The minutes of the 125th meeting were unanimously approved.

ITEM 2 - DIVISION OF REPARATIONS SHARES, C1-244/1, C1-219/13, /20, /21, FEC-219/7

The U. K. Member said that he was prepared to amplify his statement at the previous meeting of the Committee concerning his Government's position on negotiation of division of shares. He said that his purpose was not to raise any particular concrete problems at this time but rather to call attention to the kind of concrete problems which the Committee must face if it is to make any progress. A verbatim record of the U. K. Member's statement follows:

MR. THRESHER: The Commission's policy on Division of Reparations Shares (FEC-219/7) lays it down that the "shares of particular countries in the total sum of the reparations from Japan shall be determined on a broad political basis, taking into due account the scope of material and human destruction and damage suffered by each claimant country as a result of the preparations and execution of Japanese aggression, and taking also into due account each country's contribution to the cause of the defeat of Japan, including the extent and duration of its resistance to Japanese aggression".

This policy speaks of shares in the total sum of the reparations from Japan. At the present time this Committee does not have under consideration the fixing of shares in the total sum of the reparations from Japan.

-1- Min. - Com. No. 1 - 126th Mtg.

17 September 1947

FEC-RESTRICTED

It is concerned with the problem of deciding appropriate shares of the industrial assets from within Japan.

The total sum of the reparations from Japan includes the Japanese overseas assets which countries already have in their possession. Therefore, in endeavouring to arrive at appropriate shares of the industrial assets from within Japan, the only method that appears reasonable is to start from a consideration of the appropriate division of the total sum of reparations - on a broad political basis, as laid down in the Commission's policy - and then adjust for the difference in holdings of Japanese overseas assets.

It has been suggested in this Committee that the available data on the relative values of internal and external assets is too scanty and unreliable for the purpose. I should like to mention in passing that the United Kingdom delegation has, on the one hand, pressed strongly throughout for a decision on industrial levels, which would make it possible to estimate with reasonable accuracy the value of reparations assets from within Japan; and, on the other hand, has repeatedly invited the countries represented here to produce information about holdings of Japanese overseas assets.

Even if we agree that the available data is not as good as could be wished for, it seems undeniable that, in endeavouring to arrive at appropriate shares of industrial assets from within Japan, some estimate of the relation between those assets and holdings of overseas assets must in fact be made. Such an estimate has been made by my Government and I assume that it is not alone in having done so.

It is not my intention to give here any details of the estimate which my Government has made, since it is the view of my delegation that an essential pre-requisite to so doing is the agreement of the Committee that other members will produce information on the subject at the same time and be willing to discuss the question. I wish only to say now that my government has studied this matter further since the United Kingdom representative made his statement on 7th July. This further study strongly confirms the general conclusion then presented. A realistic view of the value of the reparations which are likely to be obtained from within Japan leads inevitably to the conclusion that they will be worth substantially less than the holdings of overseas assets, even when every allowance has been made for the nature of these assets and the way in which some of them were acquired by the Japanese. Our estimate of the distribution of these holdings has already been stated in general terms and need not be repeated.

The foregoing remarks and those previously made by the United Kingdom representative about external assets are designed in part to give a general explanation of why the percentage for China in the United Kingdom schedule is lower than those presented by other members. I should now like to make some additional remarks about the other percentage in the United Kingdom schedule which differs markedly from those submitted by other members, viz. that for the United Kingdom itself. The United Kingdom claim, it should be once again pointed out, is on behalf of the United Kingdom, Burma, Malaya, Borneo, etc. It is difficult to believe, when looking at the schedules submitted by other members that full account has been taken of this fact.

At this time I wish to put forward only a single illustration of this point. In doing so, I shall refer to the share proposed for the Philippines and I should like to ask the indulgence of my Philippine colleague in this connection. I assure him that I have no intention of belittling the claim of the Philippines to reparations from Japan and that I take this particular example only to make my point clear.

There is a fairly close parallel between the situation of the Philippines and that of Burma. The two countries have roughly the same population, though the area of Burma is considerably larger. Both were attacked and occupied by the Japanese in the early part of the war. Both were devastated and looted during the course of the occupation. Both were subsequently the scene of severe fighting during the course of allied re-occupation.

The claim of Burma taken alone seems therefore as good a one as that of the Philippines. The same could well be said of that of the other British Far Eastern territories concerned, if they were to be considered as a separate entity. The United Kingdom itself is a claimant principally in respect of war effort, which was a very substantial one.

The schedules presented by other members of the Committee seem to take insufficient account of these facts. The schedule of the Philippine Government proposes over twice as much for the Philippines as for the United Kingdom. That of the Soviet Government proposes 2% more for the Philippines than for the United Kingdom. These are extreme cases. Even the schedule presented by the United States Government, however, which I feel sure has been most carefully weighed assigns only 2% more to the United Kingdom than to the Philippines.

The foregoing is stated, let me repeat, only by way of illustration, and with the desire to stimulate discussion of the underlying problems which face this Committee.

It is my personal conviction that until we face these problems squarely and proceed to discuss them no real progress can be made.

The Chinese Member, commenting on the U. K. Member's statement, recalled that his delegation had many times gone on record as being prepared to discuss the question of Japanese external assets. It was the position of his delegation, however, that before this subject could be discussed it was necessary to decide how it was to be discussed. The Chinese delegation's position was that the question of external assets should be discussed on a global basis. In answer to a query by the Netherlands Member, the Chinese Member said that it was not possible to discuss Japanese external assets intelligently unless it was possible to discuss such assets wherever they may exist in the world. This was what he meant by "a global basis" for the discussion of this subject. Such a discussion would include, he said, Japanese external assets in neutral countries. He said he would welcome some indication from the U. K. Member as to how he thought this question should be discussed.

The U. K. Member said that he was not suggesting any particular method of discussing external assets except that it should be discussed in connection with what the Committee was trying to do, namely, negotiate division of shares of industrial assets from within Japan. He would imagine that other Governments besides his own had made some estimate of external assets in computing the percentages assigned to countries in their schedules of reparations shares, and if such estimates had been made it might be useful to discuss them in the Committee. His Government's position had been that external assets should be discussed in the Commission but it was also possible that some useful discussion could take place in the Committee.

The Chinese Member said that there was nothing that he could recall in the policy adopted by the FEC on division of shares (FEC-219/7) calling for the submission of any data on external assets. If the U. K. Member would like to suggest a method of procedure for discussing this subject he thought it appropriate that the Committee and ultimately the Commission should give it serious consideration. At present, however, there was no understanding among Commission Members on how to proceed with respect to discussions of external assets.

The U. K. Member said that he felt the Committee was spending too much time discussing procedure and not enough time discussing the concrete facts which it must sooner or later discuss if it was to arrive at a decision on shares of industrial assets from within Japan.

The Soviet Member said that the question raised by the U. K. Member, namely that of external assets, was not a new one and had been previously discussed in the Committee and in the Commission. However, it had been removed from the agenda of the FEC after the adoption of the policy decision in FEC-219/7. He reminded the Committee that in the first days of the FEC's history the entire subject of external assets had been discussed in connection with the jurisdiction of the FEC. The Commission's terms of reference restricted its jurisdiction to the four main islands of Japan and it was therefore not competent to deal with matters lying beyond that area unless the parties to the original agreement approved. That is to say, the question would first have to be decided by the founders of the FEC and following that it would have to be referred to the plenary body of 11 members. Following approval by the FEC, the Committee might appropriately discuss it. It was the position of his Government that this matter could be handled in no other way. The present trend of the discussion in the Committee suggested a procedure for discussions in which the Soviet delegation would be unable to participate.

The U. K. Member said that there was nothing in the policy decision (FEC-219/7) which would prevent the discussion of the subject of external assets. On the contrary, the last sentence of that policy clearly indicated that the Commission anticipated such discussion. The sentence referred to was as follows: "The clauses herein on reparations and reference to this subject are without prejudice to the views of governments on the overseas assets issue." The U. K. Member said that it seemed to him that anything whatever that might reasonably be considered relevant to the discussion of division of shares could appropriately be discussed by the Committee.

The N. Z. Member said that it seemed to him the Committee had reached a complete impasse in its negotiation of reparations shares but was reluctant to recognize the fact. The deadlock, he said, had been reached because of the four following factors. Firstly, it had been proposed that a single schedule of percentages be prepared by a method involving the use of averages. However, certain Members of the Committee expressed the strong disapproval of their Governments to the use of any method involving averages. Secondly, other Members had suggested that percentages be referred back to Governments for revision, as two Governments had already done. However, in one case the reduction in the share claimed by the Government was only 1/10th and in the other case only 1/7th of the original percentage requested. It was obvious, he said, that many of the shares claimed would have to be reduced a great deal more than that to offer any hope of agreement. Thirdly, it had been suggested that the division of shares issue be referred back to Governments with a request by delegates for fuller powers of negotiation. However, there was to date no agreement as to the scope of the powers of negotiation to be requested, particularly with reference to the question of external assets, which was itself another unsolved problem. Fourthly, one Member of the Committee had thus far not cooperated in the negotiation of division of shares at all, thus adding to the impasse already created by the other disagreements on procedure. These four factors, the N. Z. Member said, indicated that the Committee had probably exhausted its capacity to reach agreement on this problem. He suggested, therefore, that the Committee report to the Commission the situation that exists within the Committee. When the matter reached the Commission it would be referred back to Governments and it was for those Governments who really wanted reparations to suggest some scheme which would avoid the four difficulties just described.

The Chairman said that while he understood the desire of the N. Z. Member to obtain action on this subject he thought the Committee should remember that it had before it five separate proposals for the procedure to be followed in negotiating division of shares. He wondered whether the Committee should at this stage give its attention to these five proposals with the idea of approving one of them if possible by a majority vote. The N. Z. Member said that he thought it would be most unwise of the Committee to adopt by any majority vote a procedure which was unacceptable to some Members of the Committee. He felt that in so delicate a matter as reparations negotiations the least the Committee could do was to endeavor to arrive at a procedure which could obtain unanimous approval. The reason for his suggesting that the Committee report to the Commission was that he did not feel that the Committee had any procedure open to it at this stage which offered any great hope of future agreement.

The U. S. Member said that he felt the Committee's discussions had swung full circle in the past 18 months. He recalled that his Government had originally said that division of reparations shares should be worked out along statistical lines. This procedure was not, however, acceptable to all Members and, as a result of a suggestion by the U. K. Member, exploration of the concept of "a broad political basis" was begun. Since that time percentages had been submitted by 10 countries reflecting broad political calculations. He did not think that the U. K. Member's remarks and suggestions were out of order. It seemed to him that the U. K. Member was simply facing the fact that his Government in reaching its broad political conclusions had taken into account certain factors which could be expressed statistically or in terms of known facts. He was inviting other Members to do likewise with a view to making Committee discussions more realistic than they had been in the past months. He doubted whether the N. Z. Member's suggestion to report the situation to the Commission could have any practical results since all Members of the Committee were acting on instructions from their Governments and it seemed unlikely that different instructions would be sent to their colleagues at the Commission level. He would suggest, he said, that the problem of division of shares remain within Committee jurisdiction until a ~~final~~ ^{constructive} decision could be reached. He assumed all Members were ^{Committee} communicating regularly with their Governments on the progress of the Committee's work, and he could say on behalf of his Government that the possibility of a constructive move was under very serious consideration. He hoped that all Governments had under active consideration suggestions of a constructive character which might help in the solution of this problem. Meanwhile he favored holding the item on the Committee's agenda until some Member had instructions from his Government or until some Member was confident that he had a constructive new proposal to make. Recent discussions were of such a character, he said, that continuance of them under prevailing instructions would be little more than a repetition of the ground covered in the past two or three months.

It was decided to carry this item on the agenda until such time as any Member might have any new suggestions to offer.

ITEM 3 - REPARATIONS ALLOCATIONS PROCEDURES, FEC-211/3,
CI-211/10, CI-234

Discussion of this paper is awaiting a report from the Subcommittee. The item was retained on the agenda.

ITEM 4 - INTERIM DIRECTIVE REGARDING ADVANCE TRANSFERS OF JAPANESE REPARATIONS AND REPARATIONS PROCEDURES,
FEC-216/1, /2; CI-220; Min. 53rd FEC Mtg.

There was no discussion of this item, and it was retained on the agenda.

ITEM 5 - REPARATIONS FROM JAPANESE MERCHANT SHIPPING, CI-237
Series

The French Member announced that he had instructions to discuss the shipping proposals before the Committee. He asked whether the Committee was awaiting further proposals or instructions from Governments to discuss the proposals already submitted. The Chairman canvassed Members on whether they had instructions to discuss the six proposals in the CI-237 series. The Canadian, Chinese, French, Indian, Netherlands, N. Z. and U. S. Members said they had instructions which would permit them to discuss the proposals before the Committee. The Australian, Philippine, Soviet and U. K. Members said they did not have instructions to discuss these proposals, although the U. K. Member had instructions on his own Government's proposal (C1-237/5).

The U. S. Member suggested that it might be worth while to appoint a Subcommittee to make an inventory of the various problems raised by the six proposals before the Committee and possibly to make a study of the plan used in the distribution of merchant shipping in German reparations and its relation to the various proposals suggested by FEC Members. The French, Indian, N. Z., Soviet and U. K. Members thought the proposal of appointing a Subcommittee premature and suggested that all Members first obtain instructions on the proposals on hand with a view to having a preliminary Committee discussion. Following such discussion a Subcommittee could be given more specific terms of reference.

It was decided to give Members further time to obtain instructions from their Governments.

ITEM 6 - REPARATIONS CLAIM OF BOLIVIAN NATIONAL SUBMITTED BY BOLIVIAN EMBASSY, FEC-247 Series

It was decided to postpone any final decision on the disposition of this item until the next meeting of the Committee. The Secretary was asked to draw up two separate replies to the Bolivian Ambassador -- one embodying the views of those Members who felt the claim presented was not a reparations claim and therefore one with which the Committee was not competent to deal, the other embodying the views of those Members who thought it important to determine whether or not the claim represented the only claim against Japan which would be forthcoming from the Bolivian Government. Upon reaching agreement on the procedure to be followed the Committee could then use the appropriate draft reply as a basis for the letter which should be sent to the Bolivian Ambassador.

The item was retained on the agenda.

ITEM 7 - MEMORANDUM FROM NORWEGIAN EMBASSY CONCERNING BASIS OF NORWAY'S REPARATIONS CLAIM, FEC-205 Series

This item was held on the agenda pending further study of Members.

ITEM 8 - REPLACEMENT OF LOST CULTURAL OBJECTS, C1-002/17, /18, /25

The U. S. Member had nothing to report at this time. The item was retained on the agenda.

ITEM 9 - INCLUSION OF CLAIMS OF FOREIGN NATIONALS IN CLAIMS BY COUNTRIES FOR REPARATIONS FROM JAPAN, Min. 110th Mtg, Com. No. 1, pps. 1-2; Min. 125th Mtg., p. 4

The Australian Member said he felt it was the view of his Government that compensation to individuals living in a government's territory, whether national or alien, was a matter to be decided by each government rather than by the FEC.

FEC-RESTRICTED

The Chairman said that he interpreted this statement to mean that the Australian Government would probably favor a territorial method of filing reparations claims. The Australian Member said that that interpretation was correct.

This item was retained on the agenda at the request of the Indian Member in the hope that other Members would receive more explicit information from their Governments on the way in which reparations claims would be handled.

ITEM 10 - OTHER BUSINESS
