Madame Crousse, continues to be a great favorite, and there is probably more of this used than all other varieties put together. Baden Powell may come more into favor when better known. Galilee is used extensively, but for window boxes it does not fall over and cover so well as the old favorite. Harrison's musk is not so much used as formerly; where it does do well it is very pretty, but it is very uncertain. Lobelia is not yet quite forward enough, but as soon as sufficiently showy it will be used as extensively as ever. If anyone could produce a variety of good color that would come into flower a few weeks before Emperor, there should be money in it.

Fuchsias are greater favorites than formerly, but they must not be the very dense over-flowered plants, but rather thin full-growing plants, with plenty of bloom to open. The erect-growing sorts may be tall for the background, and those of a drooping habit are used for hanging over the fronts of boxes. Tropæolums of the Lucifer or fulgens type are used to some extent. And the yellow variety has found some admirers. That which came from America a few years ago under the name of Sunlight is the best, or rather selected seedlings from this. From seed they vary, and I have found by careful selection and propagating the best types are from cuttings; they flower as well as the best of the crimson sorts, and are of a rich golden yellow. I find a few use Asparagus Sprengeri for window boxes; it does well for hanging over and makes a nice green facing, but the difficulty with it is that the large fleshy roots take up too much room in the boxes.

At many of the West End mansions the window boxes are the most important feature in plant work, there being little space for ordinary garden bedding. The windows not only have to be made gay with bloom to start with, but anything failing has to be removed; in fact during the London season they have to be replenished from time to time. I have seen some where the same plants have kept up a succession of bloom for a long time, but generally they are too much crowded to last for any length of time.

WITH THE GROWERS

A Cliftondale Hustler.

THE product of the greenhouses of Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., has within a few years won for its energetic proprietor an enviable reputation in the flower markets of Boston and vicinity. Here is one place where a surplus over and above the demand is, thus far, an unknown affliction and the principal reason for this is the high and uniform grade of the material sent out. It is interesting to note the methods of crop sequence pursued by Mr. Sim whereby no idle hours are permitted to the houses and through which they have been so operated as to bring in, even in this unprofitable season, returns sufficient to provide for the erection, the coming summer, of a new house 30x360 feet and the installing of a new heating apparatus comprising two mammoth boilers, either of which will be sufficient to heat the entire range.

Violets are Mr. Sim's chief crop and the variety grown is Princess of Wales. Young stock is planted in frames in early spring, transplanted to field in June and housed in October. Provision for the decline of the violet's value is made by planting a row of sweet peas through the center of each bed in the houses at the time of housing the violets. About February the peas have begun to assert themselves and from that time are a main crop. The varieties grown are Earliest of All, which is an early flowering strain of Blanche Ferry, and Mont Blanc which is a similar improvement over Emily Henderson. The houses, which are of Mr. Sim's own designing, are supported by a row of 1 1/4-inch pipe through the center of each bed, each twice braced to the purlin. These posts serve as supports for the strings on which the peas are trained and when at their best the plants form hedges ten feet high. The flowers produced are phenomenal in size and not infrequently have stems two feet long and perfectly straight, no effort or time in tying or training being spared in keeping the stems straight. The cut of peas this season amounted to 4,000 a day from February 1, none being sold for less than $1 a hundred. By middle of May the peas and the last remnant of violets are thrown out and cucumbers take their place immediately so that the houses are busy all summer.

Another crop following the violets in certain houses is the Stone tomato. The first seed is sown at Christmas and the plants are set out at intervals as the violets are discarded, from middle of March until the week after Easter. A small house is also utilized for raising young tomatoes for outdoor summer cultivation. The tomatoes are grown to single stem, tied to bamboo stakes. Still another crop that is managed here with signal success is white candytuft. The strain grown is very fine, being resultant from the variety known as Emperor under continued selection for several years, and when shown in Horticultural hall on one or two occasions created a big sensation on account of the enormous size of the spikes. The seed is sown early in February and plants are set out in the houses the first of April. At the date of these notes, May 5, this candytuft is from twelve to twenty-four inches in height and rapidly assuming the aspect of a sheet of snow. This crop and also one of German stocks is especially intended for Decoration day demands and is all sold out in advance. After the holiday it is thrown out and the chrysanthemums fill its place at once. The chrysanthemum stock plants have in the meantime been held through the winter in frames protected with mats and shutters in order to save house room for other uses, and tops are taken for cuttings all through the spring up to July 1. Mr. Sim is truly a conspicuous example of the assiduous, intelligent, commercial florist who is bound to win every time.

Chicago.

There is clearly an improved tone in market conditions in both shipping and retail lines. The city retailers have had hard sledding for a protracted period and anything in the shape of a break for the better is hailed with delight. There have been several brisk days for them this week, and while business is not as it should be, it is still gratifying. The weather has been just about what the dealers have been wanting, cold and dark enough to reduce the overcrowded receipts to something like normal. In consequence prices and the general tone of the market have advanced slightly, and wholesalers are not called on to hand out their goods at prices fixed by the street vendor. Roses and carnations are sufficient for all calls, and all quality was never better at this season of the year. There is plenty of southern stock on the market. The cape jasmine generally is of fine quality, but it does not move with a great flurry. Not much call for lilies, which continue to come in in heavy supply, both callas and Harrisii. Nice pansies are selling well and sweet peas have had a remarkable period of several weeks. For Decoration day there promises to be a full line in all cut flowers, assisted by the southern receipts of outdoor flowers. A few bright days before the holiday will send stock into the market in heavy supply, and prices will be within the reach of everyone.

The first game of the annual spring handicap of the Florists' Club bowling team was rolled Tuesday night at Mussey's alleys. Thirty games comprise the series, five of which will be rolled every Tuesday evening. Prizes will be awarded and everyone given an opportunity to compete. The scores of the last session will be found in the pastimes department of this issue.

The committee having in charge the preparation for the big fall exhibition of the Horticultural Society of Chicago report that good progress is being made, and that the premium lists will be ready to send out in a few days. The exhibition will be held sometime in November, the exact date of which will be announced later.

Bentley-Coatsworth Company is enjoying a good run on general rose stock. Everything at the houses at New Castle, Ind., is in good spring condition and a fine crop for Decoration day is coming. About half of the planting out has been completed.

Charles McKellar apparently has a monopoly of the orchid business locally. His daily receipts of high class stock in this line from Summit, N. J., and other eastern orchid centers are remarkably large.

Miss Elsa Katherine Hauswirth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Hauswirth, was married on April 2, to Walter F. Hoyt. The announcement of the marriage has just been made.

E. F. Winterson Company has arranged to handle large quantities of cape jasmine for Decoration day, and the quotations posted are $1 to $1.50.

Amling is strong on lilies of high grade. Mr. Amling is looking for a Decoration day run of business fully up to the standard of preceding years.

George Reinberg is in the midst of planting-out operations. He will have a range of eleven new houses to reckon with this season.

Peter Reinberg's Uncle John rose continues to make friends if one can judge from the orders coming in for the new favorite.

Peonies in this section, except possibly a few single varieties, will hardly be cut in time for the Decoration day trade.

Wietor Brothers' fine LaFrance roses are in grand shape and their only regret is that they haven't more of them.

Weiland & Risch report a good week of shipping business. Their stock all shows exceptional quality.

The George Wittbold Company reports a heavy spring demand for decorative plants, palms and ferns.

John Muir is adding to his establishment on Grand boulevard by building a modern conservatory.

A. L. Randall Company is showing a fine line of parrot tulips from Emil Buettner's greenhouses.

Bassett & Washburn have a grand cut of Liberty and Beauty in sight for Decoration day.

Poehlmann Brothers Company reports a good outlook for a big Decoration day cut of roses.

J. A. Budlong will begin planting his new range to American Beauty roses in a few days.

C. M. Dickinson, of E. H. Hunt's, was a business visitor at Milwaukee this week.

Among the visitors this week were A. E. Smith, of Smith & Fetters, Cleveland, O.; Martin Reukauf, of Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; G. F. Crabbe, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

New York.

All kinds of flowers are cheap and do not clean out well. Plenty of carnations are arriving as well as roses. Outside lily of the valley is brought in in large quantities, also all outdoor flowers, such as peonies and deutzias. Pyrethrum and gypsophila are very badly frozen and reports are current that there will be a very light crop. Most all the bulbous stock is done for and many thanks for it. Sweet peas are coming in in large quantities and can be had at very low prices; lavender and purple are very much sought after and command a fair price. Among the most popular ones that are here are Emily Henderson, white; Katherine Tracy, flesh color, or salmon; Blanche Ferry, pink, and Countess of Radner, lavender. Pink and white lilac can be seen in large quantities. The southern lilac was very poor this year and at present the Long Island lilac is being brought to market. Peonies will not be in for Decoration day and the chances are that we will have plenty of them for commencement exercises this year. Some very fine French lilac is being brought in by several of the growers and sells readily.

Julius Roehrs received six hundred bay trees in one shipment last week. On the sixteen largest of the trees the freight alone was $362. Mr. Roehrs has the contract to fill the range of palm, orchid and fern houses recently erected by Lord & Burnham Company at Pride's Crossing, Mass., for W. F. Spalding. The central feature of the palm house is a Kentia Forsteriana twenty feet in height. The handling of the crate containing this majestic specimen, twenty-two feet in length, was something the boys will not forget in a hurry.

Harry Woerner, who is employed by Charles Zeller, of Flatbush, N. Y., has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his wife, who committed suicide May 5. Mrs. Woerner had been suffering from melancholia for several months.

The different firms on the floor of the Cut Flower Company are considering the idea of closing at 2 o'clock in July and August. The members of the Cut Flower Exchange should follow them in the early closing idea.

W. O. Cherry, of Maspeth, has the finest purple sweet peas on the market. He ties six bunches together, one dozen to a bunch, and they look very neat and take less handling in this way.

We are advised that the Metropolitan Material Company, now advertising in our columns, has no connection with the Manhattan Supply Company.

Theodore Erhard and Charles Smith are going into the growing of smilax instead of that old favorite, the Jacqueminot rose.

William Adams, of Great Neck, L. I., fell into a boiler hole last week, one of the planks giving way, but was not seriously injured.

George Matthews, of Great Neck, has as usual a fine lot of peas, among them some very fine lavender.

Charles Zarembo, of North Bergen, N. J., had his greenhouses destroyed by fire Friday night, May 13.

Charles Smith and William Amos are doing jury duty this month at the Queens County court house.

S. Jacobs & Sons have acquired three adjoining lots for the extension of their increasing business. P. F. K.

Boston.

As to business this week nothing further needs to be said than that it is a duplicate of last week's story. No improvement in price is possible under the conditions of overstock now existing, although it is true that the stock coming in is of excellent quality all down the line, and that the receipts are somewhat lighter owing to the inclement weather of the last few days. The first lilacs are in evidence. They are from Philadelphia, but they don't sell. There is nothing going on at present to cause any demand. Frame lily of the valley has begun to arrive, but the outdoor crop is not yet in sight. In roses Queen of Edgely and American Beauty are seen in splendid shape, and are worth more than it is possible to get for them. Lilies are cheaper than ever before in this market.

The May meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club was attended by thirty members, a very creditable number for this busy season of the year. Carl Blomberg of North Easton read an excellent paper on alpine plants. He gave detailed directions as to the construction of a rockery and general advice as to the culture of the plants adapted to grow in such a situation, and followed with a list of the various plants so used, giving the list alphabetically with individual comment on each, so far as the letter L, and promised to continue the list on another occasion if this should be desired. He referred to the difficulties of climate and other drawbacks of alpine plant culture in the extremely hot summers and cold winters of this country, remarking pointedly that to grow alpine successfully "calls for a little more brain than stable manure." In the discussion that followed many interesting and instructive points were given by gentlemen present. It seemed to be the unanimous experience that there are but few aequilegias, and these invariably true species, that have the ability to withstand more than two seasons of this climate, and that for the best success they should be grown as biennials. The propagation of Daphne Cneorum, an acknowledged difficult subject, was discussed and the points brought out that propagation should be done in August, the tips of the wood being taken and placed in sand in a propagating bed with a bottom heat of 110°. They should be shaded, and an important point is to avoid overdampness. Speaking of alpine plant culture in Great Britain, R. Cameron said that many sorts that Kew can grow by square inches are grown at Edinburgh by the square yard. The question box evolved a line of experiences with ornamental shrubs and trees during the recent winter and the great variety of experiences as to the injury done was remarkable. At North Easton many things such as peaches, currants and small fruits generally had been killed to the ground. Japan quince, Prunus Pissardi, ligustrum (all except the English), Viburnum tomentosum, most of the roses, rhododendrons, including R. maximum; halesias, Deutzia crenata, forsythias and andromedas were either killed outright or dead to the snow line, and most of the late fall planted maples and oaks fared likewise. Mr. Duncan mentioned Elaeagnus longipes, all the ligustrums, Rhodotypos kerrioides, Prunus maritima, redbuds, Wichuraiana and multiflora roses, Abies Nordmanniana and A. Cephalonica, Pinus Lambertiana, Berberis vulgaris and baccharis as among the things that, presumably hardy, had suffered more or less in the park plantations. All agreed that the three successive cold winters must have had an enervating effect on all outdoor material, and were undoubtedly responsible as much as the immediate conditions for the havoc of the past season. On the exhibition table were some fine Gesneriana tulips, Philadelphia Rambler, Farquhar and Queen Alexandria roses and Gardenia Fortunei from W. N. Craig. Nobody present had ever seen such splendid gardenias. The flowers measured from four to five inches across, and foliage up to seven inches long. Mr. Craig explained that the plants had been taken out of the bench last June, the tops and roots cut back hard and then potted in a mixture of loam, charcoal, broken brick, and sand, and when growing had been treated to a little stimulant in the shape of Clay's fertilizer. Sixty-five degrees at night was the temperature advised.

The sum of $50 was appropriated, to be devoted to a special prize at the coming chrysanthemum show, and Messrs. Craig, Wheeler, Montgomery, Wild and Cameron were appointed by President Pettigrew as a committee to decide as to what form it should take.

This very peculiar season has produced some unusual results, but none more remarkable than the simultaneous blossoming of many outdoor trees ordinarily separated one or two weeks in flowering time. Thus we have cherries and apples in the height of bloom at the same time. The same is true of the early and late tulips, and flower buds are well developed on Rosa rugosa, while forsythias are still full of golden bloom.

Thomas F. Galvin sailed from New York for Europe last week on the Deutschland.

Visitors: Thomas Knight, representing Julius Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J.; G. C. Eldering, from Holland; Paul M. Pierson, Scarborough, N. Y.; Mr. Sykes, representing Lord & Burnham Company, New York; W. E. Chappell and W. B. Hazard, Providence, R. I.

Philadelphia.

Things are very quiet, so much so that even carnations go to sleep, as they remain undisturbed so long at a time in the shade of the cooling rooms and are then roughly shaken out, only to make room for their younger brethren. Business is practically at a standstill as far as the transient trade is concerned. Funerals, weddings and commencements make an occasional demand and furnish what work there is going. Prices are about as low as they will be this season for the same quality of stock. Carnations, $1 to $1.50; Beauty, $1.50 to $2 for specials; $4 to $8 for teas and $8 to $12 for Liberty. Sweet peas are plentiful at 50 cents per 100. Outside valley is crowding the imported stock, but it will last only this week.

George Cruger, of Narberth, died last Tuesday under singular circumstances. He came into the house with a wound in his side, which he said was caused by falling on a large piece of glass. His family, alarmed at his appearance, summoned a physician, who ordered his removal at once to a hospital. Here it was said that the wound must have been made with a long knife and could not have been self-inflicted. Mr. Cruger, who retained consciousness until his death, which occurred early the next morning, stuck to his story and would give no information of any one else being responsible for his condition. He was a single man and an industrious and good grower. He lived with his mother and brother in a house adjoining the greenhouses.

Orchids, particularly cattleyas, are scarce. Julius Wolf, Jr., has a house devoted to these plants and has a fine stock, from which he has cut a goodly quantity of blooms the last season. He is much encouraged, and says he finds an increasing demand, both from wholesale and retail customers; in fact, it has almost always exceeded his supply.

Bedding plant men are working fourteen to sixteen hours a day and have hard work to catch up with their orders. At the cemetery gates they all have an extra force, as everything must be finished before Decoration day.

Wm. P. Craig is traveling for several large firms, handling palms, ferns, bay trees, etc. He reports a very good business. He is also handling longiflorum and Bermuda lilies on his own account, having secured some fine stocks.

John Albrecht has decorated the front of his place with four neat dwelling houses, which he finds a good investment. Like his neighbors, he is extremely busy moving a fine lot of stock.

The sympathy of the trade goes out to J. F. Horn and wife, of Allentown, Pa., in the loss of their three-year-old son. He was sick but twenty-four hours with diphtheria when he died.

The stock, greenhouses and real estate of Edwin Lonsdale's establishment was sold at public sale last Monday morning for $12,600. John Burton was the purchaser.

Eugene Bernheimer has in the first batch of double white petunias. These are very useful for funeral work, and will be largely grown this season for that purpose.

Robt. Craig & Son have a house of very choice longiflorum lilies, which will be at their best next week, just in time for Decoration day and early June weddings.

At Westcott's and at Alburger's vases and hanging baskets are to be seen by the hundreds, all to be used in decorating lots in the adjoining burial grounds.

F. M. Foulds has taken the greenhouses of Albert Knapper at Ambler, Pa., and will grow cut flowers for the Philadelphia market.

George C. Watson is home again from his annual eastern trip and reports having found a very good demand.

Alburger & Cascaden are very busy and have a splendid stock of bedding and basket plants. K.

St. Louis.

Market conditions are much changed since last week. An unexpected cold wave came May 13, and gladdened the wholesale men. Flowers in poor grades that went begging Wednesday were sought for on Saturday, and the better grades were sky high. At present, however, there is plenty of stock to supply all demands. There seems to be not much doing but funeral work.

A special exhibition of peonies will be held May 28 to June 7, at the World's Fair. Entries must be received by the superintendent not later than May 25. The schedule of classes follows:

- Class 1—General collection of officinalis type.
 " 2—General collection of tree or mountain varieties, and Chinese of herbaceous section.
 " 3—Vase of twenty-five blooms, pure white.
 " 4—Vase of twenty-five blooms, white, shaded pink.
 " 5—Vase of twenty-five blooms, light pink.
 " 6—Vase of twenty-five blooms, dark pink.
 " 7—Vase of twenty-five blooms, crimson.
 " 8—General collection of Chinese, not less than five blooms of one variety.
 " 9—General collection of Chinese single varieties, not less than five blooms of one variety.

Dr. Hermann von Schrink of the botanical department of Washington University has been for some time experimenting with the various fungi that effect wood. He is particularly interested in the causes of decay in railroad ties and the wooden blocks used in street paving. Wood that has had creosote pressed into it seems to be more durable. This ought to be an interesting subject for the average greenhouse man.

The Florists' Club's last meeting was interesting but not well attended. Resolutions of sympathy with the bereaved family of the late John Young were adopted. Paul Roper was elected to the vacancy in the Shaw's garden scholarships. F. W. Ude, Jr., Kirkwood, opened a very instructive discussion on "Methods of Violet Culture," which brought out some valuable pointers.

The Shaw mansion at the Missouri Botanical Garden is being repainted. Prof. Hitchcock is carrying on some very interesting and instructive experiments in a special greenhouse at the garden. He is experimenting with the crown gall found on the rose and many of our fruits, and hopes eventually to find out not only the exact cause of the disease but an effective remedy.

H. J. Weber & Sons report a busy season. They have just finished planting 20,000 everblooming roses received from the Good & Reese Company. They are also about through planting their two acre exhibit at the fair. In it they have over 400 varieties of trees and shrubs, also a bed of 600 everblooming roses in eighteen varieties.

We are getting so much rain that it is interfering with planting out. J. W. Dunford, of Central, is growing eighty-three varieties of sweet peas for Burpee's, Philadelphia, to be exhibited at the fair. He is practically through planting out two acres of carnations.

The St. Louis Seed Company claims to be a week behind in orders. It finds a shortage in some stock that is hard to make up. It has done a big business in everblooming roses, and finds a good sale for all bedding plants.

We noticed a sign in a down town florist's window: "Carnations, 5 Cents per Doz. To-day Only." We wondered what the grower got for them.

The floral clock at the World's Fair will be ready to plant in a few days. The walk around it is being raised.

Phil Scott of Denver, Col., is in town visiting the fair. J. W. D.

ADRIAN, MICH.—The monthly meeting of the Lenawee County Horticultural Society was held in its rooms in the court house Wednesday, May 11.

Baltimore.

Dullness and dullness! This is the character of the cut flower market this week, reflecting in an intensified degree the usual experience of this part of May. The death rate here, from causes unknown, is above the normal, with a consequent increased demand for funeral flowers. This is the main outlet. There is a great supply of outside flowers—lilacs, spiræas, lily of the valley and narcissi were never more abundant and they are being used where possible for decorative purposes. There are some weddings, but they are not numerous. The popular young mayor of our city was captured last Saturday by a charming widow, going to the city of Washington for the ceremony, and there were some floral demonstrations on their return, but it was only a ripple on the water.

The only promise of activity ahead is the commencements, which are on the way, and Memorial day. Here, as in other quarters, the celebration of this day is changing. Formerly the decorating of the graves of soldiers and others who had served their country was its principal feature. Now silent but fragrant and beautiful tributes of flowers adorn the resting places in every cemetery and every rural burial place of loved ones who have passed away. No more natural and fitting ceremony and material can be found, and the custom deserves to be fostered and extended.

Roses keep above the average in quality this season, though the blistering marks of mildew are becoming visible. Carnations are a glut and lilies continue to arrive in quantities that cannot be absorbed.

The weather is unsettled. There have been few warm days and still fewer warm nights. Acceptable rains have fallen and vegetation grows vigorously.

Business men here expect a great boom in the near future. S. B.

Washington, D. C.

Both growers and retailers are getting nicely adjusted to the conditions of low prices and a great abundance of stock. American Beauty roses are almost cheap enough to be within the reach of everyone that is inclined to buy flowers, and at the rate they are going it seems that most of the people are inclined when they can get them pretty nearly at their own price. Yet I hear little grumbling from the dealers and all of them seem busy. There is quite a good trade in bedding plants. The market dealers in particular have been selling great quantities of geraniums and all the other bedders.

George H. Cooke, who was for years a grower before he opened a store and is well informed in all branches of the business, says that there is a revival here in the adornment of home grounds. He has now considerable work on hand in the line of bedding and planting of hardy perennials. There has in the past been considerable criticism on the lack of interest shown by many property owners in this matter, and this reawakening should be hailed with delight, not only by dealers, but by lovers of the beautiful as well. A nation that can pay $40,000,000 for a canal and never wink should have a beautiful capital, and fine landscape work is essential to that end. While the government is spending millions to beautify the city, those who are so fortunate as to own a home here will live beneath their privileges if they do not add a bud or blossom to the grand total.

J. R. Freeman had a large order for funeral work last week on the death of Miss Edmonston. There was a casket cover of orchids, valley, white roses and carnations. At the head of the casket was a bunch of 100 long-stem American Beauty roses; at the foot a mound composed of 200 Golden Gate roses, orchids and valley. There was also a large number of fine designs. OBITUARY.

Christlan Fischer.

Christian Fischer, a resident of St. Paul, Minn., for nearly fifty years, died May 12 at his home near Lake Phalen, at the age of 83. He had lived there as a gardener for more than forty years. Mr. Fischer was born in Germany and came to this country in 1852, settling in St. Paul in 1855. He is survived by his wife, one son, Charles Fischer, and a daughter, Mrs. Bertha Linke.

C. A. Giberson.

C. A. Giberson, proprietor of the Mauna Ala greenhouses at Lacombe, Alberta, Canada, died at his home in Lacombe on March 2, after an illness of nine days with pneumonia. He was born November 13, 1852, in Prince Edward county, Ontario, and lived in Ontario till 1892, when he and his family moved to Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Here he remained until August, 1900, when he went to northern Alberta. He was a pioneer in the business, being the only florist as far north as Alberta. His widow is carrying on the business at present, but she will probably be obliged to sell owing to poor health. Mrs. Robert Ritchie, of Lacombe, is the only surviving child.

F. A. Walpole.

Frederick A. Walpole, the botanical artist of the Department of Agriculture, died May 11, 1904, of typhoid fever, at Cottage hospital, Santa Barbara, Cal. He was considered the best plant artist in the United States, his drawings having been used to illustrate various reports published by the Department of Agriculture and the Smithsonian Institution, as well as the narrative of the Harriman Alaska expedition. Mr. Walpole was born in Essex county, New York, in 1861, and at an early age moved with his parents to Illinois and later to Portland, Oregon, where he was engaged for some years as artist of a lithographic establishment. In 1896 his drawings of plants came to the notice of the Department of Agriculture and procured for him the position which he had since occupied. His method was to make his drawings from living plants growing under their natural wild conditions. His summers were spent mainly in the field and his winters at the National Herbarium in Washington, where he completed and perfected his work. The greater part of his drawings remain unpublished, including a remarkable series of colored paintings of the native poisonous plants of the United States, now on exhibition by the Department of Agriculture at St. Louis. Mr. Walpole's death is regarded as an irreparable loss to botanical science. He leaves only a son 9 years of age, his wife having died in Washington, D. C., six years ago. The interment was at Portland, Oregon.

THE new French rose, Mme. Norbert Levasseur (the dwarf Crimson Rambler) has given much satisfaction as a pot plant for Easter among a few New York growers who have accorded it a trial. It has been given the local name of Dwarf Crimson Rambler because of the general similarity in color and other features to the Crimson Rambler. It does not "ramble" but makes a pretty, dwarf branching pot plant and produces good specimens in a short time from the graft.

Referring to some recent comments in the newspapers on the discovery of a new plant, Prof. Charles Chamberlain, of the botanical department of the University of Chicago, writes as follows:
"The newspaper clipping which you enclose has the usual inaccuracies of such reports. I went to Mexico to secure material of Dioon edule, one of the cycads. This plant, which is nearly related to the common Cycas revoluta, may be seen in the greenhouses of Washington and Lincoln parks, but since these plants in our conservatories are either sterile or only female, no seed is produced. My object was to observe the phenomena of fertilization and formation of the embryo. I succeeded in bringing back an abundance of material for such study. Some of the flowers weighed over twelve pounds, and some of the plants may have been a thousand years old. The material was collected at Chavarillo, near Jalapa."

Tar Water.

The English horticultural journals are recommending tar water as a cheap and easily accessible remedy against the marguerite fly and other insects which deposit their eggs on or in plants, spraying not only on the plants very lightly, but also on the stages, etc. The smell of tar is said to be very objectionable to the marguerite fly, also to the celery fly. The tar water is made by boiling one-half pound of gas tar in two gallons of water for half an hour or so until it will readily mix with water and then diluting with water to filthy gallons.

New Vegetable Fiber.

The Mexican government has recently been petitioned for the exclusive privilege of establishing model plantations in the hot lands of the republic for the cultivation of a fibrous plant commonly known by the name of pita (Bromelia sylvestris).
The petitioner also asks for the exclusive right of extracting the fiber from the leaves of the plant and converting it into manufactured articles for home consumption by means of special machinery, of which he claims to be the inventor.

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

WHITE MAUD DEAN.

The advertisements and notices concerning the variety White Maud Dean, now appearing in the trade papers, bring to mind the fact that on November 26, 1898, John Lewis Childs, of Floral Park, New York, exhibited Chrysanthemum White Maud Dean before the New York committee of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, and the variety scored eighty-five points. It was described as a sport from Maud Dean, white with occasional pink shadings, and was granted a certificate, No. 164. The white sport from Maud Dean now being offered to the trade may be a variety entirely distinct from the one shown by John Lewis Childs in 1898, but the new sport has never been placed before a committee of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, hence it is impossible to say whether the two are identical.

The Late John J. McMahon.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—It seems that there has been a general misunderstanding in and around Peoria, Ill., with regard to the death of the late John J. McMahon, formerly of that vicinity. It is with the view of explaining the circumstances of his death that we ask that this letter be published in your paper. Jos. B. Feldman and Mr. McMahon, both of J. C.
Murray's greenhouses, in Peoria, Ill., were engaged, the former as foreman and the latter as florist by the Salt Lake-Huddart Floral Company of this city and arrived here on Saturday morning, April 30. That night Mr. McMahon was taken ill and on Monday morning was taken to the St. Mark's hospital.
The best of medical skill was in attendance, but the young man grew gradually worse and died the following Saturday at 10:30 p. m. The funeral was held on Monday afternoon and was attended by a large majority of the members of our society. We understand that Mr.
McMahon had a severe cold prior to his departure from Peoria, but we believe that everything possible was done for him and trust that this will acquaint his eastern friends with the circumstances of his death.

SALT LAKE FLORISTS' SOCIETY,
H. SCHWARTZ, Pres.

W. W. KING, Sec'y.

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 15, 1904.

Ideal Bedding Plant House.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—What is the ideal house in which to grow a full line of bedding plants? Please give dimensions of house and best way to pipe it, the house to stand exposed to the full sweep of west winds. The thermometer has been 20° to 30° below zero this winter. In winters before 15° below was the lowest recorded. SUBSCRIBER.

A good deal will depend upon the extent of the business to be done, but as being suitable for almost any purpose, it is suggested that eighteen feet inside be selected for the width of the house, and a length adapted to the business can be used. It will be well either to run a partition across the centre or to erect two houses so as to provide conditions suited to the different classes of plants, these rooms or houses to be kept at 60° to 65° and 45° to 50°. If an extensive business is to be done a separate propagating house will be a necessity. The ideal house will have walls five feet high, including two feet of glass. The ridge will be ten feet high with a continuous row of ventilators. A house of the width proposed will accommodate two benches, six and one-half feet wide, with a walk between two feet in width. These should be thirty inches high. If the house is not more than 100 feet in length it can be heated with a hot water boiler rated at 900 to 1,000 square feet of radiation.
For 60° use two 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns. For 50° take two flows and eight returns. If the house is partitioned run eight returns the entire length of the house and put in four extra pipes in the warmer end, and connect with the flows. If there is to be but one house it will be best under the conditions to run it east and west, but for two houses have them run north and south and place the one to be kept the warmer on the east side. L. R. TAFT.

A Southern Enterprise

The south has some advantages over other parts of the country for growers of many useful Bulbs, Tubers and other plants which do not suffer in transportation.

We speak in the interest of clients of a thriving locality that has been forging to the front since, nine years ago, some northern gentlemen, comprehending the advantages that are natural and could be made subservient to the whole country with profit and comparatively small expense located there, and having the courage of their convictions, have come to a gratifying stage of development where what might have been termed a speculation will be recognized to-day as an actuality.

These parties now have two nurseries in operation a short distance apart, but will establish a much larger plant in same locality with greenhouses for propagation. They are about to reorganize as a corporation and will require four special well qualified assistants; two overseers who understand the business, one propagator and one man to travel, to sell and make contracts for growing stock to order. These four men must be experienced and ambitious. Any ordinary person simply looking for a salary will not suffice. We want men who are willing to invest some capital even though it be small, whereby they become financially interested. It is an opportunity worthy of the most careful investigation for any one with ability, some money and who is not tied to any other locality.

PASSENGER STEAMSHIP MOVEMENTS.

The tables herewith give the scheduled time of departure of ocean steamships carrying first-class passengers from the principal American and foreign ports, covering the space of two weeks from date of this issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST. Much disappointment often results from attempts to forward flowers for steamer delivery by express, to the care of the ship's steward or otherwise. The carriers of these packages are not infrequently refused admission on board and even those delivered on board are not always certain to reach the parties for whom they were intended. Hence florists in interior cities having orders for the delivery of flowers to passengers on out-going steamers are advised to intrust the filling of such orders to some reliable florist in the port of departure, who understands the necessary details and formalities and has the facilities for attending to it properly. For the addresses of such firms we refer our readers to the advertisements on this page:

The Seed Trade.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

S. P. Willard, Pres.; J. Chas. McCullough, First Vice-Pres.; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Sec'y and Treas.
Twenty-second annual convention, St. Louis, Mo., June 21-23, 1904.

LYONS, MICH.—Chicago seedsmen are making liberal bean contracts here.

CORN and bean growers are discouraged by the continued cold weather.

CUCUMBER seed of pickling sorts is well cleaned up at $1.50 to $1.65 per pound.

THE annual seed trade convention will convene at St. Louis June 21, one month from to-day.

THE Canadian postoffice department has inaugurated a system of insuring valuable letters.

VISITED CHICAGO: G. C. Eldering, of W. J. Eldering & Son, Overveen, Holland, enroute to New Orleans.

NEWPORT, R. I.—The new seed store of William B. Scott & Company will soon be open for business.

THE yield of New Zealand cocksfoot is about 30,000 sacks less than that of 1903, and some 15,000 are discolored by unfavorable weather, a portion badly so.

CLARINDA, IA.—The A. A. Berry Seed Company reports an extensive business this spring and will build a new warehouse and addition for supplies during the summer.

DETROIT, MICH.—At the republican state convention at Grand Rapids, Mich., May 18, D. M. Ferry was elected delegate at large to the next republican national convention.

NEW YORK.—Several thousand sacks of Dutch potatoes, old crop, arrived last week and sold at from $2.25 to $2.50 per barrel, sacked. New southern potatoes are bringing from $5.00 to $5.50 per barrel.

PLANTING time confirms the statement often made in these columns that high test, true type, Stowell's Evergreen sweet corn is worth a good price. Critical planters are disposed to pay $6 per bushel for right stock.

SOUTHFIELD, Mass.—Edwin R. Baldwin, of this place, died suddenly in Springfield, Illinois, May 7, aged 78 years. Mr. Baldwin was born at this place and has always made it his home. The funeral was held here Wednesday, May 11. For the last twenty-three years Mr. Baldwin had been employed as traveler for Benjamin Hammond, Fishkill, N. Y., and was well and favorably known in the seed trade.

Bag Filling Machine Suit.

Judge Hazel, in the circuit court of the United States sitting at Buffalo, N. Y., issued a restraining order May 7 against J. L. Drohen, in Brown Bag Filling Machine Company against Drohen, restraining Drohen from making, exhibiting or operating a bag-filling machine, which is charged by the Brown Bag Filling Machine Company to be an infringement of certain patents owned by that company.

New Potato.

The French National Society of Agriculture has recently had its attention called to a new potato, which some French journals say will not only play an important role in agriculture, but will supplant the Irish potato. The technical name of the new vegetable is Solanum Commersonii, but it is now beginning to be called the Uruguay Irish potato, as it comes from the banks of the Mercedes river in Uruguay. The yield is said to be enormous, and it appears to be immune from any disease. This potato is cultivated like the common vegetable of this name, or at least, has been so cultivated in the trials made in France since 1901.

British Seed Trade Notes.

The other day I had the pleasure of a chat with J. Harrison, the head of the old established firm of Harrison & Son, seedsmen, of Leicester. This big enterprise dates back several generations to 1764, when the Harrison family was engaged in market growing and seed-raising in the Midlands. The principal has had forty-three years' practical experience, so that he is well versed in all phases of the business. He has experienced the many changes which have taken place in methods of growing during the past thirty years. "I find that fashion has a considerable influence on the demand," he said, "but economy of production has a greater influence on the growers. There is now a higher cultural skill noticeable, and the growers choose the varieties introduced by the seedsmen which are more beneficial to grow and by that means educate the public taste." As regards the recent "boom" in high priced new varieties of potatoes, Mr. Harrison considered that this has been carried to an extreme approaching absurdity. "The anxiety to possess new varieties," he remarked, "has excited ambitious men to speculate in large sums, for the purpose of monopolizing new sorts. It is difficult to foresee the result, but I notice that new potatoes are becoming very common and large sums will be staked for some time as a matter of speculation." The excitement caused by the speculations in fabulous prices in the new variety, Eldorado, which is supposed to have marvelous disease resisting powers, has now subsided. There are now a large number of new aspirants for fame in the potato world, the zeal of the raisers being stimulated by the immense sums which have been realized. In the potato growing district of Lincolnshire an effort is being made to bring to the front the advantages offered by E. L. Coy's Vermont Gold Coin. It is stated that this American introduction takes very kindly to the English soil and several growers are enthusiastic in its praise.

D. C. Hutcheson, a partner in the firm of Storrie & Storrie, seedsmen, Dundee, has been the recipient of a handsome marble clock and ornaments subscribed to by 160 horticulturists on the occasion of his approaching marriage. During the proceedings David Storrie paid a high tribute to the sterling qualities the recipient had shown in the positions he had honorably filled as an apprentice, journeyman, manager and partner.

FRANK SHEARER & SON, Binghamton, N. Y.

FORT WAYNE, IND.—Judge David Studabaker, father of Mrs. W. J. Vesey, and a prominent lawyer and banker of this state, died May 3.

The Nursery Trade

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

N. W. Hale, Knoxville, Tenn., Pres.; Frank A. Weber, St. Louis, Mo., Vice-Pres.; George C. Seager, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.
Twenty-ninth annual convention, Atlanta, Ga., June 22-24, 1904.

UNDOUBTEDLY the largest shipment of Scotch heather ever made to this country was received last week by the Olmsteds for planting in the Essex County (N. J.) parks. The shipment comprised 12,000 plants.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA.—The park commission has decided on the establishment of a small nursery for shade and ornamental trees for use in beautifying the city parks, and to this end have set out 500 young sycamore trees at Ellis park.

PARK departments and garden owners throughout the eastern section of New England are engaged in a vigorous campaign for the destruction of that most destructive pest, the brown-tail moth. All hope of completely exterminating this or the gypsy moth has been abandoned.

THE railroads have given a rate of a fare and one-third for the Atlanta convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, to be held June 22-24. Ocean trips have also been arranged via New York and Charleston and New York and Savannah. For full particulars address Secretary George C. Seager, Rochester, N. Y.

IN PLANTING shrubbery for decorative effect about buildings leave an abundance of open lawn. Plant so that undesirable objects are shut out if possible and leave open views where the outlook is attractive. Avoid straight lines and harsh contrasts. Don't overlook the advantage of planting an abundance of climbers and pillar plants about porticos, balconies and similar projecting features.

EXPERIMENTS with spring and winter vetches, yellow lupine, velvet bean, rye and oats as cover crops for orchard protection and for the gathering of nitrogen have been in progress under the direction of the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station, in various parts of the state and will be continued during the coming year. Japanese plums are being studied with a view to ascertain their adaptability to northern New England conditions of soil and climate.

NEWPORT, R. I.—There are probably more California privet hedges in this place than in any other summer resort in this country, in fact almost every estate here has its privet border. It is hoped that these hedges have not suffered during the past winter. Two years ago in the very quick severe freeze that occurred many of our hedges were very much injured. A little good weather now will soon start them into growth, and it is hoped they have wintered safely. More than the usual amount of trees and shrubbery seem to be being set out this spring. This may be caused in part by the many new places that are being graded and planted at this time, and also by the continual demand here for large trees and shrubs, which makes all shipments of great bulk. Every consideration gives way to an immediate effect. The call is for large specimens of everything in nursery stock.

CERCIS CANADENSIS, the native redbud or Judas tree is being planted extensively along the fringes of woods and copses in parks and large private estates, in company with the "flowering dog wood," Cornus florida and the amelanchiers. Cercis Canadensis varies considerably in specimens from seed as to color of bloom, some being much deeper and brighter pink than others. In plantations of some extent this is an advantage, but for the customer who buys a tree or two for the garden, possible disappointment is in store should the purchase turn out to be less brilliant than that possessed by a neighbor. To avoid this it is well to mark the trees in the nursery at blooming time. A little better price can then be reasonably charged for the selected bright flowered ones. The red-flowered variety of Cornus florida is in great demand and is likely to be so for many years to come. It is good stock to have.

Thuya Obtusa Nana.

A Rare Japanese Specimen.

The fine specimen of Thuja obtusa nana shown in the accompanying illustration is said to be one of the oldest trees ever brought over from Japan. It arrived recently on the steamer Indrapura, and weighs packed in case over 700 pounds. It was sent to Suzuki & Iida from the Yokohama Nurseries. The tree is twelve feet in height.

Park Work at Boston.

It is a very strenuous time in the park department at present. All hands are busy planting and the season is advancing by leaps. Among the important work is the providing of a border of trees around the various new playgrounds in different sections of the city. A more trying position for a tree can hardly be conceived than within the playground confines in the densely populated districts of a great city. Mr. Pettigrew favors the ailanthus as the best tree for such work and capable of withstanding more rough usage than any other tree. Next in adaptability he names the white willow (Salix alba var. cœrulea). The white ash comes third on the list and is especially useful for seaside planting.

Mr. Pettigrew's method of planting in playgrounds is to lay off a deep rich border twelve to fifteen feet in width in which the trees are set each one protected by a guard box of a pattern similar to those used on the street trees of Washington, several strands of barbed wire being fastened about the top to discourage the climbing propensities of the youngsters. Between the border and the playground enclosure is erected a mesh wire screen about eight feet high to stop balls and other missiles and a low fence of similar material separates it from the street. The border thus enclosed is utilized for the purpose of school gardens and the repeated loosening and cultivation of the soil is very beneficial to the trees.

The tardy spring has been given a tremendous boost by a spell of torrid weather such as May rarely sees and in two or three days the aspect of country and garden has been completely transformed. In the woodlands the amelanchiers are like great clouds of snow and the undergrowth of Viburnum lantanoides, where such exists, has suddenly burst into sheets of satiny white but, sad to tell, the bloom of the flowering dogwood (Cornus florida) has been completely blasted and the glorious feature of the spring woods is lost to us this season. In the parks and gardens forsythias, spiræas, Japan quinces, plums and cherries are having their day. Although a partial failure in some localities, the forsythias in the Back Bay fens are superlatively fine. Prunus pendula, the beautiful weeping cherry of Japan, is occasionally seen. Blooming before the leaf buds start, it is a cloud of misty pink and wherever it is it excites enthusiastic admiration. Nurserymen make a great mistake in omitting this unrivalled gem from their popular lists.

Mr. Pettigrew is utilizing an old abandoned stone and cement-lined reservoir in the "wilderness" of Franklin park for the purpose of storage and retarding small nursery stock and prolonging the planting season. The reservoir is twelve or thirteen feet deep, the atmosphere at the bottom is cool and moist and stock heeled in there keeps splendidly.

To get the best results with hardy waterlilies the water should be drawn off every spring, and the roots divided and replanted with an abundant supply of rotten manure. Otherwise there will be a preponderance of leaves and a paucity of flowers. Complaints are heard of considerable damage to trees and shrubs by the gnawing of field mice during the winter.

Cartledge's Yacht Marguerite.

At the launching of the Marguerite Stands the Admiral of the doral fleet—
But whisper soft and low float
A fish-line cork is his only float
And his botany's mixed on board a boat,
So he's off—'way off—on his sea lingo.

Now list while the Admiral gives command,
As he poses with his fist in his dexter hand:
"Braid lily bulbs to the garboard strake; Reeve four-inch pots through the haws-bole wake;
Bank the furnace fire in the capstan flue;
Yank the crew's nest out of the evening dew;
Splice the main brace, boys, pitch in and eat
For we're florists all on the Marguerite!"

Oh, the Admiral, he was born to command;
He can pull a cork with either hand;
On a dinner born he's great.
Sing Ho, for the larder of the Marguerite!
With the ice-box full we are sure to eat!
Heave ho! on the champagne crate.

On Wednesday, May 11, the good ship Marguerite slid gracefully into the waters of Hempstead bay under a shower of champagne foam and splintered glass from a bottle broken over the boat's bow by Miss Marguerite Cartledge, the 13-year-old daughter of A. B. Cartledge, the owner.

This latest addition to the fleet of the Florists' Yacht Club of Barnegat bay, is an able, sea-going, gasoline launch, forty-six feet in length, with a comfortable, tastefully appointed cabin furnished with berths for four and a non-capsizable ice-box. As Deacon Harris, a friend of the owner, sagely remarked: "An army divorced from its base of supplies becomes useless and, by the same line of reasoning, a boat should be anchored fast to her ice-box." This consideration was kept constantly in view by James Dean, who acted as best friend of Mr. Cartledge in overlooking the construction of the craft. Whatever else may be given up by the guests of Mr. Cartledge, when the Marguerite rocks on the heaving bosom of the mighty deep, it is safe to assume that the icebox will remain firm.

The Marguerite was designed, primarily, for comfort and meets all the requirements of an up-to-date cruising launch. On the Wednesday following the launching she was sailed over the inside course to Philadelphia and from there will be taken to Barnegat bay, where she will be anchored convenient to Admiral John Westcott's bungalow, the headquarters of the club.

The launching was witnessed by some twenty-five florists and other prominent business men of Philadelphia and a number of Mr. Cartledge's New York and Brooklyn friends. Among those present were Ed. Lonsdale, Robert Craig, John Burton, Deacon Harris and John Westcott. The visitors were personally conducted by Mr. Dean, who resides in the neighborhood and is familiar with the trail across the marshes. Not a man was lost on the trip, though Mr. Lonsdale remarked that the mosquitoes were unusually hungry for so early in the year, which remark was supplemented by a slang expression from Deacon Harris to the effect that there were others. A collation was served at the boat house which satisfied the appetite and evoked the enthusiastic approval of Mr. Westcott, who predicted a brilliant yachting future for the skipper of the Marguerite.

Mr. Cartledge invited the party at the launching to accompany him on the cruise from Philadelphia to Barnegat bay, where the Marguerite will be formally placed in commission. Under the benign influence of the Cartledge hospitality, everybody accepted without a thought of the perils of the voyage. The fishes are hungry down that way and somebody will certainly feed them on the trip, but Deacon Harris vows he'll keep his shoes no matter what else nature may force him to let go.

At Chicago.

Tuesday evening at Mussey's alleys the first round of the spring handicap tournament of the Florists' Club bowling team was rolled. The series will consist of thirty games, five to be played every Tuesday evening until the tourney is completed. The players qualifying will play in a subsequent tournament which will decide the S. A. F. match team. For a player to qualify it will be necessary for him to roll twenty of the thirty games, so that there yet remains ample time for anyone to enter the contest. An equitable system of handicapping gives every competitor a chance to go after the prizes which will be awarded for the best records. The following are the scores of the first five games; they give Stollery a lead, with a total of 884 pins:

Forcing Kept Over Azaleas for Christmas.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Would it not be advisable to force kept over azaleas for next Christmas, as we find these plants have a tendency to flower sooner than the freshly imported plants. Y.

Azaleas kept over and grown in this country during the following summer will set bud earlier and be much more prolific than the fresh imported stock seems to do in Belgium, and it would be reasonable to suppose that they would force into bloom more readily and better for Christmas than new imported stock, but my experience with azaleas has taught me that this is not a fact. Excepting Deutsche Perle, a double white variety, I have found that newly imported plants will force into bloom for Christmas much easier and better, with larger flowers and finer color, than those grown one or more years in this country.

American Beauties

Yes, we have the plants you want. We don't run a "Beauty Factory" but we have about 40,000 feet of glass devoted to them and we have men who understand propagating and growing them. We haven't a lot of cull stock we wish to dump. But we have a clean healthy lot of plants which we are offering at very low prices. We intend to establish a reputation on our goods and want your order. The goods are right—but if you don't think so, return them and you can have your money back. Send a dollar for samples if you are dubious. 3-inch, $6.00 per 100; $55.00 per 1000. 4-inch, $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

British Trade Topics.

The agreeable weather associated with the close of April and the opening of May has given an impetus to trade generally. The seedsmen have been unusually busy, whilst the demand for bedding and window-box plants has made increased calls on the output of the nurseries. One of the finest shows ever held in connection with the Royal Horticultural Society took place this week and attracted a crowded audience. The trade exhibits, representing all branches, were particularly good. The new American rambling rose, Dorothy Perkins, was much in evidence and has evidently "caught on" amongst the trade. This is a cross between the Wichuraiana type and Mme. Gabriel Luizet. The delicate shell-pink tinted blooms grow hardy in large clusters. It has been awarded a certificate of merit by the Royal Horticultural Society, besides having been successfully exhibited at the chief provincial shows by Messrs. Hobbies, L't'd., of the Norfolk Nurseries, Dereham. Amongst the novelties was a splendid display of Sander's new Nicotiana Sandera with its attractive carmine red flowers. Daffodils were also a special feature in which Barr & Sons, of King street, Covent Garden, excel. Their nursery at Thames Ditton has lately been a brilliant sight with its lavish display of bloom. Here are to be seen daffodils at their best varied by irises, anemones, tulips, muscaris, etc. In this branch of floriculture R. H. Bath, L't'd., of Wisbech, Cambridgeshire, was also to the front. This firm cultivates ninety acres of flowers on its Cambridgeshire farm, fifty acres being set apart for narcissi and tulips. Of the latter they are cultivating this year 600,000, and in this branch the firm claims to be able to beat the Dutch growers, the tints being more brilliant. Amongst the new varieties being introduced are Brunhilde, creamy-white flamed with yellow; Dusant, deep crimson scarlet; Maas, an early scarlet, and Pink Beauty, delicate pink shaded white. Peonies are also a leading line. Big supplies of plants have lately been sent by the firm to Chicago and Massachusetts, and last October a supply was dispatched to Russia. The chief varieties cultivated are La Fiancee, Duchesse de Thora, Candidissima, Canarie, white; Madame de Galhan, pink; Philomele, rose; Lady Leonora Bramwell, rose; Mons. Chas. Levegne, blush; L'Elegante, pink; and Volcaise, crimson. Twenty thousand tree carnations are also cultivated, these being chiefly Mrs. T. W. Lawson, Flamingo, Enchantress and Albatross. Carnations are becoming increasingly popular on this side. Messrs. Bath have never had a better season for them than this year. Already this season they have disposed of about 120,000 plants of border carnations.

A few days ago I had an opportunity of inspecting the Kew Nursery, Richmond, near London, in the occupation of K. Drost. His chief specialty is the culture of forced lilac (syringa) of which he has about eight acres in the open. Mr. Drost usually starts forcing in October and keeps on until May. Owing to the unfavorable season he has had to leave off earlier this year. He has ample accommodations for forcing large quantities of the bloom, for which there is a good demand in the high-class shops at the west end of London and at his stands in Covent Garden market. The varieties chiefly grown are Rubra de Marley, Charles X. and Marie Legrange.

Detroit.

The Florists' Club meeting Wednesday evening, May 18, brought out the usual good attendance. Much routine work was transacted and another name added to the membership roll. Keen interest is already manifested in the coming S. A. F. convention at St. Louis and many present signified their intention to attend. It was decided to organize a bowling team to enter the contest there. Norman Sullivan was appointed manager and Frank Holznagle captain of the team, and a preliminary game was rolled after adjournment of the meeting. The summer outing of the club will take place July 20 at Bois Blanc Island, where, as usual, an interesting programme of amusements will be carried out. Philip Breitmeyer, who recently visited Philadelphia and Buffalo, gave an interesting address on trade matters and the condition of business there.

A period of extreme dullness is at present concerning the trade here. The very cold and unseasonable weather we are having seems, by common consent, to be responsible for it, although it is likely that the local labor troubles contribute some to the unfavorable trade conditions. There has not been any perceptible movement of plants for bedding purposes up to the present time and plant growers' houses are heavily stocked. In cut flowers a surplus is everywhere to be seen, which is due entirely to the slow demand and not to heavy crops.

Visitors: J. A. Blessing, Jackson, Mich.; Geo. Baumann, Columbus, O.; M. Reukauff, Philadelphia, Pa.; E. S. Fetters, Cleveland, O. J. F. S.

OAKDALE, N. Y.—Great improvements are being made on the estate of A. K. Bourne, including a picturesque waterway two miles long for canoeing, and an extensive rose garden.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Edward J. Bertermann, of Bertermann Brothers, who has been in the United States since 1877, was naturalized May 3. Mr. Bertermann will soon leave for an extensive tour of Germany and the continent and desired to go abroad as a full fledged American citizen.

BEEVILLE, TEX.—Wm. McHenry, a veteran gardener, has received the appointment of assistant to Sam H. Dixon, of Houston, who has charge of the Texas horticultural exhibit at the St. Louis fair. He is now collecting horticultural specimens from this section and placing them in cold storage in Houston, preparatory to shipment to St. Louis.

HILTON, N. J.—Many of the strawberry growers here have taken up pansy growing as a side issue which does not seriously interfere with the culture of the strawberry, and with such success that it is a question whether the pansy may not, before long, displace the strawberry as Hilton's staple product. New York city and Newark are the principal markets supplied.

The White Fly.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I wish some writer would tell how to destroy the white fly in greenhouses. It seems to grow fat on tobacco smoke. J. M.

The following on this insect pest, which appeared in our columns early last year, will probably interest "J. M." and other readers at this time:

This greenhouse pest has been long familiar to florists and gardeners, but little has been known regarding its life history and the agencies by which it may be kept in check. For these reasons Bulletin 140, on the white fly or plant house aleyrodes, by Prof. W. E. Britton, of the Connecticut Experiment Station, is very welcome. The following summary of the bulletin will be found useful:

1. The white fly has been the worst insect pest of tomatoes and cucumbers under glass at the station during the past eight years. Many florists' plants are also injured, and the insect has attacked strawberry and many other plants out of doors in summer. It has been received from several growers in Connecticut and is widely distributed over the northeastern United States. Its original home is unknown.

2. The white fly is closely related to the scale insects, and to the plant lice. It resembles the former in its immature stages, but differs from them in that both sexes are winged when reaching the adult stage.

3. It injures plants by sucking the sap from the under sides of the leaves. The lower leaves are the first to shrivel and drop. Most of the injury is caused by the nymphs or immature insects.

4. The nymphs of the white fly have been found upon fifty-eight different kinds of plants in Connecticut.

5. About five weeks are required for the white fly to pass through its life stages, all of which are found on the under side of leaves. Eggs hatch in eleven days, and the young nymphs crawl for a short time, when they become stationary and secrete wax in long filaments. When the adults emerge the pupa skins remain attached to the leaves. It is not yet known whether the species can survive the winter unprotected in this climate, but it is carried over on plants in greenhouses and dwellings.

6. It is thought to be identical with the European species A. vaporariorum of Westwood, but this has not yet been fully determined.

7. Fumigating with tobacco is not an effective remedy. Hydrocyanic acid gas (using two and one-half ounces of potassium cyanide for each one thousand cubic feet) killed the insects but injured tomato plants. Dr. Fisher used one ounce of cyanide and did not injure his plants, but killed all of the insects.

8. Spraying the under surfaces of the leaves with common laundry soap and water (one pound dissolved in eight gallons) proved to be a cheap and effective remedy. If applied frequently, however, the soap should be occasionally washed from the leaves by spraying them with clear water.

Asparagus in Rose House.

ED. AM. FLORIST: Can Asparagus plumosus be successfully grown on benches in a rose house? What kind of soil and manure does it need? How should the plants be treated to secure good fronds instead of long strings?

N. E. B.

Asparagus plumosus may be successfully grown in a rose house on benches. Well decayed cow manure may be used with any good loam. If the variety A. plumosus nanus is planted instead of the type, little or no trouble will be given as to running to strings. The fronds of this asparagus are being used in preference to strings generally, and the old smilax is returning to its one-time popularity to be used when strings are needed.

Newport, R. I.

We have had a fine warm week with rain enough to start vegetation going in good shape. Everybody is on the jump from morning till night preparing for the Newport season, which will open very soon now; in fact summer visitors are now arriving daily. Good help is very scarce. It is always in good demand at this season, but this year it is almost impossible to get real good helpers. All over town there is great activity putting grounds and gardens in shape, and especially are the lawns being given the closest care and attention. The final plantings of trees and shrubbery have been pushed along as the leaves are coming so fast now that in a few days more this work must cease until another autumn. There has been considerable funeral work lately. It has been one of the best weeks of the spring with the seedsmen, all hands working day and night. There seems to be less cutting of prices this year than usual. Soon the new seed store of William B. Scott & Company will be in the field for business.

One of our leading fruit growers says the strawberry crop in this section will not be a success this year. The plants, which are just beginning to show growth, encouraged by the pleasant weather, do not look thrifty. Nearly a good half of the plants are winter killed and the yield of fruit will also probably be affected by the long continued and exceptionally cold winter. Not over half a crop is now expected.

A number of workmen are busy at Sandy Point Farm grading and rolling a field on Wapping road for use as a polo ground for Reginald C. Vanderbilt. The field is directly off the road, near the south end of his estate, and being already quite level, very little labor will fit it for use.

Arbor day was quietly observed here on Friday, May 13. It is a legal holiday in this state. The schools had appropriate exercises, seeds were distributed and trees planted. Several of the teachers took advantage of the pleasant weather and went into the country with their pupils to study trees and flowers.

Contracts for the construction of the new villa for Mrs. John Nicholas Brown have been given out and the work will shortly begin on her estate on Halidon hill. This will mean another good gardener needed and large quantities of trees and shrubbery.

John B. Urquhardt, head gardener to R. L. Beekman, at Land's End, was successfully operated on for appendicitis last Saturday, and at this writing is getting along very nicely. During his illness Joseph G. Leikens will take charge of Mr. Beekman's estate.

It is not often that a stone mason with brick, mortar and trowel is engaged to repair a tree. But for some time one of the fine old trees at Stone Villa has shown a decided opening in its center, and in order to save it the big hole has been filled with brick.

Extensive improvements are being made to the Casino lawn; the whole surface has been thoroughly sub-soiled and properly fertilized before being planted.

All the flowers for the Gerry coaching party in New York were made up and shipped from Sea Verge by Arthur Griffin, head gardener for Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry.

A large quantity of young trees have arrived here for H. A. C. Taylor's farm, The Glen, and were set out this past week. X.

New Bedford, Mass.

We had a spurt in business last week on account of the dedication of a new armory. The governor and a lot of military dignitaries were here from Boston, and altogether it was about the swellest time we have had for many a day. The demand for flowers for the ball in the evening was very brisk.

Outdoor gardening is now well under way, and some of the florists are extremely busy. Rolling, grading, seeding and planting trees and shrubs are in order and lots of it is being done. There is a great call for shrubs and hardy plants of all kinds, but the department stores sell the most of them. People are beginning to be sick of department store roses and bulbs, however, and will buy less of them in the future. Those who bought cheap tulip bulbs last fall are disappointed, for many of them failed to bloom and a large proportion of the cheap roses have died.

Friends of H. A. Jahn made a surprise call at his store the other evening and presented him with a new set of harness. Mr. Jahn also surprised his friends by showing them a flower of a seedling carnation that measured five and a half inches in diameter.

William Pierce met with a painful accident lately. He was handling a plant with sharp-pointed leaves, when one of the points gouged into his eyeball. He may lose his sight in consequence.

It seems as though everybody had gone into the vegetable plant business. J. W. Bates advertises 100,000 and others have large quantities of them.

W. G. Kraber has bought a tract of land and will build some houses on it this summer. A. B. H.

Milwaukee, Wis.

Stock has shortened up considerably as compared with the heavy receipts of last week, but still there is more than enough to fill all orders. Good American Beauty, however, is not too plentiful. The last few cool days have helped improve the roses. Bulbous flowers of all kinds are slow sale, excepting perhaps valley, which has done fairly well this week. Smilax is more plentiful than it has been for at least two months. Indications point to a sufficient supply of flowers for Decoration day. There will be an abundance of such stock as cape jessamine, peonies, lilacs, tulips, etc. Bedding stock is selling well this spring and those florists that do this class of work are rushed to the limit.

E. Welke, the Third street dealer, has a new assistant, a little girl.

Visitors: C. Lund, Wausau; John Bourgaize, Racine. K.

LYNN, MASS.—Miss Annie King, formerly a school teacher, but latterly engaged as a florist, discovered a burglar hidden under her bed one night recently. Miss King is by no means slender or delicate, and, although the intruder escaped, he is not likely to again trouble that lady.

Carnations were so abundant the last two weeks that many of the trade have been having special sales at prices that "defy competition," but they were not the gainers by the low price method. I doubt the wisdom of selling at 10 and 12 cents a dozen for fresh cut flowers; it creates a feeling of suspicion that the former price of 25 and 30 cents a dozen was unfair and maybe extortion. Roses have been wholesaling at $1 to $3 per 100 for nice stock and carnations have had difficulty in bringing over $1 per 100, most of the average cut being marketed at 50 and 75 cents. Business is fair and profitable, what there is of it. Ferns from the south now fill any and all wants.

The Florists' Club at the May meeting discussed at length financial methods and listened with great interest to nearly all the members present. Maxfield and Fales exhibited a fine white seedling carnation, and a committee was selected to visit the growers and make further report. Mr. Hill is down on the calendar to make a detailed report of the April flower show at the club rooms in June.

The plant trade is booming; everybody has nice geraniums and prices are satisfactory. M.

Louisville, Ky.

The Ray Phonograph Company will open a cut flower department in its Fourth avenue store and will have its spring opening June 1. Miss Edith Walker, formerly with Wm. Walker, her father, will have charge of the cut flower department.

This week cut flowers have been in oversupply. Race week is generally a dull week. The late, cold spring has made the sale of plants a little slower than usual.

Louis Kirch planted his carnations in the field. He reports this as being the best year he has ever had with carnations.

F. Walker & Company's new store is nearly completed and will soon be occupied by them. H. G. W.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—A hailstorm May 5 broke 1,000 panes of glass in Alfred Browman's greenhouses.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—The women's auxiliary of the Northwestern Manufacturers' association has decided not to hold a flower show next autumn, because of many other interests, including the St. Louis fair.

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y.—Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather of last year, the first exhibition of the Florists' and Gardeners' Society was a decided success. The next exhibition will be held in November.

ERIE, PA.—Owing to the ill health of G. R. and V. L. Schluraff the Schluraff Floral Company has sold its retail business at 20 Poplar street and 22 W. Ninth street, to Burfitt & Vetter. The Schluraff company will continue in the growing business at 2406 Poplar street.

DIXON, ILL.—The directors of the state horticultural society last week rented a farm near Hebron, in McHenry county, for the purpose of establishing a sub-station there. L. R. Bryant and H. T. Thompson, of Huntley, both directors, will have charge of the station, and are now engaged in buying trees, vines, plants, etc., with which to stock the farm.

The regular monthly meeting of the Sedgwick County Horticultural Society was held May 5 in the orchard of Frank Yaw, five miles south of here. A large attendance was present regardless of the disagreeable weather. Several good papers were read on good subjects. The paper read and discussed by Mr. McNally, of Oatville, on "Strawberry Culture" was especially fine. Mr. McNally is the largest strawberry grower in Sedgwick county and understands his business. This county is becoming one of the best strawberry counties in the state, and when the crop commences to ripen the market will be supplied here with home grown berries. The society has decided to put cards with the name of the grower and his membership of this society on them in every box of fruit and any dealer or consumer buying a box with that card in it may rest assured that the fruit is all right. The date of the next meeting will be Thursday, June 2, and will be held in the orchard of E. H. Cooley.

Business is fine and much beyond expectations. The past week was very favorable to the growers, nice mild weather with plenty of sunshine and all greenhouse material blooming freely. Roses were never in finer shape, carnations are both plentiful and good and all other lines of stock are plentiful enough to meet ordinary demands. The past week saw a drop in prices and the better grades of roses are now quoted at $8 per 100 and carnations at $3 per 100.

Wm. Gammage, of London, Ont., is sending in some nicely grown roses and carnations. F. Dicks, of the same town, is sending in very fine carnations.

I am pleased to report a slight improvement in the health of Park Commissioner John Chambers, who has been suffering with an attack of pneumonia.

Grobba & Wandrey are sending in nice pots of Clivia miniata, which are favorites with the patrons.

J. H. Dunlop is cutting some select Beauties and his other roses and carnations all look well.

Putty Needed for Greenhouses.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—We are contemplating erecting a range of greenhouses and would like to know how much putty it will take to glaze about 12,000 square feet of glass. The glass will be butted and we wish to bed it in putty. We will use glass 14x16 inches. GLAZIER.

The amount of putty required for glazing a greenhouse with butted glass can be varied considerably according to the care taken in glazing as well as the quality of the glass, as, if curved, much more will be required than for straight glass. An average amount will be about 400 pounds although fifty per cent more than this will be required unless unusual care is given to saving the scrapings and pressing the glass closely down upon the sash bars. L. R. T.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—At John Dobbie's greenhouses, 315 Victoria avenue, May 8, without warning or apparent cause a bench in the carnation house 125 feet long collapsed with a crash and fell in ruins to the floor. As the bed of earth fell flat the loss in plants is not great.

RANDOLPH, VT.—The firm of Burnell & Totman has dissolved partnership, and H. M. Totman now has charge of the business. F. J. Burnell for some little time will assist Mr. Totman at the greenhouses.

Worcester, Mass.

Roses and carnations were in over-supply the last week caused by the exceedingly warm weather. April weddings brought a quantity of good decorative work, the Riley-Higgins decoration by Lange being the most elaborate this spring. Trade in bedding plants is commencing in a satisfactory manner, although the season is late and people are delaying planting in expectation of a late freeze. Plenty of funeral work has kept down any possible surplus in white flowers, and now that bulbous stock is off the card there is little danger of much good stock going to waste. Judging from appearances at the present time there will be about the usual supply of plants and flowers for Decoration day, with plenty of out-of-doors stock, such as lilacs, viburnum, etc., available for coarse work.

The Worcester Conservatories are cutting very fine carnations at present and are considering the advisability of planting some of their rose houses with carnations for the coming season.

H. F. A. Lange will rebuild two of his old houses and has planned for three small houses adapted to growing some of his specialties.

Outside planting has started in earnest. Lange has commenced on 40,000 carnations and C. D. Thayer reports 10,000 all planted.

Hansen & Lundeen, who started a retail flower store just previous to Easter have discontinued business.

H. F. Littlefield has decided not to make any extensive addition to his present greenhouse plant. L.

Cleveland.

Business remains pretty much the same as last week. Cloudy, cold weather has had the effect of shortening up the crop in some lines, but not sufficiently to make any perceptible change in prices. The cold weather has retarded outdoor stock to such an extent that a shortage in cut flowers is looked for Memorial day.

James Eadie has covered himself with glory as a shooter by winning the silver cup presented for competition by the Cleveland Gunclub. His record is forty-eight birds killed out of a possible fifty. It will be well for the cracker-jack shots of Philadelphia to look out for their laurels at St. Louis or something might drop. If can't howl we can shoot.

Jos. Tilson, a member of the Florists' Club, and for many years gardener to Mrs. Hulbert, died of typhoid fever and was buried May 14 in Lakeview cemetery. The heartfelt sympathy of the craft is extended to his family.

Robt. Kegg no longer holds the position of superintendent of parks. His successor has not yet been appointed. The parks under Mr. Kegg's management were a credit to the city.

What Advertisers Say

SAME OLD STORY.—AM. FLORIST Co.:—Kindly discontinue our adv. "Bred in Old Kentucky" The Florist is certainly a splendid medium for advertising. The first insertion brought us orders enough to clean us out of cuttings. We enclose $4.00 to pay for the insertions. When we have more stock will try it again. We were not only highly pleased with the results, but with manner in which you displayed our adv. C. L. BRUNSON & Co. Paducah, Ky.

PLEASURE AND PROFIT.—AM. FLORIST Co.:—Your paper is a weekly source of pleasure and profit to every one connected with this concern, and three copies have been subscribed for by the company for several years—one to my house, one to the greenhouses and one to the store. In addition to that the foreman and one or two of the men each receive a copy. J. A. VALENTINE, Pres. Denver, Colo. Park Floral Co.

BOOKS FOR FLORISTS.

The time is coming along when these are needed and opportunity at hand for reading them. Every one of the following should be in your library.

Send prices quoted and we send the books.

GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION (Taft).—It tells the whole story about how to build, and heat a greenhouse, be it large or small, and that too in a plain, easily understood, practical way. It has 118 illustrations. $1.50.

HEATING AND VENTILATING BUILDINGS (Carpenter).—This book covers the entire subject most fully. In the preparation of heating and ventilating plans, it will be found a most valuable guide. $4.00.

STEAM HEATING FOR BUILDINGS (Baldwin).—Contains valuable data and hints for steam fitters and those who employ this method of heating. The 350 pages are fully illustrated. $2.50.

THE HORTICULTURISTS' RULE-BOOK (L. H. Bailey).—Contains information valuable to all those engaged in any branch of horticulture. Illustrated. 312 pages. 75 cents.

PRACTICAL FLORICULTURE (Peter Henderson).—A guide to the successful propagation and cultivation of florists' plants. Illustrated. 325 pages. $1.50.

THE ROSE—Its cultivation, varieties, etc. (H. B. Ellwanger).—A complete guide of the cultivation of the rose, together with the classification of all the leading varieties. $1.25.

GINSENG (Kains).—At the present time when so much interest is taken in ginseng it will be interesting to peruse this volume, which tells all about the plant in a way that all may understand. The 144 pages are freely illustrated. 50 cents.

HEDGES, WINDBREAKS, ETC. (Powell).—A treatise on the planting, growth and management of hedge plants for country and suburban homes. A volume of 140 pages with twenty-two illustrations. 50 cents.

THE PRINCIPLES OF FRUIT GROWING (Bailey).—The entire subject of fruit culture is treated very thoroughly in this illustrated volume of 516 pages. It is a book that no up-to-date fruit grower can afford to be without. $1.25.

CABBAGES, CAULIFLOWER AND ALLIED VEGETABLES (Allen).—The requirements of the important vegetables of the cabbage tribe are given here very fully. The book also contains interesting chapters on seed raising, insect pests and fungus diseases common to these plants. 50 cents.

ASPARAGUS (Hexamer).—A practical treatise on the planting, cultivation, harvesting and preserving of asparagus with notes on its history and botany. This book is mainly devoted to the culinary kinds of asparagus, but there is also some reference to the ornamental species. 50 cents.

LANDSCAPE GARDENING (Waugh).—This is a very useful little book on the art of landscape gardening. It will be found exceptionally valuable to amateurs as it covers in detail the numerous problems that come to the owners of small gardens. It is freely illustrated and the pictures have been chosen with a view to informing the reader rather than decorating the book. 50 cents.

THE CARNATION.

Solid Beds Versus Benches.

The matter of solid beds versus benches, like the subject of stem rot, is one that seems practically impossible to settle definitely either one way or the other. In Lancaster county, Pa., it is safe to say that two-thirds of the carnations grown are grown in solid beds, and the number grown is no mean item in the country's average. The quality of the carnations grown in these solid beds is fully the equal of those high grade flowers seen at the various exhibitions, in fact I know of some seedlings grown here that are ahead of the cracks shown at Detroit last March. (None of my own, however, and none likely to be placed on the market).

Solid beds are as variable as the men who use them. Some are elaborate affairs that are as costly or even more costly than benches. It is an open question whether or not these beds are preferable to benches. In the writer's opinion they are not. Leaving out the question of cost, where carnations are grown exclusively for the cut flowers, the bench method is the best, the principal point in its favor being that the cut flowers are more under the grower's control. With a good set of huds in December they can be held back the first few weeks and pushed along the last two so as to get the bulk of them in for the holiday market. With proper care and attention forcing can be indulged in on a bench that would be ruinous to a solid bed. Higher feeding can be followed on a bench than in a solid bed because the watering is under better control and a bench can be dried out much quicker and more thoroughly than a solid bed. These two items—feeding and forcing—are very important ones in carnation culture and in some cases decide the matter of profit or loss.

Solid beds are less expensive in construction and the item of repairs is so small that it need hardly be taken into consideration, as it should not be over two or three per cent on the original cost per annum. Another item and a big one in favor of solid beds is the time consumed in watering. In a solid bed with proper drainage a watering every three days in fall and spring is all that is required and in the darker winter months it is not unusual to water but once in two or three weeks, that is a general watering. Of course portions of the bed may need looking after in the interval to see that they keep a uniform growth and do not develop spots of second class stock. A third item in favor of solid beds is the fact that the plants can be carried over much later in the spring, covering Decoration day and the commencements with much better stock than can be turned out of benches, and where summer flowers are wanted the solid bed is far ahead of the bench. Another point is the increased vigor and vitality of the plants, or, to be more explicit, the stock. This will no doubt be disputed by some growers, but it is a fact patent to anyone who stops to consider that in the solid bed the growth is more even and the root action more natural than it is possible to get on a bench. The nearer you can get to nature with the guiding hand of a good grower the nearer you get to the goal of perfection both in plant and in flower. Flowers properly grown in a solid bed placed alongside of flowers properly grown on benches and kept under the same conditions will outlast the bench flowers by twenty-four hours at least. Cuttings taken from a properly grown plant in a solid bed may not be as large and strong looking as those from a highly fed bench plant, but they have the vitality that counts and will make the best plants for next winter's crop. Some of the older sorts that are played out with bench growers are not only grown by solid bed growers but better results are obtained from them than in the first years of their introduction, an impossible feat with bench propagated plants.

The construction of the solid bed is a matter of local conditions. We Lancaster county fellows have subsoil that is perfect, or nearly so, in drainage and all we have to do is to level off a plot of ground, build our house over it and lay it out in beds, using a 6-inch board for sides to the paths and filling in the dirt or soil used for planting. In this style of a house the only expense is the cost of the 6-inch lumber and some stakes to stake up the boards. Compare this in cost and repairs with a bench and you can easily see that we can well afford to lose the few advantages a bench possesses over solid beds in the matter of cut flower returns. This style of solid bed will not appeal to the man with a lazy back as it means considerable stooping from the day the planting is done until the plants are thrown out in the summer. This can be overcome by a trifling addition to the outlay by digging the paths out to the depth of two feet six inches and adding two one-foot boards to the outlay. When the subsoil is of a clayey nature so it will not drain naturally you must resort to artificial drainage by digging the bed itself out to the depth of fifteen inches and filling it in with broken stone, cinders or any drainage material you may have to hand, allowing eight inches of soil for planting in. Where artificial drainage is not needed then five to six inches of soil for planting is sufficient. The man who digs out a bed to the depth of three feet and puts in elaborate drainage with air chambers and other costly ideas had better grow his carnations in benches and buy of the new seedlings as they come out to keep his stock up to the proper degree of health and vigor. As stated before, where the cost of construction and maintenance is any where near what it is in Lancaster county, then use solid beds by all means and make money by the operation. Where the cost is about equal or nearly so then use benches every time.

Considerably more care and judgment is needed for solid bed culture than for benches, one of the first things to watch being care in watering. A solid bed needs less water than a bench but will suffer almost as quickly from a lack of it. High feeding must be guarded against and yet care used to see that the plant does not suffer from lack of the proper elements in the soil. Forcing by increased temperature should never be indulged in as it is sure to bring weakened plants, weakened flowers, that will not ship, and weakened stems that will not hold up the flowers. There is a little (a very little) less danger from stem rot in the solid bed than there is in a bench, providing the plants have not brought it with them from the cutting bed (which is the case ninety-five times out of every hundred) and providing the watering is in the hands of an expert. Where the plant has been inoculated with the stem rot fungus in the cutting bench it only needs the proper conditions to develop it and to kill the plant whether in the field, the bench or the solid bed. All soils contain this fungus to a greater or lesser degree. Sod soil contains much more than soil that has been under cultivation for a year or two, so we never use any sod soil for our houses. This fungus apparently lies dormant or semi-dormant in the soil under conditions that are nearly perfect for carnations, but vary these conditions ever so little, in watering and feeding especially, and you are encouraging stem rot. Let the soil have the faintest suspicion of sourness from overwatering and you will have trouble. Fill it with such an excess of fertilizer that the plants can not possibly take it up and you will have trouble again. I am here speaking of the stem rot that takes the whole plant at one time, not the sort that eats it up branch by branch. That is a different proposition entirely.

The carnation is a water loving plant and you will get the best results from well watered beds, but an overwatered solid bed is almost beyond repair. Here the bench has the advantage, as a bench can be dried out in a reasonably short time, but with a solid bed it is almost impossible. Several years ago I had the misfortune to overwater a house of Crocker (solid beds) early in the season, and such a sorry looking house I never want to see again. The plants simply stood still and for about three months the income from 6,500 plants was $4 to $6 per week. On a bench these could have been brought back to normal conditions in less than a month. At another time I was too kind and made my soil entirely too rich with manure. The consequence was that it took several months to get the plants into good working shape. In this case I do not think the bench would have had any advantage over the solid bed unless it had been one of those leaky affairs that lets all the richness of the soil wash through.

We are planting our houses now in the hottest time of the year, and carnation roots, loving as they do a cool, moist soil, will find it better in a solid bed than they will in a bench. They will start off quicker and with more vim in a solid bed, bringing high grade flowers six to eight weeks after planting, all conditions being right. Stems will average longer and stronger in solid beds than in benches all the season through. Visitors often ask us solid bed growers how we get such fine, long stems, and to tell the truth and give the secret away there is no such thing as getting them. The roots simply go down and the stems go up. Summing the matter up, it stands about as follows: The cut flowers will average up about equal, if anything slightly ahead on the solid beds for the season—October 1 to July 1—but from December 1 to March 1 you will cut from the solid beds from ten to twenty per cent less flowers than you would from the same space benched. The question simply rests on this point—whether it pays best to lose the difference in the cut for these three months and save the expense of benching or to bench and get the extra cut of flowers. These comparisons are made, of course, on the presumption that both bench and solid bed are in good condition and the plants doing their best, the ordinary bench and solid bed being used as a criterion and not the elaborately constructed beds and benches, subwatered, ventilated and bound to bring results that we ordinary mortals can only look on with admiration and envy.

By the way, do you know it takes considerable engineering to make money out of carnations? Just keep a fair record of expenses and returns from June 1, 1904, to June 1, 1905, making a liberal allowance for all labor, both outdoors and in the houses, a six per cent interest on the money you have invested and four per cent additional for wear and tear on houses, boilers, tools, etc. This record may do you some good.

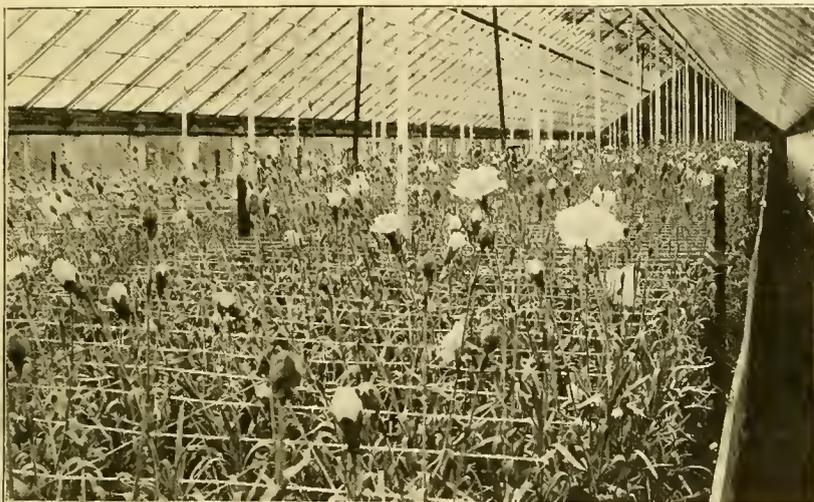

ALBERT M. HERR.

The Sleepy Enchantress?

Having read and heard, but not witnessed so much about the beautiful Enchantress "sleeping," I thought it would not more than justify this variety to give our experience. We only have a small space, probably 200 in this variety, and with us it is second to none in productiveness, keeping qualities, and the price realized. We have kept them easily over ten days, and they would have kept "awake" a good while longer, had they not caught the eye of some lover of this beautiful variety. Not only our own grown have had such keeping qualities, but we have had shipments from the J. D. Thompson Carnation Company, which really astonished us. Now, can any of your readers explain why this is? Is it feeding to excess that causes them to sleep, or are they allowed to open too far? We very seldom feed. Probably we would feed more if we had the time, but would rather sleep this time ourselves than to feed to excess, and then find the carnations and ourselves all sleeping. We find that by cutting them a little over half open, they open and last very nicely. There is nothing that has taken so well in this market for many years and we expect to plant all we can find room for. I had no special reason for writing these few words, but we would like to know why the big fellows can't succeed, while the "farmers" are "right there with the goods." I trust that some grower can solve this problem in the near future.

FRED LOUIS SCHULZ.

Carnation Fred Burki.

The new variety, illustrated herewith, was raised by John Murchie, of Sharon, Pa. It is a glistening white with a faint streak of pink which can not be noticed two feet away and fades out by the time the flowers are ready to cut. It is a cross between Mrs. Lawson and a seedling and very fragrant. It is said to be a fine healthy grower and that every shoot makes a flower, the plant producing continuously. The stems are from twenty to thirty inches in length, strong and erect. Mr. Murchie claims it will give more good flowers than any white he has ever grown or seen grown, and that it will not produce them in crops, but gives a steady cut from November to July. Fred Burki, of Allegheny, Pa., after whom it is named and who is growing it extensively, believes it to be worthy of every consideration.

DEPARTMENT OF REGISTRATION.

The name of Carnation Marie Louise Thompson, registered by C. W. Ward, Queens, N. Y., has been changed to Rachel Marie Thompson.

The carnation reported registered under the name of Dr. Seessel should be Seessel.

The following varieties have been registered by the Cottage Gardens Company, Queens, N. Y.:

Robert Craig (Ward), color brilliant scarlet, size three and one-half to four inches, habit strong and similar to Lawson, an early and free bloomer, stem twenty-four inches and long from the start, calyx perfect and color does not fade, keeping and shipping qualities as good as the best.

Ethel Ward, color clear pink, double full flower of good size and borne on long stiff stems, exceptionally fragrant and a good keeper and shipper, habit similar but stronger than Harry Fenn, a free bloomer.

Alma Ward, color white, a huge perfect formed bloom, four inches in diameter, with perfect calyx and strong stem and very fragrant, growth exceptionally vigorous, the flowers having a slight flushing of pink at the base of the petals.

Marie Louise Thompson, color beautiful rose pink, flowers three to four inches in diameter on three to four foot stems, calyx perfect, the petals without any fringe, the flower being near the English ideal of a round petaled bloom.

Dr. Seessel, color clear white with at times a slight blush tint at the center of the flower, edge of petals delicately fringed and dotted with bright soft pink, blooms three to four inches on long stiff stems, form and calyx perfect.

The following variety has been registered by Davis Bros., Bloomsburg, Pa.: Mary Albert, color pure white, a large bloom on a long stiff stem, an early and continuous bloomer and does not burst at any time of the year, and extra good keeper.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Good bench chrysanthemums can be had from cuttings struck June 1.

Chicago Chrysanthemum Show.

The preliminary premium list of the Horticultural Society of Chicago's fall exhibiton has been issued. There are some important changes noticeable from the list for the show of 1902, the number of classes being reduced and in certain cases the prizes are materially increased. The four classes for light and dark pink and light and dark yellow cut chrysanthemums with Vivand-Morel and Major Bonnafon as color standards are retained with the usual classes for other colors. For the best 100 blooms $50 and $40 are offered, and for the best 100 blooms, none to exceed four inches in diameter, $30 and $20. For the best three standard chrysanthemum plants not less than 30-inch stems, $50 and $40 are offered, and for the best five standards, not less than 12-inch stems nor more than 24-inch, five varieties, $40 and $20. Prizes of

CARNATION FRED BURKI.

$35 and $25 are offered for the best group of plants.

For cut orchid blooms, best collection, $40 and $30 are offered: for the best collection of orchid plants, $40, and for the best fifteen geranium plants, one variety, not over 10-inch pots, $40 and $25. Liberal prizes are offered for other miscellaneous plants.

For the best fifty American Beauty roses, $50, $35 and $20 are the prizes, for the best seventy-five Liberty $35 and $25, and for the best 100 Golden Gate, Bride, Bridesmaid, or any other variety, $20 and $12 each. The best twelve blooms of a rose never before shown in this country will win a silver cut worth $25.

Carnations are favored with the usual classes for standard varieties and eight special classes each for 100 blooms of a certain color, with prizes of $10 and $7. A sweepstakes is provided to be won by the best 100 blooms entered in these special classes, $10 and $7 being added. Seven classes and a sweepstakes for seedlings, twenty blooms, are provided, each with a $10 prize. The same is done for seedling chrysanthemums. Violets and horticultural novelties are provided for.

Copies of this list may be had on application to Assistant Secretary E. A. Kanst, 5700 Cottage Grove avenue, Chicago.

Housing the Show Chrysanthemums.

The chrysanthemum plants that are expected to produce cut blooms for exhibition or for extra high grade commercial work should be gotten into their permanent quarters with as little delay as is possible from this date on. The proper allowance of head room is one of the most important points that we have to take into consideration when figuring on the benches to carry this early planted stock to success. A majority of our most telling exhibition varieties are tall, rank growers, and eight feet is the least head room from the top of the bench to the glass which they can get along with for their proper development. Another extra two feet would be a great deal better for them. This height is based on the assumption that at planting time the young exhibition stock consists of vigorous, healthy plants in three or four-inch pots in a good growing condition, which have been potted along as they have required it, and which have not at any time been allowed to get hard or woody. If it is necessary to plant part of the stock in different sizes or from later propagations to take care of some new or rare production, do not plant these side by side with the earlier propagated plants, but give them a place, if possible; on a bench by themselves. They will get along with less head room, and there will not be any danger of them being overgrown by the larger plants. A lot of trouble and worry can be saved by grading the varieties according to the height attained by each and planting the different heights in sections by themselves. A bench with eight feet of head room will carry the following list of varieties successfully:

- | | |
|-------------------------|----------------------|
| Col. D. Appleton. | Timothy Eaton. |
| Henry Barnes, | Mrs. T. W. Pockett, |
| Mrs. E. Thirkell, | Yellow Eaton. |
| Mrs. W. B. Chamberlain, | Mr. T. Carrington, |
| Golden Wedding, | Lavender Queen. |
| Mrs. F. A. Constable, | Thos. Humphreys, |
| Hero of Mafeking, | Mme. Paolo Radaelli, |
| Mme. E. Nicoulaud. | |

The list which follows names plants that can be given with success a bench with six feet of head room:

- | | |
|----------------------|--------------------|
| Mrs. Coombes. | Allice Byron, |
| Mutual Friend, | Mme. Von Andre. |
| Wm. Duckham. | F. A. Cobbold, |
| C. J. Salter, | Gen. Hutton, |
| Vivian-Morel, | Chas. Davis, |
| Mrs. Barkley, | Kate Broomhead, |
| H. W. Buckbee, | W. R. Church, |
| W. A. Etherington, | Pantia Ralli, |
| Mr. T. Longley, | Chas. Longley, |
| Leila Filkins, | S. T. Wright, |
| Mrs. Henry Robinson, | Mrs. Jerome Jones, |
| Yellow Jerome Jones. | |

And, again, another list of still dwarf varieties can be made up as follows:

- | | |
|---------------------|------------------|
| Nellie Pockett, | Cheltoni, |
| Loveliness, | A. J. Balfour, |
| Brutus, | Ivory, |
| Pink Ivory, | Major Bonnaffon, |
| H. J. Jones, | Don McLeod, |
| Mrs. J. R. Trantor, | Casco, |
| Mlle. Marie Liger, | Columbia, |
| Convention Hall, | Quo Vadis, |
| M. Chenon de Leche, | Merza. |

These are all extra fine varieties for any purpose, and will amply repay any extra care that may be bestowed on them. But take any of these dwarf growers and plant a small number between tall growers like Timothy Eaton or Golden Wedding, and the tall varieties outgrow them, preventing them from getting sufficient light and air for their development.

When selecting your varieties, especially the ones you intend to grow quite a number of for exhibiting in large vases, it will be well to figure that many of the fine things quite rare last season will be grown more largely this year, and it is safe to say that some of them will set the pace, particularly in the pink and red classes. In yellow and white Col. D. Appleton, Yellow Eaton and Timothy Eaton will still be factors right up at the front. In pink Dr. Enguehard, Wm. Duckham, F. A. Cobbold, Leila Filkins, W. A. Etherington and Miss Olive Miller make a big six in new pinks, though some others, like Silver Queen, Col. Baden

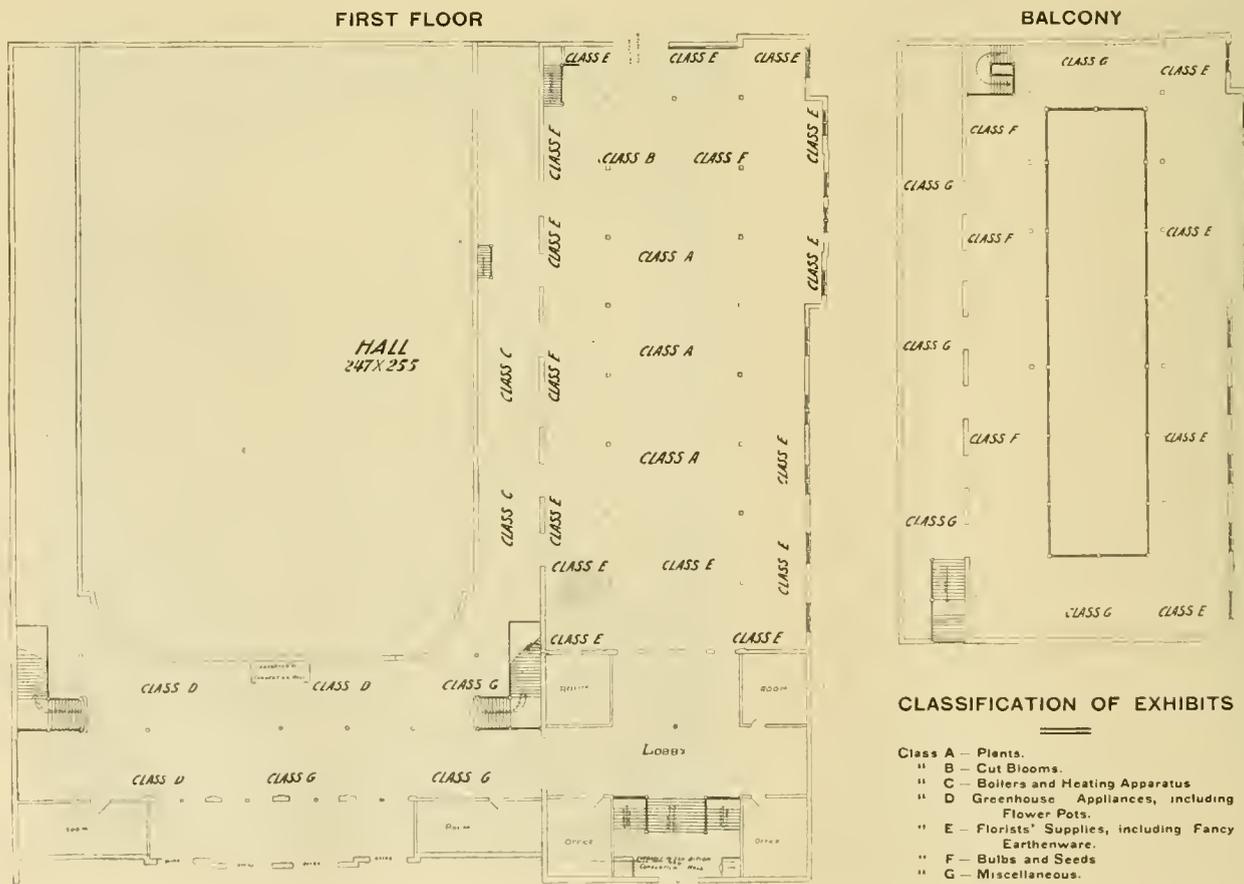

DIAGRAM OF THE S. A. F. EXHIBITION HALL, ST. LOUIS, MO.

Powell, Mrs. Barkley and Mlle. Liger, not quite so new, but still very telling varieties, are likely to be heard from. In reds and colors that come under the head of any other color, we are getting some of the largest exhibition sorts; therefore these classes will be particularly well taken care of. Thos. Humphreys, S. T. Wright, Maynell, Lord Alverstone, Lady Roberts, Lord Hopetoun and Henry Barnes are all big advances over a few years ago in the red class. And the same can be said of Donald McLeod, Quo Vadis, Ethel Fitzroy, W. R. Church, Gen. Hutton, Lord Salisbury, Harrison Dick Henry II. and Mrs. T. Longley in the any other color class.

Give the house a thorough good cleaning out, repair any of the benches that require it, then give them a good hot lime wash on the inside; also, see that there is ample drainage. We are then ready for the soil. This should be a good, live soil, with one part of well rotted cow manure to three parts of soil, with a good sprinkling of bone meal thoroughly incorporated with it just before planting. These early planted chrysanthemums will require a deeper soil than those planted a month later, so we figure to give them about seven inches to grow in, making it as firm as possible and setting the plants 10x12 inches apart, growing to single stem. Do not set out any plants that are dry at the roots; neither soak them with water just before planting. Should it be necessary to water any let them drain for a couple of hours before planting them out. After planting, water directly around the plants for a few days until the roots begin to take hold of the new soil. From then on they must never be allowed to suffer for the want of water, and every day, according to the weather, they should have ample syringings, with all the air and light that the house will allow.

C. W. JOHNSON.

World's Fair Notes.

The exhibits in the Horticulture building up to the present time have consisted almost entirely of apples which had been preserved in cold storage, and of fruit and vegetables in antiseptic solutions. A few states have made exhibits of pears, and New York has made a splendid showing of grapes of some five or six varieties. The Vergennes, in particular, has been very fine. Fresh fruits are now being received. Strawberries have been exhibited by Texas, Louisiana, Tennessee, Arkansas and Missouri. Several states have sent peaches and plums, and Tennessee and California have exhibited cherries.

Visitors should not fail to examine the Japanese garden, which is on the hill just south of the Machinery hall. It is an excellent example of Japanese landscape art. Several large wisterias, which are in full bloom, make it especially attractive at this time. It also contains very fine specimens of Japanese maples, sciadopitys and many dwarfed evergreens.

President G. C. Creelman, of the Ontario Agricultural College, and Prof. John Hamilton, farmers' institute specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture, were here on Monday of this week making arrangements for a meeting of the American Association of Farmers' Institute workers to be held in the Agriculture building in October.

The large collection of rhododendrons exhibited by J. B. Wild & Brothers, of Sarcoxie, Mo., which is located northeast of the Agriculture building, has been in bloom during the past week. It contains many fine varieties, and considering the fact that they have only been planted about a month, they are making an excellent showing.

Prof. S. B. Green, horticulturist of the Minnesota Experiment station, has been busy in the Educational building during the past week arranging the horticultural exhibit in the section of agricultural colleges and experiment stations. He will return later as one of the jurors in the horticulture department.

A high iron fence has just been completed along the east side of the French reservation. Among the attractive features of the French display are several hundred examples of espalier training. The apple, pear and other trees have been in full bloom, although many of them are little more than one foot high.

Samuel H. Dixon, chief of the Texas horticulture exhibit in the Texas State building, has given away since last Monday 200,000 cape jasmine buds to visitors coming to the Texas building. These buds are being shipped in boxes from the interior of Texas.

Several of the large beds east of the Horticulture building have been planted with cannas and dahlias by Supt. Hadkinson. Most of them are exhibition plants furnished by various florists.

A large collection of cacti from Mexico is being placed just west of the Agriculture building. It contains several thousand specimens of cereus, echinopsis, mammillaria and echeveria.

The water garden south of the Horticulture building has been planted with a fine collection of nymphæas, nelumbiums and other aquatics exhibited by George Richardson, Ohio.

C. and M. Wild, of Sarcoxie, Mo., have staged eight vases containing sixteen varieties of peonies. All of them are named sorts, and most of them were very attractive.

Mexico has filled several tables with a collection of tropical fruit, including lemons, oranges, bananas, pineapples, cocoanuts, mangoes and mammee apples.

William Galloway, of Philadelphia, Pa., has a very fine exhibit of vases and other garden and lawn ornaments.

A large collection of garden tools and horticultural supplies is being opened by J. D. Tissot, of Paris, France.

Louisiana has made a fine showing of palms, ferns and other greenhouse plants in the conservatory.

Best Direction For Houses.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—A year ago I built a greenhouse parallel with our street, which runs northeast. In the afternoon the sun strikes the house slantingly and the sash bars, which are sixteen inches apart, throw a shade which makes the house a little dark. I have everything in the same house—carnations, chrysanthemums and bedding plants—but roses will not grow in it. When making additions how had I better make the houses run?

F. S. W.

While I have never liked an oblique angle for rose houses, I am surprised at the poor success reported. It may, perhaps, be due in part to other unfavorable conditions. Unless modified by some local condition, there will be little choice between running the houses east and west or north and south. If the former direction is taken, it will be advisable to erect three-quarter span houses, while those with an even span can be used where the houses run north and south.

NEW CASTLE, IND.—Herbert Heller, of the South Park Floral Company, and Miss Mary Smith of this city will be married June 1. They will go on a honeymoon tour through the east.

THE RETAIL TRADE

A JAR of purple irises, and nothing else, in the window makes a show superlatively effective. The iris is "the poor man's orchid."

A PRETTY feature in a New York florists' window decoration last week was a vase of double-white flowering peach with cut sprays of the red-leaved Japanese maple.

Now is a good time for special window displays. For some weeks the well-stocked herbaceous garden will furnish abundant material. The best effect is made when the show is confined to one sort of flower as, for instance, Oriental poppies, or columbines, peonies, Ghent azaleas, foxgloves, etc. The less foreign material shown with these things the better. Adiantum cuneatum in pots, however, makes an excellent bed in which to set a vase of German iris and many other things will also be found to harmonize with the Adiantum when so used.

An Eastern Wedding Decoration.

Our illustration shows a very pretty and effective wedding decoration at Grace Episcopal church, Newark, N. J., by A. Begerow, successor to Begerow & Gerlach. The ceremony which took place on April 14, 1904, was private, being witnessed by only fifty guests, and the large palms, the principal groups of which do not appear in the picture, were used to screen off the unoccupied area. The baptismal font, which is not visible, was adorned with a group of Cibotium Schiedeii. On each pew end was a bunch of longiflorum lilies tied with satin ribbon.

Orange Blossoms.

Authorities speak of the use of orange blossoms at weddings as due to the fact that the orange tree, bearing its ripe golden fruit and fragrant flowers at the same time, is a symbol of fruitfulness, and this, we may take it, is the main reason of the pleasing custom.

In Crete the bride and bridegroom are sprinkled with orange flower water, and in Sardinia oranges are attached to the horns of the oxen which draw the nuptial carriage. Dr. Brewer says that Saracen brides carried orange blossoms at weddings, and suggests that our modern custom is a survival or revival of theirs.

The custom appears to have been introduced from France into England about 1820-30. According to Littré, "women at their marriage wear a crown of orange buds and blossoms; hence the orange blossom is taken as a symbol of marriage."

In "Vanity Fair" Thackeray speaks of orange blossoms as "touching emblems of female purity imported by us from France." This happy thought, however, is merely a fancy of his, for orange blossoms, according to French scholars and writers, simply indicate that "mademoiselle" has attained the status of "madame."

STERLING, ILL.—The Sterling greenhouses have been sold by F. A. Belt to Robert Lundstrom, of Oconomowoc, Wis. Mr. Lundstrom will take possession June 1. Mr. Lundstrom has been for eight years connected with the DuPee houses in Wisconsin as manager. He makes a specialty of landscape gardening. Mr. Belt will take a trip through the west for the benefit of his health.

New York.

Rarely, if ever, in the history of the cut flower business has this market been so completely overwhelmed with flowers of all classes as at the present time. In all the wholesale markets roses and carnations are heaped high on the counters, the ice boxes are packed to the doors and on top of it all wagon loads of boxes are continually arriving from the growers, for which it seems almost impossible to find storage room. The hot weather of the last few days has brought the crops, indoor and outdoor, along at a tremendous rate, and at the same time has ruined the quality of much of the stock, roses being especially affected. Decoration day over, it will not be long before the growers, disgusted with the meager returns under present conditions, will be throwing out and replanting, and then with the renewed activity in the line of weddings, graduations, steamer departures and the like, we may look for a complete reversal of the situation. But for the present, things could hardly be worse. Even the street peddlers are utterly devoid of ambition, and no offer seems low enough to tempt them to an investment.

A visit to W. H. Siebrecht, of Astoria, N. Y., last week, found that industrious gentleman surveying with critical eye a field of luxuriant peonies. He remarked naively: "There's money in peonies." P. tenuifolium was just opening its flowers, the singles a little ahead of the doubles. P. officinalis looks as though it would not be in for Decoration day, but this does not worry Mr. Siebrecht, as this flower is always a good seller. Cold storage lilies are being potted up now and will take the place recently occupied by the spring flowering bulbs in the houses, to be followed later by the chrysanthemums and poinsettias. The last stragglers of the Easter crops of Harrisii lilies are now blooming, a practical evidence of the irregular mixtures of varieties now sold under this name. These late bloomers are of fine substance, tall and prolific. Mr. Siebrecht keeps a large number of longiflorum potted and plunged in frames through the winter, protected by glass and a covering of salt hay. A lot of these were brought in at Easter, the sprouts being started a couple of inches and they are now well set with good-sized flower buds. W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., has completed his studies at the New York law school and emerged with his diploma as a full-fledged lawyer. He sailed for Europe in company with his mother on the steamer Rotterdam for a three months' rest before going to work at his profession.

An elaborate programme is being prepared for the annual outing of the Florists' Club and the outing committee including Wm. Elliott, chairman, J. A. Shaw, secretary and Chas. Schenck, treasurer, is holding the publication back from press for a few days for the accommodation of tardy advertisers or those who may wish to announce additional prizes for the various athletic games. All who intend to avail themselves of this excellent medium for publicity are urged to apply at once to any of the above named gentlemen.

The retail trade here gives evidence of a very kindly disposition toward the Scott fern, which, as soon as it is disseminated, they expect to use in large quantities, for their retail trade and in decorative work. The universal impression among these quick-witted men seems to be that for their purposes the fern will be a prime acquisition.

The auction rooms have been densely packed with buyers during the past two weeks. Louis Schmutz, who is an enthusiastic shipper to the auctions, was in special glee last Tuesday over the sale of a box of his cactus dahlias at $1 a plant. As they were from cuttings struck in March he has good reason for his elation. Mr. Schmutz pronounces King Humbert to be the finest canna up to date.

Cattleya gigas is the choicest thing in the flower line in this market now. The best blooms bring 60 cents, which is a good price, considering the season and the limited call. Young & Nugent are receiving specimens of unusual size and perfection, sometimes five or six flowers on a spike.

Robert Scott, gardener for R. S. White until the death of Mr. White in an automobile accident last March, and since gardener on the Goddard estate, Roslyn, died two weeks ago, aged 42 years.

The sixth annual outing of the George M. Stumpp employes is scheduled to take place at Eckstein's brewery, Staten Island, on July 6.

NOTES.

Snowballs and deutzias are to be seen in large quantities. Lilies are not selling as they did last year, when prices ranged 8 to 10 cents a flower. At the present time 3 to 4 cents a flower is about the prevailing price, but they might advance for Decoration day. Snapdragon is selling poorly as also are daisies, stocks, mignonette, parrot tulips, poeticus, pansies and a host of other flowers.

Sweet peas are in the market in enormous quantities and very small prices are realized. There is also extra fine outside lily of the valley. A French variety can be had in excellent quality for $1 per 100; common grade, 25 to 50 cents per 100. Tree peonies bring 50 cents a dozen, Lilac is about over. Carnations are away down in price and the same can be said of roses.

Steamer orders are very numerous. The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which sailed on May 24, and which had many notables aboard, including Gov. Odell, called for many flowers. On the dock boxes and baskets from loved ones could be seen in countless numbers, also some very pretty designs from some of the Broadway stores.

George Schumacker, a brother-in-law of Philip F. Kessler, and who was employed by Frank Millang, was sent out with an order last Monday morning at 9 a. m. and has not been heard of since. Any information that may lead to his whereabouts will be thankfully received.

The residence of W. A. Manda at South Orange, N. J., was gutted by fire on the night of May 18. All the furniture and paintings were totally destroyed, among the latter being many highly valued flower paintings.

A. J. Tharp, of Bedford Station, celebrated his silver wedding anniversary last Friday. Over 200 guests were present with congratulations and beautiful gifts.

A sale this week of Japanese dwarfed trees and garden curios at an up-town auction room brought very low prices.

Charles Smith has pink tree peonies grown by Theo. Ehrhardt, of Woodside, L. I. They sell rather poorly.

Traendly & Schenck are receiving some excellent sweet peas which are at least twelve to fourteen inches long.

The New York Cut Flower Company will close its salesroom daily at 3 o'clock on and after June 1.

A WEDDING DECORATION AT NEWARK, N. J.

(By A. Begerow, successor to Begerow and Gerlach.)

J. M. Thorburn & Company have secured judgment against E. B. Dunne for $762.

L. J. Kreshover and wife are planning an European trip about the middle of June.

Julius Lang, of Thirtieth street, was strong on Perle roses this week.

Wm. H. Siebrecht of Astoria, L. I., has some red peonies of the Japanese variety.

Chicago.

The week before Memorial day, the last "big" day of the season for the florist, finds the market in a most unsatisfactory and discouraging condition from the point of view of not only the wholesaler and retailer, but from that of the grower and buyer as well. What promised to be a very gratifying business week a week ago, when the weather held firm, has developed into a week unprecedented in the annals of the local flower business at this season of the year. Those who know the signs and who have been in business here for ten or more years say that it has been the worst week in point of total sale values and prices ever experienced. The particular feature of this week's market, however, lies not so much in the demand or prices paid for the goods as it does in the endless glut which is now reigning in practically every line of cut flowers. The weather coming in warm and summer like the early part of the week spoiled all hopes of a stiff Decoration day market, as it sent in the stock by the thousands, and every dealer is crowded to his very doors with bursting roses and sleepy carnations. The roses, with few exceptions, are of inferior quality, being loose, open and generally off color and much mildew is noticed. The load of roses sent each morning to the dump is surprising, and the street men and Greeks are carrying them away by the armfuls. There is some consolation in the thought that Decoration day time calls for low prices, however, as the people are not looking for choice stock at this time, and inferior goods are taken as readily almost as the better grades. American Beauty, long stem and medium, is holding to its standard fairly well, but other roses do not come in with good quality. Carnations are more than plentiful, with quality of an indifferent character. Sleepiness is one of the troubles just now bothering the dealers. The market is thoroughly stocked with Southern goods, such as peonies, cape jasmines, etc., and prices in these lines promise not to hold up to the quotations predicted several weeks ago. Lilac, outdoor especially, is nearly a glut. One person was seen on the street the early part of the week with a hay wagon full of it, which he disposed of at 4 and 5 cents a bunch. The local retail situation has improved slightly over last week. Weddings are beginning to cut a figure and several orders helped some this week.

William Kroeschell, of Kroeschell Brothers Company, has been spending several weeks at the Fair in St. Louis, superintending the installation of several Kroeschell boilers in various exposition buildings.

The George Wittbold Company has a new branch retail store in Evanston at 701 Dempster avenue. Business has opened encouragingly at the new place and it promises to be a good field.

The premium list of the fall show of the Horticultural Society of Chicago has been issued, a synopsis of which will be found in another part of this paper.

Messrs. Kohlebrand, of E. C. Amling's and Loveliner, of the Consumer's Floral Company, spent several days last week in Cincinnati, O.

E. F. Winterson Company is showing a great line of large Belgian palms, which were received this week.

Michael Winandy is well supplied with choice outdoor lilac for Decoration day demands.

A. L. Randall Company's entire force is taxed with a heavy shipping business. Long stem American Beauty roses are seen in fine quality at E. C. Amling's.

P. J. Hauswirth has had a good week of wedding and dinner decorations.

George Reinberg's planting out operations have been completed.

Sinner Brothers report a good spring shipping trade.

J. B. Deamud reports a good run on outdoor lilac.

Philadelphia.

There is a growing absence of demand which more than keeps pace with the slackening speed of the grower, as it generally takes him about a week to find out the true state of things. Still, while all branches complain of the stagnation it is with an "it might be worse" air, and all seem in a measure satisfied with the rapidly closing season. Stock is as usual for the time of year. Peonies are coming in both from the south and local points, 75 cents to $1 per dozen being the price. There is also an abundance of shrubbery. Stonhedge, H. H. Battle's farm in Delaware county, is sending it in by the wagon load; it is fine and in good variety. Snapdragon is now recognized as one of the staples and is to be found in stock at this season in all the stores at 50 to 75 cents per dozen. Sweet peas are now, next to orchids, the flower for the corsage. They are plentiful and fine. Carnations are still a factor, but their popularity is waning, so is the price, $4 being now high for the very best, while $1.50 buys the best medium grades. Roses are still good, but feeling the heat and showing it as well. Best Beauties bring $1.50 per dozen and some teas $6 to $8. All the above figures are for gilt-edged stock, for a day old or quantity lots. Ed Reid says: "They can black-guard the commission men all they like, but who but they built the business up, and what would it do to-day without them?" The credit for the large ranges of greenhouses seen on every side in the suburbs of any large city belongs to them. They gave the growers an outlet for their stock and placed their business on such a basis that they could count on a reasonable demand at all seasons of the year.

Notice the difference in the packing of boxes of flowers that are received and those that are shipped from a commission house. This is the result of experience gained by hard knocks. If things are not received in the best of condition at their destination the result is disastrous, and every precaution is therefore taken by the dealer to have his goods delivered in the best possible shape so as to hold and further increase his trade. It is these and other expert business methods that have built up the large shipping trade in all parts of the country and which have resulted in the great increase of the last fifteen years.

Geo. M. Moss, the well known commission salesman, has joined the forces of Geo. C. Watson, seed and bulb importer, and will represent that establishment among the outside customers. Mr. Moss has an excellent reputation as a first-class salesman, and his genial personality and business tact and energy will no doubt do wonders pulling business the Watson way. If any of George's friends, and they are legion in all parts of the country, have any loose orders lying around now is their chance to show their appreciation of his many good qualities in a way that would be received with distinguished consideration.

Growers are getting ready for next season, throwing out and cleaning tables of old stock and planting anew. Joseph Heacock has already planted three houses with Beauty roses and will soon have some more under way. His palms are the picture of health, the kentias and arecas being particularly fine. Large numbers have been shipped lately, but sturdy stock has been shifted in and the houses seem as full as ever.

The authorities are still at sea as to who is responsible for the wound that caused the death of George Kruger, of Narberth. They believe it was dealt to him within a few feet of his own door, but are as yet unable to find the guilty party.

H. C. Geiger, of the Floral Exchange, has been on the sick list, but is now better. The sales at Edgely have been very good for the last month.

Pennock Brothers had a great run on their forget-me-not hampers and baskets. They were attractive and very tastefully arranged.

Charles Bond has succeeded Alphonse Pericat as head orchid grower to Mrs. George W. Wilson.

Leo Niessen has been receiving a fine stock of southern peonies.

S. S. Pennock had some beautiful catleyas the last week.

Boston.

This week has started off with a considerable show of activity. Growers are already anticipating Decoration day and are retarding such material as will bear it. The country retail trade are also anticipating the same and are keeping the wires and mail in active use seeking quotations or placing orders on material that they shall require. Probably nowhere else is this holiday so generally observed or so much money expended for flowers for the occasion as in the New England states. No town is so obscure that it is not heard from on Decoration day, and not even the smallest country cemetery is left out in the distribution of the floral tributes. The local wholesalers are preparing for a record-breaking business. Extra help is secured, and all possible sources of supply are being canvassed with a view to satisfying all comers. The city retail stores are decorated appropriately, the windows generally displaying patriotic colors and the usual offerings in fresh and dried flowers and greens.

The announcement comes from Washington that the war department has approved the general plans for the proposed $3,000,000 improvement, whereby Charles river is to be dredged and dammed, and the beautiful basin of 1,000 acres extent thus acquired added to Boston's peerless park system. It is estimated that the work will be completed in from three to five years.

At the Arnold Arboretum this week the lilacs are in full glory. The own root plants propagated by Mr. Dawson several years ago are now good-sized bushes and profusely set with bloom.

N. F. McCarthy & Company are making a specialty of bay trees this season. A large consignment of fine specimens has just come in.

The Koral Manufacturing Company has been working nights to keep up with the Memorial day demand for its specialties.

Welch Brothers are long on fine roses and carnations, and are in a position to supply Beauty and Edgely ad libitum.

Sutherland is opening a new retail store this week on Bromfield street, in the Pad-dock building.

George A. Sutherland made an assignment on May 24.

St. Louis.

Memorial day is not observed in this city as much as in some other places. From present indications there will be plenty of stock to go around, unless the cloudy weather that we are having just now keeps up. The early part of the week saw shortages in some staples, but just now there is more than enough to go around, and prices have been forced down in consequence. However, the low-priced job lots of two and three weeks ago are not now in evidence, and in carnations $10 per 1,000 in large lots seems to be the limit. In roses the lowest is $15 per 1,000. Sweet peas are too plentiful, and from present indications peonies in a few days will be a drug upon the market. Good roses are scarce, with $6 and $8 per 100 asked for the best. The plantsmen are sold out in some staples and, while some report a general increase in business over last year, others say that they can't notice any difference.

The center of the floral clock at the Fair has just been planted with 5,000 verbenas, and the next in order will be the numerals, which will use up about 3,000 Hero coleuses. The minute marks are to be Verschaffeltii coleuses.

Mr. Emmons, of Belleville, is sending in some fine peonies. He is very busy just now, and reports that he is planting out 15,000 gladioli, and has just finished planting 20,000 tuberose and has 20,000 carnations in the field.

Miss Roosevelt's visit to the Fair is showering that young lady with more flowers than she will ever be able to carry away. Among others might be noted an order for 100 American Beauty roses for her exclusive use.

Baltimore.

Last week there was some revival in the cut flower trade above the preceding one, and towards its end there was a spurt which enabled stocks to be cleared out at bargain counter prices. The extraordinarily cold winter seems to have had the effect of making a greater than usual profusion of bloom from hardy things, and the market has been flooded with it.

The horse show was the society event of the season, and there were numerous visitors from abroad with the natural concomitants of dinners, but in most cases the decorations were wild flowers, dogwood, hawthorn, lilac and other hardy materials. John Cook had one dinner, that of Mrs. H. Carroll Brown (nee Daly), where the profuse decorations of house and table were gardenias. He was fortunate in having a large crop just coming in, and was able from his own stock to meet the demand. For personal decoration the fashionable people from abroad and home folks this year seemed to reject everything but gardenias and lily of the valley, and wherever they gathered the delicious perfume of these favorites was apparent.

There is a contest going on here between the market people and the street vendors, and police interference against the presence of the latter on the streets has been invoked, with the result that for several days there were no fakirs on our streets. There seems to be no provision of law requiring the people to pay a license, yet the police decline to allow them to ply their trade without one. Flower sellers on the streets may not be a sign of civilization, but surely they are its accompaniment, and few large cities but have their corps. Baltimore seems an exception.

The severe winter has played havoc with the outdoor roses. John M. Rider, of Anne Arundel county, finds about one-third of his White Cochet roses are dead, and Frederick C. Bauer, of Govanstown, lost 2,000 out of 7,000. Mr. Bauer exhibited at the Florists' Exchange recently a freak in the way of a single plant of his variegated seedling carnation, bearing three flowers of different colors—the variegated yellow and carmine, a lemon and a pure white.

Summer has come suddenly. To-day (May 24) the mercury nearly touched the 90° mark. Roses are declining in size, but the quantity keeps up. Carnations are in over supply. Next Sunday the May processions of the Catholic churches will make a considerable demand, and the day following—Memorial day—ought to absorb all the material offering.

J. H. Brommel found growing a few days ago in the midst of an oak woods, a quarter of a mile from any house, a galax plant. North Carolina has been considered the northern limit of this plant heretofore, and no one suspected it was hardy in this latitude.

The plant sellers in Lexington market complained to-day of quiet trade. The only thing that seemed to be short was S. A. Nutt geraniums. Pinks were a drug.

Anders Anderson, Govanstown, is putting up a new rose house for American Beauties, 22x100 feet. S. B.

Washington, D. C.

The commencement exercises of the various educational institutions have called for considerable decorating during the last week. I have never yet learned why the end of a school term is called the "commencement," but I do know that they have it at a very convenient time to get a good decoration at small cost. George H. Cooke had three or four separate decorations for one seminary, they being for different classes. In one held in the ballroom of the Willard hotel he had a very pretty arrangement of yellow daisies.

J. R. Freeman had the decoration for a very swell wedding, that of Miss Ivy Langham to Lieutenant Commander, the Vicomte de Faramond de Lafajole, naval attache of the French embassy. The bride is a sister of the Baroness Speck von Sternberg, wife of the German ambassador. The wedding took place on May 24 at St. Matthew's Roman Catholic church, Rhode Island avenue, Rev. Thos. S. Lee officiating. The decoration was a fine display of palms, ferns, Easter lilies and snowballs. Asparagus and valley were also freely used, the bridal bouquets being of the latter. All the coachmen and footmen wore white roses as buttonhole bouquets. It has been noted that the bride and her sisters have each flower names, Ivy, now Vicountess de Faramond; Lily, Baroness Speck von Sternberg and Violet.

Keen regret is felt by many here over the misfortunes of Col. Theodore A. Bingham, former superintendent of buildings and grounds. He was transferred from this city to Buffalo, N. Y., a year ago. Last winter while superintending some hoisting operations, the derrick fell and a part of it struck Col. Bingham and fractured his leg. About ten days ago the surgeons found it necessary to resort to amputation, and his condition is now said to be precarious.

Scientist W. D. Hunter of the Department of Agriculture is authority for the statement that a single pair of cotton-boll weevils will, in one season, produce 134,000,000 offspring. No race suicide there. S. E.

Buffalo.

Weather conditions are very changeable and trade is fair, especially in funeral work. Two big conventions last week and this have not increased the sale of cut flowers. Greenhouse men are over their heads in work and it seems to be earlier than last year. Decoration day will call forth the usual lot of bouquets furnished by the market. School orders are mostly for plants, some are running into wreaths of galax for graves which gives the stores an opportunity to get some orders. A number of weddings are scheduled for next month, which will give some florists a few fine orders.

Donald Newlands, who has been ill for several weeks, is slightly improved and the wish of all is for his speedy recovery. The fine business of D. Newlands & Son, near Forest Lawn, certainly misses him now in the busy season.

From reports we will see a store erected for the exclusive use of a florist near Pine Ridge. W. C. Buechi who has greenhouses there says that his trade is increasing and he must have more room.

Among the prominent arrivals this week was a daughter presented to W. F. Kasting. The new store and new baby certainly entitle him to double congratulations.

Palmer & Son had a very pretty window last week of apple blossoms. It was very effective.

The first meeting of the schedule committee for the fall show was held yesterday.

Lafayette park looks very pretty now with its tulip beds in full bloom.

Arnold Ringier called last Monday.

BISON.

Newport, R. I.

It has been a cold and rainy week. Vegetation has gained but little. Sweet peas and many early sown seeds have germinated poorly, owing to the continued wet weather and average low temperature thus far, and quite a little replanting has been necessary. With the market gardeners and farmers early planted sweet corn has not come up at all well. Peas and beans have done better. The summer people are coming fast, notwithstanding the bad weather, and by Decoration day things will be quite lively here. For a week both seeds and plants have gone slowly but a little sun will start the sales briskly again. It is too bad to have had the storm break right into the busiest days of the whole season, as trade had a great momentum, and having been checked will probably not assume again this year the same proportions, although a great many goods will yet be sold.

The following letter recently received by the Newport Horticultural Society explains itself: "At a meeting of the committee on exhibitions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society held April 16 it was voted to extend an invitation to the horticultural societies of New England to co-operate with this society at the annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America which is to take place at Horticultural Hall, Boston, on November 3-6 next. The plan adopted last year by several societies, offering prizes to be competed for by their own members, seems to have worked well, and is respectfully suggested for this year's meeting."

Repeated complaints are made that flower gardens are being despoiled in every part of the city, the depredations not being confined to children but quite frequently made by women. Not only are the blossoms cut and torn ruthlessly from the stems, but plants are dug up and taken away. One lady who has given much attention and care to the arrangement of her garden, found a woman in her yard at 4 o'clock in the morning recently, with trowel and basket, taking up the plants. These complaints have been made in former years, but this spring the evil is apparently growing.

The last meeting for May of the Newport Horticultural Society was held May 18. Plans and arrangements for the autumn exhibition were considered. John Marshall, head-gardener for O. P. Belmont, was elected a member. Quite a long list of delinquent members who seemed to have lost all interest in the society both as regards attending meetings and paying dues, were dropped from the rolls. It was voted to visit in June the agricultural college at Kingston, R. I., and inspect the buildings and grounds.

The strike of the freight handlers of the Fall River line is being badly felt here. Not only are shipments of seeds and shrubbery tied up, but also many household goods shipped by the boats from New York by the summer residents. It is hoped it will be settled before matters become still more serious.

F. L. Ziegler, the seedsman, has offered a special prize of $10 to be awarded at the September exhibition of the Newport Horticultural Society, for the best twelve ears of the new sweet corn Newport Prizetaker.

The children of St. Joseph's parochial school have planted on the school grounds a very handsome maple, supplied by V. A. Vanicek of the Rhode Island Nurseries. X.

Lowell, Mass.

The week before Memorial day finds everyone making vast preparations for the last holiday of the season and the indications are that there will be a large supply of flowers, both indoor and outdoor. The hot weather—75° in the shade—we are having just now is pushing a good many outdoor plants into bud, so that they will be in good shape to use in making up into bouquets. Memorial day is the hardest day we have to contend with, so many hundreds of cheap bouquets have to be made. During the last week business has been very dull. The cut-flower trade has suffered greatly owing to the tact of the department stores selling flowers. Last Saturday one of these stores sold 25,000 roses, while another sold the same number of carnations. These conditions in a large city do not amount to a drop in the bucket, but in a town where the shops are located all in bunch it cuts quite a figure in the day's receipts.

L. Smith showed his ability during the last winter to raise over 300,000 of the finest violets ever shipped to Boston, or anywhere else. Lew is so elated over his success on violets that he is erecting a 21x200-foot house for carnations.

Lewis Small is not taking any chances in regard to getting short of water. He is putting up a 25,000 gallon tank.

Geo. Foster, down at Wamesit, is putting in a new 50 horse power boiler.

CANNA BLACK BEAUTY seems to hold its own with most growers as the best in its class to date.

OF the tulips planted last fall reports from various localities, commercial and private, are that many have failed to bloom. Parrots are particularly poor this season.

In the article on "Forcing Bulb Records," which appeared in our last issue, 1950 should be substituted for 1250
Roman hyacinths, on page 693, fifth line from the bottom of the third column.

WE need for our files copies of the annual report of the American Carnation Society for the years 1894, 1895 and 1901. Anyone having copies to spare will oblige by communicating with this office.

JAPANESE fern balls that have been in the houses should be hung outside during the summer months under the semi-shade of a lath house such as is used for ara-carias. They will make a second growth of fronds in the fall and be in handsome shape for holiday sales.

A FEW field rows of Narcissus poeticus ornatus will be found profitable for spring work. This variety perhaps falls a little short of the true poeticus in elegance of form but it beats it by many times in quantity of bloom and will keep on flowering profusely for years if left undisturbed.

TULIP RETROFLEXA is a lovely single yellow, its marked characteristic being the reflexing of the petals so that the flower is suggestive of the yellow hemerocallis. It is a late bloomer and would hardly be a success as a forcing variety, but is well worthy of a place in every garden collection.

FOUR new spiræas (astilbe) are in the market for Memorial day this year.
They are Blondin, Gladstone, Superba and Washington. Gladstone is the best.
Blondin is very tall and loose-panicked.
Superba and Washington resemble Gladstone but the flower stalks are not quite so tall. All are very fine and frequently produce on one stalk as much flower as could be got from a whole plant of the old-fashioned Japonica.

TULIP Golden Crown is the best of the late yellow varieties, larger and finer every way than Ida, which is largely grown. Gesneriana tulips in several varieties can be had in most seasons throughout the northern parts of the United States for Decoration day. They are very brilliant and the flowers last well after cutting.

THE verberna seems to be in a way to regain its lost prestige as a summer bedding plant. Undoubtedly the disease and general debility which was responsible for its abandonment was due to the method of propagation by cuttings generally followed until a few years ago.
Most growers now raise their verbenas from seed and the seed as now obtainable can be relied upon to come fairly true as to color. The only drawback is that seedlings take a longer time to come into flower.

THE manure question is becoming a serious one for the large rose growers in many sections. One establishment is operating a dairy as the best solution of the problem. Probably there are others that are doing likewise. It would seem that the most important qualification in the American greenhouse rose grower is the ability to work up a good appetite in his plants and then feed them with a lavish hand. Reading Gray's Botany over a house of Beauties is not in it with a few wagon loads of stable manure.

THE trade seems to have gone stem-mad on roses. So great is the value set on stems, big, long and unbending, that other desirable points seem almost forgotten and grading by stem alone is the rule in some establishments. The system now followed by some growers of so cutting their roses as to encourage great, coarse, sap-growths from the base of the plants is certainly the limit in this direction. They get the stems, no doubt about that, but it is rarely that any fine lines or finish are seen in the dispropor-tioned bud that crowns the three-foot walking stick and the scanty foliage finishes the monstrosity, for monstrosity it is, judged by established rules of balance and good taste. It is to be hoped that the S. A. F. committee engaged in formulating a market scale for grading roses will see a way to place the stem question where it belongs relatively to the other points that go to make a perfect rose.

Massachusetts Flower Growers' Meeting.

The next regular meeting of the Independent Co-operative Flower Growers' Association will be held at the New England House, Blackstone street, Boston, Mass., Wednesday, June 1, at 7:30 p. m.
All the flower growers of Massachusetts are cordially invited to attend.

The object of this movement is to establish a new wholesale Flower Market in Boston and it is earnestly desired that there be a full attendance at this meeting. Those desiring to take stock in the new market will be given an opportunity to do so at this meeting.

WILFRID WHEELER, Sec'y.

The Vilmorin Monument.

We have the pleasure to announce to our readers that many favorable responses have been made to the calls issued by M. Louis Passy, deputy, member of the Institute, and permanent secretary of the National Society of Agriculture of France, and by some other friends of the Vilmorin family, for the formation of a committee for the Vilmorin monument, says the Revue Horticole. We know, also, that this idea of a monument to the Vilmorins has received the most hearty support abroad, and that many distinguished men in the world of agriculture and horticulture in England, Belgium, Italy, Russia, etc., have considered it an honor to form part of this committee.

Rooted Rose Cuttings Dutiable.

Referring to the decision of the Board of United States General Appraisers G.
A. 5645 of April 14, 1904 (T. D. 25211), wherein is held that certain so-called rooted rose cuttings are not dutiable as rose plants at 2½ cents each in paragraph 252 of the tariff act of July 24, 1897, but should be classified as cuttings of plants commonly known as nursery or greenhouse stock at twenty-five per cent ad valorem under the same paragraph, Assistant Secretary Armstrong states that the Treasury Department does not concur in the conclusions reached by the Board of United States General Appraisers in this case. As the record presented in this case is not very satisfactory, no appeal has been directed from the decision of the board therein. The collector of customs at Buffalo, N. Y., is instructed, however, not to apply the said decision to any other importations at that port, it being the desire of the Treasury Department to prepare a new case for the consideration of the Board of United States General Appraisers, which will more fully present the issue.

New Orleans, La.

The last meeting of the New Orleans Horticultural Society was made interesting by an exhibit of plants. Prizes will be offered hereafter frequently. The first prize was awarded to E. Valdejo for glox-inia. The second prize was divided between Abele Brothers, exhibiting glox-inia, and R. Eichling and U. J. Virgin, for orchids, lily of the valley and Lilium longiflorum. Paul Abele, of Abele Brothers, tendered an invitation to the society to gather at his home next Sunday and partake of a farewell dinner before his departure to visit Europe and the principal cities of America. A letter from Dan Newsham in St. Louis was read. He said the Louisiana plant exhibits compare favorably with those of any other state and reflect credit on the New Orleans florists.

Business is now slow enough to give everybody a chance of repairing and building. E. Valdejo is erecting a small, fancy greenhouse in front of his place. It is intended for a sample room where his customers may select specimens without going all the way around his large houses.

M. Cook & Son have several varieties of chrysanthemums planted out which will be finished under glass at the proper time.

PASSENGER STEAMSHIP MOVEMENTS.

The tables herewith give the scheduled time of departure of ocean steamships carrying first-class passengers from the principal American and foreign ports, covering the space of two weeks from date of this issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST. Much disappointment often results from attempts to forward flowers for steamer delivery by express, to the care of the ship's steward or otherwise. The carriers of these packages are not infrequently refused admission on board and even those delivered on board are not always certain to reach the parties for whom they were intended. Hence florists in interior cities having orders for the delivery of flowers to passengers on out-going steamers are advised to entrust the filling of such orders to some reliable florist in the port of departure, who understands the necessary details and formalities and has the facilities for attending to it properly. For the addresses of such firms we refer our readers to the advertisements on this page:

The Seed Trade.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

S. F. Willard, Pres.; J. Chas. McCullough, First Vice-Pres.; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Sec'y and Treas.
Twenty-second annual convention, St. Louis, Mo., June 21-23, 1904.

WISCONSIN growers report a good stand of seed peas. Beans will be planted next week.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE reports Pride of the North seed corn selling freely at $1.85 to $2.

SPECIAL contract prices are now being issued by some western growers direct to the canning and pickle trade.

WATERLOO, NEB.—J. C. Robinson has been nominated republican presidential elector from Douglas county.

THERE is every reason to anticipate a big seed trade convention at St. Louis. The city is centrally located and the fair is a grand one.

JEFFERSON PARK, ILL.—Knud Gundestrop, for four years with Vaughan's Seed Store, succeeds P. F. Thomsen in the seed business here.

FREE seed testing is done at the seed laboratory of the Department of Agriculture. A leaflet detailing conditions can be had on request.

SAN JOSE, CAL.—Charles P. Braslan has been elected delegate from California to the republican national convention to be held at Chicago next month.

ALFALFA seed and its adulterants are well described in Farmers' Bulletin No. 194, just issued by the Department of Agriculture. Seedsmen should write for it.

MEMBERS of the trade intending to attend the St. Louis convention should engage hotel accommodations now. Inquire of Secretary Kendel or any of the St. Louis seedsmen.

FOUR recent protests against assessment of duty on canary seed have been overruled by the Board of General Appraisers of the Treasury Department—numbers 1349 to 1352.

WE need for our files a copy of the annual report of the American Seed Trade Association for 1890 and anyone having a copy to spare will oblige by communicating with this office.

THE American Mushroom Company, of St. Louis, which recently advertised in our columns, we have every reason to believe is quite reliable. Another concern with this title was declared fraudulent by the postoffice authorities and this led to some confusion. Our advertiser has now changed its firm name to the Pure Culture Spawn Company and its new advertisement will be found elsewhere in this issue.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.—Formal transfer of the big seed and plant establishment of L. Templin & Sons, located at Calla, Green township, to the Templin company, was made May 19. The transfer involves 32.53 acres, together with all other property owned by the old company of every kind. The grantors are Richard L. Templin, Mary E. Templin, Mark B. Templin, M. Alice Templin, Wilbur W. Templin and Elsie J. Templin, and the deed is given as a result of the recent reorganization of the company following the retirement of Richard L. Templin and his son, Wilbur W. Templin, who are to engage in business in Detroit.

To Destroy Ivy and Mustard.

It has now been demonstrated that ground ivy and mustard can be destroyed through sprinkling with a solution of copperas (sulphate of iron), and that cereals are not injured by it.

Bulbs Held to be Roots.

In a protest of Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne against the assessment of duty by the collector of customs at the port of New York, May 16, 1904, it was held that bulbs are roots within the meaning of paragraph 640, tariff act of 1897, which exempts from duty "roots * * * imported by the Department of Agriculture or the United States Botanic Garden." Evidently the foreign dealer can sell to Uncle Sam at a price twenty-five per cent lower than the home trade.

San Francisco.

Henry W. Wood, of T. W. Wood & Sons, Richmond, Va., left for northern points, via Portland, May 21. He has been on the coast a couple of weeks visiting the several seed farms and his other interests in this district.

Thos. A. Cox, of the Cox Seed Company, is now on his way to eastern points and will take in the convention of the American Seed Trade Association at St. Louis next month.

Chas. P. Braslan returned from the pea districts in Washington state May 20, where he was inspecting culinary peas in that section.

Lester L. Morse will sail for Europe on the S. S. Lucania, July 2.

Department of Agriculture Seed Purchases.

In an interview Dr. Galloway, of the United States Agricultural Department, stated that: "We go into the open market and buy our seeds just as any seedsmen would do. We aim to relieve the market of surplus seed, but it must be good seed. We test it at our trial grounds and if it is not good we send it back. Bids are not advertised for or received. The huying is done by men of business qualifications."

In answer to a request for the names of men from whom seed was purchased, Dr. Galloway stated that he could not give their names. S. E.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

N. W. Hale, Knoxville, Tenn., Pres.; Frank A. Weber, St. Louis, Mo., Vice-Pres.; George C. Seager, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.
Twenty-ninth annual convention, Atlanta, Ga., June 22-24, 1904.

ACCORDING to a report relative to the Adirondack forests issued by the Department of Agriculture it appears that fires in the woods in that region last year destroyed $3,500,000 worth of property. The charge is made that, because of the system in force of paying fire wardens only for actual time spent in fighting fires, much of the loss may be attributed to incendiarism. If this be true it is time the manner of paying for such services was radically changed and a severe penalty prescribed for those found guilty of such a dastardly crime.

Cornell School of Landscape Gardening.

Professor Bailey, of the Cornell College of Agriculture, announces that the college will add to its curriculum a school of landscape gardening. The recent appropriation of $250,000 made by the state has enabled the college to branch out in this direction. The school of landscape work will be started with the city of Ithaca as the laboratory in which the students will work. One of Professor Bailey's schemes is to induce the city of Ithaca to give one street to the college for experiment. This thoroughfare the college will beautify and develop in a systematic manner as an example of what may be done by scientific landscape work.

The low swamp lands at this end of Lake Cayuga have always been unsightly and a menace to health. These Professor Bailey proposes to convert into a park system as soon as the present plans for lowering the lake level mature. Professor Bailey asserts that when the plans of the college are carried out it will be the garden city of America. The university has also bought two farms which later will be transformed into parks.

Cincinnati Parks.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—In your Cincinnati notes of May 14 the following appears,

The daily press in the past year has been printing some glowing articles about expending $1,000,000 for public parks, but up to the present time it is all talk and no action. We hope our city fathers will get busy in the near future and spend some of the taxpayers' money for this purpose.

Your correspondent, "A. O.," either does not know what he is writing about or has very little regard for the truth. The fact of the matter is this: Five hundred thousand dollars' worth of bonds are now being advertised for the purpose of purchasing 700 different pieces of property which are in process of condemnation by the city for the downtown parks. The necessary legislation for the same has all been passed by the council of the city, and property holders have been notified that the property is to be taken for park purposes, and, as before stated, the auditor is now advertising for the first one-half million dollars to be used for the purpose of paying for same.

The matter of buying $1,000,000 worth of parks and condemning over 700 different pieces of property for the purpose is not a matter of boy's play, but within twelve months this property will be in the possession of the city.

B. P. CRITCHELL,
Superintendent of Parks.

Winter's Effect on Trees and Shrubs.

AT CHICAGO.

The last winter, although a very severe one, did less damage to trees, shrubs and other vegetation in this vicinity than one would suppose. The lilacs are much finer this spring than they have been for several years. Both the white and pink varieties are loaded with bloom. Viburnums, barberries and weigelas are also very thrifty. All shrubs, in fact, are in excellent condition.

Among the trees the healthy ones are leafing out vigorously, but many of those which were in a sickly state last fall failed to survive the winter. Especially is this true of the negundo and elm. The robinias while apparently not in the least injured are coming out much later than usual. I have looked over much material that was planted last fall and on the whole have no comment to make other than that the plants wintered in good condition.

Some Akebia quinata plants planted out last spring, which are usually injured more or less in winter, are green this spring to the very tops of the vines. Altheas in unsheltered positions are severely injured, while deutzias (usually quite tender here) came out beautifully. With the hardy roses, while they were frozen down much lower than usual, after having been severely pruned they are doing very nicely and give promise of an abundance of bloom. I have observed, however, that the moss varieties are badly injured.

As far as I can observe the condition of the herbaceous and perennial plants is good. All of the peonies I have seen this spring have an unusual supply of buds. Pentstemons, gypsophilas, delphiniums, dianthus, aconitums and in fact all plants of this character are none the worse for having passed through the ordeal. As most of my observations have been confined to plants growing on drained land I may, perhaps, be too optimistic as to the general effect of the winter on vegetation. It may be that many things suffered badly with some of the nurserymen who had trees and shrubs growing on low and undrained land, as the frost went down very deep (three and one-half feet in places) and its action on the roots must have done much harm in such situations.

Many old established lawns have great patches of dead turf in them and the newer ones that were made by sowing last spring and fall are in many places entirely killed and it will be necessary to make them over. This spring has been so dry and cold that early sown grass seed could not germinate, hence additional seed is needed. I do not know the condition of the grass seed market, but I believe the demand for lawn seed must have almost doubled this spring. All weeds, such as plantains, dandelions, burdocks, door-yard weeds, thistles, etc., are very much in evidence. I have never seen so many really healthy weeds as we are pestered with in lawns this spring, especially dandelions. It would be a difficult matter to find a lawn about Chicago entirely free from them. The demands for top-dressing and black soil have kept the contractors in this line very busy filling the many orders.

THE BEST ADIANTUM EVER INTRODUCED TO THE FLORISTS' TRADE.

Introducer's Description A free grower, the darkest green of the Adiantum family and longest stemmed. It has also the most graceful foliage; the average length of the fronds measuring 30 inches. It is by far the best keeper. Cut fronds can be kept fresh several weeks in a cool place. It is also one of the best ferns for a dwelling house. I have given presents of this fern to several Utica friends, and from my own observation, note it grows better than the Boston fern. I gave up rose cultivation some ten months ago in order to devote all my attention to fern cultivation for cut fronds. I find from the same amount of bench room this fern pays me $1.50 to every $1.00 obtained from roses.

PETER CROWE.

What Other People Say About It.

BUFFALO BOTANICAL GARDENS, Buffalo, N. Y.

"We are very much pleased with the Adiantum Croweanum you sent us, and thank you very much. Aside from its great value as a cut fern, it proves to be admirable as a decorative plant. And as a keeper, I do not know its equal."

ALEXANDER MONTGOMERY, Natick, Mass.

"I am very pleased to hear that you have decided to put plants of your fern Adiantum Croweanum on the market. I have always been more or less interested in it, as I understand it originated from some plants of Adiantum cuneatum that I sold you at Waban Conservatories in the early 80's. I remember the circumstances very well, as I sold the balance of our stock to Robert Craig, in 1890.

"Wishing you every success with it."

JOHN I. RAYNOR, New York City, N. Y.

"During the two years in which I have had the sale of the fronds of Adiantum Croweanum in New York City, the demand has at all times far exceeded the quantity you have been able to supply me with, at $1.50 per 100, while ordinary cuneatum has been, as a rule, in over-supply at half that price.

"It is without question the best fern for cut fronds ever seen in this market."

SAMUEL S. PENNOCK, Philadelphia, Pa.

"I consider your Adiantum Croweanum a very valuable acquisition to this line of ferns. It is an excellent commercial variety, a good keeper, and has given the best satisfaction wherever we have sold it. Our customers much prefer paying an extra price for it than buying the commoner varieties. The great trouble we find is we cannot get enough to meet our customers' wants."

A GREAT ACQUISITION. The best of all ferns for cut fronds. Brings the highest prices. The easiest to grow and the easiest to sell. Has received the highest encomiums from the leading cut flower dealers in the country. Buy now. Buy liberally and reap the benefits.

ADIANTUM CROWEANUM originated at Utica, N. Y., about fourteen years ago, and has been extensively grown by the original owner, Mr. Crowe, who has received phenomenal prices for the cut fronds in the New York and other markets and has created a great demand for it.

The fronds are long, elegantly proportioned and of a texture that renders it the best keeper and shipper of all Adiantums. It is a very free and continuous grower, requires no rest and responds readily to fertilizers. Anyone can grow it, and get good money for it.

Will be ready to ship JULY 1st, 1904, out of 3-inch pots, strong plants at the following prices: $5.00 per dozen; $35.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000. 25 at 100 rate; 250 at 1000 rate.

Rufus K. Abbott, one of the young old-time florists of New York, who has been in the business for thirty-one years, has opened an attractive retail establishment on Main street at the head of Wesley lake. The store has been fitted up very attractively with mirrors, tables and decorations, and a $200 cold storage showcase has been installed. For the past four years Mr. Abbott has been connected with the Ralston establishment in this city, and was previously engaged in the business in New York. Mr. Abbott distinctly remembers when there were but two wholesalers in the latter city, and has seen the business steadily attain to its present enormous proportions. We wish him every success in his new venture.

American Beauties

Yes, we have the plants you want. We don't run a "Beauty Factory" but we have about 40,000 feet of glass devoted to them and we have men who understand propagating and growing them. We haven't a lot of cull stock we wish to dump. But we have a clean healthy lot of plants which we are offering at very low prices. We intend to establish a reputation on our goods and want your order. The goods are right—but if you don't think so, return them and you can have your money back. Send a dollar for samples if you are dubious. 3-inch, $6.00 per 100; $55.00 per 1000. 4-inch, $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Orders for funeral work and decorations of all kinds are being received in goodly number. On Monday evening the Kingdom-Courtenay Stock Company opened its summer season in Harmanus Blecker hall. Whittle Brothers received orders for decorating the corridors and stage besides individual orders for bouquets for the leading members of the company. On Wednesday noon Eyres supplied very pretty decorations at the Ten Eyck hotel for the luncheon given by the alumnae of the Female Academy. Bridesmaids and white lilacs were used to set off twenty-six tables.

The funeral of H. T. Martin on Wednesday of last week was the occasion of an order by cable to Eyres from Bradley Martin, his brother of London, England, for a wreath of orchids. A similar order was received from Mrs. Martin's daughter, Mrs. B. B. McAlpin, of New York, for a wreath of lily of the valley and orchids.

A number of luncheons were also given the same week by Mrs. Anthony N. Brady, Judge Andrew Hamilton and other society people. R. D.

The W. T. BUCKLEY PLANT CO., SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Kansas City, Mo.

The last three weeks in this market have been dull, the supply slightly overbalancing the demand. A backward spring has been of material help to indoor grown stock. Prices rule about the same as quoted in Chicago. Growers of bedding stock complain of the late season. Orders have accumulated and only within last week have they been able to move this stock. School commencements begin next week and a heavy demand for cut flowers is expected. Memorial day should create a large sale at least for the cheaper grades of stock. Peonies will just about make it. Green stock is more plentiful, relieving many of us of that $4 per 1000 worry.

The W. L. Rock Flower Company is building an addition of 6,000 feet this spring for American Beauty. The firm suffered a loss May 1, when a dam washed out during a heavy rain, the damage amounting to several hundred dollars. Water will be obtained from the city as soon as a line can be extended, the distance to be covered being about 1,800 feet.

Street fakirs are busy. A few claim they are handling more stock than all the downtown stores combined. They are at least a thorn to the department stores.

It has been definitely decided by the Board of Directors of Convention hall that there will be no flower show in Kansas City this fall.

Lawrence Schwager, of Grand avenue, has vacated his store as the building is to be torn down. He will not start again until fall.

The Union Depot Cut Flower Company has opened a branch store at 1009 Walnut street. Mr. Freidenthal is in charge.

W. J. Barnes suffered a considerable loss by hail the early part of this month.

Brown & Son are contemplating an addition to their plant at Maywood.

AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY,

324 Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

Rock Island, Ill.

The regular monthly meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held the evening of May 12 at the Turner hall, Rock Island. It was a stormy night but the members were on hand in full force. The weather was soon forgotten in listening to a very interesting essay on "Chrysanthemums," prepared and read by Harry Bills, of the Bills Floral Company, of Davenport. A discussion followed as to which was the best way to produce the finest pot chrysanthemums, to grow them inside all summer or to grow them outside in the hot months. The majority of the members favored growing them outside in June, July and August, claiming those grown outside were by far more hardy, and finer looking than those grown under glass all summer. Harry Bills was tendered a vote of thanks by the club for his splendid paper. The club accepted the invitation of Wm. Kness, of Moline, to hold the next regular meeting at his place of business on South Fifteenth street.

After the business session the members enjoyed several hours smoking and telling stories. Harry Bills told of a certain lady that came to his greenhouses and wanted to buy a specimen plant. He showed her all the finest specimen plants on the place, ranging in price from $2.50 to $10. Then she said she did not like to go quite that high, but would not mind spending about 25 cents.

At the next meeting Otto Klingbiel will read a paper on "Greenhouse Construction," and Henry Gaethje, Sr., will read one on "Pot Plants."

Henry Gaethje is making many improvements on his place this spring, among them being a brick smoke stack and a large water tank. TED.

Pueblo, Col.

Pueblo was visited May 20 by the fiercest hailstorm in the history of this section. Every greenhouse was wrecked. G. Fleischer lost the heaviest as his stock and glass were almost totally destroyed. Zimmermann, Mrs. Ida Latshaw and Wallace & McMurray suffered also. Hail stones were picked up which weighed twelve and one-half ounces and some measured an even twelve inches in circumference.

G. Fleischer has opened a new store at 216 Main street, with S. R. Lundy in charge. Trade is only fair. S. R. L.

IRON GREENHOUSES.

The Duplex Cutter and The Duplex Eaves have solved the question of how to build up-to-date greenhouses as durable as the iron frame greenhouses at high prices, and nearly as cheap as wooden houses. See the cut that represents the new Duplex Eaves, the most durable, strongest and simplest to erect. Any common laborer can set them as perfect as an expert mechanic. It is perfection in construction. No ice or snow to darken your houses when light means money. Positively no shade from the Duplex Eaves, costs only about $2.00 per foot, including Duplex Gutters and Eaves, Iron Posts for Gutters, Iron Purlines with Posts, Tees and Floor Plates, Center Posts with Plates and Bases. Standard Ventilating Machines, complete with double strong Pipe, Cypress Sash Bars and Ventilating Sash. Investigate the proposition and convince yourself of the fact. Also note the simplest steam return Trap made; just what a Florist needs, and a coal dealer condemns. Catalogues and circulars free.

"Gurney" Heaters

"BRIGHT IDEA," "DORIC" and "400 SERIES" do the same thing for your hothouse: THEY GUARANTEE THE CROP. First of all they save 20 per cent on the coal bill and so keep expense at a minimum. Next, they produce an even heat and so do not imperil the life of the plant. Next, they are simple to operate and so require least attention. Lastly, they wear longer than others and thus perceptibly reduce the capital invested. Don't buy or exchange until you've investigated them.

PALMS AND FERNS.

Spring Work.

The latter part of May and the month of June usually bring hot and drying weather, there being frequently brisk winds during the day and comparatively little dew at night. This weather makes necessary an extra amount of moisture in the palm houses, not only at the roots of the plants, but also in the form of vigorous syringing overhead, and it is sometimes needful to water twice a day, especially those plants that are much root-bound. A dry atmosphere favors the spread of thrips, the small yellow variety of which is quite troublesome in both kentias and arecas at times. This is not an easy insect to dispose of, from the fact that fumigation often makes the insect drop from the leaf to the ground beneath, where it seems to remain until the vapor clears away and then climbs up to resume business at the old stand. Vaporizing nicotine or fumigating with aphid punk is the most effectual method of treating this insect, though sometimes several applications may be required in order to eradicate the pest. The mealy bug also hatches out a fresh brood in May, and at that time will spread with wonderful rapidity, but the nicotine preparations may also be used successfully in fighting this insect, though the aphid punk may safely and profitably be used much stronger in the palm house than among soft foliated plants. It is quite probable that these preparations also have some effect upon the young scale insects during the brief period that the young insects are moving about the leaf upon which they finally settle down and form a scale, but the full-grown insect, when protected by its scaly habitation, is not effected by nicotine vapor or any other that is non-injurious to the plant itself.

We have noted before the advisability of giving all palms a thorough cleaning before the spring potting, for a stock of palms that is absolutely clean is less common than one is led to believe, but in the rush of spring work some plants may have been neglected, and in such a case there is no time like the present, for the insects they make wonderful progress during these warm summer days. Artificial heat may usually be dispensed with before June 1 unless it may be in areca houses, the latter being usually the last in which the heat is continued, but this has been quite a backward spring in most portions of our country, and so long as the outside temperature drops to nearly 50° at night it is far safer to continue a little heat in the pipes, thus giving the newly potted stock a chance to become established.

Cocos Weddelliana is another palm that enjoys warmth and moisture, and this should be remembered in the arrangement of the stock by placing the cocoses and arecas together rather than to put them with the kentias and latanias, both of the latter requiring a lower temperature and more ventilation than is absolutely necessary for the cocos. Where one has to grow the various species all together in one house there is naturally no room for these fine distinctions, and in consequence the grower handling enough of any one species to fill an entire house or houses has some advantage in treating the plants.

Palms for vases and other outdoor decorations for example, on porches or steps, are frequently called for at this season, this custom having grown to quite a large extent in some of our cities, and the two species that are most satisfactory among our common palms are Phoenix Canariensis and Latania Borbonica, both these palms enduring sun and wind without much injury provided that they are given plenty of water.

When placing large palms outdoors for lawn decoration it is preferable to sink the pots or tubs in the ground and to cover the surface of the soil either with manure or moss as a top dressing, thus protecting the roots from the burning rays of the sun, it being also understood that the plants have been gradually inured to the sun before being given full exposure. A plant that has been grown in a warm and shaded house is sure to suffer from the full sunshine unless gradually hardened off, and it is an unwise proceeding to put out such stock to be used for lawn decoration.

Chamærops humilis and C. excelsa, and also Corypha australis, may be safely recommended for the outdoor garden during the summer, all these well known species belonging to the fan-leaved section of palms, and all having very tough foliage that is capable of withstanding the wind and sun after having been properly grown in a light and airy house. It will be remembered that Chamærops humilis is considered to be the most northern of palms, being found in southern Europe and also in northern Africa, and stands the winter in some of the southern portions of England. Ptychosperma Alexandræ and Seafordia elegans are also used for outdoor gardening at times, but are liable to have their leaflets broken when placed in a location that is fully exposed to the wind, and if one has plants in suitable size and condition of Kentia Forsteriana it would be not only more satisfactory, but also more ornamental than either of the ptychospermas. There are also two sturdy fan-leaved palms from the islands off the coast of southern California in the form of the erytheas, both E. armata and E. edulis, being quite ornamental dwarf palms, though seldom found in commercial collections, possibly owing to their comparatively slow growth while young rather than to any difficulty in getting seeds of these palms, for the erytheas produce seeds in great abundance in the gardens of southern California. But whatever be the species of palms that are placed outdoors for the summer, the need of regular and copious supplies of water must always be kept in mind, for without attention in this particular the plants will soon go backward.

Many of our common ferns may also be planted out in shaded and sheltered places for the summer, and will add much to the beauty and variety of the garden, among those that are especially happy under such conditions being the Boston fern, that generally useful plant, one of the ways in which to use it having been noted last summer in the form of a large circular bed filled solidly with the Boston fern and edged with a line of Mme. Salleroi geranium. This bed was placed in front of a large public institution in Philadelphia, where the plants were exposed to the morning sun, but were shaded by a large building from the rays of the afternoon sun, and under these conditions the ferns flourished and grew luxuriantly.

Some of the strong growing perises, such as P. tremula and P. argyræa may also be used to advantage outdoors, as may Dicksonia Antarctica, several of the woodwardias and polypodiums, and some of the nephrodiums. Cyrtomium falcatum is also nearly hardy and would add much to the beauty of a bed of rockery filled with ferns. Some of these unusual effects in the outdoor garden are likely to be looked for more in the future as the taste for gardening grows, for a growing condition surely exists, and while a well filled bed of geraniums is admirable for certain locations, there may be found other places in which a fern bed may be just the right note in the landscape harmony. W. H. TAPLIN.

THE CARNATION.

Care of Plants in Field.

Now that the young carnations are all planted in the field our work is transferred from the greenhouse to the outside. The principal thing for a few weeks now is to keep the weeds down, see that the plants are properly topped back as they require it and keep the cultivator going. I have heard the question brought up on several occasions as to the policy of watering the carnations while planted in the field. This question, to my mind, must be governed entirely by the nature of the land. My personal experience is that the fewer waterings by hand the plants get while outside the better are the results after they are taken into the greenhouse and they are less liable to stem rot. Watering the plants in the field can be avoided to a great extent by keeping the cultivator going frequently. During a continued dry spell cultivate about every week and after a good rain as soon as it is possible to work the land.

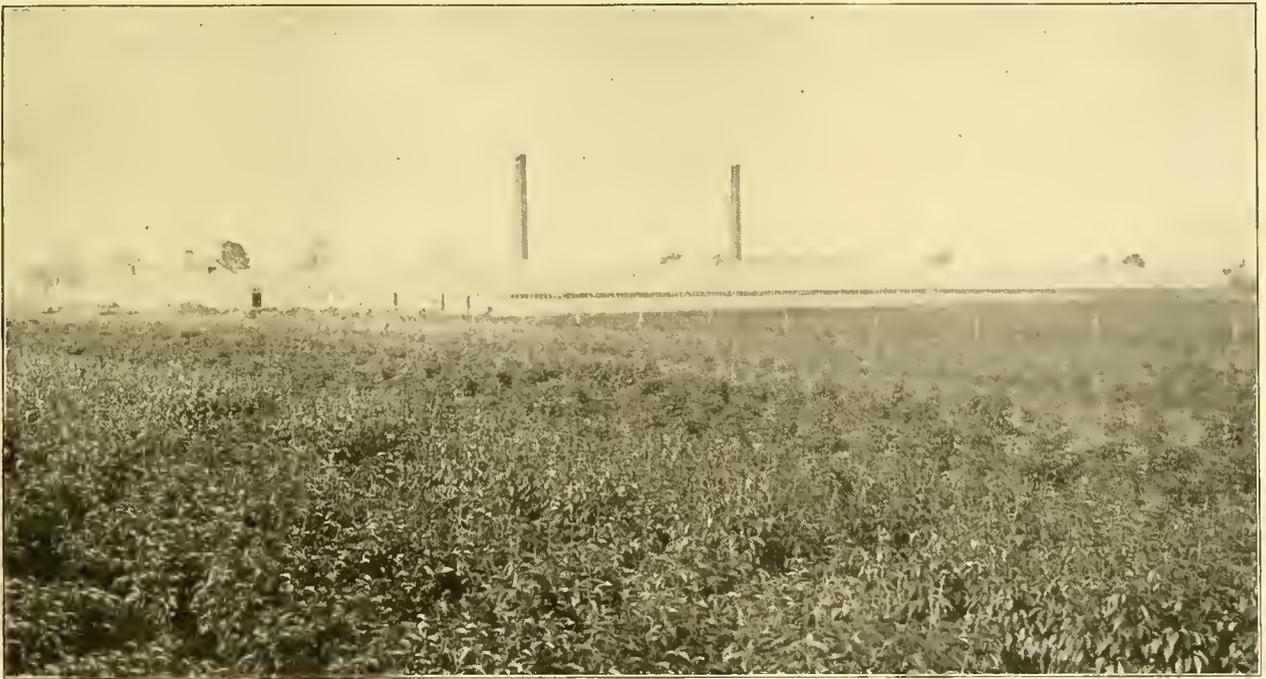

By this time the plants that were set out three or four weeks ago will have got well hold of the soil and must be kept topped back. They quickly commence to throw up blooming shoots if not attended to in time. After the main shoot has been topped the plant will very soon begin to branch out. These branches must be pinched back as soon as they get large enough to handle properly. The stock being held for indoor culture should be planted in the benches as quickly as the houses become vacant, especially all plants that are becoming at all root bound in the pots. These should receive the first attention, because if allowed to remain long in the pots after the plant is root bound they will very soon show signs of suffering. You should clean the house thoroughly both on top and under the benches, clearing away every particle of rubbish, making sure that your benches are all right in drainage, bearing in mind that the plants will occupy them for a year or more. After clearing away all the rubbish give the inside of the benches a thorough washing out with the hose and then apply a good strong lime wash. They will then be ready for the soil.

The compost for these indoor plants having been prepared some weeks back it should now be thoroughly mixed together and got into as fine a condition as is possible to make it. Then it is ready for the benches. Fill in the soil even to the top of the bench but do not tramp or firm it beyond what is necessary in the operation of filling. While setting the plants the surface of the beds should be made as even as possible. It then is ready for planting. If your plants are good, healthy stock out of 3, 3½ or 4-inch pots they should be planted 10x12 inches apart. If smaller, or of varieties that only make a small plant, 10x10 inches apart will do. Knock the plants out of the pots and place them in trays and if any are found to be dry water them, allowing a little while for them to drain before planting. Take your plant, loosen the soil a little at the bottom of the ball and remove a little of the surface at the base of the plant. Do not throw this on the beds but have a box or basket handy to receive it. Care must be taken not to plant too deep, only enough to cover properly the ball of the plant.

After the bench is planted, water around each plant only until the plants get a thorough root hold of the soil; do not apply water in such quantities as you would when planting a bench of field grown plants because there is a big difference between a plant out of a pot with a ball of well established roots and a field grown plant with its roots disturbed and very little soil on them. At the same time it is necessary that the water shall penetrate clear down so that the roots get the full benefit of it, to guard against the top roots being wet and the lower ones dry. Do not shade the glass at all but let them have the full benefit of the sun, also keep the ventilators wide open at all times excepting in case of storms or heavy rains.

C. W. JOHNSON.

The "Sleepy" Enchantress.

Referring to the remarks of F. M. Schulz in the last issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST in regard to the propensity of Enchantress to go to sleep and fade quickly, we have no doubt that his success is largely due to the fact that he feeds his plants little or not at all. Light pink varieties generally, especially those with a fleshy growth, seem to find the necessary elements to sustain a normal growth in a soil much poorer than would be required by some varieties. A case in our own experience this winter has fully demonstrated to us that Enchantress succeeds best in a soil not overly rich and that it wants very little additional feeding, especially during the dark months.

Last December we had occasion to lift a batch of plants from one house and transfer them to another, planting them into old rose soil that had done service for two years. There was no fertilizer of any kind added and no extra feeding was done later. These plants have since produced an enormous crop of high grade blooms, with keeping qualities second to no carnations that we have ever grown. The old variety Daybreak was much on the same order and never did succeed well with growers who fed heavily, and the fact that it held out so long with some of the smaller and less intensive cultivators of carnations has always been held by the writer to be due in part to a less liberal use of concentrated fertilizers than is generally the case with larger growers.

The needs of each variety in this and other respects may well be made a study and a subject of experimentation. For often a variety is condemned by some reputable grower as worthless, just because the crop turned out indifferently. This often happens where the whole lot is grown under the same conditions. Dividing a variety into two lots and giving them opposite treatments would, I venture to say, lessen the risk of a failure by at least seventy-five per cent, for then it would be a matter of but a short time to determine its needs and run the whole lot accordingly. Referring again to Enchantress, there can be little doubt that the reputation which it has established almost everywhere as an exceptionally fine variety will be made good wherever it may not have shown up at its best during the past season, when its needs are better understood. We find it an easy variety to handle in every way, except that overfeeding must be carefully guarded against.

ARMIN J. BAUR.

Hail.

M. D. Hoagland of Pueblo, Col., is one of the lucky florists of the country. He became a member of the Florists' Hail Association on May 16, taking out a double insurance on his glass. On May 20 he sustained a total loss, which has been adjusted and paid by the Florists' Hail Association.

Elwanger & Barry, of Rochester, N. Y., sustained a severe loss by hail on the 25th inst. They were insured.

The most destructive hail storm of 1904 wrecked every greenhouse in Pueblo, Col., May 20. Nearly every florist in that city carried double insurance.

Howard P. Kleinbans of Easton, Pa., lost 450 feet of double thick glass by hail May 19. The lost was covered by insurance.

WITH THE GROWERS

Peter Weiland, New Castle, Ind.

Peter Weiland has purchased Peter Reinberg's interest in the Reinberg & Weiland greenhouses at New Castle, Ind., and received full control on June 1. On that date Mr. Weiland opened a wholesale store at 128 East Third street, Cincinnati, O. He has placed the greenhouses in charge of the foreman, Peter Herrens, and moved to Cincinnati himself to conduct the store.

The houses, of which there are ten, cover a space of 90,000 square feet. They are planted with 18,000 American Beauty rose plants, 10,000 Bride and 10,000 Bridesmaid, with three benches of Asparagus plumosus, one bench of A. Sprengeri and one bench of sweet peas. There is also a field of peonies covering four acres from which Mr. Weiland can pick 40,000 to 50,000 blossoms.

He will plant two houses next season in carnations, two benches in smilax and the same number in asparagus as last season, leaving the rest of the room for roses. He will handle the cut from these houses at Cincinnati and has been promised shipments from other points if he is successful in handling his own. Cincinnati ought to prove a good shipping point, especially for Ohio and Kentucky. He was told by other wholesalers that it would. They said they had the carnations but not the roses. He is cutting now from 5,000 to 6,000 roses a day.

Shipments will leave daily from New Castle at 3:10 a. m., arriving at Cincinnati at 6 a. m. They will then be placed in water in the ice box and be ready for reshipment the next morning.

The illustrations show the greenhouses of Mr. Weiland and the field of peonies. The inside view is of a house of American Beauty roses which were dried down in February and started March 1.

PENSACOLA, FLA.—Miss Violet Moreno is seriously ill.

Decoration Day at National Capital.

How sleep the brave who sink to rest
By all their country's wishes blest?
When Spring, with dewy fingers cold,
Returns to deck their hallowed mold,
She there shall dress a sweeter sod
Than Fancy's feet have ever trod.

By fairy fingers their knell is rung,
By forms unseen, their dirge is sung;
Then Honor comes, a pilgrim gray,
To bless the spot that holds their clay,
And Freedom shall awhile repair
To dwell a weeping hermit there.

The Decoration day services at the national cemeteries were elaborate in conception and detail. Aside from the ceremonies on the day itself there were a number of very interesting observances connected with and breathing the spirit of the occasion. The most notable of these was on Saturday, May 28, when the members of U. S. Grant circle No. 1, Ladies of the G. A. R. laid a handsome wreath of flowers on the pedestal of Gen. Grant's statue in the rotunda of the capitol.

The greatest interest naturally centered in the Arlington national cemetery.

That beautiful yet mournful expanse of woodland and greensward, with its acres of graves and thousands of monuments, was, for the time being made ten times more beautiful by the profusion of the floral tributes of affection. Illustrations are herewith given of some of the most notable decorations. At the monument to the Unknown Dead, and at the graves of Generals Sheridan and McCook there were beautiful wreaths from President Roosevelt. At the first mentioned, there was also a beautiful wreath of pink and white roses given by Capt. Archibald Mc-Burt, U. S. A. There is a pathetic interest in this monument as beneath it repose the bones of two thousand one hundred and eleven unknown soldiers, gathered after the war. At the Sheridan monument the Loyal Legion decorated with a large pennant of immortelles over which was a bunch of American Beauty roses. Phil. Sheridan Post No. 14 G. A. R. also decorated with a star and crescent of immortelles surmounted by the G. A. R. emblem. There were likewise several fine wreaths of fresh flowers. On every grave was a decoration of some kind as well as the miniature flag, and the graves of many private soldiers were literally covered with blossoms.

At the National Soldiers' Home cemetery, the most notable decoration was at the tomb of Gen. John A. Logan. There was a wealth of wreaths and bouquets composed of the choicest seasonable flowers. At the Congressional cemetery the interesting ceremony was performed of strewing flowers on the water in memory of those who in defense of their country, met death on the sea. At each cemetery the order of the day was faithfully carried out. At Arlington Gen. John C. Black, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. was the orator of the day. But the great public is now to the fore on Memorial day. The gray haired father and mother, the brother and sister, the wife and husband have joined hands to make it a hallowed day. S. E.

Traveler's Notes.

There was an exceptionally heavy demand this year for bedding plants for Decoration day, especially for scarlet geraniums. At the auction sales in New York they brought as high as 10 and 12 cents each. At the Canal street flower market the growers were getting $1 to $1.25 per dozen, something like old-fashioned prices. Cannas and other things were also bringing good prices.

S. A. Nutt and Gen. Grant are still the leading scarlet geraniums. The demand for these varieties is something like 2 to 1. Nutt is the better of the two as a bedder. Many people still make the mistake of over-manuring their geranium beds. An over rich soil causes geraniums to make growth at the expense of flowers. The beds also should not be over-watered.

Tuberous begonias are excellent bedding plants. Plant them in a place where they are shaded from the direct sun from 10 a. m. until 2 p. m. Mulch the surface of the bed with such material as sphagnum moss and give a good watering every night.

Pansies have been a thing of beauty this spring and a joy up to the present time.

Ernest A. Lundgren, lately head gardener to Tranor L. Park at White Plains, N. Y., has been appointed superintendent on the estate of Louis Sterns, Tarrytown, N. Y., in place of R. Barton.

Mrs. Mooney, wife of Jos. Mooney, gardener to E. C. Moore, Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y., was removed to the hospital this week in a serious condition.

F. R. Pierson Company is having three more houses added to the American Beauty rose range at Scarborough, N. Y. They are being built by Pierson-Setton Company. They are of iron construction, built on the edge and farrow plan, all connected. Each house is 27x300 feet and 15 feet high at the ridge. There will be no benches. The roses will be planted on the ground, four beds in each house. The style of house is a new departure here. The same firm is building three similar houses on Law's estate at Briarcliffe, Ossining, N. Y. They will also be used for American Beauty roses, and will be handled in the same manner.

TRAVELER.

MT. CARMEL, ILL.—The Mt. Carmel Floral Company has sold its greenhouse plant on North Cherry street to Jacob Knupp, of Calera, Ala., for $4,000. Mr. Knupp will retain Mr. Hoffstedt to manage the business for him. He will enlarge the plant.

Market Gardening.

NEW HAMPTON, N. J.—Alonzo Bryan has built a new greenhouse to meet the increased demand for early vegetables.

NEWPORT, R. I.—The gardeners are thinning out their hot house grapes this week; the grapes have set especially well, and indications are for a large crop. Black Hamburgs and Muscat of Alexandria are the varieties grown here; it is hoped the fruit will sell at better prices than it did last year.

REFERRING to a note in a recent number of the AMERICAN FLORIST describing the method of heating a mushroom celler at Whitinsville, Mass., George McWilliam writes that the heating is done by hot water circulation on the same principle as ordinary greenhouse heating. The water is heated by an electric wire arrangement, a contrivance of Mr. McWilliam's own devising.

Ideal Vegetable House.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—What is the ideal house in which to grow a full line of early vegetable plants? Please give dimensions, the best heating and piping and the kind of benches. I want to grow at least 500,000 early cabbage and cauliflower plants and one to two million celery plants, beside pepper, eggplants and tomatoes in proportion. I expect to grow radishes and lettuce in the fall, but what could be grown in the summer? I would also build a propagating house for bedding plants and carnations. The thermometer can go 20° below zero. There are some trees for a wind-break some distance away.

L. M.

If the houses are to be used principally for the growing of plants, I would suggest that they be made either eighteen or twenty-seven feet wide. This will provide for side benches 3½ feet wide and center benches with a width of 7 feet. Glass would be desirable in the walls for two feet below the plate, in which case the posts should be five feet above ground. If glass is not used in the walls, a height of four feet will answer. The ridge should be six feet above the plate in the narrow house and eight in the wide one.

An excellent arrangement for a plant of this character is to have three houses 100 feet long, and if to be used in the winter for forcing vegetables they can be made with the gutters between the houses supported upon gas-pipe posts six feet high, with all of the benches, except those against the outer walls, seven feet wide. For holding the seed boxes, it will be well to use wooden benches 2½ feet high, but after the plants have been pricked out and have become established, they do very well upon solid beds either level with the walks or raised from six to twelve inches. These beds will also answer well for forcing vegetables.

In connection with such a house, there should be a range of hot-beds and cold frames occupying 1,000 feet, at least, in length. Houses such as described will give good results with bedding plants and carnations, and after the vegetable plants have been moved out in the spring they will answer well for cucumbers and tomatoes, which can be grown to a good size before they are planted out. Houses 18 feet wide can be heated by means of eight 4-inch pipes when a temperature of 50° is desired. For wider houses and when there is glass in the side walls a proportionate increase should be made. This of course is for hot water, which will be desirable for heating the houses unless a considerable increase is planned. Almost any of the castiron boilers will give good results, or if preferred a tubular steam boiler with large outlets may be used.

Piping Vegetable House.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—How many feet of 4-inch flue pipe will be required to heat a house 30x100 feet with hot water? The house is thirteen feet to the ridge and has 5-foot posts. The pipes are all to be under the benches. The house is for vegetables and the thermometer sometimes goes down to 10° below zero.

W. W. T.

As the question does not state the temperature desired in the house or the classes of vegetables that are to be grown, it is not possible to give a very definite reply to the question. It is stated that the house is to be heated with hot water and it is inferred that ordinary 4-inch heating-pipe is referred to. If a temperature of 50° will suffice, it can be secured with ten lines of pipe while twelve lines will answer for 60°. If the ends of the houses are exposed, it will be well to have the pipes extend for at least a part of the way across the ends.

World's Fair Notes.

Tuesday, May 31, was the fifth anniversary of the employment of Miss Gertrude Spaulding as chief clerk and assistant by Prof. Frederic W. Taylor, the chief of the departments of agriculture and horticulture, and the chiefs of the various divisions in those departments and the office force planned a complimentary lunch as a surprise for Prof. Taylor and Miss Spaulding for noon of that day. The tables were arranged in the form of a V. The principal decoration was a large V-shaped design in roses. As this was the wooden anniversary the place cards were of birch bark, and souvenirs in the form of Indian pipes for the gentlemen and bark canoes and paddles for the ladies were provided. Miss Spaulding was presented with a handsome vase of burnt wood and a mammoth pipe was given Prof. Taylor. Music was furnished by the Italian band of the International inn. An elaborate menu was provided, the materials of which were contributed by the exhibitors in the pure food department in testimony of their appreciation of the work of Prof. Taylor and Miss Spaulding.

The season has thus far been very favorable for the lawns seeded this spring, and a good catch has everywhere been secured. An excellent opportunity is afforded to study the various mixtures. Those seeded with blue grass and a small amount of white clover are looking especially well. Some of the plots upon which mixed lawn grass seed was used present a somewhat ragged appearance, owing to a rank growth of some of the coarser species. Where English rye grass was used alone the result thus far is very satisfactory.

The rose beds east of the Agriculture building, in which some 8,000 plants were set out in the spring of 1903, will soon be in full bloom. A large proportion of the plants were furnished by the Heikes Nursery Company, Huntsville, Ala. A bed of dwarf Crimson Rambler roses, which was planted this spring, is now in full bloom and is attracting much attention.

A carload of palms and ornamental plants has been received from Siebrecht & Son, New Rochelle, N. Y. They came through in excellent condition. The rhododendrons near the life-saving station from Siebrecht & Son are now in full bloom and have been greatly admired.

Several thousand nursery trees are being planted out west of the Horticulture building. The collection includes several hundred trees from Russia.

The planting of the floral clock is nearly completed. The center of the dial was filled with verbenas, of which some 3,000 plants were used. The figures for the hours are about ten feet in length and are made of Verschaffeltii coleus.

Several thousand cannas have been planted during the past week in the beds around the Horticulture building. All of these are of new and choice varieties, and they will make a very attractive exhibit.

The Missouri State Horticultural Society will hold its regular June meeting upon the Exposition grounds June 8 and 9.

Prof. John Craig, of Cornell University, is here for two weeks as one of the jury of awards in horticulture.

British Trade Topics.

The exhibition of the National Tulip Society in London this week was a striking success. The drill hall at Westminster—the temporary headquarters of the Royal Horticultural Society—was a blaze of color from end to end. Rectified, flamed, feathered and all other varieties of tulips from the dark plum tint to the flaming red and shimmering yellow made a brilliant display. An object lesson was afforded of the immense strides which have been made in tulip culture in Ireland in recent years. About eight years ago Messrs. Hogg & Robertson, nurserymen, of Dublin, commenced an experiment in bulb raising, and this proved so successful that they have now about twenty-five acres under cultivation. The sandy soil near the coast, a few miles from Dublin, has been found admirably suited for the work. The firm is now able to excel the Dutch growers in this particular branch. Alex. Dickson & Sons, of Belfast and Dublin, also made a meritorious display of tulips in all shades of popular tints. A grand display was likewise made by Barr & Sons, King street, Covent Garden, and Messrs. Bath, Ltd., of the Floral Farm, Wisbech, Cambs. The last named firm is famous for its bulbs. Ninety acres are devoted entirely to flowers, about half this area being used for narcissi and tulips. The floral covered fields have been an exquisite sight this spring. This year the firm is cultivating 600,000 tulips. The flowers are particularly intense in color, and this is attributed to the suitability of the soil and the use of soot as a dressing. The new varieties include Brunhilde (creamy white, flamed with yellow), Dusart (deep crimson scarlet), Maas (an early scarlet), Pink Beauty (pink, shaded white), Prince of Austria (orange scarlet) and Queen of the Netherlands (white suffused rose).

This week I had opportunity of chatting with Joseph Cheal, a member of the firm of Cheal & Sons, Lowfield, Sussex, who has just returned from a tour in Palestine and Syria. He had a pleasant time amongst the mountains of Lebanon and the various points of interest in the Holy Land. At Cairo Mr. Cheal visited a flower show, where he was able to compare eastern with western methods of horticulture. Mr. Cheal is a great believer in the advantage of travel in widening one's knowledge and outlook. About eighteen months ago he had a tour in America and Canada, paying particular attention to the horticultural features of these countries. His experiences have furnished material for interesting lantern lectures which have been given before various horticultural societies.

H. Cannell & Sons, of Swanley and Eynsford, have added to their acreage of nursery land by taking over a property in another part of Kent. With the exception of Mr. Paul, Henry Cannell, the head of the firm, is the oldest exhibitor amongst the trade. He is one of the select number who have been awarded the Victoria medal of honor founded by the Royal Horticultural Society. Mr. Cannell's name is associated with the cactus dahlias and cannas. In recent years he has sought to popularize the observance of "Arbor day" in this country. Some headway has been made with the movement at Eynsford.

The horticultural world has sustained a severe loss by the death of Hugh Dickson, of the Royal Nurseries, Belmont, Belfast. Mr. Dickson occupied a premier position as a rosarian. He brought out a new hybrid perpetual rose, named Hugh Dickson, which is a welcome addition to this numerous class. The cupped blooms are of a brilliant scarlet and open well in all weathers.

A special feature of cinerarias is made at the Farnham Royal Nurseries, Slough, belonging to J. James & Son. A gorgeous picture has been presented this spring with the rich array of tints. The firm has also a fine collection of stellata hybrids.

THE RETAIL TRADE

THE custom of wearing skin gloves of some kind when handling roses is becoming quite general with those working among cut flowers. The frequent cases of severe poisoning of late years has made this precaution necessary. The cause of the increase of such cases is attributed by some to the various chemical preparations now used as fertilizers or insecticides. Even as a matter of comfort some protection to the hands is desirable for the big roses of the present day with their enormous stems have thorns of proportionate size and viciousness.

Bridal Flowers.

Orange blossoms are not the flowers that all brides wear when approaching the nuptial altar. In different lands various posies are supposed to be of good omen when a maid is beginning her wedded life.

In Germany the bride wears myrtle.

In Italy, white roses.

Red roses and carnations crown the bride of Spain.

The bride of Greece wears vine leaves.

Crowns of silver deck the brides of Norway, Sweden and Servia.

In Bavaria and Silesia pearls, glass and gold wire are used.

Orange blossoms were worn by Saracen brides and since the time of the Crusades have been worn occasionally throughout Europe as the emblem of marriage. Finally French milliners introduced them definitely into the bridal outfit, and among French and English-speaking people the orange blossom has become almost symbolical of marriage.

A Floral Harp.

The illustration herewith shows a first prize floral design made by Frank Pelicano and exhibited at the flower show of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, held at San Francisco, May 12-14. A portrait of the artist will be found elsewhere in this issue. We consider the form of this design peculiarly appropriate for exhibition purposes.

Decoration day is over and market men are more than satisfied with the results. There was much room for improvement in some departments of the trade, however, last week. The week started with gloomy prospects, the market being crowded with a surfeit of poor stock made soft by the lazy weather, and southern stock was piling up at an amazing rate. The first four days in the week fell far short of the same period last year and dealers feared a general collapse for the entire holiday week. On Thursday, however, there was a change for the better. Stock shortened up perceptibly and shipping orders started to make an impression on the receipts. By Saturday night everything was well cleaned up, especially in roses and carnations. Sunday gave the growers an opportunity to cut and bring in more stock, and the market recovered again sufficiently and appeared Monday morning with all lines again well filled. The demand on Monday was strong, but there was then enough of everything, with the possible exception of good roses, to meet all calls. It is noteworthy that jasmine, which promised to count as an important factor this season, did not catch the public fancy with enough force to dispose of the heavy receipts in this line which were stored in many ice-boxes. Peonies had a remarkable run and there appeared to be plenty of them and of excellent quality. The rose situation was most deplorable in point of quality. Few good roses were to be had and wholesalers had a hard nut to crack when it came to filling their shipping orders with the stock called for. There can not help but be much dissatisfaction, but the local dealers were helpless. Not for many seasons have roses been in such a demoralized condition, among the ordinary grades, and instead of improving they appear to be growing worse. Carnations held up well, good stock selling at a good figure. There was little demand for outdoor valley, but this week there is noted a good run in these flowers. In point of totalsale values of this year's Decoration day business, it hardly averaged up with last year, although more stock was handled, both locally and in the shipping. It was a fine holiday business, taken all in all, and everyone is satisfied. This week there is a fair demand, especially in retail lines. June weddings and commencements are beginning to figure in the retailer's business, and they all report as much as they can conveniently handle.

The extensive stock and greenhouses of Albert Fuchs, on North Halsted street, will be sold at auction on June 15 and 16, between the hours of 2 and 5 p. m. The E. F. Winterson Company has assumed the sale and Ed Winterson will auctioneer the stock, assisted by John P. Degnan, of the same firm. The Fuchs stock is very extensive and embraces in many cases the largest and best stock of certain varieties of palms in the west. Mr. Fuchs has built up an enviable reputation as a palm grower and the stock to be sold is all of the A1 class. Kentias and latanias are the leaders, of the former there being approximately 50,000 fine plants in assorted sizes. Mr. Fuchs is compelled to quit the business owing to ill health. After the sale he will go to Germany, where his wife has been sojourning for a month.

Peter Weiland, formerly of the firm of Reinberg & Weiland, New Castle, Ind., has taken formal possession of the greenhouses at that place, the transfer going into effect June 1. He has opened a wholesale store at Cincinnati, O. The New Castle range embraces about 100,000 feet of glass.

Poehlmann Brothers Company has been particularly successful this season with American Beauty roses. The company will this year try asparagus growing in a new house which is being constructed for that purpose. This will be its first attempt in this department.

Wietor Brothers are nearing completion in their planting out operations. They will increase their rose growing space this season and will add other improvements. Nic. Wietor forecasts a splendid chrysanthemum season.

Fred C. Chapman, rose grower at Vaughan's Greenhouses, Western Springs, lost his three-year-old boy, who died of scarlet fever. Two other children ill with the same disease are recovering.

J. A. Budlong is providing much needed bench room and is offering a remarkably fine stock of American Beauty and Meteor rose plants at reasonable figures.

Charles McKellar is receiving almost daily shipments of choice cattleyas and other orchids which are meeting with good sale for wedding decorations, etc.

Manager C. M. Dickinson, of E. H. Hunt's reports an exceedingly heavy shipping demand right up to Decoration day with little cessation.

A. L. Randall Company is receiving red peonies from Emil Buettner. Home grown peonies are beginning to arrive in large quantities.

C. N. Thomas, of A. L. Randall Company, is spending some time at his old home in West Springfield, Pa., on a well deserved vacation.

Bentley-Coatsworth Company has a lead on Liberty roses, which are now being cut in good sizes and excellent color.

J. B. Deamud is emphasizing his supply of fancy ferns, another large consignment of which he received this week.

Bassett & Washburn are coming in with a fine lot of Kaiserin and Carnot roses.

Michael Winandy has a large patch of asters coming in fine condition.

Bedding plants will be well cleaned up at good prices.

Visitors this week were Peter Weiland, of New Castle, Ind., and Cincinnati, O., and William Swinbank, of Sycamore, Ill.

Philadelphia.

Decoration day gave quite a little impetus to the business, flowers of all kinds being in demand. Beauty roses especially were in demand and moved up a peg, going to $2 for the specials, and the day after being quite cool $2.50 was grudgingly given for stock not quite so good. Teas were also in favor, and all good stock was quickly grabbed up, white seeming to be the scarcest. Prices ranged from $4 to $8. The hot weather of the last week told on the stock and it has fallen at least 25 per cent in quality. Carnations had a great sale and all were sold at fair prices, ranging from $1.50 to $4. Sweet peas helped out nicely. They sold for from 50 to 75 cents per hundred. Peonies, which were just about in, sold well at from $5 to $8 per hundred. There were not roses enough for the demand. Next week there will be peonies to burn, so to speak, with prices not worth quoting.

The plant men had a great run, and everything in flower was sold. It looks now as if most of them would clean up nicely. At Westcott's nurseries they say the last two weeks have nearly if not quite broken the record. All hands have worked night and day to get out the orders.

S. S. Pennock says his Decoration day trade was the best ever and most satisfactory. Anything in the shape of a flower was in demand somewhere and prices were quite good for the quality of the stock.

There were many set pieces of immortelles to be seen in the store windows, but hardly as many as last year. S. S. Pennock had an elaborate affair for Gen. Grant's tomb, which completely filled the window.

W. K. Harris has had a great run on Ramblers and Eaton roses. No one has ever had them finer. They are ideal pot plants.

Leo Niessen handled quantities of Beauty roses, and reports quite an increase over last year's business at this time.

Eugene Bernheimer had a great run on sweet peas. A late shipment of 5,000 received Monday were all gone in a jiffy.

Edwin Lonsdale is getting the grounds at Girard college in splendid order. The beds at the entrance, which were beautiful, with their masses of hyacinths and tulips, and later with pansies, are rapidly being filled, some with geraniums and others with crotons. There is a bed of fine scarlet geraniums said to be Alphonse Riccard and believed by Mr. Lonsdale to be the best of its color. La Pilot, that grand old stand-by, is no longer planted, as its constitution seems to be gone. Some choice varieties amongst them La Pilot are being fertilized, and we look for some good things in this and other lines to come from the skillful work of Mr. Lonsdale. A large frame of alternantheras on a hot bed is a solid mass of color. The divided plants are dibbled into the soil instead of being potted and seems to grow faster and move just as readily as from pots and with less labor. A pink geranium which is considered much the best of its color is called Glorius. In almost every point of excellence it has all the other pinks distanced. Another good pink is called Miss Frances Perkins. K.

"Peony night" at the Florists' Club will be held in connection with the regular June meeting on Tuesday evening, June 7. Exhibits are invited by the committee having the matter in charge, and it is to be hoped an exhibition worthy of the flower will result.

Those intending to exhibit should forward the flowers by express prepaid in care of David Rust, Horticultural Hall, Broad street, above Spruce, Philadelphia, Pa. EDWIN LONSDALE, Sec'y.

St. Louis.

The general verdict is that Decoration day business this year was hardly up to the standard. This is accounted for almost entirely by the fact that on Sunday and Monday we had an almost continual downpour of rain. Saturday was a good day, bright and clear, and business was brisk. The wholesalers report that stock was exceptionally good, owing to the few cool days preceding, and despite the poor weather most staples were pretty well cleaned up. There was and is now a shortage of common ferns and in consequence peony leaves and other greens had to be pressed into service for funeral work by some of our retailers. Roses are in good demand and some particularly fine Carnots, Bridesmaids and Kaiserins were seen at Ellis' Monday. Peonies and sweet peas are just now in oversupply.

The healthy condition of the market just now is due almost entirely to the numerous World's Fair receptions and several large weddings which are keeping our West End florists busy. The downtown transient business after Memorial day is a factor hardly to be reckoned on ordinarily, but conditions may be different this year.

The Koenig Floral Company grew an extra quantity of plants this year, expecting more or less wholesale trade. It finds, however, such an increase in its retail business that it is cleaned out of everything but a few geraniums. Otto Koenig is walking with crutches. A young horse got frolicsome and kicked out a piece of his shin bone.

George Waldhart has weddings and decorations for every day this week. A reception last week at the French pavilion used up 700 long-stemmed American Beauty. A wedding decoration next Saturday will take 300 Golden Gate and 600 Bride and Beauty roses.

Following is the schedule for the special exhibition of hardy roses at the World's Fair, June 18 to 28:

Class 1, general display of bedding and polyantha varieties; not less than five clusters of each variety.

Class 2, general display of Bourbon, Bengal, Austrian and China roses, not less than five blooms of each variety.

Class 3, general display of climbers and ramblers; not less than five clusters of each variety.

Class 4, exhibit of any novelty or variety not classified above.

Class 5, general display of hybrid perpetual or remontant varieties; not less than five flowers in each variety.

Class 6, general display of all classes of hardy roses.

Entries must be received by superintendent not later than June 15.

Applications for space at the S. A. F. exhibition are coming in rapidly. This will be the banner year for exhibitors and those who wish advantageous positions would better make application soon to the superintendent, C. A. Kuehn, 1122 Pine street.

Mrs. Ayess reports the best business in years. Memorial day alone used up 200 baskets and bouquets. She reports three big weddings this week and several receptions.

A meeting has been called for June 2 of the chairmen of all the Florists' Clubs' committees to compare notes and report progress.

Ellison has a big reception to the Japanese commission, decorations for which will take fifty dozen long American Beauty.

Visitors: John Schnabel, Columbia, Mo.; Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Company, Philadelphia, Pa., and C. DeWever, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago.

Boston.

As anticipated, Decoration day trade in cut flowers, reached unprecedented proportions in this market. Unfortunately the weather for several days preceding was such as would properly belong to the midsummer "dog-day" period and the effect of the temperature on roses was terribly destructive. Never before has such an avalanche of useless, fagged out stuff been cast upon this market. Crate upon crate of roses, carnations, tulips, lily of the valley, stocks and garden flowers, all in the last stages of disintegration were received at wholesale headquarters, the contents of which were not worth the cost of transportation. This feature of the business was a most serious drawback to the wholesale distributors who, with a demand of insatiable proportions were forced to their wits' end to dig out from the stock on hand material that would command approval on arriving at its destination. It is too bad to have to report, as veracity compels, that much of the annoyance of handling the useless material, much of the ill-temper and vituperative controversy engendered might have been spared by the exercise of a normal degree of common sense on the part of certain of the growers. That men are foolish enough to suppose that they could hoard up carnations and roses in advance in anticipation of holiday demands at the end of a hot May and expect anybody to buy it seems incredible, but that was what they did do and were it not for the help received through large shipments from distant cities where Memorial day has not yet attained the importance it has in Boston, many a suburban florist would have been minus the stock needed to fill his orders. Outdoor flowers were much more abundant than had been anticipated, the hot weather pushing things along at a tremendous pace until, instead of a season two weeks or more behind the average, we find it fully caught up and on some varieties of herbaceous and shrub flowers actually ahead of the average flowering time. Rugosa roses, rhododendrons, snowballs and officialis peonies were available for Decoration day use, a rather unusual condition in this neighborhood. People were not looking for this class of goods, however, and much of what was sent in might have better have been left on the bushes to illumine the landscape. Greenhouse flowers had the call and customers were inclined to be as critical as at Christmas or Easter as to quality, although naturally looking for lower prices than on the winter holidays.

Baltimore.

There was a moderate volume of trade the last week in cut flowers, and on Saturday the increase was marked. This was largely due to the anticipatory orders for cemetery decorations for Sunday, which largely took the place of the day following, which is established by law and custom, and for the demands occasioned by the May processions of the Catholic church, in which thousands of children took part, all bearing bunches, wreaths or garlands. There was a great influx of hardy stock but, contrary to usual experience, it was not much in request. Peonies were behindhand owing to the retarded season, but Japan snowballs, spiræas, etc., could not be moved at all. It looked at first as though there would be a shortage in carnations, but the demand was met by the growers, and there were some left over. The fakirs are on the streets again, and the campaign against them seems over. At the Florists' Exchange, both Saturday night and Monday, the stock was pretty well cleared out, prices, of course, ruling low. Inquiry was received in this city from Philadelphia houses for carnations and peonies, but neither could be supplied over local requirements in any quantity. Lilies sold fairly well, but there was an excess of sweet peas. Yesterday there was a grateful shower and to-day the town is covered with peonies, some of the newer introductions being immense in size and superb in color.

Decoration day coming on Monday there was double opportunity for trade. The custom of decorating graves is slowly extending beyond the former custom of strewing with flowers the resting places of soldiers, sailors and others who served their country in war and peace. But the day, in its trade aspect, does not here equal its celebration in the north and west. There is no market demand for plants as in those sections, the embellishments being confined mainly to cut flowers and wreaths.

Halliday Brothers say there was not much doing over former years, though they find a gradual improvement in the demand for the day. John Cook gives the same report. The stores near the cemeteries were very busy. Edward Kress, at Baltimore cemetery never had a busier day. John Donn hopes to see the use of plants extended as it is in other parts. Philip B. Welsh was quite satisfied with the business done.

Thos. H. Patterson and wife have gone to Boston to spend a month, both being broken down in health. S. B.

Washington, D. C.

There is such an abundance of outdoor stock that the exotics are in danger of being forgotten. Yet there is good greenhouse stock on the market. American Beauty, Bride, Bridesmaid and Golden Gate roses are to be seen that are worthy of note. A week of continuous sunshine has put the stamp of summer on most of the pink roses and carnations and many of them are disposed to go down in a short time. There are carnations in several of the stores that for length of stem and general qualities, considering the hot weather, are wonders. Peonies are plentiful, and some fine ones are to be seen selling fast at from $1 to $3 per dozen. Gladioli sell well at $1.50 to $2 per dozen and nymphæas at 50 cents per dozen. American Beauty roses bring $3 to $5; Bride and Bridesmaid $1 to $2; carnations, 25 cents to $1. Sweet peas sell well at 25 cents per bunch. An enormous amount of outside stock is being handled, but much of it is going for a song. Unless rain comes soon the day of outside stock will be short for planted out stock is even now very near the danger line.

Now that Decoration day is past we may expect a season of dullness, though they do say that June will be scarcely long enough for all the weddings that are booked.

George A. Cornely, of Bellaire, Va., who has a stall in the Center market, has erected a new house 16x80 feet for general stock.

Smith & Talbert, a new firm in the florist business, are about to build two houses at Good Hope, D. C., 16x60 feet each. S. E.

Cleveland.

Memorial day here, as far as the sale of flowers is concerned, proved a dismal failure. A steady downpour of rain all day was the cause of all the trouble. Those who had made extensive preparations for a large cemetery trade were sadly disappointed. Not one-tenth of the business was transacted that would have been had it been a fine day. Scarcely any bedding out has been done owing to unfavorable weather. The difficulty in getting geraniums and other stock in bloom is due to the same cause. Altogether the spring so far has proven very unsatisfactory to plant and cut flower men alike. Roses were in abundance, the cheaper grades selling fairly well. Carnations were not in over supply, but there were sufficient to meet all demands. Lilium longiflorum was very much in evidence, with no special demand for them. Peonies were scarce, which may eventually prove a good thing for those growers who handle them, as there is more likelihood of their being used to better advantage and better prices for weddings and commencements, which are due this week and next. Some extra fine outdoor valley is coming in and sells fairly well at $1.50 to $2 per 100.

Wm. Parks, the Euclid avenue florist, is very much elated over the success of his original cooling process for a cut flower case. The apparatus consists of a number of one-inch pipe coils elevated near the ceiling of the case, through which cold water, under high pressure, flows continuously. He claims it keeps the flowers in perfect condition for a much longer time than an ice box, and gives better satisfaction to the customer afterward.

Bate Brothers will take a crop of cucumbers out of their houses previous to planting them to carnations, roses having been discarded entirely. Joost has proven the best money-maker and will be planted extensively by this firm for next season's work.

Burglars entered the store of Geo. W. Smith, on Wade Park avenue, one night last week, blew open the safe, stole $30 and a lot of cut flowers. The police were unable to get a clew to the thieves.

Quite a number of the rose growers have commenced to replant their houses. The F. R. Williams Company heads the list, with one-third of the houses replanted.

Robt. Miller has resigned from his position of rose grower for the J. M. Gasser Company.

Visitors in the city last week were Mr. and Mrs. John Walker and Miss Florence Seaver, of Youngstown, O.; W. P. Craig, of Philadelphia, Pa.

the old address at the same time.

Did you get your winter coal bills added to your prices of bedding plants?

COLEUS GOLDEN BEDDER is again a good seller. In its place it has no rival.

DICKSONIA ANTARCTICA, young specimens in 6-inch pots, make admirable house plants, the fronds being hard and very persistent.

THE supply of reliable named sorts of cannas at the end of the planting season this year seems to be less than for several seasons. Evidently this plant has not yet gone out of fashion.

JOHN SCOTT, Brooklyn, N. Y., of Nephrolepis Scottii fame, has, we understand, imported some Boston ferns from Porto Rico. It will be interesting to watch the result of the experiment.

LEUCOTHOE CATESBEI, the useful evergreen from the North Carolina mountains so widely used in recent years by northern florists, is reliably hardy as far north as Boston, retaining its rich green foliage throughout the winter.

COOL, judicious culture of the common type of Araucaria excelsa makes a plant hardly recognizable as such when compared with the spindling specimens frequently seen. Broad, massive foliage equal to some of the high-priced fancy forms is the result of cool treatment.

ALEXANDER MONTGOMERY doesn't believe in drying off the tea roses. His method is to let them bloom out naturally as much as they choose to do and this gives the plants all the check they need in midsummer. A rose dried off as was generally done in the past takes a long time, well into the winter, before it gets to working freely again.

ONCE more we have the mystery of the changeable colors in the hydrangea explained. It is definitely proven, we are informed by a prominent New York plant grower, that the new Hydrangea Hortensia rosea becomes invariably the new Hydrangea azurea when planted in a certain soil found in one district of France which is now on the market at $2.50 per bag.

THE alarmists have discovered that the popular Boston ivy (Ampelopsis Veitchii) is a serious menace to the structural stability of the churches and other edifices on which it has been induced to climb.
The immediate cause of the scare, which the daily papers are doing their best to encourage, is the news that an old ivy-covered church in England, aged some 450 years, has been found to be in a state of advanced decomposition. This reminds us of the story of the old reprobate who died at the age of 99 years as a result of the excessive use of tobacco from early boyhood.

Important Legal Decision.

An important verdict has been handed down in the courts of Elizabeth, N. J.
The Elizabeth Nursery Company was awarded judgment in the sum of $5,782 in a suit against the Lister Agricultural Chemical Company, of Newark, N. J., for injuries to roses resulting from the use of impure fertilizer purchased by the plaintiff from the defendant company.

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

SPECIAL PRIZE OFFER.

Nathan Smith & Son offer the following special prize for the Boston chrysanthemum show: $25 cash for the best twelve white chrysanthemums, American or foreign origin, disseminated in 1904.
To be judged from a commercial standpoint; stems, not less than 30 inches long; open to private gardeners only.

Geranium Buds Dry Off.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—What causes geranium buds to dry off? My stock is in good condition with this exception.

H. G. A.

This is more than I can answer without seeing the plants. It may be something for a scientific man to reply to, as some fungus may be at work. In my experience amongst geraniums nothing like what appears in the query has come under my notice. The plants growing in too dense a shade might be the cause, for a geranium dearly loves the full sunlight.
Too much shade and too much water both at the root and overhead are possible causes of the trouble. L.

Heating a Water Tank.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—We wish to heat a water tank by steam to keep it from freezing. The tank has a capacity of sixty barrels, standing eight feet from the boiler and ten feet above the ground. The boiler is twenty-horse power. The steam pipe will have to be exposed to the cold air for two feet before it reaches the tower. How can we connect it so as to have a good circuit? Will a coil on the outside of the tank made of 1-inch pipe keep the water warm and return the condensed steam to the boiler? F. & S.

If the boiler is ten feet in diameter, one coil inside the tank will prevent freezing but two will be desirable if the water is to be tempered for the plants. Merely connect the upper end of the coil to a flow and the lower end with a return pipe. L. R. T.

San Francisco.

There is not a great deal of stock in the market but enough for the business which has been quieter than usual for the past two weeks. Sweet peas are plentiful and have taken a drop in price. They are now bringing 50 to 75 cents per dozen bunches, each bunch containing from 75 to 100 blooms. When the peas first arrived in market they brought as high as $1.50 to $2 per dozen bunches.
All stock generally speaking has taken a drop in prices. Beauties, the best, can be had at $2 to $2.50 per dozen. The best tea roses bring 50 cents per dozen.
Carnations can be had at almost any price from 10 cents to 35 cents per dozen.
Prosperity and Enchantress still bring 50 cents.

The spring exhibition of the Pacific Coast Horticulture Society, held in the grand nave of the Ferry building May 12-13-14, was pronounced a grand success both financially and otherwise.
The following florists had full charge of the show and are deserving of a great deal of credit:

H. Plath,	T. A. Munro,
Frank Pelicano,	W. Eldred,
C. Fick,	P. Rock,
J. W. Bagge,	N. Peterson.

The following prizes were awarded:

Roses, best and largest collection grown under glass, P. C. Meyer & Co., Burlingame, Cal.; first; Ferrari Brothers, of San Francisco, second.

Roses, best and largest collection, field grown,
F. Ludermann (Pacific Nursery).

Roses, best vase, any variety grown under glass, Ferrari Brothers.

Carnations, best and largest collection, P. C.
Meyer & Co.

Carnations, best vase, John H. Sievers & Co.

Carnations, best vase Prosperity, P. C. Meyer &
Co.

Sweet peas, best collection, Mr. Morse.

Iris, best display, Ferrari Bros.

Pelargoniums, best and largest collection, John H. Sievers & Co.

Pansies, best and largest collection, H. Plath.

Lilies, best display, P. C. Meyer & Co.

Peonies, California Nursery Co.

Decorative plants, best collection, John H.
Sievers & Co.

Ferns, best and largest collection, H. Plath.

Ferns, best specimens, H. Plath.

Best flowering plants, P. C. Meyer & Co.

The silver cup offered by P. C. Meyer & Company for the most artistic floral design was awarded to Frank Pelicano & Company for a harp made up of orchids, Bride and Mme. Cecile Brunner roses and rare ferns. The second prize was awarded to the Art Floral Company, and the third to the Belmont Florists.

For some time past the retail florists have been making preparations to close their business Sunday afternoons and during the week at 8 p. m. Owing to the slack business in the summer months most of the florists have decided to do so with the exception of one downtown store and one uptown. On May 23 the most enthusiastic members of the association held a meeting and decided to disregard the obstinate ones and to close from June 1 to September 1, and if everything went well to continue to do so thereafter.

A. Stagnaro, of San Francisco, has made a success of growing Japanese longiflorum lilies in solid benches. The plants are all very healthy looking and the stalks average about five feet in length, carrying from eight to twelve good flowers. Out of 1,500 plants he lost only fifty bulbs. Frank Pelicano & Company have bought his entire stock as they are specimen flowers and command a good price.

Candidum lilies have made their first appearance and are of good quality.

A. J. R.

New York.

The wholesale market is still encumbered by a superabundance of flowers. Bulbous material is about finished, but peonies fill the room vacated by it. Outside lily of the valley being finished, that article now returns to the choice class, and in company with cattleyas, asparagus and moss roses assumes an unassailable position in line for high grade weddings.

The annual exhibition of the American Institute will be held in Herald Square exhibition hall, November 8-17. Dr. Robert Taylor is general manager, with offices at 19-21 W. Forty-fourth street, New York.

OBITUARY.

James Quinn.

James Quinn, the oldest florist in Brookline, Mass., died May 31, aged 75 years.

Lucius H. Foster.

Lucius H. Foster died from an apoplectic stroke at his home in Dorchester, Mass., Thursday morning, June 2.

Bertha Feuerstake.

Miss Bertha Feuerstake, aged 39, was found dead in bed Saturday morning by her father, William Feuerstake, of 4715 Gravois avenue, St. Louis, Mo. William Feuerstake, her father, is a prominent florist out on Gravois road, where he has lived since he came to this country from Germany in 1842. Miss Feuerstake was born there and had never left her home for any length of time. She was out and around the yard Friday seemingly in the best of spirits, rendering her sudden death a surprise as well as a blow to all.

August Schmitt.

August Schmitt, the well known florist of Glenville, a suburb of Cleveland, O., while lying in bed the night of June 1, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. The flash from the revolver set the bed clothing on fire and when Schmitt's family returned home that night the building was in flames. Mr. Schmitt's body was found to be badly burned. He had suffered from poor health for some considerable time and this is supposed to have been the cause of suicide. Mr. Schmitt was favorably known to the trade generally. He was always pleasant and genial and will be greatly missed at the gatherings of Cleveland florists. He was 63 years of age.

PASSENGER STEAMSHIP MOVEMENTS.

The tables herewith give the scheduled time of departure of ocean steamships carrying first-class passengers from the principal American and foreign ports, covering the space of two weeks from date of this issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST. Much disappointment often results from attempts to forward flowers for steamer delivery by express, to the care of the ship's steward or otherwise. The carriers of these packages are not infrequently refused admission on board and even those delivered on board are not always certain to reach the parties for whom they were intended. Hence florists in interior cities having orders for the delivery of flowers to passengers on out-going steamers are advised to intrust the filling of such orders to some reliable florist in the port of departure, who understands the necessary details and formalities and has the facilities for attending to it properly. For the addresses of such firms we refer our readers to the advertisements on this page:

AUCTION—AUCTION

ALBERT FUCHS, 2045 North Halsted Street, CHICAGO.

A Chance of a Lifetime 75,000 PALMS, FERNS, Etc., to be disposed of to the highest bidder on June 15 and June 16 E. F. WINTERSON CO., AUCTIONEER'S Superintendent.

PALM—Kantia Forsteriana.

"The finest stock of Palms in the West." The consensus of opinion of many up-to-date Florists who have visited our plant within the last month.

Illness compels me to retire from business and I have decided to sell on June 15th and 16th inst., between the hours of 2 and 5 p. m., by Auction through the E. F. WINTERSON CO., 45, 47, 49 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, and to the highest bidders the contents of my greenhouses, located at 2045 North Halsted Street, Chicago, and consisting of 65,000 Palms, Ferns, etc., as listed below, all of which have been cool and light grown, no forced or "strung out" stuff in the lot; every plant is healthy and with fine, dark foliage. All of these plants are ready for immediate shift.

If it will not be possible for you to attend the auction in person or through a representative, send a commission, either direct to myself or to the E. F. Winterston Co., with remittance of 10 per cent made out in the name of Greenbaum & Sons, bankers, 83-85 Dearborn Street, Chicago, and state the highest price you wish to bid on the different stock listed. Either myself or my auctioneers will offer said bid in auction and if there is no higher bid the stock will be shipped to you, carefully packed, previous to June 22nd. In the event that your offer is overbid the amount advanced by you will be returned in full within three days after the sale. Messrs. Greenbaum will hold in trust all moneys advanced in this connection and we are privileged to refer to this firm (one of the best known banking institutions in the West) as to the quality of stock offered and our ability to carry out any contracts made by us.

If you cannot attend the Auction in person or send a representative either myself or E. F. Winterston Co. will look after your interests. Don't fail to send remittance to extent of 10% with your commission.

Make all checks payable to Greenbaum & Sons, Bankers.

MESSRS E. F. WINTERSON CO., Superintendent of Auction.

Make Checks Payable to GREENBAUM & SONS, Bankers, 83-85 Dearborn St., Chicago.

We hereby authorize you to bid in for us at the auction of the ALBERT FUCHS GREENHOUSES the following goods at the price stated and we enclose 10 per cent of the total purchase which you guarantee to return within 3 days after the auction, should the stock be sold at a higher price than we bid, or send us the goods within one week from date of sale carefully packed.

The Seed Trade.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

S. F. Willard, Pres.; J. Chas. McCullough, First Vice-Pres.; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Sec'y and Treas.
Twenty-second annual convention, St. Louis, Mo., June 21-23, 1904.

Congressional Seedsmen.

PUBLIC PAYS SALARIES AND SUPPLIES SEEDS.

If the current custom of indiscriminate distribution shall indefinitely continue, if this congressional comedy shall drift into a continuous performance, we shall ultimately be driven to the mournful admission that we are not statesmen, but seedsmen; and it will be in order for some distinguished seedsman, some sainted hero of a score of memorable distributions, some legislative knight upon whose shield is blazoned a radish in its glory or a turnip in repose, to arise in his place with becoming gravity and move, Mr. Chairman, that the American eagle be taken from the mace and supplanted by a package of vegetable seed as the supreme emblem of the genius, the character, and the principal occupation of American statesmanship.—Morris Sheppard, of Texas, in House of Representatives.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—Schwarz & Heinecke have failed. Assets about $425; liabilities about $800.

THE Wholesale Seedsmen's League will meet at Forest Park University hotel, St. Louis, Mo., June 23 and 24.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—E. DeBeer, representing the Budlong Company, Chicago, booked some orders for onion seeds here the last week.

SEEDSMEN not members of the American Seed Trade Association who think of attending the St. Louis convention should forward their names to Secretary C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

VISITED CHICAGO: William P. Craig, of Philadelphia, Pa., en route to Mexico. Mr. Craig has recently taken a stand in the Philadelphia wholesale flower market on his own account, and will handle bulbs, seeds and similar lines; B. L. Bancom and wife of Portland Seed Company, Portland, Oregon.

NEWPORT, R. I.—There seems to be quite a little complaint about potatoes not coming up well. It is thought so much wet weather has caused them to rot in the ground, especially those that were planted very early. Later planted ones have done much better and at this writing look more than average well.

WM. F. McCORD has severed his connection with Cook & McCord Company, Tarrytown, N. Y., and is now doing business in another store in Main street, Tarrytown, as Wm. E. McCord Company. He is handling a general line of seeds and flowers. Cook & McCord have ceased to do business under such firm name, but their business is being cared for at the greenhouses at Glenville, near Tarrytown, under the name of the Glenville Nursery Company, John Cook, manager.

Catalogues Should State Prices.

I have had many complaints from prospective buyers, writes one of our consuls in Siam, that in the greater part of the catalogues issued by our manufacturers there are no price lists attached, but a note saying that such a list will be sent upon application. This means a delay of three months before an order can be given, and from five to six months more before the merchandise is received here. Under these circumstances it is not surprising that the merchant should prefer to order from catalogues where the prices and discounts are already stated. I am quite sure that if all our manufacturers would do this it would result in more frequent orders from the far east.

Disease of Peas.

A disease of peas due to attacks of fungus, Fusarium vasinfectum, has been under observation in Holland for a number of years. The affected plants turn yellow and soon die, and an investigation shows that the roots are the seat of the fungus attack. The organism causing the disease has been isolated and studied on a number of media. It is believed to be closely related to the fungus which causes the wilt of melons, cotton, cowpeas, etc., and the author has described it as F. vasinfectum pisi. n. var. Inoculation experiments have been successfully performed showing that this fungus is the cause of the disease. As it usually makes its appearance about June 24, the disease is locally known as St. John's disease of peas.—Experiment Station Record.

British Seed Trade Notes.

Business this spring has been fairly bright with the seed merchants. A brisk demand continues to prevail for farm seeds. All descriptions have been freely purchased well into May, owing to the spring sowings being somewhat later than usual. On the whole, a very satisfactory business has been done. Prices are firmly sustained, whilst the stocks left over for next season will be very limited. The Eldorado plants to which I referred in a previous letter, are becoming more numerous. H. J. Jones, of Rycroft Nurseries, the well known chrysanthemum expert, is growing a selection of the best varieties of potatoes, and he is now offering Eldorado plants at £2 2s., about half the price previously quoted. As it is estimated from three to six pounds of seed potatoes can be obtained from each plant, and these in the fall of the year will be worth £3 a pound, the investment is an attractive one. A. Findlay, the raiser of Eldorado, has found it necessary to issue a warning against buyers being misled by a similarly named tuber, which has been introduced in America and Austria.

Great regret has been expressed at the announcement that Martin J. Sutton, of Sutton & Sons, Reading, has resigned his seat on the council of the Royal Agricultural Society. Mr. Sutton disapproves of certain action taken by the council. His loss will be greatly felt, for besides being a liberal contributor to the funds, he rendered valuable services during the past twenty-one years on the journal, chemical, Woburn experimental farm and education committees. Mr. Sutton is also a life governor of the society, which is now arranging its annual show at the permanent ground at Willesden in June.

From the noted Essex seed farms of Cooper, Taber & Company I have seen some fine samples of the French pansy, Mme. Perret. The blooms were picked from plants that have stood on the farms through the winter, and were raised from seeds sown in the open ground in June. It is a break from the Trimardeau pansy, the large, sweet-scented flowers being tinged with brilliant red. In connection with the old-established firm of Hurst & Son, seed merchants, Houndsditch, there is a flourishing musical society formed amongst the employes. The society recently gave a successful performance of a musical play in aid of a London charity.

The Congressional Garden Seeds.

The time is at hand when I trustfully look (How my mind on the prospect feeds)
When the mail comes in for a package or two
Of Congressional garden seeds.

'Tis strange how our "Member" my name recollects,
How he knows my desires and my needs!
'Twould glad him to notice my joy when I get My Congressional garden seeds.

There's lettuce and onions that tardily sprout,
And "punkins" of several breeds,
And "pa'snipa"—I'd scorn 'em except for the fact They're Congressional garden seeds.

The soil I dig deep, I plant 'em with care,
Per-spiratin from every pore bleeds,
Then I "shoo" out the hens lest they bring up too soon
My Congressional garden seeds.

Each day to my garden with zeal I repair
And struggle with clods and with weeds, 'Till a few struggling sprouts show the germinant strength
Of Congressional garden seeds.

All summer I labor and patiently wait,
Fighting slugs, horers, bugs, centipedes;
And I prune, and I water, I spray the weak shoots
Of Congressional garden seeds.

Though I sing as I gaze at my blistered hands
And my back for a short respite pleads,
Yet for "souvenirs" vainly I look; then I cuss
The Congressional garden seeds.

Buffalo.

The weather was very favorable last week for outdoor work. Decoration day trade in the stores was no improvement over last year. As to Monday trade the rain spoiled "what might have been." From a greenhouse point of view it far exceeded last year up to Monday, when the same conditions that affected the stores affected the greenhouses. This is speaking for the greenhouses, which are very near the different cemeteries. Today the weather is about like October or November, cold and rainy.

Each year sees the G. A. R. ranks thinning out and with it the orders from public schools. Where once ten wagons would not carry the flowers five are not half filled. With the death of the veteran also dies the patriotism. One of the largest high schools in the city got $6.50 collected, where a few years ago it was $40 to $50 and a lively competition among the florists. Now none are anxious for the order.

Chas. Kneitsch, who has charge of the supply department of W. F. Kasting, lost his wife on Saturday. Mrs. Kneitsch had been ill for some time, and while her death was not unexpected, it was very sad, as she leaves two small children. Mr. Kneitsch has the club's sympathy.

W. J. Palmer can be found at his store for another month, after which his address will be Lancaster, N. Y. He always spends his vacation hard at work at his pretty place there.

The Florists' Club will not meet again until July, when the St. Louis trip will be talked up. BISON.

The Nursery Trade

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

N. W. Hale, Knoxville, Tenn., Pres.; Frank A. Weber, St. Louis, Mo., Vice-Pres.; George C. Seager, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.
Twenty-ninth annual convention, Atlanta, Ga., June 22-24, 1904.

VISITED CHICAGO: James McHutchison, of McHutchison & Company, New York.

THE season so far has been favorable to the growth of nursery stock, especially that newly planted.

THE eighth annual convention of the Park and Outdoor Art Association will be held in the Minneapolis and St. Paul building, World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., next week, June 9-11, inclusive.

THE Piedmont hotel will be the headquarters for the twenty-ninth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, to be held at Atlanta, Ga., June 22-24, inclusive. Those who expect to attend should secure rooms early, either from Hotel Manager Zimmer, Atlanta, Ga., or Secretary George C. Seager, Rochester, N. Y.

NEWPORT, R. I.—It is turning out as many of our experienced gardeners had feared that a large amount of shrubbery has been killed during the past winter. Evergreens especially have suffered and many of the more tender retinisporas must be replaced. Irish yews, as the days get warmer, show how badly burned they are. In the rose beds everywhere there are many more gaps than there should be. Much replanting will have to be done.

Park News.

BOSTON, MASS.—With the exception of the Arnold Arboretum and Franklin park the entire park system of Boston has been opened to the use of automobiles. In Franklin park one through road only has been opened. Most of the parkways under the Metropolitan Park Commission have also been declared open for motor vehicles.

The Metropolitan Park Commission of Massachusetts has finally secured the right of way for the remaining links in the great parkway which is to extend continuously from the public garden in Boston to the foot of Great Blue hill, a distance of ten miles, measured in a straight line. When completed the system of boulevards in Boston and its environs will be unequalled by anything of the kind on this continent.

Timely Comment.

Some of the carried over stock of peach and pear trees has been a drug in the auction rooms in New York this week. The exasperated auctioneer was reiterating, "10 cents for this last bunch of five; is there no advance on two nickels; are you all done at 10 cents; who is the buyer at 10 cents? Don't all speak at one time now; oh, give me a bid or I'll throw them at somebody." And at last one faint heart said: "I'll bid you goodbye."

California privet has been killed down almost to the ground in most cases. On Mr. Macy's estate at Rye, N. Y., two or three miles of privet hedge has been destroyed and is being pruned down to within a foot of the ground. The Regelianum variety has been proved hardy and will no doubt be used more extensively.

This has been an exceptionally busy spring with nursery stock. The season began late, but the volume of business greatly exceeds that of former years, no doubt on account of the killing winter.

Outdoor peaches in the Hudson river vicinity will be a scarce crop this season. The flower buds failed to develop, no doubt on account of the hard winter. The majority of the trees look healthy.

There has been a big run on hemlock this spring for hedge plants. It is still the old reliable.

Berberis Thunbergii promises to increase in popularity as a hedge plant.

Waterbury, Conn.

It having been said that School Inspector Tyrrell prevented the planting of trees in the school yards in compliance with the governor's Arbor day proclamation, because "this isn't the proper time for planting trees," the Waterbury Herald proceeds to castigate that gentleman in a vigorous manner. If Mr. Tyrrell is guilty he deserves it all, and more. Says the Herald:

Edward L. Tyrrell, he with the black, stubby beard all over his face, by the votes of a majority of the Waterbury board of education inspector of public schools, thus announces himself an authority on horticulture. Never before had the people of Waterbury, unless it might be the aforesaid majority of the board of education, suspected Mr. Tyrrell of being an authority on any matter, not to even the art of cultivating graceful whisks.

Previous to his election to the honorable office of inspector of the public schools, a position which was at one time supposed to be held by a man who knew something about the business, Mr. Tyrrell's sole occupation in life was assisting Benjamin R. Kelsey in chasing up poor unfortunates who were unable to keep abreast of their grocery bills, meat bills and sundry other bills. Since his appointment he has not abated his endeavors to assist his friend Kelsey in the matter of bills, but he has done this work on the city's time and he has received the city's money therefor. That is, he has busied himself a little while each morning in finding fault with some janitor of the public schools and then trotted off to Kelsey's office to get his orders for the rest of the day. And the comptroller pays him his salary every two weeks just the same as he would if the inspector of the public schools devoted all of his time to his duties as he should.

This, then, is the man who sets himself up to know more about planting trees than his excellency, Gov. Chamberlain. And that is the reason why Arbor and Bird day was not celebrated as it should be in Waterbury. By the way, what business is it of the inspector of the public schools to say when trees shall be planted by the school children, anyway? Isn't this man with the luxuriant beard overstepping his authority somewhat? Mr. Tyrrell's appointment lasts for two years, unfortunately for the city of Waterbury. Would it not be wise to suggest to the gentleman who may be elected this fall to succeed Gov. Chamberlain to call upon Mr. Tyrrell before he issues his Arbor day proclamation next year? It will save some people a whole lot of annoyance.

Ionla, Mich.

Decoration day trade was immense, eclipsing any previous year. Everything was well cleaned up, especially geraniums and pansy plants. Toward the last everything with the least sign of a "posy" was carried away.

M. Wetterling had an extra fine lot of Spiraea Japonica and Crimson Rambler roses.

Announcement.

We take pleasure in announcing that

FRED. BURKI

Will be disseminated in 1905, commencing in January.

Fred. Burki is the result of a cross between Lawson and a seedling of much merit—the latter being the seed parent. It possesses all the good qualities to induce the most conservative growers to include it among their best whites.

Here are a few of its Meritorious points:

- 1st. The blooms come perfect and uniform, averaging 3 to 3½ inches.
- 2d. The stem measures from 20 to 30 inches, being stiff and erect and resembles that of Lawson.
- 3d. It never crops, but yields continuously from November until July.
- 4th. The calyx is perfect, showing no tendency to bursting.

5th. Its keeping qualities, a point not to be overlooked, are second to none and equal to the best.

6th. It transplants easily and roots like the proverbial weed. Those who saw it growing are unanimous in declaring the FRED. BURKI the ideal white in every respect.

It has scored 88 points at the Detroit Carnation Convention, receiving a Certificate of Merit.

Don't hesitate placing your order for Fred. Burki, it will prove a good investment.

PRICES: $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Our Pastimes.

Announcements of coming contests or other events of interest to our bowling, shooting and sporting readers are solicited and will be given place in this column.

Address all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 42 W. 28th St., New York; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia; or to the American Florist Co., Chicago.

At St. Louis.

The bowling club score is not worth recording this week. Next week will see a match at $10 a side between Beyer and Arthur Ellison. This ought to make things interesting. J. W. D.

At New York.

The Empire State Florists' Bowling Club, which meets at the Harlem casino, had two match games last week, also ladies' night, at which a splendid supper was served. Among the members are George Saltford, Sr., Clarence Saltford, Jr., William Mortimer, John Curry, of C. H. Brown's, and John Welsey.

At Chicago.

The third series of the handicap tournament of the Florists' Club bowling team was rolled Tuesday evening at Mussey's alleys. Asmus captured the high total of this round, making 900 points. Stollery continues in the lead, however, and some close bowling is expected before the final results are reached. The following are the figures of the last five games:

The first match of the tournament to select the team to represent the club at St. Louis was played on the Central alleys Wednesday evening. The scores were only fair, only one of the individual totals being over 500. Anderson had high game with 209, and Yates rolled high total with 512. After the games were finished the eighteen highest scores received one point each. The score in detail follows. The next contest will take place next Wednesday night on the Arcade alleys, Broad and Chestnut streets.

Toronto.

There is an activity at present which is most acceptable to both the grower and retailer. The last two weeks have seen an improvement which, for this season of the year, is remarkable. The spring meet of the Ontario jockey club has brought thousands of visitors to town, many of them of the better class, and there is much entertaining on their behalf. The decorations for the many luncheons at the club house are utilizing many flowers and there are practically no good lines on the market but what are kept well cleaned up. The growers report a good cut, but now that the season is advancing the quality of the stock is beginning to show the effects of warm weather. There are a number of good varieties of roses at present; Franz Deegan is very good and far superior to Perle; it is well liked and will be grown more extensively another season. Ivory and Golden Gate are fine and both Edgely and Beauty are of excellent quality. Bridesmaid and Bride are beginning to deteriorate a little and Meteor is at present off crop. In carnations there are still fine ones to be had. Harrisii are about over and callas are getting smaller. Sweet peas, stocks, marguerites and other smaller flowers are more plentiful. Smilax is still pretty scarce, though asparagus and maidenhair ferns are more plentiful. The prices hold up good on all stock and present quotations are: Beauty, $25, $20 and $10 per 100; teas, $8 and $4; carnations, $4, $3 and $2.

Fine Beauty, Edgely and other roses are offered by J. H. Dunlop, whose conservatories are at present looking remarkably well. Some of the houses have already been replanted with young stock and many others will soon follow. Several varieties of the new roses disseminated this year are being tried and show fine growth.

There are not many new buildings contemplated this season, but many of the growers are remodeling and improving their present plants. After the hard trial of last winter the boiler capacity in most places will be increased to a large extent.

Carnations are holding on splendidly and very good flowers are still being cut. The season has been late for carnations, as in most places the ground was too wet to work, but at present most growers are busy getting out their stock.

Herbaceous stock did not have much call this season owing to the backwardness of the so-called "gentle spring," but the material for hedging purposes and window boxes is now in brisk demand.

Dunlop's King street store had a very pretty window of American Beauty roses and apple blossoms, the combination being artistic and effective.

Dan Cupid has been busy this leap year among the florists and in the approaching few weeks at least six will join the happy benedicts.

Grobba & Wandrey are cutting thousands of their own grown outdoor valley. This stock seems to improve with them each year.

The recent fire destroyed several of our best paper box factories, and in this line most of the retailers are very short at present.

A few orchids from Manton Brothers are so quickly used up that no doubt another season will see more of them.

George Gard is cutting some good sweet peas. He has all colors and they find ready sale.

Ed Sinclair has been on the sick list, but is again back to business.

The city parks are a vision of color, the many tulips in different beds being at their best.

T. Hoskins is marketing some well grown hydrangeas.

H. G. D.

Milwaukee, Wis.

There is no questioning the fact that Decoration day trade was phenomenal. Stock of every description was completely cleaned out at good figures. Carnations naturally had the call, and immense quantities were sold, but fully double the amount received could have been sold on Friday and Saturday had they been available. Peonies also did well, especially the white and light pink varieties. Tulips and cape jasmines moved fairly well. Roses did well considering the quality. The volume of trade was way ahead of last season, but the averages to the growers will not come up to the previous season, owing to the fact that stock was almost given away during the first part of the week.

In the plant line there was a heavy demand for geraniums and large numbers were handled. At this time it seems that the season's trade in spring stock will be prosperous.

The Florists' Club meeting will be held next Tuesday at the club rooms in the Empire building. H.

Pennsylvania Horticultural Society.

At the meeting held May 17 there was quite an interesting display of plants of which a well flowered specimen of Brassia maculata was distinctly the star attraction. It was exhibited by William Kleinheinz, gardener for P. A. B. Widener. A well merited cultural certificate was awarded for it. For the H. A. Dreer prize for twelve flowers of hardy perennials Joseph Hurley, gardener to James W. Paul, Jr., who received first, was the only exhibitor. It was too early apparently for strong competition. Mr. Hurley was awarded also first for a well grown plant of Calceolaria rugosa. First for Calceolaria hybrida went to Frank Abbotson, gardener to J. Vaughan Merick, who also showed a well grown plant.

In the Henry F. Michell Company prizes Thos. Holland was first for two heads of cauliflower and Sam Hammond for three heads of lettuce. Special mention was awarded Daniel Neely for well grown Columbia Mammoth asparagus, and to Otto Triebwassa for a display of mushrooms. Altogether it was a very interesting and instructive meeting. These monthly contests among the gardeners are a good thing and other similar organizations might take pattern therefrom, and bring congenial spirits together at least once a month; thus not only securing a quorum at each business meeting but encouraging a spirit of emulation and an endeavor to excel, benefiting themselves and their employers at the same time.

Prof. Skinner's illustrated lecture on "Architecture of Insects," was most interesting and instructive. If the committee on awards while prosecuting its judicial duties would only confer more in an undertone, and carpet was laid for them to walk upon while examining the exhibits to deaden their footsteps, it would be appreciated by the audience who sometimes have difficulty in hearing what is being said by the chairman of the meeting or whoever may be speaking. Durham, N. H.

One of the most enjoyable social functions of the season at the New Hampshire state college was the reception given last week by the head of the horticultural department, Prof. Frank William Rane, and assistant horticulturist Harry F. Hall, in observance of the completion and opening for routine work of the newly erected range of greenhouses. A large number of friends of the college was invited to inspect the new houses, also the spacious quarters of the department on the second floor of Morrill hall, the handsome new agricultural building. Among the prominent guests were Prof. L. H. Bailey, dean of the agricultural college of Cornell university, and W. W. Rawson, the noted seedsman of Arlington, Mass.

After the reception the company made a tour of the horticultural rooms and lastly the greenhouses, which looked enchanting in the glare of many incandescent lights. The decorations of Morrill hall were elaborate and beautiful. A floral welcome hung over the main corridor. Festoons of running pine, palms, carnations and geraniums entered into the decorations. An elaborate spread of various kinds of fruits was served in the pomological laboratory, after which the guests assembled in the lecture room and listened to the distinguished visitors and the hosts. During the evening an orchestra played and dancing, pingpong and other games were enjoyed by the guests.

The new range of greenhouses which was constructed at a cost of $7,000, appropriated by the last legislature, was first occupied by the department of horticulture near the close of the winter term, and is now in complete running order. The greenhouses are planned for experiment work, and each house contains sufficient piping to grow plants at either high or low temperature. The range is composed of a palm house, 25x55, and 18 feet high at the peak, four wings, each 20x37½x12, connecting with the palm house, and two houses connected with the passageway between the palm house and the potting house at the rear. These are 20x47½x12. The potting house is 20x30 feet dimension. In the basement are the boilers. The main floor is also utilized as an office and weighing room. The greenhouses have iron frames, cement walks and incandescent electric lights.

An important section of the range is the floricultural laboratory, which is designed to accommodate a large class of students. Each student has bench-room assigned to him and here carries on his practical work in floriculture, such as mixing soils, making cuttings, watering, transplanting, germinating seeds, etc.

Prof. Rane is assisted in the work of the department by Harry F. Hall, the assistant horticulturist. The new superintendent of the greenhouse is Martin J. Carney, formerly head gardener for Gen. Chas. H. Taylor, of Boston.

Memorial week was characterized by fair weather, large receipts and satisfactory prices all around. On the other hand it is suspected that business was not as large as last year, although no one seems able to advance a satisfactory opinion as to the wherefore. The receipts of carnations and roses plainly showed evidences of holding back, which was almost impossible to do in this warm weather; towards the last, however, the growers sent in some very good stock. Carnations averaged from $1.50 to $3 per 100, and roses ranged from three to eight cents for ordinary uses. At retail carnations brought 50 cents per dozen as an average, and roses about $1 for plain stock and $1.50 to $2 for fancy.

Worcester, Mass.

"Bigger than ever," was the answer of every florist in town to queries as to this year's Memorial day trade. There was an adequate supply of plants and flowers, with the exception of red and pink carnations. Eight, ten and twelve-inch pans of blooming plants sold in large quantities, and Crimson Ramblers, hydrangeas, spiraeas, etc., in pots cleaned up by Monday noon. There seems to be an increasing demand for blooming plants for grave decoration.

Considerable comment has been heard lately about a large wholesale establishment here, retailing flowers at cut rates, and trying to build up a wholesale trade in this city at the same time.

AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY,

324 Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

Newport, R. I.

On account of Decoration day bedding plants were in good demand all last week, geraniums being most popular with the average buyer. Cut flowers sold very well and there was no surplus in any line. The sales were somewhat hurt by the large quantities of wild flowers and lilacs. Although May 30 is a legal holiday the seed stores have the bad habit of keeping open for business until noon, which spoils the holiday for both employer and the employed. Especially was this felt a great hardship this year, as otherwise a short vacation out of town would have been enjoyed by many from Saturday until Tuesday. As it was the opening Monday morning spoiled all plans. It is a senseless custom. The weather has been warmer the last week and everything is now growing nicely; a few showers have kept the ground in good condition and as a whole the season is well started.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt is having a new entrance made to the Slocum farm, his lately acquired property. Until now it has been quite a long distance down Sandy Point avenue. He preferred to have it directly opposite the entrance of his home place (Oakland farm), but to save a large and handsome maple tree it has been placed a little to one side. The gate posts are round and large, built of stone, and new walls are being set. The adjoining estate, belonging to H. A. C. Taylor, has also had round stone gate posts built. Great care has been taken in handling the stones, that may appear old, all the moss having been left upon them to give them that look. The walls have been curved at the entrance to give the driveway a better effect, and on both sides of the drive, from the road to the Taylor mansion, young linden trees have been put out to make the way ornamental as well as shady. V. A. Vanicek, of the Rhode Island Nurseries, furnished the trees and also six car loads of hardy rhododendrons for Mr. Vanderbilt's Oakland farm.

Several gardeners are doing a paying business taking care of the yards and grounds of the smaller places where no help is regularly employed. The charge by the day is $2.50, all tools being furnished. The price for a season's care is from $10 to $50, according to the size of the place and work required.

Leikens opened his new store in Downing's block on Bellevue avenue on Thursday last. Mr. Leikens represents Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J., and will do some landscape work as well as his regular florist's business. He was formerly with Siebrecht & Son here.

There seems to be a lift in the freight embargo so far as Newport is concerned. More freight is arriving by boat from New York than since the strike began. It is hoped the worst is over and that conditions will in a few days be normal again.

Hitchings & Company, of New York, will build a greenhouse at Sandy Point Farm for Reginald C. Vanderbilt. This will be the first glass at Mr. Vanderbilt's, but it will not be long before there will be many houses on this splendid place.

The season for currant worms has arrived and they are thicker than for some years, as the sales of exterminators seem to testify. Rose bugs are also on the way, and we shall soon have our annual visit from the potato bug.

It is understood that F. M. Smythe, of Wadley & Smythe, the New York and Newport florists, has purchased Mr. Wadley's interest in the business and will hereafter conduct the establishment himself.

During the week Mr. Macomber has been here for the Walter A. Wood Mowing Machine Company; Mr. Case for the Pratt Food Company, and Mr. Sawyer for Bowker Insecticide Company.

The city council committee has advertised for sealed proposals for furnishing the plants and bulbs and the general care for one year of the Jews cemetery, Bellevue avenue and Kay street.

Miss Emily Isabel Wadley, only daughter of Albert Wadley, of Wadley & Smythe, was married last week to Arthur Trumbull Goodenough, of Bristol, Conn.

A sunken garden is being arranged for E. C. Knight, Jr., at the lower end of Bellevue avenue. X.

Tacoma, Wash.

The Tacoma Floral Company will build at once a range of new houses, starting with about 5,000 square feet of glass, and expects to conduct a general floral business and will also handle seeds. The members of the company are J. H. Wall, F. E. Beal and S. L. Harper, the last named having charge as manager. The business will be located at North Twenty-sixth and Proctor streets and will, for the present, consist of three houses.

MT. VERNON, IA.—Chas. Meeks and Neff & Company have gone into partnership in the cut flower business, Mr. Meeks furnishing the flowers and Neff & Company managing the business.

Business has been good all spring, although the weather has been against us. Bedding plants sold better than ever and most all of the florists are entirely sold out. Decoration business has been good and stock has been plentiful except peonies. Carnations take the lead in cut flowers and lilies and potted hydrangeas sold well.

There is some building going on this season. H. Slocomb, the successful violet grower, will erect two houses 30x250 feet for violets. Hess & Swoboda are finishing one house 24x200 feet for roses. E. Hooze will erect two houses and an office. L. Henderson will erect one or two houses. P. H. Floth intends to erect one or two houses.

W. J. Hesser, of Plattsmouth, Neb., sold his entire stock of palms, ferns, etc., at one of our department stores (10,000 plants) in less than three days. The public bought them up like hot cakes for from 1 cent to 25 cents each regardless of the poor quality of the stock. Mr. Hesser left for California, where he will make his future home.

King's park had a bad fire a week ago. Much damage to the beautiful trees was wrought.

H. Peterson, of Florence, Neb., has given up his store down town.

SWANN'S POTTERY M'FG CO.,
P. O. Box 78. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Louisville, Ky.

The last week has been fair, but had it not been for one or two amateur performances we would have been stocked to our capacity. Peonies are now in their glory but were rather hard to obtain the first part of the week. Carnations are plentiful, and roses are about equal to the demand. Ferns can now be had in quantity.

The bedding season from present indications promises to be the best we have had for a good while, although prices in Louisville are about the same in comparison as those in Baltimore for oysters. Four-inch stocky plants of geraniums, in bloom, picked out by the buyers, and planted, sell for $1 per dozen, and then a rebate is asked for the empty pots. One report was circulated that heliotropes, stocky plants, could be purchased at 50 cents per dozen. A firm doing business this way can't expect much of an opinion from its associates. Next year all interested in the welfare of the business will raise prices on a good many things fifty per cent.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club will be held Tuesday night, June 7, at the establishment of Joseph Coenen & Company. All are requested to be present as convention matters will again come up. "The Rose" will be the topic at this meeting.

William Walker has been having some white sweet peas of exceptional quality. Mrs. Walker now has charge of the store, Miss Edith Walker having accepted a position with the Ray Company to take charge of the cut flower department.

Carnations are pretty well established by now, but are greatly needing a rain, there having been none here for a good while. However it has been cool and that probably prevented them from suffering to any extent.

At Schulz's are to be seen some excellent cyclamens and Lorraine begonias, which from present indications will surpass the record made by them last Easter.

Mrs. C. B. Thompson who has been very low for quite a while is slightly improved.

F. Walker & Company will probably occupy their new store June 1.

Minneapolis, Minn.

Memorial week business was very unsettled. The forepart saw an over-supplied market, while the remaining days were full of orders and late buyers. Saturday witnessed some difficulty in securing stock. Carnations jumped from $1.50 to $2.50, to $3 and $4 per 100. Teas sold readily at from $4 to $8 per 100. Short and medium stemmed Beauty roses were in great demand and brought highest values. Bedding stock commenced Wednesday to move in lumps and growers found by Monday that they could have disposed of quantities more. The late season is the cause of this noticeable demand, there being no outside stock at all. The street fakirs in the flower line are very noticeable of late and retailers feel the effects of the low prices at which they dispose of their stock. Although the quality of blooms the Greek sells is poor the low price catches a great number of flower buyers.

Ralph Latham reports trade first class and is well pleased with his undertaking in business for himself.

Decoration day business was very good. Since hardly any outdoor flowers were available, greenhouse flowers, of which there was an immense supply, were pretty well cleaned up. While this hits the rose and carnation growers just right it does not please the man with the peony patch. Peonies will be out in about a week and very likely this city will have an oversupply of them. The two days preceding Decoration day were the most beautiful days we had this season. Memorial day, however, brought heavy rain and cold winds.

August Grande will add one house 10x100 feet. John Heidenreich will build a carnation house 25x100 feet. E. Huckriede & Son are booked for two houses 16x75 and a general renovation of their place. M. Nelson has one new house nearly completed.

Wm. Hack has put off building until next year, as all his ground is well occupied with outdoor stock, of which Mr. Hack makes a specialty. He is known in this vicinity as the boss grower of gladioli, asters and dahlias.

Henry Ricman is doing an immense business in hedging plants this season. He claims, however, that plant trade is not the best paying branch of his business.

Ed. Bertermann and family sailed for Europe June 4. Ed, with his unlimited capacity for enjoying things, is undoubtedly the happiest man in the trade.

John Bertermann has returned from a trip to St. Louis. J.

Albany, N. Y.

Local florists report a good business for Saturday preceding Memorial day, on the whole a little better than last year. In this section Memorial day was rainy and the sales were not so large on that account. A number of dinners and other social functions kept the trade well supplied with work this week. A small dinner of eighteen covers on Tuesday evening at the Ten Eyck furnished H. G. Eyres an order for a handsome centrepiece of Bridesmaid roses and corsage bouquets of cattleyas and lily of the valley.

H. G. Eyres left a week ago for a few days' trout fishing at Moose river in the Adirondack region.

W. N. Campbell, representing Vaughan's New York seed store, called on the local florists Tuesday.

Miss E. Hansen, of Catskill, was in Albany over Memorial day. R. D.

CROP INSURANCE.
 Life insurance is valuable because it guarantees the outcome.

"Gurney" Heaters

"BRIGHT IDEA," "DORIC" and "400 SERIES" do the same thing for your hothouse: THEY GUARANTEE THE CROP. First of all they save 20 per cent on the coal bill and so keep expense at a minimum. Next, they produce an even heat and so do not imperil the life of the plant. Next, they are simple to operate and so require least attention. Lastly, they wear longer than others and thus perceptibly reduce the capital invested. Don't buy or exchange until you've investigated them.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

ST. PAUL, MINN.—There will be no chrysanthemum exhibition this year, as there are several other things that might interfere with it, so the Women's Auxiliary has decided to postpone it for twelve months.

Housing the Young Plants.

The early and midseason varieties intended for bench culture for commercial cut blooms should be planted from now on as soon as the beds can be made ready to receive them, using the regulation bench of six inches deep, filled even full with a good live soil. This should be in the proportion of three parts soil to one part well rotted manure, making it as firm as is possible by treading it down so that when ready to plant the bench will be full to the top and the surface of the bed as even as it can be made. For the best results for this purpose the stock at planting time should be vigorous, healthy plants from 2 or 2½ inch pots. These can be planted 6x8 inches apart according to the number of rows of plants the width of the benches will allow, but I would not advise any closer planting than this with the object of squeezing in another row. If there is space left across the bench but not enough for another row without setting closer than the distance mentioned rather than crowd them any more give the plants the benefit of it by planting a little farther apart.

The most important consideration in growing chrysanthemums for commercial cut flowers is a careful selection of the most suitable varieties to meet the demands of the trade, also those that will return as nearly as possible 100 per cent of perfect blooms; also varieties of good keeping qualities and which are not easily damaged in handling or shipping. These are all vital points to bear in mind at this time to bring success later on. In growing for market in large centers it is not necessary to grow a large number of varieties, the demand being very limited for boxes of assorted varieties or colors. What the retailers in large cities usually want are good, clear, bright colors of good keeping qualities. Enough of the one kind or color to use in big decorations and a box of two or three dozen of one variety and color if in good condition will in most cases bring the best prices. The florist in small cities who grows for the local demand has so many different whims and fancies to cater to that he is obliged to add a great deal more variety to his collection than just white, pink and yellow. It is also a good business advertisement for him to have some of the big monsters found among the odd colors as an attraction though they cannot be said to be of much value from a strictly commercial point of view.

The cuttings of the late varieties should be put in the sand now to make plants for planting the last of July. Give them a shady bench with clean, sharp sand. They will require abundance of water at this time of the year to prevent wilting, but if this is attended to they will root readily in a short while. Cuttings can also be put in from now on for single stem plants in pots or for growing into market plants in 6 or 7-inch pots. If one has a vacant bench in one of the houses and wishes to grow some market plants they can be planted in the benches now and kept pinched back to make good bushy plants, allowing room enough for the spread of the plant required. These will make fine stock by September, at which time they can be taken from the bench and potted into pots. There is considerable trouble saved in potting and watering by following this method, but particular attention must be paid to keep them properly pinched back or they will soon become spindly.

From June 15 to July 1 exhibition bush plants and standards should receive their final potting. The size of the pot must be governed to some extent by the specification of the premium list, but where there is no restriction I figure on a 12-inch pot being large enough for all purposes. At this potting these plants require a good, rich, porous soil with plenty of drainage to the pots. Pot as firm as possible, being particularly careful not to break the branches during the operation, as a branch broken now means several weeks' growth lost which is impossible to replace. Particular care must be taken after potting to make sure the plants are not overwatered before the roots have a chance to take hold of the fresh soil. Once in active growth again, keep pinching the growths back to insure a uniform and even specimen. The standard should have good sized heads by this time and the closer they are kept pinched back for a while the finer will be the plant next fall. The standards should also be properly supported with a good strong stake to prevent damage by syringing or otherwise.

REVISED TRADE EXHIBITION RULES.

1. The society shall, through its executive board, control all features of the trade exhibition.
2. There shall be appointed annually at the winter meeting of the executive board a superintendent of exhibits. The vice-president of the society, or the local organization in the place where the convention of the current year is to be held, shall be invited to recommend such superintendent for election by the executive board, as aforesaid. Said superintendent shall have general charge of all details of the annual exhibition. He shall receive all applications for space and assign the same in the order in which they are received by him. He shall provide and arrange all necessary tables and staging. He shall furnish the society, through the secretary thereof, a list of the exhibitors and exhibits by 1 p. m. on the day of opening the convention. He shall also furnish the secretary with a list of novelties and new devices submitted for awards, said list to be for the use of the judges. After the close of the convention he shall make full report of receipts and expenditures and other details of the exhibition, the same to be embodied in the annual report of the society.

3. Exhibition space shall be designated in square feet, at a maximum charge of 25 cents per foot for all space less than twelve feet; more than twelve and less than fifty feet, 21 cents; more than fifty and less than 100 feet, 19 cents; 100 feet or more, 18 cents, no entry to be accepted for less than $2.

4. Wall space shall be measured four feet in height, and when practicable a table not less than one foot wide shall be added gratis, if desired and applied for with entry.

5. Exhibition classes to be arranged as follows: A—plants; B—cut blooms; C—boilers and heating apparatus; D—greenhouse appliances, including flower pots; E—florists' supplies, including fancy earthenware; F—bulbs and seeds; G—miscellaneous.

6. Exhibitors may group their goods together, excepting in the case of living plants and cut flowers. These shall be shown in a separate department from the other classes.

7. Exhibitors showing novelties or improved devices which they wish to have examined by the judges for such special notice or award as they may be deemed worthy of, shall make an itemized entry thereof with the superintendent in advance.

8. The president shall appoint, not less than one month in advance of the convention, three judges who shall receive for their services such remuneration as the executive board may determine. They shall examine specially entered exhibits and make detailed report thereon promptly to the secretary on the afternoon of the first day of the convention.

9. For exhibits deemed worthy thereof diplomas of the three grades may be given, as follows: Certificate of Merit, Honorable Mention, Highly Commended.

10. No distinction as "First," "Second," "Best," or "Largest," or other mention indicating comparisons with other exhibits shall be made, and diplomas of equal value may be awarded to several exhibits in the same class.

The Late August Schmitt.

11. Each award must be accompanied by a statement indicating on what special points of excellence it was based.

12. In case any article or device has received an award at a previous S. A. F. exhibition, awards shall cover subsequent improvements only.

13. No award shall be made covering the quality of seeds, fertilizers, paints and other articles of such nature that an intelligent opinion cannot be had without a practical test.

14. No awards shall be made to exhibitors who are not members of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists.

15. The exhibition shall be closed during the hours when the convention is in session.

16. Exhibits not in position before 1 p. m. on the first day of the convention may be excluded from mention in the superintendent's report or consideration by the judges.

17. The exhibition shall open not less than two hours before the opening of the morning session, to remain open until 10 p. m. each day except during the session hours, as provided in Section 15.

18. No article exhibited shall be removed until after the close of the last day's session except by permission of the superintendent of the exhibition.

19. All adjustments not covered by rules or published action of the executive board shall be referred to that committee. [Attention is specially directed to rule seven at this time.—Ed.]

Greenhouse Heating.

At the last annual meeting of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, says the Engineering Review, the following topic was brought up for discussion:

"Has latest practice demonstrated the advisability of using smaller sized pipe in hot water systems in greenhouses?"

This discussion, however, was not confined alone to the necessary size of piping for any one system, but eventually broadened into a general discussion of the different merits of hot water and steam for heating greenhouses.

It is not in the province of an article of this character to enter into an academic discussion of the merits or demerits of the two systems in general use. We think, however, that an article descriptive of greenhouse heating will not, at this time, be untimely and will, we hope, prove interesting.

The greenhouses at the United States Soldiers' Home, Washington, D. C., contain about 16,300 square feet of glass surface and equivalent. The building consists of seven compartments, as shown in plan, Fig. 1. All of these houses are heated by hot water except the palm house, which, as it is located at a higher level than the other houses, is heated by steam supplied by a 4-inch high pressure main from the power house located about 300 feet distant.

Another reason for the use of steam in the palm house lay in the desire to economize space by the use of small pipes,

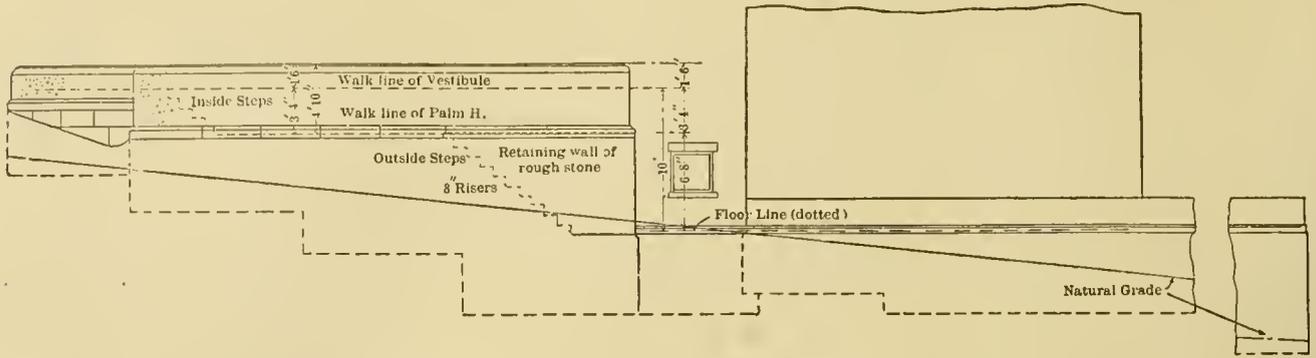

Alexander McPherson.

(Superintendent of grounds and greenhouses, National Soldiers' Home, Washington, D. C.)

which are kept concealed as far as possible.

As shown in Fig. 1, a regulating pressure valve is placed on the main line, which is used as required, the line being so valved that the pressure valve can be cut out if desired, thus allowing the use of either high or low pressure steam.

Engineering Review

(From Engineering Review.)

The piping in the palm house consists of twelve 1½-inch wrought iron coils, containing about 3,000 feet of pipe, hung on the walls with adjustable clamp hangers fastened to angle iron uprights.

Details of these coil connections and coil hangers and also of the coil connections in the vestibule are shown in Fig. 1.

The floor of the vestibule or lobby, through which the building is entered, is elevated about four feet above the floor of the palm house, which is clearly shown in elevation, Fig. 2.

The 4-inch high pressure main, which supplies the heat for the palm house, also supplies steam at fifteen pounds pressure through a 2-inch connection to a 400 H. P. National water heater, manufactured by the National Pipe Bending Company, placed in the heater room, to which the mains running through the various houses are attached.

All of the hot water pipes except those in the violet house, which are 2-inch wrought iron, are 3½-inch cast iron pipe. They are located under the benches and are supported by cast iron pipe chairs, which in turn rest on brick piers.

The arrangement of these pipes is clearly shown in a cross section through the plant house, Fig. 3, which is typical of the general arrangement.

At the extreme end of each coil of the hot water heating system, patent automatic air headers are placed, by the use of which the air is automatically expelled from the pipes. The use of these headers obviates the necessity of open tanks and pipes standing above the tables taking up plant space, which are unsightly in appearance and frequently allow the hot water to overflow, destroying the plants around them.

There is about 3,500 feet of cast iron pipe in the various houses, while the violet house contains 200 feet of wrought iron pipe.

A detail of the expansion tank is shown in Fig. 1. The open tank system is employed.

Where the ground is level the running of the pipes becomes a comparatively easy proposition, but where the grade falls away quickly, as in this case, it sometimes becomes quite a problem to arrange the pipes to obtain the best results. We have referred before to the vestibule being elevated above the palm house floor. The palm house is about seven feet above the rest of the houses, while the violet house is considerably lower than any of the others.

This elevation in the case of the palm house was overcome by the adaptation of steam. The manner of running the pipes in the violet house is clearly shown, the pipes being elevated to give a column.

The houses are heated to maintain the following temperatures when the outside temperature is zero:

Palm house.....	55 to 60 degrees.
Plant house.....	55 to 60 degrees.
Rose house.....	55 to 60 degrees.
Propagating house.....	55 to 60 degrees.
Carnation house.....	45 to 50 degrees.
Violet house.....	40 to 45 degrees.

Iron body, brass mounted valves are placed on the heating system so arranged to control the heat in each house.

The building was designed and erected and the heating system installed by the Lord & Burnham Company, New York and Irvington-on-the-Hudson, N. Y.

National Soldiers' Home, Washington.

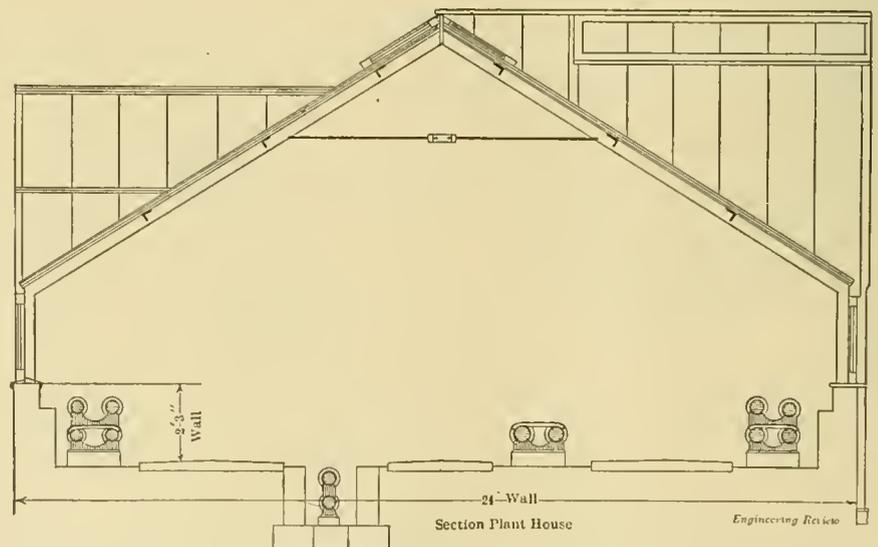

There are few more interesting points about the national capital than the Soldiers' Home, with its magnificent and thoroughly equipped buildings, its landscape of woodland and lake, and an important and attractive feature are the greenhouses, illustrations of which are herewith given. Alexander McPherson is the capable superintendent of grounds and greenhouses. A native of Scotland, Mr. McPherson was well versed in his profession when he came to the United States. For a number of years he held important positions in the vicinity of New York. Five years ago he came to the Soldiers' Home, and to-day there are many evidences of his handiwork to be seen there.

Solanum Capsicastrum.

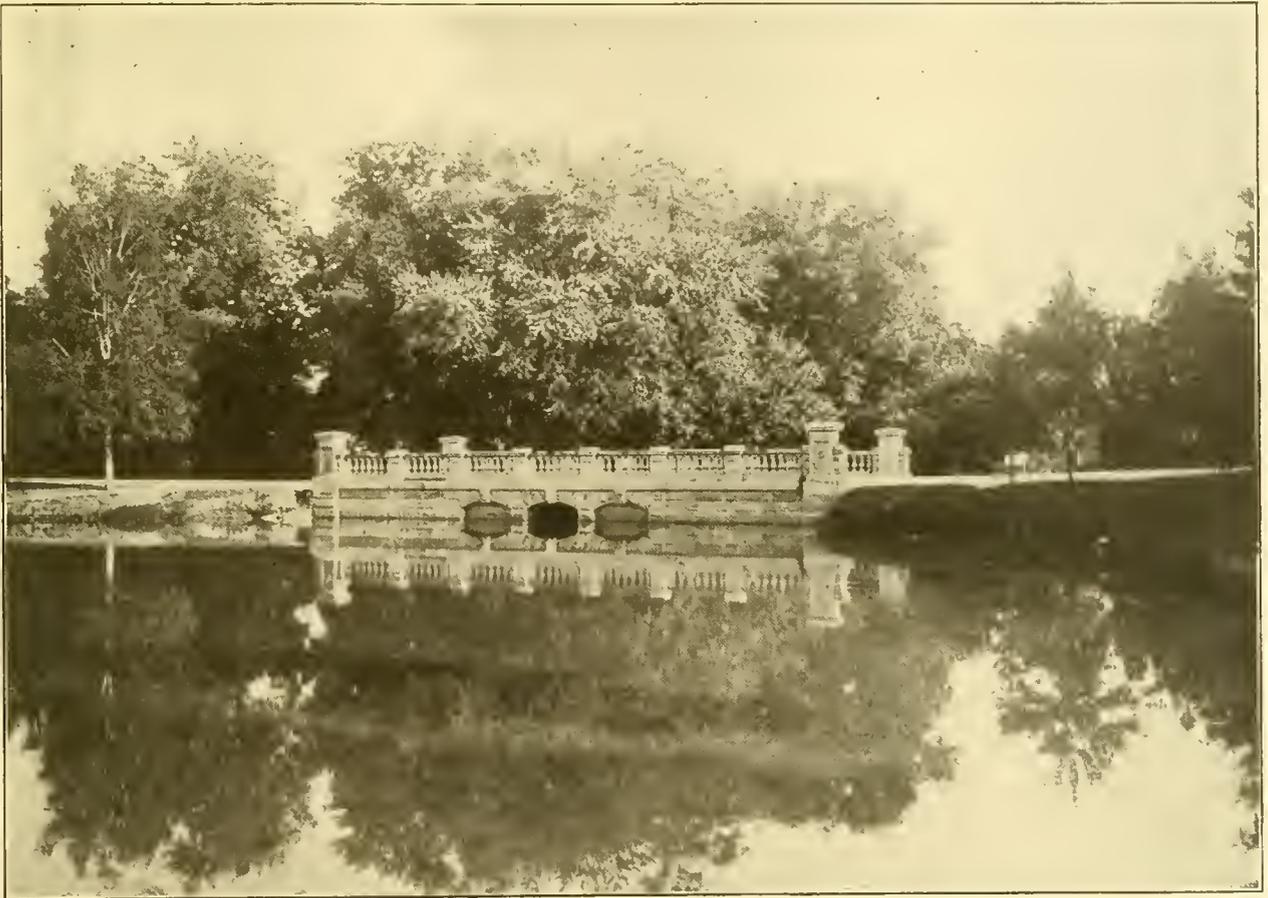

Assuming the gardener cut back his plants of this species early last month, leaving about an inch of last season's growth, and placed them in a cold pit or frame, and syringed them twice a day, the plants will now be pushing new growth and may be shaken out of the soil and repotted in pots of the same size, well crocking them, as the plant requires much water when in active growth and out-of-doors, says a correspondent of the Gardeners' Chronicle. Sound loam two-thirds, and leaf soil one-third, with a small quantity of bone meal and coarse sand, make a good potting mixture. Pot firmly and place the plants in the frame; shade during the strong sunshine and keep close for four or five days. When the plants commence to grow, place them out of doors in a sunny position on a hard bottom, and fill up around the pots with spent mushroom-bed manure or that from an exhausted hot-bed, covering the pots completely. Generally it is necessary to rub off some of the shoots that come away, but retain the stronger, and pinch out the points when two inches long. As soon as the flowers begin to expand, and right up to the time the berries begin to color, weak soot water may alternate with clean water. In some gardens the plants must be enclosed in netting, to keep the birds from eating the berries when they begin to ripen. Let the plants be housed towards the end of October; placing them in a light position, and if required early, afford slight warmth in order to ripen the fruits. Cuttings should be struck annually in January or February on mild bottom heat. When rooted, pot singly in 3-inch pots, and stop the shoots thrice, otherwise treat like the old plants. Some gardeners raise their plants from seed, sowing in January, but the habit of the plant is too straggly for most gardeners, although others admire the lack of primness, and the greater freedom and negligence appearance of such plants.

Philadelphia Gleanings.

At the Girard college grounds the pansies are still in good shape. The favorites are Emperor William and a yellow with dark eye, Lord Beaconsfield. There are two solid beds of each of the above and two beds of a mixture. The plan carried out by the late Mr. Huster was to sow the seed in August and transplant them into cold frames for the winter as soon as ready to handle. As soon as the weather permitted in the spring alter the tulips made their appearance above the ground the pansies were dibbled in between the rows, and just as soon as the tulips commence to look shabby the flower stems were cut and a pansy bed in full bloom appeared.

Spring bedding is a feature here on account of Founder's day, Stephen Girard's birthday, May 20, when all the graduates from this institution are invited with their friends to celebrate the occasion. It is estimated that about 15,000 persons were in the grounds last Friday. At the present time there are upward of 1,500 boys being cared for and educated at the college and nearly 400 persons are engaged directly and indirectly in the good work.

When the spring bedding is on the wane crotons become supreme. It was the late Gec. Huster who popularized the croton as a bedding plant. Among geraniums which are now planted out here are John Doyle and S. A. Nutt, in reds, and Jean Viaud, Mme. Deering and Glorious in pinks. The latter variety was secured from Paul Hubner, who found it at Trenton. Whether it is a Trenton seedling or a renamed good variety no one appears to know. For these grounds it is away ahead of any other pink variety. La Favorite is the only white grown. The only coleuses used are Golden Bedder and Verschaffeltii. Abutilon Savitzii is a very effective edging plant, though Geranium Mme. Salleroy is used in large numbers for that purpose. All the best alternantheras, among them Brilliantissima, are used and echeveria in the best varieties. Geranium Dryden is being tried in a small way, and a few others, H. Trego being one of them.

World's Fair Notes.

The Missouri State Horticultural society held its summer meeting in the hall of the Horticulture building, June 7 to 10. Many valuable papers relating to orcharding and small fruit growing were read and the liberal premiums offered by the society brought out a large exhibit of strawberries. At the session of Tuesday morning, Stark Brothers, of Louisiana, Mo., claimed that they had suffered in reputation and from a business standpoint by the report of the committee appointed by the society last year to investigate the origin of the Gano and Black Ben Davis apples, as the committee had reported that it could detect no differences and that as the Gano was first named, it should have priority. Professor Dutcher, of Warrensburg, presented a resolution to the effect that as the public had misunderstood the attitude taken by Stark Brothers in the matter, the society wished it understood that in making the investigation there had been no idea of interfering with the commercial side of the question.

On Friday and Saturday of last week, a rainfall of more than two inches, most of which fell within a space of two hours, washed the cinder drives in many parts of the grounds, but did little harm to the bedding plants. In fact, in most instances it was a benefit, as it aided in establishing the large plants of cannas and geraniums which had just been set.

Many improvements in a landscape way are being made about the New York state building. It will include a water garden and a large amount of shrubbery and bedding plants on the north side of the building.

Orlando A. Harrison, of the firm of H. G. Harrison & Sons, the well known nurserymen of Berlin, Maryland, is at the fair as one of the commissioners for the state of Maryland.

Mexico has received another large shipment of greenhouse plants, mostly palms and dracanas, which has been placed in the conservatory in the Palace of Horticulture.

W. F. Heikes, Huntsville, Ala., and Professor H. C. Irish, of Shaw's Garden, have been acting as members of the jury of awards in horticulture during the past week.

The bulbs of tulips and hyacinths have been removed from the beds in the terrace east of the Palace of Agriculture and they will be filled with foliage plants.

Several hundred Magna Charta and Paul Neyron roses exhibited by the Heikes' Wholesale nurseries, of Huntsville, Ala., are now at their best.

The bed of rhododendrons referred to in the issue of May 28, as exhibited by J. B. Wild & Brothers, is really a part of the exhibit of Siebrecht & Son.

Prizes for Gardens and Greenhouses.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Boston, distributed the following in the form of a circular, May, 1904:

The committee on gardens of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society respectfully invites the attention of owners of estates in New England to the premiums offered by this society for the purpose of encouraging the development and ornamentation of private grounds and the establishment and maintenance of greenhouses for the culture of plants, fruits and vegetables.

For more than fifty years the society, through this committee, has endeavored to promote the interest in this line of horticultural progress, and the general improvement manifest in suburban and rural places during this period attests the value of this department of the society's work and the success which has attended its efforts in this direction.

In presenting the schedule of prizes for the year, the committee desires to state that in addition to the special objects mentioned its members will be glad to inspect places devoted to the culture of any productions of merit, either under glass or in open ground, and to award such gratuities as may be deemed suitable.

The special rules of the committee and the list of prizes for the year are as follows:

1. All applications for visits may be made to the secretary of the society at any time during the season.

2. It shall be the duty of the committee to select from the applications those which may seem most deserving of notice, and to visit as many places and as often as may be deemed expedient.

3. In making all examinations, the utmost regard must be paid to economy and general thrift; in cases, however, of pleasure, landscape, or ornamental grounds, more allowance must be made for taste and design, and a gratuity or complimentary notice may be given at the discretion of the committee.

4. The committee may, at its discretion, give prizes or other awards as may best promote the objects of the society, and meet special cases, always, of course, within the limits of the appropriation.

5. Competitors for the prizes shall furnish to the committee, if required, written statements of their mode of cultivation, and any other particulars of general interest concerning the arrangement of their grounds and greenhouses.

6. The expenses of the committee shall be paid by the society, and a record shall be kept by the chairman of all places visited.

H. H. HUNNEWELL TRIENNIAL PREMIUMS.

For an estate of not less than three acres, which shall be laid out with the most taste, planted most judiciously, and kept in the best order for three consecutive years, a prize of $160; second prize $80.

JOHN A. LOWELL FUND.

For the best house of chrysanthemums arranged for effect with other plants in pots, $40; second prize $20.

For the best house or houses of chrysanthemums grown on benches $40; second prize $20.

SPECIAL PRIZE OFFERED BY EDWARD HATCH.

For the best house of fruit, plants grown in pots or tubs included, $30; second prize $20.

SOCIETY'S PRIZES.

For the best house, not commercial, of palms and foliage plants, $30; second prize $20.

For the best house of foreign grapes, $30; second prize $20.

For the best house, not commercial, of carnations, $30; second prize $20.

For the best house, not commercial, of roses, $30; second prize $20.

For the best vegetable garden, not commercial, $30; second prize $20.

duced on strong plants remind one of a miniature double stock. The plant itself is of the easiest cultivation, and may be propagated to any extent after flowering by the simple division of the pieces. While it is yet scarce, however, the grower may propagate it by cuttings that have not flowered, and before the latter get ripened up by dry weather. If this is done early in the season the plants may be rooted and established sufficiently before September to come into bloom again, provided there is a fairly liberal rainfall about that time to start them into fresh growth. Few spring-flowering plants are more popular than the ordinary single form, but I think that when the double one has become more widely distributed and plentiful it will take the place of the single one. That is, if no objection is taken to double flowers, and very few gardeners reject them.

Piping for Greenhouse.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—How many lines of 3-inch pipe will it take to heat four houses each 20x100? The temperature wanted is 58° at night. Also how many lines of 3-inch pipe will it take to heat two houses, each 10x100, one house at a temperature of 58° at night and the other for propagating, temperature 55° at the top and at the bottom 65°. Will a 6-inch main be large enough? The height of the large houses to the ridge is twelve feet and the small houses eight feet.

SUBSCRIBER.

If the houses are situated where the mercury does not fall more than 10° below zero, the houses twenty feet wide can be heated by means of three 3-inch flows and six 3-inch returns. For the house ten feet wide, in which 58° is desired, it will be advisable to use one 3-inch flow and four 3-inch returns. In case the walls are neither of them exposed and the house is in a sheltered location, it might be possible to do the work with two 3-inch flows and two 3-inch returns, but it would be hardly advisable. In the house in which bottom heat is desired, it will be best to use two 3-inch flows and four 3-inch returns. If the main is a short one and the coils are well above the top of the heater, a 6-inch main would answer for the six houses. These estimates are given with the idea that there is no exposed glass in the side walls of the houses. L. R. T.

American Peony Society.

The first annual meeting of the American Peony Society was held at the New York Botanical Garden Wednesday evening, June 8, with President C. W. Ward in the chair and about ten members in attendance. The report of Secretary A. H. Fewkes showed a membership of twenty-three, and Treasurer J. H. Humphreys reported a balance in the treasury of $175.

The nomenclature committee's report stated that a list had been compiled comprising the names of all French and Belgian introductions since 1824, all the English introductions since 1884, all the Japanese introductions with the correct English translations of their names added and all American seedlings, making a total of over 1,100 original descriptions. The list of the Holland Peony Association has been obtained, comprising nearly 300 sorts.

It was announced by the president that arrangements had been perfected with Professor Craig, at Cornell University, for an extended series of tests and comparison of varieties under cultivation.

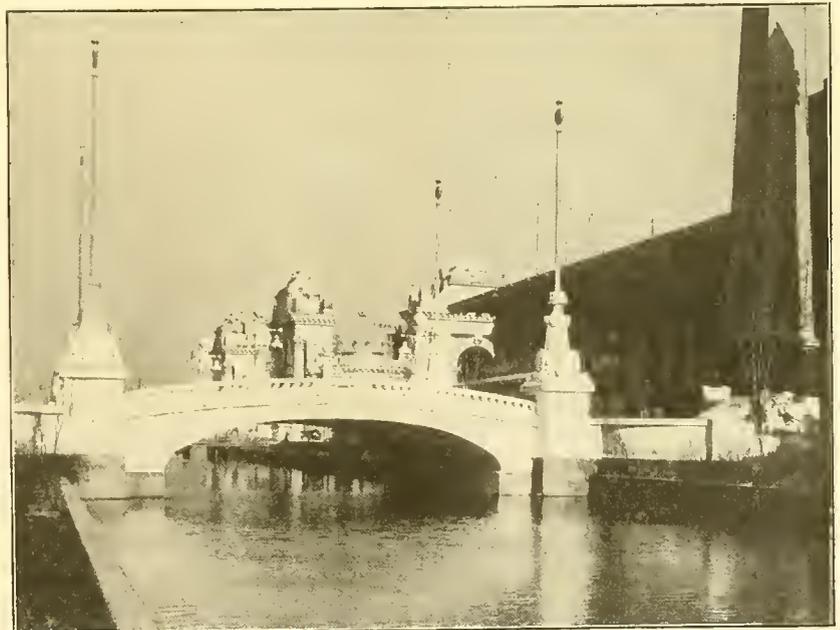

Last year's officers were re-elected excepting that Theodore Smith, of Geneva, succeeds C. S. Harrison, of York, Neb., as a director. The matter of incorporation was deferred, owing to a defect in the papers.

A discussion participated in by Winfried Rolker, E. A. Reeves, the secretary and the president brought out the fact that peonies less than four years in one location are apt to have blighted flower buds, that fall planting is preferable, when practicable, to spring planting, that peonies like rich garden loam, with sandy loam blooming a few days earlier, that lime is advantageous if used on land where acidity prevails and that liberal manure is essential and mulching beneficial.

Two new members were admitted and the press committee instructed was to prepare a pamphlet for circulation with a view to increasing the membership. A. Dessert, the well known French peony specialist, was elected an honorary member.

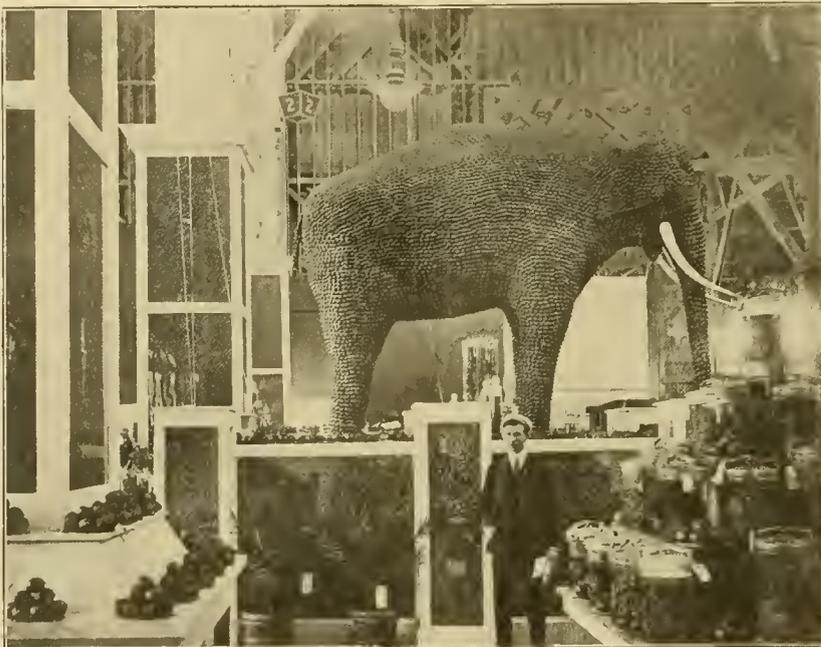

THE EXHIBITION.

The exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York in conjunction with the American Peony Society was a good one, especially in peonies. C. W. Ward, of the Cottage Gardens, being the largest exhibitor, with between two and three hundred varieties of peonies, won the gold medal offered. Betscher Brothers, Canal Dover, O.; Frank Gould, Siebrecht & Son, of New York; the Andorra Nurseries, Chestnut Hill, Pa., and the Sunnyside Greenhouse, also showed peonies. The prizes for hardy roses were awarded to Howard Nichol, first, and Siebrecht & Son, second; for herbaceous perennials, to the Blue Hill Nursery, of South Braintree, Mass., and Siebrecht &

The United States department of agriculture has decided to establish a plant introduction garden and experiment station at Chico, Cal. Contracts for the necessary land has been closed and work has been begun on what will undoubtedly be one of the greatest institutions of its kind in America. A beginning will be made with ninety acres, but it is the intention of the department to extend the area as the needs of the institution require. The garden will be devoted to experimental culture of the plants introduced from all parts of the world and to a careful study of plant life.

Such an institution has long been contemplated by the agricultural department. California was selected for its location on account of climatic conditions which admit of the culture of tender plants from the tropics and of northern products as well. The ideal location for such an institution is that which admits of the successful cultivation of the widest possible range of products, and the committee entrusted with the duty of selecting the site believes it has found it at Chico.

This committee was composed of Prof. P. H. Dorsett, government expert, who will have charge of the institution, and Prof. A. V. Stubenrauch, of the University of California, acting with Dr. A. J. Pieters, head of the division for seed and plant distribution. Messrs. Dorsett and Stubenrauch spent months in making a careful study of conditions affecting plant life in various portions of the state, visiting and carefully inspecting each locality likely to prove available. The decision in favor of Chico was reached some time ago, but the site selected could not be secured and another tract had to be chosen, which has now been done and the purchase consummated.

Chico is situated near the eastern border of the great Sacramento valley, seventy-five miles north of Sacramento, and was the most northerly point considered by the committee. Climatic conditions in California are affected but little if at all by conditions of latitude, the orange, the lemon and the olive being staple products of a district that measures fully five hundred miles north and south.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—C. L. Reese, the florist of 60 South Limestone street, was elected a member of the Commercial Club at its last meeting, June 2.

SOUTH WEYMOUTH, MASS.—Charles B. Stevens has transferred to James McBride of Worcester five acres of land in Adams Place, near this town. A frame dwelling, stable and new greenhouse are included. The purchaser will probably build new greenhouses and give his attention to growing flowers.

THE RETAIL TRADE

A VAST bank of Anthurium Scherzerianum was the feature of Thorley's window decoration on Broadway, New York, last week.

Crane-Higinbotham Wedding Decorations.

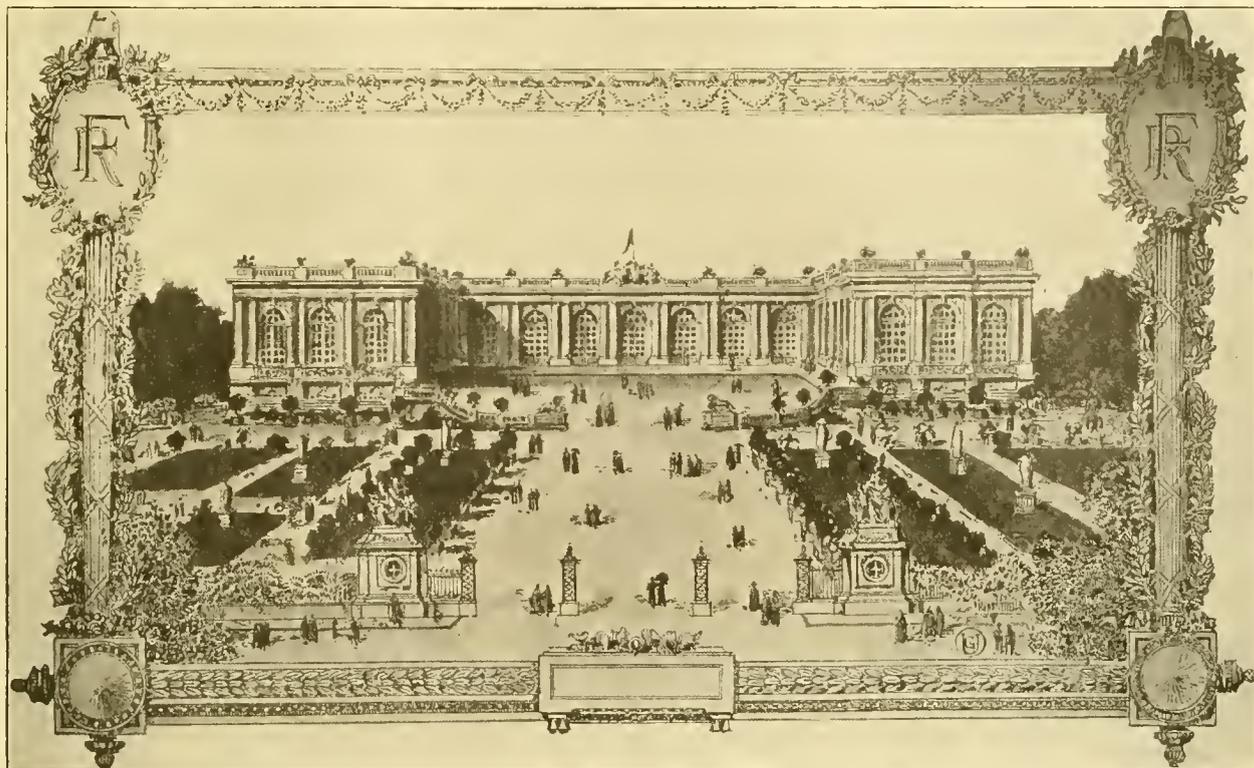

The wedding of the week in Chicago was that of Miss Florence Higinbotham, daughter of H. N. Higinbotham, to R. T. Crane, Jr., son of the Crane Company's president. The decorations were superintended by James Hartshorne, of the Carnation Company, of Joliet, who has executed all of the Higinbotham decorations since the Chicago World's Fair. The Chicago Carnation Company's retail department had the decorations, assisted by the George Wittbold Company in the plant line. Flowers used were chiefly Spiræa Van Houttei and white and pink peonies. Mr. Hartshorne was given carte blanche orders to spare nothing, but to have the decorations in general as pretty as they could possibly be. The walls leading from the main hall to the upper floors were covered with a network of wire hung from the ceiling and covered with wild smilax, on which was tied festoons and sprays of the bridal wreath. Hanging in the spacious hall was a huge bell, containing 2,500 white marguerites, under which the bridal procession passed: Ten other 12-inch bells were done with carnations.

The door casings of the drawing room were garlanded with bridal wreaths fastened to strings of Asparagus plumosus. The chandeliers were decorated with the same. The mantel was banked with crottons, ferns, etc., in pots, and single white peonies interspersed among them. The improvised altar consisted of a canopy made in the form of a sea shell, which was one of the features of the decoration. Feverfews were used to represent the hollow, wide depressions in the shell, while the ribs were brought out in relief with the use of a light cattleya colored single peony, which looked remarkably like cattleya at a distance of fifteen feet. From the back of the shell hung Asparagus plumosus, and the whole was banked with palms, making this feature very effective.

The dining room was done with that grand peony, Festiva Maxima. A huge arrangement was also the center piece for the buffet table. The hall, 12 feet wide and 100 feet long, was done in wild smilax, in which were single white peonies, the smilax rising from the floor in a careless way to the corners of the ceiling and branching out along the ceiling, giving the appearance of vines growing in a natural way and full of bloom. Fifteen other rooms were decorated with vases of peonies and branches of spiræa.

Chicago.

June weddings and commencement exercises of the many educational institutions have created a good demand for decorations the last week, and it is noteworthy the high grade of blooms which are demanded for these occasions. The retailers are enjoying a fair business in consequence and have their hands full. It is not so rosy, however, in the shipping line, which is nothing to boast of. Just now a remarkable carnation glut prevails and the stock is difficult to move and sell at any price. Peonies have the call over all other lines now and they are coming in from the local farms in great quantity and variety. They are of superb quality this year and bid fair to make a good season during their stay. The weather has remained cool, but notwithstanding this there are great quantities of all kinds of flowers being cut. Roses of the better grades are not so plentiful and are commanding good prices. Ferns are holding firm in price and green goods of all kinds are not in any too good supply.

It will be news to the craft and many friends of L. H. Winterson, of E. F. Winterson Company, to learn of his approaching marriage, which will occur on June 29. The bride-to-be is Miss Steen, an estimable and popular young lady of Lake View. After the ceremony a honeymoon trip will be taken through Wisconsin and other northern states. Congratulations.

The daily newspapers were agog this week over the alleged discovery at the greenhouses at New Castle, Ind., of a new rose, and placed its value at $500. The "discovery" was nothing more than a bloom of Bridesmaid turned partially white, which is of frequent occurrence.

E. Plagge will embark in the growing business at Elmhurst, Ill., this summer. He will start on an unpretentious scale with two houses, 22x250 feet, which he will erect in the near future. Miscellaneous stock will be grown.

E. F. Winterson Company is now getting in large quantities of peonies in the newer varieties from plants that were planted four years ago and that are now in good bearing condition.

Superintendent Warder, of Lincoln park, and W. A. Peterson, of the Peterson Nursery, are at St. Louis this week attending the annual convention of the Park and Outdoor Art Association.

Peter Reinberg's daily cut of Liberty and Chatenay roses is running grandly, and the heavy demand for high class roses keeps them well cleaned up.

E. C. Amling continues to receive the choicest cut of longiflorums received in this market. They are seldom seen so good at this time of year.

Geo. Wittbold Company is inundated with spring work, which is reported heavier than for many years.

The elegant Festiva Maxima peony is seen at its best at J. B. Deamud's. The ruling price is $1 per bunch.

Lawson carnations are now in exceptionally good shape at Sinner Brothers' houses.

J. B. Deamud is spending a week at Cairo, Mich., where his family is summering.

J. A. Budlong reports a good plant trade.

Visitors this week were George H. Cox, with D. C. Noble, Columbia City, Ind.; A. F. Smaltz, Tiffin, O.; Joseph B. Feldman, of the Salt Lake-Huddart Floral Company, Salt Lake City, Utah.

New York.

The cut flower market is in a state of midsummer lassitude. Driven in by the hot weather peonies are piled high in the wholesale markets and in quantity far beyond the capacity of the market. This is also true of most other flowers and roses are not only too abundant but generally poor in quality and much of the stock is badly mildewed.

Marion Montague Henderson, only daughter of Charles Henderson, was married on Tuesday evening, June 7, to Richard Cornelius Loesch. The ceremony took place at Mr. Henderson's home in East Hackensack, N. J., the house being beautifully decorated by Thomas Young, Jr. The spacious piazza was enclosed with drapery and curtains and the reception was held under a canopy of Bride roses and green. The windows and doors were festooned with asparagus and pink and white sweet peas. Heavy draperies of asparagus and Liberty roses were hung on the stair railings and many groups of fine palms adorned the piazza and halls.

Wm. J. Elliott, the genial auctioneer, has been bid in by a fair purchaser, Miss Edna Allin, of New York. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents on June 4. Mr. Elliott says the occasion was of a very conservative character and the scene of the happy honeymoon was laid in the Claremont, Riverside drive.

Two hundred and fifty dollars' worth of prizes are already provided for the games and contests at the great Florists' Club outing on June 29. Those who propose going should help things along by buying tickets early.

A. E. Rendle, the greenhouse and skylight builder, has sued Howard Gould for $33,000 for work on the greenhouses at Castle Gould, near Sands Point, Long Island.

Traendly & Schenck have got well settled down in their fine new store at 44 West Twenty-eighth street. It is very spacious and convenient in all its equipments.

C. A. Dards and Miss Dards sailed on a European trip last Friday on the steam ship Arabic of the White Star line.

Chas. W. Siebrecht, Jr., only child of C. W. Siebrecht, died May 25, aged seventeen months.

L. W. Wheeler, of Vaughan's Seed Store, is away enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Mrs. Wm. Hillebrecht died at Secaucus, N. J., Sunday, June 5.

NOTES.

John Theilmann, of Broadway, Brooklyn, is home again from a two weeks' trip to the Catskill mountains looking very much refreshed.

John Matthews of Great Neck, who underwent an operation recently has recovered enough to be around again.

George Matthews, of Great Neck, has decided to retire from the florist business. Mr. Matthews has some very fine lots at Great Neck which recently have become very valuable.

Herman Keller, who was salesman and bookkeeper for Hermann Dreyer, is going to locate on Jackson avenue and Traus Meadow road, and contemplates building a fine range of glass.

Hermann Dreyer can be seen any day enjoying himself on Jackson avenue in his automobile. Hermann handles the machine like an expert.

Business since Decoration day has been fairly steady and the grade of flowers coming to the market the last week has averaged much better than for that special occasion. Mildew is seen on some of the roses, but the proportion of good stock is satisfactorily large at present.

The rhododendron exhibition at Horticultural hall on Saturday and Sunday, June 4 and 5, was superb beyond all anticipations. Rhododendrons were in evidence in greater numbers than could be expected after such a disastrous winter, but the display of plants and flowers outside of this specialty was the surprising feature, the lecture hall and loggia being filled to overflowing, the arrangement of the groups being excellent and the attendance of visitors very large. In hardy rhododendrons Mrs. J. L. Gardner led, and in tender varieties Walter Hunnewell excelled. Both of these contributors made large displays, T. C. Thurlow and E. P. Shaw sharing with them in the distribution of the special Hunnewell prizes. Prizes for German irises were won by T. C. Thurlow, H. C. Merriam and Wm. Whitman, for pyrethrums by Mrs. Gardner, and for hardy ornamental trees and shrubs by Mrs. Gardner, E. A. Clark and Warren Heustis, respectively. A silver medal was awarded to Walter Hunnewell for display of rhododendrons and honorable mention was given F. J. Rea for new German iris, Her Majesty, and H. C. Merriam for new German iris, Madonna Alba. A vase of splendid spikes of Odontoglossum crispum from E. V. R. Thayer won a vote of thanks for that gentleman and a cultural certificate for the grower, E. O. Orpet. Lager & Hurrell made a fine exhibit of choice orchids in bloom. The Harvard Botanic Garden staged a remarkably extensive and interesting collection of hardy herbaceous flowers and also contributed a central group of Clerodendron Balfouri and fuchsias finished off with cyperus and other grasses. A fine group of palms, azaleas and rhododendrons arranged in a pyramid came from R. & J. Farquhar & Company. T. C. Thurlow, as usual, showed up with an unrivaled lot of azaleas and rhododendrons and Mrs. Gill, J. B. Shurtleff and others were represented by promiscuous exhibits of high merit.

James Quinn, of Brookline, whose death on May 30 we chronicled last week, was a quiet, unassuming man of always genial manner and highly respected by all who knew him. So long had he been in the florist business that none now living can remember when he was not. A more honest man never lived.

John H. Cox, well known as travelling representative for a number of plant and seed establishments for a number of years, sailed for Liverpool on the Ivernia June 7, hoping to regain his health after a long and painful illness.

St. Louis.

We have had an unprecedented amount of rain the last week. The present indications, however, are that the weather will be clear for several days at least. The rain had an adverse effect on the attendance at the fair and has interfered somewhat with the planting and outside work generally. The effect of the precipitation has been noticeable in the poor quality of flowers seen recently, particularly sweet peas, which in many instances are water-soaked and altogether unsalable. In carnations the season is over in many of both standard and fancy varieties, and growers will find it to their advantage to throw out all kinds known to be poor keepers. Prices are hard to quote this week and much left over stock is being dumped. Even the street men are not buying in large quantities, preferring to buy a few dollars' worth at a time to save losses on stock that it seems impossible to hold over to advantage. Peonies are about over in this market, and we think the growers in general are pretty well satisfied with their returns. The carnation men are trying to figure out how to get rid of the big crop of weeds that got a good start in the rains.

"Open" Sunday at the Missouri Botanic Gardens found an ideal day and established a new record for open Sunday in June. Twenty-six thousand two hundred visitors passed through the gates. The largest attendance ever registered in a single day was 30,100. The garden is open every week day but only two Sundays in the year.

Messrs. Miller and Meinhardt are on the jury this week.

Harry Balsley, of Detroit, Mich., was a visitor. J. W. D.

Baltimore.

Last week and up to this writing in the present one trade here has been fairly brisk, quite up, probably, to the average of the season. There have been one or two funerals of prominent people, where, notwithstanding the inhibition of sending flowers published in the papers the floral displays were at once large and choice. Now the commencement season is at its height, and great quantities of all sorts of flowers are in almost daily request. Peonies are a drug in the market, the "farmers'" crop being in. There are too many sweet peas. Really good roses are not equal to the requirements of the market. This is about the situation. The weather is changeable, electric storms being numerous, with the heat reaching up to 90° and more. There have been copious rains and some high winds but no material damage has been done. Naturally, roses hereafter will be shorter in supply, as many houses are being pulled out, but there is no likelihood that all demands will not be easily met. The market for bedding stock is also nearing its close, and the street vendors complain that the flight of people to the country lessens their trade.

Gilbert H. Patterson, one of our old-time gardeners, is lying ill at one of the hospitals from a stroke of apoplexy, and there seems slight hope of his recovery. Many years ago he was gardener to the late Johns Hopkins, a wealthy Baltimorean, who founded the university and hospital which bear his name, at his country place, Clifton, now one of the city parks. Patterson was an expert grape grower in those days, when the culture of exotic grapes under glass was the test and highest achievement of the gardener's skill. Later he was in business for himself, and was connected with a large family, all of whom are engaged in the florists' trade. He has been a pretty regular attendant on the meetings of the Society of American Florists, and always esteemed by the craft.

Halliday Brothers have rented a part of their Charles street store to G. T. Saddler & Sons, one of the oldest optical goods and jewelry firms of this city, until their new building in the burnt district is ready for occupancy. S. B.

The June weddings are making considerable business for the decorators, but trade in trade is slow. It could not be otherwise from the enormous amount of outdoor stock that is now being offered for sale. J. H. Small & Sons had a nice decoration in St. John's Episcopal church, June 4, for the wedding of Miss Annette Pell Townsend, daughter of Mrs. Thomas G. Townsend, to Marshall B. Phillips of Philadelphia. The church decoration was an artistic arrangement of palms, ferns and white peonies. The bride's bouquet was of white orchids and valley; bridesmaids' of pink roses. There was also a fine decoration for the wedding reception, held at the elegant home of the Townsends. Beneath a canopy of Asparagus plumosus nanus profusely decorated with valley and white carnations, a wedding bell of white satin was suspended, the whole being tied and looped with white satin ribbon.

Secretary Wilson recently told the president and cabinet there is a red ant in Guatemala that kills the cotton-boll weevils, and he was having some of them brought to Texas. The secretary, who is one of the best of men, ought to know, but I have been under the impression that they had some native ants in Texas that were wonders for pugnacity and voracity. If killing weevils was the business of ants, the Texas variety would have been at it long ago.

Col. C. S. Bromwell has assumed the duties of the office of superintendent of buildings and grounds, succeeding Col. W. B. Symonds who goes to New York as a member of the barge canal commission at a much higher salary. Col. Theodore Bingham, former incumbent, whose leg was recently amputated, is now said to be out of danger.

All the florists had a great amount of Decoration day work and seem well pleased with the net results.

David Bissett has accepted a position with the Agricultural Department's bureau of plant industry. S. E.

Assignee Burton, of the estate of Robt. Craig & Son, has issued a report showing a net gain of $4,161.50 during the three months he has had charge of the business.

Detroit.

Decoration day being rainy, cold and disagreeable, did not bring much gladness to the florists here, all of whom were looking forward to that event to break the monotony of the dull business prevailing the previous three weeks. Some activity was created, however, by demands from small towns throughout the state, and considerable shipping was done. There was an abundance of all kinds of flowers, and the wholesalers and growers wisely refrained from advancing the prices on anything, and yet there was a surplus to be found almost everywhere. Lilac was fine and plentiful, and had the effect of reducing the call for indoor flowers to a considerable extent. Fortunately local-grown peonies were not yet in, and when they do bloom, which will be soon, there will be a better market for them.

The Club meeting Wednesday evening, June 1, brought out the usual good attendance, and though no particular subject was assigned for the evening, an interesting and enjoyable time was spent. President Breitmeyer, of the S. A. F., was present, and in an address on the benefits of trade organizations he strongly urged all who were not already members of the S. A. F. to join immediately and be present at the St. Louis convention. He also pointed out the wisdom and desirability of life membership in that society, and many of that class may be expected from here the present year. A movement has started, and is finding much favor among the members, to secure permanent and larger quarters for the Club in the new Michigan Cut Flower Exchange building on Miami avenue. The annual summer outing to Bois Blanc Island July 20 promises to be a big success. J. F. S.

Louisville, Ky.

The last week was a very favorable one, causing stock in every line to become scarce. Between weddings and funerals and one or two commencements we had all we could attend to. Although one or two are selling at "old rag" prices, the "regulars" have no trouble in getting their asking. There was such a demand made on peonies that the stock in the vicinity of Louisville simply ran out, and it will be a few days before we are able to secure them in quantity in this section. Roses can be had in quantity, but for quality some other market has to furnish them. Carnations have become scarce and the demand for them is great. Sweet peas can be had in quantity and the quality is good.

August R. Baumer, who recently engaged in business for himself, is still "around the corner," his place always presenting a neat appearance and business seemingly good.

Leo Zoeller, now at Schulz's, will soon erect a house for the growing of carnations. His plants in the field are looking well.

F. Walker & Company recently had their large window blown out of the new store they are about to occupy.

E. Heitz has the honor of having the first Enchantress in bloom in the field. One cutting paid for.

The Ray Company has had an opening, the phonograph playing a prominent part.

George T. Hodges' sweet peas came in nicely for the rush. F. L. S.

Syracuse, N. Y.

Florists have done a large amount of landscape gardening and garden work during the last month and have quite a number of orders at the present time. Henry Morris declares that there has been a cutting of prices and the work is being done at half what they should be getting. "So eager are they to get a $10 job," says Mr. Morris, "they will do a $20 piece of work. The work of filling boxes and urns is being done at half the price of the plants per dozen and the life has been cut out of other prices," he states.

P. R. Quinlan & Company report a large amount of outdoor work. Trade with the approach of Memorial day was unusually good and lots of work in the line of weddings is promised for the present month. The Quinlan company now has six carnation greenhouses at Onondaga Valley, recently completed, and work has been started on six more.

Mr. Morris executed a handsome design for a funeral last week. It was a large circle ordered by the local council of the United Commercial Travelers for the funeral of a member. Inside the circle was a traveler's case with the letters "U. C. T." The coloring was in purple and gold. A. V. B.

Newport, R. I.

We have been having cloudy weather, with considerable rain, for many days, and it does at last seem good to see the sun, even if only for a few hours. It is not so chilly as it has been and begins to appear more like June. The gardens look pretty well, but are still very wet; in fact, everything is damp, we having had little sun thus far. Newport's summer season is already under way, a great many of the season's visitors coming earlier than ever. Trees and shrubbery look fine. It has been many years since the foliage was so thick and luxuriantly green as now; horse chestnut trees are a grand sight and all early flowering shrubbery is superb. It seems as if what had survived the winter was making stronger growth than ever. As previously mentioned, there has been much replanting of beans and vine seeds, the cold, wet weather having rotted everything of a tender nature. What we need is some warm, sunny weather.

The first meeting for June of the Newport Horticultural Society was held Wednesday evening, with vice-president Alexander McLellan in the chair. T. B. Connelly was elected a member of the society. A communication was received from the F. R. Pierson Company, Tarrytown-on-Hudson, N. Y., saying it would be glad to exhibit the Pierson fern at the rose and strawberry show the latter part of this month.

Newport will have another summer palace as soon as it can be built. Edward Stephen Rawson, of New York, has purchased twelve acres of land on Ocean avenue. This lot was the last of the Newport property of Seth Low, ex-mayor of New York, and its sale marks his complete withdrawal from the city. This means another estate to supply with everything in the horticultural line.

The rose and strawberry exhibition of the Newport Horticultural Society will be held June 21 and 22 unless the lateness of the season causes a postponement. The show, as in past seasons, will be held in Masonic hall, and every effort will be made to make it the best June exhibition held by the society. There will also be prizes for greenhouse plants, fruits and vegetables.

The freight situation, so far as Newport is concerned, still shows effects of the strike. Though large quantities of freight are daily received by boat, the tie-up continues to affect the arrival of goods, and many articles shipped a long time ago from distant points still have not been received.

E. R. Morse has just received from the P. J. Berckmans Company, Augusta, Ga., some very choice orange and lemon trees. These trees, as well as some fine specimens of Eremurus Himalaicus, are in charge of D. J. Coughlin, the head gardener.

Siebrecht & Son, New York, have opened their store here on Bellevue avenue for the season. Ralph Armstrong, Jr., their manager, has been here a week, getting things in shape, and Mr. Siebrecht was also here for a few days.

The city council committee awarded the contract for one year's care of the Jewish cemetery to Eugene S. Hughes for $100. As there is one-quarter acre of land in this cemetery, little can be done to it for this amount.

In every part of the city repeated complaints are made that the flower gardens are being despoiled. The thieves have been especially active in the Broadway district.

The park commissioners have had the tulips in the park beds taken up and geraniums set in their places for the summer.

A pair of fine palms in tubs were sold at auction last Thursday by Thomas Burlingham at Aquidneck hall.

F. W. Creighton, representing Henry A. Dreer, of Philadelphia, was here last week. X.

New Castle, Ind.

The South Park Floral Company was awarded the contract to furnish the flowers and decorations for the Indiana building at the World's Fair on dedication day, June 3. The order included 2,000 medium stem roses and 500 long stem Beauties. The contract aggregates about $700. Heller Brothers shipped 400 American Beauties to St. Louis Monday night for the opening of a foreign building.

JOHNSTOWN, PA.—The partnership of Schrader & Schmidt, florists, has been dissolved, the former selling his interest to Wm. Schmidt, who will continue the business.

CLEVELAND, O.—The Cleveland Floral Company was incorporated May 27 with a capital of $30,000, by C. W. Fuller, J. L. Bradley, L. R. Campbell, E. P. Hatfield and J. A. Kline.

LENOX, MASS.—The regular meeting of the Lenox Horticultural Society was held June 4 with President Jenkins in the chair. The discussion for the evening was "Early Flowering Perennials," and proved of great interest to the members, leading to lively discussion. The society has chosen June 23 as the date for the rose and strawberry show and anticipates a good exhibition.

ABOVE all the noise made by the striking freight handlers can be heard President Mellen, of the saying he'll see the public hanged before he'll improve his train service, and President Baer, of ample burden.

Cocos Weddelliana appears to thrive in its young state in the extra long pots especially made to accommodate its long fleshy root but growers who use many of these little cocos for pan and fernery work find the long root ball a great inconvenience as none of the small pans are made deep enough to receive it without crushing and this is something the cocos promptly protests against.

Department of Agriculture Yearbook.

We are in receipt of the Yearbook of the Department of Agriculture for 1903, which, as usual, contains much interesting and valuable information. The present volume contains some illustrations of the proposed new buildings for the department, with descriptive data.
Among the papers likely to be of interest to our subscribers we note the following, many of them profusely illustrated:
"Some Results of Investigations in Soil Management," by F. H. King; "Relation of Cold Storage to Commercial Apple Culture," by G. Harold Powell; "Preparing Land for Irrigation," by R. P. Teele;
"Promising New Fruits," by William A.
Taylor; "Insect Injuries to Hardwood Forest Trees," by A. D. Hopkins; "Cultivation of Drug Plants in the United States," by Rodney H. True.

The Glass Situation.

The current issue of one of the glass trade journals, Patton's Monthly, has the following regarding present conditions in the window glass market:

Contrary to expectation, so far as reported at time of writing, comparatively few factories have ceased operations in May, and this has decidedly tended to weaken the market on window glass, particularly as the demand has been very light during the past month, and manufacturers admit accumulating two or three hundred thousand boxes in April and probably a larger quantity in May. Unless the weather should be so warm as to materially curtail glass making, or the workmen should show more common sense than many of their employers, or it should be realized that it is for the interest of all concerned not to produce a large quantity of glass beyond the legitimate requirements of the country for a given period, it is quite likely that much lower prices will prevail during the summer months. Apparently many manufacturers have been misled by the sensational reports of a prospective famine in window glass and by experience of previous years, when, during the shutdown, prices generally have advanced.

The Edelweiss.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I am sending you a flower of edelweiss from a plant six years old and should like to give your correspondent, "A. Lange," some information how we grow this plant here. We treat it as a quite hardy perennial. The seeds are sown early in February in boxes or pans with sandy soil and then put outdoors and left undisturbed. Generally the seeds germinate from the end of March to the middle of April. In this state the seedlings need to be carefully handled or they soon will damp off or dry off. As soon as large enough they are planted out two inches apart in a compost of leaf-mould, sand and mossy soil.
As a substitute peat can be used instead of the latter. In June the plants will be large enough to be potted singly in 4-inch pots or to be planted out in the rock garden or border. The soil now employed is the same as before, adding some fine broken mortar and brick rubbish. Without such chalky rubbish the plants and flowers will never be quite snowy white, but a dirty greenish white. We always plant the edelweiss on a southern exposure where the plants get all the sun, but give them on dry days a good soaking of water. On the Alps the edelweiss is very seldom found on a northern exposure or in a moist location, but on chalky and grassy mountain slopes with a southern aspect. On the south side of a mountain the edelweiss may be plentiful, yet on the very same slope to the east or north not a single plant is to be found. R.

Switzerland.

Greenhouse Heating.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—We are going to erect 15,000 feet of glass and would like the opinion of an expert as to what is the best heating system—hot water or steam. Also, how many pipes will be needed to keep the temperature at from 52° to 68°. We have seen this thing discussed many times but thought there might be some improved methods which you could describe to us. A. N. Co.

For a range of the size mentioned, steam will be found fully as satisfactory and the installation will cost considerably less than for a hot water plant. The dimensions of the houses are not stated and hence it will not be possible to suggest any number of heating pipes. Under average conditions it will be safe to estimate that one square foot of radiating surface will suffice to heat eight square feet of glass to 52°; one to six will answer for 60° and one to five for 68°. For large plants it is a good idea to run the boilers at 40 to 60 pounds pressure, and reduce it to six or eight pounds pressure in the houses. L. R. T.

OBITUARY.

Theodore E. Buckbee.

Theodore E. Buckbee, father of Hiram
W. and John T. Buckbee, the well known seedsmen of Rockford, Ill., died June 6, aged 71 years. Mr. Buckbee was born at Chili, near Rochester, N. Y., and went west with his parents in 1845. He was taken ill several weeks ago by an affection of the stomach, several hemorrhages depleting his strength until it seemed he must succumb, but his vitality kept him alive beyond what had seemed possible.
He had served the city of Rockford in many public capacities and was chairman of the republican town committee for thirty years. See portrait, page 828.

Thomas Smith.

Thomas Smith, father of Archibald
Smith, manager of the seed department of Joseph Breck & Sons Corporation, Boston, Mass., died at Blackpark, Stranraer, Scotland, May 18. For over half a century Mr. Smith was one of the stalwart figures of the Rhins of Galloway says an English paper, and for integrity and uprightness was highly respected by his numerous acquaintances. He was famed throughout the united kingdom as a grower of roses, and took many of the leading awards at the principal horticultural exhibitions. Mr. Smith was the oldest nurseryman in Scotland, and was in eighty-fourth year.

Lucius H. Foster.

Lucius H. Foster died at his home in Dorchester, Mass., on Tuesday, May 31, aged 57 years. Mr. Foster had been in poor health for some time from a stroke of apoplexy and it was a recurrence of this malady that caused his sudden death. He leaves one daughter, Miss E.
P. Foster. Mr. Foster was known widely as the introducer of the Anna Foster fern. His greenhouses for the past two years had been devoted largely to the propagation of this novelty and to bedding plant culture. For many years he was noted for his success with violets, but of late had to abandon this specialty on account of the prevalent disease. He was brought up in the plant business, his father having been one of the pioneers in this line for the Boston market, and for the last thirty-five years he had been a well known and highly respected member of the fraternity, taking part in the affairs of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, especially in its earlier years, and serving it well in a number of official capacities. He was a man of strict integrity and had the unqualified respect of all with whom he had business relations.

August Schmitt.

The untimely death of August Schmitt, deprives Cleveland and Glenville of one of their oldest and most successful florists. No man will be missed more than he. His sterling qualities, his gentle and kind nature endeared him to all. No man was more ready to extend a helping hand to the needy. To know the man was to love him. His keen business acumen and honest, upright dealings were known to the members of the craft far and near. His home surroundings could not be more congenial and his whole thoughts were for the comfort of his family and friends. His business was established on a sound basis, the past season having proven one of the best he ever had. A thorough knowledge of the florists' work enabled him to produce some of the best stock sold in the Cleveland market. At the time of his death he was president of the Florists' Club, of which he had been an active member since its inception. The funeral took place June 4 and was largely attended by florists and other friends of the family. The deceased was buried in Lake View cemetery. Mr. Schmitt was born in Stotzheim, Alsace, May 18, 1841. He entered the French army in 1862 and served as a sergeant until 1868. He was married to Salome Miller, March 1, 1870. Three years later he came to Cleveland where he shortly after established his present place of business in Glenville. He leaves a widow and three children, a son, Charles August, born in Strasburg, Mathilde Salome, and Lucile Easter, born in Cleveland. The business will be conducted on the same lines by his son Charles.

PASSENGER STEAMSHIP MOVEMENTS.

The tables herewith give the scheduled time of departure of ocean steamships carrying first-class passengers from the principal American and foreign ports, covering the space of two weeks from date of this issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST. Much disappointment often results from attempts to forward flowers for steamer delivery by express, to the care of the ship's steward or otherwise. The carriers of these packages are not infrequently refused admission on board and even those delivered on board are not always certain to reach the parties for whom they were intended. Hence florists in interior cities having orders for the delivery of flowers to passengers on out-going steamers are advised to intrust the filling of such orders to some reliable florist in the port of departure, who understands the necessary details and formalities and has the facilities for attending to it properly. For the addresses of such firms we refer our readers to the advertisements on this page:

PLANTINGS of sweet corn by canners and others in the west are showing poorly. There has been as yet no real corn weather.

A NOTICE of the death of Theodore E. Buckbee, father of Hiram W. and John T. Buckbee, will be found in our obituary column, page 820

ONION sets at Chicago are now growing well even on low land if fairly well drained. Some patches on high ground suffered from maggot during the cool weather two weeks ago. The sets are now five to six inches high.

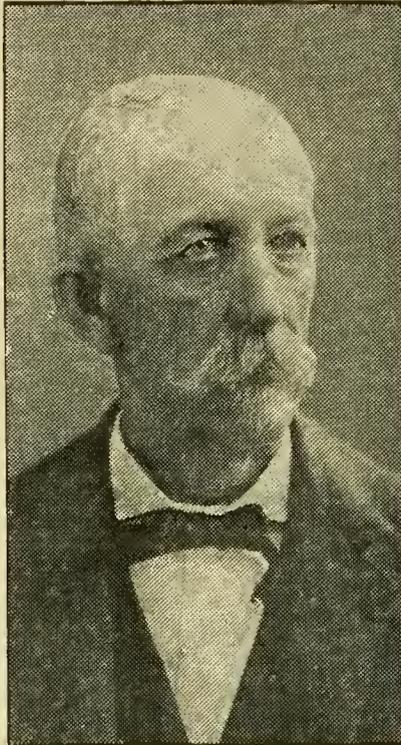

J. C. ROBINSON shipped a lot of corn to Illinois Thursday morning by express, says the Waterloo, (Neb.) Gazette, of May 27, 1904. It was probably the largest shipment ever made from here by express, weighing 7,643 pounds, 174 bushels, or nearly a third of a car. At this time of year though, seeds have to hurry a little, so take the fastest.

Algerian Sweet Peas.

Towards the end of last summer a gentleman from Algiers staying in England gave my employer seeds of half a dozen varieties of sweet peas, showing colors which he had obtained from cross-breeding our English varieties with those he had growing already, says a correspondent of the Gardeners' Chronicle. He told me that they were quite distinct in point of earliness from our own varieties, and were grown in his garden in Algiers, flowering a month earlier under the same conditions. Having to provide sweet pea flowers for cutting during the London season I sowed these Algerian and English varieties on the same day; they have been grown side by side, and were afforded identical treatment, standing on the floor of a cool peach house all the winter. The result is now apparent; the Algerian varieties fully bear out all that was promised of them. They are from three weeks to one month ahead of the English varieties, and if the colors are not quite so bright, the size of the flowers leave nothing to be desired. I enclose growing haulm of each. The Algerian varieties are quite distinct in foliage from our own; in growth they look more like the everlasting pea, while their precocity is apparent. The editor of the above journal adds: "These peas are remarkable for the harder character of the leaves as well as for their greater earliness. The prevailing colors in the flowers are rose, purple and blue. The standards of many of them are two inches across, and they are delightfully fragrant."

French Bulbs.

It is reported that at the meeting of the French growers, known as Syndicate Defenses des Interests Agricoles, held May 17, which was an adjournment of two meetings which should have been held in April, it was decided after considerable discussion to fix prices. This was done on a basis of 90 francs for white Roman hyacinths 12 ctm. and above. Effort was made to delay fixing the prices until the arrival of an American buyer who had been negotiating for control of the crop and who was expected May 25. Prices were, however, fixed as above to enable other French dealers to go ahead with buying if they desired to do so. The delay of the prospective buyer was explained as occasioned by his efforts to secure all American orders and prevent French jobbers from getting the business. The president of the syndicate urged growers to maintain prices firmly and hung much hope on the coming of the American buyer. The above conditions together with some continued dry weather are said to make firm or higher prices probable.

The Late Theodore E. Buckbee.

British Trade Notes.

Arrangements have now been made for trials of potatoes in various parts of the country by the National Potato Society, which came into existence a few months ago. The trials will be under the supervision of the horticultural superintendent in the various counties and the choice of different soils in all parts of England will allow of some interesting comparisons being made when the experiments are completed. The latest development of the now famous Eldorado potato brought out by A. Findlay, a Scottish raiser, has been its appearance in a law court. W. J. Atkinson, a Lincolnshire grower, lately sued Mr. Findlay in a Scotch court. The former alleged that in December last Mr. Findlay agreed to supply him with fourteen pounds of Eldorados for 14 guineas, but the transaction was disputed. The sheriff, however, decided in favor of Mr. Atkinson, who has now received the potatoes, paying 14 guineas for them. At their present market value they are worth about £2,000. This high price has caused the Lincolnshire growers to turn their attention to raising potato plants in pots under glass. J. T. White & Sons, nurserymen, of Spalding, have now about 15,000 plants under glass, each the growth of a single stem from the shoot of a tuber. Mr. White does not think that the constitution of the stock is in the least impaired by this process of culture. On the contrary he believes that this mode of propagation is such as will give one plant space and air in which to do its individual work without being cramped. About ten thousand Eldorado plants are being cultivated and as these are worth £4 the business is evidently a profitable one. Other varieties which are also being cultivated in this fashion are Sim Gray, Johnson's Diamond, Sutton's Discovery and Vermont Gold Coin, the last named being an American introduction of E. L. Coy, now being extensively tried in Lincolnshire.

The profitable business of mushroom culture is receiving greater attention in this country than was formerly the case. At one time the French growers enjoyed a monopoly of the business, but this is no longer the case. About ten years ago a book was published showing that J. F. Barter, of Sudbury, Middlesex, was able to make an actual profit of £950 an acre. When Mr. Barter was interviewed some time ago he stated that this huge profit was not now obtainable. He added: "Competition has lowered prices quite twenty-five per cent and the cost of labor has risen ten per cent." At the same time a good profit can still be made by mushroom growing conducted on intelligent lines. Besides the immense quantities of mushrooms cultivated, Mr. Barter is very successful as a manufacturer of spawn. Large quantities of this are imported by him to America every year. R. E. Addey, of Brentford is also a reliable maker and importer. Mr. Addey once told me that for an experiment he sent some mushrooms to New York, where they arrived in a sound condition, realizing about 4 shillings a pound. That the business is easily picked up is attested by the fact that C. W. Gedney, of Bromley, Kent, who formerly owned a newspaper and has now turned mushroom grower, in a short time has been able to make a profit of £500 an acre. The effect of this announcement may possibly cause a rush of growers to take up this new calling, with the result that a superabundance will cause a "slump" in the prices and the £500 will dwindle down. It is a wonder that more British farmers who find wheat-growing unremunerative do not turn their attention to mushrooms. The business seems easy of management, for Mr. Gedney states: "Any person of ordinary intelligence can grow mushrooms in the open air all the year round just as surely as they can grow cabbages. The conditions necessary to insure success are a few simple rules to be observed in preparing materials and the making of beds. If these are strictly adhered to the crop will come just as surely as would a row of potatoes."

Twenty-ninth annual convention, Atlanta, Ga., June 22-24, 1904.

OAKLAND, CAL., May 23.—The Santa Fe Railroad Company has set about improving three acres about its depot on San Pablo avenue. The intention is to have the now barren ground converted into a garden spot.

THE New England Association of Park Superintendents will hold its seventh annual convention at New Haven, Conn., June 14, 15 and 16, 1904. The first evening will be devoted to a reception, banquet and business meeting. The second day to park inspection and in the evening papers and discussions, and the third day to a visit to Meriden.

OCEANIC, N. J.—The regular monthly meeting of the Monmouth County Horticultural Society was held in Red Men's hall, June 3. George Kuhn exhibited some fine cauliflowers. It was decided to hold the seventh annual chrysanthemum exhibition in the town hall, Red Bank, N. J., on November 1 and 2. The judges of the evening were Oliver Macintosh and John Yoemans. The discussion of the evening was "The Killing of Deciduous Trees by Frost." B.

International Show at Turin, Italy.

The Royal Horticultural Society of Piedmont celebrated the fiftieth year of its existence by holding a grand international horticultural show in the Valentino park, Turin, Italy, which was opened by the Duchess of Genoa May 10. An international committee of honor was formed, being presided over by the Duke of Aosta. The Dowager Queen of Italy was the patroness of the show. Grand medals of honor were offered by the King of Italy and other important additions to the prize list were given by the Dowager Queen Margherita, the Duke of Aosta, Count Sambuy, the Minister of Agriculture, and most of the leading agricultural and horticultural societies in Italy. The jury was a cosmopolitan one in every sense of the word, about 120 gentlemen of almost every European nationality accepting the invitation. Among them were Sir Thomas Hanbury, Dr. Fischer de Waldheim, Henri Correvon de Cock, Harman Payne, Phillipe Rivoire, Phillipe de Vilmorin, Ed Andre, Otto Ballig, Thomas Devan, Abel Chatenay, George Schneider, Jean Soupert, Max Kolb, Dr. Chiffot and Messrs. Duval, Serog, Moser, Riffaud, Bouchardat, Truffaut and Van den Daele.

The space allotted to the show allowed ample means of displaying everything to the best advantage, particularly the trees, shrubs and flowers that were tastefully arranged in beds in the open. In the building standing in the middle of the grounds all the choicer exhibits of palms, ferns, crotons, caladiums and various exotics were displayed in rich profusion. Altogether there were 289 classes and the entries were numerous. Besides the purely horticultural there were numerous classes for garden accessories, heating apparatus, plans, literature, photographs, engravings, manures, insecticides and everything connected with the craft.

A pretty Alpine garden was shown by Allemand, of Geneva. Henri Correvon also showed Alpine plants. Moser, of Versailles, had a fine show of azaleas and the Belgian firm of Van Houtte sent rhododendrons in tubs. Van den Daele, of Monaco, showed pandanus, ferns, etc., in fine style, for which he got one of the king's gold medals. The Tuscan Horticultural Society was the winner of the first of the king's medals. Vilmorin, Andreux & Company, of Paris, secured the Duke of Aosta's gold medal. Moser had one of the king's gold medals for azaleas and rhododendrons.

Many other awards were made to local exhibitors. Roda & Radaelli, of Turin, Besson, Dominici and Rovelli were some of the most successful. French exhibitors were numerous; in roses Soupert & Notting and Pernet and Duval staged anthurium, Molin peonies. Other French firms that did well were Louis Leroy, Rivoire, Delaunay and Charmet. In bulbs Krelage, of Haarlem, got a gold medal.

Quite a special feature in the grounds was the reproduction by Scalrandis, gardener to the late King Humbert, of a typical Italian garden of the sixteenth century for which a special award was made. Hospitality reigned supreme. The jury was invited to a reception by the prefect of Turin, to a banquet by the society at which speeches were made by various representatives of the different countries, and to a lunch at Soperga by the municipality of Turin. The weather was all that could be desired and visitors attended in large numbers.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

Lowell, Mass.

The volume of business done here on Memorial day was as good, if not a shade better than previous years. There was an abundance of stock to meet the heavy demands, for on this particular day the demand for flowers here is very heavy. This is the hardest day we have to contend with, for much of the stock is bought by people who are not accustomed to buying such luxuries as flowers. Then again the demand was increased to a large extent owing to the retarded conditions of the outdoor supply. The supply that was offered for sale was good and consisted of good blooms of carnations, stocks, feverfew, candytuft, with a limited supply of peonies. Every conceivable sort of a bloom found a customer. Monday noon found everyone pretty nearly, if not cleaned completely out. Previous to Memorial day the greenhouse men were rushed with bedding orders, which kept some of them working night and day, everyone wanting his order filled for the great floral day of the year. Since Memorial day business has kept up in good shape. Weddings, commencements, etc., have used up a large quantity of stock, especially roses.

Early closing is now in order. Beginning the first Thursday in July and continuing to September the stores will close every Thursday at noon.

Wm. Sim, of Cliftondale, as usual sent to town some excellent candytuft for Memorial day.

Patten had charge of the commencements at Roger Hall school last week.

HUNTINGDON, PA.—The Huntingdon greenhouses, J. E. Seal, proprietor, and A. H. Hancker, manager, have succeeded J. E. Swivel in business here.

St. Louis Claims Real Article.

Among the rare outdoor plants of Massachusetts is an "Anhouse" bush, owned by Assistant Appraiser Osgood C. Blancy. For several years Assistant Appraiser Blancy has attempted to grow this delicate bush in his garden at West Roxbury, but without success. This season, however, has been an ideal one for its cultivation, and the plant is flourishing beyond Mr. Blancy's most sanguine expectations. Several applications have already been sent to Mr. Blancy by neighboring gardeners for slips of this certain kind of bush.—Boston Traveller.

Tarrytown Horticultural Society.

The regular monthly meeting of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held Tuesday evening, May 31, in the Vanderbilt building, Tarrytown, N. Y. David MacFarlane, gardener for Mrs. H. Walter Webb, Scarborough, was awarded Franz S. Pammer's prize of a scarf pin for the best display of flowers cut from hardy shrubs. Other exhibitors were Wm. Scott and Robt. Boreham. Jas. Scott and Thos. Lee were the judges appointed. Hera Grane was elected a member of the society and nominations for membership were Alex. MacKenzie, Geo. Instone, John Featherstone and F. Luckenbacker, all from Greystone, Yonkers. A prize of $15 was received from Vaughan's Seed Store to be competed for at the fall exhibition. Owing to the late season the date of the June show was changed from June 9 to June 14. It will be held in the Young Men's Lyceum, Tarrytown, and open from 3 p. m. to 10 p. m. Admission free.

It was moved that the following resolutions be tendered to our brother member Francis Gibson and his family:

WHEREAS God in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove, by death, in his early manhood, Harry Gibson,

WHEREAS his father, Francis Gibson, being a charter member of this society and a most esteemed associate, be it

Resolved, That we as a society tender to him and the members of his family heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement. And be it further

Resolved that this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this society and a copy of the same be sent to Francis Gibson and his family.

This being ladies' night a very pleasant evening's entertainment was in store for the members and friends of which there were over seventy-five per cent and after the business of the society was dispensed with, President Ballantyne called upon our orator, David MacFarlane, to announce the programme which was replete with good things.

A hearty vote of thanks was then given to the members and friends for their many songs and musical selections. The programme was followed by dancing and the evening's pleasure ended with all singing "Auld lang sync."

W. W. COLES,

Maple Hill Rose Farms, KOKOMO, IND.

Grand Rapids, Mich.

This spring will be remembered as one of the coldest and most backward for many years. It is at least three weeks later than usual. The months of April and May were so cold and disagreeable that it was almost impossible to do any outdoor work and every one is behind. All kinds of hardy plants and shrubbery are just now in bloom. It can be safely said that the Memorial day trade was the largest for many years. All the cemeteries are ablaze with bloom, especially Greenwood and the Catholic cemetery. The entire forces of all establishments are busy bedding and will be so at least for another week. The last month being so cloudy the geraniums are not in bloom to a very great extent, and many beds are being planted without a single flower.

Bruinslot & Sons are building two new houses, 28x135 feet, at their new place and will be fully located there in about four weeks. The Chapman green houses, which they have rented for six years, will be torn down. This is about the oldest establishment in the city, and when it is torn down one of the old landmarks will be gone.

Mulick Brothers have organized a stock company at Greenville, Mich. and Ed Mulick has been placed in charge. It will be known as the Greenville Floral Company. They have five houses and will build one more this season.

James Schols is building one house 15x120 feet, and has just received his lumber from Chicago of the Foley Manufacturing Company. He reports a good spring trade.

The Wealthy Avenue Floral Company is building four new houses for roses and carnations. It reports the heaviest trade for Memorial day for several years.

The Grand Rapids Floral Company is building one new house for roses, and will plant one or two of the old houses to lettuce this winter.

Eli Cross has just about completed his new house, 28x300. Mr. Cross had some very fine longiflorums in bloom for Memorial day.

George Hopp, Grand Rapids Violet Company, and Crabb & Hunter's place at Reed's Lake are hustling, all on the quiet.

Henry Smith is the busiest man in town with funeral work and shipping orders.

IRON GREENHOUSES.

The Duplex Gutter and The Duplex Eaves have solved the question of how to build up-to-date greenhouses as durable as the iron frame greenhouses at high prices, and nearly as cheap as wooden houses. See the cut that represents the new Duplex Eaves, the most durable, strongest and simplest to erect. Any common laborer can set them as perfect as an expert mechanic. It is perfection in construction. No ice or snow to darken your houses when light means money. Positively no shade from the Duplex Eaves, costs only about $2.00 per foot, including Duplex Gutters and Eaves, Iron Posts for Gutters, Iron Purlines with Posts, Tees and Floor Plates, Standard Ventilating Machines, complete with double strong Pipe, Cypress Sash Bars and Ventilating Sash. Investigate the proposition and convince yourself of the fact. Also note the simplest steam return Trap made; just what a Florist needs, and a coal dealer condemns. Catalogues and circulars free.

QUAKER CITY MACHINE WORKS
6666 RICHMOND, IND.

Albion, N. Y.

Arthur B. Newman, for several years a member of the Monroe County Chemical Company, and Valentine Gatz, foreman at Salter Brothers' greenhouses, have formed a partnership under the firm name of Newman & Gatz, according to the Monroe County Mail, and will go into the florists' business at Albion.

The company has purchased a tract of land in Albion, and will at once begin the erection of greenhouses, the contract having been let to the A. Dietsch Company, of Chicago. The plant will consist of three main houses, 45x100 feet, for the growing of roses, chrysanthemums, carnations, sweet peas and plants in pots; a violet house 100 feet in length; a glass show house, 15x35 feet, for palms, Boston and asparagus ferns, bulbous stock, etc.; besides an office, boiler-room and workshop. The houses will be heated by a thirty-five-horse power horizontal hot water boiler, and will be furnished with city water and electric lights.

Mr. Gatz, who has been foreman at Salter Brothers for the past four years, learned his trade in Berlin, Germany, and holds a "master florist's" certificate from the German government. He has worked at his trade in the United States for about ten years, having been foreman in one of the largest greenhouse plants in Chicago, before coming here to take charge of Salter Brothers' plant.

Mr. Newman will look after the office end of the business, for which he is specially adapted. The firm expects to be in a position after September 1, to fill orders for funeral designs, wedding decorations and cut flowers, also decorating and landscape gardening. Mr. Newman will still retain his residence in Fairport, coming home as he is able to do so, and Mr. Gatz will move to Albion. The address of the firm will be 19 Brown street, where the office and greenhouse will be located.

The firm was influenced to locate in Albion by the nature of the soil, which is particularly adapted to the growing of roses, chrysanthemums and violets, of which they expect to make a specialty, and the favorable location for the Buffalo and Pittsburg wholesale markets. There is also a good local market, as there is no enterprise of a like nature there.

Worcester, Mass.

Since the advent of June, trade has been brisk with plenty of good stock in hand. Summer roses, such as Kaiserin, Carnot and Testout are now plentiful and carnations are excellent for so late in the season. The deaths of several prominent men made the funeral trade specially brisk. The bedding plant business continues good with the exception of cannas, which for some reason or other don't move. The weather has been cold, and frequent rains have delayed field operations materially.

F. B. Madaus figured in a runaway accident recently, receiving a sprained ankle; coming in the busy part of the planting season makes it doubly hard.

CROP INSURANCE.
 Life insurance is valuable because it guarantees the outcome.

"Gurney" Heaters

"BRIGHT IDEA," "DORIC" and "400 SERIES" do the same thing for your hothouse: THEY GUARANTEE THE CROP. First of all they save 20 per cent on the coal bill and so keep expense at a minimum. Next, they produce an even heat and so do not imperil the life of the plant. Next, they are simple to operate and so require least attention. Lastly, they wear longer than others and thus perceptibly reduce the capital invested. Don't buy or exchange until you've investigated them.

PALMS AND FERNS.

Sowing Early Palm Seeds.

The early lots of palm seeds, among which are those of Areca lutescens and Cocos Weddelliana, are usually received and planted before this time, the methods in common use for this operation having been noted in these columns on various occasions. For the benefit of new readers, however, it may be well to repeat some of these details very briefly at this season.

Those growers who can readily secure peat are in the habit of using this soil freely when sowing palm seeds, chiefly perhaps from the fact that it is open, fibrous and porous, holds moisture well and does not bake or become hard on the surface, and thus allows the seedlings to come through readily. For these reasons we are in the habit of planting areca and cocos seeds in pure peat, and only adding a fair quantity of drainage material in the bottom of the seed pots in the form of crocks or cinders. The seed pots are filled to within an inch of the top with the soil made moderately firm, the seeds then sown as thickly as they will lie in a single layer, and the pots filled to the top, with the soil pressed down firmly. Six-inch pots are the size most in favor for the various smaller palm seeds, though in the case of Cocos Weddelliana the seedling makes so strong a tap root that it is rather difficult to pot them off into small pots, and when the seeds are sown in a pan three or four inches deep this stiff and brittle root is turned and frequently coiled in the bottom of the seed pan so that they may be potted off more conveniently.

Seeds of Latania Borbonica are usually very plentiful, there being many specimens of this palm of a fruiting size in our own country in addition to those that may be had from Cuba, Brazil, Japan and China. These seeds are offered at low prices by the pound or by the thousand, and for the benefit of those who may be less familiar with them it may be stated that a pound of cleaned latania seeds, which means those from which the outer skin and pulp has been removed, will contain about 350 seeds, but from the fact that all palm seeds vary in size to a greater or less extent this number can only be taken as approximate. And while speaking of latania seeds we are reminded that there is a form of this palm from Japan, or rather the seeds are offered by Japanese importers with somewhat of a flourish of trumpets as the true Livistona Chinensis (the correct botanical name of the palm in question) that does not seem to meet the approval of the approval of the American trade generally, being a rather stiff and slow growing plant that does not show character so early in life as the ordinary type. It is probably a handsome and hardy variety when well developed, but is much too slow in developing to suit the majority of growers, and decidedly will not reach the proportions of a good 8-inch pot plant within a year from the 4-inch size, this being a result that is frequently attained with the common latania.

Caryota urens is another of the common palms that sends out quite a long radicle when germinating, this radicle pushing the seed out of the soil in much the same manner as some beans, though the leaf bud of the palm is formed under ground, and from the lower portion of this bud the true root descends. It is also interesting to note the various ways in which the palms germinate, in some cases the growth proceeding from the end of the seed, as in kentias, while in others the shoot comes from the side, and what is apparently the back side at that. The members of the cocos group, of which the common cocunut is the most familiar example, have three eyes or depressions at the end of the nut, where the hard, bony shell is much thinner and more easily penetrated, and from one of these eyes the young shoot appears as the seed germinates. There also seems to be a wise provision of nature in giving the cocunut such a thick, fibrous husk or covering, as the young roots usually grow their way through this husk to the ground beneath, thus being kept moist and protected from the sun and wind until they become established in the earth. But probably very few of our readers will experiment with the germination of cocanuts, both seeds and seedlings being too unwieldy for the average florists' trade.

As already noted, the seeds of palms vary considerably in size, and while the size of the seed does not always foretell the quality of the seedling, yet there are many variations among the seedlings also, and it is sometimes the better practice to select the seedlings, or rather to discard those that come up crippled or off-colored, the indiscriminate potting of all seedlings regardless of their quality producing a very uneven grade of stock with too large a proportion of culls among them, their being some also that a vegetable grower might term rogues or bolters, in which a long stemmed and coarse growth appears, such plants never making symmetrical specimens. There is occasionally a little trouble with seedling palms rotting off in the seed pot after they are well above the ground, but this is usually caused by keeping them too close and dark, thus encouraging the growth of fungus among the seedlings. It is therefore a good plan to spread out the seed pots to some extent by the time the first leaves of the seedlings are expanded and ventilating more freely in warm and damp weather.

There are not very many changes in method among the palm growers, but occasionally someone will take up a practice that is out of the common order, such as the planting of one or two seeds of Cocos Weddelliana or three seeds of areca in a small pot, with the intention of saving the disturbance of the roots at the first potting, something that cannot be avoided when a large number of seedlings are grown in one pot. Some good results are sometimes had from such methods, but yet this way of planting occupies a great deal of space and quite a large percentage of both space and labor may thus be wasted by the non-germination of seeds.

W. H. TAPLIN.

Potting Off Seedling Ferns.

The potting off of seedling ferns should now be proceeding rapidly, and in order to get the best results these tender young plants should be well protected from the sun and wind until they become established, and should never be permitted to suffer from lack of water. A shaded cold frame will answer very well for many of the strong growing pterises, nephrodiums and polypodiums from this time until the nights get cool in the fall, but some of the more tender adiantums, davallias and gymnogrammas will be much more under control if we can keep them on a side bench of the fern house. The cold frame is a most useful adjunct, and the ferns succeed there admirably in a favorable season, but the conditions may be more readily managed in the greenhouse in case the weather proves especially fickle. It is not yet too late to plant out Boston ferns on a bench for runners, the latter growing very rapidly and producing young plants that will prove very useful later on in the season. This also reminds us that there are frequently found quite a number of variations among the Boston ferns, the proclivity toward sporting among the nephrolepis being quite marked, and it is a good plan to select this stock for propagation with much care, using only such plants as show good habit and strong foliage.

THE PEONY.

Peonies at Peterson's.

The extensive nursery of P. S. Peterson & Son at Rose Hill, Chicago, is just now the Mecca for hundreds of herbaceous plant lovers and the famous Peterson field of peonies especially, is attracting wide and well merited attention. Peony dealers and growers have come to regard this farm of that popular spring genus as one of the most important in the land, and any intelligence bearing upon the propagation and dissemination of any new varieties coming from here is pounced upon by peony specialists with more than passing interest and avidity. Wm. A. Peterson regards the peony department of his vast nurseries as one of the most important and at this season, when this grand flower is at its height, the big nurseryman spends a good share of his time in the fields, with note book and camera. The Peterson nursery is among the largest in the country, the exact acreage being 480, the greater part of which is devoted to the growing of nursery stock.

The peonies cover an approximate area of ten acres and just at the present time about half of this space is one delightful sea of bloom and color. Scores of people from the city and peony buyers from far and near are daily visitors and the sight amply repays one the trip to Rose Hill. Mr. Peterson informs us that since the peony has been taken up here, at least 1,200 varieties have been tried and tested, sifting the most desirable out until there remain about 800 which are retained and grown. Most of these have had their birth at the nurseries and many are yet in an undisseminated stage, on probation as it were, until the management has enough confidence in the variety to give it out for commercial use. Many seedlings are started each year and just now there are two extensive rows of mixed seedlings of an infinite variety of color and type, awaiting sorting and classification. During the period of three or four years of a plant's infancy, until it is pronounced to be in good bearing condition, every plant is given the closest attention, its points are guarded jealously and it is nursed with tender care by men who know the peony from alpha to omega. Adjoining the large field of flowers now in full bloom is a plot of perhaps one acre of imported plants, purchased from time to time by Mr. Peterson at a great outlay of money. Many of these will be ready for full blooming next year, while many are yet in their first and second year.

The blooms may be said to be at their height now, although certain of the later varieties have not yet started, while some of the earlier ones have passed their best, especially the singles. The season has been late, but the weather conditions which prevailed during the last four or five weeks, cold, steady and mediumly moist have been highly propitious for good blooms, vigorous foliage and strong stems. Mr. Peterson has a unique and comprehensive system of tabulation and indexing, by which he keeps in close touch with every variety tried out at the nursery. The originator, date of purchase, name, character and habit of every variety is here catalogued for immediate reference. The time of blooming from season to season is carefully noted, also form, color, size, length of blooming period, weather conditions, age and much other data is recorded. Peony growing at Peterson's, it will be noted, is not prosecuted in a haphazard and desultory fashion, but with a studied care which must necessarily produce blooms and plants of the highest class. The soil of the peony field is kept well groomed, drained and cultivated, each fall a top-dressing of manure being applied.

The grand staple Festiva Maxima is seen here at its best. We have never seen any of superior bloom, size, color or shape. Another splendid white is Queen Victoria, not as tall a grower as Festiva Maxima, and with a little more yellow tinge. A popular variety is Alexandriana, light pink, a strong and vigorous bloomer. Peterson's Modele de Perfection is a grand variety, head and shoulders above most other pinks. It is a bomb type and an early bloomer. Fragrance or Edulis Superba is about over this season, also the good Alexander Dumas. Golden Harvest, which originated in Nebraska about four years ago is doing well here. It has a rich golden effect, which grows pink as the bloom grows older. Sulfa Terra is a good white. Richardson's Rubra Superba is among the late good reds which is proving a great favorite. Duchess de Nemours (Calot) is one of the greatest and best of the newer varieties. It has a beautiful greenish tinge, clean bud and is a steady bloomer. Mr. Peterson has had great success with this one since he first took it up six years ago. There are several rows of Festivas. The plants never got as high as Festiva Maxima and the bloom is somewhat smaller. It comes somewhat late and has been a great favorite on the local market. It carries the same carmine flake in the center as the Festiva Maxima. Lady Bramwell, the much talked of shell pink is also seen here. Mr. Peterson is not enthusiastic over this variety, however. It is not what it has been cracked up to be, showing an erratic tendency, sometimes not blooming as freely as is necessary in the successful commercial peony of today. The homb type Comte de Diesbach, a red, without yellow stamens is now in fine form as is Madame Geissler, a good rose pink, with a remarkably clear color. One of the high class varieties is Souvenir de Gaspard (Calot). A good single is Adam Bede. There are some albifloras, single, the parent of them all, in fine shape, but none too plentiful. Among others are La Coquette, fancy pink. Triumph of the Exhibition of Lille, a solid bloom, carrying a few yellow stamens and a desirable bleacher; Constance Devred, one of the first good reds coming in before Decoration day, which may be considered one of its greatest qualifications; Henry IV., rose pink, heavy, strong bloom, and myriads of others.

Irises are also given a certain amount of space near the peony fields. They are now in fine bloom, although rapidly passing for the season. The accompanying illustrations show a portion of the main block of peonies and part of the plot of irises.

An Elk Made of Plants.

AN EXAMPLE OF FANTASTIC GARDENING.

A unique lawn design has just been placed upon the terrace in front of Uarda, the residence of Lyman C. Smith, the millionaire typewriter manufacturer and capitalist, in James street, Syracuse, N. Y. It is a representation of a huge elk, and it required six men to move it from Mr. Smith's greenhouse, where it had been constructed by his landscape gardener, Joseph Kenney, to the position it now occupies on the lawn. The elk weighs 1,500 pounds, stands five feet high and measures eight feet from nose to tail and the antlers spread five feet. The idea of a novelty in the form of an elk originated with the owner of Uarda, and as a pleasing floral innovation he suggested it to Mr. Kenney, who declared the plan to be possible and by a contrivance of which he holds the secret, he expects the roots of the plant within the frame will be kept moist all summer. In the construction strict attention was given to the minutest detail.

The construction was begun a month ago. First the plans and specifications were drawn and then Mr. Kenney built a frame. The body was made of hardwood laths, nailed to circular pieces to make the form. The laths were wired, and at the joints steel straps were used. The head and antlers consist chiefly of a network of wire. A space of two inches was left between the laths, and the top of the elk was left open until the last. Earth was then put in to make a bed for the roots.

On the spot where now stands the elk, last year was a monster butterfly, with wings spreading six feet and four inches. It was made of alternanthera, with gold feather, santolina and echeveria used for coloring. Last year there was also a Japanese summer house, with two roofs and nothing but flowers to be seen. In about another week Mr. Kenney will complete another novelty in the form of a large basket with handles. Another butterfly will also be made. Mr. Kenney has been in the employ of Mr. Smith five years, prior to which he was a designer for P. R. Quinlan & Company.

A Notable Rose Garden.

The rose garden laid out in Elizabeth park by Theodore Wirth, superintendent of Hartford, Conn., park system, is already a thing of beauty, unique in arrangement, effective in aspect and well placed as to surroundings and access. The plan comprises a central eminence, on which stands a rustic arbor, from which the paths radiate and around which the rose beds are placed in concentric circles and geometric forms, the whole occupying about one and one-quarter acres. There are about 3,000 roses in 120 varieties of the various hardy classes, each variety being given a bed by itself. The walks between beds are of grass. The main walks are fourteen feet and rest eight feet in width, and the Rhode Island bent grass, of which they are made exclusively, already affords a good springy turf. The uprights of the central pagoda are planted with the rapid-growing Pueraria Thunbergiana and Walsh's hybrid rambler roses and around the sides hybrid rugosas are placed. Various ramblers and climbers, with cobæas and vitises, are set at the uprights of the arches which span the paths radiating from the arbor, and on the slopes of the eminence are planted hybrid Wichuraianas.

The inner circle of beds is devoted to the teas and polyanthuses, and the next mainly to the hybrid teas, beyond which come the hybrid perpetuals and mosses. Against the wire fence which incloses the area are hybrid sweet briars and other varieties of a rambling habit. The borders are occupied with the dainty little midget roses, and at intervals are placed groups of standards, their stems all carefully mossed to protect against the hot sun. Already the display of color is very pretty and gives a pleasing foretaste of what may be expected next year, when the plants have reached the strength of their second year. As it is, they are remarkable specimens of healthy vigor. At the present time the earlier H. P. sorts are bouquets of lively color. Among these early ones may be enumerated Paul's Early Blush, Captain Hayward, American Beauty, Oakmont, Helen Keller, Victor Verdier, Mme. Gabrielle Luizet, Gloire de Margottin and Mrs. Sharman Crawford, and within another week the entire field will be at its height.

AN ELK MADE OF PLANTS.

Particularly pleasing among the polyantha classes at this early stage are Mme. Laurette Messing, Etoile de Mai, Etoile d'Or, Petit Constant, Cecil Brunner, Gloire de Polyantha, Clotilde Souper and its pink sport, Mignonette, Hermosa, Petit Leonie, Petit Madeline, Josephine Burland, Emile Pattin and Mosella.

Placed in the center of each bed is a T-shaped label, painted foliage green and with name lettered in white. While plainly legible from a long distance, these labels are very unobtrusive and do not mar the effect in the least. At each entrance is a sign board similarly treated, giving an explanation of the abbreviations used in distinguishing the different classes of roses. The principal work now is spraying and keeping up a close watch for slugs.

Varied Views of Hub Horticulture.

Here are a few incisive comments of Boston papers on Superintendent Doogue's efforts at decorative effect in Copley square. "You pays your money and you takes your choice:

Another of Superintendent Doogue's acts has been staged. His curtain raiser, was a display of tulips that delighted and amused, and now he is showing up his versatility to advantage. Mr. Doogue's ability is winning all kinds of favorable comment. His astonishingly interesting displays have been better this year than ever, and with every new production there is a new point to praise. Mr. Doogue is a gardener emeritus.—Boston Republic.

The more frantic the combinations, the plainer the demonstration grows that horticultural fussiness is out of place in the grand expanse of Copley square. Let there be a clear surface of pavement (with perhaps the Brewer fountain in the middle) is the consensus of the artists who frequent the Museum and the Library. Writes a good critic: "Dear listener—We who are bitterly opposed to flower bed "borders" and who have been pained by the recent astounding combinations of scarlet and pink, cerise and crimson tulips at Copley square, have at last joined those who are in favor of a sunken garden. We would, however, suggest sinking it about eighteen feet—nor would we oppose a surrounding wall! Our pain for this year is over, however, and with full hearts we submit the following song of thanksgiving:

Thank God that the tulips are dying
Are dying and falling each day,
And colors which pained us are fading
Are fading and melting away.

The scarlet, the pink and the crimson
Which quarrelled and cursed as they lay
Are gathering their borders about them And silently stealing away.
—Boston Transcript.

On Copley square the display of digitalis is something grand and surprising. Some 20,000 of these plants, in fine floral development, constitute the general display on this square, and add their novel and attractive effect to the other attractive features of the place. By the time they will have unfolded their floral flags to the top of their masts and matured most of their blooms, successors, with flowers also on a single stem, will occupy the field of beauty in the shape of gladioli, some 5,000 of which are planted in the beds of the square. Nor will the floral features alone constitute the summer attractions of the Copley square beds. Besides the grounds, borders and other floral features a goodly number of the golden euonymus and other rich foliaged plants are placed so as to give tone and variety to the more showy but more fleeting flowers.

Later in the summer other features will be added to the square, making it a centre of floral beauty to the close of the season. In the treatment of Copley square, as in that of the Public Garden, Mr. Doogue has again finely illustrated his enterprise and the wonderful fertility of his resources for the ornamentation of the leading public grounds in his charge. Copley square has always been held to be a most difficult place to treat for ornamentation by the floriculturist. It is restricted in area and cannot be planted in trees owing to their obstruction of the surrounding architectural features of the locality. A costly sunken garden has been suggested, and a central fountain, with grassy lawn, etc., but nothing suggested appears to be as satisfactory as the present system of treatment; certainly nothing would be more attractive from points of view around and above or from the level of the streets and avenue surrounding it.—Boston Herald.

The triangular "square" at the show point in the Back Bay section is the object of a great deal of pseudo-artistic criticism this year as for a number of years past. As the season of flowers comes on, fault is found with the laying out of the flower beds, the combinations of colors, the figuration, and with the fact that flowers are planted to bloom there at all. Such a treatment of the "square" is said to jar upon the esthetic sense of some people.

What is proposed as a substitute? We are told, by all of the critics, that it must be something "dignified." There is a very strong feeling that if the whole "square" were paved with a stone or brick or asphalt or some other barren and heat-radiating material, the desired dignity would be obtained. Others suggest a little plantation of evergreen trees. Others want to see an "equestrian statue" set up there—probably to add horror as well as dignity to the situation.

But, really, what is there undignified in this little patch of fresh blooming plants in the center of the architectural show place? Does it not give the one touch of color, of pleasurable relief, or delight to the eye wearied of stone and brick and pavement that is needed to complete the picture?

Hundreds of thousands of people pass through Copley square every day, and we warrant that 99,999 out of every 100,000 find pleasure in the glimpse they get of this garden spot.—Boston Post.

World's Fair Notes.

Great Britain has placed on exhibition on the south wall of the Horticulture building a number of photographs showing scenes in the Royal Botanic garden at Kew. They include interior and exterior views of the herbarium and tempereto houses; also of the interior of the palm, succulent and fern houses, and the exterior of the museum and Jodrellaboratory. The lake, Alpine garden, rhododendron dell and pinetum are also shown. The exhibit contains a plan of the Kew garden and also of the new park of the Borough of Hove and a design for a garden to a country house. This is much like the one at the rosary, as shown at Great Britain's building at the fair.

The Missouri Botanical garden has a fine exhibit of edible mushrooms in the Palace of Horticulture. It includes forty-five species and one poisonous form, the spring amanita (Amanita verna). The exhibit also contains a set of reports from 1890 to 1904 and an oil portrait of Henry Shaw, the founder of the garden and of the Shaw School of Botany. There are in the exhibit a number of photographs showing the work of the garden pupils, sowing seed, making cuttings, repotting and caring for dahlias, chrysanthemums, cauliflower, celery and other crops.

The meetings of various associations have brought a large number of visitors. Among them have been J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, Pa.; J. C. Olmsted and Warren H. Manning, of Boston, Mass.; Ossian Simonds and Mrs. McCrea, of Chicago; Superintendent Cuerski, of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Thos. B. Meehan, of Philadelphia; Orlando Harrison, of H. G. Harrison & Sons, of Bel Air, Md.; Harlan P. Kelsey, of Boston; Emory Albertson, of Albertson & Hobbs, Bridgeport, Ind.; W. P. Stark, of Stark Brothers, Louisiana, Mo.

Several shipments of peony flowers have been received during the week from J. F. Rosenfeld, the peony specialist of West Point, Neb. They were especially noticeable for the rich colors and large size of the flowers as well as the length of the stems. The collection contains several seedlings and such named sorts as Golden Harvest, Modesta, Queen Victoria, Festiva Alba and Floral Treasure. The last named has large full flowers of a handsome shade of pink.

As the exposition approaches completion a marked increase in the attendance can be noticed, the number during the last week averaging more than 10,000 daily in excess of the previous week, without counting some 40,000 school children who received free admission on "Liberty Bell" day.

The Mexican collection of tuberous begonias, which numbers some 2,000 plants, is coming into flower and is attracting many visitors. Several Mexican orchids are also beginning to show flowers.

The panorama of the irrigation system and orange groves at Riverside, Cal., in the Palace of Horticulture, is now completed and is attracting much attention.

C. A. Young & Sons, St. Louis, have placed in the conservatory a handsome group of bays, palms, hydrangeas, ferns and tuberous begonias.

The Michel Floral Company, St. Louis, has arranged some fine ferns and rubber trees in the conservatory.

New Myrtle-Leaved Smilax.

This new smilax, Medeola asparagoides myrtifolia, was a chance seedling among a sowing of the Medeola asparagoides six years ago at the establishment of Meyer Brothers, Hanover, says Die Gartenwelt. Its value was recognized at once and every care taken to multiply it. Its foliage is about one-sixth the size of that of the common smilax, and is so similar to that of the German myrtle that it looks like a climbing, more graceful myrtle. Even the young plants are very graceful, and have a decided branching tendency, so much so that, to obtain very slender, graceful sprays, it is well to train it on two or three strings. The growth is most vigorous, equalling if not surpassing the old smilax in this respect. Of special value is its keeping quality; numerous experiments have shown it to be of much harder texture than the old Medeola asparagoides. In water it will keep perfectly ten to twelve days and dry it remains six to eight days in good condition. The fresh foliage is a real jewel for all table and other decorations and is sure to be in popular demand. On account of its graceful and branching habit, the small plants are well adapted for jardinières and hanging-baskets. It is also claimed that after being cut down, the plants soon begin to shoot up again and in three to four weeks will produce yard-long sprays. It is so prolific of shoots and bulbets that from one strong plant twenty-five to thirty plants may be produced in a season without difficulty.

A Washington Wedding Decoration.

The illustration shows the decoration at the Langham-Faramond wedding at St. Matthew's church, Washington, D. C., executed by J. R. Freeman. About the altar are palms, ferns, Easter lilies and bunches of snowballs. The chancel rail is decorated with snowballs on a ground of wild smilax and asparagus, the whole of which makes a display as striking as it is novel. S. E.

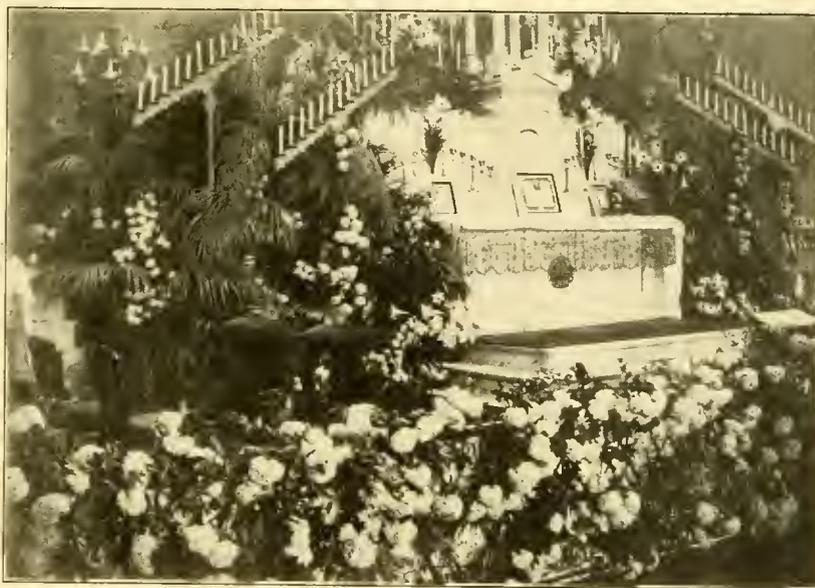

New York.

Monday night, June 13, was a gala occasion for the New York Florists' Club. The club room was well filled with nearly a hundred people, of whom fully half were of the fair sex, attracted in part by the promise of berries and ice cream and in part by a desire to see just what a club meeting implies. And so nice it all was that all must have been strongly impressed with the services. The business section came first. The secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting. W. J. Stewart presented resolutions of sympathy on the death of the mother of P. T. De Voy. P. O'Mara reported for the transportation committee, recommending the Baltimore & Ohio as the official route of the club in going to St. Louis next August, rehearsing, as only Mr. O'Mara can rehearse, the beauties of the scenery enroute, and appealing to all who contemplate going to give early advice to the committee entrusted with their comfort, and J. Austin Shaw detailed the extensive preparations that had been perfected for the annual outing on June 29 and for the distribution of $250 worth of prizes among the athletic members and their lady friends. A communication from a city department store, announcing a chrysanthemum show and price schedule of $1,500 therewith for next November, was courteously received. Messrs. W. F. Sheridan, Alex. Wallace and W. H. Siebrecht were constituted a committee to draw up suitable resolutions on the death of the son of President Traendly. The exhibition committee called attention to the flowers on the exhibition tables, including some beautiful specimens of the new Pierson fern, and peonies from Charles Lenker and George T. Schuman. Then came the fun.

First on the programme were two little girls, Annie and Jean, daughters of Jean Birnie, who made a royal entre under escort of a lusty piper in kilts, and scored a tumultuous success by their performance of the Highland fling in Scottish costume. Then came Jennie Cameron, daughter of the piper, clad in the tartan of the royal Stewarts, and gave the sword dance with rare precision. The orchestra followed, and the gallants filed in with their burden of ice cream which, notwithstanding the chilly atmosphere, disappeared in quick order. Thomas Black then rendered "Lea Rigs" and "Annie Laurie" in a rich baritone voice, and was followed by Messrs. Wallace and Butterfield with sweet melodies and Sam Burns with a story. Truly, it was a grand affair, and all suspicion of Scottiness was effectually removed by the orchestra, who diplomatically rendered the "Wearing of the Green" as a finale, much to the delight of J. J. Donlan.

NOTES.

The beginning of this week shows a shortening up of cut flowers in some lines. Peonies, roses and sweet peas are making a better showing, while carnations are still plentiful. Extra fine cattleyas are in demand. Beauties are very poor in quality. Outside Jacqueminot roses are selling for $1 per 100; the crop is very poor this year. Outside moss roses are bringing 50 cents a bunch. Lilies are of good quality and in full supply.

Alexander Smith, of Woodside, L. I., and Miss Katherine Coligan, of Brooklyn, were married last Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's mother. Mr. Smith is salesman for his father at their stand in the Cut Flower Exchange. They will reside in Brooklyn.

George Smith, who is a frequent visitor to town since his acquirement of the Massmann establishment at East Orange already begins to assume the practical commercial bearing which befits his new sphere.

One of the most notable sales in years is scheduled for Tuesday, June 21, when Wm. J. Elliott will sell at 54 Dey street a grand lot of palms, ferns and decorative plants from growers of highest repute.

George Schumacker, who was missing for the past three weeks, has arrived home from his long trip to the west much the worse for his dreams of wealth. He says there's no place like home.

The representative of the Glyndon gardens, of Glyndon, Md., was here on a visit last week and said that their peony crop was twenty days earlier than in New York.

J. H. Troy leaves on his annual trip to Ireland and Scotland early in July, and will stop off at Europe on the way.

John McMullen, of Whitestone, L. I., has sold 30,000 coleuses this year to the gardeners of Calvary cemetery.

Ed Roehrs is now on his way home after two years' absence in Europe, and is expected next week.

Some sound steamers are now refusing plants packed in hay, excelsior or other inflammable material.

It is said that Fleischman contemplates opening a store at Fifth avenue and Forty-fourth street.

A very general complaint of slow and difficult collections is heard among the wholesale houses.

James H. Carroll, of Thorley's, goes to Atlantic Highlands on July 1 for a three months' vacation.

Victor F. Dorral, of Woodside, L. I., has some very fine lilies at present which sell readily.

President Carnot and Kaiserin Augusta Victoria roses at Raynor's are very fine this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thorley sailed for Europe on the Kaiser Wilhelm II on June 14.

Alfred Dimmock sails on the Campania for Liverpool Saturday.

L. J. Kreshover will sail for a European trip June 16.

Chicago.

The present week so far has been a very unfavorable one from a wholesaler's point of view. There is very little doing and stock is stacked up on all sides. Carnations continue in a glut, although they moved slightly better than last week. There appears to be plenty of roses to meet all calls and the poorer grades are hard to dispose of. Some very fine stock in fancy roses, such as Beauty and Kaiserin, is seen on the market these days, and this class of goods is kept well cleaned up. Peonies, of course, are now in their height. Carloads are being received daily from the peony farms in and about the city and they are of all grades and varieties, selling all the way from 20 cents to $1 per bunch. Asparagus continues scarce but there is enough smilax and fancy ferns have been marked down to $2 per 1,000 after having reached and been maintained at $5 per 1,000 for nearly a month. Retailers are busy with the usual run of June occasions, weddings, commencements, etc.

The greenhouses and the entire stock of Albert Fuchs on North Halsted street were purchased this week by J. S. Wilson, of Chicago, and George A. Kuhl, of Pekin,

III. The E. F. Winterson Company, the auctioneer's superintendent, had made all preparation for a two days' auction, but a few minutes before the hour set on Wednesday the above named gentlemen bid in the entire holdings. A ninety-nine year ground lease was also secured. The new owners will form a partnership and go into the wholesale and retail business. Mr. Wilson has had the management of Vaughan's Greenhouses at Western Springs, Ill., for many years and is well known to the trade. Mr. Kuhl needs no introduction. Both gentlemen are growers and business men of experience and will succeed in their new enterprise.

On Thursday, June 16, occurred the wedding of C. E. De Wever, of Ghent, Belgium, and Miss Jessie Kate Ludlow, of Chicago. The groom is well known to the seed trade of America and the bride has been in the offices of Vaughan's Seed Store in this city for the last nine years. They will make their home in Belgium. The wedding ceremony took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Sarah Ludlow, 1613 Melrose street, and was solemnized by Rev. Frank De Molin, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal church.

E. F. Winterson Company in connection with the usual heavy business this week handled the big Albert Fuchs sale of greenhouses and stock. The force worked nights to keep up.

Bassett & Washburn, besides the finest Pæonia festiva maxima seen on the market are in with a fine line of Kaiserin roses. They received their first peonies from the field this week.

Bentley-Coatsworth Company is strong on high class roses and they are kept well cleaned up. The company's entire stock at New Castle is in a thrifty and healthy condition.

Derby day, which comes on Saturday at the Washington park club's track, is looked upon with hopes by the local retailers this year and they are preparing for a rush.

The peonies at the P. S. Peterson & Son nurseries at Rose Hill are now in the height of bloom and are attracting much attention.

C. N. Thomas is on duty again at A. L. Randall Company after two weeks' vacation spent at his old home in Pennsylvania.

J. A. Budlong has a special sale of American Beauty two-year-old bushes from bench on this week. He needs the room.

Charles McKellar is cleaning up his large daily receipts of orchids. Wedding decorations cause a steady call for them now.

E. C. Amling is showing gladioli with fine flower and unequalled stem. He is receiving a nice cut of Kaiserin roses.

J. B. Deamud is once again in harness after a sojourn of a week with his family which is summering at Cairo, Mich.

E. H. Hunt is supplying his customers with the very best in the peony line and reports shipping very satisfactory.

Wietor Brothers are in with a superfine cut of La France and Kaiserin roses.

A. L. Randall Company reports a heavy shipping business.

Among the visitors this week were H. N. Burt, Battle Creek, Mich.; Nathan Brown, Kansas City, Mo.; Thomas E. Mills, of the State Nursery Company, Helena, Mont.; William Dittman, New Castle, Ind.

Philadelphia.

The contrast between the weather of last week and this has been very marked. Shirtwaists were in order during the hot wave of last week while now overcoats are needed to make one feel comfortable. There is an abundance of flowers for the business doing, in fact in some lines there is a great glut, notably carnations, which can scarcely be moved at any price. There is no fault to be found with the stock except that it soon shrivels up, as it is fine for the season. All classes of roses are much deteriorated with perhaps the exception of Kaiserin and Liberty. Good white roses have been much in demand for large funeral orders of which there have been several. The number of pieces at one funeral in this city reached a total of 170. Many of them were quite expensive, some running as high as $100.

The William Graham Company had $1,200 worth for the funeral of Senator Quay. The principal piece was a representation of an old oak tree with a scythe at the base; this cost $250. The same firm had the decorations for the Wheeler-Geolet wedding last Tuesday. The principal flower used was the American Beauty rose.

Tuesday evening, June 7, was peony night at the Florists' Club. There was a very pretty display one exhibitor showing no less than ninety varieties. These came from John T. Morris, of Chestnut Hill. Among the new varieties were Duke of Wellington, La Coquette, Augustin DeHour, a fine pink. Compte de Gower, a choice red, Joan d'Arc, a large white, Mme. Moreau, fine pink, and Messonier, a splendid red. Barillet des Champs, pink, medium, and Emile Gallee, a daybreak pink, were also very choice kinds and have all been recently imported from France by Mr. Morris.

John A. Gardner staged some fine new Japanese varieties imported a year ago from Japan and registered with the S. A. F. Peony Association. They were choice sorts, quite unique in form and color. John H. Dodds also exhibited six choice Japanese varieties which, though it was their first season in this country, gave promise of being different and distinct as well as valuable acquisitions to the list.

Thos. Meehan's Sons also staged six fine sorts. John Shellem set up one variety an extra choice pink. It might almost be called a pink Festiva maxima. It is a seedling of his and easily ranks with the best.

The next meeting of the club will have to do with convention matters, as several committees were appointed and are to report and work up enthusiasm as it is desired to get together as large a delegation as possible. The club is increasing as several new members were elected and others proposed for next meeting. W. K. Harris presented the club on behalf of the bowlers who won it, the trophy offered by F. H. Cramer of Washington for a match between that city, Baltimore and Washington and won recently in the deciding match at Washington. It is a beauty and the janitor has prepared a special spot for it in the trophy case. There is not much more room on the shelves without crowding for such ornaments but should it be necessary the cigars will be given a new case and the room gained will probably serve us for a year or so.

David Bearn's greenhouses at Bala are for rent; 10,000 feet of glass in good order and several acres of land. Mr. Bearn is in poor health and will go abroad for a year or two to recuperate. "Davy" has the best wishes of all the craft, who hold him in high esteem and hope for him a speedy recovery.

Craig & Son's white carnation, Vesper, is showing up well during the trying weather. Mrs. Nelson is also another good one and many growers about here will plant it the coming season, their limited stock of the past season proving so satisfactory.

Herman Schoenfeld will retire from the retail flower business on July 1. His landscape and park work, together with the management of his greenhouses, takes up so much of his time that he decided to make this move.

Charlie Cox is sending in some fine centauria to S. S. Pennock. This is a pretty flower but the way it fouls the water is very much against its popularity.

The La Roche place at Collingdale has passed into the hands of Patten & Fleming. Mr. Patten is of the Rittenhouse Floral Exchange, of this city.

W. P. Craig is back from a western trip and reports having had a fine business.

S. S. Pennock shipped 1,000 American Beauty roses in one order last Tuesday. John Devlin has given up the Hackett place. K.

Baltimore.

We have had a week of weather notable for its great and sudden changes, the extremes running from 92° to 44°. There were heavy rains and vegetation is growing most vigorously, and nothing more so than the weeds. Outside stock was never more abundant, and the blooms of flowering shrubs are far more numerous and perfect than usual. Greenhouse stock was, the past few days, very scarce. The cool nights and the dismantling of houses are responsible. Thrip prevails widely among the roses, and the effect is seen in the poor quality of the blooms coming into market. Carnations are short and generally poor. The cut flower trade holds up well. There have been numerous June weddings, but very few big ones, and all making some demand. Commencements have held the stage and will continue for several days, and the requisition for bunches of all varieties of flowers are numerous. Heavy shipments of gladioli are being made here from the south. Their quality as a rule is good and they come in very fair condition, being sold at $3 and $4 per 100 spikes. This is a new industry, and, the culture being easy and the subjects bearing shipment well, it is likely to increase until it is overdone, like the narcissi and peony.

The Italian garden taste has struck Baltimore, and there have been two noteworthy examples of this style of landscape gardening constructed, one by Dr. J. E. Emerson, near Druid Hill Park, and the other by Mrs. T. Harrison Garrett, on Church street. In both gardens the stone balustrades, basins, vases and statuary are said to be fine. In the former example many of the decorations were imported expressly for the present use and the effect is much admired. As this style of gardening is striking to the eye it is likely to be contagious.

Wm. J. Halliday has bought an eligibly located piece of land of about three acres near the Liberty road in the western suburbs and will soon put up a range of glass houses.

John Cook has pulled out all his rose houses and is busy replanting. His stock of Cardinal and Eucharist is about exhausted, and buyers report both varieties growing finely.

The Harrisonii lily men are in evidence, and are not backward in their asseverations of the unusual ripeness and excellence of their bulbs.

Philip B. Welsh is building a rose house, 20x100 feet, at his Reisterstown place, S. B.

Washington, D. C.

Weddings and commencement exercises are still the leading features that make business for the florists. The custom of starting pretty brides and sweet girl graduates on the newer life, amid buds and blossoms, is a beautiful one, and some of the antiquaries should discover the name of its founder that he may have a suitable monument. I have no doubt that the Washington florists would subscribe liberally.

While a dull season will soon be here, there is evidence that it will not be as slow as some other years have been. On account of the presidential campaign, Washington will not be so completely deserted by leading public men, during the summer, as it has sometimes been, therefore we expect "somethin' doin'."

The quality of roses and carnations is generally indifferent. The Centre market florists are doing a lively business in cut Crimson Rambler, field grown, which retail at 25 cents per bunch. At Alex. B. Garden's there are a number of the new ever-blooming Crimson Rambler, disseminated this season by Vaughan. They are making fine growth and are free bloomers and seem less subject to the attacks of red spider than most roses.

It gives me pleasure to announce that the Department of Agriculture is about to issue a history of the toad. I suppose there are a number of florists throughout the country who think they are already posted on the ways of the toad. I was at one time a promising amateur in toadology. The late Edwin Sheppard, who in his day was well known among New England florists, cherished a toad in the greenhouse as he would a rare plant, and they were sometimes so numerous as to become a nuisance by getting under-foot about the walks. However, all this is crude and unrefined knowledge. The Department of Agriculture will treat the toad, I have no doubt, from a scientific standpoint and bring out many new and interesting reasons why he should, like the eagle, the bear and the groundhog, be venerated by the American people.

J. D. Davidson, one of A. Gude & Brother's force of decorators, has just returned from a six-weeks' visit in Porto Rico. While there he visited the fern nursery of Alfred A. Smith, which is about six miles from San Juan. Mr. Smith, who is a Washingtonian, has two and one-half acres, on a part of which he grows the cane used in constructing the canopies for shading his plants. Boston and Pierson ferns; Pandanus Veitchii and Dracæna terminalis comprise his stock. The original stock-plants were purchased of Robt. Craig & Son of Philadelphia, about nine months ago. Mr. Davidson tells me that the plants have made fine growth, and if sales and shipments can be properly handled, the venture promises success.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club, June 7, a number of new members were admitted. Appropriate resolutions were adopted on the death of Philip Gauges, long a member of the club. Pres. W. F. Gude addressed the members on the benefit to be derived from a trip to the St. Louis fair and the meeting of the S. A. F. The howling team will go and a delegation will accompany it.

Since my last letter was written, my concern has increased over the proposition of the department to import foreign ants to exterminate the boll-weevils. Once and for all, I protest against this injustice to the American ant.

Lyman U. Faulkner, of Kansas City, is visiting his father, A. F. Faulkner, an employe of the A. B. Garden range.

Fred. Wolfe is in charge of the business of J. Louis Loose, who will sojourn in Europe until September.

Arthur F. Steinberg, formerly a salesman and collector of plants, is now with Z. D. Blackistone.

Geo. C. Shaffer has had quite a run in wedding and commencement decorations.

Fred. Grilboetzer, who has had a severe attack of la grippe, is improving.

S. E.

Buffalo.

Trade the last week has been very good. Several weddings gave the florists some good work. Palmer, Anderson and Rebstock were very busy and next week will see another busy school commencement and several good receptions.

Lafayette park is now in full summer dress and Superintendent Braik has sent good stock there. It is a great pleasure to drive through our residence district and see the veranda boxes and lawn vases which Buffalo is noted for, and Scott, Neubeck, Rebstock and Anderson vie with each other to make their work the best.

Carnations at ten cents per dozen were very thick on Main street last week. Peonies are plentiful. The weather is fine at present, but we must have some rain this week or stock will suffer and Prof. Cowell will look sad.

S. A. Anderson has some very fine gloxianias.

A recent visitor was Chas. Millang, of New York, combining business with pleasure.

BISON.

Cincinnati.

Trade has been holding up pretty well and good flowers of all kinds are in demand. American Beauty seem to have the call in roses and it is pretty hard at times to get enough flowers for orders. An exceptional good demand for sweet peas and carnations. Peonies are about over but we hear of several growers who have thousands of them in cold storage which they no doubt are holding for the Elks' reunion next month. Sweet peas are good and sell well.

We do not hear of many growers in this vicinity who contemplate enlarging their plants but there will be much rebuilding. Tom Windram, of Fort Thomas, will tear away his small houses and put three large ones in their place and when completed he will have one of the finest and most convenient places. Dick Witterstaetter and G. Brunner's Sons also contemplate rebuilding but will not add very much new glass. George Corbett will rebuild four or five houses. George is well pleased with the business he has done the past winter and deservedly so, for he has grown some nice clean stock and at present is sending the finest sweet peas that are coming to this market.

There have been numerous rumors of new wholesale houses being started here the coming fall, but as we hear this regularly every June there is not much use in placing any confidence in this talk.

Frank Ball, with George & Allan, went fishing Saturday night and had the misfortune of falling down an embankment and breaking his arm.

H. J. McLaur will open a flower store at 413 Scott street some time during the present week.

Peter Weiland says he is perfectly satisfied with business since he opened his store.

George & Allan have very good valley which seems to be moving well.

A. O.

Louisville.

Business the last week has kept up pretty well to the average, stock of almost every description running short. It is almost impossible to supply stock enough of any kind to supply the demand, but we have been getting very choice stock from Chicago. Peonies are a question of the past, it being impossible to secure them in this market. Sweet peas have been plentiful and the demand has been enormous so that it is almost impossible to secure them in quantity. The field grown are coming on, a few having bloomed, and in a few days they will be plentiful.

The monthly club meeting Tuesday, June 7, proved a very interesting affair. Coenen & Company had their large "reception room" handsomely decorated with palms, ferns and enormous clusters of the beautiful Crimson Rambler rose, which presented a very artistic appearance, and demonstrated very plainly the business interest this firm possesses. After the meeting, which lasted until a late hour, lunch and some of that which made Milwaukee famous were in evidence, which put an unique finish on the hard work of the evening. The question of raising prices on bedding stock came up, and it is hoped to come to a favorable agreement at the next meeting. Wm. Walker opened the talk on "The Rose," giving some very interesting points.

Charles W. Reimers' place is receiving a coat of white which shows a great improvement. He is in St. Louis on a pleasure trip for about three weeks.

Nanz & Neuner's nursery department is a source of much pleasure.

C. H. Kunzman has been out of the city.

Visitors: Robert Mason, of Madison, Ind., and Peter Weiland, of Cincinnati.

At the annual peony show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, on June 11, first class certificates of merit were awarded to E. J. Shaylor for Lady Alex. Duff, T. D. Hatfield for seedlings Nos. 1 and 2 and Prof. R. T. Jackson for Richardson seedlings, Ferdinand Stoliczka and Chas. Sedgwick Minot. Honorable mention was given to George Hollis for seedling 623. The Kelway silver gilt medal was won by A. H. Fewkes and the bronze medal by Geo. Hollis. T. C. Thurlow, Mrs. J. L. Gardener and E. A. Clark were also prize winners in several classes.

WALDEN, MASS.—E. S. Converse, the noted philanthropist, died suddenly on Sunday afternoon, June 5. For many years the product of Mr. Converse's greenhouses under the management of D. F. Roy has maintained a high excellence at the exhibitions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in Boston.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, S. A. F. vice-president for New York state, east, has repeated his action of last year and issued a neat little pamphlet calling attention to the approaching convention, and setting forth the society's claims upon the profession for its support. The paper presented at Milwaukee last August by J. N. May, on the "Latest Advances in Greenhouse Construction" is reprinted in full. Mr. Hammond is a vice-president

La France.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Please give the origin of the La France rose. ROSE.

Raised by Guillot (fils) of France 1864,
from seed of a tea rose. It has no pedigree other than this. J. N. MAY.

Pale Foliage.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—The foliage of my young roses is very pale in color. They were received by express about a month ago and transferred to pots a trifle larger. In all other respects the plants seem to be in fine condition. Can some of your expert readers give me the cause and remedy? TEA ROSE.

Perhaps "Tea Rose" used a soil that does not quite suit the plants, hence they are not making roots in it quite as readily as they should. Another cause for the leaves turning pale in color may be that they were watered a little too heavily immediately after potting. If the latter it is very apt to give them a little check which would cause the foliage to turn pale. By careful treatment in watering they will soon grow out of it if the new soil they are in is suitable.

Piping For Greenhouse.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—We are building three houses each 26x100 feet, which are sixteen feet high from sill to ridge and three feet from sill to ground. What quantity of 2-inch pipe or 1½-inch pipe would be required for heating? We want one house to keep at 60°, another at 55° and a third at 50° in zero weather.

B. R.

The question does not state whether steam or hot water will be used but from the size of the pipe mentioned it is inferred that the 2-inch is to be used with hot water and the 1½-inch with steam. If such is the case, the following arrangement is suggested: To secure 60° use three 2½-inch flows and fourteen 2-inch returns with hot-water or one 2½-inch flow and twelve 1½-inch returns with steam. To heat one of the houses to 55° use three 2½-inch flows and twelve 2-inch returns with hot water or one 2½-inch and ten 1½-inch returns with steam. For the house to be heated to 50°, take three 2½-inch flows and ten
2-inch returns with hot water, or one 2½-inch flow and eight 1½-inch returns with steam.

Carried-over American Beauty.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have a bed of American Beauty roses I wish to carry over, and would like to know what procedure is necessary to successfully do so.

"C" can carry over his American Beauties successfully if he will gradually withhold water from their roots for about four weeks or till the wood gets all fairly firm, without allowing it to become shrivelled. When it gets into a fairly ripened condition by this treatment cut the plants back to the desired height or to good plump eyes, clean off all dead and decaying leaves from the surface of the soil, etc. Then with a hoe scrape off the loose soil from the surface without injuring any of the roots, then put on a good mulching of half well decomposed manure and half soil, thoroughly mixing it before putting on the bed. This should be all prepared before cleaning off the old soil, so as to have it ready to replace that taken away immediately and before the roots get damaged by exposure. As soon as the new top dressing is on water the whole thoroughly so as to moisten the whole of the old soil; then syringe the plants overhead at least twice daily till they begin to break into new growth.
but do not keep the soil too wet or many of the plants will die. Keep soil nicely moist, just enough to induce new roots.
This in turn will produce good, strong, young wood to break away freely. When all the plants have started fairly into new growth they will take water a little more freely, but they should never be watered so heavily as to cause the soil to become at all saddened. As soon as the nights become a little cool, anything below 60° in the fall, a little fire heat should be applied to keep damps from collecting in the house, and prevent black spot from starting. In other respects treat the same as for young stock.

Levi Z. Leiter.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—The florists of this country have just lost one of their wealthiest members and most enthusiastic workers in the death of Levi Z.
Leiter. He was a member of the board of directors of the American Mushroom and Greenhouse Company, in which he had taken a great interest from its inception, it being his desire that his company would in a short time build and own the largest and best equipped greenhouse plant in the United States. To this end he and the other members of the company had worked diligently until his failing health compelled him to give up his active interest. His death will be greatly mourned by all members of the florists' trade, as he was a man of sterling qualities whose keen business tact and financial power had made him well known in every city and country on the globe.

Business for Memorial day was about the same as in former years. There was a heavy shipping business done by the florists, and that relieved the market of any surplus stock. The stock mostly sold was of the out of door variety, such as gladioli, stocks, gypsophilas, callas, marguerites, peas, etc. The greater part of the local business was done by the street vendors, who always appear in large numbers on that day. Peas that week jumped up to $1 and $1.50, and as high as $2 per dozen bunches. Previous to that they were only bringing 50 cents per dozen bunches, and are now again down to that price and a little demand for them. All other stock, such as roses, carnations, Harrisii, etc., sold at about the same price as reported in the last writing. St. Joseph's lilies and Bride gladioli are to be seen in large quantities and sell readily at good prices. Business at present is very quiet outside of a little work that is being done for the graduating exercises. Stock, generally speaking, is poor, as it always is about this time of the year. The "Jack" roses which are grown out of doors, are the only good roses to be seen.

John McLaren, superintendent of the public squares and parks, was tendered a banquet on the evening of June 2 by the citizens of San Francisco. Mr. McLaren is to take a trip to Europe to collect data and study European methods of park improvements. Many prominent citizens were present. At the conclusion of the banquet Mr. McLaren was presented with a beautiful album.

L. G. Gardener, who was recently employed by Schwerin Brothers, has gone into business for himself and has completed two houses, 25x200 feet. His intentions are to grow roses. The houses just built are filled with Bride and Bridesmaid. Mr. Gardener is known as one of the best growers in the state.

P. C. Meyers, of the Glenwood Nurseries, and wife are spending their vacation in the Santa Cruz mountains. Mr. Meyers is now arranging to put up six new greenhouses for chrysanthemums. With this addition he will have one of the largest, if not the largest plant on the coast.

N. Roller and J. Conpiano have bought out J. Saulberger's Seventh street store in Oakland, which has been there for a number of years. Mr. Saulberger still retains the new store on Broadway in Oakland, which is considered the leading one in that city.

On Sunday, June 5, all florists who agreed closed their places of business at 1 p. m. There are yet a few florists who have not fallen in line, but we hope that they will, as it is conceded by all that it was one of the best moves made by the florists.

J. Carbone, of West Berkeley, has just just completed a greenhouse, 26x112 feet, for American Beauty roses. Mr. Carbone has made quite a success with this rose.

J. Nespoli has just completed one house, 40x100, for ferns. Mr. Nespoli grows nothing else but ferns and has a great many varieties.

F. Pelicano & Company have added to their plant in Ocean View a house, 30x255 feet, to be used exclusively for palms.

J. W. Young has taken a trip to the springs and expects to be gone about three or four weeks.

P. J. Thorsted, Jr., of Fruitvale, is building two houses, 27x200 feet, for carnations.

The Misses Lacey, of San Leandro, are bringing in some good Japanese irises.

PASSENGER STEAMSHIP MOVEMENTS.

The tables herewith give the scheduled time of departure of ocean steamships carrying first-class passengers from the principal American and foreign ports, covering the space of two weeks from date of this issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST. Much disappointment often results from attempts to forward flowers for steamer delivery by express, to the care of the ship's steward or otherwise. The carriers of these packages are not infrequently refused admission on board and even those delivered on board are not always certain to reach the parties for whom they were intended. Hence florists in interior cities having orders for the delivery of flowers to passengers on out-going steamers are advised to intrust the filling of such orders to some reliable florist in the port of departure, who understands the necessary details and formalities and has the facilities for attending to it properly. For the addresses of such firms we refer our readers to the advertisements on this page:

The Seed Trade.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

S. F. Willard, Pres.; J. Chas. McCullough, First Vice-Pres.; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secy and Treas.
Twenty-second annual convention, St. Louis, Mo., June 21-23, 1904.

NEW YORK.—B. Suzuki starts westward June 23, and will sail from Vancouver for Japan July 4.

VISITED ST. LOUIS.—Louis Goepfinger, of Peignaux & H. Lorin, wholesale seed growers of Angers, France. He was in attendance at the fair several days.

SAN JOSE, CAL.—Hot weather last Saturday, Sunday and Monday reduced the sweet pea seed crop one-half. It is too early at this writing to estimate damage done to other crops.

RETAIL seedsmen are racking their minds for profitable summer window displays. Insecticides with odds and ends of lawn tools, pruners, etc., are about all that is available.

WE need for our files a copy of the annual report of the American Seed Trade Association for 1890 and anyone having a copy to spare will oblige by communicating with this office.

VISITED CHICAGO: E. F. Crossland, with Steele Briggs Seed Company, Toronto, Ont.; M. Wilhelmi, of Barteldes & Company, Lawrence, Kan.; L. L. Olds, of Clinton, Wis.; Charles Cole, representing D. M. Ferry & Company, Detroit, Mich., accompanied by his wife.

Archibald Smith.

Archibald Smith, manager of the seed department of the Joseph Breck & Sons Corporation, Boston, for the past sixteen years, has resigned his position and will sail with his family for Liverpool, June 21, on the Saxonnia, he having purchased the old Prince seed business which has been established 100 years on Market street, Oxford.

Mr. Smith was born at Stranraer, Scotland, his father being of the well-known nursery firm of Thos. Smith & Sons. He served his apprenticeship at Glasgow, then went to Northampton for a number of years, whence he returned to his father's nurseries for a short period and then came to Boston where he was first employed with Parker & Wood and on the discontinuance of that concern took the position with Breck, which he has filled acceptably ever since. He goes with the best wishes of the Breck Corporation and his business associates there, for his prosperity in the new field.

When bidding good-bye to his associates in the Joseph Breck & Sons Corporation Mr. Smith was surprised by the employes, who presented him with a gold watch suitably inscribed, his successor, John F. Sharkey, making the presentation address. Two days later the corporation presented him with a solid silver after-dinner coffee service, the presentation being made by Chas. A. Breck, Mr. Smith responding appreciatively.

Newport, R. I.

A very cool week for June, and every day with one exception a rainy one, is the weather record since I last wrote you. Planting and garden making are about over and now we need some seasonable weather. All florists have had a good run on bedding plants and are well satisfied. A large quantity of plants will yet be used by the summer people all through this month and well into next, so on the whole it now looks as if there would be very little left. At wholesale geraniums in 3½-inch pots have sold for $6 per 100 and retailed for $1 per dozen; verbenas, petunias, salvias, etc., in 2½-inch pots have sold for $3 per 100, and by the dozen for 50 to 60 cents. Cut flowers have gone hard lately; there has been at times no market at any price. A few weddings this week have helped out, but the flower business is dull and will be until the season gets into full swing next month and the social functions begin in earnest on the avenue.

For the Griffith-Stewart wedding the Kay chapel was decorated by F. L.

Archibald Smith.

Ziegler, the general color scheme of the decorations being white and green. Huge palms and potted plants filled the chancel and on the altar were brass vases filled with snowballs and white roses. The church windows were filled with small palms, potted plants and white wild flowers, the effect against the stained-glass windows being very pleasing. Ziegler also did the house for the wedding breakfast, and it looked very pretty with palms and various white flowers.

Jas. S. Cowles has again been awarded the contract to roll the beautiful Casino grounds for the annual tennis games, which he has done for more than twenty years. Mr. Cowles is the owner of a steam roller made by the late Professor Fairman Rogers and presented to him when the latter left Newport.

The progress committee has arranged to establish an information bureau on Thames street, where visitors to Newport can be directed by signs placed about the railroad and steamboat landings and there get any information about the city they may require.

Some of the gardeners lost their nymphaeas last winter, ponds and tanks that had two feet of water freezing solid to the earth. The Marliacea varieties are the popular hardy sorts, being very strong growers and flower throughout the entire season.

Dr. Birney, president of the Jamestown Golf and Country Club, is having the links put in condition for the season's play. The grounds have been seeded and rolled and a number of enthusiasts have already begun playing.

A trip among the grape growers shows that a good crop of both black Hamburgs and Muscat of Alexandria is assured. The few that have already been sold brought $1.50 to $1.75 per pound at wholesale.

There is the usual demand for pea brush both for sweet and garden peas, and it sells for 20 cents per bundle; bean poles bring $1 and $1.50 per dozen for cedar and oak respectively. Everybody buys them.

At the Island cemetery this week many beautiful floral tributes were laid on a grave. After the burial the relatives returned later in the day to find the ribbons and part of the flowers stolen.

Mrs. Ogden Golet is having made by the Geo. A. Weaver Company some seventy-five large oak tubs for her bays of which she has a very large collection, probably the largest in Newport.

Thomas Galvin has had a great run on geraniums this season; he grew some 25,000 and he getting toward the end of them. His S. A. Nutt have been especially well grown and have sold at sight.

The official bulletin and programme of the Newport Casino for 1904 is now being arranged. This will include the summer music, tennis and other sports.

V. A. Vanicek has been renewing the evergreens on the grounds of the First Presbyterian church, a great many having been killed during the winter.

Andrew Johnson buried his daughter, Annie Beatrix Johnson, last Wednesday; she was 21 years of age. Mr. Johnson is head gardener for Mrs. David King.

Visitor: D. M. Pray, representing the Eastern Chemical Company, of Boston, Mass. X.

Albany, N. Y.

The month of June has been very prolific of functions that require the services of the florist. Among the number may be mentioned the Easton-Stanton wedding at St. Paul's church on June 8, the commencement of the State Normal College, the closing exercises of St. Agnes' school and of the Female Academy all of which caused considerable demand for flowers and made much work for the florists' employes.

King & Company did a very neat house decoration on a recent Saturday evening, the occasion being the twentieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Steefel, of Madison avenue. The firm used American Beauty roses in considerable numbers and for favors bunches of pink sweet peas tied with costly linen handkerchiefs were used.

Ernest Schoepke, representing W. A. Manda, Inc., South Orange, N. J., was in the city early this week. R. D.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—Peter Loretto, has opened a salesroom at S W. Falls street, where he has a beautiful display of potted plants and cut flowers.

MAYNARD MASS.—This vicinity was visited on Thursday, June 9, by two snow storms, the flakes falling until the unusual spectacle of white fields and gardens in June was presented. Peonies, fly-screens, lawn mowers and snow is a combination certainly worthy of record.

The progressive, keen and discerning Florist will this year buy of this Standard Introduction that is freely conceded to be the best of all Adiantums.

A Great Acquisition.

The best of all ferns for cut fronds. Brings the highest prices. The easiest to grow and the easiest to sell. Has received the highest encomiums from the leading cut flower dealers in the country. ADIANTUM CROWEANUM originated at Utica, N. Y., about fourteen years ago, and has been extensively grown by the original owner, Mr. Crowe, who has received phenomenal prices for the cut fronds in the New York and other markets, and has created a great demand for it. Buy now. Buy liberally and reap the benefits. The fronds are long elegantly proportioned and of a texture that renders it the best keeper and shipper of all Adiantums. It is a very free and continuous grower, requires no rest and responds readily to fertilizers. Anyone can grow it and get good money for it.

Introducer's Description.

Free grower, the darkest green of the Adiantum family and longest stemmed. It has also the most graceful foliage; the average length of the fronds measuring 30 inches. It is by far the best keeper. Cut fronds can be kept fresh several weeks in a cool place. It is also one of the best ferns for a dwelling house. I have given presents of this fern to several Utica friends, and from my own observation note it grows better than the Boston fern. I gave up rose cultivation some ten months ago in order to devote all my attention to fern cultivation for cut fronds. I find from the same amount of bench room this fern pays me $1.50 to every $1.00 obtained from roses.

PETER CROWE.

The Nursery Trade

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

N. W. Hale, Knoxville, Tenn., Pres.; Frank A. Weber, St. Louis, Mo., Vice-Pres.; George C. Seager, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.
Twenty-ninth annual convention, Atlanta, Ga., June 22-24, 1904.

LEUCOTHOE FLORIBUNDA has all the good qualities of the popular L. Catesbaei, but with narrower leaves and more compact habit of growth.

In the vicinity of New York Azalea amœna lost its buds during the last winter with the exception of those that were below the snow line.

AZALEA DAWSONI, one of the newer Ghent-mollis hybrids is among the most beautiful of the hardy azaleas. The flower is waxy white with a yellow blotch.

WAUKEE, IA.—N. C. Wragg, president of the J. Wragg & Sons Nursery Company, has acquired the entire stock of the company. It was founded in 1878 by the late John Wragg.

DONGAN HILLS, N. Y.—A verdict of $500 and costs has been returned by the jury in the case of Nathan Barrett, a landscape architect, against George Cromwell. Mr. Barrett's claim was for $1,500 for drawings and plans for beautifying the property of Mr. Cromwell.

FLORISTS are not alone in needing to recoup for the losses of a hard winter. The valuable box trees, laurel and evergreens lost by frost in the east will not be soon or easily replaced. Every large place has lost thousands of dollars' worth and this loss should be made up in added prices to similar classes of stock.

ATLANTA, GA.—State Vice-President R. C. Berckmans, of the American Nurserymen's Association, has completed arrangements for a special train to Mayfield, Ga., on Friday after the convention to take conventionists to the orchards of Berckmans Brothers. After a day there they will go to Macon, spending the night there and going to Fort Valley to visit the Hale orchard and Ohio Fruitland Company.

Park and Outdoor Art Association.

The annual meetings of the American Park and Outdoor Art Association and the Civic Improvement League were held in the town hall of the model city, World's Fair Grounds, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week. On Thursday forenoon the sessions of each society were devoted to reports of officers and standing committees, and the discussion and voting upon the merging of the two societies, which has been under consideration by committees for a year or more. The merging resolutions carried and committees on liquidation were appointed. In the afternoon the members of the Park and Outdoor Art Association took an automobile ride through Forest park and the World's Fair grounds and viewed the latter from the Ferris wheel, as guests of Park Commissioner Robert Aull, of St. Louis, and then went for dinner to the restaurant of the Tryolean Alps concession. In the evening Commissioner Aull escorted them through the "pike," visiting Hagenheck's and the Irish village.

On Friday morning, a joint session of the two societies was held at which the retiring presidents delivered their annual addresses. J. Horace McFarland, president of the Civic Improvement League, urged that the work be regarded as philanthropic rather than for pecuniary gain. The address of Clinton Rogers Woodruff, of the Park and Outdoor Art Association, related to what may be done in the way of cleaning and beautifying cities, and special mention was made of the organization of juvenile organizations whose members were pledged to promote cleanliness and sightliness in their surroundings. Mention was made of the good work in New York city, Chicago and Kalamazoo, Mich.

Mrs. Chas. E. Milspaugh, president of the Women's Auxilliary, reported upon the work done by that organization, and this was followed by reports from the branch associations at Chicago, Boston, Ashland, Wis., Los Angeles, Louisville, Rockford and New Orleans. As Mayor Wells, of St. Louis, and President Francis, of the exposition, who were expected to speak at the afternoon session, could not be present, a part of the delegates went for an automobile ride through Tower Grove park while others visited the exhibit palaces.

In the evening, the members of both societies were the guests of the Civic Improvement League of St. Louis at a banquet in the East pavilion. The local committee of arrangements consisted of E. C. Elliott, D. J. Catlin, Robert Aull, Benjamin Taussig and Mrs. Ellen McCall. The final session was held on Saturday forenoon at which various papers relating to the work of the united societies were presented.

Convention of Park Superintendents.

The Association of New England Park Superintendents, which this week held its seventh annual convention at New Haven, Conn., voted to change the name to the American Association of Park Superintendents and elected the following officers: President, W. S. Egerton, Albany, N. Y.; vice-presidents, G. X. Amrhyn, New Haven, Conn., Byron Worthen, Manchester, N. H., W. F. Gale, Springfield, Mass., Robt. Cameron, Cambridge, Mass., J. F. Cowell, Buffalo, N. Y., J. F. Foster, Chicago, Ill.; secretary, J. W. Duncan, Boston, Mass.; treasurer, J. H. Hemingway, Worcester, Mass.

The second convention trial match was rolled on the Arcade alleys, Broad and Chestnut streets, Wednesday night, June 8, ten men taking part. The scores ran much higher than in the first match, the winners averaging 900 to a game. Two teams were selected, captained by Robertson and Yates, and although "Robby" had first choice his side did not win a game. Yates had high total with 585, while Kift had high game with 224. The point winners were Yates 3, Kift 3, Robertson 2, Connor 2, Adelberger 2, Anderson 2, Harris 2, Watson 1, Westcott 1. The scores follow:

St. Paul.

The planting season is now nearly over, and everybody says that it has been the best that we have experienced. The very late season caused a great deal of trouble in that it held the blooming plants back. Nine out of ten geraniums sold were the S. A. Nutt, and they are completely cleaned up here. Mrs. E. G. Hill and Alphonse Ricard were the next in order. Salvia was called for a great deal as well as cannas, especially red, of which there is not one to be had. It is a thing to be regretted that a number of the small growers who rent temporary stands sell this stock so cheap. We hear of them selling good geraniums at $1 per dozen. This should not be, as there is absolutely no reason why they can't get $1.50 and $2 just as well, and be just that much ahead, as they have no trouble to sell out their stock.

Out of town cut flower business was as good or better this season for graduation than last. Roses were very scarce, owing to a week of rainy, cold weather. All other stock has been more plentiful than usual, especially carnations. There are not many wedding decorations, only a few that amount to anything, and Swanson executed these.

We are having our first experience with Greeks. One has been selling carnations for 25 cents per dozen in a confectionery store on Seventh street, and now another has opened a stand in one of the department stores. This has effected the small sales a good deal in the down-town stores.

Carl Haugen, Otto Hiersekorn, Wm. Strelow, Henry Krinke and E. P. Holm had good luck on a fishing trip early in the week. Alfred Clausen, of Albert Lea, and O. J. Olson caught a fine string of bass at Balsam lake, Wisconsin, the latter part of the week.

We have heard of no greenhouse building at all for this summer. One or two of the growers had intended to add more glass, but have given it up on account of the high price of labor.

L. Bauman, of Chicago, was a recent visitor. O. J. O.

Lowell, Mass.

So far the business done in June has been away off in color, nothing what it ought to be. Then again the weather has been anything but June. One would hardly know it was summer at all, unless he looked on the calendar. June is the month of brides and roses. We have brides, galore, but unless we get some sun we will have no roses at all. The last two weeks the thermometer has been standing at 55° to 60° at midday. The fore part of the month the sweet girl graduate was very much in evidence, but during the last week business has been as flat as a pancake. Last Sunday was Children's Sunday in most of the churches. On this day every child is presented with a small flowering plant of some sort. In this way a great many thousands are disposed of.

Quite a lengthy account of M. A. Patten's establishment down at Tewksbury appeared in the Lowell Morning Citizen. A. W.

REMEMBER IF YOU SEE IT YOU WILL BUY

The Fern for the Grower.

NEPHROLEPIS SCOTTII.

IT MAKES THREE TIMES AS MANY FRONDS AS THE BOSTON FERN IN A GIVEN TIME. FRONDS ARE ALWAYS IN PROPORTION TO SIZE OF PLANT.

IT IS THE MOST GRACEFUL AND SYMMETRICAL NEPHROLEPIS KNOWN. PLANTS ARE DENSE AND BUSHY IN ALL SIZES.

All the leading Growers and Retailers who have seen it endorse its qualities. See it at home and you will discard all other varieties of Nephrolepis. Come yourself, or send a substitute, and be convinced that N. Scotti is the Ideal Fern. For Testimonials, see former issues of this paper.

SAVES MANY TIMES ITS PRICE

THE AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY'S DIRECTORY saves many times its price to every one who catalogues or circularizes the trade. Fully revised to date of publication, it puts the mail only to live names, avoiding waste of postage and printed matter, time and labor.

Contains 412 pages, lists of Florists, Seedsmen and Nurserymen of the United States and Canada by states and towns, also alphabetically; firms that issue catalogues, foreign merchants, horticultural societies and much other up-to-date information which makes it a reference book of daily utility wherever a wholesale trade is done.

Business continues good, both local and shipping orders being prominent. A few mild days have helped the plantsmen and all indications are propitious for a good month. Wednesday, June 1, saw twenty-six weddings in this city, and the advance orders on the liverymen were so heavy that several funerals had to be postponed owing to the lack of carriages. Stock holds up in quality very well for the season, and as yet there is fairly little mildew. The newest arrival in roses is Kaiserin, which is not only in very fine shape, but most acceptable. Bridesmaid and Bride continue about the same, while Beauties are getting more plentiful. Carnations still hold up their quality and very good fancies are to be had. Enchantress, Prosperity, Golden Beauty, Stella and Lawson are almost as good as in the early spring. Lily of the valley is scarce, the recent heavy rains having spoiled the out of door crop, and indoor stock will not be ready for a few days. Lilac is coming in plentifully and spikes of flowers are very large. A few early peonies arrived on Tuesday.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Association held a meeting in St. George's hall on Monday to draw up a prize list for the chrysanthemum show, which is to be held in November. This is to be held on a gigantic scale, and will eclipse anything of the kind ever attempted in Canada. The railroads have already promised half fare, and even a cheaper rate is expected. A grant is to be given by the government, and with the good prizes which will be offered we expect considerable competition from distant points.

On Friday last was Decoration day for the schools and on Saturday for the Batoche Column Association. The monuments in Queen's park were decorated and the florists were busy making wreaths for the occasion.

R. Jennings, of Brampton, is sending in some very large marguerites. These flowers have recently found much favor for bridesmaids' bouquets.

H. Johnston, a grower for J. H. Dunlop, was quietly married on May 23. May he find joy and prosperity in the ranks of the benedicters.

Mrs. J. T. Rossiter is bringing in some well grown Harrisii. The lateness of the season makes them all the more desirable.

The vacation season has started. D. J. Sinclair and family are off on a fishing trip to Muskoka. H. G. D.

Cleveland.

Business for the last week and present one so far has been good for the retailer, weddings and commencement exercises giving them about all they can attend to. Considerable stock has been used up, principally peonies, irises and sweet peas. In the wholesale market roses and carnations have been a glut. For carnations this has been the first time this season. It has been clearly demonstrated by the returns that carnations as a money maker for the grower have superceded the rose. The average wholesale price per 1,000 has been greater for the former than the latter throughout the season. This condition of affairs, I venture to say, does not exist in any other city. What is the reason? It can not be the quality of the stock, for in that respect it can not be excelled anywhere. Is it possible that the inevitable is about to occur and the carnation is about to supplant the rose in the affections of the people? It seems so. The last few fine days have enabled the plant men to complete the bedding out. All seem satisfied with their spring trade. They say the demand has been heavy and all have cleaned out pretty well.

At the regular meeting of the Florists' Club held June 13 the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, In the recent death of August Schmitt this club has lost one of its oldest and most respected members.

Resolved, That in his death we have lost a valued member and one whom we all regarded as a man of exemplary character in his profession and in every other walk of life. The members of this society will long remember him as an able official as well as a genial and kind friend and companion.

Be it further resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the club and a copy of the same accompanied with our sincerest sympathy be conveyed to his bereaved family.

The situation in the cut flower line can be summed up by simply saying plenty of stock in every item. Carnations have been arriving in immense quantities and naturally prices are very low on them. The quality of most shipments is of an inferior order and with very poor keeping qualities. Some very fine Liberty roses were noted this week with stems averaging over three feet. Asparagus strings are the only short item on the list. Indoor valley, which had been displaced by the outdoor stock, is now enjoying a good call. Those florists interested in bedding plants are very well satisfied with the season as the stock is well cleaned up.

The Florists' Club will hold its first picnic on July 10. The place has not been definitely decided upon but the committee is hard at work and an enjoyable time is promised. It is hoped that all members and their friends will attend and make it a success.

J. H. Heitman has been spending a week at St. Louis, most of the time on the "Pike."

Congratulations are in order for Gust Kellner; it is a little girl.

Emil Welke intends to erect three houses this summer.

Recent visitors were J. E. Matthewson, Sheboygan, Wis.; Adam Zender, Chicago, Ill.; H. Levenbagen, Manitowoc, Wis.; Victor Wayman, Madison, Wis.

Davenport, Ia.

Decoration day has come and gone and from a trade point of view was a success. The weather was cool and damp but the demand for flowers was good and prices satisfactory. Owing to the lateness of the season there were but few outdoor flowers. The use of flowers for Decoration day seems to be on the increase, several florists stating that their sales for that day were greater than ever before. The cemetery florists, those adjacent to the cities of the dead, have had a very busy time while the same story is heard from their brethren in other parts of the three cities. There are now scarcely any bedding plants left for sale, growers claiming to have sold out cleaner than any time in the past.

Superintendent Arp, of the Davenport parks, met with an accident last week. He was riding on one of the park's farm wagons when the front wheel came off, causing the horses to run away and throwing Mr. Arp on the brick pavement. As Mr. Arp is no feather weight by any means he came down rather hard, bruising him up considerably. He was unable to get about for a few days. At the present writing he is doing nicely and is able to be around again.

Spencer Square, a small but beautiful park in the heart of Rock Island, is to have a new music hall to cost $2 500. Spencer Square is the pride of Rock Island florists, for here one can see as fine a floral display as anywhere.

The Boston store, a department store, is trying to see how cheap it can sell flowers without giving them away. Nearly all the florists have agreed not to sell the store a single flower, at any price.

The two new greenhouses built last fall by the Allison-Littig Company are to be torn down and moved to the old Dauncher place, two blocks south.

CROP INSURANCE.
Life insurance is valuable because it guarantees the outcome.
"Gurney" Heaters
"BRIGHT IDEA," "DORIC" and "400 SERIES" do the same thing for your hothouse: THEY GUARANTEE THE CROP. First of all they save 20 per cent on the coal bill and so keep expense at a minimum. Next, they produce an even heat and so do not imperil the life of the plant. Next, they are simple to operate and so require least attention. Lastly, they wear longer than others and thus perceptibly reduce the capital invested. Don't buy or exchange until you've investigated them.

Notes By the Way.

When one sees the amount of cheap stock on the market he is apt to wonder how the man can live who is charging twice as much, and yet he is usually the fellow who has the largest bank account. The public is always willing to pay a good price for a good article. The poor article is always dear at any price. You never can be the cheapest man. If you advertise goods at a cut-rate this week the other fool will go you one better next week. You can be the best, however, and the public will pay you your price.

Pye Brothers, Nyack, N. Y., are extending their establishment to meet the growing demands of their business. They commenced about three years ago, and so successful has been their business that all the ground available in their first location has been covered with greenhouses. They have now leased C. A. Tucker's place, at West Nyack, and are renovating and rebuilding the greenhouses. The location is an ideal one. They are sheltered on the north and northwest by a rocky prominence that rises almost precipitously for one or two hundred feet. They catch the first rays of the morning sun across the Hudson river, and in the duldest days in winter they will receive the fullest light. By the end of this summer they will have 25,000 feet of glass ready for business on this new location. They are just commencing to put the glass in one new house, 42x140 feet, and the foundation of another house 42x150 is being laid. These houses will be planted with American Beauty roses. There are six benches in each house and five rows of plants will be planted in each bench. The benches are solid. They are raised one foot above the ground with loose stones and rubble, which form the bottom, and a board forms the side. Such a bench has lasting qualities and lots of drainage. This solid form of bench seems to be gaining many converts. It is no new experiment with the Messrs. Pye. They have been growing Kaiserin this way for some time, and consider it a decided advantage.

Kaiserin is very largely grown here as a summer blooming rose. Several houses are now in full crop, giving fine stems, good blooms and not a speck of mildew. They will produce several crops through the summer. In winter they will be rested and started up again in spring when the Brides are getting scarce. There is less expense with this mode of culture, and the larger out-put in summer at a fair price brings up the returns. The Messrs. Pye can always dispose of their flowers in the New York market, and they never get less than 6 cents apiece for their Kaiserin.

Quantities of carnations are also grown. The plants are at present in the field, but housing will be commenced by the beginning of July. The up-to-date varieties of carnations are grown. They consider the best the most profitable. Several growers have gone out of business in Nyack for lack of support since the Pye Brothers commenced. Their venture was scoffed at, and many prophesied that three months would end their career. Others failed to make a living by growing carnations in quantity and having to sell them in winter at 35 cents a dozen. The Pye Brothers grow for quality, and find a market for their flowers at $1 per dozen. They have succeeded and are adding more greenhouses to meet the increased demands. Their maxim is: "We can never be the cheapest, but let us strive to be the best." When one fellow commences to cut the price the other fool will go him one better. The cheap article is sometimes dear, even if you only have to pay the freight on it, while the superior grade always gives satisfaction and no one grudges to pay for a good article.

We saw here a bench of Wm. Duckham chrysanthemum which is being over-run by a small worm or caterpillar somewhat resembling a wire-worm, only blacker in color and possessing a few more pedal appendages. It enters the stem a little above the ground and eats its way up through the center towards the top. It ruins every plant it attacks. The Messrs. Pye say this isn't its first visit to Nyack. They have observed it before, and on other things, but as yet have found no remedy. We certainly never met the fellow before and have no desire to see him again. It would be interesting to know if anybody else knows anything about the pest, and also if there is a remedy.

Roses (outdoor) are in nearly every case short-stemmed this year. They also lack the substance of former years. Most of the gardeners attribute this to the extreme cold of last winter. Strawberries are also a poor crop and the berries smaller, which is also attributed to the extreme winter. Herbaceous plants in many cases also show the same effects.

The wife of Joseph Mooney, gardener to E. C. Moore, Hastings-on-Hudson, died on Thursday June 16 and was buried on Saturday June 18. A delegation from the Tarrytown Horticultural Society and also from the Dobbs Ferry Gardeners' Society attended the funeral. Mrs. Mooney suffered a paralytic stroke a short time ago and never fully recovered. She was in the prime of life and leaves a young family. The members of the craft extend their sympathy to Mr. Mooney.

We have visited several of the June exhibitions lately and have been interested to note the general interest of the public at large in these exhibitions of spring and early summer flowers. The show at Bronx park under the auspices of the New York Horticultural Society and the Peony Society was particularly interesting in this respect. Visitors came from as far as Chicago, Ohio, Boston and Philadelphia to witness the debut of the peony as the latest aspirant for society honors. These visitors, however, were largely men who are interested in the peony from a business standpoint, but we also met and conversed with wealthy amateurs from Long Island and other parts of the state who were looking for the newest and best that could be found in the peony line. The collections of herbaceous plants were also carefully examined and many notes taken. There is no doubt whatever but a large amount of business will result from the exhibition.

The same was seen at Tarrytown. Several wealthy amateurs told the writer that they would donate prizes for next year's exhibition, so delighted were they with what they had seen. "Straws show how the wind blows." These spring (or June) exhibitions have not up to the present time been very widely conducted. The early spring exhibitions of bulbous stock and fall exhibitions of chrysanthemums are more in the line of the professional gardener or commercial grower with lots of greenhouses at his disposal and the public is only interested in them as exhibitions, and visits them as it does Coney Island—for the sake of seeing the show. The June exhibition is different. There is scarcely anything in it that has needed the nurturing care of a greenhouse. The public sees there the prototype of the roses that the people have in their own yards. There is undoubtedly an awakening in horticultural matters, the common people are becoming interested, and it is up to the professionals to keep this interest stimulated. We have tried to educate them up to the standard of the orchid, the chrysanthemum, the indoor rose, the carnation, etc., but these are above and beyond the great majority. They say: "They are pleasant to look at, but expensive to handle." Some time ago we ventured to suggest to a professional brother that it might be profitable to educate the people in certain lines. "My friend," he replied, "you will find there is more profit in handling what the people want," and this truth becomes more fully apparent every day. Why not take the cue from this and encourage these summer shows? After all it is the great majority that we must look up to. If we would strive to interest the common people more and pay less attention to the aristocracy we might do horticulture and ourselves a great service. Horticulture follows in the wake of civilization, but the masses have to be educated to it.

An exhibition stand may not always be the place to judge the merits or demerits of a certain thing. Many a thing is more beautiful than it is useful, but judging from the number of times that the Marshall strawberry has carried off the first honors it would appear that it is Marshall against the field. Joe Marshall has won this season every time.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Handling Young Show Plants.

The early planted stock for exhibition blooms is now making rapid growth, the roots by this time being well hold of the soil. Consequently the side growths are beginning to sprout out at every joint. These should be rubbed out as soon as they are large enough to handle. The heds should be kept free from weeds and the surface of them made as even as possible. Also, examine the soil down to the bottom to ascertain if its condition is the same clear through. It is likewise a very important point in growing fancy stock to see that the soil be made firm. Now is the time to attend to this part of the work, after the weeds have been cleared out, the surface made even and before the plants are staked or tied up. Most of this class of plants are ready now for staking or tying to strings or wires, according to the method you are in the habit of following. Either method can be adopted with success provided the main point—that of supplying means to carry the plant erect till its blooming season—is ever kept in mind and properly carried out.

As soon as the plants require to be tied up they should receive attention without delay. Care must be taken in applying water to the plants during this very hot weather, owing to the abundant syringings necessary now to keep a moist atmosphere. Considerable water falls on the beds, and unless a close watch is kept some parts of the beds may be overlooked and become too wet, which will quickly cause a soft, long-jointed growth, and be a sure means of causing the plants to be an easy prey to any disease. Most varieties will bud up every little while as growth goes along. The work of attending to the removal of these buds and determining which growth to leave should never be left to the inexperienced, but should be performed by someone familiar with the work and varieties, because one wrong move at this time will take lots of time to recover from. If it can be done at all this season do not put this work off until the shoots have made several inches of growth. Attend to them right at the time they are large enough to handle without damage to the remaining shoot. Proper attention to this detail goes a long way toward making it possible for you to be able to take the proper huds at the time you will want them later on.

This fresh young luxuriant growth makes the very best stamping ground for aphids and other pests, and if not attended to in time very soon shows the effects of the neglect by the young leaves just unfolding being curled up and crippled, the same being noticeable during the entire growth of the plant. It is not advisable to resort to fumigation as a means of prevention in this hot weather, and it is far less trouble and a surer means of keeping these insects in check by dusting with tobacco dust or spraying with tobacco water, choosing a time late in the day, when the house has cooled off a little, and syringing the plants a little before applying it. This cools off the young, tender leaves, preventing the tobacco from burning them; also, the dust stays where you want it. Specimen plants and standards should have very careful watering after they have received the final potting, encouraging them to break into fresh growth by frequent syringings. In a very little while they will show signs of a new growth, which is an indication that the roots are taking hold of the fresh soil. It is then time for them to get a good watering to make sure of the soil being moist clear through.

THE CARNATION.

CARNATION QUEEN LOUISE is with some growers one of the best bread winners among the whites.

Caring For Young Plants.

The plants which are being grown indoors in about two weeks from planting will have taken good hold of the soil. The heds should now be gone over, removing all the weeds. The surface of the soil can then be made as even as possible to allow for the watering to be attended to properly. Extra care must be exercised in watering at this time, applying it in such quantity that the plants receive direct benefit, with the object in view of keeping the bed where the roots are not yet working in as fresh a condition as possible. This care will greatly add to the well being of the plants as the season advances enabling the larger plants in a few weeks' time with their consequently greater root action to receive the nourishment from this fresh soil. While taking this extra trouble it is especially necessary that the soil directly underneath and around the plant where the roots are working be kept in an even, moist condition. One of the greatest producers of stem rot is to water so that the moisture penetrates a little way down in the soil, forming a wet collar around the stem, the soil underneath this being in a dry state. Therefore see to it that where the roots are working and it is necessary to water at all, water thoroughly so that all the roots are working under the same conditions.

Indoor grown carnations do best in a moderately firm soil, but the matter of treading or pounding the beds must be governed to a certain extent according to the texture of the compost in use. A soil with a tendency to stiffness or where clay is worked through it usually becomes firm enough after two or three waterings without any other method being resorted to. Every grower must therefore use his own judgment in this respect with the material he has to work on, guarding against a too light soil, which will cause a rapid, long jointed growth at the expense of robustness. The plants should be given full sunlight with all ventilation possible, and on bright days pay particular attention to syringing to keep down thrip and spider, and so far as possible leaving the watering of the soil as an operation to receive attention by itself as it should. Also on very hot days it will be found beneficial to spray the sides of the house underneath the benches and the walks so as to moisten the atmosphere. These points, together with keeping the plants topped back as they require it will form the routine of the work in caring for the indoor grown plants for a few weeks yet and must not be neglected to insure success with this method of culture.

As the season is drawing to a close so far as the blooming plants in the benches are concerned and doubtless most of our plans are drawn for the coming season's work, is it not well to figure up what some of the varieties are doing now or have been doing from a blooming standpoint for the last three months. We are surprised at the fine showing that Enchantress is making at this time as we rather expected this would fade out in the hot weather. But as we now have them under a heavy shading they are certainly fine for this season and the plants are full of buds and bloom. Gov. Wolcott is also making a fine showing, and as we find ample use for white carnations right along we are very well pleased with this variety in spite of its fault of splitting badly in winter. Mrs. Lawson is now down to the ordinary standard. The stems are getting too short and the thrips commence to get in their work. So this is the way it goes. Some varieties that cause us lots of worry at one time of the year usually have a brighter side at another and it sometimes seems that we draw conclusions too quickly from what a carnation does in midwinter instead of covering the whole season.

Annual Meeting of Park Superintendents.

There were between forty and fifty members in attendance at the aldermanic chamber of the city hall, New Haven, Conn., when President George A. Parker rapped for order and the seventh annual convention of the New England Association of Park Superintendents was opened on the evening of June 7. Admission of twenty new members, the consideration and adoption of amendments to the by-laws and the election of officers, were the principal items of business. As stated in our brief report last week the scope of the association was widened and the name changed to American Association of Park Superintendents, thus extending the society's jurisdiction over the entire country. W. S. Egerton, whose achievements as superintendent of the park system of Albany, N. Y., were recounted in our columns last summer, is a gentleman eminently qualified to serve the nationalized society as its first president officer. He was the first applicant from outside the New England States for membership in the body and at the convention in Albany, last year, the first to be held outside New England territory, the attractions and hospitality of the capital city were presented in a manner never to be forgotten by those who were present.

The business meeting lasted an hour, after which adjournment was made to the New Tontine hotel, where a sumptuous repast was enjoyed. At the table were Hon. Abram Chamberlain, governor of Connecticut; Hon. John P. Studley, mayor of New Haven; Henry T. Blake, president park commission; Henry T. English, secretary and treasurer park commission; N. W. Farnum, vice-president park commission; H. C. Warren, assistant secretary and treasurer park commission; Hon. Simeon Baldwin; Rutherford Trowbridge, General Phelps Montgomery, Conrad Weiss, Jonathan Rowe, comptroller; Edward Fredericks and Frederick D. Grave, park commissioners, New Haven; Wilson H. Lee, president chamber commerce; James B. Coc, director of public works; James E. English, Walter Hubbard, president park commission, Meriden, Conn.; Hon. W. J. Van Patten, chairman park commission, Burlington, Vt.; J. B. Shea, Jackson Dawson, E. P. Adams, W. J. Stewart and J. W. Duncan, all of Boston, Mass.; Henry Frost, Haverhill, Mass.; G. H. Chase, Princeton, Mass.; Isaac Kelley, Lawrence, Mass.; G. A. Parker, Theo. Wirth, R. Karlstrom, J. F. Huss and Carl U. Fohn, of Hartford; A. P. Capen, Holyoke, Mass.; Henry C. Fuller, New London; John Dunbar, Rochester, N. Y.; H. T. Coldwell and I. B. Sweigart, Newburgh, N. Y.; W. S. Egerton, Albany, N. Y.; Frank Hamilton, Bronx, N. Y. City; Frederic Shonnard, Yonkers, N. Y.; J. D. Fitts, Providence, R. I.; J. H. Hemingway and James Draper, of Worcester, Mass.; C. E. Keith, Bridgeport; Walter Hubbard, Meriden; Christopher Clark, Northampton, Mass.; D. H. Sheehan, Brookline, Mass.; H. A. Hastings, Springfield, Mass.; Robt. Cameron, Cambridge, Mass.

J. B. Shea, assistant superintendent of Boston parks served as a most acceptable toastmaster. The first speaker was the governor, who assured his audience that they were great men although they perhaps did not realize it, for their work was in the line of the highest usefulness. Connecticut, he said, has more to be proud of than any other state in the country. It is one grand park itself and its best assets are its topography and Long Island Sound. He complimented the association on its good fellowship and expressed hearty wishes for its prosperity. Mayor Studley followed with a witty speech replete with stories and interesting comment on local affairs. He emphasized the great value of public parks for the working people, pronouncing the development of these breathing places to be the most important duty connected with city government. President Blake of the park board followed in a similar strain, enlarging upon the claims of the park people to the respect and love of the public and extended an invitation to the visitors to make a tour of the parks on the following day as guests of the park commission. E. P. Adams, of Medford, Mass., expressed the thanks of the association for the courtesies extended; W. J. Van Patten, Burlington, Vt., told of park development in the Green Mountain state; C. E. Keith, Bridgeport, was as successful as ever in his strenuous presentation of the claims of his home town. Col. Osborne, of the New Haven Register contributed a most eloquent tribute to the beneficial influences of park reservations in crowded municipalities. Mr. Parker gave interesting statistics of the advancement in the art and craft of park making and pertinent suggestions for the future based on the experiences of the past. B. Worthen talked on parks for small cities and Christopher Clark recounted the successful outcome of the agitation for the taking of Mt. Tom as a public reservation.

The second day was devoted to a drive through the parks of New Haven. As there are forty-seven miles of drive ways, the entire day was taken up and then only a portion of the extensive reservations had been seen. Waterside park, an area of twenty-one acres, was first visited. It is a tract of reclaimed land not yet completed. Fort Wooster, of revolutionary note with its old fort and fine outlook over the harbor was next in order and then Fort Hale with its fortifications dating from the civil war. This eminence enclotted with cedars, sumachs, celastruses and viburnums and is exceedingly romantic, affording a rare view across the salt meadows in one direction and terminating on the water side in a rocky palisade with a sheer precipice eighty feet in height. East Rock was next visited, the drive to the summit being eight and one-half miles from Fort Hale, traversing the elm-arched avenues of Fair Haven. This park comprises 400 acres and the crag on which stands the soldiers' monument is 450 feet above sea level. The circuitous drive leading to the summit is beautiful in the extreme, through a rich woodland clothed with elms, lindens, oaks, chestnuts, hemlocks, hickory and an under cover of kalmias and ferns. At the top a lunch was served and a vote of thanks to the city officials and park commission was recorded. West Rock park, with an elevation of 500 feet was next visited and the far-famed Judge's Cave, where the judges who signed the death warrant of King Charles I in 1661 found shelter and concealment from the officers of the crown after the Restoration, proved a feature of great interest. On the way thither, the nurseries of the park system, four acres in extent, were inspected and returning, a stop was made at the residence of the venerable horticulturist and writer Donald G. Mitchell (Ike Marvel) for the purpose of presenting him with a handsome loving cup. Edgewood park with its elaborate border plantations of shrubs and flowers and then Bay View park with its bracing sea breezes completed the itinerary and Superintendent Amrhyn received the well-merited congratulations of the visitors on the evidences of intelligent and tasteful management noted in every department of his extensive domain.

An exhibition of one of the Coldwell auto mowers was made on the open green in front of the headquarters. This latest advance in garden machinery was observed with much interest and commented on most favorably for the perfection of its work.

The last day of the convention was devoted to a visit to Meriden, where, under guidance of Meriden's benefactor, Walter Hubbard, the famous Hanging Hills and other divisions of the park system were visited and Mr. Hubbard's hospitality proved, as heretofore, boundless.

THE ROSE.

JOHN H. TAYLOR, of Bayside, N. Y., is making a signal success of his culture of Liberty roses on the cut-back method. The plants are given a rest, as in the old method of forcing H. P. roses, and are then cut down close so that the growths all come from the base of the plant, and when the flower is cut the entire stem is taken with it. Hence no tying is necessary, and abundant light and air reaches every part of the growth. Mr. Taylor is rapidly turning his carnation houses back to roses as the more profitable crop, and solid beds with grafted roses throughout are the rule.

Rose Night at Orange, N. J.

A deferred meeting of the New Jersey Floricultural Society was held at the society's rooms in Orange June 17. The postponement from June 3 was caused by a desire to enjoy a special "rose night." The tables were filled with the products of the estates in this and adjacent neighborhoods, chief among which were seven vases exhibited by John Crosby Brown, from the hand of Peter Duff, a separate stand, being thought worthy for an additional vase of Baroness Rothschild of fine form and almost perfect symmetry. So near alike was each individual blossom it received 85 points. A large vase of a variety of blooms exhibited by William Runkle, grown by D. Kindsgrab, not for competition, received the society's first class certificate. The interest of the evening, however, centered in twenty-seven named varieties exhibited in the amateur section by a lady, one of A. D. Rose's clientele, entered in the name of her brother, C. H. Wilmer, of Montclair. It received a first class certificate.

Another exhibit was a superb Cattleya gigas, remarkable for size, number of blooms and compact form, due probably to its having been grown near the glass, for William Barr, by Arthur Bodwell, as was also a C. Loddigesii and an Oncidium Harrisonianum. A vase of white peonies of extraordinary size was shown by Peter Duff. A seedling poppy closely resembling orientale, by A. C. Jenkins, of Lewellyn Park, grown by George Von Qualm, and sweet william by A. C. Van Gaasbeck, grown by Wm. Bennett. In pots were several Nephrolepis Piersoni from Peter Duff, a specimen Phyllotanium Lindenii, receiving 85 points, from William Runkle, grown by D. Kindsgrab, and a large array of fruits and vegetables, it being the initial exhibit of this season in the contest for the silver cups. The finest strawberries were grown by D. Kindsgrab, receiving 60 points. The judges for the evening were John L. Collins, John Hayes and Jos. B. Davis. One new member was placed in nomination and a letter from Vaughan's Seed Store offering a prize for a vegetable competition was referred to a committee. Discussion as to how to render the work of judging more expeditious and a motion to separate the competitive from the not for competition portion of subsequent shows consumed the evening.

New Rose Etoile De France.

This new rose, the result of a cross between Mme. Abel Chatenay and Fischer Holmes is one of the products of that well known and able rose grower, J. Pernet-Ducher, of Lyons, France. It is described as very vigorous in growth and of robust constitution, forming upright bushes of large size, with very few thorns on the branches; foliage of a handsome bronzy green color; buds long and carried singly on stiff, erect stems; flower very large, with petals of good substance, magnificent cupped form, very full and expanding freely; color, superb velvet crimson; the center of the bloom vivid cerise. The flowers are very fragrant and last well.

This new variety has inherited from the seed-bearing parent, Mme. Abel Chatenay, its wonderful habit of growth and free flowering qualities, and from the pollen parent, Fischer Holmes, it has derived its brilliant color. It is claimed for Etoile de France that it is the queen of ever-blooming red roses; the best red rose for forcing under glass for cut flower purposes, and the most vigorous and free blooming rose ever introduced. It was awarded a gold medal in Spring Show at Tarrytown, N. Y.

In the Tarrytown Horticultural Society's June show of strawberries, roses and vegetables, held in the Young Men's Lyceum, Tarrytown, N. Y., June 14, the classes were well contested, the winners in the competition for gardeners being as follows:

D. Mac Farlane, gardener for Mrs. H. Walter Webb, Scarborough, N. Y., won a prize of $25 for the best vase of hybrid perpetual roses, assorted, not to exceed fifty blooms; the prize of $20 for the best collection of flowers cut from hardy perennials.

H. Nicholls, gardener for Mrs. J. B. Trevors, won the prize of $5 for the best three quarts of strawberries, of three varieties; first for the best one quart of strawberries; first for the best collection of outdoor roses; first for the best twelve outdoor roses of one variety, and first for the best collection of twelve vegetables.

A. Grierson, gardener for H. Arnold, Portchester, N. Y., won first for the best six varieties of outdoor roses; first for best display of outdoor climbing roses, and second prizes for perennials and collection of roses.

James Ballantyne, gardener for Mrs. George Lewis, Tarrytown, won first for the best three varieties of outdoor roses; first for the best display of antirrhinums; first for the best collection of flowers cut from hardy shrubs, and first for the best collection of sweet peas.

A. Wissenberger, gardener for H. Willets, White Plains, won first for the best vase of roses.

Joseph Tierney, of Hastings, N. Y., won first prize for best six varieties of vegetables.

There was a special exhibit of perennials by F. S. Pammer, and a collection of palms and foliage plants shown by the F. R. Pierson Company, which also exhibited a fine specimen of the new fern, which is a decided improvement on the Nephrolepis Piersoni. T. A.

WITH THE GROWERS

Julius Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J.

A few years ago, when F. Sander, of St. Albans, England, visited New York, he made sanguine predictions as to the future use of orchids as cut flowers in this country, which seemed at that time almost out of the range of possibility. But Mr. Sander's forecast was correct, as no one can fail to realize after a visit to some of the places where orchid culture for the cut flower trade is carried on and large amounts of money confidently invested in this specialty. Julius Roehrs has twenty-three houses devoted exclusively to orchids and, as a general thing, the demand for the flowers keeps ahead of their production. Frequent importations coming in add steadily to the quality and variety. There is a constant encroachment on the stock due to the increasing demand for collections for filling private conservatories. This department of the plant growing business is also assuming large dimensions. Within one week recently Mr. Roehrs was called upon to supply the material for filling three sets of conservatories. This included palm, orchid and stove houses, and comprised an infinite variety of kinds in each case.

While the catalogue of varieties in orchids required to acceptably stock up a private collection must be of necessity very comprehensive, the list of sorts useful for commercial cut flower purposes is as yet quite limited. Cattleyas hold first place, and selected according to their flowering time, may be had consecutively through the greater part of the year. Cattleya Mossiae, the great spring blooming species following after the trianas are ended, is now drawing to a close for this season. The sweet-scented C. Gaskelliana is now at its height, and C. gigas just begins to show the flowering sheaths, an occasional precocious individual already opening its gorgeous blooms. C. Dowiana, a very late one, with gold and crimson flowers, will appear afterward. C. Warneri is a splendid species, blooming in April and May, but is rarely seen in commercial collections in quantity, owing to the difficulty attending its importation, as it carries poorly. Mr. Roehrs grows his cattleyas mostly in peat now, having given up the use of moss, largely because the plants seem to thrive better in the peat. Leaf mould is also regarded as an unsafe material in a large commercial place, although all right in a private conservatory, where every individual specimen may receive separate attention as to watering.

Phalænopsis amabilis is blooming now, and is about the only white orchid available at the present time. P. amabilis Rimestadtiana is a beautiful variety introduced by Linden two years ago, and should hold a prominent place as a cut flower sort when it becomes more plentiful. The flowers are very large, and are distinct from the type in having a clear yellow throat minus the purple marking seen in amabilis. The petals take on a slight pink flush at times. P. Schilleriana is now all through flowering. Mr. Roehrs has nearly a thousand phalænopsis. They are suspended well up towards the glass in a shaded house in five to seven-inch baskets. Grown on a stage, the long, brittle roots are apt to be injured in handling, and ants are a constant pest. The desired constant moisture in the house is augmented by covering the benches with a layer of coke, which is kept continually wet. In the same house are cyripediums and Anthurium Scherzerianum, both of which flourish in the same moist atmosphere which is required for the phalænopsis.

Among those useful florists' orchids the dendrobiums two are grown largely here for cut flowers, D. formosum giganteum and D. Bensoniae. Formosum giganteum is one of the best sellers, the pure white flowers commanding a steady price throughout the entire winter. Vanda cœrulea and Lælia anceps are also standard goods, the white variety of the latter being always in demand. Mr. Roehrs has a big lot of calanthes. Veitchii and vestita are the staples, and they are now in vigorous growth preparatory to a crop of handsome flower spikes in the fall. Calanthes are gross feeders during the growing period, and are given rich soil well fattened with manure. As to cyripediums, one or the other is in bloom always. Just now C. Lawrenceanum has its day. Odontoglossum Roezlii and Roezlii alba are also included in the limited number of bloomers available for the June weddings which are now in progress.

Mr. Roehrs is endeavoring to meet the tremendous demand for crotons which has developed of late, and has been striking cuttings by the thousands all through the spring. He considers Reidii the best of all the varieties. Sunshine is another leader, and among the narrow-foliaged varieties Andreanum and Prince of Wales, the latter with spirally twisted leaves, are commercially in the first class. The stock propagated this spring will make nice plants for next Christmas sales. Camellias are receiving greater attention owing to the rapidly growing Easter demand. The young plants are all imported. Two to three feet high in seven-inch pots is the favored size. A new tuberous begonia just blooming for the first time is Gloire de Bruges. The flower is large, double pink and very symmetrical. The white Lorraine begonia, Mumford Hall, is better in all respects than the one known as Caledonia.

The stately specimen pyramidal bays, shown in the accompanying illustration, were part of a recent importation by Julius Roehrs, a leading dealer in bays. The tendencies of architecture in country villas and the rampant fad of "Italian" gardens are in part responsible for the bay trees' popularity. The sale of these formal objects has greatly increased in this country within a few years and promises to continue.

World's Fair Notes.

The setting of bedding plants is completed. Only those in the vicinity of the Agriculture and Horticulture buildings are competing for medals. They have been furnished by various florists, but the planting has been done under the direction of Superintendent Hadkinson. The weather has been quite favorable and the stand is almost perfect. Among the largest exhibitors is J. C. Vaughan, of Chicago, whose plants fill the beds west of the walk between the two buildings. They include several thousand cannas, several varieties of salvias, geraniums, coleus, ricinus, pansies, ornamental grasses and verbenas. Large numbers of cannas have been entered by William Schray & Son, St. Louis, Mo.; E. H. Barbour, Lincoln, Neb.; W. W. Coles, Kokoma, Ind.; Conard & Jones Company, West Grove, Pa.; J. Roscoe Fuller, Floral Park, N. Y.; W. F. Kasting, Buffalo; August Obermeyer, Parkersburg, W. Va., and Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian, Mich. J. K. Alexander, Breakwater, Mass., and Schisler-Corneli Company, St. Louis, have displays of dahlias. W. F. Dreer, Philadelphia, has sent aquatics, cannas, geraniums, penisetum, stokesias and other plants; W. A. Burpee & Company, Philadelphia, begonias and heliotrope; the Johnson-Musser Seed Company, Los Angeles, Cal., dahlias and callas; H. E. Newburg, Magnolia, N. C., tuberoses, caladiums and cannas, and Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian, Mich., salvias, anemones, geraniums and dwarf chrysanthemums.

A large and attractive display of peony blooms was made last week by the Charlton Nursery Company, Rochester, N. Y. It was entered in six classes: 25 white, 25 white blushed, 25 light pink, 25 dark pink, 25 red, and as a collection of not less than five of a variety.

GIANT BAY TREES AT JULIUS ROEHR'S, RUTHERFORD, N. J.

A Victoria regia is growing nicely in the smaller pond east of the Palace of Agriculture. The nymphæas in the display of George Richardson, Warren, O., in the pond southwest of the Palace of Horticulture are in flower.

The weather during the last two weeks has been nearly perfect, averaging about 80° as a maximum, and falling to 60° to 65° at night, with two good showers to refresh the lawns and plants.

Prof. L. R. Taft, who is in charge of the jury work in the horticultural department, is attending the commencement exercises of the Michigan Agricultural College this week.

Among the nurserymen who dropped in last week on the way to the convention at Atlanta, Ga., was C. L. Watrous, Des Moines, Ia.

Aerides Fieldingii.

Popularly known as the fox brush orchid on account of its long curved racemes densely furnished with large, fragrant white flowers, beautifully mottled with bright rose on spikes about eighteen inches long, this plant was introduced by Veitch of London in 1850 and is one of the finest of East Indian orchids, easy of culture and deserving a place in every collection. The illustration represents a plant now blooming in my collection, bearing four spikes, one of which is branched, and carrying altogether 178 flowers.

British Trade Topics.

The great event of the horticultural year has been the summer show held in the Temple Gardens, a charming oasis in the midst of London's crowded thoroughfares. Additional importance centered in the event from the fact that the Royal Horticultural Society, responsible for the arrangements, is this year holding its centenary. The king and queen visited the show, and all that was lacking to insure a complete success was fine weather. There are not many striking novelties to record. Orchids were, of course, a strong feature. The most notable was the bigenic hybrid between Cochlidia Noetziiana and Odontoglossum Pescatorei, exhibited by Chas. Vuylsteke, Loschristy, Ghent, Belgium, under the name of Odontioda Vuylstekea. The blue ribbon of the show was secured by W. Paul & Son, of Waltham Cross, who had a magnificent display of roses, prominent being Dorothy Perkins, the American introduction which has attained great popularity, Perle des Niegas, a pure white polyantha variety; Queen Alexandra, Kane, Frau Drusckki, Maman Cochet, Margaret Dickson, etc. The Messrs. Paul received the coveted Veitchian gold cup, presented by Veitch & Sons, Chelsea, to celebrate the jubilee of the firm. Amongst the novelties I noted a new plant named Gloriosa Rothschildiana, with large carmine red flowers laced with gold at the edges. This was sent by Hon. Walter Rothschild. L. J. Drages Dom, Laeken, Brussels, exhibited a fine anthurium named A. Gustavii, with the blade of the leaf heart-shaped. R. Irwin Lynch, curator of the Botanic Garden, Cambridge, contributed a collection of new varieties of Gerbera Jamesoni comprising G. J. Sir Michael, yellow; Mayflower, pink shaded with yellow; Evangeline, pink; Brilliant, scarlet, and Cantabrigiensis, rosy pink. To give a full list of the exhibits would be to record a long array of names of the leading florists and nurserymen of Great Britain.

Quickly following the Temple show there has been an international horticultural exhibition held at the gardens of the Royal Botanic Society in Regents Park. This was opened to-day (June 6). A notable attraction was the superb display of rhododendrons contributed by John Waterer & Sons, L't'd., of the American Nursery, Bagshot, Surrey. The firm has paid special attention to this branch, and of its nursery devotes sixty acres to rhododendrons alone. Its constant introduction of new seedlings has enabled it to secure a varied and extensive stock unrivaled in this country. At the show there were about 3,000 plants of a pleasing variation of shade. The 120 varieties represented included Mrs. W. Agnew, pale rose, yellow center; Duchess of Connaught, white with lemon-colored markings; Michael Waterer, bright scarlet crimson; Gowen Waterer; white, slightly blushed; Pink Pearl, a bold bloom of flesh-colored pink; Mrs. John Penn, salmon pink. Carter & Co., High Holborn, London, had a grand lot of gloxinias, verbenas and carnations, and Watkins & Simpson, Fairstock street, Covent Garden, London, had an interesting array of chrysanthemums, Collinsia bicolor, mignonette, Schizanthus Wisetonensis, Alonsoa Warsewiczii, etc.

Orchidists from all parts of Europe were recently attracted to an important sale in London of a portion of the collection belonging to Norman C. Cookson. The total sum realized was over £5,000. O. crispum Cooksoniae, which had received a gold medal from the Royal Horticultural Society orchid committee realized £672. The other prices were correspondingly high, attesting to the fact that the orchid cult is still a rich man's hobby. Mr. Chamberlain, of course, sets the fashion.

On this side the value of combination and organization is being more fully recognized. The National Potato Society, formed at the beginning of the year, is making satisfactory headway and is receiving the support of many influential members of the trade. Experiments are being made in twelve counties by the society as to the relative characteristics of the leading varieties of tubers. Arrangements are also being made for a big show in the fall. The fruit growers have their federation as well as the market salesmen, and now the working gardeners are anxious to combine. Last week the British Gardeners' Association was formed, having for its object the raising of the status of the working members of the trade; the regulation of the hours of labor, and the securing of better wages. Mr. Watson, of Kew Gardens, is taking a keen interest in this movement.

THE RETAIL TRADE

VARIOUS things are sold to put in the water to make cut flowers last longer, says an English writer, possibly to arrest putrefaction. A teaspoonful of Condy's Fluid to a pint of water is probably as good as any of these.

Floral Arrangements at Dusseldorf.

The accompanying illustrations show two striking arrangements of orchids at the spring trade exhibition, which was held at Dusseldorf, Germany, May 12 to 15. In the make-up of these arrangements not only grand specimens were used, but also material which was very costly. Flowers were used the plants of which cost as high as $4,000 each. All of these flowers were grown by Otto Beyrodt, of Merienfelde, Berlin. Intermingled with other orchids were the following: Dendrobium thysiflorum, Cattleya, Cymbidiums, Laelias, Cypripediums, Masdevallias, and, above all, beautiful and rare varieties of Odontoglossum crispum. Adiantum and asparagus were used for green.

New York.

The market was rather better all last week, but with the increasing heat took a decided drop Monday. A comparison of present conditions with those of a year ago indicates that the favorable prices received by growers during the cold, raw weather of the first half of June last, when carnations sold at $3 and $4 per 100, and roses of moderate quality brought good prices, has apparently induced growers to keep their plants still at work for the June sales. The result is quite the reverse of last year. The June, '04, prices are not one-fifth of what growers hoped for. Lilacs have sold well, bringing as high as $8 per 100, also peas, stocks, feverfew, candytuft, and everything white. Peonies are about over and lilies are shortening up, but peas, candytuft and like outside stock is very plentiful, much being left over from day to day. Sweet peas now are all outdoor grown.

On account of the many deaths in the "General Slocum" disaster, estimated at 1200, the east side florists have had much funeral work. Some of them were so rushed they used metal designs. Joseph A. Herrman, of 75 Avenue B had probably the largest share of the work, and employed all the help he could get. So far as known only one florist's family suffered in the disaster. August Schmidt, 180 Avenue A, lost his mother, wife and child. Their bodies were recovered and interred in the Lutheran cemetery. Mr. Schmidt's brother and brother-in-law escaped from the burning steamer by swimming. The latter is in St. Luke's hospital, but in a fair way to recover. Many designs were sent to the house of mourning by Mr. Schmidt's friends in the trade. The "one touch of nature that makes the whole world kin" came out in the action of one woman sympathizer, who visited the morgue and scattered flowers upon the disfigured bodies of the unidentified and unidentifiable dead.

The auction season is on its last legs now and bargain hunters are in evidence. The sales on Friday, June 17, were slow in prices, but stock was still plentiful. On Tuesday of this week both our knights of the rostrum offered a grand lot of palms in addition to the general stock.

They struck one of the hottest days of the year and they had hard work to keep cool and sell. These were the chief events of the week and buyers were a plenty at moderate prices. Commercial sizes went well but the large specimens moved at the buyers' advantage. A few more sales and both Elliott and Cleary will rest till fall, William Elliott to go for his deferred honeymoon. Right up to the last sale auction prices on general stock were maintained but the break has come in most lines of bedding stock, which are now hard to move.

Next Wednesday, June 29, every florist will probably take a day off and participate in the outing of the New York Florists' Club. A grand time is assured, as well as a chance to win some of the many prizes donated by the craft. Fred Lentz has picked his team of married men and hopes to win the baseball game from the bachelors. The steamer "Isabel" sails from the foot of Thirty-first street and East river at 9:45 a. m. A dinner and the games will be held on the arrival of the boat at Witzel's Point, View Grove, Long Island. The Metropolitan band and orchestra will furnish music. A fine souvenir programme of the sports to take place has been issued, and includes a ladies' bowling match, a baseball game, boys' and girls' races, races for married and unmarried ladies, races for members of the club, bowling matches for the men and other interesting sports. The events in all number thirty-two. Cleary's Horticultural Hall adds one more prize to published list. A suit of clothes valued at $35 is to be given to the grower who shall score best in a novel competition. Fifty potted plants will be placed fifty feet from the mark and contestants must bring them back, one at a time. The pots will be numbered from 1 to 50, the number of the pot to count as so many points for the man who captures it. Won't there be a scramble for 50 and 49!

A. L. Thorne has recently had completed a fine carnation house by the Pier-ton-Sefton Company. It is of galvanized iron framework throughout, even span, with full ventilation both sides. Mr. Thorne's theory is that no house can be too good for carnations and his stock bears him out. His cerise seedling Pilgrim appears to be full of good qualities, one of which is its long continued season of good blooming.

John I. Raynor is receiving the advance guard crop of August Jurgens' fine Newport grown roses and lily of the valley, which is coming by fast freight. The Newport season begins July 1, and judging by these samples of American Beauty, Kaiserin and Carnot roses Mr. Jurgens' enlarged plant is likely to take good care of the Newport summer trade.

J. H. Small & Sons, 1153 Broadway, have a window display of water lilies which is very attractive. The background is composed of oak branches and clumps of iris are placed at the rear of the pond. In the pond are over 100 lilies embracing a variety of colors. A small fountain in play adds to the general effectiveness.

The officials at the Bronx Botanical Garden have had much trouble through the stealing and wanton destruction of plants, some of them valuable specimens, by visitors. Future offenders are slated for severe punishment if caught.

The rumor that the old Thirty-fourth street market is to be torn down seems to be true. Already two of the growers having stands there have made application for space in the Cut Flower Exchange.

Young & Nugent have been receiving a remarkably fine lot of Cattleya gigas during the past week, much to the satisfaction of those who wanted something choice as a relief from the everyday run of stock.

Siebrecht & Son are offering cut sprays of Centranthus ruber which has met with some favor. It has a pleasing rosy red flower head and a light, graceful habit.

The enterprise of the Florists' Club outing committee in turning out such an attractive programme with so much advertising is much to be commended.

P. Brown, erstwhile running a store on Thirtieth street, has deserted the flower business for the environs of the grand stand and the allurements of the turf.

J. B. Nugent, Jr., the energetic chairman of the Florists' Club's entertainment committee, will contribute a good supply of White Rock for the club's outing.

June 18 was a record day at the Cut Flower Exchange. Buyers and sellers could hardly be accommodated, and prices generally were satisfactory.

Joseph Fenwick, employed for a long time by Ford Brothers, starts in business for himself as a wholesaler on July 1 at 48 West Thirtieth street.

George Matthews, of Great Neck, L. I., has disposed of his greenhouses, and will retire from business with a well-earned competency.

The F. R. Pierson Company's new sport of Nephrolepis Piersoni, shown Monday night, attracted very favorable comment.

Alexander McConnell is turning out some large window boxes in which hydrangeas effectively predominate.

Charles Golsner, the 16-year-old son of George Golsner, will try to become a seventy pound jockey.

N. Lecakes & Company have 1,000 cases of galax in cold storage.

Charles Millang had the best end of the lily market last Saturday.

Bonnett Brothers had some good shipping orders last week.

Thos. Young, Jr., is doing a good steamer business.

Visitors: William C. Barry, Rochester, N. Y., and Benjamin Dorrance, of Dor-ranctown, Pa.; John E. Haines, Bethlehem, Pa.; A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.

Chicago.

The June business so far has been a disappointment. The heavy demands and the big returns naturally expected at this time have failed to materialize and the last week's business has been no improvement over the preceding weeks. There are quantities of all lines of stock being moved daily but the prices are not the legitimate June prices and are ridiculously low in many items. The market is overcrowded with stock of an inferior grade. Roses continue to come in large supply with the exception of good American Beauty, which have been and promise to be exceedingly shy for some time to come. Many carnations are seen and it is possible to move only the fancies and these do not bring the prices they are worth. Peonies still come in and the cold storage will soon have its turn, but the season is rapidly waning. Much cheap stock is going the rounds. Good peonies sell from 50 cents to $1 per bunch of a dozen. The poorer grades run down the scale to almost nothing.

Derby day last Saturday did not bring the flurry in retail lines that was anticipated. The authorities this year eliminated the book-making feature of the event and this is said to have had some effect in detracting from the interest of the big day of Chicago.

At the last meeting of the Florists' Club June 23 progress was reported for several committees, otherwise there was little business. Action on the new by-laws was deferred to the next regular meeting, which will be held July 14.

Peter Reinberg has started to plant four new houses with American Beauty, and he reports that the carnations in the field are coming on slowly. What seems to be needed is a good heavy rain.

A. L. Randall Company sustained an approximate loss of $400 from smoke and water in a $5,000 fire, which damaged the building at 19-21 Randolph street Thursday night, June 23.

The store on Wabash avenue occupied by the Crown Piano Company, has been made attractive with window boxes which were made up and installed by Mrs. Penshorn, of Englewood.

On June 29, L. H. Winterson, of the firm of E. F. Winterson Company, will be married to Miss Steen. After the ceremony an extensive honeymoon trip will be taken.

The Albert Fuchs greenhouses and stock were transferred to the new proprietors, J. S. Wilson, of this city and George A. Kuhl, of Pekin, Ill., last Thursday.

The Chicago Carnation Company has been sending daily many consignments of peonies to this market. They deserve notice on their remarkable uniformity of quality.

Already some wholesalers have signified their intention of closing their places during July and August at 5 p. m. and it is thought that the movement will be general.

Albert G. Larson, of Galva, Ill., was here several days of last week buying greenhouse material. He contemplates adding to his establishment.

The new establishment of John Muir at Forty-seventh street and Grand boulevard is practically completed.

J. D. Thompson and family, of Joliet, are at St. Paul, Minn., this week.

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Bassett visited the World's Fair last week.

S. W. Allen is now connected with E. H. Hunt.

Among the visitors here this week were A. G. Larson, Galva, Ill.; E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; J. Morehead, Detroit, Mich.; D. B. Long, Buffalo, N. Y.; George A. Kuhl, Pekin, Ill.; W. H. Drake, Kenosha, Wis.; H. E. Philpott, Winnipeg, Man.; J. M. Gasser, Cleveland, O.; Harry Balsley, Detroit, Mich.; Emiel Kranz, Muscatine, Ia.

Philadelphia.

Business is fast approaching that mid-summer dullness that is so dreaded by the retail florist and yet which, like taxes and the inevitable, he accepts with more or less grace, according to his temperament. The best Beauty roses are now coming from out of town. They are about the grade we were getting a month ago; $3 per dozen is about top price for the specials. The commission men carry them in stock, buying them outright, which is encouraging, as two years ago they would not have thought of taking the risk. Other roses are getting very low in quality and are only in demand for orders. There are plenty of carnations and they are showing the effects of the summer heat and long forcing and the plants will soon be thrown out; $1 to $2 buys the best. Peonies are now from cold storage and they carry over surprisingly well, being as firm and hard or even more so than the fresh ones; $4 to $5 is the price. S. S. Pennock has still a fine crop to handle. Sweet peas now have the call, and as the outside stock is now in good shape in all colors they sell as well as anything; 35 to 50 cents is the price. A. L. Pennock is sending in fine valley to his brother. He certainly is way up when it comes to forcing valley.

The June meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was held last Tuesday evening. There was a good attendance and much interest was taken in the various exhibits. There were several entries of sweet peas, although the season has been so backward that there were not as many varieties as last season. Wm. Robertson staged six vases of outdoor roses which were fine; also a vase of Liberty from outside, which he says is hardy and blooms all summer. There were also some pots of well grown gloxinias. The discussion of the evening was led by Dr. Huey. The subject was "The best way to winter dormant roses."

The last batch of longiflorums was cut out last Tuesday and sold by S. S. Pennock to Wm. Graham Company for a large wedding at Spring Lake, N. J. This winds up the crop for this season. On the whole, they have not been a profitable crop the past season, as when they were most in demand the growers could not get them in.

W. K. Harris, to whom we look for large Boston ferns is sold out for the present, but will show up strong in the fall. William K. was a little late taking up the Boston, but has made up the lost time since. He always manages to get a finish to a plant that is hard to beat.

Ed Reid is getting a fine lot of gladioli from North Carolina. It is extra fine stock, better if anything than general stock that comes to this market.

Robt. Craig & Soa have commenced to cut their Lilium auratum which are a novelty in this market.

David Bearn has rented his place at Bala to A. E. Wohlert, of Altoona. K.

NOTES.

Florists in the new residence districts report a greatly increased demand for ornamental plants and shrubs, due very largely to the porch houses, which have been built in large numbers. In some sections of the city, where this class of house predominates, there is quite a rivalry among the owners.

Henry F. Michell Company is all alive, even this dull season. A well fruited apple tree in one window illustrates the use of Dilger's anti-codling moth device. In the adjoining window is a grape arbor, with Michell's grape bags in use protecting the fruit.

A great deal of outside stock is coming in and there is abundance of everything. No asters have yet made their appearance, but one grower has a lot all in bud, which he expects to market within the next ten days.

Berger Brothers, in their new wholesale place, 1220 Filbert street, are doing well. There is a business-like air about the place that invites confidence.

Ed Reid is handling large consignments of gladioli. Atlantic City used them largely jubilee week, one order to Reid calling for 1,600.

Edgar & Company, successors to C. A. Dunn & Company, 1516 Sansom street, are doing a steadily increasing cut flower shipping trade.

Wesley C. Jennings, of Olney, is still cutting good Bride and Bridesmaid, while his new stock is moving right along.

Charles H. Campbell, 3601 Germantown avenue, is active at housecleaning. His Boston ferns are fine.

Boston.

The annual rose and strawberry show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society on June 21 and 22, was a great success, the exhibits filling two large halls. Roses were shown by the thousands, the list of varieties in all classes being very comprehensively covered. Among the special awards were a certificate of merit to Jackson Dawson for hybrid multiflora, Mianie Dawson, and honorable mention for an unnamed Wichuraiana hybrid; a bronze medal for Harriet R. Foote for collection of hybrid teas; silver medal to Robert T. Jackson for peony Samuel Henshaw, a Richardson seedling of phenomenal size and character; certificate of merit to Miss E. J. Clark for grape, Diamond Jubilee, this being its first showing in America; silver medal to Miss Clark for exhibit of fruiting pears, peaches, plums and nectarines in pots. The Blue Hill Nursery and Harvard Botanic Garden each staged extensive collections of garden perennials.

The show of peonies was undoubtedly the finest ever made in America. A collection of roses from the Arnold Arboretum comprised nearly seventy-five species. Sweet williams were a feature, the strains excelling any ever shown here before.

On Tuesday evening the Gardeners' and Florists' Club held its last monthly meeting for the season. There was a large attendance and interesting general discussion on topics of timely interest, and President Pettigrew had provided a collation of sandwiches and coffee which was very acceptable.

Baltimore.

Few words are required to describe the condition of the cut flower trade. It is a thing of shreds and patches—what is wanted no one has, and what one has nobody wants. Good roses are scarce, and poor ones even are not more abundant than satisfactory, and those which come over from the City of Brotherly Love are in the same condition. Commencements are over and now remains only the few customary summer decorative demands, and the never remitting but always irregular calls for funerals. Temperatures are not extremely high, but, as a rule, there is much humidity in the air with all the discomfort that implies. Considerable planting is already done and everybody is busy. Outdoor stock continues abundant and there is no let up in southern shipments of gladioli. Bedding stock is practically at a standstill and the market men are dropping out.

John Bolgiano & Son say trade has been good, indeed, never more satisfactory, and the propitious weather has largely increased the average volume. Sugar corns have been scarce and high, of course, and some samples proved poorer than usual in germinating power. But gardeners have generally received good prices for all their product. A feature worth noting is the comparative absence of destructive insects. The pea bug is almost unseen, and the potato beetle is absent. The exemption from these troublesome pests seems attributable to the severe cold of the past winter.

The seedsmen seem fully satisfied with the outcome of their season's business. The Griffith & Turner Company reports that it never did a better business and that stock of all kinds proved satisfactory, though, of course, there was some scarcity of sugar corn and some complaint, perhaps more than usual, of its failure to germinate, due to the unfavorable conditions last fall when the seed was sowed.

James Glass, on Erdman avenue, is building a new house, about 20x140 feet. John Wilhime, on Franklin avenue, near Fullerton, is building two houses about 16x80 feet, and Harry Ekas, on the Frederick road, will build one house 20x100 feet for general stock.

John Eberhardt has given up his store on North Howard street. Though outside the burnt district, when his lease expired he was confronted with an increase in rent of over one hundred per cent.

H. C. Vansant, who occupied the Black greenhouses at Sutaerville has left.

This has been an unusually favorable season for the truckers. S. B.

Washington, D. C.

Though the summer dullness is billed to appear about this time the retailers have been reasonably busy the last week with weddings, commencements and funeral work. There is plenty of stock, such as it is, but the heat has played havoc with roses and carnations. Several of the growers have nice stocks of young roses planted and doing well.

A. Gude & Brother, who are extensive growers of roses, have several houses of fine plants. Alexander B. Garden has erected a new house that is now planted with American Beauty, Bridesmaid and Golden Gate. Carnations, both house and field planted, are doing well. Though carnation blooms are generally of poor quality, I recently noticed some Genevieve Lord and Prosperity in John Robertson's store that were of fine quality. It may here be noted that the florists, who like Robertson, are located near Dupont Circle, must have good stock, even if they have to send to Philadelphia for it.

There are in every city a number of people who do not understand the rudiments of landscape architecture, and who could not distinguish a beautiful landscape from a cow pasture, yet, being honorary members of the American Federation of Butters-in, feel it their duty to give advice and "sass" to those who have made a life study and business of landscape work. Just now the Washington section of this notable order is very active because a few trees are to be removed from Lafayette square. Prof. Gifford Piachot, chief of the bureau of forestry, by request of President Roosevelt has examined the trees and recommended their removal, because they "are all completely overshadowed by larger ones, mostly elms, and the small trees are consequently rendered useless for shade purposes and interfere with the growth of the larger trees and the appearance of the park." All this seems right and reasonable, but it does not satisfy the "butters." I have no desire to disparage the work of the living or the dead. It is my aim, after a careful examination of a question, to state facts. I believe it to be a fact that much of the planting in the Washington parks was done in a haphazard fashion, without design or system, except to have plenty of trees. On parts of the mall the trees are far too numerous, and though yet but less than half grown, they interfere with each other.

On a recent visit to the grounds of the United States weather bureau I was pleased with the profusion of roses to be found there. There is a particularly fine display of Crimson Ramblers, and the whole reflects credit on Capt. Hiram Johnson, the gentlemanly superintendent of the grounds, who has done much of the work of beautifying with his own hands.

Bud. Bayliss, rose grower for J. Louis Loose, has joined the army of benedicts, and we wish him a long life that will be one sweet song of love.

Although there have been a number of hot days, the weather in general has been up to its reputation for June, but just now rain is needed. S. E.

Pittsburg.

Weddings, commencement exercises and a light demand for funeral work are the essential factors that keep us active this month. The weather conditions are ideal, and the outdoor flowers and landscape work throughout the city and in our parks were never so beautiful. Both roses and carnations seem to have reached their crisis, as very little fine stock is to be had, with the exception of American Beauty roses.

The second annual floral exhibition given under the auspices of the Bellevue Civic Improvement League, of Bellevue, was a delightful success. Among the florists who presented exhibits were W. H. Moore & Company, Morrisville, Pa.; H. A. Dreer, Philadelphia, Pa.; Pittsburg Rose and Carnation Company, John Bader, G. & J. Ludwig, N. A. Blaney & Company, Ernest Ludwig, Alleghany, Pa.; Benjamin Elliott, Cheswick, Pa. Exhibits were sent from the Phipp's conservatories of Schenley park and from the conservatories of H. C. Frick.

The midsummer meeting of the Botanical Society of Western Pennsylvania was held on the evening of June 16 in the lecture room of Carnegie Library, Schenley park. Peonies were sent by the Springdale gardens, Cheswick, Pa., and Mrs. Alexander King, of this city. John Marron, of Quaker Valley, and George Elliott, of Allegheny, sent exhibits of roses and other seasonable flowers. A literary programme was carried out after the exhibition.

Sam McClements, of Randolph & McClements, has purchased a farm of seventy-two acres in Verona, which is a short distance from Pittsburg.

Ernest Ludwig is preparing to open his new store in East Diamond street, Allegheny, in the new building recently purchased.

Beginning this week Randolph & McClements will close their store at 1 o'clock during the summer.

The St. Louis convention is now becoming a popular topic of conversation among the florists.

Geddes & Blind Brothers have been very successful in moving bay trees this season.

L. I. Neff's display of Japanese dwarf trees brings many inquiries concerning them.

Frank Welfer is working the coal vein which he discovered under his farm.

Louisville.

The last week was a very favorable one, the demand generally being unusually large, and now there is not much left in the refrigerator but ice. The commencement business last week was unusually large, the majority of schools graduating about twenty per cent more than in former years, therefore the increase can be readily accounted for. Not only was the quantity larger but the quality was better to a great extent. In former years almost any old thing would answer, but this year it seems people were a great deal more popular in their selections, and the prices realized were very satisfactory. Roses of good quality are very scarce in this section, and they still have to come from the north. Carnations are readily shortening in quality, but seem to be picking up in quantity. Peonies are a back number, the demand being very small. Sweet peas are about equal to the demand, but there is not as yet a glut on the market. Out of door stock is getting to be plentiful, such as delphiniums, lilies, gaillardias, cornflowers, etc.

Louis Kirch seems to be very successful in carnation growing, his stock keeping quality pretty well. He is one of the few who are making a success of the business, and he certainly deserves it as he is known to be a hard worker. For next year it is his intention to grow Mrs. Lawson and Joost for pink, Norway for white and Crane for red. He will also try two of the new varieties, Mrs. M. A. Patten and Nelson Fisher. His plants in the field are in an excellent condition.

There seems to be considerable comment by some growers on the raising of prices on bedding plants in this section, some of the smaller growers thinking it not advisable, but it is quite natural that a customer going to a large grower and not willing to pay the additional price, will turn to the small grower, and if he asks the same price as the larger grower it will certainly be to his benefit to do so, as it is almost a certainty that he will make the sale. Think it over.

George Schulz, out on Goss avenue, has two houses (probably 4,000 plants) of carnations planted for summer culture, which from present standing will make him happy next winter. Mrs. T. W. Lawson, Enchantress and Lady Bountiful are the main varieties, there also being some Joost, Hill, etc.

It has been reported that a grower sold roses wholesale at the rate of 75 cents per dozen, and retail at 50 cents. Very nice for straight business.

Charles W. Reimers' bed of delphiniums is a sight well worth seeing.

Peter Reinberg has been sending some fine roses to this city.

F. L. S.

Cincinnati.

Trade since the last report has fallen off considerably and the market is pretty well glutted with roses, carnations and sweet peas, especially the last named, which have sold as low as $1 per 1,000. The weather must have suited them this spring for they were never better, and up to the present week have met with a good demand. Carnations and roses are showing the effects of the warm weather, and there are no fixed values on these. "How much a jar?" is what the buyer is confronted with in the wholesale houses. True, there are a few really good blooms, and these bring fair prices, but the majority of the stock is hardly worth anything, and consequently is relegated to the barrel. Smilax sells fairly well, also asparagus and adiantum. Good eastern ferns are also to be had now. A few blooms of Lilium auratum are to be seen, but they are few and far between. Delphinium formosum and stocks are also seen and help to decorate the florists' windows. Peonies are about over, although we still hear of some being in cold storage.

Albert McCullough, of J. M. McCullough's Sons, and George Parvin are attending the seedsmen's convention in St. Louis this week.

Charlie Critchell will open a commission house July 1 on Third street. This will give us eight wholesale houses in this city.

Ed Murphy has the foundation ready for a new residence he will erect this summer.

Henry Wellman, of A. Sunderbruch's Sons, was married Wednesday evening, June 22.

Mr. and Mrs. August Sunderbruch have gone to Atlantic City for the summer.

Syracuse, N. Y.

The planting trade has about ended. Florists here are not anticipating much activity for the next few months. There has been a large demand for flowers for June weddings and the next week will witness a good demand for cut flowers for members of the various graduating classes, both in the public and private schools.

Speaking of the planting season, Henry Morris said to-day: "It is practically over and would have been the best in many years had the florists kept up prices. Men were sent out to fill urns and boxes not knowing what price was to be received for the work and in many instances when complaint was made that the boxes were not as full as a year ago, a dozen or more plants would be put in. The price of potted plants per dozen has kept up well, but boxes have been filled for less than the wholesale price of the plants.

The American Beauty roses now being offered to the local trade, last July's planting, give a fine cutting. They didn't do very well in the winter but made up for any loss in growth during the spring. The supply from the local greenhouses is about exhausted.

The Solvay Process Company is beautifying its grounds at Solvay, a suburb of this city, by grading land between the buildings and railroad tracks, in which flowers and shrubbery are being planted.

OBITUARY.

Hugh C. Agnew.

Hugh C. Agnew, the well known California seed grower, died June 11 at his home at Santa Clara from glanders contracted from his favorite driving horse. About a week previous the horse, which was boarded at a public stable in Santa Clara, was noticed to be suffering from some disease, and Agnew had it removed to his home so that he could attend to the animal himself. While taking care of the horse Agnew became afflicted. Professor Lammar, an expert, was employed and he declared the disease glanders, and the animal was shot and cremated. Agnew was one of the best known men in the county. For a number of years he had been engaged in the seed business near Agnew, which place was named after his father. He was 50 years of age and leaves a wife, a brother, Jesse B. Agnew, and a sister, Mrs. Geo. Smith. Agnew's body was taken to the Odd Fellow's cemetery at San Francisco and cremated. See portrait page 896.

Frederick Grilbotzer.

Frederick Grilbotzer, senior member of the firm of Grilbotzer Brothers, carnation growers of Alexandria, Va., died June 13 at Ashville, N. C., whither he had gone in search of health. To his large circle of friends, among them the writer, the news of his death came as a shock, as it was hoped that he was on the way to the complete recovery of his health, which had been delicate for several months. His funeral was held at the family home in Alexandria on June 16, and the services were conducted by the pastor of the Presbyterian church of which he had long been a member. Born in Alexandria and educated in its schools, few young men were better known or more highly respected than he. Possessed of fine intelligence, energy and a great stock of sound common sense, to which was added uprightness of character, he was well worthy of the esteem in which he was held. He was prominent in Masonic circles and also a member of the Royal Arcanum. An aged father and mother, three brothers and two sisters survive him.

Florists' Paper From Cover to Cover.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO.—Enclosed find $1 for renewal of my subscription as I see my time is out June 15 and I can not miss a number. It is truly a florists' paper from cover to cover.

WE are in receipt of the official report of the third annual meeting of the American Carnation Society, held at Detroit, Mich., March 2 and 3.

ARE your greenhouses used as warehouses or factories? Do you store goods or make goods? Do they pay you one dollar per square foot?

ACCORDING to the Gardeners' Chronicle the present year is the English centenary of the dahlias, seeds having been received in that country May 20, 1804.

An elevated tank, with means of connecting same to the water system in the houses by faucet, forms an easy and clean method of applying liquid fertilizers.

AND now the Rambler rose in all its glory. A round of the suburbs of Philadelphia discloses how deservedly popular this beautiful climber has become.
What a satisfaction in its vigorous growth!

New York to St. Louis.

Following are the arrangements for transportation to the S. A. F. convention at St. Louis, as announced by Chairman Patrick O'Mara of the transportation committee. The route is by the Baltimore & Ohio R. R., with stop-overs at Philadelphia, Washington and Cincinnati. The rates are, season excursion ticket $34; sixty day excursion $28.35; fifteen day excursion $23.25; Pullman rate $6 each way. Mr. O'Mara urges that reservations be given the committee at the earliest possible moment—he emphasizes this—and states that on request the committee will endeavor to secure hotel accommodations also.
Refreshments for the special train have not been forgotten.

Suit for Plant Injury by Gas.

The case of Grattan Doyle, of Westminster, Md., against the Westminster Gas Light Company was concluded by the jury rendering a verdict for the plaintiff for $375, says the Baltimore American. The case excited much interest. It was a suit to recover damages for injury to plants and flowers in the greenhouses of the plaintiff during the past winter by gas escaping from the pipes of the defendant company. Many of the plants were so badly damaged as to become worthless, and the plaintiff attributed this result to the gas which escaped from leaks in the company's pipes. The jury took the same view of it and rendered a verdict accordingly.

A Model School Board.

The Boston board of education in contrast to the Chicago trustees, who have forbidden the presentation of flowers to the public school graduates at the commencement exercises, not only has decided that the grammar school graduates of the Hub shall have bouquets but has appropriated $1,000 with which to buy them. The bouquets will be presented at the school festival June 25.

An Open Letter.

FREDERICK W. TAYLOR, Acting Chief of Horticulture, World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR SIR:—As early as March 5, 1902, we engaged space for an exhibit of new geraniums. We have since worked on this exhibit, and had 1200 plants of our own origin, never shown before, ready this spring for this purpose. We notified you to this extent and have written three letters since May 1, asking for the size of beds, labels, etc. As you have not answered our inquiries by mail we address you openly in this letter, in the interest of floriculture. Why have our letters been unanswered? Very truly yours,
HENRY EICHOLZ, Florist.
Waynesboro, Pa., June 20, 1904.

Iris Kaempferi.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Can any reader of the AMERICAN FLORIST tell me what is the matter with my bed of Iris Kaempferi?
Some of the plants are a bright golden color, yet they get an abundance of water, all are growing well and many look perfectly healthy. H. T.

It is difficult to say just what is the matter with the bed of Iris Kaempferi.
Try enriching the soil by adding well decomposed manure. A small quantity of nitrate of soda might help them, say half a teaspoonful of the salt to some of the plants that show the golden color, leaving others untreated to find out if there is any advantage in the use of a fertilizer. L.

Drying off Bench Callas.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Please give me some advice in regard to drying off callas which have been planted in raised benches.
I have grown them in pots heretofore. I want to plant chrysanthemums in the bench as soon as I can cure the bulbs.
Would it be advisable to start the lilies in pots in the fall and transfer to the bench after the chrysanthemums have bloomed? Let me know how to handle them after they are removed from the benches. H. Q.

After the callas have been removed from the benches which could be done by taking out with them some of the soil in which they have been growing they could be placed anywhere outdoors where they could be kept dry. I would advise that the callas be started in pots in the fall before planting them in their blooming quarters, and in that way those which stand first and strongest could be kept together, thus avoiding the crowding of the weaker plants. L.

Steam Heating Battery.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Can two tubular boilers of different capacities be successfully used in a battery for steam heating?
How should same be connected to insure perfect working? Boilers are to stand on level of greenhouse floor and condensation to be returned by means of automatic pump. J.

There should be no difficulty in using boilers of different capacities in a battery for steam heating. They should be so connected with the main steam pipe that either will be able to furnish steam to the system, when the other boiler is not fired. Return pipes should lead from the main return to the bottom of each of the boilers, and in addition to check valves on each return there should be valves on all of the flows and returns so that either boiler can be cut out when not being fired. L. R. T.

Our Pastimes.

Announcements of coming contests or other events of interest to our bowling, shooting and sporting readers are solicited and will be given place in this column.

Address all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 42 W. 28th St., New York; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia; or to the American Florist Co., Chicago.

The Best Spring Plant.

Today the year's
First sprig of morn
I saw. What joy,
What rapture in't!
The jonquil and
The violet
Had sprung before
To life—and yet
In spite of them,
And more beside,
My heart was sad.
Unsatisfied!
But now my pain
And longing cease;
The mint has come—
And perfect peace!
—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

At Chicago.

The handicap tournament of the Florists' Club bowling team was brought to a close at the last meeting at Mussey's alleys Tuesday evening. The high score men will represent the club at the S. A. F. convention at St. Louis in August. These are the first named of the following, who qualified by rolling the necessary number of games. The totals, games played and averages are appended:

	Games.	Totals.	Per Ct.
F. Stollery	25	4402	176
Asmus	30	4929	164
Stevens	27	4291	159
Scott	31	4657	155
Balluff	25	3850	154
Hauswirth	25	3846	154
Degnan	25	3772	151

The prize winners were F. Stollery, George Asmus, P. J. Hauswirth and John Degnan, the first two winning the straight and the latter the handicap matches. Each gentleman was awarded a straw hat. The following are the scores of the last meeting:

Player.	1st	2d	3rd	4th	5th
Hauswirth	147	177	154	154	158
Asmus	144	133	148	157	179

Stevens	159	150	140	187	166
Degnan	125	155	163	148	173

At Philadelphia.

The third match in the contest for places on the convention team was bowled Wednesday, June 15, on the Casino alleys, and resulted in Captain "Robby" getting back at Captain Yates for the defeat of a week ago. The scores did not run as high as last week, the change of alleys being largely accountable, as some were just suited while others could not get the "hang" of them until too late. Robertson had top total with 538, while Anderson was high for single game with 196, just beating Westcott for the honor by one pin. Point winners were Robertson 3, Westcott 3, Anderson 2, Connor 2, Harris 2, Adelberger 2, Yates 2, Kift 1, Graham 1. The scores follow:

PLAYER.	1st	2d	3d
Robertson	185	164	189
Adelberger	145	175	176
Anderson	196	157	174
Westcott	158	175	195
Graham	157	131	169
Total	841	802	903
PLAYER.	1st	2d	3d
Yates	158	140	159
Connor	162	125	187

PASSENGER STEAMSHIP MOVEMENTS.

The tables herewith give the scheduled time of departure of ocean steamships carrying first-class passengers from the principal American and foreign ports, covering the space of two weeks from date of this issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST. Much disappointment often results from attempts to forward flowers for steamer delivery by express, to the care of the ship's steward or otherwise. The carriers of these packages are not infrequently refused admission on board and even those delivered on board are not always certain to reach the parties for whom they were intended. Hence florists in interior cities having orders for the delivery of flowers to passengers on out-going steamers are advised to intrust the filling of such orders to some reliable florist in the port of departure, who understands the necessary details and formalities and has the facilities for attending to it properly. For the addresses of such firms we refer our readers to the advertisements on this page:

Twenty-third annual convention, St. Lawrence River, June, 1905.

Congressional Seedsmen.

PUBLIC PAYS SALARIES AND SUPPLIES SEEDS.

If the current custom of indiscriminate distribution shall indefinitely continue, if this congressional comedy shall drift into a continuous performance, we shall ultimately be driven to the mournful admission that we are not statesmen, but seedsmen; and it will be in order for some distinguished seedsmen, some sainted hero of a score of memorable distributions, some legislative knight upon whose shield is blazoned a radish in its glory or a turnip in repose, to arise in his place with becoming gravity and move, Mr. Chairman, that the American eagle be taken from the mace and supplanted by a package of vegetable seed as the supreme emblem of the genius, the character, and the principal occupation of American statesmanship.—Morris Sheppard, of Texas, in House of Representatives.

MUCH important seed trade matter will appear in our next issue.

OBITUARY notice of Hugh C. Agnew, of Santa Clara, Cal., will be found on page 887.

LESTER L. MORSE, of Santa Clara, Cal., will sail for a European trip on the S. S. Lucania, July 2.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—William Henry Maule and family are spending the summer in Europe. They sailed June 1.

VISITED CHICAGO: F. Hubert, of Hubert & Company, L't'd., Guernsey, enroute home from the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo.

HOMER CITY, PA.—A. F. Cooper retires from the management of the Prairie State Incubator Company July 1. The business will continue as usual.

TUBEROSE growers report a fair stand and stock growing nicely. It is believed, however, that the acreage this season is considerably less than usual and an over stock is not anticipated.

SHENANDOAH, IA.—J. W. Ratekin has just completed a deal whereby he becomes sole owner of the Ratekin Farm and Garden Seed business in this city, including all of the extensive plant.

WE need for our files a copy of the annual report of the American Seed Trade Association for 1890 and anyone having a copy to spare will oblige by communicating with this office and stating particulars.

"WE have received a photograph from a correspondent," says the Gardeners' Chronicle, "showing a hyacinth bulb with nine spikes of flowers. This extraordinary bulb was bought at a (auction) salesroom."

OMAHA, NEB.—The J. C. Robinson Seed Company has filed articles of incorporation with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are James C. Robinson, Mary T. Robinson, William J. Mack and Louis S. Gould.

BOSTON—R. & J. Farquhar & Company are remodeling their entire establishment. In the new arrangement all mail order business will be transacted on the upper floor, leaving the street store free for the exclusive accommodation of customers and the counter trade.

THE Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin on the "Vitality and Germination of Seeds," by J. W. T. Duvel, assistant in the seed laboratory, containing much matter of interest and value to seedsmen, who should address the Secretary of Agriculture for copies.

CABBAGES are now in bloom on Long Island. The ravages of the severe cold winter are showing more marked than earlier. Cabbages that seemed sound when set out now prove to have been affected at heart by the severe cold and are decaying. There will be shortages in Express, Etampes, Hollander, Danish Ball Head and Mammoth Rock Red.

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y.—Since spring opened up weather conditions have been unusually favorable, according to the Jerome B. Rice Seed Company, and all the seed crops that firm is growing here in Washington county have been planted

The Late H. C. Agnew.
(See obituary page 887.)

under favorable conditions and are getting a good start and thus far everything looks thrifty and bids fair to amount to something, but we all know that it is yet too early to make any estimate as to what the crops will yield.

New York.

New Yorkers at the St. Louis convention of the American Seed Trade Association include M. H. Duryea, of Henry Nungesser & Company, and C. L. Allen.

A. Forbes, of Peter Henderson & Company, is on his first trip to the Pacific coast and will make an extended tour.

J. Martens, the lily of the valley man, of Hamburg, Germany, started this week upon his western trip.

Winfred Rolker, of August Rolker & Sons, will sail for Europe July 1.

Potatoes.

One of the anomalous and puzzling features of the American agricultural situation is the fact that with more than 10,000,000 of our people at work on nearly 6,000,000 farms, and with all our vast uncultivated areas, the United States is a large importer of common, ordinary vegetables. Every year we buy from abroad beans, dried peas, onions, cabbages and potatoes. Foreign potaatoes are now selling at $1 per bushel.—New York Sun.

New White Garden Bean.

C. H. Joosten, the well known New York dealer, advises us that he will distribute next season a limited quantity of a new white garden bean for Van Namen Brothers, of Rotterdam, Holland. It is said this variety is excellent for preserving, and retains its original white color in cans as well as after being cooked. The beans do not show any black spots, and when in bloom the plant is distinct from any other bean and bears pure white flowers.

Canadian Seed Growers Organize.

The Canadian Seed Growers' Association is the name of a new organization formed at Ottawa, Ontario, Canada, June 16. Jas. W. Robertson, of Ottawa, was elected president. The directors include Walter Simpson, of Prince Edward Island; Thos. A. Peters, of Fredericton, N. B.; F. L. Fuller, of Truro, and F. D. Albright of Sussex, N. B. The object of the newly formed association is to encourage the use of the best seeds for farm crops.

Waterloo, Neb.

June 16, 1904.—Although the temperature has been considerably below the normal, and planting of seed stocks has been much delayed by persistent rains, the prospects are very promising for a fine crop. The acreage has been increased all along the line, especially in field corn and cucumber; altogether, the present fine appearance of the crops and the freedom from insects leads us to hope that the existing shortage in stocks will be remedied by a bountiful crop this year.

There has been some complaint of loss in the newly planted vine seed crops, of depredations of mice, and loss caused by their eating the seeds. This seems to be confined to local spots, and will hardly influence the general crop.

GROWER.

Adulterated Seeds.

The act of congress making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905, contains the following:

The Secretary of Agriculture is hereby directed to obtain in the open market samples of seeds of grass, clover or alfalfa, test the same and if any such seeds are found to be adulterated or misbranded, or any seeds of Canada bluegrass (Poa compressa) are obtained under any other name than Canada bluegrass or Poa compressa to publish the results of the tests, together with the names of the persons by whom the seeds were offered for sale.

Announcement is hereby made that the collection and testing of seeds as directed by this act will begin July 1, 1904.

JAMES WILSON, Sec'y.

With reference to the foregoing, one of our readers, "A Subscriber," writes: "Can you inform your readers when the government will send out its clerks and hangers-on to test the wines, liquors, beers, etc., and otherwise interfere with other people's business?"

California Seed Crops.

Onion.—Some varieties in some districts are showing blight, but up to the present not really serious. Too early to speak definitely, but with a known shortage of about 300 acres under last year there is not likely to be any surplus large enough to disturb the market.

Beans.—Owing to unfavorable weather after planting the stand of most varieties is rather poor. Blanks have been replanted and fair average crops may result.

Peas.—Sweet peas will yield average crop. Culinary peas are not in promising condition and short yields are looked for.

Radish.—All varieties are podding freely and early plantings will yield abundantly.

Cucumber.—Early to estimate, but indications are not encouraging.

One of our well informed correspondents writes as follows June 10:

Spinach.—About ready to harvest. Fair crop.

Endive.—All varieties indicate a good yield.

Carrots.—Favorable for heavy yield.

Lettuce.—Very promising.

Celery.—Prospects good.

American Seed Trade Association.

The twenty-second annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association was called to order June 21 at 10:30 a. m., by President Willard. There was a large attendance. Owing to the late arrival of baggage the reports of president, secretary and treasurer were postponed. Proceeding to election of new members, the following were added to the rolls: D. Landreth Seed Company, Bristol, Pa.; W. S. Gilbreath Seed Company, Indianapolis, Ind.; Wm. Henry Maule, Philadelphia, Pa.; Crenshaw Brothers, Tampa, Fla.; W. T. Phillips & Company, Toledo, Ohio; Clucas & Boddington, New York; Henry Fish, Carpinteria, Cal.; St. Louis Seed Company, St. Louis, Mo.

T. W. Taylor, superintendent of horticulture at the World's Fair made an address stating in detail what interest the horticultural department at the World's Fair had for the seedsmen.

President Willard then made his address setting forth the work done for the year and the objects sought by the association. He mentioned how the association was becoming recognized by large business organizations like the National Board of Trade.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer showed a comfortable balance.

The following papers were then read: "Points of Interest for Seedsmen at St. Louis," by H. M. Schisler; "Irrigation in the West and its Possibilities," by George H. Maxwell; "Soil Inoculation or the Inoculation of Legumes to Insure the Formation of Nodules," by George T. Moore, United States Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Schisler announced that although the hotel was beyond the life lines a rescue station had been established in the basement where all needy and weak individuals might obtain aid. The afternoon session was omitted so that the visitors might all have a look over the fair.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

Reports of the various committees and the following papers were read: "Ideals in Seed Growing," by W. W. Tracy, Sr.; "Trial Grounds and their Necessity to Seedsmen," by E. D. Darlington; "Breeding of Field Corn for Increase in Yield," by Frank H. Funk; "The Middle West as a Seed Producing Section—Varieties Most Profitably Grown," by Mel. L. Webster.

The association was entertained in the afternoon by the Lewis Publishing Company, publishers of the Woman's Magazine and the Woman's Farm Journal.

THURSDAY.

Various business and committee reports were given attention and the following papers were read: "Difficulties of the Present Contract System," by J. C. Vaughan; "Fire Insurance Expenditure—What a Loss Experience Teaches," by Albert McCullough.

Election of officers and committees then took place, resulting as follows: Chas. N. Page, Des Moines, Ia., president; L. L. May, St. Paul, Minn., first vice-president; W. H. Grenell, Pierrepont Manor, N. Y., second vice-president; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, Ohio, secretary and treasurer; Frank H. Funk, Bloomington, Ill., assistant secretary. Executive committee: S. F. Willard, Lester Morse, A. H. Goodwin, J. G. Peppard, G. B. McVay. Membership committee: Albert McCullough, Alfred J. Brown, Watson S. Woodruff.

Invitations were received from San Jose, Cal., Augusta, Ga., Cleveland, O., and St. Lawrence River, and an informal ballot showed a preference for the place last named for the next convention. The convention then adjourned and the afternoon was spent at the Anheuser Busch brewery, and at Shaw's Gardens, where an entertainment was furnished by the St. Louis seedsmen.

The Nursery Trade

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

N. W. Hale, Knoxville, Tenn., Pres.; Frank A. Weber, St. Louis, Mo., Vice-Pres.; George C. Seager, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.
Thirtieth annual convention, West Baden Springs, Ind., June, 1905.

A Welcoming Song.

[The following, by Frank L. Stanton, the poet of the south, was written for an Atlanta souvenir of the visit of the American Association of Nurserymen.]

I.

God gave us in infinite hours,
The gardens—the great and supreme,
The lesson that comes in the flowers
Where He made all the lilies a dream!

II.

You men, who come here with the knowing
Of fruits, where life's labor is done,
You know where the ripe peach is showing
Its rosy, red side to the sun!

III.

We welcome you—greater than others
In the ways of the world, for 'tis said,
Great men had the sweetest of mothers,
And no gardens they tended are dead!

IV.

Take hands with the grace of Atlanta,
With the light and the love of her sod,
Behold here her splendid decanter—
The grapes and the lilies of God!

American Association of Nurserymen.

The twenty-ninth annual meeting of the American Association of Nurserymen convened in the convention room of the Piedmont hotel, Atlanta, Ga., at 10 a. m., June 22. In the absence of the president, N. W. Hale, who is in attendance on the republican convention at Chicago, and also the absence of Vice-President F. A. Weber, who was to preside but fell ill suddenly, Former President C. L. Watrous occupied the chair. Hon. Evan P. Howell, mayor of Atlanta, welcomed the society to the Gate City of the south in a very happy and courteous manner, saying that he believed the nurserymen's convention to be of more benefit to this state and section than any other convention that had been held here since he became mayor of Atlanta. He mentioned the fact that Georgia is the natural fruit land of the United States and that there is plenty of land here suited for the growing of fruit and for other kindred pursuits that could be bought cheap, and asked that the nurserymen lend their valuable aid in helping to develop the growing of fruit in this state.

E. W. Kirkpatrick, of Texas, responded to the address of welcome, thanking the mayor and city of Atlanta for their hearty and hospitable greeting.

The president's annual address was next read by Mr. Morton. The president regretted his inability to be present, especially as the association had come to the south so far from the majority of the members' homes. He stated that he desired to join with the people of Georgia in extending a hearty welcome to the sunny south. He spoke of the need of more uniform and exhaustive laws regulating the inspection of nursery stock in the United States. Also of the importance of inducing the railroads to give uniform freight rates and classification on nursery stock, and of the necessity of rapidity and dispatch in handling shipments, doing away with unreasonable delays in transit. He also suggested that the legislative committee should take up the matter of licenses in the different states trying to abolish the prohibitive licenses, such as we now have in West Virginia. He recommended that the membership fee should be increased from $2 to $4 in order that the treasury should be able to more easily meet the demands thereon as the work and expense are increasing. He also suggested that a book for eulogies on departed members should be instituted. He desired to thank Messrs. Seager, McFarland, Pitkin, Watrous and others for their great interest in the association work and closed by recommending that the next annual meeting be held in Portland, Ore.

Next the reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and referred to the auditing committee. The treasurer's report shows a balance on hand June 15, 1904, of $2,842.09.

J. H. McFarland then followed, saying that owing to several unavoidable occurrences the programme would not be followed as printed. He read a letter from Luther Burbank saying that it would be impossible for him to leave some very important work, the success of which depended on his presence at home, to present such new and interesting horticultural products as have crowned his experiments with reward. Prof. Marlatt, of the Department of Agriculture, who was to have read a paper on the "Natural Enemies of the San Jose Scale," is ill in Washington, but fortunately Wilmon Newell, state entomologist of Georgia, has kindly come to our aid by accepting this number on the programme.

R. C. Berckmans next stated that through the courtesy of the Georgia Railroad and the Central of Georgia Ry. Co. he was enabled to extend to the association an invitation to visit the peach growing section of Georgia. The programme for the trip being to leave Atlanta Friday at 7:55 a. m., via the Georgia railroad arriving at the Berckmans brothers' orchards, at Mayfield, Ga., at about 12 m., partaking of a Georgia barbecue at 2 p. m., then taking up the afternoon trip to Macon, spending Friday night at Macon, and leaving Saturday a. m., at 7 o'clock for the Hale, Rumph and Albaugh orchards at Fort Valley and Marshallville, returning to Atlanta Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Cooper, secretary of the Greater Georgia Association, next extended an invitation to the association to partake of a barbecue at Cold Springs, about six miles from Atlanta on the electric car line.

Mr. Watrous responded to these invitations with thanks.

Mr. Albertson, of Indiana, chairman of committee on insurance for nurserymen, presented his committee's report.

The auditing committee was then appointed as follows: Messrs. Brown of New York, Chatham of Tennessee and Henry of New York.

Mr. MacDonald, of Oregon, then extended an invitation to hold the next annual meeting in Portland, Ore., presenting invitations from Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association, the mayor of Portland and others.

Prof. Craig then spoke on the influence of the nurseryman on civic improvement in the city and country outdoors, cautioning the nurseryman to grow and sell only the long-lived and more valuable varieties of shade trees.

Committee on exhibits was next named as follows: Messrs. John Craig, Thos. B. Meehan and Peter Youngers.

J. Horace McFarland then spoke very interestingly on the "Relation of the Nurseryman to Civic Improvement," and the meeting was adjourned at 1:30 p. m.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Watrous.

The following gentlemen were nominated vice-presidents for their respective states:

Alabama—John Frazier.
Arkansas—George W. Scuggs.
Colorado—George J. Spear.
California—Charles Howard.
Connecticut—Ed Hoyt.
Delaware—D. S. Collins.
Georgia—R. C. Berckmans.
Illinois—I. E. Spaulding.
Indiana—W. C. Reed.
Iowa—Sam Lorton.
Kansas—E. D. Bernardia.
Kentucky—F. N. Downer.
Indian Territory—J. A. Taylor.
Maryland—Charles M. Peters.
Massachusetts—Harlan P. Kelsey.
Michigan—Charles A. Ilgenritz.
Minnesota—E. A. Smith.
Missouri—W. P. Stark.
Nebraska—George Marshall.
New Hampshire—John C. Chase.
New Jersey—Hiram T. Jones.
New York—Theo. J. Smith.
North Carolina—J. Vao Lindley.
Ohio—S. R. Ferguson.
Oregon—M. N. McDonald.
Oklahoma—J. A. Lopen.
Pennsylvania—Earl Peters.
Tennessee—C. O. Fowler.
Texas—John F. Sneed.
Utah—John Watson.
Virginia—W. T. Hood.
Wisconsin—T. J. Ferguson.
South Dakota—G. H. Whitting.

Mr. Watrous, chairman of committee on legislation, read his report, outlining what had been accomplished by this committee since last meeting.

Mr. Albertson, chairman of committee on transportation, presented his report, which was discussed by John S. Kerr, Mr. Albaugh of Ohio, Mr. Irvine of Missouri and J. H. Hale.

A very entertaining paper, entitled the "Nursery Conditions in Georgia," was next read by C. P. Smith.

John C. Chase closed the afternoon session with his paper: "The Nurserymen's Label."

A meeting of Protective Association was held immediately after adjournment of above session.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

At 8:30 p. m. the following entertaining lectures were given: "American Plants for American Nurserymen," by H. P. Kelsey; "Natural Enemy of the San Jose Scale," by Wilmon Newell; "Spraying on a Large Scale," by J. H. Hale. All were illustrated with lantern slides.

THURSDAY.

Thursday's morning session was called to order at 9:30 and immediately thereafter Harlan P. Kelsey read the reports of the state vice-presidents.

The matter of recommending the next place of meeting was then taken up. It developed into a spirited contest. On a ballot by the committee having the recommendation in charge Chicago was recommended against Portland, Ore., and West Baden Springs, Ind. A motion to substitute Portland, Ore., in place of Chicago was lost, and on motion of Mr. Albertson, of Albertson & Hobbs, of Bridgeport, Ind., the recommendation finally was passed for West Baden Springs, Ind.

The election of officers followed. E. W. Kirkpatrick, of McKinney, Texas, was named for president; C. L. Watrous, Des Moines, Ia., for vice-president; George C. Seager, Rochester, N. Y., for treasurer, and C. L. Yates, of Rochester, N. Y., for secretary. Their election followed.

A vote of thanks was then extended to the governor of Oregon, mayor of Portland and the associations of the Pacific coast for their cordial invitation.

Hiram T. Jones, of Elizabeth, N. J., then read a paper on the "Importing of Foreign Nursery Stock," mentioning the danger of infestation from imported stock. Also the matter of exorbitant customs and duties. This was followed with discussions by Thomas B. Meehan, Andre L. Causse, H. S. Chase and James McHutchison.

R. J. Redding, director of the Georgia experiment station, next presented an invitation to visit the experiment farm of Georgia.

G. L. Taber, of Glen St. Mary, Ga., after some humorous remarks, read an exhaustive treatise on "The Trials of the Citrus Nurseryman."

Mr. Brown, chairman of committee on address of president, next reported.

Then followed the address of the incoming president. He thanked the members for the signal honor bestowed upon him, and asked that each and every member join in aiding him in all undertakings launched by the association, emphasizing the fact that nothing could be accomplished to the best advantage unless all united in their strongest efforts.

Mr. Smith, of Georgia, extended an invitation to all nurserymen to attend the meeting of the Southern Nurserymen at Asheville, N. C., in August. Following came the report of the committee on final resolutions, in which the state of Georgia, city of Atlanta and southern nurserymen and fruit growers were thanked for their uncommon zeal in entertaining the association and their cordial welcome. It was also resolved that the association express its sorrow occasioned by the recent death of Z. K. Jewett, of Sparta, Wis.

Mr. Watrous introduced to the convention J. K. Orr, president of the Greater Georgia Association, who in turn introduced Mr. Sargent, chief of the Department of Immigration. Mr. Sargent addressed the association on the subject of his work and its relation to the various interests and humanity. The convention was then adjourned. Immediately afterward the nurserymen and members of the Georgia state legislature were escorted by the Greater Georgia Association to a real Georgia barbecue, thus closing one of the most successful conventions of the association in a most enjoyable affair.

Those Present.

Those present or represented included the following:

The Alleged Seedless Apple.

We have received the following from M. Ballard Dunn with reference to the new seedless apple which has been extensively exploited in the general press during the past few months. Mr. Dunn is officiating as general press agent for John F. Spencer, of Grand Junction, Col., by whom it is claimed the seedless apple was developed. Some of Mr. Dunn's statements are quite surprising to fruit growers and many will look forward to seeing the apples and trees with more than usual interest:

"The new seedless apple, developed by John F. Spencer, of Grand Junction, Colo., bids fair to be of greater importance than was the seedless orange for the reason that the apple interests are larger than the orange interests and the market for both apples and apple trees is larger. When it is known that seedless apple nurseries have been established in Utah, Idaho, California, Missouri, Michigan, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania and Canada, in addition to the home nursery in Colorado, all within a few weeks, the rapidity with which the new apple is being taken up can be appreciated.

"The new apple has many features that make it of special advantage. The very absence of seed makes the apple wormless, it being a known fact that the apple worm lives off the seed. The trees also are blossomless. Late frosts leave the seedless apples still bearing, although the ordinary apple trees, growing alongside them may be barren. This has been proven in Mr. Spencer's orchard at Grand Junction. The tree has a hard, smooth bark and is not nearly so likely to be injured by insects as the ordinary tree, both for this reason and on account of the lack of blossoms.

"Mr. Spencer is an old fruit raiser, and during his labors and experiments, extending over a dozen years, he never breathed his purpose to anyone, and for months after success had crowned his efforts he said nothing about it, and his secret was learned only by accident. In his orchard at Grand Junction he has two thousand trees."

Diseased Linden Leaves.

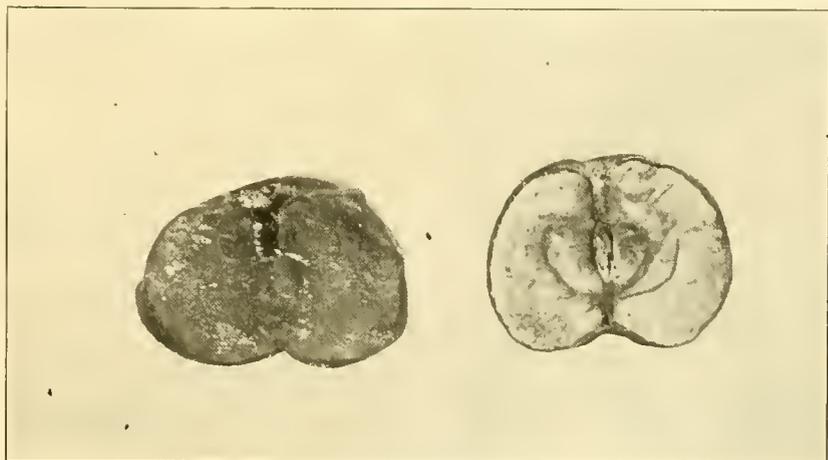

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I send you by express a package of diseased linden leaves and twigs. The swellings get larger, finally turn brown and little insects emerge from them. If you can give me any information about the trouble, what it is, and how to combat it, you will do me a great favor. A.

The linden leaves which you send are not diseased but are covered with swellings termed galls, from which insects emerge, as you state. The insect which produces these is known scientifically as Cecidomyia (tiliae) verrucicola O. S., but we have not had much experience with it and do not know of any remedy. It is not probable that there is any easy remedy beyond cutting away the leaves where possible, as soon as they are discovered, and promptly burning them, so that the contained insect will not escape. Tolerably high leaves can be reached by the use of a step-ladder, and what is termed a 12-foot pruning knife.

BERBERIS THUNBERGH raised from seed, as is the universal practice, varies considerably in strength, habit, size of leaf and other characteristics. Now that it is taking place as a standard hedge plant it might be well for the nurseryman to select one plant of most desirable character and propagate from cuttings for special hedge planting. This would cost a little more but the stock would be worth more.

See page 902 for nursery advertisements.

Vaughan's International Primula Mixture.

This mixture is composed of the most salable colors of Single Flowering Chinese Primulas, the best whites, pinks and reds, with a sprinkling of other colors, enough to give a large variety of colors, the most important shades predominating. It contains some of the Giant sorts, some Fern-leaved, some blue; also some with dark leaves and stems. We have taken special pains to make this mixture as complete as possible and unreservedly recommend it to everyone.

Columbus, O.

Vorhees & Son, of Logan, O., have the finest lot of carnations in the field to be found in this section. They propagate early in the season and have their plants well established in 3-inch pots before planting. While this is unusual it pays to judge by the looks of the fine stock they produce.

Harriet E. Stone has brought suit against the city for damage to her property and greenhouse caused by floods last April, alleging that the city failed to close the floodgates after notice of the danger had been served.

Davy & Son have left the greenhouses on West Broad street, where they had been growing stock for the last five years. They are looking for a more desirable place.

Not enough bedding stock remained in this city after the spring rush to fill a good sized hanging basket.

Carnations are making a fine growth. We are having cool weather and plenty of rain. CARL.

MR. A. F. J. BAUR of INDIANAPOLIS says of TO-BAK-INE PRODUCTS:

E. H. HUNT, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir:—My opinion of your To-Bak-Ine Products can be explained in four words, THEY DO THE WORK.

For general fumigation, the powder is very effective for destroying Aphids, Etc. For fumigating houses which are in full crop the To-Bak-Ine Fumigating Paper is the finest thing we have ever come across; no fading of the color nor disagreeable odor left on the bloom. For Thrips or Spider or any such stubborn pests the To-Bak-Ine Liquid is the stuff. I have long been looking for something to fight Thrips with, something which I can recommend and I think you have it now. You ought to have no trouble selling these goods to those who will give them a trial. They will sell themselves.

Yours very truly,

A. F. J. BAUR.

American Florist Co., 324 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Providence, R. I.

This year the school committee has announced that the receipt of flowers will be prohibited in the grammar schools. This will have a noticeable effect on the closing days of June business, as it has heretofore been customary to send loads of flowers to the graduates which were presented to them during the exercises. Some of the trade profess to believe that the mandatory order will be short-lived and are advancing no further comment for the present. But it will undoubtedly give the parents a temporary scare. Some customers are condemning the measure and are ordering the flowers sent to their homes as a sort of compromise. I think it would be wise for the florists not to criticise the authorities, but to quietly await developments.

IRON GREENHOUSES.

The Duplex Gutter and The Duplex Eaves have solved the question of how to build up-to-date greenhouses as durable as the iron frame greenhouses at high prices, and nearly as cheap as wooden houses. See the cut that represents the new Duplex Eaves, the most durable, strongest and simplest to erect. Any common laborer can set them as perfect as an expert mechanic. It is perfection in construction. No ice or snow to darken your houses when light means money. Positively no shade from the Duplex Eaves, costs only about $2.00 per foot, including Duplex Gutters and Eaves, Iron Posts for Gutters, Iron Purlines with Posts, Tees and Floor Plates, Center Posts with Plates and Bases. Standard Ventilating Machines, complete with double strong Pipe, Cypress Sash Bars and Ventilating Sash. Investigate the proposition and convince yourself of the fact. Also note the simplest steam return Trap made; just what a Florist needs, and a coal dealer condemns. Catalogues and circulars free.

CROP INSURANCE.
 Life insurance is valuable because it guarantees the outcome.

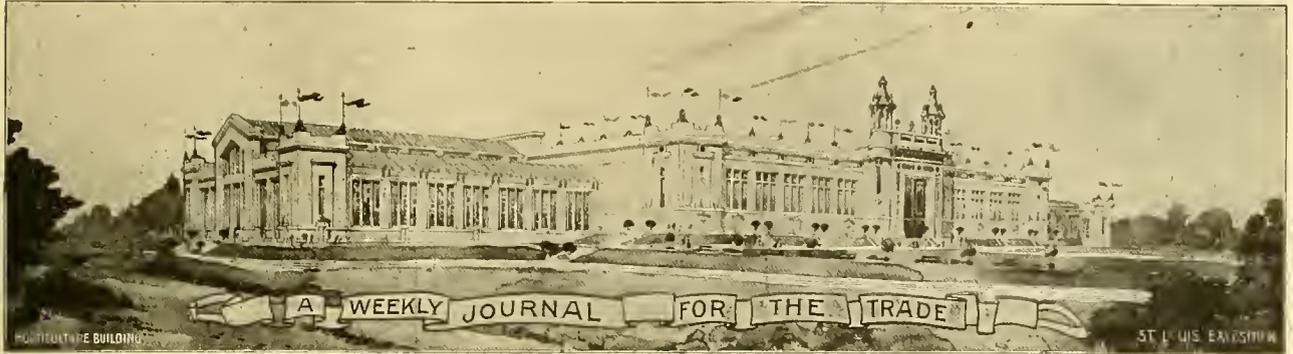

"Gurney" Heaters

"BRIGHT IDEA," "DORIC" and "400 SERIES" do the same thing for your hothouse: THEY GUARANTEE THE CROP. First of all they save 20 per cent on the coal bill and so keep expense at a minimum. Next, they produce an even heat and so do not imperil the life of the plant. Next, they are simple to operate and so require least attention. Lastly, they wear longer than others and thus perceptibly reduce the capital invested. Don't buy or exchange until you've investigated them.

The Ideal In Seed Growing.

[W. W. Tracy, Sr., before the American Seed Trade Association, in annual convention, St.
Louis, Mo., June 21-23, 1904.]

In addressing such an audience as this it might be considered superfluous to refer, even briefly, to the underlying principles of successful seed growing, but it seems to me desirable, even necessary, to the most profitable discussion of the subject, to do so, in order that we may come to a common point of view, therefore I beg that you will have patience with me if I speak of my understanding of conditions and natural laws of which you know quite as much as I do.

Civilization has been, I think, aptly defined as a multiplication of man's wants and his ability to satisfy them. The Indian was content to move his wigwam to the vicinity of the ripening grapes and enjoy them while they lasted. He planted a bit of corn, but it was all of one kind and season, and when that passed he waited patiently for the time of green corn to come again. We, his successors, demand not only that there be grapes of different colors and flavors to suit all individual tastes, but that we have them from early summer until mid-winter. We must have green corn in fresh and appetizing condition long before and a long time after it is possible to produce it out of doors in our vicinity. In order to meet these demands we must have not only sorts adapted to widely different conditions of climate and soil, and those which will keep in good condition when shipped long distances, but also sorts suited for canning and drying, as well as those for immediate use, and this demand for different sorts suited to special needs is bound to increase as men's wants increase. A single best variety is an impossibility, the very qualities that make a sort best for one set of conditions make it one of the poorest of all under other circumstances. Very slight differences between two sorts, that can not be recognized except by an expert, may make it possible to grow one to a good profit under conditions in which the other could only be grown at a loss, though the latter kind would be by far the more satisfactory under other conditions. The maturing of the entire crop of peas so that they can all be picked at once is a most valuable quality where they are grown for canning or for shipping to a distant market, but is a real disadvantage in the home garden.

Success in vegetable culture depends as much on the selection of a variety suited to the prevailing conditions as upon any other factor. The wise planter, therefore, is eager to discover and secure the sort best suited to his needs. And the work of the seedsman is the supplying of his customer with that sort. He must first know what that customer's conditions are and then know what sort will fit him best. He should not waste time in search of varieties which are simply new, merely novelties, but be ever on the alert to secure and develop sorts which will suit certain conditions better than those now in use. To do this intelligently there must be more accurate knowledge of sorts—one source of such knowledge is the study of different varieties as grown in trial grounds—please note that I say the study of varieties. A trial ground, no matter how extensive and well conducted, which is visited only now and then, and where there is no systematic and careful study and record of every characteristic of the varieties planted, is of little value. I know of trial grounds where the plants are admirably grown, but where there is but little study and practically no records of the characteristics of the different sorts, the records kept consisting of little more than a brief statement of the relative purity of the different stocks. It may be argued that the record of whether a certain variety of bean has a smooth or rough leaf, the pod a long or short point, is of no practical importance, and that many of the important qualities, such as hardiness and flavor, can not be determined by inspection. While this is true, it is also true that in all vegetables there is a wonderful correlation of qualities, so that the presence or absence of an easily seen characteristic is often a reliable guide as to the development of some other less discernible but more important qualities. Thus the smooth-leaved beans will commonly stand more heat than those where the leaf is of a coarser and more open texture. The character of the point of the pod is an almost certain indication of its stringiness. If we select from a field of Red Valentine beans, one plant bearing full, round, fleshy pods of the desired type and another where the pods are flatter and less fleshy, and save the seed of the two, it will be found that the first plant is more or less contorted and not nearly so symmetrical and handsome a sample as that from the other and inferior plant.

But the closest study of varieties as they appear in any one trial ground is an imperfect guide. The most that can be learned is how the different sorts behave under one set of conditions. We must see varieties grown under different conditions of climate, soil and culture, if we would fully know them. So we should learn by inspection or report of their behavior in other trial grounds than our own, and this knowledge should be supplemented by that of results obtained from fields planted and cared for and the crop marketed by men who do it for their bread and butter as well as for their cake and pie. In my opinion this lack of definite knowledge of varieties and of their characteristics is the weak point of American seedsmen, and yet to the production of seed of the highest type, as well as to a wise selection of sorts, such knowledge is essential.

But for our ideal, it is not enough to know what is wanted, we must know how to produce it, and this can only be done in accordance with natural laws. My understanding of the law of heredity is that the character of every living organism is made up of the sum and combination of the different influences inherited from each of its ancestors back for an indefinite number of generations and the relative power of each of these distinct influences varies, or may vary in each individual, and so individuals of the same ancestry may vary. Of six peas from the same pod, the first may develop into a plant like that which produced it; the second into one most like the plant, possibly very different in character, which produced the pollen with which the flower was fertilized; the third into a plant exactly intermediate in character between these two; the fourth into a plant much like a great-grandparent and entirely different from the first three, the influence of the producing plant seeming to be entirely overcome by that of the remote ancestor; in the fifth all of the influences may be equally balanced; while the sixth may be precisely like the first. The case is analogous to the indicating of numbers by the use of the digits. The proportionate differences between two numbers, each of ten places, and alike, except that one has five and the other six in the unit place, is not great, but if the two digits mentioned occupy the billion column there is a vast difference in the resulting numbers. So it the influence of a great-great-grandparent, which was very different and inferior to the plant which produced the seed, is relatively slight, as it usually is, (if it occupies the unit's place) it is not an important factor in determining the characteristics of the plant the seed will develop into; but if, as is sometimes the case, it is the dominating influence, outweighing that of the intermediate parents, (if it occupies the billion's place) it is of the utmost importance. We can only predict with certainty the character of plant a seed will develop into (the number the digits will express) when each and everyone of its ancestors were precisely alike (the using of only one digit), or when the relative power of all the different influences (the order in which the digits are arranged) is precisely the same. Neither of these conditions is ever fully possible with plants, for there never were two plants precisely alike, but we may come as near to it as possible by first forming a conception, to the minutest detail, of the kind of a plant we want and then seeing to it that every ancestor of our seed comes as near to this conception, and hence all are as nearly alike, as possible, always remembering that no matter how slight the variation may be in any single ancestor, it may affect the result, just as the use of a digit even one larger or smaller than the other, may most materially change the resulting number, when they are thrown together.

I think that seed growers often fail in this respect. If they find an ear of Crosby corn much larger than the type they have been breeding to, but perfect in every other respect, they put it in stock seed, forgetting that this increased size is almost certain to be correlated with other and less evident differences, and these differences will be likely to disturb that balance of ancestral influences which, undisturbed, would give us an ideal Crosby. The second method of securing uniformity is to have the influences of the different individuals, no matter how different, always have the same relative powers in the combination, the placing of the digits in the same order. This is even more difficult to accomplish fully than the first condition; but here, too, we may work towards it, for among the other differences in plants, there is a difference in prepotency—tendency to reproduce themselves. In some plants the influence over the character of the seed is dominant, overcoming that of the other individual ancestors. They always crowd into the billion's column. We can, by experiment, ascertain which plants possess this power and only breed from them, thus increasing the probability of the seed being like this parent in spite of tendencies received from other ancestors. This quality is often very marked. Frequently, of two plants, each conforming equally well to a certain type, the seed of one will give plants seventy-five per cent of which will be with difficulty distinguished from the parent, while the seed of the other will give plants seventy-five per cent of which differ materially from the parent and from each other. This selection of prepotent strains of any variety is little practiced but a most important factor in successful seed breeding.

But for an American it is not enough to know what he wants and how to secure it, he must be able to produce it in abundance and at the least possible cost. Under present commercial conditions it is quite impracticable to raise seed for sale, even in limited quantities and at high prices, from plants selected one by one. We can not even afford to reject any considerable part of a seed crop. We often hear of seed that has been carefully rogued. Except where there has been a slight mechanical mixture of some very distinctly different sort, roguing really accomplishes but very little. The most that can be accomplished by it is to prevent the stocks deteriorating; there can be no real improvement. Assuming that a field of peas is sown broadcast and that there are on the average five plants to the square foot, the field would contain 217,800 plants to the acre, the removal of even one per cent of the poorest plants would take out 2,100 plants to the acre, where, in practice, what is called thorough roguing rarely takes as many as 200 plants to the acre. The removal of one-tenth of one per cent of the inferior plants can not materially change the real value of the seed product. Roguing, the rejecting of the poorest, is fighting against the law of heredity, which is merely kicking against the pricks. The better way is not to fight against the law, but to use it in selecting and breeding only the best, and it is entirely practicable to do this, even with commercial seed. I can spend half a day in studying the character of a variety of tomato, forming an exact ideal of just what, in every particular, the sort should be, then spend another half day in selecting five plants which come as near to the ideal as possible. Save the seed of each of these separately and the next season plant, say an acre, with these five lots and when in fruit spend another half day in ascertaining which one of the lot is most uniformly like the ideal, and from that lot select enough of the best plants to give five pounds of seed. This seed will plant forty acres the next year, which should give 3,000 to 5,000 pounds of seed very much more prepotent and sure to grow superior crops than it would be possible to produce by the most careful and thorough roguing, both of the stock seed and of the seed crop, which roguing would cost in labor and loss of crop, not less than $5 per acre, or $200 for the forty acres, while the actual cost of such selecting and breeding, as I have suggested, even if it required the services of an expert costing $10 per day, would not amount to more than $50, or less than 2 cents a pound for the 3,000 to 5,000 pounds of the product.

I think the saving and growing of seed from individual plants separately is of great importance. Among the hundreds of lots of such plants selected by myself with the greatest care and with such rigid adherence to the type wanted that it was extremely difficult to distinguish one plant from another and often quite impossible to do so, yet in ninety per cent of the cases there was a material difference in the degree to which the product of such plants adhered to the type selected, often the product of one plant which to all appearances was fully equal to the others would prove so variable and inferior as to not only be without value itself, but if the seed of the five plants had been thrown together this would have ruined the whole lot. The growing of such stock seed must be under the immediate eye of the seedsman and must needs be grown under his immediate control, but the growing of the seed crop, the production of the commercial seed, can generally be much more profitably done by contract with individual farmers so located as to be most certain of securing a full crop and at the least cost, and if we use such stock seed as I have described and secure farmers of integrity, distance is not a serious objection. We need men who can be relied upon, not only to use land which in quality and preparation will be most likely to give a good return, but so located that our seed crop will be in the least possible danger of contamination from other crops in the vicinity. We do not think it important that the field be rogued, but that it is of the utmost importance that these farmers, no matter how far away, should be visited at least once each season, not for the sake of watching them, but for the sake of advice and counsel as to methods of culture and the handling of the crop, so that we may know our own stocks and how they behave under field conditions, and last but not least that we may come into friendly relations personally with the grower. To my mind there are very few business relations where mutual confidence and respect is of greater importance than between seedsmen and their farmer growers. I do not think it possible for a seedsman to be permanently successful who does not strive to cultivate such relations, and I do know that often such relations have been the foundations of the most successful seed growing, not only as to the quality of the product, but the obtaining of it at the least possible cost. Perhaps I can make my meaning clearer by illustration. A seed farmer once said: "I don't know as I make any more money out of these seed beans than I would out of field beans, but so long as I don't actually lose money I can afford to put in ten acres each year merely for the sake of the inspector's visits; he never came here yet but what I learned from him something about my beans or some other crop that was worth more to me than the acre of the ground that I had in for them."

To sum up, my ideal in seed growing consists: First, in a thorough knowledge of the sorts and their fitness for certain conditions; second, in understanding and using the natural laws by which we can produce seed which is sure to develop into plants of the distinct type desired; third, in having the seed grown in such locations and circumstances that it can be produced at the least possible cost.

The Bedding Plant Trade.

We have received a number of reports on the bedding plant trade of the spring just passed from prominent dealers throughout the country as follows:

E. C. Hill Company, Richmond, Ind.—We noticed an increased demand for large geraniums, scarlet salvias and dwarf lantanas, with many inquiries for verbenas. Any good red and yellow cannas found ready sale. Peonies proved extremely popular, both as cut blooms and for garden planting. There was a large call for herbaceous perennials, phloxes and peonies leading, and an enormous demand for box and vase plants. Good vines are very scarce. Asparagus Sprengeri and Boston ferns sell in large quantities. In geraniums there was a large call for S. A. Nutt, A. Ricard, Marquis Castellane, Beaute Poitevine, Mrs. E. G. Hill and Countess Harcourt, with fancy singles in small lots in good demand.

Joseph Bancroft & Son, Cedar Falls,

Ia.—The demand for coleus increased about twenty-five per cent. The demand for bedding roses, pansies and verbenas fell off twenty per cent. Red cannas were most in call, the yellows selling poorly. S. A. Nutt and other red geraniums sold well, the pink varieties next and white varieties very poorly. There was only a medium call for peony clumps and no demand for cut flowers, most of the gardens near by being supplied with plants. Hardy phlox and Clematis paniculata sold well. Bedding plant trade with us is not increasing rapidly, as nearly every town in northern and northwestern Iowa has a greenhouse.

Joseph H. Cunningham, Delaware, O.—There was an increased demand for geraniums and coleuses this spring, averaging about twenty-five per cent with me. The demand for petunias and alternantheras decreased about ten per cent. Cannas of the red shades were most in demand, and of geraniums the S. A. Nutt was most popular. There was no special call for peonies or herbaceous perennials.

Ludvig Mosbaek, South Chicago, Ill.—The call for geranium plants increased twenty-five per cent; that for pansies about thirty-five per cent; that for cannas about twenty per cent and that for lantanas about thirty per cent. The demand for ageratum fell off twenty-five per cent. S. A. Nutt geraniums formed nearly one-half of our entire output. The sale of the single varieties decreased nearly one-half.

Elmer D. Smith, Adrian, Mich.—The demand for herbaceous perennials increased in all lines, particularly in Oriental poppies. The call for coleuses, geraniums and cannas increased fifteen per cent, and that for alternantheras decreased fifty per cent. The Express cannas and all standard sorts were in demand. S. A. Nutt geraniums were most popular. There was no especial call for peonies.

Chicago Carnation Company, Joliet, Ill.—As we have been in the retail business here but one season we can not estimate the increase or decrease of the bedding plant demand. S. A. Nutt geraniums were most in demand, and there was a steady call for red, white and pink peonies at about $1 per clump. There was no especial demand for other herbaceous perennials.

Cottage Gardens, Queens, N. Y.—We are not handling bedding stock, and for peonies and other herbaceous perennials we have had only our regular demand. Our business grows steadily on an even keel, we doing a little more each year.

WITH THE GROWERS

George Reinberg, Chicago, Ill.

At Geo. Reinberg's establishment we find his new range of eleven houses 26x265 feet nearing completion. Everybody is hustling. These new houses and five older ones will be planted to carnations, which means that 130,000 carnations will be planted in by July 20. The stock looks fine and promising. Lawson will be extensively grown. Mr. Reinberg has his heating arranged to give them plenty of heat, something he could not do last year.

In tea roses and American Beauty he has forty-two houses 26x265 feet. Here they plant Beauty in the center bench with teas on the side benches. Mr. Reinberg will dry off a portion of the Bridesmaid, Bride and Liberty from which he expects to cut some select stock next winter. His young rose stock looks fine.

It certainly is a wonderful sight to behold acre after acre under glass, and it must be seen to appreciate the magnitude of this establishment. Adjoining is the large establishment of George Reinberg's brother, Peter. On approaching Summerdale the two together look like one mighty field of glass. George Reinberg has a continuous walk six blocks long among his houses, giving a general view without passing in and out of the different houses. He says he has now gone the limit in building. His fifteen acres are covered. In the future he will devote his attention to rebuilding and repairing. Not a small item is his rooted carnation business. This spring he rooted 670,000 carnations, cold 320,000 cuttings and planted in the field 350,000, of which he will sell 220,000 this fall. These include all varieties. He has seven and one-half acres in carnations. Everything is growing nicely and looks fine.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—Edwin Dempsey & Company are making arrangements to put in a new boiler, and contemplate building additions to their present plant that will double its capacity.

EXPOSITION BUILDING, ST. LOUIS, MO., IN WHICH THE S. A. F. CONVENTION AND EXHIBITION WILL BE HELD, AUGUST 16-19.

New York Florists' Club Outing.

In spite of unfavorable weather at the hour of starting, the New York Florists' Club outing was a success in every way. President Traendly and the committee of management were warmly congratulated on the arrangements. The destination was Witzel's Point Grove Park, Long Island. Upon arrival a substantial dinner was served and the games proceeded immediately afterward. On the return journey after dark the searchlight on board disclosed entrancing sights along the shore, also on board. Dancing was indulged in all the way back, Miss Birnie contributing her highland fling specialty. The potato race was the most interesting event of the day, while the mile race and the fat men's race proved very exciting. There was an attendance of about 200, but that of club members was far below expectations, the younger element being much in evidence. A long programme was carried out without hitch, with results as follows:

Ladies' howling match, thirty-six entries, principal winners: Mrs. L. Schmutz, Jr., 48; Miss Koch 45; Miss Heffman, 44; Mrs. Barron, 43, and Mrs. Langjahr

Baseball game, benedicts vs. bachelors; score 12 to 11, in favor of the benedicts.

Boys' race, 50-yard dash, W. Manda, G. Lenker, A. Guttman.

Girls' race, 50-yard dash, Marion Hughes, E. Lenker, E. Donaldson.

Boys' race, 75-yard dash, A. Weston, Ed Manda, A. Ihler.

Girls' race, 75-yard dash, J. Birnie, Cora Lenker, G. Hirsahkin.

Boys' race, 109-yard dash, W. Ihler, W. Hughes, Chas. Barnes.

Girls' race, 100-yard dash, A. Birnie, L. Butterfield, Chas. Traendly.

Boys' race, 100-yard dash, W. Burns, H. Reimels, W. Nugent.

Girls' race, 100-yard dash, E. Graham, L. Reimels, O. Ihler.

Boys' race, 150-yard dash, G. Harvey, Ed Butterfield.

Girls' race, 100-yard dash, L. Zeller, Lilla Zeller, J. Traendly.

Girls' race, 100-yard dash, Agnes Birnie, E. Nugent.

Ladies' race, 50-yard dash, Mrs. Barron, Mrs. Traendly, tie.

Ladies' race, 100-yard dash, Miss Manda, Mrs. Kessler.

Ladies' race, 50-yard dash, Mrs. Reimels, Mrs. L. Enggren.

Old maids' race, 100-yard dash, Miss Kohne.

Potato race, Marjorie Birnie, Robt. Birnie.

Sack race, 100 yards, D. Scott, Stevens.

Hundred-yard race, members of New York Florists' Club only, J. Roehrs, Jr.

Two hundred and twenty-yard race, Ed Koch.

Four hundred and forty-yard race, J. Roehrs, Jr., P. Kessler.

Three-legged race, Reimels and Koch, Stevens and Gottlieb.

Fat men's race, 125 yards handicap, J. B. Nugent.

One-mile race, Jake Curry.

Walking match, one-half mile, Meyer Gottlieb, G. Hildebrandt.

Fifty-yard race married men only, R. J. Irwin.

Long running jump, D. Scott, W. Ihler.

Special fat men's contest, quarter-mile race, Frank Traendly, Pat Smith.

The Lord & Burnham race, 100 yards, Frank Traendly, J. Mard.

Press bowling contest, J. Shaw, two entries only.

Bowling match, competitors B. Holt, Theo. Lange, J. Vocke, J. Shaw and Louis Schmutz, undecided.

New York.

The week opened with a dull market and a superabundance of product, much of it of a very inferior quality. The high temperature of Saturday and Sunday was in great measure responsible for a large influx of material, and in consequence much went to waste. In few lines only was any choice stock to be had, and prices naturally were borne to the lowest point. Sweet peas probably suffered most, going to 2 cents per bunch for the best sorts, and white carnations touching the dollar mark. There was a slight recovery on Tuesday, both supply and demand being more harmonious. Good roses of the white varieties were rather scarce, and readily taken, the demand being stimulated by the requirements of school closing exercises. American Beauty of fairly good quality moved quickly, and lower grades found plenty of buyers. A few asters are coming in, but they are of poor quality. Lily of the valley is still very much in evidence, but peonies, stocks and moss roses have disappeared. Longiflorum lilies continue to sell well at 2 cents to 4 cents, and callas are quite staple and in fair supply. Big lots of Rambler roses have been offered, but only brought 15 cents per bunch. Last year they found buyers at 35 cents.

William Elliott announces that the auction sale of last Tuesday was the last of the season. Cleary's Horticultural hall held a sale on the same day, and contrary to expectations fair prices were realized. An important feature was a shipment of Porto Rican plants from W. F. Pennock including Pandanus Veitchii (suckers), Boston ferns, anthuriums, etc. Good prices were realized, the first named going at from 25 to 62½ cents.

Arnold W. Brunner, the architect who prepared the plans for the proposed new flower market in the city, is going to Europe and will look into the flower markets over there for any new features or suggestions. While the plans are practically complete, Mr. Brunner says that any details which will improve their usefulness or arrangement shall be incorporated on his return.

Retailers are already planning for the approaching holiday; one prominent florist has announced that he will close his establishment from Saturday at 10 a. m. until Tuesday morning, and his example will probably be followed by many others.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society was held on Friday at the office of the secretary to take up matters concerning the welfare of the society and to outline the arrangements for the Boston meeting in 1905.

August Schmidt, the east side florist, whose wife was a victim of the recent "General Slocum" disaster, identified her body at the morgue by her clothing. All the jewelry found upon the body has been handed over to Mr. Schmidt.

Louis Dupuy returned last week from Paris, where he attended the rose show of the National Horticultural Society. He considers the trip profitable, although a short one.

A new store to be opened at Forty-fourth street and Fifth avenue will be managed by J. Fleischman, of the Fleischman Floral Company, and operated by his son.

The types last week made us refer to August Jurgens at Newport. Of course every one knows that the one and only person of this name at Newport is Carl Jurgens.

Garreau Brothers, of Jersey City, have built a new boiler house, and are installing a six-section Lord & Burnham boiler to be used as an auxiliary plant.

Lewis Hart of Madison avenue has been busy with the floral arrangements at the Arverne hotel and casino, a resort on the Long Island coast.

The prize list is out for the chrysanthemum show of the American Institute, to be held in Herald Square exhibition hall, November 10-17.

Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J., have added ten acres to their nurseries, and are remodeling two of their greenhouses.

William Kolloge, for eight years with R. Dreyer, has built at Manhasset, L. I., and will be in running order next week.

The Fleischman Floral Company is to open a branch store in the Astor hotel, Forty-fourth street and Broadway.

Walter F. Sheridan has been receiving supplies of an unnamed white seedling carnation, unusually large in size.

Anton Schultheis is closing up his palm sales at the Canal street market. He believes in the use of paint.

W. H. Siebrecht is carrying his usual full stock of lily-of-the-valley, and always some of the best.

H. H. Berger & Co., 47 Barclay street, have closed their offices until after July 4.

William Ghormley last Wednesday handled 5,000 bunches of sweet peas.

Ed Roehrs, son of Julius Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J., is home from Europe.

Thomas Young, Jr., is taking a short vacation.

John Birnie has incorporated his business.

Visitors: J. F. Sullivan, Detroit, Mich.; Henry Small, Washington, D. C.; Robert Craig, of Philadelphia, Pa.; William Duckham, Madison, N. J.

Chicago.

Midsummer quiet is settling down over the market and all departments of the trade are affected with the same lassitude. Business in retail lines is holding up fairly well, the last June weddings and commencements still causing a steady demand. The wholesale and commission houses are not disturbed these days with any undue rush of business and there is plenty of all lines, with the exception of the fancy roses, to fill all orders. Low prices prevail on carnations and cold storage peonies. Ferns, smilax and other green goods are reaching the low water mark in price. Bedding plant men report a satisfactory season, the weather lately being very propitious for them.

L. Baumann & Company, importers and manufacturers of metallic, artificial and natural preserved funeral designs, artificial flowers and leaves, preserved palms and general florist supplies, have opened their new place at 76-78 Wabash avenue, as the old place, 84 Wabash avenue, has proved to be too small to hold their large stock. They are now in a position to take care of all orders. They have added numerous useful articles for florists to their stock. An inspection of their show room will convince you that they have many kinds of goods useful in the trade.

The many friends of John G. Lambros, the retailer at 95 Wabash avenue, will be interested to learn of his approaching marriage. The prospective bride is Miss Lillie White, well known in west side society and an accomplished young lady. The ceremony will occur at the Greek church July 3. Nic Chrones will act as best man, and the matron of honor will be Mrs. Theodore Kalous, well known to the retail trade in Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Lambros will make their home at 850 Washington boulevard. They have the best of wishes of a host of friends.

Peter Jensen, whose retail store is on North avenue, died suddenly Sunday of heart failure. He was on the market Sunday morning and later in the day made up a floral design for a customer. He finished the work and suddenly fell over dead. The deceased was aged 33 years. He leaves a wife and no children. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon, many friends in and out of the trade attending.

Albert Fuchs, in the disposition of his plant to George A. Kuhl and James S.

Wilson, gave the would-be purchasers a thirty-day option, and now finds he has the place still on his hands at the expiration of that term. The numerous readers who have inquired about the plant recently will please note the fact.

L. H. Winterson, of E. F. Winterson Company, is absent from his desk this week, being on his wedding trip in northern Wisconsin. He was married to Miss Steen, Wednesday, June 29.

Bentley-Coatsworth Company is in with the best cut of Beauty roses seen for many moons. The Liberty, coming from New Castle, is also remarkably fine.

J. A. Budlong is showing excellent Lawson carnations which have been holding up to fine quality most consistently all spring.

J. B. Deamud still has a few thousand good peonies in cold storage and is ready to meet all calls.

L. C. Coatsworth spent part of the week in Indianapolis and New Castle, Ind.

E. C. Amling is handling a specialty in fancy auratum lilies this week.

E. H. Hunt is receiving numerous Tobakine orders.

Among the visitors this week were Prof. J. C. Blair, of Urbana, Ill.; Paul Kopanka, foreman of the Chicago Carnation Company, Joliet, Ill.

Philadelphia.

When one of the growers was asked for news he answered, "All I know is it's summer time, and things are very slow." This about sums up the situation hereabouts. Stores now close at 6 p. m. through the week and 1 p. m. on Saturday so that all hands can go and see the game. Roses are now poor, particularly the Beauty, which cannot be offered without an apology of some sort. There are a few received from out of town that are presentable but they cannot always be counted on. Kaiserin and Liberty with a few Golden Gates are still fair. Prices are about the same as last week. Prosperity carnations are about the best for size and pass nicely for white. Sweet peas are much in evidence and are probably more in demand than anything else in stock. Prices are as low as $2 per thousand and from that up to $5. Irises now enliven the store windows and are to be seen in almost every display.

The opening of the Waretown Rod and Gun Club on Barnegat Bay last Friday was a most enjoyable affair. Some twenty-five well known members of the craft accepted the invitation of Commodore John Westcott and spent Friday and Saturday, many of them not returning until Sunday, with him. Among those present were W. F. Gude, W. R. Smith and A. Laffler, of Washington, and R. Lynex, of Atlantic City. From Philadelphia there were Messrs. Anderson, Harris, Burton, R. Craig, G. Craig, Lonsdale, Wm. Westcott, Wm. B. Westcott, Redfield, Dunham, Eimerman, Donoghue, Lank and Lake. The fish in the bay were attacked in grand style, but nobody, with the exception of the commodore, who had the flagship, had any luck. He caught twelve and his chest expanded accordingly. He was at his best, however, in the evening when he told how he pulled in a fifty pounder the summer before. This story or rather recital is worth going miles to hear. Long live the commodore.

The Leo Niessen Company will soon be the sign at 1217 Arch street, an application having been made for a charter for a company to take over the business of Leo Niessen. Leo Niessen is to be president, W. E. McKessick, his foreman, vice-president and A. A. Niessen, secretary and treasurer. Mr. Niessen's business is only nine years old but has advanced rapidly in volume and it is thought will now be carried on more advantageously as a corporation.

Charles Meehan, of the Flower Market, says that he feels much encouraged over the prospects. They have a few more stall holders than last year and the commission end of the business has also increased considerably. He thinks if they were located on the first floor it would be to their advantage and hopes before long that such a move may be made.

Sullivan's roses of Detroit were represented in this city on Monday and Tuesday last in the person of Mr. Sullivan himself. He had his smile along and looked the picture of health. He reports business very satisfactory.

Charles Fox still uses his Cibotium Schiedeii plants, six years old at least, which have stood in the same place all that time and are the admiration of all beholders. K.

Baltimore.

We have had here one or two days of insufferable heat, but since we have had the ideal, perfect weather of June, the air fresh and moving, the nights cool and the sky an azure delight. Trade languishes; the schools are over and the migration to seaside, mountain and country side has begun, so that the population of the city gradually declines and makes fewer calls each week for cut flowers save for funeral purposes, for hospitals, some church decorations and for some few belated festivities. Last week was a dull one all around, and as Manager Perry of the Exchange claimed, "it was push, push all through to makesales." Flowers are not in excessive supply, certainly not those of high grade, but the demand is light. Sweet peas are overabundant. The glut of southern gladioli is suspended, if not over.

There is considerable building and rebuilding in progress and everyone is busy with repairs. Lehr Brothers, Brooklyn, Md., are putting up a new house, 26x100 feet. F. C. Bauer, Govanstown, has put up two sash houses and is rebuilding two houses, each 25x80 feet, to replace three old ones demolished. He has a field of 12,000 Cochet roses in fine growth. Andrew Anderson's new rose house is nearing completion, and is a fine light structure which in a few days will be planted in Beauty roses. Wm. Madsen, his next door neighbor, is tearing down three houses, which will be replaced by two wider and more modern structures. Colin Campbell, an intelligent and capable young cultivator, is starting for himself with two houses, 20 and 12x100 feet, on Arlington avenue, east of the York road, and will grow roses and green stock. Those who know him expect to see him make his way in the trade.

The rehabilitation of the burned section of our city progresses, not perhaps with the speed one would like to see, but there are movements in rebuilding on every side. A great many mechanics of various trades are at work, and the feeling is optimistic as to our immediate future. Money moves through channels some time closed, and the fears of a several months interval of dullness greater than usual seems unlikely to be borne out by the facts. In a general revival of confidence and good feeling our trade must participate.

John M. Rider, Brooklyn, Md., is arranging for a new boiler for his plant. Many other boilers will be installed this fall, last winter having proved the insufficiency of much heating apparatus.

Edward Kress has had a serious time with a case of blood poisoning, but is improving. S. B.

Cleveland.

It is useless to say anything about business, for there isn't any. About the only thing doing is funeral work. Stock is plentiful, such as it is, although some fairly good roses and carnations are still coming into market. Peonies are over, including the cold storage ones. The plant men are about all finished up. This has been an exceptionally fine spring for the disposal of pot stock. All seem well satisfied.

James Eadie is busy finishing up his new range of glass. Nine houses are being constructed, eight being 22x125 feet and one 20x88. Roses will be planted in all except the last, which, being a dividing house, will be used for other purposes. The gutters are six feet high. The houses are divided by glass partitions. It will be a model range when completed. The Foley Manufacturing Company of Chicago supplied all the material, including the ventilating apparatus. Wm. Tapper is the foreman in charge.

Adam Graham & Son are cutting some magnificent auratum lilies, the best the writer has seen for several years. This firm will erect another house this summer. They are cutting some extra good Lawson carnations.

The club, at its meeting Monday night, appointed Isaac Kennedy, A. L. Brown and F. C. Bartels a committee to select a place to hold the club picnic this summer. Their report will be handed in at the next meeting.

John Walker and son, Elmer, of Youngstown, and Tom Walker, of Philadelphia, were visitors in town this week.

James Wilson is sending in some grand sweet peas to the Cleveland Cut Flower Company. ECHO.

Washington, D. C.

Business was good last week, and the retailers agree the quality of stock has been better than usual in the last half of June. The death of Jesse Brown, a native of Washington and one of its most highly esteemed citizens, caused a number of large funeral orders to be placed with J. H. Small & Sons. They made two standing wreaths, each eight feet high. One was composed of pink and white roses the other of orchids and white roses. They also furnished a number of fine sprays, in which orchids and valley were freely used.

The last but most notable of the commencement exercises, that of the combined Washington high schools, was held in Convention hall June 22. As Convention hall is said to be the largest hall south of New York city, it requires a lot of palms, ferns and foliage plants to furnish a good decoration. On this occasion the work was done by F. H. Kramer, and as he has a reputation for doing nothing by halves, it is needless to add that the work was well done and eminently satisfactory to the school authorities and the general public. Mr. Kramer is now growing the Pierson fern on an extensive scale, and has just filled several large wholesale orders for young plants.

Peter Becker, who had been employed at different greenhouses in the city, committed suicide by hanging himself to a rafter in one of the greenhouses of the American Rose Company on Saturday night, June 25. The body was not discovered until Sunday morning, when George Stewart, an employe of the company, entered the house. Becker had worked for the American Rose Company, but was, it is said, on the day previous to committing the rash act, working at Mt. Olivet cemetery. He was a native of Germany and was 35 years old. A wife and one child survive him. S. E.

San Francisco.

Business is quiet and shipping has fallen off considerably. Good flowers continue to be scarce. Gladioli are to be seen in quantities at all florists and are fairly good.

The florists have had several meetings since the majority of the florists have begun to close their places of business on Sunday at 1 p. m. The object of these meetings was to see if there could not be some way to induce those who will not close to fall into line with the majority. As yet their efforts have not met with any success, and the more obstinate ones are still more determined to close whenever they see fit.

Serveau Brothers are just in with a good crop of Brunner roses, and the quality is exceedingly good. E. Serveau and family have gone to their country home to spend their summer vacation.

Miss Fecheriner, who opened a branch store in the St. Francis hotel, has given up that place. She still has the Sutler street store, where she does a splendid business.

G. Chiappari, of the firm of Frank Pelicano & Company, and family, are spending the summer at San Anselmo where he has just completed his summer residence.

M. Goldensen, of Los Angeles, is a visitor here, also Miss Kate Parsons, of Fresno. E. Madsen, of Salt Lake City, has been with us for the past few weeks.

P. W. Grallert who recently built for himself and family a home in Elmhurst, is now moving his nursery from Colma to that place.

Miss Bella Gunn has opened a new store at 710 Sutler street. There is also a new store at 118 Farrel street, running under the name of the Alcazar Florist.

Frank Shibeley opened a branch store on June 25 in the western addition, located on Sutler street near Polk street.

D. Mann who recently bought an interest in his brother's store, has resold his interest back to his brother.

A. B. Kretschmar has just returned from a trip to the Yosemite Valley and reports an enjoyable trip.

The Art Floral Company has closed its Sutler street store for extensive alterations.

The Neuchatel Nursery Company is sending in some very fine valley.

Cincinnati.

Trade the last week was very unsatisfactory and a good many flowers found their way to the barrel. The present week, however, owing to the cool weather conditions, has changed things and we can report a fair amount of sales, but as July 4 is near at hand, this can be expected. One of the fakers was selling roses on the street last Saturday and Sunday which he got from Chicago at 10 cents a dozen and good roses at that. The question arises, what did the grower get for them?

The Cincinnati Florists' Society held its annual meeting June 23 and the election of officers for the ensuing year took place. Ben George, D. Rusconi, Geo. Murphy, Gus Adrian and J. W. Rodgers were chosen as directors and immediately after the result was known they went into executive session and elected Ben George president, Geo. Murphy secretary and J. W. Rodgers treasurer. After transacting some miscellaneous business a social session was held. The retiring officers had a buffet lunch served to the new officers and a jolly good time was had. Tickets are out for the annual meeting to be held at Coney Island July 1.

A Mr. Brown, representing himself as the president of a trade paper, called the Florists' and Nurserymen's Surplus Association, has been around this city soliciting for his paper and incidentally collecting amounts from 50 cents up to $2. As things have not turned out satisfactorily to some of the growers, they are beginning to think Mr. Brown is a smooth individual and want to know if he has been in other cities working the same game.

A ride through the suburbs last Sunday showed that there has been a great deal of bedding out this season. A good many Crimson Rambler roses are to be seen. It seems as though year after year this rose is planted in increased quantities and it is a beautiful sight to see this climber with scores of blooms on the porches. One lady has her tennis grounds entirely screened with it.

Peter Wieland has returned to New Castle, Ind., to look after his carnations. While he is away Wm. Gardiner will have charge of the salesroom and Mr. Wieland can rest assured that his interest will be well taken care of at this end.

Albert McCullough and George Parvin have returned from the seedmen's convention and report a good time. A. D.

Toronto.

Business is keeping up fine and is better than is to be expected for this season. Stock with most growers is still of good quality and as yet very little mildew is seen. The many commencements, weddings and deaths have used up many flowers, the good stock being usually sold off readily, though the inferior grades have been hard to dispose of. American Beauty and Kaiserin roses are both very fine for this season, and the quality of the Meteor, Bride and Bridesmaid are well worth $6 per 100, at which price they are now quoted. Carnations are still good property and mostly disposed of. Lily of the valley is becoming more plentiful again. Other lilies are about over and since the outdoor marguerites have come into bloom, there is little demand for the indoor variety. Many native orchids have been coming from the northern part of the province which are proving attractive in some of the store windows, some of the cypripediums being especially fine.

Miss Jessie Dunlop, daughter of John H. Dunlop, was married to George Graham on Wednesday, June 15. The ceremony took place at Bonar Presbyterian church, but was very quiet and only attended by the immediate relatives. After the wedding breakfast at Mr. Dunlop's cosy residence, the happy couple left for a tour of the western states.

William Jay & Son have been very busy of late with bedding stock. The run of these has been quite heavy with them and besides this they have had numerous orders for weddings and other occasions.

D. J. Sinclair and family have returned from Muskoka. The fishing was very fine and it was no trouble to make a good sized catch before breakfast.

Dunlop, of King street, has been showing a fine specimen of Bougainvillea Sandieriana which elicits much comment from the passersby.

J. Simmons is busy renovating and decorating his store which is proving more attractive each season.

Charles Chambers has been appointed Assistant Park Commissioner.

William Taylor, of Barrie, Ont., is a visitor. H. G. D.

Newport, R. I.

This is a busy week for the gardeners, as not only are they opening the large places for the season, but they also have their exhibits to get ready for the rose and strawberry show. We have had good growing weather all the week, with two or three sharp showers to keep the ground in good condition. On every hand regret is expressed that it was necessary to postpone the rose and strawberry show until this week, for while last week was too early for some, this week will be too late for others. The last two or three days, being very warm and moist, have pushed roses and strawberries right into their prime, and the show is not for three days yet. But we all hope that a good exhibition will be made, even if the first blooms are gone.

We have had a week of perfect June weather, and Newport is looking its best. Bellevue avenue never was more beautiful than it is now; its miles of California privet hedges have been trimmed with the greatest care, and its lawns are in the most perfect order. As previously mentioned the trees have made a most luxuriant growth, and are in their best condition. The florists all report a very good business for so early in the season, and as the past week has been graduation week in the schools, they have been very busy with the bouquets required by the various classes. A few bedding plants are still sold, mostly geraniums; but now every one has his garden pretty well planted.

Cactus dahlias will have a great run here this summer, as they bloom when outdoor flowers are scarce and most needed for the great number of dinners and other August functions. Special colors that are favorites are being grown in large quantities; some of the gardeners have large blocks of Mrs. Charles Turner, the popular yellow; Katharine Duer, the elegant scarlet; and other solid colors for flower work.

Worcester, Mass.

After the severe drought which threatened every outdoor crop, we have had copious rains, accompanied by high winds and hail. While the latter did considerable damage, it was more than balanced by the benefits of the rainfall. Weddings, graduations and funeral work have kept business up to a satisfactory standard for this season of the year. Flowers are plentiful and the quality good. Carnations are holding on well, considering the extremely hot weather, and asters will soon be in the market. The bedding business is about finished, and most lines of bedding plants are well cleaned up, with the exception of cannas. These probably got a severe setback in popularity last year on account of the cold, rainy summer. L.

ABUTILON MEGAPOTAMICUM with golden variegated foliage makes a nice companion for verbenas in a flower bed. The best effect is secured by planting two abutilons for every one verbenas used.

Florists' Hail Association.

The Florists' Hail Association since August 1, 1903, has paid $17,700 for glass broken by hail. The emergency fund in the hands of the treasurer, after paying these losses, is in the neighborhood of $10,000. This is in addition to an emergency fund of over $12,000. The Florists' Hail Association is certainly to be congratulated upon its achievements during the past year.

Chemical Extermination of Weeds.

The results of a number of experiments with different chemicals for the destruction of weeds are given by J. O. Morgan (Agr. Education, 6 (1903), No. 1, pp.
10-12), says the Experiment Station Record. Weed plats of one-fourth rod each were selected and received applications of solutions of copper sulphate, corrosive sublimate, potassium sulphide, common salt and sodium arsenate. The weeds embraced a large number of species of different genera of plants and as would have been expected the effect on the different forms varied widely.

The potassium sulphide appeared to have no effect whatever in checking the weed growth, and the copper and corrosive sublimate solutions were without very much effect in deterring them. The best results were obtained where sodium arsenate was used, and where considerable areas are to be treated it is suggested that spraying with this solution would give the best and cheapest results.

Notes for Beginners.

Red cedar and locust are two of the most durable woods for greenhouse posts.
For a structure 16 to 20x100 feet in dimensions sink them at least 3½ feet, in firm ground, and char or tar the portion to be buried.

Bran, powdered sugar and paris green or rough-on-rats make a capital cockroach destroyer. Proportions: To a 3-inch pot of bran add one teaspoonful each of powdered sugar and the poison.

Narrow post holes dug carefully in line and the posts grouted in with cement and stones is cheaper in the end than the old fashioned way. Enough cement to bind the stones is all that is necessary.

One pound of lard, one teaspoonful each of powdered sugar and rough-on-rats, well mixed and pasted here and there beneath the benches, will destroy cockroaches.

Dry bran placed on the benches in flat receptacles will capture many snails and slugs, and remains good as long as it is kept perfectly dry.

Leave the soil on the benches during the summer and water it occasionally.
This will preserve it against warping and shrinking.

Powdered white hellebore is a sure destroyer of currant and rose worms, one-half pound to five gallons of water.

Asparagus Sprengeri thrives best in a cool temperature and can be grown in cold frames for summer cutting.

In crossing marshy land when building greenhouses, dig down to firm ground if possible and fill in with stone.

If compelled to use chestnut posts for greenhouses, tar them well at ground level, their vital part.

Persian insect powder is a good remedy for cut worms. Dust it on the plants in the evening.

Soil infested with eel worm should be sterilized by steaming before stock is planted.

Hemlock is about the best and cheapest lumber to use for benches.

Have you tried growing nephrolepis in baskets of moss for stock?

Pittsburg.

Business this week has gone down to rock bottom, and a likelihood for anything more than a slight stimulation now and then is remote. June business, however, will be equal to if not in excess of the same month of last year. While investments in wedding decorations revealed signs of a general retrenchment, yet a very substantial increase is assured by reason of a much greater number of orders booked. Roses are about the same in quality as those of last week, though the various grades are more plentiful. In Carnations Mrs. Lawson, Enchantress, Goethe, Scott and several white are the best. Lily of the Valley, sweet peas, irises, gladioli and white daisies sold well.

The word "Wednesdays" was omitted in the paragraph relating to Randolph & McClements in last week's news notes.
They will close on each Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock during the summer.

The Florists' Exchange reports business quiet, although shipping orders keep up to the mark. The Exchange has had a remarkable run on American Beauty in the last two months.

Plans are being made for the big picnic, and all definite arrangements will be reported to the Florists' Club at the next meeting.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

ROSE AND STRAWBERRY SHOW.

As stated in our brief notes of last week the June exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, held at Horticultural Hall June 21 and 22, was remarkable for its extent and the superb quality of the flowers shown, particularly the peonies. The latter were certainly marvels in many instances. The general displays of roses, arranged on sloping racks in vases of one hundred each, were effective as usual, the contributors in this section being Miss S. B. Fay, Mrs. E. M. Gill, Dr. C. G. Weld, Peter Cairns, Walter Hunnewell, Mrs. G. H. Worthley, E. L. Lewis and W. J. Clemens, the first five being the prize winners in order as named. A bank of tea and hybrid tea roses from Harriett R. Foote comprised a large number of valuable sorts which rarely receive attention in this latitude but which are well worthy of the extra care they require for protection, and a bronze medal was awarded therefor. The Sarah B. Fay prize, offered to amateur rose growers, was not awarded according to its merits because of a misleading defect in the wording of the schedule which did not make it plain that hybrid perpetuals were alone eligible for competition. The introduction of a number of teas disqualified the exhibit which would otherwise have been adjudged as first.

The display of native and other species of wild roses and the hybrids thereof produced in recent years by Jackson Dawson was one of the most interesting features of the show and attracted constant attention from visitors. There were about seventy-five species shown, all labeled, and the parentage of each hybrid was also indicated. The prettiest of them all was the one named by Mr. Dawson for his late wife, Minnie Dawson. This is a seedling of R. multiflora and R. alba, bearing an abundance of symmetrical, white, very double flowers. The first prize of the Theodore Lyman fund was awarded to Miss Sarah B. Fay, whose roses were as heretofore a practical example of Woods Hole's superiority as a rose paradise. E. A. Clark, W. A. Riggs, gardener, won the second prize in this class, the exhibit being also of highest quality. In the other rose classes the principal prizes were won by Miss Sarah B. Fay (who took nine firsts, including that for best blooms of a variety introduced since 1901, the variety being Joseph H. Fay); Jos. H. White, who took two firsts; Mrs. O. S. Paige, who took three firsts; A. C. Bazelley, A. F. Estabrook, E. A. Clark and Wm. Whitman.

Of equal or even greater interest than the roses were the peonies, of which the show was superlatively fine. Local celebrities in this specialty were all there and many of the flowers were of remarkable size and not far removed from perfection. The prizes for collection of thirty or more named varieties were secured by T. C. Thurlow, A. H. Fewkes, Mears Estate and George Hollis respectively. George Hollis also had an interesting collection of seedlings and Dr. C. S. Minot, Dr. C. G. Wild, Mrs. J. L. Gardner, and Mrs. Gill were also represented by fine collections. Robert T. Jackson received a silver medal for Richardson's seedling Samuel Henshaw, and certificates for Richardson's seedlings John Richardson and Walter Faxon. R. J. Thaylor received certificates for Mme. Emile Lemoine and Marguerite Gerard and similar awards were given to George Hollis for Mary Louise Hollis and Sunrise and to A. H. Fewkes for Avalanche. Among the varieties showing most sensational qualities were Summer Day, Pottsi alba, A. A. Gould, R. P. Whitfield, Minnie Claire, Dubois and Empeur Nicholas in Mr. Shaylor's group; Eugene Verdier, Marechal Vallant and Milton Hill by Mr. Fewkes, and Dutchess of Sutherland, Thurlow's Double Red, Alba Maxima, Felix Crousse and Lady Alex McDuff by Mr. Thurlow. Samuel Henshaw, the variety winning the silver medal, is a posthumous seedling of Mr. Richardson's, a flower of unequalled size, white and flushed with lively pink.

Among the miscellaneous exhibits none showed up better than the sweet williams of which Wm. Whitman staged probably the finest blooms ever seen here. The large hall was flanked by two very extensive displays of hardy herbaceous plants from Blue Hill Nursery, and the Harvard Botanic Garden. These were arranged in artistic manner and each variety labeled. On the stage was a fine group of gloxinias with fern setting, from E. A. Clark. Warren Heustis showed campanulas and Rosa multiflora in a brilliant mass. J. I. Bailey, J. Nylan, gardener, and R. & J. Farquhar & Company staged effective groups of palms. A very attractive group of palms, orchids, gloxinias and anthuriums, edged with St. Paulia, came from Mrs. J. L. Gardner. A silver medal was awarded to Miss E. J. Clark, John Ash, gardener, for a group of plums, pears, peaches, nectarines, etc., fruited in pots and a certificate of merit for the new grape Diamond Jubilee, this being the first exhibition of this variety in America. It was raised by Buchanan, of Kippen, Scotland. The berries are enormous, more nearly resembling plums than grapes. Peter Fisher was represented by large vases of Enchantress, Mrs. M. A. Patten and Nelson Fisher and M. A. Patten by one of Mrs. Patten. Honorable mention was given Walter Hunnewell for a rare campanula from Siberia, bearing very long bells, creamy white abundantly speckled on the inner surface with violet dots.

WANTED.

First-class man to manage a mail order business in extreme west. Should have some practical knowledge of florist or nursery work. PASSENGER STEAMSHIP MOVEMENTS.

The tables herewith give the scheduled time of departure of ocean steamships carrying first-class passengers from the principal American and foreign ports, covering the space of two weeks from date of this issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST. Much disappointment often results from attempts to forward flowers for steamer delivery by express, to the care of the ship's steward or otherwise. The carriers of these packages are not infrequently refused admission on board and even those delivered on board are not always certain to reach the parties for whom they were intended. Hence florists in interior cities having orders for the delivery of flowers to passengers on out-going steamers are advised to intrust the filling of such orders to some reliable florist in the port of departure, who understands the necessary details and formalities and has the facilities for attending to it properly. For the addresses of such firms we refer our readers to the advertisements on this page:

Latest News of French Bulbs.

TOULON, FRANCE, June 17, 1904.—The president of the Syndicate of Defense of Agricultural Interests at Toulon (commonly known as the Bulb Growers' Syndicate) gives account of the events which have occurred the past two weeks. The syndicate, considering that the American importer with whom they had an engagement can not execute his contract, decides to continue as in former years and assure the success of the growers by maintaining the prices fixed by the syndicate and already accepted by the dealers.

PRESIDENT-ELECT CHAS. N. PAGE.

Chas. N. Page, who was elected president of the American Seed Trade Association, at the St. Louis convention last week, is the son of Gen. C. W. Page, of Clyde, O., where he was born on May 29, 1860. In 1868 the family removed to Omaha, Neb., and after Gen. Page's death settled in Des Moines, Ia., in 1876. The following spring (1877) Mr. Page entered the employ of S. L. Fuller & Co., the seed dealers of Des Moines, and he remained with the same firm and their successors, C. W. Dorr & Co., until their business was sold in 1886 to the Iowa Seed Co., a new concern organized and managed by him. He has also been actively identified with educational interests both as a director in the city schools and as trustee and member of the executive committee of the Des Moines College. During his twenty-seven years experience in the seed trade in Des Moines he has seen the business grow from such small proportion that less than 500 orders were received per annum to a mail order seed trade which frequently receives 2,000 orders or more per day. Mr. Page has been actively identified with the best work of the association for a number of years.

The Spring Trade.

We have received a number of reports on the business of the past spring as follows:

Johnson & Stokes, Philadelphia.—Comparing our business of the season just closed with that of 1903, we find there was a slight decrease of sales in January, February and March, but with April came a volume of business far in excess of any previous record, and this continued well up to the end of May, making the total nicely in excess of the previous year. Many record prices were made. For onion sets we paid $12 per bushel and sold out readily at 50 cents per quart. Country Gentleman corn at $12 and Stowell's Evergreen at $8 found ready sale. Orders for field corn were very difficult to fill with a satisfactory article. It was a curious, nerve-racking season and we all want to go fishing.

W. Atlee Burpee Company, Philadelphia, Pa.—We did not have quite as large a trade during the month of March as we did during the season of 1903, yet our total business up to the last day of March was a little ahead of a year ago, and the gains in April and May were very large, making in all the largest year's trade that we have ever handled. The close of the season finds us completely cleaned out of a great many varieties of seed, the demand having been especially heavy on beans, sweet corn and cucumber seed.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York.—This season's seed trade with us to date is in general satisfactory. While the business was delayed owing to severe weather the later months have on the whole made up, and except for the fact that certain lines of stock have not cleaned out as well as desired, there is little reason for complaint.

Second Vice-President W. H. Grenell.

Vaughan's International Primula Mixture.

This mixture is composed of the most salable colors of Single Flowering Chinese Primulas, the best whites, pinks and reds, with a sprinkling of other colors, enough to give a large variety of colors, the most important shades predominating. It contains some of the Giant sorts, some Fern-leaved, some blue; also some with dark leaves and stems. We have taken special pains to make this mixture as complete as possible and unreservedly recommend it to everyone.

MR. KIRKPATRICK'S RESPONSE TO ADDRESS OF WELCOME.

Honorable Mayor, Ladies and Gentlemen:

We find much pleasure in the reception of your cordial welcome to this, the Queen City of the South. We thank you for the honor conferred upon us by this happy recognition.

We come from states far and near to this charming southland to meet and greet a people than whom none are more valiant and fair. Many of us come from homes where hoary old receding winter sets defiance to the smiles of advancing spring, and we have been ushered into this enchanting land of fruits and flowers and restful bowers.

We rejoice with you in this wealth of beauty of bloom and indulge the hope of aiding the work of extending the incomparable blessings that follow the art of horticulture.

We, the tree builders of America, have a work to perform in "this great country of ours" than which no other work is fraught with more importance to the welfare of man.

We come, in this annual meeting of all domestic and foreign states, to hold fraternal council and to regain renewed inspiration in the pursuit of the first and greatest art given man by hand divine.

We greet and your people, Mr. Mayor, in truest fraternal devotion and beg to lay claim to the honor of oft repeated visits by you to our respective homes, where we may make known to you how we value this glad welcome to Atlanta.

THE NURSERYMEN SEE GEORGIA PEACHES.

The party of about 200 nurserymen and ladies left Atlanta early on the morning of June 25 in a special train composed of five Georgia-built vestibule cars, generously placed at their disposal by the Georgia Railroad Company, and arrived at Mayfield about noon where they were joined by a number of railroad representatives and others from Augusta. The manner in which the railroad looked after the comforts of the delegates is described as worthy of the highest praise.

After arrival at Mayfield the party was quickly conveyed in large spring wagons to the orchards of Berckmans Brothers. There after being refreshed with various cooling beverages served in the shade and resting themselves after their trip, the guests, about 250 in number, sat down in the shade of an immense walnut tree to a Georgia barbecue, that for manner of service and cooking of viands is said to have been unsurpassed. Nothing that is generally served at a repast of this kind was omitted, and many dishes that are usually served with more formal dinners were included in the feast. It was a revelation in open air banquets.

After the first pangs of hunger were appeased and satiety appeared, H. H. Cabaniss, of the Augusta Chronicle, in behalf of Louis, Robert and Allie Berckmans gave the visitors a ringing welcome. He paid the hosts many deserved compliments and spoke of the pleasure it gave them and to welcome to the finest fruit section in the country, those who were recognized as leaders in the industry. His speech was a most happy one and was roundly applauded. The response was made by E. W. Kirkpatrick, president of the National Nurserymen's Association. His remarks were appropriate and well received. Orlando Harrison, of Berlin, Md., was toastmaster and gracefully introduced the speakers, who one and all paid tribute to the cordial reception given them, as well as to the hosts. Among those who made informal talks were: C. L. Watrous, vice-president of the association; Jno. C. Chase, Derry, N. H.; J. M. Irving, of St. Joseph, Mo.; Frank B. White, Chicago, Ill.; G. L. Taber, Glen St. Mary's, Fla.; and Chas. T. Smith, Concord, Ga. The remaining time after the feast was spent in inspecting the orchards and packing house and methods of culture, etc.

The delegates to the convention left the hospitable shelter of the Messrs. Berckmans in the afternoon, embarking on the train for Macon, where the night was spent. Early in the morning of June 25 the party boarded a special train, graciously tendered by the Central of Georgia Railway Company, and in charge of officials of the road, and went through without stops to Fort Valley and Marshallville, where the immense orchards of the Hale Georgia Orchard Company, the Albaugh Orchard Company, the Ohio Fruit Land Company and S. H. Rumph were inspected. These orchards were thrown wide open to the visitors, and conveyances furnished to carry the delegates through the sea of peach trees. Refrigerated specimens of the various ripe varieties were dispensed to the visitors and cool and refreshing beverages served.

A delightful visit was made to the handsome and comfortable home of Samuel H. Rumph, the "father of the Elberta" peach, where delicious punch and peaches were served on the spacious veranda of his home. A crate factory was visited, where was shown the methods of the manufacture of the peach crates and baskets. After a most enjoyable day of sight-seeing and investigation the party was swiftly transported back to Atlanta over the Central of Georgia road, where they dispersed, going to their respective homes all over the country, and all voting that the most enjoyable and profitable convention of the association that has ever been held has just come to a close.

SURPLUS LIST FOR FALL OF 1904.

These varieties have all bloomed on our place and are true to name and not at all mixed. The sizes given are as follows:

SMALL are plants of one or two stalks of this year's growth. One year since divided. MEDIUM are plants of three to five stalks of this year's growth. Two years since divided. LARGE are plants of six or more stalks of this year's growth. Three years since divided.

Customers wishing a few plants we refer to our illustrated retail catalogue, where full descriptions are given. Not less than ten plants of a kind can be ordered at the prices given here.

The larger sizes can be cut for division on a basis of three good plants to each five stalks. Any peony plant is much surer to bloom and will be 20 per cent stronger if moved in September, so that new roots may form before freezing down. This gives a great advantage to home-grown stock over imported plants, which invariably come too late. These prices are also for larger plants than are usually sent from Europe and are, in fact, lower than the same varieties can be bought for in Europe. Besides, WE GUARANTEE OUR STOCK TRUE AND WILL REPLACE WITH THREE ANY PLANT WHICH PROVES NOT TRUE TO NAME.

We begin shipping early in September when orders will be filled in rotation. We make no charge for packing.

We also issue a list of 56 other sorts of which we have only a few plants to offer; sent free on request.

PETERSON NURSERY,

164 La Salle St., (480 Acres in ORNAMENTAL STOCK) CHICAGO.

Our Pastimes.

Announcements of coming contests or other events of interest to our bowling, shooting and sporting readers are solicited and will be given place in this column.

Address all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 42 W. 28th St., New York; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia; or to the American Florist Co., Chicago.

At Chicago.

The team selected to represent the Florists' Club at the S. A. F. tournament at St. Louis in August will get down to hard work in the short time yet intervening before the big event. Each Tuesday evening at Mussey's alleys a practice series will be rolled. The admirers of the local bowlers are more than sanguine as to the results at St. Louis, and many are already talking of cashing in.

At Philadelphia.

The last contest in the current series of matches to determine the teams developed no very large scores. "Robby's" team defeated the Yates aggregation easily, Robby having the high total with 543, as well as high single game, 205. Point winners were: Yates 2, Connor 3, Anderson 2, Kift 2, Robertson 3, Adelberger 1, Watson 2, Westcott 3. The scores follow:

PLAYER.	1st	2d	3d
Yates.....	145	169	184

Extract from the Log of the Waretown Rod and Gun Club, June 24, 1904.

Fourth annual outing, June 24, 1904; weather warm, plenty of wind. White caps on bay. No mosquitoes. Among those present were the following:

- Wm. R. Smith, Washington, D. C.
- Edwin Lonsdale, Philadelphia.
- C. H. Eimerman, Philadelphia.
- John Burton, Chestnut Hill, Pa.
- Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.
- Andreas Lafler, Washington, D. C.
- Thos. J. Groves, Atlantic City, N. J.
- Robt. Craig, Philadelphia.
- E. N. Savoy, Philadelphia.
- Daniel D. Donoghue, Philadelphia.
- Richard Lynex, Atlantic City, N. J.
- H. R. Lake, Philadelphia.
- Robt. Kift, Philadelphia.
- Geo. Craig, Philadelphia.
- W. S. Griffin, Frankford, Pa.
- J. C. Vaughan, Chicago.
- William H. Westcott, Philadelphia.
- William B. Westcott, Philadelphia.
- Geo. Anderson, Philadelphia.
- John W. Dunham, Philadelphia.
- A. Y. Hanna, Philadelphia.
- Geo. Redford, Ardmore, Pa.
- W. K. Harris, Philadelphia.
- C. J. Rainear, Philadelphia.
- C. W. Rainear, Philadelphia.
- F. R. Rainear, Philadelphia.
- Wm. Barnard, Philadelphia.
- John Westcott, Philadelphia.
- David Rust, Philadelphia.
- J. Liddon Pennock, Philadelphia.

Most of the foregoing members of the club came down on the early train from Philadelphia on Friday morning. They were met at the station by conveyances, and after a short stay at the homestead for refreshments reached the club house in good shape, where the commodore was waiting to welcome them with the flag at the peak and the latch string out.

By some occult instinct the thirsty ones soon discovered the location of the punch bowl, and they declared with enthusiasm that the hand of the commodore had lost none of its cunning and the colonels of Kentucky would have to look to their laurels. Dinner was served at 1 o'clock to twenty-nine guests, probably the largest party the club has ever had on any one occasion. The party was joined by Chas. J. Rainear and friends, who came down the bay in his yacht, a much admired craft, sloop rigged, very fast and a beauty. J. Liddon Pennock also paid a visit from his yacht. Mr. Rainear took several of the visitors out for a sail in the afternoon, others amused themselves with quaits, some listened to the graphophone, and every one found amusement of some kind, so that the time flew all too quickly. Messrs. Anderson, Rust and Harris had to go home on the afternoon train on Friday, for which they were sorry, as they missed much of the best of the entertainment of the evening. Bo's'n Kift officiated at the stereopticon and gave a vivid and picturesque series of views selected during his recent trip among the effete monarchies of the old world. R. Lynex, the veteran and seemingly immortal Richard, of whom it may be said (like Shakespeare's hero) that

Time cannot wither nor custom stale, gave vent to the fullness of his joy in song, so glad was he to be with his old friends again, especially his old chum, John Westcott, the original and only commodore. By the time all this was over and some violin solos had been listened to from Messrs. Lake and Groves it was time to go to bed, where all went except such graceless and reckless people as Hanna, Dunham, Eimerman, Kift, Vaughan and Burton, who were hell bent on making a full night of it. After doing his best to dissuade them the commodore gave them another drink and sang

The smoke goes up the chimney just the same, after which he left them and went below to his cabin. When the commodore arrived on the scene the next morning the orators were still at it in broad daylight, with the gas burning and the discussion raised to a surprising pitch. It is not known who got the honors, but Jack was heard to mutter a good deal to himself and became very absent minded, which was a bad sign for him, and "J. C." was certainly leading. Nothing uplifts the soul of a Chicago man like doing up opponents. Then he is in the proper mood to glory in everything, the people around him, the beauties of nature and the goodness of the Most High. For proof of it listen to this impromptu ode by the aforesaid "J. C.," the irrepressible overflow of the joyful Chicago spirit from having skinned 'em alive:

- The summer sun
Rose tints the bay
At break of day
At Barnegat.
- Atlantis sends
Her softest breeze
From o'er the seas
At Barnegat.
- Like things of life
Fly, wheel and float
Those fishing boats
At Barnegat.
- Green meadows fade
In purple haze
These summer days
At Barnegat.
- No moon of June
Ere sheds her light
As on these nights
At Barnegat.

A number of the guests left on Saturday morning, among them being an old and much loved friend of the commodore and all members of the club, William R. Smith of Washington, D. C., who was accompanied by Wm. F. Gude of the same city. Both of these gentlemen are ex-presidents of the national society, the S. A. F., and with Messrs. Craig, Lonsdale and Burton made no less than five ex-presidents gathered together under one roof to grace the occasion. The balance went home, with the exception of Messrs. Lynex and Groves and the commodore, who left on Monday morning, thus bringing to a close the most successful and enjoyable opening party that the club has ever had. A feature of the occasion was the presentation of a handsome deer's head by J. C. Vaughan of Chicago for the decoration of the club house, which was accepted with appropriate thanks by the commodore, and a record of same ordered to be entered in the log. And so good-bye for the present. Happy to meet, sorry to part, happy to meet again. GEORGE C. WATSON, Keeper of the Log.

Spring Show at Lenox, Mass.

The rose and strawberry exhibition of the Lenox Horticultural Society, held in the town hall, Lenox, Mass., June 22, was a great success.

In the scheduled classes Mrs. Robert Winthrop, S. W. Carlquist gardener, won first for collection of twelve varieties of H. P. roses, three blooms of each kind, one first and one second for strawberries, and first for gloxinias.

H. H. Cook, G. H. Thompson gardener, won a second for H. P. roses, a third for hardy roses, a first for hardy roses of one color, a second for perennials, and a second for vegetables.

M. K. Jessup, P. J. Donahue gardener, won a third for H. P. roses, a third for hardy roses, one color, a second for peonies, a second for perennials, a second for flowering shrubs, and a third for peaches.

G. Foster, E. Jenkins gardener, won first for six varieties of H. P. roses, first for vase of hardy roses, second for vase of hardy roses of one color, first for greenhouse roses, two firsts and a second for strawberries, second for gloxinias, first for vegetables, and first for melons.

Mrs. J. E. Parsons, W. Woods gardener, won a second for H. P. roses, a second for hardy roses, a first for perennials, and a second for vegetables.

W. D. Sloan won a second for strawberries, first for peonies, a first for perennials, first for flowering shrubs, second for peaches, second for nectarines, and second for melons.

Mrs. R. T. Auchmitz, J. Baker gardener, won a third for strawberries.

C. Lanier, A. H. Wingett gardener, won a third for peonies, and a third for vegetables.

J. Sloan won firsts for vegetables, peaches and nectarines.

A very complete and interesting exhibit of new and rare perennials, numbering over fifty varieties, was made by Mrs. J. E. Parsons. There were a number of special exhibits. The collection of new and rare perennials from Mrs. J. E. Parsons was awarded a diploma. G. Foster was awarded a diploma for collection of figs and cherries. Mrs. Robt. Winthrop was awarded a diploma for collection of fuchsias, which were superb. Mrs. G. Westinghouse was given a first class certificate for a general display of roses and perennials. G. G. Haven gained cultural commendations for Rex begonias, standard heliotropes, coleuses, Blanche Burpee sweet peas, grown outside, and gloxinias.

The F. R. Pierson Company, Tarrytown, N. Y., showed its improved Pierson fern, which was awarded a first-class certificate.

The judges were E. Dolby and J. Shields, of Dalton. GEORGE FOULSHAM.

BERKELEY, CAL.—Harvey M. Hall, instructor in botany and assistant botanist to the agricultural experiment station of the University of California, left June 16 to make an extended trip through the Sierras for the purpose of exploration and collecting botanical specimens.

LAKE GENEVA, Wis.—The summer meeting of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society will be held here June 29 and 30. Frank Ovender will read a paper on bulbs, C. Phillipson will tell about the annual Oshkosh chrysanthemum shows, and several other interesting papers will be read the first day. The second will be devoted to recreation.

American Beauties

Yes, we have the plants you want. We don't run a "Beauty Factory" but we have about 40,000 feet of glass devoted to them and we have men who understand propagating and growing them. We haven't a lot of cull stock we wish to dump. But we have a clean healthy lot of plants which we are offering at very low prices. We intend to establish a reputation on our goods and want your order. The goods are right—but if you don't think so, return them and you can have your money back. Lenox Horticultural Society.

The Lenox Horticultural Society gave a free exhibition of flowers, fruits and vegetables in the Lenox town hall on Wednesday, June 23, which was well attended by most of the leading residents. The exhibition itself differed very little from others of the same kind. The exhibits of out-door roses were neither numerous nor sensational, in fact we expected more. Several of the leading gardens were not represented and the effect of the very severe winter was very apparent. The stems were short and the list of varieties somewhat curtailed. The exhibition of indoor roses was fairly good for this season of the year. Several varieties were shown and the vases of American Beauty, Liberty and Kaiserin Augusta Victoria were very good, but the judges passed these over in favor of a rose of La Detroit. It must have been its youth that appealed to them, for it lacked the other attributes.

Gloxinias were a feature of the exhibition and well worth going to see alone. Fruit and vegetables also deserve to be specially mentioned. In Mr. Jenkins' collection of twelve varieties of vegetables we observed several new kinds, and they certainly were very fine. Indoor fruits—melons, peaches, nectarines and figs—were also well shown, but the exhibit that appealed to us most was a very large collection of hardy herbaceous flowers, the most extensive that we have yet seen in this country. They were all correctly named and were certainly the most instructive thing in the whole hall. They were exhibited by Wm. Woods, gardener on the Mrs. J. E. Parson's place. A subsequent visit to this establishment showed that twice as many varieties could have been staged, and at some future date we will have more to say about Mr. Woods and his work which will be interesting.

In the principal H. P. rose contest, twelve varieties, three of each, S. Carlquist, gardener to Mrs. Winthrop, was first; Geo. Thomson, gardener to H. H. Cook, second; J. G. Donohue, gardener to Morris K. Jessup, third. The winning lots consisted of Monsieur Boncenne, Magna Charta, Baron de Rothschild, Mrs. John Laing, Capt. Hayward, Gen. Jacqueminot, Ulrich Brunner, Margaret Dickson, John Hopper, Gabriel Luizet, Paul Neyron and Prince Camille de Rohan.

First prize for the best twelve perennials was awarded to Wm. Woods, with Campanula persicifolia grandiflora, C. latifolia, Spiraea Araneus, double white and single pink pyrethrums, Lilium elegans, Gaillardia grandiflora, Iris Japonica, Gillenia trifoliata, Phlox ovata, P. and suffruticosa Marie Stewart and Dianthus deltoides. George Thompson was second.

For the best collection of strawberries, E. Jenkins, gardener to Girard Foster, received first prize, with Marshall, Gandy, Nick Olimer, Brandywine, Wellington, and Sharpless; W. D. Sloane, Elm Court Farm, second.

Other winners of important prizes were A. H. Wingate, gardener to Chas. Lanier; R. A. Schmidt, gardener to G. G. Haven; A. J. Loveless, gardener to John Sloane, and John Dallas, gardener to G. H. Morgan.

The F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., exhibited two plants of Nephrolepis Piersoni compacta, for which a certificate of merit was awarded.

Establishment of Albert Fuchs. To the Trade:

Some weeks ago I announced in the various trade papers that my establishment and contents would be sold at auction on June 15th and 16th to the highest bidder. Within a few minutes after the time the auction was to be held two prominent gentlemen in the trade bought the houses and stock on an option of 30 days (see Chicago notes, American Florist, June 18th). This option has not been taken advantage of and as my doctors insist on my leaving the country at the earliest possible time the entire plant is again offered at a fixed price, and if not disposed of previous to July 7th, all except my retail store, two houses and their contents will positively be sold at auction and to the highest bidder on Thursday, July 14th, 10 A. M. sharp. I take this opportunity to thank my many friends and members of the trade who were disappointed at not being able to buy at the previous sale, and assure them that unless the entire plant is sold at a private sale previous to July 7th, (in such event this will be announced in the American Florist, issue July 9th), the auction will be held at time stated hereintofore and without reservation.

Very truly yours,

Vaughan's Seed Store,

CHICAGO: 84-86 Randolph St. NEW YORK: 14 Barclay St.

Louisville, Ky.

The last week found a considerable change in the condition of the market here, business having fallen quite an extent, yet it compared favorably with other years for this weather. The weather has been intensely warm, the mercury passing the ninety mark. We haven't had any rain here for a very long time, this affecting stock to such an extent that carnations, sweet peas and other stock looks very discouraging, the carnations having a poor color and the sweet peas almost burned to the top in some sections. Roses of any quality are very scarce here, but we have the satisfaction of getting good stock from Chicago. Carnations of extra quality are also scarce, but the cheaper grades can be secured in quantity. Sweet peas have been plentiful, but sell rapidly, not many going to waste. Lilies can now be had in quantity, and the quality is exceptional. Outdoor stock is plentiful and is very satisfactory for window decorating.

The regular monthly meeting of the Kentucky Society of Florists will be held Tuesday, July 5, at the beautiful River-view park. The meeting will be called in the afternoon and a supper will be given after it is over. It is hoped that those having failed to attend the last few meetings will come in and be "with the crowd." The main object of the meeting will be to come to some conclusion as to the prices on bedding plants, which has been up for quite a while.

Charles W. Reimers, whose Beauty roses are about as good as any in Louisville, has had a lot of stock benched for quite a while, some of them showing about six or eight bottom shoots, and all in a healthy condition.

Leo Zoeller, who for about ten years was employed at Schulz's, has left his position and is now on his own account. His carnations seem to be suffering a great deal from the dry spell.

Mrs. C. B. Thompson has been improving right along, but will not be able to be around for some time.

Schulz's lilies are of excellent quality. Rose benching is in order.

F. L. S.

Milwaukee.

Business is now down to summer dullness, but the amount of stock still coming into the market is fully equal in quantity, not quality, to the heaviest spring receipts. Roses have shortened up considerably, the only really good stock being Liberty. Carnations are to be had in immense quantities at prices to suit the buyers. On account of the cool weather carnations are holding on well, in fact the quality this year is far ahead of previous years. Peonies are about played out; a few of the local growers still have some on hand, but by the end of this week all will be past. Sweet peas are now in fine shape, with sufficient for all demands.

Heitman & Baerman's carnations are still in very fine condition, and they promise to hold out for some time to come.

Arrangements for the florists' picnic are progressing and the committee promises a good time to all.

J. D. Thompson was here a few days hunting up orders for his new introductions.

Visitors were John Benstead, Racine, Wis.; H. Chessman, Chicago, Ill.

New Bedford, Mass.

The bedding plant trade has been good. Geraniums have sold for $1 to $1.50 per dozen. About the only kinds that seem to be wanted are S. A. Nutt, A. Ricard and Beaute Poitevine. Pansies have sold better than usual. The first half of June has been cold with several frosty nights, and some tender things have been injured. The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be held somewhere in the wild woods or on the seashore.

CROP INSURANCE.

Life insurance is valuable because it guarantees the outcome.

"Gurney" Heaters

"DORIC" HEATER.

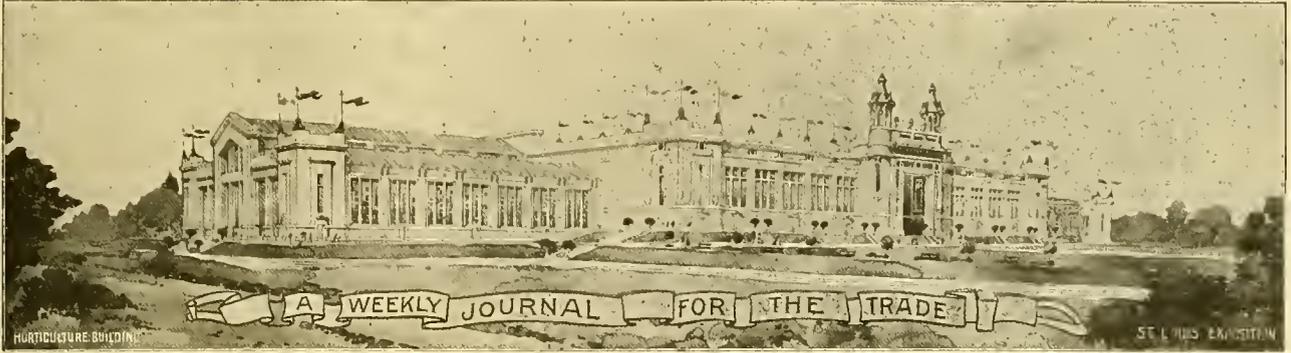

"BRIGHT IDEA," "DORIC" and "400 SERIES" do the same thing for your hothouse: THEY GUARANTEE THE CROP. First of all they save 20 per cent on the coal bill and so keep expense at a minimum. Next, they produce an even heat and so do not imperil the life of the plant. Next, they are simple to operate and so require least attention. Lastly, they wear longer than others and thus perceptibly reduce the capital invested. Don't buy or exchange until you've investigated them.

PALMS AND FERNS.

Rejuvenating Decorators' Stock.

By July 1 the work in the palm houses becomes largely of a routine character, or should be so at least, for even in those establishments in which the school commencements and June weddings form an important portion of the business done the season is practically over, and the overworked decorative stock may now be given a much needed rest. The writer is not an ardent exponent of the art of nursing palms that have lost most of their leaves by much handling and exposure back into health and vigor from the fact that much of the labor expended in this way is rather a waste of energy. But there are always some such plants to be found among the stock of those who do much decorating, and it does not always pay to throw them away if they can be attended to early enough to get a profitable growth on them.

If the plants in question are kentias, and in most cases they are, as these palms are more in demand than any others just now, there is a possibility of bunching them together and thus forming a new plant from the wreck of three or four, or else one large plant may have three or four smaller plants that are in good condition placed around it, the combination often resulting in quite a presentable plant by the following winter. If the old plant has been very much rootbound it may be necessary to wash the old soil out from among the roots, and while doing this there may be found some dead roots that should be cut away with a sharp knife before repotting, for economy of pot-room is a prime requisite with most decorators, and with this in view we do not want to occupy the pot with roots that will not work. The old drainage material should also be removed from the bottom of the ball before repotting, this rule holding good at all times when repotting palms.

The reason for the removal of the crocks from the ball of a plant at the time it is shifted into a larger pot is that they not only occupy space and prevent the plant from being potted as low as it should be in the pot, but also that these old crocks will sometimes deflect the water to such a degree that the ball of earth does not become evenly moist all through. Having thoroughly prepared the roots of the plant, and also those of the others that it is proposed to plant around the center, the plants are arranged in such a way as to fill up the bare spaces and to add to the symmetry of the whole. The soil is worked in well among the roots of the plants, for when the roots of a plant are suspended the plant itself usually suspends growth for a greater or less time, and then the whole are potted firmly, using a rammer or potting stick that will readily pass down the side of the pot without mashing the roots. The plants should then be thoroughly watered and placed in a well-shaded house, where they may be kept rather close until the root action is again brisk.

Such plants should never be permitted to get very dry or they will be seriously checked in growth, and may also lose some foliage, but when protected from the sun and given a proper growing condition of moisture, both at the root and overhead, these patched up plants will soon take hold, the warm nights of mid-summer helping them along wonderfully.

Up to July 1 we seldom find it needful to keep the ventilators open at night on the palm houses, but owing to the great variations of temperature one can not lay down a positive rule for this practice, and in the case of some lately potted stock we may keep the house closed up at night until July 15, but from that date up to September 15 the houses are seldom closed at night. This practice is radically different from the hurry-up methods that are sometimes adopted, in which the plunging of the pots in some heating material and the keeping of the foliage in a sort of steam bath promotes a very rapid growth of thin and soft foliage. After such a course of treatment it is impossible to harden off these plants in a week or two, nor can this thin and weak though often finely colored foliage be given sufficient substance to bear the exposure of decorating.

Some much starved palms that are in pots large enough for convenience in decorating may be braced up during the summer with a top dressing of manure, accompanied with a watering of moderately strong liquid manure twice a week, some two or three months of such treatment often sufficing to rejuvenate them for the season. Latanias and arecas seem to respond more quickly to such treatment than the kentias, possibly owing to the latter being slower in rooting. It is quite interesting to note the dark green coloring matter gradually spreading over a latania leaf as the fertilizers are taken up, the color spreading more rapidly through the younger leaves near the center of the plant until it finally improves the entire plant.

The tropical members of the livistona group, of which L. rotundifolia is the most widely known, are very stubborn about taking their winter rest, and seldom start away well if their roots have been disturbed during the winter. This palm requires heat, moisture and a fair degree of shade, and consequently makes the most of its growth during August and September, there usually being but little gained by repotting this livistona before the last of April or early part of May.

W. H. TAPLIN.

Nephrolepis Piersoni Improved.

The principal feature of the combined meeting of the Horticultural Society of New York and the horticultural section of the American Institute at the Botanical Garden May 11, to which some reference has already been made in our issue of May 14, centered in the horticultural novelties. The prize of $50 for the best horticultural novelty in plant, fruit, flower or vegetable, that is anything distinct and not previously in general cultivation in America, brought out a number of contestants. The following were noted: An improved form of Nephrolepis Piersoni, from the F. R. Pierson Company, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Nephrolepis Scottii, from John Scott, Keap street, Brooklyn, N. Y.; the yellow calla, Richardia Elliottiana, from H. T. Clinkaberry, Trenton, N. J.; the rose, Killarney, from Siebrecht & Son, New Rochelle, N. Y.; the rose, Dorothy Perkins, the new pink rambler, from J. H. Troy, New Rochelle, N. Y., and Phyllocactus Jules Schlumbergii, from F. Wienberg, Woodside, L. I., N. Y.

On close examination the list does not contain many really new things that could be classed as distinct novelties; for example, Richardia Elliottiana and the roses, Killarney and Dorothy Perkins, but a good deal of stress seems to be put on the words, "not in general cultivation in America," and many found here the loophole which brought forth the large display. In the final judgment the contest really lay between the two ferns, and, although Nephrolepis Piersoni Improved won, it was no disparagement to the other aspirant. The two are entirely distinct, and each will find its own place for future usefulness. Nephrolepis Scottii is a dwarf, compact form of the old Boston, with rather narrower fronds. It is an ideal fern for the commercial grower. It will stand all the rough usage of the older type, will make a perfect table fern and shows none of the legginess in a small pot that the old favorite does.

The improved Piersoni, on the other hand, is a much improved form of Piersoni. The first Piersoni, as everyone knows, is once more pinnate than the Boston, or, strictly speaking, bipinnate. In other words, the frond is once more cut. The improved variety is a pinnate form of Piersoni, the pinnae being again cut and pinnatifid, and is as distinct from the original Piersoni as Piersoni is from the Boston. The fully matured frond is twice as broad as the parent, is not quite as long and makes a very compact growth. The pinnules are as thickly set upon the rachis or midrib as they are upon the original Boston, but being so much longer and subdivided they are imbricated or overlap one another so much so that the back of the frond presents the same appearance as the front, and, taking, as it were, a profile view, the frond is from one to two inches thick.

Nephrolepis Piersoni Improved is the Farleyense of the nephrolepis family, an aristocrat amongst ferns, and destined to become one of the most popular. We understand that it possesses all the freedom of growth and hardiness of the former parents. The plant, exhibited in a ten-inch pan, was certainly the finest thing that we have yet seen in the fern line.

TRAVELER.

World's Fair Notes.

Murat Bony & Company, of Paris, have placed on exhibition in the Palace of Horticulture a section of greenhouse roof showing their patent system of puttyless glazing, of which they claim to have erected more than five million square feet in all parts of the world. The sashbars are of inverted T-shaped iron. The glass measures about six by one and one-half feet and contains a screen of brass wire with a half-inch mesh. The glass is held in place by means of a cap of thin sheet lead, which is fastened to the sashbars by means of copper clips. While it would undoubtedly prove very durable and might answer well as a covering for palm houses and large conservatories in countries with a mild climate, it hardly seems likely to be of value in sections where the mercury drops below zero.

The nurserymen and florists of California have made a very large and very interesting exhibit of tropical and subtropical plants. Most of them are in the conservatory, but a large number have been used for the decoration of the California section in the various exhibit buildings and the grounds about the California state building. Owing to delays in transit many of them arrived in bad shape and dropped most of their leaves, but they have now practically recovered from the check. The exhibit contains a great variety of palms and citrus fruits, such as oranges, lemons, limes and pomelos.

The floral clock has been in operation for a number of days and has attracted its full share of attention. As the dial is 112 feet in diameter, the point of the minute hand has to move something more than five feet each minute. The mechanism of the clock and hour-dial seems to be working perfectly and the floral dial is even more of a success than was anticipated, as the figures of dark-colored coleus can readily be made out a long distance off against the background of centaureas and cinerarias. The plants for the dial form a part of the exhibit of the St. Louis Seed Company.

D. Moriarty, of New Orleans, has placed eight vases of carved and polished granite on either side of the walk connecting the palaces of Agriculture and Horticulture. They are nearly five feet in height, with basins two feet in diameter. As they are valued at $1,200 a pair the number of orders that will be taken is not likely to be large, although as specimens of the stonemason's art they are certainly worthy of careful inspection and admiration.

Denaiffe, of Carignan, Ardennes, France, is making an interesting and extensive exhibit of vegetable seeds, especially of beans and peas. The exhibit also contains a number of catalogues and pamphlets relating to the culture of vegetables.

The steep banks south of the palace of horticulture will soon be a mass of color as they have been planted with several thousand gladiolus bulbs and a variety of showy annuals.

EXHIBITION SCHEDULE.

Special exhibition of cut flowers by amateurs July 18 to 23 inclusive. Entries close July 15, or Friday previous to the week of exhibition, and should be made to the Chief, Department of Horticulture, World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo. The different sections of the country being so varied as to time of blooming, any variety will be eligible for general display in any quantity. The general display can be made up of any variety and any number of varieties. The quality and quantity will be taken as the first consideration. Suitable awards, medals and diplomas will be given for meritorious exhibits. See rules and regulations governing these exhibits.

Any person who wishes to make a special display of any kind of cut flowers at any time may do so, rules and regulations being adhered to. Full schedule of flower shows will be furnished prospective exhibitors on requisition to Chief, Department of Horticulture.

The week July 25 to 30 inclusive will be given over to a special display of peaches.

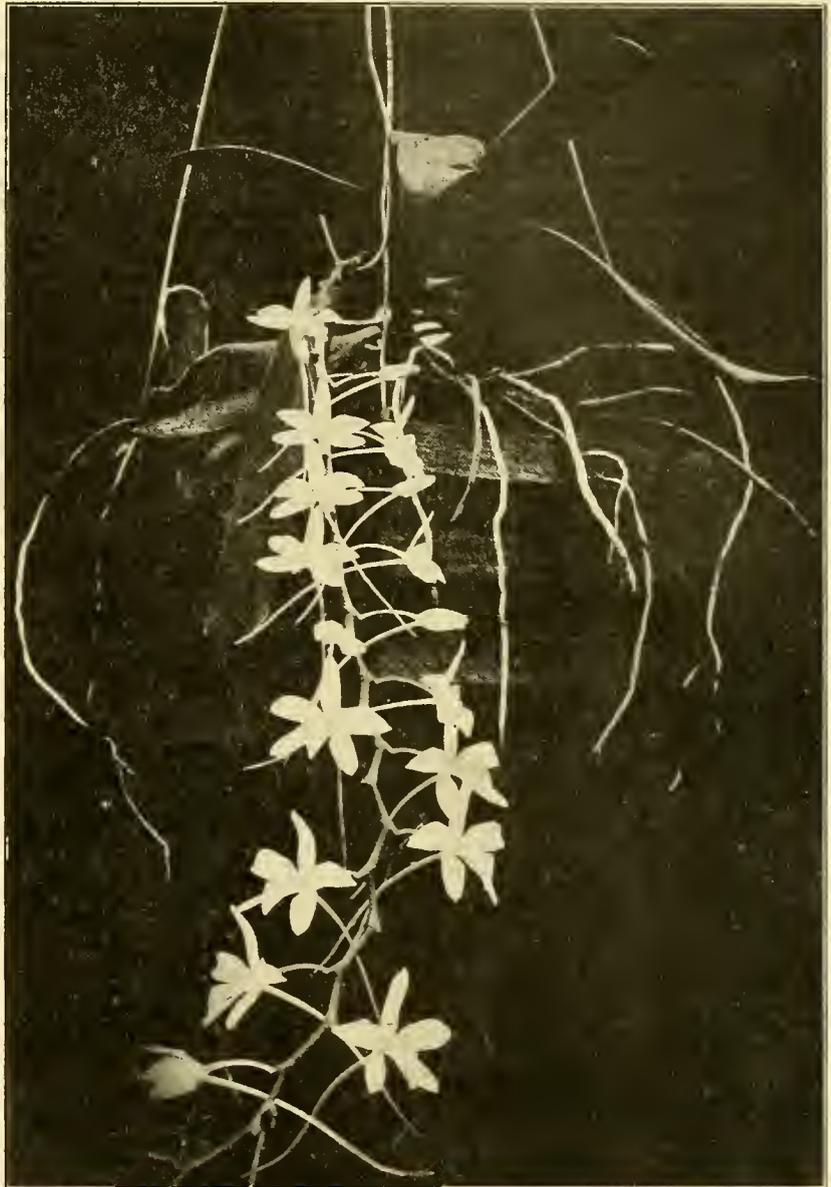

F. W. TAYLOR,
Chief, Department of Horticulture.

FLOWER SHOW RULES AND REGULATIONS.

All sufficiently meritorious displays will receive a reward. The first will be a diploma, the next a bronze medal, the next a silver medal, and the highest a gold medal.

Suitable vases will be furnished by the Exposition management and exhibits will be properly staged where exhibitors do not personally attend.

Judges will be chosen from the most eminent specialists for the respective displays.

ANGRÆCUM SANDERIANUM IN FLOWER, JUNE, 1904.

All exhibits must be correctly and legibly labeled.

Exhibits must be prepaid to the Exposition grounds.

The superintendent will be empowered to remove any exhibition that is no longer attractive.

A business card not to exceed 6x9 inches may be displayed with each exhibit.

Angraecum Sanderianum.

Angraecum Sanderianum (syn. A. modestum), a charming, graceful and free flowering plant with spikes one foot long, bearing two rows of snow white, fragrant flowers, twelve to twenty or more in number, is now flowering in my collection. It was discovered by Leon Humblot in the Comoro Islands and sent to F. Sander & Company, who flowered it in 1888. It should be grown in a warm house and is of easy culture, improving with age. In 1900 a plant was flowered by G. L. Ball in England which bore three racemes of twenty-six and twenty-eight flowers each.

American Rose Society.

At a meeting of the incoming officers and executive committee of the American Rose Society held July 1 the following special prizes were formally accepted and request is made for publication in the horticultural press so that growers may be informed:

For twenty-five pot roses, not climbers, not less than ten varieties, silver cup, value $50, presented by Col. Chas. Pfaff, Boston, Mass.

For twenty-five blooms of any American seedling rose introduced in or since 1901, President Montgomery's prize, $25.

For fifty blooms Killarney rose, $25 offered by Siebrecht & Son.

For fifty blooms La Detroit, $100 offered by John Breitmeyer's Sons, divided into three prizes—$50, $30, $20.

For specimen Wichuraiana hybrid, any variety, $15, presented by Benjamin Hammond, Fishkill-on-Hudson, N. Y.

For fifty blooms Liberty, two prizes, presented by J. B. Nugent, New York, $35 and $15.

For twenty-five blooms of any new rose not yet disseminated, the flowers to be of adequate value, two prizes, presented by J. B. Nugent, $15 and $10.

For display of cut blooms of roses, not less than five varieties and not less than twenty-five blooms of any one variety, to be competed for by growers outside of a radius of 150 miles of Boston, as measured by railroad time tables, prize presented by Benjamin Dorrance, silver cup, value $100.

The regular prizes of the society will consist substantially of divisions A. and D. of last year for named varieties of Teas, hybrid Teas and H. P.'s, twenty-five blooms of the first two classes and twelve in the last. Prizes $10 and $5.

For American Beauty, twenty-five blooms, $10 and $7.

Special prizes are offered by the Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club, and also by the famous "old guard," particulars of which will be given out later. It is further hoped to add many special prizes to the list as now announced. President Montgomery reports a feeling of much enthusiasm in Boston over the coming meeting, and he is hard at work gathering in members. He reported five life members besides annuals.

MARKET GARDENS.

THE Coachelli Producers' Association of the Coachelli district, California, is shipping the finest Netted Gem muskmelons by express to all parts of the eastern states.

VIRDEN, ILL.—D. H. Maines, of Norwich, Conn., has leased fifteen acres north of this place and will go into growing garden produce for market and small fruits. A greenhouse will be run in connection.

WEST SUPERIOR, WIS.—F. H. Rockwood has built a new house, 20x100 and plans to build two more, principally for raising lettuce and cucumbers. He raised a fine lot of pansies this spring, selling over 30,000 plants.

DEADWOOD, S. D.—A greenhouse will be erected by a company of Deadwood men who have purchased Olympic park. The company intends to run the business on extensive lines, and will carry at all times a fresh line of vegetables and a choice line of plants.

NEWPORT, R. I.—Stewart Ritchie has a house of tomatoes that is well worth seeing; the clusters of fruit are thick, and the individual tomatoes will be of good size. There is a large and continuous demand here for hot-house tomatoes all through the season, and good prices are obtainable, making them a paying crop. Tomatoes now wholesale for 20 cents per pound; last season the lowest they went here was 12 cents per pound.

Puff Ball Culture.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Can you tell me where I can find how to grow the puff ball that some people eat and where to get the material to start such a bed?

C. N. S.

There is no spawn of the common edible puff balls on the market and I believe there is no one who could supply such material at present. In our general studies of mushroom culture we have obtained pure cultures of the spawn of several puff balls, notably the purple-spored species, Calvatia cyathiforme, and the brain-shaped form, C. craniiformis. We have not as yet, however, prepared any spawn of either of these species in quantities for distribution. Experiments have been begun with a view of ascertaining if such species may be grown to advantage in beds or in other situations, under control. It will not be possible for us to report definitely upon such work for another year, our time having been thus far well consumed by a study of the conditions of growth, methods of spawn production, etc., of the common edible species Agaricus campestris, and of one or two related species. It is to be hoped that some method will be developed whereby the puff balls may be grown for home use and for market.

New York Florists' Club Outing.

When the New York Florists' Club arranges an outing—whereat, in theory, at least, opportunity will be afforded for all the members and their families to get acquainted all round—it is observed that straightway many, aye the majority, of the members hie themselves off to other fields and waters. Even as did the "bidden guests" of the old parable, they straightway began to make excuse for one had taken a wife even. Not but that it is perhaps as well to have it so, but is it not strange? Verily the old order passeth and we are looking on at the transition from the dominance of one generation to that of another. The younger bloods are taking the reins, and changes of sundry kinds are felt to be around. Very few of the famous old guard of the Empire City Florists' Club boarded the good ship Isabel as she lay at the dock in the East river on Wednesday, June 29. And those few who did come were accompanied by those growing scions who shall govern floriculture in a few short years.

In two generations and in three generations did they come—one from Flatbush translated thence from Alsace over thirty years ago was a full dozen strong. And those who have not yet rendered their full duties to the land that affords them a living did the next best possible thing and brought their cousins, their nieces—and others—God bless them all, for they were the life of many a lively coterie when happy banter and whole-souled fun helped along the all too short day, and the evening too. The day had opened with most unpromising conditions of weather. Rain fell heavily at 6 o'clock and some who would otherwise have turned up, instead turned over, and forgot the outing. It was their loss. As the time for the start drew near the clouds drew away and the sun shone forth. We were glad we came. The bandmaster did not rise to the occasion and render Bethoven's famous symphony which has been called "From Rain to Sunshine," but he nevertheless struck a note of harmony in the company as we rode up the sound plantation and popular airs of the day captivated the lively spirits and song ruled loud and strong.

The Wizard of Oz has told us that "Many wear a yachting cap that never owned a yacht," and so it was for the yachtless caps to be here. Do these things, like the club, have an annual outing too? For they do look familiar. The bowling cranks earned the thanks of many young and lovely scions by so delaying the start for the return that we came back under cover of night. It was a dark and stilly night, hot enough and close enough on shore—judging from the sights which loomed big before us as the powerful searchlight uncovered the fact of uncovered humanity by the score along the water edge. "They were naked and were not ashamed," for they danced with glee as the Isabel's eye rested upon them. On board the breeze was fresh, to suit our spirits, and when the band struck up a gliding waltz or lively two-step there was a spontaneous breaking into dancing. Then were the stay-at-homes blessed too for our two hundred on board had ample space to indulge. Not that all danced; some sought shelter and quiet in sweet communion of souls under umbrella shade although it rained not and once in a while the ship's eye dug out a pretty picture. There was a good excuse for carrying umbrellas in the early morning, but none at night.

There was no lack of good comfort nor of good cheer of the old-fashioned sort. Traendly, Nugent, Sheridan and Bunyard made up the big four who "did things," and they brought along the skillful John from the Rialto, who drew the cork and set up the ice and seltzer as though the main deck of the Isabel was the famous Twenty-eighth street resort. But that was the only touch of "the street" that came along. The grades of roses, the ruling prices and all the other things that so bother both the grower and the commission man were left far, far away. For the ladies—again God bless them—were here, and ladies are notoriously impossible in business. Never for a moment, when the boat was away from a dock, did the New York Florists' Club fail to demonstrate its traditional liberal hospitality. If you came hungry it might not have been your fault, but if you returned hungry it was no one's blame but your own.

At last the grove! Grillingly hot, someone thought that certain "contrapshuns" should have been brought along to cool us off the while our records were being "taken." You can't excursionize as a club anywhere nowadays but the black artist turns up. Here a regular photographing stand has been erected. Willy-nilly the counterleit presentment is made, and, of course, some trade paper has to lay it before a suffering world. Why can't we enjoy a little holiday on the side without someone trying to drag the fact into the glare of publicity—not that it matters much at times, the presentments often being terrible forgeries. And besides, you can always find some lady's hat consistently placed as a screen.

We dined. The band essayed Scottish airs. We like Scottish airs better than anything that comes from a band—as a rule—but that band's strong point was everything else. Still we dined. And then the sports.

"Place aux dames." Ladies first in the bowling alleys. O'Mara and Shaw in charge worked hard and fast. L. Schmutz, Jr., kept the tally and the novices won hands down. Why?

Quickly as possible event succeeded event on the track. Fat men running as veritable "puffing billies," the thinnest man of all stalking along "like a pair of scissors." We ran, we jumped, we did wonders in unwonted athletic stunts, and through it all, coldly marking the results, stood Official Scorer Sheridan. Others did the shouting and got tired, but not he.

All the afternoon men, women and children raced and cheered. At last the strains of music called some to terpsichorean revels—alas! all too brief. Sun and tide wait for neither man nor woman. The dance had to quit when that band started for the boat. Bowling was still in full swing, and many were the urgent calls. Three last whistles from the steamer before the dark and hot alleys were vacated for the breezes of the sound.

Sad is the record! "Bowling events unfinished." For what scores would have been made by those who did not get in! The untold and the unacted in history has ever held great probabilities. "Saddest words of tongue or pen are these, 'It might have been.'"

ARGUS.

Saffron Flowers.

Prices of American saffron flowers have been advanced daily for the past week, and the bullish faction in the market expects a continuance of the upward movement until values are about three times as high as at present. The advance is caused by the fact that the new crop in Mexico is reported a failure, the predicted yield being about 2,000 to 3,000 pounds, against 20,000 to 25,000 pounds last season. Thus far only six bales of the new crop have been received in this market, and they were quickly sold.

LYNN, MASS.—J. F. Dolansky has removed from Warren street to Euclid avenue, where he has a range of new green-houses.

ST. CLAIR, PA.—William Tait, a landscape gardener of Lower St. Clair township, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District court. He gives his debts as $2,572.03 and his assets as $160.49.

THE RETAIL TRADE

A Handsome Wreath.

The engraving herewith shows a handsome wreath which has been prepared for the unknown dead of the General Slocum disaster and presented by A. Herrmann, of New York. The photograph from which the engraving was prepared did not do justice to the wreath, which was sixteen feet in circumference and stood on an easel nine feet high. It must be seen to be appreciated. The inscription on the wreath is "In Memoriam den unbekanntten Todten." The design will be placed on the grave of the unknown dead at the Lutheran cemetery, L. I., July 10. Everyone that has seen the wreath says it is very handsome.

New York.

The dullness of trade typical of July is very pronounced this year. Product is coming in in great quantity, but the market is not taking it all and much waste results. The vacation season has commenced and dealer and grower alike are preparing to take things easy. There was a little scramble on Saturday for red, white and blue stock for Fourth of July decorations, crimson gladioli, white carnations and blue cornflower going off easily. Blue cornflower brought from 12 cents to 20 cents per 100, and crimson gladioli $1 per dozen. Roses, while plentiful, show no improvement in quality. Prime stock is scarce and is freely taken at top prices. Buyers seeking white roses for decorative purposes not infrequently turn to white carnations as a substitute. American Beauty roses are in rather poor demand, excepting choice stock, which soon goes at the highest figures. Lily of the valley has been a poor seller for many days, and even holiday requirements did not affect it. Good stock was sold as low as $1 per 100 to clean it out. Lilies are also hard to move. Some growers are only starting to bring them in and are throwing them into the market in lots of a thousand at a time, with a large percentage of wilted blooms among them, prices as a result running from 1½ to 2 cents. Sweet peas are in heavy supply, but the stock is short of stem on account of the prevalent hot weather. With extra long stems 2 cents better than quoted prices is obtained. The supply of asters is increasing and the quality improving. Stock with long stems is bringing $1 per 100. Iris is very plentiful, and is taken mostly by florists who find it economical to use for window display. It brings 50 cents to $1 per 100.

What a change has "come o'er the vision of my dream" of Coney Island. The old time shows and booths are replaced largely by modern combination enterprises. Dreamland is modeled after the plaza of the Pan-American exhibition; it is a veritable white city. Across Surf avenue at Luna park the florist has been called upon to do his share in making things look beautiful. The houses have their roofs completely planted over with all sorts of window-box plants. Even the tall standards carrying the electric lights are crowned with a circular box in which are flowering plants—no shams; all genuine. The mural decorations of the buildings are in a key plainly taken from the growing plants. The place is a kaleidoscope, and it is the florist who has struck the chord to which all is attuned. There is good carpet bedding in odd corners. Wherever a place could be utilized for a flower bed or a plant box there is one or the other, on roofs, on balustrades, stairways and poles. The effect is good.

At Bloomingdale's department store Walter W. Burnham has a new roof greenhouse, 42x98, and a new store, 40x40, with marble counters, mirrors and other fixtures strictly up to date. The department runs four big double wagons in season. The rear parts of the wagons are dropped to admit large palms and plants. These are special plant wagons, and are independent of the other delivery wagons of the concern. Mr. Burnham is entitled to great credit in building up the business of the department. One feature of it is the filling of fern dishes for customers, calling for and delivering them. The west wall of the new building is being painted in colors to imitate an Italian villa, and the roof greenhouse completes the picture in a realistic way, making the whole a very showy and effective advertisement.

The outing of the Florists' Club is still a strong topic of conversation. The "pot race" for the Cleary prize, a $35 suit of clothes, awarded to Chas. Lenker, was decidedly novel. A row of pots each containing a sealed number covered the course, and the numbers in the pots brought in by the runners were labeled for scores. Some of those getting the larger number of pots were woefully short on score, as the pots were well shuffled before disposition. Mr. Cleary is to be congratulated on his conception of a game which is likely to figure annually in the club's sports.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society met on July 1 and considered the schedule of prizes and other matters connected with the meeting and exhibition to be held at Boston next spring. It was decided that the perpetual challenge cups be so offered that they may become the property of the winner and also that the general classes be so divided as to give a fair proportion to commercial and private growers alike.

"Flower Market," at 3 West Forty-fourth street, to be opened about September 15, evidently a retail establishment, is being advertised in June periodicals. The card contains considerable information. One sentence reads: "When you enter our place you will find that there are no beautiful marble counters or gorgeous effects to add to the expense—you can buy flowers for one-half the prices charged elsewhere."

Miss Margaret Hallinan, daughter of Mrs. F. G. Hallinan, florist at 407 Third avenue, was valedictorian in the graduation exercises at St. Stephen's school and the winner of a gold watch for the highest percentage of marks. Ford Brothers, Charles Millang and James Hammond sent the young lady immense baskets of flowers for the occasion.

The plans for the new bridge to extend from Bowery and Canal street, New York, to Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, just made public, provide for hanging gardens to top the four anchorages. These gardens will be 120 feet above the water, and each will be as large as a theater orchestra floor. The bridge is to be completed about 1909.

The ficus beds at Fritz Dressel's in Weehawken, N. J., are looking red. His stock of Dracæna Lindenii is doing well. Though successful in a large way with Boston ferns he is always inventing a new wrinkle or two in their cultivation.

John N. May was in town on Friday of last week attending a meeting of the American Rose Society. It is his second visit to the city since he was taken sick several months ago. He is well and vigorous, but has difficulty in walking.

Charles Millang is turning his old plant room into a show room for cut flowers, and building therein a 12-foot ice-box. Mr. Millang is preparing to handle some very large shipments of asters this season.

James Hart has sold his greenhouses at Madison to Robert Schultz and will reenter the ring actively as a wholesale commission florist at the old stand on West Thirtieth street.

P. Ouwerkerk has moved from Jersey City to 216 Jane street, Weehawken Heights, N. J. On July 11 he will sail on the Statendam for Holland, with Mrs. Ouwerkerk.

Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks, Hartford, Conn., has been spending a few days on Long Island with relatives. His family is still in Europe.

Many of the wholesale florists this week are closing their establishments at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and will continue to do so during the heated term.

Benjamin Dorrance is away on his annual fishing excursion. This year it is Belle Isle, Me., where he will camp, free from the cares of any sort of business.

Mrs. E. C. Matthes, of Woodside, L. I., sailed June 30 on S. S. Bremen for Bremen to visit her parents. She will return early in October.

Mrs. Josephine Joslin will close her retail florist's store at Ninety-eighth street and Broadway on Saturday, 9th inst., for two months.

Victor Dorval, of Woodside, L. I., has been busy painting and renovating the house on the property recently purchased by him at Manhasset.

Mrs. E. P. Miller, mother of Louis Miller, assistant to Mr. Noe, of the New York Cut Flower Company, died on the 2nd inst.

The directors of the Cut Flower Exchange have decided to discontinue their meetings until after October 1.

Herman Branch, 681 First avenue, is taking a two weeks' vacation in the Catskill mountains.

Wm. C. Duncan, of Astoria, L. I., went to Buffalo and Niagara Falls over the Fourth.

The auction business still hangs on at Cleary's Hall, but the supply of stock is small.

Hy. Lustgarten, of Manhasset, L. I., was married on June 28 to a New York lady.

The New York Cut Flower Exchange has declared a dividend of ten per cent.

J. H. Troy and family sailed for Europe on S. S. Lucania on Saturday July 2.

Visitors: A. Montgomery, Natick, Mass.; J. N. May, Summit, N. J.

Chicago.

There is little or no improvement in the market over the conditions of last week. Quiet is the watch word all along the line, and the duller period of the year is upon us. There is not much of the better grades of any line in the market. White roses are unusually scarce and are not to be seen in many places. The demand for carnations has been remarkably slim during the last week or two, this condition being induced in a measure, no doubt, by the general poor quality of the stock. Peonies are yet to be had of the cold storage variety, and they are holding their own in the public favor. Candidum lilies were an important factor in the market this week. Valley is not too plentiful and the price has been boosted up a notch.

There probably will be no change in the Lincoln park board situation for the present. Commissioners Francis T. Simmons and Burr A. Kennedy, whose resignations were requested by Governor Yates recently, may be permitted to hold on, and there will be no necessity for President W. W. Tracy and Commissioner Bryan Lathrop to resign. Mr. Lathrop took luncheon June 30 with the governor in the latter's rooms at the Auditorium Annex. The commissioner had with him plans of the park improvements that are being made and are to be made, and these were explained to the executive in detail. The governor became interested at once, and Mr. Lathrop then suggested the wisdom of retaining men on the board who are familiar with the plans and the desires of the public in regard to them.

E. Peiser, of Kennicott's is a close observer of cause and effect and he ascribes the general poor business during the month of June to a number of conspiring forces. First, the weather kept practically all crops back regularly from fifteen to eighteen days. The Early Rose peony last year was cut in time for Decoration day, and by that time Kennicott's had already sold 1,000 dozen. The earliest of the same variety cut this year was June 15. Outdoor stock was fully ten days late and prices were not nearly as high as last year. A five per cent falling off in values was the result.

The street vendors and sidewalk stand men to the number of twenty appeared before the compensation committee of the city council last Thursday, seeking the privilege to use sidewalk space. The aldermen decided that a fair rate of rental would be $1 to $2 a day for each square foot of public space used or an annual compensation of $360 to $720. The figures have not yet been definitely fixed.

E. Peiser, of Kennicott Brothers Company, will leave the latter part of the month for Winnipeg, Canada, where he will spend the summer, far from the haunts of man and the din of business. Mr. Peiser's health makes several months' recuperation imperative, and he certainly deserves a rest.

William S. Scott, managing editor of the Pittsburg Gazette, called upon some of his old friends in this city last week. Mr. Scott was formerly connected with William Edelfsen, of Milwaukee, under the firm name of Edelfsen & Scott.

A. Dietsch has returned from a sojourn of several months in the south. Most of this time he spent in the state of Florida. The trip proved very beneficial to him and he returns to work with renewed energy.

The early closing movement among the wholesalers has borne fruit, and now practically every house is closed at 5 p. m. during the months of July and August.

C. De Wever, formerly with Vaughan's Seed Store, has taken a position at Camp Lewis, St. Louis, Mo., where he will develop the landscape features.

Bassett & Washburn are commencing to cut their new stock of American Beauty roses. They have many qualities of excellence and are good value.

Lilium candidum is in the market in excellent form, the E. F. Winterson Company handling large quantities. They are proving good sellers.

E. C. Amling and family are sojourning at Antioch, Ill., on the romantic banks of Lake Marie. They left Wednesday and will remain over a week.

board have submitted a demand for an increase in wages from $60 to $68 a month.

A. L. Randall is spending some time at his delightful country place at Benton Harbor, Mich.

J. Aldous, recently with Thomas Young, Jr., of New York, is now with John Mangel.

Weiland & Risch have commenced their eighth year in the wholesale business.

Outdoor stock about this city is suffering from drought.

Jos. Bock, of Burlington, Ia., was a visitor this week.

Philadelphia.

This is holiday week and there is very little doing. There is the usual stock of midsummer flowers, which are about as good as one can expect for the season. Beauties are now very poor and except for a few from out of town are not worth keeping in stock. Prices range from $1.50 to $3 per dozen. Teas are also only fair. Where is the man to bring out the pink Kaiserin? He would surely be well rewarded. Sweet peas are still plentiful at 20 to 50 cents per 100.

The July meeting of the Florists' Club was held last Tuesday evening. Convention matters was the chief topic, and although nothing definitely was decided all the committees reported progress. The route is the most important thing, and there has been no decision; $24.75 is the price for the round trip, parlor and sleeping car extra. There is no great enthusiasm as yet, but this may develop later. The next meeting is to be devoted to up-to-date cannas, also asters, with an exhibition of each and a discussion on their various qualities and best methods of culture.

David Bearn and brother, of this city, sailed on the steamer Ethiopia from New York Saturday, July 9. They are to visit and live for a while at their old home in Scotland in the hope that "Davy" may regain his health. His many friends hope to see him soon again, fully restored and able to be among them as of yore.

Robert Craig & Son have just planted their large carnation range with stock for the winter. Prosperity, Vesper and Enchantress are the three leading varieties. A house of Pierson ferns looks very fine; it is growing under the full sunlight, which Mr. Craig says makes the plants stocky.

Wm. J. Moore has closed his place on Sixteenth street and is temporarily located at 13 South Seventeenth street. He says he will open September 1, after his summer vacation, better prepared than ever to supply his patrons.

Bernheimer is still receiving some good Queen of Edgely and is strong on double white petunias. These latter are fine large flowers and cover up the ground much better than carnations in set pieces.

Leo Niessen is handling some fine Beauty and Kaiserin from a distance. As many as a 1,000 Kaiserin roses come in a shipment, and they are very high.

Ed Reid is getting some fine Crocker carnations for the season, being almost up to the winter standard. He says they come from the mountains.

S. S. Pennock is getting some out-of-town roses and carnations that are considerably better than home grown stock.

K.

NOTES.

F. T. Way & Brother, Kennett square, are shipping their first lot of purple asters to C. F. Edgar & Company. Rakeshaw & Pyle, of Kennett square, are shipping to the same concern some choice Flora Hill carnations.

Godfrey Aschmann, 1012 Ontario street, has purchased a lot adjoining his property and will build a 70-foot house. He will also rebuild two old houses.

There has been a good demand all season for English ivy, principally for cemetery work, and the supply is short. Last winter was very severe on ivies.

Berger & Brother, 1220 Filbert street, are outgrowing the premises they occupy and are looking for larger quarters.

Boston.

Dr. C. L. Marlatt, of the Agricultural Department at Washington, is in Boston to take up the work of investigation of the gypsy and brown-tail moth pests. He has the assistance of A. H. Kirkland, who has given much time and study to this subject. The alarming increase of these insects this year compels attention and emphasizes the gross stupidity of those responsible for the cessation of the work of extermination by the state when it was well in hand. The legislature has made a mistake in the treatment of this problem, which seems incomprehensible and almost idiotic.

The Boston Co-operative Flower Market has been incorporated with a capital of $5,000 and the following officers: President, Charles E. Dickman, Dorchester; treasurer, George W. Ayer, Reading, Mass.; clerk, Winfred Wheeler, Concord, Mass.; directors as above named and Edward Wood, Lexington, Mass.; Elijah Cartwright, Wellesley, Mass.; John McFarland, Easton, Mass.; John W. Foote, Malden, Mass.; Norris F. Comley, Lexington, Mass.; and Donald Carmichael, Wellesley, Mass.

Faulkner Farm, Mrs. Chas. F. Sprague's beautiful estate at Brookline, is open to the public every Thursday afternoon this summer from 1 to 5 o'clock. The beauty of this place with its magnificent Italian garden, imposing terraces and superb trees is far-famed, and the opportunity to inspect and admire it is eagerly improved by large throngs of visitors.

At Lexington, Mass., there is a clump of peonies said to be 130 years old, it having been growing in a garden at Charlestown, Mass., since the revolutionary war and recently successfully transplanted to Lexington.

Seceding stall holders from the Columbus avenue flower market have leased Bumstead hall, under Music Hall theater, with entrances in Hamilton place and Winter street for purposes of a market to be opened at an early date.

Mrs. Welch, wife of David Welch, of Welch Brothers, died on Thursday, June 28. The funeral at St. Peter's church, Dorchester, on July 4, was attended by many friends in the trade.

John H. Dee, formerly of the firm of Dee Brothers, died at Mount Auburn, July 2.

Alfred Akerman has been confirmed as state forester for Massachusetts.

Baltimore.

Trade is about down to its normal summer bounds. There is nothing in excess of demands, and calls for first-class flowers finds them lacking. Prices necessarily sag with the declining quality. The plant trade is over and much complaint is made by the market men as to its restricted volume for the season. The weather is fine. For a week we have enjoyed the most delightful summer airs and skies that any climate can offer; the sun is vivifying, its rays warm but not scorching and tempered by the freshest and purest zephyrs, and nights so cool as to demonstrate that they are just made for refreshing sleep. It has been years since there has been so favorable and pleasant a season for filling rose houses and the work has been generally expeditiously done.

Gilbert H. Paterson, whose fatal illness was referred to in these notes, died on July 1 and was buried in the family lot at Govanstown cemetery, July 3, his funeral being largely attended, the Gardeners' Club being well represented, with others of the craft present. William Madsen, Isaac H. Moss, John Dunn, Charles Bucher, Christopher Waldenburg and Fred G. Berger acted as pall bearers, all being florists. Mr. Paterson had a large family connection, all engaged in the trade. He had reached a great age, 85 years, and was known widely throughout the community. For many years he was in business on his own account, and was long gardener, previously, to Johns Hopkins, one of the most prominent and wealthy citizens of Baltimore.

L. A. LaClarme, who came from Rochester, N. Y., to take the position as foreman at Wm. B. Sands' place at Lake Roland, Md., has engaged with Hugh Aumann, at Norfolk, Va., and George E. Jacobi, who has been employed with Samuel Feast & Sons, succeeds him with Mr. Sands.

The large space in the greenhouses of Mrs. Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs, at "Uplands" heretofore devoted to forcing vegetables, which has long been a specialty at this place, has this year all been planted in roses. What disposition will be made of the product is not announced.

W. Murray Stirling, of Mt. Washington, who has been growing roses and carnations for the trade, has concluded to retire from the business and has sold the material in his plant.

Thos. H. Paterson has returned from a month's visit to the north, much improved in health.

The Stevenson Brothers, near Govanstown, are erecting two new rose houses, each 100 feet long.

John Cook has been sick again, this time with a bilious attack, but he is convalescent. S. B.

Washington, D. C.

Fireworks have been better sellers than flowers the last week, though on the morning of July 4 trade was pretty brisk and a considerable quantity of outside stock was handled. There are but few good greenhouse flowers on the market, but as there is not much call for them nobody is at much inconvenience on that account. There have been several weddings that called for good decorations and considerable funeral work; but the people who make the life of the florist worth living are on the ocean or at seaside or mountain resort.

A new Fourth of July diversion hereabouts is a "flower party," and the programme follows: Each couple—they go in couples—is provided with a basket and all are told to assemble at a particular point at 2 o'clock in the afternoon for luncheon. The couples take different routes, and traverse glen and hollow, field and woodland, in search of wild flowers. At the reassembling the flowers are made into bouquets and the couple presenting the prettiest bunch of wild posies is entitled to the prizes, in one instance, a handsome white silk lace-trimmed parasol for the lady and a silk umbrella for her escort. This seems like a pleasing way of spending the Fourth and as it can't hurt the florists at this season and can't be repeated in winter, I cheerfully endorse it.

Nearly all the retailers, since the heated term began, are closing their stores earlier. This is a good move, and I hope Sunday afternoon closing will follow. It is necessary, in order to fill church and cemetery orders, to keep open for a time on Sunday morning, but if any retail florist in this or any other city is at the year's end a gainer from having kept two or three clerks from Sunday rest and recreation I would be pleased to see the figures. If an employer is not influenced by the dictates of religion he should be by the consciousness that he himself needs rest and that his employes are of like flesh and blood.

J. M. Harner & Sons, who have hitherto been growers of bedding plants in the northeast section of the city, have taken a lease on the greenhouses of Mrs. Esch, at the intersection of New York and Florida avenues. It is their purpose to grow roses, carnations and chrysanthemums in the Esch houses, and also to enlarge their plant business, which has been better this year than ever before. They have also taken the stall in Center market for many years occupied by Mrs. Esch.

Col. Joseph H. Brigham, assistant secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture, died suddenly of heart disease on the night of June 29 at his old home, Delta, O. His health had not been good for some time, yet the news of his death came in the nature of a shock to his associates and subordinates in the department. Col. Brigham was very popular with those who served with him in the department, and the news of his sudden death caused profound regret.

Carnations in the field are looking well. I have heard no complaints of stem rot, and so far as my personal observations have extended the crop is in fine condition. J. Louis Loose, C. A. Shaffer & Company and David Grilboetzer have each as fine a lot of growing plants as one could wish to see. Loose, who has for several years grown about 30,000 plants annually, has made changes in his houses whereby he expects this year to bench an additional 10,000 plants.

A number of fine designs were noticed at the funeral of J. N. McDonald, a Grand Army veteran and formerly a Kansas newspaper man, who, at the time of his death, was a member of the U. S. capitol police. The capitol force sent a handsome wreath bearing the initials "U. S. C. P." Other fine pieces were from Lieut. Daley, of the Metropolitan police force, and the Perseverance lodge of Good Templars. Interment was in Arlington.

John C. Allen, who has for several years been general mechanic at the Loose range, has moved his family into the dwelling house on the place, and has established a boarding house that furnishes home comforts to Mr. Loose's employes. Having sampled the fare I know whereof I speak.

Otto Bauer, the novelty florist of Washington, is doing a good business in cut flowers and Japanese novelties. Neutral orders have no terrors for him.

Shaffer & Company are somewhat disturbed over the prospect of the Pennsylvania railroad running five or six tracks through their tract of land.

James Quinn, foreman for A. B. Garden, is now comfortably located in his new house recently erected by Mr. Garden.

David Grilboetzer will at once begin the erection of another carnation house, 30x103 feet.

Pittsburg.

At the coming of July we always expect the departure of almost all business, and the outlook for the month does not yield any reliable evidence that this fact will be reversed. Roses are in a most summer like condition, and the absence of mildew is remarkable. Carnations are good, medium and bad, and a sufficient supply of all kinds are to be had. Sweet peas and candidum lilies are especially fine. Boston ferns and palms continue to move nicely.

The eleventh annual picnic given by the Pittsburg and Allegheny Florists' and Gardeners' Club will be held at Ross's grove at Ross Station, on the West Pennsylvania railroad, Thursday, July 14. There will be music, dancing and refreshments. Trains will leave the Ft. Wayne station in Allegheny for the grove at 8:30 a. m. and 10:25 a. m. and 12:10 p. m. and 2:20 p. m. Wagons have been arranged for to meet those going by trolley at Aspinwall station every hour. E. C. Ludwig, E. C. Reinaman and Wm. Lanck are those of the picnic committee.

Geddes & Blind Brothers are erecting a new two-story building, in which they will open a new, up-to-date retail store. In the rear of the store will be a palm and fern house, 20x60 feet. They will also erect a new stable, 20x25 feet.

E. C. Ludwig has decided to construct a palm house, 18x36 feet, in the rear of his new building, 710 East Diamond street, Allegheny. The interior walls of his storeroom will be of white tile and the floor will be of mosaic.

Further picnic arrangements and also arrangements for attending the convention of the S. A. F. at St. Louis will be discussed at the club meeting on July 5.

Dave Geddes will leave next week to fish on Lake Chautauqua, and Mrs. Geddes and son will visit the World's Fair.

Mr. Fancourt and Mr. Watson, of S. S. Pennock's, Philadelphia, spent two days in Pittsburg last week.

John Baldinger, of Ulam & Company, is on the sick list.

Newport, R. I.

A delegation from the Newport Horticultural Society, consisting of Alexander McLellan, Charles D. Stark, John Finn, James McLeish, Colin Robertson, James Robertson, Andrew Christiansen, John Baumgartner, Alex Fraser, George Taylor, John C. Matley, Hugh Williamson and James Boyd, all well known Newport gardeners, visited the Rhode Island Agricultural College on June 24, and were the guests of President Butterfield and the other officers of the college. The party was shown everything pertaining to the college, and was much impressed with the splendid work the institution is doing. They were most hospitably entertained and enjoyed every moment of their visit. The trip to Kingston, R. I., and return at this season is a most enjoyable one.

A good illustration of the lateness of the season is seen in the blooming of sweet peas. At Stewart Ritchie's sweet peas last year were first gathered outdoors May 30; this season June 20 was the date the first flowers were picked. The growing conditions in both cases were exactly the same, except the weather. This makes the season three weeks late; this is the estimate of the best judges.

F. L. Ziegler furnished the flowers and plants for the Tanner-Fullerton wedding on Thursday. It was a home affair, and the house was most attractively decorated. The bride's bouquet was a shower of Kaiserin roses. Two children carried baskets of flowers, and the bridesmaids' bouquets were of yellow and white.

William Postings, the head gardener for Winthrop Chamber, at Cliff Lawn, has an elegant collection of strawberries. The varieties most grown by him are Marshall, Gandy, and the old favorite Charles Downing; his berries show great care and most careful cultivation, being large, of perfect shape, and fine color.

The hardy hybrid perpetual roses here were killed back so far last winter that they have not made the usual growth, and as a result the roses have very short stems. The cold wet weather early, when the plants needed heat, stunted their growth also.

The seed stores, which have kept open every evening until 9 o'clock, are now beginning to close at 6.30 for four nights of the week, remaining open Fridays until 9 and Saturdays until 10 o'clock. The seed business is about over for this season.

Recent visitors: Mr. Smith, manager of Peter Henderson & Co.'s vegetable seed department, New York; Henry C. Anthony, Portsmouth, R. I.; L. D. Bryant, representing A. H. Hews & Co., North Cambridge, Mass.; John Beaton, with R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass.; Mr. Campbell, with Vaughan's Seed Store, New York, and W. B. Shaw, Kenilworth, D. C.

Moline, Ill.

The Tri-City Florists' Club held its postponed meeting at the residence of Wm. Knees on the evening of June 16. The meeting brought out the usual good attendance, nearly every member being present. A committee of three was appointed to make arrangements for a picnic to be held some time during the month of July. John Temple had on exhibition a vase of fifteen to twenty varieties of peonies and gave a very interesting talk on the same. Ewoldt Brothers, of Floral Hill, Davenport, had on exhibition a case of their new strawberry, Edna Greene, and the way they disappeared later when they took part in a splendid supper prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Knees would lead one to think that they are the "best what is." Supt. Arp, of Central park, Davenport, furnished the cream, which he claimed was from a goat they have at the park. We all believe him, for he came limping into the meeting with a long scratch on his face, and we know his goat has horns. The club gave a vote of thanks to Wm. Kness, John Temple and Theo. Ewoldt for their part in making the meeting the success it was. The next regular meeting will be held in Davenport July 14.

The firm of Meyer & Behring, of Rock Island, has dissolved partnership, Mr. Meyer buying out the interest of Mr. Behring. The business will hereafter be known as the Long View Floral Company.

Much interest is already manifested in the coming convention of the S. A. F. at St. Louis and half a dozen have already signified their intention of attending.

TED.

Los Angeles.

Florists of this city are now beginning to experience some of the trials that other cities have had. The last winter and spring is the first time florists have had their attention called to the street trade and it is now assuming proportions that will give them cause to ponder. The sale of violets in January, February and March by street vendors was an eye-opener, but the man who drives up with a wagon in front of a place and sells carnations at 25 cents per bunch of fifty gives a trifle harder jolt to one's feelings. These chaps and department stores can buy all the carnations they want for 35 cents per hundred while I was quoted 50 cents per hundred at the same hour by the same grower. The matter has been taken before the city council who have failed to give us any relief and the street vender has become impudent and arrogant.

A number of the growers are having their fields overrun by a small greenish black sort of black beetle. It eats flowers and leaves and does not seem to care for carnation blooms more than eucalyptus leaves. I have not been able as yet to determine where it came from but I trust its going is near. From cutting 10,000 good carnations a day one field has dropped to about 600 poor blooms.

The Redondo Floral Company has put in two acres of violets for the coming season. Elmo Meserve has put in three more acres of violets this summer. Looks like there would be lots of violets next winter.

POPPY.

Streator, Ill.

The W. C. Hill Floral Company has in progress of erection two large houses, each 40x100 feet, which will give the firm more than 15,000 square feet of glass. Mr. Hill has engaged as foreman F. R. Thornton, who has been connected with a large establishment at Galesburg, Ill., for seven years.

The business of the Hill Floral Company was established twenty years ago by W. C. Hill and consisted of one house, 16x40 feet. The business grew rapidly, and four years ago a block of ground was purchased opposite the cemetery on Riverside and four large houses, each 20x100 feet, were erected. The business still continued to prosper, necessitating the present increase. The improvement in the quality of flowers has kept pace with the demand. The products of the houses are sold through the down town store, which is under the management of Miss Clara Sherman.

The firm not only grows flowers and plants, but has all vegetable plants in season and handles high grade nursery stock and vegetable seeds. It has had a splendid trade in all lines this season. The stock next season will consist of 2,000 rose plants, 10,000 carnation plants of all the new varieties, 2,000 chrysanthemums to be grown this fall and 1,000 miscellaneous plants—palms, ferns, geraniums, etc.

READING, PA.—Lee Hamilton Keller has opened a florist's store at 636 Penn street.

CONGERS, N. Y.—Schneider & Noe have erected on their premises a Caldwell tank and tower.

WOONSOCKET, R. I.—Thomas H. Greene was married at Bridgewater, Mass., to Miss Maud K. Booth, June 28.

PONTIAC, ILL.—The business of W. J. Miller & Son has grown so as to demand the services of an expert florist, and they have secured F. W. Beach, of Houston, Texas, formerly with the Phoenix nursery at Bloomington, Ill.

BELLE PLAINE, IA.—Friederichsen Brothers, of Wilton Junction, have been looking up a location for a greenhouse in Belle Plaine this week. They have recently sold out their business at Wilton, and will probably make arrangements to locate here.

The Peony Society.

A peony society has been formed at Detroit, U. S., says the Gardeners' Chronicle, one of the leading European journals. Nine-tenths of the members are said to have commercial interests in cultivating the flower. No one has up to the present suggested a rhododendron society, or a bamboo society, or a sunflower society. The cucumber and the tomato, and even the grapevine, manage to exist commercially without a society, and the pelargonium society is one of the
"has beens." It is a question whether this dissipation of energy is of any value to the many, though it may benefit the few.

Iron Bottom Carnation Benches.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Would iron plates be as good as boards or slate in the bottom of benches for growing carnations?
J. S.

Slate bottoms are not desirable for carnation benches as they are such good conductors of heat that the lower part of the soil in the benches becomes too dry. Iron would be still more objectionable. If the plates were well perforated to allow of good drainage and a false bottom of wood, brick or tile placed above the iron, it might be all right but would hardly be worth while.

W. N. RUDD.

Keeping Over Vinca Vines.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Will you kindly inform me as to the best method of keeping a stock of vinca vines in two-inch and three-inch pots over the summer?

A. E. H.

It is presumed the vincas will be needed for next spring's trade in filling window boxes, vases, etc., for which purpose there is no vine more suitable. We have some planted here as an edging to a canna bed, not that they are considered the best plant for the purpose, but because they will answer the purpose and will be fine large plants to be lifted in the fall and kept in a greenhouse temperature all winter to be used for window boxes and and so forth next spring. If it is the desire of "A. E. H." to restrict the size of the plants, they may be plunged in the pots in either sand or ashes convenient to watering. In that way fine plants may be had for next spring's business, but if larger plants are desired planting out is the very best method. E. L.

Heating Greenhouse and Dwelling.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I am building two houses for lettuce, each 100 feet long, one ten, the other eighteen feet wide, with no glass on the sides. I should be glad to know the best arrangement of pipes to heat these houses with hot water. I want, also to heat my residence, 30x30 feet, two stories high, from the same boiler. Can I do this successfully, and if so, how large a pipe should connect the boiler and the house? J. W. A.

There will be no difficulty in heating the residence in addition to the greenhouses described. For the narrow house it will be advisable to use two 2½-inch flow pipes and four 2-inch returns. The wide house can be heated by the use of two 2½-inch flow pipes and seven 2-inch returns. The amount of radiation required for the residence will depend, to a large extent, upon the amount of glass surface as well as upon the material of which the walls are constructed. Ordinarily, it is well to use one square foot of radiation for thirty to forty cubic feet upon the first floor and for fifty to sixty cubic feet upon the second. On this basis it is probable that from 400 to 500 square feet of radiation will be required in the residence. This will make it necessary to use a 3-inch flow pipe and a return of the same size. L. R. T.

Reply to Elchholz.

HENRY EICHHOLZ, Waynesboro, Pa.

Dear Sir:—Your open letter of June 20, published in the AMERICAN FLORIST, has come to my attention, and I have to say that there has never come into our files since several months ago but one letter from you, which it seems was inadvertently overlooked during the rush of the planting season, and while Mr. Hadkin-son, superintendent of floriculture, was at home ill. No other letter has ever come to us regarding your exhibit since the date you mention, May 1. This seems an extraordinary condition, since we have never had any trouble about mail being delivered promptly, neither have I had another complaint of neglect from any exhibitor. I will not, in view of the way in which you have taken the matter up, offer any suggestion as to whether you send your plants or not, and will await your suggestion. Very truly yours,

(Signed) FREDERICK W. TAYLOR,
Chief, Department of Horticulture.
St. Louis, Mo., June 29, 1904.

Sowing Daisies for Spring.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Please answer the following: 1—What is the right time to sow daisies to have them in flower in the spring to sell at the same time as pansies?
2—What is the time to sow forget-me-nots for next spring? 3—Do you think I would have success in raising ferns in greenhouses with cucumbers? I have solid benches, with horse manure in the bottom. The heat is almost out now.

F. H. R.

1—Bellis perennis is the particular daisy inquired about, I presume. The seed may be sown at any time now, the sooner the better, to have good plants to bloom April and May next. I have known plants to flower in the fall when the seed was sown as early as April.

2—Seed of forget-me-not may be sown about this time for blooming next spring.
There are several varieties of forget-me-nots offered by the seedsmen. The dis-sitiflora is one of the best for spring blooming.

3—It is uncertain whether it would be worth while to make the attempt to grow ferns under cucumbers. The repeated daily syringings that cucumbers require might keep the ferns too wet. It is not quite clear to me what is intended, whether to grow an assortment of ferns as pot plants or the adiantums for their fronds. If it is for greens the ferns are intended for to associate with cut flowers,
I would prefer to grow the Asparagus Sprengeri either for a winter or a summer supply. Most young ferns, either in pots or in flats, would be far better outdoors in a shaded cold frame, where the sashes were raised sufficiently high to admit abundance of air and secured firmly so that wind storms could not carry them away. L.

Additional Spring Trade Reports.

Following are additional letters from prominent dealers regarding the last spring's bedding plant trade:

Conard & Jones Company, West Grove, Pa.—For cannas, soft plants, an increase of from fifty to seventy-five per cent is noted. For roses, hard wood plants, the increase averages twenty-five per cent.
Geraniums and chrysanthemums about held their own. The dwarf varieties of cannas were in heaviest demand, ranging in the following order: Red, variegated, yellow. The call for Mt. Blanc was excellent considering the higher price.
Red geraniums went well. Herbaceous perennials met a twenty-five per cent increased call over last year.

R. E. Creager, Thurmont, Md.—There was an increased demand for geraniums, cannas, salvias, asters, coleus, and, in fact, everything in the bedding line. Red leaved and red flowering cannas had the call. Double Grant, geraniums, scarlet, were most in demand. There were few calls for herbaceous perennials. There was a good sale for colored roses, and I am now preparing a lot of rose cuttings. Asparagus ferns were good sellers.
I attribute the increased demand for bedding stock to the extremely severe winter.

George M. Emmans, Newton, N. J.—
There was an increased demand for geraniums, vincas, gladioli, dracenas, petunias and heliotrope, and a decreased demand for coleus, lobelias and alyssum.
Red cannas sold best. Red geraniums had first call, pink second and white third. Bedding plant trade was about twenty per cent better than last season, but the cut flower trade was the worst ever.

W. T. Buckley Plant Company, Springfield, Ill.—Geraniums, verbenas and salvias moved rapidly. No line has decreased materially in demand. Geraniums most called for were S. A. Nutt, Jean Vaud, Bruanti, Mrs. E. G. Hill, Beaute Poitevine and Mme. Buchner. The bedding plant season was exceptionally late and there is still some demand.

SOUTH PORTLAND, ME.—J. M. Minot & Son have been planting some flower beds very effectively around Fort Preble.

Butte, Mont.

Business has been quiet for the past few weeks; stock was equal to the demand.

The Butte Floral Company is cutting exceptionally fine carnations.

The Butte Floral Company has bought out the business of Law Brothers and will continue the store under the name of The Rosary. All plants and bulbs will be grown at the old Law plant, and the houses at Gregson will be devoted to roses and carnations.

O. A. C. Oelender is back again at his old post.

Robert Miller, rose grower from Natick, Mass., has taken charge of the Gregson plant.

The Columbia Gardens are considerably behind this year. Prof. Seigel says they are still having frost up there. Butte had a snow storm last week.

Will Hendrickson, formerly with the Butte Floral Company, is building houses at Missoula, Mont., and will grow cut flowers for the trade.

William H. Cockayne, gardener at Columbia Gardens, was recently married to Miss Frances Bell, of this city. H.

TOLEDO, O.—The Toledo Automobile club held a floral parade June 25. Prizes were awarded for the best decorated cars.

NOTICE

—OF—

STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING.

CHICAGO, July 1, 1904.

Stockholders of the American Florist Company:

You are hereby notified that the annual meeting of the Stockholders of the American Florist Company will be held in the Rozier Hotel, St. Louis, Mo., Wednesday, August 17, 1904, at 3 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of electing directors and officers for the ensuing term, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

J. C. VAUGHAN, Pres.
M. BARKER, Sec'y.

Syracuse, N. Y.

There seemed to be an unusual number of weddings last month and the florists benefited greatly thereby. The graduating exercises of the various institutions in Syracuse also took a large stock, roses being the most popular. Now that these festivities are ended the trade will be quiet for the rest of the summer. Vacation season has set in and many of the florists are thinking about where they will recruit.

The opening of the trolley road between Syracuse and Auburn has brought Syracuse into active communication with many of the smaller towns of central New York. One of the most beautiful towns in the state is Skaneateles. Julius G. White conducts an up-to-date floral establishment there. At Auburn the principal florists are Joseph Bellottson, Dobs & Son, James Morgan and Alfred Patten.

Henry Burt is contemplating building a new greenhouse on the old homestead in Cortland avenue. He has sold the Colvin street place and is now confining his efforts to the Oakwood avenue and Cortland avenue greenhouses. Mr. Burt says that trade is quiet as there is but little funeral work this summer. Roses, carnations and sweet peas are moving a little.

P. R. Quinlan & Co., have been building new greenhouses at Onondaga valley and they now have one of the largest and best plants in the state. Manager W. S. Wheadon of their South Salina street store reported that they had more decorations this year than in many years. The plant trade has also been unusually good.

The new greenhouses at Oakwood Cemetery in charge of Mr. Bellamy are in fine condition and have been doing a nice business. The other florists in the city object to the plan of having the cemetery association run a greenhouse on the grounds as it takes away from their profits.

William Hyde is now in charge of the Overlook Greenhouses at Little Falls, having succeeded Edward D. Wheadon.
A. V. B.

Milwaukee.

Business is down to summer dullness and there is but little doing in any line. Most of the local craft are busy with repair work, but little new building is being done.

The Florists' Club will go to Oconomowoc on July 17 for its picnic. A splendid time is assured. Tickets can be had from all members.

When T. H. Holton left for his fishing trip he promised a mess of fish. Evidently the fish are obstinate this season.

Mr. and Mrs. William Currie left last Tuesday for an extended European trip.

PASSENGER STEAMSHIP MOVEMENTS.

The tables herewith give the scheduled time of departure of ocean steamships carrying first-class passengers from the principal American and foreign ports, covering the space of two weeks from date of this issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST. Much disappointment often results from attempts to forward flowers for steamer delivery by express, to the care of the ship's steward or otherwise. The carriers of these packages are not infrequently refused admission on board and even those delivered on board are not always certain to reach the parties for whom they were intended. Hence florists in interior cities having orders for the delivery of flowers to passengers on out-going steamers are advised to intrust the filling of such orders to some reliable florist in the port of departure, who understands the necessary details and formalities and has the facilities for attending to it properly. For the addresses of such firms we refer our readers to the advertisements on this page:

Cincinnati.

We have no complaints to make about business for the first week in July. The retail stores seem to have funeral work and there is a little doing in the shipping line. Carnations and roses are getting poorer every day and sweet peas shorter in stem. There is plenty of green goods in the market, in fact a lot of smilax and asparagus was consigned to the barrel the last week. Lily of the valley has been in fair demand. George V. Allan's Lilium rubrum and album find a ready market. Lilium longiflorum is also good property and sells readily at $10 per 100.

Paul F. Peters, who, until about two months ago, was engaged in landscape gardening about this city, died at the home of his brother, C. A. Peters, Huntington, W. Va., of heart failure, on June 28. Mr. Peters was very much interested in astronomy, and many parties were entertained by him at night, he having his own telescope, which he made himself. The many friends of the deceased wish to take this method of extending their sympathy to the hereaved family.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was a visitor last week. Mr. Hill has purchased Mr. Murphy's interest in the Cardinal carnation, and says he is well satisfied with the way it is doing and the amount of orders he is receiving for rooted cuttings. He also states that they have a new red rose on their place which will be a winner next winter.

Fred Gear and Max Rudolph & Company had a lot of funeral work for the Fourth and consequently did not have much time to touch off their fireworks.

Will Gerlach, formerly with W. K. Partridge, at Lockland, O., has accepted a position with Honaker, at Lexington, Ky.

The Seed Trade.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Chas. N. Page, Des Moines, Ia., Pres.; L. L. May, St. Paul, Minn., First Vice-Pres.; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Sec'y and Treas. Twenty-third annual convention, June, 1905.

VISITED CHICAGO: Frank T. Emerson, Waterloo, Neb.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—The William S. Gilbreath Seed company has been incorporated by William S. Gilbreath, Minnie S. Gilbreath and William P. Herod with a capital stock of $10,000.

WE need for our files a copy of the annual report of the American Seed Trade Association for 1890 and anyone having a copy to spare will oblige by communicating with this office and stating particulars.

NEBRASKA reports sweet corn looking fairly well of late. Late sorts are about two-thirds of a stand, while some of them are lost. The acreage is probably large enough to make up for the partial failures. There are some independent crops of Evergreen and Country Gentleman.

CINCINNATI, O.—Trimble McCullough, son of J. Chas. McCullough, sailed on the steamer Victoria from Seattle Wash., July 2 on a pleasure trip through Alaska, touching Sitka and Nome and possibly the Siberian waters. He expects to be gone two or three months, in company with A. J. Trimble, a director of the steamship company.

New York.

J. Martens, of Hamburg, Germany, who passed through here on his way west two weeks ago, was with us again, recalled by the sad news of the death of his wife. He sailed for home on Thursday. The sympathy of the trade is extended to him.

Suzuki & Iida are remodeling and decorating their offices. The wall paper came from Japan and is a clever imitation of beaten metal.

Arthur T. Boddington has removed to larger quarters at 342 West Fourteenth street.

Potatoes From Canada.

Potato shipments to the United States have been unusually brisk here during the past few months, and it is estimated that at least 25,000 barrels have been sent over the border from the counties of York and Sunbury. The largest shipper resides at Fredrickton and has forwarded about 7,000 barrels. Potatoes are now worth from $1.75 to $1.90 per bushel in the local market and in Boston they are selling at from $2 to $2.25.

W. R. HOLLOWAY, Consul General.
Halifax, N. S., June 3, 1904.

Kentucky Crop Reports.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 21, 1904.—Wood, Stubbs & Company write as follows: "The outlook for the blue grass seed crop is at present promising, and a much larger yield than usual, consequently we anticipate considerably lower prices. Orchard grass is only a fair crop, but we are not anticipating quite as high prices as last year. There are many conflicting reports regarding orchard grass, some growers claiming a larger crop than usual, others saying there is going to be a smaller crop. We think there is going to be a fair average crop. It is too early to tell about the grass seed crops in this section.

"Onion sets are not looking well. We are needing rain badly, and unless this comes soon, there will be an immense shrinkage. At the most there could not be a large crop, due to the unfavorable late season."

Mailing Catalogues.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have seen it stated in another trade paper that after July 1 catalogues can be mailed in bulk without the use of postage stamps. Please advise me through your column whether this is correct. S.

With reference to the above Postmaster Coyne, of Chicago, says; "There has been no change in the regulations governing third-class matter. Several months since a bill was introduced in congress which provided for the prepayment of postage in bulk upon large lots of third-class matter, without stamps affixed, but this measure failed of passage. Printed catalogues are third-class matter, when enclosed in unsealed envelopes. The rate of postage upon such matter is 1 cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof, prepaid by stamps affixed."

Additional Spring Trade Reports.

Following are additional reports on the past spring's seed trade:

Wood, Stubbs & Company, Louisville, Ky.—Business this year has on the whole been very satisfactory, showing fair increase in volume. High prices and short deliveries on many varieties of vegetable seeds made profits somewhat small. Grass seed business has been very much larger than usual. Trade in onion sets this year, while not as large in volume as in previous years, owing to shorter crop, has been very satisfactory. We are anticipating an improvement in all lines of the seed business during the coming year.

J. M. Thorburn & Company, New York.—In answer to your inquiry we beg to say that business for the season has been about normal with us.

John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y.—Business this spring has been considerably better than last year, fully fifteen per cent.

Crambe Tartarica.

A NEW VEGETABLE.

The new vegetable to which M. O. Bishot, ex-president of the Academie de Cuisine, Paris, has called attention, is Crambe Tartarica of Wildenove, a cruciferous plant closely allied to seakale, says the Gardeners' Magazine. The fleshy root is eaten by the Tartars, Hungarians, and Cossacks, both in a cooked and a raw state, and has a rather sweet taste. The sprouts, however, are of the most importance from a gastronomic point of view. On the approach of winter the leaves are removed from the plants, and if it is intended to obtain supplies from the open the roots are covered to some depth with sand or soil, and remain with their covering until the spring, when the yellowish-white shoots push through the soil and are cut for consumption. If supplies are required for use during the winter the roots are lifted and placed where they will have the assistance of sufficient artificial heat to stimulate them into growth, or in other words be forced in much the same manner as seakale. The shoots may be eaten in a cooked state, and it is said the flavor resembles a combination of the flavors of the asparagus and cauliflower. The vegetable appears to be worth attention, but we doubt whether it will prove equal to seakale, which it appears to so closely resemble in the matter of cultural requirements.

Orange, N. J.

The regular monthly meeting and exhibition of the New Jersey Floricultural Society was held July 1 in the society's rooms. Instead of the brilliant display of roses of two weeks ago there were the perhaps more stately japan irises and Delphinium grandiflorum flore-pleno, which has never been shown in such perfection before in Orange. Mr. Barr's gloxinias were of large size with blooms which entirely concealed their foliage. John Crosby Brown's collection of fruits and vegetables attracted by a tasteful arrangement in which tomatoes, large for this season, held a prominent place. The plate of Lord Napier nectarines was "as pretty as a picture." So close was the contest that the entire evening was consumed by the judges and there was no essay or discussion. One new member, George J. Smith, was elected.

Additional prizes of $25 from Vaughan's Seed Store to be given at the fall exhibition for the best twelve distinct varieties of chrysanthemum blooms and $5 from M. J. McKernan, secretary of the Elks' Society, for the best twenty-five chrysanthemum blooms, one or more varieties, were announced.

Following is the scoring of the July exhibition:

J. C. Brown, P. Duff gardener, Japan iris, sweet peas and Delphinium grand. fl. pl., 95; fruits and vegetables, 75.

W. Barr, A. Bodwell gardener, orchids and gloxinias in pots, first certificate.

S. Hartshorne, A. Caparn gardener, Japan iris, first certificate.

A. C. Van Gaasbeck, Wm. Bennett gardener, Japan iris, delphinium, sweet william and gailardia, 45.

Mrs. W. Pierson, C. Ashmead gardener, Japan iris, 70; fruits and vegetables, 45.

C. Hathaway, M. Hornecker gardener, sweet peas, 65; fruits and vegetables, 65.

W. Runkle, D. Kindsgrab gardener, specimen adiantum, 90; cherries, 65.

O. D. Munn, J. Hayes gardener, poppies, certificate.

S. & A. Colgate, W. Reed gardener, Japan iris, 85; fruits and vegetables, 65.

E. J. Brackett, T. Maybury gardener, fruits, 45; vegetables, 65.

The judges were Arthur Caparn, Jos. A. Manda and Chas. Ashmead. In addition to these exhibits, but entered not for competition, were sweet peas treated by the nitrogen fixing bacteria of the Department of Agriculture, shown by Wm. J. Hesse, of Newark, and a bunch of Vaughan's Icicle radish and the Early Forcing white radish of the United States government, shown by J. B. Davis. All were awarded certificates.

Jos. B. DAVIS.

For Sale.

Having separated our wholesale and retail seed business, I now wish to sell my interest in the retail. This business, known under the name of St. Louis Seed Company, is one of the finest retail and mail-order chances in its line in the west. This offer will stand close investigation and is only made through a lack of time on my part to attend to both branches of the trade.

Vaughan's International Primula Mixture.

This mixture is composed of the most salable colors of Single Flowering Chinese Primulas, the best whites, pinks and reds, with a sprinkling of other colors, enough to give a large variety of colors, the most important shades predominating. It contains some of the Giant sorts, some Fern-leaved, some blue; also some with dark leaves and stems. We have taken special pains to make this mixture as complete as possible and unreservedly recommend it to everyone.

The Nursery Trade

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

E. W. Kirkpatrick, McKinney, Tex., Pres.;
C. L. Watrous, Des Moines, Ia., Vice-Pres.;
George C. Seager, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.
Thirtieth annual convention, West Baden
Springs, Ind., June, 1905.

BOSKOOP, HOLLAND.—Advices of June 22 are to the effect that stock is making an excellent growth.

Thus far the growing season for nursery stock in the United States has been exceptionally good.

HARTFORD, CONN.—John T. Weathers, landscape architect of Jersey City, N. J., was here last week visiting the parks and cemeteries.

VICTORIA, B. C.—Initial steps have been taken by the nurserymen of the province for the formation of a provincial nurserymen's association.

SHENANDOAH, IA.—Improvements in the way of a new brick office and additional packing sheds are slated for this year at the Mt. Arbor Nurseries.

FITCHBURG, MASS.—H. F. Cogshall presented to the city forty-five acres of land for park purposes, and has devised a sum of $25,000, the income of which is to be applied to the maintenance of his gift.

LEXINGTON, MASS.—Edward Wood has purchased from the trustees of the Lexington Golf Club a tract of land containing thirty-three acres, and will develop it for nursery purposes. A range of greenhouses will also be built.

DES MOINES, IA.—M. J. Wragg, president of the state department of horticulture, in charge of the horticultural exhibit at the state fair, has sent out a letter to the fruit growers of the state urging their co-operation in making such an exhibit at the state fair that it may be used in sweeping the stakes at the St. Louis exposition.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Thaddeus N. Yates & Company have at their Mount Airy establishment a splendid plantation of Kosteri blue spruce, which stood the winter admirably. They have another importation of 500 now on the way. This spruce is as popular hereabouts as around New York and probably leads all evergreens to-day.

Good New England Laws.

Hereafter it will cost six months in jail or a fine of not more than $500 to any person who in Massachusetts wilfully does these things:

- Cuts down or destroys timber or wood on the land of another.
- Carries away timber or wood out down or lying on the land of another.
- Digs up or carries away stone, ore, gravel, clay, sand, turf or mold from the land of another.
- Carries away roots, nuts, berries, grapes or fruit of any kind from the land of another.
- Cuts down or carries away sedge, grass, hay or any kind of corn standing, growing or being on the land of another.
- Cuts or carries away any ferns, flowers or shrubs for the purpose of sale from the land of another.

The American Peony Society.

The American Peony Society was incorporated at Albany, N. Y., July 2. The directors are given as John H. Humphreys, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Edwin A. Reeves, of Cleveland, O.; Charles S. Harrison, of York, Neb.; Wm. A. Peterson, of Chicago and Guy A. Bryant, Princeton, Ill.

Itch of the Brownfall Moth.

In common with most of the towns in eastern New England, Lawrence, Mass., is suffering from the annual visitation of the brownfall moth. The pest having finished his job on the vegetation has now turned his attention to the residents, and the Boston Journal comments as follows:

Itch, itcb, itcb,
I itch until I'm wroth
And all because I chanced to meet
The terrible brownfall moth!

Scratch! scratch! scratch!
Wherever I may be
And I'm glad my tongue don't utter
The thoughts that arise in me!

The people of Lawrence are competing with the spring chickens in the scratching line. As the saying goes they are literally "up to the scratch," and all because the brownfall moth has been busy exuding his poison. According to some of the most active citizens just now afflicted with the moth itch every grain of poison the brownfall moth exudes contains seventy-seven billion large, ripe itch germs, all in full working order. Physicians are racking their brains for something that will bring relief. One physician was asked for the best remedy for the terrible itching, and he merely smiled and said: "Scratch."

Cleveland.

Otto Aul, a son of Casper Aul, of Glenville, committed suicide on July 5 by taking carbolic acid. The deceased was a promising young man and of great assistance to his father in the greenhouses. No reason can be assigned for the rash act. Mr. and Mrs. Aul have the heartfelt sympathy of the craft in their great bereavement.

Herman A. Hart is rushing his new houses along. His range consists of seven houses, four 18x100 feet, one 18x70 and two 8x70. All will be partitioned off with glass. His new boiler shed is a dandy. It is fitted up to hold the entire winter supply of coal. Several other original ideas of Mr. Hart's were put into its construction. The greater part will be planted to roses and carnations. Steam heat will be used in both these new ranges.

Bate Brothers are taking a crop of cucumbers out of several of their houses previous to planting them to carnations. They claim they pay better than roses. The old rose stakes are used to support the vines.

G. M. Nauman sailed on the steamer Grosse Kurfuerst for Bremen July 5. He will make an extended stay in the old country and intends to visit a number of the principal places of botanical interest.

"Linc" Brown will spend the last two weeks of July in Philadelphia among his family and friends. "Linc" still has a warm spot somewhere for old Philadelphia.

Charlesworth & Son have finished planting out around the soldiers' and sailors' monument. The artistic work done reflects great credit upon this firm.

Frank Andrews and wife have returned from a three months' trip to England. Mr. Andrews has improved wonderfully in health by the trip.

Harry Jones, of the J. M. Gasser Company, has left on a month's vacation to visit the old homestead in Pennsylvania.

ECHO.

Lenox, Mass.

The regular meeting of the Lenox Horticultural Society was held July 2, with President Jenkins in the chair. The topic for the evening was "Hardy Roses." A. J. Loveless, gardener to J. Sloane, gained a cultural commendation for four Outremont Beauty melons, which were very fine, the four weighing 28½ pounds. W. Shaw, Long Island, was awarded a diploma for his new strawberry, Giant Ruby, and cultural commendations for Sharpless and Gandy, which were excellent berries.

GEORGE FOULSHAM.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—The movement for a new horticultural experiment station, discussed at Saturday's meeting of the Salt Lake County Horticultural Society, is rapidly growing and when the legislature meets it will be strongly presented by those interested.

ORDERS BOOKED NOW.

The progressive, keen and discerning Florist will this year buy of this standard introduction that is freely conceded to be the best of all Adiantums.

A Great Acquisition.

The best of all ferns for cut fronds. Brings the highest prices. The easiest to grow and the easiest to sell. Has received the highest encomiums from the leading cut flower dealers in the country.

ADIANTUM CROWEANUM originated at Utica, N. Y., about fourteen years ago, and has been extensively grown by the original owner, Mr. Crowe, who has received phenomenal prices for the cut fronds in the New York and other markets and has created a great demand for it. Buy now. Buy liberally and reap the benefits.

The fronds are long, elegantly proportioned and of a texture that renders it the best keeper and shipper of all Adiantums.

It is a very free and continuous grower, requires no rest and responds readily to fertilizers. Anyone can grow it and get good money for it.

Introducer's Description.

A free grower, the darkest green of the Adiantum family and longest stemmed. It has also the most graceful foliage; the average length of the fronds measuring 30 inches. It is by far the best keeper. Cut fronds can be kept fresh several weeks in a cool place. It is also one of the best ferns for a dwelling house. I have given presents of this fern to several Utica friends, and from my own observation note it grows better than the Boston fern. I gave up rose cultivation some ten months ago in order to devote all my attention to fern cultivation for cut fronds. I find from the same amount of bench room this fern pays me $1.50 to every $1.00 obtained from roses.

PETER CROWE.

KEEPING AND SHIPPING QUALITIES.

With reference to a quantity of fronds sent to Liverpool, Eng., the recipient writes from that port, June 17, 1904, as follows: "The ferns were as fresh as when they were first cut and I believe you can safely send them to Europe, provided they are as carefully packed as these were. They are simply perfect." (Signed) THOMAS R. PROCTOR.

Toronto.

The last few days of June were notable for the many weddings and every variety in the rose line was exceedingly scarce, especially was this so with Bride and valley. Since then stock has been a little more plentiful, but the roses are at present pretty badly mildewed. Beauty and Edgely still hold up and are by long odds the best, though Meteor is still of good quality. Carnations continue very plentiful and the prices have consequently been lowered the last few days. Lilies are over and lily-of-the-valley is of poor quality.

Frank Duffort is still cutting quantities of fine late peonies. These are a specialty with him and his is a collection of fine varieties. Asters coming from him are the first in this vicinity and the plants are looking unusually fine. Two houses are being pulled down and the space will be covered with modern style structure.

H. L. Jansen, of Berlin, is in town looking up material for a new range of three houses which he is constructing. These are to be modern and will be used exclusively for the growing of carnations. The past season has been a good one with him and he is laying in large quantities of young stock for the coming season.

Grobba & Wandrey, of Mimico, are putting up a new range of houses for chrysanthemums, brick tile and iron being used, and the work is being hurried, no doubt with a view towards having a crop ready for the fall show.

Manton Brothers have been spending some time in the swamp gathering live moss for their orchids and they found some very nice variety of spiranthes, and some nice Cypripedium spectabile.

Wm. Jay, Jr., has returned from Buffalo where he has been spending the holidays.

William MacKay is the first with outdoor sweet peas.

H. G. D.

Albany, N. Y.

W. C. King has purchased the greenhouse establishment formerly conducted by Louis Marx at 1056 Madison avenue. The establishment has about 13,000 feet of glass. Mr. King will grow a general line of decorative stock, and next year will add about 1000 feet to his present area. Some time ago Mr. King sold his establishment on Yates street to the State Department of Health, which was desirous of securing the same to add to its own property adjacent. The State Department of Health will erect on the new site an anti-toxin laboratory, and will keep most of the greenhouses intact for the purpose of raising lettuce and other plants suitable for feeding rabbits and guinea pigs which are used in the experimental work in making the anti-toxin.

For the fifth year in succession the firm of Whittle Brothers did the decorative work for the commencement exercises at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., June 18-23. The firm used about 150 large palms of different varieties, fifty ferns and fifty pots of hydrangeas and lilies, besides other seasonable flowers.

Daniel Whittle, master of Masters' Lodge No. 5, F. and A. M., on Monday evening, June 27, at the close of the last meeting for the season, invited his brethren to a spread at the Ten Eyck. About 175 masons partook of Master Whittle's generous hospitality.

IRON GREENHOUSES.

The Duplex Cutter and The Duplex Eaves have solved the question of how to build up-to-date greenhouses as durable as the iron frame greenhouses at high prices, and nearly as cheap as wooden houses. See the cut that represents the new Duplex Eaves, the most durable, strongest and simplest to erect. Any common laborer can set them as perfect as an expert mechanic. It is perfection in construction. No ice or snow to darken your houses when light means money. Positively no shade from the Duplex Eaves, costs only about $2.00 per foot, including Duplex Gutters and Eaves, Iron Posts for Gutters, Iron Purlines with Posts, Tees and Floor Plates,

Center Posts with Plates and Bases. Standard Ventilating Machines, complete with double strong Pipe, Cypress Sash Bars and Ventilating Sash. Investigate the proposition and convince yourself of the fact. Also note the simplest steam return Trap made; just what a Florist needs, and a coal dealer condemns. Catalogues and circulars free.

CROP INSURANCE.
 Life insurance is valuable because it guarantees the outcome.

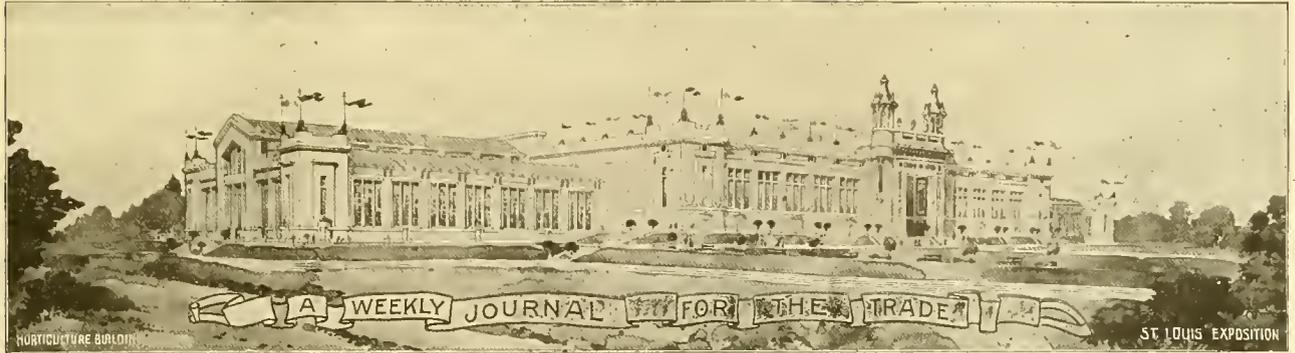

"Gurney" Heaters

"BRIGHT IDEA," "DORIC" and "400 SERIES" do the same thing for your hothouse: THEY GUARANTEE THE CROP. First of all they save 20 per cent on the coal bill and so keep expense at a minimum. Next, they produce an even heat and so do not imperil the life of the plant. Next, they are simple to operate and so require least attention. Lastly, they wear longer than others and thus perceptibly reduce the capital invested. Don't buy or exchange until you've investigated them.

THE CARNATION.

Housing the Field Plants.

By July 20 operations should be under way for transferring the plants into the houses. This date may be earlier than many growers think necessary to commence planting, but my experience has convinced me that for the most successful culture of our up-to-date varieties planting should be commenced at about this date, and the aim should be to have the work completed by August 10 at the latest. The increased output of carnations all over the country, together with the high quality of the stock produced, has created a demand which is only satisfied by the very best, a fine, large bloom carried on a long, stiff stem. To produce this the plant will have to be of strong constitution and the roots well established in the soil. By planting at this time October should find the plants in just the right condition, provided they have had the proper attention.

Large quantities of short stem blooms are still seen on the market in October and November, most of them cut from plants allowed to remain in the field until the last of August and sometimes September, so that when planted in the growths and buds are well advanced. These plants will throw a big cut of short stem blooms of inferior quality soon after planting, when the market is usually very slow and only flowers of the first quality will find a purchaser. This cut is the result of field growth, the plants not having had time to be thoroughly well rooted into the soil in the houses as is the case with the plants brought in a month or six weeks earlier. The nights commence to get colder and the days shorten. Plant growth is not nearly so active as in August and September, consequently the plants are longer getting established, and are at a disadvantage compared with the earlier planted stock for the winter's campaign. Where large quantities, consisting of a number of varieties are grown, a plan of planting should be mapped out and the varieties which are slow of growth brought in first, following with the others, according to their habits and growth characteristics, leaving to the last those of small foliage or which are inclined to grow spindly. Varieties of growth similar to Mrs. Lawson, Adonis, Prosperity and Mrs. Bradt, which have a heavy, short growth, should be planted in first and varieties of quick, vigorous growth, like

Mrs. Joost and Governor Wolcott left to the last.

Another very important point to bear in mind is to plant the varieties which require about the same temperature together. For instance, in a house with Mrs. T. W. Lawson only varieties which will stand a night temperature of 54° to 56° should be planted. This, in my experience, is too high a temperature for any other carnation, so if it is at all possible give Mrs. Lawson a place by itself. The largest number of varieties do best in a night temperature of 50° to 54°. In this class can be named Harlowarden, Gov. Wolcott, Geo. H. Crane, Her Majesty, Adonis and Queen Louise. Another batch should be allotted a place where the night temperature is kept strictly at 50° or a little below. In this class come Enchantress, Mrs. Joost and White Cloud.

The house must be shaded enough to prevent the plants from wilting without being syringed too often. We use a mud shading and have not found anything to answer the purpose any better. It can be removed easily at any time. When this has been attended to examine the benches to see that they are in good enough condition to last through the season. If this is not certain the repairing had better be done now than later, when the bench is full of soil. Give the benches a thorough cleaning, both inside and underneath. The inside should receive a coat of hot lime wash, paying particular attention to the cracks and corners. These are the places that need it the most.

Another important part is to make sure the drainage of the benches is all right. Carnations will suffer as much or more than any other plants if the water does not pass away freely. This is one of the principal causes of the calyx splitting, and also results in weak stems. The cracks in the bottom of the bench should be covered just enough to prevent the soil from falling through. I am against using rotted manure for this purpose and never use it on any plants, preferring to have all fertilizers thoroughly incorporated in the soil. Good, thin sod, where it can be obtained, is as safe a material to use as any. Lay it over the cracks, with the grass side turned down. This lessens the chance of it growing up through the bed. Dried leaves gathered the fall before and stacked all winter are also good to place in the bottom of the bench. We also use excelsior, and find this to answer as well as anything, and considering the time taken in collecting the sod or leaves it is the cheapest in the end. A very little answers the purpose, just enough along the cracks to prevent the soil falling through. Do not use hay or straw. These are liable to breed fungus.

The house cleaned and the drainage attended to, we are now ready for the soil. Where the compost pile was made in early spring and turned over a time or two, very little needs now be done to it except getting it into the benches, but be sure it is well mixed and pulverized, free from all clods. Fill the benches even full, firming to a medium degree, but not nearly as much as for roses and chrysanthemums. In cases where no compost heap has been made but the soil and manure stacked in separate piles, caution must be exercised regarding the manure. Be sure it is not too green, this being one of the principal causes of stem rot and a soft, sappy growth. Use one part of the manure to three parts of soil, thoroughly mixing it together, and after putting into the benches work into it a dusting of bone meal in the proportion of a pint to the square yard. Then mix this through the soil and level and firm as before.

In lifting the plants in the field have two men digging and two setting the plants in boxes deep enough to hold them upright and only large enough for a man to handle easily. Care should be taken to save as many of the roots as possible, taking only as much soil as clings to the roots in digging. If the digging is done in a very dry spell we take some half-barrels of water into the field and dip the roots as they are dug, sprinkling a little dry soil over them as they are placed into the boxes. This dry soil clings to the roots, and we have had no trouble from wilting when following this method. After the plants are dug get them into the houses as soon as possible, and dig only enough for the immediate requirements, because if allowed to stand around in the wind and sun they quickly suffer.

In setting the plants in the benches stretch a line the length of the bench, and when the plants are brought in from the field have them set at intervals so as to be handy to get at. Have two men do the job at a bench, one to lay the plants while the other sets them out. Be sure the plants are not set too deep, but have a little mound made directly under the stem, allowing the roots to fall out straight all around it, then make sure the roots are all covered with soil. Plant as firmly as you can, considering the condition of the soil. They may not all stand upright after the first watering, but if the roots are properly covered and no deeper than when growing in the field they will be all right in a very short time. After the bench is planted give the plants a good watering, but not enough to flood the soil; better by far to go over it again after the soil has partly absorbed the first watering. After planting give the plants frequent light sprayings to prevent wilting; also, do not allow draughts to blow on them. Keep the house a little close, but not so as to run the temperature very high.

After they commence to take hold gradually remove the shading, pay particular attention to the watering (water only as they require it), and syringe enough to keep the plants free from spider and give plenty of ventilation. Some varieties require different treatment as regards topping back. After this date varieties of the habit of Adonis, Mrs. Lawson or any other kinds that make a short-jointed, bushy growth, should not be pinched back too severely. From now on pick out only shoots that are running up to the bloom. This applies to plants already in the house and those still in the field. Wiry, straggling growers can still be pinched back as before for a few weeks yet.

PALMS AND FERNS.

Some Uncommon Palms.

That the ordinary list of commercial palms is an exceedingly brief one is well known to nearly all of the readers of the AMERICAN FLORIST, and those who have familiarized themselves with that brief list and its needs from a cultural point of view are sometimes inclined to step a little further among the 1,200 or more species of palms that are known to botanists. The palms are a most interesting family, not only from the fact that they form one of the most impressive groups of foliage plants that we have, with their towering trunks and graceful leaves, but also on account of their great economic value, their fruits, leaves and trunks being put to such a multitude of uses. But if we begin to enumerate the uses to which palms are put, beginning with the 800 different uses to which the parts of the Palmyra palm, Borassus flabelliformis, are said to be put by the Asiatics, this article would be more tedious than usual, so it will be better to confine ourselves to some notes upon the characteristics and cultural requirements of a few of those species that are less common though not by any means new.

The late Edward Butler.

The first to suggest itself in this connection is Diplothemium caudescens, a remarkably handsome Brazilian palm that has been grown in many collections under the name of Ceroxylon niveum, and also known as the Brazilian wax palm. This is a strong growing species and is said to reach up quite high on the Andes, from which we learn that great heat is not required for the welfare of an established plant of this palm, though like many other plants, this diplothemium in the seedling stages of its growth seems to do best in a warm house. Young plants of this palm do not show its full beauty or character, the seedlings having only broad-bladed simple leaves until they are about large enough for a 6-inch pot, but later on the foliage assumes its proper pinnate form, the leaves standing rather erect and divided into many narrow leaflets. The latter are dark green on the upper side and silvery white beneath, and by the time the diplothemium gets to be eight or ten feet in height one is more likely to appreciate the fact that this is really a very beautiful palm, and worthy of more extended use.

The best specimens of this palm that I have seen were grown in a sandy loam with only a moderate proportion of stable manure as a fertilizer, but were given liberal quantities of water at all times, and also an occasional watering with liquid manure during the summer. A shaded palm house is the proper place for this palm in order to keep its most attractive color, and a night temperature of 60° during the winter is high enough for established plants, while seeds and seedlings may be given a slightly higher temperature without injury. As it attains maturity the stem of diplothemium is more or less coated with a thin layer of resinous wax, this wax being sometimes mixed with tallow and then formed into candles by some of the South American natives, and it is from this characteristic that the plant has been designated as the wax palm.

A palm of superior beauty to the average, and possibly more rare in collections than the diplothemium, is found in the form of Stevensonia grandifolia, a species that has been in cultivation for over thirty-five years, but is still far from common. Being a native of the Seychelles, this palm is naturally a warm house plant, but the fact has also been demonstrated that a large plant of this species may be gradually inured to a lower temperature than was thought possible a few years ago, the plant in question having been planted out among other palms and foliage plants in Horticultural Hall, Fairmount park, Philadelphia, for several years, this structure probably averaging below 60° at night during cold weather. I do not know whether this plant suffered from low temperature during the severe winter just past, but when I last saw it the Stevensonia was nicely established and flourishing in company with the large latanias, caryotas, phoenixes and other palms that have been a feature of Horticultural Hall for the past two decades.

The leaves of Stevensonia are large, almost entire, but bifid at the tips, dark green in color with orange ribs and stems, and the blade of the leaf is also spotted with small orange spots, the young leaf when just expanding being usually brownish or chocolate-colored. The leaf stems are closely armed with long and slender black spines, a feature that does not appeal to one very strongly in case such a plant becomes infested with scale insects. Young plants of this palm grow best in a shaded house, for the summer at least, and with a night temperature of 68° to 70° and abundant moisture, the best potting material for them being an open compost in which about two parts of rough peat are combined with one of loam and a moderate proportion of old cow dung. The drainage of the pots should be good and the soil should not be rammed too hard, the plant in question probably being found in a wild state in the moist, spongy soil of the lowlands near the coast. Seeds of Stevensonia are seldom offered in quantity, and possibly would not find a ready market if they were, for palms of this type are but little sought for commercial purposes, their foliage being too easily injured to endure much decorating work.

Nephrosperma Van Houtteanum is a rare palm of much beauty, and is also a native of the Seychelles, from which islands so many fine tropical foliage plants have originated. This palm was in cultivation in this country prior to 1878 at least, for at that time I had the pleasure of caring for a nice specimen in a 12-inch pot, the plant in question being possibly the only one of the species in the United States at that time, and was included in the fine collection of the late George Such, at South Amboy, New Jersey. Nephrosperma is a very graceful palm of the areca type, and in fact was once known as Areca nobilis, though differing from the arecas in general in having the leafstalks armed with long spines. The leaves are dark green and divided into a large number of long and narrow pinnae, the entire leaf having a drooping habit.

So far as I have seen there is no inclination on the part of this palm to produce suckers from the base, though such a process is quite possible in the case of a fully matured plant that had attained to seed-bearing, but as the plant holds its foliage well when in health it naturally forms a well furnished specimen. Neph- rosperma Van Houtteanum requires a night temperature of close to 70° and grows well in a similar compost to that suggested for stevensonia, it being essential that the soil shall drain readily, although plenty of water is required throughout the growing season, but during the winter there is one combination that should be avoided in the culture of tropical palms, namely, too low a temperature combined with too much water.

W. H. TAPLIN.

World's Fair Notes.

Strawberries have been shown during the past two weeks by Minnesota, Colorado, Canada and Michigan; Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Illinois and Indiana have had large exhibits of currants, goose berries and cherries, while Texas and Arkansas have had several tables well filled with peaches, plums and early varieties of apples. The cold-storage apples are holding-up unexpectedly well, as there are many plates now upon the tables which were taken out April 27, including such varieties as McIntosh and Fallawater.

T. V. Munson, of Denison, Texas, has sent specimens of several of his seedlings. Among them are his Headlight grape and the Topsy and Turvy plums. The latter are hybrids between Abundance and an American variety.

E. A. Kanst, assistant superintendent of the South Parks, Chicago, has been appointed as one of the jurors in floriculture. His work will be mostly with the bedding and greenhouse plants.

A much needed improvement has been effected by the placing of the names of the buildings in large letters over the principal entrances of the palaces of agriculture and horticulture.

Many of the cacti in the Mexican exhibit at the south end of the palace of agriculture have been in bloom some days.

Wisconsin has installed a miniature cranberry bog and a bed of native ferns in connection with its fruit exhibit.

Schray & Company, of St. Louis, have a large and handsome bed of cannas east of the palace of horticulture.

E. Y. Teas, of Centerville, Ind., has been here for three weeks in charge of the Indiana fruit exhibit.

NORTH EASTON, MASS.—Harry Cole is about to go into the florist business at East Bridgewater, Mass.

MANCHESTER, MASS.—Appleton Brothers, of Manchester, Mass., have purchased the greenhouse property of C. E. Field, East Bridgewater. There are eight houses in the range and the place will be operated along the same lines as by its late owner.

FIELD OF PEONIES AT GILBERT H. WILD'S, SARCOXIE, MO.

THE PEONY.

Dr. Merlam on Peonies.

Dr. Horatio C. Meriam, commenting recently on the lecture "Popularizing the Peony," delivered by George C. Watson before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, said he was much interested in the subject of the lecture and in its literature. "In America we have none of the historical collections to work from or to compare our work with," he said: "Mr. Terry's work, alluded to by Mr. Watson, is a good illustration of how much work one isolated can do, yet being cut off from exhibitions and comparison, advance but little. So he has named and introduced too many varieties. But few of his introductions are of real value.

"In propagating, a method has recently been published that promises to make peony propagation more easy. This is to place, in the spring, over a plant a frame a foot or fifteen inches high. This frame is of course without top or bottom. Fill with good soil, and allow the plant to grow up through it. In the fall the frame will be found to be filled with roots. These may be divided according to the number of eyes. If this method is reliable one of its advantages will be that valuable plants will not have to be lifted to propagate them. I am to make some experiments this season in propagating, for the field is an open one.

"When shall we get peonies that are true to name, and remain true to color, or retain the perhaps slight variation of shade which distinguished them when introduced? In America the sun is hard and drying. In England it is tempered by cloud, fog and a soft atmosphere. I do not know of a good black flower that is grown in the open in America, a black pansy being always scorched. In England they can grow pansies from cuttings but I have never been able to carry along a good plant here. I learned years since that the pansies that succeeded best were from seeds obtained from the continent with its more open sky, the plants being subjected to less changed conditions of growth.

"I have a large collection of Iris pallida. Two years ago it was rainy and dull at their time of flowering, and they were as beautiful as described in the catalogues.

Last season it was hot and dry at the flowering season, and they showed but slight variation, in fact looked nearly all alike. With the beauty brought out by shading we are all familiar, and the English sky does this to a degree, so I do not now wonder that we do not find all the beauty that the catalogues lead us to expect.

"All, I suppose, give extra care to peony plants that have been bought at a high price, and my feeling is that combined with care, extra culture and shade, many new sorts are being introduced in England that will have no advantage in America over the other sorts, if given the same exposure and culture. The continental growers with their inherited collections introduce but few novelties, and are not swelling their lists rapidly.

"We may be in the midst of a peony craze. I commend to the American growers, the conservatism of the continental growers, and the study of climatic conditions. By far the most valuable work done in America in peonies was that of Mr. Richardson, alluded to by Mr. Watson. When we consider the time of his work, that he did it when there was little general appreciation of the peony, and that he produced a set of them, which at the time was not surpassed by any in the world, it is a surprising thing. Unfortunately they bloom late (not all—there are early vars. also—Ed) and so are not seen at our exhibitions. But the fact that Mr. Richardson was of Boston, that the flowers were first shown at a meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, seems to point to a holding of a special exhibition of the Richardson peonies as a tribute to the man and in recognition of the work and its plan. Such an exhibition could be called a memorial, and could be used to bring out the peonies raised by him."

Paeonia Lutea.

A plant of this distinct and rare species is at present in flower in the Himalayan house at Kew, where it is planted out in a border, in a light position among other plants, says a correspondent of the Gardeners' Chronicle of June 11. It was received as a young plant from the Jardin des Plantes, Paris, in 1898 and flowered at Kew for the first time in 1900, when a figure was prepared for the Botanical Magazine, t. 7788. This species forms a perennial woody stem, after the style of its near relative P. Moutan, but does not attain nearly to the dimensions of that species. The Kew plant, although some seven or eight years old, has only formed a woody stem about eight inches high. The greater part of the annual stems dying back to almost the base, the woody stem elongates but very little each year. Early in the present spring, when growth should have commenced, for some reason or other the buds on the woody stems refused to start, and it was feared that the plant would die; but to our surprise several growths appeared from below the surface of the soil, near the base of the old stems, while a few others appeared about two feet away; these have all grown vigorously and are now just coming into bloom. The flowers are usually solitary and terminal, but occasionally the more vigorous shoots produce two and even three blossoms each. The flowers are of bright yellow color, two and one-half inches in diameter, with six to ten petals, and numerous short stamens of the same color as the petals, and in the center of which are three small green carpels. The leaves are ternatisect, of soft texture, a foot or more in length and about the same in breadth, and more or less glaucous both above and below.

For the introduction of this lovely plant into European gardens we are indebted to the Abbe Delavay, who discovered it in the mountains of Yunnan, S. China, in 1882, and who sent seeds home to the Jardin des Plantes. Part of the young stock came into the hands of Lemoine, of Nancy, who worked up a stock and introduced it to commerce. From an account of this plant which appeared recently in an American paper, it is stated to graft readily on the roots of the herbaceous peony. I have not tried this method, but have several times endeavored to work it on to those of P. Moutan, but without success. It will no doubt prove to be a useful plant to the hybridist on account of its color, and may be the progenitor of a new race of peonies.

In the note which accompanies the figure in the Botanical magazine, mention is made of the interesting fact that double and single forms occur in both the wild and cultivated state. The Kew specimen has so far only produced single flowers.

Canadian Horticultural Association.

The seventh annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association will be held in Ottawa, Ont., Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, August 9, 10 and 11. The sessions and trade exhibits will be held in Goldsmith's hall. Exhibits must be staged before 11 a. m., August 9, when judging will begin. Communications in regard to exhibits should be addressed to E. I. Mepstead, 199 Sparks street, Ottawa. Tuesday afternoon and evening and Wednesday morning will be devoted to business meetings. Wednesday afternoon a visit to the experimental farm will be made. Wednesday evening the business of the convention will be closed and officers elected. Thursday there will be an all day session with the Ottawa Florists' Club, when all interesting places in and around the city will be visited. The secretary of the Canadian Horticultural Association is A. H. Ewing, Woodstock, Ont.

Papers to be read during the meetings are: "Hardy Perennials Suitable for Florists," by Prof. W. T. Macoun of the experimental farm, illustrated by a large collection; "What Is the Best Fuel for Greenhouses?" discussion opened by C. Scrim; "Florists' Trade From a Retail Standpoint," by A. C. Wilshire, Montreal; "Holiday Plants," by William Gammage, London, Ont.; "What Is the Best Way to Grow Violets," discussion opened by William Fendley; "What Advantage Has Iron Construction in Greenhouses Over the Old Wooden Construction," question box for Wednesday morning.

New England Notes.

LONG MEADOW, MASS.—Linwood Morgan is in bankruptcy. Liabilities $2008; assets $210.

STOUGHTON, MASS.—Robert Hutcheon decorated the hall handsomely with palms and flowers on the occasion of the dedication of the new public library on June 30.

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.—M. F. Coleman, who has been in business for twenty-eight years, has sold his home and three greenhouses to Thomas Quadland and will engage in the same business in some other town. He has not yet decided on a location.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.—Edward J. Canning, of the Botanical Gardens, Smith's College, sailed on the S. S. Ivernia, July 5 with his wife and family for a two months' trip to England to visit his mother and friends. He expects to visit Kew, Chatsworth and many other places abroad.

The New Geranium Telegraph.

The new geranium Telegraph, illustrated herewith, originated with Thomas De Voy & Son, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., 1900, and is the result of crossing the varieties Mrs. E. G. Hill and The Wonder. It is said to be a strong, free grower, the leaves dark green with a heavy zone. The flowers are very large, single and of a rich, deep orange cerise color. With the originators it has proved to be an excellent bedder and useful alike for conservatory and window decoration. It was awarded a certificate of merit by the Dutchess County Horticultural Society, November, 1903, and a similar honor by the New York Florists' Club, April, 1904. Messrs. De Voy & Son state that it will be distributed the coming fall.

Newport Horticultural Society.

ROSE AND STRAWBERRY SHOW.

Although, on account of the lateness of the season, the June exhibition of the Newport Horticultural Society was held June 29 and 30 instead of June 21 and 22, as previously announced, the show was a great success. The roses were the main feature and were of splendid quality. The displays of cut roses arranged for effect in a space not exceeding 3.6 feet were grand. All exhibits in this class deserve much credit. The first prize went to Arthur Griffin, gardener to E. T. Gerry; second to Colin Robertson, gardener to Mrs. Robert Golet; and third to John Marshall, gardener to Perry Belmont.

The first prize for fancy basket of roses was awarded to Arthur Griffin for Ulrich Brunners.

The best twenty-five blooms of American Beauty were John Marshall's.

For six H. P. varieties John Marshall won first and James Robertson, gardener to Mrs. T. O. Richardson, second, Marshall showing John Hopper, Fisher Holmes, Ulrich Brunner, Mrs. John Laing, Baroness Rothschild and Mrs. R. G. Sharman Crawford; and Robertson showing Alfred Calomb, Ulrich Brunner, Mrs. John Laing, Thomas Wood, Monsieur Boncenne and Mlle. Suzanne Marie Rodocanachi.

James Robertson with Ulrich Brunner, Colin Robertson with General Jacqueminot, and John Marshall with Ulrich Brunner were the winners in order for hardy red roses.

In hardy pink roses James Robertson was first with Mrs. R. G. Sharman Crawford; Arthur Griffin second with Mrs. John Laing, and Colin Robertson third with Madame Gabriel Luizet.

In the class for H. P. white only one prize was awarded, a first to James Robertson for Margaret Dickson.

For best vase twenty-five H. P. of any color James Robertson took first, John Marshall second and Colin Robertson third.

A very pretty class was for ladies' corsage bouquets, open to gardeners' assistants only; taken by Samuel Williams with gardenias. Mr. Williams is at Perry Belmont's.

Arthur Griffin exhibited a beautiful vase of assorted irises and was awarded first prize.

There were no peonies in the show, they having gone past their bloom here. A well grown collection of hardy herbaceous blooms, all correctly named, was staged by Alexander Anderson, gardener to Mrs. T. J. Emery. Among these were very fine specimens of Coreopsis lanceolata, Gaillardias, campanulas and delphiniums. Mr. Anderson was awarded first prize in this class. Gardenias were very fine this year, John Marshall and Arthur Griffin taking the prizes. There were no glorioxias exhibited.

William S. Nichol, gardener to Dr. Alexander S. Clarke, and James Robertson won first and second respectively for Rex begonias.

The prizes for crotons went to Colin Robertson and David McIntosh, gardener to Mrs. C. M. Bell.

In dracaenas, Arthur Griffin was first and David McIntosh second.

For fern dish, not to exceed twelve inches in diameter, the prizes were given to Arthur Griffin, James Robertson and David McIntosh.

For basket of foliage plants, not to exceed sixteen inches, Arthur Griffin and Colin Robertson were the prize winners.

The prizes for specimen kentias went to Arthur Griffin, Colin Robertson and David McIntosh.

For specimen arecas Colin Robertson was first and David McIntosh second.

For pair of Pandanus Veitchii Arthur Griffin and Colin Robertson were first and second.

For specimen nephrolepis third prize went to Arthur Griffin.

The F. R. Pierson Company, Tarrytown, N. Y., showed its improved Pierson fern, which was awarded the silver medal of our society. It would be a hard task to describe its elegance.

Arthur Griffin received a certificate of merit for a beautiful collection of plants of the new Scottish fern. It is very compact and symmetrical, and our gardeners liked it very much.

James Robertson was awarded a certificate of merit for a seedling dracaena. The plant was much admired.

Colin Robertson, for a very beautiful vase of digitalis was awarded a gratuity of $5.

A silver medal was awarded to Miss E. J. Clark, of Pomfret Center, Conn., for a group of black and white grapes and peaches; a certificate of merit was also awarded Miss Clark for the new black grape, Diamond Jubilee; John Ash is Miss Clark's gardener.

A special gratuity of $6 was awarded to Samuel Williams for a basket of American Beauty roses. A bronze medal was awarded to David McIntosh for a choice collection of seedling dracaenas.

Fifty beautiful plants of the new rose, Madame Norbert Levavasseur, were exhibited by Arthur Griffin and received a silver medal.

A fine group of rubber plants shown by William S. Nichol received a special gratuity of $8.

The Blue Hill Nursery Company, of South Braintree, Mass., was awarded a special gratuity of $6 for a collection of hardy herbaceous perennials.

Lager & Hurrell, of Summit, N. J., made a very fine display of orchids, among which were noted some choice types of Cattleya gigas, Laelia Digbyana, Vanda tores and Dendrobium Bensoniae. A special gratuity of $10 was awarded them.

George Melvin, gardener to Col. Charles Pfaff, of South Framingham, Mass., was awarded honorable mention for Brassia verrucosa.

Honorable mention and a gratuity of $3 were given to David McIntosh for a new hardy yellow antirrhinum, Annie McIntosh; a seedling of his. It is a grand thing.

New Geranium Telegraph in 4-inch Pot.

Arthur Griffin received a certificate of merit for Dracaena Godseffiana.

M. H. Walsh, of Woods Holl, Mass., exhibited a beautiful collection of climbing roses, including Wedding Bells, a seedling from the Crimson Rambler, which opens a bright pink then fades to white. Debutante and Carrissima, seedlings of the Wichuraiana type, were both very beautiful climbers, the first a rose-pink and the latter a dark pink. Both fade to white.

Miss S. B. Fay, of Woods Holl, Mass., was awarded a certificate of merit for the new hybrid tea rose Mildred Grant. It is not easy to describe the loveliness of this new flower. Carl Jurgens pronounced it grand. It is a flesh-pink, the outer petals as it opens growing lighter, a very strong grower with heavy stems and handsome foliage. M. H. Walsh, who has charge of Miss Fay's estate, speaks very highly of this introduction of Alexander Dickson & Sons, Belfast, Ireland.

Hugh Williamson, gardener to W. W. Astor, staged for exhibition a collection of hardy roses that would be hard to improve. They were greatly admired.

The regular prizes for Black Hamburg grapes went to Alexander Anderson, James McLeish and John Marshall.

For the best twelve tomatoes Alexander Anderson was first with Sutton's Best of All and John Marshall's Stirling Castle were second.

First for two Telegraph cucumbers went to Alexander Anderson.

The prizes for collections of vegetables were very closely contested, and all the entries deserve much credit. First went to Alexander Anderson and Samuel Speers, gardener to Mrs. W. B. Greene, secured second.

Besides first prize for collection of strawberries, Arthur Griffin was awarded honorable mention. Colin Robertson took second and first for both Gandy and Brandywine. A special prize of $3 was awarded Samuel Speers for a very fine dish of Burbach No. 5.

The judges of the exhibition were: William N. Craig, gardener to Miss Minnie Ames, North Easton, Mass.; Fred C. Green, gardener to Senator Aldrich, of Warwick Neck, R. I., and M. H. Walsh, of Woods Holl, Mass. The society feels much pleased with its sixth annual exhibition, as it certainly was a great success. X.

British Trade Topics.

Good progress is being made with the erection of the new hall and offices of the Royal Horticultural Society at Westminster, towards the cost of which many leading members of the trade have liberally contributed. The spacious hall is to be used for the first show on Tuesday, July 26. The society has arranged to provide a scientific research station in connection with the new gardens at Wisley, which have been presented by Sir Thomas Hanbury. This, the centenary year of the society, will be a memorable one.

The society's show on Tuesday was well supported by the leading members of the trade. Roses were a special feature. In this section Benjamin R. Cant & Sons, of Colchester, who have a big connection among rosarians in the United States, made an admirable display. Their new climbing rose, Blush Rambler, is meeting with considerable favor, and has obtained several awards from the leading societies. F. Cant & Company, another Colchester firm, also distinguished themselves by their meritorious display of roses in which prominence was given to some fine specimens of Lady Roberts, of a rich apricot tint, a popular sport from Anna Oliver.

Veitch & Sons, of Chelsea, had a superb collection of orchids, besides staging a brilliant array of glorioxias and aqilegias. This firm is introducing several novelties this season. Among these are Aconitum Wilsoni, an imposing, erect-habited species, five to six feet, with large, pale blue or violet flowers produced in late summer; Actinidia Chinensis, an ornamental deciduous climbing shrub; Buddleia albidora, with pale mauve blooms; Astilbe Davidii, suitable for waterside planting, with mauve tinted blooms; Eupatorium vernale and Rehmannia angulata, herbaceous perennials.

The present season has been very favorable for roses, in strong contrast to the failures of 1903. A grand collection of this popular subject is expected at the summer exhibition of the National Rose Society in the Temple Gardens in July. This society has a membership of 1,000, with Dean Hole as president. A new departure is to be made this year in holding an exhibition in the autumn in the new hall of the Royal Horticultural Society.

A pamphlet has been sent out from the Horticultural Club in London, dealing with "Rose Growing Near Large Towns," this being the subject of a lecture given by H. E. Molyneux, a well known authority. Mr. Molyneux's method is described as follows: "In my own garden I am troubled with the soot and dirty deposits of the atmosphere, and I am sure it is a mistake to allow these to accumulate, especially in the growing season of the year; so every morning I go around my rose trees with a sprayer and thoroughly spray the tops of every tree. Two pailfuls of water are sufficient for 250, so it is not so long a job or so tiresome as many might suppose. If once or twice a week in May some insecticide is added to the water, even before greenfly appears, one is not likely to be troubled with it."

NEW HYBRID TEA ROSE MILDRED GRANT.

(Exhibited at the rose and strawberry show, Newport, R. I., June 29-30.

S. Mortimer, of the Rowledge Nurseries, Farnham, Surrey, has lately exhibited a new cucumber named Aristocrat, which is the result of a cross between Unique and Sensation, and it has received an award of merit from the Royal Horticultural Society. Purley Park Hero was the first seedling variety of cucumber he raised, and more than twenty years ago this received a first-class certificate from the R. H. S. Since then he has raised about a dozen varieties, including Express, Marvel, Matchless, Progress, Sensation, and The Keeper. All the cucumbers are pedigree varieties worked down from an original strain. Mr. Mortimer also raised the successful tomato, Winter Beauty.

J. Hill & Sons, of the Barrowfield Nursery, Lower Edmonton, London, have brought out a new fern, Pteris Binoti, which has received an award of merit from the R. H. S. This resembles Dryopteris palmata although of more vigorous growth, with thick fronds which are irregularly divided, some of the segments being forked. The Messrs. Hill occupy a leading position as fern raisers. Their nursery, comprising forty-five houses, is stocked with millions of plants in all stages of growth. As an indication of their trade it may be mentioned that in one year the number of small ferns sold exceeded 350,000. They have a large export trade in tree ferns, quantities being sent to America and Canada. Thousands of *Alsophila*s and Dicksonia Antarctica are in stock. About a hundred varieties of *Adiantum*s are cultivated, the rarest being Hendersoni. *Asplenium*s are grown on an extensive scale for the trade.

The Federation of Grocers' Associations recently discussed at a meeting in London the question of fruit grading and packing. A resolution was passed expressing the opinion that the movement in America in favor of the packing of apples in boxes of a reasonable capacity instead of barrels is deserving the strongest support at the hands of all retail dealers in this country. A copy of the resolution is to be sent to the American fruit associations.

New York.

The market appears to be under the control of the buyers rather than the sellers. It is many a long day since similar conditions existed. Much more stock is coming in than can be taken care of, and yet in comparison with the same period of other years the influx appears to be no greater. The demand is "away off," a circumstance for which no one ventures an explanation, and the tone of the market is in consequence very low. The wholesale establishments are practically dead after 10 o'clock in the morning, such real business as is done being concluded by that time, and the after business coming almost entirely from the bargain hunter who is much in evidence just now. Roses, while plentiful, are very poor in quality and unattractive. Choice stock, such as can be found, is quickly cleaned out but the general run is hard to move. American Beauties are in plentiful, but really choice stock continues scarce. Sweet peas are abundant, but are short stemmed and do not bring good prices. On Tuesday prime stock sold as low as 50 cents per hundred bunches. Lily of the valley is in good supply and fair in quality. Nice stock, however, does not command a profitable price, much of it going off at $1. Carnations are somewhat of a drug, and the bulk of the stock exceedingly poor. One wholesaler last week threw out nearly five thousand which went to sleep in the ice box in one night. There is some nice white houvardia coming in which brings 20 cents to 25 cents per bunch. The offerings of gladioli are increasing and are firm at quoted prices. Lilies show a little improvement in quality and are bringing better prices, prime stock commanding $4.

N. Lecakes & Company have succeeded to the business of Geo. E. Bradshaw, wholesale florist, at 53 West Twenty-eighth street, and will continue it in their own name. They will move from their present address, 45 West Twenty-ninth street to the Twenty-eighth street address and conduct all their business from there.

Wm. Amos, Sr., has retired from the firm of Wm. Amos & Son, Woodside, L. I., after thirty-five years spent in the business as a grower. The business will in future be conducted by his son under the style of Wm. Amos, Jr. Mr. Amos, Sr., is the president of the New York Cut Flower Exchange.

Joseph Grulich, of 113 Hudson street, Hoboken, N. J., sails July 19 for Europe on the Slavonic and will be gone four months. He will spend much of this time on a visit to his old Hungarian home. His son will manage his business during his absence.

Geo. Ripperger, 207 Academy street, Long Island City, manufacturer of sheep manure for florists, is moving his plant to Buffalo, N. Y., which location he finds more convenient for both his supply of raw material and distribution of stock.

G. F. Lauferberger, formerly of the Bronx, after spending a year and a half in Europe, has returned to open a store at Fifth avenue and Union street, Brooklyn.

ROSE AND STRAWBERRY SHOW AT NEWPORT, R. I., JUNE 29-30.

The sixth annual outing of the employes of George M. Stumpp, 761 Fifth avenue, took place Wednesday, July 6. A number of the wholesale dealers and their assistants were on hand to share the enjoyment.

The Brooklyn Horticultural Society has distributed its cash balance pro rata among its members, paying a dividend of twelve and one-half per cent.

George Middleton, superintendent of the William Rockefeller estate at Tarrytown, sailed for Europe on the steamship Baltic, July 13.

At a special meeting of the directors of the New York Cut Flower Exchange last Saturday Philip J. Kessler was appointed general manager.

Alex. J. Guttman will depart in a few days for Lake Huntingdon, Sutherland county, this state, where he will put in a vacation.

Israel Eisenberg, of Astoria, L. I., has the contract for supplying flowers to the principal hotels at Far Rockaway, L. I.

George Saltford is preparing to leave before the end of the month on a cruise among the Thousand Islands.

George Kogge, of Hoboken, and his family are summering at their cottage at Sheepshead Bay, L. I.

Nicholas Schriner, of J. K. Allen's establishment has just returned from his honeymoon trip.

Much complaint is heard in regard to collections, which are slower than for some time past.

A. H. Langjahr is receiving some large lots of choice gladioli, mostly white, and inside grown.

Julius Lang is dividing his time between a near-by summer resort and his place of business.

Gustave C. C. Schrader, of Elmhurst, L. I., has found it necessary to install a telephone.

Louis Schmutz, of Flatbush, is away on a fishing trip at Huguenot, Staten Island.

The vacation season is on in earnest, and long planned trips are materializing.

John Krawl, of Moore, Hentz & Nash is suffering from a badly sprained ankle.

D. Y. Mellis, of Flatbush, with family, is spending a few weeks at Lake George.

Ernest Berger, of Yonkers, N. Y., is on a two weeks' vacation at St. Louis.

Chas. Carlin, of Thorley's, is enjoying his usual two months' vacation.

Joseph McManus handled a fine lot of Cattleya Dowiana last week.

Chas. Schenck is enjoying a well earned two weeks' vacation.

Chas. Smith, of Woodside, L. I., is on the sick list.

Visitor: Ernst A. Lundberg, Irvington-on Hudson, N. Y.

Chicago.

The general tone of the market was slightly better than that of the last two weeks, both in the somewhat improved quality of stock, carnations especially, and a fairly active demand. Shipping holds up to normal summer standards and could be much improved if the most sought for stock were more easily available. Carnations have been decidedly off and but few fancies or even first class ordinaries are seen. Roses are holding to good quality as well as is expected in this weather. Kaiserin is exceptionally scarce and the few growers of this rose are sorely beset with a ravenous demand. There are yet a few peonies to be seen, but they have passed their day.

William H. Chadwick has sent us some exceptionally fine blooms from his orchid collection, including Sobralia macrantha, Vanda teres and Thunia alba. The flower-bearing sobralia stems are four feet high and judging from the specimens received, Mr. Chadwick's strain of thunias is an exceptionally fine one.

Local florists this week were apprised of the sudden death of C. H. Hammarly, of Lake Geneva, Wis., well known to the trade. His death occurred July 2 at a time when he was apparently in the best of health. Heart disease is assigned as the cause of his sudden taking away.

James Cumming, formerly with the Stoke-Pogis Nursery Company at Philadelphia, Pa., stopped in this city Saturday enroute from St. Louis, where he has been engaged since February as a foreman in the landscape department at the World's Fair.

The entire business of the Brant & Noe Floral Company, in the Flower Growers' Market, has been leased by the first named partner, D. Wood Brant, and the business will be conducted along the same lines as heretofore. Mr. Noe is in the east.

At the Fuchs sale, July 14, there was a good attendance and the prices realized on the stock were fair. Late in the afternoon it looked as if everything would be sold out.

L. H. Winterson and wife returned this week from their honeymoon trip. They have taken up their residence at 1036 Otto street, near Southport avenue, Lake View.

Miss Edith White, bookkeeper at Frank Garland's, left this week for her home at Lake Charles, La., where she will spend the summer months.

Phil Hauswirth and Chas. Kochman, with their wives and a party of friends, spent a short vacation at The Dells, Wis., returning July 12.

Poehlmann Brothers Company is cutting good winter grown American Beauty, as choice as there are to be had.

C. L. Washburn is spending his vacation in northern Wisconsin. He left Monday of this week.

Sinner Brothers' Lawson carnations are holding consistently to form and color.

Bentley-Coatsworth Company is in with a fine lot of Bride and Bridesmaid roses.

E. C. Amling and family have returned from a pleasant trip to Lake Marie.

N. J. Wietor is spending several weeks in northern Wisconsin, fishing.

John Dadie is the new superintendent of the West parks.

Visitors: George Vatter and son Frank, of Marinette, Wis., on their way to Europe, where the latter intends pursuing a two years' college course in horticulture; P. Larson, Fort Dodge, Ia.

BRANDON, MANITOBA.—The June flower show here was held in the council chamber and was a great success. One hundred and five bouquets were upon exhibition and twenty-six wreaths and crosses. Excellent skill and artistic taste was displayed by the exhibitors in the composition and arrangement of their exhibits.

STERLING, ILL.—Robert Lundstrom, successor to F. A. Belt and proprietor of the Sterling Floral Company, is making some extensive changes and repairs at the greenhouses. One new house will be built, 22x85 feet. A partition will be built in one of the other houses and one part will be used for roses and the other part for carnations.

Philadelphia.

The usual summer quiet prevails. Business is down to the lowest ebb and vacations and general store and stock repairs are in order. In many places the smell of fresh paint is prevalent, coming from rejuvenated pot covers and plant stands which have undergone their annual paint bath. Asters are now appearing and will add nicely to the assortment. They are not much as yet for quality, but in a week or ten days they will be in good shape. Kaiserin, imported American Beauty and Carnot are about the only roses worth mentioning. Leo Neissen is getting fine Beauty and Carnot from Newport. They are almost equal to the winter stock. At the Flower Market achillea, iris and other outdoor stock are the best of the home grown Roses are plentiful. Business is good for the season. Manager Meehan says they have prospects of several additional stall holders to begin the fall season.

Fred Ehret is getting some fine Kaiserin roses from Faust, of Merion. The same grower is also sending in Adiantum Croweanum in quantity. His stock of this famous fern is looking fine, and a new house is in course of construction to be planted for next winter's cutting.

W. C. Smith, of Sixtieth and Market streets, is running one of his houses out to Market street, where the end is to be finished as a store front. This is a bid for the retail trade, which is increasing rapidly in his neighborhood. Two houses of rubber plants are kept constantly massed up. Mr. Smith says he finds a steady demand for the young stock.

A. B. Cartledge, of Pennock Brothers, had most of the employes of the store on a trip up the Delaware on his new yacht July 10. The boat is a beauty and all hands enjoyed the voyage and the lunch on the island immensely.

Ralph Shrigley, of Pennock's, is off to the shore on his vacation. K.

NOTES.

Jacob Becker, Fifty-second and Market streets, is building a store in front of his greenhouses to accommodate the retail trade in that growing section. William C. Smith, Sixtieth and Market streets, is doing likewise. The remarkable development of this district is an assurance of the success of such enterprise.

Robert Craig & Son are doubling their production of crotons for the holiday trade. For the past two years the firm has given a good deal of attention to the demand for these plants.

Dumont & Company, Thirteenth and Filbert streets, are fitting up a house at their Secane place, 50x150 feet, as a mushroom house, with six tiers of beds.

Dracæna terminalis should be plentiful and good next Christmas. Several of the best growers have large quantities.

Some of the best growers of Liberty roses in Philadelphia claim that dried blood is their best fertilizer.

Cyclamens, judging from present appearances, will be in good supply for the holiday season.

Wm. K. Harris reports a satisfactory influx of orders for the new Primula Buttercup.

An increased quantity of poinsettias will also be in evidence for the holiday trade.

A visitor this week was James T. Scott, of the F. R. Pierson Company, Tarrytown, N. Y.

Boston.

Business is decidedly off with florists, nurserymen, seedsmen and all others except the newspaper man, who must dig up some business once a week whether it comes or not. Stock is in sympathy with the prevailing July conditions and none of it is such as to excite any particular spasm of pride in the grower thereof. Neither is the amount of cash received in exchange for it such as to develop any appreciable bulge in his pocket-book. Some of the boys are away on their summer outing, enjoying sea breezes or mountain scenery or munching the juicy raspberry or crunching the attentive mosquito. Those that stay at home are sufficiently numerous to attend to all the calls that materialize for funerals or other occasions that are never out of season, winter or summer. American Beauty is seen in all grades of good and indifferent, mainly the latter, quality. Queen of Edgely lags behind it at present in the estimation of the buyer. Bride and Bridesmaid are as bad as can be, size, shape and color being very low in the scale. Carnot and Kaiserin are the best roses seen at the present time. Carnations are down to smallest size, excepting only the Lawson and Lillian Pond, both of which are still seen in fair-sized flowers. Lily of the valley, which during the month of weddings enjoyed a good run, is now down to low ebb, there being but small sale for it. Altogether there is very little encouragement in any line.

The first of the weekly exhibitions at Horticultural Hall on Saturday, July 9, was a splendid success, the hall being gorgeous with Japan irises, delphiniums, campanulas and resplendent collections of hardy herbaceous bloom. Honorable mention was given J. E. Rothwell for the seedling cypripedium, Mrs. J. E. Rothwell (C. album × C. niveum), and C. × Burbidgeanum (C. Dayanum × C. concolor), and to the F. L. Ames estate for Scarlet Gem sweet peas. M. H. Walsh made a fine display of Rambler roses. Peter Cairns showed roses and irises. The Harvard Botanic Garden, Blue Hill Nursery and Carl Blomberg showed hardy herbaceous material. R. & J. Farquhar exhibited the Farquhar rose and irises. The F. L. Ames estate showed sweet peas. L. H. Atkins, Mrs. E. M. Gill, Geo. Hollis and others exhibited miscellaneous flowers. The prizes were won as follows: Miss S. B. Fay, roses; Wm. Whitman and Mrs. J. L. Gardner first and second for Japan iris; Wm. Whitman for campanulas; Mrs. Winthrop Chandler, Wm. Whitman and Mrs. J. L. Gardner, first, second and third respectively for delphiniums and Walter Hunnewell, W. J. Clemson and Bay State Nurseries first, second and third for hardy herbaceous stock and grasses. Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears won a first-class certificate for superior cultivation of nectarines.

Whole stretches of wild roses have had to be cut down in the parkways because of a disfiguring fungous growth which is particularly active this year. Mr. Pettigrew attributes the trouble in part to the two preceding dry summers and the recent hard winter. Rosa lucida is especially affected. R. blanda is not so severely attacked.

W. A. Manda is spending a few days in this neighborhood looking after business and incidentally renewing acquaintance with old friends and old scenes familiar to him years ago, before he left us to become a Jerseyman.

George A. Sutherland has been declared bankrupt in the U. S. District court and a meeting of creditors is appointed for July 19, 10 a. m., at Room 121, Post Office building, Boston.

Jackson Dawson has been quite sick and an operation was performed on his head, the trouble being a legacy from the assault made on him by a highwayman a few years ago.

A. Leuthy sailed on the Kroonland for Antwerp last Saturday.

Baltimore.

No exceptional features have interrupted the week's unvarying dullness of trade. Except for funeral work there is practically no business. Of course the stores must have some stock, but much of it wastes. Inside carnations are about over, and the temperature has been too high for good roses. Cochetts from outside begin to be abundant, but there are few carnations.

A curious instance of systematic pillage of growing palms deserves mention. A professor of distinction and reputation in one of our great institutions, who has a handsome suburban place imported some years ago a dozen and a half rhododendrons which were planted on his grounds. They became established, flourished and flowered, making a good growth, but each spring some marauder has skilfully stolen one or two of the plants. The programme is unvarying. A wagon is driven near the place, a trench is dug around the plant, evidently by two men, and it is lifted with skill which shows familiarity with the process. Of course the professor is never at hand at the right moment, and though he has cartridges loaded with double charges, his group of rhododendrons is nearly gone, and he has no idea as to the depredator nor of the disposition made of his booty.

M. B. Taylor, representing the H. E. Newbury Company, of Magnolia, N. C., was a recent visitor to this city. His firm does a great business in growing bulbs, notably caladiums and tuberose, and it is responsible for the heavy shipments of gladioli which made their appearance in northern and western cities in May and June. They had about 90,000 in the field, planted without protection about February 1. A very large proportion was left on the ground. Although the finest varieties were used the markets offered no adequate outlet, the heavy charges of the express companies as usual taking the edge off of the profits. Mr. Taylor thinks their example will not be followed by other growers, and his concern will hardly go so largely into this specialty again.

Apathy prevails regarding the St. Louis meeting of the Society of American Florists. Up to date Frederick C. Bauer, who is putting his house in order to attend, is the only member of the trade announcing such an intention. An effort is being made to interest the Gardeners' Club in an excursion jointly for Baltimore and Washington people, to take in the week of the meeting, with numerous advantages as to rates, accommodations, etc.

There has been an entire week of torrid and sweltering weather, with daily electrical disturbances of great violence. There have been heavy downpours of rain without much reducing the temperature. Twice there was considerable hail, but no damage is reported.

J. E. Bartell, of Radnor avenue, is building two violet houses, intending this year to make a specialty by the production of the Farquhar. S. B.

New Bedford, Mass.

The usual summer quietness is now with us. There is still a little call for plants, mostly from summer residents on the sea shore. Good scarlet geraniums and vincas are sold out completely. There has been considerable funeral work lately. At the funeral of Chief Macy of the fire department there were a great number of designs. One caused a decided sensation. It was a full-sized fireman made of flowers and immortelles sent by the New Bedford fire department. Such designs make people disgusted. The notice "Please Omit Flowers" is becoming quite common.

We are having very comfortable summer weather with plenty of showers, and all vegetation is growing very nicely. We had one hard hailstorm in June that just reached the northern edge of the city, but did not touch any of the greenhouses. There will be no greenhouse building here this summer. Labor and material are so high and business so dull it is better to wait awhile.

JACKSONVILLE, ILL.—Joseph Heintl & Sons have incorporated with a capital of $20,000 for an agricultural, horticultural and floricultural business. Joseph Heintl, Harry Heintl and William Heintl are the firm members.

OBITUARY.

Edward Butler.

Edward Butler, gardener at Wellesley College, died at the Massachusetts General Hospital on June 25, aged 51 years. Mr. Butler was born on Branksea Island, his father being gardener for the celebrated Col. Waugh, who owned the island and bankrupted himself in beautifying it. The senior Mr. Butler was afterwards gardener at Apley Castle, in Shropshire, for a short time, then went into business as nurseryman and florist in 1861 in Wellington Salop. Young Edward was sent as an apprentice to Crewe Hall, Cheshire, where he served four years, and then worked for his father until 1871, when he came to America. Here he was employed for one year on the estate of ex-Governor Claflin at Newtonville, Mass., and then took the position as gardener for H. F. Durant at Wellesley. When Mr. Durant founded Wellesley College, turning over his beautiful estate for that purpose, Mr. Butler remained in charge and had held the position ever since. Being somewhat of a botanist he was very helpful to the college in that branch of study. He was a thorough gardener and his high abilities as a plant grower were frequently displayed at the exhibitions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, in whose annals his name repeatedly appears as winning high honors. He was a genial, good-hearted man, a thorough gentleman, of quiet manner, and held in the highest esteem by his fellow-gardeners. He leaves a widow and five children. His father and mother are still living, each being 86 years old. His father retired from business ten years ago. W. W. Edgar, of Waverly, Mass., who had worked for the old gentleman in 1861, called to see the aged couple when visiting England two years ago and found them enjoying excellent health, considering their advanced age. See portrait page 982.

Suit Caused by Brick Dust.

F. A. Conway & Company, of Indianapolis, Ind., have brought suit against Cook & Schmidt, brick manufacturers, in Justice Smock's court for damages they claim has been done to their stock by dust from the bricks. The smoke, it is claimed, causes the plants to wither and die. Conway & Company ask for $50 damages.

THE ST. LOUIS CONVENTION.

To Members and the Trade:

The time of our convention is close at hand and the busy season about at an end.

I want to remind you of the duty you owe to the society. It is important that the membership be increased, and to that end we urge your support.

Every member should get at least one new member, and as many more as he can. Especially do I call attention to the state vice-presidents.

We want to make this meeting at St.
Louis a success. It should be the most successful in the history of the society.

Do not miss the opportunity to meet old friends and make new ones—men you have heard about but never met.

The secretary will accept your application now, so send it in at once.

Let us all meet at St. Louis in August.

PHILIP BREITMEYER, Pres.

PRELIMINARY CONVENTION PROGRAMME.

The preliminary programme of the nineteenth annual meeting and exhibition to be held at the Exposition building, St.
Louis, Mo., August 16-19, has been issued. The first day will be devoted to the usual preliminaries, including the judging of exhibits and closing with the president's reception in the evening. The amendment to the constitution, recommended by the executive board, will be taken up on the third day, August 18.

There will be addresses on the fourth day by eminent foreign horticultural visitors. The papers to be read include "American Grown Bulbs," "The Development of an American Type of Roses," by E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; "The Ideal Employee," by J. C. Vaughan, Chicago; "Home and Municipal Improvement from a Horticultural Standpoint," by J. A.
Pettigrew, Boston, Mass., and "Indoor Blooming Plants," by J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, O.

Bowling contests between teams representing the various florists' clubs are scheduled for the second day, Wednesday, August 17, at 2 p. m. The Palace bowling alleys, Twenty-second street and Franklin avenue, have been selected for the tournament. The shooting contest will take place at the Du Pont shooting park at 2 p. m. Thursday, August 18, and during the same afternoon there will be a reception and garden party at the Shaw Gardens on invitation of Director William Trelease and the trustees of the Missouri Botanical Garden. The annual meeting of the Florists' Hail Association will be held Thursday, August 18, at 2 p. m., the American Carnation Society at 4 p. m.

TRANSPORTATION.

Special World's Fair rates prevail on all railroads, and information regarding them may be obtained at any railroad ticket office. These tickets are round-trip tickets. They are classified as season excursion tickets, sixty-day tickets, fifteen-day tickets and seven-day tickets, the rate being based on the accommodations provided, but in each case very low, and every member of the society should take advantage of the opportunity offered to attend the convention and visit the great exposition. For most S. A. F. members the fifteen-day tickets will be found the most desirable. These tickets allow of stop-over privileges both going and coming. They are good only to return over the same route as traveled going, but those who desire can have them issued to return over a different route at a moderate additional cost. The seven-day tickets are coach tickets only, and can not be used for transportation on sleeping or parlor cars.

PAYING DUES.

Members who have attended previous conventions and know something of the discomforts of waiting in line for an opportunity to pay assessments and procure badges do not need to be reminded to forward their dues to the secretary in advance and thereby contribute to their own comfort and facilitate the secretary's work. Dues can not be paid while meetings are in progress, and applicants will be demanding attention before the opening session on the first day, the possession of a badge and membership receipt for 1904 being absolutely necessary before any individual can sign the roll book and receive invitation cards for the various entertainments provided. On receipt of $3 from those who have paid membership dues for 1903 and $5 for all others certificate and badge for 1904 will be mailed promptly from the secretary's office. Preserve your certificate and bring it to the convention with you.

TRADE EXHIBITION.

The trade exhibition will be, as heretofore, a prominent feature of the convention. Growers of plants, seeds, bulbs, shrubs and trees, dealers in florists' supplies, greenhouse requisites, building material for greenhouse construction, heating apparatus, etc., can here meet the best buyers in the horticultural proprofession, and no better opportunity for directing attention to the special merits of their goods can be found. Attention of exhibitors and other parties interested is particularly called to the new system of judging, whereby the duties of the judges are limited to the making of awards to novelties and improved devices only, and exhibitors are required to make previous entry of all such exhibits with the superintendent in writing. Full rules and regulations, together with diagrams of the exhibition hall, may be obtained from C. A. Kuehn, superintendent, 1172 Pine street, St. Louis, to whom all applications for space should be made as early as possible, as space is already largely disposed of.

OBJECT OF THE SOCIETY.

The object of the society is to render such services to the florists of America as will add to their standing as a profession and promote their material prosperity. The amount saved to the florists in express charges during the past year, through the instrumentality of the S. A. F., was more than four times the cost of the society during its eighteen years' existence, and matters of equal importance are liable to come up at any time.

If not a member you should become one and thus contribute your little share towards maintaining your national society. Now is the best time to do it; $5 the first year; $3 annually thereafter. Address the secretary, Wm. J. Stewart, 11 Hamilton Place, Boston, Mass.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

A. C. Zvolanek, Grand View, N. J., submits for registration the following named sweet peas: Raritan, double, dark blue; Hudson, double, soft pink; Delaware, double, lavender; Passaic, double, pink and white. All bearing from three to five flowers on 14-inch stems. Height six feet. Adapted to outdoor culture only. Wm. J. STEWART, Sec'y.

NOTICE

—OF—

STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING.

CHICAGO, July 1, 1904.

Stockholders of the American Florist Company:

You are hereby notified that the annual meeting of the Stockholders of the American Florist Company will be held in the Rozier Hotel, St. Louis, Mo., Wednesday, August 17, 1904, at 3 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of electing directors and officers for the ensuing term, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

J. C. VAUGHAN, Pres.
M. BARKER, Sec'y.

Syracuse, N. Y.

The six 460 foot greenhouses of L. E. Marquisee in Delaware street are the scene of considerable activity at the present time. Alterations are being made including the putting in of new pipes, for heating. Mr. Marquisee's men are engaged in transplanting carnation seedlings. One of the long greenhouses is filled with a variety of red carnations, which are thriving well. The Sunbird, a light yellow which Mr. Marquisee put out last winter, is also doing well. In addition the seedlings include a new carnation which as yet has not been named. The changes Mr. Marquisee is making are principally in the propagating house, which last winter was found not sufficiently heated.

Thomas W. Quigley, Jr., son of Police Captain Thomas W. Quigley, is the latest to join the ranks of the Syracuse florists. He has three large greenhouses at 120 Malcolm street, in which are to be found a fine assortment of carnations and plants. Mr. Quigley last week executed a handsome casket piece for Beer Drivers' Union No. 49 of this city. It contained about 1,000 carnations and covered the casket. The piece was sent to the funeral of a union member, John Dunn, whose body was shipped to Jersey City, N. J. Mr. Quigley has a wide circle of friends in Syracuse.

PASSENGER STEAMSHIP MOVEMENTS.

The tables herewith give the scheduled time of departure of ocean steamships carrying first-class passengers from the principal American and foreign ports, covering the space of two weeks from date of this issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST. Much disappointment often results from attempts to forward flowers for steamer delivery by express, to the care of the ship's steward or otherwise. The carriers of these packages are not infrequently refused admission on board and even those delivered on board are not always certain to reach the parties for whom they were intended. Hence florists in interior cities having orders for the delivery of flowers to passengers on out-going steamers are advised to intrust the filling of such orders to some reliable florist in the port of departure, who understands the necessary details and formalities and has the facilities for attending to it properly. For the addresses of such firms we refer our readers to the advertisements on this page:

Lowell, Mass.

With the advent of July business has taken a flight elsewhere and there is hardly anything doing. During the last week funeral work has been away off. With this unusual quiet spell stock is in abundant supply, although most of it finds its way to the rubbish barrel the day after being cut. Asters are struggling for a place at the front, but those being sent in just now are not quite up to the standard. Every grower in Tewksbury has gone into aster growing this summer on a large scale. Sweet peas are to be had now in any quantity, all colors in bunches of twenty-five at 25 cents per 100.

The park commission is now up in arms over the alarming large army of the brown-tail moths which made their appearance last week. At first only a few came, but within a few days they covered the entire city in alarming numbers. Already the commissioners have drawn up a bill which will be presented to the city council at the next meeting for an extra appropriation so as to be able to cope with this destructive thing. So far Superintendent Whittet has managed to keep up with the pest at Fort Hill park.

Harvey B. Green's establishment has been a place of great activity the last few weeks. The entire heating arrangement has been changed to a more economic system. Mr. Green has also put in a good sanitary arrangement, making the entire place a model establishment.

Some of the shop windows are being filled with bloom of showy herbaceous plants these July days. McManmon has his window filled with these flowers, with a large card printed: "Pick out your plants now when they are in flower."

Peter McManmon was among the successful candidates who passed the civil service examination of the police board. It will not be long before Peter will be saying "move along."

Early closing is now in order throughout the entire city. Until September every Thursday at 12:30 p. m. finds everyone closed for the rest of the day. Try it in your town.

Some one fired off a giant cannon cracker the night before the Fourth in front of Dick Griffiths' store. The explosion cracked the window in a thousand pieces.

Kaiserin roses from the Exeter Rose Conservatories are showing up in good shape; so are their Chateaus, which are certainly good roses for this hot weather.

George W. Patten and wife have returned home after a delightful ten days' sojourn up in Vermont.

Providence, R. I.

Commencement business was very good considering the fact that flowers were tabooed by the school authorities. While the grammar schools seemed to be thoroughly scared by the order, the high schools gave orders for flowers as usual and the amount of business sent to the technical, English and classical high schools aggregated much more than ever before, while the private schools showed an increased use of bouquets and baskets. Business since has been quiet.

VISITED CHICAGO: F. A. Wilcox and wife, of Santa Clara, Cal., returning from an eastern visit, called on July 9; Harry L. Holmes, of Harrisburg, Pa.

THE Vilmoria monument fund now amounts to over 5,000 francs. The American members of the international committee are C. S. Sargent, Brookline, Mass.; Mr. Mac Mutrie, New York, and D. M. Ferry, Detroit, Mich.

ONION set crops in the Pennsylvania districts are reported as badly injured by maggots. At Louisville the crop is reported short. At Chicago the crop is quite uneven, some growers having a fine stand, others twenty-five per cent off.

New York.

A. E. Wheeler, of Weeber & Don, sailed for Europe on the steamship Baltic July 13.

R. W. Clucas, of Clucas & Boddington, has returned from a trip to the Carolinas.

Vaughan's Seed Store is busy with the first early shipment of Harrisii lilies.

Dan Wittpen, of McHutchinson & Company, sailed for Europe July 13.

Mailing Catalogues.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—We notice in the July 9 issue of your paper that the postmaster at Chicago states that the bill "providing for the payment of postage in bulk on large lots of third-class matter without stamps affixed" failed of passage in last congress. This statement is correct, but still it does not answer the inquiry nor convey the proper impression.

When it was seen that the bill would not be reached nor considered by congress at this session the following rider was inserted in the P. O. appropriation bill: "That hereafter, under such regulations as the postmaster general may establish for the collection of the lawful revenue and for facilitating the handling of such matter in the mails, it shall be lawful to accept for transmission in the mails quantities of not less than 2,000 identical pieces of third or fourth class matter without postage stamps affixed, provided that postage shall be fully prepaid thereon."

This was passed by the house of representatives, the senate concurring, on April 12, 1904, but the postmaster general, we believe, has not yet promulgated regulations. It is hoped that favorable rulings can be secured, permitting the mailing of catalogues in bulk at the gross weight at the rate of 8 cents per pound, thus doing away with the bother of affixing postage stamps.

A New Late Cabbage From Russia.

This is a variety of cabbage called the Volga which has been grown on Long Island during the past nine years, according to the American Agriculturist. The crop of 1903 was the fourth one from seed grown in this country. The heads of this variety are reported to weigh from ten to fifteen pounds. In shape it is midway between the Danish Ball Head and the Flat Dutch. It is considered one of the best for shipping and for kraut. It is a rapid-growing variety, valuable for a second crop. When planted the same time as the earliest varieties of Flat Dutch it made a solid head fully two weeks earlier than Early Summer, and twenty-five per cent larger. The heads are very uniform in size. In a field of four acres grown for seed purposes less than one per cent had to be thrown out. The variety is especially recommended as a quick-growing late sort.

Rocky Ford Melon Seeds.

The following with regard to Rocky Ford melon seeds is, practically, a reproduction of a bulletin by P. K. Blinn, recently published by the Experiment Station, Fort Collins, Col. There are in the bulletin four good illustrations, one of which is herewith reproduced by courtesy of the experiment station authorities:

The cantaloupe now known as the Rocky Ford was originally Burpee's Netted Gem, but under the favorable conditions which prevail in the arid regions of Colorado, it has developed into a melon surpassing in quality the parent stock, and its superior merits have won for it a new name and a popular reputation.

In the early days of the cantaloupe industry at Rocky Ford the growers relied on eastern seedsmen for their supply of seed, and to a certain extent had satisfactory results until the growth of the industry exceeded the supply of reliable seed, when a number of growers were supplied with seed which produced a mixed lot of varieties, wholly unfit for market as Rocky Ford cantaloupes. The loss not only fell heavily on the disappointed grower, but through the agency of bees and other insects carrying the pollen, the injury was easily transmitted to neighboring fields of choice melons, producing crosses of an undesirable nature.

On account of the introduction of these mixed strains, and the varying ideas of seed selection, the Rocky Ford cantaloupe lacks uniformity in many respects; a large percentage of melons are unmarketable on account of size and form, which renders them unfit to crate. Defective netting and thin, soft flesh are also common imperfections. Because of these defects, the growers sustain a loss that could largely be prevented by planting a better grade of seed.

The cantaloupe is a product of years of systematic selection, and it requires the same methods to maintain its excellence as were employed in its development. Without care in selection, the natural tendency of all cultivated plants to vary will soon cause a good strain of cantaloupes to revert to an undesirable type.

There is a marked contrast between the products of carelessly selected and pedigreed, i. e., carefully selected, melon seed; the one is inclined to be irregular in size and form, with the netting thin and often wanting, and with a decided tendency to ripen prematurely, turning yellow and soft; a loss not uncommonly of twenty to forty per cent in culls, while choice seed produces melons that are uniform in size and shape, the netting thick and complete, the marketable stage more prolonged and practically no loss in culls.

The wide reputation of the Rocky Ford cantaloupe has created a great demand for Rocky Ford seed, as it is claimed to produce a higher grade of cantaloupe than seed from other states, and each year large quantities are saved to fill this demand, but unfortunately for the industry the quality of this supply is not what it should be; it is principally produced from the cull piles.

After frost, at the close of the shipping season, everything in the line of a cantaloupe, green or ripe, large or small, is gathered and run through a melon seeder, with no attempt at selection.

This seed is bought by the jobber and seedsmen for 10 to 20 cents per pound, and when it is on the market it cannot be distinguished from well selected seed, and doubtless is sold as such.

There would be nothing to commend such seed to any practical grower if he realized its source.

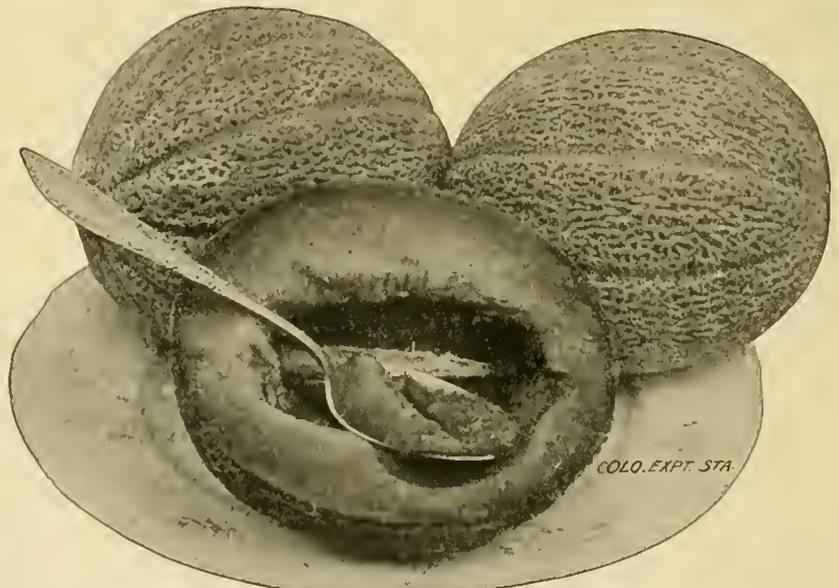

As the seed market has been so abused, to procure good seed one must either save it himself or have seen the melons from which it was saved, or purchase it from a reliable grower before it has passed through several hands.

The fact that seed can be had cheap and growers are willing to plant it, is an evident reason for its existence on the market, but the lack of information as to what constitutes a good seed cantaloupe may also be responsible for poor seed selection.

STANDARD OF PERFECTION.

The form and outward appearance of a perfect Rocky Ford cantaloupe requires a melon slightly over four inches in diameter and about four and five-eighths inches long; it should have silver grey netting that stands out like thick, heavy lace, practically covering the entire melon, save the well-defined slate-colored stripes; these should run the whole length of the melon clear cut as if grooved out with a round chisel and terminating at the blossom end in a small button. The interstices in the netting should be light olive green, that turns slightly yellow when the melon is ready for market. A melon with a black skin under the netting is not so attractive in appearance.

But the outward appearance is not the only

basis for selection in saving seed; the inside points are as essential to consider as any external quality, and no one can determine that a melon is fit for seed until it has been cut open and the inside qualities examined; for this reason the machine seeder is of no use in selecting choice seed; the melons should all be cut and examined by hand.

The flesh should be thick and firm, of a smooth texture and free from watery appearance, rich and melting in flavor. The shipping and keeping qualities depend largely on the solidity of the melon, so the seed cavity should be small and perfectly filled with seed. The color of the flesh near the rind should be dark green, shading lighter toward the seed cavity, which should be salmon or orange in color. The flesh is often mottled with salmon, and not uncommonly the entire flesh is of that color. The flavor is usually quite uniform, though it is sometimes affected by the health of the vines or other conditions of growth.

The seed will bear close inspection, as it is sometimes cracked or sprouted, which renders it of no value for germination.

The first steps in seed selection should be made when the melons are growing. Extra prolific hills should be marked with stakes, and the earliest ripening specimens conforming to the above ideal should be saved as choice seed, and planted in a place isolated from other melons, and the same care should be exercised in the years that follow.

The grower can and should save his own seed, as he can give it more careful attention than any commercial seed grower.

A few growers, realizing the importance of systematic selection, have made the proper choice of seed for their own use.

The illustration shows melons developed after five years of careful seed selection. Beginning with a melon as nearly perfect as could be found the old saying that "like produces like" has been exemplified to a marked degree. Each year the number of perfect melons has increased, so that now, when soil, fertility and all growing conditions are favorable, the over-sized melons are eliminated; all melons are completely netted, and practically all are marketable.

Improvement is still possible, yet the value of careful seed selection has been so demonstrated that if melon growers would adhere to a strict selection of perfect, early-ripening melons, not only would the returns from the melon crop be increased, but the cantaloupe would become a more staple article by virtue of its improved shipping and keeping qualities.

VALUE OF CHOICE SEED.

Unless one has a well developed strain of seed, it is not probable that he can save more than one or two pounds per acre of extra selected seed, so the supply of choice seed is limited.

The market value of the cantaloupe at the time the seed is saved should determine the price of seed. Thus, it requires about as many melons to produce one pound of seed as will fill a standard crate, and actually more, because some melons need to be rejected. This cannot be fully determined until the melon is cut, when, if it proves unfit for seed, it is also lost for market. So the price of seed must be equal to or exceed the price of a crate of melons at the time the seed was saved.

During the first week or ten days of the shipping season at Rocky Ford it is common to realize from $2 to $6 per crate. No one at this time can afford to save seed to sell at the ordinary price per pound. Indeed, few growers are wise enough to save for their own use.

At the average price of cantaloupes through the shipping season the grower must realize at least $1 per pound to warrant him in saving seed for the market. At the close of the shipping season, when melons are no longer marketable, the seed is willingly saved for what it will bring. This is the source of a large part of the seed on the market.

The difference in value between seed saved early from perfect melons, of high market worth, and that saved six weeks later from immature, frost-bitten melons which cannot be marketed is not often appreciated; yet, if the higher priced seed should yield only one or more crates per acre of early melons, or increase the total yield by several crates, which the extra vitality and superior points of perfection can easily do, the higher priced seed is cheaper at any price, and its value to the melon industry cannot be estimated.

Louisville.

The last week showed plainly what the warm weather was doing for us. One or two large funerals and a commencement helped things some, however. We can now secure about as good roses here as in Chicago, the northern ones seeming to have come down a great deal in the last few days. Carnations are holding their quality pretty well and the demand has been good. Sweet peas continue to be in demand and the quality good. Lilies are about over. Asters are coming on nicely, and in a week or two we will be able to let the carnations have their vacation. Green goods are plentiful.

The regular monthly club meeting was held at Riverview Park and was surprisingly well attended, especially by the Germantown delegation. The subject of advancing prices came up, and after much discussion it was decided that a committee be appointed to make a suggestive price list, both wholesale and retail, President Schulz appointing J. E. Marret, Louis Kirch, John Bohman, C. H. Kunzman and Henry Lichtefeld. The monotonous saying was: "If anyone else raises, I will." Are we going to miss a chance to make $1.50 where formerly we made only $1, just on account of three or four back numbers holding back? Surely it would look more reasonable for four to be afraid of failing than forty. The reports of the auditing committee, financial secretary and treasurer were read, showing the club in a flourishing condition. It was also decided that the club be incorporated as the Kentucky Society of Florists. The applications of David Weller and Wm. Bernasky for membership were accepted.

Charles W. Reimers has returned from a pleasure trip to St. Louis, seemingly well pleased and contemplating a return engagement.

The leading stores are now closed in the evening.

C. H. Kunzman has returned to the city. F. L. S.

Thirtieth annual convention, West Baden

VIBURNUM NUDUM is one of the latest bloomers of the genus. It is a very attractive shrub, with thick and glossy foliage.

LYNN, MASS.—The park system has been enriched by the gift of famous High Rock, for which John W. Hutchinson has given the city a quit-claim deed.

The famous Washington elm at Cambridge, Mass., which for a number of years was in very sickly condition and apparently in the last stages of decline, has taken on new vigor and is abundantly clothed with young growths and healthy foliage. This is the result of a thorough overhauling and generous feeding with new loam under the advice of Prof. Sargent and Mr. Pettigrew.

AMONG the useful bloomers at the present time, when but few shrubs are in flower, is Indigofera Gerardiana, Diervillea sessilifolia, Sambucus Canadensis, Cornus sericea, and a few of the roses are about all the shrubs showing bloom at this date, and all are well worthy of planting generally for that reason. Pavia macrostachya will soon open its attractive flower spikes. It, too, should be included in all collections. Sambucus racemosus is now showing its brilliant red fruit, and the *Lonicera*s are as beautiful in fruit as they are in bloom, although they are not so heavily fruited this season as usual.

Tree Pests.

The gypsy moth has shown its utter disregard for class or profession by invading the Botanic garden of Harvard University and attacking in force some of the finest trees within the enclosure. Four noble specimens of American beech standing near one of the entrances are entirely denuded of their foliage, and the branches are as naked as in December. The voracity of the crawling pests is exhibited in the bare branches of pines and spruces, the tough needles being eaten off with the same relish apparently as were the beech leaves. Great masses of the caterpillars may be seen here and there on the trunks and limbs during the day, the insects doing their feeding in night time. While complete eradication is not to be expected, it does seem that the presence of the pest in such numbers in such a place is inexcusable.

The twin nuisance of the gypsy, known as the brown-tail moth, is also giving evidence of great activity. Its feeding days are over and it is now in the flying stage, the white-winged moths flying in myriads about the electric lights at night, having the appearance of a snow storm and roosting in dense masses on telegraph wires and poles. Dr. Marlatt, who has been in this neighborhood for several days investigating the situation on behalf of the Agricultural Department, says that he found it much more serious than he had anticipated.

AMHERST, MASS.—M. B. Kingman has closed his store for the summer.

Pittsburg, Pa.

Some very good roses, carnations, gladioli, asters, sweet peas and lily of the valley are coming in to this market, but as for business, you can hardly notice it at all.

A great storm passed over Pittsburg and vicinity the night of July 11. Hail stones caused severe damage to the Phipps conservatory in Schenley park, also destroying many of the plants and flower beds in Schenley and Highland parks.

The Lord & Burnham Company, of Irvington, N. Y., has begun the construction of the new penitentiary conservatory for which Henry Phipps donated $5,000. The conservatory will be 25x100 feet. The work will be done by prisoners.

Fire in the store of Randolph & McClements July 5, was caused by crossed call box wires. Quick action by the fire department prevented a serious blaze. The loss was about $5.

E. C. Ludwig, chairman of the picnic committee, promises good weather, good music, good refreshments and a good time on Thursday.

The Florists' Exchange scheme of selling cut Pierson ferns put up in bunches of twenty-five has established quite a demand for them.

A committee was appointed at the last club meeting to secure general information concerning the S. A. F. convention at St. Louis.

Harry Graves has returned to Beloit, O. "Bob" Herron will go to St. Louis during the month.

A. W. Smith displayed a fine collection of gloxinias, which attracted wide attention July 9.

Sam McClements is directing the work of improvement on this new farm in Varona.

Indications point to a successful club picnic, July 14.

Mr. Roehrs and Thos. K. Knight were visitors last week. E. L. M.

Columbus, O.

Sweet peas are a glut on the market. The flowers are fine, but they can be bought at one's own price. Asters are just making their appearance, and where the ground is not too flat they are greatly benefited by the rains. Indoor stock newly planted this season is all doing fine. There have never been so many new varieties of chrysanthemums on trial as there are this year, which no doubt will make the season an interesting one.

There was a large attendance at the Florists' Club meeting. There were some very able discussions on the growing of chrysanthemums. A committee was appointed to formulate plans for a chrysanthemum show. Another committee is to charter a car, on which the members of the club will make a trip to Buckeye lake, where the day will be spent in fishing, boating, etc. Aside from this there will be an exhibition five-mile foot race by the two sprinters, Jim McKellar and Wm. H. Thompson, and a lightweight glove contest between the two heavyweights, John Williams and Jake Reichert. Aside from this there will be amusements of minor nature, so that the day will be one of general attraction for all. It was requested by Chairman Stephens that all those intending to take in the S. A. F. convention should give in their names by the next regular meeting, thus enabling the committee to secure rates to St. Louis.

C. A. Roth returned from an extended trip south and east. CARL.

Our Pastimes.

Announcements of coming contests or other events of interest to our bowling, shooting and sporting readers are solicited and will be given place in this column.

Address all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 42 W. 28th St., New York; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia; or to the American Florist Co., Chicago.

At Chicago.

In the last series of three games between the Champions and the Also Rans at Mussey's alleys Tuesday evening, the former came out victorious, with two games to one. Six games remain to be played before the results can be ascertained.

At Washington.

The Washington Florists' Club bowling team played a picked team of District of Columbia bowlers July 6, winning two games out of three. In the first game the district won by 35 points; in the second the florists by 6 points and in the third the florists by 102 points.

S. E.

At Philadelphia.

The employes of H. H. Battles' city stores, The Century Flower Shop and the store at 108 South Twelfth street, formed respectively the "City team" and the "Hustlers" and played base ball at Thornhedge, Mr. Battles' country place near Newton square. It was a very strenuous affair. "Georgie" Rauch started in to pitch for the city chaps, but the hustlers got onto his curves and he only lasted for two innings. Then he moved over to first base, where his magnificent proportions and great agility enabled him to capture anything within a radius of twenty feet. Jasper Larmer handled the big mit and saw that nobody stole second. Frank Goue showed his knowledge of the game by making the journey round the bases while the country gentlemen were trying to find the ball in the far fence corner. The score, 7 to 4, was against the hustlers.

The sixth and last of the matches in the convention tournament on outside alleys was rolled on the Central alleys, Wednesday, July 6. The scores were fair. Yates had high game with 200 and high total with 560 in the three games. Robertson's team won as usual. The point winners were Yates 3, Kift 3, Anderson 3, Robertson 3, Watson 2, Adelberger 2, Connor 1, Harris 1. The wind-up will be rolled on the home alleys Wednesday, July 13. The score follows:

San Francisco.

Business although not brisk is moving along better, and there is not much surplus stock to be seen. Prices of flowers are keeping up fairly well. The best Bride and Bridesmaid are bringing 50 cents per dozen. Carnations, such as Enchantress, Prosperity and other fancy varieties are bringing 35 and 50 cents per dozen; other varieties 15 to 25 cents. Beauty roses are $1 to $3 per dozen. Lilium album and rubrum have made an appearance in the market and command a good price, readily selling at $2.50 per dozen. Sweet Sultans are also in and bring $1 per 100; sweet peas are still holding on, and sell from 35 to 75 cents per dozen bunches.

Emblems of the Knights Templars and also of the Odd Fellows are to be seen in Golden Gate park and some of the public parks in the city. Very much credit is due to the one who has superintended the work. The work is being done for the Knights Templars' conclave, which is to take place in September, and that of the Odd Fellows which is to follow. Great preparations are being made for both, and there will undoubtedly be a vast sum of money expended. Several florists already report having received contracts for large decorations.

Podesta & Baldocchi are making extensive alterations in their store. The entire front has been torn out and is being replaced with modern show windows. The interior of the store is also getting an overhauling.

Attilio Ginocchio, who up to recently was employed by Frank & Parodi Company, committed suicide by taking carboic acid.

P. C. Meyers reports having already planted 60,000 chrysanthemum plants. He intends to plant 40,000 more.

Henry Pottet has leased his place to F. Rosa. Mr. Pottet has gone to Sonoma county for his health.

J. Seulerger, of Oakland, is taking a few weeks' rest in the Yosemite valley.

P. J. Thorsted, of Fruitvale, is in with a full crop of Enchantress carnations.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB OUTING.

A store has made an appearance at 428 Sutter street, opened by Misses Glover & Long. A. J. R.

Toronto.

This market is not suffering from the proverbial lack of business which is usually attached to July. A number of prominent citizens have passed away and there have been a few belated weddings and other minor affairs. Roses still hold up fairly well and the demand about uses up the supply. American Beauty has shortened up some but the quality is still very good. Carnations are even more plentiful than a few weeks ago. Large quantities can be had at easy prices. The latest acquisition to the market is Lilium candidum; which is especially fine. The foliage is very clean, not showing the disease this variety is usually subject to. Outdoor sweet peas are becoming plentiful. Lily of the valley is still scarce. Green goods are plentiful.

Notwithstanding the hard winter coreopsis, gaillardias, delphiniums and other outdoor flowers are of good quality.

Ed. Sinclair is off for his holidays. Ed. is one of the fortunate ones who can make his vacation extend two months. What a glorious time some of us would have if we could do likewise. The holiday fever is epidemic and most of the city establishments are at present short two or three employes.

Dunlop had the decoration for the Fielding banquet at the King Edward hotel. Politically it was one of the most important ever held in this city. Artistically it was equally successfully. Red and white were the effective colors used.

The premium list for the chrysanthemum show, to be held under the auspices of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association, November 8-12 inclusive, has been prepared and the prizes offered are very liberal.

About seventy-five members of the Toronto Horticultural Society took a day's outing to visit the experimental farm at Guelph.

J. H. Dunlop and family have departed for their summer home, Rosebank.

Printed Matter and Postage.

THE American Florist Company's Directory saves many times its price to every one who catalogues or circularizes even a small part of the trade. Fully revised to date of publication, it puts the mail only to live names, avoiding waste of postage and printed matter, time and labor.

Contains 412 pages, lists of Florists, Seedsmen and Nurserymen of the United States and Canada by states and towns, also alphabetically; firms that issue catalogues, foreign merchants, horticultural societies and much other up-to-date information which makes it a reference book of daily utility wherever a wholesale trade is done.

The club meeting the evening of July 6 brought out a good attendance and an interesting session was held. The plan entertained for some time to secure quarters in the new Michigan Cut Flower Exchange building was much discussed, but definite action was deferred to a meeting in the near future. Much interest was shown in the S. A. F. meeting at St. Louis. It is pretty certain the delegation from here will be a large one, going via the Wabash railroad in a special car. The annual summer outing to Bois Blanc island on July 20 is looked forward to with much interest, and a splendid programme of amusements is being prepared, the chief feature of which will be a ball game between the east and west side florists. The entire arrangements are in the hands of the entertainment committee, consisting of E. S. Beard, John Dunn, Bug. Oestreicher, Walter Taepke, Hugo Schroeter and Norman Sullivan. J. F. Sullivan, who had just returned from an extended visit in the east, gave a review of his observations.

President Philip Breitmeyer of the S. A. F., together with Wm. Dilger, L. Bemb and J. Kohler, started Sunday morning, July 9, by boat on a pleasure trip to Put-in-Bay, Sandusky, Cleveland, Painesville, O., and Buffalo. Mr. Bemb took along his automobile, which will be used to make side trips from the places named. A most enjoyable trip is contemplated. Their return home is expected July 16.

Edmund S. Beard, ex-president of the Detroit Florists' Club and one of the most popular of its members, was married July 7 to Miss Cassie E. Allen. The happy couple are enjoying an extended tour among the upper Michigan lake resorts. On their return they will take up their residence on the Beard Brothers' premises, West Fort street.

August Von Boeselager, of Mount Clemens, is completing a house, 30x100, which will be used for violets. He has already planted one house with carnations. He is also building a handsome dwelling, which confirms the rumor that the nuptial bells will sound for him in the early fall.

Mrs. John Carey, Mount Clemens, started July 7 for Denver, Col., with her daughter, Miss Belle, who is in ill health. Mr. Carey accompanied them as far as St. Louis, where he spent a day on the Pike before his return home.

The Michigan Cut Flower Exchange building on Miami avenue is rapidly approaching completion, and Manager Wm. Dilger expects to be able to move into the new quarters by October 1.

John M. Brown, of Louisville, Ky., about whose enterprise, called the Nurserymen's and Florists' Surplus Association there seems to be some uncertainty, visited the trade here this week.

James Mitchell, the Garfield avenue florist, has deserted his place of business and can not be found by those interested. It is rumored his destination is South America.

Geo. Reynolds, Grosse Pointe, left July 4 for a visit to his home in England. He sailed on the S. S. Teutonic. Returning, he will leave Liverpool August 3.

Wm. Dilger visited Toledo and Bowling Green last week. Philip Breitmeyer accompanied him to Toledo, where he visited Geo. Heinl.

Robert Flowerday, Jr., is recovering from a serious attack of typhoid fever.

Visitors: S. S. Skidelsky, Philadelphia. Harry D. Byers, Dayton, O.

IMPROVED
Greenhouse Boiler,
33 Erie St. CHICAGO.

Boilers made of the best of material, shell, fire-box sheets and heads of steel, water space all around (front, sides and back). Write for information.

JOLIET, ILL.—We are in receipt of the preliminary premium list of the chrysanthemum show of the Joliet Improvement Association, which will be held next November. Copies may be had on application to James H. Ferriss, corresponding secretary, Joliet, Ill.

ANOKA, MINN.—Carnation planting is well under way, at the establishment of the Pratt-Ford Greenhouse Company, several benches being already planted. Lawson and Enchantress do better grown inside here. Carnations in the field are much better than last year. H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Man, found time to make a pleasant call here. He has just returned from St. Louis.

Best Value in the United States.

CROP INSURANCE.

Life insurance is valuable because it guarantees the outcome.

"Gurney" Heaters

"BRIGHT IDEA," "DORIC" and "400 SERIES" do the same thing for your hothouse: THEY GUARANTEE THE CROP. First of all they save 20 per cent on the coal bill and so keep expense at a minimum. Next, they produce an even heat and so do not imperil the life of the plant. Next, they are simple to operate and so require least attention. Lastly, they wear longer than others and thus perceptibly reduce the capital invested. Don't buy or exchange until you've investigated them.

U. S. Department of Agriculture Notes.

The work of constructing the range of greenhouses for the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., is rapidly progressing. Chief Gallo-way, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, who has this work in charge, reports that the new greenhouses will probably be finished by September 1 next. Lord & Burnham have the contract. The new range consists of eight even-span houses, each 142 feet long, brick walls and iron framework, connected on the ridge and furrow plan. The houses are to be of the best modern construction and are to be heated by steam, which will probably be secured from a large power plant near by. It is the plan of the department officials to conduct some interesting experiments in this matter of securing steam from a separate establishment. Probably the steam will be bought on a meter basis, and thus figures can be secured which will be of interest to others where large power plants are in proximity to greenhouses. These new houses will be another Washington monument to the construction ability of the Lord & Burnham Company. Their representative, Thomas W. Burns, has won good opinions during his stay here.

Besides the houses that are being put up by Lord & Burnham the department will construct several itself and will move some of the old ones to the new location. The new greenhouses are being constructed on the north side of the grounds in order to give space for the projected new buildings of the department, which will go on the south side of the grounds. The north side of the grounds has heretofore been of little value on account of its lowness, but this is being remedied by extensive work in grading and filling, the soil being secured from the foundations of the new buildings being erected for the national museum near by. It is proposed to raise this ground about three feet, grade it carefully and naturally, and use it as an ornamental testing garden for shrubs, hardy herbaceous plants, bulbs, annuals and other things. This garden will be within two blocks of Pennsylvania avenue. It is planned to pay heed to landscape effects in laying out the beds for the plantations rather than use the ordinary nursery rows. Complete collections of bulbs, hardy herbaceous perennials, annuals and other things will be grown here in such a way that the value of the different types can be determined, as will be seen growing side by side.

Harry Boyle, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, has just returned from Florida, where was sent for the purpose of introducing a number of new varieties of mangoes, which have recently come to the department through its seed and plant introduction work. Under the direction of the chief of the bureau G. W. Oliver has been making a special study of mangoes, particularly their propagation, and has accumulated a number of very fine varieties in the propagating houses at Washington. The sending of Mr. Boyle to Florida was a part of the plan to give these new fruits a wider distribution. The mango is rapidly coming into prominence in Florida as a valuable fruit, and extensive plantations have been made. The great desideratum has been the securing of better edible types. Many of the native seedlings are poor in quality. The mango and mangosteen, in southern Florida, promise to be acquisitions of much value. The mango especially is a prolific bearer, the fruit ships readily and there is a growing demand for it. The tree is classified as Mangifera Indica, in horticultural works, mango being the Hindoo name of the fruit.

At a meeting of the officers of the department the following resolutions were adopted on the death of Col. Brigham:

We have learned with profound sorrow of the death of Colonel Joseph H. Brigham, late assistant secretary of this department. During a service of over seven years as assistant secretary, Colonel Brigham, by his qualities of heart and head, deserved and gained the confidence and esteem of all with whom he had official relations. In addition, he won and held the personal regard of all who knew him. The lasting achievements of his busy life, especially in his services to agriculture, have won for his name an enduring renown—no less marked than the love and affection which follow him to the grave. We desire that a copy of this memorial be given to the bereaved family as a mark of our sympathy and a token of our regard.

In addition to public services mentioned in a previous issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST, Col. Brigham was sent to Paris in 1899 to investigate agricultural conditions abroad.

Kentucky Prices.

The Society of Kentucky Florists enjoyed a very pleasant time at River-view park recently, taking supper on the grounds. The subject of advancing the price of plants was discussed but no agreement reached. Geraniums have sold here for $1 per dozen for years, in 4-inch and 4½-inch pots. Some of the florists wish to increase the price to $1.50 per dozen at retail. This seems little enough when they have to be planted without extra charge.

The price of cut flowers was taken up, but one well-to-do florist said he could not get the prices the stores charged, and always sold fifteen to fifty per cent cheaper than the stores to get the orders, as otherwise he thought the people would go to the stores. Another florist, at not nearly as convenient a place for selling at retail, said he had no trouble in getting the highest market price for what he had to sell at retail as well as wholesale.

Ferdinand Mangold.

"At the parish of the Annunciation, One hundred and Thirty-first street and Broadway, New York city, by the Rev. Arthur J. Donnelly, on July 9 (1854), Ferdinand Mangold to Adaline, daughter of John P. Wahl, Conondahn on the Rhine, Germany." Such was the announcement of fifty years ago, and on the fiftieth anniversary, July 9, 1904, Mr. and Mrs. Mangold held a reception at their home at Lyndhurst, Tarrytown, N. Y., where many of their friends and relatives gathered to offer congratulations. The weather was very auspicious and the tables of good things were spread on the lawn in front of the cottage. The decorations were American flags and Japanese lanterns. It was a very memorable occasion, and one and all enjoyed themselves immensely.

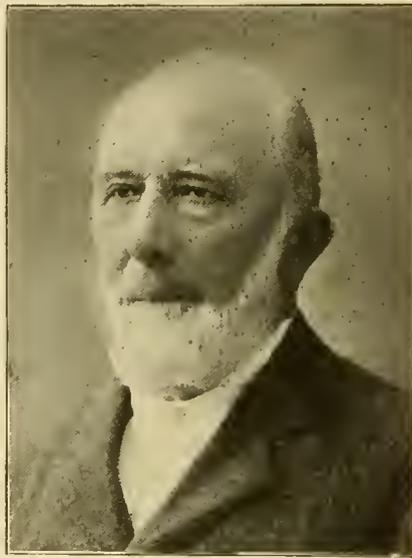

Mr. Mangold is the able and esteemed superintendent for Miss Helen Gould, and very few men can show such a record for service. He came to Lyndhurst forty years ago as gardener to George Merritt, who then owned the place. At that time it was in a rough, primitive state, and the work of construction, grading and road making was intrusted to Mr. Mangold. That he was fully competent for the task is well borne out by the condition of the place to-day. There are very few places along the Hudson river that can vie with it.

Twenty-five years ago the late Jay Gould, of international financial repute, purchased the estate and retained Mr. Mangold as superintendent. Mr. Gould's love for plants and flowers was very keen. Large, extensive conservatories were built, like Solomon's temple, "wonderfully and fearfully erected." Their architectural features were more showy than useful. As a beautiful range of greenhouses they have few equals to-day. There is nothing of the commercial cut about them, neither are they used semi-commercially—namely, for cut flowers only, like so many of the greenhouses of wealthy men and women. They are almost entirely devoted to plant growing, and at the present time they contain one of the most extensive botanical collections to be found in America. The object of the present article, however, is not of the place, but rather of the man. The late Jay Gould had a marked admiration for Mr. Mangold, and in his last will substantially remembered him. The gifted and noble woman who has succeeded to her father's property would feel it a sacrilege to allow the plants so much beloved by her late father to suffer from want of proper care. In Mr. Mangold she has implicit confidence, and all the work on the estate is under his entire charge, and in all estate work and much charity he is counsellor and advisor.

Ferdinand Mangold was born in the city of Carlsruhe, in the Grand Duchy of Baden, October 9, 1828. When fourteen years of age he entered the botanical gardens as an apprentice and remained there for nine years, a portion of the time being employed on the grounds of the castle then occupied by King Leopold. Later he was superintendent in the park. His apprenticeship diploma is signed by Garden Director Heldt. In 1852 he came to this country, and before coming to Lyndhurst was engaged for several years as superintendent for Gen. Mansfield Bradhurst at Carmansville, N. Y.

Mr. Mangold is a unique figure in the Tarrytown vicinity. His life has been one of activity and push. He has occupied several public offices of importance in the township administration, and is respected by rich and poor alike. He has always worked with those under him with firmness and consideration, and as evidence of the smoothness of his administration it may be noted that Mr. Bergen, the foreman in the greenhouses, has worked under him for thirty-six years, and Mr. Bing, the foreman in the vegetable garden, has been with him thirty-eight years. Many of the other employes are also growing old in their service.

Besides the congratulations there were also many substantial tokens of respect. Miss Gould sent her card, with the following note: "To Mr. and Mrs. Mangold, with good wishes from Helen Miller Gould on their golden wedding anniversary." She also sent a beautiful gold clock and $100 in gold. There was also a gold loving cup from the employes, with suitable inscription. F. R. Pierson brought a beautiful clock and candelabra to match. There were easy chairs from prominent citizens, and enough in the way of gold and gilded articles to set up another household.

Mr. and Mrs. Mangold are both hale and hearty, and both cheat time in their appearance and fleetness. We are sorry that we have not a picture of Mrs. Mangold, but that worthy lady, with becoming modesty, has refused most positively to have her picture published.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Mulch For Exhibition Stock.

The early planted or exhibition cut flower stock is now showing signs of needing a light mulch. The roots are creeping out all over the surface of the beds, which means that mulching must be attended to. This stock, planted with the object in view of producing exhibition blooms, must not suffer through neglect. It is intended to produce perfection, consequently extreme culture should be the point in caring for it, but at the same time use a little common sense so as not to overdo it. The plants are pushing along so fast it keeps one hustling to keep ahead of them. What with watering, syringing and keeping the side shoots picked out, anyone who has a house of chrysanthemums to attend to is a busy bee just now.

Picking out the side shoots is the most important work connected with the culture of exhibition stock at the present time. Most of the largest exhibition varieties need to be taken on the bud which can be selected from August 15 to September 1. To time the plants so they will produce the proper bud at about that time the work of keeping everything removed except the main growing shoot must be watched very closely now. Nearly all varieties will form a blind bud at this time. This must be removed and the side growth allowed to go on without any delay. If not, you will be waiting a week or ten days longer than you figured on for the bud to take to produce the flower. This in a great many cases means an inferior bloom.

Before putting on the mulch have all the plants neatly staked and tied and all weeds cleaned out of the beds. Then sprinkle on a light dressing of either wood ashes, bone meal or Clay's fertilizer. I prefer the latter at this time but have had excellent results when the pure wood ashes have been used. Clay's fertilizer being highly concentrated and having a lasting effect, it must be used more sparingly than wood ashes or bone meal. After putting the dressing on lightly scratch it into the soil but not deep enough to injure the roots of the plants. We are now ready for the mulch.

Using half well rotted cow manure the other half good, live, fresh soil, make a mixture as fine as it can be got, then spread it over the beds. The thickness of the mulch must be governed to a certain extent by the depth of the soil. If there is a good six inches of soil in the benches and the plants are in a satisfactory condition not as deep a mulch will be necessary as where less soil was used at planting. Allow the mulching to make up the deficiency. I had our exhibition stock planted into seven inches of soil this season. By settling and treading down a little while after planting this has got to be scarcely six inches deep. We have now put on a mulch as near to one inch deep as we could get it. We figure that this will hold it for a while without getting bare after two or three waterings. This should be the consideration when putting on a mulch, to make sure that it will not be necessary to renew again in a week or two. After applying the mulch water the beds thoroughly and from now on more care must be taken to prevent the soil becoming either too wet or too dry, the mulch preventing it drying out as quickly as before.

WITH THE GROWERS

John E. Andre, Doylestown, Pa.

Among the progressive growers of the Keystone state a prominent place must be accorded John E. Andre, of Doylestown, Pa. His establishment, illustrations of which are herewith given, contains 30,000 feet of glass, and most of the space is devoted to growing roses for the Philadelphia market. American Beauty, Bride and Bridesmaid are Mr. Andre's specialties. The houses are heated with a steam system, and water is supplied from an artesian well 200 feet in depth. The photograph from which the view of the house of Bride roses was reproduced was taken three days before Easter of the present year. It speaks in silent yet forcible terms of the care and thrift with which rose growing is carried on in Mr. Andre's establishment.

ESTABLISHMENT OF JOHN L. ANDRE, DOYLESTOWN, PA.

Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa.

Men are not idle here by any means. Three new tubular boilers are being installed, which will give ample heating power for all of the contemplated improvements of the next three years. The houses are being reglazed and painted, and the usual line of summer improvements made. The soil is being changed in the houses intended for carnations and stock geraniums just as fast as they can be gotten in shape, so that they may be ready for planting whenever the weather is about right.

Outdoor stock is looking fine, better than for any one of the past three years. Carnations planted out April 12 are as fine looking stock as any one could wish for. Stock planted out three weeks later, after the freezing weather, is in good shape, but not nearly so large as that planted and covered with a heavy snow few days following. For the past four years spring weather has been dry from April 15 to June 1. These plants were transferred to the open ground so as to catch one or two of the early April showers, and their condition shows that they caught them right.

Geraniums are quite a feature at this place, and like the carnations are planted by the acre. Both the carnations and the geraniums are planted in rows far enough apart to cultivate with a horse harrow, Mr. Herr claiming that better plants are produced by this method than to plant them close and work the soil with hand cultivators.

As secretary of the American Carnation Society nothing would please him better than to have every man who grows carnations join that society, and considering that $2 pays for joining and one year's dues, he thinks this would be no hardship financially and a great help to both joiner and the society.

How to Build a Greenhouse.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—We desire to build a greenhouse and wish to ask through the AMERICAN FLORIST how to do so. Our lot is 75x150 feet, west front, the land inclining to the west so or mortar? We wish to construct the boiler room so it will be fire-proof. What kind of boiler should we use? Should we set the boiler on top of the ground or dig a pit for it? All other information which would be of value to us in building such a house we will be grateful for.

C. E. H.

It will be best to grade so that the ridge will not have a slope of much more than one foot towards the street. A house with a three-quarters span roof will be desirable if to be all under one roof, but the use of one wide house with the roof broken up into three even spans will be very satisfactory. If the latter form is used it will be advisable to have pipe posts, but a wall of hollow cement blocks will answer very well for a low wall. There will be little choice between hot water and steam for a house of this size. A tubular boiler may be used for either, or any of the greenhouse boilers. For a house of the width described there should be a ventilator three feet wide along the ridge and one two feet wide in each wall. If three narrow houses are constructed the ridge ventilators need not be more than two feet wide. It will not be advisable to grow all of the crops named in one house, and a cross partition will be necessary. Glass 16x20 inches is a good size. Five or six inches of soil will answer for carnations, but rather more than this is desirable for cucumbers. The time of sowing the cucumber seed will depend largely on the time the crop is desired for marketing. If to follow other crops, as is most common, the usual time is from January 1 to February 1. The walls of the boiler room can be of brick and the floor of cement. Slate or sheet-iron roofing can be used for covering the roof. If possible it will be best to have the boiler set low enough to have the top two feet below the coils.

L. R. T.

that the back of the lot is three feet higher than the front. The alley is two feet above the back of the lot. We want a house for a general stock of greenhouse and bedding plants, also ferns, and would like to grow some carnations and some roses to flower in pots. We would like to know whether to build on top of the ground or to grade to the level of the street in front, and what kind of span is best. We would like a house 40x150 feet with boiler room separate and an iron frame. Should we use hot water or steam? Please advise us as to ventilators, size of glass, depth of soil for carnations and cucumbers, and how early cucumbers should be started. What kind of foundation should be used, how heavy should the wall be made, and with cement

THE CARNATION.

Early Planting.

Early planting, like any other decided change in the culture of a plant has a certain proportion of extremists advocating and adopting it. These growers by the time this article appears will have had all their carnations housed. It is this fact that induced the writing of this article, as, in the writer's opinion, it is a very serious mistake, one that he has made himself with a consequent loss that made the lesson learned an outrageously high priced one, to plant carnations by the almanac, and to think that by a certain date they should all be housed.

There is such a thing as acclimating a carnation to summer culture under glass and where this has been done the real early planting will often bring the best results. This is especially noticeable in Peter Fisher's introductions containing Lawson blood. It would be interesting to know from Mr. Fisher the cause of this, whether it is due to his having gradually planted earlier each season until he had acclimated the parents of Lawson to summer growth under glass, or whether it was simply one of those freaks of nature unaccountable, but none the less true, where a plant radically changes its habits permanently and without any loss to itself.

With varieties of this kind July planting may and likely will mean more money at the end of the season than to plant in August or September, as the variety will make blooming growth in the house just as well, or possibly better, than in the field. But even with all of this in favor of early planting there will be years when a change of date will be best. One of these is when the plants are very small at your usual planting time and the weather outdoors is propitious for their rapid advancement in growth. A very good rule is not to bring a plant into the house until it has at least fifteen branches. By this is meant fifteen fairly well started branches, not necessarily all of them six inches or more in length but varying from three to ten inches. A plant of this size housed in July ought, with proper care and attention, be made to bring at least ten of these branches into a flower by January 1.

A plant of this size housed any time between the middle of August and the middle of September will do equally well, always with proper care and attention, with a slight decrease in the quality of the first flowers produced, in proportion as the date advances from August 10 to September 15. After the first of December there should be no perceptible difference in the quality of the flowers produced on the early or late planted plants with a good grower.

The rub comes in getting a plant of the size specified for July planting. To house a smaller plant and get a paying amount of bloom from it, no matter whether it is planted in July or September is almost an impossibility no matter who the grower may be. This is often overcome by the clumping together of from three to ten plants and planting them as one plant, adding from three to ten times the cost of the plant up to planting in time for that special plant. This additional cost must come off the returns when you make comparisons and estimates. Another thing to take into serious consideration is the weather. July and early August planting should be done when there is at least a good prospect of having several cool nights after the plants are housed, as they are sure to have enough hot, sultry weather to contend with after getting established, and to be taken from the field and planted in sultry weather is such a serious check to their vitality that they are unable to withstand the attack of any disease that may choose to fasten itself on them. As a rule you will get better planting weather in August than in July, but unless you carefully study weather conditions, you are just as likely as not to strike bad weather even in the middle of September. In spite of all theories, the carnation thrives best in a temperature of 55° at night or with some varieties less than that, and 70° during the day. It is unreasonable to expect them to thrive and maintain their health and vigor if put into a greenhouse early in July where the temperatures run 20° to 40° higher than their nature demands, and this treatment runs through almost three months, as it is often the case that September is a hot, sultry month.

As heretofore said this treatment may be given a variety that has been acclimated to it gradually through several generations but not to one that has been grown under ordinary conditions, and, unless I am very much mistaken, much of the trouble with novelties is due to this cause, extreme early planting and a consequent gradual loss of vitality until the year they are introduced, when they are too weak, in spite of their looks, to stand the change of environment. In fact in a number of cases they are weakened to such an extent that even in the disseminator's own houses they are a failure and a disappointment the year after they are introduced. Candidly, would it not be better to look after the health and vitality of the stock where it is used for propagation, ahead of the cut flower end, even allowing that the cut flowers are a trifle better when the plants are housed real early?

Another point to be taken into consideration aside from the size of the plants is their condition in the field. Last season we planted one house very early in August, one house about September 20 and the balance of the place the week after the convention of the S. A. F. On December 1 it would have taken a set of expert judges to have detected any difference between the house planted the first week of August and the one planted September 20, either in the quality of the flowers or the quantity produced. Later in the season the balance swung in favor of the September planted stock, just enough to notice the difference. Those planted between on these dates came about as near being a failure as I want to have them come the balance of my floral career. The flowers were not up to the mark in quality and woefully lacking in quantity, so much so that these houses showed a decided loss for the season over cost of operating, and if the cost of the plants up to the time of housing them were added, it would make a showing that I do not care to have on record.

In looking for a cause for this I did not have to go very far. The season last year was peculiarly dry up to August and the early planted house was filled with well hardened plants, hungry for moisture and food. Consequently they took a quick and vigorous hold and kept that hold all season. Through August we had heavy rains twice to three times weekly, and the plants housed the latter part of August were in a soft, vigorous and watery growth. Housing them in this condition was against my better judgment, but I was following the lead of early planting regardless of conditions. The plants were given every possible care but simply would not take hold and did not all winter. They did not die outright, but they likewise never actually thrived. In September the wet weather had ceased and the plants housed then were strong, well-developed plants, and started off even better than those planted the first of August. The flowers produced through October and early November were slightly below par, but after the middle of November they came right up to the mark and stayed there all season.

If it were possible to forecast the weather a month or six weeks ahead of time we could plant just right every season. Had I been able to do this last season my houses would have been planted the last week in July and the first week in August. Not being able to do it I would have been better off to have waited until the plants were in good condition and planted them all in September. This season up to date we have been having from two to six rains weekly for July and there will be no housing done until the weather gets dry enough to season or harden up the plants even if it runs planting into September again.

RHODODENDRONS, AT L. M. PALMER'S, STAMFORD, CONN.

VIEW ON THE GROUNDS AT L. M. PALMER'S, STAMFORD, CONN.

As a resume I do not want to be understood as saying that there is nothing in the theory of early planting for it is a demonstrated fact that early planted stock will produce better flowers in September, October and November than late planted stock. The point I am trying to make is not to plant early simply in order have them planted at a certain date, but to plant when the stock is of good size and in good transplanting condition, and weather conditions are reasonably favorable, no matter whether this be in July, August or even in September.

A. M. HERR.

Layering Carnations.

W. N. Rudd, the well known carnation grower, ran short of his needs in cuttings of some seedlings the past spring and decided to try layering with a view to increasing his stock. At the close of the flowering season the old plants were taken up and planted outdoors, spreading the main branches over the ground. When the side growths attained sufficient size they were tongued and pegged to the soil and lightly covered at that point, with the result that there is now in the field every promise of a good supply of extra fine plants in these scarce varieties. When the hot weather came on the ground was given a light straw mulch. Mr. Rudd is not generally in favor of layering in this climate, and says the present cold season was an exceptionally favorable one for this work at his place.

Changing Soil in Carnation House.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Is it necessary to change the soil in carnation houses every year? I have been reaping good results by so doing, but it is a heavy task. Do you think if I would remove half of the soil and replace it with new soil and apply some good pulverized sheep manure or good raw bone meal and work it in well before planting that it would be as good as new soil?

S. M. S.

Among the best growers it is considered essential to renew the soil for carnations each season. No doubt carnations can be grown in the same soil for several seasons by proceeding as "S. M. S." suggests, but theory and practice are against it. It is reasonable to suppose that plants will do better in fresh new soil. It is certain that fungus and insect pests will be apt to increase each year as the soil becomes constantly more infected. Removing the soil each year gives a chance to clean, repair and lime-wash the benches, and cleanliness is certainly next to godliness in cut flower growing.

A recent experiment station bulletin states that an examination of old rose soil in the benches showed the presence of injurious compounds, evidently formed by the decomposition of fertilizer elements in the soil, and while there was an abundance of plant food present these injurious substances caused a weak, sickly growth. The bulletin states that it is proposed to thoroughly flood the benches before adding new fertilizers with the hope of washing these compounds out of the soil. The experiment will be interesting to follow. "S. M. S." might try a part of one bench in the old soil and renew the balance as usual, and watch results.

W. N. RUDD.

A Beautiful Country Estate.

On the beautiful estate of L. M. Palmer, at Stamford, Conn., the plantations of rhododendrons are very extensive, numbering many thousands of plants which, although lacking as yet the size attained in plantations of greater age, comprise a wide variety of kinds, including the newest and rarest sorts, and all in splendid vigor under the attentive care of Amedee Hans, the gardener in charge for the past seven years. The illustration accompanying shows the manner of planting in masses, with the taller plants in the rear, in beds of irregular outline, the front line being occasionally varied with masses of Azalea amœna.

Mr. Hans' system of winter protection is a very radical one and consists of lifting the plants and laying them on their sides in deep trenches and then covering the whole with leaves and branches. Under such thorough treatment it must be a tender variety that will not carry its buds to the blossoming season in good shape and for this reason the list of sorts given herewith lacks the value to the grower looking for reliably hardy varieties which would attach to a list of plants that had gone through the ordinary amount of exposure to trying weather conditions. But, looking over the midseason bloomers the following named varieties stand out in especially fine form and fullness of bloom and the list as given contains the cream of the desirable kinds in the hardy section. Varieties noted were as follows: Picturata, Roseum Elegans, Album Elegans, Bessie Parsons, Purpureum Elegans, Grandiflora, Purity, Snowflake, James Narsmith, Lady Cathcart, H. W. Sargent, King of Purples, Everestianum, Lady Armstrong, Bluebell, James Bate-man, Marchioness of Lansdowne, Selvia, Lady Sigismund Ruckart, Sir Thomas Seabright, Caractacus, Atrosanguineum.

Another very interesting feature of these grounds is the series of rock gardens in which myriads of hardy ferns find a congenial home. The collection is very comprehensive, including every obtainable species and variety of American, European and Japanese lineage. These are located in a cool, shady grove of oaks and chestnuts where the ideal conditions for fern contentment seem to exist. Bordering a long walk is a rocky bank planted with miscellaneous varieties arranged in the "negligence of nature wild and wide." This walk is shown in one of the views accompanying this article. Numbers of irregular rock groups, such as are shown in the other illustrations, are distributed throughout the woods. In these botanical classification has been followed in a general way only. Polystichiums, aspidiums, aspleniums, nephrodiums, lastreas and athyriums are seen in bewildering profusion of forms, Athyrium filix-femina and Lastrea filix-mas being allotted entire beds in which to display the wonderful variety of crested, forked, frilled and tasselled plumes, and crispy, puckered masses into which the simple original forms have sported and which seem to flaunt defiance at everyone who would undertake to classify them. These plants are all from seed and so thorough is the mix-up that the attempt to name them has been abandoned as a fruitless task. Scarcely less confusing is the classification of species and, as to genera, the synonyms and cross-references indulged in by the various fern authorities are exasperatingly complicated and jumbled. But they are all beautiful, nevertheless, and no garden of any extent is anywhere near complete without a special place assigned to these graceful, interesting and easily grown subjects.

The raising of seedling ferns is a task requiring much patience and close attention. Mr. Hans takes especial delight in working among the difficult ones of both hardy and tender classes. There is enough of mysteriousness about such work to absorb and interest. Shakespeare, who seems to have known everything, wrote: "We have the receipt for fern seed. We walk invisible." Mr. Hans is especially interested at present in a consignment of ferns collected wild in Jamaica, which contains many unfamiliar things, some of them very promising in appearance.

Greenhouse Repairs.

Now is the time to attend to all the little repairs and the general cleaning up which every greenhouse needs each year. Nothing pays better in greenhouse management than cleanliness. Clean every bit of the interior of the houses and then give a good coat of white lead inside and out. Rip out all decayed woodwork and apply a thorough wash of lime to the benches and the walls underneath. The man who knows his business will do these things before thinking of building more houses. Before painting see that any flaws or openings in the roof through which water might penetrate are filled with putty, and loose panes fastened securely.

Try crude oiling a bench and see how much longer it will last. Crude oil is better than paint in many places. If it is too thick add kerosene to make it thin.

Don't patch those old benches with new lumber. Tear out the bench which is in the worst condition and rebuild it, using the best of the old boards for patching. Sound hemlock is better than pine for supports.

Try some pecky cypress for benches.

Two Good Coleuses.

The coleuses Anna Pfister and John Pfister, for use in edging beds and borders in the same way as geranium Mme. Salleroi, are two of the best varieties we have seen for a long time. In habit they are very much alike, dwarf and compact, the rather small leaves pointed and serrated. Both varieties are more or less variegated, but Anna Pfister gives an orange yellow effect, while in John Pfister the tinge is a showy bronze.

World's Fair Notes.

The attendance during the week ending July 16 reached the half-million mark. This was quite satisfactory to the exposition authorities, particularly as there were no special events for that period. Although St. Louis has been regarded as unsuited to the holding of an exposition, owing to the hot weather which is supposed to prevail during the summer, the temperature here during the last week has ranged from 3° to 6° lower than in most of our northern cities.

The cannas will be at their best for the florists' convention. Among the varieties exhibited by J. C. Vaughan are King Humbert, Betsy Ross, Express, Dwarf Florence Vaughan, Count de Saxe, Black Beauty, David Harum, Papa Nardy and Victory. Henry A. Dreer has a bed of President Meyer bordered with Rubin. Both of these varieties have a bronze foliage with red flowers. The color of the latter is especially rich and velvety.

The Simpson motor lawn mower and roller is being used almost daily to demonstrate its value for rolling lawns, walks and drives, and as a lawn mower. It is much like a small steam roller, but the front trucks can be removed and replaced by the mower attachment, which closely resembles an ordinary horse lawn mower. It is a steam machine which uses gasoline as fuel.

The exhibit of the St. Louis Seed Company, aside from a number of plats of lawn, consists of ten or a dozen large rustic baskets at the north end of the Agriculture building, which are filled with flowering plants and vines, and the plants in the floral clock, which include coleuses, cinerarias, centaureas and verbenas.

Ellwanger & Barry, Rochester, have several large beds of their new hardy plox, Lothair, and one of Richard Wallace, which will soon be at their best. A bed of the former near the floral clock, and another at the north end of the rose garden are especially attractive.

Michell, St. Louis, has a very attractive display on the terrace along the east side of the Agriculture building. It embraces some twenty beds of foliage plants in various designs.

AUBURN, N. Y.—Herbert M. Hills says his spring trade this year was excellent. At the present time he has one house, 20x100 feet, planted with Bride and Bridesmaid roses, and another will be planted soon with high grade carnations. Mr. Hills will add to his range two houses, 10x150 feet, for smilax, asparagus and other stock.

SANDUSKY, O.—Wm. Dilger, of Detroit, Mich., who formerly resided in this city, was a recent visitor.

ROYAL FLORAL DESIGNS.

THE RETAIL TRADE

ONE or a few good plants in the show window are more effective than a crowd of them. And it is also less expensive.

HANGING baskets, window boxes, tub plants, etc., out of doors in summer dry out rapidly. Water, water, water, and advise your customers to do likewise.

A PAIR of bay trees outside the entrance to greenhouses or store lends dignity to the establishment and may be seen from afar off. But don't fail to make them fast to something if exposed to strong winds.

Royal Floral Designs.

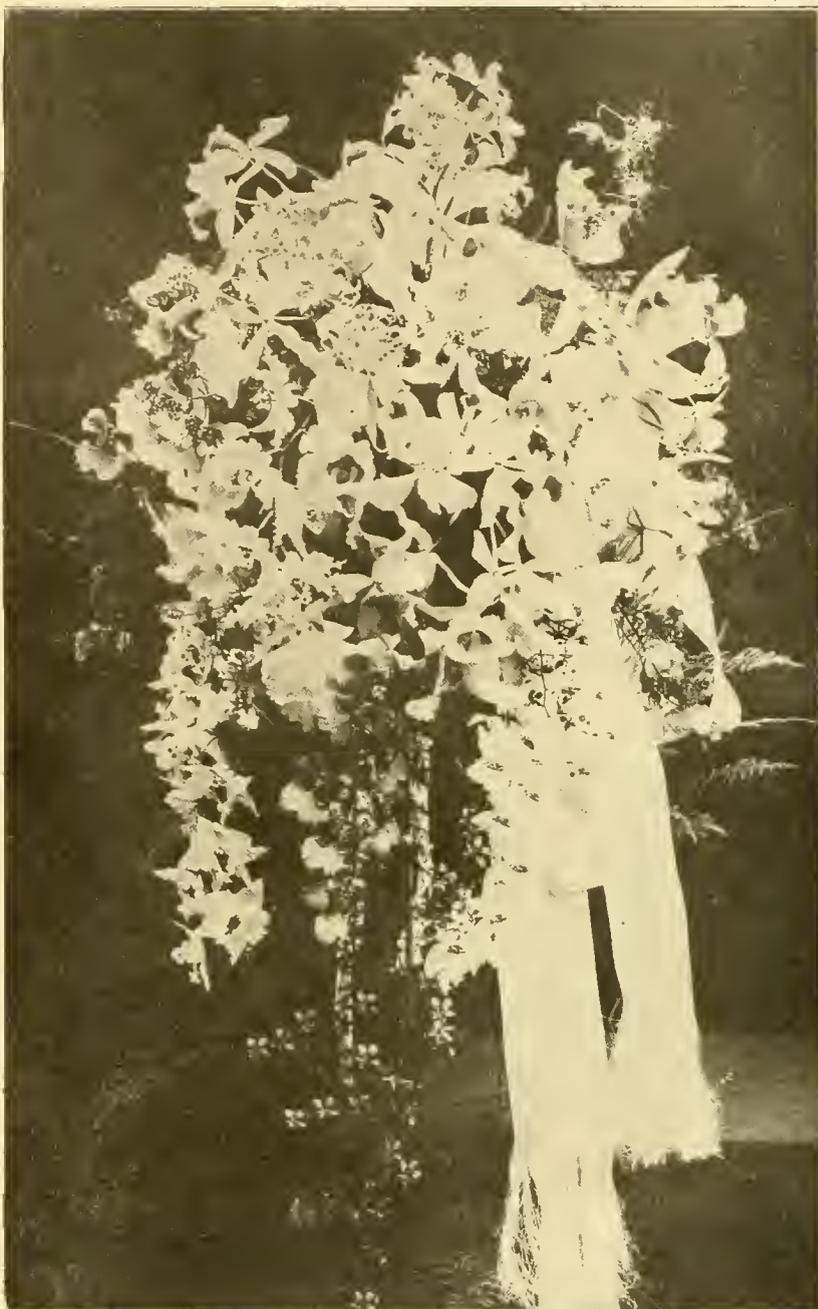

We reproduce in this issue some photographs of elaborate floral designs in the form of an orchid bouquet and an orchid basket which were presented to members of the English royal family by Charlesworth & Company, the well known orchid growers of Bradford, England, on the occasion of some recent festivities. The flowers used in these designs presented a most magnificent appearance it is claimed and reflected great credit upon the skill of the growers and their artists. We are indebted to Charlesworth & Company for this opportunity to reproduce the photographs.

Window Decoration.

A pretty window decoration is noted at the Rosary on East Thirty-fourth street, New York. The large window is arranged to give the effect of an Italian garden. A few feet back of the glass front is a white balustrade with one two-foot opening in the center. This is made of white canvas and looks like marble (from the street). From boxes at the base are trained up such plants as English ivy or Rambler rose. Only one sort of plant is used at a time. The floor space is covered with moss and perhaps right in the front color is given (when the back is pure green) by four or five pots of gloxinia or some other low growing, richly colored plant. The whole effect was very attractive and it had the great charm of simplicity.

New York.

Business is at a very low ebb. The high temperature of the past few days has had a further depressing influence on the market, and there is now practically "nothing doing." The stock coming in is nearly all outside grown, and in quantity is much more than the market can assimilate. Quoted prices are about as representative of the market as it is possible to quote them, but just now the market is pretty generally a bargain shop. "Twenty cents a hundred or the dump barrel," said a prominent wholesaler the other day as he laid off a lot of roses of usable quality, and this is not extreme, by any means. Roses are not moving well, and there is but little really fine stock to be had. Asters are coming in nicely, and choice stock brings as high as $3 per 100. A lot of poor asters are offered, however, which are bringing next to nothing. Some of the large growers of asters report a large percentage of diseased plants this year, a condition which will materially reduce their cut. Gladioli are abundant, but the demand is fair and prices are upheld. Sweet peas are still plentiful, but the quality is wretched; late varieties are not yet appearing. Carnations are nearing the end and are not much sought except in the choice varieties. Lilies are in short supply but of good appearance, and in consequence have commanded $8 per 100 for special requirements. One individual Long Island grower appears to have a corner on the market in lilies. Some cosmos has been seen in the market this week, but it is looked upon as a freak and does not go off.

ROYAL FLORAL DESIGNS.

Reed & Keller have been busy for some time getting their convention exhibit together. They will probably get it off this week and it will occupy a whole car. Some novelties are included, among them a column and urn form of wire, embodying some very intricate work, and of a design quite daring in construction. The firm is busy getting up a stock of folding bells for Christmas trade, and has already on its books orders aggregating 25,000 bells. A white bell is to be leader this season.

Chairman Patrick O'Mara and his committee are preparing to issue the programme of arrangements made for the trip of the New York contingent to the convention. It is now finally decided that the Philadelphia contingent will not join the New York party, but will proceed to St. Louis over the Pennsylvania railroad on their own account.

James Dean, who presides over the destinies of Freeport, L. I., retains his connection with the florists' trade by entertaining florists who pass his way. A. H. Langjahr visited him last Sunday.

C. W. Ward, of Cottage Gardens, Queens, N. Y., has just returned from a trip to the west. He leaves again the end of the month for Europe.

Wm. H. C. Donahue, of Thos. Young, Jr.'s, establishment, was married July 11 at St. Patrick's cathedral, New York, to Miss Anna Gertrude Cronin. He is consequently enjoying a vacation.

James Coyle, of Wm. Ghormley's, will leave July 23, accompanied by Mrs. Coyle, on a two weeks' trip to Cincinnati and Kentucky points, thence to the St. Louis exposition.

Wm. Hillebrecht, of Secaucus, N. J., died Saturday, July 16, in the thirty-fifth year of his age. His wife died only a few weeks ago. He is survived by two children.

The Misses Fuller, of Leominster, Mass., daughters of Joe Fuller, are visiting R. W. Clucas, of Clucas & Boddington, at Sparkill, N. Y.

N. Lecakes & Company have already settled themselves in their new quarters, 53 West Twenty-eighth street.

George E. Bradshaw has filed a petition in bankruptcy, and his hearing will take place next week.

Julius Roehrs and wife have returned from Newport, where they have spent several days.

John Kral, of Moore, Hentz & Nash, is summering at his Portchester, N. Y., home.

Roman Irwin, of Vaughan's Seed Store, is enjoying a vacation at Lake Bomberseen.

Louis Miller, of the staff of Alex. McConnell, is back from his vacation.

L. C. Bobbink, of Bobbink & Atkins, is making a European trip.

Chicago.

Trade continues in the midsummer rut and the utmost quiet prevails on the market. Receipts in nearly all lines have been very light. Good carnations and roses are almost an unknown quantity and Beauties of a good order are yet very few. Kaiserin is to be seen of extraordinary quality, but the output is limited. Some fair Bride and Bridesmaid are being cut. The small miscellaneous summer stock is having its turn. Sweet peas are plentiful and good. Asters are beginning to arrive and the indications point to a heavy cut later on.

A special meeting of the Florists' Club was held July 20 and was well attended, considering the hot weather. Much interest was shown in the forthcoming S. A. F. convention at St. Louis and a committee, consisting of James S. Wilson, P. J. Hauswirth and John Degnan, was appointed to investigate hotel accommodations and report at the special "convention meeting" to be held July 28 in the regular meeting room at Handel hall, at 8 p. m. Convention matters in general were discussed enthusiastically and it is now clear that there will be a big attendance at the special meeting next week. A strong convention delegation from this city now seems assured. The new by-laws were adopted after slight change.

It is said that John Dadie, the new superintendent of the West Side park system has recommended the construction of a greenhouse of immense proportions to take the place of the several greenhouses of the West Side parks. His plan is to build the big greenhouse in the portion of Garfield park lying south of Madison street, within the race track inclosure, which affords ample space. The old greenhouses are said to be in bad condition, and are a menace to the lives of hundreds of persons who seek shelter in them when storms suddenly arise.

The E. F. Winterson Company's success as auctioneering managers in the recent Fuchs sale has encouraged that firm to seriously consider making this a department of the business, commencing next fall or spring.

The George Wittbold Company is just now particularly strong on latanias, kentias and asparagus. The stock at Edgebrook is in splendid shape. Petunias are being grown with remarkable success.

Albert Fuchs will start for Europe this week and Fred Lautenschlager will have entire charge during his absence. Mrs. Fuchs is already in Europe.

Vaughan's Seed Store shipped the first consignment of Harrisii lilies last week. The bulbs looked well, being firm, healthy and fully ripened.

William Kohbrand, of Amling's and Walter Kennicott with a party of seven are spending several weeks in northern Wisconsin in camp.

It is said that the early five o'clock closing rule during July and August is being strictly adhered to by practically every wholesaler.

Among members of the trade at the Elks' convention, Cincinnati, this week, are James Hartshorne and P. J. Hauswirth.

The interior of Peter Reinberg's downtown store and office, is being improved with paint, calcimine, etc.

N. J. Wietor has returned from a two weeks' fishing trip among the upper lakes in Wisconsin.

Frank Potoka is no longer connected with Frank Garland's wholesale establishment.

Wietor Brothers are sending in La France roses worthy of special mention.

Vacation time is here and many of the stores are operating with reduced forces.

George Wienhoeber and brother are away on vacation.

Visitors: Wm. Kutschbach, Houston, Tex.; J. C. Rennison, Sioux City, Ia.; W. E. Kemble, Oskaloosa, Ia.; W. A. Hartman, South Haven, Mich.; A. L. Glaser, Dubuque, Ia.; E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; S. S. Skidelsky, Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia.

At this writing we are enduring, as best we can, the hottest weather of the year. It makes work in the greenhouses during the middle of the day almost impossible, the heat being so intense. In consequence of this burst of heat the quality of the cut flowers coming in is away off. Roses seem to suffer most, Bride and Bridesmaid being very poor. There are a few fair Beauty roses from local growers, but the imported stock is very much better. The Edgely Nurseries are sending in some very fair Queen to Bertheimer. This seems to be a better summer rose than Beauty. Carnations are quite scarce and anything worth having brings from $1.50 to $3. the latter for Prosperity, which appears to be the best summer sort. Although asters have been promised for some time their appearance in any quantity is very tardy. Several of the growers say they are losing more than half their crops by the plants damping off, and they don't seem able to prevent it. Business in the stores is very quiet, there being little outside of the funeral demands.

John G. Gardner, of the Montgomery Nurseries, Villa Nova, celebrated his fiftieth birthday anniversary on July 14. Many of his neighbors and a number of his city friends went out to congratulate him and enjoyed, as an additional incident, an exciting cricket match between teams of seniors and juniors selected from those present. The juniors had the better of it in the first game, but in the second the seniors showed their superior staying powers and made the young sparks look like 29 cents. Mr. Gardner himself was the star of the senior aggregation and was never seen to better advantage than on this occasion. The women folks of the family, including Mrs. Gardner, Miss Ethel Gardner, Miss Mary Dwyer, Mrs. Ewing and Miss Bessie Ewing, did themselves proud in entertaining the guests at the lawn party which wound up the day's proceedings. Neil Gardner, second son of John Gardner, and his right hand man in the nursery business also had a birthday on July 14, and had a little celebration on the side.

Alexander Cumming, who for a number of years past has been superintendent on the Stoke-Pogis estate, has been appointed city forester of Hartford, Conn., and enters on his duties August 1. Mr. Cumming is an experienced nurseryman and well up in all outdoor work. He graduated from the nurseries of Thos. Imrie & Sons, Ayr, Scotland, and has had American experience in Canada and New England as well as in Pennsylvania. The Hartford people are to be congratulated on securing a city forester a bit different from the usual political brand of that article, and Theodore Wirth will have a colleague who will ably second him in the good work he has been doing on the Hartford parks.

George M. Moss, representing Watson's Seed Store, has just returned from a seven weeks' trip south in behalf of his house, and reports good demand for the regular lines of forcing stock, especially Japanese multiflorum, Paper Whites, Von Sions, freesias and callas. White Romans go slow and many customers cut their orders on hyacinths and spiræa. Inquiries for good named varieties of peonies suitable for florists have been frequent and indicate a distinct revival of interest in this item. Hardy phloxes and Japanese irises are also in demand, especially the newer improved varieties.

S. S. Pennock says it is not safe to keep galax leaves at this season in an ordinary ice-box except those for immediate use; the stock should be in cold storage where the temperature is regular, as where they are subject to changes they become moist and this rots the leaves. One bad leaf or two soon spoils a whole bunch and spreading through renders the balance unsalable.

Karl Miller is erecting a house 20x100, and an addition to his dwelling which almost doubles its capacity. The old gentleman has just passed his 91st birthday and is quite spry, being about the place every day. His son August assists him in the management.

Watson's received their first consignment of Harrisii on July 15. These early bulbs are sent only to such customers as force for Christmas. The regular consignments do not arrive until later.

The stock of the yellow daisy seems quite scarce in this vicinity. None of the growers who have plants seem willing to part with the same.

Habermehl's had the Shriners' hanquet at Atlantic City last week. This used up quite a lot of flowers and was the largest thing of the month.

John Curwen and wife, late of Long Island, N. Y., are now in this city, where Mr. Curwen expects soon to engage in the business.

W. K. Harris has a great stock of Boston ferns. His plants have a finish which puts them almost in a class by themselves. K.

NOTES.

The second meeting of the creditors of Robert Craig & Son will be held Tuesday, July 26, at their offices, Forty-ninth and Market streets, at 3 p. m. The object of the meeting is to give the assignee an opportunity to explain his work so far, and to get the views of the creditors as to the future conduct of the business.

Boston.

Business is at lowest ebb in all lines. Small orders and few is the rule and, although stock is coming in very light, there is plenty for all demands and some to spare. There are no good roses in the market excepting only American Beauty, of which a fair percentage may be called good. Carnations are running low in quantity and also in quality. Growers are throwing out and replanting in rose and carnation houses. It is a good time to do it as the product is worth but little at present.

Hybrid pentstemons from E. A. Clark, tuberous begonias from H. H. Rogers, Shirley poppies from L. H. Atkins, garden flowers from Mrs. J. B. Lawrence and Mrs. E. M. Gill and new sweet peas from the F. L. Ames estate were the special features of the weekly show at Horticultural Hall last Saturday. The Ames display received honorable mention and a similar award was given to H. H. Rogers for Begonia Gold of Ophir and B. grandiflora erecta. The premiums for sweet peas brought out some good displays, first, second and third prize for thirty vases being won by W. J. Clemson, E. A. Clark and Wm. Whitman. On twelve varieties E. A. Clark, W. J. Clemson and Mrs. E. M. Gill were the winners.

The English sparrow has been living like a prince for a couple of weeks on the juicy brown-tail moths, and is receiving due credit therefor in the daily journals.

J. W. Howard has set an excellent example to his suburban colleagues by closing his place of business at 6 p. m. throughout July and August.

N. F. McCarthy and W. H. Elliott are recuperating in the outermost wilds of Maine.

St. Louis.

The weather for the past week has been very warm, and at the time of writing the stock coming in, especially roses, is very poor and soft. Bride, Bridesmaid and Golden Gate roses of very inferior quality have been plentiful all week. Red roses and American Beauty have been very scarce with fair demand. Gladioli and asters of good quality are selling well. Sweet peas are about over, owing to the heavy rain. Another crop which gives promise of being good will come on later.

William Kalisch & Sons had the decorative work for the banquet given by the doctors and physicians at the Inside Inn, World's Fair grounds. Forty tables were decorated entirely with American Beauty roses.

The S. A. F. convention visitors who wish to secure rooms in advance should communicate with Frank M. Ellis, chairman of the hotel committee, 1316 Pine street.

At the latest series of games at the Palace bowling alleys the ladies joined the men, all members being present.

J. Hauser, of Kirkwood, Mo., is sending in some first-class asters.

C. Young & Sons Company is giving a vacation of two weeks to their employes to visit the fair.

F. W. Ude & Son are supplying this market with very fine gladioli.

James W. Dunford's retail store has been closed.

H. Berning's horses are all sick with influenza.

Visitors: H. C. Schwieman, Danvers, Ill.; William Kutschbach, Houston, Tex.; J. Gelven, Sedalia, Mo.; George M. Kellogg, Pleasant Hill, Mo.; E. Lang, brother of Otto Lang, Dallas, Tex.; Ernst Nitshe, Dallas, Tex. W. F.

Baltimore.

With weather of prime summer variety, the mercury coquetting daily with the 90's and the variations depending only on the greater or less degree of humidity present in the atmosphere, there is naturally an almost total collapse of business, except for the inevitable calls for funeral purposes. There have been heavy thunder storms, and on Monday the vicinity of Catonsville was visited by a heavy hail, which, however, so far as heard from, broke no glass. The street vendors have practically abandoned their pastures, only one or two being in evidence. Thomas Vincent has closed his Charles street store for the summer.

Good flowers are very scarce. Outside Cochetts are coming in in quantity. Asters are increasing in supply, but carnations are deficient, both in quantity and quality.

John Cook is building a new palm house 22x100 feet, very substantial in construction, using stone and brick instead of posts under the roof. Wm. J. Halliday is preparing to erect two houses, one for palms used for decorations and the other for lilies, on his newly acquired ground on the Liberty road. He is also having plans drawn for a dwelling.

Thos. N. Paterson has engaged with his sister, Mrs. Paterson Johnson, of Madison street, who will also hereafter receive all the products of his greenhouses at Waverly.

The Misses Mathilde and Rosebud Held are enjoying a vacation at Atlantic City. S. B.

Washington.

The condition of trade is about what is to be expected at this season, and the same may be said of the quality of stock. There are some very good Carnot and Kaiserin roses in the stores, but most of the other roses are of inferior quality. Asters are now coming in fair quantities.

The criticisms that are sometimes passed on Washington homes on account of their lack of grounds will not apply to the home of John R. McLean. His residence stands in a beautiful park, and fine gardens, on the formal plan, and will when completed be models of landscape architecture. It is creditable to Mr. McLean that he has not adopted an exclusive policy. The gates to his grounds and gardens stand open and the public is free to enter with only reasonable restrictions imposed.

Several of the retailers are taking advantage of the summer dullness to put their stores in spick and span condition for the busy season. Fred Wolfe, manager for Loose, has started in on his workroom, and when he gets through with it, he says, it will be a dream of blue and gold. Z. D. Blackstone is also making extensive alterations and improvements in his store, and George C. Shaffer and A. Gude & Brother have enlargements in view.

Miss Marguerite Florence McPherson, daughter of Alex. McPherson, superintendent of the Soldiers' Home grounds, was recently married to Dr. Alfred Burch Herrick. Dr. Herrick has accepted a lucrative position under the United States Canal Commission in Panama, and is now enroute to his post. Mrs. Herrick will remain with her parents until conditions become more settled in the canal zone.

The Italian ambassador, Major des Planches, arrived in Washington last week after an absence of nearly a year. I hope that he at once gave orders to have the grass cut on the grounds of the legation, as it was a fright the last time I passed.

We now have very warm weather with frequent showers, and "Gen. Humidity" is camping in this vicinity. S. E.

Cleveland.

The Florists' Club has decided to hold its outing on July 28 at Idlewild inn, Rockport. A grand time is promised and no one should miss it. There will be plenty of music and dancing, as well as other sports. Supper will be served at the inn. Be sure and take Detroit street car to Riverside drive, Lakewood, where a conveyance will carry the picnickers to the inn. All those who intend going should notify the secretary at once.

The Wilhelmy Company is getting its new plant well under way. Ten houses are being erected, 28x150 feet. Several of the houses have been completed and planted to roses. The water supply is derived from a large cistern, which is divided off into compartments for clear and manure water. The place is located in Middleburg township and is about ten miles from the city.

The J. M. Gasser Company is building a large shed for the storage of soil, which is badly needed, and something every large place should possess. It comes in mighty handy to have a dry soil pile to dig into in June and July after an overdose of rain. ECHO.

OBITUARY.

Joseph H. Woodford.

Joseph H. Woodford, member of the committee of arrangements of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for twenty-seven years, and chairman of that committee for twelve years, died at his home in Wenham, Mass., July 16, aged 76 years. Mr. Woodford was a native of New York, but came to Boston when a boy. Years ago he was engaged in the east India trade and resided in Calcutta for a period of twelve years. The great fire in Boston thirty-two years ago swept this business out of existence. He was deeply interested in horticulture and much of his time in recent years had been spent about Horticultural Hall and among the people frequenting the exhibitions. His official connection with the society ceased at the time of the change in the society's methods of management last fall. The funeral at the chapel in Newton cemetery on Wednesday, July 20, was attended by a large number of society members and friends of many years' intimate association.

EVERY florist should contribute his share and take a personal interest in the welfare of the national society. Is it square to let the other man furnish the means while you enjoy an equal share in the benefits? Think it over.

THE New York Herald sees no reason for alarm as to the food supply, because of the meat packers' strike, so long as some six thousand tons of fruit and vegetables are brought to the city every night by the Pennsylvania railroad and the many other railroads and steamship lines are also bringing their share, not to mention the local truckers. More fruit and less beef is a good rule to follow for the present, at least.

Chicago to St. Louis.

Preliminary plans for transportation to St. Louis for the S. A. F. convention include a special train on the Wabash railroad, leaving Monday night, August 15, time to be announced later. The lowest World's Fair rates in effect at that time will be given passengers on this train. Those who pass through Chicago, enroute to St. Louis, should travel by this train and tickets should be made to read via the Wabash railroad from Chicago. Berths will be reserved and all further information supplied on application to P. J. Hauswirth, Auditorium Annex, Chicago.

New York to St. Louis.

Following are the arrangements for transportation to the S. A. F. convention at St. Louis, as announced by Chairman Patrick O'Mara of the transportation committee. The route is by the Baltimore & Ohio R. R., with stop-overs at Philadelphia, Washington and Cincinnati. The rates are, season excursion ticket $34; sixty day excursion $28.35; fifteen day excursion $23.25; Pullman rate $6 each way. Mr. O'Mara urges that reservations be given the committee at the earliest possible moment—he emphasizes this—and states that on request the committee will endeavor to secure hotel accommodations also. Refreshments for the special train have not been forgotten.

Adiantum Croweanum.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Since the time of naming my new fern, Adiantum Croweanum, about a year ago, I have heard through other parties that a great many growers claim they have the same kind of fern as mine. I have sent fronds of my fern to some of those parties, and have had no reply from them.

I have on my place several kinds of adiantum, such as A. cuneatum, A. decorum, A. concinnum, A. Byranii and Mr. Ley's A. hybridum, which, when in young plants it would take experts to find very little difference, but when from five to six months old there is a vast difference in all kinds. Why did not those growers who claim they have the same fern as Adiantum Croweanum, if they are good growers, push it for all it was worth when they found they had a money maker?

Now, I challenge those men to exhibit samples of their plants at the florists' convention in St. Louis in August. I want them to "put up" or "shut up," as I will have a few plants of my fern at that convention, also a few hundred of the cut fronds. Will also have a few plants of other kinds of adiantum.

PETER CROWE.

Soft Rot of Callas.

The Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture has issued a very elaborate illustrated bulletin on "A Soft Rot of the Calla Lily." Interested parties should secure copies, which will be supplied by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., at a nominal price. We hope to refer to this bulletin at length in a later issue, but in the meantime it may be stated that the author, C. O. Townsend, in his summary of the work states that "The soft rot of the calla may be prevented by a careful selection of sound corns and by changing the soil in the calla beds at intervals of three or four years."

For Convention and World's Fair Visitors.

Members of the S. A. F. should not fail to attend the first convention session each day. There will be plenty of time to see the fair later in the day and during the evening. The evening, with the brilliant lights and lower temperature, is said to be the very best time to see the fair.

From the city take the Market street electric cars for the entrance nearest to the Horticulture building. The Union railroad station is located on Market and Eighteenth streets.

The S. A. F. convention visitors who wish to secure rooms in advance should communicate with Frank M. Ellis, chairman of the hotel committee, 1316 Pine street.

Get off at station 10 on the intramural railroad for the Horticulture building. Other reasonably convenient stations are 7, 8, and 9.

Prof. L. R. Taft, who has charge of the judging in the horticultural classes, is now at his office in the Horticulture building.

Chief F. W. Taylor's office is at the south end of the Agriculture building, the end nearest the Horticulture building.

The S. A. F. convention hall is at Olive, Thirteenth, Fourteenth and St. Charles streets.

Superintendent Hadkinson's office is in the Horticulture building.

Society of American Florists.

In our summary of the S. A. F. convention programme, page 990 of last issue, it was stated that the reception and garden party at the Shaw Gardens will be held Thursday, August 18. This is an error, and the date should be Friday, August 19, in the afternoon.

The meeting of the American Carnation Society will take place Thursday, August 18, at 4 p. m.

IMPORTANT TO EXHIBITORS.

Intending exhibitors at the St. Louis convention are requested to read carefully the revised rules adopted by the executive board last March whereby all exhibitors are required to make special entry with the superintendent of such novelties in plants, flowers, supplies or other material, new devices and improvements in apparatus as they desire to have passed upon by the judges. The judges will not report upon or make awards to any exhibits where the owner has neglected to make proper entry.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

M. H. Walsh, Woods Hole, Mass., submits for registration Rambler rose Felicity. Parentage, Crimson Rambler × Gen. Jacqueminot. Flowers very double, bright scarlet-crimson, 1½ to 2 inches in diameter, borne in clusters as in Crimson Rambler. Vigorous grower, and may properly be described as Jacqueminot Rambler. Hardy at Woods Hole.

WM. J. STEWART, Sec'y.

Amendment to Constitution.

The following amendment to the constitution of the S. A. F. has been recommended by the executive board:

ARTICLE V.—SECTIONS.

SECTION 1.—Any number of persons, not less than fifty and not less than twenty-five being members in good standing of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists who shall be interested in horticulture or horticultural pursuits, and who represent any particular branch of horticulture, may be organized as a section of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists.

SEC. 2. Constitution and by-laws of sections. Each section shall in conformity with the aims and purposes and the character of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, provide for itself such officers, constitution, by-laws, rules and regulations as may be required by such section in the accomplishment of its work, and shall determine the date upon which its annual meeting or exhibition shall be held.

SEC. 3. Delegates. Each duly enrolled section shall be entitled to elect one delegate annually, who must be a member of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists in good standing, who shall serve for one year as a member of the executive board thereof with all the powers, rights and privileges appertaining thereto, the payment by the Society of American Florists of traveling expenses of such delegate in attendance on meetings of the executive board alone expected.

SEC. 4. Annual dues. The annual dues and membership fees in any section shall be determined and controlled by its members, and shall be entirely separate and distinct from the annual dues and membership fees paid to the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists. Any member in good standing in any section shall be entitled to the annual report of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, but he shall not be entitled to vote or take part in the deliberations of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists unless he is a member of that society in good standing.

SEC. 5. Annual report. The secretary of each section shall attend each annual meeting of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, and at such meeting shall present in writing a report of the proceedings of such section, which report shall be incorporated by the secretary of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists in the annual report of the society.

SEC. 6. Plant registration. Registration of plants by members of sections shall be effected through the registration department of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists.

SEC. 7. Special appropriations. The Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists may from time to time pay to any duly organized section in good standing, for its use in furthering its work, such sum as may be voted by the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, due regard being had for the number of members, the average attendance, the amount, character and importance of the work being done and of the needs of the section, and may, on the recommendation of the executive board of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, contribute for the use of any section suitable medals, certificates or other awards for new plants of American origin and other products of American skill deemed of special value to horticulture.

SEC. 8. Scientific work. The services of the regularly appointed specialists and committees of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists shall be at the disposal of any section making request therefor through the secretary of that society. Duplicate full detailed reports of such investigation or other work shall be furnished by such committee or specialist to the section making the request, and to the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists for record and exclusive publication, and any expense appertaining thereto shall be paid by the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists.

SEC. 9. Any section whose membership shall fall below the required number of registered members in good standing of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, as required in Section 1, shall not be entitled to any of the privileges as covered in the preceding sections during the time of such deficiency.

NOTICE

—OF—

STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING.

CHICAGO, July 1, 1904.

Stockholders of the American Florist Company:

You are hereby notified that the annual meeting of the Stockholders of the American Florist Company will be held in the Rozier Hotel, St. Louis, Mo., Wednesday, August 17, 1904, at 3 o'clock P. M. for the purpose of electing directors and officers for the ensuing term, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

J. C. VAUGHAN, Pres.
M. BARKER, Sec'y.

Pittsburg.

More than 100 florists and their families were present at the eleventh annual picnic of the Pittsburg and Allegheny Florists' and Gardeners' Club, which was held in Ross Grove July 14. A more perfect day for an outing could not have been selected. Dancing, foot racing and base ball were the features. Two base ball teams were picked, consisting of Pittsburgers and Alleghenians, the Pittsburg team winning by a score of 10 to 2. Carney, of the Exchange, pitched for the winners. During the day a visitor appeared on the grounds with a chuck luck arrangement looking for easy money, but after a short stay he departed for home leaving Julius Ludwig and Christ Reiger with a net gain of $13.

Charlie Siebert in a few days will let the contract for his new store room, palm and fern houses on Baum and Beatty streets. The store room will be 25x35 feet with a stair case effect. There will be an entrance on both Baum and Beatty streets and one large display window facing each street. The fern and palm houses will measure about 17x35 feet.

The Pittsburg Cut Flower Company reports business very quiet. Incoming supplies or consignments are not heavy, consequently there is very little surplus stock.

Mr. Zeiger and wife, of Siebert's, are preparing to leave for a three weeks' trip to La Mars, Ia. They will stop at St. Louis before coming home.

T. P. Langhans and family will leave about July 22 for a three weeks' fishing tour, with headquarters at Bobcaygeon, Canada.

Blind Brothers are sending in some very fine Harrisii lilies and are cutting some good American Beauty roses.

P. J. Deemas and wife, of the Exchange, left on July 18 for a visit to Chicago and St. Louis.

Billy Hall will spend the next two weeks in his garden in Allegheny.

John Bader has arrived home from Atlantic City and the east.

E. L. M.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y.—Secretary Neubrand is mailing possible exhibitors the premium list of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society for the fall exhibition to be held November 1-3.

Could Not Get Along Without It.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO.:—Enclosed find $1 for the renewal of the AMERICAN FLORIST. I have taken your paper one year and find I could not get along without it one week so will send money before the time runs out so as to be sure not to miss a paper. F. H. ROCKWOOD.

PASSENGER STEAMSHIP MOVEMENTS.

The tables herewith give the scheduled time of departure of ocean steamships carrying first-class passengers from the principal American and foreign ports, covering the space of two weeks from date of this issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST. Much disappointment often results from attempts to forward flowers for steamer delivery by express, to the care of the ship's steward or otherwise. The carriers of these packages are not infrequently refused admission on board and even those delivered on board are not always certain to reach the parties for whom they were intended. Hence florists in interior cities having orders for the delivery of flowers to passengers on out-going steamers are advised to instruct the filling of such orders to some reliable florist in the port of departure, who understands the necessary details and formalities and has the facilities for attending to it properly. For the addresses of such firms we refer our readers to the advertisements on this page:

St. Paul.

Trade has kept up wonderfully well this season so far. Much of this has been the late weddings, and those doing a country business report outside business better than usual. Stock has been rather scarce, especially roses, but the new summer stock is now coming in and is the best seen here in years.

L. L. May and his oldest son have been quite seriously ill. Mr. May with an attack of typhoid fever and his son with pneumonia. We are glad to report that they are much better and will soon be able to be around again.

Miss Louise Dort, 385 E. Robie street, is erecting a house to grow violets in for the market. We understand she is as yet an amateur but hopes to succeed in her venture.

Wm. G. Schucht, Milwaukee, was a visitor and attended the picnic. He says that he thought it was the best he had ever attended.

Miss Tillie Brenner for years with E. F. Lemke, has resigned to prepare for her wedding which will take place in the near future.

Wm. Strehlow does not show up with the boys of late and we understand that we will soon have invitations from him.

O. J. O.

Louisville.

The last week has been very quiet with many of the craft, yet there was some funeral work which helped things along to an extent. There is little doing and the commencements are over. Roses of pretty fair quality can be had in quantity, but the demand is small. Carnations, which of course are small, are plentiful and have been selling well. Sweet peas still have a good demand and are plentiful. A few gladioli and dahlias are to be seen. Asters are coming on nicely, and a big crop is expected soon. The weather has been very warm, but fortunately we have had a little rain, which helped things extensively.

There are at present three or four places for sale here and have been for quite a while, but buyers cannot be found.

John Bohrman, of Coenen & Company, will shortly go on his vacation of two or three weeks.

Sam Thompson contemplates a fishing trip with George E. Schulz, of Schulz's store.

George E. Schulz and brother Henry will spend their vacations in St. Louis.

C. H. Kunzman has been sending in some very good carnations. F. L. S.

Syracuse, N. Y.

About all the work florists here have had during the past few weeks has been filling funeral orders and all are busy planting. One of the most attractive pieces at the funeral of William Allen Butler last week was a medium sized wreath of Crimson Rambler roses and ferns, executed by Henry Morris.

Wm. S. Wheadon, who for many years has been manager of P. R. Quinlan & Company's retail store at 411 South Salina street, has resigned and will go into business for himself, having leased a store at 329 South Warren street.

One local florist, as an experiment has planted a house of violets. This house was planted the first week in July, whereas in this section it is not customary to house violets earlier than September 15.

A. V. B.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—The carnation fields of the Ocean Park Floral Company at Ocean Park have had a record breaking season. They picked almost half a million of blooms in the month of May alone and 200,000 during Decoration day week.

BOOKS FOR FLORISTS.

The time is coming along when these are needed and opportunity at hand for reading them. Every one of the following should be in your library.

Send prices quoted and we send the books.

GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION (Taft).—It tells the whole story about how to build, and heat a greenhouse, be it large or small, and that too in a plain, easily understood, practical way. It has 118 illustrations. $1.50.

HEATING AND VENTILATING BUILDINGS (Carpenter).—This book covers the entire subject most fully. In the preparation of heating and ventilating plans, it will be found a most valuable guide. $4.00.

STEAM HEATING FOR BUILDINGS (Baldwin).—Contains valuable data and hints for steam fitters and those who employ this method of heating. The 350 pages are fully illustrated. $2.50.

THE HORTICULTURISTS' RULE-BOOK (L. H. Bailey).—Contains information valuable to all those engaged in any branch of horticulture. Illustrated. 312 pages. 75 cents.

PRACTICAL FLORICULTURE (Peter Henderson).—A guide to the successful propagation and cultivation of florists' plants. Illustrated. 325 pages. $1.50.

THE ROSE—Its cultivation, varieties, etc. (H. B. Ellwanger).—A complete guide of the cultivation of the rose, together with the classification of all the leading varieties. $1.25.

GINSENG (Kains).—At the present time when so much interest is taken in ginseng it will be interesting to peruse this volume, which tells all about the plant in a way that all may understand. The 144 pages are freely illustrated. 50 cents.

THE PRINCIPLES OF FRUIT GROWING (Bailey).—The entire subject of fruit culture is treated very thoroughly in this illustrated volume of 516 pages. It is a book that no up-to-date fruit grower can afford to be without. $1.25.

HEDGES, WINDBREAKS, ETC. (Powell).—A treatise on the planting, growth and management of hedge plants for country and suburban homes. A volume of 140 pages with twenty-two illustrations. 50 cents.

CABBAGES, CAULIFLOWER AND ALLIED VEGETABLES (Allen).—The requirements of the important vegetables of the cabbage tribe are given here very fully. The book also contains interesting chapters on seed raising, insect pests and fungus diseases common to these plants. 50 cents.

ASPARAGUS (Hexamer).—A practical treatise on the planting, cultivation, harvesting and preserving of asparagus with notes on its history and botany. This book is mainly devoted to the culinary kinds of asparagus, but there is also some reference to the ornamental species. 50 cents.

LANDSCAPE GARDENING (Waugh).—This is a very useful little book on the art of landscape gardening. It will be found exceptionally valuable to amateurs as it covers in detail the numerous problems that come to the owners of small gardens. It is freely illustrated and the pictures have been chosen with a view to informing the reader rather than decorating the book. 50 cents.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Chas. N. Page, Des Moines, Ia., Pres.; L. L. May, St. Paul, Minn., First Vice-Pres.; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Sec'y and Treas. Twenty-third annual convention, June, 1905.

VISITED NEW YORK: F. H. Ebeling, Syracuse, N. Y.

CALIFORNIA calla bulbs have been shipped and deliveries may be expected soon.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Mrs. F. H. Ebeling and daughter sailed for Europe on S. S. Princess Alice July 14.

CHARLES JOHNSON is offering "The Seedsman's Assistant," being valuable tips by a seed expert; price $5 each.

BAY CITY, MICH.—The Harry N. Hammond Seed Company, Ltd., announces that Harry N. Hammond is no longer an officer of that company.

THE increase in potato acreage, referred to in this column last week, was 3.4 per cent, not 34 per cent as might appear from some circulated copies.

THE government regulation with regard to the collection and testing of seeds to prevent adulteration, to which attention was directed in our issue of June 25, page 896, is now in full operation.

W. W. JOHNSON & SON, LTD., of Boston, Eng., who introduced the new Diamond potato last year, commenced selling the new crop July 5, booking several orders at the rate of $5,000 per ton.

CONSUL ALBAN G. SNYDER, of Bogota, Columbia, says that if American merchants send him their different catalogues they will be placed on file in the public reading room of that consulate.

VISITED CHICAGO: Samuel Cole and wife, of Ventura, Cal., enroute to England on a three months' tour; Miss M. M. Stafford, secretary of the Charles C. Navlet Seed Company, San Jose, Cal.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—James Vick's Sons report a most satisfactory season. The mail order business has been much better with them than for a number of years, so much so that they have experienced great difficulty in keeping lines of stock filled up, toward the end of the season.

FOR a consideration of $2,500,000 the Chicago Dock Company, of which the Albert Dickinson Company is the principal shareholder, has sold its warehouses to the Illinois Tunnel Company. It is rumored that the Albert Dickinson Company will build at South Chicago elaborate warehouses, modern in every respect.

The French Bulb Crop.

The bullish tone assumed by some Europeans concerning the French bulb crop is well shown in the following from the Horticultural Trade Journal of July 6:

End of June sees the beginning of the export of bulbs. The crop has not been good; sizes of 13 cm. and above for white Roman hyacinths and the large blossomed narcissi are not equal to demands. When we come to the Freesia refracta alba "Mammoth" we can only say that the stock is sold, as the quantity on the market is so insignificant. The large blossomed narcissi are generally grown in parts containing water; they have suffered greatly on account of the dryness of the weather which prevailed during their growth, and must therefore be subject to great suspicion. Only sizes up to 12 cm. can be delivered; the 13 cm. is very feeble indeed.

Roman hyacinths offer no profit whatever in certain plantations. The sickness of the bulbs has assumed this season alarming proportions, and if the temperature in these regions does not improve considerably growers will be forced to discontinue their cultivation. Advices which we have received from America tell us that the merchants find the prices of French growers too high. One agent made to the First Syndicate of Bulbs in this region the offer to buy up all their stock of bulbs. To bring about, however, a drop in the market prices at the moment when he should have closed definitely he broke off all engagements, but the manoeuvre failed. We are certain that little will be left of the harvest, and that American merchants will be in the lurch when they want to make their purchase, as there will be nothing to sell to them as far as the French exporters are concerned, and we do not think that the prices will be any lower this season than they were last.

New White Potato.

Much interest has been taken in Solanum Commersonii, the Uruguay potato, says Consul Haynes, of Rouen, France, who supplies the following particulars with regard to it:

"This wild aquatic vegetable was introduced from the banks of the river Mercedes, Uruguay, and distributed in France by Professor Heckel, director of the Colonial Institute of Marseilles. In its original state the tubercle is very bitter, but Dr. Heckel pronounces the results of four years of experiments with it marvelous.

The leaves are small and slender, somewhat like those of the Irish potato, and the flowers are abundant, of a pale violet color and very odorous, the perfume resembling that of jasmine. New stems and tubercles branch off in every direction all the year, and after one planting the plant perpetuates itself from the broken roots left in the soil.

"The vegetable proper (that is, the tubercle) weighs from one to two and one-half pounds, and has a yellowish, wrinkled skin, covered with lenticels, which disappear after culture. The pulp, when cooked, has a slight greenish color. Of twenty-five taken by hazard and cooked with their skins on in 1901 all were very bitter; but of twenty-five thus taken in 1903 only eight were very bitter, seven bitter, five eatable, three good and two farinaceous. By peeling the number of bitter and very bitter ones were diminished by ten to twenty per cent, while the number of good and eatable ones were increased accordingly. The roughness of the skin and the number and size of the lenticels are usually in proportion to the acridness of the tubercles. In spite of their bitter taste animals are fond of them, especially when cooked.

"In 1903, upon a farm that cultivated the Solanum Commersonii, the severest cryptogamic maladies known made their appearance, yet ninety-eight per cent of the tubercles of this new potato were found intact, while of the Early Rose potato only fifteen per cent were good.

"Planting is done toward the end of March, preferably in level ground, so as to diminish drainage. The best depth seems to be about three inches. The digging, which is a little more difficult than that of the Irish potato, because the numerous tubercles extend in every direction, begins when cold has arrested the growth of the plant. In the same soil the yield is greatly superior to that of the ordinary potato. The Early Rose in one instance gave 3,000 pounds to the acre, the American Marvel 3,000 pounds and the Solanum Commersonii 8,500 pounds.

"This new vegetable does not seem to become acclimated until the second year. The size, appearance and taste are modified more rapidly after one year.

"The new potato requires humid, fresh, even marshy soil. In dry, sandy, clayey soil the yield has been twenty-five per cent less than in moist soil. The absence of sunlight causes a smaller yield, with smaller and inferior tubercles, and ten to fifteen days later ripening.

"The foliage, refused by rabbits, is eaten by horses, cattle and sheep. The flowers, which make their appearance about a month after the plant shows above the soil, continue to be very abundant until the harvest. A rude attempt to extract the perfume has furnished an exquisite, aromatic, very persistent but faint jasmine odor. In the fruit this perfume is so strong that when specimens were placed in an artificially heated room to dry the room was uninhabitable for the fifteen days they were there.

"There are three varieties of Solanum Commersonii, characterized by the color of the skin—the yellow, the rose and the violet. The last, which is the best for human consumption, presents the following characteristics: Enormous and uninterrupted production, absolute immunity from cryptogamic maladies, delicious flavor (much appreciated by animals), adaptability to moist soil and easy culture.

Yon Johnson on U. S. Seeds.

The garden seed distribution by the government of the United States has received so many jibes at the hands of politicians and paragraphers that it is refreshing to run across something out of the ordinary. Here it is; written by editor John Johnson, of the democratic St. Peter Herald. Congressman Davis' home is in St. Peter. Evidently he caused those seeds to reach Yon:

"Usually when favors are shown a newspaper by anybody, advertising to cover the favor is expected in return. The Herald's rates for advertising are 15 cents per inch, and having received garden seeds of the value of 15 cents we hasten to make good to the government. We would say that the U. S. is the largest distributor of seeds in the country and can back up its seeds. If they do not grow you can have them replaced until they do grow if it takes 100 years. Safe and conservative in their business methods you run no risks. This we think discharges our obligation."

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

C. L. Watrous, Des Moines, Ia., Vice-Pres.;
George C. Seager, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.
Thirtieth annual convention, West Baden
Springs, Ind., June, 1905.

NEW YORK.—August Rhotert sailed for Europe July 21 to be absent about ten weeks.

THE twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Georgia State Horticultural Society will be held at Tallulah Falls, Ga., August 4-5.

A LIBERAL application of pulverized sheep manure to the lawn and hardy perennial plants in midsummer will insure good results.

THE park commissioners of New Bedford, Mass., have voted to prohibit dogs, whether loose or in leash, from running in the city parks, and a penalty of $20 for a violation of the regulation has been fixed.

LENOX, MASS.—The regular meeting of the Lenox Horticultural Society was held July 16, with President Jenkins in the chair. The discussion for the evening was on "Small Fruits." The society has arranged to hold an exhibition of annuals and perennials on Friday, August 5.

Boston Park News.

The viburnums have made a glorious show of flowers this year. Many of them are natives and most of them reliably hardy, sure to bloom and beautiful in fruit as well as flower. The viburnums stand in high esteem with the Boston park people and Mr. Pettigrew has planted them extensively throughout the system. V. dentatum and its later-flowering prototype V. molle have been remarkably fine as were also the English species Lantana and its American sister, lantanoides. Plicatum and tomentosum were in some cases injured by the severe cold and another Japanese species, dilatatum, was badly damaged. Cassinoides, pubescens, acerfolium and Lentago, the two last named being late bloomers, are all in good order and loaded down with bloom.

Mr. Pettigrew thinks of discarding Rosa setigera as a prominent feature of the parkway planting, this beautiful subject having been badly winter-killed for two successive seasons. It is much to be regretted that it has developed this unfortunate characteristic as, when in good condition, it makes an unrivalled spectacle. The crataguses are suffering terribly from the ravages of a leaf miner, many of the trees appearing as though fire had swept across them. The same pest has been at work on the alders also. Thus far no practical preventive has been found. Pavia macrostachya is being planted extensively. Lonicera Morrowi grows in appreciation also. It has been one of the most beautiful objects in the parks this season, whether in the characteristic symmetrical mound of growth or draped in irregular masses on the hill slopes.

The Metropolitan Park Commission is encountering determined opposition in its efforts to enforce the new law regulating the displaying of business signs in the park environs and some cases are likely to get into the courts.

British Trade Topics.

The leading firms of seedsmen were well represented at the annual show of the Royal Agricultural Society, which has just been held in London. Sutton & Sons, of Reading, made a brilliant display with their gloxinias and cut flowers. James Carter & Company, of High Holborn; Webb & Sons, of Strowbridge; Dicksons, of Chester; Little & Ballatyne, of Carlisle, and J. K. King & Sons, of Coggleshall, also had attractive exhibits. Their enterprise was not so fully rewarded as it deserved. The attendance of the public was very disappointing. The absence this year of the king and the prince of Wales made a great difference in the "gate money."

It is satisfactory to know that an authoritative trial is to be made of the Eldorado potato, which has beaten all records in this country as regards price, some of the early samples having realized about three times their weight in gold. W. J. Malden, who owns 2,000 plants, has made a present of some seed tubers of this costly variety to the National Potato Society, which is now conducting trials in different parts of the country. The society, under the presidency of Sir John Llewellyn, will hold an important exhibition of potatoes at the Crystal Palace in fall, and it is probable that a conference will also take place during the week.

There are several newcomers to be noted. Veitch & Company of Chelsea are showing a new strawberry, the Alake, named after the African chief who is now visiting this country. The new berry is a cross between Frogmore Late Pine and Veitch's Perfection. Laxton Brothers, of Bedford, have also another addition to their well known stock of strawberries in the Champion, which has been produced by crossing Supreme and Laxton. Hugh Low & Company, of Enfield, have brought out what is apparently much desired, viz., a yellow Malmaison carnation, Miss Alexandra James. They claim this to be the first true Malmaison of this color. The blooms are large and handsome. A new dahlia has been raised by Frewer Brothers, of Stowmarket, Suffolk, to augment this increasingly popular class. It has been christened O. H. Frewer, after one of the principals. It has a pleasing tint of fawn, with shades of soft orange and buff. The florets are long and narrow and of good cactus shape, with an inclination to incurve. The firm's stock of dahlias comprises 600 different varieties.

This has been an early season for roses, and a big display is expected at the exhibition to be held next week by the national society in the Temple gardens in London. Mildew has given trouble to many growers. The most effective remedy for this is sulphide of potassium. The method of application is to put some pieces of the sulphide into a solution of hot, soapy water. The mixture is stirred and the sulphide is added until the water becomes a bright green.

Some of the British horticulturists have this week been visiting the Dusseldorf exhibition, where there is a magnificent collection of roses. There were 70,000 roses blooming in the grounds.

The British Gardeners' Association is being satisfactorily organized and is receiving a large measure of support. It is claimed that the new organization will tend to raise the status of the working gardener and secure for him better conditions.

Cedar Falls, Ia.

Joseph H. Bancroft & Son are building two new greenhouses and rebuilding an old one besides changing their hot water plant to steam. They have completed a new stone boiler room, 40x40 feet, and the foundations for two new 45 horse-power boilers.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bancroft celebrated their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary July 4.

MARION, IND.—Gunnar Teitman is building two new houses. His specialty is prize-winning chrysanthemums. The varieties that he believes will be best this season are Wm. Duckham, Dr. Enguehard and F. A. Cobbold. His bench of Duckham looks especially fine and will be among the very best.

Address all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 42 W. 28th St., New York; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia; or to the American Florist Co., Chicago.

At Philadelphia.

The seventh and deciding match in the convention series was bowled on the home alleys Wednesday evening, July 13. The scores were not record breakers, as but two men got over 500 in the three games. Commodore Westcott showed the youngsters that he had not forgotten how the game should be played, and carried off the honors with high game, 192 and the best total, making 540. The team selected by Yates had no trouble with the Robertsons and won every game. The score follows:

At Chicago.

Following are the totals of the games rolled at Mussey's alleys on Tuesday evening of last week. The Also Rans secured one game of the series. Balluff of the Champions played in form worthy of the name, rolling in the first game the remarkable score of 254. Asmus also rolled consistently, passing the 200 mark twice. The ladies also contributed to the pleasure of the evening. Mrs. W. Kreitling reached 160 in her third game.

The Scores of 1903.

For purposes of comparison and for the delectation of the "form" players the totals of the 1903 S. A. F. tournament at this time will be of more than passing interest and will assist materially in sizing up the situation for the meet at St. Louis next month. Philadelphia won last year. Can she do it again? From reports from that city we note that with one exception the team of 1904 will be the same that rolled the Quaker City club to victory at Milwaukee. There are some changes in the Chicago line-up and many new faces from other cities will be seen. It is pretty safe to say that the teams that figured one, two at Milwaukee will again be the ones to lead. Which will be the winner? Here are the 1903 team totals:

Philadelphia.....	3036
Chicago.....	2962
Buffalo.....	2839
Milwaukee.....	2756
St. Louis.....	2745
Denver.....	2694
Detroit.....	2595

Twin City Florists' Picnic.

The Twin City florists' eleventh annual outing was held at Wildwood July 13, and barring the showers a very enjoyable time was had. There was a good turnout, some three hundred of the craft and their families leaving work for the day. These were divided about equally between St. Paul and Minneapolis, and if the weather had not been so threatening a good many more would have come. The committee had arranged a big programme of sports and games, with a fine lot of prizes, which were all keenly contested for.

The first number on the programme was the team bowling match between the two cities for a handsome gold medal and a gold button to each member of the winning team. The medal is a large one, and is to be contested for annually between the two cities. The members of the winning team each year are to receive a solid gold button. This match was for the highest total number of pins in three games, and St. Paul won out by 121 pins. The teams and the scores were as follows:

MINNEAPOLIS.	1st	2d	3d
John Mondson.....	121	123	113
William Desmond.....	112	94	142
Jake Weinstein.....	131	135	123
Oscar Carlson.....	109	92	126
E. Nagel.....	141	124	138
ST. PAUL.	1st	2d	3d
N. C. Hansen.....	121	130	116
Henry Puvogel.....	154	118	130
John Dill.....	118	115	112
William Swanson.....	85	145	136
O. J. Olson.....	140	149	176

The cause of the low scores was the damp condition of the pins and alleys, the balls rolling right through the pins and leaving bad splits. The open bowling contest was also an exciting event and brought out about fifty bowlers. H. Will won first prize of a set of books, valued at $32; Wm. Swanson and O. J. Olson tied for second prize, which was for 100 Robert Craig carnations; P. Hansen, a ton of hard coal, with third highest; R. Wissing, a plate glass mirror, fourth highest; Gust. Malmquist, a case of matches, and Chris Bussjaeger, a bottle of rye. The ladies also had a turn at bowling, and they were nearly as many as the men. Miss Pausy Will won first prize, Miss Herrman second and Miss C. M. Will third.

The races were keenly contested. In the boys' race Joe Madden won, Dave Carlsen second, Eddie Puvogel third. The girls' race was won by Marie Carlsen, Lilly Bussjaeger second, Annie Franke third. The young ladies race was easily won by Miss Hansen, Miss Nellie Bussjaeger second and Miss Hartman third. The married ladies' egg and spoon race had some good prizes. Mrs. P. Schuster first, Mrs. Carl Peterson second, Mrs. Wm. Brenner third. The pie-eating contest at noon was a big feature. The pie was placed before each contestant and his hands were tied behind his back. H. Will won, with less than a second to spare. The pies were thick lemon-cream frosting, and the contestants were a great sight after it was over. The prize, which had not been announced previous to the contest, was a paper doll, and Mr. Will had a good time showing it around.

The men's foot race was one of the hottest of the day. One was for employes and one for employers, with a ton of hard coal as first prize for each. The employes' race was won by Chas. Hansen, Jr., Alex Bachner second and Frank Gustafson third. The employers' race was won by Henry Puvogel, N. C. Hansen second, with Henry Krinke and Charles Vogt tied for third.

The baseball game had to be postponed on account of showers till after the boat ride, but it got too late and one man from each team was selected to bowl the match off. H. Will was selected from Minneapolis and O. J. Olson for St. Paul and St. Paul won as usual. The steamboat ride was greatly enjoyed with refreshments and cigars at Ramsey pavilion across the lake. Mrs. Ludwig Anderson favored us with some fine solos on the trip, which were greatly appreciated.

The committee in charge were: Miss Katherine Hansen, Miss Gertrude Distel, Messrs. E. Nagel, Thomas Hall, Ralph Latham, Frank Gustafson, Wm. Swanson and O. J. Olson.

O. J. O.

NEWARK, N. J.—The Weathered Company, of New York, has just completed two fine new carnation houses for Wm. G. Muller, each 32x125 feet.

KOKOMO, IND.—W. W. Coles is building three new greenhouses. He has 25,000 carnations in the field which are fine. Several thousand cannas are doing nicely. A house of Kaiserin roses in which the plants have been carried over several years affords remarkable blooms at the present time.

It is good business policy to mention

The... AMERICAN FLORIST

Milwaukee.

There is little to say about the condition of business except perhaps to note that trade in general seems to be up to and in most cases somewhat ahead of last July. There is an abundance of stock but a good part of it is very poor and it is with difficulty that orders for good stock are filled. Heavy shipments of candidum lilies have been arriving during the week with fairly good sale for them.

On Sunday, July 17, ninety local florists and their families went to Oconomowoc. This was the first picnic of the Florists' Club, but from expressions heard on all sides it will not be the last, as everyone present had a very enjoyable time owing to the perfect arrangements made by the committee in charge. On arrival at Oconomowoc the party was met by Otto Sylvester, who had all the arrangements in hand at that place and after refreshments the entire party enjoyed a boat ride on the lakes. The afternoon was spent in driving about the grounds of the many private summer homes. The florists' band, lead by J. Callahan, certainly made a hit on this trip.

Fred Davies of M. A. McKenney & Company, who has been ill at the Trinity hospital, is now on the way to recovery and will be able to be about in a few days.

Business is fairly good and nearly everything in white flowers is being used up. Of course the warm weather is making flowers very small but with that they are moving pretty well.

The Elks are here and they have taken possession of the city. At the least calculation there are 40,000 strangers in town and the last to arrive is B. Rosens who lives in Brooklyn and sells Christmas hells. He is well satisfied with business and says every florist who bought from him last year is doubling his order this year. P. J. Hauswirth and Mrs. Hauswirth, of Chicago, are also here, but the writer was out when they called. Mr. Huner of the Memphis Floral Company, Louis Ulrich, of Tiffin, O., and Mr. Scharff of Van Wert, O., are also with us. The city is in holiday attire and everybody is bent on having a good time.

Miss Edith Kyrk has purchased the interests of her partner and in the future will conduct the business at 3446 Main avenue, Avondale on her own account.

RHODODENDRON HYBRIDS.—It is not often that one sees or hears of anything new in rhododendrons. All the more interesting, and indeed a great attraction, proved a group of exceptionally well grown hybrids staged at the spring exhibition at Berlin by their originator, Otto Schulz. They were a real surprise to all lovers of a class of plants now only too sparingly exhibited in good form or found represented in collections by well done specimens of the rarer varieties. These new rhododendrons, therefore, called forth unstinted admiration, for they were not only new but displayed a compact, symmetrical form of growth, an unexcelled luxuriance of foliage, and, above all, a strange, exquisite coloring in their flowers. To all these who wonder why meritorious novelties in this class of plants are such a rare sight, and hardly ever met with in a life time, a few data from an account of his experience by the raiser of these hybrids may serve as a partial explanation. In 1890 he bought from T. J. Seidel, Dresden, for $35, a plant of Rhododendron Griffithi, a variety from the Himalayas almost unknown at that time and scarce even now. The wonderfully formed florets or bells of its pure white flowers tempted him to select it as a seed-bearer in his attempts at hybridizing. The crossing of this sort, which is quite tender in its constitution, with absolutely hardy varieties became desirable, and the pollen from hybrids of the Rhododendron arboreum type was used, and resulted in successful fecundation. The Rhododendron Griffithi willingly bore seeds, and about 250 little plants from this source were in his possession the second year. By dint of frequent transplanting and extra good culture the plants grew nicely, and in the course of years into some size. But it took fully ten years before any of the plants showed any signs of bud-formation. In 1901, by keeping them rather dry and exposed to the fullest sunshine, he was enabled to detect on ten of the plants, now fully grown, the first so fervently hoped for buds. One of these ten flowered in November of the same year, the color being a splendid bright red, while the other nine bloomed the following spring, greatly surpassing in beauty the first one. Since then a few others have bloomed, the seventeenth one in August 1903. This one, as well as the first one, it is hoped, will furnish in time an excellent set for forcing purposes, while some of the others, no doubt, will prove perfectly hardy for outdoor culture. The entire lot has since been purchased by a firm in Holland.

LORRAINE BEGONIA'S LATEST RIVAL.—By the firm Thibaut & Ketteler, at Sceaux, France, a new Begonia originated by crossing Begonia Socotrana with Begonia subpeltata. It has now been introduced into Germany by J. Lambert & Sons, Trier, and is most highly spoken of by all who have seen it. This new hybrid bids fair to become as popular a plant as the now so well known Begonia Gloire de Lorraine and perhaps more so, since its propagation is less difficult and more rapid, its flowers of a brighter color, a light rosy pink, the beauty of which is greatly enhanced by a broad, glistening, dark brown foliage. If well grown this begonia reaches a height of over two feet, and its habit of growth is said to be remarkably strong and robust. The flowers are produced in countless numbers from the end of October until the following spring on such stout stems, fifteen to twenty inches long, that their use as choicest cut material alone will render the culture of Begonia Gloire de Sceaux most profitable. However, it is unexcelled as a high grade winter blooming pot plant, and as such it will be hailed with pleasure. Its treatment does not differ essentially from that of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine.

A BEAUTIFUL GARDEN IN EUROPE.—More than 10,000 people of all classes have this spring visited the gardens and glass houses of N. V. Rothschild at Vienna on the days, ten so far, when they were thrown open to the public. Nothing in Continental Europe it is asserted, equals these grounds devoted to the highest known type of ornamental horticulture and decorative art. In their gorgeous display of Flora's choicest gems, their wealth of verdant and blooming plant life in rare, strange and priceless specimens on all sides and in their wonderful effects in arrangements, devised by the most refined artistic taste and faultless judgement, these grounds present a picture of indescribable beauty. Marvelous indeed are the results attained here by the owner's unlimited wealth and the cultivator's skill and patience. One of the many wonders in horticulture, as seen here, is a specimen of Bougainvillea glabra, for the first time exhibited to the public this season. This plant, at present in full bloom, grows from a single stem, and with its countless thousands of flowers resembling butterflies in form and sparkling gems in color, occupies and fills an entire house alone, seventeen feet wide and over sixty feet long.

REVIVAL OF INTEREST IN CACTI.—A collection of wonderfully staged and superbly grown plants of the cactus family at the great international show at Dusseldorf proved a most attractive exhibit and were awarded an extra prize. Several groups of new hybrids of the phyllocactus section surpassed anything yet seen in that line; the number, size and color combination in their flowers being veritable revelations even to those old and gray in floriculture.

WE ARE NOW BOOKING ORDERS. PRICE, 25 CENTS, CASH WITH ORDER.

American Florist Co., 324 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Buffalo.

We are having grand weather, with some rain. Stock is equal to the demand, the latter consisting mostly of funeral work. Asters and sweet peas are good, the former early and the peas never better. Kaiserin roses are coming in fine. Carnot is also very good.

Visitors who have been within our gates the last week were: Wm. Dilger and A. Beibb, of Detroit, who were on an automobile tour; Phil Breitmeyer, S. A. F. president; Charles Grant, who manages the Waldorf store in New York for Small & Sons; Harry Balsley, Detroit, Mich.; T. A. Webb, carnation grower for the Dale estate, Brampton, Ont.

The sage of Corfu is writing hints under the windmill, where the cool breezes fan his brow, and meditating whether it is better to remain there or come to Buffalo and arrange for the Florists' Club picnic before he goes to St. Louis. We know he will be at the latter, but the other is in doubt.

The Wm. Scott Company has formed a close corporation, and is going to run a private employes picnic at Corfu and have a ball game with the Corfu club. A good time is certainly in store for them. When will Buffalo and Rochester play ball again? Each has won a game.

A trip in the vicinity of Delaware park last week showed everything in fine order and Captain Brink's grounds are well worth looking at.

Jerry Brookins, Orchard Park, was first with asters, and his sweet peas are by far the finest sold here this season.

S. A. Anderson expects to make extensive alterations in his store next month.

We notify Prof. Cowell now that visitors will be at South park soon.

The different stores are giving their employes vacations.

S. A. Anderson has some fine auratum lilies. BISON.

Albany, N. Y.

W. C. King on Monday evening of this week executed an order for a house decoration in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Steefel, of 721 Madison avenue. Mr. King used about one hundred strings of Asparagus plumosus, 75 strings of smilax and foliage plants in abundance.

Four rooms of the handsome residence were decorated in color schemes of pink and green. In the shrubbery surrounding the dwelling electricians had placed a large number of incandescent lights which added greatly to the spectacular effect.

H. L. Menand has removed his wholesale florist supply store from Menand's Station to 34 Williams street, Albany, which he has leased from July 1. Mr. Menand will not deal in flowers.

W. Carl Kurth of Eyres' is spending his vacation in the Helderbergs.

IRON GREENHOUSES.

The Duplex Cutter and The Duplex Eaves have solved the question of how to build up-to-date greenhouses as durable as the iron frame greenhouses at high prices, and nearly as cheap as wooden houses. See the cut that represents the new Duplex Eaves, the most durable, strongest and simplest to erect. Any common laborer can set them as perfect as an expert mechanic. It is perfection in construction. No ice or snow to darken your houses when light means money. Positively no shade from the Duplex Eaves, costs only about $2.00 per foot, including Duplex Gutters and Eaves, Iron Posts for Gutters, Iron Purlines with Posts, Tees and Floor Plates,

Center Posts with Plates and Bases. Standard Ventilating Machines, complete with double strong Pipe, Cypress Sash Bars and Ventilating Sash. Investigate the proposition and convince yourself of the fact. Also note the simplest steam return Trap made; just what a Florist needs and a coal dealer condemns. Catalogues and circulars free.

CROP INSURANCE.

Life insurance is valuable because it guarantees the outcome.

"Gurney" Heaters

"BRIGHT IDEA," "DORIC" and "400 SERIES" do the same thing for your hothouse: THEY GUARANTEE THE CROP. First of all they save 20 per cent on the coal bill and so keep expense at a minimum. Next, they produce an even heat and so do not imperil the life of the plant. Next, they are simple to operate and so require least attention. Lastly, they wear longer than others and thus perceptibly reduce the capital invested. Don't buy or exchange until you've investigated them.
