On-wiki planning of on-wiki campaigns

- Be collaborative.
- Be creative.
- Be bold.
- Ask questions.
- Make suggestions.
- Complete tasks.
- Take breaks.
- Inspire others.

Creativity and curiosity are welcome. Inspiring and doing, too.

This is what inspired

Consensus building

Compromise and sensitivity are required when ideas are not unanimous
Two examples: discussing a North American geofocus event series; approaching indigeneity in 2023

2022 geofocus? [\[edit source \]](#)

Do we have more of the continents left? Or do we need to think about how to geofocus for next year? There's a nice alphabet based idea above? Lajmmoore \(talk\) 17:04, 25 November 2021 (UTC) [\[reply \]](#)

Thanks for bringing this up, Lajmmoore. We've now covered most of the world but not yet the United States and Canada. I had originally suggested that we could possibly address certain areas of North America -- or even specific states or provinces -- in 2022. We could, for example, devote each quarter to one of the five geographic regions: Northeast, Southeast, Midwest, Southwest and West. That would bring us into the first quarter of 2023. We could then tackle Canada. Perhaps we could give special attention to indigenous and minority communities. Any interest in this approach?--Ipligott \(talk\) 19:55, 25 November 2021 (UTC) [\[reply \]](#)

If this approach is done, it'd also make sense IMO to do territories as a section. They rarely get any

5 Regions of the United States

Welcome!

Women in Red

Hello! and welcome to WikiProject Women in Red

Every August, to celebrate International Day of the Girl Child, we have a special event series. This year, we are focusing on Indigenous women. We have a list of events for August 2023, including a film and stage event, and a global initiative. We also have a list of future events.

Thank you
