GREAT AUDIENCE OVERFLOWS ARMISTICE DAY MEMORIAL SERVICE SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Royal Victoria Theatre Scene of Impressive Tribute to War Heroes; Veterans March to Service in Memory of Comrades of Great War; Rev. Major Barton Delivers Address.

Victorians yesterday afternoon paid tribute to the heroes of the Great War, the Armistice Day Memorial Service at the Royal Victoria Theatre being attended by several hundred more men and women than could be accommodated in the theatre.

The memorial service was preceded by a parade of veterans through the business sections of the city, the procession forming up at 2.15 o'clock on Blanshard Street.

The service opened with the playing of the national anthem, the Scottish pipers and the Salvation Army band, the men marched to the Royal Victoria Theatre by way of Blanshard Street to Pandora, to Douglas, to Yates, to Government, to Fort, to Blanshard, thence to the Royal Victoria theatre, the route being lined with spectators.

Medaled Veterans Preceded by the Canadian Scottish band of over forty instruments, Col. Cy Peck, V.C., headed the procession, which was composed of detachments of veterans now on the strength of the permanent forces, about two hundred veterans now in civil life and detachments from the school cadet corps, the boys scouts and girl guides.

Bright with Flights The stage at the theatre was colorful with an array of Union Jacks, borne by members of the Imperial Daughters of the Empire, soldiers and prominent citizens.

A large group of the various veterans' organizations supported the officiating clergy. Major Rev. J. H. White presided. The service opened with the hymn "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," accompanied by the Salvation Army band. The invocation and Scripture reading were given by Rev. Dr. J. Campbell led in prayer.

Welded the Empire Major the Rev. William Barton delivered the address in commemoration of the great occasion, drawing an analogy between the Great War and the journey of the Israelites in the wilderness. He pointed out that the forty years of wandering had been necessary to weld the twelve tribes into a united nation, capable of overcoming their foes and entering the promised land.

In similar manner had the Great War welded the components of the Empire into a single community with a single object, the establishment of right and defence of the weak against aggression. As the twelve stones picked from the Jordan had typified the binding together of the twelve tribes at the crossing into the land of promise, so the glories of Bapaume, Ypres and other landmarks of the war had been stones wherewith to construct an altar of fellowship between the components of the Empire.

HOPE TO CHEER Three points of Communion were set up among the nations of the Empire, Major Barton pointed out. The Communion of Hope, which urged a renewed courage to face the troubles of to-day, recalled the lessons of the unselfishness of the trenches and the great challenge of the soldier to his darkest days of adversity. "Are we disheartened? No!" had been the inspiring attitude of men under the "spook" of the foe, and it was well that the spirit of those days should be recalled, to encourage and strengthen at times of distress to-day.

U.S. WOMAN WAS WOUNDED IN MEXICO Wife of Vice-Consul at Monterey Struck by Stray Bullet During Celebration

Washington, Nov. 9.—Mrs. Ruth Ragland, wife of the United States vice-consul at Monterey, Mexico, has been brought here suffering from a bullet wound in the head received during the celebration of Constitution Day in the Mexican city, September 16.

Her arrival here became known after the vice-consul paid a visit to the State Department, where officials are inclined to believe the shooting was accidental.

Mrs. Ragland is in the Georgetown University Hospital, where it is expected she will recover. She was wounded while sitting in a cafe with her husband in Monterey.

PAY INCOME TAX Los Angeles, Nov. 9.—Rosetta and Vivian Duncan, known in theatrical circles as the Duncan Sisters, settled their income tax differences with Uncle Sam to-day when the internal revenue office here received remittances amounting to $3,303, which automatically released tax liens recently filed against them. In a letter accompanying the remittances the sisters said they had not known what the tax bills they had received were all about, as they had changed managers and had believed their taxes paid.

McAdoo Jr., son of the former Secretary of the United States Treasury, is among those against whom income tax liens have been filed by Income Tax Collector Rex B. Goodell.

The Government claims there is $53.93 due on young McAdoo's 1924 tax. Through an error, the name of the older McAdoo was at first associated with the tax lien, but a check developed it was the son of the former Treasury Secretary against whom the lien was directed.

HOUSE MUST GRAPPLE WITH CHURCH UNION AGAIN; B.C. LAW NEEDS REVISION NOW

The whole church union question in British Columbia will be revived in the Provincial Legislature early in the session now under way. This has become certain in the last few days, following informal discussions of the matter between members of the House and church leaders.

Failure of the existing church union legislation to effect desired results in this Province makes it imperative for the Legislature to take the situation in hand and redraft the present law, according to church union advocates. It is expected that in pursuance of this view they will propose definite amendments for the adoption of the House. These changes, however, have not been made known to members if they have been prepared by church leaders.

The Church Union Act passed last year was designed not only to legalize the amalgamation of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Churches, but also to set up machinery for the handling of their property and for the protection of anti-union minorities. This machinery was to consist of a commission which would distribute the property of the churches involved and give a fair share to members who did not join the union movement. Although the law was passed nearly a year ago this commission has not been formed yet and there appears to be no prospect of any appointment. While no official explanation of this delay has been forthcoming, it is understood that certain weaknesses in the present Act have made it impossible to get ahead with the division of the church property.

Church union advocates are anxious to have this question settled as soon as possible, and will seek at the present session of the Legislature for definite action. It is understood that no part in proposing amendments to the existing law, according to Rev. Dr. Leslie Clay, prominent Canadian church leader, the movement against the church union, Dr. Clay explained to-day that the anti-unionists had not desired legislation in the first place.

"We are not planning to make any application to the Legislature," he asserted. "When the question is before the Legislature, however, we may have something to say."

The legal aspects of the present position of church union in British Columbia will be tested by a trial in Nanaimo this week, but in any case it is agreed among members of the Legislature who are interested in the question that the present status of the question is wholly unsatisfactory.

QUEBEC BY-ELECTION WILL BE ONLY CONTEST BEFORE NEW COMMONS HOLDS SESSION

Announcement by Premier King Causes Much Discussion in Ottawa; Speculation as to Whether Prime Minister Will be Candidate in Constituency of Bagot, the Member-elect of Which, J. E. Marcile, Died.

Ottawa, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press)—There will be only one by-election before Parliament assembles in December, Premier King has announced. The single contest will be in Bagot constituency, Quebec, where J. E. Marcile, the member-elect, died a few days ago.

Mr. King did not intimate in his statement whether or not he would contest the constituency himself or whether he would wait until the majority control of the House of Commons was determined by the members elected at the polls on October 29 before seeking a seat. The Premier and Rt. Hon. G. D. Graham are the two members of the Cabinet with portfolios who are not members of the new House of Commons.

The announcement has created great interest here. Some express the belief Premier King will be a candidate in Bagot, while others expect him to be a candidate nowhere until the whole situation has been clarified by a vote in the House of Commons.

Bodies Left Hanging in Street For Six Hours as Warning to People

London, Nov. 9.—Large crowds of the people of Damascus early Sunday morning witnessed the public execution by the French of three Arabs, according to advices from the Syrian city. Apparently in an effort to instill full respect for the mandatory power, the bodies of the men were left for six hours suspended on the ropes on which they had been hanged.

The Arabs were members of a party which some time ago attacked a convoy on its way to Bagdad and killed the French captain and wounded other members of the party. To each body was attached a large placard on which was printed a description of the crime for which the men had been hanged.

Berlin Professor Tells of Cancer Research

London, Nov. 9.—The discovery of Dr. Gye and Mr. Barnard continues to be largely discussed in German medical circles.

Professor Blumenthal, who is the greatest German authority on all that pertains to cancer research, recalls that a year ago he cultivated a bacillus from human cancerous growths which, under special conditions, produced cancer in the animals with which he experimented, and from these latter animals he produced cancer in still other animals. The special conditions to which he refers are that irritation from outside must collaborate with internal disposition. This irritation or stimulus he supplied by means of Kieselgur (infusorial silica), or by lymph from original cancerous growths.

Professor Blumenthal stated at the time that he surmised that it was not the bacillus that had come from the invisible virus attached to it—that is to say, a parasite living in it that was really the producer of cancer.

The English research workers, the professor observes, have obviously succeeded in cultivating this hitherto invisible parasite of a year ago. A very considerable step forward has been taken. Professor Blumenthal admits, and the foundation has been laid for a series of investigations, the results of which are what all the world is so anxiously looking for. Germany has such small sums at her disposal for carrying out such investigations.

U.S. TAX REVISION PLANS ARE FATED UNDER DIFFICULTIES; CANCEL WAR DEBTS

Washington, Nov. 9.—The tax revision controversy, which has begun before the House Committee on Ways and Means, and which will continue for most of the winter, is already beginning to take on important political aspects. Before it is finished it promises to arouse a great political contest which may have a bearing on the campaign of 1926 for the control of Congress. It may reach into the next presidential campaign in 1928.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has put forth a plan for the revision of the existing tax law which provides chiefly for a reduction of the surtaxes on large incomes and the repeal of the estate tax on inheritance tax. It has other features and comprehends considerable reductions in the income taxes imposed on the small taxpayers. What are known as the normal income tax rates would be reduced as well as the surtaxes on large incomes. Secretary Mellon would lop off about $300,000,000 from the present tax burden of the country.

TO RELIEVE CAPITAL
But while Mr. Mellon would cut taxes all along the line, the avowed purpose of his plan is primarily to relieve capital and wealth of much of its present tax burden. His argument is that the public would thus be benefited by relieving capital of burdens which now tend to hamper it and prevent it from engaging freely in industry.

President Coolidge is backing the Mellon proposals and the "Old Guard" Republicans in Congress are likewise backing them.

On the other hand, the Democratic and Progressive Republicans are already tending to combine to fight the Mellon programme. They are calling for reductions which would total more than $300,000,000 and which would, first of all, relieve the small taxpayers. They are willing to make some reductions in the surtaxes, but not as much as under the Mellon programme. As for the estate taxes, the Democrats and Progressives have some exceptions, strongly oppose repeal. They maintain the Mellon programme is part of a programme whose purpose is to bring about, inside of a few years, a vast transfer of taxes from wealth to the backs of the people of small and moderate means.

FARMERS' ATTITUDE
To a considerable extent, the agricultural elements of the country are lining up against the Mellon programme. Already, the American Farm Bureau Federation is out openly against repeal of the estate tax on the ground that to repeal it would mean the farmers would have to pay more taxes.

The House will probably pass the tax bill as Mellon and the administration want it passed. But not so the Senate. It is probable a combination of Democrats and Progressive Republicans in the Senate will defeat the Mellon programme, and to a large extent shape the tax measures to suit themselves. They will not only assail the Mellon plan as the plan of "big business" but they will strike at the Coolidge administration on the ground that its voice is the voice, not of the masses of the people, but of the classes.

PLENTY OF POLITICS
Whether the effect of this drive against the Mellon programme will be to weaken the Coolidge administration and the grip of the "Old Guard" Republicans remains to be seen. Opinions differ on it. It is clear, however, that there will be plenty of politics in the tax fight. In fact, it will be surcharged with politics from start to finish. It will mark, in essential respects, the first important grand attack to be made on the present Coolidge administration by its opponents, and it will be worth while to keep an eye on the results.

Washington, Nov. 9.—According to the Canadian Pacific Railway crop report, weather throughout the West has been cold with light snow flurries, principally in Alberta. Considerable threshing has been done, with farmers generally working under difficulties, and in many instances grain is turning out tough. Two weeks of good dry weather are needed to enable completion of threshing. Cattle receipts continue heavy, with prices in general showing downward tendency, considering volume of stock received. It is noticeable that a heavier price drop is not recorded.

In Manitoba, since the last report, threshing has proceeded throughout the province, but showers and considerable rain have been doing much to increase the difficulty under which this work was carried out. Considering all the wet weather through which grain has passed, this is not a bad thing. Heavy night frosts held up farmers until well on toward midday. Ninety per cent of the grain in the West is now in the hands of the farmer. The ploughing is accomplished.

Conditions have improved over those of previous week in Saskatchewan, but still very favorable conditions exist for carrying on of threshing and ploughing operations. In the southwestern part of the province, practically all the threshing is finished, and almost all wheat is cleaned up, and this territory has some of the heaviest crops in the province, this year. Considerable threshing is still to be done in the northern sections, and to a lesser extent in the Northwest. Taking the province over there still remains fifteen per cent of the threshing to be done. Considerable proportion of grain threshed during the week has graded tough, but farmers apparently thought it best to thresh in this condition rather than have it remain out all winter.

In Alberta further snow and rain over most of the southern part again over threshing, but in spite of this, however, some farmers in this section are still threshing. In the northern sections, and to a lesser extent in the Northwest, taking the province over there still remains fifteen per cent of the threshing to be done. Considerable proportion of grain threshed during the week has graded tough, but farmers apparently thought it best to thresh in this condition rather than have it remain out all winter.

BRITAIN MAY SPEND BILLIONS ON ROADS
Posterity Will Pay For Improvements Under New Scheme

London, Nov. 9.—A great road construction scheme involving an expenditure of £200,000,000 is now under official consideration. It will necessitate a loan which will be met by the Road Fund.

The income for the Road Fund next year is estimated at £17,000,000, and it is proposed to earmark £10,000,000 of this to pay for the interest on a loan of £200,000,000.

A sum of £7,000,000 would be set aside annually as a sinking fund. This scheme would provide £200,000,000 at the call of the Ministry of Transport for maintenance and construction and loan would be extinguished in thirty years, and the fact that it justifies the anticipation of the promoters of the scheme is generally admitted.

The scheme will have a very important and although it appears to saddle posterity with liabilities, it is contended that it is only fair that posterity should bear part of the cost of permanent improvement of the highways.

FARMERS THRESHING U.S. IS URGED TO CANCEL WAR DEBTS

Washington, Nov. 9.—Wage-earners were urged to support cancellation or modification of the war debts owed to the United States by European governments in a statement issued last night by Matthew Woll, one of the vice-presidents of the American Federation of Labor, in an effort to help make sure that the "Hague" negotiations now in progress "might not follow the same way as the recent French negotiations."

Coupled with his argument for forgiveness or reduction of the debts, Mr. Woll challenged "the truth, the logic, the humanity and the common sense of the assumption of Chairman Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that "any friendliness in this matter toward the debtor peoples means a betrayal of the people of this country."

TWO CONSIDERATIONS
"Two major considerations must dominate this European debt question," said the statement. "International debts must be settled and they must be settled in such a rational way as to promote the prosperity of debtor, creditor, and all nations. The future program of the debtor nation requires that enough should be paid to sustain its financial honor and its credit for future commerce as favoring the nations that all should prosper. Ultimately the United States would lose as much as any country because of the economic oppression of the nations on the European continent."

PROPAGANDA OF ENMITY
"Nothing could so delay and obstruct any conceivable settlement as the propaganda of enmity led by the United States. Every word he utters on this subject tends to convince the peoples of Europe, and those he represents are willing to have their economic enemies would rejoice to have them as economic serfs. If there is ever a European bloc directed against the United States, Senator Borah, more than any living American, will have to be credited with that noble achievement."

GIVEN AS SUBSTITUTE
"The Senator wants us to forget we are offering the loans as a temporary substitute. In view of our readiness to send over our quota of men when we first entered the war—that we deliberately offered our dollars as substitutes for lives, and that the leaders on both sides of Congress on the floors of the House and Senate expressed the willingness of the United States to turn these loans into gifts if need be."

"I am confident that, backed by public opinion, the administration will reach a general and sensible and advantageous settlement, first with Italy, and then with France."

GLORY BESTOWED
The Communion of Glory was a wonderful heritage, given us by the men who died and the men who lived. Major Barton recalled. The soldiers of Canada had brought glory to the Dominion, had established her in the attention of the nations and the courage which had made great deeds possible will make of Canada the crown of glory of the Empire as the years roll past.

SACRIFICES REWARDED
Finally there is the Communion of Fellowship, the greatest outcome of the sacrifices which preceded Armistice Day. "Peace on Earth and Goodwill to Men" had been the message accompanying the coming of the Christ, and those great gifts would be the following results of the great spirit aroused by the Great War, brought to a successful conclusion as a result of the sacrifices made by so many of Canada's gallant sons.

UNITY TYPIFIED
As the twelve stones from Jordan, bound into one altar to the Lord at the entry to the Promised Land, typified the unity of ancient Israel, so do the glorious records of the Great War typify the binding together of the components of this great Empire. Israel was a group of tribes until that altar was built, she became a great unified nation at the crossing of the Jordan. So in this great Empire bound together with bonds of respect, love and admiration as a result of the sacrifices made in the cause of right—seven years ago, Major Barton concluded.

Chairman Major White, in thanking the great audience for their attendance and support in celebration of the solemn occasion, urged that the horrors of the Great War should be forgotten, but that the heroisms of those great days should be ever present in the memory of all peoples. A silver collection was taken up; the Canadian Scottish Band playing during the intermission. Following the singing of the hymn, "The Silent Tribute" to an accompaniment by the Salvation Army band, Major White pronounced the benediction.

The service was followed by a return parade of the various veterans' organizations, dismissal taking place at the Public Library.

BRITAIN MAY SPEND BILLIONS ON ROADS
Posterity Will Pay For Improvements Under New Scheme

London, Nov. 9.—A great road construction scheme involving an expenditure of £200,000,000 is now under official consideration. It will necessitate a loan which will be met by the Road Fund.

The income for the Road Fund next year is estimated at £17,000,000, and it is proposed to earmark £10,000,000 of this to pay for the interest on a loan of £200,000,000.

A sum of £7,000,000 would be set aside annually as a sinking fund. This scheme would provide £200,000,000 at the call of the Ministry of Transport for maintenance and construction and loan would be extinguished in thirty years, and the fact that it justifies the anticipation of the promoters of the scheme is generally admitted.

The scheme will have a very important and although it appears to saddle posterity with liabilities, it is contended that it is only fair that posterity should bear part of the cost of permanent improvement of the highways.

EXAGGERATION IN LIQUOR DISCUSSION

Chicago, Nov. 9.—There are many things being said about the liquor question that will not "hold water," and both sides of the controversy and both sides of needless and foolish exaggeration, declared Dr. W. A. Ganfield of Carroll College, before the national convention of the Anti-Railroad League here last Saturday night.

He said that while the situation in the United States was much better than before prohibition, the job of making Americans dry is not yet done.

"The United States is legally dry," he said, "but many Americans are wet."

"The enforcement machinery in the United States has thus far been too weak, too inefficient. No honest, sane thinking man can truthfully say an unpopular law cannot be enforced. Certainly the army draft law was not popular, yet mighty few sought to evade it."

MAN ACQUITTED OF CHARGE OF ARSON

Nanaimo, Nov. 8.—For the second time Mike Zavaglio, an Italian, who has resided in this district for some time, has been cleared by a court of justice of a charge of arson. The jury at the Nanaimo Assizes, after an absence of thirty minutes, returned with a verdict of not guilty. Zavaglio was indicted for having caused three fires which occurred at the Bayview Hotel, Hardy Bay, Vancouver Island, last October.

CHARGE OF ARSON

Mount Vernon, Wash., Nov. 9.—Mrs. Winifred Roller, thirty-five, arrested by sheriff's officers Saturday at the home of her parents near Burlington, is held in the county jail here. According to Prosecuting Attorney Warren Gilbert, she is accused of having set fire on October 31 to the telephone office at Concrete, where she was employed, when she learned an auditor was coming to go over her accounts. He said a charge of arson was to be filed. Mrs. Roller is the mother of three children.

The schoolmaster was explaining what to do in case of fire. The pupils listened with respectful attention until he came to his final instruction, "Above all things," he said, "if your clothing catches fire, remain cool."

SAYWARD VALLEY IN NEED OF RAIN

Water Lowest on Record For Time of Year; Logging Held Up

Sayward, Nov. 9.—A very successful and well-attended Halloween social evening and dance was held in the Community Hall under the auspices of the trustees and teachers of the district schools. The first part of the evening entertainment included several very interesting Halloween contest games, for which prizes were awarded the winners as follows: Mrs. William Secht, Mrs. Xavia Belanger, Mrs. O. Ekogan, Mrs. R. Shields, Mrs. MacLean, Harvey Voce and C. Gentry. The games and contests were interspersed with vocal and instrumental music rendered by Mrs. J. B. Howes, Miss Hinder, Xavia Belanger, H. A. Macdonald, Frank Smith. J. Walls contributed several very enjoyable recitations, after the social part of the entertainment concluded dancing commenced and was continued until the wee small hours. The cash proceeds of the evening, which were considerably increased through the sale of cakes, was placed to the credit of the school library fund. Great credit is due those who had the arrangement of this very successful and much enjoyed social evening.

Frank Smith has returned from Rock Bay.

L. Proux and Marshall Gark have commenced logging operations of the property of Mr. Pypux.

The weather keeps very mild with light rains. The past summer proved to be the driest summer ever experienced in the valley as until the dry spell broke last week only one shower of rain had fallen since last May. As a result crops have been under the average, especially the root crops. The water in the rivers in the valley is very low, the lowest of record at this time of the year, as the district usually gets its first high water about the last week in October. Those engaged in logging in the valley are anxiously awaiting the arrival of high water to enable them to get their logs to tide water.

Rev. Allan Green of the Columbia Coast Mission held service in the valley on Sunday, November 4.

MRS. CAMPBELL SPOKE AT PARKSVILLE W.I.

A combined meeting of the Parksville and Qualicum Beach District Institutes was held at Qualicum Beach, November 4, at 2.30 p.m., to hear Mrs. Frank Campbell of Victoria speak on "Legislation" eighty-five members being present. Mrs. H. K. Harrison was asked to take the chair, as president of the senior institute, and she spoke a few words of welcome. Mrs. Playfair read the Qualicum district minutes, and several letters from various sources relating to local needs, which called for discussions, one regarding the Bible being read in the schools brought out suggestions. Mrs. Luff, Coombs, made the motion in the form of a resolution, in which Parksville joined Qualicum.

Mrs. Rook-Taylor, convener of the transportation committee, reported that she had got two members to join the institute. The talk given by Mrs. Campbell was one of the best ever heard in these parts. What she said was all connected with women, their lives and their work. Mrs. Campbell particularly spoke of the vote, advising women to use it with care, and if they didn't like the man who was nominated, to put up a woman. She told them to think along the lines of more work which would profit the women, and seriously to look into "old-age" pensions and state health insurance, which are possible without too much taxation.

After the meeting adjourned, tea was served by the Qualicum district members.

ENJOYABLE DANCE HELD AT PARKSVILLE

The All Hallows' Eve novelty dance, under the auspices of the Parksville Women's Institute, was a tremendous success. The Parish Hall was gaily decorated with streamers, cats, and witches, giving a pretty effect; fancy baskets of candy were sold; a large box of home-made candy was raffled, and won by a bridegroom, and the weight of a huge cabbage was rightly guessed by a small boy of ten. At midnight the festivities closed, everyone satisfied with their dance.

NEW RAILROAD AT GULF OF CALIFORNIA

U.S. Capitalists Are Building Line From Mexicali to San Felipe, Mexico

Mexicali, Lower Cal., Nov. 9.—Four hundred years after the desert South of here and surrounding the head of the Gulf of California had defeated the undaunted Fernando Cortez, an American railroad is being built across those sands, that promises to wrest unestimated wealth from the waste which balked the Spanish conquistador.

The line, 170 miles long, which will connect this town on the California-Mexico border with San Felipe, the nearest point on the Gulf of California where a deep water harbor is available, must be completed, according to contract, in 1927.

THREE BIG CHANGES

Residents of the desert domain look to the railroad to spin the wheel of progress with three great changes:

Connect the lower Colorado River basin with tidewater.

Provide a new system of defence, through levees on which the road will travel, against the floods of the Colorado.

Open the way for reclamation of 250,000 acres of fertile delta lands. Cortez, the daring Spaniard who brought Mexico under the heel of Aragon and Castile, sent expedition after expedition into this waste between the years 1547 and 1541. He wished to discover a northern route around what he called the "Island of California," and he desired above all else to locate and loot the fabled rich "Seven Cities of Cibola."

He failed in both his quests, but where the Spanish adventurer with his sword went down to defeat, United States engineers with theodolites are registering victory.

STARTED IN 1923

The railroad originally was started by the Mexican Government in 1923, but after ten miles of roadbed had been graded the De-la Huerta revolution broke out and construction stopped.

In 1924 Harry Chandler of Los Angeles and a group of associates obtained a contract from the Mexican Government under which they were given a ninety-nine-year lease, and allowed three-and-one-half years to complete the line. It will be known as the Mexicali and Gulf Railway.

The builders' concession includes the right to construct wharves, cotton gins, compresses and oil mills at San Felipe, which will become a shipping outlet to the Eastern United States via Panama, and also to Europe and Asia.

PLANNING WATERWAY DEVELOPMENT IN U.S.

Washington, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—The inland waterway movement in this country has been given added impetus by an enthusiastic meeting of waterways advocates in Kansas City, at which Secretary of Commerce Hoover spoke and put himself on record as thoroughly in favor of a comprehensive plan of development of inland waterways in the United States.

Mr. Hoover came out for the improvement of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, and the important tributaries of the Mississippi. He also emphasized the importance of the Great Lakes water route to the sea, either by the St. Lawrence or by the New York route. He made it plain agriculture must have the benefit of cheaper freights in order to reach foreign markets. He spoke against the war between railroads and waterways, and, in short, satisfied the ideas of the leading waterway supporters of this country who have long been urging the building up of a great system of inland waterway traffic.

DEBATE IN CONGRESS

Supporters of waterways in Congress look on the Hoover speech as sure to give added impetus to their plans in the House and Senate the coming Winter. President Coolidge did not support those plans to the extent they desired last Winter, but they hope the speech of Hoover will prove a forerunner to stronger White House support the coming session.

In spite of some drawbacks in getting the St. Lawrence improvement under way, its advocates are from discouraged. They intend to press the movement this Winter. They are convinced the sentiment of this country is mastering more and more back of the idea that the waterway possibilities of the Mississippi and the Great Lakes must be utilized to the utmost and that manufacturing and other industries in addition to agriculture, are becoming more and more convinced of it. It is clear railroad opposition to water routes has by no means been dropped, but on the other hand, it is also plain the waterway movement is becoming so strong the railroads cannot much longer stand in the way of it. This at least is the view taken by the growing list of waterway advocates in Congress.

Panhandlers Flock To Broadway Now

New York, Nov. 9.—Winter cannot be far away. Beggars in shabby clothes are to be met on Manhattan streets, for the first time in months, begging for the price of a bed.

During the Summer they can shift for themselves pretty well, there being several parks in which the down-trodden are allowed to sleep. It is hard to say whether the economic situation as it applies to the unskilled man is getting worse, but it seems there is more panhandling going on now than there has been in five years.

MELVILLE FEDERAL COURT

Regina, Nov. 9.—Final returns from the Melville Federal constituency are: Motherwell, Liberal, 5,905; Dinnen, Conservative, 1,692; Hepburn, Progressive, 2,302. Both the losing candidates forfeited their deposits.

Is Your Back The Weak Point

Then get your kidneys right by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Very few people are in perfect health. There is a weak spot somewhere. When you get tired or your system gets a little run down you feel the effects at your weak spot.

If your weak spot is your back, then you may suspect that your kidneys are not in perfect order. The back aches or is weak and sore; you may have headaches; there will be dryness of the skin, pains in the limbs and disorders of the bladder.

The quickest way to regulate the kidneys is by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They are bound to be effective because they arouse the action of the kidneys, liver and bowels and thereby ensure the elimination of poisons from the system.

Soft Coal Makes New York Another Dirty Collar City

New York, Nov. 9.—New Yorkers will soon have to change their shirts and collars daily, or oftener, just as Pittsburgers or Cincinnatians do. This has been a remarkably clean city due to the fact that no soft coal is burned here, but with a shortage of hard coal threatening the ban on bituminous has been lifted. This will banish hominess among many of the boys from the mid-west.

BRUCE OR CHARLTON

NEXT FRIDAY THE PEOPLE OF AUSTRALIA will decide whether they require another term of government by the party over which Premier Stanley Bruce presides or whether they will revert to a Labor regime with Mr. Mathew Charlton as the new Prime Minister. In sixty-five out of the seventy-five constituencies there will be a straight fight between the Ministerial and Labor candidates. Tasmania is the only State in which there is anything approaching a multiplicity of aspirants. In some constituencies two Labor representatives, and in others two Nationalists, are contending against one of the opposite party. There are twenty-two vacancies in the Senate. In three States the Ministerialists and the Labor Party have each nominated twelve candidates for the twelve seats which are being contested, but in Tasmania seven Nationalists and five Labor candidates will compete for the four vacancies.

As far as may be judged from this distance the principal issue dividing the Government and Opposition parties is not unlike that upon which the political battle was waged in Great Britain last year. Premier Bruce and his Ministerial colleagues are predicting unpleasant things for the Commonwealth if the electors should return the Laborites to office. They have narrowed the fight down to one between upholders of the constitution, and all that means to the people, and the disciples of Moscow and Communistic doctrines. But there does not seem to be much in the election manifesto of Mr. Charlton to suggest that either he or his followers have anything more than the faintest of pink tinges of Bolshevism on their political escutcheon. In the matter of defence Labor's policy differs materially from that which Premier Bruce considers adequate to the needs of the time. For instance, the Opposition would build submarines and aeroplanes in preference to cruisers; and it is open to debate as to whether this plan would not be more in keeping with the developments of modern defence than the orthodox plan of surface craft. In any event this question is inseparable from Australian politics and will be an important factor in Friday's decision.

Premier Bruce very naturally refuses to take Labor's platform at Labor's valuation. In fact he says "I would have no objection to going into the Labor movement if it were run as a legitimate Labor movement, but the party is departing from the principles of Labor. I stand more for the legitimate aspirations and feelings of Labor than the Labor party itself." Mr. Charlton with equal force refuses to swallow any suggestion that Labor in office would be any worse for the country now than when its policies were in operation under the premiership by William Morris Hughes. He declares that he has neither associated himself with nor involved Labor in the shipping strike; but he reminds the electorate that his sympathy went out to the men when they were asked to work for $9 per month. The parties differ very little on the question of Australia's position with regard to the Empire's foreign policy. Both argue that the Commonwealth should have a voice in framing it if there is any danger of obligations being imposed upon it. In general, however, the most entertaining issue seems to be the Communistic bogeyman.

FRANCE AND SYRIA

FRANCE IS FINDING THE ENFORCEMENT of her mandate over Syria very costly business. There is nothing surprising in this because as far back as 1919 the first Syrian Congress convened after the end of the war declared its opposition to any mandatory control over the country by the French. A vote was taken among the population by a Commission sent out by the Versailles Peace Conference, and not one Syrian in six was found to support the proposal. The Commission therefore was unable to recommend France as a mandatory power as far as Syria was concerned. It further warned that owing to the hostility of the Arabs to France an attempt to enforce a French mandate would precipitate war.

Nevertheless, the French moved into Syria and they have had to fight to stay there. The New York World points out that they could not even establish their first Governor General in Damascus without fighting their way to that city. This was in July, 1920. Gen. Gouraud's first official act was to fine his capital city 10,000,000 francs. It was a significant inauguration of the French regime. Since then there have followed successively a native uprising in March, 1921; a native appeal to the League of Nations in August, 1921; rioting in Damascus in April, 1922, with lives lost and martial law proclaimed; another Syrian appeal to the League in May, 1922; a new war in August, 1922, with more troops dispatched from France; another appeal to the powers in November, 1922; heavy French reinforcements sent to Syria in April, 1923; boycott of French elections by the Syrians in September, 1923; a new war again in April, 1924; riots in Damascus in April, 1925; another war begun in August, 1925, with French planes bombing native villages; martial law for fifteen years proclaimed by the French in October, 1925; oppressive measures increasingly severe and following one another in a hopeless circle; casualties gradually mounting to 6,626 on the French side and nobody knows how many on the Arab side; and now this "parade of corpses" through Damascus—dead Arabs strapped to camels—followed by fresh uprising, a cordon drawn around a rebellious quarter, guns turned loose and disaster on a major scale.

So much for France in Syria. In northern Africa she has an even more costly preoccupation, while at home the franc is dropping towards the cellar and she is being faced with the issue of a capital levy to balance her budget. The habit of governing other people against their will which has been ingrained in some countries for many centuries dies slowly but surely. The pity of it is that good lives must be lost in the process. France may not like the way the Syrians run their country, but that is Syria's affair; not France's, as long as the Assyrians do not injure vital French interests.

OUR CHIEF MATERIAL ASSET

AN AREA OF SLIGHTLY LESS THAN two hundred million acres lies within the surveyed tract of the three Prairie Provinces. What has been done with this vast territory? Twenty-five years ago Canada was calling from the housetops that free homesteads were available to all. The call for settlers produced amazing results. In a statement prepared by the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior it is shown that to-day there are nearly ninety million acres of the land in the three provinces occupied as farm land. Undoubtedly the best of the land open for homesteading has been taken up. No less than 72,131,000 acres have been granted to settlers and others in the form of homesteads, land sales, bounty grants, half-breed scrip, etc. Grants to railways and to the Hudson's Bay Company have absorbed 36,452,000 acres of the surveyed area, while 27,422,000 acres have been set aside for forestry purposes. Indian reserves, school lands, parks, grazing leases, water-covered land and road allowances account for 35,954,000 acres, leaving a total of 25,957,000 acres not allocated at the commencement of the present year.

Studied solely with an eye to the surveyed lands still held by the Crown, the western land situation might not look very promising for further large settlement. There are, however, two other important factors to take into account.

First, the surveyed area can and, in time, will be somewhat enlarged when the railway network is extended into areas which are still too remote to warrant surveys, let alone settlement.

Secondly, there are the privately owned unoccupied lands within the present surveyed areas—that is the lands held for sale by individuals and by the railways and the Hudson's Bay Company. It is estimated that there are about 18,000,000 acres of such lands. When it is borne in mind that these are largely select lands, whereas the surveyed lands still held by the public are the "marginal" lands in every sense, one can realize how closely the future progress of western settlement is tied up, not only to public policies with respect to Crown lands, but to the marketing and occupation of privately-owned lands. Public lands no longer dominate the situation with respect to western settlement.

Quite aside from the figures for the acreages which have been surveyed and disposed of in different forms, rough estimates, the best that can be made with present information, indicate that there is a total of about 167,000,000 acres of land in the three Prairie Provinces physically suitable for grazing or for agriculture. The area at present occupied as farm lands is rather less than 90,000,000 acres. Allowing liberally for the acreage now being used for grazing purposes, still leaves it amply evident that the West has a long road to travel before its agricultural areas are anything like fully developed. To cite one more figure, says the National Resources Intelligence Service, it is worthy of notice that Dr. O. E. Baker of the United States Department of Agriculture recently estimated that Canada is potentially capable of producing a wheat crop exceeding 1,300 million bushels. Thus, viewing the western land situation in all its aspects, it is fairly safe to say that the unoccupied lands of the Prairie Provinces are still the greatest single asset in sight for the Dominion's future growth.

JAPAN INTERESTED

FROM VICTORY UNTO VICTORY MAY soon be an appropriate legend for the work of the League of Nations in view of its newly-acquired momentum. Already the fruits of its recent outstanding triumph are being gathered in the shape of an expression of Japanese gratification from Viscount Ishii. This distinguished statesman is now looking forward to the day when mutual arrangements like those entered into at Locarno under the auspices of the League of Nations will be multiplied in other parts of the world and eventually end in a similarly voluntary arrangement for complete Pacific security. How far Japan would like to go by way of elaborating the four-power agreement negotiated at Washington may not be apparent for some time; but it is noteworthy that Viscount Ishii should express himself with such enthusiasm, in itself a view which is at least the harbinger of universal efforts to put an end to all war. With Japan and the United States bound together by a pledge similar to that which now puts both France and Germany on their honor would be a magnificent thing for the Pacific. Australasian qualms would promptly disappear. No longer would the people of Canada's Pacific Coast have the fear or possibility of invasion to worry about. The "inevitable" war, which some people predict, between our neighbor and the legions of the Orient, would drop out of that category. For it follows that a pact of this kind would dictate a liberal measure of disarmament—as it must do if the spirit of any agreement of this kind is to be lived up to—and thus make assurance doubly sure.

WHO'S WHO IN HISTORY TO-DAY

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 9

EDWARD VII.

King of Great Britain, the eldest son of Queen Victoria, was born on November 9, 1841. He achieved great popularity as Prince of Wales, retaining this throughout life. At the age of nineteen he made a tour of the United States and Canada.

FREDERICK FUNSTON

American soldier, was born on November 9, 1865. At the beginning of the Spanish-American War he became colonel of a Kansas volunteer regiment, and was sent to the Philippines. He soon was raised to the rank of brigadier-general of volunteers, later being awarded the same title in the regular army. His outstanding exploit was the capture of Aguinaldo, the Filipino insurgent leader.

HOWARD PYLE

American painter, illustrator, and writer, died on November 9, 1913. Most of his work was done for magazines, and he wrote and illustrated many stories. He was unusually successful as an instructor in the art of illustration.

ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVANCE

To the Editor:—I should like to say a little about the two-minute silence. If everyone is supposed to observe it, why not do so? Last November 11 I was amused on looking out of my window to see the cars and pedestrians going along as usual. Only one lad did I see jump off his cycle and raise his cap. In the centre of London, England, all the traffic stops at once, and the people stand still for two minutes. Surely it would not be too much for the people here to do the same, in memory of our lost loved ones.

FATHER'S DEVOTION FOR "HUMAN HUSK" IS TOLD IN COURT

Littleton, C.P., Nov. 9.—Tears streamed from the eyes of jurors, witnesses and spectators Saturday as Mrs. Frances Bishop, daughter of Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer, on trial for the murder of her thirty-four-year-old daughter, Hazel, told in sobbing fashion the tale of "untold devotion" her father poured on the "human husk" that the defence holds he slew through insanity and "humanitarian impulse."

The aged defendant himself broke into sobs frequently as the daughter unfolded her story in justification of her father's act in taking the life of his first born and her own sister.

Half the jurors wiped their eyes and scores of spectators wept unashamedly while she described the father's love and the utter helplessness of the "child-woman."

"She was utterly helpless," declared the witness, whose appearance on behalf of her father became possible when the state rested its case without calling her to the stand, as it had announced it would.

The state rested its case early this morning after calling but six witnesses and the defence began its presentation of testimony after Judge Samuel had overruled a motion for a directed verdict acquitting Blazer.

Percy Watson Elected President of Provincial Body and Lou Tweedie Becomes Secretary-treasurer and Registrar; Monarch Hockey Club Players Suspended for One Game for Making Trip to Los Angeles Against Orders

Vancouver, Nov. 9.—Headquarters for the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association will be at Victoria for the next year. This was decided at the annual meeting at Spaldings on Saturday night, when Percy Watson was named president, and L. Tweedie, secretary-treasurer. Both hail from the Capital city.

Elected Secretary of B.C. Amateur Hockey

Members of the Monarch Hockey Club, who took a trip to Los Angeles last May against the orders of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, were let down light when they were suspended for the first game this season.

LOU TWEEDIE

There was a lively discussion on the matter before a final decision was reached. President Mackenzie pressed for a penalty of some sort against the players involved. He pointed out that each player was well aware that they were transgressing the rules when they took the trip. He said that the Monarch club was responsible, as President Barker had notified him that the club would not have anything to do with the trip after the suspension of the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association if it would only mean that the Canadian body would refuse to recognize the cards of the players this year.

George Warren of Victoria, who was the only delegate to the suspension, felt that the Canadian body was carrying things too far by refusing sanction of a Vancouver team to play in the United States. He said that the ruling was made for eastern players owing to trouble with the United States Amateur League. He suggested that the B. C. delegate to a new ruling this season by pointing out the conditions that exist in this part of the country.

Allan Fellowes, who represented the association at the annual meeting of the Canadian body, said that he did not think the ruling was ever made to affect teams in this part of the country. He felt that it was aimed at members of the United States League, which had broken faith with the Canadian body so many occasions that some drastic action had to be taken to bring them to time.

George Murray of Trail, who took an active part in the meeting, said that the fact of three players going back to Los Angeles or going back to Los Angeles put the case on a par with that of the East. A. R. Dingman of the Vancouver Senior League felt that the association was forced to the constitution whether they were right or wrong, and thought the players should be punished.

Complete list of officers follows: Honorary president—Harry Martin, Vancouver. Honorary vice-presidents—Fred Scott, Cranbrook; W. H. Wilkinson, Victoria; and R. Cochrane, M.P.P., Vernon. President—Percy Watson, Victoria. Vice-president—A. R. Dingman, Vancouver. Secretary-treasurer and registrar—L. Tweedie. Executive—George Warren, Victoria; W. Bentham, Vancouver; A. Victoria; W. Bentham, Vancouver; D. St. Dennis, Nelson, and one to be named for the Okanagan.

Fighters Do Not Want To Battle In Tex's Stadium

Only One Title Match Has Ripened For Presentation in Richard's New Garden Dempsey Fixes His Price as $1,000,000; May Bring Carpenter and Firpo Back

New York, Nov. 9.—A modern Coliseum, the $5,000,000 realization of a world famous boxing promoter's dream, is soon to open its doors to a sport hungry metropolis and its fistie arena to a temperamental army of professional ring gladiators whose modest wealth and independence have placed them almost beyond the pale of availability.

It is perhaps a tribute to the perspicacity of Tex Rickard that the new arena, which is more liberal than the old in the variety of its sport programme. For the man who fifteen years ago began to train pugilistic activity for fame and fortune with veritable scoops full of golden fuel at last admits that the financial appetite of ring champions has grown beyond his own generous ability.

Rickard had once harbored the hope that a bigger and better garden would enable him to bring to the arena the most important championship battles, which otherwise would require the use of large outdoor arenas. Confronting Rickard to-night, however, was the fact that only one outstanding title match had ripened for presentation in the new garden. The defending titleholder, Paul Berenbach, light heavyweight champion of the world, he will face Jack Delaney, of Bridgeport, Conn.

MODEST DEMPSEY No outstanding battles in the other divisions beckon eagerly to the victor. Although Jess Willard and the heavyweight champions who preceded him could be lured indoors to defend the crown, Dempsey has fixed his price at a prohibitive indoor figure of $1,000,000 and Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons says he will pay Jack Delaney next time he fights Harry Wells in the middle west, despite the intimation last week by Roy Benton that the props would be pulled from under the Michigan City match.

Wills, who has turned his back upon Rickard's inducements to fight Gene Tunney and George Godfrey, is apparently content to confine his winter activities to mild training and the warmth of the Will's domicile. He has not yet committed a payment of $50,000 to Wills for training expenses with $50,000 more soon to be poured into the negro's purse against some future opponent at his door by the well known wolf.

The elimination of Wills from the winter tour is undertaken by Rickard to-day in revealing that he had lost money on the three shows which he conducted at Yankee Stadium last summer.

"If the champions and other drawing cards do not come down in their numbers, they are going to find that the garden will not use them. We will then create new cards among the fighters, who do not want all the money."

TUNNEY'S LIST NOT GOOD The list of opponents Gene would be willing to meet, handed Rickard last week, failed to include the name of the Mobile negro. The bars thus appear to be up on the only big fight which Rickard in desperation has been talking about bringing back Carpenter and Firpo.

A word on the high cost of boxing cards to be undertaken by Rickard this winter, the promoter announced to-day in revealing that he had lost money on the three shows which he conducted at Yankee Stadium last summer.

New Champion Will Arise At Colwood Links

Frank Thomas, Defending Title-holder, Beaten by A. V. Macan Yesterday in Second Round of Club Championship; McQuade, Terry, Darcus, Johnson, Beasley, MacKenzie and Macan Remaining in Running for Honors

Championship honors at the Colwood Golf Club this year are to pass into new hands through the defeat of Frank Thomas, the title-holder, yesterday by A. V. Macan in the second round. Macan won after a fine match by 2 and 1.

As a result of two rounds of play yesterday in the championship flight the following eight players were left in the running: Jock Findlay, the medalist; G. Terry, C. I. Mackenzie, Ed. McQuade, R. J. Darcus, H. P. Johnson, Art Beasley and Macan.

Most of the matches in the first round were decided by comfortable scores. D. Rines and R. H. Brecheley went to the twentieth hole before the former won, while Art Beasley only conquered W. Haslam on the home green. In all other cases the margin was not close.

Ottawa Senators Have Four Chance Of Winning Title

Hamilton Tigers Must Beat Them Next Saturday to Tie For First Place Queen's Are Marking Time; Varsity Overcome McGill; Argos Lost to Montreal

The feature Rugby match in the East on Saturday settled only one thing—that the Hamilton Tigers, last year's Big Four winners, can only tie the Ottawa Senators for the inter-provincial title at the best. These two teams engaged in a gruelling struggle at Hamilton which ended in a draw, two all. Next Saturday they meet again at Ottawa. If Ottawa wins they will annex the title and enter the inter-provincial series victorious; the teams will be deadlocked for first place.

Toronto Argonauts and Montreal A.A. wound up their inter-provincial schedule at Toronto University stadium, where the Argos, rated in pre-season Rugby gossip as strong contenders for the Hamilton title, were held by Queen's University, went down to defeat for the fourth time this season. Montreal won 5 to 2 and finished in third place with an even break in wins and losses.

Queen's University intercollegiate champions, have finished their schedule and are marking time waiting for the Ontario Rugby Union to complete its schedule. Nothing less than a miracle can prevent the Beavers from winning the O.R.U. again, so Queen's and Balmby Beach are expected to meet in the eastern semi-finals, the winners to meet either Ottawa or Hamilton for the eastern title and the right to engage the western champions if the latter elect to go East.

McGill University and Toronto University met for the first time this season on Saturday and Varsity came out on top, 9 to 3. The match between these two teams was played at Varsity stadium, next Saturday will wind up the intercollegiate schedule.

Balmby Beach meets Varsity Saturday at Varsity stadium, where the O.R.U. will be engaged with the return engagement will be Saturday. BORDEN OVERWHELM HAMILTONS Camp Borden overwhelmed Hamilton Rowing Club Saturday, 21 to 3, and met again next Saturday at Scarborough. If Varsity beat the Beavers to-day, which is very improbable—Camp Borden have a mathematical chance of finishing in a tie with Balmby Beach for first place.

The standings: Intercollegiate Union W. L. F. A. Queen's 1 2 47 Varsity 1 3 25 McGill 0 3 51 Interprovincial Union W. L. F. A. Louis Glazen Wins Qualifying Round For Jersey Trophy

Had Net Score of 136 in Qualifying Round at Uplands; A. Lawrie Second

After holding Esquimalt to even terms in the first half the United Services cracked in the second period of their match at Beacon Hill allowing the Dockers to run in four goals in the final twenty minutes. The Services were playing with one of their best players, John Watt, who was on the line-up.

John Watt was the hero of the Esquimalt eleven in the concluding half as he secured the three goals which were his brother Tommy's responsibility for the other. It was a regular Watt victory. Watt was fast in the initial half with both teams having an even share of the play. The Services were playing a strong game while Esquimalt were playing their usual milt were playing. Both goalies were fast in turn but no score had been registered when the half-time whistle blew.

Veterans Beaten In Match By Injuries

Defeated by St. Saviours in Vancouver by 4-2; McCormick and "Nobbie" Clark Hurt in Second Half and Vets Finished Game With Nine Men; Esquimalt, Wests and United Services Tied for Lead in Combination Cup Series; Saturday's Games Keenly Competed Injuries, the old jinx which has followed the Veterans' Football Club since the opening of the season, lost them their Pacific Coast League match in Vancouver on Saturday afternoon against St. Saviours by the score of 4-2. McCormick and "Nobbie" Clark, two of the mainstays of the local eleven, were both put out of commission in the second half and the Vets finished the game with nine men. At half-time the Vets were leading by 1-0. The team returned home yesterday.

In the first half the Vets scored the only goal "Nobbie" Clark being responsible, Moffat, of St. Saviours missed a penalty kick just before half-time.

St. Saviours had the best of the play in the second half and five minutes after the kick-off they had scored two goals in quick succession, Moffat obtaining the first and Hammond the other. The Vets evened up soon after when Smith scored. Hammond put Vancouver in the lead once again with a pretty goal and in dying moments of the game the same player accounted for St. Saviour's fourth goal.

Esquimalt, Victoria Wests and United Services are now tied for the lead in the Combination Cup football series. These teams have each lost one game, the two latter clubs tasting defeat on Saturday afternoon in the second round. Saturday's games were keenly competed with the six teams putting up fine exhibitions. Large crowds were present at the three matches.

The results of the game were as follows: Sons of England 2, Victoria Wests 1. Esquimalt 4, United Services 0. Victoria United 1, James Island 1. At the Central Park the Wests received their first defeat of the series at the hands of the Sons of England. The Englishmen displayed fine combination work and their victory the greenshirts missed the services of Harry Copas who was unable to turn out. A half-time score of 1-0 was the result of a 1-1 score, but in the final half the Sons scored two well-earned goals while the greenshirts failed to find the net.

The game opened with the Englishmen playing ten men but Tuck, well one of their fullbacks soon made his appearance bringing the team back to full strength. The Wests opened the scoring a few minutes after the start when Nex, their inside left placed the ball in the net after a pretty bit of combination play. The greenshirts advantage was short lived as Quainton, the Sons' centre forward beat Whyte with a stinging shot a short while after.

After holding Esquimalt to even terms in the first half the United Services cracked in the second period of their match at Beacon Hill allowing the Dockers to run in four goals in the final twenty minutes. The Services were playing with one of their best players, John Watt, who was on the line-up.

Both goalies were fast in turn but no score had been registered when the half-time whistle blew.

Evans put his team ahead by scoring on several long shots. Jack McKenzie played a good game for the Falcons, being the highest scorer of the evening, with Doug Robertson following close behind. Tommy Macdoe refereed. The teams were as follows: Axioms—K. Forbes, M. Briggs, H. Styan, J. Wilson, M. Wilson, D. Watson. Esquimalt—H. D. Beat, B. Castley, I. Castley, B. Brian, A. Lomas and J. Arthur. Duncan—R. McDonald (8), A. D. Drome (5), J. Drome (5), A. Evans (5), Doc French (3), D. Tait and G. Drome. SCREEN SHOTS OF "THE MERRY WIDOW" BRILLIANT IN COLOR

Cast is Above Ordinary Set in Stellar Film Shown at Dominion Theatre This Week; Mae Murray and John Gilbert Enact Leading Roles.

At last "The Merry Widow" is here in film form. A brilliant cast in a magnificent color scheme is the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture showing all this week at the Dominion Theatre.

Mae Murray plays the "Merry Widow" of the picture. At the beginning of the story she is the "Princess Daniloff" as a cheap "distressed" trope; almost stranded in the Balkans. She marries an old roue with money, he dies, and she becomes the wealthiest woman in Europe, and later, the Queen of Montebalco. This part comes to Miss Murray as the crowning achievement of a long and brilliant career on the stage and in pictures.

John Gilbert is "Prince Danillo" to his fingertips. "Danillo" is a happy-go-lucky, devil-with-the-women sort of fellow, but he always manages to keep the sympathy of the audience, sometimes by sheer force of personality.

Roy D'Arcy leaps into the very front rank of screen villains. He achieves a finished performance as the "Crown Prince" in his first appearance before the camera.

Tully Marshall plays a role, the type of which is entirely new to him, that of the sensuous old Baron Sadoja, who marries Sally, the "Merry Widow" only to die on their wedding night.

George Fawcett and Josephine Crowell, the King and Queen of Montebalco, give a new sidelight on the life of royal families.

In addition to directing "The Merry Widow," Erich von Stroheim adapted it to the screen from the famous stage play by Victor Leon, Leo Stein and Franz Lehár. Benjamin Glazer collaborated in the adaptation and scenarization of the piece.

In translating the tremendously popular stage play by Franz Lehár, Leo Stein and Franz Lehár, Benjamin Glazer collaborated in the adaptation and scenarization of the piece.

The tremendous settings, with the spectacular costumes of the soldiers, courtiers, their women folk and the royalty, are so striking that it was decided to film the picture in natural colors. This greatly increases the spectacular effect of these huge scenes, in which the fast action is augmented by thousands of people. The coronation scene deserves particular mention. The intimate scenes are gems of photographic quality, as well, and are also filled with drama and natural humor.

Another scene that should be singled out from among the many is the scene of "The Merry Widow" waltz, which became famous in the original. As danced by Miss Murray and John Gilbert it will be considered one of the outstanding high spots of the picture. It comes at a dramatic moment of the story, the reunion of the lovers, and this, combined with its beauty, lifts it into one of the "big" scenes.

Hoot Gibson in New Thriller at Columbia Theatre

"Taming the Western Lassie" is Picture That Abounds With Action

Accidents not appearing in the script of the screen story often happen during the filming of a picture, adding unexpected thrills to the photoplay.

This is the case during the taking of Hoot Gibson's latest picture, "Taming the Western Lassie," a Universal-Gibson Special, now showing at the Columbia Theatre.

One of the most exciting bits of action is an automobile piloted by Gibson in a chase over the plains of a western ranch. The chase is replete with stunts and wild driving.

Speeding along at forty-five miles an hour Gibson struck a bad bump which broke an already weakened steering knuckle with the result that the car careened badly, taking a dangerous skid.

Thames Liquid History Mellow With Traditions

The Hudson may be a vast expanse of water, but the Thames is liquid history. This the English patriot who sees in the Thames the mellow history of the British Empire. In a moment he can pull aside the curtain of the centuries, and exhibit the kings who rose and fell; the poets who walked along its banks in search of inspiration, leaving behind them immortal names; the murderers who made its brown waters flow red with blood; the invaders who came and went; the pioneers who set out from its shores to go forth and found new worlds, writes "An American Girl," in The Washington Post.

LITTLE WAVE REMEMBERS

But the American sees it against a background of wide rivers which flow not with the mellowness of age and tradition, but with the fresh turbulency of youth. "Why, Ty Cobb could knock a home run across there any day," says the American base-ball enthusiast, "measuring with a squinted eye the distance from bank to bank, and not seeing, in his new world—pride, a little brown wave give a disgruntled shudder. The little wave probably remembers its great-grandfather telling of the day when Queen Elizabeth rode on his crest. "Not much for horse-power," the American business man says, visualizing the rushing turbulency of Niagara Falls, lighting cities for hundreds of miles around, and the Tennessee River, making a new era in electricity in America.

"Not much for fishing and camping," American youth laughs a little, when it remembers the beautiful French Broad, flowing with a gurgle through the green valleys and the blue mountains, its cold, sparkling waters filled with speckled trout, making vacation time a joy.

"GIVE US TIME"

"Give us time," pleads a professor of history in an American university, having in mind the stories which are taught the American school-children of Washington's historical crossing of the Delaware; the Jesuit missionaries who floated down the Mississippi in constant danger from the Redskins; to bring light to needy people; the Hudson, where the dauntless Englishman and his son were abandoned by their faithless crew, and where they come back occasionally to have a game of nine pins; the James, where Captain John Smith sailed his small boat to found Jamestown; the Potomac, the quiet, stately river on which George Washington built his home. "In time, we, too, shall have our traditions."

Then the little brown waves under London bridge give a lap of delight, and in their pride look at one another and remark that they were Englishmen who made all that history.

Lorna Duveen in "The Knockout" at Capitol To-day

Extra Girl Wins Big Role in Film as Leading Lady to Milton Sills

If Lorna Duveen, leading woman in Milton Sills' new starring picture, "The Knockout," now showing at the Capitol Theatre, had heeded the advice of her father she would be a clerk in an English law office.

In fact, Miss Duveen might never have been the interior of a studio. She was born in Nottingham, and her father was a business man who believed the place for woman is in an office, if not in the home. But Lorna, from the time she was a child "wanted to be a movie star."

While going to boarding school she was given a generous allowance. Out of this she saved every cent she could, and she finished school at the age of eighteen she had several hundred dollars in her bank account. She told her father she was going to America to enter the movies, but her plans did not meet with her father's sympathy.

Over his objections she crossed the Atlantic with her grandmother, and found her way to the New York studios of First National, where Earl Hudson was making "The Necessary Evil." She secured a position as an extra in one scene. A few weeks later she was again an extra in "The Making of O'Malley."

When Hudson selected the cast for "The Knockout" he recalled the innocent beauty of Lorna Duveen and sent for her.

Reginald Hincks Puts "Bringing Up Mother" on Stage

Universal-Jewel "Fifth Avenue Models" Screened at the Playhouse

"Bringing Up Mother" is another local tale by Reginald Hincks. "Bringing Up Mother" is the best of all his local tales.

Those who remember Ernie Petch and Marion Thornborrow some eighteen months ago in a show very similar to this, singing "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," anticipate of something good with a bigger and stronger cast and more comedy added. The picture comedy this week is Larry Semon, in "School Days," two reels of Larry's funniest comedy.

Fourteen widely known screen personages are prominently cast in support of Mary Philbin, star of "Fifth Avenue Models" Universal-Jewel, shown in the Playhouse Theatre, commencing to-day.

This production is the screen version of the sensational novel, "The Best in Life," by Muriel Fitt. The story became a best seller at once and the author was acclaimed the literary discovery of the year. Universal bought the picture rights because of its fitness for Miss Philbin, and decided to accord it an elaborate production.

The cast includes Norman Kerry, who played with Miss Philbin in "Merry-Go-Round," Josef Swickard, William Conkin, Rose Dione, with Miss Philbin in "The Rose of Paris," Rosemary Theby, Betty Francisco, Ruth Stonehouse, Jean Herschell, Robert Brower, Helen Lynch, Miss Doplin, George B. Williams, Bob McKenzie and Lee Moran.

MARTIN HARVEY TO TOUR CANADA IN DECEMBER

Judging from reports received from London, Sir John Martin-Harvey's tour of England, which closed October 19, proved one of the most successful that the famous actor-knight has ever enjoyed, both from an artistic and business standpoint. In presenting Shaw's "The Showing Up of Blanco Posnet" and Masefield's "The Death of Tinseltown" as a double bill, Sir John seemed to be flying in the face of Providence, as not even his firmest friends could be brought to believe that modern theatre-goers would support such heavy fare, but in spite of all sorts of discouragement, Sir John went ahead and scored one of the most sensational successes of his career.

Following the London season, Sir John Martin-Harvey will bring the entire company to Canada for a comprehensive tour of the Dominion, opening at Halifax December 21.

Gopher Prairie Now Factor in Setting Fashions

New York, Nov. 9.—The fashions of the country are not set by Broadway actresses or Parisian models. They are established by the buyers from the hinterland who make annual or semi-annual pilgrimages to Gotham.

The buyers of women's apparel come here from Junction City, Gopher Prairie and Plymouth. They first buy clothes for themselves—a suit, a cloak, a dress or two, a hat, gloves and shoes. Then they buy articles of similar style for their stores.

Only a few years back manufacturers of women's wear put their product on sale in New York. After several months they bunched up the unsold articles and shipped them to other cities. The effect of this was that girls and women in smaller cities and in the rural districts often were months behind the styles. And they were very self-conscious about this if they visited New York or a few of the other big cities.

This has changed. The women who walk out of the depots here are just as neatly and fashionably garbed as any New York woman, and often more so. Manufacturers distribute their product over the country at one time. The smallest cross-roads store is generally as up-to-date in the wares it handles as the most pretentious shops on Fifth Avenue.

"I wish to complain," said the young bride, haughtily, "about that flour you sold me. It was tough."

"Tough, ma'am?" asked the grocer.

"Yes, tough. I made a pie with it, and my husband could hardly cut it."

OPERA COMPANY IS ADDED ATTRACTION AT CAPITOL SHOW

So many favorable comments have been made on the Strand Opera Company during its engagement at the Capitol Theatre last week that the management have decided to hold it over for another week. The programme to be given this week has been carefully selected, and is one that will please all music lovers, the programme containing both light and classical numbers. This form of extra musical attraction has been quite popular with Capitol Theatre patrons as they find it a great acquisition to any picture programme.

The following are the numbers to be rendered afternoon and evening this week: "The Sweetest Call," Harry Pffel; duet, "Barcarolle," from "Tales of Hoffman," Miss Stout and Victoria Andrews; solo, "Mine," Solman, Carl Bundschu; solo, "Alone," Ed Andrews; prison scene from "Il Trovatore," Miss Pennington and ensemble.

Help! Help! Girls Take to Cigars, Pipes, Even Stogies

New York, Nov. 9.—Six months ago one swanky shop on Fifth Avenue displayed pipes and smoking requisites for women. Now there are dozens of shops in town selling pipes for women, special blends, tobacco pouches and match cases. And within the past few months several women smoking cigars have been noted.

On one occasion a flapper attempted to smoke an Italian stogie, but when she found it was nothing stronger, she smoked all of it and professed she enjoyed it. At the same time a man who was a confirmed cigar smoker turned deathly pale from the effects of just a few puffs of a similar cheroot.

And now come the sporty new trains to Florida. They have provided special smoking lounges for women. Men will not feel quite so cozy now about their club car privileges.

New York, Nov. 9.—If you're going to be a success in New York it will not take you long to know it. It is doubted if there is any other place in the world where the fate of a new business or a new career is decided so quickly.

There's Milt Gross, for instance. Two years ago he was drawing "filler" comics on an afternoon paper. Then he developed a comic strip that proved mildly successful. Then he developed a Yiddish comic which is a featured article each week in a Sunday paper. It is wildly successful, probably the most quoted

"The Boy" Now at Coliseum is Rich in Musical Score

"On the Stroke of Three," Associated Arts Production, New Film Feature

"The Boy," a musical version of Pinero's greatest play, "The Magistrate," which set all London talking, with Will Marshall back in the company in the title role after two weeks' vacation, is the stage attraction at the Coliseum this week. In addition the Coliseum will open Monday with the first of a series of big pictures which have been signed up for the winter. The screen offering will be "On the Stroke of Three," a production of the Associated Arts Corporation. Both attractions will be shown at a special matinee Thanksgiving Day. "The Boy" is rich in musical numbers with popular choruses and a score in bright comedy.

Built on a story of more than ordinary appeal, brilliantly directed by E. Harmon Weight, and enacted by a cast of splendid talent, the first Associated Arts production, entitled "On the Stroke of Three," is one of the best pictures which Hollywood has turned out in recent months. It will add materially to the prestige of the P.B.O. studios where it was produced, and will garner many laurels for Madge Bellamy, Mary Carr and Kenneth Harlan, who are the featured players. The story, which deals with the homely, interesting life of the simple mountain folk in the Ashluta Valley, as well as with the social whirl of New York's wealthiest set, is an adaptation of the novel, "The Man From Ashluta," by Henry Bayton Dowd, and it has been dramatized by Philip Lonergan without losing any of the charm and punch of the original. In the cast of supporting players are Eddie Phillips, John Milton, Dorothy Dahn, Robert Dudley and Edward Davis.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily and the Green Rain

Copyright, 1925, McClure Newspaper Syndicate

(By Howard R. Garis)

Uncle Wiggily, the rabbit gentleman, was deep down beneath a pile of dried leaves in the forest. He had fallen into the pile as he bounced out of the little express wagon in which Scooter and Tooter were giving him a ride to the broad store. "But I'll get you out from under the leaves," cried the Black Swan, trying through the forest. "I am glad to hear that," thought Mr. Longears, who was doing his best to paw his way out from beneath the rustling heap. But there were so many leaves that it seemed he never would get out. "Whish! Swish! Swish!" flapped the strong wings of the Black Swan as he stood in front of the leaves, blowing them about. Through the air they swirled, but still Uncle Wiggily did not appear. He was too deep down. And Scooter and Tooter, the rabbit boys, not knowing what had become of their daddycums, buried on home, after picking themselves up and standing the little wagon on its wheels again. All of a sudden, through the woods came making the Bob Cat, with his little tail trailing on behind. The Bob Cat saw the Black Swan, standing in front of the pile of leaves, and the bad chap snarled out: "What are you doing here?" The Black Swan was too large for the Bob Cat to bite, and, besides, the bird could easily fly away. So the Swan wasn't at all afraid of the Bob Cat. "What are you doing here?" snarled the bad chap again. Now the Black Swan did not want to tell the Bob Cat that Uncle Wiggily was under the pile of leaves. "If I do that," said the Swan to himself, "the Bob Cat will nibble the rabbit gentleman. Uncle Wiggily is smaller than the Bob Cat and Uncle Wiggily can not fly as I can.

What are you doing here? snarled the bad chap

And then, through the trees, sounded loud shouts. Uncle Wiggily looked for a place to hide, while the green rain fell harder and faster and the shouts sounded more loudly. And what it was all about he shall hear in the next story—that is if the hat pin doesn't make a hole in the rubber ball so all the molasses runs out and tickles the sidewalk.

Movie Mergers Set Broadway Buzzing

New York, Nov. 9.—Broadway buzzes with news of amalgamations in the movie industry. Most of the reports have to do with deals being made by Famous Players-Lasky in an attempt to gather all of the motion picture interest in a monopoly under the standard of Adolph Zukor. Of course, most of these reports are denied by Famous Players. And while all of this gossip goes on there is being disclosed some very interesting sidelights on property values. For instance, one reported deal involves the sale of Universal Pictures and it is declared on Broadway that the contract to Reginald Denny's services is worth $2,000,000. That, because he is the only player on the screen suited to play the same sort of role that Wally Reid played.

CRYSTAL GARDEN

COLUMBIA

Rome at Last to Have Historic War Museum

London, Nov. 9.—It seems strange that Rome, with all her warlike history, has never had a museum like the Invalides in Paris, or the Tower of London, the Arsenal at Berlin, that told in battle flags and battle weapons of the numerous wars in which old Rome and Italy have engaged down the years.

But now the start has been made and the most picturesque reminder of stirring days in Rome has been selected as the place where these numerous trophies are to be assembled and placed on exhibition. This place, standing since 149 A.D. is the Castel Sant' Angelo, or Hadrian's Mausoleum — that graceful round fortress that towers above the yellow Tiber hard by the huge Cathedral of Saint Peter's and almost directly across the comparatively new white marble Palace of Justice. In a lofty and spacious chamber of this old grey Papal fort have already been assembled nearly two hundred tattered flags that have been through many a bloody fight. Infantry regiments are represented by 124 flags, the cavalry by nineteen. There are nine banners of Bersaglieri regiments and 140 of the famous hard fighting Arditi. Every flag in the collection has had authentic battle service and most of them show their wounds in holes and tatters. Nearly all of the emblems so far collected are those used within the last century—carried by troops in wars which preceded Italy's unification under Victor Emmanuel II. These banners must seem very new to the brooding walls of the Castel Sant' Angelo, which has watched the banners of contending armies—some before it for over fifteen hundred years—seeing even its own statues hurled by Romans against Goths.

THE TIME-WORN TOWN

By J. S. Fletcher

"There was no secrecy about it, then?"
"Not between Wallingford and myself, at any rate."
The coroner took off his spectacles and leaned back in his chair—surely that he had done—and Meekling rose, cool, level-voiced.
"Dr. Wellesley, I think you heard the evidence of Mrs. Saumarez?"
But before Dr. Wellesley could make answer, the other doctors present in the court room were suddenly called into action. As the barrister pronounced her name, Mrs. Saumarez collapsed in her seat, fainting.

"Precisely."
Meekling allowed a minute to elapse, during which he affected to look at his papers. Suddenly he turned full on his witness.
"Who was the caller?"
Wellesley drew his tall figure still more erect.
"I refuse to say."
"Why?"
"Because I am not going to drag in the name of my caller. The business my caller came upon was of a very private and confidential nature and I am not going to break my rule of professional silence. I shall not give the name."
Meekling again paused. Finally, with a glance at the coroner, he turned to his witness and began to speak more earnestly.
"Let me put this to you," he said. "Consider—calmly, if you please—what we have heard already, from previous witnesses, and what you yourself have admitted. Mrs. Saumarez has sworn that you and the late mayor were rivals for her hand and that there was jealousy between you. You admit that Mrs. Saumarez is correct in identifying the burnt and blood-stained fragment of handkerchief found in the mayor's parlour as the murder—as your property. You also acknowledge the existence of a door communicating between your house and the Moot Hall. You further admit that you were away from your surgery for nineteen minutes at the very time the murder was committed—according to the medical evidence—and that you were in your drawing-room, from an inner room of which, the door I have just referred to, opens. Now I suggest to you, Dr. Wellesley, that you should give us the name of the person who was with you in your drawing-room."
Wellesley, who, during this scolding, had steadily watched his questioner, shook his head more decidedly than before.
"No!" he answered promptly. "I shall not say who my caller was."
Meekling spread out his hands in a gesture of helplessness. He turned to the coroner, who, for the first few minutes, had shown signs of being ill at ease, and had frequently shaken his head at Wellesley's point-blank refusals.
"I don't know if it is of any use appealing to you, sir," said Meekling. "The witness."
The coroner leaned towards Wellesley, his whole attitude placatory and inviting.
"I really think it would be better, Doctor, if you could find it in your way to answer Mr. Meekling's question."
"I have answered it, sir," interrupted Wellesley; "my answer is—no!"
"Yes, yes, but I don't want the jury to get any false impressions, to draw any wrong conclusions," said the coroner, a little testily. "I feel sure that in your own interest—"
"I am not thinking of my own interest," declared Wellesley. "Once again—I shall not give the name of my caller."
There was a further pause, during which Meekling and the coroner exchanged glances. Then Meekling suddenly turned again to the witness-box.
"Was your caller a man or a woman?" he asked.
"That I shall say!" answered Wellesley, steadily.

"Who admitted him—or her?"
"I did."
"How?" By what door of your house?"
"By the side-door in Piper's Passage."
"Did any of your servants see the caller?"
"No."
"How came that about? You have several servants."
"My caller came to that door by arrangement with myself at a certain time (seven-thirty), was admitted by me, and was taken straight up to my drawing-room by a side staircase. My caller left, when the interview was over, by the same way."
"The interview, then, was a secret one?"
"Precisely! Secret—private—confidential."
"And you flatly refuse to give us the caller's name?"
"Flatly!"
Meekling hesitated a moment. Then, with a sudden gesture, as though he were, he dropped back into his seat, and bundled his papers together, and made some evidently cynical remark to Hawthwaite who sat near him. But Hawthwaite made no response; he was watching the coroner, and in answer to a questioning glance, he shook his head.

"No more evidence," whispered Tansley to Brent, as Wellesley dismissed, stepped down from the witness-box. "What?—This is a queer business, and our non-responsive medical friend may come to rue his obstinacy. I wonder what old Sea-grave will make of it; he'll have to sum it all up now."

A WOMAN INTERVENS

In the midst of the commotion that followed and while Mrs. Saumarez, attended by the doctors, was being carried out the court room, Tansley, at Brent's elbow, drew in his breath with a sharp sibilant sound that came near being a whistle. Brent turned from the withdrawing figures to look at him questioningly.
"Well?" he said.
"Queer!" muttered Tansley. "Why should she faint?—I wonder."
"What?" demanded Brent, as the solicitor paused.
"I'm wondering if she and Wellesley know anything that they're keeping to themselves," said Tansley.
"She was obviously nervous and frightened when she was in that box just now."
"She's a nervous, highly-strung woman—and I should say, from what I've seen of her, remarked Brent. "Excitable!"
"Well, he's cool enough," said Tansley, nodding towards the witness-box.
"Hasn't turned a hair. Meekling'll get nothing out of him."
The barrister was again addressing himself to Wellesley, who, after one glance at Mrs. Saumarez as she fainted, had continued, erect and defiant, facing the court.
"You heard Mrs. Saumarez's evidence just now, Dr. Wellesley?" asked Meekling, quietly.
"I did."
"Was it correct?"
"I am not going to discuss it."
"Nor answer any questions arising out of it?"
"I am not!"
"Perhaps you will answer some questions of mine. Was there any jealousy existing between you and the late John Wallingford, of which Mrs. Saumarez was the cause?"
Wellesley hesitated, taking a full minute for evident consideration.
"I will answer that to a certain extent," he replied at last. "At the time of his death, no! None!"
"Had there been—previously?"
"At one time, yes. It was over."
"You and he were good friends?"
"Absolutely—both in private and public—a near, in public affairs. I was in complete touch and sympathy with him as regards his public work."
"Now, Dr. Wellesley, I think that for your own sake you ought to give us some information on one or two points. Mrs. Saumarez said on oath that you asked her to marry you, two or three times. She also said that the late Mayor asked her, too. Now—"
Wellesley suddenly brought down his hand on the ledge of the witness-box.
"I have already told you, sir, that I am not going to discuss my affairs with Mrs. Saumarez nor with the late mayor in relation to Mrs. Saumarez," he exclaimed with some show of anger. "They are private and have nothing to do with this inquiry. I shall not answer any question relating to them."
"In that case, Dr. Wellesley, you will lay yourself open to whatever conclusions the jury chooses to make," said Meekling. "We have already heard Mrs. Saumarez say what she did say. But as you won't answer, I will pass to another matter. You have already told us that the evidence of your assistant, Dr. Carstairs, is correct as to your movements between half-past seven and eleven minutes to eight—or rather during those nineteen minutes. You adhere to that?"
"Certainly! Carstairs is quite correct."
"Very well. Where were you during that time—nineteen minutes?"
"For the greater part of the time—in my drawing-room."
"What do you mean by 'greater part of the time'?"
"Well, I should say three parts of it."
"And the other part?"
"Spent in letting a caller in and letting the caller out."
"By your front door?"
"No, by a side door—a private door."
"You took this caller to your drawing-room?"
"Yes."
"For a private interview?"
