

In defense of the object of my labors in Maine, it is well known that the Liberty Standard has, of late, exhibited great sensitiveness upon the subject of sectarianism...

After the reading of the annual report, a vote was passed, inviting all persons who were members of the society or from abroad, to sit as members, and participate in the deliberations of the meeting.

Resolved, That we agree with James G. Birney, that the American churches (are) the bulwarks of American civilization...

On the hearing of these resolutions, the greatest excitement immediately seized the convention...

The calm that ensued, on the dissemination of the address of the central committee of Texas among the churches...

On Thursday morning, a resolution, supposed to be a remonstrance to the Convention, was read the fourth resolution...

On Saturday morning, a resolution, supposed to be a remonstrance to the Convention, was read the fourth resolution...

On Monday morning, a resolution, supposed to be a remonstrance to the Convention, was read the fourth resolution...

to elevate them to the high places of power. "If they do these things in the green tree, what shall be done in the dry?"...

"As soon" says Mr. Edwards, "as the above resolutions are promulgated by the political members of the war..."

"At this time, the public press in Brazoria, (the only one in Texas,) had been taken possession of by the United company of whigs, as they termed themselves..."

"Now, as Providence would have it, once more Col. Stephen F. Austin, appeared among them. Of his arrival..."

"The war party now raised in full the standard of 'Non-Resistance' in opposition to the general government. Emigrants were despatched to the United States..."

"The abolitionists, from the first, have resolved to set upon the Convention, by making it the interest of both parties already existing to set upon abolition principles."

"The calm that ensued, on the dissemination of the address of the central committee of Texas among the churches..."

"During the existence of the previous legislature of the federal party, certain unprincipled speculators had introduced a bill for the survey of all vacant lands..."

"This land was the public domain of the Mexican republic; and consequently, the legislature of Texas is not entitled to dispose of it..."

"The exhibition of 'raw head and bloody bones,' may well be supposed, here, the Texas (to) be a source of reproach to the anti-slavery cause."

"The exhibition of 'raw head and bloody bones,' may well be supposed, here, the Texas (to) be a source of reproach to the anti-slavery cause."

"The exhibition of 'raw head and bloody bones,' may well be supposed, here, the Texas (to) be a source of reproach to the anti-slavery cause."

to the capture of a Mexican custom-house officer, and his men, by a detachment of the Texas Rangers. But even at that period, the Texans in general were so convinced that they had no good ground of complaint against the Mexicans...

"At this time, the public press in Brazoria, (the only one in Texas,) had been taken possession of by the United company of whigs, as they termed themselves..."

"The war party now raised in full the standard of 'Non-Resistance' in opposition to the general government. Emigrants were despatched to the United States..."

"The abolitionists, from the first, have resolved to set upon the Convention, by making it the interest of both parties already existing to set upon abolition principles."

"The calm that ensued, on the dissemination of the address of the central committee of Texas among the churches..."

"During the existence of the previous legislature of the federal party, certain unprincipled speculators had introduced a bill for the survey of all vacant lands..."

"This land was the public domain of the Mexican republic; and consequently, the legislature of Texas is not entitled to dispose of it..."

"The exhibition of 'raw head and bloody bones,' may well be supposed, here, the Texas (to) be a source of reproach to the anti-slavery cause."

"The exhibition of 'raw head and bloody bones,' may well be supposed, here, the Texas (to) be a source of reproach to the anti-slavery cause."

"The exhibition of 'raw head and bloody bones,' may well be supposed, here, the Texas (to) be a source of reproach to the anti-slavery cause."

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart. He is not a true abolitionist, unless he is not a moral evil...

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

"I visited Ashfield, and held one meeting only; because the people there were thinking so much more about their own situation than about the rights of others..."

It was common, in those times, for the French, who were emigrating to the United States, to place their money on a ship, and then to be seized by the British privateers, with which the seas abound.

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

of a moral evil; but the lips may confess what it is not in the heart. He acknowledges nothing as evil, that it is not in his own heart...

The Anti-Slavery Standard.

NEW-YORK, THURSDAY, FEBY. 16, 1843.

NOTES AND RECAPITULATIONS.

"It is a profound question to answer," says Coleridge, "why it is that, since the middle of the sixteenth century, the Reformation (from proper) has not advanced one step in Europe."

"It is a profound question to answer," says Coleridge, "why it is that, since the middle of the sixteenth century, the Reformation (from proper) has not advanced one step in Europe."

"It is a profound question to answer," says Coleridge, "why it is that, since the middle of the sixteenth century, the Reformation (from proper) has not advanced one step in Europe."

"It is a profound question to answer," says Coleridge, "why it is that, since the middle of the sixteenth century, the Reformation (from proper) has not advanced one step in Europe."

"It is a profound question to answer," says Coleridge, "why it is that, since the middle of the sixteenth century, the Reformation (from proper) has not advanced one step in Europe."

"It is a profound question to answer," says Coleridge, "why it is that, since the middle of the sixteenth century, the Reformation (from proper) has not advanced one step in Europe."

"It is a profound question to answer," says Coleridge, "why it is that, since the middle of the sixteenth century, the Reformation (from proper) has not advanced one step in Europe."

"It is a profound question to answer," says Coleridge, "why it is that, since the middle of the sixteenth century, the Reformation (from proper) has not advanced one step in Europe."

"It is a profound question to answer," says Coleridge, "why it is that, since the middle of the sixteenth century, the Reformation (from proper) has not advanced one step in Europe."

"It is a profound question to answer," says Coleridge, "why it is that, since the middle of the sixteenth century, the Reformation (from proper) has not advanced one step in Europe."

TALES OF OPPRESSION.

BY ISAAC T. HOPPER.

THEODORE, a malto, the son of a Frenchman, was placed as an apprentice to Stephen Burroughs, of Philadelphia, saddle and harness maker...

THEODORE, a malto, the son of a Frenchman, was placed as an apprentice to Stephen Burroughs, of Philadelphia, saddle and harness maker...

THEODORE, a malto, the son of a Frenchman, was placed as an apprentice to Stephen Burroughs, of Philadelphia, saddle and harness maker...

THEODORE, a malto, the son of a Frenchman, was placed as an apprentice to Stephen Burroughs, of Philadelphia, saddle and harness maker...

THEODORE, a malto, the son of a Frenchman, was placed as an apprentice to Stephen Burroughs, of Philadelphia, saddle and harness maker...

THEODORE, a malto, the son of a Frenchman, was placed as an apprentice to Stephen Burroughs, of Philadelphia, saddle and harness maker...

THEODORE, a malto, the son of a Frenchman, was placed as an apprentice to Stephen Burroughs, of Philadelphia, saddle and harness maker...

THEODORE, a malto, the son of a Frenchman, was placed as an apprentice to Stephen Burroughs, of Philadelphia, saddle and harness maker...

Communications.

LETTER FROM DR. HUSSON.

GREENFIELD, MASS. NOV. 17, 1843. In Greenfield, a beautifully located village, surrounded by a delicious country...

LETTER FROM BETH, MAINE.

It is amusing to hear expression, "I am an abolitionist," coming as it daily does, from individuals who take very good care to commence with a preliminary vindication of slavery...

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11, 1843. A northern member of the House informed me, a few days ago, that a southern representative had asked him on that day, what he thought about admitting Texas.

He answered, that he was entirely opposed to it, for two reasons. First, we had territory enough, and secondly, Texas would not be admitted into the Union until she had her slaves free.

The southern member then read part of a letter, which he had just received from a friend of his in Texas; the purport of which was, that the country was in consternation at the late capture of the army; that they had no resources, of any kind, for defense; that if the Mexicans should invade the country...

Mr. Adams, on a motion to print a report on the relief of the States by funds provided by the general government, was a very effective, though brief address in favor of some measure of that sort.

Mr. Adams, on a motion to print a report on the relief of the States by funds provided by the general government, was a very effective, though brief address in favor of some measure of that sort.

Mr. Adams, on a motion to print a report on the relief of the States by funds provided by the general government, was a very effective, though brief address in favor of some measure of that sort.

Mr. Adams, on a motion to print a report on the relief of the States by funds provided by the general government, was a very effective, though brief address in favor of some measure of that sort.

Mr. Adams, on a motion to print a report on the relief of the States by funds provided by the general government, was a very effective, though brief address in favor of some measure of that sort.

Mr. Adams, on a motion to print a report on the relief of the States by funds provided by the general government, was a very effective, though brief address in favor of some measure of that sort.

Mr. Adams, on a motion to print a report on the relief of the States by funds provided by the general government, was a very effective, though brief address in favor of some measure of that sort.

are too apt not to estimate rightly the great value of such services as this, because, from the vast nature of the case, its effects are gradual and progressive, and cannot be made to show themselves at once in visible and tangible terms.

He has lately been editor of the New Genesee Farmer; and we regret to hear that, owing to unfortunate circumstances, connected with other individuals, he has lost his year's work entirely, so far as pecuniary compensation is concerned.

It seems to me that one who understands the dignified simplicity of true womanhood, will never talk of our "lords," and "chivalry," or "bravery," or propose to "wish to the State, with a view" to a "new supply."

It seems to me that one who understands the dignified simplicity of true womanhood, will never talk of our "lords," and "chivalry," or "bravery," or propose to "wish to the State, with a view" to a "new supply."

It seems to me that one who understands the dignified simplicity of true womanhood, will never talk of our "lords," and "chivalry," or "bravery," or propose to "wish to the State, with a view" to a "new supply."

It seems to me that one who understands the dignified simplicity of true womanhood, will never talk of our "lords," and "chivalry," or "bravery," or propose to "wish to the State, with a view" to a "new supply."

It seems to me that one who understands the dignified simplicity of true womanhood, will never talk of our "lords," and "chivalry," or "bravery," or propose to "wish to the State, with a view" to a "new supply."

It seems to me that one who understands the dignified simplicity of true womanhood, will never talk of our "lords," and "chivalry," or "bravery," or propose to "wish to the State, with a view" to a "new supply."

It seems to me that one who understands the dignified simplicity of true womanhood, will never talk of our "lords," and "chivalry," or "bravery," or propose to "wish to the State, with a view" to a "new supply."

passed the Senate without opposition. We are now surprised and grieved to hear that the House of Representatives have, by a large majority, postponed the subject indefinitely.

TO THE ABOLITIONISTS OF MAINE.—This article, beginning on the first page, gives an account of the late anniversary of the Maine Anti-Slavery Society, at Hallowell.

TO THE ABOLITIONISTS OF MAINE.—This article, beginning on the first page, gives an account of the late anniversary of the Maine Anti-Slavery Society, at Hallowell.

TO THE ABOLITIONISTS OF MAINE.—This article, beginning on the first page, gives an account of the late anniversary of the Maine Anti-Slavery Society, at Hallowell.

TO THE ABOLITIONISTS OF MAINE.—This article, beginning on the first page, gives an account of the late anniversary of the Maine Anti-Slavery Society, at Hallowell.

TO THE ABOLITIONISTS OF MAINE.—This article, beginning on the first page, gives an account of the late anniversary of the Maine Anti-Slavery Society, at Hallowell.

TO THE ABOLITIONISTS OF MAINE.—This article, beginning on the first page, gives an account of the late anniversary of the Maine Anti-Slavery Society, at Hallowell.

TO THE ABOLITIONISTS OF MAINE.—This article, beginning on the first page, gives an account of the late anniversary of the Maine Anti-Slavery Society, at Hallowell.

TO THE ABOLITIONISTS OF MAINE.—This article, beginning on the first page, gives an account of the late anniversary of the Maine Anti-Slavery Society, at Hallowell.

TO THE ABOLITIONISTS OF MAINE.—This article, beginning on the first page, gives an account of the late anniversary of the Maine Anti-Slavery Society, at Hallowell.

PROTECTION TO SLAVES.

The New York Tribune copies the following from a Louisiana paper, without a word of explanation, or comment.

LETTERS FROM NEW-YORK.—No. 50.

I have of late received two or three epistles, expressing a strong wish that I would "come out concerning the Rights of Women;" giving, as a reason therefor, "that it is a legitimate branch of the anti-slavery enterprise."

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

GENERAL NEWS.—The following is the substance of a letter just received, at this office, dated...

NOTICES.

FIRST WESTERN N. Y. ANTI-SLAVERY FAIR! To be held at Rochester, on the 22d & 23d of March, 1843.

ANTI-SLAVERY CONVENTIONS FOR THE PEOPLE, IN WESTERN NEW-YORK. Anti-slavery conventions will be held at the following places, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M., and to continue...

WESTERN NEW-YORK ANTI-SLAVERY FAIR. To be held in Rochester, on the 22d & 23d of March, 1843.

MEMORIALS.—The following names have been presented to the Legislature, in relation to the petition of the Maine Anti-Slavery Society, at Hallowell...

PUBLISHING AGENT.—S. C. Mearl, of New York, has been appointed publishing agent of the Standard...

RIGHT OF COMPENSATION.—A meeting of the Junior Anti-Slavery Society will be held at the Court House, in this city, on the 21st of March...

CLARKSON ANTI-SLAVERY SOCIETY.—A meeting of said society will be held at West-Groton, on the 27th of Feb. at 8 o'clock P. M.

NOTICE.—A meeting of the Union Free Profitee Society will be held at Oxford, Pa., on the 21st of Feb. at 8 o'clock P. M.

Poetry.

Miscellany.

Very sweet young lady!

REMOVAL.

For the National Anti-Slavery Standard. THE FOUNTAIN. BY JAMES WALKER LOWELL. Into the sunbeam, Full of the light, Leaping and flashing, From room to night!

From GIBBS AND CHECKERS. BY N. WILLES. The guests at the Astor house were looking merrily out at the drawing-room windows, on a certain day in an October passed over to history. No shouting, no hurrying, no bustle, must be passed in-doors. And it was some consolation to those who were in town for a few days to see the world, that their time was not quite lost, for the assemblage was so numerous and gay.

Very sweet young lady! thought old farmer Bracy, as he looked at the new girl, who was so very young and so very beautiful. "Very well—how long your consecration?" thought Eph, distrustfully. "I have not a pig and chickens?" thought Miss Piffit, disgusted and bewildered.

REMOVAL. LYDIA WHITE has removed from 219 North Second street, to the Northwest corner of Fifth and Cherry streets, where she has taken a new and more commodious place, and is now prepared to receive orders for all kinds of groceries, the produce of free-labor, wholesale and retail.

REMOVAL. EDWARD M. DAVIS, Philadelphia. THE GRASSHOPPER, 63 Barclay Street, New York. WESTMINSTER REVIEWS: Blackwood's and the Dublin University Magazines.

REMOVAL. EDWARD M. DAVIS, Philadelphia. THE GRASSHOPPER, 63 Barclay Street, New York. WESTMINSTER REVIEWS: Blackwood's and the Dublin University Magazines.

Little thinks in the field you red-cloaked clown. Of the hills-top looking down. And the better to look in the upland farm, Far-beard, low not fine ear charm; The sexton, tolling the bell at noon, Dreams not that great Napoleon Sops his horse, and lists with argument, As his eyes sweep round the distant height; Nor knoweth thou what delight Thy life to thy neighbor's creed has lent: All are agreed by each one— Nothing is fair, or good alone.

My dear Julia! (This was a romantic vision of Meg's, which she had forced upon her intimate friends at the point of the bayonet.) "Oh, but there was a mock respectfulness in that deep courtesy," thought Eph, (and so there was—Miss Hampton took an irresistible cue from the inflated courtesy of the young ladies.)

CHAPTER II. Bracy farm, ten o'clock of a glorious summer morning—Miss Piffit extended upon a sofa in despondency. A week before she had received from Miss Hampton, who to the delight and surprise of her friend Margerite, had taken the whim to pass the winter at Bracy farm, and she had just returned from a visit to her friend.

CHAPTER III. The eruption of Mount Etna. The eruption took place in the fore part of December last. We were in Palermo, by the Messine road, at half-past 7 o'clock, on Monday morning, December 15th, and towards sunset, on the following day, arrived at the volcano, on the occasion of the eruption of Mount Etna.

CHAPTER IV. The eruption of Mount Etna. The eruption took place in the fore part of December last. We were in Palermo, by the Messine road, at half-past 7 o'clock, on Monday morning, December 15th, and towards sunset, on the following day, arrived at the volcano, on the occasion of the eruption of Mount Etna.

CHAPTER V. The eruption of Mount Etna. The eruption took place in the fore part of December last. We were in Palermo, by the Messine road, at half-past 7 o'clock, on Monday morning, December 15th, and towards sunset, on the following day, arrived at the volcano, on the occasion of the eruption of Mount Etna.