TO THE HONOURABLE

LEWIS THOMAS WATSON, PR 5225

OF

LEES COURT, IN THE COUNTY OF KENT.

SIR,

CCEPT this small testimony of respect and esteem. To every individual of our island the state of its first inhabitants forms a fubject of curious and useful enquiry. Such an investigation must be more particularly interesting to you, Sir, from your intimate connection with a County, which through its unfubmitting spirit of patriotism ennobled the early annals of Britain by enforcing conditions of peace on a victorious Invader; and in a remoter period, among our Aboriginal Forefathers, commenced the illustrious career of national intrepidity and prowefs by repelling Julius from our fhores.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your faithful and most obedient Servant,

GEORGE RICHARDS.

THE ARGUMENT.

DDRESS to the first Navigators of the South-Seas—Wild ftate of the country—contrasted with Italy as improved by culture— Aboriginal Britons confidered as individuals—the Man—the Woman— Confidered as to their national character—Their domeftic ftate—promifcuous concubinage—ignorance of other countries—defcription of a day in time of peace, including the most ftriking circumstances of their domestic economy—Their wars—fondness for war—internal differitions and their confequences—manner of fighting—behaviour after a defeat—treatment of captives after a victory—Religion—the objects, which give rife to natural religion—Druid Grove—Magic rites, and human facrifices— Bards—Doctrines—Transmigration and immortality of the foul and its effects—Characteristics of Liberty in the favage state of this island—its extinction in the early stages of our Monarchy—its revival and influence in the prefent civilized state of manners, as producing public fecurity, giving rife to public works, and calling forth the powers of the mind.

ТНЕ

ABORIGINAL BRITONS.

Y E fons of Albion, who with venturous fails In unknown oceans caught Antarctic gales; Dar'd with bold prow the boifterous main explore, Where never keel had plow'd the wave before; Saw ftars unnam'd illumine other fkies, Which ne'er had fhone on European eyes; View'd on the coaft the wondering Savage ftand, Uncouth, and frefh from his Creator's hand; While woods and tangling brakes, where wild he ran, Bore a rough femblance of primeval man—

A form

[10]

A form like this, illuftrious fouls, of yore Your own Britannia's fea-girt island wore: Ere Danish lances blush'd with Ælla's blood; Or blue-ey'd Saxons fail'd on Medway's flood; Or Dover's towering cliff from high defcried Cæfar's bold barks, which stemm'd a deep untried.

Through fleecy clouds the balmy fpring-tide fmil'd; But all it's fweets were wafted on a wild : In vain mild autumn fhone with mellowing gleam; No bending fruitage blush'd beneath its beam. Rudely o'erfpread with fhadowy forefts lay Wide trackless wastes, that never faw the day: Rich fruitful plains, now waving deep with corn, Frown'd rough and fhaggy with the tangled thorn : Through joylefs heaths, and valleys dark with woods, Majestic rivers roll'd their useles floods : Full oft the hunter check'd his ardent chace, Dreading the latent bog and green morafs: While, like a blafting mildew, wide were fpread Blue thickening mists in stagnant marshes bred.

0'er

[11]

O'er fcenes thus wild adventurous Cæfar ftray'd, And joylefs view'd the conquefts he had made; And blefs'd Italia's happier plains and fkies, Through pureft air where yellow olives rife; From elm to elm where ftretching tendrils twine, Bending with clufters of the purple vine: While, fpread o'er funny hill and verdant wood, Stray the white flocks, which drink Clitumnus' flood.

Rude as the wilds around his fylvan home In favage grandeur fee the Briton roam. Bare were his limbs, and ftrung with toil and cold, By untam'd nature caft in giant-mould. O'er his broad brawny fhoulders loofely flung Shaggy and long his yellow ringlets hung. His waift an iron-belted falchion bore, Maffy, and purpled deep with human gore : His fcarr'd and rudely-painted limbs around Fantaftic horror-ftriking figures frown'd, Which, monfter-like, ev'n to the confines ran Of nature's work, and left him hardly man.

His

[12]

His knitted brows and rolling eyes impart A direful image of his ruthlefs heart; Where war and human blood-fhed brooding lie, Like thunders lowering in a gloomy fky.

But you, illustrious Fair Ones, wont to brave Helvellin's ftorms, and fport in Darwent's wave, To your high worth fubmifs the favage flood, As Gambia's lions reverence princely blood. He made no rubied lip nor fparkling eye The fhrine and god of his idolatry; But, proudly bending to a just controul, Bow'd in obeifance to the female foul ; And deem'd, some effluence of the Omniscient mind In woman's beauteous image lay enfhrin'd; With infpiration on her bofom hung, And flow'd in heavenly wifdom from her tongue. Fam'd among warrior-chiefs the crown fhe wore; At freedom's call the gory falchion bore; Rul'd the triumphant car; and rank'd in fame Bonduca's with Caractacus's name.

No

No tender virgin heard the impaffion'd youth Breathe his warm vows, and fwear eternal truth: No fire, encircled by a blooming race, View'd his own features in his infant's face: The favage knew not wedlock's chafter rite; The torch of Hymen pour'd a common light; As paffion fir'd, the lawlefs pair were blefs'd; And babes unfather'd hung upon the breaft.

Such was the race, who drank the light of day, When loft in weftern waves Britannia lay. Content they wander'd o'er their heaths and moors, Nor thought, that ocean roll'd round other fhores. Viewing the fires, that blaz'd around their fkies, Mid the wide world of waters fet and rife: They vainly deem'd, the twinkling orbs of light For them alone illum'd the vault of night; For them alone the golden lamp of day Held its bright progrefs through the heav'n's high way.

When the chill breeze of morning overhead Wav'd the dark boughs, that roof'd his fylvan bed,

Up

Up the light Briton fprung—to chace the deer Through Humber's vales, or heathy Cheviot drear. Languid at noon his fainting limbs he caft -On the warm bank, and fought his coarfe repast. With acorns, shaken from the neighbouring oak, Or fapless bark, that from the trunk he broke, His meal he made; and in the cavern'd dell Drank the hoarfe wave, that down the rough rocks fell. At eve retracing flow his morning road With wearied feet he gain'd his wild abode. No city rofe with fpires and turrets crown'd; No iron war from rocky ramparts frown'd: But plain and fimple, in the fhadowy wood, The shapeless rude-constructed hamlets stood : O'er the deep trench an earthy mound arofe, To guard the fylvan town from beafts and foes. The crackling fire, beneath the hawthorn shade, With chearful blaze illum'd the darkfome glade. Oftimes beneath the sheltering oak was spread With leaves and spoils of beasts the rustic bed : In open fky he refts his head, and fees The flars, that twinkle through the waving trees.

On

On his bare breaft the chilling dews defcend; His yellow locks the midnight tempefts rend; Around—the empty wolf in hunger prowls, And fhakes the lonely foreft with his howls : Yet health and toil weigh down the fenfe, and fteep His wearied aching limbs in balmy fleep; Till the pale twilight opes the glimmering glades, And flowly gains upon the mid-wood fhades.

But ah! unwelcome rofe the peaceful morn On Albion's fons, for war and glory born.

Lo! how Britannia's woods and hills refound With martial yells, and blaze with arms around! War is their fport: at day-fpring forth they go With fpear and fhield, and find or make a foe: Join the wild fight; and with the fetting fun Bear home their plunder, and the war is done. Twixt bordering tribes eternal difcords reign'd; Not foreign foes thefe native feuds reftrain'd : Elfe nurs'd in arms, and prodigal of breath, And, reft of freedom, nobly wooing death,

Had

Had Albion's warlike flates united pour'd The god-like vengeance of the patriot fword ; Julius had fleer'd with daring helm in vain To ifles embofom'd in the Atlantic main ; Nor Rome's imperial eagle, borne on high, Had fpread her pinions in our Northern fky.

Furious, as mountain beafts, the tribes engage, With yells, and clanging arms, and frantic rage. Rapid the Briton hurls the bolts of war, Mounted, like Fate, upon his feythed car! Refiftlefs feours the plain, and burfts the files, As mad Tornadoes fweep the Indian ifles ; The feythes and hooks with mangled limbs hung round, Yet quick, and writhing ghaftly with the wound : Adown the madding wheels in torrents pour The empurpled fmoaking ftreams of human gore : While high in air the fighs and fhrieks and groans Afcend, one direful peal of mortal moans. Pale, panic-ftruck, and fix'd as in a trance, The Romans ftood, and drop'd the ufelefs lance :

And

[17]

And fear'd, their venturous banners were unfurl'd Beyond the confines of the mortal world; And more than men, horrific in their might, Dar'd them from Albion's cliffs to fatal fight.

Thus fought Britannia's fons :- but when o'erthrown, More keen and fierce the flame of freedom fhone. Ye woods, whofe cold and lengthen'd tracts of fhade Rofe on the day, when fun and stars were made; Waves of Lodore, that from the mountain's brow Tumble your flood, and fhake the vale below; Majeftic Skiddaw, round whofe trackless fteep Mid the bright fun-fhine darkfome tempefts fweep: To you the patriot fled : his native land He fpurn'd, when proffer'd by a conqueror's hand : In you to roam at large : to lay his head On the bleak rock, unclad, unhous'd, unfed : Hid in the aguifh fen whole days to reft, The numbing waters gather'd round his breaft: To fee Defpondence cloud each rifing morn, And dark Despair hang o'er the years unborn:

Yet here, ev'n here, he greatly dar'd to lie, And drain the luscious dregs of liberty; Outcast of nature, fainting, wasted, wan, To breathe an air his own, and live a Man.

But when with conqueft crown'd, he taught his foes, What free-born man on free-born man beftows. He, in the pride and infolence of war, Ne'er bound the indignant captive to his car; Nor with ignoble toils or fervile chains Debas'd the blood, that fwells the hero's veins; Nor meanly barter'd for unworthy gold The foul, that animates the human mould : But reverenc'd kindred valour, though o'erthrown; Difdain'd to hear a warrior meanly moan; Gave him to die; and by the generous blow Reftor'd that freedom he had loft below.

For fimple nature taught his foul to rife . To nobler powers, and realms beyond the fkies.

Though to his view the Almighty Voice had ne'er Stay'd the proud fun amid his bright career ;

Pour'd

[19]

Pour'd from the flinty rock the cryftal ftream; Or fhed on fightlefs cyes the gladfome beam; Bad the deep waters of the main divide, And ope an highway through the pathlefs tide; Or ftiffen'd corfes, cold and pale in death, Blufh with new life, and heave again with breath ! Yet gazing round him he beheld the God Hold in all nature's works his dread abode : He faw him beaming in the filver moon, Effulgent burning in the blaze of noon, On the dark bofom of the ftorm reclin'd, Speaking in thunder, riding on the wind, And, 'mid the earthquake's awful riot hurl'd, Shaking the deep foundations of the world.

Hence Superfition fprung in elder time, Wild as the foil, and gloomy as the clime.

Midft rocks and waftes the Grove tremendous rofe : O'er the rude altars hung in dread repofe A twilight pale; like the dim fickly noon, When the mid-fun retires behind the moon.

From

From founding caverns rufh'd the darkfome flood; Each antique trunk was flain'd with human blood. 'Twas fung, that birds in terror fled the fhade; That lightnings harmlefs round the branches play'd; And, in the hour of fate, the Central Oak Shook with the fpirit of the god, and fpoke. The Roman check'd awhile his conquering band, And dropt the imperial Eagle from his hand; And feem'd, while fhuddering borne through Mona's wood, To tread the confines of the Stygian flood.

What direful rites thefe gloomy haunts difgrace, Bane of the mind, and fhame of man's high race! 'Twas deem'd, the circles of the waving wand, The myftic figures, and the muttering band, Held o'er all nature's works as powerful fway, As the great Lord and Maker of the day. Rocks, by infernal fpells and magic prayer, Shook from their bafe, and trembled high in air. The blafted ftars their fading light withdrew; The labouring moon fhed down a baleful dew;

Spirits

Spirits of hell aerial dances led; And rifted graves gave up the pale cold dead. Imperial Man, creation's Lord and Pride, To crown the facrificial horrors, died : That Hefus, direly pleas'd, in joyous mood, Might flefh their fwords, and glut their fcythes with blood; And Taranis, amidft his tempefts, fmile, And roll innocuous thunders o'er their ifle.

By rites thus dread the Druid Priefts impress'd. A facred horror on the favage breaft.

7

Hail heav'n-born Seers, whofe magic fingers ftrung The Cambrian lyre; who Locrine's triumphs fung To the dark haunts of Snowdon's icy caves, Plinlimmon's cliffs, and Deva's haunted waves; Or where, as Vaga roll'd her winding flood, High on the grey rocks wav'd the hanging wood. Ye, wandering frequent by romantic ftreams, With harps, that glitter'd to the moon's pale beams, Sooth'd by your midnight hymns the warrior's ghoft, Whofe cold bones whiten'd Arvon's dreary coaft.

Ye

Ye fung the courses of the wandering moon ; The fun-beam darken'd in the blaze of noon; The ftars unerring in their glittering fpheres; The fure procession of the circling years; And the dread Powers, that rule the world on high, And hold celeftial fynods in the fky. When hoftile nations met with barbarous clang, And the wild heath with yelling fquadrons rang; When beams of light from ferried lances ftream'd, And vivid flashes o'er the high heavens gleam'd : Fir'd by your magic fongs, the Briton pour'd A tenfold fury; dar'd the uplifted fword; Envy'd the shades of chiefs in battle slain ; And burn'd to join them on the etherial plain. For warrior Souls, ye fung, would deathlefs bloom, When the cold limbs lay mouldering in the tomb : From the pale stiffning corfes wing their slight, And rife in kindred mould to life and light; Again in arms fill the dire yell of war; Again to havoc drive the fcythed car, Till earth and air and feas fhould fink in flame, The fiery deluge melting nature's frame :

When,

When, amidft blazing orbs, the warrior-foul,
Borne through the milky way and ftarry pole,
Would painlefs tenant through eternal years
Manfions of pureft blifs in brighter fpheres:
In martial fports engage its kindred fhades,
Tame the wild fteeds, and brandifh gleaming blades:
Or on the clouds reclin'd, with breaft on fire,
Lift the heroic ftrains of Cadwall's lyre;
In Mador's verfe renew its mortal toils ;
And fhine through Hoel's fongs in hoftile fpoils.

In Albion's ancient days, midft northern fnows, Hardy and bold, immortal FREEDOM rofe. She roam'd the founding margin of the deep, Conway's wild bank, and Cader's craggy fteep : A bloody wolf-fkin o'er her back was fpread; An axe fhe bore ; and wild weeds grac'd her head. On Snowdon's cliffs reclin'd fhe watch'd on high. The tempeft-driven clouds, that crofs'd the fky; Or caught with liftening ear the founding gale, When the dread war-fong fhook the diftant dale.

[24]

At battle's clofe fhe roam'd the enfanguin'd plain, And gaz'd the threatening afpects of the flain. Now from ignoble floth fhe rarely rofe, For favage freedom finks to mute repofe; Now to wild joys, and the bowl's maddening powers Gave up the torpid fenfe and liftlefs hours; Now joyful faw the naked fword difplay'd, Though brother's blood flow'd reeking from the blade. By tyrants funk fhe rofe more proudly great, As ocean fwells indignant in the ftrait; And, borne in chains from Cambria's mountains bleak, Rais'd virtue's generous blufh on Cæfar's cheek.

But ah ! full many a dark and ftormy year She dropt o'er Albion's ifle the patriot tear. Retir'd to mountains from the craggy dell She caught the Norman curfeu's tyrant knell : Sad to her view the baron's caftle frown'd Bold from the fteep, and aw'd the plains around : She forrowing heard the papal thunders roll, And mourn'd the ignoble bondage of the foul :

She

She blufh'd, O Cromwell, blufh'd at Charles's doom; And wept, mifguided Sidney, o'er thy tomb.

But now reviv'd she boasts a purer cause, Refin'd by science, form'd by generous laws : High hangs her helmet in the banner'd hall, Nor founds her clarion but at honor's call. Now walks the land with olive chaplets crown'd, Exalting worth, and beaming fafety round : With fecret joy and confcious pride admires The patriot fpirit, which herfelf infpires : Sees barren waftes with unknown fruitage bloom; Sees Labour bending patient o'er the loom; Sees Science rove through academic bowers; And peopled Cities lift their fpiry towers : Trade fwells her fails, wherever ocean rolls, Glows at the line, and freezes at the poles: While through unwater'd plains and wondering meads Waves not its own the obedient River leads.

But chief the god-like Mind, which bears impress'd Its Maker's glorious image full confest;

Nobleft

[26]

Nobleft of works created; more divine, Than all the ftarry worlds, that nightly fhine; Form'd to live on, unconfcious of decay, When the wide univerfe fhall melt away: The Mind, which, hid in favage breafts of yore, Lay, like Golconda's gems, an ufelefs ore; Now greatly dares fublimeft aims to fcan; Enriches fcience, and ennobles man; Unveils the femblance, which it's God beftow'd; And draws more near the fount, from whence it flow'd.
