COOLIDGE IN TALK TELLS OF LABOR POLICIES

Shows American Workmen's Purchasing Power is Greatest in World

GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Coolidge in his "full dinner pail" speech which swept President McKimley into office in 1923, outlined his views on labor policy. He declared himself that the administration's post-war labor policy would never be decided to labor and pleaded for a "common sense" American brand of government.

President Coolidge outlined his labor policy in the East room of the White House before a group of labor leaders and representatives of the labor union and non-union—who had come to pledge their support to the Republican party.

Coolidge showed with elaborate statistical compilations that American labor earnings have purchasing power that is greater than any other nation of the world. He cited the protective tariff, the immigration law, the Federal Reserve Bank, the income tax, and the tariff on foreign goods, as responsible for the high purchasing power of American labor.

President Coolidge particularly pointed out that the labor vote on the tariff is a comparison of wages in 1913 and eight per cent higher in 1923, whereas their purchasing power in 1923 was 99 per cent higher than in 1913 and one-sixth times higher in 1924.

Approval of Dawes Plan Aid to Trade, Says Julius Barnes

DULUTH, Minn., Sept. 1.—Julius Barnes, former head of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and a large grain dealer, declared today there was a new spirit in the world of foreign trade as a result of acceptance by European nations of the Dawes plan. "A better day is now with us. I confidently believe," he added. "The American farm which has been the worst sufferer from the disorganization of Europe is beginning to reach a phase of actual prosperity. New price levels make farming remunerative. Dollar and thirty-cent wheat and eighty-cent barley mean farm profits once more, and farm profits mean buying power, which stimulates all business."

SEASON NEAR END; FIGHT IS CLOSE

Yanks Trail Washington in American Loop; Pirates Pushing Giants

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—With the finish only a little more than a month away, the races for the pennants in the two leagues were at a heated point today.

Six clubs are in contending positions in the rival leagues. All clubs play double headers today.

In the National league the Giants have suffered reverses until now they lead the Pittsburgh Pirates by only two games, with Brooklyn now in a contending position just two games behind the Giants.

Yanks Lose Lead
In the American league the New York Yanks lost the league lead to the Washington Senators in the series concluded yesterday. The Washington club leads the Yanks by a game and a half, with Detroit three and a half games behind in third place.

Washington's farewell address to the Yanks was a 4 to 2 licking. Rice's double in the tenth with the bases loaded broke up the game.

The Dodgers took their third straight from the Giants, 3 to 2, and advanced to within four games of the champions. Grimes won his own game with a double.

Detroit Defeated
The Cubs got two hits and nineteen fouls off Yde, the Pirates winning two games long and reducing the Giants' lead to two games.

Cincinnati dealt the Cardinals a 5 to 4 defeat, winning in the ninth on Bohne's double.

The Browns checked Detroit's pennant drive, spanking the Cobb men, 14 to 4.

The White Sox started a drive for seventh by burying Cleveland, 10 to 1.

GIANT NAVY DIRIGIBLE TO COAST

Shenandoah to Pacific When German Gas Bag Reaches U. S. This Month

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The navy's giant dirigible, the Shenandoah, will be sent to cruise on the west coast from Lakehurst, N. J., sometime during October or the early part of November, it was definitely decided at the navy department today, following a conference between Captain Lansdowne, commander of the Shenandoah, and navy officials.

The Shenandoah will not leave until after the arrival of the navy's other huge dirigible, the ZR-3, which will probably leave from Friedrichshafen, Germany, about the middle of September for her transatlantic flight to the United States.

By S. D. WEYER
Copyright, 1924, by International News Service.
FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Sept. 1.—The ZR-3, titanic dirigible which Germany plans to fly across the Atlantic this month for delivery to the United States, could be transformed within 24 hours into a war airship, Captain Joachim Breithaupt, wartime Zeppelin ace, told International News Service in an exclusive interview.

He commanded the Zeppelin brought down in London in the spring of 1916.

"It is the easiest kind of task," he said, "to build in bomb throwing devices and the like to make it a fighting ship if necessary."

"However, I do not think the United States ever will use her for that purpose. We long ago realized that the Zeppelins are impracticable as an attacking war weapon," he said.

Doubts Long Flights
"Still, airships unquestionably are an excellent factor for reconnoitering. Besides they make an excellent vanguard for a high seas fleet going into action."

The captain was skeptical about the worth of the dirigible for profitable long-distance traffic.

"I do not believe," he explained, "that airships ever will be developed so that they become a really profitable, practical means of traffic for long overland flights."

Time Not Certain
"I think the future of airships lies in regular trans-Atlantic traffic. In overland flights airships cannot compete with railroads, which assure perfect punctuality. No airship ever could guarantee arrival at a certain time."

"Although perfect construction of airships like the ZR-3 makes them independent of weather, yet peculiar meteorological conditions prevailing in the northern hemisphere make impossible the punctuality necessary to regular traffic."

Labor Day

THIS is the day that belongs to the worker, the day set aside to celebrate the progress of labor, a day of happiness and not one of revolution and revolt as some European countries celebrate their Labor day, May 1.

It is forty-two years since the first Labor Day celebration was held. Since that time the first Monday in September has become a national holiday and the labor movement has made wonderful strides, broadening its influence in industry, society and politics and hailed as an agent of human progress.

THE labor unions, like all other organizations under the sun, have been unfortunate at times in their leaders and policies, but the movement has become one of the great forces of the country; it has put through laws for the welfare and the protection and the uplift of the workers and is constantly widening its influence.

The magazine, Liberty, deplors the invasion into the labor movement in the United States of foreign revolutionary ideas, which aim at the subversion of American institutions and the substitution of revolutionary schemes for American methods of progress.

"Should these alien influences come to dominate the policy of labor in the United States, the American labor movement would sacrifice its great gains and surrender its sound hopes of continuing advance," says Liberty.

But American labor is essentially and fundamentally sound. The great body of organized labor would not tolerate the destructive policy of a few foreign-born, radical leaders. Labor's greatest victories have been bloodless, its worth-while policies have been constructive. The aim of the organization is liberty and progress and the movement is too idealistic and too big to be subverted by a few who would substitute passion for good sense.

THE labor movement has done a great deal for the wage earner and in improving his condition, broadening his outlook and protecting his rights has benefited all humanity. With the wage earners of the country on their present self-respecting basis the country cannot be in very great danger.

While organized labor exists for the purpose of fighting capital and capital is supposedly arrayed against labor the differences between these two branches of industry are not as great as they may seem. Sensible workers and thinking employers recognize their interdependence upon each other. Both are essential to industry and prosperity, and the time is not far distant when there will be a clearer understanding between the two.

JAMES J. DAVIS, Secretary of Labor in President Coolidge's cabinet, is an example of a union labor leader who looked at every question from both sides. His fairness won him the respect of his union as well as of the employers with whom he negotiated. His attitude made it possible for him to secure concessions from employers that he could not have got by aggressive demands. Every wage earner in the United States and every employer of labor might consider Labor Day well spent if they sat down and read the history of Mr. Davis' life, the fascinating and inspiring little volume called "The Iron Puddler."

DAVIS GIVES CONDITION OF LABOR

Situation Today Better Than in Previous Years, Says Cabinet Official

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Labor Day this year finds employment conditions throughout the United States better than at any time in recent years, according to a survey made especially for International News Service by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

His review of conditions follows:
By JAMES J. DAVIS
Secretary of Labor
Copyright, 1924, by International News Service.

In contrast with the industrial situation with which the United States was confronted three years ago, when millions of workers were without steady employment, this Labor Day finds practically all of our people at work at good wages. Nowhere in the world today outside the United States are the working people so prosperous and contented.

The labor situation is eminently satisfactory. There are no great contests between employers and workers. There is hardly a trade dispute of more than local significance before the Department of Labor's conciliation service for adjustment. True, we always have and no doubt always will have trade controversies, but there is not a general strike or lockout in any large industry of this country today. The policy of the Department of Labor is to use its good offices to prevent industrial disturbances, but if this is not possible, to speedily adjust them.

Urges Cooperation
The best method so far devised to promote industrial peace is through co-operation or conciliation, where the employer and the worker meet about the council table and study the questions in dispute. There is bound to be a better understanding of the problems of the industry involved, both from the workers' and the employers' point of view. A co-operative handling of differences of opinion through the method of joint conferences soon removes many barriers to a harmonious settlement.

Everywhere employers and employees have seen the good results of this method and are more and more widely setting it up as a permanent service. So general is the spread of this policy of meeting together in council that it may be said to represent a new day in our industrial life. It is, after all, the American way of doing things—this way of getting together, talking it over, and then acting in co-operation for the good of all.

Effects of War
From every angle our industrial situation is most favorable. It is natural that we should still feel a few lingering effects of the greatest war in history. But with the remarkable swiftness and rapidity we are bringing about necessary adjustments to a new economic outlook.

In every way present conditions on this Labor Day are more than satisfactory and the outlook for the future is even brighter. With employer and worker at peace, with wages assured at their present high level, and with every prospect of better business and plenty of work for all, we should congratulate ourselves. The thing for us to do is to hold on to these benefits by maintaining good will between employer and employee through harmonious co-operation. Let us get together and stay together.

Dr. H. G. Westphal, noted for his surgical skill, who has severed his official connection with the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital in order to engage in private practice.

Prominent Surgeon Plans to Establish Himself in Security Building

Dr. H. G. Westphal of 337 North Isabel street, for six years medical superintendent, and more recently chief surgeon at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, and widely known for his surgical skill, has severed his connection with the Glendale institution, and in a few days will open an office in the new Security building at Brand boulevard and Broadway for a general private practice, specializing in surgery.

Departments Develop
When he was appointed recently chief surgeon of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, Dr. Westphal rendered a report to the constituency of the institution, showing the surgical and maternity cases have greatly increased in the years he has been with the institution, while in every department increases and developments were due largely to his active and capable supervision, it is declared.

Dr. Westphal is a member of the American, California State and Los Angeles County Medical associations; the Glendale Physi-

MILLIONS IN MONEY AND GEMS MAY BE FOUND

George L. Murphy Brings Back Growsome Evidence Of Weird Story

Gold ingots to the value of $3,000,000, Spanish doubloons, glittering jewels, rare ornaments, pieces of eight and all the loot of an Aztec temple may be the fortune that awaits George L. Murphy of 537 East Colorado boulevard, who has returned this morning from the Antelope valley with a tale as wild as anything that has been heard since the days of the gold rush.

As murky evidence that he is telling the truth, and his two associates, Glen Foster of Los Angeles and Jo Jurick of Beverly Hills, have brought back with them eighteen yellowing human skulls and hundreds of bones, arrows and spearheads—all that remains of a little band of Spaniards and padres toiling over the desert to El Pueblo de Los Angeles, from Mexico City, in 1843, with a king's ransom in bullion and jewels.

First would be found the skeletons of two miles, that had been placed on top of the grim mound and burned. Then would come the remains of the forty or fifty men who had met death there at the hands of the savage Indians while bearing to Los Angeles, perhaps to the old mission at San Fernando, this mighty treasure. Then, down under the last human skeleton, would be found the treasure itself, dreamily sleeping, its gorgeous jewels deprived of their luster by the California sunlight that warmed them and set their hearts afire.

This is the eighth trip Mr. Murphy and his two companions have made to the scene of their discovery. They have not yet reached the bottom of the great ravine, which is some forty feet in diameter and from six to twelve feet deep, and so the treasure—if indeed the old prospector's tale contains truth to the end—still sleeps. Another trip or two, they think, and they will reach the gold.

More Adventure
Then comes the most exciting part of the adventure. For is it not true that there is about buried treasure an evil spell, a witchery that, like a poisonous vapor, arises from the tomb, carrying in its wake enmity, hatred, greed? Removing a buried treasure of $3,000,000 or more from some remote spot in the Antelope valley,

NEW ENGINE FOR MERCHANT SHIPS

Improved Oil Burners to Furnish Cheap Power For U. S. Vessels

Special Correspondence of the Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924
BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 1.—The grey ghost of that part of the American merchant marine which has been closely shackled in the Hudson, Thames and other estuaries along the coast may be able not only to walk but to plow the seven seas with the stems of a thousand ships.
That possibility was increased by the results of tests of the new Diesel engine developed at the plant of the Worthington Pump & Machinery company here. The developments will have a wide bearing on scores of industries because of Diesel engine economies. This engine is the first two cycle double acting Diesel engine ever built in the United States.

The Diesel engine is no new thing. The principle involved, discovered by Dr. Diesel, simply is that heavy fuel oil fed into a cylinder by a spray and put under five hundred pounds pressure, develops tremendous heat. This produces combustion of the fuel with consequent expansion of gasses and exertion of motive force on a piston. The older designs of Diesel engine are of the four cycle single acting, or the two cycle single acting types. The former delivers a driving impulse on every other down stroke of the piston, while the latter delivers its power on every down-stroke.

Increased Power
The newly developed Worthington engine, however, delivers its drive on every up stroke and every down stroke. Efforts to sell the larger portion of the United States shipping board fleet have been largely unavailing owing to the fact that since they were equipped with steam engines, they could not compete profitably with those of foreign nations which had internal combustion engines and were operated under more favorable regulations than those imposed by American shipping laws. It is estimated that the Diesel engine will produce from two to three times as much energy as the steam engine from the same amount of fuel oil burned by each.

The shipping board has recognized this fact and is now preparing to convert at least twelve of the idle vessels to motor ships immediately. It has been authorized to spend $25,000,000 in this program. The trouble heretofore with the older types of Diesel engines large enough to furnish the required power would not go into the engine room space of the old ships, and cargo space, which means earning capacity, had to be sacrificed. The enormous weight involved also lessened cargo capacity. But it was unavoidable, for, although it has been possible to build small light internal combustion engines provided they were operated at high speeds, marine engines for freighters, running from 10 to 12 knots an hour, have to run slow since the most effective number of propellers' revolutions range from 90 to 120 a minute. The weight of the low speed engines made them expensive because of the tremendous amount of high cost steel which went into their construction.

Double Horsepower
The Worthington engineers, however, including O. E. Jorgenson, who is responsible for many of the details of the new engine, and Dr. C. E. Lucks, professor of mechanical engineering at Columbia, declare their product has obviated or lessened the sea disadvantages. They say that with the pistons exerting power on every up and down stroke, the horsepower developed is nearly twice that of an old style engine of the same weight and bulk, while at the same time, fuel economy and other operating advantages are retained and simplicity of design, low first cost, shortness, and ease of maneuvering are added.

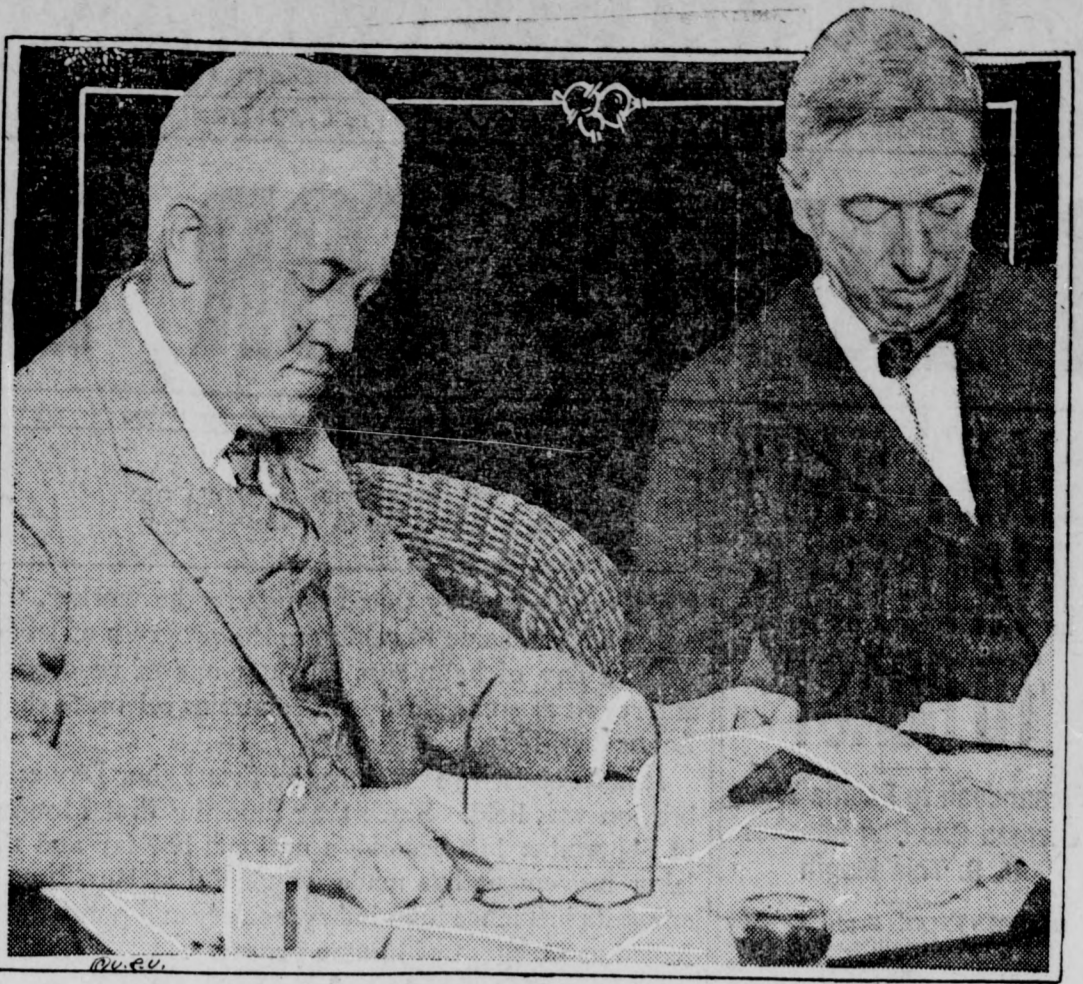

The importance of the development does not apply alone to the old steamships, for practically all cargo long distance carriers now being built are utilizing the Diesel type of engine propulsion. Fuel economy has led to wide use of the engine on land, especially for driving electric generators. The government is now considering bids on a Diesel run power plant at the Canal Zone, which will consist of six units of 3500 horsepower each.

Remove Obstacle
The hearing of recent tests on every line throughout the country may be realized by a review of the shipping situation. The interstate commerce commission has suspended operation of that section of the merchant marine act which provides preferential rail rates on American goods for shipment abroad, provided they are carried in American vessels. It is believed the doubt as to whether enough American ships were in commission to handle these shipments had a bearing on the decision of the commission. With the idle merchant fleet re-equipped, this objection would be nullified.

Any increase in the use of internal combustion engines naturally will have an immediate effect on the oil industry. Stocks of crude petroleum are higher than at any time since 1922 and are being added to at the rate of two million barrels a day. Heavier consumption of petroleum and its products offers the only relief in sight for oil producers. Shoes of rather sober design, but of such materials as lizard, boa constrictor and crocodile, are popular in France.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 1.—John Bowers, famous screen actor, thought he had been shadowed. "Yesterday you went golfing, Mr. Bowers, and today you're bound for the seashore," said the bright young stenographer in the office of his business representative the other day, as Mr. Bowers entered.

Reveals Secret
For answer your scribe handed a slip of paper to Bowers, on which was typed the list which precedes this story, explaining in the meantime: "You see, you've been coming in here quite often in the last couple of months, and I noticed that you wore a different flower almost every day. Then, in the course of attending to details of your business, I learned of your movements for the day and unconsciously began to associate them with the bud or blossom in your lapel."

Admits She's Right
"Now, that's funny," said Bowers, studying the list. "Come to think of it, I do wear certain flowers for certain occasions, just as you've listed them, but I, too, have done so unconsciously. Perhaps it was just a certain feeling of aesthetic fitness that I should have picked these certain ones for set occasions."

CASE SHOWS NEED OF UNIFORM LAWS

Man Divorced in Texas Held Bigamist in New York After Remarriage

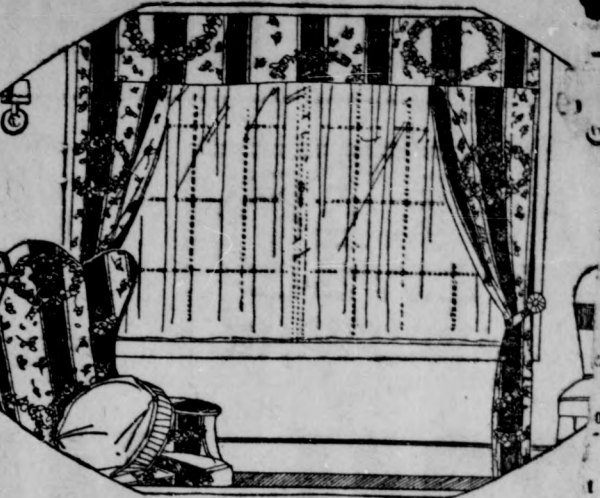

By ROWLAND WOOD
Special correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924
NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Advocates of uniform divorce laws have found new ammunition in the case of Archibald B. Gwathmey, wealthy ex-president of the New York Cotton Exchange, who today finds himself a technical bigamist in New York state on account of a divorce decree granted him in Texas last January.

The ruling that made Gwathmey a bigamist was handed down by Supreme Court Justice Burr in connection with a separation suit which the first Mrs. Gwathmey, whom the banker-broker married in his college days, now has pending in the New York courts. The ruling holds that Gwathmey's Texas divorce was "entitled to no faith and credit" in this state and enjoins him from citing that divorce in an effort to upset her suit.

Legal Elsewhere
Gwathmey, however, can lay aside his status of bigamist by taking the Hudson tubes over into New Jersey, or by running up into Connecticut, for there he has not acted on his wife's contention that the Texas divorce is invalid.

Cite Wilcox Case
The Gwathmey case, while a pointed one, is just one more in a long list of cases which advocates of federalized divorce laws advance in support of their contention. The recent furor over Nina Putnam Wilcox, the author, was another case in point, though the point was not so clearly drawn out.

ASPHALTIC ROOFS ON MANY HOMES

Largest Plant in World Has Been Built at Paraffin, Calif., by Industry

If one were to travel across America and study the types of roofs covering the hundreds of thousands of homes he would be astounded, no doubt, to discover that a very large number consist of asphalt prepared roofing. And it would be interesting to the observer to know that this type of roofing had its industrial birth in America, to be specific at Paraffin, Calif., a city across the bay from San Francisco, where today is the largest roofing plant in the world, and where improved asphalt prepared roofing is manufactured on a tremendous scale which, for the first time, has maintained its popularity.

A SMALL WORLD

"This is a pretty small world after all," is an old saw we often hear repeated, or we may repeat it ourselves when we meet friends or acquaintances at unexpected times in out-of-the-way places. What we mean is that transportation has become so improved and travel so general that the uttermost ends of the earth have been brought closer together.

But in another sense it may be true that we are living in a small world. Our outlook may be small, we may be content to live dull, drab, uninteresting lives void of color or beauty or romance. If so, we make our world small.

In reality the world is vast, interesting, alive with color and beauty and wonderful, harmonious sounds, if we will but see and hear. It rests with us whether or not we dwell in this larger sphere. It is not a question of money or travel. The man of wealth who goes to the far corners of the earth may be living in the smallest world of us all. It all rests with him, with his power of observation, his ability to see and enjoy the things around him. The woman who is chained to the home, the man who is fettered by his job may live in the big world, the vast world. It is all a matter of taking advantage of the things that will broaden us and so broaden our world; the opportunity to hear good music, the ability to absorb the beauty of the sunset and the song of the lark; the reading of good literature and an interest in the things and the people about us; and learning all we can from those whose opportunities have been greater than ours.

With so much that is interesting, beautiful and romantic about us it is a pity that we should be content to lead commonplace lives in a small world.

I CAN'T RECALL YOUR NAME

We have all, at some time or other, felt the importance of remembering names. We have been embarrassed because we could not recall the name of an acquaintance, even though we could say tritely on meeting him, "I remember your face." We have all been surprised, too, when one whom we had met but casually a long time ago called us by name.

Business people have long since learned the value of becoming familiar with the names of customers and calling them by name, even though contact with them is very slight. Who among us has not had that comfortable feeling of warmth around the heart on hearing ourselves addressed by name by one whom we had not expected to remember us, and it matters not a whit that we know he has taken pains to do this for business reasons.

And so a new science has come into being, Namecraft, which is remembering people by name, and the importance of it is recognized by practical people. Some people remember names instinctively, others have to cultivate the art, but in any case we must remember. Nowadays when we pass and repass so many others, when we have so many contacts with other lives, when we deal with hundreds and the world is drawing so much closer together the science of Namecraft is becoming of more importance than might seem true at first thought. Remembering the names of those we meet is an accomplishment that is worth considerable effort.

RIGHTLY DIRECTED ENERGY

A psychologist says that prosperity and all that goes with it is only another name for intelligently directed energy.

You know the man who seems to have so much pep. He makes a great deal of noise, moves about a great deal and attracts attention to himself. He is a hustler, but he never accomplishes anything. There is another who plods along day after day. He is not lazy, but he doesn't know how to direct his energy. Both of these people would count for more if they knew how to use their power to good purpose.

So many people feel that if they were somewhere else, doing something else, with different people and different equipment they would be successful. They roam about from place to place, always hoping to find a job to which they are suited. Distance lends enchantment. The other fellow's work always looks easier and more desirable. These rolling stones never gather any moss, although they may acquire a sort of polish, but polish isn't prosperity.

It isn't so much a question of where we are or what work we are doing. It is a matter of properly directed energy. A worker should always try to better himself, to make himself worth more and be ready to take a better position when it offers. But if one is unsuccessful in certain work he should look to it that he is directing his energy intelligently before he places the blame on his surroundings.

BLAMES THE WOMEN

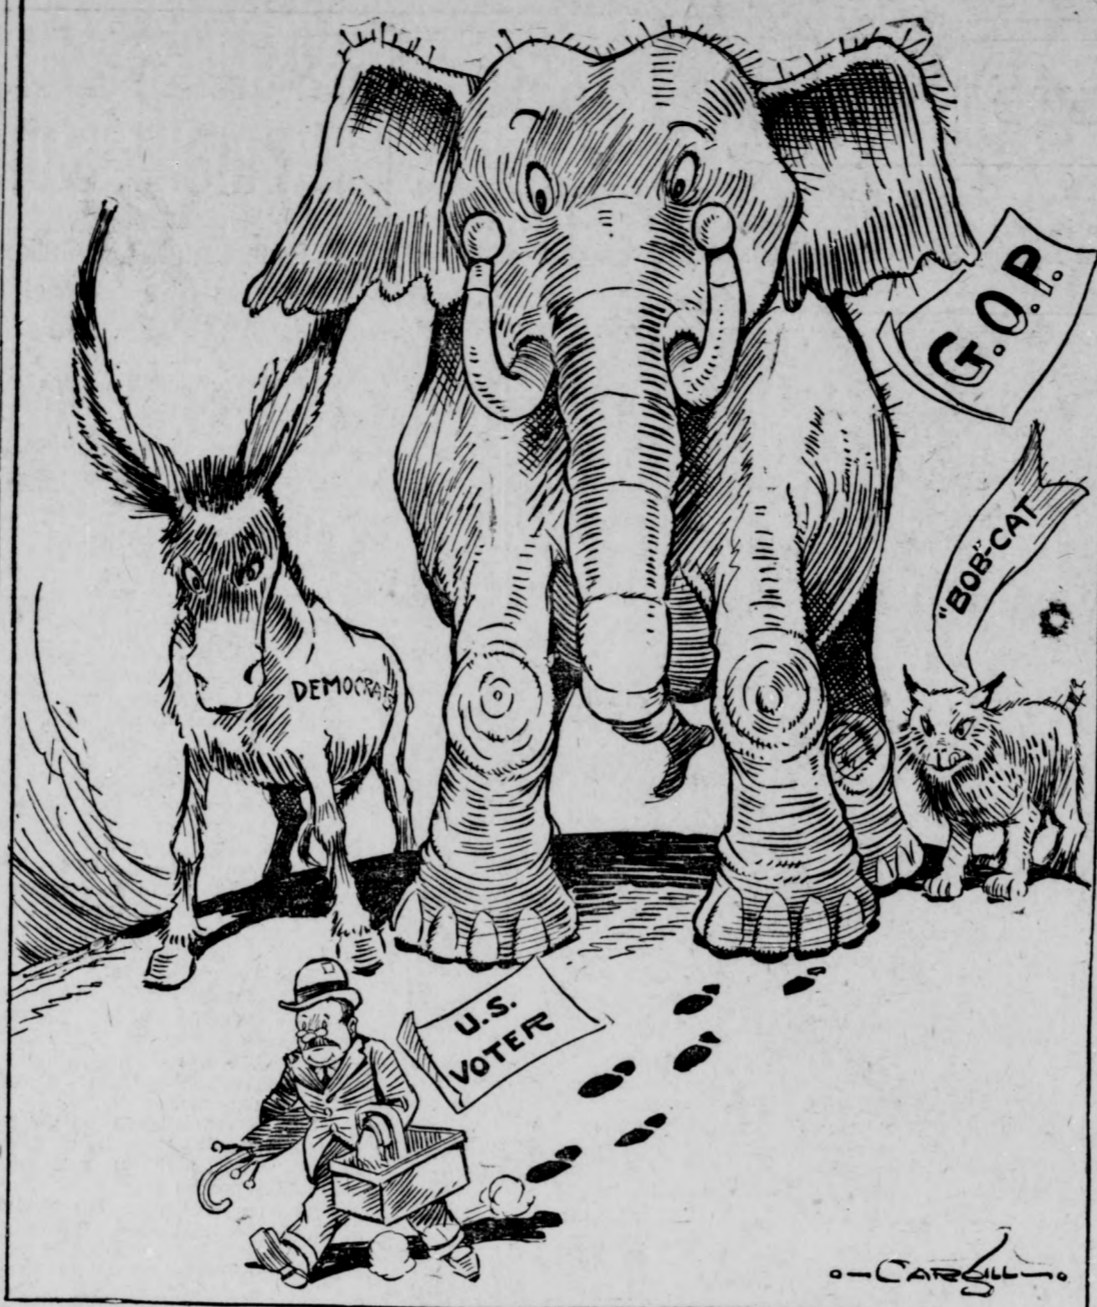

Many reasons have been offered as to why fewer people are taking an interest in the elections. Here is a new one advanced by a correspondent in a weekly magazine. He says we do not appreciate the vote because it is human nature to value lightly any right that everyone has. Giving the vote to woman has decreased a man's interest. Why should a man care for a right that is given on equal terms to women? Also, a man's vote is now worth just half what it was before women voted, and his incentive to vote is therefore just half what it was. He adds, "How can a man be enthusiastic about voting when any ignorant mutt's say-so counts as much as his?" This correspondent sees only one solution of this problem. "Something must be done to restrict the electorate." In cutting off the names of "ignorant mutts" from the voting list we could consistently begin with his.

REFUSES RECOGNITION OF RUSSIA

Several European countries have recently accorded official recognition to the Soviet government of Russia, but President Coolidge has not changed his position in regard to his refusal to recognize Moscow. In his message to Congress last December he declared that before the United States can recognize Russia that country must first recognize the financial obligations of the Russian government to the United States, must restore or indemnify American property confiscated or nationalized by the Soviet government, and must stop all propaganda in the United States looking toward world revolution. The president is perfectly right in withholding recognition from a government that refuses to accede to these terms.

STALKED BY BIG GAME

Carpe Diem

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The ancients had a motto, "Carpe Diem," which, literally translated, means, "Seize today." It was generally supposed to be the motto of reckless people and of those who sacrificed the present to the future thoughtlessly. There is something to be said, however, in favor of it for more thoughtful people.

Man is a peculiar animal in that he lives not in the present but always in the future or past. We draw our satisfactions not from the only time which is ours, the present, but from the time which we do not know whether it be ours or not, the future.

We live in the future. Part of the time we are distressed over its anticipation of evil, the rest of the time we are delighted over its expectations of good.

And yet we do not know whether it will come or not. All that we are certain of is the present.

There are some natures who live always in the past and, like Lot's wife, are forever looking back. They consume themselves in remorse or in gratification over what has already taken place, notwithstanding the fact that nothing can change it. What is past is past.

Those who get the most out of life indubitably are those who live in the present, who understand how to enjoy what pleasures are theirs now and who willingly undergo the pains that may be theirs.

This does not imply that one should be blind or reckless as to the future nor indifferent as to the past. The time will never come when man, who is essentially a time-binding animal, can live wholly in either one of the three sections. The present will always be bound up with the past and future.

But we will get much more out of life if we learn to seek our satisfactions and to appreciate them in the present and neither consume ourselves in vain regret for the past nor absurd hopes for that which is to come.

There is, besides a heathen and foolish meaning to this motto, Carpe Diem, an intelligent and Christian meaning, wholly consistent with our responsibilities of the past and of the future.

We should undoubtedly get more out of life if we learned simply and naturally to take things as they come.

It was not intended by whoever created the human race that we should know the future definitely. It was manifestly intended that we should live one day at a time and those who best conform to this rule of life get the most out of it. Copyright, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Horoscope

This is a day of rare good luck, according to astrology. Mercury the Sun and Jupiter are all in benefic aspect.

It is a day most auspicious for all sorts of advertising, especially for personal publicity.

Political candidates should make the most of this rule which is believed to encourage the exploitation of individual attainments.

This is a most favorable sway under which to seek support or aid from men in high place. Influence can be more easily obtained while this configuration prevails than in ordinary conditions.

All the signs appear to give impetus to the ambitions of men who represent conservative views.

The planetary government is most promising for what is firmly established.

Whatever is in the nature of experiment is not likely to be successful at this time.

This should be a fortunate direction of the stars for all who would make beginnings in any line of business or in any activity that is to be followed as a vocation.

Revenues of the nation will be large during the coming autumn, it is forecast, but there will be great expenditures.

According to the sign foreshadowing large outlay by the government there will be also extreme extravagance in connection with the national campaign.

Criticism may be directed against the navy at this time and misrepresentation of facts may be expected.

Both men and women should consider this a day in which to make first moves in important matters.

Persons whose birthdate it is has a happy augury for the year, which should be unusually prosperous.

Children born on this day should be most lucky all through their lives. These subjects of Virgo usually have great physical endurance and remain young in appearance until late in life.

An armchair that may be converted into a table or a music stool has been designed for use in apartments.

Raisuli, the world's most famous bandit chief, has been cast in a new role. In the words of the politician, he "has been regularized." The Spanish directory has appointed him governor of the western part of the Spanish zone in Morocco, and now he throws the weight of his power on the side of law and order.

About sixty-five years ago Raisuli was born—of high degree in the Berber race and of position in his tribe. He was brought up with the proper instruction in learned matters and religion. He was a handsome fellow, of an adventurous disposition. Peaceful pursuits irked him and he adopted the profession of cattle thief. He gained some notoriety, but unfortunately made a bad move and became a nuisance to the Sultan Fez, who put a price upon his head. Raisuli was betrayed by one whom he trusted and was cast into the horrors of the Sultan's dungeons.

While the resentful young lawbreaker languished for five terrible years in prison his enemy confiscated his property, so that when Raisuli was at last released he had nothing. It is said that he had been much chastened by his punishment and had concluded to live a peaceful, unoffending life, but he could get no redress from the government for his lost property and that angered him. Then did he swear vengeance and go on the warpath. Raisuli took a crafty way to make trouble for the Sultan. He seized foreign travelers—English, American or otherwise—and held them for ransom. When foreign governments sent warships to demand that the Sultan maintain better order in his country and obtain freedom for Raisuli's prisoners, the Moroccan ruler had cause to regret his injustice to the bandit. Raisuli refused to give up his prisoners without the stated ransom; the countries demanded their citizens; clearly the quickest way for the Sultan to free the harbor from ships and guns was to pay the sum himself—which he did.

Treated His Prisoners Kindly
Raisuli captured an English nobleman, an English newspaper correspondent, and two Americans, at various times. His prisoners seldom complained of mistreatment. Indeed, General McLean, one of his prisoners, declared that he grew to admire him, and felt that he had suffered great wrong.

When Perdicaris and Varley, the two Americans, were kidnapped, the affair took on a serious tone. It was during President Roosevelt's administration, and the secretary of state, John Hay, sent a laconic cable—"Perdicaris alive or Raisuli dead." Perdicaris came out alive, and the fame of Raisuli spread over the earth.

Raisuli has many enemies. His death by violence has been reported many times. But he has outwitted his enemies and managed to retain his power, and now he wields it with authority. Spain has suzerainty over part of Morocco and has decided that Raisuli knows best how to manage his own territory. Since the Spaniards cannot break his power, they use it to their own advantage.

Today's Poem

EARLY MORNING AT BAR-GIS

Clear air and grassy lea,
Stream song and cattle-bell—
Dear man, what fools are we
In prison-walls to dwell!

To live our days apart
From green things and wide skies,
And let the wistful heart
Be cut and crushed with lies!

Bright peaks!—and suddenly
Light floods the placid dell,
The grass tops brush my knee:
A good crop it will be,
So all is well!

O man, what fools are we
In prison-walls to dwell!
—Hermann Hagedorn.

Some reasons why men and women do not vote

Editor The Evening News—You say you heard I did not vote at the primary election and you would like to know why. Well, if you were as busy as I am you would not ask that question. I have a home and a family to look after. Then I belong to a bridge club and a reading club, both of which meet every week. I am a member of a social club that I have to entertain frequently and it is just a task to think of something new to have in the way of refreshments and entertainment that will be different and just a little better than the other ladies provide. In the evenings we usually go motoring if there is nothing else on and my husband and I think we owe it to ourselves to attend the theatre at least once a week. All this with other social duties and affairs and shopping for myself and daughter keep me rather busy.

Of course, I believe that everyone should vote. Goodness knows, I worked hard enough for suffrage, listening to speeches, riding in parades, and all that sort of thing, you know. And I do vote, I assure you, whenever it is convenient for me. But I must confess that the day of the primaries I had so much on my mind that I forgot there was an election. In the morning I had to go to the modistes. I was having a gown made to wear that afternoon and I hadn't enough lace. That meant a shopping trip to match the lace. I got that just in time to keep my appointment at the beauty shop. By the time I had a facial and a marcel and a manure I had just a minute to snatch a bite of lunch with a friend. Then I went back for my gown and dressed to attend a matinee party in town. After that I met my husband and we went to dinner and to the theatre. So you see, with the polls closing so early, it was impossible for me to vote. I regret it so much, for I take SO much interest in politics.

I have often thought it would be a good idea if the polls could be kept open for several days so that people who are so busy could have a chance to vote. Why not bring up this question in your valuable paper? I am sure it is an idea that would take with the people and you are perfectly welcome to use it as your own.

So you see I have been thinking a great deal about the matter of voting. I am very public-spirited and am willing to do almost anything to help in this campaign. I DO hope we have a big vote in November. Truly yours,

MRS. T. O. O. BUSY.

Of course, I believe that everyone should vote. Goodness knows, I worked hard enough for suffrage, listening to speeches, riding in parades, and all that sort of thing, you know. And I do vote, I assure you, whenever it is convenient for me. But I must confess that the day of the primaries I had so much on my mind that I forgot there was an election. In the morning I had to go to the modistes. I was having a gown made to wear that afternoon and I hadn't enough lace. That meant a shopping trip to match the lace. I got that just in time to keep my appointment at the beauty shop. By the time I had a facial and a marcel and a manure I had just a minute to snatch a bite of lunch with a friend. Then I went back for my gown and dressed to attend a matinee party in town. After that I met my husband and we went to dinner and to the theatre. So you see, with the polls closing so early, it was impossible for me to vote. I regret it so much, for I take SO much interest in politics.

I have often thought it would be a good idea if the polls could be kept open for several days so that people who are so busy could have a chance to vote. Why not bring up this question in your valuable paper? I am sure it is an idea that would take with the people and you are perfectly welcome to use it as your own.

So you see I have been thinking a great deal about the matter of voting. I am very public-spirited and am willing to do almost anything to help in this campaign. I DO hope we have a big vote in November. Truly yours,

MRS. T. O. O. BUSY.

Editor The Evening News—You say you heard I did not vote at the primary election and you would like to know why. Well, if you were as busy as I am you would not ask that question. I have a home and a family to look after. Then I belong to a bridge club and a reading club, both of which meet every week. I am a member of a social club that I have to entertain frequently and it is just a task to think of something new to have in the way of refreshments and entertainment that will be different and just a little better than the other ladies provide. In the evenings we usually go motoring if there is nothing else on and my husband and I think we owe it to ourselves to attend the theatre at least once a week. All this with other social duties and affairs and shopping for myself and daughter keep me rather busy.

PRINCE TO IV SOME MOROLO

Wales, In Prime Position, Rides Rings and Suite Memb

BULLETIN SYOSSET, N. Y., 1.—Flushed, panting and excited while beads of perspiration trickled down his face and his pony, Edwalbert, prince of Wales, indulged in his second game of polo and enjoyed every minute.

Wales, toughened before in Europe just before he left, and by daily gymnastic work and boxing on board the galera, is proving more than a match on the field for those who with him at the Burden estate.

After he had played an hour and thirty minutes yesterday with his equerrier E. D. Metcalfe, and Capt. Frank Miller, international player at the British and who played at Meadow Brook last week, he left the field with aching, blistered feet and aching back.

Although drenched with perspiration and his palms a little blistered, he asked thronically to be ready this forenoon on the field, near the Burden estate, for another workout.

Wales rode three yesterday, his favorite, more than the other two. Major Metcalfe, captain Miller, tired by the galloping and bucking, gave it up.

The prince, on the hand, showed no fatigue. He cast aside his mallet at his horses through a mane until they were lathered with foam. Then he had enough to shower bath and motock to the Burden place forenoon. The prince's appearance in the field was a shock to riders of fashion notes who looked here to jot down each twist and turn of dress as they saw the young man who set world pace in male fashion.

When it became known that H. R. H. was going to polo, the fashion crowd were all set to witness a polo costume. Instead they took the field easily the poorly dressed of the little group of persons there. He wore a Panama hat, crushed so as to nearly obscure his face when he mounted his polo horse. He wore a helmet of pith, which sat at a striking angle. He wore a sweater with high collar, sleeves, tan breeches and boots.

There was a mystery today that had Syosset up to it. It was "where did the prince get that helmet?"

Late in the afternoon with Metcalfe and another, Brig. Gen. Terry, they went into an automobile and drove out on Long Island. They returned until late in the night.

One report was that had gone bathing in the afternoon, the prince was the guest at a semi-buffet on the lawn of the Pratt estate in Glencoe. Provision was made for dining minor out of door plans were made for this.

RUSHING WORK ON RAILWAY TUNNEL

Contractors Are Using New Construction Methods On P. E. Subway

ground level and extends westerly and northerly to First street and Glendale boulevard; the northerly portal being about 600 feet south of the intersection of First street and Glendale boulevard.

Use New Methods

Taking advantage of the contour of the ground, together with the most modern type of equipment, many new methods have been inaugurated which have greatly expedited the work. In disposing of the earth excavated from the tunnel proper a large timber bunker was erected in the open cut of 300 feet at the northern portal. Leading from the tunnel a portable tramway track extends up the right slope of the cut and onto the bunker.

Mining type equipment, consisting of gas-operated locomotives and small steel bodied dump cars, is used in handling the excavated materials from the tunnel onto the bunker. Motor trucks are always at hand beneath the bunker to receive the earth.

Efficient Handling

Another timber bunker has been erected on the left side of the open cut, which is used for storing sand, rock, gravel, etc. The top of this bunker is level with spur track, thus permitting the efficient handling of materials directly from the cars into the storage bunker.

A concrete mixing plant is located under the base of the storage bunker, whereby the mixture is forced into the tunnel for placement in the forms by Universal air-mixing and placing machines. An air compressor plant furnishes air for pneumatic tool service in boring the tunnel; also, for furnishing air in external gases forming in the drifts of the tunnel.

Cost Over Three Millions The character of soil encountered in the bore is principally blue shale clay, which necessitates the two lower drifts proceed in advance of the two upper drifts. It is the plan to remove the core of the tunnel with steam shovels.

The length of the tunnel is 4225 feet, and when the new rapid transit artery is in operation, whereby a sectional route distance of 13,602 feet is reduced to 6095 feet, the contrast will be quite noticeable, as trains through the subway will be operated at 30 to 35 miles per hour with safety.

The undertaking, which entails an expenditure of approximately $3,500,000, will undoubtedly be the forerunner of a series of subway traffic arteries leading from Los Angeles.

SCHOLARSHIP TO INDIAN PRINCESS

Girl of Seneca Tribe Wins In Competition With Other Students

By J. ROY ELLIOTT

Special correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924. Up on the Tonawanda Indian reservation, where members of the Seneca Indian tribe for years have struggled for mastery of the white man's ways, at the same time endeavoring to keep intact the old tribal customs which flourished when the Senecas, as a part of the famous Iroquois confederacy, ruled this section of the land, Miss Inez Blackchief, an Indian maiden, is blazing the trail for equality of the sexes. For Miss Blackchief has "landed" as the first Indian girl to win a scholarship in the University of Rochester.

Waits Over Tribe

To achieve the honor, Miss Blackchief, competed not only with all the Indian girls of the reservation, but with the boys as well, and came out with flying colors. The scholarship she won was awarded by the Lewis H. Morgan chapter of the New York State Archaeological society.

Indicate Nature

"But there are types of feet which, taken in connection with other physical characteristics, may help in indicating their possessor's temperament, for we inherit physical as well as mental qualities. The high arch of the human foot which is to be seen in many of the Greek sculptural masterpieces is characteristic of advanced races. A high arch shows an active, alert, high-stepping ancestry, like a thoroughbred colt. The retrograding races of the world show flat feet.

"Hereditary characteristics are shown in the feet as often as in the other parts of the body. A long, narrow, tapering foot, with slender toes and almond-shaped nails, is often the possession of an emotional, artistic, beauty-loving, sensitive nature. Actors, singers, artists frequently have such delicate shaped feet and hands. A square and solid foot frequently carries the practical, persevering sort of person who gets ahead in the world. This type inherits its activity and the feet to some extent probably reveal the result of exercise by a strong and vigorous ancestry."

Auburn-Haired Beauty Wins Prize With Tresses of Seven Feet Long

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 1.—Established on the throne vacated by the "king of whiskers" two years ago, Mrs. Lydia Warwick McPherson, chosen in a state-wide contest as California's longest-haired woman, today ruled over the kangaroo court of the mystic order of Whiskerinos and long-hairs.

For the next three days Mrs. McPherson's crown of glory will entitle her to reign as queen of California's state fair. At the end of that time she will relinquish her royal powers to the state's champion mother, who will be selected in the "big family" contest to be concluded Wednesday.

Wears Auburn Locks Mrs. McPherson, auburn-haired beauty of Los Angeles, won the state championship by a wide margin, her titian-tinted tresses measuring slightly over seven feet. Second prize was won by Mrs. Anne Allowell of Oakland, whose longest strand measured exactly six feet.

Seventy women participated in the contest, their hair averaging five feet in length. The winner of the long-hair contest admits she is an arch enemy of the "bob," characterizing the abbreviated style of hair dress as "a fad which becomes only children."

EXPLAINS INTENT OF DEFENSE DAY STATE EXHIBITS WORK OF BUREAUS

September 12 Set Aside for Rehearsal of Citizens, Not Mobilization Agricultural Department Has Large Display Placed At Annual Fair

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—Much confusion exists in the public mind as to just what this day is—why its raison d'être as the French say, or, in more homely English, what is its reason of being. Briefly stated it is this: September 12 has been set aside by the War department in conformity with the National Defense act of 1920 as a day on which the people of America may express their unalterable determination to protect their country, their institutions, homes and fire-sides against aggression on the part of any foreign country or combination of countries. Nothing whatever as to how we shall make a war of aggression against any other power or powers is contemplated. America does not make war for national aggrandizement.

Not Mobilization What will take place on that day is simply a rehearsal, an effort to co-ordinate action and prevent the confusion and waste of time, energy and money that heretofore has so strongly militated against the success of our national efforts. What is proposed is in no sense a mobilization. Mobilization means "the process of passing from a peace to a war footing." Nobody wants to do this. There is not on our horizon a war cloud as big as a man's hand. But what of the tomorrow?

The individual must know where to go and whom to consult. Selective service boards will be in session on that day and it is the purpose to show the individual just where he will fit in the national scheme—what niche he will occupy. It is not enough to be willing to do a thing, it is necessary to know how to do it.

The commanders of the smaller units must know who their men are, where they are and how they can and may be brought together. They must learn how and where they are to be fed, how they are to be uniformed and equipped, how transportation is to be secured, to what larger units they are to report when needed and what they are to do when once they have so reported. This is a local problem and must be solved by each community.

Only a Rehearsal To repeat, all this is simply an undress rehearsal. Very few things that go to make up our complex modern life can be performed properly without rehearsals. No theatrical company can put on a "show" without repeated rehearsals. Nowaday even a formal church wedding is rehearsed. In so vital a thing as national preservation is so simple a procedure of less importance? The question is, if you are an American and believe in things American will you take part in this rehearsal? Is there any valid objection to this?

FLOUR SALES SLOW KANSAS CITY, Sept. 1.—Shipping directions and sales are slower this week than last, but local mills are increasing output moderately. Bookings are mostly in one and two-car lots for prompt shipment.

START GRAPES NORTH ST. LOUIS, Sept. 1.—The St. Louis and San Francisco railway estimates the Missouri and Arkansas grape crop this year at 323 cars. The movement from Arkansas has already begun.

SALMON RUN LIGHT SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—Salmon ships returning from Alaskan waters report their packs only 70 per cent of those of last year. Curtailment, fish men say, was due to troubles with the salmon fishermen's union last spring which delayed arrival of ships at Alaska six weeks.

Community Loyalty Embraces Support of Community Enterprises

Pride in our own is a perfectly natural human emotion. It is a poor sort of fellow who has no pride in himself, his family, his home, his town or his country. An outstanding reason for Glendale's growth from a village to a city of consequence is the pride of her citizens in her. This, years ago, had reference to her beautiful location and the splendid advantages with which nature endowed her. But now the pride of Glendaleans is invested in something more than beautiful scenery.

Glendale has grown to be a real city, one of the influential cities of California, standing high in the list of those municipalities that are forging ahead.

A city's standing and importance are usually judged by its commercial activity. There must be trading or buying and selling wherever human beings congregate, and the further people are advanced in the niceties of living the better organized and more complicated their commercial life.

The development of the commercial side of Glendale has advanced rapidly in the past three or four years, and the pride of Glendaleans in their city now extends to her rapidly growing skyline, her attractive retail centers, her fine stores and offices and her wide-awake business and professional men and her well-trained workers.

But the real test of our pride in Glendale is our loyalty to the Community and to all those things that aid in Community building.

The men and women represented on this page have a natural pride in the callings in which they are engaged. They want to grow and they want Glendale to grow. Their growth will help Glendale. Glendale's growth will benefit them. Your Community Pride will lead you to support these home enterprises.

Long Hair Once More Is Fashion In London

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The bobbed and shingled style of hair-dressing, which took an incredibly long time, as compared with other fashionable centers, to percolate into London society, is going out of fashion with a run in this country. Long hair is now all the rage here again, and this season's rest cures are taking so-called again and gets beyond the "straggly" and "all ends" stage.

Cat Saves Baby From Rattlesnake's Bite

ROSELIFE, Ore., Sept. 1.—The life of little Sylvia Rowe, two and one-half years old, has been spared due to the quickness and fighting qualities of her pet cat. The child, barefooted, was climbing her mother, who was carrying a wash to hang in the backyard. Suddenly the mother heard a hissing sound and a huge rattlesnake gliding in the tall grass. The little girl had stepped on the reptile, which instantly coiled to strike. Mrs. Rowe reached out to grab her daughter, but would have been too late as the snake was ready to strike. The old house cat, however, had followed the mother and child and in an instant pounced on the snake. The cat's sharp claws furrowed the snake, and the cat was too quick to be struck. The reptile gave up the fight and crawled under the Rowe house. It was found by neighbors and killed. It measured thirty-eight inches in length.

CHAPTER XL

Hilary always thought of her little house with deep affection and even homesickness when she was away from it; but it was very dirty now, cold and empty and uninviting. The piano was still covered with a pink-and-white blanket, and the trunk that had seemed so deliciously new and smart a few weeks ago merely seemed to taunt her, with its foreign hotel labels and its scraped and marred sides.

After these luxurious weeks, there seemed to be an astonishing amount of work involved in the getting of a cup of tea and the making of a bed. Hilary burned her wrist, and got her hands raw and dirty. Then there was no hot water, and the bathroom was cold and smelled of plaster and lead pipe. She wanted to cry herself to sleep. Instead she got into bed with a hot-water bottle and a book, at nine o'clock, and philosophized herself into calm.

After that everything went better. She slept well, and her solitary little breakfast was immensely to her liking. And Mr. Eddy proved a zealous youth, and not entirely lacking in humor.

And then, before things were fairly running again, and before the first cherry was ripe; when the early currants and asparagus were beginning to turn the wheels of the packing plant, and the familiar sign of "Fruit Hands Needed" was hung outside the ice-cream house, John Spaulding was stricken in his full-jawed, ruddy cheeked middle-age, and everything was consternation and excitement.

Young Mr. and Mrs. Craig Spaulding immediately came down from the city, to be in Mount Holly "during our esteemed fellow-townsmen's indisposition," as the paper said. They took a delightful furnished bungalow out on the race-track road, and beautiful little Mrs. Spaulding, "one of our own girls," as the paper added, began to flash about the familiar roads in her roadster. "We are camping, and we simply adore it," said Dora to Hilary, in one of their first happy hours together.

She was gracious to the townspeople who had snubbed her in her girlhood, only a few years before; indeed, she was brightly gracious with everyone, and especially gracious with Craig, Hilary, at first, felt that her own cup of happiness was too full.

Things were going better at the Views and Previews

"The Girl In The Case," which opened last night at the theatre of the Mahurin players (Murphy's Comedians), on Central avenue at Stocker street, Casa Verdugo, gripped a large audience with its succession of thrills, and relaxed them every now and then with roars of laughter.

The play is from the pen of that master dramatist, George M. Cohen, and is built for laughing purposes. From the way the cast romped through this clever offering and from the way the audience took to it, one may predict that this will prove as popular as any play these popular comedians have yet presented.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND JACKIE'S SHOES

Uncle Wiggily turned back, after he had started away from the seashore one morning, and called to Nurse Jane, who stood in the door.

"I am going over to see Mr. Bow Wow," spoke the bunny rabbit.

"I didn't know the dog gentleman was at the shore," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"Oh, yes," answered Uncle Wiggily, "he has taken a cottage for the remainder of the summer and his wife and Jackie and Peetie, the two doggie boys, are with him. Mr. Bow Wow and I are going bathing this morning."

"Be careful a Sea Urchin doesn't tickle your ears!" laughed Nurse Jane, and Uncle Wiggily laughed as he hopped away.

When he reached the Bow Wow cottage, Mr. Longears was surprised to see Mrs. Bow Wow sitting on the porch, holding in her lap a pair of doggie boy's shoes. And there were tears in the eyes of Mrs. Bow Wow.

"Dear me!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily when he saw that the lady dog was crying. "I hope nothing has happened! Jackie isn't drowned, is he?"

"Oh, no, not quite as bad as that," answered Jackie's mother. "But he is such a careless boy that it makes me cry to think of how many times I have told him to set his shoes away neatly, and yet he never does it. Only just now I found these shoes scattered over the front porch. Jackie took them off to run barefoot. What can I do to make him more neat about his shoes?"

"I think I know a way," said Uncle Wiggily, after twinking his pink nose just a little, as he always did when he was thinking. "Let me take his shoes, Mrs. Bow Wow, and perhaps when I get through with him he will be more neat and set them back tidily against the wall when he takes them off."

"Oh, I hope so," sighed Mrs. Bow Wow.

"When Jackie comes back to put on his shoes I think he will get a surprise," said Uncle Wiggily to Mr. and Mrs. Bow Wow. "The bunny and the dog gentleman were just going bathing when, all of a sudden, a big Sea Crab, with long pinching claws, came creeping sideways out of the ocean. Up to the Bow Wow cottage he crept, and when he saw Jackie's shoes on the porch the crab cried, in a frothy voice:

"Ha! Just what I need! I've been wanting a pair of shoes a long time. I'll put these on and pinch Uncle Wiggily's ears!" The crab stuck two of his legs (not his pinching claws, but his legs) in the shoes, but, in another second he gave a howl and kicked off the shoes.

"What is in them?" cried the crab. "Something sharp and tickly and sticky is inside the shoes! Oh, how they hurt my feet!" And as the crab slid back into the ocean without pinching Uncle Wiggily, Jackie came pattering up the stoop. He

PORT HURON, MICH. IS HOME OF STAR

Citizens Proud of Success Of Miss Colleen Moore In Picture Work

Besides being proud of a modern electric lighting system, a modern mode of transportation and Edison's latest telephones, Port Huron, Mich., is proud of Colleen Moore, star of "The Perfect Flapper," which is now showing at the Gateway Theatre. From a school girl of a very few years ago she has amazed the world.

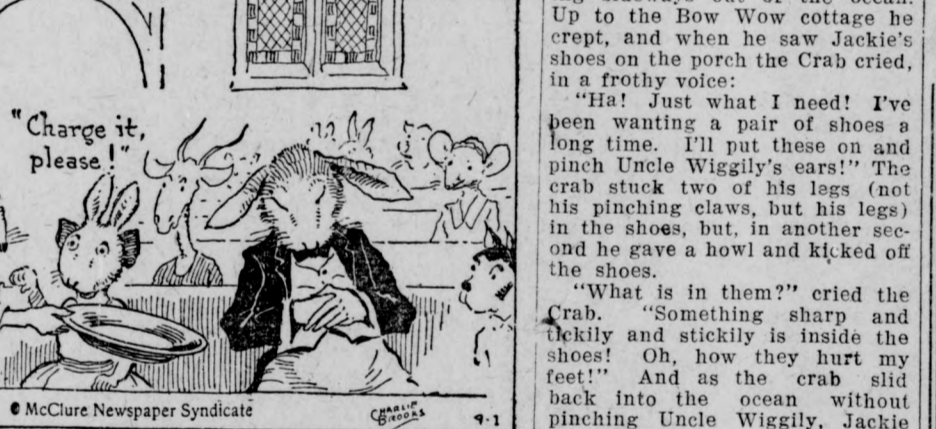

Miss Moore within the last year has taken a permanent place among the prominent screen stars of filmdom. Talent, perseverance and a goodly supply of pluck have made the little Irish lass known from Pernambuco to Peru.

A drama editor on an eastern paper, recently said: "Miss Moore must have had the courage of all her Irish forefathers and the film company that first starred her must have had just as much, for on first acquaintance she does not impress one as a famous screen star. Rather she reminds one of the ideal sister. A bright, cheerful girl who would rather be in the background."

FOR GAME'S SAKE

By LAWRENCE PERRY Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Where do the crack oarsmen of the University of Washington receive their early education in aquatic? Nowhere, says Darwin Meisnest, graduate manager of the institution at Seattle.

Students, he points out, who have had an ear in their hands previous to their entrance at the University of Washington are an exception. In fact, he cannot recall a varsity man who had rowing experience prior to enrolling at the university.

The Vancouver Boat Club on the north has never sent an oarsman to the university and the Portland Rowing club in the south is practically made up of eastern college oarsmen and Washington alumni.

Most of the students are obliged to work their way through college and hence are occupied summers. While college is in session they are occupied with a great variety of tasks in the way of self-support.

Ingram, captain of the 1922 football eleven and number five on the crew, worked summers attending to the fishing seines in Alaska. Russell, Callow, the present rowing coach, when a student, spent his summers in the woods, felling timber. Charles Newton was a member of Callow's crew, and he and Callow won the world championship in a sawing contest staged in the Gray Harbor country two successive summers.

Harold Condon, number five on the 1924 crew, is employed summers as a longshoreman on one of the city docks, handling freight that passes through Seattle for Alaska and the Orient.

And so it goes. These cases being merely typical of the lives led by the students, eighty per cent of whom are working their way through college, and in addition, employed in mills, logging camps, mining camps, farms and orchards.

Small wonder, therefore, that the men Washington sends east to row are eye filling in stature and amazing in strength.

ANGELS UNLEASH UPON SACRAMENTO

Take Sunday's Games and Series From Solons While Vernon Loses Pair

By C. R. SIMMONS For Southland News Service. LOS ANGELES, Sept. 1.—By winning both games of a double-header at Washington park yesterday, the Angels have the edge of the series with Sacramento...

In the first tilt the Angels lost no time in finding Bill Hughes, and batted his offerings all over the lot, gathering a total of sixteen smacks off the Senators' pill slinger. The Soraphs staged a balloon ascension in the second spasm, pouring six runs over the platter. This bit of dirty work put the Angels far ahead, and ahead they stayed for the rest of the contest, much to the delight of Brother Marty Krug.

Payne Pitches Well Payne pitched a first class ball game in the second battle, allowing but four well distributed hits. The Canfield brothers worked on the hilltop for the visitors, and, although only eight hits were garnered by the Angels, they were made to count for something more.

San Francisco took both games of a double bill from the Salt Lake Bees yesterday, 6 to 4, and 4 to 3.

At Portland, Oakland and the Beavers split a double header. Oakland took the opener, 10 to 6, and were defeated in the second contest 3 to 1.

Vernon's Tigers tumbled twice at Seattle yesterday to the tune of 10-7 and 9-2.

SPIRIT OF CLUB TO GAIN VICTORY

Harris, Manager of Senators, Tells Reasons for High Place of Team

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—"The spirit of our club is a wonderful thing and if we do not win the American League pennant it will not be due to any neglect by the players," said Stanley Harris, the young second baseman, who has managed the Washington Senators right to the top of the American league.

"Perhaps we have been a bit more fortunate than our rivals," said Harris, "because our club is intact. There are no injured ball players and our pitchers have reached their best condition of the season."

"We want to win and we have the spirit to win. There is nothing like determination to carry a baseball club along. Team spirit and fight are worth more than any team of stars. The Senators have those attributes and it will be hard for any club to bar our way now that we are out in front."

"We finish the season away from home, but so do the Yankees. That doesn't matter so much any more, though. Our club is a good one on the road and it will give a good account of itself."

"Take a look at the grand workmanship of Walter Johnson this season. His work never was better. If we win it will be due as much to his individual efforts as to anything else."

Epinard to Run First Special Race Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Eleven American thoroughbreds have been named to face the barrier at Belmont park today in the first special race to feature Epinard, the French champion. That many were not expected to start, but the weather was fine and the track fast, conditions which were expected to make the field a large one.

Zev, 4-year-old star of the Hancocks stable, was a 2 to 1 favorite, with Wise Counsellor and Worthmore quoted at 3 to 1. Epinard was held at 4 to 1 in the early betting.

Results and Standings

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Devereux Milburn, the man who has helped America win the international polo trophy four of the five times the matches have been staged since 1909 is preparing to lead his men against the British invaders September 6 to 13.

The matches will be staged at the Meadowbrook country club, L. I., scene of many thrilling polo matches in the past.

Milburn, veteran of fifteen years in the saddle as an international figure, has been ranked as the greatest polo player in the world today. Not alone does his fifteen-year record stamp him as such but his form as he swings into action this year indicates that he is still without a peer in the riding sport.

Milburn has played on every American team that has been selected for the international matches since 1909. This means that he has retained his form over a period of fifteen years.

Much of the success of the teams in this period must be attributed to his skill and ability as a coach of the younger players.

Only once since he joined the U. S. team has it suffered defeat. That setback occurred in the 1914 games. The four other matches were staged in 1909, 1911, 1913 and 1921, and each time the red, white and blue triumphed.

While Milburn is known generally for his wonderful work on the polo field he shined in athletics before taking up that sport in earnest. In fact Great Britain, which now recognizes his greatness as a poloist, knew him first through his brilliant achievements as an oarsman while attending Oxford college.

Milburn and his brother, John G. Jr., both attended the British university at the same time and both rowed. They formed a doubles team that swept everything before them on the water. Milburn's friends recall laughingly that the team eventually became known as the "Stars and Stripes" team. John became the "Stars" part and Milburn was nicknamed "Stripes."

Milburn was an expert horseman when he took up polo. He readily acquired skill at hitting the ball and showed a natural ability to "fall into" team play and to lead his brother players.

Great Britain held the cup when the 1909 matches were arranged. The American team was the invader that year. Due much to Milburn's faultless playing Uncle Sam's riders brought the cup back to America and held it over in 1911 and 1913. The following year England turned the tables.

The war halted the games for several years and Milburn turned much of his attention to organizing cavalry units.

Three years ago Milburn led the U. S. team to Hurlingham, Eng., and retook the cup. Two of Milburn's teammates that year are on this year's lineup. They are T. Watson Webb, and Tommy Hitchcock.

GLENDALE WHITE SOX PLAY 4-INNING GAME

A bad bounce of the ball on Scott's drive in the fourteenth inning yesterday enabled the Ingleswood team to beat the Glendale White Sox after one of the best exhibitions of ball playing ever witnessed on the local diamond.

The fatal blow came after the White Sox had held the champions of the Bay District league scoreless for twelve innings. It gave to the visitors their nineteenth consecutive win, and the first game in the series to determine the semi-pro championship of Southern California.

Haycox, third baseman for the Bay leaguers, whiffed fourteen times, an unheard-of feat at the San Fernando park. Clink, who did the pitching for Glendale, struck out three, but was accorded unlimited support by his team mates. Each pitcher walked three.

Ingleswood's first score came in the opening stanza. Stanley hit Clink and was thrown out when he slid under Shellenbach's arm after Shields had pegged the throw to first. Bell sacrificed, sending Palmer to second, who scored when File hit through Sawyer. File was caught between second and third.

SUZANNE WAS ILL, SAYS MISS WILLS

French Star Is Not Quitter, Declares Californian on Return Home

By L. C. OWEN Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924. BERKELEY, Cal., Sept. 1.—Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis meteor, is not a quitter. She really was ill and unfit to play when she shodged a meeting with Helen Wills, America's premier women's tennis ace, first at Wimbledon last June and later in the Olympic championships at Paris.

Furthermore, had temperamentally Suzanne been able to meet the youthful and demure American champion in the Wimbledon cup play at Wimbledon, she probably could have beaten the latter. Had they played at Paris, however—well that's a different matter.

All the foregoing may be set down in American sport annals as statements of opinion for they come from the highest authoritative source—from Miss Wills herself.

Deep in Textbooks Unspooled by Europe, plaudits of the multitudes, handshakes with crowned heads and all the adulation heaped upon her—just as winsome and even more diplomatic when being interviewed than when she left—Miss Wills was back in Berkeley today with her nose buried in a stack of school books more intent on making up two weeks' work at college than in being America's premier tennis star.

In her homecoming it seems that Miss Wills reserved something for her hometown folks which a lot of people in the east and abroad would have liked to start her talking about—Mile Lenglen.

Ever since she left home early in last May with the hope of a chance at the French girl's title, either at Wimbledon or in the Olympic games, people have been trying to get the Berkeley girl to say something about Suzanne. The much sought "something," it was hoped, would be a few words starting a colorful bunch of pyrotechnics between the two something like those already engaged on upon a couple of occasions between Mile Lenglen and Molla B. Mallory or like Big Bill Tilden once turned loose after he had been beaten by "Little Bill" Johnston.

College Work Helps Miss Wills, however, does not say things in interviews she does not want to say. Among her other studies at the University of California she is taking a course in applied psychology, which may account for it. For weeks before she left Berkeley, all the time she was abroad, and during the days she was in the east before her return she adroitly evaded saying "something" about Mile Lenglen.

Arriving home, nobody thought it worth while to press her on such a hopeless subject. What was the use? No. Miss Wills, thoroughly womanlike, decided to open the subject herself. What she has to say of the one opponent whom she hoped most to meet but did not, might form an interesting treatise on sportsmanlike for some of our best known athletes, both amateur and professional.

"Please, oh please, try to correct any impression that Mile Lenglen defaulted at Wimbledon and did not enter the Olympic tournament because she was afraid of me," begged Miss Wills. "Getting it further from the truth or more ridiculous."

Suzanne Lenglen was very ill—I am certain of that. I saw her right after she withdrew from the Wimbledon tournament and it was easy to see she was in no condition to play tennis. Also I know she had not recovered sufficiently to participate in the Olympic tournaments, although she tried herself out on private courts in the hope that she might have recovered sufficient form to participate.

In Wimbledon competitions, had Mile Lenglen been able to participate at the same top form which she showed earlier in the tournament, she probably would have beaten me. I was unable to meet her on my proper stride and she easily beat players who beat me.

"At Paris, however, I was at top form and I think it would have been a great match. Naturally I am disappointed that I could not play against Mile Lenglen, but that will come later. I met her several times socially and found her a very fine woman. It is unjust for anybody to try to say she is a quitter."

BOY SETS RECORD. SANTA PEDRO, Sept. 1.—Few will dispute the claim of Jerome Briggs, 9 years old, that he holds the world's record for remaining under water. His time is fifteen minutes. The lad went to the bottom of a local swimming plunge after going in the water over his head and could not swim. About fifteen minutes later he was discovered apparently dead. The pulmotor crew finally revived him.

HIS WIFE'S AIM POOR. SANTA ANA, Sept. 1.—Poor marksmanship by his wife is the only reason for Claud Allen's being up and doing and still in possession of his life. He filed a suit for divorce here today. In his complaint Allen alleged that when he left his wife in Portland, Ore., December 22, last, two shots from a revolver that whistled close to his head marked the departing ceremonies. Her aim was poor, he said, and so he evaded the undertaker.

2400 CARS ORANGES SHIPPED. RIVERSIDE, Sept. 1.—Citrus shippers are nearing a close here with about 20 cars of oranges to be shipped. The total number of cars of oranges and lemons this season will reach approximately 2400, with 35 or 40 cars of lemons yet to be shipped.

WAR OF INSECTS PLANNED. RIVERSIDE, Sept. 1.—Millions of lady bugs will be turned loose here early in September to feed on the destructive mealy bug, when work on the citrus insectary will start. The citrus men financing the installation of the insectary hope to have it ready for operation within 60 days.

DREADNAUGHT TO PACIFIC. SANTA PEDRO, Sept. 1.—The superdreadnaught West Virginia, sister ship of the Colorado, will leave New York October 29 for Santa Pedro to join the Pacific fleet, it was announced here recently.

Thompson of this city regarding the prospects for instituting an Odd Fellows lodge here. Mr. Wilde met a number of fraternal brothers and stated there is a wonderful opportunity for a lodge in the La Crescenta valley, and he requested that all of those interested should get in touch with Mr. Thompson. The first meeting for organization will be held at the Thompson home, 547 Mira Vista avenue, Montrose, Wednesday evening, September 3, at 8 o'clock.

OFFERS TO FILL HUNTINGTON LAKE

Rainmaker Hatfield Would End Drought on Basis Of No Rain, No Pay

The "dark horse" back of the recent letter addressed to H. G. Butler, power supervisor, by W. H. Elliget of Corsican, an influential rancher, offering to make enough rain to fill Huntington lake, is Charles M. Hatfield of Glendale, who, with his brother Paul A. Hatfield, has earned a worldwide reputation by successfully fulfilling twenty-four rain-making contracts in twenty-four years. Mr. Hatfield intended to keep his identity a secret until the Southern California Edison company decided definitely either to accept or reject his proposition, he told a representative of The Glendale Evening News in an exclusive interview. On Friday, August 29, however, something occurred which has caused him to come out in the open. This was the arrival from Bogota, Colombia, South America, of Dr. Ramon Gomez, a rich coffee plantation owner, with an attractive invitation for the Hatfield brothers to come to his country and make rain. "No Rain, No Pay" "And so I now say to the Southern California Edison company, let them accept my offer without delay, on a 'no rain, no pay' basis. Right now is the ideal time to conduct our operations. At this season there exist giant atmospheric conditions along the Mojave and Colorado deserts. These vast indications for rain move northeastward. By stationing our rain-making apparatus at Huntington lake, at an elevation of 8000 feet, we can actually induce rain all along the summits of the Sierra Nevadas, causing billions of gallons of water to run into the lake. "Our method of producing rainfall is scientific and natural. There is nothing mysterious about it, after it is once known. Nothing makes me more disgusted than to read the ridiculous stuff some of the newspapers carry about us and our work. We have never yet failed to fulfill a contract to make rain. Where is there anything bizarre or funny in simply inducing rainfall by employment of scientific methods? What are we doing is funny only to the ignorant, who are like the kind of people who said the world was flat and who branded as impossible the steamboat, the airplane, the telegraph, wireless, the telephone and radio."

Saved $4,000,000 Charles M. and Paul Hatfield have made rain from the Mexican border to Alaska in the twenty-four years they have been at work. Last spring they produced 3.44 inches of rain at Tulare lake bottom, winning $5000 on a contract to produce two inches at $4000 an inch. W. H. Elliget, who alone had eighteen sections under cultivation and had given up his entire crop as a total loss, before the Hatfields started on March 15, declares that the rainmakers saved the valley $4,000,000 by their successful operations. In his letter to Mr. Butler, Mr. Elliget said: "This party knows more about the weather and the action of the moisture arrangement than all the United States weather observers combined."

New Sonora Smelter Nearing Completion

NOGALES, Ariz., Sept. 1.—According to reports reaching here from the south but little work remains for the completion of the large smelter which is being erected on a high point of the Sud Pacific de Mexico railroad tracks at Empalme, Sonora, Mexico. The erection of this smelter was first considered by Colonel Green, one of the largest copper mine operators in Mexico and owner of the Cananea Consolidated Copper company of Cananea, Sonora, Mexico. The smelter consists of four units, each unit taking a charge of five tons with six charges capacity daily, with a total capacity of 120 tons per day. It is expected the smelter will be completed some time this month and will begin treating within a few weeks.

Boston Is Placed Under Zoning Law In New Ordinance

Boston has just been placed under a zoning law. The measure, which has been adopted after long study of city conditions, will be of interest to city planning officials over the United States and to realtors throughout the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The Boston Real Estate exchange took a leading part in the formulation of the zoning measure. The exchange is entitled to be represented through one member on the board of adjustment which will determine future changes in the Boston zone lines. In order to separate this board from political considerations all members except two will be appointed from nominations made to the mayor by civic bodies.

"Ma" Streeter Mixing With Law Again Over Possession of Beach

Widow of Picturesque Character Who Claimed Lake Frontage at Chicago Valued at $100,000,000 Shoots at Her 'Enemies'

By OWEN L. SCOTT Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924 CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—"Ma" Streeter, entrenched on her sloop "Vamoose" just outside her own "deestrik of Lake Michigan," is again mixing with the minions of law, trying to get herself into trouble. "Ma" believes in the precepts and practices of old "Cap'n" Streeter, who for over 30 years fought the State of Illinois, claiming all that time his property rights, under "squatter" law, to about $100,000,000 worth of Chicago's front yard along the lake.

The Cap'n always believed in gunnery to bring people around to his views of things. So when "Ma," who inherited his sloop property he created by building his breakwater became immensely valuable and is now the nucleus of Chicago's rich lake front. "Ma" Streeter out in her sloop, contends that the land is her own and she won't budge from her position, won't have anything to do with the rest of the world, until she gets it. That is why a pot shot or two at strangers laid to bother her. She tells interviewers that she can take care of herself and that others should watch out for themselves. All she wants, she says, are her rights, which, as she sees it, amount to something more than $100,000,000.

DEVICE PREVENTS PLANES 'STALLING'

Flying's Greatest Danger Is Rendered Impossible by New Invention LONDON, Sept. 1.—"Stalling," one of the greatest dangers in flying known to pilots, has been rendered impossible by a new invention now in use on many British aeroplanes. The "stalling" effect is caused by the nose of an aeroplane tilting downwards, due to the loss of speed, with the possibility of the machine developing into a spin, and usually occurs when the aeroplane is about to take off or land. By a variable trailing edge to the main planes the machine is able to keep its lift at a bigger angle of attack in the air, and when it does lose flying speed the machine merely sinks gently and slowly under perfect control until forward speed is regained. It is considered likely that such a device will be compulsory in future on all aeroplanes.

Blame Policemen for Tie-Ups of Traffic

ALBUQUERQUE, Sept. 1.—The credit for local traffic tie-ups in many instances goes to the traffic cops on the police force, according to Police Commissioner D. H. Briggs. Albuquerque's traffic officers stand on the corner and gesture. Motorists are unable to solve the directions. Traffic tangles result. Briggs stated at a recent commission meeting. Houses in Tampico, Mexico, are of wood and the city has no fire protection.

COMMENT That's All

Worthiness of Work Defense Day and Pacifists Register Now, Vote Nov. 4 Decadent Aristocracy

By Gil A. Cowan

This is Labor Day, a national observance of the worthiness of work. Perhaps there are those who consider it "just another holiday," but there is something impressive about it all that gives rise to a rightfully proud feeling on the part of those who toil with hands and brain to make this a better world in which to live. It is a fact that our schools should inculcate in the growing youth the idea that only by the sweat of the brow, the set of the jaw, the determination to do and dare has this nation made the rapid industrial strides in its brief history. American labor is the highest type possible. There are artisans who are college bred who actually enjoy the opportunity of doing useful things as well as developing their cultural beings. Go into the shops and factories where you find native born Americans, and what a wonderful sight it is. Intelligent faces, well groomed bodies, happiness and content everywhere.

Defense Day is apparently a much misunderstood effort on the part of the war department to show the world just how able this country is to prepare itself for a national emergency. In no wise is Defense Day a militaristic move. It is not the flashing of a weapon. It is not a hostile threat. But, it is an answer to those pacifists who would undermine this republic by their propaganda which is directed at the very heart of democracy. Register now, if you are not registered, for the coming presidential election. Some candidate is entitled to your vote, just as you are duty bound to participate in the naming of the various officials.

America and these United States have been so prosperous that the rank and file of the public do not mind who becomes the next president, it is said in some circles. The primary vote in Glendale was little less than disgraceful. With an intelligent population a more marked expression should be had. And to this end The Glendale Evening News is going to urge that a record ballot be cast in November. This is the season of the year when brush fires in the hills are most dangerous. Picnickers and others should take the utmost precautions from now until the rainy season.

Governor Richardson, despite vilification on the part of unfriendly politicians and newspapers, has received national commendation in the current issue of the Woman's Home Companion for the way he has administered the state of California. Aristocracy is fast dying out. The Prince of Wales is quoted as saying "I hate bunk" in connection with ceremonies accorded him. Three cheers for the prince. People who hobnob with the nabobs in order to hold their place in the sun stand on a mound of putty.

Harry Carr in yesterday's Los Angeles Times tells how the late Governor Henry Gage, while ambassador to Portugal, refused to wear anything other than trousers when presented to King Manuel, now deposed. The chamberlain implored the red blooded American to wear velvet knee pants; then he would compromise with a military uniform, but Gage was obdurate and the king invited him to wear whatever he pleased. Some day Americans will not even require "fish and soup" outfits at formal affairs. They are outlandish badges of decadent aristocracy.

Chicago Is Home of 'Omnivorous Reader' CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—The identity of the omnivorous reader you've seen referred to has been discovered. He is a Chicagoan. Indeed, he is Chicago! Despite New York's having some 3,000,000 greater population than Chicago, the circulation of the public library books is greater by hundreds of thousands a year in Chicago than in New York, and the people are greater readers than their New York neighbors, according to a report issued by Carl E. Roden, head of the Chicago Public Library. "The Chicago library and its branches circulated 9,901,576 books, averaging 32,571 daily, during 1923—358,000 more than those circulated in New York," Roden explained. "And New York has forty-four times as many branches, 113,748 branches," Roden continued, "while Chicago has only thirty-eight branches, mostly in the back of little stores."

Kentucky License Law Is Upheld In Decision of Court

Constitutionality of the new Kentucky real estate license law and of the New York real estate brokers' license law has been upheld in court decisions just laid down. In the case of the Kentucky law a declaratory judgment was rendered which excepts from the ruling that part of the law which provides that a person denied a license shall have the right of appeal from the administrative board's findings only to the court of appeals. That section will be held invalid. The case, upholding the validity of the Tennessee license law. The New York decision, laid down by the state supreme court, cites a decision of the supreme court of the United States in which the validity of the Tennessee license law.

TWO LONG BEACH PAPERS IN MERGE CONTRACT TERMS SHOULD BE GIVEN

Press and Evening Telegram Are Consolidated to Effect Economy Realtor's Selling Agreement Must - State Details Clearly, Is Claim

LONG BEACH, Sept. 1.—Effective today, the Long Beach Daily Press takes over the publication of the Evening Telegram and will continue under the name of Press-Telegram, temporarily maintaining a branch office in the old Telegram building until the new structure for the Press-Telegram is completed. The consolidation which will give W. H. Prisk of the Press the position of president; Belle McCord Roberts, formerly of the Telegram, vice president; S. S. Conklin, secretary, and W. L. Hosking, treasurer. Frank Selover will be managing editor.

Articles of incorporation are being prepared which will give W. H. Prisk of the Press the position of president; Belle McCord Roberts, formerly of the Telegram, vice president; S. S. Conklin, secretary, and W. L. Hosking, treasurer. Frank Selover will be managing editor. The consolidation of interests is announced to effect economies in the Long Beach newspaper field and this seems timely, in view of the recent financial failure of the Long Beach Morning Sun, which continues under a receiver. It is the only opposition to the consolidation of interests in the Long Beach newspaper field which was a Los Angeles Express insert, was consolidated with the Bulletin. In Long Beach the entrance of the Dickson-Kellogg insert just as the Morning Sun was being established caused a newspaper fight which first eliminated the invader, then swept the Sun off its feet and finally has resulted in the Telegram seeking shelter by consolidation. Belle McCord Roberts, who relinquishes command, is a national figure in politics and is connected with the new corporation will devote her time to stumping the west in the interests of the Republican party.

Concerning contracts in which it is not intended that cash in full should be paid, it is held to have substantially as follows: "All cash, or $... cash, and the balance to be paid as follows: ...". This gives the broker, without any dispute, the option to earn his compensation either by producing an all cash buyer, or by producing a buyer who meets the identical terms authorized by the employing owner. In the connection it is well again to call to the attention of the real estate profession the importance of correctly describing encumbrances. If an encumbrance be of record and be referred to as "of record" one may ascertain from the record the facts and thereby make the reference certain. In the event the broker would not undertake to describe a lot simply by giving the length of one side, yet many brokers seek to describe an encumbrance by simply stating the amount of the principal; second, the rate of interest; and third, the maturity date, both of the entire principal and of installments, unless it is to be paid out simply by installment. The amount, which the size of the installment automatically fixes the final maturity date of the last installment.

Owner May Change Mind However, the law does not leave the broker entirely without protection, even where in many cases he has failed properly to protect himself. There are occasional arises a case in which the broker has made a sale which is, in effect, satisfactory to the owner, but in reference to which the owner, for one reason or another, has changed his mind in respect to selling at all. In such cases the owner frequently simply turns down the broker's offer from a responsible purchaser, and then, when sued for commission, attempts to defend upon the ground of some slight, or some substantial, variance between the terms of the offer produced by the broker and the terms of the broker's written authorization to sell.
