PREFACE.

It was at one time anticipated that the publication of selections from the Charters and Records of the Burgh of Stirling would, after the issue of the forthcoming volume of Glasgow Charters, be the next undertaking of the Scottish Burgh Records Society. Preparations for the volume had been in progress for some time, but, with the announcement that the work of the Society would in all probability be shortly brought to a close, it became necessary to consider the expediency of devising some other way of accomplishing the object in view. The Corporation of Stirling were not inclined to abandon altogether the proposed publication, and eventually they gave instructions for having at least the principal Charters printed, reserving for after consideration the question as to whether or not these should be followed by selections from the Council Records.

In compliance with the instructions thus given, the present volume has been compiled. In addition to a number of miscellaneous documents, it embraces all the Royal Charters granted to the Burgh, the originals of which have been found, as well as others transcribed from the Great Seal Register where the originals were not available.

The great bulk of the matter contained in the book has not been previously printed; but, to add to the completeness of the collection, especially in the earlier period, a few charters have been taken from some of the published chartularies and registers of religious houses issued by the Bannatyne and Grampian Clubs, and other publications have also been resorted to. In the Table of Contents will be found a reference to the source from which each document is taken.

The earliest royal charter known to have been granted to the Burgh of Stirling is that of King Alexander the Second, dated 18th August, 1226; but it is well known that Stirling had a municipal existence for at least a century before that time. The Charter of 1226 is granted to "our burgesses of Strivelyn," implying a previous burghal organization, while the charters of King David the First (1124-53) and King William the Lion (1165-1214), reprinted in this volume, refer to "my burgh" of Stirling as an existing institution. In the words of the warrant for the charter by King Charles the First, Stirling was "ane of the maist ancient burghes of this his Hienes kingdom of Scotland, being erectet before the days of unquhile King Alexander."

As accounting, so far, for the lateness in date of the first direct grant from the crown, it may be mentioned that it was not till the reign of Alexander's immediate predecessor that burghs appear to have begun to ask and obtain charters from the King. Alexander's charter to Stirling is somewhat similar to those granted to some other Royal Burghs in his and the preceding reign, and is partly made up of provisions imported from the old laws relating to burghs and made applicable to the special circumstances of Stirling. The original has not been preserved, but it has fortunately been engrossed at full length in a confirmatory charter by King David II., which is still in existence, and is in a good state of preservation. A facsimile of it, produced by photo-lithography, is prefixed to the volume.

There is also given the photo-lithograph of another charter, about which a word may be said. Originally each burgess, as a crown vassal, paid a yearly rent to the King for his property in the burgh. These rents, with the small customs, fines of the burgh court, &c., in course of time came to be collected by the bailies of the burgh, who, at intervals of usually a year or more, accounted for their intromissions to the Great Chamberlain, and had their accounts audited in exchequer. Afterwards the system erept in of burghs obtaining yearly tacks of their revenues, and eventually feu charters came to be given, whereby, in consideration of a fixed yearly payment, the community of a burgh obtained a renewed grant with a perpetual right to collect and apply to its own uses the rents, customs, and dues formerly levied by the Crown. Stirling obtained such a charter from King Robert the Second on 13th July, 1386, the annual feu-duty being fixed at £16.

When making a selection from the old charters and documents, such of them as were not considered to be of sufficient importance to be printed in full were arranged and inventoried, and of those abstracts of the more interesting are given in Appendix No. I. The remainder, about a hundred in number, are largely composed of titles to individual properties, and are not of much public interest.

The regular series of the records of the Town Council as now existing commence in 1597; but in searching amongst the old papers there were discovered some fragments of the earlier records embracing portions of the years 1561-3 and 1594-7. Extracts from these are printed in Appendix III. In Appendix II. are given abstracts of some of the documents contained in fragments of protocol books, (1473-80), which were also found in the course of the search.

In the frontispiece is given a representation of the old common seal of the Burgh. It is thus described in Mr. Henry Laing's "Descriptive Catalogue of Impressions from Ancient Scottish Seals":—

"Stirling, No. 1188.—A fine large seal, in excellent preservation, and of a remarkable design. A bridge of seven arches; from the centre one rises a large cross, with the Saviour extended. Above, on the dexter, a star, and on the sinister a crescent. On the dexter side of the cross are three soldiers armed with bows and arrows, the foremost one discharging his arrow towards three soldiers on the sinister side of the cross, who are armed with spears, the foremost one in the act of charging. Hic Armis Bruti Scoti Stant Hic Cruce Tuti."

"No. 1189.—Counter Seal.—The front of a castle; at each side are branches of foliage, and scattered round the top and sides are five stars and two roses. Continet Hoc In Se Nemus Et Castrum Strivelinse."

The old seal—the original matrix of which is still kept at Stirling—was the one appended to such of the documents printed in this volume as required to be attested in that way; but, as none of the seals so affixed are in a perfect condition, the plate has been drawn from a new cast taken for the purpose. The seal, also an ancient one, which is now generally used is the one of which an illustration is given on the title page.

Of late years materials, invaluable for a proper and authentic history of the ancient Burgh of Stirling, have been accumulating. The several club books, and the rapidly-increasing series of historical works issuing from the General Register House in Edinburgh, are full of deeply-interesting matter suitable, but hitherto almost entirely unused, for that purpose. It is hoped that the contents of this volume will tend still further to elucidate the history of the burgh, and possibly encourage the Corporation to entertain with favour the publication of a selection from their early records.

With the aid of the Table of Contents and the Index, in which, for convenience in genealogical research, every name is inserted, it is believed that there will be little difficulty in finding anything in the volume which may be wanted.

R. RENWICK.

TO ALL AND SUNDRY to whose knowledge the present letters shall come, the provost, bailies, councillors, and community of the burgh of Strivelin, greeting in Him who is the true salvation of all. Whereas it is a work of godliness and merit, and becomes our office, to bear soothfast testimony to everyone according to the truth of the fact, especially when it is proved and found before us, in a case wherein exceedingly the concealment of known truth may generate damage, injury, or expense to the innocent. IN THE NAME OF GOD, amen. By this present public instrument be it manifestly known to all that on the sixth day of November in the year of the incarnation of our Lord one thousand four hundred and ninety, in the eighth indiction, the seventh year of the pontificate of the most holy father in Christ and lord, lord Innocent the eighth, by divine providence, Pope, and in the third year of the reign of the most excellent prince and our sovereign lord King James the Fourth, most illustrious King of Scots : In presence of me, notary public, and witnesses underwritten, personally compeared a venerable man master Duncan Bully, archdeacon of Dunblane, passing to the aisle of the Holy Trinity situated and founded in the parish church of balliuorum necnon et consilio burgi antedicti de Striueling, vt ipse asseruit se esse patronum altarium Sancte Trinitatis et Sancti Thome, apostoli, et ibidem vniuit et coniuxit altare Sancti Thome, apostoli, ad altare Sancte Trinitatis, quia annui redditus eorundem fuerunt distructe per combustionem ville quod non potuerunt sustinere duos capellanos, sed minime vnum. Et immediate dictus magister Duncanus Bully, cum consensu et assensu propositi et balliuorum necnon et consilio burgi antedicti de Striueling contulit et dedit institutionem discreto viro, domino Roberto Symson, capellano de dictis altaribus, per tradicionem cornu altaris, semper et quousque dictus magister Duncanus potuit optinere certos annuos redditus de bonis suis sibi a Deo collatis, ad sustentionem duorum capellanorum. And immediately the said master Duncan Bully, with consent and assent of the provost and bailies and also with the council of the foresaid burgh of Striueling bestowed and gave institution to a discreet man, Sir Robert Symson, chaplain of the said altars, by delivering the horn of the altar, always and until the said master Duncan could obtain certain annual rents of his goods bestowed on him by God, for the support of two chaplains. Whereupon, all and sundry, the said Robert Simsoun asked from me notary public subscribing to make to him one or more public instrument or instruments. These things were done at the foresaid aisle in the foresaid parish church of Striueling the tenth hour before noon or thereabout, in the year, day, month, indiction and pontificate aforesaid. To hold and to have all and sundry the foresaid lands, tenements, houses, buildings, orchards, yards, crofts,

With power to the above mentioned provost, bailies, councillors, and community, and their successors, by themselves and their collectors whom they shall appoint, to uplift and receive the foresaid annual rents, fruits, duties, profits, and emoluments whatsoever wherever they were formerly uplifted, to let and remove from the foresaid lands and tenements, to build and repair the ruinous places, and to restore and apply the same to hospitals, or other similar lawful uses, as to them, with the advice of the ministers and elders ministrorum et seniorum dicti nostri burghi videbitur, reducendi et applicandi ; adeo libere in omnibus sicuti prefati prebendarii, capellani et fratres prescripti, eisdem perprius gaudere easdemque possidere potuissent. Memorati, autem, prepositus, balliui, consules et eorum successores, tenebuntur et astricti erunt, ministros, lectores, et alia ecclesiastica onera, prefatis annuis redditibus, proficuis, et denoriis, secundum valorem et quantitatem earundem, sustinere, locaque et edificia reparanda in hospitalitatem et alios vsus prescriptos applicare. Considerantes, itaque, quanta fraude ingens numerus dictorum prebendariorum, capellaniorum et fratrum prescriptorum, qui post alterationem religionis, terras, annuos redditus et emolumenta, ipsorum capellaniis, prebendis, et aliis locis respectiue perprius mortificatas, disposuerunt, alienarunt, et in manibus quorundem particularium virorum extradonarunt; acetiam quod plerique ligei, quarundem terrarum, tenementorum et annuorum reddituum peripsorum predecessores mortificatarum, jus sibi acclamarunt, per breuia capelle nostre, aut alias sasinam tanquam heredes suorum predecessorum qui easdem ecclesie perprius dotarunt, recuperarunt; quod euenit partim negligentia officiariorum dicti nostri burghi et partim collusione dictorum prebendariorum et capellanorum et fratrum prescriptorum; quocirca, cum auisamento pre-of our said burgh, shall seem fit ; as freely in all respects as the foresaid prebendaries, chaplains and friars before written, might have enjoyed or possessed the same aforetime. Moreover, the said provost, bailies, councillors and their successors, shall be holden and obliged to support the ministers, readers, and other ecclesiastical charges, out of the foresaid annual rents, profits and duties, according to the value and quantity of the same, and to apply the places and buildings to be repaired for hospitality and other uses foresaid. Besides, considering how dishonestly a great number of the said prebendaries, chaplains and friars foresaid, have, since the change of religion, disponed, alienated and given away into the hands of certain private persons the lands, annualrents and emoluments previously mortified to their chaplainries, prebends and other places respectively; and also that very many of the lieges have claimed for themselves, by briefes of our chancery, the right to certain lands, tenements and annualrents mortified by their predecessors, or otherwise have again obtained sasine as heirs of their predecessors who previously gifted the same to the church; which has happened partly through the negligence of the officers of our said burgh and partly through the collusion of the said prebendaries, chaplains scripto, omnes et singulas huiusmodi alienationes, dispositiones et sasinas, quibus primum propositum et animus fundatorum infringitur, alteratur et variatur, diducendo easdem in particulares vsus, ad effectum quod eodem in vsus suprascriptos conuerte poterunt, per presentes, rescindimus et annullamus; quamquidem hanc nostram declarationem volumus tanti esse roboris et efficacie acsi persone que easdem dispositiones obtinuerunt particulariter citate essent ipsarumque infeofamenta absque vltiori processu rescinderentur. Acetiam, cum anisamento prescripto, vnimus et incorporamus omnes et singulas terras, tenementa, domos, edificia, ecclesias, cymiteria, capellas, pomeria, hortos, croftas, annuos redditus, fructus, deuorias, proficua, emolimenta, firmas, elemosinas, obitus, anniuersaria, fratrum loca, hortos earundem, cum suis pertinentiis, in vnum corpus inposterum appellanda Fundatio nostra Ministerii et Hospitalitatis de Striuiling. Volumus, etiam, quod vnica sasina per prefatos propositum et balliuos aut eorum aliquem, dicti ministerii et hospitalitatis nomine, apud pretorium dicti nostri burghi semel accepta, tam sufficiens erit sasina perpetuo in futurum acsi eadem super particulares terras ad dictos capellanos, prebendarios et fratres, pertinentes, aut ipsis in prefatos annuos redditus, anniuersaria, firmas, proficua et deuoria prescripta debitas, and friars foresaid; wherefore, with advice foresaid, we, by these presents, rescind and annul all and sundry such alienations, dispositions and sasines, by which the first purpose and will of the founders is infringed, altered and changed, by perverting the same to private uses, to the effect that the same may be converted to the purposes above set forth; and this our declaration we will to be as strong and effectual as if the persons who obtained the said dispositions had been particularly cited and their infeftments rescinded without further process. As also, with advice foresaid, we unite and incorporate all and sundry lands, tenements, houses, buildings, churches, churchyards, chapels, orchards, yards, crofts, annual-rents, fruits, duties, profits, emoluments, rents, alms, obits, anniversaries, friars' places, yards of the same, with their pertinents, in one body in all time coming, to be called our Foundation of the Ministry and Hospitality of Striuiling. We will, also, that one sasine taken once for all at the tolbooth of our said burgh by the foresaid provost and bailies, or any of them, in name of the said ministry and hospitality, shall be as sufficient a sasine in all time coming as if the same were taken upon the particular lands belonging to the said chaplains, prebendaries and friars, or in the

sumeretur, non obstante locorum distantia. Preterea, per presentes nolumus capellanos, prebendarios et fratres qui ante dictam alterationem prouisi erant, per hoc presens nostrum infeofamentum, preiudicari, sed reseruamus illis vsum dictorum fructuum et deuoriarum durante eorum vita tantum. Precipiendo, itaque, nostrorum computorum rotulatoribus, presentibus et futuris, ipsorum collectoribus, factoribus et aliis quorum interest in genere necnon in specie, vt ne quis eorum recipere aut leuare presumat dictos fructus particulariter suprascriptos pro quouis tempore, preterito seu futuro, neue impediunt aut impedimentum vllum faciant memoratis preposito, balliuus, consulibus, communitati, et eorum successoribus, in pacifica possessione earundem. Requirendo et ordinando etiam dominos nostre sessionis quatenus literas in omnibus quatuor formis, ad instantiam dictorum prepositi, balliuorum, consulum, communitatis, et ipsorum successorum, ad effectum suprascriptum dirigant. Necnon precipiendo quibuscunque intromissoribus cum dictis fructibus quatenus ipsis de eisdem prompte intendant, pareant et gratam solucionem faciant. Besides, by these presents we will that no prejudice be done to the chaplains, prebendaries and friars who were in possession before the said echange, by this our present infeftment, but we reserve to them the use of the said fruits and duties during their lives only. Direeting, accordingly, our comptrollers, present and future, and their collectors, factors, and others whom it concerns in general as well as in special, that none of them presume to receive or to levy the said fruits particularly above described for any time whatever, past or future, or offer any obstruction or impediment to the foresaid provost, bailies, counceillors, community and their successors, in the peaceable possession of the same. Requiring and ordaining also our lords of session that they direct letters in all the four forms, at the instance of the said provost, bailies, counceillors, community and their successors to the effect above written. Also commanding all intromitters with the said fruits that they give prompt attention, obey and make willing and ready payment to them of the same. CAROLUS, Dei gratia, Magne Britannie, Francie et Hibernie, Rex, fideique defensor: Omnibus probis hominibus totius terre sue, clericis et laicis, salutem. Sciatis nos, considerantes antiquum burgum nostrum de Stirling olim erectum fuisse in liberum burgum regalem, et de tempore in tempus per preclarissimos nostros progenitores multifariis privilegiis imbutum,² respectu habito commode et opportune situationi dicti burgi et castri nostre de Stirling eidem adjacentis, vbi multi predecessorum nostrorum nati et educati fuerunt; necnon consideratione habita bonorum et gratuitorum servitiorum

CHARLES, by the grace of God, King of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, and defender of the faith: To all good men of his whole land, clerics and laics, greeting. Know ye that we, considering that our ancient Burgh of Stirling had formerly been erected into a free Royal Burgh, and had from time to time been endowed by our most illustrious progenitors with many various privileges, respect being had to the commodious and accessible situation of the said burgh and of our castle of Stirling adjacent thereto, where many of our predecessors were born and educated; and also consideration being had to the good and

¹ The original of this charter not having been found, it has been printed from an official extract from the register of the Great Seal certified by the late Mr. William Robertson, keeper of the records, and the print has been collated with the register itself. For filling in blanks in parts of the charter where the writing in the register is obliterated or illegible, recourse has been had to a precept of sasine following on the charter, of the same date with it, and indorsed by Lord Scotstarvet, director of chancery, on 3rd October, 1648. The precept, with the instrument of sasine thereon (expede 13th, and recorded in the general register of sasines at Edinburgh 17th October, 1648), are still preserved.

The print has also been collated with a copy of the charter made, in 1714, apparently from the original. Where the variations in the register and copy are not merely verbal, such as the substitution of "prefatis" for "prenominatis," "vel" for "seu," "dictis" for "predictis," &c., or arise from the transposition of words without alteration of the meaning, the different readings are given in foot-notes, the letter "C" in these denoting "copy charter made in 1714."
