Overview

Established goals

1 Toolkit

Localization in 2+ languages

3 countries

Increase in # of teachers that use Wikipedia in the classroom

What happened

During 2020, we worked with 3 affiliates in countries with diverse linguistic, cultural and educational contexts to produce, contextualize, and translate a 3 module teacher's guide and training program that we delivered to teachers in Bolivia, Morocco and the Philippines.

Reading Wikipedia in the Classroom

- 9-week professional development program for secondary school teachers
- Teachers learn how to use Wikipedia critically and strengthen their media and information literacy skills

Teacher's guides: 3 modules aligned with UNESCO's Media and Information Literacy framework

Available on Wikimedia Commons:
Category:Reading_Wikipedia_in_the_classroom

Training sessions: equivalent to 7.5 hours, facilitated by local coordinators, guest speakers from Wikimedia communities

The image shows a Facebook live stream interface. On the left is a video player with a black background and white text. The text reads: "UPSKILLING TEACHERS' MEDIA AND INFORMATION LITERACY IN READING WIKIPEDIA IN THE CLASSROOM: MODULE 2 'EVALUATING INFORMATION'". Below the text is a yellow banner with a red "LIVE" icon and the text "DepEd - SDO Pasay City" and "DepEd Tayo - Division of Pasay City". A white box with a blue border shows the date and time: "2020 NOV 7 1:00 - 4:00 PM". The right side of the interface shows the Facebook post header for "DepEd Tayo - Division of Pasay City" with the title "UPSKILLING TEACHERS' MEDIA AND INFORMATION LITERACY IN...". Below the header are engagement icons (Like, Comment, Share) and a "Comments" section with several user comments and replies.

Affiliate partners describe the experience as being enriching, engaging, revolutionary, and inspirational while also teaching them to become more resilient. Wikimedistas de Bolivia has launched a second edition!

I liked the fact that the answers of all the module's questions were shared publicly on the Facebook group, I learned a lot from other teacher's perspectives and answers.

The team was very professional while communicating with us, both during the live sessions and also in the facebook post activities. What I found really helpful was the quick answers and continuous support through Facebook and messenger

“I was inspired by Wikipedia’s core content policies. I taught them to my students so they can verify online information and adopt critical thinking toward the information.”

Training of Trainers 2021

25 certified trainers are able to adapt & implement the Reading Wikipedia in the Classroom program in their local contexts to help teachers integrate Wikipedia as a pedagogical tool.

Localize the program curriculum and assets to respond to pertinent national and local education context, main local language(s) and guidelines from relevant Wikipedia language communities.

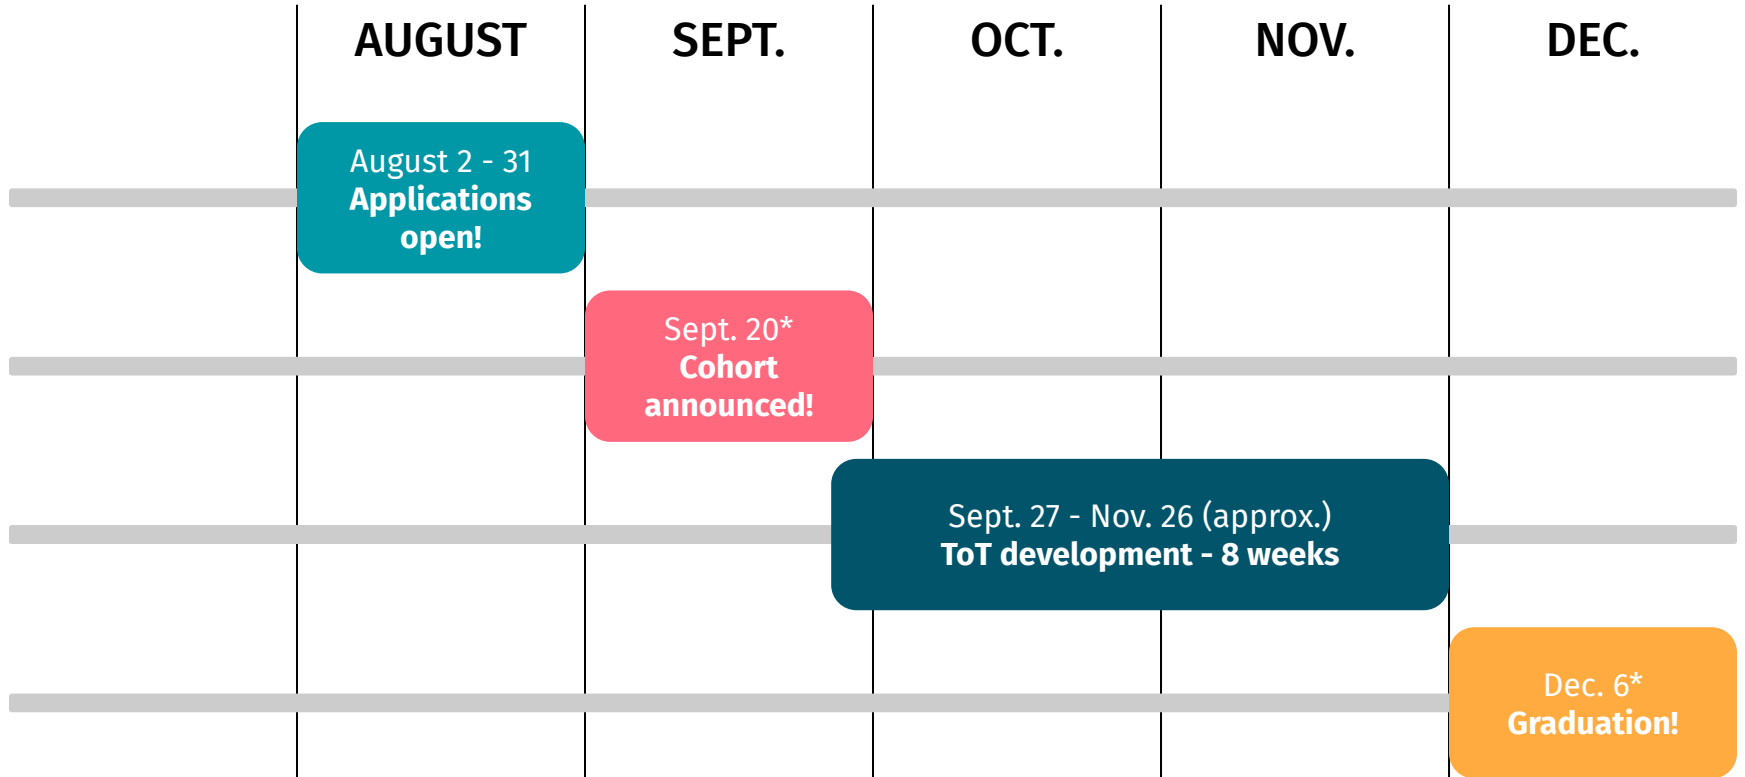

Create a program plan including: needs assessment, outreach and partnership strategies, budget, and monitoring and evaluation strategies.

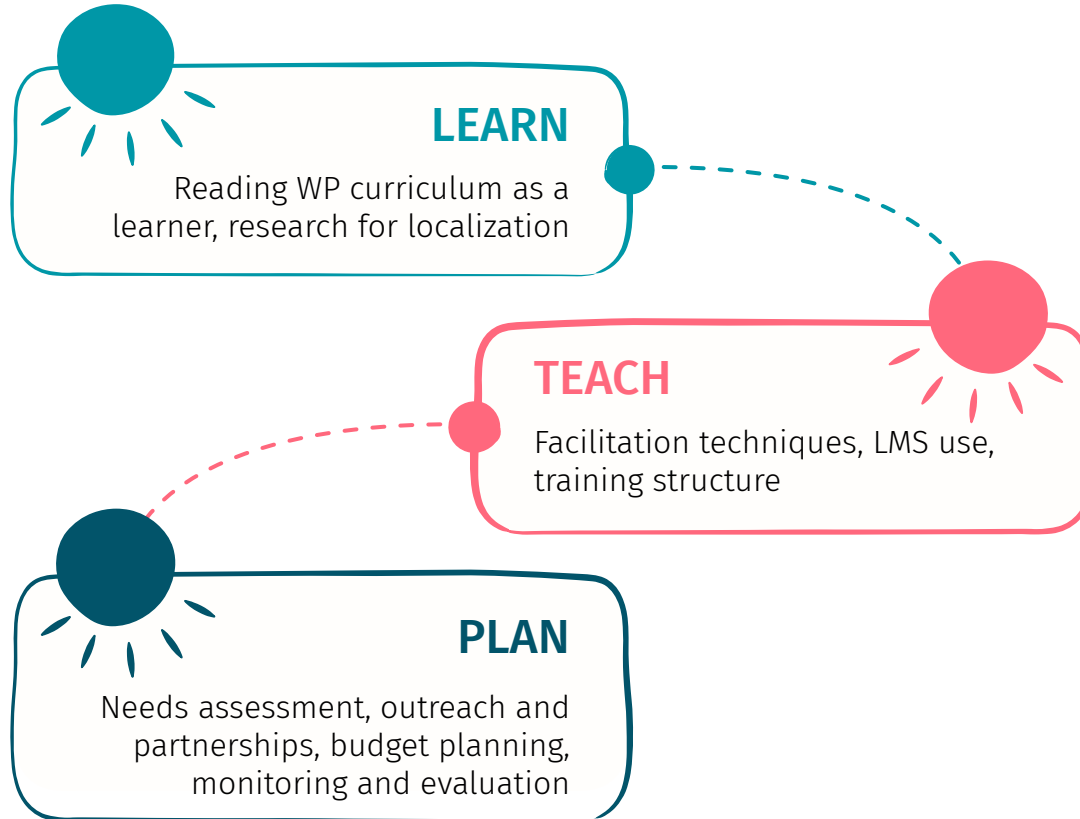

Identify online and offline spaces and methodologies that facilitate an engaging program - focused on the learners' context, opportunities and constraints.
