend to the new coast liner the most remarkable demonstration of welcome witnessed at those ports since the memorable days of '98.

Juneau's Welcome. At Juneau northbound, the entire populace turned out. As the Louise swung up the fine type of ship on the coast thriving mining centres of Treadwell and Thane, it was seen (Concluded on page 3.)

FIGHTING IN NORTH IRELAND SEVERAL DEATHS

Belfast, May 28.—Sharp fighting between members of the "Irish Republican Army" and the Ulster special constables occurred last night along the boundary between Counties Donegal and Fermanagh, in the Felek district. Five "republicans" are reported to have been killed and another wounded. One constable was killed.

The fighting followed the action of the Ulster police in taking possession of Belleek village and Magherafenns Castle, nearby. Special police from the Belleek fort were ambushed and compelled to abandon their motor car, the driver of which was killed during the heavy firing.

Crown forces last evening carried out an exhaustive search of houses in streets in the neighborhood of Falls Road. About twenty-five men were arrested and some ammunition was seized. The prisoners included a picket of the "Irish Republican Army."

"ARMY" MARCHES TO GANANOQUE

Unemployed Veterans Move on Toward Ottawa. Kingston, May 29.—The unemployed "army" of ex-soldiers who are marching to Ottawa to lay before the Government the claims and conditions of the veterans who seek employment spent last night in this city and left this morning for Gananoque, where they will put up this evening. The marchers left stronger than when they entered Kingston, twenty-five recruits having been secured here.

The rest of the marchers, left Kingston in charge of Mr. Riley, second in command, "General" Macdonald, the commander, having been brought to the Kingston General Hospital from Odessa, suffering with sciatica. He was still at the hospital this morning, although his condition was somewhat improved.

In Good Order. Interviewed at the hospital, "General" Macdonald said: "We have marched twenty-two miles every day since we left Toronto. I received a letter from Major-General Williams, Commissioner of the Provincial Police of Ontario, congratulating me and my comrades on the excellent order and discipline of the march and the men."

The marchers say they are not attaching blame to any particular department of the Government. Their plight, they say, is partly due to the consequence of the war, and all they expect to do at Ottawa is to show the Government its effects on returning soldiers.

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF I.O.D.E. OPENS

Memorial Cross Unveiled at Mountain View Cemetery

Lieut.-Governor Officially at Ceremony (By Times Staff Correspondent) Vancouver, B. C., May 29.—The opening session of the annual meeting of the National Chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire today was devoted to the registration of delegates, of whom there are some hundreds from all over Canada, a meeting of the national executive and conference of educational secretaries and echoes of education.

Memorial Service. Prominent members of the I.O.D.E. participated in the impressive memorial services at the returned soldiers' cemetery yesterday, this touching ceremony being observed in connection with the twenty-second annual meeting of the National Chapter.

Thousands assembled in the beautiful cemetery at Mountain View, the standards of the order, adding a striking note of color. All of the graves of the dead heroes had been beautifully decorated with flowers for the occasion, the public adding to the tributes.

Cross of Sacrifice. The most impressive feature of the ceremony was the unveiling of the I.O.D.E. by the Imperial War Graves (Canada) Commission.

The Lieutenant-Governor, who was accompanied by Mrs. Nichol, unveiled the monument, accompanying the act with a few well chosen words, the huge crowd standing with bowed heads.

Miss Joan Arnold, National President of the I.O.D.E., accepted the memorial in the name of the Municipal Chapter of Vancouver.

Rev. J. S. Henderson read the prayer, and the lesson was read by Rev. J. H. Wright.

GOLD FEVER IN NEW SOUTH WALES

SEVEN YEARS

British ex-M.P. Guilty of Misappropriating Funds

Penal Servitude Is Ruling of Judge

London, May 29.—Horatio Bottomley, former publisher of John Bull, was found guilty to-day by a jury on a charge of misappropriation of funds belonging to the Victory Bond Club. He was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude.

Appeal. Immediately after sentence was passed Bottomley served notice that he intended to appeal the case.

He has been one of the most prominent and picturesque figures in the public eye for many years, principally as editor of John Bull.

In summing up the case, the judge pointed out that the jurors must dismiss from their minds the defendant's appeal regarding work he had done for soldiers' funds, consider the facts and determine whether the money he had obtained was used fraudulently or not.

Quick Decision. It took the jury barely half an hour to return the verdict of guilty.

This is the latest of several charges of fraud that have been made against Bottomley. Years ago he figured in several notorious fraud cases, none of which, however, resulted in conviction.

The Bottomley case has been exciting intense interest in Great Britain for several months since the defendant, formerly a member of Parliament, first was charged with fraudulently converting funds for the Victory Bond Club, a war-time organization of which he was the founder and president.

When Bottomley was specifically accused of misappropriating £5,000, but the prosecution alleged that of £493,000 he was declared to have handled, only £23,000 could be accounted for.

On Order. Questioned regarding the missing of Sinn Feinners on the Donegal border, the Colonial Secretary said no impediment would be placed by the British Government against the Sinn Feinners, adding that the crossing of the United boundary by British forces would be a matter of internal security to be considered first by the Cabinet.

Support Craig. Mr. Churchill said the British commander-in-chief in Northern Ireland had been instructed to support Premier Craig of Ulster, but he explained these instructions did not apply to the invasion of territory outside of the six counties. He refused to state whether the Cabinet would consider the question of crossing the border.

Conference. London, May 29.—Following a meeting of the Irish Committee of the Cabinet this morning the British and Irish representatives were called to meet at three o'clock this afternoon with Premier Lloyd George presiding.

It was stated definitely this morning that Winston Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies, this afternoon in the House of Commons would deal with the progress of the negotiations.

Comments. The newspapers again express uneasiness at the whole position and reiterate their insistence that the treaty must be ratified and observed, and that the agreement between the British and De Valera parties must be shown to be innocuous in so far as the treaty is concerned.

White Plains, N. Y., May 29.—Active search began to-day for a mysterious woman said to have offered $500 to a youth in a restaurant to commit a murder in the Ward home in New Rochelle. This search and efforts on the part of authorities to locate "Ross," reputed leader of the blackmail ring that squeezed $30,000 from Walter S. Ward, according to Ward's story, before he shot and killed Clarence Peters, mark the latest developments in the most sensational criminal case in Westchester County in twenty-five years.

Corroboration. A check-up by New York police bore out the story told them by a waiter in a Broadway restaurant and transmitted to the police here that a pretty young woman dressed in black, had taken him to New Rochelle, pointed out the Ward house and promised $500 if he would enter the house with her and shoot the person she pointed out to him.

He refused on the pretext that he was not prepared, and promised to meet her Saturday night. He went with his case in the police, who watched for the woman, but she failed to appear. Other employees in the place where the water works corroborated his story.

BRITISH LEAVE TROOPS IN DUBLIN

Will Not Withdraw Men Stationed There

Conferees Again Meet in British Capital

London, May 29.—Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies, told the House of Commons to-day that Great Britain did not intend at present to withdraw all her troops from Dublin.

He said that owing to the state of the discussions now proceeding, his promised statement regarding Ireland would be deferred until to-morrow.

The Secretary added that in view of the gravity and urgency of the issues already disclosed, Parliament was entitled to the fullest information available in order that the House might debate the situation before the Whitehall recess.

Complex Situation. It was authoritatively stated this afternoon in connection with a joint meeting of the British and Irish signatories of the treaty was not to be interpreted as an ill omen. There was no indication, it was added, that any hitch had occurred. The delay was believed to be due mainly to the long consideration which the Cabinet had to give the complex matters involved.

Questions. A lively debate followed Mr. Churchill's announcement that he might not speak on the Irish situation until Wednesday. A member asked from the floor:

"Will he assure the House that the British Government will insist on all the members returned to the new Irish Parliament when it assembles taking the oath of allegiance prescribed by the treaty?"

This and other questions were parried by Mr. Churchill, who said it would be better to make his statement to-morrow.

On Order. Questioned regarding the missing of Sinn Feinners on the Donegal border, the Colonial Secretary said no impediment would be placed by the British Government against the Sinn Feinners, adding that the crossing of the United boundary by British forces would be a matter of internal security to be considered first by the Cabinet.

ROUND-THE-WORLD PLANE DAMAGED; DELAY CAUSED

Marseilles, May 29.—Major T. J. Blake was compelled to make a forced landing at Borley Park, just outside Marseilles, last evening, while on a flight from Lyons, in continuation of his attempt to fly around the world. The machine struck on rough ground, damaging the running gear and smashing the propeller. It was towed to the Miramio aviation club for repairs, and the flight probably will be delayed for several days.

Neither Major Blake nor either of his companions was injured.

BERLIN STATEMENT ON REPARATIONS

Reply Delivered to Commission in Paris

Communication Not Yet Made Public

Paris, May 29.—The German Government's reply to the Reparations Commission on the demands made by the commission in connection with reparations payments was delivered at the office of the commission at 5.48 o'clock this afternoon.

Although the commission planned to hold a session during the afternoon, it was said the reply might not be ready for that body to-day.

No decision had been reached on this point up to 4 p. m., nor as to when the reply would be made public.

Loan Opposed. Berlin, May 29.—Opposition is developing in industrial circles here to an international loan for Germany, based on the opinion that while it would for a short time stabilize exchange on marks, the ultimate effect would be to undermine German industry and force Germany out of the world markets.

WU'S FORCES MOVE ON MUKDEN

50,000 Men Pressing North into Manchuria

In South, Sun Yat Sen's Troops Win

Peking, May 29.—Fifty thousand of General Wu Pei Fu's troops are pushing northward with the intention of occupying Manchurian territory, say wireless advices from military observers at Chinwangtao. The possibility of an advance on Mukden, capital of Manchuria and seat of General Chang Tso Lin, independent Government, is indicated.

Dr. Wellington Koo, who arrived here yesterday afternoon following the resignation of Dr. W. W. Yen as Foreign Minister, has been offered the portfolio vacated by the latter, but has not yet accepted.

Join Wu's Forces. Harbin, Manchuria, May 29.—The soldiers of General Chang Tso Lin along the Chinese Eastern Railroad have mutinied and declared in favor of General Wu Pei Fu, who defeated Chiang in the recent battles around Peking. Almost the entire railroad is in the hands of troops who have revolted against the Manchurian dictator and are supporting General Wu, now in control in Chihli.

Severe fighting occurred at several stations along the railroad, resulting in the defeat of Chang Tso Lin's forces. The mutiny is spreading among the civil employees.

The latest news from South China came yesterday, when a Hongkong dispatch to the London Times said severe fighting had been in progress on the Kiangsi front.

Sun Yat Sen's main army was said to have captured Mei Lig L'ass, which the Kiangsi troops had heavily fortified.

The right wing of the army had captured Sin Fang and was pursuing the enemy toward Nankangshien, while the left wing had defeated the enemy on the Honan border and was marching toward Chang Yi.

Financial Crisis. Peking, May 29.—The Peking Government is facing a financial crisis. It announces that it is unable to meet its ordinary current expenses. A total of $5,000,000 is needed on the first of the month to pay the Government employees, but only $1,000,000 are left in the national treasury.

Re-assembling of the old Parliament, retirement of President Shih Chang, selection of a Provisional President and adoption of a permanent constitution are being urged by the Chinese newspapers throughout the country as means of solving the problems which are crowding upon the nation.

Recognizing that events are tending toward a crisis, the members of the old Parliament are assembling in Tientsin and Canton in anticipation that they soon will be called upon to assume direction of the country's affairs.

LEAGUE MAY FORCE ISSUE SHORTLY

Forty Names Are Added to the List

Police Await Authority to Prosecute

"We will await the result of the first three prosecutions in which fiat is to be granted, before taking any further action," stated Herbert Kent, Chairman of the Anti-Blue Sunday League to-day, in discussing the Sunday Closing Bill. Acquainted of the fact that forty places of business were open for commercial operation yesterday Mr. Kent expressed surprise to find that the names of only two and a half firms had not been taken.

"All or None." "We claim that the Police Commissioners are not vested with authority as to law enforcement, and even if they were as there is no authority in the Lord's Day Act itself to provide for a partial enforcement. It must be all or none," continued Mr. Kent, who pointed out that motor and boot hiring for pleasure, and even the operation of the street cars were prohibited by the act. In the case of the street cars, he held, exemptions were only permissible under the act where the transportation company was international or inter-provincial in character, which did not prevail here.

That the Anti-Blue Sunday League may lay an information against some class of Sunday business not now receiving the attention of the police commission, was indicated, when the question of total or partial enforcement would be placed shortly before the courts to decide in a test case.

Oliver Says Freight Rates Discriminate Against Province

Head of British Columbia Government Gives Further Statement of Views Before Commons Committee on Transportation Costs.

Ottawa, May 29.—(Canadian Press)—Hon. John Oliver, Premier of British Columbia, was again called when the special House Committee on Transportation Costs resumed this morning. On Friday Mr. Oliver had argued that the Crown's Nest Pass Agreement should be revised, else it would add to the discrimination already existing against British Columbia.

Mr. Oliver produced figures to support his claim that discrimination existed under present rates. The rate on grain from Morley, Alta., to Fort William, an equal distance. This was a discrimination of 25 per cent. in grain and flour. Some rates for equal distances discriminated by 75 per cent. to 100 per cent. against the westward movement. To bring back the Crown's Nest Pass Agreement would add 25 per cent. to this discrimination.

Mr. Oliver put in a number of statements covering other commodities to show heavy discriminations against British Columbia.

Answering W. J. Guter, Mr. Oliver said he thought the discrimination was fairly general against movement from the Pacific coast eastward. The bringing back of the Crown's Nest Pass Agreement, as the result of which would practically close out many British Columbia industries by closing them out of all but their own provincial market.

Dealing with Apples, Premier Oliver declared that his Province now must pay three times as much as Ontario to reach the market.

The industrial life of British Columbia is being strangled, he stated in considering this agreement.

Rates on other basic commodities apparently could not be reduced but might be increased if the Crown's Nest Agreement was restored without first being revised. The railway argument was all against restoration of the agreement.

The discrimination had existed both under the agreement and since its suspension. British Columbia had constantly sought redress and had been arguing this case for sixteen months past.

Cart Before Horses. Premier Oliver declared "with all respect that this hearing was like putting the cart before the horse." The committee should not have started work until it had a report from the Railway Commission, which body had all the evidence and statements in the case before it.

Mr. Oliver did not believe that railways or any other corporations could continue to operate at a loss.

Answering Hon. John A. Stewart, the British Columbia Premier said he believed that if a loss were followed by the bringing into effect of certain rates, it was better that the whole should be lost than any one section should be lost.

Restoration of the Crown's Nest Pass Agreement would mean millions of dollars of loss to the railways, according to the railway case. It also would mean many thousands of people would have to pay the rates.

Empty Cars. Hon. R. J. Manion asked if the movement of empty cars west from Fort William had not a bearing on westward rates. Mr. Oliver agreed with this. Some 1,000,000 bushels of wheat had gone to Vancouver last year and had lumber rates been reduced the railway companies would not have needed to carry empty cars eastward.

P.G.E. Mentioned. "You have a railway of your own in British Columbia," Mr. Manion asked. "Well, somebody in the Opposition called it a rabbit track," Mr. Oliver replied. (Concluded on page 2.)

HOTTENTOT TRIBE STAGES UPRISING

South African Government's Kindness Misunderstood

Aeroplanes Used in Southwest Africa

London, May 29.—(Canadian Press Cable)—A rebellion has broken out among the Hottentots in the Southwest Protectorate of Africa, according to a Reuter dispatch from Cape Town. The Government of the Union of South Africa has been trying to control it in a humane manner, in contrast with German iron-rules of former times. The outbreak is attributed to a tendency on the part of many natives to mistake kindness for weakness.

The insurgent tribe, called Bondels Warts, is comprised of degenerate numbering only 2,000 or 3,000, but inhabiting a country north of the Orange River difficult of access, and they have an unpleasant habit of poisoning water holes when expeditions are sent after them. It is expected, however, that a South African air force will have little difficulty in dealing with the rebels.

A Reuter dispatch from Windhoek, Southwest Africa, says a party of British has taken place between the police and a strong body of the rebels, according to official reports, and it is believed four Hottentots were killed and nine captured. One policeman was killed.

Sooke Harbor.—The sports held here May 24 were an unqualified success, many attending. A splendid programme of events had been arranged for by the committee—Messrs. T. Wright, Frank Gray, Charles Morris, Pete Grainger, Major George Nicholson and W. Miller Higgs—commencing with a baseball match and terminating with the "West Coast Derby." Special thought and care had been given in this programme for the enjoyment of the children of every age and there were races for boys and girls from seven years old and under up to fifteen years of age. Thanks to Mrs. Throup, Messrs. Ferray and Wilham and Mr. Ed. Milne of the local team, Mrs. Robert Campbell and Mrs. Miller Higgs, to Mr. Alfred Carmichael, of the Franco-Canadian Company, to Mr. David Spencer, Messrs. Scott & Peden, Peden Bros., Simon Leiser and others a fine assortment of useful articles, cups and trophies were offered for competition and keenly contested for.

race on the programme, and the horses got away splendidly together. It was won by Fred Gen, who secured the beautiful silver cup presented by Mr. Alfred Carmichael.

During the afternoon Mr. George Jackson's lunch provided visitors an opportunity to take a trip round the picturesque inner basin of Sooke Harbor. In the evening a very enjoyable dance was held at the Sooke Harbor Hotel to the strains of Heaton's orchestra. This was largely supported by local people as well as by numbers from Victoria.

The thanks of the Sooke Harbor Athletic Association, as well as the general public, are to the hard-working committee, every member of which gave much time and energy in arranging the many details in connection with this annual event; also to the Franco-Canadian company, which again extended permission for the use of the Hasencorn flats and to all who in any way contributed to making this year's meeting the success that it was.

PROGRESSIVES DEBATE ATTITUDE ON THE BUDGET

Ottawa, May 29.—Progressive members of the House this morning discussed at length the amendment to the budget offered by Sir Henry Drayton on Friday afternoon. It is believed here that the Progressives will oppose the Drayton amendment. It is also considered possible that they may offer amendments to the tariff resolutions when the latter are being discussed in committee.

TWO YEARS AGO!

In January, 1920, the Canadian National Railway applied to the Board of Railway Commissioners for permission to operate their Victoria-West Coast line from mileage 1.80 to mileage 52.5.

THE RIGHT COURSE.

Montreal has decided to send its Board of Trade to the Pacific Coast in order that its members may get a clearer idea of what the Prairie Provinces and British Columbia look like to the commercial eye.

If the excursionists are carefully selected so as to include leading figures in the Eastern financial and industrial world, who have not made anything but a cursory survey of the West, it should be possible for the people of this Province to show them a few things that will give them "furiously to think."

WHAT HAPPENED IN 1917.

In view of the fact that the removal or retention of the embargo against Canadian cattle will be thrashed out on the floor of the British House of Commons at an early date it is interesting to observe the manner in which both sides are conducting their propaganda.

In the meantime, and with a full appreciation of the present meaning of the embargo, official Canada will rest its case upon the attitude displayed by the Imperial War Conference when it discussed the subject in 1917.

Ernie—then Minister of Agriculture and plain Mr. Prothero—gave evidence that "the exclusion of Canadian stores could not be, and never had been, justified on the score of disease, and that stores would be agriculturally useful."

The following extracts from the discussion which took place at the 1917 gathering would appear to convey the idea of an understanding having been arrived at:

Chairman: Now the position is that the restriction is to be removed and the Board of Agriculture will take such steps as are necessary for this purpose, but upon the understanding that there being no tonnage, there cannot be any arrivals.

Mr. Rogers: I do not want to have any misunderstanding about it. If there is no tonnage, that follows.

Chairman: No, I do not want it to be a misunderstanding.

Sir Robert Borden: It cannot become effective because there is no tonnage.

Chairman: We cannot do it; I am quite sure that the Shipping Controller would stop it at once, and he would say: "We cannot let live cattle come, because they take up too much room."

Sir Robert Borden: We perfectly understand that.

Mr. Rogers: Yes, but still we do not want to be placed in a false position. This is an old sore and an old grievance, and now is the proper time to have it cured, because the facts are all in our favor.

Chairman: The Minister of Agriculture has undertaken to do that.

Mr. Rogers: Has not yet to do that.

Chairman: You do not want a resolution, do you?—as if you like you can simply move that the embargo on Canadian cattle be removed as speedily as possible.

Mr. Rogers: I beg to move that.

Chairman: Mr. Prothero accepts that, and there is an end of it.

Mr. Hazen: I think that, as we have a statement from the President of the Board of Agriculture that this restriction will be removed, and that he does not see why it should not be done at once, we might leave it there.

Editorial supporters of Canada's case admit that this discussion was carried on in a conversational fashion and "with a looseness of phraseology unexpected at such a Conference," but there is a fairly wide acceptance of the fact that a pledge was given to which both Mr. Prothero and Mr. Long were parties.

EXTEND THE MARKET.

The older example of New Westminster of a produce and cattle market, and the more recent success in Victoria, appears to have taught a lesson to Mainland neighbors.

Vancouver is looking for a plan to divert the produce of the districts on the north bank of the Lower Fraser River into that city, while Vernon also proposes to establish a farmers' market.

Is not the time at hand when Victoria should proceed with the plan of a cattle market, a scheme forming part of the original design, but delayed until the produce market became properly organized?

No one can fairly question that the public market is now a definite institution, with expanding opportunities; and is not the larger question now ready for examination? The city possesses at Garbally yard an enclosure at the pound where the animals could be handled with very little additional equipment.

The value to the farmers of the neighboring districts, and to the butchers is not difficult to appreciate, and it would redound to the benefit of the retail trade of the city in putting money into circulation.

FIGURES THAT SPEAK.

Friday's luncheon to celebrate his return from Genoa gave Mr. Lloyd George another opportunity to round off the more general defence of his policies with a few facts and figures that have an obvious bearing upon the Empire's attitude towards European affairs. He pointed out that the British Empire mobilized 9,500,000 men for war and that of that number no fewer than 1,600,000 were sent by the Dominions. He considered these figures were ample evidence with which to establish a right to say something about what peace should be obtained for the world.

The Prime Minister furnished the tragic side of the argument by informing his audience that the Empire's casualties totalled 3,266,000 and asked whether he was doing right, in speaking in behalf of all those millions who fought and the millions who fell and were crippled, by saying that there must be peace in the world. He was never on firmer ground. It must be admitted that if the Genoa Conference did nothing else it revealed most of the causes of Europe's troubles and classified those who are endeavoring to rejuvenate the Old World and those who are following their own peculiar sport of making trouble. But this simple citation of figures, this reference to the cost of war in terms of broken humanity, is enough in itself to justify the continuation of conferences if each one only brings the world a few steps nearer to lasting peace.

RAILWAY SERVICE TO SOOKE.

To the Editor—We beg to enclose you herewith a copy of a letter just received from the Chairman of the Railways Commission of Canada, the Hon. F. B. Carvell, K. C.

It is an astounding fact that notwithstanding all the petitions which have gone in from the districts of Victoria, Colwood, Luxton, Metchoin, Sooke Harbor and Cowichan for the operation of this line within the last twelve months, notwithstanding the strong action taken by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, supported by the Associated Boards of Trade, and notwithstanding that a private firm, Messrs. Cameron & Caldwell, of Victoria, some weeks ago offered to run a regular daily service to Sooke Harbor by changing the wheels on their sight-seeing cars providing permission was granted by the C. N. R. for the use of their life road, that a letter written on the 11th inst., from this Association to the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada, should be the first intimation of the non-operation of this line for over two years.

In this matter of such vital importance to the development of Southern Vancouver Island and the Sooke Harbor District we ask you with such a letter as we can now place in your hands to take the most prompt possible action in assisting by publicity to secure for Victoria, Sooke Harbor and the intervening localities, some use of all the public money lying idle with a continual loss to the C. N. R. in up-keep with no public benefit.

THE SOOKE HARBOR DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION.

W. MILLER HIGGS, Hon. Secretary.

Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada.

To W. Miller Higgs, Esq., Honorary Secretary The Sooke Harbor Development Association, Sooke, B.C.

Dear Sir—File No. 29892, complaint re non-operation of C. N. R. line Victoria to Sooke Harbor, B. C.

Your letter of the 11th instant to hand re non-operation of the C. N. R. line through Sooke Harbor, and it is the first we have heard of the matter since the month of January, 1920, over two years ago.

At that time the Canadian National Railways applied for the right to carry traffic on their construction trains from mileage 1.80 to mileage 52.5. We had the matter investigated by Mr. Kerr, our Inspecting Engineer at Calgary, who reported, under date of January 25, 1920, that he would recommend opening for freight traffic from mile 25.5 to end of steel 52.5. Speed not to exceed fifteen miles per hour. No speed restrictions between mile 25.5 and Victoria except approaching public road crossings. At these places Mr. Kerr recommended that speed should not exceed ten miles per hour.

I think it is the latter portion to which your letter refers. However, the result was that Order No. 29305 dated January 27, 1920, was issued, copy of which I am enclosing herewith.

The company has not since reported to the Board, and we have no official knowledge that the road has been completed, which would be necessary before it could formally be opened for traffic. It is rather surprising that the section from Victoria to Sooke Harbor should be absolutely completed with men continually employed on the upkeep and no traffic. I am writing the Canadian National Railway and will inform you just as soon as I have anything to report.

I can only say that we have the knowledge of the action taken by the Canadian National Railway System to secure a number of gas motor cars, although we have no knowledge of their intention to use one on this particular line. However, that will be some time in the future, because the first car has not yet been made in Montreal is barely completed, and I know it is their intention to put that on a run near Belleville, Ontario. I have great faith in the new method of railway transportation for branch lines, as I think the public will get a service entirely impossible to furnish by ordinary steam operation at probable one-cent rates. The only thing I can only trust that, within a reasonable time, your line may be so equipped.

However, I will write you just as soon as I have a reply. Sincerely yours, (Sd.) F. B. CARVELL, Chief Commissioner. Ottawa, May 17, 1922.

CAUSE OF CAUSES.

To the Editor—As one interested in philosophy, may be permitted to add a word to the learned discussion going on in your columns on the Cause of Causes.

In the first place Ajax accuses the Bishop of falling back upon dogma to defend himself, and forthwith proceeds to brandish it himself. For what evidence has he produced or can produce, that would warrant his dogmatic assertion that causation does not apply to anything beyond phenomena—anything obviously meaning the noumenon?

Now just what is noumenon? As it is interpreted it means the reality that lies behind and is manifested in phenomena, and upon which all phenomena depend. You can no more dissociate the one from the other than you can separate causality from activity. One is the logical outcome of the other. In the noumenon lies the pressure that lies behind all mental phenomena. It is experience, and it is so evident that no sane mind can miss it. If causality is not accompanied with its carrier, how account for phenomena? The proposition is an absurdity on the face of it.

I may be permitted to ignore the reference to the Intelligent in that allows the heat of the sun to dissipate itself some millions of years hence. Suffice to know that it will be there as long as man needs it here. As his statement that no geologist has ever inferred that life had a beginning upon this planet, I beg to refer him to a book on the subject by F. H. L. Schwartz, one of the most eminent of living scientists, and on pages 71 and 84 he will there find the enlightenment he needs.

I now pass on to the more interesting problem raised by his second dictum, but it is quite clear on the naturalistic hypothesis the second dictum cannot be properly dealt with until some sort of an adequate answer has been given to the first. There are no facts known which would imply that this universe ever had a beginning.

The Greek idea of the universe was pictured by sea serpent in the act of swallowing its own tail and existed since 1789, when Lavoisier established the law of the indestructibility of matter. He made it clear that nothing is ever created, nothing ever destroyed, the ground form of all world schemes has pivoted upon the ceaseless repelling and substituting of one process for another. But Lavoisier, the Hebrew philosopher-Ecclesiastes had stated that self-same matter which states that which shall be, and that which has been, is one and the same thing under the sun. (Chap. 1)

How account then for the ancient dictum of Jehovah, continuously expressed throughout the Scriptures, "Behold I make all things new." There is only one answer, i.e. unity in multiplicity, or new processes and new beginnings.

The theory of the eternal cycles is an endless and exact recurrence of events, and the end of it all, slow, veridical, less violent and more peaceful. And this seems to be the insight into the progress and phenomenal form of the universe. Far more must we know the goal towards which the machinery of events is working. Hence a teleological consideration of Cornelius a Lapide, the mere mechanical into a metaphysical which understands what is given.

"Now every agent," said Aquinas "of necessity has an end, and it is quite clear that particular causes are moved by a universal cause, and the First Cause of all things is a Final Cause" (Summa Theologica).

The doctrine of final causes is called Teleology, and Aristotle established the principle in his investigations of nature. (Physics II, 8, 198).

According to Leibnitz, Final Causes imply a programme previously arranged, and the only way we can interpret it is by studying the phenomena presented to us. "It is not a preconceived idea of God," states Fechner, "which determines God's existence, but whatever of God can be found or perceived in the world and in us."

Now the point raised by Ajax presupposes a space beyond our own, and as we have no knowledge of this, nor an intellectual measuring rod that might act as a springboard into it, any discussion along these lines would end in mental vertigo, and how much further would we be in the end? But as interest in this by an investigation empirical material and formulate a Final Cause.

What my opinion of that is, I am afraid would not interest your readers.

HERCULES.

"CAUSE."

To the Editor—The following copied from an English literary work published over one hundred years ago, may interest those who have been delving into the "Cause of Cause," or following its discussion.

76 Menzies Street.

Cause is supposed to signify the same as cause, it means however now, by distinction the case or thing happening before another as its cause.

Reason signifies the thing thought, estimated, or valued in the mind.

Motive signifies the thing that brings into action.

Cause respects the order and connection of things; reason the movements and operations of the mind; motives the movements of the mind and body.

Cause is properly generic; reason and motive are specific; every reason or motive is a cause, but every cause is not a reason or motive.

Cause is said of all inanimate objects; reason and motive of rational agents; whatever happens in the world happens from some cause, immediate or immediate; the primary or first cause of all is God.

stantial reason for them, and for whatever they do they ought to have a sufficient motive.

As the cause gives birth to the effect, so does reason give birth to the conclusion, and the motive gives birth to the action.

Between cause and effect there is a necessary connection; whatever is the natural world is capable of giving birth to another thing is an adequate cause; but in the moral world there is not a necessary connection between reasons and their results or motives and their actions; the cause of the agent's mind is not always such as to be acted upon.

According to the nature of things, every adequate reason will not be followed by its natural conclusion, for every man will not be his assent to reasons to believe, nor yield to the reasons that would lead him to a right belief; and every motive will not be accompanied with its corresponding action; for every man will not act who has a motive for acting, nor act in the manner in which he is motivated to do so.

What is caused, seems to follow naturally; a wound causes pain. Cut off the causes, and the effects will cease.

And all the moving madness fall to peace.—(Dryden).

THE GENESAC NARRATIVE.

To the Editor—"Ajax" is dexterous in attack. Where he fancies he finds a weak spot in the antagonist's position there he delivers his assault. This is good tactics, if what you seek is victory rather than the truth.

I must, not, forsooth, quote Scripture, even when I do not argue from Scripture! It is the man who puts forward so silly a notion that covers himself with ridicule as with a garment.

I am challenged to show "when, before the beginning of last century, was stage or period ever suggested." Here is a citation from the Commentary of Cornelius a Lapide, written upwards of three hundred years ago, which speaks for itself:

"Very learned men maintain that it is not at all settled what is meant by those days. To establish this what I have quoted from St. Augustine, St. Thomas (of Aquin), and others should suffice; to whom I might add also St. Athanasius, Clement of Alexandria, Procopius and others not a few." A Lapide adds: "Bertier, in the last century, took those days to mean long periods and he has been followed in this by many others." St. Augustine, in his Confessions (xiii, 36) acutely observes that the seventh day "is without evening," which makes it plain that it is not to be taken to mean a period of twenty-four hours; as does also the fact that the "first day" is thus described: "And he called the light day and the darkness night, and there was evening and morning, one day." The period of chaos and darkness, called "evening," up to and including the creation of the light, which is called "morning," was "one day." This manifestly could not be a solar day of twenty-four hours, because when it began in the "evening," not even the light, to say nothing of the sun, was yet created. But this "day" is the first of the six, and the "evening" or chaos portion tells what sun, moon and stars are in relation to the "Ajax" or any one else knows. I desiderate, therefore, in him a little less cocksureness in his assertions on this subject.

Among other questions "Ajax" asks "what was the sun doing before it started to shine?" This is a foolish question. I answer by asking another: What is the sun doing when its rays do not reach the earth owing to the intervening clouds? I make my own the words of the Speaker's Commentary on Gen. I, 14: "The narrative only tells what sun, moon and stars are in relation to the 'Ajax' or any one else knows. I desiderate, therefore, in him a little less cocksureness in his assertions on this subject."

When the clouds and mists are dispelled from its surface and the seas confined within their boundaries, and the first vegetation springs up; then the sky is cleared up, the sun, moon and stars appear and assume their natural functions, marking days and nights, seasons and years; and God makes or appoints them; the sun to rule the day and the moon to rule the night." As for the "grass" and "herb" and "tree," which the earth produced on the third day, we must bear in mind that there was "light" since the first day, and that though the rays of the sun had not yet dissipated the vapors that covered the earth they might well suffice for the growth of grass and tree. St. Augustine holds that plants and animals were created in the form and developed as they found suitable environment. For the rest, a child can ask more questions in five minutes than a wise man can answer in a month. And I am still awaiting an answer to my question, Is it more chance that keeps the earth from being burned to cinder by the rays of a luminary twenty times more powerful than our sun? Or, to put it in another way, Is it mere chance that Sirius is not the centre of our system? ALEX. MACDONALD, Bishop of Victoria.

The broken handle of a broom:

BIRTHDAY FESTIVAL

WILL BE INTERESTING

Splendid Programme for Y. W. C. A. Affair

The "Birthday Festival" which will be held under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. on the occasion of the local organization's thirtieth anniversary promises to be a big success.

The affair will be held at the Armories commencing a week from next Wednesday, June 7, and will be continued Thursday. The ladies who will be in charge of the various booths are working hard to make the festival one of the biggest and most successful celebrations ever held by the Y. W. C. A.

A programme has been arranged which will include a number of very interesting items. An immense birthday cake has been made which will be lighted with thirty large candles.
Miss Kate Hemming will be glad to have the names of all who desire to participate in the dress pageant, which will portray the dress of the various periods from the time of Queen Victoria's accession to the Throne.

The Armories will present a charming picture during the two-day festival and afternoon teas will be served both days. The big supper will be held at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening and the tables will be cleared away at 7:30. Further details of the affair will be published later.

ELK HOTEL TO OPEN

New Resort in Comox District to Start July 1.

The addition of a charming new holiday haunt within easy motoring distance of Victoria will be heartily welcomed by those who have spent many previous vacations in those pleasure spots adjacent, and already well established in the public's affections. The laying out of a new golf course at Comox, and the ever-growing popularity of the royal game, has been the inspiration therefore to a number of well-known Victorians to reopen the Elk Hotel at Comox, closed since the early years of the war, and establish a new holiday spot in these beautiful and healthful surroundings. The hotel, which is situated on the sea front, has a pleasant veranda and garden with a tennis lawn and fine shade trees, and, in-addition, the pleasant spacious dining-room a large and luxuriously comfortable lounge, writing room and billiard room and airy bedrooms, bathrooms and the usual offices. Standing in the centre of rich dairy country and prosperous farms, guests are assured of the best of fresh country produce, and an excellent chef has been engaged.

On account of the golf links not being ready for play until next Spring, the management had not intended opening this Summer, but in response to many applications a staff of servants has been engaged and the management will be ready to receive guests from July 1. Fishing, boating, bathing, hunting and tennis are among the already existent attractions, and a billiard table will be shortly installed. The hotel will open under entirely new management, under the superintendence of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Oster, with Mr. Sidney
D'Esterre as proprietor.

WILL RECEIVE DIPLOMAS.

On Friday evening, at the Alexandra Ballroom this year's graduating exercises of the training school of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital will take place, when the following nurses will receive their diplomas:
Miss Edith Loretta Brandon, Miss
Stella Francis, Miss Beatrice Ferreri, Miss Jessie Isabel Dunnet,
Miss Kathleen Wright, Miss Anne
Louise Dyke, Miss Mary Gertrude Ehlers, Miss Flora Elizabeth Rothzke, Miss Marjorie May Brethour,
Miss Helen Robertson, Miss S. Sidney
Fatt, affiliated with the Victoria
Private Hospital; and Mrs. J. Shaw
Whitlock, graduate of the McLean Hospital, Mass., U.S.A., post-graduate course in maternity and surgery.

Purity and quality is the keynote of Sunlight Soap. Unlike many bulky bars it has no useless fillers which are harmful to your clothes.
So pure and sweet is the coconut oil used that it could be made into food. Coconut and palm oils—the two wonderful cleansers blended in Sunlight—make this great soap the most efficient and economical soap you ever used. It is all

RAPID PROGRESS MARKS WATERWORKS IN GORDON HEAD

Now Serving Part of District; Pressure Probable June 15

Spoke water is now in Gordon Head, though but intermittent service is available, and there is every probability that Reeve Watson's forecast of completion of the mains and a heavy pressure by June 15 will be realized.

Only further delay in the arrival of the last component of 5,000 feet of 12-inch pipe, now somewhere off the Oregon coast, will prevent the completion of the Gordon Head extension of the Saanich waterworks within the next three weeks, as the trenches are all opened, and pipe can be laid and caulked at nearly 1,000 feet per day. A few days ago the main on Fernside Road, the highest point, was connected up with a two-inch service from the Uplands, and the officials were delighted to find that a twenty pound pressure was present. As indicating the conservative character of the estimates laid before the ratepayers when discussing water pressure, the Uplands connection was not believed capable of forcing water up Sinclair Hill, while actual results showed a supply to the crest of Gordon Head, nearly three miles further.

Residents of the Gordon Head district are planning suitable celebrations to accompany the formal opening ceremonies which will mark the turning on of the full pressure.

The One Unwanted

By RUBY M. AYRES

INSTALLMENT NO. 2

He was a young country lad, with a brogue I could hardly understand, and a bright red nose that glared horribly with the purple red muffer that he wore, and each time I asked my hopeless question he answered with the same monotonous monosyllable, "Noa!" till at last I gave up asking him, and drew the rug up to my chin in a vain effort to keep warm.

I believe I had really dozed off into a sort of fitful sleep owing to the cold, when suddenly there was a violent jerk, and I felt myself being shot from my seat through the air, finally landing in a snowbank unharmed, but very indignant.

A wheel had come off our trap. The driver—Ned—was his name—I found out afterwards—had been thrown out, too, but he was not hurt either, and he scrambled up when I did and caught at the horse's bridle to prevent him from trying to run away, and across its back we looked at one another ruefully.

I was chilled to the bone and my teeth were chattering.

"We might have been killed," I said, angrily.

Ned grinned. He had nice white teeth, and his face was almost pleasant when he smiled.

"Noa!" he said again, and the monosyllable so irritated me that I could have thrown something at him with the greatest of pleasure, only there was nothing to throw but snow, and my hands were cold enough already without making them worse.

"It's no use standing there grinning," I said sharply. "We shall have to walk. Is it much farther?"

"Noa," said the brilliant one again, and this time I was almost reduced to ignominious tears when suddenly a voice hailed us from the other side of the hedge which bordered the road on one side.

"Hallo! What's up?"

I suppose we made a miserable little group. I know I looked wretched enough, for my face was nipped with the cold, and there were tears in my eyes as I turned around and looked at the man who had spoken.

He was on horseback, and he had evidently been riding across the field when he had caught sight of us through the bare hedge, and come across to see what was the matter. He was quite young and good looking enough to be interesting, and he wore riding breeches and leather gaiters and a rug tweed coat, that made him look big and square-shouldered.

"What's up?" he asked again, and he got down from the saddle, and with the bridle hanging loosely over one arm opened a gate a few yards further down and came out into the road leading his horse.

He whistled when he saw the overturned trap.

"Wheel off," he said. "You might 'ave been badly shaken but for the snow."

"We're badly shaken as it is," I said sharply. "At least, I am, and I'm frozen to death, and ever so hindered, and this man here keeps on saying its no-further, and yet we never seem to get there."

The young man smiled.

"If you're going to the Gable Farm it's only about half a mile," he said. "But if you're as cold as you look—and his smile widened as his eyes rested on my woe-begone face—"and as hungry as you say you are, my house is just at the back of that field, and it ought to be tea-time. If you'd care to come along with me, I'll drive you home afterwards."

My blood began to move me warmly at the mere suggestion.

"And what's going to become of—" I asked, waving a vague hand in the direction of Ned and the broken trap.

"The man can lead the horse and send back for the trap," my new friend answered briskly, and presently I was walking over the field with him toward the promised fire and tea.

"You've come from London, of course," my companion said. "You're the little girl who's going to stay with Albery and his wife at the Gable Farm?" Oh, yes, I've heard all about you. Everyone hears everything down in a village like this. You're Miss Slater, aren't you?"

"Yes. Who are you?" I asked.

He laughed; a very pleasant laugh. "I've never seen you when I had your name's Anderson," he said. "Mark Anderson, Albery, who rather likes me, will probably tell you that the village belongs to me, but as I'm naturally a truthful person, I'll tell you beforehand that it does not! Most of it is mortgaged. However, that's neither here nor there! Can you ride?"

"I've never tried, but I think I could," I answered optimistically.

He laughed.

"Good! I'll give you a lesson to-morrow."

I looked up at him delightedly.

"Will you? How lovely!" Then suddenly my elation faded. "Do you know why I've been sent down here?" I asked soberly.

He shook his head.

"Because you are delicate?" he hazarded.

"I tossed my head with scorn.

"Delicate! Why, I've never been ill in my life, except when I had scarlet fever, and I wasn't really ill then—only it's catching, you know, so they kept me in one room for six weeks."

"I see. I thought perhaps you were delicate," he explained. "They do send people down here for air, weak lungs and things like that, you know?"

"It's not why I've been sent," I said, and I felt a trifle ashamed of my record. "I've been sent because they can't manage me at home."

"Can't manage you?" he said. "A bit of a thing like you," he said. "Good gracious, what a joke!"

"Mother said it was a tragedy," I told him, sighing. "And, after all, I can't help being like I am, any more than my sisters can help being pretty! I ought to have been a boy, I suppose. They wanted a boy when I was born."

Mr. Anderson chuckled.

"I call that base ingratitude," he said.

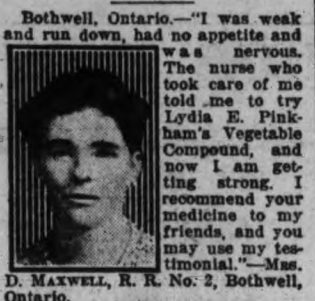

We had reached the house by this time, a queer-looking old place it was, with a sloping roof, which was just now thickly covered in snow, and a quaint little porch with rustic seats on either side.

"Is this where you live?" I asked, and he answered: "It is—when I'm here, that is to say. I go to London occasionally—when they run cheap excursions."

He hung his horse's bridle over a gate-post, and going ahead of me opened the door of the house, which

Nurse Recommended Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bothwell, Ontario.—"I was weak and run down, had no appetite and was a nervous wreck. The nurse who took care of me told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now I am getting strong. I recommend your medicine to my friends, and you may use my testimonial."

—Mrs. D. MAXWELL, R. R. No. 2, Bothwell, Ontario.

The reason why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful in overcoming woman's ills is because it contains the tonic-strengthening properties of good old-fashioned roots and herbs, which act on the female organism. Women from all parts of the country are continually testifying to its strengthening, beneficial influence, and as it contains no narcotics nor harmful drugs it is a safe medicine for women.

FOR CHILDREN THE SANDMAN STORY FOR TO-NIGHT

Hilda lived with her stepmother and was made to do all the work, while her stepmother, Nina, did nothing all day but read and dress herself in silk and satin gowns.

One day while on her way to market in the town, Hilda saw an old woman kneeling by a haystack in a meadow as if she were hunting for something in the hay.

Leaning over the wall Hilda asked: "What have you lost, granny; let me help you hunt for it."

"Oh, my needle, my precious needle," moaned the old woman. "I have lost it in the hay and cannot find it. What ever shall I do?"

"Why not get another needle," said Hilda. "You will never find a needle in a stack of hay; so why waste your time, granny?"

"But this was a magic needle," said the old woman. "I must find it or I shall never be able to finish the Queen's dress for the grand ball. Will you not help me hunt for it?"

"I will help you, granny," said Hilda, jumping over the wall, "but we will never find it, of that I am sure."

But to her surprise Hilda soon found the needle, and when she gave it to the old woman she told Hilda that she should have the needle when she returned from town.

"That night when Hilda again passed the old woman was waiting for her. "Here is the magic needle," she said. "Take it, and when you use it, anything for which you may wish you will find it can give you."

Hilda thanked the old woman, and running the needle in her dress she hurried home to cook supper for her stepmother and Nina, and forgot all about it.

While they were eating their supper the stepmother said to her daughter, "We must go to town in the morning to buy satin for your gown to wear to the grand ball the King is to give for his son, for he has promised that all the maidens in the kingdom shall be there."

The Prince is to choose his wife, and if the Prince should choose one who is not a Princess the King has promised not to interfere, and so my beautiful daughter, you must have a new gown for I know that when the Prince sees you he will look at no one else."

"I wish I might go to the ball and see all the grand ladies," thought poor Hilda, "but I have no dress to wear."

She had hardly thought this wish when the needle pricked her as if to remind her of what the old woman had said.

Hilda could hardly wait to finish her kitchen work so that she might go to her room to find out if the needle would really do all the old woman said it would.

Lighting a candle Hilda took an old dress and sat down by her table with the needle and began to sew. "Needle, needle, show to me the beautiful gown I wish to see," she said, as she drew the needle in and out of the ragged old dress.

In a short time, instead of the ragged one on her lap, was a shimmering satin gown of white and gold. Jumping up Hilda threw off the gown she wore and put on the new one. She was so lost in wonder when she saw herself in the mirror that she did not hear footsteps on the attic stairs until her stepmother and Nina opened the door.

40 Years Old—and Over

For forty years, the human machinery has been working without rest. For forty years, the Heart has been pumping blood through the body, every second of every day in all these years. For forty years, the Stomach has been helping to digest three meals a day. For forty years, the Kidneys and Bowels have been carrying off the waste of the body.

After forty years, these vital organs of the human system begin to slow up. Very gradually; almost imperceptibly. But there comes a lack of nimbleness to the limbs, an inclination not to hurry. One notices that favorite dishes do not agree with the stomach. The Liver grows less active and Constipation develops. Sometimes, there are Headaches, Pain in the Back, Bi'sus Attacks, or a Rheumatic twinge makes itself felt. One has to be careful about the diet, avoid draughts and wet feet, and wear heavier clothing. After 40, one begins to believe there is something in this talk about high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries.

What Does All This Mean?

It means that the body needs help to retain its youthful vigor and vitality. It means that the bowels and kidneys must be regulated and digestion kept sound, or the blood will become overlaid with impurities, resulting in chronic indigestion, high blood pressure and auto-intoxication.

It means that you need a tonic laxative, a reliable saline, like Abbeys Salt. ABBEY'S SALT enables the man and woman over 40 to eat and digest three good meals a day—to do a good day's work and get a good night's sleep—to feel active, vigorous, well—to enjoy the good things of life. Get a bottle of ABBEY'S SALT today—telephone for it now. Take a glass tomorrow morning before breakfast. INTER-CLASS PICNIC.

The woods of Mt. Douglas Park rang with laughter and happy voice of children on Saturday when Divisions VI, and VII, of Sir James Douglas School, held an inter-class picnic there. Their teachers, Miss Reid and Miss Grayes, supervised the sports. The first event was a climb to the summit of the hill to obtain a splendid view of the straits and mountains. On their return to the park the sports were begun. By the time the last race was over everyone was quite ready for the picnic supper.

Blind boxing. This was highly amusing.

The party then broke up and returned to Victoria on motor stages.

THE BREAK.

A lady who thought her wine was drunk by her butler decided on a novel way of thwarting his schemes. She told him that each time he went down he must whistle until he returned.

One day he went down whistling, and soon she heard him stop.

"James," she cried, "what are you doing?"

"Please, mum," he replied, "I'm changing the tune."

HER PROPER DESIGNATION

Mrs. Bleak: "George, this is the most interesting novel I ever read. Just listen, dear: In the tenth chapter the heroine sees the hero approaching, and she turns pink. He kisses her, and she turns red. A footstep is heard, and she turns white. Five minutes later the villain arrives, and she turns purple—with rage. Now, wouldn't you call such a girl as that a heroine, George?"

Mr. Bleak: (absently): "H'm! I think I should call her a chameleon!"

DEMONSTRATIVE WELCOME TO PRINCESS LOUISE ON FIRST NORTHERN CRUISE

At Ketchikan and Juneau the citizens took possession of the ship and at the invitation of the company officials on board the delighted people danced in the forward social hall on the main deck to the jassy strains of the ship's six-piece orchestra.

Supper was served to the ship's visitors in the spacious dining saloon and the last person went over the side only as the system announced to the throng her pending departure.

The money plan provides that the sewer system would be secured through the payment by the land owners within the sewer area of their proportion of the cost in periodical instalments. No money would be borrowed and the work would proceed only as the money was obtained.

A Narrow Escape.—Passengers in two cars which collided at the junction of Oswego and Quebec Streets yesterday afternoon had an extremely narrow escape. A small Humber, driven by Stanley H. McKay, with Mr. and Mrs. Mair, 439 Superior Street, the owners, aboard, was proceeding up Oswego from Belleville when a big seven-passenger taxi owned and driven by J. Smith, came along Quebec Street, and the two met with a crash. Both swept across the street and over the curb, when the smaller car, missing a wheel from the front pole, demolished a high board fence. The front left wheel of Smith's car was smashed to pieces. The smaller car suffered a twisted axle and a broken running board. Mrs. Mair suffered considerably from shock.

"They took the pup on to the lawn of the Empress Hotel and then the little Pekinese lady began to cut up antics. She ran off with the pup in front. Then she came back and sniffed it. She was mystified. She had seen the color before but mostly on painted walls and had supposed that she was afraid the lawn was fresh paint, for in her Peking neighborhood there was no grass or parks."

WELL-KNOWN RESIDENT

Leonard S. Higgs Widely Known in Province.

On Saturday at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Leonard S. Higgs died after an illness of several months. Mr. Higgs was well known to many people in British Columbia, having been engaged in mining, timber cruising and surveying throughout the greater part of the Province, and for some time was in the service of the Government in the Forestry Branch.

In May, 1917, Mr. Higgs enlisted and went overseas as a Lieutenant in the Canadian Forestry Corps.

Lieut. L. S. Higgs was the son of Thomas Higgs, of Sudbury, Suffolk, England, and was born in 1847. He was educated at Uppingham and, while still a young man, came to this country. For the last thirty-two years he lived at South Pender Island.

He and Mrs. Higgs were well known among naturalists as an enthusiastic collector, having had in his possession a most valuable assortment of implements of the Indians of this province, many of them being very rare.

Mr. Higgs leaves to mourn his loss his widow, three children, Capt. Thos. Higgs, who served overseas in the Great War, Wm. Y. Higgs and Mrs. Georgeson, also two sisters, Mrs. M. A. Grainger and Mrs. R. G. Grey, both of Vancouver, besides relatives in England.

Mr. Higgs will also be deeply regretted by a great host of friends, his very kindly disposition having endeared him to all with whom he came in contact.

The funeral of the late Mr. Higgs will take place on Tuesday, May 30, at 1.45 from the B. C. Funeral Chapel. Service will be held in Christ Church Cathedral at 2 o'clock by Colonel the Rev. G. E. Andrews, and will be followed by interment at Ross Bay.

The resignation has been accepted of Miss F. F. Kenney, of the Department of Public Works, Victoria. Miss Kenney plans a prolonged tour of the East.

Arthur M. Ralph, Thomas John Sauvery and Bernard G. Osberg have been appointed official fence viewers of Saturna Island.

Seek Legal Advice.

Aldermen sought legal advice to-day to find out whether the City Council and not the Police Board is vested with the duty of enforcing the law. These aldermen point out that the Municipal Act provides that it is the duty of the municipality to maintain law and order, and that "the powers of every municipality shall be exercised by the Council."

City Solicitor, H. S. Pringle, however, stated his opinion that any body or any citizen could ask for the enforcement of the law by swearing out information against any store owner who opened on a Sunday.

"Any citizen, whether he is a member of the Police Commission or of the Council or not can swear out information under the Lord's Day Act and the police would have to proceed with the prosecution if they would under any Act," Mr. Pringle explained. "Thus, it seems to me, the Police Commissioners have power to get the law enforced if they wish."

Appeal to Mayor.

Apparently balked in their effort to check the efforts of the Police Commission, Council members discussed the introduction of a resolution appealing to the Attorney-General to refuse to issue any more flats for prosecuting local stores.

The Council is a more representative body than the Police Commission, in any case," Alderman Reginald Hayward, leader of the Council section which is fighting the closed Sunday, declared at noon. "The trouble is that the whole matter is entangled in a mass of legal complications and is confused by the existence of Federal and Provincial legislation on the subject."

MAKING BEER BY-LAW IN CITY

Mayor Investigates Vancouver Measure; to See Man-son on Plan

Victoria may have a Beer Club By-Law like that which is being brought into effect in Vancouver to regulate the operation of clubs which distribute beer to their members.

Impressed with reports of the Vancouver by-law, Mayor William Marchant to-day wrote to Mayor Tisdall, of Vancouver, and asked him to forward details of the beer measure. The Mayor said he announced that he would confer immediately with Attorney-General Manson on the subject, and find out what he thinks of the Vancouver ordinance.

"I am not familiar with the Vancouver by-law," the Mayor said. "But if its effect is to regulate beer selling more satisfactorily than is possible under present conditions it should be a useful measure. In any case, I intend to investigate it fully."

WHERE ARTISTS ARE HANGED

About the time when Newgate Prison was being pulled down, a little girl was taken to London by her parents. On her return she was describing all the places she had seen to some young friends. One of them, of a somewhat morbid disposition, asked:

"Did you see the Old Bailey, where they hang the murderers?"

"No," replied the girl. "I don't think so; but I saw the Royal Academy where they hang the artists."

Dodgers and Reds Show Superb Form

Cincinnati Displaying Sort of Play Which Won Championship For It in 1919—Brooklyn Pitchers and Hitters Are in Great Shape—New York teams Flurried

New York, May 29.—In a week marked by numerous upsets, together with sensational "comebacks" by Brooklyn and Cincinnati in the National League, the champion New York clubs hung to their leads in the major league pennant race, but only after meeting the stiffest opposition they have encountered so far this season.

There was comparatively little change in the relative standings of the American League clubs, but the older circuit underwent a radical shakeup. Pittsburgh, displacing St. Louis in second place, while Brooklyn scrambled from around the bottom to the first division closely adjacent to the Yankees.

The Giants recover. Regaining confidence on their return home, McGraw's champions saved an otherwise disastrous week by winning three straight from the Boston-Braves, who had just taken four straight games from St. Louis.

Displaying terrific strength at bat and with their pitching staff in mid-season form, the Brooklyn-Dodgers dropped rapidly to the front, winning eight out of nine games from Chicago and Philadelphia, including three double-headers, while Cincinnati, the other sensation of the week, took three out of four from the Giants and Cubs.

The Yankees have shown no improvement in all-round play, despite the return of Ruth and Meusel. Meusel, however, has clouted out three home runs since getting back in the game and may yet figure in the slugger's return to the lineup.

Philadelphia, losing or winning all its games by a one-run margin, played woefully pressed by Cleveland whose pitching staff and all-round play has improved.

St. Louis, after splitting even with the New York Yankees in four games, returned to the west, losing three straight to Chicago, but winning yesterday.

Philadelphia, losing or winning all its games by a one-run margin, played woefully pressed by Cleveland whose pitching staff and all-round play has improved.

Return Game Will Be Played Here Saturday and Locals Expect to Win Out

Vancouver, May 29.—Vancouver sketched another two games up in the struggle for the Mann Cup as the result of a 4-3 victory over the Victoria lacrosse squad on Saturday afternoon at Con Jones's park. The game was close all the way and exciting in spots.

The local boys notched the first goal in the opening period through Jacob Lewis, who played stellar game all the way.

Paul and Redgrave mixed things merrily at one point during the period and Bun Watson chased them to the bench for ten minutes.

McGregor, of Victoria, was ordered benched for applying the wood to the Vancouver goalie, who tally jabbed him. Allie could not see it that way.

Victoria introduced a couple of school boys who played a brilliant game. Jimmie McNamee at full back and Simpson, McNamee, Kroeger, Redgrave, Johnson, Steele, Melnes, Thompson, Brynjolfson, Norton, McGregor, McClure and Mitchell.

Officials of the Victoria Lacrosse Club who attended the game were delighted with the showing of the local boys.

The C. P. R. senior baseball team will practice every Monday and Thursday nights, at the Royal Athletic Park.

London, May 29.—Frank Goddard, heavyweight boxer, knocked out Bombarrier Wells in the sixth round of their bout at the Crystal Palace on Saturday night.

Prestwick, Scotland, May 29.—Great Britain's new amateur golf champion is Ernest W. Holderness, an Englishman. His runner-up, J. A. Tacoma and Calgary in Two Sensational Games Saturday; Esks Win Series

Calgary, Alta., May 29.—Baseball fans of Calgary will long remember two unusual feats of pitching at Victoria Park on Saturday, when Tacoma and Calgary broke even in a double bill, the visitors winning in the afternoon 2 to 0 and the locals taking the long end of a 2 to 0 score in the evening contest.

Duke Cross, late of the Vernon Coast club, entered the hall of baseball fame and realized the ambition of every pitcher by holding the Bronks hitless and runless in the first game.

Dodger Lewis, the former Calgary amateur, hurried even better ball than Cross, even though the Tigers got two lucky hits, as not a man reached third base, and he fanned 10, whiffing Bob Snyder and Vernon Bronk on three times each.

Edmonton, May 29.—Brilliant pitching by Donnelly and snappy support in the field enabled the Eskimos to win the evening game 2 to 0, while errors and bunched hits gave Vancouver the victory, 6 to 3, in the afternoon on Saturday.

Elks Win Weirdest Game; Lead League

The Elks jumped into the lead in the amateur league race when they came out on the long end of a slug-ging match with the Eagles Saturday afternoon, and Alex Potts' aggregation is now resting in the cellar with a 17 to 16 record chalked up against it.

From the pitchers' standpoint the game resembled an aviation meet more than a ball game, fifteen bases on balls being issued while no less than six athletes were granted free transportation to first base by being hit in the ribs and various other parts of their anatomy.

So Long, Norm Forbes was selected to do mound duty for the Elks and got by Turpel well during the first four innings, but lost control in the fifth, and after issuing three passes and allowing three runs, he was relieved by Green.

Brooklyn, May 29.—Boston knocked Grimes out of the box in three innings, getting his first four innings, but Smith and Shriver stopped the Braves in the remaining innings.

St. John, N. B., May 29.—The members of the St. Peter's and Garrison baseball teams of the city league have been professionalized by an official bulletin, which was issued by the Maritime Provinces branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

GIBSON FIRST MAN TO MAKE CENTURY

Garrison Batsman Makes More Than Five C's "B" in Two Innings

Victoria suffered defeat at hands of Albions; Five C's "A" Win Easily

Gunner Gibson, of the Garrison, gets the honor of being the first cricketer to put century in the Victoria and District Cricket League.

The Victoria representatives who attended the meeting on the Mainland were as follows: Major W. H. Lettuce, of the Fifth Regiment.

Albions continued their winning streak and numbered Victoria among their victims. The match was very close, but last year's champions were not strong enough to deliver, and lost out by 138 to 90.

There will be no league fixtures next week through the fact that the Victoria rep. team will journey to Vancouver to play the Cowichan-Nanaimo combination.

SHOWS NEW GENIUS

IN MY "BOY"

Jackie Coogan Will Be Presented at Royal

To be a star at six years of age is a sign of genius—nothing less. And that is what Jackie Coogan is—a genius. This likeable little chap is appearing at the Royal Victoria theatre, where his latest production, "My Boy," an Associated First National attraction, began a six-day run to-day.

Jackie proves that a person doesn't have to be an adult to be a motion picture star. It is doubtful if there is any other star in the profession who has the following possessed by Jackie Coogan, for his last two pictures, "The Kid," in which he played second part to Charles Chaplin, and "Peck's Bad Boy," in which he played the undisputed lead, have been the best money-making hits of the past year.

There isn't any emotion which Jackie cannot register—and register with a punch. He is a born actor, if there ever was one of that species, and it is a constant delight to watch him at work on the screen. All of his pictures are far too short; one wishes he could sit forever and watch this little actor through his part.

"My Boy" is excellent entertainment; not only because the "kid" is in it, but because he has a story, written especially for him, which fits him like the proverbial glove and which gives him full opportunity to display his varied talents. The story is that of a little immigrant orphan, who lands in New York and escapes deportation by the immigration authorities through a ruse. He wins the hearts of all those with whom he comes into contact, and eventually finds a home, joy and peace.

If we had had the time we would have seen the picture for the second time. That's how good it is. Jackie Coogan and "My Boy" strike a responsive chord in the hearts of all human beings.

NEW HAROLD LLOYD

COMEDY IS HERE

A "Sailor Made Man" Presented at Capitol

The largest and most sumptuous exterior and interior sets of a palace and street ever used in a comedy were constructed at the Hal Roach studio for Harold Lloyd's current Associated Exhibitors feature, "A Sailor-Made Man."

The palace, Oriental in architecture, 75-80 feet, with its turret and towers, coral garden, with a pool in the centre, is most impressive. The upper landings have mosaic tile floors, as well as all the approaches.

The street which leads to the palace is flanked on either side by bazaars. The interior of the palace, 300x500 feet, covered the entire open stage.

The action of "A Sailor-Made Man" written by Sam Taylor and Hal Roach, takes Harold Lloyd from the United States to the imaginary country of Kaipura-Bhandanna, where the story reaches its peak of fun. Mildred Davis, Noah Young and Dick Sutherland support the bespectacled comedian in "A Sailor-Made Man," which will be featured at the Capitol theatre all week.

Who killed Potts? Or Smith, or Brown or Jones, or any of the hundreds who yearly fall victims of the secret assassin's hand?

That is the eternal fascination of the mystery picture. A problem to solve: this is what holds the breathless interest, and this is what you will find in "The Truthful Liar," Wanda Hawley's new Reart picture which is now showing at the Capitol.

Few know the American public's taste, whether in reading, drama or screen entertainment better than Will Payne noted novelist. So when he came to write his first original screen story, starring Wanda Hawley, he based his dramatic climax upon the most compelling of all situations—the mysterious killing of a man.

Miss Hawley is supported in this picture by Edward Hearn, Casson Ferguson, Charles A. Stevenson, George Siegmann, Lloyd Whitlock and E. A. Warren.

This week's Capitol presentation is in the hands of Leonidoff & Rogge, specialty dancers, late of the Imperial Russian Ballet.

PICTURE VERSION OF "TURN TO THE RIGHT"

Popular on Stage, Will Be on Dominion Screen

"Turn to the Right," the most popular comedy-drama of the stage, whose appeal was testified to by millions of theatre-goers, has been transferred to the screen and will be seen this week at the Dominion theatre.

As a stage play, "Turn to the Right" made a fortune for John Golden who presented it and for the authors, Winchell Smith and John E. Hazard. Keepink up this financial record a half interest in the screen rights was sold to Metro Pictures Corporation for a quarter of a million dollars, top price for any motion picture production.

The screen version is presented by John Golden and Marcus Loew and is a Rex Ingram production, directed by the creator, for the silent drama, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and "The Conquering Power."

It tells the story of a country boy who, while serving a prison term unjustly, becomes acquainted with two crooks. Returning home he finds the mortgage about to be foreclosed by the village skintint. With the aid of his two crook pals a way is found to beat out the miser while in the influence of the aged mother leads the two crooks into love and a better life.

It is presented by a notable cast headed by Alice Terry who won an enviable reputation in "The Four Horsemen" and "The Conquering Power." Playing opposite her is Jack Mulhall, known on both stage and screen. Others in the cast are Harry Myers, who was the Yankee in "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court"; George Cooper, Edward Connelly, Lydia Knott, Betty Allen, Margaret Loomis, William Bletcher, Eric Mayne and Ray Ripley.

"Turn to the Right" was adapted by June Mathis and Mary O'Hara and photographed by John E. Seitz. The technical direction was by A. J. Myers and Harold Grieve. Starrett Ford was production manager.

HEATHEN CURSE IS FOX PRODUCTION

"The Devil Within" Will Be Presented at Columbia

The heathen curse is used as a theme for developing a powerfully dramatic action in "The Devil Within," a Fox production starring Dustin Farnum, which comes to the Columbia theatre to-day. In this photoplay what is known as the curse of Vishnu is called down upon the head of a brutal sea captain who has stolen an idol from South sea savages. The Captain apparently carries the burden of the curse for years, and only after the severest trials finds peace.

The curse is used as a symbol of wrath that falls upon a man for his habitual violation of the laws of God and man.

This is the second Fox photoplay which Dustin Farnum has made this season. His first was "The Primal Law," in which the popular star proved that he retained his ability to portray he-man parts with all the vigor and skill visible in his earlier productions.

Bernard Durning directed "The Devil Within," as well as "The Primal Law." The story was written by George Allen England. Pretty Virginia Valli is the leading woman.

The director also portrays one of the most important characters.

"The Sheik's Wife," Vitagraph's splendid special which was actually made in the Arabian desert, stands out as perhaps the most true-to-life picture of desert ways and customs ever shown in this country. Hundreds of native Arabs mounted on their superb pure-bred horses lend a touch of picturesque excitement to the scenes. And through all the thrilling action runs a story of passionate, throbbing Oriental love.

THREE TWO DAY FEATURES AT VARIETY

"Bonnie Brier Bush" Will Open Series

A story that has won the world with its beauty, fun and heart-stirring drama, lived by real folks on the screen—"Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush"—will be shown to-day and Tuesday at the Variety. Every effort was made by the Famous Players-Lasky British Producers, Ltd., to achieve absolute accuracy of detail in matters of atmosphere and local color in filming this production, which was adapted for the screen from Ian MacLaren's Scottish classic.

It is particularly interesting to Victorians to note that the village pipers in the story were a selected group of picked musicians from the Scots Guards Band, which recently delighted the people of this city.

The second big picture will be "Humoresque," the famous Fannie Hurst story, and will be presented on Wednesday and Thursday. There never was a finer picture shown on any screen than "Humoresque," a production which has swayed huge audiences between laughter and tears wherever it has been shown.

For Friday and Saturday the feature presentation will be "The Sheik," a photoplay from E. M. Hull's remarkable novel of the Sahara Desert, which is now numbered as one of the best sellers in the literary market.

Agnes Ayres has the effective role of Diana Mayo, a headstrong but brave and spirited English girl who encounters the Sheik in the desert and learns finally to love him. He is a veritable master of men—and women. None can stand against his power which in his empire of sand is almost invincible.

GARDNER IS HONORED.

M. D. Gardner, production assistant to Abraham Lehr, Goldwyn Vice-President, has been elected Exalted Ruler of the Santa Monica Lodge of Elks, to which many of the notables of filmdom belong. The Santa Monica Lodge will launch a financial campaign for a new clubhouse, will entertain the State Convention in the Fall, and will institute a plan of social welfare. Mr. Gardner is also the unopposed nominee for Mayor of Culver City, where the Goldwyn studio is situated.

REPENTENT WIFE
CHANGES POLICY
Wants to Die, But Jealousy
Alter Plans, at Princess

Continuing its policy of musical plays for the Summer the stock company at the Princess will offer this week, commencing Wednesday, a new one that has never been seen here before, but which is promised to duplicate the success of the previous offerings. The play has an odd title that holds forth all kinds of comic possibilities—it is called "Her Husband's Wife." A comedy situation is at once arrived at in this play with a wife who thinks that she is going to die very shortly and has not the mania for taking all kinds of patent medicines. She then conceives the thought that she should not leave her dear husband and the curtain falls without another dear wife to look after him. With this end in view she arranges with a friend of hers to be a candidate for the second wife without the knowledge of the husband. This friend appears as a dowdy little woman, but soon blossoms into a bird of paradise which excites the wife's jealousy, and she decides not to die after all. It all works out in a most amusing manner causing roars of laughter. The musical setting for the play this week is promised to be a most elaborate one. Seven new songs and dances have been arranged for. The numbers will be sung by the principals of the company, assisted by the chorus in pretty costumes. Jack Pippie and a quartet will have the principal parts in the play, but they will be ably assisted in the fun-making by Adeline Rundie, Earl Moore and Arthur Elliott. Five performances will be given with the usual matinee on Saturday.

WILL RENDER FAMOUS
PASTORAL CANTATA

"St. John's Eve" to Be Given by Congregational Choir
To-morrow Evening

Based on English legends, "St. John's Eve," a cantata by Frederick Cowen, will be given by the choir of the First Congregational Church, to-morrow evening, with many notable vocalists assisting. In graceful and lilting song the burden of the theme is carried admirably in the cantata. At the rendition of St. John's Eve to-morrow evening, Mrs. A. W. Stokes will take the solo part of "Nancy"; Miss E. V. Edwards, that of "Margaret"; George Guy, that of the young man; and Kenneth Angus, as "Robert." Frederick King will conduct. Miss Winifred Scowcroft will assist at the piano, while Drury Fryce, violinist, will also take part. The music from St. John's Eve is rendered in the three scenes, and comprises some of the most lovable pastoral measures of that age. A collection will be taken at the conclusion of the second scene.

HADDON HALL
ROMANCE ON SCREEN

Famous Story of Dorothy Vernon to Be Filmed Where Events Occurred

Following the great international success of her film debut in the J. Stuart Blackton Prisma-color production, "The Glorious Adventure," Lady Diana Manners is now studying up the Elizabethan period and the sixteenth century legends of Haddon Hall, preparatory to her next venture in filmland in the role of her ancestress, Dorothy Vernon, whose romantic elopement with Sir John Manners from Haddon Hall has formed the basis of many picturesque plays and stories. Lady Diana has often been said to resemble her famous ancestress in beauty and personality, as well as in her independent spirit and varied interests; and it is expected that this romantic figure of the Elizabethan period will be faithfully embodied on the screen by her direct descendant. Lady Diana has lived much of her life within the historic walls of Haddon Hall, just as did Dorothy Vernon, nearly four centuries ago. Having demonstrated in her first film work that she possesses unusual talent, which critics of several countries have now applauded, Lady Diana is proceeding with preparations for her next studio acting in a serious, professional manner. Mr. Blackton is actively making ready for this elaborate production in Prisma natural colors, the process of color cinematography first employed in "The Glorious Adventure," which has aroused widespread discussion in many countries, and has been regarded as the most significant development on the screen in twenty years. Assisting Mr. Blackton are period and research specialists, chief among whom are Sir Charles Oman, the noted historical authority of Oxford University, who is greatly interested in the plans for this film, and Mr. Harry Pirie Gordon, who has written extensively on historical subjects. Artists, architects, decorators and costume-designers are also at work under Mr. Blackton's direction in preparation for this film. The story will be built upon the historical romance of Dorothy Vernon and Sir John Manners, but the vast legendary that has grown up about the fascinating sixteenth century heroine will not be overlooked. The Duchess of Rutland, Lady Diana's mother, is interested in the filming of this story, and the archives of the Rutland family, both at Haddon Hall and Belvoir Castle, will be available for Mr. Blackton's use. This may mean that new lights will be thrown on the story of this Elizabethan belle who dared to thwart her father and elope with the man of her choice. Another interesting fact in connection with this picture is that the scenes will be taken at Haddon Hall, a special privilege allowed by the Duke of Rutland, and the stately beauty of this fine old-world castle and its terraced gardens and attractive surroundings will delight cinema-goers throughout the world.

INGRAM TO DIRECT
ON MAINE COAST

Rex Ingram, director of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," will produce his forthcoming screen version of Victor Hugo's "Tollers of the Sea" on the Maine coast this Summer. The California coast, says the communication from the Metro studios in the West, is unsuitable for the true representation of the Breton seaside. Work on "Tollers of the Sea" will begin upon the completion of Mr. Ingram's latest photoplay "Black Orchids."

Unusual interest attaches to the fact that among the visitors at the Pickford-Fairbanks studios this week was Arthur P. Huntington, of Devonshire, England, direct descendant of the Earl of Huntington of Twelfth-Century fame, and who has since travelled incognito under the alias of Robin Hood when came the time to defeat the unscrupulous designs of a certain controlling ring group seeking the unfair gains to be derived from the reign of Prince John. According to Mr. Huntington it has always been the consensus of opinion among Britishers that the bold Earl who turned robber of the wealthy to feed the poor was very much a reality of the flesh and blood of his time and not in any way legendary.

When Mr. Huntington saw Douglas Fairbanks "made up" as Robin Hood for his super-production of that title, he declared him to be a perfect prototype of the character as he had always been pictured in England, and he rejoiced over the prospect of immortalizing this foremost figure of eight hundred years ago through the medium of the motion picture screen. Mr. Huntington is the heir-presumptive to the earldom of Huntington.

LADIES' MUSICAL CLUB ACTIVITIES

How They Are Helping to Improve Art in Victoria

(By George J. Dyke)

As was recently stated in the music columns of The Times, that excellent, active and serious-minded organization, the Victoria Ladies' Musical Club has concluded its season's activities. Here is a group of women banded together with the object of maintaining and promoting an art—the most democratic and important of all arts—and giving encouragement and opportunity to the music student and amateur in specially arranged programmes. So untiring and unselfish are they of their time and in their interest for music, that such splendid efforts put forth—and it is observed are receiving the hearty and considerable support of the community—command recognition and are deserving. A review, therefore, of the work of the club for the season is not only interesting, but is instructive and well merited.

Patrons and Officers of Club

The patroness of the club is Mrs. Walter C. Nichol, the wife of His Honor—the Lieutenant-Governor, whose interest in music for many years past is quite well known and wide-spread. Its president is Mrs. Gideon Hicks, who has on all occasions given unflinchingly of her presence at all functions, and has been ever mindful of her responsibility and example. The other officers are: First vice-president, Mrs. Clarence Hoard; second vice-president, Mrs. Robert Baird; treasurer, Mrs. D. E. Campbell; secretary, Miss Nellie Lyggin; and convener of programme committee, Mrs. S. Maclure. Mrs. Maclure's energies and knowledge of music, combined with much careful preparation, have meant a great deal in the excellent standard of programme given throughout.

The executive committee is: Mrs. Charles E. Wilson, Mrs. J. O. Cameron, Mrs. Fred Betty, Mrs. H. P. Hodges, Mrs. Archie Wills, Mrs. Jesse Longfield, Mrs. Duncan Ross, Mrs. Umbach, and Mrs. Gertrude Hollinrake Brick. The programme committee is: Mrs. S. Maclure, convener; Mrs. (Dr.) Forest Leeder, Mrs. (Dr.) Herrmann

Robertson, Miss Irene Long, Miss Mary Izard, Mrs. A. J. Gibson, Mrs. Jesse Longfield, Mrs. Archie Wills, Mrs. G. H. Brick, and the late Mrs. Bennett-Brock.

Began Season Mid-October

During the season, which began on October 17, the club has given eight public recitals at the Empress Hotel ballroom, and eight in private homes, graciously loaned by the following supporters of the club: Mrs. Walter Nichol at Government House, Mrs. Alexander Scott, Mrs. D. E. Campbell, Mrs. George G. Bushby, Miss Sara Spencer, Mrs. Ross Sutherland, and Mrs. F. D. Little. In December last at Government House the programme took the form of a lecture-recital, given by Mme. Sanderson-Morgan, on the incomparable Polish composer for piano, Frederic Chopin, illustrations being rendered by the gifted Canadian pianist, Gertrude Huntley Green. This recital has been spoken of as one of the most delightful and comprehensive of the season's work. Plans are now in process of formation, and a busy time is anticipated. At a later period an active campaign for membership will be made, and in such splendid achievements there should be no difficulty in obtaining an even greater support generally, and in the getting of new members to the Club.

Synopsis of Works Given

A brief synopsis of the musical work done during the season is as follows: 1. Pianoforte recital by Gertrude Green, assisted by Gideon Hicks, baritone. 2. The Classical and the Romantic Schools of Music. 3. Selections from Oratorios, with string orchestra accompaniments. 4. Folk Songs and Dance Forms. 5. Representative Modern Composers. 6. Chamber Music. 7. The Classical and Modern Schools. 8. Open Concert. On one occasion a concert party was got together and sent out to Gordon Head in response to a most urgent invitation. At the house recitals held in the

Lady Brittain Says Wives Must Point Out Cure

By LADY BRITTAIN
(Wife of Sir Harry Brittain).

London, May 29.—"Woman's place is in the home." How often, in the dim days before the war, did one hear that phrase? How often did man, hopelessly routed in argument, take refuge in its continued repetition! Of all statements, it was ever the one best calculated to rouse exasperated fury in the heart of a feminine opponent. Even in these enlightened days one still hears it—implied if not actually expressed—in this man-governed world. And still it is hotly repeated by woman. That resentment is often justified. More often it is mistaken. The woman in the home has more power than ever accrued to her sister in shop or office. In the home she is the power behind the throne. That is "what every woman knows." In the play of that name, the successful politician exclaims in amazement. "Perhaps you were helping me all the time, though neither of us knew it." The man—poor, innocent!—may think that "neither of us" knew it, but the woman knows better. Never had women more scope for the exercise of their power than they have to-day. They can make their influence felt through their voting power, it is true, and they are doing so, but they can also make it felt through bringing it to bear on their husbands, sons and brothers, on the breadwinners of their households. The times we live in are sadly out of joint. The war has been over for nearly four years, but the aftermath of war is not yet ready. We expected too much from the return of peace; we were too ready to snatch the "good time coming." We failed to realize that it had to be won by the sweat of our brow in as literal a sense as each military success was won at the point of the bayonet. We have been disappointed, and that disappointment is finding expression in an attitude of pessimism, a desire to let things go, a disinclination to do our part in the estab-

How often did man, hopelessly routed in argument, take refuge in its continued repetition! Of all statements, it was ever the one best calculated to rouse exasperated fury in the heart of a feminine opponent. Even in these enlightened days one still hears it—implied if not actually expressed—in this man-governed world. And still it is hotly repeated by woman. That resentment is often justified. More often it is mistaken. The woman in the home has more power than ever accrued to her sister in shop or office. In the home she is the power behind the throne. That is "what every woman knows." In the play of that name, the successful politician exclaims in amazement. "Perhaps you were helping me all the time, though neither of us knew it." The man—poor, innocent!—may think that "neither of us" knew it, but the woman knows better. Never had women more scope for the exercise of their power than they have to-day. They can make their influence felt through their voting power, it is true, and they are doing so, but they can also make it felt through bringing it to bear on their husbands, sons and brothers, on the breadwinners of their households. The times we live in are sadly out of joint. The war has been over for nearly four years, but the aftermath of war is not yet ready. We expected too much from the return of peace; we were too ready to snatch the "good time coming." We failed to realize that it had to be won by the sweat of our brow in as literal a sense as each military success was won at the point of the bayonet. We have been disappointed, and that disappointment is finding expression in an attitude of pessimism, a desire to let things go, a disinclination to do our part in the establishment of that new world of our dreams. And this is just where women can help to put things right. We may not have the opportunity of doing anything heroic, but we can play our part in thinking things out and putting them in order. It is the women who suffer most from the present wave of unemployment. It is the women who have to do without the things they had come to look upon as necessities. It is they who have to pinch and scrape to make the deficiencies seem less trying to those who depend on their care. And, realizing as we do these evils, it is we who must point out their cure. We are under no illusions about high wages. And generally we could make a shrewd guess at the reason for no wages at all. We know from our own experience that cheap living can only come from abundant supplies, that abundant and cheap goods mean ready sales, that ready sales mean work for all, and that work for all means prosperity for the nation. We know that without national prosperity we cannot enjoy individual prosperity, and we see clearly that at present something is wrong. That something is the disinclination to do our individual best. It will have to be got rid of if we are to keep the place among the nations to which our history and traditions entitle us. We women who are the power behind the throne must put an end to it. WHUFI! Most of Us Are Just Out of the Jungle

James Harvey Robinson, an American Writer, Probes the Mind of Modern Man and Finds That It Is a Bundle of Brutish Prejudices.

By Professor W. T. Allison.

Jonathan Swift indulged in bitter satire at the expense of humanity. It is said that the gloomy dean liked human beings as individuals, but in toto he regarded them as "the most pernicious race of little, odious vermin in that Nature ever suffered to crawl upon the surface of the earth." After reading "The Mind in the Making" (Harper and Bros., New York; Munsion Book Co., Toronto), I infer that its author, Mr. James Harvey Robinson, of the New School for Social Research, New York, has come to the same conclusion as Swift. This American sociologist certainly has a low opinion of even the smartest of his fellow-countrymen, to say nothing of the benighted people of other lands. He takes off his hat to Darwin, Huxley and all professors of modern science, to Edison, Bell, Marconi and other inventors, to Stephenson, Henry Ford and all wizards of locomotion and transportation; but when he surveys the average, even the superior, philosopher, economist, politician, religionist, and teacher of to-day, he utters an exclamation of disgust. These gentlemen may think that they are extremely intelligent and very progressive but in the eyes of this American thinker they are just out of the jungle and in point of intellectual accomplishment are near cousins of the tiger and the ape. As the literature of attack is always more stimulating than that of compliment, and as Mr. Robinson has learned the art of putting abstract truth into concrete form so that he who runs may read, the reader who avoids ponderous tomes on psychology will find that this volume is not nearly so forbidding as the title would imply.

WE ARE JUST OUT OF THE JUNGLE

Last week we were considering some eventful passages in the life of our ancestors of the tree and cave who flourished as a couple of hundred thousand years ago. No doubt Charles G. D. Roberts smiled as he wrote his romance of prehistoric times to think how far humanity had advanced in countless ages. But Mr. Robinson says we are still a race of low-browed primitives. He declares that our roots are still embedded in savagery and that we are never wholly uncivilized. "Man is not naturally a 'progressive' animal. He shares the tendency of all other animal tribes 'just to pull through and reproduce his kind.' The majority of men are nothing but fun-buffers and muddlers. Humanity would never have developed what we are pleased to call civilization had it not been for the few chosen vessels, men of creative intelligence whom the herd follows and thoughtlessly imitate. There is small credit due to us for following where the restless and adventurous spirits point the way. 'Even an ape,' says Mr. Robinson with a spurt of sarcasm, 'will fit himself into a civilized environment. A Chimpanzee can be taught to relish bicycles, roller skates and cigarettes which he could never have devised, cannot understand, and could not reproduce. Even so with mankind. Most of us could not have devised, do not understand, and consequently could not reproduce any of the everyday conveniences and luxuries which surround us. Few of us could make an electric light, or write a good novel to read by, or paint a picture for it to shine upon. As it was in the beginning, is now and ever shall be, is our protest against being disturbed, forced to think, or to change our habits. So history, namely change, has been mainly due to a small number of 'seers' who pull through and recently 'progressive.' He has spent almost his whole existence as a savage hunter, and in that state of ignorance he illustrated on a magnificent scale all the inherent weaknesses of the human mind."

CIVILIZATION ONLY ONE YEAR ABOVE SAVAGERY

Mr. Robinson calculates that our race has been living on the earth for at least five hundred thousand years. W. J. Bryan would not agree with this estimate, but I imagine that most scientists would say that the guess was conservative. Now, supposing that a single generation of men had

It is determined by his hopes, fears, and desires, by his likes and dislikes, by his loves and hates and resentments. Most of the time it circles about his beloved ego. We do this kind of thinking with great rapidity but this author thinks that none of us would care to get rich by selling our thoughts. They are far too intricate, personal, ignoble or trivial to permit us to reveal more than a few of them even to our most intimate friends. We find it hard to believe that other people's thoughts are as silly as our own, but they probably are. It is comforting for some of us to think that these old-wisacres, these grave oracles, seemingly so profound, would blush terribly if only one reel of their foolish imaginings were displayed to the public gaze.

WHAT A MAN MAY THINK OF DURING HIS PRAYERS

Concentration of mind is really a difficult task for men and women at this stage of mental development. At least 50 per cent of our boys and girls are failures at school because they are given to reverie. Crowns-up chase the fleeting phantoms of the brain even when they are in church or at prayer. Most preachers would be inclined to stop at first if they could in some process of mind-reading discover the errant fancies of a seemingly attentive congregation. A church is regarded by too many people as a noble place in which to indulge in day dreams. And is it not true that even the best of men, wander in thought during prayer? I cannot tell. Sometimes I find that I had forgot what I was about, but when I began to forget I cannot tell. A memory of yesterday's pleasures, a fear of to-morrow's dangers, a straw under my shoe, a noise in mine ear, a light in mine eye, anything, a nothing, a fancy, a chimera in my brain trouble me in my prayer.

WHY OUR SO-CALLED REASONING IS SHALLOW.

We have need to be ashamed of this butterfly habit of mind, but what about our concentrated thought, our reasoning, our philosophizing, our skill in argument? Have we not scored some great triumphs in this direction? Alas, let us heap dust upon our heads, let us don sackcloth, and sit on the ashpile, for James Harvey Robinson points his finger of scorn at us and declares that our so-called reasoning consists in finding argument for going on believing as we already do. He calls this process of justifying our inherited prejudices and routine beliefs "rationalizing," and defines this as "the self-exculpation which occurs when we fear ourselves, or our group accused of misapprehension or error." When we are told that we are wrong we resent the imputation and harden our hearts. "The little word 'my' is the most important one in all human affairs, and it is the beginning of wisdom. It has the force whether it is my dinner, my dog, and my house, or my faith, my country, and my God. We not only resent the imputation that our way is wrong or our car is shabby, but that our conception of the canals of Mars, or the pronunciation of Epictetus, or the date of Sargon I are subject to revision. Thousands of argumentative works have been written to vent a grudge. A history of philosophy and theology could be written in terms of grouches, wounded pride, and aversions, and it would be far more instructive than the usual treatments of religious themes. Because of this Mr. Robinson is inclined to believe that perhaps almost all that has passed for social, scientific, political economy, politics, and ethics in the past will be brushed aside by future generations as mainly rationalizing. He thinks that philosophy, especially metaphysics, has already gone into the discard. He writes much of this book to illustrate his contention that the fact that an idea is ancient and that it has been widely received is no argument in its favor, but should immediately suggest the necessity of carefully testing it as a probable instance of rationalization.

HOW TO RISE ABOVE PREJUDICE.

According to this writer, the greatest kind of thought, what he calls creative thought, is that which leads us to change our mind. It is this kind of thought that has raised man from his primitive, subsavage ignorance and squatter to the degree of knowledge, and comfort which he now possesses. All scientific discoveries have resulted from this kind of thinking and this writer indulges himself in a long lament because man has not made corresponding progress in the religious, economic and political fields. Much as I admire the suggestive material in this ably-written book, I must say, however, that Mr. Robinson seems too contemptuous of human thought in general and of that of antiquity in particular. He flays poor muddle-headed human beings for holding decided opinions on questions of which they know next to nothing, but this omniscience which he dislikes so much in others is not altogether lacking in his own book. He has a habit of making sweeping statements which he has persuaded himself are absolutely true, but many of his intimated passages would create furious debate in any company of intelligent men. However the general teaching of this book is good. We should examine our most cherished beliefs to try to see whether they are grounded on fact. Only in this way can we rise above prejudice. In spite of Mr. Robinson's thinly-veiled contempt for ancient thought, especially in the department of religion, he might well have written on his title page a quotation from a Creative Thinker of long ago, "Pro all things; hold fast that which is good."

DID THE TRICK

The little daughter of the house visits an elderly woman next door frequently. She had been warned repeatedly not to ask for anything to eat, and when she came home munching a biscuit and jam the other day her mother asked, 'Did you ask for something to eat after all I've told you about that?' 'No, mama, I just said, 'Well, I guess I'll go home and get some things to eat,' and she gave me some.'

INVESTIGATOR HERE TO PLACE DUTCH SETTLERS

Seeks Outlet for Farmers and Supply of Lumber for Indies Is Impressed With Opportunity for Bulb Farm

Looking into the question of emigration of Dutch from the Netherlands, and from the East Indies, J. A. Smidt, of Groningen, is registered at the Dominion Hotel.

Immediately on his arrival Saturday he began closely to examine Vancouver Island conditions, being immediately impressed with the advantages offered by this island. Looking for insular conditions preferably, and an equable climate, after extensive travel, he expects to make a favorable report to the Dutch Foreign Office, and to the newspapers to which he is contributing in Rotterdam.

That the investigator is well fitted for the task may be indicated by the fact that he has been in the Forest Service in Java, attached to an experimental station in Dutch-Guiana, and in other positions of a similar character for a number of years before setting out on this latest voyage.

In a statement to The Times he remarked that some advantage for the agricultural activities of the Dutch anxious to leave Europe is essential, while there are many planters in the East Indies who desire to make a change to some well-organized country where they have reasonable hope of a cordial welcome.

"There is also the very important factor," he proceeded, "that the Japanese must have lumber. There is plenty of lumber, it is true in Java, but the timber is located in reserves, and the government is reluctant to have it cut. The same amount of British Columbia is just what is required to give to the Netherlands Indies a supply which is essential for building construction. Large quantities of all steel construction material are annually shipped from the United States, but in a tropical country like that we must have wood.

"So far as the home country Dutch are concerned, there is no desire to emigrate on the part of the industrial population. It is entirely an agrarian problem, and I believe the island can supply us with just the class of land we want."

Bulb Farming. Taking up the question of bulb farming, in which an effort was made in the vicinity of Victoria some few years ago, the visitor expressed the opinion that there is a very great opportunity for something to be done along this line, particularly in connection with the importation of high grade stock, which would form the nucleus of sales material for future years. "Accustomed as I am to a wealth of flowers in the East and

FORTY YEARS OF SUFFERING FINALLY ENDED

Troubles Gone Entirely Now, But He Couldn't Have Held Out Much Longer Without Tanlac, Says D. McPhee—Gains 15 Pounds

"When a man has suffered like I have for forty years he knows how to appreciate good health, and when I bought Tanlac I bought good health," is the statement of D. McPhee, a well-known miner now operating his mine at Nottham Sound, B. C., Canada.

"My trouble started in 1880, and I have spent lots of money on many treatments, but kept getting worse. When I ate a few bites my stomach soured and I had to see meal time come. Rheumatism set in, and I also had to take laxatives all the time. My weight fell way off.

"Well, now I have a fine appetite and everything tastes good. I can't tell I ever had rheumatism, and I have gained fifteen pounds. I am going back to work now, and I will always sing the praise of Tanlac. Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

West Indies, I was surprised that more varieties of flowers were not to be seen in your beautiful gardens, which appear capable of growing almost anything."

A visit will be made to the experimental station at Sidney.

WORLD SHORTAGE IN TEA RESULTS IN HIGHER PRICES.

During 1919 and 1920 the greatly increased production and unlimited shipping facilities resulted in enormous quantities of tea reaching every market of the world. A consequent drop in prices was the result. To stabilize the situation, the tea growers of Ceylon and India agreed to curtail production 30% in 1921. Since that time the demand has been constantly increasing and the price rising. The recent reduction of duty on tea entering England has further increased the demand, and the price is expected to rise accordingly.

MORE SPEAKERS FOR JUNE CONVENTION FOR GOOD ROADS

Premier Bell, Prince Edward Island, Will Make Longest Journey

Several additional speakers have notified the executive of the Canadian Good Roads Association that they will participate in the ninth annual convention to be held here from June 12 to 15, and it is evident that while there will be some entertainment during these four days for the delegates, they will have full occupation for their time in the sessions of the convention, and the principal tours, etc., that have been organized by the reception committee will have to be carried out on the Friday and Saturday after the close of the business proceedings, so that delegates may count on a full week in Victoria, and as much longer as they desire to stay of the mainland. The Good Roads convention is essentially a business gathering, and the executive are allowing nothing to interfere with the programme as drawn up. They have extended the meetings from three days to four feeling that with delegates coming from such long distances the fullest opportunity must be taken of diffusing knowledge on highway matters to them, and a programme of speakers without parallel has been arranged for this purpose.

Premier Bell Coming.

Premier Bell, of Prince Edward Island, has notified the President, the Hon. Sam J. Latta, that he will head the delegation from that province to the Dominion, while R. H. Murray, President of the Nova Scotia Good Roads Association will head the group of road enthusiasts from that province. From New Brunswick, R. Downing Patterson, of the Good Roads Association in that province will bring several delegates, while Premier Taschereau has informed the Hon. Mr. Latta that while it will be impossible for him to make the journey, the Hon. J. L. Ferron, Minister of Highways, and several of the Quebec Government officials will do so. The Ontario Government will also be represented, as well as many of the good roads and automobile organizations of that province. The City of Ottawa is sending one of its commissioners, as well as A. MacCallum, Commissioner of Works. The subject of the address by A. W. Campbell, Federal Commissioner of Highways, will be "Federal Aid, Its Implications and Results," while Professor Greig of the University of Saskatchewan will give the address on drainage methods for prairie roads, with H. R. Mackenzie, chief field engineer of the Province of Saskatchewan will open the discussion on this subject.

Permanent Highways. Hon. J. P. Hartman, of Seattle, Washington, is going to give an address on "Permanent Highways," while C. W. Cornell, also of Seattle, is the speaker appointed by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, to speak on motor trucks in their relation to highways. C. A. Mullin, of Montreal, will speak on asphaltic concrete pavements, while Russell T. Kelly, of Hamilton, Vice-President of the Canadian Good Roads Association, and G. Webster, of Calgary, Alta., will lead the discussion on "Tourist Traffic." It is almost certain that A. P. Sandles, of Columbus, Ohio, one of the outstanding figures at previous conventions will be present and give a practical address on highway matters.

Illustrated Lectures. A new feature of the convention will be numerous illustrated lectures. The Federal and Provincial Governments of Canada, as well as the United States Government are supplying films showing in actual operation the different types of road construction, which will be explained by experts in furtherance of the educational campaign which is the chief object of the National Association.

THE COMMUNITY CHEST
In anticipation of possible future relief work, a certain amount of which invariably falls to the lot of almost every city during the Winter months, the Chamber of Commerce has invited F. E. Burleson, secretary of the Seattle Community Chest Fund to address the forum at a meeting in the Auditorium of the Sprout-Shaw School on Thursday evening.
Representatives of all the charitable organizations in the city have been asked to attend the meeting, which will be of particular interest in view of the recent discussion by the Chamber and other bodies respecting the advisability of co-ordinating the efforts and eliminating the overhead of so many charitable bodanswer. Again she said he would be required to speak louder. Pat got angry at this, and, turning to the lady, said: "Begorra, if I could shout any louder I wouldn't use your blooming old telephone at all!"
