TAKING ON A TASK

TASK 1

Passing a Programme Plan
The St. Andrew's Environment Action Committee has become aware of a serious environmental problem in public health. You have been asked to prepare a five-minute programme plan for the Committee. Do your best to identify clearly and state the problem, the programme goals, objectives and activities. You are asked to contact another member of the committee to find out alternative problems and goals. Take notes on your conversation and prepare a brief outline of his or her plans to be submitted with your plan to the Committee Executive Group soon for consideration.

INFORMATION

Care, Care or Prevention?

Doctors and scientists are working hard to find ways to prevent disease. They are also working hard to find ways to care for people who are already sick. The best way to care for people who are already sick is to prevent the disease in the first place. This is why prevention is so important. It can save lives and reduce the cost of health care. There are many ways to prevent disease. Some are simple, like eating a healthy diet and exercising. Others are more complex, like taking medicine or getting vaccinated. It is important to know what to do to prevent disease. This information will help you understand the importance of prevention and how to take steps to prevent disease.

Jacques Chirac

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Jacques René Chirac (/ˈʒɑːk ʃɪˈræk/; French pronunciation: [ʒak ʃi.ʁak]; born 29 November 1932) is a French politician who served as President of France from 1995 to 2007. He previously served as Prime Minister of France from 1974 to 1976 and from 1986 to 1988 (making him the only person to hold the position of Prime Minister twice under the Fifth Republic), and as Mayor of Paris from 1977 to 1995.

After completing his DEA degree at the Institut d'études politiques de Paris, a term at Harvard University and the École nationale d'administration (ENA), Chirac began his career as a high-level civil servant, and soon entered politics. He subsequently occupied various senior positions, including Minister of Agriculture, Minister of the Interior, Prime Minister, Mayor of Paris, and finally President of the French Republic.

Chirac's internal policies included lower tax rates, the removal of price controls, strong punishment for crime and terrorism, and business privatisation.^[1] He also argued for more socially responsible economic policies, and was elected in 1995 after campaigning on a platform of healing the "social rift" (fracture sociale).^[2] After less statist policy when he was Prime Minister (1986–1988), he changed his method. Then, his economic policies, based on dirigisme, state-directed ideals, stood in opposition to the laissez-faire policies of the United Kingdom, which Chirac famously described as "Anglo-Saxon ultraliberalism".^[3] Chirac is the second-longest serving President of France (two full terms, the first of seven years and the second of five years), after François Mitterrand. As President, he also served as an ex officio Co-Prince of Andorra and Grand Master of the French Légion d'honneur.

On 15 December 2011, the Paris court declared him guilty of diverting public funds and abusing public confidence, and gave Chirac a two-year suspended prison sentence.
