GLENDALE, LOS ANGELES COUNTY, CAL., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1910.

CONSOLIDATION

Mr. Wattles Makes a Plain State-

The question now perfore the people of the Valley, and of concern both to residents of Glendale City and the surrounding territory, consists of four alternatives: First, remain in the sent condition; second, county ter-ory to form a municipality of the ritory to form a municipality of the sixth class, separate from Glendale City; third, county territory to annex to Los Angeles; fourth, county terri-tory to annex to Glendale City. The arguments are of two kinds, moral and material. The moral view resolves itself into this: Shall we advance or not? Move out from the shadow of stagnation into the snushine of progress, or sit still in the shade and let the sunlight work its way around to us?

out from the shadow of stagnation into the snushine of progress, or sit still in the shade and let the sunlight work its way around to us?

There is no doubt that progression is the only natural consideration. Therefore, we must, morally, accept one of the last three propositions.

Glendale Valley, geographically, is a mit, shut out by nature from surrounding communities; so it would be foolish to consider any partial union with an alien interest.

A separate incorporation of the territory outside of Glendale City is merely selfish, a building of two structures where one should be, a house divided against itself, and a consequent weakening of the whole.

Annexation to Glendale City will bring the whole Valley under one government, having common interests it will produce a feeling of neighbor-liness and comradeship, in having a common ground for growth, and a united ideal for the betterment of the district. It will give this community a power for progress unreachable in any other manner.

Therefore, the only moral solution is annexation to Glendale.

The material conditions show self-convincing facts.

Remain in the Present Condition.

If Glendale remains her present size, she must, to obtain desired improvements, levy a large tax, because of the small area and paucity of assessable property.

The county district, under the law, can make no public improvements, at a reasonable cost, more than those now in evidence. It is impossible to force a cooperative improvement, such as grading or curbing a street, if any of the property owners object. Such laws as the Vrooman Act are not applicable to county territory.

County Territory to Indexporate by intestif.

By the action of this proposition. Glendale would be absolutely barred from extending her limits to include valuable city building property in the surrounding territory, and would thus be prevented from increasing the source of revenue.

A charter of the sixth class is the only feasible one open to the residents of the county district, should they desire incorporation, because of the lack of population, and the prohibitive cost of maintaining, in a small community, a government of a higher class.

After incorporation, two years will elapse before any kenefits are derived, for, starting with nothing, as it must, the new city's first year's taxes will be entirely spent in paying for the pleasure of incorporation and olling the municipal machinery into smooth running order, the second year's taxes must meet the expense of government. The alternative of fixing a tax rate for the first year, which will do the three years' work at once, is well night impossible, for the rate would be so high as to practically wipe out the property taxed.

The new city will meet obstacles at svery turn, in improvement of streets.

gh as to practically wipe out the operty taxed. The new city will meet obstacles at erry turn, in improvement of streets, guiation of public utilities and corrections, acquisition of the tools of vernment and protection, fire and like departments, and public buildings; its size and resources will be terrent factors in every operation, d no outside aid is available. It is manifestly better, in every ay, to join hands with a district has already accomplished this ginning than waste valuable time of appears in reneating a medical or eration.

Since conditions are identical, incorporation of county territory cannot be productive of greater advantages than those at present evident in Gleadale City.

than those at present evident in Gleadale City.

County District Annexed to Les Angeles.

The result of this condition, to Glendale City, vill be the same as in the proposition just discussed. She will be prevented from expansion and its attendant advantages.

To the residents of Tropico and vicinity, annexation to Los Angeles means increased taxes without adequate compensation. We cannot obtain any improvements whatsoever, under bond issues, since by her charter, Los Angeles is now bonded to the limit; plans have already been faile to issue new paper for certain improvements in the city proper, as soon as present outstanding bonds have been redeemed. These improvements and bond proposals cover a period of at least ten years. We would get no connection with the outfall sewer without bonds. Electric lights for houses and streets would be possible only through private cyrporations in the city, who would not, at the present time, extend their lines to this district, because of the expense. There were four or live applicants for the position, Messrs. Dell. Bowman, Muhleman, and the firm of McNutt & Goode. It is understood that in the committee of the whole there was a lively difference of opinion, and that the minority objected rather strenguesily to the decision arrived at by the three members who supported Mr. Muhleman, When the board reconvened, it was recommended that the resignation of Mr. Baker be accepted, and that Mr. Frank L. Muhleman be appointed in his stead. When it came to a vote, the recommendation was supported by Messrs. Coker, Lane and White; Anderson and Watson not voting. Mr. Muhleman was therefore declared the choice of the board, and the necessary ordinance, declaring his appointment, was ordered drawn. Adjourned until Thursday evening.

EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS JUST

Improvements to the extent of $5000 have just been completed by the C. Ganahl Lumber company at their yard on Glendale avenue just north of Fourth street. The principal feature is the large lumber shed erected at the extreme southern end of the yard. This shed is so arranged that it will hold at least $50,000 feet of lumber. Very recently representatives of several large lumber companies of Los Afigeles called at the Ganahl yard to inspect the shed. Without exception these men confessed that this was the finest and most economical in space and required less labor in the handling of lumber than any they had ever seen. They made rough sketches of the shed with the view of profiting by the suggestions.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The senior class plenic at Verdugo Park Saturday was more than a success. The class and its friends assembled in the afternoon to witness the ball game. At six o'clock they gathered in one of the artistic pavilions around a large table heaped high with good things. Mrs. J. W. Everett undertook to chaperone the crowd and it is rumored that she had her hands more than full.

The evening was spent practicing the terpsichorean art.

The juniors have their windows artistically draped in their class colors, lavender and white. Junior representatives on the athietic board are Nave Graham and Jens Askeland.

The sophomore members of the athietic, board are Marie McDonald and Lewis Leppleman.

Mr. Presley Moore of Texas and Fillberto Feitz of Ivanhoe have entered the ninth year.

A series of interclass basket ball games, Jioth for the girls and boys, are being planned. The first ones to take place this week.

SIXTH STREET SCHOOL.

SIXTH STREET SCHOOL.

The Parent-Teacher Association for this school will hold its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon, Oct. 13, instead of on Friday, as usual. The change of days holds for this one meeting only.

All ladies, whether mothers or not, are cordially invited to attend these meetings. Much interest has been expressed by the majority of mothers represented in the school.

Mrs. M. L. Weaver of Kenyood street, who is chairman of the meeting committee, and her able corps of assistants, are very enthusiastic over the prospects for the coming year. They have a number of plans outlined for the purpose of increasing the attendance and membership.

FOURTH, STREET SCHOOL.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Fourth street school held its first meeting last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. B. H. Nichols, president, and Mrs. Thomas Palmer, secretary, the new officers, presided. A short business session was held during which work for the ensuing year was planned and the various committees appointed. The meeting then adjourned and a purely social hour followed in which the parents and teachers met and became acquainted.

Mrs. Robert Blackburn and Mrs. C. B. Byrkit were in charge of the tearning and to the parents and teachers met and became acquainted.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR PARTY.

On Friday evening the Christian Endeavor Society and a large number of its friends met at the home of Miss Ruth Byram on Gleindale avenue for a social evening. Several pleasant hours were spent in the spacious yard and under the great drooping mulberry trees. A most unique program presented on the veranda provided amusement for every one. Charming indeed was the "flower screen" composed of Mr. Samuel Fiske as a poppy, and Mr. James Newton, Miss Miriam Harrison, Miss Abby Ward, Miss Beasie Field and Miss Ruth Paulius, completing the "screen." Each flower sang a song, some of which were sad and some very much otherwise!

Mr. Robertson was manager of the wax works in which Mr. J. C. Sherpr. Miss Dorothy Gould, Miss Neille Williams and Mr. Kenneth Barager were very life-like reproductions of famous historical characters.

Miss Emma Williams and Mr. Clyde Wallace presented the tablean "Where are you going, my pretty maid," and Mr. Robert Lyons completed the program with a yeading "An old sweetheart of mine."

The retirement of City Attorney Frederick Baker is a matter of regret. Frederick Baker is a matter of regret. Glendale has been very fortunate aince its incorporation in keeping free from legal entanglements and this is due ho doubt principally to the guidance of Mr. Baker in legal matters. Mr. Frank L. When that time comes, it may be possible to get appropriations for public buildings for government use which will enable the government to keep up with the pro-cession out here. The splendid new building for the postoffice and federal courts in Los Angeles that has just been completed should have been twice as large as it is, to furnish accommodations for government use for the next decade, and there are a number of rapidly growing cities on the coast which should be provided with government buildings at once, as a measure of real and far-sighted econ-They will not get them the need is pressing. Reuntil turning to the subject of the census however, there is really some grounds for a suspicion in the minds of government officials in regard to the enumeration of the citizens of Los Angeles. The rolls were undoubtedly "stuffed" by some enterprising enumerators, who worked for so much a They caught a great many suburbanites, whose residences were outside the city, and enrolled them as "residing" at their places of business. It is not likely, however, that there was a very large number of such in stances. They would run up into the hundreds, doubtless, but scarcely into the thousands.

The much derided tariff law seems to be bringing about some yery de-sirable results, and as the people by degrees come to a fuller knowledge of it, it is not at all improbable that they will yet come to the conclusion that President Taft was right when he de clared it the "best tariff law we have proved to be a satisfactory revenue producer, and the production of a necessary revenue is certainly one of our imports from the islands having doubled during the past year, and exports having increased 70 per cent. Voters at the election to be held in Voters at the election to be held in California on November 8, next, will be privileged to vote for or against two constitutional amendments which have to do with the holding of California's great world's exposition in San Francisco in 1915, and incidentally with the unique exposition to be held in San Diego in the same year. Reasons why the amendments are necessary for the carrying out of the plans made for the expositions are as follows:

california, in making reasy to obtain from Congress Federal recognition of its claims to the site for the international exposition must meet the claims of New Orleans, which also demands this federal recognition. Congress already has declared that neither city should be recognized unless financially supported to the extent of at least $7,500,000.

San Francisco has raised, by individual subscription, $6,500,000, and is proceeding to increase this sum to the required amount in the same way. New Orleans has raised $1,000,000 by personal subscription, and is calling upon the state of Louisiana to raise $6,500,000 more by a bond issue.

In order to place California's claims before the coming session of Congress on a basis that will entirely outclass the claims of. New Orleans, even should that city be backed by the state of Louisiana, the people of San Francisco asked Governor Gillett to call an extra session of the legislature, and at this session a measure was passed providing for placing the question of taxing the property in the state over a period of five years, to the extent of $5,000,000, before the people. It was estimated that a tax of four cents on a hundred dollars would produce in five years the required amount.

The measure as passed also provided for a vote on an amendment authorizing the board of supervisors of San Francisco to provide expeditiously a bond issue to be submitted to the people of San Francisco for their approval in the sum of $5,000,000 for exposition purposes, and also authorizes the use, for exposition purposes, of certain public properties, among them Golden Gate park from Strawberry Hill westward.

The result of the carrying of these meandments will be that California among them Golden Gate park from Strawberry Hill westward. The result of the carrying of these amendments will be that California will be enabled, upon the assembling of Congress for the short session in December, to support its claims to Federal recognition with an available sum approximating $17,500,000. This sum will be made un as follows:

Raised by private subscription $7,500,000; by tax on property in the state $5,000,000; by bonding the city of San Francisco $5,000,000. Upon this presentation Congress cannot hesitate to declare in favor of California.

The program was opened by the Glendale band, after which Mr. Joseph Scott, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce gave an address dealing with the work and purpose of such a body, explaining the matter so thoroughly that no one could remain in doubt as to its object. Mr. Scott's theme had two main subdivisions, what to do and what not to do. Condensed the thought was, "Do not allow your chamber of commerce to mix in politics, and do not allow any knockers to join your association." # "BACK TO THE FARM'

X.—The Farm as a Place to Grow Old.

By C. V. GREGORY.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Asso-

T used to be the ambition of the farmer to make money enough so that he could afford to move to town and spend the rest of his Now it is the amdays in comfort. bition of the city dweller to accumu-late enough of this world's goods to enable him to purchase a little place in the country and grow old in the open air.

This change is typical of the change in sentiment that has taken place in regard to country life. This change in sentiment is due in a large measure to a change in country life itself:

At first country life was essentially the life of the pioneer. It was a life of hardships, and the reward was only a few of life's necessities. But these hardships developed a classeof hardy, wirle men who have conquered the American continent and brought it un-wirile men who have conquered the American continent and brought it under man's control.

The days of pioneering on the farm are well nigh past. Now that the rough edges are worn off the true pleasure of life in the open is beginning to be appreciated. At first people crowded together in the cities for protection. later for convenience in transacting business. The city never was intended primarily as a place to live. In the early days the cities were deserted as soon as the danger which had forced the people together was over. They scattered out to their farms, where they could live in peace and plenty.

When the development of the city as a business center began no particular provision was made for the home life. People lived where they could, existing for their business exist for them. In all the years in which the cities of the Dutted States have been developing the home life always has lagged behind. True, some of the men who were most successful in accumulating wealth built palatial homes. But there is no room in the city for many such homes. Rather must people live tiered one above another, layer upon layer. On all sides, above and below, the space in which they are free to move at will is marked by strictly defined limits. No wonder, that in such circumstances man has longed for a fourth dimension in which he could expand.

People have endured these conditions

People have endured these conditions because it paid them to do so. Business fed and clothed them, but business demanded that they be always close at hand. They knew that somewhere outside the web of paved streets lay an open country, but they knew of no way in which they could make a living there. The stories they heard from the country were stories of poorly paid toil, few pleasures and a premature old age. They preferred the discomforts to which they were accustomed.

The coming of electric transportation

The coming of electric transportation The coming of electric transport wide ued the horizon of the city. It made it possible for the best paid laborers to have houses of their own. It allowed the salaried man, who put in fewer hours, to live almost in the country. With a glimpse of suburban allowed the salaried man, who put in fewer hours, to live almost in the country. With a glimpse of suburban and country life and what it really meant to have plenty of room to breathe, the city dweller began to cherish an ambition. He began to cherish an ambition with a garden and a few berries and some chickens. Where he could rest and grow old.

The advince in the price of food products made it not only possible, but comparatively easy, for the man who has given the best years of his life to the city to retire to the country. Perhaps I should not use the word retire. The swirling rush of twentieth century life has made the thought of retiring distasteful. The ambitious man lets go his work with reluctance. He would rather die in the harness than to rust away his remaining days in idleness. But there comes a time when the strongest man feels his grip weaken and his mind faiter. The hard knocks of a strenuous life begin to make themselves felt. The long hours grow weary on his shoulders. Some men are situated so fostunately that they can let go by degrees, working as they-feel like it and turning over to others the tasks of which they tire. Most men, however, must continue to meet the exacting demands of business to the faring demands of business to

to them that the country makes its ngest appeal

A house and an acre or more of land A house and an acre or more of land can be purchased or rented more cheaply than a house and lot in the city. The home can be supplied with all the conveniences that the family were used to in the city. The trolley and the telephone keep them in touch with their city friends. The city man who is past the days of the hard work days and the acceptable establish. demanded in a mercantile establishment or a factory can still make a fair living from the soil. The returns from an even acre or so of ground will go far toward paying the family's living expenses.

The pleasure of life in the open where the air is pure and there is where the happy where the air is pure and there is time to dream and room to be happy, will add-years to the lives of the new made farmer and his wife. The freedom from responsibility calls back the light heartedness of youth. The tyranny of office hours is done away with The luxury of independence is attained

No sign of the return to the country is more encouraging than the tendency of the old farmers and their wives to spend the remainder of their days in the country. Some of the old farmers who move to town to end their days are satisfied perhaps, but most of them are not. The enforced idleness gails them. The narrow boundaries of a city lot stifle them. They miss their old friends and associates.

The home farm is a much better place than the city for the farmer to spend his declining years for many reasons. It is home to him, and a thousand plensant memories ting around every knoll and tree. He can turn over to one of the boys the active No sign of the return to the country around every knoll and tree. He can turn over to one of the boys the active work of managing the farm and still have most of the pleasure of farming without the responsibility. It may mean the construction of another house perhaps, but the expense will be less than the cost of a house in the city. There are always little tasks to be done when he feels like work, yet he can gult when he feels like yet he can quit when he feels like quitting. When he is not in a mood to work there are always neighbors to visit. With his automobile or his horse and buggy he and his wife can go where and when they please. Thus the days pass pleasantly and smoothly, without a ripple of discontent or the strain of getting used to a new environment. The passing years leave few marks on either the farmer or his wife, for this sort of life is not calculated to encourage the advance of old age. old age.

From the standpoint of the commu-From the standpoint of the community the retired farmers are a valuable asset. A number of such families in the community give permanency to its social life. With little else to do and plenty of time to do it in the farmer and his wife can go ahead with the management of the club or grange. They can devise plenics and suppers and go ahead with iecture courses and celebrations.

These things are of incalculable benefit to any community, and yet too often the young farmers are too busy to look after all the details connected with them.

in looking after the business affairs of the township and county and state the farmer who is out of active business finds an outlet for his surplus energies. Township offices are by no means lucrative. Yet it is essential for the good of the community that they be filled by men who will take time to see that the township affairs are properly conducted. A farmer who looking after the business affairs are properly conducted. A farmer who no longer has a business of his own to demand his best attention is just to demand his best attention is just the man for such a place.

The county supervisors have charge of a great amount of business. Upon the efficiency of their work depends the condition of the roads and bridges. The management of a county is no small job, yet it is too often intrusted to some office seeking politician because there is no one else who has time for the place. Here is another opportunity for the retired farmer.

A Crown of Lc

The reigning sovereign of Atruria. Prince Carl, find a son, Oluf. A neigh boring principality—Essengen—had lost its rulers in the male line, none re-maining except the Princess Clothilde and her younger sister Minna. Clo-thilde, who occupied the throne, being thilde, who occupied the throne, being a very feminine woman, was averse to the duties of sovereignty. She would have abdicated in favor of her sister, but Minna had no more desire to rule than Clothilde. Indeed, the people of Essengen were a turbulent lot who required the strong hand of a man to govern them and made no secret of their contempt for a sovereign queen.

There was every reason why the two contiguous principalities should be joined under one nead. Negoriations to that effect were entered upon between Prince Carl on the one side and the nobles of Essengen on the other. It was proposed that Prince Oluf should marry the Princess Clothilde, the two to be prince and princeas of the united principalities. After many demands and concessions a compact was made, and nothing remained but the consent of the two parties most demands and concessions a compact was made, and nothing remained but the consent of the two parties most especially concerned—Prince Oluf and Princess Clothilde. Prince Oluf visited the princess, and, as luck would have it, she fell desperately in love with him.

One of the points claimed by the princess' subjects was that she should be sovereign equally with the prince, her husband, for at the time of the nuptials Prince Carl was to abdicate in favor of his son. There was so much feeling among the people of Essengen that in order to suitsfy them one of Clothilde's ministers suggested that she wear the iron crown of the sovereign on her head at all public functions. The crown being heavy, a light one was made, and the princess wore it nearly all the while.

Great preparations were made for the wedding, which was to take up their residence in Atruria. The princess was so deeply in fove with Oluf that she desired his presence most of the time in Essengen. This was not pleasing to the Princess Minna, who had conceived a great dislike for the prince, indeed, she gave out to those about her that she would be glad when the couple were married, since then they would remove to Atruria and she deed, she gave out to those about her that she would be glad when the couple were married, since then they would remove to Arruria and she would no longer be troubled with the presence of a very disagreeable man.

Shortly before the nuptals were to take place the Princess Clothilde fell lil. There was at the time so much feeling on the part of her people as to her united sovereignty with the princes who was to be her husband, that, although she was an invalid, her ministers insisted on her still wearing the iron crown. On one occasion when she had left it off a citizen of influence who opposed the union of the principalities was admitted to see her and as soon as he had left the palace attempted to foment a revolution on the ground that the princess had left off.

Princes Clothilde grew worse and died, but a few days before the appointed marriage. Prince Carl, his son. Prince Oluf; the Arrurians and many Essengeus were bitterly disappointed that the prospective union of the two countries had thus fallen through.

Prince Oluf, however, who had taken as much liking to Princees Minna as she had taken dislike to him—indeed.

countries had thus fallen through. Prince only five very two had taken as she had taken dislike to him-indeed, it was said that find she been sovereign she would have been his choleen proposed that all that had been arranged should be carried out, Minna to become his wife instead of Clothilde. The proposition was acceded to by the union party of Essengen, but all that had been arranged should be carried out, Minna to become his wife instead of Clothilde. The proposition was acceded to by the union party of Essengen, but all constitutions of state would not marry a man hes so cordially disliked. However, the council went to her in a body, represent of the two countries and proposed that she become the wife of the man who was to have married her sister.

She flatly refused.

The nonmenced a struggle on the part of the unionists of Essengen, Prince Carl and especially Prince Oluf, who had been in love with her instead of her sister from the start, was wild with disappointment. He woode her with delicacy, but did not succeed in changing ther antiputing for him. But what he could not bring about was in part effected by the prince of him. But what he could not bring about was in part effected by the prince of him. But what he could not bring about was in part effected by the prince of him. But what he could not bring about was in part effected by the prince of him. But what he could not bring about was in part effected by the prince of him. But what he could not bring about was in part effected by the prince of him. But what he could not bring about was in part effected by the prince of him. But what he could not bring about was in part effected by the prince of him. But what he could not bring about was in part effected by the prince of him. But what he could not bring about was in part effected by the prince of him. But what he could not bring about was in part ef not succeed in changing her antipathy for him. But what he could not bring about was in part effected by the princess' ministers. Finally on their representation that it was her duty to sacrifice herself for her people's good she consented to the marriage.

As soon as the fact was given out to the people the prime minister advised the princess to wear the iron crown.

And now a strange thing happened.
Prince that was advised that the princess desired to see him. He entered gloomy from the fact of a dislike on gloomy from the fact of a dislike on the part of the woman he loved that he had not been able to conquer. What was his surprise when the princess put her arms lovingly around his neck and her head dropped on his shoulder.

She married not only for reasons of state, but for love.

Recently experiments in Paris by scientists have established the fact that a metal circlet worn on the head of a person suffering from hy steria if afterward placed on the head of another person will produce the same effect as in the first instance.

May we infer that in this instance at produced the same love?

The Witer
Three hundred years ago the business of finding our wiches was well established and accepted in courts of law as highly proper in 1649 it is recorded that the magistrates of Newcastle. England, sent to Scotland for an expert witch finder. This gifted person proceeded to show his skill by discovering afteen witches and securing their conviction. One Matthew discovering fifteen witches and securing their conviction. One Matthew Hopkins was a celebrated witch finder of that period. It was easy to discover witches when you knew how. The suspected person could be forced to weep and then detected by the well known fact that a witch could shed only three tears and those from the left eye, or she could be pricked with pins to discover the spot insensible to pain, which was a sure sign of dealings with the devil. That women were far more devil. That women were far more fikely to dabble in witchcraft than men was conceded. The reason was satisfactorily explained by a famous German text book on witches published in the Ofteenth century. It was sim-ply that women were inherently wick-ed, whereas men naturally inclined to

The Coyote.

The coyote is the little brother of the Indian. When the buffalo vanished from the plains the Indian shot his from the plains the Indian shot his rifle into the air, wrapped his blanket closer about him and came into the reservation to grow fat and unpicturesque under federal auspices. When the jack rabbit and molly cottontall vanish from the plains and foothills the howl of the last coyote will sink into silence beyond the great divide. Until that far day arrives, however, hang the bacon high, for while the rabbit remains the most skillful four legged forager the world ever knew will bay at the moon by night and just keep out of rifle range by day. The coyote knows more about traps than a Canadian "voyageur," is an expert on strychaine and never fails for the deadfall. He is rather fond of lambs and caives, but rabbits are the out-meal of this phantom highlander, and med of this phantom highlander, and, as "Diamond Field" Jack Davis would as, "where two or three of these are sthered together there you will find the cayote, seeking to stow one of them mo his midst."—Philadelphia Tele-

Good Use of the Spectacular to Flash the Municipal Slogans of a Pennsylvania and an Alabama City-The

You believe in your home town. In your estimation it is away shead of any other. Good! That's the kind of spirit to show. But yet you are not quite satisfied with the general trend of affairs. Business is not up to the mark, and there has not been much of a boom lately. Maybe your town is dying of dry rot. If so, wake up and advertise your advantages. That's the antidote needed. The following meth-ods adopted by two cities can be used by other towns and cities on a smaller scale if necessary and be found ad-

In order to impress as many people as possible with the city's advantages it was determined to erect a huge electric sign which was given by one of the public service companies. Suggestions as to the wording of this sign were asked for by the newspapers, and a prize given for the most acceptable one—"Easton, City of Resources."

Placed on a high roof in plain view of six rallways, this gigantic sign winks and beckons to every passerby on every train from dusk to midnight, teiling just enough to arouse the stran-ger's curiosity and make him inquire into the resources for which the city seems to be famed. One feels they must be very substantial resources to justify being blazoned on the clouds in

Thus it is that the board of trade is coostantly engaged in answering in quirles and helping big and little factories to make their homes in Easton.

The huge sign, which is eighty feet long, is operated on a flasher—that is, only part of it shows at a time. A sign operated on a flasher—that is, only part of it shows at a time. A sign operated on a flasher is not only more effective than a steady burning sign, but it consumes much less electricity, the Easton sign burning not more than one-fourth the electricity that would be necessary if all its lamps were lighted constantly.

First two arrows green in color start from the center and shoot in either direction, indicating the expanse of the city; then the red disk of a sun flashes on and yellow fays rise in a constant ambitious flare. As the sun died down the word "Easton" emerges from it, while below flash the magic words "City of Resources." It would indeed be a stoic who could gaze upon this without a thrill, and he must needs be suffering from acret aphasis who could forget it for many a day.

In Alabama the capital city has huge municipal flashing electric sign which cries to the passerby, "Montgomery Your Opportunity!" An enormous electric styrocket shoots upward and gracefully curves to the center of the sign, where it bursts into dazzling red and green streamers. As the streamers are extinguished the city slogan flashes forth. Below it burns a great was not interest was ever before the sign, where it bursts into dazzling red and green streamers. Mr. Bownian is a ready speaker, and produced a favorable impression, particularly so as he took occasion to express his belief that Glendale is the choicest spot that the was able to find between Maine and California. Mr. Watson littroduced a resolution pledging the association to use its best efforts to secure for Glendale, in the event of the municipal territory being enlarged, a freeholders' charter, giving to the people, through a board composed of fifteen freeholders, the power to make a certain portion of their own laws, which system has many advantages over the scheme of government for municipalities as laid down by the general state law. Mr. Watson called attention to the fact that, as the matter would have to be passed upon by the legislature, there should be no time lost in starting the movement. Upon motion, the chair was directed to appoint a committee of seven to take preliminary measures to get information from other cities and from our own people, as to their desires. He appointed a committee consisting of the following: F. L. Muhleman Emil Fram C. E. Stanlev C. A. Rudell, Charles Murray, H. La Gross and J. C. Sherer. NEW PLANING MILL STARTED

NEW PLANING MILL STARTED.
The Jewe. City Planing'mill is the latest addition to the manufacturing end of Glendale's business life. This plant has just been opened at 220 Geneva street, just back of the Ganahl Lumber company, the proprietors being Charles Grist and R. P. McMullen, both well known men here. The improvements, which include the very latest machinery in this line, have cost about $4500 to install.

The size of the plant is 50x80 feet. The roof is of corrugated sheet from and the floor is entirely of concrete, making the entire building absolutely freproof. A feature of the establishment is the underground shafting. Through the entire center of the mill running from the north to the south end is a 50x foot shaft pit. The main shaft runs along this pit out of sight and from this main shaft the molder is propelled direct, while for the other pieces of machinery countershafts have been received in oits running from

The Methodists are rejoicing over the returning of Rev. W. C. Botkin to this place for another year, this being determined at the convention at Fresho this week. It is positively known that Mr. Botkin was offered a church far larger than the one at this place, but refused it because he believed that he could do more good in this place during the year just starting than at any other field.

Miss Mildred Brookman entertained with a party at her home on Central avenue Tuesday evening complimentary to her house guest, Miss White, who is quite well known here. The hours were passed in music and playing Five Hundred and Whist and at quite a late hour refreshments were served. The home was prettily decorated for the affair with seasonable flowers and delicate greenery. The guests included, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Winebrenner, Mrs. Griffin, Miss Litlian Griffin, Miss Mable Winebrenner, Miss Mildred Brockman, Noel Mathers and Harry Davenport of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Nettie Ackley, formerly of West Glendale, having sold her home, is temporarily located in Mary street, where she is entertaining friends from the East.

Mrs. R. W. Hammond, 1509 Lvy street, entertained her friend, Miss Bertha Neff of Virginia last week. The two ladies were schoolmates in the South.

Mr. Hugh Blue and Mr. J. L. Russ spent two days last week on a hunting trip near Fernando. They returned with their limit—but like most the harmonic mer."

Mr. G. Geraldson of Auburn, Placer county, Cal., who is attending the soil convention, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Taylor, West First street. Mr. Taylor and Mr. Geraldson were schoolmates together in the North and naturally had many interesting anacdotes to relate, as to their "good behavior" during school hours.

Malcoim Van Vorce, the young man who met such a tragic death on Saturday evening at the P. E. depot in Los Angeles, will be remembered by many residents of West Glendale, having lived here for some time previous to his departure for the gity. Malcom was a pupil of the West Glendale, school, and graduated with honora about three years ago. He was a young man of sterling quality, and unusually bright.

That the are undered in said bond is unknonw.

Unless the amount of said bond as aforesaid, together with the cost of publication of this notice is paid, the real property mentioned in said bond, and hereinafter described, will be sold at public auction, as aforesaid, on the stores. This idea is fostered by the numerous "Bargain Counter" affairs which are liberally advertised in the papers in the large city. The buyer who gets one article at an especially low price almost unconsciously arrives at the conclusion that the other goods offered at the same place are on the same scale of cheapness, although his experience rarely justifies that conclusion. Now if the local merchant knows that he can sell goods as cheap or cheaper than the dealer in the large city, it is surely good business for him to let the people know it and it takes a very long time for them to find it out by experience merely.
