REPLY OF WASHINGTON TO EXCLUSION PROTEST SENT TO JAPANESE GOVERNMENT

Washington, June 14.—The American reply of the United States Government to the Japanese protest on the exclusion provision of the new Immigration Bill was handed to Ambassador Hanihara to-day by Secretary Hughes.

At the same time it was announced that arrangements had been made with the Tokio Government for simultaneous publication of the document in the morning papers of Thursday next.

C.N.R. ESTIMATES TO BE CONSIDERED THIS WEEK BY COMMONS COMMITTEE

Banking and Commerce Committee to take up a proposal to establish a central bank. The proposal was made at a committee session by J. T. Shaw, Independent, Calgary West under the original reference as a method of providing security for depositors, but Chairman Vren ruled that it was a distinct proposal and therefore the House had been asked for new instructions. The plan is understood to be not exactly in the nature of the Federal Reserve system of the United States but rather a method of providing for control of the re-discount facilities under the Finance Act and coupling with that a system of bank inspection. The Acting Minister of Finance, Hon. J. A. Robb, introduced in the committee, a proposal for bank inspection under an inspector-general of banks.

MURDOCK REPORT

The report of the Privileges and Election Committee on the Murdock charges is now expected to be taken up in the Commons on Wednesday. Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, was charged by E. Guss Porter, Progressive, West Hastings, Ont., with having violated his honor as a Minister and also the honor of Parliament in having withdrawn $4,000 from the Home Bank just before it closed. The committee decided the Minister had not acted on Cabinet information, but on information received privately, and that the charges were not sustained. However, when the report comes into the House it is understood an amendment will be moved from the Conservative side, asserting that the charges against the Minister have been "proved and sustained."

C.N.R. BILLS

The Senate is still busy with the Canadian National branch line bills. Nineteen of these bills have been dealt with so far by the Senate Railway Committee. In seventeen cases the committee has given tentative approval, while the two Vancouver Island bills have been tentatively held up. No formal reports have been made and the decision on the Vancouver Island bill is still subject to review.

There are still seven other branch line bills to come before the committee and these are expected to be taken up during the coming week.

ers, Brennan, his sister, Shirley Sherman, who was employed there as an entertainer, and his friend Cullen. Detectives learned this morning that Brennan had ejected two men from the resort some hours before the shooting. They think these two might have returned later and sought revenge, although they attach more importance to the theory of bootlegging operations.

Brennan's sister, known on the stage as Shirley Sherman, told the police she ran outside and saw five men, all of whom ran away when she appeared. She seized Hughes by the arm as she screamed for help. Hughes, however, threw her to the floor. A bullet halted Cullen who was close behind the girl. She staggered back into the cabaret and fell unconscious.

POLICEMAN BEATEN

Hughes and Rasmussen became separated from their companions and turned into a corridor, the door of which was closed. Breaking the glass of the door with the butt of their revolvers, they walked into the arms of a policeman. They beat

Lieut. John Hagarty into unconsciousness, secured a sax and fled. Two policemen, attracted by the firing, took up the chase in another car and captured the pair after a breakneck drive. Both have served terms in prison, police said. The band, according to the police, are members of Hell's Kitchen gang who had apparently borne a grudge against the pugilist for some time. Starting his professional career in 1914, Brennan engaged in 121 ring battles, record reveal. He gained the sobriquet of "Knockout Bill" by flattening his opponents in sixty-five contests. The only men who knocked him out were Jack Dempsey, Firpo and Mike, but he lost decisions to Johnson, Harry Greb and "Hattling" Levinaky.

LEARNED MUCH ON THEIR LONG TOUR

Newspapermen Who Visited Victoria Now Back in Eastern Canada

Toronto, June 15.—Western Canada is all right and is off to a fine start for another splendid crop of the prosperity-making kind. Such is the consensus of opinion of the important group of Canadian newspaper publishers and editors who arrived here yesterday after a tour of the West that included a visit to every Canadian city as far west as Victoria. The party included members of the Canadian Press, the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association, nearly all the daily newspapers of the country having been represented at the annual meetings of the two organizations held in Vancouver. The party had unusual opportunities to gather first-hand information as to actual conditions in the country through which they passed. In the larger cities along the 7,000-mile tour they were entertained and driven about the country and they are unanimous in stating that, given favorable weather from now on, the prairies are assured of a wheat crop that may be equal to that of last year. They state also that they observed throughout the country a feeling of confidence in the future such as was not everywhere to be met with a year or two ago. All along the line they were impressed with the need of immigration and they report that the demand for farm labor is already active in practically every settled district. They are unanimous in stating that the tour has been a most valuable one from a practical point of view and that the annual meetings of both organizations were the most successful of their history. The party, which included the wives of most of the members, left Vancouver for home in three special cars and traveled over the Canadian Pacific, stopping at Lake Louise, Banff, Calgary, Moose Jaw, Regina, Winnipeg, Fort Arthur and Port Arthur. At all those points, as at Saskatoon and Edmonton on the way out, hearty civic receptions were given the visitors. At a meeting held on the train during the last stage of the journey votes of thanks for their efforts in making the tour a complete success were passed to Arthur Partridge and D. B. Taylor, manager and assistant manager of the Daily Newspaper Association; to J. F. H. Livsey, general manager of the Canadian Press, and to the Canadian Pacific Railway.

NO RUM RUNNERS' FIGHTS OCCURRED

Rumors About Quebec-Maine Border Battles Without Foundation

Quebec, June 15.—There has been no trouble at all at Estcourt, in Temiscouata County, between rum runners and United States customs and revenue officers, according to a report from the provincial police who were sent by the Attorney-General of Quebec to investigate. Charles Lanctot, Acting Attorney-General, stated today that he had received a report to the above effect and added that not a single blow had been struck. There had been conferences, he stated, but no fighting at all, and he characterized the reports of armed forces being ready to fight to the finish to rescue an imprisoned bootlegger as being absolutely without foundation.

SEVERE STORM IN CALGARY DISTRICT

Wind and Lightning Did Damage; Farmer Struck by Bolt is Dying

Calgary, June 15.—One of the worst rain and electrical storms of the last few years struck Calgary and district in the early hours of yesterday morning, causing damage to property endangering life, uprooting telephone poles and trees, temporarily extinguishing lighting power in the city and crippling telegraphic and telephonic communication. The storm was general over the Calgary district and cut a path southwest to Gleichen, which town reported a heavy storm during the afternoon. Struck by lightning on a farm eighteen miles southeast of here, H. Hannah, a farmer, was probably fatally injured. He was removed to a Calgary hospital with half of his body badly injured and to-day fears were entertained that he would not survive.

HART EXPLODES GROSS AND NET DEBT ARGUMENTS

dustries and people of the province will have on the future prosperity of British Columbia.

THE "GRAND OLD MAN"

He first referred to Premier Oliver as the grand old man of British Columbia who had wrested from Ottawa the right to have millions of tons of grain shipped to British Columbia, and urged his audience to return him to power to give him a chance to complete the work he had started. He lauded Mr. Clearhue for his work on committees as a result of which he had left his impress on Liberal legislation. He referred to his sincerity and ability and said no man, not even the Premier, commanded more respect when he rose to address the House than Mr. Clearhue. Mr. Drake he commended to them as a successful business man and a man with ability which would enable him to become a valuable member of the House. Dr. Rayner was too well-known to them to need any recommendation. His high ideals and unselfish interests were sufficient to commend him to any elector.

CONDITIONS OF 1918

When the Oliver Government went to power, it assumed the responsibility of increasing taxation to take care of the debt left by the Bower Government. Whatever party was elected would have been compelled to increase the taxation and restore the credit of the province. The Liberal Government made an effort to re-establish the credit of the province. They were faced with the necessity of paying 7 to 7 1/2 per cent interest at that time, but Mr. Oliver and the speaker set about to rehabilitate the finances.

"In 1918," the speaker said, "I was able to report to the House that we had borrowed only on capital account, and I was able to say to the financial people what about our sincerity of purpose now. The answer is reflected in the price of our bonds. There is correspondence in the office from financial agents showing that at the time the Liberal Government took office the credit of the province was bad and the Government paid high commission for the sale of bonds. The Oliver Government has paid no agents' commission since it came into office. Bower says at one session we should borrow instead of raising taxation, and at the next session he says borrowing is destroying the credit of the province. In one section of the country he promises a railroad at a cost of $15,000,000 and in another section, where the electors are not interested in railroads, he says he will condemn borrowing. He is like the Southern politician who has a platform for every district, and says 'if you do not like it I will change it.' Mr. Bower has been asked by his friends why he did not run on his record. His answer was 'forget my record. My future is spotless.'"

CRITICISM OF FINANCES

The speaker referred to the recent article in Maclean's Magazine on the financial standing of British Columbia, and pointed to its many inaccuracies. His efforts to have correction published he said had resulted in a reply that it could not be done until after the election. It was unfair, he emphasized, charged, to discredit the province in the financial markets as the article had done.

Mr. Hart then touched upon the Provincial Party's assertion that there was no difference in gross debt and net debt. Speakers who made such assertions, he stated, showed as much grasp of finances as the man who replied to his boy's query as to what a million dollars was, with the reply that it was a hell of a lot of money.

If there was no difference what was the use of sinking funds—large sums invested in sound securities to pay the debt when it became due? They represented money borrowed in an honest effort to develop the resources of the province and to assist the farmers and other people in the province.

Take the P.G.E. Money had to be borrowed to complete this project already started. The Government held nearly $5,000,000 security in the treasury against the P.G.E. which it would be able to turn into cash and reduce the debt by nearly $5,000,000. Through the recommendations that he had made to the Premier and the Government to hold this stock until it enhanced in value, the Government had been enabled to save from a million to a million and a half dollars.

For the Land Settlement Board the Government has borrowed nearly $5,000,000 for reclamation work and assistance in irrigation. For this it had mortgages, securities and other loans which would mean that the money was not a charge on the treasury and would not be a charge on the taxpayers. It was an earnest effort to help the people of the province.

The sum of $2,750,000 had been borrowed for the Soldiers' Land Act, and the Government had security for all of it. He was satisfied that in due time this would be returned to the treasury without loss to the province. One million dollars had been borrowed for the Department of Industries. No less than $5,000 more returned to British Columbia than were enlisted in the province during the war, and this money was used to help re-establish them. Loans were advanced to create industries so that they might be employed. It was true the Government might have some loss, but he asserted that if the million of the mill was lost it was an honest effort of the Government to do something for these men who went overseas.

In addition they had the securities of the municipalities for $2,000,000 under the better housing scheme. DEDUCT $32,000,000

The gross debt was approximately $71,000,000. Against this they must deduct over $32,000,000, leaving a net debt of around $39,000,000. Of this amount which could be deducted there was $20,000,000 which could be turned into cash in forty-eight hours. There was $12,000,000 in mortgages and slow securities which was not a charge on the taxpayers—money loaned to farmers which the Government was entitled to deduct in estimating the debt.

The speaker made comparisons with the financial standing of other provinces and British Columbia, showing that British Columbia was in a healthy financial condition in comparison. He also dealt with the guarantee of the province. There was $40,000,000 guarantee given by the McBride Bower Government to the Canadian Northern Railway, and the railway got into such a condition that it was taken over by the Dominion. This relieved the Government of any liability whatever "and we were relieved."

There was the P.G.E. guarantee of $20,000,000, and a half million a year charge to the people of the province. Vancouver sewerage $2,000,000 and agricultural credits $1,000,000.

AID TO MUNICIPALITIES

Regarding expenditures, the municipalities received from the Government over $2,000,000 more than they did in Bower's time. "The cost of education has increased by $1,111-

000, and we hear demands from the municipalities for the Government to take it over," he added. Mothers' pensions called for an expenditure of $14,900. It was not fair, he claimed, to make comparisons between British Columbia's expenditures and those of Alberta. The great unorganized areas of British Columbia were a charge on the Government treasury, which Alberta was not faced with. They were owned by the Federal Government, but in British Columbia the Government administered them at great cost. "Tell us about the members' salaries," said a heckler. "Allright," said Mr. Mackenzie immediately taking him up, "it's human instinct. All of us would raise our salaries if we have the chance." Speaking of what the Liberal Government had done for Labor Mr. Mackenzie went on to refer to an article in the February issue of The Trade and Labor Journal, which commended the Liberal Party. "ORIENTAL QUESTION" Touching upon the Oriental question he proceeded: "There is a dangerous and insidious Oriental intrusion into British Columbia. I regret to see the Labor Party putting in a plank in their platform advocating the fullest intrusion of Oriental Labor in British Columbia. Objections were raised by a Labor man in the audience, but Mr. Mackenzie repeated his assertion. "We must keep British Columbia for the generations in the future, a land for white, red blooded men. A few weeks ago the great Republic to the South passed a courageous, perhaps dangerous measure for the application of the Oriental question. This is a psychological time for British Columbia to elect representatives to the Federal Government. The recommendation of the Royal Commission was for an appeal on the question of entitlement and assessment. The House of Commons in 1923 passed two recommendations to the Tory Senate on the right of appeal

FINANCIERS ARE SATISFIED VANCOUVER CENTRE'S representative in the Federal Parliament, Mr. H. H. Stevens is asking the electors of British Columbia to dismiss the Oliver Government and elect one headed by Mr. Bowser.

Then a dispatch from Toronto on Saturday informs us that to the twenty-eight commercial failures reported in Canada during the previous week British Columbia contributed none.

Debt and taxation is the red herring which Mr. Stevens has selected for his own particular purpose. He is making out that since the Conservative Party also is a fervent supporter of the plea for equalization of freight rates...

IT MAY BE A COSTLY PEEVE SOUTH AFRICAN Labor has no sympathy with the republicanism of the Nationalists. Colonel Creswell negotiated his political partnership for the sole purpose of defeating the Smuts Government if at all possible.

SOMETHING QUITE NOVEL IT has remained for the woman candidate of the Third Party in Vancouver to give a novel reason why General McRae and his followers should be allowed to form a government.

Department of Immigration has issued special instructions to every point at which immigration officers are stationed for a monthly return to Ottawa of the exact numbers. Surely the Provincial Party is getting hard up for campaign material when it descends to such kindergarten twaddle as that indulged in by its woman candidate in Vancouver.

A CURIOUS MIXTURE MR. JOHN DEAN who is usually sound on public questions, and logical in his presentation of the same, would appear to be both unsound and illogical in his article in yesterday's Colonist on "Provincial Politics."

DESPERATION TWO meetings were called in the interests of the Provincial Party on Saturday night. There was scarcely any audience at either. The leading lights of the party therefore decided to go to the Liberal meeting where they knew there would be a large attendance...

Would it not be safer to trust John Oliver than either W. J. Bowser or General A. D. McRae? Think it over. The dignity of the law is apt to get severely twisted by the electrical currents of a political campaign.

Western Canada will welcome the announcement that a Dominion Customs officer already has left Ottawa to take up his post in New York. Every effort should now be made to see that British bottoms are available to take the goods and give us the benefit.

Dr. Frank Crane on "The Soil" (Copyright) THE soil is the mother of us all. There are as many kinds of soil as there are people to look at it.

There is the bare land which seems to expose itself, needlessly to the elements, and there is the thick lush soil of the Mississippi valley. We are all growths of the soil. Men spring up as lilies-of-the-valley or as mountain flowers. The ideas which I have come from the soil, which is the bosom of all seeds.

Mr. McPhillips and the Deadly Parallel To the Editor: Circumstances prevented me from being present at the Provincial Party meeting on Friday evening as I intended. But, as a humble member of the legal profession, I never expected such an exhibition of bad taste, bad breeding, shockingly bad manners, and cruel injustice as Mr. McPhillips displayed towards the Judge who held the P.G.E. Inquiry.

When, however, a man who expects to be looked up to and respected by the Juror Bar, so far forgets the ethics of the profession as to attack a man who by virtue of his position is unable to enter the ring and defend himself, who must of necessity remain silent under unjust aspersions on his honor and integrity...

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily and the Piece of Cheese

(Copyright, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

By Howard R. Garis

"When you come home this afternoon, please bring a piece of cheese," called Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy to the rabbit gentleman as he hopped away from his hollow stump bungalow one morning.
"All right," he answered with a twinkle of his pink nose. "Do you want strong, jumpy, snappy cheese, Nurse Jane, or a nice, gentle, go-to-sleep sort of cheese?"
"I don't see that it makes much difference," spoke the muskrat lady housekeeper, tying her tail in a double bow knot, for she was going to knock some of the dust from the furniture on the floor.
"Of course, it makes a difference!" laughed the bunny. "If I bought a strong, jumpy, snappy piece of cheese it could come home all by itself, but if I get a mild, gentlemanly slice I'll have to carry it."

pleasant voice, and Uncle Wiggily felt himself being dragged along.
"Who are you?" cried the bunny. "I'm the Bob Cat, and I've caught you!" mewed the bad chap. "I'm going to take you off to my den and tie you to a post with my wife's clothes line. Then I'm going to get the Fox and we two shall nibble your ears."

Oh, poor Uncle Wiggily! squeaked Jollie.

Uncle Wiggily felt very sad. He wiggled and squirmed and tried to get loose, but the rope held him fast.
"At last I fear I am going to have my ears nibbled!" he thought. "Oh, dear!"

A little while after this two tiny creatures crept along through the woods. They had long tails—in fact their name was Longtail. They were Jollie and Jillie, the mouse boy and girl, and they were coming home from school.
"Jollie!" suddenly cried Jillie, as he stopped near the den of the Bob Cat, though the mouse boy didn't know it was there. "I smell the lovely little cheese!"

"Up!" I smell cheese myself," squeaked Jillie. "It seems to be in this hole. Let's go in and nibble a bit."
Now the hole was not the front door, but a small one leading into the Bob Cat's cave. The cheese the mice children smelled was in Uncle Wiggily's pocket, and the bunny was tied in the bad chap's cave. His eyes were blinded by his hat. He couldn't call for help because of the hatter's chief over his mouth, but he could hear the mice children talking and he heard them creeping into the cave through the little hole. Nearer and nearer they came to the smell of the cheese. And then, being well able to see in the dark, Jollie and Jillie noticed Uncle Wiggily tied to the post.

"Oh, poor Uncle Wiggily!" squeaked Jollie. "We must gnaw the ropes and set him free, Jillie."
"Of course, we must," said the sister mouse. "Never mind about the cheese now." So the mice children gnawed through the ropes that bound the bunny just as, in the story, the mouse gnawed the ropes of the net and set the lion free.
Soon Uncle Wiggily's paws were loose. He pulled his hat off his eyes, took the handkerchief from his mouth, and with the mice ran out of the Bob Cat's cave.
"Thank you, so much for saving me!" said Uncle Wiggily. "And here is some cheese for you. It's a good thing I had it in my pocket, or you never would have smelled it and come in to save me."

SCENE OF TO-MORROW'S GARDEN PARTY

The lovely gardens at "Beavenuta," Tod Inlet, the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Special trains, at a reduced fare for the double journey, will leave the B.C. Interurban station at 2.30, returning to the city at 6 o'clock. At Tod Inlet the trains will be met by a fleet of motors, kindly loaned by members of the club, to convey guests to the gardens free of charge. Afternoon tea will be served at a small charge. The Admiral Oriental liner President McKinley, Captain Alvin O. There were over 700 passengers on board, including 168 first class passengers, and 545 steerage. This makes a total of 713 passengers. Seven first class passengers departed here in addition to the fifty-four steerage.

Kinley brought a large cargo of silk and tea this trip. There were nearly 6,000 bales of silk, and a large quantity of this season's tea loaded at Shimidzu. Among the passengers debarking at Victoria were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Clayton, G. T. Clayton, Miss M. E. Clayton, Miss M. Clayton and Master D. H. Clayton and Wong Way Hong. Prominent on board the liner was Lieut.-Col. E. C. Maddock, of the British service in India. While in the Orient Col. Maddock operated upon the famous Indian poet and philosopher, Sir R. Elipsing all previous passenger records set this year by trans-Pacific liners, the Canadian Pacific Empress of Russia, Capt. A. J. Hosken, R.N.R., docked from the Far East at 7 o'clock this morning. There were 1,144 passengers on board. This is also the nearest that the Empress liners have come to the record set in pre-war days when 1,200 passengers were brought from the Orient on one of the Empress liners.

There were 200 first class, 108 second class, eighty-six third class and 760 steerage passengers on the Russia. Several first class passengers and one hundred Chinese steerage debarked here. The Russia called at Shimizu while in the Orient to load tea. The vessel brought 3,500 cases of this season's tea. Another feature of the ship's cargo were 1,800 bales of silk. There were nearly 3,000 bags of mail this trip.

Over 200 Japanese Ladies Arrive to Meet Prospective Husbands

En route to the United States to be married to two hundred and fifty Japanese picture brides arrived on the Empress of Russia when that liner docked from the Orient early this morning. There were only twenty Japanese men on board, the remainder of the Japanese steerage being "picture brides." All liners coming from the Orient now are bringing capacity lists of Japanese passengers anxious to get to the United States before the Exclusion Bill becomes effective on July 1.

Japanese Lines Considering Plans to Meet Critical Situation

Thirty Thousand Asiatic Steerage First to See America at This Port

How much will the Japanese immigration exclusion policy affect business to Vancouver Island port? How many Asiatic steerage passengers who have hitherto traveled on trans-Pacific lines will be stayed by the operation of the American exclusion regulation? These questions can be definitely answered now owing to information which arrived on the liner Empress of Russia this morning. There were crossed on the trans-Pacific lines, the number of Asiatic steerage passengers on the Pacific Mail, China Mail and Toyo Kisen Kaisha, which do not come to the Pacific Northwest coast, a total of 21,227, this leaves 30,195 to ports on the Canadian and American mainland in this part of the continent who pass through Victoria annually. The C.P.R. carried 2,858 Asiatic steerage passengers in 1923.

DELAY CAUSED IN LANDING HERE IS AGAIN CRITICIZED

Further criticism of the regulations delaying passengers who wish to land from boats from the Antipodes calling at Victoria was voiced at the meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon. A note from a traveler on the Niagara referred to dozens of passengers endeavoring to get passes to land, and suggested it would greatly benefit Victoria if landing formalities were simplified.

VIVID DRAMA COMES OUT OF SAHARA TO ROYAL VICTORIA

Edwin Carewe's Thrilling Production is Actually Made in Algiers, With Great Camel's Caravan

A rare, picturesque and vivid motion picture has come out of the Sahara desert to thrill and charm patrons of the silent drama. It is Edwin Carewe's picturization of "A Son of the Sahara," which began an engagement at the Royal Theatre to-day.

Made in the Algerian desert, there is nothing of the usual Hollywood Sahara about it. The magnificence of the true Sahara, with its giant sand dunes and its limitless horizon, unbroken except for the majesty of the Atlas Mountains, is there as the setting for strong drama.

CAMEL CARAVANS

The panorama of a great camel caravan, the clash of real Arab tribesmen with real Senegalese troops of the French government, scenes in the palace of a great sheik and the dancing of the oulad-nail girls, are features of this extraordinary screen offering.

And through it all runs a powerful story interpreted by an exceptional cast. Bert Lytell as Raoul le Breton, a young Frenchman, who thinks he is an Arab and who is brought up as a sheik, gives perhaps the strongest characterization of his career. Claire Windsor as Barbara, the daughter of the young sheik's sworn enemy, has the leading feminine role, and gives the screen her best character delineation to date.

Raoul leads his Arab hosts in an attack on the stronghold of Barbara's father, and during the encounter the girl is taken captive. Back in the Arab stronghold she is sold as a slave in accordance with Raoul's threat to her father, but she is secretly bought by him. He loves her and wishes to protect her, and after many dramatic twists the plot takes another turn that solves the problems of both.

A FINE OFFERING

Walter McGrail, as Captain Jean Duval, suitor for Barbara's hand, makes a handsome and effective officer. Rosemary Theby as Rayma, the dancing girl, never gave the screen a finer contribution. Montague Love portrays the role of Sultan Cassim Ammeh and Colonel Barbier with great effect, while Paul Panzer shows his remarkable versatility first as Cassim, Sr.'s lieutenant, next as Cassim, Jr.'s aid, then as the auctioneer.

"A Son of the Sahara" is an adaptation by Adelaide Hellbron of Louise Gerard's novel. It is a First National picture, and the finest offering of its kind that has yet been given the screen.

Francis Compton Begins Final Brief Season

Will Appear in "Are You a Mason?" at Pantages

To-night Francis Compton and his company will commence the first week of their final three weeks' season at Pantages, when "Are You a Mason?" will be presented. This delightful and most laughable farce needs no elaborate introduction. It is one of the most popular plays ever written and an enormously successful one. Mr. Compton has gathered an exceptionally strong company together, and one calculated to present the piece in first-class style. Miss Peggy Dundas, who made such a hit in "Baby Mine," will be seen to the best advantage, while the ever-popular Herbert Essie has a strong part. Also in the cast will be Miss Marion Goddard, Mrs. Stewart Clarke, Miss Catharine Macdonagh, A. Legge-Williams, Miss Belle Eilers, G. Gibson-John, Miss Grace Roshier, Alex. McPhillips and others. "Are You a Mason?" should prove a big attraction to those who enjoy a good hearty laugh, and as many will be anxious to accord Mr. Compton and his company a warm send-off, Pantages should have full houses during this week and for the remainder of the engagement.

If you have an apartment to rent you have an advertising problem of the regular sort—to be worked out in the regular way. That is the classified advertising way, and through it a majority of the apartments are rented. It never costs over-much—often so little that the expense hardly counts. Classified advertising gives to home-hunters the facts upon which they base their home-hunting expeditions.

Great Cast in Paramount Film, Now at Capitol

"Tiger Love" is Feature Starring Estelle Taylor

Antonio Moreno and Estelle Taylor are featured in the leading roles of the George Melford Paramount production, "Tiger Love," which will be the feature at the Capitol Theatre all this week. The story is a fast-moving romantic drama of Spain.

According to an announcement by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of the production for Paramount, he felt that Moreno was the ideal choice for the role of the Wildcat, a happy-go-lucky, stop-at-nothing bandit chief. Miss Taylor's assignment to the feminine lead came as a recognition of her brilliant performance in Cecil B. DeMille's "Ten Commandments."

"Tiger Love" is one of the few Spanish pictures in which it has been Moreno's lot to appear despite the fact that he always sought opportunities to portray on the screen characters of his own nationality. The Spanish Dancer, in support of Pola Negri, will be remembered as one of Tony's recent successes. And after "Tiger Love" Estelle Taylor is going to be one of the most popular screen actresses. Her role

Parked Next To Fire Plug; Hailed to Court

Stealing the wheel of the only fire engine in the little town of Hurlbridge! Sounds not unlike a Halloween prank of boys bent on celebrating the day, but in reality it is one of the many amusing incidents in the George Melford Paramount picture, "Flaming Barriers," which is being shown at the Playhouse Theatre this week with great success.

Antonio Moreno, in the role of Sam Barton, wishes to show off the Malone fire truck to visiting fire chiefs, so to insure himself against any chance of the regular apparatus answering the alarm, he removes a wheel. What to do? Sam solves the problem for them by suggesting that they take the Malone truck. This they do, but the Mayor interferes and the firemen find themselves in court for parking next to a fire plug. Jacqueline Logan, Antonio Moreno and Walter Hiers are featured in the principal roles of "Flaming Barriers." It is a Byron Morgan story adapted to the screen by Harvey Thew. It is well worth seeing because of its beauty, drama and thrills.

Fox Keeps Pledge Made Long Ago to Genevieve Tobin

Genevieve Tobin, Broadway star of "Polly Preferred," was engaged by William Fox to appear in "No Mother to Guide Her," a Charles Hioran production made at the Fox New York Studio. Miss Tobin, in this feature, makes her return to motion pictures after several years' absence. Strange enough, twelve years ago—when Genevieve was a little girl—Mr. Fox gave her first motion picture role in one of his earliest features, "The Valley of the Missing."

The girl's performance pleased him so that he complimented her on her work and promised that when she grew up he would give her an important part in one of his pictures. He has kept his word by entrusting her with an important role in "No Mother to Guide Her." Her work proves that the estimate of her future possibilities made in her childhood by William Fox was correct. Among her stage successes

NOVARRO AT LAST PLAYS SPANIARD IN NIBLO FILM

Is Able to Represent Native Country in Picture of Pyrenees, Now at Dominion

Ramon Novarro, who is playing the part of the young lover, Juan Ricardo, in the Louis B. Mayer-Metro production, "Thy Name Is Woman," which is at the Dominion Theatre this week, is having the novel experience of depicting one of his own countrymen on the screen under the guiding genius of Fred Niblo. Mr. Novarro is a Spaniard and this latest Niblo offering is laid in the heart of the Pyrenees.

"I was born in Mexico," Mr. Novarro says. "My parents had come from Spain just a short time before my birth. Until I was sixteen years old I could speak nothing but the Spanish language.

I was practically fed on Spanish literature and Spanish art, and, of course, with such a foundation, all things Castilian became very dear to me. When I first determined to go into pictures I had the keen desire to give eventually an interpretation on the screen of one of the parts I had read about French characterizations have come my way; Balkan parts as well; moreover, I have played a South Sea Islander, but heretofore never a Spaniard. That is why I was overjoyed when Mr. Niblo engaged me for the role in "Thy Name Is Woman"; I am a Spanish officer, a part which brings back pleasant reminiscences for I can well remember as a little boy how I hoped some time I might become an officer in the king's army.

"Thy Name Is Woman" is a Fred Niblo production presented by Louis B. Mayer through Metro. It was adapted by Bess Meredyth from Benjamin Glazer's American version of Karl Schoenherr's play. Victor Milner was the cameraman and Ben Carre was art director.

The Beer Plebiscite Is B.C.'s Opportunity

The carrying of the plebiscite means the introduction of a moderate law with proper safeguards; the opportunity of the tired workman on these hot Summer days to secure a cooling and refreshing glass of beer with his lunch; the opportunity of the tourist to get a mildly stimulating and palatable glass of beer en route instead of hauling a paper sack of a dozen bottles of luke warm beer.

Let B. C. mild brews take the place of the stronger imported beverages and keep our money at home.

Here's an eminent opinion on beer. Sir James Orichton-Browne, one of Great Britain's most notable physicians, writes: "The comparatively small quantity of alcohol contained in beer relaxes the nerves of the man tired from physical or mental labor. It diverts his thought in another direction and relieves the pressure of his daily cares without doing harm to his internal organs. In a word, the healthy man gains fresh vigor from a few glasses of beer daily."

DRAKE BROADCASTS ELECTION ADDRESS

Businessman's Appeal on Strength of Liberal's Constructive Policy

In a sound, well-reasoned address, Samuel J. Drake used the radio to broadcast his appeal to the voters as a business man standing on the Liberal ticket because of the constructive policy of the Liberal Party because of the fight of the leader to bring about equitable freight rates that will help bring prosperity to the Province, and on its record since 1917.

"I am in this contest as a business man who is vitally interested in the welfare of this beautiful and wonderful province," he said. "We are all proud of Victoria. We all want to make Victoria a better place to live in. We all want to make Victoria more prosperous and her people contented. Looking at it from a selfish standpoint, the more prosperous and busy the city is, the better my own business will be. I have been in the hardware business here for a considerable number of years and wish to do whatever I can to bring good times to you, and if to you, naturally better times also come to me and my business.

"I have not previously taken any active interest in the politics of the Province of British Columbia; but firmly believe to-day that the Oliver Government offers a more constructive policy for the future and has done more in its seven years of office than any other party or any previous Government. It is said that the sins of the father are visited unto the children to the third or fourth generation, and the Oliver Government to-day is suffering for the sins of the Conservative Governments, suffering very heavily and suffering to the extent, in round figures, of $2,500,000 per annum as a result of the P.G.E. railway, which is a gift of the McBride-Bowser Government.

A LOAD OF DEBT. "This same man was previously responsible for loading you with a debt of approximately $40,000,000 in the shape of a guarantee on Canadian Northern Railway bonds. Fortunately the Federal Government took over that road or we would have had another $2,500,000 a year to take care of.

B.C.'S DISADVANTAGE. "My principal reason for supporting the Liberal Government is the attitude and stand John Oliver has taken on the freight rates question. Ever since B.C. entered Confederation she has suffered from high freight rates. We are to-day paying fifty to eighty per cent. higher rates on manufactured goods than eastern provinces. That is not equal treatment. That is building one part of Canada at an unfair and unjust disadvantage to another part. It is saying, in other words, British Columbia you are not going to be allowed to ship your manufactured goods so that you can compete with eastern factories. You must stay west of the Rocky Mountains, where you belong. You are not to be allowed to ship your fruit, one of your largest agricultural products, to where you can reach a market better than you can reach on the ground to rot than be allowed to ship to compete with Eastern Canada. Is that fair treatment, can we prosper if we are built around with a wall like that. We are virtually in a prison guarded by the vested interests of Eastern Canada, who will maintain that guard till they are overcome.

CAME TO RESCUE. "What politician has dared to attempt to get release but John Oliver? The answer is no one. As a result of a reduction of $10 per 100 on west-bound freights on grain, already secured, there has come to the coast this year over 50,000,000 bushels. Now this means more than a saving on freight alone. It means that many ships come to our shores to carry that grain overseas. When these ships come they must be refitted and that involves the use of lumber to refit them so that they can be used as carriers. It means the employment of carpenters and others to do the necessary work. These ships require crews for the voyage and keep our miners working; they require loading, using help there.

"The freight rates reduction already secured has started an endless chain. Let us keep at it and finish the good work started by John Oliver and his Government and send them back in power for that purpose.

COMING BACK. "Our own boys who have gone away are anxious to come back and many have already done so. The tide of travel to the South has turned, prosperity is ahead of B.C. to-day and we are on the threshold of great developments. Large private interests are already spending $2,000,000 on elevator building on the coast and have many more millions ready to come if the present Government is allowed to continue its policy.

LIBERAL LEGISLATION. "I wish to bring to your attention some of the outstanding legislation put on the statute books by the present Government.

"Woman Suffrage—Since 1917 the franchise has been extended to the women of B.C. on the same footing as men.

"Mothers' Pensions Act, 1920, provides for support on partial support of mothers and children. Payments at the rate of about $40,000 per month are being made to 995 mothers and 2,500 children at the present time at an administrative expense of less than $1 per cent.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION. "The present Workmen's Compensation Act, which has been in force since January 1, 1917, provides for the payment of compensation amounting to 62 1/2 per cent. of wage loss from the end of third day of disability, complete medical and surgical attendance and hospital care, payment of pensions for the dependents of workmen killed in industry and the payment up to $100 for funeral expenses in each fatal case. Sixty-seven and one-half per cent. of compensation were dealt with and $2,672,879 went for compensation at a cost of 2.46 per cent."

RETURNS TO UNITED STATES TO PREACH UNDERSTANDING OF JAPANESE RESENTMENT

"As I said at a farewell dinner by members of both houses of the Diet, and of the press: This attitude of restraint and dignity is indeed in keeping with the best teachings of the great spiritual leaders of the past, both in the East and in the West, and is a proof, in my opinion, that despite the make-brave achievements of Japan, her lofty spirit has remained intact.

"In your hands, gentlemen, largely rests the future of the Pacific, and upon you its destinies greatly depend. Your power implies responsibility, and in this case the responsibility is a very heavy one. I know you will most nobly acquit yourselves. It has been said that the future can best be read by the past, and if that be so, why then I have no fears, and I have all the less fears, indeed, when I consider that there are men of your stamp who will be working in this country, as I on my part will be working in America, for the furtherance of a cause which has come to be the prime object of my life—the hallowed cause of true friendship between our two nations."

TRIED BY FIRE. Reverting to his subject Mr. Woods made the significant remark that just as Japan had come out of the Washington Conference stronger than she went in, so he believed she would come out of this trial better than she was before his experience. "In support of that statement I would have tried the bravest of men. That latent capacity to meet an emergency was shown to my personal knowledge during the horrors of the earthquake and fire when my family and I were ourselves homeless, and met with unflinching courtesy from people who had not the remotest idea who we were, merely that we were strangers in difficulty, and were suffering under the loss of homes, members of their family, and physical injury."

WHY HE CAME HOME. Beyond the fact that he intends to explain to his countrymen his actual understanding of the fact that Woods is not prepared to indicate his future policy. He will first go to his home at Greensburg, Penn., and thence to Washington. He made a personal statement with regard to leaving Tokio at a critical time, stating that in the earthquake disaster his mother-in-law, Mrs. Marchand, who travels with him and his wife, was seriously injured, and a major operation was necessary. She has reached a physical state when she had to come home, and this detoured him to resign. He went to Tokio from Madrid, where he was American minister, in March, 1923, and after a lengthy period in the diplomatic service will now retire.

Half an hour before the train was scheduled to leave throngs began gathering in the spacious plaza in front of the station and in the corridors of the station itself.

A strong detachment of police kept a wide passage open to the station from the station door to the train platform. Members of the foreign diplomatic corps began arriving, as well as high Japanese officials.

At 11:30 o'clock, two minutes before the train departed, the American Ambassador and his family, and Mr. Jefferson Caffrey, Chancellor of the Embassy, who was left in charge at Tokio, drew up to the station entrance in a motorcar. It was the signal for the start of one of the most tremendous demonstrations ever accorded a foreigner in Tokio. Friendly but frenzied, the mob broke through the police lines and bore down on the motorcar, screaming bansais. Only with difficulty did Mr. Caffrey get the motorcar door open and alight, and the Ambassador and his family almost had to fight their way clear of the car. With heads bent forward the Ambassador party ploughed its way through the tumultuous throngs. Students threw hats in the air, waved Japanese flags, and the big building rang with the yelling.

TRIBUTES ACKNOWLEDGED. Reaching the ticket barrier, which checked the onrush, the Ambassador turned and acknowledged the tributes, then hastened on to the train platform. The crowds kept pouring in through all doors, constantly shouting. Children stumbled over the door steps, and many were trampled before they could gain their feet. Photographers aimed in the general direction of the disappearing Ambassador and exploded flashlight powder frantically.

On the station platform the throng was no less enthusiastic. With difficulty the Woods party made its way to a special car reserved for the Ambassador and his family. Baroness Matsui presented Mrs. Woods with flowers. More camera men set up clouds of flashlight powder. The train whistled, and soon disappeared towards Yokohama where he embarked. Mr. Woods brings back numerous tributes of esteem, including a samurai sword of rare value from the Japanese newspaper men, but one of the most extraordinary incidents of all, he states, was the appearance of a priest, the head of one of the religious orders, who accompanied the numerous delegations and deputations which came to see him about the Exclusion Bill, in Tokio, asked permission to pray for him, and the cause of peace. This the patriarch did, apparently under the impression that even foreign ambassadors were not past praying for.

SERIAL STORY

The Black Gang

By CYRIL McNEILE, "Sapper"

Author of "Bull-dog Drummond," "No Man's Land," etc.

"But I can't, old man," she said, with a little catch in her breath. "They've got me lashed up with a steel chain."

"They've got you lashed up with a steel chain," repeated Hugh stupidly. "The devil they have; the devil they have!"

And his voice was shaking a little with cold, concentrated fury.

"All right, kid," he went on after a moment; "if you can't come to me, I must come to you. We'll soon deal with that chain."

He glanced into the room underneath hers and saw that it looked like a drawing-room. The windows seemed easy to force if necessary, broken, and that it proved easier to open than he had thought. He stepped back and looked up.

"I'm coming in, kid," he whispered. "Do you know where the stairs are?"

"Just about the middle of the house, old man. And listen. I can't quite reach the door to open it, but I've got my parasol and I can tap on it so that you'll know which it is."

"Right," he answered. "Keep your tap up."

The next moment he had vanished into the drawing-room. And now he noticed that that strange noise which he had heard while standing on the lawn was much louder. As he cautiously opened the door and peered into the passage the very faint hum became a steady drone, while with each successive thud the floorboards shook a little.

The passage was in darkness, though light was shining from under some of the doors. And as he crept along in search of the stairs he heard voices proceeding from one of the rooms he passed. Evidently a fairly populous household, it struck him; as he tested the bottom of the stair with his weight to see if it creaked. But the staircase was old and solid, and the stair carpet was thick, and at the moment Hugh was not disposed to linger. Afterwards the house seemed to promise a fairly fruitful field for investigation; at present

Phyllis was all that mattered. So he vanished upwards with the uncanny certainty of all his movements at night, and a moment later he was standing on the landing above.

It was a long, straight corridor, a replica of the one below, and he turned in the direction in which he knew her room must lie. And he had only taken a couple of steps when he stopped abruptly, peering ahead with eyes that strove to pierce the darkness.

For it seemed to him that there was something in the passage—something darker than its surroundings. He pressed against the wall absolutely motionless, and as he stood there with every sense alert, and his arms hanging loosely forward ready for any emergency, he heard a tapping on one of the doors just ahead of him. It was Phyllis signalling with her parasol as she had said, and he took a step forward. And at that moment something sprang out of the darkness, and he found himself fighting for his life.

For a second or two he was at a disadvantage, so completely had he been taken by surprise; then the old habits returned. And not a moment later he was up against an antagonist who was worthy of him. Two hands like iron hooks were round his neck, and the man who gets that grip first wins more often than not. His own hands shot out

THE MOST THRILLING, COLORFUL PICTURE OF THE YEAR

The alluring strains of the Tarantella, the intoxicating scent of flaming flowers, the madness of costly scarlet wine.—She was the light, bright tiger-moth, enchanting and appalling. He was a soldier—handsome, dashing, boyish, reckless—into the darkness, and then for the first time in his life he felt a stab of fear. For he couldn't reach the other man: long though his arms were, and as his hands went along them he could feel the muscles standing out like steel bars. He made one supreme effort to force through to his opponent's throat and it failed; with his superior reach he could keep his distance. Already Drummond's head was beginning to feel like bursting with the awful pressure round his throat, and he knew he must ask something at once or lose. And just in time he remembered his clasp-knife. It went against his grain to use it; never before had he fought an unarmed man with a weapon—and as far as he could tell this man was unarmed. But it had to be done and done quickly.

With all his force he stabbed sideways at the man's left arm. He heard a snarl of pain, and the grip of one of the hands round his throat relaxed. And now the one urgent thing was to prevent his shouting for help. Like a flash Drummond was on him, one hand on his mouth and the other gripping his throat with the grip he had learned from Oaki the Jap in days gone by, and had never forgotten. And because he was fighting to kill now he wasted no time. "The grip tightened; there was a dreadful worrying noise as the man bit into his thumb—then it was over. The man slipped downwards on to the floor, and Drummond stood drawing in great mouthfuls of air.

But he knew there was no time to lose. Though they had fought in silence, and he could still hear the monotonous thud and the beat of the engine—at any moment someone might come upstairs. And to be found with a dead man at one's feet in a strange house is not the best way of securing a reasonable welcome. What to do with the body—that was the first insistent point. There was no time for intricate schemes; it was a question of taking risks and chancing it. So for a moment or two he listened at the door of the room opposite that on which he had heard Phyllis tapping, and from which the man had sprang at him—then he gently opened it. It was a bedroom and empty, and without further hesitation he dragged his later opponent in, and left him lying on the floor. By the dim light from the uncurtained window, he could see that the man was almost deformed, so enormous was the length of his arms. They must have been six inches longer than those of an average man, and were almost as powerful as his own. And as he saw the snarling, ferocious face upturned to his, he uttered a little prayer of thanksgiving for the presence of his clasp-knife. It had been altogether too near a thing for his liking.

He closed the door and stepped across the passage, and the next moment Phyllis was in his arms.

"I thought you were never coming, old man," she whispered. "I was afraid the brutes had caught you."

"I had a slight difference of opinion with a warrior outside your door," said Hugh, grinning. "Quite like old times."

"But, my dear," she said, with sudden anxiety in her voice, "you're sopping wet."

"Such water has flowed under the bridge, my angel child, since I last saw you, and I've flowed with it." He kissed her on the right side of her mouth, then on the left, and finally in the middle for luck. Then he grew serious. "No time for hot air now, old thing; let's have a look at this jolly old chain effect of yours, which the man had sprung several pounds of mud for having been such an unmitigated idiot as to let these swine get hold of you."

He was examining the steel chain as he spoke, and gradually his face grew grave. He didn't seem to have gained much after all—by breaking in; Phyllis was just as much a prisoner as ever. The chain, which was about six feet long, was fastened at one end to a big staple in the wall and at the other to a bracelet which encircled his wife's right wrist. And the bracelet could only be opened with a key. Any idea of breaking the chain or pulling out the staple was so preposterous as not to be worth even a moment's thought; so everything depended on the bracelet. And when he came to examine it more carefully he found that it had a Yale lock.

He sat down on the edge of the bed, and she watched him anxiously.

"Can't you get it undone, boy?" she whispered.

"Not if I stopped here till next Christmas, darling," he answered heavily.

"Well, get out of the window and go for the police," she implored.

"My dear," he said still more heavily. "I had, as I told you, a little difference of opinion with the gentleman outside the door—and he's very dead." She caught her breath sharply. "A nasty thing with long arms who attacked me. It might be all right, of course—but I somehow feel that this matter is beyond the local constable, even if I could find him. You see, I don't even know where we are." He checked the exclamation of surprise that rose to her lips. "I'll explain after, darling; let's think of this now. If only I could get the key; if only I knew where it was, even."

"A foreigner came in about an hour ago," answered his wife. "He had it then. And he said he'd come again to-night."

"He did, did he?" said Hugh slowly. "I wonder if it's my friend the Italian. Anyway, kid, it's the only chance. Did he come alone last time?"

"Yes; I don't think there was anyone with him. I'm sure there wasn't."

"Then we must chance it," said Hugh. "Say something; get him into the room and then leave him to me. And if for any reason he doesn't come I'll have to leave you here and raise the gang."

"Wouldn't it be safer, boy, to do that now?" she said imploringly.

"Suppose anything happened to you."

"Anything further that happens to me to-night, old thing," he remarked grimly, "will be as flat as a squashed pancake compared to what's happened already."

Pictorial Golf Instruction How to Avoid Mistakes With the Mashie

More mistakes are made with the mashie than with any other golf club. The temptation to look up and spoil the shot appears to be greater with this club than any other.

THE FRANKS CASE TOLD IN PICTURES

Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, sons of Chicago millionaires, had every luxury. Both were brilliant students, omnivorous readers, and they graduated from college when 18. When others played, they read strange books for lads their age.

But time dragged heavily. They sought a thrill in Chicago's bohemia, but soon grew tired of it. They plotted a murder—one that would keep detectives guessing. They wanted to be principal actors in the strangest dramas of the age.

They intended to kidnap and kill any one of several boys in rich families, but as they drove past a private school attended by children of the rich, they saw Robert Franks, 14. They invited him into the car.

While one of the boys drove the machine, the other killed Robert by hitting him over the head with a chisel, wrapped up carefully. After the killing they drove to a restaurant, had supper and planned disposal of the body.

They removed the boy's clothes and buried them. Then they took the body to a swamp outside of Chicago and put it under a culvert. There it was found later.

Detectives found a pair of glasses near the culvert. They traced the glasses to the manufacturer, then to the man who fitted them and sold the glasses to Leopold. Questioned, Leopold involved Loeb, who was taken into custody.

At first the two boys firmly denied any part in the crime and offered an alibi which was shattered. Continued examination, however, brought confession from both.

Now these two young men—members of rich families, well-educated in law and science, seemingly destined to great careers—have been in court. They are indicted on kidnaping and murder charges. They are held in jail, awaiting trial.

NEW CROP OF GRADUATES.—The annual commencement for the University of Toronto was held last week in Convocation Hall for the conferring of honorary degrees and for degrees in arts and agriculture. The photographs above show the women graduates leading the convocation procession from Simcoe Hall to Convocation Hall. This year the women students on whom degrees were conferred were 250, as compared to 238 men. The other photograph shows the Chancellor, Sir William Mulock, heading the academical procession, followed by President Sir Robert Falconer and Canon Cody, with Premier Ferguson and Attorney-General Nickle also in the procession.

BURNED TO DEATH.—Mrs. Aileen Pepall, wife of Mr. Harry Pepall and two of her children, Ned aged five, and Rosemary, aged three, were burned to death when their Summer home near Eastbourne, on Lake Simcoe, was destroyed by fire last week. The elder daughter, Aileen, on the right of the above photograph, and the maid, Nellie Black of Earls Court, escaped. Mrs. Pepall perished in a vain attempt to save her two youngest children, and had managed to get them to the roof of the veranda when they were all overcome and died.

It is a vertical-horizontal loop antenna, and tuning is accomplished by the dial, shown in the photo, which moves the vertical loop either right or left. This loop, in spite of the strongest interference from local stations, will at once bring in distant stations at the slightest turn of the dial.

MINING NEWS

PLATINUM DISCOVERY
 Platinum has been added to the list of minerals found in the Alice Arm district, according to the Herald. The discovery was made by Archie McPhail, who sent samples of ore worth for assaying. The samples were taken from the Rex property and the values obtained were, platinum $4.80 and gold $10.80 per ton. Previous assays had gone as high as $17 in gold. The ore carries 97 per cent silica.

This is, as far as is known, the only ore sample in the district to be assayed for platinum, and the results obtained will undoubtedly encourage prospectors to have similar assays taken.

The Rex property joins the David Copperfield on the south, which joins the Dolly Varden. The vein from which the samples were taken is about eight feet wide. It is practically touching the Dolly Varden railway, thus ensuring easy transportation of supplies and ore shipments. With a thirty-foot tunnel a depth of seventy-five feet can be obtained.

Not much development work has been done on the property, but it is the intention of Mr. McPhail to do considerable work this year, which will consist chiefly of surface stripping of the vein, and open cuts.

MANY ROTARIANS IN TORONTO TO-DAY
 Delegates Gathering For Opening of International Convention To-morrow
 Sessions Will Continue Until Friday; Growth of Clubs Rapid

Toronto, June 16 (Canadian Press).—Representing some twenty-five countries, with approximately 1,800 clubs, over 10,000 Rotarians are expected to be registered at convention headquarters here before the fifteenth annual convention of Rotary International opens at Exhibition Park to-morrow.

Sessions will be held morning and afternoon until closing day, Friday, June 20, when the convention will be brought to an end with a general farewell gathering and the visitors will return to their homes in all quarters of the civilized world, to practice and preach the Rotary philosophy. "He profits most who serves best" and "service above self."

RAPID GROWTH
 The growth of the Rotary movement has been rapid and in keeping with its high ideals. The first club was formed in Chicago nineteen years ago, and though there are now approximately 1,800 Rotary clubs there has never been a charter surrendered or one recalled. The National Association of sixteen clubs was formed in the United States in 1916, the second convention being held in Portland, Oregon, in the following year. In 1917 the International Association was formed at Duluth, Minn., to provide for charters for Winnipeg, Man., and London, England. Ten years later at the Los Angeles convention the constitution was again revised and the name Rotary International adopted.

In point of membership, the British Empire takes second place to the United States, with more than 15,000 Rotarians organized in about 250 clubs in the British Isles, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, South Africa, India and Bermuda. One hundred and fifty British clubs will be represented at the convention here.

BEST CITIZENSHIP
 "A philosophy of everyday living" is the definition given of "Rotary" and its aim is to inspire men to realize fully their individual capacity for 100 per cent citizenship in their province or state and nation; the square deal to their employees, customers, and business or professional association in Rotary clubs, to bring about understanding, goodwill and international peace. A Rotary club is described as "a group of representative business and professional men, one man from each distinct business or profession in a community." The intention is that each business shall have one worthy and active exponent in the Rotary club, and that the Rotary club, through its members, may have one direct and responsible avenue of approach to all those engaged in each business and profession in the community.

PROVINCIALS ATTEMPT TO SHOUT DOWN OLIVER CHARGES AGAINST M'RAE

Third Party Counsel At P.G.E. Inquiry Creates Uproar For An Hour As Premier Dramatically Produces Document To Support His Port Mann Townsite Charges; Oliver Shows Copy of Receipt For Over a Million Dollars Bearing Provincial Leader's Signature

Dramatically producing a bulky file of letters and documents, some of which only came into his possession last Friday to support his assertion that General McRae, the Third Party leader, made well over a million dollars out of the Port Mann Townsite deal, Premier Oliver had the spotlight in one of the most sensational political episodes in the political history of British Columbia at Pantages Theatre Saturday night. It ended in D. S. Tait, junior counsel for the Provincial Party during the P.G.E. inquiry being hustled from the platform struggling vigorously in the arms of a returned soldier who at the request of Carew Martin, the chairman, walked on the stage pinioned Mr. Tait around the neck with his arms at his side and carried him to the wings. It was the climax of an hour's excitement, which started at 11 o'clock, when Mr. Tait mounted the platform.

SHOUTED DOWN

Mr. Tait went on the stage on the Premier assenting to his request to be allowed to reply to his arguments. For fifteen minutes amid cheers and booms with both Premier Oliver and Mr. Tait standing side by side on the platform the Provincial Party supporter endeavored to present his side of the question. His attempts to review the Premier's observations met with protests from the Premier that he was misrepresenting what he had said, and cries of dissatisfaction from the audience at Mr. Tait's delay in reaching the point he promised to make. "Unable to get a hearing the third party man, who had repeatedly ignored protests from the chair, and the speaker that he had exceeded his privilege, stood his ground and refused to leave the platform. He afterwards took his seat amid booms from the audience.

SIGNED RECEIPT

Premier Oliver had previously produced a map of the Port Mann townsite which he used in his arguments. "I have a copy of a receipt given by General McRae in October, 1913, stating that he received from Mackenzie, Mann & Co. the sum of $1,340,000 in final settlement of the Port Mann townsite account." He also quoted correspondence alleging the General McRae was only acting for other parties who wished to be hidden in the transaction. "If it is true he only acted as a cover or shield for other parties," said the speaker with emphasis, "then that receipt is the foundation for a fraudulent claim to get release from the Province of the sum of $1,340,000. Either General McRae is not telling the truth or he was acting as a shield for Mackenzie and Mann to make money by false representation out of this Province. If General McRae acted as a shield then, who is he acting as a shield for now," said the Premier after an impressive pause. Colusion between the Bowers Government and Mackenzie and Mann for General McRae was charged by the Premier on valuations on Port Mann townsite and at this stage Mr. Tait reached over and grabbed the file.

"LEAVE IT TO TAIT"

A confident remark, "Leave it to Tait," from Mr. Tait himself when the speaker was effectively making a point was also greeted with applause from Mr. Tait's supporters and derisive laughter from the rest of the house.

"How did you get up there, anyway?" interjected one man near the front of the house, who after many calls for Mr. Tait to be thrown off the stage, at least rose to his feet highly excited and threatened to put the third party man out of the meeting.

"This is Oliver's meeting, we don't want to hear you. Get off and get out," came from another member of the audience, Attaboy, John. You tell me, you persistent call from an enthusiastic supporter.

"Mr. Tait advanced to the edge of the platform and made another attempt to speak. He held his hand in the air, as if to indicate a blessing, and the Premier stood by his side evidently amused. For a time Mr. Oliver and Mr. Tait tried both talking at once and the crowd joined in also.

"You are a good Liberal. You don't want to hear me," said Mr. Tait, singling out one member of the audience who told him to get off the stage.

ORDERED OFF

When Mr. Tait attempted to make another speech which made the audience restless again with one good natured heckler repeatedly calling out a request to "Let's have a little music," the chairman took a hand. With his hands cupped to make a megaphone, he ordered Mr. Tait off the stage and when he refused to go informed the audience that he would like to see a few brisk rounds he was prepared to step them with the third party advocate. A few minutes later Mr. Tait was ejected and Chief John Fry walked across the back of the stage to add the weight of his presence to any attempt to invade the stage again. The pianist took the opportunity of a lull to strike up the National Anthem just at midnight.

MR. OLIVER'S SPEECH

In the course of his address before touching on the Port Mann townsite Premier Oliver referred to Liberal legislation and his recent rate fight. The amendments to the Elections Act were referred to first. "We gave the ladies the franchise," said Mr. Oliver. "If anyone has any doubt of it if they will take the statute books and see the amendment their doubts will be settled, he said in answer to a protesting voice. We have made made imperation a practical impossibility. "Yes, there was imperation and plugging at the instance of the Conservative Party," he said to a heckler, "as if you want to know the name it was a Cockney Robinson at Galliano Island.

"We have put on the statute books the Mothers' Pensions Act. The widows and orphans of this Province are getting the advantage of a half million dollars in this respect and the municipalities are to a great extent getting relief from this measure.

URNS THE LAUGH

"We have made provision for deserted wives. I think we have a representative of them here to-night," he said, and turned a laugh on a lady heckler who had been keeping up a persistent comment.

Mr. Oliver discussed the Provincial Party's prospect by turning to problems which the Liberal or Conservative Party would have to face, remarking that he was sure it would be one of them.

THE PEACE RIVER

"In my belief the only relief is to extend the road to the Peace River district so that the immense areas of agricultural land can be developed to produce tonnage for the railway and make the land capable of producing what it is producing. The Province of British Columbia is not financially able to make that extension. I say that it is the duty of the Dominion Government to take cognizance of this fact because it is mostly Dominion land in that district and most of the people now there were placed there by the Dominion Government. It is the policy of the Provincial Government to bend
