SPECIAL NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The Publishers to the COUNCIL of LAW REPORTING beg to inform Subscribers that the LAW REPORTS, STATUTES, and WEEKLY NOTES for 1868 are now complete, and ready for binding, except Vol. VI. of EQUITY CASES and Vol. III. of CHANCERY APPEALS. The Publication of the Indexes for these Volumes has been postponed, in order to harmonize them with the DIGEST now in progress. These Indexes will be published not later than February 1st.

Numbers I. to LIII. of the Weekly Notes; Parts I. to IV. of the Statutes; I. to XII. of Equity and Common Law Series; I. to VII. of Appellate; the Index of Vol. V. Equity, and, when published, of Vol. VI. Equity, and Vol. III. Chancery, are required for binding the Entire Series of the Law Reports for 1868.

As Part VII. of the Appellate Series contains the Indexes, &c., to both the Common Law and Appellate Series, Subscribers to only one of these Series will receive their Indexes, &c., in a plain wrapper.

N.B.—The Publishers take this opportunity of stating that they are now enabled to execute all orders for Binding with the utmost despatch.

THE ROYAL PHRASEOLOGICAL
 FRENCH-ENGLISH AND ENGLISH-FRENCH DICTIONARY.

By J. C. TARVER, LATE FRENCH MASTER, ETON COLLEGE.

'Most readily do we acknowledge the flood of light which has been thrown on French phrases by M. Tarver.... His work is really a valuable addition to our Dictionary shelf—the most important shelf in every man's library. The nice skill with which he has compared and contrasted the phrases of the two most influential of modern tongues can hardly be over-praised. Such a book might well deserve a distinct notice; but we are happy to take this opportunity, meantime, of saying that one of the volumes has now been in constant use with us for five years, and we should be at a loss to name another recent one of its class which we have found more useful. The idea was happy, and the execution has been most laudably careful. We have been infinitely obliged to it in reading the lighter French literature of this day—so full of vocables fresh from the mint of camp or guinguette, and lively audacious turns φωφάρια σπουδαίου, undreamt of by "the forty"—which would have puzzled Voltaire as much as Johnson.'—Quarterly Review.

THE STUDENT'S BLACKSTONE, Price 7s. 6d.

COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

IN FOUR BOOKS.

By SIR WILLIAM BLACKSTONE, KNT.,

One of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas.

ABRIDGED AND ADAPTED TO THE PRESENT STATE OF THE LAW,

By ROBERT MALCOLM KERR, LL.D., BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

Mr. Malcolm Kerr, whose edition of Blackstone's "Commentaries" has almost attained to the rank of a legal classic, has remodelled for Mr. Murray the "Student's Blackstone." The new work is a true abridgment, and contains, in a small compass, the real substance of the larger work. Need we add that Mr. Kerr's "Blackstone" is an exposition of English law, in which the latest legal information is conveyed in accurate and yet intelligible phrases?—The Athenaeum.
 'The present day has a great deal for which to thank Mr. Murray. Modern and ancient history, the Latin and Greek languages have, by his zeal, been brought within the reach of many, to whom they were before inaccessible. And now we have unfolded to us the difficulties of the law.

 'This edition of "The Student's Blackstone" is more complete than any that has yet been published. The editor has not only abridged from the original, but altered; and it is not too much to say that we have here before us a really valuable book of reference upon which dependences may safely be placed, since the various recent changes in legislation have all been carefully noticed.'—The Reader.

COUNTY COURTS ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION.

Jan. 14.—The following further Order has been issued by the Privy Council :—

Whereas by the County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Act, 1868, it is, among other things, enacted, that if at any time after the passing of that Act it appears to Her Majesty in Council, on the representation of the Lord Chancellor, expedient that any County Court should have Admiralty Jurisdiction, it shall be lawful for Her Majesty, by Order in Council, to appoint that Court to have Admiralty Jurisdiction accordingly, and to assign to that Court as its district for Admiralty purposes any part or parts of any one or more district or districts of County Courts: And further, that any such Order may be from time to time varied as seems expedient:

And whereas Her Majesty was pleased, by an Order in Council of the 9th day of December, 1868, to order that certain County Courts should have Admiralty Jurisdiction:

And whereas a representation has been made by the Lord Chancellor, stating that it is expedient that the said Order should be varied, and that the County Courts mentioned in the first column of the Schedule

hereto annexed, marked A, should have Admiralty Jurisdiction; and that such Courts should have assigned to them as their respective districts for Admiralty purposes the districts of the County Courts, the names of which are printed in the second column of the said Schedule, opposite to the names of the said Courts respectively:

Now, therefore, Her Majesty having taken the said representation into consideration, is pleased, by and with the advice of her Privy Council, to order and appoint, and it is hereby ordered and appointed, that from and after the 31st day of January, 1869, the County Courts mentioned in the first column of the Schedule hereto annexed, marked A, shall have Admiralty Jurisdiction. And Her Majesty is further pleased, by and with the advice aforesaid, to assign to the Courts hereby appointed to have Admiralty Jurisdiction, as their respective districts for Admiralty purposes, the districts of the County Courts, the names of which are printed in the second column of the said Schedule, opposite to the names of the said Courts respectively. And Her Majesty is further pleased, by and with the advice aforesaid, to order that the said Order of the 9th day of December last shall be varied or rescinded, so far as it varies from this Order.

SCHEDULE A.

 EDWARD SMITH BIGG, Esq.
 ROBERT BAYLY FOLLETT, Esq., Taxing Master in Chancery.

FINANCIAL POSITION on 1st January, 1868.

Existing Assurances	£3,924,000	Invested Funds	£1,520,000
Reversionary Bonus thereon	539,000	Share Capital, fully subscribed	1,000,000
Annual Income	200,000	Claims and Bonus paid	1,550,000

WHOLE-WORLD Policies granted for a single extra payment of 10s. per £100, where no Special Liability to Foreign Residence then exists. Policies on Lives of full age when Assured confer, after Five years' existence without incurring extra charge for Foreign License, the right of unrestricted residence in any part of the World. Ordinary Policies allow, from the date of issue, residence in any part distant more than 33 degrees from the Equator.

NINE-TENTHS of the total Profits divisible every five years amongst the Assured. A valuable provision for Policies becoming Claims between two divisions. Very moderate Non-Bonus Premiums.

The GENERAL CONDITIONS of Assurance printed thereon are specially framed to secure to Policies of the Society, when once issued, absolute freedom from all liability to future question.

LOANS are granted on Life Interests and Reversions.

THE ROYAL PHRASEOLOGICAL FRENCH-ENGLISH AND ENGLISH-FRENCH DICTIONARY.

By J. C. TARVER, LATE FRENCH MASTER, ETON COLLEGE.

"Most readily do we acknowledge the flood of light which has been thrown on French phrases by M. Tarver. . . . His work is really a valuable addition to our Dictionary shelf—the most important shelf in every man's library. The nice skill with which he has compared and contrasted the phrases of the two most influential of modern tongues can hardly be over-praised. Such a book might well deserve a distinct notice; but we are happy to take this opportunity, meantime, of saying that one of the volumes has now been in constant use with us for five years, and we should be at a loss to name another recent one of its class which we have found more useful. The idea was happy, and the execution has been most laudably careful. We have been infinitely obliged to it in reading the lighter French literature of this day—so full of vocables fresh from the mist of camp or guzquette, and lively audacious turns de phrase convulsives, undreamt of by "the forty"—which would have puzzled Voltaire as much as Johnson."—Quarterly Review.

ELECTION LAW, 1868.

Third Edition, in 12mo., price 7s. 6d. cloth.

A MANUAL of the PRACTICE of ELECTIONS in the United Kingdom; and of the Law of Corrupt Practices and Illegal Payments; with an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. By HENRY JEFFREYS BUSBY, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law, Recorder of Colchester.

Council of Law Reporting.

THE SUBSCRIPTIONS to "THE LAW REPORTS" for the year 1869 are now payable, and should be remitted to the Secretary as early as possible, to enable the Council to ascertain what number of Copies it will be necessary to print, and that arrangements may be made for the punctual delivery of the Parts on the day of publication.

The Council congratulate the Profession on the solid and permanent basis on which the undertaking now rests, as shown by the experience of the last three years.

The Annual Report of the Council for the year 1867, with the Financial Statement appended, was published in "THE WEEKLY NOTES" of the 8th of August, and has been circulated amongst the Profession generally.

The large amount of success which this Report shows has attended the undertaking, under the superintendence of the Council in the interests of the Legal Profession, is very encouraging; and it is a favourable circumstance that this success has been progressive in each succeeding year, and that the Subscriptions now exceed an annual income of Twenty-two Thousand Pounds. The Profession have now for nearly three years not only been regularly supplied with "THE LAW REPORTS" at a most reasonable subscription, but Subscribers to the Entire Series have also, without any additional charge, received "THE WEEKLY NOTES" of current decisions, and an authorised edition of THE STATUTES, the last of which was not comprised within the Bar Scheme.

The Council intend not only to continue during the current year the publication of "THE LAW REPORTS," "THE WEEKLY NOTES," and THE STATUTES of the coming Session, but they have also in course of preparation, and in a forward state, a Digest of "THE LAW REPORTS" from their commencement, which will be delivered gratis to all prepaying Subscribers to the Entire Series for the year 1869, as early as possible in the ensuing spring.

The cumbrous size of the volumes of THE STATUTES already published is attributable to the circumstance that Government has permitted to be included among the Public and General Statutes of the realm various Acts of a local character; but it has been promised that this inconvenient plan will be remedied for the future; and the Council will, therefore, wait to see what alteration and improvements are actually made by Government in the publication of the Statutes before any change is made by themselves with respect to the edition of THE STATUTES which they supply.

The Council desire to urge upon the Legal Profession generally the necessity for their constant and active co-operation in aiding them to carry into effect the great improvement in Law Reporting so propitiously inaugurated by the Bar Scheme, as it is only by such co-operation that its full advantages can be realised, and the undertaking attain that independent position by which the evils of the old system will be removed, and the promulgation of the Case Law of the country placed upon that proper basis which the interests of the public demand.

BENCHERS' READING ROOM, LINCOLN'S INN,
16th November, 1868.

(By Order)

ROUNDELL PALMER,
Chairman.

Subscriptions are payable to the Secretary, JAMES THOMAS HOPWOOD, Esq., 3 New Square, Lincoln's Inn, London, W.C., and his receipt is the proper discharge to a prepaying Subscriber. All Cheques should be crossed "The Union Bank of London, Chancery Lane Branch," and Post Office Orders should be made payable at the Lincoln's Inn Post Office, Serle Street. Remittances from Ireland, Scotland, and abroad, must include foreign bill stamps, commission, and all other expenses attending the receipt of the remittance.

N.B.—The cost of the transmission of all Parts published before the Subscription is received must be paid by the Subscriber.

"THE LAW REPORTS" FOR FEBRUARY, 1869,

Will be published on Tuesday, the 2nd proximo, and will consist of—

Equity Series Part II.
Common Law Series Part II.

THE STUDENT'S BLACKSTONE, Price 7s. 6d.

COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

IN FOUR BOOKS.

By SIR WILLIAM BLACKSTONE, KNT.,

One of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas.

ABRIDGED AND ADAPTED TO THE PRESENT STATE OF THE LAW,

By ROBERT MALCOLM KERR, LL.D., BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

'Mr. Malcolm Kerr, whose edition of Blackstone's "Commentaries" has almost attained to the rank of a legal classic, has remodelled for Mr. Murray the "Student's Blackstone." The new work is a true abridgment, and contains in a small compass, the real substance of the larger work. Need we add that Mr. Kerr's "Blackstone" is an exposition of English law, in which the latest legal information is conveyed in accurate and yet intelligible phrase?'—The Athenaeum.

'The present day has a great deal for which to thank Mr. Murray. Modern and ancient history, the Latin and Greek languages have, by his seal, been brought within the reach of many, to whom they were before inaccessible. And now we have unfolded to us the difficulties of the law.

'This edition of "The Student's Blackstone" is more complete than any that has yet been published. The editor has not only abridged from the original, but altered; and it is not too much to say that we have here before us a really valuable book of reference upon which dependence may safely be placed, since the various recent changes in legislation have all been carefully noticed.'—The Reader.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF HEALTH;

Or, an Exposition of the Physiological and Sanitary Conditions Conducive to Human Longevity and Happiness.

By Dr. SOUTHWOOD SMITH.

ELEVENTH EDITION, REVISED AND ENLARGED.

London: LONGMANS, GREEN, READER, and DYER, Paternoster Row.

THE STUDENT'S BLACKSTONE, Price 7s. 6d.

COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

IN FOUR BOOKS.

By SIR WILLIAM BLACKSTONE, KNT.,

One of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas.

ABRIDGED AND ADAPTED TO THE PRESENT STATE OF THE LAW,

By ROBERT MALCOLM KERR, LL.D., BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

'Mr. Malcolm Kerr, whose edition of Blackstone's "Commentaries" has almost attained to the rank of a legal classic, has remodelled for Mr. Murray the "Student's Blackstone." The new work is a true abridgment, and contains, in a small compass, the real substance of the larger work. Need we add that Mr. Kerr's "Blackstone" is an exposition of English law, in which the latest legal information is conveyed in accurate and yet intelligible phrase?'—The Athenaeum.

'The present day has a great deal for which to thank Mr. Murray. Modern and ancient history, the Latin and Greek languages have, by his seal, been brought within the reach of many, to whom they were before inaccessible. And now we have unbid to us the difficulties of the law.

'This edition of "The Student's Blackstone" is more complete than any that has yet been published. The editor has not only abridged from the original, but added; and it is not too much to say that we have here before us a really valuable book of reference upon which dependence may safely be placed, since the various recent changes in legislation have all been carefully noticed.'—The Spectator.

Council of Law Reporting.

THE SUBSCRIPTIONS to "THE LAW REPORTS" for the year 1869 are now payable, and should be remitted to the Secretary as early as possible, to enable the Council to ascertain what number of Copies it will be necessary to print, and that arrangements may be made for the punctual delivery of the Parts on the day of publication.

The Council congratulate the Profession on the solid and permanent basis on which the undertaking now rests, as shown by the experience of the last three years.

The Annual Report of the Council for the year 1867, with the Financial Statement appended, was published in "THE WEEKLY NOTES" of the 8th of August, and has been circulated amongst the Profession generally.

The large amount of success which this Report shows has attended the undertaking, under the superintendence of the Council in the interests of the Legal Profession, is very encouraging; and it is a favourable circumstance that this success has been progressive in each succeeding year, and that the Subscriptions now exceed an annual income of Twenty-two Thousand Pounds. The Profession have now for nearly three years not only been regularly supplied with "THE LAW REPORTS" at a most reasonable subscription, but Subscribers to the Entire Series have also, without any additional charge, received "THE WEEKLY NOTES" of current decisions, and an authorised edition of THE STATUTES, the last of which was not comprised within the Bar Scheme.

The Council intend not only to continue during the current year the publication of "THE LAW REPORTS," "THE WEEKLY NOTES," and THE STATUTES of the coming Session, but they have also in course of preparation, and in a forward state, a Digest of "THE LAW REPORTS" from their commencement, which will be delivered gratis to all prepaying Subscribers to the Entire Series for the year 1869, as early as possible in the ensuing spring.

The cumbrous size of the volumes of THE STATUTES already published is attributable to the circumstance that Government has permitted to be included among the Public and General Statutes of the realm various Acts of a local character; but it has been promised that this inconvenient plan will be remedied for the future; and the Council will, therefore, wait to see what alteration and improvements are actually made by Government in the publication of the Statutes before any change is made by themselves with respect to the edition of THE STATUTES which they supply.

The Council desire to urge upon the Legal Profession generally the necessity for their constant and active co-operation in aiding them to carry into effect the great improvement in Law Reporting so propitiously inaugurated by the Bar Scheme, as it is only by such co-operation that its full advantages can be realised, and the undertaking attain that independent position by which the evils of the old system will be removed, and the promulgation of the Case Law of the country placed upon that proper basis which the interests of the public demand.

BENCHERS' READING ROOM, LINCOLN'S INN,
16th November, 1868.

(By Order)

ROUNDELL PALMER,
Chairman.

Subscriptions are payable to the Secretary, JAMES THOMAS HOPWOOD, Esq., 3 New Square, Lincoln's Inn, London, W.C., and his receipt is the proper discharge to a prepaying Subscriber. All Cheques should be crossed "The Union Bank of London, Chancery Lane Branch," and Post Office Orders should be made payable at the Lincoln's Inn Post Office, Serle Street. Remittances from Ireland, Scotland, and abroad, must include foreign bill stamps, commission, and all other expenses attending the receipt of the remittances.

N.B.—The cost of the transmission of all Parts published before the Subscription is received must be paid by the Subscriber.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The Publishers to the COUNCIL of LAW REPORTING beg to inform Subscribers that the LAW REPORTS, STATUTES, and WEEKLY NOTES for 1868, are now complete, and ready for binding.

Numbers I. to LIII. of the Weekly Notes; Parts I. to IV. of the Statutes; I. to XII. of Equity and Common Law Series; I. to VII. of Appellate; the Index to Vol. V. Equity published in August, 1868; and to Vol. VI. Equity, and Vol. III. Chancery, published on the 2nd inst.—are required for binding the Entire Series of the Law Reports for 1868.

As Part VII. of the Appellate Series contains the Indexes, &c., to both the Common Law and Appellate Series, Subscribers to only one of those Series will receive their Indexes, &c., in a plain Wrapper.

N.B.—The Publishers take this opportunity of stating that they are now enabled to execute all orders for Binding with the utmost despatch.

THE STUDENT'S BLACKSTONE, Price 7s. 6d.

COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

IN FOUR BOOKS.

By SIR WILLIAM BLACKSTONE, KNT.,

One of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas.

ABRIDGED AND ADAPTED TO THE PRESENT STATE OF THE LAW,

By ROBERT MALCOLM KERR, LL.D., BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

'Mr. Malcolm Kerr, whose edition of Blackstone's "Commentaries" has almost attained to the rank of a legal classic, has remoulded for Mr. Murray the "Student's Blackstone." The new work is a true abridgment, and contains in a small compass, the real substance of the larger work. Need we add that Mr. Kerr's "Blackstone" is an exposition of English law, in which the latest legal information is conveyed in accurate and yet intelligible phrase?'—The Athenaeum.
 'The present day has a great deal for which to thank Mr. Murray. Modern and ancient history, the Latin and Greek languages have, by his zeal, been brought within the reach of many, to whom they were before inaccessible. And now we have unbinded to us the difficulties of the law.

'This edition of "The Student's Blackstone" is more complete than any that has yet been published. The editor has not only abridged from the original, but altered; and it is not too much to say that we have here before us a really valuable book of reference upon which dependence may safely be placed, since the various recent changes in legislation have all been carefully noticed.'—The Reader.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable,

Unconditional, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

For the reason referred to, many persons hesitate or decline to assure on the ground that, in the event of inability or unwillingness to continue payment of their premiums, the assurance will become forfeited. To this class of the public the system now introduced will especially commend itself, being entirely free from all conditions of forfeiture on account of non-payment of premium, or from any other cause whatever; while at the same time it absolutely guarantees at death, even when a default is made in payment of the premium, a fixed sum in respect of every premium paid, bearing the same proportion to the total amount assured as the number of premiums actually paid may bear to the whole number originally contracted to be paid.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at death, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurance.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £215,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the Kingdom.

HONORARY SECRETARY—GERALD FITZGIBBON, JUN., Esq., 10 Merrion Square, North, Dublin.

THE COUNCIL OF LAW REPORTING IN IRELAND beg to announce that the Subscriptions to "THE IRISH REPORTS, 1869," are now payable. The Subscription List will be closed on the 30th of APRIL, 1869, after which date the Reports will be obtainable only by payment of the increased price charged to Non-Subscribers.

The prices of the Reports for 1869 will be—

To SUBSCRIBERS	Three Guineas.
To NON-SUBSCRIBERS	Three Guineas and a half.

Subscriptions are payable to the Honorary Secretary, GERALD FITZGIBBON, JUN., Esq., 10 Merrion Square, North, Dublin, to whom Post Office Orders may be made payable at the General Post Office, Dublin, and in whose favour cheques may be drawn and crossed "Royal Bank, Dublin." The Reports will be delivered free of charge to all Subscribers resident within the United Kingdom. Subscribers resident abroad will be charged 10s. per annum for the cost of delivery, in addition to the amount of their Subscriptions, and to be included in their remittances. The Reports will be on sale to Non-subscribers at the Publishing and Advertisement Office: EDWARD PONSONBY, 116 Grafton Street, Dublin.

"THE IRISH REPORTS" begin from Hilary Term, 1867. They are the only authorized publication of the decisions of the Irish Courts. The Reports for each year are comprised in two volumes, uniform with the English "LAW REPORTS." The current volumes are completed by the February Part, which closes the second year of the publication. The succeeding Parts will be delivered only to those whose Subscriptions for 1869 shall have been prepaid.

The publication has been hitherto self-supporting; but, in order to maintain and improve the Reports, the Council anxiously desire the assistance of all who are interested in securing the continuance of Reports prepared under professional control, and it is hoped that the number of Subscribers may be increased as the publication becomes better known.

The Reports for 1867 and 1868 can be obtained at the Subscription Price on application to the Honorary Secretary.

By Order of the Council,

January 30, 1869.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable, Unconditional, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

For the reason referred to, many persons hesitate or decline to assure on the ground that, in the event of inability or unwillingness to continue payment of their premiums, the assurance will become forfeited. To this class of the public the system now introduced will especially commend itself, being entirely free from all conditions of forfeiture at the same time it absolutely guarantees, even when a default is made in payment of the premium, a fixed sum in respect of every premium paid, bearing the same proportion to the total amount assured as the number of premiums actually paid may bear to the whole number originally contracted to be paid.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at decease, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurances.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £215,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the Kingdom.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable, Unconditionable, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

For the reason referred to, many persons hesitate or decline to assure on the ground that, in the event of inability or unwillingness to continue payment of their premiums, the assurance will become forfeited. To this class of the public the system now introduced will especially commend itself, being entirely free from all conditions of forfeiture on account of non-payment of premium, or from any other cause whatever; while at the same time it absolutely guarantees at decease, even when a default is made in payment of the premium, a fixed sum in respect of every premium paid, bearing the same proportion to the total amount assured as the number of premiums actually paid may bear to the whole number originally contracted to be paid.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at decease, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurances.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £215,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the Kingdom.

DIRECTORS' REPORT TO THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING,

HELD AT THE

SOCIETY'S HOUSE, ON TUESDAY, THE 23RD DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1869.

The year 1868, for which the Directors have now to submit their Report to the Proprietors, was the thirty-second since the Society was established.

The principal features of the business of the year have been as follows:—

The New Assurances effected with the Society amounted to £328,100; the corresponding New Premiums to £11,279 9s. 11d. Of the latter amount, £1,171 17s. 6d. was paid away for the re-assurance of £48,200 with other Offices, leaving £10,107 12s. 5d. as the net New Premiums on £281,900, the risk retained by the Society.

The Premium Income of the year, after deducting all re-assurance payments, was £127,268 9s. 5d.; that of 1867, after a similar deduction, £122,711 16s. 2d.

The Principal Sums paid under Claims by death were £82,715, being almost identical in amount with those of the previous year. Of these Sums amounting to £55,110 were entitled to Bonus Additions, and received an increase of £14,893, being at the rate of 27 per cent. One Claim of nearly £6,000 arose from the Abergele Railway Accident.

Taking into the account the balance of Interest due in the year, and since received, the Total Income reached the Sum of £201,412. The Total Property, which shows an increase in the year of £61,735, is invested to yield Interest, free of Income Tax, at the rate of £4 5s. 4d. per cent.

The accumulated and invested Property now exceeds One Million and a Half sterling.

During the course of the year the Directors have had to regret the loss of their highly respected colleague, the late Mr. Serjeant Goulburn, one of the original Directors of the Society.

The vacancy thus created has been filled up by the election, at an Extraordinary General Meeting of the Proprietors, of the Right Honourable the Lord Justice Giffard.

The Directors desire to impress upon the Shareholders the necessity of continued exertion and co-operation with them in extending the business of the Society.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable,
Unconditional, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not infrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

For the reason referred to, many persons hesitate or decline to assure on the ground that, in the event of inability or unwillingness to continue payment of their premiums, the assurance will become forfeited. To this class of the public the system now introduced will especially commend itself, being entirely free from all conditions of forfeiture on account of non-payment of premium, or from any other cause whatever; while at the same time it absolutely guarantees at death, even when a default is made in payment of the premium, a fixed sum in respect of every premium paid, bearing the same proportion to the total amount assured as the number of premiums actually paid may bear to the whole number originally contracted to be paid.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at death, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurances.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £215,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the kingdom.

INNS OF COURT EXAMINATION.

GENERAL EXAMINATION.—TRINITY TERM, 1869.

The Council of Legal Education have approved of the following Rules for the Examination of Students of the Inns of Court.

The attention of the students is requested to the following rules of the Inns of Court:—

“As an inducement to students to propose themselves for such examination, studentships and exhibitions shall be founded of fifty guineas per annum each and twenty-five guineas per annum each respectively, to continue for a period of three years, and one such studentship shall be conferred on the most distinguished student at each general examination, and one such exhibition shall be conferred on the student who obtains the second position; and further, the Examiners shall select and certify the names of three other students who shall have passed the next best examinations; and the Inns of Court to which such students as aforesaid belong, may, if desired, dispense with any Terms, not exceeding two, that may remain to be kept by such students previously to their being called to the Bar. Provided that the Examiners shall not be obliged to confer or grant any studentship, exhibition, or certificate, unless they shall be of opinion that the examination of the students has been such as entitles them thereto.”

“At every call to the Bar those students who have passed a general examination, and either obtained a studentship, an exhibition, or a certificate of honour at such examination, shall take rank in seniority over all other students who shall be called on the same day.”

RULES FOR THE EXAMINATION OF CANDIDATES FOR HONOURS, OR CERTIFICATES, ENTITLING STUDENTS TO BE CALLED TO THE BAR.

An examination will be held in next Trinity Term, to which a student of any of the Inns of Court, who is desirous of becoming a candidate for a studentship, an exhibition, or honours, or of obtaining a certificate of fitness for being called to the Bar, will be admissible.

Each student proposing to submit himself for examination will be required to enter his name at the Treasurer's office of the Inn of Court to which he belongs, on or before Wednesday, the 12th day of May next, and he will further be required to state in writing whether his object in offering himself for examination is to compete for a studentship or other honourable distinction, or whether he is merely desirous of obtaining a certificate preliminary to a call to the Bar.

The examination will commence on Wednesday, the 19th day of May next, and will be continued on the Thursday and Friday following.

It will take place in the Hall of Lincoln's Inn, and the doors will be closed ten minutes after the time appointed for the commencement of the examination.

The examination by printed questions will be conducted in the following order:—

Wednesday morning, the 19th of May, at 10, on Constitutional Law and Legal History; in the afternoon, at 2, on Equity.

Thursday morning, the 20th of May, at 10, on Common Law; in the afternoon, at 2, on the Law of Real Property, &c.

Friday morning, the 21st of May, at 10, on Jurisprudence and the Civil Law; in the afternoon, at 2, a paper will be given to the students, including questions bearing upon all the foregoing subjects of examination.

The oral examination will be conducted in the same order, during the same hours, and on the same subjects, as those already marked out for the examination by printed questions, except that on Friday afternoon there will be no oral examination.

The oral examination of each student will be conducted apart from the other students; and the character of that examination will vary according as the student is a candidate for honours, or desires simply to obtain a certificate.

The oral examination and printed questions will be founded on the books below mentioned, regard being had, however, to the particular object with a view to which the student presents himself for examination.

In determining the question whether a student has passed the examination in such a manner as to entitle him to be called to the Bar, the Examiners will principally have regard to the general knowledge of Law and Jurisprudence which he has displayed.

A student may present himself at any number of examinations, until he shall have obtained a certificate.

Any student who shall obtain a certificate may present himself a second time for examination as a candidate for the studentship or exhibition, but only at the general examination immediately succeeding that at which he shall have obtained such certificate: provided that, if any student so presenting himself shall not succeed in obtaining the studentship or exhibition, his name shall not appear in the list.

Students who have kept more than eleven Terms shall not be admitted to an examination for the studentship or the exhibition.

The Reader on Constitutional Law and Legal History proposes to examine in the following books and subjects:—

1. Hallam's "History of the Middle Ages," chapter 6.
2. Hallam's "Constitutional History."
3. Broom's "Constitutional Law."
4. The chief Statutes from the date of Magna Charta to that of the Union with Scotland.
5. The principal State Trials of the Stuart period.

Candidates for honours will be examined in all the above books and subjects.

Candidates for a certificate in 1 and 3 only, or in 2 and 3 only, at their option.

The Reader on Equity proposes to examine in the following books:—

1. Haynes's "Outlines of Equity;" Smith's "Manual of Equity Jurisprudence (last edition);" Hunter's "Elementary View of the Proceedings in a Suit in Equity," Part I. (last edition).
2. The cases and notes contained in the first volume of White and Tudor's "Leading Cases." The "Act to amend the Law relating to future Judgments, Statutes, and Recognisances," 27 & 28 Vict. c. 112. The Act to explain the Operation of an Act passed in the 17th and 18th years of Her present Majesty, c. 118, intitled "An Act to amend the Law relating to the Administration of Deceased Persons," 30 & 31 Vict. c. 69. The "Act to remove doubts as to the power of Trustees, Executors, and Administrators to invest Trust Funds in certain Securities, and to declare and amend the Law relating to such Investments," 30 & 31 Vict. c. 132. Mitford on "Pleadings in the Court of Chancery," introduction; chapter 1, sections 1 and 2; chapter 1, section 3 (the first six pages); chapter 2, section 1; chapter 2, section 2, part 1 (the first three pages); chapter 2, section 2, part 2 (the first two pages); chapter 2, section 2, part 3; chapter 3.

Candidates for certificates of having passed a satisfactory examination will be expected to be well acquainted with the books mentioned in the first of the above classes.

Candidates for the studentship, exhibition, or honours will be examined in the books mentioned in the two classes.

The Reader on the Law of Real Property, &c., proposes to examine in the following books and subjects:—

1. Joshua Williams on the "Law of Real Property." (Seventh edition.)
2. The 8 & 9 Vict. c. 106, and the Notes to this Act in Shelford's "Real Property Statutes." (Sixth Edition.)
3. "Wife's Separate Estate," Hulme v. Tenant, and the Notes to that Case in White and Tudor's "Leading Cases in Equity," Vol. I. pp. 435—482. (Third Edition.)
4. "Choses in Possession and Choses in Action." Williams on the "Law of Personal Property," pp. 9—181. (Sixth Edition.)
5. "The Construction of Wills." Hawkins' Treatise on this subject, pp. 1—56.

Candidates for the studentship, exhibition, or honours will be examined in all the above-mentioned books and subjects. Candidates for a pass certificate on those under heads 1, 2, and 3.

The Reader on Jurisprudence, Civil and International Law proposes to examine in the following books and subjects:—

1. Sanders' "Institutes of Justinian." Introduction.
2. Lord Mackenzie—"Studies in Roman Law." (Edition 1862.) Pp. 1—63.
3. Tomkins' "Institutes of the Roman Law." Part I.
4. "Digest." Lib. II. Tit. II. "De Origine Juris," &c.

5. Maine—"Ancient Law." Chaps. I. II. and III.
6. Wheaton's "International Law," by Lawrence. Part II. "Absolute International Rights of States," pp. 115—370.

Candidates for honours will be examined in the whole of the above subjects, but candidates for a pass certificate will be examined in 1, 2, 5, and 6 only.

The Reader on Common Law proposes to examine in the following books and subjects:—

Candidates for a pass certificate will be examined in—

1. "The Ordinary Proceedings and Course of Pleading in an Action."
2. Smith's "Lectures on Contracts." (Last Edition.) Lectures 1—4.
3. Broom's "Commentaries." (Third Edition.) Book III, "Torta."
4. Archbold's "Criminal Pleading," by Bruce. So far as concerns Homicide, Simple Larceny, and False Pretences—the ingredients in, and proofs needed to support an indictment for, each of such offences.

Candidates for the studentship, exhibition, or honours will be examined in the above subjects, and also in—

5. The following cases relating to the Law of Contracts:—Lampligh v. Brathwait (1 Smith's "Leading Cases," and Notes thereto); Blake's Case (8 "Collyer's Reports," 43); Cumber v. Wane (1 Smith's "Leading Cases," and Notes thereto); Pigot's Case (11 "Collyer's Reports," 26), with which should be read Aldous v. Cornwell ("Law Reports," 3 Q.B. 573).
6. Smith's "Mercantile Law," by Dowdeswell. Book I. chap. 5. Of Principal and Agent.
7. Taylor on "Evidence." (Last Edition.) Book I. chap. 5. Of Presumptive Evidence.

TRINITY EDUCATIONAL TERM, 1869.

Prospectus of the Lectures to be delivered during the ensuing Educational Term by the several Readers appointed by the Inns of Court.

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND LEGAL HISTORY.

The Reader on Constitutional Law and Legal History proposes to deliver, during the ensuing Educational Term, Six Public Lectures on

The History of the Chief Legislative Changes in the Civil Law of England, and in his Administration, made since the accession of George III.

With his Private Class the Reader proposes to go through the principal Statutes, State Trials, Cases, and State Documents, illustrating the History of Constitutional Law from the beginning of the Reign of James II. to the end of the Reign of Queen Anne.

He will also comment on the Cases in Broom's "Constitutional Law" belonging to a period subsequent to the reign of Queen Anne.

He will use Hallam's "Constitutional History" and Broom's "Constitutional Law" as his principal text-books.

EQUITY.

The Reader on Equity proposes to deliver, during the ensuing Educational Term, Two Courses of Public Lectures (there being Six Lectures in each Course) on the following subjects:—

An Elementary Course.

1. On Relief in Equity against Waste.
2. On Suits to Compel the Performance of Agreements.

An Advanced Course.

1. On the Jurisdiction in Lunacy.
2. On the Jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery over Infants.
3. On the Rules for Determining the Priorities of Incumbrances.

In the Elementary Private Class the subjects discussed will be—Relief in Equity against Penalties and Forfeiture; the Doctrine of Equity with reference to Mortgages and Suits for Redemption and Foreclosure.

In the Advanced Private Class the Lectures will comprehend—Relief in Equity against Fraud, Actual and Constructive; Relief against Mistake.

THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY, &c.

The Reader on the Law of Real Property, &c., proposes to deliver, in the ensuing Educational Term, Twelve Public Lectures (there being Six Lectures in each Course) on the following subjects:—

Elementary Course.

1. On the usual Form of Mortgages of Freeholds and Leaseholds, the Powers and Incidents of the Mortgagor's Estate, and the Remedies of the Mortgagee.
2. On the Doctrine of Priority as between several Incumbrances.
3. On Copyhold Tenure.

Advanced Course.

1. On Entails.
2. On Fines and Recoveries, and the Alterations effected by the Act for their Abolition.

In the Elementary Private Classes the Reader will continue his course of Real Property Law, using as a text-book Mr. Joshua Williams' "Principles of the Law of Real Property;" and in his Advanced Private Classes he will discuss and explain the Form, Construction, and Operation of the Documents most frequently used in Conveyancing Practice, continued from last Term.

JURISPRUDENCE, CIVIL AND INTERNATIONAL LAW.

The Reader on Jurisprudence, Civil and International Law proposes, in the ensuing Educational Term, to deliver Six Public Lectures on the following subjects:—

1. The History of the Roman Law of Contract.
2. The Roman Law relating to the Contract of Sale (Emptio Venditio) contrasted with the English and French Law upon the same subject.
3. The Roman Law relating to the Warranty of the Vendor against Eviction, and against Latent Defects in the Property Sold.
4. The Contract of Locatio Conductio.

In his Private Class, the Reader proposes to continue the Course of Roman Civil Law, continuing the consideration of the Law of Contracts, using Sanders' edition of Justinian's "Institutes" as the text-book.

The Reader, in his Private Class, will also discuss points of International Law as to the "International Rights of States in their Hostile Relations," using the work of Wheaton as the text-book, and referring to the works of the principal modern Jurists, the decisions of the Admiralty and Prize Courts of England and America, the Debates in Parliament, and State Papers relating to the cases under discussion.

COMMON LAW.

The Reader on Common Law proposes to deliver, during the ensuing Educational Term, Two Courses (of Six Public Lectures each) on the following subjects:—

Elementary Course.

1. The respective Characteristics of Tort and Crime.
2. The Ingredients in Indictable Offences of Ordinary Occurrence.
3. Procedure and Proofs at a Criminal Trial.

Advanced Course.

1. The Criminal Law Consolidation and Amendment Acts (24 & 25 Vict. cc. 94—100).
2. Leading Cases on Criminal Law.
3. The Rules of Evidence applied in the Investigation of Crime.

With his Private Classes the Reader will discuss the subjects above-mentioned, using the following books for reference:—

Elementary Class—Broom's "Commentaries" (last edition), Archbold's "Criminal Pleading" (edit. by Bruce), and Roecoe's "Criminal Evidence" (last edition).
Advanced Class—"The State Trials," Townsend's "Modern State Trials," Greaves' "Criminal Law Acts," and Taylor on "Evidence" (last edition).

EXAMINATION ON THE SUBJECTS OF LECTURES AND CLASSES.

The Examination for Exhibitions on the subjects of Lectures and Classes delivered in the Three Educational Terms 1868-9, will commence on Thursday, the 1st of July, at Lincoln's Inn Hall.

Students who propose offering themselves for Examination must enter their names on or before TUESDAY, the 1st of June next, at the STEWARD'S OFFICE, LINCOLN'S INN; and a Reader's Certificate of having duly attended the Lectures and Classes on the subjects in which a Student offers himself for Examination must be sent to the Council of Legal Education, at Lincoln's Inn, on or before Tuesday, the 22nd of June.

Students having duly attended the Lectures and Classes of one or more of the Readers from the Michaelmas Term preceding the July Examination, are qualified to enter for Examination on such subjects, but they are not allowed to enter for the Elementary and Advanced Examination on the same subject, and provided that the Terms they have kept do not exceed the limits prescribed by Clause 39 of the Consolidated Regulations of the Inns of Court.

Students who have passed an Examination under the 44th Clause are not eligible to enter for the July Examination under the 38th Clause of the Consolidated Regulations.

Students who have obtained Exhibitions under Clause 38 are not eligible to enter again at a subsequent Examination on the same subjects.

The Examinations for the Exhibitions will be partly oral and partly in writing, by means of Printed Papers of Questions.

The following Days and Hours have been set apart for the said Examination:—

Thursday Morning	July 1	10 to 1	Constitutional Law and Legal History.
Thursday Afternoon	"	2 to 5	Jurisprudence, Civil and International Law.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable,
Unconditionable, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at decease, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurances.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurance—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £215,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the kingdom.

Actuary and Secretary.—GEORGE CUTCLIFFE, Esq. Assistant Actuary.—BENJAMIN NEWBATT, Esq.

Extracts from the Report of the Directors, presented at the Annual General Meeting held on the 27th November, 1868:—

1. The sum of £412,345 was proposed for Assurance, of which £307,395 was completed, at Premiums producing £10,067 per Annum.
2. The amount paid under Claims by death was £100,883, being the smallest since 1860, whilst the expenses of management and all other outgoings were even less than for many years past.
3. On the other hand, the income was raised to £219,769, notwithstanding that its increase was retarded by abatements of premium which did not take effect in the previous year, and by the cessation of interest on the large sum paid as Bonus in 1867.
4. The Surplus Income was very considerable. It amounted to £93,152, a sum exceeding by more than £3,000 any previous Surplus during the 44 years of the Society's existence.
5. The Accumulated Fund was thereby increased to £1,595,906.

The following are among the distinctive features of the Society:—

CREDIT SYSTEM.—On any Policy for the whole of Life, where the age does not exceed 60, one half of the Annual Premiums during the first five years may remain on credit.

ENDOWMENT ASSURANCES may be effected, without Profits, by which the Sum Assured becomes payable on the attainment of a specified age, or at death, whichever event shall first happen.

INVALID LIVES may be assured at rates proportioned to the increased risk.

PROMPT SETTLEMENT OF CLAIMS.—Claims paid thirty days after proof of death.

Tables of Rates and Forms of Proposal can be obtained of any of the Society's Agents, or of

GEORGE CUTCLIFFE, ACTUARY AND SECRETARY,
13, St. James's Square, London, S.W.

COMMISSION.—10 per Cent. on the First Premium, and 5 per Cent. on Renewals, is allowed to Solicitors. The Commission will be continued to the Person introducing the Assurance, without reference to the channel through which the Premiums may be paid.

THE STUDENT'S BLACKSTONE, Price 7s. 6d.

COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

IN FOUR BOOKS.

By SIR WILLIAM BLACKSTONE, KNT.,

One of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas.

ABRIDGED AND ADAPTED TO THE PRESENT STATE OF THE LAW,

By ROBERT MALCOLM KERR, LL.D., BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

'Mr. Malcolm Kerr, whose edition of Blackstone's "Commentaries" has almost attained to the rank of a legal classic, has renounced for Mr. Murray the "Student's Blackstone." The new work is a true abridgment, and contains, in a small compass, the real substance of the larger work. Need we add that Mr. Kerr's "Blackstone" is an exposition of English law, in which the latest legal information is conveyed in accurate and yet intelligible phrase?'—The Athenaeum.

'The present day has a great deal for which to thank Mr. Murray. Modern and ancient history, the Latin and Greek languages have, by his seal, been brought within the reach of many, to whom they were before inaccessible. And now we have unveiled to us the difficulties of the law.

'This edition of "The Student's Blackstone" is more complete than any that has yet been published. The editor has not only abridged from the original, but altered; and it is not too much to say that we have here before us a really valuable book of reference upon which dependence may safely be placed, since the various recent changes in legislation have all been carefully noticed.'—The Reader.

THE ROYAL PHRASEOLOGICAL FRENCH-ENGLISH AND ENGLISH-FRENCH DICTIONARY.

By J. C. TARVER, LATE FRENCH MASTER, ETON COLLEGE.

'Most readily do we acknowledge the flood of light which has been thrown on French phrases by M. Tarver.... His work is really a valuable addition to our Dictionary shelf—the most important shelf in every man's library. The nice skill with which he has compared and contrasted the phrases of the two most influential of modern tongues can hardly be over-praised. Such a book might well deserve a distinct notice; but we are happy to take this opportunity, meantime, of saying that one of the volumes has now been in constant use with us for five years, and we should be at a loss to name another recent one of its class which we have found more useful. The idea was happy, and the execution has been most laudably careful. We have been infinitely obliged to it in reading the lighter French literature of this day—so full of vocables fresh from the mint of camp or guinguette, and lively audacious turns deverbe superverbe, undreamt of by "the forty"—which would have puzzled Voltaire as much as Johnson.'—Quarterly Review.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable,
Unconditional, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C. Established 1848.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at death, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurances.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £215,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the kingdom. Special Agents Wanted. HENRY HARBEN, Secretary.

Actuary and Secretary.—GEORGE CUTOLEFFR, Esq. Assistant Actuary.—BENJAMIN NEWBATT, Esq.

Extracts from the Report of the Directors, presented at the Annual General Meeting held on the 27th November, 1868:—

1. The sum of £412,246 was proposed for Assurance, of which £307,295 was completed, at Premiums producing £10,067 per Annum.
2. The amount paid under Claims by death was £106,863, being the smallest since 1860, whilst the expenses of management and all other outgoings were even less than in many years past.
3. On the other hand, the Income was raised to £219,769, notwithstanding that its increase was retarded by abatement of premium which did not take effect in the previous year, and by the cessation of interest on the large sum paid as Bonus in 1867.
4. The Surplus Income was very considerable. It amounted to £93,152, a sum exceeding by more than £6,000 any previous Surplus during the 44 years of the Society's existence.
5. The Accumulated Fund was thereby increased to £1,598,906.

The following are among the distinctive features of the Society:—

ORDER SUMMERS.—On any Policy for the whole of Life, where the age does not exceed 60, one half of the Annual Premiums during the first five years may remain on credit.

Tables of Rates and Forms of Proposal can be obtained of any of the Society's Agents, or of UNKNOWN AMOUNTS may be effected, without Profit, by which the Sum Assured becomes payable on the attainment of a specified age, or at death, whichever event shall first happen.

INVALID LIVES may be assured at rates proportioned to the increased risk.

PROMPT SETTLEMENT OF CLAIMS.—Claims paid thirty days after proof of death.

GEORGE CUTOLEFFR, ACTUARY AND SECRETARY,
 13, St. James's Square, London, S.W.

COMMISSION.—10 per Cent. on the First Premium, and 5 per Cent. on Renewals, is allowed to Solicitors. The Commission will be continued to the Person introducing the Assurance, without reference to the channel through which the Premiums may be paid.

THE STUDENT'S BLACKSTONE, Price 7s. 6d.

COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

IN FOUR BOOKS.

By SIR WILLIAM BLACKSTONE, KNT.,

One of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas.

ABRIDGED AND ADAPTED TO THE PRESENT STATE OF THE LAW,

By ROBERT MALCOLM KERR, LL.D., BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

Mr. Malcolm Kerr, whose edition of Blackstone's "Commentaries" has almost attained to the rank of a legal classic, has remodelled for Mr. Murray the "Student's Blackstone." The new work is a true abridgment, and contains, in a small compass, the real substance of the larger work. Need we add that Mr. Kerr's "Blackstone" is an exposition of English law, in which the latest legal information is conveyed in accurate and yet intelligible phrases?—The Athenaeum.

The present day has a great deal for which to thank Mr. Murray. Modern and ancient history, the Latin and Greek languages have, by his seal, been brought within the reach of many, to whom they were before inaccessible. And now we have unfolded to us the difficulties of the law.

This edition of "The Student's Blackstone" is more complete than any that has yet been published. The editor has not only abridged from the original, but altered; and it is not too much to say that we have here before us a really valuable book of reference upon which dependence may safely be placed, since the various recent changes in legislation have all been carefully noticed.—The Reader.

THE ROYAL PHRASEOLOGICAL FRENCH-ENGLISH AND ENGLISH-FRENCH DICTIONARY.

By J. C. TARVER, LATE FRENCH MASTER, ETON COLLEGE.

Most readily do we acknowledge the flood of light which has been thrown on French phrases by M. Tarver. His work is really a valuable addition to our Dictionary shelf—the most important shelf in every man's library. The nice skill with which he has compared and contrasted the phrases of the two most influential of modern tongues can hardly be over-praised. Such a book might well deserve a distinct notice; but we are happy to take this opportunity, meantime, of saying that one of the volumes has now been in constant use with us for five years, and we should be at a loss to name another recent one of its class which we have found more useful. The idea was happy, and the execution has been most laudably careful. We have been infinitely obliged to it in reading the lighter French literature of this day—so full of vocabularies fresh from the mint of camp or guinguette, and lively audacious turns à la mode, undreamt of by "the forty"—which would have puzzled Voltaire as much as Johnson.—Quarterly Review.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable,
Unconditionable, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C. Established 1848.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at death, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurances.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £215,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the Kingdom. Special Agents Wanted. HENRY HARBEN, Secretary.

Actuary and Secretary.—GEORGE CUTCLIFFE, Esq. Assistant Actuary.—BENJAMIN NEWBATT, Esq.

Extracts from the Report of the Directors, presented at the Annual General Meeting held on the 27th November, 1868:—

1. The sum of £412,345 was proposed for Assurance, of which £307,395 was completed, at Premiums producing £10,067 per Annum.
2. The amount paid under Claims by death was £100,883, being the smallest since 1860, whilst the expenses of management and all other outgoings were even less than for many years past.
3. On the other hand, the Income was raised to £219,769, notwithstanding that its increase was retarded by abatements of premium which did not take effect in the previous year, and by the cessation of interest on the large sum paid as Bonus in 1867.
4. The Surplus Income was very considerable. It amounted to £93,152, a sum exceeding by more than £8,000 any previous Surplus during the 44 years of the Society's existence.
5. The Accumulated Fund was thereby increased to £1,598,908.

The following are among the distinctive features of the Society:—

CREDIT SYSTEM.—On any Policy for the whole of Life, where the age does not exceed 60, one half of the Annual Premiums during the first five years may remain on credit.

ENDOWMENT ASSURANCES may be effected, without Profits, by which the Sum Assured becomes payable on the attainment of a specified age, or at death, whichever event shall first happen.

INVALID LIVES may be assured at rates proportioned to the increased risk.
 PROMPT SETTLEMENT OF CLAIMS.—Claims paid thirty days after proof of death.

Tables of Rates and Forms of Proposal can be obtained of any of the Society's Agents, or of

GEORGE CUTCLIFFE, ACTUARY AND SECRETARY,
 13, St. James's Square, London, S.W.

COMMISSION.—10 per Cent. on the First Premium, and 5 per Cent. on Renewals, is allowed to Solicitors. The Commission will be continued to the Person introducing the Assurance, without reference to the channel through which the Premiums may be paid.

THE STUDENT'S BLACKSTONE, Price 7s. 6d. COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

IN FOUR BOOKS.

By SIR WILLIAM BLACKSTONE, KNT.,

One of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas.

ABRIDGED AND ADAPTED TO THE PRESENT STATE OF THE LAW,

By ROBERT MALCOLM KERR, LL.D., BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

'Mr. Malcolm Kerr, whose edition of Blackstone's "Commentaries" has almost attained to the rank of a legal classic, has remodelled for Mr. Murray the "Student's Blackstone." The new work is a true abridgment, and contains, in a small compass, the real substance of the larger work. Need we add that Mr. Kerr's "Blackstone" is an exposition of English law, in which the latest legal information is conveyed in accurate and yet intelligible phrase?'—The Athenæum.

'The present day has a great deal for which to thank Mr. Murray. Modern and ancient history, the Latin and Greek languages have, by his zeal, been brought within the reach of many, to whom they were before inaccessible. And now we have unrolled to us the difficulties of the law.

'This edition of "The Student's Blackstone" is more complete than any that has yet been published. The editor has not only abridged from the original, but altered; and it is not too much to say that we have here before us a really valuable book of reference upon which dependence may safely be placed, since the various recent changes in legislation have all been carefully noticed.'—The Reader.

THE ROYAL PHRASEOLOGICAL FRENCH-ENGLISH AND ENGLISH-FRENCH DICTIONARY.

By J. C. TARVER, LATE FRENCH MASTER, ETON COLLEGE.

'Most readily do we acknowledge the flood of light which has been thrown on French phrases by M. Tarver. . . . His work is really a valuable addition to our Dictionary shelf—the most important shelf in every man's library. The nice skill with which he has compared and contrasted the phrases of the two most influential of modern tongues can hardly be over-praised. Such a book might well deserve a distinct notice; but we are happy to take this opportunity, meantime, of saying that one of the volumes has now been in constant use with us for five years, and we should be at a loss to name another recent one of its class which we have found more useful. The idea was happy, and the execution has been most laudably careful. We have been infinitely obliged to it in reading the lighter French literature of this day—so full of vocables fresh from the mint of camp or gustiquette, and lively and adacious turns devenant surprenants, undreamt of by "the forty"—which would have puzzled Voltaire as much as Johnson.'—Quarterly Review.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable,
Unconditional, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C. Established 1848.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

For the reason referred to, many persons hesitate or decline to assure on the ground that, in the event of inability or unwillingness to continue payment of their premiums, the assurance will become forfeited. To this class of the public the system now introduced will especially commend itself, being entirely free from all conditions of forfeiture on account of non-payment of premium, or from any other cause whatever; while at the same time it absolutely guarantees at decease, even when a default is made in payment of the premium, a fixed sum in respect of every premium paid, bearing the same proportion to the total amount assured as the number of premiums actually paid may bear to the whole number originally contracted to be paid.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at decease, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurances.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £215,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the kingdom. Special Agents Wanted. HENRY HARBEN, Secretary.

GENERAL ORDER OF THE
HIGH COURT OF CHANCERY.

March 19, 1869.

1. At the foot of every Petition of Appeal and Rehearing hereafter to be presented to the Lord Chancellor, and at the foot of every Petition for a Rehearing before the Master of the Rolls, or one of the Vice-Chancellors, and of every copy thereof respectively, a statement shall be made of the parties or persons intended to be served with the Order for setting down the same for hearing.

2. After the 15th day of April, 1869, the Registrar shall not place any Cause in the paper of the Court to be heard upon a Petition of Appeal and Rehearing, or upon a Petition of Rehearing, until the Decree or Order appealed from shall have been produced to him, duly passed and entered.

3. All Petitions of Appeal and Rehearing at present in the custody of the Senior Registrar shall be forthwith transmitted by him to and left at the Report Office, to be there filed and preserved under the direction of the Clerks of Records and Writs, and every Petition of Appeal and Rehearing which may hereafter be presented to the Lord Chancellor, and every Petition for a Rehearing before the Master of the Rolls, or one of the Vice-Chancellors, shall be transmitted to and left at the Report Office, to be there filed and preserved under the direction of the Clerks of Records and Writs, and the provisions of the 44th, 45th, 46th, and 47th Rules of the 1st of the Consolidated Orders shall extend and apply to all such Petitions of Appeal and Rehearing.

SUPPLEMENTAL REGULÆ GENERALES

AS TO

THE DISPOSAL OF DEPOSIT-MONEY.

ADDITIONAL GENERAL RULES made by the Judges for the time being for the Trial of Election Petitions in England pursuant to the Parliamentary Elections Act, 1868.

1. All claims at law or in equity to money deposited or to be deposited in the Bank of England for payment of costs, charges, and expenses payable by the petitioners pursuant to the 16th General Rule, made the 21st of November, 1868, by the Judges for the trial of Election Petitions in England, shall be disposed of by the Court of Common Pleas or a Judge.

2. Money so deposited shall, if, and when the same is no longer needed for securing payment of such costs, charges, and expenses, be returned or otherwise disposed of as justice may require, by rule of the Court of Common Pleas or order of a Judge.

3. Such rule or order may be made after such notice of intention to apply, and proof that all just claims have been satisfied or otherwise sufficiently provided for as the Court or Judge may require.

4. The rule or order may direct payment either to the party in whose name the same is deposited or to any person entitled to receive the same.

5. Upon such rule or order being made, the amount may be drawn for by the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas for the time being.

6. The draft of the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas for the time being shall, in all cases, be a sufficient warrant to the Bank of England for all payments made thereunder.

Dated the 25th day of March, 1869.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable, Unconditional, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C. Established 1848.

The Directors of this Company, in defence to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

For the reason referred to, many persons hesitate or decline to assure on the ground that, in the event of inability or unwillingness to continue payment of their premiums, the assurance will become forfeited. To this class of the public the system now introduced will especially commend itself, being entirely free from all conditions of forfeiture on account of non-payment of premium, or from any other cause whatever; while at the same time it absolutely guarantees to decrease, even when a default is made in payment of the premium, a fixed sum in respect of every premium paid, bearing the same proportion to the total amount assured as the number of premiums actually paid may bear to the whole number originally contracted to be paid.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.
The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at death, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurance.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £215,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the kingdom. Special Agents Wanted. HENRY HARBEN, Secretary.

Actuary and Secretary.—GEORGE CUTCLIFFE, Esq. Assistant Actuary.—BENJAMIN NEWBATT, Esq.

Extracts from the Report of the Directors, presented at the Annual General Meeting held on the 27th November, 1868:—

1. The sum of $412,345 was proposed for Assurance, of which £307,395 was completed, at Premiums producing £10,067 per Annum.
2. The amount paid under Claims by death was £100,883, being the smallest since 1860, whilst the expenses of management and all other outgoings were even less than for many years past.
3. On the other hand, the Income was raised to £219,769, notwithstanding that its increase was retarded by abatements of premium which did not take effect in the previous year, and by the cessation of interest on the large sum paid as Bonus in 1867.
4. The Surplus Income was very considerable. It amounted to £93,152, a sum exceeding by more than £8,000 any previous Surplus during the 44 years of the Society's existence.
5. The Accumulated Fund was thereby increased to £1,598,906.

The following are among the distinctive features of the Society:—

CARET SYSTEM.—On any Policy for the whole of Life, where the age does not exceed 60, one half of the Annual Premiums during the first five years may remain on credit.

ENDOWMENT ASSURANCES may be effected, without Profits, by which the Sum Assured becomes payable on the attainment of a specified age, or at death, whichever event shall first happen.

INVALID LIVES may be assured at rates proportioned to the increased risk.

PROMPT SETTLEMENT OF CLAIMS.—Claims paid thirty days after proof of death.

Tables of Rates and Forms of Proposal can be obtained of any of the Society's Agents, or of

GEORGE CUTCLIFFE, ACTUARY AND SECRETARY,
13, St. James's Square, London, S.W.

COMMISSION.—10 per Cent. on the First Premium, and 5 per Cent. on Renewals, is allowed to Solicitors. The Commission will be continued to the Person introducing the Assurance, without reference to the channel through which the Premiums may be paid.

THE ROYAL PHRASEOLOGICAL FRENCH-ENGLISH AND ENGLISH-FRENCH DICTIONARY.

By J. C. TARVER, LATE FRENCH MASTER, ETON COLLEGE.

'Most readily do we acknowledge the flood of light which has been thrown on French phrases by M. Tarver. . . His work is really a valuable addition to our Dictionary shelf—the most important shelf in every man's library. The nice skill with which he has compared and contrasted the phrases of the two most influential of modern tongues can hardly be over-praised. Such a book might well deserve a distinct notice; but we are happy to take this opportunity, meantime, of saying that one of the volumes has now been in constant use with us for five years, and we should be at a loss to name another recent one of its class which we have found more useful. The idea was happy, and the execution has been most laudably careful. We have been infinitely obliged to it in reading the lighter French literature of this day—so full of vocabularies fresh from the mint of camp or quingette, and lively audacious turns genre de conversation, undreamt of by "the forty"—which would have puzzled Voltaire as much as Johnson.'—Quarterly Review.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable,

Unconditional, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C. Established 1848.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

For the reason referred to, many persons hesitate or decline to assure on the ground that, in the event of inability or unwillingness to continue payment of their premiums, the assurance will become forfeited. To this class of the public the system now introduced will especially commend itself, being entirely free from all conditions of forfeiture on account of non-payment of premium, or from any other cause whatever; while at the same time it absolutely guarantees at death, even when a default is made in payment of the premium, a fixed sum in respect of every premium paid, bearing the same proportion to the total amount assured as the number of premiums actually paid may bear to the whole number originally contracted to be paid.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at death, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurances.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £215,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the kingdom. Special Agents Wanted. HENRY HARBEN, Secretary.

Extracts from the Report of the Directors, presented at the Annual General Meeting held on the 27th November, 1868:—

1. The sum of £412,345 was proposed for Assurance, of which £307,395 was completed, at Premiums producing £10,067 per Annum.
2. The amount paid under Claims by death was £100,883, being the smallest since 1860, whilst the expenses of management and all other outgoings were even less than for many years past.
3. On the other hand, the Income was raised to £219,769, notwithstanding that its increase was retarded by abatements of premium which did not take effect in the previous year, and by the cessation of interest on the large sum paid as Bonus in 1867.
4. The Surplus Income was very considerable. It amounted to £93,152, a sum exceeding by more than £8,000 any previous Surplus during the 44 years of the Society's existence.
5. The Accumulated Fund was thereby increased to £1,598,906.

The following are among the distinctive features of the Society:—

CREDIT SYSTEM.—On any Policy for the whole of Life, where the age does not exceed 60, one half of the Annual Premiums during the first five years may remain on credit.

ENDOWMENT ASSURANCES may be effected, without Profits, by which the Sum Assured becomes payable on the attainment of a specified age, or at death, whichever event shall first happen.

INVALID LIVES may be assured at rates proportioned to the increased risk.

PROMPT SETTLEMENT OF CLAIMS.—Claims paid thirty days after proof of death.

Tables of Rates and Forms of Proposal can be obtained of any of the Society's Agents, or of

GEORGE CUTCLIFFE, ACTUARY AND SECRETARY,
13, St. James's Square, London, S.W.

COMMISSION.—10 per Cent. on the First Premium, and 5 per Cent. on Renewals, is allowed to Solicitors. The Commission will be continued to the Person introducing the Assurance, without reference to the channel through which the Premiums may be paid.

MAINE ON ANCIENT LAW.

Now ready. 3rd Edition. 8vo., 12s.

A N C I E N T L A W :

ITS CONNECTION WITH THE EARLY HISTORY OF SOCIETY, AND ITS RELATION TO MODERN IDEAS.

By HENRY SUMNER MAINE,

Member of the Supreme Council of India, formerly Reader on Jurisprudence and the Civil Law at the Middle Temple, and Regius Professor of the Civil Law in the University of Cambridge.

'Professor Maine is probably the first Englishman who, with any authority, has applied the "historical method" to legal subjects so successfully employed abroad; and his prominent example will have a tendency to establish a connection between the study of the philosophy of law and those branches of philosophical history whose foundation lies in philology and her sister sciences.'—London Review.

'A contribution to scientific legal literature of singular value. It would be superfluous to say that it indicates an intimate acquaintance with the knowledge of ancient law which has come down to us. It possesses the far higher method of arranging, reconciling, and reconstructing, with remarkable power of discrimination and generalization, the ideas of which but fragments and traces have reached us. It discovers to us the simplest and earliest ideas of mankind, on questions of justice and law; follows them in their expansion, and exhibits the mode in which they became ultimately obscured and lost.'—Daily News.

'A text-book for all English students of jurisprudence. It presents elementary ideas in a distinct shape; it shows how endless are the ramifications of the history of jurisprudence which can be followed by learned ingenuity; it handles law in a large and free spirit; it clears up points as to which an obscurity prevails in the minds of many writers and readers, and it is written with singular clearness.'—Saturday Review.

sarily continues to exercise the jurisdiction of restraining actions at law on equitable grounds, and even claims to exercise that jurisdiction in cases where an equitable defence might be properly pleaded at Common Law.

It may be further observed, in illustration of the evils of the double procedure, that whenever a new class of business arises, such as the litigation arising out of railway and other joint stock companies, proceedings, frequently of an experimental character, are commenced both at Law and in Equity by different suitors, leading to the inconvenience of protracted litigation, and the danger of conflicting judgments. We may refer to the litigation lately pending between the sellers of railway shares and the jobbers on the Stock Exchange, by which the sellers sought to obtain an indemnity from the jobbers against calls. The litigation began in a Court of Common Law. A suit in Equity soon followed, by a different plaintiff against the same defendants, both suits asking for similar redress. The Court of Common Law decided in favour of the plaintiff. The Court of Equity shortly after delivered judgment to the same effect. The defendants appealed in both suits; in the one case to the Exchequer Chamber, in the other to the Court of Appeal in Chancery. Both appeals were pending at the same time, but there was no official machinery by which the judges of Appeal in Chancery and the Court of Exchequer Chamber could enter into communication with the view of arriving at a common result. The Court of Exchequer Chamber reversed the judgment of the Court below; the Court of Appeal in Chancery, acting independently of the Court of Exchequer Chamber, arrived at the same conclusion, and about the same time delivered its judgment, reversing the decision of the Vice-Chancellor. The defendants were thus subjected to litigation (at the instance, no doubt, of different parties), carried on at the same time in different Courts, and exposed to the risk of conflicting decisions, those Courts operating under different forms of procedure, and being controlled by different Courts of Appeal.

The litigation arising out of Joint Stock Companies has constituted a very large proportion of the business which has engaged the attention of Courts of Law and Equity for some years. Directors of Joint Stock Companies fill the double character of agents and trustees for the companies and shareholders; and the effect of their acts and representations has frequently been brought into question in both jurisdictions, and sometimes with opposite results. The expense thus needlessly incurred has been so great, and the perplexity thereby occasioned in the conduct of business so considerable, as to convince most persons, who have followed the development of this branch of the law, of the necessity that exists for a tribunal invested with full power of dealing with all the complicated rights and obligations springing out of such transactions, and of administering complete and appropriate relief, no matter whether the rights and obligations involved are what are called legal or equitable.

We may refer also to the present condition of the High Court of Admiralty. A conflict bearing some analogy to that which has so long existed between the Court of Chancery and the Courts of Common Law, seems likely to arise, if it has not already arisen, between the latter Courts and the Court of Admiralty. From ancient times the Courts of Common Law exercised a jealous supervision over the jurisdiction of the Court of Admiralty, and by the issuing of frequent writs of prohibition took pains to confine the jurisdiction of that Court within the narrowest limits. The consequence was, that, except in time of war, when it sat as a Prize Court, there was very little business in the Court of Admiralty until its jurisdiction was extended by recent legislation. Now, however, by virtue of several Acts of Parliament, the first of which was passed so lately as 1840, but more especially by the Admiralty Court Act, 1861, the jurisdiction of the Court has been extended to a variety of cases, which had been theretofore considered as exclusively cognizable in Courts of Common Law. As the Court of Chancery, chiefly by means of its power of granting injunctions for threatened as well as actual injuries, has extended its jurisdiction over a large class of cases properly cognizable in Courts of Common Law, the Court of Admiralty, assisted by the recent legislation above mentioned, and enjoying the peculiar advantage of a Court enforcing the law of maritime lien by proceedings in rem, might be expected, if this system were continued, to extend its jurisdiction over many kinds of litigation relating to ships or cargoes, in respect of which the Courts of Common Law have a concurrent jurisdiction, but are not able to afford such convenient redress. The cause of this is manifestly the imperfection of the Common Law system, and the consequent necessity of seeking for a more complete remedy elsewhere.

Not only are the procedure of and the remedies administered by the Courts of Common Law and the Court of Admiralty different, but sometimes the redress to be obtained is regulated by different and conflicting principles. Thus in a collision suit the damages are, in some cases assessed on one principle in a Court of Common Law, and on an entirely different principle in the Court of Admiralty. At Common Law, if both parties are found to be in fault, the plaintiff fails. In the Court of Admiralty, the plaintiff, under exactly similar circumstances, is entitled to recover half his damages from the defendant; and there being generally in such cases a cross suit, the defendant is also entitled to recover half his damages from the plaintiff. This anomaly, if our recommendations are adopted, will require to be corrected by legislation.

The Court of Admiralty, even with the extended jurisdiction conferred on it by recent enactments, still labours under the same defects as the other Courts. It cannot, in many cases, give a complete remedy; the suitor may obtain one portion of his redress in the Court of Admiralty, but he must go into a Court of Common Law, or it may be into the Court of Chancery for the rest. The Court of Admiralty has jurisdiction over a claim for damage to cargo, where the owner is not domiciled in England, but it has no jurisdiction over the claim of the shipowner for the freight due in respect of the same cargo; the shipowner must proceed for that in a Court of Common Law. It seems plain that these are counter claims, which ought to be capable of being set off against each other in the same suit. In the same way, the jurisdiction of the Court of Admiralty over claims for necessaries supplied to a ship is restricted to the case of a foreign ship, and to that of a British ship where there is not any owner domiciled in England; but if it happens that for some other cause the ship is under arrest, or that the proceeds thereof are in Court, then the Court exercises jurisdiction over all claims for building, equipping, or repairing the ship. All these claims may at the same time be litigated by a different procedure in a Court of Common Law; and hence it may happen not unfrequently that litigation may be proceeding simultaneously in the Court of Admiralty and at Common Law for the adjustment of disputes arising out of the same transaction, between the same parties or those who are liable to indemnify them. The conflict of judicial decisions, which may be thus occasioned, is made more perplexing, by the want of a Common Court of Appeal, as the appeal from the Court of Admiralty is to the Privy Council, and from the Common Law Courts to the Exchequer Chamber and the House of Lords.

The present state of the County Courts may also be appropriately referred to, as exhibiting the strange working of a system of separate jurisdictions, even when exercised by the same Court.

The County Court has jurisdiction in Common Law cases, up to 50*l.* in contracts, and to 10*l.* in torts. It has also equitable jurisdiction in certain cases when the value of the property in dispute does not exceed 500*l.*, and in at least one of such cases, namely, an administration suit, it is now competent for any County Court judge to restrain the prosecution of actions brought by creditors in any of the Superior Courts of Common Law. By an Act of Parliament of last session some of the County Courts have also been invested with Admiralty jurisdiction in a large class of cases, where the amount in dispute does not exceed, in some cases 150*l.* and in others 300*l.* There is an appeal in each class of cases, within certain limits, to a Court of Common Law, to the Court of Chancery, or to the Court of Admiralty. But these jurisdictions, though conferred on the same Court and the same judge, still remain (like the Common Law and Equity sides of the old Court of Exchequer) quite distinct and separate. The judge has no power to administer in one and the same suit any combination of the different remedies which belong to his three jurisdictions, however convenient or appropriate such redress may be. That can only be accomplished, under the County Court system, by three distinct suits brought in the same Court and before the same judge, carried on under three different forms of procedure, and controlled by three different Courts of Appeal. In this case, therefore, although we appear at first sight to have obtained that great desideratum, which the Common Law Commissioners call "the consolidation of all the elements of a complete remedy in the same Court," yet, as that remedy can only be had in three separate suits, the evil is equally great.

CONSTITUTION OF THE SUPREME COURT.

We are of opinion that the defects above adverted to cannot be completely remedied by any mere transfer or blending of jurisdiction between the Courts as at present constituted; and that the first step towards meeting and surmounting the evils complained of will be the consolidation of all the Superior Courts of Law and Equity, together with the Courts of Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty, into one Court to be called "Her Majesty's Supreme Court," in which Court shall be vested all the jurisdiction which is now exercisable by each and all the Courts so consolidated.

This consolidation would at once put an end to all conflicts of jurisas to the plaintiff's right to relief. Considerable delay is thus caused, and useless costs are incurred.

All suits, we think, should be commenced by a document to be called a Writ of Summons, and these writs of summons should be issued from one office. In all cases in which the plaintiff seeks to recover a money demand, whether founded upon a legal or equitable right, the practice established by the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, should we think be adopted, and the writ should be specially endorsed with the amount sought to be recovered, and in default of appearance the plaintiff should be allowed to sign judgment for it. Further, in all cases in which a special endorsement has been made on a writ, and the defendant has appeared, the plaintiff should be entitled, on affidavit verifying the cause of action, and swearing that in his belief there is no defence, to take out a summons to shew cause why he should not be at liberty to sign judgment; upon which summons such order may be made as the justice of the case may require.

In like manner, in cases of ordinary account, as in the case of a partnership or executorship, or ordinary trust account, where nothing more is required in the first instance than an account, the writ should be specially endorsed, and in default of appearance, or after appearance, unless the defendant shall satisfy a judge that there is really some preliminary question to be tried, an order for the account, with all usual directions, should be forthwith made. The judge should also be empowered at any time, on summary application in chambers or elsewhere, to direct, if he think fit, any necessary inquiries or accounts, notwithstanding it may appear that there is some special or further relief sought, or some special matter to be tried, as to which it may be proper that the suit should proceed in the ordinary manner.

Pleadings.

When the defendant enters an appearance, and the suit has to proceed further, the issues between the parties must be ascertained by pleading, or otherwise. The systems of pleading now in use, both at Common Law and in Equity, appear to us to be open to serious objections. Common Law pleadings are apt to be mixed averments of law and fact, varied and multiplied in form, and leading to a great number of useless issues, while the facts which lie behind them are seldom clearly discoverable. Equity pleadings, on the other hand, commonly take the form of a prolix narrative of the facts relied upon by the party, with copies or extracts of deeds, correspondence, and other documents, and other particulars of evidence, set forth at needless length. The best system would be one, which combined the comparative brevity of the simpler forms of Common Law pleading with the principle of stating, intelligibly and not technically, the substance of the facts relied upon as constituting the plaintiff's or the defendant's case, as distinguished from his evidence. It is upon this principle that most modern improvements of pleading have been founded, both in the United States and in our own colonies and Indian possessions, and in the practice recently settled for the Courts of Probate and Divorce.

We recommend that a short statement constructed on this principle, of the facts constituting the plaintiff's cause of complaint, not on oath, to be called the Declaration, should be delivered to the defendant. Thereupon the defendant should deliver to the plaintiff a short statement, not on oath, of the facts constituting the defence, to be called the Answer. When new facts are alleged in the answer, the plaintiff should be at liberty to reply. The pleadings should not go beyond the reply, save by special permission of a judge; but the judge should, at any stage of the proceedings, permit such amendment in or addition to the pleadings as he may think necessary for determining the real question or controversy between the parties, upon such terms, as to costs and otherwise, as he may think fit.

We think that a defendant, having a right or claim against a plaintiff with reference to the subject matter of the suit, or arising out of the same transaction, which at present he cannot enforce without a separate or cross action or suit, should be at liberty to bring forward such right or claim by his answer, which, in that case, should have the same effect as if it were a declaration in a cross action or suit, so as to enable the Court or a judge to pronounce a final judgment between the parties with respect both to the original and to the cross demand. The same principle might, we think, be extended to the recovery of other demands of the defendant, capable of being set off against the plaintiff's demand, when the balance is in favour of the defendant. But a judge should be empowered, on application by the plaintiff before trial, to refuse permission to allow such cross right or claim to be brought forward, if he shall be of opinion that it cannot conveniently be adjudicated upon in the case to be tried.

We think also, that the Court should have power to direct that any person not originally a party to the suit, but who may have such an interest in the subject matter thereof as to make his presence necessary or expedient to enable the Court to do complete justice, should be summoned to attend the further proceedings and be bound thereby; and that, with this view, the plaintiff should be at liberty to make any person, against whom he may conceive himself to be entitled to relief, a party defendant to the suit. And, on the other hand, that, where the defendant is or claims to be entitled to contribution or to indemnity, or other relief over against any other person or persons, or where from any other cause it shall appear to the Court fit that a question in the suit should be determined, not only as between the plaintiff and defendant, but as between the defendant and any other person, the Court should have power to make such order as may be proper for the purpose of having the question so determined.

We think, that either party should be at liberty to apply at any time either before or after pleading, for such order as he may upon the admitted facts in the case be entitled to without waiting for the determination of any other questions between the parties.

Mode of Trial.

With regard to the trial and determination of disputed questions of fact, the mode of trial varies according to the Court in which the litigation happens to be pending, without any sufficient power of adaptation to the requirements of particular cases.

In the Court of Chancery, until recently, the judge had no power to summon a jury, whatever might be the conflict of evidence or dispute as to the facts; all questions of fact as well as of law were generally decided by the judge. In some cases, it was the practice to send issues to be tried by a jury at Common Law. This course, however, was taken, not as a mode of trial, but merely for the assistance or information of the Court, which still reserved to itself the ultimate decision of the facts, and if dissatisfied with the first verdict might send the case before a second jury, or decide the facts according to its own view, and without regard to the verdict. Substantially, the practice of the Court of Chancery remains unaltered; but there is now a power, which is rarely exercised, of summoning a jury, and the practice of sending issues to be tried at Common Law has become less frequent.

The Court of Admiralty, which decides for itself all questions of law and fact, may in special cases call in the assistance of nautical or mercantile assessors, but it has no power to summon a jury. The Court, however, by a recent statute has power to direct any question of fact arising in a suit to be tried in a Court of Common Law, and, if it thinks fit, to order a new trial; but the verdict of the jury, when final, is conclusive upon the Court. This power, we understand, has been exercised in only one instance.

In the Courts of Probate and Divorce application is made to the judge in each case to fix the mode of trial, either before himself or by a jury. In the Probate Court, if the parties agree in asking for a jury, the application is usually granted: if they do not agree, the judge fixes the mode of trial which he considers best adapted to the case; but in the case of an heir-at-law cited, or otherwise made party to the suit, a jury may be demanded as of right. A similar rule of practice exists in the Court of Divorce. In that Court also, in cases of dissolution of marriage, either party may demand a jury as of right.

In the Courts of Common Law a jury has always been regarded as the constitutional tribunal for trying issues of fact; and the theory is, that all such questions are fit to be tried in that way. It has, however, long been apparent, in the practice of the Courts of Common Law, that there are several classes of cases litigated in those Courts to which trial by jury is not adapted, and in which the parties are compelled—in many cases after they have incurred all the expense of a trial—to resort to private arbitration. Until the Common Law Procedure Act of 1854, the parties could not be compelled to go to arbitration, and the power given by that Act is limited to cases where the dispute relates wholly or in part to matters of mere account, or where the parties have themselves before action agreed in writing to refer the matter in difference to arbitration.

The system of arbitration which has thus been introduced is attended with much inconvenience. The practice is to refer cases which cannot be conveniently tried in Court either to a barrister or to an expert. A barrister can seldom give that continuous attention to the case which is essential to its being speedily and satisfactorily disposed of; and an expert, being unacquainted with the law of evidence, and with the rules which govern legal proceedings, allows questions to be introduced which have nothing to do with the matters at issue. In neither case has the referee that authority over the practitioners and the witnesses which is essential to the proper conduct of the proceedings. If the bar-rist or solicitor who is engaged in the suit, or even a witness, has some other engagement, an adjournment is almost of course. The arbitrator makes his own charges, generally depending on the number and length of the meetings, and the professional fees are regulated accordingly. The result is great and unnecessary delay, and a vast increase of expense to the suitors. The arbitrator thus appointed is the sole judge of law and fact, and there is no appeal from his judgment, however erroneous his view of the law may be, unless perhaps when the error appears on the face of his award. Nor is there any remedy, whatever may be the miscarriage of the arbitrator, unless he fails to decide on all the matters referred to him, or exceeds his jurisdiction, or is guilty of some misconduct in the course of the case.

In the Court of Chancery questions involving complicated inquiries, particularly in matters of account, are always made the subject of reference to a judge at Chambers. These references are practically conducted before the chief clerk, but any party is entitled, if he think fit, to require that any question arising in the course of the proceedings shall be submitted to the judge himself for decision. In such a case the decision of the judge is given after he has been sitting in Court all day hearing causes. It has been represented to us that this system does not give satisfaction, and that there is not sufficient judicial power to dispose of the business in Court, and at the same time to give that personal attention to the business in Chambers which was contemplated when references to the judge in Chambers were substituted for the old references to the masters in Chancery.

In the Court of Admiralty references are always to the registrar, assisted, if necessary, by one or two merchants or other skilled persons as assessors or advisers; the registrar, from his knowledge of law, is enabled to regulate the conduct of the case; the merchants—assuming them to be properly chosen—have that practical knowledge which enables them to advise him on questions of a commercial nature that may arise in the course of the proceedings. The reference proceeds like a trial at law, until it is concluded, without adjournment, except for special cause, and there is an appeal at once to the judge in case the registrar miscarries.

It seems to us that it is the duty of the country to provide tribunals adapted to the trial of all classes of cases, and capable of adjusting the rights of litigant parties in the manner most suitable to the nature of the questions to be tried.

We therefore recommend that great discretion should be given to the Supreme Court, as to the mode of trial, and that any questions to be tried, should be capable of being tried in any division of the Court.

(1.) By a Judge.

(2.) By a Jury.

(3.) By a Referee.

The plaintiff should be at liberty to give notice of trial by any one of these modes which he may prefer, subject to the right of the defendant to move the judge to appoint any other mode. When the trial is to be by a jury or by referee, a judge, on application by either party, if he think the questions to be tried are not sufficiently ascertained upon the pleadings, should have power to order that issues be prepared by the parties, and, if necessary, settled by himself. The judge should also, on the application of either party, have power to direct that any question of law should be first argued, that different questions of fact arising in the same suit should be tried by different modes of trial, and that one or more questions of fact should be tried before the others.

The system which, in all the divisions of the Supreme Court to which it can be conveniently applied, we would suggest for the trial of matters suitable for trial by referees, is as follows :

Official Referees.

We think that there should be attached to the Supreme Court officers to be called Official Referees, and that a judge should have power, at any time after the writ of summons, and with or without pleadings, and generally upon such terms as he may think fit, to order a cause, or any matter arising therein, to be tried by a referee; and that whenever a cause is to be tried by a referee, such trial should be by one of these official referees, unless a judge otherwise orders. We think, however, that a judge should have power to order such trial to be by some person not an official referee of the Court, but who, on being so appointed, should pro hac vice be deemed to be and should act as if he were an official referee. The judge should have power to direct where the trial shall take place, and the referee should be at liberty, subject to any directions which may from time to time be given by the judge, to adjourn the trial to any place which he may deem to be more convenient.

The referee should, unless the judge otherwise direct, proceed with the trial in open Court, de die in diem, with power, however, to adjourn the further hearing for any cause which he may deem sufficient, to be certified under his hand to the Court.

The referee should be at liberty, by writing under his hand, to reserve, or, pending the reference, to submit any question for the decision of the Court, or to state any facts specially, with power to the Court to draw inferences; and the verdict should in such case be entered as the Court may direct. In all other respects the decision of the referee should have the same effect as a verdict at Nisi Prius, subject to the power of the Court to require any explanation or reasons from the referee, and to remit the cause or any part thereof for re-consideration to the same, or any other referee. The referee should, subject to the control of the Court, have full discretionary power over the whole or any part of the costs of the proceeding before him.

In connection with the subject of trial, it seems proper to refer to the recommendation of the Patent Law Commissioners in their Report of the 29th of July, 1864, who, after observing that the present mode of trying the validity of patents is not satisfactory, advise that such trials should take place before a judge, sitting with scientific assessors, to be selected by himself in each case, but without a jury, unless at the desire of both parties to the suit; and that on such trials the judge, if sitting without a jury, should decide questions of fact as well as of law. It appears to us that a plan similar in substance to that recommended by the Patent Law Commissioners might with advantage be applied to the trial, not of patent cases only, but of any cases involving questions of a scientific or technical character, in which the judge, or the referee by leave of the judge, may think it desirable to have the aid, during the whole or any part of the proceedings, of scientific assessors.

Evidence.

As respects the mode of taking evidence at the trial, the practice of the Courts varies considerably. The rule in the Common Law Courts always was, and still is, that the evidence at the trial should be taken by oral examination of the witnesses in open Court. Formerly, in the Court of Chancery, the witnesses were examined and cross-examined on written interrogatories by an officer of the Court, in the absence of the parties and their legal advisers. At present the evidence in chief is taken, either by affidavit; or orally before an examiner, generally in the absence of the opposite party, who has however the power of cross-examination at a later stage, in some cases orally before an examiner, and in others in open Court. In the Court of Admiralty the practice of examining the witnesses in open Court has been recently introduced, and is now in general use. In the Courts of Probate and Divorce the witnesses are also examined in open Court. There can be no doubt that, whenever there is a conflict of evidence, the best way of extracting the truth is by oral examination of the witnesses in open Court, in the presence of the judge or jury who have to decide the case; but there are often formal and collateral matters necessary to be proved in the course of a suit, which can be conveniently proved by affidavit, and written evidence may sometimes be combined with oral evidence so as to save expense, and facilitate a speedy trial.

We recommend, for these reasons, that, in the absence of any agreement between the parties, and subject to any General Order of the Court applicable to any particular class of cases, the evidence at the trial should be by oral examination in open Court, but that the Court should have power at any time to direct that the evidence in any case, or as to any particular matter at issue, should be taken by affidavit, or that affidavits of any witnesses may be read at the trial, or that any witnesses may be examined upon interrogatories or otherwise before a commissioner or examiner. Any witness who may have made an affidavit should be liable to cross-examination in open Court, unless the Court or a judge shall direct the cross-examination to take place in any other manner. Upon interlocutory applications, the evidence should, we think, as a general rule, be taken by affidavit, but the Court or a judge should upon the application of either party have power to order the attendance, for cross-examination or otherwise, of any person who may have made an affidavit.

The existing practice as to requiring admissions of written documents should, in our opinion, be continued. We think, also, that a similar practice might, with advantage, be extended to the admission of certain facts as well as documents; and therefore we recommend that if it be made to appear to the judge, at or after the trial of any case, that one of the parties was, a reasonable time before the trial, required in writing to admit any specific fact, and without reasonable cause refused to do so, the judge should either disallow to such party or order him to pay (as the case may be) the costs incurred in consequence of such refusal.

Incidental Powers.

Some other incidental powers which the Court, in our opinion ought to possess, may be conveniently mentioned in this place.

The judge at the trial should, without consent of the parties, have power to reserve leave to the Court to enter a nonsuit or verdict, and when the judge at the trial has reserved any question of law, he should have power to direct the cause to be set down for argument before the Court, without motion for a rule nisi. Upon motion for a new trial the Court should have power, although no leave has been reserved at the trial, to order a nonsuit or verdict to be entered.

The time within which an application must be made for a new trial should be regulated by general orders of the Supreme Court.

We recommend that every order of a judge at Chambers or at Nisi Prius should have the same force and effect as a rule of Court now has, and that a judge sitting in Chambers or at Nisi Prius should have the same power to enforce, vary, or deal with any such order by attachment or otherwise as is possessed by the Court, but the Court should have power, upon application in a summary way, to enforce, vary, or discharge any such order.

We think that a judge should have power, at any time after writ issued, upon being satisfied that the plaintiff has a good cause of action or suit, and that the defendant is about to leave, or is keeping out of the jurisdiction in order to avoid process, to order an attachment to issue against any property of the defendant which may be shewn to be within the jurisdiction; such property to be released upon bail being given, and in default of bail, to be dealt with as a judge may direct. This power, which is analogous to that now vested in the Court of Admiralty, may make the use of writs of Capias and Ne exeat regno by the Courts of Common Law and Chancery (which are sometimes used oppressively) less frequent. It may also render the retention of the process of foreign attachment in the Lord Mayor's Court in the City of London unnecessary.

Costs.

In the Court of Chancery, the Court of Admiralty, and the Courts of Probate and Divorce, the Court has at present full power over the costs. We think that the absence of this power in the Courts of Common Law often occasions injustice, and leads to unnecessary litigation. We therefore recommend that in all the divisions of the Supreme Court the costs of the suit and of all proceedings in it should be in the discretion of the Court.

General Orders.

Power should be vested in the Supreme Court to regulate from time to time by general orders the procedure and practice in all its divisions, and to make such changes in the duties of the several officers of the Court, as may from time to time be thought fit, and may be consistent with the nature of their appointments.

SITTINGS AND ASSIZES.

We now proceed to consider the present general arrangements for the conduct of judicial business.

The Sittings during Term are occupied, together with a portion of those after Term, in the Courts of Common Law, by business in Banco, Nisi Prius Sittings going on at the same time. Some descriptions of business in the Courts of Common Law can only be transacted during Term. In all other Courts there is practically no difference in the business done at the sittings during and out of Term.

We think that, unless it should be thought right wholly to abolish the division of the legal year into Terms, there should be three instead of four Terms, commencing respectively on the 2nd of November, 11th of January, and 1st of May in each year, the duration of each term to be four weeks.

There may be some convenience in retaining such fixed periods with a view to the necessary times of vacation, which immediately precede the Autumnal and Winter Sittings of the Courts, and which it might be expedient in the spring to regulate, so as to coincide as nearly as possible with the Easter recess of Parliament. But we are of opinion that there should not be in any division of the Court any distinction between the business capable of being transacted in or out of Term, and that all the Courts should have power to sit at any time, in or out of Term, for the despatch of any business.

With respect to the business of the Common Law Courts in Banco, it is unnecessary to add anything here to the recommendations in the previous part of our Report. For the despatch of such part of the present Chamber business of the Common Law Courts as requires to be transacted by a judge, we think that one judge at least should sit continuously during the legal year.

We have next to consider the arrangements for holding Sittings for the trial of causes in London and Middlesex, and for holding Assizes in other parts of England and Wales.

Sittings in London and Middlesex.

The system at present prevailing in London and Middlesex is, that each of the three Superior Courts of Common Law holds separate Nisi Prius Sittings; those after Hilary, Trinity, and Michaelmas Terms, at which the more important business is transacted, being limited by Statute to periods of twenty-four days. Constant complaints have been made of the arrears at these Sittings, and of the unequal distribution of business between the three Courts. To remedy this, we propose that all causes to be tried at these Sittings should be entered upon a common list or lists. These Sittings should be held continuously throughout the legal year, by as many Courts as the amount of business to be disposed of may render necessary; and we think it expedient that all issues of fact in the Chancery Division of the Supreme Court, to be tried by a jury, should, unless the Court otherwise order, be entered for trial at these sittings, and be tried accordingly. During the time allotted to the Circuits we propose that at least two Nisi Prius Courts should sit continuously in the metropolis.

The present Home Circuit is composed of five counties in the immediate neighbourhood of London. Between these counties and London there is constant railway communication, and we have no doubt that the legal business usually transacted at Assizes in those counties can be more conveniently disposed of in the metropolis than at separate Assizes held for each county. In Surrey, especially, it is notorious that nearly all the causes tried at the Assizes are causes which would have been tried in the metropolis, if there had been an opportunity of trying them at the previous Sittings. We also think that the criminal business for the counties composing the Home Circuit, which, if that Circuit were continued, would be disposed of at the Assizes, might with advantage be transferred to the Central Criminal Court. That Court has already jurisdiction over certain portions of the counties of Essex, Kent, and Surrey; and we think that any additional expense that may be incurred by trying the prisoners from those counties at the Central Criminal Court, will be more than compensated by the speedy trial of prisoners, and the saving occasioned by the abolition of a separate Assize for each of the five counties, and of the Winter Assize. The extended area also, from which the jurors will be taken, will render the attendance of any particular juror, or class of jurors, less frequent, and the duties of the jurors on the whole less onerous.

We therefore propose that the counties composing the Home Circuit should, with Middlesex, constitute for all the purposes of trial, both in civil and criminal cases, one venue or county. As respects the City of London, we do not think it will be expedient, until the proposed new Courts of Justice shall have been erected, to disturb the existing arrangements for holding separate Sittings at the Guildhall for the trial of cases of a commercial character.

We think it desirable, as a general rule, that one judge only, save in case of special need, should be appointed to attend at each session of the Central Criminal Court.

Circuits.

The arrangements for holding Sittings or Assizes in the other parts of England and Wales have been much considered by the Commission; but we are not prepared, without further deliberation, to submit to your Majesty a detailed scheme on that subject.

We propose, however, to indicate briefly in our present Report the direction of the changes on this subject which we are disposed to recommend, and some of the principles on which, we think, those changes should be founded.

Throughout England and Wales the extent of the venue depends entirely on ancient accidental divisions. All counties, including towns and cities which are counties of themselves, form separate venues. Power has been given by Statute to try causes, arising within a county of a city or town, in the county adjoining, by a jury of that county, the practical effect of which is, that where a county of a town is not an assize town, the jurors within such towns are exempted from serving altogether, and the burden of trying causes arising within those towns is thrown exclusively on the jurors of the adjoining county.

The necessity for holding Assizes in every county, without regard to the extent of the business to be transacted in each county, leads, in our judgment, to a great waste of judicial strength, and a great loss of time in going from one Circuit town to another, and causes much unnecessary cost and inconvenience to those whose attendance is necessary or customary at the Assizes.

The distribution of a small amount of business among a large number of Circuit towns is the cause of serious evil to the suitors. From the impossibility of ascertaining beforehand with accuracy the business likely to arise, the time allotted to some towns often proves insufficient, and complaints arise that the trial of causes is hurried, or that the parties are driven to dispose of their cases by reference or otherwise, unless they submit to the loss and inconvenience of having their causes postponed until the next Assizes. The expense and trouble of bringing together judges, sheriffs, and grand jurors, and the time occupied in the preliminaries of an Assize, are the same at a small place, where there is but little business, as at a large one. The number of jurors, special and common, required to be in attendance, is much increased by the limited extent of the existing Assize districts. If those districts were enlarged, a juror, who had once attended at the Assizes, would probably be relieved from future attendance for a considerable time.

We are, therefore, of opinion that the judicial business of the country should no longer be arranged and distributed according to the accidental division of counties, but that the venue for trials should be enlarged, and that several counties should be consolidated into districts of a convenient size—that such districts should for all purposes of trial at the Assizes, both in civil and criminal cases, be treated as one venue or county—and that all counties of towns or cities should for the purposes of such districts be included in an adjacent district or county.

In arranging the Circuits, we think that they should be so remodelled as to render the amount of business likely to be transacted on each Circuit as nearly equal as may be practicable; and in fixing the towns at which the Assizes should be held, we recommend that those towns should be chosen which are the most central—with which there is the best and most rapid railway communication from all parts of the district—and to which the inhabitants are most in the habit of resorting for the purposes of business. We may add, that after deducting the counties now forming the Home Circuit, we have reason to think that six Circuits for England and Wales would be found sufficient.

We think that, in lieu of the ordinary Assize Commissions, one Commission only should be necessary for each Circuit; and that in place of the opening of the Commissions as now used, a notice should be inserted in the Gazette of such Commissions respectively, and of the days of holding the Assizes under them; and that all the judges of the several divisions of Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer should be in the Commission for each Circuit, and should be auxiliary to each other so far as may be necessary, and may be prescribed by general orders of the Supreme Court.

We also consider it advisable that all local venues in civil actions should be abolished, leaving it to the Court or judge to control the choice of the plaintiff in case an inconvenient venue should be chosen.

In order to lighten the business on Circuit, we think it expedient that the jurisdiction of Quarter Sessions should be extended to burglary, and some other offences which we do not think it necessary here to define; and that a classification of offences triable at the Assizes and at Quarter Sessions should be made, and that all magistrates be directed to make their committals in accordance with such classification, unless it appear to the magistrate, and he state in his warrant of commitment, that the case appears to him to be of such importance as to be fit for trial at the Assizes.

A proviso* similar to that which is now introduced into the Commissions for the Winter Assizes should, in our opinion, be invariably inserted in the Commissions for every Assize, limiting the duties of the judges to the trial of persons committed to the Assizes only.

JURIES.

We now proceed to the subject of Juries. Complaints have for some time been made, and more particularly by special jurors in the metropolis, of the inconveniences and inequalities of the present system. We believe that these complaints are well founded, and that they are chiefly

* The form of the proviso above referred to is as follows:—

Provided always, and our will and pleasure is, that whenever it shall be made to appear by the warrant of commitment or recognizance to prosecute, or otherwise, that the offence of any person or persons was intended to be inquired into and heard and determined at any sessions of the peace in the county aforesaid, it shall not be necessary for you our said justices hereby assigned, or for any of you, to inquire into or hear or determine such offences; provided also, and our will and pleasure is, that whenever it shall be made to appear by the warrant of commitment or recognizance to prosecute, or otherwise, that any prisoner in our said gaol has been committed thereto in order to his or her being tried at the next sessions of the peace for the said county, you our said justices hereby constituted, or any of you, shall not be required to deliver our said gaol of such prisoner, but shall be at liberty to order such prisoner to remain in our said gaol.

attributable to the imperfect mode in which the jury lists are now framed, and to the numerous exemptions from serving which are now allowed.

We are confirmed in these views by the evidence recently taken by the Select Committee of the House of Commons. We do not propose to refer to this evidence in detail. It will suffice to notice the statement that for the whole county of Middlesex the number of special jurors is only 1800, of whom it is stated that, in consequence of the imperfect state of the list, at least one-third are not available. It also appears that the total number of special jurors in the lists for the counties of Kent and Sussex, are respectively only 400 and 197. It is manifest from these figures that the duty is not fairly distributed amongst those, who might be, and who, under an amended state of the law, ought to be duly qualified to serve. The existing state of the special jury lists is however not wholly due to the careless manner in which they are now framed and revised, nor to the existing exemptions from service on juries; but is in some measure attributable to the vague definition of "merchant" and "esquire" as qualifications for special jurors. When it is remembered that in each parish the duty of designating the common and special jurors devolves upon the churchwardens and overseers, it can hardly excite surprise if complaints are made that in some places those competent to serve are omitted from the list, whilst in others the designation of "merchant" or "esquire" is given to jurors, who have not those special qualifications which it is desirable that special jurors should possess.

The defects of the present system appear to be particularly felt in Middlesex, where the duties of special jurors have recently, from various causes, been greatly increased. We allude particularly to the establishment of the Courts of Probate and Divorce; to the growing tendency (doubtless arising in great measure from the increased facilities of communication) of trying in London causes which arise in different parts of the country; and to the numerous cases in which special juries are now summoned to assess compensation for property taken for the purposes of public undertakings.

We think that the burden thus thrown upon special jurors might, without prejudice to the suitors, be materially lessened by altering and extending the qualification of special jurors, and that, on the other hand, the qualification of other jurors should be somewhat raised. If the constitution of common juries is improved, it is not improbable that the resort to a special jury will be less frequent.

In the metropolis a rateable value as low as 30*l.* qualifies a juror, and in the country 20*l.* In Wales the qualification is three-fifths of that in England. Having regard to the changes which have taken place in the value of property since these amounts were fixed, we think that the value of the rated house which qualifies the householder should be raised to 50*l.* in parishes wholly or in part within any town containing, according to the census next preceding the preparation of the jury list, 20,000 inhabitants and upwards, and to 30*l.* in other places. We think that the qualification in Wales should be the same as in England. In other respects we think that the qualification of a juror should be as at present.

We are of opinion, that aliens having been resident in this country for ten years, if possessed of the requisite qualification, should be liable to serve as jurors, and that alienage should not be ground of challenge. We further recommend that the right of an alien to claim a trial by a jury de medietate lingue should be abolished.

Our attention has been called to the numerous grounds upon which persons qualified to serve as jurors are now entitled to exemption. We recommend that all exemptions on the ground of charter, prescription, or otherwise than by Statute, should be abolished, and that the list of exemptions should be narrowed as far as possible, the exemptions being limited to persons whose avocations render them undesirable as jurors, or whose duties are of such a character, and would be so far interrupted by their serving on juries, as to occasion practical detriment to the public.

We think that the special jurors should consist of those at present qualified, and such as occupy a private dwelling-house rated at 100*l.* in a town of 20,000 inhabitants and upwards, or elsewhere at 60*l.*, or who occupy premises other than a farm rated at 200*l.*, or a farm rated at 500*l.* By this extension of the qualification of special jurors, we think that their duties would be distributed over a much larger proportion of the whole body of jurors, without lessening that amount of intelligence, which the suitors naturally expect when they have resort to a special jury.

On the other hand, we are of opinion that persons qualified as special jurors should continue on the general panel as common jurors, both in civil and criminal cases, and should not be exempted from serving on common juries as at present is the practice. This practice of excluding special jurors from the list of common jurors is inconsistent with the present state of the law; and it is remarkable that it should have been continued, notwithstanding the pointed manner in which attention has more than once been called to the subject. The Common Law Commissioners appointed in 1850, in their second Report, after recommending that the qualification of jurymen in the country should be raised (a recommendation which has not hitherto been acted upon), stated "that on every trial there should be an admixture of jurymen of the class from which the special juries are now taken. This is indeed now the law, though in practice the names of persons qualified to be special jurors are not placed on the common jury panel. There is every reason why jurors of the higher class should assist in the administration of justice to the same extent as those who constitute the common juries. We think the higher class of jurors should bring the assistance of their more cultivated minds and superior intelligence to the decision of cases which, though they may not admit of the additional expense attendant under the present system on having a special jury, may not be the less important to the parties whose interests are involved. At the same time it should be understood that we do not propose to abolish the right, which now exists, of having a special jury as at present appointed. What we recommend is, that the general jury panel should be made up indiscriminately from all persons qualified to serve on either jury."

The same learned Commissioners in their third Report, issued after an interval of several years, said: "We think it right to avail ourselves of this opportunity to invite renewed attention to our former observations respecting the constitution of juries. More especially we would urge the consideration of that part of our recommendations, which relates to securing the attendance on common juries of the class of persons, who now serve exclusively on special juries, with a view to the improvement of the former by the admixture of persons of higher education and intelligence. We are strongly persuaded that a very great improvement would by this means be effected in the constitution of juries; and as we do not propose to do away with the right of parties to resort to a special jury, or to deprive special jurors when serving, as such, of the additional remuneration which they are in the habit of receiving, we can see no ground why the liability of such persons to serve on common juries, which already exists in law, though it is not required in practice, should not be enforced."

In these views we entirely concur.

We now proceed to refer shortly to the preparation and revision of the jury lists. It is clear that the lists should be prepared with more care than at present. The recommendations of the Select Committee of the House of Commons, in their Report of 1868, as to, on the one hand, paying the overseers their expenses, and on the other, making them liable to a penalty for negligence, seem to us well worthy of consideration. The lists should state after the name of each person, who, in the judgment of the overseers, is qualified as a special juror, that he is so, and the nature of the qualification; and we recommend that no person, whose name is in the jury-book as a juror, should be excused from attendance on the ground of any disqualification or exemption not claimed by him at or before the revision of the list, and we would suggest that a notice to this effect should be printed at the bottom of the list.

We think that the revision of the jury-lists should be by the justices at petty sessions, as at present, and that the justices should certify that they have examined the list, and that the same is, to the best of their knowledge and belief, a true and proper list of the special and common jurors; and that the jury-book should be made up as at present from the lists thus revised. The decision of those who revise the lists as to the qualification of a special juror should, as respects that list, be final.

With the view of lessening the inconveniences which result from deaths and removals we recommend that the overseers should be required, at intervals of three months, to send to the office of the under-sheriff a list of all persons on the list who have died or left the district, and that it should be the duty of the under-sheriff to amend the list accordingly.

In order to secure the impartial summoning of juries directions should be given to the sheriffs and summoning officers not to summon a second time any person who has been summoned as a juror, so long as there are a sufficient number of jurors who have not been summoned since he was. The performance of this duty should be enforced by a penalty, but no failure in its performance should form a ground of challenge, or of excuse, to a juror summoned and not attending.

We recommend that in London and Middlesex the special jurors should be taken from a panel in like manner as they now are at the Assizes, but the present power to order a special jury on the old system should be retained.

It is further, we think, important that either party should in all cases have the right to exclude from the jury as many as six names, or by leave of the judge a greater number. This right to be exercised by delivering to the associate, immediately before the cause is called on, a list of the names objected to.

In cases where a full available special jury are not in attendance, a tales should not be demanded as of right, but should be allowed by leave of the judge or by consent. In case of the non-attendance of a full special jury, the judge should have power to direct the trial to proceed with not less than nine special jurors, or to direct additional jurors qualified to act as special jurors to be obtained from another panel or otherwise.

We think that all special jurors summoned, and not in attendance when called, should pay, as of course, unless excused, a fine of 10s., and that such fine should not be remitted or reduced except for cause shown. We further think that the judge should have power to impose an additional fine, and to order such additional fine to be applied in or towards the payment of any costs occasioned by the non-attendance of the jurors.

In the event of the death, illness, or default of attendance of any jurors during any trial, civil or criminal, the judge should have power, if he thinks fit, to allow the trial to proceed, and the verdict of the remaining jurors should be a sufficient verdict.

The question of remuneration to jurors appears to us to be one of some difficulty. It would manifestly be impracticable to fix an amount, which would adequately compensate special jurors for their loss of time. On the other hand it is important that the remuneration to common jurors should not be sufficient to make them desirous of serving for the purpose of obtaining it. We think that in fixing the remuneration regard should be had to the service being one which it is the duty of the jurors to render, and which is in some measure analogous to other public duties which are necessarily performed gratuitously. We think that the remuneration should be by day, and not by the cause tried, and should be confined to jurors actually serving. If remuneration is given upon this principle, it will be necessary, in order to provide a fund for the purpose, to fix a Court fee to be paid by the suitors in each cause.

The practice of depriving the jury of fire should, in our opinion, be discontinued; and we think that the judge should have power to allow reasonable refreshment to be supplied to them.

It is desirable that the Supreme Court should be empowered by general orders to make rules as to the number of jurors to be summoned, and the duration of their attendance, and generally as to the mode of summoning jurors.

APPEALS.

We now come to the important subject of Appeals. It follows, from the principles of our preceding recommendations, that the system of appeal from all the divisions of the Supreme Court exercising jurisdiction in the first instance ought to be made, as far as possible, simple and uniform.

At present the appeal from orders or decrees made by the Judges of First Instance, in the Court of Chancery, is either to the Court of Appeal in Chancery, or to the House of Lords, at the option of the appellant; there is also an appeal to the House of Lords from the Court of Appeal in Chancery. Appeals and Errors from the Courts of Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer must in all cases go to the Court of Exchequer Chamber, from whence a further appeal, or Error, as the case may be, lies to the House of Lords. From the Court of Probate appeal also lies to the House of Lords. From the decrees and orders of the Judge Ordinary of the Divorce Court an appeal lies to the Full Court, consisting of the Judge Ordinary and two Common Law judges; and also in certain cases from the Full Court, or from the Judge Ordinary exercising the powers of the Full Court, to the House of Lords. From the Court of Admiralty the sole appeal is to your Majesty in Council, or, practically, to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

Upon the constitution of the House of Lords, considered as a Court of Appeal, we do not consider it to be within the scope of our commission to offer any other remarks than that it unavoidably impairs the efficiency of the Court of Chancery during the session of Parliament, by withdrawing the Lord Chancellor for the whole of four days in every week from his own Court. Upon the constitution of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council we also abstain from saying more than that it has been, for many years, found impossible to discharge the appellate duties of that body without withdrawing one or more judges (often the Lords Justices or the Master of the Rolls, sometimes the Judge of Admiralty or Probate, or one of the chiefs of the Courts of Common Law) from their respective Courts, to the great inconvenience of suitors, and delay of business in those Courts, during the considerable, and continually increasing, periods of time occupied in every year by the transaction of Privy Council business. Any arrangements, therefore, which may tend to relieve the House of Lords, or the Judicial Committee, from any appeals which now go there will so far add to the strength of the Supreme Court.

The Court of Appeal in Chancery, consisting of the Lord Chancellor and the Lords Justices, is in practice generally divided into two Courts, in one of which the Lord Chancellor presides alone, in the other the Lords Justices; and, during the Session of Parliament, the Lord Chancellor's Court is closed, as has been already stated, except for two days in the week. When the Lord Chancellor happens to be less conversant with Equity business than the Lords Justices, his decision, sitting alone in appeal from a Court of Equity, cannot be so satisfactory to the suitors as if he had the benefit of their assistance; and when the Lords Justices, as has sometimes happened, differ in opinion, the appeal to them necessarily fails, the judgment of the Court below is affirmed, and a further appeal to the House of Lords frequently results. Cases of more than usual importance are, indeed, sometimes reserved for hearing, or are directed to be reargued before the Full Court of Appeal; but the pressure of business, and the engagements of the Lord Chancellor for so great a portion of the year in the House of Lords, confine within very narrow limits the time which can be allotted to sittings of the Full Court.

The Court of Exchequer Chamber is formed by a combination of all the judges of the Courts of Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer, under such arrangements that errors and appeals from each of those Courts are determined by judges taken from the other two. The inconveniences of this system are, in practice, very serious. All these judges having, during nearly the whole year, pressing demands upon their time for other purposes, are only able to devote a very limited number of days after each Term to the hearing of appeals and errors; and each of these periods requires to be broken up into three parts, and the constitution of the Court to be three times changed, in order to dispose of a portion of the appeals and errors from each of the Courts of First Instance. The effect generally is so far to reduce the number of judges who are able to attend in the Court of Exchequer Chamber, as, in case of any difference of opinion, to render it possible that the majority of opinions, in the Court of Appeal and the Court of First Instance taken together, may be overruled by the minority—a result which, as the judges of Appeal are not appointed or selected specially to act as such judges, and the judges who have been overruled to-day may to-morrow themselves sit in appeal from some decision of the judges who have taken part in overruling them, is eminently unsatisfactory. The same causes also lead, in many cases, to great and unavoidable delays in the disposal of Common Law errors and appeals.

The constitution of the full Court of Divorce, by the addition of two judges of the Common Law Courts, withdrawn pro hac vice from their other duties, and associated with the Judge Ordinary, is liable to some of the same objections.

The conditions on which appeals or errors can be brought from the different Courts are also widely different.

To the Court of Appeal in Chancery and to the House of Lords from the Court of Chancery, an appeal lies from all orders and decrees, whether interlocutory or final, of the Courts below, and upon all questions, whether of fact or of law; except that the verdict of a jury, or of a judge exercising the functions of a jury, can only be impugned by a motion for new trial. The jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal in Chancery, or of the Master of the Rolls or a Vice-Chancellor, to rehear his own decree, a practice which is also allowed, may be excluded by a formal procedure called enrolment, which takes place at the instance of any party, practically at any time within five years from the date of the decree or order enrolled, if nothing has been done in the meantime by the suitor with a view to bring the matter before the Court of Appeal. After this no error in the decree or order enrolled, except mere clerical mistakes, can be corrected by the Court of First Jurisdiction, or by the Court of Appeal in Chancery, without a new suit for that purpose, called a Bill of Review. The same formality, which shuts the door of the Court of Appeal in Chancery, opens to the dissatisfied suitor that of the House of Lords, which does not receive appeals from decrees or orders of the Court until after they have been enrolled. Both the Court of Appeal in Chancery, and the House of Lords, proceed upon the same record and evidence, which were before the Court from which the appeal is brought; and the Court of Appeal in Chancery, both in what are technically called rehearings of decrees and decretal orders, and upon appeal petitions or motions, has all the powers possessed by the Court of First Instance, and can therefore allow amendments of the record, and in some cases may receive new or further evidence; which is contrary to the practice of the House of Lords.

From the Courts of Common Law to the Exchequer Chamber, error lies in certain cases, and appeal in others. Error is brought, as of right, on matter of law apparent on the record, on judgments on demurrers, on bills of exceptions for the improper reception or rejection of evidence, or for misdirection by the judge at the trial, on special cases, on judgments non obstante veredicto, and for arrest of judgment. Appeal lies, as of right, from decisions upon points of law reserved at a trial. It also lies, but not without leave of the Court, unless the judges differ, on motions for new trial on the ground of improper reception or rejection of evidence, or of misdirection by the judge. No judgment, rule, or order is appealable which does not fall within one or other of these classes of cases. From all judgments of the Court of Exchequer Chamber a further appeal or error, as the case may be, lies to the House of Lords.

Among the inconveniences of this system are the following:—Error cannot be brought from any interlocutory judgment, e. g., a judgment allowing a demurrer, before the final determination of all issues of law and of fact joined upon the record. The point of law decided on the demurrer may be sufficient, if the judgment stands, to determine the whole controversy between the parties; yet if, as is commonly the case, issues of fact, as well as law, have been joined in the pleadings, it is necessary to go through the expense and delay of trying all those issues, though according to the judgment on the demurrer they are wholly immaterial, in order to get into the Court of Error. As to Bills of Exceptions, the rule is that they must be tendered at the time of trial, and before verdict given, excluding all opportunity for deliberate consideration, and giving occasion to difficulties as to the proper mode of stating the terms, or substance and effect, of the judge's ruling; no bill of exceptions being admissible unless signed by the judge, and no proof of his ruling, extrinsic to the bill of exceptions itself (i. e., by shorthand note or otherwise) being allowed. The practice has been to hand in a hasty and imperfect note at the trial, leaving the bill of exceptions itself to be afterwards agreed upon by the parties, or settled by the judge. In some cases it is found difficult, in others impossible, to come to any agreement or settlement, and, whenever any difference arises, it leads to great delay and expense. The cases are so few in which the points of law really intended to be raised can be satisfactorily taken by this form of proceeding, that it is of little use. The convenient mode, and that generally adopted, of raising those points, except when the parties agree to have a special case stated, a practice attended with its own inconveniences, is either by reserving them at the trial, which depends on the leave of the judge, and the consent of the parties, or by motion for a new trial. The power of appeal when the latter mode is adopted, if the Court gives an unanimous judgment, is not of right, but depends upon the will and discretion of the Court.

When appeal is brought, the Court of Exchequer Chamber does not proceed simply upon the materials which were before the Court below, but a case must be made up between the parties, which must be settled by the judge if the parties differ; and, as such difference often happens, this is apt to lead to considerable expense and delay.

Appeals lie to the House of Lords, as of right, from all final orders or decrees of the Court of Probate, whether depending on questions of law or of fact only, and from all interlocutory decrees or orders of that Court, by the leave of the Court, but not otherwise.

In the Divorce Court, every decision of the Judge Ordinary, whether on law or on fact, is subject to an appeal to the full Court, whose decision is final, except in cases of dissolution of marriage, nullity of marriage, or declaration of legitimacy, in which excepted cases only an appeal lies from sentences and final judgments of the Divorce Court to the House of Lords.

In the Court of Admiralty, as in the Court of Probate, all final sentences are appealable as of right, and all interlocutory judgments are appealable by the leave of the Court only.

The rules as to the time for appealing, in the different Courts, are also different.

For appeals and rehearings in Chancery, a period of five years from the date of the decree or order appealed from is allowed, after which the leave of the Lord Chancellor or Lords Justices is necessary, and such leave may be given at any time, but will only be given if it shall "appear, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, to be just and expedient."

For appeals to the House of Lords from the Court of Chancery, two years from the date of the enrolment of the order appealed from, and thenceforth until the end of a fortnight after the beginning of the next session of Parliament, are allowed: and when a final decree is appealed from, all prior interlocutory orders in the same cause, though enrolled for more than the prescribed period, may be included in the appeal.

At Common Law, six years from the date of final judgment are allowed for bringing error to the Exchequer Chamber, and a like period of six years for bringing error from the Exchequer Chamber to the House of Lords. In cases of appeal, as distinguished from error, in the Common Law Courts, notice of appeal must be given within four days after the decision appealed from, unless the time is enlarged. When such notice is given, as for want of the opportunity of full consideration it generally is, no time is limited within which the party must proceed to prosecute his appeal.

In the Probate Court application for leave to appeal from an interlocutory decree or order must be made within a month after the delivery of the decree or order, or within such enlarged time as the Court may direct; and it may be doubtful whether any time is limited for appealing from final decrees or orders.

In the Divorce Court, the appeal from the Judge Ordinary to the full Court must be filed within three months from the date of the decree appealed from; and that to the House of Lords, whether from the full Court or from the Judge Ordinary, within one month.

Appeals from the Court of Admiralty must be founded either on notice given to the registrar immediately after the delivery of the judgment, or upon a declaration, called a Protocol of Appeal, made before a notary and witnesses within fifteen days, and must be prosecuted by presenting a petition of appeal to your Majesty in Council within one year from the date of the sentence or decree appealed from.

As to security for the costs of appeal:—

In the Court of Chancery none is required beyond a deposit of 20*l.* with the registrar, when the petition is for rehearing of a decree or decretal order. Upon interlocutory appeals no deposit is made. In the Courts of Common Law, every appellant (in an appeal technically so called) and every defendant in an action who brings error, is required to give substantial bail to pay costs; but a plaintiff who is also plaintiff in error gives no security. In the Courts of Probate and Divorce no security for costs is taken, but the general orders of the House of Lords require all appellants to that tribunal to enter into their own recognizances, without sureties, for 400*l.* Appellants from the Court of Admiralty, if resident out of the jurisdiction of the Court, may be required to give bail in 300*l.*; if within the jurisdiction, they give no security.

In the Court of Chancery and the Probate Court an appeal does not operate as a stay of execution unless the Court, upon a special application, so directs. In the Divorce Court it does, practically, so operate. In the Courts of Common Law appeal or error operates always as a stay of execution as soon as security is given. In the Court of Admiralty an appeal is followed, as of course, by an inhibition, which has the same effect.

COURT OF APPEAL.

For these various and discordant systems of appeal we recommend the substitution of the scheme embodied in the following suggestions:

Constitution of Court.

First, we propose that, in the place of the Court of Exchequer Chamber, and of the Court of Appeal in Chancery, both which Courts, as now constituted, would cease to exist, there should be established, as a part of the Supreme Court, a Court of Appeal, consisting of—

- The Lord Chancellor,
- The Lords Justices,
- The Master of the Rolls, and
- Three other permanent judges, with
- Three of the judges of the Supreme Court to be nominated annually by the Crown;

an additional Vice-Chancellor being substituted, as a judge of First Instance, for the Master of the Rolls. The Court of Appeal thus constituted should be empowered to sit either as a full Court, or in divisions, but the number of judges sitting together in any division ought never to be less than three. The judges of the Court, other than the nominated Judges, should always form a majority of the Court.

We propose, further, that to this Court an appeal should lie from all judgments, decrees, rules, and orders, in suits or proceedings not strictly criminal, of any division or judge of the Supreme Court, with certain exceptions which we shall afterwards specify. It may hereafter deserve consideration, after experience of the working of the Court thus constituted, whether its decisions may not be made final, unless leave to appeal from them be given, either by the Court itself, or by the House of Lords. In the meantime, we recommend that there should be a right of appeal to the House of Lords.

A direct appeal to the House of Lords, without going through the Court of Appeal, might, we think, be allowed in all cases in which an appeal on matter of law would lie to the Court of Appeal, if the respondent consents to that course being taken, but not otherwise.

The limitations or exceptions to which we think the right of appeal ought to be subject are the following: judgments, decrees, or orders founded upon and applying the verdict of a jury, or the verdict of a judge discharging the functions of a jury ought not to be appealable, except upon matter of law. Interlocutory orders, if made by any division of the Supreme Court, consisting of three or more judges, should not be appealable, except in case of difference of opinion among the judges, or by special leave of the Court; and, if made by any division or judge with respect to any question of procedure or practice, as to which the Court or judge had power to make the order, should be appealable only under such regulations as may be made by general orders. As a general rule, no appeal should be allowed as to costs only.

The time for appealing from interlocutory orders made in the progress of a suit, before the final decision upon the merits between the parties, ought to be regulated by general orders. In all other cases a fixed period, not exceeding six months from the time when any judgment, decree, rule, or order is made or entered upon the record, should, we think, be allowed for appealing against it. These rules, as to the time for appealing, should apply both to appeals to the Court of Appeal, and to appeals to the House of Lords; and the office of the Clerk of the Parliaments ought to be open for the reception of appeals at all times of the year, whether Parliament be or be not sitting.

All proceedings in error and bills of exceptions should be abolished; and every appeal to the Court of Appeal should be brought by notice of motion, by way of appeal, in a summary way, without any petition or formal procedure. No enrolment of any judgment decree, rule, or order should be necessary in order to enable any party to appeal therefrom to the House of Lords; and every appeal to the House of Lords should be brought by a petition in a short form, stating the title of the cause or matter, with the names of the parties thereto, and the date of the order appealed from, and when the same was made or entered on the record; and also, who are the respondents to the appeal, and whether a general reversal, or a variation in any and what particulars, of the order appealed from is sought, but without setting out at length any of the proceedings.

The right of appeal should, we think, as a general rule, be conditional on substantial security being given by the appellant for the costs of the appeal. Inasmuch, however, as there may be cases to which this rule could not be applied without inconvenience or injustice, we think that both the nature and the amount of such security, and the regulations according to which it may be required or dispensed with, are subjects which may properly be dealt with by general orders of the Court.

No appeal should operate as a stay of execution, or of proceedings under the order appealed from, unless the Court, or a judge of the Court, from which the appeal is brought, or the Court of Appeal, shall so order. But such stay of execution should be granted, as of course, when the order under appeal is for a money payment, on the terms of payment of the money into Court, or of security being given to the satisfaction of the Court.

With respect to the hearing of appeals, we would propose, that the following rules should be established and made applicable both to the Court of Appeal and to the House of Lords.

Every appeal should be deemed to be in the nature of a rehearing, and the Court of Appeal should have power, if the justice of the case shall appear so to require, to allow any pleading or any special case to be amended, or any supplemental pleading or statement to be added to the record; or, upon any question of fact, to admit further evidence. Upon appeals and motions for new trial, proof of a judge's ruling by a shorthand writer's notes ought, in our opinion, to be received. Upon the hearing of the appeal the Court should have jurisdiction over the whole record, and no interlocutory order, from which there has been no appeal, should operate so as to bar or prejudice a decision upon the merits.

The Court should also have power, upon the hearing of any appeal, to vary or alter the order under appeal in favour of the respondent, in any manner which may appear proper to do complete justice between the parties, as if the respondent had presented a cross appeal, complaining of any part of the order by which he may deem himself to have been aggrieved.

If these recommendations are adopted, we think that there should be no rehearing of any cause or matter before the Court by which it was originally heard, except by leave of the Court, nor unless by consent of all parties, after the expiration of the time limited for appealing; and that Bills of Review for error apparent on the record should be abolished. Nothing, however, in these rules should take away or abridge the power of the Court to rectify any error which may have occurred in drawing up any judgment, decree, rule, or order. We shall proceed, with due diligence, to consider the other matters embraced in your Majesty's Commission; and we humbly submit to your Majesty's gracious consideration this our First Report.

* Agreeing with the general spirit and with most of the recommendations of the Report, I have subscribed it.

There are two subjects on which I desire to guard the expression of my opinion:—

- (1.) I think it is not expedient to destroy the special jurisdiction of the High Court of Admiralty. That Court has always administered in peace and war maritime international law. To no other Court has the Crown ever granted a Commission of Prize; and even before the issue of such Commission it has, in the opinion of Lord Stowell, an inherent jurisdiction in these matters. I may observe that the forms of pleading now in use in the High Court of Admiralty are as nearly as possible those which this Report recommends to be generally adopted by all Courts.
- (2.) I think that the want of power in the Commission to consider the composition of the Final Court of Appeal has been unfortunate, because it has practically excluded from our consideration—
 - (a) Whether it be expedient that two Final Courts of Appeal, namely, the House of Lords and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, should still continue;
 - (b) Whether, if so, the composition of either or both should remain unaltered.

Yet the consideration of both these questions ought, in my judgment, to have preceded, and would perhaps have considerably modified the suggestions for the intermediate Court of Appeal made in this Report. I think it also very doubtful whether that Appellate Court should be composed for the most part of judges exercising appellat jurisdiction only.

ROBERT J. PHILLIMORE.

† CIRCUITS.—I cannot concur in this recommendation to its full extent.

G. BRAMWELL.

‡ We are not able to concur in the recommendation that several counties should be consolidated for Assize purposes to the extent indicated in the Report. Our general view is, either that the present system of holding Assizes, which is based on the existing divisions of counties, and which brings justice reasonably near to the homes of suitors, witnesses, and jurymen, should, with some modifications, be retained; or that the present system of circuits should be altogether discontinued, and Provincial Courts established with assigned districts, having judges who should go frequent circuits to convenient places within such districts; and with appeal from the Provincial Courts in certain cases to the Metropolitan Courts of Appeal.

MONTAGUE SMITH.
JOHN DUKE COLERIDGE.

§ I desire to record my opinion that the following questions should be further considered:—

Whether all proceedings should not be commenced and prosecuted in the County Courts, unless it appears from the nature of the case that it is proper to remove it into the Supreme Court.

Whether it is desirable to allow such facilities for appealing, and repetition of appeals. Whether, having regard to the unequal means of litigants, the changes proposed might not render it desirable to establish a new system of legal remuneration, and to limit the claims of suitors against each other for costs.

Whether it might not be desirable to substitute for the discretion of the judges in respect of costs certain rules of positive application.

Whether the qualification of jurymen should not rather be lowered than increased. Whether sufficient consideration has been given to the other elements in the administration of the law beyond that of excellence of judicial decision, namely, the time of the suit, the expense to the suitor, and the influence of the administration of justice on the social and political condition of the people.

Whether the House of Lords, if it is to continue a Court of Appeal, might not be rendered efficient for the purpose by legal peerages conferred on Judges of a certain standing, so as to make the Bench independent of the pleasure of the Crown, and by constituting a permanent Committee of such Peers, on the principle of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

MAINE ON ANCIENT LAW.

Now ready. 3rd Edition. 8vo., 12s.

ANCIENT LAW:

ITS CONNECTION WITH THE EARLY HISTORY OF SOCIETY, AND ITS RELATION TO MODERN IDEAS.

By HENRY SUMNER MAINE,

Member of the Supreme Council of India, formerly Reader on Jurisprudence and the Civil Law at the Middle Temple, and Regius Professor of the Civil Law in the University of Cambridge.

'Professor Maine is probably the first Englishman who, with any authority, has applied the "historical method" to legal subjects so successfully employed abroad; and his prominent example will have a tendency to establish a connection between the study of the philosophy of law and those branches of philosophical history whose foundation lies in philology and her sister sciences.—London Review.

'A contribution to scientific legal literature of singular value. It would be superfluous to say that it indicates an intimate acquaintance with the knowledge of ancient law which has come down to us. It possesses the far higher method of arranging, reconciling, and reconstructing, with remarkable power of discrimination and generalization, the ideas of which but fragments and traces have reached us. It discovers to us the simplest and earliest ideas of mankind, on questions of justice and law; follows them in their expansion, and exhibits the mode in which they became ultimately obscured and lost.—Daily News.

'A text-book for all English students of jurisprudence. It presents elementary ideas in a distinct shape; it shows how endless are the ramifications of the history of jurisprudence which can be followed by learned ingenuity; it handles law in a large and free spirit; it clears up points as to which an obscurity prevails in the minds of many writers and readers, and it is written with singular clearness.—Saturday Review.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable,

Unconditional, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C. Established 1848.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

For the reason referred to, many persons hesitate or decline to assure on the ground that, in the event of inability or unwillingness to continue payment of their premiums, the assurance will become forfeited. To this class of the public the system now introduced will especially commend itself, being entirely free from all conditions of forfeiture on account of non-payment of premium, or from any other cause whatever; while at the same time it absolutely guarantees at decease, even when a default is made in payment of the premium, a fixed sum in respect of every premium paid, bearing the same proportion to the total amount assured as the number of premiums actually paid may bear to the whole number originally contracted to be paid.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at decease, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurances.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £220,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the kingdom. Special Agents Wanted. HENRY HARBEN, Secretary.

In preparation. Sixth Edition, embodying the latest alterations in the law.

THE CONSTITUTION AND PRACTICE OF COURTS MARTIAL,

WITH A

SUMMARY OF THE LAW OF EVIDENCE, &c.

By CAPT. T. F. SIMMONS, R.A.

'A book of admitted authority.'—Mr. Mowbray (now Judge Advocate-General), —House of Commons, 15th March, 1864.

'Recommended to the army as a useful book of reference.'—Queen's Regulations,

THE STUDENT'S BLACKSTONE, Price 7s. 6d.

COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

IN FOUR BOOKS.

By SIR WILLIAM BLACKSTONE, KNT.,

One of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas.

ABRIDGED AND ADAPTED TO THE PRESENT STATE OF THE LAW,

By ROBERT MALCOLM KERR, LL.D., BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

'Mr. Malcolm Kerr, whose edition of Blackstone's "Commentaries" has almost attained to the rank of a legal classic, has remoulded for Mr. Murray the "Student's Blackstone." The new work is a true abridgment, and contains, in a small compass, the real substance of the larger work. Need we add that Mr. Kerr's "Blackstone" is an exposition of English law, in which the latest legal information is conveyed in accurate and yet intelligible phrase?'—The Athenaeum.

'The present day has a great deal for which to thank Mr. Murray. Modern and ancient history, the Latin and Greek languages have, by his seal, been brought within the reach of many, to whom they were before inaccessible. And now we have unfolded to us the difficulties of the law.

'This edition of "The Student's Blackstone" is more complete than any that has yet been published. The editor has not only abridged from the original, but altered; and it is not too much to say that we have here before us a really valuable book of reference upon which dependence may safely be placed, since the various recent changes in legislation have all been carefully noticed.'—The Reader.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable,
Unconditional, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C. Established 1848.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

For the reason referred to, many persons hesitate or decline to assure on the ground that, in the event of inability or unwillingness to continue payment of their premiums, the assurance will become forfeited. To this class of the public the system now introduced will especially commend itself, being entirely free from all conditions of forfeiture on account of non-payment of premium, or from any other cause whatever; while at the same time it absolutely guarantees at death, even when a default is made in payment of the premium, a fixed sum in respect of every premium paid, bearing the same proportion to the total amount assured as the number of premiums actually paid may bear to the whole number originally contracted to be paid.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at death, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurances.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £220,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the kingdom. Special Agents Wanted. HENRY HARBEN, Secretary.

MAINE ON ANCIENT LAW.

Now ready. 3rd Edition. 8vo., 12s.

ANCIENT LAW:

ITS CONNECTION WITH THE EARLY HISTORY OF SOCIETY, AND ITS RELATION TO MODERN IDEAS.

By HENRY SUMNER MAINE,

Member of the Supreme Council of India, formerly Reader on Jurisprudence and the Civil Law at the Middle Temple, and Regius Professor of the Civil Law in the University of Cambridge.

'Professor Maine is probably the first Englishman who, with any authority, has applied the "historical method" to legal subjects so successfully employed abroad; and his prominent example will have a tendency to establish a connection between the study of the philosophy of law and those branches of philosophical history whose foundation lies in philology and her sister sciences.'—London Review.

'A contribution to scientific legal literature of singular value. It would be superfluous to say that it indicates an intimate acquaintance with the knowledge of ancient law which has come down to us. It possesses the far higher method of arranging, reconciling, and reconstructing, with remarkable power of discrimination and generalization, the ideas of which but fragments and traces have reached us. It discovers to us the simplest and earliest ideas of mankind, on questions of justice and law; follows them in their expansion, and exhibits the mode in which they became ultimately obscured and lost.'—Daily News.

'A text-book for all English students of jurisprudence. It presents elementary ideas in a distinct shape; it shows how endless are the ramifications of the history of jurisprudence which can be followed by learned ingenuity; it handles law in a large and free spirit; it clears up points as to which an obscurity prevails in the minds of many writers and readers, and it is written with singular clearness.'—Saturday Review.

THE STUDENT'S BLACKSTONE, Price 7s. 6d.

COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

IN FOUR BOOKS.

By SIR WILLIAM BLACKSTONE, KNT.,

One of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas.

ABRIDGED AND ADAPTED TO THE PRESENT STATE OF THE LAW,

By ROBERT MALCOLM KERR, LL.D., BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

'Mr. Malcolm Kerr, whose edition of Blackstone's "Commentaries" has almost attained to the rank of a legal classic, has remodelled for Mr. Murray the "Student's Blackstone." The new work is a true abridgment, and contains, in a small compass, the real substance of the larger work. Need we add that Mr. Kerr's "Blackstone" is an exposition of English law, in which the latest legal information is conveyed in accurate and yet intelligible phrase?'—The Athenæum.

'The present day has a great deal for which to thank Mr. Murray. Modern and ancient history, the Latin and Greek languages have, by his seal, been brought within the reach of many, to whom they were before inaccessible. And now we have unfolded to us the difficulties of the law.

'This edition of "The Student's Blackstone" is more complete than any that has yet been published. The editor has not only abridged from the original, but altered; and it is not too much to say that we have here before us a really valuable book of reference upon which dependence may safely be placed, since the various recent changes in legislation have all been carefully noticed.'—The Reader.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable, Unconditional, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C. Established 1848.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

For the reason referred to, many persons hesitate or decline to assure on the ground that, in the event of inability or unwillingness to continue payment of their premiums, the assurance will become forfeited. To this class of the public the system now introduced will especially commend itself, being entirely free from all conditions of forfeiture on account of non-payment of premium, or from any other cause whatever; while at the same time it absolutely guarantees at decease, even when a default is made in payment of the premium, a fixed sum in respect of every premium paid, bearing the same proportion to the total amount assured as the number of premiums actually paid may bear to the whole number originally contracted to be paid.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at decease, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurances.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £220,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the kingdom. Special Agents Wanted. HENRY HARBEN, Secretary.

MAINE ON ANCIENT LAW.

Now ready. 3rd Edition. 8vo., 12s.

ANCIENT LAW:

ITS CONNECTION WITH THE EARLY HISTORY OF SOCIETY, AND ITS RELATION TO MODERN IDEAS.

By HENRY SUMNER MAINE,

Member of the Supreme Council of India, formerly Reader on Jurisprudence and the Civil Law at the Middle Temple, and Regius Professor of the Civil Law in the University of Cambridge.

'Professor Maine is probably the first Englishman who, with any authority, has applied the "historical method" to legal subjects so successfully employed abroad; and his prominent example will have a tendency to establish a connection between the study of the philosophy of law and those branches of philosophical history whose foundation lies in philology and her sister sciences.'—London Review.

'A contribution to scientific legal literature of singular value. It would be superfluous to say that it indicates an intimate acquaintance with the knowledge of ancient law which has come down to us. It possesses the far higher method of arranging, reconciling, and reconstructing, with remarkable power of discrimination and generalization, the ideas of which but fragments and traces have reached us. It discovers to us the simplest and earliest ideas of mankind, on questions of justice and law; follows them in their expansion, and exhibits the mode in which they became ultimately obscured and lost.'—Daily News.

'A text-book for all English students of jurisprudence. It presents elementary ideas in a distinct shape; it shows how endless are the ramifications of the history of jurisprudence which can be followed by learned ingenuity; it handles law in a large and free spirit; it clears up points as to which an obscurity prevails in the minds of many writers and readers, and it is written with singular clearness.'—Saturday Review.

JOHN MURRAY, ALBEMARLE STREET.

THE STUDENT'S BLACKSTONE, Price 7s. 6d.COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

IN FOUR BOOKS.

By SIR WILLIAM BLACKSTONE, KNT.,

One of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas.

ABRIDGED AND ADAPTED TO THE PRESENT STATE OF THE LAW,

By ROBERT MALCOLM KERR, LL.D., BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

'Mr. Malcolm Kerr, whose edition of Blackstone's "Commentaries" has almost attained to the rank of a legal classic, has remodeled for Mr. Murray the "Student's Blackstone." The new work is a true abridgment, and contains, in a small compass, the real substance of the larger work. Need we add that Mr. Kerr's "Blackstone" is an exposition of English law, in which the latest legal information is conveyed in accurate and yet intelligible phrase?'—The Athenaeum.

'The present day has a great deal for which to thank Mr. Murray. Modern and ancient history, the Latin and Greek languages have, by his zeal, been brought within the reach of many, to whom they were before inaccessible. And now we have unshaded us the difficulties of the law.

'This edition of "The Student's Blackstone" is more complete than any that has yet been published. The editor has not only abridged from the original, but altered; and it is not too much to say that we have here before us a really valuable book of reference upon which dependence may safely be placed, since the various recent changes in legislation have all been carefully noticed.'—The Reader.

LAW.—PARTNERSHIPS.—Solicitors who in consequence of increase of business, retirement of partners, or for other reasons, may be desirous to form new connections, are respectfully requested to communicate in confidence to Messrs. Hoorns & Sow, whose extensive intercourse with the profession enables them to introduce, without delay, gentlemen possessed of adequate means for premium and capital. 45, Fleet Street.

MONEY promptly advanced on personal or any available security. A moderate interest, repayable by instalments; no preliminary fees. Real and Personal Advance Company (Limited). Established 1856. 3, Tavistock Street, Covent Garden, and at 14, Southampton Row, Bloomsbury W.C. Hours 9 to 6. Bills Discounted. Forms free. F. J. HARVEY, Secretary.

CHAMBERS TO LET, opposite Lincoln's Inn Gateway (Chancery Lane). A Barrister is desirous of letting one Large Room (with use of Clerk's Room) furnished or unfurnished. The Chambers are quite new, and lighted with gas. Rent to a desirable tenant would be very moderate. Apply to H. W. G. ESTWELL, Esq., 44, Chancery Lane, W.C.

CLUB.—A few Gentlemen can now be admitted into a select Club near Pall Mall established in 1865, and having over 200 Members. Special advantages. No liability. No entrance fee. Subscription, three guineas. For full particulars apply to "SECRETARY," 20, Charles Street, St. James's, S.W.

LAW PARTNERSHIP.—A GENTLEMAN (aged 29, and admitted in Trinity Term, 1866), who was articled to a first-class London firm, and who has for the last two years been engaged as Conveyancing and Chancery Clerk without supervision to a firm of high standing and extensive practice in Birmingham, is desirous of obtaining a junior partnership in a well-established and first-class business in London or the Country, and will be prepared to pay a good premium. The advertiser would not object to make an engagement to act as Clerk for a limited time with a view to a partnership. Unexceptional references given and required. Address, "A. Z.," Box 18, Post Office, Birmingham.

A FRONT ROOM on a FIRST FLOOR in the TEMPLE to be let to a Barrister, who will be willing to share the services of the advertiser's clerk. Apply to Mr. METHERELL, Wig Maker, 47, Carey Street, Lincoln's Inn, W.C.

WANTED, in a SOLICITOR'S OFFICE in the Country, a CLERK, who has had some years' experience; can engross neatly and accurately, and can draw Drafts and Abstracts. Address, S. G. J., Town Clerk's Office, Faversham, Kent.

This day is published, price 16s. cloth.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable,
Unconditional, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C. Established 1848.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

Beside this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at death, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurances.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £220,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the Kingdom. Special Agents Wanted. HENRY HARBEN, Secretary.

THE STUDENT'S BLACKSTONE, Price 7s. 6d.

COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

IN FOUR BOOKS.

By SIR WILLIAM BLACKSTONE, KNT.,

One of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas.

ABRIDGED AND ADAPTED TO THE PRESENT STATE OF THE LAW,

By ROBERT MALCOLM KERR, LL.D., BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

"Mr. Malcolm Kerr, whose edition of Blackstone's 'Commentaries' has almost attained to the rank of a legal classic, has remodelled for Mr. Murray the 'Student's Blackstone.' The new work is a true abridgment, and contains in a small compass, the real substance of the larger work. Need we add that Mr. Kerr's 'Blackstone' is an exposition of English law, in which the latest legal information is conveyed in accurate and yet intelligible phrase?"—The Athenaeum.

"The present day has a great deal for which to thank Mr. Murray. Modern and ancient history, the Latin and Greek languages have, by his zeal, been brought within the reach of many, to whom they were before inaccessible. And now we have translated us the difficulties of the law.

"This edition of 'The Student's Blackstone' is more complete than any that has yet been published. The editor has not only abridged from the original, but added; and it is not too much to say that we have here before us a really valuable book of reference upon which dependence may safely be placed, since the various recent changes in legislation have all been carefully noticed."—The Reader.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable,

Unconditional, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C. Established 1843.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

For the reason referred to, many persons hesitate or decline to assure on the ground that, in the event of inability or unwillingness to continue payment of their premiums, the assurance will become forfeited. To this class of the public the system now introduced will especially commend itself, being entirely free from all conditions of forfeiture on account of non-payment of premium, or from any other cause whatever; while at the same time it absolutely guarantees at death, even when a default is made in payment of the premium, a fixed sum in respect of every premium paid, bearing the same proportion to the total amount assured as the number of premiums actually paid may bear to the whole number originally contracted to be paid.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.

The assured will thus always have the option of retaining either an ascertained fixed sum payable at death, or, in case of need, of withdrawing a certain amount, according to the duration of the policy, such amounts being set forth on every policy, and rendering unnecessary any future reference to the Company on these points, as is the case with ordinary assurances.

Every policy issued on this plan will be without any conditions as to voyaging, foreign residence, or other usual limitations. By this freedom from restrictions of all kinds, the objections before referred to will be entirely removed, and the policies will become at once positively valuable as actual securities.

In addition to the foregoing statement of advantages, the number of premiums is strictly defined. The longest term provided for is twenty-five years, and the shortest five years, as shown by the tables. Thus, bankers, creditors, and others holding policies of this class as security, may always know the utmost amount they may be called upon to advance, so as to maintain the full benefit of the assurances—a matter of great importance where policies are held as collateral security.

The Prudential Assurance Company possesses an income of £230,000 a year, its position is unquestionable, and it obtains the largest amount of new business of any office in the kingdom. Special Agents Wanted. HENRY HARBEN, Secretary.

ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1868.

IN PURSUANCE of the Bar Scheme, the Council submit to the Profession a Report of the working of the system of Reporting under their control during the past year, together with a financial statement. It will be seen by the latter that the receipts for Subscriptions during the year 1868 amounted to the sum of 22,067*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*—the receipts during the year 1867 were 21,860*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.*—thus shewing an increase in income in 1868 over 1867 of 206*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.* In reference to the expenditure, the Council are glad to observe that some economical arrangements lately made have already proved beneficial; thus, the cost of the printing and delivery of THE LAW REPORTS has been less by 1087*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.* in 1868 than it was in the year 1867, and the debit cash balance has been reduced from 3324*l.* 10*s.* 7*d.* to 292*l.* 8*s.* 2*d.* The Council, with a view to economy, have also directed certain changes to be made, which came into operation in the early part of this year, and a considerable saving in expenditure will, it is hoped, be thereby effected without impairing the efficiency of THE LAW REPORTS.

The yearly income, as stated in the former Report, is more than sufficient to answer all necessary requirements, including the payment in 1868 of 5346*l.* 5*s.* to the staff of Editors and Reporters; and although the surplus receipts have not been sufficient to pay them the maximum salaries, it is hoped that the time is not far distant when the state of the Subscriptions will enable the Council to do so; but it rests mainly with the Profession, by increased Subscriptions, to enable the Council to accomplish this object.

The Accounts for the year 1868 have been duly audited by Auditors appointed by the Editors and Reporters.

Two separate Digests of the Equity and Common Law Cases included in THE LAW REPORTS from the time of their commencement were in a forward state of preparation in the early part of this year, when the Council came to the determination that there should be one Digest only, which should embrace all the Cases. This consolidation of the two Digests into one has unavoidably caused a delay in the publication which the Council regret; but the Digest will be delivered to the Subscribers for 1869 as soon as practicable.

The Council offer their thanks to the Lord Chancellor and other Law Lords, to the Members of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and to Her Majesty's Judges at Law and in Equity, for the assistance they have kindly afforded to the Editors and Reporters, by giving them access to their written judgments, and in revising the proof sheets.

They also express their thanks to the Bar and Solicitors for the facilities given by them to the Reporting Staff in the discharge of their duties by the loan of briefs and papers.

THE LAW REPORTS have now been in existence more than three years, and experience has proved that the Bar Scheme has, upon the whole, worked satisfactorily, although further improvements still remain to be effected in Law Reporting which the Council desire to see accomplished.

The Council observe with satisfaction the establishment of kindred institutions in other countries founded upon the Scheme of the LAW REPORTS, and they regard the same as unequivocal manifestations of the soundness of the principles on which that Scheme was founded—namely, independent professional control, and the exclusion of all proprietary profit. The Legal Profession in Ireland was the first to follow the example, and with signal success; more recently a similar system has been established in Bengal; and it is now proposed to introduce the same system into the United States, where, in the language of one of its supporters, the expediency of applying the new system "is of even greater urgency" than in this country.

Besides the changes which have taken place in the ex-officio members of the Council, the Honourable Mr. Justice Hayes has resigned his seat in consequence of having been appointed one of Her Majesty's Judges, and the Council have with regret lost a member who has always shewn a very sincere and active interest in their proceedings. His place at the Council has been supplied by Mr. Serjeant O'Brien.

Under the Bar Scheme it is provided that one of the members of the Council, appointed by the Inns of Court and Incorporated Law Society respectively, should retire at the end of every two years, but that all members so retiring should be eligible for re-appointment. The period contemplated by the Scheme having expired in the month of February last, a communication was made to the different Legal Societies, calling attention to the matter; but the several gentlemen who retired have all, with their consent, been re-appointed, with the exception of Mr. Lewin Taverner. He having expressed a wish to withdraw on the ground of ill-health, the Honourable Society of Gray's Inn has appointed Mr. J. A. Russell, Q.C., in his place.

Chairman.

THE WESTMINSTER CHAMBERS. These noble SUITES of CHAMBERS at the end of VICTORIA STREET are admirably adapted as Offices for Solicitors, Engineers, Public Companies, and Persons connected with Parliamentary Undertakings. They are most eligibly situated close to the Houses of Parliament, and within two minutes' walk of the Park Street Station of the Metropolitan District Railway, now being continued along the Thames Embankment to the Temple and the City. They are divided into suites of four, five, or six rooms, with every convenience separately attached to each. A capital Restaurant on the premises. Several sets are now to be let at very moderate rents, and would be sub-divided for tenants requiring only one, two, or three rooms. To view, and for further particulars, apply to the Secretary, Mutual Tontine, 4, Westminster Chambers, Victoria Street, London.

THE STUDENT'S BLACKSTONE, Price 7s. 6d.

COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

IN FOUR BOOKS.

By SIR WILLIAM BLACKSTONE, KNT.,

One of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas.

ABRIDGED AND ADAPTED TO THE PRESENT STATE OF THE LAW,

By ROBERT MALCOLM KERR, LL.D., BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

'Mr. Malcolm Kerr, whose edition of Blackstone's "Commentaries" has almost attained to the rank of a legal classic, has remoulded for Mr. Murray the "Student's Blackstone." The new work is a true abridgement, and contains in a small compass, the real substance of the larger work. Need we add that Mr. Kerr's "Blackstone" is an exposition of English law, in which the latest legal information is conveyed in accurate and yet intelligible phrase?'—The Athenaeum.

'The present day has a great deal for which to thank Mr. Murray. Modern and ancient history, the Latin and Greek languages have, by his zeal, been brought within the reach of many, to whom they were before inaccessible. And now we have enabled to us the difficulties of the law.

'This edition of "The Student's Blackstone" is more complete than any that has yet been published. The editor has not only abridged from the original, but altered; and it is not too much to say that we have here before us a really valuable book of reference upon which dependence may safely be placed, since the various recent changes in legislation have all been carefully noticed.'—The Reader.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY POLICIES, Unforfeitable, Unconditional, and Unchallengeable, issued by the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, 62, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C. Established 1844.

The Directors of this Company, in deference to an objection not unfrequently urged by persons invited to assure, that the ordinary mode of life assurance is in their opinion defective or uncertain, by reason of the operation of the customary conditions, have resolved to promulgate the present tables, and to issue assurances under them which shall be absolutely unforfeitable, unconditional, and unchallengeable.

For the reason referred to, many persons hesitate or decline to assure on the ground that, in the event of inability or unwillingness to continue payment of their premiums, the assurance will become forfeited. To this class of the public the system now introduced will especially commend itself, being entirely free from all conditions of forfeiture on account of non-payment of premium, or from any other cause whatever; while at the same time it absolutely guarantees at death, even when a default is made in payment of the premium, a fixed sum in respect of every premium paid, bearing the same proportion to the total amount assured as the number of premiums actually paid may bear to the whole number originally contracted to be paid.

Besides this important advantage, every policy will expressly state what sum can at any time be withdrawn on the discontinuance of the assurance.
