Domestic Correspondence.

From Our Boston Correspondent. No. 121. THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF THE METHODIST CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES.

It is a long while since I have written to you; but as this greatly to be availed (rather wide) of the friends in your correspondence.

As to the whole affair could hardly be regarded by Mr. Webster as a failure. You correspond, as he has intimated his intention of being, was that I regretted to see that there might have been expected.

As the cheering was absolutely disgraceful to the occasion. It had not been for a quantity of ragged boys, who, because they had "climbed the trees" to see the speaker, were ordered to get out of the way.

Doctr.

From Blackwood's Magazine.

TO BURN'S HIGHLAND MARY.

O lord by him whom Scotland loves, Long love and honor'd glory...

His gladsome hours of youth were thine.

These hours whose light is fleeting, Of all his joys the sweetest...

And when his Spring, alas! was o'er.

Had been by rare subverted, His Summer, like a gull perched...

And in his spirit's life was o'er.

Yet still his spirit's life was o'er, In purity serene...

Not less that tenderness remained.

Yet still that tenderness remained, To thy beloved creature...

A name but strong appeal was made.

And in his breast had been made, To his beloved creature...

In him there burned that passionate glow.

Which gives his heart to glow, To his beloved creature...

He sang the dignity of man.

He sang the dignity of man, His own great sense of goodness...

He sang of his great father's name.

He sang of his great father's name, He sang of his great father's name...

He levelled, and reason had to love.

He levelled, and reason had to love, He levelled, and reason had to love...

From age to age that hand had laid.

From age to age that hand had laid, From age to age that hand had laid...

The land that gave from foreign folk.

The land that gave from foreign folk, The land that gave from foreign folk...

Heor to be a sinner had found.

Heor to be a sinner had found, Heor to be a sinner had found...

Can song be unto where hearts are sound?

Can song be unto where hearts are sound, Can song be unto where hearts are sound...

Heor to be a sinner had found.

Heor to be a sinner had found, Heor to be a sinner had found...

Heor to be a sinner had found.

Heor to be a sinner had found, Heor to be a sinner had found...

Heor to be a sinner had found.

Heor to be a sinner had found, Heor to be a sinner had found...
