YELLOW FEVER AT WOODVILLE, Miss.—The Woodville Republican, Nov. 19th, says:
"Since our last publication, our town cause of disease has increased and assumed a more malignant character. Deaths are now of daily occurrence, and every day brings us the sad intelligence of the death of some one of our citizens. We have not the means of ascertaining the number of deaths which have occurred in the city since the commencement of the disease, but we think we are within the mark when we say that there have been at least 200 deaths. All of our physicians have been attacked with the fever, and some of them have been very ill, but we are happy to say that they are all convalescent. Dr. Dowdell, one of our most skilful physicians, died on Thursday last, and Dr. Taylor, the only remaining physician of any eminence, is now confined to his bed with the disease. In addition to the above, several worthy citizens—Dr. Barrow, Mr. Wm. Wood, Mr. Lawrence Andrews, Mr. Moore, Mr. Wood, and others, have died with the fever. All of our merchants have closed their doors, and the whole city is a perfect gloom. The fever appears to be increasing in violence, and we fear that many more of our citizens will fall victims to its ravages. After leaving the town, we are informed that the fever was raging in Tallahatchie, Yalo Busha and Grenada counties, and that the mortality was very great. Mr. Moore mentioned in particular the case of Mr. Lawrence Andrews, who died on the 13th inst., after an illness of only three days. Mr. Andrews was a native of Virginia, and has been a resident of Tallahatchie for many years. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him, and his death has cast a gloom over the whole community. We have been informed that the fever is also raging in Panola county, Miss., to a fearful extent. Dr. Dowdell, one of the most skilful physicians in that section, died on the 15th inst., after an illness of only three days.
