THE DAILY [illegible]

PRINTED BY J. BAYON.

NEW ORLEANS:

MONDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 2, 1835.

[illegible] engaged to put together the parts of our new [illegible] and the [illegible] acquainted with its mechanism, we have been delayed much longer than we expected or desired in making our appearance to-day. Our generous subscribers will, we [illegible] we have experienced, and kindly pardon this unforeseen delay. When accustomed to the mechanic press, we shall be early in our [illegible] period of publication.

Our new [illegible] The Bee is presented today to the public in an improved appearance and enlarged size. Our type, [illegible] and legible, the number and length of our columns are immensely [illegible] have a new mechanic power which affords [illegible] in taking good and rapid impressions of the paper, thereby enabling us to keep upon the press till a late hour for the latest news, and to have the papers printed sufficiently early to be distributed to our subscribers before breakfast.

By the enlargement of the paper, we shall have more room for advertising, for commercial, news and literary and political intelligence. Each department shall be conducted on a liberal manner. Attentions will [illegible] the greatest attention paid to the wishes and interests of merchants will find in our columns information of all kinds as early, and as full as can be afforded. To the mercantile interests of the city, state and country we shall pay particular attention; for communications important or interesting to the majority of our citizens.—With regard to the reading contents of the Bee we shall endeavor to render them acceptable to all classes of readers, there will occasionally be the evening [illegible] and the domestic circle: so that merchants and others can have time to look at their public stores & private residences.

Guided in our editorial course solely by principle not man, we shall endeavor to advance all measures calculated to promote the public interests, by [illegible] from whatever they may emanate, or, what persons or district the measure immediately interested or benefits. Although private interests may not always promote the public welfare, public interests are generally based on individual, ordinary concerns, four or one; like a pebble thrown in a brook, which extends its circles to the remotest parts of the waters; or as self-love (no selfishness) may be expanded into benevolence or universal charity.

On the two principles of republicanism, we shall advocate all [illegible] and all objects of internal improvements, as far as energy and industry unite with integrity and economy will enable us. On the maxim of policy which subjects monopolies to competition based on equal rights, not opposition founded on exclusive privileges which have equal rights to enjoy the benefits of our republic institutions by generous emulation and honorable competition. The republicanism of the United States prohibits that a few should be benefitted at the expense of the many; and its true policy demands competition in all pursuits and projects, not opposition nor monopoly. All interests are therefore alike to us when judged by the criterion of the public welfare.

As regards New Orleans, we are solicitous to promote the mercantile interests, for on them depends the prosperity of the city. Divested of sectional feeling and prejudices, and averse to party or local disputes we shall advocate the interests of all classes of the community; and of all districts of the city—trusting that by harmony of feeling and union of interests, the true welfare of all shall be best promoted.

We have established correspondents in Europe Mexico and Texas; and having gentlemen attached to this office capable of translating into and from most of the modern languages, we are enabled to give early and authentic information. We have also made arrangements at New York and Charleston, to obtain the earliest intelligence; and we have already engaged regular correspondent at Washington, to communicate the 'sayings and doings' there during the ensuing session of Congress.

The Bee has already many subscribers in town and country; and is therefore an eligible medium for advertisers. It is also expected that that number shall be greatly increased by our future course.

The Sun appears today in a transformed appearance; and may be said to have undergone an artificial change, like the natural one of the butterfly—from the condition of the chrysalis and caterpiller, to one mounted on the wing, whose glossy plumes

Expanded, shine with azure, green and gold.

Poor old Bee! many a time and oft have we mourned over thy melancholy aspect in thy dingy shroud; and beheld our lucubrations not 'in applepie order.' But we shall forgive thee as we wish to forget. It should not be with thee as with man, when

The evil that men do lives after them,
The goods is oft interred with their bones, but we hope that whenever of merit thou didst possess will be rendered more visible hereafter; and that on all thy [illegible] faults, the 'recording angel shall let fall a tear; and blot them out forever,' De mortuis nil nisi bonum dicamus.

Although we have improved our appearance and enlarged our sheet, it does not appear that we have been 'a day after the fair.'

The eastern mail of Saturday brought New York papers of the 26th, and Charleston of the 22d ult. By these we receive European news by the Liverpool packets of the 16th September, containing advices from London of the 14th and Paris of the 12th.

The British parliament was prorogued on the 10th; after the Corporation bill had passed, and the French chambers on the 11th, after the law for restricting the liberties of the press had passed the peers, by a majority of 151 to 20? 31. England ends her parliamentary session by enlarging the liberty of her subjects; France by limiting.

Spain continues to progress in disturbances; and the liberal or republican party are beginning to exhibit themselves on the stage of men, either per se or for the Carlists. These has been another change of ministry; members of the liberal party with Mendizabal at their head, forming the new cabinet. An engagement had taken place near Estella between the forces under the pretender; and the queen's troops under Cordova, which seem pulled the former to retire from Bilboa.

Thirty new peers were created in France at the prorogation of the chambers; and the king gave his assent to the [illegible] on the day it was passed the peers.

The emperor of Austria has at length been induced to attend the meeting of sovereigns at Kalisch.

An extra mail from the East yesterday (Monday) brought Philadelphia and Baltimore papers to the 19th ult. Washington to the 20th, and Charleston to the 24th.

The Washington Globe continues to argue that if the French affair was likely to remain a quarrie casus No additional troops by that mail.

A railroad convention is to assemble at Tuscaloosa, Ala. on the 3d Monday in this month, for considering [illegible] routes from the New Orleans and Nashville railroad.

Nashville is apparently to be made the central point for all the projected improvements in railroads for the cotton region. The Baltimore and Ohio railroad is completed 178 miles to Winchester on a direct route to Nashville. A convention held recently at Danville, Va, has adopted resolutions in reference to the subject. The citizens of Richmond and Lynchburg have resolved to obtain a charter for a company to construct a railroad from the latter place, by the best gap in the Blue Ridge mountains, to some point east of Tennessee. The Charleston papers are seriously considering the project of a railroad from Cincinnati to their city, which will pass thro Nashville; and even the Kentuckians are determined on having their railroads. The citizens of Georgia are also beginning to awake from their lethargy, altho they have been distanced of a Mississippi and Atlantic railroad which will lead to Savannah.

Should not those interested in the railroad hence to Nashville send delegates to the Tuscaloosa convention; or have that convention adjourned to meet in this city—say the 4th Monday in December? Their interests are as strikes, and they should not slumber on their posts.

The council of Louisville have entered into a contract with Jeremiah Caldwell & Co for lighting that city with gas.

The citizens of St Louis have determined to light their town with gas; and they have subscribed largely for the erection of a gas house there.

The plague of Egypt has [illegible] is now pronounced to be a pestilence; to be not an epidemic disease, but an endemic affection prevailing chiefly in the vicinity of the Nile and the Mediterranean. A new and successful treatment for it has been devised on this theory, by Mr Abbo, surgeon-general in the army of the Pasha of Egypt—by applying general revulsives to peripheral and pressing symptoms. The patient's tongue is cleansed by calomel purges, and the heat and pain of the buboes are alleviated by the repeating lotions. Intense pain in the head is relieved by blisters applied to the nape of the neck. The [illegible] circulating mass is mitigated by general
