Assortir, to sort or suit out, to furnish, to set in order, quia Assartum est quod redactum est ad culturam. And an offence committed in the Forrest (by plucking up those woods by the roots, that are thickets or coveris of the Forrest, and by making them plaine, as arable land, is Assart) so that Assart, is the greatest offence that may be done in the Forrest. For, whereas other wifes are by felling, and cutting downe of the couerts, which may grow againe in time, an Assart is a plucking them up by the roots. Likewise Bracton saith, lib. 4. cap. 38. nu. 11. Boscus efficitur Assartum, & redactus in culturam.

Lat. tingere, to stain, to die, colour. Vnde Gal. Teint, Lat. Tinctus, stained, as we say, he is attained or Tainted of Treason, &c. i. stained. A man is attained two manner of waies: by Appearance, or by Proces. ¶ Stanf. Pl. cor. fo. 44. Attaint by Appearance, is by Confession, Battle, or Verdict. Idem, fo. 122. By Confession, as being asked, Guilty or not guilty, answereth, Guilty, neuer putting himselfe vpon the verdict of the Iurie. By Battle, when the party appealed by another, and chusing to trie the truth by Combat, rather then by Iurie, is vanquished. By Verdict, when the Prisoner at the barre, answering to the indictment Not guilty, and yet is found by the verdict guilty. Idem, fo. 108. & 192. Attaint also is a Writ, and lieth where a false verdict is giuen by 12. men, and iudgement giuen thereon; the partie against whom they haue passed, may haue a Writ of Attaint against the 12. men, as partiall, and to haue giuen sentence contrary to the evidence shewed vnto them. And whereas before, vpon the first Enquest, commonly they all be Ycomen, now vpon this Attaint, must goe 24. Gentlemen dwelling within the Shire. The matter is pleaded againe before the same Iudges: but there must in the Attaint no more evidence be brought in, but only that which was brought in, and alledged before the first Enquest. If this second Enquest doe finde that the first haue gone partially, and against the evidence brought in before them, the first Enquest is called Attainted, and accounted as perjured and infamed, and shall forfeit to the King their Lands and Tenements, &c. But if the 24. doe adiudge as the first, the Plaintiffe that brought that Attaint, shall be imprisoned, and ransomed at the Kings will. 23. H. 8. c. 3. Reade more de Repub. Angl. by Sir Tho. Tract. 2. cap. 8. num. 8. 9. dist. à G. Bailér, i. tradere, to deliuer vp, because he is then deliuered into the bands of them that binde themselves for his forth-comming. M. Manwood in his first part of Forest Lawes, pag. 167. maketh a great difference betwixt Baile and Mainprife. For (saith he) he that is mainprised, is alwaies said to be at large, and goe at his owne libertie, out of ward, after he is let to mainprife, vntill the day of his appearance. But it is otherwise where a man is let to Baile, by 4. or 2. men, or by the L. Chiefe Iustice in Eyre of the Forest, vntill a certain day. For he is alwaies accounted by the Law, to be in their ward and custodie for the time they vnderooke for him. And they may, if they will, keepe him in ward or prison, all that time, so that he that is so bailed, shall not be said, by the Law, to be at large, or at his owne libertie. Or Baile may be said of the suretie which is baille, i. giuen or deliuered vp as a pledge to answer. So is the suretie said to be Baile for another man, Baille, i. giuen or deliuered vp, that if the Principall appare not at the day appointed, the Baile is to answer the Action or matter. Baile is called in Latine Manucapcio. Vide Mainprife.

Parliaméntum, which be high Courts, whence lieth no appeale, within the Precincts of which, there be seuerall Prouinces, vnto which within themselves, Iustice is ministred by certaine Officers called Baillifz, as in England the chiefe Magistrates of diuers Townes Cöporate be called Baillies, who haue the same Authoritie in their Iurisdiction, as the Baillies in France. And as our Realme of England is diuided into Countries, or Shires, so is euery Countie diuided into Hundreds, within the which, in ancient time, the Kings Subiects had Iustice ministred vnto them by the seuerall Officers of euery Hundred, which were called Baillies. And a Bailliefe, as Bracton writeth, lib. 3. Tract. 2. cap. 34. num. 5. might hold Plea of Appeale and Approuers. But sithence that time, these Hundred Courts (certaine Franchises excepted) are by Statute, An. 14. Ed. 3. Stat. 1. cap. 9. brought into Countie Courts. In which in former time, Iustice hath bene ministred to the Inhabitants of each Countie, by the Vicount, which we call Shyreuee, the one name descending from the Normans, the other from the Saxons, as Reuee of the Shyre, which word Reuee, in the Saxon, signifieth also a Bailliefe. Whereby it is probable, that in ancient time the Baillies did administer Iustice to the Inhabitants of the whole Countie, because the Countie is called many times Balliua, i. a Bailliwicke, as Kirch. Retur. Breu. fol. 258. Non est inuentus in Balliua, &c. In England there be Baillies Errants, and Baillies of Franchises, which in our Law or Vulgar Latine, are called (Balliuu itinerantes) i. going bi-ther and thither in the Countie to serue Writs, and summon the Countie Sessions, Assises, and such like, &c. which are made and appointed by the Sheriefe. (Balliuu Franchisarum aut Libertatum) are those that be appointed by euery Lord within his Libertie, to doe such Offices within his Precincts, as the Baillie Errant doth at large within the Countie. There be also Baillies of the Forrest, & Manwood, part. 1. pag. 113. With vs in England there be Baillies of Husbandrie, belonging to a Mannor, or to private men of much lands and substance, who seeme to be so called for the reason aboue written, for that they dispose of the vnder seruants, euery man to his labour and taske, checke them for misdoing their businesse, gather the profits of their Lord and Master, and deliuer vp an account. This also among the Saxons was called a Reuee, for the word, Bailliefe, came in with the Normans, and Rebutius in constitut. regias de senten. executionis, art. 7. glof. 1. writeth, that it cometh from the Heb. בַּיַּל baal, i. dominus, a master, because Baillies command and beare rule in stead of their Masters. The Latine word is Villicus.

It is used in our common law, for an impediment that bindereth a man to be a Clerke, and so for a prisoner to lose the benefit of his Clergie, by reason he hath bene twice married. For the Canonists hold that he that hath bene twice married, may not be a Clerke, and they ground it upon these words of S. Paul to Timothy, the first Epistle, chap. 3. vers. 2. Oportet ergo Episcopum irreprehensibilem esse, & vnus vxoris virum, & D. Couell. demised at the Councell of Lions, upon some dislike of second marriages, as the Author of the new Termes of Law saith, by which also they hold him that hath married a widow, and by interpreta-tion, take to haue bene twice married. And both these they doe not only exclude from holy orders, but also deny them all priuiledges of Clergie. But at this day by force of the Act made in An. 1. Ed. 6. cap. 12. and to that may be added the statute An. 10. Eliz. cap. 7. which for the loue of learning alloweth all men that can reade, as Clerkes, to haue the benefit of their Clergie, in case of Felony. If you be desirous to see what reasons they haue against second marriages, you may reade, among others, Francis Petrarch, de remedio vtriusq; fortune, lib. 1. Dialog. 76. intituled, The second Marriage. Which Booke is truly translated, and with good grace, out of Latine into English, & most fitly called, Physicke against fortune, by Mr. Thomas Twyne Dr. of Physicke.

- Capias. 2030 Capias is a Writ of two sorts, one before Iudgement, called Capias ad respondendum, and if the Sheriffe retorne Nihil habet in balliua sua, &c. then the Proccesse is alias Capias, and Pluries, and an Exigent, and they are called Capias ad respondendum: Also the Exigent shall be proclaimed five times, if the partie doth not appeare, hee shall be outlawed, q. New Termes of Law: the other is a Writ of Execution after Iudgement, being also of diuers kindes, viz. Capias ad satisfaciendum, Capias pro fine, Capias vlagatum & inquiras de bonis & catalis, which at large is declared in q. Natura breuium.
- b Capias ad satisfaciendum, is a Writ of Execution after Iudgement, lying where a man recovereth, in an action personal, as debt or damages, or detinew, in the Kings Court: and he against whom the debt is recovered, and hath no Lands or Tenements, nor sufficient goods, whereof the debt may be leuied: In this case, he that recovereth shall haue this Writ to the Sheriffe, commanding him, that hee take the bodie of him, against whom the debt is recovered; and he shall be put in prison, untill satisfaction be made vnto him that recovered.
- c Capias pro fine, is where one being by Iudgement Fined vnto the King, vpon some offence committed against a Statute, doth not discharge it, according to the Iudgement: For by this is his bodie taken, and committed to prison, untill hee content the King for his Fine, q. Coke lib. 3. cap. 12. 2.
- d Capias vlagatum, is a Writ of Execution, or after Iudgement, which lieth against him that is outlawed vpon any suit; by the which the Sheriffe vpon the receipt thereof, apprehendeth the partie outlawed, for not appearing vpon the Exigent, and keepeth him in safe custodie, untill the day of the retorne assigned in the Writ, and then presenteth him to the Court, there further to be ordered for his Contempt.
- e Capias vlagatum & inquiras de bonis & catallis, is a Writ all one with the former next before, but that it giueth a further power to the Sheriffe, ouer and besides the apprehension of his bodie, to enquire also of his goods and cattels.

Lupan. which Cancelling is made with lines drawn a crosse like lattices, i. Lat. Cancelli; and it is to be thought that Iudgement Seats in old time were compassed in with these lattices or barres crosse-waies, being found very fit to defend the Iudges and other Officers, from the presse of the multitude, and yet neuer the more to hinder any mans view that had a desire or cause to obserue what was done, as * Chancels were so diuided from the bodie of the Church, and thereupon called Chancels.

b Chancelour in other Kingdomes, as also in ours, is a Tide giuen to him, that is the Chiefe man for matter of Iustice (in Ciuill causes especially) next vnto the Prince. For whereas all other Iustices in our Common-wealth are tied to the Law, and may not strue from it in Iudgement; the Chancelor hath in this a more absolute power, to moderate and temperate the written Law, ordering all things iuxta æquum & bonum, and therefore q. Stawford Prærog. cap. 20. fol. 65. saith that the Chancelor hath two Powers, one Extraordinarie, the other Ordinarie, meaning that though by his Ordinarie power in some cases, hee must obserue the forme of proceeding, as other ordinary Iudges, yet that in his Extraordinarie power, hee is not limited by the written Law, but by Conscience, according to the circumstance of the matters in question. This high Officer seemeth to be driued from France to vs, as many other Officers and Vtages are: For of this thus writeth Boerius, Tract. de Autoritate magni concilij, nu. 8. Consistorio Franciæ, post Principem, Dominus Franciæ cancellarius qui velut excelsum Iudicij tribunal hoc in regno (sub principe i. vno nostro) moderans, sigillum Authenticum (sine quo sigillo publicis & patentibus Regij literis nulla fides adhibetur) & liberam administrationem habens, omnes & singuli Regij Iusticiarij eo inferiores sunt. He that beareth this magistracie and high office, is called the Lord Chancelor of England, q. An. 7. R. 2. cap. 14. and by the Statute q. An. 5. Eliz. cap. 18. the Lord Chancelor, and the Lord Keeper of the Great Seale of England, haue all one power.

There be in England diuers other inferiour Chancelors, as c * Chancelor of the Exchequer, q. An. 6. H. 8. cap. 6. whose Office hath bene thought by many for the qualifying of the Extremities in the Exchequer: he sitteth in the Court, and in the Exchequer Chamber, and with the rest of the Court ordereth things to the Kings best benefite. He is alwaies in Commission with the Lord Treasurer, for the letting of the lands that come to the Crowne by the Dissolution of Abbeyes, and hath by Priuie Seale from the King, power, with others to compound for forfeiture of bonds, and forfeitures of penall Statutes: Hee hath also much to doe, in the Reuenue come by the dissolution and first fruits, as appeareth by the Acts and Statutes, of vnitng them to the Crowne.

* Chancelour of the Exchequer.

d * Chancelor of the Duchie of Lancaster, An. 3. Edw. 6. cap. 1. & An. 5. ejusd. cap. 26. whose office is principally in that Court to Iudge and determine all controuersies betweene the King and his Tenants of the Duchie land, and otherwise to direct all the Kings affaires belonging to that Court.

b Clarke of the Crowne in the Chaucery, Clericus Coronæ in Cançellaria, is an Officer there, that by himselfe, or his Deputie, is continually to attend the Lo. Chauncellour, or Lo. Keeper, for speciall matters of estate, by Commission, or the like, either immediatly from his Maiesie, or by order of his priuy counsell, as well ordinary as extraordinary: viz. Commissions of Lieutenancies, of Iustices errant, i. Iustices of Assises, Iustices of oyer and terminer, of goale deliuey of the Peace, and suchlike: with their Writs of Association, and Dedimus potestatem for taking of oathes. Also all generall pardons vpon grants of them at the Kings Coronation, or at a Parliament, where he sitteth in the higher house at the Parliament time, the Writs of Parliament, with the names of Knights, and Burgesies, which bee to be returned into his Office. He hath also the making of all speciall pardons and Writs of Execution, vpon bonds of Statute, of the Staple forfeited: which was annexed to his Office in the reigne of Queene Mary, in consideration of his continuall and chargeable attendance, both these before being for every Courtitour and Clarke of Court to make.

c Clarke of the Crowne, Clericus Coronæ, is an Officer in the Kings Bench, whose function is to frame, read and record all Indictments against Traitors, Felons, and other offenders there arraigned, vpon any publike crime. Hee is otherwise termed Clarke of the Crowne Office. And Anno 2. H. 4. ca. 10. hee is called Clarke of the Crowne, of the Kings Bench. The reason of his denomination is because he reads and records Indictments against Traitors, Felons, &c. which are against the Kings Crowne and dignitie.

f Clarke of the Extreats, Clericus extractorum, belongeth to the Exchequer, who termely receiue the extreats out of the L. Treasurers Remembrancer his office, and writeth them out to be leued for the King. He also maketh Cedulae for such summes extreated, as are to be discharged. Vi. Extreats, vel potius Extreats.

g Clarke of Assise, Clericus Assise, is he that writeth all things judicially done by the Iustices of Assises, in their Circuits. Crompt. Iurisd. fol. 227.

h Clarke of the Pell, Clericus Pellis, belongeth to the Exchequer, whose office is to enter every tellers bill into a parchment Roll, called Pellis receptorum, i. the skinne or Roll of Receipts, and also to make another Roll of payments, which is called Pellis exituum, wherein he sets downe by what warrant the money was paid, and thereof called Pel, or Pell, of the Lat. Pellis, a skinne. So that his Office is, for all receipts and payments to the King, for what cause soeuer, or by whomsoeuer.

i Clarke of the Warrants, Clericus Warrantorum, is an Officer belonging to the Court of Common Pleas, which entreteth all Warrants of Atturney for Plaintiffe and Defendant, and enrolleth all Deeds of Indenture of bargain and sale, which are acknowledged in the Court, or before any Iudges out of the Court. And hee doth extreat into the Exchequer all Issues, Fines, and Amercements, which grow due to the King any way in that Court: and hath a standing Fee of 10 l. of the King for making the same extreats. Vi. Fitz. Nat. br. fo. 76.

k Clarke of the Petit Bagge, Clericus parua Bagia, is an Officer in the Chauncerie, of which sort there be three, and the Master of the Rolles is their chiefe. Their Office is to record the Returne of all Inquisitions out of every shire, all Liueries granted in the Court of Wards, all ouster les mains, to make all Patents of Customers, Gawgers, Controllers, and Aunegers, all conge d'ellires for Bishops, all Liberateis vpon extent of Statute Staples, the recouery of Recognizances forfeited, and all Elegits vpon them, the summons of the Nobility, Clergy, and Burgesies of the Parliament, Commissions directed to Knights and other of every Shire, for raising of the Subsidies, Writs for the nomination of Collectors, and all traueses vpon any office, bill or otherwise, and to receive the money due to the King for the same. This Officer is mentioned, Anno 33. H. 8. cap. 22. and it is like had first this denomination and stile of Petrie Bagges, because hauing to doe with so many Records of diuers Kindes as aboue mentioned, they were put in sundrie leather bags, which were not so great as the Clerke of the Hamper now useth, and therefore might be called Petrie Bagges, small or little bags. Vi. Clarke of the Hamper.

l Clarke of the Kings great Wardrobe, Clericus magna Garde-robae Regis, is an Officer of the Kings house, that keepeth an account or Inuentarie in writing, of all things belonging to the Kings Wardrobe. This Officer is mentioned, Anno 1. Ed. 4. cap. 1.

m Clarke or Comptroller of a Market, Clericus mercatus sine fori, called according to the Greeke name. G. Agoranóme. I. H. Agoranóme. L. Agoranómus. Gr. ἀγορανόμος, ab ἀγορά, i. forum, the market place, & νόμος, i. administro, rego, to gouerne or order. It is an Officer in the Kings house, mentioned, Anno 1. Ed. 4. ca. 1. & Anno 13. R. 2. cap. 4. whose dutie is to take charge of the Kings measures, and to keepe the Standards of them (that is) the Examples or Patternes of all the Measures that ought to be thorow the Land: as of Elnes, Elles, Yards, Lagens, as Quarts, Portles, Gallons, &c. of Weights, Bushels, and suchlike, and to see that all measures in every place be answerable to the said Standard or Patterne. Fleta lib. 2. cap. 3, 9, 10, 11, 12. of which Office, as also of our diuersitie of weights and measures, you may there finde a Treatise worth the reading. Britton also in his 30. Chapter, saith in the Kings person to this effect: We will that none haue measures in the Realme but Wee our selues, but that euery man take his measure and weights from our Standards: And so goeth on with a Treatise of this matter, that well sheweth the ancient Law and practise in this point: Touching this Officers dutie, you haue also a good Statute, Anno 13. R. 2. ca. 4.

n Clarke of the Kings Siltuer, Clericus Argenti Regis, is an Officer belonging to the Court of Common Pleas, vnto whom euery fine is brought, after it hath bene with the Custos Breuium, and by whom the effect of the Writ of conenant is entered into a paper Booke; and according to that note, all the Fines of that terme are also recorded in the Rolles of the Court. And his entrie is in this forme: He putteth the Shire ouer the margin, and then saith, B. C. dat Domino Regi dimidiam merkam (or more according to the value) pro licentia concordandi D. cum D. E. pro talibus terris in tali villa, & habet Chirographum per pacem admissum, &c.

Sessions of the Peace. His dutie is in the Sessions to read the Indictments, to enroll the Aets, and draw the proccesse, to record the Proclamations of rates for seruants wages, to enroll the discharge of Apprentices, to keepe the Counterpaine of the Indenture of Armour, to keepe the Register Booke of Licences giuen to Badgers and Laders of corne, and of those that are licensed to shoot in guns, and to certifie into the Kings Bench transcripts of Indictments, Outlawries, Attainders, and Conuictions, had before the Iustices of peace within the time limited by Statute, ¶ Lamb. Eirenarchia lib. 4. ca. 3. fo. 379.

P ¶ Clarke of the Signet, Clericus Signetti, is an Officer continually attendant on his Maiesties Secretary, who alwaies hath the custodie of the priuie Signet, as well for sealing his Maiesties priuate Letters, as also such grants as passe his Maiesties hands by Bill assigned. Of these there be foure that attend in their course, and were used to haue their diet at the Secretaries table. More largely you may read of their Office in the Statute made An. 27. H. 8. ca. 11.

q ¶ Clarke of the Priuie Seale, Clericus Priuati Sigilli, is an Officer (whereof there be foure in number) that attendeth the Lord Keeper of the Priuie Seale, or if there be none such, upon the Principall Secretarie, writing and making out all things that be sent by warrant, from the Signet to the Priuie Seale, and are to be passed to the Great Seale, as also to make out (as they are termed) Priuie Seales, upon any especiall occasion of his Maiesties affaires, for lone or lending of money or such like. Of this Officer and his function, you may reade the Statute, Anno 27. H. 8. ca. 11.

r ¶ Clarke of the Juries, or Jurata Writs, Clericus Iuratorum, is an Officer belonging to the Court of Common Pleas, which maketh out the Writs called Habeas Corpora, and Distringas for appearance of the Iurie, either in Court, or at the Assises, after that the Iurie or panell is returned upon the Venire facias. He entred also into the Rolles the awarding of these Writs, and maketh all the continuance from the going out of the Habeas Corpora, untill the verdict be giuen.

* Clarke of the Pipe.

s ¶ Clarke of the Pipe, Clericus Pipæ, is an Officer in the Kings Exchequer, who hauing all accounts and debts due vnto the King, delivered and drawne downe out of the Remembrancers Offices, chargeth them downe into the Great Roll: who also writeth summons to the Shyreuee to leuie the said debts, upon the goods and chattells of the said debtors: and if they haue no goods, then doth hee draw them downe to the Lord treasurers Remembrancer, to write Extreates against their Land. The Ancient Reueneue of the Crowne, remaineth in charge before him, and he seeth the same answered by the Fermers and Shyreuees to the King. He maketh a charge to all Shyreuees of their summons of the Pipe and Greene wax, and seeth it answered upon their accounts. He hath the ingrossing of all leases of the Kings Lands: and it is likely that it was at the first called, and still hath denomination of Pipe, and Clarke of the Pipe, and Pipe Office, because that from their great Roll, called the Great Roll, Anno 37. Ed. 3. cap. 4. issue as from a Pipe all Proccesses whereby the King recovereth any thing due vnto him, or discharge the same, ¶ Powell, his direction for search of Records, Pag. 43. l. 4.

* Clarke of the Hamper.

t ¶ Clarke of the Hamper or Hanaper, Clericus Hanaperij, is an Officer in Chauncerie, Anno 2. Ed. 4. ca. 1. otherwise called Warden of the Hamper in the same Statute, whose function is to receiue all the money due to the Kings Maiestie for the Seales of Charters, Patents, Commissions, and Writs, as also Fees due to the Officers for enrolling and examining the same, with such like. He is tied to attendance on the Lord Chancelour, or Lord Keeper daily in the Terme time, and at all times of Sealing hauing with him leather bagges, wherein are put all Charters, &c. after they be sealed by the Lo. Chancelour, and those bagges being sealed up, with the Lo. Chancellors priuate Seale, are delivered to the Comptroller of the Hamper, or Hanaper. Whereas now the Clarke hath with him, leather bagges to put in the Charters, it is likely in old times they were Hampers or Baskets, and thereof called Clarke of the Hamper, or Hanaper. This Hanaper representeth a shadow of that which the Romanes termed Fiscum, that contained the Emperours Treasure.

u ¶ Clarke of the Plees, Clericus Placitorum, is an Officer in the Exchequer, in whose Office all the Officers of that Court (upon especiall priuiledge belonging vnto them) ought to sue or to be sued upon any Action, and thereof called Plees, and Common Plees, because places whereupon Actions in Law are impleaded and sued. Vi. Plea.

w ¶ Clarke of the Treasurie, Clericus Thesaurariæ, is an Officer belonging to the Common Plees, who hath the charge of keeping the Records of that Court, and maketh out all Records of Nisi prius, hath the Fees due for all searches, and hath the certifying of all Records in the Kings Bench, when a writ of error is brought, and maketh out all writs of Superfideas de non molestando, which are granted for the Defendants, while the writ of error hangeth. Also he maketh all exemplifications of Records being in the Treasurie. He is taken to bee seruant to the Chiefe Iustice, but remouable at his pleasure, whereas all other Officers are for terme of life. There is also a Secundarie or Vnder-clerke of the Treasurie for assistaunce, which hath some allowances. There is likewise an Vnder keeper, who alwaies keepeth one key of the Treasurie doore, and the chiefe Clarke of the Secundarie another: so the one cannot come in without the other. Vi. Treasurer.

x ¶ Clarke of the Essoines, Clericus Essoniorum, is an Officer belonging to the Court of Common Plees, who onely keepeth the Essoines Roll, and hath for entring euery Essoine, vj. s. and for euery exception to barre the Essoine, vj. s. He hath also the prouiding of Parchment, and cutting it into Rolles, and marking the numbers upon them, and the deliuerie out of all the Rolles to euery Officer, and the receiuing of them againe when they be written, and the binding and making vp of the whole bundles of euery Terme. And this he doth as seruant to the Chiefe Iustice: For the Chiefe Iustice is at charge for all the parchment of all the Rolles. The word Essoines cometh of the French * Essoine, Exoine, m. i. an essoine, or excuse, or toleration for absence upon a lawfull cause alleged vpon oath, fortè à Lat. exoneratus, exempted. Vi. Essoine.

* Essoine, vnde.

y ¶ Clarke of the Outlawries, Clericus Vtlagiariorum, is an Officer belonging to the Court of Common Plees, being onely the seruant or deputie to the Kings Attorney Generall, for making out the Writs of Capias vtlagiarum after outlawrie. And the Kings Attorneys name is in euery ry one of these Writs. And whereas vij. s. is paid for the Seale of euery other Writ, there is but a penny paid for the Seale of this Writ, because it goeth out at the Kings suit. Vi. Outlawrie.

z ¶ Clarke of the Sewers, Clericus Suerarum, is an Officer pertaining to the Commissioners of Sewers, writing all things they doe by vertue of their Commission. For the which see the Statute Anno 13. Eliz. ca. 9. And Vi. Sewers.

aa ¶ Clarke Comptroller of the Kings house (whereof there be two) is an Officer in Court, that hath place and seat in the Compting-house, and authoritie to allow or disallow the charges and demands of Pour-suiuants and Messengers of the Greene-cloth, Pourveyors, or other like. He hath also the ouersight and Comptrolling of all defaults, defects and miscarriages of any inferior Officers, * and to sit in the Compting house with the Superiour officers, viz. the Lord Steward, the Treasurer, Comptroller, and Cofferer, Masters of the Houthold, and Clarkes of the Greencloth, either for correcting or bettering things out of order: and also for bringing in countrie prouision requisite for the Kings houthold, and the censure for failing of cariages and Caris warned and charged for that purpose. This Office you haue mentioned, Anno 33. H. 8. ca. 12. Vi. Comptroller, & Greencloth.

b Clergie, sometime used for the whole number of those that are de Clero Domini, of the Lordslot or thare, as the Tribe of Leui was in Iudæa, sometime for a plea to an Indictment, an appeal, an ancient libertie confirmed in diuers Parliaments, q. Stawf. lib. 2. cap. 41. and it is when a Priest, or one within Orders, is arraigned of felonie, before a Secular or Temporall Iudge, he may pray his Clergie, which is as much as if he prayed to be deliuered to his Ordinary, to purge himselfe of the offence obliged. And this might be done in case of murder, q. Coke lib. 4. fol. 46. a. This libertie is mentioned in Articulis cléri, Anno 9. Edward. 2. cap. 16. and what persons might haue their Clergie, and what not. Vi. q. Stanf. pl. co. lib. 2. cap. 42. & 43. howbeit there be many Statutes made since he writ hat booke, whereby the benefit of Clergie is abridged, as q. Anno 8. Elizab. cap. 4. Anno 14. ejusdem. cap. 5. Anno 18. ejusdem 4. 6. 7. & An. 23. ejusd. cap. 2. An. 29. ejusd. c. 2. An. 31. ejusd. cap. 12. Anno 39. ejusd. cap. 9. & ca. 15. of this, Vi. q. Cromptons Justice of Peace, fo. 102. 103. 104. 105. and Mr. Lamberds Eirenarchia lib. 4. cap. 14. pag. 543. and note by the way that the ancient course of the Law in this point of Clergie is much altered. For by the Statute An. 18. Eliz. cap. 7. Clerkes be no more deliuered to their Ordinaries to be purged and tried, but now euery man, though not within Orders, is put to reade at the Barre, being found guiltie and convicted of such felonie, as this benefit is still granted for, and so burnt in the hand, and set free at the first time, if the Ordinaries Commissioner or Deputie, standing by, say, Legit vt clericus, or otherwise he suffereth death for his transgression.

d Committee, is he to whom the consideration or ordering of any matter is referred either by some Court, or consent of parties, to whom it belongeth: as in Parliament, a Bill being read, is either consented vnto and passed, or denied, or neither of both, but referred to the consideration of some certaine men, appointed by the House, further to examine it, who thereupon are called Committees, by ¶ West, part. 2. symb. tit. Chauncerie, Sect. 144. Committee of the King. This word seemeth to be something strangely used in ¶ Kitchin, fol. 160. where the Widow of the Kings Tenant being dead, is called the Committee of the King, that is, one committed by ancient Law of the Land to the Kings care and protection.

h Common Pleas, Communia Placita, is the Kings Court now held in Westminster Hall, but in ancient time moveable, as appeareth by the Statute called Magna Charta, cap. 11. as also Anno 2. Edw. 3. cap. 11. and Pupilla oculi, part. 5. cap. 22. and that vpon the grant of that Charter, the Court of Common Pleas was erected, and settled in one place certaine, viz. at Westminster, wherefoer the King lay, and that after that all the Writs ran, Quod sit coram Iusticiarijs meis, apud Westmonasterium, whereas before the partie was commanded by them to appeare coram me vel Iusticiarijs meis, simply without addition of place, as is well obserued out of Glanville and Bracton, the one writing in Henry the Seconds time, before this Court was erected, the other in the latter end of Henry the Thirde time, who erected this Court. All ciuill causes, both real and personall, are, or were in former times tried in this Court, according to the strict Law of the Realme. And by Fortescue, cap. 50. it seemeth to haue bene the only Court for real causes, The chiefe Iudge thereof is called the Lord Chiefe Iustice of the Common Pleas, accompanied with three or foure Assesants or Associates, which are created by Letters Patents from the King, and (as it were) installed or placed vpon the Bench, by the Lord Chancellour and Lord Chiefe Iustice of that Court, as appeareth by ¶ Fortescue, cap. 51. who expresseth all the circumstances of this admission. The rest of the Officers belonging to this Court are these, the Custos Breuium, three Protonotaries, or principall Notaries, otherwise called Pregnotaries, Chirographer, Filazers in number fourteene, Exigenters foure, Clarke of the Warrants, Clarke of the Iuries or Iurata Writs, Clarke of the Treasurie, Clarke of the Kings Siluer, Clarke of the Essoines, Clarke of the Outlawries: whose offices and functions looke in their proper places. b Contributione faciendā, is a Writ that lieth in case where more are bound to one thing, yet one is put to the whole burden, ¶ Fitz. Nat. br. fol. 162. bringeth these examples: If Tenants in common, or joint, hold a mill (pro indiviso) and equally take the profit thereof, the mill falling to decay, and one or more of them, refusing to contribute toward the reparation thereof, the rest shall have this Writ to compell them. And if there be three coperceners of Land, that owe suit to the Lords Court, and the eldest performe the whole, then may these have this Writ to compell the other two to a contribution of the charge, or to one of them, if one only refuse. The Old Nat. br. frameth this Writ to a case where one only suit is required for land, and that land being sold to diuers, suit is required of them all, or some of them by distress, as intirely as if all were still in one, fol. 103. Copihold te-nure.

d ¶ Copiehold, (L. Tenura per copiam rotuli curiæ) is a Tenure, for the which the Tenant hath nothing to shew, but the Copie of the Rolles made by the Steward of his Lords Court. For the Steward, as he emolleth and maketh remembrances of all other things done in the Lords Court; so he doth also of such Tenants as be admitted in the Court, to any parcell of Land, or Tenement belonging to the Mannour. And the Tran-script of this is called the Court-roll, the Copie whereof the Tenant taketh from him, and keepeth as his only euidence, ¶ Coke lib. 4. fol. 25. b. This Tenure is called * a base Tenure, because it holdeth at the will of the Lord, ¶ Kitchin fol. 80. chap. Copiholds, ¶ Fitzherbert Nat. br. fol. 12. B. C. who there saith that it was wont to be called Tenure in Ville-nage; and that this word Copihold is but a new name: yet is it not simply at the will of the Lord, but according to the custome of the Mannour. So that if a Copiholder breake not the custome of the Mannour, and there-by forfeit his Tenure, he seemeth not so much to stand at the Lords court-tie for his right, that hee may be displaced, hand ouer head at his pleasure. These customes of Mannours be infinite, & vary in one point or other, al-most in every seuerall Mannour. * First, some Copihold is fineable, and some certaine: that which is fineable, the Lord rateth at what fine or in-come he pleaseth, when the Tenant is admitted vnto it: that which is certaine, is a kinde of inheritance, * and called in many places customa-ric, because the Tenant dying, and the hold being void, the next of the blood paying the customarie fine, as two shillings for an acre, or such like, may not be denied his admission. Secondly, some Copiholders haue by cu-stome the wood growing upon their owne land, which by law they could not haue, ¶ Kitchin vbi supra. Thirdly, Copiholders, some be such as hold by the Veige in ancient Demesne: and although they hold by Copie, yet are they in account a kinde of Freeholders: for if such a one commit felony, the King hath (annum, diem, & vastum) as in case of Freehold. Some other hold by common Tenure, called * Meere-copihold: and they commit-ting felony, their land escheateth to the Lord of the Mannour forthwith, ¶ Kitchin fol. 81. cap. Tenants per veige. Vi. Demaine. Tenant by Copie of Court-roll, This in the Saxons time was called * Foidland,

So that there is no part of the Kingdome, that lieth not within some Countie, and every Countie is governed by a yeerely Officer, whom we call a Shyreuee. Of these Counties there be foure of especiall marke, which therefore are termed Countie Palatines. Vi. Palatine, * as the Countie Palatine of Lancaster, of Chester, of Durham, and of Ely. And this Countie Palatine is a Iurisdiction of so high a nature, that whereas all Plees touching the life or maine of man, called Plees of the Crowne, be ordinarily held and sped in the Kings name, and cannot passe in the name of any other; the chiefe Governours of these, by especiall Charter from the Kings, did heretofore send out all Writs in their owne name, and did all things touching Iustice, as absolutely as the Prince himselfe in other Counties, onely acknowledging him their Superiour and Soueraigne. But by the Statute q. An. 27. H. 8. cap. 25. this power is much abridged. There be likewise * Counties Corporate, as appeareth by the Statute q. Anno 3. Edw. 4. cap. 5. and these be certaine Cities, or ancient Boroughs of the Land, upon which the Princes of our Nation haue thought good to bestow such extraordinary liberties. Of these the famous Citie of London is one, and the principall, Yorke another. q. Anno 32. H. 8. cap. 13. the Citie of Chester, q. Anno 42. Elizab. cap. 15. Canterburie, q. d a Court, Curia, which signifieth * one of thirtie parts, into which Romulus diuided the whole number of the Romans, sometime also the Senate house. Court with vs signifieth diuersly, as the house where presently the King remaineth with his ordinary retinue, and also the place where Iustice is iudicially ministred. Of which you may finde two and thirtie severall sorts in q. M. Cromptons Booke of Iuridictions well described, and of them will be Courts of Record, some be not, and therefore are accounted base Courts, in comparison of the rest. Besides these also there are * Courts Christian, q. Smith de repub. Angl. lib. 3. cap. 9. which are so called, because they handle matters especially concerning Christianitie, and such as without good knowledge in Diuinitie, cannot be well iudged of, being held heretofore by Archbishops and Bishops, as from the Pope of Rome, because he challenged the superiortie in all causes spirituall: but since they hold them by the Kings authoritie (virtute magistratus sui) as the Admirall of England doth his Court. Whereupon it procedeth, that they send out their precepts in their owne names, and not in the Kings, as the Iustices of the Kings Courts doe. And therefore as the appeal from these Courts did lie to Rome, now by the Statute Anno 25. H. 8. cap. 19. it lieth to the King in his Chancerie.

g a Court-Baron, Curia Baronis, is a Court that every Lord of a Manour (which in ancient times were called Barons) hath within his owne premisses. Barons in other Nations haue great territories and Iurisdiction from their Soueraignes, as may be proued out of q. Cassianus de gloria mundi, part. 5. considerat. 56. by q. Vincent. de Franchis descif. 211. and many others. Of this Court Baron you may see your fill in q. Kitchin, that writeth a large booke of it, and of Court Leet, q. Sir Edward Coke in his fourth Booke of Reports, amongst his Copihold Cafes, fol. 26. b. saith that this Court is two after a sort: and therefore if a man hauing a Manour in a Towne, and doe grant the inheritance of the Copiholders therunto belonging, unto another, this Grantee may keepe a Court for the customary tenants, and accept surrenders to the use of others, and make both admittances and grants. The other Court is of Free-holders, which is properly called the Court Baron, wherein the suiters, that is, the Free holders be Iudges, whereas of the other, the Lord or his Steward is Iudge.

h a Court of Piepowders. Vi. Piepowders.

i a Court Christian, Curia Christiana. Vi. Court, Curia, suprâ.

k a Court of Requests, Curia Requisitionum, siue Requestarum, seu requisitionum, is a Court of equitie of the same nature with the Chancerie. Vi. Request. (+) The forme of the proceeding is generally alike, onely this Court instead of the leading Writ of Subpœna useth a Priuy Seale, or their Messenger, a proper officer of the Court, and whereas in stead of iij. s. viij. d. for summons by Sub Pœna, you pay viij. s. for the Priuy Seale, and vj. s. viij. d. for the Messenger and partie summoned; this Great burden at the very entrance into a suit here, doth much hinder the Court, if they duely consider it.

Custom is all one in signification with our common Lawyers, and Ciuilians, being by them both accounted a part of the Law. Conseruatio quandoque pro lege seruatut (saith ¶ Bracton) in partibus vbi fuerit more vtentium approbata. Longzui enim temporis, vñs, & conseruandinis non est vilis autoritas: li. 1. cap. 3. It may be thus not vnaptly defined: Custom is a Law or Rite not written, which being established by long vse and the consent of our Ancestours, hath bene, and is daily practised. Our Ancestours, and those of our kindred that are vltra tritauum, i. the father of the great grandfather, li. 4. §. Parentem. & de in ius vocando, l. vi. §. Parentes, de gradibus & affini: & nominibus eorum. So that allowing the father to be so much older than his son, the grandfather so much elder than him, and so forth vsque ad tritauum: we cannot say that this or that is a Custom, except we can iustifie that it hath continued so one hundred yeeres. For tritauus must be so much elder than the partie that pleadeth it: yet because that is hard to proue, it is enough for the prooue of a custom by Witnesses in the Common Law (as I haue credibly heard) if two or more can depose that they heard their fathers say, that it was a custom all their time, and that their fathers also heard their fathers say, that it was likewise a custom in their time. If it be to be proued by Record, the continuance of one hundred yeeres will serue. Custom is either generall or particular. * Generall I call that which is current thorow England: of which sort you shall finde diuers in the Doctor and Student, li. 1. cap. 7. very worthy to be knowne. * Particular is that which belongeth to this or that County, as Gauelkinde to Kent, or to this or that Lordship, City, or Towne. Custom differeth from Prescription; for that Custom is common to more, and Prescription (in some mens opinion) is particular to this or that man. A game * Prescription may be for a farre shorter time than a Custom, viz. for five yeeres, or for one yeere or lesse. Example of five yeeres Prescription, you haue in the leuying of a fine. For certaine iurisdiction Ecclesiasticall ouer other Ministers and Parishes neere adioyning, assigned vnto them by the Bishop, and Archdeacon, being placed and displaced by them. As there be two foundations of Cathedrall Churches in England, the old, and the new, (the new be these which Henry the eight vpon suppression of Abbeyes, transformed from Abbot, or Prior, and Couent, to Deane and Chapter,) so there be two meanes of creating these Deanes. For these of the old foundation are brought to their dignitie much like Bishops: the King first sending out his Congé d' eslire, to the Chapter, the Chapter then choosing, the King yielding his Royall assent, and the Bishop confirming him, and giuing his mandate to install him.

 Those of the new foundation, are by a shorter course installed by vertue of the Kings letters patents, without either election, or confirmation. This word is also applied to diuers, that are the chiefe of certaine peculiar Churches, or Chappels, as the Deane of the Kings Chappell, the Deane of the right, &c. and againe, fol. 69. A Writ of (Quod permittat) may be pleaded in the Countie before the Shyreuee, and it may be in the Debet, and in the Solet, or in the Debet without the Solet, according as the Demaundant claimeth. Wherefore note that those Writs that be in this sort brought, haue these words in them, as for mall words not to be omitted, and according to the diuersitie of the case, both Debet and Solet, are used, or Debet alone, that is, if a man sue to recover any right by a Writ, whereof his Ancestor was disseised by the Tenent or his Ancestor, then he vseth only the word Debet, in his Writ: because Solet is not fit, by reason his Ancestor was disseised, and the custome discontinued: but if he sue for any thing, that is now first of all denied him, then he vseth both these words (Debet, and Solet) because his Ancestors before him, and he himselfe vsually enioyed the thing sued for, as suit to a mill, or common of pasture, until this present refusal of the Tenent. The like may be said of (Debet) and (Detinet)

For some satisfaction, take these words of that booke: This writ of deceit, when it is originall, then it lieth in case where deceit is made to a man by another, by which deceit he may be disherited, or otherwise euill intreated: as it appeareth by the ¶ Register. And when it is iudiciall, then it lieth out of the Rolles of Record: as in case where (Scire facias) is sent to the Shyreue, that he warne a man to be before the iustices at a certaine day, and the Shyreue returne the writ serued: whereas the said man was not warned, by which the partie that sueth the (Scire facias) recovereth, then the party which ought to have bene warned, shall haue the said writ against the Shyreue. ¶ New termes of Law, verbo Deceit, saith that the originall writ of deceit lieth, where any deceit is done to a man by another, so that hee hath not sufficiently performed his bargain or promise. times I finde mention of these, as in q Britton cap. 12. who saith in the Kings person (as he writes his whole Booke) Vide Britton in litera B. in this manner: Wee will, that all those which be fourteen yeeres old, shall make oath, that they shall be sufficient and loyall unto vs, and that they will be neither felons, nor assenting to felons. And we will that all be (en dozeine & pleuis per dozeiners) that is, professe themselves to be of this or that dozein, and make or offer suretie of their behauiour by these or those dozeiners, except religious persons, Clerkes, Knights, and their eldest sonnes, and women. And q Kitchin out of the Register, and Britton saith thus: Religious persons, Knights, Clerkes, or women, shall not be Deceiners, fol. 33. So that hereby I gather, that of latter times this word signified nothing but such an one, as by his oath of loyaltie to his Prince (for none ordinarily finderb suretie at this day) is settled in the combination or societie of a dozein. And a dozein seemeth now to extend so farre as a Lect extendeth, because in Lects only this oath is ministred by the Steward, and taken by such as are twelue yeeres old and vpwards dwelling within the compasse of the Lect, where they are sworne, q Fitzherb. Nat. br. fol. 161. a. The particulars of this oath you may reade in q Bracon lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 1. num. 1. q Bracon setteth downe fifteen yeeres for the age of those that are sworne to the Kings peace, but lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 11. num. 5. becometh twelue yeeres. Vide q Inlaugh. A man may note out of the premisses, diuersities betweene the ancient and these our times, in this point of Law and government, as well for the age of those that are to be sworne, as also that * Decennier is not now used for the chiefe man of a Dozen, but for him that is sworne to the Kings peace: And lastly, that now there are no other Dozens but Lects, and that no man ordinarily giueth other securitie for the keeping of the Kings peace, but his owne oath: and that therefore none answereth for anothers transgression, but every man for himselfe. 3572 Dedimus potestatem, is a writ whereby Commission is given to a private man, for the speeding of some act appertaining to a Judge: The Civilians call it Delegationem. And it is granted most commonly upon suggestion, that the party, which is to do something before a Judge, or in Court, is so feeble, that he cannot traue. It is used in diuers cases: As to make a personall answer to a bill of complaint in the Chauncery, to make an Attorney for the following of a suit in the Countie, Hundred, Wapentake, &c. ¶ Old nat. breu. fol. 20. * Difference betwixt Disceifour and Defour.

3601 Defour, dict. a G. (Forcéur, i. expugnatur.) It is used in our Common Law, for one that casteth out by force, * and differeth from Disceifour first in this, because a man may disceife another without force, which act is called simple Disceifer, q Britton cap. 35. next, because a man may Deforce another, that neuer was in possession, as for example, if more haue right to lands, as common heires, and one entring keepeth out the rest; the Law saith, that he Deforceeth them, though he doe not disceife them, q Old Nat. br. fol. 118. and q Littleton in his Chapter of Discontinuance, fol. 117. saith, that he which is infeoffed by the Tenent in tayle, and put in possession by keeping out the heire of him in reuerfion being dead, doth deforce him, though hee did not disceife him: because he entred, when the Tenent in tayle was liuing, and the heire had no present right. And a Defour differeth from an Intrudour, because a man is made an Intrudour, by a wrongfull entrie only into land, or tenements void of a possessor, q Braton lib. 4. cap. primo. And a defour is likewise by holding out the right heire, as is aboue said.

3647 Delv, an old word used by Chaucer, for small.

3648 a Demaine, or Demesne. G. Demaine, Domaine, m. à Lat. Dominium, & Nicod. Lat. Demanium. A leguleis nostris appellatur Dominium, and significeth Patrimonium Domini, & Hotoman in verbis feudilibus, verbo Dominicum: where by diuers auctorities he pro-ueth those lands to be * Dominicum, which a man holdeth originally of himselfe, and those to be * Feodum, which he holdeth by the benefit of a superior Lord. And in the Ciuill Law (Rem dominicam) for that which is proper to the Emperour, & Cod. Ne rei dominicæ vel templorum vindicatio temporis præscriptione submoueat, being the 38. title of the seuenth booke. And res Domini iuris, i. reipublicæ, in the same place, and by the word Domanium, are properly signified the Kings lands in France, appertaining to him in proprietie. Quia Domanium definitur illud, quod nominatim consecratum est, unitum & incorporatum Regis coronæ, ut scripsit Chopinus de Domano Franciæ tit. 2. per legem. Si quando. 3. Cod. de bon. vacan. lib. 10. & Mathæus de afflictis in constitut. Sicilia lib. 1. tit. de locatione Demanij 82. which may be called Bona incorporata, & in corpus fidei redacta, & Skene de verborum signif. verbo Terra Dominicales. In like manner doe we use it in England. Howbeit we here haue no land (the Crowne land only excepted) which holdeth not of a superior. For all depend either mediately or immediately of the Crowne, that is, of some honour or other belonging to the Crowne, and not granted in fee to any inferior person. Wherefore no common person hath any Demaines, simply understood. For when a man in pleading would signifie his land to bee his owne, hee saith that hee is, or was seized thereof in his Demaine, as of Fee, & Littleton lib. 1. cap. 1. Whereby hee significeth, that though his land be to him, and his heirs for euer, yet it is not true Demaine, but depending of a superior Lord, and holding by seruice, or rent in lieu of seruice, or by both seruice and rent.

b an owner of a Demaine. G. Demainier, Domaniér.

3649 to Demand, aske, or inquire. G. Demandér. I. Demandare, Dimandare. H. Preguntar, à Lat. precontari. Demandar. L. Exquirere, ab ex & quero. Fragen, à Gr. ερωτάειν, i. præire loquendo, ut apud Lat. interrogare est questionibus subinde interpositis percontari, & Heluig. B. Ver-soechen, Soechen, à Gr. ζητείν, idem. Heb. חָקַר chakar, * חַק שְׁחַל, hinc חַק שְׁחַל scheol, sepulchrum, quia semper petit, nunquam saturatur, ut docet Solomon. Vi. to Aske, Inquire.

b a Demand. G. Demande, f. Requête, f. I. Petitione, Demanda, Dimanda. H. Demanda. T. Ein bitt, Bitte, à bitten, i. petere, à Græ. πείθειν, i. persuadere, verbis adducere, & Heluig. B. een begherte, à begheren, i. petere. Biddingh, Bede. Gr. αἰτησις, αἰτημα, ab αἰτέω, i. peto. L. Petitió, Postulatio, Postulatum. & Atque à leguleis aliquando Demanda vel Demandum, i. postulatio, postulatus. And significeth a calling vpon a man for any thing due, & hath likewise a proper signification with the Common Lawyers opposite to plaint: for the pursuit of all ciuill actions are either * Demands or * Plaints; and the pursuer is called Demandant, or Plaintife: viz. Demandant in actions real, and Plaintife in personall. And where the partie pursued is called Demandant, there the partie pursued is called Tenant; where Plaintife, there Defendant, & New termes of Law, verbo Demandant.

c to Demand, request, or require. Vi. to Request, & Require.

3672 Demurre commeth of the French Demeurer, Lat. Demorari, i. manere in loco aliquo vel morari. It signifieth in our Common Law a kinde of pawse upon a point of difficultie in any action, and is used substantially. For in every action the controversie consisteth either in the fact, or in the Law: if in the fact, that is tried by the Iurie; if in Law, then is the case plaine to the Iudge, or so hard and rare, as it breedeth iust doubt. I call that plaine to the Iudge, wherby he is assured of the Law, though perhaps the partie and his counsell yeeld not unto it. And in such the Iudge with his Assessors proceeds to Iudgement without further worke. But when it is doubtfull to him and his Associates, then is there stay made, and a time taken, either for the Court to thinke further upon it, and to agree if they can, or else for all the Iustices to meet together in the Chequer Chamber, and upon bearing of that which the Sergeants shall say of both parts, to advise and set downe what is law. 3680 Denizon, or Denizen, à Gal. Donación, i. donatio, nempè libertatis, aut q. Danes son, i. Dani filius. Danos enim olim rerum potitos nominamus, filiosque suos utcumque alienigenos libertate donatos. A Denizen signifieth in our Common Law, an alien that is enfranchised here in England by the Princes Charter, and enabled, almost in all respects, to doe as the Kings native subiects doe: namely to purchase and to possess lands, to be capable of any office or dignite. Yet it is said to be short of naturalization, because a stranger naturalized may inherit lands by descent, which a man made only a Denizen cannot. And againe in the Charter whereby a man is made Denizen, there is commonly contained one clause or other, that abridgeth him of that full benefit which natural subiects doe enjoy. And when a man is thus enfranchised, he is said to be under the Kings protection, or esse ad fidem Regis Angliæ, before which time he can enjoy nothing in England, ¶ Bracton lib. 5. tract. 5. cap. 25. num. 3. 3691 Deodan, (Deodandum) is a thing giuen or forfeited (as it were) to God for the pacification of his wrath in a case of misadventure, whereby any Christian soule comes to a violent end, without the fault of any creature. For example, if a horse should strike his keeper, and so kill him; if a man in driving a cart, seeking to redresse any thing about it, should so fall, as the cart should presse him to death: if one should be falling of a tree, and giving warning to one coming by when the tree were neere falling, and any of them should be slaine neuertheless by the fall of the tree. In the first of these cases, the horse, in the second, the cart and horses, and in the third, the tree is to be giuen to God, that is, to be sold and distributed to the poore, for an expiation of this dreadfull euent, though effected by vreasonable, yea senselesse and dead creatures, ¶ Stawford pl. cor. lib. 1. cap. 2. whereof also reade ¶ Bracton lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 5. and ¶ Britton cap. 7. and ¶ West parte prima symb. tit. Indictments sect. 49. And though this be giuen to God, yet is it forfeited to the King by law, as sustaining Gods person, and an executioner in this case, to see the price of these distributed to the poore, for the appeasing of God stirred up even against the earth and place, by the shedding of innocent blood thereupon. And it seemeth that this Law is grounded upon that in Exodus, cap. 21. Si cornu petierit bos virum vel mulierem, ita ut moriatur, lapidabitur bos, neq. comedetur caro eius; at Dominus ejus erit innocens. If an ox goare a man or woman, that he die, the ox shall be stoned to death, and his flesh shall not be eaten, but his master shall goe quit, ¶ Exod. cap. 21.

3692 De Deonerando, pro rata portionis, is a Writ that lieth where one is distrained for a rent, that ought to be payed by others proportionally with him. For example, a man holdeth ten Oxgangs of land by fealtie, and ten shillings rent of the King, and alienateth one Oxgang thereof to one, another to another in Fee. Afterward the Shyreue or other Officer commeth and distreinet only one of them for the rent, be that is distreinet may haue this Writ for his helpe, ¶ Fitzh. Nat. br. fol. 234.

3693 to Depart, or goe away. G. Departir, à parti, i. pars, because at parting the one goeth to one part, and the other to the other part, or way, quasi in aliam partem, d' en aller. I. b ¶ Deuise in our Common Law, is where a man in his testament, giveth or bequeatheth his goods or his lands to another after his decease. And where such deuise is made of goods, if the executors will not deliver the goods to the deuisee, the deuisee hath no remedie by the Common Law: But it behooueth him to haue a Citation against the executors of the testator to appeare before the Ordinarie, to shew why he performeth not the will of the testator. For the deuisee may not take the legacie, and serue himselfe, but it must be deliuered to him by the executors. It cometh from the French word Diuiser, i. dispartiri, discernere, separare, distinguere, because those lands or goods which appertaine to the deuisee, by this act are distributed into many parts. Wherefore I thinke it better writton diuise than deuise. Howbeit it were not absurd to deriue this word from the French deuisee, i. sermocinari, confabulari, consilium conferre. For in this sense, it agreeth in some sort with the nature of the act of the testator, and with the Etymologie of a Testament set downe by Iustinian, who saith that * testamentum is, quasi mentis testatio, tit. de testamentis ordinan. in Institur. and testatio mentis, cannot be so well, as by talke and conference with our wise and skilfull friends. 3921 Discontinuance, (Discontinuatio) Signifieth in the Common Law, nothing else but an interruption or breaking off: as discontinuance of possession, or discontinuance of proccesse. And the large discourse that q. Littleton hath about this Discontinuance is rather to shew cases wherein it is, or wherein it is not, than to define the thing. The effect of discontinuance of possession is this, that a man may not enter upon his owne land or tenement alienated, whatsoeuer his right be vnto it, of his owne selfe, or by his owne authoritie, but must bring his writ, and seeke to recover possession by Law. Examples you may haue store in his Termes of Law, verbo Discontinuance, and in q. Littleton eodem cap. with whom agreeth another in these words: But discontinuance of possession is indeed an impediment vnto a man for entering into his owne land or tenements, caused by the fact of one that alienated them contrary to right, and gaue Liuerie and seizin of them, whereby the true owner is left onely to his action. See the New termes of Law, and the Institutions of the Ciuill Law, cap. 43. and see St. Edw. Cokes Report l. 3. the case of fines fo. 85. b. The effect of discontinuance of plee is, that the instance is fallen, and may not be taken againe, but by a new suit afresh. For to be discontinued, and to bee put without day, is all one, and nothing else but finally to be dismissed the Court of that instance. West. part. 2. Simb. titulo Fines, sect. 115. So Crompton in his diuers Iurisdictiones, fol. 13. 1. seith it in these words: If a Iustice seat be discontinued by the not coming of the Iustices, the King may reneue the same by his writ, &c. In this signification q. Fitzherb. in his nat. br. useth the word diuers times: as Discontinuance of a Corodye, f. 193. A. To discontinue the right of his wife, fol. 191. L. & 193. L. Discontinuance of an assise, fol. 182. D. 187. B.

T. B. Angst, ab ἀγγω, i. strangulo, comprimo, ἡ Heluig. Gr. στενωτός, à στενω, i. angustus. It signifieth most commonly in the Common Law, a compulsion in certaine reall actions, whereby to bring a man to appearance in Court, or to pay debt, or dutie denied. The effect whereof most commonly is, to drive the partie distreined to repleine the distresse, and so to take his action of trespassse against the distreiner, or else to compound neighbourly with him for the debt, for the which hee distreinet. In what cases a distresse is lawfull, See ἡ the New Termes of Law. The Civilians call it (pignorum captionem) Brissonius de verbor. sign. lib.
14. This compulsion is by ἡ Britton cap. 71. divided into * a Distresse personall, and * Distresse reall: Distresse personall, is made by surprising a mans moueable goods, and deteining them for the securitie of his appearance to the suit, and to make him plaintife. A Distresse reall, is made upon immoueable goods, as the Grand cape, and petit cape, and thus it is interpreted by ἡ Rotoman. de verb. feudal. verbo Districus.

This differeth from an attachment in this point (among others) that a Di-stresse cannot be taken by any common person, without the compasse of his owne see, ἡ Fitzh. nat. br. fol. 904. except it be presently after the casull or other things be driuen, or borne out of the ground by him that perceiveth it to bee in danger to bee distreined, ἡ New termes of the Law, Extricer. L. Extricare, q. ex tricis liberare, tricæ sunt capilli quod pullos gallinaceos inuoluant & impediunt. Tricæ signifieth generally all impediments, stops, lets, or hindrances, but properly haire, or threds about chickens legs, which so span them that they cannot goe, and hence by a metaphor taken for any kinde of incumbrance.

4021 a Distric, liberties, or precincts of a place. G. Distric, Distric.
H. Districto, Districito. I. Districito. L. Districus, à stringo, significat enim strictos limites vel fines. Gr. ἐπαρχία, ab ἐπαρ, i. dominium, ἐπαρχία, à νεγρος, i. potestas, dominatio. B. T. Martk, * vnde Marchagranne dicitur comes districus, vulgo Marchio. Vi. in Martquis.
b Districus is sometimes used for the Circuit or Territorie within the which a man may be compelled thus to appearance, ἡ Cassan. de consuetud. Burgund. pag. 90. ἡ Britton cap. 120. and so likewise is Districio in the Register original, fol. 6. b. Distresse in the former signification is divided first into * finite, and infinite. Finite is that which is limited by law, how often it shall be made to bring the partie to triall of the action, as once or twice ἡ Old. nat. br. fol. 43. Distresse infinite is without limitation until the partie come: as against a lurie, that refuseth to appear, super certification Assise, the proccesse is a (Venire facias) (Habeas corpora) and distresse infinite, ἡ Old nat. br. fol. 113. Then it is divided into a grand distresse, ἡ Anno 52. H. 3. cap. 7. which Fitzherbert calleth in Latine Magnam districcionem, Nat. br. fol. 126. and an ordinarie distresse. A grand distresse is that, which is made of all the goods and cattels that the partie hath within the Countie, ἡ Britton cap. 26. fol. 52.
But see whether it be sometime not all one with a distresse infinite, Idem fol. 80. Whom also the statute of Marlbridge seemeth to agree, ἡ Anno 52. H. 3. cap. 7. & cap. 9. & cap. 12. See ἡ Old nat. br. fol. 71. 6.
See grand distresse what things bee distreinaible, and for what causes.
See the ἡ New termes of Law, Verbo Distresse. Of this also see more in Attachment.

 And in Scotland (Dos) significeth iust as much, q. Skene de verborum sign. verbo Dos. The former is in French called Dot or Dost: the other Douaire, and by them Latined Doarium, or Donarium. It is not vne-nable to call the former a Dowrie, and the other a Dower, but I finde them confounded. For example q. Smith de Rep. Anglor. p. 105. calleth the latter a Dowrie, and Dower is sometime used for the former, as in q. Britton ubi supra, yet were it not inconuenient to distinguish them, being so divers. The Civilians call the former (Dorem) and the latter (Donationem b Dutchie Court, is a Court wherein all matters appertaining to the Dutchie of Lancaster are decided, by the decree of the Chancellour of that Court. And the original of it was in Henrie the Fourth his daies, who obtaining the Crowne, by depasing Richard the Second, and having the Dutchie of Lancaster by descent in the right of his Mother, hee was seized thereof, as King, and not as Duke. So that all the Liberties, Franchises, and Jurisdictions of the said Dutchie, passed from the King, by his Grand Seale, and not by Livery, or Attournement, as the Possessions of Euerwicke, and of the Earledome of March, and such others did, which had descended to the King by other Ancestors than Kings. But at the last Henrie the Fourth, by authority of Parliament, passed a Charter, whereby the Possessions, Liberties, &c. of the said Dutchie were severed from the Crowne. Yet Henrie the Seuenth reduced it to his former nature, as it was in Henrie the Fifths daies, & Cromptons Iurisdic. fol. 136. The Officers belonging to this Court, are the Chancellour, the Attuoney, Receiuer generall, Clerke of the Court, the Messenger. Beside these there be certaine Assistants of this Court, as one Attuoney in the Exchequer, one Attuoney of the Dutchie in the Chaucerrie, foure learned men in the Law, retained of Counsell with the King in the said Court.

So that it seemeth that Earles by reason of their High employments, being not able to follow also the businesse of the Countie, were deliuered of all that burthen, and only enioyed the honour, as now they doe. And the Shireeue, though he be still called Vicecomes, yet all hee doth is immediately vnder the King, and not vnder the Earle. See q̄ Countie, and see q̄ Horoman. de verb. 4441 to Endite. Vi. to Indite.

b to Enditement, (Indictamentum) dict. à Gal. Endictér, i. deferre nomen alicuius, indicare, to indict, to accuse, to appeach. It significth in our Common Law, as much as (Accusatio) in the Ciuill Law, though it haue not in all points the like effect, ϵ West. part. 2. Symb. titulo Indite-ment, desineit it thus. An Inditement is a bill or declaration made in forme of Law, (for the benefit of the Common-wealth) of an accusation for some offence, either criminall or penall, exhibited vnto Iurors, and by their verdict found and presented to be true, before an Officer having power to punish the same offence. It is an accusation, because the Iury that inquireth of the offence, doth not receive it until the partie that offe-reth the bill, appareat so farre in it, as to subscribe his name. It differeth from an Accusation in this, that the Preferrer of the Bill is no way tied to the prooffe thereof vpon any penaltie, if it be not proued, except there appareat conspiracie. Of this you may reade ϵ Sir Tho. Smith de Repub. Angl. lib. 2. cap. 19. and ϵ Stawnf. pl. cor. lib. 2. cap. 23, 24, 25, 26. &c. Vsq; 24. and ϵ M^r.  4607 Estoppel, seemeth to come from the French Estouper, i. oppila-re, obturare, to stop with a stopple, and signifieth in our Common Law, an impediment, or barre of an action, growing from his owne fact, tho bath, or otherwise might haue had his action. For example: A tenant ma-keth a Feoffment by collusion to one: the Lord accepteth the seruices of the Feoffee: by this he debarreth himselfe of the Wardship of his Tenants heire, ¶ Fitz. Nat. br. fol. 242. K. Diuers other examples might be shewed out of him, and ¶ Brooke b. Tit. ¶ Sir Edward Coke, lib. 2. casu God- dard, fol. 4. b. defineth an Estoppel, to be a barre or hinderance vnto one to plead the truth, and restraineth it not to the impediment giuen to a mans 4608 Estouers (Estouerium) dist. à G. Estouér, i. soutre, to foster, and signifieth in our Common Law, nourishment or maintenance. For example, ¶ Bracton. lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 18. num. 2. useth it for that suste- nance, which a man taketh for felonie is to haue out of his lands or goods for himselfe and his family during his imprisonment: and the Statute An. 6.

Ed. 1. cap. 3. useth it for an allowance in meat or cloth. It is also used for certaine allowances of wood, to be taken out of another mans wood. So is it used, ¶ West. 2. cap. 25. Anno 13. Ed. 1. ¶ M. West. part. 2. symbol.*

Estreic. 4612 Estreie, or Estrey, (extrahura) in our Common Law signifieth any beast not wilde, found within any Lordship, and not owned by any man. For in this case, if it being cried according to Law in the Market Townes adjoining, and shall not be claimed by the owner within a yeere and a day, it is the Lords of the foile. See q Britton cap. 17. See Estreies in the Foreſt, Anno 27. Hen. 8. cap. 7. New booke of Entries, verbo Trespas, concernant estrey.

Estrepiement. 4613 Estrepiement, or Estrepiement (Estrepiementum) dict. à Gal. Estropier, i. mutilare, obtruncare: the which word the French-men haue also borrowed of the Italians, or rather Spaniards, with whom Estrepiement signifieth to set upon the wracke: it signifieth in our Common Law spoile made by the tenant for terme of life upon any lands or woods, to the prejudice of him in the reuerſion, as namely in the Statute, Anno 6. Ed. 1. cap. 13. And it may seeme by the deriuation, that Estrepiement is properly the unmeasurable taking, or drawing of the heart of the land by plowing or sowing it continually, without manuring, or other such usage as is requisite in good husbandrie. And yet (Estropier signifying mutilare) it may no lesse conveniently be applied to those that cut downe trees, or loppe them, further than the Law will beare. This signifieth also a Writ, which lieth in two sorts, the one is, when a man hauing an action depending (as a Foredome, or Dumfuit infra etatem, or Writ of right, or any such other) wherein the Demandant is not to recouer dammages, such to inhiibite the tenant for making waste during the sute. The other sort is for the Demandant that is adidged to recouer seisin of land in question, and before execution sued by the Writ, Habere facias seisinam, for feare of waste to be made before he can get possession, such out this Writ. See more of this in q Fitz. Nat. br. fol. 60. & 61. See the q Regist. orig. fol. 76. and the q Regist. Iudiciall, fol. 33.

This Court is taken from the Normans, as appeareth by the grand Customary cap. 56. where you may finde the Eschequer thus described. The Eschequer is called an assembly of high Iusticiers, to whom it appertaineth to amend that which other meener Iusticiers haue vnadvisedly iudged. Others thinke, that it commeth from an old Saxon word (Scarta) as writeth Sr Tho. Smith, which signifieth treasure, taxations or imposts, whereof accompt is made in the chequer. This court consisteth as it were of two parts: whereof one is conuerfant especially in the hearing and deciding of all causes pertaining to the Princes coffers anciently called Scaccarium computorium, ¶ Ockam in his lucubrations: the other is called the receipt of the Eschequer, which is properly employed in the receiuing and payment of money. ¶ Crompt. Iurisdic. fol. 105. defineth it to be a court of record, wherein all causes touching the reuenues of the Crowne are handled. d ¶ Execution (Executio) in the Common Law signifieth the last performance of an act, as of a Fine, or of a Iudgement. And the execution of a Fine is the obtaining of actuall possession of the things contained in the same, by vertue thereof: which is either by entrie into the lands, or by writ, whereof see ¶ West at large, part. 2. symb. titulo Fines, sect. 136, 137, 138. Executing of Iudgements, and Statutes, and such like, see in ¶ Fitz. nat. br. in Indice 2. verbo Execution. ¶ Sir Edw. Coke vol. 6. casu Blumfield, fol. 87. a. maketh two sorts of Executions, one finall, another with a (quousque) tending to an end. An Execution finall is that which maketh money of the Defendants goods, or extendeth his lands, and deliuereth them to the Plaintife: for this the partie accepteth in satisfaction: and this is the end of the suit, and all that the Kings Writ commandeth to be done. The other sort with a (quousque) is tending to an end, and not finall, as in the case of (capias ad satisfaciendum, &c.) this is not finall, but the bodie of the partie is to be taken, to the intent and purpose to satisfie the Demandant: and his imprisonment is not absolute, but vntill the Defendant doe satisfie. Idem ibidem.

e Executione faciendá, is a Writ commanding execution of a Iudgement: the diuers uses whereof see in the table of the Register Iudiciall, verbo Executione faciendá.

f Executione faciendá in Withernam, is a Writ that lieth for the taking of his cattell, that formerly hath conueied out of the Countie the cattell of another, so that the Bailiffe hauing authoritie from the Shyreuee to replevie the cattell so conueied away, could not execute his charge, ¶ Regist. orig. fol. 82. b. b ¶ Executor. G. Executér. I. Essecutóre. H. Execudór. L. Exécutor, dift. ab exequendo, as he that is appointed by any man in his last Will and Testament to haue the disposing of all his substance according to the contents of the said Will. This Executor is either particular or vniuersall: Particular, as if this or that thing only be committed to his charge: Vniuersall, if all. And this is in the place of him whom the * Ciuilians call haredem, and the Law accounteth one person with the partie whose Executor he is, as hauing all aduantage of action against all men, that he had, so likewise being subiect to euery mans action as farre as himselfe was. This Executor had his beginning in the Ciuill Law, by the constitutions of the Emperours, who first permitted those, that thought good by their Wills to bestow any thing vpon good and godly vses, to appoint whom they pleased to see the same performed: and if they appointed none, then they ordained, that the Bishop of the place should haue authoritie of course to effect it, l. 28. C. de Episcopis & Clericis. And from this, time and experience hath wrought out the use of these Vniuersall Executors, as also brought the administration of their goods, that die without Will, vnto the Bishop.

Exigent. c Exigent (Exigenda) is a writ that lieth where the Defendant in an action personall cannot be found, nor any thing within the Countie, whereby to be attached or distreined, and is directed vnto the Shyreuee, to proclaime and call five Countie dayes one after another, charging him to appeare, vnder the paine of Outlawrie, q. Termes of Law. This writ lieth also in an Indictment of felonie, where the partie indicted cannot be found, q. Smith de Rep. Angl. lib. 2. cap. 19. It is called an Exigent, because it exacteth the partie, that is, requireth his appearance to answer the Law: for if he come not at the last dayes proclamation, he is said to be quinquies exactus, and then is outlawed, q. Crompt. iurisd. fol. 188. And this Mr. Manwood also setteth downe for the Law of the Forest, part. 1. of his Forest Law, pag. 71. See the new booke of Entries, verbo Exigent.

Exigenter. d Exigenter (Exigendarius) Anno 18. H. 6. ca. 9. is an Officer of the Court of Common Pleas, of whom there be foure in number. They make all Exigents and Proclamations in all actions, where proceffe of Outlawrie doth lie, and Writs of Superfedeas, as well as the Protonotaries, vpon such exigents as were made in their Offices.

Regist. fol. 237. q. Fitz. nat. br. 129. The manner in this case is to take this writ out of the Chauncerie directed to the Shyreuee to take foure Mainpernours to bring his bodie before the Barons of the Exchequer at a certaine day, and to warne the Lord to appeare at that time, q. New Termes of the Law, verbo Accompt.

4729 * Expedant, is used in the Common Law with this word (Fee) and thus used, it is opposit to Fee simple. For example: Lands are giuen to a man and his wife in Franke marriage, to haue and to hold to them and their heires: In this case they haue Fee simple. But if it bee giuen to them and the heires of their bodie, &c. they haue taile and Fee expectant, q. Kitchin fol. 153. q. b Fealtie, (Fidelitas) significeth in our Common Law an oath taken at the admittance of every tenant, to be true to the Lord of whom he holdeth his land. And he that holdeth land by this only oath of fealtie, holdeth in the freest manner that any man in England under the King may hold: because all with us that have fee, hold per fidem & fiduciam, that is, by Fealtie at the least, q. Smith de Rep. Ang. lib. 3. cap. 8. For Fidelitas est de substantia feudi, q. Dnar. de feud. c. 2. n. 4. This Fealtie is also used in other Nations, as the Lombards and Burgundians, q. Cassan. consuet. Burgund. fol. 419. & 420. And indeed the very first creation of this tenure, it grew from the love of the Lord towards his followers, so did it binde the Tenant to Fidelitie, as appeareth by the whole course of the Feods: and the breach thereof is losse of the Fee, q. Duar. de Feud. cap. 14. n. 11. q. Hotom. de verb. Feudal. sheweth a double Fealtie: one generall, to be performed by every Subject to his Prince: the other speciall, unto their Land-lord. This Fealtie speciall, is with us performed either by Free-men, or by Villeines. The forme of both see q. Anno 14. Edw. 1. Stat. 2. in these words: When a Free-man shall doe Fealtie to his Lord, he shall hold his right hand upon a booke, and shall say thus: Heare you, my Lord R. that I I.P. shall be to you both faithfull and true, and shall owe my Fealtie to you for the land that I hold of you, at the termes assigned, So helpe me God and all his Saints. When a Villeine shall doe Fealtie unto his Lord, he shall hold his right hand over the booke, and shall say thus: Heare you, my Lord A. that I B. from this day forth unto you shall be true and faithfull, and shall owe you Fealtie for the land that I hold of you in Villenage, and shall be iustified by you in bodie and goods: So helpe me God and all his Saints. 4892 Fee, Feodum, aliàs Feudum, is used in our Common Law for all those lands which we hold by perpetuall right, q. Hotom. verbo Feodum, de verb. Feud. And by this name goe all lands and tenements, that are held by any acknowledgement of any superioritie to a higher Lord. They that write of this subiect doe diuide all lands and tenements, wherein a man hath a perpetuall estate to him and his heires, into Allodium & Feudum: * Allodium is defined to be every mans owne land, &c. which he possesseth meerey in his owne right, without acknowledgement of any seruice, or payment of any rent unto any other: and this is a propertie in the highest degree. And of some it is called Allodium, ab a priuat. & laudum vel laudatio, ut sit prædium cuius nullus auctor est nisi Deus. Est enim laudare, vel Nonio teste, nominare, quod & Bud. docuit ad l. Herenn. ff. her. instit. Prat. verbo Allodium. q. Hotom. in verb. Feud. * Feudum is that which we hold by the benefit of another, and in the name whereof we owe seruice, or pay rent, or both to a superior Lord. And all our land here in England, the Crowne land (which is in the Kings owne hands in the right of his Crowne) excepted, is in the nature of Feudum or Fee. For though many a man hath land by descent from his Ancestors, and many others have dearely bought land for their money, yet is the land of such nature, that it cannot come to any, either by descent or purchase, but with the burden that was laid upon him who had Nouell Fee, or first at all received it as a benefit from his Lord, to him and to all such, to whom it might descend or any way be conueyed from him. So that there is no man here that hath directum dominium, i. the very propertie or demaine in any land, but the Prince in the right of his owne Crowne, q. Camb. Brit. For though he that hath Fee, hath lus perpetuum, and vtile dominium, yet he oweth a dutie for it, and therefore is it not simply his owne. For he that can say most for his estate, saith thus: I am seised of this or that land or tenement in my demaine, as of Fee. Seiscus inde in dominico meo ut de feudo: and that is as much as if he said; It is my demaine or proper land after a sort, because it is to me and mine heires for euer, yet not simply mine, because I hold it in the nature of a benefit from another. * Fee is of two sorts: Fee absolute, aliàs Fee simple; and Fee conditionall, aliàs Fee taile. Fee simple, Feudum simplex, is that, whereof we are seised in these generall words, To vs and our heires for euer. Fee taile, Feudum talliatum, is that whereof we are seised to us and our heires, with limitation; that is, the heires of our bodie. And Fee taile is either generall or speciall. Generall is, where land is giuen to a man and the heires of his bodie: the reason whereof is giuen by q. Littlet. c. 2. lib. 1. because a man seised of land by such a gift, if he marry one or more wiues, and haue no issue by them, and at the length marry another, by whom he hath issue, this issue shall inherit the land. Fee taile speciall is that, where a man and his wife be seised of lands to them, and the heires of their two bodies: the reason is likewise giuen by Littleton in the same place, because in this case, the wife dying without issue, and he marrying another by whom he hath issue, this issue cannot inherit the land, being specially giuen to such heires. This Fee taile hath the original from the Statute of Westm. 2. c. 1. which was made Ann. 13. Ed. 1. Yet see q. Bract. lib. 2. c. 5. n. 3. his verbis: Item, quedam absoluta & larga, & quedam stricta & coarctata, sicut certis hereditibus. To whom adde q. Plowd. casu Willion, fol. 235. a. b. & seq. For before that Statute, all land giuen to a man and his heires, either generall or speciall, was accounted in the nature of Fee, and therefore held to be so firmly in him to whom it was giuen, that, any limitation notwithstanding, he might alienate and sell it at his pleasure: much like that which the Ciuilians call nudum præceptum, binding rather by way of counsell and aduice, than compulsion or restraint. And this thing seeming vnrasonable to the wisdom of our Realme, because so a man meaning well to this or that posteritie of himselfe or his friends, might be forthwith deceiued of his intention, the said Statute was made for redresse of this inconuenience, whereby it is ordained, that if a man giue lands in Fee, limiting the heires to whom it shall descend, with a reuersion to himselfe or his heires for default, &c. that the forme and true meaning of his gift shall be obserued. He that hath Fee then, holdeth of another by some dutie or other, which is called seruice: And of this seruice, and the diuersitie thereof, see Chivalrie, and Seruice. He that will learne from what fountaine those Feuds or Fees did first spring, let him reade q. Anthon. Conatus de meth. feud. c. 1. where he shall receive great light for his guide into so obscure a Dungeon. See Hege. This word Fee is sometime used with vs for the compasse or circuit of a Lordship or Manour, q. Bract. lib. 2. c. 5. in these words: In eadem villa & de eodem feudo. Thirdly, it is used for a perpetuall right incorporeall, as to haue the keeping of prisons in fee, q. Old nat. br. fo. 41. Foster in Fee, eod. fol. 6. Rent granted in Fee, q. Anno 28. Ed. 1. Stat. 3. c. 8. Lastly, Fee significeth a reward or ordinarie dutie, that a man hath giuen him for the execution of his office, or the performance of his industry in his Art or Science: as the Lawyer or Physitian is said to haue his Fee, when he hath the consideration of his paines taken; the one with his Client, the other with his Patient.

b Fee expectant, is by the Feudists termed Feudum expectatium, or expectatua, substantiuely used. q. Mat. de Affict. decis. 292. n. 2. f. 417. See Expectant.

c Fee ferme, Feudi firma, significeth in our Common Law, land held of another in Fee, that is, in perpetuallie to himselfe and his heires, for so much yeerely rent as it is reasonably worth, more or lesse, so it be the fourth part of the Fee worth, q. Old tenures. See Exposit. of the Statute of Glocester, anno 6. Edw. 1. without homage, fealtie, or other seruices, others than be especially comprised in the feofment. But by Fitzh. it seemeth, that the third part of the value may be appointed for the rent, or the finding of a Chaplaine to sing diuine Seruice, &c. Nat. br. fol. 210. c. And the nature of it is thus, that if the rent be behinde and vnpaid for the space of two yeeres, then the feoffour or his heires haue action to recouer the lands as their demesnes, q. Brit. c. 66. n. 4. But obserue out of q. West. symbol. p. 1. lib. 2. sect. 463. that the feoffement may containe seruices and suit of Court, as well as rent. And the author of the New Termes of Law saith, that Fee ferme oweth fealtie, though not expressed in the feofment, for that fealtie belongeth to all kinde of tenures. Vi. Ferme.

b Felonte, (Felonía) aliàs Fallonia, ¶ Hostiens. Vi. Ety. in Fellon. We account any offence felony that is in degree next vnto petit treason, and compriseth diuers particulars vnder it, as murder, theft, killing of a mans selfe, sodometry, rape, wilful burning of houses, & diuers such like, which are to be gathered especially out of Statutes, whereby many offences are daily made Felony, that before were not. Felony is discerned from higher offences by this, that the punishment thereof is death, except in Petit larcenie. * For petit larcenie, which is the stealing of any thing vnder the value of twelue pence, is Felonic, as appeareth by ¶ Broke tit. Coron. n. 2. His reason is, because the indictment against such a one must runne with these words, felonice cepit, and yet is this not punished by death, though it be losse of goods. A man may call that Felony, which is vnder petit treason, and punished by death: And of this there be two sorts, one higher, that for the first time may be releued by Clergie, another that may not. The cognition or knowing them is by Statutes. For Clergie is allowed, where it is not expressly taken away. Of these matters reads ¶ Stanf. lib. 1. pl. cor. à fine ca. 2. ad vsque 39. and the Statutes, ¶ Lamb. Iust. of peace lib. ca. 7. in a Table drawne for the purpose, as also lib. 4. cap. 4. fol. 404. ¶ Crompt. in Iust. pac. fo. 32. &c. Felony is also punished by losse of lands not entayled, and goods or Chattels, as well Reall, as Personall, and yet the Statutes anno 37. H. 8. c. 6. Felony ordinarily worketh corruption of blood, though not, where a Statute ordeineth an offence to be Felony, and yet withall saith, that it shall not worke corruption of blood, as Anno 39. Eliza. ca. 17. b ¶ Fine, Finis, à Lat. Finis, ut antè, and bath diuers applications in our Common Law, sometime being used for a formall or ceremonious Conueyance of Lands or Tenements, or as ¶ West saith, Tit. fines sect. 25. of any thing inheritable, being in esse, tempore finis, to the end to cut off all controuersies, ¶ West, part 2. symb. sect. 1. defineth a Fine in this signification: Couenants made before Iustices and entred of Record. And out of ¶ Glanville thus lib. 8. cap. 1. Finis est amicabile compositio & finalis concordia, ex consensu & licentia Domini Regis, vel eius Iusticiariorum. ¶ lib. 9. cap. 3. Talis concordia finalis dicitur, eo quod Finem imponit negotio, ad eò ut neutra pars litigantium ab eò de cætero possit recedere. Et ex Bracton lib. 5. tract. 5. cap. 28. n. 7. Finis idè dicitur Finalis concordia, quia imponit finem litibus, & est exceptio peremptoria. The author of the New Termes of Law, defineth it to be a Finall agreement, had betweene persons concerning any Land or Rent or other thing, whereof any suit or writ is betweene them hanging in any Court. See the new booke of Entries, verb. Fines. It appeareth by the Writers of the Common Law about named, that it is nothing but a composition or concord acknowledged and recorded before a competent Iudge, touching some hereditament or thing immouable, that erst was in controuersie betweene those that be parties to the same concord, and that for the better credit of the transaction, being by impuacion made in the presence of the King, because it is leued in his Court, and therefore doth it binde Women couert, being parties, and others whom ordinarily the Law disableth to tranfact, onely for this reason, that all presumption of deceit or euill meaning is excluded, where the King is priuy to the act. This fine bath in it siue essentiall parts: the originall writ taken out against the Conuoyour: the Kings licence giuing the Parties liberty to accord, (for the which he bath a fine called the Kings siluer, being accounted a part of the Crowns reuenuè.) Thirdly, the concord it selfe, which thus beginneth: Est concordia talis, &c. Fourthly, the note of the Fine, which an abstract of the originall concord, beginneth in this manner: Sc. inter R. quentrem & S & E uxorem eius desorcorant, &c. Fifthly, the foot of the Fine, which beginneth thus: Hæc est finalis concordia facta in Curia Domini Regis apud Westm. à die Pasche in quindecim dies, anno &c. so as the foot of the Fine includeth all containing the day, yeere and place, and before what Iustices the Concord was made, ¶ Coke vr. 6. ca. Teje, f. 38. 39. * This word Fine, sometime signifieth a summe of money paid for an income to Lands or Tenements let by lease. Sometimes an amends, pecuniarie punishment, or recompence vpon an offence committed against the King and his Lawes, or a Lord of a Manour. In which case a man is said facere finem de transgressionem cum Rege, &c. Registr. iud. fol. 25. a. ¶ Crompt. luff. of peace fol. 141. b. 143. 144. ¶ Lamb. Eirenarch. lib. 4. cap. 16. fol. 555. But in all those diuersities of uses, it bath but one signification, and that is a Finall conclusion, or end of differences betweene Parties. And in this last sense, where it is used for the ending and remission of an offence, ¶ Bract. bath in lib. 2. cap. 15. n. 8. speaking of a Common fine that the Countie paieth to the King, for false iudgements or other trespasss, which is to be assessed by the Iustices in Eyre before their departure, by the oath of Knights and other good men, vpon such as ought to pay it, with whom agreeth the Statute anno 3. Edw. 1. cap. 18. There is also a common fine in Lects. Vi. ¶ Kitch. fol. 13. a.

b * Forrest (Foresta) is a great or vast Wood. q. M. Manwood 2. par. of Forest Lawes, cap. 1. n. 1. thus defineth it: A Forrest is a certaine Territorie of Woodie grounds and fruitfull Pastures, priuileged for wilde beasts and fowles of the Forrest, Chace, and Warren, to rest and abide in, in the safe protection of the King, for his Princely delight and pleasure, which Territorie of ground so priuileged, is Meered and Bounded with vnremouable marks, meeres and boundaries, either knowne by matter of Record or else prescription, and also replenished with wilde Beasts of Veneries or chase, and with great courtis of Vert, for the succour of the said wilde Beasts to haue their aboad in: for the preservation and continuance of which said place, together with the Vert, and Venison, there are certaine particular Lawes, Priuileges, and Officers, belonging to the same, meet for that purpose, that are only proper vnto a Forrest, and not to any other place. The manner of making Forrest, as the same Author well setteth downe, part. 1. pag. 142. is this: The King sendeth out his Commission vnder the broad seale of England, directed to certaine discreet persons, for the view, perambulation, meering and bounding of the place, that he mindeth to * Afforest, which returned vnto the Chancery, Proclamation is made thorow out all the Shire where the ground lieth, that none shall hunt or chase any manner of wilde beasts within that precinct, without the Kings speciall licence, after which hee appointeth ordinances, lawes, and Officers, fit for the preservation of the Vert and Venison: and so becommeth this a Forrest by matter of record. The properties of a Forrest are these in speciall, first a Forrest, as it is truly and strictly taken, cannot be in the hands of any but the Kings: the reason is giuen by M. Manwood, because none hath power to grant Commission to a Iustice in cure for the Forrest, but the King, q. Part. 1. pag. 87. The second proprietie, be the courts, as the Iustice seat euerie three yeere, the Swaine-moote thrice euerie yeere: Idem eodem pag. 90. & part. 2. cap. 1. num. 4. & 5. and the attachment once euerie fortie dayes. Idem eodem pag. 92. The third proprietie may be the Officers belonging vnto it, for the preservation of the Vert and Venison, as first the Iustices of the Forrest, the Warden or Keeper, the Verders, the Forresters, Agistours, Regarders, Bayliffes, Bedels, and such like which you may see in their places. See M. Manwood part. 2. cap. 1. num. 4. & 5. But the chiefe property of a Forrest, both by M. Manwood, part 1. pag. 144. and q. Crompton pag. 146. is the Swaine-mote, which (as they both agree) is no lesse incident vnto it, then the Court of Pyepowders to a faire. Other courts and Offices are not so requisite, in those Forrests that are in the hands of subiects, because they be not truly Forrests: but if this faile, then is there nothing of a Forrest remaining, but it is turned into the nature of a Chace. See Chace. You may read of so many Forrests in England: The Forrest of Winfor in Barke-shire, q. Cambd. Brit. of Piking, q. Crompt. 190. of Shirwood idem fol. 102. of Englewood in Cumberland, anno 4. Frankie almoine, Libera eleemosyna, in French Frank almonie, significeth in our Common Law a tenure or title of lands, or tenements bestowed upon God, that is, given to such people, as bestow themselves in the seruice of God, for pure and perpetuall almes, ¶ Brit. cap. 66. n. 5. whence the Feoffour or giuer cannot demand any terrestriall seruice, so long as the lands &c. remaine in the hands of the Feoffees. With this agreeeth the Grand Customarie of Normandie, c. 32. reade ¶ Bract. lib. 2. c. 5. & 10. ¶ Fitzh. Nat. br. f. 211. the New booke of Entries verbo Frankie almoine. ¶ Britton maketh another kinde of this land &c. which is giuen in almes, but not free almes, because the tenents in this are tied in certaine seruices to the Feoffour.

Frankie banke, (Francus bancus.) G. Franc banc, i. a Free bench or seat, and among our Law Writers it seemeth to be used for Copihold lands, that the wife being espoused a virgin, hath after the decease of her husband for her dowry, ¶ Kitch. fol. 102. Bract. lib. 4. tract. 6. c. 13. n. 2. hath these words, Consuetudo est in partibus illis, quod uxores maritorum defunctorum habeant Francum bancum suum de terris sockmannorum, & tenent nomine Dotis. ¶ Fitzh. calleth it a Custome, whereby in certaine Cities the wife shall haue her husbands whole lands, &c. for her dowry, ¶ Nar. br. fol. 150. p. Vi. ¶ Plowden casu Nowis, f. 411.

Frankie chafe, Libera chafea, is a libertie of Free chafe, whereby all men hauing ground within the compasse, are prohibited to cut downe wood or discouer, &c. without the view of the Forester, though it bee his owne demesne, ¶ Crompt. Jurisd. f. 187.

Frankie fee, Feudum francum seu liberum, is by Brooke tit. Demesne, n. 32. thus expressed: That which is in the hand of the King or Lord of any Manour, being ancient Demesne of the Crowne (viz. the Demesnes) is called Franke Fee: and that which is in the hand of the Tenents, is ancient demesne only. Vi. Regist. orig. f. 12. a. whereby it seemeth that that is Franke Fee, which a man holdeth at the Common Law to himselfe and his heires, and not by such seruice as is required in ancient demesne, according to the custome of the Manour. And againe, in the same Booke, fol. 14. b. there is a note to this effect, that the lands which were in the hand of King Edward the Saint, at the making of the Booke called Doomesday, is ancient demesne, and that all the rest in the Realme is Franke Fee, with the which note Fitzh. agreeeth, nat. br. fol. 161. c. so that all the land in the Realme by this reason, is either ancient demesne, or Franke Fee. The new expounder of the Law termes defineth Franke Fee to be a tenure in Fee simple of lands pleadable at the Common Law, and not in ancient demesne. Vi. ¶ Fachin. lib. 7. c. 39. who defineth Feudum Francum esse, pro quo nullum seruicium præstaturo Domino. With whom agreeeth ¶ Zaf. de Feud. p. 12. saying, that therefore it is Feudum improprium, quia ab omni seruicio liberum.

Frankierme, Firma libera, is land or tenement, wherein the nature of Fee is changed by feoffment out of Knights seruice, for certaine yearly seruices, and whence neither homage, wardship, marriage, nor reliefe may be demanded, nor any other seruice not contained in the feoffment, ¶ Brit. c. 66. n. 3. Frankie pledge, Franciplegium, a free pledge or suretie, and significeth in our Common Law, a pledge or suretie for Freemen. For the ancient custome of England for the preservation of the publike peace, was, that every free borne man, at fourteene yeeres of age, after Bracton, (religious persons, Clerkes, Knights, and their eldest sonne excepted) should finde suretie for his truth toward the King and his subiects, or else be kept in prison: whereupon a certaine number of neighbours became customably bound one for another, to see each man of their pledge forth comming at all times, or to answer the transgression committed by any broken away. So that whosoever offended, it was forthwith inquired in what pledge he was, and then they of that pledge either brought him forth within 31. daies to his answer, or satisfied for his offence. This was called Franke pledge, and the circuit thereof was called * Decenna, because it commonly consisted of ten housholds: and every particular person thus mutually bound for himselfe and his neighbours, was called Decennier, because he was of one Decenna or another. This custome was so kept, that the Shreuees at every Countie Court did from time to time take the oathes of young ones, as they grew to the age of 14. yeeres, and see that he were combined in one dozen or another: whereupon this branch of the Shreuees authoritie was called * visus Franciplegii, view of Franke pledge. Free chappell.

f Free chappell, Libera capella, by some opinion, is a chappell, founded within a Parish, for the service of God, by the deuotion and liberalitie of some good man, ouer and above the mother Church, unto the which it was free for the Parishioners to come or not to come, and endowed with maintenance by the founder, and thereupon called free. Others say, that those only be free Chappells, that are of the Kings foundation, and by him exempted from the Iurisdiction of the Ordinarie, but the King may licence a subiect to found such a Chappell, and by his Charter exempt it from the Ordinaries visitation also: that it is called free in respect it is exempted from the iurisdiction of the Diocesan, appeareth by the Regist. orig. f. 40, 41. These Chappells were all giuen to the King with chaunteries, ann. 1. Ed. 6. c. 14. Free Chappell of S. Martin le grand ann. 3. Edw. 4. cap. 4. & anno 4. Edw. 4. cap. 7.

But Britton d. fineth it to be a possession of the soile, or seruices issuing out of the soile, which a Free-man holdeth in fee to him and his heires, or at the least for terme of his life, though the soile be charged with free seruices or others, cap. 32. Vi. ¶ Free.

h Free-hold, liberum tenementum, is that Land or Tenement, which a man holdeth in Fee tayle, or at the least for terme of life, ¶ Bract. 2. cap. 9. The new expound. of the Law Termes, saith that Free-hold is of two sorts, in Deed, and in Law. In Deed, is the real possession of Land or Tenements in Fee, Fee tayle or for life: In Law, is the right that a man hath to such Land or Tenements, before his entry or seisure. ¶ Brit. defineth it to this effect: Frank-tenement or Free-hold is a possession of the soile, or seruices issuing out of the soile, which a Free-man holdeth in fee to him and his heires, or at the least for terme of his life, though the soile be charged with Free-seruices or others, cap. 32. Free-hold, is sometime taken in opposition to Villenage, ¶ Bract. lib. 4. cap. 37, 38. ¶ Mr Lamberd in his Explic. of Sax. words, verb. Terra ex scripto, saith, that land in the Saxons time was called either * Bokland, that is holden by Booke or Writing, or * Folcland, that is holden without writing. The former be reported, was held with farre better conditions, and by the better sort of Tenants, as Noble and Gentlemen, being such as we now call Free-hold; the latter was commonly in the possession of Clownes, being that which we now call at the will of the Lord. We finde in the Regist. iudicial fol. 68. a. that he which holdeth land upon an execution of a Statute Merchant, vntill he be satisfied the debt, tenet vt liberum tenementum sibi & assignatis suis, & fol. 73. b. We reade the same of a tenet per elegit, where the meaning is not, that such tenents be Free-holders, but as Free-holders for their time, that is, vntill they haue gathered profits to the value of their debt. Free-holders in the ancient Law of Scotland were called Milites, ¶ Skene de v. s. verb. milites. Gardein.

e Gardiein, custos. G. Gardien, and yet the German Warden is neere vnto it. It signifieth generally him that hath the charge or custodie of any person or thing, but most notoriously him that hath the education or protection of such people as are not of sufficient discretion to guide themselves and their owne affaires, as children and idiots, being indeed as largely extended, as both * tutor & curator among the Ciuilians. For whereas tutor is he that hath the government of a youth, vntill he come to fourteene yeeres of age, and curator he that hath the disposition and ordering of his substance afterward, vntill hee attaine to one and twentie yeeres, or that hath the charge of a franticke person, during his lunacie, the Common Lawyers vse but only Gardiein or Gardian for both these. And for the better vnderstanding of our Common Law in this thing, you must know, that as tutor is either testamentarius or à pratore datus ex l. Atilia, or lastly legitimus, so we haue three sorts of Gardieines in England, one ordeined by the Father in his last will, another appointed by the Iudge afterward, the third cast vpon the minor by the law and custome of the Land. Touching the first, a man hauing goods and chattels neuer so many, may appoint a Gardian to the bodie or person of his childe, by his last will and testament, vntill he come to the age of fourteene yeeres, and so the disposing and ordering of his substance, vntill what time he thinketh meet, and that is most commonly the age of one and twentie yeeres. The same may he doe, if he haue lands to neuer so great a value, so they hold not in capite of the King, nor of any other Lord by Knights seruice. And in the former case, if the father appoint no gardein to his childe, the ordinary may appoint one to order his moucables and chattels, vntill the age of fourteene yeeres, at which time he may chuse his guardian himselfe, accordingly as by the Ciuill Law he may his curator. For one rule with the Ciuilians in this case is held, and that is, * Inuito curator non datur. And for his lands, if he hold any by copie of court roll, commonly the Lord of the Fee appointeth him a Guardian, vntill hee come to the age of fourteene yeeres, and that is one, next of Kind to the minor of that side, that can hope for least profit by his death. If he hold by charter in socage, then the next of Kinde on that side, by which the land commeth not, is the Guardian, and hereupon called Guardian in socage. And that which is said here of Socage, seemeth to be true likewise in petit sergeantie ann. 28. Edw. 1. Stat. 1. And the reason of this * Fortescue giueth in his booke intituled, a Commendation of the politike law of England, cap. 44. viz. because there might be suspicion, if the next kinsman on that side, by which the land descendeth should haue the custodie and education of the childe, that for desire of his land he might be intised to worke him some mischief. Lastly, if a man die seised of lands, holding by Knights seruice, leauing his heire in minority, that is, vnder one and twentie yeeres, the Lord of the Fee bath by law the custodie both of the heire and his land, vntill he come to age. Vi. Stat. 1. ann. 28. Edw. 1. And the reason of this Fortescue likewise giueth, for that hee to whom by his tenure hee oweth Knights seruice, when he can performe it, is likeliest to traîne him vp in martiall and ingenuous discipline, vntill he be of abilitie. But q Polidor Virgil in his Chronicle, lib. 16. saith, That it was nouum vestigalisigenus excogitatum, to helpe Henry the third, being oppressed much with pouertie, by reason he receiued the Kingdome much wasted by the warres of his Ancestours, and therefore needing extraordinary helpe to vphold his estate. Yet the 33. chap. of the Grand Custum. maketh mention of this to haue bene used by the Normans. Here is to be obserued, whether land in Knights seruice held in capite, or of another Lord, or some of the King, and some another. If of the King, whether of the King alone, or not, all is one. For the King in this case is Guardian to the heires both person and land by his prerogatiue, q Stawnf. proreg. cap. 1. If he hold of a common Lord, it is either of one alone or more. If of one only, then is hee Guardian of both person and lands; if of more, then the Lord of whom he holdeth by the elder tenure, is Guardian of the person, and euery one of the rest hath the custodie of the land holden of himselfe. If the prioritie of the tenure cannot be discerned, then is he Guardian of the person that first happeth him, q Term. of the Law, & Stawnf. f. 19. which maketh mention of Gardiein in feit, and Gardiein in droit, that is, in deed, and in law. I take the first to be him that purchased or otherwise obtained the ward of the Lord of whom the land holdeth. The second him, that hath the right by his inheriuanee and signorie, q Old Nat. br. f. 94. Then is there Gardiein per cause de gard, who is he that hath the wardship of a minor, because he is Guardian of his Lord, being likewise in minority, q Stawnf. f. 15. Vi. Skene Verb. sig. verb. 5400 * Gauelket, is a speciall and ancient kinde of Cessauit used in Kent, where this custome of Gauelkinde continueth: whereby the tenant shall forfeit his lands and tenements to the Lord of whom they are holden, if he withdraw from his Lord his due rents and seruices, after this manner as followeth. If any tenant in Gauelkinde, with-hold his rent and his seruices of the tenement wh. ch. he holdeth of his Lord, let the Lord seeke by the award of his court from three weekes to three weekes, to finde some distresse upon the tenements untill the fourth Court, alwayes with witnesses. And if within that time, he can finde no distresse in that tenement, whereby he may haue iustice of his Tenant, then at the fourth Court let it be awarded, that he shall take that tenement into his hand, in the name of a distresse, as if it were an ox or a cow, and let him keepe it a yeere and a day in his hand without manuring it: within which terme if the Tenant come and pay his arerages, and make reasonable amends for the with-holding, then let him haue and enioy his tenement as his ancestors and hee before held it: and if he doe not come before the yeere and the day bee past, then let the Lord goe to the next Countie court, with his witnesses of his owne Court, and pronounce there this processe to haue further witnesses, and by the award of his Court (after the Countie court holden) hee shall enter and manure in those lands and tenements as in his owne. And if the Tenant come afterward, and will rehaue his tenements, and hold them as hee did before, let him make agreement with the Lord, according as it is anciently said. Hath be not since any thing giuen, nor hath he not since any thing payed: then let him pay V. li. for his error, before he become tenant or holder againe. See hereof 10. H. 3. Fitz. Cessauit 60. and statute 10. Edw. 2. of Gaucler in London, in the collection of statutes London 2. matter much tending to this purpose, that by this word Gaucler, the Lord shall haue the land for the ceasing of the Tenant. And see W. 2. cap. 21. which giueth Cessauit. There be some copies that haue the first verse thus written:

Nisith yelde, and nisith gelde. Others thus; Nighefith yeld, and nighefith geld. Others thus;
Nigondfith feld, and nigondfith geld. That is to say,
Let him nine times pay, and nine times repay.

* Gauelkinde. b * Gauelkind, is by Mr. Lamberd in his exposition of Saxon words, verbo Terra ex scripto, compounded of thre Saxon words, gýpe, cal, cýn, giue all kin: omnibus cognatione proximis data. But M. Verstegan in his restitution of decayed intelligence, cap. 3. calleth it Gauelkind, q. giue all kind, (for kind in low Dutch is a childe) that is, giue to each childe his part. Morem hunc apud veteres ipsos Germanos inualluisse Tacitus memorat (in Germ. mox.) unde & nostratibus per Saxones deualluisse non est dubium.

Teutonibus priscis, patrios succedit in agros Mascula stirps omnis, ne foret vlla potens.

It signifieth in our Common Law a custome, whereby the lands of the father is equally diuided at his death amongst all his sonnes, or the land of the brother equally diuided among the brethren, if he haue no issue of his owne, ¶ Kitch. fol. 103. This custome is said to be of force in diuers places of England, but especially in Kent, as the said Author reporteth, shewing also the cause why Kentish-men rather vse this custome, than any other Province, viz. because it was a composition made betwene the Conqueror and them, after all England beside was conquered, that they should enioy their ancient customes, whereof this was onc. For Mr. Camden in his Britannia, saith thus: Cantiani ea lege Guberno Normanno se dediderunt, vt patrias consuetudines illas retinerent, illamque inprimis quam Gauelkind nominant. Hæ terræ quæ eo nomine censentur, liberis masculis ex æquis portionibus diuiduntur, vel feminis, si masculi non fuerint: adding more worth the noting, viz. Hanc hereditatem, cum quintum decimum annum attigerint, adeunt, & sine Domini consensu, cuilibet vel dando, vel vendendo alienare licet. Hac filij, parentibus furi damnatis, in id genus fundis succedunt, &c. This custome in diuers Gentlemens lands, was altered at their petition, by Act of Parliament, ann. 31. H. 8. cap. 3. But it appeareth by 18. H. 6. cap. pri. that in those daies there were not above thirty or forty persons in Kent, that held by any other Tenure. See the new Termes, Gaucler and Gauelkind.

5402 * Gaugeour (Gaugeator) dist. à G. Gauchir, i. in gyrum torquere. It signifieth with vs an Officer of the Kings appointed to examine all tunnes, hogsheads, pipes, barrels, and tercians of wine, oyle, honey, butter, and to giue them a marke of allowance, before they be sold in any place. And because this marke is a circle made with an iron instrument for that purpose, it seemeth that from thence he taketh his name, of the French Gauchir, that is, to wric or turne. Of this Office you may finde many Statutes: the first whereof is, Anno 27. Ed. 3. commonly called the Statute of prouision, or Purueyours, cap. 8.

b a Gentleman, (Generosus) seemeth to be made of two words, the one French, (Gentil, i. honestus, uel honesto loco natus) the other Saxon, (Mon) as if you would say, a man well borne. So that Gentlemen be those, whom their bloud and race doth make noble and known. εὐγενής in Greeke, in Latine nobiles, f Smith de Repub. Angl. lib. 1. cap. 20. Under this name are all comprised that are about Yeomen: so that Noblemen be truly called Gentlemen. But by the course and custome of England, a Nobilitie is either maior or minor: the greater containeth all titles and degrees from Knights upward: the lesser all from Barons downward, f Smith ubi supra, cap. 21. The reason of the name groweth from this, that they obserue gentilitatem suam, that is, the race and propagation of their bloud, by giuing of armes, which the common sort neither doth, nor may doe. For by the coat that a Gentleman giueth, he is knowne to be, or not to be descended from those of his name, that liued many hundred yeeres since. Hombeit, that this is neglected, where substance faileth to maintaine the countenance. For many of great birth fall to poueritie, whose posteritie liuing and labouring in want, haue small encouragement to looke after the titles of their ancestors, and so in time slip into the number of the ignoble sort: yet if they by their vertue or fortune, can againe aduance themselves to sufficient abilitie, the Herald out of his obseruations, can restore them to the coat of their progenitors, and now and then helpe them to one, that their ancestors neuer were. Gentiles homines, see in a Tiraquel. de Nobilitate cap. 2. pag. 53. Tully in his Topicks thus saith of this matter. Gentiles sunt, qui inter se eodem sunt nomine ab ingenuis oriundi, quorum maiorum nemo seruitutem seruauit, qui capite non sunt diminuti. And in the first booke of his Tuscul. Questiones, he calleth Tullium Hostilium, one of the Kings of Rome, Gentilem suum.
