Communications. A separate wire system has been considered necessary by the Japanese Police, and the system has its own pole lines, cables and terminal equipment and performs its own installation, operation and maintenance.

b. The main lines operate from the central office in Tokyo to each prefecture and between prefectures. The secondary lines connect police departments and police stations. The branch lines connect police stations with police boxes and booths.

c. Although the central telephone operating office is located in the Ministry of Home Affairs in Tokyo, there are six control offices which are located at Sendai, Nagoya, Osaka, Hiroshima, Fukuoka, and Kagawa. Repeaters are located at these control offices to amplify the signals for the long line circuits. Smaller telephone switchboards are located at each prefectural police office to handle the prefectural lines and tie them into the long distance lines.

d. Each prefecture has its own police wire net work which it owns and operates but all are connected with the national system. The Home Ministry has followed the policy of supervision only, making sure that there is a complete coverage. Inter-island circuits are routed through submarine cables, leased from the Board of Communications. It is the policy for each prefecture to handle its own repair and maintenance, and it is the function of the Home Ministry to provide maintenance and material for the national trunk circuits. Cable and wire needed by the prefectures are not now easily available and some prefectures are endeavoring to secure such material on their own initiative. The procurement of poles has not been a problem. The prefecture also procures switchboards and telephones.

e. The main axis of the telephone trunks runs from Tokyo to Fukuoka. The prefectural switchboards which lie along this route have from two to seven circuits between them. Between Tokyo and Saitama and Sendai and Aomori there are two circuits between switchboards. All other prefectural switchboards are connected by one trunk only. At present there is no trunk connection for long distance calls west of Osaka but individual prefectures have communication within the prefecture and with adjacent prefectures. The radio network is used to supplement telephone communication.

POLICE AFFAIRS SECTION

I. Matters pertaining to encouragement of spirit among police officials.

With the critical food situation as the nucleus, the public condition have become extremely serious and the preservation of peace and order within the country has become increasingly difficult and of grave importance, but the powers of the police will be executed in accordance with government policy. Moreover, support of public opinion must be obtained and be carried out actively and decisively. The police officials will faithfully realize the limits of the powers of the police authorities. They will take strict actions within these limits and carry out their duties in such a way that there will be no regrets.

II. Matters pertaining to the maintenance of guns for police use.

In regards to guns for police use, they should be requested from the related sources and every effort must be made for maintenance but due to various circumstances it may be difficult to quickly realize this. Then again, the number of guns actually in possession of the prefectural offices are, according to special lists, unevenly distributed so each district will besides contacting each other and cooperating, endeavor to equalize this by proper methods and getting by with the minimum number of guns for security.

III. Matters pertaining to thoroughness of inspectors' education
(Police Bureau Education Section of the Home Ministry)

If the entire police can rightfully bring the guiding principle under their own power, the peoples police can be realized. Now that the police inspectors' system and the educating organ is established I believe you are doing your utmost in inspection and educational matters. Reward and punishment shall be strictly carried out in order to educate the main staff personnel. Thus by dismissing the undependable ones, and praising the worthy ones the education shall be carried out. The lower subordinates must be so educated that they can acquire personality and be able to lead and supervise, their subordinates. Re-education must be carried out and plans should be formulated to comply with the actual state of affairs to give them proper ability to exercise the functions of the police. I hope you will do your utmost for the advancement of "police morale" for the sake of performing duty, which is the chief/of the police.

IV. Matters concerning the control of the mass movement of the people
Public Safety Section

Under the present social trends there are occasions for mass movement of people in regards to labor stifes, good shortages and farmers' movements and henceforth in the future it is expected that such movements will be quickly taken up in every region throughout Japan. However, in regards to the control of the police over these movements, as related previously, it is not the intention of the police to restrain these mass movements but on the contrary to encourage the orderly development of such demonstrations. With the support of the people, decisive pressure must be brought to bear on those who insist on unlawful or off the track conduct. It is the desire of the police to see the complete fulfillment in the maintenance of just social order.

Needless to say, it is obvious that only through the support of honest public opinion that police control can be realized fully and especially is this true when concerned with the control of mass movement.

In this sense from the standpoint of control of mass movements, the police should make the chirmen and participants aware of police desires in maintaining an orderly gathering. Thereby obtaining full understanding and cooperation. It is also the desire of the police to see to it that those who disregard the police measures and conduct unlawful movements and actions are dealt with, strictly.

V. Matters concerning the control of unlawful conduct accompany labor strifes. (Public Safety Section)

Matters concerning the control of political parties, societies and other groups.

1. In regards to the completion and strengthening of supervision.

For the complete realiztion and enforcement of the directive issued by General Headquarters on 4 January of this year (which abolished certain political parties, organizations and associations) the 101st Imperial decree was promulgated on 28 February of this year and later amended on 12 June. Taking into consideration the purpose of this amendment it is time for a complete control and strengthening of the supervision system, so that this directive may be enforced with the utmost efficiency.

2. In regards to the main points of the supervision.

The main points stressing supervision are articles I, IV, and paragraph 1 of article V of the Imperial decree. However, the main aim of supervision is not to punish the people but rather to aid them from committing violations of the laws. Therefore, all of the people should be given a thorough understanding of the law orders and the police themselves must have a full knowledge of them. Furthermore in regards to supervision, it is important that based on Allied Headquarters' orders the police be prudent in their line of duty so as not to endanger or impede the people's rights of assembly speech and religion.

In regards to the control of secret societies

As secret sovieties are absolutely prohibited, it is of utmost importance that strict control be taken along this line. If, at any time there arises any rumors of the organization of a society of such nature, the police must strictly investigate these groups and make clear the purpose of the organization.

In regards to the amendment of Imperial decree 101.

In regards to this main point of the amendment was the fact that it made more clear the doubtful points of the executive procedure of Allied orders. It increased the sphere of authority of the Home Minister to dissolve organization (TN: printing obscure here at this point). Supervision by the Home Minister must be taken so that there is no violation of Imperial decree 101.

VI. Matters pertaining to temporary closing of High Class restaurants and cafes.

In regards to the temporary closing of exclusive restaurants and cafes, it was decided upon by a cabinet meeting of 7 June to solve the food crisis. The detailed principles in closing the restaurants and cafe was decided by the parliamentary vice-ministers on a certain date and the policy was clearly revealed in an order issued by the Director of the Police Bureau to the various governors. The officials are not only expected to comply but also to adapt the many details with the local situation in supervising this matter. Every effort should be made to achieve success in the supervision of this matter by realizing the situation within one's jurisdiction as well as using discretion in the matter.

VII. Matters pertaining to the collection of civilian arms.

Based upon an order by the Supreme Commander of the Allied Powers, all arms held by civilians were collected since the termination of the war. In regards to this collection of weapons, there were some people who contended that a new law was necessary. Therefore, with the consent of the Supreme Command of the Allied Powers, an Imperial ordinance was proclaimed on 3 June which prohibited the possession of any guns, gunpowder and swords. Although the detailed regulations are to be announced on 17 June necessary preparations are being undertaken at present over the question of permitting retention of swords. It this is settled, complete cooperation is expected of the people in the enforcement of this Imperial ordinance.
