There were two objects - one was solid & one was a beam of light. The solid object came up from the northeast and turned facing west southwest. It had 2 red appeared to be blinking lights about the size of headlights on an automobile's turning off and on - just the left - then the right. However it seemed that only one light was preeminent & that the other was a reflection.

After the object turned toward me it traveled forward for about 3-5 seconds and stopped completely. Then the beam of light came up from where the solid object came up from (northeast) traveled very quickly and stopped alongside the solid object - and there they both stayed for about 10 seconds. The light then traveled back (west) & the solid object proceeded to travel forward just over the treetops & over my house. I went to the front door & saw it for the rear. It was only as the object was approaching my house that I heard the sound (assumed like a roar). There was no fast roar like as engine firing low.

The body of the object seemed to be metallic - there were no wings - it had no tail but there was sort of a pipe. There was no smoke.

Bath objects were so close that a matchstick ~~head~~ wouldn't hardly cover any part.
