Dedication

To Edward Grandison Smith, President of the Alumni Association of West Virginia University, we, the Junior Class, dedicate this Monticola as the highest honor within our power to bestow.

Monticola

Edward Grandison Smith

EDWARD GRANDISON SMITH was born near the present village of West Milford, Harrison County, West Virginia, April 8, 1868. His paternal ancestry is English, French and Scotch; his maternal, German and Scotch. He came of Revolutionary stock on both sides and his parents and grandparents have taken a prominent part in the development of our country, at all times exhibiting those characteristics of fairness, courage and strong convictions for what is right, so common to many of the noted men who participated in the struggle for independence and in the building of a great nation.

Mr. Smith attended the common schools of his native county. Early in his "teens," he successfully passed an examination for a No. 1 teacher's certificate and taught school. Later, he entered the West Virginia University Preparatory School at Morgantown where he early distinguished himself as an orator and parliamentarian and was, over a distinguished and worthy senior, now of international fame, elected president of the leading literary society while yet a "Prep." He was a member of the joint committee of the literary societies which composed the University's first college yell, "Rah, Rah, Rhu, W, V, U, Sis, Boom, Bah, Tiger," and selected for her colors "old gold and blue." He remained at the University four years and graduated with the class of 1889. He then entered the Washington and Lee University Law School at Lexington, Virginia, where he became president of the Washington Literary Society and in 1892, he received the degree of LL.B. and was class orator. His college career was mainly marked by indefatigable industry and high scholarship. While at the University of West Virginia, he was called upon many times to uphold the colors of the University in oratorical contests in which he was generally victorious. For Washington and Lee University, as its representative, in 1892, in the Southern Inter-collegiate Oratorical Association contest, at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tennessee, he won first place for his school and was awarded the Association's gold medal. He frequently quotes his favorite professor, that remarkable instructor, teacher, statesman, lawyer, John Randolph (Old Ran) Tucker.

For the encouragement of students of inadequate means, it should be stated that Mr. Smith, at the beginning of any school year at the University, never had in sight more than sufficient means to complete that year's work and he made his last year at the West Virginia University on one hundred dollars, the proceeds of a horse, the last property left to his parents by the flood of '88. To Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Virginia, he traveled as far as Harper's Ferry on a cattle train to save expenses and returning from Vanderbilt University with the Southern medal of gold set with diamonds and rubies, he was stranded at Staunton without sufficient means to get back to Lexington where the student body and faculty of Washington and Lee, the brass band of V. M. I. and nearly the whole town awaited at the station the arrival of his train to receive their victorious representative. Happily at Staunton, without missing his train, Mr. Smith was loaned transportation by Judge McLaughlin, President of the Board of Visitors of Washington and Lee, who happened to be holding court in Staunton at the time, although he had never seen Mr. Smith before and knew nothing of the reception awaiting him.

Monitrola

In 1892, he was admitted to practice law at Clarksburg, West Virginia, where he has ever since resided. His devotion to the law, singly and unremittingly, not permitting anything to break off or interfere with the engagement of his life, and his success in equity cases and his efficient management of important jury trials soon made him one of the recognized leaders of the state bar. Intellectually, he is of great accuracy and quickness in his mental movements; a most acute reasoner and a master of an exact and perspicuous and oft-times glowing style. He is considered by his associates the "most eloquent speaker in the Province." His practice includes nearly every variety of litigation that arises in the state and federal courts. He is known as "the people's lawyer."

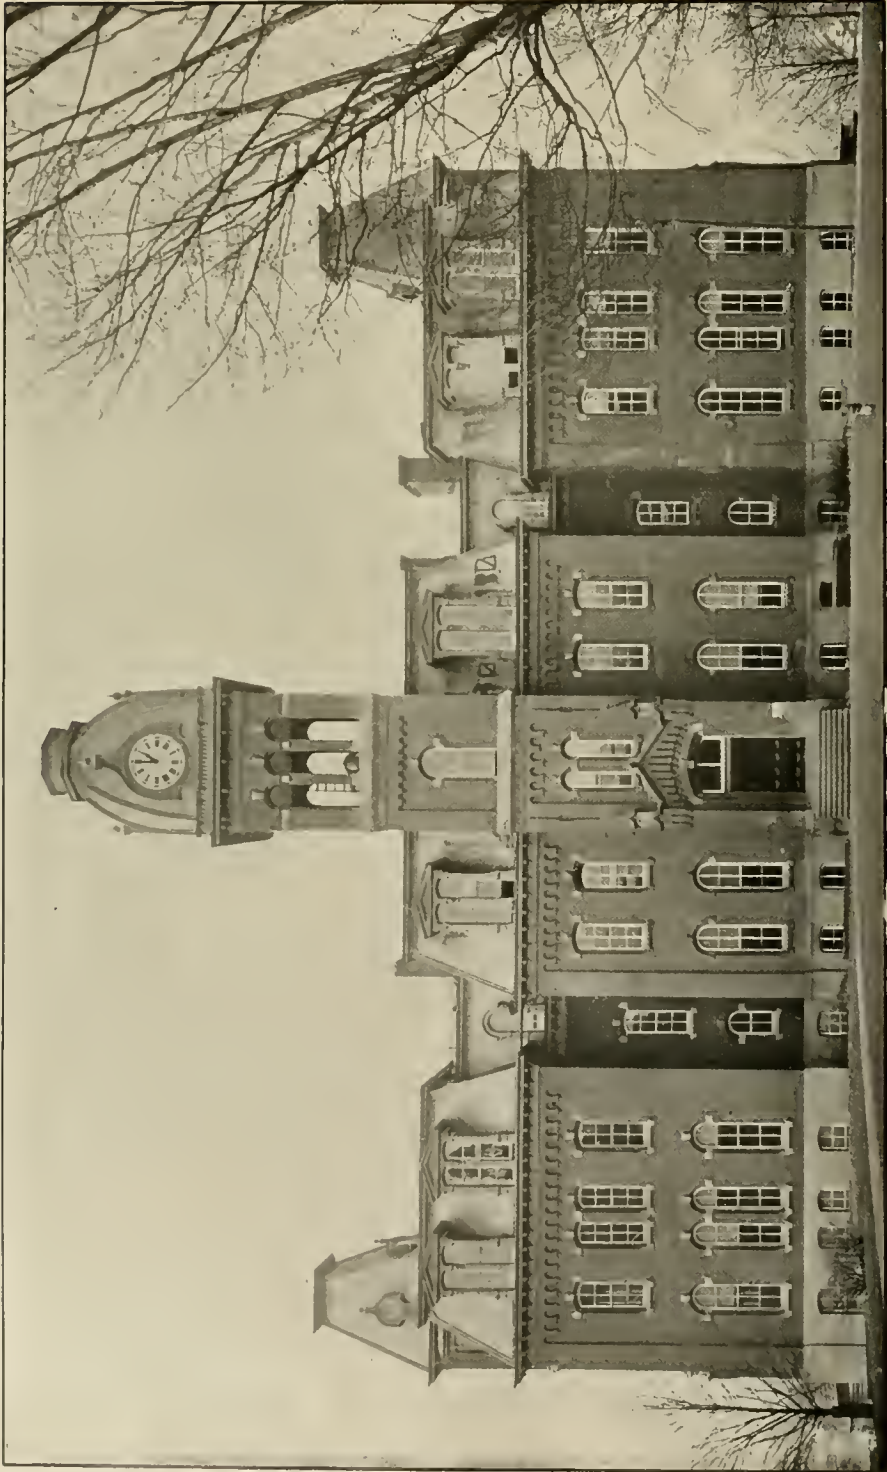

From time to time, he has been called upon to act as special judge in the counties of Monongalia, Marion and Harrison, sometimes to hold a special term and sometimes to hold a regular term, in the absence of the regular judge, but has always declined to be a candidate for public office with a single exception and that in the line of his profession. In 1912, he was nominated for Judge of the Supreme Court of Appeals of West Virginia by the Democratic party, after having been unanimously indorsed by the members of a number of the county bars without regard to politics.

In recognition of his scholarship, learning and ability, Salem College, in 1912, conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

In 1913, Mr. Smith was elected president of the West Virginia University Alumni Association and in 1914, contrary to his wishes and over his objections, he was re-elected. As president of the Association, he has been actively and untiringly engaged in the organization of University Clubs, until now there is a University Club in nearly every large center of population in the state. He has done more to organize the Alumni and create real University interest, during his term of office, than was done by all of his predecessors. In the interest of the University, he recently appeared before the State Board of Trade and delivered an address on the "Needs of the University" which met with state-wide approval. This address was recognized as a masterpiece, not only within the state but beyond its borders, prominent educators from other states having requested copies of this address and having commented favorably upon it. He has, at all times, favored a permanent foundation such as a mill tax for the University and, as a result of his efforts, no doubt it will be only a matter of time until the University will be permanently financed by some such means as a separate, continuing mill tax. He has given liberally of his means and time to the support of the University and its interests. He has been untiring in his efforts to secure a greater University, as he says, "not the largest, but in all its appointments, the most perfect attainable." He has done more for his alma mater than any other man not officially connected with it and he well deserves the recognition which has come to him.

Monticola

To those who love the Mountain State
And wish for her success and fame ;
To those who love the Gold and Blue
And wish for it a glorious name :
Greetings.

DR. FRANK BUTLER TROTTER

Following the resignation of Dr. Thomas E. Hodges, Dr. Trotter, the Dean of the Arts and Sciences College, was elected by the Board of Regents to serve as Acting-President. He is a natural leader of men, and well suited to bear the responsibilities and duties of his office. Under the supervision of Dr. Trotter, the University is making great progress and its whole machinery is running with perfect smoothness.

PROFESSOR DAVID DALE JOHNSON

When Dr. Trotter became Acting-President of the University, the duties of the deanship of the Arts and Sciences College devolved largely upon Professor David Dale Johnson. Careful of details, methodical and conscientious, Professor Johnson is well fitted to direct and guide the young men and women who come under his charge.

DEAN CLEMENT ROSS JONES

Here is a man of the University, for the University and by the University. We can only suggest here all that he means to the College of Engineering and to the whole institution. He holds such a standard of efficiency, that graduates from his department are in great demand by the best known engineering companies.

DEAN E. DWIGHT SANDERSON

Dean Sanderson is a man who has spent much time and effort to make West Virginia University a better institution. To the College of Agriculture his untiring service and original methods are invaluable. His influence is strongly felt throughout the State among those with whom he has come into contact either in class work or through the extension department of the University.

DEAN HENRY CRAIG JONES

Assuming control of the affairs in the Law College last July, Dean Jones has done much to place that department of the University among the foremost of its kind in the country. A man of good executive ability, and experienced both in the practice and teaching of law, he has aroused an interest and enthusiasm among the students which is conducive to their personal welfare and the future success of the Law College.

DEAN JOHN NATHAN SIMPSON

Dr. Simpson is well known and loved, not only as a faculty member, but as a real friend of the student body. He is a man of broad influence, and under his supervision the Medical School has come to be recognized as one of the high class schools of the country.

LIEUTENANT RICHARD WETHERILL

West Virginia University has at the head of her Military Department a man who possesses all the qualities of a true soldier and a gentleman. His striking personality and character command the respect of the entire student body. The high grade of efficiency attained by the Cadet Corps this year is due in a large measure to the efforts of Lieutenant Wetherill.

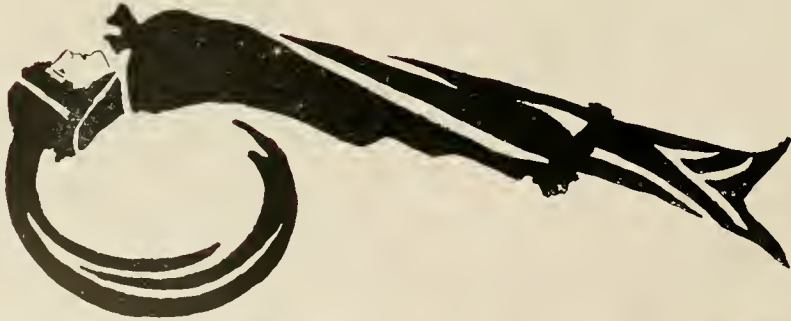

DR. WAITMAN T. BARBE

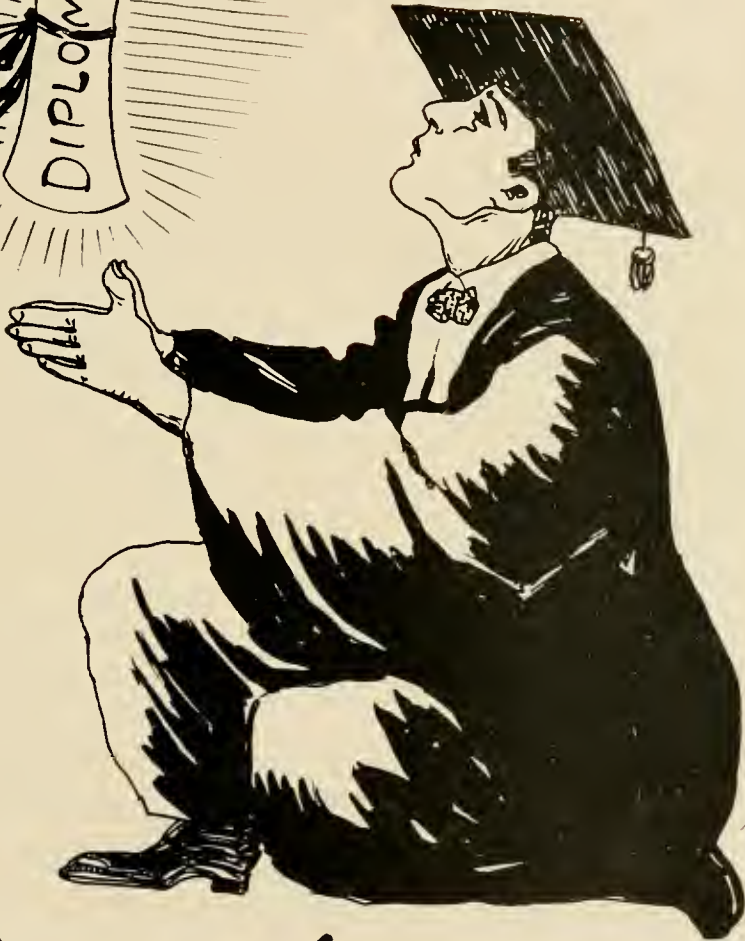

Dr. Barbe is a man of letters, a poet and scholar, a much beloved instructor, an educator of wide reputation and a speaker of note. On account of his charming personality and his sympathetic interpretation of literature, his classes are always a real delight. Besides being Professor of English, Dr. Barbe is also the Director of the Summer School.

DIRECTOR LOUIS BLACK

A rare executive ability, an unique personality, an ever ready wit, and a jovial disposition are some of the qualities which characterize Director Black. In a comparatively very few years, he has developed the School of Music in all its departments until now its high standard and worth are widely appreciated.

Senior History

EARLY in the fall of nineteen hundred and eleven the Class of '15 made its appearance at the University. Never was there such a memorable year. Besides our advent, there were also the festivities occasioned by the inauguration of "Tommy" Hodges, when all alumni returned to do honor to their Alma Mater. Then there was also that wonderful defeat of our old rival, Washington and Jefferson. But the weeks were not all festive ones, there were times when there were hostilities waged with the Sophs. While there was no class rush there were many skirmishes throughout the year.

The school year of 1912-13 opened with a series of attempts to subdue the verdant Freshman but their denseness withstood all our efforts. Their muscle exceeded their brains.

In our Junior year came that delightful Prom, when the Seniors were our guests. This year passed all too swiftly and now we are staid and dignified Seniors. No, not all staid, for we have been active in football, baseball and track. We have representatives in the Christian Associations and in all the activities of school life. So with the feeling that we have been successful in our student days, we go forth with assurance to assume the responsibilities of the future.

Junior Officers

President	E. J. KERSTING
Vice President	ROSS TUCKWILLER
Secretary	MARGARET MORRIS
Treasurer	MARVIN RAHL
Historian	FLORA FURBEE
Inter-Class Council	GEORGE CAMPBELL

EUGENE J. KERSTING

"Red" is our president, you probably know,
And a basketball star of much note.
He surpasses them all in twirling the sword,
And warbling commands from his throat.

MYRA NEFFLIN

Of all the girls in the Junior Class
There're few so frank as this clever lass.
There's a smile for all and a frown for none,
For Myra's the friend of everyone.

MARVIN E. RAHL

"Skinny," "Rabbit," "Oyster" Rahl,
The grandstand cries as he carries the ball;
But not on the gridiron he made his best
play,
But a B. & O. train, so all football men say.

A. R. GROVES

Slow but sure, sound and steady,
Artie Groves is sometimes heady.
He studies hard and knows quite well
That knowledge one can't buy nor sell.

ELSIE MAE NORMAN

Quiet and sedate,
Thoughtful and prudent,
Elsie Norman
Is a very good student.

WILLIAM A. RHELDAFFER

Billy can play on the mandolin;
He bounces around as he plays,
And bounces into the hearts of his friends
By his many eccentric ways.

KATE MEREDITH

Calm, sedate and artful one,
Kate Meredith by name.
The pictures that she drew of some
Will bring this book it's fame.

DONALD C. TAYLOR

All hail to the infallible Don,
With airs of superiority he puts on.
He diffuses his knowledge
Thru the entire college;
In argument he seldom is wrong.

HAROLD W. MERRITT

Old Merritt, Old Chappy, old boy,
Poor Johnny will always annoy.
Little time he hath
For the study of math,
And to ladies he's a great source of joy.

W. C. PHILLIPS

Behold Buchannon's big brass band,
The triumph of our modern age!
With manners eloquent and grand,
This youth demands the centre stage.

JAMES PAUL RUSK

Paul tried first the mysteries of law,
But his professors could not agree.
He found that he'd made a dreadful mistake;
Now, while resting, he's taking "A-G."

PAUL WARDEN

This is our grinning Paul Warden.
Does he study? Well, I hate to say.
But he does the fox trot to perfection
And in the presence of ladies he's gay.

W. H. BOONE

W. H. Boone with good looks blest;
He declared a vacation to give him a rest,
Said his grandma was dead,
Stayed away from his "med."
Yet "Doc" Simpson still calls him his best.

JESSIE HALL

Fair as a flower, accomplished well, we know,
Is our friend Jessie, who does not care for things of long ago.
Still in her classes faithful,
Always with a jolly face,
Soon in domestic science
She'll have a better place

HERBERT GRADEN HEADLEE

This striking young man from New Mar-
tinsville hails
And will soon be a great engineer.
He's witty; popular; in class seldom fails
And the ladies all think he's a dear.

OLIVE WEAVER

Checks of pink and lips like cherry,
Teeth of pearl and eyes so merry;
Auburn locks has this fair maiden,
With dates ahead she's always laden.

J. C. ARNOLD

Since studying law became a habit
In the right wing of Woodburn Hall,
"Tubal" tho he hated to do it,
In his classes, led most all.

JOHN DUNN FARMER

John Farmer, the old man of fate,
Came to us when he made the "All-State;"
And it sure was a shame
When his shoulder went lame;
For John was some tackle in "9-8."

HARRY FERGUSON

Harry Ferguson, modern mechanic,
Managing Monticola made his mistake;
Misled, misguided, mistaught, misdirected,
Mere mortal could no more miscalculate.

JULIAN L. HAGEN

Julian is a brilliant boy,
His father's pride, his mother's joy.
He studies hard and makes a grade
That puts his classmates in the shade.

GEORGE P. AYERS

For men may talk and then be silent,
But he runs on forever.
On points of law, he works bis jaw
And his wit is almost clever.

GEORGE MORROW

Morrow comes from old Cornell,
At the short stop's job does quite well;
Though far from a grind,
Yet he's of studious mind,
And in his classes he's wont to excell.

S. B. WILSON

And still he talked
And still the wonder grew,
That one could talk so much
And say so little, too.

JOHN NEIDERMYER

"Neidy," from Benwood, a medical "stude."
A "killer" with the girls 'till "she" had them
"tabooed."
He worked mighty hard for his "W.V."
And someday we'll hear of "Neidy" M.D.

J. J. MATHISON

"A comely lad," fair of face,
Gallant, brave, and full of grace,
Matty is a legal star
Who'll make his mark before the bar.

CALLIE C. NUZUM

This fair maid whom we call Callie,
Is a mistress of her art.
Who would hesitate to wager
She'll find her way to some man's heart?

PAUL M. FULCHER

Bright and unsophisticated,
As a Latin shark he's rated;
In time to come he'll surely be,
A master in music and chivalry.

GEORGE A. CAMPBELL

Of "Bonnie George Campbell" we dare not write,
For poets long dead have spoke his fame;
Somnolent, reposeful, indifferent to "flunks," He's our "Bonnie George Campbell," the same.

FLORA FURBEE

Flora Furbee, better known as "Fliss"
Besides knowing of Vogue and history
Has another purpose in life—'tis this,
To keep her future a mystery.

CHARLES R. HUFFMAN

This staid, quiet, studious lad
Hails from Fairmont town;
In engineering he's bound to rise,
For "Johnny" couldn't hold him down.

JAMES BREINIG RILEY

James Breinig Riley, son of T. S.,
Democrat, Pendleton's protege;
His hair and his chin are his mother's gift,
His political genius he got from O'Shea

LUTHER OSCAR GRIFFITH

Griff's a trackman of great renown;
There's no end the offices he has held down.
As captain of track and class president
Four years could be no more profitably spent.

C. R. SMITH

Now there're Smiths and Smiths, but this is Carlyle,
One of the very best of them all.
He's popular both with ladies and men;
Also will manage the gridiron next fall.

Moulicola

JOHN DEXTER

From Long Island, N. Y. blond Johnny came,
For even there he heard of Old Gold and
Blue's fame;
But he tired of the threng,
'Vine, woman and song,
And next year he'll add "Ag." to his name.

WILLIAM WOODYARD

Billy-Willy Weak-Chin,
The moving picture boy,
Goes to all the picture shows,
From which he gets great joy.

SARA M. REINER

Yes, her name is Sara Reiner;
In domestic science, dancing, art,
No one can outshine her,
For she always does her part.

L. C. GIBSON

Here's long, lean, lanky "Slats,"
A walking specimen of anti-fats;
A worthy young man of good repute.
Eccentric and wise and a joker to boot.

W. R. GORDON

As comedian, tragedian, or electrician,
A star is Ralph Gordon in all.
At any practice he's a magician
And will respond to every call.

H. S. DILCHER

Dilcher is a Charleston lad,
On football field won great renown,
Put on a massive shoulder pad
And tore the tacklin' dummy down.

JAMES PRINCE LIVELY

Jimmie, as his name implies,
The liveliest man of all the classes,
Often wears bright red ties
To catch the eyes of passing lasses.

BESSIE BERRY

Bessie's a quiet and studious girl;
Little she cares for society's whirl,
But over her books she likes to pore
To become well versed in o'd English lore.

J. P. HANLEY

From the University of Pittsburg he's a chip,
Dear knows how they ever let him slip.
Said he'd bet his last shirt
If his arm weren't hurt
He'd have made the southern baseball trip.

ADA PARRISH

Ada studies very hard,
There's never a moment for play.
A little slow to think, perhaps,
But we'll hear more of Ada some day.

MAX C. NELSON

Here's a student who studies
For nothing else does he care;
Society's charms don't appeal to him,
But with slide rule he's a bear.

WALTER VANCE

Yet fixed in hope is Walter Vance,
Since hope has never lost its youth,
That he will realize the truth
And reap the prize of love, by chance.

Monticola

MARL KEENAN

Keenan is our commercial star;
A man blest with business looks,
The pride of his profs, a ladies' man too;
'Tis no wonder he's fond of his "Books."

J. P. WEAVER

This is Weaver, the boss of the corps,
Who gives out commands with a roar;
Commander-in-chief,
In his own belief,
No man in the corps knows more.

LESLIE PLAYFORD McINTYRE

Much Irish wit and great desire
Has Leslie Playford McIntyre.
Since he can win in all debate
He hopes in time to serve the State.

DAISY ARNETT

With truthful lines to our mountain Daisy,
We long in vain to be inspired;
For to do this dearest of maiden justice,
With Shakespeare's genius we needs be fired.

I. N. DULING

I. N. Duling, athlete, scholar;
Brave and fearless, known to all.
He would rather face a thousand cannon,
But never, never Woman's Hall.

STANTON H. CADY

This is handsome Stanton Cady,
Thought single life was slow,
Fell in love with a charming lady,
Then married her, y'know.

THEODORE HOLDEN

The harsh decrees, that he bore
In Latin class, have made him sore;
All discipline has he slighted,
In education he is Deahl-ited.

DORSEY BRANNAN

When Dorsey gets to raising chickens
In the pastoral scenes of charm,
I wonder will Eva raise the dickens
Down on the dear old farm.

CARL M. CATHER

Carl is wed to engineering,
What a pity you may say;
He's told us all how he likes Texas
Where he'll go to stay someday.

HERBERT S. SUMMERS

Band, Glee Club—a real musician.
From Carnegie Tech he came,
And the melodious notes from his cornet
Will win for him a name.

MARGARET MORRIS

Margaret Morris, quite often called "Slim"
Into all undertakings puts great vim;
From domestic science to a dramatic part,
'Tis easily seen, her calling is art.

E. F. HEISKELL

A sergeant in the band is he
And pipes his part in highest glee;
With the knowledge he's gained in the Medical School,
Suffering humanity he'll endeavor to fool.

REX HERSEY

Rex Hersey—a most worthy young man—
Is often the subject of the baseball “fan”;
But, furthermore, in all his classes
All kinds of tests he ever passes.

L. A. RINGER

Ringer comes from Buchannon
And he certainly wasn't misled,
When he joined the Junior Class.
“Some head, old top, some head.”

J. OLIVER KNAPP

When first in college, he, alas
Was president of the Freshman Class.
Sad cruel fate, that he should meet
The Sophomores kept him out at Cheat.

RALPH HUTCHINSON

A quiet unassuming chap,
A worker with a will;
Says very little, thinks very much
Just such—that's "Hutch."

HARRY STUCKEY

He hopes some day a professor to be,
And discover a new element in chemistry;
But certain it seems that Harry J.
Will soon be treading the "matrimonial
way."

S. E. GREER

This handsome young man named Greer
Will some day be a great engineer,
From his bright saxophone
Come such notes of sweet tone,
That we all know whenever he's near.

H. R. MULDOON

Here's a man of mechanical skill
Who gives everything an analytical trill;
On the heights of theory he can soar,
And then come down to practical lore.

D. D. HORMELL

Duane will giggle and laugh, and laugh
some more,
Till finally his laugh turns into a roar;
Then he'll be quiet for many a day
And will have but very little to say.

L. E. SYDENSTRICKER

Some of us are great athletes,
But his is the fame that pays;
Regardin' handin' hook-larnin' to profs.
"Syde" has us heat forty ways.

J. M. WHELAN

A gentleman, student, friend in need,
Cares naught for woman, wine nor weed;
A paradox you'll say, 'tis true,
For although square, he's quite round too.

BERNAL R. WEIMER

Now he can pipe, and also sing
More charming music than was told,
By siren, harp or silver string;
Still Cupid thinks him oh, so cold.

E. A. HAMILTON

There's a town called Richwood down in the State,
Which sent E. A. Hamilton, proud and se-
date;
He started in well, but sad to relate
He now spends his time studying Ruby and Kate.

LESLIE GILES DRAKE

No one loves a fat man, we've read.
But here we have a paradox;
For besides studying "med,"
Dames to the theatre are led,
Where "Tub" worries a chair in the box.

DALE H. HAMILTON

Tho as Napoleon in size
As Webster's is his brain;
As all great men he studies Ag.
And, as Ceres, grows the grain.

EUGENE R. VAWTER

Vawter is a "bear" with the girls.
We're told that he never gets fussed;
But in all of his social whirls
He's not had his curly head mussed.

MAX WILCOXEN

His "Dianian" figure heads the parade
As he wields the baton with rare grace;
And the girls at the Hall
Both the large and the small,
Are charmed with the smile "in" his face.

HARRIETT MARTIN

"And in that cheek, and o'er that brow,
So soft, so calm, so eloquent,
The smiles that win, the tints that glow,
But tell of days in goodness spent."

CLARENCE F. WELLS

A mighty deep name for so small a man;
But then, what's in a name?
Though he tries to say his last words first,
He'll say them just the same.

ALLEN SAVAGE

A good substantial man is he,
He studies law with energy;
But he, like all poor law students,
Lets independence sway his prudence.

SALLIE EVANS

Sallie Evans is a genius
Meek and quiet though she be;
Sallie says she'll be a teacher,
We can only wait and see.

O. D. LAMBERT

Oscar comes from near Red Creek.
He likes to think, but not to speak,
And did not waste excessive gas
In writing about the Senior Class.

FRANK MADIGAN

A red-headed member named Madigan
Has just been deceiving his dad again.
When out of joint,
He goes to the Point,
Drinks root beer and goes to the bad again.

SUE BLACKWOOD

Sue Blackwood is a charming girl
From Randolph-Macon, come to us this year.
Heads and hearts she keeps all in a whirl,
In German, her major, she has no peer.

CHARLES W. McDOWELL

C. W. McDowell, engineer,
Would rather fight than eat.
He never heard of fear
And surely is hard to beat.

Junior Class History

IN the fall of the year 1912, a great band of Freshmen registered in the West Virginia University. With the help of the Juniors, the Freshman Class was organized, choosing for its president Oliver Knapp. It was the largest, the strongest, and the best looking class in the University. Its strength and power were tested in the class rush. Alas! All the strength of the Sophomores was of no avail against the mighty Freshmen. Throughout the year, the class distinguished itself in all school activities and won the admiration and praise of all.

In 1913, the class became the Sophomores. During this successful year, Luther Griffith was president. Once more the strength of the class was tested and, for the second time in the history of the University, the Sophomores won in the class rush. No one could question the superiority of the Sophomores. In athletics, as well as in the classroom, the class was represented among the leaders. One beautiful May day, the Sophomores took the Seniors to Oak Park for a picnic. They danced, rowed, walked, and enjoyed themselves on the roller-coaster until time in the evening to leave on the "M. & K."

As Juniors of 1914-15, the class became renowned. It elected "Red" Kersting president, and is editing a Monticola which we hope will be a credit to the University. The plans for the Junior Prom were wonderful. The electrical effects surprised all and surpassed all expectations. Thus closes the history of the class which has passed three years of its life in West Virginia University.

Sophomore History

IN the autumn of 1913, the largest freshman class that the University had ever known was enrolled. This Class of 1917 soon proved that it was important otherwise than in numbers, and speedily became an indispensable part of the University.

Last September the class returned to Morgantown, more brilliant and better looking than ever, resolved to shoulder the responsibility of teaching the Freshies to walk in the way they should go. This course of instruction covered several weeks. Owing to the prowess of the mighty Sophomores, the timid and verdant little members of the Class of '18 learned many valuable lessons during this time. As a climax, to show their magnanimity of spirit, the Sophomores allowed the Freshies to win the annual class rush.

After due deliberation, in solemn conclave assembled, Raymond Fidler was chosen president of the class and other officers, equally capable of carrying on the '17's momentous affairs with the requisite dignity and finesse, were selected. They have filled their offices in a manner which reflects great honor, not only upon them, but upon the entire class.

Freshman History

ON the sixteenth day of September in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred fourteen, a wonderful class entered upon its first work toward fame in the West Virginia University. On September the twenty-first, a class meeting was held in Commencement Hall for the purpose of organizing the class and electing grand dignitaries. After such election, Dr. Frank B. Trotter, Acting President of the University, gave an address of welcome to the class and congratulated the members upon their early organization. Of course the boys were to be the real champions of the class, but they were no more enthusiastic over the future contest than the girls.

Class antagonism began between the Sophomores and Freshmen during the second week of school. The first open battle took place in Commencement Hall and ended in an overwhelming defeat for the Sophomores. Nightly encounters took place for two or three weeks but without any permanent results other than elaborate decorations evident on sidewalks, telephone poles, and athletic field. During the intermission between halves of the game with Marshall College the first class rush occurred, but had only such confused result as two mighty rivers have when they rush together and lose themselves in the combined flood. However, on October the tenth, the class rush took place, and it will go down historically as a victory for the Freshmen.

The class, consisting of two hundred and fifty members, is the largest that has ever entered the University. In all departments of the University, this worthy body of students soon manifested and maintained its remarkable ability, both in the classroom and as participants in athletics. May the Class of Nineteen Eighteen prove to be a credit to its Alma Mater.

Third Year Law Class

OR thousand and thousands of ages the immortal gods had been preparing, waiting and planning for that most eventful of epochs in the annals of the history of the West Virginia University, and then, with a roar, like thunder, heralding their coming, and with a glare of light, likened unto the rising sun, blazing their way, they guided the feet of the Class of 1915 through those portals, known as the "Selection of the Wisest," into the halls of fame, the Law.

No sooner had this class entered the halls of fame and begun to master those fundamental principles of the leading profession, than they learned that "lawlessness" is an essential prerequisite to the study of the law. They also found in the right wing of Woodburn Hall a fraternal spirit, the one for the other—a tie that bound them closer than any oath or compact could bind them with those not of their number—a spirit of respect for the law, friendship for a fellow student, and above all, they loved their teacher. It would not be out of place to mention that this love has increased as time goes on, but more of that, anon.

In order to fulfill the burdens and responsibilities of lawlessness and the law, it became the duty of the Class of 1915, Law, P. Q. to assemble in all their glory and select one from among them, the one most fitted to lead them. Again the immortal gods, in all their wisdom, directed them and they choose Roscoe P. Posten, who, to create an irrefutable presumption of his competency and fidelity, immediately declared a holiday. The spirit of freedom in those good old days was predominant, and the carelessness of youth was not yet dampened by that feeling of responsibility which now rests on the shoulders of each one of the class. Holidays came thick and fast, until the revelation came that no longer did those, who had been chosen to guide and direct, look with favor upon such manifestations of spirit, and as had been said before "they loved their teachers"—"probably so"—'till now Jack is relieved of the burden of repeating to the wayward and erring, many times a day that a holiday is no excuse.

The class was exceedingly unfortunate in the resignation of Dean Charles E. Hogg, who was honored and respected by each and every one of its members.

The second year found the class, now smaller in numbers, with the same old spirit, slightly more grave and serious, withal, but still ranking high in the favor of their guardians, the immortal gods. Mike Leatherwood, athlete, student and all-around good fellow, piloted the staunch old ship through tempest, hurricane and "wind," and landed it safely on June 15th, 1914. "But I say, old chap, if that bally house of lords hadn't conevned when it did, deuce take it old boy if I don't believe the whole class would have been chucked out of school." "Probably so." But alas, the wrath of the gods, without warning, seemed to fall upon them—to fall upon them when the goal of their endeavors had almost been reached.

No longer do those wild shrieks proclaiming that all the strength is in the law resound through the halls, no longer does the spirit of freedom manifest itself, but the demon, Work, has crept in, has grown, and now asserts his supremacy—denied by none. The same fraternal spirit still exists, but it exists no longer as between the young, the careless, the free; but as between men, men who can work and who already have begun to feel the weight of the responsibilities of life resting upon their shoulders.

In keeping with this change, to guide them through the last lap of their college race, they, after grave and serious deliberation, selected Charles E. Mahan, a hard working student of the more serious turn, as their president.

And now that the end of the race has come and the goal for which they have striven is reached, the glory of the achievement is, for the time, forgotten in the regret that "the best of friends must part," but each feels that he is better, wiser and happier by having been a member of the Law Class of 1915. And when they look back, they wonder whether the wrath of the gods had ever fallen upon them, or were the gods wiser than they.

Within the next few years, these Knights of the Knife are to go out among the inhabitants of the earth to treat, heal and save. Yet the Grim Reaper does not seem particularly blue over the prospect and the undertakers are planning festival weeks in anticipation; while the marble industry is expected to boom.

The medical students of the University take this opportunity of appealing to the people of the State to observe all the rules of hygiene and care of the body. A patriotic response of the people to this appeal will aid greatly in combating disease.

Social Activities of Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A.

According to a delightful and fitting custom of the last few years, on the first Saturday evening after the opening of school, the students of the University were welcomed in the Armory by the Young Women's and Young Men's Christian Associations. After being greeted by the several members of the receiving line, each guest received a folder with pencil attached, in which he obtained as many autographs as possible, incidentally becoming acquainted with many new students in a pleasing, informal way. Couples were formed into a grand march after which light refreshments were served. The social was unusually well attended.

On October twenty-fourth, the Young Women's Association entertained about seventy-five women. The evening was gaily spent in the playing of children's games such as, "London Bridge is Falling Down," "Drop the Handkerchief," and the like. Ice cream cones were served and some piano music was enjoyed, concluding an evening in which all felt that they had become fairly started into the year of college work with the true spirit of comradeship.

The Associations gave a joint social in the Armory on February the twentieth in honor of the delegates attending a convention of Student Volunteers.

Chi Omega Dance

Theta Chapter of Chi Omega opened the social season on October the second with a dance in the Armory. The event was in celebration of the Fall Eleusima of the Chapter. One hundred and fifty couples were received by Mrs. Frank B. Trotter, Mrs. William Glasscock, Mrs. L. S. Brock, Judge and Mrs. Frank Cox, Dr. Waitman Barhe, Mrs. J. M. Callahan, Dr. and Mrs. John Harrington Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cox, Miss Morris, Miss Marsteller and Mr. Adams, Miss Hale and Mr. Lee.

The Armory was beautifully decorated in Old Gold and Blue, and cardinal and straw, with fraternity pennants and palms. At the north end of the hall the Greek letters "Chi Omega" were set forth by incandescent bulbs, while at the south end "Theta" was similarly produced.

At eight o'clock Cadenza's Orchestra began the grand march which was led by Miss Sine and Mr. Carfer. The programme consisted of twenty regular dances and a Chi Omega special. A short intermission was held between the tenth and eleventh dances during which ices were served. The patronesses were Mrs. L. S. Brock, Mrs. Wm. E. Glasscock and Mrs. Frank Cox.

Alpha Xi Delta

Saturday afternoon, October the sixth, the Alpha Xi Deltas motored to Villa Dilla, Professor and Mrs. Emory's cabin. At six o'clock a picnic supper was served on the rustic porch. Later the guests were entertained with dancing, cards, and telling stories and toasting marshmallows around an old-fashioned wood fire. Mrs. Emory and Mrs. Simpson chaperoned the girls.

Alpha Xi Delta

On November the fourteenth at the Presidents House, Iota Chapter of Alpha Xi Delta entertained all Greek women of the town and University, their patronesses and friends in honor of Mrs. Anna M. Knoté, Grand Inspector of Alpha Xi Delta. Mrs. Knoté, Mrs. F. B. Trotter, Miss Rachel Colwell, Mrs. Susan Maxwell Moore, Mrs. F. L. Emory, Mrs. John L. Sheldon, Miss Rose Sweeney, and Miss Daisy Arnett received the guests.

Miss Nell Donnelly took the guests to the dining room where Mrs. W. H. Alderman and Mrs. A. M. Lucas poured tea. Pink and white flowers with festoons of ground pine were used in the decorations. Pink roses, the Alpha Xi Delta flower, were given as favors.

Theta Nu Epsilon Dansante

The annual dance of Theta Nu Epsilon Chapter of Theta Nu Epsilon, held in the Armory on Friday, December the eleventh, was one of the most brilliant affairs of the winter season. The Armory was beautifully decorated for the occasion, school and fraternity pennants and banners being artistically arranged on the walls. Streamers of Theta Nu Epsilon colors were hung to the walls from the centerpiece, directly over the orchestra stand. Two skeletons were suspended from the balcony, each containing a red eye and a green eye characteristic of the Theta Nu Epsilon skull and cross bones.

Shortly after eight o'clock the grand march was begun to the lively strains of "Tipperary" by the Cadenza orchestra. The program consisted of twenty regular dances and two specials. Luncheon was served during the intermission held after the tenth dance, after which dancing was resumed until one o'clock. The patronesses for the dance were Mrs. C. Edmund Neil, Mrs. Harry Zevely, Mrs. John N. Simpson, Mrs. Stanley Cox and Mrs. J. H. Smith. The committee in charge was composed of Clyde Walker, John Mathison and Carlyle R. Smith.

Reunion Dance of Sigma Phi Epsilon

One of the most elegantly appointed social functions of the winter was the dance given by West Virginia Beta Chapter of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity at the Armory on the evening of February the twelfth. Seventy-five couples were in attendance, including active, alumni, and pledged members of the Fraternity; representatives from the other fraternities and other organizations in the University; and a number of residents of Morgantown. The Armory was tastefully decorated with pennants of the University and other universities and colleges, together with fraternity banners.

At fifteen minutes after eight o'clock, the Cadenza Orchestra of Clarksburg began the grand march, led by Mr. E. A. Hamilton and Miss Myra Nefflin, the dancers forming the Greek letters of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity. Dancing continued until one o'clock. The guests were presented with beautiful souvenir programs, the covers being card cases of purple leather with red cord and engraved Sigma Phi Epsilon panels. An elaborate luncheon was served at eleven thirty o'clock. The patrons and patronesses for the affair were President and Mrs. F. B. Trotter, Mrs. S. M. Whiteside, Mrs. Harry Zevely, Mrs. L. S. Brock, Mrs. W. J. Snee, and Mrs. R. R. Chrisman.

Kappa Kappa Gamma Dance

At the Armory on the evening of February the nineteenth, Beta Upsilon Chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma Fraternity was hostess at one of the most brilliant affairs of the year, a formal Washington's Birthday dance. About three hundred guests were received by the active chapter. The resident alumnae were the patronesses for the evening.

The decorations of the Armory were very picturesque. Around the walls were college and fraternity pennants. From the windows to the centerpiece of the electric lights were hung red, white and blue streamers; the windows, curtained in gold and blue bunting, were trimmed with pine and laurel; and the orchestra stand was banked with ferns and potted plants. An artistic booth of light and dark blue, the fraternity colors, occupied one corner from which a most delicious lunch was served during the intermission. In the corner diagonally opposite the booth was a tree, upon whose branches real-looking cherries and leaves had been fastened, and through whose branches were visible the lighted letters, "W. V. U." Other original and attractive electrical effects were the Kappa key and Sigma in Delta pledge pin, placed at opposite ends of the Armory. A picture of Washington, surrounded by red, white and blue lights, was hung from the balcony, further decorated with large flags.

At eight-thirty Parker's Saxophone Orchestra of Columbus, Ohio, began the grand march, led by Miss Ethel Hout and Mr. Paul Hoskins. The Greek letters of the Kappa pledge pin, Sigma in Delta, were formed by the dancers, after which programs were distributed. During the special partner dances, the sixth and twelfth, only the lights of the key, pledge pin and picture were used. Miss "Babby" Jackson and Master Frank Corbin, impersonating George and Martha Washington, gave out as favors, red, white and blue hatchet fans to the ladies, and small satin hatchets for lapel adornment to the men. The second special was the prettiest dance of the evening. Each couple was presented with sparklers, which, born across the floor to the rhythmic movement of the dancers, produced a beautiful effect in the darkened hall.

Fi Bata Cappar

ALPHA CHAPTER

THE preservation of youth has always been the desire of mankind. Thousands have grown old prematurely endeavoring to devise a scheme to accomplish this end. It was in the fertile mind of one Christopher Columbus that the idea was first conceived that youth for the greater part was a mental rather than a physical condition. For many years during his early life he tried to convince the people of his own country that the period of youth could be extended by setting aside a proportionate amount of time for good fellowship and harmless pleasure, during which time the mind could be free from all worry and care. Discouraged by the little confidence which his serious minded countrymen placed in his theory, he set out to find a new land where his idea could be fully tried out. Upon his arrival in America, the natives gathered around him, repeating over and over the words Fi Bata Cappar. Pleased with the conditions as he found them Columbus gathered about him a number of the most prominent natives and put his plans into operation. As a name for the society which he formed he selected the words Fi Bata Cappar which he heard so often.

He spent several years with this organization and finding that his plans were more successful than he had ever hoped for he returned home to tell his friends the good news. But no sooner was he out from under the influence of Fi Bata Cappar than he began to grow old rapidly and a few years after his return to Europe he died of old age. Shortly before his death he called his intimate friend, Ponce de Leon, to his bedside and told him of the organization which he had formed and how it preserved youth and made the old young again, but died before he could tell the location of Fi Bata Cappar. Ponce de Leon spent the remainder of his days in a vain search through the American forests. He gave out to Channing, Hart and a few other historians, that he was trying to find the fountain of perpetual youth, but in fact he was seeking Fi Bata Cappar.

Left to themselves the members of Fi Bata Cappar became careless and the organization was allowed to run down. Nothing further was done until the spring of 1914, when a number of young men with characteristics very nearly resembling those of the original members revived the organization and carried to completion the plans of the founder. So West Virginia University had the signal and unique honor of being the place where the object of the visit of Columbus to our continent was finally culminated. And the words "Fi Bata Cappar" were those used by the Chow Chow tribe of Indians as a salutation, and translated into English mean, "How do you do, Columbus."

Collegiate Corps Civil Engineers

The profession of civil engineering is freighted with problems and responsibilities such as no other profession knows. The civil engineer has bigger things to do than the demigods, the stories of whose feats have outlasted the wear and tear of centuries. Quite likely his critics remember him more vividly when he is engrossed with big problems than during his moments of recreation; and he often is described by them as a being too retiring and unassertive for his own good.

To free the minds of the civil engineer's critics from these erroneous ideas, and among other things to bind the members of the profession into a close relationship, and to see that they get all the good things they justly deserve both in college and in the field, a band of ardent followers of the profession met at West Virginia University, October 23, 1914, and organized the Collegiate Corps Civil Engineers with the above insignia and with the following officers and members:

Football Review

LAST year it was announced that an organized movement for the revision of athletics at the University was to be inaugurated, and that improvement in this branch of the University's work was certain to result. This year, during the season of 1914-15, we have seen the realization of the foreword. The football season was eloquent of the success which attended the earnest and strenuous efforts made by the Athletic Board to bring honor and prestige to the University by means of athletic prowess.

Manager Russell Gist

Taking the season as a whole, and viewing it from the standpoint of one not connected with the University, perhaps it would not be termed successful. But let us consider the circumstances surrounding football during the past season; the dearth of material that remained from the preceding year, the new coaching methods introduced, the raw recruits who answered the call for candidates, and the handicap at the beginning of the season occasioned by a lack of proper equipment. All these, together with the prejudice of the student body because of the slump which athletics had taken the year previous, had to be surmounted. Bearing everything in mind, therefore, we can say without diffidence that the University has taken unbounded strides in pursuit of its goal—athletic supremacy.

The enthusiasm and spirit which Coach Metzger inspired into the men of the squad was contagious, and soon spread over the entire student body. Everyone immediately began to boost, so that prospects appeared bright for a championship team; but just at that time when our hopes were highest and the team was fast developing toward perfection, the coach met with a deplorable accident which confined him to the hospital for several weeks. We had already beaten Marshall College team by a decisive score and were preparing to give Bethany a good walloping; but the injury to Coach Metzger cast a gloom over the whole student body, and for a time completely demoralized the team. An "S. O. S." was despatched to A. B. Zeigler and the following week he arrived to take charge of the squad. He soon instilled new life into the men, and the result was an overwhelming victory over Duquesne University the following Saturday.

A new era of athletic activity has dawned upon the University and with a proper share of good fortune, the efforts of the men in charge should be crowned with success during the next season. The prospects for the season of 1915-16 are most promising, and we have every reason to believe that the team which represents the University on the gridiron next fall will be the best ever turned out from this institution. With the same efficient management and coaching already assured, and with unlimited support from the students and the people of Morgantown, our team should be in a position to vie with the best in this section of the country.

HAROLD HUTCHINSON

Harold Hutchinson learned much about football while in Fairmont High School, and this knowledge was considerably augmented by one year's experience at Virginia Military Institute where he played a star game at fullback. Only one day on the football field was sufficient to prove that he was Varsity material, and thereafter he had a permanent place behind the line. His work in all the games in which he took part was spectacular, characterized by hard tackling and terrific line plunging. He was unfortunate, however, in being injured during the game at Washington, and for that reason his work was somewhat impaired in the last games of the season.

ALLEN BROOKS

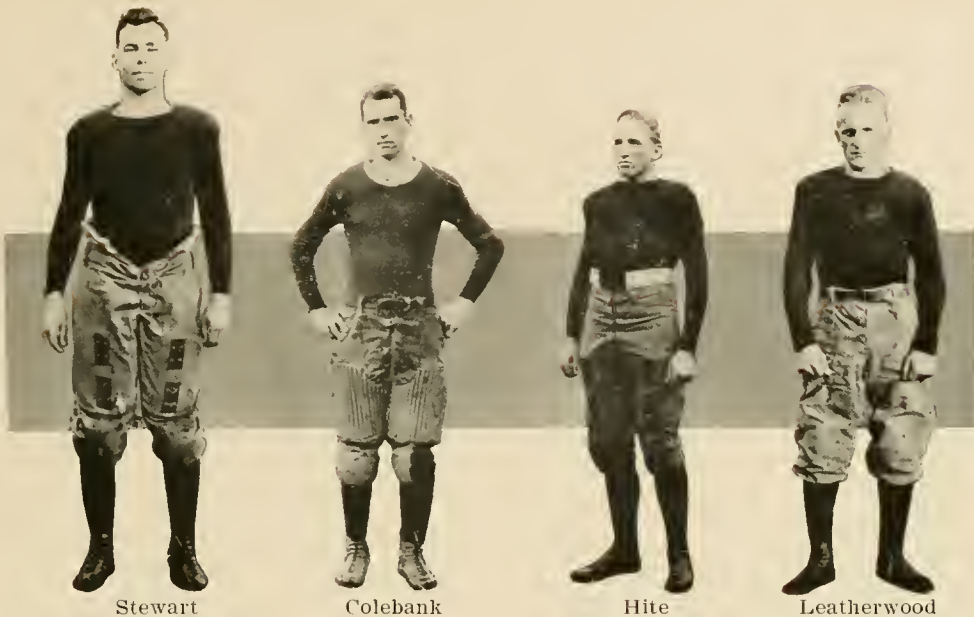

Allen Brooks came to the University from Buckhannon High School with a great reputation as an athlete, having captained and managed almost all teams of that school at one time or another. Despite the fact that he was only a Freshman and the youngest man on the squad he deserved a regular berth, and held one until seriously incapacitated by a fracture of the knee. His punting was by far the best in the State; and except for his untimely injury, would no doubt have gained for him a position on the All-State team.

W. C. BARNARD

W. C. Barnard is a product of the Morgantown High School, having played on the team for three years. Before he was injured in the A. and M. game at Raleigh there were few ends in this section who could compare with him. Although a new man in the University, early in the season he showed that he had the qualities of a good Varsity end, and there was little hesitation in choosing him for the position when the weeding out process began.

ORIN H. DAVIS, Captain

Captain Orin H. Davis, generally known as "Pig," entered into the realm of football while attending Woodberry Forest Preparatory School, and from the very first he showed signs of developing into a great center. Even during his Freshman year at the University he took part in all of the big games and since that time has been one of the mainstays of the Varsity eleven. An adept in breaking up interference and in tackling, a hard worker, and a clean player, he has elicited praise and admiration, both on and off the field, from players and spectators. "Pig" has been placed upon the All-State football team for the past three years.

Stewart

Colebank

Hite

Leatherwood

MELVILLE STEWART

The only reason that Melville "Billiken" Stewart has failed to have the distinction of playing four seasons as regular fullback on the Varsity, is the fact that during his Freshman year we had the best man in the State at that position. However, in the following season "Billiken" stepped into his place where he has played for the past three years. His experience was gained in Moundville High School, where he is recognized as one of the best athletes ever turned out from that school.

J. H. COLEBANK

Too much cannot be said of J. H. Colebank's ability as an athlete. His early training was received at Fairmont Normal, where athletics centered around him. His performance at Fairmont last Thanksgiving will long be remembered as the most brilliant playing ever done by any member of a West Virginia team. If his past record is to be considered, he undoubtedly will prove a source of great strength to future teams of the University in all branches of athletics.

C. B. HITE

Hite comes to West Virginia University from Huntington. He obtained a thorough knowledge of the fundamentals of football while in the high school of that city, where he won for himself an enviable reputation as a back-field player. When he came to the University last fall he attracted much attention by the fine manly spirit and wonderful aggressiveness that he exhibited while a candidate for the team. Modest and unassuming in his relations with his fellow students, he has not allowed himself to be carried away by the praise that he has merited by his brilliant playing on the gridiron. Undoubtedly, he is one of the strongest players that ever wore the Gold and Blue in the service of West Virginia University.

CARL P. LEATHERWOOD, Captain-elect

A more thoroughly athletic man never matriculated at West Virginia than Carl P. "Mike" Leatherwood who hails from the metropolis of the State. He has played on the football team for the past three years, and has been accorded a place on the All-State team for two years. His speed on the gridiron has gained for him the soubriquet of "the Spiegel of West Virginia," and because of his speed, together with his indomitable nerve, he is the dread of every rival team. There are very few games in which "Mike" does not star, and a better man could not have been chosen to lead the Varsity team in 1915.

Mullenex

Curry

Webster

Seckman

H. P. MULLENEX

Before coming to the University, H. P. Mullenex was the chief factor in athletics at Davis and Elkins College, making good in all lines of sport. His ability was soon appreciated here and it was not long before he had his position at tackle won easily. A more heady and consistent player is not to be found on the team, and whenever called upon to make an opening "Mully" is never found wanting.

HARRY CURRY

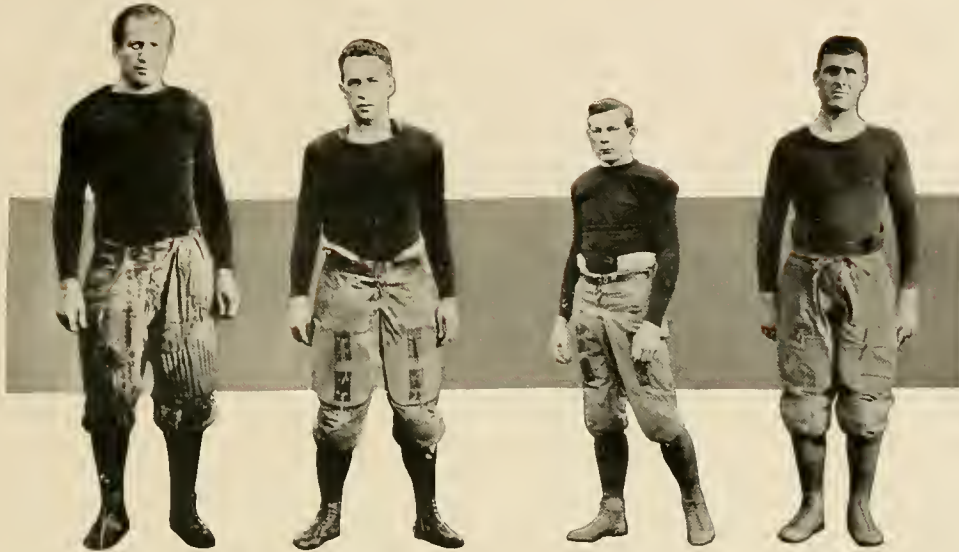

Harry Curry obtained his preliminary experience in football in Grafton High School, where he played four seasons and captained the team his last year. During the two years he has spent in Morgantown he has proved himself a stellar athlete, taking part in football, basketball and baseball. In football he is without doubt the most consistent ground gainer on the team, seldom failing to respond with several yards when given the ball. He was named for the All-State team, and gives promise of developing into one of the best line plunging halfbacks ever turned out from the University.

J. B. WEBSTER

J. B. "Spig" Webster played at Bethany last year, and was recognized at that time as one of the best line men in the State. Under the able direction of the Varsity coaches he has continued to improve in his style of playing to such an extent that, with the proper kind of support, his side of the line was practically impregnable. His choice for the All-State team was unanimous.

J. R. SECKMAN

Throughout the entire four years of J. R. Seckman's career in the University, he has displayed that sort of college spirit and enthusiasm, which alone makes successful athletics possible in any institution. "Seck" is a man, who when he sets out to do something, usually sticks to the finish; and his tenacity on the gridiron won for him the coveted letters "W. V." both in his Sophomore year and again last season.

L. Brooks

Chenoweth

Newman

Brannan

LESLIE BROOKS

Leslie Brooks finished his varied career in college athletics the past season. He came from West Virginia Wesleyan, where his work in building up athletics will long be remembered by followers of the Orange and Black. For the past three years he has been the regular Varsity tackle, and never has there been a more dependable, conscientious player on any of the University teams. A good student and popular with everyone, he will not soon be relegated to the list of forgotten heroes.

FRED M. CHENOWETH

Before coming to the University Fred M. Chenoweth gained a great reputation as an athlete at Broaddus Institute, and has lived up to it since his arrival here. There is not much in the athletic line which "Chenny" does not tackle, and he usually lets his adversary know that he is there, too. Though small in stature, he is a hard man to down, and his ability to handle a team in the most trying circumstances has won for him the position at quarterback, which he played in many games of the past season.

R. C. NEWMAN

Marshall College enjoys the distinction of having developed R. C. Newman into a Varsity guard of no mean ability. While there he played two years on the football team and also represented his college on the track. Though not conspicuous his work was always consistent. Having proved his worth during his first year at the University, it is safe to say that he will be a valuable man to the Varsity for the remainder of his stay here.

DORSEY BRANNAN

Dorsey Brannan, from Grafton High School, has been playing football only two years, but in that time he has acquired a thorough knowledge of the game as played in the line, and was a fixture at guard throughout last season. While not a conspicuous player, Brannan always keeps his opponent busy, and allows very few plays through his position.

Basketball Review

IT is doubtful if any action of the athletic committee in recent years has met with such hearty approval of alumni and undergraduates alike as the re-establishment, during the winter of 1915, of basketball as a major sport in the University. During the six years in which West Virginia University was not represented in this branch of athletic activity, there was a constant pressure brought to bear by the student body asking that the sport be revived, partly through the belief that West Virginia should be represented in basketball in order to take her proper place in collegiate athletics of this section of the country, but to a greater degree because of the abundance of excellent material for a floor team which was unable to benefit the University because of no intercollegiate schedule.

The athletic board early in October provided for the re-establishment of basketball and elected Arlington Fleming manager with the task of arranging a schedule. Twenty games in all were played and the team finished with a record of eleven victories and nine defeats, a most creditable record in view of the short time given for preparation. Of the eleven victories, five were won on foreign floors.

At the beginning of the season the squad numbered thirty men, being in charge of Director Pyle who was designated by the athletic board to coach the team. Later, this number was cut down to ten men while a reserve squad of ten men was given a reserve schedule to play. Stuart Race was the unanimous choice of his teammates for captain and by his brilliant work at forward and guard, paved the way for many victories.

The State championship for the 1915 season went to Wesleyan but not until the Methodists had won three of the hardest fought games on their schedule from the Varsity. The West Virginia team was seriously handicapped for this series by the loss of three of the Varsity squad disqualified because of deficiency in studies.

The outlook for 1916 in basketball is exceedingly bright and it is the belief that the Varsity team will make a record for itself which will rival any of those made by the famous Gold and Blue tossers of earlier years.

Baseball Review

ALTHOUGH at this writing, the games upon which the State baseball championship depends as well as other important series are yet to be played, the baseball record thus far enables the team to be classed as one of the best in the history of West Virginia University. Having the advantage of an unusually early start, the Varsity has played twenty games of one of the hardest schedules in the history of the school, with a record of thirteen victories and seven defeats. One of these defeats was at the hands of the Wheeling Central League team and should not be counted in the season's record. On the other hand, the game with Susquehanna College was stopped by rain after the third inning, and so this contest could not fairly be included in the list of victories. Omitting these two games, the record shows twelve victories and six defeats has completed two trips and is now on its third. On both of the first trips, the Varsity broke even and thus far on its third has made a clean sweep. Those who fully understood the difficulties of playing first class ball while traveling can appreciate the record of the Gold and Blue team this season.

The University had the good fortune this year in securing the coaching services of Charlie Hickman, former major league star and coach of the Varsity team in 1913. Coach Hickman has worked hard with his squad and the results of the season speak for themselves. Although the Varsity team this year remained almost intact from 1914, Coach Hickman has taken pains to develop several of his more promising recruits and has built up a reserve playing strength which is probably unequaled by any team in this section of the country.

"Fid"

SIMON, First base

"Cy" was the surprise of the season last year and his work so far this season has not depreciated one iota. He guards the initial sack in a brilliant manner, seldom being charged with an error and can be depended upon when a hit is needed.

LEATHERWOOD, Second base

Little need be said concerning "Mike's" playing around the keystone sack. He is always in the game and usually gets everything which comes his way. His hitting bids fair to place him at the top of the list.

MORROW, Short-stop

Morrow perhaps covers more ground than any other man on the team. His speed and mastery of the fade-away makes him a dangerous man on the bases.

FIDLER, Catcher

"Fid" is one of the hardest workers on the team and instills lots of "pep" into his team mates. This is only his second year of Varsity baseball though he has the form of a leaguer. Many games have been broken up by a mighty swat from his bat.

"Bill"

Rex

"Molasses"

"Sally"

DOUGHER, Utility

"Bill" is a first baseman, not from choice but because of necessity. He is an especially good man to have on the team as he can play any position and is a good hitter.

HERSEY, Middle field

Although one of the best outfielders who ever wore a West Virginia uniform, Rex was not discovered until late last spring. He has made good with a vengeance and has shown that he is here to stay. He is making Captain "Mike" hustle to keep the highest batting average.

STOOPS, Right field

Stoops plays a good game in right. He is steady and dependable, being equally good at the bat and in the field. This is his first year of college baseball.

There is not a man on the team who fights harder for a game than "Sally" and he usually produces at the right time. He is a faultless fielder and is fast and heady on the bases.

"Chenny"

"Jack"

Gray

"Charlie"

"Lefty"

CHENOWETH, Pitcher

Because of the high quality of ball pitched by the older men, "Chenny" has not had much of an opportunity to show what he can do. However, with the right kind of support from his team he can win a majority of his games.

HAGAN, Pitcher

"Jack" is a warm weather man and did not appear on the field until late in the season. When in proper form none but the best can touch him. We are relying on his arm to win many games before the close of the season.

HUFFMAN, Pitcher

Another recruit pitcher in the person of Gray Huffman has performed well on the mound when given a chance. He possesses the qualifications which are necessary in a Varsity pitcher and besides is a good hitter.

FULTON, Pitcher

"Charlie" is the delight of the rooters. His work is not confined to the mound alone where he excels, for there is not a position on the team which he cannot fill with credit. His hitting makes him especially valuable.

BARRON, Pitcher

For three years "Lefty" has been the mainstay on the slab for the University. His work against the best teams in the country classes him high among college pitchers. He has been put in as a pinch hitter on several occasions and invariably made good.

Track Review

SEASON 1914

Until last year, track work in West Virginia University had been neglected, principally because of a lack of training quarters. But with the general rejuvenation of athletics great advances have been made in developing a team which will eventually be in a position to share honors with representatives from institutions outside of the State. The only public appearance of the team last year was in the State meet at Fairmont. In this meet, of the 117 possible points, the Varsity scored 56, placing in every event.

SEASON 1915

Under the able coaching of Director Pyle, West Virginia University passed through one of the most successful track seasons in her history. The team took part in two meets, one at Huntington against Marshall College, and a second at Clarksburg in competition with West Virginia Wesleyan and Marietta College. As a result of these meets, the championship of the State now rests undisputed in the hands of our men.

Fri. 19—Dr. Cox takes up nine o'clock period in discussion on politics, public finance, and other things connected with his salary.

Sat. 20—It is said that Wesleyan is without a president. They should worry—Stansbury is still there.

Sun. 21—If the worse comes to worse, we hope that school will be closed before mid-semesters.

Mon. 22—Brannan is passing thru the Paramecium stage. His face is covered with cilia.

Tues. 23—Faculty censorship committee enjoys a good joke and used red ink here.

Wed. 24—Dr. Reese: "Now we shall go around the class, naming all the lower animals, starting with Mr. Bachman."

Thurs. 25—Jim Stratton visits Woman's Hall. "The bee that gets the honey does not hang around the hive."

Fri. 26—Dawson opens preliminary negotiations with landlady of Purity Flats.

Sat. 27—Frank Pride hauls a boat of empties from the "Peeled Onion."

Sun. 28—Inmates of "Peeled Onion" fall out of window and got to church.

HAIL WEST VIRGINIA

Words by F. B. Deem; Music by L. E. McWhorter and Earl Miller.

Let's give a rah for West Virginia
And let's pledge to her anew,
Others may like Black and Crimson
But for us it's Gold and Blue.
Let all our troubles be forgotten,
Let College spirit rule
We'll join and give our loyal efforts
For the good of our old school.

Chorus

It's West Virginia, it's West Virginia,
The pride of every mountaineer,
Come on you old grads, join with us young lads,
It's West Virginia now we cheer;
Now is the time boys to make a big noise
No matter what the people say,
For there is naught to fear, the gang 's all here,
So hail to West Virginia, hail.

"A CIGARETTE DREAM"

	Jokes
--	-------	--

Warden: "Say, Johnnie, why don't you sing a little?"

Convict: "Aw, I can't. No matter how hard I try, I am always behind several bars and can't find the key."

"Bud" told the mayor that, if he sentenced the raiders on the Grand according to looks, he would have to hang "Red" Dawson.

Buck: "Professor, I think I shall quit school."

Prof.: "Why, how is that?"

Buck: "Well, they say a little learning is a dangerous thing."

Prof.: "Oh you needn't worry, Mr. Wilson. You're in no danger."

O. E. Duling (bringing his oration to a dramatic finis): "General Lee was attired in a spotless, gold-accountred grey uniform; while Grant wore nothing but a tattered Union suit."

K. Clark: "Do you have the problems this morning?"

Jamison: "Sure, I have them."

K. C.: "Where did you get them?"

Freshman to senior: "Do you have any student honorary organizations here?"

Senior: "What kind do you mean?"

Freshman: "Well, a blue ribbon society for instance."

Senior: "Oh yes, you mean the T. N. E."

Dr. Eisland (in answer to a student's query about the fourth dimension): "Mr. C—, fools can ask questions that the wisest man cannot answer."

Mr. C—: "Yes, that's why so many flunked out last semester."

Last winter a hair-raising picture was advertised at the Grand. Both McNemar and Jack Hare were at the theatre when the doors were opened. An hour later they came out in disgust. Both craniums were still bare.

Bills (just before going out): "I'll bet my mustache will tickle her."

Postie: "Prep, give me a light."

Prep (offering a lighted cigarette): "I don't have a match."

Postie: "That's what I call a matchless idea."

Prof.: "Can you give me the date of the Reign of Terror?"
Student: "January 25 to 27, inclusive."

Miss R (reading composition in English): "And she dearly loved chicken."

Simeon (interrupting): "If that were about a man, I should believe it."

If Lou-is Black, is Kate White.

If Lieutenant Wether(w)ill, Sergeant May.

Dr. Vickers: "Mr. Henry, in what business are the returns below the margin of profit?"

H—: "If a man works in a subway, no matter what wages he gets, he is always in the hole."

He used to bounce her up and down
As happy as can be;
But now it makes her seasick—
He has water on the knee.

Freshman (discussing the fraternity bowling schedule): "Say, when do we roll the Chi Omegas?"

Dr. Bishop: "The word rhetoric comes from the feminine form of the participle from the verb meaning to flow."

Barnes: "That's because the flow of language is chiefly feminine, isn't it?"

Her shoes were of the old gold hue;
Her stockings spoke of navy blue.

Our cadet band, the best in the land,
Came marching by, all looking grand.

Then blew a wind with all its might,
Raised everything that was in sight.

Whereupon band ceased to play
And chirped our college roundelay.

"They're patriotic, loyal and true.
Three cheers for the Old Gold and Blue!"

"The B. and O. is going to sue 'Red' Kersting."

"Yes, yes; go on."

"He caused a tie-up in the traffic by sticking his head out of the window of the car and flagging a train."

The Dress Suit Controversy.

[NOTE—The Joke Editor asks that no one take the following verses too seriously.]

The meeting now was in full blast,
The fur was fiercely flying.
The braver brothers controverted,
The weaker ones were sighing.

The meeting's issue was about
The wearing of the dress suit;
To make the slim look rather stout,
And make the stout no less cute.

"It shall not be, it shall not be!" the merry Monty cried.
"No, no, we shall not wear it,
Because," here Monty almost sighed,
"I fear that we might tear it."

"We must, we must!" the bold Judge fussed,
He hailed from blasé Wheeling.
With fervent speech—he almost cussed—
He spoke with so much feeling.

Then up spoke Dan, the model man.
A finished orator was he.
He flected a speck from suit of check,
Addressed the noble company.

"Oh brothers dear, you lookey here.
Just let me tell you these;
Friend's is far, I have no car,
My skinny legs might freeze.

"But I cannot balk, I've got to walk
To have my picture taken,
And go the chance in short dress pants,
Though it may cook my bacon."

Committee on the Dress Suit spoke:
"It's cleaned and pressed, we've got to use it.
It smells of gasoline and smoke,
But listen, boys, do not abuse it."

'Twas put to vote, and let us note
That little opposition rose.
"White shirt, and vest, and long-tailed coat
Must be the rig of those who pose."

A schedule then was quickly made
For Ed and Roy and all the rest,
So each and every brother loyal
Could sport the coat and classy vest.

That lone dress suit and tie to boot
Was used by every brother.
They used it much; it served them well,
They shall not want another.

The picture's took, the dress suit look
Is now the pride of all.
It makes the common chaff feel cheap,
It makes the ladies fall.

A good full dress, we must confess,
Is all right in its proper place;
But otherwise it is a mess,
Yea, verily, a sad disgrace.

Monticola

THE 1915 Monticola would be incomplete without the grateful acknowledgement by the Board of Editors of the favors and assistance received from various members of the alumni, faculty, and student body of the University. Thanks are due to S. G. Jackson, C. E. Hodges, L. E. McWhorter, E. D. Woodyard, and others, who have contributed toward the literary part of the book. Credit for the artistic and mechanical part of this Monticola is due largely to the artists: Kate Meredith, Mearle Hardesty, Rose Sells, Valerie Schultz, Jennie Cox, Clarence McCutcheon, Fred R. Koelz, W. M. Archdeacon, and Tom Moore. The Editors are especially indebted for the apt suggestions of Mr. Fred R. Koelz and the kindly thoughtful censorship of Dr. Madison Stathers and Professor Simeon C. Smith.

JAMES BREINIG RILEY,
Editor-in-Chief.

REMEMBERING always that small favors are thankfully received and larger ones in proportion, I wish to thank every one who has in any way helped to make this book what it is.

It is a matter of deep regret that it was impossible to secure cuts of the Glee and Mandolin Clubs in time for publication. The copy was apparently lost in shipment and could not be traced to its final destination.

The men who have advertised in this book are friends of the students and deserve their patronage. The Morgantown Printing and Binding Co., The Northern Engraving Co., and Mr. L. E. Friend have given good and faithful service.

HARRY FERGUSON,
Business Manager, 1916 Monticola.

FACTS—The Conn Wonder Factory

Is the largest in the world where high grade Band Instruments are manufactured exclusively.

Is the only one where every part of all Band Instruments are manufactured strictly from the raw material.

Is the only one where the highest grade instruments are manufactured exclusive of all others.

Is the home of the Greatest Artists, who test and aid in the experimental work.

Employs world renowned testors to insure perfection of its products.

Employs the highest skilled and most experienced instrument makers in the world.

Is equipped with the most modern machinery and tools to be found in any horn factory.

Has adopted a modern method of manufacture, which guarantees a more uniform quality of instruments and far greater perfection in all their essential points.

Advises all customers to purchase direct from the factory or from a duly authorized agent to whom this factory may refer.

Turns out the best Band Instruments made in the world up to date and offers $5,000.00 to anyone who can produce a set of instruments, manufactured in one factory, equal to a set of the Conn New Invention Models.

Employs more skilled labor than all other Band Instrument factories in America.

Stamps every instrument it builds with the Union Label.

Does not manufacture instruments for mail order houses or jobbers who use their own names on instruments.

Engraves the name of C. G. Conn, as maker, on every instrument it manufactures. There has never been an exception to this rule.

Will continue to make the HIGHEST GRADE BAND INSTRUMENTS on the market at a REASONABLE PROFIT.

Will continue to stand for and maintain the motto—"Better Instruments for the Best Musicians" and "Better Musicians for the Best Instruments."

We thank the students for their patronage and uniform courtesy during this year's work, and we especially wish to thank the manager, Mr. Harry Ferguson, for his patience. It has been a pleasure to work with him, and we feel that the successful completion of this 1916 Monticola is largely due to his efforts.

Thanking you all, I am,

Respectfully,

L. E. Friend.
