DE NEUVILLE (ALPHONSE MARIE), dec'd, Paris

Born at Saint Omer, France, 1836. A member of a wealthy family, his parents intended him for an official career, but he was only willing to join the army, and entered the school at Lorient. Here his astonishing skill in drawing was remarked. In order to make peace with his family he went to Paris and entered the law-school, but he spent more time at the military school and in the Champs-de-Mars, sketching and becoming familiar with all the details of a soldier's life. He returned home, declaring he would be a painter or nothing. His friends endeavored to discourage his determination, and the artists upon whom he called in Paris advised him to go back home. Delacroix, however, became his friend, and with him De Neuville spent many hours. He studied also with Picot. De Neuville's first pictures were not particularly remarkable, but the Franco-Prussian war gave him inspiration and subjects almost without limit, and since that time the artist has produced some of the greatest battle-pictures of any time. Medals, Paris, 1859-1861. Legion of Honor, 1873; officer of the same, 1881. Died 1885.

At fifteen years of age he was apprenticed to a maker of porcelain, where his talent first displayed itself. He quarreled with and left his master, and subsequently spent several years in most bitter poverty. After his ability as a most wonderful colorist was recognized, Diaz painted and sold many pictures, working even too constantly, as if endeavoring by the accumulation of a vast fortune to avenge the poverty of his youth. Medals, 1844-1846-1848. Legion of Honor, 1851. Died, 1876. Diploma to the Memory of Deceased Artists (Exposition Universelle), 1878.

Fabiola.

13 x 16½.

Fabiola, the heroine of the late Cardinal Wiseman's story, was the daughter of Fabius, a wealthy Roman living in the fourth century of our era. Her name, according to Roman custom, was softened from that of her father into the diminutive, and, the author tells us, is to be pronounced with the accent on the second syllable. The story narrates the development of Fabiola's character, born and brought up under pagan influences, and gradually brought into sympathy with the new principles of Christianity by the example of the converts whom she met in her own household and in the society in which she moved. Her slave Miriam first taught her the lesson of charity and forgiveness, while in her patrician friends Agnes and Cecilia she saw the new life reflected in its noblest and most heroic aspect. When the persecution was ended, in which both Agnes and Cecilia perished, Fabiola retired from the world, and after many years of charity and holiness withdrew to rest in peace by the side of her martyred friends.

Spring.

21 x 35.

When Winter's rage abates, when cheerful hours
Awake the Spring and Spring awakes the flowers,
On the green turf they careless limbs display,
And celebrate the mighty mother's day ;
For then the hills with pleasing shades are crown'd
And sleeps are sweeter on the silken ground ;
With milder beams the sun securely shines,
Fat are the lambs and luscious are the wines.

Let every swain adore her power divine,
And milk and honey mix with sparkling wine ;
Let all the choir of clowns attend the show,
In long procession, shouting as they go ;
Invoking her to bless their yearly stores,
Inviting plenty to their crowded floors.

Thus in the Spring, and thus in Summer's heat,
Before the sickles touch the ripening wheat,
On Ceres' call ; and let the laboring hind
With oaken wreaths his hollow temples bind ;
On Ceres let him call, and Ceres praise,
With uncouth dances and with country lays.

TRANSLATION OF A POEM BY JULES BRÉTON, ILLUSTRATING THIS PAINTING.

Among the fresh lilacs, and the new budding leaves,
 In this spring-time that hums and smiles through the trees,
 On this bright Sabbath day, maids with heavenly brows,
 Marching onward to mass, beneath the young boughs :
 Did you take from the sky, to commune for God's pleasure,
 Your robes of pure white where quivers the azure ?

Thus so would I think from your costumes so light
 That bloom with the day, like the snow and as bright ;
 By the vapory veil, with its misty-like flounces,
 By your virginal lips, and your sweet modest glances ;
 By your nosegays of gold, attached to your tapers,
 And the heavenly light that illumines your faces.

How each thing around both greets you and blesses ;
 The mossy thatched roofs have enameled their ridges ;
 They curve rounding down to contours most supple ;
 The soft, tender grass does everywhere sparkle :
 Still wet by the morn, its white dew breathing odors,
 It unrolls to your feet its velvety borders.

Your folds of gauze in the breeze make angelic pinions,
 Less white are the doves on the barn's lofty crestings ;
 Less pure is the hawthorn, with its balmy branches ;
 Thus onward you go to the old chapel's porches ;
 Where girdled by lindens the church bell is tolling,
 While the sun on the tower its corners is gilding.

247375

And spotless you go. The portal unfolds,
 Your heart stronger beats, the bell louder tolls ;
 The aged, quite moved, at the tower's base centre ;
 The door opens wide. Go, gentle maids, enter ;
 And then from the burning ends of your nun's tapers
 Let bright stars of love float out with its vapors

Ecstasy ! holy fear of mystical raptures
 When with your fingers quiver the hymnal's pages
 In singing ! O sweet tender Jesus, descend !
 Ah ! come, Divine Spouse, and with our soul blend.
 The Host seems to tremble in the hands of the priest,
 As seen through the whirl of the incense's mist.

Receive in his body the Lord of the earth ;
 Daughters, you ignore his mysterious worth ;
 And to him prefer, resuscitated being
 The beautiful crucifix, on the hill dying ;
 You love its fair forehead, that's torn by the thorn,
 And the bleeding wound on its holy side shown.

And above all, you love the child's rosy face,
 Bathed, as the fair lamb, in the gold of its fleece ;
 Who came with its smiles, at the side of your cribs,
 And its little clear eyes, when you were all babes :
 'Tis for this that you beam, is it not, maiden, say ?
 And palpitate in the church aisles while you stay.

Vainly all reason succeeds to dead faith.
 And no recollection goes forth with your breath
 That does not vibrate like a ray from the skies,
 So sing, virgins, sing ! The glad summer close lies :
 Then autumn, whose ripe fruits will fall to the ground ;
 So to dying spring, let your first chant resound.

“The illustrations etched by M. Flameng for M. Chas. Blanc’s Catalogue of the Works of Rembrandt, have long been familiar to the students of art; and we have known for years that M. Flameng could copy Rembrandt with a degree of life and truth which left little to be desired. Still it is probable that the élite of the general art public will not be quite prepared for the great technical triumph which M. Flameng has just achieved. He has produced a copy of one of Rembrandt’s most difficult and complicated etchings—a copy, which, if we balance one quality against another, certainly exceeds the most perfect photography in accuracy, while at the same time it possesses, as a piece of execution in etching, all those technical merits for which Rembrandt was famous. . . . In a certain sense, and for some peculiar reasons which will be given in support of the assertion, it may be boldly affirmed that, as a technical performance merely, such a copy as this is even more wonderful than the original plate itself.”—HAMERTON.

COLLECTION OF ENGRAVINGS AND ETCHINGS.

NOTES BY MR. FREDERICK KEPPEL.

THIS collection has been made with the view of illustrating the whole history of the art, extending over a period of about four centuries.

The best examples of the greatest artists in engraving and etching are here included, in so far as it has been possible to procure them; and several of the prints are undoubtedly unique in America, being the only examples which have ever come here.

The great masterpieces of the old painters are now absolutely unprocurable. They are treasured in the public galleries of Europe, whence they will never come out; but such masters of painting as Albert Dürer, Rembrandt, and Claude Lorraine have engraved their own designs, either with the etching needle or the graver, and fine original impressions, printed from such plates, are just as original, just as personal to these artists as are the paintings themselves.

Thus there are in this collection precious relics of the infancy of art, which were not only engraved, but printed also by the hands of such masters as Israel von Mecken, Martin Schongauer, and Andrea Mantegna; and these identical sheets of paper having been religiously treasured by generation after generation of sincere art-lovers, have come down to the present day, and now take their place in the present collection.

And the wonder is—not that these early prints are costly—but that they are procurable at any cost.

It is not, however, every old print which is valuable, or even a work of art in the proper sense at all. It is only those which have genuine artistic merit to recommend them as well as antiquity—only the works of the true artists.

The relative value of each print is determined by its merit and its rarity; the best are usually, but not always, the dearest. In May, 1883, an impression of Rembrandt's etching, known as the "Advocate Tolling," was sold at auction in London for the enormous sum of £1,510 sterling ($7,500.00), and yet Rembrandt has etched better portraits than this, but, for some reason, very few impressions of it exist. In Charles Blanc's admirable book on Rembrandt there is a most dramatic account of an auction sale at which the Chevalier Clausin made incredible sacrifices to obtain this same print, and how he failed to get it.

Quite recently Marc Antonio's print of the poet Aretino was sold for £780 ($3,900.00), and Rembrandt's "Hundred Guilders Print" for £1,180 ($5,900.00); and these are not imaginary values, for the same prints would bring as much or more at auction to-day, for their value has steadily increased for the past two hundred years.

The high value of choice prints has caused many of them to be counterfeited. There are as many as four and five different counterfeits of some of Dürer's plates, mostly produced during the artist's own lifetime, or very shortly after his death. The same is true of the works of Marc Antonio, Lucas van Leyden and Rembrandt. Many of these counterfeits are very deceiving, and, were it not that we have in book form the researches of skilled connoisseurs to guide us, collectors of the present day would have good reason to fear that some of their treasures were in reality spurious. But each important print has been positively authenticated, and the slight differences between the originals and the copies have been accurately shown.

Among these critical books of reference one work is pre-eminent. It is "Le Peintre-Graveur," in 21 volumes, by Adam Bartsch, who was the curator of the public collection at Vienna, where he was born in 1756. This work is a monument of critical research. It gives a detailed and systematic list of the works of each of the Painter-Engravers, telling how the various "states" of each plate are known, and minutely describing all the dangerous counterfeits of these plates.

The different "states" of a plate are somewhat like the different editions of a book, and it must always be borne in mind that as each impression taken wears the plate a little, the earliest impressions are usually the best, and a late impression from a worn-out plate is never good. The first state of a plate is not always the best, though it is nearly always the dearest. In the etchings of Rembrandt especially the first state is often very much unfinished, and of course presents an incomplete picture.

In a recent book, Sir William Drake's catalogue of the etchings of Seymour Haden, the excellent plan has been adopted of calling the unfinished and experimental proofs, "trial proofs," numbering them a, b, c, etc., and afterwards counting the "first state" from the actual completion of the plate. But Bartsch, Robert Dumesnil, and the other authorities designate these unfinished trial proofs as "states."

The "states" of the older plates correspond to the different "proof" states of the later engravings.

In the later engravings the "artists' proofs" are a limited number of the first taken from the finished plate. They are printed with great care, and before any inscription whatever has been put into the lower margin of the plate. Within the last thirty years it has become a custom for the engraver to examine each one of these artists' proofs, and to affix his signature to those that he finds perfect and unexceptionable; such a signature is, therefore, an endorsement or guarantee of the proof which bears it.

After the artists' proofs comes a second printing of "proofs before letters," which by a contradiction of terms are not before letters—since they usually bear the name of the painter, engraver, and publisher—but they are "before letters" in the sense that they are before the title, which does not appear till the next later state. After the "proofs before letters" come the "open letter" proofs. These are impressions with the final title of print added—but sketched in outline only.

Last of all come the "lettered prints," in which the title is completed. These lettered prints are issued until the metal plate wears out from use, and are unlimited in number.

In addition to these various proof states of a plate, an extra modern refinement has created the "épreuves de remarque." These are the choicest and finest of all: they are very few in number, and are issued from the finished plate before the artists' proofs. They are so named from the "remarque" or little special sketch which the artist adds in the lower margin of the plate, and which is again burnished out of the plate before the printing of the regular edition of the artists' proofs begins.

"States" of etchings are not always indicated by the lettering in the lower margin, as is the case with line engravings and mezzotints, because very often there is no blank margin to an etching, the etched work filling up the entire space of the copper. In such cases the "states" are indicated by something added to or taken from the etched work itself. For example: in Rembrandt's renowned plate of Christ before Pilate, known as the "Great Ecce Homo," the various states are described by Charles Blanc thus: First state, only the figures of Pilate and of five Jews appear, the greater portion of the composition has not yet been even commenced. Only two impressions of this state are known to exist; both are in the British Museum. Second state: The plate is now finished, except that in the subsequent state Rembrandt has added some diagonal lines to the face of one of the Jews. "Il est extrêmement rare" (Blanc). This second state shows the plate in all its glory—(and a superb impression of it is in the present collection). Third state: With the aforesaid diagonal lines added to the face of one of the Jews. Fourth state: The name of the publisher Malbouse is added in the lower margin.

Rembrandt's plates, and also those of Claude, present a variety of "states"; while in the line engravings of Martin Schongauer, Albert Dürer, and Lucas van Leyden, "states" are almost unknown, and the value is altogether determined by the quality of the impression—a very fine early one being worth twenty times more than a late and worn one.

The following extract from an article in Harper's Magazine gives some practical hints on this subject:

"A word of suggestion as to the selection of engravings. It is not essential that they must be 'proofs,' though proofs, being the very earliest impressions taken from the plate, are naturally the finest. But a bad or worn impression should not be tolerated, no matter how cheap it is. Such a print is known by its general effect of weakness and paleness; the figures have lost their rotundity, and the perspective is almost gone. Especially among old engravings are bad impressions to be avoided.

"Modern impressions taken from such old plates as still exist are also worthless. A print, to be as it should be, must have been printed at the time it was engraved. Modern impressions are readily known by the paper on which they are printed.

"Another necessary warning is against 'retouched' impressions; many plates have been thus ruined, when, after they have begun to wear out from use, they have been re-cut in the worn parts by incompetent hands. The effect of a retouched impression is dull, heavy, and disagreeable; all the harmony and beauty of the plate are gone. It is only fine original impressions in good condition that worthily represent the great engravers."

While the works of the early "Painter-Engravers" and "Painter-Etchers" are the most valuable, still no collection would be complete without the best works of the later engravers, who have reproduced the masterpieces of painting, translating them—so to say—into black and white.

Thus Raphael never engraved or etched his Sistine Madonna; but Müller engraved it for him three centuries later. Rembrandt never etched his Night Watch; but Flameng has etched it for him in our own day. Turner did not engrave his Calais Pier; but Seymour Haden etched Turner's painting in a most masterly manner.

No doubt Raphael, Rembrandt, and Turner could have engraved these three paintings respectively—but they did not do so; and meanwhile the most satisfactory copies of them are the three plates just named.

Injudicious partisans of the beautiful art of etching have gone so far as to disparage all reproductive engraving as not being "original." But they forget that we do not want originality in a translation or a reproduction. What we want is fidelity.

In Müller's plate of the Sistine Madonna it is Raphael who furnishes us with the originality, and his translator Müller has no business to be "original." And while the painting is far away in Dresden, this satisfactory copy of translation of it may adorn an American home.

The great value then of these engravings after the paintings of other men is, that they are the most available and most satisfactory presentations of those paintings which are the recognized masterpieces of art.

It is an interesting fact that those masters, such as Dürer, Rembrandt, and Claude, seldom or never engraved the same designs which they painted, or painted those that they had previously engraved, so that their prints do not duplicate their paintings—and this is one reason more for admitting good reproductive engravings into a collection.

NOTE ON COLLECTORS' STAMPS AND MARKS.

For centuries it has been the custom of some eminent collectors to put a distinctive mark on the backs of such prints as have been found worthy to make part of their several collections.

When the mark of some renowned collector is found on a print it is always recognized as a certificate of high quality. In the older prints the highest possible endorsement is to find the name of "P. Mariette" written, with the date, ranging from 1660 to 1710. Mariette sometimes even wrote his name on the face of a print—but so great was his judgment of quality that even this disfigurement adds value to it. A book is now being compiled by Mr. Thibaudeau, of London, which will be devoted to explaining these collectors' marks.

In the best modern collections it is usual to stamp the initials of the owner neatly in small letters on the back of the print.

ENGRAVERS, AND SPECIAL WORKS BY THEM, IN THIS COLLECTION.

OLD SCHOOL.

MARTIN SCHONGAUER, painter, engraver, and goldsmith, was born at Ulm, in 1420, and died at Colmar on the 2d of February, 1488.

He was one of the earliest and one of the best painter-engravers whose names have been preserved. The art of etching was not yet known in his lifetime—the discovery of it being ascribed to Albert Dürer, who was born in 1471—51 years later.

Although the works of all the early German masters seem stiff and “gothic” to modern eyes, yet there is real taste and beauty in the engravings of Schongauer. Perhaps the finest of his prints is the Saint Anthony tormented by Demons. Vasari records that Michael Angelo in his youth took the pains to color an impression of this print.

This collection is very rich in the works of this master. Among the finest specimens in it are the “Coronation of the Virgin” (Bartsch No. 71); “Peasants going to Market” (Bartsch No. 88); and the Elephant (Bartsch 92). This last is of extreme rarity.

ISRAEL VON MECKEN (or Meckenen), born at Bocholt, according to Byran, “about” the year 1424. Died the 15th of March, 1503.

Like others of the earliest engravers, he was a goldsmith—the separate profession of a painter being unknown at that period.

The “Dance of Herodias” is considered his masterpiece (see Andreson). The present impression is superb, and it is most probably the only example of this very rare print that exists in America. The costumes in it are most interesting.

ANDREA MANTEGNA, born at Padua in 1431. Died on the 15th of September, 1506.

This famous artist was not a goldsmith, like some of the early Germans, but was only known as a historical painter and engraver, and both his paintings and his prints display a bold and masterly style which is very different from the stiff and laborious work of the early Northern school.

Fine impressions of his works are exceedingly scarce and are highly valued.

“La Sépulture” (Bartsch, Vol. 13, pp. 229, 230)—cette estampe, dont Vasari fait mention, est une des plus parfaites de l'œuvre, tant pour le dessein que pour l'expression de la gravure.”

It is very rare.

“La Flagellation” (Bartsch No. 1). Fine original impression. There is an old counterfeit of this print, in which the pavement is somewhat different in design from the original.

ALBERT DÜRER.—This great master was born on the 20th of May, 1471, and died in his native town of Nuremberg on the 18th of April, 1528.

The books which have been written upon his works would form a small library in themselves, and the artist himself—like Leonardo da Vinci—is also a writer of books.

The greatest museums of the world compete in perfecting their collections of Dürer's engravings.

The present collection is especially rich in them, and many of the examples are absolutely unsurpassed as to quality.

“Adam and Eve” (Bartsch No. 1). The artist's masterpiece, “Saint Hubert,” Dürer's largest plate. “St. Jerome in his Cell” (Bartsch No. 60), very fine. The “Melancholia”—a perfect impression of this celebrated print.

NOTE.—Dürer has put into this plate a curious tablet of numbers which, when added up in a line, give the total of 34. This tablet gives the same total (34) when added in ten different ways, viz.: perpendicularly, diagonally, or horizontally.

Of Dürer's plate of “St. Hubert,” Bartsch records that the original copper-plate came into the possession of the Emperor Rudolph, who caused the engraved lines to be filled with gold, and in this condition the plate was put into the Emperor's museum. After this filling up of the lines, of course no more impressions could be taken.

This collection now contains no fewer than thirty-eight engravings by Dürer.

MARC ANTONIO (Raimondi).—This most celebrated of the Italian engravers was born at Bologna, in 1487.

He was not a “painter-engraver” in that he did not engrave his own designs, but inasmuch as his career was intimately associated with that of Raphael—the “prince of painters,” and that Raphael never engraved or etched, Marc Antonio's prints take rank with those of Dürer and Rembrandt, as the choicest gems in the realm of engraving.

In early life this engraver executed several plates in which he counterfeited the works of Dürer—even to the adding of Dürer's monogram to them. But going to Rome he attracted the attention of Raphael, and thereafter his great achievements were his plates from Raphael's works.

An interesting fact is that in many cases these engravings differ in certain details from the master's well-known paintings, and from this circumstance it is concluded that Raphael furnished his engraver with drawings from which to engrave his plates. And so truly “Raphaelesque” are those prints that connoisseurs are of opinion that Raphael himself must have aided Marc Antonio in his work.

“Saint Paul preaching at Athens” (Bartsch No. 44). Brilliant impression of one of Marc Antonio's finest prints. “Mary Magdalen washing the Feet of Christ,” (Bartsch 23). “La Vierge au Berceau” (Bartsch No. 63).

The above, among several others in this collection, may be cited as examples of Marc Antonio's beautiful and artistic work.

LUCAS VAN LEYDEN.—Born at Leyden, Holland, in 1494. Died in 1533. Eminent painter and line engraver; contemporary and friend of Dürer.

Fine impressions of this engraver's work are even scarcer than those of Dürer, because his plates were so delicately engraved that they yielded only very few good proofs before they began to wear out.

His print of Mary Magdalen enjoying the pleasures of the World, called "La Dance de la Madeleine," is his most admired work, and ranks as one of the master-pieces of engraving.

PARMIGIANO.—Born at Parma, in 1503. Died in 1540. The family name of this eminent painter was Mazzuoli. The collection contains a fine proof in the "first state" of his etching, "The Entombment."

CLAUDE LORRAINE.—This great master of landscape painting and etching was born in France in the year 1600, and died in Rome in 1682. His family name was Gélée. The parents of Claude were very poor and he was apprenticed to a pastry-cook. He afterwards became valet and cook to the Roman painter Tassi, and from this poor beginning he rose to be, perhaps, the greatest master of landscape.

In Smith's "Catalogue Raisonné of Claude," the writer says: "Upwards of two centuries have elapsed since the birth of this enchanting painter, and during this long period no successful rival has appeared. He therefore stands alone, pre-eminent in excellence."

The etchings of Claude are as highly esteemed as his paintings. The standard authority on the former is the work of Robert Dumesnil, "Le Peintre-Graveur Français."

REMBRANDT.—Paul Rembrandt van Ryn, the supreme master of etching, was born on the 15th of July, 1606, and died in 1665.

Rembrandt's etchings are the choicest treasures in the portfolios of amateurs throughout the world. Their value has steadily increased during two and a half centuries. In May, 1883, the highest price ever paid for an etching was given at auction in London for Rembrandt's portrait of the "Advocate Tolling." The price was £1510 sterling, or about $7,500.00. The purchaser was Monsieur Dutuit of Rouen. The auction sale took place at Christie & Manson's.

In the important revival of true painter-etching, which began about the year 1860 with Meryon, Jacque, Seymour Haden, Whistler, etc., and which has continued with such splendid results to the present day, it is a fact that all the best etched is frankly modeled after the methods of Rembrandt, and that "inspired Dutchman" seems to have known and practiced all the processes which are now used.

The great diversity of the money value of this master's etchings is partly due to their comparative quality, but partly also to their comparative rarity, so that the costliest print is not always the finest work of art.

His acknowledged chef d'œuvre is the "Christ healing the Sick," known by the sobriquet of the "Hundred Guilders Print." It is so called because Rembrandt himself used to sell it for that price (about $60.00). This was at that time a price unprecedentedly high. Dürer sold his finest prints at about twenty-five cents each.

The present impression of the "Hundred Guilders Print" is especially fine. A few years ago Mr. Palmer of London paid $5,900.00 for the first state of this print.

"The Three Trees." This is perhaps the most celebrated, as it is the most valuable of all Rembrandt's landscapes. There are several counterfeits of this plate, but none of them approach the original in quality.

The "Great Ecce Homo." Magnificent proof in the first finished state (2d state according to the books of reference). The present impression is described on page 8. There is probably not a finer example of it in the world. Only one other proof in this second state exists in America.

The collection now contains no fewer than 109 of Rembrandt's etchings; all are fine, and many are of such extreme rarity that it would be impossible to find any others in this country.

Portrait of the "Burgomaster Jan Six."

This is admittedly the finest of Rembrandt's etched portraits. It is of great rarity and value in any state, but the present impression is of such beauty that it would be almost impossible to duplicate it.

While Rembrandt was still poor and obscure one of his first patrons was Jan Six, member of an old Amsterdam family, and who afterwards became Burgomaster of his native city.

When the great Jan Six first patronized the poor and unknown Rembrandt he little thought that Rembrandt's work would immortalize his own name, but so it has proved.

This portrait was etched in 1647, when Six was 29 years old. After more than two centuries the Six family reside in the same plain and comfortable old house, and the house is full of precious works of art.

CORNELIUS VISSCHER.—This interesting artist was born in Holland in 1629, and died at the early age of 28.

His print of the Pancake Woman is celebrated. A curious point in it is that there are two children eating pancakes, while any one would assert that there is only one. The second child can be found in the very middle of the print, near the woman's elbow.

The portrait of De Ryck is a masterpiece and very rare.

ANTOINE MASSON.—An eminent line engraver. Born at Orleans in 1636. Died in Paris, 1700.

His portrait of Brisacier, known as the "Gray-Haired Man," is considered one of the four finest portraits in line engraving. The other three being the Pomponne de Bellièvre of Nauteuil, Philippe de Champaigne by Edelinck, and Bossuet by Drevet.

The present impression of the "Gray-Haired Man" is in a rare early state, in which there are two errors in the spelling of the inscription round the oval.

GERARD EDELINCK.—This greatest of portrait line-engravers was born at Antwerp in 1627, but his whole artistic career was in Paris.

ROBERT NAUTEUIL.—Born at Rheims, 1630. Died in Paris, 1678. One of the great portrait engravers. His portrait of Pomponne de Bellièvre is considered to be the finest ever executed. His works are minutely described in the catalogue of M. Robert Dumesnil.

PIERRE DREVET.—Born at Lyons, 1664. Died in Paris, 1739.

One of the great portrait engravers. His large full-length portrait of Louis XIV. is considered his finest work. A fine impression of it is in the collection.

PIERRE IMBERT DREVET.—Son of Pierre. Born at Paris, 1697. Died there in 1739. The younger Drevet has never been surpassed and has hardly been equaled as a portrait engraver. His portraits of Bishop Bossuet and of Adrienne Lecouvreur are his most esteemed works.

This eminent engraver died insane at the age of 42.

G. B. PIRANESI.—This artist was by profession an architect, and this aided him in the branch of art to which he devoted himself and in which he was unequaled.

His complete etched works comprise a great number of volumes, but it is only a selection of his most pictorial subjects which are sought by print collectors.

JOHN GEORGE WILLE.—Eminent master of line-engraving, born 1715. Died 1808.

A superb proof of the "Satin Gown" is one of the gems of the collection.

SIR ROBERT STRANGE.—Born in Scotland, in 1721. Died in London, 1792.

One of the very finest gems in the collection is the artist's proof of Strange's portrait of King Charles I. It bears an autograph dedication to a fellow artist.

WILLIAM WOOLLETT.—Born in England, 1735. Died in 1785.

Proofs of Woollett's prints are of great rarity. One such brought £70 sterling at auction in London recently.

There are several proofs of his finest works in the collection.

WILLIAM SHARP.—Born in England, 1746. Died in 1824.

A fine proof of the "Doctors of the Church" is one of the important plates in the collection.

The original painting was offered to the British Government, but while they delayed to secure it, Catharine the Great, of Russia, bought it along with other masterpieces.

GIUSEPPE LONGHI.—Born 1766. Died 1831.

A proof of the Reclining Magdalen is one of the loveliest things in engraving. It is very rare.

RAPHAEL MORGHEN.—Born near Naples, 1753. Died at Florence, 1833.

In the collection are the portrait of Leonardo da Vinci, and a proof of the small Madonna of the Chair, which Morghen engraved at the age of 72 years.

PAOLO TOSCHI.—Born at Parma in 1788. Died there in 1854.

This artist's two best plates are represented in the collection by unique proofs, both from his own collection. These plates are the Madonna della Scala, and the "Incoronata."

FRIEDRICH MÜLLER.—Born 1783. Died 1816.

A fine old impression of the great engraving of the Sistine Madonna also enriches the collection.

The plate is still in existence but very much retouched, and only the original impressions do justice to this masterpiece.

Other famous line-engravers are Porporati, Mandel, Calamatta, Schavoni, Richomme, Perfetti, François, Van Dalen, Bartolozzi, etc., all of whom, and several others, are well represented in the collection.

MODERN ETCHERS.

FRANCIS SEYMOUR HADEN.—This renowned etcher is not even an artist by profession, but has spent his life as a surgeon in London. He is one of the Fellows of the Royal College of Surgeons, and his etched work was only done as a recreation, and originally without any view to publication.

But yet no professional etcher of the 19th century ranks so high as Haden.

Mr. Hamerton's book, Etching and Etchers, devotes a very interesting chapter to this artist.

All his etchings are from his own designs, except one family portrait and the great plate of the Calais Pier, which is after Turner's painting.

The two large plates of Greenwich and Windsor are from his own designs. All three of these plates are destroyed and the proofs are very valuable.

Seymour Haden was born in 1818.

CHARLES MÉRYON.—Born at Paris in 1821. Died insane at Charenton, 1868.

Mr. Hamerton, in Etching and Etchers, eloquently tells the pathetic story of this wonderful artist's life.

Though he died so recently, his etchings to-day sell at nearly as high a price as those of Rembrandt; but he was driven insane by hunger, misery, and neglect, and in a paroxysm of madness he destroyed his precious copper-plates, so that his works are much scarcer than they otherwise would have been.

The collection is very rich in Méryon's prints.

CHARLES JACQUE.—Born in Paris the 23d of May, 1813.

This famous painter was one of the first to start the modern revival of true etching. His great plate, "La Grande Bergerie," is an acknowledged masterpiece.

JEAN FRANÇOIS MILLET.—This great artist was born at Gréville in 1814, and his etchings are as thoroughly characteristic of him as his paintings themselves.

It is stated that during the whole of his life Millet finished only about eighty oil paintings, many of which he retained in his studio for a long time, returning to work on them again and again in order to satisfy himself.

What a pity it is that he did not receive, during his life, the tenth part of the present value of any one of these paintings, in addition to the pittance that he sold them for! Such a sum would have made a rich man of him.

Millet sometimes repeated the subjects of his paintings in his etchings.

The collection contains several of his finest, notably "La Cardeuse," and a unique proof of "La Bergère," the latter being probably the only signed proof of it in the world.

DE GRAVESANDE.—This eminent etcher is the son of the late President of the Senate of Holland.

He went through the law course at the University of Leyden, but his overpowering bent toward art resulted in his adopting the profession of an artist. Mr. Hamerton devotes a highly laudatory chapter to him in the second edition of his Etching and Etchers, the first edition having appeared before his first etchings were published.

De Gravesande's etchings are highly esteemed in England and France. He now lives in Brussels.

AMERICAN ETCHERS.

Some of the very best and truest etchers of the present day are Americans.

The critics say that the practical directness of the American character is conducive to this result. In general these works are specially decorative and pictorial, and are well adapted to framing purposes.

Perhaps the most popular—and justly so—of American etchers, is

STEPHEN PARRISH.—He was born in Philadelphia, in 1846, and belongs to one of the old Quaker families there. Mr. Hamerton writes of him in the London Portfolio :

"Mr. Parrish is one of the most sincere and straightforward of living etchers."

The collection includes a set of his works, which is almost complete, and as many of the earlier plates are destroyed, many of those are rare.

PETER MORAN.—This celebrated painter of animals, etc., is President of the Philadelphia Painter-Etchers' Society. He was one of the first to practice the art in this country, and he has been eminently successful as a teacher.

Peter Moran is brother of Thomas and of Edward, the well-known New York painters, and is uncle of Percy and Leon Moran.

JOSEPH PENNELL.—Born in Philadelphia. A pupil of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

There is probably no living etcher who has achieved as high a reputation in so short a time as Mr. Pennell. He is now about twenty-five years old, but he has won the cordial approval of such masters as Haden, Whistler, and De Gravesande.

OTTO H. BACHER.—A native of Cleveland, Ohio. Studied art in Munich and Venice. Of his set of twelve views of Venice, Seymour Haden writes :

"The whole set, accessories and all, evinces a strong artistic feeling. Bold and painter-like treatment characterizes it throughout."

Mr. Bacher is not yet thirty years old.
