USES FOR COTTON

Selected References in the English Language

Compiled by Mildred C. Benton, under the Direction of Emily L. Day, Library Specialist in Cotton Marketing
Division of Cotton Marketing Branch Library

This bibliography lists references to books, pamphlets, and periodical articles which show the variety of uses for cotton. No attempt has been made to include references to uses for cotton seed and cottonseed products, although several such uses appear in connection with other references. With a few exceptions the period covered is 1910 to November, 1932 inclusive. Because of their interest and historical value, a small number of books published earlier - one as early as 1835 - appear in the list.

BOOKS

1. Baines, Edward, History of the cotton manufacture in Great Britain. 543 p. London, H. Fisher, R. Fisher and P. Jackson, 1835. 304 B16H
In the introductory chapters mention is made of the very earliest uses of cotton. We are informed that the Mexicans made large webs of cotton. It is said that among the presents sent by Cortes, the conqueror of Mexico, to Charles V, were "cotton mantles...waistcoats, handkerchiefs, counterpanes, tapestries and carpets of cotton."...They also used cotton in making a species of paper; one of their kinds of money consisted in small cloths of cotton and their warriors wore cuirasses of cotton, covering the body from the neck to the waist."
2. Bigwood, George. Cotton. 204p., illus. London, Constable and company, ltd., 1913. 72 B48
Chapter XII, A general utility plant.
3. Burkett, C. W. Cotton, its cultivation, marketing, manufacture, and the problems of the cotton world. 331p., illus. New York, Doubleday, Page & co., 1906. 72 B91
Cotton both clothes and feeds mankind, p. 6-9.

4. Chew, M. R. History of the Kingdom of cotton and cotton statistics of the world... 96p., illus. New Orleans, Printed by W. B. Stansbury & co., 1884. 72 C42

Contains brief references to the very earliest uses of cotton among the Egyptians and Greeks, also the first use for cotton in England in 1300 A.D. for candle wicks.

5. Collings, G. H. The production of cotton. 256p. New York, John Wiley & sons, inc., 1926. 72 C69

By-products of the cotton plant, Chapter XVIII.
Feeding value of cotton, Chapter XIX.

6. Crawford, M. D. C. Heritage of cotton; the fiber of two worlds and many ages. 244p. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's sons, 1931. 304 C85

This book was written in an effort "to induce men to look again upon cotton as one of the subtlest mediums of art." It treats the subject of cotton historically from the viewpoint of its usefulness in the creation of artistic fabrics.

7. Crowther, Samuel. A basis for stability. 360p. Boston, Little, Brown and company, 1932. 280.12 C88

"The Cotton Textiles," by George A. Sloan, chapter 19, p. 247-260.

As an "expert witness" Mr. Sloan was asked to contribute this chapter in which he attempts to show that "there are no good reasons why the cotton manufacturing industry should not be one of the soundest and most profitable in the country." He speaks of the versatility of the cotton fiber and describes many of the novel means which help to make up the almost 900 uses for cotton.

8. Dana, W. B. Cotton from seed to loom; a handbook of facts for the daily use of producer, merchant and consumer. 291p. New York, William B. Dana & co., 1878. 72 D19

In writing the history of cotton, the author quotes from a letter by a Mr. Jefferson addressed to M. de Warville under date of August 15, 1786 in which he says, 'the four southernmost states make a great deal of cotton. The poor are almost entirely clothed in it winter and summer. In winter they wear shirts of it, and outer clothing of cotton and wool mixed. In summer their shirts are linen, but the outer clothing is cotton. The dress of the women is almost entirely of cotton manufactured by themselves and even many of these wear a great deal of homespun cotton!': p. 22-23.

9. Donnell, E. J. Chronological and statistical history of cotton. 650p. New York, James Sutton & co., 1872. 72 D715

The introduction and first chapter on the early history of cotton include frequent allusions to the use of cotton in early times. Reference to its use as clothing in America in 1875 is found on page 40.

10. Engberg, R. C. Industrial prosperity and the farmer. 286p. New York, The Macmillan company, 1927. 284.3 En32

Manufacture, consumption and uses of cotton, p. 144-147.

11. Goulding, Ernest. Cotton and other vegetable fibers; their production and utilization. 231p. London, John Murray, 1917. (Handbook of the Imperial Institute, no. 4.) 73 G73
The author refers briefly to the utilization of the different varieties of cotton.
12. Harding, Richard. Cotton in Australia. 270p. New York, Longmans, Green and co., 1924. 72 H21
Uses of cotton, p.2-4. Attempts to show how "the consumption of cotton must increase with the expansion of civilization... One hundred and fifty years ago cotton was scarcely known or used by civilization; today it forms the world's most essential textile, and it is impossible to foretell the future or prophesy where and when the demand for cotton and cotton goods will cease."
13. Hess, Katharine P. Textile fibers and their use. 354p. Chicago, Philadelphia, J. B. Lippincott company, c1931. 304 H46
Uses of cotton, p.195.
14. Johnson, W. H. Cotton and its production. 536p. London, Macmillan and co., limited, 1926. 72 J632
The extending uses for cotton, p.444-445.
15. King, F. H. Farmers of forty centuries, or permanent agriculture in China, Korea and Japan. 44lp., illus. Madison, Wis., Mrs. F. H. King, 1911. 34.5 K58
In discussing home industries of the common people of China, mention is made of the method of beating cotton and of laying it to serve as the body for mattresses and the coverlets for beds, p.125.
The manufacture of cottonseed oil and cottonseed cake is also described as a family industry, p.145.
16. McGowan, Ellen B., and Waite, Charlotte A. Textiles and clothing. Rev. ed., 344p., illus. New York, The Macmillan company, 1931. 304 M17
Chapter IV, Cotton. Mentions the extensive use of cotton and in more detail discusses the finished products, such as yard goods, ready-made articles, household cottons, knitted goods, laces and embroideries, thread and notions.
17. Mitchell, C. A., and Prideaux, R. M. Fibres used in textile and allied industries. 194p. London, Scott, Greenwood & son, 1910. 304 M69
Chapters V-VI, Cotton. Brief reference is made to historic uses of cotton. "The antiquity of the use of cotton in the new world is shown by the fact that the gauze found in tombs of the ancient Peruvians in Guacho consists of cotton. Magellan found it being used as clothing by the Brazilians, and it was seen by Columbus in the West Indian Islands."
18. Ringo, Fredonia J. Linen and bedding. 119p. Chicago and New York, A. W. Shaw company, 1925. 304 R47L
As a manual or textbook for salespeople this volume brings out the use of cotton in bedding, and compares it in durability and suitability with silk, wool, and linen.

19. Robbins, W. W. The botany of crop plants; a text and reference book. 681p. Philadelphia, P. Blakiston's son & co., 1917. 463 R54
Uses of cotton, p.523-526. Brief references to cottonseed hulls, cottonseed oil, cottonseed meal and guncotton.
20. Royle, J. F. The fibrous plants of India fitted for cordage, clothing and paper... 403p. London, Smith, Elder and co., 1855. 73 R81
Cotton cordage and canvas, p.264. Of historical interest is the statement that "cotton, though used chiefly for clothing is, in India, also employed for tent-ropes, of which so many are required for the use of the army, and made entirely of cotton, as are the tents themselves. Cotton ropes are also employed for many domestic purposes. Some of the native shipping, also, and even a few American ships are rigged with cotton ropes; while cotton canvas is also employed for sails."
21. Scherer, J. A. B. Cotton as a world power. 452p. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes company, 1916. 72 Sch23
References to uses for cotton are found on p.335-336 and p.354-358.
22. Small, C. P. How to know textiles. Enl. ed., 394p. Boston, New York, etc., Ginn and company, 1932. L.C.
Chapter XII, From cotton field to cotton fabric, Emphasizes importance of cotton as "the crop that clothes the world."
Throughout the book there are brief references to various uses for cotton.
23. Todd, J. A. The cotton world; a survey of the world's cotton supplies and consumption. 236p. London, New York, etc., Sir Isaac Pitman & sons, Ltd., 1927. 72 T562 Co

146. Dillingham, C. K. Asbestos textiles. Amer. Wool and Cotton Rptr. 46 (25): 13-14, 17-18. June 23, 1932.
In describing the production of asbestos textiles mention is made of the mixing picker, and "it is at this point that the grade or quality of the yarn is determined by the mixture of a certain quantity of vegetable fibre, usually cotton, with the asbestos. Cotton is used to reduce the cost of asbestos yarn to commercial limits. Its great carrying power makes it possible to produce a stronger asbestos yarn from lower grade asbestos or from a higher grade asbestos with less waste than without it, and as there is very little necessity for an all asbestos yarn, varying amounts of cotton will be found in practically 98 per cent of asbestos textiles."

206. New harness straps. Fibre and Fabric 85 (2464): 14. April 23, 1932.
Jack and harness straps made of cotton for use by cotton mills have proven satisfactory after being tested for uniformity, durability, and stretching.
207. New transparent wrapping material from cotton. Manfrs. Rec. 101 (7): 22. Feb. 18, 1932.
"Kodapak", manufactured by the Eastman Kodak Co., is made from cotton cellulose acetate. It has a brilliant, glass-like clarity, and a silvery appearance when crumpled in the hand. Its limpness permits it to fold easily and neatly and it withstands the action of water. It does not have a tendency to become brittle in extreme cold and will withstand high temperatures without coloring.
208. New use for cotton. Fibre and Fabric 84 (2441): 23. Nov. 14, 1931.
"Through the co-operative effort during the past two years of the Textile Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and the New Uses Section of the Cotton-Textile Institute additional consumption of medium weight cotton fabric has been obtained through the promotion of a new use in the form of attractive show bags."

209. New use for cotton. Oil Miller and Cotton Ginner 40 (1): 7. March, 1932.
"The Eastman Kodak Company has begun production of a transparent wrapping material made from cotton called 'Kodapak.' Cotton in the form of cellulose nitrate is used also by the Eastman Kodak Company in manufacturing all types of film that are not made of cellulose acetate."
210. New use for cotton cloth. Com. and Finance 21 (13): 456. March 30, 1932.
A machine and a material have been produced which "superimposes" cotton cloth in its most intricate designs and colors on wood. "The finish is not only beautiful but durable and cannot be marred by cigarette burns or the highest proof alcohol. The panels remind one of old tapestry and should have a wide variety of uses."
211. New uses for American cotton. Ingenious attempts to create a greater demand for cotton fabrics. Textile Weekly 8 (205): 595. Feb. 5, 1932.
Enumerates recently developed new uses for cotton, including cotton bags for sugar, stationery, etc. The statement is made that "the field which seems to offer the most promising opening for exploitation is that now held by the manufacturers of paper."
212. New uses for cotton. Fibre and Fabric 84 (2431): 11. Sept. 5, 1931.
Cotton duck has been found highly satisfactory as an outside finish material and has been used in place of stucco for the construction of homes and especially bungalows.
213. New uses for cotton. Sci. Amer. 147 (5): 302. Nov., 1932.
Cotton in laminated form adds many new uses for cotton. Seven of them are listed.
214. New uses for cotton. Textile Weekly 9 (231): 525. Aug., 1932.
"Dust bags for vacuum cleaners, cotton stuffing for mattresses, insulating material using cotton, the return of cotton in fashion favour" are mentioned.
215. New uses of cotton. Melliand Textile Mo. 4 (7): 420, 431, 446, 449. Oct., 1932.
Compilation of news items gathered by the New Uses Section of the Cotton-Textile Institute refer to the use of cotton filling in mattresses; cotton bunting; cotton fabric for roofing purposes; cotton neckwear for men; laminated cotton for bearings; safety helmets of laminated cotton; cotton for running boards for automobiles; cotton sacks for fruit and produce, and cotton for airship construction.
216. New uses for cotton. "Slacks" and sportswear. Textile Weekly 10 (237): 62. Sept. 16, 1932.
Mentions various types of cotton fabric used and opportunity for development along this line.
217. A novel cotton fabric. Manchester Guardian Com. 24 (607): 90. Feb. 6, 1932.

"Cotton manufacturers are often told that their productions are more suitable for summer than for winter wear and that there is need for more cotton fabrics which are warm without being heavy and which have body without being bulky. A new cotton cloth has just been brought out by a Lancashire firm which conforms to some of these requirements."

218. O'Brien, Ruth. Utilization of cotton in homes of the nation. U. S. Daily 7 (124): 1002. July 28, 1932.

219. "Old Ironsides" gets new sails. Textile World 80 (3): 217. July 18, 1931.
Interesting facts about the marine use of canvas were brought out when the reconstructed frigate Constitution, "Old Ironsides," put out from Boston for an exhibition cruise. "Today cotton sails the high seas on great ocean liners, instead of picturesque square riggers, and contrary to popular belief, far greater quantities are used than ever in the old days. The modern liner uses some 15,000 square yards of duck for various deck coverings, awnings, life boats, equipment and flue covers; on the battleship up to 20,000 square yards, while the old sailing ship consumed an average of 12,000 square yards for sails."

220. Paper from raw cotton. U.S. Bureau of Standards, Tech. News Bul. 179: 27. March, 1932.

Judging from the consensus of opinion, the use of raw staple cotton for paper making hinges largely on economic factors. "It is of interest that, according to historical records, raw cotton was the first source of cotton fibers for paper making, being largely used, apparently, from the seventh century until the eleventh century, when it began to be displaced by waste textile materials."

221. Park, L. The automobile tire industry. Jour. Accountancy 54 (3): 202-221. Sept., 1932.

A general discussion of the manufacture of automobile tires. In explaining construction the statement is made that "rubber gives flexibility to the tire, but, without additional strength, this flexibility would soon result in destruction of the tire in use. The additional strength is obtained from cotton cord and fabrics, hence the names 'cord tires' and 'fabric tires.'"

225. Reynolds, J. Manufacture of cotton cloths for military uses. Textile World Jour. 53 (28): 288. Jan. 12, 1918.

Particulars and illustrations of Government fabrics for surgical dressings, binder bandages, soldiers' capes, standard sheetings, silesia, olive-drab shelter tents, heavy tent duck, covering duck, corset jeans, bobbinette and marquisette are given, with suggestions for suitable yarns.

226. Rice, George. Dyeing cotton stationery. Textile Colorist 54 (638): 100-101. Feb., 1932.

Although this article deals mostly with the process of dyeing cotton stationery, mention is made of the extension of the cotton stationery idea into the field where paper gifts and visiting cards, theater programs, menu fares and announcements have long held first position.

227. Rice, George. Manufacture of cotton linings for the packaging industry. Both flat and pile fabrics are used. Textile Amer. 56 (6): 21. Dec., 1931.

Describes the use of cotton velvet for lining gift boxes.

228. Rice, George. The manufacture of wall cloth. Its adoption by interior decorators beneficial to the textile industry. Textile Amer. 58 (2): 11-12, diags. Aug., 1932.

Describes preparation of cotton materials for wall cloth.

229. Richardson, L. S. New "show-window" bag. Bags 2 (12): 11-12, illus. March, 1931.

"Duplex cotton sack devised by government expert for retail distribution of potatoes, onions and other vegetables is of open mesh on one side, displaying contents."

230. Richardson, T. C. Cotton - the raiment of queens. The fleecy staple has run the gauntlet of human garb; now it enters palaces again. Farm and Ranch 49 (10): 2, 13-14. March 8, 1930.

"So cotton is back. It has never had a rival in usefulness." Comparison of former uses with present varieties of uses.

231. Robertson, A. C. Preservation of textile fish nets. Indus. and Engin. Chem. 23 (10): 1093-1098, illus. Oct., 1931.

Compares the use of cotton and other fibers in making nets and describes various methods of treating nets to preserve them from deterioration caused by bacteria, etc.

232. Rubber-cotton loom parts. Textile World 61 (4): 277. Jan. 23, 1932.

"In the development of new loom parts, the Gates Rubber Co. of Denver, Colo. has taken advantage of the tough and rugged qualities of cotton and has coordinated them with the cohesive and resilient properties of rubber."

233. Sackcloth without the ashes. Textile World 79 (2): 137. Jan. 10, 1931.

Exhibit of new uses for cotton at a meeting of mill men in Greenville, S. C., included a cotton bag for farm produce, which when turned inside out, can be used as a work shirt, and a cotton attachment for softening the tone of radio loud speakers.

234. See new volume use for cotton. Com. and Finance 21 (19): 665. May 11, 1932.

A new use for cotton, foretelling the consumption of many thousands of pounds a year, is a high grade bond paper, which is 25 per cent cotton content. The fibers of cotton are combined with the fibers of wood to make, for the first time, a suitable and inexpensive paper.

235. Sherman, C. B. King Cotton extends his kingdom. Jour. Amer. Bankers Assoc. 22 (1): 39-40. July, 1929.
"New uses for cotton sought as aid to farm problem of South. Bagging believed to offer wide outlets for lowgrade short staple product. Tests disclose practical basis of the plan. Growth of longer staple urged to avoid foreign competition."
236. Shipping in cotton wrapping material. Amer. Wool and Cotton Rptr. 46 (44): 22. Nov. 3, 1932.
One of the most interesting and immediately practical examples of substitution of cotton for other materials is the use of cotton wrapping materials by textile mills in shipping their products.
237. Sinclair orders cotton for service station uniforms. Cotton 96 (10): 72. Oct., 1932.
Sinclair Refining Co. uses 42,000 pounds of cotton manufactured into herringbone twill for uniforms for station attendants.
