C. H. Witman's Store Robbed
 On Wednesday morning when J. C. Gordon came down to open up the hardware store of C. H. Whitman, he found that some one had beaten him to it. During the night some thief had entered the front door, evidently with a key, as the door had not been forced, and made his way to the safe, which had a sign upon it announcing that it was not locked. The safe had been rummaged and the contents, consisting of books and papers, had been scattered over the floor. Not finding anything in the safe to suit him, the thief proceeded to go through the show cases, helping himself to whatever took his fancy, among other things several pocket knives and a steel tape, and he also succeeded in finding a box with $11 in it which had been hidden in one of the show cases the night before. As near as Mr. Whitman could tell the "gentleman" took about $25 worth of articles. From all indications the burglar was someone familiar with the store but up to press time no one had been arrested for the crime.

Demonstration Train
 The demonstration train will be at the Campbell depot from 9 to 11:30 a. m., Tuesday, April 9, instead of from 1 to 3 as heretofore announced.

Returning to Michigan
 Wednesday morning of this week, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gordon, with H. Schnackenberg and family said good bye to the latters father, Mr. Jno. Schnackenberg, who has been spending the winter with them at their home on Budd Ave. Mr. Schnackenberg has just passed his 79th birthday and says he is as young as any man. He expects to reach Madison, Wis., about Sunday and from there he will go to Michigan.

Will Organize a La Follette Club

SMITH IS HERE

H. C. Smith, Editor of the Press, and family, arrived in this beautiful valley Wednesday and have been enjoying the flowers and trees to the utmost. After a few weeks trip across the states from North Dakota, visiting friends and relatives, we are on the job, and ready to cast our lot with the Campbellites, as many brothers and fellows have done before.
 Not being acquainted in our adopted home, we will deem it a great favor if all items of interest be given us. We do not expect to work any miracles or materially change the mode of living in the valley, but we will endeavor to give the Orchard City a very readable paper, in the interest of Campbell, Santa Clara County, and California. The job department will always be at your service. Let us boost together.

The Commercial Hotel

Campbell should be proud to be right in line with a first class eating place. The Commercial Hotel, under the management of Mrs. G. A. Reynolds, has been thoroughly renovated and painted and every thing is as it should be in an up to date hostelry. The landlady would be glad to show you thru the hotel, and would appreciate your patronage. She is making a specialty of Sunday dinners. Leave your for next Sunday's dinner. No town can thrive without a good dining room. You may feel safe in directing your friends or strangers to the Commercial Hotel.

Trout Fishing

Everybody who owns a fish pole or could beg, borrow or steal one, has been trout fishing this week. The fish are biting unusually good for this time of year on account of the low water in the streams. Last Monday and Tuesday Claude Vollman, C. Kennedy and Frank Copeland fished Uvas creek, and each caught the limit both days. Tuesday J. C. Lloyd fished Los Gatos creek and returned with a full basket, and all the other fishermen report good luck.

UNIQUE SURPRISE PARTY

Friends gathered at the home of Mr. James Kinnear, on the Santa Clara—Los Gatos Road in the Sunny oaks tract, Saturday eve., and gave him and his daughter Miss Mary Kinnear, a genuine surprise. Mr. Kinnear and his daughter are soon to leave for an extended visit in Seattle, New York and Massachusetts, and the party was of the nature of a farewell. The chief amusement of the eve. was the presentation of a basket of jokes; the articles being necessary to a comfortable journey. Miss Kinnear read the appropriately written "inscriptions" and her father opened the packages, causing much merriment by his thorough appreciation of the jokes. A delicious repast of sandwiches, coffee, cheese, olives and cake, was served. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Beal, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ringe, Mr. and Mrs. Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. T. Kinnear, and son Ronald, Mrs. G. M. Ellison, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Bangs, Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Thorp, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Purmort, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Did you ever stop to think that the substantial wealth of the majority of the rich people of the world has come through strict habits of SAVING? After they had worked hard for a dollar they did not squander it, nor let it lie idle. They kept the dollar and made it work for them.
 Our Savings Department offers YOU this opportunity. BY SAVING and by keeping every dollar you save AT WORK earning more dollars, you can secure wealth for yourself.
 One Hundred Dollars deposited in our Savings Department, and left there for one year, will earn $4.04, while in the same time One Thousand Dollars will earn $40.40. At four Per Cent Compound Interest, One Hundred Dollars will grow to $122.84 in five years, and in eighteen years it will more than double itself.
 We will be glad to open an account with you.

TEMPERAMENT IS ALL RIGHT

Quality the World Seems Ever Willing to Condone, but Beware of Temper.

Of the prima donna who throweth a dish of spaghetti at her butler the world saith: "She hath the artistic temperament."

Cultivate temperament if thou wilt, but beware of temper. The rich man, in a burst of temper, bursteth a blood vessel and droppeth dead.

Yet temper hath its uses. It giveth a man courage to do that which he lacketh the nerve to perpetrate in cold blood.

Temper maketh Johnny to go into tantrums. And, behold, his mother announceth proudly: "Johnny is such a high-strung child. So much temperament, don't you know?"

Temper maketh madam to snap at the hand of her husband when it petteth her. And hubby, saying: "She is so nervous," putteth on a glove that his hand may not be lacerated.

Temperament, like temper, is greatly overworked as an excuse. The man who defraudeth the barber and doteth his best to keep the clothescleaner and presser from earning a living.

This Happened on Mars. Allen—Hello, Duncan, old man! How're things?

Duncan—Pretty good, pretty good. And with you?

Allen—Can't complain particularly. Get a little short of cash sometimes—business is growing fast and I have to pretty near pawn my watch on occasions to keep going.

Duncan—Why, sure. More, if you want. And never mind about paying me Thursday; wait until I want some money and come to you.

Allen—Nix. Thursday goes and ten is all. Thanks. So long.

Duncan (Thursday)—Morning, Allen. Great weather.

Allen—All to the good. You're looking fine. Say, here's that ten. Much obliged. Nothing like having friends to help a man once in a while.

Duncan—Oh, you needn't have hurried. I'd clean forgotten about this ten.

Allen—Well, I don't forget the money I owe or what's owed me. Thanks again for your loan. S'long—exchange.

Curious White Island. It is perhaps the most extraordinary island in the world—that which lies fifty miles to the northeast of Hawaii. White Island is an island of rock nearly three miles in circumference, rising 900 feet from the sea.

It is entirely of sulphur, with a percentage of gypsum. Some attempts were made to work the sulphur, but the quality, though sufficient, was not subscribed. The export from White Island is all very small.

In Touch With Fashion

What the Smartest Dressmakers Are Now Displaying—Hints That May Help the Undecided

NEW YORK.—The one salient feature that distinguishes the spring hats from the winter styles is drapery—much drapery. As it takes an artful hand to adjust this drapery, the hat made by the amateur will be a doubtful experiment.

Hats of the "did you ever" proportions have disappeared, and the spring styles, on the whole, are sane and comfortable. The crowns are smaller, and most of them are round. They fit well down on the head.

Turbans in Vogue. The toque and the Hindu turban are the favored models. Many of these turbans are made entirely of flowers, with the omnipresent black velvet bow for the finishing touch.

The Rembrandt and Tam-o-Shanter shapes hold their own; while they were worn much this winter, they seem to have taken a new lease on life, the number of them displayed in the new materials showing that the craze for them is unabated.

Simple Trimmings. The trimmings, to the lay mind, look simple; so simple in many cases that they border on the grotesque. A hat of the grotesque kind is made of bright red straw, with a high peaked crown, and with little or no rim at all.

Two-Toned Taffeta Hats. The Hindu turbans are made of taffeta; not the stiff, old-fashioned, rustling taffeta, but a wondrous, soft, pliable material that milliners call chiffon taffeta.

The Hindu turbans are made of taffeta; not the stiff, old-fashioned, rustling taffeta, but a wondrous, soft, pliable material that milliners call chiffon taffeta. Much of it comes in two tones, creating a changeable effect.

Plumes of the Season. While the dark straws are being worn before the white and lighter-hued straws, their sombreness is taken away by their cheerful trimmings.

Fluffy gourd feathers and the uncurled ostrich plumes have an unprecedented vogue. While egrettes continue popular abroad, there is a ban upon their use in America—a ban both legal and humane.

Small Shapes. A number of small hats are made of black and white, maline and trimmed in big loops of the same materials. The foundation is made of taffeta or bengaline, and the shapes themselves are moulded entirely out of the tulle drapery.

Many of the new shapes are covered with satin, silk, or bengaline on top, with a facing of straw underneath. The straw motif is repeated in the trimmings.

AMERICAN GRAFTERS IN PARIS

By STEPHEN ALLEN REYNOLDS

LONG the boulevards between the Madeleine and the Place de la Republique, along the Champs Elysees from the Arch to the Obelisk, in little brasseries along the Seine, in the so-called "American bars" of the Opera quarter, in the pastry shops along the Rue de Faubourg St. Honore, at the tables of the Boul' Mich of the Latin quarter—in fact, in almost any of the twenty arrondissements within the fifty-six gates of the French capital, will be found the ubiquitous American grafter.

Attracted to you by either the American roll to the brim of your derby or your Brockton made shoe, he will unerringly single you out as a fellow-countryman abroad on pleasure bent, therefore fish for his net.

This is certain to be a lace season. That point, at least, has been settled. Sometimes on one gown there are as many as five kinds of lace, to say nothing of embroidery. The effect is quite charming when the background for the lace is pineapple badiste.

A cotton fillet which is decidedly popular is one embroidered with linen to match the color of the gown. This fillet is made by interweaving quaint designs through the mesh, giving an effect both striking and novel.

The evening dresses have caught it. One gown, in the blue-ribbon class, is of hand-painted chiffon cloth, trimmed in long silky chenille fringe; and, bobbing up where one least expected them, were myriads of tiny silk crocheted buttons. The effect was novel and pleasing.

The wash frocks are buttoned straight down the front with bullet buttons of some sort of crochet. A flat imitation ivory button is running the bullet a close second in popularity.

The Old-Time Organdie. To many of us the news that the old-fashioned organdie has come into its own again is delightful news. Its various possibilities, coupled with the fact that it tucks beautifully, recommend it highly.

It is difficult to predict just what color will be the dominant note for spring, but present indications point strongly to vivid green, the favorite color of the Aztec Indians. Coffee, tan, biscuit, corn color, or any of the shades bordering on those tones are also decidedly in favor.

A new spring turban of black and white straw with white bow in front and green leaves is shown in the illustration.

Easy Means. You can easily create a temperance sentiment in this neighborhood by putting a bulldog in front of the saloon.

Who could refuse such an invitation? Not the average American tourist upon his first visit. True, with the aid of a guidebook he might find his way to the Louvre. His

The fact of the matter is that he has been driven all over the city at your expense; he has lunched and dined with you, to say nothing of the midnight bite at the Cafe Weber; and if you have spent the sum of 200 francs during the afternoon and evening you may rest assured that gold and silver amounting to some 80 or 100 francs—once yours—is safe in one of the pockets of the guide's fashionably cut trousers.

It was one the privilege of the writer to listen to the abstinence inspired confidences of a number of American "guides" and panhandlers. A young man wearing a frock coat and well ironed silk topper approached the table and begged for the privilege of a few words with me. His linen was spotless—his story seemed flawless.

He had, so he said, been robbed in Montmartre while seeing the town a few nights before. He had cabled for funds, but a heartless landlord had locked up his ten suits of clothing and turned him into the street. Would I kindly come to his relief with a small loan for a few days until the arrival of his draft? He exhibited a typewritten cable message which looked promising, and the tears came to my eyes as I thought of his predicament and overpeppered my bouillon.

"I'm sorry I can't help you out," I told him. "You see, this happens to be my third visit to Paris, and I've heard all about these heartless landlords and delayed drafts before. Those sleeve buttons of yours ought to fetch enough at the Mont de Pieté to tide you over for a few days should you be on the level."

The man in the frock coat was about to slink away, when I asked him to join me and have an apertif. Over an absinthe-au-sucre he waxed confidential and told me his story.

"You're wise," said he, as he surveyed the opalescent contents of his glass. "There sure is a bunch of American grafters over here having a pretty soft time. I've only been over here two months, but some of the push have been here for years."

He helped himself to my cigarettes and continued: "Paris is a cheap place to live in. A perfect dinner costs very little. The rent of a nice room is about half what you have to pay in New York, less than that once you can speak French and know how to make a bargain. Clothing of the best sort can be had for a song, and a two-horse carriage can be hired for about twice the price of a carfare in the states."

"Pickings are good during the tourist season, and the only kick that the boys have is on the French shoes and cigarettes. Several of the snob import their own smokes. Of course, the favorite graft is the American tourist. He always has money, and is over here to spend it and have a good time. If we spin a good yarn about hard luck it's pretty easy to make a 'touch' for a louis, and 'most any New Yorker will fall for a five-franc piece."

"I used to keep a set of books in Cleveland," another American grafter told me over a glass of Algerian "Bordeaux" in a little brasserie in the Rue Vignon. "I'd saved a bit of money and felt too strong to push a pen any longer, so I came over here to take in the sights. I went broke the third day after my arrival, and as I found so many people willing to help me I've stayed here ever since. Paris is all right after you've lived here awhile and know the ropes. I'm here going on seven years now, and I expect to live here the rest of my life."

Jewels Closely Guarded. The sale of Abdul Hamid's jewels leads a Paris contemporary to refer to the way in which the valuables of other sovereigns are guarded. We learn that the jewels of the Russian royal family, which are of an enormous value, are kept in the Kremlin where they are looked after by 150 officers who have retired from the army. The Italian crown jewels are guarded in a subterranean chamber on a little island in the Tiber. The crown treasures of Austria are in the custody of the Imperial bank. The Austrian jewels are of great value, but of those of Germany the same cannot be said. These are also in the custody of a bank. The Bulgarian jewels valued at $3,000,000, are kept at a castle on the banks of the Danube. The jewels of the French state are dispersed, but some are in the custody of the Imperial bank.

Even should you venture into a place where your guide is personally unknown to the management he still obtains his commission, for when you enter his first move is to whisper to the proprietor or manager these four magic words: "Je suis l'interprete." The commission is added to the price, and rare indeed are the shops or resorts which do not make it "worth while" for the man who accompanies you.

Indeed, some of these self-styled "interpreter-guides" have been residents of Paris for such short space that their French vocabulary is practically limited to those four words. In the early hours of the morning, after the guide has shaken hands with the last cocher in front of your hotel, you thank your companion for his kindness in helping you to pass an enjoyable evening. He replies on him: "I am a native of the state of his origin."

Age's Handicap.

A gentleman who married recently at the age of seventy-three years says old age is merely a state of mind, and intimates that one may remain young if one will refrain from having old ideas. The great trouble is that it is almost impossible for an old gentleman who insists on having young thoughts to get other people to decline to refer to him as "an old fool."

Some People.

The trouble with some people is that they want to draw compound interest for life on the little charitable deeds they do just for the purpose of keeping the world from suspecting that they are cold-hearted and stingy.

CLING TO HOPE, O YE BALD! WELL WORTH THE WHIPPING

Hair Tonic of Miraculous Workings is the Luscious, Homely Dish of Pork and Beans.

At last we know why bald-headed men are so scarce in Boston. Baked beans, or better still, pork and beans, are said to be the finest hair tonic on earth. A California chemist, Thomas H. Bartlett, who is of an inventive turn of mind, recently saw a possible connection between the luxuriant locks of Boston men and their favorite diet of pork and beans. He investigated, experimented and found that which he sought. And now he has just patented a hair tonic, No. 920,902, in the patent office at Washington.

Mr. Bartlett describes his hair tonic as consisting of pork fat, bean oil and other specified ingredients, and describes with great particularity the cooking of a very nice edible dish of baked beans preparatory to completing the tonic. Thus in the description forming part of his patent he says: "I take three cups of common white beans and three pounds of salt pork. The beans are parboiled and then boiled with the pork for eight hours, and then covered tight and baked for twelve hours."

WILL RENOVATE OLD PAPER

Berlin Scientist Claims He Has Made Discovery Which Means Much to the World.

A Berlin scientist has discovered a process by which discarded old newspapers can be converted into fine new paper ready to run through the printing presses for another edition. The paper can be used over and over again.

An alkaline preparation is used in removing the inks from the old papers. Then the pulp is put through a process, with a little new material added, which produces nice, clear paper, as good as the original material. The latter process has been tried for a number of years, but when the coloring matter remained in the pulp it was not possible to produce good paper.

By this new discovery, says the Fourth Estate, old papers will become more valuable and a great trade will be established at once in the larger cities where thousands of tons of refuse material in the shape of unused or discarded printed matter will be collected.

The process may in a measure solve the raw product problem which has been confronting paper manufacturers for some time owing to the scarcity of matter from which good pulp can be made.

YOUR PHOTO AS SIGNATURE

Pleasing Novelty of Recent Invention That Combines Photography With Letter Writing.

According to the Drogisten Woche, a German scientific publication, it is now possible to transfer photographs to writing paper by a very simple process. You can do it yourself at home and so combine photography with letter writing in a pleasing way.

To transfer a photograph to writing paper proceed as follows: Select thick paper and cover the same with a thin paste of rice starch, to which has been added some dyestuff. Allow to dry completely and then apply a solution of three grams potassium bichromate in fifty cubic centimeters of water. This must be done in the dark room, using a red light. The paper must be left there until dry, when it is ready for use. Print from a photographic negative, plate or film the same as with ordinary photo printing paper. Develop in water, which will remove superfluous starch paste from the unexposed parts.

IDENTIFY BY FINGER PRINTS

Authorities of Many Nations Place Absolute Reliance on This Method.

In the Argentine Republic the identification cards of policemen, coachmen, cab drivers, missionaries and servants have, since 1896, borne their finger prints. Upon all passports and bank receipts for deposits the imprint of the thumb must be made at the time of delivery.

In Roumania, since 1908, the thumb print has been substituted for the cross instead of signature by persons who cannot write.

In the Philippine islands those who cannot write are not obliged to be identified by witnesses at savings banks, but merely have to make their mark with their thumb.

The system has been used in England for 27 years.

Adventurous Small Boys Determined to See Cause of Commotion, and Had Their Reward.

Ed Howe, the great Kansas editor of Atchison Globe fame, tells the following story in the American Magazine:

"So little that is really exciting or worth while has happened in my life that I am greatly interested in Jim and Dan Ayers, who run a restaurant in the town where I live. Something really happened to them once upon a time, and when I go to their restaurant I enjoy hearing them tell about it.

"When they were boys, they lived on a farm in Virginia; I have heard them say their post office was Sudley Springs. One Sunday morning their father started them to Sunday school, and after they had loitered along the way a mile or two Jim Ayers remarked a commotion over beyond what they called the Big Woods. "What's that?" Jim asked, stopping.

"It was getting late by this time, and Dan replied: "I don't know, but we'd better hurry and get to Sunday school, or we'll get a whipping."

"Then they hurried on, but the commotion over beyond the Big Woods broke out again, faintly, but it was very unusual, and Jim stopped and listened. He had never heard anything like it before, although he was a big boy twelve years old and, listening a while, he said: "I'm going over there."

"Better not," Dan said. "You know father whips hard." "But the strange commotion continued, so Jim said he was going, whipping or no whipping. Dan followed, but kept saying they would catch it when they returned home.

"They walked and walked and walked; all the time the commotion over beyond the Big Woods became more pronounced, but they couldn't tell what it was. They forded streams, and were chased by strange dogs, but kept on from ten o'clock in the morning until three o'clock in the afternoon. They had nothing to eat, and they didn't know that they could ever find their way back, because they were in a country strange to them. But they kept on, and a little after three o'clock, as a reward for their perseverance, they walked into the heart of Bull Run. I never before heard of boys going anywhere and finding anything as great as they expected."

Stony Place. Sing Sing, in New York state, is said to be derived from two Indian words, meaning "the place of a stone."

To Preserve Old Photographs.

One way to preserve old photographs is as follows: Put the photographs into clean, hot water; very soon the pictures loosen and may be easily removed from the cards. When dry, either trim down, to economize space, or carefully cut away the background entirely. Mount them in a scrap book or a book made especially for kodak pictures. You will then have a book with which you can spend many happy moments looking over familiar scenes and faces.—National Magazine.

Colors in Granite.

A peculiar characteristic of the New England granite veins is the fact that three distinct colors of granite are to be found in as many states, pink in Massachusetts, gray in Connecticut, and green in Vermont. Green granite is something of a curiosity because of its rarity. The largest columns of this variety to be found anywhere are those which support the dome in the library of Columbia university.

DANGER PERIOD OF WOMAN'S LIFE FROM 45 to 50

Interesting Experience of Two Women—Their Statements Worth Reading.

Asheville, N.C.—"I suffered for years with female trouble while going through the Change of Life. I tried a local physician for a couple of years without any substantial benefit. Finally after repeated suggestions to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I quit my physician and commenced using it with the happiest results. I am today practically a well woman and anxious to contribute my mite towards inducing others to try your great medicine, as I am fully persuaded that it will cure the ailments from which I suffered if given a fair chance.

"If you think this letter will contribute anything towards further introducing your medicines to afflicted women who are passing through this trying period, it is with great pleasure I consent to its publication."—Mrs. JULIA A. MOORE, 17 East St., Asheville, N. C.

The Case of Mrs. Kirlin.

Circleville, Ohio.—"I can truthfully say that I never had anything do me so much good during Change of Life as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. "Before I had taken one half a bottle of it I began to feel better, and I have continued taking it. My health is better than it has been for several years. If all women would take it they would escape untold pain and misery at this time of life."—Mrs. ALICE KIRLIN, 358 W. Mill St., Circleville, Ohio.

The Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. At such times women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sidelight on Lloyd-George.

On the day Lloyd-George became chancellor of the exchequer he left the house with a friend of his boyhood (and his love of old friends is not the least attractive phase of his character). As they talked of his advancement he said: "In all my career I do not remember a hand being held out to me from above and a voice saying: "Bring I fnyony yma' (climb thou up here). But don't misunderstand me," he went on, "there have been thousands of hands which have pushed me up from behind." He does not forget from whence comes his authority and his commission. There have been times when one has feared—times when his light anchorage seemed in danger of yielding to the impact of opportunism. But that memory of his own people, that loyalty to the inspiration of the mountains and the simple traditions of his fathers has saved him and will save him.—London Daily News.

Rather Hard on the Teacher.

Teachers are told, not once but a hundred times, that a wise observer need only study briefly "the class before us"—nay, some artless speakers say that the observer need only listen outside the door—in order to learn, without a glance at the teacher, whether he or she is alert, enthusiastic, conscientious, hard-working, well-informed, and in vigorous health, or a dragged out, ignorant, soulless, and thoroughly unpedagogic specimen of the profession.—Mary C. Robinson, in the Atlantic.

It Actually Happened.

The traditional bet of a dollar to a doughnut was recently made in a downtown cafe. The man who put up the doughnut won, but when the stakes were turned over he found that the odds were not so much in his favor as he had imagined. The dollar was like the doughnut—had a hole in it.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Bedouins Using Olive Oil.

It is reported that a market for oil is developing among the Bedouin tribes, who have been accustomed to use samn (cooking butter made of sheep's and goats' milk), but who, on account of the high prices obtainable for samn, are selling it and substituting olive oil.

Honest Election.

Much of the grim humor one hears among practical politicians has to do with these incorruptibles who owe their positions to corruption. A case in point is that of a member of the supreme court of a western state, who began his career by running for congress. The story was told to me by one of the workers who secured his election.

"One day the candidate met me," said my informant, to whom I had been introduced by a practical politician, as he took me into his confidence and began to talk as one briber might to another, "and asked me how things were going in a certain district.

"Fine," I replied. "You will have a good majority there."

"I am not surprised," he said enthusiastically. "When I was speaking there I made the best speech that I made in the whole campaign."

"The worker nudged me as he said: "It cost us just $7,000 to win that particular district for him, and he thought his speech did it."—The Forum.

Rather Emphatic.

Joan is still very young, and the last Christmas eve found her more than eager for Christmas. As a great treat she was allowed to wait up for the long-expected visit of Santa Claus, but in the course of the evening became sleepy. Presently she astonished her careful and mild-tongued elders by the emphatic exclamation: "My Dod, papa, but Santy Taus is late!"

Easily Answered.

"The bride is 17," says a dispatch from Canterbury, Conn., "and the bridegroom is 60 and wealthy." When the bride is 17 and the bridegroom 60 why add "and wealthy?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Stimulate Children?

Ask your doctor how often he prescribes an alcoholic stimulant for children. He will probably say, "Very, very rarely." Ask him how often he prescribes a tonic for them. He will probably answer, "Very, very frequently." Then ask him about Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a strong and safe tonic for the young. Not a drop of alcohol in it.

Always keep a box of Ayer's Pills in the house. Just one pill at bedtime, now and then, will ward off many an attack of biliousness, indigestion, sick-headache. How many years has your doctor known these pills? Ask him all about them. Made by the J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

Bolled Fruit Cake.

One cupful of water, one cupful of sugar, 1/2 cupful of lard (I use a little butter, too), 1 teaspoonful of cinnamon, 1 teaspoonful of cloves; 1 cup seeded raisins, 1 cup currants, 1/2 cup citron (or as much as desired), 1/4 teaspoonful of salt. Put all ingredients on the stove in an enamel pan; let them boil up for two or three minutes, then set aside to cool. When lukewarm add two cups of flour, sifted, with 1 teaspoonful of soda; flavor with lemon and bake in a moderate oven for 1 hour.

Too Flattering.

"Flattery is dangerous to sensitive ladies," says the Wise Man. "I am always very careful in the matter, because one evening I told a lady that she was as sweet as honey, and the next day she had hives."

 The Southern Pacific company's California demonstration train will be in Campbell Tuesday, April 9th, from 1 to 3 p. m., and farmers and orchardists and every one interested in agriculture and horticulture, are cordially invited to visit the train and inspect the exhibit.
 Many new and interesting features have been added to the extensive display previously carried by the train, and ranchers will find invaluable information in the lectures that will be given by the men who have the train in charge. The demonstration train carries models of small farms and information for ranchers, poultry raisers, dairymen, and owners of truck gardens. Pamphlets describing how to plant and when to put in seed are given to those who are interested in the work.

SPECIAL EASTER EXERCISES
 The Methodist Sunday School has planned for special Easter exercises by members of the school, to take place immediately after Sunday School.
 It is the request of the Superintendent that any who do not attend any other Sunday School will come out and hear the children sing and speak. Be sure and come, we want every body to know what the Methodist Sunday School is doing. The reports of the officers Tuesday eve, at a business meeting, showed that the high water mark was reached during the past quarter, 173 being present. Mrs. VanArsdell's class of boys, one of the most important classes, put forth some extra effort and won the banner last Sunday.

THE EDITOR ON DUTY
 Most anybody can be an editor. All an editor has to do is to sit at his desk six days in the week, four weeks in a month, and twelve months in a year, and "edit" such stuff as this, says the Boston Globe:
 "Mrs. Jones, of Lost Creek, let a can opener slip last week and cut herself in the pantry."
 "A mischievous lad of Bungtown threw a stone and hit a companion in the alley last Tuesday."
 "John Doe, climbed on the roof of the house last week looking for a leak and fell, striking himself on the back porch."
 "While Harold Green was escorting Miss Violet Wise home from a church social last Saturday night a savage dog attacked them, and bit Mr. Green on the public square."
 "Israhel Trimmer, of Lebanon, was playing with a cat Friday when it scratched him on the veranda."
 Mr. White while harnessing a broncho last Saturday was kicked just south of the corn crib.
 Anybody can "edit" a newspaper, it's the easiest job and softest snap in the world.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
 by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound and imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
 We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Talks to Home and School Club
 Mrs. J. O. Hayes gave an interesting talk before the Home and School Club at the grammar school building on the afternoon of March 28. She said in effect:
 "These clubs that are forming are good for all who are interested in the upbuilding of the home. In the social lines there is room for great improvement both in the home and the school. All the conditions which are not as they should be have grown up from the life in the home and the school, and many of them might be prevented. These clubs can do much good as it is their object to improve both the home and the school, and so increase their value to the child.
 The school cannot work alone as the child is so much of the time in the home. The parents must work in co-operation with the teachers in order to have the work of improvement reach into the home. Child study should be the work of the clubs; the necessity of this work is felt by all, and although it is real hard intellectual work it must be done in justice to the child. Many difficult cases come up which will appeal to everybody and we must do the best we can in dealing with them. We should be willing to give up our own ideas if better ones are advanced. We should study home conditions for even the best are not perfect.
 It is well to present new methods of dealing with the child—mothers are often impressed and helped so that they change their methods at home. Introduce into the home work that is beautiful, that will develop the child in ways that will be a life-long benefit. There is usually some trouble in the home when a child goes wrong, hence the great necessity of harmony between the parents. The child is wonderfully susceptible to inharmonious surroundings. When there is harmony in the home he does right easily. Parents consider the harmony in their own home when they hear of it in others.
 Children are sensitive to inharmonious and often run away to get free from it. Many parents do not realize this condition, and by restraint try to control the child when if self were controlled the problem would be solved. A child has a right to the training that will make a good citizen, and very many do not get such training, as mothers do not know how to train. These clubs are a school for mothers.
 Moral training is of paramount value, but there is much that goes with it. If a child is underfed or poorly trained he is apt to not have the best of morals. Few have the right idea of how to feed children. They do not think that illness is usually caused by improper eating. The club is the best place to thrash out this idea of ill feeding. The proper food can be found out and it should be good wholesome strong food, such as will make a healthy body—then the trouble is over. Plenty of good work should be furnished to keep children busy, then another problem is solved. More children are ruined by a lack of labor than by too much. Children should be kept interested—let them do things and earn their own spending money. There is such joy in spending what they earn. Labor is the law of life, and activity is the source of health.
 Love makes life harmonious, and parents should let the children know they love them. Parents often do not realize that children have the child nature and they expect too much of them. When a child is told not to go to an entertainment, the parent should see that he obeys. The children in the grammar school are too young to go out together in the evening, but they should have all the fun and happiness they can. Children should not go to entertainments alone. Evening excitement is not good for them—they need the sleep and rest to build up their physique.
 The following committees to prepare and present the programs during the year were suggested, and several names added to each:
 Hospitality and Entertainments.
 Nature Study.
 Child Study.
 Literature.
 Hygiene.
 The next meeting of the club will be held Tuesday, April 9, in the grammar school building. Everyone interested is invited to be present.
