COMMITTEES MEET DISCUSS WEEK'S PLANS

Decide Parade Will Necessitate the Use of 750 Automobiles

PARADE BE MONSTER General Committee to Meet Again This Afternoon to Further Plans

ILLITERACY SHOWN BY PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Thoughtful attention to the illiteracy disclosed by the war and the fact that 5,000,000 boys and girls in America are not attending school, was urged by President Harding in a proclamation today declaring December 4 to 10, American Education Week.

Monday was committee meeting day for several of the groups who are responsible for working out the program to be followed in the celebration of American Education week in Glendale. The newspaper committee met in the auditorium of the high school and discussed the literature to be published and plans for its proper presentation.

At the intermediate newspaper committee for the city schools had a meeting and Miss Sharpe and Mr. Merrill went over part of the essays written by children and submitted by their teachers as material upon which the committee will draw in preparing its copy next week. It was a big task and one meeting was not sufficient to cover it.

The general committee had a conference at the high school at which problems connected with the auto parade of school children planned for next Monday were presented and discussed.

It was agreed that 750 automobiles would be needed to transport the children and as a means of securing them the principal of each school was made a sub-committee of one to take the matter up with the children of her school and through them secure the voluntary tender of automobiles to be used in the parade, with full particulars in regard to the number each machine will carry. Only in this way by making each school a unit unto itself to work out the problem, can enough conveyances be secured for this convincing demonstration of the magnitude of the schools of our city in which 4000 pupils are enrolled.

It was also agreed that such a parade would not be possible without the co-operation of the city authorities and Mr. Lockwood was instructed to go before the city council Monday evening and ask for a permit for the parade. This he did and the permit was gladly granted by the city fathers with instructions to Chief of Police Martin to arrange with Mr. Lockwood in regard to the route to be followed, and to co-operate in every way necessary for the maintenance of order and regulation of traffic.

This afternoon the general committee will have another meeting to receive Mr. Lockwood's report and continue on the plans for the parade and other features of the week's celebration.

CAT SHOW OPENED IN GLENDALE TODAY MANY ENTRIES

Every Variety of Cat Is on Exhibition for Two-Day Show Here

The Glendale Cat Show opened this morning and at a comparatively early hour lovers of the furry darlings were finding their way to the advertised place at 138-140 North Brand which proved to be the old K. of P. hall upstairs, which had been made most attractive by draping the walls with olive boughs and grape vines. From mats and tables, kittens and old cats in every variety of cat color, black, white, silver, brown, yellow and smoke color, were beautifully groomed and very self-possessed, though evidently bored by society. Some plaintively entreated passerby to give them their liberty, others responded to invitations to play with their tags all by their lonesomes. There is not a single cat in the show that a real cat lover could not covet. The short-haired cats held their own unabashed by the aristocratic company in which they found themselves and all in all it is an exhibit much worth while to cat fanciers and cat lovers.

What You Do Measure of What You Receive Says James W. Foley

"If you never do any more than you have to do you will never be any more than you are." This is from that splendid feature "The Listening Post" on the editorial page this evening.

It's just a bit of sound reasoning from the pen of James W. Foley and we ask you to turn to the article and read it. You will be the better for having read it. Henry James has something to say about the tooting of the whistle of a locomotive but he has more to say about the man who whistles. It's well that Mr. James has his comment column as a safety valve. Occasionally he blows and this is one of the occasions.

Dr. Frank Crane writes about the frankness and he says the lack of frankness, the undisciplined passion for individualism that are characteristic of these times do no greater harm than when they work in the minds of young women to bring about a contempt for the greatest business on earth—the business of being a successful wife and mother.

Della Stewart says lack of faith is the greatest trouble in the world today. There are other thoughts expressed on the editorial page tonight that are well worth your consideration.

FAMILY AGENT IS NEWEST WRINKLE

COLUMBUS, Nov. 29.—"We are entering upon a new era," declared C. W. Pugsley, Assistant United States Secretary of Agriculture, addressing a recent convention of farm institute workers, county agricultural agents, home demonstration agents, and boys' and girls' club organizers at Ohio State University.

In the past we have had the county fair era, the county institute era, the movable school era, and now we have the agent era," continued Assistant Secretary Pugsley.

"The present dividend system, however, with one agent for the men, another for women, and a third for the children, is obviously unwise. We should have a family program, a unified organization, which will not only lead to better economic growth and distribution of crops, but will also tend to enlarge the social life of rural people."

Marvel City of America Found Here in Glendale

By JOHN H. GERRIE

Prosperity Editor, Glendale Daily Press

No advance heralding measures up to the surprising potentialities and magnificent realities of Glendale. It is the marvel city.

I came expecting to see a typical suburban town and I found a metropolis in the making.

I had visualized a squat settlement of bungalows in a treeless expanse, but the picture actually presented was of a city of beautiful homes in a natural park in the midst of a cyclorama of mountains.

I had conjured to mind the usual, cut-to-order Main Street, tapering off at both ends with scattering shacks of pioneer vintage, but that which I really beheld was a Champs Elysee, running broad and level and straight to the base of the Swiss-like Verdugo hills.

They call Los Angeles the wonder city of the Pacific. But glamorous, glad some Glendale out-wonders the wonder city and every other fast moving community in the country. Truly, it is the MARVEL CITY OF AMERICA!

It is a marvel, not only in the unsurpassed beauty of its setting and in the unequalled influx of new residents, but also in the unusual planning for its future on a magnificent scale. Already possessing in Brand boulevard the handsomest city street on the continent, Glendale is well on her way to be known as the City Beautiful as well as the City Marvelous.

So many surprising developments in the growth of California communities have been blazoned within recent months that the most surprising of all seems to have been largely lost sight of. But I'll blazon it to the world right here:

Late News Flashes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Removal of foreign troops from China was approved "in principle" by the Far Eastern committee of the arms conference, but no conclusion was reached as to the date or procedure for such action.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 29.—Testimony favorable to Baby Guy Stillman was introduced when the hearing was resumed. It was brought out by Referee Daniel Gleason that Stillman lived with his wife at the Hotel St. Regis, New York, during the months preceding the birth of Guy.

HONOLULU, Nov. 29.—Crown Prince Hirohito, Japan's youthful regent, has issued a statement to the effect that Japan must improve her foreign relations. WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—President Harding's association of nations is not intended as a rival for the league of nations nor is there any intention of undermining the existent league, it was said authoritatively at the White House today. The president is still expecting some action regarding his association of nations proposal at the present conference and will be greatly disappointed unless something is done, the White House stated.

POLICE INCREASES LIGHT-POWER OFFICE HELD UP PENDING AMENDMENT NOT GIVE NAMES NEW RESIDENTS

Councilman Refuses to Vote on Resolution Until Changed

On motion of Councilman Stephenson at the meeting of the council held Monday night the resolution passed at the meeting on Friday night increasing the pay of Motorcycle Officer Merle Collins from $130 to $150 and granting the chief of police permission to promote a patrolman to detective sergeant and add one new patrolman to the force, was rescinded.

Councilman Stephenson made the motion to rescind the order on the grounds that the passage of this resolution was illegal and to grant the salary increase and increase the strength of the department required an amendment to the present salary ordinance. He contended that he was not against the act of increasing the officer's salary or the addition to the force but before he would vote on the proposition it would have to be put before the council in legal form.

Councilman Davis made a motion which was carried, instructing City Attorney Woodward to draw up an amendment to the salary ordinance and have it ready for action by the council at the next meeting on Thursday.

SESSION MONDAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—A plenary session of the arms limitation conference probably will be held Monday, it was stated semi-officially today. The session, it was intimated, would be called to consider "naval matters."

Names Used for Mailing Lists to Send Circulars to Residents

The practice of securing the names and addresses of residents of this city from the light and power department will be stopped at once. Members of the city council in session Monday night voted to instruct employees of the light and power departments of the city to refuse names and addresses of residents.

This action was caused by several instances where names and addresses were secured from the lists of light and power users and later used as mailing lists for circulars.

KING JAZZ IS DEAD SAYS JAZZ LEADER

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 29.—King Jazz is dead! The days of "blues," with jangling cow bells, whistles, pans, squawking cornets and clarinets, along with hysterical trombones is dead.

So declares Walter Seims, St. Louis orchestra leader.

"In the days of jazz," avers Seims, "it was every man for himself with the other in making noise. The result was a lot of guesswork harmony which sounded more like a charivari than music.

"Rhythm is what dancers want. Real music with snap to it is still popular, but the whining saxophone, the bellowing horn and the other jazz noise-makers are all through. The public is sick of them."

LOREN PRESCOTT GLENDALE BOY DIES OF INJURY

Thirteen Year Old Boy Is Victim of Accident Last Night

G. W. NOLAN IS HELD Gallon of Wine Is Found in Auto That Struck Lad Riding Wheel

John H. Gerrie.

A bicycle without lights and a gallon of wine known as "dago red" are the probable causes of the death of Loren Prescott, 13-year-old, of 1309 South San Fernando road who was run down in South Glendale Monday about 6:30 p. m. by an automobile driven by G. W. Nolan, of Venice.

According to witnesses, the boy mounted his wheel and was just riding away from the curb when his bicycle was struck by the automobile driven by Nolan. The machine made a heap of twisted wreckage of the bicycle. The driver of the automobile, when arrested, said that he did not see the boy and did not know that an accident had occurred until he heard the crash. A gallon jug of wine was found in the automobile and while the man was not drunk, according to officers, there was evidence that he had been drinking. He was locked in a cell at fire house No. 2.

The police were notified of the accident immediately and sent an ambulance to remove the boy to the Glendale hospital and sanitarium, where it was found he had a fracture of the skull and that his chances for recovery were slight. He died about midnight.

The Los Angeles county coroner was notified and told the chief of police that he would hold an inquest on Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Nolan will be held in the Glendale jail under $5000 bail pending the result of the coroner's inquest.

HARDING'S IDEA MAY BE SUCCESSFUL SAYS BALFOUR

British Delegate Says Plan Must Do Things League Cannot Accomplish

By CARL GROAT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—President Harding's proposed "association of nations" must fulfill functions other than those of the league of nations if it is to have British support. Parallel lines will not do.

The idea stood out incisively today as the result of a brief interview with Arthur J. Balfour of the British arms delegation in which he remarked, "We don't want two leagues of nations, do we?"

Balfour has been avoiding with consummate skill any statement which would bind his government officially, but his brief talk on the subject left the conviction that he stands, as before, strongly for the league and is opposed to annual sessions in Washington—with emphasis on Washington—for an international body.

"On Saturday you suggested you had not read the papers as to President Harding's association idea. Can you say something today about the subject?" he was asked.

"I haven't really studied the matter yet," he countered. "Is there a precise statement on it?"

He was told he could safely assume that the idea emanated from President Harding, though there had been no actual official written statement on the matter.

"Can you say then how you stand on the league of nations?" he was further queried.

"I don't like to enter into a discussion of that now," he replied, "but I must say that the league has done some very beneficial things."

As for the association, he pleaded he didn't "know just how that would function" and in answer to a question whether he favored continuing sessions of the present conference—an idea dovetailing in with Harding's association plan—he said:

"I don't know just how that would be worked out. If the sessions were held in Washington, that wouldn't be very central like Geneva is." (Geneva is the league seat.)

Balfour was leaving the Far Eastern session. He swung into the revolving doorway to join Ambassador Geddes.

"We don't want two leagues, do we?" he volunteered as he disappeared.

AIN'T IT AWFUL, MABEL?

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 29.—Rolled down stockings, low-neck dresses, thin waists, rouge and silk stockings have been interdicted among the girls of the Wheeling High School by the faculty. The new order is effective immediately and will be strictly enforced. It was not formally announced but was quietly passed among the girls along with the intimation that the faculty means business in its dress reform program.

GREAT WAR HERO BELIEVED SUICIDE

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—"I shall not return." These words from a letter written by Colonel Chas. W. Whittlesey, famous commander of the "lost battalion" to Robert S. Little, his partner, led friends to believe the hero had committed suicide. Whittlesey vanished from the liner Tosa while en route to Havana. It was thought his experience in the war recalled when he acted as pall bearer for the unknown soldier buried in Arlington Armistice day unnerved him.

NO LEAGUE NATIONS IN HAVING PLAN SAYS W. J. BRYAN

Harks Back to Own Thirty Treaties as Basis for President's Peace Offer

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

(Copyright 1921 by United Press.)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The agreement reached by the nine powers to give up postal privileges in China will greatly delight the Chinese people and greatly encourage the government at Peking.

The presence of postoffices conducted by foreign governments has been more than a mortification; it has been a real injury to the home government. China has had competitors in a matter which, in other countries, is a government monopoly.

The agreement to withdraw these postal privileges is in harmony with the spirit of the conference; it is additional proof that the keynote struck by Secretary Hughes on the first day of the session is to run through the entire proceedings.

While China is securing numerous concessions, it must be remembered that she had a large number of grievous discriminations against which she protests is the restrictions placed upon her custom duties. One of her early treaties restrains her from levying a tariff on more than 5 per cent on imports. Of course, she never entered into any such treaty voluntarily—no nation would of her own volition make any such surrender of her taxing power. As soon as this treaty was published, all the other nations, great and small, claimed the same privilege under "the most favored clause."

If the spirit thus far manifested continues to dominate the conference, there will be a modification of this restriction. In fact, China may expect a removal of all discriminations that interfere with her legitimate aspirations.

The question of land armaments seems to be in a state of suspended animation. It awaits news from Germany or the announcement of some form of assent which will allay the fears of France.

The association of nations plan grows apace. Ex-Senator Sutherland, who is close to the American delegation, explains that the form of cooperation favored is not in line with the covenant of the league of nations. It does not contemplate the exercise of force; the findings, if such there be, will not be binding on the nations. Its influence will be moral rather than physical. Its value will be measured by the extent to which the conference generalizes the world disposition towards peace, mentioned by Secretary Hughes.

The treaties negotiated by the United States with 30 nations were built upon the same plan. They provided for the investigation of all questions of every kind and character that defied diplomatic settlement and they pledged the nations to a year's time for investigation and report. But they expressly reserved to the contracting parties the right of independent action at the conclusion of the investigation. This reservation of independent action was omitted from the covenant of the league of nations. Article X, which was substituted for this reservation, was largely responsible for the omission to the covenant as presented. President Harding could hardly be expected to propose a plan containing any provision resembling Article X, but he can, with entire consistency offer a plan in harmony with the 30 treaties, because the senate unanimously endorsed these treaties.

Sam Dunbar and Richard Buck, two schoolboys, were brought into the police station late Monday evening by Detective Sciles on a charge of having taken some articles from the Bachmann studio on Windsor road. ## HARROWER HAS OPENING FINE LABORATORY

Hundreds Visited Great Plant of Dr. Henry R. Harrower Last Night

REVIEW OF HIS WORK

Fine Program Was Presented to People Who Inspected New Industry

Dr. Henry R. Harrower agrees with Byron that—

"Thoughts are things, and a small drop of ink, falling like dew upon a human thought, makes thousands, perhaps millions, think."

Dr. Harrower has materialized thought and made the invisible, visible. Last night was formally opened to the public the administration building of the big plant, the Harrower Laboratory, wherein is manufactured, for the use of physicians, extracts from the glandular secretions of animals to aid nature when the corresponding glands in the human structure are not functioning properly.

Dr. Harrower came to Glendale as a young physician, his only capital inexhaustible energy and enthusiasm, good brains, a fine education and a winning personality. He became interested in glandular therapy with which medical savants abroad were experimenting to some extent, but ran up against the impossibility of securing any uniform or stabilized product that could be handled with safety. He determined to investigate the findings of pathologists, and to that end, traveled extensively in Europe, visiting physicians and surgeons who were experimenting along this line and ascertaining their formulas. It is a long story, but it is all epitomized in the plant on East Broadway and Belmont in this city, where the product and meeting an urgent need. Its development in a few short years from nothing to an institution of international fame, reads like a romance, and only a strong, vivid personality like that of Dr. Harrower could have accomplished it.

The light, rosy cheeks, beautifully finished with every convenience and comfort for the employees of the big plant, were decorated with bouquets and baskets of flowers, tributes of congratulation from the many friends of Dr. Harrower and his associates.

About 1200 invitations had been sent out and so great was the response that many who came were unable to gain admittance to the auditorium where the program of the evening was given and which seats about 300, but those left out of that part of the evening's pleasure felt repaid for coming in on the inspection of the plant. Following was the program:

Selections by the Ampico; introduction by Jesse E. Smith, vice president Glendale chamber of commerce; vocal solo, by J. P. Williams; address by Spencer Robinson, Mayor of Glendale; instrumental quartet (two numbers), piano, A. Bell Johnson; first violin, Miss Ewart; second violin, Mrs. Bridgewater; flute, Miss Lord; cello, Edw. J. Moore; acknowledgement by James Howarth, manager Harrower Laboratory; a professional welcome by H. R. Boyer, M.D., president Glendale Physicians' Club; "How It Happened" by Henry R. Harrower, M.D., director Harrower Laboratory; social hour.

In the characteristic talk made by Mayor Spencer Robinson, he told of his personal relations with Dr. Harrower in the sale of postage stamps to meet the expanding business of his mailing department, how, as the pills grew more and more popular, the demand for stamps increased until the branch postoffice could no longer supply his needs. Said he:

"Money does not make a man great but character does, and I want to tell you that the doctor's middle name is 'character.' We glory in what the doctor has already achieved and wish him bountiful success in the future, which his ability and efforts so fully justify."

Dr. Harrower's talk briefly related his travels and conferences with medical pathologists, which confirmed his idea of the medical possibilities in gland extracts, and which inspired him to establish the laboratory which bears his name.

Jesse E. Smith excellently represented the chamber of commerce, of which he is vice-president, making a good speech of appreciation, and Dr. H. R. Boyer satisfactorily voiced the sentiments of the Glendale Physicians' Club, of which he is president.

SUZANNE DENIES SHE FAKED ILLNESS

PARIS, Nov. 29.—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis star, indignantly denied today the charges that she had "danced the same day she collapsed on the American tennis courts." She claimed she was still under the care of a doctor. The French papers have ignored the reports that the French star "faked her illness in America for fear that she was going to be beaten."

ARABIAN DESERT IS CONQUERED NOW BY USE OF AIRPLANE

Barrier Between Sea and Persian Gulf Smashed by Air Navigation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The Arabian Desert, which always was regarded as an impregnable barrier to direct communication between the Mediterranean Sea and the Persian Gulf, has been conquered by airplane, according to advices to the Army Air Service.

Instead of attempting to cross the desert, airplanes heretofore were accustomed to fly a semi-circular course around its northern extremity, thereby traveling many more miles than the distance which actually separates the air stations on the eastern and western sides of this endless expanse of sand.

The route will be 580 miles in length. It will pass through Amman in Transjordan and Kasrel Azrak, where landing fields have now been established, and then will take an almost straight line across the desert to Ramadie, on the Euphrates, and then to Bagdad.

The survey for the new aerial pathway was made by the British Royal Air Force, with the co-operation of the Emir Abdulla, who helped in the building of an advance base at Amman, forty-five miles east of Jerusalem.

Gasoline Did It

A fleet of airplanes, armored cars loaned by the British War Office, and desert tenders fitted out with wireless telegraph apparatus were assembled at Amman to begin their advance into the desert. The first 150 miles of the route was located with comparatively little difficulty, but 160 miles from the starting point the pioneers struck a vast tract of rough lava beds. Enormous boulders were scattered across this tract. The workers were nearly baffled in their efforts to get through the lava beds, when word came by wireless from airplanes scouting ahead that a way out of the wilderness of stones had been found. The ground parties set to work anew and soon forced a passage through ten miles of back-breaking country into the desert again, where the going was comparatively easy.

A few days later ground connections were made with Bagdad when the armored cars arrived at the emergency ground at El-Jid, 300 miles from Jerusalem.

Operations were soon pushed on from the Bagdad side, and Ramadie was entered soon after by both air and land. Bagdad was entered shortly afterward.

Work is now going on to perfect the emergency landing grounds, and in making permanent ground organization along the air route.

ARKANSAS BUGS IN KANSAS CITY COURT

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 29.—"Arkansas travelers" have been the one irritation in an otherwise peaceful existence of Tishimingo Watson and Patrick Henry, negroes, for some time.

The two lads recently left their home in Hope, Ark. Their destination was uncertain. They were seeking a "bath and relief from a shirtful of the Arkansas biters." Traveling via the box-car route, Watson and Henry arrived in Kansas City. They journeyed out to a public bathhouse.

They were found by a patrolman stretched out on a park lawn, semiclothed, busily engrossed in "reading their shirts."

Tishimingo endeavored to explain the circumstances to Judge Edward Fleming in the municipal court.

"Yo' Honor, ne-abmy coats in mo' bitful 'an dis heah Arkansas traveler, Patrick Henry and I bof decided to leave 'em behind. We was told about the bath out there whar the coppa caught us. They wasn't any wateh in that place, so we went outside and statted pickin'."

"Out of court—get out of my court quick!" Judge Fleming shrieked at them. And Tishimingo and Henry made a hasty retreat.

MOTOR HOTEL PLAN OF DENVER GENIUS

Entirely New Industry Comes With Growth of Motor Car Business

DENVER, Nov. 29.—The "motor hotel" is a possibility of the near future, according to Leonidas L. Moe of this city, inventor and patentee of the latest automobile "accessory."

Demand for more adequate automobile housing facilities in almost every city in the country will be met by this novel motor hotel plan, declares Moe, adding that the constantly increasing use of the automobile as a means of transportation for both business and pleasure and the dangers of street parking create a real need for motor hotels in all cities for transient and permanent use.

"The 'motor hotel' is an entirely new idea in building and operation as related to the automobile industry," Moe said. "Its purpose is to house and protect automotive vehicles—do it on a large scale and at a moderate cost to the car owner."

"The 'motor hotel' is a spacious fireproof building, so constructed that any car owner may drive his car, on its own power, without a moment's delay, into the building and by a partly circular driveway from floor to floor into a space or room.

"The automobile will thus be protected from weather conditions, thieves and accident and will be off the congested city streets.

"Entrance and exit to the 'motor hotel' will be by means of a 'double spiral' incline, or driveway, with an easy grade, and cars going out and coming in will not come in contact with each other."

The "motor hotel" idea has been patented, and a company composed largely of Denver men has been formed to establish the plan in various cities. The company does not plan to build the structures but will grant permits for the use of the patent to capitalists upon a royalty basis.

CHIPS BEAVER'S HOUSE-WARMING

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers)

I'd like to tell you all about the feast the Woodsfolk had to celebrate Chips Beaver's house-warming. Tommy Peelo and Louie Thomson spent more than one afternoon prowling round his wonderful new Beaver Pond trying to get him to come out and meet them. A regular lake, it was, in the middle of the Deep Woods, where the Little Dark Pool

They brought him presents every time, but the only way to be sure that a fellow likes to see him eat. You see they never could be sure that rascally coon wasn't doing the eating. Though you can't blame Tad for his appetite when he's getting ready to sleep all winter long.

BETWEEN SHOWERS

By JOHN BRECK.

A brisk shower had just fallen. Lively raindrops chattered on roof and windowpane as how they meant to wash earth's dirty old face and fix it all up to suit them. Now they steam impotently in the sun; they will fall a second time in the burst from the next looming cloud, but they will not be the same drops. What does it matter?

Those which found the ground are filling its vast cracks or being drunk by thirst roots, serving nature's ends if not their own. What does that matter, either? Some time, when enough of them get together, they will make a clean sweep of things according to their transient, sparkling lights; and we will headline it: "Flood Ravages!" But such is the fate of reformers!

Maybe it isn't yet time to wash earth's face. We are always trying it ourselves. But do we ever take serious stock of our stains? There is drink for instance. Ours is not the first prohibition flood there's ends "drinks" in China before we had wet our lips with the heady dew of distilling. Drink was an old vice in Egypt. Mohammed was a temperance preacher. Yet we drank when it came our turn.

Why? In ancient days dreams were portentous. The delusions of the insane, the prophecies of priests delirious with drugs and fasting, were awe-

SEEK TO PLANT DRUG HABIT IN CHILDREN SAYS DRUG ADDICT

Ex-officer Said He Formed Habit While in School in 1913

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 29.—The drug habit is being deliberately implanted into hundreds and thousands of boys and girls in the public schools of New York and other cities, according to the confession of Jefferson Knepton, former Syracuse policeman and confessed drug addict.

"In the public grammar schools and high schools of New York and Brooklyn," said Knepton, "some of the big drug peddlers, through their confederates in the schoolhouses, are actually giving away morphine, cocaine and heroin to schoolboys and girls, free of charge, so that they will acquire the drug habit."

Knepton, arrested as a drug peddler, declared he had formed the habit in a Brooklyn high school in 1913. He denied that he had ever sold drugs.

According to his story, Knepton has been making a long and unsuccessful fight to rid himself of the habit, acquired, he said, when fellow high school students offered him the drug.

"When I first acquired the habit I never had to buy any drugs. Every one of the addicts or peddlers that you would meet in poolrooms and dance halls would gladly give you a little cocaine or heroin to fix you up till you had acquired the habit and had to have some every day. Then they refused to give it any more, but would offer to sell some or would suggest where you could buy it. I knew several handsome, innocent young girls who acquired the habit in public dance halls, where they met addicts and peddlers. The peddlers would even make love to them in order to get them into the habit. No longer able to get money by other means, these girls soon became respectable in order to get enough money with which to get their needed dope.

Habit Broken in Army
"Finally it became very hard to get drugs. I came to Syracuse and got a position on the New York Central as a trainman. I broke the habit. I enlisted in the United States army April 2, 1918, went overseas, served on three fronts, and returned home on May 15, 1919. I returned to Syracuse and started in again as brakeman. Then the railroad strike came on, and I was out of work.

"One day during that period I was sitting in Fayette Park, and saw several addicts come there to take their 'shots.' Discouraged, it created the old longing in me, and I bought some cocaine from a peddler to forget my troubles.

Worked on Police Force
"On November 1, 1920, I was appointed to the Syracuse police force. I tried to make good, but everywhere I went I ran into addicts who kneed and threw slurs at me as a hypocrite and threatened to squeal to my superiors. This discouraged me. I again took to morphine and cocaine.

"While on the force I was taking from four to five grains daily, costing me three dollars. Finally the habit had such a strong hold on me and the addicts in the city jeered me so that it became unbearable, and on September 16, 1921, I resigned from the force. Drugs wrecked me mentally and physically. I have an idea that some of the addicts informed some of my fellow officers of my condition."

No Reduction in Price of Gems Is Looked for by Experts

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Second-hand diamonds bought up by merchants in Europe from bankrupt princely families and "distress diamonds" bought during prosperity and now thrown on the market in America and other countries; will have no appreciable effect in reducing the price of diamonds. These gems have come into the market in considerable quantities. Large quantities of diamonds came out of Russia. The jewels of the crown collection, it is believed, have been cut up to hide their identity and sold throughout the world by the Bolsheviks.

During the war period of bonanza wages the world went diamond crazy. As soon as they got a little more money than enough to live on people rushed to jewelry shops to buy diamonds. For the first time in history diamonds became a popular jewel among the working classes. In the present industrial depression many of these diamonds are being sold.

While the aggregate value of these resold diamonds of impoverished nobles and no longer affluent laboring men is large, they are a mere drop in the bucket of the world's diamond market. If one buys from private individuals one may chance to pick up a bargain, but trade prices of diamonds will not be affected by these gems.

The syndicate which markets the entire rough output of the South African mines and controls diamond prices has announced that the price of diamonds will not come down. This is the ultimatum of a monopoly. It means exactly what it says. There can be no appeal from it. Traders must buy at the syndicate's price and sell at a corresponding price or go out of business.

KING OF PATCHES BRITAIN'S CHIEF

His Majesty Goes Around With Patch on Shoe Same as Anyone Might

LONDON, Nov. 29.—"When he is out of the public eye, His Majesty often sacrifices personal appearance for comfort. Indeed, when in conversation with him some time ago, I noticed that one of the shoes he wore was adorned with a patch."

This is one of the many interesting anecdotes of his long connection with the British royal family told by Mr. Ernest Brooks, who is the accredited royal photographer.

It was Brooks who accompanied the Prince of Wales on his colonial tour, and he relates that while on board H. M. S. Renown, he took a portrait of the Prince of Wales in his bath which was published in the London newspapers.

Truths in Epigram

Annual income, twenty pounds; annual expenditure, nineteen six; result, happiness. Annual income, twenty pounds; annual expenditure, eight and six; result, misery.—Charles Dickens (1812-1872).
Life is not so short but there is always time for courtesy.—Ralph Waldo Emerson (1803-1882).

REDS SEE A MENACE

Communists in session in Germany see a "menace in the school room."

This is cheering information. The school room does constitute a handicap to the reds. This is one of the reasons that civilization holds the school room in high regard, and seeks to fend from it the assaults of the strange order that desires to overthrow society. Education is the foe of communism. Communism, as it prevails over limited areas, teaches the proletariat to hate all prosperity and all prosperous people. Education teaches that there is no proletariat as a permanent class. There is of the lowest levels, as social strata usually are estimated, have arisen from the greatest men. Abraham Lincoln sprang from the class that would have been characterized as "poor white." Had his inborn spirit not been noble, had his education been tainted by the poison of communism, the world had never known one of its most potent and benign personalities.

The school is intended to abolish ignorance, not to fix ignorance as the plane of human activity; to abolish prejudice rather than create and perpetuate it; to enable the people of the world to have, in the end a pleasing and pacific existence, rather than one seething with hatreds.

No wonder the reds discern a menace in the school room.

CONFUSION ABOUT GERMANY

From England come reports of the fear there that Germany may collapse. The present reparation scheme is pronounced unreliable, and the attempt to enforce it regarded as certain to lead to disaster.

Somehow this does not dovetail to a nicety with the French apprehension that Germany is slyly building up an army for the purpose of swallowing the substance of France. It does not seem reasonable that just as the comparatively prosperous nations are seeking to devise methods to lessen the burden of war, a nation at the very verge of financial ruin is eager to assume such burden.

Lord Curzon has publicly warned France that it must not pursue a vengeful course towards Germany. The spirit of his address indicated a desire that Germany be brought into the comity of nations. This could not be done without a change in the temper and attitude of France.

Russia is said to be considered by England as a power to be grappled with soon or late. The idea seems to be that when the time for the struggle has come England and Germany will be aligned. Hence a reason for altering the relationship of Germany towards the rest of the world.

Despite all this, and similar talk, there is a growing belief that the business of nation grappling with nation is about over; that there really is no sense in it now. Men really have ceased to be savages, and they view with distaste the occasional apparent necessity for throwing off civilization and reverting to the elemental.

There is no reason to despair even in relation to Russia. It shows symptoms of a dawning sanity. As to the future of Germany there is uncertainty, and yet it cannot be about to collapse, and also about to devastate France.

ENLIGHTENING THE WORLD

Liberty, torch aloft, is not the only thing engaged in enlightening the world. There is Phillip Francis engaged in the effort at illumination. But his torch, has blown out. Francis is the brainiest man in the employ of the Hearst machine. A man of intellectual ability, he has become reckless as to the use he makes of it. Says Francis:

"The slickest thing these British have done in many years of slick dealing, was to make this conference look like a move towards disarmament and the abolition of war. It is no such thing, and it was never meant to be. But it has been made to look like that, and so skillfully made to look so that nearly all our press, and the majority of our good people have fallen for the bunko game."

Francis has a way of saying things. His pretense of frankness is remarkable. He registers frankness most complacently and benignly, when he is striving to deceive. In other words, there is no truth in the excerpt just quoted. Nobody in the world could be more thoroughly aware of this than Francis himself. His duties at the conference call upon him to ignore the truth. He speaks with "his master's voice."

The British did not "make this conference look like a move towards disarmament." Americans attended to that. President Harding was the instrumental through which the spirit of America found expression. Secretary Hughes was the actual agent of pronouncement. The conference looks "like a move towards disarmament" only because it is a move towards disarmament. That it might be this was the reason for its formulation.

The pitch of proceedings was set by Hughes. It happened that the British were not called upon to do any slick dealing, if such had been their mood. They were shown right at the beginning the sort of affair they were engaged in, and that they would have to play according to the rules or withdraw. They said they were glad to remain, and to accept conditions.

It seems rather silly to accuse the British of doing that which they never had opportunity to do, and which they never have intimated a desire to do.

No, the press has not fallen for anybody's bunko game. Far be it from falling for the ostentatious game conducted by Francis. Even Brisbane, pal of Francis, is more deft in manipulating the shells, and in inducing guesses as to which conceals the elusive pea.

AMERICAN MARINES

In many a troubled region American marines have been landed. In every instance the report soon came that order had been restored.

These marines are an arm of the national defense of which the country always has been proud. They are typical of the unyielding loyalty of the soldier. They obey orders. Without fear, and without boasting, they obey orders implicitly. This is the full measure of their duty. They never have fallen short in performance.

The fact is much to be regretted that the prevalence of crime has necessitated putting the mails under guard. Since such a course was necessary, there arose a feeling of confidence that robbers would find their masters when they met the marines.

It has been the custom of postal clerks to yield when instructed to do so by a man holding a gun. It is not the business of a clerk to fight. He is under no binding obligation to risk his life. But no marine in the circumstances will have the temper of the clerk. The bandit who tells a marine to throw up his hands will be the bad insurance risk of the occasion.

The killing of bandits has been deferred long. They have tried the patience of the public to the limit. Imitators of Gardner were beginning to swarm. The marines may be depended upon to remedy conditions that really had become dangerous, and threatened to impair the integrity of the postal department.

CHINA BEGINS TO AWAKE

It has taken China centuries to shake off the ancient spell of sleep. A wakeful morning seems to be dawning for the venerable land, whose government has drowsed through the centuries.

China was pacific when a passive attitude was an invitation to marauders. A country surrounded by potential enemies could not assume an attitude of helplessness and non-resistance, and hope to survive whole.

At last China has been aroused to resentment. It has listed the long series of impositions. It knows its enemies. It has marked those that have preyed upon it. It is getting into a mood to oust the interlopers.

If the day ever comes when China, rising in its might, shall demand justice and restitution, and honesty on the part of powers dealing with it, the outcome would be no more surprising in itself than the development of Japan, and the results would be likely to be more vital. An aroused China, for example, could trample Japan under the tread of sandaled feet, overwhelming it by mere numbers.

The wise time for the nations to treat China with fairness would seem to be the present. It would be far more satisfactory to name conditions in which China might acquiesce, than to have that strange people somewhat later naming their own conditions.

THE CLEVER WOMAN

By DR. FRANK CRANE

"My wife is a very clever woman." This is what a man said the other day in a company where his wife was not present.

One of those happy busy-bodies who do a deal of good in the world by reporting to people the nice things they hear about them went and told the man's wife.

Now that wife was what the people are prone to call quite an ordinary woman. That is, she was not remarkably handsome. She had no striking accomplishments. She was not a social leader, nor intellectual star, and all she did was to make her husband happy and bring up her children in discipline and in comfort.

Of course, she was pleased to hear what her husband had said about her, but she expressed herself as much surprised. In this she showed at least one real mark of superiority. For it is characteristic of mystery in any line of human endeavor to be quite unconscious of it and to take it as a matter of course.

But was she clever? And what is a clever woman? Of course, there are women, and they are worthy of all praise, who manage great department stores, who are expert in business, who are brilliant conversationalists, who are great artists, or who excel in literature.

But the one thing that will always be the woman's chief business, that field in which in the nature of the case she can never have a rival, is home-making. The trend of our civilization, which is more and more stamped by city life, is to create distaste, not to say a contempt, for the career of making a happy home.

Of course, no human being wants to be a drudge. And no woman of spirit wants to be nothing but a servant with no outlook beyond household duties. But whether a home shall be a narrow prison and the woman in it merely the chief slave depends very much perhaps upon the woman herself. If she can magnify her office, she can make her sphere glorious and her influence as distinct in the world if she uses her home as a throne of power, quite as much as if she adopted some other profession.

In the best type of civilization it is the family and not the individual that is the real unit, and in the family it is almost always the woman that counts most.

And we instinctively feel that there is something wrong with any point of view that leads the ambition of girls away from the home.

It is said that among the incoming immigrants most of the girls want to do something "better than housework."

If the normal aim of human endeavor is to make people happy, to be a center of strong and wholesome influence, to render one's self indispensable and to occupy a firm and unique place in the affections of the people with whom one comes in contact, then the career of a home-maker offers advantages to the woman that no other mode of life can give.

The lust for conspicuity, the desire for "freedom," the undisciplined passion for individualism, that are characteristic of these times, do no greater harm than when they work in the minds of young women to bring about a contempt for the greatest business on earth—the business of being a successful wife and mother.

Such really is the Clever Woman.

THE LISTENING POST

Back some thousands of years ago before they had merchant tailors and ready-made clothes and thinks like that a man sat beneath a tree. Fastening leaves together with a fibre that had been drawn from grasses.

It was a long and laborious occupation. The leaves were many and the thread was not too strong and broke frequently.

But time and patience and perseverance did many things. As they will do many things.

A certain kind of leaves were needed. And a certain kind of fibre.

And both required search among the thickets. And hard work.

And time that might have been spent sleeping in the warm sun.

Or eating fruits and berries.

Or hunting game.

Still the man persisted with his work.

For he existed before the time of merchant tailors and retail clothiers.

He could not run down to the corner of Main and Broadway and order a new suit.

And a straw hat and some socks and suspenders and collars and ties.

For there was no Main and Broadway.

There were no streets.

There were plains with grass and thickets with trees and marshes.

And there were mountains and rocks and all that.

And there were queer creatures hunting game.

For those were primitive times.

And people were naked and savage.

Dressing perhaps sometimes in skins.

But the dress was primitive.

Not such as you would wear to a charity ball.

And as the man sat sewing the leaves together another man came by.

And watched the work.

And lay down in the sun with his eyes half closed.

Then he spoke to the man who was sewing the leaves together.

"Do you have to do that?" he asked.

"No," said the man who was sewing the leaves together.

"Don't you know the woods are full of fruits and the rabbits are many and there are stones to be thrown and there is sun to warm us, and shady places to lie and nothing to do that we do not choose to do?"

"Yes," said the man who continued his sewing.

"Then why do you do that?" asked the man who lay in the sun.

"Because I wish to," said the man who was sewing.

"But you don't have to do it," objected the other man.

"I know it," said the sewer.

"Then why do you do what you don't have to?" asked the other.

And the sewing man replied, in whatever language they made use of at that time:

"IF YOU NEVER DO ANY MORE THAN YOU HAVE TO YOU WILL NEVER BE ANY MORE THAN YOU ARE."

And he went on sewing.

But the news of what he said got about.

And other men heard it.

And one day a man was found laying stones up one on another.

To make a shelter.

He had been accustomed to seek the shelter of trees when there was a storm.

But as the light of intelligence filtered its way into his mind he thought of another plan.

Instead of being a nomad without a shelter except such as he chanced to find, he would be a house-holder with a shelter always at hand.

So he laid stones up on stones.

And across the top he laid timbers perhaps.

And great leaves upon them.

And the same man who had objected to the sewing of leaves came by.

"Why do you do that?" he asked.

"To make a shelter," said the man who was raising stones one on another.

"But you don't have to do it," objected the other.

"I know it," said the stone layer.

"Then why do you do what you do not have to do?" said the other.

And the stone-layer said:

"I heard a good thing the other day. It has gone about among the tribesmen."

"What was it?" asked the other.

"IF YOU DON'T DO ANY MORE THAN YOU HAVE TO YOU WILL NEVER BE ANY MORE THAN YOU ARE," said the stone-layer.

And he went on with his work.

And so the saying has come down through the ages perhaps.

Not in those words exactly.

But the other night they came to the editor of this Listening Post.

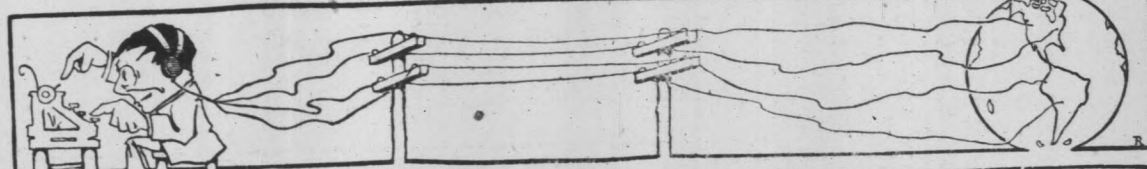

While he was thinking of life and work and resolve and all of those things.

And he wrote them down to make a Listening Post of.

For himself and perhaps for you:

"IF YOU DON'T DO ANY MORE THAN YOU HAVE TO YOU WILL NEVER BE ANY MORE THAN YOU ARE."

SONGS OF THE POETS

Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind—By William Shakespeare (1564-1616)

From "As You Like It."
Blow, blow, thou winter wind,
Thou art not so unkind
As man's ingratitude;
Thy tooth is not so keen,
Because thou art not seen,
Although thy breath be rude.
Heigh-ho! sing heigh-ho! unto the green holly;
Most friendship is feigning, most loving mere folly;
Then heigh-ho! the holly!
This life is most jolly!

Freeze, freeze, thou bitter sky,
Thou dost not bite so nigh
As benefits forgot;
Though thou the waters warp,
Thy sting is not so sharp
As friend remembered not.
Heigh-ho! sing heigh-ho! unto the green holly;
Most friendship is feigning, most loving mere folly;
Then, heigh-ho! the holly!
This life is most jolly!

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

FORGETTING THE WAR

[Washington Post]

How soon we forget. Thus exclaims Philip Arnold Mansfield of London, England, who, after a tour of America, regrets to state that the people who live between the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, the Gulf of Mexico and the Dominion of Canada have emulated the example of their English cousins and have forgotten the war. "It seems a strange thing," said Mr. Mansfield, "but we really have forgotten the most terrific war of all times, and the war has been over scarcely less than two years. Perhaps I should not say we have forgotten. I will put it this way: We just do not remember. That is all. We do not remember the war. We don't want to remember it, seemingly. We want to forget it."

"At this time, of all times, I think it is a tragedy that the people of England, or of America, or of France, or of Belgium or of any country should forget. Of course, there is less reason for France to forget, or for Belgium, either. England, too, has forgotten, or for Belgium, in the way of wounded soldiers and its reminders in the way of wounded soldiers and so has America. Yet on my travels throughout this country I was amazed to note the great indifference to any reference that might be made of the war. Attending a moving picture show in one of your

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA E. STEWART

Lack of faith is the greatest trouble in the world today. We assume a bored, blasé, cynical attitude, if indeed we do not feel it. To announce one's self believing, credulous, is to call down on one's head the ridicule of the crowd. To be critical, incredulous, to believe nothing, to insist on being shown, and then raising doubts as to the proffered proofs—is not this the spirit of today?

Why shouldn't we embrace unbelief? What has the faith of the past done for us? Have not our beliefs and our idealism been shattered again and again? All this we honestly question. But there we stop. How many of us follow to its conclusion the thought?

What does unbelief do for us? What is it doing for the world? For relations between nations? Employers and employed? Capital and labor? Members of families? Personal progress? Are we in any way better, or is life in any way made richer by the lack of unbelief?

Lack of faith in each other is the ruin of many a family. Lack of faith in business relations brings about the deluge. Lack of faith between nations precipitates misunderstanding and war. Lack of faith in idealism brings lack of high motive, failure of just action. Lack of faith in the Supreme Power sets pigmies attempting to rule the universe. What, then, do we gain by unfaith? "By their fruits ye shall know them." Is there any better test in these modern days? If so, what is it?

western cities I was more surprised to note a total lack of enthusiasm when pictures were thrown on the screen showing places in France where American boys fought and actually fell in death. There was just a ripple of applause.

"It is human nature to look toward the sunshine and away from the clouds. War certainly brings clouds. Therefore we are perhaps to be forgiven if we look away from the time being, but the sad part of it all is we might be looking at the sunshine while another cloud is gathering in back of us. We should look and be prepared for the next war."

Comment on the News

By HENRY JAMES

Citizens of Sacramento have filed complaints concerning the whistling of locomotives. They say there is too much of the whistling, that it is off key, disturbs their rest, wakens the baby, and anyhow, why is a whistle?

However, the clamor may not be wholly useless. Perhaps the tooting is in a latitude to wife or sweetheart of the engine-man. Possibly it is to warn incautious folk off the track. It may be a signal essential to the business of switching. Likely it is the formal announcement of approach to the city. No large locomotive should steal into the station unawares.

Deep as may be the offending that has excited the ire of Sacramento, it is nothing to the crime of the individual who purses up his lips and emits a sibilance supposed to be melody. This individual selects the place where he may most annoy. If he is a commuter he sits in the middle of the car, so passengers at neither end can escape.

Invariably, even as whistling goes, this chap is a bad whistler; not tuneful, not nice as to harmonic nuances, but shrill, fitful. He is an irritant. Contentment flees his presence. Nothing but death could stop him, and tortured fellow travelers, although they would be glad to have him killed, hesitate to perform the duty. So he survives day after day.

Sacramento, with only locomotives to break its calm, ought to be grateful.

Scientists are now endeavoring to devise a plan whereby to forecast earthquakes.

In these days no layman assumes to dispute with a scientist. He does not feel at liberty to say that science cannot accomplish this particular thing, but he is quite within his rights when he says he doesn't believe science can do it.

A correspondent of the Los Angeles Times complains that although he has stood on the street corners for hours, his eyes fixed upon the passing feminine ankles, he has observed, exactly seven pairs "worthy of being called good looking, attractive, neat and trim."

Perhaps the ladies will be greatly pained at their failure to please. On the other hand, the thought may occur to them, that whether or not they please a male critter that stands for hours with his eager eyes glued on their ankles, is a matter of small consequence.

Many accidents have occurred on country roads, due to the ignorance of city drivers.

It is one thing to drive on a level street, and quite another to steer along a strange and unlighted road in the mountains. Thanksgiving dinner was given to 400 homeless men in Los Angeles. It was a good dinner, and the guests appreciative.

On the same date a much more elaborate dinner was given to inmates of the county jail. As to whether it was appreciated, reports do not state.

For reckless driving within jurisdiction of a Chino justice, an autoist has begun serving a jail term of six months. It is said on what seems to be competent testimony that he was driving while drunk. He may count himself lucky.

There is a state law defining such conduct as a felony, and naming a penitentiary term as penalty. This law has been unenforced generally, perhaps because of its severity. However, the curative effect of half a year in a county bastille ought to be worth testing.

BELIEVE RATHENEAU PLANNING TO STOP PAY INDEMNITY

Presence in London Thought to Be Most Important in Face of Arms Parley

By J. W. T. MASON. (Written for the United Press) The presence in London of Dr. Walter Rathenau, former German minister of reconstruction to confer with Sir Robert Home, British chancellor of the exchequer, is the most important step since the peace conference toward the economic recovery of Europe. Sir Robert Home believes Germany must be allowed to regain her industrial strength before Europe can return to normal. He also believes Germany must be given time to pay the indemnity. The establishment of a moratorium whereby Germany would pay nothing for a term of years is being considered favorably by the British. Dr. Rathenau's journey to London is undoubtedly connected with these momentous matters. Dr. Rathenau is Germany's real ruler. His economic knowledge is extraordinary. He has the fullest confidence of Chancellor Wirth who is himself an economist. The arrival of Rathenau coming as it does on the heels of the mysterious visit of Hugo Stinnes, the German super financier, aroused interest of the London press. Rathenau arrived in London last night under circumstances rivaling the mystery attendant to the visit of Stinnes. Britain is extremely desirous of closer political and commercial relations with Germany as well as easing the reparations situation, according to the general opinion here.

SOME OF THE ARISTOCRATS IN CAT SHOW WHICH OPENED HERE TODAY

GIRL DECLARES LOVE MADE HER "VOLSTEAD VAMP"

Mrs. K. Hiraga

The "Volstead Vamp" veiled woman of mystery, skirted Nemesis of booze-selling druggists and "inscrutable interrogation point of police courts, has bared her mysterious soul. "I loved him, so I helped him in his work. That's all. It's really very simple." This is the explanation given by Mrs. K. Hiraga for her action in assisting a police officer in his prohibition work. She was born in Canada and married a Japanese in Vancouver, Wash. seven years ago. She was then nineteen, and now is twenty-six and still pretty and does not live with her husband. A dozen vamped and bewildered druggists have been hauled into court and listened in amazement to the roguish girl tell her story of how she obtained the booze, and, after telling her story, the defendants usually left the court room with lighter pockets and heavier hearts. Police men, speculating as to the identity of the "Volstead Vamp" have stepped into her store, purchased cigars and other things and have stepped out again none the wiser. Mrs. Hiraga says, "I'm Scotch, you know, and I like excitement. One day this officer came into my life. He made love to me, and I thought we would be married. And now, to my dismay, I find he has fallen in love with another woman. Back to the stationery store for me. No more trailing bootleggers for mine; no sir!"

IZZY EINSTEIN MAY SHOW UP AT ANY BOOZE PARTY

Gets Into Select Hooch Parties and Then Spills Beans—and Booze

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—When the ancient and secret order of Hooch Guzzlers convenes in solemn, oath-bound conclaves its members may feel safe from the prying eyes of "rumrums" who might attempt to spoil the party by unceremoniously seizing the liquid refreshments and dragging those present off to the hooze-ooze. In other cities, where ordinary prohibition officers enforce the "eighteenth commandment" this feeling of safety might be justified; not so here. For Izzy Einstein, the one-man booze squad, chameleon-like masquerader of the dry forces may be expected to drop in anywhere from an exclusive party in a Fifth Avenue millionaire's residence to a private gathering of East Side ward heelers. No amount of caution, no amount of secrecy can insure the prohibition law-breaker against the sudden and dramatic announcement of this dry sleuth that he is Izzy Einstein and that those present can prepare for a heavy fine or duration vile.

A Masquerader When a group of convivial squibs get together at the most exclusive clubs for actors to imbibe a nip of Scotch or synthetic Johnny Walker nobody can say for a certain that Izzy may not be among the dressed in formal glad rags and chattering of props and scenery and "the profess." Or it may be an undertaker's convention. In this case Izzy will be arrayed in all the somber habiliments of that morbid trade, and few indeed would recognize in this solemn young man anything but a business-like mortician.

When Izzy fares forth in pursuit of the Demon Rum, said D. R. must do some tall going to dodge this super-detective of the prohibition forces. His latest stunt was to appear on the big football field in Van Courtland Park disguised as four-elevents of a football team. The soiled and grime-faced and nose-guarded hangers from their belts were none other than the famous Izzy Einstein squad. At a little cafe near the park the four men roughly ordered the waiter to bring whisky and to hurry it up. Others at the bar were convinced their order sounded almost like a college yell and that these were indeed and truly veterans of the gridiron.

Highball Stars Eddie, the waiter, saw late that these were highball and not football stars. As it was he went unsuspectingly to his doom—somewhere in the back room—and returned with three small glasses. One of the gridiron heroes handed Eddie $250 to pay the $225 bill and waited patiently for his quarter back.

"Four-eight-seven-two!" shouted one of the men, and at the signal the team got into action like a perfectly-oiled machine, despite the fact none had touched the lubrication in the glasses before them. Izzy impounded the evidence, and Eddie was turned over to the police on a charge of violating the well-known Volstead act.

In his comparatively brief career Izzy has impersonated a policeman, a politician, a movie actor, a newspaper reporter, a fireman, a truck driver and a longshoreman. His next may be a female impersonation.

COOKIE SALE HOLD FORTH AT COLORADO

A cookie sale is booked for the Colorado street school Wednesday noon and a big run on the stock is expected. The cookies are to be sold for a penny apiece and those who have the affair in charge say the neighbors will do well to take advantage of the chance to get a delicious dainty. As Colorado street school, in common with the other schools of the city, will participate in the parade booked for Monday, the first day of American Education Week, a call has been sent out for the loan of automobiles to convey the children of the Colorado street school. Anyone willing to loan the use of an automobile for the purpose is requested to communicate by telephone with the school or with Mrs. George Tennant, Glendale 1250-W.

JAPS LEAVING HAWAII

HONOLULU, T. H., Nov. 29.—More than 500 Japanese are awaiting an opportunity to return to Japan from Honolulu, according to steamship officials in this city, transportation facilities now being insufficient to accommodate those applying for passage. "ed out in similar fashion," says the Humboldt Standard, "and the world knows how it terminated. Disappointment seems in store for those who expect a foolproof, double-riveted condition of peace as a result of the disarmament conference at Washington. Already, signs of friction appear, counter suggestions to the sweeping program of this country—and, most significant of all—the delegates retire behind closed doors." These are the opinions of the home town journals, representing the thought of the masses, that must be satisfied and reconciled if the "disarmament reduction" conference succeeds.

RIGHT OUTCOME OF CONFERENCE NOW UP TO JAPAN

Experts Believe Japs Will Come to Plan Offered by Secretary Hughes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The success of the conference on limitation of armaments today rested definitely with Japan. Admiral Kato will shortly announce a decision as to how far Japan will go in accepting the "5-5-3" capital ship basis of the Hughes' naval reductions program, which may make or mar the conference. Kato has already reached this decision, but he himself only knows what it is. This much is definitely known of the situation revolving about the important problem of acceptance of the capital ship basis of the Hughes' program, as the question nears a decision: 1.—Japanese naval experts have been vigorously claiming in their discussions with American, British and other naval authorities, the right of Japan to a navy 70 per cent as strong as those of the United States and Great Britain, instead of the 60 per cent ratio allowed under the Hughes plan.

2.—Admiral Baron Kato, the chief Japanese delegate, and minister of the Japanese navy, has decided to recede from the stand of the experts for a 70 per cent navy and make concessions. How far he will recede, however, is not definitely known, although it is suggested that he might propose a 63 per cent navy for Japan or agree to the 60 per cent ratio providing Japan can keep the giant superdreadnaught Matsun. 3.—As for the American government, all indications from the highest quarters in the United States delegation are that this country will insist on the "5-5-3" capital ship basis for the United States, Great Britain and Japan, which gives Nippon a 60 per cent ratio.

TOBACCO WAR FAILS TO BRING HALT IN MANUFACTURE

Sixty-two Billion Cigarettes Were Made in U. S. During 1920

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The various campaigns waged against tobacco in the past year had little effect on the production and consumption of the "weed" in this country. The enormous amount of 62,000,000,000 cigarettes, amounting to 46,000,000,000 were consumed here and the remainder exported. This does not take into account the number of cigarettes consumed by smokers who "roll their own."

In addition to the vast amount of cigarettes produced in 1920, 20,525,090 cigars and 3,979,568 pounds of smoking, plug and twist tobacco were turned out. Kentucky, with 550,000 acres and 467,500,000 pounds in 1920, led all tobacco-producing States, followed by North Carolina, with 582,000 acres and 384,120,000 pounds, and Virginia, with 243,000 acres and 17,390,000 pounds. Prior to the Civil War Virginia led all other States in producing tobacco but Kentucky usurped this distinction in 1869 and has led the field since.

796 Pounds Per Acre The estimated average yield per acre for the United States in 1920 was 796 pounds, compared to 761 for 1919. Yields for the several States vary greatly, ranging from 1,510 pounds for Pennsylvania, to 600 pounds for Georgia. As a rule, higher yields are obtained in localities producing the high-priced types used in the manufacture of cigars. Although the United States is the greatest tobacco-producing and manufacturing country in the world considerable quantities of both unmanufactured tobacco and tobacco products are imported. The leaf imported is mostly devoted to the manufacture of high-grade cigars and certain brands of cigarettes. Cuba is the greatest contributor of leaf tobacco to the United States.

The number of tobacco factories in this country is approximately 13,551, of which 11,483 manufacture cigars, 237, cigarettes, and 1,871, tobacco and snuff. New York has the largest number of tobacco manufacturing concerns, followed by Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and Wisconsin in the order named.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays we simply ask at "any drug store for 'Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound.'" You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Adv.

MYSTERY GIRL IS FOUND NEW YORK

Says Arthur Burch Did Not Kill Kennedy and Is Not Insane

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—"Arthur Burch is under the spell of that diabolical, Madalynne Obenshain; he is coming up from the killing of John Belton Kennedy, and is as sane as I am." The "Gypsy Girl"—that mysterious "buddy" of Burch, who has stuck by him and written letters to him since he has been confined in jail in Los Angeles in connection with the Kennedy killing—made that declaration here today. She was found here by the United Press living in a pretty little apartment in Harlem. She has been divorced from a Wall street man and Harvard graduate and is now employed as a surgical nurse. While with the Red Cross during the war, she was decorated. Today she was making preparations to move to another apartment and the house was in a turmoil. She came up from the depths of a trunk which she had been packing, however, to bring a box of cigarettes and tell the reason why she believed her "buddy" innocent.

FAMOUS OLD TREES

DEFIANCE, Nov. 29.—The "last of five red locust trees" on the grounds around the local public library, said to have grown within the walls of General Mad Anthony Wayne's fort, was partly blown down by wind. Attorney E. H. Sutphen asked permission to make an effort to save a branch, still standing, at his own expense. If the effort fails the tree will be distributed as fuel among needy families by the Defiance Welfare League.

COAST EDITORS ARE STRONG FOR AIMS OF CONFERENCE

Review of Editorial Comment is Made by United Press on Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—America's home town editors, probably echoing better than the spokesmen at the conference table the voice of the people, echoing probably the sentiments that would have been uttered by the mightily honored unknown soldier, are quick to respond to any hope of staving off the threat of future war. From Bugle to Blat, from Squawk to Evening Scaawk, and back to Blat gain, in the editorial columns of the small-town sheets comes the unanimous reaction of surprise and hope that animates the metropolitan press, as a result of the first two open sessions. Here is opinion in the rough, taken at random from the journals of the West, reflecting surely what the home towns and, incidentally, the nation, is thinking of events around the horseshoe table. Dubious before the conference opening, the general trend of comment is represented by the following note: "With the disarmament conference in session, the world will await the outcome with much anxiety. There will be found few who have any real expectation that the conference will accomplish its purpose, though those statesmen will have the moral support of the whole world," said the Madera Tribune.

Following the Hughes proposals for navy limitation came an overwhelming wave of optimism, summarized in this statement of the Farmer's Daily Journal of Turlock, Cal: "Secretary Hughes has submitted a proposition which, in its fairness, directness, simplicity and sincerity, as well as its feasibility, at once challenged the admiration of the delegates. Here must be a stepping stone to a bigger and stronger covenant."

"The submarine is a coward's weapon," says the Hanford Sentinel, "and should never have been introduced into peace or war. It has its place with poison gas and bombardment of defenseless cities. By all means cut off the list of naval vessels retained, and let the world do likewise." "Four great powers have asserted they agree in spirit with the disarmament plan of the United States. There is no reason why we should not give them credit for sincerity, and while the prospect at the start is promising than anybody dared hope," states the Tulare Register. Among the mass of hopeful comment a few less credulous wait to be shown. "The Versailles conference started."

The orchestra played many beautiful selections and D. L. Foster, the club's superintendent, gave a very interesting message which was followed by a short address by the president, E. P. Hammond.

Wild Animals—It would seem that the Circle Real Estate Company, of 120 North Brand, has become dealers in wild animals, as they are now advertising for sale a black ring-tail monkey. This monkey is very fond of smoke and by blowing a puff of smoke in his face he will do almost anything for an audience. Mr. Monkey was found about two years ago on an orchard on Verdugo road by Mr. A. H. Barnes, of the Circle Real Estate Co., who has kept and boarded him all the while. The first fair offer will buy him.

Hit Him Right—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hartman, of La Crescenta, met with an unusual coincidence Saturday night when their machine was parked in the main business section of Los Angeles. They returned to the car about 6 p. m. to find a man using a steel saw to cut the lock on their spare tire on the rear of the car. Mr. Hartman went up to the man and gave him a good hard kick in the ribs which landed him in the street unconscious. A few minutes later the police patrol carried him away. Mr. Hartman thinks that if a few more of the thieves would get the same treatment, perhaps the thefts would stop.

SALVATION NELL AT T. D. & L. TODAY

Whitman Bennett's latest, special production, a picturization of "Salvation Nell," one of the most popular plays ever presented before the American theater-going public, will be the attraction at the T. D. & L. theater today.

Pauline Starke has the leading role, which Mrs. Fiske made famous on the speaking stage. Joe King, of serial fame, plays opposite Miss Starke. The production, which was directed by Kenneth Webb, is said to be the most pretentious film yet done at the Whitman Bennett studio. Dorothy Farnum prepared the scenario from the Edward Sheldon play.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

A LIFT ON THE ROAD
I remember one time when a bit of a boy, I had tramped through the woods all the day. With a chum of my youth; we were fishing perhaps, or gathering nuts—I can't say; We dreamed as boys do of the future, and sang, and we whistled up many a tune. And the day with its gladness slipped by ere we knew, from the morning to late afternoon; We were barefoot and tired, with the dusk coming fast, and the dusty highroad was so long. As we tramped the way home and the ache in our legs stilled the earlier whistle and song; Then a big old farm-wagon came lumbering by, on its way into town with a load, And a kind-hearted man called us two to climb up, and he gave us a lift on the road.

I can see that old wagon that rumbled along, and the harness, each buckle and strap, And the big, plodding horses, and hear the man's voice from the seat calling cluck and giddap; I remember as clearly the ache in my leg, and my feet that were dusty and sore, And the boyish delight when we crawled on the load, and the horses went plodding once more. The years, they are forty between then and now, but I've never forgotten the way The driver pulled up and called down to two boys who were plodding on homeward that day; He waited till we were both up and secure in our seats on the top of the load, And then said giddap and the horses moved on as he gave us a lift on the road. Those plodding old horses, long since have they drawn their last load, and the bones of them dust; And the rumbling farm-wagon, its box and its wheels and the tongue of it ashes and rust. And the chum of those old days is grown up and gone, nor whither I know or can find, And gone too perhaps, on a last journey long, the driver whose greeting was kind As he called to two boys on the dusty highroad; but memory cherishes yet The day and the deed and the ride and the road, nor ever the boy shall forget; And I wish he might know that the heart of a boy still remembers the call from the load, After forty long years, and the ache in his legs, and the lift on the dusty highroad.

Glendale Chamber Gives Music Club Endorsement

The following interesting letter, received by Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, president of the Glendale Music Club, shows in what esteem the work of that organization in raising the standards of life and promoting a love for good music is held by the chamber of commerce and its representatives. The letter is from Secretary Rhoades. By such efforts as are being put forth by this club, Glendale is becoming known all over the United States as a center of culture as well as the fastest growing city in the United States. The letter follows: "I trust you will pardon me for the delay in answering your letter of recent date enclosing complimentary tickets to the Glendale Music Club. I assure you I appreciate this compliment very much. "Owing to a number of our board of directors being absent from the city, a quorum could not be obtained at the last meeting, therefore we have had no meeting of the board of directors until today. Your letter was read at our meeting and I am instructed by the board of directors to extend to you the thanks of the entire board and assure you of our every cooperation in the splendid work that the music club, under your efficient direction, is doing for the city. "We will send out an appeal to our entire membership endorsing the Music Club and asking them to become members. "I want to assure you that if there is anything further that we can do to assist you in this great work, that we are yours to command. "Any citizen who loves music, who believes in music as a civic asset to the community and who desires to attend the series of artist concerts being presented by the Music Club, is eligible to subscription membership. The application should be gotten in at once. Santa Ana has a musical association of 1100 members; Fresno one of 1600 members; why not Glendale an even greater number? Every interested music lover not already a member of the club should cut out and fill in the following application blank, together with initiation fee and dues. Membership cards admitting members free to all concerts given by the club will be mailed to all who get in applications by Wednesday. All who live in after Wednesday will receive their cards at the door, on Friday evening, December 2. The treasurer and secretaries will be on duty at 7:15 sharp. The concert will begin at 8:15.

ARTHUR BURCH IS EAGER FOR ACTION

Wants His Trial to Proceed and Be Over as Soon as Possible
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 29.—Early this afternoon the first witness will take the stand against Arthur C. Burch and start the legal ball rolling which may or may not send the assured and smiling collegiate to the gallows for the slaying of J. Belton Kennedy. Choosing the jury has been a deliberated act on the part of both prosecution and defense and none has been more bored with the slow legal proceedings than the man who is accused of slaying another, because that other had tired of the woman whom Burch adored. "I want action," laughed Burch before court convened this morning. "I'm like a football player before the game. I want it to start and get it over with."

MARINE TOLD STORY TOO OFTEN, IN BRIG

Tries Same Story in Various Towns But Now He Is Having a Rest
WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—"Tell it to the Marines" is time-worn, so David Louis, ex-drummer in the Marine Corps, reversed the idea and had a good time for a while. He is now in the "brig" at the marine base at Quantico, Va., under a choice assortment of charges. According to marine officials Louis deserted his station aboard the battleship California while in port at San Francisco. He next turned up in Fort Dodge, Iowa, where he told everybody he was a recruiting sergeant. He hired a pretty stenographer to run the office, told her she would receive $38 per week, and also "contracted" for his lodging with certain residents in the city, making other "contracts" for his meals with others. In each instance he told them they would get $1 per meal and $1 per night for his lodging. When things got too urgent at Fort Dodge, Louis told everybody good-bye.

EX-SERVICE MEN TO AID OF WAR FRIENDS

Service men are replying to the Salvation Army call for funds in a way that demonstrates the place that the organization holds in the memory of the men who served the nation in the world war. Brigadier C. A. Boyd of the Salvation Army home service headquarters in Glendale recently received a communication from Capt. W. H. Reeves, city manager of Glendale, enclosing a check for $10 and stating that he wanted to become a member of the "10 and Over Club." Capt. Reeves in his letter to Brigadier Boyd said in part: "I have the highest respect for the Army and those who compose it, and well know of the fine work they did for our boys in France during the war. It is a pleasure to assist you any way that I can at any time and I wish you every success."

Glendale Is Marvel City

THE FASTEST GROWING COUNTY IN THE FASTEST GROWING STATE—WHICH MEANS THE FASTEST GROWING COMMUNITY IN THE WORLD!

You're from Missouri? Yes, they're quite a lot of former Missourians now resident here and for their benefit I'll repeat the figures prepared by the energetic Chamber of Commerce of this city. In the decade ended with 1920 the United States as a whole gained about 20 per cent in population, Los Angeles gained nearly 100 per cent, while Glendale advanced nearly 400 per cent, topping the nation. And that was ONLY A STARTER!

In 1910 there were 2746 residents in Glendale, at the beginning of 1920 there were 13,536 and at the opening of 1921 18,000. The population today is estimated in excess of 30,000 and some figures place it at 35,000. In less than two years Glendale has MORE THAN DOUBLED HERSELF!

There's a record that challenges the world. And the ratio of increase is gaining all the time. New residents are estimated to be coming in at MORE THAN A THOUSAND A MONTH!

These sensational figures are borne out by the marvelous building record of the city, eclipsing the figures of any American city up to 100,000 population. The building permits for 1920 of $3,160,000 were acclaimed as a new high mark, but already this year, with another month to go, that mark has been far overtopped with a total to date of more than $4,500,000. In less than two years some 5000 new houses have been put up in Glendale and figuring on an average of four persons to a house, this would indicate an increase in population in the period of at least 20,000, making an estimated total to date of 33,500 persons living in Glendale.

One year ago the city administration was planning for a population of 40,000 by 1925. That estimate must now be amended to at least 50,000, with a possibility of an even faster sprint thereafter to the 100,000 mark.

And there are reasons for it. One reason, of course, is this city's proximity to Los Angeles with the short and pleasant ride between the two cities. Another is its great scenic beauty and still another its protection from winds and fogs by the surrounding hills. Other reasons include its broad, well-paved streets, its exceptional water, its excellent schools, its nearness to beautiful Griffith Park and of particular appeal to property owners, its low taxation.

But, while laying out boulevards with admirable forethought and consummate skill and otherwise preparing the way for homes for 100,000 Americans the question naturally arises whether Glendale is building for permanence in prosperity. With the influx of new people and new capital she is eminently prosperous now. But, when that influx begins to ease off, as it must some day, will Glendale enterprise have provided means for attracting money here and for holding it here? Will there be industries and a prosperous artisan class and means of local livelihood for the up-coming men of the community? Or, will this simply be a beautiful city of homes, with the providers earning and spending their money in Los Angeles or elsewhere?

These are questions I hope to answer as my study of the situation progresses. And if, in my survey, I chance to discover industries or lines of commerce, not now represented, that could be operated here economically and efficiently, I will feel privileged to bring such to the attention of your local civic and business organizations. The thought seems to be justified that a city of such surpassing charm and unprecedented growth should be entitled also to enduring prosperity. And NOW IS THE TIME to lay the foundation for it. Don't you think so?

MORE THAN SCORE TESTIFY FOR STATE

Prosecution Will Offer Evidence to Disprove Ar-buckle's Story Monday

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—More than a score of witnesses were ready to testify today against Roscoe Arbuckle who yesterday had his big day in court. The trial had passed the top of the hill in public interest when Arbuckle finished his testimony yesterday and today only one line of spectators was waiting—entry to the courtroom. Usually two lines and yesterday four were formed. All of the state's promised array of witnesses were to take the stand in rebuttal and in every case their evidence was expected to be brief. They included everything from chambermaids to people from the movie studios.

Deputy Coroner Michael Brown and Dr. William Ophuls identified formally by the contents of a big glass jar as organs from Virginia Rappe's body. Arbuckle seemed to take no notice of this procedure. He looked steadily downward tearing a piece of paper into small bits.

Irene Morgan, who said she was retained by Henry Lehman as Miss Rappe's nurse in 1920, was then called. She was led through a tedious recital of her service in the war as a nurse with the Canadian army during the second battle of the Marne. Her testimony was given in a lisping but positive voice. "Name of your officers," she was asked. "Dr. Kyle."

"Where did he come from?" "Search me."

Previous to the war she had lived in Los Angeles, she said and returned there after the war. The testimony was in the nature of additional cross examination, Miss Morgan having testified previously.

Charles Burroughs of San Francisco, publisher of Masonic magazines, was called to attack the reputation of R. C. Harper, defense witness, as to truth, honesty and veracity. Harper was a minor witness. Burroughs said Harper's reputation was "bad."
