Large tracts of land have been purchased in Hungary by the Jews, who are beginning to apply themselves assiduously to agriculture.

It is stated in some of the German journals that Hayman's visit to London was for the express purpose of testing the state of public feeling towards him.

On Monday last a swarm of flies infested the atmosphere at Liscard, near Devenport. They extended eight miles to the east and about sixteen to the west.

Accounts from Berlin, of the 2d inst., state that the King of Prussia had announced his determination to make no further concessions of any description to Austria.

A new telescope star, between the polar star and Cynosure, has just been discovered by M. Goulieny Colomardia.

The London and Paris journals have been filled with descriptions of the visit of the French President to Cherbourg, where, with the exception of a very decided demonstration of ultra republicanism on the part of the National Guards, his reception was generally respectful.

There is a rumor that the President will proceed to Bordeaux, upon a visit, taking all the great towns on the journey in his way. He was popular in his liberality at Cherbourg and wherever were left untied to buy golden opinions from all classes of persons with whom he came in contact. This appears to have excited favorable comparisons between Louis Napoleon and the late ex King.

There have been some serious disturbances south of Lyons, in the department of La Drome, and Gen. Castellan has acted with a civil vigor in suppressing them.
