POETRY.

The Soldier to His Children, After a Battle.

Darlings, I am weary pining;
Shadows fall across my way,
I can hardly see the lining,
Of the cloud—the silver lining,
Turning darkness into day.

I am weary of the sighing, Moaning, wailing through the air;
Breaking hearts in anguish crying
For the lost ones—for the dying;
Sobbing anguish of despair.

I am weary of the fighting;
Brothers red with brothers' gore,
Only that the wrong we're righting—
Truth and Honor's battle fighting—
I would draw the sword no more.

I am pining; dearest! pining
For your kisses on my cheek;
For your dear arms round me wining;
For your soft eyes on me shining;
For your loved words, darlings—speak!

Tell me in your earnest prattle,
Of the olive branch and dove;
Call me from the cannon's rattle;
Take away my thoughts of battle;
Fold me in your dearest love,

Darlings, I am weary pining;
Shadows fall across my way;
I can hardly see the lining
Of the cloud—the silver lining,
Turning darkness into day.

The Mississippi Gamblers, and the New York Clerk.

I was descending the river in the old Thunderer, one of the finest boats that I have ever seen. She met with a shocking fate the next year, being destroyed by fire, and of her passengers, numbering nearly three hundred, very few escaped.

My room-mate was a very bright young fellow, a New Yorker, out upon a collecting tour for his employers, and, as a game of euchre that I played with him for amusement convinced me, a very skillful but honorable and gentlemanly player.

He was returning to New Orleans with a considerable sum of money that he had collected for the house he was attached to in New York, and I thought it proper to give him a word of warning about playing for money at all, and especially with strangers on a steamboat.

He, however, laughed at my caution; said that this was not his first southern trip; that when last winter he went up the river, he fell in with a gambler who seemed to have taken a fancy to him, and who appeared to know all the tricks and marks of cards.

He added that, as to these tricks, he had not the dexterity required to play them off, nor would he do so if he had, but yet was able to detect them in a moment; and that playing a straightforward open game himself, with plenty of money and unflinching nerve, he had always the advantage of gamblers, so much of their attention being taken up by stocking the cards, and when their plans were defeated being always annoyed and thrown off their play.

He farther said that against the gamblers he entertained a peculiar spite, as his brother some years since had been nearly ruined by them, when on a business trip similar to his own, and that although he never sought a game of poker, he also seldom declined it.

I still urged upon him the great danger he exposed himself to, but he only laughed at my advice, and finally called my attention to three persons then in the cabin, who he said it was morally certain came on board for no other purpose than to bleed him; and, he added, they shall have the chance.

Of course there was nothing more to be said by me, and before night he had gently slipped into the sporting gentlemen's net—as they supposed—and was playing a quiet game with very moderate stakes.

I watched the game very closely. It was evident that, although apparently playing each for himself, it was a joint business after all, among the chevaliers d' industrie; and after the game had lasted a couple of hours or so, when the betting ran at all high, there was but one hand opposed to my room-mate in any one deal, and that one proved invariably the strongest of the three.

For some time after the commencement of the play, the gamblers evidently intended their pigeon should win, but they need not have taken the trouble, for win he would and did. As he had said, he had nerve enough for anything; plenty of money, knew when to press his play, and when, from the run of the cards against him, to keep in shore.

Presently one of the gamblers proposed to go to the bar and procure a new pack of cards.

"No, sir!" replied my friend, "I prefer waiting until some one comes along, when we can send for them."

"Do you suppose I am going to run any game on you, sir?" demanded the gambler, in the 'Ancient Pistol' style.

"No," was the quiet reply; "I know you are not."

After this there were no more attempts at careles playing. The three did their best, but continued to lose.

Supper time drew near, and the game was necessarily discontinued for a time.
The three went forward, but I kept my eyes upon them, and observed the party assemble on the hurricane deck, at the stern of the boat, evidently engaged in animated conversation. Of this I informed my friend, and advised him to break off the game where it was; but no, he would not hear a word of quitting them or frightening them off.

After supper they went at it again with a much higher ante, and the betting proportionately increased. Many of the passengers were assembled around the table watching the game with interest, and evidently to the great annoyance of the sporting gentlemen, who made as many remarks and hinted quite as broadly as they dared about intrusion; but as I have before remarked, their day of rule was over, and they dared not, upon any ordinary occasion, exhibit that insolence which, backed by their ever ready weapons, had made them feared, dreaded and too often submitted to upon the river boats.

Among the spectators was a tall, portly gentleman, of a very dignified and commanding appearance, who, after intently watching the game for some time, gave me a quiet hint that he had something to say in private, and then walked out upon the guards of the boat.

"Is that young man a friend of yours?"
he asked.

I told him all that I knew of him in a few words.

"Well, sir," said he, "it's a bad business that he's engaged in; yet he seems to be a fine, honest fellow, plays fairly, and I think the best game of poker that I have ever seen; but he is playing with three of the greatest scoundrels unhung; they do not know me, I think, but I do them; and it will be a black day for the rascals when I find them ashore in my State. They will play him some cantrip yet, mark my words; there is nothing that they are not up to; and even if his purse escapes their clutches to night, and there is no other way of fingering his money, they will rob him if allowed to remain on board the boat—but that I will see too. Have you enough interest in the young man to remain by the table with me as long as they may continue to play?"

I replied that I had.

"Are you armed?"

"I have a case of pistols in my stateroom."

"Get them, then," said he, "and meet me at the table in a few minutes. I wish to speak to the captain and clerk."

For half an hour longer the game went on as usual; but at last one of the gamblers, who had won the deal, dropped the cards on the floor, and I was very sure, exchanged them for another pack, probably kept under a handkerchief which was in his lap. My dignified friend gave me a look, and then placed himself in such a position that the gambler could not remove or conceal the first pack without being seen. If it were indeed beneath the handkerchief, as I supposed.

The maneuver had not escaped my acute friend, who chose to let it pass for the moment, not intending to bet on any hand, however good it might be, that he should hold this deal, he afterwards told me. The most determined man, however, cannot always resist temptation.

As he took up his cards I saw them; he had four aces (an invincible) dealt to him, as I thought by mistake; but the after betting puzzled me.

They had been playing for an ante of ten dollars, each putting up the whole pool in turn; the oldest hand put up a 'blind' of fifty dollars, and it was my friend's first say. He 'saw' the blind, that is, he laid down one hundred dollars, and then bet two hundred better, a capital lay, and one very likely to be mistaken by his opponents for 'bluff.' The next hand 'passed,' and the dealer saw the bet and bet two hundred dollars better.

Now it was the oldest hand's turn; he had passed the first say by going blind.
He did not make the blind good, but threw up his cards, and the contest was between the New Yorker and the dealer.
At this juncture you will perceive there were on the table eight hundred and sixty dollars, and it was the New Yorker's turn.
He appeared in deep thought for a moment, examined his hand, studied it, took out a pocket-book and, not finding what he wanted, unbuttoned his vest, and after some time pulled out a money belt and took from it several bills.

"I will cover your bet and bet you a thousand and seventy dollars more," said he at last, as cool as a cucumber.

"What's the seventy for?" asked Legs.

"If you see my bet, it will make it even money," said New York.

It was now the gambler's chance, and he seemed very much excited, and his companions particularly fidgety; he drew a roll of bills from his pocket, then asked his right hand man for the tobacco, it was handed to him under the table, and then he made his bet.

"I believe you're bluffing me, hoss, and have a good mind to call you," said he, "but I won't here; I'll see your bet, and go five hundred better."

The game was becoming very exciting and at this moment I saw my dignified new acquaintance give a slight nod to the clerk of the boat, and the latter walked out upon the guards.

New York was counting his money.
"See your five hundred, and go another thousand," said he, laying down three bills of the State Bank of Tennessee.

Legs examined the money, looked very critically at the pile of bills the New Yorker had by his side, which were seemingly of amount, took a critical survey of the money belt, consulted his companions' eyes, and then said with a hateful sneer:

"Well, sir, here's your thousand, and that makes about six thousand on the table. Nice little sum; most enough to open a snug, quiet bank at New Orleans; but here's five thousand better."

"Hold on, hold on, stranger," cried New York; "you oversize my pile—must have a show for my money, you know."

"The devil you must," retorted Legs.

"If you back down, say so like a man, and then if you are flat-footed I'll lend you a stake to start on. If you don't care to call me, say so, and don't whine like a puppy, or a baby, but give up like a man."

The New Yorker turned very pale, raised his eyes to the surrounding crowd as if to ask whether they deemed that fair play, pretended to examine the money in the pool, but did not reply.

"Quit handin' them shin-plasters, hoss; it's no way likely they'll trouble your pockets; and just call me, or I'll rake down the pile," growled out Legs, in an insolent manner.

"One moment, sir," interrupted my new friend "Here, (throwing a pocket book to the New Yorker,) call him if you wish."

Up jumped the three gamblers, pistols in hand; but before either could grasp the money, they were seized from behind by three stalwart fellows, and then the swearing commenced.

"This game shall be played out, noise or no noise. Open my pocket book, sir, and use the money as you please. Mate, gag those fellows if they swear another oath," said the portly gentleman, in the tone of one born to command.

New York opened the book, found the requisite amount, placed it on the table and then 'called.'

"Call and be d—d! Do you think outsiders can come around looking at our hands, interfering with my game and lending money? No sircree, hoss!" yelled the gambler.

"Will you divide the money, then?"
the gentleman asked.

"Not a bit of it. It's mine, and by G—d I'll have every red cent of it but your five thousand," replied Legs. "Say strangers, (addressing the spectators), can't you see that this is a put up thing, to rob a gentleman? Are you going to stand it?"

"Turn over their hands," said the gentleman, paying no attention to the other's words.

The cards were faced; New York had four aces; Legs, two jacks, king, queen and ten.

"Bloody robbery, by G—d! yelled out the gambler; "but I'll have justice when I get to New Orleans, by G—d!"

"You shall, sir, and before, too; and when you make your complaint, tell Mr.
Baldwin that you were robbed by the Governor of this State, sir; and if I had you ashore, you should have the opportunity of complaining that you expected to be murdered also, on short notice; for as I live, if I ever catch you there, you will be handed over to the Safety Committee before you can turn up jack, smart as you are at it. We have been looking for you three gentlemen for the past year, and if you had been found anywhere on the left bank of the river, we should have had you in prison with your friend Morrell long ere this, or probably dangling from a mulberry or black jack, with your cronies, Cotton and Saunders."

"Captain C—," he continued, addressing the commander of the boat, who had just appeared upon the scene, "is there any island about here that it would pay to colonize?"

"Just exactly the place, sir," returned the captain. "We're right above Dead Man's Island—going into the chute now, sir."

"No inhabitants, I believe?" demanded the Governor.

"None, sir, but rattlesnakes, moccasins and musquitos. Shall I land them there?"

"Yes, with a week's supply of bread; not one drop of liquor. Take their weapons and any tools of their trade they may have about them, away; and if they have any letters or papers on their persons, let the clerk seal them up and deliver them to Mr. Baldwin, with my compliments."

"Adieu, gentlemen," he continued, addressing the gamblers, as the mate and his men were taking them off, gagged and bound; "you will find your baggage and traps at the Recorder's office when you arrive at New Orleans."

"And now, sir," to the New Yorker, "you may return my loan; and if I might advise, I think you had better present the large sum you have just won to some temperance organization; and also, if you will excuse friendly advice, let cards alone for the future, at least among strangers and steamboat travelers."

"I feel truly grateful to you, sir," replied the young man, "and the money shall be disposed of as you suggest, and I have done with games of chance for life."

Personal Habits of Great Men.

Several paragraphs have been going the rounds in relation to the habits of great men, which paragraphs, as usual, are all wrong, inasmuch as we have had the pleasure of dining and hob-nodding with all the great men of this and every other country on the face of the globe, a few illustrations to prove this to the satisfaction of everybody.

Mr. Seward generally rises from his bed in the morning about the time he gets up. He rarely if ever eats his breakfast before he gets it. He is not particular what kind of food he has, if he is provided with what he calls for. In his dress he is plain—never appearing in public without his pantaloons. He never wears his vest outside of his coat. He speaks his native dialect without any foreign accent, and uses his tongue in all that he utters. When he walks he uses his feet, which are encased in boots or shoes. As an evidence of the methodical precision with which he attends to business, it is only necessary to allude to the fact that he invariably draws his salary the moment it is due. His memory in this respect is prodigious. He generally writes his letters on paper, and uses a pen, which at intervals he dips into a stand of ink, that he keeps upon his table.

Horace Greeley is said to be the beau ideal of a man of style. He dresses neatly and elegantly. His linen is faultless. Sometime since he shaved, which operation has materially altered his appearance. His walk is firm and dignified, like that of a soldier. From the fact that all through his life he has kept his arms well shouldered, it is possible that nature intended him for the infantry.
His voice is peculiarly sweet, and when he whispers, one would almost imagine his words were the echoes of an Æolian harp. Somewhat inclined to obesity of late years, he still maintains his reputation as a beau. He reads from right to left, contrary to the practice of his friend, Mr. Bennett, who, owing to a visual ob-liquity, reads from left to right—down the middle, change hands. Mr. Greeley dines on vegetable soup and table beer.
He never drinks porter. His hearty Sunday dinners are of crackers and cheese.
He retires to bed at an early hour, and almost immediately composes himself to sleep with a copy of the Tribune. Sometime, when at a loss for a subject, he varies the monotony of his editorials upon Bennett by writing a pleasant and exhilarating novelty, involving personal and friendly allusions to the almighty nigger.
His editorials are invariably short, (never exceeding four columns each,) pithy and devoid of verbiage.

George McClellan will, should he increase his flesh, be more inclined to cor-pulence. His age is at present somewhat greater than when he graduated at West Point. In disposition he is jocular, when in a joking humor, and exceedingly reti-cent, when he says nothing, which latter fact is amply proved by the brevity and unsatisfactory nature of his dispatches after they have passed through the War Office. As a General he is cautious—particularly so when he is careful. He makes all his advances by going forward, but never adopting the same method of retreating. In his diet he is particularly abstemious when there is nothing to eat, and vice versa. He is extremely approachable when you get near him, otherwise you will be apt to keep your distance.
He does not exercise his troops with a two-inch drill, nor does he bore his friends in conversation with an auger.

SOMEBODY, who writes more truthfully than poetically, says:

"An angel without money is not the so much of now a days as a devil with a bag full of guineas."

It is generally the case that the young men wait on the ladies before marriage, and after, expect the ladies to wait on them all their lives in return.

Declaration of Homestead.

Persons wishing to procure a correct form for making out a Declaration of Homestead, as required by the Act of the last Legislature, with the acknowledgement attached thereto, will find printed blanks, on application to the KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS OFFICE. By filling out these blanks themselves, parties will be subject to no other expense than the fees for acknowledgement and record.

FREIGHT on grain from Knight's Landing to Sacramento, will be carried for $1 50 per ton, by the fine Steamer Visalia, Capt. Zimmerman. See advertisement.

CIRCUS.—Bartholomew's American Circus troupe will give one of their grand entertainments here on Monday night. From the reputation of this company we feel assured the performances will be of a varied and amusing character. To see the Trained Ponies perform, is alone worth the admission fee, and the feats of the other performers are not surpassed in the Equestrian ring. We have no doubt the Circus will be liberally patronized by our citizens.

THAT SUPERVISOR.—In our notice last week of the political and official exit of Supervisor Norton, we should have given him credit for being consistent to the last in at least one thing—he made his last speech clamoring for the allowance of his celebrated account for mileage from San Francisco, to attend two meetings of the Board of this county! If his claim was just and legal, upon the same principle he might claim mileage from San Diego or Constantinople.

TURN ABOUT.—The Board of Supervisors were willing, at their last meeting, to pay Assessor Overshiner "something" on his large claims against the county, for that bungled assessment, about which we have spoken. They were willing to pay him, if he would resign his office; otherwise, not a cent would they allow.

This was partly right, because the assessment roll made out by this Assessor is said to be the most outrageously worthless things ever offered to any civilized people. It is even said to be a disgrace to the Digger Indians who inhabit this coast. So far as the refusal to pay is concerned, the Board was correct in refusing any pay for such services; but why should they offer to pay, if he would resign? This looks too much like the "forty-nine" jury, who returned into Court with a verdict of, "We the jury find the Defendant not guilty—if he leaves town in five minutes." The Board agree that the Assessor has not done the work required by law, and does not deserve any pay, unless he will resign!

We may have occasion, ere long, to inquire why the same rule of conditional payment ought to be applied to this Board. What have they done, and how have they done it? We shall see.

TREASURY NOTES.—The San Francisco Herald states that only $1,000,000 in Treasury notes has yet been sent to this coast, and out of this $600,000, at least has been disbursed by the Government. Of this $600,000, at least $400,000 has been sent to the East, leaving only some $200,000 in circulation. The Federal internal revenue tax will have to be paid in a few days, and it will absorb in a short time all of this description of currency we have amongst us. In a month the public demand for them will raise them to par. Indeed, speculators were purchasing them on Friday and Saturday in anticipation of a rise. The $400,000 yet remaining unemployed will in the same manner be taken up and remitted East.

COTTON PLANT.—Yesterday we saw a thrifty cotton plant, upwards of four feet high, and having about twenty-five branches, on each of which were growing from three to five blossoms or cotton bolls. This plant is in the garden of William Hawley, Esq., on E street. We cut open one of the bolls, and found it to be full of cotton. The plant was raised from a seed, which was planted late in the season.—Express.

FOUR MEN in the town of Danbury, Conn., recently applied to a surgeon to have their hands dressed; three out of the four having deliberately severed the fore finger of the right hand, and the other the fore finger of the left hand—the latter mistaking the hand—and demanded a certificate of exemption from the draft.

B. F. HARDING, Union Democrat, was elected U. S. Senator, from Oregon, on the 12th inst.

Stand from Under.

At last the orders have reached California to put the coercive measures of the Government in operation against its enemies here; and in accordance therewith Gen. Wright has appointed a Military Commission to try all parties thus arrested, and also fitted Fort Alcatraz for their accommodation. We also learn that arrests by the military, are now in order, and some inmates have already taken possession of these new quarters. The Government certainly is right in protecting itself against the acts of traitors, or those who would give aid and assistance to the enemy; but we doubt if, at this distance from the scene of actual conflict, there are any who can aid or abet rebellion, unless they should start for Dixie with the intention of joining the rebels in arms. Such an one should be arrested; but we doubt the policy of arresting men of Southern birth and sentiments—whose relations, and all their youthful associations, are in the South, for them to sympathize in common with the rebels, is not unnatural, in fact, it cannot be expected otherwise; and as long as they keep these sentiments within due bounds, and by no overt act against the Government, display disloyalty, we think they should be allowed to pursue the even tenor of their way. We have passed thus far through the troubles and convulsions of this unnatural war, without being actual participants therein, and the blessings of peace have surrounded us. Our only aim is to see a continuance of this peace. Any act which would tend to disturb our quiet, or to agitate our already excited people, we look upon as unwise. The horrors of civil war none can imagine unless those who participate in it. We appeal to those in power to act with wisdom, cool discretion and firm prudence; let not passion or prejudice have sway. In this way we believe California, at least, may be saved from a servile war.

THE NEW POSTAGE STAMP CURRENCY. The first payments of the new postage stamp currency were made by the Treasury Department at Washington on 21st August. The currency is delivered in sheets, which are perforated like those of postage stamps. The stamps are printed on the best of banknote paper, and are therefore more difficult of separation than the old stamps. The public must therefore be cautious when separating this currency, and not mutilate the notes, as their receipt and redemption by the Treasury Department are subject to the same regulations as now in force for U. S. notes, namely: If any part of the note is missing, a proportionate amount is deducted from the nominal value. For some days payments were expected to absorb a large share of this new currency.

The first delivery of United States notes for $1 and $2, was also made on the same day. These, as well as the postage currency, are delivered and distributed by the Treasurer in the same manner as the United States notes.

The small Treasury notes were ready for delivery. The Department would issue one and twos at the rate of $50,000 a day.

HALLECK AND McCLELLAN.—The Fortress Monroe correspondent of the New York Tribune, writing Aug. 22d, says:

Rumor asserts that a disagreement has arisen between Gen. McClellan and Gen. Halleck, from whom he receives his orders. That a difference has arisen between them as to the policy of evacuating the Peninsula is quite certain. Gen. McClellan believed he could get to Richmond by the route he had traveled the last five months, and asked the privilege of making another trial. Gen. Halleck replied that he had his orders, and was expected to obey them. It is not improbable that Gen. Halleck thinks that Gen. McClellan has taken more time in executing the order to evacuate the Peninsula than was necessary. The order bears date early in August, and nearly or quite twenty days have been consumed in carrying it into effect. The last thing that Gen. McClellan did was to protest against it, and receive a peremptory and spirited reiteration of the order. Three days after, his entire force and all the property of the army were this side the Chickahominy.

MORE SLAVES.—The ship Aurora, which arrived at San Francisco on Saturday, from Hongkong, brings to us another installment of no less than 180 coolies to increase the number of that filthy race in our midst. The more that arrive here, the more the danger of eventually having a pestilence among us.

THE Butte Record hoists the name of Geo. B. McClellan for President, in 1864, subject to the decision of the National Democratic Convention.

BY OVERLAND TELEGRAPH.

The following dispatches are from the Sacramento Union of Sept. 16th:

CINCINNATI, Sept. 12.—A skirmish yesterday afternoon resulted in the capture of 20 prisoners. They report that the rebel army is in good spirits. Kirby Smith made a speech to the army on Wednesday, Sept. 10th, assuring them that he would quarter in Cincinnati in a few days. The prisoners say that Bragg reinforced Smith with twelve regiments. At 10 o'clock this morning the entire rebel army fell back. Their pickets are now five miles from our lines.

ST. JOSEPH, (Mo.), Sept. 12.—The guerrillas did no damage to Palmyra this morning. They remained but a few hours.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13.—From a reconnaissance to the vicinity of North Mountain, seven miles from Williamsport, it was thought that Lee and Jackson recrossed the Potomac near that town. It was thought Longstreet would cross farther up the river.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—From all the reports received, we judge that it is the intention of the rebels to leave Maryland by way of Williamsport. With the force they first threw over the Potomac at or near Edwards' Ferry they could not hope to hold their position, and the only object they could have had in view was the gathering of supplies, of which, doubtless, they carried away immense quantities.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 12th.—The rebel army has fallen back beyond Florence. The strength of the rebels is estimated by prisoners taken by our scouts at from 10,000 to 20,000, only half of which number came this side of Florence. Prisoners say the retreat was made because they heard of Buell's advance into Kentucky.

Our scouts last night reported the enemy retreating in confusion to Florence, ten miles southwest of Cincinnati.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The Star says:

At an early hour yesterday morning a portion of one of our divisions drove the rebels from Sugar Loaf Mountain, a point of much military importance in Frederick county, Md. Some resistance was made but it was overcome with the loss of a half dozen Federals, killed and wounded.

It was ascertained here yesterday that the rebels were in considerable force at Boonesboro, fifteen miles west of Frederick.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 12.—A gentleman who left Frederick yesterday P. M. says:

On Wednesday afternoon heavy firing was heard in the direction of Harper's Ferry. The Secessionists seemed very much troubled about the news from that quarter, which was to the effect that the rebel Gen. Loring crossed the Potomac at Williamsport and marched towards Harper's Ferry, where he commenced an attack on the Federal force. The Federals opened masked batteries upon the rebels, repulsing them with great slaughter. It is also reported that we took many prisoners.

Our informant says the rebels commenced moving from Frederick on Tuesday night—their force numbering about 30,000. They moved in retreating order, with trains in advance. He thinks they do not intend invading Pennsylvania, but have been driven into Maryland for supplies. He confirms the previous account of the utter wretchedness and destitution of the rebel hordes.

The rebels abandoned Westminster and marched in the direction of Hagerstown. They obtained several recruits, taking none, however, but those who were fully armed.

NEW YORK, Sept.—Specials to the New York papers say:

A citizen of Frederick, Maryland, arrived at Washington yesterday, having left after the evacuation. He says the rebel force was estimated at from 50,000 to 60,000. His neighbors had lost all their cattle, provisions, blankets—everything that could be applied to the use of the army being taken by the rebels, who paid for nothing. They declined even offering Confederate notes. He says that very few Marylanders have as yet joined the rebels.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The Government yesterday completed arrangements for the settlement of free colored persons in Central America, the precise place depending on circumstances. Senator Pomeroy will conduct the expedition. He has full power in the premises, and will start early in October with 500 persons, all provided with implements of husbandry. Four thousand colored persons have already informed Pomeroy of their desire to avail themselves of the President's colonization scheme.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 12.—Fifteen thousand men, under Buell, leave to-morrow night to pay their respects to Kerby Smith's rear. Eight thousand of Rosecrans' army arrived to-day. This city is being fortified.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 13.—Heavy artillery firing was heard at Greencastle and Chambersburg this morning, in the direction of Williamsport, Md. The main body of the rebels does not appear to have gone to Hagerstown. Longstreet's division only is there, numbering 20,000 or 30,000—apparently to obtain forage and supplies for the balance of the rebel army.

The reported retreat of Jackson is not credited in well informed circles here, and the active preparations of the Government indicate that it does not put much trust in it. It is more probable that the rebel army will select Williamsport as a base of operations, and establish a connection with Virginia at that point.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13.—Our information in regard to the crossing of the Potomac is from the most reliable sources. Dispatches from Frederick, dated noon to-day, say firing in the direction of Harper's Ferry was heard early this morning. It continued till 11 o'clock, then ceased and commenced again at noon.

Gen. Hooker took possession of Frederick last night. Gen. McClellan entered that city this morning.

A dispatch also says that we captured the rebel wagon trains. The impression at Frederick is that the cannonading was undoubtedly at Harper's Ferry.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Sept. 14.—It is reported that a portion of Jackson's forces, after recrossing the Potomac, marched on Martinsburg, with the intention of capturing the Federal forces. Information of this fact having reached General White, commanding there, he evacuated the place, and succeeded in reaching Harper's Ferry. There seems to have been an attack on the latter place, but accounts are so meager that we cannot say as to the result further than the Federals hold their position.

A report says that the rebels are plant-guns on Maryland Heights. I was feared that the Federals would have to surrender.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 15.—Further particulars of the Mumfordsville, Ky., fight have been received. The rebels, under Gen. Duncan, numbering from five to seven thousand, made an attack from both sides of the river, and boldly advanced to our breastworks, but was repulsed with fearful loss. The Federal forces, 2,500 strong, were reinforced by the 50th Indiana Regiment, who, during the fight, came up behind the rebels, firing a volley, killing a number and stampeding the balance. The Federal loss was 8 killed 27 wounded. The rebels who brought a flag of truce admit a loss of 400 killed. Two cannon were captured from the enemy.

GALLUPOLIS, O., Sept. 15.—Reports agree that the enemy were severely handled and repulsed with great slaughter in the late engagement at Charleston, Va. Col. Lightburn brought off all his trains safely. The Federal force cut off at Somerville succeeded in joining the Col before the fight at Charleston. The enemy is supposed to be slowly moving down the Kanawha.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 16.—The enemy advanced yesterday and drove in our pickets. 2½ miles this side of Florence, Ky. They seem inclined to occupy their old camping ground within sight of our lines.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—A dispatch to Gen. Halleck from Gen. McClellan, three miles beyond Middletown, Md., this morning, says:

I have just learned from Hooker, who is in advance, that the enemy is making for the river in a perfect panic. Franklin's success on the left was as complete as that in the center, and resulted in his getting possession of the rap (South Mountain), after a severe engagement on all parts of his line. The corps of Longstreet and Hill were engaged on our right. We have taken a considerable number of prisoners. The enemy disappeared during the night. Our troops are advancing in pursuit as rapidly as they can move. Lee is reported wounded, and Garland killed.

At 10 A. M. McClellan telegraphed again that information received completely confirms the rout and demoralization of the rebel army. Our loss is not stated but it is thought not to be severe. Our troops, old and new, behaved with great steadiness and gallantry, carrying with but little assistance from artillery, a very strong position defended by infantry and artillery. It is stated that Lee gives his loss at 15,000.

FREDERICK, Sept. 16.—We regret to announce the surrender of Harper's Ferry, with all the forces and stores there, to the enemy, at 9 o'clock on Monday morning. The rebels commenced the attack on Friday at noon on our forces, on Maryland Heights. Skirmishing continued throughout the day. The enemy were driven back with considerable loss. The attack was renewed on Saturday, when the enemy approached in overwhelming force. Orders were given to spike the guns and throw them down the mountain. The whole force from the Heights returned to the ferry in safety—the guns from Camp Hill checking the enemy when they attempted to pursue our retreating men. On Sunday at noon the rebels appeared in great force on Loudon Heights. The Federals held them from point to point, which they replied to. The cannonading continued throughout the day and was resumed on Monday morning, when the white flag was raised. She rebels, however, continued firing for three quarters of an hour afterwards, 2,300 cavalry escaped on Sunday night, cutting their way through the enemy, and arrived at Greencastle, Pa., with little loss. The balance of the troops, 6,000 or 8,000, with Gen. White's command from Martinsburg, surrendered.

On Monday afternoon one of General Stewart's aids was captured while en route to Boonesboro to announce the surrender to Gen. Lee. This was the first intimation our forces had of it; at which time Franklin was within 3 hours march of the Ferry, whither, it is said, he had been ordered by McClellan for the relief of the garrison as soon as he received the dispatch from there announcing that the place was in danger.

FREDERICK, Sept. 16.—Intelligence from the front this morning is most cheering, notwithstanding the bad news from Harper's Ferry. On Monday morning, McClellan, with his reserves and fresh troops, pursued the enemy with destructive vigor. The enemy took the road towards the river at Harper's Ferry and Shepardsville, McClellan following and shelling their rear. When the enemy made a stand, our troops would charge, driving them from point to point in great haste. The advantage gained yesterday is thought to be even more important than that of Sunday. Drayton's South Carolina brigade was entirely used up, being either killed, wounded or prisoners.

Howell Cobb was wounded and captured. McClellan continued pushing them last evening, and had sent to the rear for batteries. Eight thousand men, with less than the usual proportion of officers, have been made prisoners.

MUMFORDSVILLE, Sept. 16.—The rebels under Bragg attacked our forces this afternoon, and it is said the Federal forces have been fighting bravely, determined to hold the post. The enemy's force is represented to be large.

LATER.—We learn that a portion of Buell's army arrived and engaged Bragg's forces.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 16.—It is ascertained that the enemy are still in position south of Florence, intrenching and awaiting reinforcements. Humphrey Marshall's forces have joined them. The rebels blockaded the river nine miles below here yesterday, but left on the approach of our gunboats.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—Harrisburg dispatches say that communication is open to Hagerstown, showing that the place has been totally abandoned by the rebels and occupied by our troops.

JUMPED OVERBOARD.—On the passage up from San Francisco last night, a young man named Joseph Hatch, a passenger on the Antelope, and a resident of Knight's Landing, Yolo county, became deranged, jumped overboard and was drowned. He came aboard at San Francisco, and it was observed that he seemed depressed in spirits. He did not patronize the bar. About midnight a boy went to the mate and told him that a crazy man was the upper deck, and was flourishing a pistol. Men were sent up to take charge of him, but he had disappeared, and his coat was found lying on the stearn near the flag staff. He was not seen afterwards, and it was very apparent that he leaped overboard and was drowned. He took the leap when the boat was about opposite the Grape Vine Ranch.—Sac. Bee, 13th.

Joseph Hatch was a resident of this township, where he has a father and mother living. He has been for several years of a rather singular turned mind—avoiding company, and seldom speaking, except in monosyllables, even to his relative, but always acted, however, in a very proper manner. He is of respectable connections, and prior to this, no one considered him insane. For a few weeks previous to his leaving for San Francisco, however, he was rather more than usually eccentric. He took all his clothes and nailed them up in a hollow tree before leaving, and told no one where he was going. This is evidently a bad case of insanity.

Since writing the above, we learn this unfortunate man succeed in getting ashore on the Yolo side of the Sacramento river, and when last heard from, was running wild in the Tules. He had divested himself of all his clothes except a shirt, and begrimed with mud, and armed with a formidable club, his appearance was ferocious. He told the parties who saw him not to come near him, as he knew they wanted to kill him, and he would defend himself with his club.

THE GREAT EXHIBITION.—There were to the Great Exhibition in London 18,932 exhibitors, and the total awards by the jurors amount to 4,144 medals and honorable mentions. This gives 47 1/2 per cent. of prizes. France has a total of 3,160, and has obtained the extraordinary number of 2,649 awards, being at the rate of 84 per cent. of prizes. Belgium has 863 exhibitors, and 412 awards, being 45 1/2 per cent. of prizes. Prussia, with 1,551 exhibitors, only carries off 556 awards, or 36 per cent. of prizes. Austria is much more fortunate, and secures 876 prizes, with 1,410 exhibitors, or 62 1/2 per cent. of premiums. A little one-horse German State, Wirtemberg by name, sails in with enormous pluck, finds a representative for almost every class, and, with only 196 exhibitors, carries off 124 of the most creamy awards, being 64 per cent. of glory. Italy has 1,300 exhibitors, and receives 647 awards, or 49 1/2 per cent. Russia has 659 showoffs, who succeed in taking home 298 prizes for the young Ivans, being 45 1/2 per cent. Switzerland, in a very lopsided collection, of 357, gets 197 awards, or 55 per cent.; and last, but not by any means least, the United States, with 98 exhibitors, (this is the exact number,) obtains 80 prizes, being a lush 92 per cent. of triumph.

REBEL STRATEGY.—The Sacramento Bee says: John Shea, of Gardiner, Me., was in Texas when the war broke out, in the employ of W. S. Grant, a Government contractor. He tried to make his way home, but was stopped at New Orleans by the watchfulness of the rebels, and finding all efforts to proceed were in vain, and that he would probably be impressed, he enlisted in the 7th Louisiana Regiment. He was with the regiment at the first day's fight at Bull Run. During the afternoon he says that his regiment was kept marching over and round a knoll, so that it represented twelve regiments of reinforcements. Another dodge of the rebels was to send an engine out a few miles, and have it soon return whistling, as though reinforcements were rapidly arriving. This is how George Wilkes was bewildered when he wrote about the fifty thousand reinforcements coming on to the field to assist the rebels in the afternoon of that day! He and others heard the cars and saw the men marching in a continual round, and believed that all rebellion was there.

How it Costs.—W. M. Lent inquired from the Pacific Mail Steamship Company how much they would charge to land 1,000 troops at Panama from San Francisco, and they answered $83,000, which is $83 per head.

THE Knight's Landing News.

A married woman at Chicago, Ill., got angry at her husband, and jumped over the banisters of the stairs, leading in the hall below and broke one of her legs, she claimed:

"There, you scoundrel! now you will have to pay a doctor and a nurse for me!"

THOMAS MOOR was not less a wit than a man of sentiment. A beautiful woman, who wore on her breast a miniature likeness of her ugly husband, asked him whom he thought it was like?

"I think it is like the Saracen's Head on Snowhill."

A FEW days since, at an evening party, a gentleman handed his wife a glass of wine. Some one asking her if it was Madeira, she replied:

"I presume, for it came from my Deary."

An actor, who was extremely ugly, was playing a part in which a lady had to say to him:

"Ah! sir, you change countenances."

A wag in the pit exclaimed, "pray let him do so, don't stop him."

MANUFACTURERS AGENTS, AND dealers in Pitt's, Ball's, Russell's, and other popular Thrashing Machines.

Also, the following

Reapers and Mowers, Improved for the harvest of 1862: Burt's Eagle Combined Machine; New York do.; McCormick's do.; Heath's Eagle do.; Kentucky Harvesting Machine; Haines' (Illinois) do.; Ball's Ohio Reaper and Mower; Manny's Improved Machine.

Esterly's Improved Machine; Rugg's Combined machine; Vermont mowing machine; Buckeye do.; Bay State do.; Molly Stark (Ohio) Mower.

And sole agents for the celebrated Nourse, Mason & Co's Ketchum's Improved Mowers, With or without Reaper attachments—the best mowing machine in use. They will be finished this season at greatly reduced prices, bringing them within the reach of every farmer. These machines are very much improved, and never fail in the matted or lodged clover—cutting with equal ease the tall or tangled grass without clogging or breaking; and so close that it will save from one to five dollars' worth of hay per acre more than any other machine. They are furnished with Reaper Attachment, at small cost—making them a good and serviceable combined machine; and when all other machines have failed in the tangled grain, the work has been done by the Ketchum machine to the perfect satisfaction of all. The one horse machine cuts four feet; the light two-horse machine cuts four and a half and five feet—two sizes; the heavy two-horse machine cuts five and five and a half feet, two sizes. Any boy capable of driving the team can manage the machine; it is not liable to get out of order.

The New Bay State two-wheeled Mower.—We have purchased the patent right to the New Bay State Mower for the State of California. It is one of the many machines lately invented, and stands far ahead of all others in point of excellence as a two-wheeled mowing machine, having all the new improvements that have been fairly tested. It is very light, strong, durable machine, and cuts full four and a half feet.

The Vermont Mower—Also, a two-wheeled machine. It is made mostly of iron, simple in construction, and can be managed with ease.

The Buckeye Machine has two driving wheels like the Vermont machine, and is simple in its construction.

The Molly Stark Mower, (manufactured at Canton, Ohio), is a very light mower, of the Buckeye pattern.

Ball's Ohio Harvester, (manufactured at Canton, Ohio), is a two-wheeled Reaper and Mower. Has two cutter bars—one for reaping and one for mowing. We have imported a few for trial this season.

The Kentucky Harvester cuts about five and a half feet. Said to be a very good machine.

McCormick's Reaper and Mower—a very good reaper—intended for four large horses.

Burt's Eagle Reaper and Mower, (Improved for 1862.) Baker & Hamilton, sole agents for this machine in California and Oregon.

We have imported these machines for the past two years, which were furnished to some of our neighboring farmers and thoroughly tested. They gave general satisfaction both in cutting grain and grass. The style is very much the same as the celebrated Esterly's machine, except that they are better made; have a strong iron finger bar; are hand-raking reapers and have no side draft. They have a large four foot driving wheel. The outside grain wheel is thirty inches in diameter. The driver's seat is over two iron truck wheels, each thirty inches in diameter, and the machine may be turned round without crowding the horses, as there is no weight upon their necks. They have two sets of gearing for fast and slow motion; a smooth knife for mowing, and a sickle for reaping; the back of each is made of hammered cast steel. They cut about six and a half feet, and can be worked with two light horses. We have but a few for this season's trade, owing to the fact that the great demand at the factory made it impossible for the manufacturer to fill our orders for a large number in season for shipment to this market.

Rugg's Reaper and Mower, cutting six and nine feet. This machine cuts in advance of the horses, and the cutter can be raised by the driver from one to twenty-four inches. Sold very cheap.

Haines' Illinois Harvester, or Header, cuts ten feet. Improved for the harvest of 1862. We have also imported complete sets of trucks, or running gear for header-wagons, with neck yokes and whiffletrees complete.

P. Manny's Improved Combined Reaper and Mower.—This is a new style of machine, very light, yet strongly built, lately patented by P. Manny, in which there are many valuable improvements. We are willing to guarantee this Combined Reaper and Mower in every instance.

We have imported a large stock of extras for repairing Reapers, Mowers and Thrashers, all of which will be sold cheap for cash.

—ALSO— Haying and Harvesting Tools

Of every description necessary to meet the wants of the farmers. These they have in large quantities, and can supply to traders wholesale and retail, at San Francisco prices.

All kinds of Farming Implements, Hardware and Seeds.

We are determined not to be undersold by any other house in the State; and invite customers to call and examine for themselves at our
