USER STORY

When I notice a visual error while reading an article on mobile, I want a way to flag that it needs a review or update so that I can help without having to make the immediate leap to editing articles.

CORE INTERACTION FLOW

1. Reading an article and seeing an that a table is displaying strangely in the article.
2. Open article overflow menu to report an issue.
3. Completes a short reporting form (which gets posted to the article's Talk page), with an option to submit a screenshot and black out/highlight content in the screenshot in support of visual reporting.
4. Receive confirmation that the report was successfully posted.
