FOREWORD

at the way w

The verses in this primary reader are selected from the volumes of Edmund Vance Cooke, with a few poems added, which have not before been between covers.

It has been abundantly proved that school children are fond of hearing these poems and the opportunity is now offered for the poems to be read as part of the school work.

Not all of these verses are in strictly proper English, for sometimes the childish pronunciation or locution has been followed as in "The Sin of the Coppenter-Man," "Lest Ye Be Judged," and others. "Almotht Theven" has been included as sufficiently amusing and interesting to the child to warrant the forbidding appearance of the printed reproduction of a childish lisp.

Perhaps it is as well to recognize that children are aware, from early life, that there is another English than the somewhat prim language of the schoolroom. So why should they not be taught, equally early, to distinguish (in some degree) between the intelligent use of unorthodox English to give a flavor to literature and that use which merely is the mark of carelessness and ignorance?

The refrain of "The Monkey Man" may be used to illustrate the importance of rhythm, pointing out how the "words" which really say nothing at all yet manage to convey the joy of the child by the rollicking rhythm. In "Leopold," it may be worth noting that the entire story is rhymed on the one sound throughout. In general, however, it is the intention that the verses be read for whatever pure joy there is in them.

CHEERFUL CHILDREN

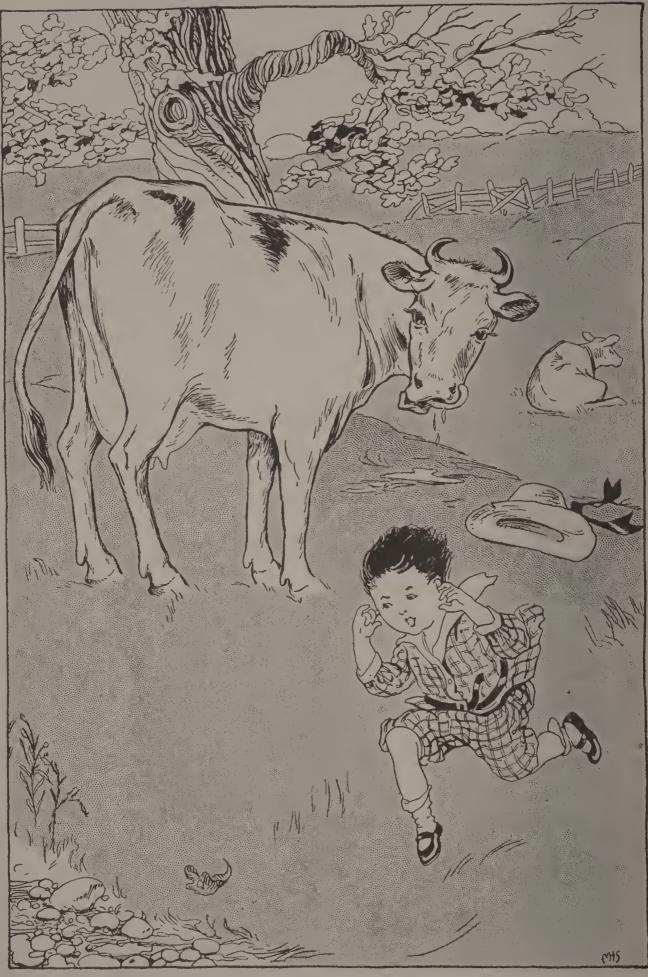

THE MOO-COW-MOO

My pa held me up to the moo-cow-moo So close I could almost touch,

And I fed him a couple of times, or two, And I wasn't a 'fraid-cat—much.

- But if my papa goes into the house, And Mamma, she goes in, too,
- I just keep still like a little mouse, For the moo-cow-moo might moo!
- The moo-cow-moo's got a tail like a rope And it's raveled down where it grows, And it's just like feeling a piece of soap All over the moo-cow's nose.

And the moo-cow-moo has lots of fun Just swinging his tail about; And he opens his mouth and then I run— 'Cause that's where the moo comes out.

And the moo-cow-moo's got deers on his headAnd his eyes stick out of their place,And the nose of the moo-cow-moo is spreadAll over the end of his face.

And his feet are nothing but finger-nailsAnd his mamma don't keep 'em cut;And he gives folks milk in water pails,If he don't keep his handles shut.

'Cause if you or me pulls the handles, why The moo-cow-moo says it hurts;But the hired man he sits down close by And squirts and squirts and squirts.

THE ELEPHANT SHIP

Oh, the elephant looks like a big balloon And his tough skin never will tear, So we'll blow in his trunk and pretty soon He'll be all filled up with air.

Oh! oh! Take a big breath and blow! For if we blow up the elephant's hide, Maybe he'll give us an airship ride.

And then, when the air is heated through, He can do the funniest things.Perhaps he can fly, like the birdies do, If he flaps his ears like wings.

My! my! Won't it be fun to fly! For if we blow up the elephant's hide, Maybe he'll give us an airship ride.

And then, when the elephant lets us ride, We never will use a goad,

For if we should prick the elephant's hide, Why, the elephant might explode!

00-00!

I'm sure that never would do,

For if we should prick the elephant's hide, We'd never come back from the airship ride.

AT DARK

As I lay me down to sleep, I pray my slumber may be deep, That I may rise when night is gone And gladly greet the smiling dawn.

So may I rise refreshed and strong To do the right and shun the wrong; Thus I pray my sleep be blest As I lay me down to rest.

AT DAWN

Another day and I arise And look up to the morning skies.

And if the day be fair and bright, Oh, let my face reflect its light! For what am I that I should whine When all the world is fair and fine?

But if the skies be dark, I pray That I be better than the day; Oh, let all outer gloom depart, Nor chill the weather of my heart!

SONNY BOY

Sonny boy, sonny boy, have you heard the news?
All the world is wide awake and putting on its shoes!
The sun is like a golden bug acrawling up the sky;
Come! get up and wash your face and hang it out to dry.

THE COOKY MOON

The cooky moon hangs in the evening sky,

All sugary, round, and sweet;
I suppose it was hung up there so high, So no one would get it to eat.
But still there's a way to get a bite For good little girls and boys,
If only they go to sleep at night Without any fuss or noise.

> So close one peeper and shut one eye So that we'll reach it soon. All the babies from By-lo-by, All the darlings of Drowsy-eye, From Nap-on-a-lap and Sleepy-sigh, On pillows of clouds piled high, so high,

> They all come sailing across the sky To come to the cooky moon.

And when it is gone, why the Moon-man takes

And makes us another one;

And it's always bright on the days he bakes, For he cooks it in the sun.

And then, when it's sugary, shiny-bright, The good little children come,

And they eat the cooky moon bite by bite,

And every star is a crumb.

So close one peeper and shut one eye, So that we'll reach it soon.

All the babies from By-lo-by,

All the darlings of Drowsy-eye,

From Nap-on-a-lap and Sleepy-sigh,

- On pillows of clouds piled high, so high,
- They all come sailing across the sky To come to the cooky moon.

THE HIGH GIRAFFE

Oh, the high giraffe has a peaky-weaky head, And his body is stuck on stilts,

With a spotty-wotty skin all over him spread,

Like one of my grandma's quilts;

And he's all down hill, like a slide-down rail, From his peaky-weaky head to his tweakyweaky tail.

So we'll go sliding, sliding,

Won't it be fine and fun? So we'll go riding, riding—

Giddap! and make him run. Sliding, riding and gliding,

All on a living rail,

And to save us a bump at the very last jump,

We'll cling to his tweaky tail.

Oh, the high giraffe is a bendy-wendy thing, And he's made with a middle joint;

So we'll hang to his handle-horns and swing Right back to the starting-point;

So it's up we swing and it's down we slide And it's stick to the middle for a joltywolty ride.

So we'll go sliding, sliding,

Won't it be fine and fun? So we'll go riding, riding—

Giddap! and make him run. Sliding, riding and gliding,

All on a living rail, And to save us a bump at the very last jump, We'll cling to his tweaky tail.

TABLE TALK

If, at table, you should cough Till your head comes almost off, I have sometimes heard it said, You might turn away your head Without being thought ill bred.

"Please" is not considered rude When you pass your plate for food, And it very seldom ranks With the most ill-mannered pranks, If you take it back with "Thanks."

You are not compelled to take Over half the jelly cake, And because the pie's refused Do not fear to be abused; Force is very seldom used.

Should your father or your mother Venture to address each other, Though you feel you might complain, It will not be thought profane If you manage to refrain.

If you've work or play to do, You may leave when you are through, But "Excuse me," when one rises Seldom shocks or scandalizes, Or occasions pained surprises.

Manners are of no avail To keep any one in jail. True politeness, calm and quiet, Very rarely causes riot. If you doubt me, children, try it.

MRS. SANTA CLAUS

How on Earth did the fiction grow That Santa Claus is a man? Ho, ho! Santa Claus is a woman. There! I make the assertion fair and square And you may repeat it everywhere.

How do I know that the thing is true? 'Tis simple enough. I'll leave it to you. Who knows what you want for Christmas? Say! Is it a man who goes away Right after breakfast and stays all day?

Or is it a woman who's always by With the light of love in her watching eye? Why, a Santa Claus man would bring white rats

To a girl whose chief delight was cats, And books to a boy who wanted bats!

And the Christmas stocking—can you dream That a man conceived that clever scheme? A man would have got a clumsy box

And bothered with nails and screws and locks,

Or, at the best, would have hung up socks.

And then the name. Who ever heard Of a man named "Santy"? It's absurd. But everyone knows how little folks name A dear friend "Auntie," just the same As though they really had kinship's claim.

And so it happened that people came To think 't was really her given name; And this, by a natural error, was Changed soon to "Santie" just because She was known as "Mrs. Auntie Claus."

TWO LITTLE SERVING MEN

Two little serving men have I, And one is strong and very spry. He loves to hammer, plane and saw, To write and sometimes, even draw. He takes my hat and hangs it up; He reaches down my drinking-cup; He winds my top, and throws my ball. I couldn't get along at all Without this little serving man Who helps me out in every plan.

The other sympathizes, too, But is not half so quick to do. Some things he does quite well, but my! Some others he won't even try. He will not split the kindling wood, And yet, he is so very good He holds it while the other chops. He also helps him wind my tops; But spin them? He can't spin at all. You ought to see him throw a ball! Just like a girl! and — it's a shame, But he can hardly write his name. And yet, these serving men are twins, And look as like as two new pins. I think perhaps you'll understand If you should know their name. It's Hand, And one, you know, is Right and deft; And one, of course, is slow and Left.

And yet, you know, I often find That if I'm calm with Left, and kind, He'll do a lot of things, although He's awkward and a little slow; And so I often think perhaps He's much like me and other chaps, Who know enough to do our part, But some quick fellow, extra smart, Jumps in and does it first, and so We just get used to being slow. And that's the way we don't get trained, Because, perhaps we're just left-brained!

GRANDMOTHER'S SONG

Grandmother's voice was always mild, And at everyday troubles she always smiled; For she used to say Frowns did n't pay,

As she had learned when a little child. So whenever we cried for a fancied wrong, Grandmother used to sing this song:

> "To-day, to-day, Let's all be gay; To-morrow We may sorrow. My dear, don't fret For what's not yet,

For you make a trouble double when you borrow."

Ah me! 'tis many a lonesome year

Since grandmother's song has reached my ear;

And I sigh my sigh

For the days gone by,

For you went with them, grandmother dear. But I still have left your quaint old song, And that I shall sing and pass along:

"To-day, to-day,

Let's all be gay;

To-morrow

We may sorrow.

My dear, don't fret

For what's not yet,

For you make a trouble double when you borrow."

CRADLE SONG

(From the German of Hoffman von Fallersleben) To sleep the corn is sinking,

For heavy hangs its head; The timid flowers are shrinking

From darkness in their bed.

And evening breezes flocking,

Like little angels blest, Come softly, softly rocking

The corn and flowers to rest.

And, as the flowerets shrinking,So timid, too, art thou,And as the corn-heads sinkingSo nods thy dear head now.

And sounds of evening, winging Like little angels blest, Come softly, softly singing My darling one to rest.

BABYKIN-BOYKIN-BOO!

(A Nonsense Rhyme)

- Did the baskety woman a-sweeping the sky Discover the babykin there?
- Did she tumble him down from his nest on high

Through all of the sky-blue air?

Did she find there was never a room to spare

In the toe of her sister's shoe?

Surely that was enough to scare

The Babykin-Boykin-Boo!

- Did the Moon-man give him a half a crown And tell him he'd better be born?
- And with Jacky and Jill was he tumbled down

One summery, shiny morn?

Or did Babykin-Boykin come to town On the cow with the crumpled horn? Did the Babykin lie on her back asleep On a mattress of genuine hair?
And did Simon the Simple and Little Bopeep Come skipping along to the Fair?
Did they blow a terrible, terrible blare On the horn of Little Boy Blue,
To wake him up with an awful scare?

Poor Babykin-Boykin Boo!

But if Babykin-Boykin now will stay,

We'll feed him on victuals and drink,

And the Muffety maiden will give him some whey

And a pat of curds, I think.

And the toes of the Banbury dame shall play, And her fingery bells go "chink,"

And the hey-diddle cow shall jump in the air As high as she used to do.

Oh, dear me! but she must not scare Our Babykin-Bovkin-Boo!

WHINY AND SHINY

Whiny and Shiny are two little elves

Who have a strange habit of swapping themselves.

Perhaps you are visiting Shiny, when, pop!

- Along comes old Whiny and tells you to stop.
- And you're willing to stop, for, while Shiny is jolly,
- Poor Whiny is mad of a sad melancholy.

Go 'way, Whiny!

Come back, Shiny!

- Come back, little Shiny, I see you there peeping
- From back of old Whiny. And Shiny comes leaping.

Gladsome and Badsome are certainly twins; But one of them quits where the other begins. When one of them peeps from a little boy's face,

The other one takes himself off of the place. Wherever the first is, the other can't stay;

If the second comes back, then the first runs away.

Go 'way, Badsome!

Come back, Gladsome!

For Gladsome is just round the corner and hoping

His owner will call him. And back he comes loping.

Cheerful and Tearful are curious creatures; They are nothing alike, yet they have the same features.

But Tearful's a bad little imp who annoys

The fathers of girls and the mothers of boys,

- For he blurs the bright eyes of the sunniest darling
- And frets a sweet voice till he gets it to snarling.

Go 'way, Tearful!

Come back, Cheerful!

- For Cheerful is brimming with music and laughter,
- And wherever he comes, sunshine follows him after.

A CIRCUS EVERY DAY

Oh, what a circus a circus life must be, Parading every morning for admiring folks to see! Spangles, bangles everywhere, Prancing, dancing ponies there, Bands a-playing "Boom-ba-chink!" Folks hurrahing—only think! If it's such a lark to see it, What fun it must be to be it!

Oh, what a circus to know that every day
You can be a circus at the ladies' matinee,
Hanging by your toes and knees
On the flying high trapeze,

Turning somersaults and things, Riding round the triple rings— If it's such a treat to see it, What fun it must be to be it!

Oh, what a circus a circus life must be!

To have another circus in the evening after tea,

Then to travel, oh, so far!

In the "sacred heifer's" car,

While the engine goes "Whoot-choo!"

At the hop-toad kangaroo,

And the chimpanzee grows frantic

At the ring-tail's newest antic.

Oh, what a circus a circus life—but say!
It might not seem a circus if we had it every day,
Every morning marching gayly;

Afternoon performance daily;

Every night another show

And then have to travel so.

Oh, it may be fun to see it,

But think what a bore to be it!

THE HORRIBLE EXAMPLES

- Little Clara Cough-it-off felt very much abused
- And coughed to make her mamma think that she was badly used.
- She found it rather hard at first, but practice made it easy,
- Till she could cough as good as though she really were disease-y!
- She coughed against her medicine and said it made her sick;
- She coughed because they wouldn't give her back the spoon to lick.
- She coughed until she had to cough and went "Cu-huh, cu-hoo!"
- When any one suggested that she tried to cough—like you.
- Little Tommie Try-to-cry had all the world could buy

- And everything besides, except a good excuse to cry,
- And so he cried at breakfast-time, because it came so soon,
- He cried at luncheon also, because supper came at noon.
- He cried again at dinner-time, because it made him weep;
- He cried because his bed was bad and made him go to sleep.
- He cried because he cried, and crying made his eyes so dim;
- He cried because he saw you cry and thought you looked like him.
- Little Polly Pout-about was always finding fault;
- She didn't like her milk, because the sea had too much salt.
- She didn't like the sun, because it wouldn't shine at night;
- She didn't like the snow, because it made the ground so white.

- She hated maple sugar, because lemons were so sweet;
- She hated custard pie, because the goldfish had no feet.
- She did n't like bad little boys, because a hen has fur;
- She doesn't like you either, as you sometimes look like her.

THE SIN OF THE COPPENTER-MAN The coppenter-man said a wicked word, When he hitted his thumb one day, And I know what it was, because I heard— And it's something I dassent say.

We live in a house with rooms inside,
And the rooms are full of floors;
It's my papa's house, and when it was buyed,
It was nothing but just outdoors.

And they planted stones in a hole for seeds,And that's how the house began,But I bet the stones would have just growed weeds,

Except for the coppenter-man.

The coppenter-man's got a face all black, With a bib sewed onto his pants, With pockets in front and round the back, And he makes a house grow like plants. And the coppenter-man said a wicked word, When he hitted his thumb that day; And I know what it was, because I heard— And it's something I dassent say.

And then he took lots of window-holes,But he wouldn't tell where he found 'em,And then he sawed out some sticks and poles,And he grew a house right round 'em.

And the black on his face is n't soft like fuzz,'Cause he rubbed his face on me,And it felt like the fur of a chestnut doesWhen it just gets off the tree.

And the coppenter-man took a board and said He'd skin it and make some curls,
And he hung 'em onto my ears and head,
And he made me look like girls.

And he squinted along one side, he did, And he squinted the other side twice,

- And then he told me, "You squint it, kid," 'Cause the coppenter-man's real nice.
- But the coppenter-man said a wicked word, When he hitted his thumb that day; He said it out loud, too, 'cause I heard— And it's something I dassent say.
- But the coppenter-man said it wasn't bad, When you hitted your thumb, kerspat! And there'd be no coppenter-men to be had, If it wasn't for words like that.
- And if there wasn't no coppenter-men, We'd all have to live in the barn, 'Cause there wouldn't be any houses, and then,
 - Then what would we do—by darn!

* * * * *

And the coppenter-man said a wicked word,When he hitted his thumb that day,And I know what it was, because I heard—And it's something I dassent say!

SPINDLE, SPRADDLE AND SPUD Spindle is a sweeter child than any child can be;

- Spraddle is the sweetest on the land or on the sea;
- Spuddy is the sweetest little baby of the three;
- Each of them is sweet, because they all belong to me.

Spindle, Spraddle and Spud.

Peaches "loves a bushel," as she clings about my neck;

- Pippin says she loves me more, she loves me "'most a peck";
- Poddy says she loves me just a "weeny, teeny speck";
- And in the love of each of them is neither flaw nor fleck—

In Peaches, Pippin and Pod.

Wiggle is a lily of the garden on its toes;

- Waggle is a wild flower, the wildest one that grows;
- Wutkin is an orchid, with the freckles on its nose;
- And all of them together are a shamrock, I suppose!

Wiggle, Waggle and Wut.

- Bubble is the sunlight, as it sets the morning free;
- Babble is the moonlight, as it shines upon the sea;

- Buddy is the firelight, as it crackles in its glee;
- All of them are love-light to illume the life of me—

Bubble, Babble and Bud.

- Ariel has bound me with a girdle round my heart;
- Cupid's eye has glanced at me and pierced me with its dart;
- Puck has sure bewitched me with a wee and wily art;
- Famous folk are these, but each one has a counterpart

In Spindle, Spraddle and Spud.

THE CRUISE OF THE GOOD SHIP LITTLE TOT

Do you know the ocean called Nursery Floor? You think it a safe sea, like as not,

But the Rug-Reef lies in a dangerous spot And the Table-Leg and the Open-Door

Are perilous rocks for the "Little Tot"; Unbuoyed, unbelled and unmarked by a light

To pilot the venturous mariner right.

Yet the "Little Tot" bravely prepares to start,

And weighing anchor at Papa's knee,

And pointing a course to take the lee

Of Bedside Ledges, she studies her chart. And to Mamma's Lap Harbor forth sails she.

And it's yo ho ho, and all hands stand by! And it's steer by the light in the Harbor eye.

- A lurch to port and a starboard list; Steady, there, steady; keep her straight! 'T is a terrible sea to navigate.
- A stagger, a plunge and a sudden twist;She is going aground as sure as fate!And Mamma's Lap Harbor and Papa's KneePull the good ship "Little Tot" out of the sea!

LEOPOLD

This is the story of Leopold, A man of the world just five years old, A little bit wise and a little bit bold, Who wanted a guinea of gold.

Poor little, sad little five-year-old, Of woes of greediness never told, Too much charmed by the gleamy gold, Wanted one piece "to have and to hold."

Papa might laugh and mamma might scold, Toys grow tarnished or gray with mold, Porridge be hot or porridge be cold, Little cared little Leopold.

Out of the house the little boy strolled And round and round the blue eyes rolled, Always looking for gold, gold, gold. Money was everywhere—wealth untold— Copper and silver and glistening gold, Greedily grasped and stingily doled, Cheated for, fought for, bought and sold.

Across the counters it slid and rolled, And big steel safes looked cross and cold And stretched their arms to catch and hold, As a miser does, the gleamy gold. And who could have forced, or who cajoled One piece from their grasping, clasping hold?

Tired, so tired, grew our five-year-old; (Gold-hunting feet should be harder soled) And the big church bell the death-knell tolled Of by-gone hours, till at last he strolled Into a street of a different mold, Where nothing was bought and nothing sold.

Ho! sniffed sad little Leopold, As if to say that to search for gold In a place where none of it round him rolled Were foolish in a wise five-year-old. He turned to go, when, lo and behold! Down at his feet in the untrod mold Lay a bright guinea of gold, gold, gold! But no one ever has seen or told Of a satisfied searcher after gold; "I'll look for some more!" cried Leopold.

Now aren't we all, like the five-year-old, After something gleamy as gold? And perhaps the prize we hope to hold Is down the street we haven't strolled, So be a bit wise and a little bit bold, But don't be greedy like Leopold!

TALK

- Here's a lesson, little children, for all pupils over three,
- Including dad and mother, Uncle Ichabod and me,
- For although you think you manage so you neither slip nor balk,
- Yet the fact is very plain to all—you've never learned to talk!
- For I find that all who know you, even little Bud and Sis,
- Agree that quite too often

, this.

like

up

shrieks

voice

your

Great Ganders! little children, that is not the way to speak!

- Your voice is not a rusty hinge. You should n't let it squeak.
- For, remember, I am listening and the way you squeal and squawk
- Will very likely be the way that I shall learn to talk.
- And another thing, I pray you! oh, beware the black abyss!
- For I have heard that sometimes you have growled

it

down

like this.

60

- A voice is not an aero, cutting capers in the skies,
- A voice is not a submarine to hurt and terrorize.
- No, it's much more like an auto, as it skims along the ground
- And you can tell it's working well by listening to its sound,
- So keep it timed and tuned and let it neither knock nor miss
- And it will—burble—gently—on—its—even —way—like—this.

MR. JACK-O'-LANTERN

Oh, Mr. Jack-O'-Lantern's come to town! He's the Hallowe'en comedian and clown.

Though he has but one expression, which is never more nor less,

- His annual engagement is a most distinct success;
- He plays the country all at once and everywhere he is
- The gleeful children try to stretch a grin as broad as his,
- For every laugh's a friend and every enemy's a frown,

When Mr. Jack-O'-Lantern comes to town.

Oh, Mr. Jack-O'-Lantern's come to town;He's a gentleman of polish and renown.He never winks at ladies, which is good of him, I think,

Though that may be because no lids are on his eyes to wink.

- He never pokes his nose in our affairs (and that's no joke),
- Although the reason may be that he has no nose to poke.
- He never drinks to drown his cares. There are no cares to drown,

When Mr. Jack-O'-Lantern comes to town.

When Mr. Jack-O'-Lantern comes to town

- There are doings fore and aft and up and down.
- There are tick-tacks on the window, there are apples in the tub;
- There are strings upon the sidewalk waiting for a toe to stub;
- There are lovers in the kitchen toasting chestnuts in the dark,
- And the chestnuts and the lovers huddle closer, as they spark.
- The pumpkin-head's our patron saint and folly is his crown,

When Mr. Jack-O'-Lantern comes to town.

Oh, Mr. Jack-O'-Lantern's leaving town.

The oven turns his yellow face to brown.

As he was so empty-headed, some folks said he was a dunce,

But when we fed him candles, why, his face lit up at once!

And now his light is sputtered out and Halloween is by,

We scrape the tallow off his hide and bake him into pie.

His mellow life is yielded up that we may smack it down,

As Mr. Jack-O'-Lantern's leaving town.

THE SNUGGYBUD

The Snuggybud cried till he blistered his hide,

For a Snuggybud peppers his tears,

So he built him a trough which would carry them off

By running them into his ears;

But pray tell me why should a Snuggybud cry,

No matter what sorrow he feels,

When he's cracking a fig on the top of his wig

With a hammer he holds in his heels?

Snuggybud, have you got an elbow on your knee?

- Snuggybud, can you cook a cup of coffeetea?
- Snuggybud, Snuggybud, oh, dear me!

The Snuggybud stood on the top of a wood Till the water rolled over the tree,

And he said "If I'm sick, I shall know pretty quick,

For I'll take out my stomach to sea."

"Yes," the Snuggybud said, as he turned on his head,

"I ate a most suitable supper,

But I swallowed it up like a dog and a pup, And now I must swallow it upper."

- Snuggybud, is the buzzard buzzing like a bee?
- Snuggybud, does the seesaw ever saw the sea?
- Snuggybud, Snuggybud, oh, dear me!

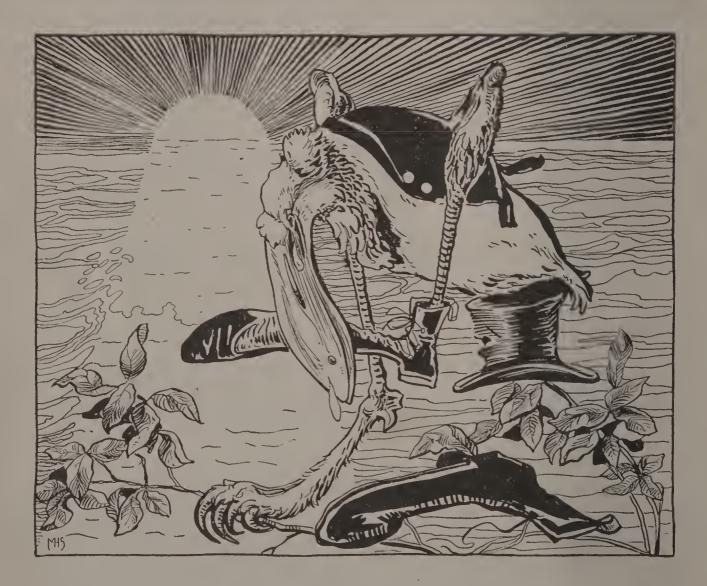

The Snuggybud sat on his Sunday hat

And gazed at the top of his head,

While he polished his toes with the end of his nose

And the blacking he used was red. But the Snuggybud's shoes were twenty-twos And his nose was a number nine, And his brow was so wet with a wintery sweat That he never could polish a shine.

Snuggybud, can you take a door and lock a key? Snuggybud, can you count up to X Y Z? Snuggybud, Snuggybud, oh, dear me!

WEENY WEE BEAR

Once I told the baby boy a story— Not a tale of ancient fame and glory, Not of castles grim and battles gory, Yet he loved it well; Parted little lips drank in its treasure, Shining little eyes poured out their pleasure, Bubbling laughter everflowed its measure

Bubbling laughter overflowed its measure, As he heard me tell:

> "Once there was an awful bear I knew, Old He Bear, And his wife was just as awful, too, Old She Bear, And they had a baby, Much like you are, maybe, Darling little baby Wee Bear!"

> > 69

Then I'd be the papa bear and send him To a corner where the sofa penned him, Just as though the angry bear had denned him,

Hungry to the core, Till in terror, only half pretended, He would beg that "Papa Bear" be ended; Then, up to my ready arms ascended,

"Tell me just once more

'Bout the little boy 'at got in there At He Bear's,
And he went and sat down in the chair Of She Bear's.
And he ate the supper,
Ate it up and upper,
Of the teeny, weeny Wee Bear's."

What a foolish, droolish little ditty, Neither quaintly wise, nor queerly witty, Neither sprightly bright, nor neatly pretty.

Yet my heart is gray

With the longing once again to hold him,Close within these aching arms to fold him,Once again to tell him, as I told him,In our childish play:

"Once there was an awful bear I knew, Old He Bear, And his wife was just as awful, too, Old She Bear—" Yet they miss their baby, Much as I do, maybe, Little teeny, weeny Wee Bear."

"LEST YE BE JUDGED"

If mamma put out papa's clo'es
When he got out of bed,
And if he didn't like 'em, s'pose
He'd like it, if I said,
"Now, papa, don't you dare to pout; You'll catch it, if you do.
Put on those clo'es or go without, Like mamma tells you to."

Supposing, when he went to wash,

I kind of made a stamp

And hollered, "Mind you, don't you slosh And get it on your 'gamp.'

You do what mamma tells you to,

And we'll excuse those tears, You better hurry and get through Or else I'll wash your ears."

And dinner-time, s'pose I had et 'Bout everything in sight
And lots of things I wouldn't let My papa have a bite,
And then at pie-time, s'pose he'd ast To have just one more slice,
S'pose I should tell him, "Don't you dast! You know you've had it twice." And s'posin', when I spilled the ink
And papa scolded good
And asked me why I would n't think
And everything he could,
And when he'd talked an awful while,
Supposing I should say,
"Oh, papa, don't be such a trial,
Do run away and play."

Supposing he'd been good and had A penny for his pay,
And then was just a weenty bad, Supposing I should say,
"Oh, papa, you're just bad. No use To tell me what you meant.
You know that isn't an excuse; You give me back that cent!"

"ALMOTHT THEVEN"

"Children thould be theen, not heard;" Don't athk me to thay a word, 'Cauthe I've got a good excuthe, Tho there ithn't any uthe.

Papa thayth I'm thuth a lithper, He thould think that I would whithper, But that wouldn't make it thtop, For I've lost my teeth up top.

He thayth I won't have thome more, 'Till I buy thome at a thtore; Only babies teeth, thayth he, But I gueth he'th teathing me.

Thomehow I can't keep my breath, When I thay a "thee" or "eth," For it getth away from me And I just thay "eth" and "thee."

Papa thayth I needn't wearAny muth-thle anywhere,Nor to be chained up at night,'Cauth I got no teeth to bite.

Papa thayth he'd pay good money Jutht to hear me talk tho funny, And he'd walk a country mile Jutht to kith me when I thmile.

LET IT HEAL

Did you ever cut your finger till it bled, bled, bled?

And when the blood was washed away you saw, beneath the red,

The white bone shining through,

Saying grimly: "Howdy do?

- Perhaps you think it pleases me to get a glimpse of you;
- But were I to be consulted, I should say 't is very clear

I was better off, my dear,

- Before you demonstrated, with your knife, that I was here!"
- And did you bind your finger with a rag, rag, rag,
- Till it felt as big and bulky as a full flourbag?

And in a day or two,

- Did you look at it anew
- To see the red lips grinning—grimly grinning—up at you,
- Saying: "Had I been consulted, I should say 'tis very clear
- I was better off, my dear,
- Before you cut the clothes off me to see if I were here!"
- Did a comrade ever cut you to the heart, heart, heart,
- And did you find it helped you much to show you felt the smart?
- And while it yet was sore,
- Did it help you any more

S tec

- To tear it to the marrow and to strip it to the core?
- Had you listened to the telephone, which runs from heart to ear,
- You'd have heard: "'T is very clear
- It is better for a grievance just to let it heal, my dear!"

THE SHAVE STORE

Yesterday, papa says, "Will it behave, If I should take it while I get a shave?" And I says, "Yes," as loud as I could talk, So me and he, we went out for a walk Clear to the Shave Store. And then I sat there

And papa climbed up in a dentist's chair
And had a bib on. And the shave-man took
And painted papa till he made him look
Like frosting on an angel-cake. Mm! he looked nice!

And I thought the man was going to cut a slice.

He took a knife and wiped and wiped it, but He didn't hurt my papa. He just cut The frosting off his face and took another

Knife and wiped it on a piece o' luther

- And painted papa more, and cut and cut,
- And mussed his hair, and slapped his face and shut
- The old knife up. And washed his face, he did,
- Like papa washes mine sometimes, and calls me "Dirty kid."

And he put baby powder on him, too,

- And smelled him up, and when he was all through,
- The shave-store man says "'Bye, young lady, when
- You want another shave, just call again!"

SANTY'S LITTLE BOY

If I was Santy's little boy, I'd dress Up in a polar-bear-skin suit, I guess; And then I'd have a great, big sled and go Sleigh-riding on a hill of sugar-snow, And have a snow-ball fight with popcorn balls,

And have a reindeer horse, because he hauls

The Santy-sleigh, and have him painted red, So he'd look pretty, and just like my sled. If I was Santy's little boy, he'd fix

A house for me, made out of chocolate bricks With ice-cream plaster! And I'd have him make

The floors of apple pie and angel cake; And then a fountain, squirting lemonade, And big enough to get into and wade; And raisin-trees outdoors, with fences 'round, Made out of candy-canes stuck in the ground.

If I was Santy's little boy, I bet I'd have a Christmas every day, and get Just lots of presents. And he'd plant a tree And ask my papa in, so he could see Me light it up, and then my mamma—ooh! I would n't have her, then, nor papa, too! I guess—I guess I don't think I'd enjoy A-being Santy Claus's little boy.

THE SONG OF THE SOCKS AND SHOES

The little pink pigs have been rooting around,

Rooting around all night,

Though I warned them well they must slumber sound

Till the blink of the morning light;

- I warned them well, as the owner I gowned
- And snuggled them warm and tight. But though I told them they mustn't peep out,

The little pink pigs have been rooting about; I warned them one and I warned them ten, So now they must go in the sock-and-shoe pen,

The pen of the sock and shoe.

First the sock and then the shoe; it's nearly eight o'clock!

Lock the little pigs in the sock,

Shoo the little pigs in the shoe, Den the little pigs in the pen, The pen of the shoe and sock.

The little pink pigs, with a wriggle and dive, All under the gown they run,

While the owner watches me coax and drive,

And giggles a gale at the fun, And squeals as I swoop on a drove of five

And capture the five in one.

- Oh, the little pink pigs have been rooting about,
- Though I warned them well they mustn't peep out,
- So I capture five and I capture ten
- And drive them into the sock-and-shoe pen, The pen of the sock and shoe.

First the sock and then the shoe, and then the shoe and sock; Lock the little pigs in the sock, Shoo the little pigs in the shoe, Den the little pigs in the pen, It's almost eight o'clock!

THE MONKEY MAN

The sun in winter goes away

And makes you light the light, But in the summer-time it's day

All day until it's night. So we just play until at last

We don't know what to do, And then the monkey man comes past

And brings the monkey, too.

M-double-unk for the monkey, M-double-an for the man, M-double-unk for the hunky monk, The monkey, hunky man. Ever since the world began, Children danced and children ran, When they saw the monkey man, The m-double-unky, hunky, monkey man.

88

The monkey man has got a box

And carries tunes to sell; He winds it like you wind up clocks

Or like you wind a well; And when the music goes te-toot

The monkey acts so funny That we all hurry up and scoot

To get some monkey money.

And it is just the funniest thing
To watch him get his pay,
And then his papa pulls the string
And takes the cent away.
I wish I was a monkey man
And everywhere I went
As soon as ever I began

To play I got a cent!

I wish I was a monkey, too,And wore such pretty clo'es,A coat and hat all red and blueAnd fingers on my toes.

⁹⁰

He ran right up the porch one day, And then along the rail;

I wish that I could climb that way,

I wish I had a tail!

M-double-unk for the monkey, M-double-an for the man, M-double-unk for the hunky monk, The monkey, hunky man. Ever since the world began Children danced and children ran When they saw the monkey man: The m-double-unky, hunky, monkey man.

BOOKS FOR THE GROWN-UPS

Impertinent Poems

The Philadelphia Telegraph says: "Cleverness incarnate! Any one with an honest mind and sense of humor will be obliged to like him whether he will or no—he just can't help it. They make the reader sit up and blink and then sit back and think."

Little Songs for Two

"As exquisite as any of the work upon which he has built his reputation."—San Francisco Call.

Rimes to Be Read

"His poems," says the New York Sun. "are full of cleverness." "Mr. Cooke is a poet of no mean genius."—Utica Observer. "There is something in him of Riley, something of Field; nor is there lacking the keenness of Twain, yet unlike them all, he is the original Cooke, the cordial and genial poet."—Free Press.

The Uncommon Commoner and Similar Songs of Democracy Cloth, $1.75 net

A book of poems written in Mr. Cooke's best style. The poems breathe high patriotism together with much of the author's kindly humor and cheery optimism.

A well-known critic has compared the verse to Stevenson's and Field's. There is a spontaneity to the humor, a touching realism in the pathos and a pervasive beauty in the sentiments, that raise these collections of Mr. Cooke's verse to heights seldom attained, even by the poets referred to.

The Story Club

You will fill a little tot's measure of happiness to overflowing by sending him this beautiful volume of unique stories.

Told to the Little Tot

Thirty-nine illustrations—nine in full color—by Bessie Collins Pease, make this one of the most beautiful books for children issued in many a day. Probably no one in the world is better fitted to write for children than Edmund Vance Cooke, and no one better able to draw a life-like child than Miss Pease.

BOOKS ABOUT CHILDREN

Chronicles of the Little Tot Cloth, $1.75 net

Many of these poems appeared in The Saturday Evening Post and created probably more interest than any other poems that paper has printed. Mr. Cooke's verses have humor, deep philosophy and pathos. His child-poems show a deep insight and understanding of child-life and character.

I Rule the House

"His children are real, sure-enough children. Shut your eyes and ears and slip backward over a certain number of years—and recognize yourself in Mr. Cooke's little people, glad or sorry, rebellious or triumphant."—Nashville Banner.

GOOD BOOKS FOR CHILDREN'S READING

These books are all intended for children from five to ten years. They represent a step forward in story-book making, and contain fresh material, the kind that is being placed in the best schools of to-day.

Artistically the books set a new standard. Each book has from thirty to ninety illustrations which are particularly attractive, and many of which are in colors.

Mechanically the books are superior. The paper used, the large type, and the general arrangement are all determined by careful experimenting in order to safeguard the eyesight of children. All books are attractively bound in cloth stamped in two colors.

Animal-Land Children. By Margaret Flora.

A story of the contest for the Magic Glasses, or how the little animal children wished to become wise. 128 pages, with 35 illustrations, frontispiece in colors. Cloth. 70 cents.

Bow-Wow and Mew-Mew. By Georgiana M. Craik. Edited by Joseph C. Sindelar.

The story of a young dog and cat. An unusually attractive edition of one of the greatest favorites among classic tales for children. 95 pages, with 32 illustrations in colors. Cloth, 55 cents.

A Child's Robinson Crusoe. By William L. Nida and Stella H. Nida.

Defoe's famous story of Robinson Crusoe rewritten in a charming manner for young children. 160 pages, with 37 illustrations. Cloth, 65 cents.

Father Thrift and His Animal Friends. By Joseph C. Sindelar.

One of the most fascinating stories for children ever written. Incidentally it teaches the worthy lesson of thrift. 128 pages, with 49 pictures in black and color and decorated end sheets. Cloth, 70 cents.
