ASHUTOSH SHARMA

Ashutosh Sharma (February 1990) is an Indian film producer, and co-founder of Padmaja Productions.

EARLY LIFE:

Ashutosh was born in February 1990 to a Hindu family in Chandigarh, India. His father, Suresh Sharma, is a government employee and his mother, Tripta Sharma, is principal of a school in Chandigarh. He has one younger sibling who lives in Australia.

Sharma completed his formal education from Manav Mangal School, Panchkula. He holds a Master of Computer Applications degree from Chitkara University. He worked for IBM, a renowned multinational company, before pursuing his career in films.

Ashutosh also served as a Cultural Head in his college. He has been a profound art lover since his childhood, which is why he always wanted to pursue his career in films and the entertainment industry.

FILMOGRAPHY:

Ashutosh has been working in Bollywood for 8 years now. He has co-produced Nakkash, which was premiered at DCSAFF (Washington DC South Asian Film Festival) and Singapore South Asian International Film Festival.

First poster of Nakkash was unveiled in the Indian Pavilion at the prestigious Cannes Film Festival in 2018. It received positive reviews from the audience and critics where they mentioned that the film ticks all the boxes of a progressive and offbeat movie.