Last week, Supervisor Geo. W Moore brought up a matter before the supervisors that is of interest to people along the Santa Ana river. The district attorney was asked to render an opinion as to whether the county has the right to construct dikes along the river for the protection of roads. The Von Shirltz 'dike has turned the water to the west, and it is Supervisor Moore's desire to protect the roads.

J. J. Pyle was given a judgment in the superior court last week, which reversed the decision of the justice court at Wintersburg.

For hours, it seemed, he had been sitting before the hard board table in the mountain abode of Drant and Cut-Deep Rawls, with his head resting in his open palm. He had been staring blankly at the rough wood that served as a table top, and his fingers had drummed nervously against his forehead. Now, as he raised his head and a breath of cool air swept through the brushed back his ruffled black hair, and strode out to the trail. ed aimlessly down the trail, without raising his eyes. Suddenly, he start-ed at the sound of a voice. He looked up and glared with an expression mingled with fear and astonishment. Not fifteen feet away, seated upon two horses, were the two he had thought dead-burned to death in the hacienda of Don Carlos de Cordoba! His first impulse was to turn and run, but the futility of that occurred to him almost as quickly as the thought. He forced a smile and regained his bearing. In a moment he was again the that had borne successfully the re-sponsibility of the Central Powers ipon his shoulders Gwyn dismounted and approached "I'll trouble you to come with me, he said calmly. "I could cause your immediate arrest and conviction on the charge of attempted murder, but have better use for you."

Von Bleck made no reply. He turned and followed quietly as Gwyn again mounted and rode slowly along the trail in the direction from which he had just come. Nan walked her horse behind, so that the agent of the Central Powers was between her and Gwyn.

For several minutes they travelled thus, until Gwyn finally drew to a halt beside a clearing. A barn, dilapidated and dirty, stood a few feet in from the road. Into this Gwyn led
