The woman's kirtle of the fourteenth century was a close-fitting dress described in Strutt, ii. 238; and the kirtle is mentioned in Launfal (233) as being laced tightly to the body. It seems to have been a mark of servitude or disgrace to appear in a kirtle only. The term is still retained in the provinces in the sense of an outer petticoat. When a long kirtle is spoken of, or when it is implied that the kirtle is long, it must be understood as having a kind of train or petticoat attached to it; and a half-kirtle is either part of this joint article of dress. Three other boys of the adverse side pitch successively a piece of stick, a little bigger than one's thumb, called cat, to be struck by those holding the sticks. On its being struck, the boys run from hole to hole, dipping the end of their sticks in as they pass, and counting one, two, three, &c. as they do so, up to thirty-one, which is game, or the greater number of holes gained in the innings may indicate the winners as in cricket.

The male mandrake hath great, broad, long, smooth leaves, of a deepe Greene colour, flat spread upon the ground; among which come up the flowers of a pale whitish colour, standing every one upon a single smal and weak footstalk, of a whitish green colour; in their places grow round apples of a yellowish colour, smooth, soft, and glittering, of a strong smel; in which are contained flat and smooth seedes, in fashion of a little kidney, like those of the thorn apple. The roote is long, thick, whitish, divided many times into two or three parts, resembling the legs of a man, with other parts of his bodie adjoining thereto, as the privie parts, as it hath bene reported; whereas in truth it is no otherwise then in the rootes of carrots, parsneps, and such like, forked or divided into two or more parts which nature taketh no account of. There have been many ridiculous tales brought up of this plant, whether of old wives or some runnagate surgeons or phisickmongers, I know not (a title bad enough for them) but sure some one or more that sought to make themselves famous in skillfull above others were the first brochers of that errour I spake of. They adde further, that it is never or verie seldom to be founde growing naturally but under a gallows, where the matter that hath fallen from the dead bodie hath given it the shape of a man; and the matter of a woman, the substance of a female plant, with many other such doltish dreames. They fable further and affirm, that he who would take up a plant thereof must tie a dogge thereunto to pull it up, which will give a great shriek at the digging up; otherwise if a man should do it, he should certainly die in short space after; besides many fables of loving matters, too full of scurrillite to set foorth in print, which I forbear to speake of; all which dreames and old wives tales you shall from hencefoorth cast out of your bookes and memorie, knowing this that they are all and every part of them false and most untrue. For I myselfe and my servaunts also have digged up, planted, and replanted verie many; and yet never could either perceve shape of man or woman, but sometimes one straight roote, sometimes two, and often sixe or seaven braunches, comming from the maine great roote; ever as nature list to bestowe upon it as to other plants. But the idle drones that have litte or nothing to do but cate and drinke, have bestowed some of their time in carving the rootes of Brionie, forming them to the shape of men and women, which falsifying practise hath confirmed the errour amongst the simple and unlearned people, who have taken them upon their report to be the true mandrakes. Gerard's Herball, ed. 1597, p. 280.

nailburns in Kent. One may be mentioned below Barham Downs, which sometimes ceases to flow for two or three years, and then breaks out very copiously, and runs into the lesser Stour at Bridge. Warkworth, Chronicle, p.

lar streams, and mentions one "byside to be that above alluded to.

NAKED-BED. A person undressed and in bed was formerly said to be in naked-bed, and, according to Brockett, the phrase is still in use applied to any one entirely naked. The term was probably derived from the ancient custom of sleeping without night linen, which was most common in this country during the thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth centuries.
The Danes and Saxons appear to have been far more civilized in this respect. In Isum-bras, 102, a mother and her children are described as escaping from a fire "alle als nakede als they were borne;" but it would seem from a passage in Piers Ploughman, p.
273, that the practice was not quite universal.
See Mr. Wright's notes, p. 557; Ritson's
Anc. Pop. Poet. p. 49. Compare also Armin's Nest of Ninnies, p. 24, "Jemy ever used to lye naked, as is the use of a number." Two very curious anecdotes in Hall, Henry VII. ff.
20, 53, may also be consulted. "In naked bedde, au licet couché tout nud; in naked

bedde, touchez nud a nud, or on les trouva coucher ensemble nud a nud," Palsgrave.
 Ne be thi winppl nevere so jelu ne so stroutende,
 Ne thi faire tail so long ne so trailende,
 That tu ne schalt at evn al kuttid bilevin,
 And tou schalt to bedde gon so nakid as rou were

A Cumbrian peasant pays his addresses to his sweetheart during the silence and solemnity of midnight, when every bosom is at rest, except that of love and sorrow. Anticipating her kindness, he will travel ten or twelve miles over hills, bogs, moors, and mosses, undiscouraged by the length of the road, the darkness of the night, or the Intemperature of the weather; on reaching her habitation, he gives a gentle tap at the window of her chamber, at which signal she immediately rises, dresses herself, and proceeds with all possible silence to the door, which she gently opens, lest a creaking hinge or a barking dog should awaken the family. On his entrance into the kitchen, the luxuries of a Cumbrian cottage—cream and sugared curds—are placed before him by the fair hand of his Dulcinea; next, the courtship commences, previously to which, the fire is darkened or extinguished, lest its light should guide to the window some idle or licentious eye; in this dark and uncomfortable situation (at least uncomfortable to all but lovers), they remain till the advance of day, depositing in each other's bosoms the secrets of love, and making vows of unalterable affection.

cured in time, it may perhaps grow to a worse mischief, as to the falling evil, madness, or apoplexy. But I could never learne that horses were subject to this disease, neither by relation, nor yet by reading, but only in an old English writer, who sheweth neither cause nor signes how to know when a horse hath it, but onely teacheth how to cure it with a fond foolish charme, which because it may perhaps make you, gentle reader, to laugh, as well as it did me, for recreation sake I will heere rehearse it. Take a flint stone that hath a hole of his owne kinde, and hang it over him, and write in a bill,

In nomine Patris, &c.

They that repaire to this place for devotion his sake use to continue therein foure and twentie houres, which dooing otherwhyle with ghostlie me-ditions, and otherwhile a dread for the conscience of their deserts, they saie they see a plaine resemblance of their owne faults and vertues, with the horror and comfort thereunto belonging, the one so terrible, the other so joyous, that they verelie deeme themselves for the time to have sight of hell and heaven. The revelations of men that went thither (S. Patrike yet living) are kept written within the abbeie there adjoining. When anie person is disposed to enter (for the doore is ever spard) he repairth first for devise to the archbishop, who casteth all pericles and dissuadeth the pilgrime from the attempt because it is known that diverse entering into that cave, never were seene to turne backe againe. But if the partie be fullie resolved, he recommendeth him to the prior, who in like maner favourable exhortheth him to choose some other kind of penance and not to hazard such a danger. If notwithstanding he find the partie fullie bent, he conducteth him to the church, Injoineth him to begin with praier and fast of fifteene daies, so long together as in discretion can be indulged. This time expired, if yet he persevere in his former purpose the whole convent accompanieth him with solemne procession and benediction to the mouth of the cave, where they let him in, and so bar up the doore untill the next morning. And then with like ceremonies they await his returne and reduce him to the church: if he be seene no more they fast and prae fifteen daies after. Touching the credit of these matters, I see no cause, but a Christian being persuaded that there is both hell and heaven, may without vanitie upon sufficient information be resolved, that it might please God, at sometime, for considerations to His wisdom known; to reveale by miracle the vision of joys and pines eternall. But that altogether in such sort and by such maner, and so ordinariie, and to such persons, as the common fame dooth utter, I neither beleve nor wish to be regarded. I have conferd with diverse that had gone this pilgrimage, who affirmed the order of the premisses to be true: but that they saw no sight, save onelie fearefull dreams when they chanced to nod, and those they said were exceeding horrible. Further they added, that the fast is rated more or lesse, according to the qualitie of the penitent.

Stanihurst's Description of Ireland, ed. 1586, pp. 28 29.

M. Knelsworth, mayr. Then came in dewke Phillip, of Burgon, agaynst his wille with tempest of wethir, as he was goyng into Spayn, whiche afterward was kyng of Castelle. Then was Polles wethir-cok blown down.

Old St. Paul's was in former times a favorite resort for purposes of business, amusement, lounging, or assignations; bills were fixed up there, servants hired, and a variety of matters performed wholly inconsistent with the sacred nature of the edifice. The kitchen maid, when she shells green pease, never omits, if she finds one having nine pease, to lay it on the lintel of the kitchen door, and the first clown who enters it, is infallibly to be her husband, or at least her sweetheart," Mr. Davy's MS. Suffolk Gloss. Anderson mentions a custom in the North, of a nature somewhat similar. A Cumbrian girl, when her lover proves unfaithful to her, is, by way of consolation, rubbed with pease-straw by the neighbouring lads; and when a Cumbrian youth loses his sweetheart, by her marriage with a rival, the same sort of comfort is administered to him by the lasses of the village. "Winter time for shooing, peas-cod time for wooing," old proverb in MS. Devon Gl. The divination by peascods alluded to by Mr. Davy is thus mentioned by Gay,—
As peascods once I pluck'd, I chanc'd to see
One that was closely fill'd with three times three;
Which, when I cropp'd, I safely home convey'd,
And o'er the door the spell in secret laid;
The latch mov'd up, when who should first come in,
But, in his proper person,—Lubberkin!
- But perhaps the allusion in Shakespear is best illustrated by the following passage, which seems to have escaped the notice of all writers on this subject,—
The peascod greene oft with no little toyle
Hee'd seeke for in the fattest fertill'st soile,
And rend it from the stalke to bring it to her,
And in her bosome for acceptance woore her.

His figure, peeping out of a window, is still kept up in remembrance of the transaction, and there is an annual procession yet held at Coventry, in which the feat of Lady Godiva is attempted to be represented, without violating the principles of public decency. A newspaper of last year tells us that,—

The Godiva procession at Coventry was celebrated with much pomp last week. The lady selected for the occasion (who was a handsome-looking woman, and conducted herself with great propriety) was very differently habited from the great original she personated, being clad, from shoulder to feet, in close-fitting woven silk tights. Over this was placed an elegant pointed satin tunic, fastened by an ornamental girdle. Two handsome lace scarfs formed the body, and was fastened underneath each arm to a blonde Polka edged with gold. A zephyr's wing, in folds, descended from the shoulders, and was fastened on the bosom by a rich brooch, attached to which was a white cord and gold tassels. The head gear consisted of a pearl coronet, surmounted by a

This word has been so much misunderstood that I am compelled to be somewhat plain in defining it. Grose has placket-hole, a pocket-hole. Nares, Dyce, and other writers, tell us a placket generally signifies a petticoat, but their quotations do not bear out this opinion. According to Moor, the term is in some places applied to a shift.

According to Markham, horses are said to be planet-struck when there is a deprivation of feeling or motion, not stirring any of the members, but that they remain in the same form as when the beast was first struck. It comes to a horse sometimes by choler and phlegm superabundantly mixed together; sometimes from melancholy blood, being a cold and dry humour, which annoys the hinder part of the brain; sometimes of extraordinary heat or cold, or raw digestion striking into the veins suddenly; or lastly, from extreme hunger, occasioned by long fasting.

RACK. (1) Light, thin, vapoury clouds; the clouds generally. Still in use in the Northern counties, and sometimes there applied to a mist. See the Archæologia, xxii. 373. "As the sunne shines through the rack," Du Bartas, p. 616. In some instances it appears to imply the motion of the clouds, and is so explained by Chapman in his translation of Homer. A disputed passage in which this word occurs, in the Tempest, iv. 1, "leave not a rack behind," merits special consideration. Our choice lays between considering it to mean a single fleeting cloud, or as a form of wrack or wreck. Mr. Hunter has expressed his belief that rack in the first sense is never used with the indefinite article, and unless the passage now given from Lydgate tends to lighten the objection, it seems to me to be absolutely fatal to the adopted reading. On the other hand, we have rack in the old folios of Beaumont and Fletcher, where the sense requires wreck. See Mr. Dyce's edition, vii. 137. On the whole, then, unless rack can elsewhere be found with the indefinite article, it appears safer to adopt wreck, which certainly agrees better with the context. Upton, Critical Observations, ed. 1748, p. 213, supposes it to mean a track or path, in which sense it is still used in the North. See our second meaning, and Brockett, who adopts Upton's explanation of the Shakespearian passage; but there is no good authority for anything of the kind, although Brockett is as decisive as if he had possessed the reading and knowledge of Gifford.

As Phebus dooth at mydday in the southe,
When every rak and every cloudy sky
Is voide cleene, so hir face uncouth
Shall shewe in open and fully be unwy.

RAGMAN. (1) The charter by which the Scots acknowledged their dependence on the English crown under Edward I. was popularly called a ragman roll; and hence the term, with or without the last word, came to be applied to several kinds of written rolls and documents, especially if of any length. Thus a papal bull with many seals is termed a ragman in Piers Ploughman, p. 5; and the list of names in Fame's book is called ragman roll in Skelton, i. 420. See also Plumpton Corr. p. 168. In a letter of Henry IV. dated 1399, printed in Rymer, mention is made of litteras patentes vocata raggemans sive blank chartres. In Piers Ploughman, p. 461, it seems to mean a person who made a list or ragman.

- (2) An ancient game at which persons drew by chance poetical descriptions of their characters, the amusement consisting, as at modern games of a similar kind, in the peculiar application or misapplication of the verses so selected at hazard by the drawers. This meaning of the term was first developed by Mr. Wright in his Anecdota Literaria, 8vo. 1844, where he has printed two collections of ancient verses used in the game of ragman. Mr. Wright conjectures that the stanzas were written one after another on a roll of parchment, that to each stanza a string was attached at the side, with a seal or piece of metal or wood at the end, and that, when used, the parchment was rolled up with all the strings and their seals hanging together, so that the drawer had no reason for choosing one more than another, but drew one of the strings by mere chance, on which the roll was opened to see on what stanza he had fallen: if such were the form of the game, we can very easily imagine why the name was applied to a charter with an unusual number of seals attached to it, which when rolled up would present exactly the same appearance. Mr. Wright is borne out in his opinion by an English poem termed Ragmanes rolle, printed from MS. Fairfax 16:

My ladies and my maistresses echone,
Lyke hit unto your humbylle wommanhede,
Resave in gré of my synnill persone
This rolle, which withouten any drede
Kynge Ragman me bad me sowe in brede,
And cristnyd yt the merour of your chaunce;
Drawith a strynge, and that shal streight yow leyde
Unto the verry path of your gouvernaunce.

That the verses were generally written in a roll may perhaps be gathered from a passage in Douglas's Virgil—

With that he raucht me ane roll: to rede I begane,
The royetest ane ragment with mony ratt rine.

Where the explanation given by Jamieson seems to be quite erroneous.

Venus, whiche stant withoute lawe,
In non certeyne, but as men drawe
Of Ragemon upon the chaunce,
Sche leyeth no peys in the balance

Gower, MS. Soc. Antiq. 134, f. 244.

They frequently go from house to house, about Christmas, and are treated with ale after their military exercise. At merry-nights, and on other festive occasions, they are introduced one after another by the names and titles of heroes, from Hector and Paris, princes of Troy, down to Guy of Warwick. A spokesman then repeats some verses in praise of each, and they begin to flourish the rapier. On a signal given, all the weapons are united, or interlaced, but soon withdrawn again, and brandished by the heroes, who exhibit a great variety of evolutions, being usually accompanied by slow music. In the last scene, the rapiers are united round the neck of a person kneeling in the centre, and when they are suddenly withdrawn, the victim falls to the ground; he is afterwards carried out, and a mock funeral is performed with pomp, and solemn strains. Willan's Yorksh.

RING-FINGER. The finger on which the ring is placed in marriage. The Romish Church encouraged the notion of immediate intercourse between the heart and the ring-finger. In the Hereford, York, and Salisbury Missals, the mystical ring is directed first to be put on the thumb, then upon the first, then upon the second, and lastly, on the third finger, where it is to remain, quia in illo digito est quedam vena procedens usque ad cor.

As for the ring-finger, which is so called, because commonly a ring is worn on it, especially on the left hand, the physicians and anatomists give the reason of it, because in the finger there is a sinew very tender and small that reaches to the heart; wherefore it ought to wear a ring as a crown for its diglity. But besides observe, that in the ceremonies of marriage, they first put the matrimonial ring on the thumb, whence they take it, and put it on every one till they come to this, where it is left. Whence some who stood (as Durand in his Rational of Divine Offices) to discourse on these ceremonies, say it is done because that finger answers to the heart, which is the seat of love and the affections. Others say, because it is dedicated to the sun, and that most rings are of gold, a mettall which is also dedicated to it: so that by this sympathy it rejoices the heart.

(2) Properly, a rider or trooper, from the German; but the term was usually applied to a fine, dashing, boasting gallant; one so fashionable as to speak much in foreign languages.

Some authors have compared it to a rutter's cod-piece, but I like not the allusion so well, by reason the tyings have no correspondence; his mouth is allwaies mumbling, as if hee were at his mattens; and his beard is bristled here and there like a sow.

RYNT. "Rynt ye, by your leave, stand handsomly; as, rynt you, witch, quoth Besse Locket to her mother," Ray's Words, ed. 1674, p. 39. The older form of this word is aroint (q. v.) and its proper explanation is of so much importance, that I am tempted to give the following extract from a MS. communication transmitted to me by a native of Lancashire. "The word roint is, or was thirty years ago, a common Lancashire provincialism. I have heard it used, scores and scores of times, in a sense I will presently state. But first as to its orthography; if I had never seen the word, and been asked to spell it from hearing it pronounced, I should certainly have written roynt, for though to a southern the sound would be much more like rynt, yet one accustomed to the dialect would know that the o was not altogether lost, any more than it is in royal, loyal, boy, which are pronounced in a somewhat similar way; the lost o to me has no difficulty in being distinguished as incorporated in the force given to the pronunciation of the r. Now as to the sense in which the word is applied, I must premise that in the part of the country in which I was born, it is usual (except in the summer season) to milk the cows in what is called a shippon; these shippons have what are called boosts (stalls similar to those in a stable, only wider, and the sides are lower); each boost accommodates two cows. When the milkmaid comes with her pail and stool, it frequently happens that the cow is standing close to the right hand division or partition of the boost, so that no space is left for her to plant her milkingstool; sometimes the cow obstinately resists gentle means used to induce her to move aside towards the left, when the milkmaid, losing her temper, uses the expression roynt ta, accompanied with a push against the side of the cow's rump, to force her to make the movement required. When used as a 'household' word, which it sometimes, though seldom, is, it denotes an angry and insulting mode of saying, 'stand aside, get out of my way,' or rather 'out of my gait.' This is the sense in which the proverb above given includes the expression."

Boucher, in v. Aroint, asserts that he has heard the word in Cheshire, but it was not always confined to that county. In Thoresby's letter to Ray, 1703, I find "Ryndta, used to cows to make them give way and stand in their stalls or booycs." This sufficiently confirms the explanation above given.

Take two quarts of pure good cream, a quarter of a pound of the best almonds, stamp them in the cream and boll amber and musk therein; then take a pint of sack in a bason, and set it on a chafing-dish till it be blood warm; then take the yolks of twelve eggs, with four whites, and beat them very well together; and so put the eggs into the sack, and make it good and hot; let the cream cool a little before you put it into the sack; then stir all together over the coals, till it be as thick as you would have it; if you take some amber and musk, and grind it small with sugar, and strew it on the top of the posset, it will give it a most delicate and pleasant tast.

Taylor, ed. 1630, ti. 163.

SCALE. (1) To spread ; to disperse abroad. North. The term is an archaism. It is found in Hall, Richard III. f. 15, "sodely scaled and departed." The word occurs in Coriolanus, i. 1, but is there a misprint for stale, as distinctly proved by Gifford, and still more elaborately in Dyce's Remarks, p. 158. The observations of Brockett on this passage, which he quite misunderstands, lead me to observe that, with a few trifling exceptions, the very worst annotations on Shakespeare have proceeded from the compilers of provincial glossaries, to whom the philological student would be more deeply indebted if they would confine themselves to the correct explanation of words in actual use, without entering into subjects that require a distinct range of reading and study.

SCAME. To hurt, or injure.

SCAMELS. This word, which occurs in the Tempest, and is most probably a misprint, has baffled all annotators on Shakespeare. Seamell is the generally received reading, but cannot be correct on account of the quantity of the first syllable. Mr. Dyce conjectures staniels, but surely a trisyllable cannot be right. Read stannels, and we may perhaps have the true word. "A stannel, tinnunculus," Coles. If I recollect rightly, this was one of the conjectures proposed by Theobald.

(4) A bare and broken place on the side of a mountain, or in the high bank of a river. North. Ray explains it "the cliff of a rock, or a naked rock on the dry land," and thinks it is the origin of the name of Scarborough. The definitions here given do not, however, quite convey the ancient meaning of scar, which must be interpreted a precipice. "Verie deepe scarrie rockes," Harrison's Britaine, p. 93. Scarry, full of precipices, Craven Glossary, ii. 102. "A scar, cliff, mons præruptus," Coles. The passage in Shakespeare, "men make ropes in such a scarre," is difficult of explanation; but the old text, obscure as it is, is certainly to be preferred to any emendation yet proposed. Mr. Knight's explanation is nearly as difficult as the text, and although, as he remarks, Shakespeare is accustomed to the use of strong metaphorical expressions, yet we may fairly doubt whether, in the whole range of his plays, such an unnatural and forced construction is adopted as in the passage printed with Mr. Knight's punctuation. Looking fully at the context, I would explain it thus. Diana, at the moment of uttering this speech, is on the point of pretending to yield to Bertram's wishes; she has combated his assurances of sincerity in the vows of love, but apparently struck with the urgency of his arguments, she says, I see that men make ropes in such a scarre, that we'll forsake ourselves; I see that men make reasons to assist their views even in such a barren difficult subject, that we will desert ourselves, and yield to them. Then comes the result, "Give me that ring;" and no further solicitation is necessary on Bertram's part, who wins "a heaven on earth," by producing arguments for a course which no proper reasons could justify, in short, by making "ropes in such a scarre."

He loked abowte; thanne was he warre

Of an ermytage undir a sherre.

MS. Lincoln A. 1. 17, f. 123.

It is explained in the glossary, "to set things in, to put them in order," but it evidently implies in some cases an exactly opposite meaning, to set in confusion, to rush to battle, as in the following examples. "To set the steven, to agree upon the time and place of meeting previous to some expedition," West. and Cumb. Dial. p. 390. These phrases may be connected with each other. Be this as it may, hence is certainly derived the phrase to be at sixes and sevens, to be in great confusion. Herod, in his anger at the Wise Men, says,— Bot he thay past me by, by Mahowne in heven,
 I shalle, and that in hy, set alle on sex and seven;

SHROVE-TUESDAY. Perhaps the following account of Shrove-Tuesday by Taylor, the Water Poet, is one of the most curious and illustrative that could be produced in explanation of the numerous allusions in early writers to the feasting and sports in vogue on that day. "Welcome merry Shrovetide," Shakespeare, 2 Henry IV. v. 3.

Alwayes before Lent there comes wadling a fat grosse bursten-gutted groome, called Shrove-Tuesday, one whose manners shewes that he is better fed then taught: and indeed he is the onely monster for feeding amongst all the dayes of the yeere, for he devoures more flesh in foureteene houres, then this wholck kingdome doth (or at the least should doe) in sixe weeke after: such boyling and broyling, such roasting and toasting, such stewing and brewing, such baking, frying, mncing, cutting, carving, devouring, and gorbellyed gurmondizing, that a man would thinke people did take in two months provision at once into their paunches, or that they did ballast their bellies with meate for a voyage to Constantinople or to the West Indies. Moreover, it is a goodly sight to see how the cookes in great men's kitchins doe fry in their masters suet, and sweat in their owne grease, that if ever a cooke be worth the eating it is when Shrove-Tuesday is in towne, for he is so stued and larded, roasted, basted, and almost over roasted, that a man may cate the rawest bit of him and never take a surfet. In a word, they are that day extreme cholericke, and too hot for any man to meddle with, being monarchs of the marow-bones, marquesses of the mutton, lords high regents of the spit and the kettle, barons of the gridiron, and sole commanders of the fryngpan. And all this hurly burly is for no other purpose but to stop the mouth of this land-wheale Shrove-Tuesday. At whose entrance in the morning all the whole kingdome is in quiet, but by that time the clocke strikes eleven, which (by the helpe of a knavish sexton) is commonly before nine, then there is a bell rung, cald The Pancake Bell, the sound whereof makes thousands of people distracted, and forgetfull either of manner or humanitie: Then there is a thing cald wheaten flour which the sulphory necromanticke cookes doe mingle with water, egges, spice, and other tragical magiackal incantments, and then they put it by little and little into a fryng-pan of boyling suet, where it makes a confused dismal hissing (like the Lernean snakes in the reeds of Acheron, Stix or Phlegeton) untill at last by the skill of the cooke, it is trans-form'd into the forme of a flap-jack, which in our translation is cald a pancake, which omfnous Incantation the Ignorant people doe devoure very greedily (having for the most part well dined before;) but they have no sooner swallowed that sweet candyed baitte, but straight their wits forsake them, and they runnng starke mad, assembling in routs and throngs numberlesse of ungovverned numbers, with uncvill civill commotions. Then Tim Tatters (a most valiant villaine) with an ensigne made of a piece of a bakers mawkin fixt upon a broome-staffe, he displays his dreadfull colours, and calling the ragged reglment together, makes an illiterate oration, stuff with most plentiful want of discretion: the conclusion whereof is, that somewhat they will doe, but what they know not. Untill at last comes marching up another troope of tattereddemians proclaiming wars against no matter who, so they may be doing. Then these youths arm'd with cudgels, stoncs, hammers, rules, trowels, and hand-sawes, put play-houses to the sacke, and bawdy houses to the spoyle, in the quarrell breaking a thousand quarrels (of glasse I meane) making ambitious brickbats breake their neckes, tumbling from the tops of lofty chimnies, terribly untyling houses, ripping up the bowels of feather-beds, to the enriching of upholsters, the profit of plasterers, and dirt-dawbers, the gaine of glasiars, joyners, carpenters, tylers, and bricklayers. And which is worse, to the contempt of justice: for what avails it for a constable with an army of revernd rusty bill-men to command peace to these beasts, for they with their pockets instead of pistols, well char'd with stone-shot, discharge against the image of authority whole volleys as thicke as hayle, which robustious repulse puts the better sort to the worse part, making the band of uncscowred halberdiers retyre faster then ever they came on, and shew exceeding discretion in proving tall men of their heeles. Thus by the unmanerly maners of Shrove-Tuesday constables are baffled, bawds are bang'd, punckes are pillag'd, panders are plagued, and the chiefe commanders of these valourous villaines, for their reward for all this confusion, doe in conclusion purchase the inheritance of a jayle, to the commodity of jaylors, and discommodity to themselves, with a fearefull expectation that Tiburne shall stoppe their throats, and the hangman take possession of their coates, or that some beadle in bloody characters shall imprint their faults on their shoulders. So much for Shrove-Tuesday, Jacke-a-Lents Gentleman Usher, these have bene his humours in former times, but I have some better hope of reformation in him hereafter, and indeed I wrote this before his comming this yeere 1617. not knowing how hee would behave himselfe; but tottering betwixt despair and hope, I leave him.

SIN-EATERS. It was an ancient custom at funerals to hire poor people, who were to take upon them the sins of the deceased.

Within the memory of our fathers, in Shropshire, in those villages adjoining to Wales, when a person dyed, there was notice given to an old sire, (for so they called him), who presently repaired to the place where the deceased lay, and stood before the door of the house, when some of the family came out and furnished him with a cricket, on which he sat down facing the door. Then they gave him a groat, which he put in his pocket; a crust of bread, which he eat; and a full bowl of ale, which he drank off at a draught. After this he got up from the cricket and pronounced, with a composed gesture, the ease and rest of the soul departed, for which he would pawn his own soul. This I had from the ingenious John Aubrey, Esq., who made a collection of curious observations, which I have seen, and is now remaining in the hands of Mr. Churchill, the bookseller. How can a man think otherwise of this, than that it proceeded from the ancient heathens? Bagford, ap. Brand, ii. 152.

Holinshed, Description of Scotland, p. 14.

The second kind is called in Scotland a sleuth-hound, being a little greater then the hunting hound, and in colour for the most part browne, or sandy-spotted. The sense of smelling is so quicke in these that they can follow the footsteps of theeves, and pursue them with violence untill they overtake them; and if the thief take the water, they cast in themselves also, and swim to the other side, where they find out againe afresh their former labor, untill they find the thing they seeke for: for this is common in the borders of England and Scotland, where the people were wont to live much upon theft, and if the dog brought his leader unto any house, where they may not be suffred to come in, they take it for granted that there is both the stolen goods and the thief also hidden.

SLICKENSIDES. A species of mineral substance found in some mines, the effects of which are terrific. A blow with a hammer, a stroke or scratch with a miner's pick, are sufficient to blast asunder the massive rocks to which it is found attached.

The mines in Eyamedge are very deep, and the New-engine mine I have heard stated as being the deepest in Derbyshire. Among the number in the edge is the Hay-cliff, a mine distinguished for having contained in great abundance of that extraordinary phenomenon in the mineral world provincially called slickensides. It is a species of gelena, and is well known amongst mineralogists. This mine once had it in singular quantity and quality. One writer says, "The stroke is immediately succeeded by a crackling noise, accompanied with a noise not unlike the mingled hum of a swarm of bees; shortly afterwards an explosion follows, so loud and appalling that even the miners, though a hardy race of men, and little accustomed to fear, turn pale and tremble at the shock." Of the nature of this mineral, and its terrible power, there have been a many but quite unsatisfactory solutions. Whitehurst, in his work on the formation of the earth, thus mentions its wonderful power:—"In the year 1737, an explosion took place at the Hay-cliff mine, Eyam, by the power of slickensides. Two hundred barrels of materials were blown out at one blast, each barrel containing 350 lbs. weight. During the explosion the earth shook as by an earthquake." A person of the name of Higginbotham once but narrowly escaped with life, by striking incautiously this substance in the above mine. Experienced miners can, however, work where it greatly abounds without much danger. It is also known by the name of "cracking-whole."

The cure according to Martin is thus: First put a paire of strait pasternes on his fore-feet, keeping him still in the stable without disquieting him. Then take of dialthea one pound, of sallet-oyle one pinte, of oyle de bayes halfe a pound, of fresh butter halfe a pound; melt al these things together in a pipkin, and annoint the grieved place therewith, and also round about the inside of the shoulder, and within two or three daies after, both that place and all the shoulder besides will swel. Then either prick him with a lancet or fleame in al the swelling places, or else with some other sharp hot iron, the head whereof would be an inch long, to the intent that the corruption may run out, and use to annoint it still with the same ointment. But if you see that it will not go away, but swel still, and gather to a head, then lance it where the swelling doth gather most, and is soft under the finger, and then taint it with flax dipt in this ointment; take of turpentine and of hogs grease of each two ounces, and melt them together, renewing the taint twice a day until it be whole.

cure, proceed to Kedleston, about three miles distant, in search of a squirrel. They gather themselves round the fine oaks and elms in the park, and with the noise of their instruments and their loud halloos soon succeed in starting one amongst the boughs. This they chase from tree to tree, until stunned with the noise, and wearied with exertion, it falls to the ground, and is captured; it is carried back in triumph to Duffield, and not unfrequently undergoes the torment of a second hunt in a wood near the village. Whether this is the remains of a privilege of hunting in the forest of Duffield, possessed by the inhabitants or not, I know not, but many unsuccessful attempts have been made to stop it, the inhabitants always asserting their right to hunt. STALKING-HORSE. A horse real or fictitious, by which a fowler screens himself from the sight of the game.

Clarke's Phrasologia Puerilis, 1655, p. 120.

There is no getting at some fowl without a stalking-horse, which must be some old jade trained up for that purpose, who will gently, as you would have him, walk up and down in the water which way you please, flodding and eating the grass that grows therein; behind whose fore-shoulder you are to shelter yourself and gun, bending your body down low by his side, and keeping his body still full between you and the fowl. When you are within shot take your level from before the fore-part of the horse, giving fire as it were between his neck and the water, which is much better shooting than under his belly. Now to supply the defect of a real stalking-horse, which will take up a great deal of time to instruct and make fit for this exercise, an artificial one may be made of any piece of old canvas, which is to be shap'd in form of a horse, with the head bending downwards, as if he graz'd. It may be stuffed with any light matter, and should be painted of the colour of a horse, whereof brown is the best; in the middle let it be fixt to a staff, with a sharp iron at the end, to stick into the ground as occasion requires, standing fast while you take your level; and farther, as it must be very portable, it should also be moved, so as it may seem to graze as it goes; neither ought its stature to be too high or too low, for the one will not hide the body, and the other will be apt to fright the fowl away. But when you have so beat the fowl with the stalking-horse that they begin to find your deceit, and will no longer endure it, you may stalk with an ox or cow made of painted canvas, till the stalking-horse be forgot, while others again stalk with stags, or red deer, formed out of painted canvas, with the natural horns of stags fixed thereon, and the colour so lively painted that the fowl cannot discern the fallacy.

"Tine, a stand, open tub, or soe, most in use during the time of vintage, and holding about foure or five paillefulls, and commonly borne by a stang betweene two," Cotgrave. "This word is still used in some colleges in the University of Cambridge: to stang scholars in Christmas being to cause them to ride on a coltstaff or pole for missing of chappel," Ray, ed. 1674, p. 44.

And yet hem halchez al hole the halves to-geder,
And sythen on a stiff stange stoutly hem henges.

Syr Gawain and the Grene Knyzt, 1614.

- (7) Riding the stang. This is a custom well known throughout the North, and intended for the benefit of those husbands who beat their wives. Formerly the offending party was forcibly mounted across a stang or pole, on which he was conveyed with a rabble at his heels through the town or village, and compelled to listen to the proclamation of his unmanly conduct, accompanied with the noise of tin cans, horns, &c. But now some one of the assembled multitude, consisting chiefly of boys, is elevated on a pole or ladder, and gives utterance to the following doggrel verses:

Ran, Dan, Dan, the sign of our old Tin Can,
Taylor Wood has been beating his good woman;

He beat her with neither stick, stone, nor stower,
But up'd with his goose and knock'd her ower.
If ever he does the like again,
As we suppose he will,
We'll mount him on a nanny goat,
And ride him down to hell.

So runs a version obtained some years ago at Louth by Mr. Adcock, and probably continues to this day. In the neighbourhood of Lincoln there is a considerable variation. The cry or proclamation is as follows:

Ran, Tan, Tan, the sign of the old Tin Can;
Stephen Smith's been paying his daughter Nan;
He paid her both behind and before,
He paid her 'cause she wouldn't be his whore.
He lick'd her neither with stake nor stower,
But up w! his fist and knock'd her ower.
Now if Steenie Smith don't mend his manners,
The skin of his . . . shall go the tanner's:
And if the tanner don't tan it well:
Skin, tanner, and . . . shall go to hell.

STIFFLE. A complaint in horses.

The horse is said to be stiffed when the stifling bone is removed from the place; but if it be not removed nor loosened, and yet the horse halteth by means of some griefe there, then we say that the horse is hurt in the stifle, and not stiffed. The stiffe cometh by means of some blow, or some great straine, slipping or silding. The signes be these. If he be stiffed, the one bone wil sticke out farther than the other, and is apparant to the eie. Martin woulde have you to cure the stiffe in al points like unto the shoulder-plot, saving that the pins need not bee so long, because the stifling place is not so broad as the shoulder, and standing in the stable; let him have a pasterne with a ring on his forelegge, and thereunto fasten a cord, which cord must go about his necke, and let it be so much strained as it may bring his sore legge more forward than the other to keepe the bone from starting out. But if the horse bee but hurt in the stiffe with some stripe or straine, then the bone wil not stand out, but perhaps the place may be swollen. The cure according to Martin is thus. First annoint the place with the ointment mentioned before, every day once the space of a fortnight, and if the horse amend not with this, then rowel him with a hearen rowel, or else with a quill, and let the neather hole be somewhat before the sore place, and clense the hole every daye by turning the rowel, continuing stil to anoint the place with the ointment aforesaid, and that wil make him whole.

Colemdowne is the place so famous and so frequented for stobball playing. The twife is very fine, and the rock freestone is within an inch and half of the surface, which gives the ball so quick a rebound. A stobball-ball is of about four inches diameter, stuffed very hard with quills, sowed into soale leather, and as hard as a stone. I doe not heare that this game is used anywhere in England but in this part of Wiltshire, and Gloucestershire adjoining. They strike the ball with a great turned staff of about four feet long." SWITHIN (ST.) The notion current, I believe, pretty extensively, that if we have rain on this day, not one of the next forty will be wholly without, is still in full force among us. Nares notices it as an old and often revived superstition; referring to ample illustrations thereof in Pop. In Alban Butler's Lives of the Saints, Swithin is recorded; but nothing is said of the rainy prodigy. Moor.

The sword-dancers are men entirely or chiefly composed of miners or pitmen, and of persons engaged in the various other vocations of a colliery, who, during the week intervening between Christmas and New Year's Day, perambulate the country in parties, consisting of from twelve to twenty, partly in search of money, but much more of adventure and excitement. On these occasions they are habited in a peculiarly gaudy dress, which, with their dancing, principally attracts attention. Instead of their ordinary jackets they wear others, composed of a kind of variegated patchwork, which, with their hats, are profusely decorated with ribands of the gayest hues, prepared and wrought by their sisters or sweethearts, the sword-dancers being usually young and unmarried men. This, with slight individual variations, is the description of dress worn by all the members of a sword-dancing party, with the exception of two conspicuous characters invariably attached to the company, and denominated amongst themselves respectively the Tommy (or fool) and the Bessy. Those two personages wear the most frightfully grotesque dresses imaginable; the former being usually clad in the skin of some wild animal, and the latter in petticoats and the costume of an old woman; and it is the office of those two individuals, who play by far the most important part in sword-dancing excursions, to go round amongst the company which collects to see them dance, and levy contributions in money, each being furnished for this purpose with a huge tin or iron box, which they rattle in the faces of the bystanders, and perform other antics and grimaces to procure subscriptions. A fiddler also is an indispensable attaché to a company of sword-dancers; and it is the business of another of the party to carry about a change of wearing apparel for his comrades, which becomes necessary when they make protracted journeys, as they sometimes do, into the country, going round amongst the towns and hamlets, and farm-steadings, and exhibiting their dance before the inhabitants. This is a peculiar kind of dance, which it would be vain to attempt to describe. It bears some resemblance to an ordinary quadrille dance, with this difference, that the sword-dancers are each furnished with long steel wands, which they call swords, and which they employ with a very peculiar and beautiful effect during the dance. The dance is sometimes accompanied with a song, and a fragment of dramatic action. The fiddler accompanies the song in unison with the voice, repeating at the end of each stanza the latter part of the air, forming an interlude between the verses; during which the characters are introduced by the singer, make their bow and join the circle.

1. The first that I call in he is a squire's son;
He's like to lose his love because he is too young.
2. Altho' he be too young, he has money for to rove,
And he'll freely spend it all before he'll lose his love.
3. The next that I call in, he is a sailor bold,
He came to poverty by the lending of his gold.
4. The next that I call in, he is a tailor fine,
What think you of his work? he made this coat of mine.
5. The next that I call in, he is a keelman grand,
He goes both fore and aft, with his long sett in his hand.
6. Alas! our actor's dead, and on the ground he's laid,
Some of us must suffer for't, young man, I'm sore afraid.
7. I'm sure 'twas none of me, I'm clear of the crime,
'Twas him that follows me, that drew his sword so fine.
8. I'm sure 'twas none of me, I'm clear of the fact,
'Twas him that follows me that did the bloody act.
9. Then cheer up, my bonny lads, and be of courage bold,
We'll take him to the church, and bury him in the mould.
10. Cox-Green's a pretty place, where water washes clean,
And Painshaw's on a hill, where we have merry been.
11. You've seen them all call'd in, you've seen them all go round,
Wait but a little while, some pastime shall be found.
12. Then, fiddler, change the tune, play us a merry jig,
Before I will be beat, I'll pawn both hat and wig.

In explanation of the above, it should be stated, that after the fifth verse other characters are generally introduced in a similar manner, and then the sword-dance takes place, in which one of them is killed. After the ninth verse the doctor is introduced, and a dialogue of some length takes place, which terminates in his restoring the dead man to life.

A writer in the Gent. Mag. for May, 1811, tells us that in the North Riding of Yorkshire the sword-dance is performed from St. Stephen's Day till New Year's Day. The dancers usually consist of six youths, dressed in white, with ribands, attended by a fiddler, a youth with the name of Bessy, and also by one who personates a doctor. They travel from village to village. One of the six youths acts the part of King in a kind of farce, which consists chiefly of singing and dancing, when the Bessy interferes while they are making a hexagon with their swords, and is killed. Brand's Popular Antiquities, i. 283.

before and behind, and reached a little lower than the loins." According to Nares, the name of tabarder is still preserved in Queen's College, Oxford, for scholars whose original dress was a tabard. "Tabard, a garment, manteau," Palsgrave. Verstegan says in his time, the term was confined to a herald's coat.

(2) In palmistry, a space between certain lines on the skin within the hand. According to our first extract, the table is a line reaching from the bottom of the little finger to the bottom of the first finger. It is incorrectly explained the "palm of the hand" in Middleton, iv. 438; but the term was certainly variously applied.

Hit ys to know that the lyne that goth about the thombe ys cleped the lyne of lyfe or of the hert.
The lyne that ys betwene the medylle of the pawme that ys betwene the thombe and the next fynger, wombe, and strechethe itselfe to the wryste. Mons manus or the tabule begynneth fro mensali to

Other lines also may be divided into equal sections, as the table line, the natural line, the quadrangle and triangle, which are all to be parted into equal portions, and according to proportion shall shew the time and age of life in which every accident shall happen, which the characters shall signify, in their several natures. This space is called the table of the hand, which hath on the one side line. Sanders' Chironancy, p. 87.

and is described in the Journal of the British Archæological Association, ii. 193, but very few seem to have been preserved.

His table-bookes be a chiefe adjunct, and the most significant embleme of his owne quality that man may beare about him; for the wiping out of olde

(8) To leap. Shak.

(9) To blast, as if by witchcraft. Shakespeare uses the term, and it is still current in the West of England. "Taken, as chyldernes lymmes be by the fayries, face," Palsgrave. In an old MS. collection of receipts in my possession is one "for to make a man hole that kechith cold in his slepe that he ys ny take," and another "for a man that ys take in his slepe."

A horse which is bereft of his feeling, mooving or stirring, is said to be taken, and in sooth so he is, in that he is arrested by so villainous a disease, yet some farriers, not wel understanding the ground of the disease, conster the word taken to bee striken by some plannet or evill spirit, which is false, for it proceedeth of too great abundance of fleme and choler, simboliz'd together. The cure is thus. Let him blood in his spur-vains, and his breast vaines, and then by fouling him in abundant number of cloaths, drive him into an extreme sweat, during which time of his sweating, let one chafe his legs with oyle de bay, then after he hath sweat the space of two houres, abate his cloaths moderately, and througely after he is dry, annoint him all over with oyle petoliuum, and in twice or thrice dressing him he wil be sound.

 sure belonging unto tenants; for so the word it selfe imports. Others more proper and agreeing unto the nature of the said measure, call it curt measure;

Till in sack-posset they had lost it.
Th' intent of flinging thus the hose
Is to hit him or her o' th' nose;
Who hits the mark, thus, o'er left shoulder,
Must married be ere twelve months older.
Deucallon thus, and Pyrrha, threw
Behind them stones, whence mankind grew.

The first use the two lads of the castle made of their existence was to ply the bridegroom so hard with bumpers, that in less than an hour he made divers efforts to sing, and soon after was carried to bed, deprived of all manner of sensation, to the utter disappointment of the bridemen and maids, who, by this accident, were prevented from throwing the stocking, and performing certain other ceremonies practised on such occasions.

Peregrine Pickle, chap. 4.

But as luck would have it ye parson said grace,
And to frisking and dancing they shuffled apace,

Each lad took his lass by the fist;

And when he had squeez'd her, and gaum'd her untill

The fat of her face ran down like a mill,

He toll'd for the rest of the grist.

In sweat and in dust having wasted the day,

They enter'd upon the last act of the play,

The bride to her bed was convey'd;

Where knee deep each hand fell down to the ground,

And in seeking the garter much pleasure was found,

'Twould have made a man's arm have stray'd.

This clutter ore, Clarinda lay

Half bedded, like the peeping day

Behind Olympus cap;

Whiles at her head each twitting girl

The fatal stocking quick did whirl

To know the lucky hap.

The bridegroom in at last did rustle,

All dissap-pointed in the bustle,

The maidens had shav'd his breeches;

But let him not complain, tis well,

In such a storm, I can you tell,

He save'd his other stitches.

From the top of this gate-house was a most pleasant and delightfull prospect, as it to be seen. His lordship was wont to recreate himself in this place, to apricate and contemplate, and his little dog with him. It so happened that a Tom  $\delta$  Bedlam gott up the staires when his lordship was there, and came to him, and cryed, "leap, Tom, leap," offering his lo. violence to have thrown him over the battlements. His lo. was a little old man, and in his gown, and not able to make resistance, but having presentnesse of witt, seyde, "Let's first throw this little dog over." The Tom  $\delta$  Bedlam threw the dog down. "Pretty sport," sayd the Lord Chancelour, "goe down, and bring it up, and try again." Whilste the mad-man went down for the dog, his lordship made fast the dore of the staires, and called for help, otherwise he had lost his life by this unexpected danger." To this Aubrey appends the following note: "Till the breaking out of the civill warres Tom  $\delta$  Bedlams did travell about the country; they had been poore distracted men that had been putt into Bedlam, where recovering to some sobernesse, they were licentiated to goe a begging, e. g. they had on their left arm an armilla of tinn printed in some workes, about four inches long; they could not gett it off.

They wore about their necks a great horn of an oxe in a string or bawdrie, which when they came to an house for almes, they did wind; and they did putt the drink given them into this horn, whereto they did putt a stopple. 3. This character is found in early English MSS. written after the twelfth century. It is a corruption of the Anglo-Saxon letter g, and sometimes answers to our g, sometimes to y, sometimes to gh, and also to a mute consonant at the commencement of a word. In the middle of a word it occasionally stands for i; in the same manner the A.-S. g has been changed into i, when in a similar position. It should be remarked that the letter z often appears in MSS. under this character, with which, however, it has clearly no connexion. It is, therefore, incorrect to substitute it as an equivalent for z, or vice versa. When it occupies the place of the Anglo-Saxon letter, no other character represents its exact force.

P R E F A C E.

THE difficulties proverbially attending the first essay in a literary design of any magnitude constitute one of the very few apologies the public are generally willing to concede an author for the imperfect execution of his undertaking. Perhaps no desideratum in our literature could be named which needs this indulgence more than a Dictionary of the Early English language,—a work requiring such extensive and varied research, that the labours of a century would still leave much to be added and corrected, and one which has been too often abandoned by eminent antiquaries for failure to be conspicuous. It is now brought to a completion for the first time in the following pages, in some respects imperfectly, but comprising a variety of information nowhere else to be met with in a collective state, and forming at present the only compilation where a reader of the works of early English writers can reasonably hope to find explanations of many of the numerous terms which have become obsolete during the last four centuries.*

So far I may be permitted to speak without intrenching on the limits of criticism. A work containing more than 50,000 words,† many of which have never appeared even in scattered glossaries, and illustrated, with very few exceptions, by original authorities, must contain valuable material for the philologist, even if disfigured by errors. With respect to the latter contingency, I am not acquainted with any glossary, comprising merely a few hundred words, which does not contain blunders, although in many instances the careful attention of the editor has been specially directed to the task. Can I then anticipate that in a field, so vast that no single life would suffice for a minute examination of every object, I could have escaped proportionate liabilities? That such may be pointed out I have little doubt, notwithstanding the pains taken to prevent their occurrence ; but it will be manifestly unfair to make them the test of merit, or thence to pronounce a judgment on the accuracy of the whole. I may add that the greatest care has been taken to render the references and quotations accurate, and whenever it was practicable, they have been collated in type with the originals. The great importance of accurate references will be fully appreciated by the student who has experienced the inconvenience of the many inaccurate ones in the works of Nares, Gifford, and others.

* A Glossary of Archaic and Provincial Words was compiled about fifty years ago by the Rev. Jonathan Boucher, Vicar of Epsom, but only a small portion, extending to Bla, has yet been published. The manuscript, which is in the custody of one of the editors of the work, I have not seen, but to judge from what has appeared, it probably contains much irrelevant matter. Mr. Toone has given us a small manual of early English words, 8vo. 1832. Nares' Glossary, published in 1822, is confined to the Elizabethan period, a valuable work, chiefly compiled from the notes to the variorum edition of Shakespeare.

The numerous quotations I have given from early manuscripts will generally be found to be literal copies from the originals, without any attempt at remedying the grammatical errors of the scribes, so frequent in manuscripts of the fifteenth century. The terminal contractions were then, in fact, rapidly vanishing as part of the grammatical construction of our language, and the representative of the vowel terminations of the Anglo-Saxon was lost before the end of that century. It is only within the last few years that this subject has been considered by our editors, and it is much to be regretted that the texts of Ritson, Weber, and others are therefore not always to be depended upon. For this reason I have had recourse in some cases to the original manuscripts in preference to using the printed texts, but, generally, the quotations from manuscripts have been taken from pieces not yet published. Some few have been printed during the time this work has been in the press, a period of more than two years.

In ascertaining the meaning of those early English words, which have been either improperly explained or have escaped the notice of our glossarists, I have chiefly had recourse to those grand sources of the language, Anglo-Saxon and Anglo-Norman. It appeared to me to be sufficient in such cases to indicate the immediate source of the word without referring to the original root, discarding in fact etymological research, except when it was necessary to develop the right explanation. Etymological disquisitions on provincial words have also been considered unnecessary ; but in some few instances, where there existed no reasonable doubt, the root has been mentioned.

In explaining terms and phrases of the Elizabethan era, I have had the advantage not enjoyed in preparing that part of the work which relates to the earlier period, of referring to the labours of a predecessor in the same task. The Glossary of Archdeacon Nares has here necessarily in some respects been my guide, generally a faithful one as far as his explanations are concerned, but still very imperfect as a general glossary to the writers of that age. I have attempted to supply his deficiencies by more than trebling his collection of words and phrases, but my plan did not permit me to imitate his prolixity, and I have therefore frequently stated results without explaining the reasoning or giving the reading which led to them. Nares' Glossary is however, notwithstanding its imperfections, a work of great merit, and distinguished by the clearness and discrimination with which the collections of the Shakespearian commentators are arranged and discussed. To find him occasionally in error merely illustrates the impossibility of perfection in philological studies.

Having had in view the wants of readers unskilled in early English rather than the literary entertainment of professed students, I have admitted numerous forms the etymologist will properly regard corrupt, and which might easily have been reduced to their original sources. I may have carried the system too far, but to have excluded corruptions would certainly have rendered the work less generally useful; and it is not to be presumed that every one who consults a manual of this kind will despise the assistance thus afforded. There are, too, many corruptions the sources of which are not readily perceivable even by the most experienced.

So many archaisms are undoubtedly still preserved by our rural population, that it was thought the incorporation of a glossary of provincialisms would render the work a more useful guide than one restricted to known archaisms. When Ray in 1674 published the first collection of English localisms, he gives three reasons for having undertaken the task: "First, because I knew not of anything that hath been already done in this kind; second, because I conceive they may be of some use to them who shall have occasion to travel the Northern counties, in helping them to understand the common language there; third, because they may also afford some diversion to the curious, and give them occasion of making many considerable remarks." It is remarkable that Ray seems to have been unacquainted with the real value of provincial words, and most of his successors appear to have collected without the only sufficient reason for preserving them, the important assistance they continually afford in glossing the works of our early writers.

Observations on our provincial dialects as they now exist will be found in the following pages, but under the firm conviction that the history of provincialisms is of far inferior importance to the illustration they afford of our early language, I have not entered at length into a discussion of the former subject. I have spared no pains to collect provincial words from all parts of the country, and have been assisted by numerous correspondents, whose communications are carefully acknowledged under the several counties to which they refer. These communications have enabled me to add a vast quantity of words which had escaped the notice of all the compilers of provincial glossaries, but their arrangement added immeasurably to the labour. No one who has not tried the experiment can rightly estimate the trouble of arranging long lists of words, and separating mere dialectical forms.

The contributors of provincial words are elsewhere thanked, but it would hardly be right to omit the opportunity of enumerating the more extensive communications. I may, then, mention my obligations to Captain Henry Smith, for his copious glossary of Isle of Wight provincialisms ; to the Rev. James Adcock, to whom I am principally indebted for Lincolnshire words ; to Goddard Johnson, Esq. for his valuable Norfolk glossary ; to Henry Norris, Esq. for his important Somersetshire collection ; to David E. Davy, Esq. for his MS. additions to Forby ; to Major Moor, for his collections for a new edition of his Suffolk Words and Phrases ; and to the Rev. J. Staunton, for the use of the late Mr. Sharp's manuscript glossary of Warwickshire words. Most of the other communications have been of essential service, and I cannot call to mind one, however brief, which has not furnished me with useful information. My anonymous correspondents will be contented with a general acknowledgment ; but I have not ventured to adopt any part of their communications unsupported by other authority. My thanks are also returned to Mr. Toone, for MS. additions to his Glossary, chiefly consisting of notes on Massinger ; to Sir Henry Dryden, Bart., for a few notes on hunting terms in the earlier letters ; and to Mr. Chaffers, jun. for a brief glossary compiled a few years since from Chaucer, Lydgate, &c. But my chief obligations are due to Thomas Wright, Esq. M.A., whose suggestions on nearly every sheet of this work, as it was passing through the press, have been of the greatest advantage, and whose profound knowledge of Anglo-Saxon and Anglo-Norman has frequently been of essential service when the ordinary guides had been ineffectually consulted.

'THE ENGLISH PROVINCIAL DIALECTS.

ROBERT of Gloucester, after describing the Norman Conquest, thus alludes to the change of language introduced by that event :

And the Normans ne couthe speke tho bote her owe speche,
 And speke French as dude atom, and here chyldren dude also teche.
 So that hey men of this lond, that of her blod come,
 Holdeth alle thulke speche that hli of hem nome.
 Vor bote a man couthe French, me tolth of hym wel lute,
Ac lowe men holdeth to Englyss, and to her kunde speche zute.
 Ich wene ther ne be man in world contreyes none,
 That ne holdeth to her kunde speche, bote Engelond one.
 Ac wel me wot vor to conne bothe wel yt ys,
 Vor the more that a man con, the more worth he ys.

This extract describes very correctly the general history of the languages current in England for the first two centuries after the battle of Hastings. Anglo-Norman was almost exclusively the language of the court, of the Norman gentry, and of literature. "The works in English which were written before the Wars of the Barons belong," says Mr. Wright, "to the last expiring remains of an older and totally different Anglo-Saxon style, or to the first attempts of a new English one formed upon a Norman model. Of the two grand monuments of the poetry of this period, Layamon belongs to the former of these classes, and the singular poem entitled the Ormulum to the latter. After the middle of the thirteenth century, the attempts at poetical composition in English became more frequent and more successful, and previous to the age of Chaucer we have several poems of a very remarkable character, and some good imitations of the harmony and spirit of the French versification of the time." After the Barons' Wars, the Anglo-Norman was gradually intermingled with the Anglo-Saxon, and no long time elapsed before the mongrel language, English, was in general use, formed, however, from the latter. A writer of the following century thus alleges his reason for writing in English :

In Englis tonge y schal zow telle,
 Jyf ze so long with me wyl dwelle;
 Ne Latyn wil y speke ne waste,
 Bot Englisch that men uses maste,
 For that ys zoure kynde langage,
 That ze hafe here most of usage;
*That can ech man untherstonde
 That is born in Englond;*
 For that langage ys most schewed,
 Als wel mowe lereþ as lewed.
 Latyn also y trowe can uane,
 Bot tho that hath hit of schole tane;
 Som can Frensch and no Latyne,
 That useth has court and duellt therinne,
 And som can of Latyn aparty,
 That can Frensch ful sebylly;
 And som untherstondith Englisch,
 That nother can Latyn ne Frensch.
*Bot larde, and lewde, old and zong,
 Alle untherstondith Englisch tonge.*
 Therefore y holde hit most siker thanne
 To schewe the langage that ech man can;
 And for lewethe men namely,
 That can no more of clergy,
 Tho ken tham whare most nede,
 For clerkes can both se and rede
 In divers bokes of Holy Writt,
 How they schul lyve, yf thay loke hit:
 Therefore y wylle me holly halde
 To that langage that Englisch ys calde. MS. Bodl. 48, f. 48.

The author of the Cursor Mundi thought each nation should be contented with one language, and that the English should discard the Anglo-Norman :

This ilk bok it es translate Into Inglis tong to rede,
 For the love of Inglis lede,
 Inglis lede of Ingland,
 For the comun at understand.
 Frankis rimes here I redd
 Comunlik in ilk sted.
 Mast es it wroght for Frankis man,
Quat is for him na Frankis can ?
 Of Ingland the nacion
 Es Inglisman thar in comun ;
 The speche that man wit mast may spede,
 Mast thar wit to speke war nede.
Selden was for ani chance
Praised Inglis tong in France !
Give we ilkan thare langage,
Me think we do tham non outrage.

MS. Cott. Vespas. A. iii. f. 2.

In the curious tale of King Edward and the Shepherd, the latter is described as being perfectly astonished with the French and Latin of the court :

The lordis anon to chawmbur went,
 The kyng aftur the scheperde sent,
 He was brozt forth fulle sone ;
 He clawed his hed, his hare he rent,
 He wende wel to have be schent,
 He ne wyst what was to done.
 When he French and Latyn herde,
 He hade mervelle how it ferde,
 And drow hym ever alone :
 Jhesu, he seid, for thi gret grace,
 Bryng me fayre out of this place !
 Lady, now here my bone !

MS. Cantab. Ff. v. 48, f. 55.

In the fifteenth century, English may be said to have been the general language of this country.* At this period, too, what is now called old English, rapidly lost its grammatical forms, and the English of the time of Henry VIII., orthography excepted, differs very little from that of the present day. A few archaisms now obsolete, and old phrases, constitute the essential differences.

Our present subject is the provincial dialects, to which these very brief remarks on the general history of the English language are merely preliminary,—a subject of great difficulty, and one which requires far more reading than has yet been attempted to develop satisfactorily, especially in its early period. Believing that the principal use of the study of the English dialects consists in the explanation of archaisms, I have not attempted that research which would be necessary to understand their history, albeit this latter is by no means an unimportant inquiry. The Anglo-Saxon dialects were not numerous, as far as can be judged from the MSS. in that language which have been preserved, and it seems probable that most of our English dialects might be traced historically and etymologically to the original tribes of the Saxons, Angles, and Jutes, not forgetting the Danes, whose language, according to Wallingford, so long influenced the dialect of Yorkshire. In order to accomplish this we require many more early documents which bear upon the subject than have yet been discovered, and the uncertainty which occurs in most cases of fixing the exact locality in which they were written adds to our difficulties. When we come to a later period, the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, there being no standard literary form of our native language, every MS. sufficiently exhibits its dialect, and it is to be hoped that all English works of this period may one day be classed according to their dialects. In such an undertaking, great assistance will be derived from a knowledge of our local dialects as they now exist. Hence the value of specimens of modern provincial language, for in many instances, as in Robert of Gloucester's Chronicle, compared with the present dialect of Gloucestershire, the organic forms of the dialect have remained unchanged for centuries. The Ayenbyte of Inwyt is, perhaps, the most remarkable specimen of early English MSS. written in a broad dialect, and it proves very satisfactorily that in the fourteenth century the principal features of what is termed the Western dialect were those also of the Kentish dialect. There can be, in fact, little doubt that the former was long current throughout the Southern counties, and even extended in some degree as far as Essex.* If we judge from the specimens of early English of which the localities of composition are known, we might perhaps divide the dialects of the fourteenth century into three grand classes, the Northern, the Midland, and the Southern, the last being that now retained in the Western counties. But, with the few materials yet published, I set little reliance on any classification of the kind. If we may decide from Mr. Wright's Specimens of Lyric Poetry, which were written in Herefordshire, or from Audelay's Poems, written in Shropshire in the fifteenth century, those counties would belong to the Midland division, rather than to the West or South.

The few writers who have entered on the subject of the early English provincial dialects, have advocated their theories without a due consideration of the probability, in many cases the certainty, of an essential distinction between the language of literature and that of the natives of a county. Hence arises a fallacy which has led to curious anomalies. We are not to suppose, merely because we find an early MS. written in any county in standard English, that that MS. is a correct criterion of the dialect of the county. There are several MSS. written in Kent of about the same date as the Ayenbyte of Inwyt, which have none of the dialectal marks of that curious work. Most of the quotations here given from early MSS. must be taken with a similar limitation as to their dialect. Hence the difficulty, from want of authentic specimens, of forming a classification, which has led to an alphabetical arrangement of the counties in the following brief notices:—

BEDFORDSHIRE.

The dialect of this county has been fully investigated in Batchelor's Orthoepical Analysis of the English Language, 8vo. 1809. Ew takes the place of ow, ea of a, ov of the long o, oi of i, &c. When r precedes s and e final, or s and other consonants, it is frequently not pronounced. Ow final is often changed into er; ge final, into dge; and g final is sometimes omitted.

BERKSHIRE.

The Berkshire dialect partly belongs to the Western, and partly to the Midland, more strongly marked with the features of the former in the South-West of the county. The a is changed into o, the diphthongs are pronounced broadly, and the vowels are lengthened. Way is pronounced woye; thik and thak for this and that; he for him, and she for her.

BUCKINGHAMSHIRE.

The language of the peasantry is not very broad, although many dialectal words are in general use. A list of the latter was kindly forwarded to me by Dr. Hussey.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE.

There is little to distinguish the Cambridgeshire dialect from that of the adjoining counties. It is nearly allied to that of Norfolk and Suffolk. The perfect tense is formed strongly, as hit, hot, sit, sot, spare, spore, e. g. "if I am spore," i. e. spared, &c. I have to return my thanks to the Rev. J. J. Smith and the Rev. Charles Warren for brief lists of provincialisms current in this county.

CHESHIRE.

The Cheshire dialect changes l into w, ul into w or oo, i into oi or ee, o into u, a into o, o into a, u into i, ea into yo, and oa into wo. Mr. Wilbraham has published a very useful and correct glossary of Cheshire words. Second ed. 12mo. 1836.

Extract from a Speech of Judas Iscariot in the Play of Christ's Entry into Jerusalem.

By deare God in magistie!
I am so wroth as I maye be,
And some waye I will wrecken me,
As some as evr I maie.
My mayster Jesus, as men maye see,
Was rubbed heade, foote, and knye,
With oyntmente of more daintle
Then I see manye a daie.
To that I have grate envye,
That he suffred to destroye
More then all his good thrye,
And his dames towe.
Hade I of it hade maisterye,
I woulde have souldt it some in hie,
And put it up in tresucrye,
As I was wonte to doe.
Whatsocver wes geven to Jesu,
I have kepte, since I hym knewe;
For he hopes I wilbe trewe,
His purse allwale I bare.
Hym hade bene better, in good faye,
Hade spared oyntmente that daie,

* This is stated on sufficiently ample authority, but Verstegan appears to limit it in his time to the Western counties,—“We see that in some severall parts of England itselfe, both the names of things, and pronuntiations of words, are somewhat different, and that among the country people that never borrow any words out of the Latin or French, and of this different pronuntiation one example in steed of many shal suffice, as this: for pronouncing according as one would say at London, I would eat more cheese if I had it, the Northern man saith, Ay sud eat mare cheese gin ay hadet, and the Western man saith, Chud eat more cheese an chad it. Lo heere three different pronuntiations in our owne county in one thing, and hereof many the like examples might be alleaged.”—Verstegan's Restitution, 1634, p. 195.

For wrocken I wilbe some wale
Of waste that was done their ;
Three hundreth penny worthes it was
That he let spill in that place ;
Therefore God geve me hardie grace,
But hymselfe shalbe soulede
To the Jewes, or that I sitte,
For the tenth peny of it :
And this my malster shalbe quite
My greffe a hundreth foulde.

CORNWALL.

It is almost unnecessary to observe, that the ancient Cornish language has long been obsolete. It appears to have been gradually disused from the time of Henry VIII., but it was spoken in some parts of the country till the eighteenth century. Modern Cornish is now an English dialect, and a specimen of it is here given. Polwhele has recorded a valuable list of Cornish provincialisms, and a new glossary has recently been published, in 'Specimens of Cornish Provincial Dialect,' 8vo. 1846. In addition to these, I have to acknowledge several words, hitherto unnoticed, communicated by Miss Hicks, and R. T. Smith, Esq.

Harrison, Description of Britaine, p. 14, thus mentions the Cornish language: "The Cornish and Devonshire men, whose countrie the Britons call Cerniv, have a speach in like sort of their owne, and such as hath in deed more affinitie with the Armoricane toong than I can well discusse of. In my mine opinion, they are both but a corrupted kind of British, albeit so far degenerating in these daies from the old, that if either of them doo meete with a Welshman, they are not able at the first to understand one another, except here and there in some od words, without the helpe of interpreters."

In Cornwall, Pembr. and Devon they for to milk say milky, for to squirt, to squinny, this, thicky, &c., and after most verbs ending with consonants they clap a y, but more commonly the lower part of Pembrokeshire.

(1) The Cornwall Schoolboy.

An ould man found, one day, a yung gentleman's portmantle, as he were a going to cs dennar; he took'd et en and gived et to es wife, and said, "Mally, here's a roul of lither, look, see, I suppose some poor ould shoemaker or other have los'en, tak'en and put'en a top of the teaster of tha bed, he'll be glad to hab'en agen sum day, I dear say." The ould man, Jan, that was es neame, went to cs work as before. Mally then open'd the portmantle, and found en et three hunderd pounds. Soon after thes, the ould man not being very well, Mally said, "Jan, I've saaved away a little money, by the bye, and as thee can't read or write, thes shu't go to scool!" (he were then nigh threescore and ten). He went but a very short time, and comed ho:m one day, and said, "Mally, I wain't go to scool no more, 'caase the childer do be laffen at me; they can tell their letters, and I caan't tell my A, B, C, and I wud rath'er go to work agen." "Do as thee wool," ses Mally. Jan had not ben out many days, afore the yung gentleman came by that lost the portmantle, and said, "Well, my ould man, did'ee see or hear tell of sich a thing as a portmantle?" "Portmantle, sar, was't that un, sumthing like thickey? (pointing to one behind es saddle.) I found one the 'other day zackly like that." "Where es et?" "Come along, I carr'd'en en and gov'en to my wife Mally; thee sha't av'en. Mally, where es that roul of lither that I giv'd tha the 'other day?" "What roul of lither?" said Mally. "The roul of lither I broft en and tould tha to put'en a top of the teaster of the bed, afore I go'd to scool." "Drat the emperance," said the gentleman, "thee art betwattled, that was before I were born."

(2) A Western Eclogue.

Pengrouze, a lad in many a science blest,
Outshone his toning brothers of the west:
Of smugling, hurrling, wrestling much he knew,
And much of tin, and much of pilchards too.
Fam'd at each village, town, and country-house,
Menacken, Helstone, Polkinhorne, and Grouze;
Trespissen, Buidock, Cony-yerle, Treverry, Polbastard, Hallabazack, Eglesderry,
Pencob, and Restjeg, Treviskey, Breague,
Irewinnick, Buskenwyn, Busveal, Roscreague:
But what avail'd his fame and various art,
Since he, by love, was smitten to the heart?
The shaft a beam of Bet Polglaze's eyes;
And now he dumplin loaths, and pilchard pies.
Young was the lass, a servant at St. Tizzy,
Born at Polpiss, and bred at Mevagizy.
Calm o'er the mountain blush'd the rising day,
And ting'd the summit with a purple ray,
When sleepless from his hutch the lover stole,
And met, by chance, the mistress of his soul.
And "Whither go'st?" he scratched his skull and cry'd;

"Arrear, God bless us," well the nymph reply'd,
"To Yealston sure, to buy a pound o' backy,
That us and measter wonderfully lacky;
God bless us ale, this fortnight, 'pon my word,
We nothing smoaks but oak leaves and cue-terd."

Pengrouze.

Arrear then, Bessy, ly aloane the backy,
Sty here a tiny bit and let us talky.
Bessy, I loves thee, wot a ha me, zay,
Wot ha Pengrouze, why wot a, Bessy, hæ?

Bet Polglaze.

Ah, hunkin, hunkin, mind at Moushole fair
What did you at the Coughs, the alehouse there?
When you stows eighteen pence in cakes and beer,
To treat that dirty trollup, Mall Rosevear:
You stuffs it in her gills, and makes such pucker,
Arrear the people thoft you wid have choack her.

Pengrouze.

Curse Mall Rosevear, I says, a great jack whorc,
I ne'er sees such a dirty drab before:
I stuffs her gills with cakes and beer, the hunk,
She stuffs herself, she meslin and got drunk.
Best* drink sure for her jaws want' good enow,
So lecker† makes her drunk as David's sow;
Her feace is like a bull's, and 'tis a foeel,
Her legs are like the legs o' cobler's stool;
Her eyes be grean's a lick,‡ as yaffers big,
Noase flat's my hond, and neck so black's a pig.

Bet Polglaze.

Ay, but I've more to say; this isn't ale,
You deanc'd wy Mall Rosevear 't a sartlin bale;
She toald me so, and lefts me wy a sneare—
Ay! you, Pengrouze, did deance wy Mall Rosevear.

* Best drink implies strong beer. † Brandy.

Pengrouce.

Now, Bessy, hire me, Bessy, vath and soale,
Hire me, I says, and thou shat hire the whoale;
One night, a Wensday night, I vows to Goade,
Aloane, a hossback, to Tresouze I roade;
Sure Bessy vath, dist hire me, 'tis no lies,
A d—mnder bale was never seed w' eyes.
I hires sun mizzick at an oald bearne doore,
And hires a wondrous rousing on the floore;
So in I pops my head; says I, arrearer!
Why, what a devil's neame is doing here?
Why deancing, cries the crowder by the wale,
Why deancing, deancing, measter—'tis a bale.
Deancing, says I, by Gam I hires sun pncancers,
But tell us where the devil be the deancers;
For fy the dust and strawe so ffeed about,
I could not, Bessy, spy the hoppers out.
At laste I spies Rosevear, I wish her dead,
Who meakes medeance all nite, the stinking jade.
Says I, I have no shoose to kick a foote:
Why kick, says Mall Rosevear, then kick thy boote.
And, Bet, dist hire me, for to leert us ale,
A furthing candle wink'd again the walc.

Bet Polglaze.

Ah, hunkin, hunkin, I am huge afraid
That you is laughing at a simple maid.

Pengrouce.

Deare, dearest Bet, let's hug thee to my hearte,
And may us never never never pearte!
No, if I lies than, Bessy, than I wishes
The Shackleheads may never close the fishes;
That picky dogs may eat the secane when fule,
Eat'n to rags, and let go ale the schule.

Bet Polglaze.

Then here's my hond, and wy it teake my hearte.

Pengrouce.

Goade bless us too, and here is mines, ods hearte!
One buss, and then to Pilcharding I'll packy.

Bet Polglaze.

And I to Ycalstone for my master's backy.

(3) A Cornish Song.

Come, all ye jolly Tinner boys, and listen to me;
I'll tell ee of a storie shall make ye for to see,
Consarnin Boney Peartie, the schaames which he had maade
To stop our tin and copper mines, and all our pilchard traade.
He summonsed forty thousand men, to Polland they did goa,
All for to rob and plunder there you very well do
knawa;
But ten-thou-sund were killed, and laade dead in blood and goare,
And thirty thousand ranned away, and I cante tell where, I'm sure.
And should that Boney Peartie have forty thousand still
To maake into an army to work his wicked will,
And try for to invaade us, if he doent quickly fly—
Why, forty thousand Cornish boys shall knawa the reason why.
Hurea for tin and copper, boys, and fisheries likewise!
Hurea for Cornish maadens—oh, bless their pretty eyes!
Hurea for our ould gentric, and may they never faale!
Hurea, hurea for Cornwall! hurea, boys, "onc and ale!"

CUMBERLAND.

The dialects of Cumberland, Westmoreland, Northumberland, and Durham may be considered to be identical in all essential peculiarities, the chief differences arising from the mode of pronunciation. According to Boucher, the dialect of Cumberland is much less uniform than that of Westmoreland. In Cumberland, wo is in frequent use instead of the long o, as will be noticed in the following example. A glossary of Cumberland words was kindly forwarded to me by Mr. Thomas Sanderson.

(1) Love in Cumberland.

Tune.—"Cuddle me, Cuddy."

Wa, Jwohn, what'n mannishment's 'tis
'At tou's gawn to dee for a hizzy!
Aw hard o' this torrable fess,
An' aw's cum't to advise tha',—'at is ee.

Mun, thou'll nobbet lwose tee gud neame
Wi' gowlin an' whingin sea mickle;
'Cocksunturs! min beyde about heame,
An' let her e'en ga to auld Nickle.

Thy plew-geer's aw liggin how-strow,
An' somebody's stown thee thy couter;
Oh faiks! thou's duin little 'at dow
To fash theesel ivver about her.

Your Seymey has broken car stang,
An' mendit it wid a clog-coaker;
Pump-tree's geane aw whety wrang,
An' they've sent for auld Tom Stawker.

Young filly's dung oure the lang stee,
An' lean'd peer Andrew the thecker;
Thee mudder wad suffer't for tee,
An haw hadn't happ'n't to cleek her.

Thou's spoilt for aw manner o' wark:
Thou nobbet sits peghan an' pleeman.
Ods wucke, man! doff that dirty sark,
An' pretha gi'e way git a clean an'!

An' then gow to Carel wi' me,—
Let her gang to knock-cross wid her sewornin,
See clanken at market we'll see,
A'll up'od ta' forgit her 'or mwornin'!

(2) Song, by Miss Blamire.

What ails this heart o' mine?
What means this wat'ry e'e?
What gars me ay turn pale as death
When I tak' leave o' thee?
When thou art far awa',
Thou'll dearer be to me;
But change o' place, and change o' folk,
May gar thy fancy jee.
When I sit down at e'en,
Or walk in morning air,
Ilk rustling bough will seem to say,
I us'd to meet thee there;
Then I'll sit down and wail,
And greet aneath a tree,
And gin a leaf fa' i' my lap,
I's ca't a word frae thee.

I'll hic me to the bow'r
Where yews wi' roses tred,
And where, wi' monie a blushing bud,
I strove my face to hide;
I'll doat on ilka spot,
Where I ha'e been wi' thee,
And ca' to mind some kindly look
'Neath ilka hollow tree.

Wi' sec thoughts i' my mind,
Time thro' the warl may gae,
And find me still, in twenty years,
The same as I'm to-day!

'Tis friendship bears the sway,
And keeps friends i' the e'e;
And gin I think I see the still,
Wha can part thee and me?

DERBYSHIRE.

"This dialect," observes Dr. Bosworth, "is remarkable for its broad pronunciation. In me the e is pronounced long and broad, as mee. The l is often omitted after a or o, as aw for all, caw, call, bowed, bold, coud, cold. Words in ing generally omit the g, but sometimes it is changed into k; as think for thing, lovin for loving. They use con for can; conner for cannot; shanner for shall not; wool, wooner for will, and will not; yo for you, &c." Lists of provincial words peculiar to this county have been kindly forwarded by Dr. Bosworth, Thomas Bateman, Esq., the Rev. Samuel Fox, the Rev. William Shilleto, Mrs. Butler, and L. Jewitt, Esq.

A Dialogue between Farmer Bennet and Tummus Lide.

Farmer Bennet. Tummus, why dunner yo mend meh shoom?

Tummus Lide. Becoz, mester, 'tis zo cood, I conner work wee the tachin at aw. I've brocku it ten times I'm shur to de—it freezes zo hard. Why, Hester hung out a smock-frock to dry, an in three minits it wor frozen as stiff as a proker, an I conner afford to keep a good fire; I wish I cud. I'd soon mend yore shoon, an others tow. I'd soon yarn sum munney, I warrant ye. Conner yo find sum work for m', mester, these hard times? I'll doo onnythink to addle a penny. I con thresh—I con split wood—I con mak spars—I con thack. I con skower a dike, an I con trench tow, but it freezes zo hard. I con winner—I con fo'her, or milk, if there beed no'n't. I woodner mind drivin plow or onnythink.

Farmer B. I hanner got nothin for ye to doo, Tummus; but Mester Boord towd me jist now that they wor gooin to winner, an that they shud want sumbody to help 'em.

Tummus L. O, I'm glad on't. I'll run oor an zee whether I con help 'em; bur I hanner bin weein the threshold ov Mester Boord's doer for a nation time, becuz I thoot mis-es didner use Hester well; bur I dunner bear malice, an zo I'll goo.

Farmer B. What did Mis-es Boord za or doo to Hester then?

Tummus L. Why, Hester may be wor summut to blame too; for her wor one on 'em, de ye zee, that jawd Skimmerton,—the mak-gam that frunted zum o' the gentefook. They said 'twor time to dun wee sich litter, or sich stuff, or I dunner know what they cawd it; but they wor frunted wee Hester bout it; an I said, if they wor frunted wee Hester, they mid be frunted wee mee. This set mis-es's back up, an Hester hanner bin a charrin there sin. But 'tis no use to bear malice; an zo I'll goo oor, and zee which wee the winde blows.

DEVONSHIRE.

The MS. Ashmole 33 contains an early romance, written about the year 1377, which appears to have been composed by a clergyman living in the diocese of Exeter. Several extracts from it will be found in the following pages. The MS. possesses great interest, having part of the author's original draught of the romance. See farther in Mr. Black's Catalogue, col. 15.

"A Devonshire song" is printed in Wits Interpreter, ed. 1671, p. 171; the "Devonshire ditty" occurs in the same work, p. 247. The Exmoor Scolding and the Exmoor Courtship, specimens of the broad Devonshire dialect at the commencement of the last century, have been lately republished. The third edition was published at Exeter in 1746, 4to. Mr. Marshall has given a list of West Devonshire words in his Rural Economy of the West of England, 1796, vol. i. pp. 323-32, but the best yet printed is that by Mr. Palmer, appended to a Dialogue in the Devonshire Dialect, 8vo. 1837. A brief glossary is also added to the Devonshire Dialogue, 8vo. 1839. My principal guide, however, for the dialectal words of this county is a large MS. collection stated in Mr. Thomas Rodd's Catalogue of MSS. for 1845 (No. 276) to have been written by Dr. Milles, Dean of Exeter, and quoted in this work as Dean Milles' MS. I have been since informed that it was compiled by the late Rev. Richard Hole, but in either case its integrity and value are undoubted. Notes of Devonshire words have been kindly transmitted by the Rev. John Wilkinson, J. H. James, Esq., William Chappell, Esq., Mrs. Lovell, and Mr. J. Metcalfe. The West Country dialect is now spoken in greater purity in Devonshire than in any other county.

The following remarks on the English dialects are taken from Aubrey's Natural History of Wiltshire, a MS. preserved in the library of the Royal Society:

The Northern parts of England speake gutturally; and in Yorkshire and the bishoprick of Durham they have more of the cadence, or Scottish tone than they have at Edinborough; in like manner, in Herefordshire they have more of the Welch cadence than they have in Wales. The Westerne people cannot open their mouths to speak ore rotundo. Wee pronounce paal, pale, &c., and especially in Devonshire. The Exeter Coll. men in disputations, when they allege Causa Causæ est Causa Causati, they pronounce it, Caza, Cazæ est Caza Cuzati very un-gracefully. Now contra the French and Italians doe naturally pronounce a fully ore rotundo, and e, and even children of French born in England; and the farther you goe South the more fully, qd. NB. This must proceed from the earth or aire, or both. One may observe, that the speech (twang or accent—adiantus) of ye vulgar begins to alter some thing towards the Herefordshire manner even at Cyreneester. Mr. Thom. Hobbs told me, that Sir Charles Cavendish did say, that the Greekes doe sing their words (as the Hereff. doe in some degree). From hence arose the accents, not used by the ancients. I have a conceit, that the Britons of the South part of this Isle, e. g. the Trinobantes, &c., did speak no more gutturally, or twangings, than the inhabitants doe now. The tone, accent, &c., depends on the temper of the earth (and so to plants) and aire.

(1) A Lovers' Dialogue.

Rab. I love dearly, Bet, to hear the tell; but, good loving now, let's tell o'zummet else. Time slips away.

Bet. I, fegs, that it dith. I warnis our vokes wonder what the godger's a come o'me. I'll drive home. I wish thee good neart.

Rab. Why theré now. Oh, Bet! you guess what I ha to tell about, and you warn't hear me.

Bet. I, say so, co;—a fiddle-de-dee—blind marcs.

Rab. There agen!—did ever any boddy hear the like? Well, soce, what be I to do?

Rab. I wish, Rab, you'd leave vetting me. Pithee, let's here no more o'at.

Rab. Woll, I zee how 'tis. You'll be the death o'me, that's a zure thing.

Bet. Dear hart, how you tell! I the death o' thee!—no, not vor the world, Rab. Why I'd ne'er the heart to hurt thee nor any kindest thing in all my born days. What whimzies you have! Why do ye put yourself in such a pucker?

Rab. Why, because the minnet I go about to break my menced, whipsoce, you be a-go, and than I could bite my tongue.

Bet. Why than will you veass me away when you know I can't abide to hear o'at? Good-now, don't ee zay no more about et. Us have always been good friends—let us bide so.

Rab. I've now began, and I want let thee go till thee hast a-heard me out.

Bet. Well, I woll, but don't ee cream my hand zo.

Rab. I don't know what I do nor what I zay;—many many nearts I ha'n't a teen'd my eyes vor thinking o'thee. I can't live so, 'tis never the neer to tell o'at; and I must make an end o'at wan way or t'other. I be bent upon't; therefore don't stand shilly-shally, but lookeedeeze, iv thee disn't zay thee wid ha me, bevore theecka cloud hath heal'd every 'hean o' the moon, zure an double-zure I'll ne'er ax thee agen, but go a soger and never zee home no more. Lock! lock! my precious, what dist cry vor?

Bet. I be a cruel moody-hearted tresome body; and you scare wan, you do zo. I'm in a sad quandory. Iv I zay is, I may be sorry; and if I zay no, I may be sorry too, zimmet. I hop you widn't use me badly.

Rab. Dist think, my sweeting, I shall e'er be maz'd anew to claw out my own eyes? and thee art dearer to me than they be.

Bet. Hold not so breach now, but hear first what I've to zay. You must know, Rab, the leet money I've a croop'd up I be a shirk'd out o', but 'twill never goodee way an. I'll tell thee how I was choiced.

Rab. Good-now, lovey, don'tee think o'at. We shall fadgee and find without et. I can work, and will work, an all my carking and caring will be for thee, and everything shall bee as thee woud ha'et. Thee shall do what thee wid.

Bet. I say so too. Co, co, Rab, how you tell! Why, pithee, don't ee think I be such a ninny-hammer as to desire et. If 'tis ordained I shall ha thee, I'll do my best to make tha a gude wife. I don't want to be cocker'd. Hark! hark! don't I hear the bell lowering for aight?—'tis, as I live. I shall ha et when I get home.

Rab. If I let thee go now, will meet me agen to-morrow evening in the dimmet?

Bet. No. To-morrow morning at milking time I woll.

Rab. Sure.

Bet. Sure and sure. So I wish thee good neart.

Rab. Neart, neart, my sweeting!

(2) John Chawbacon and his wife Moll, cum up t'Exeter to zee the railway opened, May 1, 1844.

“Lor Johnny! lor Johnny! now what'iver es that, A urning along like a hoss upon wheels?”

“’Tis as bright as yer buttons, and black as yer hat, And jist listen, Johnny, and yer how 'a squeals!”

“Dash my buttons, Moll—I'll be darn'd if I know; Us was vools to come yerr and to urn into danger; Let's be off—'a spits vire! lor, do let us go— And 'a holds up his head like a gooze at a stranger.

“I be a bit vrighten'd—but let us bide yerr; And hark how 'a puffs, and 'a caughts, and 'a blows, He edden unlike the old cart-hoss last yer— Broken-winded,—and yet only zee how 'a goes!

“A urns upon ladders, with they things like wheels, Or hurdles, or palings, put down on the ground; But why do they let 'un stray out of the veels?

‘Tis a wonder they don't clap 'un into the pound.”

“'A can't be alive, Jan—I don't think 'a can.”

“I bain't zure o' that, Moll, for jist look'ee how

'A breathes like a hoss, or a znivell'd old man;— And hark how he's bust out a caughing, good now.

“'A never could dra' all they waggins, d'ee zee, If 'a lived upon vatches, or turmets, or hay; Why, they waggins be vill'd up with people—they be; And do 'ee but look how they'm larfin away!

“And look to they childern a urning about, W' their mouths vull of gingerbread, there by the zhows;

And zee to the scores of vine ladies turn'd out; And gentlemen, all in their best Zunday clothes.

“And look to this houze made o' canvas zo smart; And the dinner zet out with such bussle and fuss;— But us brought a squab pie, you know, in the cart, And a keg of good zider—zo that's nort to us.

“I tell 'ee what 'tis, Moll—this here is my mind, The world's gone quite maze, as zure as you'm born; 'Tis as true as I'm living—and that they will vind, With their hosses on wheels that don't live upon corn.

“I wouldn't go homeward b'mbye to the varm Behind such a critter, when all's zed and dun, We've a travell'd score miles, but we never got harm, Vor there's nort like a market cart under the zun.”

DORSETSHIRE.

“The rustic dialect of Dorsetshire,” observes Mr. Barnes, “is, with little variation, that of most of the Western parts of England, which were included in the kingdom of the West Saxons, the counties of Surrey, Hants, Berks, Wilts, and Dorset, and parts of Somerset and Devon.” The Dorset dialect, however, has essential features of that of the Western counties which are not heard in Surrey or Hants, as will be sufficiently apparent from the specimens here given. The language of the south-east part of Dorsetshire is more nearly allied to that of Hants.

“In the town of Poole,” according to Dr. Salter, “there is a small part which appears to be inhabited by a peculiar race of people, who are, and probably long have been, the fishing population of the neighbourhood. Their manner of speaking is totally different from that of the neighbouring rustics. They have a great predilection for changing all the vowels into short u, using it in the second person, but without a pronoun, and suppressing syllables, e. g. cas'n car't, can you not carry it, &c.” Mr. Vernon, in remarking upon these facts, observes, “the language of our seamen in general is well worth a close investigation, as it certainly contains not a few archaisms; but the subject requires time and patience, for in the mouths of those who call the Bellerophon and the Ville de Milan, the Billy Ruffian and the Wheel-em-along, there is nothing

“ But doth suffer a sea-change
Into something new and strange.”

This must be received with some limitation, and perhaps applies almost entirely to difficult modern terms not easily intelligible to the uneducated. Many of the principal English nautical terms have remained unchanged for centuries.

Valuable lists of Dorsetshire words have been liberally sent me by the Rev. C. W. Bingham, James Davidson, Esq., Samuel Bagster, Esq., Dr. Salter, and G. Gollop, Esq.; but my principal references have been made to the glossary attached by Mr. Barnes to his “Poems of Rural Life in the Dorset Dialect,” 8vo. 1844. The same work contains a dissertation on the dialect, with an account of its peculiar features. The change of o into a, so common in Dorsetshire, completely disappears as we proceed in a westerly direction towards Worcestershire.

Measter, an't please you, I do zend
Theaz letter to you as a vriend,
Hoping you'll pardon the inditing,
Becaz I am not us'd to writing,
And that you will not take unkind
A word or zo from poor George Hind,
For I am always in the way,
And needs must hear what people zay.
First of the house they make a joke,
And zay the chimnies never smoak.
Now the occasion of these jests,
As I do think, where zwallows nests,
That chanc'd the other day to vaal
Into the parlour, zut and aal.
Beside, the people not a few
Begin to murmur much at you,
For leaving of them in the church,
And letting strangers zerve the church,
Who are in haste to go agen,
Zo, we ha'nt zang the Lord knows when.
And for their preaching, I do know
As well as moost, 'tis but zo, zo.
Zure if the call you had were right,
You ne'er could thus your neighbours slight.
But I do fear you've zet your aim on Naught in the world but vilthy mammon, &c.

(2) Axen Maidens to goo to Fair.

To-marra work so hard's ya can,

Be gwáin to fair; an' zoo
If you'll ttake hold ov each a yarm

We'll bring our shiades back out o' town

Yer mother cant but let yer run
An' zee a little o' the fun
Wher nothn is to fear.

The zun ha' flow'rs to love his light,
The moon ha' sparklen brooks at night,
The trees da like the plýsome flight
Ov ayer vrom the west.

Let zome like empty sounds to mock

But merry chaps da like t' unlock
Ther hearts to maidens best.

(3) The Woodlands.

O spread agen your leaves an' flow'rs,
Luonesome woodlands! zunny woodlands!
Here underneath the dewy show'rs
O' warm-áir'd spring-time, zunny woodlands!
As when, in drong ar oben groun',
Wi' happy buoyish heart I voun'
The twitt'ren birds a-bullden roun'

Your high-bough'd hedges, zunny woodlands!
Ya gie'd me life, ya gie'd me jáy,
Luonesome woodlands! zunny woodlands!
Ya gie'd me health as in my pláy
I rambled droo ye, zunny woodlands!
Ya gie'd me freedom var to rove
In áiry mead, ar shiady grove;
Ya gie'd me smilen Fanny's love,
The best ov all o't, zunny woodlands!

My vust shill skylark whiver'd high,
Luonesome woodlands! zunny woodlands!
To zing below your deep-blue sky,
An' white spring-clouds, O zunny woodlands!
An' boughs o' trees that onnce stood here,
Wer glossy green the happy year
That gie'd me oon I lov'd so dear,
An' now ha lost, O zunny woodlands!

O let me rove agen unspied,
Luonesome woodlands! zunny woodlands!
Along your green-bough'd hedges' zide,
As then I rambled, zunny woodlands!
An' wher the miss'n trees onnce stood,
Ar tongues onnce rung among the wood,
My memory shall make em good,
Though you've alost em, zunny woodlands!

(4) The Weepen Liady.

When liate o' nights, upon the green,
By thik wold house, the moon da sheen,
A liady there, a-hangen low'
Her head's a-wak-en to an' fro
In robes so white's the driven snow;
Wi' oon yarm down, while oon da rest
Al illy-white upon the breast
O thik poor weepen liady.

The curdlen win' an' whislen squall
Do shlake the ivy by the wall,
An' miake the pleyen tree-tops rock,
But never ruffle her white frock,
An' slammen door an' rottlen lock
That in thik empty house da sound,
Da never seem to miake look round
Thik downcast weepen liady,

A liady, as the tiale da goo,
That onnce liv'd there, an' lov'd too true,
Wer by a young man cast azide
A mother sad, but not a bride;
An' then her father in his pride

An' anger offer'd oon o' two
 Vull bitter things to undergoo
 To thik poor weepen liady.
 That she herzuf should leave his door,
 To darken it again noo muore,
 Ar that her little pláysome chilc,
 A-zent away a thousand mile,
 Should never meet her eyes to smile,
 An' pláy again, till she in shiamle,
 Should die an' leave a tarnish'd niame,
 A sad varsiaeken liady.

"Let me be lost," she cried, "the while,
 I do but know var my poor chilc;"
 An' left the huome ov al her pride,
 To wander droo the wordle wide,
 Wi' grief that vew but she ha' tried,
 An' lik' a flow'r a blow ha' broke,
 She wither'd wi' thik deadly stroke,
 An' died a weepen liady.

An' she da keep a-comen on,
 To zee thik father dead an' gone,
 As if her soul could have noo rest
 Avore her teary chiak's a-prest
 By his vargiv-en kias: zoo blest
 Be they that can but live in love,
 An' vine a pilace o' rest above,
 Unlik' the weepen liady.

DURHAM.

The Durham dialect is the same as that spoken in Northumberland and the North Riding of Yorkshire, the former being more like Scotch, and the latter more like English, but each in a very slight degree. The Durham pronunciation, though soft, is monotonous and drawing. See the 'Quarterly Review' for Feb. 1836, p. 358.

No glossary of Durham words has yet appeared, but Kennett has recorded a considerable number in his MS. Glossary. I have been enabled to add many unknown to that author, derived from communications by the Rev. R. Douglas, George B. Richardson, Esq., Miss Portus, E. T. Warburton, Esq., and Mr. S. Ward.

If the following anecdote be true, Southern English is but little known amongst some of the lower orders in Durham:

"John," said a master tanner in South Durham, the other day, to one of his men, "bring in some fuel." John walked off, revolving the word in his mind, and returned with a pitchfork! "I don't want that," said the wondering tanner; "I want fuel, John." "Beg your pardon," replied the man, "I thought you wanted something to turn over the skins." And off he went again, not a whit the wiser, but ashamed to confess his ignorance. Much meditating, he next pitched upon the besom, shouldering which, he returned to the counting-house. His master was now in a passion. "What a stupid ass you are, John," he exclaimed; "I want some sticks and shavings to lght the fire." "O-h-h-h!" rejoined the rustic, "that's what you want, is it?" Why couldn't you say so at first, master, instead of using a London dictionary word?" And, wishful to show that he was not alone in his ignorance, he called a comrade to the tanner's presence, and asked him if he knew what "fuel" was. "Aye!" answered Joe, "ducks an' geese, and sike like!"—Gateshead Observer.

ESSEX.

The dialect of Essex is closely allied in some parts of the county to that of Kent, and in others to that of Suffolk, though generally not so broad, nor spoken with the strong Suffolk whining tone. Mr. Charles Clark has given a glossary of Essex words at the end of 'John Noakes and Mary Styles, or an Essex Calf's Visit to Tiptree Races,' 8vo. 1839, and I am indebted for many others to the kindness of the Rev. W. Pridden and Mr. Edward T. Hill. A list of Essex words is given in the Monthly Magazine for July, 1814, pp. 498-9.

(2) Cock-a-Bevis Hill.

At Tottum's Cock-a-Bevis Hill,
 A sput suppass'd by few,
 Where toddlers ollis haut to eye
 The proper pritty wiew;
 Where people crake so ov the place,
 Leas-ways, so I've hard say;
 An' frum its top yow, sarteny,
 Can see a monsus way.
 'Bout this oad Hill, I warrant ya,
 Their bog it never ceases;
 They'd growl shud yow nut own that it
 Beats Danbury's au' to pieces.
 But no sense ov a place, some think,
 Is this here hill so high,—
 'Cos there, full oft, 'tis nation coad,
 But that don't argufy.
 Yit, if they their inquiratons maake
 In winter time, some will Condemn that place as no great shakes,
 Where folks ha' the coad-chill!
 As sum'dy, 'haps, when nigh the sput,
 May ha' a wish to see't,—
 From Mauldon toun to Keldon 'tis,
 An' 'gin a four relet,
 Where up the road the load it goos
 So lugsome an' so stiff,
 That hoses mosly kitch a whop,
 Frum drivers in a tiff.
 But who'd pay a hoss when tugging on?
 None but a tetchy elf:
 'Tis right on plain etch chap desarves
 A clumsy thump himself.
 Haul'd o'er the coals, sich fellars e'er
 Shud be, by Martin's Act;
 'But, then, they're rayther muggy oft,
 So with um we're not zact.

But thussins, 'haps, to let um oaf
Is wrong, becos etch carter,
If maade to smart, his P's and Q's
He'd mine for ever arter.

At Cock-a-Bewis Hill, too, the Wisecrees show a tree,
Which if yow clamber up, besure,
A precious way yow see.

I dorn't think I cud clim it now,
Aldoe I uster cud;
I shudn't warsley loike to troy,
For guelch cum down I shud.

My head 'ood swim,—I 'oodn't do't
Nut even for a guinea:
A naarbour ax'd me, tother day,
"Naa, naa," says I, "nut quinny."

At Cock-a-Bewis Hill, I was
A-noon to tell the folks,
Some warses back—when I bargun—
In peace there lived John Noakes.

GLoucestershire.

It has been already remarked that the organic forms of the Gloucestershire dialect have remained unchanged for centuries, and are to be traced in Robert of Gloucester's Chronicle. Many Anglo-Saxon words are here preserved in great purity. "He geunne it him," he gave it him, the verb geunne being in general use amongst the peasantry. The dialect is more similar to that of Somersetshire than of the adjoining counties, though not so strongly marked as a Western dialect. They change o into a, s into z, f into v, t into d, p into b, short a into i or oy, long e into eea, long i into ey, long o into ooo. The A.-S. termination en is still preserved; thee is used for thou and you; thilk is in constant use; her is put for she, she for her, I for me, and ou for he, she, or it. Communications of Gloucestershire words have been received from the Rev. H. T. Ellacombe, Miss Shipton, and Mr. E. Wright.

George Ridler's Oven.

The stwons that built George Ridler's oven,
And thaun qeum from the Bleakeney's quaar;

One thing of George Ridler I must commend,
And that wur not a notable thing;
He mead his braags avoore he died,
Wl' any dree brothers his sons zs'houd' zeng.

There's Dick the treble and John the mean,
Let every mon zing in his awun plice;
And George he wur the elder brother,
And therevoore he would zing the beass.

Mine hostess's moid (and her neaum 'twur Nell)
A pretty wench, and I lov'd her well;
I lov'd her well, good reazon why,
— Because zshe lov'd my dog and I.

My dog is good to catch a hen,
A duck or goose is good for men;
And where good company I spy,
O thether gwoes my dog and I.

My mwother told I when I wur young,
If I did vollow the strong-beer pwoot;
That drenk would pruv my auverdrow,
And meauk me wear a ththread-bare cwoat.

My dog has gotten zitch a trick,
To vlsit moids when thaun be sick;
When thaun be zick and like to die,
O thether gwoes my dog and I.

When I have dree zispences under my thumb,
O then I be welcome wherever I come;
But when I have none, O then I pass by,
'Tis poverty pearts good company.

If I should die, as it may hap,
My greauve shall be under the good yeal tap;
In vouled earms there wool us lie,
Cheek by jowl my dog and I!

HAMPSHIRE.

The romance of Octovian, according to Mr. D'Israeli, "is in the Hampshire dialect nearly as it is spoken now." Although somewhat doubtful as to the literal correctness of this opinion, an extract from it may be compared with a modern specimen of the dialect. A short glossary of Hampshire words is given in Warner's collections for that county. The dialect of the west of the county is similar to that of Wiltshire, f being changed into v, and th into d; and un for him, her, it. It is a common saying, that in Hampshire every thing is called he except a tomcat which is called she.

A Letter to the Editor of the Times, from a poor Man at Andover, on the Union Workhouse.

Sir,—Hunger, as I've heerd say, breaks through Stone Walls; but yet I shodn't have thought of letting you know about my poor Missus's death, but all my neibours say tell it out, and it can't do you no harm and may do others good, specially as Parliament is to meet soon, when the Gentlefoke will be talking about the working foke.

I be but a farmers working man, and was married to my Missus 26 years agone, and have three Children living with me, one 10, another 7, and t'other 3. I be subject to bad rumatiz, and never earns no more, as you may judge, than to pay rent and keep our bodies and souls together when we be all well. I was tended by Mr. Westlake when he was Union Doctor, but when the Guardians turned him out it was a bad job for all the Poor, and a precious bad job for me and mine.

Mr. Payne when he come to be our Union Doctor tended upon me up to almost the end of last April, but when I send up to the Union House as usual, Mr. Broad, the Releiving Officer, send back word there was nothing for me, and Mr. Payne wodnt come no more. I was too bad to work, and had not Vittals for me, the Missus, and the young ones, so I was forced to sell off the Bed, Bedstead, and furniture of the young ones, to by Vittals with, and then I and Missus and the young ones had only one bed for all of us. Missus was very bad, to, then, but as we knowd twer no use to ask the Union for nothink cept we'd all go into the Workhouse, and which Missus couldn't a bear, as she'd bin parted from the childern, she sends down to tell Mr. Westlake how bad we was a doing off, and he comes to us directly, and tends upon us out of charity, and gives Missus Mutton and things, which he said, and we know'd too well, she wanted of, and he gives this out of his own Pocket.

Missus complaint growd upon her and she got so very bad, and Mr. Westlake says to us, I do think the guardians wouldn't let your wife lay here and starve, but would do something for you if they knowd how bad you wanted things, and so, says he, I'll give you a Sertificate for some Mutton and things, and you take it to Mr. Broad, the releiving officer. Well, I does this, and he tells me that hed give it to the guardians and let me know what they said. I sees him again, and O, says he, I gived that Sertificate to the Guardians, but they chucked it a one side and said they wodnt tend to no such thing, nor give you nothing, not even if Missus was dying, if you has anything to do with Mr. Westlake, as they had turned him off.

I told my Missus this, and then says she we must try to get their Union Doctor, Mr. Payne, as we can't go on for ever taking things from Mr. Westlake's Pocket, and he turned out of Place, and so good to many poor folks besides us. So we gets Mr. Payne after a bit to come down; and he says to Missus you're very bad, and I shall order the Union to send you Mutton and other things. Next Week Mr. Payne calls again, and asks Missus did she have the things he'd ordered for her to have? She says I've had a shillings worth of Mutton, Sir. Why, says he, you wants other things besides Mutton, and I ordered them for you in the Union Book, and you ought to have them in your bad state. This goes on for 5 or 6 weeks, only a shillings worth of Mutton a Week being allowed her, and then one Week a little Gin was allowed, and after that as Missus couldnt get out of bed a Woman was sent to nurse and help her.

I didnt ask Mr. Payne to order these ere things, tho' bad enof God knows they was wanted; but in the first week in last November I was served with a summons to tend afore our Mayor and Justices under the Vagrance Act; I think they said twas cause I had not found these things for Missus myself; but the Union Doctor had ordered em of the Guardians on his sponsibility. Well, I attends afore the Justices, and there was nothing against me, and so they puts it off, and orders me to tend afore em again next week, which I does, and then there wasnt enof for em to send me to Gaol, as the Guardians wanted, for a Month, and they puts it off again for another Week, and says I must come afore em again, and which I does; and they tells me theres nothing proved, that I could aford to pay for the things, and I mite go about my business.

I just loses three days' work, or pretty handy, by this, and that made bad a good bit worse. Next Day Mr. Payne comes again, and Missus was so out-daccous bad, she says cant you give me something to do me good and ease me a bit; says Mr. Payne, I dont see you be much worse. Yes, I be, says Missus, and I wish you'd be so good as to let me send for Mr. Westlake, as I thinks he knows what'd make me easier, and cure the bad pains I do suffer. Mr. Payne abused my Poor Missus, and dared her to do anything of that sort, and so we were feared to do it, lest I should be pulled up again afore the Justices, and lose more days work, and prhaps get sent to Gaol. Eight days after this Mr. Payne never having come nist us, and the Union having lowd us nothing at all, my poor Missus dies, and dies from want, and in agonies of pain, and as bad off as if shed been a Savage, for she could only have died of want of them things which she wanted and I couldnt buy if she'd been in a foreign land, were there no Parsons and People as I've heard tell be treated as bad as dogs.

Years agone, if any body had been half so bad as my Missus, and nobody else would have tended to her, there'd been the clergyman of the parish, at all events, who'd have prayed with her, and seen too that she didn't die of starvation, but our Parson is in favor of this here new Law, and as he gets 60*l.* a year from the Guardians, he arnt a going to quarrel with his Bread and Cheese for the likes of we, and so he didnt come to us. Altho' he must have knowd how ill Missus was; and she, poor creature, went out of this here world without any Spiritual consilation whatsoemever from the Poor Man's Church.

We'd but one bed as I've telled you, and only one Bedroom, and it was very bad to be all in the same Room and Bed with poor Missus after she were dead; and as I'd no money to pay for a Coffin, I goes to Mr. Broad, then to Mr. Majer, one of the Guardians, and then to the overseers, and axes all of 'em to find a Coffin, but 'twere no use, and so, not knowing what in the World to do, off I goes to tell Mr. Westlake of it, and he was soon down at the House, and blamed me much for not letting he know afore Missus died, and finding we'd no food nor fire, nothing for a shrowd cept we could wash up something, and that we'd no soap to do that with, he gives us something to get these ere things, and tells me to go again to the Releiving Officer and 'others and try and get a Coffin, and to tell un Missus ought to be buried as soon as possible, else t'would make us all ill. This I does as afore, but get nothing, and then Mr. Westlake give me an order where to get a Coffin, and it he had not stood a friend to me and mine, I can't think what would have become of em, as twas sad at Nights to see the poor little things pretty nigh break their hearts when they seed their poor dead mother by their side upon the Bed.

My troubles wasnt to end even here, for strang to tell the Registrar for Deaths for this District dont live in this the largest Parish with about 5000 inhabitants, but at a little Village of not more than 400 People and 5 Miles off, so I had to walk there and back 10 miles, which is very hard upon us poor folk, and what is worse when I got there the Registrar wasnt up; and when he got up he wodnt tend to me afore hed had his breakfast, and I was aforced to wait about until hed had done breakfast, and it seemed as 'twas a very long time for a poor chap like me to be kept a waiting, whilst a man who is paid for doing what I wanted won't do such little work as that afore here made hisself comfortable, tho' I telled him how bad I wanted to get back, and that I should loose a Day by his keeping me waiting about.

That this is mostly the fault of the Guardians rather than anybody else is my firm beleaf, tho' if Mr. Payno had done his duty hed a been with Missus many times afore she died and not have left her as he did, when he knowed she was so bad, and hed a made un give her what she wanted; but then he must do, he says, just what the Guardians wishes, and that arnt to attend much on the Poor, and the Relieving Officer is docked if what he gives by even the Doctors orders arnt proved of by the Guardians aterward, and he had to pay for the little Gin the Doctor ordered out of his own Pocket, and, as the Newspaper says, for the Nurse, as this was put in our Paper by I'm sure I don't know who, but I believes tis true, last week.

And now, Sir, I shall leave it to you to judge whether the Poor can be treated any where so bad as they be in the Andover Union.

HEREFORDSHIRE.

The pronoun a is used for he, she, or it. Strong preterits are current, climb, clomb, heave, hove, pick, puck, shake, shuck, squeeze, squoze, &c. The dialect of this county must be classed as belonging to the Midland division. The word just is used in rather a peculiar manner. Instead of saying, I have but just returned, they say I returned but just. A list of Herefordshire words is given in Duncumb's History of Hereford, and a more extended one has recently been separately published, 8vo, 1839. I am indebted for many words not to be found in either of these to lists given me by Sir S. R. Meyrick, T. W. Lane, Esq., and Mr. Perry.

HUNTINGDONSHIRE.

There seem to be no peculiarities of dialect here which are not common to the adjoining county of Cambridgeshire. They say mort for a quantity; a mort of people, a mort of rain. To-year for this year, like to-day or to-morrow. Wonderful for very; his pain were wonderful great. To get himself ready, for to dress himself; he is too weak to get himself ready. If a disorder or illness of any kind be inquired for, they never say it is better or worse, but that's better, or that's worse, with an emphasis on that. The Rev. Joseph Horner kindly favoured me with a list of the few provincial words which may be peculiar to this county.

ISLE OF WIGHT.

The dialect of the native inhabitants of this island differs in many respects from the county to which it is opposite. The accent is rather mincing than broad, and has little of the vulgar character of the West country dialects. The tendency to insert y in the middle of words may be remarked, and the substitution of v for f is not uncommon among the peasantry, but by no means general. The pronunciation may generally be correctly represented by the duplication of the vowels.

No printed glossary of Isle of Wight provincialisms has yet appeared, but a very valuable one in MS., compiled by Captain Henry Smith, was most kindly placed at my disposal by his relative, Charles Roach Smith, Esq. F.S.A. It has been fully used in the following pages. Useful communications have also been received from E. J. Vernon, Esq., Dr. Bromfield, and Dr. Salter.

Specimen of the Isle of Wight dialect.

Jan. Straddlebob! Where ded'st leyam to caal'n by that neyam?

Will. Done! and I'll ax meyastur to night when I goos whooam, bec't how 't wool.
 (Accordingly meyastur was applied to by Will, who made his decision known to Jan the next morning.)
Will. I zay, Jan! I axed meyastur about that are last night.
Jan. Well! what ded 'ur zay?

Jan. The devvul a hav! if that's the keas I spoos I lost the quart.
Will. That thee has't lucky! and we'll goo down to Arverton to the Red Lion and drink un ater we done work.

KENT.

The modern Kentish dialect is slightly broad, indeed more so than that of Surrey or Sussex. Daiy, playi, waiy, for day, play, way, &c. They say who for how, and vice versa. Mate, instead of boy or lad, is the usual address amongst equals. The interchange of v and w is common here as well as in the metropolis. As in most parts of England, the pronunciation of names of places differs very much from the orthography, e. g. Sunnuck for Sevenoaks, Dairn for Darenth, Leusum for Lewisham, &c. No glossary of Kentish words has yet been published, unless we may so style a short list of words in Lewis's History and Antiquities of the Isle of Tenet, 1736, pp. 35-39, but I have received valuable communications from the Rev. M. H. Lloyd, John Brent, Esq., the Rev. Thomas Streetfeild, the Rev. L. B. Larking, John Pemberton Bartlett, Esq., the Rev. Dr. Hussey, Thomas Wright, Esq., Miss Cotterell, J. R. Hughes, Esq., and A. J. Dunkin, Esq. An early song in this dialect occurs in Ravenscroft's Melismata, 1611.

We have a most curious specimen of the Kentish dialect of the fourteenth century (1340) in the Ayenbyte of Inwyt, a MS. in the Arundel collection. An extract from it will be found at p. 801, and another is here given. The change of f into v, and s into z, are now generally peculiar to the West country dialect, but appear at this early period to have extended over the South of England. In the next century, the broadness of the dialect was not so general. At least, a poem of the fifteenth century, in a MS. at Oxford, written in Kent, is remarkably pure, although the author excuses himself for his language:

And though myn English be sympill to myn eulent,
 Hold me excusid, for I was borne in Kent.

MS. Laud. 416, f. 49.

The principal peculiarity in this MS. seems to consist in e being the prefix to the verb instead of i or y. For a long period, however, the dialect of the Kentish peasantry was strongly marked. In a rare tract entitled, "How the Plowman lerned his Paternoster," a character is thus mentioned:

He was patched, torne, and all to-rente;
 It semed by his langage that he was borne in Kente.

Reliquiæ Antiquæ, vol. 1. p. 46.

The following very curious passage from Caxton will further illustrate this fact:

And certaynly our langage now used varyeth ferre from that which was used and spoken when I was borne, for we Englysshemen ben borne under the domynacyon of the mone, which is never sted-faste, but ever waverynge, waxynge one season, and waneth and dyscreaseth another season; and that comyn Englysshe that is spoken in one shyre varyeth from another, insomuche that in my dayes happened that certayn marchauntes were in a shippe in Tamysse to have sayed over the see into Zelande, and for lacke of wynde, thei taryed atte Forlond, and wente to lande for to refreshe them. And one of theym, named Sheffelde, a mercer, cam into an hows and axed for mete, and specyally he axyd after eggys; and the goode wyf answerde that she coude speke no Frenshe, and the marchaunt was angry, for he also coude speke no Frenshe, but wolde have hadde eggys, and she understode hym not; and thenne at laste another sayd that he wolde have eyren. Then the good wyf sayd that she understod hym wle. Loo, what sholde a man in thysse dayes now wryte eggys or eyren? Certaynly it is harde to playse every man, bycause of dyversité and change of langage.

Caxton's Eneydos, 1490.

LANCASHIRE.

The dialect of Lancashire is principally known by Collier's Dialogue, published under the name of Tim Bobbin. A glossary of the fifteenth century, written in Lancashire, is preserved in MS. Lansd. 560, f. 45. A letter in the Lancashire dialect occurs in Braithwaite's Two Lancashire Lovers, 1640, and other early specimens are given in Heywood's Late Lancashire Witches, 4to. 1634, and Shadwell's Lancashire Witches, 4to. 1682. The glossary at the end of Tim Bobbin is imperfect as a collection for the county, and I have been chiefly indebted for Lancashire words to my father, Thomas Halliwell, Esq. Brief notes have also been received from the Rev. L. Jones, George Smeeton, Esq., the Rev. Dr. Hume, G. R. Spencer, Esq., and Mr. R. Proctor. The features of the dialect will be seen from the following specimens; o and ou are changed into a, ea into o, al into au, g into k, long o into oi, and d final into t. The Saxon termination en is retained, but generally mute.

(3) A Lancashire Ballad.

Now, aw me gud gentles, an yau won tarry,
He tel how Gilbert Scott soudn's mare Berry.
He soudn's mare Berry at Warikin fair;
When heel be pade, hee knows not, ere o nere.
Soon as hee com whoom, an toud his wife Grace,
Hon up wi th' kippo, an swat him ere th' face;
Hoo pickdt him oth' hilloc, wi sick a thwack,
That hoo had whel ni a brokken his back.
Thou hooer, quo hee, wo't but lemme riae,
Ile gi 'thee auth' leet, wench, that immc lies.
Thou udgit, quo hoo, but wher dus hee dwel?
Belakin, quo hee, but I connan tel.
I tuck him to be sum gud greslmon's son;
He spent too pense on mee when hee had doon.
He gin mee a lurch'n o denty snig py,
An shaukdt mee bith' haundt moost lovingly.
Then Grace, hoo promptd hur, so neeat an so nu.
To War'kin hoo went, o Wensday betime.

An theer too, hoo stade ful five markt days,
Til th' mon, wi th' mare, were coom to Raunley Shaw's.

As Grace was restin won day in hur rowm,
Hoo spydt th' mon a ridin o th' mare down the town.
Bounce gas hur hart, an hoo wer so glopen
That out o th' windo hoo'd like fort lopen.
Hoo stauptd, an hoo star'dt, an down stairs hoo run,

Wi' th' hat under th' arm, an windt welly gon.
Hur hed-gear flew off, an so did hur snowd, Hoo stauptd, an hoo star'dt, as an hoo'd been wood.

To Raunley's hoo hy'd, an hoo hove up th' latch,
Afore th' mon had teed th' mare welly too th' crach.
Me gud mon, quo hoo, frend, hee greets yau merry.
An desires yau'd send him money for Berry.

Ay, money, quo hee, that I connau spare:
Belakin, quo hoo, but then Ile ha th' mare.
Hoo poodt, an hoo thromperdt him, shaum't be seen;

Thou hangmon, quo hoo, Ile poo out thinn een:
Ile mak thee a sompan, haud thee a groat
Ile oth'r ha' th' money, or poo out the throat;
'Tween them they made such a wearlson din,
That for t' intreat them, Raunly Shaw coom in,
Coom, fy, fy, naunt Grace, coom, fy, an a doon;
What, deel, ar yau monkee, or ar yau woot?
Belakin, quo hee, yau lane so hard on—
I think now that th' woman has quite spoildt th' mon.

Coom, fy, fy, naunt Grace, coom, fy, an a doon;
Yauts ha' th' mare, or th' money, whether yau won.
So Grace got th' money, an whoomwardt hoo's gon, Hoo keeps it aw, an gees Gilbert Scott non.

LEICESTERSHIRE.

The dialect of this county has been entirely neglected, with the exception of a few brief remarks in Macaulay's History of Claybrook, 1791; but it deserves a careful study. A valuable glossary of Leicestershire words was given me by Mr. John Gibson, but too late to be used in the early part of the work.

The dialect of the common people, though broad, is sufficiently plain and intelligible. They have a strong propensity to aspirate their words; the letter h comes in almost on every occasion where it ought not, and is as frequently omitted where it ought to come in. The words fine, mine, and such like, are pronounced as if they were spelt foino, moino; place, face, &c. as if they were spelt pleace, feace; and in the plural sometimes you hear plaoeen; clooen for clozes; and many other words in the same style of Saxon termination. The words there and where are generally pronounced thus, theree, wheree; the words mercy, deserve, &c. thus, marey, desarve. The following peculiarities of pronunciation are likewise observable: uz, strongly aspirated, for us, tear for was, meed for maid, faither for father, e'ery for every, brig for bridge, thurrrough for furrow, hauf for half, cart-rit for rut, malefactory for manufactory, tuuc, tinus for anxious.

Macaulay's Claybrook, 1791, pp. 128-9

LINCOLNSHIRE.

The river Witham may be considered with tolerable accuracy the boundary line between the Northern and Southern dialects of the county, which differ considerably from each other; the former being more nearly allied to that of Yorkshire, the latter to the speech of East Anglia, but neither are nearly so broad as the more Northern dialects. Many singular phrases are in use. They say, Very not well, I used to could, You shouldn't have ought, &c. The Lincolnshire words were partially collected by Skinner in the seventeenth century, but no regular glossary has yet appeared. This deficiency, however, as far as the present work is concerned, has been amply supplied by as many as nineteen long communications, each forming a small glossary by itself, and of peculiar value, from the Rev. James Adcock of Lincoln, to whom I beg to return my best acknowledgments. I have also to acknowledge assistance from Sir E. F. Bromhead, Bart., the Rev. Dr. Oliver, Robert Goodacre, Esq., T. R. Jackson, Esq., Mr. E. Johnson, and papers kindly inserted at my suggestion in the Lincoln Standard.

(2) From "Neddy and Sally; a Lincolnshire tale," by John Brown, 12mo. n. d.

Cum, Sall, its time we started now,
Yon's Farmer Haycock's lasses ready,
And maister says he'll feed the cow,
He didn't say so,—did he Neddy?

Yees, that he did, so make thee haste,
And git thee sen made smart and pretty,
We yaller ribbon round the waist,
The same as oud Squire Lowden's Kitty.
And I'll go fetch my suster Bess,
I'm sartin sure she's up and ready,
Come gie's a bus, thou can't do less,
Says Sally, No, thou munn't, Neddy.
See, yonder's Bess a cummin cross
The fields, we lots o' lads and lasses,
All halm be halm, and brother Joss
A shouting to the folks as passes.
Odds dickens, Sall, we'll hev a spree,
Me heart's as light as ony feather,
There's not a chap dost russel me,
Not all the town's chaps put together.

MIDDLESEX.

The metropolitan county presents little in its dialect worthy of remark, being for the most part merely a coarse pronunciation of London slang and vulgarity. The language of the lower orders of the metropolis is pictured very faithfully in the works of Mr. Dickens. The interchange of v and w is a leading characteristic. Some of the old cant words, mixed with numerous ones of late formation, are to be traced in the London slang.

The Thimble Rig.

"Now, then, my jolly sportsmen! I've got more money than the parson of the parish. Those as don't play can't vin, and those as are here harnt there! I'd hold any on you, from a tanner to a sovereign, or ten, as you don't tell which thimble the pea is under." "It's there, sir." "I barr tellings." "I'll go it again." "Vat you don't see don't look at, and vat you do see don't tell. Ill hold you a soveren, sir, you don't tell me vitch thimble the pea is under." "Lay him, sir, (in a whisper); it's under the middle'un. I'll go you halves." "Lay him another; that's right." "I'm blow'd but we've lost; who'd a thought it?" Smack goes the flat's hat over his eyes; exit the confederates with a loud laugh.

NORFOLK.

"The most general and pervading characteristic of our pronunciation," observes Mr. Forby, "is a narrowness and tenuity, precisely the reverse of the round, sonorous, mouth-filling tones of Northern English. The broad and open sounds of vowels, the rich and full tones of diphthongs, are generally thus reduced." The same writer enters very minutely into the subject of the peculiarities of this dialect, and his glossary of East Anglian words, 2 vols. 8vo. 1830, is the most complete publication of the kind. A brief list of Norfolk words is given in Brown's Certain Miscellany Tracts, 8vo. 1684, p. 146. A glossary of the provincialisms of the same county occurs in Marshall's Rural Economy of Norfolk, 1787, and observations on the dialect in Erratics by a Sailor, 1809. In addition to these, I have had the advantage of using communications from the Rev. George Munford, the Very Rev. F. C. Husenbeth, Mrs. Robins, and Goddard Johnson, Esq.

A vocabulary of the fifteenth century, written in Norfolk, is preserved in MS. Addit. 12195, but the Promptorium Parvulorum is a much more valuable and extensive repository of early Norfolk words. A MS. of Capgrave's Life of St. Katherine in the Bodleian Library, MS. Rawl. Poet. 118, was written in this county. It would appear from the following passage that Norfolk was, in early times, one of the least refined parts of the island :

I wende ridyngre were restitution, quod he,
For I lerned nevere rede on boke ;
And I kan no Frensche, In felth,
But of the fertheeste ende of Northfolk.

NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.

A midland dialect, less broad and not so similar to the Northern as Warwickshire. I have to acknowledge communications on the dialect of this county from the Rev. J. B. P. Dennis, and Charles Young, Esq.

NORTHUMBERLAND.

Northumberland has a dialect the most broad of all the English counties, nearly approaching the Scotch, the broadest of all English dialects. The Scottish bur is heard in this county and in the North of Durham. A large number of specimens of the dialect have been published, and the provincial words have been collected by Mr. Brockett, but no extensive glossary of words peculiar to the county has been published separately. A short list, however, is given in Ray's English Words, ed. 1691 ; and others, recently collected, were sent me by George B. Richardson, Esq. and the Rev. R. Douglas. An early specimen of the Northumberland dialect occurs in Bullen's Dialogue, 1564, reprinted in Waldron's notes to the Sad Shepherd, p. 187.

NOTTINGHAMSHIRE

Formerly belonged in dialect to the Northern division, but may now, I believe, be included in the Midland. I speak, however, with uncertainty, no work on the Nottinghamshire dialect having yet appeared.

From a Treatise on the Fistula in ano, by John Arderne, of Newark.

Johan Arderne fro the first pestelence that was in the yere of our Lord 1349, duelled in Newerke in Notinghamshire unto the yere of our Lorde 1370, and ther I heled many men of fistula in ano ; of which the first was Sir Adam Everyngham of Laxtor: in the Clay byside Tukkesford, whiche Sir Adam for sothe was in Gascone with Sir Henry that tyme named herie of Derby, and after was made Duke of Lancastre, a noble and worthy lord. The forsaid Sir Adam forsoth sufferend fistulam in ano, made for to aske counsell at alle the lechre and courgenz that he myght fynd in Gascone, at Burdeux, at Briggerac, Tolows, and Neyybou, and Peyters, and many other placez, and alle forsoke hym for uncurable ; whiche y-se and y-herde, the forsaid Adam hastied for to torne home to his contree, and when he come home he did of al his knyghtly clothings, and cladde mourning clothes in purpose of abydyng dissolvynge or lesyng of his body beyng nyȝ to hym. At the laste I forsaid Johan Arderne y-soȝt, and covenant y-made, come to hym and did my cure to hym, and, our Lorde beyng mene, I heled hym perfelty within halfe a yere, and afterward hole and sound he ledde a glad life 30 yere and more. For whiche cure I gate myche honour and lovyng thurȝ alle Ynglond ; and the forsaid Duke of Lancastre and many other gentilez wondred therof. Afte[r]ward I cured Iugon Derlyng of Fowlek of Balne by Snaythe. Afterward I cured Johan Schiefeld of Rlghtwelle aside Tekille.

OXFORDSHIRE.

The provincial speech of this county has none of the marked features of the Western dialect, although many of the Gloucestershire and Wiltshire words are in use. The Oxfordshire dialect may be described as rather broad, and at the same time sharp, with a tendency to contraction. Us is used instead of I, as in some other counties. There are not a large number of words quite peculiar to the county, and no glossary has yet been published. Kennett has preserved many now obsolete, and I am indebted for several to Mr. A. Chapman, and Francis Francillon, Esq. In the sixteenth century, the Oxfordshire dialect was broad Western. In Scogin's Jestes, we have an Oxfordshire rustic introduced, saying ich for I, dis for this, ray for fay, chill for I will, vor for for, &c.

RUTLANDSHIRE.

The dialect of Rutlandshire possesses few, if any, features not to be found in the adjoining counties. It would appear to be most similar to that of Leicestershire, judging from a communication on the subject from the Rev. A. S. Atcheson.

SHROPSHIRE.

In the modern dialect of this county, a is frequently changed into o or e; c into g, co into gu; d final is often suppressed or commuted into t in the present tense; e is sometimes lengthened at the commencement of a word, as eend, end, and it is frequently changed into a; g is often omitted before h; the h is almost invariably wrongly used, omitted where it should be pronounced, and pronounced where it should be omitted; i is changed into ei or e; l into w; o is generally lengthened; r when followed by s is often dropped, the s in such cases being doubled; t is entirely dropped in many words where it precedes s, and is superseded by e, especially if there be any plurality; y is prefixed to a vast number of words which commence with the aspirate, and is substituted for it. See further observations in Mr. Hartshorne's Shropshire glossary appended to his Salopia Antiqua, 8vo. 1841, from which the above notices of the peculiarities of the dialect have been taken. To this work I have been chiefly indebted for Shropshire words, but many unknown to Mr. Hartshorne have been derived from Lihuyd's MS. additions to Ray, a MS. glossary compiled about 1780, and from communications of the Rev. L. Darwall and Thomas Wright, Esq.

A translation of the Pars Oculi in English verse, made by John Mirkes, a canon of Lilleslul, in Shropshire, is preserved in MS. Cotton. Claud. A. ii. and MS. Douce 60, 103, manuscripts of the fifteenth century. The poem commences as follows:

God seyth hymself, as wryten we fynde,
That whenne the blynde ledeth the blynde,
Into the dyche they fallen boo,
For they ne sen whare by to go.
MS. Cott. Claud. A. ii. f. 127.

God seith hymself, as wryten y fynde,
That than the blynde ledeth the blynde,
Into the diche they falleth bo,
For they ne seen howe they go.
MS. Douce 60, f. 147.

It should not be forgotten that the dialect of a MS. is not necessarily that used by the author himself. It oftener depended on the scribe. We have copies of Hampole's Prick of Conscience written in nearly every dialect.

The poems of John Audelay, a monk of Haghmon, who wrote about 1460, afford a faithful specimen of the Shropshire dialect of that period. A small volume of his poetry was printed by the Percy Society, 8vo. 1844:

As I lay seke in my langure,
In an abbay here be West,
This boke I made with gret dolour,
When I mygt not slep ne have no rest;
Oft with my prayers I me blest,
And sayd hylé to heven kyng,
I knowlache, Lord, hit is the best
Mekelé to take thl vesetyng,
Ellis wot I wil that I were lorne.
Of al lordis be he blest!
Fore al that ze done is fore the best,
Fore in thi defawte was never mon lost,
That is here of woman borne.

Mervel ze not of this makyng,
Fore I me excuse, hit is not I;
This was the Holé Gost wercheng,
That sayd these wordis so faythfully;
Fore I quoth never bot hye foly,
God hath me chastyt fore my levying!
I thong my God my grace treuly
Fore his graculous vestyng.
Beware, seris, I zoue pray,
Fore I mad this with good entent,
In the reverens of God omnipotent;
Prays fore me that both present,
My name is Jon the bynd Awdlay.

The similarities between the dialect of Audelay's poems and that of modern Shropshire are not very easily perceptible. The tendency to turn o into a, and to drop the h, may be recognized, as ald for hold, &c. I is still turned into e, which may be regarded as one of Audelay's dialectical peculiarities, especially in the prefixes to the verbs; but the ch for sh or sch, so common in Audelay, does not appear to be still current. There is much uncertainty in reasoning on the early provincial dialects from a single specimen, owing to the wide difference between the broad and the more polished specimens of the language of the same county; and Audelay's poems can be by no means considered as affording an example of the broadest and purest early Salopian dialect.

SOMERSETSHIRE:

The Parret divides the two varieties of the dialects of Somersetshire, the inhabitants of the West of that river using the Devonshire language, the difference being readily recognized by the broad ise for I, er for he, and the termination th to the third person singular of the present tense of the indicative mood. The Somersetshire dialect changes th into d, s into z, f into v, inverts the order of many of the consonants, and adds y to the infinitive of verbs. It also turns many monosyllables into words of two syllables, as ayer, air, booath, both, fayer, fair, viér, fire, stayers, stairs, shower, sure, &c. See Jennings' Observations on some of the Dialects in the West of England, 1825, p. 7.

A singularly valuable glossary of Somersetshire words was placed in my hands at the commencement of the present undertaking by Henry Norris, Esq., of South Petherton. It was compiled about fifty years since by Mr. Norris's father, at the suggestion of the late Mr. Boucher, and Mr. Norris has continually enriched it with additions collected by himself. To this I am indebted for several hundred words which would otherwise have escaped me; and many others have been derived from lists formed by my brother, the Rev. Thomas Halliwell, of Wrington, Thomas Elliott, Esq., Miss Elizabeth Carew, the Rev. C. W. Bingham, Mr. Elijah Tucker, and Mr. Kemp.

Numerous examples of the Somersetshire dialect are to be found in old plays, in which country characters are frequently introduced, and in other early works. It should, however, be remarked that many writers have unhesitatingly assigned early specimens, containing the prevailing marks of Western dialect, to this county, when the style might be referred to many others in the South and West of England; and on this account I have omitted a list of pieces stated by various authors to be specimens of Somersetshire dialect. We have already seen that though the essential features of the present West country dialect may be found, they may possibly suit specimens of the South, Kent, or even Essex dialects, in the state the latter existed two or three centuries ago.

STAFFORDSHIRE.

Kennett has recorded numerous Staffordshire provincialisms, most of which are probably now obsolete, and would have escaped me but for his valuable collections. A valuable MS. glossary by Mr. Clive, but extending no further than B in the part seen by me, was also found of use, and a few words in neither of these MSS. were given me by Miss L. Marshall and Mr. Edward T. Gooch. The following specimen of the dialect, taken from Knight's 'Quarterly Magazine,' 1823, will sufficiently exhibit its general character. The lengthening of the vowel i appears very common. In the collieries surnames are very frequently confused. It constantly happens that a son has a surname very different from that of his father. Nicknames are very prevalent, e. g. Old Puff, Nosey, Bullyhed, Loya-bed, Old Blackbird, Stumpy, Cowskin, Spindle-shanks, Cockeye, Pigtail, Yellow-belly, &c.

Dialect of the Bilston Folk.

The dialect of the lower order here has frequently been noticed, as well as the peculiar countenance of the real "Bilston folk." We noticed ourselves (upon the excursion) the following:—"Thee shatn't," for "you sh'a'nt;" "thee cost'na," for "you can't;" "thee host aff, surry, or oll mosh thoi yed fur thee," for "take yourself away, sirrah, or I'll crush your head;" "weear bist thee" for "where are you?" "in a cazulty wee loik," for "by chance;" "thee bist, thee shonna;" "you are, you sha'n't." A young woman turned round to address a small child crying after her upon the threshold of the hovel, as she went off towards the mine, "Ah, be seized, yung'un if thee dos'n'r knoo' my lock as well as thee knoo-ast moy fee-as." Some of the better apparelled, who affect a superior style, use words which they please to term "dickunsy words," such as "easement, convinclated, abstimolous, timothy" (for timid). One female, in conversation with a crony at the "truck-shop" door, spoke of "Sal Johnson's aspirating her mon's mind soo'a, and 'maciating his temper," and "I never seed a sentiment o' nothin' bod till it took 'Tum all at once't," (sentiment here used for symptom) speaking of indisposition.—Wanderings of a Pen and Pencil.

Conversation between a Staffordshire Canal Boatman and his Wife.

Lady. Dun you know Soiden-mouth, 'Tummy?
Gent. Eees; an' a' neatlon good feller he is tew.
Lady. A desput quiet mon! But he loves a sup o' drink. Dun you know his woi?
Gent. Know her! ay. Her's the very devil when her sperit's up.
Lady. Her is. Her uses that mon sheamful—her rags him evry neet of her loif.
Gent. Her does. Oive known her come into the public and call him all the ncamers her could lay her tongue tew afore all the company. Her oughts to stay till her's got him f'the boat, and then her mit say wha her'd a moind. But her taks alter her feyther.
Lady. Hew was her feyther?
Gent. Whoy, singing Jemmy.
Lady. Oi don't think as how Oi ever know'd singing Jemmy. Was he ode Soaker's brother?
Gent. Eees, he was. He lived a top o' Hell Bonk. He was the wickedest, swearnist mon as ever I know'd. I should think as how he was the wickedest mon f' the wold, and say he had the rheumatiz so bad.

SUFFOLK.

The characteristics of the Suffolk dialect are in all essential particulars the same as those of the Norfolk, so carefully investigated by Mr. Forby. The natives of Suffolk in speaking elevate and depress the voice in a very remarkable manner, so that "the Suffolk whine" has long been proverbial. The natives of all parts of East Anglia generally speak in a kind of sing-song tone. The first published list of Suffolk words is given in Cullum's History of Ilawsted, 1784, but no regular glossary appeared till the publication of Major Moor's Suffolk Words and Phrases, 8vo. 1823, a very valuable collection of provincialisms. With the greatest liberality, Major Moor kindly placed in my hands his interleaved copy of this work, containing copious and important additions collected by him during the last twenty years; nor have I been less fortunate in the equally liberal loan of most valuable and numerous MS. additions to Forby's East Anglia, collected in Suffolk by D. E. Davy, Esq. Brief lists have also been sent by Miss Agnes Strickland and the Rev. S. Charles.

An early book of medical receipts, by a person who practised in Suffolk in the fifteenth century, is preserved in MS. Harl. 1735; an English poem, written at Clare in 1445, is in MS. Addit. 11814; and Bokenham's Lives of the Saints in MS. Arundel 327, transcribed in 1447, is also written in the Suffolk dialect.

SUSSEX.

The dialect of the East of Sussex is very nearly the same as that of Kent, while that of the West is similar to the Hampshire phraseology. "In Sussex," says Ray, English Words, ed. 1674, p. 80, "for hasp, clasp, wasp, they pronounce hapse, clapse, wapse, &c.; for neck, nick; for throat, throttle; for choak, chock; let'n down, let'n stand, come again and fet'n anon." These observations still hold good. In East Sussex day is pronounced dee, and the peasantry are generally distinguished for a broad strong mode of speaking. They pronounce ow final as er, but this habit is not peculiar; and they often introduce an r before the letters d and t. A "Glossary of the Provincialisms in use in the County of Sussex," by W. D. Cooper, was printed in 1836, a neat little work, a copy of which, with numerous MS. additions, was kindly sent me by the author. Several Sussex words, not included in Mr. Cooper's list, were sent to me by M. A. Lower, Esq., the Rev. James Sandham, Colonel Davies, and M. T. Robinson, Esq.; and Mr. Holloway's General Dictionary of Provincialisms, 8vo. 1838, contains a considerable number.

Last Middlemus I 'member well,

Lest I shu'd die a fool!
Fer sister Sal, five years agoo,
Went off wud Squyer Brown;

To live at Lunnun town.

Dey 'hav'd uncommon well to Sal,
 An ge ur clothes an dat ;
 So Sal 'hav'd nashun well to dem,
 An grow'd quite tall an fat.
 I ax'd Ol' Ben to let me goo,

 He scratch'd his wig, 'To Lunnun, Tom ?'
 Den turn'd his quid, 'I'll see.'
 So strate to mother home goos I,
 An thus to ur didd say,
 Mother, I'll goo an sec our Sal,
 Fer measter says I may.
 De poor ol' gal didd shake ur head,
 Ah ! Tom, twant never do,
 Poor Sal is gone a tejus way,
 An must I now loose you ?

(2) A Dialogue between two Farm-labourers in Sussex.

Tom. Why, Jim, where a bin ?
 Jim. Down to look at the ship.
 Tom. Did ye look at the stack ?
 Jim. Umps, I did, and it roakes terrible !
 Tom. Why didn't ye make a hole in it ?
 Jim. I be guain to it.
 Tom. It's a pity, 'twas sich a mortal good 'un.
 Jim. Es sure ! Well, it's melancholy fine time for the crops, alnt it ?
 Tom. Ah ! it'll be ripping time pretty soon now.
 Jim. Ah ! I shan't do much at that for the rumatiz.
 Tom. What be guain to do with that ere jug ? You'd better let it bide. Do you think the chimbley sweeper will come to-day ?
 Jim. Iss ! he's safe to come, let it be how t'wull.
 Tom. Which way do you think he'll come ?
 Jim. He'll come athirt and across the common.
 Tom. What, caterways, aye ?
 Jim. Iss. Did you mind what I was a telling of ?
 Tom. To be sure ; but dang ye if I could sense it, could you ?
 Jim. Lor, yis. I don't think it took much cuteness to do that !

WARWICKSHIRE,

The following observations on the dialect of this county are taken from a MS. glossary of Warwickshire words, compiled by the late Mr. T. Sharp, and kindly communicated to me by Mr. Staunton, of Longbridge House, near Warwick : "The diphthong ea is usually pronounced like ai, as mait, ait, plaise, paize, waik, say, for meat, eat, please, weak, sea. The vowel o gives place to u, in sung, lung, among, for song, long, among ; wunst for once ; grun, fun, and pun, for ground, found, and pound. Shownd is also frequent for the imperative of show. A and o are often interchanged, as drap, shap, vander, for drop, shop, yonder ; and (per contra) hommer, rot, and gonder, for hammer, rat, and gander. J is substituted for d, in juke, jell, jeth, and jel, for duke, deal, death, and dead ; whilst juice is often pronounced duce. D is added to words ending in own, as drownded and gownd, for drowned and gown. E is sometimes converted into a, as batty, laft, fatch, for betty, left, and fetch. The nom. case and the acc. are perpetually and barbarously confounded in such phrases as, "They ought to have spoke to we ; her told him so ; he told she so ; us wont be hurt, will us ? This is one of our most grating provincialisms." This MS. glossary has been fully used in the following pages. I have also received communications from Mr. Perry, Mr. W. Reader, the Rev. W. T. Bree, the Rev. J. Staunton, Mr. J. T. Watson, and Thomas Haslewood, Esq. The modern dialect of Warwickshire contains a very large proportion of North country words, more than might have been expected from its locality. They say yat for gate, feul, fool, sheeam, shame, weeat, wheat, Yethard, Edward, Jeeams, James, leean, lanc, rooad, road, wool, will, p-yaaper, paper, feeace, face, coaat, coat, &c.

WESTMORELAND.

"A bran new Wark by William de Worfat, containing a true Calendar of his thoughts concerning good nebbherhood," 12mo. Kendal, 1785, pp. 44, is a good specimen of the Westmoreland dialect, but of great rarity. This dialect is very similar to that of Cumberland.

Noo, ye see, Mr. Hedditur, yaw day befowre t'rent com du, aw meen afowre t'time et fader was stinted to pay't in ; for't landlawrd wiv mickle perswadlin gev him a week or twa ower ; but he telled him plane enuf if he dudent stum up that he wud send t'Bumballes ta seez t'sticks en turn byath fader en mudder, mesel en oot barns, tut duer. O, man, thur landlawrds thur hard-hart'd chaps. Aw beleev he wud du'it tu, for yan niver sees him luke plissant, espessiale et farm, for o'its et best condishun, en we've lade sum uv this neu-fashend manner et they co' Guanney ont (Fadder likes to be like t'neabers). Sarterly, it suits for yaw year, en their's sum varra bonnie crops whor its been lade on middlin thick ; but it we'at stand

Whiah, Mr. Heddittur, es aw was gangen to say, yaw day afowre t'time et Fader hed ta pay't rent he sent me wid a coo en a stirk tuv a girt fare, they co Branten Fare, nar Appelby, en aw was to sell them if anybody bad me out, for brass he mud hev, whedder aw gat ther woorth ur nut. When aw was ut fare aw gat rect intult middel uv o'at thrang, whor aw thout aw cudnt help but meet wid a customar; but aw was was farsely cheeted, for aw stude theer nar o't day we've me hands uv me pockets, en neabody es mickle es axd me what awd gayne aboot, en ye ma be sure aw pood a lang fawce, tell a gude-looken gentleman like feller com up tuv me, and nea doot seen aw was sare grhevd, began ta ax me es to whea aw was? whor aw coo fra? hoo me Fadder gat his leeven, en a deel mare sec like questions. Ov course, aw telld him nout but truth, for, ye kna, aw niver like ta tell a lee ta neabody, en aw dudnt forgit, et saame time to let him kna hoo badly off Fadder was, en hoo it wud put him aboot when aw hednt sel becas. T'gentleman, puer feller! was a varra feelen man, for he seemed a girt deel hurt, en gev me what aw wanted for me coo en stirk, widoot iver a wurd ov barteren. Efthr o' was sattled, en we'd gitten cader a glass, aw axed him for his nyame to tak ta Fadder, en he wrayate me't doon wid a wad pensel, ont back uv a lall green card; but unfortunately aw put it intul me wayscort pocket en't name gat rubbed out afowre aw gat hyame. Ont tudder side et card, Mr. Heddittur, was an advertisement, ov which this is a wurd for wurd copy:

“ WANTED IMMEDIATELY,

At a Salary of £500 per Annum,
TO MIND HIS OWN BUSINESS,
And a further sum of £500,
TO LEAVE OTHER PEOPLE'S ALONE!

Et first aw dudnt tak mickle notice out; but sen aw've been consideren that me Fadder is sare fashed we've sea mony ov us, en, as aw supposse, all hev as gude a chance a gitten a situwashun es onybody else, aw want to kna, Mr. Heddittur, hoo aw mun gang aboot it. Aw cannet tell what sud ale me gitten ont, for aw've allas bourne a gude carickter, en thats t'sort uv a chap they want, en aw've nea doot aw cud sune larn t'trade. Aw see it coms ta nar twenty pund a week, throat yer, en its a grand thing for a puer hody. T'labarin fowks aboot here cant hardly mak hofe es mony shillens. O man, t'fowk hes sare shift to git a putten on, noo o' days. But besides o' that, aw can tell ye summet mare underneath, et maks me want ta gang ta Lunnen sea mickle es aw supposse its whare this situation is. Ye kna, Mr. Heddittur, me sweethart Nanny (es like ta sham we tellen ye, but ye munnet mension t'our agen for awt worl) es aw was a salng me sweethart Nanny went up ta Lunnen ta be a Leddies made, en aw sud like varra we'l to sec her et times. They sa he's been peepen intul oat letturs et gang up ta Lunnen, en then tellen oot en maken oot mischeef et iver he can. By gum! if aw thout he'd been breken t'seals ov my letturs es aw sent ta Nanny—first time aw met him aw wad glv him sic a thumpen es he niver gat in his life befowre. Aw wonder they hevnt kick'd sec a good-for-nout feller oot uv t'Post lang sen, whon hes gilty uv sec like snecken lo-lif'd tricks es

WILTSHIRE.

The dialect of this county is so nearly related to that which is denominated the West-Country dialect, that the distinction must be sought for in words peculiar to itself rather than in any general feature. The Saxon plural termination en is still common, and oi is generally pronounced as wi. Instances of their perfects may be cited, snap, snopt, hide, hod, lead, lod, scrape, scrope, &c. Some of their phrases are quaint. That's makes me out, puzzles me; a kind of a middling sort of a way he is in, out of sorts, &c. Mr. Britton published a glossary of Wiltshire words in his Topographical Sketches of North Wilts, vol. iii, pp. 369-80; and a more complete one by Mr. Akerman has recently appeared, 12mo. 1842. Many words peculiar to this county will be found in the following pages which have escaped both these writers, collected chiefly from Kennett, Aubrey, and MS. lists by the Rev. Dr. Hussey, Dr. S. Merriman, the Rev. Richard Crawley, and Mr. M. Jackson. The Chronicon Vilodunense, edited by W. H. Black, fol. 1830, is a specimen of the Wiltshire dialect in the fifteenth century. It is so frequently quoted in this work that any further notice is unnecessary. The following clever pieces in the modern dialect of the county are from the pen of Mr. Akerman.

(1) The Harnet and the Bittle.

A harnet zet in a hollur tree,—

A proper spiteful t'woad was he;

And a merrily zung while he did zet

His stinge as shearp as a bagganet:

Oh, whoso vine and bowld as I,

I vears not hee, nor wapse, nor vly!

A bittle uv thuck tree did clim,

And scarnvully did look at him;

Zays he, “Zur harnet, who glv thee

A right to zet in thuck thee tree?”

Vor ael you zengs so nation vine,

I tell 'e 'tis a house o' mine.”

The harnet's conscience velt a twinge,

But grawn' bowld wi his long stinge,

Zays he, “Possession's the best th'aw;

Zo here th' sha'sn't put a ciäw!

Be off, and leave the tree to me,

The mixen's good enough for thee!”

Just then a yuckel, passin' by,

Was axed by them the cause to try:

“Ha! ha! I zec how 'tis!” zays he,

His bill was shearp, his stomach lear,

Zo up a snapped the caddillu pair!

MORAL.

Ael you as be to läaw inclined,
This leetle stwory bear in mind ;
Vor if to läaw you aims to gwo,
You'll vind they'll allus zar 'e zo :
You'll meet the vate o these here two,
They'll take your cwoat and carcass too !

(2) The Genuine Remains of William Little, a Wiltshire man.

I've allus bin as vlush o' money as a twoad is o' veathers ; but if ever I gets rich, I'll put it ael in Ziseter bank, and not do as owld Smith, the miller, did, comin' whoam vrom market one nite. Martal avraid o' thieves a was, zo a puts his pound-bills and ael th' money a'd got about un in a hole in the wall, and the next marnin' a' couldn't remember whereabouts 'twas, and had to pull purty nigh a mile o' wall down before a' could vind it. Stoopid owld wosbrd !

Owld Jan Wilkins used to zay he allus cut's stakes, when a went a hedgin', too lang, bekaeze a' cou'd easily cut 'em sharter if a' wanted, but a' cou'dnt make um langer if 'em was too shart. Zo zays I : zo I allus axes vor more than I wants. Iv I gets that, well and good ; but if I axes vor little, and gets less, it's martal akkerd to ax a second time, d'ye know !

Pfjle zay as how they gied th' neam o' moorvakers to us Wiltshire vauk bekaeze a passel o' stupid bodles one night tried to rake the shadow o' th' moon out o' th' bruk, and tuk't vor a thin cheese. But that's th' wrong ind o' th' stwory. The chaps az was doin' o' this was smugglers, and they was a vishin' up some kegs o' sperrits, and only pertended to rake out a cheese ! Zo the exciseman az axed 'em the question had his grin at 'em ; but they had a good laugh at he when 'em got whoame the stuff.

Owld Molly Sannell axed Molly Dafter to gie her a drap o' barm one day. " I ha'n't a got narn ! " says she ; " bezides, I do want un mezelf to bake wi'."

Measter Goddin used to zay as how childern costed a sight o' money to breng un up, and 'twas all very well whilst um was leetle, and zucked th' mother, but when un began to zuck the vather, 'twas nation akkerd.

Measter Cuss and his zun Etherd went to Lonnun a leetle time zence, and when un got to their journey's ind, Measter Cuss missed a girl passel a carr'd wi' un to th' cwoach. " Lard, vather ! " says Etherd, " I zeed un drap out at Vize ! " (Devizes.)

(3) North Wiltshire eloquence.

" Now, do'e plaze to walk in a bit, zur, and rest'e, and d'won'te mind my measter up ag'in th' chimley carner. Poor zowl on hin, he've a bin despart ill ever zence t'other night, when a wur tuk ter'ble bad wi' th' rheumatiz in's legs and stummick. He've a bin and tuk dree bottles o' doctor's stuff, but I'll be whipped if a do simbly a bit th' better var't. Lawk, zur, but I be main scrow to be ael in zich a caddel, ael alang o' they childern. They've a bin a leasin', and when un coomed whoame, they ael tuk and drowed the carn aelamang th' vire stuff, and zo here we be, ael in a muggle like. And you be lookin' middlilush, zur, and ael as if'e was shrammed. I'll take and bleow up th' vire a mossel ; but what be them bellises at ? here they be slat-a-two ! and here's my yeppurn they've a' bin and scarshed, and I've agot narra' nother 'gin Zunday bespts thsulum !"

This elegant sample of North Wiltshire eloquence was uttered nearly in a breath, by Mistress Varges, the wife of a labourer with a large family, as the poor man's master entered the cottage to inquire after his health, and whether he would be soon able to return to his work.

WORCESTERSHIRE.

In Worcestershire, the peculiarity of speech most striking to a stranger is perhaps the interchange of her and she, e. g. " her's going for a walk with she." This perversion is even used in the genitive, " she's bonnet." As in Gloucestershire and Herefordshire, the pronoun which is constantly used to connect sentences, and to act as a species of conjunction. At a recent trial at Worcester, a butcher, who was on his trial for sheep-stealing, said in defence, " I bought the sheep of a man at Broomsgrove fair, which he is a friend of the prosecutor's, and won't appear ; which I could have transported the prosecutor ever so long agoo if I liked." As in many other counties, the neuter is frequently invested with the masculine gender. A more striking feature is the continual dropping of the i in such words as stair, fair, pronounced star, far, &c. ; and the letter r is sometimes sounded between a final vowel, or vowel-sound, and an initial one. No works on the dialect of this county have yet appeared, and the majority of the words here quoted as peculiar to it have been collected by myself. I have, however, received short communications from J. Noake, Esq., Jabez Allies, Esq., Miss Bedford, Mrs. John Walcot, Thomas Boulton, Esq., Mr. R. Bright, and Mr. William Johnson. The follow-extract is taken from a MS. in my possession.

Extract from a MS. of medical receipts written by Syr Tomas Jamys, Vicar off Badseye, about the year 1450.

For the skawle a gode medcyn. Take pedylyon to handfulle ever that he be flowryd, and than he ys tendur, and than take and sethe hym welle in a potelle of stronge lye tille the to halfe be soddyn away, and than wasche the skallyd hede in stronge pyse that ys hoot, and than schave away the schawle clene, and let not for bledyn ; and than make a plature of pedylyon, and ley it on the hede gode and warme, and so let it ly a day and a nyth, and than take it away, and so than take thy mele and ronnyng watur of a broke, and therof make theke papelettes, and than sprede them on a clothe that wolle cover all the soore, and so ley it on the sore hede, and let it ly iij. dayys and iij. nythtes ever it be remeveyd, and than take it of, and wasche the hede welle in strong pyse ayenne, and than take and schave it clene to the flesche, and than take rede oynource as mony ase wolle suffyce for to make a plature over the sore, and boyle them welle in wature, and than stampe them, and temper them with the soft of calamyte, and old barow gresse that ys maltyne clene, and so use this tyll the seke be hole.

YORKSHIRE.

There are numerous early MSS. still preserved which were written in various parts of Yorkshire, most of them containing marks of the dialect of the county. The Towneley Mysteries, which have been printed by the Surtees Society, were written in the neighbourhood of Wakefield. An English commentary on the Psalms, translated from the Latin work by Hampole, a MS. in Eton College Library, was also written in this county, the writer observing, "in this werke I seke no strange Inglyshe bot the lightest and the comonest, and swilke that es maste like til the Latyn, so that thas that knawes noight the Latyn by the Inglyshe may come to many Latyn wordes." A metrical translation of Grosthead's Chasteau d'Amour, in MS. Egerton 927, was made by a "munke of Sallay," who calls it "the Myroure of lewed Men." To these may be added MS. Harl. 1022, MS. Harl. 5396, MS. Coll. Sion. xviii. 6, and the Thornton MS. so often quoted in the following pages.

Higden, writing about 1350, says "the whole speech of the Northumbrians, especially in Yorkshire, is so harsh and rude that we Southern men can hardly understand it;" and Wallingford, who wrote long before, observes that "there is, and long has been, a great admixture of people of Danish race in that province, and a great similarity of language." See the 'Quarterly Review,' Feb. 1836, p. 365. There seem to be few traces of Danish in the modern Yorkshire dialect.

So numerous are modern pieces in the Yorkshire dialect, that it would be difficult to give a complete list. The rustic of this county has even had a newspaper in his native dialect, the 'Yorkshire Comet,' the first number of which appeared in March, 1844; but in consequence of certain personal allusions giving offence, the publisher was threatened with a prosecution, and he relinquished the work after the publication of the seventh number, and refused to sell the objectionable parts. The most complete glossary of Yorkshire words was compiled by Mr. Carr, 2 vols. 8vo. 1828, but it is confined to Craven, the dialect said to be used by Chaucer's North country scholars. See Mr. Wright's edition, vol. i. p. 160. Dr. Willan's list of words used in the mountainous district of the West-Riding, in the Archæologia, vol. xvii. pp. 138-167, should also be noticed; and long previously a Yorkshire glossary appeared at the end of the Praise of Yorkshire Ale, 12mo. 1697. Thoresby's list of West-Riding words, 1703, was published in Ray's Philosophical Letters; and Watson gives a "Vocabulary of Uncommon Words used in Halifax Parish" in his History of Halifax, 1775. These latter have been reprinted in the Hallamshire Glossary, 8vo. 1829, a small collection of words used in the neighbourhood of Sheffield. The Sheffield dialect has been very carefully investigated in an Essay by the Rev. H. H. Piper, 12mo. 1825. In addition to the printed glossaries, I have had the advantage of using MS. lists of Yorkshire words communicated by Wm. Turner, Esq., William Henry Leatham, Esq., Henry Jackson, Esq., Dr. Charles Rooke, the Rev. P. Wright, Mr. M. A. Denham, Mr. Thomas Sanderson, John Richard Walbran, Esq., Mr. Banks, and N. Scatcherd, Esq.

DEAR IVERYBODY,

Ah sudn't wonder bud, when some foaks hear o' me startin' on a Paper, they'll say, what in't world hez maade Dicky Dickeson bethink hissen o' cummin' sich a caeper as that? Wah, if ye'll nob-but hev hauf o't patience o' Joab, Ah'll try ta tell ya. Ye mun know, 'at about six year sin', Ah wur i' a public-hoose, wheare ther wur a feller as wur braggin' on his larnin', an' so Ah axed him what he knawed aboot onny knowledgement, an' he said he thowt he'd a rare lump moare information i' his hecad, ner Ah hed i' mine. Noo, ye know, Ah sudn't ha' been a quarter as ill mad, if ther hedn't been a lot o' chaps in't placee 'at reckoned ta hev noa small share o' gumption. Soa, as sooin as Ah gat hoame that neet, Ah aware ta oor Bet, 'at as sure as shoo wur a match-hawker, Ah wud leearn all't polishments 'at Schooilmaster Gill could teich ma. Varry weel, slap at it Ah went, makkin' pot-hukes, an' stroakes, an' Ah hardly knaws what; an' then Ah leearn spelderin', readin', i' fact, all 'at long-headed Schooilmaster Gill knew hiszen; so 'at, when Ah'd done wi' him, Ah wur counted as clever a chap as me feyther afore ma, an' ye mun consider 'at Ah wur noa small beer when Ah'd come ta that pass, for he could tell, boot lukin', hoo mich paaper it wud tak' ta lap up an ounce o' 'bacca. Weel, as sooin as Ah'd gotten ta be sa wonderful wise, d'ye see? Ah thowt—an' it wur a bitter thowt, tew!—that a pity it wor 'at Iverybody couldn't dew as mich as Ah could. More Ah studied aboot it, an' war it potteder ma, Ah'll assure ya. Wun neet, hooiwyer, as oor Bet an' me wur set be't fire-side, shoo turned hersen suddenly round, an' said, "Thoo's a fool, Dicky!" "What! Bet, does thoo really mean ta say Ah's a fool?" "Ah dew," shoo said: "thoo's a real fool!" "Hoo does ta mak' that oot, Bet?" said Ah, for Ah wur noane hauf suited aboot it. "Ah'll say it ageean an' ageean," says shoo; "thoo's a fool, an' if ta's onny way partikelar ta know, Ah'll tell tha hoo Ah make it oot. In't first placee, luke what braans thoo het; as starlin' as onny 'at Iver these gurt men hed; an' yet, like a fool as Ah say thoo is, thoo tak's it as easy as a pig in't muck." "Weel, weel," Ah continid, "what wod ta ha' ma ta dew, lass? Tell us, an' Ah'll dew't." "Then," says shoo, "start a paaper i' thee awn naative tongue, an' call it t'Yorshar Comet. Ah'll be bun for't it'll pay as weel as Iverver goold coin did." Noo, then, as sooin as Ah heard oor Bet's noations, Ah wur ommust stark mad ta carry 'em oot; for Ah thowt, as shoo did 'at it wod pay capital, an' beside, Ah sud maybe be improovin't staate o' saclaty, an' morals o' vicious. Ye doan't need ta think 'at Ah's nowt bud an Ignarant mushrum, for, though Ah say't mysen, Ah can tell ya 'at Dicky Dickeson's as full o' knowlledge as a hegg's full o' meeat. Nut 'at Ah wants ta crack o' mysen, nowt o't soart; it 'em't what Ah says an' thinks o' mysen, bud what other foaks says an' thinks o' ma; an' if ye ha' no objections, ye's just read a letter 'at Ah gat fro' Naathan Vickus about a year an' a hauf sin', when all that talk wur agate relatin' ta Otley gerrin' franchised. It ran as follers:

"Pig-Coit Farm, Octoaber, 1842.

"DEAR DICKY,

"Ah mun confess 'at Ah've heard some talk about oor toon sennin' two Members ta Parlemtan, an' if iver it sud come ta pass, thoo ma be suare 'at Naathan Vickus 'll stick ta tha up hill an' doon daale. Ah's noane sa thick, Dicky, bud what Ah knaws pretty near what a chap is be't cut on his jib, thoo unnerstans; an', depend on't, lad, that's what Ah judges thee by. Thoo's a man 'at 'll dew honour to't toon wheare iver ta goes, an' if iver's onny feathers for onnybody's cap, it's Dicky Dickeson 'at's boon ta get 'em, or else Ah's a fool o' a judge o' human flesh, that's all. Ah hev verry gurt pleasure i' offerin' th' my voate, an' oor Toby's in't bargain; an' Ah dew promise tha, 'at if iver y pig, mule an' cauf about my farm wur receaveable as common sense creaturs, thoo sud fin' a supporter i' iverly one on 'em. Wi' a bucket o' compliments ta the sister Bet an't rest o't breed,

"Ah is, dear Dicky,

"Moast respectful thime,

"NAATHAN VICKUS."

TA MR. DICKESON, ESQ.

Noo, then, Ah ax ageean, is ther onny o' ya, dear readers, as wod hev't leeast bit o' doot o' yer minds noo? Is ther, Ah say? Noa: An' fancies Ah can hear some o' ya chucklin', an' sayin', "Hurra for Dicky Dickeson! he flogs all 'at's goane afore him!" An' let ma tell ya, 'at so Ah means ta dew; an' if onny o' ya is trubbled wi' sees o' ghoasts or dull thowts, Ah'll guarantee ta fretten 'em oot o' ya, an' that's what noa soul afore ma's done yet. Bud Ah mun gi' ower writin' tul ya at present, for oor Bet tells ma 'at me porridge hez been waitin' this hauf hoor, an', as a matter in coarse, they're stiff wi' stanin'. Ah can nobbut beg on ya ta read t'Yorshar Comet Ivery week, an', be dewin' soa, tak' my word for't, ye'll saave monny a pound i't year i' pills, boalusses, an' all sich lully-muck as tha are.

Bet joins wi' ma i' luv ta ya all, (shoo's a deacent lass, & Bet!) an' wi' a thousand hoapes 'at ye'll in-courage ma,

Ah is, dear Iverybody,

Yer verry humble sarvant,

DICKY DICKESON.

Fraud.—Felix Flibberton hed a sad roond wi' his wife this week, caused, as we're told, be Mistress Flibberton bein' guilty on a piece o' roguery, t'like o' which we seldom hear tell on. It's said, when Felix tasted on his tea, 'last Thursday mornin', he fan it oot 'at it worn't ower strong, bud, on't contrary, wur considerably weaker ner common. O' this fact comin' ta leet, he called his wife tul scratch, an' axed as lovinly as ha wur aable, hoo it happened 'at his tea wur i' that pickle. Noo, Felix an' his wife's coffee an' sich like, wur aullus prepared i' separate pots.—Ah mean tea-pots; an', that mornin', Mister Flibberton hev'n' ligged rayther long i' bed, his wife hed thowt proper ta gulp her brekfast afore he landed doon. T'question wor, hed t'mistress ta'en t'biggest shaare o't tea, as theare wur noane in t'canister then? T'poor woman said, ther wur precious little ta mak' t'brekfast on; bud what ther wor, shoo divided fairly, leavin' her husband be far t'bigger hauf. Nut chusin' ta believe all 'at his wife spluttered oot, Felix shooted o't sarvant, whoa depoased 'at when shoo gat up, shoo wur suare 'at theare wur then plenty i't canister ta mak' six rare strong cups. Efter a deal o' cross-examination between t'mistress an't sarvant, t'former began o' roarin', an' confessed 'at shoo hed defrauded her lawful partner, devoatin' tul her awn use three, wal tul her husband shoo nobbut left one an' a hauf spoonful o' tea. Felix wodn't grant noa pardon then, bud bun her ower ta keep t'peeace for three months; an', supposin' 'at shoo brak it ageean, he threatened sendin' a brief o't whoale caase ta Maister Wilkins, barrister, an' ta tak' sich steps as he mud advise.

A Muntificent Gift.—Dr. Swabbs, Physician extraordinary ta Iverybody 'at wants poisonin', hez once more come oot ov his shell, an' letten t'world knaw 'at he's t'saame Dr. Swabbs still 'at iver ha wor. O' Tuesday neet, wal t'doctor wur smookin' his pipe, an' swillin' his tummler o' brandy an' watter, a depitation o' maad-sarvants, consistin' o't cooks an' seven or eight hoose an' chaamer-maads, waated on him wi' a Roond Robin, petitionin' for a small donaatoin i' order ta buy a mixtur ta poison t'mice wi', as they wur gerrin verry impudent i' ther walks in-tu kitchen an' cupboard; i' fact, as't trustwarthy cook said, one on 'em hed t'bare-facedness ta come an' wag his tail i' her chocolate, and then as bare-facedly maade his escape, wi'oot stoppin' ta be wallopped for't. T'doctor wur soa moved be theese

argements, 'at he threw doon his pipe, brekkin' on't, as t'hoose-maid told ma, thrusted his hand intul his pocket, an' drew sixpence. What a blessin' wod it be if men genarally wod nobbut foller Dr. Swabbs' example!

A Literary Society.—A Literary Society hez been formed i' Otley be some perseverin' an' common-sense young men, 'at's ov opinion 'at it's nowt bud reight 'at they sud hev as mitch larnin' as tha can afford to pay for. A committee's been maade, consistin' o' seven o't wisest o' thease conspirators tut owerthrow o' ignorance, an' rules drawn up an' printed i' a hexcellent style, varry creditable boath tut author an' tut printer theoreon, Ah's suare. we've just seen a catalogue o't books they've already gotten, an' as it could'nt miss but apok voliums i' ther faavour, we beg to subjoin t'names on a to-three o't principal warks:—Jack t'Giant-Killer, Tom Thumb, Cock Robin, Mother Hubbard, Jumpin' Joan, Puss i' Boots, Tom t'Piper's Son, an' a splendid haup'n'y edition o' Whittin'on an' his Cat. This is a grand opportunity for lovers o' soond mathamatical, an' other literary pursuits, to come forrard, an' suppoart an' sustaan a novelty fro' which tha ma gether all t'informaation ther minds is on t'luké out for.

If ya tuck noatice, ye would see, 'at t'latter end o' March, i't first quarter, t'moon wur laad ov her back, a suare sign o' stormy weather. Ye'll all know, 'at there's been part frost an' snaw sin'; an', if my judgment isn't awfully wrong, we's ha' some more. Weel, noo, i' frosty weather, ye're aware, it's rather daangerous walkin', becos o't varry gurt slapness o't roads an't flegs; Ah'z quite positive on't, for even i' my time Ah've seen more ner one long-legged coavey browt ov a level wi't grund, an' Ah've seen inoony a stoot an' respectable woman, tew. Let me prescribe a remedy, then, for all sich misfortuns. Shaadrach Scheddul,—a celebraated horse-shooper i' oor toon, proposed to sharpen barns for three-haupence a heead; lads an' lasses, fro' ten to sixteen year o' aage, thruppance; an' all aboon that owidness, whether tha've big feet, little feet, or noa feet at all, fowerpence.

N.B. Ivvery alloance 'll be maade for wooden legs; an' o' them 'at honestly doesn't wish to be blessed wi't last-named articles o' wear, it's moast respectfully requested 'at they'll avaal thersens o't sharpenin' invention. Shaadrach Scheddul alloos five per cent. off for ready brass, or six months' credit;—auther 'll dew.

Ah advise all laadies 'at doesn't wish to hev ther husbands' stockins outrageously mucky on a weshin'-day, nut to alloo 'em t'privilege o' spoartin' knee-breeches, them hev'in' been proved, be varry clever philosophers, ta be t'leadin' cause theareof, an't principal reason why t'leg o't stockin' doesn't last as long as t'foot.

(6) Visits ta Dicky Dickeson.

O' Friday, Dicky Dickeson wur visited i' his study be't Marquis o' Crabbum, an', efter a deal o' enquiries about t'weather, an' monny remarks concernin' this thing an' that, t'latter proceeded to explain what ha'd come for, soapin' an' smilin' tut larned editor, as it's genarally known all these top-markers dew—when tha've owt to ger oot on him. It appears 'at t'aim o't Marquis wur ta induce Mr. Dickeson, as a capitalist o' some noote, to join wi' him i' buyin' in all t'pasper shaavins 'at tha can lig ther hans on, soa as ta hev all t'traade ta thersens.

Mr. Dickeson agreed, an' t'fire-leetin' an' shaavin'-decalin' world is lukin' wi' mitch terror an' int'rest tut result.

Immediately efter t'Marquis o' Crabbum hed maade his exit, a gentle rap wur heard at t'door o't study, an' when Mr. Dickeson bad 'em walk forrard, in popped a bonny, blue-e'd, Grecian-nosed, white-toothed lass o' eighteen, an' be't way i' which t'editor smacked her roasy cheeks wi' his lips, here's na doot bud it wur Nanny Tract. Shoo'd browt two ootcaakes, 'at shoo'd newly baaked, ye know. Mr. Dickeson set tul ta elt 'em, an' Nanny set tul ta watch him; an' when t'first hed finished his performance on't oot-caakes, here's na need ta say 'at he began o' squeezin' t' latter; ay, an' ye ma say what ya've a mind about t'modesty o't laadies, bud Nanny squeezed him as weel, an' wor ther owt wrong in't, think ya? Shallywally! Bud, hoo-iver, t'editor hedn't been long at this gam', afore ha heard another noise,—a shufflin', slinkin' noise, Ah meean, an' his nut a reg'l rap,—ootside o't door; soa, takkin' an' shoes off, he crept nicely tut spot, an', be gow! if ha didn't fin't printer's divsel inen't theare, here's be nowt for tellin' ya on't. Mr. Dickeson, ommust choaked wi' madness at this turn-up, (for wherea's ther onnybody 'at likes ta hev ther love-dewins heard an' seen?) shoved him intut middle on his study; an' commandin' Nanny ta hod him a minute, (which saames shoo did ta perfection,) he went tut other end o't place, an' puttin' on a middlin'-sized clog, take a run pause at t'posteriors o't impement printer's divl, an' theareby makk'n' bim sling "God saave t'Queen" i' sich prime style, 'at delicate Nanny wur ta'en wi' afit o' faantin'. T' music hev'in' ceased as soon as t'performer wur turned oot, Nanny bethowt hersen ta come round; bud, shaameful ta say, her an' Dicky didn't paart wal fower i't efternoon, at which time t'lass wur wanted up at hoame ta darn stockins an' crimp frills.

Men an' women is like soa monny cards, played wi' be two opponents, Time an' Eternity: Time get's a gam noo an' then, an' hez t'pleasure o' keepin' his caards for a bit, bud Eternity's be far t'better hand, an' proves, day be day, an' hoor be hoor, 'at he's winnin' incalculably fast.

A lad i' Otley, known be t'inhabitants for his odd dewins like, an' for his modesty, tew, wur on day went a errand for an owd woman 'at the called Betty Cruttice: an' he wur sa sharp ower it, an' did it sa pleasantly beside, 'at Betty axed him ta hev a bit o' apple-pie for his trouble. "Noa, thank ya," said t'lad. "Thoo'd better, Willy," said Betty. "Noa, thank ya," repeated t'lad; an' off he ran hoame, an' as soon as ha gat intut hoose, burst oot a-roarin' an' sobbin' as if his heart wod brek. "Billy, me lad," says his mother, "what's t'matter wi' tha?" "Wah," blubbered poor Billy, "Betty Cruttice axed ma ta hev a bit o' apple-pie, an' Ah said, Noa, thank ya!"
