POLLY LARKIN

It is a mistaken idea to bring up the daughters in a family with the idea that they will never have to work and to prevent them from learning something that in the event of adversity and the necessity of earning their own livelihood, they will be able to meet the situation courageously, which they can do with brave hearts if they know they are competent to discharge the duties required of them. I have in mind one little friend who for years pleaded with her father to allow her to earn her own money and be independent. She argued that a time might come into her life when she would be required to make her own living. He was as firm as a rock, however, and insisted upon her remaining home in idleness. He was anxious for her to take music lessons, but the girl was devoid of all musical taste. She did not have ear enough for music to know discord from harmony. It was a useless expenditure of money to try and "drum" music into the poor little soul. The father would not give up the idea of making a musician out of her, even when the best of instructors reluctantly acknowledge that it was useless and a waste of time and money, besides being a punishment to the child every lesson she had to take. She was exhausted (as well as the teacher), impatient and fretful for the rest of the day. The father looked upon this lack of music in the child's make-up as a great calamity and insisted that it must be overcome. "It's stubbornness," he said, "and I insist that you make her learn. Constant practice and the instruction of the best of teachers are bound to overcome this, and I repeat, 'drum' it into her. She's got to learn if it takes the rest of her lifetime. She wants to paint and model in clay and spends the time that she ought to be devoting to music out in the back yard with a lot of clay, trying to make all kinds of things, or up stairs shut up in her own bedroom dabbling with some paints her aunt very foolishly gave her. I won't encourage her by even looking at them. She knows it displeases me, yet she steals off every chance she gets to enjoy herself in her own way. My family is all musical, and—well, she's got to be, hasn't she?"

He was all wrong. The money that he spent in attempting to cultivate a talent she didn't possess rightly used might have made her a successful artist to-day; but in place of that, left all alone, with no money, her father having taken his life after falling in business and her invalid mother never rallied from the shock of her husband's death, following him soon after, she is working for small wages in a family, doing her cooking, something she never even looked after in her home, and on account of being inexperienced in the culinary line, she has to take what she can get. The little white hands have grown hard and rough in their new employment of cooking, scrubbing, washing and ironing.

"Don't think I am satisfied for a moment, Polly, or that I have lost my ambition to make something beside a kitchen maid out of myself. The people I am with are good to me and put up with my failings to come up to the mark in the culinary realm. I could have gone into a store as clerk, but I would have made no more than I am making now by the time I had paid my board, not mentioning carfare. Here I get my board and a pleasant room. I dress plainly, in fact never go out, so all that I need are plain little gingham and other wash dresses. I am saving every dollar and will eventually carry out my lifelong desire and attend the art school. I know it is in me, Polly, and I can make something out of myself beside a household drudge. I feel that every piece of clay, every block of marble, has a soul in it waiting to be released by the hands of the modeler. How my fingers tingle to get at them and set the captives free. I see an angel's face in one, a beauty with classical features in another; heroes and soldiers come trooping up before me and I know full well they are hidden away in the block of passive marble. I know there are the faces of little children with winning smiles, and cupids with outstretched wings waiting to be wooed from the prison that holds them. Sometimes I see a beautiful lion—monarch of the forest—and his helpless prey lurking in the cold impassive stone. It is typical of my life. I am the prey and fate is the lion, but I am only 'playing' possum." Sometimes when fate is asleep I shall escape, and then I shall commence to live.

"It was all a mistake bringing me up in idleness and with the belief that I would never have to battle with the world or make my own living. Father meant it for the best. He could not foresee that prosperity would fly out the door when adversity approached. He believed that he always would have a luxurious life and his people before him. It was humiliating to him to think that his daughter wanted to earn her own living. How his proud spirit would rebel if he knew what I was doing for a livelihood now. If I had my way, every girl, rich or poor, should be compelled to learn something that in case of these unforeseen disasters she would not be left stranded and helpless in this work-a-day world. I find that the people who are your friends in the days of your prosperity and affluence, who considered it an honor to be one of your invited guests and to partake of your hospitality, are the ones to pass you by when the hand of fate has fallen heavily, sweeping away the luxuries with all of their gilded trappings. Friends whom I entertained in my happy home in days gone by pass me with a cold stare to-day. Does it hurt my feelings? It did at first. Now I can smile, however, and find, or rather feel, that 'God moves in a mysterious way His wonder to perform.' Had this blow never come to me I would have gone on believing these false friends were true as steel and as constant and sincere in their friendship as I foolishly believed them to be. I am glad to find them out, for the day is coming when by my own efforts I shall rise again. I feel it, I know it, for the conviction is strong within me that I am going to succeed.

"I believe all the parents in the land should make their sons and daughters a study and endeavor to find out just what talent has been given them, and whatever that gift may be and in whatever channel it may run, make every effort to cultivate it and make a sacrifice to do it if needs be. Too many parents determine from the beginning, regardless of the children's tastes to make a musician of them. From cradle to piano stool is their motto. They labor under the false impression that every girl can be a musician and play the piano, and many a boy who loves a jewsharp better than a piano is made to practice his five-finger exercises until his temper and tired little hands and nervous body give out under the strain. Because a boy can play a harmonica and a jewsharp is no indication that he is going to excel as a piano player. If his talent is music they will take to it as naturally as a duck does to water. You cannot drive a chicken to water any easier than you can drive an unmusical child to music, and it is folly to try it. If a boy or girl wants to be an artist use every endeavor to give them advantages in that line. If they have the talent, let them have it, and their forte. If naturalists give them the outdoor life and instruction of good teachers, but for mercy's sake don't try to bend the twig of inspiration the wrong way.

BRIEF REVIEW.

Manuel Garcia at Ninety-Nine.
Manuel Garcia, the famous teacher of singing and inventor of the laryngoscope, was born on March 17, 1805, so that he has completed his ninety-ninth year and has entered his hundredth. He is still in possession of his faculties, says the London News, and takes an interest in the affairs of the world as well as in the art of singing. Open what book you may on the art of singing and you will find that he is mentioned as the foremost exponent of voice production on the lines that gave the world the great singers of the past. Manuel's father was famous as a tenor, teacher of singing and a composer of operas. He died in 1832. His three children fully inherited his musical gifts. The most famous, Malibran, is still a household word; Pauline Viardot Garcia was hardly less famous, and his son Manuel, though not highly gifted as a singer, has carried on the tradition of the Garcia family as the most prominent of singing teachers the nineteenth century has known.

Beggar's New Trick.
A beggar who inhabits the region about Riverside Drive, New York, has a new style of approach, which is bringing him big returns. When he sees a man coming along wearing new shoes or newly shined shoes, he takes a stand directly in the way of his victim and stares intently at the new shoes or new shine. Of course, the pedestrian stops and looks down at his own feet to see what is the matter. Then says the beggar: "I wish I had a pair of shoes as good as them." He has accomplished two things. He has made the pedestrian stop and pay attention, and he has a fine introduction for a touch. It usually brings a nickel.

Skin Troubles From Veils.
A German physician has discovered that the wearing of tight lace veils easily produce skin troubles. The nets catch and hold dust and entrap all general impurities of the air, and endanger not only the complexion but the lungs.

Flowers have been advocated as a cure for consumption by Dr. Frances Bartlett in a paper which she read before the Botanical Society of Pennsylvania.

If Mount Everest's, 29,002 feet, were set down in the Nero deep, 31,614 feet, there would still be nearly one-half mile of water above its summit.

Harry Casteel, an eight-year-old boy of San Jose, in jumping from a Santa Clara-street electric car, received injuries from which he died. The lad was returning from the race track, and in jumping from the car some other boys piled on top of him. He was the son of Milton Casteel, proprietor of a lodging house.

The City Hall of Healdsburg narrowly escaped being totally destroyed by fire. Some one carelessly dropped a lighted cigar into a pile of waste paper at the Board of Trustees' meeting. The fire was discovered by a trunk locked up in the jail, which is in the City Hall, who yelled for assistance. The courtroom was destroyed.

The Santa Fe depot at Hanford was robbed and $150 or $175 was secured. Night Operator W. A. Barter says two men came into the depot at 11:20 o'clock. One covered him with a pistol. They then tied him and left. Sheriff Buckner held an investigation and then arrested Barter on suspicion.

The navy yard authorities are gradually arranging for new machinery and material for the purpose of sheet-piling the channel opposite Mare Island. This will confine the currents at the rise and fall of the tides, scour out the channel and maintain a greater depth of water. Upward of $200,000 has been appropriated for this important work, which will be begun soon.

Philip Figueroa has been sentenced to five years in San Quentin for grand larceny. Figueroa stole a horse and buggy from T. J. Bobo of Selma a year ago. Benjamin F. Rush, president of the State Agricultural Society, declares that the coming State Fair will be more representative of the farmers and horticulturists than ever before. Rush is from Suisun, a district which has won several prizes for the exhibits of the products of the soil, and to this interest Rush says that the State Fair must look for solid support.

Prominent citizens of Weaverville, in Trinity county, have formed a development association, with Judge James W. Bartlett for their president. The object of this association is the development of the natural industries of the county, and also to promote the building of a public highway road connecting Weaverville with Eureka, a distance of about forty miles. With the completion of this road Redding, which is on the line of the railroad, will be brought into direct communication with Eureka.

Mrs. Marshall Taylor of Redding, became so excited when she found that her home was on fire that she got out two trunks and then fainted without having thought about her six-month-old baby sleeping in the house. Had it not been for the arrival of Mrs. George Cochran, a neighbor, who realized that the infant was in the burning house, the little one would have perished. The Taylor home is on the extreme edge of town, and no alarm was turned in for fire, as it was believed to be a brush fire on the outskirts of the city.

In the rough mountains near Big Meadows, in the Mineral King country Mrs. Anna Bradley, wife of J. S. Bradley, a business man of Fresno, trailed and killed a bear a few days ago, unaided and alone. Mrs. Bradley was the alone in camp when she discovered the tracks of the bear. She saddled a horse, called her dogs and took up the trail. Though the ground was very rough, she kept to the saddle. After a four-mile ride brim was sighted in Big Meadows and there he was treed by the dogs. Just as Mrs. Bradley dismounted, a limb on which the bear rested broke, and he fell within fifteen feet of her. Before brim had regained his equilibrium Mrs. Bradley fired a shot that penetrated his spinal column.

NEW SCHOOL LAW.

THE attention of school trustees has been called to the fact that the law says that each incorporated city is a school district and contiguous territory outside the city limits is not a legal part of said district unless added thereto.

The Sonoma Grammar School trustees have already gotten out a petition for the signatures of those residents outside of the city limits, who have, at the same time, always been in the Sonoma School Dist.

It will be necessary now, in accordance with the recent decision of the District Attorney, for such residents to petition the Board of Supervisors to be included in Sonoma District, in order that the law may be fulfilled and the district have the same boundaries as it has had heretofore.

OUR old friend, Frank B. Glynn, the able chairman of the Board of Supervisors, is again a candidate for re-election in the 1st district, with a good chance of winning the fight. The opposing party is having a hard time to get a good man to run against him, knowing that only the best one available would stand any chance at all.

THE political card of Blair Hart, candidate for Supervisor appears in another column. Mr. Hart has served one term faithfully and well and is seeking a re-election.

Aside from his acknowledged ability as a supervisor, Mr. Hart is very popular in his district and his friends predict a victory for him at the November election.

THE Santa Rosa Republican has changed its form somewhat, by coming out as an eight page 6 column paper. It is a decided improvement.

In the Inside Inn.

A visitor to the World's Fair walked up to the inside clerk of the Inside Inn and asked:—

"Excuse me, sir; is this the Inside Inn? And is the proprietor of the Inside Inn in?"

"Yes," replied the clerk, "this is the Inside Inn, and you will find the proprietor of the Inside Inn out side by the inn's side. He has kept the Inside Inn for several weeks. Once on an ocean trip he couldn't keep his inside in, but that is inside information and he don't want it known outside."

"All right," said the inquirer, "if this is the Inside Inn, we want to see its inside as well as its outside before we look inside any of the outside inns. If we like the Inside Inn's inside and outside better than we like the outside inns' outside and inside, we may bring our things from outside inside and stop inside the Inside Inn. Because we won't have to go from the inside outside or come from the outside inside, but can remain inside or outside the Inside Inn, it being the only inn inside the grounds. The other ones are on the outside and furnish no more comforts inside or outside than does the Inside Inn with exhibits close outside the Inside, while those who stop at the outside inns have to go inside to get in, and outside to go to their inn, so you see—"

But the clerk had fainted and fallen inside the Inside Inn's desk, and bell-boys were hurrying with water for his outside and brandy for his inside. In their excitement they got that which was meant for his inside outside, and that which was for his outside inside.

Life Is At The Worst

For the woman who enters on that period known as "the change." Life that has hitherto run happily and smoothly is thrown from its accustomed grooves by a sudden shock, which jars the body and distracts the brain. The suffering of women at this period varies, but while some escape with little distress, the majority of women suffer more or less acutely at this trying time.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription proves itself anew the friend of women at this crisis. It cures headache, backache, nervousness, sleeplessness and other womanly disorders, and perfectly and permanently re-establishes the general health.

A Woman's Recommendation.

"My physician said I was suffering from the effects of 'change of life,'" writes Mrs. M. Barnes, of Balls Ferry, Shasta Co., Cal. "I had heart disease and uterine trouble and rheumatism. My head was so dizzy I could hardly stand up. When I began to use Dr. Pierce's medicines I improved right along. I took seven or eight bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription,' a teaspoonful three times a day, and the 'Pleasant Pellets' at night. I feel as well as I ever did. I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Pierce's medicines to suffering women. I think they are the best medicines in the world. I can't say enough in their praise. The 'Favorite Prescription' cured me after I had been sick for two years so I was hardly able to be about."

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines. His profit is your loss. Accept no substitute.

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book containing 1008 pages, is given away. Send twenty-one one-cent stamps for expense of mailing ONLY, for the book in paper covers, or thirty-one stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

DEATH OF MRS. C. GRANICE.

PASSING OF A WELL KNOWN AND PROMINENT LADY.

Expired at Her Home on Napa St. Sunday Evening At 5:30 O'clock.

Last Sunday afternoon a gloom was cast over the entire community when the sad intelligence was learned that Mrs. Catherine Granice, wife of H. H. Granice, had passed away.

Mrs. Granice was a devoted wife and mother, and blessed with more than ordinary talents and abilities and was generous in the exercise of those qualities in all with whom she came in contact. She was an active member of the Sonoma Valley Woman's Club and took a keen interest in whatever measures were brought forward for the advancement of the community where she lived.

For her many friends here and all over the State, it will be hard to realize that she has gone to that better world, where sorrow and struggles are no more and all is sunshine and happiness. Her loss will be sorely felt.

Deceased was born in San Francisco, 43 years ago and has resided in Sonoma for over twenty years. She leaves besides her husband, her mother, Mrs. Keogh, and two brothers, three daughters, Misses Celeste, Julia and Ramona Granice, to mourn her loss.

Rev. Francis W. Reid, of the Congregational Church, conducted the funeral ceremonies at her late home on Tuesday morning and pronounced a very touching eulogy over the remains, recounting many noble and endearing traits of character.

Rivals "Jack and the Bean Stalk."

S. Cucci, of the Toscano Hotel, has a curiosity in his well-kept garden adjoining the hotel, in the shape of a zolb, summer squash resting upon a shelf on the arbor 7 ft. from the ground. This is a fact that speaks well for the productivity of Sonoma and is no "Jack and the Bean Stalk" fable.

Hon. McLaughlin Coming.

The committee having in charge the matter of securing an appropriation from Congress for the purpose of dredging Sonoma Creek, has very fortunately been promised a visit from a member of the River and Harbor Committee of Congress, in the person of Hon. James McLaughlin, from the 7th. or Los Angeles district.

He is expected to arrive here about the 12th. of September next, and will be shown over the ground and entertained by the committee.

It is understood that arrangements have also been made for Mr. McLaughlin to deliver a speech in Union Hall on the evening of the above date.

He is an eloquent and forcible speaker and will be heard by our people with great interest.

Small-Bulotti Nuptials.

Yesterday at high noon, at the home of the bride's parents in this city, Rev. Father Leahy of St. Francis' Church spoke the solemn words that united in the bonds of matrimony Mr. Frederick Bulotti and Miss Catherine N. Small.

Both young people are natives of Sonoma and members of prominent families, the groom being the son of Mr. and Mrs. V. Bulotti, and the bride, the eldest daughter of Judge and Mrs. J. B. Small.

The bride looked sweeter and more charming than ever dressed in a handsome dove-gray suit of crepe de chene elaborately trimmed.

Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. After the ceremony a delicious wedding breakfast was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Bulotti were the recipients of many costly and beautiful presents. They left on the afternoon train for a trip in Southern California. On their return, they will occupy the fine modern cottage on Napa St. just finished and elegant furnished by the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Bulotti's legion of friends extend hearty congratulations and wish them a happy and prosperous life.

Wilson, Cloverdale; G. O. Campbell, Sonoma; E. F. Woodward, C. E. Haven; R. F. Crawford, W. J. T. Orr, W. F. Price and J. K. Smith, Santa Rosa.

Ravenscroft; Redwood, G. Hansen; Russian River, L. H. Wilson; Salt Point, A. J. Walk; Santa Rosa, G. W. Lewis; Sonoma, J. B. Small; Vallejo, J. W. Ford; Washington, Harry E. Black.

BASEBALL.

Again has Sonoma hammered one of Gallatin's bunch of ball twisters into submission. Last Sunday's game was the fourth attempt made by the band to skin the judge's colts.

His bunch came here under the name of the Nationals of San Francisco. A cold shiver went up the back of the Sonoma boys as the "giant" Schlock stepped into the box, but the first ball over showed that the ginger was lacking and hit after hit was taken from him.

Eddie Hougaard, Sonomas' pitcher certainly had the Nationals swinging their heads off, for he has 19 strike-outs to Schlock's 3.

The score, 14 to 3 in Sonomas' favor.

A CARDBOARD WOMAN
 THE MALIGN INFLUENCE OF A MUM-MY CASE FROM EGYPT.

Queer Sequence of Fatalities and Hard Luck Experiences That Appeared to Be Unhappy Legacies to Those Interested in Its Custody.
 In a corner of the first Egyptian room at the British museum, behind the crouching body of the prehistoric chief who lived before there were pharaohs in Egypt or pyramids on the Nile, stands a woman molded from some ancient form of cardboard. She is merely a shell, the cover of a mummy case. Her hands are crossed above her breast, and her dark eyes stare forward into vacancy.
 According to the catalogue she is
 No. 22542, a problematical royal personage and a priestess of the College of Amen Ra. She lived in the mighty city of Thebes some 1,600 years before Christ.

And about this same coffin cover there hangs as terrible a story as ever Edgar Allan Poe or a Balzac or a Kipling produced from a gloomy imagination.
 If you question the attendants in the first Egyptian room they will shake their heads and say nothing. But there is a famous professor in the museum who knows that the facts are true, though whether they be a coincidence or a manifestation of supernatural power who can say? He says:
 "For three months I have been gathering the tangled threads of evidence. I have now in my possession proofs of the identity of all those who suffered from the anger of the priestess of Amen Ra. But for the sake of friends and relatives I have been requested to suppress the names.
 "About the middle of the sixties of the last century a party of five friends took ship in a dahabeah for a trip up the Nile. They traveled to Luxor on their way to the second cataract, and stayed there to explore the ruins of the great and wonderful city of Thebes, with its avenues of sphinxes and its vast hall of columns and its temple to Amen Ra, which is unequalled on earth in the sublimity of its ruined magnificence.
 "One night an Arab sent by Mustapha Aga came to one of their number, Mr. D., as we may call him, saying that he had just found a mummy case of unusual beauty. What became of the mummy the man did not explain.
 The next morning Mr. D. bought the case. Both he and his companions were impressed by its remarkable beauty and by the curious face of the woman portrayed, a face that was filled with a cold malignancy of expression unpleasant to witness.
 "They had agreed that, being all interested in Egyptology, they should apportion their finds by lot, and so, though Mr. D. had secured the name of its discoverer, he lost the mummy case, which passed to a friend, whom we will call Mr. W.
 "It was on their return journey that the series of misfortunes commenced.
 Mr. D.'s servant was handling him a gun, when without visible cause it exploded, the charge lodging in his arm, which had to be amputated; a second died in poverty within the year; a third was shot, while Mr. W., the owner of the mummy case, discovered on his arrival in Cairo that he had lost a large part of his fortune. He died soon afterward. The priestess of Amen Ra had signified her displeasure in a very convincing manner.
 "From the date it was shipped on board the steamer Mr. D. lost sight of the mummy case for several years.
 He did not at the time in any way associate the misfortunes that had occurred to the party with its discovery, but when he next heard of it and had full information of the disasters which had been subsequently associated with its possession he began to suspect that it was not merely chance, not merely a coincidence, that had brought so sinister a fate on all who had dealings with the priestess of Amen Ra.
 "On the arrival of the case in England it was given by its owner, Mr. W., to a married sister living near London.
 From the day the case entered the house misfortune followed misfortune.
 The family suffered large losses, and the end came with painful troubles which need not be specified.
 "The lady while in possession of the case received one day a visit from Mme. Blavatsky. The great theosoph-ical became very disturbed on entering the room, and after a few minutes' conversation told her hostess that there was something in her house possessed of a most malignant influence. She asked to be allowed to search the house and on discovering the coffin lid appealed to her hostess to send away an object which she described as a "most dangerous." Her hostess, however, refused, laughing at what she imagined to be an example of foolish superstition.
 "Some time afterward the lady sent the case to a well known photographer in Baker street. Within a week the chief of the firm came down to this lady's house in a state of great excitement. He had, he said, photographed the face with the greatest care, and he could guarantee that no one had touched either the negative or the photograph in any way, yet it was not the cardboard features that looked out of the photograph, but a living Egyptian woman staring straight before her with an expression of singular malivo-lence. Shortly after the photographer died suddenly and mysteriously.
 "It was about this time that Mr. D. happened to meet the owner of the coffin lid and begged her upon hearing her story to get rid of it at once. She agreed, and a carrier was found to convey it to the British museum. This carrier died within a week."—London

Human Nature.
 It is constantly said that human nature is heartless. Do not believe it.
 Human nature is kind and generous, but it is narrow and blind and can only with difficulty conceive anything but what it immediately sees and feels.

Bold Court Jesters.
 "You are ready enough to point your satire at other people's faults," Queen Bees once said to Clod, one of the court jesters, "but you never say a word about mine." "Ah," exclaimed Clod, "why should I waste time in reminding your majesty of your faults, seeing that they are in everybody's mouth?" Patch, one of Henry VIII's fools, once sought permission to demand an egg from every husband who was dissatisfied with his wife. No sooner had the king granted his request than Patch proceeded to demand the first egg from him, saying, "Your grace belongs to the class of husbands on whom I am entitled to make levy." She (bored)—No, Mr. Lytely, I can never love you. I honor and respect you. I am sure you would make some other woman a good husband. I—He—Well—could you—give me a place of recommendation to my next place?

WOMAN AND FASHION
 The Fashionable Skirt.

Many good skirts of all sorts are greatly in vogue and take numberless forms and varieties. This one is quite novel and eminently graceful and includes a plaited portion at each intermediate gore that gives flare and fullness.
 The model is made of champagne colored taffeta, with banding of silk broad and trimming of ecru lace medallions, but the design is suited to very nearly the entire list of seasonable fabrics, linen, cotton and wool as well as silk.
 The quantity of material required for the medium size is nine yards twenty-one inches wide, five yards forty-four inches wide or four and one-half yards fifty-two inches wide, with five yards of braid and twenty-one medallions to trim, as illustrated.

Concerning Boleros.
 Some are square.
 Others boast dips.
 Some are lace trimmed.
 They show the underbouse.
 Some are in tucked mousseline.
 Most of them dip toward the front, coming almost to the waist line.
 Some have plaited sleeves, half short and left flowing.
 Or a sleeve may be gathered into a smart cuff with frills of lace.
 Usually the bolero is trimmed to simulate a collar or a yoke.
 Some sort of angle dangles yet serve to fasten it at the front.
 Good designers find no difficulty in treating a bolero in harmony with the skirt.
 Sheerest blouses of net, lace, mull and batiste are worn under the bolero.

Trimming For Linen Gowns.
 Morning gowns of white or colored linen may be simply made with white collar and cuffs of embroidery or lace and perhaps two or more bands of the lace laid down the front of the waist.
 Fine tucks may be run between each band. Small square lace yokes are also attractive, and the rest of the waist may be quite square or laid in narrow box plaits. The skirt may then have the box plaits running down almost to the knees, with the wide flare from there. Embroidered linen gowns are exceedingly smart.

Washable Silk Waist.
 Washable silks appear to add to their variety each year and are to be counted among the satisfactory materials for waists and for simple gowns. This very charming blouse shows the material in white dotted with black, trim-

SURPLICE WAIST.
 med with banding in dull Persian colors, with a chemisette of inserted muslin tucking and frills of snowflake lace. The surplice effect is always a desirable one and in this instance is combined with the fashionable drooping shoulders and wide full sleeves.
 To make the waist for a woman of medium size will be required four and a half yards of material twenty-one, three and a half yards twenty-seven or two and a quarter yards forty-four inches wide, with one-half yard of tucking, two yards of banding, two yards of lace and one-half yard of soft silk for belt.

The Fantastic Stocking.
 Birds, butterflies and daintily embrodered sprays of flowers are the favorite adornment for fine stockings.
 Small bunches around the ankles and trails of foliage on the sides wind among insets of lace decorating the instep. Shot silk hosiery, if it harmonizes with the gown, is la mode for morning wear.

About Laces.
 The new method of combining both thin and heavy lace with fine swiss or hand embroidery on sheer linen is one of the prettiest conceits now in vogue.

Letting Him Live.
 "I'd willingly die for you."
 "Your income dies with you, does it not?"
 "Certainly."
 "Then don't."—Houston Post.

It Disagreed With Her.
 "I told you it wouldn't do to invite Willie's teacher to dinner as long as I have to do my own cooking."
 "Why, what happened?"
 "She whipped Willie this morning."—
 Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Print of the Springs.
 A politician upon his arrival at a certain small town where he was to make a speech the following day found that the two so called hotels were crowded to the doors. Not having telegraphed for accommodations, the politician discovered that he would have to make shift as best he could. He was compelled for that night to sleep on a wire cot which had only some blankets and a sheet on it. As the statesman is a fat man, he found his improvised bed anything but comfortable.
 "Well," asked a friend, when the politician appeared in the dining room in the morning, "how did you sleep?"
 "Oh, fairly well," replied the statesman nonchalantly, "but I looked like a waffle when I got up."

Korean Customs.
 According to the Rev. C. F. Collyer, an English missionary, the Korean "never cuts his hair or beard. To do so is considered a mark of dishonor to his parents, whom he strongly reverences. Any hairs that may happen to come out and even the parings of his finger nails are carefully saved and put into the coffin with him in order that he may go back to Mother Earth intact."

How Sea Birds Get a Drink.
 "When I was a cabin boy," said an elderly sailor, "I often used to wonder, seeing thousands of miles out to sea, what they done for fresh water when they got thirsty."
 "One day a squall answered that question for me. It was a hot and glitterin' day in the tropics, and in the clear sky overhead a black rain cloud appeared all of a sudden. Then out of the empty space over a hundred sea birds came dartin' from every direction. They got under the rain cloud and they waited there for about ten minutes, circlin' round and round, and when the rain began to fall they drank their fill."
 "In the tropics, where the great sea birds sail thousands of miles away from shore, they get their drinkin' water in that way. They smell out a storm a long way off; they travel a hundred miles, maybe, to get under it, and they swallow enough raindrops to keep them goin'."—Portland Oregonian.

When trouble goes hunting him a man may dodge it, but when a man goes hunting trouble it hasn't one chance in a thousand of escaping him.
