

PE 1111

.H5

Copy 1

A

COMPREHENSIVE GRAMMAR

OF THE

ENGLISH LANGUAGE;

CONTAINING

MANY ORIGINAL FEATURES; ESPECIALLY IN THE TREATMENT
OF VERBS, AND THE OMISSION OF TECHNICAL TERMS.

IN TWO PARTS:

COMPRISING

A COMPLETE ELEMENTARY COURSE.

BY

THOMAS HENDERSON,

FORMERLY PRINCIPAL OF A CLASSICAL ACADEMY, BALTIMORE.

*Quod, ad præcipies, esto brevis, ut cito dicta
Percipiant animi dociles, teneantque fideles.*

HORACE.

PHILADELPHIA:

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.

1859.

No 77 Copy of Pl Record 1st July 1859
Published Sept 25th 1859

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

PE 1111

Chap. _____ Copyright No. _____

Shelf H5

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

39
10991 a

6388

A COMPREHENSIVE GRAMMAR
OF THE
ENGLISH LANGUAGE;

CONTAINING
MANY ORIGINAL FEATURES; ESPECIALLY IN THE TREATMENT
OF VERBS, AND THE OMISSION OF TECHNICAL TERMS.

IN TWO PARTS:

COMPRISING
A COMPLETE ELEMENTARY COURSE.

BY THOMAS HENDERSON, Teacher
FORMERLY PRINCIPAL OF A CLASSICAL ACADEMY, BALTIMORE.

Quidquid præcipies, esto brevis, ut cito dicta
Percipiant animi dociles, teneantque fideles.

HORACE.

47

PHILADELPHIA:
J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.
1859.

PE 1111
.H5

Entered, according to Act of Congress, in the year 1859, by THOMAS HENDERSON,
in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the United States for the District of Maryland.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
INTRODUCTION.....	vii
Advertisement.....	xxv
To Teachers.....	xxvii
Forms of Parsing.....	xxix
Model.....	xxx
Specimens of Parsing.....	xxx

PART FIRST.

SECTION

1. English Grammar, definition of.....	35
2. Parts of Speech.....	35
3. Names or Nouns, definition of.....	35
4. Number, definition of.....	36
5. Subject, Object, and Possessor.....	36
6. Possessor — Apostrophe.....	37
7. Verb, definition of.....	37
8. Auxiliary and Principal Verbs, distinction between.	37
9. Infinitive Verb, definition of.....	38
10. Sign of Infinitive Verbs.....	38
11. Participles, definition of.....	39
12. Pronouns, definition and list of.....	40
13. Variations of Pronouns.....	41

14. Pronouns, how used.....	41
15. Adjectives, definition of.....	42
16. Adjectives, position of.....	42
17. Definitive Adjectives, list of.....	43
18. Definitive Adjectives, agreement of.....	43
19. Adverbs, definition of.....	45
20. Prepositions, definition and list of.....	45
21. Conjunctions, definition and list of.....	47
22. Conjunctions connect words in same construction.....	47
23. Interjections, definition and list of.....	49
24. Participles governing Possessors.....	50
25. Subject without a Verb.....	50
26. Nouns independent.....	51
27. Negatives.....	51
28. Divisions of Time.....	52
Formation of Verbs.....	53
Verbal Arch.....	55
29. Agreement of Verbs with Subjects.....	57
30. Pronouns, relation of.....	60
31. Sentences defined.....	61
32. Infinitive Verb, &c., as Subject of Verb.....	62
33. Relation of Words connected by and	62
34. Nouns or Pronouns limited by each or every	63
35. Relation of Words connected by or or nor	63
36. Verbs and Participles, distinction between.....	64
37. Position of Subject.....	66
38. Position of Object.....	66
39. Them improperly used for those	67
40. Omissions.....	67
41. Changes of Parts of Speech.....	68
General Examples.....	70

PART SECOND.

SPECIAL RULES AND OBSERVATIONS.

42. Several Possessors, how marked with Apostrophe....	73
43. Extent and Duration.....	74
44. Subject and Object with Verb be	74
45. Verb with more than one Subject.....	75
46. Several Nouns referring to same person	76
47. Verbs with two Objects.....	76
48. Every Subject requires a Verb.....	76
49. Every finite Verb requires a Subject.....	77
50. Infinitive Verbs after dare	77
51. Past and Prior-present Time, distinction between....	78
52. Time of Infinitive Verbs, how determined.....	79
53. Uncertainty and futurity, form of Verb to express....	80
54. Will and Shall , use of.....	81
55. Will and Shall convey different ideas.....	82
56. General Arrangement.....	83
57. A , an , the , with of	85
58. Regular and Irregular Verbs defined.....	85
Irregular Verbs, list of.....	86
Obsolete Forms of Verbs.....	90
59. Who and Which , distinction between.....	90
60. Whatsoever , Whichsoever , and Whosoever	91
61. Comparison of Adjectives.....	92
62. Superlatives not to be compared.....	93
63. Double Comparatives and Superlatives.....	94
64. Comparisons referring to two or more individuals....	94
65. Comparative, direction for using the.....	95
66. Superlative, direction for using the.....	95
67. Adjectives qualifying Verbs, &c.....	96

68. A and an , when to be used.....	96
69. Comparison of Adverbs.....	97
70. Adverbs preceded by the	97
71. Adverbs, position of.....	97
72. Adverbs and Adjectives, use of.....	98
73. Among , proper use of.....	99
74. Verbs connected by Conjunctions.....	99
75. Corresponding Conjunctions.....	101
76. As improperly used for than	102
77. Exceptions and Irregularities.....	102

PUNCTUATION.

Punctuation, definition of.....	104
The Comma.....	104
The Semicolon.....	109
The Colon.....	109
The Period.....	111
The Dash.....	111
The Point of Interrogation.....	111
The Point of Exclamation.....	111
Capital Letters.....	112
Examples for Correction.....	112

APPENDIX.

Person, definition of.....	115
Moods, definition of the five.....	116
Conjugation of the Verb "Love".....	117
Conjugations of the Verbs "Be" and "Be loved".....	120
The Verb "Be" with Present Participle.....	124
Agreement of Verb with nominative (usual Rule)..	124

INTRODUCTION.

It seems to be the prevailing opinion of teachers generally, that, among the almost numberless English Grammars now in use, not one is found, which contains the elementary principles of the science so concisely developed as to meet the popular want. Some are too brief; others too diffuse, and too much burdened with extraneous matter; and all, so encumbered with technical terms, that the learner is discouraged, bewildered, or embarrassed, in his unavailing efforts to comprehend the subject. In the estimation of some of the ripest scholars and ablest instructors, the following work removes these difficulties more completely than any other extant.

That our present systems of English Grammar are defective, is evident from the universally acknowledged fact, that a large majority of those who study them, even for years, never receive therefrom any practical benefit; and, at length, leave school unable either to write or speak their own language with propriety. The author has long been convinced that some radical changes, in the text-books, are essentially necessary; and this conviction gradually strengthened, during an extended period of active labor as an instructor of youth. After examining carefully a large number of our most respectable and popular grammars, and contrasting and comparing their rules and definitions, and testing them by the standard of experience, he has remodeled the whole subject, and now offers this improved system to an enlightened public.

In explanation and defence of some of the positions assumed, he submits the following

OBSERVATIONS ON ENGLISH GRAMMAR.

In these observations, we propose to review some of the principal points of English Grammar, as they are now found in our standard text-books; and, in doing so, we shall start a number of important questions, and leave the reader to answer them in his own private reflections.

1. Is it not advisable to lay aside some of the time-worn technical terms, now in use, that perplex rather than assist the learner, such as etymology, syntax, conjugation, declension, &c., which are useless appendages? — and, if the student wishes to know their import, let him consult a dictionary, rather than have the pages of English Grammar encumbered with such definitions.

2. What advantage is gained by dividing nouns into common and proper, except to determine when to begin them with a capital letter? Would it not be better to defer this until punctuation is taken up?

3. Is either gender or person necessary, except to show the agreement between nouns and pronouns? And would not violations of this kind so outrage common sense as to require no grammatical rules to determine them? As to verbs agreeing in person with their nominatives, we shall presently show that this is not the fact.

4. Why apply the term case, and tax the memory to retain, and the understanding to comprehend its definition. Say, at once, that a name or pronoun is either the subject of a verb, the object of a verb, participle, or preposition, or the possessor of something; for, after all that has been written on case, it resolves itself into this at last. (See Section 5.)

5. Why use the term tense, and immediately define it to mean time? Why not have six divisions of time instead of six tenses?

6. Does any special benefit arise from the complicated formality of classing verbs into active, passive, neuter, transitive, intransitive, and defective?

7. There seems to be but little necessity for moods, as the infinitive, as we shall hereafter show, furnishes, for all the others, a law of formation from which they never deviate, except in the present of the indicative, and in the past of the subjunctive and indicative of a few verbs. These variations we have given in Sections 28 and 29, and discarded the term mood.* These changes, it is true, require some explanations, particularly in regard to certain parts of the subjunctive; but this is now the case, even in grammars where the colossal structure of moods, tenses, numbers, and persons, retains its accustomed place. The conjugation of the verb, through all these intricate mazes, has ever been regarded, by the learner, as a Herculean task. Instead, therefore, of bending the whole language to its occasional irregularities, and compelling the student, by a wearisome and discouraging process, to conjugate, in the usual method, every verb he finds; how much more natural, consistent, and easy, would it be to remove these formidable difficulties, by adapting our course to the general tenor of our phraseology, and marking the exceptions as such. This plan would abridge labor, and render the acquisition of grammar more agreeable and certain.

* Those who still wish to retain the moods will find them in the Appendix, together with the usual conjugations of verbs.

8. The formation of the tenses has never been reduced to regular system. The definitions and signs, together with copious examples, have been spread over the pages of our grammars, just as an architect covers the adjacent space with a collection of well-prepared materials for a noble building; but the verbal edifice has never been erected so as to display its beautiful proportions before the admiring gaze of every beholder. In Section 28, we have shown that the INFINITIVE is the key-stone that unites the tenses in a graceful arch, and gives them the most finished symmetry and order. From this they all receive their form, except the past; and even this, in most verbs, develops traces of the same original law of harmony.

9. In Section 58, we have given a new definition of regular and irregular verbs, corresponding with our method of forming the tenses from the infinitive; and, in the list of irregular verbs, there set down, we have carried out this idea, so that a glance at the list furnishes all the elements required to form the six divisions of time, and also shows the agreement between the prior-present of the infinitive and the perfect participle.

10. The indicative has hitherto been made the governing mood, and, where the others differed from it, these differences have been stated as variations from a general rule. We think, on the contrary, that the infinitive lies at the foundation of the whole, and furnishes a law of formation for most verbal changes; and, that nowhere else is this law so perfectly developed as in the subjunctive. Some parts of the present and of the past of the indicative, exhibit deviations from this fixed law; while the potential and imperative conform completely to it. To explain this more fully, we would remark, that to is the sign of the present, and to, followed by have, is the sign of the prior-present or perfect, of infinitive verbs :

as, To be, to have been. To love, to have loved.
To be loved, to have been loved.

Drop the sign "to," in each form, and the present and prior-present or perfect of the subjunctive are formed : thus,

PRESENT.

If I be,	If I love,	If I be loved,
If you be,	If you love,	If you be loved,
If he be.	If he love.	If he be loved.

PRIOR-PRESENT OR PERFECT.

If I have been,	If I have loved,
If you have been,	If you have loved,
If he has been.	If he has loved, &c., &c.

Change the signs to shall or will, and the future and prior-future are formed : thus,

FUTURE.

If I shall or will be, &c.
If I shall or will love, &c.
If I shall or will be loved, &c.

PRIOR-FUTURE.

If I shall have been, &c.
If I shall have loved, &c.
If I shall have been loved, &c.

Had, substituted for to have, forms the

PRIOR-PAST OR PLUPERFECT.

If I had been, &c.
If I had loved, &c.
If I had been loved, &c.

Drop to have, and the past of most verbs is formed thus,

PAST OR IMPERFECT.

If I loved,
If you loved,
If he loved.

Place may, can, must, might, could, would, or should, before the verb in the present and prior-present, and the potential mood is formed. (See 28th Section of Grammar.)

The imperative gives the verb precisely as it stands in the present subjunctive, or present infinitive, without the sign to.

11. All grammarians assert that “the verb must agree with its nominative in number and person ;” but it will be found, upon careful investigation, that our verbs, unlike those of many other languages, are not varied from the regular forms derived from the infinitive, to agree with their nominatives, except in a few instances. These we have given in Section 29, and rejected the general rule as erroneous.* In this way we have shown the true relation between the form of the verb and its nominative ;—something never before attempted, so far as our knowledge extends.

* The usual rule, although not introduced into the body of the work, is given, however, at the close of the Appendix. Those who prefer it, can use it instead of Section 29.

12. For the sake of uniformity, and to assist the memory in retaining them, we call the tenses, Present and Prior-present (the old Perfect).

Past and Prior-past (the old Pluperfect).

Future and Prior-future (the old Second Future).

For the same reasons, we have given the definitions of adjectives, definitive adjectives, and adverbs, as nearly as possible in the same phraseology.

13. "When nouns and pronouns of different persons are connected, in the nominative case, the verb must agree, in person, with the one next to it, and the pronoun must be put in the first person, rather than the second, and in the second, rather than the third."

Grammarians agree that this rule encourages the use of a class of harsh and uncouth expressions; and recommend such changes in the arrangement of the words as excludes them from the range of the rule. Why not, then, discard it as it now stands, and embody, in another form, any useful items it may contain?

14. There is such a diversity of opinion among standard writers, in regard to unity and plurality of idea, in nouns of multitude, that the distinction, as now given in grammars, is almost useless.

15. "Adjectives belong to the nouns which they describe."

"Adverbs belong to verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs."

"A noun or pronoun in the possessive case, is governed by the following noun."

"Transitive verbs govern the objective case."

"Participles sometimes govern the objective case."

"Prepositions govern the objective case."

"Participles refer to nouns and pronouns."

These seven rules are only a reiteration of the same language that is found in the definitions; is it not, therefore, a mere repetition to assign them any place in Syntax?

16. "The interjections O! Oh! and Ah! require the objective case of a pronoun in the first person after them; but the nominative case in the second person."

The rule for the "nominative case independent" embraces the latter part of the above rule; and, if the first part be correct, it applies to a form of speech seldom used, and its violation is so harsh to the ear, that it needs no prompting to avoid it: the whole of it might, therefore, be dropped. But it is not always a safe guide; the sentence,

“O! I have roamed through many lands,” would sound very ridiculous, if the pronoun were put in the objective case; thus,

“O! me have roamed through many lands.”

17. “Transitive verbs, in the active voice, often take clauses or sentences after them.”

“Prepositions often take clauses or sentences after them.”

“A verb in the infinitive mood may be governed by any word on which it depends.”

“A verb in the infinitive mood may be governed by a clause or sentence.”

“The infinitive is sometimes independent.”

Well, what of it? Can we speak or write more accurately by having a knowledge of these five rules and notes? Would any grammatical errors arise from ignorance of all that is contained in this formidable list? If so, what are they?

18. “Two or more nouns, or nouns and pronouns, signifying the same thing, without an intervening verb, are put by apposition in the same case."

So far as nouns, in the nominative or objective case, are concerned, no error can be made from neglecting this rule, as these cases are formed alike; and all instances of possessive nouns are covered by the rule. "When several names are used as expletive of a single individual, as the possessor, the sign of the possessive case should be added to the last name only." (See Section 42.) As to examples where both nouns and pronouns occur, Section 30 includes them, and also embraces the rule, "Pronouns must agree with the nouns for which they stand, in gender, person, and number."

19. "Transitive verbs, participles, prepositions, govern the objective case."

Are there more than eight words in the English language in the use of which these rules can be violated? (See Note under Examples, Section 20.) If not, would it not prevent much perplexity to state this simple fact, instead of requiring the learner to search promiscuously among all nouns and pronouns for errors against three separate rules of Syntax? The distinction between nominative and objective appears to be entirely useless, except to regulate these eight pronouns, and to determine the forms of verbs in the few instances noticed in Section 29.

20. "Two or more nouns, or nouns and pronouns, in the singular number, connected by and, must have verbs, nouns, and pronouns, agreeing with them in the plural."

The clause, "in the singular number," should be struck out.

"If the singular nouns, connected by and, are limited by each, every, either, or neither, the verb and pronoun must be in the singular."

The words "either or neither," here, involve an impossibility; for no sentence can be formed, containing "two or more nouns, or nouns and pronouns, limited by either or neither, and connected by and." (See Section 34.)

"Two or more nouns and pronouns singular, connected by or or nor, must have verbs, nouns, and pronouns, to agree with them in the singular."

An additional clause should follow this, showing the proper agreement when either of the connected words is plural. (See Section 35.)

21. Sections 32, 33, 34, 35, 46, by a peculiar phraseology, exhibit the true principle involved in the agreement of words connected by conjunctions, and their real relation to other parts of speech.

Under Section 32, a very important note is given, specifying in what instances only, several prominent rules can be violated. This may save the learner much perplexity, and give him a clearer understanding of the relation between the verb and its subject.

22. "The relative is the nominative case to the verb, when no nominative case comes between it and the verb."

"When a nominative case comes between the relative and the verb, the relative is governed by some word in its own member of the sentence."

These rules are useless, as the cases may all be determined by the other general rules relating to cases.

23. "When the relative is preceded by two nominatives of different persons, the relative and verb may agree in person with either, according to the sense.

If the learner is permitted to use either form of the verb, why perplex him with any rule on the subject."

"When the relative and verb have been determined to agree with either of the preceding nominatives, that agreement must be preserved throughout the sentence."

Here is another repetition. All this is included in the rule, "In the use of words and phrases which, in point of time, relate to each other, &c." (See Section 56.)

24. "Those is sometimes incorrectly used instead of they at the beginning of a sentence: as, Those who live in glass houses, &c.; for, They who live, &c."

This rule rests on so slender a foundation, that we omit it.

25. "The perfect tense of the infinitive should not be placed after another verb in past time."

This rule will not always hold good. For example: "From a conversation I once had with him, he appeared to have studied Homer with great care and judgment. For the correct rule, see Section 52.

26. "Some conjunctions require the indicative, some the subjunctive mood, after them.

It is a general rule, that when something contingent or doubtful is implied, the subjunctive ought to be used. Conjunctions that are of a positive and absolute nature require the indicative mood."

This rule is indefinite, and is contradicted by the remarks which follow it, in Murray (and are copied by Smith). As the learner cannot depend on it for a guide, it ought never to have been inserted. In Sections 53, 54, we think we have brought within a small compass all that necessarily belongs to the subjunctive mood; comprehending the prolix and intricate explanations, usually given in grammars, in regard to its peculiarities.

27. Section 22, on the power of conjunctions as connectives, is applied to participles, adjectives, and adverbs; a point of some importance, yet generally unnoticed by grammarians.

This section embraces Murray's Rule XX:—"When the qualities of different things are compared, the latter noun or pronoun is not governed by the conjunction than or as, but agrees with the verb, or is governed by the verb or the preposition expressed or understood;" and also his Rule XVIII: "Conjunctions connect the same moods and tenses of verbs, and cases of nouns and pronouns."

Mr. Murray says, "If the 18th Rule should not appear to apply to every example, it will be found, on strict examination, that the supposed exceptions are, in fact, sentences which do not come within the reason and limitation of the rule. Thus, in the sentence, 'I have a greater respect for them than he,' the pronoun he is connected by the conjunction than with the pronoun them: and yet they are not put in the same case; because they have not the same bearing and relation, with regard to the rest of the sentence; which is requisite according to Rule 18, and its explanatory note."

Had Mr. Murray observed that I and he are, in reality, the pronouns connected by than, and are both in the same case, and that his 18th Rule thus covers the whole ground in dispute, all difficulties would have vanished, and his 20th Rule would never have been framed. A slight transposition of the sentence sets the proper connection in a clear light: thus, "I have a greater respect than he, for them." Here the comparison is evidently made between I and he, and not between them and he.

Other changes and improvements are introduced into various parts of the work, which it is not necessary here to enumerate.

T. HENDERSON.

June, 1859.

ADVERTISEMENT.

THE author claims for this system the following advantages:—

1. Originality, in many points, especially in his method of treating verbs, and in the omission of technical terms.

2. Brevity, comprehensiveness, and clearness.

3. Important changes in definitions and rules: excluding some; altering and amending others; and, occasionally, condensing two or more into one.

4. Dividing the work into two parts, and so arranging them that the first alone, if used by those whose time is limited, will enable them to acquire in a very short period a practical knowledge of grammar; whereas, a portion of the other systems now extant is of very little service without a familiarity with the whole. The first part is complete in itself.

5. The first and second parts, together, contain a larger amount of grammatical information than can be found in twice the space elsewhere; and afford facilities for obtaining a rapid and thorough acquaintance with the science.

Orthography and Prosody have been left out, as they are seldom studied, when inserted; and would only swell the size of the book, without conferring on the learner any real benefit.

TO TEACHERS.

THIS work is designed for two classes of persons, and is, consequently, divided into two parts. Those who have but little leisure should use only the first part. This, if thoroughly mastered, will make them better grammarians than a large majority of those who have devoted years to this branch of knowledge: in fact, it is sufficient for all common, practical purposes. If the learner, after advancing thus far, has time and inclination to go more deeply into the subject, he will find the nicer shades of distinction in language unfolded in the brief, but comprehensive sections of the second part. The whole, when well understood, will give the student a clear, concise, and systematic view of the science of English Grammar.

The learner should parse and correct all the examples as they occur, and be careful never to pass a section, without becoming well acquainted with every point which it contains. Models and specimens of parsing will be found at the beginning of the book.

Teachers should labor to fix in the minds of their pupils the following six points; when these are well understood, other difficulties can be easily mastered:—

1. All errors, arising from the improper use of subjects and objects, are confined to eight pronouns. See Note under "Examples for Correction," Section 20.

2. All the regular forms of verbs are contained in Section 28; and

All the variations from these forms are included in the three exceptions of Section 29. See also Note under Section 32.

3. The true forms and relations of all pronouns may be determined by substituting (mentally) in their places the words for which they stand. This is a simple and infallible rule. See Section 30.

4. By supplying omissions many difficulties in parsing may be removed. See Section 40.

5. The same word is often used for several parts of speech. See Section 41.

6. Names, verbs, participles, pronouns, adjectives, and adverbs, connected by conjunctions, must be in the same construction. See Section 22, and also the 27th Section of the introductory "Observations."

FORMS OF PARSING.

NAME, OR NOUN.—Why a name? What number? Subject, object, or possessor of what?

VERB.—Why a verb? What is its subject?

NOTE.—When the learner has passed Section 29, he should add to this form of parsing the verb the following: Of what time? Is it of the regular form, or an exception?

INFINITIVE VERB.—Why a verb? Why infinitive? Of what time?

PARTICIPLE.—Why a participle? What kind, and why?

PRONOUN.—Why a pronoun? What number? Subject, object, or possessor of what?

(Repeat the variations, if it belongs to this class. See Section 13.)

ADJECTIVE.—Why an adjective?

DEFINITIVE ADJECTIVE.—Why a definitive adjective? Apply Section 18.

ADVERB.—Why an adverb?

PREPOSITION. — Why a preposition?

CONJUNCTION. — Why a conjunction?

INTERJECTION. — Why an interjection?

In parsing, the learner should write out the sentences on a slate or black-board, and unite together, by lines, all words that have a grammatical connection. This plan will enable him to see at a glance how one word depends upon another. See the following MODEL.

SPECIMENS OF PARSING.

I. He steered his noble bark far away over the blue waves of the rolling sea.

He is a pronoun, a word used instead of a noun; singular number, it represents only one; it is the subject of the verb steered. Singular, he, his, him; plural, they, their, them.

Steered is a verb, it asserts action; past time, it refers to an indefinite period previous to the present; of the regular form; its subject is he.

His is a pronoun, &c.; it is the possessor of bark.

Noble is an adjective, it is added to the name bark to qualify it.

Bark is a name; singular number, it represents only one; it is the object of the verb steered.

Far is an adverb, it is added to the adverb away to qualify it.

Away is an adverb, it is added to the verb steered to qualify it.

Over is a preposition, a word used to connect other words and show the relation between them.

The is a definitive adjective, it is added to the name waves to limit its signification.

Blue is an adjective, &c.

Waves is a name; plural number, it represents more than one; it is the object of the preposition over.

Of is a preposition, &c.

The is a definitive adjective, &c.

Rolling is a participle, it is a certain form of the verb roll, used to describe the name sea; present, it denotes continued action.

Sea is a name, &c.; object of the preposition of.

II. James and John came.

James is a name, &c.; subject of the verb came.

And is a conjunction, it is used to connect words.

John is a name, &c.; it is the subject of the verb came, and connected with James, in the same construction, by the conjunction and. Section 22.

Came is a verb, &c.; of the regular form; its subjects are James and John. Section 33.

III. Some live and die in obscurity.

Some is a pronoun; plural; it is the subject of the verb live.

Live is a verb, &c.

And is a conjunction, &c.

Die is a verb; of present time, and regular form, because it is connected with live, in the same construction, by the conjunction and. Section 22.

IV. Bid them come.

Bid is a verb; of present time; regular form, it is used in commanding—Section 29, III.; its subject is thou understood. Section 40.

Them is a pronoun; plural; object of verb bid.

Come is a verb, it asserts action; infinitive, it is used in a general or unlimited manner; the sign to is omitted after bid—Section 10; present time, it refers to what is now transpiring.

V. To die is the common lot.

Is is a verb; of present time; its subject is the infinitive verb to die—Section 32; it is formed according to Section 29, II.

Lot is a name; singular; it is a subject after the verb is. Section 37, 44.

VI. The birds flew south.

South is a name; singular; it stands independent of verbs or prepositions. Section 26.

VII. Samuel, go home.

Samuel is a name; singular; it stands as a subject without a verb, because it is addressed. Section 25.

Go is parsed like bid, in Specimen IV.

Home is parsed like south in the last specimen.

VIII. The day being ended, we retired.

Day is a name; singular; it is placed with the participle being ended, as a subject without a verb. Section 25.

Being ended is a participle, it is a certain form of the verb be ended, used to describe the name day; present, it denotes a continued state.

IX. At the time of Charles' coming.

Charles' is a name; singular; it is a possessor before the participle coming. Section 24.

X. His son is sober, industrious, and obedient.

Sober, industrious, obedient, are adjectives, added to the name son, to qualify it; they are in the same construction, connected by and. Section 22.

XI. They work rapidly, constantly, and faithfully.

Rapidly, constantly, faithfully, are adverbs, added to the verb work to qualify it; they are in the same construction, connected by and. Section 22.

XII. Alas! he cannot long survive!

Alas is an interjection, a word used to express some sudden emotion of the speaker.

Can survive is a verb, &c.; its subject is he.

Not and long may both be parsed as adverbs, qualifying can survive.

A COMPREHENSIVE GRAMMAR.

PART FIRST.

1. ENGLISH GRAMMAR explains the correct method of using the English Language.

PARTS OF SPEECH

2. Every word, in the English Language, belongs to some one or more of the following classes, or parts of speech: Names or Nouns, Verbs, Participles, Pronouns, Adjectives, Adverbs, Prepositions, Conjunctions, Interjections.

NAMES OR NOUNS.

3. NAMES are the words by which persons or things are called: as, "John, Baltimore, girl, stars."

NOTE. — Any word that will take a, an, or the before it, or that will make sense of itself, is a name: as, "a day, an hour, the sun; truth, justice, temperance."

Point out the names in the following.

EXAMPLES.

Time and tide wait for no man.

Reason governs wise men ; punishment fools.

The vessel lost her anchor on a reef of rocks.

NUMBER.

4. When a word represents only one object or thing, it is said to be SINGULAR: as, "Pen, man, sun, he, she, it, this." When more than one, it is said to be PLURAL: as, "Pens, men, suns, they, them, these."

5. A noun or pronoun must be either

I. The SUBJECT or nominative of a verb ;

II. The OBJECT of a verb, participle, or preposition ; or

III. The POSSESSOR of something.

EXAMPLES.

I. Subjects. — John learns. Man dies. The child sleeps. Rains descend. They slumber. He will come. You smile.

II. Objects. — Spell the lesson. Improve your mind. Call her. Sarah saw thee. They found a boy catching fish. Having bought a knife he cut his finger. A fly on the wall. He is at home.

III. Possessors. — Richard's pen. Hannah's thimble. The sailor's delight. His horse. My sword. The merchant's vessel.

6. When a name denotes a possessor, it must always be marked by an apostrophe: as, "Robert's cane, boys' hats."

Correct the following EXAMPLES, by adding the apostrophe:

Williams book.

The suns splendor.

Mans labor.

Heroes laurels.

Washingtons farewell.

Deaths triumphs.

VERBS.

7. A verb is a word that asserts action, being, or state: as, "William walks and breathes."
 "They exist." "He sleeps in death."

NOTE.—Any word that will take I, thou, he, it, they, or to, before it, is a verb: as, "I come, thou hast suffered, he lives, it will rain, they go, to smile, to have written."

8. Sometimes a verb is only a single word, and sometimes it consists of two or more words: in the latter case, the last word is called the principal verb, and those before it are called auxiliaries.

EXAMPLES.

Love, walked, did come, was made, has been seen, might go, may have gone, is writing.

Which of these are auxiliaries, and which principal verbs?

NOTE.—The auxiliary verbs are may, can, must, might, could, would, should, and shall. Do, be, have, and will, are sometimes auxiliaries, and sometimes principal verbs.

9. An infinitive verb is one that is used in a general or unlimited manner: as, “To die is gain.” “He is said to have gone home.”

10. Infinitive verbs are always preceded by the sign to, except when following the verbs bid, dare, hear, feel, see, let, make, &c.: as, “Who heard him say it.” “He bids me come.” “They dare engage.” (See Section 50.)

Parse, according to the forms on page xxix, all the names and verbs in the following

EXAMPLES.

Stars twinkle.

The sun shines.

John loves to study grammar.

The bird's nest has fallen.

Life's storms must cease.

Zephyrs cool his brow.

Arnold attempted to betray his country.

Samuel's labor will be rewarded.

Men should assert their rights.

Care clouds the brow.

Old ocean's waves lash the shore.

Sailors delight to reach the port.

Alfred may have seen his father.

Duty's voice bids him hasten.

PARTICIPLES.

11. Participles are certain forms of verbs used to describe nouns and pronouns: as, "The flower blooming in the vale." "They saw him, smitten and sad."

I. The present participle denotes continued action, being, or state, and always ends in ing: as, "The leaf, trembling, falls." "Being destitute, he desired assistance." "I found him sleeping."

NOTE.—To distinguish a present participle from other parts of speech that have the same ending, cut off ing, and, if what remains is a verb, the word is a participle; otherwise it is not: thus, Roaming, walking, standing, make the verbs, roam, walk, stand; therefore they are participles: but evening, morning, uninteresting, make even, morn, uninterest, which are not verbs; and, therefore, these words are not participles.

II. The perfect participle denotes finished action, being, or state: as, Loved, been, been loved; "A reed shaken with the wind." It always makes sense after to have: as, "To have shaken."

III. When the perfect participle has the word having before it, it is called the compound perfect participle: as, "James, after having waited an hour, returned home."

Parse, according to the forms on page xxix, all the names, verbs, and participles in the following

EXAMPLES.

Death quenched the wrath burning in the Indian's bosom.

The faded rose still yields its fragrance.

Charles, having read the letter, ceased to mourn.

The tower, erected on the mountain's brow, had cast a lengthening shadow.

Striking their tents, the soldiers onward marched.

PRONOUNS.

12. A pronoun is a word used instead of a noun or name.

All the pronouns are contained in the following

LIST OF PRONOUNS.

As,	few,	less,	much,	same,	thou,
all,	first,	least,	neither,	several,	thine,
any,	former,	last,	none,	some,	theirs,
another,	he,	latter,	one,	such,	who,
both,	his,	mine,	ours,	that,	which each,	hers,	many,	own,	this,	what,
every,	I,	more,	other,	those,	yours.
either	it,	most,	she,	these,

NOTES.—Mine, thine, his, when standing before names, are possessors: as, “Mine arm, thine eye, his hand.” Otherwise they are either subjects or objects: as, “Mine is the labor and thine shall be the reward.” “Mary's desk stands near his.”

What may be both a subject and object at the same time: as, “I purchased what was offered.” Here what is the object of the verb “purchased,” and also the subject of the verb “was offered.” “According to what was proposed.” Here what is the object of the preposition “according to,” and the subject of “was proposed.”

Pronouns are sometimes found with so, self, ever, or soever, attached to them: as, whoso, himself, itself, whoever, whatsoever.

13. Ten of the pronouns are thus varied,—the others never change their form:—

	Subject.	Possessor.	Object.	Subject.	Possessor.	Object.
Sing.	I,	my,	me,	Thou,	thy,	thee,
Plur.	we,	our,	us.	ye or you,	your,	you.
Sing.	He,	his,	him,	She,	her,	her,
Plur.	they,	their,	them.	they,	their,	them.
Sing.	It,	its,	it,	Who,	whose,	whom,
Plur.	they,	their,	them.	who,	whose,	whom.
Sing.	Which,	whose,	which,	One,	one's,	one,
Plur.	which,	whose,	which.	ones,	ones',	ones.
Sing.	Other,	other's,	other,	Another,	another's,	another.
Plur.	others,	others',	others.	(No Plural.)

14. Pronouns must not be used in the same part of a sentence as the names for which they stand: as, "John he went home;" it should read, "John went home." "I saw her the queen;" corrected, "I saw the queen."

Correct all the violations of the above rule; insert the apostrophes, where omitted (See Section 6); and parse all the names, verbs, participles, and pronouns, in the following

EXAMPLES.

The king he rewarded his sons obedience.

Casting his net into the river, he awaited the result.

Their children they love them.

Some labor while others they play.

All must answer deaths summons.

Others gold has purchased what I enjoy.

Pestilence it may destroy many.

Several saw the bird perched on a willows bough.

Mary she went to gather berries, and, having found a few, returned.

ADJECTIVES.

15. Adjectives are words added to nouns and pronouns to qualify them, or limit their signification: as, “A prudent man gives wise counsel.” “They are industrious.” “This boy has three pens.”

ADDITIONAL EXAMPLES.

Qualifying Adjectives.—Good, bad, wise, strong, temperate, humble, mild, deeper, greatest, &c.

Limiting or Definitive Adjectives.—Many, several, eight, much, few, &c. (See next page.)

NOTE.—Any word that will take thing, or any other name after it, is an adjective: as, a good thing, a better thing, a warm day, a sharp knife, that book, many stars.

16. Adjectives should, usually, be placed next to the names which they qualify,—always, when there are two names near each other: as, “A cup of cold water ;” not, “A cold cup of water.”

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

A sweet wreath of roses.

A fragrant garden of flowers.

They have a most elegant supply of furniture.

James sold a good load of straw.

He owns a fine row of houses.

That captain commands an active company of men.

Susan lost a beautiful pair of gloves.

Isaac sports a black pair of whiskers.

Robert wears a splendid suit of clothes and drives a fine span of horses.

He had strength of mind enough to conquer his superstition.

17. The following are called limiting, or

DEFINITIVE ADJECTIVES.

A,	few,	much,	the,
an,	former,	neither,	this,
any,	less,	no,	that,
all,	least,	other,	these,
another,	last,	own,	those,
both,	latter,	some,	which,
each,	many,	same,	what,
every,	more,	such,	yon,
either,	most,	several,

and all other words used in numbering and counting: as, three, ten, thousand, fourth, fiftieth, &c.

Also the compounds, whatever, whichever, whatsoever, whichsoever.

NOTE.—In the above list, a, an, the, are always definitive adjectives; the other words are definitives when a name immediately follows,—otherwise they are pronouns. Both, either, neither, that, sometimes become conjunctions. (See Section 21, Note, and 41, f.)

18. Definitive adjectives must agree, in number, with their names; and, on the contrary, names must agree with their definitives: as, “Many men.” “One child.”

EXCEPTIONS.

A few men.	A great many.
A score.	A thousand years.
Many a friend.	Ten head of cattle.
Five sail of the line.	By this means.
By that means.	Every three hours.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

I have walked six mile these warm day.
 All kind of produce.
 Each men's share.
 Those sort of apples.
 The cask holds forty gallon
 A rock ten foot high.
 Two ton make a load.
 A few share of bank stock.

Parse all the names, verbs, participles, pronouns, and adjectives, in the following

EXAMPLES.

Solomon wrote many proverbs.
 Their good deeds will survive them.
 This man gave all his splendid furniture to a few friends.
 Which child did I see?
 Yon lofty temple, built at much cost, will soon fall.
 Every man should have some employment.
 She is too kind to have treated me thus.
 Many die in early life; others live to reach maturity;
 and a few arrive at old age.
 Who taught the bird to build its nest? who commanded gravitation to bind all to its sphere?
 Having seated herself, she watched the moon-beams dancing on the billow's crest.

ADVERBS.

19. Adverbs are words added to verbs, participles, adjectives, and other adverbs, to qualify them: as, "A very good pen writes extremely well." "I heard a dove cooing mournfully."

Adverbs are occasionally added to names, pronouns, and prepositions: as, "This man also came." "Even he was there." "She is far from home."

NOTE.—Any word that will answer to the question, how? how much? when? or where? is an adverb: as, in the sentence, "Time flies rapidly," the answer to the question, "How does time fly?" is, rapidly; therefore rapidly is an adverb.

PARSING EXERCISES.

We have been well rewarded.

I can not answer you.

That place is very widely distant.

He died suddenly, far from a quiet home.

The star will soon disappear.

The former came yesterday, and the latter may arrive to-day.

PREPOSITIONS.

20. Prepositions are words used to connect other words and show the relation between them: as, "Samuel is in the street, near the corner."

The principal prepositions are embraced in the following

LIST.

Above,	athwart,	down,	round,
at,	around,	except,	to,
among,	astride,	for,	toward,
amongst,	by,	from,	towards,
after,	below,	instead of,	through,
about,	between,	in,	throughout,
against,	betwixt,	into,	under,
abaft,	beneath,	near,	underneath,
according to,	beyond,	notwithstanding,	up,
across,	before,	over,	upon,
along,	behind,	of,	unto,
amid,	beside,	off,	with,
amidst,	besides,	on,	within,
		without.

NOTE.—Prepositions are often understood: as, “Grant me my request;” that is, “Grant to me.” “His house faces the east;” that is, “toward the east.” (See Section 40.)

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

(See Section 5, I. II.)

NOTE.—By referring to Section 13, the learner will perceive that the pronouns I, thou, he, she, who, we, ye, they, when used as objects, become, me, thee, him, her, whom, us, you, them: a mistake cannot be made in using a subject instead of an object, and the contrary, except in one of these eight pronouns.

It is not I he is engaged with.

He invited they and me to see him.

In assisting thou he injured hisself.

It was not he that they were so angry with.

She that is idle and mischievous, reprove sharply.

Who did they entertain so freely.

From who did he receive the present?

Fearing not only ye, but us also, them acted with caution.

To unhappy we there is not much hope remaining.

Them willingly, and of themselves, endeavored to make a reconciliation.

He and them we know, but whom art thou?

CONJUNCTIONS.

21. Conjunctions are words used to connect words and sentences: as, "Life and death." "You are happy because you are good."

The principal conjunctions are contained in the following

LIST.

And,	either,	notwithstanding,	therefore as,	for,	or,	than,
both,	if,	provided,	though,
because,	lest,	since,	unless,
besides,	neither	that,	wherefore,
but,	nor,	then,	yet,
	whereas.	(See Section 17, Note.)

NOTE.—That, when it stands in close connection before a name, and defines or limits its meaning, is a definitive adjective: as, "That pen is mine." When not so placed, if it can be turned into who or which, without destroying the sense, it is a pronoun: as, "All that I see charms me;" or, "All which I see," &c. In all other instances, that is a conjunction: as, "He knows that his end is coming."

22. Conjunctions, either expressed or understood, connect words in the same construction: as, "They live and learn." "He and she reside there." "I saw William or Richard." "Some toil early and late." "I love spring, summer, autumn, and winter." "Thou art a wiser man than I."

NOTE.—This is a very comprehensive rule, and applies to names, verbs, participles, pronouns, adjectives, and adverbs. See the following

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

He and them were there.

Her and Henry came.

Him and I are well.

His wealth and him bid adieu to each other.

Neither Peter nor us saw the stranger.

Between him and I there was some contention.

Thou art a much greater loser than me by his death.

She has improved more than me.

Jane can sew as rapidly as her.

A bolder hero than him never lived.

A stone is heavy, and the sand weighty; but a fool's wrath is heavier than them both. (Proverbs, xxvii. 3.)

I have no friend but he.

She has a dislike to more than he.

None were injured but them.

These are John and Samuel's tools.

He and their farms lie adjoining.

It affects both the merchant and mechanic's interest.

He acted bravely, nobly, and wise.

That gentleman's servant is sober, industrious, and obediently.

She saw a man ploughing or having walked.

The flowers are neither budding nor having bloomed in the garden.

Professing regard, and to act differently, discover a base mind.

INTERJECTIONS.

23. Interjections are words used to express some sudden emotion of the speaker: as, "Alas! I fear for life."

Some of the more usual interjections are given in the following

LIST.

Ah!	foh!	hark!	poh!
alas!	heigh!	hail!	pish!
away!	hem!	halloo!	really!
all hail!	ho!	O!	soho!
behold!	hist!	oh!	strange!
fie!	hush!	lo!	tush!
	welcome!

PARSING EXERCISES.

Every heart knows its own sorrows.

Being reviled, we bless.

Ridiculed, despised, persecuted, he maintained his principles.

Thou art industrious.

Hark! how sweetly the woodlark sings!

From virtue to vice, the progress is gradual.

By diligence and frugality, we arrive at competency.

Reproof either softens, or hardens, its object.

Though some are often advised, yet they do not reform.

Welcome! to our peaceful valleys and mountains.

We could not serve him then, but we will hereafter.

Having been deserted, all became discouraged.

Friendship's smile often cheers a desponding heart.

He came unto his own, and his own received him not.

Alas! no man's life is secure.

The men who left were slain, whereas the others escaped.

What did each say?

They that sow in tears shall reap in joy.

It is strange that the messenger does not return.

O! I saw that man whom you seek.

You may not have been deceived by another's hypocrisy.

If greatness flatters our vanity, it multiplies our dangers.

SPECIAL RULES.

24. Participles often require the nouns and pronouns preceding them to take the form of possessor: as, "At the time of Charles' coming." "On his departing the foe advanced."

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

John coming so soon surprised us.

Much depends on this rule being observed.

That was the cause of him failing.

He is aware of his companion suffering.

What is the result of the patient neglecting the prescription?

On he entering the room all others retired.

On me having said we could not do too much, he seemed agitated.

25. The name of a person or thing addressed, or a noun or pronoun placed with a participle and independent of the rest of the sentence, stands as a subject without a verb: as, "George, where are you?" "The day being past, we retired." "He having gone, they fled."

NOTE.—This rule can only be violated in using the eight pronouns mentioned in the Note under "Examples for Correction," Section 20.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Him being a child, his parents deserted him.

The ladder trembled, him descending.

Whom having returned, order was restored.

O thee! whose name I love.

Them having called, he laid aside his pen.

26. Home, way, north, east, and some other words of similar meaning; and also names signifying duration, extension, quantity, quality, and valuation, often stand independent of verbs or prepositions: as, "He came home." "She went this way." "The birds flew south." "They travelled that course." "The flower bloomed a month." "John is five miles distant." "Water ten feet deep." "The hat is worth two dollars." "Ascend the mountain." (See Section 40.)

27. Two negatives, in the same simple sentence, destroy each other, and are equivalent to an affirmative: as, "It is not uncertain," means, "It is certain." "He will never be no taller," means, "He will be taller."

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Nor did they not perceive him.

No imitator never equalled his author.

I cannot by no means grant his request.

They cannot do nothing.

Covet neither life, nor no earthly good.

DIVISIONS OF TIME

28. Strictly speaking, time must be either present, past, or future; but variety of language gives each of these divisions a twofold signification: as,

I. Present time, referring to what is now transpiring: as, "They come." "I learn." "You go." "To give."

II. Prior-present time, referring both to the past and present: as, "They have come." "I have learned." "You may have gone." "To have given."

III. Past time, referring to any indefinite period previous to the present: as, "They came." "I learned." "You went."

IV. Prior-past time, referring to a past period, prior to some other past period specified:

as, "They had come." "I had learned." "You had gone."

V. Future time, referring to any indefinite period after the present: as, "They will come." "I shall learn." "You will go."

VI. Prior-future time, referring to a future period, prior to some other future period specified: as, "They will have come." "I shall have learned." "You will have gone."

FORMATION OF VERBS.

The INFINITIVE VERB furnishes a complete KEY to the foregoing divisions of time: thus,

To is the sign of the present of infinitive verbs: as, "to go;" and to, followed by have, is the sign of the prior-present: as, "to have gone."

Drop the sign to, in each form, or change it to may, can, must, might, could, would, or should, and the present and prior-present are formed.

Change the signs to shall or will, and the fu- ture and prior-future are formed. (See Sections 54, 55.)

Had substituted for to have, forms the prior-past.

Drop to have, and the past, of most verbs, is formed. The past of any verb is correctly formed when it makes sense with once before it, or yesterday after it: as, "He once went," or "He went yesterday."

Participles also are easily formed from infinitive verbs. (See Section 11.)

EXAMPLES,

Showing the REGULAR FORMS of the Verb to express the six divisions of time: —

Infinitive verb, To go.	{	PRESENT TIME.*
		Go. May, can, must, might, could, would, or should go.
		FUTURE TIME.
		Shall or will go. (See Section 55.)
		PRESENT PARTICIPLE.
		Going.

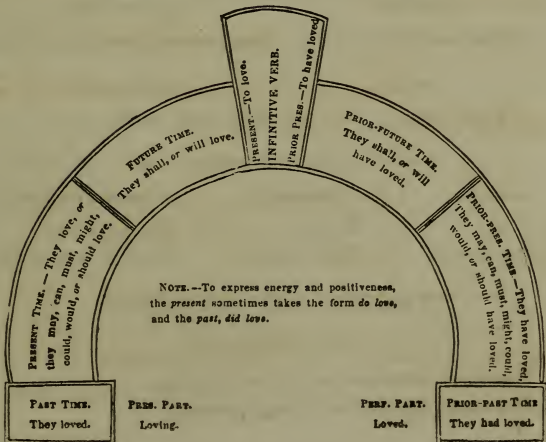

* Some of the forms of present time are very indefinite, and may be applied to past, present, and future.

Infinitive verb, To have gone.	}	PRIOR-PRESENT TIME.	Have gone. May, can, must, might, could, would, or should have gone.
		PRIOR-FUTURE TIME.	Shall or will have gone. (See Section 54.)
		PRIOR-PAST TIME.	Had gone.
		PERFECT PARTICIPLE.	Gone.
		COMPOUND PERFECT PARTICIPLE.	Having gone.

PAST TIME.

(I once) went; or, (I) went (yesterday.)

VERBAL ARCH, OR ARCH OF TIME.

ADDITIONAL EXAMPLES.

To be carefully examined, but not committed to memory.

TO LOVE.

TO HAVE LOVED.

PRESENT.

PRIOR-PRESENT.

Love.

Have loved.

May, can, &c., love.

May have loved.

FUTURE.

PRIOR-FUTURE.

Shall or will love.Shall or will have loved

PAST.

Loved.

PRIOR-PAST.

Had loved.

TO BE LOVED.

TO HAVE BEEN LOVED.

PRESENT.

PRIOR-PRESENT.

Be loved.

Have been loved.

May be loved.

May have been loved.

FUTURE.

PRIOR-FUTURE.

Shall or will be loved.Shall or will have been loved.

PAST.

PRIOR-PAST.

Were loved.

Had been loved.

PARTICIPLES.

PRESENT.

PERFECT.

COMPOUND PERFECT.

Loving.

Loved.

Having loved.

Being loved.

Been loved.

Having been loved.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

(See Section 22.)

The moon arose and will shine brightly.

You came and find all things prepared.

The senate passed the bill and had adjourned the same day.

We ought to live and to have learned.

He might have improved rapidly, and might write a fine hand.

They had purchased the goods and have removed them.

Philip loved and has obeyed his mother.

The stage neither stopped nor delays for passengers.

His arm may be dislocated, or has been broken by the fall.

To love vice and to have hated virtue gratify a debased heart. (See Section 74.)

AGREEMENT OF VERBS WITH THEIR SUBJECTS.

NOTE.—Teachers can either adopt the following, or use the usual rule found at the close of the Appendix.

29. Neither principal nor auxiliary verbs ever vary from the preceding regular forms to agree with their subjects, except in the following instances. (See Section 53, I. II.)

I. When a verb of present time has no auxiliary, and has a singular subject (I and thou excepted), it takes an additional s or es: as, “John runs.” “Time flies.” “Man lives.” “It rains.”

Do and have, without other auxiliaries, with singular subjects (I and thou excepted), always become does and has: as, “Jane does.” “He does go.” “She has been.”

NOTE.—In grave or solemn style, th is used instead of s or es: as, “John runneth,” “It raineth,” “She doth,” “He hath come.”

II. In the present, the verb be, without another auxiliary, becomes am with I, art with thou, is with any other singular subject, and are with any plural subject: as, “I am.” “I am loving.” “Thou art.” “Thou art taught.” “He is.” “The man is gone.” “They are loved.”

In the past, were becomes wast with thou, and was with any other singular subject: as, “Thou wast.” “Thou wast seen.” “It was.” “The boy was.” “I was.”

NOTE.—You, when it stands for a singular name, takes was.

III. When a verb has the pronoun thou for its subject, it takes an additional st or est: as, “Thou departest.” “Thou diedst.”

If there be an auxiliary, it takes the st or est, while the principal verb retains its regular form: as, “Thou mayst work.” “Thou shalt know.” “Thou canst have.” “Thou didst come.”

But when a verb is used in commanding, entreating, exhorting, or permitting, it takes the regular form of present time with either thou, ye, or you: as, “Depart thou.” “Be thou.” “Be ye loved.” “Do you be.”

NOTE.—Thou must, shalt, wilt, art, are peculiar in form.

RECAPITULATION OF EXAMPLES UNDER THE EXCEPTIONS.

(To be carefully examined, but not committed to memory.)

SINGULAR SUBJECTS.

John loves — does — does love — has — has loved — has been — has been loved — has been loving.

John is — is loved — is loving — was — was loved — was loving.

I am — am loved — am loving — was — was loved — was loving.

PLURAL SUBJECTS.

Men are — are loved — are loving.

SINGULAR OR PLURAL SUBJECTS.

You was or were — was or were loved — was or were loving.

NOTE.—As the termination th and the pronoun thou are now seldom used, except in grave discourse or in poetry, it is unnecessary to repeat here the examples in which they occur.

Correct and parse the following

EXAMPLES.

They commends her.

Joseph were respected.

You shouldst go.

All has a talent to improve.

Virtue are the universal charm.

Compassion prompt us to relieve the wants of others.

Thou shall improve.

No man canst be active in disquieting others, who do not, at the same time, disquiets himself.

Temper thou the vivacity of youth with a proper mixture of serious thought.

The spirit of true religion are social, kind, and cheerful.

Fifty pounds of wheat contains forty pounds of flour.

So much both of ability and merit are seldom found.

Great pains has been taken to reconcile the parties.

He need not proceed in such haste.

They wilt have written when the mail arrive.

That man hadst broken a solemn pledge.

And the fame of this person, and of his wonderful actions, were diffused throughout the country.

Has thou no better rule of conduct?

Alas! I are undone!

Coming through the meadow, John find some pretty flowers and pluck them for a nosegay.

These dwells in valleys, those roams the lofty mountains.

By some imprudence, he were deeply involved in debt.

What madness move the wretch?

How old are thou?

The lady said to her daughter, "Hastenest thou, or we shalt be lost!"

I sings of noble deeds.

Having waited long, they finally departeth.

I were anxious to hear the famous orator.

SPECIAL RULES.

RELATION OF PRONOUNS.

30. Pronouns have the same relation that the nouns or pronouns they represent would have in the same place: as, "Julius performed his task." "Boys love their sports." "I who am writing was there." "Thou that leadeest Joseph like a flock."

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION AND PARSING.

Thou who loves wisdom.

I who speaks from experience.

What is the reason that our language is less refined than those of Spain, Italy, or France?

I saw Robert, he who we met in the city yesterday.

Every man must judge of their own feelings.

The crown had it in their power to give such rewards as they thought proper.

Thou that dwells in the mountains, art old and care-worn.

Rebecca took goodly raiment, which were with her in the house, and put them upon Jacob.

Let each esteem others better than themselves.

SENTENCES.

31. A SENTENCE is a series of words making complete sense.

Sentences are either simple or compound.

A simple sentence has only one subject and one finite verb: as, "The earth revolves." "The silver moon rides majestically."

A compound sentence is two or more simple sentences united together: as, "The silver moon appears, and rides majestically above the clouds."

Each division of a compound sentence is a clause, or member of the sentence.

A phrase is two or more words rightly put together.

32. An infinitive verb, a sentence, or a clause, when it is the subject of a verb, has the same relation to the verb, or to nouns and pronouns, as a singular noun: as, "To see is pleasant." "That my friend should suffer, gives me pain."

NOTE.—Sections 32, 33, 34, 35, cannot be violated, in the use of verbs, except in the few instances mentioned in Section 29, I. II.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION AND PARSING.

To read with propriety are pleasing and important attainments.

To live soberly, righteously, and piously, are required of all men.

To do unto others as we would that they, under similar circumstances, should do unto us, constitute the great principles of virtue.

Promising without due consideration, often produce a breach of promise.

A desire to excel others in learning and virtue are commendable.

CONNECTED WORDS.

33. Two or more infinite verbs or clauses, or nouns and pronouns, connected by and, have the same relation to verbs, nouns, and pronouns, as a single plural noun: as, "To agonize and to suffer are severe." "Philip and his son come with their well filled baskets." (See Section 46.)

NOTE.—And is frequently implied or understood. (See Section 40.)

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION AND PARSING.

To fear God, and to keep his commandments, bespeaks a great and noble mind.

Both life and health is uncertain.

To advise the ignorant, relieve the needy, and comfort the afflicted, constitutes an important part of the duties of the pious.

Sincerity and truth forms the basis of every virtue.

To be prosperous and to be happy, requires attention to our affairs.

Why is redness and heat in fire?

Patience and diligence, like faith, removes mountains.

34. If the nouns or pronouns, connected by and, are all singular, and limited by each or every, they have the same relation to verbs, nouns, and pronouns, that one of them would have if standing alone: as, “Every day and every hour brings its trials.”

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION AND PARSING.

Every thought, every word, and every action, are to be remembered in judgment, whether they be good or evil.

Each leaf, each spire of grass, each object in nature, proclaim the power of their Creator.

Every one of the children, and even every man, were alarmed in view of their danger.

35. Infinitive verbs or clauses, or singular nouns and pronouns, connected by or or nor, have a singular relation to verbs, nouns, and pronouns; but if either of the connected nouns or pronouns be plural, they have a plural relation: as, "To write gracefully, or to read with propriety, is his highest attainment." "Neither she nor Thomas was there." "William, Mary, or the cousins, intend to return."

NOTE.—Or and nor are often understood.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION AND PARSING.

Isaac or Solomon stand alone.

Neither place nor time were afforded.

He, they, or we, is guilty.

To despise the poor, or to insult the unfortunate, give evidence of depraved hearts.

Speaking impatiently to servants; or anything that betrays inattention, or ill humor, are certainly criminal offences.

Man's happiness or misery depend very much on his own exertion.

Neither fame nor honors is sufficient to satisfy the immortal mind.

VERBS AND PARTICIPLES.

36. As the perfect participle and the verb of past time are sometimes unlike in their forms, care must be taken that the one be not used for the other: as, done for did, become for be- came, chose for chosen. "The letter wrote yesterday, is mailed," for "written yesterday."

The same error must also be avoided in forming the compound perfect participle, and the verb of prior-present, or prior-past time: as, "John has went," for "has gone;" "had arose," for "had arisen;" "having threw," for "having thrown;" "having took," for "having taken;" "was knew," for "was known;" "has been did," for "has been done."

In forming verbs, in such cases, the perfect participle is never used, except after the auxiliaries, have or has, had or hadst, and the variations of be; as seen in the examples above.

NOTE.—The distinction between a perfect participle and a verb of past time, when they differ, is clearly made, by the method of forming them, in Section 28. (See also Section 58.)

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

You have came too late.

The cars run off the track yesterday and given much trouble.

She has forsook her child.

The bird having flew away, the hunter pursued it.

John has went with his companion.

Thou hadst drew the picture.

It has fell.

They will have swore falsely.

Her letter is wrote.

My flowers are took.

I seen her book, torn and soiled.

Having began, she seemed pleased.

We done the work.

That girl had grew rapidly.

Samson had slew many men, he had smote them with a jawbone.

Your coat is much wore.

When the moon shall have rose.

POSITION OF SUBJECT.

37. The subject is, usually, placed before the verb; but sometimes comes after it, or between the auxiliary and the principal verb: as, "Remember thou!" "Where am I?" "Can he remain there?" "Were you safe?" "Has Moses come?" "Whom shall I send?" "There stand the monuments of his power."

POSITION OF OBJECT.

38. The object commonly follows the verb; but sometimes precedes it: as, "Whom do you seek?" "Me glory summons to the martial scene?" "The rolls of fame I will not now explore." "Him they released." "His son they slew." "What does he desire?"

THEM AND THOSE.

39. The pronoun them should never be used for the definitive adjective those: as, "He saw them men," for "He saw those men." "Neither of them two speakers is eloquent," for "of those two."

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Give me them apples.

Did you see them samples of beautiful silk?

Them playful children are in the garden.

In them days came John the Baptist.

Charles returned them marbles to his brother.

OMISSIONS.

40. In composition, to avoid repetitions and to express ideas briefly, words are frequently omitted that properly belong to the grammatical construction. By supplying these omissions, in parsing, many apparent difficulties will be removed.

EXAMPLES.

Charles, let us go home; that is, Charles, let thou us to go to home.

I saw all but him — but saw not him.

There is none good but one — but one is good.

Who did this? I — I did it.

He can read better than I — than I can read.

I have seen and heard him frequently — and have heard.

This day I bought a horse — on this day.

Last year he went to Europe — in the last year.

The Lord do that which seemeth him good — seemeth to him.

Days, weeks, months, and years have fled — days and weeks and months.

Wo! is me — wo! is to me. Ah me! — Ah! to me.

He works all day — all through the day, or, through all the day.

Whose book is that? It is John's — John's book

Some place the bliss in action, some in ease;

Those call it pleasure, and contentment these.

— some place it in ease — and contentment these call it.

Roll on, thou deep and dark blue ocean! — roll on thy way.

CHANGES OF PARTS OF SPEECH.

41. (a) NAMES sometimes perform the office of adjectives: as, “A cloth coat;” “a silver thimble;” “a gold pen;” “a brick wall.”

(b) VERBS are often used as names: as, “A dead calm;” “your interest;” “a broad sweep;” “a deep cut;” “do not disturb his quiet.”

(c) VERBS also become adjectives: as, “A calm day;” “a quiet haven;” “still waters;” “in like manner;” “a long distance.”

(d) PARTICIPLES are sometimes used for names: as, “A lovely being;” “a good under- standing;" "beautiful writing;" "in the beginning;" "from the rising of the tide."

(e) ADJECTIVES often assume the form of names: as, "The chief good;" "a million of men;" "the author of evil;" "the bad are unhappy."

(f) DEFINITIVE ADJECTIVES sometimes partake of the nature of adverbs: as, "More wisely;" "much less;" "not any greater danger."

(g) ADVERBS, under some circumstances, become names: as, "Yesterday's paper;" "to-day's news;" "the business of to-morrow."

(h) CONJUNCTIONS occasionally become adverbs: as, "He came then, and not before;" "she died not long since." (See also Sec. 17, Note.)

(i) CONJUNCTIONS and PREPOSITIONS are often used interchangeably, the one for the other: as, "Man toils for wealth;" "He paused, for he could speak no longer." "You have labored since noon;" "Since life is short, let us improve it."

From these examples, it is evident, that the sense and particular connection are the only certain guides in determining the part of speech to which a word belongs.

GENERAL EXAMPLES.

(To be corrected and parsed.)

See Sections 5, 6, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 25, 27, 29, 30, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 39, 41. (The figures below refer to Sections.)

6. 41, g. 29

To-morrows wisdom mayest prove thee simple to-day.

Consider every end, that they are but the end of a ^{41, d} beginning.

I live, move, are conscious: what shall bar my being?

In what manner he succeeded are unknown to me.

The man who I found, had perished in them snowy mountains.

Not a breath disturb the deep serene.

Time and chance happeneth to all man; but every person do not consider whom govern these powerful causes.

To do good to they that hates us, and, not on no occasion, to seek revenge, is the duty of a christian.

The hand that culled them flower's are gone.

Ignorance or negligence have caused this mistake.

Every person, whatever be their station, are bound by the duties of morality and religion.

I could not avoid considering they, in some degree, as an enemy to me; and he as a suspicious friend.

The nations they shalt learn war no more, and have established a universal peace.

Each day and each hour bring with them responsibilities.

Happy are thou, O Israel! Who art like unto thee, O people!

What can be the reason of the committee having delayed this business?

There is in that fragrant pot of roses several opening buds.

I have often saw those kind of fruit.

Planets govern not the soul, nor guided not the destinies of man.

Man, thou hast a social spirit, and are deeply indebted to thy kind.

I refer to no other than he.

O! thou who dries the mourners tear!

Whose gray top shall tremble, him descending.

Him being slain, the whole army retreated.

Mans happiness, or misery, are, in a great measure, put into their own hands.

Never was any men so ignorant as them.

The sun has threw his rays, beautifully and bright, across the plains.

Thou who has been a witness of the fact, can give an account of it.

Full fathom five thy father lies;

Of his bones are coral made;

Those are pearls, that was his eyes;

Nothing of him that doth fade.—Shakspeare.

The masons desiring to have a level wall, they level it with a spirit level.

He is averse to the nation involving themselves in another war.

He saw his plight, nor fears the thunders roar,

He threw the rope and draws him safe on shore.

The lovers plight their vows.

In proportion as either of these two qualities are wanting, the language is imperfect.

To live soberly, righteously, and pious, are important duties.

PART SECOND.

SPECIAL RULES AND OBSERVATIONS.

NAMES OR NOUNS.

42. When two or more names, referring to the same individual, as the possessor, follow each other in close succession, the apostrophe must, generally, be added to the last name only; especially if the object owned be expressed: as, "That monster, Satan, the fallen angel's power." "Washington, the President of the United States' address."

But when the names refer to several individuals, each must have the apostrophe: as, "Samuel's, John's, and the girl's books." "Our Lord's and the Apostle's words."

NOTE.—Grammarians differ in regard to this rule. See "Frazee's Grammar," R. IV.; "Murray's Grammar," R. X., Note 1.

43. When extent and duration are connected in the same simple sentence, the extent should be placed before the duration: as, "But now commandeth all men every where to repent." "This has been known to all men of every age."

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Beyond the bounds of time and space.

The effectiveness of the pulpit has declined among us, within the last fifty years, to an alarming extent.

From the days of Samuel to the days of Paul, the history of the Jewish and Christian Church speaks the same language.

And yet this scheme, for more than six centuries, gave law to the world.

In every composition, what interests the imagination, and touches the heart, pleases all ages and all nations.

VERBS.

44. The verb be, and some others, if preceded by a subject or object, require a corresponding subject or object after them, when both words signify the same thing: as, "It is I." "We know it to be them." "He was crowned king." (See Note under Examples, Section 20.)

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION

And they are them which testify of me.

Who did they represent him to be? (Transpose.)

They supposed it was him.

After all their professions, is it possible to be them?

He is not the person whom it seemed he was. (Transpose.)

It might have been him, but there is no proof of it.

And whom think ye that I am? (Transpose.)

Can it be me?

We thought it was thee.

I know not whether it were them who conducted the business; but I am certain it was not him.

45. A verb, having more than one subject, may conform to either; but preference should be given to that which is most naturally its subject: as, "The wages of sin is death." "His meat was locusts and wild honey." "I or thou art to blame." "Neither he nor I am responsible."

NOTE.—It would be better to change the form of the last two sentences, thus: "Either I am to blame, or thou art." "He is not responsible, nor am I."

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

You or I are disappointed. (See Note above.)

The reproofs of instruction is the way of life.

The soul's calm sunshine and the heartfelt joy are virtue's prize.

This report were the means of injuring the mayor, aldermen, and common council.

So great an affliction to him was his wicked sons.

They is the strength of the union.

Ten added to ten are a score.

The breadth of it were fifty cubits.

The wall are ten feet high.

Ten feet are the breadth of the floor.

46. Two or more singular nouns, which refer to the same person or thing, connected by and, expressed or implied, have the same relation to verbs, nouns, and pronouns, as one singular noun: as, "That great statesman and hero is no more." (See Section 33.)

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Pliny the philosopher and naturalist have greatly enriched science.

That able scholar and critic have been eminently useful.

To them, this spurner of gold, this rejector of honors, this trampler on earth, are fools and madmen.

47. Verbs of giving, asking, teaching, and some others, may have two objects: as, "Give me a pen." "Ask him the news." "She taught them astronomy." "Send her a letter."

NOTE.—In such expressions a preposition is understood: as, "Give to me a pen," &c. (See Section 40.)

48. Every subject, except such as are included in Sections 25 and 26, must have a finite verb expressed or implied.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

There, too, the bold Indian girl, with graceful bearing and lustrous eyes, in glittering dress of painted skins.

Heretofore the brave soldiers, who have contributed so much to the glory of our country, liable to be cruelly flogged for even slight misdemeanors.

The ignis-fatuus, like a friendly light, but it betrays the unwary traveller down to the secret chambers of death.

Beings who never smile but at the tears of others ; whose joy consists in the wreck of human happiness ; and, whose only music is the voice of lamentation and wo.

Virtue, however it may be neglected for a time, men are so constituted as ultimately to acknowledge and respect genuine merit.

49. Every finite verb must have a subject expressed or implied.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Never was a governor more necessary to a province ; but would have been almost impossible for the king to have selected one less qualified for the station.

With regard to created beings, is a duration has a beginning, but will never have an end.

The magnificent achievement won the admiration which was due to an enterprise seemed more divine than human.

Ignorant of the great principles of religion, and of its power to save, and wear it as a cloak to hide the deformity within.

As well might the oyster attempt to pass judgment on the towering eagle, flying on the wings of the storm, and mounts and mingles with the new born light.

50. Infinite verbs require the sign to after dare, "to challenge;" and also after dare, "to venture," when it refers to past or future time: as, "He dared the enemy to meet him." "They dared to leap the chasm." "Will you dare to face the tyrant?" (See Section 10.)

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Dare me fire a gun.

He did not dare cross the rushing stream.

You will not dare say to the face what you so freely utter behind the back.

You have dared throw more than a suspicion upon my character.

He will not dare attack his adversary.

Although I felt myself honored by the offer, yet I dared not accept it.

He dares not to touch a hair of Catline.

DISTINCTIONS OF TIME.

51. Verbs of past time have no reference to the present; but verbs of prior-present time refer to a past period, which immediately precedes, or includes the present.

EXAMPLES.

I have completed the work more than a week ago — should be, I completed, &c.

The Lord hath given and the Lord hath taken away — The Lord gave, &c.

I remember the family more than twenty years — I have remembered.

He has seen the coronation at Westminster last summer — He saw.

Charles has lately finished the building — Charles lately finished.

They have labored on a farm until very recently — They labored.

This man has been sick a short time since — was sick.

When in Italy, I have visited Rome — I visited.

I read Virgil several times — I have read.

In the beginning, God has created the heavens and the earth — God created.

Philosophers have made great discoveries in the last century — Philosophers made.

Philosophers made great discoveries the present century — Philosophers have made.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Pharaoh and his men of war have been swept away with the waters of destruction.

Dr. Morse says the forts of the Romans in England have been universally square.

The northern parts of North America were known to us but about two centuries, yet, during that time, no less than forty-five earthquakes occurred.

The ancients have understood the art of making glass.

I will pay the vows which my lips have uttered, when I have been in trouble.

This curious piece of workmanship was preserved, and shown to strangers, for more than fifty years past.

This mode of expression has been formerly much admired.

52. When an infinitive verb refers to an action or event as prior to that of the verb which it follows, the prior-present form must be used; otherwise the present: as, “You appear to have been intoxicated yesterday.” “You appear to be intoxicated now.” “It gratified me to see my friend.”

NOTE.—The above is a general rule: the following special rule, from Murray, is very convenient in some cases: “All verbs expressive of hope, desire, intention, or command, must invariably be followed by the present, and not the prior-present of infinitive verbs.”

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

General Washington employed several cruisers to have intercepted the ships of the enemy.

They left this monument to have preserved the memory of their voyage.

He is said to write much in former years.

The last week I intended to have gone.

From his biblical knowledge, he appears to study the Holy Scriptures with great attention.

She ordered her waiter to have returned home.

Frances ought to go yesterday.

I intended to have spent only a few days here, and then to have returned to Montreal.

He appears to make a clean sweep, wherever he has been.

53. I. When uncertainty and futurity are both to be expressed by a verb of present time, it takes the regular form with any subject whatever: as,

If thou injure another, thou wilt hurt thyself.

If he continue impenitent, he must suffer.

He will maintain his principles, though he lose his estate.

Whether he be successful or not, his intention is laudable.

Love not sleep, lest thou come to poverty.

Take heed that thou speak not to Jacob.

NOTE.—This Section is an exception to Section 29, I. II. III.

II. When the verb were conveys an idea of uncertainty, it becomes wert with thou, and remains unchanged with all other singular subjects: as, "If thou wert he." "Wert thou he." "If it were possible, they would deceive the elect." (See Section 29, II.)

NOTE.—The peculiar forms of this Section are, generally, preceded by one of the following conjunctions: if, though, unless, except, lest, that, whether, &c.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Unless thou learnest faster, thou wilt be no scholar.

If he does but touch the hills, they shall smoke.

No power, except it was given from above.

Though he slays me, yet will I trust in him.

Though our Savior were rich, yet for our sakes he became poor.

Though He were a son, yet learned he obedience, by the things which he suffered.

If he does submit, it will be from necessity.

Unless he acts prudently, he will not accomplish his purpose.

What though the field is lost? all is not lost!

Though he do submit, yet he is not convinced.

WILL AND SHALL.

54. In the prior-future, will should not be used with I or we; nor shall with any other subject, unless that subject be preceded by if, though, unless, &c.

EXAMPLES.

Incorrect.Correct.

I will have loved.	I shall have loved.
We will have stood.	We shall have stood.
Thou shalt have been	Thou will have been.
He shall have found.	He will have found.
Charles shall have come.	Charles will have come.
The men shall have gone.	The men will have gone.
You shall have learned.	You will have learned.
If thou will have been.	If thou shalt have been.
Though he will have found.	Though he shall have found.
Unless Charles will have come.	Unless Charles shall have come.
Except you will have learned.	Except you shall have learned.
If I will have loved.	If I shall have loved.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

After we will have come, you may return.
 He shall have completed the work by midsummer.
 If he will have completed the work by midsummer.
 I will have returned.
 We will have improved.
 The men shall have finished their labors.
 Though the birds will have builded their nests.
 Unless I will have arrived.
 Provided we will have rented the house.

55. After I or we, will denotes resolution and promising, and shall simply foretels: as, "I will grant your request, but will deny his." "We will profit by your advice, and strive to improve." "I shall see them next week." "We shall begin in the morning."

After any other subject, will only foretels, and shall promises, commands, or threatens: as, "Thou wilt soon regret it." "James will depart to-morrow, and they will immediately follow him." "You shall inherit the land." "Thou shalt do justice and love mercy." "They shall account for it."

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Though he slay me, yet shall I trust in him.

The officer shall have difficulty in keeping the men quiet.

Shall you sell your soul for gold? No, I shall restore it.

Here you shall see a river of considerable magnitude.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

I will be drowned, nobody shall help me.

GENERAL ARRANGEMENT.

56. In the use of words and phrases which, in point of time, relate to each other, a due regard to that relation should be observed. All the parts of a sentence should correspond to each other: a regular and dependent construction, throughout, should be carefully preserved. As a general rule, "Observe what the sense necessarily requires."

EXAMPLES.

I am the Lord, that maketh all things: that stretch forth the heavens alone — It should read, that maketh, that stretcheth; or, that make, that stretch.

If a man have a hundred sheep, and one of them is gone astray — Either has a hundred, and is gone; or, have a hundred, and be gone

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

The oak mocketh at the fury of the storm, and rejoices in summer sunshine.

I feared that I should have lost the parcel, before I arrived at the city.

I have compassion on the multitude, because they continue with me now three days.

John will earn his wages, when his service is completed.

The hero returns, like a triumphant conqueror, was drawn in a chariot of four; having worn the crown of victory, and was everywhere greeted with the acclamations of the people.

It was when Eve saw that the tree had been pleasant to the eyes, that she has taken of the fruit thereof; by which act she loses Eden, and brings death into our world.

I have resided at Washington six months, and seen the President last week.

The next new year's day, I shall be at school three years.

To lie in my berth, I could not; sit still, when out of it, was impossible.

PARTICIPLES.

57. If either a, an, or the, stands before a present participle, in sentences like the following, of must be placed immediately after it: as, “By the observing of which.” “By the preaching of repentance.” “From a rising of the tide.”

NOTE.—In such instances, the definitive and the preposition must both be used, or both omitted. (See Section 41, d.)

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

This may prove the sealing his eyes in perpetual darkness.

What! threaten me with telling of the king?

This principle manifests itself in the acquiring money; in keeping of it; and in the fixing the heart upon it.

By a continual mortifying our corrupt affections.

This was, in fact, a converting the deposit to his own use.

58. A verb is said to be REGULAR, when its prior-present infinitive adds d or ed to the present: as, present, “to love ;” prior-present, “to have loved .”

All others are called IRREGULAR: as, present, “to go ;” prior-present, “to have gone .”

The following is a list of IRREGULAR VERBS.

NOTE.—Those verbs which are sometimes used in the regular form are marked with an R.

Present Infin. Verb.	Prior-present Infinitive Verb.	Perfect Participle.	Verb of Past Time.
To abide,	To have abode,	abode,	abode.
To arise,	To have arisen,	arisen,	arose.
To awake,	To have awoke, R.	awoke, R.	awoke, R.
To be,	To have been,	been,	were.
To bear,	To have borne, born,	borne, born,	bore.
To beat,	To have beat, beaten,	beat, beaten,	beat.
To become,	To have become,	become,	became.
To begin,	To have begun,	begun,	began, begun.
To bend,	To have bent, R.	bent, R.	bent, R.
To bereave,	To have bereft, R	bereft, R.	bereft, R.
To beseech,	To have besought,	besought,	besought.
To bid,	To have bidden, bid,	bidden, bid.	bade, bid.
To bind,	To have bound,	bound,	bound.
To bite,	To have bit, bitten,	bit, bitten,	bit.
To bleed,	To have bled,	bled,	bled.
To blow,	To have blown, R.	blown, R.	blew, R.
To break,	To have broken, broke,	broken, broke,	broke.
To breed,	To have bred,	bred,	bred.
To bring,	To have brought,	brought,	brought.
To build,	To have built, R.	built, R.	built, R.
To burst,	To have burst, R	burst, R.	burst, R.
To buy,	To have bought,	bought,	bought.
To cast,	To have cast,	cast,	cast,
To catch,	To have caught, R.	caught, R.	caught, R.
To chide,	To have chid,	chid,	chid.
To choose,	To have chosen, chose,	chosen, chose,	chose.
To cleave, to ad- here , R.
To cleave, to split ,	To have cleft, clove, cloven,	cleft, clove, cloven,	cleft.
To cling,	To have clung,	clung,	clung.
To clothe,	To have clad, R.	clad, R.	R.
To come,	To have come,	come,	came, come.
To cost,	To have cost,	cost,	cost.
To creep,	To have crept,	crept,	crept.
To cut,	To have cut,	cut,	cut.

Present Infinitive Verb.	Prior-present Infinitive Verb.	Perfect Participle.	Verb of Past Time.
To dare, to venture,	To have dared, R.	dared, R.	durst, R.
To dare, to challenge, R.
To deal,	To have dealt, R.	dealt, R.	dealt, R.
To dig,	To have dug, R.	dug, R.	dug, R.
To do,	To have done,	done,	did.
To draw,	To have drawn,	drawn,	drew.
To drive,	To have driven, drove,	driven, drove	drove.
To drink,	To have drank,	drank,	drank.
To dwell,	To have dwelt, R.	dwelt, R.	dwelt, R.
To eat,	To have eaten, eat,	eaten, eat,	ate, eat.
To engrave,	To have engraven, R.	engraven, R.	R.
To fall,	To have fallen,	fallen,	fell.
To feed,	To have fed,	fed,	fed.
To feel,	To have felt,	felt,	felt.
To fight,	To have fought,	fought,	fought.
To find,	To have found,	found,	found.
To flee,	To have fled,	fled,	fled.
To fly,	To have flown,	flown,	flew,
To fling	To have flung,	flung,	flung.
To forget,	To have forgot, forgotten,	} forgot, forgotten,	forgot.
To forsake,	To have forsaken,
To freeze,	To have frozen, froze,	forsaken,	forsook.
To get,	To have got, gotten,	frozen, froze.	froze.
To gild,	To have gilt, R.	got, gotten,	got.
To gird,	To have girt, R.	gilt, R.	gilt, R.
To give,	To have given,	girt, R.	girt, R.
To go,	To have gone,	given,	gave.
To grave,	To have graven, R.	gone,	went.
To grind,	To have ground,	graven, R	R.
To grow,	To have grown	ground,	ground.
To have,	To have had,	grown,	grew.
To hang, to take away life, R.		had,	had.
To hang, to suspend.	To have hung,	hung,	hung.
To hew,	To have hewn, R.	hewn, R.	R.
To hide,	To have hid, hidden.	hid, hidden,	hid.
To hit,	To have hit,	hit,	hit.
To hold,	To have held,	held,	held.
To hurt,	To have hurt,	hurt,	hurt.
To keep,	To have kept,	kept,	kept.
To knit,	To have knit,	knit,	knit.

Present Infin. Verb.	Prior-present Infinitive Verb.	Perfect Participle.	Verb of Past Time.
To know,	To have known,	known,	knew.
To lade,	To have laden, R.	laden, R.	R.
To lay,	To have laid,	laid,	laid.
To lead,	To have led,	led,	led.
To leave,	To have left,	left,	left.
To lend,	To have lent,	lent,	lent.
To let,	To have let,	let,	let.
To lie (down),	To have lain,	lain,	lay.
To load,	To have laden, R.	laden, R.	R.
To lose,	To have lost,	lost,	lost.
To make,	To have made,	made,	made.
To mean,	To have meant,	meant,	meant.
To meet,	To have met,	met,	met.
To mow,	To have mown, R.	mown, R.	R.
To pay,	To have paid,	paid,	paid.
To put,	To have put,	put,	put.
To quit,	To have quit, R.	quit, R.	quit, R.
To read,	To have read,	read,	read.
To rend,	To have rent,	rent,	rent.
To rid,	To have rode,	rode,	rid.
To ride,	To have rid,	rid,	rode.
To ring	To have rung,	rung,	rung, rang.
To rise,	To have risen,	risen,	rose.
To rive,	To have riven, R.	riven, R.	R.
To run,	To have run,	run,	run, ran,
To saw,	To have sawn, R.	sawn, R.	R.
To say,	To have said,	said,	said.
To see,	To have seen,	seen,	saw.
To seek,	To have sought,	sought,	sought.
To sell,	To have sold,	sold,	sold.
To send,	To have sent,	sent,	sent.
To set,	To have set,	set,	set.
To shake,	To have shaken,	shaken,	shook.
To shear,	To have shorn, R.	shorn, R.	R.
To shed,	To have shed,	shed.	shed.
To shine,	To have shone, R.	shone, R.	shone, R.
To shew (Pron. show),	To have shewn,	shewn,	shewn.
To show,	To have shown, R.	shown, R.	R.
To shoe,	To have shod,	shod,	shod.
To shoot,	To have shot,	shot,	shot.
To shrink,	To have shrunk,	shrunk,	shrunk.
To shred,	To have shred,	shred,	shred.
To shut,	To have shut,	shut,	shut.
To sing,	To have sung,	sung,	sung.

Present Infin. Verb.	Prior-present Infinitive Verb.	Perfect Participle.	Verb of Past Time.
To sink,	To have sunk,	sunk,	sunk.
To sit,	To have sat,	sat,	sat.
To slay,	To have slain,	slain,	slew.
To sleep,	To have slept,	slept,	slept.
To slide,	To have slid, R.	slid, R.	slid, R.
To sling,	To have slung,	slung,	slung.
To slink,	To have slunk,	slunk,	slunk.
To slit,	To have slit, R.	slit, R.	slit, R.
To smite,	To have smitten, smit,	smitten, smit.	smote.
To sow,	To have sown, R.	sown, R.	R.
To speak,	To have spoken, spoke,	spoken, spoke.	spoke.
To speed,	To have sped,	sped,	sped.
To spend,	To have spent,	spent,	spent.
To spill,	To have spilt, R	spilt, R.	spilt, R.
To spin,	To have spun,	spun,	spun.
To spit,	To have spit,	spit,	spit.
To split,	To have split,	split,	split.
To spread,	To have spread,	spread,	spread.
To spring,	To have sprung,	sprung,	sprung.
To stand,	To have stood,	stood,	stood.
To steal,	To have stole, stolen,	stole, stolen,	stole.
To sting,	To have stung,	stung,	stung.
To stink,	To have stunk,	stunk,	stunk.
To stick,	To have stuck,	stuck,	stuck.
To stride,	To have strid,	strid,	strode, strid.
To strike,	To have struck,	struck,	struck.
To string,	To have strung,	strung,	strung.
To strive,	To have striven, R.	striven, R.	strove, R.
To strow,	To have strown, R.	strown, R.	R.
To strew, R.
To swear,	To have sworn,	sworn,	swore.
To sweat,	To have sweat, R.	sweat, R.	sweat, R.
To swim,	To have swum,	swum,	swum, swam.
To swing,	To have swung,	swung,	swung.
To take,	To have taken,	taken,	took.
To teach,	To have taught,	taught,	taught.
To tear,	To have torn,	torn,	tore.
To tell,	To have told,	told,	told.
To think,	To have thought,	thought,	thought.
To thrive,	To have thrived,	thrived,	throve, R.
To throw,	To have thrown, R.	thrown, R.	threw, R.
To thrust,	To have thrust,	thrust,	thrust.
To tread,	To have trod, trodden,	trod, trodden,	trod.
To wear,	To have worn,	worn,	wore.
To weave,	To have woven, wove, R.	woven, wove, R.	wove, R.

Present Infin. Verb.	Prior-present Infinitive Verb.	Perfect Participle.	Verb of Past Time.
To weep,	To have wept,	wept,	wept.
To win,	To have won,	won,	won.
To wet,	To have wet, R.	wet, R.	wet, R.
To wind,	To have wound, R.	wound, R.	wound, R.
To work,	To have wrought, R.	wrought, R.	wrought, R.
To wring,	To have wrung, R.	wrung, R.	wrung, R.
To write,	To have written,	written,	wrote.

OBSOLETE FORMS.

Verbs of Past Time.

Bare,	drave,	sank,	sprang,
brake,	forgat,	spake,	stank,
clave,	gat,	spat,	sware.
crew,	sang,

Perfect Participles.

Bounden,	holden,	sitten,	stricken,
chidden,	ridden,	slidden,	swollen,
drunken,	shapen,	spitten,	thriven,
drunk,	shaven,	stridden,	waxen.

P R O N O U N S .

W H O A N D W H I C H .

59. Who is applied to persons, but never to children, things, and brutes: as, "A man who died." "The lady who purchased a piano."

Which is applied to children, animals, and things: as, "The child which came." "The bird which sings." "The cloak which I had."

Which, however, is applied to persons, when we wish to distinguish one person of two, or a particular individual among many others: as, “Which of the two men?” “Our Father, which art in heaven.”

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Who of these men came to her assistance?

The man which informed me was mistaken.

The horse whom I rode.

I saw the lady which sailed in yesterday's steamer.

The house whom I bought.

He was the most eloquent speaker which you ever heard.

The tiger is a beast of prey, who destroys without pity.

Is this the child whom you found?

60. It sometimes adds beauty and force to the compounds, whatsoever, whichsoever, and whoso- ever, to divide them by an intervening name: as,

What way soever I turn, death pursues me.

On which side soever the king cast his eyes.

Whose sins soever ye remit, they are remitted.

NOTE.—In parsing, these divided words should be united into one word.

ADJECTIVES.

61. Most adjectives are varied by three degrees of comparison, called the positive, the comparative, and the superlative.

The positive degree expresses a quality as distinct and positive: as, "Wise," "good," "white," "red."

The comparative degree expresses a quality greater or less in degree than the positive: as, "Wiser," "less wise," "better," "whiter," "redder."

The superlative degree expresses a quality of the highest or lowest degree: as, "Wisest," "least wise," "best," "whitest," "reddest."

Some adjectives admit an imperfect degree, which expresses a quality slightly below the positive. This degree always ends in ish: as, "Greenish," "saltish," "blackish."

The positive is usually changed to the comparative by adding r or er, or placing more or less before it; and to the superlative by adding st or est, or placing most or least before it: as,

Great,	greater,	greatest.
Heroic,	more heroic,	most heroic.
Wise,	less wise,	least wise.

A few adjectives are irregular in comparison: as,

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
Good,	better,	best.
Bad or evil,	worse,	worst.
Little,	less,	least.
Much or many,	more	most.
Near,	nearer,	nearest or next
Old,	older or elder,	oldest or eldest.
Late,	later,	latest or last.

62. Adjectives that have in themselves a superlative signification, do not properly admit of the comparative or superlative form superadded: as,

Chief,	extreme,	perfect,	right,
universal,	supreme,	straight,	square, &c.

The following are, therefore, incorrect: —

Chiefest,	extremest,	more perfect,
most universal,	more square,	&c.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

The sun's rays are spreading to the most extreme boundaries of the horizon.

More perfect rapture never thrilled human bosom.

This piece of timber is straighter than that.

Virtue confers the supremest dignity on man; and should be his chiefest desire.

This is the most universal preparation for every station of life.

He gave the fullest and the most sincere proof of the truest friendship.

That block is squarer than the others.

63. Double comparatives and superlatives should be avoided : as,

A worser conduct ; for, worse conduct.

Lesser hopes ; for, less hopes.

A more serener temper ; for, more serene.

The most straitest sect ; for, the straitest sect.

A more superior work ; for, a superior work.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

He spoke in the most strongest terms.

That piece of ice is more smoother than glass.

The nightingale's voice is the most sweetest in the grove.

The most pleasantest spot on earth is home.

The pleasures of the understanding are more preferable than those of the imagination, or of sense.

On the most loftiest mountains snow is ever found.

64. When a comparison is made, either with adjectives or adverbs, and refers only to two persons or things, the comparative degree must be used ; but when it refers to three or more, the superlative must be used : as,

Love is stronger than death.

The smaller of these two birds sings the more sweetly.

John is the best boy in the class, and studies the most diligently.

NOTE.—Good writers sometimes vary from this rule.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Of the two sisters, Mary is the oldest, and Eliza is the tallest.

Which of those three oranges is the riper.

He is the strongest of the two, but not the wisest.

Her parents often praised her, but her mother the most frequently.

Spring, summer, and autumn, are all pleasant; but I prefer the latter.

65. When the comparative degree is used, the latter term of comparison should not include the former: as,

Gold is more valuable than all the other metals; not, all the metals.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Job was more patient than all men.

Youth is less burdened with care than any period of life.

The regions around the poles are more seldom visited than any part of the globe.

Jacob loved Joseph better than all his children.

The ostrich is larger than any bird known to naturalists.

66. When the superlative degree is used, the latter term of comparison should include the former: as,

Hope is the most constant of all the passions; not, of all the other passions.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

An iceberg is the most splendid of all the other objects in the northern seas.

Eve was the fairest of all her daughters.

Rhode Island is the smallest of all the other states.

Robert is the most modest of all his brothers.

He spoke with so much propriety, that I understood him the best of all the others who spoke on the subject.

67. Adjectives are, occasionally, used to qualify verbs, adverbs, other adjectives, clauses, or sentences: as,

The wind blows cold.

Full oft she came.

The deep blue sky.

To be a coward is disgraceful.

DEFINITIVE ADJECTIVES.

68. The definitive adjective a is used before words beginning with a consonant, or u long, and before the word one: as, "A time," "a hand," "a union," "a unit," many a one."

An is used before words beginning with a vowel, or silent h; and before words in which the h is sounded, when the accent is on the second syllable: as, "An ounce," "an atom," "an hour," "an heroic poem," "an umpire."

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

It was a enemy, not an friend, who did this.

He waited a hour for a answer.

She is reading an universal history.

An union of sentiments is desirable.

A D V E R B S .

69. Many adverbs are compared like adjectives : as,

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
soon,	sooner,	soonest.
often,	oftener,	oftenest.

Those ending in ly are, generally, compared by more and most, less and least : as,

Wisely,	more wisely,	most wisely.
wisely,	less wisely,	least wisely.

70. The definitive adjective the, when applied to adverbs in the comparative and superlative degrees, seems to lose its original character, and to become a part of the adverb : as,

The more I examine it, the better I like it.

You admire this the least of any.

71. Adverbs are, generally, placed before adjectives, after verbs, and often between the auxiliary and the principal verb: as,

She is very good.
Charles reads well.
They had not come.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

You are left not alone to climb the arduous ascent.
The vessel swiftly and securely glides before the gale.
Some flowers very early bloom.
A better instance than this scarcely could be found.
He acted in somewhat a careless manner.
The waves are rolling continually.
Not only he found her employed, but pleased and tranquil also.
We cannot be engaged always.
He offered an apology, which being not admitted, he became submissive.
The heavenly bodies are in motion perpetually.

72. In using adverbs and adjectives, care should be observed not to substitute the one for the other: as,

George writes beautiful; for, beautifully.
He is miserably; for, miserable.
They came agreeable to promise; for, agreeably.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

How serious those leaden eyes dote on trifles!
The solitarily heron stands in the same lonely spot.
He acted neither witty nor wise in commending ridicule.

He speaks very fluent, reads excellent, but does not think very coherent.

The conspiracy was the easier discovered from its being known to many.

Samuel is an extreme dull scholar.

Has not your father grown incapable of reasonably affairs?

A thousand hearts beat happy, and all went merrily as a marriage bell.

He had many virtues, and was exceeding beloved.

PREPOSITIONS.

73. As the preposition among generally implies a number of things, it should not be used in connection with the definitive adjective every, which has a singular signification: as,

This is known among every class of men; better, among all classes, or, known to or by every class.

Vice prevails among every grade of society; better, in every grade, or, among all grades.

CONJUNCTIONS.

74. When verbs are connected by a conjunction, and the subject is not repeated, they must refer to the same time, have the same auxiliaries, expressed or implied, and follow the same form: but if there be a necessary change, in either of these respects, or if the assertion pass from an affirmative to a negative, or the contrary, the subject must be repeated: as,

John arose and followed him.
 They may go and may remain.
 She will live and die hoping.
 The girls are studious, and they will improve.
He is wealthy, but he is not generous.
He is not wealthy, but he is generous.

NOTE.—Good writers sometimes vary from this rule.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Tears, like the rain-drops, may fall without measure,
 But rapture and beauty cannot recall.

The latter will not only be inexpressive, but must also be monotonous and tiresome.

They have rewarded him liberally, and could not do otherwise.

He is not rich, but is respectable.

He lives temperately, and should live temperately.

He cannot swim, if he leaps out, yet thinks it the best course.

Our season of improvement is short; and, whether used or not, will soon pass away.

Rank may confer influence, but will not necessarily produce virtue.

Learning strengthens the mind; and, if properly applied, will improve our morals too.

If he choose to indulge in soliloquies, (and will be much inclined to do so,) he can relieve himself without disturbing others.

CORRESPONDING CONJUNCTIONS.

75. Some conjunctions require corresponding conjunctions to follow them, so that the latter member of the sentence answers to the former: as,

I. Though requires yet, or nevertheless: as, "Though he is old, yet he is active."

II. Whether — or: as, "Whether ye eat or drink."

III. Either — or: as, "They must either conquer, or be conquered."

IV. Neither — nor: as, "Neither life nor death can part us."

V. Both — and: as, "He is both proud and vain."

VI. As — as: expressing a comparison of equality: as, "The sea is as calm as a quiet lake."

VII. As — so: expressing a comparison of equality: as, "As thy day, so shall thy strength be."

VIII. As — so: expressing a comparison of quality: as, "As the one dieth, so dieth the other."

IX. So — as: with a verb expressing a comparison of quality: as, "To see thy glory, so as I have seen thee in thy sanctuary."

X. So — as: with an adjective or adverb, and with or without a negative, to limit the degree by comparison: as, "So far as he speaks the truth, I believe him." "Napoleon was not so noble a commander as Washington."

XI. So — as: expressing a consequence: as, "The waves were so high as to endanger the vessel."

XII. So — that: expressing a consequence: as, "He is so frail that he can scarcely support himself."

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

The scenery from Quebec to Gaspé is so diversified and picturesque as you could well imagine.

Whether upheld by strength, nor chance, nor fate.

I cannot tell whether he will go nor stay.

Either the clock and the watch runs too fast.

Pompey was not so great a man or Cæsar.

Neither time or tide waits for our gratification.

Neither the king or the queen was present.

They are both ready or willing to undertake the journey.

76. As is often improperly used for than, with the comparative degree of adjectives and adverbs: as,

This book is larger as that; for, than that.

He would rather ride as walk; for, than walk.

EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

Softer is the hide of the rhinoceros as the heart of deriding unbelief.

It is more pleasant to see a laughing cheek as a serious forehead.

Better to be the vilest of the vile, in the hated company of men, as to live a solitary wretch, dreading and wanting all things.

He was more eloquent, but not so learned as his predecessor. (Transpose.)

77. EXCEPTIONS AND IRREGULARITIES.

1. All is well. All is quiet.

2. Alfred, than whom a greater king never reigned.

3. It is I he seeks. It is me he seeks.

4. A great many. A thousand years.
5. Many a friend.
6. Ten head of cattle. Five sail of the line.
7. By this means. By that means.
8. Every three hours. This three months.
9. It is him you aim at.
10. It is he you aim at.
11. It is they that performed the work.
12. Be it enacted.
13. Green be the turf above thee.
14. Upon the soil they fought to save.
15. Who steals my purse steals trash.
16. For I have business would employ an age.
17. Though in her eye and faded cheek,
Is read the grief she will not speak.
18. Time need not be wasted.
19. No other historian of that country need be mentioned.
20. John needs advice.
21. Methinks I see the portals of eternity wide open to receive him.
22. She is worth him and all his connexions.
23. This life, at best, is but a dream.
24. This soldier talked the night away.
25. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.
26. The circumstances were as follow.
27. His words were as follows.
28. A picture of my friend.
29. A picture of my friend's.
30. The letter I expected yesterday, arrived to-day.
31. I am about to write.

PUNCTUATION.

(Compiled chiefly from Mr. Murray's Grammar.)

PUNCTUATION teaches to divide written composition into parts or sentences, by points or stops, as the sense and correct pronunciation require.

THE COMMA.

I. The several words of which a simple sentence consists, have so near a relation to each other, that, in general, no points are requisite, except a full stop at the end of it: as,

Every part of matter swarms with living creatures.
No state of life is exempt from trouble.

II. When a simple sentence is long, and the subject of the verb is accompanied with inseparable adjuncts, it may admit of a pause immediately before the verb: as,

To be totally indifferent to praise or censure, is a real defect in character.

III. When the connexion of the different parts of a simple sentence is interrupted by an imperfect phrase, a comma is usually introduced before the beginning, and at the end of such phrase: as,

His work is, in many respects, imperfect.
It is, therefore, not much approved.

IV. Two or more names, verbs, participles, pronouns, adjectives, adverbs, or prepositions, in the same construction, are separated by commas: as,

The length, breadth, and depth, are all equal.

In a letter we may advise, comfort, and discuss.

Thou art happy in being loved, esteemed, and respected.

You have slandered her, him, us, and others.

The most innocent pleasures are the sweetest, the most rational, the most affecting, and the most lasting.

He was suddenly, strangely, and fatally smitten.

They may go before, behind, around, or through the house.

NOTE.—Two words closely connected by a conjunction, generally form an exception to this rule: as,

Virtue and diligence lead to success.

We must live virtuously or viciously.

He was a great and good man.

Some live only to eat and drink.

V. When participles are followed by something that depends on them, they are, generally, separated from the rest of the sentence by a comma: as,

The king, approving the plan, put it in execution.

His talents, formed for great enterprises, could not fail to render him conspicuous.

VI. When a conjunction is separated by a phrase or sentence, from the verb to which it belongs, such intervening phrase has usually a comma at each extremity: as,

They set out early, and, before the close of the day, arrived at the destined place.

VII. Expressions in a direct address, nouns or pronouns placed independently with a participle, or infinitive verbs independent of the rest of the sentence, are separated by commas from the body of the sentence: as,

My friend, do not be alarmed.

His father dying, he succeeded to his estate.

To confess the truth, I was much in fault.

VIII. Names added to other names in the same construction, by way of explication or illustration, when accompanied with adjuncts, are set off by commas: as,

Paul, the apostle of the Gentiles, was eminent for his zeal and knowledge.

The butterfly, child of the summer, flutters in the sun.

But if such names are single, or only form a proper name, they are not so divided: as,

Paul the apostle.
The emperor Antoninus.

IX. Simple members of sentences connected by comparatives, unless very short, are, generally, distinguished by a comma: as,

Better is a dinner of herbs with love, than a stalled ox and hatred with it.

X. Words placed in opposition to each other, or with some marked variety; two or more nouns referring to the same preposition; and remarkable expressions, or short observations, somewhat in the manner of quotations, are, usually, distinguished by commas: as,

Though deep, yet clear; though gentle, yet not dull;
Strong, without rage; without o'erflowing, full.

Many states were in alliance with, and under the protection of Rome.

He was composed, both under the threatening, and at the approach, of a cruel and lingering death.

Plutarch calls lying, the vice of slaves.

XI. The pronouns who, which, and that, often require a comma before them: as,

He preaches sublimely, who lives a sober, righteous, and pious life.

XII. A simple member of a sentence, contained within another, unless the connexion is very close, must be distinguished by commas: as,

To improve time, while we are blessed with health, will smooth the bed of sickness.

XIII. When the verb be is followed by an infinitive verb, which, by transposition, might be made its subject, the former is generally separated from the latter verb by a comma: as,

The most obvious remedy is, to withdraw from all associations with bad men.

The first and most obvious remedy against the infection, is, to withdraw from all associations with bad men.

XIV. When a verb is understood, a comma may often be properly introduced: as,

From law arises security; from security, curiosity; from curiosity, knowledge.

XV. The words nay, so, hence, again, first, secondly, formerly, now, lastly, once more, above all, on the contrary, in the next place, in short, and all other words and phrases of the same kind, must, generally, be separated from the context by a comma: as,

He feared want, hence, he overvalued riches.

Finally, I shall only repeat what has been often justly said.

THE SEMICOLON.

I. When a member of a sentence contains a complete proposition, and is followed by a clause expressing an inference, or explanation, they must be separated by the semicolon: as,

Straws swim upon the surface; but pearls lie at the bottom.

But all subsists by elemental strife;
And passions are the elements of life.

II. When several short sentences follow each other, having only a slight connection in idea, they should be separated by the semicolon: as,

The epic poem recites the exploits of a hero; tragedy represents a disastrous event; comedy ridicules the vices and follies of mankind; pastoral poetry describes rural life; and elegy displays the tender emotions of the heart.

Though deep, yet clear; though gentle, yet not dull.
Strong, without rage; without o'erflowing, full.

THE COLON.

The colon is used—

I. When a member of a sentence is complete in itself, but followed by some supplemental remark, or further illustration of the subject: as,

Study to acquire a habit of thinking: no study is more important.

Nature confesseth some atonement to be necessary: the gospel discovers that the necessary atonement is made.

II. When a semicolon, or more than one, has preceded, and a still greater pause is necessary, in order to mark the connecting or concluding sentiment: as,

In faith and hope the world will disagree;
 But all mankind's concern is charity:
 All must be false that thwart this one great end;
 And, all of God, that bless mankind or mend.

III. When an example, a quotation, or a speech, is introduced: as,

The Scriptures give us an amiable representation of the Deity, in these words: "God is love."

He was often heard to say: "I am done with the world, and am willing to leave it."

IV. The propriety of using a colon, or semicolon, is sometimes determined by a conjunction's being expressed, or not expressed: as,

Do not flatter yourselves with the hope of perfect happiness: there is no such thing in the world.

Do not flatter yourselves with the hope of perfect happiness; for there is no such thing in the world.

THE PERIOD.

The period marks a full stop, and is placed at the close of a complete and independent sentence. It is also used after initials and abbreviations: as,

N. S. for New Style. Dr. for Doctor. Gen. for General.

THE DASH.

The dash marks an abrupt turn in the sentence: as,

Here lies the great — False marble, where?
If thou art he — but O how fallen!

THE POINT OF INTERROGATION

Follows a question: as,

When did he come?
Am I compelled to suffer?

THE POINT OF EXCLAMATION

Is applied to expressions of sudden emotion, surprise, joy, grief, &c., and also to invocations or addresses: as,

My friend! this conduct amazes me!
But alas! it was too late!

CAPITAL LETTERS.

Every name of the Deity —

The principal words in the title of a book or essay —

Every line in poetry —

All proper names of persons, places, &c. —

Adjectives derived from proper names —

All names of things when addressed —

Every sentence after a full stop —

Quotations, introduced after a colon —

The interjections, Oh, &c. — should begin with a capital letter.

The pronoun I, and the interjection O, should always be capital letters.

GENERAL EXAMPLES FOR CORRECTION.

If we have no regard for our character we ought to have some regard for our interest

His hopes his happiness his very life hung upon the next word from those lips what is it that a roman would not suffer that a venetian prince must bear

Homer was the greater genius virgil the better artist in the one we more admire the man in the other the work homer like the Nile pours out his riches with a sudden overflow virgil like a river in its banks with a constant stream

Did ye not hear it no 'twas but the wind
Or the car rattling o'er the stony street

On with the dance let joy be unconfined
No sleep till morn when youth and pleasure meet
To chase the glowing hours with flying feet

But hark that heavy sound breaks in once more
As if the clouds its echo would repeat
And nearer clearer deadlier than before
Arm arm it is it is the cannon's opening roar

philip III king of spain when he drew near the end of his days seriously reflecting on his past life and greatly affected with the remembrance of his mispent time expressed his deep regret in these terms "ah how happy would it have been for me had i spent in retirement these twenty three years that i have possessed my kingdom."

The Gardens of the World produce only deciduous flowers Perennial ones must be sought in the Delightful Regions Above Roses without Thorns are the Growth of paradise alone

He advanced slowly silently cautiously but resolutely to the centre of the hostile camp

The sunrise drew her thoughts to europe forth
That thus apostrophized its viewless scene
"Land of my father's love my mother's birth
The home of kindred I have never seen
We know not other oceans are between Yet say far friendly hearts from whence we came
Of us does oft remembrance intervene
My mother sure my sire a thought may claim
But gertrude is to you an unregarded name"

APPENDIX.

FOR the accommodation of teachers who prefer the usual method of conjugating verbs, we add the following Appendix. A comparison between this and the 28th Section of the Grammar will show the superior advantages of forming verbs from the infinitive.

PERSON.

The person of a word is a relation resulting from its position in a sentence, as representing the speaker, hearer, or individual spoken of. There are three persons, called the first, second, and third persons.

The first person denotes the speaker: as, "I, Isaac Jones, hereby declare, &c."

The second person denotes the individual or thing spoken to: as, "James, go home."

The third person denotes the individual or thing spoken of: as, "William lost a watch."

MOODS.

Mood is the manner of representing action, being, or state.

Verbs are said to have five moods; the Infinitive, the Indicative, the Potential, the Subjunctive, and the Imperative.

The Infinitive mood expresses action, being, or state, without limitation by person and number: as, "To run," "to love," "to be."

The Indicative mood simply indicates or declares a thing, or asks a question: as, "He sleeps," "they read," "who reads?"

The Potential mood expresses the power, liberty, possibility, or necessity, of action, being, or state: as, "I may come," "you must cease."

The Subjunctive mood expresses action, being, or state, in a doubtful or conditional manner: as, "If you return," "unless he go."

The Imperative mood is used for commanding, exhorting, entreating, or permitting: as, "Depart thou," "be encouraged," "assist me," "go in peace."

CONJUGATIONS.

LOVE.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

PRESENT TIME.

To love.

PRIOR-PRESENT, OR PERFECT.

To have loved.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

PRESENT TIME.

Singular.First Person. I love.Second Person. Thou lovest.Third Person. He loves.Plural.First Person. We love.Second Person. You love.Third Person. They love.

OR,

1. I do love.

2. Thou dost love.

3. He does love.

1. We do love.

2. You do love.

3. They do love.

PAST, OR IMPERFECT.

1. I loved.

2. Thou lovedst.

3. He loved.

1. We loved.

2. You loved.

3. They loved.

OR,

1. I did love.

2. Thou didst love.

3. He did love.

1. We did love.

2. You did love.

3. They did love.

PRIOR-PRESENT, OR PERFECT.

1. I have loved.

2. Thou hast loved.

3. He has loved.

1. We have loved.

2. You have loved.

3. They have loved.

PRIOR-PAST, OR PLUPERFECT.

Singular.

1. I had loved.
2. Thou hadst loved.
3. He had loved.

Plural.

1. We had loved.
2. You had loved.
3. They had loved.

FUTURE, OR FIRST FUTURE.

1. I shall or will love.
2. Thou shalt or wilt love.
3. He shall or will love.

1. We shall or will love.
2. You shall or will love.
3. They shall or will love.

PRIOR-FUTURE, OR SECOND FUTURE.

1. I shall have loved.
2. Thou wilt have loved.
3. He will have loved.

1. We shall have loved.
2. You will have loved.
3. They will have loved.

POTENTIAL MOOD.

PRESENT, OR INDEFINITE TIME.

Singular.

1. I may, can, must, might, could, would, or should love.
2. Thou mayst, canst, must, mightst, couldst, wouldst, or shouldst love.
3. He may, can, must, might, could, would, or should love.

Plural.

1. We may, can, must, might, could, would, or should love.
2. You may, can, must, might, could, would, or should love.
3. They may, can, must, might could, would, or should love.

PRIOR-PRESENT, OR PERFECT.

Singular.

1. I may, can, must, might, could, would, or should have loved.
2. Thou mayst, canst, must, mightst, couldst, wouldst, or shouldst have loved.
3. He may, can, must, might, could, would, or should have loved.

Plural.

1. We may, can, must, might, could, would, or should have loved.
2. You may, can, must, might, could, would, or should have loved.
3. They may, can, must, might, could, would, or should have loved.

NOTE.—Some give the paradigm of the Potential thus:

Present.—I may, can, or must love, &c.

Past.—I might, could, would, or should love, &c.

Perfect.—I may, can, or must have loved, &c.

Pluperfect.—I might, could, would, or should have loved, &c.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

PRESENT TIME.

Singular.

1. If I love.
2. If thou love.
3. If he love.

Plural.

1. If we love.
2. If you love.
3. If they love.

PAST OR IMPERFECT.

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|-------------------|
| 1. If I loved. | 1. If we loved. |
| 2. If thou loved or lovedst. | 2. If you loved. |
| 3. If he loved. | 3. If they loved. |

PRIOR-FUTURE, OR SECOND FUTURE.

- | | |
|------------------------------|------------------------------|
| 1. If I shall have loved. | 1. If we shall have loved. |
| 2. If thou shalt have loved. | 2. If you shall have loved. |
| 3. If he shall have loved. | 3. If they shall have loved. |

NOTE.—The other divisions of time, in the Subjunctive, are similar to the corresponding divisions of the Indicative, with a conjunction prefixed.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

PRESENT TIME.

- Singular.* 2. Love (thou), or Do thou love.
Plural. 2. Love (ye or you), or Do you love.

PARTICIPLES.

- | Present. | Perfect. | Compound Perfect. |
|-----------------|-----------------|--------------------------|
| Loving. | Loved. | Having loved. |

BE

BE LOVED.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

PRESENT.

- | | |
|--------|--------------|
| To be. | To be loved. |
|--------|--------------|

PRIOR-PRESENT OR PERFECT.

- | | |
|---------------|---------------------|
| To have been. | To have been loved. |
|---------------|---------------------|

INDICATIVE MOOD.

PRESENT.

Singular.

- | | |
|--------------|--------------------|
| 1. I am. | 1. I am loved. |
| 2. Thou art. | 3. Thou art loved. |
| 3. He is. | 2. He is loved. |

Plural.

- | | |
|--------------|--------------------|
| 1. We are. | 1. We are loved. |
| 2. You are. | 3. You are loved. |
| 3. They are. | 2. They are loved. |

PAST, OR IMPERFECT.

Singular.

- | | |
|---------------|---------------------|
| 1. I was. | 1. I was loved. |
| 2. Thou wast. | 2. Thou wast loved. |
| 3. He was. | 3. He was loved. |

Plural.

- | | |
|---------------|---------------------|
| 1. We were. | 1. We were loved. |
| 2. You were. | 2. You were loved. |
| 3. They were. | 3. They were loved. |

PRIOR-PRESENT, OR PERFECT.

Singular.

- | | |
|--------------------|--------------------------|
| 1. I have been. | 1. I have been loved. |
| 2. Thou hast been. | 2. Thou hast been loved. |
| 3. He has been. | 3. He has been loved. |

Plural.

- | | |
|--------------------|--------------------------|
| 1. We have been. | 1. We have been loved. |
| 2. You have been. | 2. You have been loved. |
| 3. They have been. | 3. They have been loved. |

PRIOR-PAST, OR PLUPERFECT.

Singular.

- | | |
|---------------------|---------------------------|
| 1. I had been. | 1. I had been loved. |
| 2. Thou hadst been. | 2. Thou hadst been loved. |
| 3. He had been. | 3. He had been loved. |

Plural.

- | | |
|-------------------|-------------------------|
| 1. We had been. | 1. We had been loved. |
| 2. You had been. | 2. You had been loved. |
| 3. They had been. | 3. They had been loved. |

FUTURE, OR FIRST FUTURE.

Singular.

- | | |
|----------------------------------|--|
| 1. I shall or will be. | 1. I shall or will be loved. |
| 2. Thou shalt or wilt be. | 2. Thou shalt or wilt be loved. |
| 3. He shall or will be. | 3. He shall or will be loved. |

Plural.

- | | |
|----------------------------------|--|
| 1. We shall or will be. | 1. We shall or will be loved. |
| 2. You shall or will be. | 2. You shall or will be loved. |
| 3. They shall or will be. | 3. They shall or will be loved. |

PRIOR-FUTURE, OR SECOND FUTURE.

Singular.

- | | |
|-------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 1. I shall have been. | 1. I shall have been loved. |
| 2. Thou wilt have been. | 2. Thou wilt have been loved. |
| 3. He will have been. | 3. He will have been loved. |

Plural.

- | | |
|-------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 1. We shall have been. | 1. We shall have been loved. |
| 2. You will have been. | 2. You will have been loved. |
| 3. They will have been. | 3. They will have been loved. |

POTENTIAL MOOD.

PRESENT, OR INDEFINITE.

Singular.

- | | |
|-------------------|-------------------------|
| 1. I may be. | 1. I may be loved. |
| 2. Thou mayst be. | 2. Thou mayst be loved. |
| 3. He may be. | 3. He may be loved. |

Plural.

- | | |
|-----------------|-----------------------|
| 1. We may be. | 1. We may be loved. |
| 2. You may be. | 2. You may be loved. |
| 3. They may be. | 3. They may be loved. |

PRIOR-PRESENT, OR PERFECT.

Singular.

- | | |
|--------------------------|--------------------------------|
| 1. I may have been. | 1. I may have been loved. |
| 2. Thou mayst have been. | 2. Thou mayst have been loved. |
| 3. He may have been. | 3. He may have been loved. |

Plural.

- | | |
|------------------------|------------------------------|
| 1. We may have been. | 1. We may have been loved. |
| 2. You may have been. | 2. You may have been loved. |
| 3. They may have been. | 3. They may have been loved. |

NOTE.—Throughout this mood, proceed in the same manner, with the auxiliaries, can, must, might, could, would, and should.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

PRESENT TIME.

Singular.

- | | |
|----------------|----------------------|
| 1. If I be. | 1. If I be loved. |
| 2. If thou be. | 2. If thou be loved. |
| 3. If he be. | 3. If he be loved. |

Plural.

- | | |
|----------------|----------------------|
| 1. If we be. | 1. If we be loved. |
| 2. If you be | 2. If you be loved. |
| 3. If they be. | 3. If they be loved. |

PAST, OR IMPERFECT.

Singular.

- | | |
|---------------------------------|------------------------|
| 1. If I were. | 1. If I were loved. |
| 2. If thou wert or were. | 2. If thou wert loved. |
| 3. If he were. | 3. If he were loved. |

Plural.

- | | |
|------------------|------------------------|
| 1. If we were. | 1. If we were loved. |
| 2. If you were. | 2. If you were loved. |
| 3. If they were. | 3. If they were loved. |

PRIOR-FUTURE, OR SECOND FUTURE.

Singular.

- | | |
|-----------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 1. If I shall have been. | 1. If I shall have been loved. |
| 2. If thou shalt have been. | 2. If thou shalt have been loved. |
| 3. If he shall have been. | 3. If he shall have been loved. |

Plural.

- | | |
|-----------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 1. If we shall have been. | 1. If we shall have been loved. |
| 2. If you shall have been. | 2. If you shall have been loved. |
| 3. If they shall have been. | 3. If they shall have been loved. |

NOTE.—The other divisions of time, of the Subjunctive mood, are formed by prefixing a conjunction of doubt or condition to the corresponding divisions of the Indicative.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

PRESENT TIME.

Singular.

2. Be (thou), or Do thou be.
2. Be (thou) loved, or Do thou be loved.

Plural.

2. Be (ye or you), or Do you be.
2. Be (ye or you) loved, or Do you be loved.

PARTICIPLES.

Present.	Perfect.	Compound Perfect.
Being.	Been.	Having been.
Being loved.	Been loved.	Having been loved.

Verbs may also be conjugated, by adding the Present Participle to the Verb BE, in its various changes, through all the moods and divisions of time: as, "I am loving," "they were loving," "you will be loving," &c.

It is unnecessary to give these forms in detail, as they may all be easily obtained from the last example.

For the convenience of teachers who may not wish to adopt our method of showing the agreement between the verb and its subject, or nominative (in Section 29), we here give the usual

RULE.

A finite verb must agree with its subject, or nominative, in person and number: as, "I learn," "thou learnest," "he learns," "the boys learn."

THE END.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.'S PUBLICATIONS.

SPLENDID LIBRARY EDITIONS.

ILLUSTRATED STANDARD POETS.

ELEGANTLY PRINTED, ON FINE PAPER, AND UNIFORM IN SIZE AND STYLE.

The following Editions of Standard British Poets are illustrated with numerous Steel Engravings, and may be had in all varieties of binding.

BYRON'S WORKS.

COMPLETE, IN ONE VOLUME, OCTAVO.

INCLUDING ALL HIS SUPPRESSED AND ATTRIBUTED POEMS; WITH SIX
BEAUTIFUL ENGRAVINGS

THE POETICAL WORKS OF MRS. HEMANS.

COMPLETE, IN ONE VOLUME, OCTAVO; WITH SEVEN
BEAUTIFUL ENGRAVINGS.

MILTON, YOUNG, GRAY, BEATTIE, AND COLLINS'S POETICAL WORKS.

COMPLETE IN ONE VOLUME, OCTAVO.

WITH SIX BEAUTIFUL ENGRAVINGS.

Cowper and Thomson's Prose and Poetical Works.

COMPLETE IN ONE VOLUME, OCTAVO.

Including two hundred and fifty Letters, and sundry Poems of Cowper, never before published in this country; and a new and interesting Memoir of Thomson, and upwards of twenty new Poems, printed for the first time, from his own Manuscripts, taken from a late Edition of the Aldine Poets, now being published in London.

WITH SEVEN BEAUTIFUL ENGRAVINGS.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.'S PUBLICATIONS.

THE POETICAL WORKS OF ROGERS, CAMPBELL, MONT GOMERY, LAMB, AND KIRKE WHITE.

COMPLETE IN ONE VOLUME, OCTAVO.

WITH SIX BEAUTIFUL ENGRAVINGS.

CRABBE, HEBER, AND POLLOK'S POETICAL WORKS.

COMPLETE IN ONE VOLUME, OCTAVO.

WITH SIX BEAUTIFUL ENGRAVINGS.

No Library can be considered complete without a copy of the above beautiful and cheap editions of the English Poets; and persons ordering all or any of them, will please say, LIPPINCOTT, GRAMBO & Co.'s illustrated edition.

A COMPLETE

Dictionary of Poetical Quotations :

COMPRISING THE MOST EXCELLENT AND APPROPRIATE PASSAGES IN THE OLD BRITISH POETS; WITH CHOICE AND COPIOUS SELECTIONS
FROM THE BEST MODERN BRITISH AND AMERICAN POETS

EDITED BY SARAH JOSEPHA HALE.

As nightingales do upon glow-worms feed,
So poets live upon the living light
Of Nature and of Beauty.

Bailey's Festus.

Beautifully illustrated with Engravings. In one super-royal octavo volume, in various bindings.

THE DIAMOND EDITION OF BYRON.

THE POETICAL WORKS OF LORD BYRON.

WITH A SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

COMPLETE IN ONE NEAT DUODECIMO VOLUME, WITH STEEL PLATES.

THE POETICAL WORKS OF THOMAS MOORE, COLLECTED BY HIMSELF.

COMPLETE IN ONE VOLUME.

This work is published uniform with Byron, from the last London edition, and is the most complete printed in the country.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.'S PUBLICATIONS

M E C H A N I C S

FOR THE MILLWRIGHT, ENGINEER, AND MACHINIST, CIVIL ENGINEER AND ARCHITECT:

CONTAINING

THE PRINCIPLES OF MECHANICS APPLIED TO MACHINERY Of American Models, Steam-Engines, Water-Works, Navigation, Bridgebuilding, &c., &c.

BY FREDERICK OVERMAN, AUTHOR OF "THE MANUFACTURE OF IRON," AND OTHER SCIENTIFIC TREATISES.

Illustrated by 150 Engravings.

In one large 12mo. volume.

CALIFORNIA AND OREGON:

Or, Sights in the Gold Region, and Scenes by the Way.

BY THEODORE T. JOHNSON.

WITH A MAP AND ILLUSTRATIONS.

THIRD EDITION, WITH AN APPENDIX,

Containing Full Instructions to Emigrants by the Overland Route to Oregon.

BY HON. SAMUEL R. THURSTON,
Delegate to Congress from that Territory.

WILD WESTERN SCENES:

A NARRATIVE OF ADVENTURES IN THE WESTERN WILDERNESS.

Wherein the Exploits of Daniel Boone, the Great American Pioneer, are particularly described. Also, Minute Accounts of Bear, Deer, and Buffalo Hunts; Desperate Conflicts with the Savages; Fishing and Fowling Adventures; Encounters with Serpents, &c., &c.

BY LUKE SHORTFIELD, Author of "The Western Merchant."

WITH SIXTEEN BEAUTIFUL ILLUSTRATIONS.

In one volume, 12mo.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.'S PUBLICATIONS.

BALDWIN'S PRONOUNCING GAZETTEER.

A PRONOUNCING GAZETTEER:

Containing Topographical, Statistical, and other Information, of the more important Places in the known World, from the most recent and authentic Sources.

BY THOMAS BALDWIN,

Assisted by several other Gentlemen.

To which is added an APPENDIX, containing more than TEN THOUSAND ADDITIONAL NAMES, chiefly of the small Towns and Villages, &c., of the United States and of Mexico.

NINTH EDITION, WITH A SUPPLEMENT,

Giving the Pronunciation of near two thousand names, besides those pronounced in the Original Work: Forming in itself a Complete Vocabulary of Geographical Pronunciation.

ONE VOLUME 12MO. — PRICE, $1 50.

FIELD'S SCRAP BOOK. — NEW EDITION.

Literary and Miscellaneous Scrap Book.

Consisting of Tales and Anecdotes—Biographical, Historical, Moral, Religious, and Sentimental Pieces, in Prose and Poetry.

COMPILED BY WM. FIELDS.

SECOND EDITION, REVISED AND IMPROVED.

In one handsome 8vo. Volume. Price, $2 00.

PEPYS' DIARY.

DIARY AND CORRESPONDENCE

OF

SAMUEL PEPYS, F. R. S.

SECRETARY TO THE ADMIRALTY IN THE REIGNS OF CHARLES II. AND JAMES II.
FROM THE ORIGINAL SHORT-HAND MS. IN THE PEPYSIAN LIBRARY.
WITH A LIFE AND NOTES.

BY RICHARD LORD BRAYBROOKE.

First American, from the Fifth London Edition.

In four volumes. Price, $5

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.'S PUBLICATIONS.

HINDS'S FARRIERY AND STUD-BOOK—NEW EDITION

FARRIERY,

TAUGHT ON A NEW AND EASY PLAN:

BEING A

Treatise on the Diseases and Accidents of the Horse;

With Instructions to the Shoeing Smith, Farrier, and Groom; preceded by a Popular description of the Animal Functions in Health, and how these are to be restored when disordered.

BY JOHN HINDS, VETERINARY SURGEON.

With considerable Additions and Improvements, particularly adapted to this country,

BY THOMAS M. SMITH,

Veterinary Surgeon, and Member of the London Veterinary Medical Society.

WITH A SUPPLEMENT, BY J. S. SKINNER.

~~~~~
TO CARPENTERS AND MECHANICS.

JUST PUBLISHED.

A NEW AND IMPROVED EDITION OF

THE CARPENTER'S NEW GUIDE,

BEING A COMPLETE BOOK OF LINES FOR

CARPENTRY AND JOINERY;

Treating fully on Practical Geometry, Saffit's Brick and Plaster Groins, Niches of every description, Sky-lights, Lines for Roofs and Domes; with a great variety of Designs for Roofs, Trussed Girders, Floors, Domes, Bridges, &c., Angle Bars for Shop Fronts, &c., and Raking Mouldings.

ALSO,

Additional Plans for various Stair-Cases, with the Lines for producing the Face and Falling Moulds, never before published, and greatly superior to those given in a former edition of this work.

BY WM. JOHNSON, ARCHITECT,

OF PHILADELPHIA.

The whole founded on true Geometrical Principles; the Theory and Practice well explained and fully exemplified, on eighty-three Copper-Plates, including some Observations and Calculations on the Strength of Timber.

BY PETER NICHOLSON, author of "The Carpenter and Joiner's Assistant," "The Student's Instructor to the Five Orders," &c.

Thirteenth Edition. One volume, 4to., well bound.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.'S PUBLICATIONS.

THE CONFESSIONS OF A HOUSEKEEPER.

BY MRS. JOHN SMITH.

WITH THIRTEEN HUMOROUS ILLUSTRATIONS.

One Volume 12mo. Price 50 Cents.

THE HUMAN BODY AND ITS CONNEXION WITH MAN.

ILLUSTRATED BY THE PRINCIPAL ORGANS.

BY JAMES JOHN GARTH WILKINSON.

Member of the Royal College of Surgeons of England.

IN ONE VOLUME 12MO.—PRICE, $1 25.

BRADDOCK'S DEFEAT.

The History of an Expedition
AGAINST FORT DU QUESNE, IN 1775,
UNDER MAJOR-GENERAL EDWARD BRADDOCK.

Edited from the original MSS.,

BY WINTHROP SARGENT, M.A.

MEMBER OF THE HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

In one volume, octavo. $3.

Rifle and Light Infantry Tactics,
FOR THE EXERCISE AND MANŒUVRES OF TROOPS.

PREPARED UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE WAR DEPARTMENT,

BY BREVET LIEUT. COL. W. J. HARDEE, U. S. ARMY.

In two volumes. $1 50.

CAVALRY TACTICS.

PRINTED BY ORDER OF THE WAR DEPARTMENT.

In two volumes. $2 50.

ELLET ON THE OHIO AND MISSISSIPPI RIVERS

With Twelve Illustrations One volume octavo. Price $3.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.'S PUBLICATIONS.

---

NEW AND COMPLETE COOK-BOOK.

THE PRACTICAL COOK-BOOK,

CONTAINING UPWARDS OF

ONE THOUSAND RECEIPTS,

Consisting of Directions for Selecting, Preparing, and Cooking all kinds of Meats, Fish, Poultry, and Game; Soups, Broths, Vegetables, and Salads. Also, for making all kinds of Plain and Fancy Breads, Pastes, Puddings, Cakes, Creams, Ices, Jellies, Preserves, Marmalades, &c., &c., &c. Together with various Miscellaneous Recipes, and numerous Preparations for Invalids.

BY MRS. BLISS.

In one volume, 12mo.

---

THE YOUNG DOMINICAN; OR, THE MYSTERIES OF THE INQUISITION.

AND OTHER SECRET SOCIETIES OF SPAIN.

BY M. V. DE FERREAL.

WITH HISTORICAL NOTES, BY M. MANUEL DE CUENDIAS.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH.

ILLUSTRATED WITH TWENTY SPLENDID ENGRAVINGS BY FRENCH ARTISTS.

One volume, octavo.

---

TALES OF THE SOUTHERN BORDER.

BY C. W. WEBBER.

ONE VOLUME OCTAVO, HANDSOMELY ILLUSTRATED.

Price $1 50.

---

Gems from the Sacred Mine; OR, HOLY THOUGHTS UPON SACRED SUBJECTS.

BY CLERGYMEN OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

EDITED BY THOMAS WYATT, A. M.

In one volume, 12mo.

WITH SEVEN BEAUTIFUL STEEL ENGRAVINGS.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO'S PUBLICATIONS.

---

FROST'S JUVENILE SERIES.

TWELVE VOLUMES, 16mo., WITH FIVE HUNDRED ENGRAVINGS

WALTER O'NEILL, OR THE PLEASURE OF DOING GOOD.
25 Engravings.

JUNKER SCHOTT, and other Stories. 6 Engravings.

THE LADY OF THE LURLEI, and other Stories. 12 Engravings.

ELLEN'S BIRTHDAY, and other Stories. 20 Engravings.

HERMAN, and other Stories. 9 Engravings.

KING TREGEWALL'S DAUGHTER, and other Stories. 16 Engr's.

THE DROWNED BOY, and other Stories. 6 Engravings.

THE PICTORIAL RHYME-BOOK. 122 Engravings.

THE PICTORIAL NURSERY BOOK. 117 Engravings.

THE GOOD CHILD'S REWARD. 115 Engravings.

ALPHABET OF QUADRUPEDS. 26 Engravings.

ALPHABET OF BIRDS. 26 Engravings.

PRICE, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS EACH.

The above popular and attractive series of New Juveniles for the Young, are sold together or separately.

---

Lights and Shadows of English Life.

BY THE

AUTHORESS OF "CLARA CAMERON; OR, THE BELLE OF THE SEASON."

In two volumes, duodecimo. $1 50.

---

STANSBURY'S EXPEDITION TO THE GREAT SALT LAKE.

AN EXPLORATION OF THE VALLEY OF THE GREAT SALT LAKE OF UTAH,

CONTAINING ITS GEOGRAPHY, NATURAL HISTORY, MINERALOGICAL RESOURCES. ANALYSIS OF ITS WATERS, AND AN AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT OF

THE MORMON SETTLEMENT.

Also, A Reconnoissance of a New Route through the Rocky Mountains with Seventy Beautiful Illustrations, from Drawings taken on the spot, and two large and accurate Maps of that region.

BY HOWARD STANSBURY,

Captain Topographical Engineers. 2 vols. royal octavo. Price $5 00.

0 003 243 588 9

STANDARD SCIENCE

Published by J. B. LIPPINCOTT &amp; CO.

WEBSTER'S SERIES OF

Webster's Primary School Dictionary. A Pronouncing Dictionary, abridged from the complete work, with Synonyms and various useful tables. By Wm. G. WEBSTER. 304 pages, square 12mo.

Webster's Common School Dictionary. With Synonyms, and several useful tables, including a list of foreign phrases and words in common use, with an English translation. 370 pages, 12mo.

Webster's High School Pronouncing Dictionary. Abridged from the American Dictionary of NOAH WEBSTER, LL.D., with accented vocabularies of Classical, Scripture, and modern Geographical names. By WILLIAM G. WEBSTER. 12mo.

Webster's Quarto Academic Dictionary. For Academies and Seminaries. A Dictionary of the English Language, abridged from the large Work, containing several thousand additional words from the last edition of the large Work; important Etymology; rules for the orthography and pronunciation of words; the accented vocabularies of WALKER'S KEY to the classical pronunciation of Greek, Latin, and Scripture Proper names; with a Memoir of the Author. New Edition, with additions and improvements, including a copious Geographical Vocabulary. Cap quarto.

Webster's New University Dictionary. A Pronouncing and Defining Dictionary of the English Language, abridged from WEBSTER'S AMERICAN DICTIONARY; with numerous Synonyms, carefully discriminated. By CHAUNCEY A. GOODRICH, D.D., Professor in Yale College. To which are added, WALKER'S KEY to the pronunciation of Classical and Scripture Proper names; a Vocabulary of Modern Geographical Names; Phrases and Quotations from the Ancient and Modern Languages; Abbreviations used in Writing, Printing, &c. &c. 1 vol. octavo.

ARITHMETICAL WORKS.

Roswell C. Smith's Introductory Arithmetic. 18mo, half bound.

Roswell C. Smith's Practical and Mental, or Second Book in Arithmetic. 18mo, hf. bd.

Do. Key to the above. 18mo, half bound.

Do. New Arithmetic, or Third Book in Arithmetic. 12mo, half bound.

Do. Key to the above. 12mo., half bound.

Smiley's Table-Book. Stitched.

Do. Arithmetic.

Do. Key to do.

Tracy's Child's First Book in Arithmetic. 18mo.

Tracy's Elementary Arithmetic. 12mo, half roan.

Tracy's Scientific and Practical Arithmetic. 12mo, half roan, revised edition.

Key to do.

Tracy's Commercial and Mechanical Arithmetic. Sheep.

Key to do.

Emerson's N. A. Arithmetic. Part First.

Do. do. do. " Second.

Do. do. do. " Third.

Do. do. do. Key to Second and Third.

Bourdon's Arithmetic. By VENABLE. 12mo, half arabesque.

Loomis' (S. L.) Arithmetic. 1 vol. 12mo.

GEOGRAPHICAL SERIES.

BY ROSWELL C. SMITH, A.M.

Smith's First Book; or, Primary Geography. Designed for Children. Illustrated with 126 Engravings and 30 Maps. New Revised Edition.

Smith's Second Book; or, Quarto Geography. A Concise and Practical System of Geography for Schools, Academies, and Families. Designed as a Sequel to the First Book. Illustrated with 33 Steel Maps and numerous Engravings. Newly Revised and Enlarged Edition.

Smith's Geography and Atlas. Geography on the Productive System, for Schools, Academies, and Families. Newly Revised, Illustrated, and Corrected Edition, embracing 40 pages of Ancient Geography, accompanied with a large and valuable Atlas, containing several new Maps,—also a large one of the Roman Empire. (Atlas bound in stiff covers.)

An Historical Text-Book, and Atlas of Biblical Geography. With seven new Maps engraved on steel. By LYMAN COLEMAN, D.D.

SARGENT'S SERIES OF READERS.

Sargent's Standard Fifth or First Class Reader. 12mo, half morocco.

Sargent's Standard Fourth Reader. 12mo, half morocco.

Sargent's Standard Third Reader. 12mo, half morocco.

Sargent's Standard Second Reader. Illustrated.

Sargent's Standard First Reader. Illustrated.

Sargent's Standard Primer. Finely Illustrated.

Sargent's Standard Spelling Book.

Sargent's Standard Primary Spelling Book.