PREFACE.

The game of Draughts has been held to have preceded Chess, of which it is supposed to be the root or source.

We have no authoritative record that Draughts was much practised in Europe till the middle of the sixteenth century.

The Introduction to the Game of Draughts (London, 1756) by Mr. William Payne, a teacher of mathematics, is the book on which our modern play is founded. In 1767 appeared "A Companion for the Draught-Player," by W. Painter, which is really an abbreviated copy of Payne's work. So also are the different editions of Hoyle. Until 1800 no other work on the game was issued by English writers, but in that year Joshua Sturges published his well known and most able work, "The Guide to the Game of Draughts."

J. Sinclair (Glasgow, 1832) was the next to issue a treatise on the game, and was the first of the Scottish school of writers. Then followed John Drummond's first edition (Falkirk, 1838) and W. Hay (Stirling, 1838).

In 1848 Mr. Anderson published at Lanark his first work, followed in 1852 by his celebrated "Second Edition."

Since then different authors have published books, and in 1855 the New York Clipper set the example, now followed by newspapers in all parts of the world, of giving a weekly column devoted to the game.

In 1878, Mr Robert McCulloch, of Glasgow, issued a revised edition of "Anderson's Second," but overlooked many well known errors, and credited other corrections he did give, to persons who had no right to their authorship.

On this account, I have been induced to prepare this work, which I hope will be found to have omitted very few known errors in Anderson's play and also be the first to present others to the public.

By his systematic arrangement of play, under distinct openings, Anderson did much to simplify the scientific study of the game. McCulloch further aids, by introducing the small dash (-) placed at the Black moves, to distinguish the moves of Black from White. To this I have also added the plan introduced by R. E. Bowen in his book on the "Cross," to drop those variations where white moves first, one line from the top, and still further to facilitate the working out of the games, numbers are given at the bottoms of the columns to indicate the variations from which they branch.

There are many variations in Anderson which present useful points of play, but have been cut out by later corrections; when I have not been able to preserve these in the body of the games by reversing the order of a few moves, I have added them at the ends of their respective openings, indicating the places where they vary from the body of the book by the signs *, †, ‡, &c.

Having often been asked the question, I will here say with Payne that "there is indeed one Secret boasted in the World which I cannot teach. Some Men pretend to an infallible Method, by which he that moves first shall win the Game; but no such Hero has it ever been my fortune to encounter, and no such do I expect to find. Nor can it be proved that the first Mover, has any considerable Advantage over a Person equally skilful with himself."

INSTRUCTIONS.

The game is played on a board of sixty-four squares of alternate colors, and with twenty-four pieces, called men, of adverse colors. It is played by two persons; the one having the twelve Black or Red pieces is technically said to be playing the first side, and the other having the twelve White to be playing the second side. The final object of each player may be thus briefly stated: The one endeavors to confine the pieces of the other in situations where they cannot be played, or both to capture and fix so that none can be played; the person whose side is brought to this state loses the game.

WHITE.

The men being placed as shown in the frontispiece, the game is begun by each player moving alternately one of his men along the diagonal on which they are situated. The men can only move forward, either to right or left, one square at a time, unless they have attained one of the four squares on the extreme line of the board (technically termed the "crown-head"), on which they become kings, and can move either forward or backward. The pieces take in the direction they move, by leaping over any opposing man that may be immediately contiguous, provided there be a vacant square behind it. If several men should be exposed by having open spaces behind them alternately, they may be all taken at one capture, and the capturing piece is then placed on the square beyond the last man.

To explain the mode of capturing by a practical illustration, let us begin by placing the men as for a game. You will perceive that Black, who always plays first, can only move one of the men placed on 9, 10, 11, or 12; supposing him then to play the man from 11 to 15, and White answering this by playing from 22 to 18, Black can take the White man on 18 by leaping from 15 to 22, and removing.

the captured piece from the board. Should Black not take the man on 18, but make another move—say 12 to 16, for instance—he is liable to be “huffed;” that is, White may remove the man (that on 15) with which Black should have taken, off the board for not taking. (See the 16th and 17th Laws.) When one party “huffs” the other in preference to compelling the take, he does not replace the piece his opponent moved, but simply removes the man huffed from the board, and then plays his own move.

It has already been stated that when a man reaches one of the squares on the extreme line of the board he is crowned, and becomes a king; but there is another point relative to this which it is necessary to explain. The man on thus reaching the crown-head finishes the move on being made a king, and cannot take any piece which may then be liable to capture. To exemplify this, take the following position as an illustration:

BLACK.

WHITE.

Black having to play takes the man on 26, by leaping from 22 to 31 and demands that his man should be crowned; but he cannot take the man on 27 at the same move, which he could do were his piece a king when it made the first capture. White, of course, will play 32 to 28, and recover the man lost. One of the great objects of the game, even at its very commencement, is to push on for a king. But it is unnecessary to dwell longer on the elementary part of the science, as playing through one of the games will do more in the way of teaching the rudiments of Draughts than the most elaborate theoretical explanation. In studying the games, you should have a representation of the numbered diagram on a small card; it is much preferable to fixing the numbers on the squares; and a little practice in this way will shortly enable you to dispense altogether with the card.

You should at first learn one or two variations for each side of every game in this work, and try to keep your opponent in those you have examined; but the moment he leaves off these, exercise your own judgment, not your memory. Remember there ought to be a motive for every move; the perpetually recurring question should therefore be, What will be the result of this one, that one, etc.? Apply this important question at every stage of the game; answer it by calculating the result of every plausible move at the point in question. After a few weeks' perseverance in this discipline, you will, if possessed of tolerable memory, find your skill greatly improved. Here we may remark that when you are learning the first side of any of the games you should keep the Black men next you; but when you are studying the second side, you will find it beneficial to turn the White men next you.

In the Games in this work, the left side numbers indicate the squares you play from; those on the right, those you play to; thus, 11-15 signifies—"Play from 11 to 15." The moves of Black are distinguished by the small dash between the figures. The Variations are numbered in natural succession in a line with the word "GAME," at the top of the page; and the indicators that refer to them follow each other in succession down along the columns. Thus, 1 leads to Variation 1; 2 leads to Var. 2, and so on with the rest. The Brace has its central point to the move at which the variations occur; see page 2 at 6th move of Game (or "trunk," as it is technically called), where it points to 23 19, showing that Vars. 2 and 3 take place at that point.

General Advice.

As to general advice relative to rules or systems for draught-playing, little or nothing could be learned from a volume of such instruction. The various standard modes of opening will be seen by reference to the accompanying games. According to Sturges, among the few general rules that can be given, you should bear in mind that it is generally better to keep your men in the middle of the board than to play them to the side squares; as, in the latter case, one-half of their power is curtailed. When you have once gained an advantage in the number of your pieces you increase the proportion by exchanges; but in forcing them you must take care not to damage your position. Accustom yourself to play slow at first, and, if a beginner, prefer playing with those who will allow an unconditional time for the consideration of a difficult position, instead of those who rigidly exact the observance of the strict law. Never touch a man without moving it, and do not permit the loss of a few games to ruffle your temper, but rather let continued defeat act as an incentive to greater efforts both of study and practice. When one player is decidedly stronger than another, he should give odds to make the game equally interesting to both parties. There must be a great disparity indeed, if he can give a man, but it is very common to give one man in a rubber of three games—that is, in one of the three games, the superior player engages to play with only 11 men instead of 12. Another description of odds consists in giving the drawn games—that is, the superior player allows the weaker to reckon as won all games he may draw. Never play with a better player without offering to take such odds as he may choose to give. If you find yourself, on the other hand, so superior to your adversary that you feel no amusement in playing even, offer him odds; and should he refuse, cease playing with him. Follow the rules of the game most rigorously, and compel your antagonist to do the same; without which, the game of Draughts would degenerate to mere child's play. If you wish to improve, play with better players in preference to such as you can beat; and take every opportunity of looking on when fine players are engaged. Never touch the squares of the Board with your finger; and accustom yourself to play your move off-hand when you have once made up your mind, without hovering with your fingers over the Board. While you play, do not fall into the vulgar habit of incessantly chattering nonsense ; and show no impatience at your adversary should he be a little slow. Finally, bear in mind what may well be termed the three golden rules to be observed in playing games of calculation :—Firstly, to avoid all boasting and loud talking about your skill ; secondly, to lose with good temper ; and thirdly, to win with silence and modesty.

In conclusion, we would strongly advise the student to study and master the theory and practice of the play embraced in the “ First,” “ Second,” “ Third,” and “ Fourth ” Positions. These endings, in different forms, are of very frequent occurrence, and ought to be thoroughly understood.

NAMES OF THE OPENINGS AND HOW FORMED.

All authors prior to the publication of "Anderson's Second" set down their games without any regular order, or attempt to indicate the best lines of play to the student, but in his Second edition Anderson arranged his games under their proper openings, well saying, "A certain opening undoubtedly constitutes a game, and all the subsequent varieties of play to which the opening leads, are merely variations of that game."

In this book, play is given on the following openings. Some of these had been known to most Scottish players by name prior to the publication of Anderson's books, but a brief account of their formation may be generally interesting.

1. The "Ayrshire Lassie," counting the play on both sides, is formed by the first three moves:—11-15, 24 20, 8-11

2. The "Bristol" is formed by the first three moves:—11-16, 24 20, 16-19.

3. The "Center" is formed by the first five moves:—11-15, 23 19, 8-11, 22 17, 15-18. So called because both play at the center of the board.

4. The "Cross" is formed by the first two moves:—11-15, 23 18. It is so named because the second move is played across the direction of the first.

5. The "Defiance" is formed by the first four moves: 11-15, 23 19, 9-14, 27 23. It is so named because it defies or prevents the formation of the "Fife."

6. "Denny" is formed by the first move: 10-14. So called by Drummond.

7. "Double Corner," is so named from its first move, 9-14, being from the one double corner toward the other.

8. "Dundee" is formed by the first move: 12-16. So called by Drummond.

9. "Dyke" is formed by the first three moves: 11-15, 22 17, 15-19. The name has probably arisen from the observed resemblance of many of the positions in this game to a "Dyke" (i. e., a fence or a stone wall), for at various stages the pieces are formed into straight lines.

10. "Edinburgh" is formed by the first move: 9-13. So named by Janvier.

11. "Fife" is formed by the first five moves: 11-15, 23 19, 9-14, 22 17, 5-9. It has been so called since 1847, when Wyllie, hailing from Fifeshire, played it against Anderson.

12. The "Glasgow" is formed by the first five moves: 11-15, 23 19, 8-11, 22 17, 11-16. It has generally been known by this name since Sinclair, of Glasgow, played it against Anderson at their match in Hamilton, in 1828.

13. The "Kelso" is formed by the first move: 10-15. So called by Drummond.

14. "Laird and Lady," is formed by the first five moves: 11-15, 23 19, 8-11, 22 17, 9-13. It was so called from being the favorite of Laird and Lady Cather, who resided in Cambusnethan, Lanarkshire. A more appropriate name is the "Mixed," as named by Drummond, because the men are often played behind those of the adversary.

15. "Maid of the Mill" is formed by the first five moves: 11-15, 22 17, 8-11, 17 13, 15-18. It is so named in compliment to a miller's daughter in Lanarkshire, who was an excellent player, and partial to this opening.

16. "The Old Fourteenth" is formed by the first five moves: 11-15, 23 19, 8-11, 22 17, 4-8. It was so named through being familiar to players as the 14th game in Sturges's original work.

17. The "Paisley" is formed by the first two moves: 11-16, 24 19. So called by Janvier.

18. The "Second Double Corner" is formed by the first two moves: 11-15, 24 19. Like the "Double Corner," it is so named because the first move of the second player is from the one double corner toward the other.

19. The "Single Corner," is formed by the first two moves: 11-15, 22 18. It is so named from the fact of these moves being played from one single corner toward the other.

20. The "Souter" is formed by the first five moves: 11-15, 23 19, 9-14, 22 17, 6-9. The game has been known by this name among players in Scotland for many years, and was so named owing to its being the favorite of an old Paisley shoemaker (Scottice, Souter).

21. The "Switcher" is formed by the first two moves: 11-15, 21 17. It is so called because Wyllie has used it so often to switch or beat players who had never examined it.

22. The "Whilter" is formed by the first five moves: 11-15,

23 19, 9-14, 22 17, 7-11. "Whilter" or "Wholter," (in Scotch) signifying an overturning or a change productive of confusion, is remarkably applicable to many of the unexpected changes which occur in this game.

23. The "Will of the Wisp" is formed by the first three moves :-- 11-15, 23 19, 9-13. It was so named by Mr. George Wallace, of Glasgow, from the peculiarity of some of the variations, where the player finds to his loss that he has been pursuing an ignis fatuus.

We need scarcely remark that the games formed by an odd number of moves refer to the first side, while those formed by an even number refer to the second. For instance, if one says that he played the "Ayrshire Lassie," "Defiance," "Cross," or "Single Corner," we at once understand that he played the second side of the games, while if he says he played the "Fife" or "Souter," he played the first side.

STANDARD LAWS OF THE GAME.

The Standard Board.

1. The Standard Board must be of light and dark squares, not less than fourteen, nor more than sixteen inches across said squares.
2. The Board shall be placed so that the bottom corner square on the left hand shall be black.

The Standard Men.

3. The Standard Men, technically described as Black and White, must be light and dark (say Red and White, or Black and White), turned, and round, not less than one inch, nor more than one and one fourth inches in diameter.
4. The Men shall be placed on the Black squares. (In England and this country they are often placed for play on the white squares by agreement; and because the Diagrams showing positions, etc., are usually made by type, the pieces and figures are placed on White squares in all Checker books.)

Placing the Men.

5. The Black men shall invariably be placed upon the real or supposed first twelve squares of the board; the White upon the last twelve squares.

Order of Play.

6. Each player shall play alternately with Black and White Men, and lots shall be cast for the color only once—viz. at the commencement of a match—the winner to have the choice of taking Black or White.

7. The first move must invariably be made by the person having the Black Men.

Time Limit to Moves.

8. At the end of five minutes (if the move has not been previously made), "Time" must be called in a distinct manner, by the person appointed for the purpose; and if the move be not completed on the expiration of another minute, the game shall be adjudged as lost through improper delay.

9. When there is only one way of taking one or more pieces, "Time" shall be called at the end of one minute; and if the move be not completed on the expiration of another minute, the game shall be adjudged as lost through improper delay.

Arranging the Men During a Game.

10. Either player is entitled, on giving intimation, to arrange his own or his opponent's pieces properly on the squares. After the first move has been made, however, if either player touch or arrange any piece without giving intimation to his opponent, he shall forfeit the game; but if it is his turn to play, he may avoid the penalty by playing that piece, if possible. (The editor would here observe, that in this country this rule is quietly ignored even in money matches when it is obvious that the offender was in fault only from forgetfulness, and that his intention was evidently to rearrange the piece or pieces in a more central position on their squares.)

Touch and Play.

11. After the pieces have been arranged, if the person whose turn it is to play touch one, he must either play it or forfeit the game.

When the piece is not playable, he is penalised according to the preceding law.

12. If any part of a playable piece be played over an angle of the square on which it is stationed, the play must be completed in that direction.

Capturing Play.

13. A capturing play, as well as an ordinary one, is completed whenever the hand is withdrawn from the piece played, even though two or more pieces should have been taken.

14. When taking, if a player removes one of his own pieces, he cannot replace it: but his opponent can either play or insist on his replacing it.

False or Improper Moves.

15. Either player making a false or improper move, shall instantly forfeit the game to his opponent, without another move being made.

The "Huff" or "Blow."

16. The "Huff" or "Blow" is, before one plays his own piece, to remove from the board any one of the adverse pieces that might or should have taken. But the "Huff" or "Blow" never constitutes a move.

17. The player has the power either to Huff, compel the take, or to let the piece remain on the board, as he thinks proper, (but it is the custom in this country to "compel the take."—EDITOR.)

Crowning the Men.

18. When a Man first reaches any of the squares on the opposite extreme line of the board it becomes a "King," and can be moved backwards or forwards as the limits of the board permit, (though not in the same play), and must be crowned (by placing a man on the top of it) by the opponent: if he neglect to do so, and play, any such play shall be put back until the Man be crowned.

Drawn Games.

19. A Draw is when neither of the players can force a Win. When one of the sides appears stronger than the other, the stronger party is required to complete the win, or to show, to the satisfaction of the umpire or referee, at least a decided advantage over his opponent within forty of his own moves—to be counted from the point at which notice was given—failing in which, he must relinquish the game as a draw.

Note.—It must be remembered, that when the forty moves have been called, it is sufficient if the stronger party in the forty moves shows “a decided advantage,” and it is not necessary for him to block or capture all his adversary’s pieces, as there are positions so intricate that he may not have been able to do so, even after making the very best moves at all points.—EDITOR.

Conduct of Players and Spectators.

20. Anything which may tend either to annoy or distract the attention of the players is strictly forbidden—such as making signs or sounds, pointing or hovering over the board, unnecessarily delaying to move a piece touched, or smoking. Any principal so acting, after having been warned of the consequence, and requested to desist, shall forfeit the game.

21. While a game is pending, neither player is permitted to leave the room without a sufficient reason, or receiving the other’s consent or company.

22. Any spectator giving warning, either by sign, sound, or remark on any of the games, whether played or pending, shall be ordered from the room during the match, and play may be discontinued until such offending party retires.

Match Games.

23. A match between equals, wins and draws to count, should consist of an even number of games, so that each player may have the first move the same number of times,

Enforcement of the Laws.

24. Either player committing a breach of any of these laws must submit to the penalty, and his opponent is equally bound to exact the same.

Unforeseen Disputes.

25. Should any dispute occur not satisfactorily determined by the preceding laws, a written statement of facts must be sent to a disinterested arbiter, having a knowledge of the game, whose decision shall be final.

THE THEORY OF THE MOVE

AND ITS CHANGES

PRACTICALLY EXPLAINED AND ILLUSTRATED.

When the men are so situated that, in the ordinary course of the play, you can force your opponent's pieces into a confined position, you have what is technically termed "the Move." "The Move" in many positions wins the game, in others it enables a draw to be secured, while in some instances, from the peculiarity of the situation, the player having the move loses the game. Hence the importance of the knowledge which enables one to judge whether or not he should seek to gain "the Move."

THE MOVE.

To have the move, signifies the occupying of that position on the board, which (in playing piece against piece, without regard to the others, till one square intervene between the pieces in each pair) will eventually cause the player who occupies that position to have the last play.

CALCULATION OF THE MOVE.

For convenience, the squares of the board are divided into two systems of four columns each. The columns of one system are those reckoned upward from Black's crown-head, that is, from the squares numbered 1, 2, 3, 4. The columns of the other system are those reckoned downward from White's crown-head, that is, from the squares numbered 29, 30, 31, 32.

Reckoning upward, the squares 1, 9, 17, 25; 2, 10, 18, 26; 3, 11, 19, 27; 4, 12, 20, 28, form the columns of one system, and reckoning downward, squares 29, 21, 13, 5; 30, 22, 14, 6; 31, 23, 15, 7; 32, 24, 16, 8, form the columns of the other system. The following may more clearly show what is meant by two systems, the figures in ordinary type showing the columns of one system, and those in heavier type the columns of the other:

	32		31		30		29
28		27		26		25
	24		23		22		21
20		19		18		17
	16		15		14		13
12		11		10		9
	8		7		6		5
4		3		2		1

The columns of each system being situated alternately between those of the other, it is evident that one system is the reverse of the other.

When the two players have an equal number of pieces it is obvious that the total number of pieces must always be even.

Now, as an even number can only be divided into two even or two odd numbers, it is clear that if the pieces be counted in each of the two systems separately, the numbers will in the two cases be both even or both odd.

In the course of the play each move will be out of one system into the other, and will therefore make one system count one more, and the other one less; so that if both systems were before odd, they will now be both even, and after another move they will again be both odd, and so on alternately, according to the player whose turn it is to play.

To know if you have the move WHEN IT IS YOUR TURN TO PLAY, apply the following rules :

RULE I.—Add together all the pieces, both Black and White, in either system of squares, and if their sum is odd you have the move : but if even, your opponent has the move.

As an illustration, take the following position :

You play Black, and have the move, because either system contains an odd number of pieces ; one contains one, the other three. (To aid the beginner in mastering the idea of the two systems into which the board is divided, we have distinguished the one system from the other by a series of dots.)

ABBREVIATION OF THE RULE.

Add together all the single pieces and all the single vacant squares on the rows of either system, and if their sum is odd, you have the move ; but if even, you have not.

Let it be observed that you will find the single pieces only on such rows of the set as contain one piece, and the single vacant squares only on such as contain three pieces. You omit all rows of the set which contain two or four pieces, because an even number does not affect the result. In using this shortened form of the rule, you will never count more than ONE on any given row: and THREE will be the greatest number in the whole set when you have the move, and FOUR when you have not.

To have the move is often an advantage, though to have it in some cases may occasion the loss of the game.

As an illustration, take the following position :

You play White first, and have the move, but lose the game, through black forcing your man on 9 into 5, a confined position. The Black king has then the move on your king, though you have the move if all the pieces are counted.

An exchange usually alters the move; consequently, when you wish to obtain the move, make such an exchange as will alter it.

Take the following position as an illustration: Place Black men on 13 and 17, and White men on 26 and 30. You play Black and have not the move ; but play 17-22, white takes 26 17, you retake by 13-22, and regain the move.

In every single exchange of one for one, when only one of the capturing pieces remains on the board, the move is changed.

To find what kind of exchanges do or do not change the move. apply the following rules :

RULE II.—When the sum of the capturing pieces is even and in reverse systems, and the captured pieces are odd on each side, the move is changed ; but if the capturing pieces are in the same system, the move is not changed.*

Place the following as an illustration : Black man on 11 and King on 26 ; White man on 22 and king on 7. You play White first and have not the move : take 7 16, Black takes 26-17, and you gain the move, because the capturing piece on 7 is in reverse system to the capturing piece on 26. Place also the following : Black man on 15 and king on 26 ; White man on 22 and king on 10. You play White first and have not the move. Take 10 19, and black takes 26-17, and this exchange does not change the move, because the capturing piece on 10 is in the same system as the capturing piece on 26.

RULE III.—When the sum of the capturing pieces is even and the captured pieces are even on each side, the move is not changed.

RULE IV.—When the sum of the capturing pieces is odd and the captured pieces are even in each system, the move is changed ; but if the captured pieces are odd the move is not changed.

As a summary of the illustrations of the exchanges which do or do not change the move, the following will be found of universal application in the most complex positions :

RULE V.—Add together all of the capturing pieces in both systems, and if they are the same as the captured pieces in each system (that is, both odd or both even) the move is not changed ; but if they are reverse to each other (one odd and the other even), the move is changed.

* You must apply the rule at the squares the pieces capture and are captured from.

A very full and scientific exposition of the Theory of the Move was published by John Paterson in the Second Edition, but as many players complained that it was too abstruse and complex for them to understand, he prepared the foregoing for Henry Spayth's American Draught Player. In the "Game of Draughts" Mr. Spayth gives the following concise rule, credited to Alonzo Brooks, of Buffalo. I have always found it sufficient for practical purposes, and use no other :

CALCULATION OF THE MOVE.

For this purpose the squares of the board are divided into two systems of four columns each.

The columns of one system being those numbered upwards from squares 1, 2, 3, 4.

The columns of the other system being those numbered downwards from squares 29, 30, 31, 32.

RULE.

Add together all the pieces in either system, and if their sum is odd, it being your play, you have the move. If even, your opponent has the move.

THE CHANGES OF THE MOVE.

RULE.

Add together all of the capturing pieces in both systems, and if they are the same as the captured pieces in each system (that is both odd or both even), the move is not changed; but if they are reverse to each other (one odd and the other even) the move is changed.

Mr. William R. Bethell, of Philadelphia, also suggests that when one side has a man superiority over the other, he has in practice always found it sufficient to disregard or throw out the extra man, and proceed as above.

LIST OF CORRECTIONS TO EARLIER EDITIONS.

Although Anderson in his FIRST EDITION was the first author to publish names to his openings, he still followed the old plan and divided them into games, with wins and draws mingled promiscuously, so that "they are so far displaced and disarranged that it is impossible, without incalculable labour either to find out the varieties of play that are given under the same opening, or to connect them together in anything like order."

THE
SELECTED PROBLEMS.

Comprises 421 quarto pages, embracing 1030 critical positions by 262 players of Great Britain and America.

The problems are printed distinctly, on diagrams three inches square, and four are given on each page. The solutions have about 3000 variations, and average 40 moves each. Over 300 games from all the standard openings are given, each game ending in a problem.

The work contains besides an alphabetical index of the 262 authors, a numerical index of the whole number of problems originated and compiled by the celebrated player and author, Mr. R. E. Bowen, of Millbury, Massachusetts. The Laws of the Game; Names of Openings; Theory of the Move; Signs; Instructions, and an Exercise on the squares of the board, are also given.

The whole work is printed in large plain type, and weighs 41 ounces.

Price $3.00, Postage Prepaid to Any Address. If players desire book sent by the Registered mail, accompany remittances with 10 cents in stamps for the Post Office fees. Make remittances by Draft on New York, Money Order or Registered letter. Players of Great Britain can remit to ROBERT MCCALL, No. 145 Dundas street, City, Glasgow, Scotland. American players can address the compiler as follows:
