

A

0 0 0 5 0
1
0
7
7
2

US SOUTHERN REGIONAL LIBRARY FACILITY

TWENTY

STELLA BENSON

THE LIBRARY
OF
THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA
LOS ANGELES

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2007 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

TWENTY

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY
NEW YORK · BOSTON · CHICAGO · DALLAS
ATLANTA · SAN FRANCISCO

MACMILLAN & CO., LIMITED
LONDON · BOMBAY · CALCUTTA
MELBOURNE

THE MACMILLAN CO. OF CANADA, LTD.
TORONTO

T W E N T Y

BY

STELLA BENSON

AUTHOR OF

“THIS IS THE END,” “I POSE”

New York

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY

1918

All rights reserved

COPYRIGHT, 1918,
BY THE MACMILLAN COMPANY.

Set up and electrotyped. Published June, 1918.

Norwood Press
J. S. Cushing Co. — Berwick & Smith Co.
Norwood, Mass., U.S.A.

PR
6003 B435t

PREFACE

ALMOST all the verses in this book have appeared before, the majority of them included in two books, I Pose and This is the End. Messrs. Macmillan, who published these, have been kind in raising no objection to re-publication. I have also to thank the Editors of the Athenæum, Everyman, and the Pall Mall Gazette for allowing me to reprint verses.

The title of the book has no reference to the writer's age.

S. B.

CONTENTS

	PAGE
CHRISTMAS, 1917	9
THE SECRET DAY	11
SONG	14
THE ORCHARD	16
THANKS TO MY WORLD FOR THE LOAN OF A FAIR DAY	19
SONG	21
WORDS	23
REDNECK'S SONG	25
TO THE UNBORN	27
THE NEWER ZION	29
TWO WOMEN SING	34
THE WOMAN ALONE	36
THE INEVITABLE	38
THE DOG TUPMAN	40
SAINT BRIDE	42
THE SLAVE OF GOD	44
TRUE PROMISES	48
THE CORNISHMAN	51
FIVE SMOOTH STONES	53
NEW YEAR, 1918	59

CHRISTMAS, 1917

A KEY no thief can steal, no time can rust ;

A faery door, adventurous and golden ;

A palace, perfect to our eyes — Ah must

Our eyes be holden ?

Has the past died before this present sin ?

Has this most cruel age already stonèd

To martyrdom that magic Day, within Those halls, enthronèd ?

No. Through the dancing of the young spring rain,
Through the faint summer, and the
 autumn's burning,
Our still immortal Day has heard again
Our steps returning.

THE SECRET DAY

My yesterday has gone, has gone and left me tired,
And now to-morrow comes and beats
upon the door ;
So I have built To-day, the day that I desired,
Lest joy come not again, lest peace
return no more,
Lest comfort come no more.

So I have built To-day, a proud and perfect day,
And I have built the towers of cliffs
upon the sands ;
The foxgloves and the gorse I planted
on my way ;

The thyme, the velvet thyme, grew up
beneath my hands,
Grew pink beneath my hands.

So I have built To-day, more precious than a dream ;
And I have painted peace upon the sky above ;
And I have made immense and misty seas, that seem
More kind to me than life, more fair to me than love —
More beautiful than love.

And I have built a house — a house
upon the brink
Of high and twisted cliffs; the sea's
low singing fills it ;
And there my Secret Friend abides,
and there I think I'll hide my heart away before tomorrow kills it —
A cold to-morrow kills it.

THE SECRET DAY 13

Yes, I have built To-day, a wall against
To-morrow,

So let To-morrow knock — I shall not be afraid,

For none shall give me death, and none
shall give me sorrow,

And none shall spoil this darling day
that I have made.

No storm shall stir my sea. No night
but mine shall shade

This day that I have made.

SONG

THERE is the track my feet have worn
By which my fate may find me :
From that dim place where I was born
Those footprints run behind me.
Uncertain was the trail I left,
For — oh, the way was stormy ;
But now this splendid sea has cleft
My journey from before me.

Three things the sea shall never end,
Three things shall mock its power :
My singing soul, my Secret Friend,
And this, my perfect hour.

And you shall seek me till you reach
The tangled tide advancing,
And you shall find upon the beach
The traces of my dancing,
And in the air the happy speech
Of Secret Friends romancing.

THE ORCHARD

I WILL repent me of my ways ;
I will come here and bury
Five thousand odd superfluous days
Beneath a flow'ring cherry.

Between a pear and a cherry tree
My temple I will enter —
My place, where even I may be
The altar and the centre.

One altar to a thousand aisles,
A hundred thousand arches . . .
The loud lamb-choir about me files,
The bleating bishop marches,

The congregation kneels and nods,
The bishop leads its praises,

So I'll pray too, to their dim gods
Whose feet are decked with daisies :

*Ah, let me not grow old. Ah, let Me not grow old, and falter
In my delusion, or forget
My heart was once an altar.
Let me still think myself a star
With these my rays about me ;
Pretend these green perspectives are
All purposeless without me.*

*Ah, bid the sun stand still. Ah, bid
The coming night retire,
And all the good I ever did
Shall feed your altar fire ;
The hour shall stand and sing your praise,
The minute shall adore you,
And my ten thousand unborn days
I'll sacrifice before you.*

*Gods of great joy, and little grief,
See — I will wear as token
A pear leaf and a cherry leaf
Until this pledge be broken. . . .*

Between a pear and a cherry tree
A cold hand touched my shoulder —
*Ah, my false gods have forsaken me,
I am a minute older.*

THANKS TO MY WORLD FOR THE LOAN OF A FAIR DAY

THAT day you wrought for me
Shone, and was ended.
Perfect your thought for me,
Whom you befriended.
Such joy was new to me —
New, and most splendid,
More than was due to me.
More than was due to me.

Though I do wrong to you,
Having no power,
Singing no song to you,
Bringing no flower,
Yet does my youth again
Thrill, for the hour
Cometh in truth again.
Cometh in truth again.

20 THANKS TO MY WORLD

I shall possess to-day
All I have wanted,
All I lacked yesterday
Now shall be granted.
No longer dumb to you,
Changed and enchanted,
Singing I'll come to you.
Singing I'll come to you.

I will amass for you
Very great treasure.
Swift years shall pass for you
Dancing for pleasure.
Time shall be slave to me,
Giving — full measure —
All that you gave to me.
All that you gave to me.

SONG

IF I have dared to surrender some imitation of splendour,
Something I knew that was tender,
something I loved that was brave,
If in my singing I shewed songs that I heard on my road,
Were they not debts that I owed,
rather than gifts that I gave?

If certain hours on their climb up the long ladder of time
Turned my confusion to rhyme, drove me to dare an attempt,
If by fair chance I might seem sometimes abreast of my theme,
Was I translating a dream? Was it a dream that you dreamt?

High and miraculous skies bless and astonish my eyes ;

All my dead secrets arise, all my dead
stories come true.

Here is the Gate to the Sea. Once you unlocked it for me ;

Now, since you gave me the key, shall
I unlock it for you ?

WORDS

OH words, oh words, and shall you rule
The world? What is it but the tongue
That doth proclaim a man a fool,
So that his best songs go unsung,
So that his dreams are sent to school
And all die young.

There pass the trav'ling dreams, and these
My soul adores—my words condemn—
Oh, I would fall upon my knees
To kiss their golden garments' hem,
Yet words do lie in wait to seize
And murder them.

To-night the swinging stars shall plumb

The silence of the sky. And herds
Of plumèd winds like huntsmen come
To hunt with dreams the restless birds.

To-night the moon shall strike you dumb,

Oh words, oh words. . . .

REDNECK'S SONG

THESE thirty years
Old men have filled my ears
With middle-aged ideas
That never have been young,
They made me wise.
I learnt to whitewash lies.
I learnt to shut my eyes,
And hold my tongue.

Damned Philistine.
And was it then so fine
To learn to draw the line.
(Is there a line to draw?)
And must I then
For threescore years and ten
Worship the laws of men
Who worshipped law?

Those laws are dust
To-day, and yet I must
Be faithful still, and trust
In what dead men did prove,
Magic may kill
Their wisdom and their will,
Yet I must follow still
Their path . . . my groove. . . .

TO THE UNBORN

Oh, bend your eyes, nor send your glance about.

Oh, watch your feet, nor stray beyond the kerb.

Oh, bind your heart lest it find secrets out.

For thus no punishment
Of magic shall disturb
Your very great content.

Oh, shut your lips to words that are forbidden.

Oh, throw away your sword, nor think to fight.

Seek not the best, the best is better hidden.

Thus need you have no fear,
No terrible delight
Shall cross your path, my dear.

Call no man foe, but never love a stranger.

Build up no plan, nor any star pursue.
Go forth with crowds; in loneliness is danger.

Thus nothing God can send,
And nothing God can do
Shall pierce your peace, my friend.

THE NEWER ZION

WHEN I achieve the chestnut joke of dying,
When I slip through that Gate at Kensal Green,
Shall I go spoil the fantasy by prying
Behind the staging of this darling scene?

Shall I — a cast-off puppet — seek to study
The Showman who manipulates the strings,
The Hand that paints the western
drop-scene ruddy,
The prosy truths of all these faery
things?

Shall I — self-conscious by a glassy ocean —

Stammer strange songs amid an alien host?

Or shall I not, refusing such promotion,

Bequeath to London my contented
ghost?

I will come back to my Eternal City;

Her fogs once more my countenance
shall dim;

I will enliven your austere committee

With gossip gleaned among the cherubim.

By day I'll tread again the sounding mazes,

By night I'll track the moths about the Park;

My feet shall fall among the dusky
daisies,
Nor break nor bruise a petal in the dark.

I will repeat old inexpensive orgies ;
Drink nectar at the bun-shop in Shore-
ditch,
Or call for Nut-Ambrosia at St.
George's.
And with a ghost-tip make the waitress
rich.

My soundless feet shall fly among the runners
Through the red thunders of a
Zeppelin raid,
My still voice cheer the Anti-Aircraft
gunners,
The fires shall glare — but I shall cast no shade.

And if a Shadow, wading in the torrent
 Of high excitement, snatch me from the riot —
 (Fool that he is) — and fumble with his warrant,
 And hail a hearse, and beg me to “Go quiet.”

Mocking I'll go, and he shall be postil-
 lion,
 Until we reach the Keeper of the Door:
 “Hm . . . Benson . . . Stella . . .
 militant civilian . . .
 There's some mistake, we've had this soul before. . . .”

* * * * *

Ah, none shall keep my soul from this
 its Zion;

Lost in the spaces I shall hear and bless

The splendid voice of London, like a lion

Calling its lover in the wilderness.

TWO WOMEN SING

FIRST WOMAN

OH woman — woman — woman, —
Shall I to woman be a friend?
I deal with man, and when I can
Reclaim with interest all I lend.
Who but a witless gambler plays
For farthing stakes these golden days?
No, woman — woman — woman —
Must only play the game that pays.

SECOND WOMAN

Oh woman — woman — woman, —
To-morrow woman shall awake.
She shall arise, and realise
The goodly value of her stake.

And she shall lend her loan, and claim
Her rightful interest on the same.

So woman — woman — woman —
Shall learn at last the paying game.

THE WOMAN ALONE

My eyes are girt with outer mists ;
My ears sing shrill, and this I bless ;
My finger-nails do bite my fists
In ecstasy of loneliness.
This I intend, and this I want,
That — passing — you may only mark
A dumb soul with its confidant
Entombed together in the dark.

The hoarse church-bells of London
ring ;
The hoarser horns of London croak ;
The poor brown lives of London cling
About the poor brown streets like smoke ;
The deep air stands above my roof
Like water, to the floating stars.

My Friend and I — we sit aloof,
We sit and smile, and bind our scars.

For you may wound and you may kill—
It's such a little thing to die —
Your cruel God may work his will,
We do not care, my Friend and I.
Though, at the gate of Paradise,
Peter the Saint withhold his keys,
My Friend and I — we have no eyes
For Heav'n or Hell — or dreams like these. . . .

THE INEVITABLE

*There is a sword, a fatal blade,
Unthwarted, subtle as the air,
And I could meet it unafraid
If I might only meet it fair.
Yet how I wonder why the Smith
Who wrought that steel of subtle grain
Should also be contented with
So blunt and mean a thing as pain.*

The stars and fire-flies dance in rings.
The fire-flies set my heart alight,
Like fingers, writing magic things
In flame, upon the wall of night.
There is high meaning in the skies —
(The stars and fire-flies — high and low —)
And all the spangled world is wise
With knowledge that I almost know.

To-morrow I will don my cloak
Of opal-grey, and I will stand
Where the palm-shadows stride like
 smoke

Across the dazzle of the sand.

To-morrow I will throw this blind
Blind whiteness from my soul away,
And pluck this blackness from my mind,

And only leave the medium — grey.

To-morrow I will cry for gains

Upon the blue and brazen sky.

The precious venom in my veins

To-morrow will be parched and dry.

To-morrow it shall be my goal

To throw myself away from me,

To lose the outline of my soul

Against the greyness of the sea.

THE DOG TUPMAN

Oh little friend of half my days,
My little friend, who followed me
Along those crooked sullen ways
That only you had eyes to see.

You felt the same. You understood
You too, defensive and morose,
Encloaked your secret puppyhood —
Your secret heart — and hid them close.

For I alone have seen you serve,
Disciple of those early springs,
With ears awry and tail a-curve
You lost yourself in puppy things.

And you saw me. You bore in mind
The clean and sunny things I felt

When, throwing hate along the wind,
I flashed the lantern at my belt.

The moment passed, and we returned
To barren words and old cold truth,
Yet in our hearts our lanterns burned,
We two had seen each other's youth.

When filthy pain did wrap me round
Your upright ears I always saw,
And on my outflung hand I found
The blessing of your horny paw ;

And yet — oh impotence of men —
My paw, more soft but not more wise,
Old friend, was lacking to you when
You looked your crisis in the eyes. . . .

You shared my youth, oh faithful friend,
You let me share your puppyhood ;
So, if I failed you in the end,
My friend, my friend, you understood.

SAINT BRIDE

ABOUT your brow a starry wreath,
About your feet a wilderness,
Where young hot hopes grow cold
 beneath
The tangled bondage of the press.
Set like a saint within a niche —
A strait and narrow niche — you hide,
And weave a veil about you, which
Can turn our steel, Saint Bride, Saint Bride.

The eyes of coarse and pond'rous man
Are sceptic and satirical.
“What, little saint, and still you scan Old heaven for that miracle?”
Oh heart deceived, yet harmèd not,

Child-widow of a truth that died,
Bearer in mind of things forgot,
Bride of a dream, Saint Bride, Saint
Bride.

About you and about you thunders
The wise young public on its 'bus,
Exploding all your faery blunders,
Explaining neatly — "*Thus and thus
Hath science banished heaven now,
And see — your Groom is crucified —*"
On heaven's breast you lean your brow
And laugh, and love — Saint Bride,
Saint Bride.

THE SLAVE OF GOD

THE finest fruit God ever made
Hangs from the Tree of Heaven blue.
It hangs above the steel sea blade
That cuts the world's great globe in two.

The keenest eye that ever saw
Stares out of Heaven into mine,
Spins out my heart, and seems to draw
My soul's elastic very fine.

The greatest beacon ever fired
Stands up on Heaven's Hill to show
The limit of the thing desired,
Beyond which man may never go.

* * * * *

THE SLAVE OF GOD 45

At midnight, when the night did dance
Along the hours that led to morning,
I saw a little boat advance
Towards the great moon's beacon warning.

(The moon, God's Slave, who lights her torch,
Lest men should slip between the bars,
And run aground on Heav'n, and scorch
To death upon a bank of stars.)

The little boat, on leaning keel,
Sang up the mountains of the sea,
Bearing a man who hoped to steal
God's Slave from out eternity.

*"My love, I see you through my tears.
No pity in your face I see.*

*I have sailed far across the years :
Stretch out, stretch out your arms to me.*

*“ My love, I have an island seen,
So shadowed, God’s most piercing star
Shall never see where we have been,
Shall never whisper where we are.*

*“ There we will wander, you and I,
Down guilty and delightful ways,
While palm-trees plait their fingers high
Against your God’s enormous gaze.*

*“ For oh — the joy of two and two
Your Paradise shall never see,
The ecstasy of me and you,
The white delight of you and me.*

*“ I know the penalty — the clutch
Of God’s great rocks upon my keel.
Drowned in the ocean of Too Much —
So ends your thief — yet let me steal. . . .”*

The Slave of God she froze her face,
The Slave of God she paid no need,
And, thund'ring down high
Heaven's space,
Loud angels mocked the sailor's
greed.

The diamond sun arose, and tossed
A billion gems across the sea.
*"The Slave of God is lost, is lost,
The Slave of God is lost to me. . . ."*

He grounded on the common beach,
He trod the little towns of men,
And God removèd from his reach
The cup of Heaven's passion then,
And gave him vulgar love and speech,
And gave him threescore years
and ten.

TRUE PROMISES

YOU promised War and Thunder and Romance.

You promised true, but we were very blind

And very young, and in our ignorance
We never called to mind
That truth is seldom kind.

You promised love, immortal as a star.

You promised true, yet how the truth can lie!

For now we grope for hands where no hands are,

And, deathless, still we cry,
Nor hope for a reply.

You promised harvest and a perfect yield.

You promised true, for on the harvest
morn,

Behold a reaper strode across the field,

And man of woman born

Was gathered in as corn.

You promised honour and ordeal by flame.

You promised true. In joy we trembled lest

We should be found unworthy when it came ;

But — oh — we never guessed

The fury of the test !

You promised friends and songs and festivals.

You promised true. Our friends, who still are young,

Assemble for their feasting in those halls

Where speaks no human tongue.

And thus our songs are sung.

THE CORNISHMAN

At sunset, when the high sea span
About the rocks a web of foam,
I saw the ghost of a Cornishman
Come home.

I saw the ghost of a Cornishman
Run from the weariness of war,
I heard him laughing as he ran
Across his unforgotten shore.
The great cliff, gilded by the west,
Received him as an honoured guest.
The green sea, shining in the bay,
Did drown his dreadful yesterday.

Come home, come home, you million
ghosts,
The honest years shall make amends,
The sun and moon shall be your hosts,
The everlasting hills your friends.

And some shall seek their mothers'
faces,

And some shall run to trysting places,

And some to towns, and other yet

Shall find great forests in their debt.

Oh, I would siege the golden coasts

Of space, and climb high heaven's dome,

So I might see those million

ghosts

Come home.

FIVE SMOOTH STONES

IT was young David, lord of sheep and cattle,
Pursued his fate, the April fields
among,
Singing a song of solitary battle,
A loud mad song, for he was very young.

Vivid the air — and something more than vivid, —
Tall clouds were in the sky — and something more, —
The light horizon of the spring was livid
With a steel smile that showed the teeth of war.

54 FIVE SMOOTH STONES

It was young David mocked the Philistine.

It was young David laughed beside the river.

There came his mother — his and yours and mine —

With five smooth stones, and dropped them in his quiver.

You never saw so green-and-gold a fairy.

You never saw such very April eyes.

She sang him sorrow's song to make him wary,

She gave him five smooth stones to make him wise.

The first stone is love, and that shall fail you.

The second stone is hate, and that shall fail you.

FIVE SMOOTH STONES 55

The third stone is knowledge, and that shall fail you.

The fourth stone is prayer, and that shall fail you.

The fifth stone shall not fail you.

For what is love, O lovers of my tribe?

And what is love, O women of my day?

Love is a farthing piece, a bloody bribe

Pressed in the palm of God — and thrown away.

And what is hate, O fierce and unforgiving?

And what shall hate achieve, when all is said?

A silly joke that cannot reach the living,

A spitting in the faces of the dead.

56 FIVE SMOOTH STONES

And what is knowledge, O young men who tasted

The reddest fruit on that forbidden tree?

Knowledge is but a painful effort
wasted,

A bitter drowning in a bitter sea.

And what is prayer, O waiters for the answer?

And what is prayer, O seekers of the cause?

Prayer is the weary soul of Herod's dancer,

Dancing before blind kings without applause.

The fifth stone is a magic stone, my David,

Made up of fear and failure, lies and loss.

Its heart is lead, and on its face is gravèd

A crookèd cross, my son, a crookèd cross.

It has no dignity to lend it value ;

No purity — alas, it bears a stain.

You shall not give it gratitude, nor shall you

Recall it all your days, except with pain.

Oh, bless your blindness, glory in your groping !

Mock at your betters with an upward chin !

And when the moment has gone by
for hoping,

Sling your fifth stone, O son of mine,
and win.

Grief do I give you, grief and dreadful laughter ;

58 FIVE SMOOTH STONES

Sackcloth for banner, ashes in your wine.

Go forth, go forth, nor ask me what comes after ;

The fifth stone shall not fail you, son of mine.

GO FORTH, GO FORTH, AND SLAY THE PHILISTINE.

NEW YEAR, 1918

A SONG I never heard
I must rehearse,
Counting each hour a word,
Counting each day a verse.
Not of my proper choice
Raise I my voice,
While others — fierce and strong —
Raise theirs to drown my song.

Must I then sing aloud,
Faint as a bird,
And, like a bird, be proud
To sing — to sing unheard?
Weary and very weak,
Shall I then seek
A hearing, idiot-wise,
From the unhearing skies?

Drowning my whispered dreams,
Great voices cry.
They sing their songs, it seems,
With better heart than I.
Hush — I can hear Death sing —
“Here is my sting.”
And the Grave echo — *“See,
Here is my victory.”*

To-night the heavens bend
A little nearer.
The singer is my friend,
And I — at last — the hearer.
No more to sing alone
A song unknown, —
Hush — very tense and thin,
The dawn-like notes begin.

THE END

THE following pages contain advertisements of books by the same author or on kindred subjects.

I Pose

By STELLA BENSON

Price $1.25

The Gardener loves the Suffragette! Together they start out on a remarkable journey, the one posing as a vagabond, the other as a desperate woman. They are real people, not Celtic or Doric deities nor yet allegorical figures. The people they meet and the experiences they have are described in a wholly original way and with a delightful humor. The adventures of these two take them to Jamaica and to Panama among cocoanut palms and flaming orchids, backgrounds against which are displayed with much effectiveness, the author's power to tell a good story and to create unusual characters.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY

Publishers

64-66 Fifth Avenue

New York

This Is The End

By STELLA BENSON

Cloth, 12mo, $1.35

“Stella Benson . . . appears in the literary world as a writer of distinct promise, capable of a delightful whimsicality and keen satire.”

— Daily Graphic (London).

“In Miss Stella Benson we have to greet an uncommon and altogether bewildering character. Her first production, ‘I Pose,’ left us speechless. Unexpected things have a way of doing that to anybody. ‘This Is The End’ shows that Miss Benson is a force to be reckoned with, her fancy is brimming over and her book is original and brilliantly clever. These adjectives, however, barely scratch the surface. Probably Miss Benson has a deep sense of poetry besides. There are verses interposed with the prose narrative and they are very good indeed. The rhythms are attractive and her own and the rhyming is extremely neat.” — Pall Mall Gazette.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY

Publishers

64-66 Fifth Avenue

New York

THREE RECENT VOLUMES OF POETRY

Toward the Gulf

BY EDGAR LEE MASTERS

Cloth, 12mo, $1.50

"The natural child of Walt Whitman . . . the only poet with true Americanism in his bones."

— JOHN COWPER POWYS in New York Times.

"Toward the Gulf" is a series of fearlessly true and beautiful poems, revealing American life and character as few books have done. In the style of the "Spoon River Anthology," Mr. Masters once more analyzes grimly but truly the motive of human conduct, and skillfully portrays in verse form the life and thoughts and ambitions of average folk.

Reincarnations

BY JAMES STEPHENS

Cloth, 12mo, $1.00

Mr. Stephens has here collected a series of poems in part translations, in part imitations or expansions of old Irish material chiefly after Raftery, O'Rahilly and O'Brunadair. "Some of the poems," he says, "owe no more than a phrase, a line, half a line to the Irish, and around these scraps I have blown a bubble of verse and made my poems."

Lover's Gift and Crossing

BY RABINDRANATH TAGORE

Cloth, 12mo, $1.25

"Contains, we should say, perhaps the very best work so far of that very remarkable man. In both depth and breadth of vision, in copiousness of imagery, in knowledge of the human soul, and in sheer artistic beauty, these little word etchings are unsurpassed in current literature and have not often been rivalled in any literature or at any time." — New York Tribune.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY

Publishers

64-66 Fifth Avenue

New York

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA LIBRARY
Los Angeles

This book is DUE on the last date stamped below.

INTERLIBRARY LOANS

REC'D LD-UTB

OCT 10 1977

DEC 19 1977

DUE TWO WEEKS FROM DATE OF RECEIPT

SCILL/LAPL

Form L9-42m-8, '49 (B5573) 444

THE LIBRARY
UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA
LOS ANGELES

H8/FN

PA

3 1158 00209 8837

PR	Benson -
6003	Twenty.
B435t

UC SOUTHERN REGIONAL LIBRARY FACILITY

A 000 501 077 2

PR
6003
B435t

