TINY TOTS CROWD FORWARD IN RACE FOR FIRST HONORS AS BEST BABY IN SOUTHWEST

Number Is Mounting Rapidly to the Two Hundred Mark, With Daily Receipts of More Entries From Parents Who Read the Press

ALL ROSY, HEALTHY, STURDY YOUNGSTERS
Photographers Load Their Cameras for the First Step on the Road to Fame, Cash and Distinction as Best Baby Hereabouts

"Coming strong!" is the only way to describe the best baby contest in which Monday's entrants almost doubled Saturday's list.

It is being whispered around that the fame of Glendale as a baby center is reaching so far that the storks are organizing for co-operative delivery because the demands upon them are getting so heavy.

It is likewise hinted that the chamber of commerce is getting inquiries from baby specialists wanting to know about the openings for professional men in the medical line.

MONTROSE CENSUS PLANNED BY NEW C. OF C.

Committee to Report on Conditions of Street Lighting

The Montrose chamber of commerce is growing up. This was proven by the large attendance at Monday night's meeting, held in Young's hardware store at Montrose. Enthusiasm ran high and the entire meeting was full of interest. J. L. Brown, president, opened the meeting. The constitution and by-laws were read and adopted.

One of the most important factors discussed was that of a census committee, which was appointed to take a census of Montrose and La Crescenta. It is also to report on the condition of the streets, street lighting, street signs and other items of interest to the public.

The building committee, which was appointed at the last meeting, reported that it had an offer of sand, gravel, cement and labor, to be donated toward the building of a new chamber of commerce building. Mr. Kemper submitted a plan for such a building, and it was adopted. A committee was appointed to locate a suitable site and report at the next meeting. This site will be voted upon at the next meeting. The building, it is hoped, may be used as a community center and for a library.

A committee was also appointed to try and get a kindergarten in the Montrose section, as it is too far for the little children to go to school. It will also try for a bus service to carry other children to and from this section.

Mr. Rheinart reported that he had interviewed the telephone company on poor service at Montrose, and he was told there was little hope of improvement until a switch board could be put in there, which will be done in the near future. During the meeting R. C. Brown entertained with two songs.

The chamber is planning a social evening soon, and it was suggested that they give a picnic and dance at the new Glendale-Verdugo park. A meeting of the board of directors and advertising committee has been called for tonight, to meet at the home of Mr. Potts on Del Mar road.

The next regular meeting of the chamber of commerce of Montrose will be held Friday, September 1, at Young's hardware store. It is hoped that the enthusiasm and interest will still be manifested in these meetings, as they expect to accomplish a great deal.

HI BOND ELECTION SEPT. 26.

Trustees Fix Tentative Date for Vote on Additional Issue

$350,000 TO BE ASKED

Definite Date to Depend on Action of County Authorities

With six sites for the location of the next high school on the north-west side, the high school trustees at their meeting last night fixed the date for the election to decide upon the issuance of $350,000 bonds to finish the new plant and fund the purchase of a new site.

The date set was September 26. This is, however, only tentative, being dependent upon the ability of the county office to get out the necessary papers by that time.

The six sites and any others offered will be submitted to the voters for selection. Miss Pansy Sheldon, instructor in the music department, was granted a leave of absence on account of illness. Miss Dorothy Gilson was also given a leave of absence that she may take advantage of a wonderful opportunity she has to tour Europe under wonderful favorable circumstances.

Dr. Price, head of the Latin department at the University of California, with his wife and two daughters, is leaving by auto for a transcontinental trip, which will include a tour of the east before they embark for Europe. Their auto will be shipped across, and after spending about five months in Rome, they will motor through the various countries of the continent, visiting the battlefields and all the places of chief interest at that time. Miss Gilson, who is a teacher of French in the high school, has been invited to join this party, and the trustees felt it was an opportunity she should embrace.

Several candidates for the position made vacant by her leave were interviewed, but no one was elected. Miss Maennel was elected to do the work in music Miss Sheldon has been carrying, and Mrs. Chas. A. Parker, director of the Madrigal club of this city, was elected to direct the boys' and girls' glee clubs, giving a couple of hours a day to the work.

Principal Moyses reported that Miss Helen Goldthwait, who has been away on a year's leave of absence, is returning to her work in the commercial department.

EQUIPMENT BIDS CONSIDERED BY SCHOOL BOARD

Schools to Open on September 18, It Is Definitely Decided

The chief business transacted by the board of education at its meeting Tuesday evening in the new quarters at 107 1/2 South Brand was the consideration of bids for equipment and supplies.

In the absence of David Hibben, who is away on an auto tour of the north, Mrs. A. A. Barton was elected chairman pro tem.

Another important matter was settled by the decision to open the city schools September 18. Bids were opened for tools for the manual training department, and the bid of the Glendale Hardware company was accepted.

The Jones book store of Los Angeles put in the winning bid for supplies for the new kindergarten at Acacia Avenue school.

Bids for the heating plants for the four new bungalows at Doran, Broadway, Colorado and Central Avenue schools were referred to Superintendent White and Business Manager Black with power to act, and the same action was taken with reference to bids for clocks for the new rooms. This was also done in connection with bids for pianos subject, however,

Philosophical Fable Is Contribution of Jas. W. Foley Tonight

Tonight, James W. Foley places before you in "The Listening Post," a fable in philosophical language. He tells you of a stout oak tree, a wise old owl and a parasite. And the stout old oak refuses to listen to the wise old owl and the parasite gets in its work.

This is the way it ends: "The limbs grew gray and the leaves died and only Foley persisted. And the wise owl grieved. For the rotted trunk cracked and the great tree crashed down and lay prostrate."

FIND SUPER-BABY HERE AND BENEFIT HUMAN RACE

By JOHN H. GERRIE, Civic Development Expert

Have you a ray of sunshine in your home? Then, of course, it's the best baby in the world. Or, if it's not in your home, perhaps you know of somebody else's best baby in the world.

Every baby naturally is the best baby ever born. Every mother will tell you so and every father, too. And who should know better than they?

But wouldn't it be splendid to get all the best babies together and pick from the lot the super-baby of all? Difficult work, of course, among so many best babies, but it can be done by competent judges without eligible babies of their own.

Ever since the rearing of babies began there has been the neighborhood dispute as to which was the best baby on the block. It probably is the oldest bone of contention in the world and as long as babies continue to be born it is likely to remain the same.

But usually it is very friendly contention, for every parent and grandparent and uncle and aunt is so absolutely sure that his or her particular ray of sunshine is the best that ever happened that any dispute on their part is simply statement of fact that obliterates all rival claims to sunshine honors.

Every baby is the best ever, according to the standards applied by proud parents. And no two standards are exactly the same. Some prefer the pudgiest babies and some like those that gurgle the most. With some, bright eyes count for everything, with others, sunny dispositions. Some go strong for physical perfection and others for alertness of the mind. Beauty of face captures many, but more are won by the ability of the little hero to get his big toe into his own mouth. The baby that is always smiling attracts friends everywhere, but the baby with heartiest weeps does not lack supporters.

So, as everyone knows, there are best babies of all kinds. To get all these kinds together, to allot points for each good quality and then to select the very highest type, the super-baby, will be an achievement with possibly far-reaching influence upon society.

That is the sort of achievement this newspaper aspires to within the wide community it serves. It wants to discover the best baby in each of six classes, according to age, in this community. Then, in alliance with other progressive newspapers with the Greater Los Angeles district, it aims to find the super-baby of all the metropolitan area. To accomplish this, there are to be a series of community contests with valuable rewards, particulars of which are given elsewhere in this paper.

It is a big feat to attempt, but it is an important undertaking for the community. The baby is the basis of society, the start of civilization. If we raise the right kind of babies, or, to be correct, if we raise good babies in the right way, we will have the right kind of men and women and that means the right kind of community, the right kind of nation and the right kind of world.

The human baby is the most important subject in civilization and yet, generally speaking, it is given less scientific study and intelligent attention than a blooded colt, a thoroughbred heifer or a pup with a pedigree.

Any serious effort to enlist public interest in the raising of better babies will be of benefit to mankind. Here in Southern California are raised the best babies in the world. The equable climate, the life-giving sunshine, the invigorating mixture of mountain and sea air and the wholesome food at all times available are conducive to the highest type of babies.

If, out of this type the super-baby be evolved, the entire human family will be benefited. It is exactly this that this newspaper and its allies hope to achieve.

It is an ambitious enterprise. It requires the help of every parent in the community. To enter your ray of sunshine in the baby contest and fail to win the capital prize will be no disgrace. It will be an honor, for it will be in competition with the best babies in the world. And if your entry should be adjudged the super-baby, just how would you feel? You wouldn't exchange that honor for a million dollars. Now, would you?

Help this newspaper find the super-baby and aid in benefiting the human race.

WHITING HOME IN WILDWOOD CANYON IS DESTROYED

Fire Sweeps Structure Before Local Company Arrives

LA CRESCENTA, Aug. 23.—Fire, which was caused either by a defective flue or defective wiring, broke out at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Perry Whiting home in Wildwood canyon, and completely destroyed the building. The local fire company was called and, under C. J. Young, who brought the fire trailer, managed to save the cottages surrounding the main building. All of the furniture on the top floor was destroyed, while some of the first floor furnishings were saved.

The government had leased the property, which is often known as the La Crescenta lodge, to house disabled soldiers interested in bee culture.

MOORE IS WOMAN'S CANDIDATE AGAINST SLACKING

So Says Mrs. Mab Copeland Lineman, Advocating C. C. Moore

Points to Patriotic Work, Sacrifice and Support of A. F. of M.

"The woman who will not exercise her franchise, who will not inquire into the political situation, will be called a slacker just as was the woman who would not give her services during the war," declared Mrs. Mab Copeland Lineman, advocating the nomination of Charles C. Moore, before the Business and Professional Women's Club, at its picnic last night in Verdugo Woodlands.

"Charles C. Moore is the head of a great engineering firm. He gave his whole life during the period of war to service work. He never had a strike. Once, when the I. W. W. were giving trouble everywhere, so great was his reputation that the American Federation of Labor came to his rescue. He urged upon each of you that you go to the election next Tuesday and vote to send to the senate the women's candidate, the man whose attitude is toward peace, the man who will save your fathers and brothers and sweethearts, instead of a man willing to sacrifice your happiness to his own aggrandizement. Send Charles C. Moore. Get out and vote for Charles C. Moore."

While the picnic meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club, held Tuesday evening in the grove and pavilion of the Newport company in Verdugo Woodlands, was not as largely attended as usual, it was one of the most pleasant gatherings the organization has enjoyed, and the program which followed was one of the best.

It opened with readings by Henry Biederman, a pupil of the Emerson School of Expression, who gave "Just Her Way" and "The Two Foxes," in a rather untalented and characteristic manner. Later in the program Mr. Biederman and Dr. Pearl J. Anderson, also from the Emerson school, presented a spirited little playlet, entitled, "Please Pass the Cream," which was the more effective for its simple dramatic setting, a breakfast table, arranged for the morning meal.

Mrs. Mab Copeland Lineman, president of the Women Lawyers' club of Los Angeles, was the evening's speaker. Hers was a wonderfully fine address, direct, forceful, but simple and devoid of any of the cheap tricks of the professional orator or would-be orator. It made a very favorable impression on her audience. The detailed report will be found on another page.

The club tendered a vote of thanks to the speaker, and also to Mr. Biederman and Dr. Anderson for their generous contributions to the program.

LIBRARY EQUIPMENT IS ORDERED

The transaction of the high school trustees Tuesday night, in addition to other business, included the ordering of a desk and other new equipment for the school library. This has long been needed and it was purchased with a view to its use in the high school library for which the new buildings at Broadway and Verdugo road will make provision.

GEO. T. SMITH ELECTED HEAD OF GLENDALE MOTOR CAR ASSOCIATION HERE

Succeeds George Clayton, Dodge Dealer, Resigned Because of Business Pressure, Prior to Start of First Annual Country Hi Jinks

START TODAY FOR ARROWHEAD LAKE

Thirty-five Representative Dealers Join in Big Expedition to the Lake Country Starting at 2 o'clock Today

Prior to the departure for the first annual Hi Jinks of the Glendale Motor Car Dealers' association, members of the organization elected George T. Smith, Willys Knight and Overland car dealer, president of the association, to take the place of George Clayton, who resigned as head of the club and as a director. Mr. Clayton resigned because his business will not allow him to devote the necessary time to association business. Steve Packer will remain as vice-president of the organization. James S. French was named as treasurer to take the place of Mr. Smith, and E. B. Sutton was elected to the board of directors.

Final plans for the trip today to Arrowhead lake for the Hi Jinks were made at the meeting yesterday. This is the first annual jinks of the association, and the dealers are planning to make it the bright affair of the year.

About 35 members will be in the motorcade to leave Glendale at 2 p. m. today. They will drive direct to the lake, where accommodations have been arranged for them.

They will spend the night at the club and remain until noon Thursday, when the return trip will be started.

Baseball will be one of the features of the trip. Plans for several games are being made. It is rumored that the dealers for four-cylinder cars will be matched against the representatives of the six-cylinder automobile.

Boating on the lake, bathing and fishing will also occupy considerable time. This is the first annual affair of the Glendale association, and will be the biggest event during the year. Officials of the organization say that next year when the club is older and functioning smoothly, there will be a High Jinks and trip staged that will knock them all dead. They also intimate that the trip today and tomorrow will be "some trip."

Speaking of this proposed bond issue today, Mr. Reeves said: "The need of more room in which to conduct the city's business is imperative. Practically every department is working under crowded conditions. At present the city is renting rooms across the street from the city hall for the engineering department."

"During the past few years municipalities in many departments, doubled. Departments that formerly employed five clerks now have fifteen and these fifteen clerks are functioning in the same office space that formerly housed five."

H. H. ROHRER NEW CONTROLLER OF CITY

Appointed at Special Meeting of City Council Last Night

At a special meeting of the city council last night, H. H. Rohrer, Kenneth road and Raymond avenue, was appointed city controller, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of H. A. Harrison.

Mr. Rohrer, who has lived in Glendale for the greater part of the past two years, comes to the employ of the city highly recommended for the position he is to fill. His best recommendations come from an official of the Santa Fe railroad, that employed Mr. Rohrer as auditor. This official said that Mr. Rohrer was one of the best and most conscientious workers and most efficient in the auditing department, that the Santa Fe had employed.

Mr. Rohrer worked for the Santa Fe for many years as cashier and station agent. He was employed for one year by the Raynolds Traction system as traveling auditor. He has high recommendations from this system.

For almost ten years he was an employe of the state of Illinois in the office of the superintendent of budgets. This employment was during the administration of Governor Lowden and at the time that the budget system was instituted in that state. It was Mr. Rohrer's duty to report on the state funds to the various departments and institutions, and to award bids.

During his tenure of office with the state of Illinois, he was also employed as auditor for the various state institutions.

Mr. Rohrer has also had considerable commercial experience, having been connected with the First National bank of Springfield, Ill., as head of the collection department. City Manager William H. Reeves said this morning he believes that the city of Glendale is fortunate in having secured the services of such an efficient man.

CAR THIEVES
Petty thieves are at work in Glendale again. F. G. Meek, 1123 Crownwealth, Los Angeles, reported to the police last night that while his automobile was parked at the corner of Pacific avenue and Elk street, a brief case with his name across the front was stolen.

C. OF C. CIRCULAR TO EXPLAIN THE CITY BONDS

Three Leading Citizens to Make Statements on the Proposed Issue

The chamber of commerce is preparing a circular, to be published regarding the three proposed bond issues that are to come before the voters of Glendale at the election on August 29. This circular is to have brief statements by three of the leading citizens regarding these three proposed bond issues.

Dr. Jessie Russell is to tell the need of a centrally located comfort station in this city.

Richardson D. White, superintendent of city schools, will make a statement regarding the proposed school bond issue.

City Manager William H. Reeves is to explain the need at present for an annex to the present city hall.

"Tentative plans for the new addition to the city hall will provide for adequate quarters for all departments of the municipality, give the police department ample room and jail facilities that are needed, as well as an emergency hospital. The addition would be a separate building erected on property at the rear of the city hall and now owned by the city."

"The total cost of the building, complete and furnished, will be about $35,000. The site for the proposed annex is already paid for out of revenue. The bond issue requested is to finance the building and furnishings of the annex after it has been completed."

THE WEATHER
Southern California: Tonight and Thursday fair, except foggy in morning near coast. Cooler in extreme southeast portion.

Fashions

to Be Held in Glendale at the

T. D. & L. Theatre, Matinee and Night
THURSDAY, AUGUST 24

Now that Glendale has become a national figure in the sisterhood of cities it is but natural that she should demand fashion shows. It is equally natural that Peggy Hamilton, who is peculiarly the exponent of Southern California's ideals in dress, should be glad to be the first to meet that demand, for she knows Glendale and her enthusiasm for its charms is sincere.

Her interest in dress and in its intelligent exposition is perennial, but she says she has a special interest in the pageant of fall fashions she is to put on at the T. D. & L. theatre in this city Thursday of the present week.

She will spare no pains to make it the most brilliant showing ever seen in this city, but she says the way has been prepared by the very up to date and smart stocks of the local stores, which she declares are doing a great work in sustaining Glendale's vogue with the traveling public and keeping it in the van of metropolitan centers of the state.

Not only will the display be of intense interest because of the beauty and novelty of the garments exhibited, but it will be a liberal education to every woman present in "how to wear your clothes." We all know how much the effect of a hat or a gown is modified by the manner in which it is adjusted and the carriage of the wearer. This will be brought out to the nth degree by Miss Hamilton, and many a maid and matron will receive valuable hints.

It is not expected that the audiences Miss Hamilton will face will be composed exclusively of women. Unless all signs fail, men will be in the majority, for who takes more interest in feminine garb than men, and for who else do their wives and sweethearts make themselves smart and pretty?

Between the showings there will be special numbers by celebrated moving picture stars who are favorites with Glendale audiences, such as Lillian Guenther, the charming dancer, who achieved fame in connection with Ted Shawn. Then there is "Peggy Hamilton's songbird," otherwise Vivian Ingraham. A novelty act will be presented by Nancy and Gene Walters. Bill Bode's Triumphant Trio will entertain to the queen's taste, and Patricia Pfeiffer will execute one of her wonderful toe dances.

The fine stock of the Trice Furniture company has been raided to provide a beautiful setting for the gorgeous spectacle, and the Glendale Floral company will supply the aesthetic background of flowers and greenery.

At the special matinee for women, which will be given at 3:30 o'clock, undergarments will be in the limelight. Miss Hamilton will give valuable advice and demonstrations as to the fitting and wearing of dainty confections of lace and silk. This will not be confined to the stage. Models will parade the aisles during the lecture that women may have a close-up.

Apart from the interest in Miss Hamilton personally will be the even greater interest inspired by the fact that Glendale shops are to contribute to the display and thus demonstrate that our city is not dependent upon Los Angeles for up-to-the-minute "plumage." The list of those who will participate includes: Josephine Des Mazes, creator of chic hats, who has just established herself in one of the court shops on East Broadway; I. B. Carlock; the Glendale Dry Goods company; the Hatz Shop, to which we always look for the last note from New York; La Facile Corset Shop, also from the court shops; Ed Nisle; Robinson's Men's Shop; the Harriet Wilson Shoppe, and Sherrod's Specialty Shop.

It will be a great show.

GREAT BRITAIN IS SLOWLY ENDING FLEETS

Scrapping of Capital Ships Going Forward Slowly at English Yards

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Great Britain is scrapping her capital ships "gradually."

Many people have had visions of dockyards, swarming with workers, dismantling the great gray ships alongside the quays, battering off guns and searchlight platforms, as if nothing else on earth mattered.

In England, at any rate, this is far from fact. In the first place, most of the heavy scrapping to be done by England's admiralty officials showed is not scheduled before 1925.

After that, the famous Queen Elizabeth comes up for destruction in 1925, the Royal Sovereign in 1926, the Renown (already on the reserve list since the return of the Prince of Wales from his world tour) in 1926, and the famous Hood in 1927.

In the meantime, 16 obsolete vessels have gone to the scrap heap. They are the pre-dreadnaughts Mars, Caesar, Queen, Swiftsure, Hindustan, Lord Nelson, and the dreadnaughts Bellerophon, Temeraire, St. Vincent, dreadnaught (the original of her type) Hercules, inflexible, indomitable. These ships, it is true, were partly scheduled for the scrap heap before the Washington conference took place.

Of the later types scheduled to go, and already off the navy's active list, are the Superb, in a few weeks to become a target for the bombs of British air squadrons; the Erin, already in the hands of shipbreakers; the Agincourt, New Zealand, Princess, Royal and Lion.

But the process is gradual. A ship which has cost four millions cannot be broken up in a week. To destroy a great battleship is an expensive matter and at least half a million dollars goes to the foot of the bill.

Consequently, the big vessel for destruction is, first of all, paid off, and with a nucleus crew steams round to her last port, where she waits further orders. There are many such vessels in what is known as the "Rotten Rows" of the dockyards.

Walter Heidler, Glendale's star pitcher, who caught his hand in some machinery with which he was working and broke his thumb, had the splints removed on Monday and is getting along nicely.

No Bother at All

"It was too much bother to open a Bank Account," said a woman in excusing herself after her savings had been stolen from her trunk.

But it's no bother at all to open an account at this Bank. In fact, it takes less time than to spend the same money in one of our busy stores.

Then, too, you have the satisfaction of knowing that your funds are absolutely safe and are earning you 4% interest, compounded semi-annually, if deposited in a Term Savings Account, or 3% if placed in a Special Savings Account with Checking Privileges. And interest is worth while.

Truths in Epigram

What is well done is done soon enough. — Du Bartas (1544-1590).

THE LITTLE PEOPLE

Somebody has remarked that for the little people, who don't count, now that the war is over, prices are rising.

The theory that there are "little people who don't count" is one symptom of the ailments from which the world is suffering. For all the people count. There is in the social structure no group of units, the rights of which may with safety be disregarded.

While the world is changing, there is an effort to regard it as still to be governed by musty precedent. There might as well be frank acknowledgment of the fact that the days of vassalage belong to the past. It is true that in Russia, a tyranny has seized authority over the masses. No other land presents such a possibility. There are writers in plenty who contend that power should be centered in the hands of the intelligent few, meaning by this the group to which they chance to belong, or upon which they fawn for favors.

Indications in this country, the country in all the world the richest and most potent, where conditions are better than elsewhere, are that a change is in progress. In ages gone, whatever conditions were imposed by the mighty, had to be endured, until some such crisis of desperation as eventuated in the French revolution. The race, despite individual incapacity for high thinking, is becoming educated and intelligent. There is a growing resentment over what seem to be injustices. There is a tendency to make and enforce demands, and no collection of persons engaged in garnering all the profits of labor, above a bare living, may longer feel secure in this privilege brought by tradition over from a vanished time.

The agitators clamoring for a complete change fail to win approval, but their activities may be understood. Support is withheld from them, for where they have wrought the heralded changes, results have been dire. Russia under the czars, suffered much, but compared with the Russia of today it was a place of liberty and delight. Labor at least was sure of other bread than that of charity. Art, literature and science, hampered somewhat by monarchical restrictions and the rule of a stupid and brutal church establishment, still managed to contribute to the world's store of knowledge. Now Russia is a ruin. Thus it is clear that a change may be for the worse.

In a commercial status approximating the ideal, integrity would rule the relationships of men. In their dealings there would be the spirit of fairness. None would have power to gather to himself the produce of the land and sell it at extortionate price at the time the growers of the produce got scarcely enough to meet the cost of harvest. The public would not be called upon to pay dividends on watered stock. There would be no more grinding monopoly. Men in public office would serve the public. Labor would have, unquestioned, the right to work in security and peace.

Because things are as they are, unrest prevails. There are demands for reform, some of them scarcely articulate, and yet that must be heeded, for they presage turmoil that may lead, none knows where. The "little people" have voices and votes and ideas, an equipment not to be ignored. Millions of these people are not at one extreme or the other. They are not capitalists; they are not organized toilers. They simply are human beings, and they resent the recurring experience of being ground between the two forces. It is absurd to suppose that they will submit indefinitely to having useless but bitter battles waged when they are standing in the range of missiles from both sides.

EARNING THEIR SALARIES

Men and women who work for salaries are under obligation to earn the amounts they receive. If they are in government positions, the government pays them, which is to say, they are servants of the people. They are unfaithful employees when they desert their posts to promote the political chances of themselves or their backers. It is not for this they have been hired.

The representative or senator, whose place is at Washington, has no moral right to be engrossed in other callings and absent from the post of duty. He may be serving as counsel in an important case, but while he is so busied, he is accepting from the government a salary for something that he has not done. It is possible that far from his official seat he will be fighting for the right to retain that seat, together with the privilege of temporarily abandoning it at will.

Just at present a California senator is at home battling for a re-nomination. There is recognizable a very desperate need on his part if he is to continue at Washington where he will be in easy reach of his New York clients. Yet he is under obligation to his employers, the people, to be where he is paid for being. However, there are many precedents for his course. But are there precedents for the collection of federal office holders who are helping him? A dozen of these, openly or covertly, are campaigning for Johnson. They are using every influence of their positions on his behalf. Each has a fat salary. Each to a certain extent waives the circumstance that this salary is paid for official work, and not for pulling wires, or speaking from the stump. Some of the active ones have abandoned their positions entirely. They lay no claim to being here in line of official duty. They are neglecting the public interests and devoting themselves to private interests with which it is an impropriety for them to meddle.

The treasurer of a Minnesota county confessed to embezzlement one morning, and the evening of the same day began serving a maximum sentence of ten years. Apparently the hearing was conducted with such speed that no lawyer had a chance to clog the wheels of justice by thrusting in a plea of insanity.

Prophets of evil who thought that the end of the industrial world was coming with the railroad strike, now have a chance to revise their predictions. Meanwhile, doubtless, they will be concocting a fresh message of woe with which to scare the timid again.

There are two sides to every story—and some have four and a ceiling.

The faster the girl can run away from a man the sooner she can catch him.

Statistics and the Eighteenth Amendment

By DR. FRANK CRANE

There has been a lot of loose thinking and a lot more of loose talking about the success of prohibition. One thing that confuses the mind of the average person is the fact that newspapers make a business of publishing exceptional occurrences.

In fact, the contents of newspapers is made up of exceptions, for it is the unusual that is news, and not the usual. Every violation of the prohibition amendment, therefore, every instance of poisoning by home-brew, every arrest of a bootlegger or capture of a rum-running tug, has been played up in big headlines.

Of course, people with judgment understand that the very printing of these things means that as a rule the amendment is pretty well enforced. But then, most people are rather deficient in judgment. If the newspapers were full some morning of instances showing how prohibition was enforced, we should probably conclude that it had very generally failed.

The facts in the case are that no law ever passed by a civilized nation has done more to increase the sum of human happiness and to abate crime than the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States. Judge William M. Gemmill, for sixteen years judge of the municipal court of Chicago, recently gave some statistics upon the question. He said: "Twenty per cent of the jails of the United States have been without prisoners since prohibition went into effect."

"I have collected the prison statistics for the last seven years in several of the leading states, and everywhere the number of prisoners has been decreased since prohibition." He then follows with some statistics of New York, Indiana, Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Iowa, California and other states. "I have not found a single state or a single prison," he continues, "where there was not a marked decrease in the prison population in 1919 and 1920. In most of the states there was an increase in 1921 over the year 1920, but with that increase the prison population is still from 20 to 25 per cent less than it was before the war."

"From the last year before the prohibitory act went into effect to the first year following its enactment, the population of the Chicago Bridewell (the city prison) decreased over 50 per cent. "During the year previous to the enactment of the prohibitory law 169 persons died in the hospital at the Bridewell from alcoholism. Last year one person died in the same hospital from the same cause." Judge Gemmill quotes Judge Arnold, for many years the presiding judge for the Chicago juvenile court, showing a great decrease in juvenile crime. He gives in detail the statistics of the probation department in regard to delinquent children. In conclusion Judge Gemmill says: "Never before were American citizens as clean and law-abiding as they are today."

It should not be concluded from all this that we object to newspapers publishing instances of the breaking of the prohibition law. On the contrary, we hope that the news value of such instances will constantly increase. (Copyrighted by Dr. Frank Crane)

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers)

J. M. Mackay: "Why not say 'I am'?" (This criticism was made on J. Murphy's query: "The writer is much interested...") "Persons"—or, "many other peoples"—or, "many others," according to the sense intended. (This was a criticism of J. Murphy's words "I am aware that among Southerners, East-Siders, and many other people this pronunciation obtains.") "Do you approve of the expression 'hardly think' in J. Murphy's words: 'I hardly think any cultivated speaker could be guilty of such monstrous pronunciation.'"

Mr. Nicholson: No. The following would be purer English: I think any cultured speaker hardly would be guilty of such. It is, furthermore, that I do not approve the use of could in Mr. Murphy's sentence. A person could be guilty, but would he?

Mr. Mackay: "Puzzle—and the 'u' preceding 'u' in 'when the e precedes u as in 'unite.' Also, explain how 'unite' illustrates the 'ch' sound."

Mr. Nicholson: The expression was not sufficiently punctuated. Correct: when the e precedes u (u as in unite); or, when the t precedes such a u as u in unite. The reply to your second request is made in the more complete punctuation of the foregoing excerpt. Is the following correct: This is the finest of any I have ever seen? Yesterday's Error. Possibly he should have said I shall try to remember all this.

If Scott was determined to try to remember, his use of will in the first person was very appropriate. However, Mr. Mackay apparently doubts that Scott was determined to be discriminating in the use of whose, so probably shall is a franker word for the great author to have used. Vocabulary. Milk-sop: "An effeminate or milk-and-water boy or man: a term of contempt." Pronunciation: milk' sop (l as in hit; o as in not).—Standard, Webster, Oxford and Century.

THE LISTENING POST

Once there was a stout tree and a wise owl and a parasite.

All living together. By the side of a water course. The stout tree had spreading limbs and thick leaves and a sturdy trunk.

The wise owl abode in the stout tree, and was to be found there often when he was not searching for food. He was a pretty keen observer and took note of what was going on about him.

The stout tree was good natured and friendly and had a great pride in his strength and beauty.

And the parasite was something that grew upon the stout tree.

A very little thing at first. Hardly to be noticed at all. But it was persistent and kept on growing. Taking nourishment from the stout tree. Which did not notice the growth of the parasite with any great interest.

The wise owl was a keener observer. And when he came back from his foraging he noticed the growth of the parasite. And he said to the stout tree in the spirit of friendliness:

"Better let me tear that growth off of your limbs. It is getting larger every day."

And the stout tree said: "Oh, let it alone. It is not big enough to harm anybody. Indeed, I think it looks rather nifty there. What is it?"

And the wise owl replied: "It is Folly. It is a parasite that is to be found on many stout trees."

"But it is not large enough to do any great harm," said the stout tree.

"It is growing a little bigger every day," said the wise owl.

"I can't see that it is," said the stout tree.

"Of course, you can't," said the wise owl. "You can't see it as clearly as I can."

So the wise owl kept his peace. And the stout tree was not especially concerned.

And the parasite Folly kept on growing. And one day it jumped from one limb to another.

And started a new growth. And the wise owl noticed that the first limb was fully covered.

Again he appealed to the stout tree. "It has covered one of your limbs completely," he said. "The leaves are dying."

"Oh, don't worry," said the stout tree. "I have a lot of limbs. One more or less does not matter."

So the wise owl held his peace once more.

And a second limb was covered and a third and still the growth spread. Until the stout tree began to notice that his breathing was difficult.

For he breathed through the leaves that were being covered with the parasite. And he said: "I will make short work of that thing. I will cast it off."

But it had by that time spread through all the limbs.

And when the stout tree sought to free them the parasite persisted and could not be shaken off.

For it had gained too great a foothold. And it kept growing apace.

For the rotted trunk cracked and the great and the limbs grew gray and the leaves died and only Folly persisted. And the wise owl grieved.

For the rotted trunk cracked and the great tree crashed down and lay prostrate. JAMES W. FOLEY.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Lord Northcliffe is being praised by some writers because of his devotion to England. They much over-emphasize this quality of his active career, and seem to find in it a singular virtue. They point to the necessity it suggests that the full duty of a citizen of this country is to the United States. It would be difficult to formulate a view more narrow.

HENRY JAMES

It is natural and seemly for one to esteem, above others, the land in which he lives, to uphold its institutions, if they are worth it, and make them better in so far as they lack. It does not follow that he is to strive to erect a wall around his habit, and from its battlements frown upon the world outside.

Such a course would be similar to that of the householder who carefully mowed his own lawn, trimmed the trees, painted the front porch, but had no interest in any affair outside the curb line. The resident of a city is concerned for the welfare of the whole municipality. The value and integrity of his own possessions depends upon their environment.

The trite old greeting, "Well, the world is a small place, after all" has been made literally true by human progress. Remoteness has been eliminated from this plane. It must be sought now in the measureless cosmos. The interests of the whole world have become inter-woven, intimate, inseparable. The desire to establish a hermit nation suggests the impossible and the anomalous.

When the great Lincoln said that a government could not long exist half slave and half free, he uttered a truth so broad that it applies to a greater situation. It applies to the world of intelligence, industry, art and culture. He might have said that a civilization could not long exist half flourishing and half impoverished. Civilization is an entity rather than a collection of groups.

The wisest American is one who remembers that this country does not stand alone, but is part and parcel of civilization.

An inventor is said to have perfected a method whereby he creates talking motion pictures with perfect synchronization. Attempts to do this have been made by many. All have been failures up to the present, and there still remains the necessity of proving this one any better.

Doubtless, if characters on the screen could be made to seem to speak, something would be added to the sense of reality. Nevertheless it would be difficult to take the mimic speech seriously, while the figures themselves have the aspect not of material forms, but of shadows.

Perhaps by some hidden appliance in the back, the book of the future will not be silent, but the characters utter themselves with the turning of the pages.

Recently a girl of sixteen disappeared from her home. When the police got her back, after her wild flight to a southern city in a stolen automobile, she explained her escapade. "I craved action," she said.

Any girl of sixteen who is willing to run the risk involved by going unprotected into the world, may do so of course. Sensible girls, however, will see small lure in the chance.

The charge that illegal drinking is practiced more in "society" than elsewhere is confirmed by common knowledge. The drinking bout that progresses under guise of a mere gathering of respectable citizenry, passes generally without notice. It is the fool indulging in wood alcohol and kindred potions, who turns up at the jail or the morgue. His case attracts attention to him, and away from the higher toned folk who indulge in a superior grade of intoxicant.

A paper that daily sets forth some interesting fact of history, mentions that in August of 1692 five women were hanged at Salem, Mass., for witchcraft. In the same year nineteen others were hanged in that same and enlightened colony, and one was pressed to death. It is fair to say that no events of this sort would be tolerated in Salem today. This shows that the world has changed, a fact that some people strive not to admit.

Allegations are made that there was tampering with the Obenchain jury. Surely a matter worth looking into closely. Even in the absence of tampering, a jury in a criminal case has a hard time. In the first place, preliminary to acceptance as a juror, the talsman must confess to an ignorance inexplicable in its profundity. This brings him under suspicion. Then he is subjected to the wiles of trick lawyers. Often he has to listen to perjured testimony, and in his professed stupidity, how is he to know it? And of course when a tamperer comes snooping around, the juror is easy game.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The one thing that seems perfectly sure to me, and that becomes more sure the longer I live and the wider open I keep my eyes, is this: There is a success waiting right at our elbows for every man jack of us. All we need do is to start.

One success may differ from another success in glory, of course. One may make a million by raising rubber plants in window boxes, and another merely be able to leave his wife a couple of well-bred children and a few sound bonds when he dies. But the success is waiting right at hand for every one of us—if we just get our poor old minds furnished up and start free.

One essential of winning success is to furnish real service. The other is to discard foolish prejudices—inhibitions is the pretty word we use nowadays. A third essential is hard work. There are other essentials, but the three will do to draw to.

I know a town in which there was not one decent restaurant. There were the hotel dining rooms, of course, and a few white ties, and some Home Cooking and Maggie's Places and one or two sad restos with face curtains and decayed gentlemens. But no real restaurants. It was surrounded by a fringe of bootlegger roadhouses and so-called inns. The only thing one could get to eat in them was greasy fried chicken. You ate chicken and gravy or chicken and waffles or you starved.

"I am going to start a country restaurant and real tea room," said the wife of the foremost professor.

Not widow, get me? NOT widow. The wife. Her husband had been a leader in the intellectual life of the community for years, and they had amassed $2000 in cash and what they could borrow on his $3000 insurance policy. Every one said don't, for the love of Mike. Think they begged her. Think!

"Bah!" said the professor's wife. "So she did. And the country restaurant and tea room where one can get food that appeals to the palate of an epicure instead of soggy chicken and spongy waffles is making her a fortune. Her children are going to college, instead of going to work, and with that sure instinct for success that we all have town is tossing costly blooms at her.

"A wonderful woman," we tell visitors in awed tones. "We must drive out to her restaurant. The town is proud of her."

SONGS OF THE POETS

The Power of Malt—By Alfred Edward Housman (1859)

Why, it 'tis dancing you would be, There's brisker pipes than poetry. Say, for what were hop-yards meant, Or why was Burton built on Trent? Oh, many a peer of England brews Livelier liquor than the Muse.

And Malt does more than Milton can To justify God's ways to man. Ale, man, ale's the stuff to drink For fellows whom it hurts to think: Look into the pewter pot To see the world as the world's not.

CANADA HAS A HELL ON EARTH

By KIRBY THOMAS, Mining Engineer

There's a hell on earth up in the Canadian wilds, reports a Canadian government agent who has reached New York from Fort Norman on the Mackenzie river in far northern Canada.

He went there to investigate the new oil discoveries reported in the past few months, and found in many places enormous quantities of burning coal and shale. The air is full of the smell of sulphur and burning coal. At night along the river great cliffs of sizzling molten clay may be seen.

This sounds very Danteque, but its probability cannot be denied. It is well known that the fantastic and highly colored "bad lands" formations of South Dakota owe their origin and conditions to just such a happening. In fact some of the beds of coal in that region are still burning. Similar phenomena are known in other parts of the world.

Some may marvel that coal and oil are found so far north, even within the Arctic Circle, since coal, especially, is known to be derived from plant life which flourished in a tropical or mild climate. The coal beds of the Mackenzie river, however, are several million years old, although comparatively recent geological age of the earth is now generally accepted. At the time they were formed, and also much

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

PORK POLITICS AND DEFENCE

[Chicago Tribune]

The present congress proceeding in the sacred name of economy has reduced the army to a condition which gives gravest concern as to the requirements of national defence. Among other results is a reduction of the regular officer personnel regardless of the services we require of it. The result is that the war department must eliminate not only officers who are of diminishing value to the service but also many experienced and highly efficient men whom the service cannot afford to lose.

But to give this situation the sharp edge of irony, we now hear that congressmen who brought about this discreditable and dangerous condition are using their influence to protect favorites from elimination regardless of the standards of equity and military efficiency which ought to govern strictly the reduction compelled by political buncombe and folly. This abuse of our defence is a disgrace and an outrage which we hope will be promptly and fully exposed. Some congressmen seem to think the army and navy exist not for the defence of the nation but for the profit of porkfrying politics. Public opinion should correct that notion without delay. The national defence has long been the prey of pork politics and pacifism. It is time the nation realized its own vital interest in protecting the army and navy.

HOW TO CARE FOR FIREWOOD

Many eucalyptus and other trees are being cut down in Central and Southern California to open up fields and roads or to do away with objectionable features resulting from too large growth of windbreaks and ornamentals. Much of the wood from these trees is damaged through improper handling. A good method is to cut the trees in the spring and let the logs (preferably sawed into short lengths) season on the ground during the dry summer months. In the fall the logs may be sawed into stove length and the sections split readily into firewood. Careful stacking is necessary if the wood is to be kept out of doors during the rainy season. A good method is to pile in a round or conical shape, making a cone six to ten feet across the base, laying the sticks with butts out and tapering in towards the top, keeping the center always filled with loose sticks, and covering with a protector of old boards, overlapping to shed moisture. Wood piled in this manner on high ground, where drainage is good, will keep indefinitely, only the outer layer becoming damp when it rains.

A "crooked" man can get a new slant on life by going straight.

It takes a woman a few years to learn that almost any man can be well entertained if you give him enough to eat.

If tomorrow's fun were not always tomorrow, we'd have a lot more today.

ELECTRIC SIGNS ON VALLEY ROAD TO BE MOVED

Chamber of Commerce Tells Ferry to Change Advertisement

The matter of the electric signs on San Fernando road, and a public comfort station, were discussed last night at the regular meeting of the directors of the chamber of commerce. Dr. Jessie A. Russell, chairman of the civic committee, made a verbal report on several matters, and reported progress.

Chairman Peter L. Ferry reported that the matter of the electric signs on San Fernando road had been taken care of, and he was instructed to move the sign at Broadway and San Fernando road to the extreme west line of Glendale, next to Burbank.

The plan for weekly forum meetings was adopted, the first to be held at the noonday luncheon, Tuesday, September 5. This was adopted for the purpose of working out several big propositions for Glendale by the whole membership. The matter of the referendum, to be submitted at the November election, known as "distinct housing act," was brought before the board and discussed. A resolution was passed against it. The act provides that wooden shingles cannot be used in the erection of buildings, and it occurred to the board that this was "class distinction," as it is in the interest of certain roofing companies, and the board has already voted against it.

A list of new members follows: F. A. Clark company (C. W. Hamman), 213 West Broadway, Good Housekeeping shops; Simons Brick company (H. E. Howeth), 125 West Third, Los Angeles; Glendale Grocery company (John Strother), 244 North Brand; Baldwin & Gans (J. Harry Baldwin), 211 West Broadway, real estate and insurance; The K. & K. Brick company (H. D. Simons), 701 Merchants' National Bank building, Los Angeles; F. N. Clark & company (W. C. Wyckoff), 11 Central building, investment securities; Victor Manufacturing company (E. P. Burgett), San Fernando road and Colorado street, Box 284, Glendale, manufacturers of builders' hardware.

CLEARANCE SALE MARKS NISSE ENTERPRISE

Popular Clothier Decides to Clear All Summer Goods at Bargain

The women of Glendale are not the only pebbles on the beach. As the representative of mere man, Ed. Nisse, of 125 1/2 South Brand boulevard, the exponent of top-notch masculine attire in Glendale, is to participate in the fashion revue at the T. D. & L. theatre Thursday, and is this week putting on a clearance bargain sale of summer suits calculated to make every man and boy in town sit up and take notice. Nifty sports which were $22.50 are now $15.50; $30 values have dropped to $18.75, and $50 suits to $33.50.

Best of all, there are enough to go around among those who are early in the field; the longs and shorts, the stouts and slims, can be fitted and no one will know they did not pay a big price for their swell outfits.

Summer trousers are likewise being offered at most alluring discounts.

Boys have not been overlooked, and the sweaters, knickers, corduroys, blouses, shirts, etc., merit close attention.

PEGGY HAMILTON SHOW IS READY FOR TOMORROW

Display of Fall Fashions to Begin Thursday Afternoon

With everything in readiness, Miss Peggy Hamilton, fashion designer of the Pacific coast, announced yesterday that the garments which she is to display from the local shops in the pageant of fall fashions will be surprising, even to the most ardent.

The affair, which is to consist of the exhibiting of various fall modes of wearing apparel by Miss Hamilton on ten beautiful living models, will take place tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon and evening at the T. D. & L. theater.

The first performance of the day will take place at 3:30 p. m. when Miss Hamilton will conduct one of her informal lingerie matinees for ladies only. This part of the program, of course, will be given in addition to the feature picture, "Dangerous Lies." In the matinee the ladies will be shown and told how and what to wear in undergarments.

In the two evening shows the models will appear in an entire different cast, showing the new 1922 fall fashions in practically every line.

MISS TYLER WED IN DAINY BOWER

Charming Home Wedding Marks Nuptials Tuesday Evening

Miss Hazel Tyler, of Glendale, and Milton Du Charme, of Los Angeles, were married Tuesday evening at one of the prettiest home weddings of the season, which took place at the home of the bride's aunt, Miss Edith Tyler, 623 North Maryland avenue.

The couple stood under an arch covered with ferns, which was placed in front of the fireplace. From the top hung a large white and green bell made from carnations and ferns. Golden rods and bright colored zenias were used in the other rooms.

The bride was charming in a gown of white georgette crepe and carrying a shower bouquet of white rosebuds and lilies-of-the-valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Elsie Tyler, who wore pale green taffeta and real lace. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and ferns. Mr. Du Charme was attended by Max Allen as best man.

Just preceding the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Schaffer of the United Brethren church of Los Angeles, Mrs. W. H. Rawson sang "At Dawning," by Cadman. The young people entered the living room to the strains of the Wedding March from Lohengrin, played softly on the piano by Miss George Lyons of Riverdale drive.

Immediately after the wedding, a reception was held, refreshments being served to about 45 guests. They included Ray Du Charme, brother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Juarre and daughter, Ermine, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dale, Ralph Seigfried, Mrs. J. N. Allen and daughter, Miss Gladys Allen, and son Max Allen, Mrs. N. J. Toulce, Miss Marjorie Middan, Miss Martha McCracken, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rawson, all from Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCAdams, of Palmdale; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Denhart, of Burbank; Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Yard and son, Wade Yard, Jr.; and Mrs. J. E. Eckles, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Pease, Charles Pease, Miss May Lyon, Mr. and Mrs. George Lyons, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kingsley, Sr., and sons Gordon and Marvin, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kingsley, Jr., Miss Bertha Berry, Misses Beatrice and Viola Carlson, Mrs. Nettie Cornell, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Tyler, all of Glendale, and Mrs. Edna Christensen, of San Diego.

Mr. and Mrs. DuCharme have gone to Arrowhead lake to spend two weeks, and will be at home to their many friends on Twenty-ninth street, Los Angeles, after September 15.

Mrs. DuCharme was guest-of-honor at many pretty affairs before her wedding. The first was a shower given in Los Angeles by Miss Martha McCracken and her sister, Mrs. Edna Christensen from San Diego. Miss Marjorie Middan also entertained. Mrs. Paul Mason of Glendale entertained with a surprise shower, inviting all the neighborhood ladies, and Mrs. Robert McCAdams, of Palmdale, entertained at the home of her sister, Mrs. John Torrey, on California avenue. Both Mr. and Mrs. DuCharme have a host of friends here, and they received many beautiful gifts of cut-glass, linen and silver.

MRS. ROBERT LYONS GIVES LUNCHEON

Mrs. Robert T. Lyons, of 511 North Jackson, entertained with a charming luncheon on Tuesday, covers being laid for eight guests. Decorations throughout the house were carried out in pink, asters and cosmos being used. Place cards were in the same color. Following the afternoon, a musical and social program was enjoyed.

Plates were set for the Misses Retha and Elida Hanson; Mrs. L. C. Hossman and Mrs. Edward Graham, from Peabody, Kansas; Mrs. Deibler, Mrs. Guy Tucker and Mrs. O. J. Farst from Los Angeles, and the hostess, Mrs. Robert T. Lyons.

KFAC ORCHESTRA IS TO BE ON THE AIR
Program Opens at Usual Hour for Regular Wednesday Feature of Harmonies Selected by the Radio Fans Themselves

The demands from the radio fans are complied with as near as possible—that is, in so far as requested pieces are concerned. For that reason the KFAC orchestra has been featuring a program every Wednesday night and playing for their selections requested pieces or the favorite pieces of the radio fans.

This evening the orchestra will turn out in full force—that is, it will have six pieces putting forth syncopated music worthy of mention. Marion Jones at the piano, who has won the reputation of "knocking the keys for a row of harmonies; Wilbur P. Funk and Stanton D. Smith at the saxophones, who have a reputation of blending notes of harmony, such as you never heard before; Heavy Benjamin (Benje), who makes the keys on his cornet fly with such rapidity that you cannot follow his fingers, and that isn't all—those pieces which will be heard tonight.

It might be interesting to know that J. A. Newton, of the Newton Electric company, was successful in obtaining a proper 50-watt tube for transmission, and that the strength of the signals produced from KFAC this evening, together with exceptional clarity, is bound to cause considerable comment.

There isn't much "safety in numbers" when the numbers are all against you.

The crawfish is the only animal that progresses backward—and you're no crawfish.

MRS. M. COPELAND LINEMAN TELLS OF MOORE

Addresses Business and Professional Women's Club at Picnic

In a fine talk before the Business and Professional Women's club of Glendale, Mrs. Mab Copeland Lineman, president of the Women Lawyers' club of Los Angeles, did some effective work on behalf of Charles C. Moore, candidate for the nomination as United States senator from the state of California. She said:

"I am here to tell you that I have no use for any organization or any woman today who will not take her place in politics, because I believe the day is now here when the woman who will not exercise her vote and who will not inquire into the political situation will be called a slacker, just as was the woman who would not give her service during the war."

"August 29 we have an election when we are asked to nominate a candidate for the United States senate. A very important function is that of senator of the United States. The fathers of our country very wisely provided that in matters relating to foreign countries, the President could not act without the consent of the senate, and to that extent was helpless. The senator not only represents his own state but he represents the United States. As he acts in the senate, so does the world construe that the people of California want him to act.

"We have two parties. There is but one democrat running for the office of senate, so there is no contest there, but we have a fight within the republican party. This is the only chance you will have to choose between Hiram Johnson and Charles C. Moore."

"Only once before did I leave my business, and that was at the call of war. But I have now left my business for six weeks to organize the women of the state of California into 'Moore for Senator' leagues, because I again felt the call and believed this is a fight in which the women of the state of California must take an active part."

"I am glad to tell you I have had a response from the women of the state that has made me proud of them. They are thinking independently."

"It is not my purpose to tear Hiram Johnson to pieces. I believe woman's place is a constructive place, therefore I will let anything he has done or has not done alone, as far as possible."

"Charles C. Moore is the head of a large engineering constructing firm. His father and mother trekked across the continent in '49. He started at the bottom of the ladder and has pulled himself up to what he is today. He has worked in all kinds of ways and he has the outlook toward labor we must have in the senate of the United States."

each one was given his place back. When other boys came back and had nowhere to lay their heads, when their families were starving and before the government or outside help thought of replacing them, Charles C. Moore set up a replacement bureau for ex-service men and got them employment as fast as possible."

"Mr. Moore was chairman of the state council for defense, and took up the work when California was almost at the bottom of the list. He brought it up to third place. That was a work of love and service. He gave his whole life during the period of the war to service work."

"He is at the head of the Boy Scouts of America. His hobby is boys and he believes in teaching them to do one good turn a day, knowing that the habit, once formed, will be kept up."

"During 30 years of construction work, employing from 200 to 3000 men, he never had a strike. Only once did he have any trouble, and that was when the I. W. W. were giving trouble everywhere. So great was his reputation that the American Federation of Labor came to his rescue and quelled the disturbance."

"We are the mothers of men, and go down into the valley of the shadow of death to bring them into existence. We are the ones who weep when they march away to war and we are the ones whose broken hearts are never mended when they come back no more. It is up to us to see that in this period of reconstruction something is done toward lasting peace."

"What has been done in the senate of the United States? I am not for entangling alliances, but there is a difference between those alliances and conferences between nations. Only as we confer with those nations can we stabilize our own business."

boasting that he opposed the four-power pact that is responsible for peace in the Pacific, and is saying that he will always oppose such legislation. What is he doing to our administration? Making it powerless. Therefore, the mothers of men do not dare to send back to the senate one who will call every conference an entangling alliance because it will strike fear to the hearts of the American people, and is a theme well suited to his two-fisted style of oratory. It is also a theme for his own aggrandizement."

"Hiram Johnson has forgotten that he is representing the people, and is now representing Hiram Johnson. We admit he did good work as governor of the state, but we are not going to keep him in the senate because once he did good work."

"I urge upon each one of you that you go out to the election next Tuesday and vote to send to the senate the women's candidate, the man whose attitude is towards peace, the man who will save your fathers and brothers and sweet hearts instead of a man willing to sacrifice your happiness to his own aggrandizement. Send Charles C. Moore. Get out and vote for Charles C. Moore."

GETTING HER HAND IN

In New Hampshire they tell a story of a very parsimonious man whose wife had always experienced great difficulty in inducing him to part with any change. One day she followed him to the door and quietly asked:

"Henry, can't you let me have $10? I want to—"

"There you go again," exclaimed Henry. "It's always money, money, money! When I am dead you will probably have to beg it." "Well," said the wife, "I shall be a whole lot better off than some poor women who have never had any practice."—Harper's Magazine.

BIG EXPOSITION IS ASSEMBLING AT LOS ANGELES

Pageant of Progress to Open Aug. 26, Is Gathering Its Attractions

Arrival of three troops of cavalry, one company of artillery and a train of 15 Pullmans of famous show people during the past two days, has brought to the attention of Southern California that the Pageant of Progress, scheduled to open at Exposition park, Los Angeles, August 26, is in reality a mighty combination of business and amusement.

The big exposition is expected to convey to the entire United States and most of the civilized world, the fact that Southern California now claims rank with any section of the world as an industrial and distributing district.

Due to its great citrus crop and superlative climatic conditions, it has been difficult for this section to convince the remainder of the United States that it is normal in manufacturing and commerce. The Pageant of Progress is designed to carry this very message and according to announcement from the Los Angeles chamber of commerce, which is back of the project, success is assured.

More than $2,000,000 worth of manufactured articles will be on display. There will be afternoon and evening entertainment programs on a magnificent scale. Productions of the New York Hippodrome shows have been engaged.

CHARITY BALL FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Scheduled for Chamber of Commerce Auditorium on Sept. 15

The attention of Glendale dancers is especially called to the charity ball to be given September 15 at the chamber of commerce. This affair is under the auspices of La Madrid club and is a benefit for the California home for crippled children. Harry Bennett, president of the club and Allan Pollock, vice-president, and they promise a jolly evening, with Jerr Parker's 6-piece orchestra furnishing the cyncopation.

This home for crippled children is doing a wonderful work here. They take little children who are crippled and whose parents cannot afford to give them treatment, and do everything in their power to make them well. This fact alone should warrant a splendid attendance at this dance.

A fishworm has no backbone but it does have sense enough to crawl into its hole and stay there. Many backboneless men know less.

When you get something for nothing, that's what it is worth.

The feature numbers include the wonderful, mysterious water ballet, the Golden Girls review, actual production of motion pictures, score of sensational acts and as climax, the reproduction of the battle of Chateau Thierry.

TAD COON GOES A HUNTING

By JOHN BARTON

Scratchy, scratchy, scratch! rip, rip, rip! went Madam Slyfoot in Miner Mole's old runway.

"Hush your noise!" was all the coon would growl back at them.

Nibble Rabbit's old tunnel in the bank of Doctor Muskrat's Pond. It was mighty hard work—just as hard as she thought it would be; hard clawing and hard gnawing.

She stopped off her scratching and went to look. They hadn't even started in! Madam Slyfoot was good and scared by now.

"That's just the way with you pin-feathered idiots," he snarled.

The Mink rushed up to see what she could find out at the other side. So did the birds. If they didn't make Tad talk, they'd tackle little Frisk Squirrel and see what they could get out of him.

One of them began to tweak his ears, while the others yanked beakfuls of fur out of him. Frisk let out a yell for Uncle Tad; but, before Uncle Tad could scramble up the bank, it was Bob White's wife who lit among them.

"Well, smash your eggs!" shrieked one of the birds.

She stopped off her scratching and went to look. They hadn't even started in! Madam Slyfoot was good and scared by now.

'BONDED WOMAN' AT T. D. & L. THEATRE

Story of the South Sea Isles by John Fleming Wilson

Want to go to the South Sea Isles?

Nearly everybody does, since reading the books of Frederic O'Brien, W. S. Maugham, and others. Patrons of the T. D. & L. theatre will find themselves carried away to this romantic region when they see Betty Compson in "The Bonded Woman," her latest Paramount picture which opens there today.

In this offering, the South Pacific archipelago is shown at its best, with enough of its worst to make up the drama. Miss Compson, as Angela, goes to a dive in Honolulu to rescue the man she loves. This is a colorful scene, with dancing girls, sailors, and natives, and pictures Hawaii as most people fancy it.

Miss Compson is supported by a very fine cast, including Richard Dix, John Bowers, J. Farrell MacDonald, Ethel Wales, William Moran and others. "The Bonded Woman" is based on a story by the late John Fleming Wilson, which was adapted to the screen by A. S. LeVino. Philip E. Rosen directed and James Van Trees photographed.

The great and successful author was lecturing the rising young man on the trials and tribulations of this wicked world. Condemning the prevalent commercial spirit in literature, he said:

"In art money should never be an object. They were dining together in a restaurant at the time. The great man was acting as host and at that point in the conversation the water brought in the exorbitant bill. Scanning the document, the great author sighed and remarked: "It is true that in art money should be no object; but it should be no objection, either, in these times."

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING PILES UP BIG INCOME TAX RECEIPTS OF U. S.

Collector of Internal Revenue for Los Angeles, Rex B. Goodsell, Declares Record Receipts Show Wonderful Buying Public in District

$35,821,215.47 IS THE TOTAL INCOME TAX PAID

"Newspaper Advertising in L. A. District Brings Greater Returns Than Space Used in Other Sections, Is Due to Purchasing Citizens, Report Discloses," He Says

The Los Angeles district collected $35,821,215.47 in income tax during the fiscal year just closed.

"Figured on a per capita basis, this means that every man, woman and child in the Los Angeles district paid $25.15 to Uncle Sam in income taxes," said Collector of Internal Revenue Rex B. Goodsell last night.

"This is a record in income tax collections," continued Collector Goodsell, "and proves that the Los Angeles district is the home of a vast army of income-owning citizens, so large in fact as to seem to be out of proportion to the population. The fact that newspapers advertising in the Los Angeles district brings greater returns than is produced by space used in mediums in other sections of the country is due in a large measure to the wonderful buying public, the income tax report discloses."

"A total of 185,932 separate returns were filed. Of this number $2,554 were for net incomes under $5000; more than $5000 net income 16,987; corporations 6,277, and partnerships 7,843. The number of separate returns filed in 1922 was 47,926 greater than the total of 1921. This is further evidence of growth in income producing population."

"It must be borne in mind that the 1921 collection was made under a personal exemption of $2000 for married men with $200 for each dependent. This meant a loss of $20 tax on each married man and of $36 on each married man with two dependents. Figuring that 125,000 of the 171,012 personal returns were from married men with one dependent each, the reduction would be $28 each, entailing a total decrease in tax assessment of $3,500,000. Yet in the face of this immense shrinkage in revenue the Los Angeles collections virtually held their own."

"Ten thousand income tax investigations were made by the field force resulting in increased assessments in many cases. Experience shows that the small taxpayer stands in need of information regarding the income tax laws. The larger taxpayer can afford to hire an expert to make out his return but the salaried man often fails to take advantage of the full exemptions and reductions allowed, owing to the fact that he has not studied the revenue act. "The internal revenue department collected five billion dollars in the United States in 1921 at a cost of operation of about seven tenths of 1 percent."

'GRIM COMEDIAN' AT GLENDALE THEATRE

Goldwyn Production Arrives in City for Two Days' Run

Rita Weiman, the well known short story writer and playwright, has written her first original screen story. It is "The Grim Comedian" and has been produced by Goldwyn under the direction of Frank Lloyd. The picture will be shown at the Glendale theatre, for two days, beginning today. Miss Weiman is the author of "The Acquittal," a play that has met with the unqualified praise of dramatic critics, and had a long run on Broadway.

By a strange coincidence, the leading woman in Miss Weiman's screen story, Phoebe Hunt, is not only making her debut as a motion picture actress, but has also played the leading part in Miss Weiman's stage drama. The cast, selected by Goldwyn for this picture, consists of well known players. Gloria Hope plays an ingenue in a simple, naive manner; Jack Holt is a villain whom one cannot entirely hate; Bert Woodruff, an old stage doorman whom all the chorus girls love; and John Harron, brother of the late Bobbie Harron, is a young artist who rushes headlong into a love affair.

"I want you to clean my shop window," said Binks to Migins, the window cleaner. Do you think you can do it while I'm away for an hour or so?"

"Oh, yes; glad to do it," returned Migins. "And while Mr. Binks was out he set to work with a will. "Migins," said Mr. Binks, entering the shop and glancing at the cleaners work with approval, "You've done the job well. Why, there isn't a speck or a scratch to be seen on the whole pane. Here's your money and an extra quarter."

"I'm glad you're satisfied," murmured Migins, pocketing the money somewhat nervously. "Of course I am. Why, I can scarcely believe there is glass there at all, it looks so clear!" "Well, there ain't," said Migins, moving away rapidly. "Me and the ladder fell through the glass just after we started."

PARENTAL SARCASM Mr. and Mrs. Phelps had come to that all important part of naming their newborn baby. Mr. Phelps, who, by the way, detested work, and liked nothing better than to sit in front of the fire and watch other people do it, wanted the baby named plain Bill. Mrs. Phelps had different views. "I shall name the baby William Oliver Robert Kenneth," she asserted. "But why all those names?" asked the husband. "Because," replied Mrs. Phelps, bitterly, "if you look at the initials you will find that they spell 'W. O. R. K.', so perhaps when baby grows up he will take to it better than his father."—New Orleans States.

The Federal Reserve System does for banks exactly what banks do for their customers. It receives money on deposit from its members, and lends to them. All National banks, as well as many state banks and trust companies, are members of the Federal Reserve System.

Every member bank is obliged by law to keep with its Federal Reserve Bank an amount of money in proportion to the deposits of its customers. This is called a "reserve" and as the Federal Reserve Banks keep the reserves for their members they are called "reserve" banks.

Before the Federal Reserve System was incorporated, each individual bank stood virtually alone. This was sufficiently satisfactory while things went well in the business world. Even then, the banking machinery was cumbersome and often worked badly. In order to meet legal requirements and to pay depositors, all banks kept large amounts of gold and currency on hand, and most of them carried deposits with large city banks.

When banking conditions were disturbed and banks were anxious to increase the amount of cash on hand lest an unusual number of depositors should seek to withdraw, the city banks were least able to furnish cash. So each bank had to trust largely to its own cash resources, because the other banks could not give up much of their cash lest they impair their ability to meet the possible needs of their own customers. Each bank, seeking to protect itself, necessarily weakened the entire banking system.

Defenses were weakest when the need was greatest. The result was that every few years a money panic occurred, bringing disaster and depression. The organization of the Federal Reserve System permanently prevents a recurrence of these panics from which the country suffered.

Under the Federal Reserve System member banks automatically help one another—in good times and bad. This is the result of organization—the sort of organization

KERN GOVERNOR STEPHENS

So Reports Editor of Pioneer Newspaper of Bakersfield

Governor Stephens will carry Kern county by a larger majority than ever given any other candidate for a high office, is a statement made yesterday by A. W. Mason, editor of the Echo, the pioneer daily newspaper of Bakersfield. "The voters of Kern county," said Mr. Mason, "have come to look upon the re-election of Governor Stephens as a matter of course, and while most of them realize that he has an opponent, many do not even know who is running against him. So many people in the county have become well acquainted with him that he is regarded in the light of an old friend, and he belongs to Kern county just as much as he does to Sacramento or Los Angeles. There are many reasons for this. Whenever Governor Stephens comes to Kern county he makes a host of new acquaintances who immediately become new friends, and he never forgets the names or faces of the old friends whom he has made before, but for each one he has the same hearty handshake, a pleasant smile and a word of kindly greeting. He has the ability to make banks forget that they are conversing with the governor of the great state of California and they regard him as they would any other good true friend. If anything, the governor is just a little more cordial and just a little more friendly to the man in the ordinary walks of life or to the man who labors every day than he is toward the one who represents the larger business interests or who perhaps may be well upon the rounds of the political ladder. He simply radiates friendliness and good fellowship, and is always accepted as a member in good standing in any group of good citizens, whether it is made up of the youngsters or the grown-up men or women. Voters in Kern county have not forgotten their "war governor" and the efficient, business-like administration which he has given the state for the past six years.

"These are a few of the reasons why Kern county will do her part in returning him as their chief executive. "It had been planned to organize Stephen-for-Governor clubs in every large community, but it soon became apparent that the strong sentiment for Governor Stephens was universal and it seemed like a waste of time and energy to take the trouble to organize. In fact, Kern county is just one big Stephens-for-Governor club, and the members have but one thought in the matter of the governorship, and that is for the re-election of Governor Stephens. It is hard to estimate what his majority will be, but it will be well up into the thousands."

A young married woman, anxious to inform her girl friend of the arrival of her first child, decided to send a telegram. Being of a religious turn of mind she wrote: "For unto us a child is born. Isaiah ix, 6."

When the telegram was opened the girl ran to her mother and said: "Joan's got a baby, mother. His name's Isaiah and he weighs nine pounds six ounces."

10,000 WONDERS IN SIGNS FOR MOON BIG CIRCUS AT LOS ANGELES

Ten Times Greatest Ringling-Barnum-Bailey Show Due Sept. 11

Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey day draws near and with it will come a vast circus of "ten thousand wonders," to exhibit in Los Angeles Sept. 11, 12, 13 and 14. This mammoth amusement enterprise of 1922 has been officially recorded as "America's ten times greatest circus." It is a third bigger than it was in 1921. For, in addition to the many innovations of 1921, the present season's program numbers ten more trained wild-animal displays—making 20 in all—and the most superb trained horse acts that Europe has yet produced. The wild animal and equine displays of 1921 were introduced merely that the Ringling Brothers might judge of their popularity.

POWER OF FLATTERY
It was a soft and balmy spring night. The moon was at its zenith, casting a mellow radiance upon the greensward, as the ardent swain passionately declared his love. "Darling," he cried in tones of vibrant adoration, "I will lay my fortune beside your feet!" "Oh, but your fortune is not a very large one!" cooed the damsel. "No," he replied, slipping his arm round her waist, "but it will look large beside your tiny feet!" He won her.—London Tit-Bits.

Posters in Festival Colors Being Put Up Along Many Roads

TUJUNGA, Aug. 23.—Signs advertising the coming Moon festival of the Tujungans to be held September 1, 2, 3 and 4, are becoming apparent on all the roads leading into Tujungang for many miles around. Probably the most striking poster is one printed in the festival colors, red and green, on a yellow background, with an arrow in the center, pointing the way. These posters were printed by the Greeley print shop and are being put up on roads throughout Los Angeles county leading into Tujungang. A large steamer across Sunset boulevard points out the festival headquarters in the building just south of the Tujung Valley bank building. Here all the work of the festival is carried on, and the secretary is in charge daily. Committee meetings are being held in the headquarters, and an information bureau has been established there. Preparations are being made to care for an even larger crowd than was present at last year's festival, and plans are rapidly being perfected to accommodate everyone in attendance.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

He could tell you about planets and the orbits of the stars.
He knew about the milky way and of the clouds on Mars.
He could calculate the parallax of suns in distant space.
And he knew the depth of craters on the moon's benignant face.
He knew something about everything, a little or a lot.
He knew why some trees shed their leaves and other trees did not.
Yes, he had a lot of knowledge, more than I'd attempt to say.
But somehow he merely had it, and he couldn't make it pay.

He knew a lot of chemistry and physics and the things you'll find in many school-books; why the poison ivy stings;
The size of far-off glaciers and the height of mountain peaks,
And the geologic ages he could calculate in weeks.
He could rattle off statistics that were endless and abstruse,
And his head was crammed with knowledge that he found of little use.
When he came to make a living, and his pay check was quite small
Compared with many men's who knew scarce anything at all.

He could sit and entertain you with quite anything you'd wish;
The problem of creation or the habits of a fish;
He had such a lot of knowledge that it oozed right out of him,
The date of some old dynasty in ages past and dim,
The size of all the pyramids, the birthday of the Sphinx,
But when they educated him they marked him with a jinx.
They taught him almost everything in books on any shelf,
Except how to apply it to make something for himself.

HOW TO TELL WHEN CALIFORNIA HAS INVESTMENT IS GOOD-COTTON SPECULATION FUTURE

Few Simple Rules Are Set Forth for the Use of Investors

Because of the action of the California corporation commissioner in moving to restrain certain promoters in the interest of the public, there has arisen in many quarters a demand for the presentation of a few simple rules as to the difference between speculation and investment and the circumstances under which speculation offers a fair chance for profit. Speculation and investment are essentially different in character and in the type of person to whom they should appeal. Business investment consists primarily of the lending of funds to organized concerns which have proved that there is a market for their product, and which have shown from their operations that they are actually producing this at a cost which is leaving over a fair surplus out of which to pay interest on their borrowings, and to eventually pay back the principal. Even in the case of government securities, the principles are much the same, for in the case of government securities the wealth of the community, the standing of the issuing political organization and its taxing power provide the means for safety of return. In other words, the guiding principle in investment is safety of income and principal. On the other hand, the guiding principle is chance of large returns sufficient to justify the taking of the chance that the funds themselves may eventually be lost. There is a very real place for speculation in any developing community, because it is through speculation that new industries are developed. However, it is detrimental to the economic good of a territory to have those who cannot afford to lose their money enter into speculation, because the chance of loss is always very real in any kind of speculation. Normally, speculation is advisable only for those of independent means, who are in a position where the loss of funds will not mean a hardship for the speculator. As a general proposition, any speculation which attempts to draw upon the funds of those who cannot comfortably lose their money has a very definite element of danger, because such appeals are generally made by those who could not induce those in a position to speculate to trust their money with the operators. In many cases such speculative activities are not even honestly conceived. In the case of speculation chance always exists, no matter how honest and efficient the concern using the money may be. As a consequence, a speculator should be absolutely sure of the honesty and integrity of those using these funds, so that he may get at least a fair chance to secure the return of his principal plus profits. It is true that it is almost exclusively the speculative enterprise that offers the lure of large profits, but practically all accurate information available tends to prove that the man who steadily invests his surplus funds in good investments eventually has more money than the man who speculates with his surplus even when the speculations are all of them honestly

WHAT TO DO IN AUGUST
In the Flower Garden
August usually finds our gardens crying for water more than any other month of the year, and quite likely homecoming vacationists will find their services with the hose and sprinkler necessary rather than a planting guide. Laws often are planted this month with much success. If you find your yard looking rather "down at the heel," level it, and plant a lawn. I advise a mixture of Dutch clover and blue grass. This mixture seems to resist the Bermuda grass a little better than the straight blue grass. A pound of seed will sow about 250 square feet. After sowing keep the ground constantly wet until the grass makes a good showing; then keep it moist. August is an excellent month to start fall shrubs for backgrounds and screens. Little shrub plants will grow almost as much from August until spring as they would have grown had they been planted in April or May. I have heard some gardeners say that August was a second April. Perhaps it is, when one considers the number of plants to sow and transplant this month. However, I shall leave the climatic similarity for discussion among our readers who dwell in the interior valleys. All seedlings that are an inch or more high should be set out in August, with the exception of the tender and half-hardy plants. These should be transplanted, but should be supplied with ample protection against Old Sol's hottest rays. Seeds that may be sown this month in the milder sections are the verbena, columbine, petunia, calendula, primula, Canterbury bells, pink, lobelia, cosmos and pansy. Sow in flats, unless your situation is ideal for seedlings. It is too late for early bulbs and too early for fall bulbs, but those bulbs which are blooming should be fed and watered well. A mulch of well-rotted manure, with thorough watering, will provide the necessities with a minimum of labor.

SHERIFF TRAEGER WINS APPROVAL

Candidate Makes Final Statement to the Voting Public

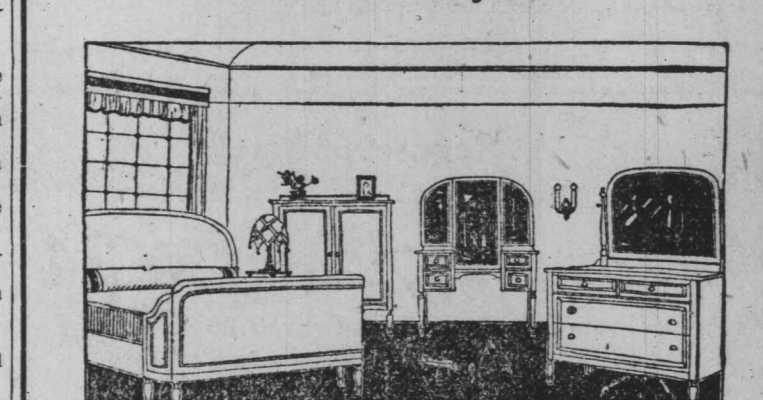

Ramona parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, in a set of resolutions, has expressed approval of the manner in which deputies operating under the direction of Sheriff Traeger recently disposed of a band of bad men who had terrorized the city. Say the Native Sons:
"Whereas, on the night of August 9, three bandits were trapped and killed and one captured, while attempting a robbery within the city of Los Angeles; and
"Whereas, in the death and capture of said bandits, signal service has been rendered the city, county and state;
"Resolved, that Ramona parlor, No. 109, Native Sons of the Golden West, commends the action of W. I. Traeger, sheriff of Los Angeles county, and his deputies, for the courage displayed and for their heroic and successful efforts in bringing to account the desperate gang."
Coincident with the approach of the primary election next Tuesday, Sheriff Wm. I. Traeger, candidate for the office which he now holds, issued a statement this week to the voters of the county. Sheriff Traeger's statement follows:
"While I have during the past few weeks visited as many localities in Los Angeles county as my time out of office hours would permit, there may be some places which have been overlooked. If so, I deeply regret that I have not had the opportunity personally to meet and talk with my many friends.
"During the time I have been in the sheriff's office I feel that I can point with pride to my administration, to constructive policies adopted, and humanitarian measures put into practice.
"I have endeavored, always with the law in mind, to give a fair and impartial hearing to the innumerable number of people who have occasion to call at the sheriff's office. I have emphasized to the deputies that courtesy shall be the
