FREE CHURCH SYSTEM.

We learn that the parish in Braintree over which the venerable Dr. Storrs has been settled for many years, has for months past adopted the plan of making the pews of the house of worship free to all, and depending upon contributions to sustain the preaching.

On the second Sabbath in January Mr. Morrison preached an effective sermon, followed by a convincing impression on the audience, from the words—"Thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting."

No church should venture to call itself Christian, if its doors are not thrown hospitably open to all comers and classes of people. It is not enough to say that they are welcome or even to give public notice that the seats are free.

It is urged, on the other hand, that the home feeling is very important to many people, and that the home feeling is strongest when we have a particular pew and a particular seat in the pew and the same worshippers always around it.

It is a puzzling question to those who have the financial affairs in their hands, how the churches are to be supported unless by tax upon pews; but will the difficulty be overcome when there is a living faith in the great Christian doctrines of liberty, equality, fraternity? Do we need anything more than a determined purpose to evangelize the world?

NATIONAL TAXES.—A circular has been issued by a delegate of the National Manufacturers Convention, appealing to the people to demand a large reduction in the estimates for wants of government, which the circular calls a disgrace to the nation.

The annual meeting of the North Weymouth Cemetery Association will be held at the school-house of the Second district, on Tuesday evening, March 19, at 7 1/2 o'clock.

THE GREAT REVIVAL.

The extensive religious interest which has prevailed at East Weymouth during the winter, calls for more detailed notice than the accounts which have been given from time to time in our paper, and we are indebted to Rev. Mr. Morrison of the Methodist Episcopal Church, for interesting facts relating to its inception and progress.

Next Friday evening P. W. Cronin, Esq. of this town, who is soon to make his debut as a member of the legal fraternity in Lawrence, will lecture on "Henry Grattan and the Irish Volunteers," in aid of the society for the relief of indigent Catholic children, at the town hall.

An article from the pen of Rev. Olympia Brown, in our columns to-day, introduces a subject of great interest to the community, and of vital importance to every young man and woman.

At a meeting of the Republicans of Weymouth, held at the Town Hall, March 4th, 1893, Elias Richards was chosen Chairman, and Wm. W. Burke Secretary.

THE READING ROOM.

Two years ago it was thought that a paper published in the place would be the grand desideratum. The scientific character of the paper, the Weymouth Gazette, has settled the question.

Every village should be furnished with a good reading room where a young man or woman may spend a leisure hour in a manner which shall be interesting and profitable.

It is reported that steps have been taken to secure a suitable Hall for the establishment of the reading room, and also to provide the means to furnish it with a goodly number of periodicals and every thing else necessary to make it what it ought to be.

Of course pains will be taken in making suitable rules and regulations for keeping order, also for the care of the room, the hours on which it may be opened, and such other matters.

Rev. G. T. Flinders, of Nashua, N. H., will deliver the next lecture of the course at the Universalist church, on Monday evening, March 2. His subject, "Travels in Europe," furnishes the basis of a highly interesting lecture.

LETTERS, &c.—The storm on Monday evening last interfered seriously with the various arrangements for the evening at the Landing, the announcements being a meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association, a lecture by Mrs. Ella Davis of the Methodist Episcopal Church, for interesting facts relating to its inception and progress.

At the conclusion of this case the Court adjourned to Monday, when the following case was tried before the Second Jury:—Franklin Shaw et al. vs. John W. Thomas. An action against the Sheriff for the taking, by one of his deputies, as the property of Henry J. Holbrook, who afterwards went into insolvency, the goods of the plaintiff.

THE SNOOW OF MONDAY

The snow of Monday was not unexpected, by the weather prophets, who calculated pretty nearly from the severe storms farther south and in Canada which prevailed last week, the advent of a similar fall in this region.

It is reported that steps have been taken to secure a suitable Hall for the establishment of the reading room, and also to provide the means to furnish it with a goodly number of periodicals and every thing else necessary to make it what it ought to be.

EAST ABINGTON ITEMS.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. An organization of this kind has recently been formed in this village, and a reading room is in contemplation, as being a means whereby young men coming into the place to board, and all others who wish, can spend their evenings in a more profitable manner than playing billiards or drinking beer.

MRS. WILKINS' CLUB.
BY JOHN QUINN.

"But, Mr. Wilkins, you don't understand what—"

"Now don't talk to me any more, on that subject. I'm sick of hearing you rattle. I tell you I don't approve of that club, and I don't want you to belong to it. Do you hear me? I say you shan't belong to it. I won't have you going down there and exposing family secrets, and letting all the women around town know what a ridiculous old blackhead I've got for a wife."

"Mr. Wilkins, I'll—"

"And undertaking to preach women's rights to a lot of pigeon-duffy old girls, each of whom has been trying all her life to get a libens corpus on some single man or other, but never found any who had such bad taste as to have her. I say I won't have it. It's perfectly ridiculous for a woman like you, who has about as much idea about writing an essay as a spoiled oyster has of thoroughness, to undertake to read a paper on 'Woman's Mission.' In my opinion, women had better be missionaries at home, and try to convert vicarials into dinner, than be going around reading documents like that you've been writing, about three miles long."

"Wilkins, that's no such thing, and—"

"Three miles long, on a subject you don't know anything at all about. I'd like to know what sense there is in covering three or four million sheets of paper with your ideas, even if you had any? I suppose you'll be wanting me next to hire a dray to haul your manuscript around to the club room, but I give you fair warning. I ain't going to do it, not if I know myself, and I think I do."

"Now, Wilkins, will you—"

"You don't expect those women to sit it out while you read the whole of that, do you? Why, you must be crazy! You seem to forget that human beings don't often live more than three score and ten years, and it'll take you that long to get half through—and they a sleeping all the time. You'd better take around a demijohn of Hoffman's anodyne, and be done with it!"

"Wilkins, you talk like a—"

"I'd just like to know how you want to vote for, any low. In my opinion, you'd better devote your attention to your family."

"A pretty looking spectacle you'll make going to the polls and getting into pig masses, and having your eyes blacked and your nose blacked, and your ridiculous bonnet smashed over your eyes, and making stupid speeches; not but what you'd do well on the stump speech. You've got an extra gift that way."

"Wilkins, you must be crazy!"

"And wandering the streets in procession, carrying a torchlight, and coming home greasy about four o'clock in the morning, smelling of coal oil. My charmer, I say, I won't have it. If you haven't any respect for yourself, or your children, and me, and—"

"You know I don't intend to—"

"I expect nothing else but you'll next be wanting to be lost of this shanty, and be putting on airs, and trying to wear the trousers. But you shan't wear mine! If you go fooling around with my dry goods, you'll get yourself into trouble, mind I tell you. I don't want you a straddling about in my clothes, let me tell you. I don't meddle with your parities, and one thing and another, do I? and I give you notice, I want you to let my things alone!"

"But, Wilkins—"

"Let them alone, and be decent. You needn't go around bragging and thinking I'm proud of you. You mortified half to death about your outrageous behavior. You're enough to aggravate a plaster of Paris angel, you are. Why don't you try to be genteel, and go down and practice on the front doorsteps with a bar of soap and a scrubbing brush, instead of howling around town about women's rights, and making a perfectly absurd old jackass of yourself? Why don't you be of some use in the world, like Smith's wife, who had her leg cut off last week by accident, but instead of sitting down and yelping and howling over it, she gave it to Smith to have knife handles and buttons made out of the bone? Why don't you do like her, and try to live for some purpose, hey?"

"What an awful story, Wilkins!"

"I expect nothing else but you'll be sporting a high hat next, and trying to part your hair behind; at least, what you've got left of it."

"Wilkins, I'll scratch—"

"But I don't care how big a fool you make of yourself, only you're just polluting the minds of my offspring and teaching them to walk in the road to ruin. It's too outrageous for anything. There's Breckinridge Augustus has been saved up and bought a high hat, and he straggles around under it, looking more like some old choloopson with an iron pot hung on it than like the child of respectable parents. There's more but than there is, and the first thing you know he'll shut up in it like a telescope, and very likely smother to death, and all owing to your ridiculous conduct, and neglect of your own offspring."

"Wilkins, that is ridiculous!"

"I say it's shameful that you should set such an example to your children, and stuff such ideas into Heloise's Montgomerie's head, that he's doing his all-fired best to grow a moustache, until it's drawing all the strength out of his scalp, and his head's getting bald, and he has rubbed his upper lip with forcing salve until it's swelled up about the size of a five cent loaf of bread, so that his nose looks like a whole in his face, and the boy's constitution is undermined for life. It's perfectly outrageous!"

"You know that ain't so, Mr. Wilkins—"

"And I've made up my mind not to stand it any longer; for you've even spoiled Mary Jane, so that she tried to shave herself with my razor, and it slipped, and would have cut her innocent throat if you hadn't taken the edge off looking at your abominable corn and bunions and so on. And she's got so stuck up that she has a boy to carry her books to school for her, and the little scoundrel thinks he is in love with her, and spends his missionary money buying apples for her, and robs the poor, offensive heathen in a distant land, and prepares himself for a felon's grave, and all because you neglect your children and join clubs, and associate with strong-minded old lugs, and read essays a million miles long, and want to vote, and behave yourself like the regular old-fashioned, long-necked, straggly old heifer that you are. I say—"

"Take that, now, and if you came back here again I'll be the death of you," said Mrs. Wilkins, as a dull thud was heard, evidently proceeding from the contact of Wilkins' physical frame with the floor. In fact, Mrs. Wilkins had kicked him out of bed.

But they made it up again, for I heard Wilkins abusing his wife in the morning for starching his pocket handkerchief, so that he rubbed all the skin off his nose.

PIQUANTS.
Paradoxical situation—Hy-menial.
A mist note—when dew (dew).
A New Orleans gentleman calls the negro a 'remnant of the dark ages.'
Is stealing a marcher worse than taking a walk?
How do you account for the fact that the hat is worn lower, and lower, when it is raised every day?
A Scotchman asked an Irishman—
"Why are farthings coined in England?"
"Pat's answer was this—'To give Scotchmen an opportunity of subscribing to charitable institutions.'"
A Rhode Island newspaper prints the following among its marriage notices: In Thompson, Ct., November 20th, by the Rev. L. W. Wood, Rufus Briggs, to Sarah Greenleaf, Auburn, Mass., after a long and tedious courtship of over five years.
Macklin and Dr. Johnson disputing on a literary subject, Johnson quoted Greek. "I do not understand Greek," said Macklin. "A man who argues should understand every language," replied Johnson. "Very well," said Macklin, and he gave him a quotation from the Irish.
An orator in the Irish House of Commons was describing the inordinate love of praise which characterized an opponent. "The honorable member," said he, "is so fond of being praised, that I really believe he would be content to give up the ghost, if it were but to look up and read the stonecutter's puff on his grave."
Lord Chesterfield one day, at a tavern where he dined, complained that the plates and dishes were very dirty. The waiter, with a degree of pertness, observed, "It is said every one must eat a peck of dirt before he dies." "That may be true," said Lord Chesterfield, "but no one is obliged to eat all of it on one meal, you dirty dog!"
One morning a pompous little man called upon Sidney Smith, saying that, being about to compile a history of distinguished families in Somersetshire, he called to obtain the Smith arms. "I regret, sir," said the reverend wit, "my inability to contribute so valuable a work; but the Smiths never had any arms, and have invariably sealed their letters with their thumbs."
One very hot day, Marshal Turenne, wearing a night cap and jacket, was indulging himself in looking from his ante-chamber window, when one of his household came quietly into the room, and, deceived by the dress, mistook the marshal for one of the men-servants with whom he could take a liberty, and stealing slyly behind, with a hand by no means light, gave him a hearty slap on what an Irishman would call the broad of his back? The poor valet's dismay may be conceived when, on the marshal's turning round, he discovered the egregious error he had committed. He threw himself upon his knees, and exclaimed, "I ask your lordship's pardon, but indeed I thought it was George." "Well, and if it had been George," replied Turenne, "you need not have slapped so hard!"

SEIZURE OF AN ILLEGITIMATE STILL.—On Thursday afternoon of last week, two government inspectors, in company with Deputy Sheriff Gridley F. Hervey, paid a visit to the residence of Mr. Charles Quinn, situated on the Turnpike, and there found a still in the cellar in full operation, and a man, named Michael McDermott, tending it. The officers arrested Quinn and McDermott, and they were conveyed to the Alms-house and locked up to prevent their escape. Friday morning they were brought before Commissioner Hall, when E. W. Morton, Esq. appeared in their behalf, and claimed that the men were making the liquor for their domestic use and not for sale, and that they could not be held for carrying on the business of distillers without license. The Commissioner took a different view of the matter, and held the defendants in $2000 each for their appearance before the March term of the District Court.

Mr. Quinn has always enjoyed a good reputation as an honest and upright citizen. He has for several years past been in the business of collecting rags, &c., and had accumulated a little property by his industry. We will be able to prove his innocence of any intention to defraud the government. (Hing-Jour.)

BACK, ABDOMEN, AND UTERUS SUPPORTER!
Great care has been taken in arranging the Supporter for the Uterus. The wearing of the Supporter a part of the time (for no Supporter should be worn constantly) will not only afford temporary relief and stay the progress of the disease, but in most cases in any posture the body may assume.

Ladies, this is not an advertisement. One of your own sex has arranged it, after years of suffering and fruitless search to find some support or compress that would bring relief. She aroused herself, fully persuaded she could invent a Supporter which would benefit herself, and as she gained strength and went into society, she was constantly meeting those similarly afflicted. A friend, respected and of the highest social position, now suffering, saw something to help her, and after two years more of study and toil, during which time she left no means untried to gain knowledge concerning her work, she is prepared to answer the question satisfactorily.

And now let me say to those who are thus afflicted, at the earliest solicitation of friends I propose to devote of each week to any who may need my services in fitting Supporters or Bandages, and will give such advice and make such examinations as they may need, at my residence on those elegant quarters of the city which it had once been Lizzie's lot to inhabit, and finally stopped before the very house which had once been theirs.

'Well,' continued the tavern-keeper, the location of your property—the Cold Stream Farm—is on the top of that mountain.'

'Yes, but how do you get there?' 'Why you don't suppose anybody was ever up there, do you, Mr. Henshaw?'

'Well, what's the good of it—what is done with it?' 'Well, what's the good of it—what is done with it?' 'Well, what's the good of it—what is done with it?'

'The town sells it every year for the taxes,' replied the tavern-keeper. 'They do, hey?' says Mr. Henshaw; 'and pray tell me who in these parts is fool enough to buy that style of property?'

'Why, any of our claps around here who get into trouble or fall, buy it for the purpose of settling with their Boston creditors.'

Mr. Henshaw took the first opportunity to return home, and perhaps would not have told the story, had not a friend, in asking him as collector to give a man a place in the Custom House, for one reason, among and above others, that he was from New Hampshire—when he gave this little bit of his experience with one of the Granite State men.—Bulletin.

A MICHIGAN AMAZON. Mrs. G., of Detroit, has continued to get the ill-will of all her female neighbors, and one day lately two or three of them assembled in a house near by and made up a corps to "lick" her.

The Convention being over, and the party arrived at the pond, Smith and Jones by themselves, started upon the ice, Smith ahead, Jones behind—when, unfortunately Jones plumped into an air-hole and stuck in the mud below.

'Hallo, Smith! I'm in—help me out,——cried Jones. 'Ha, ha, ha,' laughed Smith. 'What are you laughing for, you fool? Help me out, don't you see I'm freezing?'

'No sir, I'll die in the Democratic faith,' said Jones firmly. 'Well,' said Smith, 'it's my duty to strengthen my party. What do you want me to say to your family?'

intention of performing a variety of intragible duties tomorrow or the day after. When this manifestation of the disease is observed, the observer will usually connect it with a vague impression once formed.

Finally, he noticed that the lady seemed somewhat annoyed by the wind, rather chilly for the season, blowing through an open window at her back. He proposed to close it, to which she assented with thanks.

When the lady had left the car, the gentleman ascended from the conductor for her name and residence. He then furnished the conductor with his card, giving his name and address, and requested him as a special favor to call at the residence of the lady, and ascertain whether a visit from him would be permitted.

It is now about 8 or eleven years since folks began to hanker after the tomato. About that time, some doctor or pills dosed one of those vagrant vegetables and discovered some doctor stuff in them.

They were vagabond weeds, and even a wood hog wouldn't eat one of the berries that grew on them any quicker than he would a bawl of red-stocking yarn.

It took most folks about 18 months of perseverance and sea sickness to get the tomato to go quietly down, and now from a vile weed, more sweetly than a diseased klan, the tomato has actually got to be more honored than a buck when slapping, or even a pumpkin pie.

I haven't any doubt but if Professor Ratsbane would say professionally, that wasp nests wuz good to make a mustard black, half the men in the kitchen would get a wasp and go into the nest biggest.

I don't believe a tomato will keep a man any more healthy than red clover will, but I am just like every one else, I wanted to get sum better than I wuz, and I went to school to the tomato, and I got learn how tew eat them, if they are filled with salt and pepper, and soaked well in good sider vinegar.

Up tomattoe have worked themselves but unnecessary, and I am not the man to injure their reputashun, for I believe an innocent humber iz az much right tew win (if they kin) az any other man.

There is one thing, I do hope, that nobody will undertake tew make kaster out of the luxuries until after I am dead, for kaster ile and bed bugge iz 2 things that I solemnly swear I won't have, if I git to be ever so fashionable.

THE SURPLUS REVENUE.

The vote at the late annual town meeting to destroy the notes given by the inhabitants in 1837 for their proportion of the Surplus Revenue...

There is no accounting for tastes. I saw the statement in the Gazette of last week that Mrs. Rockwood's lecture was not equal to former lectures.

It will, perhaps, be interesting to many of our readers to recall the action of the town concerning the Surplus Revenue, and we have gathered the following items from the records.

June 13, it was voted to obtain legal advice respecting the disposition of the revenue, and a committee was chosen...

March 23, 1868. Mr. Editor:—There has been some talk about the nomination of Treasurer at the citizens' caucus in Weymouth...

East Weymouth, Friday, March 13. I have just heard of my nomination as Treasurer of this town, the responsibilities of such an office and the heavy burden...

March 12, 1868, a committee was appointed to audit a account of loaning agent, and March 20, they reported the expenses of the agency to be a total of $567.85...

Weymouth, Nov. 1, 1837. For value received, in loan of Asa Pratt, 2d, Charles Pratt, Amos Merritt and Mimos Thomas Agents, appointed by the Town of Weymouth...

DEATH HAS TAKEN HIS HEAVY HAND UPON US! JOHN S. AYER'S REMEDY.

LEVEL, G. A. R.—We learn from the committee who have in charge the arrangements for a levee...

There is no accounting for tastes. I saw the statement in the Gazette of last week that Mrs. Rockwood's lecture was not equal to former lectures.

Next to the organization of the Christian Church the societies for Moral Improvement and Reform demand the countenance and support of every good citizen.

Where do such miserable and wicked combinations as P. L. L.'s stand in view of such a grand and exalted standard as pictured in the minds of our Fathers?

Mr. Editor:—There has been some talk about the nomination of Treasurer at the citizens' caucus in Weymouth...

ECONOMY, POLITICAL AND DOMESTIC. Mr. Editor:—At a time like the present, when the nation bends beneath the weight of accumulated taxes...

It is evident from the action of our legislative departments throughout the land that ideas of economy influence nearly every act or resolution.

This office is too important to be subjected to the craft of one or two men or a clique even, who have "a point to carry" and to be given to "somebody's cousin" just because he has "broken down in teaching."

Removal.—Mrs. J. A. W. Winslow, M. D., leaves this village this week to practice in Fall River.

Savings Bank.—The legislative committee on banks and banking has reported a bill to incorporate Summer Shaw, Franklin Peole, Washington Reed, Jenkins Lane, Z. M. Lane, J. M. Underwood, their associates and successors...

West Haverhill.—This thriving village rejoices in the possession of a steam engine, recently set up in the Alahab Mill (a box, board, and shingle mill) the engine being furnished by Mr. Joshua Studley at a cost of $1500...

Mr. Editor:—I clipped the following concerning our town from your paper and if of interest, insert in your paper.

THE STORM of Saturday last was one of the severest of the season in the amount of snow which fell. The travelling was much impeded, and on the South Shore railroad the trips were quite irregular.
