5789 a Gule of August, (Gula Augusti) the first day of August; Gule of August called in old Almanacks or Kalenders, S. Peter ad vincula, or in our latter Almanacks, Lammas day, and Anno 27. Ed. 3. Stat. 3. cap. vnicò, q; Fitzh. nat. br. fol. 62. 1. called Gule of August, alias Goule de August, q; Plowd. casu Mines, fo. 316. b. is the very day of Saint Peter ad vincula, which was wont, and is still within the limits of the Romane Church, celebrated upon the very Kalends of August. Why it should be called the Gule of August, it may well be coniectured, that it commeth of the French Gueule, f. Lat. Gula, i. the throat. The reason of the coniecture is in Durands rationali diuinorum, lib. 7. cap. de festo S. Petri ad vincula: who saith that one * Quirinus a Tribune, hauing a daughter that had a disease in her throat, went to Alexander the 6. then Pope of Rome, and desired of him to borrow or see the chains that S. Peter was chained with vnder Nero: which request obtained, his said daughter kissing the said chains, was cured of her disease, and Quirinus with his familie were baptized. Tunc dicitur Alexander Papa (ut inquit Durandus) hoc Festum in Kalendis Augusti celebrandum instituit, & in honorem beati Petri Ecclesiam in urbe fabricauit, * ubi vincula ipsa reposuit, & ad vincula nominauit, & Kalendis Augusti dedicauit. In qua festiuitate, populus illic ipsa vincula hodie osculatur. So that this day being before called only the Kalends of August, was upon this occasion after ward termed indifferently, either of the instrument that wrought this miracle, S. Peters day ad vincula, or of that part of the maiden, the throat, whereon the miracle was wrought, the Gule of August.

b Hue and crie, Hurefium & Clamor, dict. à G. Huer, & Crier, both signifying to shout, or crie aloud. I. Accori-huomo. This signifieth a pursuit of one having committed felonie by the high way, for if the partie robbed, or any in the companie of one murdered or robbed, come to the Constable of the next towne, and will him to raise Hiew and Crie, or to make pursuit after the offender, describing the partie, and shewing as neere as he can, which way hee is gone; the Constable ought forthwith to call vpon the Parish, for aid in seeking the felon: and if hee be not found there, then to giue the next Constable warning, and he the next, vntill the offender be apprehended, or at the least, vntill he be thus pursued to the sea side. Of this reade *Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 5. Smith de repub. Angl. lib. 2. cap. 20. and the stat. An. 13. Edw. 1. stat. of Winch. cap. 3. & an. 28. Ed. 3. ca. 11. & Anno 27. El. cap. 13. The Normans had such a pursuit with a Crie after offenders, as this is, which they called Haro: whereof you may reade the Grand Customarie, cap. 54. Some call it Harol: the reason whereof they giue to be this. That there was a Duke of Normandie called Rol, a man of great justice and feueritie against greuous offenders: and that therupon when they follow any in this pursuit, they crie Ha-Rol, as if they should say, Ah Rol, where art thou that wert wont to redresse this, or what shouldst thou doe against these wretches, if thou wert living. In which case, they that are within hearing must make pursuit, or pay a fine. Sometime Hue is used alone, ¶ Anno 4. Ed. 1. Sta. 2. This the Scots call Hurefium, Vi. Skene verbo Hurefium. * The manner of their Hue and crie, as he there describeth it, is that if a robberie be done, a borne is blowne, and an outcrie made: after which, if the partie flie away, and not yeeld himselfe to the Kings Bayliffe, he may be lawfully staine, and hangd vpon the next gallows.  6503-2 Ignoramus, is a word properly used by the grand Enquest impanelled in the inquisition of causes criminall and publike: and written vpon the Bill, whereby any crime is offered to their consideration, when as they mislike their evidence as defectiue, or too weak to make good the Presentment. The effect of which word so written is, that all farther inquirie vpon that partie for that fault, is thereby stopped, and he deliuered without farther answer. It hath a resemblance with that custome of the ancient Romanes: where the Iudges, when they absolued a person accused, did write * A. vpon a little Table provided for that purpose, i. absoluius: if they iudged him guiltie, they writ * C. i. Condemnatus: if they found the cause difficult and doubtful, they writ * N. L. i. non liquet, q. Asconius Pedianus in Orat. pro Milone. q. Alexander ab Alexandro. Genial. dierum, lb. 3. cap. 14.

b Juſtice, luſticiarius, ſignifieth him that is deputed by the King, to doe right by way of iudgement. The reaſon why he is called * Juſtice, and not Iudex, is, becauſe in ancient time the Latine word for him was luſticia, and not luſticiarius, q̄ Glan. lib. 2. cap. 6. Houeden, parte poſter. annaliu, fol. 413. a. and diuers other places: which appellation we haue from the Normans, as appeareth by the great Cuſtomarie, cap. 3. Men of this ſanction ſhould hereby conſider, that they are (or ought to be) not Juſti in their iudgements, but in abſtract, ipſa iuſticia. Another reaſon why they are called luſticiarij, and not Iudices, is, becauſe they haue their autoritie by deputation, as Delegates to the King, and not iure magiſtratus: and therefore cannot depute others in their ſtead, the Juſtice of the Foreſt only excepted, who hath that libertie eſpecially giuen him by the ſtatute q̄ An. 32. Iustice of the Kings Bench, (Iusticiarius de Banco Regis) is a Lord by his Office, and the chiefe of the rest: wherefore he is also called Capitulis Iusticiarius Angliæ. His office especially is, to heare and determine all plees of the Crowne: that is, such as concerne offences committed against the Crowne, dignitie, and peace of the King: as treasons, felonies, mayhem, and such like, which you may see in Bracton lib. 3. tract. 2. per totum: and in Stawnt. treatise, intituled The plees of the Crowne, from the first chapter to the 51. of the first booke. But either it was from the beginning, or by time it is come to passe, that he with his assistance heareth all personall actions, and reall also, if they be incident to any personall action depending before them. Vi. Crompt. Iurisdic. fol. 67. &c. Of this Court Bract. lib. 3. ca. 7. num. 2. This Iustice, as it seemeth, hath no Patent vnder the broad Seale. For so Crompton saith vbi supra. He is made only by Writ, which is a short one to this effect: * Regina Johanni Popham Militi salutem. Sciatis quod constituimus vos Iusticiarium nostrum capitalem, ad placita coram nobis terminandum, durante beneplacito nostro. Teste &c. And Bracton in the place now recited, speaking of the Common Plees, saith, that sine warranto iurisdictionem non habet: which I thinke is to be understood of a Commission vnder the Great Seale. * This Court was first called the Kings Bench, because the King sae as Iudge in it, in his proper person, and it was moueable with the Court. Vi. An. 9. H. 3. cap. 11. More of the iurisdiction of this Court, vi. in Crompton vbi supra. Vi. Kings bench. The oath of the Iustices, see in the Statute, Ann. 18. Ed. 3. Stat. 4. Vi. Dath.

Lo. chiefe Iustice of the common plees.

Iustice of common plees, (Iusticiarius communium placitorum) is also a Lord by his office, and is called Dominus Iusticiarius communium placitorum: and hee with his assistants originally did heare and determine all causes at the common Law, that is, all ciuill causes betweene common persons, as well personall as reall, for which cause it was called the Court of Common Pleas, in opposition to the plees of the Crowne or the Kings plees, which are speciall, and pertaining to him only. Of this and the iurisdiction hereof, vi. Cromptons Iurisdiction, fol. 91. This Court was alwaies settled in a place, as appeareth by the Statute, An. 9. H. 3. cap. 11. The oath of this Iustice and his Associates, see an. 18. Ed. 3. Stat. 4. Vi. Dath. For this Court of common plees, as I haue heard, is requirable, the learnedst Lawyers of the Land (seeing they are to heare and to iudge, and determine of the difficultest and deepest points of law in cases and causes, touching mens Inheritances (of all or the most part of the subjects of the Land.)

* Iustice in Eyre of the Forest.

Iustice of the Forest (Iusticiarius Forestæ) sometimes called Iustice in Eyre of the Forest, is also a Lord by his office, and hath the hearing and determining of all offences, within the Kings Forest, committed against Venison or Vert. Of these there be two, whereof the one hath iurisdiction ouer all the Forests on this side Trent, the other, of all beyond. The chiefe point of their iurisdiction consisteth vpon the articles of the Kings charter, called Charta de Foresta, made An. 9. H. 3. which was by the Barons hardly drawne from him, to the mitigation of euer cruell ordinances made by his Predecessours. Read M. Camdens Britan. See Protoforestarius. The Court where this Iustice sitteth and determineth, is called the Iustice seat of the Forest, held euery three yeeres once, whereof you may reade at large in M. Manwoods first part of Forest Lawes, pag. 121. & 154. & pag. 76. Hee is sometimes called Iustice in Eyre of the forest. See the reason in Iustice in Eyre. This is the only Iustice that may appoint a Deputie per statutum, Anno 32. H. 8. cap. 35. and on this side Trent, or on the South side.

* No Iustice of Assise to be in his owne Countrey. Iustice of Oyer and Terminer.

Iustices of Assise, (Iusticiarij ad capiendas Assisas) are such as were wont by speciall commission to be sent (as occasion was offered) into this or that Countie to take Assises, for the ease of the subjects. For where as these actions passe alway by Iurie, so many men might not without great binderance be brought to London, and therefore Iustices for this purpose were by commission particularly authorized, and sent downe to them. When they come to this dignitie, they giue ouer practise, An. 8. Ric. 2. cap. 3. but this alway to be remembered, that neither Iustice of either Bench, (nor any other) * may bee Iustice of Assise in his owne Countrey, An. 8. Ric. 2. cap. 2. & ann. 33. H. 8. cap. 24. Vi. Iustices of Nisi prius.

* Iustice in Eyre.

Iustices of Oyer and Terminer (Iusticiarij ad audiendum & terminandum) were Iustices deputed vpon some especiall or extraordinarie occasion, to heare and determine some or more causes, An. Fitzh. in his nat. br. saith, that the commission d'oyer and terminer, is directed to certaine persons vpon any great assembly, insurrection, hainous demerour, or trespass committed. And because the occasion of granting this commission should be maturely weighed, it is provided by the statute, An. 2. Ed. 3. cap. 2. that no such commission ought to be granted, but that they shall be dispatched before the Iustices of the one Bench or other, or Iustices errants, except for horrible trespasses, and that by the especiall fauour of the King. The forme of this commission, see in Fitzh. nat. br. fol. 110. Vi. Iustices in Eyre.

Iustices in Eyre, (Iusticiarij itinerantes) are so termed of the French (Eyre, i. iter, a journey) which is an old word, as (a grand erre, i. magnis itineribus) prouerbiually spoken. The vse of these in ancient time, was to send them with Commission into diuers Counties, to heare such causes especially, as were termed the Plees of the Crowne: and therefore one may imagine they were so sent abroad for the ease of the subjects, who must else haue come to the Kings Bench, if the cause were too high for the Countie Court. They differed from the Iustices of Oyer and Terminer, because they (as is aboue said) were sent vncertainely, vpon any vprour or other occasion in the Countrey: but these in Eyre (as M. Gwin setteth downe in the Preface to his Reading) were sent but euery seuen yeeres once: with whom, Horne in his Mirrour of Iustices, seemeth to agree, lib. 2. and lib. 3. cap. De Iustices in Eyre, where hee also declareth what belonged to their Office. These were instituted Hen. 2. An. Camd. Brit. And Houeden, parte poster. annal. fol. 313. b. hath of them these words: Iusticiarij itinerantes constituti per Henricum secundum, i. qui diuisit regnum suum in sex partes, per quarum singulas tres Iusticiarios itinerantes constituit, quorum nomina hec sunt, &c. And my Lord Coke to the Reader, in the ninth part of his Reports, citeth out of a verie ancient and learned Treatise of the Lawes and vsages of this Kingdome, whereby this Realme was gouerned about 1100. yeeres past, intituled by him, The Mirrour of Iustices, cap. 1. §. 3. thus: Iusticiarij Itinerantes, or Iustices in Eyre, Commissioners Itinerant, assigned to haue conuifance of Plees. In aid of such Eires, the Sheriffes Turnes and Viewes of Franck-pledges are necessarie. And all those whom the good men of such Enquests did endite of a capitall offence, the Kings were wont to destroy without any answer (which vsages are yet in practise in Almaine:) But by warrant of Picie and Mercie (because the frailtie of man cannot refrain from sinne, vnlesse God of his especiall grace giue him abstinence) it is accorded, that no Appellée nor Inditée shall be destroyed without answer.

Iustices of Gaole deliuerie (Iusticiarij ad Gaolas delibandas) are such as are sent with Commission to heare and determine all causes, appertaining to such, as for any offence are cast into the Gaole, part of whose authoritie is, to punish such as let to mainprise those prisoners that by Law are not bayleable by the Statute de Finibus, An. 3. Fitzh. nat. br. fol. 151. I. These by likelihood, in ancient time, were sent to Countreies vpon this severall occasion. But afterward Iustices of Assise were likewise authorized to this, An. 4. Edw. 3. cap. 3. Their oath is all one with other of the Kings Iustices of either Bench, An. Old Abridgement of Statutes, titulo Sacramentum Iusticiarium. Vi. Dath.

Iustices of Labourers, were Iustices appointed in those times to redresse the forwardnesse of labouring men, that would either be idle, or haue vnreasonable wages. Vi. An. 21. Ed. 3. cap. 1. an. 25. ciuid. cap. 8. & an. 31. ciuid. cap. 6.

Iustices of Nisi prius, are all one now adays with Iustices of Assises: for it is a common Adournement of a cause in the Common Plees, so put it off to such a day, * Nisi prius Iusticiarij venerint ad eas partes, ad capiendas Assisas: and vpon this clause of Adournement, they are called Iustices of Nisi prius, as well as Iustices of Assises, by reason of the writ or action that they haue to deal in: Their Commission you may see in Crompt. Iurisdic. fol. 204. Vi. Iustices of Assises.

* Nisi prius, quid & unde.

Iustices of triall baston, alius of trayl baston, were a kinde of Iustices appointed by K. Ed. 1. vpon occasion of great disorder growne in the Realme, during his absence in the Scottish and French warres. They are called in the Old Nat. br. fol. 52. Iustices of Triall baston, but by Holinshed and Stow in Edw. 1. of Trailebaston, of trailing or drawing the staffe, as Holinshed saith. Their office was to make inquisition thorow the Realme, by the verdict of substantiall Iuries vpon all Officers, as Maiors, Sheriffes, Bayliffes, Escheators, and others, touching extortion, bribes, and other such grieuances, as intrusions into other mens lands, and Barratours that used to take money for beating of men, and also of them whom they did beat: by meanes of which inquisitions many were punished by death, many by ranfome, and so the rest flying the Realme, the Land was quieted, and the King gained great riches toward the supporting of his warres. Trail-baston, both words being French, dist. à G. Treille, i. pergula, a house, arbour, a raile, or forme, such as vines runne vpon: and Baston, a staffe or pole, noting thereby, that the Iustices employed in this Commission, had authoritie to proceed without any solemn iudgement Seat in any place, either compassed in with railes, or made Booth or Tent-wise, set vp with stauces or poles, without more worke, wherefoer they could apprehend the malefactours they sought for. Vi. Lib. Assisarum, fol. 141. 57.

Iustices of peace, (Iusticiarij ad pacem) are they that are appointed by the Kings Commission, with others, to attend the Peace in the Countie where they dwell: of whom, some vpon speciall respect are made of the * Quorum, because some businesse of importance may not be dealt in without the presence or assent of them, or one of them: they are called of the Quorum, because the King in their Commission thus chuseth or chargeth them, Quorum vos, A. B. C. D. E. F. vnum esse volumus, for the speciall trust in them reposed. Of these, An. Iustice Fitzh. as also M. Lambert, M. Crompton, and M. Dalton, of late haue written booke of it, to their great commendation, and fruitfull benefit of the whole Realme. See also Sir Tho. Smith, de Repub. Ang. lib. 2. cap. 19. They were called * Gardians of the Peace, vntill the 36. yeere of K. Ed. the third, ca. 12. where they be called Iustices, An. Lamb. Eiren. lib. 4. cap. 19. pag. 578. Their Oath see also in Lamb. lib. 1. cap. 10.

* Iustices of Quorum vnde.

* Gardians of the Peace.

Iustices of Peace, &c. within Liberties, (Iusticiarij ad pacem infra libertates) be such in Cities and other corporate Townes, as those others be of any Countie, and their authoritie or power is all one within their severall precincts, An. 27. H. 8. cap. 25.

Iustice of Peace, G. Iusticiere, I. G. Iusticiere, G. Iusticiario, H. Iusticiere. L. Iusticiarius Pacis, Curator Pacis, Irenarcha, Irenarches. B. Wredeborst. T. Friedefurst, à hrede, friede, i. pax, & bozst, furt, i. primarius. Gr. εἰλωδῆς, ἀβείρων, i. pax, & ἀπὸ, i. princeps, primarius scilicet pacis conseruandæ.

The Office of a Iustice of Peace, Vi. Cirenarchie.

Iustices, is a writ directed to the Sheriffe, for the dispatch of justice in some especiall cause, wherevith of his owne authoritie hee cannot deal in his Countie Court, lib. 12. cap. 18. wherevpon the Writ De Excommunicato deliberando is called a Iustices in the Old Nat. br. fol. 35. Also the Writ De homine replegiando, eodem, fol. 41. Thirdly, the Writ De secunda superoneratione pasturæ, eodem, fol. 73. Kitchin fol. 74. saith, that by this writ called Iustices, the Sheriffe may hold plee of a great summe, whereas of his ordinarie authoritie hee cannot hold plees but of summes vnder fortie shillings, An. Crompt. fol. 231. agreeeth with him. It is called a Iustices, because it is a Commission to the Sheriffe, ad iusticiandum aliquem, to doe a man right, and requireth no returne of any certifiat of what he hath done, An. Bract. lib. 4. tract. 6. cap. 13. nu. 2. may see mention of a Iustices to the Sheriffe of London, in a case of Dower. See the New booke of Entries, Iustices.

And this is κεί, i. κεί, propter excellentiam, as Poeta among the Grecians was Homer, among the Romans Virgil, because they were of all others the most excellent. This high Order (as appeareth by Mr. Camden and many others) was first instituted by that famous King Edward the Third, upon good successè in a skirmish, wherein the Kings garter (I know not upon what occasion) was used for a token. But I know that Polydore Virgil casteth in another suspicion of the original: his grounds by his owne confession grew from the vulgar opinion: yet as it is, thus take it as I haue read it. Knights of the g Rhodes.
Knights of the h Temple.

Knights of the Rhodes, ¶ An. 32. H. 8. ca. 25. See Knights of the order of S. John.

Knights of the Temple, otherwise called Templers, Templarij, was an order of Knight-hood, created by Gelafius the Pope, about the yeere of our Lord, 1117. and so called, because they dwelt in a part of the buildings belonging to the Temple. These in the beginning dwelling not farre from the sepulchre of the Lord, entertained Christian strangers and Pilgrimes charitably, and in their armour led them thorow the Holy-land, to view such things, as there were to be seene, without feare of Infidels aduoyning. This order continuing and increasing by the space of two hundred yeeres, was farre spread in Christendome, and namely here in England. But at the last, the chiefe of them at Ierusalem, being (as some men say) found to fall away to the Sarazens from Christianitie, and so abound in many vices, the whole order was suppressed by Clemens Quintus, which was about King Edward the first daies, and their substaunce giuen partly to the Knights of the Rhodes, and partly to other Religions, ¶ Cassan. de gloria mundi, part. 9. Confid. 5. and see ¶ An. 1. Ed. 1. cap. 42. Others write, that in truth their destruction grew from cleaving to the Emperour, against the Pope of Rome, whatsoeuer was pretended, ¶ Ioach. Knights of Calatraua in Spaine vnde.

Knights of the order of Calatraua in Spaine, which wore a red crosse on the left side of their breast, or vpper garment, were first instituted and created by Don Alonso, the ninth King of Spaine. Vpon this occasion, that whereas Calatraua was a Towne of importance and strength in Spaine, and won by the said King from the Moores, first he gaue the Towne to the Knights of the Temple, that they should hold it, and defend it, which they did for diuers yeeres; but they hearing that the Moores had gathered a great armie to come against it, they left the defence thereof, and gaue it vp into the hands of Don Sancho King, who succeeded Don Alonso, who made a publike Proclamation to giue Calatraua in iure hereditario, to whatsoeuer Cauallero or rico hombre, that would take the defense thereof; but none appearing till Abbat Raymond vnderooke it, the Archbishop of Toledo aiding him with money and men, and so fortified the Towne, that the Moores had little hope of getting it, desisted from that enterprize: and certaine Caualleros, that went in deuotion in succour of Calatraua, remained there to serue God, vnder the order of Cistel, with decent habite and rule, hauing power to exercise Militarie discipline. Pope Alexander the third allowed of this order, ¶ An. 1164. ¶ Grandezas de España, fol. 195.

Bachelor Knights.

Bachelor Knights. Vi. sub voce Bacheloz. Vi. etiam a Knight, cum alijs linguis: but here thus much as touching those Knights, who simply without any addition be called Knights, howsoeuer they are in order ranged last, yet by institution they be first, and of greatest antiquitie. For as the Romans, a goyned Nation, gaue vnto them that were entering into mans estate, togam virilem, a virile or plaine gowne without welt or guard; euen so the Germans our Ancestors, bestowed vpon their young men, whom they iudged meet to manage Armes, armour and weapons, which Cornelius Tacitus will informe you of, in these words: The manner was not for any one to take Armes in hand, before the State allowed him sufficient for martiall seruice, and then in the very assemblie and Councell either some one of the Princes, or the father of the young man (which young man they termed * Knecht) or some of his kinsfolke did furnish him with a Shield and a Laueline: This with them standeth in stead of a virile gowne, and this is the first honour done to youth: before this, they seeme to be but part of a priuate house, but now within a while members of a Common-weale. And seeing that such militarie young men, they termed in their language (which is the mother of ours) Knechts, from them I deeme the original of name and institution also ought to be fetched, as from a Noble and most ancient Nation. This was the first and most simple manner of creating a Knight: this the Lombards, this the Franckes, now French, this our Countymen all descending out of Germanie in old time used. * Paulus Diaconus lib. 1. cap. 22. reporteth thus among the Lombards, this is the custome that the Kings sonne dineth not with his Father, except hee receive Armes and Knight-hood before, from some King of forraigne Nation, and * Io. Salisburiensis in his Polycraton, writeth thus, A solemne custome was taken vp and vsed, that the very day when one was to be honoured with the girdle of Knight-hood, he should solemnely goe to Church, and by laying and offering his sword vpon the Altar, vnto himselfe (as it were) by making a solemne profession to the seruice of the Altar, that is to say, promise perpetuall seruice, and obsequious dutie vnto the Lord. * Peter of Blois also writeth thus, Epist. 94. At this day young Knights and Souldiers receive their Sword from the Altar, that they might

professe themselves Sonnes of the Church, and to haue taken the Sword for the defence of the Poore, for punishment and reuenge of Malfactours, and deliery of their Countrey. But in proceffe of time (saith he) it is turned cleane contrarie. For in these daies, since they are become adorned with the Knights cincture, presently they arise and rage, &c. And for the ceremonie to be girt with a Sword, it may seeme to haue proceeded from the militarie discipline of the Romans, because as they deemed it unlawful to fight with their enemy, before they were bound to their militarie oath, by a drawne sword: euen so our forefathers thought they might not goe to warfare lawfully, before they were by this ceremonie lawfully authorised: according to which we reade that William Rufus, King of England, was dubbed Knight by Lanfranck the Archbishop. * Afterwards Kings were wont to send their sonnes vnto the neighbour Princes to receive Knight-hood at their hands: thus was our K. Henry the second sent vnto Dauid K. of Scots, and Malcolme, K. of Scots, vnto our K. Henry the second, and our K. Edward the first, vnto the K. of Castile, to take of them militarie or virile Armes, for these termes and phrases they vsed in that Age for the Creation of a Knight: Then it was also, that besides the Sword and Girdle, gilt Spurs were added for more ornament: whereupon at this day they are called in Latine Equites Aurati: moreover, they had the priuiledge to vse and weare a Signet, which before they were dubbed Knight, in those daies, they could not do, as may be gathered out of Abendon booke. In Ages ensuing, Knights were made by their wealth and state of living: For they which had a great Knights fee, that is, six hundred and fourescore Akers of land, claimed as their right, the ornament and badges of Knight-hood, nay rather vnder * H. 3. they were compelled to be Knights, as many as in the reuenues of their Land, as they then went 15 li. by the yeere, to the end, England, as well as Italy, might be strengthened with Chivalrie, and they that would not, or were not able to maintaine the honour of Knight-hood, should fine for it, and pay a peece of money, this was an Edict by the K. in the yeare 1256. Hence it is that in the K. Records, we meet so often with this; For respit of Knight-hood, A. de N. I. H. &c. Also such like presentments from the Iurors and sworne Enquest, as this, A. de D. boldeth an entire and whole fee, is at full age, and not yet Knight, therefore in misericordia, that is, to be fined at the Kings pleasure. Vi. infra in Knights fee. * The manner of dubbing Knights in these our daies, be that receiue this dignity kneeleth downe, then the King with his sword drawn, slightly smiteth him on the shoulder, speaking to him these words withall in French, Sois Cheualier au nom de Dieu, that is, Be thou a Knight in the name of God; and afterwards he saith moreover, Auancéz Cheualier, i. Arise Sir Knight; this Knight-hood with our Ancestours was esteemed an excellent and glorious degree, as a noble reward to braue minded men, and such as desired glorie and honour, then kept they carefully faith and troth, and it was sufficient if they vnderooke or promised ought vpon the faith of a Knight, as also yet to this day vpon the faith of a souldier, they were then farre from base game and lucre, &c. What manner of payment or aid is to be leued for Knights fees, when the Prince, the Kings eldest sonne, is to be made Knight, and inuested into this honour, &c. see something thereof in the beginning of this Dictionary, the word Chevalerie, the rest I leaue to others to write of, &c. When they had so farre offended, that being to suffer death for the offence, * they were first dispoiled of their Ensignes, and of their degree, viz. their militarie Girdle vngirted; their Sword taken away, their Spurres cut off with a hatchet, their Gantlets plucked from them, their Escucheon of their Armes reuerfed, like as in the degrading of the * Ecclesiasticall order, all the Ecclesiasticall ornaments, Booke, Chalice, and such like are taken away. ¶ Camden saith, That in the * Kings Records are read the names of Knights, of Bachelors, and of Valeets, of the Earle of Glocester, and others, whereupon there be who would haue Bachelors called of the French, Bal-Cheualiers, Low Knights, or Knights of the lowest degree, others of Bataillér, to bataille or fight, de quo, Vi. ¶ Knights fee (Feudum militare) is so much inheritance, as is sufficient yearly to maintaine a Knight with conuenient reuenues, * which in Henry the 3. daies was fiftene pounds; ¶ Camd. or 680. acres of land, or 800. acres, eodem. But Sir Th. Smith in his Repub. Anglib. 1. cap. 18. rateth it at fortie pounds. And I finde in the Statute for Knights, ¶ An. 1. Ed. 2. cap. 1. that such as had twentie pounds in fee, or for terme of life per annum, might be compelled to be Knight, de quo, Vi. supra in bachelor Knights. ¶ M. Stow in his Annals, pag. 285. saith, That there were found in England at the time of the Conquerour 602 11. Knights fees: others say, 602 15. whereof the Religious houses before their suppression were possessed of 280 15. * Knights fee is sometime used for the rent that a Knight payeth for his fee to his Lord, of whom he boldeth. And this is an vncertaine summe, some holding by fortie shillings the shield, some but twentie shillings, as appeareth by ¶ Bract. lib. 5. tract. 1. cap. 2.
¶ Knighten Gyde, was a Gilde in London, consisting of nineteene Knights, which King Edgar founded, giuing vnto them a portion of void ground lying without the walles of the Citie, now called * Portfoken Ward, ¶ Stow in his Annals, pag. 151.

Law-day: Fastus dies apud Romanos, consiste- bat in fando & pronunciando, hec tria verba, Do, Dico, Addico: Da- bat actionem: dicebat ius: Ad dicebat tam res quam homines. The Ro- mans distinguished the daies in whole Court or Leete daies: halfe Court daies, and no Leete daies. These daies were called Fasti, à fando, from speaking, because upon those daies which were Fasti, the Prætor or chiefe Justice might lawfully keepe Court, and administer Justice, which was not done without the speaking of these three words: Do, Dico, Addico, i. I give, viz. way to action and suits. I speak, viz. the law, I iudge, viz. the matters and the men: quod ad Etym. altius repetitum, Vi. infra in Leete.
 b Leete (Leta) is otherwise called a Law-day. It seemeth to come from the Saxon, Lethe, which as appeareth by the lawes of King Ed- ward, set out by M. Lamb. num. 34. was a Court or iurisdiction about the Wapentake or hundred, comprehending three or foure of them, otherwise called Thryhing, and contained the third part of a Prouince or Shire. Smith, de Repub. Ang. lib. 2. cap. 18. saith, that * Leet or Law-day is all one, and saith, Law in the old Saxon tongue, was called Lant or Lage, and so by corruption changing Lant or Lage into Leete and Law-day. These iurisdiccions, one and other be now abolished, and swal- lowed up in the Countie Court, except they be held by prescription, ¶ Kitch. fol. 6. or Charter in the nature of a Franchise. The libertie of Hundreds is rare, but many Lords, together with their Courts Baron, haue likewise Leet adioyned, and hereby to enquire of such transgressions, as are subiect to the enquire and correction of the Court: whereof you may reade your fill in Kitchin, from the beginning of his Rooke, to the fifti Chapter: and Briton, cap. 28. But this Court, in whose Manour shewer it be kept, is accounted the Kings Court, because the authoritie thereof, is originally belonging to the Crowne, and thence deriued to inferior persons, ¶ Kitch. fol. 6. Justice Dyer saith, that this Leete was first deriued from the Sheriffes Turn. fol. 64. And it enquireth of all of- fences vnder high treason, committed against the Crowne and dignitie of the King: though it cannot punish many, but must certifie them to the Iustices of the Assise, per stat. an. 1. 7782 Magna Charta, i. the Great Charter, is a Charter containing a number of Lawes, ordained the ninth yeere of H. 3. and confirmed by Ed. 1. The reason why it was termed Magna Charta, was either for that it contained the summe of all the written Lawes in England, or else that there was another Charter, called the Charter of the Forest, established with it, which in quantitie was the lesser of the two. I read in Holinthead, that King Iohn to appease his Barons, yielded to Lawes or Articles of gouernment, much like to this Great Charter, but we now haue no ancienier written Law, than this, which was thought to be so beneficiall to the subiects, and a Law of so great equitie, in comparison of those which were formerly in use, that King H. 3. was thought but hardly to yeeld vnto it, and that to haue the fiftenth pennie of all the moueable goods, both of the spirituallie and temporallie thorrowout his Realme, q Holinthead, in H. 3. And though this Charter consist not of aboue 37. Chapters or Lawes, yet is it of such extent, as all, or the most part of the Law we haue, is thought in some sort to depend of it, q Polydor. and Holinthead, vbi supra.

 of another, any member is hurt, or taken away, whereby the partie so hurt, is made vnperfect to fight: As if a bone bee taken out of the head, or a bone be broken in any other part, or a foot, or a hand, or finger, or ioynt of a foot, or any member bee cut, or by some wound the sinewes bee made to shrinke, or the fingers, or other member, made more crooked, or an eye be put out, or the foreteeth broken, or any other thing hurt in a mans bodie, by means whereof he is made the lesse able to defend himselfe, or offend his ene-7802 * Mainour, Manour, Meinoure, or Maner, dist. à G. (Ma-nière) the manner, It signifieth in the Common Law when a theefe hath stolen, and is followed with Hue & Crie, and taken with the manner, that is, having the thing stolne about him, that is called the Mainour: and so we say when we finde one doing of an vnlawfull Act, that wee tooke him with the Mainour, or Manner. Vi. Bacberend. It was presented, that a theefe was deliuered to the Vicount, together with the Mainour: and thirly, ¶ Stawnf. pl. Coron. If a man be indicted, that hee feloniously stole the goods of another, where, in truth, they bee his owne goods, and the goods be brought into the Court as the mainour, and it be demanded of him, what he saith to the goods, & he disclaime them, though he be quitted of the felonie, he shall lose the goods. And againe, fol. 149. If the defendant were taken with the manour, and the manour be carried to the Court, they in ancient times would arraigne him upon the manour, without any appeal or inditement. I finde this word used in the Old Nat. br.

 fol. 110. in this sort: where a man maketh a thing by mainour, or leuying, or estopping, in such case he shall haue Assise: where it signifieth handy-labour, and is but an abbreviation of the French Main-ouvrerie, or rather Manouvrerie, i. workmanship with the hands.
 7803 * Mainpernable, & Mainpernours. Vi. Mainprise.
 7804 * Mainprise (Manucaptio) is compounded of two French words (Main, i. manus, a hand, and prins, i. captus, taken, as it were taken into their hands. It signifieth in our Common Law the taking or receiving a man into friendly custodie, that otherwise is or might bee committed to prison, and so vpon securitie giuen for his forth coming at a day assigned: And they that doe thus undertake for any, * are called Mainpernours, because they doe receive him into their hands, ¶ Stawnf.
 pl. Coron. fol. 178. Of this sort is the word * Mainpernable, which sig-nifieth him that hath committed such an offence, as by Law bee may bee thus bailed: For in many cases a man is not mainpernable: whereof see Broke, tit. Mainprise, per totum: & Fitzh. nat. br. fol. 249. & seq. M. Man-wood in the first part of his Forest Lawes, pag. 167. maketh a great difference betwene Bayle and Mainprise. For hee that is mainprised (quoth he) is alwayes said to be at large, and to goe at his owne libertie out of ward, after the day is set to mainprise, vntill the day of his appearance.
 But oth. wise it is, where a man is let to baile to foure or two men, by the Lord Iustice in eyre of the Forest, vntill a certaine day. For there hee is alwayes accounted by the Law to be in their ward and custodie for the time. And they may, if they will, keepe him in ward, or in prison all that time, or otherwise at their will. So that hee that is so bayled, shall not bee said by the Law to be at large, or at his owne libertie. Vi. Bayle.

 b. * Maintenance (Manutentio vel Manutentia) in our Law signifieth an vpholding of a cause or person, metaphorically drawne from the succouring of a young child, that learneth to goe by ones hand, of main in French, i. a hand, and tenir, to hold. In our Common Law it is used in the euill part, for him that secondeth a cause depending in suit betwene others, either by lending of money, or making friends for either partie, toward his helpe, ¶ An. 32. H. 8. cap. 9. And when a mans act in this kinde is by Law accounted Maintenance, and when not, Vi. Broke titu-le Maintenance, and Kitchin, fol. 202. & seq. and Fitzh. Nat. br. fol.
 172. and Crompt. Iurisdic. fol. 38. The Writ that lieth against a man for this offence, is likewise called a Writ of Maintenance, ¶ Termes of the 7876 * Manour (Manerium) dict. à Gal. (Manoir, i. domicilium, habitatio.) q. M. Skene, de verb. signific. verbo Manerium, faith, Manerium, quasi Manurium, because it is labourd with handie worke by the Lord himselfe, vel alias à manendo, quod remaneat heredi, vel quod ibi manet & residet hæres. It signifieth in our Common Law, a Rule or Government, which a man hath ouer such as hold land within his fee.

Touching the originall of these maners, it seemeth that in the beginning there was a certaine compasse or circuit of ground, granted by the King vnto some man of worth (as a Baron or such like) for him and his heires to dwell vpon, and to exercise some iurisdiction, more or lesse, within that compasse, as he thought good to graunt, performing him such seruices, and paying such yearely rent for the same, as he by his graunt required: and that afterward this great man parcelled his land to other maner men, enuyring them againe such seruices and rents, as he thought good: and by that meanes, as he became tenant to the King, so the inferiours became tenants to him. See Perkins referuations, 670. and * Andrew Horns booke, intituled, The Mirrour of Iustices, lib. 1. cap. du Roy Alfred. See the definition of a Maner, Fulb. fol. 18. And this course of benefiting or rewarding their Nobles for good seruice, haue our Kings borrowed from the Emperours of Rome: according to this our custome, all lands holden in fee borowout France, are diuided into Fiefz, and Arrierfiefz: into fiefs or Knights fee, and mesu fees, whereof the former are such as are immediately granted by the King: The second, such as the Kings feudataries doe againe grant to others, q. Gregor. Syntagn. lib. 6. cap. 5. num. 3. But the changeablenesse of mans estate, and the mutabilitie of time, hath brought to passe, that those great men, or their posteritie, haue alienated these Mansions and Lands, and others that had none, haue by their wealth purchased many of them. And againe, that many for capitall offences, haue forfeited them to the King, and that thereby they still remaine in the Crowne, or are bestowed againe vpon others: so that at these daies many be in the hands of meane men, such as by their skill in Law, or Physicke, by Merchandize, &c. haue gathered wealth, and enabled themselves to purchase them of those that by descent received them from their Ancestours, in greater abundance than wit to keepe them. In these dayes a Maner rather signifieth the iurisdiction and Royaltie incorporeall, than the land or site. For a man may haue a * Maner in grosse (as the Law termeth it) that is, the right and interest of a Court Baron, with the perquisites therunto belonging: and another, or others, haue curtic foot of the land therunto belonging, q. Kirclun, fol. 4. Brooke, hoc titulo per totum. Bract. lib. 4. cap. 31. num. 3. diuidet manerium, in capitale & non capitale. See Bract. lib. 5. tract. 5. cap. 28. num. 1. Vi. fee. The new Expositor of Law-termes, faith, that Manour is a thing compounded of diuers things, as of a house, land, earable, pasture, meadow, wood, rent, aduouzen, Court Baron, and such like. And this ought to be by long continuance of time, to the contrary whereof mans memorie cannot discern. For at this day, a Mannour cannot be made, because a Court Baron cannot now be made, and a Mannour cannot be without a Court Baron, and Suters or Free-holders, two at the least, for if all the Free-holders, except one Escheate to the Lord, or if he purchase all except one, there his Mannour is gone, for that it cannot be a Mannour without a Court Baron, and a Court Baron cannot be holden but before Suters, and not before one Suter, and therefore where but one Free-hold, or Free-holder is, there cannot be a Mannour properly, although in common speech it may be called a Mannour.

c a Manour-house. G. Manoir, Mansion. I. Magione, Mansione. L. Mánio, q. manens sedes. Vi. * Mansion.

(+) 7876-2 a Manqueller, i. a Murderer.

7877 * Mansion (Mansio) of manendo, Bract. lib. 5. cap. 28. num. 1. is a dwelling, consisting of one or more houses, without any neighbour. And yet he granteth forthwith, that Mansio Mansioni possit esse vicinata. It is most commonly used for the Lords chiefe dwelling house within his fee, whether it haue neighbours adioyning or not, otherwise called the Capitall Mesuage, q. Bract. lib. 2. cap. 26. or the chiefe maner place. Mansio amongst the ancient Romans, was a place appointed for the lodging of the Prince or Souldiers, in their iourney, furnished with conuenient entertainment by the neighbours adioyning. And in this sense you may reade primam mansionem, for the first nights lodging, and so in order. It is probable that this word * (Mansion) doth in some construction signifie so much land, as Beda calleth * Familiam, in his Ecclesiasticall historie. For M. Lamb. in his explic. of Saxon words, ver. Hida terræ, faith, that which he calleth familiam, others sitence call * Manentem vel Mansiam; you may reade * Mansus & Mansum in the Feudists, which as Hotoman faith, in uerbis feudalibus, Est neque domus, neque area, neque horus, sed ager certi modi & mensuræ, a bide, or a plough-land, and Oxe-gang, &c. And Call. de cons. Burg. pa. 1195. defineth it thus: Mansus est, quantum quis cum vno pari boum laborare possit: Reade M. Skene de verb. sig. verbo Mansus: you may reade the Latine word * (Mansia) in the same signification, as namely in the Charter, granted by King Ranulphus, to Ruchin the Abbot of Abingdon, which Sir Edw. Coke setteth downe in his booke, De iure Regis Ecclesiastico.

c ¶ Manumission (Manumissio) is a freeing of a villeine or slave out of his bondage. The forme of this in the time of the Conquerour, M. Lamb. in his ap. xv. fol. 126. setteth downe in these words: Si quis velit seruum suum liberum facere, tradat eum Vicecomiti, per manum dexteram, in pleno Comitatu, & quietum illum clamare debet a iugo seruitutis suae per manumissionem, & ostendat ei liberam portas & vias, & tradat illi libera arma, scilicet lanceam & gladium: & deinde liber homo efficitur. Some also were wont to bee manumitted by charter of Manumission. Vi. Broke, tit. Villenage, fol. 305. The new Expofitor of Law-terms maketh two kinds of manumission: one expressed, another implied. * Manumission expressed is, when the Lord maketh a deed to his villeine to enfranchise him by this word (Manumittere.) The manner of manumitting in old time was thus; The Lord, in presence of his neighbours, took the bondman by the head, saying, I will that this man be free, and therewith shewed him forward out of his hands. Manumission implied is, when the Lord maketh an obligation for payment of money to him at a certaine day, or sheweth him where hee might enter without suit, or granteth him an annuitic, or leasehold land vnto him by deed, for yeares, or for life, and such like, in diuers such cases the villeine is made free.  8084 Meslin (Medius) seemeth to come from the French (Maison, i. minor nati, younger by birth, or a younger brother.) It significeth in our Common Law, him that is Lord of a Manour, and thereby hath tenants holding of him; yet holding himselfe of a superiour Lord. And therefore it seemeth not absurdly to be drawne from the French (Maison) because the Lordship is created after the higher, whereof he holdeth. Meslin also significeth a Writ, which lieth where there is Lord, Meslin, and Tenant: the Tenant holdeth of the Meslin by the same seruices, whereby the Meslin holdeth of the Lord, and the Tenant of the Meslin, is distrained by the superiour Lord, for that his seruice or rent, which is due to the Meslin, q Fitz. Nat.

8183 ¶ * Misadventure, or Misadventure, commeth of the French Misadventure, i. infortunium. In our Common Law it hath an speciall signification for the killing of a man, partly by negligence, & partly by chance. As if one thinking no harme, disolutely throweth a stone, wherewith he killeth another: or shooteth an arrow, &c. For in this case he committeth not felonie, but onely loseth his goods, and hath pardon of course for his life, ¶ Stawnf. pl. cor. lib. 1. cap. 3. ¶ Brit. cap. 7. distinguisheth betweene Auenture and Misadventure. Auenture hec maketh to be meere chance, as if a man being upon or neere the water, be taken by some sudden sicknesse, and so fall in, and is drowned: or into the fire, and be burned to death. Misadventure, hec maketh, where a man commeth to his death by some outward violence, as the fall of a tree, or of a gate, the running of a cart-wheele, the stroke of a horse, or such like. So that Misadventure in Stawnfords opinion is construed somewhat more largely than Britton vnderstandeth it. ¶ West part. 2. symb. tit. Indirement, sect. 48. maketh homicide casual, to be meere casual or mixt. Homicide by meere chance, hec desineth sect. 49. to be, when a man is slaine by meere fortune, against the minde of the killer: as if one hewing, the axe stiech off the haft, and killeth a man. And this is all one with Brittons Misadventure. Homicide by chance mixed hec desineth, sect. 50. to be, when the killers ignorance or negligence is ioyned with the chance: as if a man lop trees by an high way side, by which many usually trauell, and cast downe a bough, not giuing warning, &c. by which bough a man passing by is slaine.

8327 Moztgage. G. Mort-gage, Mort-gaige, Mortuum vadum vel Morgagium) is compounded of two French words (Mort, i. mors, & Gage, i. pignus, merces.) It significth in our Common Law a pawne of Land or Tenement, or any thing moueable, laid or bound for money borrowed, borrowed, peremptory to be the creditors for ever, if the money be not paid as the day agreed upon. And the creditor holding Land or Tenement upon this bargain, is in the mean time called tenant in mortgage. It seemeth that the cause why it is called Mort-gage, is for that it standeth in doubt, whether the feoffor or the borrower, (as you may call him) will pay the money at the day appointed, or not. And if he faile to pay, then the Land which he laid in gage, vpon condition of payment of the money, is gone from him for ever, and so dead to him vpon condition. But if he pay the money, then is the gage dead to the feoffee or tenant, and for this cause called Mortuum vadum, Mortgage, ¶ New Termes of Law.

b Mortmaine, Manus mortua. Vi. supra. It signifieth in the Common Law, an alienation of lands or tenements to any corporation, guild, or fraternitie, and their successours, as Bishops, Parsons, Vicars, &c. which may not be done without licence of the King, and the Lord of the Manour. The reason of the name proceedeth from this, as Iconicene it, because the seruices and other profits due for such lands, as escheats, &c. come into a dead hand, or into such a hand as holdeth them, and is not of power to deliuer them, or anything for them, backe againe, ¶ Magna Charta, cap. 36. & An. 7. Ed. 1. commonly called, The statute of Mortmaine, & Ann. 18. Ed. 3. stat. 3. cap. 3. & Ann. 15. R. 2. cap. 5. Polydore Virgil in the 17. booke of his Chronicles, maketh mention of this Law, and giueth this reason of the name. Et legem hanc Manum mortuam vocarunt, quod res semel date collegijs Sacerdotum, non utique rursus venderentur, velut mortuæ, hoc est, vsui aliorum mortalium in perpetuum ademptæ essent. Lex diligenter seruatur, sic ut nihil possessionum ordini sacerdotali à quoquam deitur, nisi Regio permisso. But the former statutes be something abridged by Ann. 39. Mulier, quid.

8390 Mulier, is a word used in the Common Law, but how aptly, as the Author of the new Termes of Law saith, he could not tell. For according to the proper signification, Mulier is a defiled woman, as Vlpian saith, or rather a woman that hath had the companie of a man, &c. but in our Common Law is otherwise taken for one that is lawfully begotten and borne, and is alwayes used in comparison with a bastard, only to show a difference betweene them. As for example, *A man hath a sonne of a woman before marriage, and that is called a bastard, and vnlawfull: and after hee marieth the mother of the bastard, and they haue another sonne, this second sonne is called Mulier, that is to say, lawfull, and hee shall be heire vnto his father: but that other cannot be heire to any man, because it is not knowne nor certaine in the iudgement of the Law, who was his father, and for that cause is said to be no mans sonne, or * the sonne of the people. And alwaies you shall finde this addition to them, Bastard eldest, and Mulier youngest, when they be compared together. Why he should be called Mulier, it may be that the Latine word Mulier, which is general for a woman, &c. ut supra, hath bene restrained and applied as the Spanishe Muger, the Italian Moglie, comming of the Latine Mulier, and the French Femme comming of the Latine Fœmina, which three words in those three tongues are only used for a wife, as in Spanishe Mi Muger, in Italian Mia Moglie, in French Ma Femme, i. in Latine Mea Vxor, my wife, and not mea Mulier, mea Fœmina, my woman: so this word in the Common Law, Mulier or lawfull begotten, by Synecdoche, signifies, this is the wifes or my wifes, when as the other, viz. the bastard, was the fœmina, or my womans or my wenchs childe, i. a bastard borne out of wedlocke or lawfull marriage.*

* The sonne of the people.

c Murder (Murdrum) dist. à G. Meurtre, i. interrecio, homicidium, i. homicide, killing of a man, or murder. *The new Exposition of the Law-termes draweth it from the Saxon word, Μορδρην, signifying the same thing. It significth in our Common Law, a wilfull and felonious killing of any other upon preposed malice, & An. 52. H. 3. cap. 25. West part. 2. symb. tit. Inditements, sect. 47. * Bract. lib. 3. Tract. 2. cap. 15. num. 1. definit it to be Homicidium, quod, nullo presente, nullo sciente, nullo audiente, nullo vidente, clam perpetratur. And of the same minde is Brit. cap. 6. as also Fleta lib. 1. cap. 30. Yet * Fleta saith also, that it was not murder, except it were proued that the partie slaine were English, and no stranger. But as * Stawnf. saith, Pl. Cor. lib. 1. cap. 2. the Law in this point is altered, by the Stat. An. 14. Edw. 3. c. 4. and murder is now otherwise to be defined: When a man upon preposed malice killeth another, whether secretly or openly, it maketh no matter: or be he an English man, or a forreiner, liuing vnder the Kings protection. And preposed malice is here either expresse, or implied: expresse, when it may be evidently proued, that there was formerly some euill will implied: when one killeth another suddenly, hauing nothing to defend himselfe: as going ouer a stile, or such like, & Crompt. Iustice of Peace, in the chapter of Murder, fol. 19. b.  8569 Nief, or Nief, (Natiua) cometh of the French (Naif, i. naturalis, vel natiuus.) It signifieth in our Common Law, a bond-woman, J Ann. 1. Ed. 6. cap. 3. The reason is, because women become bondra-ther natiuitate, than by any other meanes. Whereby Nief is a woman, that is, a bond-woman, or a villaine; but if shee marrie a free-man, she is thereby made free, because that shee and her husband are but one per-son in Law, and shee ought to bee of the same nature and condition in Law to all intents that her husband is, and then shee cannot be afterward a Nief without speciall Act done by her, as Diuorce, or Confession in Court of Record, &c. Likewise, in fauour of libertie, a free-woman, tak-king a villaine or bond-man to her husband, shall not become also a bond-woman, but by the Common Law, their Issue shall be villaines and bond-men, as their father was, which is contrarie in the Ciuill Law, for there it is said: Partus sequitur ventrem, the birth followeth the belly, and in the Common Law thus, Partus sequitur Patrem, the birth followeth the fa-ther, * Bondage, Villanage, or seruitude, had beginning among the He-brewes, proceeding from Ham alias Chaan, the father of Chanaan, and the Chanaanites, who seeing the nakednesse of his father Noe, being drunke, shewed it to his brethren in derision, * who was therefore punished in his sonne Canaan, with penaltie of bondage, as you may reade Gen. 9. vers. 20. to the end of the Chapter.

 b W Wbedientia, was a Rent, as appeareth by Roger Houeden par. post. suorum Annalium, fol. 430. Obedientia in the Canon law is Wbed for an Office, or the administration of an office, cap. cum ad Monasterium, 6. extra de statu Monacho. & Cano. regula. And thereupon the word * Obedientiales, is used in the Prouinciall constitutions for those which haue the execution of any office under their superiours. cap. 1. de stat. Regni. For thus saith Lindwood in his glosse upon that word: Hi sunt qui sub obedientia suorum prelatorum sunt, & habent certa officia administranda interius vel exterius. It may be that some of these Offices called Obedientia consisted in the collection of Rents or Pensions: and that therefore those Rents were by a metonymie called Obedientia, quia colligebantur ab obedientialibus.

 b Office (Officium) doth signifie not onely the function, by vertue whereof a man hath some employment in the affaires of another, as of the King, or other common person: but also an Inquisition made to the Kings vse, of any thing, by vertue of his office, who inquireth. And therefore we oftentimes reade of an Office found, which is nothing but such a thing * found by inquisition made ex officio. In this signification it is used q. Ann. 33. H. 8. cap. 20. and in Stawnf. Prærog. fol. 60. & 61. where to trauers an office, is to trauers an inquisition taken of office. And in Kitchin, fol. 177. to returne an office, is to returne that which is found by vertue of the office. See also the New booke of Entries, verbo Office pourle Roy. And this is by a Metonymic of the effect. And there be two sorts of offices in this signification, issuing out of the Exchequer by Commission, viz. an office to intitle the King in the thing enquired of, and an office of instruction: which reade in the Lo. Cokes Reports, vol. 6. Pages Case, fol. 52. a. b. Office in fee, is that which a man hath to himselfe and his heires, q. An. 13. Edw. 1. cap. 25. Kitchin fol. 152.

It signifieth as much as experts: but it is artificially used for a kinde of purgation practised in ancient times; whereby the partie purged was iudged experts criminis, called in the Common Law Purgatio vulgaris, and utterly condemned. There were of this two sort: one by fire, another by water. Of these see M. Lamberts in his Explic. of Sax. words, verbo Ordalium, where he expresseth it at large, with such superstitions as were used in it. Of this you may likewise reade Holinshed, in his Descript. of Brit. fol. 98. And also M. Manwood, part. 1. of his Forest Lawes, pag. 15. But of all the rest, Hotom. especially, disput. de feud. cap. 41. where, of five kindes of proofes, which he calleth Feudales probationes, he maketh this the fourth, calling it Explorationem, & huius furiose probationis 6. genera fuisse animaduertit, per flammam, per aquam, per ferrum candens, per aquam vel gelidam vel feruentem, per sortes, & per corpus Domini: of all which he allegeth severall exampls out of Historie, verie worthie the reading. See also M. Skene, de verb. signif. verbo Machamium. This seemeth to haue beene in use here with vs in H. 2. his dayes, as appeareth by Glanville, lib. 14. cap. 1. & 2. Reade also of this in M.  9079 Pain fort & dure, Pœna fortis & dura, is in true French Peine forte & dure. It signifieth in our Common Law, an especiall punishment for those, that being arraigned of felony, refuse to put themselves vpon the ordinary trial of God and the Country, and thereby are mute, or dumbe. This (as Stawne thinketh, pl. cor. 2. cap. 60.) is founded vpon the Statute of Westm. 1. cap. 12. an. 3. Ed. 1. His reason is, because Bract. who writ before that Parliament, maketh no mention of it, and Brit. writing after that time, toucheth it in his fourth chapter, fol. 11. viz. in words to this effect. If they will not acquite themselves * let them be put to their penance, untill such time as they doe desire triall: and let the penance be such, * viz. Let them be bare-legged, without girdle, and without hat or cap, in their coat only, and lie in prison vpon the naked earth day and night. And let them eat no bread but of barley and branne, nor drinke any other then water, and that vpon that day when they eat nor. And let them be chained. Stawne in his said 60. chap. of his booke expoundeth it more plainly and particularly in this sort. And note that this strong and hard paine shall be such: sc. He shall be sent backe to the prison whence he came, and be layed in some low dark house where he shall lie * naked vpon the earth, without any litter, rushes or other clothing, and without any rayment about him, but only something to couer his priuy members. And he shall lie vpon his backe, with his head covered and his feet. And one arme shall be drawne to one quarter of the house with a cord, and the other arme to another quarter; and in the same manner let it be done with his legges: and let there bee layed vpon his body iron and stone, so much as he may beare or more, and the next day following he shall haue three morfels of Barly bread without drinke: and the second day he shall haue drinke three times, and as much as each time, as he can drinke, of the water next vnto the prison doore, except it be running water, without any bread. And this shall bee his diet untill he die.

A Parke is a place of priuiledge for wilde beasts of venery, and also for other wilde beasts of the Forest, and of the chase, tam syluestres quam campestres. And all those wilde beasts are to haue a firme peace & protection there. So that no man may hurt or chase them within the parke, without licence of the owner of the same. Who also, fol. 149. saith thus. A Parke is of another nature, then either a chase or a warren is. * For a Parke must be inclosed, and may not be open: for if it doe, that is a good cause of seizure of the same into the hands of the King, as a thing forfeited, as a free chase is, if it be enclosed. And moreover, the owner cannot haue action against such as hunt in his Parke, if it lie open. See Forest, see Chase, see Warren.*

a halfe in length, whereof 40. in length, and 4. in breadth, make an acre of ground, ¶ Crompt. lurisd. fol. 221. Yet by the custome of the country it may be longer, as he there saith. For in the Forest of Sheerwood, it is 25. foot, fol. 224. M. Skene, de verb. signif. verbo Particula terræ, saith that Particula terræ is a Rood of Land, where he hath also these words in effect: three barly cornes without tailes, set together in length, make an inch, of the which cornes one should be taken of the middle ridge, one of the side of the ridge, and the other of the furrow: twelue inches make a foot of measure, three foot and one inch make an elne: six elnes long make one fall, which is the common lineall measure, and six elnes long, and six broad, make a square and superficial fall of measured land. And it is to be understood, that one rod, one raipe, one lineall fall of measure, are all one. For each one of them containeth six elnes in length: wherebeit a rod is a staffe or pole of wood, a raipe is made of tow or hempe. And so much Land as fallath under the rod or raipe at once, is called a fall of measure, or a lineall fall: because it is the measure of the Line or length only: Like as the superficial fall is the measure, both of length and breadth. Item, ten falls in length and fonte in breadth make a Rood, foure Roodes make an acre, &c. This is the measure of Scotland, whereof you may reade more in the same place.

b Peeres, (pares.) It significth in our common Law plurality those, that are impanelled in an Enquest upon any man, for the conuicting and cleering him of any offence, for the which he is called in question. And the reason thereof is, because the course and custome of our Nation is, to try every man in this case by his equals. ¶ West. 1. cap. 6. an. 3. Ed. 1. So Kitchin vestbit, fol. 78. in these words. Mais si le amerçiament soit affire per pares. And this word in this signification, is not in use with vs only, but with other nations also. For Pares sunt conuassali, quorum sententia uassallus propter feloniam est condemnatus. ¶ Bark-lains de rege, lib. 4. cap. 2. Et pares sunt qui ab eodem Domino feudum tenent. ¶ Lib. 1. Feud. cap. 26. But this word is most notoriously used for those that be of the Nobility of the Realme, and Lords of the Parliament: and so it is used in Stawnf. pl. of the Crowne, lib. 3. cap. Triall per les Peeres, being the first. The reason whereof is, because though there be a distinction of degrees in our Nobilitie, yet in all publike actions they are equall: as in their voices in Parliament, and in passing vpon the triall of any Noble man, &c. This Appellation seemeth to be borrowed from France, and from those * ewelue Peeres, that Charles the great (or Lewis the younger, in some mens opinion) instituted in that Kingdome, which bee next vnto the King, and are of like dignity among themselves, touching their power in publike affaires. Of whom you may reade Lupanus, de Magist. Franc. lib. 1. cap. Pares Franciæ. So that we, though we haue borrowed the appellation, and applied it with some reason to all that are Lords of the Parliament, yet haue wee no set number of them, because the number of our Nobles may be more or lesse, as it pleaseth the King.

 b a Person of a Church. Vi. Parson, or rector of a Church.
 c a sie Person. T. Schlaw. B. Uog, vt ¶ G. Reneau. I. Volpône. H. Rapóto, i. vulpes animal versutissimum. * L. Veteratores, quasi veterus actor, qui diu versatus inter homines astutiam & simulandi comparauit artem. Gr. Panurgus, à πᾶν, i. omne & ἔργον, i. opus, omni operi aptus. A personable man.
 d a Personable, significth as much as inhabited to hold or maincaine plee in Court. For example: The demandant was iudged personable to maintaine this action, ¶ Old Nat. br. fol. 142. and in Kitchin, fol. 214. This tenant pleaded that the wife was an alien, borne in Portugal, without the ligeance of the King, and iudgements was asked whether she would be answered. The Plaintife saith she was made personable by Parliament, that is, as the Ciuilians would speake it, habere personam standi in iudicio. Personable is also as much, as to be of capacity, to take any thing granted or giuen, ¶ Plowd. casu Colthirst, fol. 27. b.
 (†) e a Personage or Person. Vi. Person.
 f a Personage, or Ecclesiasticall living, hauing Denomination of the dignity of the Incumbent. Vi. Littletons Tenures, and termes of law expounded in Voce Personage, & hoc in libro vide Benefice.
 (†) g Personall, in person, belonging to person or body. G. Personel. H. Personale. L. Personalis, le. Gr. προσωπικός, à προσωπον, i. persona. T. Cyner person dienlich. B. Personlich.
 (†) h Personalitie, in person, by presence bodily. G. Personellement. I. H. Personalmente. L. Personaliter, in propria persona.
 i a Personall (Personalis) hath in our Common-law one strange significacion, being ioynd with the substantiue, things, goods, or chatels, as things personall, goods personall, chatels personall: for thus it significth any corporeall and moueable thing belonging to any man, bee, it quicke or dead. So is it vsed in ¶ West. part. 2. symb. tit. Inditements, sect. 58. in these words: Theft, is an vnknowne felonious taking away of another mans moueable personall goods. And againe, ¶ fol. 61. Larceny is a felonious taking away of another mans moueable personall goods, and ¶ Kitchin, fol. 139. in these words: Where personall things shall be giuen to a corporation: as a horse, a cow, an oxe, sheepe, hogs, or other goods, &c. and ¶ Stawf. pl. cor. fol. 25. Contractatio rei alienæ, is to be understood of things personall: * for in things reall it is not felonie: as the cutting of a tree is not felony. The reason of this application, see in Chatell.
 k a Personallie (Personalitas) is an abstract of personall. The action is in the personallie, ¶ Old Nat. br. fol. 92. that is to say, brought against the right person, or the person against whom in law it lieth. You may finde these contrary words (Personalitas, & Impersonalitas) in the author of the booke called Vocabularius vtriusque iuris: as for example, Personalitas significatur per has dictiones: tu, mihi, ego, tibi, cum alio significato, quod probabiliter concluditur: sed si nullo modo concludatur, tunc est Impersonalitas: quia actum vitiat, prout ratio dicitur. Verbi gratia. Ego stipulor: constituis mihi soluturum debitum, à Titio mihi debitum: Tu respondes, Satisfiet. Hæc Impersonalitas non contrahit obligationem.
 m Persons, ne prebendaries ne seront charges as quinquages, &c. is a writ that lieth for Prebendaries or other spiritual persons, being distrained by the Sheriffe or collectors of fifteenths, for the fifteenth of their goods, or to be contributory to taxes, ¶ Fitzh. Nat. Br. fol. 176.

c a Possession (Possessio) is used two waies in our Common Law. First, for lands and inheritance: as, he is a man of large possessions. Next, for the actual enioyng of that, which either in truth or pretence is ours. And in this significatiõ there is possession in deed, and possession in Law, ¶ pl. cor. fol. 198. The example there is this: Before or vntill an office be found, the King hath only possession in Law, and not in deed, speaking of the lands escheated by the attainder of the owner. See ¶ Prærog. fol. 54. & 55. In this significatiõ also there is an unitie of possession, which the Ciuilians call Consolidationem. Take an example out of ¶ Kitchin fol. 134. If the Lord purchase tenancie held by Heriot seruire, then the Heriot is extinct by unitie of possession, that is, because the Seignourie and the Tenancie be now in one mans possession. Many diuisions of possession you may reade in ¶ Bract. lib. 2. cap. 17. per totum.

And though vsè haue wrought the Latine word into the nature of a Substantiue: yet I thinke it originally to be an Adiectiue, or Participle, and to haue beene ioynd with pars or portio, and so Pars or Portio præbenda, a part allowed: as Canonica portio, which is in a manner all one in signification: aut à præbendo concilio Decano. Nonne Canonica portio, is properly vsed for that share which euery Canon or Prebendarie receiueh yeerely out of the common stocke of the Church: and Præbenda is a fewerall benefice rising from some temporall land, or Church appropriated, toward the maintenance of a Clerke, or member of a Collegiat Church: and is commonly surnamed of the place, whence the profit groweth. And Prebends be either simple, or with dignity. Simple Prebends, be those that haue no more but the reuenué toward their maintenance. Prebends with dignity, are such, as haue some iurisdiction annexed to them, according to the diuers orders in euery fewerall Church. 10084 Procuratorie (Protonotarius) dict. à G. Prime or premier, i. primus, & Notaire, i. notarius, aut à Lat. præ & notarius, q. primus aut principalis notarius. The office is likewise borrowed from the later Romans, who made his name of halfe Greeke and halfe Latine, viz. προνοταριος, i. primus, principalis: & Notarius. It is used in our common Law for the chiefe Clerkes of the Kings Court, whereof three be of the Common Pleas, and one of the Kings Bench. For the Procuratorie of the Common Pleas, ¶ An. 5. H. 4. cap. 14. is termed the chiefe Clerke of that Court. He of the Kings Bench recorderd all actions ciuill sued in that court, as the Clerke of the Crowne Office doth all continuall causes. Those of the Common Pleas doe enter and enroll all manner of Declarations, Pleadings, Assises, and iudgements, and all actions, the same terme that the appearance is made. Also they make out all iudiciall writs, Venire facias, after issues ioyned, and Habeas corpus, for the bringing in of the Iury, after it is returned vpon the Venire facias. They also make forth writs of Executions, and of Seisin, writs of Superfedecias, for appearance to Exigents, as well as the Exigents, and writs of Priuiledges, for removing of causes from other inferior Courts of Record, in case where the partie hath cause of priuiledge. Also writs of Proceudo, of Scire facias, in all cases, writs to enquire of dammages: and all proesse vpon Prohibitions, and vpon writs of Audita querela, and false Iudgement. Finally, they inrolle all recognifances acknowledged in that Court, and all common recoveries: and may make exemplifications of any Records, the same terme before the rolles bee deliuered from them.

10095 to Premonition, is taken either for a writ, or for the offence whereupon the writ is granted. It is therefore to be noted, that the Church of Rome, hauing heretofore supremacy and the dignity of S. Peters chaire, heere in England, so that Benefices, Bishopricks, Abbacies, or such like Ecclesiasticall livings, were at the disposing of the Pope. In so much as for the most part, he granted out Mandates of Ecclesiasticall livings, to certaine persons by his Bulles, as hauing care to haue the Church provided of a Successour against it needed. Where it grew, that these kinde of Bulles were called (* Gratix expectatiuz, or Prouisiones) whereof you may reade of a learned Discourse in * Duarenus, a great Ciuill Lawyer, in his Tract. De Benefic. lib. 3. cap. 1. and in his Tract. De Immunitate Ecclesie Gallicane, ¶ Vi. Prouision. These prouisions * K. Ed. 3. not disgisting, made a statute in the three and twentieth yeere of his raigne, ¶ Stat. 5. cap. 22. and another, ¶ Stat. 6. eiusdem anni, cap. 1. and a third, ¶ An. 27. against those that drew the Kings people out of the Realme, to answer of things belonging to the Kings Court: and another, ¶ An. 28. Stat. 2. cap. 1, 2, 3. and 4. to the like effect: whereby he greatly restrained this libertie of the Pope. Yet such was the perseverance that grew out of his power, and the patience of Princes in those daies, that he still prosecuted the continuance of the prouisions: in so much also as * King Richard the second made likewise a statute against them in the twelfth yeere of his raigne, cap. 15. and the ¶ 13. yeere,

* Gratix expectatiuz. * Prouisiones. * King Ed. 3.

* King R. 2.

Stat. 2. cap. 2. making mention of the said first Statute of King Edward the third, ratifying the same, and appointing the punishment of those, that offended against it, * to perpetuall Banishment, forfeiture of their lands, and tenements, goods and cattels, as by the same doth more at large appeare. And againe in the sixteenth yeere of his raigne, cap. 5. he expresseth the offence more particularly, and setteth the same punishment to it, that he ordained in the last former Statute, for there toward the end he hath these words: If any purchase or pursue, or doe to be purchased or pursued in the Court of Rome, or else where, any such translations, processes, and sentences of excommunication, Bulles, instruments, or any other things, &c. After him Henrie the fourth in like manner, the second yeere of his raigne, cap. 3. and 4. addeth certaine new cases, and layeth vpon the offenders in them, the same censure, whereunto for shortness sake, I referre you: to which likewise you may adde the Statute, An. 9. eiusd. cap. 1. and An. 7. cap. 9. and 8. and An. 9. eiusd. cap. 8. and An. 3. H. 5. cap. 4. Of this you may reade * Sir Tho. Smith, De Repub. Angl. lib. 3. cap. 9. in these words, Whosocuer such for any thing to Rome, or in any spirituall Court, for that cause or Action, which may be pleaded in the temporall Court of the Realme, by an old law of England, be fallen into a Premunire, that is, forfeiteth all his goods to the Prince, and his body to remaine in prison, during the Princes pleasure, and not that onely, but the Iudge, the Scribe, the Procurer, and the Assessor, or Abettor, which receiue or maintaineth that vltured pleading, doth incurre the same danger, ¶ Sir Thomas Smith, eodem loco, vt supra. Some later Statutes doe cast this punishment vpon other offenders: as namely, the Statute, An. 1. Eliz. ca. 1. vpon him that denieth the Kings Supremacy the second time, &c. and the Statute, An. 13. Elizab. cap. 2. vpon him that affirmeth the authority of the Pope: or that refuseth to take the Oath of Supremacy: and the Statute, ¶ An. 13. Eliz. cap. 1. such as bee seditious talkers of the inheritance of the Crowne, or affirme the Kings Maiesty to bee an Heretike. And the word is applied most commonly to the punishment first ordained by the Statutes before mentioned, for such as transgressed them. Now touching the * Etymologie of this word (Premunire) thus affirmeth Sir Tho. Smith, that it is so called of Premunire and fortifying, and strengthening the Crowne by the former Statutes, against the vsurpation of forren and vnnatural power: which opinion may receiue some ground from the Statute, ¶ An. 25. Ed. 3. Stat. 6. cap. 1. or to grow from the verbe Præmonere, that is, to forewarne, as it were a forewarning to any, lest he fall by such attempt into a Premunire, being barbarously turned for Præmonere, which corruption is taken from the rude Interpreters of the Ciuill and Canon Lawes, who indeed doe vse the effect (Premunire) many times for the efficient cause (Præmonere) according to our Prouerbe: He that is well warned, is halfe armed. And of this I gather reason from the forme of a writ, which is thus conceiued in the Old Nat. Br. fol. 143. Præmunire facias prædictum Præpositum, & I. R. Procuratorem, &c. quod tunc sint coram nobis, &c. For these words can be referred to none, but parties charged with the offence.

is the producing and insinuating of dead mens willes, before the Ecclesiasticall Iudge, Ordinarie of the place, where the partie dieth. And the Ordinarie in this case is knowne by the quantitie of the goods, that the partie deceased hath out of the Dioces, where he departed. For if all his goods be in the same Dioces, then the Bishop of the Dioces, or the Archdeacon (according as their composition or description is) hath the probate of the Testament: if the goods be dispersed in diuers Dioces, so that there be any summe of note (as five pounds ordinarily) out of the Dioces where the partie led his life: then is the Archbishop of Canterburie the Ordinarie in the case by his Prerogatiue. For whereas in old time the Will was to be proued in euery Dioces, wherein the partie deceased had any goods: it was thought conuenient both to the subiect, and the Archiepiscopall See, to make one prooue for all before him, who was and is of all, the generall Ordinarie of his Prouince. But there may be anciently some composition betwene the Archbishop and an inferiour Ordinarie, whereby the summe that maketh the prerogatiue, is about five pound. See Prerogatiue of the Archbishop. This probate is made in two sorts, either in common forme, or per testes. The prooue in common forme, is only by the oath of the Executor, or partie exhibiting the Will, who sweareth vpon his credulitie, that the Will by him exhibited, is the last Will and Testament of the partie deceased. The prooue, per testes, is when ouer and beside his oath, he also produceth witnesses, or maketh other prooue, to confirme the same, & that in the presence of such as may pretend any interest in the goods of the deceased, or at the least in their absence, after they haue beene lawfully summoned to see such a Will proued, if they thinke good. And the later course is taken most commonly, where there is feare of strife and contention betwene the kindred and friends of the partie deceased about his goods. For a Will proued only in common forme, may be called into question any time within thirtie yeeres after by common opinion, before it worke prescription.

10212 Proctors of the Clergie (Procuratores Cleri) are those which are chosen and appointed to appeare for Cathedral or other Collegiate Churches, as also for the common Clergie of every Diocesse, at the Parliament, whose choise is in this sort. First the King directeth his Writ to the Archbishop of euery Prouince, for the summoning of all Bishops, Deanes, Archdeacons, Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, and generally of all the Clergie of his Prouince, after their best discretion and iudgement, assigning them the time and place in the said Writ. Then the Archbishops proceed in their accustomed course. One example may serue to shew both. The Archbishop of Canterburie vpon his Writ received, directeth his letters to the Bishop of London, as his Deane prouinciall, 1. s. Statuimus de panis & verb. tanquam in gloss: first citing himselfe peremptorily: and then willing him to cite in like manner all the Bishops, Deanes, Archdeacons, Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, and generally all the Clergie of his Prouince, to the place, and against the day fixed in the Writ. But directeth withall, that one Proctor sent for euery Cathedral or Collegiate Church, and two for the bodie of the inferiour Clergie of each Diocesse may suffice. And by vertue of these Letters authentically sealed, the said Bishop of London directeth his like Letters severally to the Bishop of euery Diocesse of the Prouince, citing them in like sort, and commanding them not only to appeare, but also to admonish the said Deanes and Archdeacons, personally to appeare, and the Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, as also the common Clergie of the Diocesse, to send their Proctors to the place, and at the day appointed: and also willet them to certifie the Archbishop the names of all and euery so monished by them, in a shedule annexed to their Letters certificatorie. The Bishops proceed accordingly, and the Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, as also the Clergie, make choice of their Proctors: which done, and certified to the Bishop, be returneth all answerably to his charge at the day. b ¶ Protection (Protectio) hath a general, and a special signification. In the general it is used for that benefit and safetie, that every Subject, or Denizen, or Alien specially secured, hath by the Kings Lawes. And thus it is used, ¶ An. 25. Ed. 3. cap. 22. * Protection in the special signification, is used for an exemption, or immunitie, given by the King to a person against suits in Law, or other vexations, upon reasonable causes moving him thereunto, which I take to be a branch of his Prerogative. And of this Protection, Fitzh. maketh two sorts in his Nat. br. fol. 28. The first forme or sort he calleth a Protection, cum clausula, volumus, whereof he mentioneth foure particulars. A Protection, quia profecturus, for him that is to passe over Sea in the Kings seruice. A Protection, quia moratur, for him that is abroad in the Kings seruice upon the Sea, or in the Marches, ¶ An. 7. H. 7. cap. 2. * A Protection for the Kings debtor, that he be not sued or attached until the King bee paid his debt. See ¶ An. 15. Ed. 3. This some Ciuilians call moratorium: which see in singularibus Marantz, verbo Princeps, p. 79. col. 2. And a Protection in the Kings seruice beyond the Seas, or on the Marches of Scotland: whereof you may read something, ¶ An. 1. R. 2. cap. 8. See the ¶ Regist. orig. fol. 23. and ¶ Brit. cap. 123. The second forme of Protection, is termed cum clausula, Nolumus: which is granted most commonly to a spirituall companie for their immunitie from taking of their cattell by the Kings ministers. But it may be granted also to one man spirituall or temporall. Of these things reade the same Author, and the formes of these writs. See also in the Regist. orig. fol. 22. & 23. And see the new Expositour of Law- termes, to what action the Kings Protection doth not extend. See also the new booke of Entries, verbo Protection.

b ¶ Protest (Protestari) hath two diuers applications: one is by way of cautell, to call witness (as it were) or openly to affirme, that he doth either not at all, or but after a sort, yeeld his consent to any act, as unto a proceeding of a Iudge in a Court, where in his iurisdiction is doubtful, or to answer vpon his oath, further than he by Law is bound. See ¶ Plowd. casu Gresbroke, fol. 176. b. and the Regist. orig. f. 306. b. Another is, by way of complaint to protest a mans bill. For example: If I giue money to a Merchant in France, taking his bill of exchange to be repaid in England, by one to whom he assigneth me: if at my coming I finde not myselfe satisfied to my contentment, but either delayed or denied, then I goe into the Bursé, or some open concourse of Merchants, and protest that I am deceiued by him. And thereupon if he haue any goods remaining in any mans hands within the Realme, the Law of Merchants is, that I be paid out of them.

10391 Purgation (Purgatio) is a clearing of a mans selfe from a crime, whereof he is probably and publicly suspected, and thereof denoun- ced to a Iudge. Of this there was great use in England touching matters of felonie imputed to Clerkes in former time, as appeareth by ¶ Stawnf. pl. cor. li. 2. ca. 48. See Clergie. It is still obserued for matters pertaining to the Ecclesiasticall Court, as suspicion, or common fame of incon- tinency, or such like. * Purgatio is either canonicall or vulgar, Ca- nonicall, is that which is prescribed by the Canon Law: the forme where- of is vsuall in the spiritual Court, the man suspected taking his oath that he is cleere of the fault objected, and bringing so many of his honest neigh- bours, being not aboue twelue, as the Court sh. assigne him, to sweare vpon their consciences and credulitie, he sweareth truly, or hath taken a true oath. * Vulgar purgation, was by fire, or water, or by combat, used by Infidels, and Christians also, vntill by the Canon Law it was abolished, ¶ Tit. 15. de purg. can. & vulg. in Decretalibus. Combat, though, it be lesse in use than it was, yet is it, and may be still practised by the Lawes of the Realme, in cases doubtfull, if the Defendant chuse rather the Combat than other trial. See Drael. See Combat.

10395 Purlicu, or Purlic, is all that ground neere any Forest, which being made Forest by H. 2. R. 1. or King Iohn, were by perambula- tions granted by H. 3. severed againe from the same, ¶ Manwood par. 2. of his Forest Lawes, ca. 20. And he calleth this ground either Pourallee, i. perambulationem, or purlicu and purloy: which bee saith, bee but abusiuely taken for pourallee, vbi supra, num. 3. But it may also come of two French words, pur, i. purus, and lieu, i. locus: because that such grounds as were by those Kings subiected to the Lawes and ordinances of the Forest, are now cleered and freed from the same: for as the Ciuilians call that purum locum, qui sepulchrorum religioni non est obstrictus, §. 9. de rerum diuis. in Inst. so no doubt in imitation of that very point, our Ancestours called this purlicu, i. purum locum, because it was ex- empted from that seruitude that was formerly laid upon it. So ager purus est, qui neque sacror, neque sanctus, neque religiosus, sed ab omni- bus huiusmodi nominibus vacare videtur, l. 2. §. 4. de relig. & sumpt. funerum. And therefore Crompt. Purraile is not much amisse, fol. 153. of his Iurisd. because we may also deriue it from the French words pur, i. pure, and allee, i. a cleere or free walke or passage: or pour, for, luy, him, as it were free for the pourlicu men. And where it is sometime called Pourallee, that may and doth come from pur, and allee, i. itio, pro- fectio, ambulatio, because hee that walketh or courseth within that compasse, is cleere enough from the Lawes or penalties incurred by them which hunt within the precincts of the Forest. See the ¶ Star. Ann. 33. Ed. 1. Stat. 5.

b Purlic, or Purlicu man, is he that hath ground within the purlicu, and being able to dispend 40. s. by the yeere of free hold, is vpon these 2. points licensed to hunt in his owne purlicu, ¶ Manwood part. 1. of his Forest Lawes, pag. 151. & 177. But what obseruations he must use in his hunting, see him pag. 180. 181. 186. See him likewise part. 2. ca. 20. num. 5. 8. 9. &c. See Purlicu supra.

10481 Quae est melme, significth verbatim, which is the selfesame thing. It is used in our Common Law, as a word of art in an action of trespass, or of like nature, for a direct signification of the very act complained of by the plaintife, as a wrong. For example, in an action of the case, the plaintiffe saith, that the Lord threatned his tenants at will in such sort, as he drave them to give up their tenures. The Lord for his defence pleadeith, that he said to them, that if they would not depart, he would sue them as the Law would. This being the same threatning that be used, or, to speake artificially, quae est le melme, the defence is good.

It is used in our Com-mon Law, both as a verbe, (as to rawnge) and as a Substantiue, (as to maker rawnge) Charta de Foresta, cap. 6. The word is appropriated to the Forest, signifying the office of the Rawnger. * The Rawnger is a sworn Officer of the Forest (of which sort there seeme to be twelue) Charta de Foresta, ca. 7. whose authority is partly declared in his Oath, set downe by Manwood, part. 1. of his Forest Lawes, pag. 50. in these words: You shall truly execute the Office of a Rawnger, in the Purlieu of B. upon the borders of the Kings Forest of W. You shall rebate, and with your bound drine backe againe the wilde beasts of the Forest, as often as they shall raunge out of the same into your Purlieu. You shall truly present all vnlawfull hunting and hunters of wilde beasts of venerie, as well within the Purlieu, as within the Forest. And these and all other offences you shall present at the Kings next Court of Attachments, or Swainemote, which shall first happen. So helpe you God. But the same Author setteth downe his Office more particularly in his second part, ca. 20. n. 15, 16, 17 The summe whereof is this: A Rawnger is an Officer of the Forest, or to the Forest, but not within the Forest, hauing no charge of vert, but onely of venison that commeth out of the Forest into his charge, or part of the pourallee, to safe conduct them backe againe. And therefore in those Forests that haue no pouralleces, there be no Rawngers, but Foresters serue the turne. This Rawnger is made and appointed by the Kings letters patents vnder the great seale, and for his better encouragement in his duty, he hath a yeerely fee of 20. or 30. pound, paid out of the Exchequer, and certaine fee Deere, both red and fallow. His Office consisteth chiefly in these three points: ad per-ambulandum quotidie per terras deafforestatas, ad videndum, audien-dum, & inquirendum, tam de malefactis quam de malefactoribus in Balliu-sia; ad refugandum feras Forestæ, tam veneris quam chasæe, de terris deafforestatis, in terras afforestatas: and ad presentandum omnes trans-gressiones Forestæ in terris deafforestatis factas ad proximas curias illius Forestæ tentas.

 nifeth in our common Law the same thing. For example; a man giueth land to him and the issue of his body, to another in fee with warrantie; and the Donnee leaseh out this land to a third for yeeres: the heire of the Donour impleadeth the tenant, alleging, that the land was entailed to him: the Donnee commeth in, and by vertue of the warrantie made by the Donour, repelleth the heire, because though the land were intailed to him, yet he is heire to the warrantie likewise: and this is called a Rebutter. See Broöke, tit. Barre, num. 13. And againe, if I grant to my tenant to hold sine impetitione vasti, and afterward I impleade him for waste made, hee may debarre mee of this action, by shewing my graunt: and this is likewise a Rebutter. Idem, eod. num. 25: See the New booke of Entries, verbo 10753 to Recouer, or reuue. Vi. to Reuue.

10754 Recouerie, Recuperatio. It significth in our Common Law an obtaining of any thing by iudgement or triall of Law: as * Euidio doth among the Ciuilians. But you must vnderstand, that there is a true recouerie, and a fained. A true recouerie, is an actuall or call recouerie of any thing, or the value thereof, by iudgement: As if a man sued for any land, or other thing moueable or immoueable, and haue a verdict, and iudgement for him. * A fained recouerie is a certaine forme or course set downe by Law, to be obserued, for the better assuring of lands or tenements vs. And for the better vnderstanding of this, reade ¶ West. part. 2. symb. tit. Recoueries, sect. 1. who saith, that the end and effect of a recouerie, is to discontinue and destroy Estates, Tailles, Remainders, and Reuerfions, and to barre the former owners thereof. And in this formalitie there be required three parties, viz. the Demaundant, the Tenant, and the Vowchee. The Demaundant is he that bringeth the Writ of Entrie, and may be termed the Recouerer. The Tenant is he, against whom the Writ is brought, and may be termed the Recoueree. The Vowchee is he, whom the Tenant voucheth or calleth to warrantie, for the land in demand, ¶ West. vbi supra. In whom you may reade more touching this matter. But for example to explaine this point: A man that is desirous to cut off an estate taile in lands or tenements, to the end, to sell, giue, or bequeath it, as himselfe seeth good, vseth his friend to bring a Writ vpon him for this land. He appearing to the Writ, saith for himselfe, that the land in question came to him or his auncestors from such a man or his auncestor, who in the conuoyance thereof, bound himselfe and his heires to make good the title to him or to them to whom it was conueyed. And so he is allowed by the Court to call in this third man, to say what hee can for the iustifying of his right to this land, before he so conueyed it. The third man commeth not: whereupon the land is recouered by him that brought the Writ, and the tenent of the land is left for his remedie to the third man, that was called, and came not in to defend the tenent. And by this means the entaile which was made by the tenent or his auncestor, is cut off by iudgement hereupon giuen: for that he is pretended to haue no power to entaile that land, whereunto he had no iust title, as now it appeareth: because it is euicted or recouered from him. This kinde of recouerie, is by good opinion, but a a snare to deceiue the people, ¶ Doct. & Stud. cap. 32. Dial. 1. fol. 56. a This fained recouerie is also called a * Common recouerie: and the reason of that epitheton is, because it is a beaten and common path to that end, for which it is ordained, viz. to cut off the estates aboue specified. See ¶ the New booke of Entries, verbo Recouerie. A true recouerie is as well of the value, as of the thing: that (in value) significth as much as (Illud quod interest) with the Ciuilians. For example: If a man buy land of another with warrantie, which land a third person afterward by suit of Law recouereth against me, I haue my remedie against him that sold it me, to recouer in value, that is, to recouer so much in money as the land is worth, or so much other land by way of exchange, ¶ Fitz. Nat. br. fol. 134. K. To recouer a warrantie, ¶ Old Nat. br. fol. 146. is, to proue by iudgement, that a man was his warrant against all men for such a thing.

10759 Redo, is a Writ, called in English, a Writ of Right, which see ¶ Bracl. lib. 5. tract. 1. cap. 1. & seq. where you may reade your fill of this Writ. See ¶ Fitz. Nat. br. fol. 1. C. Whom see also fol. 6. of a speciall Writ of right in London, otherwise called a Writ of right according to the custome of London. ¶ Glanville seemeth to make euery Writ, whereby a man sueth for any thing due to him, a Writ of right, lib. 10. ca. 1. lib. 11. ca. 1. lb. 12. cap. 1.

b ¶ Redo de dote, is a Writ of right of dower, which lieth for a woman, that hath received part of her dower, and purposeth to demand the remanent in the same towne, against the heire, or his Guardian, if hee be Ward. Of this see more in the ¶ Old Nat. br. fol. 5. and ¶ Fitz. fol. 7. E. and ¶ Regist. orig. fol. 3. and the ¶ New booke of Entries, verbo Droyt.

c ¶ Redo de dote vnde nihil habet, is a Writ of right, which lieth in case, where the husband hauing diuers lands or tenements, hath assured no dower to his wife, and shee thereby is driven to sue for her thirds against the Heire or his Guardian, ¶ Old Nat. br. fol. 6. ¶ Regist. orig. fol. 170.

d ¶ Redo de rationabili parte, is a Writ that lieth betwene priuies blood, as brothers in Guelkinde, or sisters, or other Coparceners, as Nephewes or Nieces, and for land in fee simple. For example: If a man lease his land for terme of life, and afterward die, leaving issue, two daughters, and after that the Tenent for terme of life likewise die: the one sister entring vpon all the land, and so deforcing the other, the sister so deforced shall haue this Writ to recouer her part, ¶ Fitz. Nat. br. fol. 9. ¶ Regist. orig. fol. 3.

e ¶ Redo de Aduocacia Ecclesie, is a Writ of right, lying where a man hath right of Aduouzen, and the Parson of the Church dying, a stranger presenteth his Clerke to the Church, and hee not hauing moved his action of Quare impedit, nor Darrein presentment, within six moneths, but suffered the stranger to vsurpe vpon him. And this Writ he only may haue, that claimeth the Aduouzen, to himselfe, and to his heires in fee. And as it lieth for the whole Aduouzen: so it lieth also for the halfe, the third, the fourth part, ¶ Old Nat. br. fol. 24. ¶ Regist. orig. fol. 29.

f ¶ Redo de custodia terre & heredis, is a Writ that lieth for him, whose tenent holding of him in Chiuallric, dieth in his nonage, against a stranger that entreth vpon the land, and taketh the bodie of the heire. The forme and further vse whereof, see in ¶ Fitz. Nat. br. fol. 139. and the ¶ Regist. orig. fol. 161.

g ¶ Redo sur disclaimer, is a Writ that lieth, where the Lord in the Kings Court, seil. in the Common Plees, doth auer vpon his Tenent, and the tenent disclaimeth to hold of him, vpon the disclaimer hee shall haue this Writ. And if the Lord auerre and proue, that the land is holden of him, he shall recouer the land for euer, ¶ Old Nat. br. fol. 150. which is grounded vpon the Statute, ¶ Westm. 2. ca. 2. An. 13. Ed. 1. which Statute beginneth, Quia Domini feudorum, &c.

b ¶ Redoz, is both Latine and English, signifying a Gouvernour. In the Common Law, Rector ecclesie parochialis, is he that hath the charge or cure of any Parish Church: qui tantum ius in ecclesia parochiali habet, quantum Prælati in ecclesia collegiata, cap. 6. De locat. & conuict. in glof. verbo Expelli potuissent. * In our Common Law, I heare that it is lately ouer-ruled, that Rector Ecclesie parochialis, is hee that hath a Parsonage, where there is a Vicarage endowed; and he that hath a Parsonage without a Vicarage, is called Persona. But this distinction seemeth to be new, and subtile præter rationem. I am sure Bracl. vseth it otherwise, lib. 4. tract. 5. cap. 1. in these words: Et sciendum quod rectoribus ecclesiarum parochialium competit, Assisa qui instituti sunt per Episcopos & Ordinarios vt Personæ, where it is plaine, that rector & persona be confounded. Marke also these words there following: Item dici possunt rectores canonici de ecclesijs prebendatis. Item dici possunt rectores, vel quasi, Abbates, Priores, & alij qui habent ecclesias ad proprios vsus. Vi. ¶ a Parson.

And though it haue a generall signification of any care or diligence: yet it hath also a speciall acceptance, and therein is used only in matters of the Forest: and there two waies: one for the office of the Regarder, the other for the compasse of ground belonging to the Regarders office or charge. q. Crompt. Invidit. fol. 175. 199. Touching the former, thus saith Manwood, part. 1. of his Forest Lawes. pag. 198. * The Eire, i. generall Sessions of the Forest, or Iustices seat, is to be holden and kept euery third yeere: and of necessitie before that any such Sessions or Iustices seat can be holden, the Regarders of the Forest must make their Regard. And this making of the Regard, must be done by the Kings Writ. And the Regard is (as he afterward there saith) to goe thorow the whole Forest, and euery Bayliwicke of the same, to see and enquire of the trespasses of the Forest, which he compriseth in these foure, viz. Ad videndum, ad inquirendum, ad imbreuiandum, ad certificandum. Of euery of which branches you may reade there his exposition. Touching the second signification, the compasse of the Regarders charge, is the whole Forest, (that is, all that ground which is parcell of the Forest.) For there may be woods within the limits of the Forest, that be no parcell thereof, and those be without the Regard, as the same Author plainly declareth, part. 1. pag. 194. and againe, part. 2. cap. 7. num. 4. where hee sheweth the difference betweene these words: Infra Regardum or Rewardum, & Infra Forestam.

c * Regarder (Regardator) G. Regardéur, i. spectator, significeth an Officer of the Forest. q. Crompt. Invidit. fol. 153. where it is thus defined. A Regarder is an Officer of the Forest, appointed to suruey all other Officers: He saith there also, that this Officer was ordained in the beginning of K. H. 2. daies. But Manwood in his Forest Lawes, par. 1. pag. 188. thus defineth him. A Regarder is an Officer of the Kings forest, that is sworne to make the Regard of the Forest, as the same hath bin used to be made in ancient time. And also to view and inquire of all offences of the Forest, as well of Vert as of Venison, and of all concealments of any offences or defaults of Foresters, and of all other Officers of the Kings Forest, concerning the execution of their offices. He saith there also, that a Regarder may be made either by the Kings letters Patents, or by any one of the Kings Iustices of the Forest, at his discretion in the generall Eyre, or at such time, as the Regard is to be made, by vertue of the Kings Writ, directed to the Shiriffe of the Countie for that purpose. The forme of which Writ he there setteth downe. After that, pag. 192. he setteth downe his oath in these words. You shall truly serue our Soueraigne Lord the King in the Office of a Regarder in the Forest of Waltham. You shall make the Regard of the same in such manner as the same hath bene accustomed to be made. You shall raunge thorow the whole Forest, and thorow euery Bayliwicke of the same, as the Foresters there shall leade you to view the said Forest. And if the Foresters will not, or doe not know how to leade you, to make the Regard or raunge of the Forest, or that they will conceale from you any thing that is forfeited to the King, you your selues shall not let for any thing, but you shall see the same forfeiture, and cause the same to be enrolled in your Roll. You shall enquire of all wastés, pourprestures, and Allerts of the Forests, and also of concealments of any offence or trepasse in the Forest. And all these things you shall to the uttermost of your power doe. So helpe you God. Then you may reade further the particulars of his Office, eadem, pag. 195. And pag. 207. he saith that their presentments must be vpon their view, and so recorded; and that the Regarders of themselves haue power to heare and determine the fine or amerciament, for expediting of doozges. b Register, containeth the originall writs of the Common Law. It is the ancientest Booke of the Law. For the Booke of case and Record of 26. Ed. 3. lib. Assis placit 24. proueth directly, that Originall Writs of Assise, and other Originall Writs, had bene time out of minde of man (that is, the beginning whereof cannot be knowne, either by remembrance, reading or record) long before the Conquest. And this booke is called Registrum Cancellarie, in the Statute of Westm. 2. cap. 24. because that the Chancery is tanquam officina iustitiae, * all Originall Writs issuing out of that Court. Now for the authoritie thereof, Bracton lib. 5. tractat. de Exceptionibus, cap. 17. fol. 413. saith thus * Breuie quidem cum sit formatum ad similitudinem regulæ iuris, quia breuiter & paucis verbis intentionem proferentis exponit & explanat, sicut regula iuris rem quæ est, breuiter enarrat, &c. Sunt quædam formata sub certis casibus de cursu & de communi concilio totius regni concessa & approbata, quæ quidem nullatenus mutari poterint absque consensu & voluntate eorum. Now ioyning both these authorities together, a man may safely conclude, That this booke is most ancient, and of greatest authoritie, q. Coke. I confesse (saith he) that by force of acts of Parliament in succeeding ages, diuers other Writs originall, in cases newly happening, are (as appeareth in the same) added therunto. And of these ancient Writs I will say, (* as Sir Thomas Smith a Secretarie of State said) that all the Secretaries in Christendome may learne of them to expresse much matter in few and significant words.  10861 ¶ Relief (Releuium) signifieth in our Common Law, a certaine summe of money, that the Tenent holding by Knights seruice, Grand sergantie, or other tenure, for the which homage or regall seruice is due, or by Soccage, for the which no homage is due, and being at full age, at the death of his auncestour, doth pay to his Lord at his entrance. * Bract. lib. 2. cap. 36. giueth a reason why it is called a Reliefe: viz. quia hæreditas, quæ iacens fuit per antecessoris decessum, releuatur in manus heredum, & propter factam releuationem, faciendâ erit quædam præstatio, quæ dicitur Releuium. Of this you may reade ¶ Britt. cap. 69. in a manner to the same effect. Of this also speaketh the Grand Customarie of Normandie, cap. 34. to this effect: It is to be knowen that the Lord of the Fee ought to haue reliefe of the lands, which he held of him by homage, when those die, of whom he had homage. And that this is not only proper to vs in England or Normandie, appeareth by Hotom. in his Commentaries, De verb. feud. verbo, Releuium, who there defineth it thus: Releuium est honorarium, quod nouus Vassallus patrono introitus causa largitur, quasi morte vassalli alterius, vel alio casu feudum ceciderit: quod iam à nouo subleuetur: and further speaketh of it, that which is worth the reading, and containeth great knowledge of antiquitie. See the like definition in Marantz singularibus, verbo, Releuium. For the quantitie of this Reliefe, see the great Charter, cap. 2. in these words: If any of our Earles or Barons, or any other our teneners, which hold of vs in chiefe by Knights seruice, die, and at the time of his death his heire is of full age, and oweth to vs reliefe, he shall haue inheritance by the old Reliefe: * that is to say, the heire or heires of an Earle for one whole Earledome an hundred pound: the heire or heires of a Baron, for one whole Baronie, a hundred markes: the heire or heires of a Knight, for one whole Knights fee, an hundred shillings at the most. And he that hath lesse, shall giue lesse, according to the old custome of the Fees. Reade also ¶ Glanuile, lib. 9. cap. 4. fol. 68. who saith that in his daies the Reliefe of a Baronie was not certaine. The heire in Francke Soccage, when he cometh to his full age, after the death of his auncester, shall double the rent that he was wont to pay to the Lord, and that shall be in place of Reliefe, ¶ Old Nat. br. fol. 94. e Remembrancers of the Exchequer (Rememoratores) be three Officers, one called the Kings Remembrancer, ¶ An. 35. Eliz. cap. 5. * The other the Lord Treasurers Remembrancer, upon whose charge it seemeth to lye, that they put all Iustices of that Court, as the L. Treasurer and the rest, in remembrance of such things, as are to be called on, and dealt in for the Princes behoofe. The third is called the Remembrancer of the first fruits. Of these you may reade something, ¶ An. 5. R. 2. Stat. 1. cap. 14. & 15. to the effecte above specified. These ¶ An. 37. Ed. 3. cap. 4. be called Clerkes of the Remembrance. The Kings Remembrancer entreteth in his office all Recognisances taken before the Barons for any the Kings debts, for apparences, or for obseruing of orders. He taketh all bonds for any of the Kings debts, or for appearance, or for obseruing of orders, and maketh proces vpon them for the breach of them: He writeth proces against the Collectours of Customs, Subsidies, and fiueteenths, for their accompts. All informations vpon penall Statutes are entred in his Office. And all matters vpon English bills in the Exchequer Chamber, are remaining in his Office. He maketh the bills of compositions vpon penall lawes: taketh the stalmets of debts: maketh a Record of a certificate deliuered to him by the Clerke of the Starchamber of the fines there set, and sendeth them to the Pipe. He hath deliuered to his Office all manner of Indentures, Fines, and other Euidences whatsoeuer, that concerne the assuring of any lands to the Crowne. He yeerely in Craffino animarum readeth in open Court the Statute for the election of Shiriffes, and giueth those that choose them their oath. Hee readeth in open Court the oath of all the Officers of the Court, when they are admitted.

f The Treasurers Remembrancer maketh proces against all Shiriffes, Escheators, Receiuers, and Bayliffes, for their accompts. Hee maketh proces of Fieri facias, and extent for any debts due to the King, either in the Pipe, or with the Auditors. He maketh proces for all such reuennue as is due to the King by reason of his tenures. He maketh a Record, whereby it appeareth, whether Shiriffes and other accountants pay their profers due at Easter and Michaelmas. He maketh another Record, whereby it appeareth, whether Shiriffes and other accountants keepe their daies of prefixion. All extreats of fines, issues, and americiaments set in any Courts of Westminster, or at the Assises or Sessions, are certified into his Office, and are by him deliuered to the Clerke of Extreats to write Proces vpon them. Hee hath also brought into his Office all the accompts of Customers, Controllers, and other accountants to make thereof an entry of Record. * The Remembrancer of the first fruits taketh all compositions for first fruits and tenths: and maketh Proces against such as pay not the same.

ments made ouer conditionally to others, vpon the defet or failing of such condition. * The difference betweene a Remainder and a Reuerfion, is, that a Remainder is generall, and may be to any man but to him that granteth or conueyeth the land, &c. for terme of life only or otherwise. A Reuerfion is to himselfe, from whom the conueyance of the land, &c. proceeded, and commonly perpetuall, as to his heires also, 9 Litle. fol. 112. in fine. See (+) 11046 Rex Romanorum, Charles the fifth procured in his life time, that his brother Ferdinando might be chosen Rex Romanorum, which is defined to be one, who is already so farre estated in the Empire, that at the death, deposition, or resignation of the present Emperour, he is immediately to succeed. This definition may passe, though there be no necessitie of Rex Romanorum into the Empire. For * Charles the fifth, though he made his brother King of the Romans, had no small hopes to haue left his sonne Philip his Succesour in the Empire; for feare of which, it was by many thought, that his brother lent D. Maurice a helping hand to drive him out of Germanie. The reason why Charles did institute this Rex Romanorum, was questionlesse a desire to perpetuate a Soueraigntie in his owne house: * But his pretences were, 1. Because hee hauing the command of many Nations, could not alwaies be present in Germanie.

2. The troubled State by reason of Luthers preaching there; 3. The violent power of the Turkes, who now began to be nigh neighbours vnto them.
4. The imminent disobedience in euery part of the Empire, seemed to require a powerfull Coadjutor. The wise Duke of Saxonie, through all these faire pretences, saw the maine plot, which was to make Germanie Vnius quasi familie hereditatem: and therefore hee first flatly denied to yeeld to any such institution. Then he motioned, that there might be an act made to prohibite the continuance of the Imperiall authoritie longer in one Family, than for three successions: But prevailing in neither, he left the Electors, by whom Ferdinand was chosen, and not long after crowned at Aken abas Aquisgrau in Germany, the sixteenth of Ianuary 1531. This Pollicie hath bene continued ever since by his Successours, to which the Germans are more willing, because the Austrian Princes are natives of the Countrie, and able to out-backe the Emperour in his compleat countenance of Maestic, & Heylyn. Route. 11224 Roufe (Routa) G. Route, i. a company or flocke: as (vne grande route de gents, ou de cerfs.) It signifieth in our Common Law an assembly of three persons or more, going on about forcibly to commit an vnlawfull act, but yet doe it not, ¶ West. part. 2. Symb. tit. Indictments, sect. 65. o. ¶ Lamb. saith, That it is said properly of the multitude that assembleth themselves in such disorderly sort, for their common quarels. As if the inhabitants of a towneship doe assemble to pull downe a hedge or pale to haue their Common, where they ought to haue none: or to beat a man, that hath done them some publike offence, or displeasure. But the Statute of 18. Ed. 3. Stat. 1. cap. vnico, which giueth procelle of outlawrie against such as bring Routes into the presence of the Iustice, or in affray of the people, and in the Statute 2. of Rich. 2. cap. 6. that speaketh of riding in great routes, to make entry into lands, and to beat others, &c. doe seeme to vnderstand it more largely. And it is a Route, whether they put their purpose in execution or no: if so be, that they doe goe, ride, or moue forward their meeting, ¶ Brooke, tit. Riot. 4. & 5. So (as it seemeth) a Route should be a speciall kinde of vnlawfull assembly: * and a Riot the disorderly fact committed generally by any vnlawfull assemble: the one, that three persons, at the least, be gathered together, for so it is commonly taken at this day: the other, that they being together, doe breed disturbance of the Peace, either by signification of speech, show of armour, turbulent gesture, or actual and expresse violence: so that either the peaceable sort of men be vniquieted, and feared by the fact, or the lighter fort and busie bodies emboldened by the example. Thus farre Lamb. in his Eirenar. lib. 2. cap. 5. &c. Where see Riot. ¶ Kitchin giueth the same definition of a Route, fol. 20.

 office is to set downe the dishes of meat at the table: vnde Ital. vocat-tur Seruitore di piatto, a seruant for the platter. L. Antambulones.
 b Sewar, hath two significations with vs: one applied to him that issueth or commeth in before the meat of the King, or other great personage, and placeth it upon the Table: the other to such passages, or gutters, as carrie water into the sea, or riuer, in Latine called Sewera, q Anno 6. H. 6. cap. 5. which is also used in common speech for Commissioners authorized vnder the great seale, to see drains and di-ches well kept and maintained, in the marsh and fen countries, for the better conueyance of the water into the sea, and the preseruing of the grasse for food of cattle, q Stat. An. 6. H. 6. c. 5. It is probable to bring this word from the French Issir, to issue or flow forth, or issue, an issue or going forth: as if we should call them Issuers, because they giue illus or passage to the water, or by prothes. by putting a letter, viz. S. to the French, cauier, i. a sewer or sinke, dict. ab eau, i. aqua, of drawing away the water. And the Latine word Suera, sometimes used in these Commissions, for these drains, is a competent reason for this coniecture. Vide q Fitz. nat. br. in Oyer and Terminer. For the former word, Sewar, I haue heard of an old French booke, containing the Officers of the King of England's Court, as it was anciently governed, that hee whom in Court wee now call Sewar, was called Asscour, which commeth from the French Asseoir, to set, settle, or place, wherein his Office in setting downe the meat is well expressed. And Sewer, as it signifieth an Officer, is by Fleta Latined Assessor, a setter downe, lib. 2. cap. 15.

Since which time the reputation of their places hath increased, in so much as they haue bene specially assigned among other Officers to attend at the time of the Kings Coronation, as Heralds Records doe testific. In the * yeare of King Henry the eighth, there was an Act of Parliament made to licence them to marrie, from which they had bene formerly restrained vnder the penalie of forfeiture of their places. They are also Attorneys 12200 Sock (Soca) is a word signifying a power or libertie of Jurisdiction, as appeareth by these words out of Bracton: Sunt qui Barones & alij libertatem habentes, scil. Soc & Sac, Tol & Thean, Infangthefe & Vfangthefe, & isti possunt iudicare in Curia sua cum qui inuentus fuerit infra libertatem suam seistus de aliquo latrocinio manifesto. Et lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 6. in the Lawes of King Edw. set out by M. Lamb, fol. 132. you haue these words: Socha est quod si aliquis querit aliquid in terra sua, etiam furtum, sua est iusticia, si inuentus fuerit, an non. Saxon in the Description of Britanic, cap. 11. saith that Sock is a suit of Court, and thus thereof commeth Soken: but the signification of the word commeth from the German Sûchen, i. querere, so that Soc is inquisitio, i. a seeking, The Expofitor of the Termes of Law saith thus: Sok is the suit of men in your Court according to the custome of the Realme.

m Starre-chamber, Camera stellata, is a Chamber at the one end of Westminster Hall, q̄ Anno 25. H. 8. cap. 1. It is written the Sterred Chamber. Now it hath the signe of a Starre ouer the doore, as you one way enter therein. In this Chamber, every weeke twice, during the Terme time, and the very next day after the Terme, is there a Court held by the Lord Chancellor, or Keeper, and other honourable Personages of the Realme. This Court seemeth to haue beginning from the Statute 3. H. 7. cap. 1. whereby it is ordained that the Lord Chancellor and Treasurer of England, for the time being, and the Keeper of the Kings Priuie Seale, or two of them, calling to them a Bishop, and a Temporall Lord of the Kings most Honourable Counsell; and the two Chiefe Iustices of the Kings Bench and Common Place, for the time being, or other two Iustices in their absence, should haue power to call before them, and punish such mis-doers, as there be mentioned. The faults that they should punish be Routes, Riots, Forgeries, Maintenan- cies, Embraceries, Perjuries, and such other misdemenor, as are not suffi- ciently provided for by the Common Law. It appeareth both by Sir Tho- mas Smith, lib. 2. Rep. Ang. cap. 4. and by experience also, that at this day the whole number of the Princes most Honourable Priuie Coun- cell, and such other Barons Spirituall, or Temporall as be called thi- ther by the Prince, haue place in this Court, with those aboue named of this Court. cc West. part. 1. Symb. lib. 2. Sect. 151. where he desctibeth a Statute Merchant thus: Is a bond acknowledged before one of the Clerkes of the Statutes Merchant, and Maior, and chiefe Warden of the Citie of Lon- don, or two Merchants of the said Citie for that purpose assigned, or be- fore the Maior, chiefe Warden, or Master of other Cities or good Townes, or other sufficiens men for that purpose appointed, sealed with the Seale of the Debtor or Recognisor, and of the King, which is of two peeces, the greater is kept by the said Maior or chiefe Warden, &c. And the lesser pece thereof by the said Clerkas. The forme of which bond you may see in Fleta lib. 2. cap. 64. &c. thus, Nouerint vniuersi me T. de tali Comitatu teneri N. in Centum libris soluendis eidem ad festum Sci. &c. Anno regni regis, &c. & nisi fecero concedo quod currant super me & heredes meos districtio & pena promissa in statuto Domini Regis edito apud Westm. Dat. Lond. tali die Anno supradicto. The Fee for the same Seale, is for Statutes knowledges in Faires; for every pound a halfe peny, and out of Faires a farthing. The execution of Statute Merchant is first to take the bodie of the Debtor or Recogniser, if he be not a Clerke, and can be found, if otherwise then vpon his lands and goods: The bond is founded vpon the Statute. q̄ Anno 13. Edw. 1. Stat. 4. of this al- so as of the Statute Staple, see the New booke of Entries verbo Statute Merchant, and reade in Fleta vbi supra, more touching this matter, worth the reading.

12543 ff Statute Staple, to vse the very words of M. West. is either pro- perly so called, or improperly. A Statute Staple properly so called, is a bond of Record acknowledged before the Maior of the Staple, in the presence of one or two Constables of the same Staple, for which Seale the Fee is every pound, if the same exceed not 100. an halfe-peny, and if it ex- ceed 100. a farthing. And by vertue of such Statute Staple, the Creditor or Recognisee may forthwith haue execution of the bodie, lands and goods of the Debtor or Recogniser: and this is founded vpon the Statute, An. 27. Edw. 3. cap. 9. A Statute Staple improper, is a bond of Record founded vpon the Statute Anno 23. H. 3. cap. 6. of the nature of a pro- per Statute Staple, as touching the forme and execution thereof, and knowledges before one of the chiefe Iustices, and in their absence before the Maior of the Staple, and Recorder of London. The formes of all these bonds or statutes see in West. part. 1. Symb. lib. 2. Sect. 152. 153. 154. 155. and how to sue a Statute Staple, forfeited, see q̄ Attur. Acad. pag. 66. 67.

12543-2 ff Statute Sessions, otherwise called petit Sessions, is a meeting in euery Hundred of all the Shires in England, where of cus- tome they haue bene vsed: vnto the which the Constables doe repaire, and others both housholders and seruants, for the debating of differences between masters and their seruants, the rating of seruants wages, and the be- stowing of such people in seruice, as being fit to serue, either refuse to seete, cannot get masters, q̄ Anno 5. it weighes so many graines, as by proose you may verifie. And by the Law of England the penie which is called the Sterling, round and without clipping, weigheth 32. graines of wheat without tailles, and that two of those pence make an ounce, and twelue ounces a pound in weigh, or threescore shillings in number, and eight pound of wheat make a gallon, and eight gallons make a bushell of London, which is the eighth part of a quarter. In the Canon Law mention is made of siue shillings sterling, and a merke sterling, Subsidium, is a Taxe or Tribute assessed by Parliament, after the rate of iiiijs. in the pound for lands, and ijs. viij. d. for goods, as it is most commonly used at this day. The manner of assessing euery mans lands or goods is this: First there issueth a Commission out of the Chaucerie to some men of honour or worship in euery countie, by vertue whereof to call vnto them the Head Constables or Bailieues of euery Hundred, and by them the Constable and three or foure of the substantiallest householders in euery towne within their Hundred at a day certaine: which men so called, or so many of them as the Commissioners thinke good to vse, doe rate the inhabitants of their owne towne, in such reasonable manner as they finde meet, yet by the discretion of the said Commissioners. And then euery man after his value set downe, must at his time pay to the Collectours appointed, after the rate aforesaid. Of these you may see varietie in ¶ Rastals Abridgement, Tit. This Officer, in other mens judgement, is farre more ancient than King Henrie the seventh dayes, yet named Treasurer of the Exchequer, till Queen Elizabeths time, where he is termed Under-Treasurer of England, notwithstanding ¶ Ann. 35.  14057 Un-ion, Vnio, is a combining of two Churches in one, which is done by the consent of the Bishop, the Patrone, and the Incumbent, and this is properly called an Vnio: Howbeit there be two other sorts, as when one Church is made subiect to another, and when one man is made Prelate of both, and when a conuentuall is made a Cathedrall, as you may reade in the Glosse of the Chapter, Licet de locato & conducto, in Lynwoods Prouincials § Et quia versu Approbationis. Touching the vnion in the first signification, there was a Statute Anno 37. Hen. 8. cap. 21. That it should be lawfull in two Churches, whereof the value of the one is not aboue six pound in the Kings bookes of the first fruits, and not aboue one mile distant from the other. Vnio in this signification is personall, that is, for the life of the Incumbent, or Reall, that is, perpetuall, whofoeuer be Incumbent.

14060 Un-ite of possession, is called Consolidatio vsu fructus & proprietatis in the Ciuill law, signifying a ioynt possession of two rights by seuerall titles. For example, I take a lease of land from one, upon a certaine Rent: Afterward I buy the Fee simple. This is an vnite of possession, whereby the Lease is extinguished, by reason that I, which had the occupation only for my rent, am become Lord of the same, and am to pay my rent to none but to my selfe. Also an Abbot being seated within a certaine parish, afterward obtaineth an Appropriation of the Tithes belonging to that Church, for the use of his house. Hence is an vnite of possession, by reason that the Tithes which before were to be paid to the Incumbent, are now to be paid to none but himselfe, by vertue of the Appropriation.

14423 Wasting Street is one of the foure waies which the Romans are said to haue made beere in England, and called them Confulares, Prætorias, Militares, Publicas. ¶ M. This Street is otherwise called * Werlam Street, as the same Author saith, and howsoeuer the Romans might make it and the rest, the names bee from the Saxons, and Roger Houeden saith, it is so called, because the sonnes of Wethle made it leading from the East sea to the West, ¶ Annal. par. prior. fol. 248. a. The second he nameth Watling street, comming out of the South-East toward the Fosse, beginning at Douer, and passing thorough the middle of Kent ouer Thames besides London, running along toward Westminster, and thence to Saint Albones by Dunstable, Stratford, Towcester, Weden, Lilborne, Athenston, Gilberts hill, now called Wreaken by Seauerne, Worcester, Stratton, and so forth by the middle of Wales vnto Cardican, and the Irish seas. The third is called Erminage street, stretching out of the West North-west, into the East South-east, from Saint Dauids in the west Wales, vnto Southampton. The fourth he calleth Icknild street, stretching forth by Worcester, by Wicombe, Brinningham, Litchfield, Darby, Chesterfield, and by Yorke, forth into Tynmouth. But be that listeth to reade at large of these Waies, let him haue recourse to the first volume of Holinheads Chronicle, and the description of England there, the nineteenth chapter, where this Antiquitie is saue otherwise declared, then by the former Writer. Henric of Huntingdon likewise in the first booke of his Historie, not farre from the beginning, mentioneth these foure streets, terming them Calles Regia sublimatos authoritate ne aliquis in eis inimicum inuadere accederet, &c.

14471 Wæights, Pondera. There be two sorts in use with vs. The one called * Troy weight, which containeth twelue onzes in the pound, and no more, by which Pearle, Pretious stones, Electuaries, and medicaine things, Gold, Siluer, Bread be weighed: The other is called * Auer de pois, which containeth sixteene onzes in the pound. By this all other things are weighed that passe between man and man by weight, saving only those aboue named. Why it should be called Troy weight, it may be for that they terme it libram & vinciam Troianam, as if it came from Troy. But George Agricola in his learned Tractate, De ponderibus & mensuris, pag. 339. termeth the pound of twelue onzes, * Libram medicam, and the other sixteene onzes, * Libram ciuilem, saith thus of them both, Medica & Ciuilis libra, numero, non grauitate vinciarum differunt. The second seemeth so to be termed, by reason of the more full weight, for Avoir de pois, in French, is as much to say, as to haue full weight. All our weights and measures haue their first composition from the Peny sterling, which ought to weigh two and thirtie wheat cornes of a middle sort, twentie of which Pence make an onze, and twelue such onzes a pound, or sixtie shillings, but sificene onzes make the Merchants pound, & Fleta lib. 2. cap. 12. It is not unlike that this Merchants pound, though an onze lesse, should be all one in signification with the pound of Avoir de pois, and the other pound called by Fleta Trone weight, plainly appeareth to be all one with that we call Troy weight. See Tronage.

14633 Wreack, Wreccum, vel Wreccum maris, the Normans, from whence our word cometh, call it Varch, and Latine it Veriscum, so of Varch and Veriscum, Ang. Wrecks, i. where a ship is perished at the Sea, and no man escapeth aliue out of the ship. The Ciuilians call it Naufragium. Vid. Naufrage. This Wrecke being made, the goods that were in the ship, or any part of the ship, being brought to land by the waves, belong to the King by his prerogative, q Anno 17. Ed. 2. cap. 11. in these words: Item, Rex habebit Wreccum maris per totum Regnum, Ballenas & Sturgiones captas in mari, vel alibi infra regnum, exceptis quibusdam locis priuilegiatis per Regem: Whereby it appeareth that the King hath them, or such as haue by grant, this liberty or priuilege of him, the reason whereof Bracton alleageth, lib. 1. cap. 12. num. 10. where he reekoneth these goods, Iure naturali, to be bona nullius, quia non apparet Dominus eorum, sed Iure Gentium fieri Principis, see him also lib. 2. ca. 24. num. 1. & 2. And the Author of the Termes of Law, saith; * if any person in the ship come to land, it is no Wrecke, no if either Dog or Cat escape aliue to the land, the goods are the owners still, so he come within a yeare and a day to claime them. And for this the Statute is plaine, q West. 1. cap. 4. Anno 3. Edw. 1. The Emperors of Rome made no advantage of this pitifull euent, as appeareth, Titulo de Naufragijs, 11. Cod. Also it appeareth that Richard the first had some remorse of poore Sea mens miseries in this case. For hee, Quictum clamauit Wrecc suis subditis, q Rog. Houeden. part. poster. Annal. fol. 386. Vi.  pects. Some in respect of their order, or manner of granting, are termed Originall, and some Judiciall. * Originall Writs bee those that are sent out for the summoning of the Defendant in a personall, or a Tennent in a reall action, or other like purpose, before the suit beginneth, or to beginne the suit thereby. These be Judiciall, that be sent out by order of the Court where the cause dependeth, upon occasion growing after suit begunne, & Old nat. br. fol. 51. And Judiciall is thus by one signe knowne from the Originall, because the Teste beareth the name of the chiefe Iustice of that Court, whence it commeth, where the Originall beareth in the Teste the name of the King. Then according to the nature of the action, they be Personall or Reall: and Reall bee either touching the possession, called Writs of Entrie, or the propertie, called Writs of right, & Fitz. nat. br. sparsim per totum. Some Writs be at the suit of a partie, some of Office, & Old nat. br. fol. 147. Some ordinarie, some quæ prudens antiquitas, inesse huic circulo fabulose statuit: alijs à ζωη, i. vita, vigorem sol cum cæteris Planetis sub isto circulo nobis largiatur, & Bec.

 Aristotel. dicitur ζωδης κυκλος, i. obliquus circulus, est autem Zodia-cus circulus in Sphæra, 12. signa in se continens. Arietem nimirum, Taurum, Geminos, Cancrum, &c. & medius interfecat equatorem, ex vna parte comprehendens Cancri Tropicum, ex altera Capricorni, in quibus ubi fuerit, facit annua sua quæ vocant Solstitia. secatur etiam ab æquato-re in principijs Libræ & Arietis, in quibus sunt Equinoctia, & Ioan. de sacro Bosco. B. Den circhel des hemels daer de twaelf teekenen in zjn, i. circulus cælestis in quo sunt duodecim signa. Vnde & à Claudi-ano & Luciano circulus hic dicitur signifer, unde το σημειαφορος, i. signum fe-rens. T. Chier kretsk, i. circulus bestiarum appellatur. De signis autem hinc digni pro memoria versu Manlij:

Aurato princeps Aries in vellere fulgens, Respicit admirans aduersum surgere Taurum,
 Submissis vultu Geminos, & fronte vocantem:
 Quos sequitur Cancer: Cancrum Leo: Virgo Leonem Aquato cum Libra die cum tempore notis Attrahit ardenti fulgenti Scorpion astro,
 In cuius candam contentum dirigit arcum Mixtus Equo, volucrum missurus iamq; Sagittara.
 Tum venit angusto Capricornus sidere flexus.
 Post hunc inflexam diffundit Aquarius urnam, Piscibus assuetas auide subuenibus undas.
 Quos Aries claudii tangentes ultima signa.

Aries ergo Zodiaci principium est secundum Affonomos, quia verisimile sit multum mundum à Deo creatum, Sole tenente primum Arietis punctum, Deusque adeo in lege Moysi præceperit, vt sumerent Iudæi in iunium ami-cum sol esset ingressus Arietis signum, & eo quoque tempore Paschatis cele-britatem peragerent, cum prius ad Aegyptiorum imitationem incoassent annum ab Autumno, & Fung. Atque hæc præcipua sunt, quæ hic communicanda duxi Philologis, Reliqua ab Astrologia scriptoribus petenda.

14711 Zoilus, a biting Poet, ibat writ against Homer. G. Zoyle.
 I. Zoilo. L. Zoilius. Gr. Ζωϊλος, Amphipolitanus fuit, qui stylum in Ho-merum strinxit. Vnde επιπορευσις, Homeromastix, i. Homeri flagella-tor nuncupatus est, & Ouid. lib. 2. de rem. Amor. Ingenium magni huor detractat Homeri, Quisquis es ex illo Zoile nomen habens. He was of Amphipolis, he writ ana bit against Homer, and therefore was called Ho-meromastix, i. a whipper of Homer, * Canis etiam Rhetoricus nomina-14712 Zone. B. T. G. Zone. I. H. L. Zona, à Gr. ζωνη, i. cingu-lum, à ζωωωω, ζωωωωω, cingo. Hac enim sese cingebant & mulieres & milites. Hinc Zona nummos secum deferre solebant. Illæ eadem ad-stringere ventrem. Hinc de hinc dicitur * virginem soluit Zonam, i. virgo esse desijt. De illis: Zonam perdidit, i. amisit pecuniam suam.

 Per metaphoram Zona est dictum & de circulis cælestibus. Sunt enim quasi tot colorum cinguli; quinque autem numerantur in celo Zonæ. Fri-gida due, totidem temperate, torrida vna, eaque propter excessum caloris vix habitabilis, vt nonnullis Cosmographis placet, nec tamen inter se om-nes conueniunt, & Virgil.

Quinque tenent cælum Zone, quarum vna corusco Semper sole rubens, & torrida semper ab igne, Quam circum extreme dextra læuæque trabentes Cærulea glacie concrete atque imbribus atris.
 Has inter, medianque, due mortalibus agris Munere concessæ Diuum & via seclæ per ambas Obliquas qua se signorum verteret ordo.

Meminit earum Ouidius 10. Metamorph.
 Vtque duæ dextra cælum totidemque sinistra Parte secant Zona, quinta est ardentior illis, Sic omis inclusum numero distinxit eodem Cura Dei: totidemque plage tellure premuntur; Quarum que media est non est habitabilis æstu,
 Nix regit alca duas: totidemque inter utrumque locauit, Temperiemque dedit mixta cum frigore flamma.

Zonas cæli sunt qui fascias, cingula & plagas nominant. Ratio appellationis ex officio & sine manifesta. Cicero in Somn. Scipion. dicit ma-culas, ab eodem origine quoad nomen. Est & Zona morbi genus, Scribonio, vt qui non secus vt cingulum carnem circumdans. Et est ignis sacri species, in quo ardor cuius serpentibus minimis pustulis exasperat & vrit per artus reptas. Vnde & serpens Lucretio. L. Herpes. Græ. εργης, & Dioscorid. εργησων, Nicandro. εργησων εργησων, Polluci. T. Emeyffe der vmb sich krisset, i. vlcus circummodens. B. Syngel-bier, i.
