The study of nature increases our appreciation and enjoyment of the beautiful. Who can fail to experience delight in observing the forests in the spring and in autumn; the color of flowers and of ripening fruits; the morning and the evening skies; the crystallization of gems and of frost on the window pane? These objects afford us rare delights, quicken our mental operations, give us spiritual and moral elevation, and lead us to cultivate the beautiful in thought and in action. Nature, in various ways, adorns all her creations.

The leading characteristic of this age is the investigation of nature; and our material civilization is based and built upon scientific knowledge and its applications. It is this knowledge that is giving mind a mastery over matter, and increasing the demand for brain power over mere muscular force.

The great increase of material wealth, in recent times, consists largely in objects of Natural History; and natural science is constantly adding to those objects by discovering new ones, and by making known properties and uses in them all, which hitherto have escaped the observation of man. Very lengthy lists of these objects could be made, for they include the metals from the bowels of the earth devoted to so many and such useful purposes; the articles employed for textile fabrics; for cordage; for fuel and lights; for medicine; for building; for the furnishing and the decoration of our homes; for food; and for other purposes which I will not name. Now these objects add largely to the necessities of life, and they contribute to the comforts and conveniences of man, as well as to the lessening of his ills and his evils.

We are, therefore, safe in asserting that in the various occupations in which mankind engage the person whose training has received the aid of Natural History, rightly managed, will engage in his labors with greater enjoyment to himself, will be more likely to be successful in his calling, and to feel an interest in contributing his share towards the progress and welfare of mankind.

Our subject has its moral uses. What is better calculated to elevate the mind than to contemplate the vastness of the numberless parts of which it is composed; the simplicity, and yet the certainty, of the laws by which it is controlled; the great convulsions of nature, on the one hand, and the quiet that prevails, on the other, a quiet ever grateful to a mind worn and vexed by the cares of life; the engrossing spectacles met with in nature, such as the views from Mount Willard, in New Hampshire, down into the gorge and basin at its base; the sail up the Saguenay River, with its inky waters and walls of rock, said to be the oldest rocks on the face of the globe; the view of Niagara, with our ears stunned by its roaring waters, and the earth trembling by the force of their fall; and by the narrative in Stanley's latest book, "Darkest Africa," descriptive of the great forest and of vegetable and animal life therein? And we may add, the truths of nature, ever unchanged and unchangeable. Such objects are surely calculated to cultivate in us a reverent belief in the Creator and in moral truth.

And now ought not this survey of our subject to confirm us in the belief that "life is worth living"?

Boston Store.

—
WORCESTER MAY 23, 1891.
—

CONVOISSEURS!

You who would be pleased to see some rarest of antique and Oriental Rugs—come to the carpet Hall today.

We have brought to Worcester a collection of these artistic trophies that will add to your store of Eastern Rug lore and arouse your sense of appreciation of the artistic.

We have them only on temporary show and sale so come today, at the latest.

Antique Kazak and Afghan Rugs have never been shown in Worcester; rarely anywhere. They are the oldest and most prized of the group we shall show you.

Hasn't it puzzled you to know how about all Oriental and Antique Rugs come to be christened with such unique names? They take their uninviting names from the districts, in the Orient, where they are made. We shall have to call the rug being made in the window a Worcester.

These relics—the rugs have seen years enough to be so called—are not made in factories, as is sometimes stated, but among the various families of the districts, and upon the hand-loom.

The crude, odd-looking affair for weaving rugs, on which the patient Turk toils each day in our show window, rises to the dignity of being called a loom in Asia

Minor; Worcester likens it to a boy's first homemade kite, or even to "Darius Green's Flying Machine." Nevertheless it is the only contrivance the Turks and Persians had to assist their deft fingers in making the Rugs that we are proud to invite you here to-day to see.

But as isolated American country school-houses often produce THE men of the nation, so these primitive looms, not often, but ALWAYS yield THE FINEST RUGS IN THE WORLD.

Be as curious as you like; you can not over-anticipate the subtle, winning power these Eastern marble-floor coverings will have over you:—Persian Rugs 7 sizes; Anatolia, 2 sizes; Bahndur, 2 sizes; Afghan, 1 size; Cachmere, 1 size; Bokhara, 3 sizes; Kazak, 1 size; Ghiordes, 3 sizes; Carabagh, 11 sizes.

Prices $13 to $75.

Third floor.

DENHOLM & MCKAY COMPANY.

VOLAPÜK.

Studels löfik.

Sugiv plo vig at, ogivob oles dil Psama XXII Rega David, pelovepolöl se Hebrew fa volapükan in Bohemia. Psam at pepübom fa gased plapükik in Prague me Hebrew e volapük.

Psam XXII.

23. Dledöls Godi, lobolsöd omi, sid valik Yakoba stümolsöd omi, dledomöd omi sid lölik Israel.

24. Ibo no nestümom, e no naudom bapöfi pöfikana e no sävom logodi okik bi om, ed if vakom al om, lilom.

25. Lä ol lob obik in glüg gletik, lepömetis obik givob logsü dledöls omi.

26. Ofidoms pöfikans e posatoms ed oplidoms Godi, kels sükoms omi, olifom lad olsik tenüpo.

27. Omemoms e ogegoloms al God fins valik tala, ed oleplekoms bi ol famiüls valik netas.

28. Ibo regän lönom Gode, ed om sölom netes.

29. Efidoms edole plekoms liegikans valik tala, logsü om blegomsok valikans, kels dexä noms in gluni. E lan obik olifom ome.

30. Sid dünom ome, dö God okonon füdamenes.

31. Okömoms ed olenunoms cödöfi omik nete pemotöl, keli God elemekom.

F. L. HUTCHINS.

Miss Annie Athy, having been graduated from the New England School of Dramatic Expression played in "The Cricket on the Hearth" in Somerville this present week. Her dramatic career will be watched with great interest by her Worcester acquaintances and friends.

FOR THE LAUNDRY.

BRUSSELS

SOAP.

J. A. Long

CONSIGNMENT

OF:

Parlor Suits!

From a Manufacturer who is OVERSTOCKED.

We have orders

TO SELL THEM.

NOTE THE PRICES.

RUG SUITS - - - - $59

Good bargain at $75.

TAPESTRY SUITS - - - $50

Cheap at $65.

PLUSH SUITS - - - - $37

Worth $50.

Large Overstuffed

RUG * SUITS,

Full Fringe and Spring Edges,

$88.

Sold everywhere for $125.

ELEGANT PLUSH SUITS,

Cherry Frames, Spring Edges,

$65.

Good, Honest $85 Suits.

The Suits are all of the newest patterns, manufactured for this season's trade, and are WARRANTED ALL RIGHT.

J. A. LONG,

Franklin Square Furniture Rooms,

555 * MAIN * STREET.

Good to Eat.

"Blind Hare" will be found to a be very nice tea or luncheon dish. One pound and a half of beef, one pound and a half of veal, well minced, three eggs well beaten, a stale roll and a-half, or bread crumbs of the same quantity, pepper and salt, a grated nutmeg, and a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Mix all well together, form into an oval-shaped loaf, smooth it, and sprinkle bread or cracker crumbs over the top. Bake in a moderate oven about three hours.

Milk Toast.

Slice some bread, toast it of a nice light brown on both sides. Boil a pint of milk; mix together two teaspoonfuls of flour in a little cold water; stir this into the boiling milk. Let it boil about one minute, then add a little salt and stir into it two ounces of butter. Dip the toast in the milk, place it on a dish, and pour the remainder of the milk over it. The toast may be made much richer by increasing the quantity of butter.

Black Pudding.

Three cupfuls of flour, one and one-half cupfuls of milk, one and one-half cupfuls of raisins (stoned), one egg (or without), butter the size of an egg, teaspoonful of clove, cinnamon, salt, one cupful of molasses. Steam four hours.

Graham Bread.

Three cups of sour milk, one cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of soda, small teaspoonful of salt. Make quite stiff with Graham flour, Stir well and bake slowly.

Gingerbread.

One cup of New Orleans molasses, shortening size of an egg. Dissolve one teaspoonful of soda in one cup of boiling water, and add while foaming. Add one tablespoonful of ginger, a little salt, and flour to make rather stiff. Bake slowly. Serve warm for tea.

Turkey Dressing Croquettes.

There is so much richness and lasting material left over in cold scraps from turkey dinners that it may as well be utilized for croquettes. Stir a beaten egg into the dressing, mold into oval shapes, dust with bread crumbs and fry. Any morsel of the fowl left over can be minced finely and added taking some of the gravy or giblets to complete the rich dish. The carcass of all fowls or game, pounded in a mortar helps to make a black gravy or soup.

Marsh Mallows.

Cover two ounces of fine, white, powdered gum arabic with eight tablespoonfuls of water. Soak one hour, then heat gradually over boiling water until the gum is thoroughly dissolved. Strain through cheese-cloth into a double boiler. Add seven ounces of powdered sugar, stir over the fire until the mixture is white and stiff. Now the quality of all marsh mallows depends upon this stirring, and it may take for forty-five minutes to an hour. Do not undertake them unless you mean to stir continually this length of time. Take this mixture from the fire, beat rapidly for a few moments, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and the well beaten whites of two eggs. Dust a square tin pan with corn starch. Pour in the mixture and stand away to cool. When cold cut into squares; roll each square a little in the corn starch and put away in tin boxes. —"Table Talk."

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists. 11 Pleasant St., Worcester, Mass

Residence, 61 West Street.

PREMIER SAFETY BICYCLES.

Not because they are English but because they are Best.

JOHN A. LOWE, Agent, 630 Main Street.

The Readers of Light I most cordially invite To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything They would expect to find In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,

Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,

10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL,

Gold, Silver and Nickel Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.

13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St., Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework, Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

J. S. WESBY & SONS,

BOOK * BINDING

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

387 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES

at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

New York Suit and Cloak Store

SPECIALS * FOR * THIS * WEEK.

Reefer, Blazer and Hip Seam Jackets.

The Worcester public know that we have a right to "Toot our own horn" a little on this line without living in "A fool's paradise."

We have written a great deal about "Our Jackets," but we never before had such an assortment at this season of the year, and our prices cannot be approached in any other house in this city for similarly made goods.

RICHARD HEALY, 512 Main Street.

PENSIONS! * PENSIONS!

THE DISABILITY BILL IS A LAW. Soldiers Disabled Since the War are Entitled. Dependent widows and parents now dependent whose sons die from the effects of army service are included. If you wish your claim speedily and successfully prosecuted, address JAMES TANNER, Late Commissioner of Pensions, Washington, D. C.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the
ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,
92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always
be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

Norcross House, Monument Beach, MASSACHUSETTS.

Open from June 1st to October 1st, 1891. For terms and descriptive catalogue address to East Worcester Street, Worcester, Mass., or Norcross House during the season. This is a first-class temperance, family house. J. A. Norcross, Prop. E. A. Holbrook, Mgr. W. L. Davis, Clerk.

About Folks.

Last Saturday night as Mr. George Holmes was about to sever his connection with the New York Store, preparatory to removing to Springfield, after the covering up bell had been struck, a second signal brought all the clerks to the office where a little surprise had been prepared for the faithful clerk. The proprietor, Mr. Z. F. Little with his other employes had procured a handsome, gold headed ebony stick cane. This Mr. Little, in appropriate words, proceeded to present to Mr. Holmes. The latter gentleman was going along with his final duties in his usual methodic manner wholly unsuspecting of what his associates had in store for him. Their crowding down to his end of the rooms quite astounded him, till Mr. Little entered upon his part, after which he found his wits sufficiently to properly and feelingly respond. Such acts on the part of fellow laborers go far to lessen the asparities of life.

Rev. Seelye Bryant, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Lancaster and son of Rev. Albert Bryant, pastor of Belmont church of this city was married Tuesday afternoon, May 12, to Miss Margaret Ferguson MacLean of Lancaster. The ceremony took place in the Lancaster church which was very beautifully decorated for the occasion with apple blossoms and hot-house plants. The officiating clergyman was the grooms father. Deacon Whitney, the step-father of the bride gave her away. Miss Edith Helen Bryant, sister of the groom was the maid of honor and Miss Bertha Bryant and Miss Susie MacLean were the bride-maids. Master Stewart Whitney, half brother of the bride was best man. The ushers were David Latham, Hirshell Gardner, Emmons Bryant and Arthur A. Bryant. Following the ceremony, a reception was given by Rev. and Mrs. Bryant at the residence of Deacon Whitney. Later in the afternoon the happy couple departed on a brief wedding trip to Boston. The wedding presents were numerous and beautiful. Members of the church gave a gold watch to the groom and silverware to the bride. The Snowshoe Club gave Mr. Bryant a study chair. Rev. Mr. Bryant is twenty-four years old, is a graduate of Amherst, class of '87 and Princeton Theological Seminary, '90. His Worcester friends wish him much happiness and great success.

Worcester Coal Company,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

THE CRITERION Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.

231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SHREWSBURY ST.
J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

We have the Finest Line of

SINGLE and DOUBLE

CARRIAGES!

to be found in the city. Our Prices are Low considering the quality of our Stock. If you want a Stylish and Durable Carriage it will pay you to give us a call.

J. W. SARGENT & SON,

34, 36 and 38 Waldo St.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!

It saves Time,
Labor and Fuel,
(two-thirds cost
per hr. for fuel.)

Manufacturers
Guarantee every Iron.

TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, M'g. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,
Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, *

NO. 156 MAIN STREET,
H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

FURNITURE AND CARPETS,

355 Main Street, Worcester.

Parlor Desks.

A little gem for $15.

Library Desks.

From $15 upwards.

Roll Top Office Desks.

Size 4 ft. 6 in., for only $40.

This is a first-class Desk.

Complete House Furnishings

in Moderate and High-Priced Goods at Reasonable Prices.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,

Furniture and Carpet Dealers,

355 MAIN STREET. 355

Goods sold on four months' time at cash prices.

Household.

Solution for cleaning silver and brass. To one quart of rain water add two ounces of ammonia and three ounces of precipitated chalk. Bottle and keep well corked and shake before using. Wash silver in hot, soapy water and rinse in clean, hot water.

This recipe for washing flannels, recommended by an old English housekeeper, is said to be thoroughly satisfactory to those who have tried its effects: To a gallon of hot water take one teaspoonful of the triple or strongest ammonia and add enough soap to make a strong suds. Dip the flannels in the suds without rubbing them with soap and then rinse them in clear, hot water.

To clear soup-stock remove the fat and allow the white and shell of one egg for every quart of stock. If you wish to flavor the stock more highly, add half a saltspoon of celery-seed and the thinnest possible shavings from the rind of half a lemon. Add also the lemon juice, and more salt and pepper if needed. Mix celery-seed, lemon, egg etc., with the cold stock, and beat it well. If the stock be hot when the egg is added, the egg will harden before it has done its work.

Asparagus which is left from dinner may appear a second time in an omelet on the breakfast-table. Cut the cold asparagus in inch pieces and set it in a covered earthen dish in hot water, to be heated thoroughly through, but not to cook. Season it slightly again. Make a nice omelet with four eggs, put a cup of the heated asparagus in it fold it and serve it at once. Make as many omelets as the asparagus requires, but do not attempt to make any larger ones than four eggs will make.

Pretty glass globes for holding flowers are sold in all of the shops now for a trilling sum and although they are merely the common pressed glass they are graceful in shape and just the things to stand around in odd nooks about a country cottage, filled with wild flowers or posies from the old-fashioned garden.

Never allow fresh fish to soak in water, except to thaw it out when frozen.

An invitation to an evening reception calls for a written regret, but whether you accept or decline a formal call should be made afterwards.

In buying cooked lobsters remember that a lobster that was alive when thrown into the boiler will have the tail curled up to the body, while one that was dead has the tail extended.

By rubbing with a flannel dipped in whiting, the brown discolorations may be taken off cups which have been used for baking.

Fresh cod is exceedingly nice boiled and served with egg sauce; but you must get a piece from the thickest part of the fish, and it should weigh three or four pounds.

Rice Dumplings.

Put your rice in a stew pan, and pour on each cup of rice one gill of milk; stand it near the fire where it will keep hot but not boil. As soon as it has absorbed all the milk, pare your apples, take out the cores, and put the rice around them instead of paste. Boil them until the apple is soft. They should be tied in dumpling cloths.

J. W. GREENE, PLUMBER.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,

Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand,) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

Harness and Saddlery,

RELIABLE GOODS and LOWEST PRICES.

R. McALEER & CO.,

155 MAIN STREET.

PHOTOGRAPHER *****

Children's Portraits A Specialty

326 Main, op. Mechanics Hall

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,

* PRINTERS. *

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,

DEALER IN

Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

HALF the New York and Boston prices to begin with, and now a third lower still. That's where the price on that lot of Novelty Scotch Plaids and Stripes goes today, 69c a yard, instead of 95c, and they are worth twice the price asked in the first Place. About 10 or 12 styles left, some of them of the best.

PLAIDS.

- Tan ground, with navy.
- Tan ground, with brown.
- Cream ground, with navy.
- Light gray ground, with heliotrope.
- Steel blue ground, with garnet.
- Cream ground, with brown.
- Tan ground, with garnet.

STRIPES.

- Tan ground, with garnet.
- Tan ground, with brown.
- Tan ground, with navy.
- Steel blue ground, with old rose.
- Steel blue ground, with tan.
- Old rose ground, with navy and steel.
- Steel blue ground, with gray.
- Gray ground, with tan.

EDW. L. SMITH & CO.,
 401 and 403 MAIN STREET.
 WALKER BUILDING, Cor. Mechanic.

Bigelow & Longley
 COR. MAIN and ELM STS.

We want an earnest word with the men of Worcester today.

We want to tell you something that we believe will be of the greatest advantage to you.

We want to tell you something that will give you positive pleasure but will be a positive saving to you in the long run.

We want to do this for the purpose of winning your confidence by showing you in what way we determine to deserve it.

We are not satisfied with the ordinary methods in general use in the clothing trade.

Neither are you.

CORRECT CLOTHES all men want, and think, they get, no matter whether the price be great or small. CORRECT CLOTHES means that the cloth, trimmings and sewing are of the best for the money.

CORRECT CLOTHES mean that they are made upon true and well defined lines that give you a certainty of perfect fit.

CORRECT CLOTHES will give you honest service honest value for your money, and will give us honest pride in selling them to you.

CORRECT CLOTHES cost a little more money than the shams so often forced upon you, but it won't take long for you to see that the shams are the dearest all the time.

CORRECT CLOTHES are the beginning and the end of our business faith; nothing else can be found in our store.

We invite you to see them and test all we say. If you do not find our CLOTHES exactly what we say, return them and get your money.

CORRECT CLOTHES at FAIR PRICES will win your favor in the long run.

CORRECT CLOTHES are always ready for you here, at the least possible price for quality.

Bigelow & Longley

Church Notes.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of Pilgrim Church will give an entertainment at Pilgrim Hall, Tuesday evening, May 26th, entitled the "Dairymaids Supper." Choruses, March by milkmen and dairymaids, Milking stool drill, followed by refreshments. Don't forget the date.

METHODIST.

Three of the Methodist Churches in the city observed the second anniversary of the Epworth League by appropriate exercises. At Coral Street the church was beautifully decorated. In the morning Dr. Knowles preached from the text "There is a league between thee and me," stating that the movement among the young people would be a potent factor in church work.

At Grace there were four speakers. The president, Frank J. Metcalf, spoke of the work to be done, and urged that the members acquaint themselves with the rules and principles of their church. Mrs. A. S. Roe took the subject, "The Red and White," our banner, and among other remarks made a strong appeal for the cause of temperance. W. H. Baird told of his experience as a "Stranger within our Gates," and urged that the stranger be given a hearty welcome. The pastor, Rev. W. T. Worth, then outlined the model church of 1950. He too referred to the liquor question, and called attention to the rules of the church relating to any one who has any thing to do with intoxicating drinks. During the evening a banner from one of the members was presented to the league by the pastor and accepted by the president. A special program of music was rendered. There was a double quartet, and a male quartet, besides the regular anthem by the chorus. The audience was a large one and was well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

The exercises at Trinity included a cornet solo by N. E. McCauley, and address by the president of the league, and also by the pastor. The president, John Legg, gave a brief history of the local league, its changes in form till now it is a branch of the Epworth League. Rev. J. D. Pickles then made an address in which he stated his sympathy with the league methods and work. He said: "The means necessary to realize our high ideals are personal character, persistence of effort, thorough Christian usefulness and love of Christ and hearty loyalty to Him, as our highest example."

The growth of the league has been phenomenal. Now only two years old, its chapters number over 5000, and its membership more than a third of a million. It has been adopted by the M. E. Church, South, and the Canadian M. E. Church. It has in this city five prosperous leagues, and its power must be felt in the churches.

L. M. Alexander of 195 Front Street, dealer in Bicycles, has prepared his second Annual Catalogue. It seems to describe about all one could wish in the 'Cycling world. Here are all machines and prices, full descriptions of mechanism and what is eminently desirable, encouragement to ladies to undertake 'Cycling. Send to the proprietors for a copy.

New York Store.

Simply wonderful! Twenty yards of Shaker Flannel for one dollar.

Remnants of Bleached Cotton 6 1-4c a yard.

Sixteen yards nice bleached Cotton for one dollar.

One hundred styles of Challies 5c a yard.

Twenty yards of beautiful Challies for $1.

Ten thousand yards Dark Prints, elegant styles, only 5c a yard.

Twenty yards Seven Cent Print for $1.

Four pairs Oayx Fast Black Hose, either for ladies, misses or men, for $1.

Light Organdies, 12 1-2c a yard; wide beautiful stuff, 8 yards for $1.

Ladies' Outing Suits, "Only one twenty-five."

Turkish Bath Towels, 24x50, only 12 1-2c apiece.

Ladies' Colored Skirts, only 50c apiece; worth double this.

Window Screens, 29c, 33c and 39c apiece. "Keep the flies out."

Z. F. Little & Co.,
BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

This is the time of year to make your homes fresh and bright for the Summer.

Lace Curtains do much towards the Artistic furnishing of our homes.

For many places the stout Nottinghams will answer, and you have a choice from 50c up.

Maybe you'll like the fine delicacy of the Swiss, and if so, there are large lots here for you to choose from.

Almost everyone has a warm regard for the rich figured Irish Point, and nowhere can so fine a lot be seen as this week is within your reach with us.

Brussels lace Curtains at high cost, must be ready for those who want them, and they are ready.

Portieres too in what ever you want, and in color harmony with your rooms. Prices are always right for you for our quality.

Curtain Poles in white enamel, brass or in the natural woods.

Window Shades and all Shade work to your satisfaction, is the point to which all our efforts tend.

Cords, tassels and all the niceties of the art, if you ask for them.

Fringes in abundance to fit into every possible necessity.

Special coverings for Lounges. Cretomes, French, English or American, at low price or high price.

Nothing in Portieres, Lace Curtains, or the accessories of the Upholsterers' art wanting to supply your most exacting taste.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

The College Ghost.

[Continued from last week.]

It was in the pleasant month of June and commencement was near at hand. The graduating class wrote their parts with great care and delivered them with so much energy and pathos, that they frequently brought down the house. In short, it was a most brilliant commencement, superior to any that had been witnessed since the erection of the college walls. The day was closed with a splendid "Carnival Ball," in the evening. The ball closed at the small hours in the morning, and all went home to rest their weary limbs and "dream of heaven." Late in the morning of the next day, many calls were made for congratulations and compliments, and to talk over and enjoy again the pleasures of commencement day. Young men and maidens, not a few, freely exchanged sentiments, and expressed attachment for each other far beyond mere friendship. In short, a revival, honest and true, pervaded the village, without a discordant voice. Ministers and people were in harmony. The prison was empty and the churches all full. Millenium had come.

SEQUEL.

After a lapse of four years, and all the students had graduated with honor who were witnesses to those marvellous doings at the college, the president was startled by the reception of a letter mailed at an obscure post-office in the State of New York, signed "THE COLLEGE GHOST!" At first he thought it a joke, but on reading it through, came to a different conclusion. The writer stated, that he alone, unaided by any one, performed all these wonderful acts, which were supposed to have been the work of a ghost! That he then lived many miles from the post office, where the letter was mailed and intended not to disclose his name lest some harm should come to him by those who had been duped by his performances; but in the interest of truth, he thought the president of the college, for whom he had great respect, should be informed of the facts, and he could make such use of them as he pleased.

The following statement is given in nearly the language of the letter: "I was in the senior class and roomed on the same flat with the two students who first heard the rattling of the bones in the chest. They were my classmates and were said to be cousins. They seemed to have plenty of money, were rather aristocratic, and never cordially associated with the class. It may well be said that they were unpopular.

"Being of a mechanical turn of mind, I wanted a small bone from the chest in the basement room. Accordingly, I took my lantern, went outside of the college building and into the room, tossed back the lid, and soon found the bone I wanted; inadvertently, leaving the chest open. I shut the door and returned to my room. When I came into the hall, I saw these two students standing at the door of their room seemingly, in a frightened condition. I passed on to them and enquired what was the trouble. They said they had just heard the bones rattling in the chest below. I suggested, it might be imagination, and not real; but they both stoutly affirmed there could be no mistake; the lid of the chest went back against the wall and the bones rattled against the sides of the chest, but it must have been done by a ghost, for no mortal man would think of going into the room in the night and rattling the bones, any more than he would go into the graveyard and cut up cavers. Well, said I, and why do you not go down and see what has happened? We feel too timid to do that. Too timid! I am not afraid of a ghost, I said, and will go down into the room at once; follow me. We found things of course, just as I had left them, but I put on a wondering countenance as well as themselves. But I soon began to examine the room, and found the door, swung inside, was four feet wide and so near the corner that it would not go entirely back, but would hit the other wall, and would leave a three-corner space where I could stand erect, so that when the door was thrown back it would hit the wall instead of myself. These students were such cowards that I thought I would have a little sport at their expense. Accordingly, I went to the store and bought the old style lock, such as were put on store doors, part wood and part iron with a hole through it, so that it could be locked inside and out, and with two keys, and had it put on the door. I had put one key in my pocket, and called upon one of the students to lock the door with the other, and await events. In the course of the day, I called upon them, left my lantern, advised them to get one or more lanterns, have them all lighted before eight o'clock, and with a number of other students, go, at once, down to the basement the moment they heard any noise or disturbance. I should be so engaged I could not watch with them, but should hear them move and would be there without a moment's delay.

"A little before eight, I went down in the dark, unlocked the door, locked myself in, and put the key in my pocket. I was then ready for operations. When I thought it was fully eight o'clock, I threw open the lid, made stifled groans, and threw out bones with great force, some of them hitting the floor beneath the student's feet! They all started at once, came swiftly round, unlocked the door and rushed in. I had just time to get into the corner, then step out from behind it, and join them, apparently out of breath; and all supposed, I came in from out doors. Nor did they suspect me, for I was one of the foremost in detecting the cause of these demonstrations.

"The plan worked well, and I thought it might be carried on to any extent, so I suggested putting a watch outside, which was done, and with the same result as before. Then I suggested sifting ashes on the brick floor, and superintended doing that in a thorough manner. In regard to the ashes I will explain. In the afternoon I watched my opportunity and let myself into the room unseen by anyone. I knew the students were not in their room overhead at the time. I went up to the chest and found the hinges were rusty and weak, so I tore the lid off and put it down in the small space behind it. I then took out of the chest as many bones as I supposed I could dispose of in my allotted time, put them into the corner where I was to stand, took the sieve, and sifted the ashes all over the floor where I had stepped, going backwards, so as to leave no tracks of my own. I was then ready for the night's operations; for I had nothing to do but stand near my corner, groan and throw the bones piled up at my feet.

"At the usual hour, I took my place near my corner, and when I found a multitude with lanterns watching outside, for I could hear the conversation, and their lanterns gave a dim light through the small windows into the room; although I did not need the light, for I found I could groan, shriek, and throw bones in the dark as well as a ghost, and as that was the last exhibition I intended to make I concluded to put in a little extra work. So when I thought the time had come to begin, I burst forth in great agony; my first shriek was so loud and shrill that it startled the people outside, and the bones flew so fast and swift that the professor paused for fear of getting hit. Some of them I imagine did come quite near his head. When I had exhausted my stock of bones, I stopped, and when he found all things quiet, he threw the door wide open, the crowd pressed in behind him; but I stepped out, called a halt, and was by the professor's side in a moment; assisted in keeping the crowd back, and with lanterns attempted to discover the condition of things in the room. It was at once seen that the lid had been torn from the chest, and many bones were scattered round on the ashes, but no foot prints could be seen!

"I then concluded it was time to stop. I had had all the fun I wanted and rather more. I was afraid of being detected and then I should be expelled in disgrace and perhaps mobbed. But I had got to a point where I could neither hold on nor let go. I was in a sad dilemma. I could not reveal what I had done, and to stop where the demonstrations did, would not seem to have any purpose in view—would be senseless and silly.

"With much anxiety I dwelt upon some method of closing these demonstrations in some rational way. At the investigation in the chapel, I matured a plan. A magician or fortune-teller, lived in a neighboring town, some five or six miles away, with whom I had a slight acquaintance. I knew he was a shrewd man, and would help me out of the difficulty if any one could. At his house and on the way to the college, I informed him of all the marvellous works I had done in the basement room and about all the particulars of the transactions in the dissecting room that happened a few years before.

"And how I came to know about the transaction in the dissecting room was, I had frequently been employed in it, I was in my senior year calculating to be a doctor or surgeon, and being a good scholar and having a natural genius for surgery, I was efficient help in the dissecting room. Although the body of the supposed murdered man was brought to the college a few years before I entered it, yet I had talked with the professor so much who was there at the time, and examined the room, closets, furniture, etc, that I was well versed in all things in it. The magician performed his part to a charm—exceeded my expectations and is entitled to much credit for his efficient sagacity.

"I am now in the western country, practicing physic and surgery, and I feel that I shall yet make my mark in life. The follies of youth I regret, and yet I never intended to do evil to any one. I shall never play the ghost any more, for it was not a very pleasant business at the time. Had it not been for the hiding place behind the door, it would not have been attempted. And now Mr. President, in bidding you adieu, I would inform you that I left my key hanging up on a nail behind the door in my hiding place."

COLLEGE GHOST.

PRIVATE NOTE.

"MR. PRESIDENT: When you find my key hanging up behind the door, and the space behind it, too small to conceal a human being when it is wide open, and therefore infer that my statement must needs be false, you would be mistaken instead of myself. I admit that it was too small to conceal a human body of any other man perhaps in the wide world. To make this plain I will describe my own person, as it was at the time of the manifestations in the basement room of the college. I was a peculiarly deformed man in some particulars. I was of the usual height, was not called a dwarf, the body was of average width but very thin, so much so that I used all the means in my power to conceal it. My head was "fore and aft" of the common size but very thin, the defect in the head I concealed by ear locks according to the fashion of the time. To cover the defect of my body I wore a loose sack coat, generally buttoned at the top but never buttoned or drawn tight around the body. And to provide against exposure, when the occasion required, a close-fitting outside garment, I had a cushion made to be worn in front underneath, to round up my body into a proper shape. When concealed behind the door I had to stand straight up with my back to the wall and my head turned away at right angles. Had I stood in a natural position the door would have hit my nose before it did the wall if fully opened. In fact it was a close fit, and an uncomfortable position; and would be too painful to be endured for any great length of time.

"When it was suggested that the students with a teacher should go down to the basement and know for a certainty whether any person could stand concealed in the space behind the door by actual trial, and some twenty of us went, I stepped into my room and put on my cushion, and then it was found that some of the students were smaller than myself, but none could be concealed behind the door. Had the architect hung the door just two inches further from the corner, it would have swung back against the wall, leaving no space at all, and that was probably what he intended; but his mistake caused much trouble and excitement—not evil, for the ghost had a quickening power that started the inmates of the college into new life and vigor."

In closing my narrative of these startling events I wish to say should its truthfulness be challenged, it will in all essential particulars stand the test of the most thorough investigation. The events happened nearly a century ago, and were given to me by a professor of the college where they happened about fifteen years afterwards. He was an officer there through all the investigations, taking an active part in them; and his integrity is beyond question. As to myself it is about seventy-five years ago that the revelation was made to me; and yet, I feel confident that in substance and fact, it is true as narrated to me. I do not pretend to give the precise language. I use my own, but as I had a trained memory in early life and improved in the course of years, I am confident that I have made no mistake now. The public may therefore be sure that the events happened as stated.

And now having finished my story, it is published not only in the cause of truth, but as a caution not to place too much reliance upon appearances. Had those sagacious and learned men put their hands behind the door, they would not have found a vacant space "and nothing more," but a deformed man of real flesh and blood, standing in an awkward position, his back close to the wall, shoulders set back, arms hanging down and clinging to his sides, with his head turned at right angles. Perhaps they would have been frightened as much as they would have been had they found a real ghost.

It is not denied that there have been miracles, dreams, ghosts, spiritual manifestations and the like, in the years that are past, and will be in future to the end of time, all honest and true; but these are far outbalanced by frauds. In the course of a long life, for I am now ninety-eight, I have more or less employed my leisure hours in writing stories, essays, lectures, orations, etc., for publication in newspapers and periodicals, but never under my own name; and not caring to change my practice now, I put to this the sign manual of SENEC.

ABOUT FOLKS.

Last Saturday noon at All Saints' Church Miss Sidney Howe, daughter of the late James H. Howe, was married to Edward Standish Bradford, Jr., of St. Louis, Mo. The wedding was quiet on account of the bride's family being in mourning. Rev. Dr. Alexander H. Vinton read the service. A reception at the home of the bride, 11 Linden Street, followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Bradford will reside in St. Louis, where the groom is connected with a paper manufacturing establishment.

Rev. W. V. W. Davis of Union Church addressed the Christian Endeavor Societies of Manchester, N. H., last Sunday evening.

The familiar face of Frank B. Hall, Esq., has been missing for a few days he having taken a business trip to Portland, "Way down in Maine."

Mr. Fred N. Oxley, druggist corner of Main and Chandler Streets, has gone to Florida to look after a brother who has been there for some time on account of his health and who is now seriously ill.

A Decennial.

No one would suspect that "Tom" Lynch, Jr., was a ten year old Benedict; but that is just what his friends intimated when they poured in upon him and his good wife, last Tuesday night, at their home, 17 Vernon Street, and helped them celebrate. Ever since leaving the High School, class of '77, Thomas has been in the employ of the Gas Company; but there was nothing of a gaseous character in the substantial parlor suite that his friends left by way of reminder of their visit and the day.

Miss Fanny Mae Hogg, daughter of William J. Hogg, celebrated her eleventh birthday Tuesday evening, May 12th, with a party to her friends. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Bicknell's orchestra furnished music for the dancing and Rebboli was the caterer. Those present were George Barton, Caspar Brown, Edward Warren, Harry Jordan, Roger Kinnicutt, Turner Willard, Albert Mason, Lucius Knowles, Arthur Richards, Rockwood Bullock, Howard Morse, Lyman Bartlett, Percy Whittall, George Dudley, Prescott Marble, Edward Brown, Everett Throop, Annie Barnard, Ruth Barnard, Ethel Davis, Elizabeth Fish, Lara Fish, Myrtis Happoldt, Florence Davenport, Bertha Titus, Lydia Warren, Ruth Samson, Edith Norcross, Ethel Kline, Hattie May Leland, Emma Otis, Dorothea Colvin, Daisy Whittall.

If Sir Walter Scott was right in saying that patience was a prime requisite of genius, then the Turk who is making a rug in the Boston store window takes the premium, for this locality, as a man of genius. Admiring throngs witness his snail like progress till they can endure it no longer and then hurry along just for a relief. Only think of it! Two inches a day! Every thread drawn in and knotted, by hand. There is no machinery about it. He never pauses and he never hurries. He is patience personified. What an amount of time must have been consumed in making the rugs lately exhibited at the rink?

Hon. Bonum Nye.

Our aged North Brookfield friend was in the city, a few days since, as lively and cheerful as ever. Though nearly ninety-six years old he moved rapidly about transacting his business, that he might catch the 12.15 train home. He is still treasurer of the Savings Bank in his town and it is not so long since he resigned his presidency of the North Brookfield railroad.

Among other calls, he made one on Dr.—. After the professional part of the interview was over, he settled back, ready to chat a little. To a remark concerning his years, he replied, "Yes, I am getting along some, and I suppose, in the estimation of many, I am old, but the thought doesn't disturb me much. I presume I ought to be thinking about dying, but really, I don't. In fact, I don't know but I am growing safer every day, for doctor, did you ever think that very few people die beyond ninety?"

Quaint.

In old times, a colored barber in Boston surmounted his shop with the following legend,

James Howe.

"Cuts, curls and shaves with taste and care,
And to bald heads restores the hair."

The epitaph on a New Jersey grave-stone, after giving name, age, etc. of the deceased, adds pithily,

"He was a good egg."

Another, it is said, on a wife's headstone, has the following equally practical eulogy,

"She made good bread."

A. L.

Memorial Day.

CITY OF WORCESTER, MASS.,

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
MAYOR'S OFFICE, MAY 1, 1891.

A proper reverence for the memory of those who gave their lives a willing sacrifice upon their country's altar requires our citizens to unite in the exercises of Memorial day. The ranks of those who survived the great conflict, who gave freedom to a race, and perpetuity to a nation, are yearly decreasing. Soon the last hero of the war will greet his former comrade in a lasting reunion.

The past achievements of the Grand Armies have enshrined their members in the nation's heart and glorified the name of our citizen soldiery. Let us, then, join with them in strewing honored graves with springtime flowers, and in renewing an allegiance to the land and flag our fathers and brothers preserved. Saturday, May 30, being a legal holiday, our citizens are requested to refrain from their usual vocations, and the business offices of the city will be closed. Any of our citizens who desire to commemorate the memory of those for whom this day has been set apart, are invited to meet with the past and present members of the city government at the City hall at 7:45 o'clock a. m., and proceed, under the escort of Post 10, G. A. R., to the soldiers' monument and participate in the services appropriate to the occasion.

(Signed), FRANCIS A. HARRINGTON, Mayor.

HEADQUARTERS GEO. H. WARD POST NO. 10, DEPARTMENT OF MASSACHUSETTS, G. A. R. WORCESTER, MASS., May 21, 1891.

SPECIAL ORDERS, No. 2.

Comrades will assemble at G. A. R. hall, Sunday, May 24th, at 9:30 a. m., in dark clothes, white gloves, and G. A. R. badges, for the purpose of attending memorial services at the First Universalist church, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Almon Gunnison.

The Sons of Veterans are requested to join with the post and march to the church.

The Womans Relief Corps and Daughters of Veterans are requested to meet at the church and attend in a body. Seats will be reserved for all, and it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

Per order, C. H. PINKHAM, Commander.
Official, CHARLES E. GRANT, Adjutant.

HEADQUARTERS GEORGE H. WARD POST NO. 10, DEPARTMENT OF MASSACHUSETTS, G. A. R. WORCESTER, MASS., May 21, 1891.

GENERAL ORDER NO. 1.

In compliance with general orders from national and department headquarters, and in accordance with rules and regulations of our order, Saturday, May 30, will be observed as Memorial day.

Comrades will assemble at these headquarters at 7 a. m., in full uniform of the post.

The Worcester Brass band, the City band and Johnson's Drum corps will report to the adjutant at G. A. R. hall at 7:30 a. m. The line will be formed at 7:45 and move at 8 o'clock, escorted by the Emmet Guards, the City guards and the Worcester Light Infantry, under command of Major E. R. Shumway, and proceed to the City hall, where they will receive the city government and invited guests and escort them to the Soldiers' Monument, where appropriate services will be held.

The address will be delivered by the Hon. Joseph H. Walker, after which the city government and invited guests will be escorted to the City hall, the column proceeding to Washburn hall, where comrades will be provided with flowers.

The first division, under escort of the militia companies, will proceed to Rural cemetery.

The second and third divisions, under the command of the senior and junior vice-commanders, will proceed to Hope, St. Johns and the French cemeteries at New Worcester, transportation being provided to Webster square and return. At the conclusion of the ceremonies at the different cemeteries, the several divisions will return to post headquarters, where a collation will be provided by the Womans Relief Corps.

Per order, C. H. Pinkham, Commander.
Official, Charles E. Grant, Adjutant.

HEADQUARTERS GEO. H. WARD POST No. 10, DEPARTMENT OF MASSACHUSETTS, G. A. R. WORCESTER, MASS., May 21, 1891.

SPECIAL ORDER NO. 3.

Comrades will assemble Sunday evening, May 31st, in the west anteroom of Mechanics Hall, at 7 p. m., in full post uniform, for the purpose of attending the post memorial services.

The address will be delivered by Comrade John D. Billings, past department commander of the department of Massachusetts.

During the services there will be presented a set of memorial volumes by friends of the post.

The music will be under the direction of B. T. Hammond, Esq.

Seats will be reserved for the Womans Relief Corps and the Daughters and the Sons of Veterans, and they are earnestly invited to be present.

Every veteran in the city, and all soldiers, widows, and the public generally are invited to be present and join with us, that we may perpetuate the heroic deeds, the noble daring and self-sacrifice of our honored dead, and pay a tribute of respect to their memories.

The members of the city government and invited guests are requested to meet in the north-east anteroom at 7:15 and to take seats on the platform during the exercises, which will commence at 7:30. Per order C. H. PINKHAM, Commander.

Official, CHARLES E. GRANT, Adjutant.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, Creditors, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of CHARLES P. DAKIN, late of Worcester, in said county, deceased, intestate: Greeting.

Upon the Petition of Frederick E. Dakin of said Worcester, you are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the third Tuesday of June next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased should not be granted to said petitioner.

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester the last publication to be two days, at least, before said court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioners, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-first day of May in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, Creditors, and all other Persons interested in the estate of EMMA S. BURPEE, late of Sterling, in said County, deceased, intestate: Greeting.

Upon the Petition of Albert M. Iyer, of said Sterling, you are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the third Tuesday of June next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased should not be granted to said petitioner, without the giving of surety or sureties on her official bond pursuant to the statute.

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively, in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester the last publication to be two days, at least, before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioner, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-first day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

South End News.

Mr. Frank W. Washburn, who recently sprained his ankle, is able to be out again.

The Crescent Tennis Club meets with Harry H. Ames, 13 Oak Ave. next Monday evening at 7:45 P. M.

Mr. Charles Earle, class of '94 Harvard, spent Sunday last at home with his parents.

Mr. Richard Healy, the cloak man, is building an elegant house at the corner of Woodland and Oberlin streets, into which he expects to move about the first of September.

Judge George M. Woodward entertained a party of friends last Sunday at his Summer residence at South Shrewsbury. He goes for the season June 15.

The first regular meeting of the Worcester Philatelic Association, was held Monday evening May 18, in the reading room of Pilgrim Church. The meetings are held bi-weekly.

The object of the association is to study all the regular issues of stamps. The officers of the association are: Arthur C. Woodward President, Judson B. Witherby Vice President, Walter L. Brown Secretary and Treasurer.

All stamp collectors of the city are invited to attend the meetings and become members of the association.

Mr. Fred Ward, 40 Oread street, recently with the Malleable Iron Co., has severed his connection with the same and goes to Baltimore, where he has accepted a position with the Norcross Bros. as book-keeper, while they are constructing the "Calvert Building."

The Misses Buckingham who are in Philadelphia on a visit to friends, leave for home next week, stopping on the way at Wood Haven L. I. and New Haven, Conn.

The ladies of the Benevolent Union connected with the Main street Baptist Church., gave a supper and entertainment in the vestry Thursday evening May 14. The entertainment consisted of one selection by a male quartette consisting of W. C. Powers 1st. bass, H. C. Powers 2nd bass, W. A. Anthony 1st tenor, W. H. Desper 2nd tenor, a wand drill by eleven students from the Polytechnic Institute and several selections by Mrs. Richardson.

There are quite a number of bicycle riders at the South End and they propose to form themselves into a club in the near future. Such a club would have at the start a membership of at least thirty members. The club will be known as the "Woodland Bicycle Club."

Joslyn and Brown, the popular South End grocers lost a valuable horse Monday, through an attack of the glanders.

The regular meeting of the South End Whist Club was held at the residence of Mr. George M. Woodward, Wednesday evening. The first prize, a Royal Worcester Creamer, was won by Mrs. M. J. Horne.

The members of the Piedmont Branch gave an entertainment in their new chapel, Wednesday evening May 20th. The entertainment was given by the Cecilia Quartette, assisted by Miss Lois Thompson pianist, Miss Hattie Price, Reader, Mr. William Baldwin cornetist, and the celebrated Peak sisters. The proceeds will go to the chapel and benevolent work.

Charles Dickens.

The failure of the High School Seniors to secure a bust of Charles Dickens proved to be a blessing in disguise for, thereby, they were obliged to call in the aid of a local artist to make a crayon of the novelist. Mr. James B. Crocker of the Davis Art Company had, already, done a most admirable piece of work for the school in the shape of a crayon of Bayard Taylor, given by the class of '90, so the young people knew to whom to go for their work.

Mr. Crocker's picture is made from a photograph by Rockwell of New York, and represents the master writer as he looked when he made his last trip to America. Those who heard and saw him in "Bob Sawyer's Party" and "Steerforth" will recognize the likeness as wonderfully exact. As a work of art, the picture is a worthy addition to the portraits already hanging in the main hall of the school. Pupils for giving and Mr. Crocker for making, should be alike congratulated.

John J. Heron, who has, for several years, been a successful salesman with S. R. Leland & Son is soon to sever his connection there and to take a place with the Providence and New York line of steamers where he will have charge of the music. This will be a good way for Worcester friends to visit Gotham and so meet an old friend en route.

Have a Drink?

Principal Mooney of the Quinsigamond School, whose excellent words on Total Abstinence may be found in another column, is obviously in earnest, for now he is circulating a pamphlet with the above title. His drink, however is not that which intoxicates, but he gives one hundred reasons why Alcohol in all its forms should be avoided. An interesting and valuable compilation.

The Week.

CITY.

- 15—Board of Health decides to establish a hospital for glandered horses.
City Marshal directs that no more names of prisoners be given out. The papers will get them, all the same.
Austin Barton dies at 94 Elm street, 85 years.
Prof. Geo. P. Burt, music teacher, dies, corner Gold and Washington streets, 56 years.
Post Master Greene instituting improvements in his charge. Stamps may be bought all night.
- 16—Halloway Harrington, a mighty hunter, dies at 9 Freeland street, 68 years.
Terrible accident at the Gas Works. Michael McNamera and Patrick Hamilton suffocated, Patrick Ryan and Wm. Connors, nearly so.
The first rainy day in many weeks. Farmers happy, but "Tech" Field Sports are off.
- 17—Local clergymen still preaching on the rum curse. May their prayers avail.
Thirty-fifth Anniversary of Rev. J. J. Powers ordination.
- 18—Labor Union Mass Meeting in Mechanics Hall.
Rev. Laurens Perry receives a call to the Lakeview Congregational church.
- 19—Episcopal Club entertains at the Bay State House. Ladies and Dr. Huntington of New York received.
Twelve hundred friends give a merry send off to a party of Swedes going home for a visit.
Friends of the Day Nursery have a very pleasant evening in Colonial Hall.
Owing to re-arrangement of Batteries, Surgeon Wm. T. Souther and Hospital Steward Wm. E. Banfield honorably discharged from Battery B.
- 20—Absolutely nothing of interest save the trial of Hatch for alleged embezzlement.
- 21—Institute boys have deferred sports at Agricultural grounds, very successful.
Employees of Norcross Bros. hold very enjoyable entertainment at Bay State House.

COUNTY.

- 14—Rev. Geo. P. Eastman given enthusiastic reception in Millbury.
Southbridge's Board of Trade has a public meeting. Speeches by Hon. Clark Jillson and Hon. Joseph H. Walker.
- 15—Young people of the Unitarian Society of Sterling give interesting entertainment in Town Hall.
- 17—Webster has a ghost of her own. It's in a photograph however.
Nelson Hawes dies in Barre, 86 years. Native of the town.
- 19—Miss Nettie Wood, in West Upton married to Mr. Martin L. Saunders of Narragansett Pier, R. I.
Rev. P. W. Burke dies in Leicester, 28 years.
- 20—Mrs. Margaret Taft dies in Uxbridge, 90 years.
- 21—Leicester in a ferment over Electric railway. We cant eat our cake and have it.
Esek Saunders of Saundersville celebrates 91st birthday.

COMMONWEALTH.

- 15—Mayor Matthews seems to have Boston affairs in his own hands.
In spite of Judge Carpenter, Butler gets his client, Mrs. Johnson, out of prison. The Judge will have to look out for the General will surely be after him.
- 16—In Cambridge, Harvard wins everything from Yale. The latter needed no blue ribbon on the home trip. Their faces supplied all of that color necessary.
Lightning and Street R. R. in Lowell badly mixed. Horse killed and man stunned.
Famous Huunewell mansion in Wellesley burned.
- 17—Rev. Hugh Montgomery with characteristic energy fighting Woburn rumsellers.
Rev. Lorimer's formal acceptance of Tremont Temple pastorate read.
- 18—Republicans, generally, dissatisfied with proposed Congressional Districts.
Mrs. Claretta Johnson returned to Sherborn Prison. What next, General Butler?
- 19—The Legislature adaaances the bill to repeal the Public Bar act.
Harvard 'Varsity crew beaten by the 2d Eight. They had better change names.
- 20—Congregationalists holding 89th Annual Meeting in Marlboro.
Nariaki Kozaki, a Jap will represent the Harvard Divinity School at next Commencement.
- 21—Present and past Legislators and State officers form Veterans association in Boston.

NATION.

- 15—President Harrison back in the White House. His record of 140 speeches unrivalled. It may make him President again.
Son of Commissioner Raum compelled to resign. Alleged crookedness.
- 16—Steamer Prince Bismark arrives in New York from Hamburg, breaking the record. All the worse for that. Every record broken lowers the safety chance.
Secretary Blaine improving.
Town of Muskegon, Mich., wiped out by fire.
- 17—The Sheriff posts notices of enforced sale of property in the striking coal regions. They should import some more ignorant Hungarians.
- 18—Italian Consul Corte reaches New York on his way home.
Dr. Graves arrested in Denver for murder of Mrs. Barnaby.
Ma'l service likely to be established with Alaska.
- 19—Franklin Co., Texas, suffers from terrible storm.
It seems as though Pension Commissioner Raum would have to resign.
- 30—At Cincinnati a People's Party formed. Should be named "The Party of the Disgruntled."
- 21—Rhode Island dedicates a Soldiers' Home in Bristol. A commission appointed to study emigration abroad. An excellent move.
Ex. U. S. Attorney General Alphonso Taft dies in California. Death announced before prematurely.

WORLD.

- 15—And now Italy thinks she has had enough of the New Orleans affair. We are quite agreed.
Emperor William's horse runs away with him. Escapes serious injury.
- 16—England has a snow storm.
And now it appears that Mexico trades more with the United States than with Europe. So mote it be.
- 17—Russians in Japan get into trouble through not knowing the religious rules. They should have taken off their boots. The Czarewitch struck by a guard.
France not in favor of Free Trade.
A new volcano appears in Armenia.
- 18—Servians will not permit the expulsion of Queen Nathalie. Good for them.
Australians debating their confederation.
- 19—Queen of Servia, in spite of faithful subjects, driven from the realm.
A French savant studying locusts in Africa devoured by them.
- 20—Heavy fall of snow in Berlin.
Lord Salisbury says that Russian persecution of the Jews indicates a want of progress in civilization.
- 21—Susi, the famous servant of Dr. Livingstone is dead in Zanzibar.

Mr. Newton Replies.

WORCESTER, MASS., May 14, 1890.

Mr. John Wight, Principal of Worcester High School, teachers and pupils. My dear friends:

The gift you sent me and the words that came with the gift fill my heart so full of happiness and gratitude that I can find no words to tell you even a small part of my feelings. That I had and shall always have a deep regard for teachers and scholars quite above and beyond the performance of every-day duties I hope you all know, and I shall never forget the many words and acts of kindness I received from you all while I worked in your midst. I can sit in the chair given me by your thoughtful kindness and look at the beautiful picture brought by the living hands of Aletheia, and forgetful of the labor of the day, recall faces and events of the school life that will ever be to me among the pleasantest memories of my life.

I can truly say that the gifts, and even more than the gifts themselves, the evidences of your kindly feeling towards me, are among the very pleasantest things that life has brought to me. Once more I thank you all many times over and assure you I shall always remain your faithful friend,

TYLER NEWTON.

A Spring Poem.

I'd like to sing of springtime,
Of blossoms, birds and bees;
Of the brooklets murmur'ing music
And the zephyr's whispering breeze.

I'd like to sing of springtime
And give my fancy play,
In rhymes of Cupid's praises,
As poets, do, in May.

I dare not sing of springtime,
In poem or in prose;
I'll go fill up the furnace
And don my winter clothes.

—John Melvin Kendall.

THE INTERNATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA.

DODD, MEAD & CO., Publishers, New York.

THE INTERNATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA

IS THE

Latest and Best for

READY REFERENCE.

Is not this your opportunity ?

Is your Cyclopaedia not used because its articles are too long and too technical? Then write for our exchange price.

Is your Cyclopaedia of little value because its articles are too brief? Then write for our exchange price.

Is your Cyclopaedia so old that its information is no longer satisfactory? Then buy INTERNATIONAL.

Are you without a Cyclopaedia, and looking for the latest, fullest, best? Then buy INTERNATIONAL.

SOLD FOR CASH OR ON EASY PAYMENTS. THE WHOLE SET DELIVERED AT ONCE in either case, freight charges prepaid

B. A. FOWLER & CO., NEW ENGLAND AGENTS, 36 BROMFIELD ST., BOSTON.

Mention this paper.

Books and Bookmen.

Outing for May, the Outing Company publishers, New York and London.

The articles in this month's number are so varied in subject that every one may find something which treats on his favorite sport.

In "Sprinters and their Methods" Malcom W. Ford contributes a valuable addition to atheletic literature. H. A. Cushing's "Athletics at Amherst" will be interesting to many in this city. Among the other illustrations with this article is a full page engraving of the athletic team which won the Intercollegiate championship in this city last year. H. J. Van Alstine contributes an instructive article on "Canoe Building for Amateurs" and W. H. H. Murray tells "How I Sail Champlain."

John Seymour Wood's new story, "Harry's Career at Yale" begins in this number. Other articles are: Fishing in Norway, by Mrs. E. Kennedy; A Day on the Stream for Trout, by Wakeman Holberton; Photographic Dark Rooms, by Eilersie Wallace; The Whistling Idol, by T. Philip Terry; The Wisconsin National Guard, by Capt. Charles King, U. S. A.; The Rowing Clubs of Canada, by Capt. Thomas Blackwell; The Meet of the Keystone Wheelmen in 1890, by Chris Wheeler; Lawn Tennis in New England, by James Dwight; Up the Harlem to Pawling, and Beyond, by Ernest Ingersoll, and the usual Editorial Department, records, poems, etc., the whole forming a charmingly varied and attractive number.

The International Cyclopaedia, Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. For particulars, see the advertisement in this paper.

Your homes may have elegant books and pictures, your furniture may be most expensive but if you have not, at hand, the means of answering questions your surroundings are very far from complete. If you can have but one set of Cyclopedias, what one shall it be? Every set has its own peculiar recommendation. One is very full in foreign matters. One is a whole library of knowledge boiled down to one shelf of books. Another is a good American book; but it is very expensive. Still another is so abbreviated that we get little more than bare facts. Of all these, the International affords a golden mean. It has foreign and domestic matters. It is extended enough. Its price is very reasonable. It is revised almost to date. Do you want a book that will answer the questions your children are constantly asking, get the International Cyclopaedia. The agent will gladly call at your home and show the merits of this work. In extolling the merits of this book, we make no effort to disparage others. If you have not a Cyclopaedia, you should have one. Grant this, and then comes the question, what one? Be sure to inspect, carefully, the International. Unlike some objects, it will bear inspection.

The May Wide Awake is made by Hon. John D. Long, Susan Coolidge, Margaret Sidney, Mr. Francis A. Humphrey, Mr. William Claflin, Alexander Japp, LL. D., Mrs. Katharine Foote, the author of "Dear Daughter Dorothy," Marian Douglas, Kirk Monroe, Mrs. Clara Doty Bates, Miss Amanda B. Harris, Mary Felicia Butts, Edith Black, E. H. Hawley of the Smithsonian Institution, Agnes Repplier, Coroline Hunt Rimmer, Miss McKeag, Margaret Lake, Marietta Ambrosi, Maria Jones Hammond, together with the bright anecdote-relaters who fill the pages of "Men and Things," and the various picture-makers—Childe Hassam, Brennan, Miss Plympton, Bridgman, Garrett, Miss Rimmer, Virginia Gerson, Mente, and Hiram Barnes. All the stories, articles and poems are capital.

Wide Awake is $2.40 a year; 20 cents a number. A specimen (back number) will be sent on receipt of 5 cents. D. Lothrop Company, publishers, Boston.

As Others See Us.

LIGHT of May 2 contains an excellent picture of Judge John Hopkins as a frontispiece. This publication under the control and editorship of A. S. Roe, is securing an increasing hold on the good opinion of the public.—Spencer Sun, May 7.

The current issue of "LIGHT," our bright and always interesting local contemporary, has as the portrait for this week an excellent likeness of Very Rev. John J. Power, V. G. and gives also a well written and very interesting sketch of Father Power.—Messenger, May 16.

I wish to give further expression to my feelings in regard to LIGHT. I have given each number a reading sufficient to satisfy me that it is a sprightly, racy, pure, intensely interesting and attractive paper to both young and old. And on these lines a steady advance has been visible since coming into your hands.—Worcester.

Building Stone Walls and Teaching.

There are those who seem to think that a teacher's life is one of idleness and pleasure. Five hours work a day, think of it, and only five days in the week. Talk about luxury! Well, when I hear people expressing such opinions I am reminded of my first experience in school teaching. I too thought that it would be an easy task and as I was working my way at school I did as the rest of the fellows did, applied for a country school. The supervisor was a farmer, who had formerly been a teacher himself, and I found him at work in the field building a stone wall. I made known my errand and, as we turned to walk towards the house I remarked upon the size of the boulders he was building into the wall, and said, "It must be pretty hard work to handle such stones." "Young man," said the old school teacher, "it is hard work, but it isn't half so hard as teaching school." I thought him a fool at the time. In less than a week I knew that he was right and I have agreed with him ever since. It is easier to build stone walls ten hours a day, 300 days in a year, than it is to teach school five hours a day, five days in the week. If you don't believe it, dear TOWN TALK, go and try it. I've tried both.—Rev. F. O. Hall in Fitchburg Town Talk.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

EDWARD B. CLAPP,

Fashionable Hat,

Fine Furnishing,

Athletic House,

365 Main St., Worcester.

C. REBOLI,

Confectioner * and * Caterer,

6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

W. A. ENGLAND,

DEALER IN

FINE WATCHES,
CLOCKS, JEWELRY
& OPTICAL GOODS.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

394 Main Street.

Worcester Dress

Cutting School,
45 Pleasant St.,

For Designing, Cutting and Finishing Ladies' Gowns. Pupils are allowed to bring material and make a costume throughout. Linings Cut Free; also Dress making, Cutting and Basting. Open evenings. Agents taught free. Call for cards and circular.

Mrs. L. F. Walch.

E. W. COFFIN,

Store Fixtures

10 Main Street, Worcester.

Name this Paper.

School and College.

Harvard.

One of the most interesting and important of recent events here was the opening of the new Semitic Museum last week. The Museum, which is due to the munificence of Mr. Jacob Schiff, means much to students of the Bible, and of general Semitic history. There are now about one hundred and fifty original clay tablets in the cabinets; the oldest records an event of the year 2200 B. C.

Beside this there are seals, manuscripts, photographs and casts of old clay books. For America, at least, the collection is unique.

There is a curious institution here known as the Duddleian Lectures. Nearly one hundred and fifty years ago, old Judge Dudley left money for annual lectures on four subjects. Now the lecture this year should be "For the detecting and conviction and exposing the idolatry of the Romish church; their tyranny, usurpation, damnable baseness, fatal errors, a bonimible superstitions and other crying wickednesses in their high places."

The taste for such lectures has of course died out here, and an attempt will be made to avoid having the lecture given.

Every Harvard man is happy over the result of the Yale-Harvard Athletic meeting last Saturday. In twelve out of fourteen events Harvard took first place scoring 85 points to Yale's 27. It was a great victory and there is a good reason to rejoice. G. R. Finlay '91 made a new American amateur record in throwing the hammer of 108 feet 5 inches.

The boat race will take place as usual at New London, as a new agreement for five years has been made. The colleges did not get what they wanted, but New London on poor conditions is better than any other place on good terms. The crew is rowing in the same order that it has been for some time and appears to be doing good work.

All of the musical clubs have given their spring concerts, the 'Varsity had good luck but the freshmen failed utterly to support their club.

Harvard expends $16,000 on their library, Columbia $20,000, Cornell $8,000, Yale $7,500 and Princeton about $4,000.—Ex.

Smith College.

The annual concert to the college was given Thursday evening, by Mrs. E. Humphrey Allen, Mr. C. N. Allen, Dr. Blodgett and Prof. Story.

Northampton's new Academy of Music is to be opened the 23d inst. with a concert by noted artists. In this building the Senior Dramatics will be given and rehearsal has already begun.

Fraulein Von Metzloff, the teacher of vocal music is not coming back next year, to the great disappointment of her many friends.

The tennis tournament has been put off until June 6. All the entries have been made now and hard practice is going on.

It takes a soul

To move a body; it takes a high-souled man To move the masses.

It takes the ideal to blow a hair's breadth off The dust of the actual—Ah, your Fourriers failed Because not poets enough to understand That life develops from within.

—Mrs. Browning.

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place before Memorial Day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of

Fine Monumental Work,

131 Central Street, near Summer.

TO TAX PAYERS.

ASSESSORS' OFFICE, 17 City Hall.

Worcester, Mass., May 6, 1891.

To the inhabitants and other Persons liable to pay taxes in the city of Worcester:

The Assessors of the City of Worcester hereby give notice that the office will be open from the 6TH TO THE 16TH DAY OF MAY, inclusive, from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m., and from 2 to 5 p. m., and all persons liable to be taxed in said City, either in their own right, or as Guardian, Administrator, Executor, Trustee, or otherwise are required to bring in to the Assessors, within the time above specified, true lists of all their polls and personal estates not exempt from taxation.

Any person or firm taxable in Worcester for personal property, or who desire to make a return of mortgaged real estate, or Literary, Benevolent, Charitable and Scientific corporations, who are required to make returns, in accordance with Chap. 217 of the Acts of 1882 can obtain a BLANK SCHEDULE for making a list of such property, with directions for properly filling the same, by applying to this office; but failing to avail themselves of the privilege of making their own returns according to law, within the specified time, must expect to be held strictly to the conditions of law relative to abatements.

HARRISON G. OTIS,
THOMAS TALBOT,
AMOS M. PARKER,

Assessors City of Worcester.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
WORCESTER, SS.
PROBATE COURT.

To all persons interested in the estate of SARAH M. COLBURN, late of Sterling, in said County, deceased, testate:

You are cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the first Tuesday of June next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why the first and final account rendered by Angie A. Kilburn, the Executrix of her administration of said estate, and now on file at this office, should not be allowed.

And the said accountant is ordered to serve this citation, by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively, in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester, the last publication to be two days, at least before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or to their legal representatives known to the petitioner seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twelfth day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register

The Ware-Pratt Company

Invite attention to an extensive display of

Fine Clothing for Men, Boys and Children.

The Latest Fashions, Exclusive Styles from our own workshops, Honest Goods and the Lowest Prices, Grade and Quality considered.

Our Custom Department is teeming with the Newest styles, Colorings and Materials, which go to make up the finest lines we have ever shown.

The Ware-Pratt Company,

MANUFACTURERS AND RETAILERS,

408 and 412 Main Street,

Worcester.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts. State of the order March 18, 1891: Membership, 4915. Amount loaned for Relief, $15,200; Reserve Fund, $22,922.40; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,759.08; Total, $44,975.48. Men and women admitted upon the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600.

Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organizers wanted. Address NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester, Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

LATHROP * BROTHERS,

LADIES', MEN'S AND CHILDREN'S

FINE AND MEDIUM SHOES

Of the most approved process of manufacture, meeting every requirement of Quality, Comfort and Style.

564 MAIN STREET, Franklin Square.

Emporium * of * Fashion.

LADIES' STRAW BONNETS.

An unusually Large Assortment of

BONNETS!

In MILAN, HARR and FANCY BRAID,

Ranging in Price from 25c. to $2.00.

A. S. Lowell Co., 304-306 Main St.

LABOR.

"Labor is worship!" the robin is singing;
"Labor is worship!" the wild bee is ringing;
Listen! that eloquent whisper uprising
Speaks to thy soul from out Nature's great heart.
From the dark cloud flows the life-giving shower;
From the rough sod blows the soft-breathing flower;
From the small insect the rich coral bower;
Only man, in the plan, ever shrinks from his part!

Now is the Time to Buy a

CARRIAGE!

at a Small Profit.

Geo. C. Dewhurst, 17 Park St.,

OPP. THE COMMON.

Larkin's, 395 Main St.,
Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-strings, Bag-strings, Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.,
Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Grate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD. Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main St.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LIGHT

VOL. III. No. 13. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1891. FIVE CENTS.

GENERAL A. B. R. SPRAGUE,

Late Sheriff of Worcester County.

[ENGRAVED EXPRESSLY FOR LIGHT.]

THE HEART OF THE COMMONWEALTH
NEWS SOCIETY BUSINESS
PERSONALS
MUSIC
DRAMA
LITERATURE
ART
OF LAND

The Bay State Bicycle Club.

Any one interested in the history of cycling could obtain a good idea of its development by studying its rise and progress in this city. The writer remembers seeing sometime during the Seventies a man riding one of those two-wheeled wooden velocipedes. This was probably, with the exception of the old "hobby horse," the bicycle in its original form. During the latter part of this decade Edward F. Tolman was to be seen riding about the streets on the first highwheel used in this city. Since then the evolution has been rapid. Steel spokes, rubber ties, ball bearings, steel tubings, tangent spokes, improved saddles, safeties and the improvements in the different parts of the safety, all have been tried and adopted by the local wheelmen as soon as they appeared. The introduction of the safety has given bicycling the biggest boom this year it ever had. It has brought this pleasurable sport within the reach of old as well as young, ladies as well as men.

In 1879 the first club was organized and was named "The Worcester Bicycle Club." Soon after "The Æolus Wheel Club" was formed and in 1885 the two clubs united under the name "The Worcester Æolus Wheelman." Later a new "Worcester Bicycle Club" was formed, followed by "The Bay State Bicycle Club," "The Columbia Cycle Club" and "The Highland Social Wheel Club." The last three are the ones now in existence. The Bay State is the largest and most successful and has probably done more than any other in advancing the interests of wheelmen in this city.

The Bay State Bicycle Club was organized February 5, 1887, at the Greendale school-house. A number of young bicyclists living in this suburb, believing that they could advance their mutual interests by organization, met on that evening and formed a club with the following officers: President, E. E. Eames; vice-president, W. V. Fiske; secretary and treasurer, R. C. Sweetser; captain, W. V. Fiske; lieutenant, M. A. Wheeler; bugler, J. W. Murphy; executive committee, president, captain, secretary and treasurer and C. E. Flagg and J. F. Murphy. Through that winter and the following spring, monthly meetings were held in the Greendale hose house. In June, rooms were secured in the Knowles building. At this time there were eighteen members. The club occupied these quarters until the following September. Through the winter some of the members lost interest and what few meetings there were, were held in the Greendale hose house. In the spring of 1889 there remained eleven members. These eleven determined to push matters. Rooms were secured in the Central Exchange and each member did lots of work with the result that there were soon sixty-four members.

In September of this year the club held its first tournament. Though the day was rainy and the tournament had been postponed for several days on account of bad weather, the attendance was large enough to a little more than pay expenses. There were forty-two entries and the races were all good. In October, 1889, the club leased two rooms in the Chapin Block.

PRESIDENT, A. C. COPELAND.

SECRETARY AND TREASURER, B. A. LEMONT.

VICE PRESIDENT, H. B. INGRAHAM.

Last spring on Memorial day the second tournament was held. This was a splendid success in every way. The weather was fine, the races were fast and exciting, the attendance was large. When the money was counted at the end of the day it was found that the club was $500 richer than it was in the morning. In November five rooms were leased in the Chapin Block and they were beautifully furnished with the money earned at the tournament.

The club is now in excellent condition. The tournament which takes place today will add increased reputation to the club and a goodly sum of dollars to its treasury.

The success of the club is due largely to the fact that it is morally sound, strict rules being maintained in regard to the use of the rooms and the behavior on club runs. There have never been any quarrels in the club and no bills have been contracted which were not paid as soon as presented, though the club has done a business during its existence amounting to several thousand dollars. The membership numbers at present sixty-seven.

While there are not as many racers in the club as might be expected, yet there are some who have won recognition in this branch. H. K. Gardiner is one of the speediest men in the club. Last year he finished a close second, with Windle first, in the mile handicap. He also won second in the mile novice. These were his first races. For some reason, he does not intend racing today. James Wilson, Jr., is a speedy man. Two years ago he won the two mile ordinary Worcester County championship, the prize being the Telegram medal. Wilson is entered in the races today and he will probably not finish last in many of them. T. J. Kern is at his best in road races. F. I. Johnson is probably one of the fastest safety riders in this section. Herbert F. McIntyre is a promising novice who makes his debut today. Frank Adams ranks high as a safety rider. There are also other members who make their first trial today.

With this sketch of the club's history are published the portraits of the three executive officers, namely: The president, A. C. Copeland; vice president, H. B. Ingraham; secretary and treasurer, B. A. Lemont.

Avery C. Copeland, the president, is a charter member of the club. In 1889 he was elected second lieutenant and February 5, 1890, he was elected president. He was re-elected this year. Mr. Copeland has always worked faithfully and conscientiously in the interests of his club. The members speak very highly of his management and give him a large share of the credit for the club's success. He is the club's representative on the state board League of American Wheelmen and has been also recently appointed a member of the State Racing Board. He is not a racer himself, but is a bicyclist simply for the pleasure and benefit he may derive from riding. He is twenty-eight years old.

[Continued on page 308.]

Willie W. Windle.

In the summer of 1886 a young man, or more correctly perhaps, a boy, came up from Millbury to compete in a series of bicycle races then holding at Agricultural Park and surprised everybody by winning first place in every race he entered. This boy was Willie W. Windle and his age at the time was sixteen years. During this year he competed in several other races winning good places in all.

In the summer of 1887 he won first in five scratch and one handicap events in this city, second in a one mile scratch race in Lynn, four firsts and three seconds in scratch races at Atlanta, Georgia.

During 1888 he made a splendid record. His first races were at Woodstock, Canada, May 24, his last at New York City Nov. 7. At Baltimore, Md. June 18, he won first in the one mile L. A. W. championship race. At Newcastle, Pa., August 30, he won the one-half mile L. A. W. championship. At Buffalo, N. Y. in September he won the ten mile L. A. W. championship race, in which there were thirty-seven starters and at the same meeting he won the three mile L. A. W. championship. At a tournament held at Pittsburg, Pa., in October he won first in six scratch and two handicap events. Besides these, he also won during this summer first prizes in seventeen scratch and three handicap races and second in one handicap.

In 1889 he did not compete in any races.

His record during 1890 is as follows:

New York City, May 17th, won two-mile handicap heat race from scratch, first heat 5.43 1-5, final heat 5.46 1-5.

Hamilton, Ont., May 24th, first in one-mile open, 2.59 1-4. First in half-mile, 1.23 3-4. First in three-mile lap, 9.26 1-2.

Woodstock, Ont., May 26th, first in half-mile, 1.16 1-2; first in one-mile, 2.49 1-2; first in five-mile handicap from scratch, 14.40 4-5.

Worcester, Mass., May 30th, first in one-mile, 2.54; first in two-mile district championship, 6.30; first in one-mile handicap from scratch, 2.45 4-5.

New Haven, Conn., June 9th, first in one-mile open, 2.47 2-5; first in two-mile district championship, 6.50.

Staten Island, June 28th, first in two-mile A. A. U. championship, 6.00 1-5.

Richfield Springs, N. Y., August 7th, first in half mile, 1.36 1-4; first in one-mile, 3.13; first in three-mile, 8.36.

Taunton, Mass., August 14th, first in five-mile district championship, 14.51.

Rochester, N. Y., August 21st, first in one-mile open, 2.37 1-5.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., August 25th, first in two-mile L. A. W. championship, 6.30 1-5; first in one-mile open, 2.36 1-5.

Peoria, Ill., September 11 and 12, second in quarter-mile and five-mile. September 15th, against time, rode one mile, paced by Lumsden of Chicago; rode first quarter in 38 1-4, paced to half by Campbell of New York in 1.12 4-5, placed to three-quarters by Zimmerman of New York in 1.49 1-4, and last quarter by Murphy of New York in 2.25 3-5. This is the fastest mile ever ridden on a solid tired bicycle, beating the world's record for three-quarters and one mile. Also paced by Zimmerman first quarter in 36 1-5 and first quarter by Murphy in 34 3-5. Broke world's record for half-mile in 1.10-45. Previous record for one mile amateur English, 2.28 4-5. Pneumatic Tire Safety English, 2.26 3-5; American Amateur, 2.35; world's professional, 2.29 4-5. Record fore one-half mile, English Solid Tire, 1.13 3-5; Pneumatic Tire, 1.11; world's professional, 1.12-45.

His record summarized is: In seventy-one scratch races, he has won 64 first prizes, 6 seconds and 1 third; in nineteen handicap races in all of which he started from the scratch, he won 7 firsts and 1 second.

The prizes he has won make a very beautiful display. They include three silver service, three gold watches, five cycles, three silver water pitchers, and a large number of medals, cups, diamond rings, studs, etc. He is now but twenty years old. His record is probably the most remarkable ever made in any branch of athletics. Until defeated by Zimmerman last summer it was said of him that he had never been beaten in a scratch race.

Windle has now retired from racing for a time and is living at his home in Millbury. It is possible that he will never again race though there is no reason why he should not except that he says he does not care to. He intends though to make trials at breaking some more records including his own, perhaps.

The rebellion cost the United States $6 189,929 900. The number of Federal troops was 2,859,132.

WILLIE W. WINDLE,

Champion Bicyclist of the World.

[Engraved expressly for Holland and Havener.]

Mr. Edgar R. Howe, recently returned from the South, brings home with him, two interesting mementoes in the shape of a Confederate badge after the analogy of that worn by our G. A. R. and a page of the Richmond Times of May 19, 1890, issued in honor of the unveiling of Lee's monument. In addition to pictures of the monument and of General Lee, there are the faces of Stonewall Jackson, A.

S. Johnson, A. P. Hill, J. E. B. Stewart, Jackson and Soldier's Monuments, Arlington, Stafford, Lee's birth place and the pyramidal monument in Hodgwood Cemetery. These pictures are in colors on a page of the paper. The effect is excellent and the souvenir a choice one for those who delight in Rebellion relics.

Silence is golden.

PUTNAM & SPRAGUE CO.

FURNITURE and UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

Having made special arrangements with two of the largest manufacturers of fine furniture in the country to carry their full lines of mahogany, oak and maple suits, we now have in stock the largest and most complete assortment ever shown in this city, and fully equal to anything to be found in the larger cities. For style, workmanship and finish, these goods are the very best, and at the prices we quote, we feel confident that they will meet with ready sales. Our stock of medium and low-priced chamber furniture is complete in every department. Call and see our stock before purchasing.

247 and 249 Main Street, Corner Central.

1839. 1891

S. R. LELAND & SON,
446 MAIN STREET. 446

BEST MAKES OF

PIANOS, ORGANS

BAND INSTRUMENTS.

Cash. Instalments. Rent.

Sheet Music, Music Books, Instruction Books, Music Cabinets in all Wood, Music Rolls and Folios
Importers of Flutes, Violins, Banjos, Mandolins, Music Boxes, Accordeons, Piano Scarfs and Covers, Piano Stools and Chairs, Sole makers "Eclipse" Band Instruments, "Eclipse" Violins, "Eclipse" Drums.

COUNTY AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED

Chickering & Sons' Pianos.

C. H. DRAPER,
Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

Three Large Moving Wagons. Baggage Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

C
O
X
Y
G
E
N
C
O
M
P
O
U
O
X
Y
G
E
N
D

Nature's best tonic in all debilitated conditions of the system.

Our OXYGEN is carefully prepared in accordance with the most scientific principles known to chemistry.

It is prepared by a practical chemist who has had four years' experience in a chemical laboratory.

Each patient will receive the personal and conscientious attention of a regular graduated physician, one who has been six years in medical practice.

We solicit investigation.

368 1-2 Main St., or 1 Elm St.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

Quinsigamond Lake I C E

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Especial attention given to the family trade.

Garfield & Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 143-4.

N. G. TUCKER.

W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER & SON,
SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street, Worcester, Mass.

Artificial Stone Vases,

FOR THE LAWN,
FOR THE GARDEN,
FOR THE VERANDA,
For Parks and Large Estates.

We have manufactured during the past year, and now place upon the market for the first time, a line of Artificial Stone Vases, which for elegance of design, durability in construction and adaptability to successful plant growth, are unexcelled by any Vases ever introduced into this city. We have a large variety of designs and sizes, and ranging from $3 to $25. Illustrated circulars and price lists now ready for distribution.

Address, JAMES DRAPER, Bloomingdale Cement Pipe Works, Worcester, Mass.
For Sale by ROSS BROS., 162 Front St.

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1891.

No. 13

Our Comrades.

They fought for the right,
That freemen might be ;
They died in the night
Of battle's dark sea ;
They live in the light of eternity.

Memorial Day.

From May 30, 1868 to this, 1891, the line is unbroken.

The first order was issued in the second year of the G. A. R., by its first Commander, General John A. Logan, May 5, 1868.

In that year the direction was heeded in twenty-seven states and in one hundred and eighty-three cemeteries. The following year, the same commander issued a similar order and the number of states grew to thirty-one, the burial places to three hundred and thirty-six.

Since then, the observance has grown till it includes every state and territory and poor indeed must that church yard be, in which there is not some grave, meriting the annual tribute of a wreath and flowers.

The words of General Logan in that first order are in place here :

"If other eyes grow dull, other hands slack, and other hearts cold in the solemn trust, ours will keep it well as long as the light and warmth of life remain to us."

But there were other men who died for country. Why should the grave of a soldier in any war for American Liberty and Independence be neglected? From the monument to the memory of Col. Timothy Bigelow on the Common to the grave of the poorest Revolutionary private, in the transferred section of Hope Cemetery, the patriot dead should be remembered.

"It will take time?" Yes, but poor in spirit must that nation be that will not take time and means to properly remember the noble dead. There is the grave of a Boston Tea Party man in Hope Cemetery. Did any one ever take the trouble to lay any kind of a tribute upon his mound?

We will grant that every year makes the task of placing the flowers greater, while those who remain to do it grow less. Sons of Veterans and others must help bear the burden if the exercise is kept up. With the teeming millions of people in America, it would seem that time might be given to thus remember the final resting place of every patriot.

One of the angriest men that LIGHT has met in many a day was encountered on Main street, a year or two since, the day after the annual Memorial observance. "I am so mad, I can't talk." "Why, what's the trouble now, Mr. —?" "Why, that fellow over there says its a d—d shame that business should be stopped thus every year, just to stick some posies on the graves of a lot of men who died twenty or thirty years ago. Why, the fool don't think of the comforts that he enjoys through what those men did, I think its high time for the fool killer to come around." To such sentiments, LIGHT breathed a fervent "Amen."

The indignant citizen was not a veteran, but no warmer blood coursed in Worcester veins. There was nothing that he could do, that was not ready for the men who periled life when the fight was on. He realized how great was the sacrifice of those who went and he also realized the opportunities for making money opened by the war to those who staid at home and continued business.

Nor is this gentleman an exception. The great majority of our people are fully in sympathy with him. However much a few growling malcontents may object, the time is far distant when the day will utterly cease of its significance. If the boys do play ball and otherwise fail in some of the particulars that veterans would like to see kept, the lesson is not altogether lost.

It is a very pleasant sight to see the day observed in our schools. From the small beginner in the lowest grade, to the oldest pupils in the High School, some token is given of appreciation. Flags, too, are making their appearance on almost every temple of learning and songs and speeches fill the juvenile minds with ideas of country and the need of devotion to it. There is no grander lesson than that of Memorial Day.

There are children, today, who fifty years hence, will say to their grandchildren, "We saw the men who fought at Bull Run, Ball's Bluff, Roanoke Island, Antietam, Gettysburg and Cold Harbor march through the streets with flowers in their hands. Armless were some. Some had lost eyes; others rode in carriages, through the loss of legs; but it was a sight to carry in memory to our dying day." The story will live on just as long as we are worthy of national recollections.

Last year, the good work of flag presentation was begun in a number of our schools, notably at Dix and Belmont Streets. The High School had long had and used the banner. This year the giving is continued in other schools and the children in the Chandler, Lamartine, Winslow, Millbury, Sycamore, Providence, Freeland, and Ash Streets with Quinsigamond and Bloomingdale have had an object lesson that they will never forget. The songs that they sang, the words that they learned and recited will prove salutary in coming days for we know not what demand may be made upon patriotism in the future.

The great influx of foreigners into this country is bound to present problems that will test the patience and wisdom of law makers to come. Today, proper laws cannot be enacted, for fear of estranging voters who ought not to have the privilege. There is a great and radical wrong done every citizen of this republic when people regardless of condition or rearing are allowed to be dumped in upon us. They have no regard for us or our ways. They would bring the dirty customs of their own ignorant and debased former lives into our own cleanly ways. Chicago Anarchy and Pennsylvania Coal Mine Horrors result. When these festering sores culminate as they surely will then shall we need all the patriotic fervor that our schools can engender.

Blessed is that man or woman who has sung America deep into the hearts of the children.

Blessed too is that teacher of either sex who so sets forth the glories of the past that pupils, listening, shall be nerved to a resolution to be like the fathers, determined and brave: that country is a thing to fight for and to die for if need be. Their are many who see their duty thus. What's learning without liberty, culture without country? Our annual day of patriotic speech and display is well placed.

In the great South land, there are memorial days also. Days of mourning and repining. Only in the Jews wailing place of Jerusalem is there any thing commensurate with them, nor would we deny to the mourners the satisfaction of tears. They staked their all on the cast of Fortune and lost. Grief is all that they brought out of the strife; at least all that they recall in the moment of recollection. Of course, when they see about them teeming factories, the hum of a thousand industries that had no existence before the War, they know that from the ashes of their dead selves has sprung a resurrection grand and glorious, but this does not give back to them the Lost Cause. The time will come however, when these people, too, will count the days of '61-'65 as a terrible dream. Country is to be all the dearer as we recall the terrible price which we have paid for it.

Last week Friday evening James Broadbent, of 5 Denny street was visited by a party of relatives, the occasion being his seventy-second birthday. During the evening he was presented with several gifts including quite a large sum in gold.

J. Murray Marshall, a High School boy of '77, later of Brown University, is winning deserved honor in his profession of Law. He is the Assistant U. S. Dis't. Attorney, his chief being another Worcester High School pupil of '69, Frank D. Allen. Mr. Marshall recently received a signal proof of the gratitude of certain sailors whom he had defended. They made for him a full rigged vessel and carried it out to him in Winchester, unwilling to trust it to the Express Company. His office is No. 98 Post Office building, Boston.

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND
HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.

Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building,
Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1891.

Two Bicycles!

$35.00

One will be given to that boy or girl who secures the most cash subscriptions for LIGHT between this date, May 30th and August 1st, 1891.

The other is for the boy who sells the largest number of papers during the same time.

Come up to the office, boys, and talk it over.

Owing to our going to press several hours earlier than usual, on account of Memorial Day, much valuable correspondence and many interesting items are unavoidably laid over till next week.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

Musically, the People's Concerts last Friday were a splendid success, financially they were not. That Mr. Anderson lost considerably over one hundred dollars was not however wholly due to lack of attendance, for in the evening the large hall was nearly filled. The reason was that Mr. Anderson made his object the presentation of first class music, by musicians of high standing, at a merely nominal rate of admission and thus the expenses became larger than the receipts. When he entered upon the project he knew that he would probably lose money. He planned his expenses so that if every seat had been taken in the evening the accounts would have balanced. At first he intended to have only an evening concert but a week before the date he announced a symphony concert for the afternoon, hoping the proceeds would make up a part of the deficiency. But the afternoon audience was very small, as, consequently, was also the amount realized. Mr. Anderson seems to be one of those who love art for art's sake. He certainly deserves and no doubt receives the most hearty thanks from those who heard his excellent concerts.

The afternoon program consisted entirely of orchestral music, with two exceptions. The first number included two movements from Schubert's unfinished symphony in B minor, allegro moderato and andante con moto. Both were splendidly performed by the orchestra, which consisted of members of the Boston Festival Orchestra. Victor Herbert was the director. Mr. W. A. Anderson sang with success the aria "Why do the Nations", from the Messiah. The two orchestral numbers following were beautifully rendered, Mr. Anderson conducting. They were Massenet's "Le dernier sommeil de la Vierge" and Delibes Intermezzo from "Naila". The aria from the oratorio of "Elijah" "O Rest in the Lord", was sung by Miss Nellie Broadbent. The final number consisted of two movements from Mozart's symphony in E flat.

The principal event of the evening was the performance, for the first time in Worcester, of Rheinberger's cantata, "Clarice of Eberstein." It was the second on the program and was given under Mr. Anderson's direction by a chorus of one hundred voices, the orchestra and the following soloists: Mrs. C. A. Merrill, soprano; Mrs. J. H. Howell, contralto and Mr. Alfred Thomas, tenor. The work of the chorus was excellent, it was remarkable. The only thing lacking to perfection was the insufficiency in numbers and consequently in power of the tenors. The sopranos were perfect and the altos were not far behind them. Of the soloists, Mr. Thomas was the most successful. The singing of both Mrs. Merrill and Mrs. Howell was fully up to the requirements of their parts. Altogether the audience were very much pleased and impressed both with the cantata and with its presentation. The first number was Von Weber's overture to Der Freischuetz. It was probably never before given in this city, better. On the completion of the cantata, Mr. Felix Winternitz played a fantasia on airs from Ernst's opera "Othello" so effectively that he was compelled to respond to an encore, playing Moskowski's serenade, Mr. Herbert accompanying with the piano. Mr. Benjamin Barber sang a recitative and aria from Hadyn's "Seasons" which were among the best solo numbers of the evening. The chorus sang charmingly Morley's madrigal, "Now is the Month of Maying." The first part was concluded with "Berlioz's "Carnivale Romain" in which the orchestra achieved another triumph. Part second opened with a very artistic performance of Mendelssohn's concerto in D minor by Miss Mary Foxcroft Tucker. She was accompanied by the orchestra. The chorus sang beautiful two pretty songs composed by Mr. Anderson, "Wind of Evening" and "Tell me what the Brook doth Sing" Mrs. Ruggles sang Händel's "Iris, hence away" in her usual good manner and Mr. Herbert followed with a 'cello solo, Servais' "Morceau Caracteristique." This is one of his favorite pieces and he always plays it well. The final number was a beautiful selection. It was Fanning's "The Miller's Wooing" and was rendered by the chorus and orchestra.

Rev. Geo. L. Todd, formerly United States Vice Consul General at La Paz, Bolivia, South America, spent Sunday with Dr. Rand.

The ladies of Grace Church will give a strawberry festival next Thursday evening, June 3.

Base Ball Notes.

The Worcestersters still continue to win their share of games in the race for the pennant in their class, but it would seem from the games thus far played that it was not so much which club won as it was to induce people to come to the games. If any one club should go on and win victory after victory with no defeats, it would lessen the attendance, and it is the money that all the clubs are after and those who are on the outside of the ring cannot but think that some games are lost before the game is played. Such playing may influence the attendance but it certainly has a tendency to cause real Base Ball lovers to lose confidence in the game.

The Boston National League team seems to have lost its grip on the game and is now taking a gentle slide down the scale and is now very near the bottom of the list. The great trouble seems to be in their batting. Anson with his colts leads the list and this only goes to show what a man can do, who can always be counted on as being straight. The "Old Man" as he is called, has played ball longer and better, probably than any other player in the field today and the secret of the whole thing is, he has always kept his head. Drink has ruined more Base Ball players than all other things combined, but Anson has kept himself entirely clean from this thing, and it is to this fact that the success of the Chicago team in the past and present can be accredited.

The games between Yale and Harvard are off for this year and very likely Springfield as a city is not sorry, for in the past the deciding game has made the inhabitants feel decidedly "blue" or for a time they have seen their town painted a very bright "crimson." Such a rivalry is not healthy.

Brown of the Lynns used to play in this city, when the commercial League was playing its series of games. Although a fair player, he was not accounted anything as a pitcher. He must have been practicing since leaving the city.

The Fourth of July will see a great game of ball in this city, as the married and single men of the Boston Store are to cross bats. Last year the Benedicts were too much for their younger brothers by a score of 27 to 12, but this year the youngsters think they can teach their "grand-dads how to catch flies" and the day only remains to see if they are right.

Holy Cross is putting up an elegant game of ball and if lovers of the game wish to see a good game played, just attend a contest of theirs with some of their opponents. Ball will be played not for money but for glory and that is the kind of playing that is interesting.

The pupils of Miss Jennie S. Newcombe will give a piano recital next Monday evening in Pilgrim Hall. Ida Johnson and Mr. Charles J. Marshall vocalists and Miss Sadie Parsons and Miss Edith Hardy readers, will assist.

It pays to patronize General Agent Geo. Y. Lancaster, for Railroad and Steamship Tickets, Drafts, and Insurance. Office, 434 Main street, Worcester.

School and College.

Amherst.

THE PURPLE AND WHITE.

The Spring term at Amherst has been full of life and enthusiasm, which have been bubbling over more than ever during the last two weeks. The celebration of May 6th, with its defeat of the Williams team, was followed May 23d by the opening of Pratt Field, and a crushing defeat of the wearers of the green and white from Hanover, and a repetition of the lesson on the next day. Amherst now leads in the race for the pennant, and the game at Williamstown to day will nearly decide who is to have the championship.

The new Athletic Field, the gift of Fred B. Pratt of Brooklyn, is now open for games and athletic contests. The exercises of presentation to the college took place Friday afternoon, May 23d immediately before the Dartmouth game. After the address of presentation by Mr. Pratt, Pres. Gates accepted the field in behalf of the college; his speech was a characteristic one, and closed with the injunction, "Now young gentlemen, every man of you, 'play ball.'" The Amherst part of the audience, at least, acted on the suggestion. The score was 10 to 1. The new field is a model training ground. It contains thirteen acres of land situated about three minutes' walk from the college; the base ball diamond has been rolled until it is as smooth as a floor, and the rest of the field is well turfed. Around the field is a quarter-mile track of the best material, and suitable for bicycles or running. Tennis courts are to be laid in a plot on the western side set aside for that purpose. The grand stand would remind the alumni of the one on Blake Field only by the contrast. It is a $6,000 structure with towers at the ends, and provided with bath rooms and dressing rooms. Mr. Pratt has expended about $22,000 upon the field, and has presented his college with a gift which will have no small influence upon its future.

Cornell.

The Cornell Sun, one of the four daily College papers, and one of the most successful has elected as editor in chief for the next college year, Mr. Louie E. Ware of this city. "As the twig is bent, the tree is inclined." Beginning in an amateur way, years ago, then furnishing school notes for local papers, and, in college, having to do with "The Sun" nearly all his course, there is little doubt as to the bent of his mind. Aside from college journalism, he has furnished Cornell items for the New York Journals.

Harvard.

In a recent Boston paper is the following: "Union Hall was filled with a fashionable audience last evening upon the occasion of the presentation of the spring theatricals by the Pi Eta Society of Harvard. The first of these was a revival of Henry Fielding's adaptation from Molière, entitled "The Mock Doctor." In this the honors were carried off by Mr. T. J. Lincoln as the noble man of unique characteristics, and Mr. H. Y. Simpson Jr., as the spirited wife of the humble woodcutter." Mr. Simpson will be recognized as the son of Dr. H. Y. Simpson of this city. He is now a Junior in Harvard.

Smith College.

Wednesday, May 27, was a very festive day for the college girls. In the afternoon at two o'clock Mr. Cookson of Springfield gave a very interesting talk on the lyrics of Shelley. At four the Wallace House dramatics were given. And at eight the Williams College men gave their burlesque, "Romeo and Juliet," in the town opera house and college girls made a large part of the audience.

The same evening a reception was given by Mr. Williston of Northampton to the Smith faculty, as well as that of Amherst, Williston Seminary and Mount Holyoke. They were especially invited to meet Mrs. Mead, the president of Mount Holyoke.

Wednesday afternoon the Botany class made an excursion of much pleasure and profit to Mt. Tom.

According to the usual custom the Senior Dramatics will be given twice, once for the college and once for the friends of the Seniors. The first time will be June 17, the second June 20.

Boston University.

Prof. B. P. Bowne will give the farewell address to the Seniors next Tuesday morning.

Mr. E. R. Spear, '94, won the college tennis championship in singles at a recent tournament.

The regular term examinations began Tuesday and last four days.

The commencement number of The University Beacon will have a full page albertype of the Senior class.

Next year the special students will not have quite so easy a time as they have had in years past, for the new regulations go into effect concerning them. They must not be less than nineteen years of age. They can not be admitted after the third day of the term. They must pass written examinations in studies which were begun in preparatory schools. Those desiring to enter advanced classes shall also pass a written examination in the subjects in question. They must attain a grade of scholarship distinctly higher than the minimum standing permissible in the case of a regular student. They may be dropped at any time for lack of diligence, or for incompetency.

The program for Commencement week at the College of Liberal Arts is as follows: Monday evening, Senior reception; Tuesday, Baccalaureate address, 2 p.m., Alumni association meeting at The Thorndike, evening; Wednesday, Commencement, 2 p.m., trustees' reception, evening; Thursday, Friday and Saturday, entrance examinations beginning each day at 9 a.m.

High School.

The Assembly held a meeting in the High School Building, Thursday evening of last week, and elected officers as follows: President, W. W. Orr; vice-president, W. T. Larkin; secretary, G. N. Matthews; treasurer, E. R. Perry. The club intends to get in a number of new members and continue its work in the future as in the past.

The question at the Sumner Club was: Resolved that Mr. Blaine's policy in regard to the Bering Sea controversy is to be commended.

Aletheia's question was: Resolved that religious training in the public schools is expedient.

At Euclia's meeting the following question was discussed: Resolved that the existence of political parties is injurious to the country. Question was decided in the negative; critic, H. J. Murray.

The school are to send a team of five or six men to the Inter-Scholastic sports for June 6, at Cambridge. The team will probably include F. J. Zaeder, H. A. Billings, E. M. Shattuck, W. J. Denholm and W. S. Davis. The Athletic Association have voted to hire a trainer for the members of the team, and excellent work may be expected from them. The chances of the High School's taking the cup are very good indeed. According to present indications the High School will be represented on the benches at the sport.

Polytechnic.

Invitations for Senior Class Day exercises are out. They will take place on the Campus, Wednesday, June 17, at 2.45 p.m. Commencement will be held the next day, at 7.45 p.m., in Association Hall.

The Davis Art Company of Pearl Street, so often referred to in these columns, has just passed through a change of proprietorship. Mr. Arthur E. Davis has transferred his interest to Mr. Herbert McIntosh. The latter is a well known Worcester lawyer and he will add capital to the enterprise, giving it a wider range, and enabling patrons the benefit of lower prices even than those already had. Mr. Crocker will retain his position as manager, and the same zeal that has done so much for the business in the past will be applied to the future of the concern. Whether following or leading, this Art Company has appeared conspicuously in the general advance in Worcester appreciation of Art matters.

The Lakeside Boat Club held a very pleasant opening Thursday evening at its club house, Lake Quinsigamond. There was a reception from eight to nine and dancing until twelve. A large company enjoyed the pleasures of the evening. The chaperones were Mrs. Jerome Marble and Mrs. C. H. Webb of New York. The reception committee consisted of Harry A. Adams, H. B. Fairbanks, J. H. Sykes, H. F. Blood, L. W. White, W. E. Fairbanks, A. F. Hyde. Bicknell's orchestra furnished music and Zahonyi was the caterer.

Rhubarb Trifle.

Put two pounds rhubarb into a jar with an equal weight of sugar, cover in the oven, and cook until quite soft; then strain it through a colander into a glass dish, pour over a thick custard, and when cold, place whipped cream over the top. The cream should be whipped some hours before serving, so as to be stiff. For a change, cook as above in a jar in the oven, and well sweetened, rhubarb makes a nice dessert with baked rice, tapioca, or sago pudding.

M. A. G.

A man is happiest when he can forget all the mean things he knows about himself. —Troy Press.

Dashaway: "I have fallen into the bad habit of talking to myself lately." Cleverton: "I wonder why you were looking so bored."

Soft Sawyer: "But I don't call this a fashionable 'at!'" "It will soon become so, madam if you wear it!"

Gen. Augustus B. R. Sprague.

Few men in the city or county of Worcester enjoy a wider reputation. He has filled many important relations in life, public and private. In each of these he has won the affection and esteem of all good men who have known him. He has been an excellent neighbor, citizen and soldier. For many years his name was connected with the highest office in the gift of the county.

From the original family have come many bright names in American annals. Here may be mentioned, however, only Charles Sprague, the Banker Poet of Boston; Rev. Wm. Buell Sprague, the author of Annals of the American Pulpit, our well known educator, his own cousin Col. Homer B. Sprague, and the influential family that has given two governors to the state of Rhode Island.

General Sprague was born in Ware, Mass., March 7, 1827, son of Lee and Lucia (Snow) Sprague, and received his name from the Congregational minister long settled in his native town. His ancestors on both sides were of Puritan stock; his maternal grandmother, Alice Alden, being a lineal descendant in the sixth generation from John Alden of the Mayflower. Of six children only A. B. R. and Carrie F. survived childhood. The latter was a pupil in the early days of our High School and afterwards an assistant there and later with the Misses Green of Green Hill, and at her death was the wife of the Rev. F. D. Austin of Nashua.

General Sprague obtained his education in public and private schools and was fitting for college when home circumstances compelled a change of plan and in 1842 he came to this city and entered the employ of H. B. Claffin & Co., when that subsequently famous New York merchant was located on Main Street near Walnut. He was then for a time with H. H. Chamberlin, just south of Walnut Street, being a fellow-clerk with George Sumner, now of the house of Barnard, Sumner & Co., and they have memories in common of cot beds, the soft side of a counter and the protective character of an antiquated pistol. He afterwards engaged in mercantile business for himself in 1846-61.

Joining the City Guards at the age of seventeen, he began a military career that made him of service to his country in her greatest need. In his office today hangs a framed page of Gleason's Pictorial of 1851, showing this company on parade, opposite the present Central Exchange, dressed in new white uniforms and bearskin caps. Serving in the the Guards as private, non-commissioned and commissioned officer, he became major and Inspector of the 5th Brigade, holding that position at the outbreak of the war. At the call for troops he was unanimously elected captain of the City Guards, Company A, 3d battalion rifles, and left for the seat of war April 20th, reaching Annapolis by transport from New York and was sent to reinforce Fort McHenry. While here Capt. Sprague won no little approbation from his men by the spirited manner in which he secured the release of Sergeant Wm. Starr, who had been arrested for disrespect to the rebel marshal Kane. The story is well known and the old survivors love to tell it.

As senior officer he commanded the battalion until its muster out on the 3d of August, as Major Charles Devens, Jr., was called to the command of the 15th Massachusetts, early in July. Identifying himself at once with the organization of the 25th Regiment he was commissioned its lieutenant-colonel on the 9th of September, and at his request several of those who had served with him in the 3d battalion were given commissions in the 25th. Among these were Major McCafferty, Adjutant Harkness, Captains Moulton, Pickett, O'Neil and Atwood. Before leaving for the front Lieut. Col. Sprague was presented with a magnificent sword and belt by his own command and later with a valuable horse and equipments, Hon. Alex. H. Bullock making the presentation for the donors. The 25th Regiment was part of the famous Burnside expedition and with it he served until Nov. 11, 1862, participating in its battles and skirmishes and was officially reported for "bravery and efficiency" in the engagements at Roanoke Island and Newbern. At this time, Nov. 11, he was promoted to be colonel of the 51st Mass., and by special request of General Foster commanding the department, Col. Sprague, with his new regiment, returned to North Carolina and participated in the engagements of Kinston, Whitehall and Goldsboro. These names were ordered to be inscribed upon the regimental colors, which had been presented to the regiment by the ladies of Worcester.

At the time of Lee's advance resulting in Gettysburg, this regiment with others left Newbern to reinforce Gen. Dix at White House on the Pamunkey and then returned to Fortress Monroe for transportation to Massachusetts, its term of service having expired. But learning here that Lee's army was north of the Potomac, Col. Sprague telegraphed the Secretary of War, offering his regiment for further service. It was accepted and ordered to Baltimore, thence to Maryland Heights, joining the Army of the Potomac near Williamsport, Maryland, Lee occupying the hills opposite; and only returned to Massachusetts when Lee was rapidly retreating into Virginia. It was in this latter campaign near Maryland Heights, that the young and chivalrous McClellan of Grafton lost his life.

The return of the 51st was an event in the history of Worcester. Glad hearts and sorrowful ones joined in the welcome home and the day will long be remembered. The muster out came on July 27, 1863.

Shortly after, Col. Sprague was requested by Governor Andrew to raise and command the 57th Regiment, but family illness prevented his acceptance. Later he again offered his services to the Commonwealth and as no regiments were then being raised, he was offered the Lieut. Colonelcy of the 4th Cavalry and the 2d Artillery, both in the field. His regard for a young man well remembered in Worcester County and a captain in the 1st Mass. Cavalry, deserving promotion, led him to waive the former place in his favor, and accept the latter Feb. 1, 1864. He served with it in Southern Virginia, and North Carolina, commanding the regiment in its field service, moving with General Schofield's command to open communications with General Sherman at Goldsboro, North Carolina. He was discharged Sept. 20, 1865, at Galloway Island, previous to which he was commissioned Colonel of the regiment. He served nearly four years and Congress gave him the brevet rank of brigadier general of Volunteers to date from March 13, 1865 for "gallant and meritorious service during the war."

Returning to civil life he has served the public nearly all the time since in offices of trust. In 1859 and '60 he was a member of the common council and of the board of aldermen in '71, City Marshall in 1867, and resigned to accept the office of collector of internal revenue for the 8th Massachusetts district, which office he held from March 4, 1867 to July 1, 1872. During this time his collections amounted to about four million dollars. On the death of Hon. J. S. C. Knowlton, Sheriff, he was appointed his successor, July 5, 1871, and afterwards was elected for six successive terms of three years each, holding the office longer than any predecessor except Sheriffs Ward and Willard.

Soon after taking the office the Worcester prison was rebuilt and greatly enlarged to accommodate the increasing demands. After its completion, the sheriff took personal supervision and began that work which he and his friends justly regard as a public benefit and a distinguished advance in the improvement of modern prisons. The whole system of accounts was revised as well as the diet table in both this institution and in Fitchburg over which the sheriff has entire control. He did away with the shaving of heads and the wearing of parti-colored garments, believing them unnecessary indignities imposed upon short-term prisoners. Food of better quality, in greater variety and at a less cost was furnished and prepared by the best hygienic principals of cooking. Better clothing and bedding were added and later the library greatly increased by many new and carefully selected books. This work is due to the untiring efforts of General Sprague who for years devoted himself to searching out the latest and best improvements in the prisons of this and other states. That this work was appreciated by the commissioners of prisons, may be seen in their yearly reports, where they call the Worcester County Prisons, the model prisons of the Commonwealth. While holding this office he was offered by Governor Long, the wardenship of the State prison and urged to accept it.

General Sprague was commander of the department of Massachusetts, G. A. R., in 1868; was junior vice commander of the Massachusetts Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States the same year. In 1873-'74 he was quartermaster-general of the National encampment of the G. A. R., by the appointment of General Devens, Commander-in-Chief. Post 24 of Grafton bears the General's name. He has been the president of the 51st Regiment Association from its organization and in 1889 this body presented to him a magnificent gold, diamond studded G. A. R. badge.

For many years he has been a member of the Masonic fraternity and is a vice-president of the Mechanics Savings Bank, and has been a director in the Worcester Electric Light Company from its organization. Several years ago he became associated in business with Mr. Chas. V. Putnam, on the spot where

Mr. Putnam had done business for thirty-five years. This is now the large furniture house of Putnam and Sprague Co., and many a veteran who visits Worcester finds his way there, to see and greet his old commander, who by the way gives no indication of the years which the almanac says have passed over his head. To all appearance he would mount and ride his steed today as quickly and as stately as he did thirty years ago and many a battle scarred veteran would ask for no better leader than he. To them and to him each recurring Memorial Day means much, and may they for many a day to come, rejoice in common confidence and memories.

General Sprague was married in Worcester, Dec. 23, 1846 to Elizabeth Janes, daughter of Samuel and Eliza M. Rice. Their daughter, Josephine Elizabeth, married a son of the late Sheriff Knowlton, and dying left an only son, who is the General's ward. Carrie Lee, a bright and beautiful girl graduated from the High school in 1876 but only two months later was borne to her last resting place in Rural Cemetery. The only surviving son, Fred Foster, is engaged with his father in business.

Mrs. Sprague passed away in February 1889, and joined the loved ones who had gone before. She was passionately fond of flowers and they seemed to grow and bloom at her bidding. It has been the writer's privilege in passing along Chestnut street to admire the beautiful roses in June and many a bud has decked the button-hole of the passer by.

October 23, 1890, General Sprague was married to Miss M. Jennie Barbour, Assistant Librarian in our Free Public Library, and a life long friend of the family.

CROWN THEM.

BY CORNELIA WESSON BOYDEN.

Crown the heroes of the field,
Crown them all today,
With the fragrant flowers that yield Perfumes of the May.

Gather from the tulip bed,
Blossoms sweet and fair,
Golden hued and white and red,
All are mingled there.

Purple lilacs, lies white,
Apple blossoms pink,
Violets blue as skies at night,
All together link.

Search the wood for spicy green,
Woven garlands make,
Hidden wild flowers scarcely seen,
From their covert take.

Slowly march with stately tread,
Through the crowded street,
To the dwelling of the dead,
Mid the drum's low beat.

While the strains of music swell
In triumphant song,
For the boys who bravely fell
Midst the battle's throng.

Garlands place upon each mound,
Tenderly, with care,
'Till each lowly head is crowned,
Humbly sleeping there.

Lift your souls to God above,
Ruler of the right,
Fill your hearts with reverent love,
Praise His name tonight.

And as years roll swiftly by,
In memorial keep,
Those who dared to do and die,
They have earned their sleep.

Lexington, Va., Letter.

ROCKBRIDGE COUNTY, May 18, 1891.

Dear Light:

Our own Massachusetts town of Lexington, is attractive on account of its historic associations and no less so is the town of the same name in Virginia. Rockbridge county is rightly named; it contains that one of nature's wonders which Clay called "The bridge not made with hands, that spans the river, carries a highway and makes two mountains one." Our trip to the Natural Bridge last Saturday was made from Lexington, a drive of fourteen miles, fording one stream and encountering considerable of the red mud. The railroad connections, though better than a few years ago, even now are not good and the place is not easy of access, but when the bridge comes into view one can but feel more than paid for any trouble and inconvenience. At the entrance of the glen are two hotels, and leaving the Forest Inn, one follows the small stream as it descends in beautiful little falls and enters the ravine. After a few minutes walk we have a glimpse of the bridge thro' the trees and then as we come quite near its foot and the path turns, it looks down upon us in all its glory. Looking up at it we think more of its wonderful beauty and looking down from the top one is more impressed with the depth of the ravine which is two hundred and fifteen feet. It is the view of the sky framed in the arch of rock which makes the picture so striking. Following up the stream, which is called Cedar Creek, is a path for a mile or more, and, as often happens in a small space, nature had grouped along this glen besides a variety of scenery several objects of some interest—the lace waterfalls which are a hundred feet in height; a small cave which was worked for nitre during the war of 1812 and later by the confederate government, and a stream which dashes out with a roar from an unseen cavern. It appears above ground only for a short distance and is lost again in another cavern giving it the appropriate name of the Lost River. Its water is icy cold and most refreshing and after we have drank we see a little sign board on a tree above which says, "Whoever drinks here will return."

It is said that the initials of Washington carved by himself when a surveyor for Lord Fairfax are to be seen in the cliff. We fail to find them, which is a small disappointment, for tho' we hope that our hearts beat with proper pride at the mention of his name, still we confess to a greater interest in what is told us by the people here in Lexington of the two Southern leaders who lived in their midst, both so much loved by them. Stonewall Jackson was an instructor in the Virginia Military Institute, and when we visit that building, his recitation room is pointed out to us. The professor's houses are built in a peculiar style of architecture bordering the campus on one side. Their stuccoed walls and those of the institute itself show marks of the flames which destroyed their interiors during the war. The main building was bombarded and the cannon balls are imbedded in its walls.

May 15th is always a holiday, it being the anniversary of the battle of Newmarket in which the cadets of 1864 took part. Several were killed and the graves of five of them are to be seen in a small cemetery within the institute limits. The Sunday morning inspection at eight o'clock was well worth seeing. In the bright sunlight the four companies marched out and during inspection the band played soft sweet music. On a cold winter morning when inspection sometimes occupies an hour and demerits rain down mercilessly on the head of the unfortunate boy who is found with a rusty scabbard no doubt the scene is less beautiful, at least, to the eyes of the cadets and even the inspiring music must sometimes lose its charm.

The Washington and Lee University is even more interesting, historically, and this is the college of which Gen. Robert E. Lee became president at the close of the war. Its first endowment was made by Washington, who turned to this use the sixty thousand dollars, a gift of gratitude presented to him by the government. The first building, called Liberty Hall, stood on a hill not far removed from the site of the present college and is a ruin. (America does boast a few ruins.) Two of its walls are standing. When Gen. Lee died (1870) his name was added to that of Washington, making its present title. A mausoleum has been erected and this contains the famous recumbent statue by the sculptor, Valentine. His home now occupied by a son stands opposite in the grounds, and in the basement of the chapel is his office as he left it. It is shown to visitors by a colored man who was his devoted servant. His letters, books and papers, and a report which he was writing lie upon the table and his pen rests as he laid it down.

It is with regret that we leave this romantic town but we recall the sign over the Lost River and promise ourselves another visit to Lexington when that prophecy is fulfilled.

E. P. BALLORD.

THE FIFTEENTH WAS IN IT.

The High Water Mark of The Rebellion.

Gettysburg, Penn., May 18 (Special).—Colonel J. B. Bachelder, Government historian of the battlefield, today selected the position of a unique tablet to designate the "high-water-mark of the Rebellion." It will be erected by the States whose troops repulsed Pickett's charges.

The design is that of an open book of granite supported by cannon balls, resting on a marble pyramid at its base. It will contain suitable inscriptions and list of organizations, both Union and Confederate, engaged. The following Union commands will be honored: 19th Maine, 13th and 16th Vermont; 15th, 19th and 20th Massachusetts; 14th Connecticut, 12th New Jersey, 27th Ohio, 1st Delaware, 60th, 71st, 72d, 106th, and 151st Pennsylvania; 1st Minnesota, 7th Michigan, Arnold's and Browns Rhode Island, and Cowan's New York batteries. The dedication will take place in the fall, when there will be a great gathering of veterans from all parts of the Union.

In connection with the exercises incident to Memorial Day, Mrs. Edna I. (Smith) Tyler will address the Union Veteran Legion, Saturday night on the subject of "War Songs." As Mrs. Tyler's father was a soldier, during the war, losing his life at the hands of the Indians in Deadwood, 1876, her remarks will have a special interest and significance.

Leicester.

Horseback riding is becoming popular:

Hon. John E. Russell,
 Hon. Charles A. Denny,
 Mr. Dexter Knight,
 " Edwin L. Watson,
 " C. A. Page,
 " John W. Snow,
 " Frank Snow,
 " Harry E. Sargent,
 " D. Henry Whipple,
 " J. Sidney Whittemore,
 " Walter Watson,
 " George Browning,
 " Frederick B. Young,
 " Walter J. Denny,
 " George A. Denny,
 " Frederick Grout,
 " Marshall Snow,
 " Edward Ashey,
 " William U. Stone,
 " Charles L. Waite,
 " Herbert Stearns,
 " George Whittemore,
 " Harry Grout,
 " Edward Waite,
 Mrs. Carrie W. Stearns,
 " Annie E. Sargent,
 Miss Mary E. Joslyn,
 " Anna I. Estes,
 " Clara B. Moulton,
 " N. Olive Knight,
 " Lulu Stone,
 " Mandana E. Snow,
 " Bertha Snow,
 " Sarah Southwick.

These gentlemen and ladies enjoy more or less the pleasant and healthful pastime. If there were enough good saddle horses available to accommodate the party, the people would enjoy seeing them "witch the world with noble horsemanship" in line, four abreast.

Mrs. Walter Warren has recived a handsome English greyhound from the Shenango Kennels, in Pa.,

Mr. Charles W. Warren and Miss Myrtie Warren left town Wednesday afternoon for Lake Benton, Minnesota. Miss Warren will remain at home with her parents. Mr. Warren will return after enjoying a good visit with his son Albert and family.

Mr. Arthur W. Marsh returns home next week Tuesday from Andover, to throw rice and old shoes after the happy pair that ride "over the hills and far away."

Mr Clarence White and family left town last Tuesday for Tacoma, Washington, where they intend to locate permanently. Mr. White will engage in the manufacture of stained glass. He has the good wishes of his friends in his new venture.

Mr. A. B. Davidson has generously contributed a flag-staff for the Center School-house grounds. The pole is pine, about seventy-two feet long and came from Sargent's grove, a souvenir of the long celebrated picnic shade trees, which is now thought of as a luxury of the past as a pleasure resort. The woodman with his axe—Sargent's grove is no more.

Rev. E. Lester Marsh has gone to Castine Maine, to attend a wedding of his classmate.

Madame Sara reposing quietly by brooks awakens in the perfume of June roses, and standing under the marriage bell on the third day of the month, sings to herself, "There is nothing half so sweet in life as love's young dream."

BETTINA.

May 29th, 1891.

Bicycle Notes.

Saturday will be a great day for the wheelmen of the state and especially for local riders, as many of the Worcester wheelman have entered for the different races. This will be the third meet of the Bay State Bicycle club and it looks as though it would surpass the previous meetings. One of the attractions will be the first demonstration of an air bicycle ever attempted in the East, and it is expected that this performance together with the many races will call out a very large attendance.

In the one-mile novice safety race there are a large number of entries and it is a difficult thing to say who will come in ahead, as this race brings out a lot of new men, whose work on the wheel cannot be very well foretold, however H. F. McIntire of Worcester is riding very fast and unless something happens, will in all probability take a place in the race.

The two-mile Worcester County Championship brings out the old contestants Wilson, Fenner and Kern and an exciting race may be looked for. Wilson took first place two years ago and Fenner first place last year. Wilson is in first class shape and is riding faster than ever and will do his best to beat his old rival Fenner.

Up to 11 p.m. Saturday last there were no entries for the one-mile tandem state championship safety race, and it looked as though this race would have to be dropped, but James Wilson Jr., and T. J. Kern, both of Worcester, concluded to enter and were soon followed by a team consisting of Messrs. Scherver and Johnson. More local interest is had by the wheelmen of the city in this race than in any other event. A good race may be looked for.

In the Safety races in which Smith of New Bedford is entered, he may be counted as sure winner of first place as he is without doubt the fastest rider on that style of machine in the country. His riding here a year ago was very fine.

James Wilson, Jr., is entered in five races—but will probably start in but four. We hope to see this speedy rider come off with a place in each race.

Aldrich of Whitinsville will ride the only Eagle machine in the races.

The parade of the different clubs will be a fine sight. It is expected that 5000 wheelmen will be in line.

In the evening a ball in Horticultural Hall will wind up the affair. The boys have gone to a great expense in arranging this meeting and it is hoped that the weather may prove fair and the attendance large.

The prizes offered for the visiting club showing the largest number of riders in line and also to the one presenting the finest appearance will bring to Worcester the largest number of wheelmen ever seen on parade in the city. The prize for largest number will probably be taken by the Rhode Island wheelmen of Providence, although they will be closely pressed by the Roxbury club of Boston. There will be also large delegations from Millbury, Whitinsville, Clinton, Fitchburg, Springfield, Newton, Boston, Lynn and Fall River.

Aloysius Fitzgerald an altar boy at the Church of Sacred Heart was buried from that church Thursday morning. Services were conducted by Rev. Dr. T. J. Conaty. They were several floral tributes.

Boston Store.

Established 1870.

Sole agency

Centemeri Gloves
 Buttrick's Patterns
 E. C. Burt's Shoes
 Foster Gloves

WORCESTER, Saturday, May 30, 1891.

The store will be closed all Memorial Day.

We borrow the following stirring stanzas and print them today, as our tribute in memory of those to whom this day is consecrated:

THE BIVOUAC OF THE DEAD.

"The muffled drum's sad roll has beat
 The soldier's last tattoo;
 No more on life's parole shall meet
 That brave and fallen few.
 On Fame's eternal camping ground
 Their silent tents are spread,
 But Glory guards, with solemn round,
 The bivouac of the dead.

No rumor of the foe's advance
 Now swells upon the wind;
 No troubled thought at midnight haunts
 Of loved ones left behind;
 No vision of the morrow's strife
 The warrior's dream alarms;
 No braying horn nor screaming fife
 At dawn shall call to arms.

Their shivered swords are red with rust,
 Their pluméd heads are bowed;
 Their haughty banner, trailed in dust,
 Is now their martial shroud.
 And plenteous funeral tears have washed
 The red stains from each brow,
 And the proud forms, by battle gashed,
 Are free from anguish now.

The neighing troop, the flashing blade,
 The bugle's stirring blast,
 The charge, the dreadful cannonade,
 The din and shout are past;
 Nor war's wild note, nor glory's peal,
 Shall thrill with fierce delight
 Those breasts that never more may feel
 The rapture of the fight.

* * * * *

Rest on, embalmed and sainted dead,
 Dear as the blood ye gave,
 No impious footstep here shall tread
 The herbage of your grave;
 Nor shall your glory be forgot
 While Fame her record keeps,
 Or Honor points the hallowed spot
 Where Valor proudly sleeps.

Yon marble minstrel's voiceless stone
 In deathless song shall tell
 When many a vanquished age hath flown,
 The story how ye fell;
 Nor wreck, nor change, nor winter's blight,
 Nor Time's remorseless doom,
 Shall dim one ray of glory's light
 That gilds your deathless tomb."

—THEODORE O'HARA.

DENHOLM & MCKAY COMPANY.

G. A. R. Record.

LIGHT reciprocates the good words of the Records and also admires the direct way the paper has of dealing with public questions. General Butler ought to be grateful for the weapons taken up in his defense against Judge Carpenter. It has come to a strange pass when a Federal Judge can thus drive a distinguished lawyer out of court.

1861---1891.

Values are largely comparative. There are few things whose worth is not determined chiefly by their relation to their surroundings and circumstances.

To this law, Decoration Day forms no exception, and however carefully the young people of to-day may have been brought up to regard it, it can have but little significance to them as in comparison to its meaning to those who occupied their places in the early sixties, It is a difference—a world wide one—between things merely heard of, and those actually felt.

To the boys and girls of 1891, the tale of those days is often but as one more chapter of a history, already tediously long, to be committed to memory. But what a host of associations rise up with the words "Memorial Day" to those who lived through that period!

Red, white and blue were very significant colors just then, and the influences of those days were so strong that every child even felt a certain degree of responsibility as to the bonny flag's being treated with proper respect.

With what admiration and envy we looked upon our older associates whose patriotic longings were not restricted by the limitations of age and inches. Tom and Dick and Harry whom we had accustomed to regard solely as such, became persons of vast importance after they had donned the coats of blue. They were invested already with the dignity. It was an eventful day when we saw them march away with hundreds of others in answer to their country's call.

It was a sad day, also, we afterwards found, as the war-clouds grew darker and darker, and news came from time to time that this one or that one whom we had bidden good bye so blithely would come back to us no more.

They were weary days, too, of sickening suspense, when alternating between hopes and fear, we could almost at times have found it a relief to know that the terrible uncertainty meant that those dear ones had passed forever beyond the region of suffering.

Many a home was never the same again after the blight of that dreadful time; and those were fortunate families that did not learn at greater or less personal cost, the horrors of war.

But events were not without their influence upon character even upon small people, who learned many a lesson of patience and self-denial in helping in their childish way "to do for the soldiers." Those boxes which were constantly being sent out to the Sanitary Commission and as regularly swallowed up by its needs, afforded a large field for youthful zeal and industry, and one whose opportunities were seldom neglected.

Little hands wrested patiently with the mysteries of knitting that there might be a plentiful number of socks to distribute to the comfort of those unknown friends at the front.

Precious Wednesday and Saturday afternoons were given up to the slow scraping of lint and the making of bandage rolls of which those dreadful hospitals seemed to call for such an unending supply. Little hoards of money were generously offered for the purchase of delicacies for the sick and wounded. In a way, it was a day of small things; but they gave their all, and what more could a Rothschild do?

Who can tell how much the knowledge of all this may have nerved the hearts of those men in the hand to hand struggle with death which the fortunes of war brought to many of them?

As we stand to-day where the little fluttering flags mark their last resting-place, memory is very busy with the past. It is hard to realize that more than a quarter of a century lies between it and the present. Year by year the little band of survivors grows less. Soon all will have passed away; but whilst any of the children of those days remain, their story will be unforgettten. SIGMA.

AS TO CO-OPERATION.

Housekeeping Obstacles.

Mrs. Bronston (pale, and half distracted)—
"That's the ninth girl I've had within a month and she just threw a flat ir'n at me."

Mr. Bronston—"By the way, a party of us to day were trying to evolve a scheme for co-operative housekeeping. Our plan was to rent a small family hotel, hire our own help, do our own managing and share the expenses."

"That's grand! It would be just like living in an absolutely perfect hotel, and at half the cost. Oh, I'm delighted! Who will go in with us?"

"Well there's Jinks, for one."

"His wife doesn't move in our set."

"And Winks."

"Mrs. Winks is a scandal monger, and you know it."

"And Minks—"

"Catch me living under the same roof with that flirting woman."

"And there is Finks."

"Mrs. Finks is a regular old cat."

"And Pinks—"

"Hub! Mrs. Pinks and her two pretty daughters, with no thought but dress and the opera! Nice ones they'd be to keep house with!"

"And your dear friend, Mrs. Kinks."

"She didn't return my last call, and I've dropped her."

"But what shall we do?"

"Get another girl."—New York Weekly.

Smoking in College.

Dr. Seaver, the physician of Yale college and the professor of athletics there, says that the students of Yale who indulge in tobacco smoking are inferior in physical vigor and mental ability to those who do not. According to his reckoning, the smokers have less lung power than the anti-smokers; they have less chest inflating capacity; they are of less bodily weight, and they are even of less height. The muscular and nervous power of smoking students is noticeably less than that of the anti-smoking. The leading athletes at Yale do not smoke, and not a single candidate for the crew is a smoker. He finds, moreover, that the smoking habit is equally disadvantageous to scholarship, and few of the smokers get college honors of any kind. In view of all this, it is gratifying to observe that 70 per cent. of the Senior class at Yale do not smoke.—Boston Herald.

Comrades

"Where Are Our Dead?"

The hand is on Time's dial mark the sweet month of flower,

And I see on every hand,
The worn, and shattered, and limbless men,
Who were once the flower of our land.
No faltering there; but with courage grand,
They close up the ranks of blue,
Where the Death-king touched a comrade dear,
And he stepped beyond our view.

Long years ago there came o'er the sea,
From a distant foreign shore,
The wronged; the hunted; the homeless ones;
To make them a home once more.
But alas! they brought from those older lands,
Some taint of that "curse of earth,"
For kings and empires would never let Fair Freedom ever have birth.

So the flag that floated its teatious folds,
O'er the homes and the hearts so brave,
Looked down 'neath the glittering stars of heaven,
On the bondsman and the slave.
But hark! on the dawn of a brighter day,
Through the lips of a radiant band,
The voice of God gave this command,
"No slave upon this land."

So we left our homes and those most dear,
To obey stern Fate's decree,
We marched; we fought; we starved; they died,
To make this bright land free.
Dear friends like the leaves by the autumn gale,
Were swept away from our side,
Only a heart throb—that was all,
As their lives went out on the tide,

On the weary march, in the battle's roar,
On the lonely picket line,
In the prison cell—their souls passed on,
These comrades of yours a dime.
And we asked as we journeyed along Life's road,
"Where are the true, and tried,
Have they gone far off to a distant clime,
Or do they still march on by our side!"

When we wear the blue on our natal day,
And walk with heavy tread,
To carry bright flowers to the narrow homes,
Where lie our immortal dead.
O the dear kind souls that we loved in the past,
Cannot sleep beneath the clay,
For I feel their touch, and their presence grand,
And they tell of a brighter day,

That shall greet the "Vet" when his weary feet,
Have ended this march of life,
And he dons the blue of a fairer clime,
And the future with flowers is rife.
There are no dead—they only change,
Their clothing "along the line,"
We welcome them here on our natal day,
These comrades of yours and mine.

—Fred L. Hildreth.

Worcester, Mass.

The convention held in this city, by the teachers of the county appeared to be unusually valuable and interesting. The fact that it was held in Worcester, that Worcester teachers were obliged to attend and that the day was pleasantly served to draw together a very large number of people. Addresses were made by Principal Rounds of the New Hampshire Normal School, Prof. C. W. Emerson of the Boston School of Oratory, the Rev. I. J. Lansing of this city and A. W. Edson of the State Board of Education. One of the most valuable and instructive features of the day, was the conducting of a class exercise in Civics by Principal James Jenkins of the Dix Street School. Bringing, as he did, his 11th Grade pupils before the Convention and having them recite and question, there and then, he clearly demonstrated, that the proof of the pudding was in the eating of it.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co.'s

New Books.

The American Revolution.

By JOHN FISKE. With Plans of Battles and a new Steel Portrait of Washington from a miniature never before reproduced. 2 vols. crown 8vo, gilt top, $4 00.
Readers of American history are to be congratulated on the opportunity of tracing the causes and course of the Revolution in Mr. Fiske's wonderfully luminous narrative.

Fourteen to One.

A book of remarkably good Short Stories, including "Jack the Fisherman" and "The Madonna of the Tubs." By ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS. 16mo, $1.25.

Col. Carter of Cartersville.

By F. HOPKINSON SMITH. With Illustrations. 16mo, $1.25.
Colonel Carter is a fine specimen of one type of the Virginia gentleman of the passing generation. He is exquisitely courteous, recklessly hospitable, with a vivid financial imagination. The delightful story is admirably told and illustrated.

Balaam and His Master, and other Stories.

By JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS, author of "Nights with Uncle Remus," "Mingo, and Other Sketches." 16mo, $1.25.
Another book of those exceedingly interesting Southern stories which Mr. Harris tells so well.

Otto the Knight, and other Stories.

By OCTAVE THANET, author of "Knitters in the Sun," etc. 16mo, $1.25.
"The gifts of Octave Thanet are among the greatest which the story-teller can possess."—R. H. STODDARD.

Felicia.

A novel of power and fine discrimination, by FANNY N. D. MURFREE, 16mo, $1.25.

Ryle's Open Gate.

A bright novel of a summer by the sea on Long Island, by SUSAN TEACKLE MOORE. 16mo, $1.25.

Lewis Cass.

Vol XXIV. of American Statesmen. By ANDREW C. McLAUGHLIN, Assistant Professor of History in the University of Michigan. 16mo, gilt top, $1.25.

* For sale by all Booksellers. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price by the Publishers.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston.

Books and Bookmen.

New England Magazine for June 1891. Contents:

Wagner and Fannhauser in Paris, 1861*, Edward H. House; Blossom Time, Wilbur Larremore; Benjamin Penhallow Shillaber, * Elizabeth Akers Allen; At Andersonville, Franklin L. Stanton; A Fair Exchange, IV, Dorothy Prescott; When Dreams Are Bet, Dora Read Goodale; Early Days of the First Telegraph Line, Stephen Vail; Priscilla, Hetta Lord Hayes Ward; The Message of Punitanism for This Time, Edwin D. Mead; Gilead, Isabel Gordon; Of Early Violets, Philip Bourke Marston; Harvard Memorial Poems; The Giant Wistaria, Charlotte P. Stetson; An Anti-Slavery Hero, Sidney H. Morse; The City of Lynn*, Edwin A. Start; A Southern Study, Mrs. Lillie B. Chace Wyman; A Massachusetts Land Title, George A. Jackson; Editor's Table, Omnibus, *Illustrated.

Poems for the Times, showing conflicting Tides in Society, by the Rev. Mark Gould, A. M.

This is a modest volume from the Florence Publishing Co. of Worcester and New York. There are ninety-four pages, and the contents are in verse and selected statistics and notes. The writer is in earnest about Temperance and against this evil the most of his verse is directed. He has already appeared several times in LIGHT, so that the character of his writings is known by our readers. The poems are spirited and what is always desirable, they have an object. Any one will be better equipped for life's battles by the reading of this collection. Mr. Gould is also an earnest advocate of a better observance of the Lord's Day. The book may be had by addressing the author at 85 Woodland street. Price 25 cents.

Education for May, a Monthly Magazine devoted to The Science, Art, Philosophy and Literature of Education, Frank H. Kasson, William A. Mowry, Editors Boston, 50 Bromfield Street, $3 per year.

Agent George H. Martin opens this number with an appreciative article on School Inspection, timely, when we note the increased disposition to employ superintendents in our cities and country towns. Mr. Larkin Duntton continues his series on Moral Education. Notes on Early Arithmetic is by John H. Keinheksel. Political Economy in the Secondary School is an instructive discussion by Charles J. Bullock of Pawtucket. John L. Stewart writes, The Wharton School of Finance, and The Text Book Question is very fully treated by Dr. E. J. Townsend of Michigan University, with an obvious leaning in favor of Free Books. Dr. Andrew D. White's proposition to lower the standard of existing colleges is treated editorially as are some of President Eliot's strictions and the New Orleans affair. Obviously, Messrs. Kasson and Mowry are no lovers of Sicilian Lazaroni. A very good maxim for those people who criticize, so strenuously, the New Orleans people is "Put yourself in his place."

Ballou's Monthly Magazine, June 1891. Boston, G. W. Studley. $1.50 per annum.

Again an old friend comes round with its familiar face. The first page of the covers is a happy thought. Bold sailor men descry Boston in the distance. To be sure the dome is not gilded but it is the dome all the same. At the right are the dwellers of other climes, who, possibly, in some way are profiting by Boston notions, certainly not by Medford rum. In Kings of the Forest Sir Samuel Baker contradicts many wide spread notions as to the size and strength of Oriental animals. The True Story of a Water Melon is almost as refreshing as the delicious morsel itself. This June number will form a literary accompaniment to many a Maine and Adirondack outfit. It is interesting throughout.

Picturesque Hampshire a Supplement to the Quarter Centennial Journal. Northampton, 1890. 50 cents. By mail 60 cents.

Here are 120 pages of literary matter with pictures of landscapes, buildings and individual and there are many more pictures than pages. The reputation of Hampshire County as a paradise of scenery is fully sustained. It was an exceedingly happy thought to put out this book with all its illustrated richness, to charm the eye. Many thereby, may enjoy what, in person, they will never see. The half tone process is a godsend to him who loves pictorial representation for much is shown that in the days of wood engraving and steel-plate would be quite out of reach. The price is merely nominal and there are few readers of LIGHT who could not afford to purchase. The literary matter is descriptive, fanciful and historical, but always interesting. Address Wade, Warner & Co., Northampton, Mass.

The American Revolution by John Fiske in two volumes. Boston and New York, Houghton, Mifflin & Co. 1891. $4 the set. Vol. 1.

Who does not love a good book? There is a charm in this history that we are at a loss to account for. Other writers have told the story of the troublous days of the Revolution; have told it well, correctly. In the lives of Washington and other heroes of those times we have the recital o'er and o'er. Yet here come this work with a charm that holds us from the beginning to the end. There is no reaching out after effect, no fine writing, but the story is told with such a wealth of reserve that we know, in spite of all that is told, there is back of it much untold, that the writer has scarcely more than tapped his treasury of knowledge. There is no lack of detail but nothing is dragged in. Though it does seem a little strange to find the English leaders of the last century compared with Tammany Sachems of today and to have the "Spoils System" illustratively introduced in the long ago. The engraving of Washington which forms the frontispiece is a new one, never used before, the work of Henry Bone, R. A. The dedication is to Mrs. Mary Hemenway, an exceedingly graceful tribute to a lady whose liberality is largely responsible for the preservation of the Old South Church in Boston. (Would that Worcester had possessed some similar spirit to work for her ancient church) To her also is due the series of historical discourses that have done so much for youthful, yes, and for adult Boston in the revival of interest in the past. Perhaps, had it not been for her, the lectures, which, to all intents in a modified form, this history is, would not have been prepared. Having heard some of them, we are bound to state with all respect to the esteemed historian that they read better than they sounded. Mr. Fiske is not an elocutionist; but he can glean and associate facts. The preface is worth reading, setting forth, as it does, the reasons for undertaking this task, and the sources of his information. The hundred years preceding the Revolution are briefly yet vividly sketched. The relations of the Mother Country to her colonies in America is portrayed as well as the characters of those who directed affairs in England. Thackeray never drew English characteristics more clearly than does this Cambridge gentleman. The school boy and girl who is seeking for a clear and concise account of the reasons that led up to the War can find them in this book better than any where else. He would be a sorry Bostonian or Worcester resident who did not rise from the reading of these days with a prouder feeling that he has a part of the heritage of such fathers as forced England to close the Port of Boston or on Worcester Common compelled the resignation of obnoxious officers. Our own city, though then a small town was not wanting in degree of the same determination and firmness that made Boston the Gibraltar of the Revolution.

Mr. Fiske has made old stories over again into pages that fairly beam with interest. Of course, he has had an opportunity to compare the writings of all predecessors and to weigh all testimony since produced; but above all these is the charm of manner. He has come near doing for American History what Macaulay did for that of England.

What a glorious picture is that of the Continental Congress and how vividly those heroic figures stand forth! The chapter ends with the Battle of Bunker Hill. Chapter IV is headed Independence and it carries us from Washington under the Old Elm in Cambridge to the 4th of July in Independence Hall, Philadelphia. The next chapter is replete with incidents advancing from the arrival of Cornwallis to the coming of Lafayette.

Burgoyne's impertinent campaigns with all the minor events of that period brings the reader through Chapter VI to the first of September. The volume ends with fifty pages of Saratoga, more interesting than fiction. There are nine maps fully setting forth the relative positions of its hostile arrays at the battles of Long Island, Germantown, Brandywine, Saratoga and other places. For sale by Putnam, Davis & Co.

Lippincott's Magazine. Contents.

Gold of Pleasure, George Parsons Lathrop; Some Familiar Letters by Horace Greeley, IV., edited by Joel Benton; A Literary Pet, Edgar Fawcett; Alexandra, Princess of Wales, Lucy Lillie; Oracles, Clinton Scollard; A By-Way in Fiction, Agnes Repplier; Is Alaska Worth Visiting? Grace Peckham, M. D.; Horace, Ode IV., To Sestius, Caroline Augusta Furness; In the Thorvaldsen Museum, C. H. Herford; Beneath the Trees, Charles Morris; Sonny, Mary E. Wilkins; The College Settlement, Hester Dorsey Richardson; Before the Hour, Florence Earle Coates; Two Recent Novels: "Aman," A. H. W.; "Romance of a Spanish Nun," Frederic M. Bird.

The popular writer, George Parsons Lathrop, author of "An Echo of Passion," "Newport," "Afterglow," etc., contributes the complete novel. It is a tale of love and adventure, with scenes that shift from the quiet surroundings of a New England seaport town to Ceylon. The series of "Familiar Letters of Horace Greeley" closes with this number. The last one was written only a few days after his defeat, and he says "Life seems too hard to bear." It was only a few weeks before he died. Some curious letters from cranks are also given. Lucy C. Lillie gives a charming description of Alexandra, Princess of Wales; her first meeting the Prince, the preparation for marriage, the journey, and her home life are finely told and there are many interesting anecdotes of this beloved royal personage. Alaska is now attracting the attention of travellers, and Grace Peckham answers the question "Is Alaska Worth Visiting?" by describing some of the delightful and awe-inspiring scenery that makes this ice-covered land worthy of a visit. The practical philanthropy of some college graduates is described by Hester Dorsey Richardson. The household, numbering from seven to nine members, consists of a housekeeper, and her co-workers, the college girls, who come in relays, some remaining only two, some as long as ten months at a time, to help in the good work. "The College Settlement," is an institution which is doing a great work among the slums of New York City, an institution founded by a few college girls, who have an association for practical friendly work among the poor, and who now for some time have been quietly carrying on their work, with their head-quarters at a house on Rivington Street. Now, when there is so much talk about what should be done for the poor, a history of this practical effort towards a solution of the problem must excite much interest. This number also contains a fine portrait, on glazed paper, of George Parsons Lathrop the writer of the story.

The Atlantic Monthly for June, 1891. Contents.

Abraham Lincoln, Carl Schurz; The House of Martha, XXXIII-XXXVI, Frank R. Stockton; A Widow and Twins, Bradford Torrey; Variations on an Old Theme, I, Iter Supremum, Arthur Sherburne Hardy; II., The Old Dwelling, Charles Henry Crandall; Classical Literature in Translation, Richard G. Moulton; Reminiscences of Professor Sophocles, George Herbert Palmer; Rowing at Oxford, S. E. Winbolt; A Town Mouse and a Country Mouse, Rose Terry Cooke; The Last Watch, Bliss Carman; What the Southern Negro is Doing for Himself, Samuel J. Barrows; On the Study of Geography, Daniel Coit Gilman; Goethe's Key to Faust, Third Paper; The Second Part of Faust, William P. Andrews; Vinet and Scherer; New England in the Short Story; Comment on New Books; The Contributors' Club.

Episcopal Church Club

The meeting of this body at the Bay State House, May 19th, was the most notable event in its history. It was ladies' night and a very large attendance evidenced the interest in the occasion. President Stephen C. Earle presided. The guests of the evening were the Rev. Dr. W. R. Huntington of New York and Clement J. Fay, Senior Warden of St. Paul's Church, Brookline. The spread was fully discussed and then came the event of the evening in the shape of an address by Dr. Huntington. It is evident that the clergyman has lost none of his popularity in this city of his early efforts. Worcester, regardless of denominational lines cherishes a warm memory of All Saints Rector. His paper was on "The Episcopal Outlook" and was presented in the clear and forcible manner for which he has long been noted. Mr. Fay's remarks were particularly happy. President Earle, in behalf of the club, presented Dr. Huntington with a copy of the book "Worcester Churches, from 1710 to 1889," by Charles Emory Stevens of this city. Dr. Huntington thanked the club briefly, expressing in glowing language the deep regard which he would ever have for his Worcester friends.

May 30th.

BY N. A. M. ROE.

They tell me the kiss of the L. ver,
And the half smiling kiss of the bride,
And the innocent kisses of childhood,
Are better than all else beside.

There's the lingering kiss of the dying,
As the soul flutters out to its God,
And the shuddering kiss of the mourner
Who bends 'neath the chastening rod.

But the whispering kiss of the Southwind,
Caressing the land and the sea,
Is more than the kiss of the living,
Or the dying can e'er be to me.

For it lovingly ripples the grasses,
That cover a far distant grave,
The low, lonely bed of a soldier,
Who suffering, dying to save

The starry and crimson barred banner,
The standard of Freedom today,
Sleeps where the zephyrs shall whisper
And murmur of heroes away.

He Wouldn't Risk It.

Louis Aldrich tells the following story:

In the summer of 1865 the Metropolitan Theater Company, wandered from San Francisco up as far as Victoria, Vancouver's Island. We were to play there a week or two, and the first play on our programme was "Damon and Pythias." For the senators in the famous senate scene we were obliged to recruit as best we could, and among others we engaged was the scene painter's boy, Joe Brent. Now Joe was a cockney from cockneydom, and at rehearsal came to speak the only two words he had to say, "And I!" which as will be remembered, are in response to the appeal to make Dionysius king. Joe rose, and imitating the proud gesture of his fellow nobles, exclaimed "Hand Hi!"

Of course we all laughed immoderately at poor Joe's expense, at which he was very indignant, we exclaimed and pointed out his fault, but Joe was obdurate and protested that "Hand Hi;" was quite correct. At last, however, we convinced him, and under our tuition he worked hard to say the words correctly. Sometimes he would say "Hand Hi," at others "Hand I;" but with a little patience and practice and by taking a long breath beforehand, he had so far progressed that he could say "And I" fairly well. And we let it go at that, cautioning Joe, on the night of the performance to be very careful.

"Ave no blooming fear," he replied, "hit ill be hall right at night." Joe forthwith went up to the paint frame and spent the rest of the day practicing, with unwearied perseverance, for the dreaded ordeal that lay before him.

In due course night came, and so did the solemn senate scene. At the cue Senator number one arose and said "I do approve of it," to which Senator number two added "And I" Joe now rose, and after a few seconds painful pause, said boldly, "Me too!" And in a hoarse whisper to a neighboring senator: "Egad, I wouldn't risk it!"

John Stetson is preparing to produce a new comedy, the principal roles of which are for two comedians. He offered Dixey a very large amount to play the old man, but not enough to capture the comedian. Whom he will secure it is difficult to tell.

Johnny's Violets.

"Don' ye know nuffin' 'bout it?"

"No, I ain't never heard nothin' like it 'fore."

The speakers were a little colored boy with such bright eyes, and a mouth that was always smiling, and a child of six with black hair and hollow cheeks, and a general look of invalidism that struck you as peculiar in one so young; but when she arose you were not surprised for she took up a crutch and placing it under her arm halted away. The boy had lately moved into the alley and his mother did washing for a living. He had noticed the little cripple and had tried to entertain her with wonderful things which he had heard, and I fear sometimes with more wonderful things he had not heard but which were just as entertaining nevertheless.

Today, Constance Larkin had come out and seated herself on the curb to enjoy the little sunlight which shone in there only a few minutes every day. Johnny saw her and thought she looked unusually lonesome, and so came out to tell her what he was to do next Saturday.

"Mawnin' Connie."

"I'm so glad you come out."

"I's gwine ter hab a boquay fer Sat'day now I tell ye. I know whar v'lets, lots ob 'em."

"What ye goin ter do with it?" said Connie industriously poking the end of her crutch into the crevices of the cobble stone gutter.

"I'm gwine ter go ter de cem'tery when th' others do an' put it on Pops grabe ob cose" and he looked astonished that Connie did not know without asking what he would do with it.

"Who's goin'?"

"You don' seem ter know nuffin'. De Gran' Army ob cose."

"Who be they?" and the eyes were full of curiosity.

Johnny just looked at her. He had nothing to say to such ignorance as was before him. He and his mother had talked of the war and particularly of that part of it in which his father was. He knew all that she did of his soldier father, and he never tired of hearing her tell the story of his father's bravery, for he was one of those who fell at Fort Wagner, and in his heart he hoped there would be war all the time when he was a man so that he might do some great deed of valor. He lifted his cap every time a flag went by, for did not his father give his life for that banner and was it not worthy his highest reverence?

Johnny had never told Connie about his father and he felt that here was a mine of treasure which he could open to her. The morning hours went by quickly and when the noon bells rang, the two children were still sitting on the curb, and Johnny was still telling the story of the war to the little dwarfed child who had never heard of Memorial day or the Grand Army.

When he stopped at last she said with a long sigh, "I wisht my father was a soldier, but I don' spose he was for Granny never said nothin' 'bout it."

"You go'n ask 'er, you don' neber know nuffin fo' sho' twill yo' fin' out."

"She's gone ter wash winders down ter Mis' Peters an' she won't be home till night," then after a moment she said, "How'd you know where yer father's grave is?"

"Oh, I don' know fo' sho', but I go up ter de cem'tery an' when dey com' with th' flags an' flow's an' I don' know which, I jes' say Lawd Ise doin' dis fer pop, an' den I lay it on the nex' grabe an' I specs its all right."

Connie had been much moved by Johnny's recital and it seemed to her the greatest thing to be wished for was a soldier father, and she thought if he had done so many brave things as Johnny's father had, Granny would be proud of him and would have told her. It was with a sinking heart that she asked Johnny if he thought she could make believe that her father was a soldier and have a bouquet for him.

"I don' kno' fo' sho' I swar I don'. You go'n ask yer Granny."

That night when Granny came home she was besieged with questions as to Connie's father, but all the answer she would give the child was that her father died in a fight and that his grave was so far away that she couldn't go to it.

But it was a very happy little girl that made her appearance the next morning in the sunlight, and in the most contented of voices she told Johnny that her father was a soldier and he died in a fight, but his grave was a good ways off and she couldn't go to it, but she was so glad he was a soldier, and she guessed he had done some great things if he was killed doing them.

Johnny wasn't satisfied with the meagre bit that Grannie had told Connie and went himself to question her and he found that her father had died in a street brawl, in a drunken fight, and that he was a ne'er do well who had dropped his baby Connie and so hurt her back that she had been a cripple ever since. "The chile's crazy over her father an' if it makes her any happier to think her father a soldier I can't tell her" and the tears that ran down Granny's cheeks told of many a grave in her heart that no one could cover with flowers! How many a life has these graves which we would forget but cannot.

Mr. Peters was a doctor, and one day when Granny did not come to work, his wife went to see what had become of her and found that Connie had stayed too long on the curb and the result was that she was ill in bed and Granny worn out with care and anxiety.

Then Connie was taken to the hospital and there Johnny used to go and see her and sit by her. And there the story of the war was repeated, but he never told her that he had found out anything more about her father, or different from what she had told him, and she talked so much about him and the grand deeds he had done in the war, and when she could think of no more she would ask Johnny to tell about his father, and then tired out she would fall asleep to dream of her soldier father, the bravest of them all.

She made Johnny bring her the basket of violets he had walked miles out of the city to pick, and as she lifted the bunches, she told him to be sure and remember to say that half were for Connie's father.

She seemed tired and out of breath, and when he was saying how he would hurry and come again, so to tell her all the doings of the day, she fell asleep.

Johnny went to the cemetery—beautiful Hope Cemetery—and there thinking of Connie and with the tears fast dropping into the blue depths of the sweet flowers, he waited till the soldiers came with their wreaths and bouquets and when one came to the low grave whose flag denoted that a soldier slept there, he went to the same one and while the soldier knelt on one side and waited with uncovered head the conclusion of the short services, Johnny knelt near. When the soldier laid his wreath down Johnny began to cover the rest of the grave with his violets.

"What are you putting flowers on this grave for, did you know Sergeant Morris?"

"No, sah, but my fader he fell on de Fort Wagner an' I kan' put none on his grabe, an' so I cum an' tell de Lawd an' he knows I does it fer my farder."

"Your father fell at Wagner! I must tell the boys!" And when he had told the boys what a cheer rang out, for they had all heard of the courage of the colored troops who went so bravely to the mouth of Hell, and if Johnny's hand was not shaken off it was not the fault of the men who could hardly make enough of the son of such a hero.

"My boy, you said you could not decorate your father's grave. Did you not know that the great monument on the common is for just such cases as yours. On each corner are figures of the Army, the Navy, the Cavalry, and yours would be the Infantry and you may put your wreaths on his figure and it would be just like putting them on your father's own grave."

When the men would let him go he ran all the way to the hospital, and Connie's eyes shone like stars, and her hands clasped themselves together in her excitement, and the fever flush came brighter than ever in her thin cheeks as she listened to Johnny's story, and when he said, "I'll mak' two, one fo' yo' an' one fo' me, an' I'll hang 'em on dat yer infant' man nex' yar," her eyes closed and she lay on her pillow looking so happy that Johnny's eyes filled with tears.

When next Memorial day came, Connie was under the sod, and Johnny covered her grave with violets, but he did not forget to make two wreaths and if any one wondered who decorated the corner figure on the Soldier's monument so profusely, the moon could have told of a little colored boy who climbed up early in the morning and as he hung them he whispered, "Dat's fer Connie's fader, an' dat's fer min' an' I hope she knows it fo' sho'."

1872.

The appearance of Mr. Frank Mayo in "Davy Crockett," on Friday, May 29th, at the new Worcester Theater, will be an event of double interest. It is a long time since Mr. Mayo has been seen in this city in his famous play. The occasion is also a benefit to the popular treasurer, Mr. Will N. Banks, and from present appearances will be of the most substantial character. The rifle used by Mr. Mayo in the play is the gift of General Custer, in the year of 1873, and is highly treasured by the actor as a souvenir of his friendship for the daring soldier. The story of the life of the patriotic backwoodsman is too well known to need repetition here. It is full of patriotism and exciting incident. The scenery and stage settings are works of art; the blinding snow storm and log cabin having a surprising look of reality. Seats are now on sale.

The Liquor Problem.

TO THE EDITOR: Will you kindly find space in your valuable paper for a few words on the drink problem and an honest effort to shed a little light on such a dark subject. The City of Worcester has voted that drinks shall be sold here which if not carefully guarded against, are sure to rob those who indulge in them of their senses, and as surely bring disgrace on them and their friends.

Now I ask if the Citizens wish these drinks to be sold why cannot they vote that the City authorities shall sell and have absolute control of the Rum traffic? If the City fathers have the right to sell a man a license, they have a right to sell a man a glass of beer and a good one, too.

If the City fathers have a right to sell us our water drinks, they have a right to sell us our liquor drinks also. If they have a right to raise a revenue in the lump from licenses they have an equal right to raise it in small sums from individual drinkers.

Now I ask what is there to prevent the city from taking charge of our liquor supplies the same as it does our water supply?

Why can it not see to the supplying of liquor to the public the same as it does water, only in a different way.

Why can it not have a liquor commissioner whose duty it shall be to purchase all the liquor or other drinks needed, have proper supply stores or whatever they choose to call them, in certain places, say one or more in each ward? Appoint proper and capable men to manage them, who shall receive a good salary and be appointed during good behavior, and not liable to be removed except for cause proved.

They shall have no interest in inducing a man to drink too much, but their orders from the Commissioner shall be to sell no man more than one drink at one time, nor more than two drinks the same day. This does not mean that a man shall not be able to get only two drinks per day, but only two drinks in the same place. If he wants more he must walk to the next ward, and get his other drink.

As you will see these plans aim to suppress not drinking but drinking to excess, which causes drunkenness.

The Commissioner would have issued orders to his men, the same as the chief of police does to his men, that the moment one of the offices notices a man the worse for his drinks, he is not to sell him any at all, and as each man in charge of one of these liquor halls might be a special officer if not a regular one, he would have orders to place the citizen who showed the liability to drunkenness where he could not get any more for the time being.

But I think the chances of a citizen getting drunk would be small, because in the first place, the stores would not be lounging places, but only places where a thirsty citizen could quench his thirst in whatever drink suited his palate best, and of that he could only obtain a moderate quantity.

If he wanted more he must walk for it, and by the time he had got to the place of supply the effects of the liquor would have largely disappeared.

Again as the Commissioners would be under orders from the citizens through the city authorities to supply the drinking halls with nothing but the very purest drinks of each kind, the effect of the drink would be different from the stuff at present dealt out to drinkers, which robs them of their senses and poisons their system.

The Commissioner having an immense quantity to buy of the different kinds of drinks and the credit of the city at the back of him, should be able to get the very purest liquors, ales, beers and other drinks at the very lowest prices, and be able to dispose of them to our drinkers at much less the current prices and give a far finer article for the money. This would undoubtedly give great satisfaction to those of our citizens who love a good glass of their favorite sherry or other drink. The city would thus have entire control of the liquor traffic and would be able to control it, for it could discharge at a moment's notice the officer who disobeyed his orders and sold to a man enough to make him drunk.

It could also give orders not to sell the man who abused his privilege and got drunk any more liquor for a certain length of time or allow him to buy only Temperance drinks within the territory controlled by the city, then the liquor furnished by the city should be of such good quality and yet so low a cost as to drive out competition.

It stands to reason that men would not prefer the impure to the pure drinks, any more than they prefer dirty water to the pure sparkling water. Again as no one but the city need be given a license to sell, the city should get an immense revenue from the business at a minimum of drunkenness, and the money thus obtained could be used in taking care of any of our citizens who were unable to take care of themselves, in making Worcester more beautiful in a hundred other ways, and best of all in making the drink regulations so strict as to virtually abolish the curse of drunkenness while preserving to our citizens the right to eat and drink what they pleased so long as they kept within the bounds of sobriety and reason. Nor in carrying out these plans need any injury be done to the men who have invested their money in the liquor business for they could be employed by the city in its new liquor halls at a good salary where their knowledge could be used to the best advantage for the public and the city, under the directions of the liquor commissioner.

Why should the city intrust such a dangerous thing as liquor to men whose sole interest it is to sell as much of it as possible for the profit they get out of it, and who have but little regard for those who drink. Ought not the men who handle it to be men whose interest should be the other way, and who if they sell to any man when he is seen to be in the slightest degree under the influence of strong drink, be liable to be discharged in disgrace from their position? Regarding the present liquor dens, I think they would stand but small chance of patronage selling their vile stuff as against the pure drinks furnished by the city.

Then it must be borne in mind that as the city had the sole right to sell these drinks and every citizen would have a right and interest in protecting the city's revenue and rights which the citizens had themselves conferred on their own officers, is it not reasonable to suppose that the said dens would have a hard and a short life of it?

And if these influences failed, let the city employ some of its sharpest detectives to ferret them out and bring the moonshiners to the penalties incurred by their crime. It does seem, Mr. Editor, that some such plan as this or one better could be devised to abolish this curse of drunkenness and the murder and crime and suffering which it brings on innocent people here in our beautiful city of Worcester.

Cannot some of our citizens who have the time, the money and let us hope the brains and also the heart devise some plan to accomplish this much to be desired end, and bring it before the public through the columns of your much valued paper, and throw more light on the subject.

Yours Respectfully,
G. Y. L.

Messrs. Young, Harrison and Broad have completed the sale of the entire brick block, Nos. 69, 71, 73, 75 to 91, Main street, next to Exchange Hotel to Mr. J. T. Roche, who now becomes sole owner of the whole block, both north and south halves. The terms of the sale not public.

Mr. Charles Stevens who was a High School boy of '83 Amherst '87, is making an excellent record in the Harvard Medical School, ranking 2d in Anatomy.

The strife between the clubs that represent the different Leagues is getting very interesting, as no one club is having its own way. Boston, however, in both Leagues seems to have rather the best of the fight so far, in the association.

FOR THE LAUNDRY.

BRUSSELS.

SOAP.

J. A. Long

SEASONABLE GOODS.

Reed Chairs,
Rattan Rockers,
Imitation Bamboo

CHAIRS AND ROCKERS

Grandfathers' Chairs,
Grandmothers' Rockers,
Steamer Chairs

THE CELEBRATED

ATHERTON * REFRIGERATORS

ALL SIZES.

OAK ROLL TOP
(54-INCH.)
OFFICE DESKS, $37.00

EVERY DESK WARRANTED.

J. A. LONG

Franklin Square Furniture Rooms,

555 Main St.

Goods sold on 4 months' time at cash price.

Comrades, Draw Near!

Here rests the soldier, the patriot, the friend
Who marched to the conflict, our right to defend,
When the war cloud of treason, the nation assailed,
And the strength of the strong grew weak and paled,
When the walls of the fortress were belching with fire
And the shouts of rebellion grew wilder and higher;
When the heart of the nation in defiance was tossed
And a Briton proud jeered—"a republic is lost;"
And the din of the strife grew rampant and wide
And waxed in its vengeance from tide to tide.
Then rose the hearts that were fearless and strong
And braved the conflict, that grew fierce and long
Though falling in batt'le, their emblem still waved
As a prayer rose heavenward—a nation is saved.
Here rest thee soldier, thy marchings are o'er,
Thou hast passed from the camp to the other shore
Passer from the din, and toils and strife
To join that grand army in a higher life.
Comrades draw nigh, and spread o'er his mound;
With tokens of love shall his memory be crowned,
Here rest thee, soldier; may that rest ever be Revered and protected by the brave and the free
As those who repose, 'neath the waters wide led,
Where carnage was rampant, with the dying and dead,
There may they rest, where pure waters meet.
No more will he listen to the long roll repeat
Where the coral and gold fish sport 'neath the wave
These shall oft gather, where rests our lost brave.
As he died at his post, defending the right
And passed from these shades to the purer light,
He's only exchanged the camp for that shore
Where marching and battles and troubles are o'er.
Comrades draw near, to his memory bequeath
The garland that's brightest—the golden wreath;
Here rest thee, soldier, the gallant, the brave
Where the magnolia blossoms and the fir trees wave
Here where he fell he calmly sleeps on
Nor dreams of battle his valor hath won.
There where the palm dips its boughs on the wave
There rest thee, comrade, we honor thy grave,
Thy records—intrenchments, by land and flood,
The peace thou didst conquer, is sealed with blood.
The thunders of battle, the clashing of steel
The cavalry charge, the fortress loud peal
He hears not, he fears not, his marching is o'er,
He has passed from the camp to the other shore.
Comrades, draw nearer, our camp fires grow dim,
We are fast changing quarters, for the distant glim
The boatman's signal has reached this shore,
The head of the column has passed on before
Our standard is floating on yonder bright heights,
As faintly we view the signal lights.
Comrades draw nearer, and, hand in hand,
One prayer we speak for our own loved land,
May that which in meekness the fathers have sown,
Be it liberties birthright one creed to own.
One God to worship, one nation to save
One flag to pledge o'er a soldiers' grave.
Here rest thee soldier, may thy rest be sweet
While the heart of a nation thy memory shall keep.
Freed from the curse of oppression's dark night,
Thy strong arm was raised in defence of the right.
Sleep on soldiers brave—in thy glorious bright bed
Thy deeds and thy swords, are the mighty dead.
Treasons foul page has passed from our view,
And the peace that seemed lost again we renew.
Shall souls undaunted and spirits thus brave,
Ask holier honors than these green graves?
Comrades, they've only marched over before
Their departing knell—the loud cannons' roar,
They have only exchanged the camp for the height
Beyond there in glory, beam heavenly lights.
Yes—Comrades draw nearer, we fear no adieu
But join that grand army, and pass in review.
MAY 30, 1891. G. L. GROUT.

From Ghent in Belgium, comes a letter of congratulations to Mr. F. L. Hutchins for his valuable articles in LIGHT on Volapük. The writer of the note, in Volapük is J. de Hoon, Professor of Philology and President of a Volapük Club.

Ralph Bartlett, a North Brookfield resident, but who spent two years in our High School, going thence to Amherst College, is now in the Law School of Boston University. He is taking a good position among his fellows, ranking second in his class.

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H. Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists.

11 Pleasant St.,
Worcester, Mass.

Residence, 61 West Street.

PREMIER SAFETY BICYCLES.

Not because they are English
but because they are Best.

JOHN A. LOWE, Agent, 630 Main Street.

The Readers of Light
I most cordially invite
To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything
They would expect to find

In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,

Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,

10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL, Gold, Silver and Nickel Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.

13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St.,
Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework,
Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

J. S. WESBY & SONS,

BOOK * BINDING

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

387 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES

at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET.

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

Ladies' Shirt Waists at Richard Healy's

I have received from one of the largest manufacturing houses in the United States

OVER SEVEN HUNDRED LADIES' SHIRT WAISTS

In Exclusive Patterns, and

RANGING IN PRICES FROM 50 CENTS TO $2.50

This is by far the largest stock shown by any house in Worcester, and our prices we guarantee less than wholesale prices.

RICHARD HEALY, 512 Main Street.

PENSIONS! * PENSIONS!

THE DISABILITY BILL IS A LAW. Soldiers Disabled Since the War are Entitled. Dependent widows and parents now dependent whose sons die from the effects of army service are included. If you wish your claim speedily and successfully prosecuted, address JAMES TANNER, Late Commissioner of Pensions, Washington, D. C.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the

ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,
92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always
be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

Norcross House, Monument Beach, MASSACHUSETTS.

Open from June 1st to October 1st, 1891. For terms and descriptive catalogue address 10 East Worcester Street, Worcester, Mass., or Norcross House during the season. This is a first-class temperance, family house.
J. A. NORCROSS, Prop. E. A. HOLBROOK, Mgr.
W. L. DAVIS, Clerk.

Household.

To separate the yolks and whites of eggs, break the shell on the edge of a dish, then pass the yolk several times quickly from one half-shell to the other, letting the white fall to the dish; in this way the yolk will remain unbroken in the shell. When eggs are to be beaten separately, beat the yolks until creamy and light colored, and the whites until dry or so that they will not fall from the bowl if it is turned upside down.

The inside of a range, including the oven flues, ought to be cleaned by the kitchen maid regularly once a month. Do not employ a man to do this work, as it is something that should not be neglected for five or six months as it generally is. If done once a month, the soot in oven flues being raked out into a newspaper, held so as to prevent the cloud of dust flying out into the room, there is no hardship in this work.

Mildew may be removed by rubbing common yellow soap upon it, then salt and starch over that; rub all in well and lay in the bright sunshine.

Tooth-ache can be generally cured immediately by putting a small piece of cotton, saturated with strong ammonia, into the hollow of the affected tooth.

Late in the season when turnips, parsnips, carrots etc., begin to lose their sweetness, they may be greatly improved by adding a teaspoonful or two of sugar to the water they are boiled in.

Fish should always be perfectly fresh when cooked, says an exchange. To select a fresh one observe the eyes; if they have a bright, life-like appearance the fish is fresh; if on the contrary, the eyes are sunken and dark colored and have lost their brilliancy, they are certainly stale. Some judge by the redness of the gills, but they are sometimes colored to deceive customers.

Ammonia is a most useful household article. For washing windows, brushes and for performing many other services it becomes almost indispensable to the careful housekeeper.

The spice poultice is a growing favorite in the sick room. It is pleasant to use and easily made. Mix together dry, one heaping teaspoonful each of ground ginger, cinnamon cloves and flour. Moisten with hot water until of proper consistency to spread. Double and heat a piece of old cotton, spread the plaster on it and cover with cheese cloth; When cold, moisten with brandy or whiskey and reheat.

Worcester Coal Company, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

THE CRITERION Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.

231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SHREWSBURY ST.
J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

We have the Finest Line of

SINGLE and DOUBLE

CARRIAGES!

to be found in the city. Our Prices are Low considering the quality of our Stock. If you want a Stylish and Durable Carriage it will pay you to give us a call.

J. W. SARGENT & SON,

34, 36 and 38 Waldo St.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!

It saves Time,
Labor and Fuel,
(two-thirds cent
per hr. for fuel.)

Manufacturers
Guarantee every Iron.

TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, Mfg. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,

Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, *

NO. 156 MAIN STREET,
H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

FURNITURE AND CARPETS,

355 Main Street, Worcester.

Parlor Desks.

A little gem for $15.

Library Desks.

From $15 upwards.

Roll Top Office Desks.

Size 4 ft. 6 in., for only $40.

This is a first-class Desk.

Complete House Furnishings

in Moderate and High-Priced Goods at Reasonable Prices.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,

Furniture and Carpet Dealers,

355 MAIN STREET. 355

Goods sold on four months' time at cash prices.

Good to Eat.

A witty sister recently said she had heard many sermons in praise of Mary and no good word spoken about Martha. But she noticed the preachers in going around were fond of going to the houses where Martha gave them good suppers.—Western Recorder.

Brown Bread.

Nice brown bread is made by using the like proportion of yeast, and making the batter with quite warm water. Use one-third unsifted Graham and two thirds of fine flour, or half sifted Graham and half fine flour, adding a little salt and sugar. Make the batter of such consistency that a tablespoon will stand upright in the center. Put it in the baking pans, and set them in a moderately warm oven at night, and if just the right temperature is maintained, they will be ready to bake in the morning. The proper temperature can be secured with a little practice. The loaves should rise double in size.

Quick or Batter Bread.

For one half loaf dissolve a quarter of a yeast cake in warm water, and with new milk a batter with fine flour and a little salt, so stiff as to hold upright a tablespoon in the center.

Let it rise once very light indeed, then bake thoroughly. This is very nice when fresh, and can be eaten by dyspeptics when other leavened bread is irritating and harmful.

S. E. W.

Hermit Cakes.

One-half cup of butter, one and one-half cups of sugar, one cup of currants, three eggs, one teaspoon of all kinds of spices, one-teaspoon of soda dissolved in a tablespoon of water, flour enough to roll. Roll thin and cut with a cookie cutter. Keep in a well covered jar.

Apple Custard Pie.

Two raw apples, one cup sugar, one salt-spoon cinnamon, two eggs, one cup of sweet milk. Choose ripe mild apples, scrape to a pulp with a silver knife. Mix with the sugar and spice, add the beaten eggs and milk. Bake in one crust.

Preserved Fresh Figs.

Select the fruit when fully ripe, though not soft, pick them carefully that they may not be broken. Pour boiling water over them, and let them simmer for five minutes. Preserve them as other fruits.

Orange Salad.

Pare the oranges, divide into sections and remove the seeds without marring the appearance of the fruit. Allow two heads of crisp lettuce to half a dozen of fine large oranges. Lay two or three lettuce leaves on each plate and arrange upon them several sections of orange. Just before sending to the table dress with a mayonnaise dressing made of the yolk of one egg, best olive oil, lemon juice, salt and cayenne. Mustard and vinegar often used in the mayonnaise should be omitted in dressing this salad. Otherwise the dressing is put together according to the directions so often given in these columns for mayonnaise.

Sweet omelets are in favor for dessert, and those who are fond of them will enjoy one made of orange.

"I am tired" said the bicycle.

J. W. GREENE, P L U M B E R.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,

Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand,) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

Harness and Saddlery,

RELIABLE GOODS and LOWEST PRICES.

R. McALEER & CO.,

155 MAIN STREET.

PHOTOGRAPHER
*****

Children's Portraits
A Specialty

326 Main, op. Mechanics Hall

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,

* PRINTERS. *

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,

DEALER IN

Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

Books and Bookmen.

As one opens a volume of the International Cyclopedia he remarks a familiar look about the page and, if at all acquainted with books, he will exclaim, "Why this is John Alden's Library of Universal Knowledge." Investigation, however, will show him wherein the later book has grown from the foundation. Dodd, Mead & Co., upon coming into possession of the plates employed a competent corps of proof readers who went through them, line by line, striking out errors of fact, and typographical errors, until they had made several thousand corrections. More than ten thousand additions were made to articles bringing them to date. Several thousand entirely new articles were written, to say nothing of thousands of cross references which were added, 100 double page maps, 150 double page illustrations, in all more than 25,000 additions and changes were made. The Library of Universal Knowledge, bears no more resemblance to the International Cyclopedia than a boy of fourteen years does to a full grown man. There is many a possessor of Alden's book who still rates it as the very best ever made. If then we consider the improvements made and the unparalleled low price at which it is held, what shall be said of the International? No one intending to purchase a Cyclopedia can afford to neglect the opportunity to examine this.

A Fair American by Pierres Sales. Rand, McNally & Co., Chicago and New York.

The young heroine of this story is taken abroad and with her mother is established in Paris. The plan is to find a titled husband and every item of their whole lives is centered on this idea. With the help of a broker they enter society and following his advice spend thousands for charity, entertainments, and whatever will bring them to the notice of the world. The man finally selected as a suitable partner has a title and also a sweetheart but to save his father's honor he consents to wed the American girl. However friends on his side come to the rescue and the fair American is without a lover. Her anger knows no bounds, but she at last weds a poor Prince of Italy, though her father has to give a large dowry to obtain the title.

The Cottage Hearth published by the Cottage Hearth Company, Boston. Price $1.50. This number has a deal of reading matter, and such a variety of subjects that all may be satisfied. The continued story is ended, there are short stories, two pages of music, many poems, a fine paper on camping out, needlework, recipes, and illustrations on nearly every page. Taken as a whole it is one of the best household magazines, for the price, that comes to our table.

St. Nicholas, conducted by Mary Mapes Dodge, published by the Century Co., New York. The sweetest of poems accompanies the frontispiece. The continued story of Toby Trafford has three chapters and leaves one wishing there were a fourth. A fine paper on wild flowers by John Burroughs is fully illustrated. "The Boy Settlers" is ended and, as with so many of these stories, we wish the boys would settle again. The short stories are unusually good. "Being Responsible for Toffy," "Why the Bees Make Honey," an elephant story with comical pictures, and the swimming hole stories, fill the book with pleasure. "Chan Ok" progresses and leaves the men in the hands of the chief pirate. The department of Jack in the Pulpit and the Letter Box are full of interest, and there is the usual number of puzzles.

The Ladies Home Journal, Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia. The number opens with the continued story and both this and "A Golden Gossip" leave the reader anxiously expectant. The unknown wife of this number is Lady MacDonald. A long article on "What it is to be a Leper," one for the brides of June, and then all the variety of this magazine that comes to entertain its readers. There is hardly anything one can wish for that is not taken up and discussed, and by good writers who present each subject in the most attractive way. Several special editors are to be added to the already large corps. It seems to be the idea to have an editor for each department, and as new departments are added a suitable editor is sought for.

Christian Work, by leading churchmen. The National Tribune, Washington, D. C., the great national weekly for the home and fire-side, will shortly begin the publication of a highly interesting series of articles on the condition, development and prospects of the great churches in this country, by the leading men of the several churches. The articles and their contributors are:

Roman Catholic Church, Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop of Baltimore; Methodist Episcopal Church, Bishop John P. Newman; Protestant Episcopal Church, Right Reverend Leighton Coleman, S. T. D., LL. D., Bishop of Delaware; Presbyterian Church, Rev. Dr. H. M. McCracken, Chancellor of the University of the City of New York; Unitarian Church, Rev. Edward Everett Hale, the distinguished author; Evangelical Lutheran Church, Prof. E. J. Wolff, of the Gettysburg Seminary; Congregational Church, Rev. J. N. Whiton, of the Trinity Church, New York City; Baptist Church, Robert S. McArthur, D. D., Pastor Calvary Baptist Church, New York City. Subscription price of paper $1 a year; three months containing these articles, 25 cents. Address, The National Tribune, Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Samuel I. Howard and her son, Frederick H. the well known baritone singer sailed last Saturday for Europe. Their stay will be in or near London, where Mr. Howard will devote himself to music.

Mrs. Howard's daughter, Helen, now Mrs. Dr. Campbell, of North Carolina reached home in time to say "Good-by" to her mother and brother. She will remain in the city several weeks. She was a High school girl, class of '81, and was graduated at Wellesley in 1885.

The business of the Compound Oxygen Company at 37 Pearl Street has so increased that additional rooms have been taken, including, now, Nos. 2, 3, 4, 5, in the Chapin Block, under the care and direction of V. M. Simons, medical actuary.

At Rest.

Died, in this city, May 24th, after a lingering illness, borne with exemplary patience and resignation, Mrs. Hannah M., wife of Andrew S. Wilson. Her remains were taken to Killingly, Conn., for burial.

Gentleman, we have ready for you two tempting offerings in Negligee Shirts, a high grade and a low grade. The first comprises Shirts made of Mohair, Silk and Wool fabrics, Twilled Flannel, etc., the very finest goods that can possibly be produced, and sold in this city today at from $2.50 to $4 each; we offer the entire lot at $1.98, your choice. The second offering is a Domet Shirt at 50c, that is sold elsewhere for no less than 75c. Gentlemen, look at them.

EDW. L. SMITH & CO.,

401-403 Main Street,

CORNER MECHANIC, WALKER BUILDING

BARNARD, SUMNER & CO.

Lower prices rule everywhere and in every department.

All wool Albatross, one pretty pattern at the medium dress Section, 25c now.

American Chailies do not, as yet, command the higher prices of those imported, although in some respects they are rapidly approaching the excellence of their foreign Sisters.

The very best qualities of American Chailies can be had for 17c a yard, and a great many very charming patterns can be had in them.

There are a great many Chailies of less quality: some of them can be had here for 6 1-4c a yard, and really they will surprise you, as they do us, that so much can be given for so little.

It seemed funny to see a great pile of Mosquito Netting, in all the regular shades, on the Counters.

Well, it is about time to think about these little persistent friends, and when you think about them, you might as well prepare for them.

The Netting, to keep them out of your homes, cost 40c a piece.

Black Surahs, 50c!

Black Surahs, 75c!!

But black Surahs at $1.00 a yard are exactly right, while the quality that we have sold year after year for $1.25 is the old standard grade that ladies come for, year after year, and this is the quality that never disappoints you.

Of course we have qualities at $1.37 and $1.50, but we do some very tall talking, and mean every word, in praise of our black Surahs at $1.25.

BARNARD, SUMNER & CO.

WE ARE THE SOLE AGENTS

FOR THE FOLLOWING MAKES OF

STANDARD Safety Bicycles :

COLUMBIAS	-	-	-	$135 00
VICTORS	-	-	-	135 00
HARTFORDS	-	-	-	100 00
DIAMONDS	-	-	-	85 00

Each guaranteed to be of the BEST STEEL TUBING and DROP FORGINGS, and ALL OF FINEST BALL BEARINGS, and made for Ladies and Children. "We can prove it." Come in and see for yourself at

NO. 507 MAIN STREET, Worcester

HOLLAND & HAVENER,

Old Reliable Cycle House.

The Bay State Bicycle Club.

[Continued from page 290.]

Harry B. Ingraham is now serving his second term as vice-president of the club. He joined the club very soon after it was formed and has been one of its most faithful members. He was elected first lieutenant soon after becoming a member and was re-elected for a second term but resigned in about six months on account of increasing business cares. He is one of the oldest bicycle riders in the city and the high wheel is still his favorite. Mr. Ingraham is twenty-six years old.

B. A. Lemont was one of the first admitted to the club after its organization. In September, 1888, on the resignation of E. E. Eames as secretary and treasurer, he was elected to these offices and has held them since. When the offices of secretary and treasurer are combined and given to one person it makes a large amount of work for him particularly when the club does as large a business as the Bay State Club has. A large share of the management of the tournaments must necessarily devolve upon this official and the degree of faithfulness and care with which he performs his work decides to a certain extent the success of the tournament. Consequently as the club's tournaments have all been a success, some of the credit must belong to Mr. Lemont. He has fulfilled the duties of his office faithfully and well, his repeated re-election testifying to the confidence the members have in him. Mr. Lemont represents this county on the State Board, Massachusetts Division, L. A. W. He is twenty-nine years old.

The following is a complete list of the present members of the club:

Frank Adams	G. W. Adams
L. M. Alexander	R. O. Allen
B. A. Barber	C. F. Brown
C. E. Butler	C. H. Clarkin
A. C. Copeland	A. G. Cook
C. H. Curtis	G. S. Dickinson
J. G. Dudley	E. E. Eames
Dr. W. H. Emery	F. W. Ford
W. H. Fitch	P. K. Freeman
C. F. Goddard	H. K. Gardiner
L. W. Gates	L. C. Havener
Lincoln Holland	E. D. Hoyt
F. W. Hubbard	G. W. Hubbard
H. B. Ingraham	F. I. Johnson
R. Johnson	John Kenworthy
T. J. Kern	A. O. Knight
W. Krafve	B. A. Lemont
B. Livermore	John Lowe
W. A. March	G. S. McCulley
H. F. McIntire	D. J. McMullen
W. T. Mitchell	E. H. Moulton
J. W. Murphy	H. L. Pease
J. J. Phelan	F. S. Pierce
Geo. C. Rice	Wm. C. Rice
C. Robnson	E. M. Santon
H. Scherve	F. A. Skinner
E. P. Snell	A. P. Snow
H. H. Spiers	R. M. Spiers
W. C. Stevens	J. F. Thompson
E. W. Tuttle	Jos. S. Walker
J. H. Watson	M. A. Wheeler
L. A. Whittemore	James Wilson, Jr.
A. Woodcock	Chas. A. Worcester
Herbert Worcester	H. C. Young.

Miss Helen DeForest Marshall, daughter of the Rev. Dr. B. D. Marshall, has recently received a prize scholarship from Cowles' Art School of Boston where she is nearing the end of four years of study. This is the second time that her work has been thus rewarded. Miss M. is a graduate of our High School, Class of '82, and has always manifested a rare aptitude for Art. Her most recent study has been from life models. It is her intention to open a studio in this city next Fall.

The Boston Store has just added to its attraction a down stairs department where may be found a great variety of goods. These are classed under several different heads, viz., Japanese, Pictures and frames, Bric-a-brac, Trunks and Satchels, Kitchen, Hammock's and Fine Crockery. Every available inch has been seized and from the front sidewalk to the very rear of the great building the goods are displayed. An incident in this bewildering array of beautiful articles is the picture painted by G. W. Platt of Chicago. The first remark of the observer will be, "Well, the outside of a barn door is a queer material to paint a picture on," but as he nears and finds that the door as well as the symbols of hunting are all in oil on canvass he takes time for admiration. Then he waits to see some new comer reach over and try to pick off the paper label of the artist; but that is painted too. It's fun to watch the crowd. Drop in and look at Platt's Masterpiece.

To the already immense stock of goods in the Boston Store, the proprietors have just added the ladies underwear outfit held by Mr. W. H. Burns. The latter turns the whole lot over to the Boston Store and will close his own retail business. This is one of the changes wrought by the new management.

A man and woman can never thoroughly hate each other unless they have first been in love.

L. M. ALEXANDER,

(FORMERLY WITH HILL & TOLMAN.)

DEALER * IN * BICYCLES * AND * SAFETIES

Special Agents for Wm. Read & Sons, Gormully & Jeffrey M'fg Co., Eagle Bicycle Co., W. W. Stall, A. O. Verry, Coventry Machinist Co.

LARGEST LINE OF CYCLES IN THE CITY

SEND FOR CATALOGUE.

MACHINES SOLD ON EASY PAYMENTS

Repairs of all kinds a specialty. Brazing, Nickeling and Enameling done at short notice.

We are not the fortunate possessor of the "Only Mechanics" on repairing, but we are employing THREE first class machinists on repairs and we "get there" just the same.

Riding School.

ROOMS OPEN EVENINGS.

ALL WORK WARRANTED AND SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

L. M. ALEXANDER,

Halls' Block.

195 Front Street, Worcester, Mass.

The Week.

CITY.

- May 22—Worcester County Teachers Association, meets in High School Building.
Prof. Anderson's People's Concerts very successful, musically considered.
- 23—High School Boys resume field day sports on the Agricultural Grounds.
Speaker Barrett of Boston visits Worcester. He wants to be governor.
- 24—Mrs. Maria Barber, wife of A. H. Hammond dies at her home, 9 Claremont St.
Drs. Almon Gunnison and Archibald McCullagh address the Union Veterans in their respective churches.
- 25—Clark W. Hatch acquitted.
O. A. Kelley's barn at Webster Square, burned.
Fair for benefit of French Orphanage opens at Mechanics Hall.
John W. Jenkins of Quinsigamond dies, 55 years.
- 26—Wm. H. Maynard dies at 44 William St. 48 years.
First Annual Banquet of the Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium Club.
Wm. E. Rich elected President of the Washburn & Moen Co.
- 27—Ben T. Hammond's pupils give fiftieth recital in Horticultural Hall.
E. A. Goodnow offers $5,000 more to the Y. W. C. A. A good friend.
Mrs. A. H. Hammond buried from her late home, Rev. Dr. Mears officiating.
- 28—Anniversary Y. W. C. A.
Contract for Odd Fellows Home signed.
- COUNTY.
- 22—Grafton singers preparing to render the cantata, "Ruth, the Moabitess," Memorial Day.
- 23—Spencer will use license money to reduce taxes.
- 24—Levi Reed, one of Sterling's oldest citizens dies, 92 years.
- 25—Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor celebrate Golden wedding in Rochdale.
- 26—Dr. A. C. Faden dies in Sutton, 35 years.
Post office in Winchendon robbed.
- 28—E. A. Goodnow purchases a lot in Princeton, which he intends to present to that town for public park.
Westboro wants sewer put in by local labor.
- COMMONWEALTH.
- 22—House finally defeats the Salary Grab bill.
- 23—Mrs. L. A. Scott and child drowned in Winchendon.
Northampton presented with a fine Music Hall by H. R. Lyman. Cost $100,000.
- 24—An ex-Rebel officer, now a minister in Boston, addresses Union Veterans, in Hingham.
Dr. Lorimer cheered for loyal sentiments in Tremont Temple.
- 15—It would seem that the evidence warrants the belief that Miles Standish's grave in Duxbury has been found.

Pilgrim Society holds annual meeting in Plymouth.

Isaac Swan, an old Boston school master dies in Stoughton, 76 years.

26—Sixty-sixth annual convention of the American Unitarian Association convenes in Boston.

Cashier Spaulding of the Ayer bank sentenced to five years in jail.

Capt. Cornelius Lovell dies in East Boston, 86 years. When a boy he saved Charlotte Cushman from drowning.

27—Very successful inter-collegiate sports at Springfield.

At Fall River twenty employers threaten dismissal if employe's leave to parade Memorial Day.

A new redistricting bill proposed, but it meets less favor than the first one.

28—Attempts to adjust difficulties of the Milford granite cutters.

NATION.

22—Secretary Blaine still ill. Should he resign, Senator Edmunds may succeed him.

23—Michigan Diocese votes in favor of Bishop Brooks.

24—A duel fought in Chicago and one party was actually hurt. Southern notions are working Northward.

25—Supreme Court decides, congressional act concerning original package constitutional. Representative Houk of Tennessee accidentally poisoned.

26—Rhode Island inaugurates Governor N. W. Ladd.

Rear Admiral Carter dies in Washington.

27—The Governor of Michigan is now ashamed that he vetoed the bill appropriating money to further the G. A. R. National Encampment in Detroit and offers to subscribe, personally, liberally. This will not save his reputation.

Maryland Diocese votes for Phillips Brooks.

28—Judge S. M. Breckenridge died of apoplexy while speaking at the Presbyterian assembly in St. Louis.

Organization of the American University in Washington.

WORLD.

22—Baron Hirsch will colonize some of the persecuted Russian Jews in Uruguay.

Mr. Gladstone, convalescent, returns to Hawarden.

23—The Czar mad because the managers of the Moscow Fair borrow money of the Jews.

A waterspout forms in the Champs d' Elysses, Paris, sweeps through the Place de la Concorde and bursts in the gardens of the Tuileries, spreading wide desolation.

24—Ayr, Scotland, to have a statue of Burns.
Lord Romilly and two servants suffocated in London.

25—Stage drivers in Paris go on a strike.

26—Stage drivers of Paris, rioting.
Chinese paying Europeans and Americans off in their own intolerant coin. Missions looted and burned.

27—The British Museum secures a copy of a

Thibetan Cyclopedia. 225 volumes, each two feet long and six inches thick.

Paris drivers strike ended.

28—French tariff bill passed.

Memorial Day Speakers in Worcester County Towns.

Ashburnham, C. C. Coffin, Boston; Athol, Wm. H. Bartlett, Worcester; Barre, Capt. J. G. B. Adams, Lynn; Blackstone, A. V. Newton, Worcester; Brookfield, Rev. L. W. Mason, Brookfield; East Brookfield, Rev. C. L. Holt, East Brookfield; Charlton, John C. Woodbury, Worcester; Clinton, Rev. Wm. A. Mick, Boston; Douglas, George S. Evans, Cambridge; Fitchburg, Ex-Gov. J. Q. A. Brackett, Somerville; Gardner, James Burrows, Boston; Grafton, Rev. Charles H. Pendleton, Worcester; Hardwick, Capt. A. A. White, Worcester; Holden, Gen'l A. B. R. Sprague, Worcester; Hubbardston, Rev. W. C. Litchfield, Gardner; Leominster, Rev. Chas. F. Rice, Leominster; Milford, H. W. Lull, Quincy; Millbury, Rev. Jos. F. Lovering, Boston; Northborough, Rev. Geo. S. Ball, Upton; Northbridge, Public Schools; North Brookfield, Rev. Chas. L. Goodell, Boston; Oxford, Maj. Wm. T. Harlow, Worcester; Paxton, E. P. Kimball, Worcester; Princeton, Col. W. S. B. Hopkins, Worcester; Rutland, Dr. Ambrose Eames, Berlin; Shrewsbury, Dr. I. H. Stearns, Lynn; Southborough, H. C. Mulligan, Natick; Southbridge, Capt. A. M. Dudley, Salem; Spencer, Capt. E. W. Smith, Lynn; Sterling, Gen'l J. W. Kimball, Fitchburg; Sturbridge, Hon. Samuel J. Elder, Boston; Sutton, Rev. Mr. Briggs, East Douglas; Templeton, Prof. R. C. Condon, Everett; Upton, Henry E. Ruggles, Franklin; Uxbridge, N. W. Kennedy, Putnam, Conn.; Webster, Capt. A. M. Dudley, Salem; Winchendon, A. L. Kneeland, Worcester; Worcester, John D. Billings, Cambridge. At the Monument, Hon. Joseph H. Walker.

The sermons of Drs. Gunnison and McCullach, last Sunday, to G. A. R. and Union Veteran Legion men were particularly eloquent and valuable. At the Universalist church, great pains had been taken to array the edifice for the reception of the Veterans. A very large number of old soldiers and their friends assembled to hear the words of the clergyman and the music specially adapted to the occasion.

WORCESTER SPEAKERS AWAY FROM HOME.

Wm. H. Bartlett, Athol, Wm. T. Harlow, Oxford, W. S. B. Hopkins, Princeton, E. P. Kimball, Paxton, A. L. Kneeland, Winchendon, A. V. Newton, Attleboro and Blackstone, Rev. Chas. H. Pendleton, Grafton, Alfred S. Roe, Mansfield, Pa., A. B. R. Sprague, Holden, A. A. White, Hardwick, John C. Woodbury, Charlton.

At the Winslow Tennis Club grounds today a preliminary tournament for members will be held. There will be several of these during the summer and in the latter part of August there will be a grand final tournament. The club is now in a very prosperous condition.

It is expected that Prof. T. E. N. Eaton and family will take their leave of Worcester next Tuesday, for their far away home in California. Though we shall not see them we will not forget.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
 WORCESTER, SS.
 PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, Creditors, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of CHARLES P. DAKIN, late of Worcester, in said county, deceased, intestate: Greeting.

Upon the Petition of Frederick E. Dakin of said Worcester, you are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the third Tuesday of June next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased should not be granted to said petitioner.

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester the last publication to be two days, at least, before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioners, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-first day of May in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
 WORCESTER, SS.
 PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, Creditors, and all other Persons interested in the estate of EMMA S. BURPEE, late of Sterling, in said County, deceased, intestate: Greeting.

Upon the Petition of Albert M. Tyler, of said Sterling, you are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the third Tuesday of June next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased should not be granted to said petitioner, without the giving of surety or sureties on her official bond pursuant to the statute.

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively, in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester, the last publication to be two days, at least, before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioner, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-first day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
 WORCESTER, SS.
 PROBATE COURT.

To all persons interested in the estate of SARAH M. COLBURN, late of Sterling, in said County, deceased, testate:

You are cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the first Tuesday of June next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why the first and final account rendered by Angie A. Kilburn, the Executrix of her administration of said estate, and now on file at this office, should not be allowed.

And the said accountant is ordered to serve this citation, by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively, in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester, the last publication to be two days, at least before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or to their legal representatives known to the petitioner seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twelfth day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

South End Notes.

Mr. Frank Keith, of the class of '90 W. P. I. has just executed a fine group photograph of his class. The photograph shows good taste in arrangement.

The foundations for the new All Souls Church, corner of Norwood and Woodland streets, are completed and work upon the church has been begun.

Mr. William T. Osland, an employee at the Grove street mills, living at 55 Piedmont street went to the "lake" with a friend last week fishing. They reported on their return the following catch,—189 perch, 24 pickerel, 4 kivers and 30 pout.

Prof. Warren P. Lombard of Clark University, 17 Hammond street, gave a reception to his friends Wednesday eve, May 27th, from 7 to 10.30 P. M. Many of the docents and students from the University were present and a most enjoyable time was had.

The last meeting of the Ladies Whist Club was held with Mrs. W. L. Gulliver, 20 Maywood Street. The club has had a membership of sixteen and have held meetings once in two weeks, during the winter.

The pupils of Woodland street school have adopted a badge of light green ribbon, having the letters "W. S. S. 1891," as a souvenir of their last year in the grammar school. The idea is not a new one, the same thing having been used by the class of '88 at the same school. Messrs. H. D. Temple and G. T. Woodward were the instigators.

Miss Sadie P. Waite goes to Boston to-day (Saturday May 30) to bid farewell to friends about to leave for Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. L. Edwards, 14 King street, entertained a party of Harvard students at their home last Saturday evening.

Mr. E. H. Wood has recently moved into his new house at the corner of King and Queen streets. The house has been entirely refurnished.

Miss Georgie Coombs, 32 Richards street, left Wednesday afternoon for a trip to Illinois, to be absent several weeks.

The South End Whist Club were pleasantly entertained at the Hotel Adams, Tuesday evening by Miss Abbie S. Davis.

Rev. Mr. A. Z. Conrad's brother, Rev. Wm. O. is stopping with him at his home corner of Main and Benefit streets.

Miss Grace Wood a senior at the W. H. S. takes her entrance examinations to Smith College, the second week in June.

The store 824 Main street, formerly occupied by Mr. William Heald as a candy store, has been leased to a party of Chinamen who open a laundry in the near future.

At the meeting of the Crescent Tennis club held at 14 Oak avenue Monday evening, the name of Wilton W. Dadmun was dropped and the resignation of L. C. Havener was accepted. In their place, Messrs. H. A. Billings and Wm. H. Parker were elected to membership. The club is in a prosperous condition and proposes to hold numerous tournaments during the season.

The Winslow Tennis Club, occupying grounds on Pleasant street will hold an opening Memorial Day, from 9 to 12 A. M.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. S. Edwards will spend the summer in the Bermuda's, where Mr. Edwards intends to combine pleasure with study, he being a student at Clark University.

The Young Mens Bible Class connected with the Main street Baptist church, gave a musical entertainment in the chapel Tuesday evening May 27. Among the excellent numbers on the programme were a mandolin and guitar duet by Misses B. G. and M. E. Starbuck, a solo "The Dairy Maid" by Miss Elizabeth Parmelee, a solo "The cows are in the Corn" by Miss Minnie Guy and a solo "The Spinning Girl" by Mr. F. W. Cowan, followed by a grand chorus. After the entertainment, Messrs. Wm. Goodwin and O. K. Putnam supplied the "sweet-tooths" with candy. Ice cream was also on sale.

In last week's South End notes, Mr. Richard Healy was referred to as building a house at the corner of Woodland and Oberlin streets. This is wrong as Mr. Healy disposed of the lot several months since and the building is in other hands.

Memorial Day.

CITY OF WORCESTER, MASS.
 EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
 MAYOR'S OFFICE, MAY 1, 1891.

A proper reverence for the memory of those who gave their lives a willing sacrifice upon their country's altars requires our citizens to unite in the exercises of Memorial day. The ranks of those who survived the great conflict, who gave freedom to a race, and perpetuity to a nation, are yearly decreasing. Soon the last hero of the war will greet his former comrade in a lasting reunion.

The past achievements of the Grand Armies have enshrined their members in the nation's heart and glorified the name of our citizen soldiery. Let us, then, join with them in strewing honored graves with springtime flowers, and in renewing an allegiance to the land and flag our fathers and brothers preserve. Saturday, May 30, being a legal holiday, our citizens are requested to refrain from their usual vocations, and the business offices of the city will be closed. Any of our citizens who desire to commemorate the memory of those for whom this day has been set apart, are invited to meet with the past and present members of the city government at the City hall at 7.45 o'clock a.m., and proceed, under the escort of Post 10, G. A. R., to the soldiers' monument and participate in the services appropriate to the occasion. (Signed) FRANCIS A. HARRINGTON, Mayor.

HEADQUARTERS GEORGE H. WARD POST
 No. 10, DEPARTMENT OF MASSACHUSETTS,
 G. A. R. WORCESTER, Mass., May 21, 1891
 GENERAL ORDER NO. 1.

In compliance with general orders from national and department headquarters, and in accordance with rules and regulations of our order, Saturday, May 30, will be observed as Memorial day.

Comrades will assemble at these headquarters at 7 a. m. in full uniform of the post.

The Worcester Brass band, the City band and Johnson's Drum corps will report to the adjutant at G. A. R. hall at 7.30 a. m. The line will be formed at 7.45 and move at 8 o'clock, escorted by the Emmet Guards, the City guards and the Worcester Light Infantry, under command of Major E. R. Shunway, and proceed to the City hall, where they will receive the city government and invited guests and escort them to the Soldiers' Monument, where appropriate services will be held.

The address will be delivered by the Hon. Joseph H. Walker, after which the city government and invited guests will be escorted to the City hall, the column proceeding to Washburn hall, where comrades will be provided with flowers.

The first division, under escort of the militia companies, will proceed to Rural cemetery.

The second and third divisions, under the command of the senior and junior vice-commanders, will proceed to Hope, St. Johns and the French cemeteries at New Worcester, transportation being provided to Webster square and return. At the conclusion of the ceremonies at the different cemeteries, the several divisions will return to post headquarters, where a collation will be provided by the Womens Relief Corps.

Per order, C. H. Pinkham, Commander.
 Official, Charles E. Grant, Adjutant.

HEADQUARTERS GEO. H. WARD POST No. 10,
 DEPARTMENT OF MASSACHUSETTS, G. A. R.
 WORCESTER, Mass., May 21, 1891.
 SPECIAL ORDER NO. 3.

Comrades will assemble Sunday evening, May 31st, in the west anteroom of Mechanics Hall, at 7 p. m., in full post uniform, for the purpose of attending the post memorial services.

The address will be delivered by Comrade John D. Billings, past department commander of the department of Massachusetts.

During the services there will be presented a set of memorial volumes by friends of the post.

The music will be under the direction of B. T. Hammond, Esq.

Seats will be reserved for the Womens Relief corps and the Daughters and the Sons of Veterans, and they are earnestly invited to be present.

Every veteran in the city, and all soldiers, widows, and the public generally are invited to be present and join with us, that we may perpetuate the heroic deeds, the noble daring and self sacrifice of our honored dead, and pay a tribute of respect to their memories.

The members of the city government and invited guests are requested to meet in the north-east ante-room at 7.15 and to take seats on the platform during the exercises, which will commence at 7.30. Per order C. H. PINKHAM, Commander.

Official, CHARLES E. GRANT, Adjutant.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 28, 1891.
 SPECIAL ORDER NO. 4.

So much of Special Order No. 3 relating to the time and place of meeting of the Post Sunday evening, May 31st is hereby revoked.

Comrades will assemble Sunday evening, May 31st, in G. A. R. Hall at 6.30 in dark clothes, white gloves and G. A. R. badges for the purpose of attending the Post Memorial services in Mechanics Hall. The line will form at 7 p. m. and move at once.

Per Order C. H. PINKHAM, Commander.
 Official CHAS. E. GRANT, Adjutant.

Prof. Eaton of the Polytechnic Institute was presented with sets of Bancroft's and Parkman's works by the Junior class.

THE INTERNATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA.

DODD, MEAD & CO., Publishers, New York.

THE INTERNATIONAL - - - - - CYCLOPEDIA

IS THE

Latest and Best for READY REFERENCE.

*****

Is not this your opportunity ?

Is your Cyclopaedia not used because its articles are too long and too technical? Then write for our exchange price.

Is your Cyclopaedia of little value because its articles are too brief? Then write for our exchange price.

Is your Cyclopaedia so old that its information is no longer satisfactory? Then buy INTERNATIONAL.

Are you without a Cyclopaedia, and looking for the latest, fullest, best? Then buy INTERNATIONAL.

SOLD FOR CASH OR ON EASY PAYMENTS. THE WHOLE SET DELIVERED AT ONCE in either case, freight charges prepaid

B. A. FOWLER & CO., NEW ENGLAND AGENTS, 36 BROMFIELD ST., BOSTON.

Mention this paper.

The Pale Spring Days, so few and Sweet.

Seeing the people sauntering along the streets, wandering out on the highways, over some quiet little footpath, through the green fields and pastures, going really, they could scarcely tell where, only as nature is calling them out under her blue skies; is it not significant how little it takes to make one contented; to bring heaven down so close, as seemingly to lie all about us? With nothing more definite than this simple sense of existence these take their Sunday walk, happy seemingly, for what they are and for what they have, making no comparison between themselves and their more aspiring, and perhaps more discontented neighbors. What a tonic there is in the air, now that the old world is getting green again; so old and yet so new, serene and beautiful, blushing each returning spring as any maiden. Her red buds, her pink and her green, are so rich in the promise of what is to be, they reassure us, and we are confident of our own high destiny. Is there, then, any such real distinction between the high and the low born as society claims, since all God's children can have satisfactions and inspirations from these commonest events, these every day perceptions?

From a Sunday, spent more or less in this wild way, breathed upon by this soft south wind, sung to by the wood thrush and the blue bird and the gurgling brooks, does one not come back to a new week's work, with the song still singing in his heart, above all the dull sounds of life's ponderous machinery? Does one not come back, with new thoughts, new loves, for this companionship with nature? We went out with empty hands, but we have returned with a bunch of violets or the lovely arbutus, something that betrays the friendship we made with sweet Dame Nature and will she disappoint us? Nay, the spring and the summer days shall be full of her gifts; of flowers and fruits, pictures in sky and waters, painted on the hillside and along the river banks; more luxuriously she scatters them, than we, in our greatest ecstasy can grasp. Spring time and summer; what a feast there shall be for all; a surprise as sweet as if this were our first summer, and these, the first song birds we had ever heard; and yet we have our in-door feasts as well, in splendid diversity.

Let us enter the low Moorish portal of our fine new library. Almost it seems as if we might see inwrought in its delicate stone tracery, "For the healing of the soul," the same mystic device that was inscribed on the archway of that royal Egyptian palace, the world's most ancient library. For, in life there is always this or that extreme. One takes on dolefully for the solitude that is thrust upon him, or another perhaps, that he has not enough retirement. If, however, the world is too much with us, here is the desired healing for the soul in the longed for seclusion; or, if one be without friends, he may enter and find the sweetest and most trusted companions, the world's greatest and best; he may sit with kings and queens in high places. Just the closing of the door behind us and we are shut out from the bustling business world, that crowds even to its steps.

The remedial agency is here, all sufficient and various. Today we may be despondent and may need a tonic; at another time an opiate, that shall dull the edge of some mental twinge or some physical ill. Yet, there shall be never a day but that shall yield or have a new remedy in this literary soulful pharmacopia.

Whether the world goes well with us or no, our soul shall here be at peace with itself and its surroundings; we shall sit as tenderly with our book as the lover with his bride. This becomes our bridal chamber and for the time being the world is forgotten, care sits so lightly upon us. Who of us that has this luxury, so free and unstinted, but feels grateful for those who have done such toilsome thinking for us and reverence for the high moral character of those who have raised for us such literary way marks. Thus our library becomes our health resort. We rejuvenate by being freed from the fretting cares, with which the world is driven, and more it becomes our chapel of devotions to the beautiful. Just now, another occasion for gratitude comes up by the recent munificent gift of a site and funds, for an art gallery.

Another auspicious day it surely will be when St Wulstan Society as a trustee for the city of Worcester, shall be able, through this noble gift to offer its citizens the advantages of art study. Its recent display of home portraiture has been well appreciated, as attested by the numbers who have availed themselves of the privilege of seeing them. There may have been few who understood the true requisites to a fine portrait or who knew the distinctions between the "broad style" and the "Pre-Raphaelite system," yet who could readily tell the likeness, character and countenance of the individual through the general effect produced by the artist, rather than by exact expression of the peculiarities of the several parts. Among these family groups or individual portraits one found pleasant and familiar faces of old friends. Here and there we loitered for an exchange of greetings, but 'tis just the old story, "Dead long ago," or again:

"There my ingle nook above,
See the lady of my love
With her dainty sandalled feet,
Limp, high-waisted gown, and sweet
Curling hair."

Blessed is it not, the art that can so immortalize our loved ones. Color so deathless, not they, but we ourselves seem almost to be the shadows. As portraits of our citizens, they were of special interest; as such, they needed no added epitaph or eulogistic inscription as "Oh rare Ben Johnson," to convey an idea of the genius, acquirements or pursuits which have rendered the person worth knowing, for were not their virtues graven in our hearts? Any such likeness is a noble gift to the world and to posterity.

Thanks to St. Wulstan Society, we have yet another fund of information and entertainment in store when they shall kindly make their display of "engraved Portraiture," for "The love of art doth grow by what it feeds on."

May, 1891.

M. W. W.

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place before Memorial Day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of

Fine Monumental Work,

131 Central Street, near Summer.

384 MAIN STREET 388

Bigelow & Longley

are prepared to show all the Latest Novelties in

CUSTOM AND READY-MADE

*CLOTHING***

MEN'S, YOUTHS', BOYS' or CHILDREN.

We can give you a SPRING OVERCOAT from $5 to $25, in all the latest shades, made up with silk face and silk sleeve linings.

CHEVIOT SUITS

in blue or black, cut single or double-breasted. Prices from $8 to $25. Also a fine assortment of

Blue and Black Serges,

$15 $15 PER SUIT $15 $15

Indigo Blue Flannel and Yacht Cloth Suits,

we can give you a single or double-breasted, at prices from $6 to $15, and GUARANTEE THE COLOR. An elegant line of light and dark colored

Scotches and Fancy Cassimeres,

from $6 to $25. The best assortment of light colored TROUSERS we have ever shown, from $3 to $7. FANCY VESTS—Marseilles and Duck. Also a lot of dark Fancy Cassimeres and Silks, from 75c. to $4.

Bigelow & Longley

A Father in Israel.

In Oxford, May 16, Simeon B. Marsh, aged 85 years, 9 months, 20 days

Certainly no one will object to this title being given to Bro. Simeon Marsh, for the reason that for sixty years and upwards he has been endeavoring to bear the cross of Christ. To say that he has had no fault or was a perfect man would be to claim he was not human, yet none who have watched his life, listened to his conversation, or heard him pray will be willing to say that he was not nor did not endeavor to ever manifest the principles of the religion which he professed.

Father Marsh, very early in the history of Grace Church, with his beloved wife connected themselves with that society while they worshiped in Washburn Hall and entered with all his energies into the spirit of aggressive work which characterizes this society. Bro. Marsh was one of the society's first official members and his words of counsel, of cheer, of expression were always received with reverence by those who had had less experience in the art of saving souls and leading men to accept the promises which the Heavenly Father has so freely spoken. This expression "Heavenly Father" was a favorite one of his. Who that have listened to his testimonies, and looked upon his countenance as it would light up with that peculiar joyous expression as he told his Christian experience ever felt to doubt the genuineness of the same or that Father Marsh had not at the "Fountain been drinking," for he had an assurance of his faith. This often led him in the social meetings to speak some times at great length, yet none ever wished him less moments. Bro. Marsh loved to repeat the 1st Psalm or verses from the 14th of John and possessing a strong voice, while not loud, yet with its mellow notes you could see that the whole congregation was hanging upon the word, or listening attentively that not a sentence be lost, while he repeated the above, or, as he would sometimes do, close his remarks by singing "Rock of Ages," "Guide me, O, Thou Great Jehovah," "Jesus, Lover of my Soul" or this "There is a wideness in God's Mercy."

Many a time as these lines have been sung by this pilgrim have there been tearful eyes and moist cheeks in the congregation.

Truly a good man has fallen. Truly a Father in Israel has gone to his reward. "His work is ended, and his deeds they do follow him."

The death of Sister Marsh, which occurred soon after her coming among us, was a severe blow to him. This was the first death in the history of the Grace church.

Father Marsh was buried from Grace church on Wednesday at 1 30 p. m., mourned by a large circle of friends.

The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Wright, pastor of the Methodist church in Spencer, where Bro. M. had lived for the last few years, assisted by the Rev. W. T. Worth and by the Rev. Mr. Coon, Pastor of the Methodist church in Oxford, Mass., where a portion of his family reside. C. H. C.

Comrade C. M. Smith of Post 10 has a part of his Prison Escape Experience printed in the New York Semi-Weekly Tribune as one of the latter's Prize War Narratives. It makes a very interesting story.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

EDWARD B. CLAPP,

Fashionable Hat,

Fine Furnishing,

Athletic House,

365 Main St., Worcester.

C. REBOLI,

Confectioner * and * Caterer,

6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

W. A. ENGLAND,

DEALER IN

FINE WATCHES,

CLOCKS, JEWELRY

& OPTICAL GOODS.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

394 Main Street.

Worcester Dress

Cutting School,

45 Pleasant St.,

For Designing, Cutting and Finishing Ladies' Gowns. Pupils are allowed to bring material and make a costume throughout. Linings Cut Free; also Dress making, Cutting and Basting. Open evenings. Agents taught free. Call for cards and circular.

Mrs. L. F. Walch.

DOGS.

Every owner or keeper of a dog of three months old or more shall annually cause it to be licensed in the office of the city clerk. Whoever keeps a dog contrary to the provisions of this chapter, shall forfeit fifteen dollars. Public Statutes, Chapter 102. All persons interested are requested to call at city clerk's office at once. Last year's numbers will not be reserved after June 1st. E. H. TOWNE, City Clerk.

WE STARTED FROM THE SCRATCH AND ARE STILL AHEAD!

LEMONT & WHITTEMORE, * 39 Pearl Street.

SOLE AGENTS FOR

*
Lightest, Strongest and Best American Safety.

* *
Weight
* *
42 Lbs.
* *

ROVER!

The Original and Best English Safety, Solid, Cushion and Pneumatic Tires. Full Line of Medium Priced Safeties and Sundries. Fine 'Cycle Repairing a Specialty. See our Rover with Dunlop Pneumatic Tires. Prices $125. It leads the world!

THIRD GRAND 'CYCLING TOURNAMENT

OF THE

: BAY - STATE - BICYCLE - CLUB :

Agricultural Park, Saturday, MAY 30th, 1891.

Annual Spring Meet of Massachusetts Division, L. A. W.

ELEVEN SHORT AND EXCITING BICYCLE RACES,

Including three State Championships, two County Championships, and the annual contests for The Telegram and Lovell Medals. There will be races for both Solid and Pneumatic Tires. $1,000 in prizes, including Solid Gold and Silver Medals, Gold and Silver Watches, Silver Watches, Silver Water Pitchers, Diamond Rings, and others too numerous to mention, will be awarded the successful competitors.

We have engaged, as a SPECIAL ATTRACTION,

PROF. CARL MYERS, Who will give an exhibition of his new invention, THE SKY BICYCLE, or AIR SHIP

The greatest novelty of the 19th century. It rises in the air, it flies, it goes up and down, to right or left, it moves with speed and stops at will. The simplest machine in the country, but a marvel of power. Worked like a common bicycle. Balanced in the air, it moves as freely as a man can walk or ride, or a bird fly. Don't believe it till you see it, but come and see it exhibited by the inventor, the most noted and experienced aeronautical engineer of the age. IT WILL POSITIVELY APPEAR.

THE PARADE in the morning will be the largest ever witnessed at a State Meet. The track will be in the best possible condition. The track arrangements will be the same as those last year, which gave such excellent satisfaction. No tiresome long distance races will be run. No "loafing" will be allowed, and all the contests will be short, sharp and exciting. The fastest racing men of New England and New York are entered. Everything will be done on time, without waits between the different events.

Ladies may feel perfectly free to attend the Races without escort.

Band Concert at 1:30 P. M.

Races at 2:30 P. M.

ADMISSION - 50 Cts. | Grand Stand - 25 Cts. | Children, under 12 years, - 25 Cts.

Born, 1818.

GENERAL WILLIAM TECUMSEH SHERMAN.
BRAVE AND TRUE.

Died, 1891.

The Ware-Pratt Company

Invite attention to an extensive display of

Fine Clothing for Men, Boys and Children.

The Latest Fashions, Exclusive Styles from our own workshops, Honest Goods and the Lowest Prices, Grade and Quality considered.

Our Custom Department is teeming with the Newest styles, Colorings and Materials, which go to make up the finest lines we have ever shown.

The Ware-Pratt Company,

MANUFACTURERS AND RETAILERS,

408 and 412 Main Street,

Worcester.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts. State of the order March 18, 1891; Membership, 4915. Amount loaned for Relief, $15,290; Reserve Fund, $22,912.40; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,759.08; Total, $44,975.48. Men and women admitted upon the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600. Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organizers wanted. Address NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester, Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

LATHROP * BROTHERS,

LADIES', MEN'S AND CHILDREN'S

FINE AND MEDIUM SHOES

Of the most approved process of manufacture, meeting every requirement of Quality, Comfort and Style.

564 MAIN STREET, Franklin Square.

Emporium * of * Fashion.

LADIES' STRAW BONNETS.

An unusually Large Assortment of

BONNETS!

In MILAN, HAIR and FANCY BRAID,

Ranging in Price from 25c. to $2.00.

A. S. Lowell Co., 304-306 Main St.

E. W. COFFIN, Store Fixtures

10 Main Street, Worcester.

Name this Paper.

Now is the Time to Buy a

CARRIAGE!

at a Small Profit.

Geo. C. Dewhurst, 17 Park St.,

OPP. THE COMMON.

Larkin's, 395 Main St., Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps, Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.
Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Grate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD.
Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main St.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LIGHT

VOL. III. NO. 14. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JUNE 6, 1891. FIVE CENTS.

Early Pastors of the Universalist Church.

Thus Grouped in 1866.

[ENGRAVED EXPRESSLY FOR LIGHT.]

PUTNAM & SPRAGUE CO.

FURNITURE and UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

Having made special arrangements with two of the largest manufacturers of fine furniture in the country to carry their full lines of mahogany, oak and maple suits, we now have in stock the largest and most complete assortment ever shown in this city, and fully equal to anything to be found in the larger cities. For style, workmanship and finish, these goods are the very best, and at the prices we quote, we feel confident that they will meet with ready sales. Our stock of medium and low-priced chamber furniture is complete in every department. Call and see our stock before purchasing.

247 and 249 Main Street, Corner Central.

Massachusetts in the War.

1861-1865.

BY JAMES L. BOWEN.

With an Introduction by HON. HENRY L. DAWES.

MASSACHUSETTS IN THE WAR, from the publishers' standpoint, is a fine specimen of modern book-making, and the completed work must take a high place in its class, for its mechanical as well as its literary merit. In one magnificent volume of 1,050 large 8vo. pages, richly illustrated with portraits, is given a graphic and comprehensive summary of the doings of the Commonwealth and her soldiers and statesmen during the four years of civil war.

THE HISTORICAL NARRATIVE, with which the book opens, covers about 100 pages, and touches carefully every important phase of the struggle as it was presented to the State in its relation to the general government.

THE HISTORIES OF ORGANIZATIONS form the body of the work, covering 773 pages. In this compass the story is fully told of 71 regiments, 16 batteries of light artillery, 3 battalions and 33 separate companies. The narrative of each is complete, starting with its organization, giving the original roster of officers, field, staff and line; following the command through all its wanderings; narrating its part and stating its loss in every act in which it was engaged; and completing the record with its muster out and the return of its members to civil life.

GENERAL OFFICERS from Massachusetts, whether serving with the volunteer forces or in the regular army are treated individually, and carefully prepared sketches are given of the military service of 122 officers attaining to the rank of Brevet Brigadier General or higher grade.

THE PORTRAITS comprise a fine frontispiece of Governor Andrew, with handsome half page pictures of Senators Sumner, Wilson and Dawes, the author, and 57 of the general officers.

THE STATISTICAL TABLE presents in compact form for instant reference, the principal facts regarding each organization and there is a very full and valuable index.

PRICE. The book will be sold at the low price of $4. in fine and attractive cloth binding; leather back and corners, cloth sides, $4.75; the same with marbled paper sides, $4.75; full library, $4.75; full leather $5.50.

BOWEN & SON, Publishers,
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

C. H. DRAPER,
Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

Three Large Moving Wagons. Baggage
Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano
Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

COMPOUND OXYGEN

Nature's best tonic in all debilitated conditions of the system.

Our OXYGEN is carefully prepared in accordance with the most scientific principles known to chemistry.

It is prepared by a practical chemist who has had four years' experience in a chemical laboratory.

Each patient will receive the personal and conscientious attention of a regular graduated physician, one who has been six years in medical practice.

We solicit investigation.

368 1-2 Main St., or 1 Elm St.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

Quinsigamond Lake ICE

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Especial attention given to the family trade.

Garfield & Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 143-4.

N. G. TUCKER.

W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER & SON,
SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street, Worcester, Mass.

384 MAIN STREET 388

Bigelow & Longley

are prepared to show all the Latest Novelties in

CUSTOM AND READY-MADE

*CLOTHING*

MEN'S, YOUTHS', BOYS' or CHILDREN.

We can give you a SPRING OVERCOAT from $5 to $25, in all the latest shades, made up with silk face and silk sleeve linings.

CHEVIOT SUITS

in blue or black, cut single or double-breasted. Prices from $8 to $25. Also a fine assortment of

Blue and Black Serges,

$15 $15 PER SUIT $15 $15

Indigo Blue Flannel and Yacht Cloth Suits,

we can give you a single or double-breasted, at prices from $6 to $15, and GUARANTEE THE COLOR. An elegant line of light and dark colored

Scotches and Fancy Cassimeres,

from $6 to $25. The best assortment of light colored TROUSERS we have ever shown, from $3 to $7. FANCY VESTS—Marseilles and Duck. Also a lot of dark Fancy Cassimeres and Silks, from 75c. to $4.

Bigelow & Longley

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JUNE 6, 1891.

No. 14

"It fronted towards the East, so that at a very seasonable hour a glow of crimson light came flooding through the window and bathed the dingy ceiling and paper-hangings in its own line."

—Hawthorne's House of Seven Gables.

Facing towards the East is an excellent thing for man as well as house. The rising is better than the setting Sun. Fortunate are those who appreciate this and realize the benefits of the advancing day. It signifies advance and progress and success.

94—425

That is just the way the comparative records for May 1890 and 1891 stand.

Police records, of course are meant. The number of arrests under No License and License.

Yet those same pur-blind people will continue to say, "There's just as much rum drunken without as with license." Do they believe it?

If evidence counts for anything they must know that they are talking nonsense. Our policemen are not supposed to be particularly devoted to politics. They arrest offenders indifferently. So the extra arrests cannot arise from extra vigilance.

Says one man, long connected with the force, "If we only could have No License two years in succession we could hold the city to that condition indefinitely." True. Two years would tire out the fellows who have paid rent for a vacant room for a whole year, have done nothing but scheme for the next election.

That's what we want, Citizens of Worcester, two years in succession; then our record will be so irrefragable that nothing can prevail against it. Let the nominal temperance men and women of Worcester put in just half the nerve and organization that our enemies did last year, and the victory will be ours.

But we have very much to hope for, when a community reaches the See Saw condition. The time is not so very remote when he would have been laughed at who intimated a possibility of a No License vote. But we have had that same twice and we shall have it again; but we must work, work, work.

A fine object lesson is had when the police wagon rolls along Main Street, preparatory to turning into Exchange or Foster Streets to unload its burden of sin at the Waldo Station. Its journeys are frequent, yet it never fails to have a throng of people, young and old, to watch the incarceration. The number of boys, yes and girls, who can afford the time to rush after the wagon is amazing. Fully fifty youths of both sexes followed at break-neck speed, only a day or two ago, the wagon having aboard the figure of a man in which the demon of drunkenness was howling and rending him sore. Two policemen by main force were holding him in place. The children were wild with interest. Will such sights blunt or sharpen their appreciation of vice. Oh! it is pitiful!

"Daniel R. Doherty, of Berkeley, Cal., has been committed to an insane asylum. A friend attributed his insanity to his continual reading of a sensational paper of San Francisco, which he read on the streets and while in bed at night." Have a care, my boy, as to what you read. Don't seek too high seasoning in your intellectual food. Don't buy trash because it is cheap. Good literature can be had at rates that would have astounded our fathers.

"PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—Thomas Jefferson and Robert Scott, two boys of this city, have been for some time past constant readers of dime novel literature. They determined upon taking advantage of the first opportunity that offered, to imitate some of their heroes." They stole $90 and then went off buying revolvers, etc. They went to New York, spent their money and ended the raid by trying to shoot fish in the Central Park ponds, falling here into the hands of the police who returned them to the City of Brotherly Love. Must those things be? Is there no way to stem the tide?

How puny and insignificant seem all our Christianizing efforts when such facts as the foregoing confront us. The shelves of our libraries are burdened with the wisdom of the ages. Careful attendants will be only too happy to place these books in the hands of readers but they are not ready to receive. They prefer the poorly written, the blood and thunder filth that a venal press turns out for them. We need another crusade.

In Birmingham, Eng., bathing facilities are offered to the public very cheaply. "The bath houses themselves are described as being from 80 to 100 feet long, and from 3 to 5 feet deep. The poor bathe for a penny, or two of our cents, while the well-to-do get towels and a dressing-room for 12 cents. These bath houses develop swimming classes, and from these expert swimmers are made. Even tiny children are to be seen suspended in slings and supported, while they learn to strike out for themselves, by men who hold the slings at the end of long poles and walk around the sides of the tanks with them." When will Worcester signalize itself in some such way. Few places have such facilities. Give us water, lots of it, for external as well as internal use. More water and less beer, then there will be still less of the infernal record of the police circles.

The Light Infantry gets a fine lot of Rebel lion relics from Capt. M. E. Chandler of the Boston Tigers. Woods from Libby and Andersonville are in it and bullets from all over the fields.

Mansfield and Elmira.

On Memorial Day I found myself four hundred miles from home in Mansfield, Tioga Co., Penn.; but many of the early settlers here were from our own Worcester County. Early in the century, representatives of the Pitts, Phillips, Cudworth and other families took up the line of march for this, then, remote region and here their descendants are today. Tioga is the northern border county and Mansfield its chief town. It is the seat of one of the most flourishing Normal Schools in the state, having an attendance of nearly four hundred pupils.

The people make much of the day itself and everyone, young and old, joins in its observance.

To reach Mansfield, I had to pass through Elmira, N. Y. This was one of the great mustering places during the War. Many thousands of recruits were, here, formed into regiments or sent on to those already formed. It was in the latter way, that I left the place early in '64 and now I improve an hour or so in trying to look up reminders; but as I reached the place in the night and was not outside of the camp during my stay, I could hardly expect to have the locality very firmly fixed in memory. The best I could do was to find where the barracks were. Of course, there is not the slightest trace, today, of their existence. So, too, of the shelters erected for the care of the Rebel prisoners. Only a few elderly and middle aged people know that prisoners were confined in Elmira. The place was down by the river on West Water Street. Houses and gardens now cover the spot.

When in 1865, the month of March, I came up from Annapolis, a furloughed and paroled prisoner myself, I had to wait in Elmira from midnight till morning. My long experience on the floor of a tobacco warehouse had made me used to that kind of bed, so I went into the nearest saloon, there were lots of them, and asked the privilege of spreading my blanket in the corner. It was granted and I slept soundly through the rest of the night, though drinking and card playing were in progress all the time. Today, I try to decide which one of the many saloons, still standing, was my temporary hotel, but they are all much alike and, at best, I can only guess. That was twenty-six years ago. The keeper of the saloon must have passed on and the most of those who caroused through the night have paid the debt probably, but the Northern Central railroad of Pennsylvania still brings in its passengers and, as then, in the morning one may ride to Watkins for the steamboat trip up Seneca Lake. Elmira is twice as large as it was in 1865 and bears little resemblance to the place that was so long New York's western rendezvous for volunteers.

Miss Grace C. Hill is one of the graduating class at Mount Holyoke. LIGHT acknowledges invitations to commencement.

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND
HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.

Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building,
Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1891.

Two Bicycles!

THIRTY-FIVE DOLLARS!

One will be given to that boy or girl who secures the most cash subscriptions for LIGHT between this date, May 30th and August 1st, 1891.

The other is for the boy who sells the largest number of papers during the same time.

Come up to the office, boys, and talk it over.

Every failure to receive LIGHT promptly should be, at once, reported at this office.

All scraps of informations concerning persons and events, thankfully received.

Hereafter, it will be understood that all articles in LIGHT, not ascribed, save recipes, squibs, fashion and household notes were written for this paper.

Friends sending in manuscripts will not complain if they are not printed at once. There are many waiting. Yet LIGHT is always glad to receive communications and, if meritorious, to print them.

Rev. Fr. Conaty sends out an unusually attractive number of his Church Calendar. It is a special "Sacred Heart" number and contains more than usual illustrations and valuable matter.

Church Notes.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. Laurens Perry began his pastorate of the Lake View Church last Sunday, preaching morning and evening.

EPISCOPAL.

The Loyalty Club of St. John's Episcopal Church, a society of young ladies especially noted for their unique and pleasing entertainments, is now busily at work planning for a Flower Festival which bids fair to eclipse all past achievements. It will be held the 18th of June on the picturesque grounds in the rear of the church.

PRESBYTERIAN.

While Horticultural Hall is undergoing repairs, the First Presbyterian Church will hold its services in Washburn Hall.

The Record of the Week is unavoidably crowded out. It will appear with that of next week.

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE.

Polytechnic.

Semi-annuals finish to-day, and the fortunate student who survives, once more begins to enjoy life. Many have nearly made up their summer practice time and hence are free in a few days. There is, however, the usual long list of men who will spend a portion of vacation in the shop.

Bullard '93, leads with over 285 hours to make up. Southgate and Collier for the Middlers, have respectably 230 and 228 hours. Of the Seniors, Alley is the farthest behind, with 135.

Institute hill was too much for the Seniors' class tree, and a new one is to be set out.

About 75 students cheered Prof. Eaton as he left the Lincoln Square Station Tuesday noon, most of them Juniors.

It is said that among the candidates for the professorship left vacant by his resignation, are Mr. Woodward, Prof. of Mathematics at the High School, and Prof. Conant, formerly of a western University, and now studying at Clark University.

Owing to the sickness of one of 93's crew, the four-oared race which was to have been rowed yesterday between '92 and '93, has been postponed until fall.

Most of the Seniors have passed in their theses, and are now practically at liberty until Commencement, the 19th.

The Springfield Field Day is a thing of the past, and Worcester comes out of it in the fifth position, possibly the fourth. At the close of the sports we were tied with Williams for fourth place, but by a rule of the association, Williams took precedence because of her superiority last year. Many Techs, however, at the time of writing claim that inasmuch as Worcester broke a record this year, Williams must step aside. Last spring we were tied with Wesleyan and Trinity, and then, thanks to this same rule, were given fifth place over them. If Dadmun had only come in first instead of second on the 2.20. ours would have been third place, but even Dadmun could not take first in everything. Just after the half mile, was the time that Worcester felt most hilarious. Of course all were pleased to see "Daddy" come in first so easily, but this was expected. Taylor second was what surprised them and filled the cup of the Worcester men. They fairly hugged one another for a while. About seventy-five men from the Tech attended, besides a large number of ex-Chathams who helped swell the cheer.

Thursday morning's Springfield Republican contained a large picture of "Dadmun waiting for the pistol shot." The Springfield papers also published extras the night before.

The New England Inter-collegiate Press Association held its annual meeting at the Glendower House, Springfield, the evening of the sports. About twenty-three delegates were present including "Editoresses" from Wellesley and Mt. Holyoke. The W P I of the Tech was elected official organ for the ensuing year. At the close of the business meeting, a banquet was held in a neighboring hall, followed by toasts.

The Juniors showed their appreciation of Dr. Eaton's work the past year, by presenting him, accompanied by resolutions expressing their sorrow at his departure, a number of valuable books. They include Parkman's historical series; Bancroft's History of the United States, and "Strolls by Starlight and Sunshine" by William Hamilton Gibson.

May 28.

Mt. Holyoke.

June 2nd the Senior gymnastics were given in the gymnasium. The play was "Pygmalion and Galatea" and will probably be repeated Commencement week. All who saw the performance feel that it was the best entertainment that has been given in the college for a long time.

The entrance examinations are being held this week in Williston Hall. A large class will enter in the fall.

The tennis tournament takes place this week. The list of entries is a long one, and the games promise much excitement.

The Seniors spent Thursday on Mt. Tom. Through the mystery that surrounds these rites, a rumor floated back that the toasts were exceptionally witty and apropos.

Miss Hooker's party of European travellers start home from the college the 15th of June. A number of past graduates will join the party, and Miss Moore, professor of instrumental music, will remain in Germany with some of the young ladies throughout the coming year. Nothing better could be asked than that this party may prove as successful as the one of last year.

Holy Cross.

The following are the speakers announced to take part in the commencement exercises to be held June 26th: George F. Butler, Plymouth, valedictory; E. C. McGillicuddy, W. H. S. '88, salutatory; Thomas H. Sullivan, Millbury, James D. Newton, Boston and John F. Sullivan, Fall River, essays.

The Provincial was at the college during the week.

The semi-annual examinations will commence Monday and will continue until Saturday, the 20th.

The nine went to Northampton Memorial Day and was defeated in two very close games. Last Tuesday they played Brown a seven-inning game with a tie score of 2-2. When we consider the victories which Brown has to her credit in her games with other colleges, Holy Cross made a magnificent showing.

It pays to patronize General Agent Geo. Y. Lancaster, for Railroad and Steamship Tickets, Drafts, and Insurance. Office, 434 Main street, Worcester.

BOSTON * STORE.

Have you visited our Downstairs Departments? If not, do so by all means. We have spared no expense in making this place attractive and inviting and a visit and inspection will fully repay you. We are putting special prices on some lots of goods. We cannot quote all, here are a few:

Kitchen Department.

Salt Boxes and Knife Trays,	10c	were	37 1-2
Broilers and Toasters,	15	"	50
Stove Pokers,	5	"	10
Machine Oil and Can,	5	"	10
Hatchets,	10	"	25
Wire Clothes Lines,	10	"	33
Egg Poachers,	10	"	25
Wire Fruit Baskets,	5	"	15
Wire Tea Pot stands,	5	"	10
Breadboards,	45	"	75
Muffin Pans,	5	"	25

Crockery Department.

56 Piece Tea Sets, Decorated, Brown, and Blue,	2 98
China Dinner Sets,	34 00 were 45 00
Glass Sauce Dishes,	18c doz. were 37 1-2
Glass Berry Dishes,	10 " " 25
Glass Pickle Dishes,	3 " " 10
Ironing Stands,	3 " " 5
Flat Irons,	5 per lb.
Ostrich Dusters,	10 were 25

Clock Department.

Beautiful Clocks, 95c were $1 20

Bag and Trunk Department.

Ladies and Gents Traveling Bags,	98c up
O.K. Base Balls,	5
Boys Dead "	10
Half Dollar "	19
Young America Balls,	15
Star Balls,	25
Bounding Rock,	39
Spaulding's League,	98
Tennis Balls, 15, 25, 29, 39 and 42 cents.
All kinds of Tennis and Base Ball Goods at Prices Way Under the Market.
Window Screens, 25, 37 1-2 and 50 cents.
Lunch Baskets, 25 cents.
Hammocks, 58c to 4 50
Trunks, 98c up.

Silver Department.

Rogers 1847 Silver Knives,	$2 98 per doz.
" " " Forks,	2 98 " "
" " " Tea Spoons,	2 09 " "
" " " Dessert Spoons,	3 50 " "
" " " Table	" 4 00 " "

Picture Department.

Elegant Pictures, 79c were $1 25

These are but a few of the many bargains that we are offering. Just take a walk through our Japanese Department and see the many beautiful articles at very low prices. We cordially invite you to pay us a visit.

Denholm & McKay Co.,

484 to 490 Main Street.

Former Universalist Ministers

When in 1866, the First Universalist Society installed the Rev. B. F. Bowles as pastor, they also celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the church. A history of the organization up to that time was read by the Rev. S. P. Landers who was, also, the first pastor of the church. From that history, we can glean some facts in reference to the men who have been settled over the parish. A summary of the installation and historical exercises was published in pamphlet form by Tyler & Seagrave, both veteran printers and Universalists. This publication is now exceedingly scarce. Its frontispiece contains the faces that adorn LIGHT's title page, a bit of pictorial matter, by the way, that probably no church in Worcester, equally old, can duplicate. That is, after fifty years, to be able to present portraits of all former pastors is rather a remarkable fact. Reverends Harris and Gunnison are not in the group; but LIGHT has, already, given them in Nos. 5 and 40 respectively, 1890. So then, we are prepared to offer to those interested, the faces of all the men who have ministered, in things spiritual to this congregation. In the cut, the portraits are numbered in the order of pastorates and each one is named. For the pamphlets and notes, LIGHT is indebted to Deacon Daniel Seagrave.

The first pastor, the Rev. Stephen Presson Landers, was born in Bainbridge, Chenango Co., N. Y., August 22, 1812 and he was graduated from the Clinton, N. Y., Liberal Institute. He pursued his theological studies with the Rev. Stephen R. Smith and was ordained in 1839. Before this, however, in 1837, he was settled in Bethany, Penn. Thence he went in 1839 to Andover, Mass., and in 1841 he came to Worcester to assist in the planting of his church in our midst. His Worcester pastorate ended in 1847, June 16, and hence, he went to West Cambridge for five years. Later he removed to Clinton, N. Y., the scene of his earlier life and from that point was called to serve in many places, though he never had a settled pastorate again, and here he died, April 15, 1876. His picture represents an universally mild, genial and benevolent face, yet there must have been a deal of energy along with it to accomplish what Mr. Landers did in the early days of the society.

To him, succeeded, in 1845, the Rev. Albert Case who was born in Pulaski, Oswego Co., N. Y., July 13, 1808, but he was called to Worcester from Charleston, S. C., and was installed March 12, 1846. His salary was $900.00 per annum. He remained four years and went from this city to Hingham, Mass. He was a very prominent member of the Odd Fellows order and at one time held the second highest office in the gift of that body. During the administrations of President's Pierce and Buchanan, he was employed in the Boston Custom House. He was killed by the cars in Somerville, Mass., Saturday, p.m., December 29, 1877.

The Rev. O. H. Tillotson succeeded in June, 1849, Dr. A. A. Minor preaching the ordination sermon, the same month. Salaries in this church were not then what they are now for he received only $800 for each year of his first two years and the third, it went up only one hundred. He was New Hampshire born, town of Oxford, May 9, 1816. He was apprenticed to the printing business in Montpelier, Vermont, and there he accepted infidel sentiments, a sort of reaction from the rigorous instruction of his boyhood. From this condition, he was led to accept the doctrines of Universalism and at the age of twenty-two, began to preach. His pastorates embraced churches in Woodstock, Vt., Claremont, N. H., Lynn, Methuen, Worcester, Mass., and Hartford, Conn. While in Hartford, he began the study of law and for the purpose of taking lectures in the Harvard Law School, he removed to Watertown, where he continued to preach. He was admitted to the bar on examination and came to Worcester to practice and was here about two years, continuing, at the same time, to preach. But the pulpit, not the bar, was the place for his pleading and again he entered the active ministry. For a time, he was in Stafford, Conn., whence he removed to Northfield, Vt., where he died from consumption, June 19, 1863.

His successor was the Rev. John G. Adams, whose widow furnishes a poem for this semi-centennial occasion. He was born in Portsmouth, N. H., 1810, and was of Congregational antecedents. While residing in Exeter, N. H., 1828-9, he became a convert to the Universalist faith and entered its ministry in 1832. He was ordained in Rumney, Grafton Co., N. H., in June, 1883 and his first principal settlement was in Claremont, that state, in 1836. In 1838, he was in Malden, Mass., where he remained fifteen years. At the end of this time, in 1853, he came to our city and was here seven years. He removed to Providence, R. I., in 1860 and was there five years, going thence in 1865 to the Second Universalist Society in Lowell. He was an earnest, devoted worker in the Sunday School and for many years was the editor of the church paper published in the interests of such schools. He died at Melrose Highlands, Mass., May 4, 1887, and was buried in Mount Auburn.

After him, came the Rev. L. M. Burrington, July 23d, 1860. The salary had crept up to $1000.00 a year. He resigned the pastorate in November of the following year. Mr. Burrington's initials are those of the famous American Grammarian, Lindlay Murray. He was born in Burke, Caledonia Co., Vermont, and began his training in country schools. Later he was at St. Johnsbury, Vt., and was graduated from Vermont University at Burlington. He had the benefits of theological training from the Rev. J. S. Lee and the Rev. Dr. A. A. Miner, said to be the only one to have had that good fortune, being that distinguished gentleman's sole pupil. In March, 1858, he was settled in Reading. In July, 1860, he came to Worcester and remained here till January, 1862. He resigned then on account of ill health, preferring the less exacting cares of a smaller parish which he found in North Adams, Mass. He is now in Belfast, Maine. For several years, his brother has been the successful principal of Dean Academy in Franklin, Mass.

The Rev. Thomas Elliott St. John followed, for his first pastorate, commencing his labors in April, 1862. During the four years of his stay, his salary was advanced from $1,000 to $1,700. He was born in Canterbury, Orange Co. N. Y., March 2d, 1831, but his early rearing was in the family home in Connecticut. At the early age of seventeen years, he was a schoolmaster in Scipio, Cayuga County, N. Y. He was a teacher in winter; but a carpenter in summer and thus he alternated for four years. In 1851, he went West and in '53 became a student of medicine in the office of Dr. J. B. Treat of Jamesville, Wis., and was finally graduated, with the first honors from the Eclectic Medical Institute of Cincinnati, Ohio. After living awhile in Jamesville, he went to Prairie du Chien on the Mississippi. In 1857, he was appointed an instructor in the Medical College, where he was trained. Up to this time, he had been a communicant of the Methodist church, but he now embraced the doctrines and faith of the Universalists and was duly admitted to their body. He preached at intervals in Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana, till 1859, when he visited Massachusetts and was settled over a church in New Bedford. Thence he came to this city as stated. He went away in the spring of 1866, to Chicago, but on the going away of Mr. Bowles in 1868 Mr. St. John was recalled and began his labors Feb. 1, 1869, and continuing the same till 1879, when he resigned and next entered the Unitarian ministry. At present, he is not preaching; but is in business with headquarters in Haverhill, Mass.

The interval, between Mr. St. John's first and second pastorates was filled by the Rev. Benjamin Franklin Bowles, a native of Portsmouth, N. H., but his boyhood was spent in Maine. Later he came to Boston and next he was studying in the Clinton N. Y. Liberal Institute under Dr. T. J. Sawyer. His pastorates, before coming here were in Salem, Southbridge, Natick and Melrose in this state and in Manchester, N. H., which city he represented in the state legislature. In poor health, Mr. Bowles now resides in Abington, Mass.

This brings us to the pastorates of Messrs. Harris and Gunnison, of which long accounts are given in the numbers of LIGHT, already indicated. It must be observed that the first twenty-five years was a period of frequent changes and that in the second period there are only four names against six in the first. Mr. St. John's services are longer than those of any other. The average is five years each, just the maximum limit that the Methodist now allow their ministers. Perhaps under the efficient direction of Dr. Gunnison, this average will be increased.

Prof. T. E. N. Eaton.

A reception was given to Prof. Eaton, by Dr. Fuller, on Saturday evening. The members of the Faculty, and their wives being the guests. At the close of a very pleasant evening, an "envelope" containing $120 was handed to Prof. Eaton, with some cheery words by Dr. Fuller, expressing the high esteem and affectionate regard in which he was held. Prof. E. started Tuesday A. M. for Redlands, Cal. The Pacific Coast makes a grand accession in getting our Professor Eaton. In some way, he will make himself a valuable member of the Redlands village the day of his settlement will surely be a red letter one for that section. He will not be idle. When he is rested, look out for some interesting Botanical announcement from El Dorado. Distance cannot alter nor effect our deep regard.

Passing Away.

In this city, 28, at the Home for Aged Women, Isabella D. Hathaway, 76 years.

"The passing bell of the village life of Worcester" has sounded often within the last few days, over the departure of connecting links of the old time, village life and the busy, thronging life of this great, beautiful and prosperous city. Almost a century bears witness to the business energy, the virtues and integrity of one of her merchants of her early days, Henry W. Miller; Francis Strong, a later comer, but long time citizen; Charles Wilder, an old resident and Miss Isabella D. Hathaway, native born, the last of a large family to keep its connection with its birth place. Born in the old Central Hotel, where now stands the Bay State House, her father was Samuel Hathaway, Senior, who removed to Washington square, where he built up the most of that portion of the town, and gave a beginning to the expansion of the village in that direction. By the disastrous event of the great Boston fire, she lost the most of her fortune, invested in the Peoples' Insurance Company and was left dependant upon the loving kindness, that has never failed her, of her sisters. When the beautiful charity of the Washburn Home, then so-called, was founded by that noble generous, Christian benefactor of his kind, Ichabod Washburn, who was a most warm, intimate personal friend of her father and mother, she gained admission, where she has, ever since, found a most happy and pleasant home. About three years ago she was stricken with paralysis and has been almost helpless ever since, requiring a constant attendant, day and night, who has been provided by the loving kindness of her sisters. Distance and illness prevented their presence at the funeral, only a brother being there as a representative of the original family, though there were descendants whose ministering care has been constant and devoted throughout her illness. The large gathering of friends in the parlors of the Home bore testimony to the affection she had won by her cheerful, Christian fortitude, through all her illness and her abiding faith in the blessedness of the life to come. Mingling with the sorrow of her departure, mitigated by the thought that her wish was in conformity to the Divine will, is the feeling of profound gratitude in the hearts of all her family for the great kindness and loving friendship that has been extended to her through all the years of her connection with the Home, and of homage unspeakable to the wisdom, the love, the Godlike charity of Deacon Washburn.

The remains of Miss Hathaway were buried in Rural Cemetery from the parlors of the Home, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Rev. A. S. Garver officiating, while the choir of the First Unitarian church furnished music.

VOLAPÜK.

Studels löfik!

Avigo ogivob oles lovepoloti se bib ma John kapit bal.

Atos pemekos fa Klubans in Volapükaklub de Worcester.

John, Kapit 1.

1. In begin Vöd esibinom, e Vöd ebinom

- ko God, e Vöd ebinom God.
 2. Ot esibinom in begin Ko God.
 3. Valikos pemekos fa Om, e nen Om nos pemekos, kel pemekos.
 4. In Om lif ebinom e lif at ebinom lit menada.
 5. E lit dalitom in daeg e daeg no suemom omi.
 6. Manesibinom penemöl John, kel pisedom fa God.
 7. Ot ekömom as noel al noelön tefü lit at, dat mens valik me Om kanoms klödön.
 8. No ebinom lit at, ab pesedom al noelön tefü lit at.
 9. Etos ebinos lit velatik, kel litom menis valik kels kömoms in vol.
 10. Ebinom in vol e vol pemekom fa Om e vol no esuemom Omi.
 11. Ekömom al flens okik, e no elasmoms Omi.
 12. Ab utes kels lasumoms Omi, egivom nämi vedön cils Goda, fe utes kels leklödöms in Om.
 13. Kels no pemotoms ni de vil bluda, ni de vil mida, ni de vil mana, ab Goda.
 14. E Vöd pemekom mid, e elödom bevü obs (e edalogobs glöli omik. Glöli pefatöla soalik Fata) pefulöl ko ben e velat.
 15. John noelom tefü Om e esevokom, sagöl at ebinom dö kel epükob ut kel ekömom pos ob pabizugom bifo ob bi ekömom büfo ob.
 16. E valiko egetoms fulöfi omik e beni plo ben.
 17. Vo lon pegivom fa Moses, ab ben e velat ekömons dub Kristus.
 18. Men onik elogomi evelo Godi; Son pefatöl soalik, kel binom in blötazenod Fata, elenunom Omi.
 19. E atos ebinos nunod de John, ven Yudas esedoms pädelis e Levites se Jerusalem al säkön ome, kim binol?
 20. E eköfom e no denonom; ab eköfom das no binob Kristus.
 21. E säkoms ome, Kim täno? Li binol Elias? e esagom, no binob. Li binol plofet et, e egesagom, no.
 22. Täno esagoms ome, kim binol? dat akanobs givön gepüki utes kels esedoms obis. Kisi sagöl dö ol it.
 23. Esagom, binob vög ona sevoköl in nekulivöp, mekonöd vegi Sölala binön stedik, äs plofet Elias esagom.

F. L. HUTCHINS.

Worcester's Selectmen.

But three of Worcester's selectmen are now living. Albert Curtis, who held the office in 1840 and 1841, Samuel Davis in 1846 and Albert Tolman in 1847. The late Henry W. Miller was selectman in 1841-2-3-4-5. By special legislative enactment the selectmen of 1847 continued in office from the acceptance of the city charter, February 29th, 1848, until the organization of the city government, the annual March meeting in 1848 being suspended. Mr. Miller was also clerk of the First Parish in Worcester eleven years in succession and his time therein was during the thirties and in the early forties. B.

The monthly meeting of the Worcester Typothetae will be held Tuesday evening, June 9, at the office of the secretary, W. E. W. Felt, No. 392 Main Street, when Caleb A. Wall will read a paper on "Newspapers and Printing, Ancient and Modern," in which he will refer, among other things, to the wonderful progress of the last fifty years in the business, since his connection with the press.

And the very little folks have a good time. The wee friends of Miss Mamie Banister, daughter of C. H. Banister of the firm of Putnam, Davis & Co., gathered at her home, 35 Cedar Street, last Tuesday and had the most enjoyable time possible. It was Miss Mamie's third birthday.

Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb's Summer Tou s.

Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb announce a series of thirty tours to popular eastern resorts for the months of July and August. There is a great variety of routes and resorts presented in this list, and all intending travellers should peruse the little book that has been put forth as a descriptive circular. All the prominent mountain, lake, river, seashore, and spring resorts of Canada, New England, and New York are in the list. Liberal provision is made by the firm for the accommodation of their guests at leading hotels and in transit. In addition to these trips, there are to be excursions to the Yellowstone National Park, Alaska, over the Canadian Pacific Railway, etc. Descriptive circulars will be sent on application to Raymond & Whitcomb, 296 Washington Street, opposite School Street, Boston, Mass.

The following pupils of Becker's Business College have recently taken positions as indicated below:

Walter D. Grout, stenographer with Wm. H. Sawyer & Co., lumber dealers; Miss Grace Underwood, book-keeper at Washburn Machine Shops; Mr. Edwin Smith, stenographer at Whittall's Carpet Mill; Mr. Dana Bryant, book-keeper with Geo Newhall; Miss Emma Winn, cashier with A. S. Lowell; Miss Mary Fellows, stenographer with Washburn & Moen Co.; Misses Elizabeth Kerry and Lillian Dockham, stenographers and typewriters, have opened an office in Walker Building as public stenographers; Miss Etta Doran has taken a position as stenographer to Dr. Boas for the present; Miss Nora Connify took a position as stenographer with the Whitney Manufacturing Co., of Winchendon, Mass.; Miss Emma Phillips, stenographer, with Glasco Thread Co., Norwich, Ct.; Mr. Geo. H. Lamb, assistant book-keeper, with Heywood Boot Manufacturing Co.

Home Again.

Miss Lillie Matthews, once in our High School, and who went with her parents to live in England, after several years of absence has, with them, returned. So long an expatriation has given to her quite an English tone; but that will soon wear off as she meets her old friends and playmates, all of whom are very glad to see her. She is very decided in her preference for America. She is no Anglo-maniac, having too much sense for that.

The marriage of the artist and singer, Eugene A. O'Connor, to Miss Mary A. Harding is announced for 9 a.m., June 11th, at St Paul's Church.

South End Notes.

After many years, work has been begun on the interior of St. Peter's Church, corner Main and Grand streets.

The pupils of the Freeland Street School raised a 21x13 1-2 ft. flag Friday p.m. last. The order of exercises was as follows: Questions and answers by the School; raising the flag; salute; song, "Star Spangled Banner"; recitation, "Union & Liberty"; song, "When Flowery Summer"; recitation, "O, Flag of Freedom"; song, "Battle Cry of Freedom". An address was delivered before the school by Mr. W. A. Gile.

Mr. Charles S. Thorndyke is building an elegant cottage, in modern style, on Florence street, near May.

The members of the local Y. P. S. C. E. societies went to Paxton, Tuesday evening, in barges and formed a society at that place.

The ladies of Pilgrim Church held a strawberry festival in Pilgrim Hall Tuesday evening. A large number of the congregation were present.

Memorial Day, the Misses Norcross, 16 Claremont Street, gave a select party to their friends, at their summer cottage, on the Shrewsbury Shore of Lake Quinsigamond.

Piedmont Church will hold its annual picnic June 27, at Lake Chaubunagungamog Mauhogagogog, in Webster.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Perkins spent last Sunday in Millbury with friends.

Miss Sadie E. Hill, May street, has gone to South Hadley, where she will remain until after the commencement exercises at Mt. Holyoke Seminary.

Mrs. Rev. A. Z. Conrad has sufficiently recovered from her recent accident as to be out. Her's was indeed a miraculous escape.

Under the direction of the Benevolent Union the young ladies of Piedmont Church gave an excellent entertainment and supper in the vestry of the church Tuesday evening. The following was the programme: Piano trio; reading, "The Whistling Regiment", Miss Bates; solo, Mr. Charles I. Rice; violin solo, Mr. Hanson; solo, Miss Leucella Flagg; reading, Miss Crosby; piano solo, Miss Porter; solo, Mr. Charles I. Rice; reading, "The Cricket Fiddle", Miss Carpenter; solo, Miss Flagg. The young ladies taking part were from the "Home School." This closes the entertainments for the season.

The Crescent Tennis Club held its Third Annual Opening on its grounds Memorial Day, from 2 to 7 p.m. The grounds were in excellent condition and many fine plays were made. Among those present were Miss Ethel Phelps, Miss Mabel H. Prentice, Miss Florence L. Shaffer, Miss Gertrude S. Caswell, Miss M. Edith Sessions, G. Florence Stone, Miss Elizabeth W. Spaulding, Miss Susie C. Taft, Miss Mary E. Banfield, Miss Bessie Strauss, Miss Helen W. Lincoln, Miss Flora H. Clifford, Miss Anna W. Howe, Miss Grace R. Dean, Miss Bessie E. Dean, Miss Ida N. Smith, Miss Edith Taylor, Miss H. Maria Wright, Mr. Karl Bonney and Clifton H. Dwinell. Refreshments were served at 4:30 p.m. During the day, Mr. Dwinell and Miss Bessie Dean beat Mr. Harry D. Temple and Miss Susie Taft 6-3. Among the excellent playing done during the day, that by Miss Bessie Strauss was, by far, the finest. Although she has played but a short time, she shows signs of being a fine player. The success of the affair was due to the men in charge, Messrs. Harry D. Temple, Mr. Frank W. Washburn and Mr. Morton R. Crane.

There will be a musical and literary entertainment at the Home School, corner May and Woodland streets, Thursday June 11.

The pupils of the 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th grades at Freeland Street School, sang patriotic songs at Hope Cemetery, Memorial Day.

Mr. Charles Colby Milton, class of '90, W. H. S., has returned from the Boston University Law School where he has been studying the past year.

Cutter—Wright.

A quiet home wedding took place last week Thursday, May 28, at 166 Beacon street. Dr. John A. Cutter of New York was married to Miss Ellen B. Wright, the ceremony being performed by Rev. D. O. Mears. Dr. Cutter is a son of Ephraim Cutter, M. D., LL. D. of New York City, one of the most eminent microscopists and a delegate to the International Medical Conference in Berlin, where he read seven different papers. The groom is practicing in the office with his father, and is a physician of much promise in his chosen profession. The bride is sister of Mrs. Murdock the city missionary of Piedmont church. She is an active worker in the church, and has a large circle of friends in the city. Dr. and Mrs. Cutter will make their home in New York City, corner of Broadway & Fifty-fifth Streets.

At Pilgrim Hall, Monday evening, the pupils of Miss Jennie S. Newcombe gave a very successful piano recital. The pupils taking part were Misses Susie Sargent, Edith Stockwell, Bessie Stockwell, Mamie Scott, Bernice Newcombe, Gertrude Lawrence, Edith Young, Grace Wilson, Susie Miller, Clara Hinchkel, Fannie Moore, Sadie Hair, Mamie Towne, Lizzie Kneeland, Mabel Wood, Edna Peck, Arthur Templeton, Foster Sibley, Arthur Putnam, Clifton Knowlton. They were assisted by Mrs. Ida Johnson and Charles J. Marshall, vocalists and Miss Sadie Parsons and Miss Edith Hardy, readers.

Of Interest to Vacationers.

To many people in the city the announcement that the summer time table of the Yarmouth Steamship Co., went into effect last Monday is an item of interest. This line has now become very popular and everyone who has taken a trip on one of its boats seems to have almost a personal interest in its affairs ever after.

As a summer resort Nova Scotia is continually growing in favor. This is due in a considerable measure to the enterprise of the Yarmouth Steamship Co. While a long monotonous sea-voyage in slow moving vessels, or a wearisome and uninteresting journey by rail, were the only means of getting there from New England even those who knew of the attractions of the place hesitated to make the necessary sacrifice of time and comfort in order to enjoy them. All this was changed, however, when the Yarmouth Steamship Co., three years ago, revolutionized the existing method of travelling by putting on its new and fast steel steamer between Boston and Yarmouth and fairly whisked the passenger from one point to the other, almost before he had time to realize that he was at sea. This unprecedented annihilation of time made a vast difference to everybody and from the very beginning the enterprise was so emphatic a success that last season a larger and even faster steamer, especially built for the purpose by the most skillful constructors of the Clyde, was added to the service, in order to meet the great demand for transportation. This summer the two trips a week each way of former seasons will be increased to four and the voyage to the "Land of Evangeline" will become little more than a ferry. This latest addition to the company's fleet is the magnificent steamer "Boston" of 16,000 tons and engines of 4000 horse-power, commanded by Capt. M. L. Forbes. Her companion, the "Yarmouth" retains her old list of officers who have become so well known, Captain Stanwood, Steward Stockdale and Purser Smith. During the winter the "Yarmouth" has been built up forward and four new state-rooms have been made on deck. The "Boston" is the fastest propeller of her size in the world. The sailing days may be learned by consulting the advertisement in another column.

Company A.

There are few men who more devotedly renew their memories and fealties than the veteran of General Pickett's old company of the 25th Regiment. Their common cause calls them together annually and how the flood of recollection pours over them. Wednesday, they went to see Comrade Walter S. Bugbee in Shrewsbury and they never had a better time. It was the anniversary of Cold Harbor and memories were active. These were the men present:

At 12.45 President Josiah Pickett of Worcester called the comrades to order. There were present: Major Frank E. Goodwin, Lieutenant Geo. Burr, Lieutenant Augustus Stone, Sergeant Major Samuel H. Putnam, Corporal George F. Stearns, Amos E. Stearns, Charles A. Mayers, Walter E. Stearns, son of A. E. Stearns, Sylvanus G. Bullock and Master Bullock, Alonzo D. Whitcomb, Daniel Burt, all of Worcester; Corporal W. S. Bugbee, Shrewsbury; Sergeant Frank Wright, Fayville; H. D. Brock, Athol; Cyrus K. Webber, North Brookfield; Daniel Eaton, Auburn; Charles Eaton, Gardner; Daniel Wetherbee, Westboro; Horace D. Dryden, Mansfield.

The old board of officers were re-elected. Secretary Goodwin read letters of regret from fifteen comrades. The party afterwards had a fine banquet.

The men tendered a vote of thanks to Corporal Bugbee, his wife and family, for their generous hospitality. Corporal Bugbee made a pleasing response.

The country can stand quite a strain, and it is having it, when there are thousands of veterans like those of Co. A to battle for its rights and honors.

Don't fail to read LIGHT's offers of bicycles. This is bona fide. Call and get specimen numbers to canvass with.

Among the Full-bloods.

We have had some glimpses of the Cherokee country, but have spent our time heretofore among the half-breeds and whites, asking the question, which now we will try to answer; "Where are the Indians?"

Mounted on a sure-footed pony, for remember the roads are rough and you have a river to cross, will you not accompany a "parson" on his weekly ride of seven miles to a full-blood settlement? He writes, "I left home on my pony about 2:30 and after a brisk ride of four miles, came to the Illinois River; pulling up my feet behind me, we plunged through." When the river is high a ferry boat is on hand to transport passengers—though the ferrymen are not always about when wanted. They pull the boat over by means of a stout rope fastened on either bank. Before you push on, stop and view the landscape; this is a beautiful clear stream, the current is swift, and it sings a merry song; the trees are varied and overhang the water, while sweet bird-songs echo all around you. "Three miles more and the teachers' cottage was reached. I produced the ladies' mail from my saddle-bags and as I gave them their mail I was greeted with "Well, you're the first one we have seen from the outside world for a week."

Learning from them that a "working" was going on at M's I rode directly to his house, knowing that all the neighbors would be there. I found the women at work on a quilt and none of the men on hand. A little girl who could speak English, in reply to my question, told me they were all over in the field about a quarter of a mile from the house; taking the trail I soon came to where they were at work, about thirty-five I should judge, each around with an axe, grub-hoe, brush hook, or some like implement, clearing out a field, and getting it ready for the plow. I wish you could have seen them.

It was nearly quilting time, and soon they struck work and started for the house, where we found the women still busy with their quilt, some sitting outside on the ground, or logs or chairs, around a great fire of logs, making patches; others in the shanty about the quilting frame. The quilt is to be sold for the benefit of the church as the people have pledged $25.00 toward the salary. (It has since been purchased by a friend in the East.) Cherokee women have substituted the construction of patch-work quilts for the head work for which they once showed so much skill; for this, to us, more interesting industry is now considered too uncivilized. Many of their patterns are intricate and bewildering; a stack of quilts, the pride of the house-wife's heart, is found in every cabin and at night when the beds are occupied, those who remain over wrap themselves in quilts and repose on the floor. Soon there were shouts of laughter and screams from within and I was informed that the quilt was done and the women had thrown it over the head of the first boy who ventured in. It seems this is one of their customs; as I did not care to experience it, and it was about supper time I went to the "cottage," for the full-bloods had eaten a big dinner and would not have any supper.

Cabins are built, fences put up, roads and fields cleared by neighborhood "workings," and the one who is thus benefitted is expected to furnish a dinner for all who come, men, women and children. Pork, sometimes venison or chicken, bean-bread and hominy, corn-bread and soda biscuit and coffee compose the usual menu. The men and boys always eat first, while the women and girls take their places and the soiled dishes for a second table.

Miss F. was to accompany me to meeting in the evening, so one of the boys brought our ponies and we made the start; it had grown so suddenly dark we could not see a thing, but the horses knew the road, and if the branches did not knock off our hats or scratch our faces we were all right. We made our mile and a half in safety, but found it all dark at the church; but soon we heard the people coming over the hills, some walking, others on horse back. We had a large and interesting audience and a pleasant service conducted in both English and Cherokee.

Sabbath morning there was a good congregation, but it was rather a trying service, between babies, dogs and the talking and running about of those that came in late.

One cannot say babies must not cry, they will any how, and the mothers cannot come without them, and one gets quite used to that sort of accompaniment.

Later the same writer tells of a trip some ten miles farther on to another full-blood station. "I met M. (the interpreter) at his house and we started after dinner, reaching our destination before sundown. We held a prayer meeting in the evening. The next morning we called on Mr. and Mrs. Mankiller, and took dinner with them; they were much more harmless than the name would imply; after dinner we made a few calls and then assembled under the arbor for service. This arbor is quite picturesque and on warm days more comfortable than a small room. It is constructed of logs, posts being braced at each corner, and covered with branches; a table and chair are placed for the preacher, while the congregation occupy seats taken from the wagons, or repose in comfortable attitudes on the ground. The table is adorned with a pail of water and dipper, from which the thirsty may refresh themselves during service. It is certainly a funny sight, the women in white aprons and sun-bonnets, most of them carrying babies, while the men are dressed much like the whites, save for the "hunting-shirt" before described; and here too, we see genuine Indian features and complexions and an occasional head of long, straight hair.

We had dinner and a good one, the best meal I had at J's a full-blood, but such a good comfortable house, everything in good order, clean and neat. None of the people but S. would speak English. After another service in the school house we made our way back by the shortest trail, over some wild looking hills, reaching our journey's end about dark.

A day school at one of these points is rapidly transforming all the younger generation into English speaking children. They learn very rapidly and are extravagantly fond of music. They sing by note and take the parts with no musical instruction. Gathering about one book perhaps a dozen will sing at sight a new selection, carrying the parts; and the harmony is sweet though wierd, as they put into the singing quavers and tunes which the composer never dreamed of. Their language is peculiar, in that the entire eighty-four letters (each a syllable) can be pronounced without changing the position of the mouth, the lips being almost closed. The full-bloods dread to see their native tongue superseded by English, but it cannot be many years before few Cherokee speaking Indians will remain, especially as it is against the laws of the United States to teach in any Indian tongue; not a difficult law to enforce among the Cherokees, as their language is not easy to learn. We are satisfied to attempt only an occasional grunt or word, saying to them as we say to our readers "O si soo-n'a-li." (Good-day.)

F. H. L.

The Friday Morning Club gave a most delightful Mendelssohn Evening at the home of Mrs. Henry Harris, Lincoln Street, Friday evening, May 29th.

The house was beautifully decorated with palms and other potted plants and about two hundred friends of the club listened to a program which no lover of good music could fail to appreciate. It included

1. Overture to Fingal's Cave. (Two Pianos eight hands) Miss Morse, Mrs. Prentice, Mrs. Brand, Mrs. Bassett.
2. Vocal duets
  - a Greeting
  - b The Maybells and the Flowers
 Mrs. Merrill, Mrs. Bassett.
3. Piano Solo. Rondo Capriccioso Op. 14, Mrs. Hunt.
4. Songs
  - a Cradle Song
  - b Spring Morning
 Mrs. Johnson
5. Duo Concertant, (Two pianos, four hands) Miss Pratt, Mrs. Brand
6. Vocal Trio, Hearts feel that Love Thee Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Rice, Mrs. Marble
7. Violin Solo, Andante from Violin Concerto Mrs. Winslow
8. Songs
  - a The Garland
  - b Rosy Hours of South
 Mrs. Ruggles
9. Overture to Midsummer Night's Dream Miss Morse, Mrs. Brand, Mrs. Prentice, Mrs. Bassett.
10. Solo and Chorus, Ye Spotted Snakes (Midsummer Night's Dream)

Mrs. Merrill	Mrs. Rice
Mrs. Harris	Mrs. Mitchell
Mrs. Johnson	Mrs. Marble
Mrs. Ruggles	Mrs. Johnson
Miss Flagg.

In a programme of such uniform excellence it is very hard to discriminate as each number seemed to deserve special mention. The Duo by Miss Pratt and Mrs. Brand was perhaps the most finished production of the evening, although the audience was most enthusiastic over Mrs. Winslow's violin solo, and the closing Good Night chorus from Midsummer Night's Dream was especially well rendered. No city could fail to be proud of a club of musicians capable of giving such an evening's entertainment.

Charles Wilder.

"In the midst of life we are in death." LIGHT, this week, mentions the death of several aged and respected citizens. Mr. Wilder, for many years, Mr. H. W. Miller's book-keeper preceded his employer to the spirit land, dying Thursday the 28th ult. His home was on Lincoln Street. He leaves a widow, a son and a daughter. The burial was in Leominster. He was a frequent and welcome caller at this office.

Books and Bookmen.

Scientific American.

One of the first articles of the month that the astronomical reader of the Scientific American seeks, is the one describing the position of the planets. By this means, he can easily find them in the heavens. During the past month there have been articles on the railroad signal systems and the Baldwin Locomotives now being made for use in Australia. The manufacture of the Victor bicycle by the Overman Wheel Co., Chicopee Falls, is fully described. A recently discovered portrait of Columbus is shown. It was painted by Piombo and is now owned by Dr. De Orchi of Como. The efforts of John Ruggles, which secured the present Patent Office, are described by his son. The Eiffel tower has been put to scientific use by a manometer of nearly a thousand feet in length by which a pressure up to four hundred atmospheres may be obtained and the behavior of gases under pressure is being studied. It is claimed that France is the birthplace of the typewriter, as a patent was taken out for one in 1833. It was a crude affair and the description of it is not very plain. This antedated by only a decade the earliest American typewriter patented by a Worcester man, Thurber, in 1843. Other articles of interest are A Hanging Garden, 156x132 on the top of the building of the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Co.; Review of the History of Tin; Historic Spoons; Cable Road in New York; New Suspension Bridge from Hoboken to New York. $3 a year. Munn & Co., New York, N. Y.

M. Quad.

"Speaking of Mr. Lewis, who made himself famous through the columns of the Detroit Free Press over the nom de plume of "M. Quad," it is interesting to note that, however it may be as regards the Star of Empire, the American humorist gravitates toward the east. Artemas Ward, Bret Harte, Mark Twain, Bill Nye, and M. Quad, first let their frolicsome fancies have free play in the lands of the Setting Sun. Artemas Ward wandered as far eastward as London and in that city Bret Harte makes his home. Mark Twain lives in that ancient and conservative New England city, Hartford, Conn. Bill Nye has a castle, moat and drawbridge on Staten Island and from his towering turrets looks down upon a land flowing with milk and honey and mosquitoes. And now the prolific originator of "Bijah" and "His Honor," of "Mr. and Mrs. Bowser" and "The Arizona Kicker" is plying his pen within sight of the Brooklyn Bridge. It seems to be the custom for a funny man to crack his jokes for a few years in the west and then migrate to the effete and solemn east where the bright and shining piastre awaits the man who makes us chuckle."—Curtis Kinglake in Albany Press.

The Atlantic Monthly, June, 1891, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston and New York. $4 per annum.

The newly published history of Abraham Lincoln from the joint labors of Messrs. Nicolay and Hay calls forth a long and interesting critique by Carl Schurz. It is not a little strange that a man, German by birth and rearing should be able to speak and write in such a thoroughly American manner. Further than the style of writing, Mr. Schurz is, apparently, American in his sympathies and prejudices. Certainly, no more discriminating and sympathetic article on the somewhat hackneyed theme of Lincoln has been written in many a day. There is no effort to bring forth any new facts, but rather to call attention to the salient features of the bulky biography by the gentlemen who were the President's secretaries. Bradford Torrey contributes a delightful sketch on the hatching and development of a Humming Bird under the title, "A Widow and Twins." "Classical Literature in Translation" by Prof. Richard G. Moulton, of English University Extension fame seems rather radical to a schoolmaster who wishes his boys to make their own translations. After all, perhaps the Professor is right. We may doubt, however, whether our boys would learn much Greek in preparatory schools were teachers to recommend translations. Prof. Palmer's article on that queer old Harvard Professor, Sophocles is not long enough. There must be many an article yet in reserve. That mine of reminiscence should be worked. "What the Southern Negro is doing for Himself" by Samuel J. Barrows is an exceedingly fair and hopeful discussion of this most important subject. His conclusions are very encouraging for the late bondsman. President Gilman contributes an interesting essay "On the Study of Geography," quite pertinent in the light of the present exhibit in Boston.

New England Magazine, June, 86 Federal Street, Boston. $3 a year.

First as to the distinctively New England matter. Elizabeth Akers Allen contributes a valuable account of that delightful Boston humorist, the late Benjamin Shillaber. There are illustrations to keep in mind the pleasant face of the originator of that quaintest of characters, Mrs. Partington. There are several fac-similes of noted Harvard poems; a profusely illustrated account of Lynn as a typical New England city; a biographical sketch of George L. Stearns as "An Anti-Slavery Hero," but the best New England subject is Mr. Edwin D. Mead's, "The Message of Puritanism for this Time." Under this head Mr. Mead succeeds in hitting many a prominent political head a hard rap. There is need enough of this treatment and not the least deserving are some of the degenerate descendants of these very Puritan ancestors. The first pages of the magazine are occupied with "Wagner and the Paris Mob." This is obviously the chief article in the number or intended to be but many will read those already named before turning to the description of the great composer and his works. "Early Days of the First Telegraph Line" tells the story of the line from Baltimore to Washington. Other readable matter makes up this interesting number.

Good Housekeeping, Clark W. Bryan & Co., Publishers, Springfield, Mass. $2 a year.

The frontispiece is "Priscilla Spinning," and has an accompanying poem. The story of this number would cheer any one with its fun, and the sketch of W. D. Howells with illustration is worth the price of the magazine. There are many series of papers on all topics of household interest running through the pages, and so many short, and really good articles that it is impossible to name all. As it is but twenty cents a number every one may have it and see for themselves what a treasure it is.

Babyland, D. Lothrop & Co., Boston. Price 50 cents.

Again comes this pretty book for the little ones and all through it are seen the pictures and stories that will surely please those who must be entertained in some way. We cannot say too much in praise of these magazines for the young.

Our Little Men and Women, an illustrated monthly for youngest readers, D. Lothrop & Co., Boston. Price $1 per year.

This magazine is clearly for the readers of the family for there are many stories that will just suit them, and they will think it much nicer if spelled out all by themselves. There are six full page illustrations and all the pages have more or less of pictures. No household, where children live, should be without this publication.

Phrenological Journal for May, Fowler & Wells Co. publishers, 775 Broadway, New York. $1.50 per year.

In the Phrenological Journal and Science of Health for May there are several notable titles that must commend themselves to readers, whether regular or occasional, especially the piquant remarks in "The Voice," "Laughter" and "The Hair," and the odd "Reverie on Feet," with its striking sketches of attitude; the interesting biography of Dr. Charles Caldwell recalls a very marked character of forty years ago; Phrenological Hits, of which Prof Sizer has selected four, begins a series of items that will add to the loveliness of his department. Lester A. Roberts and E. A. Chapman, both gentlemen well known in New York and Brooklyn circles, receive that appreciative consideration that solid worth and more than common capacity deserve. Por traits accompany the writer's remarks. Dr. Kenealy's very significant study, "The Talent of Motherhood," is concluded with pertinent and valuable inferences. "Education and the State," has the ring of direct application, and so has "Cultivated Wilfulness." In the Science and Health Department, Alcoholism, Chemical Notes of Hygienic Treatment and the absurdities of "Modern Dress," a very witty bit of writing, are leading features. The editor talks of Mozart's skull, Leigh Hunt of the Nose, and the new society for examining brains. The other parts of the number are filled with reasonable items, not one of which has dry flavor.

Cosmopolitan for June Cosmopolitan Publishing Co. Madison Square, New York. $2.40 per year.

With over 120 illustrations, the Cosmopolitan for June sets a fast pace in the handicap for magazine honors. The personal element enters largely into its composition, and an impression of beautiful women is the first received by the reader who turns its pages. The frontispiece is a portrait of Madame de Pompadour, and pertains to a bright sketch of a summer spent in the home of that famous woman by Amelie Rivers and her guests. Miss Julia Magruder, the writer, was one of those guests, and instantaneous photographs are used to illustrate the scenes of a delightful holiday amidst unusual surroundings. A pleasant insight into the attractiveness of Japanese women is given in a paper by Henry T. Finck, illustrated by a large number of photographs of pretty faces. The art article of the month describes the work of Gustave Dore, with elaborate engravings which illustrate very well the masterpiece of that wonderful artist. Thomas B. Connery, formerly managing editor of the New York Herald, gives interesting reminiscences of the first work of Stanley for that journal, and of his neighbor, Thomas A. Edison. S. G. W. Benjamin, ex-Minister to Persia, tells the true story of Noor Mahal, the Light of the Harem, celebrated by Thomas Moore in Lallah Rookh. This bit of Eastern biography is illustrated from Oriental sources. Three continents furnish material for the June number. The European contributions consist of a description of a Model Municipality, an article well worth the attention of Americans interested in municipal government; the Woolwich Arsenal, which Mr. Pelham-Clinton, through influential relatives, was permitted to have photographed expressly for the Cosmopolitan; and a charming sketch of Beau Brummell and his times. Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen's story is illustrated by Wenzell, whose work on Life has made him so well known the country over. The half-million people who write for periodicals will find matter of great interest in an article by Mr. Frank Howard Howe, for some time one of the editors of a New York monthly. Mr. Howe gives his personal experiences of the manuscripts of the "Great Unpublished," and offers much advice that will be found useful. Perhaps the most valuable article of the number is that contributed by Mr. Abner L. Frazer to the literature of the farmers' movement. The Cosmopolitan prize of $200 for the best article on "the needs of the farmer, his hours of labor, and the national legislation necessary to his prosperity," was awarded by the judges to this gentleman. The article itself is brightened by a series of cartoons by the famous artists, Attwood of Boston and Dan Beard of New York.

Outing for June, Outing Co., publishers, 239 5th Ave., New York. Contents.

Beyond the Great Lakes, A. B. Guptill, illustrated by Sandham; How Jack Lindsay bested the Captain, Francis Trevelyan, illustrated by Watson; The First Bicycle Tour of Yellowstone Park, W. O. Owen; Summer Cruising in the English Channel, by the late Lady Arnold; The Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, Capt. D. M. Tallor, U. S. A., richly illustrated by Huggar; Distance Running, Malcolm W. Ford, illustrated from photos by Huggar; Harry's Career at Vale (Continued) John Seymour Wood, illustrated by Watson; Riding in Japan, Cornelia Dorothea Chandler, illustrated by Huggar, engravings by Held and Foy; Virgin Streams and Lakes for Sport, Ernest Ingersoll, illustrated by Fleming, Mulert and Cary; A Pastime for Body and Brain, Truman A. DeWeese; Scientific Tennis Strokes, Part I, J. Parouley Paret, illustrated by Watson, from instantaneous photos; Canoe and Rod on the Thames, Ed. W. Sandys; The Rowing Clubs of Canada, Capt. Thos. Blackwell, illustrated; Cricket in New England and the Longwood Club, Will Koffe, illustrated; Outing Monthly Record—with contributions from Capt. Kenealy, Chase Mellen, Malcolm Ford, E. Sandry, "The Prowler," Lionel Moses, Jr., C. B. Vaux, Lawrence Timson, James Watson and others.

The American Revolution by John Fiske, in two volumes, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston and New York. $4 the set. Vol. II.

The first volume of this interesting work left us at the end of the Saratoga campaign.

The British had staked much on this cast and had lost. The second volume opens with Chapter VIII and in it are detailed the consequences of the Saratoga campaign and the French Alliance. Herein comes the description of the character of Lord Chatham, a masterly production. In Chapter IX are detailed the sufferings of that winter at Valley Forge along with the plottings that were rife in certain circles to supplant Washington by that mere accident, Horatio Gates. No writer of American affairs has so fully illustrated the connection and the philosophy of events as has Mr. Fiske. The odds against which Washington labored are very clearly set forth, and the Conway Cabal explained. Next we have Monmouth and Newport with an elaborate delineation of the singular conduct of General Charles Lee. There seems little doubt that he was a traitor to the cause. The terrible devastations made by the Indians on the Frontier form the theme of Chapter XI. It is one of the most interesting in the book. In Chapter XII, the combats on the ocean are set forth and Chapter XIII is called "A Year of Disasters." It recounts the Southern campaign, the redeeming features being the bravery and genius of Marion and Sumpter. Benedict Arnold is the subject of Chapter XIV and in no place is the interest more intense than here. The details of his treachery and the analysis of his character are thoroughly worked out. André, of course, comes in for his words of praise and condemnation, for however much we may exalt our own spies, we must necessarily hate those of the enemy. The closing chapter has the single headword, Yorktown, and that word means much to Americans. Under this head are found the famous North Carolina campaign with the military progress of General Greene and the final and complete overthrow and surrender of Cornwallis. In the author's concluding words we are told that the liberation of America meant liberation of the English race for George II. would have ruled an arbitrary monarch had the fates been to him more propitious. To conclude, Mr. Fiske has written a history that is more than a history. It is a mirror of events during our Revolutionary struggle. It is a philosophical discussion of a series of battles and acts that have done much for the freedom of mankind. With all the research and authorities, with all the facts and dates, we still have a book that no one can take in hand without absorbing interest. It will do much for the present generation in making clear and bright, the otherwise dark skies of the Revolutionary struggle. For sale by Putnam, Davis & Co.

Table Talk, Philadelphia. Price $1.

The frontispiece is of children in the field. "Going to the Country" tells how one family enjoyed the Summer. There are new menus for this month prepared by Mrs. Rorer; an article on Ice Water; and on the Silver Cross; and some recipes from the Lunch Club. The advice given in an "Out of Door Cure" might be followed by any one with benefit. "Home Entertainments" will help many and the pages of housekeepers' inquiries will help in a different direction. A bit of Washington, and the usual number of pages are devoted to fashion and poetry. Altogether the June number is a good one.

Which Wins by Mary H. Ford, Lee & Shepherd, publishers, Boston, Mass.

This volume is dedicated to the Farmer's Alliance and deals largely with life on a Nebraska farm and the difficulty encountered in trying to make a living on these vast plains. The question seems to be which shall win, money or honesty and right? The principal characters are Stephen Ward, a stern uncompromising broker who takes advantage of his friends if thereby he may obtain a little more money. His wife a brilliant woman who has no sympathy with her husband's hard nature. John Thurston who tries to right the wrongs of the world and finally dies worn out with the struggle. It is through the John Thurstons of the country that we must look for the good to come later, and we cannot have too many of just such men as he. It is a timely book, considering the many political doctrines that are over spreading the land.

With the June number, the Educational Review begins its second volume. At this season when many young men are considering where they will study in Europe, the article on "The Present Condition of the German Universities," by Prof. Mattoon M. Curtis, has a timely interest. Other contributions to the number are: "Applications of Psychology in Education," by Dr. Mary Putnam Jacobi, illustrated with twenty-one diagrams; "The American High School," by Ray Greene Huling, President of the American Institute of Instruction; and "The Education of the Will," by Prof. J. Clark Murray; a discussion between Mr. Albert L. Arry and Prof. Fernando Sanford on "The Use of Text-books in Teaching Elementary Science," and one by Sup't. Wm. H. Maxwell on "Teachers' Salaries." The reviews are by Professors Jastrow of the University of Wisconsin, Waggener of the University of Texas, Venable of the University of Virginia, Genung of Amherst, Chapin of Wellesley, Myers of the University of Cincinnati, etc. The department of "Education in Foreign Periodicals" includes "Some Characteristics of a Sound Mind," "The School of the Future," "The School for Oriental Languages at Berlin."

The Misses Stanwood of Boston, daughters of Capt. Stanwood of the steamer "Yarmouth" of the Yarmouth Steamship Line, spent Memorial day in this city with the family of John Coulson, 12 Highland Street.

Miss Carrie C. Kingsley was graduated last week from the Chauncey Hall School Kindergarten Training Class. The subject of her graduation essay was "Art Training in the Kindergarten."

The Reform Club, at a well attended meeting held Monday night, at its hall, 566 Main Street, elected the following officers for the ensuing six months: President, W. H. Robinson; 1st vice-president, Alexander Comrie; 2nd vice-president, F. A. Clark; 3rd vice-president, J. H. Layng; recording secretary, A. F. Costigan; financial secretary, John H. Hessions; treasurer, H. E. Walker; steward, M. T. Dwyer; marshal, T. Jefferson and C. H. Gerry; sergeant-at-arms, C. H. Elsbree.

A True Sketch.

Did you ever visit a dispensary? No? Then may I tell you what I saw and heard the other afternoon at the Homeopathic Dispensary? For a long time I had been anxious to peep into the lives of the poor children of the city and my knowledge was sadly disproportioned to my sympathy; so when Dr. G. invited me to attend her weekly clinic I gladly assented.

The appointed Friday was one of those warm, enervating days that seemed to rightfully belong in midsummer and not April; one of those days when one likes to make excuses to stay indoors; yet Dr. G. never thought of excusing herself from her self imposed task, and as for me, the opportunity was much too prized to be neglected.

As we were crossing Harrison Avenue on Concord street, we heard a child's voice from a neighboring back yard exclaim, "I say, mother! There goes my doctor; I guess I'm sick," and a moment later the patter of bare feet was heard behind us. Turning, we saw the brightest, raggedest, dirtiest little fellow of eight, his yellow hair waving to and fro through the torn crown of an old straw hat. "Halloa, doctor, holloa!" he panted, as he overtook us. "Well Freddie," smiling down into the upturned face, "Are you really sick today?" "Not 'zactly, kinder sick though, cos I got to go to the 'Spensary." In a moment more we had reached our destination; Freddie looked up with a roguish smile, "I guess I don't need some medicine today doctor. Goodbye," and soon the little bare feet were trotting swiftly homewards.

Under the main entrance of the B. U. Medical College is that of the Dispensary; here my friend left me to consult with a physician in waiting. Meanwhile I looked around me. The narrow hall in which I sat, ran through the building. The several doors leading from it on the right were marked respectively, "Pharmacy," "Surgical," "Medical," "Women's," and those on the left, "Heart and Lung Diseases," "Nervous Diseases," "Waiting Room".

By the last door hung a slate, and my eye was attracted by such requests as these: "Plees send a doctor to John Black, 250 A St., as soon as you posseably can." "Plese come to Mrs. Brown 11 B St., as soon as possaple, directly, for she is awful sick." Possible seemed a favorite word in these requests, and in one was abbreviated to poss. As I looked upon this inelegant, almost unintelligible chirography, I wondered what hands those were that penned the poor lines; were they prompted by love? Was it anxiety for the sick ones that caused it to be so blurred? And did they get well, or did they pass beyond that 'immediate' care of the physician, to the country where shall be no more death neither any more pain. Through the open door beside me I looked into the crowded waiting room; nearly one hundred patients were gathered there and I judged one half were children who represented all ages from the infant of a few months to the boy and girl of twelve and fourteen. Some were respectably, though poorly dressed. Some there were whose shabby clothes were pitifully neat, but more, alas! represented homes from which neatness thrift and possibly love, were banished.

What studies they were, these faces! Here the careless, indifferent ones; there the proud reserved ones that seemed to look upon the physicians as their natural enemies; then the frightened tearful faces with large, pleading eyes that seemed to be begging pardon for being there, for being ill at all, and those pale pinched faces too sick to wonder or to question at the surroundings! Surely it was upon such faces as these that Mrs. Browning looked when she wrote of those who were "orphaned of the heavenly love and earthly," who say

"We are weary and we cannot run or leap
If we cared for any meadows it were merely
To drop down in them and sleep,"

From what sort of homes did they come, I wondered. Have they fathers and mothers, these little ones? What do they know of the bed-time story, the evening prayer and the good night kiss, the birthright of every child.

When my friend returned I followed her through the waiting-room, on the opposite side of which were doors opening into the Eye and Ear and Children's Departments; into this latter room we went, a room so tiny that it held scarcely more than half a dozen persons. A noticeable piece of furniture in the room, was an old fashioned case which reached from the floor to the ceiling. "That case is connected with the beginning of the dispensary," observed the doctor, as she arranged her records for the afternoon's work. "Please tell me about it," I urged, "if you can work and talk together." Would you too like to hear?

More than thirty-four years ago, several philanthropic gentlemen of Boston engaged a small back room in Tremont Temple with the design of practicing there the laws of Hahnemann. A different physician went each day to attend to the wants of the sick poor, and one, who recently died in Newton, prepared for many years, at a small salary, the tinctures for the physicians and dispensed medicine to the poor. This little case is the same one they used in that tiny back room. After fourteen years at Tremont Temple it was found practicable to remove to Burroughs Place, and a few years later a branch was established in connection with the B. U. Medical College. During this growth and these changes, two men have been closely connected with it. One is surgeon at the Dispensary, the other, who has given his valuable services there for twenty years, is the the loved and honored professor of Heart and Lung Diseases in the Medical College. The influence of his life, has been a constant inspiration to the students, and truly many of earth's suffering ones will rise up in our Father's kingdom and call him blessed. With such loyal supporters as these, the Dispensary, if its birth was an humble one, has had a lusty youth. Thirty-six physicians give a portion of their time weekly to its needs, more than one hundred eighty-three thousand, two hundred eighty one patients have been treated, and more than half a million prescriptions have been given to the poor.

"Surely," I said, "if the best Prophet of the Future is the past, it will have a grand old age."

It was now two o'clock, and an assistant, throwing open the door, called, "Number one for the children," and there came limping painfully in a boy of thirteen, closely followed by his younger brother. After the usual preliminaries of obtaining name, age and home address, the doctor asked pleasantly, "And now what is the matter Robert, are you really sick?" Robert gave an amused little laugh. "Oh, no! I'm never sick; only got a sore foot." This proved a very talkative patient; while the wound was being dressed, the little brother was carefully observant of operations; Robert resented this close scrutiny as not complimentary to the doctor, and said brusquely, "You needn't be a watchin'; this doctor understands her business, now I can tell you." He was irrepressible. "My cousin, that's Jim he says that he come to you onct, and he says, says he, that you's boss; but" and his voice lowered, "he says you's an old maid, and if he ever say that again" instantly brightening at the prospect of some day executing his threat, "I'll knock him down, for you ain't an old maid, bees you, doctor?" "Why yes, Robert I am, if not being married is to be an old maid; do you really think it is something dreadful?" And could any young gallant have answered more gracefully than this ragged little urchin, as he looked up, smiling, through the pain, "No'm I guess it is something pretty nice." By this time the foot was dressed and Robert with promises to obey directions, departed.

A lad of nearly the same age responded to number two. Thomas was quite tidy and clean, and his reserved, half defiant air was a great contrast to the frankness of number one. He kept his head turned away, as he answered in a low tone to the questions about the long seated cough. "Do you run much, Thomas? but there! I need not ask a boy if he runs, need I?" For the first time the boy looked up with a half smile. "Do you get cross with the boys quickly? Ah, I thought so; well, I rather like boys with wills of their own, especially the boys who try to control their own wills." The boy's eyes opened, his reserve was gone, surely he might trust this person who could see good in boys who "got mad."

A sweet-faced girl of fifteen was the next to enter, and she came in so timidly that, as in the case of Thomas, one felt that it was by no wish of her own that she was there. "Are you afraid of me dear?" came the doctor's pleasant query; I am not here just to ask you questions but as your friend, to help you." And before the girl knew it she was drawn by that wonderful power of sympathy, which can be felt rather than expressed, to tell of the severe headaches, the long walk to the Latin School, the hard study and ambition to teach, if only she could study at school, of the hard worked parents and the poverty ruled home. When she went from the office, her glad face showed that she carried with her something infinitely more helpful than the medicine, loving sympathy and inspiring words of encouragement, the value of which can never be estimated.

Each care seemed to be especially interesting, and one of the most interesting to me, was that of "small faced Alice." She was a tiny body, with a child's face, but a woman's years; and her expression showed that saddest of sights, a darkened intellect. I had heard how the doctor had met her two years before, on her way to the children's clinic and invited her to go with her, as she saw that she needed medical aid; since then, sick or well, she rarely missed a week at the Dispensary. "You like to come here, do you Alice?" I asked. "Yes'm, I knows when a body is kind to me, if I am only Alice; I knows when the finest lady in Boston stops every day and speaks pleasant to her as hasn't got any folks, her as the boys mock and call 'small-faced Alice.'" "

The next patient was a little fellow whose face shone with excitement, as he asked "Ain't I clean 'nough now, doctor?" and indeed he could have vied with the "Ruggleses in the rear" after their Christmas Day bath with its finishing touch of sand soap. It appeared that this personification of cleanliness had been sent home the week before to be washed, "For," he was told gravely, "how can I tell whether you look sick or well, through such a dirty face. But if some of these cases brought the smiles, there were others that brought the tears. There was George, a manly little fellow of ten, who had been a regular patient for some time and even then was not well; this day he said "I can't come no more doctor. I'm going to work," and regret and pride each strove for the mastery in his brave little voice. "Going to work! why, my dear boy, you ought to be in school! Why is this?" "Well, we're awful poor and father he can't buy me any books, and I'm going to earn two dollars every week at being an errand boy." Think of being deprived of his rightful inheritance, an education, for two dollars a week. It made his poor little story all the sadder to know that money that should buy the shoes went for drink.

One after another, they came and went, some with Death's own stamp upon their faces, until the last one numbered thirty-nine. This last was a quiet, sad-faced woman, dressed in plain, mourning garments. "Do you remember me, doctor?" she asked, "I am little Johnnie Buckley's mother." I wondered why this name should seem familiar to me, when I suddenly remembered that it was the name of a little patient who used to come to the Dispensary last summer, in whom Dr. G. was greatly interested. "I have thought often of Johnnie," she was now saying to the mother, "when I returned to my clinic in October, I had forgotten his last name, so inquired in vain for some news of the child whose sweetly patient face and ethereal smile have always remained in my heart. Please tell me all about his sickness." The mother obeyed. "They told us here that you had taken another doctor's office hours and would not be here; we came for three or four weeks, and each time Johnnie would ask oh so eagerly, 'Is she there, mamma? is my bewful doctor there?' Then one day he said he was too tired to be taken to the Dispensary, too tired to be made well. He grew worse every day and begged constantly for his 'bewful doctor.' I wanted to go for you, but my husband said we were too poor to afford such an expensive doctor." "O you should not have thought of money, you should have known how gladly I would have gone." "I knew you would say so," replied the mother through her sobs. After a few moments she went on, "Why I came today was to ask you if you would like his picture, with the last words he spoke written on it." Carefully unwrapping the picture, she laid it on the desk.

There was silence in the little room for a long time.

Would you see the picture too? A face delicately featured, shaded by close clustering dark hair; a sweet little mouth, with a tender wistful expression; eyes, large and brown that seemed to be looking beyond mortal vision, and one wondered what revelation of the spirit world had been granted them; an indefinable something in the expression gave one a feeling of peace and strength. Underneath was written, Little Johnnie.

"O Mamma I do love her so."

—Miriam W. Newcomb.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

Ben T. Hammond's forty-ninth and fiftieth pupils' recitals took place Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, May 26 and 27 in Horticultural Hall. They formed a very fitting close to a very successful season. The pupils who took part Tuesday evening were Misses Halley E. Battey, Natalie Trainque, Anna L. Dunn, Alice M. Sharpe, Lillian Rusack, Cora L. L. Fisher, Mrs. Evelyn Brookes, Miss Mary E. McLaughlin, Miss Julie M. Jones, Miss Edith K. Smith, Miss Kate J. Matthews, Miss Bertha L. Fletcher Frank N. Prescott, John W. Stewart, and Edward J. Huard. There was also two chorus numbers.

As a whole the program on this evening was rather uneventful, it was hardly up to Mr. Hammond's standard. There were several good numbers though; Messrs. Stewart and Robinson's duet was well done as was also Mrs. Brooks' "The Swallow's Song." Mr. Stewart's "The Bonnie Banks of Loch Lomond" and Mr. Huard's song "Leonore"

Wednesday evening the recital was a pronounced success. At eight o'clock it was difficult to find an empty seat. The pupils had the assistance of Mrs. S. E. Lawton, harpist; Mr. Charles H. Grout, pianist, and Mr. Walter G. Ingalls, organist. The program opened with Hollaender's "Fairy Footsteps" sung by a chorus composed of past and present pupils.

It also closed with a chorus, "Faithful and True" from Wagner's Lohengrin. The greatest triumph of the evening was achieved by Miss Lizzie Farrell. Her first piece was the beautiful aria "Lascia ch'io Pianga" from Händels Italian opera "Rinaldo." Her second was Hullah's "The three Fishers."

Miss Annie Warren also gave two songs which ranked among the best on the program. They were Logé's "Norwegian Song" and Campbell's "Song of Spring" Mr. Walter G. Ingalls gave a Vocalion organ solo which gave evidence both of the player's ability and of the excellent qualities of the instrument. Among the others whose work was especially good were Miss Genevieve Burke, Miss Agnes Gallagher, Miss Jessie L. Poad, Mr. Addison E. McGaffey and Mr. Eugene A. O'Connor.

At the close of the recital Mr. Hammond invited his past and present pupils to a brief informal reunion in the library. While the guests were enjoying a light refreshment served by Rebboli, Mr. Hammond was presented with a costly diamond ring and a book containing the names of his pupils who contributed towards the gift. He was so surprised that it was impossible for him to say anything at first but he finally expressed his thanks. A brief musical entertainment followed. Mrs. Lawton played a harp solo, Mr. Hammond sang, accompanied by Mrs. Lawton, Messrs. Stewart, Huard, White and Robinson gave a selection and the choir of the first Unitarian Church of which Mr. Hammond is director sang "Calm be Thy Slumbers."

Dr. L. M. Benson.

A Lowell, Wis, paper of nearly two years since, pays glowing tribute to Dr. Louis Monroe Benson who died in that place June 4, 1889.

He was a native of Sturbridge, Mass., born June 2, 1828. He studied medicine in Worcester in the Forties and practiced for a time in Brimfield, going to Wisconsin in 1851. He also taught school some, and had been town and county superintendent. His wife was Mary D. Webster and to them were born five children. A nephew, Lewis Benson, resides in Worcester at 81 Chandler Street. It is quite likely that Dr. B. is recalled by many residents.

Our Worcester boys, somehow or other, are generally on hand and they, frequently get there. Louie E. Ware, recently elected editor in chief of the Cornell Sun has been elected secretary and treasurer of the New York State Intercollegiate Press Association. At the banquet which followed the meeting in Utica, Mr. Ware responded to "Press work; should ladies be represented on editorial boards in co-educational institutions?" Which side did you take Louie? LIGHT hopes you did not go back on your early rearing.

FOR THE LAUNDRY.

BRUSSELS.

SOAP.

J. A. Long

CLEARANCE SALE

OF

Bedroom * Sets !

SIX PATTERNS.

ANTIQUE SETS,	$17.	Former Price $25.
OAK SETS,	$27.	Former Price $38.
OAK SETS,	$29.	Former Price $45.
OAK SETS,	$37.	Former Price $54.
OAK SETS,	$46.	Former Price $67.
OAK SETS,	$50.	Former Price $72.

J. A. LONG

Franklin Square Furniture Rooms,

555 Main St.

Goods sold on 4 months' time at cash price.

Good to Eat.

The first mention of ice-cream that is found in history is in the account of the festivities following Washington's first inauguration as President in the city of New York in 1789. Among the ices used on that occasion was ice-cream, which is said to have been prepared under the direct supervision of Dolly Adams wife of John Adams, the second President.—St. Louis Republican.

Truffled chicken is prepared as follows: Boil until tender a nice plump chicken. When cold remove all the white meat and cut into dice. Put one tablespoonful of butter in a small saucepan. When melted add one tablespoonful of flour; mix until smooth; add half a pint of milk, stir continually until it boils, add the chicken, a half teaspoonful of salt and a dash of white pepper. When hot add the yolks of two eggs, a cup of finely chopped mushrooms and four truffles cut into tiny pieces. Cook one minute and serve in the small cups.

Eggwiches.

Cut the top nearly off of rolls that are a little stale, remove all the crumbs and soft part possible, and fill with stuffing of chicken (veal, tongue, or any meat desired), finely chopped, with celery-salt, a little parsley, pepper, plenty of butter, or olive oil, and to each roll allow the yolks of two hard boiled eggs, which should be thoroughly mashed with the other ingredients. Fill the rolls, shut the top, and place in the oven to get hot.

Ground Rice Pudding.

Take five tablespoonfuls of ground rice and boil it with a quart of fresh milk, with a grated nutmeg, and a small stick of cinnamon and stir in a quarter of a pound of butter and a pint of cream. When cold add the yolks of eight eggs and the whites of five well-beaten, half a pound of currants, and half a pound of minced citron. Bake in a deep dish,—or boil if you prefer. Eat it with cream sauce.

Boiled Custard.

Put a quart of fresh milk in a porcelain saucepan, and set it to boil. Break eight eggs into a bowl with eight tablespoonfuls of sugar and beat until very light. As soon as the milk boils pour it on the eggs, stirring it well. Wash the saucepan out clean, and put the custard back into it. Set it on the stove to boil, stirring it all of the time. When thick enough, remove to a bowl, and flavor with vanilla or lemon.

Hard Ginger Bread.

Put half a pound of lard or quarter of a pound of butter with half a pint of molasses over the fire until warm. Then add one tablespoonful of ginger, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, and if you like, a dash of red pepper. Now add to this two cups of brown sugar, half a pint of cold water, a level teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda; dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of warm water. Mix all the ingredients thoroughly together, and add sufficient flour to make a stiff dough, about one quart. Roll it into a thin sheet, cut into round cakes and bake in a moderate oven. This will make a large quantity.—"Table Talk."

Moderation is a virtue always.

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H. Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists.

11 Pleasant St.,

Worcester, Mass

Residence, 61 West Street.

PREMIER SAFETY BICYCLES.

Not because they are English but because they are Best.

JOHN A. LOWE, Agent, 630 Main Street.

The Readers of Light
I most cordially invite
To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything
They would expect to find

In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,

Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,

10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL, Gold, Silver and Nickel Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.

13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St.,
Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework,
Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

J. S. WESBY & SONS,

BOOK * BINDING

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

387 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES

at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

RICHARD * HEALY

Will Commence on FRIDAY, JUNE 5, a Grand MARK-DOWN SALE of all Spring Goods, Comprising

Ladies' Reefers, Blazers, Lace, Beaded and Camels' Hair Wraps, Woolen and Wash Suits, Newmarkets and Peasant Garments, Silk and Jersey Waists, Tea Gowns and Wrappers, Cambric, Sateen and Cheviot Shirt Waists, Misses and Children's Garments.

All will be sold at dull season prices.

NEW YORK SUIT AND CLOAK STORE, 512 MAIN STREET.

PENSIONS! * PENSIONS!

THE DISABILITY BILL IS A LAW.
Soldiers Disabled Since the War are Entitled. Dependent widows and parents now dependent whose sons died from the effects of army service are included. If you wish your claim speedily and successfully prosecuted, address JAMES TANNER, Late Commissioner of Pensions, Washington, D. C.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the
ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,
92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always
be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

Lieut. Marcus D. Cronin left Monday afternoon for Boston, where he intends to spend a few days with his brother, Dr. J. J. Cronin, after which he will visit Albany, N. Y. and Washington. In the latter city on the 24th, he will act as best man for a brother officer, Lieut. M. J. Linehan. He expects to leave immediately afterward for his post, Fort Asineboine, where he will report July 3.

Mrs. Hattie Pease Adams of Brockton, Mass., was the guest, last week, of Mrs. Kate Parmenter of Salem street.

The City Guards, Capt. Condy, go into Camp with the 2d Regiment at Framingham, next week. From the 9th to the 12th they will dwell and drill on the tented field. Already invitations to meet them are out. LIGHT hopes the boys will have a pleasant and rainless week.

La Grippe.

Of all the combines ever formed,
In politics or trade,
This latest one to kill mankind,
Is the greatest ever made.

"Electrocution" and Hangman's rope
The guillotine of France,
Are not so much a dreaded thing,
As this wretched late "Advance."

It prowls around by night and day,
Like a wild beast seeking prey,
And does not kill at one foul swoop,
But kills a bit each day.

And so for weeks and months you fight,
This deadly, devouring beast,
Determined that on you at least,
He ne'er can have a feast.

But day by day, and hour by hour,
At every change of wind,
This subtle devil works his way
Humility to unmine.

Your legs are like a pair of tongs,
Your head's a cataract,
Your hips are full of 'lectro shocks,
Your lungs old bag pipe sacks.

And so you find yourself at last,
Though fighting with all grit,
Yourself bound up both hand and foot,
And dying with La Grippe.

Francis Strong.

He was one of our city's oldest and most esteemed citizens. After a long attack of La Grippe, he passed away May 28th, aged 82 years, 10 months and 13 days. For fifty-six years he has lived in Worcester. A native of Vermont, he came here early in life and had been farmer, livery man and coal dealer, always an object of esteem by all who knew him. His funeral was held last Saturday, at 40 Irving Street. A good man fallen!

Henry W. Miller.

This grand old man, whose life and portrait appeared in LIGHT January 3d, has paid the debt to nature due and now rests from his labors. Sunday, the last day of May witnessed his departure and on Tuesday afternoon, at the long-time home, words were spoken over his remains by the Rev. Calvin Stebbins and by Dr. Edward Everett Hale. Then came the solemn march to the Rural Cemetery and all that is mortal of Worcester's venerated citizen is laid away in the tomb. His influence, his upright life, however, must live on in the hearts and deeds of others through all time. There were few like him and the world is poorer for the want of just such men.

Worcester Coal Company,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

THE CRITERION
Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.

231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SHREWSBURY ST.
J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

We have the Finest Line of

SINGLE and DOUBLE

CARRIAGES!

to be found in the city. Our Prices are Low considering the quality of our Stock. If you want a Stylish and Durable Carriage it will pay you to give us a call.

J. W. SARGENT & SON,

34, 36 and 38 Waldo St.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!

It saves Time,
Labor and Fuel,
(two-thirds cent
per hr. for fuel.)

Manufacturers
Guarantee every
Iron.

TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, M'g. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,
Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, ***

NO. 156 MAIN STREET,
H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

FURNITURE AND CARPETS,

355 Main Street, Worcester.

ARE YOU LOOKING

For the Best Values in

Chamber * Sets

If so, call and see ours at * $35.00. *

These are Antique Finished, Double Drawers in Bureau, large Mirror, and a good medium-priced set in every respect.

CRAWFORD * RANGES.

None other will bake in the lower oven.
We sell a Good Range for $22.

Eddy Refrigerators.

We are Sole Agents for the city.

Baby Carriages.

From $10 upwards.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,

Furniture and Carpet Dealers,

355 MAIN STREET. 355

Goods sold on four months' time at cash prices.

Household.

Rustic boxes made at home of pieces of the bark of forest trees, nailed with ordinary brads on common pine boxes, simply varnished over to protect them from rotting, are very ornamental when filled with flowers. They should be mounted on strong posts of wood so that they will be about five inches above ground, and should have holes at the bottom for drainage. Avoid painting boxes or gypsy kettles the hard shade of vermilion red so often used for the purpose. It does not harmonize with the foliage of the plants or the color of the flowers. An olive green is better for this purpose, and especially for painting trellises and poles, than anything else.

The first available fruit to be taken care of is rhubarb, which will be found a useful and appetizing relish between seasons. An old housekeeper gives a recipe for its canning which is attractively simple, and may be relied upon to produce the most satisfactory results. "Rhubarb," she says, "should be put up just as soon as it comes within reach of one's purse to buy in quantity. The later growths of the plant are apt to be tough and stringy. Cut up the stalks in inch lengths and place in glass jars, filling each as full as possible. Make a syrup of sugar, allowing a pound of sugar to every quart of cut-up rhubarb, and pour over the fruit. Put the top on the jar without screwing it down, and place them three or four at a time in the preserving kettle in tepid water. Something must be placed on the bottom of the kettle, of course, to prevent the glass from coming in contact with the hot iron. I generally use a mat of hay; if this is not convenient, some flat sticks will do; anything to elevate the jars slightly. As the water boils the rhubarb cooks, and when it looks clear in the jar it is done. It is rather a slow process, as the water must not boil hard, but is a very easy one. When the fruit is clear the covers must be screwed down air-tight as in canning, and the jars are ready to put away. By this method the fruit is preserved unbroken, and the flavor perfectly retained."

Ordinary soup stock should be made from the collection of bones left over from the table, for instance, the bones of roasted beef, mutton, veal and chicken should be saved in a cool place and boiled twice a week. This stock will not make clear soup, but can be used for tomato or cream soups.

Very few householders know anything about the respective qualities of red ash and white ash coal. In many small cities white ash is all that can be had. For range use, however, a good red ash coal gives out more heat and is more economical than anything else. The cook does not like it so well if she is inclined to be indolent, because it does not burn up so rapidly as white ash coal, and cannot be started so quickly, but when it is once started and burning its lasting powers are surprising.

When you feel the pricking on the eyelid, that announces the coming of a sty, use as an application very strong black tea, or simply the tea-leaves, moisten with a little water, put in a small bag of muslin and laid over the eyelid. Moisten again as it dries. This, if used before the sty gets well under way, will generally drive it away—Good Housekeeping.

J. W. GREENE, PLUMBER.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,

Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand,) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

Harness and Saddlery,

RELIABLE GOODS
and LOWEST PRICES.

R. McALEER & CO.,

155 MAIN STREET.

PHOTOGRAPHER.

Children's
Portraits
A Specialty

326 MAIN ST.,
Opp. Mechanics Hall.

Underwood

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,

* PRINTERS. *

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,

DEALER IN

Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

Transition Part One.

It matters not how dies this human clod,
Nor when, in day or night, and lie, it may
Beneath the restless wave or blooming sod.
No hand can hide the soul that warms this clay.
Before this casket sinks from mortal eye,
Before the evening sun's retiring ray
Shall fail to warm this pore-encasement, my Deathless part shall know far loftier spheres,
Shall quicken to a more exalted state,
So let your faces smile and banish tears—
A dark, disproved tale that you relate
Of death, interment, and of realms remote,
Sad tales that fill the heart with fearful dread,
And fill our lives with a discordant note,
And harrow souls of men till feet are led
Upon the brink of sin and misery,
Where hopes and aspirations most divine
Are wrecked, a sight lamentable to see—
To doubt all narrow creeds may hearts incline,
Of reason's deep consideration born—
We seem to have a duo life extant
Since first the knowledge of creation's dawn
And then God did within us strong implant
A subtle knowledge of divinest truth
Which bigots wrapped in superstition dread,
Perverted to a grosser sense, forsooth,
(Although it be with deep contrition said)
To hinder human souls from consciousness
Of grander truths that teach men how to live,
Mayhap to check the mind from dwelling less
On thoughts that creeds and dogmas fail to give.
—Mrs. A. H. Hinman.

LEICESTER.

The admirable program that the class of '91 was enabled to present to their friends May 29, at Leicester Academy will long live in the memory of those who were fortunate enough to be present. The whistling match by nine young ladies in sheet and pillow case costume was very amusing. Miss Virgie Conant of Cherry Valley won the prize for being the best whistler. Miss Mabel Bigelow read very acceptably. Song by Mrs. Warren Smith was duly appreciated, and Mrs. Smith responded in her usual happy manner. Readings by Miss Mary L. Howard of Worcester were heartily applauded. Mr. D. Henry Whipple was cordially greeted after rendering songs very sweetly. Mr. Whipple has attained eminence in the art of singing. Miss Mary E. Coolidge was the pianist. Miss Sunie Knight rendered a piano solo with her usual ease and skill, which brought forth loud applause. Miss Mandana H. Snow did herself credit in singing "Coming Through the Rye," in a coquettish manner. The tambourine drill in white muslin costume by thirteen young ladies was extremely pleasing. The "Darkey's Dream" by Misses Annie McPartland, Sara Southwick and Mabel Marsh on tambourines, the accompaniment by Miss Nellie Bigelow, was a very pleasant ending of the evening's entertainment.
BETTINA.

June 5, 1891.

Immigrants Home.

Mrs. V. A. Cooper, formerly of this city, has a very good letter concerning the utility of this agency in Monday's Telegram. It certainly is a grand, humanizing benevolence and is very deserving, rescuing, as it does, many girls from a fate worse than death. Miss Sibyl M. Gray at the Y. W. C. A. Rooms will receive subscriptions for its aid. A large sum of money must be raised to pay off a $9,000 indebtedness.

The Boy's Club has closed for the summer.

School and College.

Boston University.

On last Monday evening the Senior Class of the College of Liberal Arts received their friends at Jacob Sleeper Hall. About eight hundred guests were present. The whole building was beautifully decorated and music was provided by the Sherman Orchestra. Refreshments were served in the chapel. The reception committee were Mrs. Wm. F. Warren, Mr. F. N. Bemis, Miss Edith M. McKeon, Miss Agnes H. Chase, and Mr. John Wenzel. The reception was one of the most successful events of the season.

Pres. Wm. F. Warren delivered the Baccalaureate address Tuesday afternoon to the candidates for promotion to degree. The subject of his very able discourse was the "Mastery of Destiny."

The annual meeting and dinner of the Alumni Association of the College of Liberal Arts was held at The Thorndike Tuesday evening. The officers for next year are: "President, John L. Bates; secretary, Charles W. Blackett; treasurer, Stephen Emery.

The Commencement exercises were held in Tremont Temple Wednesday afternoon. The following speakers represented the different departments: College of Liberal Arts, Miss E. A. Young, and Charles T. Snow; Law School, C. P. Benedict and N. F. Hesselting; Medical School, O. C. B. Nason and Miss N. M. Moore; Agricultural School, H. N. Legate; Theological School, W. F. Sheridan and C. H. Stackpole. There are 175 in the graduating class.

Smith College.

Social events are making these weeks very gay. One of the pleasantest of these events was a lawn party given by the twelve girls boarding at Miss Cable's, last Friday.

Saturday night the dedication of the Academy of Music was largely attended by college girls. Dr. Blodgett made the address of acceptance in behalf of the town.

The Senior dramatics is to be a version of George Elliot's "Spanish Gypsy."

Dr. and Mrs. Brady gave a charming reception to the Freshmen Wednesday afternoon.

Thursday afternoon the Colloquium, the scientific society, gave a reception to its friends in Lilly Hall, where refreshments, etc., were all furnished in a scientific manner.
May 27.

A musical recital was given by the cadets of the Highland Military Academy Monday evening in Armory Hall. They were assisted by musical talent from the city and by their instructors, J. Vernon Butler, N. E. McCauley and Miss L. E. Knowlton.

YARMOUTH S. S. CO.

(Limited) Shortest and Most Direct Route Between United States & Nova Scotia, via the favorite sea-going and new steamships "Boston" and "Yarmouth." Sea voyage only 15 to 17 hours. Tickets sold to all parts of Nova Scotia.

Steamer will leave Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston, for Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 11 o'clock A. M.

Returning will leave Yarmouth for Boston every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Close connections made at Yarmouth with all Railway, Steamboat and Stage lines to all points in Nova Scotia.

For further information write for folder or apply to G. Y. Lancaster, M. H. Church & Co., O. F. Rawson, Worcester; or J. F. Spinney, Agent, Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston.

Legal * Notices.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, Creditors, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of CHARLES P. DAKIN, late of Worcester, in said county, deceased, intestate: Greeting.

Upon the Petition of Frederick E. Dakin of said Worcester, you are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the third Tuesday of June next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased should not be granted to said petitioner.

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester the last publication to be two days, at least, before said court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioners, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-first day of May in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, Creditors, and all other Persons interested in the estate of EMMA S. BURPEE, late of Sterling, in said County, deceased, intestate: Greeting.

Upon the Petition of Albert M. Tyler, of said Sterling, you are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the third Tuesday of June next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased should not be granted to said petitioner, without the giving of surety or sureties on her official bond pursuant to the statute.

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively, in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester, the last publication to be two days, at least, before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioner, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-first day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of ISRAEL F. CONANT of Sterling, in said County, an insane person, Greeting:

Whereas James F. Kendall the guardian of said insane person has presented his petition for license to sell at private sale for the sum of thirty-five dollars, or upon such terms as may be adjudged best, certain real estate therein specified, of his said ward for his maintenance.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Fitchburg in said County, on the fourth Tuesday of June current at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester, three weeks successively, the last publication to be two days at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this third day of June in the year eighteen hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To all persons interested in the estate of DOLLY S. HOWE, late of Sterling, in said County, deceased, testate, Greeting:

You are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Fitchburg in said County, on the fourth Tuesday of June current at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why the account rendered by Ezra Sawyer and William D. Peck the executors of their administration of said estate, and now on file at this office, should not be allowed. The account of said William D. Peck being rendered by Mary E. Peck and L. Putnam Willard the executors of his will.

And the said accountants are ordered to serve this citation, by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester, the last publication to be two days, at least before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or to their legal representatives known to the petitioners seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this first day of June in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

The Shires of England.

R. B. CLARKE.

In glancing over the map of England one's attention is drawn to the character of the local names. They are largely original and contain a hidden meaning. It is interesting to the student of language to explore their depths and search out this mystic meaning. No more successfully does the geologist penetrate the strata of the earth and read the mysteries of its dark interior, than does the etymologist by investigation delve into these fossil forms and bring to light their dark and mysterious(?) significance. Take, for example, as a geographical exercise, the forty shire names of England. Observe their originality, and their meaning, hidden to those who use them only as handles to something, and never think that words have any depth. More than half of these names are the names of their chief town or city extended, and these city names, in turn, are derived from some characteristic of their locality. The following list is given in alphabetical order: (1) Bedford, city and shire, Sax. bedean-forda, Fortressford, i. e., "Ford at the fortress" (on the Ouse). (2) Berks, shire, Sax. beavoc, "forest;" it contains the forest districts of Windsor, Windlesora, "winding shore" (of the Thames), and Bagshot, "badger-forest." (3) Buckingham, city and shire, Sax. ing, a patronymic ending, and ham, "home," "Home of the family of Buck." (4) Cambridge, city and shire, Celt. cam, "crooked" (river) and Sax. bricg, "bridge," "Crooked (river) bridge." (5) Chester, city and shire, pure Saxon for castra, "camp," "The Camp" (of the northern army) (6) Cornwall, shire, Welsh, corn, "horn," and Wales "Welsh," "Welsh of the Horn." (7) Cumberland, shire, Celtic, cwm, "cup-shaped depression," "Cup-shaped-land." (8) Derby, city and shire, Norse, deor, "deer" and byr, "abode" "Deer-abode" situated on the Derwent (clear-water) river. (9) Devon, shire, Sax. defn, "deep," and Cymric, afon, "water," "Deep water." (10) Dorset, shire, Sax. dor, "water," and soetta, "dwellers," "water-dwellers." (11) Durham, city and shire, Welsh dur, "water," and Norse, holm, "island," "water-island." (12) Essex, shire, Sax. East and seaxe, "Saxons," (13) Gloucester, city and shire, Cym. glou, "bright," and A. S., cester, "camp," "Bright camp." (14) Hants, shire, Germ. am-zee (?) "on the sea," (at the extreme south.) (15) Hereford, city and shire, Sax. here, "army," and forda, "ford," "Army-ford." (16) Hertford, city and shire, Celt. hert, synonym for "ford," and Sax. forda, "ford," a reduplication, "Ford-ford." (17) Huntingdon, city and shire, Sax. ing, a patronymic ending, and Celto-Sax. don, "a hill fort," "Hill fort of the descendants of Hunt." (18) Kent, shire, Welsh, ken, "headland." (19) Lancaster, city and shire, Sax. lune or lan for Lat., Alauna (river) and Ang. caster, "camp," "Camp on the Lune." (20) Leicester, city and shire, Celt. Leire, (river) now the Soar, and A. S., cester, "camp," "Camp on the Leire." (21) Lincoln, city and shire, Celt. lynn, "deep pool, and coln, contraction for colonia, "colony," a hybrid, "Deep-pool-colony." (22) Middlesex, shire, Sax. middel, "middle" and seaxe, "Saxons," "Middle Saxons." (23) Monmouth, city and shire, Sax. muth, "mouth," and Monnow, (river),

"Monnow-mouth." (24) Norfolk, shire, Sax. north, "north," and folc, "people," "North-people." (25) Northampton, city and shire, Sax. ham, "home," and tan, "town," "North-home-town." (26) Northumberland, shire, the land north of the Humber, (now more limited than formerly) (27) Nottingham, city and shire, Sax. ing, patronymic ending, and ham, "home" or "abode," "Home of the descendants of Nott." (28) Oxford, city and shire, Sax. oxa, "ox" and forda, "ford," "Ford for cattle." (29) Rutland, shire, A. S., rud, "red," and "land," "Red-land." (30) Salop, (!) shire, A. S. scrobbes, "shrubs," and byrig, "an earth-work," corrupted by the Normans into Sloppesburie, whence the modern Salop. The same compound is corrupted into Shrewsbury for the shire town, "an earthwork among the shrubs." (31) Somerset, shire, Sax. suth, "south," mor, "moor," and soete, "people," "South-moor-people." (32) Stafford, city and shire, Sax. staef, "staff," and forda, "ford," "The place where the river Sow may be forded with a staff," (Dr. Brewer.) (33) Suffolk, shire, Sax. suth, "south," and folc, "folk," "South-people." (34) Surrey, shire, Sax. suth, "south," and ryc "realm," "the realm south (of the Thames)." (35) Sussex, shire, "South-Saxons." (36) Warwick, city and shire, Sax. woer-wic, "Fortified-village." (37) Westmoreland, shire, "West-moor-land." (38) Wilts, shire, (Wilton) Wily town, "Town on the Wily," (river). (39) Worcester, city and shire, Celt. Huicci, Teut. wara, "people," and A. S. cester, "Camp of the Huicci people." (40) York, city and shire, Sax. eure, (river), (now the Ouse) and wic, "station," "Station on the Eure."

Finally, each of these names furnishes a topic for thought, as does every name of a rational nomenclature. Surely there should be a reason for the name of a locality, or of a permanent organization or institution. Are not our people too ready to borrow names, or root them out of a mythical past, when it would be better to originate, them and stamp their own genius and their own thought upon them for posterity?

G. A. R.

The exercises of Memorial Day in our city came to a fitting end in Mechanics Hall, Sunday night, when to a full audience and their friends, Past Department Commander John D. Billings of Cambridge pronounced an eloquent and finished oration, holding the attention of all to the end. One of the marked features of the occasion was the presentation of three Memorial Volumes by Hon. Samuel Winslow, Hon. Joseph H. Walker, Hon. George S. Barton, Col. F. W. Wellington, the late F. B. Knowles, Albert Curtis, Henry S. Pratt, Josiah H. Clarke, Loring Coes and M. J. Whittall. These filled by individual records will form an invaluable history of Post 10. The music was furnished by the choir of First Unitarian Church, with Mrs. S. E. Lawton harpist, Walter O. Ingalls as organist, and Ben T. Hammond as director—Mr. Hammond, Mortimer Howard, Mrs. George M. Bassett and Mrs. H. W. Johnson.

Miss Mary Howe is to contribute an article to the Ladies' Home Journal's series on music

New * York STORE.

WOOL DRESS GOODS you will surely need this summer. Home Spuns you'd ask for, we think. We have them for 39c, 45c., 50c. and 62 1-2c. Plain Colors, Plaids and Mixtures. A beautiful line of Colored Cashmeres 25c. a yard and up. We have just received some pretty Stamped Linens which we would be pleased to show you.

Z. F. Little & Co.,

234 and 238 Main St.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

The month of June comes to all woman-kind with more of happiness, present and hoped for, than any other month of the whole year.

It is the fairest month of all the year to the young girl completing her school life, and no wonder that Graduation day is of so much importance to her.

That day calls for a suitable dress, and it is our place to provide it for you, so then with us you will find in rich array the loveliest white goods,

In NUNS VEILING, ALBATROSS, CASHMERES, HENRIETTAS, CREPES, BATISTE, SILK and WOOL STRIPES, and ETIEMENES.

In this stock you will find goods to meet your most modest want, or rich enough for the most exacting demand of wedding or graduation.

So that you may know, we will tell you that between

50c. and $1.50 a YARD,

You can get all that you can possibly wish for.

Our Store Supplies all Wants, High Prices or Low Prices.

Good goods at fair prices, not one day, or one week, but every day of every week in the year.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

CHARLES L. WRIGHT.

CHARLES H. WOODCOCK.

"WEST SIDE MACHINE CO.,"

Manufacturers of the improved "Wright Drill," embracing features not applied to other drills.

The "Wright Counter Shaft and Clutch," just patented. The cheapest, most positive in its action, with scarcely perceptible shock or jar, and decidedly the best device for the purpose ever in the market. Every one interested is cordially invited to come and see it. The "Woodcock Universal Door Opener." By simply pressing a button on either side of the door, it causes the door to swing open. Can be quickly and cheaply applied to any door. Must be seen to be appreciated. A Carpenter's Gauge for Hanging Doors accurately and very quickly. No carpenter can afford to be without it. "The Swivel Crotch Center." No more broken drills by work catching. Hundreds of dollars saved. "A Cuff Holder." The cheapest and best ever seen. We are prepared to make the most reasonable terms for all kinds of special machinery. Repairs promptly done and satisfaction guaranteed. Factory less than two minutes' walk from Pleasant-street cars.

No. 28 Bellevue Street, Worcester, Mass.

Memorial Day at Arlington.

The historic heights of Arlington were again occupied by the Union army last Saturday. Not the army of young and vigorous men who had camped upon the ground thirty years ago, but of aged veterans, many of whom had followed the flag in the Western armies, many who had marched to the sea with Sherman, many who had served their country upon the sea, but all united upon this day in a grand service of remembrance for their comrades who sleep here on the banks of the Potomac in sight of the capital they died to defend. This army bore no bayonets, no cannon rumbled along in their rear; they were armed only with flowers and the cannonade that greeted them as they filed through the gates was fired in their honor and in honor of the long lines of sleeping soldiers whose marching was past.

Arlington is beautiful at all seasons of the year but never so lovely as at the present. The trees, grass, and flowers are exulting in the full beauty of Spring and when, as on Saturday, the sky is one vast ocean of cloudless blue, the scene is incomparable.

The Grand Army was early at work. The conservatories of the White House, the gardens of the Capitol and Departments, and the woods of Virginia and Maryland were robbed of their flowers to add to those already blooming in the grounds. The ladies of the Relief Corps, with Mrs. Sheridan at their head, deftly wove them into convenient shapes and at noon everything was ready. From the guns of Light Battery C, Third U. S. Artillery, a national salute boomed out and then, while the full Marine Band played heart-moving music, the blue-coated procession wound in and out among the fourteen thousand Union graves, forgetting none. And more, in the cemetery are buried over two thousand Confederates yet when the decorating was over all graves were strewn with flowers alike. Friends and enemies, enemies now no longer, rest under the same fragrant tributes of remembrance, recalling the poets words:

"— They banish our anger forever
When they laurel the graves of our dead."

The unknown dead—the huge, square block of granite with its touching inscription was hidden from sight. A thousand roses covered its rough surfaces and the surrounding lawn was carpeted with ivy and immortelles. Though unknown they were not forgotten, and the two thousand nameless soldiers, whose remains "were gathered from the battlefields of Bull Run, the Peninsula, and the route to the Rappahannock," were at rest under as beautiful a covering as their surviving comrades could spread over their honored dust.

At Sheridan's grave, as was to be expected, the living hands of his family had been at work. The flag was draped over the monument but left the sculptured bronze face in full view, perhaps in the hope that the soul of the dead general might look out through the eyes and see the exquisite floral tributes that filled the space inside the chain to overflowing. On the right was a pair of cavalry guidons in immortelles, and on the left a calvary saddle made of roses, pinks and ivy.

At the grave of Admiral Porter the absence of a monument forbade any elaborate adornment, but a blue admiral's flag was spread over the grave and heaped with flowers. A huge wreath of roses, three feet in diameter, from Naval Post 400 of Philadelphia, of which the admiral was a member, was placed upright at the foot of the mound.

To enumerate the decorations at the grave of every prominent general in Arlington would be to occupy the whole of LIGHT. All were covered profusely, lavishly with the products of conservatories and the more modest blossoms of the woods and fields. In many instances, among the long rows of plain stones that mark the graves of private soldiers, would be seen one buried in these inexpensive tributes that told a story of a memory kept green. The number on that stone was a sacred one to some sorrowing family and living, as they must do in the vicinity, they supplement the wreath or bouquet from the Grand Army with adornments of their own.

When the graves were all decorated the center of interest was the amphitheatre. We all know the order of exercises at every cemetery in the land where there lies a soldier, the order is the same. Music, prayer, poem and oration. More eloquent than words was the empty sleeve of the Post Commander as it swayed in the breeze that fluttered the corps flags draped around the twisted stems of the ivy and wisteria, which made the circular, roof-less hall into a bower of greenery. Hon. G. W. Atkinson was the orator of the day and his speech justified his selection. When all was over, the Marine Band again burst forth with the beautiful strains of the "Song Without Words," and the vast assemblage departed leaving the sleeping hosts of the Union under a mantle of loveliness. The flowers will fade but the memories of those in whose honor they were scattered will live as long as we are a nation; as long as a stone remains in Arlington to mark their resting-places. WINFIELD.

THE BOSTON HERALD

Is clean, reliable, independent, bright. The best newspaper for the family.

Subscription 50 cents a month, postage paid.

LARGEST CIRCULATION

EDWARD B. GLAPP,
Fashionable Hat,
Fine Furnishing,
Athletic House,
365 Main St., Worcester.

C. REBOLI,
Confectioner * and * Caterer,

6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

W. A. ENGLAND,
DEALER IN
FINE WATCHES,
CLOCKS, JEWELRY
& OPTICAL GOODS.
REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.
394 Main Street.

DOGS.

Every owner or keeper of a dog of three months old or more shall annually cause it to be licensed in the office of the city clerk. Whoever keeps a dog contrary to the provisions of this chapter, shall forfeit fifteen dollars. Public Statutes Chapter 102. All persons interested are requested to call at city clerk's office at once. Last year's numbers will not be reserved after June 1st.
E. H. TOWNE, City Clerk.

"Fifty Years."

This is the expression that many members of the First Universalist Church are frequently using these days. It was just that number of years ago that the Society was organized in accordance with the laws of the state and the date was June 3d. The incorporators were Joseph Pratt, Timothy S. Stone, Elbridge G. Pratt, Edward B. Rice and Joshua M. Harrington. But there were earlier Universalist sermons as January 27, February 5, April 14 and September 15, 1834, by Rev. Lucius R. Page of Cambridge the famous historian of that city and now the oldest minister in the denomination. He came by invitation of Harmon Chamberlain. Rev. Hosea Ballou, Rev. H. B. Soule, Rev. Walter Bullard, Rev. J. O. Skinner and Rev. Thomas Whittmore preached during the years 1839 and '40 occasionally. Rev. Mr. Skinner was engaged to preach three months during the fall and winter of 1841. Rev. Walter Bullard came here in 1840. The trustees of the church in Charlton paid his expenses. He preached every night in the week and three times on Sunday, but did not stay in Worcester more than a month or two.

Like many other new organizations, this one met in Brinley, now G. A. R., Hall. Negotiations were early entered upon with the Boston & Worcester R. R. Company for the purchase of the lot of land on the corner of Main and Foster Streets. This was bought for $5,500. The deed was given to Joseph Pratt, S. D. Harding, E. B. Rice and S. P. Landers, the latter being the first minister. The first Sunday School Superintendent was Elbridge G. Pratt.

Ground for the new church was broken in the spring of 1843, the house, then occupying the ground having been moved to Mechanics Street, and now stands on the South side, the second east of Spring Street. Great sycamore trees which then shaded Main Street were dug up and borne away. Mr. S. D. Harding was the builder and though the edifice was modest in its dimensions and appointments, yet a burden of debt was assumed in building. November 22d, 1843, the people assembled for the dedication. That Nestor of the denomination, Dr. A. A. Miner, then of Lowell and in the hey day of his life preached the dedicatory sermon. Mr. Landers, the pastor, offered prayer and the Rev. T. J. Greenwood addressed the society. The latter also furnished an original hymn for the occasion as did Miss S. C. Edgerton. Thirty-one members communed in the evening of this first day. O. A. Skinner preached at this evening service and J. O. Skinner, N. Parker and J. H. Willis took part in the services. Mrs. Greenwood gave the pulpit lamp, Mrs. Wesson and Mrs. Bradley the Bible, and the Sewing Circle the communion set. The Bible and the set are still in existence.

In 1851, the church was altered, new galleries added and general improvements made at an outlay of $1,745 and new dedication exercises followed in June. The venerable Hosea Ballou was the preacher. The church was at this time, in a particularly united and flourishing condition. The voice of Dr. E. H. Chapin of New York was heard in the installation of the Rev. John G. Adams in 1853.

OLD FIRST CHURCH NOW CONTINENTAL HALL.

So then, this old building has resounded to the tones of some of the most eloquent and famous men in Universalism. In September, 1862, there was a re-organization of the church and the adoption of a new Declaration of Faith and Constitution.

In 1865, the lot where now stands the church on Pleasant Street was purchased for $6,250. Under Mr. St. John's second pastorate the new edifice was constructed, work beginning in the Spring of 1860. The finished structure was completed and dedicated June 28, 1871, the sermon being by the Rev. J. G. Adams. Though a heavy debt was assumed it was long since wiped out and for years, a happy people have worshipped in a house that was paid for. The pastorates of Drs. Harris and Gunnison have been very happy and successful and it is difficult to see how the first fifty years could be rounded out more happily.

As a prominent factor in the day's interest was advanced to the corner stone laying. The new edifice will stand on the corner of Woodland and Norwood Streets, and the church field, for many a block, it has all to itself.

ALL SOUL'S CHURCH

The exercises consisted of singing by the Sunday School, scripture reading and prayer by Rev. Dr. Almon Gunnison, after which F. O. Bushnell, president of the parish, laid the stone, in which was enclosed a box 8 by 4 inches by 2½ in depth, containing the by-laws of the parish, names of the members, constitution and by-laws of the church, names of members, pictures of the house of Martin Russell, at 10 May Street, where the parish was organized, picture of the Kilby Street Chapel, history of the parish and Sunday School, list of officers of the church, parish and Sunday School, and of the Stone Club, Ladies Aid Society, Norland Glee Club, head officers of the nation, state and city, and a copy of the address delivered at the third anniversary of the society, January 27, 1887, by Mrs. N. C. Russell. Dr. E. W. Whitney of Milford gave the address.

The afternoon exercises in the First Church were very interesting. Dr. T. E. St. John, so long the pastor gave the historical address, replete with fact, incident and fancy. The poem was written and read by Charles M. Harrington, assistant superintendent of the Sunday School.

Past History and Future Outlook of the Universalist Church.

Half a century stretches away,
As we turn and backward look
We can read the tale of every day,
Like the leaves of an open book.

A book where time held the truthful pen
Whose living characters traced
For fifty years the deeds of men
That can never be effaced.

Let us look on the first thin page.
This story is written there.
Although the leaf be dull with age,
In golden letters glows the prayer,

Of a daring few, who, braving all
The trials, the taunts, the sneers
That must to each reformer fall,
The struggle, the bitter tears,

Have gathered to form, if form they can,
A church of a loving God,
With a final grace for every man
In place of dread anger's rod.

For they cannot hold the doctrine true
Of a God of endless wrath,
Who will only save a chosen few
For the peace which his heaven hath.

While all the rest of the sinful world,
O'erwhelmed by his awful ire,
Shall be without hope, forever hurried
Into fearful pits of fire.

They stood from all mankind apart,
Steadfast, though they stood alone,
With the purpose firm in every heart
To lay a foundation stone.

On which some day a church will stand,
Secure in its holy right,
Honored throughout the whole wide land,
Teaching God's love and might.

Slowly gathering strength and size
The new church upward grew,
Binding closer its parish ties,
Proclaiming its doctrine new.

Until, as the pages one by one
We turn with reverent hand,
We read how the work so well begun
Proved not as a house on sand,

But builded firm on solid rock;
Whatever winds may blow,
Secure and strong 'gainst every shock
It dreads no overthrow.

And now, with half a hundred years
Stretching into the past,
Holding for what may come no fears,
We have gathered here at last,

To honor them for their faithful toil,
For the grand results they show,
For the seed they sowed in fruitful soil
Through ages still shall grow.

Spreading its holy, peaceful shade
O'er the tumultuous strife,
Bringing to hearts and minds dismayed
The hope of a better life

Where the struggling soul shall be set free,
Where wrong shall be made right,
Where man may grow through eternity,
Up to God's perfect light.

Today we shall close this volume o'd,
Tomorrow begin one new;
When fifty more long years have rolled,
And its pages are written through,

When again the world shall stop to read,
What tale shall the future find?
How will men hold our simple creed?
How look on our doctrine kind?

In every church, what'er its name,
Be preached what we teach today,
And the law of love, fore'er the same,
Shall cast old dogmas away.

Till the little leaven, once thrown aside,
Shall leaven, at last, the whole,
And all proclaim, like the crucified,
Salvation for every soul.

Continental Hall, erst-while the Universalist Church, never had a happier look than when several hundred people sat down, in the evening to one of Rebboli's best dinners. Every possible seat was taken and the scene must be remembered long. Many of those present, were the sons and daughters of the founders of the church, those who have worked hard to erect this very sanctum. The feast of material matters was followed by a most enjoyable one of reason.

Dr. Almon Gunnison presided inimitably, after Deacon Seagrave had turned over to him, in graceful terms, the position of director of the post prandial exercises. It was a noteworthy thing to have at the head table Drs. T. J. Sawyer, A. A. Miner and G. H. Emerson, and what ringing words they spoke! Then there were responses from Rev. Wm. A. Start, secretary of the Massachusetts State Convention, William Mecorney, the long time Sunday School Superintendent. Dr. St. John's remarks, reminiscent as they were, were very happy and happily received. Mr. Alfred S. Roe spoke for sister churches and the Rev. Charles St. John for the boys who had gone out from the church to become ministers. Mrs. Martha Adams, widow of a former pastor, read in response to the sentiment "Women" a poem written forty years ago when a pupil at the Oread. Mr. E. I. Comins talked for the laity and recalled memories of his early life in Charlton. Rev. Mr. Gray, responded for All Souls and Dr. E. D. Fitch for the Adams Square Mission. Rev. Mr. Crossley of Springfield made a ringing speech on neighborly relations and Rev. F. O. Hall closed the speaking with a glance towards the future.

It was 10.30 when, to the tune of Auld Lang Syne, the audience arose and sang words written by the Rev. C. H. Fay. It was a happy ending of a celebration happily conceived and most successfully carried out. Fifty years are past. Now to the future!

Mr. Herbert McIntosh in assuming the proprietorship of the Davis Art Company, No. 18 Pearl Street, obviously intends to keep the business up to the high standard, already established and, if possible, to exceed it. The Company is displaying the very highest grade of moulding in all varieties, selected from the most noted manufacturers in Boston, New York and Chicago. The development of art taste in Worcester demands a corresponding talent in advising as to framing and here, not only the best quality of goods may be found, but also the wisest of suggestions as to fitting and framing. Here may be had the "word fitly spoken."

The first of Mr. B. D. Allen's closing recitals took place last evening at his studio, 173 Main street. The pupils taking part were Miss M. B. Porter, Miss H. L. Brown, Miss Eva F. Lindley, Miss Florence Putnam, Mr. F. E. Muzzy. They were assisted by Mr. B. T. Hammond and Miss Jessie L. Pond, soprano; Miss Genevieve Burke, mezzo soprano and Miss Lizzie Farrell contralto, pupils of Mr. Hammond. The second of the closing recitals will be given next Monday evening.

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE.

Highland Military Academy.

The commencement exercises of the Military Academy will take place Tuesday, June 16. On the previous Monday evening the prize declamation contest will be held. The graduating class this year numbers six.

The address of State Agent, A. W. Edson before the Hampden County Teachers' Association May 28th on How to improve the Public School System was unusually timely and instructive. Mr. Edson is doing a grand work in his lectures and visits throughout the State.

Letter From Springfield.

The dweller in the city of Springfield has the privilege, if such it be considered, of making the acquaintance of every variety of college boy in New England. In the Fall, Harvard and Yale take possession, and in the Spring, the colleges of the New England Association. All Wednesday morning the college men were pouring into town, and the streets were alive with college colors. The hotels were early filled with men who looked like athletes and with others who tried to. Early in the afternoon the tide set toward Hamden Park, and at two o'clock 4000 people were watching for the flash of the starter's pistol.

The grand-stand was as pretty a sight as you could wish to see, crowded as it was with students and their fair friends. Purple and white seemed to be the favorite color of the ladies, and the steel gray and crimson which was so prominent in Worcester was sadly in the minority here. Amherst had the centre of the stand, and Dr. Hitchcock's disciples sang and yelled and shouted for four hours and a half with undiminished enthusiasm; when they had no man of their own in an event, they turned to and yelled for some other college, always excepting Dartmouth.

The W. P. I. made themselves heard with emphasis on the right, and made the grand-stand ring when Dadmun ran in an easy winner in the half mile run with Taylor second. After that, they found the pace too hot for them, and left the field to the others. An old Worcester friend of ours created the surprise of the day by the way in which he pushed the redoubtable Gregg of Amherst. W. H. Chase has developed considerable speed since W. H. S. days and set a pace around the track which made competitors and spectators watch for him to drop at any moment. The fact that he didn't drop but kept right on, and finished a good second was disappointing to a number of men in the crowd.

The dashes and short runs were of course the most interesting events of the day. Amherst took all of these with the exception of the half-mile run which fell to Dadmun. The quarter-mile run was a very pretty race, and was won by Shattuck of Amherst in splendid shape, with the champion from Dartmouth trailing in the rear.

The last event was finished at 6.30 o'clock. As soon as the sports were over, the other colleges apparently sank out of sight, while the men in purple and white spread over the entire field. They took possession of the track, the band and Dr. Hitchcock, and started in a triumphal procession down town. There were many Worcester faces in the crowd, not only from the W. P. I. but also from the other colleges of the league. Springfield may now hope for quiet, unless Harvard and Yale play here, as is under discussion.

High School.

The rhetorical exercises of this week Tuesday were by Seniors. The exercises consisted of an extract from "The Ancient Mariner," by Miss Smith; an extract from "The House of Seven Gables," read by Miss Goddard, and a bass solo, "Anchored," by W. B. Tower, with accompaniment by Miss Fannie Hair.

The boat races came off at the Lake last last week. Thursday afternoon, '93 was drawn to contest with '91, and although there was not much doubt in regard to the result, there were many to witness the event. By prudent foresight on the part of the Seniors, the best boat and oars had been secured while the unsophisticated Sophomore crew were innocently eating their dinners. This and their experience in rowing gave the Seniors a great advantage, and they left the second years far behind on the course. The day was propitious and many pupils and some teachers enjoyed the race on the bank and in boats. Mr. H. A. Adams refereed the race.

The next day, Friday, saw a much smaller crowd gathered at the lake to witness the race between '92 and '91, which, it was acknowledged would be a much closer contest. The classes whose crews were to contest, had chartered the steam launch Apollo for the afternoon, and those on the boat were almost the only spectators. As Mr. Adams was unable to act, Mr. Webb was chosen referee for the race, and took his position at the head of the launch to perform the duties of his office.

(To be Continued Next Week.)

Our Schools.

Editor of Light:

Dear Sir. Thanking you for your courtesy in admitting to your columns the remarks on the subject which I propose to offer, I take above occasion to say that I alone am responsible for whatever may follow. Very Respectfully

H. H. C.

The recent assumption on the part of the School Committee, of authority over a subject entirely beyond their juris fiction, and the consequent excitement and distress caused in the minds of many parents and children, have forced upon the public attention the whole subject of our school management; and the question is again asked, on all sides, is our school system under present management, the best of all possible systems in "the best of all possible worlds?"

Every candid mind will admit that only a negative answer to this question is possible.

Many perhaps most intelligent persons who have given the subject any thought or investigation will agree with the writer in saying that the tuition in our schools falls so far short of what it should be that a large part of our generous appropriation for education is practically wasted.

Before attempting to suggest any remedy for the defects in our schools, so patent to every observing or thoughtful person, it may be well to ascertain, if possible, the causes of the present condition some of which causes are not far to seek.

In the first place, it was seen at a very early day, by the founders of the Commonwealth that in order to counteract "the wiles of Satan, it being one of his chief projects to keep men from the knowledge of the Scriptures," the education of their youth was of the first importance; they therefore intrusted the care of the schools to their wisest, most pious and most learned citizens, and confiding in their unselfish devotion to the public good, gave them an almost absolute authority over the whole subject.

For many years this authority was wisely exercised for the best interest of the schools, and no abuse of it ever called for public animadversion or complaint.

But when the institution outgrew the control of the wise and good men who had so faithfully watched over its early years, and their successors found it necessary to employ more direct personal agencies to attend to the details of management; especially when the City Fathers, in their un-wisdom extended the tenure of office so that it became a prize to tempt aspiring politicians, as a stepping stone to political preferment, it was to be expected that if the management of affairs should fall into the hands of an adroit, self-seeking and untiring political wire puller, he would by skillful manipulation, so "fix" the committee as to make it the tool of his ambition, his greed or his revenge.

Hence there has grown up a sort of imperium in imperio, which has for some time attempted (often successfully) to over-ride the popular will.

It was remarked, in these columns, some time ago, "that it would add greatly to the efficiency of the committee, if its members were eligible only for a single term;" but there was no need of this suggestion to the voters, for at the last election of school committee, out of the eight members chosen only one adherent of the old regime was re-elected.

The result of this change is seen on all sides: the obnoxious "rules" so strenuously insisted on last year, have already fallen into "innocuous desuetude", the societies are reinstated with more than their former privileges—classes are permitted, even encouraged to adorn the building with works of art, at their own cost—it is intimated that the publication of the "Academe" may be resumed at an early day—and unavailing efforts are made to restore the High School to its old prestige; indeed there is nothing that scholars or teachers can ask that is not willingly, even obsequiously granted.

I shall recur to this subject later on, and advert to some of the other obstacles to progress which confront us: in the meantime and in the future, if the voters continue to be alive to their duty as they undoubtedly will be, there will thereafter be a clear field for the reforms of our school system so imperatively demanded.

James H. Wall, one of our former High School boys, and recently on the staff of the Providence Telegram has accepted a better position on the Boston Record. May this Wall be firm and steadfast and his Record good.

Handsome Textures for Graduating and Evening Dresses

We show a choice assortment of fabrics especially adapted for Graduating Dresses, as well as for evening wear.

Cream Dress Goods are prime hot weather favorites, whether or not intended for special occasions. They coax more coolness from 90° air than stuffs of any other color can. When the mercury begins to bubble, you'll think of it, sure. Think NOW, and there'll be economy as well as comfort in the thought.

All the following are in Creams. Cashmeres and Henrietas come in evening shades as well.

- Cashmeres, 48c to $1.
- Henrietas, 48c to $1.
- Nun's Veiling, 48c to $7½c.
- Mohairs, 48c to 58c.
- Wool Batiste, 48c to $7½c.
- Albatross, 48c to 75c.
- Brilliantines, 48c to 58c.
- Landsdowne Brocaded Cashmere, 75c.
- Fancy Stripe Nun's Veiling, 50c.
- Twilled Fannels, 36-inch, 50c.
- Twilled Flannels, 54-inch, 75c.

Edw. L. Smith & Co., 401-403 Main Street.
Corner Mechanic, Walker Building.

The National Conservatory Of Music Of America,

Nos. 126 and 128 East 17th St.,
NEW YORK.

SINGING---September 24th and 25th, 1891, from 9 a. m. to 12m.; 2 to 5 p. m.; from 8 to 10 p. m.

VIOLIN, 'CELLO, CONTRABASS, HARP and All Other Orchestral Instruments---September 28th, from 9 a. m. to 12 m., and 2 to 5 p. m.

PIANO and ORGAN---September 29th, 9 a. m. to 12 m., and 2 to 5 p. m.

ORCHESTRA---November 2d, from 4 to 6 p. m.

CHORUS---November 4th, from 8 to 10 p. m.

OPERATIC CHORUS---November 2d, from 8 to 10 p. m.

The object of the National Conservatory of Music being the advancement of Music in the United States through the development of American talent, applications for admission into the classes of the Conservatory are hereby invited. It is expected that positive aptitude shall be shown by the candidates for admission, without regard to the applicant's stage of progress, and that his or her desire to receive the instruction imparted in the Conservatory shall be the outcome of a serious and well-defined purpose. The successful candidate will enjoy the tuition of the best teachers that can be engaged, and after graduation, will be afforded opportunities of making known their accomplishments, thus securing engagements. The conditions of admission as to fees, etc., (varying according to the classification of the pupil), are determined by the Board of Directors. Instruction in all its branches will be given free to students whose talent and circumstances warrant it. The course embraces tuition in Singing, Operatic and Miscellaneous, Solfeggio. Stage Department, Elocution, Fencing and Italian, Piano, Organ, Harp, Violin, Viola, 'Cello, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, French Horn, Cornet, Trombone, Harmony, Counterpoint and Composition, History of Music, Orchestra and Chorus. For further particulars, address

Charles Inslee Pardee, A. M., Secretary.

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place before Memorial Day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of

Fine Monumental Work,

131 Central Street, near Summer.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

RAYMOND'S
VACATION
EXCURSIONS.

ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

Of from five to twenty-one days' duration, and including visits to the White Mountains, Isles of Shoals, Mount Desert, Moosehead Lake, Old Orchard Beach, Montreal, Quebec, the Saguenay and St. Lawrence Rivers, Lake Memphremagog, St. Andrews, N. B., Fredericton, the St. John River, St. John, the Annapolis Valley, the Land of Evangeline, Halifax, the coal regions of Nova Scotia, the Bras d'Or Lakes of Cape Breton Island, Charlottetown, Hudson River, Saratoga, Lake George, Lake Champlain, Ausable Chasm, the Adirondack Mountains, Lake Placid, Lehigh Valley, Mauch Chunk, Watkins Glen, Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands, Trenton Falls, etc.

In addition to the above,

Excursions over the Canadian Pacific Railway and to Alaska—July 11 and 25.

Excursion to the Yellowstone Park and Return—July 16.

Tour of Yellowstone Park and Across the Continent, returning via Canadian Pacific Railway—July 27.

Send for descriptive circulars, designating whether book of "Thirty Summer Tours," Alaska Excursions, or Yellowstone National Park trips is desired.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB,

296 Washington Street, opposite School Street, Boston.

The Old Goelet "Farm."

The sale of the old Booth's Theater property at the corner of Twenty-third street and Sixth avenue, for one million dollars, to James McCreery, the well known dry-goods merchant shows that gentleman to be a man who rises superior to the influence of superstition. Nothing has ever succeeded on that corner, from theatricals to dry goods, but it may be that Mr. McCreery, with his wealth and business enterprise, will succeed in turning the tide in its favor. It has not been announced that Mr. McCreery is going to move his store from Broadway and Eleventh street to this corner but I think that such is his intention. He has long yearned to be farther up town, and he offered a fabulous price for the Goelet "farm" at Broadway and Nineteenth street, but had he doubled his offer he could not have secured the coveted site. Less would be just as likely to accomplish that object as more. You know the place. It is the only house on Broadway with grounds around it, and the only dwelling house on Broadway at all from the Battery to Madison Square.

The house is big and square, and as ugly as a house need want to be. It is surrounded by a high, iron fence, behind which a cow grazes, and a dozen or more chickens fatten on the unfortunate grub. You would expect to see a "Mrs. Haversham" or "A Women in White", flitting through this old house, but you may at once disabuse your mind of any such romantic notion. The sole inhabitant of the place is an old lady to be sure, but she has no romance or mystery hanging over her head. She is simply the sister of the late owner, Mr. Peter Goelet, who left her a life interest in the place and forbade it to be disturbed so long as she lived. An old colored woman whose sun-bonneted head is occasionally seen at the window, opening or closing the shutters, and her husband, an equally aged gentleman of color who milks the cows and feeds the chickens, are the only other occupants of this enormous house, lonely amid the crowd. The old lady occupies the bedroom in the second story on the down-town side, and I have often seen her sitting in the window rocking herself back and forth in an old-fashioned rocker, her Bible on her lap. She seems undisturbed by the constant noise of the noisiest street in the world. Perhaps she does not hear it, for she is listening for the sound of a voice that she knows will soon come and call her home, and then the old house will be torn down and the next generation will know nothing of the old lady, or the cow, or the chickens, or that anything ever stood on that corner but a seven or eight story warehouse.—From the Boston Transcript's New York Letter.

BOOKS AND BOOKMEN.

Fourteen to One, by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps. Houghton Mifflin & Co., The Riverside Press, Cambridge.

This volume contains fourteen short stories taking for a title that of the first. All have been published in some place before, but now in this way they are easily found and more easily handled than in magazine form. "Fourteen to One" deals with the times of the Ku Klux, and is a marvellous description of that part of the South with which it deals. "The Bell of Saint Basil's" is a sorrowful tale of a deserted college, and a wandering son who returns to its wall to repent and be forgiven. "Shut in" as may be imagined is a hospital story. Then follows that wonderful temperance story of "Jack the Fisherman" which has held all heart in silence with its pathos. We wonder if there are many Jacks, and if Teen were a real life and if nothing can be done to help. We bless Mother Mary and drop tears for Jack in his agony. "The Madonna of the Tubs" has long been famous but one likes to read it over again and learn a second time its lessons. "A Brave Deed" shows the self sacrifice of one man. "The Sacrifice of Antigone" is one of the most touching in the book for it is a girl who makes the sacrifice, a girl who gave her life to help others. "Sweet Home" is what its title implies and "Too Late" is a bit of the days after the war and the life of the soldier, poor and lame, and yet trying to be independent of charity. "The Reverend Malachi Matthew" and "His Relict" are stories of the ministry. "Mary Elizabeth" a beggar girl preaches a little sermon, and "Annie Laurie" is a story of a woman who threw aside her own troubles to help those around her to bear their burdens. "The Law and the Gospel" portrays a mother's faithfulness to her convict son, a pathetic story that brings the tears. Though the law is hard and said to be relentless, pity does sometimes hold sway, and Gospel pushes aside the Law. For sale by Sanford & Company. $1.25.

The International.

Away from Indian Territory comes an appreciative sentiment as to the International Cyclopedia. The owner, who in his New York home knew full well what good books were, took this set of books with him on his far western trip and now considers them invaluable. An unsolicited tribute of this character is worth volumes from some other direction.

Mr. Charles M. Rice of this city was one of those receiving the degree of LL. B., at the recent commencement of the Boston University Law School.

THE HOME CO-OPERATIVE BANK,

Opens its 19th SERIES this month, and the

Shares are Now on Sale at the Office,

Walker Building, 405 Main Street,
ROOM 122.

Annual and Stated Meeting FRIDAY, 12th instant.

$10,000 EXPECTED TO LOAN.

The issue is limited, and those intending to purchase should, by calling early, make sure of shares as well as avoid the crowd of meeting day. From $1 to $25 per month can be invested by, or for any person, and the investment will begin earning dividends at once, the present rate being 6½ per cent.

Three Co-operative Banks are now in successful operation in this city. They have received and located over a million dollars, and matured and paid three series of shares. Their influence in encouraging habits of thrift, the building, owning and paying for homes has been very great. They are chartered institutions and under the supervision of the Bank Commissioners.

E. H. TOWNE, President.

T. J. HASTINGS, Secretary.

The Ware-Pratt Company

Invite attention to an extensive display of

Fine Clothing for Men, Boys and Children.

The Latest Fashions, Exclusive Styles from our own workshops, Honest Goods and the Lowest Prices, Grade and Quality considered.

Our Custom Department is teeming with the Newest styles, Colorings and Materials, which go to make up the finest lines we have ever shown.

The Ware-Pratt Company,

MANUFACTURERS AND RETAILERS,

408 and 412 Main Street,

Worcester.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts. State of the order March 18, 1891: Membership, 4915; Amount loaned for Relief, $15,290; Reserve Fund, $22,922.40; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,759.08; Total, $44,975.48. Men and women admitted upon the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600.

Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organization wanted. Address NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

LATHROP * BROTHERS,

LADIES', MEN'S AND CHILDREN'S

FINE AND MEDIUM SHOES

Of the most approved process of manufacture, meeting every requirement of Quality, Comfort and Style.

564 MAIN STREET, Franklin Square.

Emporium * of * Fashion.

LADIES' STRAW BONNETS.

An unusually Large Assortment of

BONNETS!

In MILAN, HARR and FANCY BRAID,

Ranging in Price from 25c. to $2.00.

A. S. Lowell Co., 304-306 Main St.

E. W. COFFIN,

Store Fixtures

310 Main Street, Worcester.

Name this Paper.

Now is the Time to Buy a

CARRIAGE!

at a Small Profit.

Geo. C. Dewhurst, 17 Park St.,

OPP. THE COMMON.

Larkin's, 395 Main St.,
Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps. Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.,

Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Gate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD, Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main St.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LIGHT

VOL. III. No. 15. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JUNE 13, 1891. FIVE CENTS

THEODORE P. BROWN,
Treasurer and Secretary of "The Brown and Simpson Piano Company."

PUTNAM & SPRAGUE CO.

Dining-Room * Furniture!

We have the choicest line of goods for the least money.

SIDEBOARDS.

In Solid Oak, fine polish finish, $20, $22 and $25. Rare bargains.

Better ones for $28, $30 and $32. The last named are beauties.

We have good

Extension Tables

For $6, $8, $10 and $12.

A Solid Oak Table, large size, handsomely carved, for $15. This cannot be beaten.

Dining Chairs.

Good chairs for $1.50 and $2.

Heavy Box Seat Chairs.

fine cane, neat design, for $2.50.

More elaborate ones for $2.75, $3, $3.50, and $4, and so up to $20.

We show all grades of Dining Room Furniture.

See our goods before purchasing elsewhere.

247 and 249 Main Street, Corner Central.

Massachusetts in the War.

1861-1865.

BY JAMES L. BOWEN.

With an Introduction by HON. HENRY L. DAWES.

MASSACHUSETTS IN THE WAR, from the publishers' standpoint, is a fine specimen of modern book-making, and the completed work must take a high place in its class, for its mechanical as well as its literary merit. In the magnificent volume of 1,050 large 8vo pages, richly illustrated with portraits, is given a graphic and comprehensive summary of the doings of the Commonwealth and of her soldiers and statesmen during the four years of civil war.

THE HISTORICAL NARRATIVE, with which the book opens, covers about 100 pages, and touches carefully every important phase of the struggle as it was presented to the State in its relation to the general government.

THE HISTORIES OF ORGANIZATIONS form the body of the work, covering 773 pages. In this compass the story is fully told of 71 regiments, 16 batteries of light artillery, 3 battalions and 33 separate companies. The narrative of each is complete, starting with its organization, giving the original roster of officers, field, staff and line; following the command through all its wanderings; narrating its part and stating its loss in every action in which it was engaged; and completing the record with its muster out and the return of its members to civil life.

GENERAL OFFICERS from Massachusetts, whether serving with the volunteer forces or in the regular army are treated individually, and carefully prepared sketches are given of the military service of 122 officers attaining to the rank of Brevet Brigadier General or higher grade.

THE PORTRAITS comprise a fine frontispiece of Governor Andrew, with handsome half page pictures of Senators Sumner, Wilson and Dawes, the author, and 57 of the general officers.

THE STATISTICAL TABLE presents in compact form for instant reference, the principal facts regarding each organization and there is a very full and valuable index.

PRICE. The book will be sold at the low price of $4, in fine and attractive cloth binding; leather back and corners, cloth sides, $4.75; the same with marbled paper sides, $4.75; full library, $4.75; full leather $5.50.

BOWEN & SON, Publishers, SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

C. H. DRAPER, Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

Three Large Moving Wagons. Baggage Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

OXYGEN COMPOUND OXYGEN

Nature's best tonic in all debilitated conditions of the system.

Our OXYGEN is carefully prepared in accordance with the most scientific principles known to chemistry.

It is prepared by a practical chemist who has had four years' experience in a chemical laboratory.

Each patient will receive the personal and conscientious attention of a regular graduated physician, one who has been six years in medical practice.

We solicit investigation.

368 1-2 Main St., or 1 Elm St.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

Quinsigamond Lake ICE

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Especial attention given to the family trade.

Garfield & Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 143-4.

N. G. TUCKER. W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER & SON, SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street, Worcester, Mass.

384 MAIN STREET 388

Bigelow & Longley

are prepared to show all the Latest Novelties in

CUSTOM AND READY-MADE

* CLOTHING *

MEN'S, YOUTHS', BOYS' or CHILDREN.

We can give you a SPRING OVERCOAT from $5 to $25, in all the latest shades made up with silk face and silk sleeve linings.

CHEVIOI SUITS

in blue or black, cut single or double-breasted. Prices from $8 to $25. Also a fine assortment of

Blue and Black Serges,

$15 $15 PER SUIT $15 $15

Indigo Blue Flannel and Yacht Cloth Suits,

we can give you a single or double-breasted, at prices from $6 to $15, and GUARANTEE THE COLOR. An elegant line of light and dark colored

Scotches and Fancy Cassimeres,

from $6 to $25. The best assortment of light colored TROUSERS we have ever shown, from $3 to $7. FANCY VESTS—Marseilles and Duck. Also a lot of dark Fancy Cassimeres and Silks, from 75c. to $4.

Bigelow & Longley

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JUNE 13, 1891.

No. 15

"Give me a month," said the Summer,
Demanding of Nature a boon,
"That shall make surly Winter forgotten,
And be with all things in tune.

"The sky must be blue, the sun golden,
Love must light the white lamp of the moon."
The great Mother smiled, and kissed her,
And the smile and the kiss were—June!

—Stoddard.

Fitchburg rejoices.

She has reason. With characteristic energy and alertness she reaches down and withdraws from Worcester a great industry.

She rejoices doubly when she not only gets a good thing but she gets it from her old rival, the Heart of the Commonwealth. The division of the county will come all the sooner now.

LIGHT has, all along, claimed that our business men are not sufficiently on the alert to catch and keep. A low price for a plant may secure much gain in the future.

Why not organize and look out for new industries? Why not plant and cultivate a feeling of interest in all that pertains to the city's good, remembering that what contributes to your neighbors good contributes to yours.

Mr. Iver Johnson has an absolute right to go where he pleases, with his manufactory and it would be queer if he didn't go where he thought he could do best; but his departure with that and several hundred families will make a serious inroad upon the prosperity of Worcester. It means less money in circulation; less patronage of every form of business. A pay-roll of $24,000 a month is no small matter.

Of course, the question will arise as to how much a city or town ought to do to make itself attractive to a business that is on the move. Burdens, thus, must be laid on the shoulders of some, perhaps a few who have no concern in bearing, but "The greatest good to the greatest number" is the end and aim of all good laws. If some man can devise a way of keeping what we have and of getting more, honestly, he will be a benefactor indeed.

The Fitchburg Evening Mail recently assailed the plan or policy that allowed the exhibition of human monstrosities. It is a word in time and in place. We want not two headed women, dog faced men, nor human frogs. If Dame Nature has gone wrong, that portion of mankind that is normal ought not to be affected with the sight of her freaks, and crimes, for certain it is that monsters are the result of some violation of law. Then to let a poor distressed bit of mortality for hire! That man must be soulless if he does not revolt at the thought. Let them be refused licenses. Rather give us something beautiful to examine and love.

So then the Mayor has just finished his annual visitation of the public schools. Our Mayor has a wonderfully cool head and observing eye; but LIGHT wonders if he would like to be examined on what he saw after his two weeks' consumption of time, in going through three hundred schools. This is a custom coming down from the time when Worcester was only an overgrown village, when Mayor Lincoln and his early successors could really visit and note the progress of pupils. Has not the time come when the duties of the Mayor's office are such that he ought to be freed from his connection with the school board and this, honey-bee like, entering of school-rooms?

If Worcester continues to grow, there are other things that must be changed. She cannot be town, village and city all at once. She is eminently conservative; but, at the same time, has much common sense and discretion. As she nears her 100,000, why not grow more metropolitan and among other improvements release the Mayor from many duties, once easy, but in the light of growth and development now heavy and burdensome. Wouldn't the giving up of school visitation be a good beginning?

Governor Pattison of Pennsylvania has approved the bill appropriating money for erecting a monument to the memory of Meade, Reynolds and Hancock at Gettysburg. It would be strange if he didn't. What decree of fate was it that ruled the greatest battle of the war, the greatest since Waterloo to be in Pennsylvania and that the men gaining greatest fame there should be Pennsylvanians? Today, all of them rest beneath the soil of the old Keystone state. Reynolds fell at the head of his corps, ignorant of the fame that he had achieved. Meade lived to know his name, "The Steadfast," and Hancock to be called, "The Superb." The statues of this glorious trio will be well placed at Gettysburg.

Finally New York is awaking to the peril of her North Woods at the hands of grasping, remorseless railroad grabbers. Is there anything that these fellows do not wish to appropriate? The Adirondack forest is the very grandest in the eastern part of our country; valuable to the Empire State for other reasons than being simply a pristine woods. It exerts climatic influences that we cannot afford to ignore. New England as well as New York is interested. Let us hope that politicians in this much oppressed state will rise equal to the task and save the North Woods. Let the railroads go round. Save the forest till the beginning of another century and it will be safe for ever. What a legacy for the generations to come.

The long hours that some men labor is worthy of consideration. We hear much of the ten hours that the mechanic toils and of the schemes to reduce the time to eight hours; but who is doing any electioneering for the clerks who, in some of our stores, are on their feet twelve hours a day. Saturdays the time is nearer fourteen. No wonder that many of them sleep far into Sunday and whatever sermon they get is taken from the Sunday paper. Yet they are not calling mass meetings. They are not printing a paper in which to make known their wrongs; but they and their employers are too many hours under the harrow. They work longer than the farmer even and he is generally thought the hardest worked of all laborers. The public can be taught to do its buying at reasonable hours. We need another Hood to sing not only "The Song of the Shirt" but that of the store of all descriptions, of the factory, of the street railroad, and of the school. When this song is sung deep into the hearts of our eager business men we shall have less early and sudden deaths and more prolonged careers like those of H. W. Miller and Francis Strong.

The poor are by no means the only class which we have always with us. Just lock up your house and go away, for the day, to the Lake or further and then inspect your yard and surroundings when you return. You were not fairly out of sight of your home, before the thieves were there. Nothing movable escapes them. Just now they are on the lookout for flowers. Those pansies that you went over to the green house and carefully selected, they will uproot as ruthlessly as if they were only meadow violets. They will pull down the wistaria from the side of the house in their desire for that highest one. The snow balls that you have left upon the bush, thinking them so beautiful, all destroyed in sheer wantonness. All this happens in a part of the city where the police are seldom met. The thieves do not live in the neighborhood; but by some occult means, they know the day the house is vacant. A southern buzzard is not more unerring in his swoop for the newly fallen carcass, than are these predators for the homes whose defenders are temporarily absent. What sort of homes do such children come from? Are there Fagans there who send out these Oliver Twists to pilfer and steal? Were all homes better, how much less crime and woe there would be.

The last Town Topics of Fitchburg has a picture of a former Worcester man and now keeper of the House of Correction there, Maj. Ben. Dwinnell. Fitchburg owes much to Worcester. What with Worcester men and industries that city is growing fast.

What could those Lowell folks be thinking of to put General Butler's face on their memorial spoons? "This is the most unkindest cut of all." Butler and spoons are words once most unpleasantly mingled and the General's most malignant enemy couldn't have done worse.

I'd rather be right than President.—Clay.

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND
HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.

Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building,
Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, JUNE 13, 1891.

Two Bicycles!

THIRTY-FIVE DOLLARS!

One will be given to that boy or girl who secures the most cash subscriptions for LIGHT between this date, May 30th and August 1st, 1891.

The other is for the boy who sells the largest number of papers during the same time.

Come up to the office, boys, and talk it over.

Every failure to receive LIGHT promptly should be, at once, reported at this office.

All scraps of informations concerning persons and events, thankfully received.

Hereafter, it will be understood that all articles in LIGHT, not ascribed, save recipes, squibs, fashion and household notes were written for this paper.

Friends sending in manuscripts will not complain if they are not printed at once. There are many waiting. Yet LIGHT is always glad to receive communications and, if meritorious, to print them.

Amateur Sports.

Of the tennis clubs of this city, the Winslow seems to be the most active at present. Play commenced at the courts on Pleasant street more than a month ago and since then the playing has been almost constant. On Memorial day the first of the preliminary tournaments was held. A number of interesting matches were played and the three courts were in use nearly all day. The players were very much pleased with the condition of the grounds. Two grass courts will be added soon, making the grounds the finest in the city. Two athletic goods dealers, Clapp and Davis have named special racquets, "Winslow" in honor of the club and a neighboring druggist has given the club name to a new soda.

But the item which will interest the members most, is the announcement, which LIGHT is able to make public for the first time today, that a friend of the club has offered to furnish the necessary funds for the erection of a clubhouse. The president Mr. Burtelle, wanted the club to have a suitable building and was about to attempt securing the necessary funds, when this friend, hearing of his wish offered to bear the expense. His offer was accepted and work on the house will begin next week.

The first annual championship meeting of the New England Association Amateur Athletic Union takes place this afternoon on the new athletic grounds at Lake View. The events include 100, 220 and 440 yard dashes; half-mile and five-mile runs; 120 yards high hurdles; and 220 yards low hurdles; one and three mile walks, putting sixteen pound shot, throwing fifty-six pound weight, throwing sixteen pound hammer, running high and running broad jumps, pole vault and two mile bicycle. The prizes are handsome die medals, gold, silver and bronze. The list of entries, which closed last Saturday, includes the leading athletes of New England. Harvard Amherst, Dartmouth and the Insitute of Technology are among the colleges represented, though most of Harvard's men are entered under the Boston Athletic Association's colors. The latter Association will make a strong bid for the championship and will probably win. The Worcester Athletic Association has some good men entered and will undoubtedly win a fair proportion of the events. The program, which was designed under the direction of one of the board of managers who lives in Cambridgeport makes a very attractive and beautiful souvenir. With good weather the games should be very successful both as regards the races and attendance.

Harvard University is taking high rank this year in track athletics. May 16th, at the first annual athletic meeting between Harvard and Yale, the latter was badly beaten, scoring but 27 points to Harvard's 85. Memorial day at the annual games of the Intercollegiate Association, Amateur Athletes of America, Harvard scored 46 to Yale 25; Princeton, 21; Columbia, 19; Amherst, 6; Swathmore, 1; Cornell 1. Yale's poor showing this year is due partly to misfortune. Several of her best athletes have met with accidents which have prevented them from doing effective work. This, combined with the fact that Harvard is this year stronger than ever before in track athletics, has caused Yale's defeat.

However, unless the prospects change before June 26, Yale will be consoled for losing the athletic meetings this spring and the football game last fall, by winning the boat race. Yale has won for five years past, owing to using the Bob Cook stroke. This year Harvard has adopted this stroke but its crew is not near in as fine condition as that of Yale. Reports seem to indicate that they are not working well together and that the boat goes rather slow for the amount of energy put forth by the men. The Yale crew is very strong and seems to be doing very good work.

The Manhattan Athletic Club team, of which Harry L. Dadmun of this city is a member, sailed for Europe, this week. On the 20th, it will compete at the Huddersfield, England, meeting, the 27th, at the championships at Manchester and later will enter contests in London and the International championship meeting at Paris. The team consists of Malcom W. Ford, Mortimer Remington, Luther H. Cary, Harry L. Dadmun, A. B. George, C. L. Nicoll, Thomas P. Conneff, H. L. Hallock, J. S. Roddy, C. A. Joseph Queckberner and James Robinson, trainer. Also with the team goes the University of Pennsylvania eight-oared boat crew, which will race the Oxford crew.

This season has been remarkable for the number of world's records broken. It seemed last year that they had become so great that they would not be broken for some time. Yet thus early in the season three have been broken and several have been equalled. May 9th, that great spinter, Luther H. Cary of the Manhattan Athletic Club and of Princeton College, made a new record for the 75 yards dash. The old record was  $7\frac{3}{4}$  seconds; the new, 7 35. May 16, at the meeting between Harvard and Yale, J. R. Finlay of Harvard broke the record for throwing the 16 pound hammer, with a throw of 108 feet 5 inches. The old record was 108 feet 3 inches. June 6, Cary, ten minutes after running 100 yards in 9 45 seconds, covered the distance in  $9\frac{3}{4}$  seconds, making another new world's record. May 16, H. L. Williams of Yale, who holds the world's record for the 120-yards high hurdle, equalled his former record of 16 seconds. Intercollegiate, college and school records have been broken by the score. Such performances so early in the season make one wonder how many records will remain intact next fall. Will there ever be a limit, and when will it be reached?

ENTERTAINMENTS.

The nineteenth annual closing recitals of the Worcester County Music School were given Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings in the First Universalist Church. The programs included songs, violin solos, piano-forte solos, with accompaniments by piano and orchestra. Those taking part were Miss Lillie C. Bemis, Miss Helen Pike, Mrs. R. W. Robinson, Miss Norma Andrus, Miss Emma Blaisdell, Miss Annie O'Day, Miss Clara Westcott, Miss Mabel E. Dickinson, Miss Clara E. Willis, Miss Catherine Bent, Mrs. Sadie Forehand, Miss F. Mabel Rice, Miss Mirriam Skinner, Miss Mary E. Brighty, Miss Elizabeth Walker, Benjamin Whitmore, Jr., Miss Florence E. Scott, Miss Grace E. Andrews, Miss Mabel Tuson, Mrs. N. E. McCauley, Miss Bessie K. Pelton, Edwin Sabin, Miss Lizzie M. Colhoun, Master Ernest L. Smith, Miss Sadie Hill, Miss Mabel B. Jennison, Miss Florence Wood, Master Walter B. Eaton, George A. Learned, Miss Florence M. Gates, Patrick O'Connor, Louis E. Mason, Miss Florence E. Muzzy, Mrs. Cornelia M. Cox, Charles E. Hitchcock, Miss Margaret H. Griggs, Miss Clara H. Bliss, William P. Bigelow, Miss Edith Kinney, Miss Hattie L. White, Edgar E. Fay, Miss Florence J. Everett, James H. Cafferty, Miss Gertrude E. Nash.

Keep cool if you can.

Church Notes.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The fifteenth annual festival of the Worcester Congregational Club took place Monday evening in Mechanics Hall. It was also ladies' night. At seven o'clock a banquet was served by Caterer Rebboli, to which over four hundred sat down. Among the guests were representatives of several other denominations. Rev. Geo. H. Gould, D. D., president of the Club, acted as toastmaster. He first called upon Dr. Homer T. Fuller to speak of the life of the late Deacon Philip L. Moen of the Union Church. With the remainder of the speakers the subject for discussion was "The Church of the 20th Century." Those speaking on the subject were Rev. O. P. Gifford of Brookline, Anthony Comstock of New York, Congressman Joseph H. Walker, Rev. William G. Puddefoot of South Framingham, Rev. Dr. A. S. Garver, Rev. J. D. Pickles. Mrs. Minnie M. Peck of Boston added to the pleasure of the evening with several songs.

EPISCOPAL.

The Loyalty Club of St. John's Episcopal Church will hold a Flower Festival next Thursday evening on the church grounds.

METHODIST.

Grace. The Epworth League will give an entertainment next Tuesday evening June 16 in the vestry, Don't fail to hear th: Singing Flowers.

Y. M. C. A.

The Lake work of the Association is prospering. There are now seventy members. The inducements offered the members to join include the use of about twenty boats and canoes, half rates on the "dummy," the use of a tennis court, swimming facilities, with instruction, and lockers at a small rental. The price of membership is $2. Members of the junior department may by paying one dollar have the use of the boats and grounds from nine till one o'clock.

Tomorrow, the morning meeting will be led by C. Forrest Wesson. Mrs. Dr. McCullagh will address the boys' meeting at three. For fifteen minutes preceding the men's meeting at four, there will be a song service on the steps at the front of the building.

E. W. Wilder, the newly elected physical director, will begin his work next September.

A monument is to be erected in Tennessee to the memory of the quaint pioneer hero David Crockett. It is to consist of a shaft of stone twenty-seven feet high, with bronze medallions on the front and sides representing scenes in his life. A bust, by Crockett, is to surmount the shaft, while before the shaft is to be seated a bear, the type of the wild forest which the pioneers subjugated, preparatory to settlement by the whites. "Be sure you're right, then go ahead."

It pays to patronize General Agent Geo. Y. Lancaster, for Railroad and Steamship Tickets, Drafts, and Insurance Office, 434 Main street, Worcester.

England's Rulers.

BY EMILY HASBROUCK.

"The White Isle," Albion,
Was Britain's first name,
Druid priests were its rulers,
Until the Romans came,
Led by Julius Cæsar,
B. C. 55.
And Rome governed Britain
Through centuries nearly five.
Next came Saxons and Angles;
Of states they made seven,
Called the "Saxon Heptarchy,"
Until 827.
Their "Bretwalda." Egbert,
Was Angle-Land's first king.
Ethelwolf, England's second.
Had four sons, each king.
Ethelbald, Ethelbret, Ethelred,
And "Alfred the Great."
After "Edward the Elder,"
Athelstan in state:
The six "Boy Kings" next; Edmund,
Edred, Edwy, Edgar,
Edward called "The Martyr,"
And Ethelred "The Unready;"
Then came the fierce Danes,
Canute, Harold, Hardicanute;
Then the two Saxon reigns
Of Edward, and last Harold,
Who on Hastings' plain,
Was by invading Normans,
In 1066, slain. —Young Idea.

The above lines were arranged to aid in recalling the names and the succession of England's Rulers down to the Norman Invasion, and are designed to use in the connection with the well known lines quoted below, beginning—

"First William the Norman
Then William his Son"

which give Eng'and's rulers from the Norman Invasion to the present time.

"Next ruled William the Norman,
Then William his son,
Henry, Stephen and Henry,
Then Richard and John.
Next Henry the Third,
Edwards one, two and three;
And again after Richard,
Three Henrys we see.
Two Edwards, third Richard,
If I rightly guess;
Two Henrys, sixth Edward,
Queen Mary, Queen Bess;
Then James the Scotchman,
Then Charles whom they slew,
Yet received after Cromwell
Another Charles too.
Next James the Second
Ascended the throne;
Then good William and Mary
Together came on;
Then Anne, Georges four,
And fourth William all passed;
And Victoria came,
May she long be the last."

The monument to the memory of the leading French officers who assisted the colonies in the war of the Revolution, Lafayette, Rochambeau, De Grasse, D'Estaing and Du Portail, which was presented to the city of Washington as a gift by the people of France, has been set up in Washington on Lafayette square. It was designed by the French sculptor, Mercie, of Paris.

It was a good thing for at least three of those Frenchmen that they were sent over here. Otherwise, the world had, long since, forgotten them.

Don't fail to read LIGHT's offers of bicycles. This is bona fide. Call and get specimen numbers to canvass with.

Boston Store.

Established 1870.

Sole Agency { Centemeri Gloves.
Butterick's Paper Patterns.
E. C. Burt's Shoes.
Foster Kid Gloves.

Fine materials for graduation toilettes.

Women, you are asked more money elsewhere for the exact goods here offered. A single examination of our stock will convince you of this.

IN SILK:

China Silk, very fine and soft, 27 inch, $1. All colors.

Wash surahs, 25c yard; worth 50c. China silks, 75c, 69c and 49c. All light Colors.

Surah silks, the finest quality, 24 inches wide, 75c. All evening shades.

Surah silks, 20 inches wide, 59c. All colors.

Faille Francaise, $1 and $1.10 and $1.25. All colors.

Lansdowne, $1.25. All colors. Crepe Cleopatra, 87 1-2c. All colors.

Figured Surahs, Indias and wash silks in evening shades.

IN WOOL:

Cream silk warp henriettas, $1.25.

Cream Beatrice cloth, $1.25.

Albatros, 75c and 50c.

All wool cream and white henriettas, 75c and 50c.

Cream batiste, 50c to 75c.

Cream and white mohairs, 40 inch, 29c yard, worth 50c.

Cream nun's veiling, 75c.

Delicate cream embroidered robes, $12.50 to $20

Cream brocaded wool fabrics, 50c.

Samples will be mailed or given at the counter.

Annex.

DENHOLM & MCKAY COMPANY.

Henry W. Waterman, for three years in the Worcester High School, graduates at East Greenwich Academy, R. I., on the 18th, inst. LIGHT and other friends send best wishes.

The Boys' Club

And Its Superintendent.

First as to the man who personally watches over the interests of this agency for good.

Mr. Clarence L. Burges is still a very young man, in his early twenties, but he seems to have as firm a grasp on the juvenile America, entrusted to his care as he would, had his hand been stiffened and hardened by the experiences of forty years. The most of his acquaintances will be surprised to learn that he is a native of Dixie. Should you look at your map of Virginia, just east of York River, near where it enters the Chesapeake, you will find Gloucester Court House and in this village Mr. B. was born. He is an excellent illustration of "Ole Virginny, never tire." His father, English born, had lived his early life in the North, but before the War, he had gone down to the Old Dominion and there the Rebellion found him. Of distinctively northern sentiments, he nevertheless was compelled to enter the Rebel service. Three times he was taken in and three times was discharged on account of disability. He was not in a battle so he can hardly be said to have fought against the Nation. Some years after the War, the family came back to the North and settled in Bridgeport and here Mr. Burges made his advent into Boys' Club work. In Bridgeport, Mr. Collins made the beginning of the enterprise and our young Superintendent was drawn in first as a spectator. There must have been a natural adaptability, for he was soon secured as librarian. Then trouble arose between the boys and the man in charge, so that one night, the rooms were not opened. The next night, Mr. Burges, though only in his teens, was prevailed upon to take temporary charge. From provisional to full control was a matter of a few weeks only and there he remained two years.

When the Worcester Club was organized, two years since, no one was found so well adapted to our needs as the young man in Bridgeport, so we just reached down into Barnum's town and bade its Burges, "Come up higher." He was accordingly exalted and here he has been since, winning golden opinions from all our citizens. He is not a large man, nor does he possess in a distinguishing degree any physical characteristic that can account for his success. He, simply, has staying qualities and that wholly intangible, impalpable something that wins the good opinion and affection of boys and that is enough.

He is a tireless worker, a very small part of his labors being that given to the evenings in the rooms. He secures places for boys to work, goes to the Central District Court to look after such as may have transgressed, visits the lads in their homes and in every way is a missionary indeed. Those who are so anxious that the home field should be provided for before foreign fields are opened, must be pleased with the work of this Superintendent who is ever alert and always there. His whole face and figure should appear in our picture; but native modesty prompts him to step back, just as the flash was made, so we have him only in part, right by the piano. A little is better than nothing. The next time we hope to get him in full.

Do you see that his finger is raised? He is just demanding order among those one hundred and fifty urchins who are laughing at what the little girl is reading. Note the expressions on their faces. Aren't they pleased? Won't an evening of smiles like those go far towards dissipating the frowns and scowls and angry looks of the day?

Well, ladies and gentlemen of Worcester, you who have contributed as well as you who have not, such faces may be seen in the boys, club any night from the first of September to the first of June. I have sought diligently for a proper name for this enterprise. I have thought of calling it a sort of Land Life Saving Station but there is too little sense of immediate danger. These boys have little sense of the perils that their gathering here shields them from. The room is made attractive; they come; they are prompted to wash and be clean; they have good books to read and amusing games to play. There are good men and women to sit down by them and to try and give them what many, far too many, do not get at home. They are not angels, save in the rough. Very much unnewn is the marble whence the artist is to chisel his thing of beauty, but it is alive to begin with, very much alive, differing thus, you see, from Marley; so much alive, that life seems to bubble up and overflow, and spread all around, more life than the youngsters can hold, so chock full of life and energy and force and vitality that LIGHT can think of no more appropriate name than Worcester's Storage Battery. Certain it is, that power for good or bad is hidden in these boys to a portentous degree. Their native wits may be no brighter than those of your boy's or mine; but they are much earlier sharpened. It is to give a proper bent to this energy; to properly apply it that the club was organized. The school of the street is a hard one; but it is terribly practical. Darwin's law of survival applies with horrible certainty. The boy who can come up through it and still be clean has the best outfit possible for the battle of life. He is a well drilled soldier at the onset. It is to teach these street boys humanity toward each other, to make evident and applicable the Golden Rule that the Rev. John C. Collins began his work among the boys.

With the work in other places, we are not at present particularly concerned; but with that in Worcester we have a deep and abiding interest. Two years since, in mid-summer, the Rev. Mr. Collins visited Worcester and so prompted our citizens that a Boys' Club was organized. William H. Burns was made Chairman, Miss Josephine C. Aldrich, Secretary of the Committee whose other members were Frederick S. Pratt, Prescott G. Kent and Mrs. Henry A. Wheeler. Edward Whitney was appointed Treasurer and Clarence L. Burges, Superintendent. The work was successful from the beginning, the citizens voluntarily rallying to its support and raising therefor nearly twenty-five hundred dollars. From the first report, we may learn that the Club Room in Barton Place was open 201 evenings. That the total enrollment was 848; the aggregate attendance 25,362; the average attendance, 126; the largest number present at any one time 430; the smallest 30. The largest gathering was when Christmas gifts were distributed. During the year, just ended, the enrollment has swollen to 1,360. The average attendance has not been quite so large; but that may be accounted for in a way, which in no manner indicates waning interest. In the first year Mr. Burges made 856 visits to the homes of boys, the second year 768. The first year he aided 23 boys in getting better clothing, the second 37. The first year he found employment for 13 boys, the second 68.

Who then shall say that this is not a practical form of missionary effort? This is sub-soiling. It is going way down deep into the lives of the individual. It knows no creed nor race in its application. Study the faces in the picture. Two barefooted boys sit in the front row of seats and it is in April, the 23d day. They are not shoeless from choice. In the crowd standing and sitting back are many more equally destitute. There are boys in that company whose only hours of anything approaching comfort are those spent here. Note the face of the first barefooted boy. Does his face look any the less happy that his feet as they go out of that hall will fall, soleless, upon the cold pavement. He is happy now. He is made thus many nights in the year. Were he thus destitute in the coldest season, Mr. Burges would see that his feet were covered. Hundreds of people have contributed towards this charity. Few have seen its practical workings. When next it opens, go in and see what Mr. Burges and his good helpers are doing. Go in, yourself, and try to interest; but don't patronize. The lads don't like that. They are wiser, in their generation, than the children of light. They are approachable; but it must be in their own way. He who gives them a chance to answer a question does so at his peril. It was a prominent lawyer who was talking to them, one night. In his remarks, he touched upon chipmunks. "Do you know what chipmunks eat?" said he. Instantly a youngster shouted "Pork and beans." In no time, every vociferous throat was naming something eatable, each one vying with his neighbor in crying out an absurdity. It was some time before the lawyer recovered his equanimity. He asked no more questions. On another occasion, when the Superintendent had said, "Silence boys" a lad turned to his neighbor, and, softo voce, said, "Silence in the Court while the Judge eats beans." The thing was so funny that other lads caught it up and it went buzzing down the seats. It is a place where the entertainer must produce the best he has. The boys know the difference between tinsel and real gold and they will quickly puncture a sham.

LIGHT would gladly name all those who have given of their time and talent in trying to instruct and entertain these boys, but the list would be too long. Space, however, must be found for the names of Mr. Ben. Hammond and his pupils, who have been friends indeed. Mrs. Genery Stevens has been an excellent friend in preparing evenings of song and readings. The little girl, a very small one, who is reciting as the flash is made, is Miss Ollie Hewitt. At the right of the picture, may be seen another girlish face, that of little Miss Fannie Damon who, also, on the 23d of April, recited very prettily.

One of the practical phases of the club, which Mr. Collins calls one of the very best,

Blair, Photographer.

WORCESTER'S BOYS' CLUB.

THERE was a little girl,
And she had a little curl
Right in the middle of her forehead.

When she was good, she was VERY, VERY good,
But when she was bad, she was HORRID.

AND

So it is with a time piece. When it is good, it is VERY, VERY good, and a thing invaluable; but when it is bad, it is horrid. Is it not?

We have constantly on hand grades of watches made by the Elgin and Waltham Companies, for men, women and children, in cases of silver or gold, and really at very moderate prices for a thing that is reliable. Do not buy a watch too cheap. It will always bother you. BURBANK, JEWELLER, Corner of Main and Exchange Streets. Established 1843.

Old Reliable 'Cycle House!

Cycles Cycles Cycles

FOR

FOR

FOR Men

Ladies

Boys & Girls

PRICES.

$60 to $135

$60 to $135

$25 to $50.00

We are Sole Agents for the
COLUMBIA, VICTOR,
HARTFORD,
DIAMOND ;

Featherstone and Ormonde Pneumatics

We have the BEST and ONLY the BEST.

"COME IN AND SEE FOR YOURSELVES."

Holland & Havener,

507 Main St., Worcester.

in the country, is the penny savings banks. From the 27th of April, 1890, there have been deposits amounting to $748,31. $525.24 has been withdrawn. The number of depositors is 438 who have made more than 3 000 entries. It should be stated that these withdrawals were for meritorious purposes, usually the purchasing of clothing. There have been two classes in carpentry; one in writing and two in United States history. Every effort is made to discourage dime and nickel novel reading and they are prompted to take better books supplied to them by the Public Library.

Religion, as such, is not taught nor hinted at. Morals and cleanliness are kept constantly in view both by precept and example. It is too early for full fruitage; but by the eye of faith we see the results.

"Thy saints in all this glorious war,
Shall conquer though they die,
They view the victory from afar
They seize it with the eye."

LIGHT hereby returns thanks to those kind patrons of the club whose generosity has made the expensive plate representing the boys a possibility, and to Mr. Blair whose skill and patience produced the picture for the engraving.

Miss Kimball's Home School, closing reception will take place next Monday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock. Woodland Street.

Arthur C., eldest son of the Rev. J. C. White has just received his diploma from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York.

The Veteran.

This is the title of a new monthly begun by Mr. C. W. Burbank and Comrade J. Brainard Hall. It is devoted to the interests of the G. A. R., in Worcester County and will keep the run of congressional action with reference to pensions. There are other papers in the state and nation that are devoted to the old soldier; but there would seem to be a place for this one. It has LIGHTS best wishes.

Society of Antiquity.

The excursion of this body to Medfield on the 20th, promises an unusually pleasant outing. In addition to the pleasure of meeting that staunch old Worcesterite Joseph Lovell and his son, Albert, there will, probably, be a party over from Dedham, the parent town, and one in which is maintained one of the best historical societies in the country. The history to be considered will be Indian, in the main, but that is just what we want. The people promise a rousing reception.

Charles Monroe.

Following hard after the deaths of those aged citizens, Francis Strong, H. W. Miller and Charles Wilder, is that of the venerable father of Mr. A. C. Monroe. Once active in the affairs of the day, he has, for some years, been a loved inmate of his son's home. "Honor thy father and thy mother." How delightful, the sight of generations of relatives, all beneath the same roof tree. Mr. Monroe was buried from 24 Hollywood Street, Tuesday, the Rev. Mr. Southgate officiating. The burial was in North Andover.

Boston Letter.

BOSTON, June 8th, 1891.

The dramatic season may be considered fairly at an end, when only one of the regular theatres remains open, the Grand Opera House where young Salvini has been doing most excellent work in his varied repertoire for some weeks. He is a very intelligent actor, with a vigorous manly style that is very taking, and is as artistic in his method as you expect from the son of the elder Salvini, perhaps the greatest tragedian in the world.

He made a great hit in the character of the Baron, in "Jim the Penman" a few years ago, when it was first brought out—his broken English was naturally fascinating, it was very cleverly done; no one since has anywhere near approached him in the part.

Since he has starred in romantic plays of the melodrama he has produced such pieces as, "Dukes Motto," "The Three Guardsmen," "Don Cæsar de Bazan" and "Monte Christo," in such a way as to place him at the front rank of actors of this class in the country.

Daly's New York company made their usual Spring visit to the Hollis street theatre and left for Chicago late Saturday evening, having done an enormous business as usual. They are all favorites here, and always draw a fashionable audience. Ada Rehan, the leading lady is the most fascinating actress on the stage. There is something so spontaneous and sparkling in her art, her personality is so charming, that once you come under her spell, you are an admirer of her work ever after. It looks as if the company would be considerably changed season after next, if John Drew their leading man, is to become a star under New York management, as is now reported.

He and Miss Rehan have acted opposite parts together for so many years with such inimitable grace and manner that it seems too bad that they should be separated. One associates them artistically together, much as the world does of Henry Irving and Miss Terry, and in their particular line they are as good.

If John Drew does start out as a star there will be many sincere wishes for his success from his friends in this city. He stands very high socially in New York, and is decidedly in the swim wherever he goes. When in town here he is usually put up at the Somerset Club, a distinction I am sure very few actors in this country enjoy,—as it is one of the very swell aristocratic clubs in America.

They played "Love's Labor Lost" one of the earliest comedies of the Bard of Avon during their engagement. It has not been seen on our stage for years, and was not as interesting as any other of Shakespeare's plays.

The popular "Promenade Concerts" are in full blast at Music Hall, and are as well patronized and as successful as ever. I never could see why they have been so persistently called promenade concerts, as all the walking there is, is to secure a seat, and sit there to keep it. There is no room at all for promenading or time either for that matter.

There is an orchestra of fifty, led by Adamowski, consisting of quite a number of players from the Symphony concerts, so society people gave it as hearty an approval as ever. During the Summer these concerts are gladly patronized by the "stay at homes" who can listen to excellent music well played, and an occasional soloist; indulge in light refreshments, both solid and liquid if desired, and enjoy a pleasant evening for a very small sum, as the admission is only a quarter. The reserved seats both on the floor and in the gallery are twenty-five cents extra, but there are plenty of good seats without these.

I was strongly reminded of early school-boy days when Barnum & Baileys "Greatest Show on Earth" had their big parade the other morning. Along by the office the street was packed with people, of all kinds and classes, but the most interesting were the young boys standing on the curb stone, straining every eye and nerve to see the procession, and not miss seeing the elephants. Time enough to see the latter later on, and if they miss it no great loss. School kept that day too, and I wondered how many would be tardy or "hook Jack" or invent some plausible excuse to square account with their teachers.

WATSON.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Hoyt and Thomas have secured the Madison Square theatre, New York, for a term of years, commencing September 1st, and some play of Mr. Hoyt's will be on the boards during the whole of the time. A Temperance Town is the title of the opening piece.

Nat Goodwin's wife has sued for a divorce on the ground of desertion and non-support, and wants two hundred dollars a week alimony.

Although Gus Williams and John T. Kelly have divided a goodly amount of profits with their comedy "U and I," yet they think there is more money for each separately. Accordingly, next year John will stick to "U and I" while Gus will amuse his audiences with "Kepler's Fortunes."

A new playwright who has rapidly come to the front is Herbert Hall Winslow, author of "A Silent Partner," which was given here early in the season with great success. His latest plays, "A Barrel of Money," and "A Knotty Affair" have made tremendous hits and he is deluged with more commissions than he can possibly fill.

Richard Mansfield's own play, "Don Juan," in which he is appearing in New York has been unmercifully scored by the metropolitan critics.

Millie Price, the new English soubrette, has taken this country by storm and is something of a whirlwind in domestic matters. She joined "Natural Gas" in Denver on Monday, met the son of a wealthy banker on Tuesday, married him on Thursday, he nearly killed her on Friday and she left him on Saturday. She is said to be the greatest kicker in the world, both on and off the stage.

Rose Coghlan announces that she intends to produce next season, a new society comedy called "Dorothy's Dilemma," written especially for her by Leopold Jordan.

Sydney Harrison and Milton Aborn, well-known in Worcester, have been playing against each other in Philadelphia. Aborn has had rather the best of it.

The latest title for a farce comedy is "A Piece of Cheese," in which Stanley May is a star. The attraction is said to be very strong.

South End Notes.

On an invitation of the Lake View Society the local Y. P. S. C. E. societies were entertained at the lake Tuesday evening. An entertainment was given in the church, after which all enjoyed a ride on the lake. Over 500 members enjoyed the evening.

Mrs. Charles L. Edwards, 14 King street, went to Chicago Monday, where she is to pass the summer.

Mrs. F. B. Knowles and family reached England after a very rough voyage.

Rev. A. Z. Conrad and Rev. D. O. Mears exchanged pulpits last Sunday morning.

Mr. A. E. Harris, 29 Benefit street, enjoyed an outing last Sunday, with friends in Millbury.

Mr. O. C. Hutchins, Benefit street, has much improved the appearance of his residence by the addition of an elegant open verandah, on the North side.

At the regular business meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. Monday night, the following officers were elected: John T. Brierly, Pres.; Will Larkin, Vice Pres.; Geo. E. Copeland, Sec. and Waiter S. Davis, Treas.

Monday afternoon, some excellent tennis plays were made: F. A. Whittemore and Chas. D. Cooke beat H. A. Billings and Chas. H. Mitchell, 6-4, 7-5. These games are open to the public and a finer and cooler place to spend the afternoon cannot be found in this part of the city.

The eight hour system has been adopted by the Knowles Loom Works and during the dull season they have found it necessary to discharge quite a number of men.

Miss Kimball's Home School, corner May and Woodland streets closes next Monday. In the afternoon there is to be a literary entertainment, and in the evening the closing reception will occur.

The Beaver Tennis Club, having cool and delightful grounds in the woods on Beaver Street, claim to have in Messrs. Zelotes Wood Coombs, Charles and Albert Marble, and William Hilton Cunningham, four of the finest tennis players in the city.

The Woodland Bicycle Club, have adopted a very natty suit of light grey Scotch goods with silver trimmings.

Miss Edith Hoyle has placed at the disposal of her friends a fine tennis Court, directly opposite the Crescents' Grounds. Her young lady friends may be seen in practice here every afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Gorham and son Frederick intend to spend the month of July in Barre.

Mrs. Chas. D. Perkins has opened for the convenience of her south end patrons, a circulating library at 828 Main Street.

Mr. Eugene Cavour Belknap, recently with Holland & Havener has gone to Waterbury, Conn., where he intends to set up in the bicycle business.

Mr. Stephen E. Green and family will the summer at the "Pickwick" Falmouth Heights.

Mr. John J. Whittier has just returned from a visit to friends in Amherst, where he has combined business with pleasure. Fishing has consumed a good part of his time.

Children's Convention.

The Royal Temperance Legion, Worcester County South, will hold its annual convention at Spencer, July 8th. The Spencer company will entertain the convention. It is hoped that the electric cars will be run, if not the Worcester company will go out in barges.

W. C. T. U.

County convention meets at Leicester, Tuesday, June 30th. County superintendent will give their yearly report.

Quinn-Gaffney.

At St. Paul's Church, Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Frank J. Quinn was married to Miss Abbie J. Gaffney. A very large assemblage gathered to witness the ceremony. Both parties are well known in the city, the groom having been a member of the Light Infantry and the bride for nine years has been in Wesby's book bindery. Till she left, a few weeks since, every copy of LIGHT had in some way passed through her hands. It would be strange indeed if LIGHT did not rejoice in her prosperity. Many choice presents were received and the happy pair left the same evening for a bridal tour to New York.

The Worcester Society of Antiquity has arranged for an excursion to Medfield, Saturday, June 20, 1891. A special car will leave the Union Station at 7:55 a.m. and arrive at Medfield at 9. The society will be received by a committee of prominent citizens of the town at the vestry of the Unitarian Church, where an address of welcome will be delivered by the President of the Day, which will briefly outline the route to be travelled, and explain points of interest. The scenes of the Indian attack and massacre of 1676, the birthplace of Hannah Adams and that of Lowell Mason, and various other noted localities will then be visited. Dinner in the Town Hall at 1, to be followed by speechmaking interspersed with music. Distinguished guests from all parts are expected. The remainder of the afternoon will be devoted to the Old Cemetery (earliest stone 1661), the library, and other places in the centre. Leave Medfield at 5:20 p.m. Members are requested to procure their tickets on or before Tuesday evening, June 16, at which time the Committee will be at their rooms to supply those who desire. Railroad tickets $1.25. Ladies are invited.

Letter of Explanation.

DARLING BROS.,
CONTRACTORS AND BUILDERS,
MAIN OFFICE,
WORCESTER, MASS.

QUARRY OFFICE, MILFORD, Mass.,
June 9, 1891.

Mr. Becker—Dear Sir:

In the list published in last week's LIGHT, I think you must have forgotten me. I certainly owe my position to having begun a course with you, and I expect to finish that course at my first opportunity.

Yours very truly,

C. C. KENYON.

Mrs. Helen Lincoln, daughter of Edward Winslow Lincoln after a brief trip abroad, is now in New York, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Bogert.

A Mohammedan.

"God is but one God."—The Koran.

In the rose attar land, the boy first heard
The chimes that call the faithful unto prayer;
He knelt in reverence on the mosque's broad stair,
And as the young soul, like a timid bird,
Sought and yet feared to fly, his heart was stirred
By the first precept he saw written there:
"God is but one God," from the Koran, where
The True Believer reads the Master's word.

Shall I come less near Christ, if I, too, say:
"God is but one God"? Shall my brother fear
That he is not to reach the longed-for goal?
Nay; let us kneel together when we pray;
I know that prayer to Allah, God will hear,
Because I know the whiteness of that soul.
—Frank Roe Batchelder.

DIED

In this city, 8th, of diphtheria, Irving Wesby, only child of Herbert and Lizzie A. Wesby, 8yrs., 3mos. 28 days.

Funeral Wednesday at 3:30 p.m., at their residence, No. 34 Bowdoin street.

The place in which a name is found may, sometimes, express volumes. There is no home in which a Rachel weeps, refusing to be comforted, where the sorrow and gloom of the Wesby parents is not lived over. One day, full of life and hope and joy and expectation; the next only a piece of lifeless clay. Hundreds of people who know the parents, have sorrowed with them over the sudden loss of their only child. How life and death, joy and sadness, are blended in this world of ours! Almost at the very hour, when the happy bride gives her hand to her husband at St. Paul's church, the heart of her respected employer is bowed in grief over all that is mortal of his only boy. Eight years of life's journey, enough to draw around him the parental heart strings and to make their sundering like the snapping of life's bonds. Eight years of joyous expectations and for the future, memories! We never know, till we are called to enter this gallery of memory how many pictures are hanging there of all the scenes in our darlings' lives. We scarcely heeded when they were passing; but now we find them indelibly fixed. We are thankful for memory now as never before and though life will bear us on it will never cover the niches in which the figures of our lost children stand. All those who have loved and lost, those, too, who have not suffered are sorrowing with the parents in their sad home now silent to childish sounds.

At Pilgrim Chapel, next Tuesday evening, the members of the Woman's Suffrage League will give a tea to invited guests. Reforms are slow but they come at last. People are living now who will see woman enfranchised.

Caleb A. Wall.

Fifty years ago on June 11, 1841, Caleb A. Wall completed his apprenticeship to the printing and newspaper business in the old Spy office, where he commenced April 17, 1837, in the same office with which he has been connected most of the time ever since, a period of over fifty-four years.

Next week, LIGHT will have a picture of the veteran.

Mr. Walter Grout late from Beckers stenographer, with Wm. H. Sawyer, has accepted a call to a position in the office of the Washburn Moen Co.

A Trip to Cuba.

We started from Philadelphia in schooner "Harold B. Cousins" on Monday the 12th of January and passed Cape Henlopen at 4 P. M. Thursday. A heavy gale which began on that night continued for two days. The rest of the voyage was quite pleasant. We saw few vessels on the way and on the morning of the 28th inst. sighted the Island of Grand Caicos, a barren and low place with no signs of life anywhere. We then shifted our course and sighted Turk's Island that noon. The island is surrounded by a white rim of salt which appears much like snow. Some quite large buildings were near the shore but they were only one story or two at most high because of the hurricanes which occur in this region in the summer.

The island is low with no vegetation. The next day we sighted the island of Cuba towards 2 P. M. It is very high and rises in steps near Negro Point. On the 31st we passed St Jagos hidden in the mountains and then Cape Cruz. The land is low here. The next day we met the pilot, a short and dark Spaniard, near Cape Blanco. The wind died out and we were unable to get into the harbor so we anchored here and next day anchored again about a mile from the wharves. The pilot took us ashore and we landed near the custom house. This was a one story shanty painted white with blue doors and window shutters. The shutters were closed so as to keep the interior cool.

The roof was of curved clay tiles. After looking over our Bill of Health they allowed us to land only to be sent back into the boat again until they had sent for the doctor to come from Trinidad, which is the main town, Port Casilda being its port, and sign the papers. A stevedore a runaway Peruvian sailor who had married and settled here, the captain and myself then went to Trinidad in a crazy looking team, the driver being mounted on one of his horses. Along the roads were palm trees, cactus and other tropical vegetation. A railroad formerly connected the two places but with the decrease in business has gone to ruin. We passed a burying ground and the ruins of what was formerly a large soap factory but was burned by the negroes in the last rebellion, the barracks where the soldiers are quartered with the fence torn down. The streets of the town were wretchedly paved and had narrow sidewalks. The windows of the houses are all latticed. The houses are connected and the partition doesn't quite come to the top so as to let the air circulate freely.

The houses are very cool and comfortable compared with the heat outside. The American consul was a Spaniard who did not talk very fine English but he was only a consul appointed by the one at Cienfuegos. We returned to the ship that night and commenced unloading next day by lighters. The view of the town from the harbor is splendid and set off with high mountains back of it, their tops covered with clouds nearly all the time.

A signal station is on a hill just back of the town from which they signal the arrival of the steamers of the coast line. One Sunday we went up to the top of it and had an elegant view of the ocean on one side and the sugar plantation on the other. One river with a stone railroad bridge across it could be seen winding its way among the trees. With a powerful glass here we could see the boats in the harbor very plainly. On the side of this hill is a cave wherein a robber formerly dwelt but who was killed about ten years ago. The entrance is very low and quite hidden by bushes. We went in quite a ways and disturbed lots of bats which dwell here in great numbers. The cave was not very high but was very pretty in some places. It had many passages and exits, one of which opens out on the coast at a distance of nine miles. We found the place where this man had dwelt when he was alive.

We went into one of the churches here and saw the gaudy dolls which represent the saints. There were no seats but people who wished to sit down were expected to bring them. There were many cases of these gaudy dolls and other ornaments and after putting something in the contribution box we went up into the belfry in which there were four bells all cracked from hard usage. While we were there they rang the bells and they made a terrible racket. In front of the church were some boys playing base ball, and it was Sunday too; but Sunday was the great sporting day there, the shops, saloons etc., were all open and cock fights are held.

In the evening the Spanish señors and señoras were out walking on the plaza. The plaza was a pretty square with a roof of vines over the middle part and high palms at the corners with paths around the square and flower beds between.

The people were pretty sharp in cheating Englishmen who could not speak their tongue. They charged us twice or three times as much as the natives. They seemed to be very shrewd and thought it a big thing when they cheated a great deal. Most of the people were negroes, but there were a few Spaniards and quite a number of gendarmes and soldiers. They all use spurs and carry two large holsters on each side of the saddle. The road between Trinidad and the coast is patrolled all night by mounted gendarmes.

There were only three ships besides ours in the harbor, a Norwegian bark, an American and a Nova Scotian brig. The harbor is very shallow with a depth of fourteen feet a mile from shore and the channel is cut out to a depth of about twelve feet near the docks. A shark about ten feet four inches was caught after a hard fight by the Norwegian bark. On the 5th of March we sailed from Casilda and on the 10th passed out of the Florida straits. The water is a very dark blue in the Gulf Stream at this point. On the 11th we encountered a heavy gale and ran her all night under the smallest canvas possible without taking off anything. On the 15th in the Gulf Stream the difference between the temperature of the water and that of the air was so great that a thick vapor like fog rose from the sea. On the 16th we sighted Fenwick's Island lightship and the next evening we anchored in Delaware bay behind the ice breaker after a remarkably quick passage. On the 22d we had both anchors and double reefed spanker out in the heavy gale which destroyed the beach at Long Branch N. J. On the 25th we got under way and anchored in lower New York bay on the 27th and after lying here two days on the 28th, Easter Sunday we got under way again and on the 31st we anchored at Hyannis, as a storm was coming up and it was growing thick so that we would be unable to see the lights and get off the shoals safely. There were more than fifty sail here, all coasters. On the 2d of April we started again and got off the shoals by night and at 2 o'clock with no canvas on we were blown into Boston bay by a heavy gale and anchored, no one knew where, but in the morning found ourselves just inside Boston light. It blew terribly hard until about night when a tug came out and towed us up into the harbor and the next morning we came to the wharf of the Standard Sugar Refinery Co. and the voyage was finished.

A WORCESTER SCHOOL BOY.

LEGISLATIVE SKETCH.

Ledyard Bill.

A prominent member of the present House is Ledyard Bill of Paxton, a well known citizen and republican politician of Worcester County; he is a native of Ledyard, Connecticut, and a graduate of Suffield Academy; his age is fifty-five; he has held various important town offices and is a corresponding member of several historical and genealogical societies in Massachusetts and other states; he is also vice-president of the Bay State and Worcester Agricultural Societies; Mr. Bill is the House chairman of the joint committee on agriculture; he was formerly engaged in the book-publishing and engraving business in New York; for some years he has resided in Paxton; as a farmer he has about sixty acres of land, cultivates ten, and raises general crops. This is his first year in the Legislature and by his independent course in relation to various subjects—especially in connection with the so called "salary grab"—he has experienced some personal opposition in his advocacy of other matters; Mr. Bill has been interested in agricultural topics to which he has given much attention; he is a reader and thinker and on many matters of public interest is well informed, with an abundant ability in the expression of his ideas to his associate members.—Clinton Courant.

Last Wednesday evening in Springfield, at the commencement exercises of the Y. M. C. A. Training School, was graduated in the physical department, Walter D. Berry of this city. Mr. Berry was a '90 boy at the High School. He will make a good director for some association.

The third of the Demorest Medal Prize Speaking Contests takes place next Tuesday evening in Association Hall. The contestants will be Arthur Templeton, Florice Taylor, Vida M. Newton, Mary Wilson, Hannah C. Simmonds, Elizabeth Kneeland, Mabelle Jenkins, J. J. Shay, Corinna Reubin. The judges are H. L. Gale, J. F. Kyes and W. H. Bartlett. The musical numbers of the program will be furnished by the Cecilia quartet and Miss C. H. Burnham. Contests will be held every month, except August, until nine have taken place when the winners will complete for a gold medal.

Books and Bookmen.

This 1891 is the Centennial of the publication of the most excellent biography in the English language, Boswell's Life of Johnson. In fact, were it not for that wonderful book, very few people would be seeking out today the seat in which the Lexicographer sat in the gallery of St. Clement's Dane, nor that cosy corner in "Ye Old Cheshire Cheese," where he declared an inn to be one of the greatest boons to men, nor the old house in Bolt Court where he died. The event is of sufficient importance to warrant the re-reading of the biography. Little Scotch "Jemmy" has indissolubly linked his name with that of one of the masters of English style for all time. Boswell is never pretentious, never willingly obtrudes himself; but in every page we see the immense old Doctor rolling his ponderous figure and equally weighty words. A very interesting literary era.

Messrs. Henry Holt & Co., announce a History of the Politics of the State of New York, by Prof. Charles H. Levermore of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

To one who realizes that three of Jerome K. Jerome's plays were being presented at the same time at the Lyceum, Daly's and the Garden Theater this fall, while his books are as widely read as those of any of his contemporaries, the story of his early hardships cannot fail to prove interesting. In "On the Stage—and Off" (now in its thirteenth English edition) which will be published immediately by Messrs. Henry Holt & Co., he tells with mild exaggeration, great good nature, and much vividness, the story of his failure as an actor. In "Stage Land" he describes the stage from the "front;" in "On the Stage—and Off" the reader is taken on "the boards" with him, and let into many of the occult mysteries of the profession.

St. Solifer, With Other Worthies and Unworthies, is the title of a new book, by James Vila Blake, which will be published early in June by the Chicago house of Charles H. Kerr & Co. It will contain something over a dozen stories, partly drawn from ancient and mediæval sources, and each story worked out with unique versatility into what may almost be called an essay. The book closes with a dialogue entitled, "Antæus," the speakers being Master Dunn, a farmer's man, and the poet, Ben Jonson. Apart from the story element, the forthcoming book will have much in common with the author's volume of Essays published in 1886,—essays, which, according to the Critic of New York, "have a certain antique flavor, a Sixteenth Century quaintness, a Baconian vigor of thought, and compactness of expression, that at once lay hold of the reader with promise of refreshment and inspiration." Of the same volume of essays the Chicago Tribune said: "The essays of Mr. Blake will surprise and delight all lovers of good English prose. He has made a contribution of lasting value to our literature in a form so condensed and so original as to inevitably attract and hold the attention of thoughtful readers." The new volume will certainly be awaited with interest.

Several interesting and important new leaflets are to be added to the general series of Old South Leaflets, published by D. C. Heath & Co., Boston. All of them are connected with the English Puritan Period, and are of the highest value in the study of the development of our own political liberty and of our political system. They include the Petition of Right, presented by Parliament to King Charles in 1628, the Grand Remonstrance, the Solemn League and Covenant, which gave the name of "Covenanters" to the Scottish Protestants, the Agreement of the People, the Instrument of Government, under which Cromwell began his government, and Cromwell's First Speech to his Parliament. These Old South Leaflets, furnishing these famous original documents, heretofore almost inaccessible to the mass of the people, for the few cents covering their cost, are invaluable. There are now nearly thirty in this general series, and none of them are more important than the half-dozen Puritan documents which are the latest additions.

Ingalls Home and Art Magazine published by J. F. Ingalls, Lynn, Mass.

The frontispiece is "Pharaoh's Horses." A series of papers are being printed in successive numbers and this month it is Rubens whose life is sketched. Then follows helpful suggestions to painters, and a paper on house decoration and some recipes. An article on Charcoal is very effective with its accompanying illustration. A chapter on Photography is begun in this number to be finished in July. Stencilling and china painting are taken up, and there are several pages devoted to correspondents and their numberless questions, many of which receive elaborate answers with fullest detail. Price of the magazine $1.

St. Nicholas for June. The opening poem in the June St. Nicholas is by Mr. C. P. Cranch, whose "Last of the Huggermuggers" will be recalled by the fathers and mothers of the present generation of the magazine's readers as one of the greatest delights of their childhood. The present poem is a delicate, graceful fancy and has been appreciatively illustrated by R. B. Birch, who has drawn a frontispiece and two smaller pictures for it. John Burroughs's "Talk About Wild Flowers" will show botanists how to make their science "understood of the people," and may also suggest to them a few particulars upon which fuller information is desirable. Harry Fenn's strong and accurate drawing will delight those who see no reason why flower drawings should be insipid. Josephine Pollard tells, in "A Free Circus," all about the baby elephant which lately walked upstairs and insisted sharing the apartments of a quiet colored family in New York city. In "A City Playground" Frank M. Chapman describes the sports of city children in the streets, and makes a strong appeal for space, light, and air for the young city dwellers, who will one day be the strength or weakness of the nation. The pictures are by C. T. Hill, and are strong in expression and realism. Sophie Swett shows how uncomfortable is the lot of the sister who is "Being Responsible for Toffy," but the cheerful ending of the story will repay for the sympathy expended upon the hapless "Tudie," who lost all her stock in trade while trying to rescue a kitten. The story is a stirring and well-studied picture of child-life. We can only refer to the significant little sketch, "Why Bees Make Honey," by Mrs. Kollins, and the ingenious "Shadow Lesson," by H. H. Ballard, before calling attention to the bright poems by the late Emily Dickinson, Margaret Johnson, Elizabeth L. Gould, and Mary A. Mason. "The Swimming-Hole Stories," two of which appear in this number, promise to be delightfully humorous and to recall many good times to the boys. Besides the features already mentioned, the three serials, the departments, and the beautiful pictures must not be overlooked.

The Century for June, The Century Company, New York. $4 a year.

This number opens in one of those dreamy, sketchy descriptions of Virginian life, "Colonel William Byrd of Westover, Virginia." The frontispiece is the face of George M. Dallas who was vice-president during the administration of James K. Polk, whose election over Clay and Frelinghuysen broke the heart of more than one staunch old Whig. "Present Day Papers" calls in a large number of prominent men of the day. This is No. 1 on "Pensions and Socialism," by Wm. M. Sloane. General Sherman's Last Speech before the New York Press Club will be read by thousands as the Valedictory of the noble old veteran, all the better because he didn't know it was his last. R. W. Gilder has some excellent stanzas on Sherman, and there is a speaking picture of St. Gauden's bust. "Play and Work in the Alps" will set many a would-be tourist wondering how he can get away to enjoy the wonders of Switzerland. "A Miner's Sunday in Colombia" is a fine bit of California realism. At the Court of the Czars" from a journal of the late Vice-President Dallas. Anything Russian, nowadays, is interesting. "Women at an English University" will have many readers, showing as it does, the advancement of woman in England. "Talleyrand replies to his Accusers" is another portion of the memoirs. Topics for the Times and Bric-a-Brac are as ever timely and entertaining. The verse and fiction of the number are well up to the Century standard.

There and Back by George Macdonald, D. Lothrop & Co., Boston. $1.50.

A novel by George Macdonald is not to be passed by with a mere note accorded the ephemeral creations of the day. He does not write so many that they should be lumped off with the almost weekly and always weakly productions of the catch penny producers of the hour. Anyone who has heard Macdonald read or lecture, will see his grand head and face as he reads through the pages of this, his latest book. It is more or less religious, the best novels of late years are and we must expect sermons from a preacher; but there is life enough in it to charm any reader. It is thoroughly English. We are shown the utter heartlessness of that "Upper class, crystalized" as Matthew Arnold expressed it and are introduced to a "Middle class, materialized," again quoting that master of style. We are mercifully spared the sight of the "Lower class, brutalized," but we know that there is just that condition, in the terrible London to which we get only an introduction. While a birth mark figures, prominently, in the story, the book is by no means written for the sake of portraying the author's plot making power. He is no Wilkie Collins, rather is he an English E. P. Roe, trying to write away certain phases of unbelief. The Baronet of the tale is like the most of those described in fact and fancy. He is thoroughly selfish and self contained. Richard, the hero of the story, turns out to be a first class fellow. He is by turns, book-binder and blacksmith. If there is a man, fond of books for books own sake, who does not read this volume, he deserves the deprivation that must be his. Andrew Lang in his most glowing periods has said nothing better concerning the pleasures of book making and reading than has our novelist in There and Back. Just what the significance of the title is, one will have to guess. Where "There" is we have been unable to find out, but the name is of very little consequence at the best. Lady Ann gives us a good notion of the stately unnatural English dame, who as Lady Wylder says, "Neither she nor the mothers before her for three hundred years, have suckled their own young." Lady Wylder is from Australasia and the writer purposely named her thus. Her daughter, Barbara, is the heroine of the story and is an exquisite piece of character making. She is Wylder, and Barbara, and good. The course of true love winds through meadows of moralizing, anon it babbles over obstructions of unbelief, but it, at last, broadens out and rests in the broad sea of matrimony. The bad are punished and the good are happy. Truth is on the throne and error on the scaffold. It is a comfort to find things right sometimes, even if we have to go to novels for them. Some portions of the preaching remind the reader of Adam Bede; but Macdonald had his point to make against the dull, heartless, and almost headless preaching once so common, now fortunately relegated to oblivion. His characters are not made better by such stuff. They are glorified by the message that he brings to them. Wingfold is a clergyman who says, "Hang the cloth." All he asks is that his work and the word of the Master be given a proper consideration. There and Back is a book to read when you decide not to go to church. It is one to mark passages in and then turn to them again and ponder on their beauty. For instance, "In the real world there are no ladies but true women. Also they only are beautiful. All there show what they are, and the others are all more or less deformed," or this, "The man who makes a thing exist that didn't exist or who sets anything right that had gone wrong, must be more worthy than he who only consumes what exists, or helps things to remain wrong."

Emerson has been called the "circular philosopher," but he was always direct and to the point when he wrote or spoke on the ethics which should govern every day life. In his ideas of reform he split less hairs than some of the most advanced reformers of today, and as this side of his character is less known than one would suppose, William M. Salter's article, "Emerson's Views on Reform," in the New England Magazine for July, is particularly interesting and instructive. Mr. Salter is himself in the van of the reform movement of today, but he is not prepared to adopt all the very advanced views of the great and wise sage of Concord.

School and College.

(Continued from last week.)

High School.

Immediately at the start one of the Junior crew broke his strap, thus losing some time, but in spite of this hindrance, the crews were so nearly matched that when they crossed the line, it was a question of some doubt as to who had won. '91, said the referee, and so "that settled it." But the trouble was the referee was far behind the finish when the boats crossed the line, and as there was no judge, his decision had to be taken. Still, it could hardly have been more than a guess, although he announced that '91 had won by a boat length. A number of fellows were right at the finish, and say that '92 crossed the line first, and so the members of the '92 crew do not feel very well satisfied over it. It is out of the question for the race to be rowed again and the banner is '91's, but it is not impossible that the Juniors may challenge them to another race to see who are the best crew.

Just about now the Seniors are inquiring where their class banner is. After the field-sports it was hung out on the school flag staff and Monday morning it was minus. Possibly the interior of some Junior's room might tell the secret.

Friday morning of last week memorial exercises were held in the Hall during the last hour. There was music by the school under the direction of Mr. Richards, and then addresses were made by Chaplain Simmons of the G. A. R., Principal Bartlett of Chandler Street School, Rev. A. H. Vinton, and Ex-Mayor Hildreth. The Mayor and Superintendent Marble and a number of other gentlemen were present on the platform. The school was assembled entire for the second time.

The programme of the Sumner Club's meeting Friday of last week included a paper, "The Organ," by W. A. Gray, a paper, "The Round Table of King Arthur," by D. G. Burrage, and an extemporaneous address, "The Boat Race of the afternoon" by G. T. Woodward. Mr. Woodward had not attended the race, but the description was graphic. The question was: Resolved that the best interests of England demanded the execution of Charles I. Decided in the negative.

At the Assembly a declamation, "The Three Bells," was given by H. L. Belle Isle, and a paper, "A walk through Rome in the days of Augustus," by John Reid. Question. Resolved that the United States has the right to seize upon the high seas the Chilian insurgent steamer Itata. Affirmative.

Wesleyan.

Considerable interest is being taken in the proposed change in name of Wesleyan University. The answers so far received from the Alumni, who have been asked to express an opinion on the subject, stand 341 in favor of a change against 311 who desire no change.

The vote from the graduates within the years '33 to '60 stands 80 in favor to 89 against; from '61 to '80, 140 in favor to 110 against; and from '81 to '90, 111 in favor to 102 against.

The name generally proposed as an improvement on the present name is some form of Middletown, either Middletown College, Middletown University, or University of Middletown. Other names proposed which seem to meet with favor are Olin College, Wesleyan College or Wesleyan College.

Among the undergraduates the answers thus far received show 63 in favor of a change. Against any change, 98. By classes the vote stands: '91, in favor 15; against 21; '92, in favor, 16; against 62; '93, in favor 15; against 24; '94, in favor 17; against, 21.

The decided preference among the undergraduates, if any change is to be made is to name the college after the men who will give the institution the most money. The other answers are about equally divided between Middletown and Wesleyan College.

The annual tournament of the tennis association takes place this week. Many entries have been made and some hard practising has been done so that a lively contest is assured.

Professor Conn has accepted for this summer, the position of Director of the Biological Laboratory at Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island. Several of the Wesleyan men are planning to study under him during the summer at that place.

Prof. Atwater has been absent for some time, having gone to Washington on business in regard to the Experiment Stations.

The most pleasant and most successful social event of the college year was an "afternoon tea," given on Thursday last by the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity. Members of the fraternity from Yale and Trinity were invited and there were friends from New Britain and elsewhere. The chapter house was beautifully decorated with potted plants and ferns while the tables in the dining room were covered with roses and cut flowers of all kinds, and over the Star and Crescent was a large bouquet of lilies of the valley which flower is the emblem of the fraternity in the floral line. About one hundred and twenty invitations were sent out and a good time was enjoyed by all.

May 27.

College commencements and Class Days are in order. Ex-Mayor Pratt's grand-daughter, Lucy, one of our High School girls, graduates this year at Smith. LIGHT returns thanks for pleasant remembrance.

Also LIGHT receives Class Day invitations from Harry N. Rice and Wallace M. Turner who are just finishing their successful four years course at Harvard.

Fred A. Bigelow and Harrison P. Eddy send invitations to "Tech" Class Day and LIGHT sends cordial thanks in return.

So it goes. From all parts of our commonwealth the boys and girls who were once High School pupils here are stepping higher. That their future may be what fancy pictures it, is our best and constant wish.

Phil. W. Southgate, of this city and a graduate of the Polytechnic Institute in '89, is among those honorably mentioned for excellence in the Junior class examinations of the National University Law School at Washington.

Pat.

A Love Story.

BY VENSIE CARLETON.

Patrick Gray was not an Irishman. He had simply been born on Saint Patrick's Day. For that reason he was named Patrick. His mother had declared she should always think of him as Patrick, and might as well name him after the saint of old-time fame. But no one called him Patrick. He was always Pat; but he did not at all care. Only when he was a boy at school he did care for a few weeks, and tried to make the boys call him "Rick."

"All you've got to do," he said, "is to just leave off the 'Pat' and the thing is done."

But they would not do it, in fact, I doubt if they ever could have made the change for they were so used to calling him "Pat" and Pat he was to remain to the end of the chapter, to all save his mother. As long as she lived, he was his mother's saint, but the time was coming when he would be to some one else a saint.

He had always wanted to know about his patron saint. He had heard that his illustrious namesake had driven all the snakes out of Ireland, so he read all he could find about Saint Patrick, but never a word about snakes could he find. One Saint Patrick was the champion of Ireland, but he didn't kill any snakes that Pat could discover. He seemed to like girls who were princesses, better. Pat didn't blame him at all for that.

Another tale was of the Saint whose parents were Christians, and who had Saint Martin of Tours for his uncle. When a youth, the ancient saint had a dream, and in that dream he heard the voices of children calling "O Patrick, come to us," and Patrick's eyes grew dim, and his heart sad, and he awoke. And straightway he began to study to be a missionary, and for eighteen years he received instruction from the pious Bishop Germain. Afterward he was with the archbishop of Tours, and finally he was consecrated bishop and sent to convert the Irish. Saint Patrick was a thoughtful man, and his heart was full of love for the children of Ireland. Many adventures befell the saint; but nevertheless he kept to his work, and founded churches and schools that became famous in all Europe. By and by the people loved St. Patrick, and kept on loving him through all the years that are past.

Patrick Gray felt a desire to be like this Saint Patrick. He longed to live a life that would be remembered when he was gone. He longed to be loved after he was done living in this world. He wanted to love every one, too; and be glad to help them. "People have sorry times enough," he said, "if I do all I can to help them and make them glad. I will do what I can to make a little bit of the world brighter and better. I am glad my name is Patrick."

When his mother—who was all he had—died, he left the home farm and came to the city, for he was bound to be a mechanic. His chum who was like minded came also, and they roomed and boarded with a certain Mrs. Jonas Jones, who had nice motherly ways, and made both lads feel at home from the first.

Pat was in his room thinking Joe was not yet come in. It was nearly Thanksgiving time. Pat was remembering the good times he always had had Thanksgiving days at home. Especially did he remember the last one with his mother. Then his thoughts came to the present.

"I wish the Bluebells would ask us out there for Thanksgiving," he said to himself.

Just then life seemed rather dreary to Pat. It always did seem dreary to him after an evening with the Bluebells. He and Joe had been with them the evening before. It was always so pleasant out there, and they were always so glad to see "a feller," as Joe laughingly said. Both Pat and Joe were agreed that no where else were there four such pleasant girls as the Bluebells. But Elspeth Bluebell! Pat had not words enough to do her justice, he thought.

This evening he was thinking of Elspeth.

"O I wish, I wish, I wish," cried Pat to himself, with both hands tightly clinched, "I wish Elfie Bluebell would love me, I wish she would. I'll make her love me. O Elfie, Elfie" and his face was wistfully turned toward the east, and Bluebell farms.

He had seldom been alone with Elspeth Bluebell but often and often with her sisters. He wondered sometimes why it was he could never see Elspeth alone; but concluded that Elfie—as he called her—didn't like him, and meant to keep out of his way. She always seemed as cordial in her sober way as the rest did in their more demonstrative way. "But then she's too good to be otherwise" he thought.

"'Faint heart' and the rest of it," said Joe Duncan coming into the room. "Do you want a letter from your love?" and he held out to Pat a letter, the writing of which he had never seen. Yet he seemed to know whom it was from. In fact he was positive it was from Elspeth Bluebell, and his heart beat faster, and his blue eyes shone brighter as he opened the envelope. He read—

"DEAR PAT: We want you out for Thanksgiving day and evening, you and Joe. We really want you both, so don't disappoint us. Come sure. Mamma was going to write and ask you, but she has company just now, and we wanted this to go on the next mail, so she asked me to write. The girls are not here to send regards, so I suppose they will give you them in person Thursday. Don't fail to come. I was going to say—to use a 'Riaism'—don't fail to materialize on Thursday. Truly your friend, ELSPETH BLUEBELL."

Ria was the sister who sometimes used slang. But she was so jolly and pleasant that Pat liked her heartily, and showed that he did. Good news, Joe, my lad," said Pat waving the letter aloft, "we are invited out for Thanksgiving."

"Where?" asked Joe all curiosity. "Here, let me read it," and he reached out for the letter.

Pat's first impulse was to hold tightly to the precious missive, then common sense, and generosity said, "let Joe take it," so he yielded—the more readily, because he feared to provoke comment.

And Joe touched and read his precious letter, while he relapsed into the same dreary mood that Joe had interrupted.

When Joe's perusal of the letter was finished, he tossed the sheet carelessly back to Pat, who folded it and put it into the envelope; and ere he put it into his breast pocket, softly kissed it, not unobserved by the curious Joe, who, Pat was sure, could neither hear nor see him if he retreated to the closet. But Joe did both, for the crack was wide, and his eyes were bright, and his ears were sharp; but he loved his chum too dearly to take advantage of this knowledge.

Presently Pat went to bed, but not to sleep, for Elspeth was constantly in his thought; Joe was nearly as sleepless as his friend, but his thoughts were altogether different.

"Dear old Pat," he said to himself, "I wish I dared tell you that I am sure Elspeth loves you. But you must find it out for yourself." But Joe could not have told why he thought Elspeth loved Pat.

As for Pat, he had loved Elfie the first time he ever saw her. She was so helpful and loving. His ideal of a perfect woman.

Elspeth Bluebell was pretty. Everybody didn't know it, for one should know Elspeth to realize the quiet sweet beauty of the pale face, beneath whose tranquility was often raging a tempest of one sort or another; for Elspeth's nature was as deep as intense.

Whether she was disposed to love or hate, it was with all her heart, but it was against her principles to hate anyone, so she now and then had a serious battle to fight with herself to keep from that sad passion.

For those whom she loved most, Elspeth could not do enough. She was one of the persons who would never rust, but would wear out.

But there were more Bluebells than Elspeth. More important members of the family, most people thought. Only they did not stop to think at all, merely showing by their actions the importance of Elspeth's sisters.

There were the twins, Ria and Roe, both fascinating girls, whose bright eyes were oftenest laughing, and whose tongues were busy all the day long, with merry words. They seemed the life of the Bluebell farm, these two merry maidens.

Nan was merry, too, but not in the same way that Ria and Roe were. She was a tiny nut brown maiden, whose age was sweet sixteen, and Martin Jones thought she was "sweet Nan" as well as sweet sixteen. Nan's was the first engagement in the Bluebell family, and she was the youngest.

Nan attended the village High school, while Ria taught the grammar school, and Roe taught music.

They all lived at home, a merry, thoughtless trio, seemingly happy, while mamma and Elspeth did all the work in the large farmhouse, sewing, washing milkcans, and all. To be sure the girls did do their own mending.

Often Elspeth was too tired to sleep when night came; sometimes she was nearly discouraged. "It wouldn't be quite so hard she thought, "if the girls would hang up their hats and jackets, and take care of their rubbers."

But they never did. They were like many other girls, care free and thoughtless; but really tenderhearted. The trouble was, most things were too small for them to see. They did not mean to make extra work for mamma or Elspeth.

There was only one laddie Bluebell, Jacob, who had nearly arrived at manhood's estate, and had the boyish beginning of a manly moustache.

It was nearly Thanksgiving time, quite time to plan the bill of fare, and whom to invite. Aunt Nan was to come of course. She always did come. Sometimes they had no other guest.

"Mamma, why can we not ask Joe and Pat to come?" queried Elspeth. "They have no home to go to. I think they would like to come, and Pat likes Ria so much." She forced herself to say that. She was afraid lest her mother should see how very much she wanted Pat to come; for her heart had gone out to bonny Pat Gray, and she loved him more every time she saw him. Yet the knowledge of that love led her to keep in the background, where she would observe with loving eyes every motion of Pat's, and watch for his smile, and listen for the words of wisdom (?) that fell from his lips. "My Saint Patrick," she would say to herself. But she never hoped at all that he would love her.

"I'm not sure whether it would be the thing to do," answered mamma, thoughtfully.

"It would be all right, I think mamma, and we would do our best to make them have a good time." And Elspeth said no more, only, "ask papa and the rest."

(To be Continued Next Week.)

At the Lake.

No city in our country has better facilities for pleasure upon the water than Worcester. For years her people went to the seashore and mountains, completely ignoring the beauties at their own doors. Strangers noted the loveliness of the situation and annually the sylvan solitudes were awakened by the Harvard and Yale regrettas, but no one thought of making the place the site of happy homes. To Mr. J. J. Coburn much credit must be given for beginning the village making; but Mr. H. H. Bigelow has taken up the enterprise and carried it along in a marvellous manner. Year after year, Mr. Bigelow with his son, Irving, has been erecting houses and selling them on reasonable terms to permanent settlers, till the village of Lake View has assumed considerable proportions.

Their latest venture is to take in hand the well known Island house and to work in it a complete transformation. One of the first acts was to change the name to and under this appellation, it is opened to the public as well appointed as any hotel in our vicinity. Built twenty five or thirty years since, the building has had a long and variegated history. Different landlords have catered to all sorts of tastes and demands. Now under the hands and direction of the Bigelows all is changed. The plumber, painter, paperer and furnisher have been given almost free run in so changing the interior of the hotel that its old patrons will hardly recognize it.

The Belmont,

Let us make a call and see for ourselves how thoroughly the changes have been made. Entering at the front door, we find an elegantly appointed reception room at our right, where formerly was the office. Opposite is the dining room for the permanent guests, a room large enough for the full complement of boarders to take their meals in quiet and comfort, for, no matter what may be the rush in the other part of the building, those who come here to stay will not be crowded. On this floor are five rooms for guests. These are well furnished in first class manner. The carpets are Brussels, the furniture, polished oak and the beds are hair mattresses on woven wire springs. The air of newness pervades every thing, for halls and rooms have all been repapered and painted. Ascending to the second floor, we find the same work of renovating continued. Every bit of plumbing, in the house, was removed and everything was renewed in the most approved manner, the work being done by the Messrs. Tucker of Pleasant Street. Here is the parlor for the second floor and in it we find an elegant upright piano. There are nine rooms on the floor, one of them constituting a suite, of parlor and bedroom. The water tank which once cluttered up this hall has been removed and now is in the attic under the roof. There is nothing now to impede free locomotion. The same quality of first class furnishings obtains on this floor as on that below. The smallest room in the number is 8x13 still large enough for a sleeping room but the most of the rooms are merely square being about 12x13. Each floor has doors leading out upon the piazzas which are wide and spacious, affording excellent ways for promenading. There is a cupola or outlook easily reached whence the observer may overlook a large portion of the vicinity. Every room commands a view of some portion of the water, filtered it may be through leafy shade. In a word no expense has been spared in making the Belmont first class in every particular.

For the rush that comes on Sundays and holidays, excellent provision has been made, ample for any crowd that may assemble. Manager W. M. Fay with his capable wife have the resources of the place so in hand that they can meet the wants of almost any assemblage. In the restaurant, proper, is an elegant Tufts soda fountain made expressly for Mr. H. H. Bigelow and where once loud carousals abounded now quiet and well disposed people gather for pleasure and refreshment. Everything that may fitly and lawfully contribute to the good and pleasure of the seeker may be found here. Entrance is had both from the causeway and by the bridge leading from Lincoln Park. It is to be open summer and winter. Sleighride as well as boating parties will find it a happy place.

As to exterior embellishments, the driveway around the hotel is closed. In the near future, all the space from the building to the water's edge will be terraced and when the water is low a bank wall will be put in. These terraces will offer unusual attractions to the promenade, located as they are under the trees and by the waters sides. Finally in the Belmont, Worcester pleasure and health seekers may find within ten minutes ride of their own homes more than the widely advertised resorts of the sea and shore can possibly afford. Permanent boarders will find neatness, the best of food and service, and above all quiet surroundings and pure air. Were this hotel, thus appointed and placed to be a hundred miles from Worcester in some cove or on a mountain, already its rooms would be at a premium. Go down and see what the Bigelow push and enterprise have done for this jewel, elaborately set in its watery embrace. It ought, it must succeed. The Lake is free from the rum curse. Shore and water are pure. Our boys and girls may walk its banks or sport in its waves and fear no evil. The demon of alcohol is chained. Earnest men are pushing the Lake and its advantages into public notice. Go down and see for yourself what has been done. The Belmont is beautifully situated and appropriately named. It is a pretty mount and the hotel prettily sits upon its summit. Its present status marks an era in Lake History.

At the International Christian Endeavor Convention in Minneapolis, in July, the Rev. Mr. Lansing of Salem Street will speak as will the Rev. Mr. Sleeper of Stoneham, his former associate.

FOR THE LAUNDRY.

BRUSSELS

SOAP.

J. A. Long

SPECIAL DRIVE

- IN -

Parlor * Suits!

Two Patterns covered in Silk Tapestry, elegant cherry frames, highly polished. These Suits we have sold for $125 and $135.

YOUR CHOICE FOR

$68.00.

Two Patterns made up in WILTONS, full overstuffed, Fringed, and Spring Edges. They are Good, Honest $130 Suits.

OUR SPECIAL PRICE

$88.00.

DON'T MISS OUR

$59.00

RUG SUIT.

WE WILL SHOW YOU THE

BEST $65 PLUSH SUIT

TO BE FOUND IN THIS CITY.

J. A. LONG

Franklin Square Furniture Rooms,

555 Main St.

Goods sold on 4 months' time at cash price.

Good to Eat.

Asparagus which is left from dinner may appear a second time in an omelet on the breakfast table. Cut the cold asparagus in inch pieces, and set in a covered earthen dish in hot water, to be heated thoroughly, but not to cook. Season it lightly again. Make a nice omelet with four eggs, put a cup of the heated asparagus in it, fold it and serve at once. Make as many omelets as the asparagus requires, but do not attempt to make any larger ones than four eggs will make.—Household Companion.

Raisin Puffs.

Beat two eggs. Add to them three tablespoonfuls of sugar, and one half cup of melted butter, with one cup of sweet milk. To three cups of sifted flour add three teaspoonfuls of Royal baking powder. Beat together quickly, adding one-half cup of finely chopped raisins or English currants. Steam one-half hour in small cups. Serve with sugar and cream, and small spoonfuls of raspberry jam. In the absence of these our city friends assure us that a simple sour sauce does very nicely.

Patti Imperial.

Cut the white meat of the chicken into blocks, mix with one pair of sweetbreads, with a truffle added if you like, and half a pint of cream sauce just before serving; add the yolks of two eggs; cook a minute, season, and it is ready to use.—Mrs. Rorer, in Table Talk.

Orange Shortcake.

One pint of sifted flour, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one tablespoonful of butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt, milk enough to make a soft dough. Roll out one round layer, moisten well with melted butter and lay a second layer upon it. When baked split apart and cover with a generous layer of finely-cut oranges well sweetened. Serve with cream.

A salad of oranges is unusual and very delicious. It is one of the prettiest salads for a company luncheon and may then be brought to the table already served on the salad plates.

Oatmeal Bread.

One-half pint of oatmeal, one and one-half pint of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, three-fourths of a pint of milk: boil the oatmeal one hour in one and one-half pint of salted water, add the milk and set aside to cool; then add the flour, salt and powder, mix smoothly and bake in a well-greased tin, nearly one hour; protect with paper about twenty minutes.

Oatmeal Gruel for Invalids.

One tablespoonful of fine oatmeal, mixed with water to a smooth paste. Pour into a pint of boiling water, and boil twenty or thirty minutes, stirring often; salt, and add spice and wine if allowed.

Another Receipt for Gruel.

One quart of boiling water, one-half cup of oatmeal. Salt to taste, and if you like, sugar and nutmeg. Wet the oatmeal, and stir into the boiling water. Boil slowly half an hour, stirring well. Thin with milk, and strain if desired.

Always look over oatmeal to get out the black specks, and rinse in cold water.

Ask your Grocer for
The Cleveland Cook Book,
free, containing over 350 proved receipts. If he does not have it, send stamp and add 6cs to Cleveland Baking Powder Co., 81 Fulton St., New York.

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists.

11 Pleasant St.,
Worcester, Mass

Residence, 61 West Street.

PREMIER SAFETY BICYCLES.

Not because they are English
but because they are Best.

JOHN A. LOWE, Agent, 630 Main Street.

The Readers of Light
I most cordially invite
To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything
They would expect to find

In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,

Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,

10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL,

Gold, Silver and Nickel Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.

13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St.,
Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework,
Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

Richard Healy, 512 Main St.,

has just opened a very handsome line of Ladies * White * and * Colored * Lawn * Dresses.

Also a magnificent assortment of Ladies' Polka Dot Shirt Waists.

PENSIONS! * PENSIONS!

THE DISABILITY BILL IS A LAW.
Soldiers Disabled Since the War are Entitled.
Dependent widows and parents now dependent whose sons die from the effects of army service are included.
If you wish your claim speedily and successfully prosecuted,
address JAMES TANNER,
Late Commissioner of Pensions, Washington, D. C

C. REBOLI,

Confectioner * and * Caterer,

6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always
be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

J. S. WESBY & SONS,

BOOK * BINDING

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

387 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES

at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

Transition Part II.

Proud is the man who faces truth sublime
Unfettered by the creeds of men, then time
On earth is but a school for work beyond.
He dwells on vital truths and feels a bond
Of such grand import that his words and deeds
Do broaden and encompass human needs.
He feels a scorn for weak and selfish aims,
A pity for the erring flesh, nor blames,
Except with mercy, those a prey to sin.
His soul uplifted, and with streng'h therein.
His fleshly wants he meets with reason, and
In faith that he may raise no traitorous hand
Gainst laws that shaped his temple of the soul,
And gave him promise of a heavenly goal.
He recognizes death as but a change
That frees the fettered soul, and gives a range
To spirit eyes till we behold ourselves,
Our former walks in life, as one who delves
Within the mines of earth and sifts the dross
From out the go'd, and counts this change no loss,
But rather gain, of value measureless,
Where we for each vile wrong, can make redress—
O, grand futurity! Why poison life
With bitter tears, wailings, and endless strife
Against divine provision wisely made
For our expanding souls that are not laid
Away like senseless clods, but left to soar
Into a broader life unknowna before?

—Mrs. A. H. Human.

ALMANAC 1811.

United States of America.

By His High and Mighty Laziness Ephraim Eager captain General and commander in Chief of the Idle Society

To _____, Gentleman, Greeting

"You being appointed Colonel of the Idle
Society in the city of—by virtue of the Power vested in me, I do by these Presents confiding in your Everlasting idleness and laziness commission you accordingly

You are constantly to Refrain from all necessary labor; never to rise before the sun nor take off your boots when going to bed; never to stand with out Leaning; nor work with out some person to loll upon; never to run in the most urgent cases such as fire and for a Doctor that you be constant in doing Nothing unwearied in drowsiness, and Ever persuing the work of idleness; that you observe such signs and gestures as shall from time to time escape from your superior officers

Given under my hand and the seal of the society, at Leomister Mass, the eleventh day of June, third year of Idle Society. By his High and Mighty Laziness

Ephraim Eager

oliver vose Secretary

Worcester Coal Company,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A.
Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319
Southbridge St.

THE CRITERION Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.

231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SHREWSBURY ST.

J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

We have the Finest Line of

SINGLE and DOUBLE

CARRIAGES!

to be found in the city. Our Prices are Low considering the quality of our Stock. If you want a Stylish and Durable Carriage it will pay you to give us a call.

J. W. SARGENT & SON,

34, 36 and 38 Waldo St.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!

It saves Time,
Labor and Fuel,
(two-thirds cent
per hr. for fuel.)

Manufacturers
Guarantee every
Iron.

TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, Mfg.
Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,
Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, *

NO. 156 MAIN STREET,
H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

355 Main Street, Worcester.

DO YOU KNOW WE ARE A Carpet House

as well as the largest dealers in

FURNITURE

in the city. STARTLING REDUCTION in prices in our CARPET DEPARTMENT during the month of June. Our Entire Stock of MOQUETTE CARPETS, embracing all our new Sping Patterns, in rich and novel effects, and guaranteed perfect goods in every respect, $1.40 * per * yard.

The regular price for such as we offer is $1.65 to $1.85 per yard everywhere and by everybody. 5-FRAME BODY BRUSSELS, with borders to match, $1.10 per yard. All Wool INGRAIN CARPETS, 65c. per yard. CANTON MATTINGS, 15, 20, 25, 35c. per yard. RUGS and MATS at low prices.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,

Furniture and Carpet Dealers,

355 MAIN STREET. 355

Household.

Matting is washed with salt and cold water, and carefully dried. Rub the very dirty spots first with water and corn-meal. If white matting has turned to a bad color it can be washed over with a weak solution of soda, which will turn it pale butter-yellow. Use a pint of salt to a gallon of water. Use a flannel cloth, not a brush.

The chimney connected with a range requires thorough sweeping at least once in five years, with the heater once in eight, to insure a perfect draught. This is done by men with long scrapers and brushes. All vents from the chimney into the living-rooms should be sealed during the process, or everything will be covered with the fine, impalpable dust of soot. Chimneys are often used for dozens of years without cleaning, but they cannot be expected to draw when choked up with an accumulation on their walls.

Soup should not boil very hard, as that has a tendency to toughen the meat.

Fish should always be perfectly fresh when cooked. To select fresh ones observe the eyes; if they have a bright, life-like appearance the fish is fresh; if, on the contrary, the eyes are sunken and dark-colored, and have lost their brilliancy, they are certainly stale. Some judge by the redness of the gills, but they are sometimes colored to deceive customers.

The best way to take ink out of table linen is to soak the spots in sour milk. Put the cloth in fresh milk and set it where it will turn sour. The process of souring seems to assist in drawing out the stains. Rub the spots after they have been soaking twenty-four hours in the milk after it has curdled just as you would wash any spot in water. They will finally become very faint, and may now be washed out in water; and the first time they are put through the weekly washing the probability is that all traces of the ink stains have dissipated.

The fuchsia, when properly treated, is a showy border plant. It needs light and air, but not the full power of the sun. It requires rich soil, being a gourmand rather than an epicure in its diet, one of the grossest feeders among the plants. It is one of those plants too, that gain strength and beauty by age, to a certain point. Fuchsias, two and three years old if carefully cared for between their blooming seasons are much more satisfactory than those six months or a year old.

Dame fashion is doing us one good turn of late—that the dear, old fashioned gardens are coming again in favor will rejoice many a middle-aged man or woman whose pleasantest recollections are associated with the prim, well kept beds, the neat little gravel walks, the old sun-dial in the centre and the arbors at either end, with bench and table, where in happy, bygone years the children were allowed to have their tea in the warm summer afternoons.

“Them beds stuck here and their in the grass never seemed to me like a real garden.” said a dear old lady, and she was right. Nothing gives so much pleasure as a garden which is a garden laid out with geometrical precision and tended with loving care

The annual field day of the Continentals takes place next Wednesday.

J. W. GREENE,
P L U M B E R.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,

Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand,) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

Harness and Saddlery,

RELIABLE GOODS
and LOWEST PRICES.

R. McALEER & CO.,

155 MAIN STREET.

PHOTOGRAPHER.

Children's
Portraits
A Specialty

326 MAIN ST.,
Opp. Mechanics Hall.

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,

* PRINTERS. *

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,

DEALER IN

Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

School and College.

In the coming summer school in Martha's Vineyard, Mr. James Jenkins, principal of the Dix Street School, will have charge of mathematics. Mr. Jenkins is a very vigorous and painstaking teacher.

Wellesley.

Wellesley has been very quiet for the past two weeks, busy with reviews and final papers, but the festivities for the Seniors and examinations for the undergraduates have now begun.

Friday June 5th, was Tree Day and a holiday. It is always a home day for us, no guests are invited. The day itself was perfect, and the exercises were very good. The honors are shared by Seniors and Freshmen, the former bidding farewell to their tree, and the latter planting one. The Senior exercises were held on the lawn in front of the main entrance, where a platform of green was raised for the speakers. The Faculty are seated first by the Mistress of Ceremonies and her aids, and then the classes are escorted to their places.

This is always an exciting moment, for the costumes are kept secret until this time. The Juniors, clad in clover pink and white—class colors—represented King Arthur and his knights. The Sophomores are supposed to make the fun, and were very odd-looking, dull brown gnomes with long beards, and carrying spades. The Specials were dressed to represent a day, from early dawn to sunset. The freshmen were sailors in their class color green and the Seniors wore the Oxford cap and gown.

After a speech of welcome by the Mistress of Ceremonies, we listened to an "Interpretation of the Past," in which all the follies of the undergraduates were held up for ridicule, to the "Problems of the Present," and to the "Question of the Future." All the addresses were able, for since no part is taken by the graduates in the Commencement exercises, the honors are awarded by the class on this occasion. Between the orations, songs composed by members of the class were sung by the Senior Glee Club.

The Freshman exercises were held on the shore of Longfellow's pond, into which a platform, representing a ship, had been built.

The Senior and Freshman color is the same so the first exercise was the presentation of the green from '91 to '94.

The most interesting part of the exercises was the "Cruise of the '94 from Port Matriculation to Port Diploma." The words describing the characteristic events of each of the four years of a college course were sung by part of the class upon the shore, while others acted them out upon the ship's deck. The posing and dancing were very well done, and won frequent applause.

The last of the exercises was the planting of the ivy by the Junior class.

Each class was entertained as a body at one of the houses, but after tea we met again in the Main Hall to end a very pleasant day with the college songs.

Boston University.

William C. Kitchin, Ph. D., Instructor in Rhetoric and History expects to go to the North Western University in the fall.

Prof. A. H. Buck who has been in Europe during the year will resume his work at the college in the fall. He will be assisted by Joseph R. Taylor, A. M., late of North Western.

Ninety-six candidates took entrance examinations last Thursday and Friday at the College of Liberal Arts. The prospects are that the incoming Freshman class will be the largest known in the history of the college.

Heretofore the Proctors have been elected by the students subject to the approval of the Faculty. But this year at the request of the students they were appointed by the Faculty alone. The result of the appointment is as follows: Senior Proctors, Mr. C. B. Tewksbury and Miss Edith H. Wilder; Librarians, Mr. W. L. Eaton, and Miss Lily J. Eckford; Junior Proctors, Mr. J. L. Hopkins and Miss Katie J. Hodgden.

High School.

The program at the Summer Club last week Friday night included an oration, "Constancy" by E. W. Goodell and the question: Resolved that voting in the United States should be compulsory. Decided in the negative.

Aletheia's question was: Resolved that the fear of punishment has greater influence on human character than the hope of reward. A talk on Berlin was given by Miss Lathe, a former President of the Club.

The question at the assembly was: Resolved that the manual training system should be incorporated into the public school. Affirmative. A paper was given by J. H. McGrail. "A comparison between Longfellow and Hawthorne."

Eucleia met at 7.30 p.m. and presented the following programme: Declamation, "The Avalanche," J. F. Gannon; declamation, "The African Chief," J. T. Delehanty; paper "Hawthorne," F. J. Garvey; declamation, "True Greatness," M. J. Foran. Question, Resolved, that Russia's persecution of the Jews is detrimental to the interests of that country. Affirmative, H. J. Murray, C. H. Leonard; negative, C. E. Dowd, W. E. D. Stone. Critic, T. C. Carrigan.

The rhetorical exercises Wednesday morning were as follows: Original Composition by McGrail of the Junior Class; song by Miss Matthews, Senior; recitation, "The Singers," by Miss Ethel Howard, a Senior; "Flower Song," mandolin and piano duet, by A. C. Whiting and H. L. Belle Isle. Mrs. Knapp is taking the classes of Miss Whipple who is kept from her duties because of sickness in the family.

Honors are out and here is the list: Valedictorian, Edward H. Warren; salutorian, Miss Lucy D. Heald; essayists Miss Mary L. Clark, Miss Alice I. Hastings, Miss Ethel Howard, Miss Ruth M. Pettitt, Miss Ina M. Sprague, Miss Iva V. Smith; orators, Clarence W. Eastman, Warren A. Scott. Miss Heald has been known through her school course as Daisy Keyes, she being an adopted daughter of Mr. I. N. Keyes of Harvard Street. Now as she is about to enter college she resumes her earlier name.

Holy Cross.

Although we are in the middle of the final examinations, there nevertheless is no end of joy felt by the boys at the victory over Harvard. For the first time in the history of Holy Cross, was Harvard beaten by them and their defeat is the biggest victory that the college has ever enjoyed. Harvard refused a date at an earlier part of the season but finding too many open days on their hands they consented to play Holy Cross a game at Cambridge last Wednesday. We won and now if Harvard wishes another game they will probably play where Holy Cross wishes. The ball players received a great ovation on their return home, red light, fireworks and a gigantic bonfire contributing to the celebration of the evening—But, that was not all, we beat Brown last Saturday by a score of 10-2, another victory to be proud of. The most prosperous season of Base Ball that Holy Cross has ever had will probably end in another week.

Stafford and Merritt are to play with the Woonsocket of the R. I. State League during the summer.

The class of philosophy closes its examinations today.

Dr. J. P. Rand, president of the Western Massachusetts Homœopathic Medical Society, attended a meeting of the Society in Springfield Wednesday.

Miss Edith Richardson from Becker's College goes into the office of Wm. H. Sawyer & Co., as stenographer.

Mr. Fred Leland of Gardner, has, this week, gone from Becker's to keep books for L. M. Alexander & Co., bicycle dealers.

City Marshal Washburn, having gripped many an offender in the past, has been in bonds himself for some days recently. La Grippe's no respecter of persons. All, however, are pleased to see our Marshal out again. We hope he will recover rapidly.

The Mayor of Old Worcester, England, did not visit young Worcester last Thursday but he is coming next Monday. 'Ope 'e will like hus.

J. Edwin Smith and family have gone for the summer, to Tennants Harbor, Me.

Dr. Homer Gage read a paper, Wednesday, before the Massachusetts Medical Society on nephrectomy.

Mr. E. D. Buffington, long absent in trans-Atlantic traveling, has returned. He will see quite a change on the familiar corner of Chestnut and William Streets. Before he gets through with the business, it is probable that even more pronounced changes will follow.

Received Government Contract.

W. H. Warren, 35 Hermon Street, has received a contract from the United States War Department for three of his large patent machines. This is the fourth government contract Mr. Warren has received.—Telegram.

It is consoling to find some business coming to Worcester. One's pride in Worcester and her industries is never greater than when he enters Mr. Warren's shop and sees the quality of work done there. His machines are the best in the country.

Inter-Scholastic Sports.

Hobble! Gobble! Razzle! Dazzle!
Sis! Boom, Bah.
Worcester! High School!
Rah! Rah! Rah!

Such were the sounds that rent the air last Saturday morning, as the boys from the High School, Worcester Academy and Dalzell's School, started for Holmes Field, in Cambridge, the scene of the sixth annual meeting of the association. The day was all that could have been asked for, there being no wind to interfere with the races. Previous to the meeting much feeling was expressed as to the superiority of the High School and Academy, but considering that this was the High School's first attempt and that the Academy has been in the association three years, it will be seen that the High School really gained a victory over the Academy. Again the Academy boys have been in training three or four months, whereas, the team sent down from the High School, really had only two or three days of actual training for the events. The teams from the two schools were made up as follows:

Academy—C. A. Fenner, C. H. Mitchell, A. Merrifield, F. White, F. E. Ayer, F. Johnson, Jr., E. Lange, Jr., C. Brockway, E. Drawbridge, E. Allen, I. Harmon, G. Mott, L. H. Simmons, C. Macy, C. H. Davis, C. D. Cook and O. S. Kendall.

High School—H. S. Davis, F. H. Bigelow, F. J. Zaeder, W. S. Davis, W. J. Denholm, H. A. Billings, P. J. McLaughlin and E. A. Denny.

Eighteen schools are members of the association, but only fourteen were represented at the games.

The sports were called at two o'clock and by that time an audience of at least twelve hundred had gathered to witness a fine exhibition of well selected events.

120-YARDS HURDLE RACE—Won by R. Codman, Jr., of Haile's School, time 18 2-35; Second—C. H. Woodruff, Jr., of Phillips Andover Academy; Third—H. Grew, of Hopkinson's School.

440-YARDS DASH—Won by C. Brewer, of Hopkinson's School, time 53 2-55; Second—H. D. Storrs of the Roxbury Latin School; Third—R. W. Reynolds, of the Fall River High School.

100-YARD DASH—Won by A. L. Jackson, of Browne and Noble's School, time, 10 4-55; Second—J. Dove, of Hopkinson's; Third—H. A. Billings, Worcester High School.

ONE MILE BICYCLE RACE—Won by C. A. Fenner, of Worcester Academy; Second—F. R. Kimball, of the Roxbury Latin School; Third—C. S. Pierce, of the Roxbury Latin School; 1st time 3m 14 55.

220-YARD DASH—Won by H. R. Storrs, Roxbury Latin School, time 23 3-55; Second—J. Dove, Hopkinson's School; Third—A. L. Jackson, of Browne and Noble's.

ONE MILE WALK—This event, however, gave the Worcester boys the most joy and the one in which they were to receive a first prize, won by P. J. McLaughlin of the W. H. S. in 7m 36 1-55, thus breaking the record of the association by over 20s. This was a surprise for the boys and somebody having asked what was the matter with McLaughlin, the boys all responded in unison, "He's all right, he's a walker!" C. W. Norton of the Hopkinson's was second and F. Johnson of the Academy third.

880-YARDS RUN—Won by W. J. Batchelder, of the Roxbury Latin School with W. S. Davis, of the W. H. S., close upon his heels. The winners time was 2m. 74-55. Had Mr. Davis not run in the 20-yard dash this race would undoubtedly have been his. He is a young runner and has been known to run in 2m. 78., when in training. His trainer considers him a second H. S. Dadmun and says that he will run the 880 yards in less than 2 minutes another season.

THROWING BASE BALL—Won by V. E. Mitchell, of Worcester Academy, distance, 330ft. 3in.; Second—G. A. Mahoney, of the Boston English High School, distance 307ft. 4in.

RUNNING HIGH JUMP—Won by L. P. Sheldon, of Phillips Andover Academy, distance, 5ft. 5 3-4 in.; Second—H. Dibble, of Browne and Noble's, distance, 5ft. 5in.

PUTTING 16 POUND SHOT—Won by G. A. Mahoney, Boston English High School, record, 32ft. 6 1-2 in.; Second, J. F. Driscoll, Boston High School, distance, 31ft. 5in.

RUNNING BROAD JUMP—Won by G. T. Rice, of Noble's School, distance, 19ft. 11in.; Second, J. Dove, of Hopkinson's School, who jumped 19ft. 8 1-2 in.

THROWING 12 POUND HAMMER—Was won by H. S. Russell, of Belmont, who threw it 85ft 3 3-4in.; Second—K. H. Lewis of Noble's, School, who made a throw of 83ft. 3in.

POLE VAULT—Was the last event on the list which was won by W. W. Hoyt, of the Roxbury Latin School, who vaulted 9ft. 9 1-4 in.; Mr. L. W. Jenkins, of Noble's School succeeded in going over the stick at a height of 9ft. 9in.

A first prize counted five points, a second, two, and a third one. As the Roxbury Latin School had the greatest number of events, the cup was awarded that school. The record of the best five is:

Roxbury Latin, 19 1-5 points; Brown and Nichols, 9; Hopkinson's, 17; Worcester High School, 8; Worcester Academy, 11.

In the evening the High School boys, Emory Fogarty, L. E. Neison, A. H. Warren, Herbert E. Field, Henry Dennis, Allie Kimball and Henry Meagher witnessed the play, "7-20-8" at the Hollis St Theater. Most of the boys returned on the midnight train, well pleased with their days outing.

United States District Attorney, Frank D. Allen is on his way to Europe for a vacation. A Worcester school boy and a Yale graduate, this city rejoices in his onward studies.

Harry L. Dadmun sailed Wednesday with the Manhattan Team for an athletic trip abroad. Everybody wishes "Dad" a good time.

Grant and Sherman were discussing the plans of a campaign, when a third general, a brigadier, entered the tent—a good soldier, but notorious for his carelessness as to his personal appearance. The brigadier finished his errand and went out. General Grant pulled upon his cigar for a few minutes in silence, and then said: "Sherman, I wonder whom that man gets to wear his shirts the first week."

VOLAPÜK.

To Our Readers: Lilädanes obsik!
It is with pleasure Binos ko gälod das that I find myself able tuvob das kanob givön to give you a transla- ole lovepoloti de "Tims tion of "Auld Lang efegölöl" pemeköl fa Syne," made by Pro- plofed Alfred A. Post.
fessor Alfred A. Post. I penedi de Chew
Also a letter from Long Hoe in Foo-
Chew Long Hoe in chow, China.
Foochow, China. Sedolös obe lovepo-
You will please send loti peneda at.
translation of this let- F. L. HUTCHINS.
ter. F. L. HUTCHINS.

CUSTOM HOUSE, FOOCHOW,
Kilul 19id, 1891.

Söl palestimöl:

Egetob penedi nitedik ola datü 1890 batul
21id, plo kel danob oli ladliküno, ab pidob sagöa das depenädi omik epedol so badiko, e no kapälob omas anik. Notolös ladeti obik bi nu lödob in Foochow.

Nolob das sabinoms lelodis in Cinän, ab no elogob omis, sikodo no kanob penön ole dö oms.

Kanol penön obe pukayegi anik osevälol, e ogepükob ole viliko i spelob spod obas ovedom nitedik.

Danob milna plo potamäks pesedöl, sedob atoso sone löfik ola potamäkis anik, if kanom sedön denu sömikis obe, odanob ome levemo.

Ko glids flenikiin,
D. O. D.
CHEW LEONG HOE.

Auld Lang Syne.

Li-ofögetobs zielis
Yünüpa pelöföl?
Li-ofögetobs zielis
Tims efegölöl?

Plo dels vönik, löfal oba,
Plo dels tima vönik,
Dlinobs köpi lebenoda
Plo dels tima vönik!

Flens tel, egonobs zi dekliv;
Eplökobs maräfis.
Etevobs vegamis fenöl
Memöl ai flenis.

Flens tel, epledobs in flumil
De göl üjü vendel:
Mels vidik editoms obis,
Flens binobs nog, obs tel.

Odlinol glepori ola
Osükob plo obik,
Yübaköpi ved odlinobs,
Nemö tims bäledik.

Dasumolös nami, o flen!
Givolös ob' nami!
Ninsugolös dlinis svidik,
Al zelön vönupi.

Vocabulary.

Nitedik, interesting.
Depenädi, copy.
Ped, pressed.
Ladet, address.
Löd, dwelling.
Lelods, railroads.
Sikod, therefore.
Pukayegi, subject.
Seväl, choice.
Spod, correspondence.
Potamäks, postage stamps.
Denu, again.
Sömikis, such things.
Levemo, very much.

Theodore P. Brown.

It is LIGHT's happy office to make mention of the men who direct and the enterprises which contribute to the welfare of our city. Our first page has borne the faces of men, far past the prime of life, some verging the very end. Again we have had semblances of those who still enjoy the delights of youth. This week our portrait is that of a man who is in the ranks of Worcester's younger business men.

Born October 2d, 1860, Mr. Brown is still well this side of the middle mile stone of life. His native place was Malden, Mass; his parents were natives of Maine and during Theodore's infancy they moved to Sterling in this county where his earliest schooling was had. Thence the family moved to Lisbon, N. H. All that the schools gave him, Mr. Brown received before his fourteenth year, when he began to work for a living. His father was, at one time, a maker of piano sounding boards, so it is not strange that the son should have had a predilection for his present kind of business.

In 1882, he was for several months in Florida, where he set out an orange orchard, coming back to Worcester in 1883, he engaged with Mr. Henry W. Metcalf, in the manufacture of reed organs and thus continued till 1887, when he bought out the interests of Mr. Metcalf in the business, the latter becoming its travelling representative. In 1888, Dr. H. Y. Simpson, well known in Worcester, became interested with Mr. Brown in the manufacture of pianos and till March, last, they were together in a very flourishing business. The product for 1890 was more than 800 instruments. The piano in this brief period of existence has secured a firm place in the estimation of music loving people. Mr. Metcalf, once with Mr. Brown is now the representative for the piano in the state of New York, with his home in Rochester.

In March, Mr. Simpson retired from the enterprise and a joint stock company was formed. The new concern is "The Brown & Simpson Company." Mr. Andrew H. Hammond, long known as an organ reed maker is the president, while Mr. Brown is secretary and treasurer. The place of manufacturer is No. 9, May Street, so long and favorably known from Mr. Hammond's connection with it.

Perhaps no better notion of Mr. Brown, personally, can be had than the following from a personal sketch in "The Music Trades," New York, April 11.

"Personally Mr. Brown is a quiet, amiable, unassuming gentleman, but with a strong character and a large amount of business energy and capacity. The people of Worcester think a great deal of him, and rightly so, for he has built up two successful concerns in a town where the musical manufacturing industries were reported as going down-hill fast.

"In the piano business as in the organ business, Mr. Brown has shown himself anxious to commend himself especially to those dealers who want a strictly reliable instrument of attractive appearance and good tone that can be sold at a fair price and to good profit."

Mr. Brown has a pleasant home at 34 Richards Street. His wife was Miss Alice J. Daniels of Paxton, the daughter of Horace Daniels, a well to do farmer of that beautiful town. They have one daughter, Barbara, seven years of age, and their church home is where they hear the Rev. Mr. Southgate in Pilgrim Church. Finally, Mr. Brown is a worthy successor of Worcester business men of the past and an enterprising associate of those who, today, are pushing the Heart of the Commonwealth to the front.

"Walderube" or "Forest rest," to the German student, otherwise known as Forest Park restaurant, has achieved popularity in a day. The structure has been occupied less than a week, but has proved so small that a piazza 35 feet square will be begun on the east side of the building to accommodate the crowds who wish to lunch outdoors. S. H. Ladd has been engaged as culinary director, and was tired out last Sunday in making sandwiches. The bill of fare beside sandwiches, ice-cream and cake, includes broiled chicken, sirloin steak and fried potatoes. If your thirsts are too aristocratic to be appeased with tea, coffee and milk, you can revel in all the drinks Mr. Jensen serves at his uptown rooms. Vegetables, etc., will speedily be added to the bill. Mr. Jensen proposes to lay in a few croquet sets and tennis rackets soon to rent as he does baby carriages.—Springfield Republican.

This is the establishment that Mr. George Holmes left Worcester to supervise. We are glad to know, it is so successful.

No one in these parts knows so well the lurking place of the sweetest flowers as Arba Pierce.

Doubtless many have thought his Christian name some form of abbreviation of his favorite flower, the Arbutus which in the early spring he finds in such abundance. Not so it is a good Bible name, that of Hebron in early day, Kirjath-Arba. "Now Arba was a mighty man among the Anakim's. Our Arba is equally mighty in his chosen field, that of flowers. He has searched field and forest to a purpose and when he brings in a beautiful bunch of Arethusa, "the pitchforks" of the rural regions, our eyes and heart are delighted. The Nymph, Arethusa, had a woeful time to be sure, in escaping her river god Lover, Alpheus, but the legend throws a pleasant halo around this pretty orchid, and if the nymph were half as beautiful as her floral namesake, we do not wonder at the Divinity's infatuation.

James M. Hoey, long in the employ of the Clark, Sawyer Company, has taken his family to the camp ground at Sterling for the regular summer stay. LIGHT knows no one who seems to get more enjoyment out of life than "Jimmy," nor any one who deserves any more.

The Davis Art Company on Pearl Street, Herbert McIntosh proprietor, is making, this week, a special exhibition of etchings at a reasonable price. As artists, there are the names of Field, Anderson, Milo and Bohde and their work is worthy the inspection of any one who loves black and white work. There are fine lines of mouldings appropriate. Don't fail to see Mr. Crocker's excellent crayon of the late John B. Gough. All that Mr. Crocker does is good, but this is superb. It is a speaking likeness, not a solar print but a genuine crayon, one that is better and better as mellowed by time. Don't fail to examine it.

Our New Recruits.

Most respectfully dedicated to the Daughters of Veterans.

I catch a glimmer of sunshine,
With a glimpse of gold and blue,
And of jaunty caps on sunny heads,
And I wonder if they knew
How pretty they looked to us old Vets,
As we marched on our natal day,
To carry sweet flowers to lay o'er the forms,
That sleep beneath the clay.

Hard hands that were wont to grasp the gun
Touched the hat in tender salute,
I warrant they trembled ten times as much,
As they did when ordered to shoot.
'Twas a grand flank movement on us old sires,
And it well-nigh broke our line,
And we looked to the right and then to the left,
And saw the bright eyes shine.

We lift our hats to the glorious souls,
Who have toiled and worked by our side,
On the battle-field in the sick wards drear,
Where'er our comrades have died.
O woman's love, and woman's hand,
And woman's gentle pride,
Have soothed the path for many a life,
That drifted out with the tide.

But those were the mothers and sisters dear,
And the patient wives of our youth,
But the foe that well-nigh turned our flank,
Was rather a mixture of both.
So it seems the last recruits to our ranks,
Are quite a puzzle to all,
For they work worse havoc with our eyes,
Than the deadly minie ball.

But we welcome them on our natal day,
These merry girls of ours,
For we know their bright and happy hearts,
Will cheer life's darkest hours,
And when the leader calls the roll,
And we go to join the brave,
Their gentle hands we know will lay
Bright flowers on our grave.

—Fred L. Hildreth.

English as She is Spelled.

The following note from a writer in Kentucky is given verbatim. Evidently, that section needs schools. This was written to a business house in this city

MAY the 29-1881.

Dear Sir:

I writ to you for Catalaug and Pristlist iam Dealing in Fire armes Dri Goods and Groserys I want the Best Prises Can bee had From you Please Send By Return Mail i Want to Deal With you.

Yors Truly.

The annual dinner of the Polytechnic Alumni Association takes place next Wednesday evening at the Bay State House. Business meeting at six, dinner at eight.

Mason Boyden, now of Pell City, Alabama, is visiting at his Harvard Street home.

Walter G. Wesson, formerly of our High School and, later, at the Polytechnic is in the city. He will not return to Philadelphia but will go into the D. P. Wesson pistol shop in Springfield.

Senior Vice Commander of the State Department James K. Churchill is kept very busy in eating all the dinners provided for him by the "Boys." Wednesday night he was at Greenfield. Next, he may be in Gloucester or Nantucket.

Mr. Harry V. Baldwin, High School and "Tech" graduate and more recently in the Pension office in Washington, has returned to this city.

The Week.

CITY.

- 29—The schools of the city remember Memorial Day. A grand idea, well carried out.
Charles Wilder dies at 80 Lincoln Street, 78 years.
The venerable Henry W. Miller stricken with paralysis.
Mrs. Harriet S. Wilder, mother of Harry B., celebrates 90th birthday.
- 30—Memorial day fittingly observed.
A great day for the bicyclist.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Sawin celebrate golden wedding, 19 Fruit Street.
- 31—Henry W. Miller dies at his home, 10.30 a.m. In 91st year.
Many clergymen emphasize the return of Memorial Day.
- June 1—No hope from the city government in the way of street watering.
The police records for May show a great increase in drunkenness over one year ago.
The trial of Quigley begins. Just one month from the killing of Manning.
- 2—Prof. T. E. N. Eaton and family depart for their California home.
Rockwood Hoar starts on his European outing.
Henry W. Miller buried from his late residence.
- 3—Universalist Day. Corner Stone of All Souls laid and fiftieth anniversary of the First celebrated.
Co. A, of the Old 25th Regt., goes to Shrewsbury for reunion. Corporal Bugbee entertains.
- 4—Mr. H. H. Bigelow and others trying to secure a change in Post Office site.
The Boys' Club in Barton Place closes for the Summer.
Mr. Charles Monroe dies at the residence of his son, A. C. Monroe, 61 years.
Light Infantry celebrates 88th anniversary.
- 6—Charles G. Washburn elected trustee of the Polytechnic Institute.
John E. Lynch, principal of the Thomas Street School, rescues an unknown man from drowning at the Lake.
- 7—At the Reform Club numerous speakers assist in celebrating the first anniversary of P. H. Durkin's signing the pledge.
The Lake resorts crowded by pleasure seekers.
- 8—The Congregational Club celebrates 15th anniversary at Mechanics Hall. Remarks by Dr. O. P. Gifford and others.
Marie Stone receives an ovation at her farewell appearance in Worcester Theater.
- 9—Grand reception of Christian Endeavor and Epworth League Societies by the Lake View Church.
Caleb Wall gives newspaper reminiscences before Worcester Typotheta.
- 10—Worcester soldiers having a hot time in camp.
Aratus M. Kelley takes his own life, revolver, 65 years.
Holy Cross boys defeat the Harvards.
- 11—Mrs. Susan A. (Vose) Miller dies at 3 Highland street. Wife of Rev. J. J. Miller, pastor of Lincoln Square Baptist church.

Providence Sewage Committee visits Worcester and inspects our catch basins. Rev. Dr. Vinton will remain in Worcester.

COUNTY.

- 27—Athol opens her new $40,000 hotel, the Commercial House.
- 29—General observance, in the schools, of Memorial Day exercises.
- 30—The county is a grand floral tribute to the departed heroes.
- 31—Harvey Ellis dies in Whitinsville, 62 years.
Spencer's Public Library to be open Sundays, from 2 to 7 p.m.
- June 1—Stranger found dead in Warren.
Unsuccessful effort made to burglarize Post Office safe in Millbury.
- 3—Dr. Ogden Backus of Rochester weds Miss Jennie L. Lasell of Whitinsville.
Franklin F. Brooks, Esq., of Boston, marries Miss Sara B. Coolidge of Leicester.
Roxana Sprague dies in Greenville, 97 years.
- 4—Fred'k A. Biscoe dies in Leicester, 44 years.
Diphtheria prevalent in Leominster.
School house burned in Jeffersonville.
Miss Sally Chamberlain died in Shrewsbury, Tuesday, the 2d, inst, 93 years.
In Spencer, Albert Sauveur of Chicago weds Miss May Prince Jones; and Frank A. Drury, Miss Ellen S. Prouty.
- 5—Southboro afflicted by house breakers.
Rev. Ithiel T. Johnson of Oxford announced to marry Miss Mary H. Lawrence of Roxbury.
- 6—Rev. W. A. Power of Blackstone celebrates 25th anniversary of ordination to the priesthood.
Wm. B. Earle dies in Leicester. An original Abolitionist and brother of John Milton Earle, an editor of the Spy. 88 years.
- 9—Body of James Booth, an old soldier, found dead in the Sutton woods, near Millbury, 75 years.
- 10—Smash up near Millville on the Providence Road.
- 11—Miss May Parmenter dies suddenly in Athol, within a few hours of her marriage.
Mrs. M. A. Aldrich dies in Charlton, 90 years.
- COMMONWEALTH.
- 29—Harvard boys have a "rumpus" at the Parker House.
Legislature makes appropriations for destroying Gypsy moth, also talks generally on taxation, always a fertile theme.
- 30—The Commonwealth fittingly remembers her patriotic dead.
- 31—District Assembly, No. 30, Knights of Labor votes not to violate city laws in open air meeting at Franklin Park.
- June 1—Rev. T. De Witt Talmage preaches before the Ancient and Honorable Artillery in Boston's New "Old South."
The Boston News, the new one cent daily, appears.
General Butler argues for Mrs. Johnson before Judge Nelson.

- 2—Two Harvard College Clubs raided in Boston. Liquor found in both.
Judge Josiah G. Abbott dies in Wellesley Hills, 76 years.
- 3—The Legislature make drunkenness less expensive. How moderate!
- 4—Judge Allen of the Supreme Court dies in Northampton, 69 years.
Alonzo S. Weed, publisher of Zion's Herald, has foot crushed by the cars.
- 5—Legislature votes to adjourn June 10.
Edward H. Phelps of Springfield retires from the Phelps Publishing Co. Messrs. Graves & Myrick succeed.
- 6—In the inter-scholastic games at Cambridge, Roxbury wins the cup. Worcester Academy comes in fourth.
The further endowment of Phillips Andover being pushed vigorously.
- 7—The Boston Traveller again changes hands. This time it is the Committee of 100 that buys. It will be a Reformer's sheet. Like most travellers it seems to keep moving.
- 8—The Simmons house of historic memory, at Concord, burned.
- 9—Winona Paper Mills in Holyoke closed.
Harvard College gets $70,000 from the Hancock estate.
Peter E. Johnson, the Gay Head Indian hero, murdered.
- 10—Governor signs the redistricting bill.
Twenty-five Harvard students arraigned in court for keeping liquor nuisance.
- 11—Legislature adjourns. "Nothing in his life became him like the leaving of it."
- NATION.
- 29—Presbyterian Assembly votes against Dr. Briggs. Will Dr. B. be a Galileo?
Dr. James S. White, the famous dental implement inventor and manufacturer died, the 27th inst.
- 30—And now certain Florida Senators say that Senator Call is not elected to the U. S. Senate. So the fun will be renewed.
- 31—Dr. Fordyce Barker dies in New York, 72 years.
Ex-Lt. Gov. Littlefield dies in Pawtucket, 69 years.
Brooklyn Bridge declared free.
Prentice Mulford, the well known literary man, found dead in his canoe in Sheepshead Bay.
Walt. Whitman, 72 years old.
- June 1—Lisbon, N. H., loses Parker and Young's Manufacturing Company by fire. Loss $100,000.
Yale to graduate the largest class in her history.
- 2—Yale boys have to pay for their fun in disturbing Barnum's Circus procession.
Ex-President and Mrs. Cleveland go into summer quarters at Tudor Haven.
Insurance Commissioner Linehan of N. H., apparently much disliked by all sorts of people.
- 3—The Connecticut Political Muddle as bothersome as ever. The land of steady habits! What a misnomer.
- 4—Benson J. Lossing, the historian, dies in Chestnut Ridge, N. Y., 78 years.

- Illinois Legislature has a riot of its own over the World's Fair appropriation.
- 5—Trustees of the Union Theological Seminary will retain Prof. Briggs notwithstanding the vote of the Assembly.
- 6—Another expedition starts from New York to discover the North Pole.
The sister-in-law of President Harrison receives a pension of $8,330. Suppose she had been John Smith's sister-in-law!
- 7—A small earth quake in New Jersey. What new sin has she to answer for?
New gymnasium building at West Point.
- 8—B. T. Barnum's estate foots up $4,000,000.
- 9—Bangor, Me., has a dark day, equal to that of 1881.
Ex City Treasurer, John Bardsley, of Philadelphia arraigned in Court, 17 indictments.
In New Orleans, one jury briber convicted.
- 10—A true bill found against U. S. soldiers for the case of lynching in Walla Walla.
African M. E. church holding 40th Session in Newport, R. I.
- 11—Colonel John A. Munroe dies in Providence.
New Law School organized in New York.

WORLD.

- 29—French Admiral seizes St. George's Bay, Newfoundland. More complications. The air will have to be cleared by some fighting yet.
Sir John McDonald, Canadian Premier, reported dying.
Insurgents threaten to bombard Valparaiso.
- 30—Another Revolution breaks out in Hayti.
The Charleston cannot find the Itata. A ship at sea is not very large.
- 31—All the persecuted Jews are coming to America. How about the persecuted Americans!
- June 1—Britain likely to accept Secretary Blaine's terms in the Sealing controversy.
The Prince of Wales involved in the Baccarat scandal.
- 2—Prince of Wales testifies in Court.
Population decreasing in Ireland.
- 3—The Prince of Wales continues his interesting testimony.
The English accused of a conspiracy to drain this country of gold.
- 4—The details are just at hand of a serious naval engagement in a Chilian port April 28. Hundreds of men killed.
The Itata is surrendered into the power of the U. S. and our honor is safe.
- 5—The Prince of Wales continues to drive nails into Royalty's Coffin, by his testimony in the gambling case. Pity those fellows didn't have some work to do.
Alaskans suffering from La Grippe.
- 6—Germany will take a hand in trying to suppress the Slave Trade.
Michael Davitt's "Labor World" suspends publication. Too much Ireland, not enough labor.

- 7—Newfoundland developing a sentiment favorable to annexation to the United States.
Sir John McDonald, Premier of Canada, died last night at 10.15.
- 8—London omnibus drivers on a strike.
Lava issuing from the side of Vesuvius.
- 9—The verdict of Baccarat case against Sir Cummings; still the Prince of Wales is not exactly happy. There are rocks ahead for British Royalty.
- 10—Sir Wm. Gordon Cummings marries Miss Garner an American girl. She will pay his bills.
Sir John McDonald buried from St. Alban's church, Ottawa.
- 11—The daughter and daughter-in-law of President Harrison arrives in London.
Bismark needed in the German Parliament.

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE.

Polytechnic.

The Bancroft Scholarship goes, next year, to a Sturbridge man, George H. Haynes who has been, some years, an instructor in the "Tech." He is a Harvard graduate now at Johns Hopkins. It would seem to be a question whether he is a Worcester man in the sense intended in the bequest.

Mr. Charles G. Washburn elected to succeed Mr. Moen, is a graduate '75, afterwards at Harvard, and is the first Alumnus to be thus honored. It is a grand thing to do and will promote good feelings among the graduates.

"Aftermath," a log of the class of '91, is the title of the publication to be issued by the Senior Class. A deal of time and expense has been put into the book, with the result that it promises to be more elaborate than former class publications have been. It will be bound in heavy cloth of a steel gray color, the word "Aftermath" in cardinal, completing the combination representing the school colors. The book will be somewhat similar to the "Log of '88" and will contain many illustrations. An excellent heliotype of Dr. Kinnicut, who is the "most popular Prof." will grace the book as a frontispiece, and groups of the class, the N. E. I. A. A. team, and the board of editors will be prominent features. The remainder of the illustrations are from pen sketches. The text will contain the class day parts, a short article on each of the classes, and the usual grinds on the students and profs. Aftermath is edited by seven of the members of the class—Sumner A. Kingsley, Harry L. Dadmun, Charles H. Dunbar, Herbert A. Warren, Harrison P. Eddy, Daniel F. O'Regan and William H. Baird. The book will be put on sale after the class day exercises Wednesday. Price one dollar per copy.

Arrangements are nearly completed for the Class Day and Commencement exercises of the Senior graduating class. The class officers are: President, Fred A. Bigelow, Worcester; vice-president, Fred A. Hodgman, Worcester; secretary, John F. Rogers, Worcester; treasurer, H. H. Tracy, San Francisco, Cal.

The Class Day exercises are to be held on the Institute Campus, Wednesday, June 17 at 2.45 p.m. The program is as follows: Overture and march by Battery B Band; planting Class tree; singing of class ode, which was written by W. H. Baird; tree oration, Bradford A. Gibson; music; class history, written by Charles H. Dunbar and read by H. P. Eddy; music; class oration, subject, "Looking Outward," Sumner A. Kingsley, Worcester; class poem, Arthur L. Rice, Barre; music.

The Commencement exercises are to take place in Association Hall, June 18. Mr. Bayles, ex-editor of the Iron Age, is to deliver the occasional address.

Three men who were expected to graduate with the class, were conditioned, and will not obtain their sheepskins. Two of them had parts assigned in the Wednesday afternoon exercises, and on account of this the class came near abandoning the exercises entirely, but finally decided to omit their numbers from the program.

The Seniors all the year have grumbled much at the requirements in English, and Political Economy, and as a result, gave expression of their feelings by adopting a series of resolutions at a class meeting last Thursday. Copies of these were sent to the officers of the Alumni, the trustees and Faculty.

Rogers '93 is to spend the summer at Falmouth. Kingsley of the graduating class is to take the position held by the late Solon Bartlett '89, as instructor in mathematics and drawing at Lawrenceville Academy, Lawrenceville, N. J.

The June number of the W P I which appears Monday, contains a fine cut of Prof. Eaton, taken by Keith '94. It represents him as seated at his desk in Boynton Hall.

Prof. Conant of Clark University has been appointed to the position of Junior professor of mathematics, to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Prof. Eaton.

DON'T MISS

THE

CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES

AT

Worcester Athletic Club's Grounds at Lake View,

Saturday, June 13,

Commencing at 2.30 p. m.

A Great Field of Entries.

Trains on the Worcester and Shrewsbury

Railroad will run every 20 minutes.

ADMISSION 50c.

Grandstand 25c Extra.

401 and 403 Main Street,
CORNER MECHANIC, WALKER BUILDING.

Lansdowne.

Do you know the stuff?
It is silk and wool.

The warp, which is thrown up on the face, is all silk; the filling is all wool; the effect is changeable and beautiful, a sort of sublime silk warp Mohair, only better.

Crush it in your hand, then shake it out. Where are the wrinkles? Drop dust upon it, then shake again. Where is the dust? Gone like the wrinkles.

A full dress pattern is about seven yards, sometimes more, sometimes less, and it weighs next to nothing, but will wear like iron. 40 inches wide, $1.20 a yard. Are you not interested?

Perhaps 20 styles of our $1 Indias left. We shall have no more. You'll have to choose quickly to get one.

New * York STORE.

WOOL DRESSES GOODS you will surely need this summer. Home Spuns you'd ask for, we think. We have them for 39c, 45c.; 50c. and 62 1-2c. Plain Colors, Plaids and Mixtures. A beautiful line of Colored Cashmeres 25c. a yard and up. We have just received some pretty Stamped Linens which we would be pleased to show you.

Z. F. Little & Co.,

234 and 238 Main St.

The Philosopher.

In building up "Natur" he thought the Creator
Had blundered unspeakably queer,
And he said he and Darwin and Billy McVaren
Could prove the whole thing out of gear.

He said the whole pattern from Neptune to Saturn,
Was cut by a bungling design,
And that the particular was plumb perpendicular,
And exact every time to the line.

He said that no critic with brain analytic,
Could tolerate things that he saw;
He said he would suffer if any old duffer
Couldn't pick out a blemish or flaw.

Any man with a cranium as big's a geranium
Could see the whole thing was a botch,
See where "Natur" had blundered in points by the hundred,
In the space of five ticks of his watch.

And so day and night he advised the Almighty,
With advice he believed of great worth,
And his wife took in sewing to keep life agoing,
While he superintended the earth.

—S. W. Foss 'in Lynn Union.

Good.

Foolish is learning, vain are the ologies,
Empty the promise, if culture is all;
Men we must have, not empty apologies,
Loud ringeth out humanity's call!
Modesty, temperance, virtue, unselfishness—
These are the marbles to build in the wall.

—Nathan Haskell Dole.

Excellent sentiments these. LIGHT endorses them and recalls hours spent in our High School as fellow laborer with Mr. Dole.

The Light Infantry celebrated its eighty-eight anniversary last week Friday evening with a dress parade on the Common and a banquet at the Armory.

LEICESTER.

Readers in this town will be glad to know that the words of the Rev. Samuel May at the funeral of William B. Earle will appear in next week's LIGHT.

Highland Military School.

During the present week examinations have been in progress in this excellent school, with the Prize Drill yesterday. Tomorrow at St. John's Church, the Rev. Mr. Burgess will preach a sermon before the graduating class. Monday evening there will be a Prize Declamation Contest and the Graduating Exercises will take place Tuesday at half past two. The Rev. Mr. Southgate will address the boys at that time. Final Military parade at four o'clock.

"A Long Look Ahead."

When little six weeks old Ethel Davis Putnam on May 28th was carried down to the Y. W. C. A. Rooms and formally enrolled as a member, the event suggested several ifs and a conclusion.

If she live to her great grandmother's age, if she continue to reside in Worcester, if the Y. W. C. A. continue to flourish, and if she retain her membership, there is little doubt that some day she may be reckoned as the Senior member of that, at present, very active and useful body. Her parents, and the grandmother who was her sponsor, have assumed an additional responsibility.

H. A. Coombs, W. P. I. '93, sailed June 11th on the Columbia to spend vacation in Switzerland with his parents.

Hymen's Bonds.

They are silken and seldom are happier parties bound than those whose nuptials were celebrated Thursday morning, in St. Paul's Church, at 9 o'clock. The vestry was well filled with the friends of the two whose lives, hitherto twain, were there blended. Mr. Eugene A. O'Connor, by industry and application, backed up by native wit and energy, has secured a wide reputation as vocalist and artist. He was graduated at our High School in 1881 and has ever been loyal to the interests of the institution. He is a son of Lawrence O'Connor of Hanover Street. Miss Mary Harding, to whom he is married, is also a High School graduate, class of '76. Her home, with her widowed mother, has been at 60 Myrtle Street, where Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor will be at home to friends Wednesdays and Thursdays, after July 29th. In fancy we throw after the happy pair the shoe for luck and bespeak for them along life's way all the pleasure the journey can afford.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

Black Silks have no special season.

They belong to every season.

They belong to every month in the year, and there is no single day when you are altogether safe without a good Silk dress.

We pride ourselves upon our black Silk qualities.

Especially the grades that we so cheerfully warrant.

A good black Silk that we say is right,
Is here for you at one dollar a yard.

Our warranted beautiful black Surahs
Are one dollar a yard.

Our soft and clinging Satin Rhadamus
Are one dollar a yard.

Our dainty India Silks

Are one dollar a yard.

Our lovely colored Failles

Are one dollar a yard.

The great and overwhelming success of the season, the beautiful Printed China Silks,

Are one dollar a yard.

The Linen section made one feel cool, notwithstanding the thermometer mounted well up in the ninety's Thursday afternoon.

The pretty white damasks were suggestive of comfort.

The new Monic Toilet Sets, so beautifully stamped, were sufficient to attract anyone.

Some of them are fringed all around, some only on the ends, others are perfectly plain, with the exception of delicate hemstitching, others still with broad bands of open work through the center.

All of them very beautiful.

The Scarfs for dressing cases are 72 inches long, and cost from 33c up to 87.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the

ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,

92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place at an early day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of

Fine Monumental Work,

131 Central Street, near Summer.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

RAYMOND'S

VACATION

EXCURSIONS.

ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

Of from five to twenty-one days' duration, and including visits to the White Mountains Isles of Shoals, Mount Desert, Moosehead Lake, Old Orchard Beach, Montreal, Quebec, the Saguenay and St. Lawrence Rivers, Lake Memphremagog, St. Andrews, N. B., Fredericton, the St. John River, St. John, the Annapolis Valley, the Land of Evangeline, Halifax, the coal regions of Nova Scotia, the Bras d'Or Lakes of Cape Breton Island, Charlottetown, Hudson River, Saratoga, Lake George, Lake Champlain, Ausable Chasm, the Adirondack Mountains, Lake Placid, Lehigh Valley, Mauch Chunk, Watkins Glen, Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands, Trenton Falls, etc.

In addition to the above,

Excursions over the Canadian Pacific Railway and to Alaska—July 11 and 25.

Excursion to the Yellowstone Park and Return—July 16.

Tour of Yellowstone Park and Across the Continent, returning via Canadian Pacific Railway—July 27.

Send for descriptive circulars, designating whether book of "Thirty Summer Tours," Alaska Excursions, or Yellowstone National Park trips is desired.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB,

296 Washington Street, opposite School Street, Boston.

The Violet.

BY SARAH JEANNE RICH.

I sing the violet, the gentle flower,
That early meets the spring-time hour,
Its fair and gentle form is seen
Bordering Dame Nature's robe of green.

No lily breathes the tender grace,
That greets us in its starlike face,
And all must stoop on bended knee
To pluck this blossom, shrinking modestly

And hiding neath its leaves, on mossy bed,
Ne'er lifting its blue and drooping head,
But like some Christian soul in earnest prayer,
Filling with fragrance all the neighboring air.

It teaches us of One of heavenly birth,
Who came in humblest guise to dwell on earth,
To win mankind by love and purity,
And soften stony pride by his Humility.

So may we heed and never more forget
The lowly message brought by thee, sweet violet,
For human hearts will cold and silent be
To all who lack thy heavenly grace—humility.

Miss Annie Athy.

The event of the theatrical week, ending June 6, was the appearance Friday night of our fellow townsman Miss Athy in the rôle of "Dearest" in Little Lord Fauntleroy. Worcester is interested in her own sons and daughters and her citizens turned out in force to see what Miss Athy's studies, since leaving the High School in 1889, had amounted to. They went, some of them, expecting to find a bright girl; they found a well equipped, self poised woman. Of course, we realize that the players, as yet, are amateurs; but the presentation they made of the drama was creditable in every respect. Without a dissenting voice, the verdict was, "well done" and all listeners predict for the star a brilliant future.

In school, she had a well governed voice and much appreciation. Her drill in the school of Dramatic Expression has enhanced these qualities till now she seems capable of attaining any point to which she may aspire. The road, she is taking, has many besetments. She will find many discouragements, but the same pluck and perseverance that have carried her over obstacles in the past, will win success in her chosen field. It was a grand evening, not only for her but for her many friends who had come to witness her first appearance in Worcester. There were those in the audience, who did not know her personally, whose judgement was swayed by no tender feeling of regard; yet from them also, the same conclusion came that the debutante had scored an unqualified success. In all of which LIGHT most thoroughly rejoices.

The picnic season is close at hand. In fact, a number of excursions have already taken place. The dates now engaged at the Lake Quinsigamond resorts are as follows: June 13, Church of Unity Sunday School at Quinsigamond Park; June 20, Crompton's Loom Works at Quinsigamond Park; June 24, St. John's Baptist Church at Lincoln Park and the Knight Templars at Quinsigamond Park; June 27, Ancient Order of United Workmen of Gardner at Quinsigamond Park; June 30, South Baptist Church at Quinsigamond Park; July 1, St. John's Episcopal Church, July 2, Park Church, July 7, Pilgrim Church, July 9, Church of Christ, all at Quinsigamond Park;

July 10, Adams Square Baptist Church a Woodlawn Grove; July 11, Hammond's Organ Co., July 14, Webster Square Church, July 16, Free Will Baptist Church, at Quinsigamond Park; July 16, Ebenezer Lodge, Good Samaritans and Daughters of Samaria, No. 6, at Lincoln Park; July 18, St. Paul's Lyceum at Quinsigamond Park. Several of the churches will go this year to the Union Point picnic grounds in Webster. The dates are: June 27, Piedmont Church; June 30, Old South Church; July 1, Union Church; July 2, Salem Street Church; July 8, First Universalist Church.

Vacationers are beginning their annual outings and among the first to go are Ex-High School Janitor Tyler Newton and wife to their cottage in Sterling. For several weeks, Mr. Newton has been suffering from malaria but is now out and was able to go, the first of the week, to the camp ground.

Legal * Notices.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.
PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of ISRAEL F. CONANT of Sterling, in said County, an insane per on, Greeting:

Whereas James F. Kendall the guardian of said insane person has presented his petition for license to sell at private sale for the sum of thirty-five dollars, or upon such terms as may be adjudged best, certain real estate therein specified, of his said ward for his maintenance.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Fitchburg in said County, on the fourth Tuesday of June current at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester three weeks successively, the last publication to be two days at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this third day of June in the year eighteen hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.
PROBATE COURT.

To all persons interested in the estate of DOLLY S. HOWE, late of Sterling, in said County, deceased, testate, Greeting:

You are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Fitchburg in said County, on the fourth Tuesday of June current at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why the account rendered by Ezra Sawyer and William D. Peck the executors of their administration of said estate, and now on file at this office, shoud not be allowed. The account of said William D. Peck being rendered by Mary E. Peck and L. Putnam Willard the executors of his will.

And the said accountants are ordered to serve this citation, by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester, the last publication to be two days, at least before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or to their legal representatives known to the petitioners seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this first day of June in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

YARMOUTH S. S. CO.,

(Limited) Shortest and Most Direct Route Between United States & Nova Scotia, via the favorite sea-going and new steamships "Boston" and "Yarmouth." Sea voyage only 15 to 17 hours. Tickets sold to all parts of Nova Scotia.

Steamer will leave Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston, for Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 11 o'clock A. M.

Returning will leave Yarmouth for Boston every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Close connections made at Yarmouth with all Railway, Steamboat and Stage lines to all points in N. S.

For further information write for folder or apply to G. V. Lancaster, M. H. Church & Co., O. F. Rawson, Worcester; or J. F. Spinney, Agent, Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston.

The Ware-Pratt Company

Invite attention to an extensive display of

Fine Clothing for Men, Boys and Children.

The Latest Fashions, Exclusive Styles from our own workshops, Honest Goods and the Lowest Prices, Grade and Quality considered.

Our Custom Department is teeming with the Newest styles, Colorings and Materials, which go to make up the finest lines we have ever shown.

The Ware-Pratt Company,

MANUFACTURERS AND RETAILERS,

408 and 412 Main Street,

Worcester.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts. State of the order March 18, 1891: Membership, 4915; Amount loaned for Relief, $15,290; Reserve Fund, $22,922.40; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,759.08; Total, $44,975.48. Men and women admitted upon the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600.

Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organizer wanted. Address NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

LATHROP * BROTHERS,

LADIES', MEN'S AND CHILDREN'S

FINE AND MEDIUM SHOES

Of the most approved process of manufacture, meeting every requirement of Quality, Comfort and Style.

564 MAIN STREET, Franklin Square.

W. A. ENGLAND,

DEALER IN

FINE WATCHES,
CLOCKS, JEWELRY
& OPTICAL GOODS.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

394 Main Street.

E. W. COFFIN,

Store Fixtures

310 Main Street, Worcester.

Name this Paper.

Now is the Time to Buy a

CARRIAGE !

at a Small Profit.

Geo. C. Dewhurst, 17 Park St.,

OPP. THE COMMON.

Larkin's, 395 Main St.,
Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps, Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.

Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Grate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD. Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main St.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LIGHT

VOL. III. NO. 16. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JUNE 20, 1891. FIVE CENTS.

PROF. THOMAS E. N. EATON,

Late at the Worcester County Polytechnic Institute.

THE HEART OF THE COMMONWEALTH

NEWS

SOCIETY

BUSINESS

PERSONALS

MUSIC

DRAMA

LITERATURE

ART

INFLUENCE

PUTNAM & SPRAGUE CO.

FURNITURE

We are Sole Agents for the
LEONARD REFRIGERATORS !

The Best in the World. Fifteen patents cover its construction. Made of Hard Wood, charcoal filled, five walls for ice preservation, removable flues, iron shelves, thorough drainage, cold dry air circulation; every nook and corner easy to get at; air-tight locks; nothing to get out of order or warp; the most perfect in the market. The makers warrant it. Costs no more than cheap makes. THE LEONARD SYSTEM excels all others. Call and see them at 247 and 249 Main Street, Corner Central.

YARMOUTH S. S. CO.,

(Limited) Shortest and Most Direct Route Between United States & Nova Scotia, via the favorite sea-going and new steamships "Boston" and "Yarmouth." Sea voyage only 15 to 17 hours. Tickets sold to all parts of Nova Scotia.

Steamer will leave Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston, for Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 11 o'clock A. M.

Returning will leave Yarmouth for Boston every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Close connections made at Yarmouth with all Railway, Steamboat and Stage lines to all points in N. S.

For further information write for folder or apply to G. Y. Lancaster, M. H. Church & Co., O. F. Rawson, Worcester; or J. F. Spinney, Agent, Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the

ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,

92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

CLARA BARTON TENT NO. 3,

Daughters of Veterans,

Will give a Miscellaneous Entertainment and Strawberry Festival at

G. A. R. Hall, Friday Eve., June 26.

Admission 15 cts. Supper 15 cts. Proceeds to defray expenses of Delegates to National Convention.

C. H. DRAPER,

Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

Three Large Moving Wagons. Baggage Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

OXYGEN

We have the genuine

Oxygen Treatment

FOR THE CURE AND PREVENTION OF DISEASE.

It is not a Drug, but Nature's true Restorative in debility and all disordered conditions of the system.

Our Oxygen is fresh every day. Prepared and administered with the utmost care by a Physician of large experience.

It will pay to investigate our METHODS and PRICES.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

LINCOLN BLOCK,

368 1-2 Main, Cor. Elm.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

Quinsigamond Lake ICE

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Special attention given to the family trade.

Garfield & Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 143-4.

N. G. TUCKER. W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER & SON,
SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street, Worcester, Mass.

384 MAIN STREET 388

Bigelow & Longley

are prepared to show all the Latest Novelties in

CUSTOM AND READY-MADE

*CLOTHING***

MEN'S, YOUTHS', BOYS' or CHILDREN.

We can give you a SPRING OVERCOAT from $5 to $25, in all the latest shades, made up with silk face and silk sleeve linings.

CHEVIOT SUITS

in blue or black, cut single or double-breasted. Prices from $8 to $25. Also a fine assortment of

Blue and Black Serges,

$15 $15 PER SUIT $15 $15

Indigo Blue Flannel and Yacht Cloth Suits,

we can give you a single or double-breasted, at prices from $6 to $15, and GUARANTEE THE COLOR. An elegant line of light and dark colored

Scotches and Fancy Cassimeres,

from $6 to $25. The best assortment of light colored TROUSERS we have ever shown, from $3 to $7. FANCY VESTS—Marseilles and Duck. Also a lot of dark Fancy Cassimeres and Silks, from 75c. to $4.

Bigelow & Longley

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JUNE 20, 1891.

No. 16

Divergent as the zone and pole
Are man's gross body and white soul,
Yet both must win to heavenly light
Or walk the shadow-ways of night.

—Thomas S. Collier.

June 17 is past. "The Sword of Bunker Hill" has had its annual unsheathing. Charles-town boys and girls have had their regular holiday and now the figure of Col. Prescott in duster or dressing gown is left for its twelve months of sole command of the heights.

It is a very pleasing fiction that some Massachusetts people give themselves in fancying that Prescott was the chief on that "Immortal day." More than fifty years after the event certain quid nuncs, who had nothing to do with the battle, began to be restive over the honors generally ascribed to that brave old farmer and Indian fighter, General Israel Putnam; so in solemn conclave they assembled and "resolved" that Putnam be deposed and the Pepperel Colonel be exalted.

So far as the Massachusetts Historical Society could fix matters the question was decided for Prescott; but the school boys of twenty-five and thirty years ago have, some how or other, gotten the notion that "Old Put" was the man who directed the farmers to hold their fire till they could see the whites of the Britons' eyes and that it was the same "Old Rough and Ready" who swore at the retreating militia. He it was, at any rate, who in his old age in the Brooklyn, Conn., church apologized for his emphatic language on that occasion.

What a sight it was when the veteran of three wars and the hero of unnumbered adventures, in his age and decrepitude arose in the congregation of the church which he had helped to build and expressed his sorrow for the fierce words uttered in the heat of battle and the chagrin of defeat. It will be remembered that he tried to turn the tide of retreat and to set the faces of his men against the foe; but they had no powder and Von Steuben had not yet introduced the bayonet, and retreat they would. "For all this I am sorry" says the patriot and then, in a Galleo mood, he adds "It was enough to make an angel swear to see them cowards run away."

Where was Prescott with his duster or dressing gown all this while? If in command, why was it left for the Massachusetts Historical Society, long years afterwards, to make it known? Had the friends of Israel Putnam been half as tenacious of what they and the great public deemed correct as the Prescottites were of what they wanted to be true, long since the doughty farmer in all his ire and fire had stood prominently in enduring bronze upon the fore front of that historic field. There are Putnams enough in the land, proud of their relationship to adequately recognize their kinsman's merit and to place on Bunker Hill some tribute to his power and worth.

Let them pitch in and fight for him as he fought for right and as the quid nuncs, the same people who now claim that those slain in the Boston massacre were worthless fellows anyway, have battled for Prescott's claims; and history, long gone wrong, may be righted. Massachusetts has honors enough, with her Hancock and the Adamses, without detracting an iota from those of Connecticut and Israel Putnam.

Side walk manners are worthy of consideration. In this land, turning to the right is the proper thing; but try it on Saturday night. One must wind his way as best he can, in and out, for every one is for himself. Suppose the police were to instruct, what then! Then the tobacco chewer! He ought to walk next the gutter. Only a day or two since, a gentleman with clean cuffs and hands was going to his destination, when he was saluted by a stream of colored saliva from the mouth of a chewer. He had shot for the walk, but the hand interfered and filthily soiled hands with sadly discolored cuffs resulted. Did apologies compensate? In a certain Kansas city, the Lady City Government forbade expectorating upon the walks. Would not some such enactment here be a good thing?

Can the schools teach all? Suppose we have cooking schools what is to become of that most delightful expression, "Mother's Cooking"? If our girls are all to learn the culinary art by rule rather than example and all by the same rule, where is to be the individuality that should characterize a well cooked dish just as much as it does a book or a newspaper article. Why is it that so many groceries advertise "Home made" bread and cake? Isn't home cookery at just as high a premium as hand made garments? Wouldn't it be a good idea for the girls of all walks and stations in life to know the ins and outs of the home kitchen as well as the resources of the cooking school?

As to business leaving Worcester for Fitchburg or any other place. Mr. Johnson buys a plant in Fitchburg at a very low rate. How does he have this opportunity? Obviously, because some other venture had failed there. Had the Heywood Chair Industry continued to be remunerative, the plant had not been in the market. Suppose some firm in our own city should close out its business, the place would be vacant and doubtless for sale at a low rate. Is not the difficulty to find bargains in plants an indication of prosperity? Worcester has not reached out for foreign corporations, has not offered inducements yet has continued to grow and thrive. Is there not a gravity in business as in things. Liquids seek their lowest level in obedience to Nature's law. Will not business, in spite of fondling, and coddling eventually find its location where it can do best? The best that a town or city can do is to keep off restrictions and to not impose burdensome taxes. In our free country business like an individual must have the privilege of coming and going at will. There is no doubt, however, that a board of trade can do much in setting forth the attractions of the city and the inducements offered to those who seek locations. Let's have one by all means.

The "Seventeenth."

The only recognition of Bunker Hill Day in our city was the parade of the Continentals unless we omit the flying of the flags. More than half the people who saw the banners in the air wondered why they were unfurled. "Ye Continentals" never looked better nor marched more soldierly. The sermon by Chaplain Gunnison was exceedingly appropriate. Worcester should be grateful that the whirl of trade and commerce has not entirely banished patriotism.

For two weeks there have been on exhibition in the lecture room of the Free Public Library, a collection of pictures, printed in oil of some of the leading buildings and ruins of the world. If the attendance warrants, the exhibition will be continued next week. The hours are from 7 to 9. The pictures include views of the principal ruins of Egypt, Rome and Greece, the Cathedral Orieto, Italy; York Minister, England; Cathedral at Bingos, Spain; City Hall at Brussels, Belgium; Cologne Cathedral, Germany; Piazza della Signia, Florence, Italy; St. Stephens Cathedral, Vienna, Austria; Cathedral of Bainberg, Bavaria; Notre Dame, Paris; Cathedral of Rheims, France; Louvre, Paris; La Certosa of Pavia, Italy; Interior of the Castle of Heidelberg, Germany; Monastery Church at Etschmiadzin, Armenia; Church of the Protection of Mary, Moscow, Russia; Kremlin, Moscow; St. Peter's Rome; Cathedral in Pisa, Italy; Church of St. Mark, Venice, Italy; Crosswalk in a Cloister at Monreale, Sicily; Cathedral at Speyer, Bavaria; views in the Alhambra, Grenada, Spain; Theatre of Taormina, Sicily; Roman Ruins at Palmyra, Syrian Desert; Mosque of Cordova, Spain; Mosque of Sultan Hassan, Cairo, Egypt; Toolorn Mosque of Cairo, Egypt; Interior of Mosque, of Santa Sophia, Constantinople; Turkey; Ruins of Syracuse Sicily; Birs of Nimrod, near Babylon (supposed site of tower of Babel); Ruins of the Palace of Khorsabad, Assyria; Rock Temple on the island Elephanta, India; Tombs of the Kings, Persia; Mahamalaipin, India; Ruins of Persepolis, Persia; Tomb of Cyrus, Persia; Ellora, India. Beside the views of the ruins are placed pictures of the locality as it appeared before destruction.

There is no sort of wrong deed of which a man can bear the punishment alone; you can't isolate yourself and say that evil that is in you shall not spread. Men's lives are as thoroughly blended with each other as the air they breathe; evil spreads as necessarily as disease.—George Eliot.

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND
HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.

Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building,
Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as
second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, JUNE 20, 1891.

Two Bicycles!

THIRTY-FIVE DOLLARS!

One will be given to that boy or girl who secures the most cash subscriptions for LIGHT between this date, May 30th and August
1st, 1891.

The other is for the boy who sells the largest number of papers
during the same time.

Come up to the office, boys, and
talk it over.

Every failure to receive LIGHT promptly
should be, at once, reported at this office.

All scraps of informations concerning persons and events, thankfully received.

Hereafter, it will be understood that all articles in LIGHT, not ascribed, save recipes, squibs, fashion and household notes were written for this paper.

Friends sending in manuscripts will not complain if they are not printed at once. There are many waiting. Yet LIGHT is always glad to receive communications and, if meritorious,
to print them.

Funny things happen now and then. LIGHT never realized how necessary the expression
"This is a horse" under a picture was till certain criticisms on the engraving of the Boy's Club in last week's paper appeared. It was a flash light picture that Photographer
Blair made. Don't you see the gas lights burning? Don't you know that it is an interior, that the impression was instantaneous? LIGHT carried the Photo to Boston and the engraver assured us that it was one of the best pictures of the kind ever made. Don't compare it with pictures made in the sunlight, with every advantage; but rather put it over against other flash lights. Too much credit cannot be given to Mr. Blair for his judgment and execution.

The engraving on the first page of LIGHT is there through the kindness of the W P I for which it was engraved. The original photograph was the result of a happy thought on the part of Edward H. Keith '94 who caught the Professor in his room, as such in place as a king would be upon his throne.

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE.

Holy Cross.

The following is of interest to the Holy Cross graduates:

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

of the College of the Holy Cross.

My Dear Sir:

The Annual Meeting of the Alumni Association of the College of the Holy Cross will be held in Fenwick Hall immediately after the Commencement exercises, Thursday, June 25, 1891.

A large meeting is earnestly desired.

Yours very respectfully,

RICHARD H. MOONEY, Secretary.

P. O. BOX 549.

The college of the Holy Cross, holds its 48th Annual Commencement, on Thursday,
June 25, 1891, at half-past ten o'clock, a.m.

Polytechnic.

This has been "Tech" week most decidedly.
Class day, in spite of threatening weather was just cool enough, while the banquet, at the Bay State, was ahead of any predecessor, in interest. As the list of Alumni lengthens, these gatherings will increase in importance and every year will make the voice of the graduates more potent in the management of the Institute. The progress of the institution has been steadily upward and its reputation today is better than it was yesterday.

At the campus exercises, were planting of the class tree, and other parts, well borne by the young men and pleasantly received by the guests. President Fred A. Bigelow introduced the speakers who were, B. A. Gibson, class tree orator; Wm. H. Baird, ordist; Harrison P. Eddy, who read the class history, written by Charles A. Dunbar; Sumner A. Kinsley, class orator and Arthur L. Rice, class poet.

The graduating exercises in Association Hall were of an entertaining character, the valedictory being given by George W. Booth.
The graduates are, in chemistry, George E.
Barton, Fred E. Bigelow, Harrison P. Eddy,
Daniel F. O'Regan, Albert J. Reinbold, John F. Rogers.

Civil engineering, Geo. W. Booth, Bradford
A. Gibson, Edwin S. Phelps, Edmund P.
Power, Herbert A. Warren.

Mechanical engineering, Gerald Alley, Albert H. Armstrong, David F. Atkins, Francis
E. Bradford, Harry L. Dadmun, Charles A.
Davis, Norman V. Fitts, Howard B. Foster,
Fred C. Hodgman, Henry E. Kimball, Sumner A. Kingsley, Alexander D. Lunt, James C. Perham, William H. Ramsdell, Arthur L. Rice, Herbert A. Somerset, Charles H.
Stearns, Joseph C. Taylor and Homer H.
Tracy. Of this number LIGHT recognizes, Bigelow, Eddy, O'Regan, Reinbold, Rogers, Phelps, Power, Warren, Armstrong, Bradford, Dad-mun, Davis, Fitts, Kingsley and Ramsdell as former friends at the High School. Long lives and prosperity to one and all.

Highland Military Academy.

Monday evening the annual declamation contest occurred, eleven cadets competing.
Cadet F. W. Loomis, of Norwich, Conn., took the first prize and Cadet Louis Hoy, of Providence, second. The judges were Dr. Merrick
Bemis, Ephriam Whitman and Webb Donnell.

The graduating exercises took place Tuesday afternoon. The program was as follows:
Prayer by Rev. C. M. Southgate; essay, "Political Science, an important study for American youth," by Cadet R. S. Potter of Hascoag, R. I.; music by City Band; essay, "Connecticut and her Shms," by Cadet Waltesleeve, of Gildersleeve, Conn.; essay, "The incidents and advantages of a military training" by Capt. W. E. Briggs of this city; essay, "Sir
Walter Scott and Old Mortality," by Lieut.
E. L. Orth, of Harrisburg, Pa.; essay, "Architecture, its past, present and future," by 1st
Sergt. G. T. Dodge, of Yarmouth; essay,
"Journalists and Journalism" with valedictory by Cadet J. Learned of New York city; awarding of diplomas by head-master, Joseph A.
Shaw; address to graduating class by Rev. C.
M. Southgate; address by Hon. W. B.
Williamson, ex mayor of Worcester, England; drill and dress parade on the lawn.

Mount Holyoke.

The program for commencement week was:

Bachalaureate Sermon, Dr. Reuen Thomas, D. D.	Sunday, June 14
L.L.D.,	Tuesday, June 16, 8 p.m.
Junior Promenade,	Wednesday, June 17, 10 to 30 a.m.
Class Day Exercises,	Wednesday, June 17, 8 p.m.
Beethoven Concert,	Wednesday, June 17, 3 p.m.
Alumnae Meeting,	Thursday, June 18, 10 to 30 a.m.
Commencement,	Thursday, June 18, 8 p.m.
Orator,	President Merrill E. Gates, L.L.D.
Senior Reception,	Thursday, June 18, 8 p.m.

CLASS DAY.

Miss Jennie M. Campbell,	President
Address,	Miss J. T. Beare, Vice-President
Class Poem,	Miss Lunette Lamprey
Valedictory Oration,	Miss Alice H. Bushee
Ivy Song,	Miss Watins
Planting the Ivy,

To all college students, commencement is the gayest, and yet the saddest time in the year. From Sunday morning until Thursday night there is no time to stop and think, but when Friday morning comes and every one is saying good bye, then something of the meaning of those four years together begins to be felt.

The grounds of the college are particularly beautiful now, and Tuesday evening no lovelier stop could have been found. For their promenade, the Juniors decorated every possible place with lanterns, until the walks were light as noonday. Daisies were banked every where and the buildings were festooned in '91's class colors, yellow and white. And "in and out and round about," promenaded gay couples, or else sought rest, refreshments, or a quiet tete-a-tete in some of the abundant places provided.

The college class-day is much like another.
The concert by the Beethoven Club of Boston was very fine. President Merrill addressed the young ladies in an exceedingly interesting and happy way.

The climax, of course, was the Senior reception Thursday evening. The music, the brilliant rooms, the gay crowds of happy young people, the beautiful gowns, would take too long to describe. It is sufficient to say every one had looked forward to it, and no one was disappointed.

The college opens again Sept. 17, 1891.

Prof. T. E. N. Eaton, Ph. D.

The departure from our midst of this exceedingly amiable citizen and valuable instructor is a matter of regret to all who were fortunate enough to have his acquaintance. At the same time, there is no one who knew the condition of his health who does not rejoice that he is able to find rest and relief in his California home. This country, so long the El Dorado, has become a veritable god-send to him who needs constant and genial air.

It was in 1872 that our professor took up his abode in this city and entered upon his duties at the Institute. From that date to his late resignation, barring one year 1888-9, spent in California, he has been regularly at his post. While he had the interests of the school very much at heart he, nevertheless, found time to be a patriotic citizen and a zealous attendant at his church.

He was always at the Ward One Republican Caucuses and at the regular ministrations of the Union church, unless kept away by illness or absence from the city. In a word, he set an example, for eighteen years, of thorough uprightness, promptness and scholarship.

The son of a Congregationalist minister, he was born, in Clinton, Mass. Thence the family removed to Henneker, N. H., where his boyhood was passed and where he was prepared for college, getting the most of his instruction from home sources. Entering Amherst college, he was graduated in 1868, being a contemporary, for awhile, of Professors Kimball and Smith, though not in their classes. He was in the rank division and took honors in mathematics. His first essay in teaching was in the West in Indiana and, coming back to New England, he taught in the Lawrence Academy in Groton. From the latter place, he came to this city. His home with us was at 26 Boynton Street, where he was as happy as the conditions of his health would permit. His excellent wife fully supplemented his efforts for the good of the Polytechnic. They have only two children, Grace and George. Both entered the High school, Grace finally leaving the same on account of ill health and George to enter the "Tech" in which he is now an apprentice.

These facts, perhaps, give the bare outline of Prof. Eaton's years of life in Worcester; but they do not begin to express the hours of devotion to his duties. As a teacher, he was universally respected and appreciated. As a man and a Christian, few stood higher in the esteem of those who knew him. He had the spirit of uncomplaining application to the work in hand and the recitations conducted by him were interesting and thorough. His department was that of Mathematics and if "Tech" boys, phonetically using the initials, T. E. N. E. did sometimes speak of him as "Professor Tenny" they meant no disrespect. On the contrary, a school and college nickname is, as a rule, rather an indication of affection. Wherever the teacher could be found, he was ready to aid the seeker. This fact gave him a very hearty affection among the young men of the Institute. The last number of the W P I contains a very fitting tribute to the worth of the departing teacher and from it we learn of the fervor of his parting prayer and of the spirit with which the boys sang, "Homeward Bound."

On his severing his connection with the school, he was presented by the Junior class with several elegant sets of books including Bancroft's and Parkman's works and the young men also fully expressed their regret at his going and their affection for him in very timely resolutions.

The new home is Redlands in Southern California. At his level the orange flourishes. A few miles away, up the mountain side, is found the vegetation of the Temperate or New England climate. Further still, at a greater elevation, one may come to almost Arctic characteristics. Here then amid orange groves, our Professor, with wife and daughter, will rest and recuperate and will be idle for a little while. All his friends wish for him an early finding of that for which he seeks the Pacific slope—viz., health. He will have lots of Worcester callers in the years to come.

Monadnock.

A pleasurable party representing newspapers and journals of Worcester were relieved from the regular routine of duty on Monday and Tuesday of this week by a trip to Mount Monadnock. Plans for the occasion were conceived by John Gilman, the well known real estate agent. The Fitchburg railroad, Heath and Lakin's coaches, running from Jaffrey, N. H., to the Monadnock Mountain House, Goodrich's stage coach from Proctor's Hotel to Troy, conveyed the party from point to point, while Hotel Winchendon, Cutter's Hotel, Monadnock Mountain House and Proctor's Hotel left nothing undone by way of supplying the wants of the inner man.

A start was made from the Union station Monday, at noon, arriving at Winchendon at 2 p.m., where a sumptuous dinner awaited us at Hotel Winchendon, after which the two ladies of the party were given a carriage drive, accompanied by the landlord's wife, through the principal streets to all points of interest. During our ride we learned that Winchendon, like many places of greater note had its benefactor. The late Ephraim Murdock gave the town its Public Library, the Unitarian Church his elegant homestead for a parsonage and endowed a High School called the Murdock School for the benefit of generations yet to come, leaving funds sufficient for its support, enlargement and future needs. The cost of the building was one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars and its appointments are of the finest and most approved.

Dr. Russell's retreat for the insane, The Highland, a very homelike institution, is situated on the brow of the hill overlooking the town. Returning to the depot we took train to East Jaffrey and thence by stage to Jaffrey where we had an appetizing supper at Cutter's Hotel. At 7 p.m., we again took the stage for Mountain House, where we remained all night. Late in the evening we had a fine view from the hotel piazza of the burning of the Clipper Mowing Machine works not far away over the base of the mountain. We started early in the morning to see the god of day rise from his eastern couch and after a toilsome journey up the side of the mountain with faces often prone toward Mother Earth successfully gained the topmost peak of the grand old monarch and saw the sun's first rays kiss his hoary head.

We mentally compared our journey up the mountain to the journey of life, assistance and aid being alike welcome, but to accomplish the end in view, we must depend entirely on our own efforts and energies.

When the time came for our descent we were almost frightened to look down the precipitous ways we had come, looking long and earnestly for some easier way to return; finding none we tremblingly started on our downward way. Our shoes worn smooth from climbing were treacherous enough to suit the most daring spirit of an Alpine hunter and after much slipping, stumbling and falling, we arrived at the hotel footsore and weary, without serious mishap and yet quite elated with our success. After breakfast and a rest we again started on foot down the hill, for we were 2200 feet above tide water, toward Proctor's Hotel; the residents call the distance one mile—we thought it five, arriving there in prime condition to enjoy its cool spring water, shady lawn and menu that was unsurpassed.

Reluctantly we bade the genial Proctor and matron good bye and took Goodrich's stage coach to Troy, where the train received us which bore us on our homeward way, arriving in Worcester at 5.30 p.m., having enjoyed one of life's pleasantest outings.

House Warming.

The most surprised people in Worcester, last Thursday night, were George C. Blanchard and wife in their new home on Salisbury street. Mr. Blanchard has been for years, the popular market man at 218 Main Street and having finished within the year his elegant house and barn, his friends decided to make him a visit. A large omnibus, well filled, left the city Hall at 8 p. m. Many private carriages conveyed others, so that, in all, one hundred and twenty people were present, yet so capacious is the house, it did not seem crowded in the least. Ice cream had been smuggled into the house and a piano had been sent up. Provisions were brought and Marcy's orchestra dispensed excellent music for dancing which was kept up until after midnight in the carriage house. Every one admired the finished character of the edifice and its adornments. Throughout, everything has been done in a very thorough manner. The billiard room, opening out of the parlor, was very popular among the young men of the party. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Bryden, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lewis Ellsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Montague, Mrs. Morse, Mr. John E. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bennett, Messrs. H. C. Taylor, Edmund C. Barton, A. S. Roe, John T. Bartlett, Pliny Moore, Philander Sears, Edward Wheeler and many other neighbors and friends from Northville and the immediate vicinity.

The affair was largely the outcome of plans by Elroy Foster, E. Desautell and Fred Hubbard. Of course the boys in the market were in it and they presented their employer with an elegant ice pitcher; while other friends raised a purse which Ex-Alderman Ellsworth presented. Mr. Blanchard fittingly responded though he said the speech he had been thinking up during the evening to greet his friends with was hardly the one to make in receiving a gift. Both givers and receivers were pleased and happy.

Worcester Veterans.

CALEB WALL,

Our Veteran Newspaper Man.

Mr. Wall's lineage is American for generations. This line of Wall has been making for many years and in its composition are found some of the very best materials in our nation. His great grandfather, Wm. Wall, came from Upton, Devonshire, England, and settled on Prudence Island, Narraganset Bay, where his son Thomas was born in 1725. The latter's wife was Patience Arnold and they settled in Smithfield which borders our own State, though the home was in that part of the town, which afterwards became Woonsocket. Here Caleb Wall 1st was born June 9, 1765; but it was not till September 5, 1807 that he was married, in Leicester, to Sarah, daughter of Moses and Elizabeth (Southwick) Farnum of Uxbridge. She was born April 4, 1780. Moses Farnum was a noted Quaker preacher, son of Moses, a Quaker, and grandson of John Farnum who had come from Andover, Mass., in 1707, to that part of Mendon, that is now called Uxbridge. He was one of the town board at its organization and was descended from John Farnum, who was one of the Andover beginners more than two hundred and fifty years ago. Elizabeth Southwick was the first in direct descent from Lawrence and Cassandra Southwick of Salem.

The Arnold's with whom Thomas Wall married were among the nobility of Rhode Island and one of their patents is the fact that for religious opinions their ancestor, Thomas, was driven from Massachusetts. In fact when Caleb Wall recounts the names of those whom persecution compelled to leave the old Bay State, he opens a very long and interesting chapter.

The first Caleb Wall went to Greenville, Leicester, in 1798 and bought from the Green family, their original estate including the mill privilege of Capt. Samuel Green, one of the first settlers in Leicester. On this privilege, had been constructed a saw and grist mill and also a scythe factory, all of which, Mr. Wall managed from 1798 to 1832, he building the scythe factory himself.

Previous to this in 1791 or thereabouts, Mr. Wall had come to Worcester and worked at blacksmithing for David Curtis, grandfather of the distinguished George W. Curtis of New York City. He boarded with Mr. Curtis, whose shop was on the south-west corner of Market and Union Streets. Mr. Wall made there some of the iron chases that Isaiah Thomas used in his printing.

In 1836, the family moved to Worcester and lived for some years on the corner of Front and Vine Streets, where Mr. Wall died; his widow's final residence was on Main, a little north of Wellington Street. The elder Wall died Jan. 29, 1846 and was buried in Greenville. His wife survived till Sept 10, 1853. In 1843, Mr. Warner, an artist, was a member of the family and one night noting the old gentleman in his favorite attitude while reading his bible, an Isaiah Thomas, 1802, still owned by his son Caleb, with pencil he quickly sketched his outlines. After so many years, this still survives and only recently, Mrs. Gray of Maple Street enlarged it with crayon to almost life size, a valuable reminder to his loyal son. There were seven children in this family. Thomas, the eldest, learned his father's trade and went to Ohio, where he was making edged tools. He died in Cincinnati December 31, 1860. James H. Wall, well known in this city was by trade a shoemaker, but in recent years, has dealt in real estate. Born in 1810, he married in 1831, Mary Ann, daughter of Benjamin R., and Elizabeth (Davenport) Davis. His is still a prominent figure in our midst. Two children died in infancy. Joseph J. was a printer in this city, once a foreman in the Spy office. He died in 1842. Then came Caleb Arnold and last the only daughter Sarah Elizabeth born Feb. 19, 1825, a reformer of the most decided type. She is now a resident of Washington. Orange Grove, a tale forefathers of the hamlet. From August, 1833 to the Spring of 1837, he had the advantages of the school maintained by the yearly meeting of the New England Friends, now called the Friends School of Providence and one of the very best in the country.

April 17, 1837, young Caleb Wall began what proved to be his life long work in taking his place in the Spy office, then under the direction of John Milton Earle. Fifty years afterward the semi centennial of the event was fittingly celebrated at the Lincoln House, where the best and wisest in Worcester assembled to do him honor. He very early began to contribute to the columns of the paper, having very decided opinions on the subjects then agitating the public mind. Slavery discussion began then, followed by the Annexation of Texas, the Mexican War, Repeal of

CALEB A. WALL.

Lawrence, Photographer.

of the Connecticut, is a story of her writing. Nearly all these children were radicals and reformers. They were believers in all systems having for their object the making of mankind better and happier and it is not too much to say that they have contributed no little to the advancement of the car of progress.

Caleb A. Wall,

was born June 11, 1820, and he had his first taste of the school teacher in the old red school house once standing on the corner of the road leaning by the Baptist church to the town parsonage, and among his teachers was the late Prof. Samuel Stillman Green of Brown University, who died in 1883. In the winter of 1833-4 he attended a school kept in Mulberry Grove, in the north part of the town, then the Quaker village, where was the old Friends Meeting House and in whose enclosure, lie so many rustic the Missouri Compromise, Fugitive Slave Bill, Kansas and Nebraska matters, trial by jury, tariff, etc. On all these questions, Mr. Wall had opinions of his own and he expressed them. From August 1855 to December 1858, he was practically editor of the paper and during the period was the financial backer of the concern, sinking $3000 in raising money to carry it on till the sale in 1858 to Foss & Farnum. John D. Baldwin purchased the plant in March 1859.

When Mr. Wall entered the Spy office, it had just been removed from the Dr. Barnard block, north of George Street, to the South end of the second and third story of the Brinley Block, then just erected. In June 1844, Mr. Wall left the Spy with Mr. Albert Tyler, now of Oxford to start the Barre Patriot. Here he remained a year and a half. Returning to the Spy he has continued there to the present time save a hiatus of two years during the War when he published the Worcester Daily Transcript of which he was proprietor, editor and reporter. This, he sold January 1st, 1866, to the predecessors of the present proprietors of the Evening Gazette.

In politics, Mr. Wall advocates that phase of Republicanism on which the party was formed, viz: the protection of human rights irrespective of color, at the ballot box and every where, and for the advancement of much needed reforms. He would give these reforms the leading place in the platform of the party, before the tariff or other more material interests, thus, he would have made the elections and education bills, so eloquently pleaded for in the last Congress by Senator Hoar, the watchwords of Republican orthodoxy rather than relegated them to the rear of the monetary issues at the bidding of the silver gamblers of the west.

Mr. Wall was married June 4, 1869 to Ellen, daughter of James and Jane (Stevens) Tucker born in Bridgeport, England, and for many years their home was in the little house immediately opposite the High School. Here Mr. Wall became well known to the long line of young people who for more than forty years have been climbing the hill. It is more than probable that he could not call all of them by name; but the High School boy who does not know Caleb Wall is yet to be found. If in school boy sportiveness a stray ball now and then, found its way over the wall and into the yard it was not because the lads thought any less of the dweller there. The new home on Pleasant Street, No. 298, into which the family moved last fall must seem rather lonesome without the sound of the children. LIGHT more than half suspects that this was the chief cause of the severe cold from which our friend suffered last winter. It will take a whole season to fully acclimatize him.

All this as to antecedents and family history. Now as to the man himself, who, beyond his seventy-first birthday, is still actively engaged in looking up Worcester news. "Actively" is used knowingly, for Mr. Wall never undertakes anything that he does not rush. He is quick and alert. In the Spy office, he has long been an authority on local history and biography, in fact the final authority.

In this line of work, he has carefully studied the early history of the town and from time to time, has given very entertaining addresses before various clubs and organizations, the most of which have been put forth in pamphlet form. They are rich in local notes and genealogical data. Of Quaker parentage, it is not strange that Mr. Wall should be a member of that body of excellent christians nor that he should, occasionally, wax eloquent as he recalls the injustice and persecutions, to which in the remote days his ancestors were subjected. One of his most valuable pamphlets is an account of The Puritans versus the Quakers, read before the Society of Antiquity. In it are embodied many facts of undying interest.

Mr. Wall's ideal among men was that Joseph Sturge whose portrait hangs in Whittier's study and about whom, dead, the poet wrote:

"This faith and works, like streams that intermingle,
In the same channel ran.
The crystal clearness of one eye kept single Shamed all the frauds of man."

No one will deny that our Veteran has chosen an excellent model.

Mr. Wall's greatest work is his "Reminiscences of Worcester" published in 1877. Already it is ranged along side of Lincoln and Hersey in all well equipped Worcester libraries. He contemplates, at no distant day, another volume which shall include still more Worcester data. No Worcester resident ever so merited the title which Sir. Walter Scott gave to one of his novels, "Old Mortality." Mr. Wall has done an invaluable service to this city and surrounding towns in his life long interest and labors. His impulsive manner, his quick speech are as well known as the form which is almost sure to be seen in every public meeting. The Spy without Caleb Wall would not be the Spy. at least so many readers think.

At the semi-centennial, in 1887, the poem of the occasion was written by Mr. John H. Jewett of the Gazette, from which the following lines are extracted.

"What Caleb remembers would make quite a store
Of family recipes, guides to explore
The art of right living; a digest of Time
For statesmen, to chew on, for scribblers to rhyme
And wring nutrition:—in a word we might say
The Yesterday's viands warmed up for today."

Dr. Merriman of Central Church is about starting for his summer home in North Conway, N. H.

The third of the Demorest Medal Prize Speaking contests took place in Association Hall, Tuesday evening. The program was as follows: Song "Fly Away Birdeling," Abt, Cecilia quartet, "The Martyred Mother," Florice Taylor; "The Two Fires," Vida M. Newton; The Bugle is Calling," May Wilson; vocal solo by Mrs. A. E. Hill; "Not Dead, Nor Dying," Hannah C. Simmons; music by the Cecilia quartet; "The Horrors of the Liquor Traffic," Elizabeth Kneeland; "The English Sparrow Must Go" Mabel Jenkins; music by the Cecilia quartet; "Our National Curse," J. J. Shea; "A Voice from the Poor House," Corinna Reubin.

Mr. Arthur Templeton was entered but could not compete on account of illness.

The first prize, a large silver medal was awarded Mr. Shea, the second a smaller silver medal, Miss Mabelle Jenkins received. Miss Simmons received honorable mention. Of the remainder Miss Taylor was by far the best. The judges were H. L. Gale, J. F. Kyes and W. H. Bartlett.

At the Davis Art Co's store on Pearl street there is on exhibition a magnificent bust of Abraham Lincoln. It is from life sittings and is from the chisel of Leonard W. Volk, the distinguished Chicago artist. There should be a crowd of visitors to see this representation of one of the greatest of Americans. It is absolutely life-like. The original marble figure was first shown in 1867 at the Paris Exhibition when Mrs. Lincoln first saw it. So effected was she, at the sight, she cast her arms about it declaring it the most perfect representation of her husband ever made. Mr. Robert T. Lincoln, likewise, expressed himself as highly pleased with the figure. Just step into the store and see this beautiful reminder of the Great Emancipation.

Boston Store.

Established 1870.

Sole Agency { Centemeri Gloves,
Butterick's Paper Patterns,
E. C. Burt's Shoes,
Foster Kid Gloves.

It has been previously announced that the new Denholm & McKay Company would discontinue the large wholesale business that was carried on by their predecessors, Messrs. Denholm & McKay, and would give their entire attention exclusively to retail trade.

In accordance with this decision the large wholesale stock of Dry Goods, etc., in the Boston Store at the decease of the late W. A. Denholm was sold at retail in the early part of this season.

Under force of circumstances, it now becomes necessary to still further carry out this decision, which is to be done by closing up one of the branch stores, thus cancelling a large wholesale account that is now upon our books.

This branch store is in Gardner and has been run under the name of The Boston Store, J. T. Kessel & Co. proprietors.

This store has just been closed; the stock is now being moved to the Boston Store, Worcester.

We shall not mix it with our own Worcester stock; but sell it at once for prices that would be impossible under any other circumstances.

The Gardner stock is of Dry Goods, Fancy Goods, etc. It will be offered on Monday morning, June 22.

It is too early to give particulars in this paper; so see the Worcester Sunday papers for full news of the bargains that will be offered.

As this stock will not be mixed with ours, no goods can be exchanged after being once bought; we guess you'll not want to change, for we'll make the prices too low.

DENHOLM & MCKAY COMPANY.

WORCESTER POLYTECHNIC.

Examinations for admission to the Worcester Polytechnic Institute will be held at the Institute, Boynton Hall, on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 23 and 24, beginning at 8 a.m.

Amateur Sports.

That was a very fitting opening of the Worcester Athletic Club's new grounds at Lake View last Saturday afternoon. It was very proper that the first athletic games held there should be the first annual championship meeting of the New England Association Amateur Athletic Union. All the conditions were favorable for a very successful afternoon's sport. The track and grounds were in splendid condition, the weather was fine, though perhaps a little too warm, and the list of entries indicated that the contests would be close and exciting. The attendance was not quite as large as was expected but those who did see the sports were enthusiastic in their praise of the grounds, the games, the management, in fact, of everything. A noticeable feature was the large number of ladies present.

The games committee, of which Harry Adams of this city was chairman, did a vast amount of work for several weeks before the games and the result was shown in their success.

The events, starters and winners were as follows:

100-YARDS DASH—1st heat: Starters, J. J. Donahue, W. A. C.; A. French and O. W. Shead, B. A. A.: winner, Shead; second, Donahue; third, French; time 10 3/5 seconds. 2nd heat: Starters—W. L. Thompson, B. A. A.; H. C. Ide, W. A. C.; F. L. Andrews, F. R. Y. M. C. A.: winner, Thompson; second, Ide; third, Andrews; time 10 3/5 seconds. Final heat: Starters—first and seconds in trials: winner, Thompson; second, Donahue; third, Shead; time 10 2/5 seconds.

ONE MILE WALK—Starters—R. S. Hale, B. A. A.; C. B. Williams, I. A. A.; W. A. Beaudette and A. L. Jerome, W. A. C.: winner, Hale; second, Jerome; third, Beaudette; time 7 minutes 5 seconds.

120 YARDS HURDLE RACE—Starters—F. W. Lord, M. I. T.; J. Crane, Jr., and P. J. Finneran, B. A. A.; E. C. Potter, W. A. C.: winner, Finneran; second, Crane; third, Potter; time 17 1/5 seconds.

440-YARDS RUN—Starters—S. A. Coombs, T. A. C.; W. T. S. Jackson, W. A. C.; S. G. Wells and S. V. R. Crosby, B. A. A.: winner, Wells; second, Coombs; third, Crosby; time, 51 seconds.

TWO MILE BICYCLE RACE—Starters—F. S. Johnson and C. A. Fenner, W. A. C.; J. J. Clark, and T. L. Connelly, T. A. C.; G. F. Taylor, L. A. W. and H. A. A.: winner, Taylor; second, Clark; third, Connelly; time, 6 minutes, 45 1/5 seconds.

ONE MILE RUN—Starters—E. L. White, T. A. C.; J. A. Nichols, B. A. A.; F. H. Ellis, W. A. C.: winner, White; second, Nichols; third, Gallagher; time, 4 minutes, 35 3/5 seconds.

220-YARDS RUN—Starters in 1st heat—G. F. Sanford, N. H. A. C.; S. A. Coombs, T. A. C.; J. J. Donahue, W. A. C.; winner, Coombs; second, Donahue; third, Sanford; time, 22 2/5 seconds. Starters in 2nd heat—A. French and W. L. Thompson, B. A. A.; C. H. Baker, I. A. A.: winner, French; second, Thompson; third, Baker; time 24 2/5 seconds. The starters in final heat were the firsts and seconds in the trials; winner, Thompson; second, Coombs; third, French; time 23 2/5 seconds.

220-YARDS HURDLE RACE.—Starters—F. W. Lord, M. I. T.; P. J. Finneran, B. A. A., E. C. Potter and H. C. Ide, W. A. C.: winner, Finneran; second, Ide; third, Potter, time, 27 1/5 seconds.

THREE MILE WALK.—Starters—R. S. Hale, B. A. A.; W. A. Beaudette, W. A. C.; M. J. Doyle, T. A. C.; A. L. Jerome, W. A. C.: winner, Hale; second, Doyle; third, Jerome; time 25 minutes 13 1/5 seconds.

880-YARDS RUN—Starters—W. T. S. Jackson, W. A. C.; J. F. Moakley, T. A. C.; S. V. R. Crosby, G. L. Batchelder and T. Spencer, B. A. A.: winner, Spencer; second, Batchelder; third, Jackson; time, 2 minutes 1 second.

FIVE MILE RUN.—Starters—E. L. White, and H. G. Hodgkins, T. A. C.; J. A. Nichols, B. A. A.; A. Blake, I. A. A.: winner, Hodgkins, second Nichols; third, Blake; time, 28 minutes, 17 2/5 seconds.

RUNNING HIGH JUMP.—Starters—C. D. Heywood, M. I. T.; J. E. Morse, W. G. Irwin, H. R. Dalton, Jr. and P. J. Finneran, B. A. A.: winner, Heywood; second, Morse; third, Finneran; height 5 ft. 7 in.

PUTTING 16 POUND SHOT.—Starters—P. J. Sheehan, T. A. C.; D. Long and S. H. Nevins, B. A. A.; N. D. Alexander, W. A. C.: winner, Sheehan; second, Alexander; third, Evins; distance 38 ft. 6 in.

RUNNING BROAD JUMP—Starters—O. W. Shead and J. H. Clausen, B. A. A.; E. C. Potter, W. A. C.: winner, Shead; second, Clausen; third, Potter; distance, 20 ft. 10 1/2 inches.

THROWING 16 POUND HAMMER—Starters—D. Long and S. H. Evins, B. A. A.; N. D. Alexander, W. A. C.; J. T. McNeil, T. A. C.: winner, Long; second, Evins; third, McNeil, distance, 106 ft. 9 in.

POLE VAULT—Starters—W. G. Irwin, H. R. Dalton, Jr. and J. Crane, Jr., B. A. A.: winner, Crane; second, Dalton; height, 10 ft. 3 in. Later Crane broke the B. A. A. record by vaulting 10 ft. 6 1/2 in.

THROWING 56 POUND WEIGHT—Starters—P. J. Sheehan, T. A. C.; R. E. Grant, C. B. C.; S. H. Evins and D. Long, B. A. A.; J. T. McNeil, T. A. C.: winner, Long; second, Sheehan; McNeil third; distance, 27 ft. 10 1/2 in.

The Boston Athletic Association secured 12 first prizes, 8 seconds and 6 thirds; the Trimount Athletic Association, 3 firsts, 5 seconds, 3 thirds; the Worcester Athletic Club, 4 seconds and 6 thirds; the League of American Wheelmen, 1 first; the Massachusetts Institute of Technology 1 first; the Chatham Athletic Club 1 third; the Inter-Scholastic Athletic Association, 1 third. The score in the contest for the Loving cup now stands: Jerome, 3; Potter, 3; Donahue, 2; Ide 2; Alexander, 2; Jackson, 1; Beaudette 1.

The officers of the day were: Referee, George B. Morrison, B. A. A.; track judges, Frank E. Heywood, W. A. C., C. O. Wells, N. E. I. C. A. A., George Beals, B. A. A., A. S. Gray, F. R. Y. M. C. A.; field judges, T. F. Meany, B. A. A., G. L. Davis, M. A. C., Jinx Taylor, B. A. A., R. S. McDonald; timers, F. M. Wood, B. A. A., J. G. Lathrop, Cambridge, Mass., John Graham, B. A. A.

starter, H. S. Cornish B. A. A.; judge of walking, John Graham; clerk of course, H. A. Adams, W. A. C.; assistant clerk of course, E. G. Penniman, W. A. C.; scorers, C. M. Lincoln, B. A. A. and James W. Allen, W. A. C.; inspectors, G. F. Sanford, N. H. A. C., P. B. Manchester, B. A. A., H. H. Sibley, W. A. C., C. E. Putnam, W. A. C.; announcer, Eugene Buckley, B. A. A.; marshal, Edwin Brown, W. A. C.; assistant marshal, A. D. Peck, Jr. B. A. A.

The members of the New England Association are the Boston Athletic Association of Boston, Chatham Athletic Club of Worcester, Crescent Boat Club of Boston, Father Scully Athletic Association of Cambridge, Fall River Y. M. C. A., Inter-Scholastic Athletic Association, Massachusetts Institute of Technology Athletic Association, Melrose Athletic Club of Melrose, New Haven Athletic Club, New England Skating Association, Reading Athletic Club of Reading, Riverside Boat Club of Cambridge, Trimount Athletic Club of Boston, Wachusett Boat Club of Worcester and the Worcester Athletic Club.

In last week's paper, in speaking of the records broken this season, it should have been stated that the new world's record for throwing the sixteen pound hammer, made by J. R. Finlay of Harvard University, is for throwing the hammer from a stand. For throwing the hammer with a run, the record was, until last Saturday, 133 feet, 8 inches, made by J. S. Mitchell, Oct. 10, 1890. Saturday, Mitchell, at the spring games of the New York Athletic Club broke his own world's record by throwing the hammer 133 feet, 10 1/2 inches.

A meeting of the Winslow Tennis club was held last night and several new members were admitted. The contract for the erection of the new club house has been awarded and work will commence at once. It will be a one story building 15 by 10 feet with a piazza. It will be located in about the center of the west side of the grounds. It is proposed to hold a tournament July 4, when the building will be dedicated. The two new grass courts will be ready for use on that day.

The annual meeting of the Worcester Tennis Club was held Thursday evening at the residence of the president, Harry W. Smith, 30 Elm street. There was a small attendance. It was voted to put the grounds in condition for work at once. D. Osborne Earle was elected president and Charles B. Earle, secretary and treasurer. The two with Pelham W. Lincoln, constitute the executive committee. It was voted to cut down the fee to $5 and to hold city and county tournaments.

The following extract, concerning a well-known local physician, appeared in a New York paper of June 11:

"Dr. J. P. Rand of Worcester, in Massachusetts, writes to the Medical Record on 'the diagnostic value of vocal fremitus in pneumonia.' To laymen the title of his article will be somewhat mysterious, but when he goes on and says that about a year ago he had to deal with 'a case of pneumonia following la grippe,' and found that 'the percussion note was dull and almost flat,' he is perfectly likely to be comprehended. When one suffers from la grippe everything about him is dull and flat."—New York Recorder.

The worst evils are those that never arrive.

William B. Earle,

Who died in Leicester, June 6th, 1891, at the age of eighty-eight years and six months, was a son of Pliny and Patience (Luffum) Earle, leading members of the Society of Friends in that town in the last century and the early part of this. Among their other sons were the late John Milton Earle, long the editor of the Worcester Spy; Thomas Earle, a well known lawyer and writer of Philadelphia; and Dr. Pliny Earle, for some thirty years the superintendent of the State Lunatic Asylum at Northampton, and still residing in that town. Among the daughters were the first Mrs. Anthony Chase, and the first Mrs. Charles Hadwen, both of Worcester, and Mrs. William Hacker of Philadelphia.

The father was one of the first manufacturers of card-clothing in the country, and his son William, of whom we are now speaking, engaged in the same business, and made important improvements in the curious and intricate machine by which card-teeth are set. He was a resident of Leicester until about fifty years of age; afterwards of Needham and of Wilmington in this state. At the centenary celebration of Leicester Academy, September, 1884, Mr. Earle came from Needham to attend it, without any escort or assistant, though completely blind, trusting wholly, and not in vain, to the help and guidance of those whom he should meet. Since his wife's death, a few years since, Leicester has again been his home; where his last years have been most kindly and faithfully cared for. At his funeral, which took place on Tuesday, June 9th, at the house of Mr. Thomas Southwick, Rev. Samuel May of Leicester spoke, in substance as follows:

"I became acquainted with Mr. Earle in or near the year 1838 through our mutual interest in the Anti-Slavery movement, at that time 'the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord—Make His paths straight.' It was indeed a cry in the wilderness, such was either the hostility to it or the indifference; and the paths of this nation were exceedingly crooked and few sought to know, sincerely and above all things, what 'the way of the Lord' was, and what God would have this nation to do. Without any pretension of holding a specially religious position, but standing only on the plain level of his manhood and honest citizenship, Mr. Earle clearly saw the guilt, the deep and flagrant guiltiness, of this nation, of its law-makers and rulers, and of its prominent religious authorities and teachers. He saw this plainly, because his eye was single; and we know what teacher he was who declared the necessity of this, if we would not walk in darkness but in light. His vision was not obscured or distorted by personal or pecuniary interest, nor by sectarian affiliations, often a stronger force to lead men astray than any merely personal motive. And seeing so clearly this vast national wrong, he had too much self respect, I will say also he had too much real reverence for the truth of God and too deep a sense of his human obligations and duties, to smother in silence, as so many did, the truth he saw so plainly and felt so deeply.

"And he was not a forgetful hearer of the word but a doer also. He essayed to gather in association the scattered anti-slavery sentiment about him. The formation of the Anti-Slavery Society of this town was mainly owing to his exertions and direct labors. He was among the earliest members of the Anti-Slavery Society in the Southern division of Worcester County; and was a working member and officer in both societies from their beginning. It fell to him to draw up the constitution and laws of the Worcester County South Anti-Slavery Society, which was accepted by the society, with little, if any, change. He was influential in enlarging its membership, for he understood the ground well, and presented it with that plainness and sincerity, which were effective with plain and unprejudiced people. He was without ostentation; his manner and language those of one of genuine convictions, of one whose desire, above all things, was to subserve the cause of freedom, of human justice, and of his native land. No one who knew him well could have any doubt as to this; and knowing him long and intimately as I did, I deem it a duty to pay this tribute to his memory. I held him, as a man and a citizen, in high respect.

"He was a rather extensive reader and a thoughtful one, a lover of literature, and a good judge of it. He was a warm admirer of Mr. Whittier's writings and of course of his anti-slavery poems. I recall his great satisfaction in Mr. Whittier's answer to the 'Pastoral Letter' of the Massachusetts Congregational ministers. He expressed this to me on one occasion, and recited with much effect a considerable part of the poem.

"The entire loss of his eyesight, which came upon him some thirty years ago, a loss and privation which words can never adequately express, was borne by him with a patient equanimity in which none could have excelled him.

"Mr. Earle had great natural strength of intellect. I do not refer now to his mechanical and inventive power, though in this respect he possessed unusual ability; but I speak of his generally excellent grasp and understanding of every subject which interested him; of the solid and sensible conclusions he formed; and of his intelligent manner of presenting them. His knowledge of our political history and our affairs as a nation was broad and had a precision which gave it value. He was discriminating and pronounced in his judgments of public measures and men. He did not often speak in public, and made no claim to oratory; but, when he spoke, his word was weighty, terse and to the point. Particularly in writing; he manifested these qualities of mental power, expressing his mind in forcible, often witty language. And to this he added the higher quality of conscience and faithful courage to his convictions. Many a professed teacher of religion was, and is, inferior to him, in these indispensable qualities of clear moral insight, and of manly, honorable moral courage."

Stephen C. Earle, the architect is to have a new office in the Clark Block on the same floor with the rooms now used by him. His new quarters will be those formerly held by the Bullard Art Company. Mr. Clellan W. Fisher of Burlington, Vermont, will soon enter into partnership with Mr. Earle.

The Curse of the Day.

'Tis the curse of the day, I sing in my lay
This great disregard for the poor of our clan—
Where gold in our sight, makes greater our right
And the owner by far a much better man.

'Tis the curse of the day, in this land of fair play,
Where our secrecy pulls make justice a bear—
And criminals are gay, through secrecy sway
While of vapor our laws have more than their share.

'Tis the curse of the day, let it be where it may
When poor little children are slaved for our gain,
'Tis a curse and a sin that our greed takes to win
When money with us has so potent an aim.

'Tis the curse of the day I think you will say
This merely "don't care" for the lives we destroy;
And linemen may roast, at the top of each post
When a company's money can others employ.

'Tis the curse of the day, now think as you may
When our fast gaining wealth is held by the few—
And our saints must discern, while ministers learn
That the Kingdom of Heaven is lost to our view.
—Herr Cherrytree.

From Bowen's History of Massachusetts in the War.

"In the fighting of the 25th of March, when the Confederates temporarily captured Fort Stedman, the Fifty-Seventh had an honorable part. It had first relieved the fifty-ninth in the lines to the right of the fort, so that when the Union lines were broken the position of the regiment was flanked, and it was obliged to fall back. Reaching a favorable position, it held its ground till assistance came when a heroic advance was made and the works and its camp were regained after a stubborn resistance in which Sergeant Major Pinkham of the Fifty-seventh captured the flag of the Fifty-seventh North Carolina Regiment."

This Sergeant Major Pinkham is the present commander of Post 10, G. A. R., and a member of the firm of Pinkham and Willis, one of the men who won distinction during the war but who quietly returned to the pursuits of peace when the fighting was over.

A Hard Fight.

Comrade Rev. Charles E. Simmons, after several years of total blindness, only a few weeks since, underwent an operation in Boston which restored to him his sight. But the enemy pursued him and again he goes under the knife and one eye is entirely removed, Wednesday, the 10th, in the hopes that the other one may be preserved. There are many friends in Worcester and vicinity who hope that the light of day be his so long as life remaineth.

As Others See Us.

"Dear Sir:

I enclose express order for two ($2.00) dollars, for which please send receipted bill for one year's subscription to LIGHT, to be sent to the address below.

I was born and brought up in Worcester, and lived there until 1873. From your weekly summary of events, I can keep a little track of the old residents whom I used to know.

Chicago, Ill."

Indications of moving are seen in the resignation of Iver Johnson from the Presidency of the Equity Co-operative bank. He goes to Fitchburg and so gets disentangled from Worcester connections.

Books and Bookmen.

Henry Holt says in the Forum: "The book-buying habit has fallen off; the pamphlet-buying habit has taken its place. The pamphlet soon finds its way to the waste-basket, which, in many cases, it should never have risen above, and the permanent possessions of the household are less than they ought to be by one book. The average American citizen's source of intellectual pabulum is now the news stand. It and the toy shop with piles of pamphlet 'libraries' at one end have too generally succeeded the bookstore. The old habit of dropping into the bookstore and buying the latest good thing—latest in form or matter—is now indulged in by few people and in relatively few places."

Massachusetts in the War 1861-1865, by James L. Bowen, with an Introduction by Hon. Henry S. Dawes, U. S. Senator from Massachusetts. Springfield, Mass. Bowen & Son. $4.

The old Bay State has had three histories, thus far, of her part in the Rebellion all bearing similar titles. That, however, of Schonler, who was Adjutant General during the war, has rather to do with the people at home, with that portion of the Commonwealth which paid the bills and took care of families while fathers, sons and brothers were in the fray. Thus in two volumes, we have the record by towns of what the people did. Again Rev. P. C. Headley has written a history of Massachusetts in the Rebellion but this came out so soon after the close of the war that data could not be so exact and complete as at a later period when almost twenty-five years had elapsed since the return of the last Massachusetts Regiment. Mr. Bowen has modeled his book somewhat after the order of Headley's, though of course he deals with facts from a later standpoint, and has adopted a wider scope. Further, he has the merit as a writer, of having been himself an actor in the strife, for he wears a Sixth Corps badge on which may be read the numerals 57. While the introduction by Senator Dawes may not add to the work in a military sense, it serves to very pleasantly launch the venture and gives the Senator a chance to quote Representative Breckenridge of Kentucky, who in a Congressional speech unconditionally ascribed to Massachusetts the national leadership.

In this book are more than 1,000 pages, the major portion being devoted to a history of the troops by regiments, or companies where the latter were unattached. Then there is a brief biographical sketch of every officer who attained the rank or brevet rank of Brigadier and Major General. In this number we find five Worcester men, viz., Devens, Lincoln, Pickett, Sprague and Ward.

Preliminary chapters deal with the condition of affairs in the Commonwealth at the outbreak of the Rebellion. We have a brief description of Governor Andrew and the masterly way in which he seized the situation. Then follow in order all the regiments from the First to the skeleton organization of the Sixty-second Infantry, the Heavy Artillery bodies, the five Cavalry regiments, the sixteen Light Batteries, the regiment of Sharpshooters, the Third Battalion of Rifles and several bodies of unattached companies. Comrade

Bowen does not intend that his book shall take the place of company and regimental histories; but it does give a remarkably clear and concise account of the part borne by the state in the struggle. Many a veteran, having his story of his own particular regiment, would like a resumé of all the other bodies of men that like his went into the fray. Here in reasonable compass he has it. All necessary facts are clearly indicated. The Roster of field and line officers on the mustering of each regiment is given and in the following pages, promotions and changes are indicated. Other states have larger books, but no one has within such limits so much valuable information. Every day increases the value of data like those in this volume. The book is worthy a place in every veteran's home, a source of pride to himself, and a precious legacy to his children. It will serve to settle many a dispute arising as to place and date. Thus far, LIGHT is not aware of any of the writer's statements having been called in question. He has proven himself a strictly careful, painstaking and, above all, an impartial historian. The book may be had of the author in Springfield.

Glimpses of Fifty Year, the Autobiography of an American Woman, written by order of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Introduction by Hannah Whitall Smith. Womans Temperance Publication Association.

This book is not in the trade, nor is it, strictly speaking, a new one for it was published in 1889 and it is presented to purchasers by agents. First and last, it has been in the hands of several agents in this city. At present, the accredited party offering it is Miss Sarah Pellet of North Brookfield who has been here off, and on, since November last. Though she has sold many books the sales have not been what the subject merits. The royal octavo volume of 700 pages is offered at three prices varying according to binding. These rates are $2.75, $3.50 and $4.25. The good women who are trying to sell this book in Massachusetts have a special object over and above that of placing a good work in every house. They desire to secure the gift of $500 promised by George M. Smith, the Boston man, having charge of the sale of the book, he having promised that amount to the W. C. T. U. if the sales of the book amounted to 5,000 copies. As the National Association meets in Boston in November these patriotic women are working with renewed diligence that they may get the prize, needing it on account of the necessary increased outlay.

As to the book itself that you are asked to buy. Do you read? Do you delight in pictures of the past? Do you reflect? Do you have any aspirations towards helping others? Do you ever buy a book? If you answer yes to these questions or to a majority of them, this is the book you need. The motto upon the title page is a sermon in itself, "Nothing makes life dreary but a lack of motive." You may supply your own sermon. Your own might suit you better than the one preached here, but what a text! During Miss Willard's long and active career, we may suppose that she has constantly had this sentiment in mind. Her own name has become a household word in America, a synonym for energy, devotion and success. Her book is peculiar to itself.

LIGHT does not remember another in which there is so much of the writer and yet no trace of arrogance and assumption. Her ancestry, of excellent Massachusetts origin, her girl life in Oberlin, Ohio, and in Wisconsin, her teaching in Evanston, all command our earnest attention, and awaken unflinching interest. The beginning of the Evanston College for women is discussed glowingly. Her career in this institution, her words on the education of girls and her occasional side lights on her contemporaries are worthy of close study. She began the self ruling policy afterwards adopted in Amherst College. There could have been no better college president. Then follow her many miles of world wide travels, but home again her spirit finds occupation in pressing along the temperance movement. How vividly the reader sees every thrilling scene depicted by her! The book is written just as she talks, in a way to hold the reader a listener to the end. The last chapters of the work or perhaps the last third is a graphic account of woman's work for temperance, with such minor reforms as she may have chanced to be interested in. In fine here is a book, loaded with information, teeming with suggestion, charged with inspiration. Old and young will be the better for reading it. They will refer to it again and always with profit. When the agent calls hear her story and give her a pleasant reception. You will never regret it.

Education, June, Frank H. Kasson and Wm. A. Mowry editors, Boston. $3 a year.

The discussions are timely. President Bartlett of Dartmouth takes up the question of shortening the college course and is not in favor of it. The mass of the people agrees with him. Larkin Dunton continues his "Moral Education," really the most important item in education today. "Principles of the Principal" is in the same tone and the reading of that alone is worth the price of the pamphlet. If the head be polluted what must we expect of the stream. The second article on the "Wharton School of Finance and Economy" follows "Early College Presidents as Letter Writers" calls out some entertaining items about Elisha Williams, Thomas Clap, Ezra Stiles, Jeremiah Day and others. "The Educational Value of the Type Writer in Schools" is by Editor Mowry and he enters upon something new in education. His ideas are good and deserve recognition and trial. Editorial as ever, is pertinent and pointed. Foreign notes give a very good view of the work abroad.

The Pansy from D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Mass.

This little magazine is one of the nicest things for the Sunday reading of the children of the household that has ever been published. Its stories are most interesting and all or nearly all have some lesson of good to be gathered from their pages. It is fully illustrated.

Wide Awake is $2.40 a year; 20 cents a number. A specimen (back number) will be sent on receipt of 5 cents. D. Lothrop Company, publishers, Boston.

Good things are as thick as roses in the June Wide Awake; even their titles are an enjoyment, promising so much pleasure to their readers: "This Way went the Lady Mary to Paradise" (story); "A Vermont Boy's Trip to Boston in 1825" (story); "The Pursuit of Hap-pinness" (story); "The Stupid Compadre and the Cunning Comadre" (folk-lore story); "Amanda Jinkum's Burdens" (story); "Five Little Peppers Grown up" (Margaret Sidney's serial); "Marietta's Good Times" (Italian serial); "Miss Matilda Archambeau Van Dorn" (serial); "The Rook Family in England" (article); "A Period of 'Free Coinage'" (article); "The Margaret-Patty Letters" (Mrs. William Clafin's behavior series); "Military Pets" (article); "Figure Drawing for Children" (Miss Rimmer's Art Lessons with prizes); beautiful illustrated poems; pictures, some fine, some funny; four pages of sparkling original anecdotes; "Tangles;" and three pages of letters from the children.

Walter Blackburn Harte, whose article on the drift in Canadian political life toward annexation, which made such a stir when it appeared in the Forum in 1888, has a very timely article in the New England Magazine for July called "A Brief for Continental Unity—A Consideration of the Sentimental Objections to Annexations." The article deals with the recent general elections in the Dominion, and also with the ultra Imperial sentiment which is alleged to exist in Canada by the government press, and such aristocratic writers as the Marquis of Lorne and Sir Charles Tupper, the High Commissioner for Canada in Great Britain. Mr. Harte is eminently un-sentimental, and logical in his reasoning and conclusions, and the unsettled feverish state of the Canadian people certainly seems to support his argument that annexation is both inevitable and imminent. The article will assuredly create considerable discussion, for Mr. Harte has no axe to grind, no political hopes to nourish, and is the most independent of all the writers on Canadian affairs. It is one of the most important articles of the month.

The first number of Volume II of the Outing Weekly Tennis Record for the season of 1891 was published June 13. It is the official organ and bulletin of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association and bears the indorsement of Charles E. Stickney, secretary of that organization. This paper proposes to furnish through the season articles on tennis, with portraits of the leading players, together with reports from the different parts of the country, "Club Events" and personals. The paper is sent free to all who subscribe to Outing. To others the subscription price is one dollar.

American History, Politics, Literature and Finance, by Richard H. Mooney, A. M., principal of the Quinsigamond Grammar School, Worcester, press of Oliver B. Wood, 1891.

Within a compass of 116 pages, Mr. Mooney has compressed a deal of historical matter. There are those who can never learn anything, except in answer to a question. Such people will find this book a veritable boon, for here are 1,000 questions, categorically asked and as directly answered. A beginning is made with the Mound builders and the final answer given in the shape of a quotation from Webster's reply to Hayne. Though it is not so stated it might be said that the first fifty-six questions deal with the period of discovery. The second including the 153d question is colonial. Mr. Mooney does not end his Revolutionary period in so many words with his 240th query; but the resignation of his command by Washington, may be considered the end. If any improvement were to be suggested, it would be the arranging with distinctive periods, for instance those found in the Paragraph History of the United States by Abbott. There can be no question as to the value of Mr. Mooney's book as a mental quickener. Each question ought to suggest a dozen more and in the hands of a competent teacher this will be the case. No one book will contain it all, be it never so large. The work can be found at all the book stores or with the author.

An American Girl in London, by Sarah Jeanette Duncan. Rand, McNally & Co., Chicago.

In this book is set forth the independence of the American girl who for good reasons goes abroad without her parents. She makes friends on the steamer and is much surprised to find, later, that they put titles before their names. She goes first to a relative but the latter is so very stiff and cold that she decides to take care of herself, rather than be taken care of by her distant cousin. Lady Torquillin, her steamer acquaintance, takes her in charge and she sees the city in order and is presented to the Queen, and then, finding that the young man, another steamer friend, has fallen in love with her she abruptly announces her engagement with an American and returns to her native land. The story is well told and some of the situations are funny.

Sweet and Twenty, by Mary Farley Sanborn. Lee & Shepard publishers, Boston.

It is one of the Summer stories that please and help to while away the idle hours. It is a love tale where a young man after taking all that society has to give, goes to a country place and falls heartily in love with a wild flower fresh but charming. A great deal of out door life is described and there are misunderstandings and cross purposes, but all ends well and the principal characters are happily married.

The Open Door, by Blanche Willis Howard, from Houghton Mifflin & Co., Boston.

The chief character of the book is Count Hugo Von Kronfels who has been thrown from a horse and is a permanent invalid. He is thoroughly disheartened and withdraws from all society, but finally through the influence of a stone cutter, he tries to do good to others, and to lighten the burdens of the poor around him. His love will not marry a cripple, but his mother's companion falls in love with him, and through her love he finds an open door to the world again. The Countess and her dog figure largely in the story, she, as a woman, selfish and full of her own pains; the dog, as the pet, whose caprices rule his mistress, and to whose whims all the household must yield.

Scientific American Architects & Builders Supplement for June 1891. Munn & Co., New York. $2.50 a year.

Another tantalizing series of pictures for the home lover who has not, as yet, found the way to make and own his abiding place. Homes at not too high rates are represented in New York City, New Haven, Conn., and in several Pennsylvania places. LIGHT is thankful that the publication does not attempt to describe that abomination of our times the three decker; but allows every man to have a roof of his own. The prices range from $2,000 to $4,000. A favorite style is the colonial and some very clever designs are described.

Phrenological Journal and Science of Health for June Fowler & Wells Co., 775 Broadway, New York, publishers.

Marshal Von Moltke is given the first place in this number. William Black, the novelist, is the subject of a sketch in the series on "Notable People of the Day," Mrs. Wells continues her sketch of Charles Caldwell and the Nicaragua ship canal is described. Prof. Nelson Sizer presents in his department, "Practical Phrenology," some thoughts worthy of consideration on "Religion, Theology, Phrenology" and Professor Dunton contributes an essay on "The Necessity for Moral Education." Articles on health and phrenology, poems, etc., make this an entertaining number.

Dr. G. F. Harwood of this city was recently elected president of the Connecticut Valley Dental Association.

On Friday, June 5, Walter G. Tucker, father of Mrs. J. H. Dally of 70 Sever Street, died in New York City, aged ninety-one years. The funeral took place Monday, June 8, from the Church of the New Jerusalem in that city. The interment was in Evergreen Cemetery.

Samuel D. Waite, who was injured recently, has had his claim paid by General Agent Geo. Y. Lancaster, representing the United States Mutual Accident Association.

Ex-Mayor Hildreth is thinking of Nantucket as a summer home. A most delightful resort. Happy he who can afford it.

Col. E. J. Russell, late Warden of the State prison at Charlestown, has received the appointment of probation officer from Judge Utley. His duty is to temper the wind of justice to the shorn lamb of drunkenness.

J. K. Brown, once the popular boot and shoe dealer on Front Street, now of Providence, was in the city Monday.

During the present week, we've been quite English you know. The Mayor of Worcester England, Mr. Williamson, has done us quite proud. He likes us immensely. Doesn't find anything "beastly," thinks the women "just lovely" and that we are way ahead of the slow jogging Worcester on the other of the "swim." Still he says "The Prince of Wales is all right." "The king can do no wrong" is ingrained in some men's minds. Well Worcester has liked the Mayor ever so much. Future roamers abroad, will be sure to call on him.

Clarence L. Burgess the painstaking and successful superintendent of the Boy's Club will leave the city July 1st, for his summer outing. He deserves a good one and may he get fully changed with vitality for the next campaign.

So it is now Rev. A. Z. Conrad, Ph. D. The University of the city of New York did it. The Old South Pastor is an excellent subject.

Pat.

A Love Story.

BY YENSIE CARLETON.

(Continued from last week.)

When mamma did ask the rest, Ria and Roe said, "of course we will ask the boys, and that settled it as far as their father was concerned. Mrs. Bluebell was requested to write the invitation, but as we have seen, was hindered. Elspeth was perfectly willing to be her mother's substitute, for she liked to write letters, and had few correspondents.

On Monday of Thanksgiving week the letter was sent, and that evening at the tea table, the Bluebells were planning the bill of fare.

"We must have roast turkey and chicken fricassee," said Elspeth.

"And vegetables, especially onions," said Nan. The Bluebells always had onions on Thanksgiving day, and ate them, too.

"Yes and cranberry sauce, and pies. O lots of pies. I want a whole mince pie," said Jacob.

"One would think you never had any pie," laughed Ria.

"And puddings. A suet pudding sure," said papa, smacking his lips, for he was very fond of suet pudding.

"I speak to make the pies," said Ria. Thanksgiving week was vacation.

Elspeth smiled. Ria always spoke to make the pies. But she had never made them since the first time. When pie time came she was always too busy about something else, which was very important; or when they were all made she "didn't think," or she "forgot." Ria always had some good reason for not making the pies.

"We will have angel cake for lunch, please mamma," said Elspeth.

"If we have time to make it," said her mother.

On Wednesday there came a letter to Elspeth from Pat, who said:

DEAR ELFIE: We will come gladly, Joe and I. Thank your mother, please, for the invitation. We shall look forward with pleasure to Thanksgiving; but before we got your letter, we were wondering what we should do with ourselves and the day. We shall "materialize" on Thursday. Yours always,

PAT GRAY.

The "yours always," as she read it, filled Elspeth's soul with joy, until she remembered that it was mere form, and meant nothing—in particular.

She did not know that Pat's heart was with those two words, as he wrote them, and she could not know, surely, that Pat longed for her to understand them as he meant them. If she did not know Pat's thought, neither did he see her face, or read her heart as she read his letter.

After telling her mother the boys were coming, Elspeth put the letter in her pocket, and forty times during the day her hand would slip into that pocket, and she would give the letter a loving pat. (Pat) She was too busy to read it as many times as she wished to do.

Thanksgiving day came, Aunt Nan came, Joe Duncan came, and Pat Gray came. Also the dinner came. A noble dinner, Jacob thought. And snow came, too. Not much. But just enough for morris. Mr. Bluebell always played morris with them on Thanksgiving day, if there was snow enough. On this day they even persuaded mamma and Aunt Nan to play.

Elspeth was as gay as Ria's self, for this day. Pat had never seen her so merry, and he looked with wonder at the usually quiet Elfie. But he liked her so. Yes indeed.

Elspeth's whole heart was in the game. Whatever she did was usually done with all her might. But she did not often show it, as now. Besides she was tired and excited. Only she did not realize it. For the day before had been a hard day, and when night came she had been too tired to sleep. Her sisters had been too busy in the barn, husking with company, and corn, and tag, to help mamma; so Elspie had done too much for any one person. She had never enjoyed morris so much before, and was sorry when they stopped playing which they soon did, for mamma soon tired, and Aunt Nan fell and twisted her ankle just too much to play any more.

So the young people went to the barn and played tag for awhile. Then they played hide and seek.

Ria was the blinder when Pat drew Elspeth with him into a cavern in the hay mow that no one knew. It was close to the outside of the barn, and a dim light came in through a knot-hole, and some cracks.

Pat wished he could see Elspeth better. He forgot they were hiding. He only remembered he was alone with "Elfie."

"Come closer Elfie," he said, "I want to ask you something."

"What is it? she asked. But she did not come nearer.

"I love you, Elfie, I love you," cried Pat. "Do you love me? Say you do, dear," and Pat's hands took her little ones, all rough with the hard work of dinner getting.

Elspeth's heart beat so fast that she could say nothing at first; then leaning against him she told him that she always had loved him. "Oh my darling," cried Pat in a rapture, as he kissed her. "To think that I did not know! But now you shall be mine always." I wonder if there were ever two happier persons than they were, St. Patrick and Elfie!

"I will come tomorrow evening after work, and bring you a ring. Please don't tell till then, Elfie," Pat said, presently.

Elfie promised. "It will be our only secret," she said, and we won't keep it long. I wonder what they will all think!" As she spoke, Elfie shyly kissed him and Pat always remembered her first kiss.

After a long while, which seemed short to them, they heard the voices of the others calling "in free. In free." So they came out of their hiding place, and the game went on for a short space of time.

But Pat and Elfie were not to be the only happy ones on that day; for Joe was bound to speak to Roe. He planned and planned to have her hide with him, but for a long time his plans came to naught; for most of the time when he was not blinder, she was, and if neither were, she would go off alone and hide. At last he followed her to the high scaffold, and there behind stooks of corn stalks, he told her that he loved her.

Roe was surprised into a confession of love. She had not known, before that it was love she had felt for him whom she had always liked.

"We'll just have to tell the rest tonight," Joe said laughingly. "We are so happy they'll know from our faces anyway. And we want the fun of telling, so must hurry."

"That's so," assented Roe.

By the time they were found, it was nearly dark, and they all went into the house.

"We are hungry," they all said.

"Time for angel cake and Elspeth," said Jacob.

"And candy," said Nan, "We'll make taffy."

"Not so. Taffy is no good," said Jacob who did not like it.

"Taffy and angel cake! O ye gods, hear!" cried Ria.

"Who was the angel that made the cake," asked Joe.

"Elspeth," said Roe, "she is our good angel, always."

"Hear, every one," cried Joe. "I am in love with Roe Bluebell, and she with me. If there are no objections we will be engaged. May we, papa Bluebell?" and Joe walked up to pater in a manly way.

"We do not object. In fact we are glad. We all like you, Joe," said papa Bluebell.

"Ho Pat! Wish me joy,"

"I do," said Pat, heartily.

"What are you two doing over there in the corner?" asked Ria, looking at Pat and Elspie eating angel cake together.

"Can't you see," laughed Pat.

But Elfie flushed scarlet. She had not before, blushed half a dozen times in all her life; but now she was flushing with all her heart, and the more she tried not to blush, the redder she grew, until she put both hands over her face, and fled.

"What is the matter? It isn't like Elspie to blush" they said in amazement.

"She is unusually tired," said mother. "She ought not to have worked so hard yesterday." Mothers are so good to find excuses and reasons for things.

So when Elspeth came back with her white face, and eyes shining like stars, they said nothing, only noticed how tired she looked; then turned their attention to games, talk and taffy.

To all days there must come an end. So the time came—at a late hour—when Pat and Joe must leave. Both were very happy; but neither said much on the way into the city.

Elspeth was almost too happy to sleep. Nor did she sleep, until nearly sunrise. Her mother would not allow her to be awakened; and the girls coming into the room, looked at her tired white face, with the lips smiling in her sleep, for her last waking thought had been of Pat.

"She has worked too hard," they said remorsefully. "We must not let it be so any more." Then they went softly out, and set to work heartily. Elspeth slept until dinner time.

That evening Pat came for Elfie to go for a ride.

"Ria is away, and that accounts for it," said Roe eagerly, and none of them suspected the truth.

"Elfie," said Pat, as they drove off, "I have brought the ring. It was my mother's. She gave it to me, her "Saint Patrick" as she always called me, and I was to give it to the woman who was to be my wife. Let me put it on dear, and you may look at it when we get home, and he took the little hand and put on the right finger, the ring that had been his mother's betrothal ring.

"I shall think so much of it for your sake, and for your mother's, my Saint Patrick," said Elfie tenderly.

After an hour's ride they came home, and into the room where Roe was playing "Love's young dream" a piece that she had composed and Elspeth had named.

Pat came in, hand in hand with Elfie, and going straight up to Mr. Bluebell, said:

"May we, please? We cannot help loving one another. You cannot give me anything so dear as this your eldest daughter," and Pat smiled down into Elfie's face, as he spoke.

"Why of course you may," said papa, who was very much surprised, but would not have showed it for the world.

Roe left off her music to listen. "Elspie, Elspie," was all she could say at first, but she hugged her sister, and could not show how pleased she was.

"Pat is nearly as good as Joe," she said finally.

Elspeth was looking at her ring, a dainty gold band, with pearls.

"Pat is quite as good as Joe," she remarked positively. "He is a very pearl among men," she added, the ring reminding her of a simile.

"Yes," she finished, "there is no one like my Saint Patrick."

[The End.]

AN ALMANAC OF 1814.

In the first number of an old manual and Almanac in the writer's possession we find some interesting facts. The book bound in marbled paper was published for the year 1814, (by whom unknown.)

The Almanac compares favorably with those published about that time by Isaiah Thomas and Isaiah Jr. It contains sixty-six pages well filled.

In the preface the editor remarks:

"The Almanac part is on a new and it is trusted, useful plan. Nothing is said respecting foggy, hot, cold, dry or wet weather; not because the author could not guess as well as any other Yankee (for he has examined some of the breast-bones of the finest geese the market has afforded) but because he does not believe such calculations of any other importance than to fill up blank spaces, which might be better occupied."

A tablet of memory is inserted which says: "Jan. 1, 1795, in Worcester County, Mass., not a single person was nor had been confined in goal, either for crime or debt" and (Was it the year previous?)

At the time this almanac made its appearance Caleb Strong was Governor, with a salary of $2,666 66 per annum, Wm. Phillips Lieut. Gov. at $500 per annum. The Worcester County Senators were: Silas Holman, Solomon Strong, Bezabub Taft, Francis Blake, receiving $2 per day for each actual days' attendance and that sum for every ten miles travel.

The Representatives to the Great and General Court had the like pay as Senators. More from Worcester town were Abraham Lincoln (who had a trip-hammer and grist-mill on Mill brook, a few rods from the Court House) William Eaton, Nathan White—all Democrats.

Under the heading Tablet of Memory, July 1814, the book says: "Oct. 27, 1813, the Gov. Gen. (Provost) of Lower Canada issued a General Order (by order of the Prince Regent) to put in close confinement forty-six American officers and non-commissioned officers prisoners in retaliation for twenty-three British officers to be confined by the United States government; and the latter soon after ordered eleven British officers to be confined at Worcester."

The old book though small is replete with information like the Almanacs of good old Robert B. Thomas, the headings of each month begin with poetry. January opens thus:

"Lo! my fair, the morning lazy,
Peeps abroad from yonder hill;
Phœbus rises red and hazy
Frost has stopped the village mill.

June in this way.

School-boys in the brook disporting,
Spend the sultry hours in play;
While the nymphs and swains are courting
Seated on the new made hay.

December anticipates Christmas.

Bring more wood and set the glasses;
Join, my friends, our Christmas cheer;
Come—a catch—and kiss the lasses—
Christmas comes but once a year."

In his closing remarks the editor says:

"Though one gather wealth and honor in abundance, if in the meantime he make not those moral and religious improvements which benefit an immortal and accountable being, he must say at last, as did the witty but dissipated poet Churchill, with his expiring breath, 'What a fool I have been'."

The title page is gone but the initials W. B. appear in an address "To the Public."

JOHN C. CRANE.

Millbury, May 27.

Richard O'Flynn, 244 Front Street and Henry A. Whitely of 24 Dix Street have been appointed postage stamp sellers for their respective localities. These new places will prove great conveniences.

Jennie.

You are to all a constant joy,
O gentle girl of Illinois,
Born to a state
Of plenteousness, and with those parts,
Of grace that made your parents' hearts
Fond and elate.

One cannot help but dream that you,
Whose eyes are morning's silvery blue
Are near of kin
To lights of early day that pour
Their warm flood through your sycamore,
And glide within.

The placing of corn by your abode,
Where lies the broad and level road
'Twe'n hedgerous green,
Whose grape vines through the brambles run
And hang their clusters in the sun,
High, half unseen.

Schooled in the knowledge that endures,
The higher lore of life is yours;
And, not amiss
In details of all household work,
No irksome duty do you shirk,
Of that or this.

In figure trim, in action fleet;
With bosom warm whose currents beat
Good will to all,
Yet have you room, you prairie sprite,
For one concealed and deep delight
That does enthral.

Oh, one can guess the secret sweet,
As on the road his horse's feet
Go bounding by;
One knows, too, that the manly boy
Feels all his being burn with joy
To meet your eye!

A gallant farmer cavalier
As ever rode for colt or steer,
And fit to mate,
With one so gracious, glad and sweet!
Hail, youthful pair! Joy may you meet
At every gate!

—C. L. Cleveland.

Millbury.

LIGHT is pleased to acknowledge the receipt of the High School Index from Wellesley Hills. It is an annual product, this Number IV. Well edited and composed it calls to mind the energetic principal of the school, who in the years ago was a school boy in Ashland. The same characteristics that made him an excellent boy in school, stood by him in college and have been a source of success in his own teaching in Brookfield, Lancaster and Wellesley Hills. Congratulations are due all parties, teachers as well as pupils for the fine appearance of the pamphlet.

Life is short, but there is always time enough for courtesy.—Emerson.

FOR THE LAUNDRY.

BRUSSELS

SOAP.

J. A. Long

CLOSING OUT SALE

— OF —

Oak Sideboards!

NOTE THE PRICES:

$17.	worth	$26
19	"	30
26	"	38
30	"	45
38	"	56
57	"	75

These Sideboards are all WELL-MADE and FINISHED and are WARRANTED all right in every respect.

Baby * Carriages

AT

HALF PRICE.

J A. LONG

Franklin Square Furniture Rooms,

555 Main St.

Good to Eat.

The gift of making an after-dinner speech is to be able to get up and say nothing brilliantly.—Wm. M. Evarts.

Oatmeal Pudding.

Two cupfuls of apple-sauce, one-half cup of oatmeal, three eggs, one cupful of sugar, one and one-half pints of milk; flavor to taste. Boil the oatmeal in milk one-half hour, add the sugar, apple-sauce, beating eggs and flavoring; pour into a well-buttered pudding dish, and bake one-half hour in a moderate oven.

Oatmeal Pudding.

Mix two ounces of fine Scotch oatmeal in a quarter of a pint of milk; add to it a pint of boiling milk; sweeten to taste, and stir over the fire ten minutes; then put in two ounces of sifted bread-crumbs, stir until the mixture is stiff, then add one ounce of shred suet, and one or two well beaten eggs. Flavor with lemon or nutmeg, put in a buttered dish and bake slowly for an hour.

Orange Trifle.

One cupful of sugar, three eggs, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, two tablespoonfuls orange juice, a large teaspoonful of baking powder, and a pinch of salt. Beat the yolks of the eggs and gradually stir in the sugar, salt, then the orange juice. Next part of the flour in which the baking powder has been stirred, then the whisked whites of eggs and remainder of the flour. Do not mix long. Bake in two round layer cake tins. Pare and cut in small pieces four oranges, sprinkle half a cupful of sugar over them, and shortly before serving spread between two layers of cake. The cake should be cold. Spread over the top one-half cupful of whipped cream, sweetened, and flavor with orange juice.

Here are some good things to eat for good health and good looks. Soft boiled eggs, hominy, California figs, fresh asparagus, lettuce, toast, brown bread, bread and milk, hot lemonade, and bouillon will do wonders for the woman who has been filling herself with coffee and tea.

Corn Gems.

Put two cups of corn meal in a bowl; add one tablespoonful of butter, and pour over a half pint of scalding milk: stir until every particle of meal is thoroughly moistened and the butter melted; now add one-half pint of cold milk, one cup of flour; beat thoroughly; add two eggs beaten separately, two teaspoonfuls baking powder. Bake at once in a moderate oven for thirty minutes.

The yellow granulated meal is the best for corn cake, unless you can, in your neighborhood get the native white meal, which is by far, sweeter than all others.—Table Talk.

Cheese Wafers.

Rub a tablespoonful of butter to a cream, and stir in two tablespoonfuls of grated English cheese. Spread this mixture on thin water crackers or plain wafers, or if you cannot get thin crackers, split the thicker ones. keep them in hot oven till they are a delicate brown.

What men want is not talent, it is purpose; not the power to achieve, but the will to labor.—Bulwer Lytton.

Ask your Grocer for The Cleveland Cook Book, free, containing over 350 proved receipts. If he does not have it, send stamp and address to Cleveland Baking Powder Co., 81 Fulton St., New York.

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists. 11 Pleasant St., Worcester, Mass

Residence, 61 West Street.

PREMIER SAFETY BICYCLES.

Not because they are English but because they are Best.

JOHN A. LOWE, Agent, 630 Main Street.

The Readers of Light I most cordially invite To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything They would expect to find

In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,

Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,

10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL,

Gold, Silver and Nickel Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.

13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St., Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework, Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

Richard Healy, 512 Main St.,

is now showing a magnificent line of

CAMBRIC, SATEEN and LAWN SHIRT WAISTS.

Also a handsome assortment of

LADIES' WHITE LAWN AND SCOTCH GINGHAM SUITS

at very attractive prices.

PENSIONS! * PENSIONS!

THE DISABILITY BILL IS A LAW.
 Soldiers Disabled Since the War are Entitled.
 Dependent widows and parents now dependent whose sons die from the effects of army service are included.
 If you wish your claim speedily and successfully prosecuted,
 address JAMES TANNER,
 Late Commissioner of Pensions, Washington, D. C.

C. REBOLI,

Confectioner * and * Caterer,

6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always
 be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

J. S. WESBY & SONS,

BOOK * BINDING

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

387 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES

at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

Aftermath.

When I was a child, the voice of the sea
 Whispered its confidence to me,
 While the wind stole into our secrecy,
 And the white gull hung on extended wings,
 And the deep caves ceased their mutterings,
 While the sea told me its hidden things.

But when long after I sought the shore,
 To ask and learn as I did of yore,
 The ocean leaped with a sudden roar,
 And the smiling master I came to greet,
 Back from his rocks rolled in swift retreat,
 Leaving a white faced corpse at my feet.

—Francis Zuri Stone.

Prof. Fred Spiers and wife (Annie Bonnell) are in this city for the summer. The past year has been spent in Vermillion, South Dakota, where Prof. Spiers is a teacher in the University. He and his wife are of the High School and Prof. was graduated at the "Tech."

In the June number of the Mentor, published by the Alumni Association of the Perkins Institute for the Blind, Mrs. Sarah Jeanne Rich of this city has a very interesting account of Edward Kingsbury Dietrich, a young man blind and deaf, a sort of a masculine Laura Bridgeman. He was born in Pennsylvania and educated at the Philadelphia Institute. He is now living at the Working Home for the Blind in West Philadelphia. Twenty-eight years old, devoid of faculties that we deem so necessary yet happy and hopeful. Let us be thankful for the patience that can make even the blind, see and the deaf, hear.

Through the kindness of a friend, LIGHT has recently come into possession of several numbers of Iowa State Register, published in Des Moines, giving detailed statements concerning the death of the late J. B. Grimwell and of the exercises in his memory. Among the men who opened up that limitless West, few names will be heard before that of this Vermonter who was the friend of Phillips and Gough, the founder of a College and always the defender of right.

Mr. Walter R. Forbush who came to this city from Cincinnati, a little more than a year ago, but who is a Massachusetts boy, having been reared in Ashland is about moving to Boston, where he is to be the Superintendent of the Chicago Silicated Fire Proofing Co. Mr. Forbush will be remembered in Worcester as the architect of the new theater building on Pleasant Street.

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place at an early day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of

Fine Monumental Work,

131 Central Street,

near Summer.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

RAYMOND'S VACATION EXCURSIONS.

ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

Of from five to twenty-one days' duration, and including visits to the White Mountains, Isles of Shoals, Mount Desert, Moosehead Lake, Old Orchard Beach, Montreal, Quebec, the Saguenay and St. Lawrence Rivers, Lake Memphremagog, St. Andrews, N. B., Fredericton, the St. John River, St. John, the Annapolis Valley, the Land of Evangeline, Halifax, the coal regions of Nova Scotia, the Bras d'Or Lakes of Cape Breton Island, Charlottetown, Hudson River, Saratoga, Lake George, Lake Champlain, Ausable Chasm, the Adirondack Mountains, Lake Placid, Lehigh Valley, Mauch Chunk, Watkins Glen, Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands, Trenton Falls, etc.

In addition to the above, Excursions over the Canadian Pacific Railway and to Alaska—July 11 and 25.

Excursion to the Yellowstone Park and Return—July 16.

Tour of Yellowstone Park and Across the Continent, returning via Canadian Pacific Railway—July 27.

Send for descriptive circulars, designating whether book of "Thirty Summer Tours," Alaska Excursions, or Yellowstone National Park trips is desired.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB,
 296 Washington Street, opposite School Street, Boston.

Legal * Notices.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of ISRAEL F. CONANT of Sterling, in said County, an insane per-son, Greeting:

Whereas, James F. Kendall the guardian of said insane person has presented his petition for license to sell at private sale for the sum of thirty-five dollars, or upon such terms as may be adjudged best, certain real estate therein specified, of his said ward for his maintenance.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Fitchburg in said County, on the fourth Tuesday of June current at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester three weeks successively, the last publication to be two days at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this third day of June in the year eighteen hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To all persons interested in the estate of DOLLY S. HOWE, late of Sterling, in said County, deceased, testate, Greeting:

You are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Fitchburg in said County, on the fourth Tuesday of June current at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why the account rendered by Ezra Sawyer and William D. Peck the executors of their administration of said estate, and now on file at this office, should not be allowed. The account of said William D. Peck being rendered by Mary E. Peck and L. Putnam Willard the executors of his will.

And the said accountants are ordered to serve this citation, by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester, the last publication to be two days, at least before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or to their legal representatives known to the petitioners seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this first day of June in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To all persons interested in the estate of JOHN RILEY, late of Worcester, in said County, deceased, intestate: Greeting. Upon the Petition of Mary Riley you are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held in Worcester, in said County, on the first Tuesday of July next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, why real estate of said deceased remaining after the payment of his debts, should not be assigned and set out to his widow, the said petitioner, in fee, to an amount not exceeding five thousand dollars in value;

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively, in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester, the last publication to be two days, at least, before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioner, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this sixteenth day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

Worcester Coal Company,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

THE CRITERION Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.

231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SHREWSBURY ST.
J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

My Love.

My love's not like the wild, red rose,
Nor fair as lily pale.
My love is but a sweet young girl,
Not a queen in fairy tale.
What shade her hair I cannot tell,
It may be gold or brown,
I only know it pleases me,
And decks her like a crown.
Her mouth is sweet, but can be firm,
With lips not framed for guile.
Her eyes are thoughtful, tender, true,
There's comfort in her smile.
I love my love, because her life
Is full of fresh, young thought.
She thinks, she dares, I feel and know
The depths her soul has sought.
No word has told her of my love,
Perhaps she would not hear.
If love has language all its own,
My love must know she's dear.

—Edmund Smith Middleton.

New York City.

The Genius of Dickens.

How we love to revel in the delightful fancies of his soul creating and hold high carnival with the inspirations of his genius. Hob-a-nob with Mr. Pickwick and old Sam Weller, laugh over young Sam's jokes, and that tea quickened philosophy of the gossipy Sairy Gamp, and the "Never say die" of the jolly Mark Tapley. Listen to an opinion as is an opinion of Jack Bunsby and the sea yarns of that old Salt Sea horse, Captain Cuttle; applaud the cruel justice of the appalling end of Bill Sikes and feel a pang of pity at the hard lot of his faithful Nancy; hate with burning hatred Old Fagin, the Jew, with his sardonic grin, teaching the youthful Artful, the artful dodges of sin; scorn Old Pecksniff and despise the miserable dissembling of the mean spirited Uriah Heap; watch the grimaces of the treacle daubed faces of the boy in Dotheboys Hall; and hear Oliver Twists pleading cry for more; rejoice at the good fortune that came at last to Nicholas Nickleby, David Copperfield and the long suffering little Smike; weep tears of tender sympathy over the lovely, tender, darling, little Nell, who with Dickens now

In the churchyard sleeps,
Where the ivy creeps
And the daisies bloom
Under the weeping willow,
Where hop the robin and the sparrow,
Where falls the rain on silent sod
Like burning tears of sorrow,
Sweet refuge, gift of God,
To burdened heart of woe;
While men shall toil and strive and sin,
And hearts shall break and death come in
Like a spectre at the door
While ghosts of murdered hopes
And high ambitions slain
Shall haunt the soul with recollections vain
While misery, want and woe
Shall walk the earth to and fro
Hopeless in fell despair
Thy pitying love will be poured
Fresh from its fountain deep,
Like a soft soothing prayer
Lulling the troubled soul to sleep,
The sweet sleep of forgetting peace
—And know its pains no more.

H.

The Rev. I. J. Lansing has been having a three weeks outing in the Andirondacks. When vacation time comes, Mr. Lansing likes to take to the woods. No where is one so near to Nature's Heart as when off in the Forest Primeval. We hope the trip will remove all traces of the Grip.

J. W. GREENE, P L U M B E R.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,

Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand,) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

Harness and Saddlery,

RELIABLE GOODS
and LOWEST PRICES.

R. McALEER & CO.,

155 MAIN STREET.

PHOTOGRAPHER.

Children's
Portraits
A Specialty

326 MAIN ST.,
Opp. Mechanics Hall.

Undoubtedly

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,

* PRINTERS. *

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,

DEALER IN

Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

THE CLARK
SAWYER CO.

478 to 482 Main Street.

Cut * Glassware

All the new cuttings :

PARISIAN, BELMONT, ROYAL, STRAWBERRY DIAMOND and FAN, HOBNAIL, RUSSIAN, ORIENTAL, STAR and DIAMOND, BLOCK DIAMOND, GOTHIC.

- Punch Bowls,
- Salad Bowls,
- Salad Forks and Spoons,
- Strawberry Bowls,
- Flower Bowls,
- Celery Trays,
- Spoon Trays,
- Bon Bon Trays,
- Handled Olive Dishes,
- Ice Cream Trays,
- Ice Cream Saucers,
- Jelly Dishes,
- Ice Tubs,
- Water Bottles,
- Water Pitchers,
- Decanters,
- Claret Jugs,
- Oil Bottles,
- Candelabrum,
- Vases,
- Sugars,
- Creams,
- Individual Butters,
- Punch Cups and Plates,
- Comports,
- Caraffes,
- Cheese Plates,
- Knife Rests,
- Goblets,
- Tumblers,
- Champagnes,
- Burgundies,
- Clarets,
- Wines, Cordials,
- Finger Bowls, Mustards, Etc.

The Grand Demonstration of the GEM ICE CREAM FREEZER will continue until 10 P. M. Saturday.

Household.

Cosmetic. Oatmeal for the face and hands wet with water soon sours, but prepared in the following way will keep good any length of time. Take three cupfuls of oatmeal and five of water (or less quantity in the same proportion); stir well, let it stand over night in a cool place; in the morning stir again, after awhile stir thoroughly, and strain; let it stand until it settles, then carefully pour off the water, and add enough bay-rum to make a sediment about as thick as cream, or thinner if liked. Apply to the face with a soft cloth, let it remain until nearly dry; then rub briskly with a soft flannel. Shake well before using.

Oatmeal flour. Probably the grain is more nutritious and healthful in its coarse state, but oatmeal flour gives a pleasant change from wheat flour, graham or Indian.

The only cure I can give for warts is the use of acetic acid. This should be applied to the wart several times a day. A small camel's hair brush or a blunt wooden toothpick may be employed for the purpose. Little by little, the callous flesh will dry up, and may soon be removed by gentle scraping with the fingernail.

On cleaning out my dark closet this spring I discovered that the mice had found their way into a drawer in which various articles were put away, some wrapped in brown paper, others in newspapers. I think every separate newspaper, as well as some paper napkins and some photograph cards, was more or less torn into shreds by the teeth of the little invaders. Acting on this hint, I did everything up in brown paper, and even put my winter hats away in brown paper bags for a felt and a Leghorn showed bad breaks and rough places in them that looked suspiciously like the ravages of some other tooth than that of time. I give the hint for what it is worth.

Solution for cleaning silver and brass To one quart of rain water add two ounces of ammonia and three ounces of precipitated chalk. Bottle and keep well-corked, and shake before using. Wash silver in hot, soapy water and rinse in clean, hot water.

"Why is it that your celery salt is always so fresh and good?" I asked a friend not long ago. She replied, "I made it." "What?" "I made it." She explained that she bought a pound of celery seed for thirty-five cents, ground it in coffee mill and added twice as much salt (or more) and sifted them together. The quantity is sufficient to last a long time. After filling the individual salts or one large one, the rest may be placed in a large bottle tightly corked for future use.

To make tea do not use water which has stood in the teakettle and been boiled repeatedly. Fill the kettle with fresh water, and use it just as it comes to the boiling point.

Anyone whose nerve force is deficient and blood impoverished may take, with benefit, the yolk of an egg, well beaten up in a glass of milk, each morning. The iron and phosphoric compounds are in such a condition as to be readily assimilated by the system, although small in amount.

Mr. R. B. Rogers, clerk with the Heywood Boot and Shoe Co., has resigned his position.

Warm Weather Furniture.

Large, roomy, COOL CHAIRS and SETTEES are very desirable at this season, in order to be comfortable.

We have a full line of

Summer Chairs

Suitable for Lawns and Piazzas, also

- Swing or Hammock Chairs,
- Verandah Chairs,
- Lawn or Beach Chairs.

Hammock Frame and Awning.

This Frame is ornamental, compact, portable and adjustable, It is easily moved, as often as desired, to prevent injury to the lawn. Price $9.

JAPANESE

Reed * Piazza * Curtains.

A new line just received, with Cord and Pulleys, ready to put up. They are very inexpensive, costing much less than cloth awnings.

Price $1.50 to $5 each.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,

Complete House Furnishers.

355 MAIN STREET. 355

South End Notes.

The members of the band of Helping Hands gave a lawn party at the residence of Mr. William Moulton, 29 Benefit Street, Tuesday evening, at which ice cream and cake were on sale. Mr. and Mrs. Moulton were assisted in the management by Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Perkins and Miss Ida Stratton.

The ladies of Trinity Church gave a strawberry supper and entertainment in the vestry Thursday evening, June 11. Over two hundred sat down to the supper.

Mr. William E. Lesure, 4 Merrick Street, graduated from the Boston Dental School Wednesday, June 17.

Officer Marshall S. Greene, 26 King Street, started on his ten days furlough last Saturday. He intends to visit Waltham on his trip.

Mr. Arthur H. Merriam will spend the summer with Mrs. Howe of Shrewsbury.

Mr. Charles F. Little has returned from his trip to Swampscott, Mass.

Miss Elizabeth Parmelee is spending a short vacation with Mrs. Howe in Shrewsbury.

Judge and Mrs. G. M. Woodward gave a reception to their friends last Friday evening, previous to their departure for their country home at Shrewsbury.

The Worcester Philatelic Association met in the reading room of Pilgrim Church, Monday evening. Several new members were admitted.

The teachers and pupils of Pilgrim Sunday School held a social in the vestry of the church Monday evening. A light collation was served.

Miss Alice Bean, Silver Street, will spend the summer at Falmouth Heights.

Tuesday evening the semi-annual election of officers of the Piedmont Y. P. S. C. E. took place and resulted as follows: President Mr. Childs; vice-president, Mrs. Horatio L. Miller; recording secretary, Miss Mattie Blood; treasurer, Miss Nettleton.

Mrs. E. T. Marble gave a reception to her friends Tuesday afternoon in honor of her mother's birthday.

The children who were baptized six years ago at Piedmont Church, received a present of a Bible last Sunday.

There is to be a lawn party at the residence of Rev. D. O. Mears, Monday night, for Piedmont Church and the Branch.

The Ladies Benevolent Union connected with the Main Street Baptist Church gave a reception to the pastor, Rev. C. H. Pendleton, Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Broadhurst of Colorado Springs are stopping with Mrs. Broadhurst's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Mawhinney, on Hammond Street.

Probably the finest affair of the kind that has happened at this end of the city, was the closing reception held at the Home School, Monday evening. The grounds of the school were resplendent with Chinese lanterns and a large number of potted plants, while from the house, soft strains of music from an orchestra gladdened the hearts of the three hundred or more guests who accepted invitations to the affair. Many of the ladies appeared in evening toilets and the gentlemen, almost without exception, in evening dress. The hours of the reception were from seven to ten, and by eight o'clock, the house presented a lively scene. Each guest on entering was received by the principal, Miss E. A. Kimball, and Miss Lawrence, one of the instructors. The entire house was thrown open for the occasion and the rooms were tastefully decorated by the pupils with smilax and evergreen. The orchestra was stationed on the second floor and dancing was indulged in by the younger people. As the night was warm however, the greater part of the guests preferred the seats provided on the lawn. A large number from all over the city, and from out of town were present. The following were among those present: Rev. and Mrs. Almon Gunnison, Rev. and Mrs. David O. Mears, Mr. and Mrs. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Green, Mr. and Mrs. John Bowler, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Green, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Higgins, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Hildreth, Dr. and Mrs. Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. C. Henry Hutchins, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Van De Marke, Messrs. Harry Fairbanks, William Burleigh, George M. Corbitt, Frank Roe Batchelder, Wilton W. Dadmun, Fred A. Whittemore, Fred Goddard, William Parker, George Miller, Dr. Louis E. Lamson, Everett Kimball, William Goodwin, Edward W. Vaill, Jr., Frank Richardson, David Jenkins, Leslie Marden, Lottie Knowlton, William H. Gaylord, George Lackey, Walter S. Kennedy, Wilter Earle, Hon. Henry L. Parker, Mr. W. O. Patten and wife, Joseph Lancaster, Fred Morse, Dr. F. H. Howland, Dr. A. W. Eldred, Misses Alice M. Day, Jennie McCreedy, Mabel Prentiss, Ethel Curtis, Florence Shaffer, Mabel Richardson, Sadie Flagg, Manie Fay, Gertrude Everett, Bessie Parmelee, Alice Green, Nellie Jerome, Maud Longley, Mazie Longley, Mabel Chamberlin, Lizzie Bachelder, Mabel Tucker, Alice Tucker, Dr. Eben W. Robinson, Misses Freeman, Misses Longley, Misses Esterbrook, Mrs. A. B. Linder, Concord, Mass.; Miss Marion Gay, Providence, R. I. During the year just closed the following have constituted the boards at the school: Miss Jessie Duckworth; Miss Millie Linder, Concord, Mass.; Miss Fannie Swett, Haverhill, Mass.; Miss Annette Ramsdell, Nashua, N. H.; Miss Nancy Bartlett, Boylston, Mass.; Miss Ellen Carpenter, Des Moines, Iowa; Miss Emma Warren, East Templeton; Miss Annie Prouty, Spencer; Miss Lillian Parker, Milford; Miss Florence Crosby, Brookfield; Miss Georgie Bates, Webster; Miss Marion Porter, Portland, Me.; Miss Gertrude O'Neil, Boston; Miss Virginia Houghton, Bath, Me.; and Miss Minnie Wood, Utica, N. Y. Many of the pupils will return to the school, while quite a number will pursue their studies in other institutions. Miss Kimball is to be congratulated upon the success which she has had, the school having been founded only three years ago. The school reopens Sept. 23d, at the same place, when she will occupy the entire house, both on May and Woodland Streets.

LEICESTER.

Efforts are being made by the pastors and Epworth Leagues of the Methodist Churches in Worcester to have services during the summer in the Methodist Church here. The pastors will preach on alternate Sunday afternoons and it is planned to have the Leagues conduct prayer meetings on the other Sunday afternoons.

School and College.

High School.

Friday night of last week was the date of the annual Glee Club Concert and was one of the most successful ever given. The artists who assisted were all excellent and the chorus did their work finely, especially the mass which formed the second part of the program. The Glee Club is said to be doing better work this year than ever before and this concert is surely a good proof of it.

The platform was decorated with plants and palms from the florists and with the bouquets from the other societies of the school presented a pretty appearance. The program was as follows:

1. Chorus. (a) "There's a Path by the River," Koschat
(b) Song of the Vikings, Fanning
Glee Club.
  2. Soprano Solo, The Gondolier's Song, Erik Meyer-Hilmund
Mrs. Dean.
  3. Reading. Selected.
Miss Gabriel.
  4. Tenor Solo. "The Green Trees Whispered," Balfe
Mr. Hamilton.
  - Contralto Solo, (a) "In Dewy Grass," Bohm
(b) "Maiden Love,"
Mrs. Bassett.
  6. Reading. Selected.
Miss Gabriel.
  7. Bass Solo. Vulcan's Song, Gounod
Mr. Barber.
  8. Male Quartet. "When Twilight Dews," Holden
Messrs. Ellinwood, Bliss,
Sprague, Merriam.
- INTERMISSION.
Selections from Morrison's Mass in B b.
Glee Club.

In the intermission W. J. Denholm, president of the club, presented the leader, Mr. Seth Richards, with a music rack and case in behalf of the society.

Monday morning Mr. W. B. Williamson, ex-mayor of Worcester, England, visited the school while in the city and in his remarks to the pupils expressed himself as being greatly pleased with our schools and educational system. His remarks were very flattering. The mayor was attended by our mayor, Superintendent Marble, Librarian Green and several other gentlemen. The entire school was assembled for the last half hour of school to listen to the distinguished guest.

The whole school is to sing at the graduation exercises in Mechanics Hall this year, and for this end is having a few rehearsals together. The graduating class is the largest ever graduated and has an especially large college course, members of which intend to go to Harvard, Holy Cross, Wesleyan, M. I. T., W. P. I., Smith and Wellesley.

Miss Cook, a teacher in the Walnut Street building is absent at present in New York.

The meetings of the societies were adjourned last week for the Glee Club concert, with the exception of the Aletheia which meets in the afternoon. The question debated was: Resolved that the miser is more injurious to society than the spendthrift. Decided in the negative. Eighteen new members were admitted at the same meeting.

The society held a picnic at the Lake last Saturday having an enjoyable time.

Owing to the serious illness of her father, Mr. Franklin Whipple, Miss Mary E. Whipple is absent from her place and Mrs. Annie L. (Fifield) Knapp is teaching in her stead.

Boston Letter.

The People's is the most capacious Protestant Church in New England, and one of the largest auditoriums in Boston. Its full seating capacity is about 2,500. Yet so compact is the allotment of chairs, that the speaker seems to be within conversing distance of the remotest-hearer, as it seemed to me.

It is a Methodist Episcopal Church, yet the well-known breadth and liberality of that branch of Christians is here given, if possible, a new emphasis. Its history compels the People's Church to be cosmopolitan. It stands for Christ and humanity. It is a church of the people from peak to foundation, steadfast in creed, broad in charity, fervent in working purpose. A significant fact in connection is that this People's Church is the first to be called by that name. So kindly did men take to it, that the title was at once adopted in many of the cities of the United States. Several in England also bear it to-day.

A recent Sabbath spent in this church was exceedingly impressive. At 9:30 A. M. a devoted band assembled for early prayer-meeting. The service was held in one of the rooms of the ample chapel adjoining the main edifice. The spirit of the meeting was fervent with old Methodist fire. At 10:15, as we came out, thousands of people were thronging along the corridors and entering the vast, cool auditorium. The seats are all free and people know it. No one intrudes. Voluntary contributions alone sustain the tremendous Christian activity carried on here in various ways. While it is true that the great middling classes predominate, yet there are the rich and the poor. Near me sat an ex-governor of Massachusetts who is deeply interested in this popular church. On a previous Sabbath the present governor of another New England State was pointed out to me, while following him down the aisle was a humble woman, who must perforce bring her almost infant boy in her arms if she came at all. Hundreds of young men and young women made an easily perceptible majority of this audience.

Situated at the junction of a cross-town thoroughfare, Berkeley Street, which leads at once into the Back Bay region of wealth on one side, and the great district of the thrifty householder class on the other; on Columbus Avenue, near the Providence Station with its suburban travel, in easy reach of the great boarding-house district, the building is particularly fortunate in location. It is not three minutes walk from its doors to the Young Women's Christian Association upon the east and the Young Men's Christian Association upon the west.

It is now 10:30 o'clock. The broad avenues are sending in the people yet. Signs of eagerness to secure good seats are on all these faces. We are courteously provided with programs printed especially for the services. The throng parts—upstairs some; hither and thither along these fan-radiating many aisles, others. It is already a mass of people that would crowd to repletion most churches. Still there is room. The grand organ—a memorial gift of a bereaved father for a noble son—is breathing solemn notes that jar and echo along the ample spaces, or pleading softly with notes that rise high towards the groined ceiling. The problem of how to reach the masses—look around you now!

There is more of Methodist fire, more of the splendid elocutionary art of a confessedly well-equipped voice, decidedly more of the thrilling result of the address of Mr. Haynes than ever attained in Tremont Temple or Music Hall. The man has grown, to be sure, but there is something more than mere mental or spiritual growth. His heart is at home, evidently, among Methodists. He has gained immensely by the change to this more compact auditorium. I am told that now, as never before, his ministry is attended by students to study his methods of address. Young ministers ought to hear him read a Psalm or a hymn. The sermon we heard was on "How to Believe in God." Such pictures, drawn until they lived on the imagined canvas; such pathos at times; such high and healthful excitement; such stillness in the room!

The papers of Providence, R. I., are hoping for the erection of a monument in that city to the memory of Nathaniel Greene, the famous general of the Revolution. He is commemorated by a column at Savannah, Ga., and by a statue at Washington. But in Rhode Island, his native state, no monument to his memory has yet been erected.

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE.

Amherst.

The Commencement exercises at Amherst do not come until next Thursday, but already the college work is over, and festivities are on foot.

The work of the past year has been remarkably successful in every department of the college, and the prospects for next year are brighter still. The new administration is evidently an energetic one if we may accept present conditions as a criterion. The trustees have voted $100,000 for the erection of new chemical and physical laboratories, and have elected as professor of physics, Arthur L. Kimball, at present assistant professor at John Hopkins. A Rochester professor, Geo. D. Olds, is to become professor of Freshmen mathematics, and the system of Freshman instructors is to be done away with. There are also rumors of a change in the department of French, and in the method of supplying the college pulpit, but only those high in authority are informed as to their truth. Columbia college has bestowed upon Pres. Gates the degree of LL. D.

Worcester people who are in Amherst next week Monday will have the pleasure of listening to Geo. S. Bennett, W. H. S., '87, as he speaks in the Hardy Prize Debate.

The sixteenth anniversary of the Massachusetts State Normal School at Worcester, will be held at Worcester, Thursday, June 25, 1891.

Reading of Graduates' Theses, 9:30 a. m. to 12 m. Award of Diplomas to the 28th and 29th Classes, with accompanying addresses, 2 to 4 p. m. Anniversary address by Rev. E. B. Andrews, D. D., President of Brown University. Subject: "The Educational Spirit-of-the-Times." E. B. Stoddard, Chairman State Board of Visitors. E. H. Russell, Principal.

What a Boy Can Do.

[ From the Metropolitan. ]

These are some of the things that a boy can do;
He can whistle so loud that the air turns blue;
He can make all sounds of be st and bird,
And a thousand voices never heard.

He can crow or cackle, or he can clu k
As well as a roost r, hen or duck;
He can bark like a dog, he can low like a cow,
And a cat itself can't beat his "me-ow."

He has sounds that are ruffled, striped and plain;
He can thunder by as a railway train,
Stop at the stations a breath, and then
Apply the steam and be off again.

He has all his powers in such command
He can turn right into a full brass band,
With all of the instruments ever played,
As he makes of himself a street parade.

You can tell that a boy is very ill
If he's wide awake and keeping still;
But the earth would be—God bless their noise!
A dull old place if there were no boys.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Marble start June 24th for a brief European ramble.

VOLAPÜK.

Studels löfik! Dear students:
Klub obsik olesia- Our club will susdom lasamis vigik jü pend the weekly meetflukatim; bevüno zü- ings until fall; meanlags posegiovoms al while circulars will be klubans, e al votiks kel issued to members odesidoms omis. Zü- and others who desire lags at oninlaboms them. These circununi dö mostepam Vo- lars will contain inforlapüka, nots se seläns mati o n concerni ng
e sugivs desänü pläg progress of Volapük, Volapükik. If desidol notes from foreign getön somikis sedolös lands, and lessons for potakadi al ob. the design of practice in Volapük. If you desire to receive such you will send postal card to me.

Zülags at popenoms These cir c u l a r s nelijapüko e volapüko will be written in En-äso atos binos pebukol. glish and in Volapük same as this is printed.

Diso givob lovepoloti Below I give trans-Psama telskilid. "Söla lation of 23rd Psalm.
binom jipan oba." "The Lord is my shepherd."

1. Söla binom jipan oba, no odöfob.
2. Lendunom obi seistön in flubs yeba zadik, geidom obi nebü vats lestilik.
3. Nülom lani obik, geidom in kuls cöda demü nem okik.
4. Soif odütävob nebeli jada deila, odlekob badi lenonik ibo Ol binol ko ob, luplan Olik e staf Olik otlodoms obi.
5. Plepadol bifo ob letabi komü leneflens oba, keülol kapi obik ko keül, köp obik lovü-golom.
6. Necito, gud e misalad oläsukoms obi du delis valik binuga obik, ed olödob aiplu in dom Söla.

F. L. HUTCHINS.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,
Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, *

NO. 156 MAIN STREET,
H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

The Week.

CITY.

- 12—Class Day at Worcester Academy.
Glee Club Concert at High School.
- 13—Opening games on Worcester Athletic Club grounds at the Lake.
Serious accident to Lewis Hammond.
- 14—General observance of Children's Day in city churches.
The day hot and the Lake, crowded.
- 15—Cashier Hammond a little better.
Jeremiah Hagerty, nine years old, killed by street car, corner of Main and Hermon Streets.
Ex-mayor Williamson of Worcester, England, entertained by our citizens and officials.
- 16—First banquet of the Woman's Suffrage League at Pilgrim Hall.
City Solicitor Goulding decides that Shrewsbury R. R. cannot extend track into the city. Sorry!
- 17—Fine street parade of the Continentals.
Class Day at the "Tech."
Cambridge Street school, Miss George's, has flag presentation and raising.
- 18—Polytechnic graduation. Five young men denied their diplomas.
Lyman Brown dies, aged 76 years.
Charles M. Ruggles retires from ticket office in Union Station and is succeeded by James Cunningham, station agent.

COUNTY.

- 12—Eugene Deane, principal of Grammar School at Burnside, Conn., home in Millbury for the Summer. Once a Worcester High School boy.
- 13—George M., son of the late George L. Gibbs, unanimously elected to succeed his father as selectman in Whitinsville, (North-bridge.)
Holden people vote a $10,000 schoolhouse to replace the burned one in Jeffersonville.
- 14—Augustine Devoto drowned in Fitchburg.
- 15—Luke Prentice dies in Whitinsville.
Mrs. Caroline M. Blanchard dies in Brookfield, 69 years.
Henry Warnecker dies suddenly in Webster, 67 years.
- 17—William Wilbur dies in Hubbardston. In 100th year.
Ground broken in Leominster for street railway.
- 18—Spencer's big hotel injured by fire.

COMMONWEALTH.

- 12—Governor Russell reviews the troops at Framingham.
Boston Traveller announces new management. The Reform Journal.
- 13—Military camp at Framingham breaks up.
- 14—Rev. William Lawrence addresses Harvard Seniors.
Baker Memorial Church in Dorchester consecrated.
- 15—It would seem that General Butler had won a famous victory in the Clarette Johnson case. The public is now anxious for the next move with reference to Judge Carpenter.

The hottest June day in four years.

- 16—High temperature reported throughout the state.
- 17—Tufts College gives Hon. Jos. H. Walker the degree of LL. D.
Just to think of it. General Butler and others are quarreling with Ex-Gov. Long and others as to who shall be officers of the Standish Monument Association.
- 18—E. Burr Maynard appointed successor to Judge Barker in Superior Court.
Alfred C. Monroe, Asst. Adj. Gen'l. G. A. R. dies in Revere, 50 years.

NATION.

- 12—Graduation at West Point. General Sherman missed.
- 13—Small cyclone in East Bowdoinham, Me.
Executive committee of the People's Party in session in St. Louis.
- 14—Geronimo, the Indian brave, killed near Benson, Arizona.
The interviewer misrepresents Mills, M. C., from Texas.
- 15—The killing of seals interdicted. President Harrison says so.
- 16—Herr Most, the Anarchist, must go to prison.
- 17—Ohio Republicans nominate Major McKinley for governor by acclamation.
General Grosvenor of Ohio will go abroad to promote the interests of the World's Fair.
- 18—Rudyard Kipling arrives in New York.

WORLD.

- 12—Cummings dropped from the Army rolls.
This affair will not smooth the future for the P. of W.
London omnibus strike off.
- 13—Russia continues Jewish persecution and is including other peoples as Germans, Poles, etc.
- 14—English preachers talk hard against H. R. H. Albert Edward, Prince of Wales.
Sixty people killed on a Swiss excursion train.
Canadian politics not smooth.
- 15—English people still vexed over the future king. They say with unction "Long live the Queen."
A Hamburg millionaire will leave his money for an asylum for unmarried women. An excellent idea.
- 16—And now the London washewomen strike. May they get higher wages.
- 17—French Government does not want the Ex-Empress Eugenia in France.
The O'Shea Divorce Suit to cost Parnell $3,500. Will his loyal American admirers fork over?
Baron Hirsch said to have bought 200,000 acres of land in North Carolina for the Russian Jews. Why must he send them all to the United States? Why doesn't he try South America, Africa and Australia. Our country has been a general receptacle far too long.
- 19—Mexicans want to be annexed to the United States.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

The fourth closing recital of Mr. B. D. Allen's pupils was given at his studio, 173 Main street, Tuesday evening. Those taking part were B. D. Allen; Miss E. G. Whittemore and Miss Cora E. Cornish, pupils of Mr. Allen; Miss Alice Fernald and Miss Virginia Mellen, pupils of Miss Whittemore; Miss Helen Goulding and Miss Ethel Bartlett, pupils of Miss M. L. Starr; and Miss Eva M. Martin, soprano, Lillian W. Rusack, contralto, John W. Stewart, tenor, Harry C. Robinson, baritone, pupils of Mr. Ben T. Hammond.
Thursday evening a soirée musicale was given at which the program was as follows: Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, concerto in E flat for two pianofortes, Misses E. G. Whittemore and M. L. Starr; for soprano, Mozart's recitative and aria, from "Figaro," "Giunse alfin il momento;" Raff's "Ever with thee;" Franz's "Slumber Song;" Jensen's "Frühlingsnacht;" Schumann's "Abendlied," Mrs. C. A. Merri'll; Mendelssohn and Moscheles, Op. 87b, duo concertant, for two pianos, upon a theme from Weber's Preciosa, Miss E. A. Pratt, and Mrs. J. L. Brand. This afternoon at three o'clock, the sixth and last of the closing recitals will be given.

ABOUT FOLKS.

An Excursion Full of Pleasure July 3.

Only $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 to Mystic Island, Watch Hill, Block Island and return. The most enjoyable one day excursion every offered the Worcester public. Tickets limited to 350. For tickets and particulars apply early to Geo. Y. Lancaster, 434 Main street, Worcester, Mass.

Mrs. Morgan's school and kindergarten closed for the summer, Friday, the 12th inst, with very interesting exercises. Pupils have made excellent progress and patrons are pleased.

Mrs. Throop's annual reception to past and present pupils took place at her residence on Pleasant street Monday evening. The entertainment consisted of three plays, "The Way to his Pocket," "A Fair Encounter" and a French play which was given under the direction of Mlle. Clavel, the French teacher.

Mt. Holyoke.

Grace L. Hill, Miss Annette J. Forehand and Miss Nellie J. Fanning of Worcester are among the graduates.

Miss Mabel L. Grant, '92, from North Carolina, is visiting Miss Miriam Gray at her home on Oread Street, Worcester.

God be thanked for books! They are the voices of the distant and the dead, and make us heirs of the spiritual life of past ages.—William Ellery Channing.

Instead of filling children's minds with unmeaning trash and nursery jingles, give them of the best,—simplified and adapted as may be by selection and arrangement, but still of the best that literature offers—and the result will be the elevation and the strengthening of all their future life.—Selected.

Church Notes.

METHODIST.

Grace.—A Flower Concert was given by the Epworth League last Tuesday evening in the church vestry.

The program included piano solo, Miss Cora Marshall; two readings, Miss King; character song, W. D. Powers; Male quartette; solo A. Lester Farwell, and tableaux.

The second part was a Cantata of the Flowers. Characters taken, viz:—Gardner, W. D. Powers; Rose, Miss Layng; Daisy, Miss Shorey; Sunflower, Mrs. Mixer; Buttercup, Miss Minor; Lily, Miss Bates; Tulip, O. W. Farwell; Pansy, W. H. Baird; Man in the Moon, W. C. Healy; Accompanist, Miss Alice Laird.

After the concert a reception was given W. H. Baird. He is a member of this years graduating class at the 'Tech' and leaves on Monday for his home in Indiana.

A social hour was spend and refreshments of cake and ice cream were served.

CONGREGATIONAL.

A course of six summers will be given at the Old South Church by Rev. A. Z. Gonrad. The first, which will be given on June 21st, has for its subject "Three-score and Ten." and is specially recommended to all old people. Following are the other subjects with their dates; July 5th, "Young Men; Brain and and Brawn;" July 12th, "Husbands, Present and Prospective;" July 10th, "Young Women; Their Trials and Triumphs;" July 26th, "All sorts of People."

Sir Arthur Sullivan's cantata, "The Light of the World" which was given at Piedmont Church last winter will be repeated tomorrow. W. A. Gaylord will be the organist, Miss Luella R. F. Flagg, Miss Evangeline Houghton, Clarence Shirley and George Hyde will be the soloists and there will be a chorus of fifty voices.

At Plymouth Church, tomorrow, Rev. A. McCullagh, D. D., pastor, will preach at 10.30 and 7.30. The subject of the evening sermon will be "Abraham commanded to sarifice Isaac." Names of children of the infant department of the Sunday School receiving Bibles for reciting the ten commandments correctly—Mildred White, Florence Carey, Philip Taft, Gertrude Sawyer, Florence Green, Leroy Billings, Ruth Gilbert, Albert Mellen, Fanny Syme, Maud Tracey, Bessie Taft, Maud Williams, Connie Closson.

Mrs. S. B. Hoyt, lady visitor, was given last week a beautiful gold watch and chain by ladies of the church. It is an elegant souvenir.

UNIVERSALIST.

All Souls Universalist.—F. A. Gray, pastor. Children's Day. Sermon to and baptism of children at 10.30 a.m. Sunday School at 12. Floral concert by the Sunday School at 7.30 p.m. Special music by the male quartette both morning and evening.

The second annual excursion of Commonwealth Council, No. 3, order of United American Mechanics, takes place next Tuesday, June 23. The objective points are Crescent Park and Newport. At the latter place a genuine Rhode Island clam-bake will be served and all kinds of sports will be provided, including base-ball, bathing and dancing. The annual parade in Providence of the Masonic bodies on that day will further add to the pleasures of the occasion. Information in relation to the details will be found in the advertising columns.

Charles S. Knight, Jr. and Miss Mary E. Earle, daughter of David M. Earle, were united in marriage, Monday afternoon, at Central church parsonage by Rev. Daniel Merri-man. Mr. and Mrs. Knight after a short wedding trip will reside at 8 Wachusett street.

Mrs. W. E. Cole has been elected editor-in-chief in place of Mrs. Mary D. Lane, resigned, the paper to be issued during the New England Fair by the W. C. T. U.

The supper and entertainment of the Daughters of Veterans should receive a liberal patronage. Read the advertisement and be sure to go.

Freaks of the weather.—Tuesday a number of the schools were closed on account of the excessive heat; Thursday, some were closed on account of the cold.

The Usual Weekly Batch From Becker's College.

During the past week the following pupils from Becker's Business College have secured positions:

Miss Grace Hale, bookkeeper to N. W. Holden, grocer.

Miss Emma Kester has gone to the office of R. B. Fowler as stenographer.

Mr. Charles H. Warren, stenographer to Morgan Spring Co.

Mr. John J. Ivory of Millbury, stenographer to Jerome Marble & Co.

"Of Interest to Vacationers"

Two weeks ago there appeared in LIGHT under the above heading a brief sketch of the Yarmouth Steamship Co. By a slip with the types it was stated that the "Boston" was a steamer of 16,000 tons. The correct figures are 1,600 tons. This seemed to be a small mistake but, as will be seen, it made quite a little trouble. Word comes to LIGHT from Boston that a merchant of that city, desiring to have a large amount of freight transported and using LIGHT's statement of the vessel's tonnage as the basis of his calculation, applied to the company to arrange for the transportation. He soon found that he would be obliged to alter his arrangements. LIGHT hopes that this correction will save all further trouble in this direction.

How much trouble he avoids who does not look to see what his neighbor says, or does or thinks, but only to what he does himself, that it may be just and pure.—Marcus Aurelius.

LAWRENCE,
PHOTOGRAPHER.

492 Main Street.

TAKE ELEVATOR.

Second Annual EXCURSION

OF

COMMONWEALTH COUNCIL

No. 3, O. U. A. M.,

TUESDAY, JUNE 23,

Down Providence River to Crescent Park and Newport.

A genuine Rhode Island Clam Bake will be served at Crescent Park.

Base-ball Games, Dancing, Bathing and other sports.

Train leaves Union station at 7 o'clock a. m., and returning leaves Providence at 7 p. m.

Tickets for Crescent Park $1.25
And for Newport $1.50

FOR SALE BY

W. L. DAVIS, 602 Main street

E. TOLMAN, 498 Main street.

H. M. JACOBS, 480 Main street.

E. W. DODGE, 426 Main street.

NELSON H. DAVIS, 351 Main street.

CHAS. H. FISHER, 211 Main street.

C. P. JOHNSON, 92 Foster street.

GEO S. HATCH, 164 Front street.

And at the Union station by the committee and members of the order.

This is one of the best and cheapest excursions of the season, and is a gala day in Providence, as all of the Masonic bodies hold their annual parade on this day.

HORACE S. BRIGGS,

J. P. WHITE,

W. C. YOUNG,

M. BONNER FLYNN,

J. FRED MASON,

Committee of Arrangements.

THE INTERNATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA.

DODD, MEAD & CO., Publishers, New York.

THE INTERNATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA

IS THE

Latest and Best for READY REFERENCE.

Is not this your opportunity ?

Is your Cyclopaedia not used because its articles are too long and too technical? Then write for our exchange price.

Is your Cyclopaedia of little value because its articles are too brief? Then write for our exchange price.

Is your Cyclopaedia so old that its information is no longer satisfactory? Then buy INTERNATIONAL.

Are you without a Cyclopaedia, and looking for the latest, fullest, best? Then buy INTERNATIONAL.

SOLD FOR CASH OR ON EASY PAYMENTS. THE WHOLE SET DELIVERED AT ONCE in either case, freight charges prepaid

B. A. FOWLER & CO., NEW ENGLAND AGENTS, 36 BROMFIELD ST., BOSTON.

Mention this paper.

WOMANS SUFFRAGE LEAGUE.

After several years of existence this patriotic organization, gave its first banquet, Tuesday night in Pilgrim Hall. At handsomely spread tables, fully a hundred people sat down after about two hours pleasant visiting in the ample parlors of the church. Mrs. Dr. W. E. Cole presided and Mrs. Sarah A. Henshaw was toastmistress. The responses to sentiments were ready and the evening was certainly an enjoyable one. Once at least, men were toasted by women and Mrs. Mary C. Harris' response is given in full. The sentiment was:

"Men, our allies, our co-workers,
With us striving toward the true.
That which they have done but earnest
Of the things that they shall do."

Mrs. President and Friends:

It is my pleasant duty on this occasion to say a brief word in behalf of our honored guests—the gentlemen.

We are glad of this opportunity to reciprocate in some degree the fine hospitality which we have always received at their hands.

These genial and jovial gentlemen are skilled in the art of feasting; we have attended their banquets and have seen the proof of it; to be sure we sat apart, as was seemly, and yet, it was no Barmecide feast to which we were bidden, for they never failed to send up a little toast "To the ladies," who sat in the gallery and saw the lions feed.

One proof of their generosity to us, is found in the old story of Eden; Adam you remember evidently wished his partner Eve to occupy the first place—he wished her to be chief, even if it was the chief of transgressors, for did he not by his testimony hold her responsible for the failure of that little fruit speculation in "the fall?"

This story is alive today, and it has had a wonderful circulation and power. Now and then a Rabbi of uncommon courage dares to doubt the truth of this tale, and the record of its consequences, but he is sure to be properly disciplined if he does, and, unless he is a very brilliant light, he is liable to be put out without benefit of clergy.

However, all this talk about our Mother Eve has kept her memory green at least, and we should thank Adam and his followers for bestowing on her such an enduring reputation. In addition to their many favors, the brethren have counselled us continually; they tell us to be or not to be,—to do or not to do, according to the circumstances; they bid us to be keepers at home, obedient to our husbands and to be silent in the churches—unless we happen to possess the great gift of song.

These same dear men insist on giving us the privilege of taxation—but here raillery loses its point, for I believe that the best and most highly developed men of our time, desire that the taxation of women shall be supplemented by their representation in all affairs relating to the common weal. I am sure we have the heartfelt sympathy of the noblest men; of their generosity to woman, the half can never be told; it ranges from the establishment of a pin fund, to the fund of a collegiate institution; the true knights are always on our side; we are gladdened by their presence here tonight. God bless them, and we may well be proud of that sex which has given to the world great statesmen and jurists, noble philanthropists and divines, faithful teachers and friends; we may well give our faith and trust to all true and knightly gentlemen who have borne the names of father, brother, lover, husband and son, with all the priceless possibilities which those names suggest, and our ambition as women must be wholly gratified when such as these welcome us as equal laborers in the work of the world.

The world is waiting for the embodiment of the masculine and feminine principle in all its manifold affairs; we need the influence of both father and mother to insure the administration of a perfect justice, based upon the union of their highest ideals.

A belief in the equality of men and women is steadily increasing; the goal is not yet reached, but in some happy future will be fulfilled the poet's beautiful prophecy.

"Then comes the stately Eeën back to men;
Then reign the world's great bridals chaste and calm;
Then comes the crowning race of human kind."

The other responses were by the Rev. D. O. Mears, Hon. Henry L. Parker, Mrs. Kate C. Taft, A. S. Roe, Mrs. Abbie L. Stone, Rev. A. S. Garver, Rev. F. A. Gray, Mrs. Powers, J. R. Bartlett, Caleb A. Wall and Mrs. Emma E. Foster. Most excellent violin and piano music was rendered by Misses Fannie and Sadie Day, while little Miss Sadie Briggs recited in a delighted manner "Who will rock the cradle when women vote?"

A considerable delegation of Worcester people and their friends were present at the class Day exercises of Brown University in Providence, last week Friday. The number included Hon. and Mrs. J. H. Walker, whose son, George Walker, belongs to the present graduating class; Dr. and Mrs. H. Y. Simpson, Mrs. G. S. Davenport, Miss M. Davenport, Miss Grace Kelley, Miss Amy Tallant of Concord, N. H., Miss Florence Davenport, Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Colvin, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Colvin, whose nephew is a student at Brown; Prof. Edward P. Smith of the Worcester Polytechnic Institute; Miss Emily Smith, Miss Kate Smith of Mt. Holyoke College; Mr. Louis Smith a student at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute; Mr. Elwell V. Dexter and Walter J. Peacock. Mr. Jerrold B. Smith who read the class prophecy at yesterday's exercises is a nephew of Prof. Smith and a graduate of Worcester Academy.

State Agent A. W. Edson, presented diplomas to the graduating class in the Hopedale High School Wednesday night, and Thursday afternoon spoke to the pupils of the Westboro High School on the advantages of their school life.

Dr. H. P. Cooke is away among the Berkshire Hills, trying to catch trout. Wonder if he has fisherman's luck?

Smith's

401 and 403 Main Street,
CORNER MECHANIC, WALKER BUILDING.

Handsome Gingham at reduced prices. Several very choice lots of Gingham, comprising some of the very best and finest Scotch manufactures.

They are not only beautiful to the eye, but being fast colors and excellent qualities, are very substantial.

There is a great profusion of plaids or stripes in beautifully blended shades and hues.

The different lots comprise Gingham that have sold from 25 to 37 1-2c and are now reduced to 19c. Special attention is called to the excellent quality and colorings of these goods, which with the mark-down coming right at the height of the season, ought to commend them at once.

EDW. L. SMITH & CO.

New * York
STORE.

WOOL DREES GOODS you will surely need this summer. Home Spuns you'd ask for, we think. We have them for 39c, 45c.; 50c. and 62 1-2c. Plain Colors, Plaids and Mixtures. A beautiful line of Colored Cashmeres 25c. a yard and up We have jus received some pretty Stamped Linens which we would be pleased to show you.

Z. F. Little & Co.,

234 and 238 Main St.

In Albany.

It is not a morbid fancy that prompts me to spend a portion of the brief time, between trains in Albany, in the cemetery. It is with no Evangeline wish to be at rest in the grave, nameless or otherwise, that I stop by this mound or admire that costly shaft. The electric railway takes me at a rapid rate to the city of the dead, several miles west of the capital. Of course, I have an objective point in my trip. I wish to see where President Arthur is buried. It is the day after Memorial Day and on every hand are indications of respect and affection for the dead soldier. I find the last resting places of Lyman Tremain and Erastus Corning, for many years potent political factors in the Empire State; but I am more interested in the grave of a son of Tremain who died, at the age of twenty-one, the Lieutenant Colonel of a New York regiment. Here, too, is buried that Adjutant Strong of the 177th Regiment whose biography was so generally circulated and read after his death in 1863. In the remotest part of the ground is a shaft of granite in memory of General Philip Schuyler, one of the Revolutionary heroes, one of those to whom the true honors of Saratoga belong, and a name very dear to the State, for there are county, town and village named after him.

From his grave, my walk leads down to the place where the President rests. It has the most slightly monument in the cemetery and properly, for there are many Americans who remember Mr. Arthur's administration with no little pleasure and pride. The monument proper is a piece of dark granite, shaped like an Egyptian Sarcophagus, resting on four short columns and these in turn founded on a still larger piece of granite. An angel in bronze, with a spray of fern of the same material, stands by the monument keeping perpetual ward. The fern lies upon the mausoleum. A bronze tablet upon the base has this inscription:

CHESTER ALAN ARTHUR.
Twenty-first President of the United States.
Born Oct. 5, 1830. Died Nov. 18, 1886.

Heavy masonry surrounds the enclosure and in it are the graves of the members of his family, no one of whom lived to witness his preferment. His wife, the idol of his life, who died at forty-three in 1880, the daughter of the brave Herndon of the ill-fated Central America, lies here under a beautiful marble monument. Hard by are her mother, a Lewis of Culpepper, Va., and so possibly allied to the Washington family; and her prattling boy, William Lewis Herndon, who died when two and a half years old. Here, too, are the President's father, mother and sister. Steinwehr Post had beautifully dedecked the President's grave and the Arthur Club of New York had sent a silken flag. Some may not know that Chester A. Arthur was Adjutant General of New York during the war and that he supervised the enlistment of more men than any one officer in the Union. "Lord, what is my mind when I turn away from the grave of the man whom the Republicans might have elected in 1884.

Winding along through this beautiful burial place, repeating to myself the XXIII Psalm and anon the XXXVIII, I came upon the graves of the Spencers. Mighty men were they in their day and in the annals of the State. Ambr6se had been Attorney General of the State, mayor of Albany, member of Congress and Chief Justice of the State's Supreme Court. His son, John C., was even more famous and, at times, held many offices. He had been Secretary of State and with President Tyler was Secretary of War. As I regard this towering shaft, I recall some of the sorrow that must have been his when his son Phillip in the United States Navy, was hanged for alleged mutiny. Place could not give him happiness. All the honors of his life he would have gladly given for the life of that wayward boy. But I must hasten, leaving behind me material for many pages of history, biography and reflection.

Walter D. Berry who was recently graduated from the physical department of the Springfield School for Christian Workers, will be an instructor to the summer classes at that school this summer.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

At this time of year both the Jacket and the shawl can be had for ever so little in comparison to what you are compelled to pay for them in the regular season.

In the cloak room there is one counter on which are displayed quite a number of Jackets made of the best cloth, in the best way, and a card stands over them with the information that you can take your choice among them for $5.

Perhaps if you prefer a Wrap that will look a little more dressy than a Jacket and that you can slip on and off more easily, you may be able to find just what you would like at such a reduction in price that you would be amply paid for making the purchase now.

We know several of the best dressed ladies in Worcester who save ever so much money by buying the very best goods a little out of the regular season and holding them over until they want them.

Take it, for instance, in the very best qualities of fine dress goods, you can get at the present time the very highest order of goods just as handsome as any sold this year, and that will be as beautiful next season as any your friends will have, and more than all else, you can own them at a price per yard ever so much less than the same goods cost all through the season.

If you want a Tennis Suit then the Flannel section will show you all the beauties of French manufacture as well as the accumulated goodness of our home products.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!

It saves Time,
Labor and Fuel,
(two-thirds cent
per hr. for fuel.)

Manufacturers
Guarantee every
Iron.

TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, M'g. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

The Ware-Pratt Company

Invite attention to an extensive display of

Fine Clothing for Men, Boys and Children.

The Latest Fashions, Exclusive Styles from our own workshops, Honest Goods and the Lowest Prices, Grade and Quality considered.

Our Custom Department is teeming with the Newest styles, Colorings and Materials, which go to make up the finest lines we have ever shown.

The Ware-Pratt Company,

MANUFACTURERS AND RETAILERS,

408 and 412 Main Street,

Worcester.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts. State of the order March 18, 1891: Membership, 4915. Amount loaned for Relief, $15,200; Reserve Fund, $22,922.40; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,759.08; Total, $44,975.48. Men and women admitted upon the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600.

Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organization wanted. Address NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

LATHROP * BROTHERS,

LADIES', MEN'S AND CHILDREN'S

FINE AND MEDIUM SHOES

Of the most approved process of manufacture, meeting every requirement of Quality, Comfort and Style.

564 MAIN STREET, Franklin Square.

W. A. ENGLAND,

DEALER IN

FINE WATCHES,
CLOCKS, JEWELRY
& OPTICAL GOODS.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

394 Main Street.

E. W. COFFIN, Store Fixtures

310 Main Street, Worcester.
Name this Paper.

Now is the Time to Buy a

CARRIAGE !

at a Small Profit.

Geo. C. Dewhurst, 17 Park St.,

OPP. THE COMMON.

Larkin's, 395 Main St., Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps. Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.,

Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Grate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD. Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main St.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LIGHT

VOL. III. No. 17. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 1891. FIVE CENTS.

CLASS OF '91 W. H. S. OFFICERS.

Miss Alice I. Hastings, Historian.	H. H. Ames, Jr., Treasurer.
Harry S. Davis, Chairman Ex. Com.	C. P. Haselden, President.	Miss Lula A. Morgan, Secretary.
Miss Lucy D. Heald, Vice-Pres. and Salutatorian.	E. H. Warren, Valetorian,

PUTNAM & SPRAGUE CO.

TO REDUCE OUR VERY FULL STOCK OF

FURNITURE

WE OFFER SPECIAL INDUCEMENTS TO PURCHASERS.

Our store was never so full of FINE, MEDIUM COST and COMMON goods at this season of the year, including SUMMER Furniture, in desirable styles. A full assortment of the best REFRIGERATORS made, all at reduced prices for the rest of the season. Now is the time to secure one at a bargain. The LEONARD is of hard wood, and is the very best. See it before you buy any other. Our CHILDREN'S CARRIAGES may be bought at cost. An excellent assortment from which to select at $5 and upwards. Liberal terms of credit if desired at the lowest prices, with a Special Discount to Cash Buyers.

247 and 249 Main Street, Corner Central.

YARMOUTH S. S. CO.,

(Limited) Shortest and Most Direct Route Between United States & Nova Scotia, via the favorite sea-going and new steamships "Boston" and "Yarmouth." Sea voyage only 15 to 17 hours. Tickets sold to all parts of Nova Scotia.

Steamer will leave Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston, for Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 11 o'clock A. M.

Returning will leave Yarmouth for Boston every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Close connections made at Yarmouth with all Railway, Steamboat and Stage lines to all points in N. S.

For further information write for folder or apply to G. Y. Lancaster, W. H. Church & Co., O. F. Rawson, Worcester; or J. F. Spinney, Agent, Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the

ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,

92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

C. H. DRAPER,

Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

Three Large Moving Wagons. Baggage Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!
It saves Time,
Labor and Fuel,
(two-thirds cost
per hr. for fuel.)
Manufacturers
Guarantee every
Iron.
TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, Mfg. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

OXYGEN

We have the genuine

Oxygen Treatment

FOR THE CURE AND PREVENTION OF DISEASE.

It is not a Drug, but Nature's true Restorative in debility and all disordered conditions of the system.

Our Oxygen is fresh every day.

Prepared and administered with the utmost care by a Physician of large experience.

It will pay to investigate our METHODS and PRICES.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

LINCOLN BLOCK,

368 1-2 Main, Cor. Elm.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

Quinsigamond Lake ICE

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Special attention given to the family trade.

Garfield & Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 143-4.

N. G. TUCKER.

W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER & SON,

SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street,

Worcester, Mass.

384

MAIN STREET

388

Bigelow & Longley

are prepared to show all the Latest Novelties in

CUSTOM AND READY-MADE

*CLOTHING*

MEN'S, YOUTH'S, BOYS' or CHILDREN.

We can give you a SPRING OVERCOAT from $5 to $25, in all the latest shades made up with silk face and silk sleeve linings.

CHEVIOT SUITS

in blue or black, cut single or double-breasted. Prices from $8 to $25. Also a fine assortment of

Blue and Black Serges,

$15 $15 PER SUIT $15 $15

Indigo Blue Flannel and Yacht Cloth Suits,

we can give you a single or double-breasted, at prices from $6 to $15, and GUARANTEE THE COLOR. An elegant line of light and dark colored

Scotches and Fancy Cassimeres,

from $6 to $25. The best assortment of light colored TROUSERS we have ever shown, from $3 to $7. FANCY VESTS—Marseilles and Duck. Also a lot of dark Fancy Cassimeres and Silks, from 75c. to $4.

Bigelow & Longley

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 1891.

No. 17

Hail, to the coming singers!
Hail, to the brave light-bringers!
Forward I reach and share
All that they sing and dare.

—J. G. Whitier.

Graduation week.

School is done, but do not run,
School is out but do not shout.

How many readers of LIGHT repeated those words when they were young and living in some remote town of this or some other state?

What a happy walk that was, home from school, on the last day? How lightly the bundle of books was borne! Happily it was before the day of free text books and a few books were in every house.

We went home from school as lightly and joyously as though the rules of school were never to enthrall us again. What a heaven, the vacation was to us and it is just the same to our children. "All work and no play make Jack a dull boy." His time for play is here.

But the graduates! What of them? What are they going to do? That is the question that confronts every American sooner or later. In lands of primogeniture and ruts and grooves, where a man must be and do just what his fathers were and did for generations, the question is not pertinent.

Again it is better to ask directly the graduate, "what are you going to do," than to ask the parent what he is going to do with his boy or girl. Many a life has been ruined through too much effort, on the parents' part, to make the child follow a course marked out for him. Parental pride is a good thing but it should not over leap itself.

If possible, discover the bent of the young person and then give his energies a tendency in that direction. Don't spoil a good mechanic and make a poor professional man; nor confine to a tradesman's round the party who has all the enthusiasm of an Edison in science. A man with no ear for music can learn to play the piano; but could not his time be better employed? Are there not enough whose souls are wrapt up in the divine art without crowding them with those to whom the art is the hardest work?

The world is so wide; the diversity of taste is so great; the opportunities for satisfying this diversity so common, it seems a pity that any should miss their calling; but they do. College walls have contained many a restless soul; longing for a chance to use his powers in some other manner than that prescribed by parental decree. Happily, the number is less today than it was years ago. There is a broadening of thought, as the years advance, that the fathers didn't think of.

The opening of Technical Schools has had much to do with this. Very few boys go to these who do not have a natural aptness for mechanics in some form, or a liking for science. As a rule, these schools have exhibited less mischief, less turmoil and confusion than the regular colleges to which a large portion of the students were sent. There is just this difference between going and being sent. Those who go, are acting their own part. Those who are sent are acting for others.

Freedom which, for so long a time, has been the birthright of Americans, should be had in the choice of life work. Of course, there are many people who have no particular bent nor proclivity. They drop into the first opening and indifferently fit any orifice, but it is not for such that anxiety is expressed. It is rather for that young man or woman who, getting tastes possibly from an ancestor generations back, desires to follow a calling distasteful to the parents. It is not so very long since that the possibilities of an excellent musician were spoiled in the determination to make a farmer of the son. The father loved his calling and he could not understand why his boy should not follow in his footsteps. The outcome was sorrow for the parent and failure for the son.

Solomon was all right as to the bending of twigs; but have a care in bending that the direction be such as to best find the sunlight and to secure the very best altitude and the utmost foliage. It is easy enough to bend a twig; but in many cases why bend at all. If it is possible to grow an upright, symmetrical tree why try to incline it? It is possible to do just that thing. This is no attempt to be wiser than the ancients, but it is just an application of common sense to every day living and it has special significance at this moment when our boys and girls are leaving school and college. If a child has a commendable tendency, encourage it, don't try to eradicate it and substitute some hobby of your own.

Much ink has been shed over the late connection of the Prince of Wales with Baccarat scandal. "Pulpits, drums ecclesiastic have been beat with the fist instead of a stick" and all have vowed that if his Royal Highness didn't apologize or reform or do something of the sort his imperial succession was endangered. One enthusiastic American journal wonders how long such a man would be tolerated in America! What a very short memory! How long is it since the two great parties in this country were conclusively proving that the pot was blacker than the kettle, and vice versa and each making its assertions good with reference to the heads of the respective tickets. How long will it take us, as a people, to recover from the contamination of the 1884 campaign, and yet in such a glass house, some Americans are wild with disgust. "Look at home" is a good motto.

Yet this is no exculpation of H. R. H., Albert

Edward. "You're another" clears no one. If the indiscretions of the Prince should render his succession uncertain, no one on this side the Atlantic ought to particularly care. It is possible that England has so far advanced that she will not forgive what she for years condoned in the royal great uncles of the Prince, George IV and William IV. Both had families and the lovers of erotic literature delight in the tales of the infamy of the royal sinners, for the families were not recognized in the law. England, virtuous England, shut her eyes then, perhaps she will again; but there has been a tremendous advance in forty years. The Victorian reign has not been favorable to scandal. Why couldn't this Prince have been more like his father and mother whom all the world honors.

Once more as to a free country. Diogenes lived in a tub and all history has lauded the fact; but a Worcester couple essay living in a box and no end of commotion ensues. Where is the difference? Is it the introduction of the woman and the baby in the case? Very likely. Few would object to Mr. Pitts living in a box or a hole; but when a hapless woman and a helpless babe are included then the public sees neither philosophy nor decency and insists, where so many houses exist, that the weaker portion of the company be covered. Their living thus on Mountain Street has afforded a first-class sensation; but as to the necessity of such a course, none exists in this land. The woman's devotion to her crippled husband, however, is an excellent example of wifely constancy. As they have come into the city the sensation is over and they will be lost to view. Let us hope that their next housekeeping venture will be more successful.

LIGHT some weeks since alluded to the magnificent growth of tulips on Chestnut Street in the garden of the Misses Burnside. The tulips lived their brief day and then came the display of roses, so lovely that even George Bancroft, that nonparcil of connoisseurs, would have paused to admire. It is a series of transformations that the passers get in this beautiful spot. Now the roses fade and the next opening will be,—well it doth not yet appear what it will be, but it will be lovely. A long range of plants are growing to the blossoming point. What a large garden the public has! And all it has to do is just to go and look. A portion, at least, of this public is very grateful.

Mr. Howard E. Sumner, son of E. A. Sumner, is home from his first year in Brown University.

Queer.

Here is a girls college, not a masculine even among the teachers, yet our correspondent at Wellesley writes us that when the annual float came, June 13, the girls had to anchor to a buoy, before they could sing. Cheer up boys, you are of some account after all.

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND
HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.

Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building,
Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as
second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 1891.

Two Bicycles!

THIRTY-FIVE DOLLARS!

One will be given to that boy or girl who secures the most cash subscriptions for LIGHT between this date, May 30th and August 1st, 1891.

The other is for the boy who sells the largest number of papers during the same time.

Come up to the office, boys, and talk it over.

Every failure to receive LIGHT promptly should be, at once, reported at this office.

All scraps of informations concerning persons and events, thankfully received.

Hereafter, it will be understood that all articles in LIGHT, not ascribed, save recipes, squibs, fashion and household notes were written for this paper.

Friends sending in manuscripts will not complain if they are not printed at once. There are many waiting. Yet LIGHT is always glad to receive communications and, if meritorious, to print them.

Cut Them Out.

Original receipts by Maria Parloa, Mrs. Rorer, Amy Barnes, Mrs. Lincoln, Miss Bedford, Marion Harland, Mrs. Dearborn and other adepts in the culinary art will appear in our columns, the first one to-day, page 402.

These receipts were contributed to the Cleveland Baking Powder Company and that company is going to use part of its advertising space for their insertion.

Housekeepers should not miss one of these practical receipts. Cut them out. They are worthy of a place in your own cook book.

The Sunday Arena, Vol. I, No. I, June 21, comes to our desk from Lowell. It has an excellently bright and business like appearance and seems to be disposed to consider fairly all live topics.

Our pictures, this week, represent various artists as Rice for Misses Hastings and Heald and Messrs. Davis and Haselden; Lawrence for Mr. Warren; Davis, Miss Morgan; and Underwood for Mr. Ames.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

The pupils of Mr. B. D. Allen gave their sixth and closing recital of the season, last Saturday afternoon at Mr. Allen's studio, 173 Main Street. They were assisted by Mrs. H. W. Johnson, vocalist and Miss Kitty Fish, violinist. The pupils who took part were Miss E. M. Wheelock, Miss Florence Holt, Miss C. M. Milliken, Miss Eva Finnerty and Frank M. Howe.

The closing recitals by the vocal and piano pupils of Mrs. F. W. Ruggles took place Tuesday afternoon and evening at her home, 31 Wellington Street.

The closing recitals by the pupils of Walter Scott Kennedy were given Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings in Association Hall.

The closing recitals by Mr. A. S. Allen's pupils took place at Gorham's music rooms Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. Those taking part Wednesday were Edith Jacques, Eliza Condon, Mary Cosgrove, Miss Mattie Houghton, Miss E. Gunn, Miss N. Colbert, Miss N. Snow, Miss S. Mahew, Miss E. Sheelry, Emmett Barry, Master I. Fergeusen, Master C. Brown, Harry R. Sorell. Thursday, the participants were Miss A. Colles, Miss M. Forehand, Miss L. Atwood, Miss McEndy, Miss F. Brigham, Miss E. Wood, Miss Eva Martin, Miss Lizzie Moore, Miss M. Houghton, Miss Nellie Foley, Miss Nellie Kerwin, Mr. E. Straw.

SOUTH END NEWS.

Leopold Strauss, 804 Main street sails July 9th, for a short European trip. His family will spend the summer months at Swampscott, Mass.

Miss Gertrude Smith, 21 Oread street has returned from Smith College.

Miss Carrie Smith has returned from her recent trip to Boston.

Mr. E. Walter Smith, son of Col. Henry E. Smith, is at home from Phillips Exeter Academy.

Mr. Charles C. Brown, of the well known South End firm of Joslyn & Brown, was united in marriage with Miss Alice Clement, at Florence Mass, Wednesday P. M. at 5 o'clock. A party of Worcester friends attended the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Brown will be at home to their friends, after July 1st, at No. 10 Florence street.

Miss Alice W. Norcross, class of '94 Wellesley College returned home last Wednesday.

Dr. A. W. Eldred attended a banquet of the Harvard Alumni at the Thorndyke, Boston Tuesday night.

A lawn-party, in aid of the Baldwinville Cottages, was held at the residence of Mrs. Colton, on Queen street, Thursday evening.

The South End Lend-a-hand club met in the Y. M. C. A. parlors June 18th, and elected the following officers: Miss Fannie Day President, Miss Carrie Stockwell, Vice-President; Miss Florence Keith, Secretary; Miss Bertha Reed Treasurer.

The Worcester Union Y. P. S. E. met in Rutland Tuesday evening. Nearly five hundred went from this city and had a very enjoyable time.

Mr. M. P. Roach has just completed a new house on Woodbine Street.

Anna Gleason Taft and Katherine Hoxie Taft, Class of '94 Smith College, are at home.

Miss Nellie Fanning, was graduated from Holyoke Seminary last Thursday.

People residing in the vicinity of King Street, report the appearance of sneak thieves. Several petty larcinies have already been committed. Keep your doors locked.

Tennis Playing continues brisk on the Crescent grounds. The following plays being made, Monday afternoon, Temple beat Whittemore, 6-4, 6-3 Billings beat Whittemore. 6-0

Rev. Dr. Archibald McCullagh received a telegram Wednesday, stating that his brother was dangerously ill in Buffalo, and he left at once for that city.

The funeral of Wm. F. Merrill was held with Masonic honors Thursday, the Rev. J. F. Lovering of Boston, officiating. The burial was in Hope Cemetery. H. B. Keith, T. B. Hamilton, J. N. Morse Jr., George L. Sanborn and D. E. Spencer were bearers.

Mrs. F. S. York has purchased the Hub lodging house at 22½ Pleasant Street and after thorough renovation, will open a first-class boarding house.

Mrs. Walter T. Clark, of Wellington Street, is visiting her home in Portland, Me.

C. C. Woodman.

Through the kindness of friends, a fine crayon portrait of the late master of the Ledge Street School, from the hands of Eugene A. O'Conner was hung in the school house, Friday. This is a very commendable and appreciative act on the part of all concerned.

A Free Excursion Ticket

is given every one who buys 10 tickets for the popular excursion to Mystic Island, Watch Hill and Block Island on July 3. This is, beyond doubt, the cheapest and best excursion ever offered the Worcester public. Prices of tickets are only $1.25, $1.50 and $1.75. The train leaves Worcester at 6.30 a.m., stopping at the Junction and Cambridge Street stations, by request, for South end parties, going and returning. The seaworthy and staunch steamer Block Island is taken at 8.30 a.m., at Norwich, for the most enjoyable sea trip on the New England coast. The party is due in Worcester before 9 p.m. The number of tickets is limited and selling well. Those who wish to go should get their tickets early or they may get left. They are on sale at George Y. Lancaster's, 434 Main Street, opposite Front Street.

The Davis Art Store on Pearl Street has just evolved another indication of prosperity. The Y. M. C. A. has found means of enlarging the back part of the store, so that a very pretty, commodious Art Gallery has been made. Here works of art of all kinds can be better displayed than hitherto. At present on an easel is a fine etching by King entitled, "The Last Glimpse". It is high priced on parchment; but it is elegant. Another charming bit of art is a water color, "The River" by English of New York. It has no duplicate and those who love scenery should call and see this. The bust of President Lincoln is still on exhibition.

Boston Store.

Established 1870.

Sole Agency { Centeneri Gloves.
Butterick's Paper Patterns.
E. C. Burt's Shoes.
Foster Kid Gloves.

Worcester, Friday, June 26, 1891.

We have been taught that "a nimble sixpence is better than a slow shillin'." And experience has forced us to believe it.

In fact, it can be well said that the Boston Store has rapidly grown to its present mammoth proportions by the persistent practice of this principle.

It is written, that if you lead a boy in the right path, that when he is old he will not depart from it. Our predecessors have left us a rich legacy by their practice of this principle of the "nimble sixpence" and the following will convince the people of this community that we are not departing from it.

These offers below may be safely reckoned as some of the greatest bargains that were ever placed upon the counters of any New England Store.

DENHOLM & MCKAY COMPANY.

Women's night gowns; firm, heavy cotton; well made; plaited yoke, feather-stitched; ruffle on neck and sleeves. Price 25c; never sold less than 50c.

Tussah cloth, the season's favorite cotton dress fabric, 6 1-4c yard.

Yard wide cotton beige, 8c yard; reduced from 12 1-2c.

Cotton crepes; our price 12 1-2c.

Ginghams, 32-inch, 15c yard.

Sateens, 6 1-4c yard; we do not claim their worth to be 25c; but they are superior to any sateens ever before offered at this price.

Mohair braid, 2c yard.

Black diamond mohair braid, 1 to 3 inches wide, 4c a yard.

Fancy colored braids, 2c yard; light colors and dark.

Fancy black silk ornaments for dress trimming, 1c each.

Jet pendant fringe, 15c yard; reduced yesterday from $1.25.

Black silk-braid points, 12 inches long and handsome, 25c each; reduced yesterday from 62 1-2c.

Eight-inch points of same, 10c each; reduced yesterday from 50c.

Jet trimmings, 98c yard; reduced yesterday from $2.00

Plaid surah silks, worth $1 and $1.25 have been 69c here for some time.

Beautiful India wash silks, 59c; new silks; highly desirable; some exclusive patterns.

One of the most prominent bargains ever put on a silk counter in New England is the wash surahs at 25c; 30 inches wide; 23 patterns, light and dark and striped.

The only complete line of shades in Lansdowne that is in the city is here. $1.00 a yard.

Eagle pencils, No. 140—round—4c dozen; rubber inserted one inch deep in the end and can be sharpened same at the lead end.

Fancy-striped flannel blazers, $1 69; this is indisputably the best value in blazers now being offered in this market.

Children's cream, all-wool blazers, 68c; just reduced from $2.

Children's cream, all-wool, flannel blouses, $1.29; just reduced from $2 50.

Women's cream, all-wool flannel blouses, $1 48; just reduced from $2 50.

These are all of the Binghamton goods, which are celebrated; and will never shrink.

Cotton diaper, 18 inch, 35c for piece of ten yards.

The largest white Marseilles bed spread in America for 97c.

White spread, 67c; cannot be duplicated at $7 1-2c any where.

Decorated tea-sets of 56 pieces, $2.29; worth $3.50, honor bright.

Mull ties, 12 1-2c each, worth 20c.

Oxford ties, patent tips, scalloped tops; very neat, $1.49; just reduced from $2.

A large bottle of an excellent shoe dressing will be given free today with every pair of shoes sold; other days we get a good price for it.

We will frame, ready to hang, diplomas from High School, Tech or Academy, for from 15 to 20 per cent less than regular prices; choice in any style of frame from the whole stock of mouldings.

Fine damask linen tray clothes, stamped, 20x30 inches, fringed all around, 15c each; worth 25c.

Fine German damask linen tray cloth, stamped, fringed, size 24x36 inches; 37 1-2c; worth 50c.

Figured Momie linen scarfs, with sewed fringe all around, size 18x54 inch, price 28c, worth 48c; size 18x72 inch, price 36c, worth 58c.

Stamped face cloths, 7c, worth 10c.

24-inch square plush squares, $1; reduced today from $1.25.

45-inch Swiss white flounces, 48c yard; worth 75c.

Cream, all wool tennis flannels, striped in fine lines of contrasting; 36 inch, 39c yard; same goods as are being shown in this city at 50c.

Ten patterns in fine French tennis and yachting flannels; colored stripes on cream grounds, broad and narrow; 40 inch, all wool, 49c yard; we have positive evidence of these flannels now being offered in Worcester at 75c yard.

Men's imitation Shawknit hose; gray, seamless, summer weight; got the wear in 'em; 3 pairs for 25c; before lowest price 12 1-2c one pair.

Foulard stripe mohair, 40-inch, light shades; 29c yard; regular price 50c.

The favorite perfumes we have sold for the past two years at 25c an ounce, now 10c per ounce; 13 delightful odors; all full strength triple extracts, and the best offer for you we have ever made in perfumes.

Lily of the Valley, New Mown Hay,
Violet, White Lilac,
Marie Stuart, Trailing Arbutus,
Wild Olive, Blue Bells,
West End, Ylang Ylang,
Opponax, Stephanotis,
Rose Geranium.

Lady Grey perfumes, 30c an ounce; regular price, 38c; ten odors.

Pears' unscented soap, 10c.

July Scribner's 22c; Harper's, 28c; St. Nicholas, 22c; and Ladies' Home Journal, 9c—now ready.

Denholm & McKay Company.

In Medfield.

Though the Heavens did not smile upon the Worcester Society of Antiquity in its trip to Medfield, Saturday, the 20th, and though the B. & A. R. R. did not furnish a special car, as promised, yet the excursion was one of the most instructive and enjoyable in the long list of pleasureable memories. There started away from our city, at 7.55 a.m., in spite of lowering skies the following ladies and gentlemen: President E. B. Crane and wife, Librarian T. A. Dickinson and daughter, A. S. Roe, Rev. S. D. Hosmer, Rev. Calvin Stebbins, F. P. Rice, J. C. Otis, wife and daughter, George Sumner and wife, L. A. Ely and wife, H. H. Chamberlin, A. G. Mann, W. H. Sawyer and wife, Hon. Clark Jillson, wife and daughter, Mrs. J. C. Wyman, Herbert Wesby, Walter Davidson, J. L. Estey, G. L. Estey and wife, Hon. Phineas Ball, wife and daughter, A. K. Gould and wife, C. B. Eaton, J. C. Pellett, Addison Palmer and wife, George Maynard, C. G. Wood, wife and daughter, H. W. Hubbard, A. A. Barker and wife, Miss Nellie Coombs, Richard O'Flynn, R. N. Merriam, C. M. Thayer, F. A. Blake and wife, Stephen Salisbury, W. J. Stone and wife, George E. Arnold, Samuel E. Staples, Mrs. A. S. Lowell, Mrs. A. A. Rheutan, Rev. Carleton A. Staples, of Lexington, George F. Daniells of Oxford, H. F. Wing of Grafton, Rev. H. H. Paine, Misses Ida, Gertrude and Lillian Metcalf of Ashland, F. E. Blake of Boston, E. P. Kimbal, Telegram, Caleb Wall, Spy. There was animated conversation all the way to Medfield and when the landing was made, one of the first to greet the party was our long time respected fellow citizen, Joseph Lovell, now living with his son, Albert A., in Medfield.

Mr A. A. Lovell was president of the day and it is not too much to say that the whole scheme of going was largely the result of his forethought and invitation. Certainly no one could have discharged the duties of the occasion more neatly than did our Ex-Worcester boy. At the R. R. station the following committee of arrangement met the visitors and extended a most cordial greeting: Prof. W. S. Tilden, historian of the town, Albert A. Lovell, president of the day, Col. E. V. Mitchell, James Hewins, Esq., Joseph A. Allen, Esq., J. B. Hale, Esq., Rev. W. W. Hayward, Rev. N. T. Dyer, Dr. J. H. Richardson, Hamlet Wright, George L. Hurl and W. W. Mitchell, Esq.

With very commendable thoughtfulness, the citizens had prepared a circular describing the noteworthy points to be visited on the way through the town. These circulars were given away with lavish generosity. It was soon evident that we were in a town that took pleasure and pride in its local history. An elegant new house, near the station has, above its stained glass windows, a tablet with reference to King Philip, the house doubtless marking the site of something connected with the career of that ubiquitous chieftain. Indeed, the naming of homes from some Indian source is quite the thing here, there being no less than twenty-eight estates thus labelled. The name is given upon a tablet of bronze 11 inches by 3½ and is placed over the main entrance. Sometimes queer experiences arise as the item found elsewhere will indicate.

The first halt was at the old first church; the third in the series, or better it is the second made over. This second was built in 1789 and was revamped in 1874. The very first was erected in 1653, two years after the settlement began. Into the vestry, visitors and townspeople went, where Mr. A. A. Lovell proceeded to give his address, a finished and valuable production, but, unfortunately, before he had ended, the bugle sounded for the start of the march. It is probable that this paper will be given in full in the annual Proceedings of the Society of which Mr. Lovell has been a member for many years. To Mr. Lovell's welcome, President Crane properly responded and then we filed out to take our places in the barges that had been provided for us, under the sharp observation of the girls in the extensive straw shops, opposite, where labor for a while seemed to be suspended.

One after another the barges and carriages were filled and the line proceeded along the village street past Peak House, which is said to have been one of the houses which escaped at the burning of the town, by the Indians, in 1675. It is now occupied by the talented young artist J. J. Francis, Esq. Within a few rods of this house, is the site of the first house, burned in the aforesaid campaign. It was owned by Samuel Morse. A facetious Medfieldian, riding in one of the barges, remarked that he believed that the keyhole of the original Peak house had been preserved, thus indicating that the antiquity of the edifice was somewhat apocryphal. At any rate, the house is quaint and curious, named as it is from its strange construction. It is ten feet to the eaves; but twelve from that point to the ridgepole. In Barber's Historical Collections, this is pictured as one of the rarest houses in the state. Here Prof. Tilden noted our proximity to the site of the Old Morse house. On we go through a road, closely pressed by trees till we come to the end of a road where we debark and seek the Old Stockade, in the easterly section of the town. This was erected for the protection of the settlers of this section of the town. The site is well preserved, the outlines being still very distinct. A deep hole in the ground marks the historic spot. Hard by is a pond covered with the handsomest of lilies and the owner kindly wades in and generously supplies all lily loving tourists with flowers to their heart's content. The loveliest of roses grow in a great bed upon the bank and what choice buds are cut away for button holes! We think, too, that this rose bush, still blooming, marks an ancient home, long since disappeared and forgotten. The hands that planted are now clay again, but the bush blooms on, immortal like the souls of those who erstwhile admired its loveliness.

Again we embark, flanked by a number of boys who have horses and saddles and ride at will. Back again through our wooded way, till we turn to our left and ride past Henry Adams' House, the owner of which was the first town clerk of Medfield, and who was killed in the doorway of this house by the Indians, during the massacre. A short distance from this house, we see the house in which lived Hannah Adams the first literary woman, born in America. The rain filled air prevents our seeing Noon Hill, the highest point in town, which was the place of rendezvous for the Indians the day before their attack. From the hill may be had a view of Stop River Meadows and of the whole town.

We ride back into the village by another street, remarking the thrifty appearance of the homes and halt next at the burying ground. Here a full half hour is spent in looking over the most ancient portions of it. A monument of sandstone, in three parts, commemorates the Morses among the first settlers. The oldest inscription bears date of 1661 and is that of Lydia Lovell. The quaintest inscription is that to the memory of Charles Onion Esq. Several years before he died, he placed the stone here, with a hand pointing downward, with the words, "Bury me here." He died in 1852, having been postmaster thirty years. It is said that his bibulous habits frequently endangered his position; but a friend at court, Lieut. Geo. Derby succeeded in keeping him in.

Once more we enter the vehicles and set out on a most delightful ride, getting just a peep of the beautiful Willow Way, of the meadows, whence comes the name Medfield and of the hillside beyond, where Philip and his Braves celebrated their victory. We dash along through Dingle Dell, pass the old home of Lowell Mason, Ellis House, and thence ride down North Street, passing some of the finest residences in town, among them those of Mrs. Helen Curtis and Col. E. V. Mitchell, also passing the enormous Excelsior Straw works which is the largest industry in town, also one of the largest establishments of its kind in the country, and like John Gilpin where we first got up we, at last, got down. It is time to move upon the Town Hall where through the generosity of Col. Mitchell a sumptuous repast is served for us. A Boston caterer has been drawn upon and he and his men with prominent Medfield gentlemen serve us right royally. The hall is filled to its limit and while we eat, an orchestra discoursed the sweetest of music. The Hall, itself is the result of the munificence of a Medfield gentleman, Geo. W. Chenery, a tablet to whose memory is seen as we begin the ascent and whose name the hall very properly bears. A blessing is asked by the Rev. Mr. Dyer and the travel hungered party fall to with vigor.

Mindful of Lowell Mason's place in musical history three of his tunes are used in singing, The Missionary Hymn, Hebron and Hamburg. He has credit, too, for our immortal "America" in that he suggested to Mr. Smith the propriety of words to fit the tune of "God save the King." The dinner ended, Mr. Lovell takes the post of director of the following exercises and his whole part is borne most felicitously. The singing is under the direction of Historian Tilden who is also a successor of Lowell Mason in the teaching of music in the schools.

President Crane is first introduced and he speaks of the work of the Worcester Society and of its plans and prospects for the future.

Mr. Stephen Salisbury, as the President of the American Antiquarian Society, is next presented and he very happily responds for that ancient and respected body. Since Mr. Salisbury is an honorary member of the Society of Antiquity and its most munificent benefactor there is a deal of appositeness in his presence and words.

Mr. James Hewins of Medfield follows in a very entertaining paper on the Indian names that have been given to the homes of the village. The longest and most difficult he pronounces with apparent ease. This paper will be printed in full by the society. It is a valuable accession to aboriginal lore. Worcester's Ex-Mayor, Clark Jilson arose to respond to the sentiment of "Old books and old friends." Nothing could be more fitting. All know that he dearly loves them and, all day, he had been carrying around under his arm a volume printed in 1492, a date significant to Americans. He counseled the Medfield people to start a society of a historic character. The tetra-centennial year will be a good one in which to begin it.

Rev. W. W. Hayward, the fifteenth pastor of the First church next spoke for the ministers of the town and his remarks were most enjoyable from first to last, bringing out as he did many interesting and pertinent facts, among others that the first prayer offered at a funeral in New England was in 1665 at that of William Baxter in Roxbury. Many of the early pastors were named, the fifth being Daniel C. Sanders, first President of the University of Vermont. The past is curiously linked with the present, in that the gentleman who married the president's eldest daughter is yet living, though he will attain the great age of one hundred years in October next, Amos A. Parker, of Fitzwilliam, N. H., whose picture recently appeared in LIGHT. In a recent communication, he refers to a dance had on the College Campus at Burlington and his leading out first that daughter who subsequently became his wife.

To the tune of Hebron by Mason were sung the words beginning, "Thus far the Lord has led me on," and then Mr. Samuel E. Staples fittingly spoke as the founder of our Worcester society. He glowingly eulogized Lowell Mason for the part he had borne in popularizing music. Dedham's Historical Society was represented by Erastus Worthington, who spoke in terms of praise of his own, and her sister town. There were many people present whose pedigree dates back to Dedham and all were interested in the remarks of her representative.

Rev. Carlton A. Staples of Lexington responded for that ancient borough, but preferred, rather to confine his remarks to observations of his in Mendon and Medfield. It seems that, early in life, he had taught school here and that children of his pupils were before him as he spoke. F. E. Blake of the Massachusetts Genealogical Society was pithy and pointed in his remarks, asking for charity for all those who rode hobbies, while Prof. Tilden referred particularly to Lowell Mason's musical work. Prof. N. T. Alden of Newton spoke as one to the manor born and extolled the proverbial independence of his native town. A. S. Roe in his response, chose rather to dwell on what Medfield and the country owe to Lieut. George Derby, the John Phoenix of the humorous press forty years ago and to the great tune writer, Lowell Mason. The last speaker was Joseph A. Allen who spoke briefly but pleasantly rehearsing a characteristic anecdote of Hannah Adams, the historian. Then came the singing of America and a vote of thanks by the visitors to their entertainers. In the few minutes left, the old home of Lieut. Derby and his mother was visited. It is just back of the elegant residence of Mrs. Curtis. Then came the walk to the station, the good bys and we were off for home. The day was well spent. Worcester has incurred a debt that she will be glad to pay at some future time. Historic associations have been renewed and hereafter Medfield means more than a name to those who made up the excursion. All the visitors were pleased at seeing the Lovells, father and son, and congratulate Medfield on the accession of these gentlemen as citizens.

Couldn't Remember.

Those who visited Medfield last Saturday with the "Antiquarians" undoubtedly noticed that many of the houses in town bore Indian names. The townspeople, however, are not as familiar with these names as they might be. Recently a man called at Mr. Blank's house which bore the name "Awashamog" in bronze letters above the door. Supposing this to be the name of the family living within, and wishing to see the man of the house, he said to the young lady who came to the door, "Good morning. Is Mr. Awashamog in? If he is—"

"Mr. who?" interrupted the young lady.

"Mr. Awashamog. He lives here, doesn't he?"

"Why no indeed," she answered endeavoring to suppress a laugh, "What made you think so?"

The man looked first at the young woman, then at the bronze sign, and observed, as he drove one of his hands deep into his trousers' pocket, and scratched his head with the other, "Well, that's what it says on your door plate, anyhow!"

"Why, what do you mean," she exclaimed, and stepping out to see what he was looking at, beheld the name "Awashamog" in bold relief just above the door. After a moment's silence she burst out with a merry peal of laughter, and said, "Why, that's not Papa's name, that's the name they have given to our house. He told me what he was going to call the house, but I can't remember those horrid Indian names."

It was not a fall from grace, that Milton K. Light, Commander of the Christian Crusaders suffered last Monday evening, nor did his name give him any qualities whereby the shock of stopping was lightened. He struck hard. He should have remembered the parable about him that climbeth up some other way; but he didn't and tried to get into his lodgings by means of a ladder, the door being locked, and so received very serious injuries.

Mr. Franklin Whipple, for more than forty years a respected citizen of Worcester, was buried from his late home, No. 16 Oread Street, Tuesday. The Rev. A. Z. Conrad, pastor of the Old South, conducted the services. The bearers were F. F. Hopkins, Alfred Holden, George M. Pierce, George E. Smith, L. B. Witherby and A. C. Munroe, and the burial was in Hope Cemetery. For many years, Mr. Whipple was the accredited head representative of the N. Y. Mutual Life Insurance Company in this city.

Half Holiday.

It has been the custom for some years in the larger cities, for the large dry goods stores to close their places of business some afternoon of the week, during the heated term. In Boston, Jordan, Marsh & Co., R. H. White & Co., Shepherd, Norwell & Co., and several other large houses have, during the months of June, July and August closed their doors at 5 p.m. each day save Saturday and on that day at 1 p.m., and it is conceded by them all that they have lost nothing by so doing, but on the contrary, have gotten better work from their help.

Last year the smaller cities of Springfield and Hartford followed suit in closing a half day, but instead of Saturday, they closed Friday afternoons. Now the question arises, If such a thing works well in larger and smaller cities than Worcester, why not here? We have just as hot weather here. The clerks work just as hard here as elsewhere, and therefore are just as deserving. Then why not grant from all the days in the week just one-half day wherein tired help can go out and breathe God's free air. We are sure work would be done better. Customers would be waited upon by clerks with more smiling faces, and employers, they too would gain in health by this short respite, and at the same time lose nothing in the way of trade.

In a city of the size of Worcester it would not be fair to ask the dry goods merchants to close their houses Saturday afternoons, as this day's trade is the largest of the week, but all know, who know anything about it, that Friday afternoons through the warm months could just as well be given up, for rest and pleasure, as not. Saturday morning would then find each house with clerks well rested and able to put in a long day without complaint.

Let Denholm & McKay Co., Barnard, Sumner & Co., or any of the large houses start such a movement and see how quick the others will fall in line. At this age of the world when labor is so much dependent upon itself and when labor is so united, in our minds no firm would dare to stand out and refuse to join in giving labor a half holiday, for they would surely call down the condemnation of all right minded people in Worcester and the trade of any house or houses would surely suffer, by keeping open doors at a time when other houses were willing to give their help an outing. We hope to see the experiment tried, we are sure nothing will be lost, but on the other hand every thing gained. A CLERK.

Wm. F. Merrill.

There are several societies in this city, as those of Grace, Old South, Piedmont, All Saints which will recall with pleasure the face and voice of Mr. Merrill, for he was a tenor of rare power and sweetness. He had been ill for some time, his death resulting from kidney difficulties. He died at the home of J. E. Hooker on Mill Street, June 22d. He had been an employe of Stearns, the baker, had kept a market, and, at last, had been an insurance solicitor. He was a member of several masonic bodies where his singing powers were much prized. A widow and a wide circle of friends mourn his early death.

School and College.

Wellesley.

The annual Float came Saturday evening, June 13. The evening was perfect and consequently the Float a great success. According to custom, the class boats, after a short exhibition of their rowing, anchored to a buoy near the shore and sang college songs. The scene was made very pretty by colored lights, Japanese lanterns and fireworks.

Sunday morning the Rev. T. K. Beecher of Elmira, New York preached in the chapel.

Monday evening a concert was given by the Beethoven Society, assisted by Miss Estelle S. Andrews and Miss Evangeline Houghton.

Wednesday evening the Senior class went to Auburndale for their class supper.

[Held over from last week.]

Commencement week at Wellesley.

Examinations ended at noon Thursday, June 18.

For several years the Juniors have been accustomed to give the Seniors a reception known as the Junior Promenade. The class of '92 decided to give instead a Garden Party, from 5 to 9 Thursday, June 18, and quite elaborate plans were made for out door entertainment. Unfortunately it rained and the plans had to be suddenly changed to those of the old Junior Promenade. It was, however, a great success, for a long proportion of the guests came in spite of the rain. One of the pleasantest features of the occasion was a concert by the College Glee and Banjo Clubs.

Friday at 11 a.m., the Graduation Concert of the School of Music was given. Among the graduates was Anne May Adams of Worcester, who rendered beautifully, Weber Concert Steuck in F minor, op. 78.

Saturday evening the Seniors, with their friends were received by the president at her house, Norumbega.

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock a prayer meeting was held, conducted by President Shafer. At four the Baccalaureate sermon was preached by Bishop Hurst, music being furnished by the Beethoven Society. At seven the exercises of the day were closed by vespers, consisting of organ selections, solos by Miss Howe and Miss Blanche Marot and choruses by the Glee Club.

Monday was occupied with reunions of classes, receptions given by the college societies to their graduate members, and by the presentation of the picture of Miss Howard, the first president of Wellesley, to the college, which occurred in the afternoon at the Art Building.

The Commencement Concert, given Monday evening, was very fine. It was given by the Naval Battalion Band of Boston.

Tuesday was Commencement Day. The exercises consisted of musical selections by the Beethoven Society, an address by Dr. Wayland of Philadelphia and the awarding of diplomas. Two of the graduates are from Worcester, Lucia Frances Upham, B. A., and Alice Greene Arnold, B. S. Anne May Adams was graduated from the School of Music. At the close of the exercises in the chapel, the college guests, alumnae, and Seniors were invited to the dining room for the Commencement dinner. Prayer was offered by the Rev. S. F. Smith of Newton. The speeches were all very bright and interesting. President Shafer welcomed the guests and spoke of the gifts which have come to Wellesley this year. Dr. Wayland spoke very wittily of the relation between the college and the president. Dr. N. G. Clark of Boston, President of Board of Trustees, gave a statement of the condition of the college and its needs, a chapel and gymnasium. Prof. Lord, acting president for 90-'91, gave an account of the work of the year. Mrs. Mary Livermore spoke in her usual strong way of Woman and her Work. The remaining speeches were from the alumnae and one of the sons of the college. The latter, Rev. Mr. Tuttle, spoke in a very happy manner for the sons of the college. In the evening a reception was given to all the guests of the college. The grounds were beautifully decorated with Japanese lanterns.

Wednesday was Alumnae Day.

Smith.

The festivities for Seniors as well as some for other classes are in full blast. The Junior Promenade was given in the New Alumnae Gymnasium last Wednesday. The building is one of the finest in the country of its kind and never will look prettier than it did on that night, when it was first used.

The governor and his staff visited the chapel this morning and his Excellency made a short speech, offering the congratulations of the Commonwealth to the college, because Smith is now twenty years old.

A dress rehearsal of Senior Dramatics was given last night, and Wednesday, the play will be given before the college.

The Commencement Program takes up the time from Dramatics Saturday evening to the graduating exercises Wednesday morning.

Prof. Schurman of Cornell is to be the orator.

[Held over from last week.]

No more successful Commencement could be wished for than this year brought Smith. There were more alumnae and more company in town than ever before; with the exception of one day, Monday, the weather was fine, and the successful completion of the Alumnae Gymnasium; all together united to make everything go off to the satisfaction of all.

Saturday evening the class gave as dramatics George Eliot's "Spanish Gypsy" in the new Academy of Music. The principal characters, Don Silva, Fedalma, and Zurca were impersonated by Miss Franklin, Miss Bogue and Miss Foster, all of whom showed much dramatic talent.

Sunday afternoon at four o'clock, in the First Church President Seelye preached the Baccalaureate sermon, and at seven o'clock, Prof. Story gave an organ praise service in Assembly Hall.

Monday afternoon there were two receptions, one by the Biological Society in Lilly Hall, the other by the Art school in the Hillier Art Gallery. At this last, the work of the students in oil, crayon and pen and pencil was exhibited. The prizes for the best work were awarded to Miss Dwight and Miss Barri.

The Glee Club promenade in the evening was to have been on the campus, but owing to the weather was held in the Gymnasium. The numbers of the Glee and Banjo Clubs were interspersed with square dances, for which an orchestra furnished the music.

Tuesday morning cleared off bright and beautiful for Ivy Day. The Ivy exercises were held at half past ten, at the back of the main building. The address of welcome was given by Miss Wilson, the class President, the Ivy oration was given by Miss Puffer and then the Ivy song was sung. Miss Hill composed the words and Miss Wood the music.

In the afternoon the Alumnae held a meeting and voted to raise the necessary funds to equip the Gymnasium. One of the Alumnae has already promised the Swedish apparatus and another has given the swimming bath. A reception was held in the Gymnasium afterward, Miss Lawrence '83 and Miss Duquid '84, the past and present Presidents of the Alumnae Association, receiving.

The college reception was held in the Art Gallery in the evening. The grounds were illuminated with Japanese lanterns, and the scene was a very pretty one.

Wednesday morning the Commencement exercises took place in Assembly Hall. The oration, "On the Age of Settlement" was delivered by Prof. Schurman of Cornell. Senator Manderson and Ex-Gov. Robinson gave brief impromptu addresses. Diplomas were presented to 83 girls, this being the largest class which has ever graduated.

After the exercises a collation was given to the class and their friends at the Dewey House, and the class supper in the evening wound up the festivities of the week.

Miss Lucy Pratt represented Worcester in the graduating class. Among Worcester people present were Mrs. Ellen Cheever Rockwood, Hon. and Mrs. C. B. Pratt, and Mrs. Annie Russell Marble.

Principal Cowell of Cushing Academy, Ashburnham, holds a reunion of all his former pupils at Francisstown, (N. H.) Academy, August 20th. Prof. Cowell taught in Francisstown for seven years and during that time had about four hundred pupils under his charge, several of whom are located in this city.

The Fitchburg muddle over one or two sessions in the High School is off, the committee having declared by a large majority that teachers have some rights that the school authorities are bound to respect. In other words, it was voted to allow things to remain as they are and the school will have but one session daily.

At Wellesley, Wednesday, Miss Lucia Frances Upham received the degree of A. B.; Miss Alice Green Arnold, B. S., and Miss Anne May Adams a diploma in piano and harmony. All are Worcester girls and all High School graduates of 1887. By the way, that was an excellent class; well, so were all of the classes.

At Amherst, Worcester boys seem to be pretty well up to the mark. Charles E. Hildreth, son of our ex-Mayor, takes the prize in Junior oratory and Lewis T. Reed gains the first prize in German. Again Worcester High School and its friends are pleased.

Library Additions.

[In LIGHT, May 2, a partial list of the books added to the Free Public Library during the month of March was published with the statement that the remainder would be given in the next number. We were unable to do so then, and they are published now. Each week LIGHT will give the additions of the week previous.]

Remainder of books added during March. I indicates that the book is in the Intermediate department and may be taken out if specially called for.

ALLSOP, F. C. Electric Bell construction - - - - - 33851
 BALCH, E. Glimpses of Old English Homes - - - - - 33852
 BALMIS, J. L. Fundamental Philosophy; tr. by F. H. Brownson, 2 vols. 338389
 BARTELOT, W. G. Life of Edmund M. Bartelot - - - - - 33853
 BEALE, T. W. (ps. W. Maynard) The Light of other Days, 2 vols. - - - 338545
 BEAUMONT, R. Color in woven design - - - - - I
 BEDDOES, T. L. Poetical works; ed. with memoir by E. Gosse, 2 vols. I
 BELL, E. Handbook of Athletic Sports, 3 vols. - - - - - 338568
 BOTTONE, S. R. Electromotors; how made and how used - - - - - 33862
 BROWN, T. A. (ps. Rolf Boldrewood). The Squatter's Dream; story of Australian life - - - - - 33863
 BRUNNER, H. Sources of the Law of England; tr. with app. by W. Hastie - - - - - 33864
 CAINE, T. H. Sonnets of three Centuries - - - - - 33865
 CAINE, W. S. Picturesque India - - - 33866
 CHAPMAN, E. R. Companion to "In Memoriam" - - - - - 33867
 CHURCH, R. W. Gifts of Civilization and other sermons - - - - - 33840
 Concise Whist, principles of modern whist as modified by American leads - - - - - 33841
 COOK, E. T. Studies in Ruskin; some aspects of his work and teaching - - 33868
 COOKE, G. W. Guidebook to the works of Robert Browning - - - - - 33848
 CORBETT, E. An Old Coachman's Chatter - - - - - 33869
 CULLIMORE, D. H. Book of Climates, health resorts, etc., with chapter on Africa by Surgeon Parke - - - - 33870
 DRAYSON, A. W. Untrodden Ground in Astronomy and Geology - - - - 33872
 Dr. Hermione, by the author of "Zit and Xoe" - - - - - 33834
 ELLIS, A. B. The Ewe-speaking Peoples of the Slave Coast of West Africa - - - - - 33874
 West African Stories - - - - - 33873
 EVERS, H. Steam and other prime movers; text book - - - - - 33875
 FAIRFIELD, A. H. Starting Points; how to make a good beginning - - - 33849
 FEUILLET, O. Honneur d'artiste (Bibliothèque contemp) - - - - - I
 FLETCHER, J. S. Short life of Cardinal Newman - - - - - 33850
 Our National Cathedrals; history, etc., 3 vols. - - - - - I
 FOSTER, R. F. Whist Manual - - - - - 33837
 HAGGARD, H. R. and LANG, A. The World's Desire - - - - - 33876
 HART, A. B. Introduction to the study of Federal Government - - - I
 HART, H. C. Some account of the Fauna and Flora of Sinai, Petra and Wady Arabah (Palestine Explorer. Fund) - - - - - I
 HUXLEY, T. H. Social diseases and worse remedies - - - - - 33836
 KIDSON, F. Old English Country Dances; coll. with notes and bibliog. of music - - - - - I

Kingston, Whitehall and Goldsboro (N. C.) Expedition, Dec. 1862 - - - 33847
 KINGSTON, W. H. G. A. Yacht Voyage round England - - - - - 33877
 LANG, A. Life, letters, etc., of Sir S. Northcote, first Earle of Iddesleigh, 2 vols. - - - - - 338789
 LOCH, C. S. Charity Organization - - 33880
 LOCHYER, J. N. The Meteoritic Hypothesis - - - - - 33881
 MACKLIN, H. N. Monumental Brasses - 33882
 MAC NEILL, A. B. and CLAPP, J. M., Amherst Memories; coll. of verse - 33843
 MANPASSANT, G. de. Notre Coeurs - I
 MAXWELL, J. C. Scientific Papers; ed. by W. D. Niven, 2 vols. - - - I
 MAXWELL, Sir W. S. Annals of the artists of Spain, new ed. 4 vols. - I
 MOORE, A. W. Surnames and Place-names on the Isle of Man - - - - - I
 NAVILLE, E. Bubastis, 1887-89 (Egypt Explor. Fund, 8th mem.) - - - - - I OHNET, G. The Iron-master; drama tr. and arr. by J. V. Prichard - - - I
 PETRIE, W. M. F. Kahun, Gurob and Hawara - - - - - I
 Rajah's Heir, The, a novel - - - - - 33835
 ROBINSON, L. J. Law Made Easy; book for the people - - - - - 33844
 SAYCE, A. H. Records of the Past; trans. of ancient monuments, new ser., vol. 4 - - - - - I
 SHAKESPEARE, W. Shakespearian extract from "E. Pridsey's booke" - - 1
 Statesman's Year Book for 1891; ed. by J. S. Keltie - - - - - I
 STODDARD, W. O. Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren (Lives of the Presidents) - - - - - 33845
 Wm. Henry Harrison and James K Polk - - - - - 33846
 TOLSTOI, L. Graf. Church and State and other essays - - - - - I
 WASHINGTON, Geo. Writings; coll. and ed. by W. C. Ford - - - - - I
 WEBSTER, D. Address at laying of the corner stone of Bunker Hill Monument, etc. - - - - - 33842

Tenth Anniversary.

The home of Mr. L. P. Carter, No. 8 Oberlin Street, was the scene of a very pleasant gathering last Saturday afternoon and evening when about thirty of the relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Carter met to celebrate the tenth anniversary of their marriage. Despite the threatening weather a merry time was enjoyed.

A shooting match had been arranged for the ladies and a buttonhole contest for the gentlemen.

Mrs. S. C. Bassett of Berlin won the first prize, and Mrs. C. H. Hastings of Boylston the booby prize for shooting.

Mr. S. H. Wheeler of Bolton the first, and Mr. W. C. Carter of Clinton, the booby prize, for working button holes.

A number of beautiful presents were presented, and supper by Caterer Marshall followed by music by Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Stoughton of this city completed the evening's entertainment.

The clean newspaper has, in the long run, the most permanent patronage and circulation. The paper which goes into the homes and is read by the families is the paper which counts its subscribers by the year, instead of depending on the fluctuating sales of the news companies, and it is after all the family newspaper which swings the power.—Reading Times.

Whew! How hot it is!

Custer's Last Charge.

June 25, 1876.

They followed the trail of the warriors retreating,
 The trail of their lodge-poles and ponies weighed down
 With women and children all hurriedly fleeing
 Like Thracians, who fled from a Goth-menaced town.

With the scouts in advance, rode the chief and their horses
 They turned marking how o'er the wide furrowed plains
 The long slender column each ridge slowly crosses
 While far in the rear crawl the great loaded wains.

But see, far away in the distance, ascending
 High up to the heavens a volume of smoke
 Away to the zenith all spirally wending
 Like the pillar of cloud on the prophet that broke

And now all is built along the whole column,
 The sun flashes far on a countenance bright;
 And while the loud trumpet blares on its alarm
 The heart's blood leaps hot at the prospect of fight!

Within the deep gully, whose serpentine courses
 Are hid from the troops by the green willows shade,
 Wait sitting Bull's braves, on their impatient horses
 Like rattlesnakes, coiled in a dark ambush-ade.

A dash out of sight! the long knives are gleaming,
 The mad squadron cheers—a wild plunging mass,
 And everywhere—everywhere sabres are streaming
 And the ground at horses trample out life in the grass.

Far down through the long swarming gully they thundered,
 Through wigwags as thick as ripe stalks in a field—
 Oh God! was it possible Reno had blundered?
 The bugle recalled by the thinned squadron wheeled.

With the latter dyed red on each brave charger's flank,
 From the tide that poured out of the unheeded wound
 Where the arrow or bullet its life blood had drank
 They turned to charge back o'er the corpse-littered ground.

Then swarmed round the 7th the wild savage horde
 While a blizzard of lead smote the front flank and rear;
 The rifle shot answered the stroke of the sword,
 And faster they died and more faint grew their cheer.

The crack of revolvers, the whoop of the Sioux,
 The agonized neigh of some steed bullet stung;
 The twang of the bow string and fast growing few,
 The answering shots of the 7th still rung!

Like grass in the swarth, they lie in long ridges
 The horse and his rider, where grandly they fell;
 And each gory wind-row the wide chosen bridges
 Where now rings exultant, the Indians' yell.

Beneath the pale moon on the field they are lying,
 And faintly and far howls the lone wolf at night
 While the wind through the willows, above them is sighing
 A dirge for the heroes, who fell in the fight.

And long will the women, who watch with wan faces,
 Far off where the Big Muddy wrinkles the plain,
 Await the return of the brave, to the places
 Which knew them, but never shall know them again.

But still to the westward the 7th advances,
 Angrily with a cheer on the foemen they ride;
 They break once again, through the hedge of long lances,
 And the bugle blares thin from the spot where they died.

Francis Zuri Stone.

Petersham, Mass.

G. A. R.

Our Catholic comrades are moving in the matter of a lot for the G. A. R. in St. John's cemetery. This is a most admirable scheme. It is too good to fail. Such a rallying point will be specially fitting for Memorial Day exercises.

The Elberon Orchestral Club will dispense music this summer at Long Point Hotel, on Seneca Lake, New York.

Books and Bookmen.

Worcester Town Records, 1801-1805, edited by Franklin P. Rice. The Worcester Society of Antiquity.

This is No. XXXII of the Society's Publications and the first number of a new volume of the Records. This volume will bring the story down to and including 1815. Two more volumes will be necessary to carry the records to the taking of the City Charter. The careful and elegant way in which Mr. Rice is doing this work ought to be a source of pride to all Worcester dwellers. Our city was the third, in the Commonwealth, to undertake this very commendable task, viz., the printing of the old Records. Only Boston and one other city were before us. To Mr. Rice, we owe, not only the work done, but the inception of the idea of printing. One would hardly sit down to the reading of Town Records as he would to works of fancy; but when a fact from the past is needed it is very desirable to have it attainable. Should any calamity befall the volumes of old manuscript at the City Hall, this work of Mr. Rice renders the loss only that of a curious collection, the subject matter is in hundreds of hands. Every old town in Massachusetts should do the same.

The Story of Inca Rocca and other short Poems by Chancey Thomas, author of "The Crystal Button" Boston, Cupples and Upham, 285 Washington Street, 1891.

Mr. Thomas does well to announce his name in full. The reputation acquired in his story, certainly warrants him in laying aside his disguise. The poem, Inca Rocca, which fills two thirds of the volume is a story of Peru, Inca (Lord) Rocca is the first of the Incas and his period was in the 12th century. It is a tale of love and adventure and eventual happiness. The field that the writer chooses is not one very much cultivated especially in verse and the subject and treatment have the virtue of newness. The reader's interest is held, throughout, unflaggingly.

Lines to My Jack Plane written in 1858, are excellent. Mr. Thomas' vocation is revealed in his earnest address to this, one of the chief tools in the carpenter's hand.

"We had to rough it, you an' I,
The work that we have done Jack,
Hath worn us down a little,
But those who follow in our track
May glide more smoothly on."

"Morning Song" written in Shelburne, N. H. is to be appreciated only by those who are willing to shake off sleep to "meet the sun on the upland lawn."

"Up with the lark for the sky is fair,
Sweetest the hour when the day is new;
Breathe ye, breathe ye, the morning air,
Scented with clover wet with the dew."

"Voices of the Books" is the expression of one who loves his library. The writer having so clearly demonstrated his ability in both prose and verse, we hope to hear much from him in both lines.

St. Solifer with other Worthies and Unworthies, by James Vila Blake, Unity Library No. 4, Charles H. Kerr, & Co., Chicago, Ill. 50 cents.

Nothing from Chicago, in many a day, has so impressed us as this book of Essays. In fact, such a Boston flavor is there to all of it, one wonders whether Mr. Blake did not start his literary life in the East. In his style, we have reminders of nearly all the distinguished men who have given a tone and reputation to the Hub. In addition to the essay whose name furnishes a title for the book there are in order: Motive and a Story, Yima, Sprinkling the Thermometer, A Story from Meulville, the Tripling of the Muses, A Dying Speech, A Like Case, From the Dabistan, Morning, Death as a Neighbor, Thamyris, Tyrix and Autæus. Here we have Legend and Folk Lore. Obviously, the writer is familiar with Mrs. Clement's books. He has read Bunce on Folk Lore Stories and he knows Conway's Demons and Demonology. Every chapter is a bit of classic literature exquisitely served. St. Solifer is Sunbearer and from his pen the ink flows in rills of sunny light.

One of the best of the Sketches is A Like Case where Mr. Blake claims to find in ancient work a parallel to Mr. Stevenson's Story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. But every essay is good, a short sermon, in a way; much better than many, for a good lesson or moral is conveyed in all. The range of literature from which these thoughts are drawn or from which the suggestions are taken is very wide. They indicate a high degree of scholarship and culture. The East has produced no such book in a long time.

Sweet and Twenty.

"Sweet and Twenty" by Mary Farley Sanborn is as clean as Pennhasset hills after a rain; it has no mission but to amuse, and that it will fulfill that mission one has only to read the first pages to be able to predict. The story moves quickly—there seems to be plenty of oxygen in Pennhasset air. The characters are in no way remarkable, they indulge in no heroics, nor do they walk their little stage in the glare of limelight. But the four young people about whom the story centres, as well as the half dozen or so others who supplement the narrative are each in his or her own way, intensely alive. It can only be due to the keen insight and subtle sympathies of the author of "Sweet and Twenty" that her characters impress the reader as real human beings.—Boston Transcript.

With its first issue in July The Christian Union will appear with new type, with a new form of page, with a permanent cover having a specially drawn and, it is believed, artistic cover design, and with an increased number of pages. Hereafter original illustrations will be used more frequently. The publisher and editors believe that the new paper will be vastly superior to the old in typographical appearance. With the issue of July 4 will be sent out a sixteen-page supplement containing a carefully prepared article on "Boston as an Educational Center," by Professor Arthur Gilman. This will be illustrated by a dozen drawings. Altogether the issue of July 4 will contain sixty-eight pages.

Ballou's Monthly Magazine, G. W. Studley, Boston, $1.50 a year.

The July number is one of the very earliest of the monthlies and it is worthy of a cordial reception. As usual fiction predominates and it is of a character to make one forget dull care. "Road Agents" is a very good account of Deadwood days. Lucy Larcom has a charming bit of verse in "Need and Wish." The First Crossing of Greenland is a good descriptive piece and "Our Young Folks' Story Teller" is greedily read by the youngsters.

The History of the Town of Oxford by Mrs. Mary de Witt Freeland, now in press by Joel Munsell's Sons of Albany, promises to be a book of unusual interest. Certainly the theme is full of attraction. The Nipmuck Country and the home of the Huguenots is rife with matter for thought and reflection. The book is expected the first of September.

In a widely spread newspaper paragraph it is stated that Jerome K. Jerome is the nom de plume of J. W. Arrowsmith. The statement is incorrect and probably arose in confusing Mr. Jerome's name with that of Mr. Arrowsmith of Bristol, England, who published some of Mr. Jerome's books.

"Summer Homes among the Green Hills of Vermont and along the Shores of Lake Champlain."

The Central Vermont railroad has published a book with the above title; copies of which have been received by members of the Vt. Association in the City, through S. W. Cumming, Esq., of St. Albans, Vt., General Pass. Agt. and compiler. The circular shows up its objects fully and as one of the members of the local association, I bespeak an interest by all Vermonters in the City, and summer tourists generally who contemplate visiting that delightful section of New England. We have probably about 1,400 native born Vermonters, who have and are accomplishing much toward the general prosperity of the city by their stability of character, energy and loyalty. "All hail Vermont and her sons and daughters." G. P.

Curtin's popular books on Folk Lore, Myths and Folk-Tales of the Russians, Western Slavs and Magyars. By Jeremiah Curtin. Crown 8vo. Cloth, gilt top, $2.

Myths and Folk-Lore of Ireland. By Jeremiah Curtin. With Etched Frontispiece. Crown 8vo. Cloth, gilt top, $2. Little, Brown & Co., Publishers, 254 Washington Street, Boston.

These translations will be prized as stories of an unique character, full of grotesque and marvellous adventures, told with a beautiful simplicity of style which speaks well for the faithfulness of the translator's work.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The leading articles in the July number of the Educational Review are on topics of current interest. Bishop Spaulding's article on "Religious Instruction in State Schools" furnishes an interesting contrast to the late Dr. Howard Crosby's discussion of "Religion in the Common Schools" in the May number. Principal Ray Green Huling of the New Bedford (Mass.) High School, who has for years devoted himself to the study of his subject contributes his second paper on the "American High School." Principal Geo. E. Hardy describes the "Functions of Literature in the Elementary Schools," and W. B. Shaw of the Albany State Library tells of "Recent School Legislation in the United States." The number also contains "Contemporary Educational Thought in France" by Gabriel Compayrè; Discussions by James L. Hughes and Paul R. Shipman; Editorials; Education in Foreign Periodicals; and Book Reviews by Professors Carpenter and Jackson of Columbia, Winchester of Wesleyan, Thurston of Cornell, Root of Hamilton, Bemis of Vanderbilt, Woodhull of the New York College for the Training of Teachers, Albro of the Fredonia (N. Y.) Normal School, Dr. Calkins, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, New York City, Miss M. Virginia Fogle, and Dr. Addison B. Poland, Superintendent of Schools, Jersey City.

Miss Willard's Latest: A Classic Town; an Old Timer's Story of Evanston, by Frances E. Willard. Handsomely bound in cloth, and liberally illustrated. Price, $1. Gift edge, $1.25. Ready in June. Address orders to M. D. Kimball, general agent, 161 La Salle Street, Chicago.

All who enjoy Miss Willard's charmingly unique style in writing, will take pleasure in this new book. It is in her best vein. The story itself is interesting, and the bright thoughts interwoven, make it a literary treasure.

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE.

High School.

Many a past and present pupil of the High School will regret the fact that Mrs. Jennie I. Ware will sever her connection with the school at the end of this year. She has accepted a position in the Roxbury High School, with Principal Clay. Her duties there will be considerably less than they have been here and the future promises much more than Worcester will probably offer. She has been in our school nine years, and from the first has been a power for good. That she will do just as well in the Roxbury school goes without saying. Boston gets a valuable accession in her. She has been in the supervisors' minds for some time, but till now the proper opening did not appear.

And still another. Miss Nellie M. White so favorably known in the school as one of the teachers of Latin is going to St. Louis. She has accepted a place in the Preparatory School of the Washington University of that city. The head of the school is Joseph W. Fairbanks, principal of our High School from 1875 to 1878 and he does not forget his promising pupils, hence this reaching out to Massachusetts for one of the brightest and best in the array of the High School teachers. Next!

At the recent entrance examinations at Boston University, Ruth M. Pellett of the High School passed with honorary mention in three of her Latin studies. She passed in every thing save Greek, which she does not present till Fall. Excellent.

It is a singular fatality which calls two instructors to mourn their fathers deceased in the same week. Miss Mary P. Jefts was summoned to N. H. last week on account of her father's death, June 19, and while she was away on the 20th, Mr. Franklin Whipple, the father of Miss Mary E. Whipple, a teacher, died. Both gentlemen were respected citizens in their communities. Every one knew Mr. Whipple and he will be greatly missed. It was LIGHT's privilege to meet Mr. Jefts a long way from his Drewsville, N. H., home. It was away down in New Orleans, where he had gone with his daughter, our teacher, to visit the Cotton Exposition. He was a very pleasant gentleman, respected and loved by all who knew him.

The Register of the Highland Military Academy makes a very creditable showing. From the picture, representing the school to the list of references, the whole book is admirable. There are seven members of the Academic Staff with C. B. Metcalf as Superintendent Emeritus. There are forty-three names in the catalogue. There are fourteen states or countries represented, thus giving the school quite a cosmopolitan showing. The efficient head is Joseph Alden Shaw, A. M.

College Lotus Eating.

"When, the first they met,
Were the Lotophagi, that made them eat
Their country diet, and no ill intent
Lid in their hearts to them; and yet th' event
To ill converted it, for having eat
Their dainty viands, they did quite forget
(As all men else that did but taste their feast)
Both countrymen and country, nor address
Any return t' inform what sort of men
Made fixed abode there; but would need maintain Abode themselves there and eat that food forever.
—Odyssey Book IX., Chapman's translation.

At this time when so many young men are leaving college and so many more entering, it is proper to ask whether all fully realize what they go to college for. Is it not reasonable to expect our youth to acquire in college what they cannot get at home? Among the score or more who, annually, go from Worcester to college there are some who appear to wholly misconceive the end and aim of college life. Some have gone, from careful teaching in our schools, through unconditioned examinations to what bade fair to be a course which should be creditable to them and pleasing to their friends. But what a change came over them! From being commendably studious in the past, they rapidly passed to the ranks of those who studied little or not at all. Suppose they did come home, at the end of the year, with the papers stating that they belonged to the college or a class crew, that they had taken prizes in athletics or that they were eminently popular in the social life of the college, what sort of compensation is this for the parents and friends, who are old-fashioned enough to prefer intellectual honors, when the college authorities inform them that their boys must repeat the year? Worcester boys have exceptional advantages for boating, ball playing and society; if these are all they seek in going to college, why leave our city at all? Let them remain at home and cultivate these arts and so save the expense of living out of town and the mortification of seeing their names repeatedly entered with the same year in the college catalogue. We are a practical people and we like to see an equivalent rendered for every outlay. When the foregoing happens, and it has happened to Worcester boys frequently, what sort of a quid does the father get for the quo that he gave in paying heavy bills? Is it not returning a stone where bread was wanted and instead of fish is there not given to him a serpent? The papers do not always give the facts; but it is reported that hereafter the Revere House and the Parker House are closed to class dinners from a certain college. Why is it? How must the hearts in many a home have been wrung at the recent police court records in Boston, where two college societies or clubs had to pay aggregate fines of above $6,000 for maintaining liquor nuisances?

What, then, is the food that these young men eat that they so soon forget home and friends and native city? In a certain college in New England certain names of Worcester boys have been borne for several years in the same grade, not the least advance made. How do these boys or men, for such they are at least in age, now, explain things to the home keepers? Have they eaten of the Lotus? Are all things once loved and respected, quite forgotten? With a change or two in the wording do they sing with Watts.

"My willing soul would stay
In such a frame as this
And sit and laze itself away
To everlasting bliss."

Physical and social culture are all right and should be cultivated; but those emulous need not go away from home to attain success. They need not, nominally, be students in college; but really embryonic Haulons, Sullivans and Beau Brummells. College is or ought to be considered a means to an end and that end is an intellectual one. If any one can point out how that end is neared by much of the popular nonsense in college life today, he will confer a favor on at least one interested observer. Sisters are teaching school, parents are scrimping, nay, denying themselves comforts that a brother or son may have the advantages of a college course. At the end of the year he brings home to them, instead of a well earned promotion, the statement that he is held back, but he offers as compensation the statement that he belongs to a banjo club, a boat club, or a ball club, or possibly an ability to lead the German. Are friends satisfied? If they are, they are among those who prefer husks to food and wind to substance. Homer's heroes escaped the enchanted place; but many of our boys do not. With senses surcharged, with genius sleeping they are content to catalogue from our fair city. What can wake them? What shall prevent future lethargy? Where is the fault? With Percival, we may say

"Slumber's heavy chain hath bound thee
Where is now thy fire?"

Worcester reads the papers for accounts of her sons. She chronicles with pride their achievements, but when they go to college, she prefers a college record to one made on the ball field, the boating course or the drawing room. Give us a change, boys! If you have powers in scholarship let us know it.

The Burrages, George C., Herbert F. and Gertrude A. are all home from Cornell. The young men are thinking of returning to Ithaca to continue their studies during the Summer. Don't drive too fast, boys.

The Worcester Grange held a strawberry festival and floral exhibition at Grange Hall Tuesday evening. Miss Florence G. Kelley was in charge of the flowers and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bowker, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Rugg, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Goddard, Willis E. Sibley and Miss Anna Thayer served the strawberries and ice cream. An entertainment and dancing were included in the pleasures of the evening.

The Male Ginevra.

A Tale of Boston of Two Years Ago.

By Lucretia P. Hale in Boston Sunday Courier.

I tell this as it was told me.

Yes, mum, I remember, you was a-speaking to me in the spring, in this very spot, in the middle of the street, between the railroad tracks, by the side of the man-hole—that was the name they gave it, because it was big enough for a man to go into it, and examine the works below, whatever they was. And the street cars was a-coming and going, just by the side, and you was asking me, if it wasn't dangerous to have that kind of a hole in the middle of the street, and you was a-saying, it was a fearful thing to see a man going into a pit like that as it were before his time. And you was asking me if they didn't lose their lives often, from us forgetting of their being there. I kind of laughed about its not being possible, from there being so many of us round to watch that same man-hole, and its being my particular business. But I was well skeered when it came about as you said, and its happening to Jim Everard, of all men in the world I keered most about. Yes, mum, it was Jim Everard, the very one as you use to see from your window, a-going down into the man-hole, with his white jacket on. And you'd have heard all about it, at the time, if you hadn't been away, but as you say you'd gone into the country for the summer, which I don't wonder at, for all the noise there was in the street, with taking up the tracks and putting of them down, I can't say how many times.

"Yes, mum, I will go up to your room as you say, and tell you all about it, seeing it happened just as you said it might, though I hadn't thought it. And it ain't no place for telling of a story in the middle of the street, and the cars going and a-coming, and if you'll excuse my work-clothes, seeing as it is noon-time, and I'll have to go back to work, but I can take the time. And here's the very window you was telling me of, where you used to look down on the man-hole, which they have cleared it away now as well they might now that they have the cars tied on to a top wire, instead of a trying to pull them along underground.

"They did go pretty regular, you couldn't well say why, and when they was underground, that is the wire was, and there was some trouble when there was storms, but there weren't so many storms as usual. I don't think many of them knew what made them go underground as it was then, the electoral cars I mean, where nobody could see. Maybe the men that set in their offices and figured it out on paper, maybe they might have known. But the men that digged, and set the wire there, they couldn't know, nor we who watched the tracks and helped to keep things straight, we didn't know, nor the men that came and poked round. Not even Jim Everard.

Most of the time all went steady enough with that underground wire, but like as not they'd come to a stop, and the conductor would have to get out of the car and look, and then the driver he would get out and look, and maybe some of the passengers, and they would wiggle round a crank there was, and the thing wouldn't stir. Then the conductor would give another wiggle and set it all agoing. It was just like Mary's sewing machine, as I used to tell her. Most days it works very well, but then comes a time when that thing won't go. And she oils it here and she oils it there, and she turns on all the screws she can think of, and then she perhaps leaves it awhile, and then it starts off, when she goes at it again, as if nothing hadn't been the matter with it. Its like folks, some kind. They'll go ahead all right, when on a sudden something comes across them, and you can't make 'em go anyhow. It was jest so last winter with that underground working, and maybe its a better place for that electoral current overhead, seeing as the streets is as crowded as they is, only if they have an elevator railroad maybe it will be just as crowded overhead.

"You was asking about Jim Everard and when we was watching that man-hole in all the crowds. It did seem like that 'Jug-or-not' they tells of among the heathen in foreign parts, and they say it comes trampling along on whoever happens to be in the way, widows and orphans alike. That is why we was set to watch Jim Everard in the man-hole. Just as like as not somebody might tumble in on top of him, not merely the boys, which it is most likely, from their not caring whether they did tumble in or not, and trying to jump over the hole, to see whether they should tumble in, and just to show that they could do it, it would be more than natural that one of them should fall in. That is why we had so many men watching the hole, when Jim Everard had occasion to go in,

"What he did there? Mum, it ain't me that could tell you, and I can't say that I ever asked Jim Everard, and if he knew what he did, he might not tell, he never pretended to any electoral knowledge, and never did I, and what he went to put down there and what he took up, I never could say, except as you said mum, what you saw from your window, which quite often looked like buckets of mud, and nothing more or less; but why they should want the mud there, and how it got there, I couldn't say, neither could Jim Everard.

"Those men you saw watching him weren't all our men. No mum, by no manner of means there was two or three of us always. Of course you have two or three men standing around where you have six more before as many minutes are out, and as many of them giving advice or asking questions, or both, to say nothing of the boys, and very likely carts coming across, and a horse perhaps might break his leg if he got in there by mistake, and damages to pay for hole in the middle of the street, and having to look out for the men standing round, to see they weren't run over by the horse-cars or the electorals either. Yes, with the man-hole being just between the rails so, and the cars being incessant, as you might say.

"Of course no end of things might happen, but I can't say I ever really thought anybody would shut him up there, and couldn't believe anybody would be so careless. That very night I hated to leave him, but there was Pat and Bob and Mike, and I got kind of tired hearing them chaffing, and they said they were going to stay around anyhow, and they were younger than me, and they could step back and forth quicker when the cars was coming, and they could keep the horses off, and I had promised Molly I would bring her a beefsteak on my way home. At least, I think, it was beefsteak. What happened afterward may have put it out of my head, and maybe it was the salt-fish I was to bring home that night, and Molly said she would put it to soak, because the next day was Saturday. But that shows, mum, it couldn't have been the salt-fish, and must have been beefsteak, because the next day was Sunday that he was amissing, and we were all looking for him. So I don't think it was beefsteak and I don't believe Molly ever cooked it; I don't seem to remember it. No, mum, Molly isn't my wife. She's the only daughter ever I had, and the best daughter at that, and if Jim Everard did not come home she wouldn't have cared whether I had never brought her a beefsteak. For it was she that asked me that night where Jim was, and I says: 'Hasn't he come home?'

"No mum, he don't live at our house—that is, he didn't, but it is next door; but he is likely to come in and spend his evenings—that is, he was, not liking to come in regular every night to supper. It took me queer when I found he hadn't come home. For Mary, she was anxious about Jim being lost in the man-hole. Then, too, she'd been forever singing about a girl that got shut up in a trunk. It's years ago, so it does not seem much matter now. I told Mary often and often that girl would have died by this time anyway. Maybe you've heard it; its very melancholy, with something at the end of the verses they keep singing over and over, I can't quite remember it and never could understand why they kept singing it over so many times, when it didn't seem to have nothing to do with her getting lost.

"Yes, mum; you have it just right, and I'm much obliged to you, them's the words,

'Oh the mistletoe bough
Oh the mistletoe bough'

you see its the same words right over, and I ought to know it; seeing as Mary has always been singing it, and her mother had a sweet voice before her. But there was one part, of how they sought arter her, that night and the next day, meaning the young girl mum, that was missing, and meaning how they tried to hunt her up. And there was an old man that should have married her. At least he began young, mum, but grew old in always a-looking for her. And I felt that it was just that about Jim Everard, and I was the old man only a hunting after him that night as I did, and the very next day. For I felt it was all my fault, and caring for him too, that I had not stayed to watch him, but I had trusted him to that set of young fellows who likes to get rid of their work before they've half begun it, and I might have thought of Mary being always anxious, and you mum, asking if it wasn't dangerous, and others wanting to know what he did there.

(To be continued next week.)

A face that has a story to tell. How different faces are in this particular. Some of them speak not; they are books in which not a line is written, save perhaps a date.—Long-fellow.

Our Schools.

CHAPTER II.

The "right about face" of the School Committee in regard to the rules promulgated and so rigidly enforced last year is significant of much; in the first place it throws into strong light the animus and motive of the prime mover in their introduction, which, as has been generally understood, were not so much to benefit the schools as to minister to private hatred and personal revenge; in the next place, it shows the utter subserviency of a portion of the committee to the will of a dominant spirit that has always a single eye to its own glorification; and again it shows very clearly that the committee has no policy or system of its own on any subject, but is impelled by such sinuous management as its ruling spirit may think best calculated to promote its own advantage.

The writer has been warned that any criticism of the school board or any of its officials is not only discourteous to its members and officials, but "is entirely uncalled for, and is meddling with what concerns nobody outside of the committee, etc., etc."

Moreover we are told that the present astute manager of the schools is inspired with a most ardent and self-sacrificing zeal for the best good of the institution; and the writer and a vast number of others are convinced of the truth of this statement from the fact that this same great educator has been making most frantic effort to procure another situation with a larger salary, even notifying the public through the daily press that "Worcester may lose him," and publicly boasting that the prize was quite sure to fall to him. Now, if unhappily he has learned by experience that "the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft agley," he may be consoled by the assurance that a large majority of the people regret his discomfiture.

When inquiring into the causes which have contributed to the existing state of the schools, politics must come in for a share of criticism.

And there is no doubt that this subject has had a demoralizing influence upon both graduates and scholars, some of whom are but too eager to copy the pernicious example set before them by the course of those whom they are taught to look up to but cannot respect.

Political intrigue has so long been an important element in the election of certain city officials and the political management of unscrupulous persons has become so notorious, that aspiring young men cannot but have been imbued with false ideas as to their political duties, and, seeing the success that has so often rewarded political manœuvring, there is no wonder that they should have imbibed the notion that it is the shortest road to distinction. Consequently as soon as they leave the school they graduate as "hustlers," patronized and employed by party leaders, to the blunting of their moral sensibilities and the utter destruction of their finer instincts.

But the evil resulting from politics is not confined to the schools, for it is well known that political management has long been an important factor in the election of the school committee, and has placed on the board many persons whose only qualification was that of successful "ward heelers" of course these persons have been "as clay in the hands of the potter" and have fallen easy victims to skillful manipulation.

Last fall the election was conducted on an unpolitical basis in several wards, and the satisfactory result has been pointed out in a previous chapter; as was then suggested, it only needs that the same course should be pursued, at the coming election, in order to prepare the way for an entire change and renovation of our school management. H. H. C.

REVERIE OF A SPORTSMAN.

From May Amateur Sportsman.

That learned and enthusiastic lover of piscatorial pastimes, the late George Dawson, said: "I often had to assure my critical and incredulous friends that it is by no means all of fishing to fish. The appreciative angler, who has inherited or acquired the true spirit of the art, is not alone happy while plying his vocation, but happy also in the recollection of what has been and in the anticipation of what is to be." Just now we are happy in anticipation of what is to be.

Recently I sat cosily snuggled in my easy-chair, in the ruddy glow of the bright open fire as the moaning winter wind drove the cold snow against the window panes; congratulated myself that business called me not out into dreary night, and dreamed of what had been, dreamed of the golden autumnal days, when in pursuit of the wary grouse we beat the hill-side cover where the maples hung draped in crimson, green and gold, harmoniously blending, while away in the distance the hills and valleys stretched out like panorama before the enchanted vision. Dreamed also of how we sat quietly smoking our evening pipe before turning in, as we camp on the margin of a picturesque lake in the wilds of New Brunswick, the forest hushed as a tranquil dream, the full moon stealing gently up the sky and rising above the tree tops, a pathway of silver stretching across the placid bosom of the water, making the tiny wavelets dance and sparkle as they reach the shore; the stillness of the hour unbroken save by the cry of the loon away in the distance, or the splash of a trout rising at the unfortunate insect sporting on the surface. Many summers have come and gone since then, but time cannot efface the memory of such pleasant outings.

"Dear solitary groves, where peace does dwell,
How willingly could I forever stay
Beneath the shade of your embracing greens,
Listening to the harmony of warbling birds,
Tuned with the gentle murmur of the streams."

G. H. BURTIS. (with GEO. S. DAVIS 363 Main St.)
WORCESTER MASS.

As Others See Us.

"Comrade A. S. Roe of Post 10, G. A. R. of Worcester has lately become the Editor and Proprietor of LIGHT—a weekly publication of twenty-four pages. It gives a substantial and sparkling "LIGHT." Send for a sample copy and see for yourself."—Grand Army Record Boston.

The last issue of "LIGHT," Worcester's popular society weekly, which has no superior in its line of journalism that we know of, contained a fine engraving of ex Sheriff Sprague.—Milford Daily Journal.

AN ALLEGORY.

BY CORNELIA WESSON ROYDEN.

Isat and dreamed o'er life one weary day,
And as I dreamed, the great world seem'd to lay
Stretched out before mine eyes, till I could see
Its valleys, hills and dales, each rock and tree;
And in a beauteous garden, fair and sweet,
I saw gay Folly lie at Pleasure's feet;
And breathing perfume from each lovely flower,
They drank the cup of bliss for one short hour.

Again, I saw a hill of lofty height,
Ambition toiling upward day and night;
O'er rocks and brambles, midst the cold and heat
With aching limbs and toil-stained weary feet
He pauses not, till close by worldly fame
He slips and falls; sinks downward into shame
And in dishonor's mire Ambition dies,
Nor heeded are his toils, his bitter cries.

Then Greatness, swelled and puffed with pride
Comes stalking on with vain and haughty stride;
And tramples on each blossom by the way,
As though to crush, proved Greatness' mighty sway.
Yet, in forgetfulness, that forest deep,
He soon is lost; and Memory's quiet sleep,
Is ne'er disturbed by dreams of his proud sway,
He came and went; forgotten in a day.

Again, amidst a shady grove of trees,
Whose fragrance scents each soft and balmy breeze,
Simplicity and sweet Content recline,
Where flowers bloom and golden sunbeams shine,
While Happiness doth rule with tender sway,
And Cupid 'mong the roses, romp and play.
"Ah! here!" I cried, "is pure and lasting peace,
A cup of living joy that will not cease."

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Gould are spending ten days at Cottage City.

FOR THE LAUNDRY.

BRUSSELS

SOAP.

J. A. Long

A PAYING INVESTMENT! OUR COMBINATION BED-ROOM SETS AND PARLOR * SUITS.

$35.00

BUYS

- 1 Oak Finish Bedroom Set,
10 pieces,
- 1 Woven Wire Spring,
- 1 Hair Mattress, 40 lbs.,
- 1 Pair Geese Pillows, 6 lbs.

YOU CAN BUY FOR

$65.00

- 1 Overstuffed Mohair Crushed
Plush Parlor Suit, 6 pieces,
- 1 Parlor Table, 28x28,
- 1 Elegant Bronze Mirror,
40x18 Bevel Plate.

Equally Good Bargains in Every Department.

J. A. LONG

Franklin Square Furniture Rooms,
555 Main St.

Good to Eat.

Dean Swift when shown the menu of Lord Bolingbroke's party, exclaimed, "A fig for your bill! Show me your bill of company."

The mixing of salad dressing is not only a desirable and useful thing for cooks and caterers to know but an accomplishment that every society girl should make herself mistress of. It is the thing, you know, to know it. It is more difficult than one who has never tried it would think. Sometimes do what you will, the yolk of eggs and oil will not mix. In this case the only thing to be done is to take some more material and try again. After the oil and eggs are well mixed, so as to be of the consistency of jelly, the other can be worked in so that nothing need be wasted. A good recipe is—A prodigal in oil—a councillor in salt—a philosopher in cayenne—a miser in vinegar and a madman to mix them.

A Good Recipe for Dumplings.

One pint of flour, one teaspoon heaping full of baking-powder, a pinch of salt, and water or sweet milk enough to make a stiff batter. Steam till done, and make a rich gravy. Tear the dumpling in pieces with a fork, and pour the gravy over it. They are delicious for those who like stewed chicken. I always had trouble with dumplings until I tried this recipe.

REBECCA SMELSER.

Rushville, Ind.

An Excellent Tea Dish.

One cup of bread-crumbs soaked in milk or water, with a little butter, and seasoned with salt and pepper. Put the bread into a baking-dish, then pick to pieces any cold meat that you happen to have, and wet with a little milk. Spread this over the bread-crumbs. Now beat the yolks of three eggs. Add to a half cup of milk, season, and pour this over the crumbs. Beat the whites quite light, salt, and lay over the top. Bake long enough to set the custard.

MINNIE CLARK GORDON.

Loveland, Colo.

Boiled Pudding.

Make a crust with two cupfuls of sifted flour, two small teaspoonfuls of baking-powder, two tablespoonfuls of butter, mixed into a soft dough with milk. Roll out rather thin, and line a buttered basin or mold. Fill with rhubarb washed and cut into inch pieces, put in plenty of sugar and a little lemon peel grated. Cover with crust and pinch the edges of the pudding together, place over it a piece of buttered paper to keep out the moisture and to keep in the juice, tie over all a cloth, and plunge into boiling water. Boil it for two hours, and serve with cream and sugar, or sweet sauce.—Housekeeper's Weekly.

Frothed Eggs.

Separate the eggs carefully without breaking the yolks; beat the whites until they are very fine and stiff. Then arrange them neatly in small custard-cups, making up a place in the centre to hold the yolks. Slip one yolk carefully into the centre of each cup, stand the cups in a pan of boiling water and cook in the oven for about two minutes. Dust them with salt and pepper, and put a small piece of butter on each one and serve immediately.—Table Talk.

I kneel to Truth.—Charlotte Brontë.

ORIGINAL.

No. 41.

Strawberry Cottage Pudding.

BY MRS. DEARBORN,
Principal Boston Cooking School.

Cream  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup butter; add  $\frac{3}{4}$  cup sugar gradually, beating all the time; then add 1 egg beaten till thick and light. Mix together a generous pint of pastry flour and 2 tea sp. Cleveland's Baking Powder; add this to the first mixture alternately with one cupful of milk.

Beat well together, pour into a buttered baking-pan and bake about thirty minutes in a moderate oven. Cut in squares and serve with stewed and sweetened strawberries and cream. (Copyright, 1891, by Cleveland Baking Powder Co.)

Use only Cleveland's baking powder, the proportions are made for that.

An even teaspoonful of Cleveland's Baking Powder does as much as a heaping teaspoonful of others. A large saving on a year's bakings. Try a can, Cleveland's,

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H. Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists.

11 Pleasant St.,

Worcester, Mass

Residence, 61 West Street.

The Readers of Light
I most cordially invite
To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything
They would expect to find

In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,

Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,

10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL,

Gold, Silver and Nickel
Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.

13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St.,
Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework,
Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

RICHARD HEALY

LADIES' and MISSES'S CLOAKS and SUITS at SUMMER PRICE.

Pursuant to my regular custom when the active season is nearly at a close, I have made a GREAT GENERAL REDUCTION in prices of all

Ladies' and Misses' Cloaks and Suits, and beg to call attention to my offering of these goods, presenting as they do wonderful opportunities of securing Garments and Costumes at a fraction of their value.

New York Suit and Cloak Store, 512 Main Street.

PENSIONS! * PENSIONS!

THE DISABILITY BILL IS A LAW.
Soldiers Disabled Since the War are Entitled. Dependent widows and parents now dependent whose sons die from the effects of army service are included. If you wish your claim speedily and successfully prosecuted, address JAMES TANNER, Late Commissioner of Pensions, Washington, D. C.

C. REBOLI,

Confectioner * and * Caterer,

6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

J. S. WESBY & SONS,

BOOK * BINDING

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

387 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES

at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

Alfred C. Monroe.

The death of no one man in G. A. R. circles, in our commonwealth, would arouse more memories than that of our late and for many years Assistant Adjt.-General. He died at his home in Revere, Thursday, the 18th inst., having been ill some time, in fact so long that his friends began to think he was recovering. His disease, pneumonia, resulting in Brights disease and heart failure, was the direct consequence of exposure at the funeral of Comrade Weal; a lesson to those still living that the manes of our friends do not demand such expensive sacrifices.

Again, Comrade Monroe was the best known G. A. R. man in Massachusetts. He had held his position for nearly or quite a decade and his form and face were always prominent at our annual conventions. He was careful and methodic in his attention to duty and his work was always in perfect shape. Whenever, for years past, the result of balloting for a new commander was announced, the successful candidate always made himself solid with the "boys" by making his first appointment thus, "I appoint as my Assistant Adjt.-General, A. C. Monroe." This was always received with hearty applause.

Alfred, as his comrades usually called him was not presuming nor arrogant, but he knew the duties of his office and he discharged them faithfully. A soldier with an excellent record, a member of the "Twelfth," Fletcher Webster's Regiment, he lost an arm at Gettysburg, but few ever heard him talk much about his experience. When he was discharged for disability he took up penmanship as an art and source of livelihood and won success in it. Then coming to his G. A. R. place he kept the record perfectly.

Monroe was excellent company and no better companion, for a long journey could be had. Genial, full of anecdote, distance seemed nothing along with him. It was LIGHT's privilege to ride with him to Denver in 1883, and the trip is pleasantly recalled. The comrade, who called at G. A. R. headquarters in Boston, received the most cordial of greetings. On Sunday last, a great number of comrades and friends gathered to pay a parting tribute to the veteran and to lay him away forever in the East Weymouth burial ground. "Rest, Comrade, thy warfare is over." You have joined the majority of your regiment. Your colonel is getting his boys in line as one after another they are promoted. Vale.

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place at an early day. No better and fairer place to be found than at EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of
Fine Monumental Work,
131 Central Street, near Summer.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,
DEALER IN
Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb
Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,
No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

W. A. ENGLAND,
DEALER IN
FINE WATCHES,
CLOCKS, JEWELRY
& OPTICAL GOODS.
REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.
394 Main Street.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,
Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, *
NO. 156 MAIN STREET,
H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
WORCESTER, SS.
PROBATE COURT.

To all persons interested in the estate of JOHN RILEY, late of Worcester, in said County, deceased, intestate:—Greeting. Upon the Petition of Mary Riley you are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held in Worcester, in said County, on the first Tuesday of July next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, why real estate of said deceased remaining after the payment of his debts, should not be assigned and set out to his widow, the said petitioner, in fee, to an amount not exceeding five thousand dollars in value;—

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively, in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester, the last publication to be two days, at least, before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this citation, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioner, seven days at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this sixteenth day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

Worcester Coal Company,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

THE CRITERION
Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.

231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SHREWSBURY ST.
J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

LAWRENCE,
PHOTOGRAPHER.
492 Main Street.

TAKE ELEVATOR.

RAYMOND'S
VACATION
EXCURSIONS.
ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

30 * SUMMER * TOURS.

Of from five to twenty-one days' duration, and including visits to the White Mountains, Isles of Shoals, Mount Desert, Moosehead Lake, Old Orchard Beach, Montreal, Quebec, the Saguenay and St. Lawrence Rivers, Lake Memphremagog, St. Andrews, N. B., Fredrickton, the St. John River, St. John, the Annapolis Valley, the La-d of Evangeline, Halifax the co'tegrons of Nova Scotia, the Bras d'Or Lakes of Cape Breton Island, Charlottetown, Hudson River, Saratoga, Lake George, Lake Champlain, Ausable Ch'sm, the Adirondack Mountains, Lake Placid, Lehigh Valley, Mauch Chunk, Watkins Glen, Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands, Trenton Falls, etc.

In addition to the above,
Excursions over the Canadian Pacific Railway and to Alaska—July 11 and 25.

Excursion to the Yellowstone Park and Return—July 16.

Tour of Yellowstone Park and Across the Continent, returning via Canadian Pacific Railway—July 27.

For 'seen' for descriptive circulars, designating whether book of "Thirty Summer Tours," Alaska Excursions, or Yellowstone National Park trips is desired.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB,
290 Washington Street, opposite School Street, Boston.

E. W. COFFIN,
Store Fixtures

310 Main Street, Worcester.
Name this Paper.

Mr. Lyman Brown.

To the already long list of aged people who have passed away recently, must be added the name of our friend, Mr. Brown. A tinsmith by trade, he came to this city in 1849 from Hubbardston, where he was born March 24, 1815. He was a Democratic stand by, rock-ribbed as the hills, one to be depended upon. His wife, who died three years since was Salome Rich of Athol. They had lived together fifty-one years and eleven months and at the fifti-th anniversary of their marriage, a golden wedding was had. His home was at 133 Main Street, but he had lived, for many years, on the corner of Waldo and Exchange Streets. Three children died, many years ago and two survived, Freeman, the Clerk of the Board of Overseers of the Poor, and a daughter, who had been his housekeeper since the death of her mother. He had been a member of the Common Council for a number of years and also an overseer of the poor and for twenty years, save one, was a warden on election day. He was a very quiet, self contained man and through this, perhaps excelled in checker playing. He was long considered the local champion.

For several years past, he turned his attention to the history of his native town and every day, his form was seen in the rooms of the Antiquarian Society. The resources of that institution were put at his disposal and right industriously did he work. It is to be hoped that the result of his long labors will not be lost but that, at some time, the public may profit from them. In this connection, it is fit to insert the following letter from one of those in charge of the Antiquarian Hall.

Mr. Freeman Brown:

DEAR SIR.—I cannot refrain from letting you know how deeply I enter into your sorrow and how keenly I feel the sudden death of the good father. For nearly ten years he has been a constant fellow student among the books of the American Antiquarian Society. His love for genealogical research was something remarkable and so extensive was his knowledge of family history in Massachusetts that frequently we alluded to him as the "Genealogical Dictionary of Massachusetts."

"He loved the lineages of men."
There was always to me a stimulating influence in his indefatigable labors, toiling on day after day, no matter how severe the weather that he had to encounter, or the feebleness of body.

He seemed to have deeply imbibed the spirit of the old command "Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: ask thy father, and he will shew thee; thy elders and they will tell thee."
With kindest sympathy.

At the Hall, June 19, 1891.

The funeral was held at his late home, Saturday the 20th, the Rev. Mr. Garver officiating. Many friends were present. The burial was in Rural Cemetery which in the last few weeks, has received many of our old friends. Life's journey ended.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Brown and John J. Alton have been spending a few days in Providence at the residence of J. K. Brown on Elmwood Avenue. Mr. Alton did some good work with his camera down the river.

Everybody likes a parade.

J. W. GREENE,
PLUMBER.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,
Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,
12 Layard Place, (Old Stand,) Worcester.
Ladies and Gents' Garments
DYED * AND * CLEANSED
in a Superior Manner.

Harness and Saddlery,
RELIABLE GOODS
and LOWEST PRICES.
R. McALEER & CO.,
155 MAIN STREET.

PHOTOGRAPHER.
Children's
Portraits
A Specialty
326 MAIN ST.,
Opp. Mechanics Hall.

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,
* PRINTERS. *

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,
DEALER IN
Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.
Mechanics Hall Building.

THE CLARK

SAWYER CO.

478 to 482 Main Street.

New arrival of

Decorated French China Dinner sets per Steamer "Nordland." All new Decorations on the later shapes. Also

Cracker Jars,
Ice Cream Sets,
Berry & Salad Sets
Jam Jars, Etc.

GARDEN, HALL, or VERANDA SEATS, UMBRELLA Stands, GRASS VASES, Etc.

THE CLARK-SAWYER Co.

478 to 482 Main Street.

Household.

Sleep for School Children.

We all know how much greater is the need of sleep for children than for grown persons, and how necessary for their good it is to be able fully to satisfy this need; but how great it is generally at any particular age of the child is very hard to define exactly. The amount varies under different climatic conditions. In Sweden we consider a sleep of eleven or twelve hours necessary for the younger school children, and of at least eight or nine of the older ones. Yet the investigations have shown that this requirement lacks much of being met in all the classes through the whole school. Boys in the higher classes get a little more than seven hours in bed; and as that is the average, it is easy to perceive that many of them must content themselves with still less sleep. It is also evident from investigations that the sleeping time is diminished with the increase of the working hours from class to class, so that the pupils of the same age enjoy less, according as they are higher in their classes. It thus appears constantly that in the schools of relatively longer hours of work the sleeping time of the pupils is correspondingly shorter. In short, the prolongation of the working hours takes place at the cost of the time for sleep.—Science Monthly.

If a carpet is wiped over now and then with a flannel cloth wrung out of warm water and ammonia (a pail of water and a tablespoonful of ammonia), it will always look bright, it must be wiped dry with a clean cloth. After a carpet has been well shaken, it will clean and brighten it to wipe it over with a flannel cloth dipped in high-proof kerosene, and well wrung out; until perfectly dry, say for forty-eight hours, no matches or fire should be allowed in the room. Tea-leaves and wet bran, sprinkled over a carpet before sweeping it, are wonderfully cleansing; but if the carpet is of delicate tints either of these will stain it. If ink is spilled on a carpet, cover it immediately with blotting paper, and renew it as soon as soiled. A velvet carpet is cleaned by sprinkling it thickly with damp bran and brushing it off with a stiff broom.

Intemperance, too, will decrease as good cooking increases. Set up the cooking school and drive out the saloon. Bring to every farmhouse and every village the gospel of perfect preparation of simple and nutritious food, and nine-tenths of the illness, or inability to endure study or work, will be removed, and strength and energy will come instead.

If you have a young chicken it is best to split it down the back and broil it. It is also good dredged with flour and browned in an iron pan in some hot butter, first on the outer side, and then on the inner, sprinkling with salt after the former is turned uppermost. When done and removed on to a hot platter, pour a little cream into the frying-pan to boil up and mix with the brown deposit in it; salt it slightly, add a few drops of lemon-juice and pour over the chicken. Serve it trimmed with bunches of parsley, either fresh or fried crisp in some boiling lard.

When washing black dress goods, soap must never under any circumstances be applied directly to the material. In order to obtain the necessary suds, it must be shaved and entirely removed.

PINKHAM & WILLIS

Complete House Furnishers.

If in mid air you wish to swing,
Our Hammock Chair is just the thing;
You sit upright, with perfect ease,
Or lie down flat, just as you please.
'Tis light to handle, folds up small,
Suited for short folks or for tall.
Only five dollars is the price,
'Tis not much for a thing so nice.

SUMMER CHAIRS.

Suitable for Lawns and Piazzas; also Swing or Hammock Chairs, Verandah Chairs, Lawn or Beach Chairs.

HAMMOCK FRAME and AWNING.

This frame is ornamental, compact, portable and adjustable. It is easily moved, as often as desired, to prevent injury to the lawn. Price $9.

JAPANESE REED PIAZZA CURTAINS.

A new line just received, with cord and pulleys, ready to put up. They are very inexpensive, costing much less than cloth awnings.

REFRIGERATORS.

We sell the celebrated EDDY Refrigerator. Has double covers, is economical in the use of ice, has slate shelves, and never sweats, and we sell them at reasonable prices. Can you afford to buy a poor, cheap Refrigerator? If not, buy the "Eddy" and we guarantee perfect satisfaction.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,
355 MAIN STREET.

High School.

Statistics Concerning Some of the Boys of '91.

NICKNAME.	POSSIBILITIES OF MARRIAGE.	EXPECTATIONS.
C. A. H.	"Go it!"	None.
G. A. D.	"Yak"	G. od.
H. P. L.	Nannas.	The best.
F. E. M.	Freddy.	So So.
G. P. D.	"G. P."	Few.
H. H. A., Jr.		Many.
M. T. H.	Shakespeare.	None.
E. M. S.		Three.
H. E. D.	Dennis.	10 to 1.
A. H. W.	"Spider"	One.
F. S. P.	"Shorty"	Poor.
W. A. S.	"Serg"	Five.
C. P. H.	Mr. Pres.	Doubtful.
H. R. B.	"Next."	Fair.
W. E. H.		Several.
W. J. C.		One or two.
O. K.	"Sully"	Several.
F. M.	Doctor.	None.
H. S. D.	Capt.	One.
E. C. C.		None.
F. L. D.	Davy.	Ten.
E. A. D. M.	Stony.	Fine.
J. F. L.	Chump.	Too many.
W. A. McA.	Judge.	Four.
J. E. McC.	Patsy.	Indifferent.
H. A. B.	Billy Boy.	Large.
C. A. G.	"The Grand."	Impossible.
H. H. C.	"Chappie."	"None, don't yer know."
T. F. C.	Uncle.	So So.
H. L. B. I.	Hecky.	Remarkable.
W. B. T.	H. R. Highness.	Fine.
J. A. L.	Jimmy.	Good.
W. J. D.	Dutchy.	One.
H. L. W.	Harry Boy.	Several.
J. H. M.		Three.
G. R. B. Jr.	Spek.	Good.

69 Boys. Total height (estimate) 373 feet, 9 1/4 inches.

Our Graduates.

For years our Schools have been taking in and sending out. Once more we come to the annual promotion.

All studious and capable children are advanced a degree and one line is pushed out completely.

The High School Course ended, the graduating Class is thinking of what to do next. On our first page are the faces of seven young people whom LIGHT first met four and five years ago.

The President of the class Charles P. Haselden was born in Atlanta, Georgia, his father being a native of South Carolina, while his mother is a Massachusetts lady, a niece of Hon. T. C. Bates of Harvard Street. The family came to Worcester in 1877, so quite all of Charles' schooling has been had here. He purposes to be a dentist and will spend next year with his uncle, Dr. Lyman C. Bryan who has established an excellent business in Basle, Switzerland. Another uncle, Lieut. Roger B. Bryan U. S. A. represented this Congressional District at West Point. After a years, stay in Basle, Haselden expects to return to this country and to take a course in some one of our dental colleges.

Edward H. Warren, the Valedictorian, is a native of this City and is a son of Wm. M. Warren, the designer and builder of special machinery on Hermon Street. Two sisters have already gone through the school both having honors, Emma, an essay and Edith the Valedictory. This is the end of the Five Years' Course for him and, from the school he has succeeded in getting about all that it can give. He goes to Harvard University and after that, work and success in whatever he undertakes.

Miss Alice I. Hastings, the Historian, is a daughter of Capt. Thomas J. Hastings of John Street, Secretary of the Co-operative Bank, and a veteran of the Fifteenth Regiment. She, too, has taken the full Five Years work and will go to Smith College. She had her Grammer School Studies near her home, viz. at Dix Street. Her sister, May, graduated some years since, went to Wellesley.

Miss Lucy Daisy Heald, the Salutatorian is hardly recognized under this name, for thus far in life she has been known as Daisy Keyes. Left an orphan, at a very early age, she has been reared by her aunt Mrs. I. N. Keyes of Harvard Street. She went from the Dix Street School to the High and there she has taken the Five Years work. She will make one of the very promising colony of Worcester girls at Smith college. She is not only the Salutatorian, but also the Vice-President of the Class. Both of these girls came from Mr. Jenkins' care.

H. Harris Ames jr. the treasurer of the Class of '91 was born in Worcester and had his preliminary training at Millbury Street under Principal Mc Keon. His father, a well known real estate broker, lives on Oak Avenue. Next year, he expects to take a special course at Harvard.

Miss Lula A. Morgan, the Class Secretary, is a native of London, Province of Ontario and a daughter of Frederick E. Morgan of Portland Street. She was one of Mr. Haynes, Grammar School girls in Washington Street. The "What to do" after graduation has not been decided yet.

Harry S. Davis, Chairman of the Executive Committee, like nearly all the other officers, is a native of this City. He entered the School from Ledge Street, in the days of that well remembered master, C. C. Woodman. He has been quite prominent in some School matters especially among the High School Cadets, whose commander he was at one time. From the High School he expects to pass to the Polytechnic.

The class, itself, is the largest in the annals of the School. Among the one hundred and twenty and more candidates are all the boys who left the Senior Class to enter the "Tech" during the winter. They are John M. Gallagher, Harry C. Hammond, Edward H. Keith, H. Joseph Knight, Hiram K. Lovell, Frank E. Norcross, and Albert H. Putnam. There was an unusual large number of pupils remaining in the school from the Fifth Year Division of '90. Several of the College, Five Years Course, of this year are anticipating their graduation. So altogether, the Class is large beyond precedent. Another singular feature is the fact that the boys near the girls in numbers, though the latter carry off the most of the honors. Aside from the names already given, those who will represent the Class in Mechanics Hall are Clarence W. Eastman, Warren A. Scott, Misses Alice I. Hastings, Ethel Howard, Ruth M. Pellett, Iva V. Smith, and Ina M. Sprague.

All the Class, those who wait as well as those who speak, are to be congratulated on the privilege of graduating in Mechanics Hall. Since 1879, inclusive, Classes have met and been all but boiled under the roof of the High School building in our hot June and July days. The reception, in the evening, will afford a last and pleasant look at the long time school home. All concerned have been uncomfortable for years, but for what good, no one can tell.

The names of those to receive diplomas and certificates next Monday afternoon are as follows:

CLASS OF 1891, W. H. S.

H. Harris Ames, Jr.	Jennie L. Ballou
Harry R. Barber.	Lidia M. Barton
Harry A. Billings	Mabel B. Blanchard
Harry C. Boyden	Elizabeth Boyd
William J. Cahill	Rose A. Boyle
Harry H. Chamberlin, Jr.	Josephine T. Bragg
Edward F. Coffin	Maria T. Broad
Frederick C. Condy	Alice C. Brown
Thomas F. Cummings	Anna G. Brown
Fred L. Davenport	Abby A. Bullock
George A. Davis	Ada M. Carter
George P. Davis	Margaret H. Casey
Harry S. Davis	Mabel S. Chamberlain
James T. Delehanty	Alice L. Childs
William J. Denholm	Mary L. Clark
Henry Dennis	Anna L. Curtis
Clarence F. Desmond	Fannie L. Day
Charles F. Durning	Grace R. Dean
Clarence W. Eastman	Maggie Deming
Samuel A. Ellsworth	Margaret P. Dickinson
Charles F. Fitzgerald	Lulu J. Diemar
George H. Foster	Katherine G. Doon
Robert L. Fuller	Minnie L. Fish
John M. Gallagher	Grace L. Fuller
C. Fred Goddard	Calista Gilbert
Charles A. Gray	S. Elizabeth Goddard
Harry C. Hammond	Agnes M. Hagerty
Walter E. Hapgood	Fannie A. Hair
Charles A. Harrington	Margaret Harlow
William J. Harrington	Alice L. Harrington
Charles P. Haselden	Alice I. Hastings
William F. Heaphy	Lucy D. Heald
Melvin T. Hubbard	Winifred E. Hill
Edward H. Keith	Ethel Howard
H. Joseph Knight	Nellie A. Keyes
Joseph F. Lancaster	Mabel G. Kirk
Walter T. Larkin	Mabel R. Lawrence
Herbert P. Linnell	H. Maude Longley
Hiram K. Lovell	M. Rose McGowan
James W. Loynd	Marietta Matthews
William J. McAleer	Lula A. Morgan
James F. McCann	Mae H. Munroe
John W. McKean	Annie G. Murphy
J. Henry Meagher	Florence Nichols
Edward Mellus	Alice Paine
Joseph P. Morrissey	Ruth M. Pettit
Edward A. D. Moss	Carrie E. Pickford
Frank E. Muzzy	Florence G. Pond
Frank E. Norcross	Eliza G. Rawson
Frank S. Pierce	Louise A. Scott
Albert H. Putnam	Flora A. Simmons
Olis D. Rice	Iva V. Smith
Warren A. Scott	Katharine Smith
Edson M. Shattuck	Ina M. Sprague
Henry G. Stoddard	Nellie J. Stimpson
Walter W. Sweet	Bessie Strauss
Alba H. Warren	Florence Syvret
Edward H. Warren	Bessie L. Tripp
Harvey L. Wheelock	Lottie E. Wilder
Harry S. Whitney	Sarah E. Wilson
Anna M. Babcock	Mae G. Winn
C. Libbie Bacon	Grace W. Wood
Annie W. Badger.

This number, great as it is, represents many more who have fallen out for one or another reason, probably three times as many. What will they do? They are now at the parting of the ways: their life work, in many cases, begins. Some are to go further in their studies. Their decision as to the path, they will follow, must come later.

Those who enter college are as follows: Amherst, Billings; Boston University, Miss Pettit; Harvard, Chamberlin, Ellsworth, Mellus, Moss, E. H. Warren; Harvard, (Lawrence Scientific School) G. A. Davis, Wheelock; Harvard (Medical School) G. P. Davis; Harvard, (Special) Ames, Gray; Holy Cross, Cahill, Cummings, Delehanty, Desmond, Durning, Fitzgerald, McKeon; Smith, Misses Clark, Harrington, Hastings, Heald, Iva Smith and Sprague; Wellesley, Misses Hill and Stimpson; Wesleyan, Coffin; Boston Institute of Technology, Fuller; Worcester Polytechnic, Barber, Boyden, H. S. Davis, Eastman, Foster, Gallagher, Hammond, Haggood, Heaphy, Keith, Knight, Linnell, Lovell, Norcross, Pierce, Putnam, Rice, Alba Warren, Whitney. Dennis may return to the school. Fred Goddard will go to Phillips, Exeter; Haselden goes to Switzerland; Loynd will enter the University of Pennsylvania; McCann goes to the Normal School; Meagher and Morrissey to Law Schools; Muzzey will pursue music in the South; Shattuck will take a special course at Amherst; Stoddard goes to a Business College, while Condy, Davenport, Denholm, the two Harringtons, Lancaster, Larkin, McAleer, Scott and Sweet will enter business in some form, Denholm in Rochester, N. Y.

Of the girls, aside from those, already named as on college bent, many will go to the State Normal School. Miss Flora A. Simmons may, eventually, go to Vassar; Misses Carter, Curtis and, possibly, Syvret will go to the Framingham Normal School. But whether in school or college, studying art or music, teaching or learning housework, it may be seen that these girls will not be idlers. They have learned how to work and they will prove no loiterers.

Today, the class will have a picnic at the Lake, just to talk and laugh and build air castles and to talk over the events of the last four and five years.

Next Monday night comes the grand event of their graduation, viz., the reception by the Association. It will be the last time when all will be together and they must make the most of it. Happiness will reign supreme. The world looks very bright, today, to these young people. Its hues will never be more gaudy. In fact they will fade somewhat; but all these realities they will learn soon enough. It is not the province of LIGHT to cast the shadow. Let us have all the brightness possible and for the present and future, for one and all, LIGHT wishes the acme of success, for which adequate effort is made. Excelsior.

High School Notes.

The Assembly's meeting of June 19 was out of the usual order. A paper was given by W. T. Larkin, "The Railroads of America." The topic of the evening was "Africa." Papers were given by the members as follows: "Its History," H. L. Belisle; "Its People," G. P.

Davis; "Its Explorers," G. H. Ellingwood; "Its Future," John Reid. The question for the evening was: Resolved that it is for the best interests of Africa that Great Britain should have controlling power in that continent. Decided in the affirmative.

The Aletheia debated the question: Resolved that the poll-tax should be abolished in Massachusetts. It was decided in the negative.

At the Sumner Club the question was: Resolved that Newfoundland would be justified in separating from Great Britain. Decided in the negative. The vice-president's oration was given by T. F. Cummings, subject, "Charles Sumner;" original poem, E. W. Goodell entitled, "An Ode to a Frankfort."

E. W. Smith, of Phillips, Exeter, is home from school with a friend, and last week paid a visit to the High School.

H. C. Lakin, now of Harvard, also visited the school a few days ago.

Preparations for graduation are rapidly progressing and give token of a successful affair. The graduation takes place in Mechanics Hall, Monday afternoon of next week while the reception comes off as usual in the High School building in the evening. The graduating class is the largest ever in the school and numbers one hundred and thirty. The Juniors have appointed their committees for decorating the buildings, and are now hard at work, and as flowers are plenty this year, probably some good results will be obtained.

Today the Seniors have a picnic at Woodlawn Grove, at the Lake. This class had no Junior picnic.

The class poem written by T. F. Cummings has been set to music composed by Miss Fanny Hair. The song will be sung at the graduating exercises as usual.

An exhibition of the drawings of the year are to be seen in the drawing room at the school.

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE.

State Normal School.

The State Normal School of this city sends out its 17th Annual Catalogue.

There are nine teachers at whose head is E. Harlow Russell, Principal. Nearly all the others have been employed a long time.

Ten addresses, during the year, have been given, by as many speakers.

The Students of the year number 170, Classified as follows—Post Graduates 7; First Class, January 1891, 16; First Class, June 1891, 26; Apprentices, 26; Second Class, 31; Third Class 34; Fourth Class, 36.

The history and explanations are the same that have appeared from year to year in former numbers.

The appendix, containing names of graduates with their present work, naturally grows, as the years advance.

From its hilly outlook, the School has seen many changes in its vicinity, since its doors were first opened. Once it stood alone. Now it is surrounded. Like Daniel Boone, however, it must be that its former loneliness was preferable.

Holy Cross.

Sunday the 21st was a great day at the college. It was the "Tercentenary of St. Aloysius," the Patron Saint of students. The days observance commenced with a general communion of the students and a solemn high mass in the morning. A grand entertainment was given in the afternoon by the College Glee and Banjo Clubs. A sacred concert followed in the evening participated in by the students. The celebration concluded with a panegyric on the "Life of St. Aloysius," by Rev. John J. McCoy of Westboro, class of '76.

The school year has ended and graduation has taken place. The class of '91 numbered twenty-eight, nine of whom were day-scholars and seven of these nine, Worcester boys. The following are the day scholars and the subjects of their essays: William A. Gillfillan, "We Live in Deeds, not in Years;" Patrick J. Mahony, "True Heroism;" C. Eugene McGillicuddy, "Monopoly," (salutatory); Thomas A. McGovern, "Oratory;" Joseph T. McKeon, "American Constitution;" Joseph J. Rice, Leicester, "Daniel O'Connell;" Thomas H. Sullivan, Millbury, "Invention, the Criterion of Progress;" James F. Timon, "Catholicity and its Growth;" Francis A. Underwood, "Annihilism." The exercises were held on the campus, a large awning protecting the listeners from the hot sun's rays. The following speakers were listened to with rapt attention; Salutatory, C. Eugene McGillicuddy; The Poet and Philosopher, John L. Sullivan; The Christian view of Progress in its Phases from Inception to Attainment, James J. Newton; Invention the Criterion of Progress, Thomas H. Sullivan; Valedictory, George F. Butler.

Smith College.

Mrs. Seelye, the wife of the president of the college was recently calling on some of our Worcester girls. The stereotyped query arose "From what school did you come." The reply being, "From the Worcester High," they, the girls, were more than delighted to hear her say, "I congratulate you, for we consider that an extraordinarily good school. This remark is commended to the attention of certain people who a little more than a year ago industriously circulated reports, quite to the contrary, especially with reference to the school and this very college.

Miss Cora M. Foster, an '88 High School girl, was graduated this week from the Normal School in Framingham.

The Eatons, who left early in the month for California, are safe in their new home, somewhat jaded and tired, but rest will be all the sweeter.

Miss Annie F. Forehand, just graduated from Mt. Holyoke College, will teach in the Munson Academy next year. She is a daughter of Sullivan Forehand of the Forehand Arms Company.

Mr. Arthur A. Pelton of this city and a student at the "Tech" will spend his vacation in Sturlbridge.

The Lake.

Mr. Irving E. Bigelow sends out a handsome circular, setting forth the beauties and facilities of Lake Quinsigamond.

School and College.

Polytechnic.

About the only subject of discussion the past few days at the Institute has been the singular action of the Trustees last week. Now that the Aftermath editors have received their diplomas with scarcely any delay, the feeling prevalent among the students is not one of grumbling against the Trustees, but a general and universal feeling of sorrow that the occurrence happened, for there is no question that the little episode of last week has hurt the Institute more than anything else for several years. The general air of dissatisfaction and uneasiness has largely increased among the students and the story of the trouble has been published to a greater or less extent throughout the country. It would not be too much to say that the average under-graduate would rather have seen the famous editors "put through" than to have the Trustees representing the Institute play such a game of bluff and lose so completely. For the paper which the editors signed fails under the most careful reading to show anything in the way of apology. When they wrote "—and we regret that anything in the book is calculated to produce an impression in the minds of Faculty or Trustees, other than that intended by ourselves" they evidently wrote what they meant. The threat of revoking the degrees which was made to the entire class, for "gross impropriety of conduct towards the Institute or any of its officers," is held by the students and graduates as all childishness, for once a man has obtained his sheepskin, no board of trustees can compel him to give it up contrary to his wish, though they may vote his B. S. from him and erase his name from the catalog, the document itself would almost everywhere, perhaps excepting Worcester, be taken as sufficient proof of a man's standing at graduation, and his right to it would hardly be questioned. The story that Judge Aldrich stated with a laugh that he guessed there would be no more class books for awhile, is received with a smile by the students. The incident of the Aftermath instead of tending to prevent the publication of another similar book, has greatly increased the desire and demand for it, and few more classes will graduate before one is published, and one in which the chances are the Trustees as well as Faculty will come in for a share of the grinds. It is even said that material is already being collected for the next one. The Trustees, had they tried, could have done nothing more favorable for the success of Aftermath and the encouragement of a similar undertaking next year. The public has read the book and laughed, and is all the more ready to do it again.

About thirty candidates took the entrance examinations this week in full, besides about ten who took only the preliminaries.

The Commencement Number of the W P I which appears next week will contain a full account of the Commencement exercises, long editorial comment upon the recent troubles and possibly a picture taken from Aftermath, of the graduating class, also an interesting extract from Gen. Walker's address of last week, and which was given to none of the dailies for publication.

The Apprentices finished work Thursday noon for the year, and the shop now is only filled with stragglers still behind in time.

H. H. Tracey, '91, has gone to New York. From there he will go to Washington, Philadelphia, and then to Vermont and Maine for the remainder of the summer, then going to Cornell. Mr. Tracey has for the past year been head monitor in Boynton Hall, and his genial countenance will long be missed as stationary and pencil are doled out. * *

Amherst.

This week has seen the most noteworthy commencement which has been held at Amherst for many years. The main event of the week of course was the formal inauguration of Merrill Edwards Gates as President of the college. Wednesday was set apart almost entirely for these exercises. The address on the part of the trustees was given by Dr. R. S. Storrs, '39, and the keys and seal of the college were delivered to President Gates by Dr. Seelye. The inaugural address of the new president emphasized the importance of education for every man, and declared the intention of Amherst to give a full, symmetrical education. At the alumni dinner, at which more than five hundred people were present, gifts were announced to the amount of $250,000. The alumni Ball game, Glee Club concert, and a reception by Dr. and Mrs. Gates completed the day's events.

Many Worcester people were in town Wednesday, among whom were, Professors Fuller, Smith and Kimball from the Polytechnic Institute, Mr. G. Henry Whitcomb, Rev. W. V. W. Davis, Mr. Rufus Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Marble, Miss Carrie Kinsley and Sumner A. Kinsley. Mr. Woodward figured on the ball field in the alumni game with a good deal of his old time efficiency, and helped to humble the pride of the proud '86-'88's.

"Pilgrims" vs. "Strangers."

The postponement of a pleasure does not always add to the joy, but the case of the "Ladies Aid Society" of Pilgrim Church, who held a "lawn party" at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. S. Boutwell on Mt. Hope street Tuesday afternoon and evening was an exception. The invitation was for Thursday of last week but the rain interfered, and Friday's skies were also tearful. But the decision to go on this week "Wh'er or no," seemed to clear away every semblance of a cloud except those that added to the glories of sunset as witnessed by the 200 more or less that thronged the verandah, lawn, and inviting parlors of the beautiful home of the hosts. The musical features of the evening were arranged by J. Vernon Butler, organist of the church and were excellent. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Howell, always good, never sang better, and Mrs. J. W. Pitts, soprano, was at her best. The dainty tea, served at seven o'clock was the more welcome, as following the rambles over the hill which overtops Newton Hill, and rivals it in the enchanting cyclorama presented from its summit. The one drawback to the pleasures of the day was the absence of the pastor Rev. C. M. Southgate who was in attendance on the reunion of his class at Yale University. The exhilarating effects of the "O zone" were manifest in various ways (e. g.) in the failure to recognize the faces of most familiar friends and in the wakeful hours which followed some of the guests.

If there were "strangers" when the company assembled at 4 p. m. there certainly were none when they dispersed at 9.30 o'clock with hearty assurance to Mr. and Mrs. Boutwell that they should "come again."

CHESTNUT.

Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb's July Tours.

Summer tourists should consult Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb's long list of tours before fixing upon their vacation outing. Thirty trips to eastern resorts, two excursions to Alaska, and two tours through the Yellowstone National Park are in their list for July and August. These trips offer many advantages, and the passenger has no need to trouble himself about the details, which in ordinary travel are often vexatious and destructive of comfort. The arrangements are carried out in a manner that is simply perfect, the various parties moving about without any special ostentation, and yet finding everywhere that their comfort had been studied in advance and provided for. The passenger takes his ticket and intelligent agents and conductors "do the rest." The Alaska and Yellowstone National Park tours are immensely popular this year. One of the former parties has been filled several weeks, and the only remaining one is likely to be very soon. The number of passengers is limited. Descriptive circulars will be sent free by mail. Address Raymond & Whitcomb, 296 Washington Street, Boston.

Mrs. F. W. Ruggles appeared as contralto vocalist in concerts in Springfield, Hartford and Weathersfield, Conn. this week.

Trained Nurses.

It is now three years since the Memorial Hospital on Belmont street was opened, and on the anniversary held day before yesterday three young ladies, who had finished the two years' course, received diplomas as trained nurses.

The exercises of graduation were held on the lawn behind the building, where a large tent had been spread. The poles of the tent had been tastily decorated with vines and flowers, and a company of over one hundred was assembled to listen to the exercises. Thomas H. Gage, M. D., introduced the speakers. Dr. Leonard Wheeler delivered the address. He spoke of the responsibility that the graduate must now assume, their work must be not mechanical but the result of thought and reason. The qualifications of the nurse were given, her relations to the family she is called to attend, to the physician, to the servants. In fact, it was a presentation in brief of the whole duty of the nurse.

Rev. Dr. Merriman recalled the parable of the Good Samaritan, and the exaltation of the office of the nurse that the words of Christ record. He paid a high tribute to the Supt. Miss Rice, whose untiring zeal has done so much for the success of the Hospital. Dr. Gage in a few well chosen words to the candidates presented the diplomas. The graduates were Miss Esther Belcher, Miss Augusta Monroe, and Miss Ella W. Young.

An informal reception was given in the parlor of the Hospital, and lemonade and cakes were served in the waiting room. Plans for the new building were shown and work on it is to be begun at once.

Church Notes.

METHODIST.

The young men's Bible class of Trinity Sunday School gave their teacher and pastor, Rev. J. D. Pickles, a reception, Monday evening at his residence, 658 Main street. A part of the entertainment consisted of musical selections by a quartet consisting Arthur W. Walls, Richard C. Walls, Theodore Barber and J. A. Clarke. The affair was arranged by the class social committee the members of which are W. F. Clinkard, C. M. Lewis, H. E. Mitchell George Page and E. F. Minor.

UNITARIAN.

The Church of Unity Parish and Sunday School will picnic next Wednesday July 1, at Lake Washacum. The train will leave Union Depot on the Boston and Maine road at 9.50 a. m.

BAPTIST.

The corner-stone of the new Mt. Olive Baptist Church on John Street was laid Monday afternoon. The program of the exercises was as follows: Invocation by Rev. G. H. S. Bell of A. M. E. Zion Church; selection by the church choir; reading of scripture by Rev. E. P. Greenige of Bethel A. M. E. Church; historical address by George C. Whitney of the First Baptist Church; address on the significance of corner stone laying by Rev. D. H. Stoddard of Dewey-street Baptist church; hymn; reading of the list of contents of the box deposited in the corner stone, by E. P. Greenige; prayer by Rev. H. J. White of the Pleasant street Baptist Church; placing of box in the stone by John Cox and Thomas Dillon, two Sunday School pupils; laying of stone by Deacons Andrew Jackson and Horatio Lovett; financial statement by Rev. D. W. Hoyt of the Adams Square Baptist Church; benediction by Rev H. J. White.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The Old South Church Ladies Missionary Society elected officers last Monday afternoon as follows: President Mrs. Edward Jerome; first vice-president, Miss Clara E. Witherby; second vice-president, Mrs. Franklin Whipple; Secretary Mrs. E. M. Sibley; treasurer, Mrs. A. S. Pratt.

Rev. I. L. Wilcox, of Shrewsbury has informed Park Church that he intends to accept the call recently extended to him by the church.

The Pastor of Plymouth Church Dr. McCullagh will preach at 10.30 and at 3.30 the Sacrament will be observed with admission of new members to the Church.

Tuesday the Annual Sunday School picnic at Lake Washacum.

EPISCOPAL.

The Loyalty Club of St. John's Church held a lawn party at the church Monday evening. That is, it was to have been a lawn party, but on account of the rain it took place in the church basement. The room was beautifully decorated with flowers, as was also the fair young maidens who served the visitors with strawberries and cream. Miss Amy Todd had charge of the refreshment tables and Miss Emily Bauer and Lizzie Allen of the floral booth. A "flower march" was lead by Miss Fanny Lighthbourn at the close of which Miss Mane Webb was crowned queen. Richardson's orchestra furnished music.

A service of song will be given at Central Church next Sunday evening at 6.30 o'clock. The subject chosen is "The Church" and the following music will be given by the combined choirs of the church

- Organ Prelude, Introduction to "Hymn of Praise" Mendelssohn
- Anthem, "Sing, O Heavens," Sullivan
- Response, "The Lord is my Shepherd" Smart
- Solo, "Be thou faithful unto death," (St. Paul) Mendelssohn
- Mr. Anderson.
- Anthem, The King of Love Shelley
- Organ Interlude, "Adagio" Beethoven
- Anthem, Zion Rodney
- Postlude Hesse

LEICESTER.

The annual strawberry festival at the Congregational church vestry the 19th, was a success socially and financially. The floral decoration was exceedingly pretty, the work of Misses Lulu Davis and Annie Fitzgerald. Misses Lulu Stone and Carrie Thurston arranged the attractive buttonhole bouquets.

Smith Hall was completely filled last Monday evening by an audience that listened with delight to the following program:

- The Sailing of King Olaf, Bratherton
- Mary E. Newton.
- The Black Horse and His rider, Sheppards
- Herbert E. Currier.
- Brier Rose, Boyesen
- Lelia B. Jourdan.
- Piano Solo a Serenata, Maszkowski
- b Gavotte, Godard
- Miss Annie M. McPartland.
- Tent scene between Brutus and Cassius, Shakespeare
- Fred L. Lent.
- The ride of Jennie McNeil, Carlton
- Mabel E. Bigelow.
- Death of Robespierre, Anonymous
- George A. Denny.
- Asleep at the Switch, Hoey
- Mabel A. Warner.
- Vocal Duet, Love, Booth
- Misses Mandana Snow and Susan Knight.
- How He Saved St. Michaels, Stansbury
- George H. Olney.
- The Dandy Fifth, Gassaway
- Annie M. McPartland.
- Arnold at Stillwater, English
- Lester B. Murdock.
- Trio, Twilight, Abt
- Misses Snow, Thurston and Mowry.

One of the most interesting events of the evening was the first appearance in public of Miss Susan E. Knight as an amateur singer. She has a strong, sweet, well-balanced voice and if studied well under a gifted teacher with true musical taste and feeling, she will certainly occupy a prominent position in the history of Leicester stars. The honors of the evening fell to all participants as all acted their part well.

The graduating exercises of the Class of '91, at Leicester Academy, June 24, commenced at 2 p.m. Smith Hall was packed to its utmost capacity. The platform was tastefully decorated and showed careful observation in the management. In the centre of the wall, back of the platform was the class motto: "PAS FINI MAIS COMMENCE '91."

The graduating exercises of the Class of '91, at Leicester Academy, June 24, commenced at 2 p.m. Smith Hall was packed to its utmost capacity. The platform was tastefully decorated and showed careful observation in the management. In the centre of the wall, back of the platform was the class motto: "PAS FINI MAIS COMMENCE '91."

Ferns and flowers in profusion adorned the walls. The obligations of the graduates to their teachers are manifold. Into what occupation he or she may enter, their education has increased their chances for success. May the class of '91 show their loyalty in remembering the debt it owes to Leicester Academy and her instructors in their patience and devotion of training. Diplomas were conferred upon the following students: Misses Mary D. Thurston, Alice M. Estes, Mary E. Newton, Mabel E. Bigelow, Lelia B. Jordan, Bertha Denny, Mabel A. Warner, Annie M. McPartland, Maggie M. McAllister, Susan E. Knight, Mary E. Adams and Annie M. Cooper, Messrs. Lester B. Murdock, Joseph A. Trainor, Peter Jerome, George A. Denny and Arthur A. Sibley. Alumni supper and reception at Leicester hotel in the evening concluded the days festivities.

"Farewell! a long farewell, to all my greatness! This is the state of man: today he puts forth The tender leaves of hopes: tomorrow blossoms And bears his blushing honours thick upon him."

The friends of the Class of '91 can not better express their good wishes for each member, than by quoting from a speech at the Crystal Palace, June 24, 1870, "The secret of success is constancy to purpose." BETTINA. June 26, 1861.

The Inman Line S. S., City of Chicago, sailing from New York, July 1st., will bear among others G. Henry Whitcomb, wife and children, Harry E, Emma C., David and Ernest; Miss Emily K. Mellen; and the Rev. A. McCullagh and wife, all of Worcester.

The Record of the Week is held over till our next number.

Don't fail to read LIGHT's offers of bicycles. This is bona fide. Call and get specimen numbers to canvass with.

RAYMOND'S VACATION EXCURSIONS. ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

SUMMER TOURS

Of from five to twenty-one days' duration, and including visits to the leading resorts of New England, Canada, and the Middle States during the months of July and August.

SECOND TRIP TO ALASKA

(the first party of July 11 having been filled) leaving Boston Saturday July 25. The outward trip over the Canada Pacific Railway, and the return over the Northern Pacific Railroad, with a visit to the Yellowstone National Park.

In addition to above, parties will leave Boston July 27 and September 7 for the

Yellowstone National Park,

Returning via Puget Sound and the Canadian Pacific Railway. A party will leave July 16 for the Yellowstone National Park and return, a trip of 20 days. Next Excursions to California, September 7 and October 15.

Send for descriptive circular, designating the particular tour desired.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB. 296 Washington St. (opposite School St.), BOSTON.

An Escape From Prison.

On seeing Comrade Charles M. Smith's account of escape from Andersonville in the N. Y. Tribune, the writer of the following letter wrote a note which was printed in the paper. On Comrade Smith's writing to him, the following very interesting reply was received.

No. 417 JOHNSON ST., COVINGTON, KY.

DEAR OLD COMRADE: I'm very much pleased to get your letter and will try to answer your questions. I am very sorry to find that your comrades in the escape are gone. I had no particular acquaintance with either, but Barrows. I was introduced to him by David Parrish 10th Wis. Inf. a very tall man that was cured of gangrene by Barrows. He escaped with me but was recaptured, as some negroes described him to us as having been taken to Tallahassee jail. To answer 1st, I am of Welsh parents, emigrated in 1844. Engaged as scout by Gen. Burnside, in June, '63, helped pilot the army across the mountains; then went to North Carolina and gathered about 700 men and was taking them to Knoxville, when suddenly a force of Rebel Cavalry pursued us. I rode on and ordered the recruits to take to the woods; was successful in saving nearly all, but was captured myself, and a few recruits about six or seven, I think. The rebels took us across the mountains to Atlanta where we were put among the Chickamauga prisoners and taken to Richmond, thence to Danville, then to Andersonville; then was carried out in a blanket, paralyzed by scurvy, to the hospital. Barrows liked my plans (I was on crutches then) he did all he could to cure me but thought I was too lame to travel when he started. I saw you three going. I saw that you were packed for a journey. The rebels might easily see it. I was afraid that you had overdone it. I had been trying to organize a general outbreak in Richmond, Danville, Andersonville, but spies, or traitors spoiled our plans, until I was forced to pick a few for an escape, but scurvy interfered, although I never gave up the idea. I would tell the boys (when unable to move a foot without taking hold with my hands) that I was going to escape as soon as I could walk, "and if I start I will make it through" some would laugh at me, others would ask me if I were braver or smarter than the men who were recaptured. I told them the trouble was they were too brave. I thought it required more caution and calculation than bravery. As soon as you went I commenced in earnest to form my company. I selected David Parrish, Wis., David Jones, David Hughes and David Winn of Penn. Vol. Inf. who were captured in Plymouth. They were nurses and strong fresh men. They agreed that I was to command. I did not know any Union man on guard. So for a week I went around the fence scanning the faces of the guards and studying the best point to make the attempt. I selected the lower corner of the enclosure where the guards were posted inside the fence. There was a small tree near the fence, above where the first guard was posted outside the fence. On Sunday, one week after you started I hailed that guard, "What have you to trade?" I said "blanket, boots, overcoat, etc.," "I will give you as much as any of us for them." "Come a little nearer," said I. I talked through a knot hole. I told him if he would let five of us pass, he might have them all and five dollars in gold. (the gold was bogus) He said he wished we were all gone, but advised us to stay as the dogs would get us. We told him that we knew of the dogs and would risk it. We got ready and started at dusk; we got over the fence in the shadow of the tree and gave him the plunder. When two men that saw us get over the fence, got over a little above, our guard was going to stop them when I said, "Let them go. If you are caught with this crowd they will shoot you sure." He consented. They went like deer along the ridge; we went into the swampy ground, and the dogs were out in less than an hour. They struck the trail of the two men. We emerged on dry land, the moon being full and made perhaps ten miles; got on the rail track below Americus, followed it to Albany, then we took to the woods and made straight for St. Marks, Fla; got on board the Robert Lee a sailing mortar boat, which that day sailed for Key West to exchange her mortars for rifled guns; we got transportation to New York; reached New York the day before Thanksgiving. We had many narrow escapes on the way but we made almost a bee line and hit on the exact spot on the coast wonderfully. I have been requested by my friends to publish the narrative of our adventure on the way but I did not want the notoriety; but I love to tell it to old comrades and friends as I now remember it, for I find that my memory is failing, that is I fail to remember incidents, when I particularly want them, but they will return again especially names and dates. I would like very much to see you and fight our old battles over. It will be soon over with me. I am sixty-five years old. I will be very glad to hear from you often and may tell you of many incidents of the way, etc. Am a member of Geo. H. Thomas Post, Cincinnati, Ohio.

THOMAS CHESHIRE.

GARRET FRUIT.

No. 2.

This Indenture witnesseth that Moses Larnard of Templeton in the County of Worcester Doth Bind his Son Simon an apprentice to Wm. Brown of Charlemont in the County of Hampshire Cordwainer to Learn his art, Trade and mystery after the manner of an apprentice to Serve him four years and ten months from the date hereof Dureing all which Said Term the said Simon his sd master faithfully Shall obey & Serve his Secrets keep his lawfull commands gladly obey he shall dono Damage to his sd Master without giving him notice nor see it done by others he Shall not wast his masters goods or lend them Unlawfully to any he Shall not Comit fornication Nor contract matrimony within the sd Term he Shall not play at any unlawfull game he Shall not absent himself Day nor Night from his Service without his leave Nor hant the houses Taverns or Playhouses but in all things behave himself as a faithfull Servant ought to do Dureing the sd Term And the Said Master Shall allow the sd Simon one month in Each year for Scoolling and provide for sd apprentice sufficient and wholsom meat Drink washing and lodgeing Cloathing and other Necessary meat and convenient for an apprentice Dureing all Term aforesaid and at the End thereof Shall dismiss the sd apprentice with two good Suits of aparel fitting for all parts of his body the one for Lord's day and the other for working Days

In Testimony whereof sd Parties have Interchangeably set there hands and Seals this Eleventh day of February one Thousand Seven Hundred & Seventy five

Signed Seald and deliverd

WILLIAM BROWN

In presents of

Ruth Larnard

Anna Larnard

No. 1 of this series appeared May 16. As to the Moses mentioned there the following is apropos. Snake stories never lessen as they are told.

I find by reference to family record that my great grandfather indentured his sons (he had others) till they became twenty-one years of age. His son Moses, was indentured to his grandfather. (These were four generations of the name of Moses.) Said Moses was in the Rev. Army (a waiter for Gen. Nixon from Framingham.) He died Sept. 17th, 1776 in New Jersey, in consequence of drinking a snake from a brook which was taken from him after death, and 'twas said it filled a milk pan. His red coat was given another brother, some time afterwards, which he started to wear to his home (Southern N. H.) but he never reached his home, nor was ever heard from after leaving Baldwinville, Mass. He was a surveyor and it was feared he might have been lost. That was in the winter of 1777 or 8 (I am not certain which.) Simon also died in the army in N. J.

Yours hastily,
L. P.

All his old friends will rejoice that John A. Farley, W. H. S. '79, once on the Telegram now on the Boston Record, is off for a summer tour in Europe. What fun he will have when he is Far-ley away, on that tramp through Switzerland.

Prof. U. Waldo Cutler and wife go to Hollis town for the summer. This is the Professor's home town.

It is announced that Wallace M. Turner, W. H. S. '87; Harvard '91 is to teach Latin and Greek next year, in the University of California. A long ways from home.

The Colonial Club gave a reception at the residence of Dr. D. F. Estabrook, 107 Pleasant Street, last Saturday evening. The club was formed about six months ago as a social club, and the membership is limited to ten. At 8 o'clock the guests began to arrive and were escorted from the sidewalk to the house, the walks being lined with Chinese lanterns. Inside they were received by Mrs. Dr. Estabrook, Mrs. J. C. Cutter and Mrs. George Aldrich, patronesses, assisted by Miss Lizzie Porter and Miss Mary Davis. Truda's orchestra furnished music for dancing. Games were played and a general good time enjoyed till 10.30 o'clock. During the evening refreshments were served. The committee which had charge of the affair consisted of Harry Estabrook and Harry Cutler. The club members present were: M. Percival Whittall, Ralph C. Aldrich, Walter A. Clark, Harry F. Estabrook, H. F. Cutler and David Casares.

MODERN MERCHANDISING METHODS, as advertised, will continue through this entire week. Prices named will be honored in every instance. Count on saving a half, a third or a quarter on almost anything that will soon be behind the season. This applies to all kinds of good, straight, honest reliable merchandise.

EDW. L. SMITH & CO.
New York Store.

Week of bargains commencing Monday Morning, June 22d.

Preparatory to our Semi-annual Stock-taking, which will occur the First of July, we have made a general reduction in prices in every department in our Store. This whole page would not afford us ample space to quote the thousands of bargains which we shall offer, so we will make no attempt; suffice it to say, however, that the bargains will be very numerous and the prices will be startling and effective. You are cordially invited to share the advantages offered by this great reduction sale.

Z. F. LITTLE & CO.,

234 and 238 Main Street.

About Folks.

Rev. F. W. Bailey and his wife, daughter of Jerome Marble, Harvard Street, are at her father's home.

Our friend Elmer C. Rice, one of the Telegram's omnivorous news gatherers, is off for a two weeks' vacation in Vermont. Who will "get there" while he's away!

Our old friend, Joseph Lovell, now of Medfield, came up to Worcester Tuesday just to see his old home and associates. He still persists in climbing the stairs rather than use the elevator. His son Albert, came with him. We are always glad to meet them. They can't come too often.

George H. Corbett, in the employ of A. F. Burbank, left for Europe during the week. He will be absent several weeks, visiting in the time, Berlin, where he will meet his old friend and companion, Chas. H. Dyer.

Lawyer Gile is having more than his share of illness. First it was La Grippe and now it is tonsillitis. He is looking forward to the time when he can get up to his old New Hampshire home. There is no place like the old home.

Mrs. C. A. Harrington of Boston, who has been visiting friends in this city, left Wednesday to visit in Gilbertville.

Miss Stella V. Rolston, who, for several years past, has been a teacher in the Sandwich Islands has recently returned to this city and to the home of her father, Mr. David R., of Burncoat Street. She is very enthusiastic over her living in the Islands and would willingly return, were it not for home objections. The same reasons prevent her accepting a very flattering offer to go to Sidney, Australia. She was graduated from our High School in 1880 and three years later from the Normal School of this city, and till her going to this way off West was a Worcester teacher. She thinks it possible for New Englanders to live outside of their native section. She believes in energy and enterprise.

Comrade James McLaughlin was buried from his late residence No. 6 Conlin Court, Wednesday morning. He was a veteran who marched with Sherman from Atlanta to the sea. Comrades Jeremiah Murphy, James Ward, Henry T. Lord and N. L. Revere acted as bearers.

Geo. P. Lane was married Tuesday by the Rev. A. Z. Conrad to Miss Mary Willey Dick at her home, 159 Austin Street. After a bridal tour to Block Island and New York, they will return to reside at No. 14 Woodland Street.

The lawn party given by Dr. and Mrs. D. O. Mears at their May Street home, Tuesday evening, was very enjoyable. A large number gathered to greet the Piedmont pastor and his wife and to see them in their new home. They were very busy greeting friends and directing them to the places of pleasure with which the house and grounds abounded. Games were enjoyed by the younger people and music was furnished by Clarence E. Steere's orchestra.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

Jersey Vests in the delicate shades of blue, pink and salmon, 12 1-2c only.

Fancy Stockings for men or women, guaranteed 33c quality, now for you at 12 1-2c.

They're O. K., the writer knows it, and has a dozen proofs of his knowledge.

Children's dresses for 29c that you will find a very convenient bargain.

Windsor Ties—you'll find a crowd around them all the time, no wonder—think of the price, 12 1 2c.

Two and three dollar embroidered Flouncing for a dollar, gives you a hint of one of the best of bargains.

Sailor Hats, 12 1-2c, that your friend payed 50 to 75c for a week ago.

Violet Wreaths that were 25c, now five cents.

Bunches of fine flowers 5c and 12 1-2c.

Tray Cloths, all linen; instead of 37c, 17c all asked for them.

50c Turkey Red Damask, the Bates quality, 37 1-2c, while other Damask cut from 25c to 15c a yard.

Whole pieces 18 inch Cotton Diaper, 37 1-2c.

25c Satines for 8 1-3.

25c Ginghams 12 1-2c.

Eastman's Perfumes, known value everywhere 30c an ounce;

We give you a real ounce—not a 7-8 of an ounce bottle full—but a measured ounce, 12 1-2c.

Eagle Hexagon Pencils No 145 quality, can be had 5c a dozen.

Bright and charming Persian Draperies, cost so little and give you so much to ornament your home, 14c a yard only.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

Sons of Veterans.

Once more my muse sings a merry strain,

And my bark sails a sunny sea;
And the fragrant breath of sweetest flowers
Comes wafted along to me.

Once more the roses of early June
Follow close on December snows,
And the firm, swift step of the nation's youth
Close up the veterans: weak and slow.

I look down the line; the old heads are white,
The blue and the grey side by side;
But, pray, who are these! with the smooth beardless face
Who march with a long steady stride.

It surely can't be that ancient idea
Of the soul being reclothed in youth,
Is exemplified here in this driving age,
Must I receive this all for the truth?

Once more sweeps a cloud o'er the bright azure blue,
That saddens the old soldier's heart.
He looks up above and sees the ranks full,
While here they're a long ways apart.

He looks at the graves from the East to the West
And he asks, "when the last soul has sped,
Who will place the bright flag o'er his weary old form
As it sleeps in its silent cold bed?"

Hark, comrades! please listen; away down the line
I hear the bright bugles clear call;
I see the reserves and they wear the same blue,
And the old flag floats over them all,
And they march as we did in the days past and gone,
When Co'umb a called for her sons.
Remember young men what this war cost your sires,
And cherish the treasures we won.

And when we look back from the camping beyond,
And the sun, and the rain, and the dew
Kiss the little green mounds all along your bright land,
We shall look for the flag with the blue
And its bright radiant stripes all untarnished and clear,
And its stars all undimmed, pure and white,
For it led your old sires from the dark night of doubt,
To the summit of Freedom's bright height.

F. L. H.

The Ware-Pratt Company

Invite attention to an extensive display of

Fine Clothing for Men, Boys and Children.

The Latest Fashions, Exclusive Styles from our own workshops, Honest Goods and the Lowest Prices, Grade and Quality considered.

Our Custom Department is teeming with the Newest styles, Colorings and Materials, which go to make up the finest lines we have ever shown.

The Ware-Pratt Company,

MANUFACTURERS AND RETAILERS,

408 and 412 Main Street,

Worcester.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts. State of the order March 18, 1891: Membership, 4915; Amount loaned for Relief, $15,200; Reserve Fund, $22,922.40; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,759.08; Total, $44,975.48. Men and women admitted upon the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600. Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organization wanted. Address NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

LATHROP * BROTHERS,

LADIES', MEN'S AND CHILDREN'S

FINE AND MEDIUM SHOES

Of the most approved process of manufacture, meeting every requirement of Quality, Comfort and Style.

564 MAIN STREET, Franklin Square.

LEADING SAFETY BICYCLES.

Solid, Cushion and Pneumatic Tires. Full line of Supplies. Repairing a Specialty.

LEMONT & WHITTEMORE, 39 PEARL ST.

Open evenings.

What is the good man and the wise?
Ofttimes a pearl which none doth prize;

Of jewel rare, which men account
A common pebble and despise.
Set forth upon the world's bazaar,
It mildly gleams, but no one buys;
Till it in anger Heaven withdraws
From the world's undiscerning eyes.

And in its shell the pearl again,
And in its mine the jewel lies.

—Richard Chevenix Trench.

Now is the Time to Buy a

CARRIAGE !

at a Small Profit.

Geo. C. Dewhurst, 17 Park St.,

OPP. THE COMMON.

Larkin's, 395 Main St., Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps, Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.,
Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Grate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD. Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main ST.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LIGHT

VOL. III. No. 18. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JULY 4, 1891. FIVE CENTS.

WINSLOW TENNIS CLUB,

G. Stewart Dickinson,

Louie E. Ware,

Arthur Burtelle, President.

Hugh M. Southgate,

Charles T. Tatman

[ENGRAVED EXPRESSLY FOR LIGHT.]

PUTNAM & SPRAGUE CO.

JULY 1st.

Beginning today we reduce the price from 10 to 15 per cent on our entire stock of

FURNITURE

except on a few articles, upon which the prices are fixed by the manufacturers, to be continued during the dull season. Now is the time to buy CHAMBER SUITS, PARLOR SUITS, DINING-ROOM SUITS, or anything in Furniture that may be found in first-class Ware-rooms. REFRIGERATORS and CHILDREN'S CARRIAGES at cost. Don't fail to take advantage of this sale. Liberal terms of credit if desired.

247 and 249 Main Street, Corner Central.

YARMOUTH S. S. CO.,

(Limited) Shortest and Most Direct Route Between United States & Nova Scotia, via the favorite sea-going and new steamships "Boston" and "Yarmouth." Sea voyage only 15 to 17 hours. Tickets sold to all parts of Nova Scotia.

Steamer will leave Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston, for Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 11 o'clock A. M.

Returning will leave Yarmouth for Boston every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Close connections made at Yarmouth with all Railway, Steamboat and Stage lines to all points in N. S.

For further information write for folder or apply to G. Y. Lancaster, M. H. Church & Co., O. F. Rawson, Worcester; or J. F. Spinney, Agent, Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the

ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,

92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

C. H. DRAPER,

Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

Three Large Moving Wagons. Baggage Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!

It saves Time,
Labor and Fuel,
(two thirds cost
per hr. for fuel.)

Manufacturers
Guarantee every
Iron.

TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, M'F'g. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

OXYGEN

We have the genuine

Oxygen Treatment

FOR THE CURE AND PREVENTION OF DISEASE.

It is not a Drug, but Nature's true Restorative in debility and all disordered conditions of the system.

Our Oxygen is fresh every day.

Prepared and administered with the utmost care by a Physician of large experience.

It will pay to investigate our METHODS and PRICES.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

LINCOLN BLOCK,

368 1-2 Main, Cor. Elm.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

Quinsigamond Lake ICE

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Especial attention given to the family trade.

Garfield & Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 143-4.

N. G. TUCKER.

W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER & SON, SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street,

Worcester, Mass.

384 MAIN STREET 388

Bigelow & Longley

are prepared to show all the Latest Novelties in

CUSTOM AND READY-MADE

* CLOTHING *

MEN'S, YOUTH'S, BOYS' or CHILDREN.

We can give you a SPRING OVERCOAT from $5 to $25, in all the latest shades, made up with silk face and silk sleeve linings.

CHEVIOT SUITS

in blue or black, cut single or double-breasted. Prices from $8 to $25. Also a fine assortment of

Blue and Black Serges,

$15 $15 PER SUIT $15 $15

Indigo Blue Flannel and Yacht Cloth Suits,

we can give you a single or double-breasted, at prices from $6 to $15, and GUARANTEE THE COLOR. An elegant line of light and dark colored

Scotches and Fancy Cassimeres,

from $6 to $25. The best assortment of light colored TROUSERS we have ever shown, from $3 to $7. FANCY VESTS—Mar-selles and Duck. Also a lot of dark Fancy Cassimeres and Silks, from 75c. to $4.

Bigelow & Longley

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JULY 4, 1891.

No. 18

"Oh say can you see by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming?"
—Francis Scott Key.

The Glorious "Fourth."

No day in the whole year, not even Christmas, so completely fills the boy's heart as the Fourth of July.

From midnight to midnight his noise is tolerated. And how could it be otherwise? There are very few fathers who have not stimulated this very characteristic by recitals of their own juvenile pranks and their sons merely emulate.

There may not be much history in the decorations that our children so much delight in, but the day of the month is well impressed on the memory. If our older people would only take hold of the matter and have an old fashioned celebration much good might follow.

Since 1876, the city has not authorized a public observance of the day. To be sure we have had a Studiefunk procession once, in 1885, but since that date not even the "Ancient and Horribles" have deigned to awake, pro bono publico. We are not so far away from our national birth that the memories of Independence Hall should be allowed to fall into desuetude.

While we would not have any less noise on the part of the boys, might not some of the old fashioned ways be reinstated and the public be the better for it? Some older people would like to see Mechanics Hall opened for a public meeting, where speaking, reading and singing, all of a patriotic character, might keep alive the memories of the days of '76.

This question of national memories, is a very important one and, in no country in the world, should national history be made more prominent. The constant influx of foreigners who know nothing of our past and very little of anything else, make it necessary to kindle in their souls the fires of patriotism at the earliest possible moment. Base ball and boating tell nothing of Bunker Hill and Yorktown. Worcester has a proud history in patriotic lines. Why not rehearse it, or some part of it on the "Fourth."

Schools are finally over for the summer. The last urchin has been promoted, or otherwise, and now he is looking about for something to do. It is doubtful if another such industrious center as Worcester exists in the Commonwealth. Of course, there are young people who have no need of laboring; but it would seem that the great proportion of our boys and girls are disposed to earn something.

Unluckily for them, the vacation comes at the dull season. Some of them may get chances to substitute; but unless they can go into shops and work, their opportunities are not numerous. Boys can take care of lawns, they can light lamps, and distribute papers and some find other employment; but what shall the girl do who is industriously inclined? She too has need of now and then a penny of her own. How can she earn it? If a place falls vacant in a store she can take it. If she has learned how to run a type-writer, she may act as a copyist; but the ways for her to get a little money of her own are very few.

In London, there are as many news girls as boys. Perhaps our lads, on Main Street, may be surprised some day at seeing feminine rivals in their monopoly. Certain it is, that only the ice need be broken, before girls will be crying the Telegram, Spy and Gazette for sale as well as the boys. The artificial barriers that have so long been growing will come down entirely some day and a family of girls will be one of wage earners just as well as the one where boys abound.

This date, July 4th, is a good one on which to consider any question which looks towards greater freedom for any one, and, notwithstanding all the sacrifices made in all the past years, one portion of our people is yet sadly in bondage. This does not appear where wealth meets all demands and needs; but when once pinching want comes in, the question as to what woman can do becomes paramount. Prejudice and cant must be relegated to oblivion and everything that makes for the good of all be encouraged.

Let us make our children self sustaining; first, by the best instruction that the schools can give; second by teaching them some trades that may give facility to the hand, and thus educating head and hand. Surely he is better equipped who can drill in a variety of tactics than that one who has only one system. Handicraft for all—girls as well as boys. Break down all barriers if necessary. What, send women to the shops! Certainly, if they choose to go. If the greatest dressmaker in the world be a man, why may not some woman be a great machinist? God speed the day.

Since our drift is toward the boys and girls today, here is one suggestion further. Master Gray of Maple street has made a very good crayon of Mr. Stephen Salisbury, to be hung in the new school house on Salisbury Street. In naming this edifice and its school, hereafter, why wouldn't it be a good idea to drop the "Street" and call it the Salisbury School. Then why not go further and apply the names of other eminent citizens to these institutions of learning. Dix Street school does not have so pleasant a sound as the Dix School would, and thereby we might direct attention to the noteworthy family after whom the street was named. Bancroft, Lincoln, Davis, Allen and Merrick; the list is a long one, whose names applied to our schools might keep alive the memories of our fathers.

About Folks.

Last week, LIGHT received a very pleasant call from Mr. Josiah T. Reade, now of Chicago, but in earlier years a resident of this city. He was one of the boys who migrated with Principal Elbridge Smith from the Old Thomas St. Latin School, in 1845 to their palatial new High School, now the Walnut Street building. He sees many changes.

Wallace M. Turner, who was graduated in the last class at Harvard received his degree, Magna cum laude, an honor that no Worcester man has attained in several years.

G. Y. Lancaster is sending out a very pretty advertisement in the way of engravings of himself and wife with an invitation to call at 434 Main street for R. R. Steamship tickets, foreign money, drafts and Accident Insurance.

Mr. Geo. B. Churchill one of the High School teachers, sailed last Wednesday from New York for a summer's tour of Germany. He accompanies his former instructor, Prof. Richardson of Amherst.

Edwin M. Overholser, for several years in the Boston Store is now acting as travelling agent for a Boston House, Grosvenor & Richards. Medical and Surgical Goods.

Miss Annie J. Forehand, mentioned in last week's LIGHT as a recent graduate of Mt. Holyoke, is a niece rather than daughter of Sullivan Forehand. Her father was the late Capt. Walter Forehand.

Arthur B. Chapin, late at the Union Station with Mr. Ruggles, has returned to the employ of Henry Walker with whom he was five years ago.

Dr. C. R. Green has gone to Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H., for a month's vacation.

Rev. James J. Donnelly was advanced to the sub-deaconship order at Brighton June 26. Thomas P. Smith and William A. Hickey studying at Paris, recently received the tonsure. All went from our High School to Holy Cross and thence to the Theological Seminary.

Dr. Edwin T. Painter, long ill in Berlin, was expected to start for America last Tuesday.

Miss Ida W. Johnson, and her friend Miss Nettie Banister, have gone to Princeton for the summer.

The Hon. Samuel E. Hildreth, wife and son, Charles E., now a Senior at Amherst, have taken up their summer home at the Ocean View House at 'Sconset, Nantucket. If the summer rest will completely restore our Ex-Mayor to health and strength, his many friends will rejoice.

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND
HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.

Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building,
Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as
second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, JULY 4, 1891.

Two Bicycles!

THIRTY-FIVE DOLLARS!

One will be given to that boy or girl who secures the most cash subscriptions for LIGHT between this date, May 30th and August 1st, 1891.

The other is for the boy who sells the largest number of papers during the same time.

Come up to the office, boys, and talk it over.

Leicester.

The annual convention of the Worcester County South W. C. T. U. was held in the Congregational Church, Tuesday, June 30th. The paper, Why Woman should live up to her privileges, by Mrs. Addie W. Harrington of Leicester, was read and proved a valuable selection on the programme. Through the kindness of Mrs. Harrington we are able to present the following:

"We are not here to argue whether woman is equal to man, or whether woman is stepping out of her sphere when she walks outside the path custom has circumscribed. Those problems were solved long ago, and when some of those fossilized arguments are unearthed, we are reminded that the protracted slumbers of Rip Van Winkle have many rivals. We ponder upon such arguments and study long to find their logic. But when we wrestle with such a one as a Methodist minister made when opposing the admission of women to the conference we study in vain. The argument was this: "From the Numidian lion to the New Jersey mosquito, the male sex is the sex that executes a purpose." The only point to his argument is to be found at the end of the sting which he should have added is the property of the female mosquito. We are not here to advocate that we would have woman anything but a woman with just the characteristics God has given her, nor would we have her ambition like that of one who said she shouldn't die happy unless she saw on some grave stone Paul Jones relict of Mary Jones. But we are here to argue that it is woman's duty to live up to the privileges that have been won after a long siege of teasing.

Forty years ago, the so-called strong minded women, commenced the campaign by teasing the men to let them use their long hidden, stored away in a napkin weapon—the gift of speech.

Susan B. Anthony waited twenty-five minutes for an august assembly of masculine wisdom to decide that she might make a three minute speech. Such women were the public laughing stock and so uncomfortable were their lives made that they must have longed for an ethereal sphere, in place of the one where men dwelt. From the ridicule and overdrawn jests heaped upon them, one would get the impression that a woman who advocated woman's rights was a something that stalked abroad and strutted along, dressed in ridiculous fashion, something like a man, and boisterously declared that she was an abused creature who would be satisfied with nothing less, than ruling the universe. Woman's cause has won friends, till today the placing her on an equal footing with man is gaining more and more favor.

Our newspapers when even politics are at their height, can afford space to this question, and men are seeing the justice of woman's demands. There are some who are strenuous that St. Paul's injunction should be obeyed to the letter; no doubt their knowledge of the Bible is limited to that one verse, for they fail to notice that ages before Paul came into existence God said "let them have dominion." But it is not among the men that we find the greatest opponents to woman's suffrage, it is among the women themselves. We seem to say "You men can make the laws and we will sit quietly in our homes and pray that things may be better, but we have no time to trouble ourselves with politics. We are satisfied that every other class of citizens shall have the management of our country; the negro, ignorant through slavery, the Indian just from savagery, the foreigner with his loose ideas of freedom, while we intelligent and virtuous as a class are content to have no voice in these matters."

Our families may be dying of typhoid and diphtheria caused by poor drainage but then we have all the rights we want, we don't care to vote for better. Did we ever stop to think how we came in possession of our rights? They have come through the efforts of those despised women who dared to step out of ruts to be peculiar, to declare that they wished to have their condition bettered. It is wonderful how woman has advanced. We are proud of her record. She has been like the undiscovered mine of gold which when the opportunity came, showed forth its worth and proved of widespread use. See her fighting her way all these years with no weapons save tongue and pen. See her knocking at the college door, till wisdom, wearied by her ceaseless racket lets her in. See her mastering the professions. See her in sham legislatures paving the way to the real. And best of all see her heart and soul in every moral reform. She is thinking for herself; she is guilty of having more than a dozen thoughts during her lifetime; she no longer must ask her all-knowing husband the whys and wherefores; her life is not now bounded in a nutshell, nor is she content to re-breathe her husband's breath, re-think his thoughts, or re-echo his opinions. Her condition is better than that of her foremothers and 'Surely it doth not yet appear what she shall be.' If the agitation of suffrage has accomplished this much, what must the realization do!

We thank the strong minded woman for giving our so-called sphere such a momentum that it was forced to throw off other spheres, and now shall we fail to do our part? Shall we at the eleventh hour be guilty of putting on brakes to this progression?

We cannot think that the aristocratic women of one of our large cities were very philanthropic when they sent in a protest against woman's suffrage. People make a great mistake when they sit down with their pugs and poodles, perfectly satisfied that they are the only ones in the world. They forget the sisterhood. They know not of the misery in the back street and alley. They care nothing for that woman whose house is blighted by sin and who longs to help cast the chain that will drag the demon to his death.

But it will be argued there are as many bad women as men, so nothing is to be gained. As a rule, women will do what is right. That her spiritual nature is superior to man's is proved by the fact that two-thirds of the church are women. A woman whose home is ruined by drink is not likely to want drink to rule supreme. She will seize the opportunity to vote away the trap that catches her children. Word comes from Wyoming that suffrage has elevated politics, has a good influence for temperance, and makes their elections quiet. The Secretary of Education declares that wherever women are on school boards, affairs are in a progressive state. No reason can be brought forth why a mother should not have the same interest, and the same care for the schools, that the father has.

Suffrage is coming whether we want it or not. It is in accordance with a divine plan, and how can we consider it anything but a duty to work in harmony. Some say when they can have a voice on the temperance question then they will vote. Our legislative fathers say, we have given women the right to vote for school committee, but as only a few do so, women do not want the ballot. No wonder they come to such a conclusion and we will never have the power to vote on the temperance or any other question, till we accept the part of the loaf already offered.

Our older women are circumscribed by custom, and very naturally oppose any change from the good old way. But the younger women have no excuse. How much better for them to expand their lives by studying the questions of the day, the politics of their country, rather than consume their lives in small talk. To be sure it will leave less time to criticize the hang of their neighbors dress, to question the wisdom of her spending more than her husband's income, and to circulate the naughty acts of her terrible boy; but then they will have gained in other directions. If they improve their privileges they will become more intelligent, more ambitious to become useful, more ready to help their weaker sister, and they can have the satisfaction that they have done their best to redress the wrong to advance the right."

Winslow Tennis Club.

Unlike base ball, which we are fond of terming the American "National game," tennis is a sport borrowed from our English cousins, but within the past decade, the young people of the United States have made it one of the most popular of all recreative games, as it is certainly one of the most healthful and commendable. Worcester has had its devotees of the game from almost the first of its appearance in the country, but within five, or, perhaps, three years, it has attained its greatest popularity, which, despite the fluctuating fortunes of individual clubs, still continues, and one result of which has been to produce several players of recognized ability.

LIGHT presents to its friends this week, a group of faces representing the most active tennis organization of the city, the Winslow Tennis Club. Though not as old as one or two other local Tennis Associations, it has had a remarkably successful career, and promises to stand at the head of the tennis interest in Worcester for some time to come.

The club really owes its existence to the class of '89 of Worcester High School. That class claimed as members some of the brightest young men and women in the city, and among them a considerable number of tennis enthusiasts. After graduation, and during the active tennis season, it was proposed to form a tennis club, and a canvass among the members of the class found a large number ready to join such an organization. In this movement, Mr. Charles T. Tatman, the president of the class, and Mr. W. H. Chase another of its leading members, had especial prominence, and on the first of August, 1889, an organization was effected, the membership including both gentlemen and ladies. A board of officers was chosen, with Mr. W. H. Chase at the head, and preparations for actual work were begun without delay. A tract of land at the corner of John and Sever Streets caught the eye of the committee on grounds, and the owner, the late Gen. William S. Lincoln, readily gave the club the use of it.

The club was named in honor of Hon. Samuel Winslow, then mayor of the city, who had always taken a special interest in the class, and frequently referred to it as "his class," from the fact that it entered and left the High School in the same years that he entered upon and left the duties of the mayoralty. Mayor Winslow had, therefore, a fraternal feeling for the class of 1889, and was evidently gratified that the new club should bear his name, for he honored the formal opening of the grounds with his presence and provided for the members a tasteful and appetizing spread on that occasion. His interest in the club, despite his many business cares, still continues, and is a source of great gratification to the members of the club.

The club's first season, that of 1889, was so successful as to place the club on sure footing, but with the advent of the season of 1890, it was found that the club would have to seek new quarters, since Gen. Lincoln's heirs did not desire to renew the privilege which he had granted the club.

It was again necessary to look up grounds, and arrangements were finally made with Mr.

Frederick W. Southwick, Register of Probate for the lease of a tract of land on Pleasant Street, west of North Merrick. The work of grading occupied considerable time, but in fairly good season the courts were opened, and throughout the season were in constant use. In the fall, a successful tournament was held, the championship in gentlemen's singles being won by Mr. H. M. Southgate, after a brilliant contest, while the ladies championship was won, after an equally interesting series, by Miss Mabel C. Streeter.

Mr. Chase was succeeded in the presidency by Mr. George O. Bridges, and he in turn gave place to Mr. Arthur Burtelle, the present incumbent. Under President Burtelle's direction, the grounds have recently been put in first class order. The club now has five courts available for play, two grass and three dirt. Two of the latter may safely be called the finest dirt courts ever laid out in the city. They are already in active use, and during the vacation season will afford recreation to a large membership.

Beside Mr. G. Stewart Dickinson, of whom mention is made later in this article, the club has another generous friend, outside its membership, however; and this gentleman, who does not wish his name mentioned, has recently donated to the club a cosy and most welcome club house, which has been erected on the west side of the club grounds, and which it is proposed to informally dedicate today. This house has been erected under the direction of President Burtelle and the building committee, and will prove a decided addition to the club's resources. It has two rooms, one for ladies and one for gentlemen. In the latter are provided a dozen lockers for the accommodation of members who wish to keep their impedimenta on the grounds.

It is intended to hold a club tournament, open to members, later in the season, probably during the latter part of August or first of September, before the collegiate members of the club return to their books.

Today being a holiday, the courts are to be opened early in the morning and will be in constant use all day.

In connection with this brief historical sketch of the club, LIGHT takes pleasure in making reference to the members of the club whose faces adorn the front page. The present board of officers of the club includes Mr. Arthur Burtelle, president; Miss Sadie E. Linell, vice president; Mr. J. Nourse, secretary; and Mr. W. H. Fuller, treasurer. Mr. Burtelle, therefore, in this connection, represents the club officially. It is not too much to say that the present high standing of the club is due more largely to him than to any other member. He has devoted himself to its interests in a way to advance its prosperity most substantially, and is an energetic and well qualified president. He is one of the early members of the club, having joined soon after its organization. He is well known, locally, having been assistant teller and book-keeper at the Citizens National Bank for several years, and afterward an assistant engineer in the office of the City Engineer, a position he now holds. He has been prominently identified with the work of the Pleasant Street Baptist church, and is a capable man. He is something of a bicyclist and a ball tosser, and is interested in athletics in general.

Mr. G. Stewart Dickinson is perhaps the most generous patron of amateur athletic sports in the city. Mr. Dickinson has been a tennis player for several years, having been president of the Woodlawn Tennis Club when it was at the height of its success—a success chiefly due to his practical interest in the club. In common with other members of the Woodlawn club, at the disbanding of that organization he joined the Winslow, and has shown his interest in a substantial manner, having presented the club with the handsome cup trophy, to be contested for in tournament, which was won last season by Mr. Hugh M. Southgate. Mr. Dickinson has also assisted in placing the club on a sound basis in other ways, and is one of its most valued and valuable members.

Mr. Hugh M. Southgate is not only the champion player of the Winslow Club, but of the city. He has played tennis, off and on, for about five years. His first prize was won in the Woodlawn tournament of two years ago, when he captured second prize in singles, and with Dadmun, first in doubles. Last year he won the championships in the tournaments of four clubs, the Winslow, Crescent, Worcester and Polytechnic Institute, defeating Dadmun, who had been considered almost invincible, and establishing a brilliant record. He suffered his only defeat by Crocker of Fitchburg, which prevented his taking the county championship. Mr. Southgate is a student at the Polytechnic Institute, and a general athlete.

Mr. Charles T. Tatman is one of the first members of the club, and at present one of its most active players. He is one of the most popular members of the club, and has several times been offered the presidency, which other duties have prevented him from accepting. Mr. Tatman is a graduate of the High School, class of 1889, and has since been a student at the Polytechnic Institute. He will probably enter Harvard next year.

Mr. Louie E. Ware is one of the club members who came from the ranks of the Woodlawn Club, in which he was a successful player. He has played tennis for four years, and is one of the best players in the club. He is a member of the Cornell University Tennis Association, and of the Inter-Fraternity Tennis Association, also a Cornell institution, Mr. Ware having been a student at Cornell since 1888. He was graduated from the Worcester High School in the class of 1887.

LIGHT regrets that it cannot present herewith the "counterfeit presentments" of some of the lady members of the club, whose modesty prevents their appearing in public. Miss Mabel C. Streeter, the lady champion, was one of the original members of the club, and has played tennis for about four years, her play last season being notably strong. Her chief opponent, last year, was Miss Alice I. Hastings, whose portrait LIGHT presented last week, as one of the graduates of this year's class at the High School. Miss Hastings is also a good player, and one of the most active members of the club. Miss Sadie E. Linnell, the vice president of the club, is one of the early members.

The club membership is now about eighty, and desirable accessions are being constantly received. Everything seems to indicate that the Winslow Tennis Club may look forward to a most prosperous future.

Aftermath.

The High School graduation took place as foretold and now another class of active, vigorous young people takes its place with the graduates. Mechanics Hall presented a lively appearance, filled with interested friends whose presence, effectually, contradicted the oft-repeated statement that the hall wouldn't be filled. These exercises were where similar ones should have been for years past. Doubtless, the rule is established, now, for years to come. One hundred and twenty-five's the summing up of the boys and girls in '91's class, and what a glorious sight it was to see them, in all their bright array, on the platform of the hall. Of course, all that they said was not heard, it wouldn't be anywhere; but the exhibition is not, altogether, one of hearing. The eye was gratified and the body was not roasted nor parboiled. The old order, long prevalent, of using essays prepared in the regular order of work still holds and LIGHT readily recalls the circumstances under which all the efforts were prepared. When all did well, to discriminate would be unfair and where every reader and speaker was so dear a friend, LIGHT must class all under the head, "Well done." Here is the program in full.

Music, chorus, "The Chapel," Kreutzer, school.
Salutatory, with essay, "A Letter to a Dead Author," Lucy D. Heald.
Essay, "Webster's First Bunker Hill Oration," Mary L. Clark.
Essay, "Evangeline," Alice I. Hastings.
Oration, "The Duke of Marlborough," Clarence W. Eastman.
Music, three-part song for ladies' voices, "Rest Thee on this Mossy Pillow," Smart, Ladies of the senior class.
Essay, "The Builders," Ethel L. Howard.
Essay, "The Literature of the Prison House," Ruth M. Pettit.
Oration, "A Day with Hawthorne," Warren A. Scott.
Music, chorus, "O, Guide of Israel," Bortiansky, school.
Essay, "The Chief Qualities in the Art and Genius of Virgil," Iva V. Smith.
Essay, "The Ancient Mariner," Ina M. Sprague.
Oration, "The Conqueror," with valedictory, Edward H. Warren.
Music, two-part song, "The Angel," Rubinstein, school; pianist, Fannie A. Hair.
Presentation of diplomas, by His Honor, Mayor Francis A. Harrington.
Class Song, Words by Thomas F. Cummings. Music by Fannie A. Hair.

As an exile on the ocean,
Turning from his fading home,
Sets his eyes with deep emotion
On the land where he must roam;

So we, too, now look with sorrow
On the home we leave today,
Turning there, new hope we borrow,
And the future stern survey.

In loving hearts we e'er shall treasure
Mem'ries dear of classmates kind,
And ever look with deepest pleasure
On the days we've left behind.

Benevoly let us do our duty—
Then upon the page of fame,
Traced by virtue's lasting beauty,
Each may write an honored name.

In the evening the High School was a blaze of glory. Hard work by diligent hands had been done to make the building beautiful for the reception. Graduates from the remote past as well as those of the later classes graced the occasion. It was a pleasure to see Mr. William E. Starr on the platform and to know that his interest is unflagging.

Here is the order of exercises for the evening.

Music by the orchestra.

Secretary's report.

Violin solo, by Miss Florence M. Sears, '89.

Remarks by Frank P. McKeon, president of the association, and response by Charles P. Haselden, president of the graduating class.

Mandolin solo, "La Berceuse," R. Schumann, Alice C. Whiting, '93.

Class history, Alice I. Hastings.

Music by the orchestra.

Accompanists, Mrs. C. W. Sears, Hector L. Belisle, '92.

Mr. McKeon, President of the Association, was graduated in 1876, the youngest president that the association has yet had. His words were excellent as were those of Mr. Haselden in replying for the school. Everything was enjoyable and delight ruled the hour. The Class History follows in full.

HISTORY OF CLASS OF '91, W. H. S.

BY ALICE I. HASTINGS.

We are told that history repeats itself, and this fact is no less true in the case of a class-history, yes, even of the class of '91.

Were I to take last year's, word for word, making some necessary changes of course, I think no one would be the wiser, though you would probably be surprised at my eloquence. But thinking it hardly worthy a member of this illustrious class to be guilty of plagiarism I have put together something of my own for tonight.

In the fall of '87 a crowd of boys and girls came tramping up the stairs of this building, making so much noise that Jock is reported to have said that he couldn't find a rat here for six months after. But Freshmen are noted for big feet, as Seniors for big heads, so Jock must pardon us for keeping him from such dainty repasts. When we finally reached this hall, we felt rather strange, but Mr. Roe's cheery words made us at home immediately, and we realized that we were part and parcel of the Worcester High School. We numbered about three hundred, a large proportion being boys.

From the vague rumors that reached us girls from the lower regions, we concluded that we did not envy our brothers their experience of the first few days. Our persecutions were of a milder sort consisting of the never-ending appeal, "O do join the Aletheia!" "You must!" "Why think what influence you'd have," etc.

We had been counting the days till the approach of the Worcester Festival, for the all-knowing Sophomore had informed us that the teachers kindly gave us half-lessons at that time. Alas, for human hopes! The Festival came but where were the half-lessons? We think the teachers meant well, but their early education in mathematics was so deficient that they were unable to calculate how much a half was.

Soon after the Festival we were honored by a visit from the Mayors' Club. Among the visitors was our present governor, then mayor of Cambridge. One morning we were treated to an agreeable surprise. We came to school and found the clocks running! For this kind deed Mr. Holmes received the congratulations of the entire school. Oct. 4, there were exercises in the hall in honor of Bancroft's birthday, which was the day before. We can not praise our principal too much for his thoughtfulness in arranging little celebrations of this kind; for they gave us a knowledge of the great men of the world that we might not otherwise have gained. Late in the fall there was great interest in a declamation contest between members of the Sumner Club. The first and third prizes were taken by members of the class of '90, but now we proudly claim them as men of our class.

Soon after, the Assembly held a public meeting at which the Rev. C. M. Lamson delivered an enjoyable lecture on "Books and the Art of Reading."

In February those of our class in Room 39, presented the school with two valuable engravings to be hung on the walls of that room; one, "Prayer at Valley Forge," the other, "Courtship of Washington." The presentation speech was made by F. L. Allen.

On the evening of March 16, a very interesting lecture entitled "The Outbreak of the Civil War" was given by Col. T. W. Higgins in before the members of the Aletheia and their friends.

It has been a time honored custom, established by Mr. Roe, for each class on reaching its Junior year to present something to the school, either a bust or a picture. Accordingly we assembled in the hall after recess on the 27th of April, to listen to the exercises attending the presentation of a bust of Alexander Hamilton by the class of '89. The bust, as I hope you all know, now stands at the right of the South entrance to this hall. It will not be out of place here, I think, to thank Mr. Roe for originating this plan by which we are made familiar with the faces of great men and women, and the staving whiteness of the walls is relieved.

One morning when we came up to devotionals, we saw a lady sitting on the platform, and we liked her immediately; for she had such an animated expression, and seemed so interested in everything that was going on around her. After the exercises she was introduced as Mrs. Ormiston Chant. She spoke on various subjects, holding our attention completely. I think no one who heard her earnest words will ever forget the speaker. She had come at Mr. Roe's invitation. It was such things as this that endeared Mr. Roe to his pupils, and made it an education, even for the laziest, to attend the W. H. S.

The field-sports were now at hand. The class of '91 did not win much glory on that day; it was waiting till its Senior year to show the world what it could do.

June 2 Mr. Roe took the school to Boston and Cambridge on one of those pleasant and instructive excursions which he knew so well how to plan.

In the latter part of June came the graduation of the class of '88, and the first year of the class of '91 was over. I often wonder if we look as big and old to the first year's as that graduating class did to us. It hardly seems possible!

We were now Sophomores and felt that our troubles were at an end. When we came together again in the fall we learned that death had taken away one of our number, Harry Waite had quietly passed away during the summer.

We found many improvements about the building; new floors had been laid in the first and second corridors. Owing to the size of the entering class, Room 13, hitherto used by the drawing classes had been changed into a recitation-room. It took a deal of calculation on the part of our principal to seat the 825 pupils in this hall; but it is needless to say it was accomplished.

In the fall field-sports, we took third place, and might have had second, had not the first years been unusually athletic.

The winter passed uneventfully. We were kept busy exploring the intricate highways and by-ways of Greek verbs, to say nothing of that dread monster, Oratio Obliqua, and employed our leisure moments in demonstrating original propositions in geometry. We heard reports from time to time, whenever a snow-flake appeared, about a Junior sleigh-ride. (For further information apply to any member of '90.)

At the spring meeting of the Alumni, the Hon. E. L. Davis presented to the school a portrait of one of Worcester's most honored sons, George Bancroft. It is a very life-like picture, and is a great addition to our collection.

A little later the Sumner and Assembly Societies held a joint debate, to which the public was invited.

About the first of May, the Sumner Club presented the school with a portrait of Charles Sumner. Senator Hoar gave an interesting address. He was followed by Hon. E. W. Kinsley of Boston, who delighted the audience with reminiscences of the great statesman with whom he was intimately acquainted.

The Eucleia held a public meeting when Hon. Charles A. Russell gave an oration entitled, "Primary Politics."

At the spring field sports '90 carried off all the honors, and won the banner. Let us not pry too closely into '91's doings on that day; they wouldn't bear scrutiny.

The Juniors presented a picture of Bayard Taylor. The exercises were good, but not what we had expected from so brilliant a class as that of '90.

In June, the Glee Club gave a concert, with its usual success under the able direction of Mr. Richards.

The school was fortunate, during this year, in the number of portraits presented, for besides the two already mentioned, Mr. Goodnow, to whom we are indebted for so many gifts, gave us one of Harriet Beecher Stowe.

When we assembled again in the fall, we found that one of our most faithful teachers, Mr. Field, was unable to return. He was overcome by an attack of nervous prostration. We heard favorable reports about him from time to time, and had great hope of his ultimate recovery. But at Christmas we learned of his sad death. It was one of the greatest losses the school ever had. Though he is dead, his influence will ever live with us, leading us to nobler and better lives. Thackeray says, "If we still love those we lose, can we wholly lose those we love?"

I said at first that history repeats itself, I was mistaken. There are exceptions, and our Junior year was an exception, owing to the intervention of "those rules" that you may have heard something about. Their object was "to promote the quiet pursuit of their studies among the pupils," and to that end, they abolished many things that we, and others, thought indispensable. The Academe was obliged to wind up its affairs. I am much concerned on one point; what are future class chroniclers to do without the Academe from which to cull the items for their histories? I think this a serious question worthy of consideration by the school committee. The Sumner Club left the school, and the Assembly languished for a while, then died altogether.

The year passed quickly however. At its close we received a great blow; our beloved principal was to leave us. As a slight token of our love and regard for him, our class presented him with The Century Dictionary through W. W. Orr. At the Alumni meeting he was given a roll-top desk by the graduating class.

We returned in the fall to find ourselves elevated to the proud position of Seniors. Everything seemed strange and unfamiliar at first, without our old principal, but the school was soon in good working order under the able management of our new principal, Mr. Wight.

Our prospects soon began to brighten; in other words, the school committee was relaxing its rigor somewhat. Notices about boat-crews, ball-games, and the Athletic Association appeared on the black-boards. The school was allowed to join the Interscholastic League, and, to crown all, permission was given to hold an entertainment for the benefit of the ball-team. At this entertainment, Mr. Wight delivered an interesting and instructive lecture on "Parallelisms in Literature."

The Sumner Club came back to school on the old footing, and the Assembly reorganized. We were at last permitted to present a picture to the school, a thing which should have been done in our Junior year. After much deliberation we decided upon one of Charles Dickens as the memorial of our class. The exercises were in May, and did great credit to those who took part as well as to the class. The picture hangs on the right hand wall of the entrance hall in the lower corridor. The week of the presentation was a memorable one. Monday, we came to school as usual, and found the rooms so cold that we were dismissed almost immediately. I fancy the old walls of this building have seldom looked down upon so many smiling faces; the teachers didn't look exactly gloomy, either. Then Thursday was the day of the exercises; Friday, school did not keep on account of the Teachers' Convention, and Saturday came the first field sports allowed for two years. The day was perfect, and to complete our happiness, '91 secured the banner. '93 learned a sad lesson, which it is to be hoped she will take to heart; namely, that Seniors are not to be trifled with or scoffed at. I must not forget to mention the astounding fact that during the winter new clocks were put up in all the rooms (for without Mr. Holmes' ministering care the old ones had stopped sine die) to our great relief; for our minds were no longer distracted from our lessons with mathematical calculations as to whether it "must not be about time for that signal to ring." The old clock still remains here in the hall, reminding us of what was once, and making us thankful for what is now.

In the boat-races both '93 and '92 succumbed to the prowess of '91 and another banner was ours.

We miss two more familiar faces from our midst: Mr. Newton, our janitor for seven years, and his dog Jock have left us. He (Mr. Newton) received from teachers and pupils, as well as the Aletheia, reminders of their regard for him. Towards the end of the year our self-esteem was added to (if there were room for addition) by the announcement that our graduating exercises were to be held in Mechanics Hall, an honor conferred on no other class for many years.

I have spoken of several losses that the school has received, but I have yet to mention the greatest; the class of '91. But I trust that, though the class has gone, its shining example will lure on future generations to emulation of its deeds.

After the History, which the audience could not applaud enough, came the refreshments in the second corridor and dancing in the lower. Rebboli was caterer and Ingraham's band furnished music. Ah! It was a gladsome hour.

"A thousand hearts beat happily."

Interesting class reunions were held as follows. Classes from 45 to 55 inclusive in Room 21; '79 in 22; '81 in 11; '83 in 17; '84 in 26; '85 in 7; '86 in 24; '87 in 25; '89 in 6; '91 in 19. Here endeth the lesson for this year.

Folk-Lore Congress, 1891.

The Congress of people interested in Folk Lore will be held in London, Oct. 16 1891. The work to be done has been very carefully mapped out and a most successful meeting is probable. The Congress will be divided into the major sections of Folk-tales and Songs; Myth and Ritual; Custom and Institution. Circulars have been sent to people wherever they are known to care for the subject. Any further detail may be had by addressing the secretary, J. J. Foster at 114 New Bond Street, W. London.

The Club-Man's Daughter to the Club Man.

Father, dear Father, come home with me now,
The clock on the mantle strikes one,
Your Burgundy's chilled, and your canvas-back's burnt,
And your terrapin's sadly o'er-done,
Our mother has gone to a diner so well,
And has likewise attended a dance;
She has flirted and waltzed with an Austrian count,
As well as an envoy from France.

Come home! Come home!
Please Father, dear Father, come home!

Father, dear Father, come home with me now;
The clock on the mantle strikes two -
Your beautiful room and your easy down-bed
Are waiting impatient for you.
You have got ev'ry luxury Fortune can send,
Including a porcelain tub;
And yet you're unwilling to turn to your home,
And leave your eternal old Club.

Father, dear Father, come home with me now;
The clock on the mantle strikes three;
And Mommer will presently come from the ball,
And you both can take supper with me.
We will tempt your coy fancy with canvas-back duck,
And tickle your taste with champagne;
And if you can't make yourself wholly at home,
Why, strike for your club once again.

Come home! Come home!
Go where you will, there is no club like Home.

-Puck.

About Folks.

By the courtesy of Hon. L. E. Baker, president of the Yarmouth Steamship Company, the Yarmouth Times has been placed on file in the Free Public Library Reading Room.

Louis C. Chase left yesterday for a trip to Nova Scotia.

W. H. Chase, Williams College, '93, will spend his summer among the Berkshire Hills.

Miss Carrie A. Smith and Julia Greenwood are Julying at Sterling Junction.

Miss Evangeline Houghton, of the Piedmont choir is away for a fortnight at Montreal. Miss Mullen of Somerville takes her place ad interim.

The 2d W. C. T. U. will run the restaurant under the Grand Stand, during the N. E. Fair.

The Rev. Dr. Mears and family have gone to their summer home in Essex. It is the boyhood home of the Doctor and here he can renew his youth again.

The Rev. Dr. Conaty was one of the chief speakers at the Alumni meeting in Boston College, last Monday.

Prof. D. T. Oswell has gone to 'Sconset, where he will furnish music for the summer.

The Proprietor, Mr. McIntosh and the manager, Mr. Crocker of the Davis Art Company on Pearl Street are constantly adding to the attractions of the place. In the window during the past week the picture of Mr. Stephen Salisbury has been shown, and hard by is that of John B. Gough from Mr. Crocker's hand. Within, the bust of Abraham Lincoln is still on exhibition and the added room in the rear of the store affords a better chance for the display of goods and for patrons to sit while inspecting. Everybody is cordially greeted.

Mrs. C. H. Williams, formerly of this city, but recently a resident of Three Oakes, Michigan, is now visiting friends in Worcester.

Miss Camilla Whitcomb is gratifying a propensity for Art in sketching in East Gloucester.

Phillip Adams, a son of Dr. John F. Adams, has just been graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, Dental Department.

Col. A. George Bullock will go abroad under appointment as one of a committee of five to look after interests of the World's Fair.

Louis W. Southgate of this city, formerly of the High School and a "Tech" graduate of '85 has formed a partnership with Alexander P. Browne of Boston and George W. Moulton of Lynn with Causton Browne of Boston as consulting counsel, in patent business. Mr. Southgate who have will charge of the Worcester office was formerly an examiner in the Patent office in Washington. His office is in the Burnside Building.

The Boston Store during the latter part of this week has offered its patrons quite a taste of Japan. From the kite at the door; the token at the head of the stairs to the biggest vase in Worcester, the Store had had a decided Japanese flavor.

Mrs. A. C. Stubbs will spend a good part of the summer visiting friends in Cambridgeport.

Mr. Zabina Small, head salesman with Charles Stubbs, the Pleasant Street fish and oyster dealer, starts this morning on a three-weeks' pleasure trip, taking in Boston, Swamscott and Cambridgeport.

Mrs. M. C. Small, of No. 1 Church Place, spends her vacation in Cambridgeport.

Mr. Elwyn H. Fowler, a graduate of the Perkin's Institute, Boston, has made this city his home and at 16 Oberlin Street is ready to receive orders for piano tuning. He is highly recommended.

Col. Aaron S. Taft of the Continentals was tendered a complimentary serenade by the Worcester Brass Band Wednesday evening. All had a good time.

The Misses Draper gave a Garden Party to their friends Thursday afternoon and evening at their beautiful home at Bloomingdale. Tennis, croquet, bowling and other games were enjoyed in the afternoon and in the evening there was dancing. Those present included Misses Clara Rood, Josie Black, Flora Fay, Geraldine Longley, Bertha Longley, May Pierce, Grace Crawford, Lillian Crawford, Mabel Crawford, Florence Dodge, Mammie Murray, Molly Day, Alice Day, Gertrude Whiting, Minnie Jones, Flora Chamberlain, Mabel Chamberlain, Bertha Chamberlain, Lillian Atwood, Alice Perry, Emma Barrett, Marion Chapin, Bertha Cheney, Mary Graves, Lottie Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Sadd, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Corbin, Charles Burbank, Willis Sibley, Lewis T. Reed, George Burage, Fred Chamberlain, Norman Fitts, Walter Hildreth, H. P. Eddy, Charles Putnam, Frank Hall, Arthur C. Comins, George H. Learnard, Wallace Turner, Louis C. Chase, Alfred P. Perkins, Sumner Kinsley, Arthur C. Smith, Walter Peacock, Fred Morse, Arthur Chapin, Doctor Frank Howland, and Charles T. Tatman.

THE RACE COURSE.

The Worcester Driving Park was the scene of much bustle and excitement Wednesday, over the opening of the July races. The track was perfect and the interest fair. The first day's races were for the 2.45 and 2.29 classes; in the first, King Charles won and in the second, Maggie T. Thursday's races were not so well attended owing to threatening weather. Chance was the winner in the 2.40 class and Pilot in the 2.32. The races on the Fourth will draw a great crowd and it is expected that they will be first-class in every particular. The Driving Club is trying to introduce clean trotting, no gambling and no rum selling. Throughout New York state, in Hartford and Springfield, the people are interested in exhibitions of speed and rally to see what can be done. Will Worcester respond to the efforts of the Driving Club?

Church Notes.

CONGREGATIONAL.

CENTRAL.—Dr. Merriman applies for a years leave of absence and gets it. His assistant, the Rev. Leon D. Bliss, resigns. "It never rains but it pours."

OLD SOUTH—Boston can't have Mr. Conrad after all. Well, Worcester rejoices that one line of business is so prosperous that even Boston attractions can't draw one of its representatives away. The Old South is in the Zenith of its glory. The Rev. Joseph F. Lovering for several years the pastor of this church and during whose pastorate, the present elegant edifice was erected, has received a call from the Broadway Congregational Church of Somerville. Mr. Lovering has been chaplain in Chief of the G. A. R., having been Chaplain of the 17th, Maine in the Rebellion. He enlisted Nov. 10th, 1863 was mustered Dec. 3d and was discharged June 4th, 1865.

The ladies Aid Society of Pilgrim Church at its annual meeting Tuesday elected officers as follows: President Mrs. Horace Hobbs; 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. F. Marden; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. William Brayson; secretary, Mrs. N. H. Harrington; treasurer, Mrs. J. L. Baird; executive board, Mrs. Loring Coes, Mrs. George Boutwell, Mrs. Arthur E. Gray, Mrs. M. Louise Trask, Mrs. Josiah Brown, Mrs. Robbins, Mrs. W. O. Bement, Mrs. Emma W. Bradley.

METHODIST.

TRINITY—The Pastor the Rev. J. D. Pickles will discourse on Patriotism tomorrow night; a good subject and a good time to consider it.

LAUREL HILL.—On Sunday, the 12th inst, the Pastor Rev. Alonzo Sanderson will preach to old people regardless of sex or creed. Carriages will be sent if needed. Music appropriate, will be given.

GRACE.—The Sunday School of this church will have a picnic at Qinsigamond Park, next Monday leaving the Dummy Station at 10:30 A. M. Boats have been secured from Webb, and the boys are to have games at will. All expect a good time.

Hon. Forrest E. Barker of this city presided at the Quinquennial exercises of the D. K. E. Fraternity, last week, at Wesleyan's commencement.

Mr. Louis Hammond is slowly convalescent, though he does not, as yet, regain all the links in the hours leading up to his injury. That he is improving though slowly is good news.

Mr. Walter R. Forbush, late of this city, was in Worcester early in the week and gave LIGHT a short look over the new Pleasant street theatre. This certainly will be a very creditable piece of work for our architect.

The interior is fine and we shall doubtless grow to liking the outside better as time goes by.

It pays to patronize General Agent Geo. Y. Lancaster, for Railroad and Steamship Tickets, Drafts, and Insurance. Office, 434 Main Street, Worcester.

Public Library Additions.

Books added during first part of April.
 I indicates that the book is in the intermediate department and may be taken out if specially called for.

ADAMS, G. A. Mass in C Minor; vocal score; with piano or organ accomp. - - - - - I

ALDRICH, T. B. The Sister's Tragedy; with other poems - - - - - 33912

ALLEN, J. H. Positive Religion; essays, etc. - - - - - 33914

ALLEN, W. F. Essays and Monographs; memorial volume - - - - - 33908

AMES, F. Practical Guide to Whist - - - - - 33913

BACON, E. M. and AARON E. M. The New Jamaica - - - - - 33915

BALZAC, H. DE. The Lily of the Valley; tr. by K. P. Wormeley - - - - - 33916

BARRIE, J. M. My Lady Nicotine - - - - - 33917

BEAUREGARD, P. G. T. Commentary on the Campaign and Battle of Manassas, 1861 - - - - - 33918

BOITO, C. La Basilica di San Marco, Pt. 2. - - - - - I

BRICH'S (Thomas) SONS. Catalogue of relics of Gen. Washington, final sale Apr. 1891. - - - - - I

BRIGGS, L. B. R. Original charades - - - - - 33919

BROOKE, M. Story of Eleanor Lambert ("Unknown" Lib.) - - - - - 33920

BURT, M. E. The World's Literature; course in English, Pt. 1. - - - - - 33921

COLLAR, W. C. AND DANIELL, M. G. Beginner's Latin Book - - - - - 33925

COLMORE, G. A Living Epitaph - - - - - 33926

CONWAY, M. D. George Washington's Rules of Civility Traced to their Sources - - - - - 33927

CORBETT, J. Sir Francis Drake (Eng. Men of Action) - - - - - 33928

DABNEY, V. Story of Don Miff, as told by John Bouche Whacher - - - - - 33929

DAVIS, H. R. Gilbert Elgar's Son - - - - - 33930

DEMEGEOT, C. Dictionaire du chiffre-monogramme - - - - - I

DEMILLE, J. Elements of rhetoric - - - - - 33931

DEWEY, M. Decimal classification and relatio index; 4th ed. - - - - - I

DICKENS, C. Bleak House, vol. 2 and 3 (Cruikshank ed.) - - - - - I

Great Expectations, vol. 1 and 2; and Master Humphrey's Clock (Cruikshank ed.) - - - - - I

Little Dorrit, 3 vols. (Cruikshank ed.) - - - - - I

DUNBAR, C. F. Chapters on the Theory and History of Banking - - - - - 33911

FARJEON, B. L. Merry, Merry Boys - - - - - 33932

FEARNLEY, W. Course of elementary practical histology - - - - - 33933

GRANDGENT, C. A. Italian Grammar - - - - - 33934

GUINNESS, Mrs. H. G. The New World of Central Africa, etc. - - - - - 33935

HARRIS, W. T. Hegel's Logic, critical exposition (Grigg's philos. Classics) - - - - - 33936

HARTE, F. B. A Sappho of Green Springs; and other stories - - - - - 33937

HEPWORTH, G. H. !!! - - - - - 33938

HOLLOWAY, C. M. A Story of Five - - - - - 33939

HUSSEY, M. S. Helps in Teaching Reading - - - - - 33940

HUTCHINSON, H. N. Autobiography of the Earth. Illust. - - - - - 33941

JOHN, E. (ps. E. Marlitt) A Brave Woman; tr. by M. P. Waterman - - - - - 33942

KEARY, C. F. The Vikings in Western Christendom, A. D. 789-888 - - - - - 33943

KEMBLE, F. A. Further Records, 1848-83; seq. to Records of a Girlhood - - - - - 33944

KING, C. Two Soldiers; and Dunraven Ranch - - - - - 33945

KREHBIEL, H. E., Review of New York musical season, 1889-90 - - - - - I

LARCOM, L. As it is in Heaven - - - - - 33946

LEIBNITZ, G. W. von. Philosophical Works; tr. with notes by G. M. Duncan - - - - - 33947

LIDDELL, Mrs. E. The Golden Censer; select. from prayers of the Saints, A. D. 69-1800 - - - - - 33948

MACKAY, T. Plea for Liberty; argument against Socialism; introd. by H. Spencer; essays by various writers - - - - - 33949

MARSTON, E. How Stanley wrote "In Darkest Africa" - - - - - 33883

MELEAGER, Fifty poems; tr. by W. Headlam - - - - - 33884

MITCHELL, K. The Drink Question - - - - - 33885

M'LAREN, E. T. Dr. John Brown and his sister Isabella, with portrs - - - - - 33950

MODERN MEN; from the Scots Observer - - - - - 33886

MULHOLLAND, R. The Haunted Organist of Hurley Burley, etc. - - - - - 33887

MUNRO, R. Lake Dwellers of Europe; Rhisd lect. in archaeology for 1888 - - - - - 33888

NASMITH, J. Modern Cotton Spinning Machinery; its principles, etc. - - - - - 33898

NICHOLSON, H. A. AND LYDEKKER, R. Manual of Palaeontology, 3rd. ed., rewritten and enl., 2 vols. - - - - - 33889 90

PENAFIEL, A. Monumentos del arte Mexicano antiguo, 3 vols. - - - - - I

PHILLIPS, F. C. AND WILLS, C. J. The Scudamores, 2 vols. - - - - - 33891 2

RAMAKRISHNA, T. Life in an Indian Village; introd. by Sir M. E. G. Duff - - - - - 33893

RAYNER, J. Chess problems; their composition and solution - - - - - 33894

ROWING AT WESTMINSTER, 1813-1833; exts. from the school water ledgers - - - - - 33895

SPALDING, LIEUT. COL. Suvor Off - - - - - 33899

ST. JOHNSTON, A. A. South Sea Lover - - - - - 33896

SAINTSBURY, G. Essays in English Literature 1780-1860 - - - - - 33897

TENNYSON, F. Tables and memoranda for electrical engineers - - - - - 33902

WAGNER, W. R. Letters to his Dresden Friends; tr. with pref. by J. S. Shedlock - - - - - 33903

WESTBURY, H. 'Acte'; a novel, 3 vols. - - - - - 33905 7

WISE, C. Puritanism in power; an argument in three books - - - - - 33904

WRIGHT, J. Mc N. Sea-side and Wayside, Nos. 2 and 3 (Nature Readers) - - - - - 33909 10

Rev. W. V. M. Davis of Union Church was made a Doctor of Divinity last week. Adelbert College, Cleveland, Ohio, did it.

Base Ball.

It would serve Worcester right if the stockholders of the Base Ball Company were to sell their franchise to some other town and leave the people of this city to get their Base Ball when and where ever they might. The fact that a city of 85,000 inhabitants turns out only 200 spectators on the average, to a game, must indeed be very aggravating to those, who have spent time and money in getting a team together for this city. There are some cranks who make the excuse of not attending the game, that the Worcesters do not play ball. To such we would say, consult the standing of the clubs in the New England League and the Worcester's will be found but a very few points from the leaders. A game or two lost or won, would make a change around between the leading team and our nine. If the playing of the boys is not satisfactory to some—to such we would say: Go to Boston, pay out a good round sum to see, three times out of five, worse games of ball played in the League and Association Grounds than you can ever see played here on our own Grove street. Concord, N. H., it is rumored wants our team, and it is our wish, that should the boys go there, that they may be appreciated and more people go out to see them play.

Last year the Benedicts of the Boston Store did their younger unmarried brothers up in great style in a game of ball on Bliss's Field, on the morning of the Fourth of July. In fact, the "old men" got tired of running the bases and unless a hit was made whereby a run could be made by walking around the diamond, no attempt was made for a score. Ever since, the "young bloods" have been very sore, and have taken every available opportunity to perfect themselves in the art of ball playing, and if "talk" counts for anything, they have the game down to a science. In the meantime the "older and wiser men," have been content with past glories and are only waiting for the Fourth to again come around, when they will show the "youngsters" that it is not "talk," but experience with the bat that wins games.

There are "Lutz" of married men in the Boston Store who can play ball and they are sure to send the "young bloods" to "Hartford" in the coming game.

Muir, the catcher of the Boston Store team, is said to have received a very flattering offer from one of the Connecticut State League teams, but he finds his time so much taken up in looking after his Millet farm, that he will be obliged to decline the offer.

A meeting of the colored base ballists was held last Monday evening in Masonic Hall, and a club was formed. The name by which it will be known will be the Albions. Walter Scott was chosen manager. The make-up of the nine with possibly a few changes will be: Walter Moore, catcher; Gimby and Will Moore, pitchers; Harris, first base; C. Scott, second base; B. Walker, third base and change catcher; Edmondson, short stop; R. Walker, center field; H. Jackson, right field; A. Jackson, left field. One hundred and twenty-five dollars was subscribed towards paying the expenses of the nine. The first game will be with the Putnams of Putnam, Conn., the Fourth of July.

Books and Bookmen.

"Not long ago," says the London Academy, there was published a book of an ugliness so gross and a vulgarity so pestilent that it deserved the bonfire and the hangman, the fate of no worse books in a by-gone age. The book has been bought by tens of thousands and hundreds of thousands in England and America; clubs and societies have been called after its author's name. That book is Looking Backward. It purported to give us an insight into the perfected society of the future; and what we saw was a nightmare spectacle or machinery dominating the world."

The review of Miss Frances E. Willard's book, Glimpses of Fifty Years, printed in LIGHT, June 20, should have contained the further statement that the publishers are George M. Smith & Co. of 657 Washington Street, Boston.

The Cottage Hearth published by The Cottage Hearth Company, Bromfield Street, Boston.

Again this pleasant magazine has made its appearance on our table. Its first article is on "Shells and Shell Makers," and is full of instruction about them. Its article on Phillips Brooks and the illustrations will please all who read of this noted man. The stories and the short talks are full of interest, and in fact it is one of the good numbers. This number has a colored frontispiece.

Our Little Men and Women, D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

How the little ones will delight in this, their very own magazine. And well they may for it is full of things just for them and their entertainment. Better stories and pictures cannot be found, and we are sure the children think so too.

The Ladies' Home Journal, Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia.

Mrs. Joel Chandler Harris is the wife whose portrait is in this month as the next of the unknown wives series. The story of the first years of a bride in a diamond field is very entertaining. There are innumerable short talks on every subject and still the editor asks if there is any thing to be desired and promises to supply the want. This is the Summer number full of hints for the hot months both for the adults and the children. The columns of questions and answers seem to have variety enough to suit any one and the editors of them have an answer to every question that just fits the case. Nothing can be better than this number of the magazine.

Comparative View of the Executive and Legislative Departments of the Governments of the United States, France, England and Germany by John Wenzel, Assistant Librarian of College of Liberal Arts, Boston University, Boston, D. C. Heath & Co., 1891. Price in flexible cover 20 cents.

If we measured the value of books by their size then the most ponderous tomes would make the frisky duodecimos kick the beam in a hurry. Happily, merit is not always a constituent of size, nor does a lack of stature or weight indicate a corresponding lack in value. As to all these words, Mr. Wenzel has condensed into twenty-two pages a comparative view of the different governments of these important powers. It is so arranged, that at a glance, we can see the names and functions of the departments of government in the leading nations of the world. To a student of Civil Government the book will be invaluable. It is arranged under four heads, viz., Constitution, Chief Magistrates, Cabinet and Congress. The subdivisions under these heads constitute the book. Mr. Wenzel is a recent graduate of the Boston University and has been a careful and painstaking student. This, his first fruits, is certainly an excellent augury of a successful future.

Small Fruits and Drought.

"The effects of drought on plantations of raspberries blackberries, tree fruits, vineyards, as well as hoed farm crops, can be largely counteracted by shallow, but persistent cultivation. N. Ohmer, the widely known Ohio veteran fruit-grower, says he prefers a dry season because it ruins the crops of slovenly cultivators and gives the others a chance for good prices. He cultivates raspberries and blackberries once a week until picking is commenced."—Vick's Magazine for July.

Vick's Magazine is almost an invaluable accessory to him who would know the ins and outs of fruit and flower growing. Published in Rochester, N. Y.

New England Magazine for July, 1891. $6 Federal Street, Boston, Mass.

Contents: The State of Maine, Hon. Nelson Dingley, Jr.; The Municipal Threat in National Politics, John Coleman Adams; Her in all Things, Philip Bourke Marston; Master Shakespeare's Star, Elizabeth B. Walling; Small and Great, P. H. Savage; The Natural Bridge of Virginia, Katherine Loomis Parsons; The Daisies, C. Gordon Rogers; The City of the Dead; Laurens Maynard; The Armitage Anniversaries, Chas. Washington Coleman; A Brief for Continental Unity, Walter Blackburn Harte; Phoenixville's Poet, Edward W. Bryant; The Battle at High Bridge, Edward T. Bouve; Schliemann's Discoveries in Hellas, J. L. Ewell; On Framing and Hanging Pictures, Samuel L. Gerry; The Top Drawer in the High Chest, Alice Morse Earle; Emerson's View on Reform, Wm. M. Salter; Old Lun the Major, M. V. Moor; Village Farms in the Western Reserve, H. S. Paul; June and July Sketches, Catharine Thayer; Editor's Table; Omnibus.

* Illustrated.

Lippincott's Magazine.

Contents: A Rose of a Hundred Leaves, Amelia E. Barr; Physical Culture, Edwin Checkley; A Surprise to Mr. Thompson Byers, Richard Malcolm Johnston; Rosebud and Rose, Henry Collins; The Future of Cuba, Frank A. Burr; Triumph, Helen Gay Cone; English and American Newspapers, Alfred Balch; A Shield and a Helmet, Frances Courtenay Baylor; Sunshine and Rain, Charles Henry Luders; The Vengeance of Padre Arroyo, Gertrude Franklin Atherton; Talleyrand and Posterity, C. R. Corson; Some American Changes, James W. Gerard; Overthrown, Charlotte Mellen Packard; Death-Damp, Felix L. Oswald; Anger, Douglas Sladen; Captain Charles King and his Army Stories, Major William H. Powell; The Dodger, Charles McIvaine; Some New Books, H. C. Walsh; With the Wits, (Illustrated by leading artists.)

This July number contains a fine picture of Amelia E. Barr, well-known as the author of Friend Olivia. Her story that follows she calls "The story of Invincible Love." The other stories, "A Surprise to Mr. Thompson Byers" and "The Vengeance of Padre Arroyo" are bright and witty. The article on "Physical Culture" is illustrated and introduces one to the new theories that Prof. Checkley has lately made public. The intolerant rule of Spain makes certain a change in Cuba's relations in the near future. Liberty will win in the long run. "A Shield and a Helmet" is a criticism on the long story that introduces so many unimportant details. The short article on Talleyrand may be profitably read in connection with his Memoirs now appearing in the Century. The difference between English and American newspapers is well shown by Mr. Balch. $3 a year, J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Scientific American.

Philadelphia is soon to have a high tower nearly as tall as the Washington Monument, for it is to be 547 feet from base to tip. This tower is a part of the new City Hall, and is surmounted by a statue of William Penn 36 feet in height. An interesting series of articles concerning the Worlds Fair is now being given in this weekly, two already having appeared. If you want to know the plans for the buildings and grounds be sure to get the Scientific American. Other articles of interest have been, "The Charleston and Itata," illustrated; "Torpedoes at Sea;" "The Polar Expeditions;" and the "Phosphate Beds of the Southern States." Munn & Co., New York.

The Atlantic Monthly for July, 1891.

Contents: The Lady of Fort St. John, Prelude, I. Hill, Mary Hattwell Catherwood; Underground Christian Rome, Rodolfo Lanciani; The Old Rome and the New, W. J. Stillman; Plantation Life in Arkansas, Octave Thanet; The Male Ruby-Throat; Bradford Torrey; "When With Thy Life Thou Dost Encompass Mine," Philip Bourke Marston; The House of Martha, XXXVII.-XL. Frank R. Stockton; The Story of a Long Inheritance, William M. Davis; English Railway Fiction, Agnes Repplier; The Neutrality of Switzerland, W. D. McCrackan; College Examinations, Nathaniel Southgate Shaler; Tintoret, The Shakespeare of Painters, William R. Thayer; The Finding of Miss Clementine, Elizabeth W. Bellamy; Lord Doughton's Life; Comment on New Books; The Contributors' Club.

The contents of the July Atlantic tell their own story. Here various tastes may be satisfied. The lover of the grotesque and queer in fiction will, of course, turn to Stockton's, "The House of Martha," and for continued story lovers the very first article offers many inducements. The two historical and descriptive Roman pieces will have readers among those to whom Rome is an epitome of the world's history. There are two delightful pictures of Southern life, the first by Octave Thanet, rather more in the Folk Lore line, than magazine short stories are inclined to be, the other by Elizabeth W. Bellamy is of the South, thoroughly Southern and shows a wonderful advance in colored life over the articles that used to appear in this very magazine twenty-five years ago. Bradford Torrey's "The Male Ruby Throat" is a continuation of the fascinating observations on the Humming Bird recorded in the June number. What marvelous patience must the naturalist have; what absorbing interest in his work. "The Story of a Long Inheritance" gives, in its title, no promise of the scientific questions considered. "English Railway Fiction" is a presentation of a theme that they can appreciate best who have themselves seen the array of trash that English travellers read. "The Neutrality of Switzerland" must interest any one who knows aught of that wonderful country, today the most peculiar and, in many respects, the most delightful on the continent of Europe. Prof. Shaler's "College Examinations" is a treatise on one of the most important questions at present before the teacher and student. If all students were honest, we might dispense with the inquisition but all are not honest, so we go on testing and cramming, the good with the bad. What will the issue be? "Tintoret, the Shakespeare of Painters" will entertain lovers of art, while book lovers and society followers will be pleased to read the review of Lord Houghton's Life. The Atlantic with its own peculiar and monopolized colored cover is still a favorite with our set. $4 a year.

The Wesleyan Olla Podrida published by the Junior Class, 1891, Middletown, Conn.

Many years have elapsed since No. 1 of this series of publications appeared. All this time, every title page has borne the quotation from Don Quixote, in which is described the contents of that wonderful dish that Sancho prepares, his Olla Podrida. Just at this moment, when so much interest is excited in Worcester on account of the book gotten out by the "Tech" '91 class, it is not amiss to bestow passing notice on this college book. Like much else, in college life, it is vastly more pretentious than the Olla Pod. of twenty years ago, and it contains a deal more. The outlay in preparing it is tenfold what the former books cost and it is at least, ten times better. There are illustrations of varying degrees of goodness and badness. Of course everybody gets a "dig," and no one is praised unless he praises himself. There are "cuts" and "grinds" on teachers as well as pupils; but at last accounts, no one had been censured. Neither censure nor punishment would end such publications. They please the boys, seem funnier to them now than they will hereafter and the faculty seldom, if ever interferes. A few years experience by the Worcester authorities will materially change their opinions as to such matters. Respect is never engendered by rules nor can disrespect be prevented by threats. Quoting old time customs and habits will not effect the present. The boys of today, we must deal with. Their Aftermaths and their Olla Pods. rather thrive on opposition.

The Pedagogical Seminary, Vol. I. No. 2, edited by G. Stanley Hall. Ph. D., LL. D., President of Clark University. $4 a year.

Probably no American publication in educational themes has touched a higher level than this emanation from our Worcester University. President Hall himself is the chief contributor and the articles directly ascribed to him beside the editorial are "Notes on the Study of Infants," "Contents of Children's Minds on Entering School," "The Moral and Religious Training of Children and Adolescents" and "Children's Lies." Wm. H. Burnham contributes, "The study of Adolescence" and "Observation of Children at the State Normal School." Dr. Franz Boaz contributes, "Anthropological Investigations in Schools." The reviews of educational books, Notes and Digests and Foreign Miscellanies follow. It is evident that Dr. Hall has prepared his seminary for professional readers. It is as technically educational as the Scientific American or "Nature" is scientific. While any one in quest of knowledge may study this summary with profit, the chances are that few will read it save those who are, in some way, connected with school or college. Nor is the matter hackneyed, much is the result of direct observation, hence valuable additions to the fund of human knowledge. Thus on the study of infants we have detailed the results of daily scrutiny of the progress of A and B. for a term of years. "The Contents of Children's Minds, etc.," is a sketch drawn from a long compilation of data taken by careful teachers. The discussion of Adolescence is wonderfully suggestive and many peculiarities of youth are noted and accounted for. In view of the recent stir in Worcester over school measurements the contribution of Dr. Boaz is timely. From the "Foreign Miscellanies we copy with pleasure the following, "In a recent pamphlet on school excursions from large cities, H. Wendt says: The richer the home sphere of the child, the more manifold and clear his ideas of the objects therein, so much the greater is his capacity for culture. Excursions are valuable for (1) instruction, (11) discipline. 1. In geography the best point of departure is the home region. 2. History should be connected with observation of places and occupations. 3. In Natural History it is important to see the individual objects as members of an organic whole. 4. For language lessons the excursion supplies the best materials. 5. Arithmetic, geometry and drawing may be made more attractive. 11. Discipline is improved by the greater attachment for the teacher and by the interest aroused." Assuming that this item presents Dr. Hall's sentiments, it has a peculiar significance in contrast with certain authoritative school utterances in this city of ours, recently. Let us quote The Pedagogical Seminary in favor of school excursions.

It has always been maintained in our house that every one should keep a diary or journal of the day's happenings, and so when the first baby was old enough to prattle, and began to say funny things, we felt we never should forget them, but when we tried to recall them, days after their utterance, we found they had already passed out of memory. Then I purchased a small diary with three days' record on one page and as these noteworthy things were said I set each down in its place for future reference. I have laughed over that little book many, many times and the child herself, now a half grown girl, asks to see it and then reads over her remarks.

How many times has the mother wished she had some record of her baby's life? How many of the mothers in this city know that the want has been met in a little book called The Mother's Record?

It is nicely bound and has two pages for each earlier year and then four leaves for the same period. One page has questions concerning the child's life every day. The place of birth, the name, color of eyes, etc., then the height and weight from time to time must be set down, the first thing noticed, the first word uttered and in later years the different studies taken up and the progress in each, the work the child does and in fact every item that is likely to interest the parents now or the boy himself in after years. In the books which I am filling for the two younger children, I have put scraps of their dresses, and there is a curl of the yellow hair that I cried at parting with, feeling that I had lost my baby. There are the pictures from the first one that we laughed so over, down to the last only a few months ago. We have the picture too of the Doctor who has cared for them through all the trials of illness and trouble.

Of course all would not care to keep the same things but each may keep what seems to her most of interest.

These little books are not very expensive and I am sure you will be repaid in after years as you bring to mind again the baby who lived in those days when all this record was written.

The record carries the child to the age of fifteen years and then he can keep a record of his own. N.

The Mother's Record is published by D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, and may be had from all book-sellers.

Good Housekeeping does not publish continued stories, nor other incomplete matter, each number standing on its own merits, but it presents a rich variety of articles on important household topics, which are treated serially, each paper being complete in itself. This department is especially rich in the July number, comprising one of Miss Parloa's "Ten Mornings in the Kitchen," "Company Giving and Receiving," "Literary Snap-shots," "Decorative Fashions and Fancies," "Amateur Entertainments," "Quaker Housekeeping," "Household Table Drinks," "The Family Medicine Chest," "Family Fashions and Fancies," and "Decorative Painting." Besides these ten series, with all the departments for the young and the curious, there are a great variety of stories, poetry, and articles relating to many of the interests of life, all valuable. The price of Good Housekeeping is but $2 40 per year, and it is published by Clark W. Bryan & Co., Springfield, Mass.

Ingalls' Home and Art Magazine, published by J. F. Ingalls, Lynn, Mass.

This month has many papers on the ways of doing the hundred and one pretty things for household decoration. We think the article on "Freaks of my Fancy" will attract the most attention among its readers, for it is so simple and good natured in its effort to help some other who would, but cannot give all the heart prompts. Everything is so fully illustrated that all is easy to accomplish. We would recommend this magazine to all who are trying to help themselves to a little knowledge of art and its blessings. Price $1 per year.

St. Nicholas, for young folks, conducted by Mary Mapes Dodge. Price $3 per year.

"Rescued by the Enemy" is a historical tale the scene of which is laid on Long Island. "Storm bound" is a bit from the mountains especially refreshing for the midsummer number of the magazine. That the boys will enjoy the danger and daring no one who reads it can doubt. Tolvy Trafford goes through four chapters and leaves us wishing for just one more. "Chan Ok" is the other story vying in interest with the first in the book. There are short stories, though I think most of the readers will read all the stories both long and short. "Through the Back Ages" and the paper on the Empress Josephine give instruction in such a pleasant way that the children will never know until too late that they have taken any. This number is full of illustrations, and not least entertaining are the puzzle and correspondent's pages.

A Fifty-Cent "Fourth."

It was a long time ago; before the war even. Ideas were not so exalted then as now. People, old and young, were contented with a great deal less than now. Fun, right down enjoyable fun, didn't begin to draw upon the pocket as a very inferior quality does today. I was a small boy in school. The village, the pastor of whose only church was my reverend father, bore the queer name of Delta and it was on the banks of the Mohawk River. Owing to the crooked ways of the stream, at this point, the name of the Greek letter had been given to the hamlet, as pretty and retired a collection of happy homes as New York State possessed.

The Fourth of July was approaching. Already premonitory symptoms had appeared in sporadic explosions of fire-crackers and the hearts of the lads beat high in patriotic expectation. But what was a boy to do who had no money; whose pocket was absolutely empty so far as filthy lucre was concerned? In the neighboring village (It is a city now.) of Rome, some six miles away, a great celebration was to be had. Fences and barns for miles around had been billed with alluring details of firemen's parades, of boat races, catching of a greased pig, the climbing of a greased pole, etc., etc. There was not a word in all that description that I had not read and re-read. Every letter of it was graven on my memory. Boys as impecunious as myself had rehearsed the matter over and over; but how should we get the money for the day? My father wouldn't give me a penny for such a purpose. He had none to spare, had his spirit been never so willing. I lay awake nights, devising ways of raising the needful and when I fell asleep it was to dream of a sky full of rockets and the air dissonant with endless crackers. To wholly give up the affair had not occurred to me. Of course I went to school. That institution droned along through the hottest part of the summer, just when we wanted to go berrying and climb those glorious hills that hemmed in our beautiful valley. "Staying out" a day was not a common event in our home, but something must be done. Things were getting desperate. The day was almost at hand and yet I had no money.

Our wealthiest villager was Mr. D—, a farmer owning extensive lands. It was just corn hoing time. I found that he would be glad to give me fifty cents for a day's work. Of course a man got twice that and he did no more; but I was only too glad to get even boys' wages. The momentous question is asked thus: "Pa, can I hoe corn for Mr. D— tomorrow and take the money for a trip to Rome, on the Fourth?" Great issues trembled on the reply and I awaited the answer breathlessly.

"You will have to be out of school."

"Oh, yes, I know that, but Miss N— won't care for one day, and then, too, I guess she would like to have me away, for there'll be so much less noise."

Well,—consent is given, and the next day I appeared with hoe in hand and took my place with the other laborers and all day long, save at dinner and supper time, we went up and down the long rows of that corn field. It was back aching work for a boy and more than one blister bore testimony to the vigor of my work, but I was nothing daunted for visions of the now certain glories danced constantly before my mind. He was a tired boy who sought his home at sun down, but in his pocket jingled the two twenty-five cent pieces and happiness reigned supreme.

We boys in Delta were up very early on the auspicious morn, prepared to make our way to Rome. It seems strange now, after the long interval, that we didn't start right off in the morning and walk the entire distance, but we didn't. Instead, we walked two miles to the east, where we struck the Black River Canal on whose placid waters a boat, drawn by horses, was to carry a load of excursionists to the celebration. I wonder if any reader of LIGHT ever rode on a canal boat. If not, then all of you have, really, no idea of just how slow one can go and yet be in motion. It was an empty, full-decked boat and an awning had been stretched over a part of it. From the whole country side the young and middle aged had gathered to ride to Rome. A canal boat differs from every other boat in creation. They are long, narrow, unwieldy affairs, just burden bearers and nothing more. To make four miles an hour is a good rate. There wasn't a boy in the lot who couldn't have walked faster than the team, but we were not walking just then. The ticket down and back took just half of the contents of my treasury. Out of the remaining twenty-five cents I was to eat and celebrate. No doubt the scenery along that canal was fine. I know it was; but we didn't mind that. We just romped over and through that boat like mad, till we neared the village. We perspired as freely as we would have done in the corn field and we nearly drove the older members frantic over the antics of "those dreadful boys."

The Black River Canal pours its inky waters into those of the Erie at Rome, and just before reaching the point of emptying, our craft was halted and tied up at a dock. There was no formal debarking. We jumped off, helter skelter, and in small detachments started out to do the town. Since that day, I have seen many thousands of soldiers, armed for actual war; I saw in the 1889 Centennial display, in New York, one of the grandest Firemen's muster ever made on the Continent; but I never had my feelings so exalted as on this day when, for the first time, I saw the single militia company of that village parade and witnessed the contest of two rival hand fire engine companies. There were also two or three cannon and I fancied their reports, the salvos of a whole park of artillery. The display filled one full and what more could have happened had there been infinitely more. The day was hot, terribly so; but what cared we? We had only ourselves to look after and were as nearly ubiquitous as mortality could be. We saw every dog fight and every scrap that too much fire water set some deluded beings to engaging in. There were runaways on account of the noise and we enjoyed the consequent excitement. It always rains on the "Fourth" and this day proved no exception, but as we had no "best girl" to protect we didn't care. We stayed under a shed until the storm was all over. I remember that I found means to buy one glass of that horribly delusive beverage, red lemonade, more cochineal than lemon; one small cup of peanuts and five cent's worth of crackers, which, altogether, served to allay hunger till I reached the paternal roof at night. The remainder, large or small, went to the last cent towards buying torpedoes and fire-crackers, for, in those days, no well-organized American boy thought himself patriotic unless he made a noise; the more noise, just so much more love of country. Fortunately for us impecunious youngsters the fun on the fair ground was free. All we had to do was to go over and look on. First came a wheelbarrow race, where active young men did their level best to beat each other while trundling their unwieldy vehicles. The sack race was inexpressibly ludicrous. A dozen or more fellows were in gunny sack, tied close around their necks. They could not use hands nor feet save to jump with the latter. As they stood in line they resembled nothing so much as so many enormous bottles of patent medicine. At the word, they were off like kangaroos, many tumbling over at almost the first leap. The more falls, the more fun. It was next to impossible to get upon their feet if once down and then the contestants would try to roll to the end of the course. Then there was a pole, thirty feet high, on whose top it was claimed that a ten dollar bill was pinned. This pole was freed from bark, scraped smooth and then thoroughly greased. The bill was offered to anyone who could climb the pole and get it. How the young fellows did work, but they could make very little progress. Then they would club together and standing on each other's shoulders try to reach it, but the lower strata of men couldn't stand the weight above and there would be a sinking down of the whole lot. So far as I could see or hear, the bill was not reached at all.

A pig had been carefully shaved and greased and then turned loose in the large enclosure. He was to be the prize of the man or men who could catch and hold him. While he was called a pig, he really was a full-grown, exceedingly vigorous hog, and what a tumult when those pork hunters, arrayed for the fray, started in to catch him. It was easy to hem him in and to catch hold of him, but to retain him proved quite impossible. Again and again, an active man would fall upon him, grasp both arms around his body and hang on for dear life; but the only outcome was an eventual roll on the grass and a merrily running porker over the field. The pig, too, was more than the fellows could compass, and they had to haul off, beaten.

It was a busy day. Not a moment was unemployed and when the shades of evening gathered we were ready for the fire-works, which, in those days, were the proper ending of all celebrations. Rockets, fire balls and wheels! Somebody paid the bills, whom, we neither knew nor cared. It was our part to look on and shout "Oh!" All too soon, the evening also ended and then we embark upon our vessel and, not exactly set sail, but start our horses for home. Those who like, dance to violin and accordeon; but we boys who had done full justice to the day and its memories were sleepy. Going back is never so pleasant nor noisy, as going out for a holiday, and we are not sorry, when, the dock reached, we are able to take our journey home, where before midnight we lay ourselves away with the sweet consciousness of having done our part in honoring the fathers who "fit into the Revolution;" that we had paid our own bills and, though entirely penniless now, we would do the same thing again, should opportunity offer. It is a fitting sequel to that "Fifty-cent Fourth" that nearly every boy who had the fun became a soldier when the war arose and possibly was a better one for the innocent amusement of that blistering day. Some sleep, today, in National cemeteries in the South, some are in nameless graves, and one, at least, rests on the ocean bed, dying on shipboard as he was coming home from a Southern prison.

CHESTNUTS.

About seventy years ago, when Worcester was but a village, there came a Frenchman, right from Paris, and brought a sign with him which read,

A. GASPARA
Votier
CONFECTIONERY

which he put on a small building near the head of School Street and put tempting sticks of candy in glass jars in the window, the very first in town. It chanced one evening a young blood, in his strollings on Main Street, attracted by the window or the sign, entered the shop and asked for chestnuts. The voluble Frenchman undertook to explain why he did not keep them, which so amused the young man, hearing a foreigner talk in sputtering English, he prolonged his stay as long as he could and left determined to call again. Accordingly he changed his dress and appeared again before the Frenchman had hardly time to cool off, and asked for chestnuts. This time the Frenchman began to be somewhat excited. "Chestnut I no keep him. They leave the chankings on the floor, I have him to sweep. I thank you for calling, but I no keep chestnut. Bah, dirt and chankings." Pleased to hear him talk, the young man left. He saw he was excitable and so determined to stir him up once more. He went home, put on a different rig and in all haste appeared and inquired for chestnuts. The Frenchman, hardly over his last heat, burst with a volley against chestnuts in particular. "The whole world has gone mad after the chestnut. Half the town has been here tonight looking for him. I could have sold ever so many." At this the young man burst out, but his laugh betrayed him. The look the Frenchman gave him was threatening and he made quick time for the door without stopping to leave his card.

We youngsters had to pass every Sunday, on our way to the Old South Church, that tempting window, but dare not stop for fear he would think we meant to steal, but soon it was noised about that Lafayette was coming and we could not help thinking how overjoyed "Votier" would be to see him, but no, the poor exile closed his shop and sat mourning for his hero who lay buried on Helena's Rocky Isle. He, although we knew it not, was one of Napoleon's Old Guard. I do not think he saw Lafayette or wished to see him. He remembered the glory of France and mourned the downfall of his chieftain.

In these old time days, all had to train for military duty. Whenever the drum beat, the first on time was "Votier," the drum had a charm for him. It called him out for parade and it was astonishing to see the Frenchman go through the manual exercise. Especially so was the charge. Never shall I forget the fire of battle in his eye as he grasped with left hand the centre of the gun; with his right, the small of the stock. He raised the musket to a level with his head. With a half turn to the right, he delivered his charge with all the force and power that in him lay. That charge that had swept over the fields from Mavengo to Austerlitz none but a Frenchman could display. Again he was under the eye of his Emperor, conscious if he fell his name would be called in the roll, and answered for by his comrades stating the circumstances of his absence.

T. P. C.

OVER ON OUR STREET.

Things have been very quiet recently save as thieves of both sexes steal flowers. It seems queer that a taste for the beautiful should go along with a disposition to gratify it dishonestly. It is a fact, however, and flowers are ruthlessly plucked only to wither and fade, almost at the moment of picking. Then, too, the culprits uproot, in their haste freshly set plants, making still further devastation. A police court example or two would not be amiss. Also, cherries are ripe over our way and one never knows just how many boys there are in the city till his fruit ripens. It would appear that there is, at least, one boy for every cherry, berry, pear or apple that his place may afford. Some are courteous enough to ask for fruit; but the majority climb up without a word. With Alexander Pope they seem to say, "See all things for my use." If they don't climb they stand off and club the trees. Just think of clubbing off cherries as if they were hard coated chestnuts. One well-to-do thief came along on a bicycle and, standing this up by the curb, walked into the yard, climbed the tree, filled his cap and then came down and leaned against our fence while he filled his stomach. Had he been heir to the premises, he could not have been more cool and collected as he ejected cherry pits over our sidewalk. Fortunately for him, the male members of the family were not at home while he was thus proving this to be a free country.

Everybody recalls the sudden change in weather, last week. In every house, the tale was the same; windows were closed and extra covering was spread over the beds. In a certain house on our street or some other, a very well known pair of dwellers retired at the usual hour, leaving a window open and a curtain down. As the wind freshened that curtain began flapping in the exasperating manner that curtains are wont to have particularly when they have several jingling ornaments attached. Finally the man very quietly slipped out of bed, determined to raise the curtain or lower the window. The room was dark on account of the closed blind, but he groped his way to the window and extended his hands to reach the sash and grasped—the arms of a human being. He is an old soldier, not easily frightened, and he didn't let go, thinking that having a good hold on the burglar he would keep his hold; but his consternation was great when from the shrinking form in his grasp there came a smothered scream which he recognized as the voice of his wife. She, poor woman, was frightened nearly out of her wits, supposing herself to be in the hands of some house breakers; but that scream settled matters. "Why F.—" "Why M.—" came in rapid succession and two very much relieved people sought their bed again. It was a most singular coincidence throughout. Without a word to each other, each one had slipped out of bed, on opposite sides, at the same moment, and for the same purpose, as stated. How they could thus act in unison without collusion is left for the consideration of the Psychological Society.

Old Book.

BARRE PLAINS, MASS, JUNE 27, 1891.

EDITOR LIGHT

DEAR SIR: It may be of interest to some of your many readers to know that I have a copy of Æsops Fables—Æsopi Phryges—Greek and Latin Letterpress. Illustrated with wood cuts printed M. D. LXX. I have an idea that it is the oldest book in Mass. outside the Museums.

Yours Faithfully,
W. R. MATTHEWS,
Agt. B. & M. R. R.

Our correspondent has an interesting relic; but as to age both Samuel H. Putnam and Judge Clark Jillson of this city have volumes nearly one hundred years older. In fact the Judge has one bearing the date 1470. Ed.

Hon. Charles A. Russell of Dayville, Conn. is visiting friends in this, his early home. Young as Mr. Russell is, he is the Senior M. C. from the Wooden Nutmeg State.

FOR THE LAUNDRY.

BRUSSELS

SOAP.

J. A.
Long

SEASONABLE GOODS.

Reed Chairs,
Rattan Rockers,
Imitation Bamboo

CHAIRS AND ROCKERS

Grandfathers' Chairs,
Grandmothers' Rockers,
Steamer Chairs.

THE CELEBRATED

ATHERTON
REFRIGERATORS,
ALL SIZES.

Oak Roll Top Office Desks,

54-INCH,

$37.00

Every Desk Warranted.

J A. LONG

Franklin Square Furniture Rooms,

555 Main St.

Good to Eat.

Baked Buckwheat Cakes.

From my earliest recollection baked buckwheat cakes have been an all-the-year-round luxury with us, and much preferred so cooked than in the usual batter mode, that is doomed with spring. Try it baked just once, and you will not need a second urging. Put in mixing-bowl one cup of white flour and three quarters cup buckwheat flour. Add one very heaping teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix well. Then add one-half cup of light-brown sugar, one beaten egg, three tablespoonfuls of melted butter or lard. Mix all together; and lastly add sweet milk to make a batter that will pour and spread easily, not as thin as for griddle cakes (experience will teach you). It improves the cake to beat the mixture some time. Bake in a rather hot oven, in deep tin, allowing plenty of room for the cake to rise. To be eaten hot, like corn cake. By-the-by, the same recipe for corn cake is the best I ever used, using fine Indian meal in place of buckwheat. Its superiority over any other we tried is due to the excess of fine flour or meal. H. H. T.

Corn Meal Brown Bread.

Take one-half cup of molasses, a pinch of salt, two cups of corn meal, one cup of white flour with one teaspoon of soda sifted through it. Add sour milk sufficient to make a batter of medium thickness. Steam two hours and a half. Do not remove the steamer cover or let the water under it stop boiling until done. Northwood, Ia. M. S. S.

Nectar.

Squeeze the juice from three oranges, and as many lemons into the pitcher, add two tumblerfuls of water, and sweeten to taste. Then put in plenty of pounded ice, half a teaspoonful of rosewater, and a tumblerful of sherry or Madeira wine. Stir well and pour out. Good Housekeeping.

A recipe for a soap-bubble mixture allows sixty grains of white castile soap to an ounce of soft water. The mixture should be placed in a bottle three times as large as will contain it, and after standing two or three hours, one half as much glycerine as water should be added. This may be allowed a few hours to dissolve, and then should be thoroughly shaken at intervals to facilitate thorough solution. Large and durable bubbles can be made from this mixture, which should be prepared twenty-four hours before it is to be used.

Dr. H. W. Hicks Lugin and wife left last week for a trip through the provinces.

Hon. Charles B. Pratt, R. James Tolman and George A. Park, all of the First National Fire Insurance Company, were present at the banquet which Hon. Frank Jones gave last Saturday evening at the Rockingham House, Portsmouth, N. H., to the Massachusetts agents of the Granite State Insurance Company.

Auburn.

No. 1 School, Auburn had a flag-raising on the 19th. There were readings by the children and patriotic addresses were made by Mr. John W. Hicks of Auburn, Dr. M. B. Flinn and Harrison T. Eddy of Worcester.

ORIGINAL. No. 22.

Cracknels

BY MRS. S. T. RORER,

Principal Philadelphia Cooking School.

Add to one quart of sifted flour a half teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one of Cleveland's baking powder, a half of salt; mix and rub in four ounces of butter. Add sufficient milk to make a dough. Knead and roll out, spread lightly with soft butter, fold in three, roll out again, and cut with a sharp knife into square cakes. Beat the white of one egg, a tablespoonful of sugar and one of milk together, brush over the tops and bake fifteen minutes in a moderately quick oven.

Use only Cleveland's baking powder, the proportions are made for that.

Cleveland's Baking Powder leaves best because its strength is produced by cream of tartar and soda only, not by ammonia or alum.

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H. Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists. 11 Pleasant St., Worcester, Mass.

Residence, 61 West Street.

The Readers of Light
I most cordially invite
To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything
They would expect to find

In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,

Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,

10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL,

Gold, Silver and Nickel
Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.

13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St.,
Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework,
Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

New York Suit and Cloak Store, 512 Main Street.

SPECIAL.

I would beg to announce that I have received and placed on sale today over One Hundred Dozen

Laundered Shirts and Shirt Waists

all in the very newest styles, and will be sold at Special Low Prices.

Richard Healy, 512 Main St.

PENSIONS! * PENSIONS!

THE DISABILITY BILL IS A LAW.
Soldiers Disabled Since the War are Entitled.
Dependent widows and parents now dependent whose sons die from the effects of army service are included.
If you wish your claim speedily and successfully prosecuted,
address JAMES TANNER,
Late Commissioner of Pensions, Washington, D. C

C. REBOLI,

Confectioner * and * Caterer,

6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

J. S. WESBY & SONS,

BOOK * BINDING

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

387 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES

at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

THE BARNUM AND BAILEY SHOW.

There have been many inquiries concerning "Nero, or the Destruction of Rome," the great spectacle that is presented with the Barnum and Bailey show, here on the 6th inst.

Mr. Leland, a member of the corps of press agents in advance of the show, was in the city Monday, and in conversation with a LIGHT representative, assured him that a fifty-cent ticket admits to all the great attractions of the mammoth show, of which "Nero" is a part. "It is produced," he said, "immediately after the three ring, double platform and aerial performance under the mammoth canvas and forms a part of the main performance, no extra charge being made for it. It is all the one grand, magnificent, gigantic show, under the management of J. A. Bailey, sole surviving partner of P. T. Barnum."

It may be added that the "Destruction of Rome" is a whole show in itself, and a most magnificent one at that, and the liberality of the management in placing it in the grand category of attractions instead of singling it out as a distinct feature and charging an extra admission fee for it, ought to be appreciated by the public, as it no doubt will be.

At the Lake.

Many hard worked Worcester people are realizing what comfort may be found on the shores of Lake Quinsigamond. Trains and boats make the camping place easily reached. A new stopping place is Folly Point where Mr. J. G. Vaudreuil has erected a handsome cottage. This landing affords easy access to the camp of several well known citizens. The first tent is that of Mr. D. E. Denny. He calls his summer home, Cosy Retreat and cosy enough, he and his wife and their children are. Just beyond them are Mr. E. H. Wentworth, wife, with son and daughter. Their abode they call Sunset Cottage, and the rays of the setting sun are beautiful as they shoot over the waters of Folly Cove and gild the leaves that shade this place of rest. Still further north, but close at hand, is the tent of Mr. Charles B. Sartell. Here with wife and two children, he takes comfort when the city work is done and he can retreat to the quiet of the Lake. More and more the advantages of these lakeside homes are appreciated as the years go by. Daily many visitors happen along and pleasant intercourse rules the hour. The children find the outing delightful and they are made stronger by it daily. Why doesn't some one locate on the islands?

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place at an early day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of

Fine Monumental Work,

131 Central Street,

near Summer.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

W. A. ENGLAND,

DEALER IN

PINE WATCHES,

CLOCKS, JEWELRY

& OPTICAL GOODS.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

394 Main Street.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,

Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, *

NO. 156 MAIN STREET,

H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
WORCESTER, SS.
PROBATE COURT.

To all persons interested in the estate of JOHN RILEY, late of Worcester, in said County, deceased, intestate: Greeting, Upon the Petition of Mary Riley you are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held in Worcester, in said County, on the first Tuesday of July next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, why real estate of said deceased remaining after the payment of his debts, should not be assigned and set out to his widow, the said petitioner, in fee, to an amount not exceeding five thousand dollars in value; And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively, in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester the last publication to be two days, at least, before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioner, seven days at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this sixteenth day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.
F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

Worcester Coal Company,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

THE CRITERION
Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.

231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SIKREWSBURY ST.
J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

LAWRENCE,
PHOTOGRAPHER.

492 Main Street.
TAKE ELEVATOR.

RAYMOND'S
VACATION
EXCURSIONS.

ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

30 * SUMMER * TOURS.

Of from five to twenty-one days' duration, and including visits to the White Mountains, Isles of Shoals, Mount Desert, Moosehead Lake, Old Orchard Beach, Montreal, Quebec, the Saguenay and St. Lawrence Rivers, Lake Memphremagog, St. Andrews, N. B., Fredrickton, the St. John River, St. John, the Annapolis Valley, the Land of Evangeline, Halifax, the coal regions of Nova Scotia, the Bras d'Or Lakes of Cape Breton Island, Charlottetown, Hudson River, Saratoga, Lake George, Lake Champlain, Ausable Ch. sm, the Adirondack Mountains, Lake Placid, Lehigh Valley, Mauch Chunk, Watkins Glen, Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands, Trenton Falls, etc.

In addition to the above,
Excursions over the Canadian Pacific Railway and to Alaska—July 11 and 25.

Excursion to the Yellowstone Park and Return—July 16.

Tour of Yellowstone Park and Across the Continent, returning via Canadian Pacific Railway—July 27.

See 1 for descriptive circulars, designating whether book of "Thirty Summer Tours," Alaska Excursions, or Yellowstone National Park trips is desired.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB,
296 Washington Street, opposite School Street, Boston.

E. W. COFFIN,
Store Fixtures

310 Main Street, Worcester.
Name this Paper.

The Resurrection.

At early dawn, no crimson light,
Yet covers the heaven and hides t' e night,
Awaiting to fade away,
A gleam, a light, a starry ray;
Then soft comes the rustle of murmuring wings
An angel of morning, he softly sings
Till the heavens are filled with the golden clouds;
And gleaming white,
With stars of light,
They onward come, each earthward bound.
Then a thrill, a deepening sound,
Bound no more are thy cold, stone doors,
The winged angel there,
Droops as in prayer,
Veils his face in homage to Him,
The death hour, the tortures alike are dim,
He is risen the whole earth knows!
The swift winged creatures leave Him no more
Kings of Kings, whom we adore!

D.

The following is the text of a circular, now circulating among the G. A. R. men in Worcester. It is being quite rapidly answered.

GEORGE H. WARD POST,
No 10, G. A. R.
WORCESTER, MASS., JUNE 13, 1891.)

Dear Comrade,

Herewith you receive a blank which you are requested to carefully examine and as carefully fill out; and to forward the same at your earliest convenience to the Secretary, or any other member of this committee.

Also, to defray the expense of engrossing your record in the Memorial Volumes, please inclose 25 cents, the sum voted by the Post to be required of each comrade to cover his entry. No record will be inserted unless thus accompanied.

Friends of the Post have donated the books; let us, as members, show equal interest by filling our records immediately.

The committee desire all data before August 1st.

WM. L. ROBINSON, Chairman, Police Headq's.
WM. H. BARTLETT, 129 Pleasant St.
CURTIS W. GASSETT, 92 School St.
GEO. W. MUDICK, 204 Main St.
ALFRED S. ROE, Secretary, 339 Main St.

A Relic.

Comrade Calvin Morse, Jr., of Berdan's 1st U. S. Sharpshooters, musician, retains the bugle that he used in the service and he says it is particularly dear to him, for the first time he used it was when Lincoln reviewed the regiment on the Corcoran grounds in Washington. This will be a precious heirloom. Mr. Morse was chief bugler.

Law Law Law is Like a fine woman's temper a very difficult study. Law is Like a book of surgery; a great many Terrible cases in it—Law is Like fire and water; very good servant; but very bad when it gets the upper hand of us—it is Like a homely genteel woman very well to follow—it is also Like a scolding wife very bad when following us—and again it it is Like bad weather—most people choose to keep out of it.—Old Almanac.

Quincy.

Down in Boston they are telling this story about young Josiah Quincy: He had left the state house for the city hall, and was passing along a corridor of the latter edifice when two city laborers observed him. "Who is that Pat?" inquired one of them. "That! Why that's Josiah Quincy!" "And who's Josiah Quincy?" "Mike I never saw the likes o' you. Did you never hear o' young Josiah Quincy. Why he's—the grandson o' the statue out in the yard there."

J. W. GREENE,
PLUMBER.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,
Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand,) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

Harness and Saddlery,
RELIABLE GOODS
and LOWEST PRICES.
R. McALEER & CO.,

155 MAIN STREET.

PHOTOGRAPHER.

Children's
Portraits
A Specialty

326 MAIN ST.,
Opp. Mechanics Hall.

Underwood

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,
* PRINTERS. ***

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,
DEALER IN
Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

355 Main Street, Worcester.

Eddy's REFRIGERATORS

The EDDY REFRIGERATOR is packed with Eddy's Absolute Non-Conductor. An EDDY REFRIGERATOR, carefully used, will last a lifetime.

The best Refrigerator in the World for the money.

We sell them at 15 PER CENT from list price, which reduces the cost to that of those of inferior quality.

CALL AND EXAMINE THEM.

Canton and Japanese * MATTING *

A new importation, from 15c. per yard upwards.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,
355 MAIN STREET.

Household.

Cheap and good-looking screens are made of palm leaves, and are ornamented with great clusters of beautiful foreign grasses. One large and very effective screen consisted of five palm leaves painted white and gold, and arranged as a fan. It was decorated with a large posey formed of pampas grass, silky pompons, bulrushes, everlasting daisies, thistles and pretty colored grasses. The wall decorations consisted of single palm leaves painted a lively color and adorned with a bunch of flowers and grass.

A plan for cleaning carpets after they have been beaten and laid down again, is to wash them with one pint of ox-gall to a full pail of warm water. Soap a piece of flannel, dip it in the pail and rub a small part of the carpet; then dry with a clean cloth before moving to another spot. Before laying carpets have the boards scrubbed with two parts of sand, the same of soft-soap and one part of lime-water. This will keep away insects.

To remove grease from carpets, cover the spots with flour or dry corn-meal, and pin a paper over it. Repeat the process every six hours until the grease is drawn out, brushing the old flour off each time.

For soft corns, dip a piece of linen cloth in turpentine, and wrap it around the toe on which the corn is situated, every night and morning. It will prove an immediate relief to the pain or soreness, and the corn will disappear after a few days.

An excellent cough mixture is composed of the following: One pound of figs (chopped fine), one pound of loaf sugar, one pint of Jamaica rum poured over the figs and sugar. Let it stand twelve hours, then strain and bottle. A teaspoon every hour or two.

Salt fish may be soaked over night, changing the water if it grows very salt. Always put it flesh side downwards in the pan, so that the salt may settle in the pan. In the country, salted, or what they call pickled, salmon is often allowed to stand for days in sour milk. It must be carefully washed when cooked, and really seems to acquire a pleasant flavor from its unusual treatment.

Flour made from Spring wheat is apt to be somewhat soft in the Fall and early Winter, and does not make as good bread as when older and dryer. This defect may be obviated by drying the flour before baking, by placing it on a pan on the back of the stove or in a moderately warm drying oven. Many cooks famous for good bread practise this secretly as one of the "tricks of the trade."

The skin of a boiled egg is the best remedy for a boil. Carefully peel it, wet, and apply to the boil; it draws out the matter and relieves soreness.

Large perforated and small, plain wooden spoons are needed in dessert making. On no account should butter be creamed, fruit juices measured, or cream beaten with an iron spoon.

At the 22d Annual Convention of High Grade Masons, Geo. B. Buckingham 33° of this city was chosen first Lieut. Commander and Fred A. Lapham 32° was made Grand Captain of the Guard.

THE CLARK-SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

NEW INVOICES OF

Decorated China, Haviland's Make.

Dinner Sets,

Ice Cream Sets,

Fish Sets,

Salad Sets,

Cracker Jars,

Brush and Comb Trays,

Celery Trays,

After Dinner Coffees,

Chocolate Sets.

A FINE DISPLAY OF

Ice Cream Sets

in Stipple Gold and all the later decorations.

THE CLARK-SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

The Male Ginevra.

A Tale of Boston of Two Years Ago.

By Lucretia P. Hale in Boston Sunday Courier.

[Concluded From Last Week.]

"Yes, mum, that very night I went a-looking, a-going first after Pat and Bob and Mike to see what they knew about Jim, not thinking he hadn't left the man-hole, and you should have seen them look at each other. Pat was sure he'd left Mike to watch the man-hole, and Bob was sure Jim Everard himself had put the cover on, and Pat he started and said Jim Everard had put the cover on himself, he was sure of it, with language, mum, that I won't repeat to the likes of you, for Pat was that sure he'd seen him outside when he did it, because he had his light colored jacket on, and then Mike you could have knocked him down with a feather, if he had been a-standing up, because it seems he'd himself put on Jim's coat, because it was kind of cold and shivering, and Jim had took it off and laid it down by the side that last time he went down into that man-hole. For, of course, if Mike still had Jim's jacket on Jim couldn't have come up outside.

"We looked down that hole, yes, mum, of course we did, but no mum he weren't there. But we knew now for certain he was shut in, since nobody had seen him come out, and it was only his white jacket that Pat saw. I don't know why you didn't hear about it in the papers. If you'd been here you'd have seen the crowd Sunday morning, when they took off the cover again and dug around more particular. There'd be a mob of a Sunday, if you stopped to pick up a handkerchief on a street crossing, and the men and boys gathered around dressed in their Sunday black, and the police came from all the neighborhood. They couldn't find no one, but in their digging they did find a big kind of a water pipe opening in there, and the stories they did tell. They said Jim had been carried into the 'treatment cure,' whatever that may be just along here and they made up such a story I went in myself to investigate the authorities. Sure enough mum, at this treatment cure, they did say such a person had been there. They took him for a burglar at first, coming in that way through an old water-pipe, as he did, into their basement, but he hadn't no burglars' tools, and his head was broke, so they treated him, for that was their business, as I learned afterwards, as long as he staid.

"We couldn't tell, mum, whether it was true, seeing as he wasn't in there, and none of them knew when he went away or how he went; maybe through that same water-pipe if so be as he had come in by it. So I didn't set much store by what they said, though it bothered me a good deal all day Sunday.

"The oddest thing was what happened to my Mary. It had got to be Monday morning, and she went into the next door, where she'd agree to go in and do the cleaning, for bad as she felt, Mary she'd stick to her work, day in and day out, and had got through with our washing early—seeing as she hadn't slept nothing the night before, and she was to go in that very day to help Mrs. Spaulding, our neighbor next door, as she'd agree to do. Its next door the t'other side, not where Jim used to board, mum. Its a bigger house, and a lot of scaffolding all in front, owing to their mending the roof the week before. And so it happened, Mary she went up in the attic maybe she was carrying upstairs some of Spauldings' things. They have a lot to put away from the moths, or maybe it is the buffalo-bugs, I never can tell rightly which of them does the most harm; and Mrs. Spaulding says its because Mary keeps my house so careful that I never have had either of the kinds in my house. But I told her its because I didn't keep that kind of things that those kinds of bugs are after. We wear our clothes till they gets worn out, and don't have to put them away in the dark, for the moths and other insects to come after.

"Just as I was saying, Mary was having an armful of their things to put in a great chist they has in the upper story, when she went to open the chist, she gave a scream such as Mrs. Spaulding heard away down below, and came a-rushing up with the rest of her folks, and all fell a-screaming, for there in the top of the chist, mum, lay Jim Everard. Yes, mum, as you say, just like the words of the song, there he was, 'In a chist that long lay hid.'

"As you ask, mum, how had he got there? And that, mum, we can't say. It might have been the scaffolding outside that he'd climbed up, not being able to get into the door of the house, which was natural, seeing as it wasn't his boarding house, his head being kind of turned with some knock he'd given it somewhere; naturally being the wrong house, and not able to get in below, he tried going up outside on the scaffold, and finding the chist handy in the room, as his bed might be, had stepped in. It might have been that he had passed all Sunday at the treatment cure. I can't say, nor how he got out from there. From what I do hear, there ain't many as gets away from those places till they are carried off. I haven't been much in the sick line myself, and one reason is, mum, that I have fought shy of them hospitals. If a man's sick, he had better stay at home, I say, if he has one. What should he go to the hospital for a-keeping on being sick? I had rather die, for my part, and the best way is to not to get sick, and that's the way I have managed so far. As for Jim, its doubtful to me if he ever did get into that treatment cure. His head was bandaged, to be sure, that we could see, and he couldn't well have bandaged it himself; and maybe they was right in thinking that when he found he was shut up in that man-hole owing to Mike's letting the cover fall on him—just what you suspected, mum, when you talked to me in the spring—that sometime they'd be careless, and let the cover down when somebody was there either forgetting or not knowing, and it is heavy to lift up when you are on the outside, and he inside, with only his head to push it up with. He might have had some other kind of instruments, but exactly what he did take down I never knew, except his spade, which he might not be able to lift up to hit the cover. And how it was that Mike should have been that careless, I can't say, and you'd have thought he'd have looked in before putting on that cover knowing he had on Jim's coat all the time.

"But they are those who think Jim Everard had gone down to look into that water-pipe. He might have discovered a-opening there, that he maybe hadn't seen before, or else he would have mentioned it, and if it wasn't directly under the man-hole and if they saw somebody else a-standing outside with Jim Everard's coat on, they might naturally have supposed it was Jim Everard. Only I am one of those who say that Mike ought not have shut down the cover, till he looked into the hole, or screamed to Jim Everard, and Bob and Pat they ought to have asked the man outside if he looked like Jim Everard. But it ain't for me to say, nor for me to judge my betters, though I ain't prepared to say that Mike is one of my betters.

"I have been at him before now to tell him he'd better look out for himself, and when he began to talk to me about Jim's getting into the treatment. Then I told him plainly, that Jim was not one of those that go in for the treating business and didn't need no cure. He wouldn't stand for treating himself, no more than for treats for other people, and it might be better for Mike if he wasn't in that line. And Mike and the rest of them took to explaining that it warn't that kind of 'treats' they had at the treatment cure, that it was a kind of place for taking disjointed and mistocated limbs, and broken beads and the like, for curing them, but why they didn't call it a hospital, and done with it, they didn't mention. And they didn't suppose that Jim went in there on purpose with his head to be bandaged, but he broke it tumbling in there through the water-pipe.

"And we hain't any of us cared to question him much about it. Who, mum? Why Jim Everard! No, mum, he ain't dead! No, mum, he warn't found dead in the chist, but asleep, or kind of in a faint fit. He's alive as you are at last accounts at least up in the country draining Farmer Peter's meadows at this moment, that's what the doctor said was the best for him to keep at work above ground in case there might be danger of dizziness of the head, though Mary she says his head is as straight as any man, better than most, for she don't have much opinion of men.

"Yes, mum, Mary is married to Jim Everard, and they are a-living up in the country, in the snuggest little house you could dream of, and a garden in front with laylock bushes and there ain't no higher drangee round than she has this summer in that front door-yard. They've been laying sewers in the neighborhood, and Mary she was kind of anxious with regard to Jim, that when he came to see the pipes round that it might excite him to that kind of work, but the doctors say his head is all right.

"Yes, mum, it has all turned out different from the song, and from the old story of the same woman named Ginevra, she was. You see it took a woman to find Jim, and I think Mary's about right, and that it does take a woman to find most anything. Its Mary that used to find up all my things for me, and I think if a woman had gone to hunting up that lady in the olden times, instead of trusting it to that old man, she'd have been found before now, and there wouldn't have been no story nor no song, which I always thought was kind of dreary, which Mary agrees with me now, and yes, mum, I suppose it will end in my going up there into the country to live, and have Mary looking after me, for she will have it I can't look after myself. Only they couldn't spare me quite yet, here, seeing as I always have been in work on the streets, and they are kind of depending on me as general overseer, though after leaving Jim Everard to be shut up under a cover it seems to show I ain't so good at overseeing, and I may as well stop work before I has to.

"I don't know how I shall get along without having the streets to look after, but its likely the Mayor and the rest of them can get along without me, particularly mum, if I stay around talking to you in this way. And I beg your pardon for taking your time, but you know you asked me, mum, to tell you the story."

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE.

In view of much that has been said within the last year and a half by School authorities in this city concerning school excursions, the following from the N. E. Journal of Education for June 25 is specially apropos; particularly when we reflect that the Journal has grown to be considered almost the oracle of school matters in New England.

"SCHOOL EXCURSIONS"

The school excursion is to be one of the prominent features of the school of the future. The spirit of modern teaching makes it inevitable that the class with the teacher should have close and prolonged contact with mother earth. Book-knowledge, in-door study of natural objects, count for little except as they suggest something every way true to life, as they can only do when they recall what has been seen and known from the touch of nature. Not alone for the knowledge of lakes, rivers, hills, mountains, plateaus, watersheds, mountain chains, river systems, basins, capes, the river's banks, sources and mouth, and other geographical terms and facts, is this valuable, but for botany, natural history, natural philosophy, literature and history. The best possible in-door study of plants and minerals is unreal, and will become mechanical unless seen with an instructor or adviser in nature. What a landscape is to its picture, growing wild flowers are to the plucked samples of the class room.

The trouble with everything of this kind is that a single excursion a term, and that the same dull routine, answers the purpose in the eyes of the average teacher. In this way even the excursion becomes mechanical. The idea is for the school to study everything, that can be studied profitably through excursions. In a half hour after school, take the class to see all the varieties of pumps in the village; to a carpenter's shop—by previous arrangement—to see his tools and benches, and to see him illustrate the use of each by using it; to a blacksmith's shop and machine shop; to a factory or mill; to some places with a fine echo; to see a farmer's implements; to a bakery; to coal pits, mines, or brick-yards; to the legislature and the town meeting; to a bank and post-office, etc.

When teachers appreciate the value of all this, the questions of time and expense will soon be solved. School excursions are here for "business," and the teacher must utilize them as fast and as well as she can."

High School.

During the past year, Mrs. Ware has conducted a volunteer class in English Literature. As a mark of appreciation, the pupils, in the last week of the school, gave to her a set of the two volumned edition of The Marble Fawn. This is one of the finest books issued by the Riverside Press and fully illustrated with etching and photogravures will be a cherished souvenir for years to come. The High School must ever have a warm place in Mrs. Ware's memory.

Worcester Academy.

The Dexter prize speaking contest took place Monday evening in the First Baptist Church. The contestants were Edwin Randolph Clarke, Leon Hayes Denison, John Louis Ewell, Cola Winn Meacham, Raymond Josiah Gregory, Arthur Alexis Bryant, Charles Darwin Cooke and Frederick William Jones. Arthur Bryant was awarded the first prize of $20 and Raymond Gregory the second of $10. The judges were Rev. Dr. Archibald McCullagh, Principal John Wight of the High School and Eben Francis Thompson. Young Bryant is a son of Rev. Albert Bryant, pastor of the Belmont Church, this city. He was the youngest of these competitors. His selection was Gen. Deven's eulogy on General Grant.

Tuesday evening, Prof. Geo. H. Palmer of Harvard College delivered the oration before the school, his subject being "Manliness in Boyhood."

The graduating exercises took place Wednesday forenoon. The program was as follows: Prayer by Rev. Robert J. Adams, D. D., of Boston; music by the Apollo quartet of Boston; oration, "The Man for the Emergency," with Latin salutatory, Fred Davis Aldrich; music by quartet; essay, "Achilles in his tent," Andrew Adams; oration, "The rule of the Majority," Alvah Wadsworth Clement; essay, "The functions of Citizenship," Charles A. Andrews; oration, "Man's control over his Destiny," Chester W. Kingsley; essay, "Patriotism," Theophilus H. Burhoe; essay, "The delights of Homer," with valedictory, Charles Storey Thurstan; presentation of diplomas by President Abercrombie; report of examining committee by Rev. C. H. Spaulding of Cambridge. The graduating class numbers twenty-two. The members are: Andrew Adams, Winchendon; Fred Aldrich, Webster; Charles Amos Andrews, Palmer; Guy Ashton Andrews, Providence, R. I.; Susie Lillian Austin, Jefferson; Frederick Ledyard Bill, Paxton; Emmons Brant, Worcester; Theophilus Havelock Burhoe, Westboro; Alvah Wadsworth Clement, Worcester; George Crompton, Worcester; Herbert Faulkner Hill, Warren; Bradbury Holbrook, Davenport; Arthur Johnson Hull, Stepany, Conn.; Franklin Johnson, Jr., Ottawa, Kansas; Oliver Sawyer Kendall, Worcester; Chester Willard Kingsley, Cambridge; Edward Cameron Roberts, Davenport, Iowa; Nelson Walling Sayles, Millbury; Robert Gasten Smith, Plainfield, N. J.; Charles Storey Thurston, Whitinsville; Herbert Lakin Warren, Holden, Mass.; Hobart Augustus Whitman, Worcester.

Mr. E. N. Anderson, Worcester's eminent musician, has gone to Europe for a two month's outing.

The Day We Celebrate.

Fizz—z—z—z, bang, boom! Is there one day in the whole three hundred and sixty-five when the average adult longs more fervently for a lodge in some vast wilderness than upon the glorious 4th?

Not that he is lacking in patriotism or devoid of the feeling that the anniversary should be duly honored; but it is a matter of nerves, and the flesh is weak.

"From early dawn till dewy eve" has continued the ceaseless din which marks the nation's natal day. Patience has done her utmost, but at last, made desperate by long endurance, the sufferer finds himself wishing devoutly that the nation had, like Topsy, never wanted to be born!

But what manner of a Fourth would it be without the smell of powder and noise, and lots of racket generally?

From the earliest period when the years of the American citizen could be reckoned in the plural, he has been imbued with the idea that noise—and plenty of it—is a synonym for millenium, which word is another and seldom used form of expression for Fourth of July, and as long as boys are boys, any movement tending toward a different order of things would be a matter calling for the intervention of the society with the long name,—if not a direct infringement of his rights as to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Heroes may come and heroes may go. Inventors generally may gain renown; but in the estimation of Young America, the originator of the fire-cracker, the toy-pistol and the big-booming gun are the only true great men. Through their beneficent aid such bombless means of jollifications have been at hand—possibilities which the irrepressible energy of the small boy has seldom failed of improving to their utmost.

He has driven his sisters and his cousins and his aunts to the verge of distraction with his din, he has burnt his cheeks and singed off his eyes-brows and possibly blown off a finger or thumb-tip more or less; but when night falls upon the tired earth, he seeks his pillow "and unwrapping the draperies of his couch about him, lies down to pleasant dreams," happy in the consciousness of duty nobly done, and having celebrated the glorious Fourth in manner befitting a possible future president of the United States. SIGMA.

James Logan has been on a trip to the West.

C. W. Putnam and family have gone into camp in Sterling.

T. Spencer Jenks and wife attended the funeral of their uncle, George W. Farr, in Brooklyn last week.

Some very funny things occasionally crop out in dealings with our imported citizens. It happened at one time that family affairs made necessary the partial curtailment of holiday privileges on the Fourth, on the part of the lady who presided in our kitchen. "And sure," said she, quite indignant thereat, "in the old country, me mistress always lit me have the whole day of Fourth of July to do as I plazed in."

The Week.

CITY.

- 19—The "Plucked" Tech boys get their diplomas. They, at least, are happy.
Man, woman and child by the name of Pitts discovered living in a dry goods box on Mountain Street. Can these things be?
- 20—Worcester Society of Antiquity visits Medfield.
Mr. E. A. Goodnow, with characteristic generosity, gives a bell to French Congregational Society in Marlborough.
Thaddeus L. Bolton of Clark University to assist Prof. F. W. Putnam in taking measurements of Indians.
- 21—Children's day in some churches. In others, thoughts of graduation are expressed.
Franklin Whipple dies at 16 Oread Street, 70 years.
Ex-Mayor Williamson of Worcester, Eng., still in town.
- 22—Dexter prize speaking, Academy boys at First Baptist Church.
Telephone Companies would like to have their wires under ground.
Wm. F. Merrill dies at 24 Mill Street, 41 years.
- 23—The Pitts family vacates the box. Too much publicity.
Examination for admission at Polytechnic.
- 24—Fine Parade of Knights Templars.
Graduation at the Academy.
Very interesting graduating exercises at Leicester Academy.
- 25—Business men meet at the Bay State House to organize for the good of the city.
Graduation at Holy Cross and at the Normal School.
Ex-Mayor Williamson of Worcester, Eng., finally and really leaves us.
- 26—Hon. J. H. Walker wins his suit vs. Philadelphia Book Co. The public rejoices.
Millbury High School pupils picnic at the Lake.
- 27—Pupils pass the IX Grade examinations; 420 survive the ordeal.
Committee of gentlemen to look after city's business interests meet at Bay State House. May something come of it.
- 28—Rev. F. L. Hopkins ordained at Main Street Baptist Church.
George W. Farr, a 15th Regt. veteran, and formerly of this city, dies in Brooklyn.
- 29—High School graduation in Mechanics Hall and Associate reception in the evening in the High School.
- 30—Enthusiastic meeting of Committee appointed to look after city's interests.
Old South and Plymouth Sunday Schools have picnics.
- July 1—Three alarms of fire; the third soon after 8 p.m. back of 215 Main Street bade fair to be a serious one, but our efficient fire department soon had it under control.
Opening races on the Fair Grounds.
Dr. P. B. Keefe appointed Medical Examiner to succeed Dr. J. Marcus Rice who has held the place for nearly 30 years.

2—Second day's trotting at the Driving Park. St. Anne's Guards leave for New York to take part in prize drill.

COUNTY.

- 18—The country towns are having their annual graduations. The world moves forward.
- 19—Bessie May Gough dies in Uxbridge, 22 years.
- 23—Veterans of the 10th Regiment received with great enthusiasm in Spencer. The town fairly reeks with memories and patriotism.
- 24—Fire in Crane & Waters mill, Millbury. House of Mrs. David Marble burned in Millbury.
- 25—Gov. Russell presents diplomas to High School pupils in Clinton.
Otis W. Rhodes dies in Oxford, 50 years.
- 26—There is, really, nothing going on in the the county, save the harvesting of the usual crop of school children; a good crop by the way.
- 27—Burglars are working the town of Barre.
- 28—James Curley of Shirley killed by a train on the Fitchburg R. R.
New Catholic Church in Holden (Jeffersonville) dedicated.
- 30—Destructive explosion of fire works in Clark's Drug Store, West Brookfield; no need of a 4th of July there this year.
- July 1—Holden celebrates her century and a half with great éclat

COMMONWEALTH.

- 19—Harvard Class Day on a damp campus under a leaky sky.
Hannah Bradstreet Balch dies in Topsfield, a lineal descendant of the governor, having lived all her life on the ancestral acres.
George M. Stowell, Y. M. C. A. secretary at Fall River, kills himself, a victim of overwork.
- 20—Fourteen people are reported to have died in Boston during past week from sun stroke.
- 21—Boston School Committee in a muddle over music books. How easy is discord!
- 22—A Baptist minister creates a sensation by withdrawing from the Boston preachers' meeting on account of strictures against Masonry, expressed by one of the members.
Trial of K. J. Brown in Boston for alleged smuggling in drawing room car from Canada.
- 23—Massachusetts is doing, absolutely, nothing but get ready to graduate.
- 24—Harvard Commencement, also Commencement at Williams and at Smith.
President Merrill E. Gates inaugurated at Amherst.
- 25—Boston Common Council resolves to junket despite the mayor's veto.
- 26—John B. Alley, boot and shoe dealer, and Kimball Bros., manufacturers of carriages, have assigned, heavy liabilities.
- 27—Boston Harvard people jubilant over the New London victory.
- 28—It is rumored that Park Street Boston Church wants our Rev. A. Z. Conrad.
Rev. Hugh Montgomery moves on the mayor and aldermen of Woburn. He wants the law enforced; a reasonable desire.

29—Five convicts get out of Charlestown prison. Two recaptured.

30—Prof. Le Baron R. Briggs succeeds Prof. C. L. Smith as Dean of Harvard College, Col. W. W. Clapp retires from editorship of Boston Journal.

July 1—Warden Lovering's father dies in Lynn.
Annual meeting of Board of Trustees of State Reform School.

2—Mr. Moody's Northfield meeting progressing finely.
Republican Press of the state to form an association.

NATION.

- 19—School children drowned in Tilden, Neb., in returning home from school.
Gov. Pattison vetoes compulsory education bill. He believes in liberty.
- 20—Cornell wins boat race from Columbia at New London.
Silver men agitating their vexed question in New York.
- 21—Ex-United States Senator McDonald of Indiana dies in Indianapolis, nearly 72 years.
- 22—The Writing telegraph fairly successful. Presidential prospects most talked about now.
- 23—Ex-Treasurer Bardsley of Philadelphia tells his story of wrong doing. What a comment on city government?
College boys at New London do not like time designated for races.
- 24—Democratic candidate for Lt. Gov. of Connecticut, Dr. Alsop, dies suddenly in Middletown.
Indians of the North-west are troublesome. They don't like the government schools. Do they like any?
Commencement at Yale.
The usual crop of drowning accidents is being harvested. Two at Asbury Park, N. J.; three near Washington, Penn.
Columbia Freshmen win in New London boat race.
- 25—Cornell beats all opponents at New London.
Hard to keep undesirable immigrants out. They are bound to come.
- 26—Harvard beats Yale badly at New London. This will reawaken interest in the sport.
- 27—Armory of 71st Regiment burns in New York.
Prince George of Greece crossing the Continent. He ought to slip through easily.
- 28—Ex-Senator Ingalls in Washington.
Large quantity of confiscated liquor stolen from custody in Lewiston, Me.
Owing to burning of shops 6,000 men are thrown out of work in Wilmington, Del.
In Lindley, Ohio, the shutting down of Glass Works throws out 2,000 men.
- 29—Earthquake shock in California.
- 30—Louisiana Farmer's Alliance denounce the Democracy.
Yale to have the biggest Freshmen class in its history.
- July 1—Prince George of Greece visits the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Ex-Senator Ingalls thinks it not right that a few men should control the wealth of the Nation. "So say we, all of us."

- 2—Colorado Desert to become an inland sea. Train blown from the track in Indiana. Bardsley, the Philadelphia treasurer, sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment.

WORLD.

- 16—Two Americans reported among the lost in the Swiss excursion disaster. Dr. Koch does not give up his Lymph; but is getting ready to do better things.

- 20—Emperor William would still further placate the clergy. Queer fellow is William! Lots of Americans in the German Universities, particularly in Berlin. H. L. Dadmun of Worcester easily wins quarter mile dash in Huddersfield, Eng.

- 21—It is now claimed that Queen Victoria favors Home Rule.

- 22—It looks as though duty on tin had ruined the Welsh industry. A great lock out certain.

- 23—Gladstone not so well as last reported. Spurgeon and others declare for Calvinism unqualifiedly. They must have shut their eyes.

- 24—Great Britain also interdicts the catching of seals in Behrings Sea till May 1, 1892. Justin McCarthy will retire from the leadership of the Irish Nationalist party.

- 25—At last Parnell is married. Too late to help him or his cause. France renounces duty on silks; pleasing Italy thereby.

- 26—Gladstone said to be improving. Parnell says he shall visit America in the fall. Chinese outrages in Canton continue.

- 27—Paris police seize the books of the Panama Canal Company. Dadmun does not show up in Manchester races.

- 28—The baker's strike in Paris is off, but now the train men are out. A new political party, monarchical and Romanist, is forming in France. Emperor William to be received in style in London.

- 29—American minister to Liberia, the Hon. Alexander Clark, reported dead in Monrovia. Grand-daughter of the Prince of Wales, christened. She is Lady Alexandra Victoria Duff, daughter of the Duke and Duchess Fife, only a duffer after all.

- 30—New South Wales favors Protection. England must look after her children. Famine imminent in Berlin, but the Emperor is to go off junketing. How strange the things be!

- July 1—Crops fail in Russia and ghastly famine stares the people in the face. Is it retributive justice? Yet still the poor people are the sufferers. Tax collectors flog those unable to pay.

- 2—Parnell, though married, happy, is not happy; will be defeated in Carlow elections. Brazilian traveller falls into the crater of Vesuvius. Emperor William visiting in Holland.

CHARLES L. WRIGHT.

CHARLES H. WOODCOCK.

"WEST SIDE MACHINE CO.,"

Manufacturers of the improved "Wright Drill," embracing features not applied to other drills.

The "Wright Counter Shaft and Clutch," just patented. The cheapest, most positive in its action, with scarcely perceptible shock or jar, and decidedly the best device for the purpose ever in the market. Every one interested is cordially invited to come and see it. The "Woodcock Universal Door Opener." By simply pressing a button on either side of the door, it causes the door to swing open. Can be quickly and cheaply applied to any door. Must be seen to be appreciated. A Carpenter's Gauge for Hanging Doors accurately and very quickly. No carpenter can afford to be without it. "The Swivel Crotch Center." No more broken drills by work catching. Hundreds of dollars saved. "A Cuff Holder." The cheapest and best ever seen. We are prepared to make the most reasonable terms for all kinds of special machinery. Repairs promptly done and satisfaction guaranteed. Factory less than two minutes' walk from Pleasant-street cars.

No. 28 Bellevue Street, Worcester, Mass.

MILLBURY.

Mr. Foster H. Stafford, the oldest manufacturer in continuous service in the country, died suddenly at Fall River this week. Mr. Stafford was seventy-six years of age; he began his mill career seventy years ago in this town and until fifteen years of age he performed various duties in the mill his wages never averaging more than $2 per week.

The Millbury High School and friends held a picnic at Lake Quinsigamond the 26th.

The graduating exercises of the High School were held in the town hall Thursday evening, June 25th. The following constitute the Class of '91: Ethel Olive Blanpied, essay, A Wooden Horse; Nettie Josephine Woodard, The Murder of the Innocents; Julia Ann Sullivan, Live for Something; Maude Louise Stratton, Learning depends upon the Learner; Annie Maria Sheehan, John Boyle O'Reilly; Mary Evelyn Mack, Woman's Work Then and Now; Abbie Jeanette Bonn, Success with honor; Exlan Philip Du Bois, World's Fairs and their value; Miss Blanpied was Valedictorian and Mr. Du Bois Salutatorian.

Thomas H. Sullivan, Class of '85, M. H. S. graduated with honors from Holy Cross receiving the degree of A. B. Herbert S. Hopkins, Class of '85, graduated from Dartmouth.

Ralph Blanpied and Chas. Lincoln of Harvard are at home for the summer.

Mrs. Helen G. Rice, Supt. of the Juvenile work under the W. C. T. U. spoke before a meeting representing the young people's societies, of the churches on Monday evening in the vestry of the Baptist church. Steps were taken toward forming a Loyal Temperance Legion.

The Bicycle Club went to Milford Sunday stopping at Hotel William for dinner. The club will go to Hartford for the Fourth.

The Millbury Base Ball Club scored its third successive victory Saturday on the home grounds.

The Millbury High School nine was defeated by the East Douglas Nine Tuesday afternoon, score 9 to 2.

The July Journal of the Non-Secret Endowment Order is No. VII in the series. It is ably edited and is filled with matter pertinent to the organization. Particular stress is laid on the situation in New Hampshire and the report of the Supreme President occupies considerable space. Herbert McIntosh, Esq., is editor and Fred W. Cummings business manager.

RAYMOND'S VACATION EXCURSIONS.
ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

SUMMER TOURS

Of from five to twenty-one days' duration, and including visits to the leading resorts of New England, Canada, and the Middle States during the months of July and August.

SECOND TRIP TO ALASKA

(the first party of July 11 having been filled) leaving Boston Saturday July 25. The outward trip over the Canada Pacific Railway, and the return over the Northern Pacific Railroad, with a visit to the Yellowstone National Park.

In addition to above, parties will leave Boston July 27 and September 7 for the

Yellowstone National Park,

Returning via Puget Sound and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

A party will leave July 16 for the Yellowstone National Park and return, a trip of 20 days.

Next Excursions to California, September 7 and October 15.

Send for descriptive circular, designating the particular tour desired.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB.
296 Washington St. (opposite School St.), BOSTON.

PUBLISHER'S NOTICE.

Every failure to receive LIGHT promptly should be, at once, reported at this office.

All scraps of informations concerning persons and events, thankfully received.

Friends sending in manuscripts will not complain if they are not printed at once. There are many waiting. Yet LIGHT is always glad to receive communications and, if meritorious, to print them.

Rev. T. J. Conaty sends out the July Calendar for the Church of the Sacred Heart. In addition to matter pertaining to Church Services, it contains a report of the late Church festival. The net receipts were $3,335.32.

The long delayed Index of Volume II will appear in the next number of LIGHT and hereafter, it will be printed immediately after the close of the volume.

Our Worcester photographers represented this week are Davis in cuts of Burtelle and Dickinson; Blair in that of Tatman and Lawrence in the picture of Southgate.

We have opened a Stationery Department and have supplied it with everything necessary to meet the numerous wants of such a department.

We shall carry a choice line of paper both in bulk and papeteries, also Inks, Mucilage, Pens, Pencils, Toilet Papers, Pads, etc., and shall sell them at most reasonable prices.

We invite you to call and see our new Stationery Department.

EDW. L. SMITH & CO.

New * York
STORE.

SPECIAL BARGAINS

IN

LADIES' SHIRT WAISTS,

WINDSOR TIES,

MULL TIES,

LACE BONNETS,

TOILET SOAPS,

PERFUMES,

and FINE STATIONERY.

Z. F. Little & Co.,

234 and 238 Main St.

ABOUT FOLKS.

Mrs. Holmes.

Mrs. Mary J. Holmes, the distinguished novelist, is now visiting relatives on Lagrange Street. So many people have read her books it seems as though all ought to know her. Born in Brookfield, a niece of the eminent Rev. Dr. Joel Hawes, she married Daniel Holmes a lawyer and her early life was spent in Kentucky, where she noted facts which formed the basis of Tempest and Sunshine, her first story. She was a precocious Miss, since she taught school when only thirteen years old. She has written about thirty novels and her success has exceeded that of any American lady novelist, except Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe. Several of her stories have gone above 50,000 in circulation. She is about visiting England, and LIGHT wonders if she will look up the antecedents of her English Orphans. By the way, those orphans must be well started in life by this time. Joe is no more troubled by his mother's multitudinous complaints and the cause of Grundy gender must have long since ceased from troubling. As for Tempest and Sunshine, the Tempest came in full in our terrible Civil War and Sunshine followed. Her first story was published in 1854; the English Orphans in 1855; Lena Rivers in 1856, and she has averaged about one story a year since. Do novelists ever contemplate sequels? Do they meditate telling as how their heroes and heroines finished? After all, it is well that all of them do not, else we might have more interminable Elsie books.

Devens and Cheever

Our Worcester sculptor, Andrew O'Connor has, recently, placed on exhibition in Peck's Art Rooms two fine busts representing Gen'l Charles Devens and the Rev. George B. Cheever, both typical Massachusetts men and, both, men who left their marks upon their day and generation. The artist has succeeded in catching the expression of his subjects perfectly. The clergyman, so long the pastor of the Church of the Puritans in New York is faithfully delineated. Says his brother, the Rev. Henry T. Cheever, "I don't see how so perfect a representation can be made." What higher compliment can an artist wish?

The hundreds of Worcester people who were wont to see Judge Devens in life will find a deal of pleasure in regarding his effigy as it stands out so grandly from the artist's hands. The General is an excellent subject to begin with and Mr. O'Connor has done him ample justice. Fifteenth regiment men, his friends and associates of the Bar will be pleased at seeing the genial face once more. Our artist has added to his laurels in these well executed likenesses. Let no one who knew Judge Devens or the Rev. Dr. Cheever fail to see these busts. Others, too, who knew them not should go that they may retain a vivid impression of those celebrated men.

"Old Chums."

Alice Cary's poem is brought vividly to mind when H. H. Chamberlin meets Thomas A. Clarke. "Well, Henry, what are you doing here?" "Well, well, Tom, how are you?" Mr. C. is 78 years old and Mr. Clark is in his 82d, but yet boys to each other.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

Store open Friday evening.
Closed Saturday July 4th.

The men's department exhibits a new style Shirt for which it claims much.

It's an excellent shirt and no mistake, open front and back, two eyelets for your pair of diamonds.

These shirts are made from the very best Langdon cotton, the bosom and cuffs of excellent linen, and yet this really good shirt will be sold for 75c.

A lot of Palm Leaf Fans, just as they grew, ragged and wrinkled edges, used for decoration purposes, 25c each.

In medium dress goods there is lots of fun. Pine Apple Tissues in light and medium grounds, with dark figures on the light and light figures on the dark grounds.

The fabric is fine, the designs pretty and the price 12 1/2c a yard.

We have a beautiful lot of new Challies at 5c a yard.

Among them was one special beauty in cream with pretty wild roses scattered over it; before night every yard of it was gone and the call was for more.

We expect more of it today and you had better get your share of it. 5c a yard.

Llama Cloth looks like all wool—when made up no one would think it anything else; the grounds are in the delicate tints, designs in small figures. 10c a yard.

We'll give you the best quality of Shirting Prints for 4c a yard.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

THE BOSTON
HERALD

is clean, reliable, independent, bright. The best newspaper for the family.

Subscription 50 cents a month, postage paid.

LARGEST CIRCULATION

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Leland with their daughters Florence and Ada start for New York Thursday night for a trip up the Hudson and surrounding places of interest.

THE WORCESTER DRIVING PARK COMPANY

Holds the Last Day's Races of its July Meeting at the Worcester Fair Grounds on the ## Fourth of July, 1891.

Purse $400--Divided. Free for All--Trot and Pace.

H. Titer, Medford, Mass., sp m Psyche.
Falmouth St. Farm, East Sudbury, Mass., b s Sangerfield, by Roman Chief.
John Riley, Allston, Mass., c g Chesterfield.
J. H. Carmichael, Springfield, Mass., c g Chance.
Fred B. Woodbury, Franklin Park, b m Dirigo Maid.
Geo. H. Hicks, Allston, Mass., blk g Dynamite, by Ben Franklin.

Purse $400---Divided. 2.37 Class--Trot and Pace.

A. F. Williams, Malden, Mass., blk g Phil Logan.

J. W. Brodbine, Boston, Mass., c st Sandy Morris, Jr.

J. W. Brodbine, Boston, Mass., b g Little Rocket.

C. F. Paige, Pittsfield, N. H., b g Cato.

E. H. Stearns, Leicester, Mass., b m Baby S.

E. H. Stearns, Leicester, Mass., br s Cromwell, Jr.

Spencer St. Farm, Spencer, Mass., b g Prince Phila, by Dawson Horse.

Falmouth St. Farm, East Sudbury, Mass., b s Sangerfield, by Roman Chief.

H. Titer, Medford, Mass., b g Honest Prince.

E. M. Gillies, Boston, Mass., g g Fred Wilson.

Rockview St. Farm, Providence, R. I., br m Mattie K.

Chas. Yapp, Lawrence, Mass., br g Rockland Chief.

Chas. Yapp, Lawrence, Mass., b g T. T. Wilkes.

F. O. Stanley, Newton, Mass., b s Lamont, by Redwood.

R. W. Durland, Franklin Park, b s Ralph D.

Purse $300---Divided. 3.00 Class--Trot.

Spencer St. Farm, Spencer, Mass., b s Apollo Wilkes, by Alcantara.

John Riley, Allston, Mass., blk m Lizzie L. Chas. Yapp, Lawrence, Mass., b m Fanny D.

Thorndale St. Farm, Andover, Mass., blk m Misty Maid.

E. W. Twitchell, Brookfield, Mass., b g Glis-ta, Jr., by John Bright.

Geo. H. Hicks, Allston, Mass., b s Carlton, by Mambrino King.

J. Middleby, Malden, Mass., c g Charley S.

ADMISSION TO THE GROUNDS 50c.

CARRIAGES FREE.

Races called at 2 p. m.

Music by Battery B Band.

J. F. KNIGHT, Secretary.

About Folks.

Asa R. Collier.

The passage vainly sought by Robert Hall in the Bible, "In the midst of life we are in Death," was pertinently illustrated in a recent call from the Rev. John Galbraith now of Boston, but recently of this city "Why do you happen up here"? is the natural query. "Oh, I have just been down to Woonsocket to attend the funeral of Brother Collier." There we have it. Only a few days since, Mr. Collier was in Worcester, running up for a few hours' stay. Very soon afterward, he was stricken with pneumonia and died in a short time. His funeral was attended in Woonsocket, Thursday, the 25th ult and the burial was in Westboro. Till last Fall, Mr. Collier had lived on Dix Street in this city, following his calling of a carpenter. He and his family were highly esteemed members of Grace Church.

W. C. T. U.

The brave women who have turned their zeal into a practical direction in maintaining an eating house, now offer their services as caterers for small parties. Their hall will accommodate 100 people and they have excellent facilities for dining that number. Since the advent of License, their station has been near the viaduct. They deserve the patronage of the community.

In our High School notes, it should have been stated that Miss E. H. M. Boyd will go to the Framingham Normal School and Miss M.

P. Dickinson will take a course of training for kindergarten work. Speed the day when Kindergartens may be more numerous.

Mr. George Cooper, who has charge of the wholesale department of A. S. Lowell's Emporium of Fashion celebrates this, the 4th of July, by taking his departure from our shores on board the Cunarder, Catalonia, from Boston. He goes for business and pleasure, first visiting his old Scottish home at Brechen, near Dundee; then he will, in company with the European agent of the House, purchase millinery novelties for the Fall trade. His wife, a Brooklyn, N. Y. lady, with their child, will accompany him. He expects to return about the middle of September. Many will envy him and his this midsummer outing, away from the heat and hurry of our bustling city.

Edward R. Fiske.

The death of this gentleman at Northampton June 30, removes from our midst a well known figure. Mr. F. was universally respected and he represented a long period of business in the printing line in this city. All that he undertook may not have prospered, but he never essayed anything that he did not believe to be right. In nature and bearing, he was every inch the gentleman. A native of this county in 1822, he spent some of his earlier years in Holden, but from 1837, he has been for the most part, identified with Worcester History. In a word, Mr. Fiske has been a worthy successor of Isaiah Thomas in the art established by him, in this city at the beginning of the Revolution. For several years past, he has had an office in the Burnside Building and his latest work has been the publication, monthly, of the Library Record. He was foreman of the Jury that tried the Hatch Case and this was his last appearance away from his home. His wife was Rebecca Sumner of Marblehead and for many years their home was at No. 21 Harvard Street. She died several years since. He leaves two sons, Edward S. of this city and C. W. of Providence and a daughter, Lizzie G. with whom he resided at No. 6 Congress Street.

Mr. Ruggles retired from the Union Station ticket office Wednesday and his successor, Mr. Cunningham, took his place. For the retiring and the assuming agent the public cherish the very best of wishes.

Mr. Amos A. Parker.

A call from a man very near his one hundredth birthday is not a common event; but Wednesday afternoon LIGHT had just that honor. This excellent gentleman had come down from his Fitzwilliam, N. H. home, unattended and what a glimpse of the past he gives as he tells of events further back than the lives of most men extend. He has been an active man of affairs and, having a wonderful memory he can entertain interminably. Within a few months he has been thrown from a carriage and has had an attack of the Grip, but he is still active and about. He was the guest of Theodore Parker and mother at 10 Hawley Street.

The Ware-Pratt Company

Invite attention to an extensive display of

Fine Clothing for Men, Boys and Children.

The Latest Fashions, Exclusive Styles from our own workshops, Honest Goods and the Lowest Prices, Grade and Quality considered.

Our Custom Department is teeming with the Newest styles, Colorings and Materials, which go to make up the finest lines we have ever shown.

The Ware-Pratt Company,

MANUFACTURERS AND RETAILERS,

408 and 412 Main Street,

Worcester.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts. State of the order March 18, 1891: Membership, 4915; Amount loaned for Relief, $15,290; Reserve Fund, $22,922.40; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,759.08; Total, $44,975.48. Men and women admitted upon the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600. Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organizers wanted. Address NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester, Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

LATHROP * BROTHERS,

LADIES', MEN'S AND CHILDREN'S

FINE AND MEDIUM SHOES

Of the most approved process of manufacture, meeting every requirement of Quality, Comfort and Style.

564 MAIN STREET, Franklin Square.

LEADING SAFETY BICYCLES.

Solid, Cushion and Pneumatic Tires. Full line of Supplies. Repairing a Specialty.

LEMONT & WHITTEMORE, 39 PEARL ST.

Open evenings.

Bal'oon Muffins.

Place your gem pans on the range to get very hot. Take one pint of flour, half pint of milk, half pint of water; beat thoroughly with a key-stone or wire beater. Butter the pans; fill two-thirds full and bake in a quick oven twenty minutes, or until they are puffs and nicely browned. Use no salt or baking powder. Salt is easily added when they are broken open to eat.

Now is the Time to Buy a

CARRIAGE !

at a Small Profit.

Geo. C. Dewhurst, 17 Park St.,

OPP. THE COMMON.

Larkin's, 395 Main St.,
Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps, Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.
Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Grate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD.
Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main St.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LIGHT

VOL. III. No. 19. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JULY 11, 1891. FIVE CENTS.

NEWS SOCIETY BUSINESS
PERSONALS
MUSIC
DRAMA
LITERATURE
ART
WELDON & CROSS
WELDON & CROSS

THOMAS A. CLARK,

Of the Clark-Sawyer Company, Worcester's Oldest Merchant.

[ENGRAVED EXPRESSLY FOR LIGHT.]

PUTNAM & SPRAGUE CO.

JULY 1st.

Beginning today we reduce the price from 10 to 15 per cent on our entire stock of

FURNITURE

except on a few articles, upon which the prices are fixed by the manufacturers, to be continued during the dull season. Now is the time to buy CHAMBER SUITS, PARLOR SUITS, DINING-ROOM SUITS, or anything in Furniture that may be found in first-class Ware-rooms. REFRIGERATORS and CHILDREN'S CARRIAGES at cost. Don't fail to take advantage of this sale. Liberal terms of credit if desired.

247 and 249 Main Street, Corner Central.

YARMOUTH S. S. CO.,

(Limited) Shortest and Most Direct Route Between United States & Nova Scotia, via the favorite sea-going and new steamships "Boston" and "Yarmouth." Sea voyage only 15 to 17 hours. Tickets sold to all parts of Nova Scotia.

Steamer will leave Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston, for Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 11 o'clock A. M.

Returning will leave Yarmouth for Boston every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Close connections made at Yarmouth with all Rail-way, Steamboat and Stage lines to all points in N. S.

For further information write for folder or apply to G. V. Lancaster, M. H. Church & Co., O. F. Rawson, Worcester; or J. F. Spinney, Agent, Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the

ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,

92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

C. H. DRAPER,

Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

Three Large Moving Wagons. Baggage Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!

It saves Time,
Labor and Fuel,
(two thirds cent
per hr. for fuel.)

Manufacturers
Guarantee every
Iron.

TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, Mfg. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

OXYGEN

We have the genuine

Oxygen Treatment

FOR THE CURE AND PREVENTION OF DISEASE.

It is not a Drug, but Nature's true Restorative in debility and all disordered conditions of the system.

Our Oxygen is fresh every day.

Prepared and administered with the utmost care by a Physician of large experience.

It will pay to investigate our METHODS and PRICES.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

LINCOLN BLOCK,

368 1-2 Main, Cor. Elm.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

Quinsigamond Lake ICE

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Especial attention given to the family trade.

Garfield & Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 143-4.

N. G. TUCKER.

W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER & SON,

SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street,

Worcester, Mass.

384

MAIN STREET

388

Bigelow & Longley

are prepared to show all the Latest Novelties in

CUSTOM AND READY-MADE

*CLOTHING*

MEN'S, YOUTHS', BOYS' or CHILDREN.

We can give you a SPRING OVERCOAT from $5 to $25, in all the latest shades, made up with silk face and silk sleeve linings.

CHEVIOT SUITS

in blue or black, cut single or double-breasted. Prices from $8 to $25. Also a fine assortment of

Blue and Black Serges,

$15 $15 PER SUIT $15 $15

Indigo Blue Flannel and Yacht Cloth Suits,

we can give you a single or double-breasted, at prices from $6 to $15, and GUARANTEE THE COLOR. An elegant line of light and dark colored

Scotches and Fancy Cassimeres,

from $6 to $25. The best assortment of light colored TROUSERS we have ever shown, from $3 to $7. FANCY VESTS—Marseilles and Duck. Also a lot of dark Fancy Cassimeres and Silks, from 75c. to $4.

Bigelow & Longley

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JULY 11, 1891.

No. 19

Of Wisdom, Light has ever been
A synonym with God and man,

Light ever flies in line direct,
Nor from such pathway can deflect.

If Light be Wisdom, then 'tis wise
To take the path the sunbeam flies.

—Argonaut.

Only a few days since, the fire alarm rang three times within twelve hours.

A little after 8 p.m. the north enders had a chance to see a conflagration which rarely comes to them. The head of George Street was crowded with sightseers. The flames shot up, high into the air, and beyond their tongues were spangles of light from the ignited hay.

There was every opportunity for a fire that should be notable in our city's history, but men who knew their business had it in hand and much sooner than some observers liked, it was under control and another victory was scored for our fire department. From chief to latest assistant the organization is effective and efficient. Why can't such a department be included among the features that make us a desirable city?

The passing of the "Fourth" in this city with no special observance calls to mind the need, at times, for some cause that shall make the Nation think and feel as a whole. Memorial Day, North and South, calls out a deal of sentiment and it seems to have pretty effectually displaced Independence Day.

Very few people give any thought to what the day signifies. Many even laugh at Mr. Bowen for his Woodstock celebrations; but he bids fair to be the only man to keep alive the torch. There must be more like him or the hordes of new arrivals will swamp us.

These people should be taught early and often what we are, why we are and where we are; what sacrifices have been made to secure the boons they covet. Mere cessation from work will not accomplish this. They must be taught. The schools will do their part; but we want the music, the parade, the reading and the speaking. Ere another year comes round, let us make an effort for an old-fashioned "Fourth."

The aggregate of arrests for drunkenness continues to swell and to double discount those of one year ago under no license. Police and police wagon are kept in lively motion and all for what object? Our people, young and old, are getting hardened to the sight of men, yes and women, transported through our streets, the vehicle, at times, transformed into the cell of howling maniacs. Who are pleased at all this exhibition? Is the city better off? Does this plan make wealth?

How about this matter? Our new Board of Trade! We don't expect you to go into any crusade on this subject, but suppose we were still "No license" couldn't you show better faces when you invite foreign enterprises to locate here? Suppose you say, "Our city offers an opportunity for the intelligent workman to walk her streets and not have temptation stare him in the face." Just suppose you could say that, would it make our attractions any less? Railroads will not hire drunken men. Steamboats turn away men addicted to drink. Who can depend upon a drunkard? Wouldn't we be better off without the drink as a manufacturing center?

Must we wait for the women to help us in effectually closing the dram shop? She is ready to do her best, and we ought to have her aid. While she is biding her time and waiting for the opportunity to work directly, she is by no means idle. There are W. C. T. U. members, today, receiving in their organization the education that shall specially fit them for suffrage. In fact, it is not putting it too strongly to state that the rank and file of this body are better equipped for legislation than a large share of the men who in November next will vote at the polls.

Possibly this very Union has been providentially raised up to prompt women to develop their latent talents in an executive direction. Their paper, The Union Signal, is one of the most extensively circulated prints in America; the building they are erecting in Chicago is to be one of the tallest in even that city of tall structures and some of their leaders, Miss Emma Willard is as well and as favorably known as any man in the nation. Today, in this city of ours, they are doing more than the men in practically trying to oppose intemperance. They pray, but their zeal does not stop here. They open restaurants and labor personally with the fallen. They proffer a cup of cold water, as on the Fourth, and in a hundred ways indicate their existence.

P. T. Barnum's constant advice to the individual was "Keep your name before the public in some way." Our neighboring city of Fitchburg seems to be practicing this advice fully. The securing of one of Worcester's industries was the first big boom and then a teacher sent a little boy home because he came to school barefooted. This has done more to keep the city in the public eye than anything in its history. Metropolitan, i. e. New York journals devote whole columns of editorial to the affair.

If this rule, made by the Fitchburg teacher, had been in vogue in the boyhood of most paper men, and school men, too, for that matter, it may be doubted whether many had gone to school very much. Bare feet and legs indeed! Where are all the memories of dust raising on the sandy road at noon and recess? Where, too, the recollection of wading in the brook, to and from school? In our day, the teachers rather liked the bare legged business; for it gave a much better chance at us when the switch appeared on the scene.

LIGHT remembers whole rows of boys and girls, in all the pleasure of bare feet and ankles filling up or being filled up at rural fountains and no sort of impropriety ever occurred. We were the chief sufferers for we had all the stone bruises, but as to an offence against decency, no one thought of it any more than he would at the bare condition of the chair and table legs. "Evil to him who evil thinks."

Certain correspondents write to LIGHT concerning matters which interest all of us. First as to a half day off in the hot season. To some people, employed as they are in close stores for six days in the week this subject is of vital importance. Were Worcester a pioneer in this matter, it might require more consideration before a decision; but with the examples of Boston and Springfield before us, it would seem as though the propriety of the request were already granted. No one, clerks and papers, least of all, wish proprietors' receipts to be any less. Nor will they be when once the public has learned that Friday afternoon is a breathing time for employed and employers. All need it, and all will live longer if it is granted. The sixteen hours of Saturday, leave all in very poor trim for Sunday. If it be, yet, an experiment, is it not one worth trying?

Then as to the seats on Newton Hill. The long desired spot for a Park, having been obtained, why not add to it all the attractions possible. Some people cannot throw themselves upon the grass with the ease and abandon of youth. Comfortable seats at intervals along the via ardua would tempt many pedestrians who, now, do not feel equal to the task. Let nothing be spared that will prompt people to be out of doors and thus to get health and inspiration. Give us just a little rest on the way up the hill, you gentlemen of the city government.

Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Allen will extend their western trip to Boulder, Col., where their youngest daughter, Mrs. C. H. Farnsworth, resides. They will be gone two months.

Relics.

Comrade W. R. Dean, of Post 10, has two very interesting relics of his Great Grandfather Russell who was a Son-of-Liberty in Boston and one of the famous Tea Party. Afterward as a privateersman he was captured and carried to England where he was kept a prisoner in Mill prison, at Plymouth, for three years. Later in the war of 1812, his son, having been captured was confined in the same place. The relics are a photograph from an oil painting of the veteran and a New Testament had by him in prison. It contains his writing and is admirably preserved.

HENRY A. BOWMAN &amp; CO.

MANUFACTURERS OF

AWNINGS,

TENTS,

FLAGS.

HOUSE, WAGONS,

AND ALL KINDS OF

Canvas Covers.

Tents for Sale and To Rent. Waterproof Tents by our new process guaranteed not to leak. The above cut represents our popular lawn tent, in Stock and made to order, 18 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.

Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building, Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, JULY 11, 1891.

Two Bicycles!

THIRTY-FIVE DOLLARS!

One will be given to that boy or girl who secures the most cash subscriptions for LIGHT between this date, May 30th and August 1st, 1891.

The other is for the boy who sells the largest number of papers during the same time.

Come up to the office, boys, and talk it over.

Every failure to receive LIGHT promptly should be, at once, reported at this office.

All scraps of informations concerning persons and events, thankfully received.

Friends sending in manuscripts will not complain if they are not printed at once. There are many waiting. Yet LIGHT is always glad to receive communications and, if meritorious, to print them.

Hereafter, it will be understood that all articles in LIGHT, not ascribed, save recipes, squibs, fashion and household notes were written for this paper.

As to the Index. Please observe that it occupies the middle leaves. Just raise the wires which bind it, take it out and turn the wires down again. It is now ready to be placed with your Second Volume, and to be bound.

An interesting sketch of the Handel Festival in London will appear in next week's LIGHT from the pen of a Worcester lady now in England.

Again E. H. Keith, "Tech" '94, comes to the front with some of the finest specimens of amateur work ever seen in Worcester. His latest pictures are Prof. Gladwin in his workshop, the Aletheia girls in front of the High School building and a group of H. S. Senior girls. This last would be a marked picture anywhere. The grouping is exquisite and the lighting perfect.

B. F. Robinson of F. S. Blanchard & Co. comes home refreshed from an outing among the White Mountains.

Miss Iva E. Fiske of Ashland is spending two weeks with Mrs. E. A. West at 44 Bowdoin street.

Mississippi's Sources.

Mr. John C. Crane of West Millbury is one of those who believe, unqualifiedly in Captain Glazier and his reported discovery of the true source of "The Father of Waters." In the new expedition just organized by the Captain and about to start, Mr. Crane is to go as the special correspondent of the Boston Herald. Many Worcester readers will recall the wordy war that, several years since, was waged in the columns of the Gazette on this subject, and a New York Publishing House thought the matter of sufficient importance to send out a large pamphlet, claiming that all that Captain Glazier found had already been described by Schoolcraft and others, years before. Mr. Crane's first letter in the Herald, bears date, June 27 and is written at home. Herein he sets forth the early life of the Captain, his military record, he was a member of the Harris Light Cavalry and saw much active service. Also, Mr. Crane tells us of his Chief's literary career and his many adventures in various ways since the close of the War, particularly outlining his work in getting to the head waters of the Mississippi. No better man than Mr. Crane could be found to be the correspondent for this trip, since he thoroughly believes in Captain Glazier and all his claims. However the public may regard the subject, everybody will be glad to hear from our West Millbury friend and of his progress towards Veritas Caput, i. e., Itasca.

WORCESTER, MASS.

To the Editor of Light:

DEAR SIR: Is it not a pity that some way cannot be devised for giving the public comfortable seats on the sides of Newton Hill. Seats with backs to them, too.

The ascent could then be made by "easy stages" for as every one knows, laborious and fatiguing indeed is the climbing of this eminence, and especially so to women and elderly people to whom a rest, before reaching the top, would be a great comfort and relief.

Of course the grass is always here, and most inviting for a recline when it is clean, but this is frequently wet, and since the construction of the new road-way—which should never have been built—inferably dusty; so that is not available for this purpose much of the time.

Many people, too, not aspiring to the highest pinnacle, would be quite satisfied with a minor view of the hill's attractions, by a midway rest, if they could be granted comfortable and quiet seats.

With its flowers and shade and sunshine, Elm park—thanks to the admirable good taste and never ceasing care of Commissioner Lincoln—is now at its brightest and best, and what a blessing it has now become to our people when they can pass an hour, or an afternoon so pleasantly, and win health so beneficially. Newton Hill, too, must not be overlooked or forgotten by the pedestrian in his "outing" for pleasure, with its always refreshing breezes, and extensive and picturesque prospects greeting the eye of the lover of nature on every hand. Although shade trees here are so sadly lacking, so much needed, and to the present generation can hardly be supplied, let us enjoy what we can of its beauties and attraction at the present time, and while we may, by having comfortable seats provided on its pleasant slopes for the weary toilers of our beautiful city. Please agitate this subject, Mr. Editor, I pray you, to its final consummation, and many thanks will be awarded you by a goodly majority of the people of our fine municipality, I have no manner of doubt. W. A. R.

July 6, 1891.

The Dog Killer.

This individual has begun his rounds. Sufficient warning has been given of his coming and you have only yourselves to blame if your pets are destroyed.

It pays to patronize General Agent Geo. Y. Lancaster, for Railroad and Steamship Tickets, Drafts, and Insurance. Office, 434 Main Street, Worcester.

Boston Store.

Established 1870.

Sole Agency: Centemerl Gloves, Butterick's Paper Patterns, E. C. Burt's Shoes, Foster Kid Gloves.

A fairly good 10 inch leather grip, with japanned frame and leatherette lining, for $1.37 1-2c.

That's the one for the least.

Fifty other styles and sizes.

Having the biggest assortment and invariably the lowest prices have made our traveling bag department headquarters for these goods in worcester.

CABINET BAGS

Imitation alligator, japanned frame, leatherette lined, two inside pockets.

Inch	15	16	17
Price	$3.25	$3.50	$3.75

Best grain leather, leather frame and lining pockets.

Inch	14	15	16	17
Price	$6.00	$6.25	$6.75	$7.50

CLUB BAGS

Fine grain leather satchels, leather covered frame, leather lined, brass trimmings

Inch	14	13	12	11	15	16
Price	$3.98	$3.75	$3.25	$2.98	$4.25	$4.75

Another about the same as above, except having nickel trimmings,

Inch	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
Price	$2.12 1/2	$2.35	$2.62	$2.75	$2.98	$3.12	$3.50

GLADSTONE BAGS

Inch	18	19	20
Price	$2.25	$2.98	$3.25

Gladstone bags, split leather, japanned frame, cloth lining,

Inch	20	24
Price	$2.50	$2.98

Imitation alligator bags, jap. frame and cloth lining, 13 inch, $1.50.

Grain leather bags, jap. frame, leatherette lining.

Inch	10	11	12	13	14	15
Price	$1.37 1/2	$1.50	$1.75	$1.98	$2.25	$2.50

Best grain leather covered frame heavy nickel corner braces, 18 inch $3.50 for to-day only—no other day.

For a short, quick trip a telescope bag is one of the handiest—always full and always room for more.

Inch	8	10	12	14	16	18
Price	60c	65c	69c	85c	98c	$1.10

20 inch, $1.25
22 inch, $1.35
24 inch, $1.48

Our No. 80, 30 inch is the trunk to worry the proverbial baggage-smasher. It is built as if to go through a railroad wreck. Not too heavy; price $4.98.

Down stairs.

CHURCH NOTES.

METHODIST.

Grace.—The Sunday School went down to Quinsigamond Park Monday about one hundred strong and had a grand time among the trees and on the water.

People must like to travel to go away from Worcester for enjoyment. There is not in Worcester County a better place for amusement and recreation than this Park. The young folks ran, raced, swung, rowed tetered, ate and had their pictures taken to their hearts content. If anyone was dissatisfied, he has not been heard from. The Chinamen were out in full force.

Trinity.—The Sunday School, two hundred strong went to Union Point, Webster, Friday, the 3rd and had as good a picnic season as any one could ask for. As all, from pastor to smallest child, went for enjoyment, they found it.

BAPTIST.

Pleasant street and Dewey street Sunday Schools went to Washacum Tuesday and enjoyed the day despite the weather. They had base ball racing and jumping. Nothing like a day away from the city.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Pilgrim.—About 150 representatives of the church went to Quinsigamond, Tuesday and realized some of the glories that the Lake and grounds afford. The rain rendered an early adjournment necessary, but till it came the most was made out of the opportunities.

PRESBYTERIAN.

The people of this church turned out in great numbers Wednesday to enjoy an outing at Quinsigamond Park. It is interesting to note the large number of Scotch people present and the zest with which the sports and games were conducted. All went in for fun and apparently found what they went for.

UNIVERSALIST.

Our Universalist friends of the First, All Souls and Adams Square Churches went to the lake of the unspellable name in Webster, Wednesday, and in spite of the weather and the tendencies to lock jaw on account of trying to pronounce the name of their picnic place, all found lots of enjoyment. Base Ball, ra cing of all description, with jumping filled up the day. With now and then a day off, life is worth living.

Plymouth Church. Rev. Dr. McCullagh has returned from Buffalo, N. Y., where he attended the funeral of his brother who died last week; will preach morning and evening at the usual hours. Y. P. S. C. E. at 6 p.m.

Frank N. Hair, formerly of this city, now musical instructor in Baker University, Baldwin City, Kansas, is at his mother's home in Worcester. He is a son of the late Captain Charles N. Hair.

Winslow Tennis Club Tournament, July 4, 1891.

PRELIMINARY ROUNDS.

Coburn,	1	1	1	1	0	1	1	6
Clegg,	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	1
D. White,	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	6
Titus,	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
McCullagh,	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	6
Bridges,	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Buttler,	1	0	0	1	0	0	0	2
Howland,	0	1	1	0	1	1	1	6

SEMI FINALS.

Coburn,	1	0	0	1	1	1	1	1	6
Tatman,	0	0	1	1	0	0	0	0	2
Coburn,	1	1	0	0	1	1	0	1	8
Tatman,	0	1	1	0	0	1	1	0	6
D. White,	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	6
Howland,	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
D. White,	1	1	0	0	1	1	0	0	5
Howland,	0	0	1	1	0	0	1	1	7
D. White,	0	0	1	1	1	0	0	1	8
Howland,	1	1	0	0	1	0	0	1	6
Coburn,	0	1	0	1	1	1	0	1	6
McCullagh,	1	0	1	0	0	0	1	0	3
Coburn,	0	0	0	1	1	0	1	1	7
McCullagh,	1	1	1	0	0	1	0	0	5

FINALS

Coburn,	1	1	0	1	0	0	1	0	1	0	0	8
D. White,	0	0	1	0	1	0	1	0	1	0	1	10
Coburn,	1	0	1	1	0	0	1	1	1	1	1	6
D. White,	0	1	0	0	1	1	0	0	0	3
Coburn,	0	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	6
D. White,	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	2

Arthur P. Rugg, Esq., and wife are away for ten days at Nantasket.

George A. and Edward Davis, sons of Dr. Wesley Davis are off for a two months' stay on Lake Champlain.

Miss Marion L. Dally, a High School graduate, has been re-appointed to her school in Spencer at an increase of salary. She is now away at the Institute of Instruction in Bethlehem, N. H. Miss Dally has given much attention to Kindergarten work and is meeting deserved success in her work.

That ever vigilant finder of the rarest and most beautiful flowers, Arba Pierce, brings in to LIGHT office a breath from the country in the shape of the most beautiful orchids. Many, many thanks!

Mr. Eugene A. O'Connor has made an excellent portrait in crayon of President O'Kane of Holy Cross College. He also receives an order to make similar portraits of the thirteen predecessors in the office. This is an appreciative tribute to genius and hard work.

Books and Bookmen.

"Dr. Levis, the latest owner of Cedarcroft, Bayard Taylor's old home, has just died and the place is again to be sold." Dear, dear! How slow some folks are! Dr. Levis died last Fall, a most estimable man, yet some of the papers have just heard of it. He was a professor in the University of Pennsylvania and at Cedarcroft was a most entertaining host. LIGHT well remembers the Doctor as he stood under Bayard Taylor's favorite cedar and allowed a camera to "take him." Then from Taylor's old study to the very attic, he showed the whole building, and what a house of buried hopes it is. Great expectations were in Taylor's mind when he built, but he never furnished Cedarcroft. The income from his German Mission was to do that. Death came instead. That glorious study was his while he translated Faust; but the place was never the home he had reckoned upon. It is to be hoped that some one will succeed Dr. Levis who, like him, will appreciate Bayard Taylor and his memories. The very air at Kennett Square is full of this greatest of American travellers.

Outing for July, Outing Co., publishers, New York.

Contents: Beyond the Metropolis of the Mountains, Ernest Ingersoll, illustrated from photos.; The Lady in Rouge, W. E. P. French, illustrated by Watson; Boating Life on the Upper Thames, F. Campbell Moller, M. D., illustrated by Mullert and from photos.; A Chapter in Lacrosse, Lionel Moses, Jr., illustrated; Scientific Tennis Strokes, Part II., J. Parmly Paret, with diagrams; With Rod and Line Through Ireland, T. Murphy; Fishing Along the Pecos, New Mexico, Jno. Carnifex, illustrated by J. Carter Beard; Photographing Foliage, Ellerslie Wallace, illustrated from photos.; The Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, Part II., Capt. Dan'l Morgan Taylor, illustrated by Huger and from photos.; Harry's Career at Yale, (Continued), John Seymour Wood, illustrated by Watson; Hurdling, Malcolm W. Ford, illustrated by Watson and from instantaneous photos.; American Polo, Lawrence Timpson, illustrated by H. R. Poore; The Detroit Wheelmen, P. N. Jacobson, illustrated from photos.; A Sketch of American Cycling and its Founder, Chas. D. Pratt, illustrated; Outing Monthly Record, with contributions from Capt. Kenealy, Chase Mellen, Malcolm Ford, Ed. Sandys, "The Prowler," Ellerslie Wallace, Lionel Moses, Jr., C. B. Vaux, Lawrence Timpson, Jas. Watson and others.

Cosmopolitan for July, Cosmopolitan Publishing Co., New York.

Contents: Frontispiece, A Hawking Party; London Charities, Elizabeth Bisland; A Modern Crusade, C. C. Waddle; Trout Fishing in the Laurentides, Kit Clarke; The Diamond Fields of South Africa, E. J. Lawler; Two Modern Knights Errant, Cushing and Custer, James Grant Wilson; Submarine Boats for Coast Defense, W. S. Hughes; At the Dam of San Marko, Alva Milton Kerr; The Art of Embroidery, Alida G. Radcliffe; Ostrich Farming in California, Emma G. Paul; Country Life in Honduras, Gertrude G. De Aguirre; The Elixir of Pain, Part III., H. H. Boyeson; Falcons and Falconry, T. S. Blackwell; Review of Current Events by Murat Halstead; Social Problems, Edward Everett Hale; Concerning Three American Novels, Brander Matthews; poems, Texas, D. D. Ringeling; A Dream at Paphos, D. Osborne; A Friend; W. B. Allen.

The publishers announce in this number that after March 15, 1892, the subscription price of the magazine will be $3. But to those who are now subscribers or become subscribers before next March, the magazine will be continued at the old price $2.40.

Messrs. Henry Holt & Co.'s first English book under the new copyright law will be a Romance of the Moors, by Mrs. Mona Caird, author of the Wing of Azrael. The scene is laid in Yorkshire; it will appear in the Leisure Hour and Leisure Moment Series.

St. Nicholas for July. Contents: Frontispiece, "Rescued by the enemy," drawn by R. B. Birch; Rescued by the Enemy, illustrated by the frontispiece and other drawings by R. B. Birch; Sabria Avery; Early News, verse, Anna M. Pratt; Storm Bound Among the Clouds, illustrated by C. T. Hill from photographs, Frederick Funston: A Suggestion, verse, Hattie Lummis; The Fortunes of Toby Trafford, Chapters XXXIV, XXXV, XXXVI, XXXVII, illustrated by H. Sandham, J. T. Trowbridge; Picture, "Young Pan," drawn by R. B. Birch; A Bachelor of Maine, verse, illustrated by R. B. Birch, Ellen Douglas Deland; The Spelling Match, verse, Alice Maude Ewell; The Tongaloo Tournament, illustrated by E. B. Bensell, Tudor Jenks; Jingle, "Tick-Tock goes the Clock," engrossed and illustrated by W. H. Drake, Cornelia Redmond; Douglas Jerrold, illustrated by a portrait from a photograph, Walter Jerrold; Chan Ok, Chapters, VI, VII, illustrated by the author, J. O. Davidson; A Song of Folly, verse, illustrated by the author, Mildred Howells; Picture, "A Cup of Tea for Grand-mama," engraved from a painting by Warren K. Davis; Through the Back Ages, concluded, Teresa C. Crofton; Picture, "Going to Post her Letter," drawn by A. Brennan; The Swimming-Hole Stories, III, An Acrobatic Failure, IV, A Boy Revolution, headpiece drawn by W. H. Drake, Walter Storrs Biegelow; The Home of the Empress Josephine, illustrated by A. Brennan, H. Fenn, and H. D. Nichols, from photographs, Mary Shears Roberts; How Dan was Surprised, verse, Alice P. Carter; In the Clover, verse, illustrated by H. Fenn, Maurice Thompson; Letty Penn's Visit, illustrated by R. B. Birch, Lillian L. Price; Picture, "Music Hath Charms," drawn by John Richards; Summer Wind, verse, R. K. Munkittrick; An Open Secret, verse, illustrated by Laura C. Hills, Anna M. Pratt; Penciled Jokes, illustrated, Benjamin Webster; The Unfortunate Giraffe, verse, illustrated by the author, Oliver Herford; The Story of Ab, Louise Livingston Bradford; "Hello, Messmate!" verse, illustrated by the author, H. A. Ogden; Jack-in-the-Pulpit, Introduction, Answers to "What is This?" and "Do Animals Think?" Which Is It? Those Two Long Words; The Letter-Box; The Riddle-Box, illustrated.

The Detroit Museum of Art Historical Report, May 1891.

This is a very valuable setting forth of the efforts to establish and maintain a collection of high class art in the metropolis of Michigan. The names of contributors to the $100,000 fund are given in full. At this time, when Worcester is so much interested in furthering art and in building an edifice for a collection this pamphlet is good reading.

The Inland Printer, June, 1891, Chicago, Ill., $2 a year.

Invaluable for the printer in any and every department. Suggestions are always timely, and the illustrations are superb. "Reciprocity vs. Hogocity" is one of the keenest thrusts at so called fair dealing that has ever been printed. The East can learn from the West.

The Artist Printer, May, 1891, A. C. Cameron & Co., Chicago and St. Louis.

This is another indication of what the marvellous West can do. From first to last it is replete with fact and lessons. It has also, valuable matter in Volapük. A Southern home is so true that one can almost see the planter proprietor spitting tobacco juice all over his premises. There is no other country in the world like the South and its peculiarities cannot be photographed and engraved too soon, for Northern enterprise and change will make them disappear.

D. C. Heath & Co., Boston, have just published Stifter's Das Haidedorf, edited with introduction and notes by Otto Heller, instructor in Brown's School, Philadelphia. This little prose-idyl is one of Stifter's "Studien." The language is simple and modern, and the work truly artistic.

D. C. Heath & Co., Boston, will issue shortly an edition of Corneille's Polyeucte, with introduction and notes by Prof. Alcée Fortier of Tulane University, New Orleans. This is the first edition of the drama to appear, and no doubt it will be much more largely read, now that an edition is available. It is an important addition to the Modern Language Series.

D. C. Heath & Co., Boston, will issue, this month, Goethe's Hermann and Dorothea, edited with introduction, commentary, and bibliography by Prof. H. T. Hewitt of Cornell University. The editor has sought to lead from the study of this poem to a larger knowledge of the author, and to interpret the poem from the poet himself. The sources of the poem, the author's language and the language of the time have been carefully studied. The edition will guide to an intelligent knowledge of the poem and afford material for a critical study of the language.

WORCESTER, MASS., July 4, 1891.

Editor Light:

DEAR SIR: I am pleased to learn that your correspondent, W. R. Matthews of Barre, has an illustrated copy of Aesop's Fables printed in 1540. It is a rare book and of considerable value, but its age is not remarkable. I have twenty-one books older than this, fourteen of which were printed previous to 1500. My oldest book was printed by Peter Schoeffer in 1467, has the original binding and in good condition. CLARK JILLSON.

A smaller page, clearer and more readable type, an artistic cover without advertising matter, a large increase in the number of pages, ampler and better illustrations, greater attention throughout to distinctively beautiful typography, these are the characteristics most prominent in The Christian Union of July 4, which begins the forty-fourth volume, and marks a striking new departure in the history of that popular and successful family paper. This issue contains sixty-eight pages, a large number of admirable illustrations, including a superb portrait of Phillips Brooks, and its literary contents are such as make it of the greatest value in every intelligent home.

Vick's Illustrated Magazine with its notes on flowers and how to grow them, is full of suggestions to all who like to have a bit of color or foliage about their homes. This number has a colored frontispiece.

Babyland, D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

The pictures are especially nice this month, and dogs, and cats, and baby faces look out from its pages. We are sure baby enjoys the stories better when so fully pictured out.

Table Talk published by Table Talk Publishing Co., Philadelphia, Penn.

The worried housekeepers of this country must find a deal of comfort in perusing the pages of this magazine, for any and every question is herein answered so clearly by its editor, Mrs. Rorer. She gives each month a menu for each day in that month and surely no one need ask "What shall I get to eat" when this book lies on the table. The price only one dollar brings it within reach of every one, and we think it worth the money paid.

The July Wide Awake is a good number for hammock and veranda reading for old and young, as some of the tempting titles show: A Dreamland Lantern, The Rogue's Path, The Anti-Boy Picnic, Ye Boston Grasshopper, The Wrong Muscles, Amy Robsart's Embroidery at Leicester Hospital, How Teddy Morris made the Weather, My Sea Daisies (natural history article), Pussy in Private Life, Five Little Peppers Grown Up, The Chimney Swallow (anecdotal natural history paper), Miss Matilda Archambeau Van Dorn, Marietta's Good Times, How One Mother is being Brought Up, A Midnight Ride, Grim the Corn Thief, "Guess God won't be angry wis wees." Wide Awake is $2.40 a year; 20 cents a number. A specimen (back number) will be sent on receipt of 5 cents. D. Lothrop Company, publishers, Boston.

Dedham Historical Record, Vol. II, No. 3, July, 1891. $1 a year. Published by the Dedham Historical Society.

The visits of this admirably conducted quarterly are not frequent enough to become unwelcome. On the contrary, its coming is anxiously expected. It always contains some items of interest to those whose antecedents go back to Dedham, and there are so many whose lineage lays hold on the ancient town that its readers ought to be numerous. The frontispiece is a fine heliotype of the old Colburn home in West Dedham. For nearly two hundred years this has been in possession of the Colburn family. A brief genealogical sketch accompanies. Harriet T. Boyd contributes an article on Vine Rock Bridge; Carlos Slafter continues his "Schools and Teachers of Dedham" and Frederick L. Gay gives interesting items about the Lusher Tomb. Then follow "Clerks of the First Parish in Dedham," George K. Clarke; "Extracts from the Ames Diary," Sarah Buck Baker; "Dover Records," Charles Hunt Smith; "Dedham in the Rebellion" by Joseph Henry Lathrop is continued; as is the Records of Franklin births by Henry Ellis Ruggles; "Needham Epitaphs" by Charles Curtis Greenwood has another installment. There is an entertaining chapter on Dover, the Fourth Parish of Dedham in the Revolution. A sketch of Mrs. Matilda (Whiting) Vose who died in February at the great age of one hundred and two years, closes the number aside from interesting notes.

It is impossible to over estimate the value of the work done by this society.

The July New England Magazine, Boston. $3 a year.

The table of contents was given last week. Perhaps no better notion of the scope of this excellent publication can be had than by quoting from the magazine, itself, the following:

"The New England Magazine occupies a unique place in the field of magazine literature, touching as it does the traditions of the past and the progress of today in a New England bounded only by the Atlantic and Pacific. It is also the aim of the editors and publishers to keep pace with the increasing cosmopolitanism of the age, and make the New England a welcome visitor in every home in the United States and Canada. With this aim there will be published in every number, articles of general interest dealing with the art, literature, music, politics, and philosophy of this continent. Articles of timely interest upon science, sociology, and economics, by specialists who have made a life study of these particular branches of inquiry, will appear from time to time. The endeavor of the editorial management is to keep vitally in sympathy with the times, and make the magazine the exponent of all that is best and progressive in the thought of the country."

This idea of the extent of New England is a good one. How will some of our extreme Southern friends, some of our F. F. V.'s regard it? Can they catch the Plymouth Rock notion. Each reader must select for himself that which pleases him most. Of the illustrated descriptive pieces we are most pleased with Nelson Dingley, Jr.'s, "State of Maine," and "The Natural Bridge of Virginia." Neither subject is stilted and the latter, especially, is almost as good as a visit. The pictures are true to their subjects. "A Brief for Continental Unity" foretells the eventual union of Canada with the United States and Mr. Harte makes a very reasonable showing. The Battle at High Bridge is a graphic picture of the scene wherein Colonel Francis Washburn, a brother of our Hon. John D., lost his life. Many will read with strongest zest the words about "Emerson's Verses on Reform." Would that we could practice them. The editorial pages are devoted, chiefly, to discussing the abandoned farms of Massachusetts. Every word in the magazine is entertaining and profitable.

The Journal of American Folk Lore, Vol. IV, No. XIII. Wm. Wells Newell, editor. High on, Milflin & Co., Boston. $4 a year.

This is a quarterly publication and is devoted to recording and preserving the tales and myths that obtain among all people. An interest in the subject is necessary to an appreciation of the work being accomplished by this Journal. In this the April-June number, we have the Natural History of Folk Lore, The Indian Messiah, Nat Worship Among the Burmese, Folk Lore from Buffalo Village, Central Pennsylvania, A Suggestion as to the Meaning of the Moki Suah Dance, Oregon Folk Lore, Popular Names of American Plants, etc., etc. To the lover of odds and ends of living and studying, the Journal has a deep fascination.

The Century for July. Contents. Portrait of Horace Greeley, (See "Greeley's Estimate of Lincoln.") Frontispiece A Day at La-guerre's, F. Hopkinson Smith, Pictures by the author; Provençal Bull-Fights, Joseph Pennell, Pictures by the author; Restraint, Margaret Crosby; Mr. Cutting, the Night Editor, Ervin Wardman; Italian Old Masters, Fra Bartolommeo and Albertirelli, W. J. Stillman, with engravings by T. Cole; Chatterton in Holborn, Ernest Rhys; General Miles's Indian Campaigns, Pictures by Frederick Remington, Major G. W. Baird.; July, Henry Tyrrell; Greeley's Estimate of Lincoln, an unpublished address by Horace Greeley, with frontispiece portrait by the author; The Squirrel Inn, 111. Frank R. Stockton, pictures by A. B. Frost; Love Letters, C. P. Cranch; The Faith Doctor, VI, Edward Eggleston; Across the Plains in the Donner Party (1846), Virginia Reed Murphy, Pictures by W. Taber, Frederic Remington, H. Fenn, Gilbert Gaul, A. P. Hill, Chas. Nahl; Arrival of Overland Trains in California in '49, A. C. Ferris; A Fourth Survivor of the Gold Discovery Party; At the Harbor's Mouth, Walter Learned; The Force of Example, Viola Roseboro', pictures by E. W. Kemble; For Helen, Grace H. Duffield; A Lunar Landscape, Edward S. Holden, pictures from negatives taken at Lick Observatory; The Drummer, Henry Ames Blood, pictures by Gilbert Gaul; Tao; the Way. An Artist's Letters from Japan, John La Farge; Paris. The Typical Modern City, Albert Shaw. Topic of the Time: A Nation for a Mortgage; The New York of the Future; "Journalists and Newsmongers" Again. Open Letters; Conscience in Journalism, Eugene M. Camp; The Disputed Boundary between Alaska and British Columbia (with map), Eliza Ruhamah Scidmore; Similar Musical Phrases in Great Composers, Richard Hoffman; Talleyrand; An Incident of General Miles's Indian Campaigns. Bric-A-Brac: A Ballad of Paper Fans, Annie Steger Winston; Spanish Songs, Jennie E. T. Dowe; Ye Guilleusse Barde, Tudor Jenks; Terry McHaydn's Wooing, Daniel Spillane; Cupid Rearmed, John Jerome Rooney; "Not Suited to the Purpose," Margaret Vandegrift.

Did the Century contain only the description of the Journey across the Plains of the Donner Party in 1846 it would be one of the most thrilling of all the Summer monthlies. But aside from this, we have a fine portrait of Horace Greeley, with his sketch of Abraham Lincoln. General Miles and his Indian Fighting is profusely illustrated and holds the attention unflinchingly. There are brief items on the arrival of overland parties in California. The continued stories of Stockton and Eggleston will please their many readers while "Provincial Bull Fights" shows us that there is a less brutal side to this amusement than that which has so long delighted the Spanish hearts. "Mr. Cutting, the Night Editor," is the most exciting bit of the short story order that any magazine has had for many a month. Very sad, it might have had a brighter ending. Paris, the Typical Modern City is instructive. Among open letters, the Disputed Boundary between Alaska and British Columbia is the most noteworthy. If Canada would hurry up and be annexed, we might be spared any prolonged dispute about that, the seal killing, cod fishing et id omne genus. Hasten the day.

Mr. A. B. Wood is to make a yachting tour of the Great Lakes, starting from Oswego.

Wm. H. Duncan, late foreman in the Institute Shops, Atlanta, Georgia, has returned with his family to Worcester.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29, 1891.

The dulness of the summer season is just beginning to make itself felt. The attractions of "down the river" can not compensate for the enervating heat or the dreary emptiness of the city. All the people worth knowing or seeing have either gone or are going away but the colored brethren and sisters are in their glory. The colors of the rainbow are faint in comparison with the radiant hues of their summer attire. I am not a connoisseur in the proper adjustment of colors to complexion but even my untutored, masculine eye can see the incongruity between a purple or green dress and a skin like a midnight sky. But when they don muslin dresses, ah! then the effect is strange and wonderful indeed. It is a pleasant sight, and a cool one withal to see the rosy flesh of a rounded arm or white shoulders gleaming through the shimmering meshes of a muslin dress, but when one is confronted by an effect resembling frosting on black wedding cake there seems to be something uncanny about it.

The Chautauqua encampment at Glen Echo is in full blast. "Full blast" is used advisedly, as the grounds possess an immense organ which aided by a chorus of five hundred voices, produces an unlimited quantity of sound. For a first season the society have reason to be proud of the success they have achieved. The sessions would be better attended by the people of Washington if the facilities for reaching the grounds were improved. It is not conducive to good nature to be obliged to change four times in a distance of six miles. Add to the discomfort of continually changing cars the possibility of a break-down in the electric system—which has happened several times this season, and a walk of several miles to the city street-cars and the reason for the small attendance from the city is readily seen.

A popular evening resort is now the drill ground of Fort Meyer. For the first time since the war the post is garrisoned by colored troops. Troop K, of the Ninth Cavalry, one of the troops at the fort, is the same which made the memorable march of 108 miles in the Sioux campaign last winter, and they have been stationed here as a reward for their good service. They are all perfectly black, no lighter shades are visible and are a fine, soldierly looking body of men. Their first sergeant is a sight to be seen once and never forgotten afterwards.

Troop A, of the First Cavalry, the other at the fort, are white men and are also stationed here for good service on the plains. The cavalry drill is really worth going a long way to see. The way these troopers ride is a revelation to eastern eyes. The evening drill usually ends with a charge at full gallop over the plain toward the spectators and how glad you do feel that there is a strong barbed wire fence between you and those thundering hoofs.

Uncle Sam is building additional quarters and stables at the fort and the intention is to station six cavalry troops here. Four hundred troopers will make quite a display.

The latest fad in Washington is the carrying of parasols by young men. An umbrella is effeminate enough, though one may excuse the carrying of one by an old or sickly man, but when a stalwart young man goes past you with a dainty sun shade held at just the right poise to shield his delicate complexion from the sun you feel a yearning desire to kick something.

WINFIELD.

Hail and Farewell.

George W. Farr who died at his residence in Brooklyn N. Y. June 27th was well known to many in this, his former home where his earlier years were passed. His father was Wm. T. Farr who was a Sergeant in Co. D. 51st, Regiment M. V. M. and was a well known business man. George was a druggist by profession, and learned his business of Wm. Bush.

When President Lincoln issued his first call for three year troops and Col. Ward began to recruit for the 15th, Mass. Infantry he enlisted in Co. D. He served with this gallant command till the end of the war except that for ten months he was a prisoner of war in Andersonville. When mustered out he at once returned to active business where he always discharged his duty in the same faithful manner as he did those of a soldier. For many years past he has been one of the most trust-worthy men in the house of Lanman & Kemp of New York and at his funeral a testimonial—signed by the firm and all the employees—praising his many virtues and deploring his loss was read. He was an enthusiastic Grand Army comrade and at his decease was the Adjutant of Erastus T. Tefft Post No. 355 Department of N. Y. He was also the Secretary of the New York Association of ex-prisoners of war. He was kind, genial, loving and honest in life and at his death his comrades honored his memory by all means in their power. For several days before his final muster-out he was attended by two or more of his comrades who ministered with loving hands to his wants while he lived and after he died gave him a burial service suitable to a soldier. The whole exercises were conducted by Post 355 and in accordance with the G. A. R. Ritual.

The post chaplain conduct the devotional exercises and Commander Stanley made an eloquent and touching address.

The casket was draped with a silken flag and upon this was crossed his sword and scabbard and below them was his uniform hat and on his breast his badges as though ready for parade. The floral designs were elegant and appropriate. Among them was a beautiful cluster of white lilies and ferns; a pillow with the word "Comrade" in purple immortelles; a magnificent wreath of ivy leaves, and other flowers. His Post gave a design of great beauty. It was a wheel as of a cannon—four feet across the broad rim being wholly of rose-buds, lilies of the valley and maiden hair ferns. The spokes were of smilax and the hub of rose-buds. This was supported—slightly inclined by a column springing from a bank of roses, the whole standing more than shoulder high. After the evergreen, rose, and laurel, symbols of undying love and purity and victory had been laid on the coffin by comrades, the Post Commander standing by the side of the casket gave a military salute, and said, "Hail Adjutant!" then placing his hand upon his heart and bowing continued, "and farewell!" and the post responded, "Amen!" The solemn ceremony was ended and the fifty comrades present passed out and formed two lines with open ranks and facing inward with uncovered and bowed heads stood silently while other comrades tenderly bore their dead between the living lines. On reaching Greenwood the casket was again carried through the mournful ranks and the body laid in the tomb. The last sad rites were done. No more could he stand among them, but the remembrance of the sterling worth and prominent virtues of the dear comrade for whom taps had sounded for the last time will never be lost to them while life remains.

VOLAPÜK.

Studels.	Students.
Demü jäf votik no ekanob plepadön laltugis plo LIGHT du vigis tel latikiün.	On account of other business I have not been able to prepare articles for the last two weeks' LIGHT.
Avigo givob oles pükedis rabänik nemölik kel ba onitedoms.	This week I give you a few Arabic sayings which may be of interest.
Zulags nuna volapükik papepadoms. Uts kels desidoms getön depenädi oledoms nemis okas.	The circulars of Volapük news are in preparation. Those who desire to receive a copy will please send me their names.
F. L. HUTCHINS. If fät kömom, kaut binom vanlik.	F. L. HUTCHINS. Caution is vain if fate comes.
Mem deila smufetom lani.	Memory of death perfects the soul.
Letälen leigom glafe e plak gleinastone.	Talent is like a scythe and practice the grindstone.
Pösod nen kuliv süimom kope nen lan.	A person without culture is like a body without a soul.
Bläföf dinis me plak mödom sevü, nekauto knödöl mödom pölubi.	Proving things by practice increases wisdom, unsuspecting belief increases error.
No boböjutölöd köloti lelik. (o. b. no feitölöt eki binöl stenüdikum kaol.)	Shoot not your arrow against an iron statue. (that is do not fight one stronger than thou thyself.)
Labom spuni okik in skal alima (sagon atosi döman jäföf tuvemo dinädäs votikanas.)	He has his spoon in everybody's pot. (They say this of a man busy-ing himself too much with the affairs of others.)
Blamöl nobälükis bapom oki it.	Censuring nobility of character lowers the censurer.
No siadolöd oli in plad kö ek konom biidon ole. Suistanolöz.	Do not place yourself in a position where some one may possibly command you. Stand up by yourself.

Misses Anna and Louisa Throop are the guests of Miss Georgie McClure at Magnolia.

Thomas Alonzo Clark.

Mr. Clark says he is the oldest merchant, actually in business, in the city, and, probably no one will dispute him. For nearly fifty years he has watched the ebb and flow of trade in our midst, but he is not Worcester born, being rather a spark thrown off from the Hub. In other words, he is a native of Boston somewhere near Federal Street where he was born Feb. 15, 1810. It will, thus, be seen, that he has weathered many a winter, though he feels equal to many exactions yet. Our Mr. Clark is, at least, the third Thomas in direct descent. The family is an old one, long identified with that portion of Watertown which subsequently became Belmont. His father, Thomas Clark, was a merchant in Boston, but failing in business, he went to Pernambuco, South America in 1816 and there edited a paper and engaged in commercial business besides. As his son says, "He sent home hides to educate me." There's many a boy who has been well hid on his way up the Hill of Science; but perhaps hardly this way. The Senior Clark is supposed to have been murdered in 1837 by certain Portugese on account of the valuables that he had in his possession. Thomas A. Clark's mother was Sarah Tyler, of an excellent Boston family, connected with that of John Hancock. Mr. Clark says he well remembers the old Hancock House, where he was accorded the privileges of a relative in his boyhood. Mrs. Clark married a second time, her husband being G. Van Husen Forbes, a Methodist minister, and they went to Natchez, Miss., where she, subsequently died. Mr. Clark did not see her for the last forty years of her life. Besides Thomas A. there were a brother, Charles F., and two sisters, all of whom are dead, the brother dying in Natchez before the War. After his father's departure, the young Clark went to live with his grandfather, Thomas, in what is now Belmont. That the family is given to longevity is evident in that he has an aunt still living, though only two years older than himself. Aside from the instruction imparted in the public schools, he received some from Master Jackson's school in Newton and also from the Old Bridgewater Academy.

When nineteen years old, he entered the dry goods store of Nichols & Leeds on Salem street, Boston, where he remained five years. In these days, he joined the Winslow Blues and soldiered as a militiaman for two years. The company was disbanded because of insubordination in marching off the field, when a company of foreign born militia drew up in front of them. Then he joined an artillery company and once rode as Adjutant. For a time, he lived with Nathaniel C. Clapp in Walpole and there knew that Frank Bird, so long a man better known than the town itself, also Eleazur Smith of Medfield, the inventor of the machine for sticking wires into card clothing.

Then the western fever struck him and he went to Chicago, where he located on Main Street and, had he stuck, would today be immensely wealthy. This was in 1835 and there were only 5,000 people in the city. But his wife did not like the West and he sold out, though he rode all over the country on a pony.

For the next four years he was in the mercantile business with his brother-in-law, in Palmer, occasionally visiting Worcester; but he did not come here finally, till 1844 when he took up a position on Main street with Orin Rawson.

Later, in company with Deacon Estes H. Sanford, his brother-in-law, he engaged in haberdashery goods trade, opposite the Lincoln House block. They were, also, for a time, in Flagg's Block. His next venture was with Mr. John Firth in the crockery business. This was a long established trade, and Mr. Firth had long been known as a prominent man of affairs. They were in Flagg's block; but Mr. F. survived the beginning of this partnership only two years and to him succeeded Mr. Stephen Sawyer who came to Worcester from Berlin. The business was next moved to the, then, new Taylor block where it has steadily grown, till it has become one of the largest in the city, occupying the whole of the first floor. Some years since, the business was re-organized and it became the Clark-Sawyer Company, with Mr. Clark as President, Mr. Sawyer, Treasurer, Mr. George Richardson Vice President and Mr. Charles A. Fletcher Secretary. Outside of Boston, no other Massachusetts house, carries so large a stock of goods in their line. Crockery in every conceivable shape adorns their shelves and tables; household implements and utensils of all descriptions are found also, and in the way of wall paper no other Worcester House save one approaches them. They import very largely directly from Europe and Mr. Fletcher has only just returned from an extended trip, looking up novelties and beauties in their line. An inspection of their wares is the next thing to an extended visit to a museum, especially in the way of porcelain, and earthen ware.

Mr. Clark was married in 1836 to Miss Susan Tracy Sanford of Belchertown an aunt of Messrs. Geo. L. and Charles E. Sanford of this city. Her grandfather, Dr. Howe was a soldier in the Revolution and three uncles were judges, viz., William Howe, living in Derby, Vt.; Estes Howe, Albany, N. Y., and Samuel Howe, Northampton, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Clark have only two children, twins, Susan and Nancy. The latter married William Piper of Worcester, while Susan became the wife of John H. Gamwell of Palmer. At present she lives with her parents on account of her mother's feeble health.

For more than twenty-five years Mr. Clark has lived on the corner of Harvard and State Street, having bought of Horace Sheldon. All his surroundings have an air of comfort. In early life, Mr. C. was a Unitarian but later he accepted the Universalist faith and as a worshiper at the Pleasant Street House, he is a fervent admirer of Dr. Gunnison. All his life, he has been a lover of music. He early played the fife, drum and French horn and, to this day, does his musical part by way of singing when the hymn is announced. He is a Republican in politics and always attends the caucuses. He is a Mason, having taken the Knight Templar degrees and on the recent St. John's day, paraded with his younger brothers, asking no favors on account of years.

Mr. Clark appreciates the fact that between today and 1810 many years have elapsed, but he is not of those who wish to rest simply because their hair has whitened or the almanac says they are old. He is cheerful and no one gives a customer a heartier greeting than this gentleman after his more than sixty years of mercantile business.

THE OLD FLAG.

How the Stars for the New States Will Be Arranged.

In accordance with an order issued by the War Department the field or union of the national flag in use in the army will, on and after July 4, 1891, consist of forty-four stars in six rows, the upper and lower rows to have eight stars and the second, third, fourth and fifth rows seven stars each, in a blue field.

Instead of the present familiar form the stars in the national flag will, on and after the 4th of next July, be arranged in the following order:

There is no reason why the public should not know the above hereafter, but not one in fifty will. Some youngster will lay it away; but the majority will care no more about it than they do for the depth of the last rain fall. The public too might remember that to the national flag no stars are added save on the Fourth of July.

Hannibal Hamlin.

The last of the Saxons! The country mourns the death of Hamlin as the taking away of almost the last War made notables. LIGHT first heard of Hannibal Hamlin through some senatorial pictures in Gleason's "Line of Battle Ship" an illustrated paper printed in Boston before the War. Along with his was that of Jesse D. Bright who was expelled from the Senate, at the outbreak, on account of treason. So when Lincoln was nominated in 1860, boy like, I remarked to myself, "I know how Hannibal Hamlin looks." And too, I noted that in Abraham Lincoln's name we had that of his Vice President also, for the "ham" of the first name with the "Lin" of the second made up the name of the man from Maine. Mr. Hamlin never effected much style in anything but he made a very effective officer in every way. When Early beset Washington in 1864, the Vice President, went out and served in the ranks and so gained a chance to be a G. A. R. man. Old-fashioned and straight-forward, he was a "Grand Old Man." The Fourth of July was a good day to be mustered out in and his name will go down with those of Adams and Jefferson as those of national executive officers dying on the Nation's birthday.

The Lemon-Trick.

"Some men are born villains, some men achieve villainy, others have villainy thrust upon them. I belong to the last category."

He didn't seem the least like a villain. He was stout; villains are supposed to have a lean and hungry look. And at that moment Bobby, his youngest little boy, presented him with a sticky pear-drop, which he ate. Who ever heard of a villain eating pear-drops? We were next door neighbors; we were both fond of gardening, and there was a good deal of innocent rivalry between us. He was something in the city; so was I; we always went to town by the same train, generally in the same carriage, and we were both first-class season-ticket holders—that in itself was a guaranty of respectability. Still, he said he was a villain.

"Good gracious!" I thought; "I hope he isn't going to confide in me."

"Yes," he said; "I obtained my wife by a piece of designing villainy. I should like to tell you about it."

I was sitting in this villain's garden, on this villain's garden-seat, smoking one of this villain's cigars (which wasn't at all villainous), and Bobby, aged three, had retired. We were alone, and I was in for it. I crossed my arms upon my chest, as I have seen peasons do in my position upon the stage.

"Go on," I said in a melancholy smile; "your story interests me much."

"You are probably not aware that my wife, Carlotta, is the daughter of an eminent flautist."

"I beg your pardon?" I said.

"Flautist," he repeated—"flute-player, you know." The fellow didn't look a bit ashamed at the fact of the mother of his children being the daughter of a professional musician. Now my wife's father was an indigo broker, and there is something very gentlemanly about indigo.

"Yes," he continued, "my father-in-law was the celebrated Tremolo. You've heard of Tremolo—everybody's heard of Tremolo. Tremolo, sir," he added, proudly, "was with-out a rival until Triller came upon the scene, and he killed Triller in three years. My father-in-law, sir, measured fifty-two inches around the chest; he caused special music to be written for him which that puny wretch Triller attempted to render. You have heard the fable of the frog and the bull. Triller was just the frog, and he burst, and my father-in-law, the great Tremolo, went to his funeral. I met my present wife at a little dance in the suburbs. I fell violently in love with her, and I wasn't a bit awed when I was told that she was the daughter of Tremolo, the flautist. I've got a decent business, I said. I was earning six-hundred pounds a year at that time, my dear fellow, and I have saved a little money. Why on earth shouldn't I marry Tremolo's daughter? I didn't know that I was a Philistine you see? Signor Tremolo divided the world into two classes—professional people and Philistines. Now the lady at whose house I met my Carlotta, though she knew Miss Tremolo well enough to ask her to her little dance, was either unwilling or unable to give me a formal introduction to the young lady's papa; but I was not to be balked. 'I'll take lessons,' I said to myself, and got to know him that way.' So I bought a flute, and I knocked boldly at Signor Tremolo's door and demanded an audience. He was awfully civil, and he was greatly astonished when I told him that I wanted to have some lessons.

"I shall be delighted, young gentleman," he said; "how many years have you been working at the instrument?"

"To tell the truth, Signor Tremolo," I answered, airily, "learning the flute is just a little whim of mine. I only tried once and when I couldn't get it to make a noise."

"Never in my life had I seen a man get into such an awful rage all at once. Signor Tremolo sprang to his feet and turned purple. 'Wretch, brute, animal, Philistine, dog, beast, toad-pig!' he shrieked, and then he clutched at his collar as though he was going to have a fit. 'And you came to me—to me, Tremolo!—to teach you the rudiments! Get out of my place, you insolent rascal!'"

"I thought it best to make a clean breast of the whole matter at once. 'Signor Tremolo,' I said, 'I beg that you will excuse me. I love your daughter to distraction; the lessons that I asked you to give me were a mere pretext.' But that only made him worse.

"Philistine!" he cried in an awful voice, as, he flung the door wide open; 'go!' He wouldn't even give me time to tell him about my six hundred a year.

"For three months I was perfectly miserable; I had no opportunity of meeting Carlotta Tremolo, and how on earth was I to get over her father's insuperable objection? How was I to cease to be a Philistine? It is difficult to become a professional after you are eight-and-twenty; and I could not very well black my face and turn negro minstrel

"I am rather fond of dry reading; I like a book which is, so to say, caviare to the general. I was reading 'Wugsby's Physiology, one day—the section on mental impressions. This was what I read: 'The mere mention of a favorite article of food will make the mouth twitch involuntarily. This peculiar phenomenon is often observed in an exaggerated degree at the sight of a very acid fruit—as the lemon. These obscure phenomena,' and etc. The idea—the fiendish idea—came to me in an instant; I became a designing villain in the twinkling of an eye. 'I will become an evil genius to Signor Tremolo,' I thought; 'I will become to him as the Old Man of the Sea. No more shall he delight the public. When I see his name billed for a concert in the usual manner:

THE FLUTE OBLIGATO, BY SIGNOR TREMLO,

I will be there with my lemon, and I will produce obscure phenomena.' I had not long to wait.

"ST. JAMES'S HALL.—SELECTIONS FROM 'IL FLAUTO MAGIOCA.' SOLO ON THE FLUTE, SIGNOR TREMLO.

"I paid twenty-one shillings for a front row seat. I took care that my victim should perceive me from the first. I went through the various musical torments that are only appreciated by the elect; then came the selection from 'Il Flauto Magioca.' Signor Tremolo stepped out to the very front row of the center of the platform. There was a great burst of applause as Carlotta's father drew down his great wristbands and made his bow; then I coughed loudly to attract his attention, and I succeeded in doing so. After the orchestra had played several bars, the solo commenced. You have heard Tremolo play; I need not describe it. You might have heard a pin fall, the public was so attentive. He reminded me of nothing so much as a human thrush. What gurgles, warbles, and bubbling trills of melody that man produced! Every one—every one except the villain in the front row (I mean myself)—sat entranced. I coughed suddenly and succeeded in catching my victim's eye. I produced a lemon and applied it to my mouth. Suddenly the unhappy maestro ceased to produce delicious melody; he made just that noise a gas-machine does when it is short of water; then he turned all colors of the rainbow; he seemed to be trying to swallow his own tongue. He shook his fist furiously at me, seized his bushy, professional locks with both hands, dropped his flute, appeared to be attempting to pull his hair out by the roots, and then rushed from the platform without a word.

"I hurried from the concert-room; but before I could get out somebody made an apology for Signor Tremolo on the ground of sudden illness. That night Signor Tremolo sent for me. I found him in bed.

"Have you no mercy, young man?" he said, in a hollow voice.

"You can't expect mercy from a Philistine," I replied, airily.

"Then he groaned. 'I'm a ruined man!' he said. Then he began to cry. A middle aged Italian, weeping bitterly, is not a pleasant object.

"How much do you want?" he said, as he wiped his streaming eyes.

"Old man," I said, "your professional career is over. Whenever you appear in public, I will be there, armed with this." Here I produced my lemon. As I did so, Signor Tremolo's head disappeared beneath the bed-clothes. "As a man," I continued, firmly—"as a Philistine," I added, severely,— "I have no sympathy with you, Signor Tremolo; but I have my price."

"The flautist's head was instantly protruded. 'Name it,' he said; 'name it, wretch! and it shall be paid.'

"Signor Tremolo," I began, "when I informed you of my affection for your daughter you dismissed me with threats of personal violence; you may refuse to allow me to pay my addresses to your daughter, but you can not deprive me of my rights as a man. I adore the flute"—then I gave a diabolic laugh—"and!" I added, "I'm desperately fond of lemons."

There is no more to add. I married Carlotta Tremolo four years ago. If it had not been for 'Wugsby's Physiology,' I should never have been allowed to pay my addresses to her. It is awfully hot weather; shall we have a lemonade? I am very fond of lemons."

Then he laughed a great, hearty, good-humored laugh. I do not think my neighbor was such a villain after all, considering the circumstances.

I accepted the lemonade.

Curiosity compelled me to a promenade concert and try the lemon trick upon a popular flautist. The popular flautist jumped off the platform at a single bound and offered to fight me. Next day I had to buy a new hat.—St. James's Gazette.

Amateur Sports.

[Held over from last week.]

A dispatch from Europe June 20th, read as follows: "The New York Manhattan Athletic club team met a British team of athletics at Huddersfield, today, and acquitted themselves nobly, in spite of the fact, as generally regarded, that they were over-handicapped. They showed good form throughout.

Carey, scratch, won the 220-yard race. Shaw of New Zealand defeated Sarre in the quarter mile race over 103 foot hurdles; time, 59.35 seconds, beating the world's record.

In the initial heats of the 120-yard handicap, Remington and Hallock were defeated. Carey won his heat, but was defeated in the finals.

Young was second in the mile handicap, Dadmun easily won in the quarter-mile handicap; time 51.15. The games were witnessed by fully 18,000 spectators."

The statement that Shaw broke a world's record is not quite correct. Until May 2nd of this year the record for the 440 yard-hurdles was 1 minute 1  $\frac{5}{8}$  seconds, made by L. E. Myers. But on that date Eugene L. Sarre covered the distance in 58.35 seconds.

Last Saturday the Manhattan Athletic Club team competed in the championship games at Manchester, England. Luther Carey won the final heat in the 100 yards dash in 10.15 seconds. Mortimer Remington, of the Manhattans was first in his trial heat. The half-mile run was won by Holmes, an Englishman, in 2 minutes, 4.5 seconds. In this race there were thirteen starters, J. S. Roddy was fifth and Dadmun was last. A. B. George was one of the starters but did not finish.

C. A. J. Queckberner of the Manhattans won the hammer-throwing event with a throw of 129 feet 10  $\frac{1}{4}$  inches. Mortimer Remington won the final heat in the quarter-mile run, covering the distance in 51 seconds. If this time is correct another world's record has been broken, the best previous record being 47  $\frac{3}{4}$  seconds, made by Wendell Baker, July 1, 1886. However it will require further confirmation before it is credited by many. The four-mile run was won by an Englishman named Morton, in 20 seconds.

The high jump also went to an Englishman, Jennings, who cleared 5 feet 9  $\frac{1}{2}$  inches. Hallock of the Manhattans was tied with Watkinson of England at 5 feet 8  $\frac{1}{2}$  inches. Barry, an Irishman, won the putting the shot with a throw of 40 feet, 8 inches. Queckberner of the Manhattans won second prize. In the seven mile walk, Curtis, the English Champion defeated Nicoll of the Manhattans by 600 yards. The time was 54 m. 15 seconds. The broad jump was declared a tie between Bulger of Dublin and Malcom W. Ford of the Manhattans. The distance covered by both was 20 feet 4 inches.

The present all around athletic champion of the Amateur Athletic Union is A. A. Jordan of the New York Athletic Club. He gained this title by winning the annual championship contest which took place at Berkeley Oval in May. He qualified in all the events and scored thirty points. His nearest rival, T. J. Mooney of the New Jersey Athletic Club, qualified in eight events. Jordan has held the individual championship twice before in 1887 and in 1890.

A tennis tournament of imposing proportions will begin at Saratoga Springs on July 14. The contest will be for the championship of New York State, and sterling silver prizes will be offered costing $1,000. It will be held under the auspices of the Saratoga Athletic Association, of which Hon. W. J. Arkell is president, and the affair will be run on a scale nearer the English standard of championship events than anything similar in this country.

The trophy representing the championship will be a massive sterling silver model of the famous Warwick vase, now in Warwick Castle, England. This departure from the senseless "cups" usually provided as prizes, will supply the winner not only with a beautiful and useful ornament, but with one of the most historic and artistic forms of art. Prizes of the handsomest description are offered for men's singles and doubles, ladies' singles and doubles, and mixed doubles.

No expense is being spared to make the new courts in Congress Park equal to any in the country. With audiences of 10,000 to 15,000 people, and with the proposed series of fetes, fireworks and balls for the tennis men, the contest will rank among the most important in the country.

The affair will be under the management of a tournament committee consisting of Richard D. Sears, Boston; Valentine G. Hall New York; G. Stuart Smith, New York; and J. Arthur Seavey, secretary Saratoga. Many important entries are already received, and a pleasant feature will be the prominent part lady players will take in the tournament, as several of the best players have entered.

The scores in the New England championship tennis tournament at New Haven which was completed last week were as follows:

SINGLES. PRELIMINARY ROUND—M. R. Wright beat L. R. Parker, 6-4, 6-1; F. Huntington beat A. J. Shaw, 6-4, 6-2.

FIRST ROUND—E. Brooks, Jr. beat W. F. Day, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4; E. Kernochan beat G. Atterbury by default; C. T. Lee beat F. G. Beach, 6-3, 7-5; M. R. Wright beat H. M. Billings, 6-3, 6-2; F. Huntington beat J. W. Nichols, Jr. 6-2, 2-6, 6-0; L. C. Sandford beat McCormac by default; B. Hollister beat E. Fellows, 9-7 2-6, 6-4.

SECOND ROUND—Kernochan beat Brooks, 6-0, 14-12; C. T. Lee beat M. R. Wright, 1-6, 6-4, 6-3; F. Huntington beat Sandford, 6-1, 1-6, 6-1; Hollister beat Low, 6-4, 3-6, default.

THIRD ROUND—Lee beat Kernochan 6-1, 6-1; F. Huntington beat Hollister, 6-1, 6-3.

FINALS—Lee beat F. Huntington, 6-1, 6-4, 6-1.

CHAMPIONSHIP ROUND—C. T. Lee beat R. P. Huntington, Jr., 2-6, 10-8, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4.

DOUBLES. FIRST ROUND—R. P. Huntington and F. Huntington beat Hollister and Sanders, 6-1, 7-5; Parker and Moorhead beat Fellows and Atterbury, 13-11, 6-2; Lee and Beach beat Brooks and Sandford by default; Wright and Billings, beat Wilcox and Shaw, 6-2, 6-1.

SECOND ROUND—Lee and Beach beat Wright and Billings, 2-6, 8-6, 6-4; Huntington and Huntington beat Parker and Moorhead, 7-5, 6-2.

FINALS.—C. T. Lee and F. G. Beach beat R. P. Huntington Jr., and F. Huntington, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

The results of the boat races at New London last week were as follows: Saturday, June 20, the Cornell freshmen crew defeated the Columbia freshmen crew by four lengths. The distance was two miles and the time 10 minutes, 38 seconds. Wednesday, the 25th, the Harvard—Yale—Columbia freshman race was rowed over the two-mile course. The Columbia crew crossed the line first followed by Yale three lengths behind and Harvard one length behind Yale. The time was 9 minutes 41 seconds.

Thursday, the 25th, the race between the Cornell, Columbia and University of Pennsylvania crews took place. Cornell was a winner by about six boat lengths behind Pennsylvania. The distance was three miles, and the time 14 minutes, 27  $\frac{1}{2}$  seconds.

Friday, the 26th, the Harvard—Yale race took place. The result was a surprise to nearly every one. Harvard was a winner by about eleven lengths. The time was 21 minutes, 23 seconds.

The Worcester Boat Club held a club regatta Monday afternoon. The first event was a one hundred yards dash on the Boulevard in the rear of the boat house. The starters were Allison, scratch; Bennett, scratch; Dyson, five feet; Thurston, 7 feet; Fish, 8 feet. Bennett won in 11.45 seconds with Allison second. The single pleasure boat race for lightweights was rowed in three trial heats and a final. In the first Charles Fletcher beat N. A. Harrington and Goulding. In the second, Poland defeated Fish and Mansfield. Doan won the third, beating Thurston and Collamore. Poland won the final with Fletcher second. Then followed the single pleasure boat race for heavyweights. In the first trial H. H. Harrington beat Watson and Eaton. In the second Dyson beat Harrington. In the final the winner was H. H. Harrington. The first heat of the double pleasure boat race was won by Fish and Poland, the second by Mansfield and Collamore. Fish and Poland won the final. Two crews competed in the large race. One consisted of Dyson, H. H. Harrington, Fletcher, N. A. Harrington, the other of Goulding, E. Harrington, Thurston and Collamore. The former was the winner. Two crews also competed in a four-oared working boat race. The crew composed of Watson, bow, Fletcher, Thurston, Eaton, stroke, Bennett, coxswain defeated the crew, composed of Mansfield, bow, Doane, E. W. Harrington, F. Collamore, stroke Goulding, coxswain. A single scull race followed. Poland was given 10 and Lawrence 5 seconds start over Bennett. Lawrence was the winner with Bennett second. To conclude the program the club eight gave an exhibition row. After the races a banquet was tendered to the visitors.

Notes.

Charles and Albert Marble, of the Beaver

Tennis Club, Worcester, Mass., are considered the finest team in doubles in that city.—Outing Weekly Tennis Record.

George F. Woodward, of Worcester, Mass., is an enthusiastic devotee of tennis and has improved greatly in his playing this year.—Outing Tennis Record.

October 10, the Worcester Athletic Club will hold an open handicap meeting.

The Worcester A. C. and the Quinsigamond Boat Club know how to entertain visitors from the Hub. Right royally were the B. A. A. representatives entertained last Saturday and if the athletes have their say, they will quaff the breeze of the sportive lake in 1892 as they did the contents of the big punch bowl in '91.—The Referee, Boston.

The Worcester and Lakeside Boat clubs will hold their annual regattas in the Fall.

THE CHURCH OF ARMENIA.

The attitude of the Church of Armenia towards the Eastern and Western Churches has always excited some curiosity in the minds of those interested in religious matters.

The following document, printed only recently in the "Armenia" of London, was written in 1870, by a man who immortalized himself on the patriarchal seat of Constantinople, Mgr. Nersès Varjabedian. It is worthy of its author, worthy likewise of the venerable Church of Armenia. It points out the attitude of this ancient Church, the first national church in the history of Christianity.

The following is the text of the document: "In the first centuries, the title of Pope was indiscriminately given to the bishops of all the celebrated towns.

The bishop of Rome is the head of the bishops of the West, in like manner as the bishops of Alexandria, Antioch, Jerusalem, Eichmiadzin, and Constantinople, are the heads of those of the East.

The Armenian Church, both before and after the Latins and Greeks condemned each other to hell, did not interfere in their controversies nor did it attach any importance to them; it did not alter any more for this reason the commentaries of its dogmas; but, before as after, it treated all the bishops and all the Churches with love and toleration.

The Armenian Church rejects only heretics, and hitherto it has had nothing essential to reject in the tenets of the Latins and the Greeks.

The Apostles' Creed is sufficient for orthodoxy; the rest contains dogmas, the differences between which do not impair orthodoxy.

The Armenian Church, in speaking of an orthodox Church, does not mean itself alone.

The unique glory of the Armenian Church consists in its treating its heterogeneous brethren in the spirit of the primitive church, that is to say, with toleration, even if they speak against it out of ignorance and hardness of heart, or through the pride of their prelates.

Whosoever does not profess this creed does not belong to the Armenian Church. The blessed fathers of the Armenians down to Lampronatzi and Shnorhali have held this same language. The two last-named fathers wrote at a time when the Christians were wrangling with one another more violently than ever. Read the works of Shnorhali and the commentary on the Mass by Lampronatzi.

BISHOP NERSES.

22 January 1870 (old style). Haskeuy.

Walter S. Adams, Harvard, '93, is visiting a college friend in Beverly.

About Folks.

Mrs. J. Brainard Hall and son went to Springfield for the Fourth.

Dr. McCullagh's brother, Samuel, died in Buffalo, the 3d.

District Attorney Gaskill attended the bac-carat trial in London. Seasickness, all the way over, put him in good trim to take this nauseating business in.

Chas. Merrill, Esq., and wife, spent the Fourth in Wilbraham, the old home of the Merrill family.

George S. Davis retires from the New England Base Ball League as secretary and treasurer.

John H. Walker and wife have been in Spencer for a few days at the Massasoit House.

Mr. Geo C. Hunt has gone to Milwaukee for a two months' visit.

Frank E. Carr, organist at the Church of the Sacred Heart, will succeed the late Prof. Burt as musical instructor at Holy Cross College.

H. L. Shumway, formerly on the Gazette, now of the Boston Herald, was lately in the city.

J. C. Dewey, A. Manning and Mrs. E. D. Thayer, Jr., have been to Saratoga.

A Genius.

A debtor able to pay had long bothered a Worcester tradesman. The account was not large; but no notice was given to the often sent bill, not the slightest heed, and he never came into the store. Then a brilliant idea struck the merchant. The debtor was a bachelor, so upon his bill this wily salesman wrote a number of items of children's apparel and sent the document. It brought down the bird immediately. He fluttered right in and wanted to know what the blank, blank, etc., Mr. So and So meant by sending him such a bill. "I never bought this and this. You know I didn't. I haven't any need of them." "Indeed," says the merchant, "is any part of the bill right?" "Oh, yes, the first item is correct, and that's all I'll pay." "All right," is the reply, "you just pay that and I will receipt the bill. I suppose these items must have blundered on somehow, from the next page, where, you see, they belong," and he turns to the books and shows the irate customer. The latter settled and went away satisfied while the merchant was just too tickled for anything.

Company E, 15th Regiment.

After all, a company reunion calls the men together much as a Thanksgiving dinner gathers the children home. Thus it was, Saturday, June 27th, when the "boys" of Company E met in Oxford at the Memorial Hall. President, Captain Vassall was in the chair. Of the total 133 members of the company, 65 have passed over. Captain V. having been president 24 years, declined further office, and Comrade W. F. Miller of 32 Woodland Street, this city, was elected; a good select on by the way. Peleg F. Murray, another Worcester man, was made vice president. L. E. Thayer of Oxford was continued as secretary and treasurer; A. B. Yeomans, W. Y. Woodbury and John W. Humphrey were elected directors. George F. Daniels of Oxford read copious extracts from the company history in his History of Oxford now in press. Comrade Preble from Webster and the Rev. Albert Tyler of Oxford addressed the gathering, as did Comrades Murray and Thayer, both of whom had recently visited scenes identified with regimental annals. In fact every one of the fifteen "boys" present had something to say. Dinner was served by the ladies of the Relief Corps and fifty people sat down to do justice to the hospitality of Oxford which, by the way, never fails.

High School.

[Held over from last week.]

Elections were held by the societies last Friday as follows: At the Sumner Club: E. C. Witherby, President; E. W. Goodell, Vice-President; C. E. Andrews, Secretary; F. E. Gilbert, Treasurer; rhetorical committee, H. H. Hill, O. C. White, R. B. Earle; new member's committee, D. S. Burrage, W. L. Sprague, G. A. Collie, W. E. Barton and S. E. Wentworth; term critic, A. H. Merriam. ways and means committee, E. C. Witherby, Lancaster and J. F. Munroe.

At the Assembly: A. W. Orr, President; G. W. Matthews Vice-President; J. F. Mc Grail Secretary; G. W. Field, Treasurer; rhetorical committee, G. W. Matthews, G. B. Knowles, W. L. Penticost; new members committee, John Reid, G. W. Field, E. R. Perry, A. H. Austin, and H. K. Larkin; ways and means committee, W. W. Orr, W. L. Penticost; and E. W. Cutting.

At the Eucleia, T. C. Carrigan, President; P. J. Mc Laughlin, Vice-President; W. E. D. Stone, Secretary; M. J. Curran, Treasurer; rhetorical committee, C. E. Dowd, W. J. Foran, C. F. Leonard, new members committee, T. O'Connor, H. I. Murray, and J. Curran; ways means committee, T. C. Carrigan, F. G. Garvey; and G. W. Matthews.

At the Alethia: Miss Alice Foster, President; Miss Edith M. Perry, Vice-President; Miss Clara A. Harrington, Secretary; Miss Alice L. Gates, Treasurer; new members committee, Misses Harrington, Aldrich and Mc Corney; finance committee, Misses Greenwood, Perry and Barnard; term critic, Miss Annie Barnard.

All of the societies intend to continue their work next year with new recruits from the lower classes.

Acrostic Extraordinary.

If you stick a stick across a stick
Or stick a cross across a stick
Or cross a stick across a stick
Or stick a cross across a cross
Or cross a cross across a stick
Or cross a cross across a cross
Or stick a crossed stick across a stick
Or stick a crossed stick across a crossed stick
Or cross a crossed stick across a cross
Or cross a crossed stick across a stick
Or cross a crossed stick across a crossed stick,
Would that be an acrostic?

FOR THE LAUNDRY.

BRUSSELS

SOAP.

AN ACT

Relating to the Sealing of Weights and Measures. Extracts from Chapter 65 of the Public Statutes.

SECT. 12. THE SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES in the several cities and towns shall annually give public notice by advertisement, or by posting in one or more public places in their respective cities and towns notices to all inhabitants or persons having usual places of business therein, and who use weights, measures, or balances for the purpose of selling any goods, wares, merchandise or other commodities for public weighing, to bring in their weights, measures and balances to be adjusted and sealed. Such sealers shall attend in one or more convenient places, and shall adjust, seal and record all weights, measures and balances so brought in.

SECT. 13. AFTER GIVING SAID NOTICE, THE SAID SEALERS shall go to the houses, stores and shops of persons who neglect to comply therewith, and having entered therewith the assent of the occupants thereof, shall adjust and seal their weights, measures and balances.

SECT. 14. SAID SEALERS SHALL GO ONCE A YEAR, and oftener if necessary, to every hay and coal scale and to every platform balance within their respective cities and towns that cannot be easily or conveniently removed, and shall test the accuracy of and adjust and seal the same.

SECT. 15. ALL PERSONS USING ANY SCALES, WEIGHTS OR MEASURES for the purpose of buying or selling any commodity, may when they desire it, have the same tested and sealed by the sealers of weights and measures at the office of any of said sealers.

SECT. 16. IN CASE A SEALER OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES cannot seal any weights, measures and balances in the manner before provided, he may mark them with a stencil or by other suitable means, so as to show that they have been inspected; but he shall in no case seal or mark as correct any weights, measures or balances which do not conform to the standards. If such weights, measures or balances can be readily adjusted by such means as he has at hand, he may adjust and seal them; but if they cannot be readily adjusted, he shall affix to such weights, measures or balances a notice forbidding their use until he is satisfied that they have been so adjusted as to conform to the standards; and whenever he gives said notice without the consent of the officer affixing the same shall for each offence forfeit a sum not exceeding fifty dollars, one-half to the use of the city or town, and one-half to the use of the complainant.

SECT. 17. A SEALER OR HIS DEPUTY, WHEN VISITING the place of business of any person for the purpose of testing any weights, measures or balances, may use for that purpose such weights, measures or balances as he can conveniently carry with him; and each city and town shall furnish its sealer with one or more duplicate sets of weights, measures and balances, which shall at all times be kept to conform to the standards furnished furnished by the commonwealth; and all weights, measures and balances so sealed shall be deemed to be legally sealed, the same as if tested and sealed with the standard weights, measures and balances.

SECT. 18. A SEALER OR DEPUTY SEALER OF WEIGHTS OR MEASURES may seize without a warrant such weights, measures or balances as may be necessary to be used as evidence in cases of violation of the law relating to the sealing of weights and measures; such weights, measures or balances to be returned to the owners or forfeited as the court may direct.

SECT. 19. WHEN A COMPLAINT IS MADE TO A SEALER of weights and measures by any person, that he has reasonable cause to believe, or when such sealer himself has reasonable cause to believe, that a weight, measure or balance used in the sale of any commodity, within his city or town is incorrect, the said sealer shall go to the place where such weight, measure or balance is, and shall test the same and mark it according to the result of the test applied thereto; and if the same is incorrect and cannot be adjusted, the said sealer shall attach a notice thereto certifying that fact, and forbidding the use thereof until it has been made to conform to the authorized standard. Any person using a weight, measure or balance after a sealer has demanded permission to test the same and has been refused such permission, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars.

SECT. 20. ALL WEIGHTS, MEASURES AND BALANCES that cannot be made to conform to the standard, shall be stamped "condemned" or "C.D." by the sealer; and no person shall thereafter use the same for the weighing or measuring any commodity sold or exchanged, under the penalties provided in the case of the use of false weights or measures.

SECT. 21. IF A PERSON KNOWINGLY USES A FALSE weight, measure, scale, balance or beam, or, after a weight, measure, scale, balance or beam has been adjusted and sealed, alters it so that it does not conform to the public standard, and fraudulently makes use of it, he shall forfeit for each offence fifty dollars, one-half to the use of the city or town, and one-half to the use of the complainant. And every sealer who has a reasonable cause to believe that a weight, measure, scale, balance or beam has been altered since it was last adjusted and sealed shall enter the premises in which it is kept or used, and shall examine the same.

SECT. 22. EACH SEALER OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES, including the deputies of the treasurer and county treasurers, shall receive a fee of three cents for every weight, measure, scale, beam or balance by him sealed, except platform balances. For sealing each platform balance weighing five thousand pounds and upwards, the sealer shall receive one dollar; and for sealing each platform balance weighing less than that amount, fifty cents. Every sealer shall also have a reasonable compensation for all repairs, alterations, and adjustments which it may be necessary for him to make.

E. S. KNOWLES, Sealer.

Office, CITY HALL, Worcester.
Office hours, 8.30 to 11.30 A. M., Mondays and Wednesdays.

THE CRITERION
Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.

231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SHREWSBURY ST.
J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

LAWRENCE,
PHOTOGRAPHER.

492 Main Street.

TAKE ELEVATOR.

About Folks.

Probably, the biggest cluster of currants ever picked from bushes, in this city, was taken from those of Thomas A. Clark on Harvard Street last Wednesday. It was one of the finest pomological sights that ever came in the way of LIGHT.

The Davis Art Co., Pearl Street, announce that they will spend their vacation in hunting. This means that choice novelties will be continually added to their already large stock of art goods. Among the game just brought in are some of the finest mouldings ever shown in this city including sepia silvers, cream ivories, and maples. The new room gives additional space for display, and the reduced prices are offered as an inducement to Summer patrons.

Mrs. Frank G. Estabrook, who died so suddenly last Sunday night, was buried from the Dewey Street Church, Wednesday, the pastor, the Rev. D. H. Stoddard, officiating. A noteworthy feature of the occasion was the acting as bearers of her four uncles H. N. Knox, Danbury, Conn.; Alonzo F. Knox, Stoneham; Walter D. and Jerome B. Knox of this city. Interment was at Hope cemetery.

Dr. A. W. Pihlgren, long a familiar figure in the Burnside building, has departed; just where, no one, at present, can tell definitely. He was noted for his fondness for coins, tokens, medals and literature, pertaining thereto. He was ever companionable and well informed. During the winter, the sparrows owed him much, for he fed them.

Mr. B. B. Holmes, now of the New Haven High School, but formerly of our own, was in the city, Monday last, calling at this office. The Land of Steady Habits seems to agree with him.

Encouraging reports are had from Boston as to the condition of Detective Colby.

Hon. T. C. Bates of this city has been elected first vice-president of the Massachusetts Electric Association.

D. W. Bradt, High School '90, now of the Institute, has gone to New Brunswick to hunt and fish.

Joseph W. Deardon has left the employ of the Denholm & McKay Company, where he has been eight years, to become assistant shipper with W. H. Burns.

Society of Antiquity.

At the regular meeting last Tuesday evening, President Crane in the chair, F. P. Rice was elected secretary pro tem, Mr. Abbot being away. James H. Dixey was elected to active membership, and the following names were proposed: L. B. Chase, Abraham A. Rheutan, Thomas H. Dodge, Rufus A. Grider of Canajoharie, N. Y., for corresponding member, Rev. Lyman Haywood of Southbridge, Lyman A. Ely and Charles B. Eaton. During the past month, fifteen volumes, thirty-five pamphlets and seventeen papers were received. Appropriate remarks were made on the death of William B. Earle of Leicester, a member of the society. The recent pamphlets of Col. Geo. W. Williams on the Congo State were discussed. The adjournment was to the first Tuesday in September.

Stationery.

E. L. Smith, who is at the old Boston Store stand, corner of Main and Mechanic Street, has opened a fine lot of stationery. It makes the average man take a trip back to his boyhood, when he carefully saved every scrap of unwritten paper, as he looks at five quires of good paper sold for 12½ cents. It is almost impossible to teach economy now-a-days. A dozen lead pencils, as good as Fabers, can be bought for less than one of Fabers twenty years since.

J. A.
Long

NOW

IS YOUR TIME TO

SAVE MONEY

For this month we offer special discounts in our very large stock of FURNITURE.

Our prices are away down, and you will say so when you see the goods and prices.

Our $34 XVI Century finish Chamber Sets Reduced to $28. They are beauties, and cannot be beat.

We also have Oak Finish Chamber Sets, $23, regular price $27.

Don't forget we are giving the same bargains in all our Stock, and now is your time.

J A. LONG

Franklin Square Furniture Rooms,

555 Main St.

Good to Eat.

Chocolate Moss.

Take one-third cake of good chocolate, one pint of boiling water, one teaspoonful of corn starch dissolved in half a cup of cold water, one cup of granulated sugar.

Put altogether in a farina kettle and boil until thick, when this is cold, beat the whites of three eggs very light and stir in with the chocolate mixture, flavor with vanilla; line individual glass dishes with sponge cake or lady fingers and pour the moss over these. If preferred it can be placed in one large glass dish.—Table Talk

It is far more economical to keep a fire in a range during the night than it is to build it anew each morning, and a good modern range will soon give a hot oven after the dampers are opened.

Oranges, Malaga grapes, figs, dates, and raisins are far more healthful for the first course than fried ham or bacon and buckwheat griddle-cakes.

If meat is required, have chops nicely broiled, or dipped in beaten egg, rolled bread-crumbs, and nicely fried, or some delicate, tender croquettes.

Often the most tempting breakfast dishes are "made over," and cold potatoes can be served in so many appetizing ways that they need never be cooked for breakfast. With the wide range of cereal preparations, surely all taste can be catered to, and no food is more healthful, wholesome or digestible.

Paterfamilias, who seems to have a constitutional fondness for sweets as for pie, will often relish a dish of nicely stewed evaporated peaches or French prunes with his cereals.

We often take too narrow a view in our efforts to be economical, especially in the matter of food. If fresh or dried fruit were considered essential to our daily breakfasts during the winter months, we should have less of "spring sickness" and dosing with pills, powders and nostrums. Prevention in this case is decidedly better than cure.—Housekeeper's Weekly.

Conserve of Roses.

Take fresh rose-petals, dip them in rose water; mash, and boil the juice with an equal quantity of crystalized sugar; color the syrup with a few drops of cochineal; and just before taking it from the fire, drop into it, one by one, large, fresh rose-petals. When the syrup has all been used in this way, sift fine sugar over the candied petals, and put in jars with brandied paper over them.

Delicious Peach Cream.

Take one pound of canned peaches, one-half pound of sugar, and rub through a sieve, the peaches being cooked very soft. Soak half a package of gelatine for an hour in enough cold water to cover it; then stir it into a teaspoonful of rich milk or cream, which should be boiling hot; and when well dissolved add it to the hot marmalade. When pretty cool and before it becomes firm, beat the peaches smooth and stir in a pint of whipped cream. Dip a mold into cold water, fill it with the mixture, and set it away to grow firm. Turn out and serve with a garnish of preserved peaches. Washington Home Magazine.

Misses Annie Curtin and Mary Welch are at Monument Beach.

ORIGINAL. No. 54.

Fruit Pinwheels.

BY MARIA PARLOA.

Mix together and rub through a sieve one pint of flour, one tablespoonful of sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of Cleveland's baking powder. Into this mixture rub two generous tablespoonfuls of butter. Wet with a scant half-pint of milk. Sprinkle the board with flour, and, putting the dough upon it, roll down to a large square about half an inch thick. Spread a heaping tablespoonful of soft butter on this and then spread with a cupful of sugar and a cupful of currants. Grate a little nutmeg over all, and roll up like a jelly roll—or pinwheel style. Cut in slices about three-quarters of an inch thick and lay in well buttered pans. Do not let the slices touch each other. Bake in a very quick oven for about twelve minutes. These are nice for luncheon or tea.—(Copyright, 1891, by Cleveland Baking Powder Co.)

Use only Cleveland's baking powder, the proportions are made for that.

With Cleveland's Baking Powder cake keeps fresh; breads are fine grained; biscuit light and flaky. Try a can, Cleveland's.

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H. Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists. 11 Pleasant St., Worcester, Mass

Residence, 61 West Street.

The Readers of Light
I most cordially invite
To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything
They would expect to find

In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,
Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,
10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL,
Gold, Silver and Nickel
Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.

13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

—ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING—

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St.,
Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework,
Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

New York Suit and Cloak Store, 512 Main Street.
SPECIAL.

I would beg to announce that I have received and placed on sale today over One Hundred Dozen

Laundered Shirts and Shirt Waists

all in the very newest styles, and will be sold at Special Low Prices.

Richard Healy, 512 Main St.

Worcester Coal Company,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

C. REBOLI,

Confectioner * and * Caterer,

6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

J. S. WESBY & SONS,

BOOK * BINDING

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

387 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES

at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

BOOKS AND BOOKMEN.

Educational Review, Henry Holt & Co., New York. $3 a year.

This number for July is No 2 of the second volume. Its list of contents is not long; but it contains much profitable reading. "Religious Instruction in State Schools" is by J. L. Spalding of Peoria, Ill., which by the way is the see of a famous bishop who bears the name of this writer; and they seem to be identical. Our Catholic bishop treats the subject very fairly though evidently favoring religious instruction in school, saying they should be denominational. Mr. Ray Green Huling of New Bedford continues his valuable articles on "The American High School," Mr. H. gives us an excellent presentation of his theme. He has long been a diligent student in this direction and he has compiled a deal of interesting data. Some of these, we recognize as once included in an Academy article; but they will bear restating. Geo. E. Hardy contributes "The Functions of Literature in Elementary Schools." Just strictions are laid on the quality of much that goes into the early reading of our children, for much that is useless is droned over for years. There is readable literature enough in existence and let us have it. Less excerpts and more books. W. B. Shaw summarizes recent legislation with reference to schools. This is valuable reading for those who would know what and what not they may do in school. The discussions, foreign correspondence, editorial and reviews are all up to the high standard at first established by the magazine.

Harry V. Baldwin, late of Washington, and formerly on the Spy has accepted a place on the Providence Telegram.

Thomas Hamilton of the Denholm-McKay Company has reached home from a two months' visit to his old Glasgow home.

Good Times for Teachers.

At the July meeting of the school committee, July 7, all the teachers, save those who had declined being candidates, were re-elected. Many drew large prizes in the shape of increased salaries. Never was the committee more liberal in this respect. In the High School alone, fourteen teachers were remembered. In the other schools, twelve principals have reason to be grateful and other teachers were increased so that the aggregate stands at $5700.

J. W. GREENE,
P L U M B E R.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,

Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand,) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

Harness and Saddlery,

RELIABLE GOODS and LOWEST PRICES.

R. McALEER & CO.,

155 MAIN STREET.

PHOTOGRAPHER.

Children's Portraits A Specialty

326 MAIN ST., Opp. Mechanics Hall.

Underwood

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,

* PRINTERS. *

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,

DEALER IN

Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

Sundry Estates to be Sold for Unpaid Assessments.

COLLECTOR'S NOTICE.

Sidewalk Assessments.

WORCESTER, MASS., July 11, 1891.

The owners and occupants of the following described parcels of real estate, situated in the city and County of Worcester, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and all other parties interested therein, and the public, are hereby notified that the several amounts charged and assessed thereon by sundry decrees of the City Council of said city, passed Sept. 15, Oct. 13, and Nov. 24, 1890, respectively, as hereinafter set forth, on account of the laying out and construction of sundry Sidewalks in said city, under sundry orders of the City Council of Worcester, passed on the several dates hereinafter stated, said amounts being overdue, and the assessments therefor having been duly committed to me for collection, remain unpaid and that said parcels of real estate will be offered for sale at public auction, at the office of the City Treasurer, No. 12 City Hall, in said Worcester, on MONDAY, THE SEVENTEENTH DAY OF AUGUST, 1891, AT TEN O'CLOCK, A. M. for the payment of said amounts so assessed, together with interest on the same at six per cent. per annum from the several dates when the same became due and payable, respectively, as hereinafter specified, and all costs and charges thereon, unless the same shall be previously discharged, viz:

No. 1823. LEON H. BASSETT.
About fifty-six hundred and fifty-two square feet of land, situated on the easterly side of Willbury Street, between the estate now or formerly of Annie M. Erickson, and the estate now or formerly of the Heirs of Martin Madden, and now or formerly owned by said Leon H. Bassett.
Order of May 20, 1890.
Assessed Sept. 15, 1890.
Interest from Oct. 15, 1890.
Amount assessed, $37.91.

1833. GEORGE H. COATES.
About seventeen thousand, seven hundred and sixty square feet of land, situated on the westerly side of Dewey Street, between the estate now or formerly of J. F. Healy, and Chandler Street, and now or formerly owned by said George H. Coates.
Order of June 16, 1890.
Assessed Sept. 15, 1890.
Interest from Oct. 15, 1890.
Amount assessed, $110.24.

No. 1923. LUCY ANN DOLLEN.
About nineteen thousand, one hundred and fifty square feet of land, situated on the south-easterly side of Southbridge Street between the estate now or formerly of the Heirs of Michael McGeeness, and the estate now or formerly of James A. Bowman, and now or formerly owned by said Lucy Ann Dollen.
Order of June 2, 1891.
Assessed Oct. 13, 1890.
Interest from Nov. 12, 1890.
Amount assessed, $60.73.

No. 1901. DANIEL McCORMICK.
About seventy-four hundred and seventy-nine square feet of land, situated on the westerly side of Eastern Avenue between the estate now or formerly of Christine Lundberg and Farwell Street, and now or formerly owned by said Daniel McCormick.
Order of Oct. 29, 1888.
Assessed Oct. 13, 1890.
Interest from Nov. 12, 1890.
Amount assessed, $50.49.

No. 1952. CATHARINE MULCAHY.
About fifty-six hundred and five square feet of land situated on the northerly side of Cambridge Street between the Providence and Worcester Railroad and Kansas Street, and now or formerly owned by said Catharine Mulcahy.
Order of Sept. 15, 1890.
Assessed Nov. 24, 1890.
Interest from Dec. 24, 1890.
Amount assessed, $27.98.

WM. S. BARTON,
Treasurer and Collector of Taxes for the City of Worcester.

Albert C. Lorion, for four years with the Fitchburg Railroad, has gone to Reading, Pa., in the employ of the same company.

W. H. Sawyer and wife, Dr. C. H. Davis, wife and children, and Mrs. Henry Miller have gone to the Dominion of Canada on a ten-days' Raymond Excursion.

Sundry Estates to be Sold for Unpaid Assessments.

COLLECTOR'S NOTICE.

Sundry Street Betterments.

WORCESTER, MASS., July 11, 1891.

The owners and occupants of the following described parcels of real estate, situated in the city and County of Worcester, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and the public, are hereby notified that the several amounts charged and assessed thereon by sundry decrees of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen of said city, adopted January 3, September 6, and Nov. 10, 1890, respectively, as hereinafter set forth, for their proportionate shares of the cost of laying out, locating and constructing sundry streets, under sundry orders of the City Council of Worcester passed on the several dates hereinafter stated, and duly committed to me for collection, remain unpaid, and that said parcels of real estate will be offered for sale by public auction, at the office of the City Treasurer, No. 12 City Hall, in said Worcester, on MONDAY, the seventeenth day of August, 1891, at 10 o'clock, a.m., for the payment of said amounts so assessed, together with interest thereon from sundry dates, respectively, as hereinafter set forth, when the same became due and payable, until the day of payment, and all costs and charges thereon, unless the same shall be previously discharged, viz:

No. 852. AMY A. HAGER.
About sixty-nine hundred square feet of land, situated on the easterly side of Florence Street, between the estate now or formerly of Alice L. Howarth et al, and the estate now or formerly of F. C. Walton et al, and now or formerly owned by said Amy A. Hager.
Amount assessed January 3, 1890, $10.00
Order of May 7, 1890,
Interest from February 3, 1890.

No. 969. JULIA HANNIGAN.
About seventeen hundred square feet of land situated on the easterly side of Harding Street, between the estate now or formerly of Dennis Cahill and Franklin Street, and now or formerly owned by said Julia Hannigan.
Amount assessed September 6, 1890, $34.00
Order of May 20, 1889,
Interest from October 6, 1890.

No. 932. JAMES C. AND ELIZABETH LOVE.
About forty-three thousand, five hundred and sixty square feet of land, situated on the easterly side of Byron Street between the estate now or formerly of Dolly H. Bennett and the location of the Boston and Maine railroad, and now or formerly owned by said James C. and Elizabeth Love.
Amount assessed January 3, 1890, $25.00
Order of September 24, 1888,
Interest from February 3, 1890.

No. 993. WILLIAM H. SHERMAN.
About sixteen thousand, four hundred and ninety-six square feet of land, situated on the northerly side of Prospect Street, between the estate now or formerly of Eli A. Cross, and Eastern Avenue, and now or formerly owned by said William H. Sherman.
Amount assessed November 10, 1890, $70.35
Order of May 26, 1890,
Interest from December 10, 1890.

WM. S. BARTON,
Treasurer and Collector of Taxes for the City of Worcester.

Mr. E. P. Early, Mr. Nathan Heard and Mr. F. H. Staples spent the Fourth in Rutland.

Capt. W. A. Gile returns much improved by his New Hampshire visit. A taste of the hills is a good thing.

Miss Emma M. Whittier of Lowell is visiting her relatives, J. W. R. Batchelder and family, on Tirrell Street.

Fitchburg takes Iver Johnson, right in, already making him a trustee of her Savings Bank.

Mr. R. B. Rogers, formerly clerk with the Heywood Boot & Shoe Co., has accepted a position with Dr. Seward Webb on his estate at Shelburne, Vermont.

ABOUT FOLKS.

Among those leaving Worcester for the trip to Minneapolis Christian Endeavor meeting were Rev. and Mrs. I. J. Lansing, Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Allen, Mrs. Geo. C. Hildreth, Miss Clara E. Wilberby, Mr. Charles Ball and Miss S. Bessie Goddard.

Miss M. A. Hathaway, of the Oxford Street School and Miss Mattie A. Collins of the Belmont Street School are vacationing in Oxford.

Judge Utley and wife, Mr. D. H. Eames and wife were at Bass Rock Hotel, the Fourth.

Samuel H. Putnam of Putnam, Davis & Co. has taken a journey to New Hampshire, for a merited vacation. His son Harry accompanies him.

High School.

Mr. Wallace M. Turner of the last class at Harvard has been appointed to a position as teacher in the High School of this city. He went from the School to College in 1887.

Miss Ella Louise Smith, also, was appointed a teacher. She comes from North Middleboro High School, graduated from the Normal School of this city, Class of 1890, a sister of Mrs. Fred Barnard and daughter of Burritt A. Smith.

Edward H. Warren of the High School has passed the examinations for Harvard without conditions, getting eight honors out of a possible eleven, one being in mathematics.

New * York STORE.

Headquarters for Ladies'
Shirt Waists, 50c, 62c, 69c,
89c and $1.00 a piece.

Also a splendid assortment of Boys' Shirt Waists and Blouses.

A large stock of Ladies' Cotton
Underwear just received.

Z. F. Little & Co.,

234 and 238 Main St.

Pinkham & Willis.

BARGAINS IN Chamber * Sets.

Having several odd Chamber Sets remaining over from spring business, we have made a special price to close:

No. 270.

One large, heavy Oak Set, 8 pieces, XVI Century Finish, French Plate Mirror, bevelled edge, size 30x40, heavily carved, and an exceptionally fine set in every respect.

Price $100, reduced from $125.

No. 1417.

One large Quartered Oak Set, 3 pieces, Cheval Glass; very plain in style, but finely finished.

Price $50, reduced from $65.

No. 433.

One large Birch Set, 8 pieces, finished in imitation of Mahogany, large Cheval Mirror, size 48x20, French Plate, and very cheap at the price.

$65, reduced from $80.

No. 450.

Another Set, same as above, except being Antique Oak.

Price $65, reduced from $80.

No. 447.

One Light Cherry Set, 8 pieces, Cheval Mirror, 48x20—a bargain.

Price $65, reduced from $75.

No. 497.

One Antique Oak Set, 8 pieces, Mirror 30x24, very cheap.

Price $55, reduced from $66.

Another Special Bargain are our Antique Sets. Price $28.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,
355 MAIN STREET.

Household.

When you come home with wet feet, says The Ladies Home Journal, don't throw aside your boots to get hard and moldy. Stand them up, put them in shape, and then fill them with oats, such as they feed to horses. This will, in a few hours, draw all the moisture out of the leather, keeping the boot in shape meanwhile, and leaving it soft and pliable. The oats can be used again and again. This is a relic of the days when no railroads existed, and traveling was done under difficulties, and in weather the present generation has no conception of.

Halibut is nice for broiling; the steaks should be an inch thick. Cut in small pieces and dipped in eggs and crumbs, it can be fried in boiling fat.

For cankered throats, mix equal parts of powdered borax and sulphur, and blow a little into the throat and through a quill.

Doctors claim that the eating of oranges before meals is not nearly so beneficial from a medical standpoint as eating them after meals upon a full stomach.

In using gold or any other of the bronzes never mix the medium with the powder, if you wish to obtain the best effect. In painting dip your brush first into the liquid then into the powder, kept in separate saucers.—Boston Budget.

An ingenious contrivance was shown recently for the accommodation of evening and best dresses. It consisted of a wooden box on castors, fitting underneath the bed, long enough to take evening dresses folded almost at full length. It was not quite as wide as the bed, and it could be drawn out very easily by means of a handle on each side.

Where space is limited, an easel in one corner, prettily draped, with a mirror put on the crossbar instead of a picture, and a three-cornered table placed just below, to hold all the toilet necessaries, form quite an artistic and ornamental spot. The point of the table fits into the corner. A pretty cloth, corresponding with the drapery of the easel should be thrown over it.—Waverly Magazine.

The substitutions and adulterations which are practiced in the coffee trade are numerous, though they are not generally dangerous to the health, being simply cheats and impositions. While it is probably true that not one pound in ten of what is sold in this country as Mocha is such in reality, it is still a good quality of coffee—the best in fact which can be obtained—and it is argued by the dealer who makes the substitution that if the consumer cannot tell the difference, the cheat is not very great. The additional profit of two or three cents a pound on what is thus sold also does something to help the dealer's conscience over any difficulty it may encounter in the transaction.—Good Housekeeping.

To those who are preparing a picnic basket, let me give a few words of advice, drawn from lessons taken during my own experience.

Don't make jelly, fruit, or iced cakes; don't cut your pies and cakes until time for serving them; and do pack everything meaty into sandwiches. Have good, plain cakes, rich enough to keep in compact slices when cut; not so rich that they crumble into bits. Jelly cake gets "messy," icing crumbles, and fruit cake generally falls to pieces.—Housekeepers Weekly.

THE CLARK-

SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

FOR BUSINESS.

The Enterprise Fruit Press has no equal, gets the juices from every sort of fruit, strains it ready for jelly, all in one operation, quicker and easier than you would think possible.

WHY SO MANY

Gem Freezers leave our store daily is for the reason that every one that we sell is bound to create a demand for two more, this being so the sale must increase forever, for we don't believe a freezer that will surpass it is one of the mechanical possibilities.

HERE'S A CONVENIENCE.

A Fruit Jar Holder, holds the hot jar while you adjust the cap, 15, 20 and 25 cts.

ICE CHIPPERS.

They should be sold with each Ice Cream Freezer. They will "eat up" a cake of ice very quickly and put it in just the shape it should be for freezing quickly, 46 cts.

EVERY SORT OF

Mould for forming Ice Cream, cake, jellies, puddings, Charlotte Russe, Angel Cake pans, lady finger pans, Mellon Moulds, Fish Moulds, every thing used in preparing all Summer luxuries.

Jelley Strainers,	10 to 75c
Fly Drivers,	8c
Fly Killers,	10c
Fly Traps,	15c
Ice Cream Scoops,	20c
Water Sprinklers,	10c to $1
Lemon Borers,	8c

WATER COOLERS.

THE CLARK-SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place at an early day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of

Fine Monumental Work,

131 Central Street,

near Summer.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

W. A. ENGLAND,

DEALER IN

FINE WATCHES,
CLOCKS, JEWELRY
& OPTICAL GOODS.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

394 Main Street.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,

Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, ***

NO. 156 MAIN STREET,

H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

South End Notes.

The Crescent Tennis Club celebrated the 4th at their grounds Saturday evening. They were tastefully decorated with Chinese lanterns, while from a stand in the center of the grounds, rockets, roman candles, etc., sped heavenward. After the entertainment at the grounds, the club were entertained by Mr. Morton R. Crane, at his home on Richards Street. Here the company were treated to another display of fireworks, after which refreshments were served. Later in the evening dancing was indulged in followed by selections on the piano by Mr. Harry D. Temple, Class of '94. W. P. I. Among those present were: Misses Ida N. Smith, Susie C. Taft, Flossie Stone, Gertrude S. Caswell, Lynn, Florence Shaffer, Anna Harrington; Messrs. Frank W. Washburn, Morton R. Crane, Frank S. Pierce, Fred A. Whittemore, Harry A. Billings, William H. Parker, Harry D. Temple, George T. Woodward.

The Crescent Tennis Club will hold their Second Annual Tournament on their grounds July 13-18. Six silver medals will be offered to the winners, both in singles and doubles. The entries number at present over twenty. The entries closed Wednesday July 8, with H. A. Billings.

Misses Alice P. Buckingham and Florence B. Buckingham have returned from a protracted visit to Philadelphia

Mr. Z. Frank Little and family spent last Sunday in South Shrewsbury, at Judge Woodward's farm.

Senator John R. Thayer was at Judge Woodward's farm in South Shrewsbury, Sunday last.

Despite the rain of Tuesday evening, sixteen members of the South End Whist Club went over to Judge Woodward's farm in South Shrewsbury, to hold their first meeting. The house was tastefully decorated and during an intermission refreshments were served. Two prizes were offered, the first, A Royal Tokio cup and saucer was won by Miss May Spring; the second, a silver photograph-frame, was won by Mr. J. F. Bicknell. The party returned to the city about midnight, having enjoyed themselves for the first time at country whist.

Many Worcester people will enjoy the following letter.

NORTHAMPTON, June 27, 1891.

FRIEND CALEB: Some one has sent me a copy of LIGHT, which contains a biographical sketch of "Our Newspaper Man," Caleb Wall, without the A.

I have read the sketch with much interest, and have learned from it several things in regard to thee which I did not previously know.

* * * * *

Joseph Sturge, then, is thy "ideal." I knew him well. He and I were fellow passengers from New York to Liverpool, in the spring of 1837; and I afterwards spent a night at his home, Edgbastan, near Manchester. I also frequently saw him in London, and attended the meetings which were held, at his suggestion, at Exeter Hall, for the purpose of hastening the emancipation of the slaves in the British West India Islands. I am not in robust health, and it is only with great difficulty that I can so far manage a pen as to produce so ill-favored a specimen of writing as this.

Leben Sie wohl!

PLINY EARLE.

Smith's

401 and 403 MAIN ST., COR. MECHANIC,
WALKER BUILDING.

Trade Stimulants!

A big line of 5c Chaillies go to-day at 3c, and another lot of 8c Twilled Chaillies go for the same price. Both lots put together on the counters at 3c a yard.

Our complete stock of 10c Dress Gingham for 8 1-3c a yard.

More of the 12 1-2c Outing Clothes at 8c a yard. All 29c Brilliantines at 23c. All 19c Brilliantines at 15c.

EDW. L. SMITH & CO.

Visit our Stationery Dept.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

The best yet.

25 Flannel Blazers came yesterday.

We thought the former lots as nice as could be, but these new ones go ahead of anything yet had.

$2.50 each, all they cost, and it is no wonder so many of them have been wanted.

A new Cotton dress goods will be on the counters to-day.

It is called Shanton Pongee, and its peculiarity rests with the finish that may be well called India Silk Finish.

They cost 12 1-2c a yard, and are decidedly handsome.

We are not at all surprised at the interest shown in the Silk Remnants. As we said before, the larger the business done, the more and better remnants remain at the end of the season.

Our remnants are fresh and clean, just as though cut from the piece, and the price settles the whole question with you.

If you once see them, you cannot escape buying one at least, and, like as not, you'll buy 3 or 5 of them.

The pretty Tray Cloths at 12 1-2c caught everybody yesterday.

The red and buff borders add a charm to them for some.

Those who prefer the plain white can have them so.

If you prefer them stamped the price is the same, 12-12c.

These Tray Cloths cost double that sum within a year.

Silk Crash, the best in the world for fine china, mirrors or furniture. It won't scratch, 15 inches wide, 15c a yard.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

THE INTERNATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA.

DODD, MEAD & CO., Publishers, New York.

THE INTERNATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA

IS THE

Latest and Best for READY REFERENCE.

Is not this your opportunity ?

Is your Cyclopaedia not used because its articles are too long and too technical? Then write for our exchange price.
Is your Cyclopaedia of little value because its articles are too brief? Then write for our exchange price.
Is your Cyclopaedia so old that its information is no longer satisfactory? Then buy INTERNATIONAL.

Are you without a Cyclopaedia, and looking for the latest, fullest, best? Then buy INTERNATIONAL.

SOLD FOR CASH OR ON EASY PAYMENTS. THE WHOLE SET DELIVERED AT ONCE in either case, freight charges prepaid

B. A. FOWLER & CO., NEW ENGLAND AGENTS, 36 BROMFIELD ST., BOSTON.

Mention this paper.

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE.

Clark University.

Dr. Arthur McDonald, Docent in ethics and who has degrees from Rochester University, and has been a student in Harvard, Johns Hopkins, Boston, Leipzig, Paris and Zurich has been appointed Secretary at the U. S. Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C.

Dr. J. Francis Williams of Salem, N. Y., Docent in Chemistry who has degrees from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and Göttingen, and who has been a student in Berlin and Director of Technical museum of the Pratt Institute Brooklyn, has been appointed professor at the University of Texas.

Herbert Nichols, Fellow in Psychology, and a graduate of the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, has been appointed assistant with Professor James at Harvard University.

Levi L. Conant, of Rapid City, South Dakota, scholar in mathematics, has his degrees from Dartmouth. He has taught in Mankato, Minn, Elkhart, Ind. Deadwood and Rapid City, S. D. and Dakota School of Mines, and has recently been appointed Assistant Professor of Mathematics in the Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

James N. Hart, of Orano, Me., scholar in Mathematics, who has his degree from Maine State College, where he has been instructor in Mathematics since his graduation, returns to the same place.

Frank H. Loud of Colorado Springs, Col. scholar in Mathematics a graduate of Amherst, who has been instructor in Mathematics at Amherst, and Professor of mathematics in Colorado College, returns to the latter place.

"DEPARTMENT of EDUCATION.

The work of this department is designed for the following classes of students:

A. Those desiring to qualify themselves for professorships of pedagogy in universities, colleges or normal schools.

B. Those who intend to become superintendents of state or city systems of education, or wish to fit for other administrative positions.

It is to the special needs of these two classes that all the work of the department is primarily shaped.

In addition to these classes not only the lectures but the seminary may be attended by,

C. Those students qualifying to become professors in other subjects, who would thus broaden their attainments and make their services in the work of higher education more valuable. For men of exceptional merit and attainment in any other major subject it is probable that work in this may be soon accepted as a minor subject for the Doctor's Degree.

The course will be given by the President of the University, Dr. G. Stanley Hall, and by Dr. Wm. H. Burnham, Docent in Education, and will include lectures, seminary and especially individual work by both instructors with each student. To the latter chief importance is attached.

A Journal entitled the Pedagogical Seminary is published by the instructors and students of this department, and gives an idea of the nature and scope of its work. Circulars of this publication are sent on application.

In addition to these general courses covering the history, methods and present state of education of higher and lower grades, lectures in the following allied departments are open to all regular students in this department: Neurology by Professor H. H. Donaldson; Experimental Psychology, Dr. E. C. Sanford; Anthropology, Dr. Franz Boaz; Practical Ethics (Criminology, Pauperism, Defectives), Dr. A. McDonald.

For a fuller description of these courses see the University Register.

Pedagogical excursions to institutions of Worcester, Boston and other cities will be made."

After the ruling of our Worcester School Committee, it seems strange that the University should dare to use the word excursion.—E.D.

Wesleyan University.

The annual examinations of the University were held from June 16 to 19.

Commencement exercises followed, from June 21 to 24.

The Baccalaureate sermon was preached in the M. E. Church by President Raymond and the university sermon by Bishop Cyrus E. Foss.

On Friday evening the several classes held their annual banquets.

Monday evening was the date set for the Glee Club concert, which was held in Memorial Chapel and was a very successful affair.

The principal event in the Trustee's meeting, to the students at least, was the appropriation of $50,000 for a new gymnasium which, together with what has been raised, will make as good a gymnasium for Wesleyan, as is owned by any of the smaller colleges.

On Tuesday afternoon the various fraternities held their annual receptions, followed by the usual banquets and serenades.

On this afternoon also the Quinquennial exercises of the Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity were held in the M. E. Church.

Commencement exercises took place in the M. E. Church on Wednesday, June 24th, when forty students received diplomas.

This was followed by the alumni dinner and in the evening a reception was given by the President.

The year has been a very satisfactory one for Wesleyan and the end finds her better prepared than ever before to give a first-class education to her students. The endowment fund has been added to, the library fund has been increased, money appropriated for a gymnasium and four associate professorships established.

The great interest shown by the alumni gives assurance of their hearty support and co-operation and there is good reason to believe that Wesleyan is on a firmer footing now than ever before.

Some changes will be made in the faculty for next year as is generally the case, for those who take post graduate courses will take the places of those who have just finished.

One of the strong points in Wesleyan's favor is that the number of men who continue post graduate study at Wesleyan is constantly increasing and the means for study in these courses are being increased also.

The Ware-Pratt Company

Invite attention to an extensive display of

Fine Clothing for Men, Boys and Children.

The Latest Fashions, Exclusive Styles from our own workshops, Honest Goods and the Lowest Prices, Grade and Quality considered.

Our Custom Department is teeming with the Newest styles, Colorings and Materials, which go to make up the finest lines we have ever shown.

The Ware-Pratt Company,

MANUFACTURERS AND RETAILERS,

408 and 412 Main Street,

Worcester.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.
Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts. State of the order March 18, 1891: Membership, 4915. Amount loaned for Relief, $15,299; Reserve Fund, $22,922.40; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,759.08; Total, $44,975.48. Men and women admitted under the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600.
Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?
Organizers wanted. Address NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.
THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.
Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Grate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD.
Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main St.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LATHROP * BROTHERS,

LADIES', MEN'S AND CHILDREN'S

FINE AND MEDIUM SHOES

Of the most approved process of manufacture, meeting every requirement of Quality, Comfort and Style.

564 MAIN STREET, Franklin Square.

LEADING SAFETY BICYCLES.

Solid, Cushion and Pneumatic Tires. Full line of Supplies. Repairing a Specialty.

LEMONT & WHITTEMORE, 39 PEARL ST.
Open evenings.

E. W. COFFIN,

Store Fixtures

310 Main Street, Worcester.
Name this Paper.

Now is the Time to Buy a

CARRIAGE !

at a Small Profit.

Geo. C. Dewhurst, 17 Park St.,

OPP. THE COMMON.

Larkin's, 395 Main St., Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps, Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

LIGHT

VOL. III. No. 20. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JULY 18, 1891. FIVE CENTS.

WORCESTER'S BOARD OF ASSESSORS.

Amos A. Parker.

H. G. Otis,

Thomas Talbot.

[ENGRAVED EXPRESSLY FOR LIGHT.]

JULY 15.

PUTNAM & SPRAGUE CO.

Mr. John A. Lake, of our house, has just returned from the great Furniture Factories of the west, where he has placed orders for an immense stock of new goods for the fall trade.

In Furniture and Medium Cost, our exhibit will be the best ever seen in Worcester. Due notice of arrival will be given. Meanwhile, to give the room we need, everything in our present stock, which is quite complete, will be sold at greatly reduced prices.

REFRIGERATORS and Children's Carriages at Cost.

247 and 249 Main Street, Corner of Central.

YARMOUTH S. S. CO.,

(limited) Shortest and Most Direct Route Between United States & Nova Scotia, via the favorite sea-going and new steamships "Boston" and "Yarmouth." Sea voyage only 15 to 17 hours. Tickets sold to all parts of Nova Scotia.

Steamer will leave Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston, for Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 12 M. Noon.

Returning will leave Yarmouth for Boston every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Close connections made at Yarmouth with all Railway, Steamboat and Stage lines to all points in N. S.

For further information write for folder or apply to G. Y. Lancaster, M. H. Church & Co., O. F. Rawson, Worcester; or J. F. Spinney, Agent, Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the

ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,

92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

C. H. DRAPER,

Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

Three Large Moving Wagons. Baggage Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!

It saves Time,
Labor and Fuel,
(two thirds cost
per hr. for fuel)

Manufacturers
Guarantee every
Iron.

TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, Mfg. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

OXYGEN

We have the genuine

Oxygen Treatment

FOR THE CURE AND PREVENTION OF DISEASE.

It is not a Drug, but Nature's true Restorative in debility and all disordered conditions of the system.

Our Oxygen is fresh every day.

Prepared and administered with the utmost care by a Physician of large experience.

It will pay to investigate our METHODS and PRICES.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

LINCOLN BLOCK,

368 1-2 Main, Cor. Elm.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

Quinsigamond Lake ICE

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Especial attention given to the family trade.

Garfield & Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 143-4.

N. G. TUCKER.

W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER & SON,

SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street,

Worcester, Mass.

Bigelow & Longley

COR. MAIN AND ELM STREETS.

Now for the Crash!

Everything Goes!

$25 for $15. Men's Suits, light or dark shades. $12 for $6. Men's Suits, PRIME. $15 for $8. Men's Suits, GRAND.

BLACK CHEVIOTS for $15 all the season in every first-class store. $8 gets them today

Now for the Boys and Children!

$14 for $6. Bang-up Suits. $12 for $6. Good strong Suits. $10 for $5. Knock-about Suits, some low as $2.50.

With long pants, from 14 to 18 years. With short pants, 4 to 14 years. Nothing like the bargains ever offered—not on SUITS LIKE OURS. Come in and look at them, and save lots of money. Buy a good SUIT, at half-price.

Bigelow & Longley

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JULY 18, 1891.

No. 20

O love divine and golden,
Mysterious depth and height!
To Thee the world beholden
Looks up for life and light;
O love divine and gentle,
The blesser and the blest!
Beneath thy care parental
The world lies down to rest.

But where can rest be found?

This was the query that Montgomery made in his inimitable poem.

After all, the Poet sought rather spiritual ease and comfort than those for the body. Just at present, LIGHT is anxious for the hard laboring body.

Where can it lay itself down for rest? In a three or four story tenement, where all sorts of people tramp over you or cook onions beneath you; where such a thing as privacy is out of the question?

Never! "When once the master of the house has risen up and shut to the door, etc." What door? That of the hall? What control has he over that beyond that exercised by the half dozen other tenants?

A castle indeed! Just as much as a hotel is a castle, or a street car a private vehicle. Our city is notorious for this system of putting up atrocious structures; adding several bell pulls and thus misnaming them homes. No other city in our state has gone into the double, triple, and quadruple system as has Worcester.

Are we obliged to do this? It would seem not. Our Savings Banks flourish and we have three successful Co-operative Banks and our populace is, as a rule, hard working and capable. The excuse of want of communication no longer avails. Thanks to an efficient Street Railway system, constantly extending; to the R. R. to the Lake and to the prospective electric road to Spencer, our people can go just where they will.

They can hold, occupy, possess and cultivate a portion of God's footstool if they choose. They may have actual homes of their own in which they may "shut to the door" whenever they like. They may raise turnips and onions; tups and orchids and children too without, in the slightest degree disturbing their neighbors. They may be kings for the nonce in the broadest and brightest sense.

Why crowd so? Only recently a man put his new house away out beyond the line of other buildings on the street, that he might get room for a rear house. New York City forbids rear houses by City Law. Why not take the matter in hand here? Mr. A. B. looks over his little garden one day. He has pear and apple trees and Mrs. A. B. is cultivating some soul satisfying flowers. His avaricious nature suggests a house to stand on these few feet of earth that he may get a few dollars of rental.

Away goes all thought of pleasure on his own premises. The building goes up. Tenants crowd in and exist, they don't live, and the children play in the street, or in the yards of some people who will have breathing places anyway. Does it pay in the long run? Why does Mr. — stipulate that no three deckers shall be erected on land sold by him?

There are portions of our city, where pleasant homes have been darkened by the crowding in of unnecessary houses. Instead of lawns and gardens, there are piles of stone, brick and wood. People are robbing themselves. They can go through this life, but once. Why not get all the pleasure from it that it can possibly give? Live separate, in as large and roomy houses as you can afford. Raise fruit, flowers and vegetables. Give your children a home, not a street education. Are there not LIGHT readers who would like to write on this subject? If so our columns are open to you. Already, we are negotiating for cuts of reasonably priced houses that will fit the means of our readers.

Has Worcester a Chatham Row? A street where the unwary are taken in and done for? A location where no one in his senses would care to buy goods? Just read some of the flaming advertisements that crowd our papers at times? Whence comes the dealer? Where does he go? Quien Sabe? He opens a store for a few days, does a flash business and then clears out, leaving as many bills unpaid as possible. Legitimate trade always suffers by the legalized trade of such fellows. Contrast the merchant, who year in and year out, employs his help and pays his bills. Why not, by your patronage encourage such trade rather than the piratical enterprises of many catch penny parties, who, if they ever pay out anything, it is not in Worcester.

The visitor in Paris, as he goes about that great city is amazed at the means taken to protect domestic tradesmen. The man who rivals them must pay for the privilege. Here in Worcester, we demand a license for the man who would sell goods at auction or hawk them about. Why not require one of him who comes in for a few days, floods the city with handbills and after a rich harvest, like the Arab steals away? We claim to be a protective nation. Why not exercise a little protection over those of our own number who have labored long and well in our midst, all of whose interests are part and parcel of the city? Every man who employs Worcester help, in honest business, thereby helping men to earn honest livings, is a benefactor, great or small. The man who comes in to reap where he has not sown, to carry away money that should remain here is—well, he is not of the kind to further Worcester's prospects.

Worcester's Disgrace.

Rev. Dr. Almon Gunnison preached at the First Universalist church, recently, a sermon in which he said: "Our own fair city took down its shield of gold and hung up a brazen shield, when only a little while ago it exchanged sobriety for drunkenness; when it sold the honor of the city, the safety of our children, the bread of the poor man's home, the shoes of the poor man's children, the peace of mothers, to selfish men, whose hearts are without pity, whose souls are without love of man or fear of God.

We sold the golden shield, and the clink of of the blood money is pleasant in our ears, but what think we of the wail of the murdered, the moan of mothers over inebriated sons, the wails of beaten wives, the shameless sight of drunken women in our streets, of our prisons crowded to the overflow, of the noisy bacchanals of our drunkard mills, licensed to wreck homes and brutalize humanity? This is our brazen shield, canopied with pauper's rags, dripping with children's tears, stained with the blood of broken hearts. Has it paid? And shall we not tear down the shield of brass, a city's shame, and put back again the shield of gold, which means sobriety, order, happy homes and happy hearts."

Relics.

Assessor Amos M. Parker has in his possession an interesting reminder of former days in the shape of a mortgage given by Andrew Parker of Lexington to John Parker, April 30, 1728. The penmanship might serve as a model, today and the ink is as bright as when it first touched the paper. The particulars of the document illustrate well the straits to which the people were put in the early days to make settlement owing to the scarcity of money. John Palfray is a witness and it is more than likely that he was a progenitor of the subsequent historian of New England. And it was this same Parker family that produced Theodore Parker of religious fame. "His Majesty" at that time was George II.

"Georgius secundus was there alive Snuffly old drone of the German hive."

Mr. Parker also has a Princeton relic in the shape of a valuation list of Princeton in 1796. In this are found the familiar names of Allen, Bellows, Beaman, Brown, Brooks, Collier, Copeland, Chandler, Cheever, Chittenden, Dodds, Howe, Harrington, Hobbs, Hastings, Henry, Jones, Keyes, Powers, Lyon, Mirick, Meriam, Dale, Dadmun, Dana, Evileth, Babcock, Everett, Ellis, Goodnow, Graves, Gill, Gregory and Houghton. The long time Lieut. Governor, Moses Gill far out rates all others he having $8,313, while no other goes into the thousands at all. Mr. Gill was a sort of Massachusetts Baron.

Hobson's Choice.

Mr. Benedict (savagely)—"No writing, no talking, no smoking! Well is there anything I can do without waking the baby?"

Mrs. Benedict—"Yes dear. Rock the cradle."

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND
HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.

Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building,
Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as
second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, JULY 18, 1891.

Two Bicycles!

THIRTY-FIVE DOLLARS!

One will be given to that boy or girl who secures the most cash subscriptions for LIGHT between this date, May 30th and August 1st, 1891.

The other is for the boy who sells the largest number of papers during the same time.

Come up to the office, boys, and talk it over.

The Week.

CITY.

- 3—The new law concerning drunkenness meets very little favor in Worcester.
Only fair attendance at Driving Park races.
Frank T. Patch, Post 10, G. A. R., dies at City Hospital, 19 years.
- 4—A very quiet city, though the boys do a little towards keeping folks awake.
The Driving Park races, the best of the series and about the only interest in the day.
- 5—Barnum's circus arrives. The populace, 5000 strong, ready to receive it.
A post office agent to visit Worcester from Washington to see about new site of local office.
- 6—Barnum's circus has immense crowds.
Natural History Camp at the Lake pitched successfully.
Retreat of Catholic Clergy of Springfield Diocese begins at Holy Cross College.
- 7—School Committee meets and appoints teachers.
Sunday Schools of several churches have picnics in spite of the rain.
- 8—Worcester admirers of the game decide to retain the Base Ball Club.
- 9—Inspector Colby reaches home from Boston.
Horticultural Society folks, some of them, do not like suspension of weekly exhibits.
It is claimed that the city has grown 3000 in population during the past year.

10—Prospect that the steel works will be reopened.

Missing man, W. H. Vaill, heard from in New Jersey.

Dr. William T. Souther has been appointed Assistant Surgeon of Battery A, Boston.

11—Employees of the Hammond Organ Reed Co., the Brown & Simpson Piano Co., the Loring & Blake and the Taber Organ Co.'s, to the number of more than 200 picnic at the Lake. They ate clams.

Michael Nugent, Harrison street, falls down stairs and breaks his neck.

The body of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Randall late of Malden, was placed in the Thomas Tomb at Rural Cemetery, last Saturday. She was the granddaughter of the Revolutionary printer and was 68 years, 6 months old at death. She is the last to be placed in the tomb.

12—Dr. Almon Gunnison addresses the Boys at Natural History Camp.

At the Reform Club, numerous friends assist in observing the fifteenth anniversary of Major F. G. Stiles' membership.

13—City Council holds last meeting for the summer.

Ex-Assessor J. P. Houghton dies; 63 years.

Eighty-fourth birthday of Albert Curtis. Friends make note of it.

14—Worcester's new Board of Trade holds a meeting and furthers the organization.

Thomas Wackett, 39 Orchard Street, takes his own life.

Ex-Mayor Williamson about to leave New York, writes a pleasant letter to our Mayor Harrington.

Chas. Groupe overcome by heat at wire mill and dies.

15—Butchers and Grocers have picnic at Nantasket. The largest of the season. Nothing happened in the city while they were away.

16—Hon. Henry C. Rice dies, 63 years.

Capt. Patrick Diggins of the Police Force dies, 53 years.

Librarian S. S. Green elected President of the American Library Association.

Thos. F. Smith, late merchant tailor and designer of Highland Military School Uniforms, buried from 164 Lincoln Street, Hope Cemetery.

Dr. P. H. Keefe confirmed as Medical Examiner in place of Dr. J. Marcus Rice. If Dr. K. serves as long as Dr. Rice has, he has many years before him.

Friends of Mr. E. A. Goodnow make merry with him on his 81st birthday.

COUNTY.

2—Dr. Lemuel Grosvenor of Chicago, but a native of Paxton is visiting that ancient town. He was once a pupil in the Worcester High School.

Milford traces several cases of typhoid fever to a well located in a hen yard. The fool killer and health officers should join forces.

4—Warren dedicates a Soldiers Monument. Col. W. S. B. Hopkins of Worcester gives oration.

6—Northborough objects to Westborough's sewage flowing through her streams. What a sad thing is living! Big quarrel impending.

7—Corbin's shoe factory of Webster will grant half holidays, Saturdays during July and August.

Whitinsville people at fever heat over the liquor selling case of one Phelan. They are determined that he shall be punished.

8—Mrs. Loriston Shumway, mother of H. L. Shumway of the Boston Herald buried in Oxford, 82 years.

Sterling Camp Ground rapidly filling up with people for the summer.

10—Mrs. Dolly, widow of Andrew King, dies in Sutton, 96 years.

11—The Livingston Cycle Company in Westboro shuts down.

Ira G. Blake of this city and a Boston expert succeed in opening the door of the Miller's River Bank.

John A. Hamilton dies in Whitinsville, 34 years.

12—The Conant Company's big hotel in Sterling is now finished and awaits opening.

15—Amos F. Adams, an old soldier, found dead in Millbury, 57 years, his worst enemy, a bottle, by his side.

Ada, daughter of John E. McClellan dies in Grafton, the result of La Grippe.

Sidney A. Whiting dies in North Brookfield, 57 years.

16—Merriam Memorial building in Leominster dedicated. It is a Baptist Church.

COMMONWEALTH.

3—Mrs. George Z. Morgan dies at 7 a.m. in parlor car at Lenox Station, paralysis.

4—The U. S. Squadron of Evolution lying at anchor in Boston Harbor.

At East Weymouth, the John P. Lovell Arms Company loses heavily by fire.

5—Some excellent, patriotic sermons throughout the state; but the people mostly rested after their 4th of July fervor.

6—Admiral Walker of the Squadron received by Governor Russell and staff and breakfasted at Parker's.

Christian Endeavor delegates throughout the state start for Minneapolis.

7—Boston plans to receive Ex-President Cleveland.

R. M. Colby of Worcester, carried to hospital in Boston.

8—Governor's council rejects the nomination of Chauncey Smith as R. R. Commissioner.

Rev. Hugh Montgomery of Woburn will attack the rum sellers from a new direction.

9—In Boston Harbor is given an exhibition of modern naval warfare.

10—It is settled that Phillips Brooks will be Bishop of Massachusetts.

Governor Hill of New York is within our borders. No climatic changes result.

11—The Blue Jackets from the White Squadron parade in Boston and dine in Mechanics Fair Building.

Strike of certain compositors in Boston because of failure to get half holiday.

12—A show snake escapes from cage in Haverhill. People badly scared. An excellent advertisement.

Eight men desert from the White Squadron in Boston.

13—Mr. Crapo's health such that he could not accept Republican nomination for governor, if offered.

14—Yacht, Tidal Wave, wrecked on Pasque Isle.

John Long & Son, Boot and Shoe manufacturers of Braintree fail, $60,000.

New England Chautauqua convenes at Lake View, South Framingham.

15—Postmaster Hart says Boston needs sixty-four more letter carriers.

Prospects of a monument to Theodore Parker in Boston.

Woburn druggists will lose their licenses through their closing last Sunday.

16—Governor and Council make J. W. Coveney of Cambridge a member of the Gas Commission.

As delegates to the International Congress of Hygiene and Demography, Governor Russell will send Dr. Morrill of Cambridge and Dr. Wyman of Boston.

NATION.

3—Republicans win in tissue ballot contest in Rhode Island.

Very hot weather in California. A great fire devastates grain fields near Milton.

The President appoints several lads to West Point, sons of Commodore Ramsey, "Baldy" Smith and grandsons of the late Senator Wade of Ohio and General W. T. Sherman.

Horrible railroad disaster at Ravenna, Ohio.

4—Ex-Vice President Hamlin dies suddenly in Bangor, Me. Nearly 82 years.

Great celebration in Woodstock, Conn., speeches by Depew, Murat Halstead, Senator Aldrich and others.

5—Colored Veterans don't want next G. A. R. encampment in Washington. Too much prejudice.

Physicians and reporters cannot agree as to Secretary Blaine's condition. Can he, himself tell?

6—Riot between whites and blacks in Indianapolis.

Emmons Blaine says his father in improving.

7—Worcester military companies on Staten Island get disgusted at treatment and leave for home.

Lincoln, R. I. Republicans storm the Court House to gain possession. This sounds like "out West."

8—Hannibal Hamlin buried with G. A. R. honors from First Unitarian church in Bangor.

Itata will have to pay for kidnapping U. S. officer and running away.

9—Kansas Farmers' Alliance will go it alone. At Minneapolis Y. P. S. C. E. convenes 15,000 strong.

10—Ohio politics warming up. Secretary Blaine certainly improving.

11—Indian Territory officials eject white squatters.

12—Edward Burgess, famous yacht builder dies in Boston. 43 years.

Grand-daughter of ex-President Johnson dies in Colorado. In "White House" days she was "Little Bell" Patterson.

Christian Endeavor Convention in Minneapolis adjourns.

13—After two months' counting the money in Uncle Sam's safes found intact to a cent.

William Hanlon, famous trepeze performer, killed in Lyons, Iowa, by breaking of his bar.

14—Ohio Democrats in a turbulent mood over their convention.

Navajo Indians, in Arizona, on the war path.

15—Gov. Campbell of Ohio renominated by the Democrats.

16—Trouble over fishing boats at Eastport, Me. Why should brothers quarrel?

Commissioner Raum says he shall hurry through 300,000 pension claims this year.

WORLD.

3—American Congregational Pilgrims to be well received in England.

The Queen will make her grandson, Prince George of Wales, Duke of Kent. This was her father's title.

Parnell prospects do not improve.

4—Wm. Henry, eldest son of Gladstone, dies in London.

In Paris, Manhattan Club wins everything. Dadmun first in half-mile race.

5—Mr. Spurgeon not expected to live.

French papers do not like the proposed prosecution of De Lessep.

Kaiser William most royally entertained in England. His imperial grandmother ought to pull his ear for his mean usage of his mother.

6—Queen Victoria's grand-daughter, Louise of Schleswig-Holstein married at Windsor to Prince Aribert of Anhalt. More bills for Britain's poor people to pay.

7—Queen Victoria, at a state dinner, displays $9,000,000 worth of plate. How many starving poor would this feed?

8—Parnell candidate badly defeated in Carlow elections.

Kaiser William still doing England in great shape.

9—Prospect of trouble from Anarchists in London over the Kaiser's reception.

At Ayr a statue of Robert Burns was unveiled yesterday.

10—Dublin's "Nation" fifty years old, suspends publication.

The Kaiser still being feted in London and the poor starve.

11—Kaiser Williams reviews the volunteer Militia in Wimbleton.

12—The Kaiser is nothing if not military, he even hears a Canon preach, at St. Pauls.

13—English liberals will move for the disestablishment of the church.

England will make a great showing at the Columbian Fair.

President Carnot fired at by crazy man in Paris.

14—Roumania does not want Russia's exiled Jews.

American delegates read papers in the Congregational Assembly, London.

15—France expected to remove embargo on American pork.

Salzburg celebrates the life and services of Mozart.

16—Mr. Parnell's wife costs him something. He pays $5000 divorce costs and then his own reputation! How much was that worth?

British Society of Authors celebrates the Copyright Act.

For a Sweet Tooth.

And who has not at least one? It is claimed that Worcester consumes more than a ton of candy a day. Of this large amount Messrs. Marsh and Royce, at No. 511 Main Street, sell fully their share. Established between fourteen and fifteen years, the firm has steadily developed its business till now they are second to few houses in their line in New England. They occupy the first floor and the basement of No 511 and the presence of the store is evident to any one on passing Park or Chatham Streets. There are 800 varieties of sweets on sale but peppermint outsmells them all. The quantity of this special confection that is made and sold is prodigious. The firm buys direct, the best oil in the world, that distilled in Wayne Co., N. Y., and hence no better "mints" than theirs can be made. Feeling the need of improved quarters, they have thoroughly renovated at a great outlay, the whole floor, making everything accessible, neat and attractive. A marble floor salutes the feet, plate glass mirrors, back of the shelves, double the saccharine attractions, while a nice paper fresco covers the ceiling. The woodwork is painted white with gilt trimmings. Back of the sales-room are stacks of shelves piled to the top of the room with boxes of sweets. Here too is the office. Unless one sets about the matter, he has very little notion of the magnitude of the business done by some candy houses. This firm buys paper bags by the 100,000 in which to put the products of the vast quantities of sugar manufactured by them. Adulteration is a thing unknown by them in their work. For peanut candy alone, they use ten tons of nuts in a year. Theirs is the largest business of its kind in the city. They keep two travelling salesmen out of town and two in Worcester, constantly employed. As an indication of their retail trade, they have sold as high as $75 worth of candy in one evening after 6 p.m., and their daily sales of confectionery wholesale and retail average a ton a day. In everything that pertains to a first class store, both in stock, fixtures and those who wait upon customers, no establishment in Worcester is better equipped than that of Marsh & Royce.

Mad Dog.

An animal acting in a very suspicious manner aroused much apprehension last Sunday in the Dix and Harvard Streets section. He was followed up by a man who claimed that the dog was mad. The outcome is not known.

Henry F. Knox.

This gentleman who was buried from the home of his brother, Walter D. Knox, 217 Chandler Street, Tuesday, was a veteran of the 25th and 34th Regiments. He was one of seven brothers all of whom became soldiers. The brothers of the deceased acted as bearers. The interment was at North Grafton Cemetery.

Miss Ida M. Johnson of the Assessors' office is having her vacation in Barre, Vt.

Rev. H. W. Eklund, of the Thomas Street Swedish M. E. Church, preached at Lowell on Monday and Wednesday evenings, and at Concord on Tuesday.

Prof. John E. Sinclair and wife have been away, at the seashore.

Harry N. Rice, W. H. S. '87, Harvard '91 will enter the Harvard Law School, next Fall.

Col. A. S. Taft of the Continentals, and wife, and Walter Flagg and wife, are at Block Island.

Do not forget that you can get any summer Excursion ticket at lowest rates or any other kind of ticket from Geo. Y. Lancaster's Ticket Agency, 434 Main street, opposite Front street. It pays to go there. Try it and see.

Worcester's Assessors.

In Mythology, three and its multiples were favorite numbers. In later times, not on account of Mythology, but for the sake of a majority, three officials frequently constitute a Board. Greece had her Graces and her Fates. Perhaps our Board of Assessors, in all save sex, would come pretty well under the latter name. Certainly, they hold much authority in their hands. In no place, is there a greater demand for cool judgement and decision than in the work that these gentlemen are called to do. That they have discharged their duties to the general satisfaction of the public is evident in their repeated re-election to their positions. They are elected, one each year for a term of three years by the City Council. While much of their work is routine office labor, surrounded by a large force of clerks and assistants yet at certain times, especially, in the Spring and Summer they are out, and about the city. The two seated open carriage drawn by one horse, having three middle aged gentlemen aboard, carrying more or less atlas like books has become quite a common sight in our midst. If this vehicle does not carry Caesar and his fortunes, it certainly does carry much of the interest of Worcester for on the decisions of these assessors depend the valuation and rating for the ensuing year. Their office receives respect. If there are any harsh words to be used towards them, they are held in reserve, till after the assessment is made. Then, sometimes the officers need to be iron clad.

Of our local Board, the chairman is, who has been on the Board since 1887, succeeding the late Mr. J. P. Houghton, the long time incumbent. Mr. Otis' initials are for Harrison Gray, he thus having in full the name of one of the most distinguished of the Bay State legislators. A still earlier and even more famous member of the family was the Revolutionary orator, James Otis.

H. G. Otis,

Our chairman was born in this city September 18, 1835, a son of Benj. B. and Mary (Carter) Otis. The father was a native of Scituate and the mother of Lancaster. In this town, Mr. Otis, Sr., was killed, some years since, by being thrown from a carriage. There were other children as John C., Mrs. Phineas Ball, Miss Ellen Otis of the Public Library, Frank, Auditor of the City of Newton and Edwin A. in Chicago.

Mr. H. G. Otis went through our grammar grades, being one of Caleb B. Metcalf's boys on Thomas Street and entered the High School; but illness throwing him out, for a time, rather than fall back a class he went to the Worcester Academy. Years ago, he entered the office of the late Ex-Gov. A. H. Bullock to learn business, law. When the latter went to the State House in Boston, Mr. Otis became Assistant Door-keeper, a position that he continued to hold for five years, during the war. After this, for many years, he was in the boot and shoe business as a travelling salesman till 1887 when he was elected to this Board.

He married Olive H. Fitch of this city and their children are Charles H., who died in 1880, Edward, Anna and Harry B. All have been pupils in the High School, the youngest having just been advanced to the second year.

Mr. Otis is a member of Salem Street Congregational Church and for many years has been the treasurer of the society.

Mr. Thomas Talbot, comes next, not the ex-governor but the name is the same and the father of our late esteemed chief executive came from the same part of Ireland as that in which our assessor was born. There is little doubt that they belong to the same clan. Froude in his Ireland and England makes the Talbots one of the most conspicuous names in the Emerald Isle, one which represents much in the Island's record. When twenty-one years old, Mr. Talbot came to our shores and for 39 years has been a resident of Worcester. April 17, 1861, Mr. T. was married to Hannah M. Schofield, English born and a sister of Dr. Edwin Schofield of Worcester. He once had a brother David J. Talbot in Worcester, but twenty years ago, he went to Seattle, Washington and has been growing up with the territory. Mr. Talbot will not forget his marriage day for it was also the day of the going South of the 6th Regiment, to which he belonged. Those were trying and stirring times. Married and off for the war, all in a day.

When the Light Infantry came home, Mr. Talbot took a vacation and with his wife went over the sea to visit the old home. Afterwards he was in the Bay State Shoe and Leather Company for seventeen years as foreman. This is his ninth year in the assessors' rooms, so he is, by some years, the senior officer. He is a member of the G. A. R. and is Past Master of Montacute Lodge of F. and A. Masons; Past Most Excellent High Priest of the Worcester Royal Arch Chapter; a life member of the Worcester County Commandery and a member of Hiram Council of Royal and Select masters. He has represented Ward 8 in the Common Council two terms.

His religious affiliations are with the First Universalist Church whose treasurer he has been for several years and where he has been a deacon for twelve.

The home of the Talbots is at 5 Merrick Street and though they have no children of their own they have two nieces as members of their family.

Amos Milton Parker,

the third member of the Board was first elected in 1888. He is a native of Princeton, Mass., where he was born, Sept. 12, 1839. His parents were Frederick and Eunice C. (Howe) Parker of that pleasant hill town and there his father died, but his mother in extreme age is still living with her daughter, Mrs. Eunice H. Cushman, in East Princeton, while the old farm is held by a brother, Charles W.

His school advantages were those of the public schools of Princeton and the Millbury Academy. His first venture from home was to a clerk's place in Oakdale, whence he came in 1856 to Worcester to the employ of A. Y. Thompson in the Dry Goods trade in Flagg's block, and here the war found him. He too was married on his enlistment day, though the City Guards, of whom he was one, did not leave Worcester till the 19th. His wife was Anna C. Frizelle of this city, who after several years of illness died in 1888. Their children are Fred M., with the Worcester Carpet Company, and Harry N., in the Quinsigamond Bank. Both were pupils in the High School and Fred was graduated from the "Tech" in 1883. Mr. Parker was married a second time in 1889 to Miss Esther A. Holt, a native of Maine.

Ill health compelled Mr. Parker's speedy retirement from the army and though he tried to re-enlist in both the 53d and the 57th he was rejected each time. He was an invalid for several years.

When he began work again it was in the employ of Barnard & Sumner. Then he was in the Insurance work for a time and next in the Furniture business, the firm being Parker & Denny. Retiring from that he undertook Insurance again and combined with that auctioneering and appraising and his last employment before entering upon his present field was with Putnam & Sprague in their furniture ware house.

Mr. Parker has been commander of Post 10 twice, in 1868 and in 1888. He says he expects to occupy that position once in twenty years. He is a member of Montacute Lodge of Master Masons, is a Knight of Pythias and his church relations are with the First Universalist.

Here, then, is our Board of Assessors, active, industrious and honest; always ready to answer questions and to the extent of their ability satisfy the exactions and demands of this great city. They do not make values; they merely estimate. They do not make up the expense account, this comes from the departments. Their problem is to compare valuation with city expenses and therefrom to deduce the rate. This is a great task and one that must be calculated for each year just as much as the Ephemeris is made up for its particular period. The rate, big or little, is no fault nor credit of theirs. They do their duty, we do the rest.

The wife of Alderman Jewett signaled the City Council's vacation by giving each alderman and the Mayor a bunch of sweet peas. Quite thoughtful. 'Tis sweet to be remembered.

Married.

At St. John's Church, Temple Street, Dr. M. J. Halloran and Miss Ellen G. McGillicuddy were united in marriage by the Rev. Daniel F. McGillicuddy, a brother of the bride. For some years Mrs. Halloran has been a successful teacher in our public schools, while Dr. Halloran is one of the best known among the younger practitioners in Worcester. More than one thousand friends witnessed the ceremony. Both the bride and her brother, who officiated, were graduated from the High School of this city. On their return from an extended wedding tour they will reside on Green Street in the old home of Dr. Hobart.

In Shrewsbury, Tuesday, Jessie Milne Denholm, second daughter of the late W. A. Denholm was wedded to John Gordon Howland of Bridgeport, Conn., by the Rev. A. Z. Conrad. Mr. Howland is a son of Dr. A. A. Howland of Pleasant and West Streets. Only the immediate friends were present. The residence of the happy pair will be Bridgeport.

Chautauquans at Lakeview.

LAKEVIEW, SOUTH FRAMINGHAM,
JULY 15, 1891.

The prospect is good for a large and successful meeting of the New England Assembly this year. The number present on the opening evening was above the audience of late years.

For the first time in the history of the assembly, Dr. Hurlburt was not present to make the usual announcements, but he arrived this morning early and will be ready for his normal work.

B. B. Johnson of Waltham made the opening address, and after a few selections of music by the Assembly quartette a concert was given by the G. Rob Clark Concert Co., of Boston. The quartette, as well as the cornetist, are strangers to us. For this reason, the latter did not receive the enthusiastic applause that would have been accorded to Miss Park. In fact it seemed, at first, that the typical Lakeview audience was not present. But when Mr. Weeks appeared in his readings, he was encored twice.

Owing to the limit of time no further encores were responded to. Following the concert was a grand display of fireworks.

This morning the regular work of the assembly began, and this forms the most important feature of the session. Those who come for a day will be most interested in the lectures, morning and afternoon, but the constant attendants come for work in some of the Bible classes or the chorus.

The chorus is the largest that has assembled on the first morning, and the music promises to be the best ever given here.

Several Worcester people are here. Among the names on the register are Mrs. N. F. Pike, Mrs. L. A. Fellows, Miss Grace E. Putnam, Miss Amy F. Codding, Miss Dara E. Codding, L. E. Ware.

FLAITEM.

Historical Echoes From Medfield.

MEDFIELD, June 29th, 1891.

Editor of Light.—The echoes of the 20th still linger with us and will for sometime with pleasant thoughts of that prominent and very interesting event that occurred in our historic Medfield. The Medfieldians are very proud of their town with its cluster of historical associations that have surrounded it for more than two hundred years (many of the old landmarks that connect the past with the present still remaining) and they felt it a very high honor to have been able to entertain so pleasantly and in so agreeable a manner the visiting contingent of the Society of Antiquity. Had the day been pleasant the visitors would have enjoyed the charming and delightful ride to historic Noon Hill, notwithstanding the "tight fitting" barges. In such cases endurance is always borne with patience and fortitude for the sake of getting a glimpse of the "Promised land." The view from Noon Hill the highest point of elevation in Norfolk county with the exception of Blue Hill, Canton and Sharon Heights, is truly charming and magnificent with a touch of poetry in it. Looking down from this elevation and stretching away to the south and northwest for miles are seen broad meadows containing thousands of acres, beautified here and there by clumps of trees with Charles River winding like a silver thread towards Cambridge. Situated on a plateau of table land in the distance lies the beautiful and charming village of Medfield, half hidden among its hundreds of ornamental elms, many of them historical and traditionary. The second point of historical interest to the visitors has the "heavens smiled" was that of Mount Nebo a considerable elevation located in the southeasterly part of the town rich in Indian lore somewhat visionary and traditionary in character. Here on this eminence just before the destruction of the town the Indians were seen taking a review of the quiet little hamlet before touching the torch to it a little later. A third point of interest reached by a charming and delightful drive of two miles from the village and located in the north part of the town was that of the "Bishop Fame," together with many acres of adjoining land purchased by the State as the location of the asylum for the Chronic Insane of Eastern Massachusetts. The view from the highest point of this elevation (nearly as high as Noon Hill) is magnificent and one of grandeur. Far away as the eye can roam a beautiful stretch of surrounding country of continuous and unbroken landscape is seen, and looking down hundreds of feet below are seen Broad Meadows and Rocky Narrows. Here the river runs with a strong current between two perpendicular ledges rising from the Sherborn and Medfield shores to the height of forty or fifty feet, hence the name of "Rocky Narrows." The ledges are thickly covered with pine and the Medfield side is historical and famous for the piscatorial banquets that have been, up to the recent purchase of the land by the State, held annually for years, and the "scent lingers there still" with other mementoes and relics of many a merry "King Cole." From the highest point of elevation of the Bishop Farm can be seen twelve towns and a number of villages, enterprising and thrifty. Close by on the Sherborn road stands the old mansion of the late Judge Elisha Bishop, one of Medfield's noted men and father of Judge Robert Bishop of the Superior Court. Near by the mansion stood the historical Elm which was blown down by the great gale of 1868. Medfield has been represented in three wars, Revolution, 1812, and Great Rebellion into which she sent eighty two men; out of that number twenty were killed in battle and twelve have since answered their last "roll call." The Medfieldians are justly proud of their famous old town with its historical associations of more than two hundred years since their Puritan ancestors built here their homes.

FAIRFAX.

Josiah P. Houghton.

The death of this well known gentleman comes wholly unexpectedly to a wide circle of acquaintances and friends. While it was known that he was not well when he retired from the assessors' office, it was generally thought that he would rally soon. Long devotion to the duties of his office so impaired his health that he was obliged to resign before the end of his last term. A native of Lancaster, Feb. 24, 1828, he came to this city with his parents, George W. and Miranda (Perry)

Houghton, when nine years old. Learning the trade of a carpenter he did much work as a wheelwright. He was elected to the Board of Assessors in 1872, succeeding R. M. Gould, and became chairman on the resignation of Alderman Lyman A. Ely. Long experience and natural aptness rendered him a very valuable officer. It seems a little strange that LIGHT, wholly unwittingly should have devoted this week a chapter to the present Board and its duties. Mr. Houghton's judgment in business matters had enabled him to make several judicious investments in real estate to which business, he devoted himself on retiring from the Board.

In his family were six children, five daughters and one son, Harry L. The latter went from the High School to the Worcester Polytechnic whence he was graduated in 1889. He is now a student in the Harvard Medical School. Of the daughters, Mary went through the High and Normal Schools and was a teacher for a while in our schools. She was also for a year at Cornell. She is now Mrs. C. D. White of Washington, her husband being an officer in the National Museum. Jennie was a High School girl of '80 and is now Mrs. F. K. Rogers of St. Paul, Minn. Theresa G. was also of the High School, class of '89. The other two daughters, Misses Alice and Edith, having been educated at Northampton are at home. Mrs. Rogers was with her father at the time of his death while Theresa was with Mrs. White in Washington.

He was buried from his late home, Wednesday afternoon, the Rev. Dr. Conrad of the Old South leading the services. A large number of friends gathered to pay the last tribute of respect, including late associates at City Hall. The singing was by the Old South quartette. The burial was in Hope Cemetery.

Music and Books.

Or alleged music! Its only a little thing; i. e., the music box is a little thing and the alleged music is smaller still; but how industriously he grinds, that man at the entrance to Putnam, Davis & Co's book store. Is it the recognized association of the muses that prompts him to turn his crank there? Nothing moves him to remove save the glare of the afternoon sun, when he sits on Duncan and Goodell's corner, till he sees the awning come down over his favorite station when he returns to literature again. Up goes the awning and away walks the grinder, only to return again if the awning comes down. The best thing about the man, is the sound of his grinding is low. Were it on the calliope order, life in his vicinity would be unbearable.

Leicester.

The first of a series of Sunday afternoon prayer-meetings was held in the Methodist Church last Sunday. The meeting was in charge of the Epworth League of Grace Church, and was led by its President. Fifteen went out from Worcester and found an audience of about fifty gathered. The choir sang an anthem at the opening. The subject of the meeting was, "Christian Helps," and lasted nearly an hour and a half. All who went from Worcester took some part, and also some from the local church.

Church Notes.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Summer Street.—Church of the Covenant went to Woodlawn Tuesday. The usual program and the usual fun.

Belmont Street.—Woodlawn Grove received the picnickers from this church, Tuesday, the 10th. Races and ball throwing with the usual incidents of the day made up an enjoyable occasion.

Hope Church. This new Congregational Body is arranging to receive the new Pastor, Rev. Ellsworth W. Philips in September.

A pleasant lawn party, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Pilgrim Church, assembled Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Loring Coes, New Worcester. The spacious grounds were bright with colored lanterns and the mansion itself lighted to the cupola; while the music of the band, flowers, ice cream and cakes satisfied all the senses. Within doors our hosts extended a gracious, hearty welcome, and their numerous visitors feasted their eyes on rich and fair adornments. We realized that to us, as to our older pilgrim we have read of, was opened a "Palace Beautiful" indeed. H.

METHODIST.

Webster Square folks went to Quinsigamond Park, and indulged in all the amusement with which that place is rife.

Laurel Street.—On Sunday last Rev. Alonzo Sanderson preached his third annual sermon to aged people. It was, in every way a delightful affair. The weather was perfect and the attendance all that the church would hold. Carriages were furnished by G. P. Kendrick & Co., Harrington & Bro., L. R. Spooner and Allen Bros.

The singing was excellent and appropriate. Each guest received a bouquet at the end of the service. Dr. John A. Andrews, Worcester's oldest physician, aged 89 wrote a letter regretting his inability to be present. Those present, with their ages were as follows:—

Mrs. Hannah Whiting 93,	H. P. Dunham 84,
Mrs. Sarah Wate 80,	N. R. Habgood 82,
Samuel Davis 85,	James Porter 86,
Mrs. Louisa Harrington 87,	Mrs. N. Stevens 80,
Mrs. Alice Stamp 85,	Mrs. Olive Whiting 85,
Dwight Waters 83,	Mrs. S. H. Preston 87,
Miss Martha E. Go dell 82	Thomas A. Clark 82,
Mrs. Prudence L. Wetherby	N. A. Lombard 82,
86,	Samuel A. Porter 83,
Mrs. Freeman Upham 82,	Pierce Porter of Hooksett,
D. W. Eames 80,	N. H., 82,
Dr. Dean Towne 81,	Albert Leighton 77,
L. M. Frye 78,	Mrs. Mary A. Gleason 72,
Mrs. Brigham Converse 78,	Mrs. Otis Fletcher 70,
Mrs. Susan F. Neff 71,	Mrs. M. B. Fairbanks 78,
Mrs. Sarah Bronson 75,	Henry Bascom 73,
Nathaniel F. Cutler 76,	William Walkden 70,
Mrs. Edward Fitton 70,	Mrs. Lydia Smith 77,
Mrs. Lydia Dillingham 73,	George W. Elkins 72,
D. L. Gibbs 70,	Rev. W. A. Pentecost, for-
Mrs. William Pentecost 72.	mer pastor 72,
Mrs. Mary Grassie 71,	Sylvanus Kendall 74,
Mrs. Emily Kendall 67,	Jonathan Fish 74,
Mrs. Eunice E. Fish 74,	Miss Susan R. Sampson 74
Mrs. Luther Phillips 78,	Silas Oliver 79,
Mrs. Lydia Oliver 78,	George W. Whiting 73,
Mrs. David Brown 71,	Isaac Mason 69,
John Ray 68,	Mrs. John Ray 66,
Mrs. D. F. Fellows 69,	Mrs. Sarah F. Crowell 66,
David E. Briggs 61,	Mrs. Sarah E. McCombe 63,
Marcus Nelson 65,	Mrs. Maria Hastings 68,
Mrs. Ursula Adams 69.	Mrs. Mary H. Lock 67,

This notion of Mr. Sanderson is an excellent one. All the churches have childrens day but Laurel Street seems to have a monopoly of "Old Folks' Day." Let us not forget those to whom we owe so much.

BAPTIST.

First—The people, young and old, from this church had a first class time Monday at Quinsigamond Park and came home thinking it the best picnic grounds in the county. One hundred and fifty people enjoyed the fun.

UNIVERSALIST.

Rev. Almon Gunnison will preach his last sermon before going away on his vacation, tomorrow morning. The pulpit will be supplied on the following Sunday. Mr. Gunnison leaves next week for California going by the Canadian Pacific, Puget Sound and Mt. Shasta route to San Francisco. Returning by the Northern Pacific he will visit the Yellowstone Park, and spend the rest of his vacation at Summerland one of the Thousand Islands, where he has a cottage. He will be back to the city for the first Sunday in September.

ABOUT FOLKS.

Mr. T. Hovey Gage, Jr., has just returned from visiting Frank C. Huntington, formerly of this city, at Mt. Desert.

Miss Sarah Ellen Wilson of the W. H. S., class of '91, was tendered a very pleasant reception Tuesday night, at Bethel Hall, 302 Main Street.

Miss May C. Rogers, teacher, left Wednesday for Boston, sailing on Thursday for Nova Scotia, where she will spend her vacation. Mrs. Gouley, her aunt, will accompany her.

Corporal J. J. Minihan of the Emmet Guards has been made a sergeant, and Privates Peter Horan and John J. Ellis corporals.

Herbert P. Linnell, who has been visiting at West Brighton, left Wednesday for his vacation on Cape Cod.

H. B. Lincoln and family leave the city July 30 for two weeks at Kennebunk Beach in Maine. Deacon Lyman Drury of Piedmont Church is to spend a fortnight with his family at the same place.

Louis M. Chase of LIGHT has just returned from a two weeks' outing in Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Wm. E. Bowen has just returned from a two weeks trip to Springfield, Vermont while her mother, Mrs. Lucy S. Metcalf has been visiting in her old home, Uxbridge.

Miss Alice Arnold of Harvard Street, Wellesley '91, is visiting in New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Casey of Dix Street, with children, Warren and Alice, have been away. Mr. Casey and Warren to Springfield, Mrs. C. with Alice to Holyoke.

Mrs. W. Ansel Washburn, with daughter Edith, is to be in Provincetown till August 1st, when they will go to Falmouth.

Miss Rose McGowan and Miss Cora Whittemore left Thursday for the White Mountains.

Miss Mamie Green of May Street will pass a portion of the summer vacation in Minneapolis, the guest of Miss Bertha Shaw, who is now visiting her.

Harry Boyden, '91, W. H. S. is working off surplus energy in the Allen Boiler Works. By the way, during the past hot week boiler works were quite common.

Charles F. Pierce and family will have a vacation in Boothbay, Me.

Misses Lillie and Amelia Diemar are about taking a six weeks vacation trip which will include Illion, N. Y., Chicago and Keokuk, Iowa.

Mrs. M. H. Harris of Chicago, wife of the late pastor of the First Universalist Church, is in Worcester and vicinity for a week or two.

Representative George S. Clough is off for a recuperative trip to Kennebunkport, Me.

Col. W. S. B. Hopkins and family will have vacation in Sunapee.

The Davis Art Company, on Pearl Street, has just opened a large invoice of Pastel Paintings from one of the best artists in the country. There are over fifty different subjects, and comprise landscape, marine, still life, fruit and game pieces. These are not cheap, fancy, chalky pieces of coloring but they are full of strength and character. It is well worth a visit to their Art Rooms to see these fine drawings.

Fred W. Greene, with Barnard, Sumner & Co., has vacation on Block Island.

Mr. S. E. Combs, late chief of the Worcester Fire Department, who has been in feeble health for some time, had a serious attack of illness last Tuesday. He rallied however and soon improved.

Rev. F. A. Gray of All Soul's Church is resting at Davenport, Mass.

Senator Charles Haggerty of Southbridge has opened a law office in the Burnside Building.

Albert B. Kimball of Chicago is seriously ill at his father's home, Boynton Street.

The Sterling Camp Ground is a great place for the meeting of old friends. Tuesday, at Rev. George E. Chapman's cottage there were four Methodist clergymen who had seen four-score years. They were the host, N. D. George of Oakdale, Ichabod Marcy of Somerville, and Austin Herrick of Wilbraham. Perhaps the latter lacks a little of the eighty years; but he is well along. Our own Alonzo Sanderson happened in also just to keep the conversation from flagging.

At Peck's Art Rooms may be seen a painting by E. T. Billings of Col. J. W. Wetherell.

H. G. Stoddard, W. H. S. '91, is taking out a part of his vacation in working in the Wright Machine Company's shop. A very sensible procedure.

The people employed about Union Station remembered C. M. Ruggles, the late agent, by the gift of a fine watch chain, last Tuesday. He is thus firmly bound to them in memory at least.

The Handel Festival.

"Magnificent!" This is only the first word of the report of one of the daily papers on the performance of the "Messiah" at Crystal Palace last Monday. Once in three years all musical London turns out to attend the Handel Festival, given in three performances, and "magnificent" is exactly the word that describes the work of the great chorus of three thousand singers; for the chorus was, under the circumstances, the chief interest of the occasion. The place is too large for soloists; that is one's first thought on entering the building. It is no easy matter for any one to even attempt to sing in a room nearly twice as high as Boston Theatre much broader than Mechanics Hall is long, and with 1600 feet of dreadful length of aisles for the sound to travel down. The large projecting corners of the transepts form an enclosing wall for part of each side, but these cannot entirely shut in the space. Englishmen are very proud of their familiarity with Handel, and justly so. It really seemed as if each person knew not only his own part, but every note of every other part, and could sing the whole work from memory. The men behaved as if they had been brought up on florid passages and groups of sixteenth notes, and fairly hurled at us the opening phrase of "For unto us a Son is born." When the Hallelujah chorus came, every one arose, as with us, it was a sight worth witnessing, that great audience of 25,000 people, on their feet to do honor to the composer of this great anthem. The performance of this chorus seemed unusually majestic and dignified; not an atom of nervousness or hurry over difficulties, and the conductor seemed rather to be borne along by the great sweep of tone, than to be leading it. But lest we should be accused of waxing too enthusiastic, we will directly say "here endeth the first lesson" that of the chorus. The soloists were Madame Albani, Miss McKenzie, Messrs. Lloyd and Santley, artists whose names alone are sufficient guarantee of the very best work. As we have before suggested, their difficulties must have been great in so large a place, and it was comforting to think they could have a day of rest after it. Madame Albani reminded us in her delivery of Rudersdorff, but with more of youth and freshness. Mr. Santley evidently saved himself for "Why do the nations rage," and sang it wonderfully well; but the first great bass solo, "He is like a refiner's fire," was given to Miss McKenzie, the alto, a proceeding which, we understand, was authorized by Handel.

"Selection day" seems to have become the most fashionable in the series, notwithstanding the high price of tickets. This year two or three new works were brought out, and the public was very curious as to their character. Mr. W. H. Cummings, the musical antiquarian, has unearthed a Glori Patri, which was written in Rome in 1707, the only one Handel ever scored for two choirs and two orchestras. A splendid anthem, written for the Duke of Chandos, and some enchanting Bourrees from the "Water Music" were also given. There were two more soloists today than on Monday, our own Nordica and Mr. McGucken. Nordica sings these selections, in many respects, as Nilsson did, when she first came to America. The orchestra, however, carried off the honors of the day, and we record with pride that there were several ladies in the orchestra among the first and second violins.

"Israel in Egypt" we were unable to hear, but as the chorus have things its own way in this work, there were many assertions beforehand that "it was quite sure to be perfect, you know." The critics do say, however, that altho' the performance in general was excellent, the chorus did not do as well as in the "Messiah," except the famous "Hailstone" chorus, and "He sent a thick darkness," which even the French, who don't like Handel, acknowledged to be a great inspiration. Anything like the precision of attack, and perfect tone, by so large a body of singers, we have never heard in America and it seems the more creditable as there were but two or three general rehearsals and many came from as far away as Dublin.

Nordica sings again tonight, under Richter, who is wonderful they say. Albani, Madame Belle Cole, Esther Palliser and Miss Hill all sing once or twice in concert or opera this week. All the best women singers come now from America, and—"mirabile dictu"—the English acknowledge it!

There are a dozen good things to hear every night; everything is on the rush, the very middle of the season; but it will soon end, as should this, the second lesson. E. H. N.

London, June 27.

Mr. M. B. Lamb, manager of the S. R. Leonard & Son music house, has gone to Crescent Beach to spend a well earned two weeks vacation.

Miss Hattie S. Putnam, and Miss Mabel Piper are at York Beach, Maine.

Augustus Stone, wife and daughter Mabel, are at Old Orchard Beach.

Herbert A. Warren of '91, "Tech." a former High School boy, joins several other Institute graduates in the Edge More Bridge works, Wilmington, Del.

Mr. E. A. Sumner is at Shelter Island Heights, N. Y.

Miss Grace E. Barnes of Walnut Street is away for a trip among the White Mountains.

P. G. Kent and family take a trip to Winthrop.

James Green and family will occupy a new cottage at Nonquitt.

Miss Margaret Scott of the Edgeworth Street School will pass the summer in Burlington, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Sumner with Mr. S.'s mother, and other friends are at Bailey's Island, Casco Bay for the vacation season.

Assistant Marshal Thayer and family are enjoying a stay in Leominster.

Hou. Edward L. Davis and family are at Bar Harbor.

Rev. John Galbraith, formerly of Grace M. E. Church, now of Boston, is domiciled with his family, at Cottage City for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bowker are summering as usual on their Beryl Hill Farm, Royalston.

Miss Eva L. Smith, of Barnard, Sumner & Co., will pass the present month in Shrewsbury, North Brookfield and Chatham on the Cape.

Mr. E. A. Wood of Myrtle street, wife and two daughters with Miss Florence Sears of 108 Austin Street are at Newport.

Miss Anne Badger of 7 Dix Street has just returned from a visit to Cliftondale which included excursions to Marblehead, Lynn, Boston and other places.

Master John Badger has had a vacation trip to Lawrence.

Mrs. Samuel Bemis of Dix Street enjoyed a day at Newport during the present week.

The Misses Lovel of No. 1 Dix Street are at their grandparents in Millbury.

Miss S. E. Barrett, a High School graduate of '83, Mt. Holyoke, '88 and who, for the past year, has been teaching at Wellfleet on the Cape has accepted a position in the Leicester Academy. Both school and teacher are to be congratulated.

Hollyhocks.

The hot days fold spring's tender petals down,
But even while we say, "The blooms are done,"
Lo! through the tangled gardens cometh one
Clad, all unconscious, in her quaint old gown.
Perchance the old-time days we might forget
If hollyhock's re'er set themselves afloat,
Ne'er like old dames and squires moved to and fro
In stately measures of the minuet.
Now art thou wel come, O thou old-time bloom,
Thou and thy friend, the fennel at thy side,
Our hearts like thos' in olden times are wide,
And in this new-day summer is there room;
So let the old flowers and the new join hands
In happy gardens through the waiting lands.
[Harper's Weekly.] [Lucy E. Tilley.]

On Chestnut Street, opposite the Misses Burnside's, the scene has again changed. Tulips, then roses! A few of the latter still bloom in cardinal magnificence. The last Rose of Summer is not, as yet, evident, but half way down the lot, perhaps hiding less æsthetic growth of table vegetables, is a thick line of hollyhocks. Of all colors, they are now putting forth bravely, and will continue to do so till autumnal frosts end their beauty. They are of the single variety and, so, all the more old fashioned. The long racemes with their wealth of mallow buds give promise of loveliness for weeks to come. Many a dweller in Wards eight and one make digressions to and from home, that they may feast their eyes for a few brief moments. The sight is worth going to see.

Mr. Frank J. Metcalf of LIGHT is passing a ten days' respite at the Lake View Assembly, South Framingham.

Eric H. Whittemore, son of E. J. Whittemore, has just returned from a bicycle trip to the White Mountains. He was accompanied by George Quinn of Boston. They rode about 300 miles. They took the train to the top of Washington and coasted down, strapping the brakes, and making the eight miles in fifty minutes. Mr. Whittemore is having a two weeks' vacation from his Boston position.

Books and Bookmen.

The popular Life of Christopher Columbus by Edward Everett Hale. Published by G. L. Howe & Co., Chicago, 1881. $1.00.

There never was a better time for the publication of a Life of Columbus than this, the year preceding the fourth Centennial of the Discovery of America, but that so excellent a book should reach us from Chicago, seems almost a reversal of Bishop Berkeley's remark on the western tendency of the Star of Empire. And that this book should bear the name of our own Dr. Hale on the title page seems to Massachusetts people very nearly like an appropriation of what we have, hitherto, deemed peculiarly our own. However, no one has ever denied to Chicago the possession of unbounded enterprise. Naturally, with the prospects of the Columbian Exhibition in 1893, they wish to popularize, thoroughly, the life of the man who made the exhibition, Chicago, and even this western world, possible; hence they come East and secure from the man best qualified to prepare it, this life, long and full enough, and put it before the public at a price that nearly every one can command. The volume is nicely bound in English cloth, has 320 pages, including a good index, of well printed matter. There is a copy of the Jefferson miniature of Columbus, a portrait of Dr. Hale, and several copies of old pictures of the expedition which serve to give an idea of what was in the artist's mind.

Many have read the life of Columbus by Washington Irving and we are familiar with the controversial publications which have sought to detract from the merits of the discoverer. This book in no way combats or interferes with them. It is, as its name implies, a narration within the time and comprehension of the hurried and young. It ought to be read by the youth of our land, in school and out. Suppose it could be placed in the schools of America in 1892 as a reading book, what a fund of information might be laid away? Put this in the hands of a competent teacher, with companion literature and it would be worth more than any book of selections now in the hands of our pupils. It is written by an acknowledged master of style and it has the gloss of supreme interest. Dr. Hale has not depended, entirely, upon published facts; but he has improved upon advantages offered him in Spanish travels. He drops some popularly adopted legends, thinking them unsubstantiated; but he gives enough anecdotes to keep the interest unbroken. If this book is a foretaste of what Chicago is to do to keep her coming exhibition before the public, there will be little justice in the cavils that some have indulged in as to the location of the Columbian Fair. The agents for this book in Worcester and vicinity are Misses. C. L. and J. Tainter.

The Inland Printer, Vol. III, No. 10, July, 1891. Chicago.

Once more, we have a relay of information and pleasure in the shape of well written articles on subjects pertinent to the business of printing and most exquisite engravings illustrating a variety of subjects. Photogravure and process work have rendered picture possibilities something that the fathers dreamed not of. Much space is given to the recent Typographical Unions' Meeting in Boston with the gatherings of several allied bodies. The cuts, illustrating the meeting and the men are in the highest degree commendable. Two engravings "Breakfasting" and "Ariel" are away beyond what is ordinarily done in books and magazines. "Notes on Wood Engraving" is very instructive and all the reading matter is entertaining.

Scientific American, Architects and Builders Edition, Munn & Co., 361 Broadway, New York, $2.50 a year.

As usual this magazine is provocative of joy and sadness. Joy at visions of beautiful homes and sadness at their being unattainable at least by many. Fortunately, the journal does not deal in the most expensive delineations, but as a rule, describes and pictures homes that the moderate purses can attain. The pictures include moderately priced houses in or near Boston, Philadelphia, Syracuse, Germantown and Minneapolis.

Progressive Springfield for July is, as ever, a welcome visitor. The chief historical matter in this number is a full description of the School System of the city. This, alone, ought to prove a very good card for advertising the advantages of Springfield. Chapters are devoted to Child's Commercial College to various Springfield industries, to the bronze works in Chicopee, while not the least interesting feature of the magazine is its editorial mention. This publication is on the lookout for the good of Springfield. It is doing an excellent work. $2.00 a year.

Mr. E. W. Bok tells the following story: "A literary friend of mine who is very intimate with Walt Whitman recently went over to see the 'Good Gray Poet' to induce him to write something for his magazine. My friend understands Whitman thoroughly, and has known him for years. 'Walt,' he said, 'I want to get something from you for my next issue. Can you let me have some copy?' 'What shall it be?' asked the poet; 'prose or verse?' 'Well, I don't care much,' said the literary man. 'Either will do. The public won't know the difference, anyway.' And my friend, in telling me the story, said he saw his mistake at once, but Whitman never noticed it."

Prof. George T. Little of Bowdoin College has the copy of Horace used by the poet Longfellow when a student at that institution. The book has Mr. Longfellow's signature on the first leaf, and opposite to it is that of Prof. Calvin E. Stowe. The interesting relic is carefully preserved in a glass case.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis has been in New York some time looking after the publication of her memoirs of her husband. It is said that she will not realize as much from the book as she expected, and there are rumors of trouble with her publishers. For some reason, a financial one it is said, they were unable to get the book out in time or print an edition large enough to supply the first orders of agents. The sales of the book, it is feared, will fall far below the expectations of Mrs. Davis. Many distinguished Southerners call at the New York Hotel to pay their respects to Mrs.

Davis and Miss Winnie, and both ladies have received many social courtesies at the hands of friends in that city and Brooklyn.

Sir Edwin Arnold, the author of the two well known poems, "The Light of Asia," and "The Light of the World," expects to visit this country in the autumn. He will be accompanied by his son and daughter, and will deliver series of lectures on Japan in various cities.

Octave Thanet, the novelist, is an Iowa girl, her real name being Alice French. She had been obliged to go away from home for material for her stories, the scenes of many of which are laid in Arkansas and the Eastern States. It is certainly remarkable that she should have been able to overcome the disadvantages of non-residence so completely as to portray with the fidelity and accuracy credited to her the oddities and dialectic peculiarities of Arkansas rural life. The material for her sketches was collected mainly during summer outings in the Adirondacks and in Canada, with an occasional winter in Arkansas.

Lady Macdonald as an Author.

Just before her bereavement, Lady Macdonald, widow of the late Sir John Macdonald completed her first ambitious literary effort in a series of articles for The Ladies' Home Journal, the first one of which will appear in the August number of that periodical. Last summer, Lady Macdonald, with a party of friends, traveled in her private car through the most picturesque parts of Canada, and in a delightfully fresh manner she describes her experiences on this trip, in these articles to which she has given the title of "An Unconventional Holiday." A series of beautiful illustrations, furnished by Lady Macdonald, will accompany the articles.

The publishers of the Youth's Companion are Perry Mason & Co., but there never has been such a person as "Perry Mason" and the "Co." is just as mythical. The founder of the paper, Daniel S. Ford, did not think his name would catch the public, and so he substituted the purely imaginary firm name of "Perry Mason & Co., for his own. As its circulation and advertising patronage increased, he kept on managing every detail of the business. Although his assistants in every department were the most able that money could hire, he scarcely dared leave the office for fear they might make some terrible blunder. At last he began to break down, and the doctor ordered a long sea voyage; the patient would not hear to it, but finally agreed to go out on a yacht for three days in the least busy part of one week. The doctor secretly pledged the captain of the yacht not to touch land for three weeks. When, finally Mr. Ford returned to the Companion office, and found that everything had gone like clock-work, he appointed heads of departments, delegated his responsibilities, took things easy, bought a yacht himself, and began to enjoy life.—Argonaut.

The grave of Goldsmith, in the precincts of the Inner Temple, says the "Pall Mall Gazette," still remains in an untended condition. The secluded little court yard has just been relaid with gravel, and the memorial stone of the poet bears evidence of irreverent treatment. Not only are the engraved letters becoming dim, but the tablet is scratched, evidently by heedless feet. Here is a fresh opportunity for something being done to prevent further desecration."

The Lippincotts have in press "A Supplement to Allibone's Critical Dictionary of English Literature and British and American Authors." It will contain over 37,000 articles (authors) and enumerate over 93,000 titles. John Foster Kirk, author of the "History of Charles the Bold," and formerly editor of "Lippincott's Magazine," is editor of this "Supplement." The work will be in two volumes, 8vo, and will comprise 1,600 pages.

D. C. Heath & Co., Boston, will issue very soon, "Studies in United States History," for use in Grammar Schools, by Mary Sheldon Barnes, author of the "Studies in General History," and Earl Barnes, Professor of History in Stamford University, California. The aims of this book are: To teach the pupil to deal with historical material at first hand; to train him to see the fact and catch the spirit of what he reads; to judge of the character and influence of men and acts, and to see the relations of cause and effect in historic events, to give him a sympathetic appreciation of the development of our American life and character; to give him a clear idea of the facts of our history in their relations of time and place.

The Home Magazine, conducted by Mrs. John A. Logan The Brodix Publishing Co., Washington, D. C.

The paper by Mrs. Logan is of especial interest being on the Preparations for the War. Baron Struve, and Gen. Schofield have portraits. Several columns on Wellesley college which will please those to whom that place is an educational home. There is a sketch of Mrs. Mary A. Dennison with illustration, and the usual number of short papers and household articles.

The Pansy, D. Lothrop Company, Boston, Mass. This is one of the many magazines so fully illustrated that no one can complain of lack in that respect. Pictures adorn every page. We think the paper on "Liza's Chair" dealing as it does with such old time articles is of most interest. No doubt every page in this number will be carefully read before another month comes around.

Coupon Bonds and Other Stories by J. T. Trowbridge, No. 11 in Good Company Series, Lee & Shepard, publishers, Boston. Price 50 cents.

The title has a familiar look and, in fancy, we go back more than twenty years to its first appearance in the Atlantic Monthly. It is just as interesting now as it was then, and many a boy sat up into the wee sma' hours to finish it. Doubtless it is the masterpiece of the author in the way of short stories. Of the other titles, "Madam Waldoborough's carriage" and "The Man who stole a Meeting House" also appeared first in the Atlantic. Harper's Monthly was the first means of getting to the public of four others, viz.: "Archibald Blossom, Bachelor," "Nancy Blynn's Lovers" and "Mr. Blazay's Experience." The other stories are "Fessenden's," "In the Ice," "Preaching for Selwyn" and "The Romance of a Glove". Here, then, are ten most excellent sketches from the hand of a master and they average just five cents each, the favorite nickel that boys love to invest in newsdealer's trash. Wouldn't it pay Lee & Shepard to put out such literature at the popular price? Of course this is of the highest character, the nickel novel, usually of the lowest, but if the depraved taste of the boys is ever to be improved, it must be done in some such way as this. The publisher who will put out such tales as those of Trowbridge in an attractive form for the minimum price will do as thorough missionary work as the man who goes over the seas to foreign lands. For years these stories have been buried in the pages of the magazine. A generation of readers has appeared that knows nothing of them. They cannot help seizing upon these with zest and relish. Thanks are due both writer and publisher. In the same series are "Cudjo's Cave" and "The Three Scouts" by the same author. The reading public should not lose the run of these inimitable stories.

Paul Patoff. By F. Marion Crawford, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, Mass.

The chief characters in the book are the mother and her two sons. Alexander is the favorite and when on a visit to his brother in Constantinople he gets into trouble through following a veiled woman, and then he suddenly disappears. The mother declares that Paul has murdered him, and when he falls in love with a beautiful girl and would marry her, his mother says his hands are red with his brother's blood. Paul says he will find his brother or some clue to his body. He succeeds and then his mother tries to kill Paul that her favorite may have his sweetheart. The story is one of deep interest, but its chief beauty is the wonderful description of eastern scenes. We do not have so many novels of the eastern countries that we can afford to pass this by without reading.

The London Morning Post pronounced this "one of the most thrilling tales the author has yet written." The scene is laid partly in Constantinople and its environs and partly in England. "The action of the story," says St. James' Gazette, of London, "never flags. . . Those who neglect to read Paul Patoff will throw away a very pleasurable opportunity." In plot, in dramatic force, in perspicacity, this is one of the most notable of recent works of fiction. "The originality of it," says the London Athenaeum, "the charm of the descriptions, and the brilliancy of the narration are undeniable. Mr. Crawford's pictures of Constantinople and the Bosphorus show some of the highest qualities of his vivid and graceful style, and the Oriental character, which has such strong attraction for him,—and for whom has it not?—has been portrayed once more with his peculiar subtlety and precision."

ABOUT FOLKS.

Dr. Edwin T. Painter, whose stay in Berlin has been chronicled from time to time, has reached home and will spend some weeks with his parents, Mr. Thomas Painter and wife, at Sterling. He does not advocate the use of the famous Koch lymph, his own experience being the reverse of favorable.

Mr. William Barhydt, with J. W. Sargent & Son, is enjoying the pleasures of his vacation in New York and Brooklyn this week.

Mrs. Charles H. Davis of Hammond Street, is at New Ipswich, N. H.

Mr. Wm. F. Abbott of the High School, with family, is at West Gray, Me., for the summer.

Miss Carrie P. Townsend is teaching in the Summer School at Amherst.

Mrs. Thomas H. Reed and her son, Lewis T., an Amherst junior, are at Cottage City for a few days.

Miss E. A. Kimball attended the Institute of Instruction at Bethlehem, N. H.

The family of A. A. Barker has gone to Pigeon Cove.

Mr. Jos. H. Perry of the High School, will as usual spend his summer at work on the State Survey.

Mr. E. M. Woodward, the High School teacher in Physics, having invested in a camera, will proceed to study Light and Shade during his vacation.

Miss Mary P. Jefts has gone to her old home in Drewsville, N. H.

Mrs. Jennie I. Ware is at her home in South Framingham.

Mr. F. A. Easton and family are occupying their cottage at North Scituate.

Miss Annie E. Morse, who has just been elected to a position in the High School, was Salutatorian, in 1885, in our school. At Cornell she took high honors throughout her course and since her graduation in 1889, has been an examiner in the Regent's department at Albany, N. Y., and a teacher in Jamestown, Cattaraugus County.

H. H. Chamberlain, Jr., has passed the entrance examinations for Harvard without conditions, taking five honors. As Harry took only four years in the High School, this record is specially brilliant.

Miss Helen Lincoln of Oak Street has returned from her European trip.

Mr. Charles S. Barton takes a yachting trip while his family go to Watch Hill.

"I go a fishing," is the refrain of B. D. Caldwell, who goes to Monomoy for bluefish. Two weeks off.

Pleasant Bay, Cape Cod, will have as guests for several weeks Charles A. Bartlett, family and Miss Annie L. Volkmar.

City Engineer Allen and family will run down to Maine for a two-weeks' stay.

Chas. T. Pratt of the Holyoke Democrat, has a two-weeks' vacation, to be spent in part here and partly at Nantasket. They say that Capt. Pratt can be mayor of Holyoke when he gets ready.

A Strange Marriage.

Si Collins was out of work. In common with many others, for reasons not necessary to enter upon, he had been idle for some time. He was almost out of money—fifty cents is not much. But he was out of hope. He was determined to put his shoulder to the wheel that he could not believe that there would not soon be a wheel to shoulder.

Now on this Saturday afternoon, with everything at a standstill, he knew there would be no use in standing before closed doors or of loitering in empty yards, so he made up his mind to have a holiday, and all that sweet, sunny afternoon to pretend to himself that he had nothing to worry about.

There was music in the park; there were seats to sit upon.

A man could eat five cents' worth of soda crackers as well there as elsewhere. In, fact, they made quite a neat little lunch.

On Sundays he buys a paper and gets every, item in the columns headed "Help Wanted—Males" by heart, but this afternoon his program was the park.

Accordingly, he went home, climbed to the top floor of a tenement house, where he had hired a hall bedroom of a washerwoman who did not need all the rooms at her end of the flat, and dressed himself in his Sunday suit.

The suit was not a fine one at best, and it was by no means new, but Si was a handsome man, and there is a good deal in that.

He blacked his boots, turned his cuffs, thanked fortune he still had a clean collar, and set off parkward. He was just in time for the music.

The sky was blue, the grass was green, the park was just as much his as it was anybody's, and after the crowd had dispersed and the musicians descended from their pavilion, he bethought him to walk about a while, and took his way toward the reservoir.

There was not a soul there, and he began to saunter about the brink, eating his crackers, when his attention was attracted to the singular conduct of a young girl, who was creeping along toward the reservoir, looking over her shoulder as though she expected to be followed.

Now and then she lifted to her eyes a handkerchief that she held crushed up in one hand, and it was evident that she was crying "What can she be doing?" Si asked himself. In a minute more it flashed upon him that she intended to drown herself.

He was about to spring forward to seize her, when he reflected that until he was sure that she was actually a would-be suicide it would hardly do to lay hands upon her, and so, concealing himself as best he could, he waited.

And now he observed the girl more closely. She was young, she was small, and her features were pretty. She had that peculiarly attenuated look that comes to most women with worry and poverty, but her clothes were not ragged, and she had a very respectable air. She wore one kid glove, he noticed. At first she stood behind a stone parapet that guards the edge of the reservoir, crying and looking over.

Then she folded her hands and put her face upon them, and Si fancied she prayed. After this, by dint of scrambling, she perched upon the stones and sat there. Si drew nearer.

At last she arose to her feet, and Si was there below her, though she did not dream of it.

"Good-bye, you dear pretty world," he heard her say. "I wonder where I am going to," and she made preparations to jump into the water.

Instead of accomplishing this she was lifted landward by two big hands, and as she touched ground she began to sob.

"Oh why couldn't you let me?" she said. "And now you'll put me in prison, I suppose for being too unhappy to live."

"I'm not a policeman," said Si.

"Oh thank goodness," said the girl, "you'll let me go, then?"

"Not yet," said Si. "You see, although I'm not a policeman, I'm a man, and that makes it my duty to take care of the women folk when they need it. You seem to."

"You mean to be very kind," said the girl; "but you are not. I suppose you have no idea what it is to be alone in a big city without money and without work."

"Oh," said Si, "but I haven't had any work for three weeks, and this is my cash in hand."

And he exhibited his half dollar.

"Oh," she said, with an air of greatest confidence. "Well, yes, you do know something about it, only you are not a woman."

"No," said Si. "Of course that makes it worse for you. But tell me, what drove you to that cowardly act?"

"It is a very brave act," said the girl.

"Not a bit of it," said Si. "Its brave to live and fight as long as you can—that's my idea."

"I can't; I've nothing to fight with," said "Oh, if you knew"—

"Tell me," said Si.

"My father died," said the girl. "My stepmother hated me. She married again, and her second husband turned me out of the house. Pa had left her all his money—I had nothing. I came to New York and got sewing to do. One day the woman that employed me asked me if I'd make her a wall pocket for her papers. The kind I mean is made out of old steels from extenders. You knit worsted over them, you know."

Si did not know but he looked as wise as possible.

"I was to make it as a favor, not for pay," the girl went on, "and at home evenings, I liked doing it; but the steels were too long. I had to break most of them, and it gave me a felon on my thumb. I can't use it yet to sew with, and I can't do anything but sew. That woman knew how I got it, but she never offered to help me at all. She dismissed me and took another girl in my place. Then I couldn't pay my board and they turned me out. I went to a hospital. The doctor said my finger wasn't bad enough to allow them to admit me; he said it would be all right in a month. Well, I have not even anywhere to sleep tonight. I shall have to starve or beg—I will not beg.

Now you see that you had better go away and let me finish what I began."

"That can't be done," said Si.

Every one who knew Si called him queer. If acting differently from other people under given circumstances is being queer, he certainly was.

As he looked down upon this pale, pretty and assuredly innocent girl, and knew that if he went away and left she would surely jump into the water, his heart softened toward her as women's do to crying babies. What a dear little thing she was! he thought. What a shame that fate should have used her so! It seemed his duty to take care of her.

"Oh, hang it! I'll get a job on Monday," he said; "and everybody tells me that it is just as easy for two to live as one. I'll do it."

Then he turned to the girl and said:—

"Circumstances alter cases. Its queer kind of courtship, but I like you. I guess you could like me if you tried. Will you marry me? I'll get work on Monday, I'm sure. I've got a half a dollar. Come to the minister with me, and get married and I'll take care of you after this."

What the girl said was:—

"Oh my! Why I never heard of such a thing. What would people say?"

"People will not know—its our own business. I think you'll make a good wife," returned Si. "You need taking care of the worst way. Think about it."

He left her alone and walked up and down. She looked at him—and Si was handsome. He looked at her, and thought again she was the sweetest little thing he had ever seen. He smiled, and really, she smiled too. He went back and sat down beside her.

"Guess we'll go to the minister," he said.

"Well you don't know the least thing about me," she said, "and I can't see how you can like me enough."

"I can't see either," he admitted, "but I do like you better than ever I liked any other girl."

"I feel that way to you," she said.

And they walked to the house of the old minister, who was willing to take his fee in thanks and give them his blessing into the bargain.

And Si and Annie were husband and wife.

On Monday, Si Collins went forth in search for work, rather more anxiously than before, and I am sorry to say he found none.

He remained away all day and returned home in very low spirits.

Annie had prepared supper. She had cooked two red herrings at Mrs. Romey's fire, and set the candle stand with a cloth, on which she had placed two wooden pie plates and two tin cups. The bread was sliced nicely and a "drawing of tea" had been made in a pitcher.

The room was tidy, the window shone, and Annie looked happy.

Si began to be cheerful again.

"To be sure I had not luck to-day, but it will come to-morrow," he said as he sat down to supper.

Annie looked very pretty on the side of the tiny table.

"If only a man could be sure of a good living," Si thought, "he would be much happier married than single."

After tea Annie cleared away the things and Si went out on the stair-case with his pipe while she did so. He believed that women disliked smoke, but knew Annie would never admit the fact.

As he sat there, wondering where he should go to look for work the next day, a gentleman came stumbling up the dark stairs.

"I am looking for a Mr. Si Collins," he said.

"That's my name," said Si.

"You are a married man sir?" said the gentleman.

"Yes, sir," said Si. "I've been married about two days, if that will do."

"Ah—you are the right man, and its your wife I want," said the gentleman.

Si's heart sank.

"What do you want her for?" thinking only of misfortune.

"To ask a few questions," said the gentleman.

"We have very small quarters," said Si; "but come in."

He pushed open the door of the tiny room, but before he could speak Annie ran forward with outstretched hands.

"Mr. Cummings!" she cried.

"Yes, Mr. Cummings, Annie," said the gentleman. "I've been looking for you six months. I really began to believe you dead, when I met an old friend of mine, a clergyman, and happening to speak of my fruitless mission, he told me he had married a young lady of your name on Saturday. Farewell is not a common name, though Annie is, and as the Rev. Mr. Darrow had learned your husband's place of residence, I came here to see if the bride were by any chance my lost heiress. I find that she is."

"An heiress!" cried Annie.

"Yes, my dear," said Mr. Cummings. "Your stepmother represented you as having been sent to boarding school, and it was only on taking the property in charge again at her death, which occurred six months ago, that we discovered how you had been used. You should have come at once to your father's lawyers. The rights of your stepmother ended with her life. And though she gave a good deal of cash to her second husband, you are still very rich, and only to take possession of your property in regular form."

"It is like dream," said Annie. "I am glad papa did not forget me: that was the best thought I had to bear."

"And I shouldn't wonder if this fortune were acceptable just now," said Mr. Cummings, as he took his leave.

But Si stood silent after he had gone, and his face was very grave. At last he said:—"Well, Annie, are you sorrow that you are married me now? I had no idea I was a fortune hunter."

"Si," cried Annie, "I should be lying dead if it were not for you. Or, if I had been saved and sent to prison, perhaps Mr. Cummings never would have found me. It all came about because you was so generous to poor little me, whom most men would have suspected of being a very wicked girl; and all my life I shall spend in trying to pay you. Sorry? Oh, no, Si. Already, though I have been your wife such a little while, I care a great deal more for you than I could for any fortune, and we shall be so happy on the old place, with plenty to live upon."

They were.—St. Louis Spectator.

EYES AND EARS.

School is over, school-books are closed, and now, ho! for vacation. Soon the boys and girls will swarm in the woods and meadows, by the seashore and on the mountains in that glorious out-of-door country where, if our eyes are wide open, so many lessons may be learned not found in any school-room.

When we pack our trunks let us have, amidst the balls and bats, the fishing-rod, the tennis racket, the story-books, and the fancy-work, a little space for a book, of which I wish to tell you. Older people may perhaps learn these lessons of nature's study with even more pleasure than the children.

The title of this book is "Birds Through an Opera-Glass," by Florence A. Merriam of Smith College, published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., costing but seventy-five cents. It is a small book, and so simple that any one may understand it, though they have had no previous knowledge of birds.

It describes all our common birds, and so classifies them that any bright, observant child, seeing a bird, may note its color, and some of its characteristics, and then find its name and learn of its habits, thereby gaining a friend for whose return, each succeeding Spring, he will watch with ever increasing pleasure.

One of my girl friends began this most fascinating study during her last summer vacation. She knew scarcely more than the names of the robin and the bluebird. When the birds returned this Spring she was able to identify over forty varieties, with no other aid than that found in the book we have mentioned.

All these were seen in the orchard surrounding the house, in the intervals of busy days, and in a region where very many of our native birds are not seen.

Had not this book been placed in her hands she would have lost hours of simple, lasting pleasure. She would have been blind to a courtship which occurred in the garden one bright, Spring morning, three robins had arrived from the South, two seeking the same bride. The coquetry and shyness of the lady-bird and the daring and advances of the others, may be watched among their human friends. The nest-building, the rearing of the little family might have passed unnoticed; the song of the robin might have been unheard, as perched upon the tree-top he pours forth his morning and evening song, saying so plainly, "Cheerily, cheerily, cheer up! cheer up!"

She never would have learned the lesson of patience that summer afternoon, when the tiny birds must leave their carefully guarded nest and take up life upon their own responsibility. The mother bird perched upon a neighboring branch, a dainty worm morsel in her mouth, called again and again, as if to say, "Come! come! come!" turning and looking at the baby birds each moment she would lift her wings as they must do. All this, over and over again; and the little ones did not leave the nest that day either! The next day because she was watching the nest my friend heard the first vocal lesson given! The father bird coming near very early in the morning, repeated his song, that the little ones might catch the strain, the thin piping voices then were heard, as one by one the children tried to imitate him.

Not till the mother bird came with an admonishing note, as though she said, "Louder! louder! my children," did they gain more power and voice. Thus ended the first music lesson.

The child who has been taught to observe these things, when he looks at the nest of the yellow-hammer and notices the exact circle which that bird makes, without compass or rule, will think who gives the bird his skill; will learn a lesson from the patience with which he works, as bit by bit the soft wood falls to the ground, the chips around the tree trunk being always a sign to lead you to his nest.

More and more of these delights I would tell you; of the noisy oriole, the most brilliant of all our birds. Notice his wonderful hanging nest on one of the topmost boughs of the elm, where each breeze will gently rock the babies to sleep. As he searches for his food, hear the busy fellow stopping every moment to carol forth his glee. He never goes far from home and to the faithful mother bird, minding her homely duties, he seems to say, "Never fear! I am here."

Find if you can that most exquisite bit of workmanship, the nest of the humming-bird: how daintily it is formed, how far beyond human skill is the delicacy of that tiny cup.

Then in the late afternoon listen to the chimney-swifts as they chase each other in the upper air, you will hear, if you listen, how they say, "Chippy, chippy, chirio, not a man in Dario can catch a chippy, chippy, chirio."

These lessons from the birds are full of pure delight. Burroughs says, "When a man has trapped his first bird, he is in for it for life." Take this bird book with you, study it, watch the birds and experience your pleasure in identifying a new one. Burroughs also says, "That wherever in after years you may roam, however far from home, you will find old friends among the birds, and will have a feeling of home amid strangers."

The best time for this study is in the early spring, the mating and nest building season; but if you begin your study and observation now, when next spring comes, you can watch the arrivals from the South with some degree of intelligence, gaining much from this preparation. Longfellow has beautifully expressed my thought for you, in these words:

Do you ne'er think what wondrous beings these?
Do you ne'er think who made them, and who taught
The dialect they speak?"

Read the poem, "The Birds of Killingworth," and also if you can, Macdonald's quaint poem, "Consider the Ravens."

Millbury, July 9, 1891.

W.

Miss Marion J. Blood and Miss Jennie L. Morrill will spend the remainder of this month and the first of August in Maine. Miss Blood will stop at Belfast and Bar Harbor and Miss Morrill will visit friends and relatives at Moosehead Lake, Mt. Katahdin, Brownville and Monson.

Fly Fishing.

"The charms of fly-fishing have been sung in song and story from time immemorial by the practically gifted devotees of the gentle art, who have embalmed the memory of its æsthetic features in the living green of graceful ferns, in the sweet-scented flowers of dell and dingle, and in the liquid music of purling streams and still there are anglers who aspire to more aristocratic, scientific or exhilarating mode of killing the lordly salmo fontinalis, or black bass trolling or still fishing. Were such unfortunates once to taste of the sweets of this most fascinating mode of angling they would certainly never go back to bait fishing from choice. It has been well said that fly-fishing bears the same relations to bait fishing that poetry does to prose, and while not every one who casts the fly attains perfection in the art it is within the reach of all who practise it, con amore, to acquire sufficient skill in a very short time to afford him more real enjoyment than he can ever derive from bait fishing.

To land a trout of three or four pounds weight, with a tiny fly attached to a gut line almost as delicate as a piece of sewing silk, with a slender rod of only a few ounces in weight is a performance calculated to quicken the pulse, demands presence of mind and calls for consummate skill. Such an achievement awakens the most pleasurable emotions.

I hear some one say that fly fishing is only indulged in by the pen of our local angler who can afford a trip to the Rangely Lakes or other distant fishing resorts, therefore we have to make a virtue of necessity and be content with our angle worm fishing. To such I would say that there is no more gamey fish that rises to the fly than the black bass, which is to be found in many of the ponds in Worcester County and adjacent waters. I frequently took from ten to fifteen bass of an evening last summer in a pond within easy walking distance of the city, sometimes two at a cast and I hope to spend many a quiet evening hour there again this summer. The open season for Black Bass in this state is from July first to December first.

If you cannot visit the trout resort of Maine or elsewhere this year, your time may come and aside from the pleasure derived at home casting for bass, you will be acquiring a knowledge in the art of fly fishing which can only be gained by experience and will prove of great advantage to you when your time comes to cast for trout; and avoid the humiliation experienced by one of a party who hooked a five pound trout at Rangely and thought he could yank him out as he used to do brook trout and pouts at home, much to his own chagrin and the disgust of the other members of the party. One of the best evening flies for bass is the White Miller, nearly all the fish I killed last season were on that fly. I found they would take it after dark. I have caught them on moonlight nights after nine o'clock. Other good flies are the scarlet Ibis, Cherry, Polka and Coachman. Early in the season the bass is in shallow water and will rise freely to the fly, later he retires to deep water and will not be easily attracted to the surface. Trout fishing in this vicinity this season is practically a failure, but lots of fun can be had with the black bass.

Henry P. Wells in his admirable book "Fly Rods and Fly Tackle," says: That fishing with the fly is not in greater favor as a ladies' amusement is matter for regret. Where the use of a boat is practicable, there is no earthly reason why they should not derive the same mental, moral, and physical benefit as do men. It is a gentle pursuit, and a cleanly one, and affords an ample field for the exercise of that manual delicacy and skill for which women are pre-eminent: while at the same time, unlike almost every other out of door sport, no great muscular exertion is required, nor over-fatigue incurred."

Whether the ladies really have their fair share of the amusements of life may well be questioned; while it is beyond dispute that the direction in which custom now permits them to seek recreation, are not, to say the least, to their physical advantage.

In concluding this rambling letter I would say that I make no pretensions whatever to excellence in fly casting, nevertheless, I have killed more trout and bass with the fly than by any other mode of angling, and I join hands with a Worcester member of the Oquoosoc Angling Association who says I would rather kill one trout with the fly than four by trolling.

GEO. H. BURTIS.

Worcester, Mass.

ABOUT FOLKS.

Arthur Burnham of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. George Burnham of Albany are in this city. The young men are sons of Deacon Woodbridge Burnham of Ilowe Street and Mrs. George Burnham is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren J. Cutting of West Street. All were High School pupils and Mrs. Burnham spent one year at Cornell.

Cashier Hammond is able to ride out and to visit the Bank; but he remembers nothing of the accident.

Judge Nelson's sons Leverett and William are on a tramp among the White Mountains.

Miss May Hartwell, Miss Florence Nichols, Miss Carrie Sweetser and Miss May Eddy left Monday for Niagara Falls, after which they will make an extended tour of the British colonies.

Walter G. Wesson of this city has been installed as general manager of the George A. Schastey Wood Working Company of Springfield.

B. A. Lemont, the energetic secretary of the Bay State Bicycle Club, left Tuesday for Augusta, Me., for a two weeks' vacation trip. He will show the Maineacs how to use the pneumatic wheel.

Mrs. Jennie E. Dowe of this city has Spanish Songs in July Century. She has Irish Songs in press.

Miss Addie M. Harthan has been spending a week in Lynn.

Rev. John D. Pickles and family left the city Tuesday for a visit of several weeks, to East Boothbay, Me., where relatives of Mr. Pickles reside. Trinity pulpit will be supplied from Boston during his absence.

Anna G. Moore, and Etta M. Thayer teachers at Ash Street School are spending their vacation at York Beach, Me.

The following Worcester people are whiling away the tedious summer days at Buttonwood, R. I.: Mr. Thomas Butler, wife and family, Misses Fannie and Minnie Todd, and Misses Susie, Sadie and Bessie Dewhurst, daughter of Geo. W. Dewhurst, the Park Street carriage dealer.

Miss Nellie G. Tucker will have charge of Clerk Freeman Brown's office during his vacation absence.

Miss Lizzie E. Norcross is at Monument Beach.

President G. Stanley Hall of Clark University was one of the after-dinner speakers at the banquet which closed the sessions of the university convocation just held in Albany.

Dwight A. Davis and family have returned from Lynn.

Of the class of '91, W. H. S., Ruth M. Pettit and Winnie E. Hill are at Cottage City; Margie Dickinson and Louise Scott are at Dennis and Ada M. Carter is in Wells, Vt.

Hon. John R. Thayer and family visit Putnam, Conn.

M. J. Cunningham, of Barnard, Sumner & Co., takes vacation at Monument Beach.

Mrs. Lillie Wilkinson is in New York but will soon go to Long Branch for the remainder of the summer.

The Worcester Driving Park Company advertises a program for the August meet as follows: Tuesday, August 4th, 3-minute stake race and 2:27 class, for trotters; Wednesday August 5th, 4-year-old stake race, 2:35 class, stake race, and 2:37 class, trot and pace; Thursday, August 6th, 2:40 class, stake race, and 2:33 class, for trotters; Friday August 7th, free-for-all, trot and pace 2:29 class, trot and pace. The purses in the class events are $400 with 10 per cent entrance. The sweepstake races will be $30 entrance, with $100 added, the horses to be named July 20th. The club reserves the right to change the program.

A horse distancing the field will be entitled to first money only.

The club voted to charge but 25 cents admission to the August meeting,

Fifteen Years.

That is just the length of time intervening since Major F. G. Stiles signed the pledge and became a member of the Worcester Reform Club. His friends and associates mindful of these facts determined to make last Sunday night's meeting a commemorative one. The speakers were the president, William H. Robinson, Vice President Alexander Comrie, James McCullough, James L. Scott, Alfred D. Hall, H. E. Walker, George E. Weldon, J. A. Stowell, J. H. Hession, P. H. Durkin, Mr. Costigan and James Cahill of the Father Mathew Total Abstinence Society.

The Major, himself, responded very feelingly and appropriately, thanking all for their interest in him and each other. As he always does, he spoke to the point and impressed all listeners with his sincerity and devotion to the cause of sobriety and temperance.

FOR THE LAUNDRY.
BRUSSELS
 SOAP.

HENRY A. BOWMAN & CO.

MANUFACTURERS OF

AWNINGS,
 TENTS,
 FLAGS.

HORSE, WAGONS,

AND ALL KINDS OF

Canvas Covers.

Tents for Sale and To Rent. Waterproof Tents by our new process guaranteed not to leak. The above cut represents our popular lawn tent, in Stock and made to order, 418 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

About Folks.

Lee Russell, son of Principal Russell of the Normal School, W. H. S. and "Tech" '88, has received an appointment as principal of the Manual Training School in Halifax, N. S. For the past year he has been an instructor in the Institute.

Charles E. L. Briggs, Assistant Superintendent of Mails, and Mark N. Skerrett, Stamping Clerk at the Post Office, are off for one week. Both are former High School boys.

Miss Alice Rice, Miss Gallup and Mr. Geo. Lackey are having two weeks' vacation at Scituate.

The young men, among whom were Earle Brown and Arthur Morse of this city who took a canoeing trip in the Nashua River, had adventures that Thoreau wot not of. They had to fight tramps while trying to pass the night in a deserted mill. Write a book boys!

Miss Cora B. Eaton will attend the Summer School at Cottage City, taking Kindergarten and primary work.

Secretary Gale, Y. M. C. A., addressed the Clinton Association Friday evening the 10th inst.

Charles F. Aldrich has been made Commissioner of Deeds for Michigan by Governor Winans.

Miss Mamie Donovan of Columbia Street, will pass a months' vacation in Rhode Island.

W. H. Hobbs and family will spend the summer at Sterling.

Miss Anna Lajoie of Gardner is the guest of Elie Belisle of South Worcester.

Even Judges take vacations but in an intellectual way. Judge Aldrich is at Plymouth, School of Ethics.

Rev. E. P. Greenige has just returned from Conference in Providence.

Mrs. M. B. Walls and Mrs. R. C. Walls have gone to Lockport, N. Y.

Dr. A. H. Vinton will soon leave the city for a two weeks' vacation.

W. I. Paul and family spend the summer in Portsmouth, N. H.

Dr. Mellus' family summers at York Beach, Maine.

W. F. Little and wife rusticate at Shrewsbury.

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place at an early day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of

Fine Monumental Work,

131 Central Street,

near Summer.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

W. A. ENGLAND,

DEALER IN

FINE WATCHES,

CLOCKS, JEWELRY

& OPTICAL GOODS.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

394 Main Street.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,

Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, *

NO. 156 MAIN STREET,

H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

J. A. Long

NOW

IS YOUR TIME TO

SAVE MONEY

For this month we offer special discounts in our very large stock of FURNITURE.

Our prices are away down, and you will say so when you see the goods and prices.

Our $34 XVI Century finish Chamber Sets Reduced to $28. They are beauties, and cannot be beat.

We also have Oak Finish Chamber Sets, $23, regular price $27.

Don't forget we are giving the same bargains in all our Stock, and now is your time.

J A. LONG

Franklin Square Furniture Rooms,

555 Main St.

Good to Eat.

Lemon Pudding.

Pour a quart of boiling milk over 1 ½ pints of bread crumbs. Put the mixture into a buttered pudding dish, stir in a teaspoon of salt, cover closely with a plate and let it stand half an hour. At the end of that time, beat into it three eggs and a teaspoonful of lemon extract. Beat it until it is perfectly smooth, and bake it in a hot oven about three quarters of an hour.

Creamed Onions.

Put a dozen onions in a pan of cool water and take off their skins. Put them in a saucepan of boiling water with a teaspoonful of salt, and boil them until tender. In the meantime melt in a small saucepan a tablespoonful of butter, add a tablespoonful of flour, and when it froths stir in a half pint of milk, stirring until it boils; now drain the onions, pour this sauce over them, and set them where they will only simmer gently until dinner is ready.—Boston Budget.

Bananas in Jelly.

Make a mold of lemon jelly. Cut bananas in slices, and line the bottom and sides of a mold. Pour the jelly in slowly, that it may not float the fruit. Keep in ice water until hard. If you have no mold, use a small, round, glass dish. Put the sliced bananas on the bottom, then turn in a little jelly; when hard, put a row around the sides, with spaces between, and fill the centre with bananas; add more jelly, enough to cover. Reserve a cupful of jelly, and when ready to serve, break this up lightly, and scatter it over the top.—House-keepers' Weekly.

Chocolate Cake.

Dissolve two ounces of chocolate in five tablespoonfuls of boiling water; beat a half cup of butter to a cream; add gradually to it one and one-half cups sugar, then add the yolks of four eggs; beat until very light—add half a cup of milk, then the melted chocolate, and last, two cups of sifted flour. Beat thoroughly, and then stir in carefully the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth, add a teaspoonful of baking powder and one of vanilla. Bake in three layers.—Table Talk.

Baked Salmon.

Select a thick piece of salmon, put in the baking-dish. Add half a cup of water and a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Cover the pan with another, the same size, and bake in the oven for thirty minutes. Dish the salmon.

Rub a tablespoonful of butter, and one of flour together. Add gradually one cup or half pint of boiling water. Stir over the fire a moment until it boils. Take it from the fire, add the yolk of an uncooked egg, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, half a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper. Serve the salmon garnished with potato balls, and with sauce in a boat.—Table Talk.

Angel Custards.

Bake the Angel Food batter in muffin-pans or muffin-rings. When cold cut off the tops and remove deftly the inside. Have ready a boiled custard, made of five eggs to four cupfuls of milk, one heaping cupful of sugar, and one teaspoonful of flavoring. Fill each cup with the mixture, and replace the lid. If desired more fanciful, these could be masked with icing, and a candied cherry put on the top of each.—Good Housekeeping.

ORIGINAL. No. 70.

Virginia Corn Bread.

BY MRS. F. L. GILLETTE,

Author White House Cook Book.

Two teaspoonfuls Cleveland's Superior baking powder; two cupfuls white corn meal; one cupful flour; one teaspoonful salt; one tablespoonful sugar; two tablespoonfuls melted butter; three eggs; two and a half cupfuls milk.

Sift together all the dry ingredients, rub in the butter; then add beaten eggs and milk. Mix well and pour into round, buttered pans. Bake from thirty to forty minutes.

Use only Cleveland's baking powder, the proportions are made for that.

"Owing to the purity, strength, effectiveness and constancy of composition of Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder, I have adopted the same for use in my home."

Dr. Mott, late
U. S. Gov. Chemist.
July 23, 1890.

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H. Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists.

11 Pleasant St.,
Worcester, Mass.

Residence, 67 West Street.

The Readers of Light
I most cordially invite
To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything
They would expect to find

In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,

Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,
10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL,
Gold, Silver and Nickel
Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.

13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St.,
Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework,
Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

THE CLARK-

SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

HAVILAND

Decorated China.

ICE CREAM SETS,

several new patterns, consisting of 1 Tray and 12 Plates, in Spray Decorations, soft, harmonious, colors.

Another pattern, solid straw tint, with coral festoon edge, also one with gold traced edge.

Several new gold stippled Ice Cream Sets, which attract much attention. New style flowers glotes, Ruby and Crystal Decorated China Jelly Jars.

THE CLARK-SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

Household.

God grant that when death's night
Is thickening near and far,
All souls that seek a port,
Yet fear the harbor bar,

May see some lamp of Home,
Some softly shining star,
A guide to Rest and Love
Beyond the harbor bar.

—Good Housekeeping

What to do with cold beefsteak.—Chop the best and most tender portions, add hot water enough to moisten slightly, heat quickly and serve at once as soon as hot. Add butter, salt and pepper. The tough parts of steak or of roast beef are much more palatable if boiled first in water to cover until tender. Then use them in any of the ways given for cold meat, as croquettes, hash, mince on toast, stew, ragout, meat and potato pie, braised meat and etc.

To keep the bread jar and cake box sweet, rinse after washing with boiling water in which little common soda has been dissolved; then set out of doors in the sun for a few hours.

A very large fish should not be cooked whole, as the thin part at the tail would be done in much less time than the head and shoulders would require. If you wish to cook it whole, shape it like the letter S, by tying a string around the tail, then wind it around the body, and finally fasten about the head.

The fine Japanese cement is made by mixing rice flour with a sufficient quantity of cold water, and then boiling gently, with constant stirring.

Two New York women have managed to make a sure income by growing sweet herbs, most of the labor having been done by themselves. They have regular customers that look to them for their annual supply, and every fall they may be seen on the streets delivering their neatly tied bunches of sage, thyme, summer savory and sweet marjoram, and soliciting the patronage of new customers. Meat markets look to them for their supply. Herbs are a safe crop, for if there is any interruption to the sale in a green state, they can be dried and sold months after. Would it not be a good idea to study their culture?

There is nothing that equals fresh buttermilk for removing tan, freckles, sunburn or moth spots, says The Ladies' Home Journal. It has the great advantage that it does not injure the skin, but renders it soft, like a little child's. Take a soft cloth or sponge and bathe the face, neck and arms thoroughly with butter milk before retiring for the night; then wipe off the drops lightly. In the morning wash it thoroughly and wipe dry with a crash towel. Two or three such baths will take off all the tan and freckles. It will keep the hands soft and smooth.

To boil asparagus, shave off the hard outside and cut away the woody lower part, rinse in cold water, tie them together in dozens and put them into plenty of boiling water, slightly salted. They ought to be done in twenty minutes. They get hard if left boiling too long, and moreover, would lose their flavor, together with their delicate mineral matters, which render them so valuable. Remove the strings after they are placed on the dish they are to served.

355 Main Street, Worcester.

OUR

Mark-Down Sale

OF ODD

Chamber Sets

will continue until all are sold; but a few remain of those advertised last week. We offer many special bargains in all lines of House-Furnishings, and those who buy now CAN SAVE MONEY. Our buyer is now visiting all the principal factories in the West, purchasing all kinds of Furniture for our Fall Trade, and it is necessary to close out many lines of goods to make room for new purchases.

AN ELEGANT SILK TAPESTRY SUITE, $175 ;
Reduced from $235.

AN ELEGANT RUG SUITE, $185 ;
Reduced from $225.

PLUSH PARLOR SUITES, $40 ;
Reduced from $50.

Other Suites at Low Prices.

CARPET DEPARTMENT.

100 Smyrna Rugs, size 30x60, reduced from $3 75 to $2.75.

Liberal terms of credit if desired, at cash prices.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,

355 MAIN STREET.

Sundry Estates to be Sold for Unpaid Assessments.

COLLECTOR'S NOTICE.

Sidewalk Assessments.

WORCESTER, MASS., July 11, 1891.

The owners and occupants of the following described parcels of real estate, situated in the city and County of Worcester, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, all other parties interested therein, and the public, are hereby notified that the several amounts charged and assessed thereon by sundry decrees of the City Council of said city, passed Sept. 15, Oct. 13, and Nov. 24, 1890, respectively, as hereinafter set forth, on account of the laying out and construction of sundry Sidewalks in said city, under sundry orders of the City Council of Worcester, passed on the several dates herein after stated, said amounts being overdue, and the assessments therefor having been duly committed to me for collection, remain unpaid and that said parcels of real estate will be offered for sale at public auction, at the office of the City Treasurer, No. 12 City Hall, in said Worcester, on MONDAY, THE SEVENTEENTH DAY OF AUGUST, 1891, AT TEN O'CLOCK, A. M., for the payment of said amounts so assessed, together with interest on the same at six per cent. per annum from the several dates when the same became due and payable, respectively, as hereinafter specified, and all costs and charges thereon, unless the same shall be previously discharged, viz:

No. 1823. LEON H. BASSETT.
About fifty-six hundred and fifty-two square feet of land, situated on the easterly side of Millbury Street, between the estate now or formerly of Annie M. Erickson, and the estate now or formerly of the Heirs of Martin Madden, and now or formerly owned by said Leon H. Bassett.
Order of May 26, 1890.
Assessed Sept. 15, 1890.
Interest from Oct. 15, 1890.
Amount assessed, $37.91.

1833. GEORGE H. COATES.
About seventeen thousand, seven hundred and sixty square feet of land, situated on the westerly side of Dewey Street, between the estate now or formerly of J. F. Healy, and Chandler Street, and now or formerly owned by said George H. Coates.
Order of June 16, 1890.
Assessed Sept. 15, 1890.
Interest from Oct. 15, 1890.
Amount assessed, $110.24.

No. 1923. LUCY ANN DOLLEN.
About nineteen thousand, one hundred and fifty square feet of land, situated on the south-easterly side of Southbridge Street between the estate now or formerly of the Heirs of Michael McGeaness, and the estate now or formerly of James A. Bowman, and now or formerly owned by said Lucy Ann Dollen.
Order of June 2, 1890.
Assessed Oct. 13, 1890.
Interest from Nov. 12, 1890.
Amount assessed, $69.73.

No. 1901. DANIEL McCORMICK.
About seventy-four hundred and seventy-nine square feet of land, situated on the westerly side of Eastern Avenue between the estate now or formerly of Christine Lundberg and Farwell Street, and now or formerly owned by said Daniel McCormick.
Order of Oct. 29, 1888.
Assessed Oct. 13, 1890.
Interest from Nov. 12, 1890.
Amount assessed, $50.49.

No. 1952. CATHARINE MULCAHY.
About fifty-six hundred and five square feet of land situated on the northerly side of Cambridge Street between the Providence and Worcester Railroad and Kansas Street, and now or formerly owned by said Catharine Mulcahy.
Order of Sept. 15, 1890.
Assessed Nov. 24, 1890.
Interest from Dec. 24, 1890.
Amount assessed, $27.98.

WM. S. BARTON,
Treasurer and Collector of Taxes for the City of Worcester.

Worcester Coal Company,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

SHREWSBURY.

The Highland Farm House, under the management of the genial landlord, Mr. H. W. Loring, is increasing in popularity and already all the rooms have been engaged for the month of August. Many of the boarders are from Boston, Lynn, New York and the other large cities, while Mr. Will Little and family, and Rev. Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Lovering are registered from this city.

Mr. Leander Ware, with his daughter, grand-daughters and great grand-children, of Providence, are stopping with Mrs. Carey on Main Street. Mr. Ware has an elegant summer residence in Providence called "Sycamore Lodge."

Miss Sherborne of New York, reported to be worth several million, in her own right, and a great dog fancier, is stopping on Wesleyan Street.

Mr. Edward Rice, who has been at Columbia College the past year, is at home for the Summer.

Miss Alice Tucker, class of '91 Shrewsbury High School, will pursue a special course of study at Wellesley next year.

Mr. Clifton Mahoney, teacher in book keeping at Becker's Business College, will spend his vacation in town with friends.

The Methodist Church people held a lawn party at the residence of Mr. C. H. Fales on Golden Hill, Thursday evening. Ice cream, cake and lemonade were on sale. A large number attended.

A large number attended the Grocers' and Butchers' picnic from Worcester, at Nantasket, Wednesday.

Mr. Kendall, of the Star Clothing Co., with his family has just moved into his new house on Main Street.

Miss Minnie Cogswell, of the class of '91, S. H. S., was in Worcester the past week, the guest of Miss Mamie Banfield.

The Pheleg Davis farm, on the Grafton road, is for sale.

Mr. A. H. Merriam was in town the past week, the guest of Mrs. Harlow, on Main Street. Mr. Merriam, in company with Miss Alice Tucker of this town, will spend the month of August at Nantucket, with Mr. H. H. Merriam and family.

Mr. Henry Walker of Worcester is stopping at the Colton cottage on Main Street.

Geo. T. Woodward leaves Monday evening, July 20, for a six weeks cruise on the Maine coast. He will make South Bristol his headquarters. He is one of the crew of the Viola M. Brewer of Portland.

Mrs. Charles Russell and her daughter, Mrs. G. Maud Jillson, of New York city, formerly of Worcester, are visiting Mrs. Russell's brother, J. W. Wilder on Salem Street. Mrs. Russell has been an invalid for several years and is still very feeble and a great sufferer. She has come here by the advice of her physicians, hoping the change may prove beneficial. Mr. Russell came over with his wife and daughter but returned to New York Monday night.

Miss Loilla Kies of Erie, Pa., is in the city, attending the Crescent Tournament. Miss Kies is an adept at tennis and has taken great interest in the local matches.

Sundry Estates to be Sold for Unpaid Assessments.

COLLECTOR'S NOTICE.

Sundry Street Betterments.

WORCESTER, MASS., July 11, 1891.

The owners and occupants of the following described parcels of real estate, situated in the city and County of Worcester, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and the public, are hereby notified that the several amounts charged and assessed thereon by sundry decrees of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen of said city, adopted January 3, September 6, and Nov. 10, 1890, respectively, as hereinafter set forth, for their proportionate shares of the cost of laying out, locating and constructing sundry street s, under sundry orders of the City Council of Worcester passed on the several dates hereinafter stated, and duly committed to me for collection, remain unpaid, and that said parcels of real estate will be offered for sale by public auction, at the office of the City Treasurer, No. 12 City Hall, in said Worcester, on MONDAY, the seventeenth day of August, 1891, at 10 o'clock, a. m., for the payment of said amounts so assessed, together with interest thereon from sundry dates, respectively, as hereinafter set forth, when the same became due and payable, until the day of payment, and all costs and charges thereon, unless the same shall be previously discharged, viz:

No. 852. AMY A. HAGER.
About sixty-nine hundred square feet of land, situated on the easterly side of Florence Street, between the estate now or formerly of Alice L. Howarth et al, and the estate now or formerly of F. C. Walton et al, and now or formerly owned by said Amy A. Hager.
Amount assessed January 3, 1890, $10.00
Order of May 7, 1890,
Interest from February 3, 1890.

No. 969. JULIA HANNIGAN.
About seventeen hundred square feet of land situated on the easterly side of Harding street, between the estate now or formerly of Dennis Cahill and Franklin street, and now or formerly owned by said Julia Hannigan.
Amount assessed September 6, 1890, $34.00
Order of May 20, 1889,
Interest from October 6, 1890.

No. 932. JAMES C. AND ELIZABETH LOVE.
About forty-three thousand, five hundred and sixty square feet of land, situated on the easterly side of Byron street between the estate now or formerly of Dolly H. Bennett and the location of the Boston and Maine railroad, and now or formerly owned by said James C. and Elizabeth Love.
Amount assessed January 3, 1890, $25.00
Order of September 24, 1888,
Interest from February 3, 1890.

No. 993. WILLIAM H. SHERMAN.
About sixteen thousand, four hundred and ninety-six square feet of land, situated on the northerly side of Prospect street, between the estate now or formerly of Eli A. Cross, and Eastern Avenue, and now or formerly owned by said William H. Sherman.
Amount assessed November 10, 1890, $70.35
Order of May 26, 1890,
Interest from December 10, 1890.

WM. S. BARTON,
Treasurer and Collector of Taxes for the City of Worcester.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always
be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

RICHARD HEALY.

Summer :-: Waists,

Suitable to wear with odd Skirts, STYLISH PERFECT FITTING, and becoming to all figures, made of French PERCALES, MADRAS, CHEVIOT, FRENCH SATEENS and CAMBRIC. Prices reduced to 39c, 50c 75c and $1.00.

All our LADIES LAUNDERED SHIRTS, plaited backs, reduced to 95c; regular price 1.25

Richard Healy, 512 Main St.

About Folks.

Wm. A. Howland, a son of Dr. A. A. Howland is visiting here for a few days. Since graduation in 1889, at the High School, he has devoted himself to music and with great success. He is basso at the Church of the Intercession in New York and has just returned from an extended concert tour through the West.

Mr. J. H. Washburn was one of the judges at the Mystic Park races the past week.

Dr. H. Y. Simpson and Col. H. E. Smith arranged a very enjoyable picnic at Jordan's Point last Tuesday. It was strictly a family affair and all the pleasanter for this reason. In all twenty-one were present. The club house of the Jordan Pond associates was used by the picnickers. Those in attendance were Hon. J. H. Walker and wife, Dr. Simpson and family, Col. Smith and family, Mrs. S. D. Davenport and family, Mrs. Jane M. Kelley and Dr. Thomas H. Gage. All are near relatives except Dr. Gage who was invited as a friend.

Walter K. Mellor, Frank H. Brown, George K. Mellor, William J. Clarke and George Volkmar are going to Bocobek, N. B., the 1st of August, to camp out for four weeks.

The Hampshire Gazette of Northampton, has the following in regard to Rev. Philip M. Washburn, son of Charles F. Washburn of this city: "Rector Washburn's speech at the High School alumni reunion establishes his reputation as the readiest, brightest speaker in the city. He always has an idea and he always says it entertainingly, but he outdid himself at this last event. He is the Chauncey M. Depew of the city."

Our Runaway.

On our quiet street, we don't often have excitements; but Tuesday evening there came an agonized "whoa" and then a sound "decidedly like a spill." If that horse should live to run away a score of times hereafter he couldn't do again what he did then. It was one of Pettibone's teams from the Pleasant Street market, and he rounded from Harvard into Dix Street, turned the wagon on one side, stopped short against a young tree, broke both tugs, spilled every basket and was halted with head towards the wagon and not a scratch on him. Every dweller in the vicinity repaired to the scene. They turned the wagon down, the boys ate the broken watermelon, the harness was picked up and the section returned to its regular quiet. Nothing disturbs us, when the "Tech" has a vacation, save the passing of processions on Harvard Street. This runaway will furnish a theme for neighborhood talk for weeks to come. "Glad no one was hurt, not even the horse."

Mr. Bowser.

They do say that this Detroit gentleman has come to Worcester. The other morning he looked up at the clock, it was between eight and nine, and remarked that he would be going off to his work. "Don't hurry," says his thoughtful wife, "take your time, and what does it matter if you are not at the shop just on the dot." But Mr. Bowser was on his dignity and remarked that he guessed he knew when it was time to leave and so marched down the street to a street car and seated himself in solemn grandeur, reflecting on how little women knew of the actual facts of living. Before he had fully settled the status of woman-kind, he found he had left all his money at home; but he thought he could persuade the driver to wait till the afternoon trip. But as he neared the end of the route, he discovered that he had forgotten the key to his shop. Mr. Bowser was in a fix; but he bethought himself of some errands, which done, he went home much to the astonishment of his wife who wanted to know why he was back so soon. Now was Mr. Bowser's chance, so he says, "Through your hurrying me off so this morning, I went away without any money and keys. It does seem as though women ought attend to their own business" and with this flourish, Mr. Bowser departed without even a farewell to his faithful spouse. By noon, he had so far relented that he came home to eat a carefully prepared dinner and the probabilities are that he will continue to submit to such well meant persecutions in the future.

Tents

If there are any campers out who have not bought their tents they ought to read Mr. Bowman's advertisement. It is good reading for any one who wants awnings or tents. Mr. Bowman is a reliable workman.

"If you should happen to want your ears pierced, just pinch the baby."

J. W. GREENE, P L U M B E R.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,

Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand,) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

Harness and Saddlery,

RELIABLE GOODS
and LOWEST PRICES.

R. McALEER & CO.,

155 MAIN STREET.

PHOTOGRAPHER.

Children's
Portraits
A Specialty

326 MAIN ST.,
Opp. Mechanics Hall.

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,

* PRINTERS. *

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,

DEALER IN

Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

Leicester.

Miss Edna Smith and her mother from Newburyport are visiting the family of Wm. F. Holman.

It was thirty years last Thursday since L. T. Thurston became postmaster. His predecessor was Henry D. Hatch and the post office was located in the brick building which is now occupied by Albert E. Booth as an apothecary store. Mr. Thurston is a republican and a strong temperance man, facts which prove his power and faithfulness in the discharge of his duties. When a man proves himself loyal through sunshine and shade, it is a test of purity without alloy. Mr. Thurston is entitled to the congratulations of his many friends, and the good wishes for long life and prosperity.

The young people, to the number of twenty five picnicked on Watson's island Thursday evening. The moon, a large bonfire and chinese lanterns reflected enough light on many faces to show the good cheer of all pleasure seekers. BETTINA.

It was a happy thought to give Fred W. Smith and wife a serenade last Wednesday night. The Worcester Brass Band made the music. The Groom's father, George H. Smith, is a member of the Band, and the organization did the same thing for him when he was married twenty-four years ago.

A. C. Copeland, President of the Bay State Bicycle Club, was presented with a diamond scarf pin and gold sleeve buttons by the club, recently. It pays to be a good officer.

Mrs. J. M. Buzzell, with her son, J. Wm., Polytechnic Institute '93, will spend the vacation in Brattleboro, Vt.

C. A. Hoppin Jr., of the Denholm & McKay Co., will leave next week for a three weeks vacation in Concord and at the shore.

Otis R. Parker of the Y. M. C. A., left Thursday for a two weeks vacation.

David M. Davis, representing Ford, Howard and Hurlbert, is canvassing Worcester for Edwin Forbes' famous War Etchings. Every old soldier knows what they are and what they are worth. They are now offered in a new form and at a much reduced rate. Comrade Davis, 10th N. Y., is stopping at the New Waverly, Front Street.

Mrs. Martha A. (Russell) Kimball of Peterboro, N.H., with baby girl, Marion, is visiting her parents in this city.

Mrs. Wright E. Burnham of Albany, daughter of W. J. Cutting of West Street, with her brother, Eddy, is at Nantasket for a month.

Principal Wm. H. Bartlett and wife are in Boston, for a week.

Mr. J. C. Crane of Millbury is about starting for Minnesota to join Capt. Glazier on his exploring trip to the sources of the Mississippi.

MILLBURY.

Mr. C. H. Bailey, of Bailey & Co., of Boston has been spending a few days here making sketches of the town for an engraving.

Rev. Mr. Boynton of Boston supplied the pulpit of the Second Church in the absence of the pastor, Rev. G. P. Eastman, who is at home confined by eye trouble.

Prof. A. H. Evans of Ashburnham occupied the pulpit of the Baptist Church Sunday.

The many friends of Mrs. S. D. King of the West Village, are glad to hear of her continued improvement.

Chas. S. Thebeault has been elected Manager of the Worcester Wall Paper Co., in place of Mr. Harrington.

Mr. S. R. Leavitt of Portland, Me., had a paralytic shock Sunday night at the home of his son-in-law, Dr. G. C. Webber. He was at church morning and evening apparently as well as usual, but was taken about one half hour after reaching home from the evening service.

Miss Young of the University of Cincinnati succeeds Miss Vinal as assistant at the High School.

The Union Odd Fellows excursion takes place August 1st down Providence River.

The Sunday School excursion of the Second Church takes place June 17th at Quinsigamond Park.

The Sunday School of the Methodist Church voted to have a picnic at the same place soon.

The annual field meeting of the Natural History occurs at Webster at the long named lake July 23.

Messrs. Sullivan, Blanpied, Woodard and Howard represent the Highland Tennis Club at the tournament of the Crescent Club. Blanpied defeated Tatman in two straight games Monday.

Everybody is all expectation in regard to the ball game Saturday between the Millbury and Foxes at Fisherville.

The streets were deserted and the stores closed because of the Grocers and Butchers' Excursion Wednesday.

Mr. E. E. Bennett representing the "American Reporter" has been in town for a few days.

The advertisement in this paper of a house for sale at Greendale is in direct keeping with the doctrine constantly preached in LIGHT. Look into the matter. It may be the very house that you want.

N. H. C. is the cabalistic heading of a very neat looking pamphlet emanating from the Natural History Camp. It is from the press of Gilbert Davis and in typography and contents is a great credit to all concerned. Under the efficient direction of Col. Chas. E. Burbank, the camp is succeeding beyond precedent. He has a thoroughly competent staff and the attendance is excellent.

Please read every advertisement in this paper. A cleaner list was never brought together. There is nothing noticed that you cannot patronize with profit.

As to that Index, our explanation in last number did not explain, for the inner signature was not folded as expected; but you, no doubt, succeeded in getting the Index out all right.

Boston Store.

Established 1870.

Sole Agency for Centeneri Gloves, Butterick's Paper Patterns, E. C. Burt's Shoes, Foster Kid Gloves.

Some of the most entertaining books for summer reading that we have.

Ardis Claverden, Stockton, 1.10
Flower de Hundred, .75
The Light That Failed, Kipling, .95
Zadoc Pine and Other Stories, H. C. Bunner, .37½
The Man With a Thumb, Hudson, 37½
Mary St. John, R. N. Carey, .37½
The Soul of Countess Adrian, Mrs. Campbell Praed, .37½
Eric Brighteyes, H. Rider Haggard, .37½
Felicia, Fanny N. J. Holmee, .95
Marguerite, Mary J. Holmes, .95
A New England Nun, Mary Wilkins, .95
In the Heart of the Storm, Maxwell Grey, .18
1000 different paper novels at .10 each
500 different cloth bound novels, .17 each
Flute and Violin, Allen, 1.10
A Window in Thrums, J. M. Barrie, 1.10
Salambo, Flaubert, .95
The Anglomaniacs, .75
Criticism and Fiction, W. D. Howells, .75
Gentlemen, Book on Etiquette, 1.10
Juggernaut, .95
Capt. Blake, Captain Charles King, .95
From Shadow to Sunlight, Marquis of Lorne, .45
Delicate Feasting, Theodore Child, 1.00
Inside the White House in War Times, W. O. Stoddard, .95
On New found River, Thomas Nelson Page, .80
Murvale Eastman, Albion Tourgee, 1.10
A Ward of the Golden Gate, Bret Harte, .95

DENIHOLM & MCKAY COMPANY.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To WARREN J. CUTTING of Worcester, in the County and Commonwealth aforesaid, GREETING: TRUSTING in your care and fidelity, I, WILLIAM T. FORBES, Esquire, Judge of the Probate Court in and for said County of Worcester, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me, do hereby ordain, constitute and appoint you to be administrator of the estate of ASA R. COLLIER late of Blackstone in said County of Worcester, deceased, intestate:

And you are ordered to make and return to said Probate Court, within three months after your appointment, a true inventory of all the real and personal estate of said deceased, which, at the time of the making of such inventory, shall have come to your possession or knowledge.

To administer, according to law, all the personal estate of said deceased which may come to your possession, or of any person for you, and also the proceeds of any of the real estate of said deceased that may be sold or mortgaged by you.

To render, upon oath, a true account of your administration at least once a year, until your trust is fulfilled, unless excused therefrom in any year by said Court; and also render such account at such other times as said Court may order.

To pay to such persons as said Court may direct, any balance remaining in your hands upon the settlement of your accounts;

To deliver your letters of administration into said Court in case any will of said deceased is hereafter duly proved and allowed;

And also, within three months, to cause notice of your appointment to be posted in two or more public places in the city or town in which said deceased last dwelt, or cause the same to be published three weeks successively in the LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester and within one year return your affidavit of having given such notice, with a copy thereof, to the Probate Office.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of said Court to be affixed at Worcester, this Seventh day of July in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

WILLIAM T. FORBES Judge of Probate Court.
Countersigned, F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

Miss Polly Lovell of Dix Street is visiting in Natick, the guest of Mrs. Olive (Marble) Bailey.

Smith's

401 and 403 MAIN ST., COR. MECHANIC,
WALKER BUILDING.

The best value in Summer Corsets is ours at 50c. This one and also our Satisfaction Corset at the same price, are regular 75c Corsets, and 75c is what you will have to pay for them elsewhere.

Thomson's Corsets are always popular. Full lines of sizes in the different qualities always on hand.

There's nothing better for the money than Kabo Corsets. Every pair warranted. Any that break we replace.

All the leading makes of Corsets in stock. Corset Department on first floor, no stairs to climb.

EDW. L. SMITH & CO.

Visit our Stationery Dept.

New * York
STORE.

Headquarters for Ladies' Shirt Waists, 50c, 62c, 69c, 89c and $1.00 a piece.

Also a splendid assortment of Boys' Shirt Waists and Blouses.

A large stock of Ladies' Cotton Underwear just received.

Z. F. Little & Co.,

234 and 238 Main St.

About Folks.

With Captain Glazier in his "up the river" cruise will go Gen'l. E. W. Whittaker, Washington, D. C., formerly Chief of Staff of Kilpatrick, Sheridan, and Custer; Pierce Giles, Camden, N. J.; R. H. Ferguson, Troy, N. Y.; W. S. Shure, York Penn.; F. J. Frost, Photographer, Toledo, Ohio; E. S. Knowlton, Editor of Boston Times; A. Munsell, Ed. Dubuque, Trade Journal, Iowa.

Mr. Frederick E. Abbott, Jr., of this city, was married Wednesday evening, July 15, to Miss Nellie A. Ward of Lakeview. The ceremony took place at No. 171 Austin street at 7.30 p. m. Rev. Leon D. Bliss was the officiating clergyman. After the ceremony, a reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. Abbott, the father and mother of the groom. It was served by Rebboli. The bride's dress was of ecru goods, decorated with tea roses. There were many beautiful and costly presents. Among those present were Mr. J. W. Ward, Mr. A. E. Ward, Mr. E. D. Ward, Miss M. Kibby, Miss C. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Norcross, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Abbott, Miss N. A. Abbott, Mr. H. C. Abbott, Mr. E. E. Abbott, Miss M. A. Abbott, Mr. W. C. Breed, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Munro of Bristol, R. I., Miss I. W. Waldren of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Greene, Miss M. Greene, Miss N. Greene of Shrewsbury, Mrs. W. T. Whiting of Lakeview, Mr. G. Strong, Mrs. C. Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Munroe and family. Mr. and Mrs. Abbott intend making a tour to New York and up the Hudson. On their return they will reside at No. 171 Austin street.

The Old Fifteenth.

Can any veteran of this hard fighting regiment tell who is referred to in the following?
A PREMONITION.

The day before the battle of Antietam, my regiment of Sedgwick's division, Second Corps, were massed waiting orders. A few of our officers with me visited the Fifteenth Mass.; knowing what we must expect in the fight soon to come, and feeling rather shaky myself, I asked the captain how it was he could feel so jolly when he must know what was coming. "I am always so," he replied. "When I enlisted I had a premonition that I should go through the war without a scratch, and as I have been in now a year and a half, I have no fears. After the battle I started to hunt up my friend, and learned that he had been struck with a shell in the breast and completely destroyed.—Seventh Regiment Gazette.

This is the way Mr. Belanger's invention reads "Out West."

"A Massachusetts man claims to have invented a bicycle that any greenhorn can learn to ride in a minute and then write his name in the dust with it in fifteen feet of space, not to mention a speed capacity of two miles in sixty seconds on a good track. It will cost only $70 and can be operated with seven times less power than the old style ones. The only difficulty the rider will experience, owing to the high rate of speed, will be in hanging on. The inventor promises to outrun the fastest train with ease."—Chicago Blade.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

"Talk about blankets."

What! with the mercury way up in the 90's?

Well that seems to be the order of the day.

You see there has been going on for a week a regular July sale of excellent Blankets.

We started it along not expecting much of a deluge, but before we knew it, a case of them had gone, another was fast disappearing and others had to be called in from the great store-house.

Other cases of them will be opened this morning, and will be sold at the old—or the new price of $2.69 a pair.

Its a large blanket, regular 11x4 size, good enough usually to bring $4, but the month of July is not a good month in which to sell blankets, although it proves this year a mighty good month to buy them in.

If you are going to the sea-shore, a pair of good blankets will prove a comfort.

If you are going to camp out, blankets you must have.

If you are likely to want blankets next winter,

Then now is the very time to buy them, when the price is so low for so good a quality and large size.

GOOD BLANKETS,

FULL SIZE,

$2.69 A PAIR,

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

For Sale at Greendale.

A new six room Cottage, Bath room, Back room with running water. Easy payments. Will build houses to suit or sell house lots. Inquire of H. E. WHITEHOUSE, Greendale.

C. REBOLI,

Confectioner * and * Caterer,

6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

J. S. WESBY & SONS,

✦ BOOK * BINDING ✦

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

387 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

THE CRITERION

Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.

231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SHREWSBURY ST.

J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

LAWRENCE,

PHOTOGRAPHER.

492 Main Street.

TAKE ELEVATOR.

AN ACT

Relating to the Sealing of Weights and Measures. Extracts from Chapter 65 of the Public Statutes.

SECT. 12. THE SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES in the several cities and towns shall annually give public notice by advertisement, or by posting in one or more public places in their respective cities and towns notices to all inhabitants or persons having usual places of business therein, and who use weights, measures, or balances for the purpose of selling any goods, wares, merchandise or other commodities for public weighing, to bring in their weights, measures and balances to be adjusted and sealed. Such sealers shall attend in one or more convenient places, and shall adjust, seal and record all weights, measures and balances so brought in.

SECT. 13. AFTER GIVING SAID NOTICE, THE SAID sealers shall go to the houses, stores and shops of persons who neglect to comply therewith, and having entered the same with the assent of the occupants thereof, shall adjust and seal their weights, measures and balances.

SECT. 14. SAID SEALERS SHALL GO ONCE A YEAR, and oftener if necessary, to every hay and coal scale and to every platform balance within their respective cities and towns that cannot be easily or conveniently removed, and shall test the accuracy of and adjust and seal the same.

SECT. 15. ALL PERSONS USING ANY SCALES, weights or measures for the purpose of buying or selling any commodity, may when they desire it, have the same tested and sealed by the sealers of weights and measures at the office of any of said sealers.

SECT. 16. IN CASE A SEALER OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES cannot seal any weights, measures and balances in the manner before provided, he may mark them with a stencil or by other suitable means, so as to show that they have been inspected; but he shall in no case seal or mark as correct any weights, measures or balances which do not conform to the standards. If such weights, measures or balances can be readily adjusted by such means as he has at hand, he may adjust and seal them; but if they cannot be readily adjusted, he shall affix to such weights, measures or balances a notice forbidding their use until he is satisfied that they have been so adjusted as to conform to the standards; and whoever removes said notice without the consent of the officer affixing the same shall for each offence forfeit a sum not exceeding fifty dollars, one-half to the use of the city or town, and one-half to the use of the complainant.

SECT. 17. A SEALER OR HIS DEPUTY, WHEN VISITING the place of business of any person for the purpose of testing any weights, measures or balances, may use for that purpose such weights, measures or balances as he can conveniently carry with him; and each city and town shall furnish its sealer with one or more duplicate sets of weights, measures and balances, which shall at all times be kept to conform to the standards furnished furnished by the commonwealth; and all weights, measures and balances so sealed shall be deemed to be legally sealed, the same as if tested and sealed with the standard weights, measures and balances.

SECT. 18. A SEALER OR DEPUTY SEALER OF WEIGHTS or measures may seize without a warrant such weights, measures or balances as may be necessary to be used as evidence in cases of violation of the law relating to the sealing of weights and measures; such weights, measures or balances to be returned to the owners or forfeited as the court may direct.

SECT. 19. WHEN A COMPLAINT IS MADE TO A sealer of weights and measures by any person, that he has reasonable cause to believe, or when such sealer himself has reasonable cause to believe, that a weight, measure or balance used in the sale of any commodity, within his city or town is incorrect, the said sealer shall go to the place where such weight, measure or balance is, and shall test the same and mark it according to the result of the test applied thereto; and if the same is incorrect and cannot be adjusted, the said sealer shall attach a notice thereto certifying that fact, and forbidding the use thereof until it has been made to conform to the authorized standard. Any person using a weight, measure or balance after a sealer has demanded permission to test the same and has been refused such permission, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars.

SECT. 20. ALL WEIGHTS, MEASURES AND BALANCES that cannot be made to conform to the standard, shall be stamped "condemned" or "C.D." by the sealer; and no person shall thereafter use the same for the weighing or measuring any commodity sold or exchanged, under the penalties provided in the case of the use of false weights or measures.

SECT. 21. IF A PERSON KNOWINGLY USES A FALSE weight, measure, scale, balance or beam, or, after a weight, measure, scale, balance or beam has been adjusted and sealed, alters it so that it does not conform to the public standard, and fraudulently makes use of it, he shall forfeit for each offence fifty dollars, one-half to the use of the city or town, and one-half to the use of the complainant. And every sealer who has a reasonable cause to believe that a weight, measure, scale, balance or beam has been altered since it was last adjusted and sealed shall enter the premises in which it is kept or used, and shall examine the same.

SECT. 22. EACH SEALER OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES, including the deputies of the treasurer and county treasurers, shall receive a fee of three cents for every weight, measure, scale, beam or balance by him sealed, except platform balances. For sealing each platform balance weighing five thousand pounds and upwards, the sealer shall receive one dollar; and for sealing each platform balance weighing less than that amount, fifty cents. Every sealer shall also have a reasonable compensation for all repairs, alterations, and adjustments which it may be necessary for him to make.

E. S. KNOWLES, Sealer.
Office, CITY HALL, Worcester.
Office hours, 8.30 to 11.30 A. M., Mondays and Wednesdays.

Public Library Additions.

Remainder of books added during April. I indicates that the book is in the Intermediate department and may be taken out if specially called for.

Literary Manual of Foreign Quotations - - - - - I
BRUGMANN, K. Comparative Grammar of the Indo Germanic Languages: tr. by R. S. Conway and W. H. D. Rouse, vol. 2 - - - - - I
BUTLER, W. A. Oberammergau, 1890 - - - - - I
Color in the Schoolroom; manual for teachers - - - - - 33981
FLETCHER, W. I. Co-operative Index to Periodicals for 1890 - - - - - I GARDNER, H. H. Is this your Son, my Lord? - - - - - I
—A Thoughtless Yes - - - - - I
HORATIUS FLACCUS, Q. Opera Omnia; with commentary by E. C. Wickham, vol. 2 - - - - - I
LELAND, C. G. Manual of wood carving; rev. by J. J. Holtzapffel - - - - - I
MACLAY, WM. Journal, 1789—1791; ed. by E. S. Maclay - - - - - 33951
MEADE, L. T. The Beresford Prize - - - - - 33952
MEYER, A. N. Ed. Woman's Work in America; introd. by J. W. Howe - - - - - 33953
MUNROE, K. Campmates; a story of the Plains - - - - - 33954
National Education Assoc. Journal of Proceedings, etc., 1889—90 - - - - - I National Life and Thought of various Nations; address by E. Magnus and others - - - - - 33955
OVERTON, J. H. John Wesley - - - - - 33956
PALM, A. J. The Death Penalty; with chapter on War (Questions of the Day) - - - - - 33957
PARSONS, J. C. English Versification - - - - - 33958
PATTEN, C. B. Methods and Machinery of Practical Banking; repr. fr. Rhodes' Journal, rev. etc. - - - - - 33959
PEABODY, A. P. King's Chapel Sermons - - - - - 33960
PEARL, F. M. Mademoiselle - - - - - 33961
PEET, S. D. Prehistoric America, vol. 2, Emblematic Mounds. (Antiquarian lib) - - - - - 33983
PIHSTERER, F. New York in the War of the Rebellion, 1861—65 - - - - - I RECLUS, E. Primitive Folk; studies in comparative ethnology (Contemp. sci. ser.) - - - - - 33962
RIEHL, W. H. Der Fluch der Schönheit; ed. by C. Thomas (Heath's mod. lang. ser.) - - - - - 33963
ROCHE, J. J. Life of J. B. O'Reilly; with his poems, etc., ed. by Mrs. O'Reilly, Introduced by Abp. Gibbons - - - - - 33964
SCUDDER, S. H. Fossil insects of No. America, etc., 2 vols. - - - - - I SEELYE, J. H. Our Father's Kingdom - - - - - I

SEELEY, L. B. Mrs. Thrale, afterwards Mrs. Piozzi; sketch of her life, etc. - - - - - 33965
SHAKESPEARE, W. Works, ed. by H. Staunton, Illust. by Sir J. Gilbert, 15 vols - - - - - I
—New Variorum edition; ed. by H. H. Furness, vol. 8, As You Like It - - - - - I
SHERMAN, P. Tariff Primer; Effects of Protection upon the Farmer and the Laborer (Quest. of the day) - - - - - 33966
SIDNEY, Sir P. An Apologie for poetrie; ed. by E. S. Shuckburgh (Pitt Presser) - - - - - 33967
SMART, H. The Plunger; a turf tragedy of five and twenty years ago - - - - - 33968
SMITH, G. Canada and the Canadian Question - - - - - 33969
SQUIER, E. G. Adventures on the Mosquito Shore - - - - - 33970
SUMNER, W. G. Alexander Hamilton (Makers of America) - - - - - 33971
TALLEYRAND PERIGORD, C. M. de Memoirs; ed. by the Duc de Broglie; tr. by R. L. de Beaufort, 2 vols. - - - - - 33972-3
UFFELMAN, J. Manual of the domestic hygiene of the child; tr. by H. R. Milinowski; ed. by M. P. Jacobi, - - - - - 43977
VIAND, J. (ps. P. Loti) A Child's Romance; tr. by C. Bell - - - - - 33978
WARD, M. A. Petrarch; sketch of his life and works - - - - - 33979
WEGMANN, E. Jr. Design and Construction of masonry dams, etc. - - - - - I
WILLIAMS, M. Later leaves; further reminiscences - - - - - 33980
XENOPHON, Works; tr. by H. G. Dakyns, vol. 1, Hellenica, vols. 1—2, Anabasis - - - - - I Bits from the Jersey Shore.

BELMAR, N. J., July 1.
This region is a surprise to me; we New Englanders think there is no sea coast like our own and the special feature we have always heard attributed to this country is the celebrated muskito, but I have not seen nor heard him yet, no doubt he has gone North for the Summer. There is a fine stretch of sandy beach, and in our drives hereabouts we pass numerous silvery lakes, which, with the beautiful Thank River, afford fine boating and fishing facilities.
The country scenery is wild and picturesque, fertile farms and fragrant woods lie near by, where one would never imagine himself so near the sea.
The hotels opened last Saturday and are now anxiously awaiting the guests that a few warm days would banish from the cities.
Bathers are appearing, cottages awaking, and soon the season will be fully inaugurated. Already Asbury Park and Ocean Grove have a lively appearance, but it must be remembered that the former has a permanent population of ten thousand.
But more attractive to many of us are these quieter resorts, Belmar, Como and Spring Lake
Yes, the New Jersey shore is charming, though far from "a stern and rock-bound coast."
F. H. L.
Mr. F. B. Hodgden of Hyde Park, formerly of Worcester, was in the city Wednesday.

I HAVE THE LARGEST
CARRIAGE :-: REPOSITORY

In New England. You can see over 200 elegant Carriages on one floor. GREAT BARGAINS in Carriages during the present month. This is my twenty-fifth year in business in this city, and my stock is the most extensive I have ever carried.

GEORGE C. DEWHURST,
 Nos. 17 and 19 Park Street. OPPOSITE COMMON.

W. C. T. U.

"Only a cup of cold water!" With Scriptural authority for the value of their deed, the good women of the 2d Temperance Union did on the Fourth one of the best things ever undertaken, gratuitously, in this city. In front of the Burnside Building on Main street and on Front street, before their restaurant, they placed barrels which they kept filled with ice water. Any one who has ever panted for cooling streams in a thirsty land can appreciate the gratefulness with which these places were sought. Though there are a few running hydrants in this city, the water comes from such shallow sources that it is not cool enough to be pleasant. If gratitude hath not fled utterly to the hearts of brutish beasts a whole line of thanks ought to go up for the thoughtfulness of these women.

If a man may presume to suggest to people so fertile in invention, would not a faucet in front of their restaurant be a good counter to some of the gin mills that so environ Washington Square. If men drink because they are thirsty, possibly a chance to get a cup of pure cold water when wanted, might lessen the value of licenses in that delectable locality. Possibly some of the sterner sex, interested, might be influenced to assist in paying the extra outlay, thus necessitated.

An Eye to Business.

Photographer (to young lady)—there is no need of telling you to look pleasant, miss. Such a face cannot be otherwise than peasant.

Young Lady (graciously)—I will take two dozen, sir, instead of one dozen.

A New Singer.

Tuesday morning in the rooms of Mr. Ben T. Hammond, Miss Faith Morse appeared before a small party to indicate the progress that she has made in her musical culture. She is a daughter of Deputy Sheriff C. F. Morse, editor of the Marlboro Times. Fifteen years ago, when only four years old, Miss Morse may be said to have made her debut in Worcester, for at that tender age she won all hearts in the Reform Club by the inimitable way in which she sang. Three years later, in Mechanics Hall, she again won unstinted, applause, appearing upon the platform of that immense room. She has been a singer from infancy, and all her studies have had a musical end in view. The last of June, she returned from Paris where, for two years, she has been under the tuition of Mme. Artôt de Padilla, and to whose instruction, she expects to return at no distant day.

On this occasion she was accompanied by Major F. G. Stiles and wife, friends of the family. Her audience included some of the best musical talent in Worcester and all heard her rendering with exceeding interest. She created a decidedly favorable impression. She has a soprano voice of remarkable clearness and strength. She sings with very little apparent effort and, if there be anything lacking, a year or two more of age and practice will supply it. Among the Festival officers present the impression was general that the young lady has a brilliant musical future. Her accompanist was Mrs. Geo. N. Bassett who accomplished her difficult task of reading the music at sight with the ease and success for which she is noted.

Boston & Albany Railroad.

ONLY
First-Class Through Car Route
 TO THE
WEST!

Commencing June 7, 1891,

Through Trains Leave Worcester:

- 9 50 A. M. (ex. Sunday) Day Express.
- 11.40 A. M. Daily, "Chicago Special."
- 3.25 P. M. Daily, North Shore Limited.
- 4.17 P. M. Daily, Cincinnati and St. Louis Express.
- 8 00 P. M. Daily, Pacific Express.

SPRINGFIELD LINE

FOR

HARTFORD, NEW HAVEN AND NEW YORK.

LEAVE BOSTON.	AR. NEW YORK.
10 13 A. M.	3 30 P. M.
12.12 A. M.	5 30 P. M.
5 06 P. M.*	10 00 P. M.
12.29 A. M.*	6 45 A. M.

*Run Daily.

For tickets, information, time tables, etc., apply to JAMES CUNNINGHAM, Ticket Agent, Union Station.
 A. S. HANSON, Gen. Pass. Agent.

FITCHBURG RAILROAD.

Reduced Rates of Fare

For Round Trip Tickets on Account of Summer

VACATION EXCURSIONS.

On Sale June 1st to September 30th, and good October until 31st, 1891.

FROM BOSTON TO THE

Popular Resorts of New England, New York and Canada.

Including local excursions to places in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont. The only line running Quick Trains, Superb Equipment and Through Cars via

HOOSAC TUNNEL ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO TROY, ALBANY, SARATOGA AND NIAGARA FALLS, AND VIA LAKE CHAMPLAIN ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO

WEST PORT, PORT HENRY, PLATTSBURG, BRANDON, BURLINGTON, ST. ALBANS, ADIRONDACKS and MONTREAL.

Summer Excursion Book

giving information in regard to routes, rates of fare and list of Hotels and Boarding Houses, can be obtained at the Company's office, 250 Washington Street, and mailed free on application to J. R. WATSON, General Passenger Agent, Boston, Mass.

The Ware-Pratt Company

Invite attention to an extensive display of

Fine Clothing for Men, Boys and Children.

The Latest Fashions, Exclusive Styles from our own workshops, Honest Goods and the Lowest Prices, Grade and Quality considered.

Our Custom Department is teeming with the Newest styles, Colorings and Materials, which go to make up the finest lines we have ever shown.

The Ware-Pratt Company,

MANUFACTURERS AND RETAILERS,

408 and 412 Main Street,

Worcester.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts, State of the order March 18, 1891; Membership, 4915; Amount loaned for Relief, $15,200; Reserve Fund, $22,922.40; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,759.08; Total, $44,975.48. Men and women admitted upon the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600.

Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organizers wanted. Address NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester, Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

LATHROP * BROTHERS,

LADIES', MEN'S AND CHILDREN'S

FINE AND MEDIUM SHOES

Of the most approved process of manufacture, meeting every requirement of Quality, Comfort and Style.

564 MAIN STREET, Franklin Square.

LEADING SAFETY BICYCLES.

Solid, Cushion and Pneumatic Tires. Full line of Supplies. Repairing a Specialty.

LEMONT & WHITTEMORE, 39 PEARL ST.

Open evenings.

E. W. COFFIN,

Store Fixtures

310 Main Street, Worcester.

Name this Paper.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

Larkin's, 395 Main St.,
Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps, Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.

Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Grate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD. Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main ST.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LIGHT

---

VOL. III. NO. 21. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, JULY 25, 1891. FIVE CENTS.

---

MR. E. S. KNOWLES,

Proprietor of the Sportsmen's Emporium.

[ENGRAVED EXPRESSLY FOR LIGHT.]

JULY 25.

PUTNAM &amp; SPRAGUE CO.

FURNITURE and UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

We offer everything at a discount. SEE IN OUR WINDOWS samples of the best Refrigerators, and the best Baby Carriages marked in plain figures at prices that will ensure the sale of every one. We shall not carry them over. If you want one NOW is the time to buy.

247 and 249 Main Street, Corner of Central.

YARMOUTH S. S. CO.,

(Limited) Shortest and Most Direct Route Between United States & Nova Scotia, via the favorite sea-going and new steamships "Boston" and "Yarmouth." Sea voyage only 15 to 17 hours. Tickets sold to all parts of Nova Scotia.

Steamer will leave Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston, for Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 12 M. Noon.

Returning will leave Yarmouth for Boston every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Close connections made at Yarmouth with all Railway, Steamboat and Stage lines to all points in N. S.

For further information write for folder or apply to G. V. Lancaster, M. H. Church & Co., O. F. Rawson, Worcester; or J. F. Spinney, Agent, Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the

ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,

92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

C. H. DRAPER,

Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

Three Large Moving Wagons. Baggage Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!

It saves Time,
Labor and Fuel,
(two-thirds cent
per hr. for fuel.)

Manufacturers
Guarantee every
Iron.

TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, M'F'g. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

OXYGEN

We have the genuine

Oxygen Treatment

FOR THE CURE AND PREVENTION OF DISEASE.

It is not a Drug, but Nature's true Restorative in debility and all disordered conditions of the system.

Our Oxygen is fresh every day.

Prepared and administered with the utmost care by a Physician of large experience.

It will pay to investigate our METHODS and PRICES.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

LINCOLN BLOCK,

368 1-2 Main, Cor. Elm.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

Quinsigamond Lake ICE

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Especial attention given to the family trade.

Garfield & Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 143-4.

N. G. TUCKER.

W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER &amp; SON,

SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street.

Worcester, Mass.

New * York

STORE.

Headquarters for Ladies' Shirt Waists, 50c, 62c, 69c, 89c and $1.00 a piece.

Also a splendid assortment of Boys' Shirt Waists and Blouses.

A large stock of Ladies' Cotton Underwear just received.

Z. F. Little &amp; Co.,

234 and 238 Main St.

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY; JULY 25, 1891.

No. 21

"There was a little light
That twinkled in the misty distance."
Shelley—"Queen Mab."

We cannot think of this master of English verse, without recalling the dread night when light failed and the storm arose and engulfed his frail bark, and again when morning light revealed his body, stark and cold upon the beach, and last when the fierce light burned around that body upon its funeral pyre. There was too little of light in that life whose mortal remains repose in the Protestant Cemetery in Rome.

"Important if true."

That was the beginning of many a dispatch in War Times.

Now a-days, the rumor is seldom announced as such. It is boldly proclaimed as a fact and some time with such embellishments as imagination may suggest.

By-and-by, it is found that much that has been given out is wrong. That the rumor was unfounded, that the imaginings were utterly vain; but the retraction never overtakes the first announcement. That has quite too great a start.

The sea of public opinion is even yet tempest tossed over a recent sad proclamation as to a young man who once made Worcester his home. The bare, unqualified facts were bad enough, but to them were added surmises and innuendoes that must have made his parents hearts almost break. LIGHT does not claim any knowledge above or beyond that possessed by the public; but amidst so many flings that are bad, let this be said, in the man's behalf; when he was a boy in school, no better lad did his work there and the High School honored itself in giving to him a diploma; later as an employee of a great corporation, there were only words of commendation for him.

Throwing stones is easy business; very easy for some, but the Bible forestalled this little diversion a long time ago. That through which impelled onward to her death a forsaken creature was exceedingly virtuous, just then. Christ did not specially censure the rabble nor did he commend the victim. Her fault was punishable; but he insisted that those who stoned her should, themselves be blameless. The throwing of missiles became temporarily unpopular. How the crowd sneaked away!

"Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, consider such an one in the spirit of meekness considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted." "But if we all did, there wouldn't be any news," says some over zealous news collector. Worse things might happen than that; what is printed should have substantial foundation. How much would Worcester and the world have lost if the pages of printed matter devoted to a certain mystery had never been read? They imbittered a blameless life, hastened its end, did not solve the problem and who was any better for it all? The truth, the truth, and nothing but the truth let us have; but even that need not be spoken at all times. "All things are lawful; but all things are not expedient."

"Katy did; Katy didn't." This autumnal refrain has been anticipated during these hot days by the controversy as to whether Mr. Lincoln wished Andrew Johnson, rather than Hannibal Hamlin on the ticket with him in 1864. Col. McClure says he did. Mr. Nicolay says he didn't. Both men, exceedingly strenuous, get a host of others to join with them in a chorus of "Did! Didn't!" and the public is not one whit the wiser. The light, extinguished by Wilkes Booth, alone could illumine this matter; but that shines on in another clime where nominations do not interest and where editors do not revile each other. It is a kind of midsummer godsend to the writer who has been wondering what he could do to keep up the interest. As for those who read, they will, as a rule, add this to the long vexed question as to whether Barbara Fritchley really hung out a flag in Fredericktown or whether Washington swore at Monmouth.

If it were not provoking, it would be "too funny for anything." Here is Canada, at our very doors, excluding American newspapers from circulation. She presumes to make discriminations, not contemplated in the postal agreement. She claims that the New England Grocer is more of a circular than a paper and so rules it out. Free Trade England had better take her child in hand. Why should the Grocer be selected for this distinction? Doubtless because the prices stated are less than those that Canadian tradesmen can afford to offer. What is our government to offer in return?

And again we come around to the saloon; and sad it is that we can come to it. The proposition for all temperance workers to pool their issues and to suppress the saloon is timely, but by no means new. It has been preached, here in Worcester, for years. We must try to teach men the sad effects of the use of intoxicants as a beverage; but home customs we are not fighting. Our enemy is the saloon. It is as hostile to us and ours as the serpent and tiger of India are to the people of that devoted clime. If the well-wishers of their kind, of whatever color, creed, sex or party will only join hands, the curse may be abated. Will they do it?

In our political economy studies, much is given concerning money and its functions. No one theme is more clearly stated than that what will do for a new and sparsely settled section will not do for the older and more thickly inhabited. Crowded Europe uses farthings and centimes. Bustling and thinly settled California turns up its nose at cents.

We of New England have long disregarded the half cent, usually awarding it to the one who sells. But this half cent is becoming a necessity particularly when papers and so many other articles are sold for just that amount. California came down from dimes to nickels and no doubt will eventually come to regard cents at their true value. The East is ready for the half cent. In fact, there is a demand for it. The papers must press the necessity for its coming, and come it will.

No proposition of Postmaster Greene has met so popular a response as that to go down to the Rink with his office. What an expanse of territory he and his attachés would have? They would fairly revel in space. Their condition would be not unlike that of the sun and his planets in immensity. By all means, let's go to the Rink. Of course we may expect to hear the South enders say "Not by a Rink's Site," but the squabbles between the two ends of the city have become so common that no one minds them. The Post Office in the Rink would recall the days when the New York Office was installed in the Old Dutch Church and it did very well, too. "Arise, let us go hence!"

And now there goeth up, the periodical howl as to the proper treatment to be accorded Confederate Veterans by those of the North! General Longstreet is to be at Weirs at the gathering of N. H. Veterans, and at once, some super patriotic fellow says he himself wont be there. Just as well! Stay at home if you like, but what can such men be made of? Is he so much better than other survivors who like General Sherman marched with Joe Johnston at Grant's funeral! Oh, shame! Bury the hatchet! "Let us have peace!" Shake hands and be friends. Fight the old battles over again by the merry camp fire. Forgive and forget is the injunction that all of us should cherish.

And this brings us to the unveiling of "Stonewall" Jackson's statue in Lexington, Va., last Tuesday. There was no indignity to the old flag; but it floated grandly in the breezes while 20,000 people did honor to the memory of a brave, noble, though mistaken man. The Stars and Bars were there; but they merely represented the cause for which Jackson offered up his life. He would be a mean spirited man who would deny to the defeated the pleasures of a funeral. The blue of the G. A. R mingled freely with the Confederate Gray and the reunion of the State was knit more firmly by the glories of the day. We may, we must forgive.

"Flag of freedom and union wave Over 'Stonewall' Jackson's grave."

That is not just the way Whittier wrote the lines, but it does very well in this place.

Jos. W. Fairbanks of St. Louis, former principal of the Worcester High School is expected East for a visit.

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND
HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.
Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building,
Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as
second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, JULY 25, 1891.

Two Bicycles!

THIRTY-FIVE DOLLARS!

One will be given to that boy or girl who secures the most cash subscriptions for LIGHT between this date, May 30th and August 1st, 1891.

The other is for the boy who sells the largest number of papers during the same time.

Come up to the office, boys, and talk it over.

Every failure to receive LIGHT promptly should be, at once, reported at this office.

All scraps of informations concerning persons and events, thankfully received.

Friends sending in manuscripts will not complain if they are not printed at once. There are many waiting. Yet LIGHT is always glad to receive communications and, if meritorious, to print them.

Hereafter, it will be understood that all articles in LIGHT, not ascribed, save receipts, squibbs, fashion and household notes were written for this paper.

No. 2 of the Veteran under the efficient management of Comrade Hall is a good number, filled with facts, creditable to him and to the publishers, C. W. Burbank & Co.

LIGHT receives from the Rev. H. M. Kellogg of Greenwich, Conn., a very pretty souvenir of the Labanon War Office Celebration. This recounts the exercises in connection with the presentation to the Sons of the American Revolution by Mrs. Wattles of the building which, during the Revolution was Gov. Trumbull's office. Its associations with Revolutionary events are many and thrilling.

Don't omit reading Light's advertisements. Every one is worth your closest observation. All pertain to the home and living.

The signature to the excellent London let-in last week's LIGHT should be E. H. M. not N. as there given.

The Clinton Courant, July 18, has a very appreciative article on Worcester. Thanks, neighbor! We think so too. By the way, Clinton can congratulate herself on having in The Courant a thoroughly live paper.

The Webster Times is crammed full of local items. That is what its patrons take it for.

The Milford Gazette is another paper that has column after column of matter pertaining to Milford and adjoining towns.

Falmouth's paper, The Cape Cod Independent, is in fine feather in these vacation days. At such times, humanity seeks the coast and makes that arm of Massachusetts almost tired in trying to hold so many.

Several items were crowded out last week. It should have been stated that Lawrence was the photographer of Mr. Otis' picture, Rice of Mr. Parker and Blair of Mr. Talbot.

MILLBURY.

The Methodist Sunday School picnics at Quinsigamond Park July 28.

A M. Stone's laundry shuts down Friday night for repairs.

A short service was held Sunday afternoon over the remains of Mr. Samuel C. Leavitt, at the residence of his son-in-law, Dr. G. C. Weber, Rev. G. A. Putnam officiating. The remains were taken to Portland, Me., for interment.

The funeral of Miss Mary Holman took place from her late residence, West Millbury, Sunday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Pierce officiating. The floral offerings were very fine. The burial was at Auburn.

The Adams Express Company's horse ran away from the N. Y. P. & B. depot Saturday night causing considerable excitement but doing little damage.

The open air service held on the Common Sunday afternoon drew a large crowd. The service opened by a praise meeting conducted by Mr. P. W. Wood, followed by scripture reading and prayer by Rev. H. G. Buckingham. The sermon was by Rev. A. M. Crane.

The societies of Christian Endeavor of the Baptist and Second Congregational Churches held a union meeting in the vestry of the Baptist Church and listened to a very graphic and interesting report of the tenth convention at Minneapolis, by Mr. J. I. Wood of Hion, N. Y.

There seems to be a great difference of opinion in regard to the ball game at Fisherville, Saturday afternoon. A great deal of fault was found with the decision of the umpire. The score was 17 to 2, but finally the game being declared forfeited, makes the score 9 to 0. The managers of the Millbury nine received word Tuesday morning from the Foxes, refusing to play the home team at any future time.

The annual picnic of the Unitarian Sunday School will take place at Woodlawn Park, July 25.

The lawn party of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the First Church, which was to have been held Thursday evening occurred on Tuesday evening. A fine time was everybody's decision.

Mrs. Wm. Ostrander of Amsterdam, N. Y., who has been visiting friends here returned home Monday. Harry B. Waterman went with her for a months' vacation.

Prof. A. H. Evans of Cushing Academy was in town Monday the guest of Eugene A. Deane.

A meeting of citizens and all interested in Base Ball was called for Wednesday night. New directors were chosen and a spirit of enthusiasm aroused.

Rev. H. G. Buckingham left Monday for Yarmouth for a week's vacation.

Rev. Messrs. Putnam and Buckingham will exchange Sunday morning.

The Unitarian church will be closed as usual through August. This year needed repairs will be made.

To Phoebus.

BY CORNELIA WESSON BOYDEN.

Oh! Phoebus, ruler of the day,
Deign thou to hear my prayer;
Cause yon dark cloud to flee away,
That hides thy face so fair.

Come forth from thy dim chamber hid,
And smile upon this earth,
Fold up thy misty coverlid
And let us know thy worth.

Fling down upon us mortals, here,
A flood of warmth and light;
Dispel the shadows cold and drear,
That now our spirits blight.

Dry thou earth's tears that long have lain
In channels broad and deep,
And kiss the dewdrops o'er again
That mid the grasses peep.

Spread wide thine arms thou mighty god,
Shine forth in all thy power;
Lift up the faces from the sod
Of each fair drooping flower.

And let thy tender healing balm,
Earth's children bless once more,
Till far and near thy peaceful calm
Shall reach from shore to shore.

The Winnower to the Winds.

FROM FRENCH OF DU BELLAY.

To you, light troops, who, with fair flitting wings,
From every marge, e'en of the tiny springs
Send out athwart the waters breast
The growing ripples; and with whistling sound
Awake the wood: where cassia plants abound
And sway the plateau's leafy crest,

To you I offer these blue violets,—
So sweet that e'en the burdened bee oft frets
To glean from them a greater store.
These blooming buds, full redolent, are all
Your own, which, freed by your soft breath, fast fall
From the boughs of stately sycamore.

Blow lightly in your dalliance across
This wide stretched world; and let the marsh moss
The sedge and fen, full drear and dim
Be winnowed by your breath; whilst in the mead
I labor long with stover, corn and seed
Beneath the scorching summer's sun.

J. W. H.

"Hab yo' got any medicine dat will purify de blood?"

"Yes, we keep this sarsaparilla, at $1 a bottle. It purifies the blood and clears the complexiyn."

"Well, boss, hasn't yo' got sumfin' fo' about fifty cents, fo' de blood? I don keer about the complexion."—Life.

Holyoke Valley.

[The following lines were suggested to a certain class poet upon returning, after many years, to the scenes of his college days.]

R. B. C.

“—Something sweet
Followed youth, with flying feet,
And will never come again.”

On restless wings the years have fled,
Northampton, over thee and me;
Since last my wandering pathway led
Among the shadows on thy lea.

What time I scaled thy temple heights,
Twin guardians of the bending stream
Whose tranquil curve the valley lights,
From range to range, with crescent gleam.

Or climbed, as now, the topmost crown
Of western ridges, whence again
I see for leagues beyond the town
The silvery river thrid the plain;

And see the hazy lowland meet
The sky, and count each shining spire,
From those which sparkle at my feet,
To distant steeples tipt with fire,

For still thy beauties are the same,
The robins sing their choral tune,
Within thy mantling elms aflame:
As in that other, dearer June,

When here my footsteps entered first,
And summer, perfect beauty wore,
And all thy charms upon me burst,
While all the wide world lay before.

Nor less each fragrant walk remains,
Where happy maidens come and go,
And students saunter in thy lanes,
And sing the songs I used to know.

Thus much 'tis give me to find,—
But while the natural eye beholds
Sad memory, to the picture blind,
Her fairer inward scene unfolds!

I gaze and feel myself alone,
And walk with solitary feet;
How strange these wonted ways have grown!
Where are the friends I need to meet?

In yonder shaded academe
The rippling meters flow today,
And other boys at sunset dream
Of love and laurels far away.

And ah! from many a trellised home,
Less sweet the faces are that peer,
Than those of old,—and voices come
Less musically to my ear.

It pains me that you never can Still pour its full, unchanging stream,
And ead more transitory than
The mountain's cloud, the water's gleam.

No more, O sunlit current shine,
To make me think of lustrous eyes,
Whose brightness still would rival thine,
Did not they beam in Paradise.

Sigh not, ye mountain vines, or give
The whispers which I yearn to hear—
Soft tones, whose memories shall live
Forever in my straining ear.

Fade beauty, smiling everywhere,
That can, from year to year, outlast
Those charms, a thousand times more fair,
But, oh, so frail, so quickly past!

Or smile to gladden fresher hearts
Henceforth; but they shall yet be led,
Revisiting these ancient parts,
Like one to mourn their glory fled.

The Boston Traveller, Saturday the 11 inst, has the following, brought out by the presence of the White Squadron in Boston waters:

Still Lives.

A party of newspaper men, guests in the admiral's cabin on the Newark yesterday, were conversing on the subject of naval battles, and the Traveller man happened to mention that the fight between the Chesapeake and Shannon was the last conflict of any sort near Boston. “Do you know,” remarked Flag Officer Stanton, “that the man who succeeded to the command of the Shannon that day still is alive? He was its second lieutenant, and he took command when the captain and the first officer was disabled. He is now senior admiral of the British navy and is over 100 years old. Stranger still, he is still on the active list and draws full pay.” The party sat still for a moment and wondered if any other person is alive who heard the boom of those guns, until one of the party asked: “Would such a challenge as that received by Lawrence be accepted to-day?” “Probably it would,” replied the lieutenant. “Human nature is the same to-day as it was then.”

In this connection the following is in place:

Eng and's 100 Year Old Admiral.

Sir Provo William Parry Wallis, the senior Admiral of the British fleet recently celebrated his one hundredth birth-day and is still in the service. In no other country in the world would such a thing be possible, and it has never occurred in England before. The old man is still hale and hearty and, to all appearances, likely to enjoy life for some time longer. He has drawn pay from the navy for ninety-six years, has been actually in the service for ninety of these, and it is eighty-seven years since he went to sea. He was born at Halifax, Nova Scotia, April 12, 1791, while his father was stationed there as Chief Clerk of the Navy Yard, and according to a custom then prevailing in the case of sons of officers or people of influence, was placed on the pay-roll of one of the vessels of the navy when he was but four years old. In 1800, when only nine, he went aboard the Cleopatra for training and four years later made his first voyage in her. The Cleopatra,

NEW YORK & NEW ENGLAND R. R.

ATTRACTIVE EXCURSION TO THE GREAT

Naval Drill and Celebration

At Fisher's Island and in Long Island Sound via Steamer "City of Worcester."

Wednesday, July 29. Round Trip Ticket $1.75.

Special Train leaves Worcester at 6:20 a.m.; So Worcester at 6:23 a.m. Arrives at New London 9:20 a.m., Connecting with Steamer.

At 10:00 A.M. the Steamer will leave New London for Fisher's Island Sound, where she will follow the various evolutions of the White Squadron, affording Excursionists a grand view of the United States warships "Chicago," (Admiral Walker's Flagship), "Newark," "Boston," "Atlanta," "Yorktown," and the Torpedo Boat "Vesuvius."

The Manoeuvres planned are as follows:

1st. The Naval Militia will report on board the various vessels.

2d. The Squadron will get under way and proceed to the place selected for Target Practice.

3rd. Firing at Target at distance of 1500 yards by Naval Militia, from port Main Battery.

4th. Squadron will come en route, and firing will be at distance of 1000 yards from Hotchkiss Guns of Starboard Secondary Batteries.

5. On completion of Target Practice, the Squadron will return to its anchorage, and the Naval Militia to its vessel.

The above novel and interesting spectacle will be in full view of Passengers on the "City of Worcester."

Returning, Special Train will leave New London at 5:00 p.m. for above Stations.

Staterooms and Refreshments on Board Steamer. Tickets on Sale in Worcester at our City Office 434 Main Street.

GEORGE Y. LANCASTER, Agent.
D. H. NICHOLS, General Superintendent
A. C. KENDALL, General Passenger Agent.

after a fight in mid ocean, was captured by the French frigate Ville de Milan, but was rescued by another British vessel a week later. In 1803, at the age of seventeen, he was made a Second Lieutenant and was in many actions during the French war. He was Second Lieutenant of the Shannon when that frigate beat the Chesapeake in the famous fight off Boston Harbor in 1813. The captain having been wounded and the First Lieutenant killed the command of the frigate and her prize devolved upon young Wallis. He was promoted for his gallantry and efficiency in this action and in 1819 was made a Captain. The dates of his promotions after this were as follows: Rear Admiral, 1851; Vice Admiral, 1857; Admiral, in 1863; and Admiral of the fleet, in 1877. It was by the special order of the Queen that he was retained in the service after he had attained the age of seventy, at which the rule requires retirement. This was on account of the exceptional length and character of his service. He was created a K. C. B. in 1873.—Chicago Post.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Mr. Ernest L. Pettes, collecting agent, gives personal attention to the collection of bills. No. 24 Pearl Street.

Boston Store.

Established 1870.

Sole Agency for:
Centemeri Gloves.
Butterick's Paper Patterns.
E. C. Burt's Shoes.
Foster Kid Gloves.

This chair $3.98.

Made of hard wood and fine round rattan, 16th century finish, well varnished; a thoroughly substantial rocker that will stand more than ordinary usage, and nice looking enough for any room in the house. It is the right thing for the verandah.

Not a few of them at $3.98, but a large number; and therein lies the principal reason why the price isn't $6.

Downstairs.

DENHOLM & MCKAY COMPANY.

Elisha S. Knowles.

Even before Nimrod, there were, doubtless, mighty hunters and it is certain that since his day the world has had no lack. Worcester has her share of those who delight in dog, gun and rod, and among them perhaps no one is mentioned more often than the gentleman to whom this article is dedicated.

Had the parental naming had anything to do with his subsequent life, i. e., had he followed the profession of the man for whom he was dubbed "Elisha Sprague," he had been a preacher all these days and instead of directing the gatherings where Reynard the fox was chiefly discussed, he had led in meetings of quite another character. However it is the divinity that shapes our ends, not the naming that we get in our cradles. The neighboring town of Auburn claims him as a native, the son of E. M. and Eunice (Huntington) Knowles. His father was, for many years, postmaster and station agent while his mother was from Connecticut. To a boy of his tastes, Auburn was a good town for childhood and youth. To be sure, there was the usual routine of school in his younger days; but so strong was his proclivity for the forest and stream that at eleven years of age he was made the happy possessor of his father's gun, to carry and use as he chose. This was more than forty years ago, but from that time to the present, there have been few months when he has not in some way, indulged in the amusement whose allurements were so deeply rooted in his boyish nature. It was not that specially delighted him, but Auburn, rich in bird filled woods, in fox haunted fields and in fish abounding waters. His roaming and exploring very naturally led to neighboring towns and there are few nooks in Paxton, Leicester and Shrewsbury that he has not hunted through. From those boyhood days to the present time there has not been a year when he has not sought game in some part of New England. In this seeking of fin, fur and feather, he has come to know Worcester county like a book. He can locate every trout brook, tell where a fox can, most likely, be started and name the best places for partridges in rapid order. Nor have his hunting trips been confined to Worcester county. His passion for hunting and fishing has taken him into every state in New England, though an uninitiated man wonders what game could be found in Rhode Island, except turkeys and clams, and the first are not wild.

"Auburn, loveliest village of the plain."

However "Lisha" as his intimate friends call him has not played all his life. He was only a boy when he came to Worcester and became an apprentice in the old Allen & Wheelock Fire Arms Manufactory. Here again was natural bent indicated. If he could not constantly use firearms in the chase he could assist in their making.

Afterwards, he succeeded his father as postmaster and station agent in Auburn and held the places for six years. He then returned to this city, which has been his home ever since. He married Miss Mary E. Hawes, a Wrentham lady and they have four children, three daughters and a son, the latter at the age of twelve is not yet intrusted with the much coveted gun though one is promised for the near future. It would seem that "Elisha's" mantle would fall on him.

On coming back to Worcester, Mr. Knowles became a contractor, especially in the line of public works. In this capacity, he put into our streets many of the sewers, filling large contracts during Mayor Blake's administration. This kind of work he has carried on in other places, particularly in Fitchburg.

For four years he maintained the Brick Livery and Boarding stable on Fruit Street, now in the possession of Mr. W. R. Kendall. Next he bought out the sporting goods of Mr. R. R. Shepard at No. 1 Pleasant Street and made the place the headquarters of those interested in rod and gun. But lack of space compelled his removal from this location and two and a half years ago, he moved into his present quarters at 416 Main Street. Here all the plans for future campaigns are discussed and all old battles are fought over again. Among the fox hunters no place is so popular as "Lisha's" and Reynard is the genius that presides in the "back room." Here have been concocted the schemes to surprise some of the fellow members of the Sportsmen Club and here, too, with much mirth and pleasure, the presentations have been made. Here, also, hangs the gun, carried in boyhood. The store is filled with all that should be found in such a place, one of the largest and best assortments out of Boston.

Mr. Knowles, too, can use the pen as well as the gun, and for ten years was the Worcester correspondent for Forest and Stream, leaving this only to accept a similiar position on Shooting and Fishing, Boston's sporting paper, his directions being "To let no item of Worcester sporting news to go unrecorded." He obeys faithfully and in a racy manner serves up the events of this city and vicinity. The local Nimrods may congratulate themselves on the scribe who records their deeds of prowess.

Mr. Knowles was a charter member of the Worcester Sportmen's Club and a member of the committee which drew up the constitution and bylaws. He has been vice-president and president and has always been a member of the executive committee. He has studiously kept out of politics, having very intimate friends among the leaders in both of the great political parties.

Finally, Worcester has no better illustration of a business man following a line of work, thoroughly congenial. Some men sell dry goods who would much prefer to be scientists. There are grocers in Worcester who should be teachers, and physicians who are born mathematicians but our dealer in firearms, fishing rods and tackle and all that pertains thereto is doing just what he likes to do, is really carrying along in every day living and doing the dreams of his boyhood. By long experience, by care and attention, he has made his place one of the city's noteworthy features, as well known among those who hunt and fish as our large dry goods houses are to those who shop. Cheerfulness and cordiality pay, and both of these abound at 416 Main Street.

That Assault.

When roughs prey on each other, the public pays little heed and in certain sections their contests are frequent; but when one gets out of his range and assails an aged and prominent citizen as in the case when Ex-Alderman Sawyer was compelled to walk, under stress, Tuesday last, this same public wakes up with a start and wonders what we are coming to. The Ex-Alderman displayed remarkable coolness, proving that discretion was much better than valor; but nine men out of ten would have run the risk of broken heads in letting the assailant have one right where he could be hit handiest. It is probable, that, up to that hour Mr. Sawyer thought Worcester a tolerably thickly settled city, but there was an awful scarcity of able bodied citizens, as he marched along, collared and with hands a la supplicating pilgrim, any help that might liberate him. Mr. Sawyer escaped without physical harm but his feelings were much ruffled and he is not getting any satisfaction from the thought that the rum which had crazed the ruffian was properly and legally licensed. He thinks if Worcester citizens cannot be protected in the public streets at noonday it is time some of them went gunning on their own account. It has long been the boast of our city that certain parts of Worcester were perfectly safe for women and children at any hour of the day. Of course wild beasts do escape from menageries and boas from snake shows, but they are very disagreeable fellows to meet. Our drunken wild beasts should be kept near their lairs or cages or whatever we may call the places licensed to make men just as far from manly as possible.

Queer.

On Main Street, during the week one of the queer phases of living was seen in the shape of a small girl, wearing a boys cap, carrying a parasol and yet was bare footed. She seemed very happy. She had one of the luxuries of life, what cared she for the necessities!

A Store Window.

Window gardening has long been a favorite diversion with many and landscape painting is an ancient art, but latterly a variety of art has arisen that the fathers knew not of. What would one of Worcester's old time dealers say could he come back to earth and see such a display of taste and beauty as the window of dress goods in Barnard & Sumner's store this week, has afforded. The arrangement of colors, the placing of goods must all be done in perfect harmony. The effect is surprising. Even busy men have had to pause to admire.

For the Scientist.

Every body knows the cash system in the Boston Store. At every angle, are two wheels turning in opposite directions. Each wheel has six spokes and they are revolving at the same rate of speed. Their revolutions are sufficient per second to quite lose the spokes in each wheel, but here a wonder appears. Looking at the two wheels revolving, side by side, we see, between them twelve spokes, stationary. Will some reader of LIGHT offer an explanation? Again, in several angles, where the turn is on a curve, one wheel revolves a little more rapidly than the other. In such cases the spokes appear the same but they seem to slowly revolve. LIGHT has its own theory, but we await suggestions from readers.

About Folks.

General R. H. Chamberlain, wife and daughters are at 'Sconset. Nantucket is now at her best.

Prof. A. S. Kimball and family went Thursday to Center Sandwich, N. H.

Miss Rachel L. Moore, of the High School is in Ithaca, N. Y., her college home.

Miss Grace R. Everett is sketching at Rockport, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Ward, spend the last of August in Auburn.

Samuel Mawhinney and wife have had a two weeks outing at Monument Beach.

Miss Aileen Kennedy, of Laurel Street has gone to New York for a ten days visit.

Alexander Hayes of the Denholm & McKay Company, has gone to New York.

Miss Hattie L. Partridge has been visiting Mrs. James Holly at the Sterling Camp Ground.

Edward E. Kirschbaum and wife of North Grafton are at Voluntown, Conn. Mr. K. is the Herr Cherrytree of literary note.

Misses Maggie and Marcella Walsh are having an enjoyable stay at Block Island.

In a personal concerning Mrs. Charles Russell in last week's LIGHT, her daughters' name should have been given as Miss, not Mrs. G. Maud Jillson.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stubbs will spend the next month enjoying the bracing air at Cottage City.

Dr. Dean S. Ellis, wife and child have enjoyed a two weeks' outing in North New Salem.

For the next two weeks, Miss E. A. Kimball of the Home School will be at Old Orchard Beach.

Wm. J. McAleer, of the last High School class, will enter the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia next Fall.

Geo. F. McAleer, stamping clerk at the Post Office and his brother, Wm. J., will pass the next two weeks at Provincetown whence they will make fishing excursions as they like.

Mrs. J. P. Rand of Pleasant Street will pass the remainder of the summer months reviving old memories at Monson, Mass.

Mrs. Geo. H. Prentice of Suffield Street, will attend the meeting of the Christian Alliance which takes place at Old Orchard Beach, August 8th.

The new show room in the Davis Art Company's rooms on Pearl Street, lights up beautifully and the caller has an excellent opportunity to admire the work displayed. Just at present the chief interest centers in the fine lot of pastels that have been on exhibition for the past ten days. They are choice bits of coloring. They bring the sea to us, so real are they. Don't fail to see them.

For the first time in seven years Mr. Geo. H. Kennedy, business manager of the Worcester Telegram, is enjoying an outing. Friday, he accompanied his daughter, Aileen, to New York and there took a steamer for Norfolk, Va., whence he will return by way of Washington, in that place being the guest of Mr. Arthur Burt. He expects to be away ten days.

Among the G. A. R. excursionists to leave this city, Aug. 1st, will be Mr. H. A. Kimball of the Boston Store, and wife. His brother-in-law, Mr. Emery Rogers and wife of Holden will accompany them. The Kimball's will go as far west as Chicago and returning will visit Toronto and make the River tour to Montreal, Quebec and the Saguenay. By a pleasant coincidence, this excursion will include the twentieth anniversary of their marriage. It will be "Their Wedding Journey."

If, in these dull days, you wish to pass a pleasant, profitable hour, just drop in at Horace Kendall's, when you see his red flag out, and see how he disposes of goods. Great stacks of them, of all kinds, go through his store in the course of a season.

Messrs. Fred Lamb and Harry W. Marsh with their respective wives are off for a week to New York, Coney Island and all along shore. Returning by way of Providence, they will visit Luman Marsh, a brother of Mrs. Lamb and Harry W. Marsh.

Charles J. Bickford.

Scarcely had the half masted flag for Capt. Higgins been furled, before it was again raised for the above named comrade, fallen in the battle of life. He passed away, Monday, a former member of the 7th N. H. volunteers. He was in the employ of his brother, John C. Bickford, at 13 Mechanic Street. His funeral was held at the Pleasant Street Baptist Church, Wednesday, the Rev. H. J. White officiating. The bearers, members of Post 10, G. A. R., were: Capt. Harry Cummings, Charles Bemis, John Sullivan and George Pierce. The Union Veteran legion, of which Mr. Bickford was a member, sent a delegation of six to the funeral. The burial was in Berlin, where his home was, for many years, before coming to Worcester.

Contrasts.

Never since the world began, have right and wrong been more strongly contrasted than in the recent doings in Minnesota's twin cities, Minneapolis and St. Paul. Last week we were kept informed of the progress of the 15,000 Christian Endeavor visitors in Minneapolis and a proud record it was. This week, we heard with varying feelings the state of affairs as to the prospective prize fight in St. Paul. About as many sporting men and roughs had gathered to see an exhibition with gloves, a la John L. Sullivan, Kilrain, etc., as had the week before assembled in the twin city to discuss Christian work. We were told that the Mayor, Sheriff, and Governor, all wished to witness the debasing contest; but, at the last moment, they were obliged to yield to the demands of the better elements of society. Savagery dies hard. The times demand earnest work of every well meaning man. Can we, will we work together to bruise the serpent's head?

President Hall.

"Who were there. The attendance of University and College representatives at the Albany Convocation was unusually large and significant. Looking down from the gallery of the Senate Chamber, one saw the Presidents of nearly all the institutions of learning in the States. Among them was Dr. Stanley Hall, of Clark University, the foremost authority on educational questions in this country—a man of impressive appearance, unassuming and delightful manner, who commands his audience whenever he speaks."—Christian Union.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Worcester Theatre under the management of Messrs. Rock and Brooks, will be open but one evening before the regular season, which commences Aug. 14th. Primrose & West's minstrel company, embracing forty people, will play here on Monday evening, introducing their new conservatory scene first part rich in palms, flowers and costumes and a clean bill of new things. Among the company are Frank Cushman, the original "Big 4," Drummond and Stabley, the Baroni brothers, Larry Dooley, J. Melville Janson and Tom Lewis, comedians; while the corps of vocalists includes W. Oakland, Joe Natus, W. H. Thompson, Fred E. Reynolds and J. J. L. Webber. Primrose's new sketch, "Raining in London," is said to be his best effort, and West's new march, "The Red Hussar's," is highly complimented. There will be a morning and an evening street parade. Tickets go on sale Saturday.

The coming season gives every indication of being the most successful in the history of the theatrical business in this city. The management appreciate the fact that plays of high order are the only paying attractions and have therefore booked nothing but the best shows. Messrs. Rock and Brooks are to be congratulated on the possession of one of the finest theatres in the country.

"Electrocution."

On this most disagreeable of newspaper words, the New York Tribune justly remarks:

This word "electrocution," which is creeping into newspaper use, is utterly without excuse for being, except that it is pressed into the service on the score of necessity. It gives a name, though a bad name, to something otherwise nameless. In the first place, it is, neologically most barbarously formed. The first half of it, "electro," is rational; but the last half "cution," is pure gibberish, and has no more point or meaning than that famous nonsense word "snark." The word "execution" which suggested it, is formed from two Latin words "ex" and "sequi," through the Latin word "executio." So that instead of "electrocution" the compound should be "electrosecution," the cacophony of which rules it out of the possibilities. But even "electrosecution" would not adequately express the fact of killing by an electric current. The Latin verb "sequi" means "to follow," and with the prefix "ex" comes to mean to "follow out," or "carry out," an implied decree. But in the name of common-sense, what can it mean with the prefix "electro?" Nothing, absolutely nothing, except possibly "the following of electricity," which is sheer nonsense. We sincerely hope that some clever philologist will soon come forward with a simple and euphonic word for this new process of punishment, and that we shall be spared the idiocy of either "electrocution" or "electrosecution."

If we must have a new word, why not use Electroicide for the verb and continue Execution as hitherto. The latter word has long done service whether by hanging, shooting, guillotine or garrote. "Execution by Electricity" is in direct keeping with verbal usage for generations past.

Boston Letter.

BOSTON, JULY 21st, '91.

It is rather dull in town, as usual at this season of the year, and most every one who can hies himself away if only for a day or so, to the country or seashore. The result is that at times the city seems almost deserted.

Take a Saturday afternoon and stroll up Washington and down Tremont streets and you will meet but few people in comparison to say two months ago. Most all the large wholesale and retail stores put up the shutters and lock their doors at noon time and the tired employees hasten away as soon as possible for an afternoon's outing. The perambulating shopper has hardly an excuse to be out, and you miss the regular hustle and bustle of the busy city crowd—though you are apt to find many country people looking out for the sights—and enjoying themselves as usual.

Down by the financial centre of the city, where the bankers and brokers predominate, where the big insurance companies flourish, and the banks are in their element, all through State and the adjacent streets you will see nearly every office closing early. It is rare to find a soul in an office after two o'clock, and some concerns shut up at noon time. Of course in some lines of business it is not so easy to do this, without great sacrifice as very few concerns are run on a strictly philanthropic basis, but you can easily see that the tendency is toward shorter hours for Saturday during the torrid season, and a mighty good thing it is too, if this leisure time is only decently used.

Not to do this is a "penny wise and pound foolish" kind of a business, such as no shrewd man of business affairs can afford to overlook. An employee, fairly and liberally used, other things being equal, is always going to do better work for his employer; he puts his mind on his work more and thus it is dollars and cents in a man's pocket to be fair and liberal.

I have been stopping at a quiet little place along the "north shore" for several weeks, enjoying yachting and out of door life generally, but Sunday afternoon I had occasion to come up to town, and walking across the Common, I was more than ever impressed with the beauty of this old historic spot, and its fresh invigorating appearance.

The trees and grass seemed at their best, the air was as cool as it was most anywhere that day, a band concert was going on, one of the luxuries doled out to the stay-at-homes by the city fathers. There was a good sized crowd present, a considerably mixed crowd of course, but all good natured and apparently enjoying the music very much. Some were promenading around the walks, some were standing, and many were sitting comfortably on the grass, unconscious of that chestnut sign "keep off the grass." What a beautiful breathing spot this is indeed right in the centre of a big city!

This and the Public Gardens are something all good Bostonians ought to be proud of. The gardens are particularly luxuriant at present, the flowers and ferns, and tropical plants so artistically arranged, making a picture well worth going far to see.

This next week another change is to be made and different varieties of plants and flowers will be on exhibition, so you see there are several transformation scenes during the season. If one had to pay to visit these gardens, he would think more of them in a way, but as they are free, open and easily accessible to all, the average citizen does not fully realize what a really beautiful place it is, both by the natural location and the artistic surroundings, one of the finest parks for its size in the world.

Our system of parks, including Franklin Park at Roxbury, and the Back Bay Parks, is becoming one of the best in the country, and in time will equal in beauty and completeness any we have anywhere. They are of nearly inestimable benefit to our people, giving to many, during the hot summer months, about the only chance for fresh air and a sight of the green fields and woods of mother Nature that they have. Naturally this does not effect those who can afford to go where they choose, but to many families who closely count their pennies, they are a blessing.

Your own Lincoln and Elm Parks reflect much credit on the superintendent and the city, too; the improvement in the past few years has been immense, in keeping with the good it has done no doubt.

The old Museum is the only theatre open where "Nioba" holds sway to a very good business and is very well acted indeed.

That realistic pyrotechnic exhibition called "Pompeii" at the Amphitheatre on Huntington Avenue is attracting considerable attention and is a first class show of its kind. It is a remarkably good exhibition of fire works and the chariot races and athletic games and sports appear to be very much enjoyed—a good deal like the "Fall of Babylon," of last year at the same place. WATSON.

Dr. George H. Gould and family have taken up their abode, for the summer, in Paxton. Somehow or other a part of that word reminds one of Peace.

Mr. E. C. A. Becker has just returned from a pleasant trip with his family to Brooklyn, Baltimore and Washington. Taking his camera with him, he has something to show for what he has seen.

Major Nathan Taylor and family have vacation in Bentonsville, Vt.

Miss Lizzie P. Stone of Auburn is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Mellish at 901 Main Street.

B. W. Potter and family are at their summer home in Rutland.

The New York & New England Railroad has planned a unique excursion for next Wednesday. On that day the White Squadron which includes the United States warships "Chicago," "Newark," "Boston," "Atlanta," and "Yorktown" and the torpedo boat "Vesuvius," will hold a naval drill and celebration in Long Island Sound and at Fisher's Island. The railroad company has arranged to have the steamer "City of Worcester" follow the warships in their manœuvres giving a splendid opportunity for seeing the great boats. The particulars of the excursion may be found in the advertisement in this paper.

Leicester.

A meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society took place Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the house of Mr. H. Arthur White. Thirty ladies were present. The meeting opened by singing "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," followed by prayer by Mrs. A. H. Coolidge. Report of the last meeting was read by the secretary, Mrs. Elmira Conklin. Mrs. A. E. Dean of Omaha, Neb., daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Dean of Ahmednugger, India, addressed the ladies, taking for her subject the women of India, their customs, characteristics and superstitions. Mrs. Dean proved a valuable worker in the missionary field of India for twelve years. She stated that the Hindoo women were very handsome; their parents make arrangements for their daughters wooing for marriage when five years of age. This is the choice of parents and not the choice of the boys and girls. If a married woman becomes a widow she never marries again. A widower marries as many times as he has a legal opportunity. Mrs. Dean is a remarkably interesting speaker and her efforts to portray her personal observations of life among the women of India, were duly appreciated by those who were fortunate enough to be present. Mrs. Conklin offered prayer and the meeting closed with the singing of "Work for the Night is Coming." Several gentlemen joined the ladies in a "Missionary High Tea" and the evening was pleasantly spent in good cheer. Thanks are due Mrs. White for her generous hospitality, also to Mrs. Dean for her kind, instructive address and it is earnestly hoped that good seed will spring up in the hearts of Leicester women, that they can give more thought and do more work for Christ in doing what good they can, to aid the poor ignorant heathen in foreign countries. Nature fitted us for social life by planting within us a mutual love. We are members of one great body and we must consider that we were born for the good of the whole. "It is not life to live for one's self alone." Let us help one another. "He who is false to present duty breaks a thread in the loom, and will see the defect when the weaving of lifetime is unrolled."

"Let fall the curtains, wheel the sofa round;
And while the bubbling and loud hissing urn
Throws up a steamy column, and the cups
That cheer, but not inebriate, wait on each,
Thus let us welcome peaceful evening in."

Last Tuesday Mrs. H. V. Jordan and Miss Jennie E. Mann served an exquisite luncheon to a party of their friends. It was a feast on costly viands and rare delicacies; every article of food was deliciously cooked and served in such a pleasant way that made it a repast never to be forgotten. It is just such luncheons which has given Mrs. Jordan and Miss Mann a wide spread reputation. Among those present were Rev. and Mrs. Samuel May, Mrs. Thomas Southwick, Miss Lucy Marshall, Mrs. John P. Stevens, Miss Edith Stevens, Mrs. Billings Mann, Miss Hattie Mann, Misses Nellie and Emma D. Mann, Mrs. A. H. Coolidge, Miss Mary E. Coolidge, Mrs. Eliza Gilmore, Miss Mary E. Joslyn, Mrs. Henry L. Watson, Miss Mary McFarland, Mrs. H. Arthur White and Miss Ida F. Warren of Leicester; Mrs. Sarah Bradford of Fitchburg; Mrs. Stephen C. Earle of Worcester; and Miss Elanor May of Boston.

July 24, 1891.

BETTINA.

Glimpses of Beauty.

"There is a charm in footing slow,
Across a silent plain,
Where patient battle has been fought,
Where glory had the pain."

So sings the poet Keats. As we brush away the dust of the years, that has gathered over historic Saratoga, the place of the swift water, I wonder, do the fair pilgrims, who yearly come to this beautiful shrine, take into account the cost of this jewel, that, with the near waters of Lake George, hangs as a pendant of diamonds on the neck of our fair land? What visions come up of those far away times, of that indomitable German, Baron Dieskau, watching the cowardly retreat of his troops, as he sits on the stump of a tree, with the American bullets wounding him on every side, yet who would not fall back; of the solemn council when the Indians determined to reveal to their beloved brother the medicinal properties of the waters of High Rock Spring, given us, so they say, "by the Great Spirit;" of that letter, to his intimate friend, Gen. Schuyler, by Sir William Johnson, when he says, "I have just returned from a visit to a most amazing spring, which, now only four days, almost effected my cure;" of the year 1783, that marks the visit of Saratoga's first and the most honorable of its summer guests, Gen. Washington and his aids, Alexander Hamilton and Gov. George Clinton.

What wonder that, headed by such a notable name, the fame of this resort for health and pleasure, has gone to the farthest portions of the civilized world. With all due regard to the excellent properties of the waters, it is something wonderful, that from being a curative for one thing, it should be applied as a panacea for all the ills of humanity and in doses, that if not inimical to the disease might at least be sufficient to kill the patient himself. Fortunately, some of these after results are never more heard from. Our day on Lake George was a perfect one. With such a blue sky over us and such serene depths below, we could not by any power of imagination have conceived of it as ever having been a highway for contending armies. Nature surely could never have intended it for such direful purposes. By less stretch of fancy, she might instead have gathered up these clear sweet waters for sacramental purposes. We much prefer, as the French, to name it "Lake St. Sacrament." Had we pencil and brush what pictures might we not have gathered for our portfolio. And yet, effects dashed in by nature's masterful hand, our own, for very weakness, knows not how to follow. It was as if she had collected on this broad stretch of canvass, every element of the beautiful and the sublime in exhaustless profusion that the soul might get some conception of her God-like resources and her God-like powers. We marvel at her newness from every point of view: That not one of her hundreds of islands should resemble another; that on such small space she could paint so much; a rift in the rock; a log bleached by the wave; an old leafless tree, as a finger point against the sky; each serving her purpose, to enhance the beautiful; now a shower of opalescent lustre on the dark blue waves; and again, her serene surface shivered by rivers of pearl. After all, is it the thing seen that refreshes, or rather is it not the wonder and worship with which it has been seen. We come out of this sweet intercourse; from this clasp of the hand with nature to find that she has led us into new ways and newer thoughts. The pine and the hemlock are no longer silent trees; nor the buttercups and the blue-flag simply flowers; nor the hard lined rocks dead matter; but life struggling up to consciousness. They and we are co-related; nature and we are one. Coming back to town, even its art and its luxury have their enchantment. As Emerson says, "We shall be harder to please after having had such royal company."

Returning, we are just in time for the hearing, in the Court of Appeals, of the celebrated Tilden will case. Through the courtesy of Judge — we are invited to hear the masterly defence in the case, as given by Jos. H. Choate for the respondents, versus J. A. Carter, attorney for the appellants. It will be remembered that this case has been before the courts since 1888. A case which by Gov. Tilden's will leaves a residuary estate of some four millions or more for establishing a Free Public Library in New York; the contest being over the validity of the trust clause. Mr. Choate's statement of the case was earnest and self possessed. As an advocate he seems to have many of the gifts and accomplishments of his distinguished father, the famous jurist, Rufus Choate; in the high-toned decorum and propriety of his bearing toward the bench, and his uniform courtesy toward his brethren of the bar; in the grace of his language; in his brilliant and persuasive rhetoric and in his ample command of legal illustrations. All these won our admiration. We should have said the law and the facts were on his side, and yet we were told that the opposing attorney, in his plain and perhaps brusque manner, would refute the argument in a way just as masterful. On this matter of wills my Reverend friend next me at table expresses a desire to see the time when the law shall give no man authority to dispose by will of property over which, as he says in dying, one ceases to have ownership. Surely the pleasure of giving in one's life time has its own apparent advantages and would do away with the large amount of injustice on the part of unscrupulous lawyers and grasping administrators.

Lovers of elegance, history, sciences, and art are just now treated to a scenic display, little short of enchanting, in visiting the Pompeian House. This is a reproduction of the House of Pansa; a model of one of the numerous dwellings, now excavated in Pompeii, as illustrating in all respects, the manner of life among the Romans before the city was buried in ashes, now 2000 years ago. It is a wonderful object lesson in history and art and lends an added realistic interest to one's knowledge of classic literature. From the time we enter the imposing hall or Atrium, beautiful with its fountains and marble pool; its ceilings decorated with copies of famous mosaics; its groups of statuary; its wonderful wall paintings; on through the Summer and Winter dining rooms; the open court, festooned and garlanded with flowers; the household temple with its altar where they propitiated their lares and their penates; on through the library, with their parchment books rolled and tickets appended to designate the subject of the book; such great men as Plato and Homer seem no more dead men of the past but guests with us at the home of some Roman nobleman. As observed from the center of the building with the curtains thrown back, it is all a wonderfully gorgeous realism. We seem now better prepared to anticipate the time when we shall have a National Gallery of History and Art, as an accession to the National Capital. The one "a monument of political and legislative wisdom; the other, an expression of the resultant intellectual elevation of the people."

M. W. W.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Ellen Terry is still sick and unable to appear in London.

Rev. John A. Jaynes, pastor of a church in Falmouth, Ky., is going to reform and become an actor—probably to get even on the world for some reformed actor who has become a clergyman. Reformed actors are usually better as clergymen than reformed clergymen as actors.

Frank Charvat, well known here as Ullie Akerstrom's lively and capable manager, died suddenly last week in Peoria, Ill.

Edward Harrigan claims to get many points in dialogue for his plays from the works of R. Waldo Emerson. It now remains for Charlie Hoyt to get up and acknowledge his indebtedness to Herbert Spencer.

The novelty for next season is a melodrama based on the life of Abraham Lincoln. It is from the pen of McKee Rankin and Archie Gordon, and is said to follow the martyr president's life very closely, the final scene, representing the assassination at Ford's Theatre, being especially realistic. Elmer Grandin is to enact Lincoln and Joseph Haworth has been mentioned for Wilkes Booth.

Miss Eastlake begins her first American starring tour in Philadelphia next October. She will be seen in A Yorkshire Lass, by Wilton Jones, What Women Will Do, by Jerome K. Jerome, and Clits by Wilson Barrett and Sydney Grundy.

James W. Harkins, Jr., of 27 Hudson street, this city, is a young man whose genius has proved valuable. Last year he wrote a play called The Midnight Alarm which he sold to a manager. That manager cleared $25,000 on the piece this season. Mr. Harkins has just finished another drama called The Fire Patrol which he proposes to hang onto himself.

Charles H. Hoyt says that his newest concoction, A Temperance Town, is the best thing he has ever done.

Miss Hall, sister of the President of Clark University, has accepted an assistant professorship in Wellesley College.

Miss Alice Hammond, daughter of A. H. Hammond, has gone to Europe to resume her musical studies. She will first attend the Bayreuth Festival.

Miss Anna D. W. Pease, a teacher in the public schools, and her mother are spending the summer at Tilton, N. H.

Dr. P. H. Keefe is now the fully fledged Medical Examiner for Worcester, having filed his bonds.

Books and Bookmen.

In a recent number of his Book Notes, Mr. Sidney S. Rider of Providence very clearly sets forth why Rhode Island seems to have two capitals. He says that in its earlier period the General Assembly perambulated and held its sittings in Newport, Portsmouth, Providence and Warwick. Under the charter of Charles II, Newport seemed to hold the chief capital functions, but the legislature still went round. In 1733 a law was passed requiring the addition of South Kingston to the legislative towns, Portsmouth having been abandoned. Then East Greenwich was added and Warwick was given up. In 1842, the towns designated for legislative meetings were Newport, South Kingston, Bristol, East Greenwich and Providence. In 1854, it was enacted that one session should be held annually at Newport, and an adjournment thereof in Providence and so it still continues. No law was ever passed making two capitals. The state officers and archives are in Providence, but the counting of votes for state officers and the proclaiming of the governor is still continued in Newport. Legally, under the charter, Newport was the capital. After 1842, there was a gradual transferral of authority to Providence, where today, is the official seat of the Governor and where the offices and archives are. So then, Mr. Rider concludes that the state has but one capital and that Providence. Still as there is a capitol building in Newport and as the governor is proclaimed there and the votes counted there, it does seem as though Rhode Island capital business were still somewhat double headed.

LIGHT wonders what Newport would say at this denial to her of her name as one of the capitals of Roger William's state.

"The Century."

Have you a Century Dictionary? If so, how do you keep it? If you stand it up, it will become broken in the back. If you pile the volumes, one above the other, you will always want the under one. Then too, if bound, nicely, in full morocco, as mine is, thanks to my friends, the sides will become scratched and soiled. So fine a set is worthy a receptacle of its own, one in which each volume may lie on a specially prepared shelf. Of course, if you are rich and can have what you wish, go to a woodworker and order a cabinet; but if your purse is short and you like to "fuss" you can make a sumptuous cupboard yourself and can have all the more pleasure in it, because you made it and its cost is so trifling. Unless you have an abundance of room in your bookcase, and what book buyer ever did have lots of room, you must make a place for your "Century." If by any chance, shelf room is found, why just line the shelves with some soft cloth and lay your books in. Otherwise, go to the nearest grocer, and find a box whose interior dimensions are 21½, 13 and 10½ inches. Boxes in which rolled avena was stored almost exactly fill the bill, being precisely as above, save that they are fourteen inches wide. While you are getting, procure two other small boxes with half inch sides, to be used as shelves. You need just six divisions, hence five shelves. Probably your grocer will charge you five cents each for the boxes. Then go to the dry goods store and buy four yards of crimson Canton flannel. Then you need hammer, saw and glue pot. Having these, you are equipped. First knock the small boxes apart, and then accurately fit the shelves. Then cut your cloth to fit your shelves, having rounded one edge of the latter and glue the flannel to the boards, on both sides, calculating to have the rounded edge in front, and the nap of the cloth on the outside. Then line the interior of the box, letting the cloth cover the front edges and specially cover the corners. Don't cover the sides till you have nailed in the shelves. About this time, the inside will look very inviting. Says one small boy, "Wouldn't I like to crawl in there? It looks so cosey," while the little girl remarks, "If I had it, I'd fix up a nice place for my dolly." The compartments must be just three inches apart. You must have a care that they are placed just the same back as in front. To accomplish this, cut a small stick just the required length and use it as a spacer. After the shelves are all in, you can apply the cloth to the outside and your cabinet is complete. Not counting your time it will cost you less than 75 cents. You can stand it anywhere in your parlor, sitting room or study without fear of comment. Your choice books will be properly cared for and and at the same time they will be accessible.

The Artist Printer, a Journal for the Progressive, June 1891, No 24. A. C. Cameron & Co. Chicago and St. Louis, $1.50 a year.

This publication is an excellent example of what it seeks to promote viz., good printing and all that pertains to the art. Several pages are given to the description and illustration of the late Boston Convention. There are suggestions for the electrotyper, bookbinder, pressmen, illustrations of papers, Volapük, paper making, personal sketches with many notes and letters. This number ends the second volume. The magazine, throughout, is a model of elegance and beauty.

Walt Whitman, "the good gray poet," was tendered a dinner at his home in Camden by a number of his friends in honor of his seventy-second birthday. The poet presided at the feast, and kept up a running conversation, in the course of which he said many interesting things. Letters of greeting and congratulation were read from Lord Tennyson, James Russell Lowell, John Addington Symonds, Roden Noel, Moncure Conway, Charles A. Dana, and others. A report of this dinner, made up from the work of a stenographer, and giving the text of most of the letters read, will appear in the August number of Lippincott's.

Everybody has heard of the George Bancroft cottage and of the George Bancroft roses at Newport. The roses may bloom as usual in the future, but the modest cottage will be superseded by a palatial villa. I am reliably informed that Miss Gwendoline Caldwell, who gave $300,000 for the founding of the new Catholic University, at Washington, and who did not wed Prince Murat, is negotiating for the purchase of the estate, writes a correspondent of the New York Herald.

D. C. Heath & Co., Boston, will issue shortly Gæthe's Meisterwerke edited by Dr. William Bernhardt. This volume attempts to supply a desideratum felt by students who cannot devote themselves to a thorough study of the complete works of Gæthe. It will contain selections, complete in themselves, and regarded as the most attractive and generally interesting of every kind of Gæthe's poetical and prose writings. It will also contain, beside the sketch of the author's life the literary history of each selection; information on the sources used by the poet; copious notes; opinions of noted critics; and suggestive help-notes for word translation. The book is planned for school and home use of those who have mastered a grammar and reader.

Brains is the brief and suggestive name of a new literary journal just started in Meadville, Penn. There are letters on literary matters from New York, Boston, Chicago and San Francisco. A. W. Tourgee, of Fool's Errand fame, writes entertainingly of the Art of Fiction. The notes and items concerning books and writers are very interesting. The venture, certainly, has our best wishes. We cannot have too much information concerning literature, and those who make it.

Poultney Bigelow, who was a schoolmate of the German Emperor, will contribute an article to the Midsummer (August) number of The Century on the first three years of the Emperor's reign—the third anniversary of his ascent to the throne having taken place on the 15th of June. Mr. Bigelow believes that "since Frederick the Great no king of Prussia has understood his business like this emperor," and in this article he gives what he considers the secret of the power of William II. with his people, and incidentally contributes many facts regarding his life.

This number of The Century will be especially rich in illustrated articles and complete stories, and the illustrations of Mr. Bigelow's paper will include a number of views of the palaces at Berlin and Potsdam, and engraved portraits of the Emperor and Empress will form a double frontispiece.

Col. Albert Clarke writes on "The State of Vermont," in the New England Magazine for August. The article is profusely illustrated, and bright and instructive.

A bright little story, by Eliza Orne White, the author of "Miss Brooks", a book that had a considerable value during the summer of 1890, will appear in the August number of the New England Magazine.

The Romance of a Child by Pierre Loti. Rand, McNally & Co., Chicago, 1891, Price 25 cents.

Though translated from the French by Mary L. Watkins, there is nothing of the Frenchy flashiness, that many translations give. So then, that reader who takes up our Romance, expecting a Daudet or Zola extravagance, to use no harsher word, is doomed to disappointment. There is no reason, why the book might not be added, with profit, to any Sunday School library. It is the life of a French lad till he leaves home for the sea. He is of Huguenot descent and he weaves in enough of the days of the Revolution to make many a reader turn to his history for a refreshing. Pierre is the youngest, with a long interval between him and the older children. There is a wide circle of relatives, all devoted to him. He is abnormally sensitive. His imagination is brilliant. He dreams and we see visions with him. It is a charming picture of France that the writer paints and the translator has admirably preserved. We are with the boy in all the pleasures and vexations of his boyhood and youth. There is nothing of the crowded city in it. There breathes only the pure air of the sea, the coast, or the quiet village. Though some passages may bring tearful thoughts, yet we read the book with restful sensations. Could we have more such, the rather reproachful "French Novel" might lose much of its meaning. The Romance of a Child is a healthful book for any one to read.

Pierre Loti, who has been elected to the French Academy, defeating the Vicomte de Bornier and M. Zola, is a captain in the French navy, and his real name is Julien Viaud. He is forty years old, and the materials for his books have been gathered during extensive travels in Turkey, Japan, and other Eastern countries. His house in Paris is richly furnished in Oriental style, and at his receptions the author, his wife, intimate friends, and attendants appear in Eastern costumes.

Ballou's Monthly Magazine, August, 1891, G. W. Studley, Boston. $1.50 a year.

This is the earliest of the monthly visitors to reach us and it serves to fill up an afternoon with a deal of relish. As ever it is lively, fresh and wide awake. There is a Nihilist story, a thrilling snake episode, a story of the Amazon, and there are snakes in that too, a legend of Barnegat that will please the most thoroughly seasoned reader of ghost stories. The Ventriloquist is short but good. "Trinidad and its Treasures" suggests pirates and there is a real pirate yarn. The Story of a Queen carries us back to King John of England and his wife, Isabella. The children's stories are good as are the miscellaneous departments at the end of the book.

Presto comes to us all the way from Chicago. It is a weekly paper devoted to music and is running over full of the enterprise for which the West is noted. There are twenty-four pages of matter, including advertisements. It bears every indication of prosperity and success. It is published at $3 a year by the Presto Company at 323 and 325 Dearborn St., Chicago.

Another on Gus. Williams.

Gus Williams never goes on the road unless accompanied by a little black bag, containing a set of tools like those usually owned by a plumber. Gus and his bag are inseparable. You may rob him of his good name, you may play tricks with his watch and his wardrobe, but you can never separate him from his kit of tools. This is his fad. Since long ago he commenced the practice of carrying this bag and he continues it to this day. He understands the science of mechanics thoroughly, having made it a study while in his teens, and when a border light gets awry, or the gas table is out of sorts, or a steam pipe bursts, in any theatre in which he may be playing, instead of depending on the services of the regular gas man of the house, he goes for his kit, selects the implements he wants, and performs the necessary repairs before the wondering attachees have found out that anything is wrong. An amusing story is told of him, about his fad. It seems that when the comedian performs in any house where he cannot place the fullest confidence in the integrity of the stage hands, the first thing that he proceeds to do, after taking possession of his dressing room is to tamper with the lock in such a way that when he temporarily goes out it is impossible for any one to enter and filch his valuables in his absence. Two years ago he was playing an engagement in a small town of the West. The accommodations in the way of dressing rooms being of the usually abbreviated order, he was compelled to share his quarters with his leading man. At night, when the time arrived to go on, he left the room, slamming the door after him, and hurried along the corridor to the stairs leading to the stage, never giving thought to the poor man he had inadvertently imprisoned. Anon came the cue for the leading man to make his entrance, but he entered not. Gus was astonished. He could see the actor nowhere. He improvised lines to fill the emergency, but he couldn't continue improvising lines all through the scene. At last in despair he abruptly left the boards, and down came the curtain to the amazement and disgust of the audience. The comedian, who was as irate as an outraged comedian could be, made a bolt through the wings for the stairway, his soul full of chaos and his head full of blasphemy.

"Where is that infernal scoundrel; where is he?" yelled Williams, the fire of murderous design in both eyes.

Nobody knew, for everybody was on the stage.

Williams descended the ramsackle steps three at a lick, but when he reached the bottom he stopped short. A well-known voice, frantically appealing to some one for mercy's sake, to come and unlock the door, met his ears.

"Holy Heavens!" gasped the comedian, falling against the wall, sick and faint at heart, "I locked him in!"

After the play was concluded that night, there was a bill at a neighboring restaurant amounting to $45—and it was paid by Gus Williams.

Arthur J. Bassett, prominent in local musical circles as a player and teacher of the piano, sailed Wednesday for Europe. He was accompanied by H. G. Tucker, music teacher of Boston. They will attend the music festival at Bayreuth and will be abroad about two months.

George E. Fairbanks and family left Tuesday for Falmouth, where they will remain the rest of the Summer.

Miss Jessie Pond, soprano at Trinity Church, will take a two weeks vacation the last of August, Mrs. E. H. Plaisted meanwhile officiating as her substitute.

Misses Geraldine B. and Bertha E. Longley are at Plainfield, N. J., visiting Wellesley College friends.

"Clear in the East."

There shines a star in our land today,
That was born in the long ago
In the mystic East, on the mountain heights,
O'er arched by the pure, whit' snow.
But back in the past long ages ago,
Far beyond the "ancient three"
Who built the temple, due East, West and South
Was a wondrous masonry.

'Mongst the sages and sons of another land
Whose souls' and whose lives were so fair
They walked with the Gods, on the heights sublime
In the fields of the upper air.
They taught that the soul from the Great Master's hand
When it took the first degree
Must learn from the radiant "light in the East,"
Of the heavenly masonry.

By a brother's hand their feet were led
Along many a winding way;
The lessons there taught to those young hearts
Spoke the dawn of a brighter day.
'Tis a wonderful faith that will hold men's souls
On plain, valley or mountains height,
In every land and on every sea,
By the "sign of the mystic tie."

In the classic temple's on India's shores
'Mongst our "brethren of the sun,"
With the Arab chief of the desert wild,
Our journey has just begun.
Away o'er Persia's storied land
And Egypt's beacon's vast
To the brighter shores of a newer clime
We speed o'er the storied past.

In the frozen homes of the cold, bleak North,
'Neath the genial German shade.
On the vine-clad hills of sunny France,
And along the Italian glade,
Under Judea's palms—in lyric homes,
On distant Albion's shore,
With the hardy Scot in his Highland home
And beyond the breakers roar.

On the ruins grand by Copan's side,
With the Inca's of Peru,
And our brethren of the Azt c' faith,
With many we never knew.
O'er the prairies vast of our western land,
With the Red-man on his steed
'Mid the wildest throes of our civil war,
It served many a brother's need.

O wondrous child of the grand old past,
Most brilliant star in the sky,
Through all the years that shall roll along
'Neath the Master's hand, on high
From thy home of light in the azure blue,
With never a tear or a sigh
Thou shalt link men's souls in a closer bond
With the "sign of the mystic tie."

And when 'neath the bright acacia's shade
We lay life's burdens aside,
And pass the Tyler with flaming sword
At the gate on the other side.
We know that the true, and the tried who have toiled
And striven to do their best
Will meet the Great Grand Master, and hear
From His lips it is "Clear in the East"

—Fred L. Hildreth.

C. E. Hitchcock, tenor of Trinity Church choir, has resigned that position, and is to be succeeded by Percy Forbes, a pupil of the son of Myron W. Whiting.

Mrs. G. A. Longley is at Warren, R. I., with Misses Helen Maud and Mary B., her daughters.

Mrs. A. L. Mixter left Tuesday for Kansas City, Mo. She will make that place her home. She will reside with her sister, Mrs. Mamie (Starkie) Abercrombie.

Monday night, the friends of the widow of the late Rev. D. S. Sorlin surprised her by a call and presentation of valuable gifts; the Rev. H. W. Eklund acting as speaker for the party.

Faces and Pictures.

In Memory's Hall.

To some, the atmosphere even in the vestibule of the past in Memory's hall, is chilly; a stifling air pervades the entrance; but to those whose memory is like the unfolding of a delightful book, the corridors are broad and airy, and looking backward the summer spots are seen gleaming through the shadows like beckoning angels.

We gaze on the walls of time, and with rapture we see once more some face of long ago and here and there a memento of the past.

What a feast for the physiognomist!

Faces of all descriptions.

Here on an easel rests Faith, and below with countenance beautiful, Hope looks upward. Love is suspended by a golden cord, hanging directly over "Mother."

The artist—and where is he? did ever the genius of man equal such handiwork as that corner bracket, with its delicately woven threads telling us of the workings of time?

While the above pictures may leave a lasting impression on our hearts, we give most of our time and attention to a group of paintings representing Morning, Noon and Night.

The first is pictured as Spring with all its grandeur of creation and perfection. It stands directly in front of the entrance, enclosed in a broad heavy gold frame, its colors enhancing its beauty. As a streak of morning light strikes across the scene, we think we can see the buds starting, and hear the gentle murmur of childish glee, as the children appear to trip merrily across the green.

Beside it is Noon. The zenith of life is well marked here.

The canvas speaks of a tale of love, which, though not for other mortal ears, to them is sweet music, cherished by those above. With the summer sun shining around them like an aureola the two travellers wend their way.

The curtain is being drawn. As we leave that glorious painting of Noon, we carry with us some of its radiance, and glance beyond in the alcove where hang the misty outlines of Night. Its framing is dark and heavy. The scene is one of awe. A storm is evident. A ship tosses madly out at sea; and as we look at the cottage standing as if forsaken, we feel a chill as of autumn winds, while all the surroundings speak of decay.

As the idea of the artist slowly dawns upon us, we involuntarily ask, "Is it finished?" yes, the picture is complete—let night draw its dark shades and Fall bring its devastations, for we may then see the clearer two little white bars, that perchance some may take for a shadow—'tis the pearly gates ajar.

* * * * *

'Tis the birthday of spring,

The sandy beach is the play-ground.

Four little feet kick and splash as the ocean's wave salute them with a kiss.

The good parson of the town is stricken, and two little folks are discussing the all absorbing question, "Will he live?"

As we listen to the childish talk, which in its simplicity is great, we see—or fancy we see—a glimpse of ripened years; and in fancy build up the future character that must stand or fall with life's test. Between the two, little Ruth and the lad, there is no resemblance.

Dark ringlets overhang a high noble brow, and flashing black eyes are calmed by the questioning orbs of blue, that look out from a face fair and sweet.

The same good blood from noble ancestry is marked by the trend of their thoughts and natural manifestations of good breeding.

Little Ruth with her six years of wisdom remarks, "Yes David, I know, our dear parson will live. Mamma says God always answers prayer, and I pray every night,—'Please God make our dear pastor well.'"

Her companion replies with that reverence and grace that in after years when ripened into holiness will draw crowds around his pulpit, "But you know Ruthie, God always answers prayer—but sometimes he answers 'Yes' and sometimes he answers 'No!'"

There was solemn silence as if the young minds in unison were soaring upwards in search of understanding; but with all natural children perfect quiet is not the chief characteristic of childhood's happy hours.

Today is the Sabbath.

The children, although usually taken to church, for some reason remain at home and child-like enjoy most doing what the older folks do.

"Let's play going to church, David. You be the preacher and I'll be the people come to hear you, and I must be a lady you know and bring my baby to be christened."

It was quite a strain for young David to wait and listen to what he must do, for it was against the grain of his nature to acquiesce until he had put his little foot down and said "No I shan't" or "I won't do it," all the time his little ear inclined listening, and slyly coming around to the whole plan, heart soul and body.

The way the chairs whirled was a caution. A regiment of Bibles, some yellowed with years, and song books enough for a city choir were brought down from their dusty hiding places and distributed to the many chairs that stood before the pulpit, whose casing spoke at once as having been used as the family sink.

The sexton pulled a string which agitated a little communicator hung over the handle of the door in the back entry, then took a seat to constitute the congregation.

The parson marched up to the pulpit took a drink from the bucket standing on the top of the pulpit, and began the service by a loud ahem!

"Oh!" came a little voice from the body of the church. "Oh!! I forgot. I spoke in church." "Why! I spoke again." "Oh!" she exclaimed settling back in utter resignation to the awful fact "I keep a speaking." "I shan't have it any more," came from behind the pulpit.

The audience, not completely squelched, retorted "Well! a minister oughtn't to say 'Shan't' anyway." "Oh Ruthie," the dialogue continued, "You know I didn't mean 'Shan't' but I wont have it."

"Now I must christen the baby." With slow and solemn tread, as some innocents go to their doom, the baby was brought forward. A little fist found its way into the bucket and he exclaimed "Whew, ! its cold." With a scowl on his brow at a vain attempt to find out what to say, he commenced to sprinkle the doll baby, after the manner that some people dampen their clothes for ironing.

At that point a chicken flew up on the sill. His brow cleared.

The thoughts came.

"By the blood of a hen I christen you—"

"Oh! Ruthie, what's her name?"

"Why Darling is her name."

"Well, its all over now, I must preach my sermon."

Refreshing himself once more he began with elocutionary power, overwhelming his audience with his electrical forces.

The first two lines were delivered in a loud and woeful voice, and followed by a slow and pathetic strain.

"On a mountain bleak and wild,
I buried my only child;
I dug a little grave and placed her gently in it,
And stuck up a stone stick with her name written on it."

Little David was so intense that not till now did he notice that his audience was in tears, and with quivering lip he murmured, "What's the matter Ruthie?"

And so do noble thoughts to a higher level rise, and now as the days and weeks pass on, beautiful thoughts twine around each other's hearts, and books and nobler things take the place of childish pleasures. Cemented by a love which proves the affinity of opposites, each summer's greeting added a link to their chain of friendship; and these two in wiser days still settled their questions together.

(To be Continued Next Week.)

Twenty-Five Years.

Last Saturday evening, at 21 Prospect Street, Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Farmer with many friends celebrated their silver wedding. Mrs. Farmer was once Miss Ella M. Whittemore and she became a Farmer July 18, 1866, the Rev. H. K. Pevear, then pastor of the First Baptist Church, now of Clinton, officiating. The family has regularly attended that church. Very pretty decorations saluted the visitors, flowers abounding in the reception rooms. There were numerous gifts, including a purse of money from the people in the First Baptist Church. The most significant gift was a sum of silver arranged thus, 1866—25—1891; the twenty-five being in dollars; the years in dimes. Relatives and friends to the number of about one hundred filled the rooms; they included, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Farmer, Somerville; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Whitcomb, Dorchester; Miss Nellie Barney, West Upton; Mrs. E. Winchester, Shrewsbury; Mrs. Jennie S. Dodge and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Comins, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Darling, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Upham, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Rugg, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Rheutan, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Clarke, Dr. and Mrs. J. Bartlett Rich, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Williams, A. L. Burbank, W. B. Stratton, Mrs. Susan F. Neff, Miss Martha Wyman, Mrs. N. S. Pratt.

Miss Mary E. Brown opened the evening's merrymaking at 9 o'clock with a piano selection, "The Wedding March." Letters of regret were then read from Rev. and Mrs. H. Pevear of Clinton, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Jaques. An original poem, "The silver wedding," was read by Mrs. H. A. Stratton.

School and College.

The dull time for schools, surely, is upon us, but what a fine time for pupils and teachers! At home or abroad, all are glad over the respite. For many, the long vacation has come. The ringing of the September bell will find them busily engaged in other work, the beginning of life's tasks. How strange it will seem when the call comes and they do not respond! As one good lady said, "I can't see why the school keeps at all, now, for my boy is through." But the mills will grind on just the same."

"Boys may come and boys may go
But school goes on forever."

Clark University.

MATHEMATICS.

The facilities for the study of the higher mathematics in its various branches offered by this university are unsurpassed in this country. The library is already provided with most of the standard works in the various branches of mathematics, including text-books, monographs, collected works of the great mathematicians, historical works, and complete sets of the more important journals and transactions of learned societies. The department also possesses a full set of Brill's models of geometrical surfaces and curves, and of Björling's thread-models of developable surfaces. These collections will be supplemented by such books and apparatus as may, from time to time, appear desirable.

During the academic year 1891-2 instruction will be given by

W. E. Story, Ph. D., Professor of Mathematics.

O. Bolza, Ph. D., Associate in Mathematics.

J. de Perott, Docent in Mathematics.

H. Taber, Ph. D., Docent in Mathematics.

H. S. White, A. B., Assistant in Mathematics.

The courses of instruction in mathematics are arranged primarily for those students who intend to become candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy; but special students properly qualified will be received, admitted to the lectures, and guided in such special lines of work as they may elect.

The department is also prepared to direct and assist those who have already taken the degree of Doctor of Philosophy and who desire to continue their studies with the intention of ultimately becoming professors of the higher mathematics.

The requisites for admission are a good working knowledge of Differential and Integral Calculus,

Plane Analytic Geometry through Conic Sections,

Solid Analytic Geometry through Quadric Surfaces,

Elements of the Theory of Algebraic Equations.

A knowledge of the theory of Determinants and their application to the solution of linear equations as well as some knowledge of Differential Equations are desirable.

Instruction is given by lectures, by directed courses of reading, and by guidance in original investigation. While the Introductory Courses are given mostly by lectures, the student is expected to do such collateral reading in connection with the Advanced and Special Courses as may be suggested by the lecturer. Each student is expected to select some subject as a specialty; he is then placed under the immediate guidance of one of the instructors, who will direct his studies in the chosen subject, with the object of securing a knowledge of the important literature, will advise him in the choice of a topic for special investigation, and will give such assistance in carrying on this investigation as may be necessary. The results of this research must be embodied in a thesis, which will ordinarily be the basis of an application for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

There will be weekly Conferences, at which mathematical literature will be reviewed and the results of original investigations of instructors and students discussed. Books and articles in the various journals will be assigned to each student for review at these meetings.

The chief aim of the department is to make every student an investigator in some branch of mathematics, pure or applied, and it is believed that personal guidance is as necessary in this direction as in the acquisition of knowledge.

Falmouth Summer School Woodlawn Park, Falmouth Heights, Mass, opens August 4, 1891, and continues one week. For information apply to the Dean of the Faculty, Rev. C. H. Washburn, pastor First Congregational Church.

That was a melancholy announcement that Judge Aldrich was obliged to make at the Institute Commencement, viz: That the attempt to secure from the citizens of Worcester a plant for the Bigelow gift of the Bullard Arms outfit, had completely failed. This, too, after the very large start given to the project by Stephen Salisbury. He headed Colonel Russell's paper with a $10,000 entry, but so far as the public knows this ended the matter. Can any one explain this lethargy? Is this training what the people want or is it not? While it is not the general education of the hand that Prof. Woodward calls for, it certainly is in that line and is a definite something. Can Worcester get a better start than in accepting this gift and in putting her boys at work? If undertaken it must not be run in a half hearted way; but somebody who believes in it as devotedly as Mr. Bigelow, himself, must manage. Just at present we are drifting, so far as our educational policy is concerned. We should be securely moved and at work. The time for education is short enough and all possible, should be crowded into it. Our Institute does a grand work, but for a select few; Clark University is an intellectual center for a still more select and smaller few; but what about the large number of young men who would have a living-making education and who get, instead, dry husks of inapplicable and unusable material. Ere long these young men must take the places of those who, to-day, are carrying their dinner pails to and from their shops, and how are they equipping themselves? Their fathers learned trades. These boys do not. Too often, there is no chance. Will the city assume to teach them? She might do worse. Every dollar put out in making a sober wage earner is one well invested. If the city's people will not render the Bigelow gift operative, what then? What will the city do? Are we to wait till Boston, Lowell and Springfield have fully demonstrated the feasibility of Manual Training? Worcester has not been accustomed to hold the last place in any procession. A pioneer in many good things, a determined leader in most enterprises, why does she lag in this, one of the most interesting and pressing problems of the day.

Who Did Sin?

Little do we know of the misery that may be in our neighbor's home. Only recently, for nearly a week, a mother did not close her eyes in sleep for like Rachel, she was for her children weeping and refusing to be comforted. Her boy, a young man well along in his teens, had left his home, Saturday night, and nothing more was known of him, swallowed up in this or some other great city. Of course, he thought he had a grievance; but how selfish in him to leave a mother disconsolate just because his pride was wounded. So then, the question arises, "Who did sin?" or whose fault was it that this boy should do as he did. He thought he did not have money enough for the proper observance of Fourth of July—he had more than many a family has for a whole week's living,—but his father would give him no more. So to help out his funds, he took his winter overcoat, a Christmas gift from that father, to the pawn broker and left it for less than one seventh that the same cost. The ticket he doubled up and crowded it down into his vest pocket and put a memorandum book above it. While he was away, the father inspected the boy's clothing and he wondered what the hard substance, down in the pocket, could be. He probed deeper and his astonishment can be imagined. The lad did not return till Monday. After he had gone to bed at night, his father came in and asked where his overcoat was. "In the closet," is the reply. "You get up and find it" is the father's order. The young man complies and brings out his light, summer coat. "That is not the one," says the irate father, "I want the one that I gave you last winter." But the boy declines to search further, and says he doesn't know anything about it. Then comes the culmination. The ticket is produced and a severe arraignment follows. Just what happened in the interview, the public has no right to know; but thereupon, city and home lose all attractions to the lad. He works, perfunctorily, the remainder of the week and disappears. Whose fault is it that the boy is not the joy of his mother instead of her heaviness? Where did the sinning begin? It is known that he had taken to drinking beer in this license city; that he had found many evil companions in his rambles. Perhaps the end described is the legitimate conclusion. Regrets now are vain. Perhaps he may play the prodigal part and, at last, return penitent; but the risk is a terrible one. "Look to your hearths," there are your chief interests. Ere you know it, your children may be ravished from you, by the accursed hand of greed. Your children should be more than all the rest of the world to you.

Miss Carrie Tiffany of St. Louis is the guest of Mrs. H. K. Tiffany for the summer.

Our Schools.

CHAPTER III.

The School Committee.

I am aware that it is much easier to find fault with present conditions than to point out a remedy for them, but it is not difficult to mention some reforms already in contemplation by the friends of the public schools, which when once effected, will give a new impulse to them and infuse into them a new life.

In the first place it is essential that the old regime should be discarded and a new order of things informed by a new spirit should be introduced.

By the "old regime," I mean that autocratic and imperious temper that has so long dominated the school committee, dictated its policy when it had any, and managed the whole business as if the institution existed for the benefit of a single individual.

In making such changes as are needed the school committee, or a majority of them, must be brought in accord with the popular will; and they must be of such stamina as will resist all blandishments that are intended to blind their eyes to the necessity of reform and the means to effect it.

Something was said in these columns last year as to the requisites for members of this committee; but I find in their own report, written some time ago, these requisites so admirably set forth that I quote their words as follows:

"Vested with powers far more extensive than they were under the town organization, the office has become one full of responsibility.

"In a place like this, it is not enough that a school committee man should be abundantly qualified to examine the classes in the schools placed under his charge.

"It is not enough that he should be incapable of stooping to that meanness which officially indulges private enmity or friendship toward a teacher; it is not enough that he should be possessed of discretion and judgment, so as not to be unduly biased by rumors floating about the streets or dropping from the angry lips of a disaffected child.

"Other qualifications than these are required. To adequate education, to dignity of character, to discretion, prudence and other moral accomplishments, he should add refinement of manners, the love of children, devotion to his calling, and a lively interest in whatever may tend to the prosperity of the public schools.

"Believing that the office is of deeper responsibility than any other within the gift of their fellow-citizens, it is their earnest prayer that their successors, immediate and remote, may ever be fully competent to the discharge of the weighty obligations which the acceptance of the office imposes upon them."

The above "report" was made about forty years ago; it is to be regretted that the ideal school committee then contemplated has not yet materialized; though it may be truthfully said that the school board has always had among its members numerous gentlemen worthy to serve on such a committee; but for the last twenty years they have found all their efforts at reform rendered of no avail, through secret machinations, and their own position so ungenial and irksome that they were glad to retire from the board after a single term of service.

H. H. C.

Street Venders.

Sometimes they are nuisances. Sometimes they offend all the senses, but occasionally one is found for whom we can have only the best of feeling. At this moment there has been wafted into our window the perfumes of Arabia or some other sweet scented place, all from the stock in trade of the pedler who sits, three stories below, with his possessions in a shallow basket before him. Material for scent bags, he picks up many a penny, but what is better the whole block is rendered fragrant. Windows are kept open on his account, to receive the spicy breezes which, if they blow not soft o'er Ceylon's Isle, are certainly come laden with sweet odors.

Sons of Veterans.

At the church of the Immaculate Conception, Sunday at 3 p.m. were held the funeral exercises over the remains of the late Wm. E. Darney. Camp A. A. Goodell, S. of V., under the command of Capt. H. N. Leach, attended in a body, Rev. Fr. Mullen officiating. George Bigelow, A. W. Whitcomb, L. A. Wetherbee, Henry J. Lambert, J. J. Torpey and W. H. Blankenhorn acted as body guard.

The deceased's shopmates in the Richardson Manufacturing Company, headed by Mr. Parker, foreman, and Messrs. Smith, Curtis, Roberts and Burney, attended also.

The funeral procession was marched to St. John's Catholic cemetery at South Worcester. After the body had been lowered into its final resting place, the body guard fired a salute of three volleys. The bearers were J. J. O'Grady, A. E. Hazelton, Thomas McCue, C. E. Farrington, E. B. Watkins and G. F. Bryson.

The floral tributes were very beautiful, including a pillow from the Sons of Veterans, with "A. A. Goodell, Camp 2, S. of V." in blue immortelles; a pillow, with "Shopmate" in immortelles, from his shopmates at the Richardson Manufacturing Company; a crescent of cut flowers from friends in E. L. Smith & Co.'s store, a bouquet of carnation pinks from Clara Barton Tent, Daughters of Veterans, a bouquet of Easter lillies from the family, a mound of cut flowers from Mr. and Mrs. Rawson and four bouquets of cut flowers.

Hon. and Mrs. W. W. Rice left during the week for Cushing's Island, Portland Harbor.

INSPIRATION.

The minstrel's harp at last awoke,
And in triumphant song it broke:
So loud and clear on the air, it rang
As of war, Cadwallader sang.

I thought my song long since was dead,
That the muse, alas, had forever fled;
When—suddenly before my sight
There arose, O inspiration bright!

Dear heart, thou shalt be my noblest theme,
A light in my life, a star in my dream
So tender and loyal, so constant and true
In darkness I dwelt before I met you.

Under thy glance, what would I not dare!
In the light of thine eyes, my best self declare
And for thy sake in the battle for right
I will struggle most bravely to win the fight,

—Goddard Austin.

VOLAPÜK.

Students:

Studels:

The North American Association for the propagation of Volapük, holds its second annual session at Chautauqua, N. Y., August 5th and 6th.

It is expected that a new impetus will be given to Volapük in this country through this meeting, and that a systematic order of work will be established to push the language in all the states.

All Volapükans are invited to attend.

Here are some expressions which you can use in your correspondence.

In reply to your letter of the . . . . .

In reply to your friendly letter . . . . .

I have received your esteemed favor of May 7th. . . . .

I have the pleasure of announcing to you . . . . .

We hereby notify you. . . . .

I have the honor to inform you. . . . .

I have the honor to remain your most obedient servant . . . . .

I remain your friend

Fights and discords prove life and energy.

Heart easily wearied when doing good work does not merit victory.

Examine all things and hold fast to that which is good.

New mottoes from Father Schleyer's paper.

First weigh then venture.

(v Moltke.)

To be, not to appear. Volapük is the most important discovery of the 19th century.

The world belongs to the courageous.

Nothing without God.

One should not subscribe for evil books.

Work ennobles. Volapük is always the language of commerce, science and arts.

F. L. HUTCHINS.

FOR THE LAUNDRY.
BRUSSELS
 SOAP.

HENRY A. BOWMAN & CO.

MANUFACTURERS OF

AWNINGS,
 TENTS,
 FLAGS.

HORSE, WAGONS,

AND ALL KINDS OF

Canvas Covers.

Tents for Sale and To Rent. Waterproof Tents by our new process guaranteed not to leak. The above cut represents our popular lawn tent, in Stock and made to order, 418 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

GUNS!

All grades, from all the popular Manufacturers, both IMPORTED and DOMESTIC.——FISHING TACKLE——Everything an Angler wants. SPORTSMEN'S CLOTHING. Ammunition of all kinds. BLASTING

MATERIALS and a Complete Line of SPORTSMEN'S SUPPLIES. In the future as in the past my friends will receive a cordial welcome, with goods at the lowest prices, at the SPORTSMEN'S EMPORIUM.

E. S. KNOWLES, 416 MAIN STREET.

General Butler tells this story in his new book of reminiscences: Daniel Webster was once asked whom he considered the greatest lawyer in the United States. "I should of course say John Marshall," but if you should take me by the throat, and run me into a corner and demand, "Now Webster, upon honor, who is the greatest lawyer?" I should have to say "Jeremiah Mason."

An application for annual pass was once made to Commodore Vanderbilt by the President of a road about twenty-five miles long. "Your road doesn't seem to cover a great amount of territory," suggested the Commodore to the applicant, "it isn' quite so long as the New York Central, but, by gracious, Mr. Vanderbilt, its just as wide!" The pass was issued.

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place at an early day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of

Fine Monumental Work,

131 Central Street,

near Summer.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

W. A. ENGLAND,

DEALER IN

FINE WATCHES,
 CLOCKS, JEWELRY
 & OPTICAL GOODS.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

394 Main Street.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,
 Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, *

NO. 156 MAIN STREET,

H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

J. A. Long

MIDSUMMER

Clearance Sale

SWEEPING REDUCTIONS

IN EVERY

DEPARTMENT !

ANTIQUE CHAMBER SETS,

$16.75,

REDUCED FROM $22.

POLISHED OAK SETS,

$27.00,

REDUCED FROM $42.

ELEGANT RUG PARLOR SUITES,

$57.00,

REDUCED FROM $78.

POLISHED OAK SIDEBOARDS,

$18.75,

REDUCED FROM $31.

All our Large Stock at correspondingly Low Prices.

J A. LONG

Franklin Square Furniture Rooms,

555 Main St.

Good to Eat.

Cookies.

Having grated two cocoanuts of ordinary size, add to the pulp an equal amount of sugar, three eggs, half a cupful of ground rice, and beat all well together. Bake as for the cookies.

Pudding.

To a pint of boiling milk add four tablespoonfuls of corn starch which has been dissolved in a little cold water, the beaten whites of four eggs, half of a grated cocanut, half a cupful of sugar and flavoring to suit the taste. Turn into molds to cool.—Good Housekeeping.

Soda Water for Less than a Penny a Glass.
Two quarts of boiling water, four pounds of granulated sugar, four ounces of tartaric acid. To this add two tablespoonfuls of flour rubbed smooth in a little cold water. Let this boil. When cool, flavor to taste with vanilla or any other extract. Strain and bottle. This will keep any length of time, though it is ready for use as soon as it is cool. Dissolve one-half teaspoonful of common baking-soda in two-thirds of a glass of water, add a tablespoonful of the above syrup, and you have a glass of nice soda water. A little of the above syrup added to the fruit will greatly improve apple pie.

JENNIE CADY.

Bloomfield N. J.

Graham Muffins.

One cup of Graham flour, one cup of white flour, one tablespoonful scant of butter or lard, rubbed into the flour. One tablespoonful sugar, one half teaspoonful salt, one beaten egg. Mix these ingredients well together and add one large coffee-cupful of rich freshly-soured milk in which an even teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved. Beat all together and bake in muffin pans in a rather hot oven. The batter should be soft enough to drop readily from the spoon. Sweet milk can be used with a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder in the flour.

To obtain these muffins in their perfection, Densmore's Graham flour should be used, as they are worthless with an inferior quality. This quantity makes one dozen, and they are excellent hot or cold. Mrs. F. C. JACQUES.

The Cook's Sentiments.

Mistress—Nora, I am going to dine with friends, and you may boil the live lobster for my husband and his friend who will dine with him.

The Master (later)—Nora, isn't dinner ready? I am starving.

Nora—Indade it isn't.

Master—How is the lobster? Hurry it up.

Nora,—I can't, sor. The mistress told me to broil it, and I got him on the gridiron after a deal of fuss. The more I poked the fire the more he walked off. I thought the baste was possessed, and that no good would come of cooking a straddlebug loik that.

Master—What did you do with it?

Nora—Faith, the last I saw of him he was going out the back door with his tail up, loik the maniac he is.—Food, Home and Garden.

President D. B. Tucker of the Y. P. S. C. E. Union has returned from his vacation.

Make two cakes, one with Cleveland's baking powder; the second with any other.

Note the difference.

The Cleveland cake is fine grained, keeps its natural flavor and moisture; "the other" is coarse grained, as if the sugar was too coarse, soon dries out and becomes husky.

Cleveland's leavens best because its strength is produced by cream of tartar and soda only, not by ammonia or alum.

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H. Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists.

11 Pleasant St.,

Worcester, Mass

Residence, 61 West Street.

The Readers of Light
I most cordially invite
To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything
They would expect to find

In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,

Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,

10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL,

Gold, Silver and Nicke. Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.

13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St.,

Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework,
Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

THE CLARK-
SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

RICH CUT GLASSWARE

New and Beautiful Cuttings in all the Latest Designs.

Parisian, Gothic, Strawberry and Fan, Royal, Belmont,
Oriental, Russian, Black
Diamond, Etc.

- Water Bottles,
- Celery Trays,
- Bon Bon Dishes,
- Jelly Dishes,
- Flower Globes,
- Spoon Trays,
- Cheese Dishes,
- Sugars,
- Creams,
- Oil Bottles,
- Salads,
- Salad Forks and Spoons,
- Decanters,
- Vases,
- Ice Tubs,
- Punch Cups and Plates,
- Pitchers,
- Knife Rests,
- Individual Butters,
- Mustards,
- Spoonholders,
- Punch Bowls,
- Ice Cream Trays,
- Ice Cream Saucers.

THE CLARK-SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

Household.

Cleanliness, not only next to godliness, is part of coolness, says The Ladies' Home Journal. So take a plunge bath in the morning, letting the water be tepid, and afterwards giving yourself a cold shower. Omit starch from your clothes as far as possible. Eat a light breakfast. Greasy food, or a great quantity of food, taken in the mornning, will most certainly heat your stomach for the entire day.

A woman who stays in the city and is always cool, gives this as her bill of fare: A cup of coffee in the morning with bread and butter; a luncheon of cold beef and baked potato, with lemonade or iced tea; and a dinner after sunset consisting of a little soup, a bit of meat and one hot vegetable, a cold green salad, a cold dessert, and a small cup of coffee. Keep this in mind also; there is no better preventive against heat than good temper, when you combine good bathing, proper food, and even disposition with it.

Neuralgia in the face has been cured by applying a mustard plaster to the elbow. For neuralgia in the head, apply the plaster to the back of the neck. The reason for this is that mustard is said to touch the nerves the moment it begins to draw or burn, and to be of most use must be applied to the nerve centres, or directly over the place where it will touch the affected nerve most quickly.

The skin of a boiled egg is the best remedy for a boil. Carefully peel it, wet, and apply to the boil; it draws out the matter and relieves soreness.

Large perforated and small, plain wooden spoons are needed in dessert making. On no account should butter be creamed, fruit juices measured, or cream beaten with an iron spoon.

How to Clean Engravings.

According to the American Art Printer, you should put the engraving on a clean board and cover it with a thin layer of common salt, finely pulverized; then squeeze lemon juice upon the salt until a considerable portion of it is dissolved. After every part of the picture has been subjected to this treatment, elevate one end of the board so that it will form an angle of about 45 degrees with the horizon. From a tea-kettle or other suitable vessel pour on the engraving boiling water until the salt and lemon juice are entirely washed off. The engraving will then be perfectly clean and free from stain. It must be dried on the board or on some smooth surface gradually, not by the fire or sun. Immerse the print for an hour or so—or longer if necessary—in a lye made by adding to the strongest muriatic acid its own weight in water, and to three parts of this mixture adding one of red oxide of manganese. India-ink stains should in the first instance be assisted out by hot water, and pencil marks should be taken out with India rubber very carefully. If the print has been mounted, the paste on the back should be removed with warm water. Another recipe is: Lay the engraving down on a smooth board with a clean sheet of paper underneath, and with a clean sponge and water wet the picture on both sides, and then saturate it well with a soft sponge with the following mixture: A quarter of a pound of chloride of lime, two ounces of oxalic acid, and one quart of soft water.

Offer Special Bargains in all Lines of

HOUSE---FURNISHINGS !

and those who buy now can save money.

CHAMBER SETS,

From $18 upwards.

PARLOR SUITS,

From $40 upwards.

SIDEBOARDS,

ODD EASY CHAIRS

Reduced in price to close.

Plush 16th Century

Oak Platform Rockers,

$8.50, worth $10.

CARPETS

AT LOW PRICES.

RANGES !

We sell the Crawford Ranges—none better—they always give perfect satisfaction, and the only range in the market that will bake in the lower oven, which we guarantee.

ANDES RANGES.

This is the best 8-inch Range in the market for $25.

We sell a good Range for $15.

Call and examine our

DINNER SETS, 112 pcs., for $8.98

IT CAN'T BE BEAT.

Liberal Terms of Credit at Cash Prices.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,

355 MAIN STREET.

About Folks.

C. S. Goddard and wife, Mrs. A. F. Prentiss, Miss Mabel A. Prentiss, Miss L. W. Holden and C. Frederic Goddard are at the Pawnee House, Cottage City.

Mrs. Alfred S. Roe with children, Lossie and Hattie, have spent the week in Ashland, with Mrs. Roe's parents.

John E. Bradley and wife, H. C. Bradley, F. W. Smith and wife, and Miss Laura Jarvis are at the Mountain House, Mt. Wachusett.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Spiers of South Dakota are in Worcester for the Summer. Mr. S. will take a year in John Hopkins for the degree of Ph. D.

H. D. Magee, manager of the advertising department of The Telegram, who had been absent two weeks, returned to his duties Monday.

H. A. Parker, Esq., is in Provincetown, as is Vm. L. Robinson, Jr.,

Mrs. D. H. Hayter has been in Leominster for the week.

City Solicitor Frank P. Goulding and family are occupying the Oak Bluffs Club cottage at Cottage City for the Summer.

George W. Hastings, late druggist on Coral Hill, goes to Stoneham where he will be connected with the laboratory of manufacturing chemists.

Guy C. Whidden of The Telegram staff left Monday on his two weeks vacation in Maine.

At the direction of the Rev. H. T. Cheever, Mr. A. H. O'Connor is making a bust of President Cyrus Hamlin of Middlebury College.

Prof. Leonard Kinnicutt and wife are in the White Mountains.

J. O. H. Woodman of the Non-Secret Endowment Society has gone as far South as Charleston, S. C.

City Marshal A. W. Washburn went Monday to the Isles of Shoals for his vacation.

Arthur E. Dennis and family have vacation at Cottage City.

Mr. Herbert McIntosh has just returned from Philadelphia.

Rev. Thomas J. Fitzgerald, late of the Catholic University in Washington, but Worcester reared and educated has been assigned to West Fitchburg.

President C. F. Rugg and wife, Assistant Secretary W. B. D. Meade of the Young Men's Christian Association, F. C. Bancroft and F. H. Kelley will attend the Y. M. C. A. encampment at North Lubec, Me., in August.

Mrs. B. F. Barhydt and Mrs. Arnold Kabley are at Saratoga on a ten days' vacation.

The family of Ezra A. Day, the Mechanics Hall boot and shoe dealer, is nicely settled at Hampton Beach for the Summer. Lots of sand and lots of sea.

Mrs. Charles Stubbs and Mrs. John Davis have gone to Cottage City for the remainder of July and the month of August.

Miss Anna Cavanaugh, Emma Goodwin, Addie and Bertha Yeaton, teachers, have gone to Rockland, Me., for their Summer vacation.

Phillip Russell, son of Principal Russell of the Normal School, is teaching in Northampton.

Among the Sterling Summer campers are Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Coffin.

And now it is Judge George M. Woodward at the Central District Court for Judge Utley is away for his vacation.

Principal E. H. Russell and family have sought the peace and quiet of Sanbornton, N. H., for the remainder of the Summer.

Miss Nellie Thurston, Miss Ella M. Brown and Miss May Townsend, of the last Normal School class, are to teach in Lancaster next term. Miss Elizabeth A. R. Daniels of Greenfield, valedictorian of the 29th class will teach in Barre.

Mr. Henry M. Smith of 6 Forrest Avenue will have as guest, during the Summer, his brother-in-law, Rev. Frank D. Sanford, a missionary, who has travelled extensively in England and Italy.

Addison Macullar and wife and Mrs. Richard Fiske have gone to the Barre Hotel for the Summer.

Arthur C. Comins leaves today with a party of friends for a three weeks' vacation at the Stanley House, Southwest Harbor, Mount Desert.

John T. Sheedy of the University of Michigan is at home spending the vacation with his parents.

Arthur O. Knight, William E. Norcross, George W. Burnett and Thomas O'Gara have been "a fishing." Hope they caught something.

Dr. Archibald McCullagh left Saturday last on his vacation. He went first to Mt. Desert.

Owen McGee, a graduate of Holy Cross College, and of late a student at Brighton, is spending his vacation at Marlboro.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Myrick left yesterday for Princeton, to stay until the middle of September.

Rev. F. D. George, pastor of the Free Will Baptist Church, left Saturday, the 18th, for Bristol, N. H., to remain until September.

Mrs. F. H. Rice and Miss Minnie Rice are on a trip which will include a visit to Niagara Falls.

Samuel H. Putnam and family are at Center Harbor, N. H.

The veteran nurse, Mr. H. K. Cady, has recently been confined to his house, No. 15 Auburn Street, by a severe attack of eczema.

Miss Jessie Clapp, a member of the Normal School, Worcester, and Miss Carrie Cobleigh of Littleton, are attending the Summer Institute at Agassiz Hall, Cottage City.

Rev. C. E. St. John, pastor of the Unitarian Church in Northampton, formerly of this city, has resigned to accept the pastorate of the Unitarian Society in Pittsburg, Pa. Mr. St. John is a son of the late pastor of the First Universalist Church, a High School boy, '75, Harvard '79 and later of the Harvard Divinity School.

Miss Lillian E. Denny and her cousin, Miss Marian G. Denny, from Atlanta, Ga., are spending the summer with friends in Northfield and Montpelier, Vt.

Belle E. Smith and Miss Lotta F. Shellar are spending a few days in Uxbridge, the guests of Dr. Amos Fuller.

Dr. Warren F. Philbrick has returned from a week's trip to Quebec and Canada.

Dr. Edward A. Welch is studying manual training in the Hemenway gymnasium in Cambridge. Dr. Welch has charge of this department in a Pennsylvania School.

John Carney of the Knowles Loom Works is spending his vacation in Oakham on a farm.

Mr. Putnam, of the firm of Putnam & Sprague, with his wife and daughter, are spending their summer vacation in Grafton.

Misses Mamie Tracy and Mamie Sullivan of Dedham are visiting the Misses Casey of Vernon Street.

Miss Nellie M. White, late High School teacher, has passed the present week in Princeton.

Mrs. A. George Bullock with Judge Lathrop and wife of Boston has been visiting friends in Petersham.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Fernald, at the Sterling Camp Ground, have as guests Jennie E. and George H. Clemence of Southbridge.

Miss Mamie Deady, cashier at Fairbanks' drug store, will spend the first two weeks of August at Blackstone.

Vinton, the portrait painter is to paint the pictures of Hon. Jos. H. Walker and wife in the Fall.

Ben T. Hammond will soon sail for Europe, to be absent about six weeks. He will return previous to the music festival.

Lewis W. Hammond, with his father, has gone to Rye Beach for the benefits of sea air. He is improving slowly.

C. A. Page, Walter J. Denny, George A. Denny, Arthur Sibley, Herbert O. White, Lester Murdoch and Charles Waite of Leicester, George Onley of Cherry Valley, Misses Susan E. Knight, Maudana E. Snow, Bertha Denny and Mary Thurston of Leicester, Miss Claribel Moulton of Newburyport and Miss Alice Trask of this city have gone to Fryeburg, Me.

Artist Vinton has nearly completed portraits of Stephen Salisbury and Waldo Lincoln.

Misses Lizzie J. Ash, Lizzie D. Brophy and Agnes Judge will leave soon for a two weeks' vacation at Peaks Island, Me.

Frank Roe Batchelder has a poem, "Lost Land" in last week's Youths Companion. Wonder if he refers to the site for the Worcester Post Office.

Mrs. Lillie Wilkinson is at Rosedale, the residence of her cousin, Mrs. Ettie Henderson, on Cedar Avenue, Long Branch.

George F. Zaeder goes to Jamestown, R. I., for his vacation.

Jos. J. Melanefy takes his at Falmouth.

Mr. Paul Bronner, who recently purchased the confectionery establishment of Mr. A. J. Reinbold, at No. 131 Pleasant Street, will conduct the business at the old stand. Fruits in season, the purest confectionery, ice cream, fancy preserves, bread, cake, pastry, and all those delicious delicacies which are the product of modern skill, will be found here. Mr. Bronner intends to serve his patrons in that section of the city in the best possible manner, and makes a speciality of supplying parties and lodges with ice cream.

LADIES' SUITS!

RICHARD HEALY

Will close out this week:

$5.00 White Suits for	$2.75	20.00 China Silk Suits for	10.00
7.50 White Suits for	4.75	25.00 China Silk Suits for	12.50
8.75 White Suits for	5.75	25.00 Black Lace Suits for	12.50
4.75 Cambric Suits for	2.50	10.00 Tea Gowns for	6.50
7.50 Gingham Suits for	4.75	15.00 Tea Gowns for	8.50
12.50 French Gingham Suits for	7.50	20.00 Tea Gowns for	11.50

All Summer Goods Must be sold within 30 days.

RICHARD HEALY, - - - 512 MAIN STREET.

GEORGE W. PICKUP,

(SUCCESSOR TO SAMUEL CLARK.)

TIN PLATE, SHEET IRON and COPPER Worker,

Stove, Range and Furnace Repairer. Conductors and Ash Chutes. Refrigerators Lined and Repaired. Tin Roofing and General Jobbing. 23 years' experience in the employ of Worcester's oldest business man, Henry W. Miller. All orders promptly attended to. Shop, 16 Pleasant St., up one flight, residence, 31 Laurel St.

ICE CREAM! Delivered to all parts of the City. Supplying Parties, Lodges, etc., a specialty. No. 131 Pleasant Street.

ALL DISEASES

Of the SCALP Successfully Treated at
MISS C. KENNARD'S
HAIR-DRESSING PARLORS

387 MAIN ST., GROUT BLOCK.

Ladies' and Children's Hair Cutting, Curling, Singeing and Shampooing. All kinds of Hair Work to order; Wig Making a Specialty.

THE CRITERION Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.

231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SHREWSBURY ST.
J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

LAWRENCE, PHOTOGRAPHER.

492 Main Street.

TAKE ELEVATOR.

Crowding.

Worcester is everywhere praised for its beauty, because with its nearly one hundred thousand people, it is still so much just a great village nestling among and crowning her hills. She owes it to herself and to her county to keep her character; to keep herself, in every sense, literally and physically, The Heart of the Commonwealth. Of the people who have come to her, who of this are not thoughtful, should she not, as mistress of her household admonish the erring, restrain the improvident and suppress the misrule of the willful?

Yes, we mean the rear houses whose offensiveness was mentioned last week, crowding into the areas till the walls touch—save for the prohibited two feet from either boundary—the dividing line. Were the distance fifteen instead of two, it could be just as well enforced, and the city's healthy growth would not be hindered while it would surely remain a healthier city. "Prevention is better than cure." The ills that exist in the matter of tenement houses better stop where they are than be increased a hundred fold. Then may our children rise up and call us blessed. Suppress the crowding and escape the woe against those "who join land to land and house to house till there is no longer any room where one may go and be alone."

Prohibition by law, of everything that would be a nuisance is an idea we ought to become used to—since it is God's law and the law of our forefathers; prohibition of all things that must prevent the highest good. Nor are the good citizens, who coming among us we have adopted, in anyway afraid of this principle, but want what will insure permanent thrift—their own and their children's best heritage. Only those, native or adopted, allow prejudice to rule them, who do not, or wish to, adopt the better way, but only seek their own gain without care who is hurt.

The width of the street is guarded by law, let the rear, too, of the dwelling be protected, or Five Points crowds up toward Broadway; which matters less, than that the whole community should be allowed to suffer loss for the greed of a handful. For the wealth and prosperity of the wealthy is not a matter of isolation. If some suffer, the whole body politic suffers with them.

The bird question is germane to this, for space for trees means room for the songsters. Have you retired early enough to wake with the first of the birds? Then you have heard from your pillow through your open window concerts that rival in sweetness the songs of Jennie Lind; for among the cherrytrees the birds love to congregate.

Did you notice, it took a week of days for them to recover from the Fourth of July?

HOME LOVER.

Mr. F. F. Bowles and family are at Sterling.

J. W. GREENE, PLUMBER.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,

Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

J. S. WESBY & SONS,

BOOK * BINDING *

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

387 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand,) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

PHOTOGRAPHER.

Children's
Portraits
A Specialty

326 MAIN ST.,
Opp. Mechanics Hall.

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,

* PRINTERS. *

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,

DEALER IN

Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

401-403 Main Street.

All our 12 1-2c Yachting Flannels at 9 1-2c a yard.

All 32-inch Satines 8c a yard; former price 25c a yard.

All our 12 1-2c Gingham, in plaids, stripes and plain, 9 3-4c a yard.

All our styles in Outing Cloths 7 1-2c a yard; regular price 12 1-2c.

All 5c, 6 1-2c and 8c Challies 3c a yard.

All our 37 1-2c and 42 Scotch Gingham Novelties 25c a yard.

All 25c Gingham 18c a yard.

Genuine French Muslin, in figures, 12 1-2c a yard. They were 25c a yard.

19c and 25c Mohairs 15c a yard.

French Satines, in black and white small figures, 19c a yard; regular price 37 1-2c.

EDW. L. SMITH & CO.

Visit our Stationery Dept.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

They will go in a hurry.

If you want any part of them, you will come quickly for them.

There are only a thousand yards of them. They will make the loveliest rugs.

The cost will be so little that your interest must be excited.

We are talking about Manufacturers' Samples.

Five Frame Body Brussels

At 50c a yard, instead of $1.00 and more.

These remnants are 1 1-2 yards long.

In them are every possible pattern.

There are to be found every combination of colors used in carpets the past year.

Have you a particular spot where you need a mat, and is it necessary that it should harmonize with particular shadings?

One of these handsome Brussels Mats will save the carpet in front of the piano.

One of them will look nicely in front of your dressing case.

Maybe you may need one in front of the sofa.

At any rate you will know just where you'll want one or more of them, and where they will add most to brightness to your home.

What we know is,

That these Short length body Brussels are splendid.

Splendid for mats.

They cost but a little.

50c a yard, 1 1-2 yards in the length.

They will go in a hurry.

If you want any,

Better come and pick them out pretty soon.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

Church Notes.

Free Baptist—Pellett Brothers, contractors, are at work on the foundations of this church on Wellington Street.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Hope—This new enterprise, so well named, had a most enjoyable entertainment on the grounds of Mr. Chas. S. Hall, No. 5 Homestead Avenue, Tuesday evening. Quite four hundred people gathered to participate in the pleasures. Chinese lanterns were suspended from the trees, ice cream was served and a miscellaneous entertainment was given. The evening was an unqualified success, reflecting no little credit on the projectors and accomplishers. The proceeds will go towards the building fund. It is expected that the edifice will be completed next year.

Piedmont—During Dr. Mears' absence, the pulpit will be supplied as follows: July 26, Rev. Smith Baker, D. D., Minneapolis, Minn.; Aug. 2 and 9th, Rev. J. L. Withrow, D. D., Chicago; Aug. 16 and 23d, Rev. A. J. F. Berhends, Brooklyn; Aug. 30, Rev. G. H. Corey, D. D., Metropolitan M. E. Church, Washington, D. C.

Plymouth—Rev. Dr. Mutchmore of Philadelphia will preach morning and evening at the usual hours.

METHODIST.

Grace—Last Sunday, at the morning service, at the same moment, down parallel aisles were walking to seats well in front, a Chinaman, in the garb peculiar to his people, and a coal black African. The latter sat down by the side of a native of Germany. On every hand were Americans. Could there be a better illustration of the unifying power of Christianity. Here, at a glance, could be seen representatives of all the grand divisions of the earth's surfaces. Europe, Asia, Africa and America were all gathered under one roof. "Their lives have gone out through all the world."

Coral Street and Laurel Hill Churches united in a first-class picnic at Quinsigamond Park, Thursday.

Y. P. S. C. E.

The regular monthly meeting of the executive board of the local Union was held Monday evening in the Y. M. C. A. parlor. The time was spent in making plans for the Fall meetings of the Union and for aggressive no-license work during the coming months.

Y. M. C. A.

A. A. McLaughlin will lead the men's meeting tomorrow at four o'clock.

The boys' meetings will begin again the first Sunday in September, when N. S. Greet, the famous chalk-talker of Boston will speak.

Secretary Parker is spending his vacation at the Sterling Camp grounds.

Secretary Gale will take his vacation the first two weeks in August.

Secretary Meade's vacation will include the whole of August. He will first spend a few days in and about Andover, Mass., and then will go to Lubec, Me., the Young Men's Christian Association summer resort. The last two weeks will be spent in Berkshire County, his home.

RAYMOND'S VACATION EXCURSIONS.

ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

A party will leave Boston Monday, September 7, for the Last Trip of the Season to the

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK

ACROSS * THE * CONTINENT.

The westward journey over the
NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD,
and the homeward trip over the
CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY.

Incidental visits to Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, all the different points of interest in the Yellowstone National Park, Portland, the Columbia River, Puget Sound, Tacoma, Seattle, Victoria, Vancouver, Banff Hot Springs, Winnipeg, Montreal, etc.

In addition to above, a party will leave Boston on the same date for the Yellowstone National Park, the Pacific Northwest, and California.

October 15—Excursion to Southern California Direct.

22 Trips to Eastern Resorts in September.

Send for descriptive circulars designating whether Yellowstone National Park Tour, California Excursion, or 22 Autumn Trips are desired.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB,

296 Washington St. (opposite School St.), BOSTON, MASS.

LEGAL NOTICES.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To WARREN J. CUTTING of Worcester, in the County and Commonwealth aforesaid, GREETING:

THAT J. FORBES, Esquire, Judge of the Probate Court in and for said County of Worcester, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me, do hereby ordain, constitute and appoint you to be administrator of the estate of ASA R. COLLIER late of Blackstone in said County of Worcester, deceased, intestate:

And you are ordered to make and return to said Probate Court, within three months after your appointment, a true inventory of all the real and personal estate of said deceased, which, at the time of the making of such inventory, shall have come to your possession or knowledge.

To administer, according to law, all the personal estate of said deceased which may come to your possession, or of any person for you, and also the proceeds of any of the real estate of said deceased that may be sold or mortgaged by you.

To render, upon oath, a true account of your administration at least once a year, until your trust is fulfilled, unless excused therefrom in any year by said Court; and also render such account at such other times as said Court may order.

To pay to such persons as said Court may direct, any balance remaining in your hands upon the settlement of your accounts;

To deliver your letters of administration into said Court in case any will of said deceased is hereafter duly proved and allowed;

And also, within three months, to cause notice of your appointment to be posted in two or more public places in the city or town in which said deceased last dwelt, or cause the same to be published three weeks successively in the LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester and within one year return your affidavit of having given such notice, with a copy thereof, to the Probate Office.

In Witness Whereof, I have herewith set my hand, and caused the seal of said Court to be affixed at Worcester, this Seventh day of July in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

WILLIAM T. FORBES Judge of Probate Court.
Countersigned, F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

Commissioners Sale of Real Estate.

Will be sold at Public Auction on or near the premises on Norfolk Street, on Oak Hill, so-called, in the City of Worcester, Mass., on Monday, the Seventeenth day of August next, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon two certain tracts or parcels of land containing twenty thousand square feet more or less, and being all of lot No. (2) excepting two feet on the Northside thereof and all of lot No. (3) on a plan of lots recorded in the Worcester District Registry of Deeds for the County of Worcester, Book 455, Page 654, to which plan and record thereof reference is hereby made for a more particular description of the premises.

WILLIS E. SIBLEY,
HENRY M. CLEMENCE,
WILLIS F. PHELPS, } Commissioners.
WORCESTER, July 23, 1891.

Sundry Estates to be Sold for Unpaid Assessments.

COLLECTOR'S NOTICE.

Sidewalk Assessments.

WORCESTER, MASS., July 11, 1891.

The owners and occupants of the following described parcels of real estate, situated in the city and County of Worcester, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, all other parties interested therein, and the public, are hereby notified that the several amounts charged and assessed thereon by sundry decrees of the City Council of said city, passed Sept. 15, Oct. 13, and Nov. 24, 1890, respectively, as hereinafter set forth, on account of the laying out and construction of sundry Sidewalks in said city, under sundry orders of the City Council of Worcester, passed on the several dates hereinafter stated, said amounts being overdue, and the assessments therefor having been duly committed to me for collection, remain unpaid and that said parcels of real estate will be offered for sale at public auction, at the office of the City Treasurer, No. 12 City Hall, in said Worcester, on MONDAY, THE SEVENTEENTH DAY OF AUGUST, 1891, AT TEN O'CLOCK, A. M., for the payment of said amounts so assessed, together with interest on the same at six per cent. per annum from the several dates when the same became due and payable, respectively, as hereinafter specified, and all costs and charges thereon, unless the same shall be previously discharged, viz:

No. 1823. LEON H. BASSETT.
About fifty-six hundred and fifty-two square feet of land, situated on the easterly side of Millbury Street, between the estate now or formerly of Annie M. Erickson, and the estate now or formerly of the Heirs of Martin Madden, and now or formerly owned by said Leon H. Bassett.
Order of May 26, 1890.
Assessed Sept. 15, 1890.
Interest from Oct. 15, 1890.
Amount assessed $37.91.

No. 1903. LUCY ANN DOLLEN.
About nineteen thousand, one hundred and fifty square feet of land, situated on the south-easterly side of Southbridge Street between the estate now or formerly of the Heirs of Michael McGeanness, and the estate now or formerly of James A. Bowman, and now or formerly owned by said Lucy Ann Dollen.
Order of June 2, 1890.
Assessed Oct. 13, 1890.
Interest from Nov. 12, 1890.
Amount assessed, $69.73.

No. 1901. DANIEL McCORMICK.
About seventy-four hundred and seventy-nine square feet of land, situated on the westerly side of Eastern Avenue between the estate now or formerly of Christine Lundberg and Farwell Street, and now or formerly owned by said Daniel McCormick.
Order of Oct. 29, 1888.
Assessed Oct. 13, 1890.
Interest from Nov. 12, 1890.
Amount assessed, $50.49.

No. 1952. CATHARINE MULCAHY.
About fifty-six hundred and five square feet of land situated on the northerly side of Cambridge Street between the Providence and Worcester Railroad and Kansas Street, and now or formerly owned by said Catharine Mulcahy.
Order of Sept. 15, 1890.
Assessed Nov. 24, 1890.
Interest from Dec. 24, 1890.
Amount assessed, $27.98.

WM. S. BARTON,
Treasurer and Collector of Taxes for the City of Worcester.

C. REBOLI,

Confectioner * and * Caterer,
6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

Worcester Coal Company,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

Chautauquans at Lakeview.

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, JULY 22, 1891.

The largest audience of the season, so far, greeted Fred E. Brooks, on Monday evening when he appeared for the second time. Nearly every seat was taken. As a reader he is the best who has ever come before a Lakeview audience. Not only is he a humorist, but a real poet and many of his lines might be quoted for their real beauty of thought.

A person was heard to remark the other day that he saw very little of the spiritual element here. There are more classes than ever this year and the attendance is greater. Many will go to their homes and with the enthusiasm for Bible study obtained here, spread the good work of the Assembly in their own church. Interest in Bible study and Sunday School work is not flagging here.

The morning and afternoon lectures are on a variety of instructive topics and the evening entertainments are of a lighter character to relieve the strain of the day's work. No one can become aware of the amount of study crowded into ten days, unless he visits the classes, sees the earnest men and women, boys and girls, listening in wrapt attention to the teacher.

Tuesday evening the chorus gave the first concert. They sang four times; the other parts of the program were taken by the soloists and Prof. Schaufiler played a violin solo.

Mr. Leon H. Vincent was heartily applauded as he stepped forward to deliver the first of his course of lectures on literature. The subjects of his lectures are Heine, Balzac, Thackeray and George Elliott. All who heard him last year want to hear him this year.

Preparations are being made for the crowning event of the Assembly—Recognition Day. Then every one entitled to wear the Chautauqua badge puts it on and joins the procession. The address is to be delivered by Pres. Gates of Amherst College.

Friday is Musical Day, two concerts will be given by the chorus and special artists.

By the time LIGHT reaches its readers, the Assembly will have closed.

FLA CTEM.

N. H. C.

Comrade David Boyden gave the boys a talk, last Wednesday night, so full of life and zest and memory, that the lads were loth to let him go. For an hour, he gave them reminiscences of the "boys of '61" and with the youngsters stretched about him on the ground, with the campfire briskly burning, it did not require much imagination to fancy himself "On Old Potomac Shore." In fact, as he told his hearers of Fredericksburg, the glassy lake beside them was the Rappahannock which so many men crossed to their death. He was able to give them a very graphic description of that terrible fight, one that they will never forget. Time sped much faster than the boys or the speaker thought and time for "taps" came all too soon. "Finish that story" was the refrain that greeted him, when Comrade Boyden declared he must stop and go home. It was a racy evening, full of experience and adventure; a bright one in juvenile memory.

Sundry Estates to be Sold for Unpaid Assessments.

COLLECTOR'S NOTICE.

Sundry Street Betterments.

WORCESTER, MASS., July 11, 1891.

The owners and occupants of the following described parcels of real estate, situated in the city and county of Worcester, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and the public, are hereby notified that the several amounts charged and assessed thereon by sundry decrees of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen of said city, adopted January 3, September 6, and Nov. 10, 1890, respectively, as hereinafter set forth, for their proportionate shares of the cost of laying out, locating and constructing sundry streets, under sundry orders of the City Council of Worcester passed on the several dates hereinafter stated, and duly committed to me for collection, remain unpaid, and that said parcels of real estate will be offered for sale by public auction, at the office of the City Treasurer, No. 12 City Hall, in said Worcester, on MONDAY, the seventeenth day of August, 1891, at 10 o'clock, a.m., for the payment of said amounts so assessed, together with interest thereon from sundry dates, respectively, as hereinafter set forth, when the same became due and payable, until the day of payment, and all costs and charges thereon, unless the same shall be previously discharged, viz:

No. 852. AMY A. HAGER.
About sixty-nine hundred square feet of land, situated on the easterly side of Florence Street, between the estate now or formerly of Alice L. Howarth et al, and the estate now or formerly of F. C. Walton et al, and now or formerly owned by said Amy A. Hager.
Amount assessed January 3, 1890, $10.00
Order of May 7, 1889.
Interest from February 3, 1890.

No. 969. JULIA HANNIGAN.
About seventeen hundred square feet of land situated on the easterly side of Harding Street, between the estate now or formerly of Dennis Cahill and Franklin Street, and now or formerly owned by said Julia Hannigan.
Amount assessed September 6, 1890, $34.00
Order of May 20, 1889.
Interest from October 6, 1890.

No. 932. JAMES C. AND ELIZABETH LOVE.
About forty-three thousand, five hundred and sixty square feet of land, situated on the easterly side of Byron Street between the estate now or formerly of Dolly H. Bennett and the location of the Boston and Maine railroad, and now or formerly owned by said James C. and Elizabeth Love.
Amount assessed January 3, 1890, $25.00
Order of September 24, 1888.
Interest from February 3, 1890.

No. 993. WILLIAM H. SHERMAN.
About sixteen thousand, four hundred and ninety-six square feet of land, situated on the northerly side of Prospect Street, between the estate now or formerly of Eli A. Cross and Eastern Avenue, and now or formerly owned by said William H. Sherman.
Amount assessed November 10, 1890, $70.35
Order of May 26, 1890.
Interest from December 10, 1890.

WM. S. BARTON,
Treasurer and Collector of Taxes for the City of Worcester.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

THE INTERNATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA.

DODD, MEAD & CO., Publishers, New York.

*****

THE INTERNATIONAL ----- CYCLOPEDIA

IS THE

Latest and Best for

READY REFERENCE.

*****

Is not this your opportunity ?

Is your Cyclopaedia not used because its articles are too long and too technical? Then write for our exchange price.

Is your Cyclopaedia of little value because its articles are too brief? Then write for our exchange price.

Is your Cyclopaedia so old that its information is no longer satisfactory? Then buy INTERNATIONAL.

Are you without a Cyclopaedia, and looking for the latest, fullest, best? Then buy INTERNATIONAL.

SOLD FOR CASH OR ON EASY PAYMENTS. THE WHOLE SET DELIVERED AT ONCE in either case, freight charges prepaid

B. A. FOWLER & CO., NEW ENGLAND AGENTS, 36 BROMFIELD ST., BOSTON.

Mention this paper.

Captain Patrick Diggins.

There are few days now, when our G. A. R. flag is not at half mast for a comrade of Post 10 or some other Post in the wide connection. It is only an indication of the rapidity with which the "Boys of '61" are being mustered out. Sheridan rode his fierce steed up the valley to victory and immortality; but a fiercer steed pursued in 1888, one which he could not escape and grim death laid his icy touch upon him.

Our comrade of Post 10 had braved death on many a field. Like the Baron in the familiar stanzas he had "Met him, faced him, scorned him Where the fight was raging hot."

but the merciless foe sought him, in the quiet of his home and the valiant soldier was not.

For fifteen years, Captain Diggins has been a member of the Police Force, one of Mayor Jillson's appointees; and that he has been a faithful officer, everybody knows. As late as Sunday, the 12th, inst., he was at his post. Monday, he did not report, Tuesday he took to his bed and Thursday, he died, a victim of heart disease.

He was born in Ireland in 1838 and when a lad came to America, locating in Proctorsville, Vt., where he learned the moulder's trade. Later, he came to Worcester, and here the Rebellion found him. As a member of the Emmet Guards, he served three months at the outbreak, in the 3d Battalion. Then going to Vermont he enlisted in Battery G, the 1st Vermont Artillery, from which he was discharged in 1865 with the rank of Captain. Coming back to Worcester, he was a policeman for a short time in 1868 and was also a mail carrier under Postmaster Picket for about six months. Then he worked at his trade till 1875 when he went on the Police Force again. He married in Worcester and his wife, with a son and daughter, survives. The latter went from the High to the Normal School, where she is still a pupil. The funeral was held at St. Anne's Church Sunday afternoon. Service was read by the Rev. Wm. Hartigan and the church was filled by the survivors of the Old Emmet Guard, the G. A. R., and the Police Force and many other friends. The burial was in St. John's cemetery, where Father Hartigan read the service for burial, and a quartet, composed of Eugene A. O'Connor, John F. McCartney, Daniel J. Kelley and Michael W. Handlin, chanted the "Benedictus."

The pall bearers were Captain Nicholas Powers, Capt. M. J. Connors, George B. Chandley and Maurice Foley of the Old Emmet Guards, and Nicholas J. Mooney, James P. O'Connell, Clarence J. Thompson and James Hackett of the Police Force.

The floral tributes were numerous and handsome, including a massive shield bearing the words, "Worcester Police," and the deceased policeman's number, "12," from the Police Force; a cross of Easter lilies from Mrs. George Crompton; a bouquet of carnation pinks from the Daughters of Veterans and bouquets of cut flowers from Mrs. Ann Melaven and family and Frank Rawdon.

"He sleeps his last sleep, he has fought his last battle
No sound can awake him to glory again."

The Last Yellowstone Park Tour.

Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb will have only one more tour through the Yellowstone National Park the present season. The party will leave Boston Monday, September 7, and a week will be passed amid the wonders of that region, after which there will be a tour through Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and British Columbia, the return journey being over the Canadian Pacific Railway via Vancouver, the Glaciers of the Selkirks, Banff Hot Springs, Winnipeg, and Montreal. Nothing could exceed this tour in scenic interest. Every stage of the journey is through a picturesque region, and two of the finest railway lines in the world are traversed for their entire length. The Puget Sound country, Portland, the Columbia River, Victoria B. C., and many interesting places will be visited incidentally; In fact, the route can only give a hint of the many points to be seen. An entire week will be passed within the Yellowstone National Park, a longer period than tourists usually have. On the same date a party will leave for the Yellowstone Park, the Pacific Northwest, and California, the return being by the Santa Fe line.

Descriptive circulars of the various trips will be mailed by Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb, 296 Washington street (opposite School street), Boston, on application.

"No Irishman."

This story is told on Front street. A certain itinerant Israelite, several days since, called at a place where a native of Erin, noted for his immense stature and strength, bought of the Jew a pair of suspenders. Now this Emerald Islander had a deal of heavy lifting to do and when he bent over the strain was enough to break a log chain, let alone a pair of peddler's gallowses. Well, they were broken all to smithereens and the owner just laid for that Son of Moses. When he came along he was assailed by the choicest collection of invectives that Patrick possessed. There was nothing too good nor too bad for him. Among other terms used he called the poor descendant of Israel a "Christ killer." All this time, the Wanderer was trying to get out of harm's way and when he thought he was safe, he shouted back in reply, "Vell, eef my beoples kill him eet wash our own peezeens; he vash von of our own kind; he vash no Irishman."

A young Scotchman was halting betwixt two loves, one possessed of a beauty and the other of a cow. In despair of arriving at a decision, he applied for advice to a canny compatriot, who delivered himself thus: "Mary the lass that has the coo, for there's no the deefereence o' a coo's value in any twa weemin in Christendom."

I HAVE THE LARGEST
CARRIAGE :-: REPOSITORY

In New England. You can see over 200 elegant Carriages on one floor. GREAT BARGAINS in Carriages during the present month. This is my twenty-fifth year in business in this city, and my stock is the most extensive I have ever carried.

GEORGE C. DEWHURST,
 Nos. 17 and 19 Park Street. OPPOSITE COMMON.

Hon. Henry C. Rice.

This gentleman, long identified with the interests of Worcester, died at his residence, 65 Elm Street, Thursday, the 16th inst. of a severe illness of ten days' duration; though he had not been in health for several years past. He was born in Millbury, August 22, 1827, the son of Oliver Rice, himself a member of an old Millbury family. He was a farmer's boy, getting an ordinary common school education till he entered Brown University in 1846, whence he was graduated in 1850. He studied law in this city with Peter C. Bacon, Judges Dwight Foster and P. Emory Aldrich. He was admitted to the bar in 1852 and in November of that year opened an office in the Brinley Block with Judge H. B. Staples and Colonel John D. Washburn. The old shingle yet hangs on the front of that ancient block, about midway, just over the stairway leading up to G. A. R. Hall. Very near it is the sign of J. Henry Hill who, also, has passed on. Mr. Rice's wife was Josephine Allen, a daughter of the famous Judge Chas. Allen, to whom he was married April 23, 1861 and who survives him. They have long been attendants at the First Unitarian church where Mr. Rice, for several years was superintendent of the Sunday School. He figured quite prominently in politics for a number of years and from 1859 to 1861 was a member of the State House of Representatives. In 1879 and '80 he was the Worcester State Senator. In local affairs, he had been a member of the Common Council in 1858 and '61. He was a coun-in of Dr. J. Marcus Rice, who at the same time, was his attending physician.

Mr. Rice has suffered for several years, from Brights Disease, to which his death may be ascribed. He was one of the most respected men in our community, one of those who have given to our city its reputation for solid worth.

The funeral was held at his late residence, Monday at 2 p. m., the Rev. A. S. Garver officiating. The attendance was large, including many friends with representatives of the Worcester Bar. All the preparations were under the direction of Messrs. Henry A. Marsh and Nathaniel Paine.

The bearers were Hon. George F. Hoar, Col. J. W. Wetherell, Mr. S. R. Heywood, Hon. E. B. Stoddard, Hon. W. W. Rice, Mr. John C. Otis, Dr. J. Marcus Rice, Mr. Henry Woodward.

Among the prominent citizens present were the following: Judge P. Emory Aldrich, Major W. T. Harlow, Col. E. B. Glasgow, Mr. Thomas B. Eaton, Mr. C. C. Baldwin, Mr. Henry M. Witter, Mr. Geo. Sumner, George M. Rice, Mr. Samuel S. Green, Mr. Henry Bacon, Col. W. A. Williams, Mr. John A. Dana, Mr. C. I. Johnson, Mr. T. W. Hammond, Mr. Stephen Salisbury, Sheriff Samuel D. Nye, Mr. W. E. Rice, Mr. Fred J. Barnard, Mr. C. M. Bent, Mr. H. H. Chamberlain, Mr. James Green, Mr. William H. Morse, Mr. C. F. Aldrich, Mr. Edwin Brown, Mr. Charles A. Chase, Dr. George Chandler, Mr. Frank Staples, Mr. William Bush, Mr. C. E. Merrill, Mr. Charles E. Hale, Mr. Edward Aldrich.

The burial was in Rural Cemetery.

Boston & Albany Railroad.

ONLY
 First-Class Through Car Route
 TO THE
WEST!

Commencing June 7, 1891,
 Through Trains Leave Worcester:

- 9 50 A. M. (ex. Sunday) Day Express.
- 11.40 A. M. Daily, "Chicago Special."
- 3.25 P. M. Daily, North Shore Limited.
- 4.17 P. M. Daily, Cincinnati and St. Louis Express.
- 8 00 P. M. Daily, Pacific Express.

SPRINGFIELD LINE

FOR

HARTFORD, NEW HAVEN AND NEW YORK.

LEAVE BOSTON.	AR. NEW YORK.
10 13 A. M.	3 30 P. M.
12.12 A. M.	5.30 P. M.
5.06 P. M.*	10.00 P. M.
12.29 A. M.*	6 45 A. M.

*Run Daily.

For tickets, information, time tables, etc., apply to JAMES CUNNINGHAM, Ticket Agent, Union Station.
 A. S. HANSON, Gen. Pass. Agent.

FITCHBURG RAILROAD.

Reduced Rates of Fare

For Round Trip Tickets on Account of Summer

VACATION EXCURSIONS.

On Sale June 1st to September 30th, and good October until 31st, 1891.

FROM BOSTON TO THE

Popular Resorts of New England, New York and Canada.

Including local excursions to places in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont. The only line running Quick Trains, Superb Equipment and Through Cars via

HOOSAC TUNNEL ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO TROY, ALBANY, SARATOGA AND NIAGARA FALLS, AND VIA LAKE CHAMPLAIN ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO

WEST PORT, PORT HENRY, PLATTSBURG, BRANDON, BURLINGTON, ST. ALBANS, ADIRONDACKS and MONTREAL.

Summer Excursion Book

giving information in regard to routes, rates of fare and list of Hotels and Boarding Houses, can be obtained at the Company's office, 250 Washington Street, and mailed free on application to J. R. WATSON, General Passenger Agent, Boston, Mass.

The Ware-Pratt Company

Invite attention to an extensive display of

Fine Clothing for Men, Boys and Children.

The Latest Fashions, Exclusive Styles from our own workshops, Honest Goods and the Lowest Prices, Grade and Quality considered.

Our Custom Department is teeming with the Newest styles, Colorings and Materials, which go to make up the finest lines we have ever shown.

The Ware-Pratt Company,

MANUFACTURERS AND RETAILERS,

408 and 412 Main Street,

Worcester.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts. State of the order March 18, 1891: Membership, 4915. Amount loaned for Relief, $15,200; Reserve Fund, $22,922.40; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,759.68; Total, $44,975.48. Men and women admitted upon the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600.

Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organizers wanted. Address NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester, Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

LATHROP * BROTHERS,

LADIES', MEN'S AND CHILDREN'S

FINE AND MEDIUM SHOES

Of the most approved process of manufacture, meeting every requirement of Quality, Comfort and Style.

564 MAIN STREET, Franklin Square.

LEADING SAFETY BICYCLES.

Solid, Cushion and Pneumatic Tires. Full line of Supplies. Repairing a Specialty.

LEMONT & WHITTEMORE, 39 PEARL ST.

Open evenings.

E. W. COFFIN,

Store Fixtures

310 Main Street, Worcester.

Name this Paper.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES

at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

Larkin's, 395 Main St., Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps, Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.
Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Grate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD. Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main St.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

THE HEART OF THE COMMONWEALTH

NEWS SOCIETY BUSINESS
PERSONALS
MUSIC
DRAMA
LITERATURE
ART WELLS

LIGHT

VOL. III. No. 22. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, AUGUST 1, 1891. FIVE CENTS.

REV. THOMAS J. CONATY, D. D.,
Pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

[ENGRAVED EXPRESSLY FOR LIGHT.]

JULY 25.

PUTNAM &amp; SPRAGUE CO.

FURNITURE and UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

We offer everything at a discount. SEE IN OUR WINDOWS samples of the best Refrigerators, and the best Baby Carriages marked in plain figures at prices that will ensure the sale of every one. We shall not carry them over. If you want one NOW is the time to buy.

247 and 249 Main Street, Corner of Central.

YARMOUTH S. S. CO.,

(limited) Shortest and Most Direct Route Between United States & Nova Scotia, via the favorite sea-going and new steamships "Boston" and "Yarmouth." Sea voyage only 15 to 17 hours. Tickets sold to all parts of Nova Scotia.

Steamer will leave Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston, for Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 12 M. Noon.

Returning will leave Yarmouth for Boston every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Close connections made at Yarmouth with all Railway, Steamboat and Stage lines to all points in N. S.

For further information write for folder or apply to G. Y. Lancaster, M. H. Church & Co., O. F. Rawson, Worcester; or J. F. Spimney, Agent, Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the

ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,

97 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

C. H. DRAPER,

Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

This Large Moving Wagons. Baggage Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!

Saves Time,
Labor and Fuel,
two-thirds cost
per hr. for the U. S.

Maintains
Guarantee every Iron.

TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, Mfg. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

OXYGEN

We have the genuine

Oxygen Treatment

FOR THE CURE AND PREVENTION OF DISEASE.

It is not a Drug, but Nature's true Restorative in debility and all disordered conditions of the system.

Our Oxygen is fresh every day.

Prepared and administered with the utmost care by a Physician of large experience.

It will pay to investigate our METHODS and PRICES.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

LINCOLN BLOCK,

368 1-2 Main, Cor. Elm.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

Quinsigamond Lake ICE

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Especial attention given to the family trade.

Garfield &amp; Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 143-4.

N. G. TUCKER.

W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER &amp; SON,

SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street,

Worcester, Mass.

RAYMOND'S
VACATION

EXCURSIONS.

ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

A party will leave Boston Monday, September 7, for the Last Trip of the Season to the

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK

— AND —

ACROSS * THE * CONTINENT.

The westward journey over the

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD,

and the homeward trip over the

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY.

Incidental visits to Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, all the different points of interest in the Yellowstone National Park, Portland, the Columbia River, Puget Sound, Tacoma, Seattle, Victoria, Vancouver, Banff, Hot Springs, Winnipeg, Montreal, etc.

In addition to above, a party will leave Boston on the same date for the Yellowstone National Park, the Pacific Northwest, and California.

October 15—Excursion to Southern California Direct.

22 Trips to Eastern Resorts in September. Send for descriptive circulars designating whether Yellowstone National Park Tour, California Excursion, or 22 Autumn Trips are desired.

RAYMOND &amp; WHITCOMB,

296 Washington St. (opposite School St.), BOSTON MASS.

Worcester Coal Company,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, AUGUST 1, 1891.

No. 22

"O beauty manifold, from morn till night,
Dawn's flush, noon's blaze, and sunset's tender light!"

Just three months of license gone and the aggregate of arrests for drunkenness foots up a thousand.

Still that super-wise old owl will stand around and say, "There is just as much rum drank with no license as with it." What a dweller in dark recesses he must be!

Come out, neighbor, into the daylight. Cease your blinking in your voluntary darkness. Catch the rays of the rising sun and see that the world moves. Do you really think that the moon is composed principally of green cheese! You might just as well maintain that notion as the other one that you are eternally preaching.

One year since, the arrests in the same time were about one-fifth of those this year. A blind man could see the difference. Portions of our fair city that have been, till this year, unpolluted are now rendered nauseating by evidences of drunkenness. And, even were the records the same, the last year would be preferable, for then the business was under the ban; now it has the approval and sanction of the law.

So our Worcester G. A. R. men are off for Detroit. As usual, the gathering is foretold to be the greatest yet. This is said each year. Certainly, San Francisco will never see another like that of 1886 and Boston will not, again, repeat the glories of '90. Very likely Detroit will entertain more G. A. R. men this year than she ever will again; but as to the assemblage being greater than that of Minneapolis and Boston, well that is to be demonstrated.

But the "Boys" will have a good time. They always do. Representatives of the same regiments will gather from all quarters of the Union and what glorious reunions they have. Never, anywhere else, are handshakes half so hearty as those which old comrades extend to each other. "Tenting together on the old camp ground" is wonderfully conducive to cordiality and the men who have "Drank from the Same Canteen" never need reintroduction. It doesn't matter a ha'penny who is the next commander nor where the next encampment meets; but how the "Boys" enjoy themselves is of supreme importance.

Michigan's governor distinguished and we hope extinguished himself by vetoing an order appropriating money to assist Detroit in paying the bills, incident to the assembling. The beautiful city, however, between the lakes, was equal to the emergency and private subscription has done what the government ought to have taken in hand. Detroit will be exceedingly blue next week and yet not exceedingly unhappy. Her G. A. R. guests in their suits of cerulean hue will be happy also. Here's happiness and pleasure to all!

But faces, long expected and ever greeted with gladness will be lacking. For the first time there will be no cheering for Sherman as the heroes of a hundred battles pass the reviewing stand. Of course, there are still notables, but there was only one Sherman. To some, his presence meant more than all the rest of the gathering. Sherman, Sheridan, Hancock, Logan, Grant, noble men, whom noble men revered, have joined the ranks on the other side. The "Boys" too are less boyish than they were thirty years ago. Soon the G. A. R. men on these occasions will have to ride, for their marching days will be over.

One of the most notable articles in the Current Atlantic is the one upon Switzerland or "Six Centuries of Self Rule." The compact of the Three Forest Cantons was made August 1st, 1291. So then LIGHT has the pleasure of making its weekly bow on the 600th anniversary of that auspicious event. Uri, Schwyz and Unterwalden were the three states or cantons that entered upon the agreement that finally developed into the Switzerland of today. All about the famous Lake of Lucerne are still retained memorials of the beginning. The fathers built exceedingly well.

For some time the Boston Traveller has been waging a wordy war against the Hoodlum. The purpose of the paper is admirable. There is no place, large or small, in the United States that has not its representatives of this most objectionable class: but the Traveller deceives itself if it supposes that Hoodlumism can be abolished by decree. It is a product whose sources are deep seated in our body politic. It is difficult to reach the fountain head. To remove the hoodlum of today is only a temporary relief; it would be like getting rid of one crop of drunkards while licensed dram shops were sending out as many or more new ones.

No, dear Traveller, you are like Don Quixote in his famous windmill tilt. You may cut and thrust and parry; but you don't get down deep enough. The causes lie in loose immigration laws, in poorly enforced school laws, and in parental indifference. A paper cannot reform all these faults in a season; but the Traveller's ambition is laudable. Let other sheets take up the refrain. Let us clamor for less license, but with all necessary liberty. When we sort and cull our new arrivals, when we enforce the go-to-school and the go-to-work laws, then and not till then will Hoodlums disappear. We are cursed, as a nation, with what is popularly termed, liberty; but it is a misnomer. It is not liberty at all. It is tolerated license and it is filling our jails, prisons and poor houses and graduating Hoodlums into tramps and often criminals.

We are in for the war against crime of every kind, whether it be that of an adult or a youth; but let us, in our application of remedies, cut deep down into the bone if necessary to eradicate the evil. If possible let us go to the cancerous sources and dig them out. We have no end of work before us. Society itself needs an upheaval.

Explanatory.

"A Parent" writes to LIGHT objecting to the use of, "Arise, let us go hence," in closing an editorial paragraph in last week's paper and, again, to the childish attempts at christening, given in the story, p. 492. I wish the writer would call at this office, I should like to say to him or her that no one will go further than myself in demanding and enforcing regard for sacred things. However the expression may have struck the writer, there was no irreverence intended in using the Bible sentence, no more than there was in the mind of the Hon. Charles J. Noyes when he used the same words at the end of his Memorial Day address in Mechanics Hall in 1882. My thought was, "Let us get out of the present O. quarters as soon as possible." Then as to the story! Children play. Many of us in childhood were married "By the holy Leviticus Law" and if any children of Christian parents have attained maturity without "Playing meeting" they are worthy of exhibition as curiosities. Those children meant no harm. The boy became a clergyman. They simply did what they had seen their elders do. It is a truthful picture of childhood. Still, in spite of truthfulness and illustration, I should not have used nor allowed any expression that would injure the feelings of any parent, no matter how sensitive, had any such result occurred to me.

A. S. R.

Mr. A. M. Gould and wife and daughter Edith are at their summer home in Barre.

George N. Morse is at Sterling.

Edward Bates, formerly manager of L. Merrifield's music store, now of St. Paul, Minn., is visiting friends in this city.

Fred A. Bigelow, of this year's class at the Polytechnic Institute, leaves August 12 for Germany for further study in chemistry.

Officer John E. O'Day of Station 1, accompanied by his wife, left Monday for a ten days' visit at Monument Beach and Lowell.

Charles M. Thayer of this city has been admitted to the Suffolk Co. Bar.

District Attorney Francis A. Gaskill's children have returned from Portland, Me.

Miss Carrie M. Cady is visiting in Athol.

George Aldrich will spend most of his vacation at the Highland, Belchertown, Mass.

Mrs. Thomas Plunkett and son will spend the last three weeks in August at Salisbury Beach.

City Auditor John F. Howell is having a week's vacation at the seashore resorts about Boston.

Miss Nellie A. and Mabel A. Abbott are spending a few weeks at Block Island.

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND
HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.
Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building,
Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as
second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, AUGUST 1, 1891.

Two Bicycles!

THIRTY-FIVE DOLLARS!

One will be given to that boy or girl who secures the most cash
subscriptions for Light between this date, May 30th and August
1st, 1891.

The other is for the boy who sells the largest number of papers
during the same time.

Come up to the office, boys, and
talk it over.

Every failure to receive Light promptly
should be, at once, reported at this office.

All scraps of informations concerning persons and events, thankfully received.

Friends sending in manuscripts will not complain if they are not printed at once. There are many waiting. Yet Light is always glad to receive communications and, if meritorious,
to print them.

Hereafter, it will be understood that all articles in Light, not ascribed, save receipts,
squibs, fashion and household notes were
written for this paper.

Captain Glazier.

From Dubuque, Ia., comes the Times of that city, presumably from Mr. J. C. Crane of Millbury setting forth the merits of the new expedition, now on its way to the headquarters of the Mississippi. A good time for the voyagers is assured any way.

The Monthly Calendar, sent out by the Rev. Fr. Conaty of the Church of the Sacred Heart, for the month of August is, as usual, filled full of matter, pertinent to the theme.
"A Rose of Gold," specially written for the Calendar is excellent. Two articles call special attention to the desirableness of Total Abstinence.

The mountains have come to Mahomet or what is much the same thing, the Berkshire Hills Record comes to our office. The paper brings visions of that rural paradise that gladden the memory. It is elegantly presented on the best of paper in the best of type. The managing editor is W. H. Chase, a Worcester boy, now in Williams College. It is published during the society season, in Pittsfield, and ought to have a popular following in that delectable region.

No. 3 of the Veteran makes its appearance and it contains a deal of matter useful and entertaining to G. A. R. readers.

The Week.

CITY.

July 17—'Tis even said that the P. O. may go to the Rink. It might do much worse.

Cars for the Spencer and Leicester R. R. arrive.

18—Swedish churches hold a mass meeting to concert action against the Rum Traffic.

Mr. Wm. Hays, Main street market man robbed by till tapper.

19—Large G. A. R. and police attendance at funeral of Captain Patrick Diggins.

James Gallagher, who robbed Wm. Hays arrested; but the money was gone.

20—Central church accepts resignation of Ass't Pastor, Leon D. Bliss.

Battery B gives ex-Captain Allen a fine picture "1807."

21—Joshua Mitchell, 11 years, loses both feet by cars. So. Worcester, trying to climb on.

Edward L. Pierce commits suicide, Cor.
Pleasant and Sever Streets.

Ex-Alderman Sawyer "held up" by a ruffian who was drunk or crazy.

George S. Evans, P. M. Inspector, approves the suggestion to move the P. O. to the Rink.

22—Worcester Emmet Guards win all the honors at the Framingham Camp.

Odd Fellows go to Rocky Point and Newport.

St. John's Guild goes to Quinsigamond
Park for Picnic.

23—Mayor Harrington goes to Framingham camp. "He would a soldier be."

24—Worcester Lodge of Royal Ark gives up the ghost. "That's the way the money goes."

Steam, horse and electric railways to the Lake the chief themes of discussion now-a-days.

25—Alderman T. Frank Gates entertains friends at Quinsigamond Park. Clam bake and rain. Clams are said to be happiest at high water.

Worcester Post Office made a first class one.

29—Rev. Alonzo Sanderson of Laurel Street preaches to R. R. men.

27—Street Railway makes a test case of B. F.
Boyden's refusal to pay fare. He had a transfer check which should have been used on preceding car.

Harry L. Dadmun reaches New York, returning with the Manhattans.

28—James Ghegan, a veteran of the 25th Regt., buried from his late home, 106 Canterbury Street.

Judge Hamilton B. Staples continues dangerously ill.

Mr. Cutting's plan for a new Post Office much admired.

29—A large excursion from this city witness evolutions of the White Squadron at New London.

The Greendale omnibus sadly wrecked.
Luckily, no one was seriously injured,
though there were twenty-six passengers.

30—Owing to license and new drunk law our jail on Summer Street is running over full.

COUNTY.

That's a funny list that the last Southbridge Journal gives. Every dog in town and his owner. Quite an assortment of names, 262 in all.

17—Burglars at work in Grafton. They crack the safe in the P. O. The same gentry or others like them make Westboro people anxious.

Miss Annie McClellan buried from her father's residence in Grafton, Rev. B. A.
Robie officiating.

18—A disastrous fire in Clinton.

20—In Webster, Patrick Morrissey is thrown from a hand car and severely if not fatally injured; blouse caught on the handle by which the car was propelled.

21—Horace Pike of Worcester is building a road for Senator Hoar to the top of Asne-bumskit, in Paxton.

Miss Martha S. Makepeace, deceased, late of West Brookfield, among other public bequests gives $500 to Congregational Church of that town.

22—Sterling Camp Ground is rapidly filling up. People of various sects and diverse localities find the place a pleasant one.

23—Barre has annual celebration and parade.
It was success itself.

At Hillside cottage, Sterling Camp
Ground, Mrs. J. H. Martin entertains Loyal Women of American Liberty.

24—The Heywood shops in Fitchburg are being put in shape to receive Ivers Johnson's machinery.

25—Disastrous fire in Dudley, property of Andrew Whiting. House, barn and contents, including six cows.

Milford is jubilant over the consent of Houghton, Coolidge & Co., of Ashland to remove their extensive shops to the former place.

27—Leicester people complain because bicyclists use the side walks. Elderly people injured.

Hannah Larned Amidon dies in Dudley, in 96th year.

Mrs. Alfred D. Ladd dies in Clinton, in 84th year.

30—Westboro is chiefly interested in the affairs of the closed out Broncho Cycle Factory.

COMMONWEALTH.

17—Lynn suffers from another big fire $300,- 000.

18—Children's Day at Lake View, New England Assembly.

19—Rev. Albert Banks, the Boston preacher, continues his valuable sermons on the various phases of the Labor Question.

20—Jennie Collins commemorated for her devotion to the poor and afflicted. She was the projector and manager of Boffin's Bower.

21—Camp of 2d Brigade pitched in Framingham. The Emmet Guards are there. Lakeview Assembly hears Daniel Dorchester, Jr. talk about Hamlet.

22—The Springfield Union says that Worcester is no longer the Heart but the Refrigerator of the Commonwealth.

23—Governor Russell visits Lakeview Assembly. Did not get a degree.

24—Governor Russell visits the 2d Brigade Camp in Framingham.

25—Mrs. Mark Hopkins Searles dies in Methuen of La Grippe. She was a resident of Great Barrington, and very wealthy.

Ex-President Cleveland received and dined and talked to in a manner befitting his exalted position.

26—Rev. L. A. Banks continues his discussion of Labor oppression. Hope he may help the poor; but it is doubtful.

27—Democrats decide to hold their next convention in Worcester, Sept. 29th

Malden members of the Royal Ark expect to lose $15,000. N' Ararat for them.

West Medway assaulters of Herbert Pratt held for the Grand Jury.

28—F. C. Allen, noted publisher of Augusta, Me., dies at Parker House, Boston.

Boot treers strike in Drakes Factory, Quincy.

29—New Bedford Royal Arkers expect to have their matured claims paid.

30—B. W. Potter's term of office as ballot law commissioner having expired, the governor nominates Samuel W. McCall of Winchester.

Hon. Charles Robinson, brother of the Ex-Governor, dies in Newton, 62 years.

NATION.

17—Kentucky has a characteristic episode. Officers ambushed by desperados. Then the citizens lynch one of the ambushers. "The dark and bloody ground."

Census Commissioner Porter says the field is now practically covered.

18—Alexander Grouley dies at Soldiers' Home, Leavenworth, Kansas, aged 98. He had served in War of 1812, the Mexican and War of the Rebellion.

19—It is claimed that Senator Quay will retire from the chairmanship of the National Republican Committee.

20—Two thousand immigrants land in New York. How long can this kind of thing last?

21—Senator W. H. Ross, Chief of Cherokees, I. T., died yesterday at Fort Gibson.

In N. J. 3,000 acres of land are purchased for a Hebrew Colony.

Statue of Stonewall Jackson unveiled in Lexington, Va. Interesting ceremonies.

22—Owing to the eleventh hour intercession the advertised prize fight in St. Paul did not take place.

Prospects favorable for ending the Tenn. labor troubles without bloodshed.

23—The Tenn. miners will allow convicts to dig till the Legislature can change the law. Almost a revolution.

24—Maine druggists denounce Prohibition.

"Ne'er culprit felt the halter draw
With good opinion of the law."

Sixty refugee Russian Jews landed in New York. Immediate advance in "old eloes."

25—General Draper gives a dinner at Narragansett Pier in honor of Mrs. Jeff. Davis, but she does not appear. Hardly a secession.

26—Northwestern University receives $50,000. Blaine and Anti-Blaine war still raging. "A curse on both your houses."

27—Ex-Gov. Paul Dillingham of Vermont dies, 91 year.

Ex-Pres Cleveland will not speak in Ohio.

Rev. Wellington White and three members of his family killed on R. R. crossing in Elmira.

28—Arms for Chilian rebels shipped from San Francisco.

Statistics show increase of criminals in this country.

29—Collector Erhardt of New York resigns. Senator Fassett takes his place.

Henry G. Hubbard of Middletown, Conn., dies, very wealthy, 77 years.

Ex-Gov. Dillingham of Vermont buried.

30—Quay, late secretary of the National Republican Committee, denies that the President requested him to resign.

WORLD.

17—The Kaiser sends numerous presents to the English.

France lowers duty on American Pork.

Germany doesn't like the massing of Russian troops on her frontier.

18—London Congregational Congress does not believe in fraternizing with Unitarianism.

Famine impending in Russia.

19—Aged Gladstone writes a beautiful letter to seriously ill Spurgeon.

De Lesseps derided and hooted where he once was feted and honored.

20—Dom Pedro is seriously ill at Vichy.

21—Condition of Ireland said to be improving.

22—Great Wagner Festival at Bayreuth. Shah of Persia seriously ill.

The Coldstream Guards, London, mutinous over extra duty on account of the Kaiser's visit.

23—American World's Fair Commissioners dined and wined in London. How the Fair will boom now!

France proposes to return flags to Russia captured in the Crimea. This will forward the projected alliance.

24—Memorial to the Pilgrims unveiled in Amsterdam.

The outlook for English Tories grows worse and worse.

25—President Carnot's wife, France, escapes assassination. Obviously, her husband was meant.

Henry M. Stanley reported seriously injured while climbing in the Alps.

26—Apparently infernal machines are becoming popular in France. Three officials receive them.

27—Forty-three people killed in the St. Mandé R. R. calamity, France.

It is now claimed that the revolt in Chili is nearing its end.

Terrible floods in Germany.

28—Welch tin business coming bodily to this country.

Chilians elect a new president, Claudi Vacuna. This ends Balmaceda. Will it end the rebellion?

29—Russia has another Nihilist scare. Twenty-eight officers arrested in St. Petersburg.

President Diaz of Mexico recovering his health.

30—At St. Maude, France, 25,000 people witness the funeral of the victims of the late R. R. accident.

ABOUT FOLKS.

Miss Annabel C. Roe is spending a week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvah Metcalf in Ashland.

The plans for the New Post Office as suggested by Architect A. P. Cutting are meeting much and deserved approval.

Miss Minnie Williams of Congress Street is visiting in Gardner.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Kent left Thursday for an extended trip to Deer Isle, Me. Mrs. Kent will spend most of her time in sketching.

Miss Ella Gibbs of 25 Maple street has gone on a month's vacation to Mystic, Conn.

Misses Minnie Eaton and Kittie McTierman are spending the spending their vacation at Nantasket.

Alfred S. Roe talked to the boys at Natural History Camp Wednesday evening on Rebel Prison Life.

E. H. Kemp and George Sargent of this city are off for a two weeks' outing in Nova Scotia.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. W. Bartelle and children are passing a week's respite in West Dedham.

L. A. Whittemore, junior member of the firm of Lemont & Whittemore, bicycle dealers, is listening to what the wild waves are saying on Nova Scotia's rock-bound coast.

Mrs. W. A. Denholm, whose mental condition, since the death of her husband, has occasioned her friends much anxiety, will enter Dr. Walter Channing's private retreat in Brookline today. She has been for some time in Shrewsbury.

C. P. Haselden, of the W. H. S. '91, who sails for Europe next Wednesday, was agreeably surprised, Thursday evening, at the church parlors of All Saints, by the presentation of a fine ebony stick, gold headed cane. This was from the Young Men's Guild of the church, of which Haselden has been president since its organization. The recipient is to study dentistry in Basle, Switzerland, next year.

Rev. J. O. Knowles, of the Coral Street M. E. Church, takes his vacation in parts. Monday, he will drive with his family to Hubbards-ton and thence to East Templeton, returning later in the week. A good way to have an outing.

Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, D. D.

There are eight Roman Catholic churches in Worcester. Of these, in point of age, the Church of the Sacred Heart ranks sixth. It is located near the east end of Cambridge Street and like so many churches in our city, faces toward the north. Organized as late as 1880, it has, nevertheless, seen many changes in its immediate vicinity. Where were, then, open fields, now houses or factories are found. Starting very modestly, the church has excellent appointments and prospects. The pastor and people, now that they are safely beyond them, like to recall the privations of the beginning, when with only a foundation wall, built and roofed over, in this rich and populous city, they worshipped upon the bare earth with scant covering above them. But from that day, little more than ten years away, they have made a great advance and from basement to auditorium, few are better provided for, than those who worship in the Church of the Sacred Heart. After some months of occupying the basement of the proposed edifice, it was thought best to go on and complete the structure. This was done and Sept. 21, 1884, it was dedicated by Bishop O'Reilly. Meantime, a very handsome structure had been erected hard by as a parochial residence. Back of it is a building devoted to church society purposes and a gymnasium.

The clergyman who has been the motive power in all this work is still at the helm, constant and assiduous in his labors. The Rev. Thomas J. Conaty was born August 1, 1847, in Kilmallick, County Cavan, Ireland. This county is the most southerly of the old division of Ulster. By a singular coincidence, LIGHT devotes these columns to a sketch of Father Conaty's life on his forty-fourth birthday. He was scarcely three years old, June, 1850, when his parents came to America and settled in Taunton, where other members of his father's family had resided from 1832.

In fact, his grandfather was one of the first Irish settlers in that place. When in his teens, the father of our subject, who had gone to the same schools in Taunton that his own sons afterwards attended, went back to Ireland and there married. Afterwards, as stated, he came back to America with his family.

Fr. Conaty had his preliminary training in the public schools, and in 1863, Dec. 30, entered Montreal College, whence he came to Worcester to the College of the Holy Cross in September, 1867. He was graduated, thence, in 1869. He returned to Montreal for the study of Theology and was ordained to the priesthood, Dec. 21, 1872. His first assignment was to St. John's church, Worcester, as an assistant to the Rev. Thomas Griffin, and there he continued till he was appointed to the new parish of the Sacred Heart, January 24, 1880. His labors here have been indefatigable. He has been constantly at his post save as the calls from some of the interests to which he is devoted have withdrawn him and, in 1882, when he made a trip to Europe for recuperation, and at the same time to accompany home his brother, the Rev. Bernard S. who had been a student in the College of the Propaganda, Rome.

That we may better know the Reverend gentleman, let us call upon him at his home. At the left of the main entrance is the waiting room, having reminders of the calling of the resident and of the fact that he is interested in Ireland and Irish matters. Passing down the hall we are admitted to his study. This is a large room, having south and west windows. The walls are covered with book shelves. As nothing so proclaims the man as the books that he reads, let us glance around. Next the south window are cases filled with Theological works, interesting and valuable to the clergy but rather provokative of weariness of the flesh to laymen. Turning the angle, on the east side, we find books devoted to History and Education. Among these, possibly, the most valuable are volumes made up of excerpts on the subject of education, taken from the current reviews and magazines. These command a wide range and indicate the interest that Fr. Conaty takes in this most important matter. Passing the door, we come again to cases, this time filled with Cyclopedias and general literature. Here are the "American" and the "Britannica." Also we see the familiar backs of "Dickens," "Thackeray," "Carlyle," "Ruskin," "Cooper" and many others who have helped to make life worth living. Still journeying around the room we come to a well filled case of books pertaining to general history, along with some bound magazines as "The Catholic World" and "The Nineteenth Century." If we read our host aright there is no one of these cases that gives him more pleasure than the next and last, for it is filled with books that describe Ireland, past and present, physically, socially, religiously and politically. He sought far and wide for some of the books that rest upon these shelves.

In addition to these books, thus displayed, ready for use, with no intervening glass doors, Fr. Conaty has long been a scrapbook maker. In above thirty volumes, thus made, he has an invaluable running history of Temperance, the Irish Land Movement and other causes that have, first and last, excited his interest. Well indexed, there is nothing so useful as the carefully kept scrapbook. Upon the walls, in the few vacant spaces are frames containing addresses offered to him by certain societies, abroad. One is from the Young Ireland Society of Cork, another from the Total Abstinence Society of Dublin, and a third from the St. Patrick's C. T. A. Union of Cork. These are engrossed in a most superior manner and are elegant souvenirs of his trip to Europe.

Aside from his regular duties as a pastor, Fr. Conaty has shown an earnest devotion to the Temperance cause. From the date of his beginning to labor here, he has been a promoter of Total Abstinence among his people. When in 1877, the Total Abstinence Union of the Springfield Diocese was formed, he was made the first president and represented the Union in the National Convention in Buffalo, the same year. In National affairs, however, his pressing home duties prevented his participating till 1885, when at New Haven he was made one of the Vice Presidents, and, again, the following year at Notre Dame, in Indiana, he was re-elected. At Philadelphia, in 1887, and at Boston, 1888, he was made President of the Association.

Perhaps no citizen of Worcester has more thoroughly identified himself with the movement for the liberation of Ireland, than the pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart. From the start, he was prominent in the Councils of the Land League, for several years was treasurer of the Massachusetts division of the League, and was also treasurer of the Parnell Testimonial Fund. He was Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions at Buffalo and Chicago and in Philadelphia was the leader of the Conservative forces. Possibly, of American speakers, there was no one more ardently listened to on the subject of Ireland's wrongs than Fr. Conaty.

His readiness of speech, his fund of information, his elegance of diction, have made him a popular speaker through a large portion of the East, particularly on Irish, Temperance and Educational topics. He has been the orator at the Soldiers' Monument on Memorial Day in this city and in 1890, he was the speaker on May 30th in his boyhood's home, Taunton. On the death of General Grant in 1885, he was one of the speakers on our Common at Worcester's Memorial exercises.

He has been a frequent contributor to the current literature of the day, and is not slow to take up argumentative arms in defense of what he believes to be right. The Catholic World has had several of his contributions on matters pertinent to the times. For thirteen years, he was a member of the School Board of this city and was ever deemed an efficient and painstaking worker. He is now serving his second term as a member of the Board of Directors of the Public Library.

On leaving the clergyman's pleasant study, should we enter the parlor, at our left, we should see faces pictured there, which will remind us that all the duties of church and public life do not crowd out the thoughts of home and loving friends; for here, with others, are semblances of his brother the Rev. Bernard S. rector of the Cathedral in Springfield, of Bishop O'Reilly of the Springfield Diocese and, best of all, of the mother who has passed on to the other shore and of his father still living in Taunton.

As we shut the door of the pleasant home behind us, we take a parting glance at the church and its surroundings. Thrift and perseverance have done much for the locality. Were we to enter any of these homes, hard by, we should hear pleasant words concerning the gentleman whom some of his parishioners call "Father Tom." He is fortunate in having in his parish some of the bright young teachers of the city and they are efficient helpers in many of his undertakings. During the present year, he has sent out, each month, a Calendar, prepared for the information and profit of his congregation. While this is a labor of love, it has entailed no little effort, but no work, no hardships balk him in his desire to further the interests of his church and people.

In conclusion, it is hardly necessary to describe the personal appearance of our clergyman. He is well known in Worcester, and he maintains the respect of people of all denominations. He is true to the tenets of his own faith and is deeply read in the doctrines of his church. In 1880, Feb. 20, at the centennial of Georgetown College, District of Columbia, he was honored with the degree of Doctor of Divinity, conferred by Cardinal Gibbons, a recognition that was particularly agreeable to his many friends of all churches and to the city of his adoption.

About Folks.

Pastor Worth, Grace Church, and family started for Cottage City, Monday.

Rev. C. M. Southgate has his vacation in Gloucester.

Churches, Sunday Schools and places of amusement shrink fully one half in attendance during this dull season.

Mrs. Chas. M. Roe and son of Newbury Street have been visiting in Newton.

James M. Daly, W. H. S. '90, has received an appointment as sub-clerk in the mailing department at the Post Office. The work will be daily in all respects.

Mr. A. H. Howard of 16 West Street is in receipt of another installment of old clocks from England. All of us have hobbies.

Miss S. E. Bates of Salem is visiting at H. W. Badger's, No. 7 Dix Street.

Mrs. W. E. Bowen is at Falmouth Heights; her mother, Mrs. Metcalf, at Hopedale.

On the occasion of the meeting of the Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., of the Lower Provinces of British North America, which convenes at Yarmouth, N. S., Wednesday, Aug. 12th, 1891, the Yarmouth Steamship Company will issue return tickets at one first-class fare, good to return up to and including Saturday, Aug. 15th. Excursionists can leave Boston either Monday, Aug. 10th, or Tuesday, Aug. 11th, and can return either Friday, Aug. 14th, or Saturday, Aug. 15th. Among other attractions will be the laying of the corner-stone of the new Odd Fellows building, an excursion and fishing trip, etc.

George P. Davis and his brother, Edward H. Davis, are spending the summer at Lake Champlain.

Mrs. J. P. Green and Miss E. M. Green of Cohoes, N. Y., are visiting at the residence of Thomas A. Green, 22 Harlem Street.

City Engineer Charles A. Allen, with Mrs. Allen and family left Saturday for a two weeks' vacation trip to Orland, Me.

William A. Gilfillan, class of '91, Holy Cross College, is spending his vacation with friends in Boston and suburban towns.

Mrs. Margaret Smith and family of Plymouth Street, are spending the hot months at a summer residence in Greenville, near Rochdale.

Master Wilfred D. White, son of J. D. White of White & Conant, is spending a couple of weeks with Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Grover at Brookfield.

Miss Throop and Miss Lulu Throop are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Nichols, at Rockport.

It is worth noticing that the office of Dr.'s A. A. and F. H. Howland, dentists, No. 11 Pleasant Street, is open during the season. As aching teeth know no season, these gentlemen are ready to impart all the alleviation possible.

Miss Flora Minor of Worcester has been the guest of Miss Lena Schomburg. Miss Minor is a member of Grace Church choir and well known in musical circles in Worcester.—Southbridge Press.

Mr. John P. Marble, Miss A. L. Bean, Mr. Chas. E. Smith and his daughter, Ruth, all of 33 Harvard Street, are at Falmouth Heights.

Alderman Webster Thayer and wife will spend the month of August at Brant Rock.

Mrs. C. H. Draper and daughter, Miss Luta H. Draper, have gone to Lake Pleasant.

Chas. H. Sibley, the newly appointed principal of the Sterling High School, is a brother of Willis E. Sibley, Esq., of this city and is a recent graduate of Amherst.

Miss Carrie M. Adams and Miss Anna M. Murray, both teachers in the public schools, have gone to Deer Island, N. B., for the remainder of the vacation.

The circular recently sent out by F. L. Hutchins contains the latest information concerning the progress of Volapük. There are three pages of foolscap size, written in parallel columns, English and Volapük, so that all who receive may read. Mr. Hutchins is doing much to promote interest in this language.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Locke, Miss Hattie and Master Warren Locke with Miss Nellie Baker leave today for a trip to Indianapolis and Louisville, Ky., via. White Mountains and Niagara Falls returning home through Canada.

VOLAPÜK.

Studels!

Iso givob penedi ole pepenöl fa volapükon in Graz, Austria, lovepololös omi.

F. L. HUTCHINS.

GRAZ, 1891, VIIul, 6id.

Söl palestimöl!

Pötü funam volapükakluba olas benovipob ladlikuno oli demü seks jönik steifas zilik ola pakön volapüki in Nolümelopik. Vipob Kä-nüdiko, das klub yunik olas holomös e plöbomos aiplu, e das döi genialik söla Schleyer tuvomös suno züpanis lemödik in Melop!

Is sibirnom liliulazilak volapükik: ab anu funobis volapükoklubi zenodik plo Stiran (Styria), spelo ko sek gudik.

Begob divodikün oli glidolös plidikuno kop-analis ledivikün valik kluba olas nemü ob, e lensumolös flenikuno glidis ladliküm oba.

Disopenob lestümafuliko

as D. D. O.

LUDWIZ ZAMPONI.

The Coates Clipper Co. in view of their increasing business in foreign countries have secured a volapük clerk and advertise to correspond in this language. They have already received communications in volapük.

The Music Festival.

The managers of our annual feast of music are busy arranging for the coming festival which is to occur September 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25.

Our reporter does not succeed in getting at the full scheme of the management, but is assured that the great public who have so implicitly put their faith in the hearty and unre-served efforts of the committee of arrangements these many years, will this season more than ever have occasion to be enthusiastic over grand results. It has become public that, after years of endeavor, beginning when Madame Nordica made her first great successes in England and on the continent, three years ago, the committee have at length secured the lovely and accomplished vocalist for service at a Worcester festival.

Assurances are given that the other assisting artists are worthy to aid in carrying out the great plans for the present year.

Rehearsals of the chorus are to be resumed Friday, August 28th, at Association Hall.

UNIFORM SIR KNIGHTS

Order Sons of St. George. Second Annual Excursion August 15, to Mystic Island, Watch Hill and Block Island. An excursion full of pleasure, only $1.25, $1.50 and $1.75. For tickets and other information call on George Y. Lancaster, Agent, at 434 Main Street, opposite Front Street, Worcester.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Mr. Ernest L. Pettes, collecting agent, gives personal attention to the collection of bills. No. 24 Pearl Street.

Geo. E. Kirby & Co., Dealers in Umbrellas and Parasols. Repairing and recovering a specialty. 397 Main St.

Boston Store.

Established 1870.

Sole Agency
Centeman's Gloves.
Butterick's Paper Patterns.
E. C. Bur's Shoes.
Foster Kid Gloves.

For a costume that is appropriate to wear upon most all occasions, what takes the place of a Black Dress? Every woman has at least one in her wardrobe, be she in mourning or not.

To meet this demand one make of goods for its excellence of quality has risen, so that it is now the acknowledged standard in Black dress goods. The name of B. Priestly & Co. upon a piece of Black or Grey dress goods is a guarantee of quality.

A full line of B. Priestly & Co.'s goods will always be found in our Black goods stock. Please notice that Priestly's goods are rolled upon a varnished board and that the name "B. Priestly & Co." is stamped on the under side of the selvage.

This week we sell:

40 in. Priestleys Silk Warp Amure, $1.00
40 in. Priestleys Silk Warp Tamesa, $1.00
40 in. Priestleys Silk Warp Convent Cloth, $1.00

New Gift Books:

The World's Wonders, by J. W. Buel,

Sea and Land, by J. W. Buel,

Story of the Wild West, by Buffalo Bill, (Hon. Wm. F. Cody.) Cloth, $1.00; Full Morocco, $1.25.

DENHOLM & MCKAY COMPANY.

The College of the Holy Cross.

Its New Building.

"Matre, Pulchrior Filia, Pulchra."

The college is being enlarged by a new building, magnificent in proportions and elegant in structure. At length, this handsome college, the first to attract the eye of the western traveler, known throughout the Catholic world for its high attainments and for the honorable quota of professional men it is yearly sending out into the battle of life, has gained the end for which it has long been striving, the means of accommodating all students who seek education within its halls.

The new building is to adjoin the old one at right angles on the east end and will extend south 220 feet and west 110 feet. The addition will be four stories in height, with a basement, and will front the avenue which is as beautiful an approach to a college as there is in the country. The basement will be a gymnasium and will be provided with all the latest apparatus. The gymnasium will be 140x48 feet and will have a running track, 15 laps to the mile, raised about eight feet above the main floor. There will be an enormous swimming tank, 50x34 feet, besides the regular bathing rooms with conveniences for all kinds of baths. The first floor will contain a lecture room, class rooms, laboratories and parlors. The second floor will contain a large hall, class rooms and the library. The third floor will contain 32 rooms for the Philosophy or Senior Class. The fourth floor will be used as a dormitory. Each floor will have wide corridors in the middle and will be connected by grand staircases. The main entrance to the building will be in the middle of the new wing, of stone, and with a vestibule. The building will be of brick with granite trimmings. The basement will be of granite to correspond in style with the rest of the building. There will be a gigantic tower about 150 feet high, just over the main entrance, while the north end will have a similar smaller tower.

The building in itself will cost close on to $150,000, and will be something worthy of our already beautiful Heart of the Commonwealth. As one must notice in observing the building, there is a steep inclination along the terrace. The excavations for the new building will form the material for a new base ball field on the lower terrace. It is an immense task, but when completed it will furnish Holy Cross students a handsome opportunity to witness college games on its own grounds.

In the graduation exercises of '93, the college will observe the golden jubilee of its 50th anniversary. It is then that the new building will be thrown open to the public and to the students and it is safe to say that at this time will occur the grandest celebration in the history of Holy Cross.

Edward Fay, a graduate of the Brussels Conservatory of Music, and a pupil of Liszt and Mattei, who has taught in Fort Augustus College, Scotland, and Ramsgate, England, has been engaged as professor of music at Holy Cross College.

Pronouncing Modern Greek.

As many may know the pronunciation of the modern Greek language is by accent, and not by quantity, as in England and America has been the custom with ancient Greek ever since the time of Erasmus, the Dutch precursor of Martin Luther. Of late years the American schools have been pronouncing more and more by accent, and the custom has even invaded England and Germany. Now it seems that the German scholars in Athens, noticing the interest taking by the young emperor in matters of education, have petitioned him to make the pronunciation in German schools conform to the usage of the modern Greeks. Were this done it would be much easier for a German in Greece to understand the spoken language, which he can read easily in the newspapers, but cannot comprehend when he hears it at his hotel.—Boston Advertiser.

"Through an unsuspected slip in the rules, a woman was a few years ago admitted to the law school at Yale College, and graduated with honor. But she was the only one, for the college straightway closed the gate. Now the only certificate ever granted to a woman in the college proper has been issued to Miss Irene Coit, of Norwich, Conn. There is, it seems, no law to prevent a woman paying the Yale examination fee and testing her ability to cope with young men in answering the entrance questions. Nevertheless, she cannot enter the college, and Miss Coit, though she passed the examination with marked distinction, is elbowed out of the way by some youngster of the other sex who has not a tittle of her ability or acquirements. It is not in reason to suppose that such a condition of things as this can last much longer."—Housekeeper's Weekly.

Suppose that a young man should, by some means, be admitted to the examinations for Vassar, Smith or Wellesley and suppose, he were able to pass. All will admit that he might pass. What then, would he be admitted? Well hardly. But why not think that just as strange as the foregoing? Is not the whole system of separate colleges for the sexes a remnant of mediæval monasticism, entirely unworthy of this day and generation? The sooner the plan of dormitories which take away home restraints, is done away with the better.

Boys, and girls, too, for that matter, should be educated where the refining influences of home may be daily felt. Hail to the institutions that have taken down the shutters and have let in the light of the Nineteenth Century. Let us hope that all newly founded institutions will be on the broad foundation of absolute equality in all things for both sexes.

Worcester Boys, not from our High School, who have passed their college examinations: Joseph Sargent, Jr., son of Joseph Sargent of this city, Merrick Lincoln, son of Waldo Lincoln, passed the entrance examinations to Harvard University without conditions.

Willard D. Thompson has successfully passed his preliminary examinations to Amherst college.

George Crompton, Earle Brown and Arthur Morse have been officially informed that they have passed the Harvard entrance examination.

W. F. and George Hogg, having graduated from Phillips Exeter Academy will enter Harvard College in the fall.

Chetwood Smith has passed his preliminary examination to Harvard University.

George William Throop has passed his preliminaries for Harvard University without conditions.

Two Corner Stones.

The Central Christian Advocate says that the great event at the Commencement of the Nebraska Wesleyan University was the laying of the corner-stones of "the finest manual-training-school building in the United States." Its dimensions are 126x60 feet. It will cost $50,000, and is the gift of Jacob Haish, of De Kalb, Ill. The department is to be endowed when the building is done. Bishops Warren and Newman and Gov. Thayer made the addresses. One of the stones was laid by Mr. Haish himself; the other was to have been laid by Mrs. Haish, but, unable to be present she delegated that honor to Mrs. Chancellor Creighton. The significance of two corner stones is in the fact that co-education is emphasized. Both ladies and gentlemen are to enjoy the benefits of this department. Mr. Haish laid the one stone, declaring that the building was erected to benefit "both women and men." Carved on each stone is a border of barb wire, expressive of Mr. Haish's invention, from the profits of which he set apart a portion for this building.

The papers of the large cities are all right if you want them, but it is the local paper that advertises your business, your churches, your numerous societies, sympathizes with you in your affliction and rejoices with you in your prosperity. In short, it is the local paper that mentions the thousand and one items in which you are interested during the year, and which you do not find in the papers of the large cities.—Elmira Advertiser.

John Wanamaker is a successful business man. He has made a most successful postmaster-general. The department has been run on business principles. He says: "I never in my life used such a thing as a poster or dodger, or handbill. My plan for 15 years has been to buy so much space in a newspaper, and fill it up with what I wanted. I would not give an advertisement in a newspaper of 500 circulation for 5000 dodgers or posters." There is nothing sentimental about this statement. It is pure business.

Bridget has a kitchen full of her company: Mistress (from the head of the stairs)—"Bridget!" Bridget—"Yis, ma'am." Mistress—"Its ten o'clock." Bridget—"T'ank ye, ma'am; an will ye be so kind ez to till me me whin its twelve?"—Judge.

An Effective Delivery.

Visitor—Your pastor seems to be a very earnest man. His voice trembled with emotion when he read the lessons this morning.

Soprano—, It wasn't that; he had just had a row with the choir leader, and he was mad clear through!

Books and Bookmen.

An Ancient Book Hunter.

That the Book-Hunter has not been evolved by modern civilization, but was fully developed long before the invention of the art of printing, will be apparent to anyone who reads the following lines which I translate from the Noctes Atticæ of Aulus Gellius, a Roman grammarian, who lived in the second century of our era.

"As we were returning from Greece into Italy we came to Brundisium and, stepping ashore from our ship, walked about that celebrated port, which Q. Ennius, by a somewhat far-fetched but very fitting word, has called præpetem (swift-of-flight, nimble); he evidently considered it a fast town; we saw the sign exposed of books for sale, and I eagerly and immediately went to the books. Now they were all Greek books, full of wonders and fables; things unheard of, incredible; old writers of no small authority, Aristæus Proconnesius and Isigonus Nicaensis and Ctesias and Onesicritus and Polystesphanus and Hegesias.

Certainly the volumes were rough and filthy from their long exposure, and they were unsightly in aspect and appearance. Yet I approached, inquired the price, and induced by the remarkable and unexpected cheapness, bought many books for little money; and during the next two nights I hastily ran through them all; and in the reading I made certain extracts, and also marked striking passages, and those almost untouched by our authors, so that who may hereafter read them with attention will not appear altogether unlearned and stupid in hearing of such things.

For instance, there were written in these books such as the following: The most distant Scythians who inhabit the extreme North, eat the bodies of men and protract life upon the aliment afforded by those conquered; they are called anthropophagoi. There are also men under the same part of heaven having one eye in the middle of the forehead, who are called Armaspi; poets say that the Cyclops had a similar face. There are other men in this region of singular fleetness, having the tracks of their feet turned backward, and not as with other men, looking forward. Furthermore it is related and asserted that in a certain far distant land which is called Albania, men are born who become gray in childhood, and who see better with their eyes by night than in the daytime. It is also stated and believed that the Sanromatae, who live far beyond the Borysthenes river, take food but every third day, abstaining between.

We also found written in these books, what I afterwards read in the seventh book of the Natural History of Plinius Secundus, that there are in Africa certain races of men with voice and tongue having the power of fascination. If these by chance highly praise beautiful trees, luxuriant crops, lovely children, fine horses, or well-kept herds, all quickly die from no other obnoxious cause. It is also written in these books that the power of fascination becomes deadly in the eyes; and it is related that there are men in Illyria who kill by sight alone those whom they look upon with wrathful eyes; and that the men and women so readily susceptible to this fascinating influence have themselves two pupils in each eye. That there are also in the mountains of India men with the heads and bark of dogs, who live by hunting birds and wild beasts. Moreover, as other wonders are men in the farthest regions of the Orient, who are called one-legged, running by jumps on their solitary legs and are of long lived agility. Certain ones also without necks, with their eyes set upon their shoulders.

And indeed it passes on beyond wonder itself, because these same writers declare that there is a race of men in farthest India with hairy bodies, and wings of birds, who take no food, but live upon the perfume of flowers drawn up their nostrils; and not far from these are produced Pygmies, of whom the tallest are not more than two and a quarter feet high. These and many other things of the kind we read."

Thus much, and more, Gellius found in this particular "find" of a book-hunter. That he was a true hunter as I have termed him, is proved to the satisfaction of any of his kind by one or two of his statements. He stops at Brundisium for a short time, and walks about to see the town; spies the old-book stall and makes no further mention of the city. And again his many books for little money (libros plurimos aere paucio emo), and sitting up the next two nights to run through them (cursim transco), pictures him to my mind as some men I've known.

That there were other of his ilk with whom he could compare notes—and what hunter of any kind was ever quite happy, lacking opportunities to exhibit his game?—is shown by another brief passage from an article on an altogether different topic. "It occurs to my mind that a renowned Roman grammarian showed me a book of the Aeneid of wonderful age, bought for twenty golden Sigillaria, which he believed to have been Virgil's own copy." There you have it; he believed it to have been Virgil's own copy, just as the bibliomaniac believes, albeit with scanty evidence, that he possesses Washington's prayer-book, or Lincoln's Blackstone. Verily there is nothing new under the sun! L. J.

Frances E. Willard recommends that, in view of the service which Anna Dickinson rendered in helping to pioneer the way for women as public speakers, each woman now in the lecture fields devote the proceeds of one lecture to the fund for Miss Dickinson's benefit.

Edward Eggleston, the author, says Harper's Weekly, resides way up in northwestern Vermont, in the midst of the primeval woodland, and far removed from any railway, in a rambling old homestead rejoicing in a quaint designation of "Owl's Nest." His versatility is as amazing as his energy is unbounded. He has been a preacher, a poet, a journalist, a novelist, and is now a historian. For several years past new tales from Mr. Eggleston have been as scarce as angels' visits, the reason being that the popular novelist, in a heroic moment, set aside the better portion of a decade in order to write a "History of Life in the Thirteen colonies."

Many people never knew that the octogenarian poet Tennyson had an elder brother living who, half a century ago, was thought to be a greater poet than his brother Alfred. A London publisher, however, now announces a new volume of verse by his elder brother, Frederick Tennyson.

The Home of Hamlin.

High-perched among the hills of Oxford County, Maine, is the birthplace of the late Hannibal Hamlin, one of the most distinguished citizens of the state. About this illustrious name and around the little village of Paris, clusters many events and noted persons. The village is built upon the summit of a hill of the same name, commanding a view of hill and valley, with the White Mountains as a background, their peaks either buried in clouds or standing out in bold relief against the cold blue sky. Hannibal Hamlin's old home is a large, square, old-fashioned mansion, on the very verge of the hill, looking over the valley of the Little Androscoggin river, and across to the hills and mountains beyond. It is a beautiful spot, and the visitor loves to watch from the lawn the silver thread of the river winding through the valley.—From "The Birthplace of Hannibal Hamlin," by Charles E. Waterman, in New England Magazine for August.

The Atlantic Monthly for August, 1891. Contents. The Lady of Fort St. John, IV—VIII, Mary Hartwell Catherwood; A Disputed Correspondence, Harriet Waters Preston and Louise Dodge; Notes from the Wild Garden, Edith M. Thomas; Two Little Drummers, Olive Thorne Miller; The Pea Fields, Charles G. D. Roberts; A Colonial Inquisitor, Charles Henry Lea; General Sherman, John C. Ropes; Harebell, Edmund Clarence Stedman; The House of Martha, XLI—XLIII, Frank R. Stockton; The Queen's Closet Opened, Alice Morse Earle; The Reform of the Senate, Wendell P. Garrison; The Marriages, Henry James; Sweet Peas, Julie M. Lippmann; The Oppression of Notes, Agnes Repplier; Six Centuries of Self Government, W. D. McCrackan; Browning's Life; Murray's Memoirs, Canada and the Canadian Question, Novel Economies, Comment on New Books, The Contributors' Club.

For mid-summer reading the Atlantic, with the possible exception of the continued stories, might be called a trifle heavy this month. Everything is good and ought to be read; but it will not be strange if some of the articles are compelled to wait till Fall or Winter for a thorough perusal. For instance "A Disputed Correspondence" is learned and lengthy and all that; but in August, most people care little about the letters of Seneca and St. Paul. "Notes from the Wild Garden" is not up to the natural history articles of the former two numbers, nor is "Two Little Drummers" so entertaining as the Humming Bird articles of June and July. "A Colonial Inquisitor" is a lurid picture of Inquisitorial iniquity in South America in the 17th Century. General Sherman is treated quite too technically by Mr. Ropes to interest the general reader. Mr. Garrison sees in the manner of electing the United States Senate more grounds for fear than does the public generally. Those who like Mr. James will read his "The Marriages" with interest; but everybody doesn't like Mr. James. "The Oppression of Notes" is useful but hard reading. One of the best contributions to the number is "Six Centuries of Self Government," setting forth briefly, a history of the Republic of Switzerland. The book reviewers, are as ever, fair and discriminating. The Contributor's Club is not so long as we could wish. A peripatetic vacation School in Switzerland is interesting enough to make one wish for youth again. A love episode in Robert Fulton's life is particularly bright.

American Literature, an Elementary Text Book for use in High Schools and Academies, by Julian Hawthorne and Leonard Lemmon, Superintendent City Schools, Sherman, Texas. Boston, D. C. Heath & Co., 1891, $1.25.

A new text book in literature is not calculated to excite much expectation in the mind of the average teacher. But this book, produced by the combined labors of Julian Hawthorne and a Texas Educator ought to awaken curiosity at least. The very undertaking of preparing a single book which shall be a picture of the writers and the literature of a given period and, at the same time be more than an enumeration of names, generally appalls the man or woman to whom the matter is suggested. It is probable that this is Mr. Hawthorne's first appearance as the preparer of a school book though it may not be his last. A co-partnership of such remote workers makes us wonder in what way their respective labors dovetail together. This can be no Erckmann Chatrian business.

But as to the book itself. There are eleven chapters, the preface, words to teachers and the introduction. Colonial literature is first treated, wherein are named Capt. John Smith, John Winthrop, John Eliot and others. It is one of the best chapters in the volume. A whole chapter is given to Benjamin Franklin, and then comes the Revolutionary Period, which includes Freneau, Trumbull, Barlow, Paine, Jefferson, John Adams, Hamilton and many more. In the Pioneer Period are Irving, Cooper, Poe and several lesser lights. Suggestions for class exercises follow this discussion and they ought to accompany every chapter. Some statesmen and historians are taken such men as Calhoun, Sumner, Clay and Webster, Bancroft, Motley and Ticknor. Chapter VI really begins American Literature as we know it today, for here are Bryant, Longfellow, Halleck and Drake, with selections from Longfellow. "Religious and Social Reformers" is devoted chiefly to Emerson, then to Thoreau, Margaret Fuller Ossoli and a few more. Chapter VIII is Nathaniel Hawthorne, Chapter IX, From Hawthorne to Bret Harte, Chapter X, "The Innovators" and, finally, Chapter XI "Writers of Today." No one can classify for another, neither would one man's list be like that of another equally competent judge. So we must not wonder why one name is taken and another left. There are pictures of writers through the book; but these vary much in quality. The same may be said of the chapters. It is a defect that class questions and suggestions do not obtain throughout the work. Again some abstracts are so much longer than others that some seem to be slighted. Obviously, Walt Whitman is not a favorite with the writers nor does E. P. Roe receive as much praise as Col. T. W. Higginson would have given him.

After all in the hands of a good teacher with a well selected library, hard by, it will do much towards awakening interest. It has the merit of bringing the subject down to date, thereby being a great improvement on all other books now in use.

"Let no one rashly conclude that Miss Willard has written a book in this year, when she is off the platform. Her "Classic Town" was written in installments for the Evanston Press, in a series of pithy sketches, and these she has collected, furnished and added to. It is now on the press, and its appearance is awaited with eagerness by the residents and friends of that favored city favored, indeed, in having such a historian."—Union Signal, July 16, 1891.

The book is out and in the trade. It is one of the best books of the season.

St. Nicholas, from the Century Co., New York.

Its frontispiece is Puck and Fairies, and it has a rhyme to go with it by Helen Gray Cone. "Four sides to a triangle" is a story on boating in which a race and the hero's struggle with himself are the main points. "The Crowned Children of Europe" is explained by its title. "The Fortune of Toby Trafford" leaves him putting out a fire on his wharf, and his readers in despair that no more can be known till next month. An article on hunting, one on birds, several pages of vacation letters, two chapters of the eastern story, a bit about a cat, the new tale of a tub are all fully illustrated. "Some incidents of Stanley's expedition" is well worth reading, and "The story of my life" with the picture of the narrator has a deal of interest. Could we mention and describe each picture it would take a column, so you must get the magazine and see for yourselves what a choice book these publishers are willing to place before your children.

The Ladies' Home Journal from the Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia.

Twenty-eight different topics some of them having several papers by different writers. To describe all would give you but little idea of what there is in this number. It is surely a Summer number for there is a page on "Summer ills and Summer dangers. The "Types of American girls" is well written, and everybody will rejoice that the page for the boys contains so much that belongs to them and that this page is now an established feature of the paper. Lady Tennyson is the wife whose sweet pictured face is before us this month, the unknown wife of a well known man. The premium offers of this paper are wonderful and all should read its contents.

Wide Awake, from D. Lothrop & Co. Boston.

The most noted articles in this number are "Peg's Little Chair" by Sara Orne Jewett, which is a story of a little New England girl, and which cannot fail to please all readers, and "How the Cossacks Play Polo" by Mme. de Meissner. The continued stories are as interesting as any one could wish, and no doubt the older people are reading "Five Little Peppers grown up." There are papers on "Shells of sea and land", "How to dry star fishes," and one on "An odd set" which must be read to be appreciated. An article on "Very Old Toys" goes back ages, and with its illustrations tries to picture the playthings of the little Egyptian children of those days. Several short stories, and the Wide Awake Postoffice complete the number.

Scientific American for July. Contents.

Whaleback Steel Merchant Barges; American Saltpetre Caves; Electrical Block System; Uranium in the Black Hills; Phosphate Beds in our Southern States; Drawing of Financial Bills by the Casanova Apparatus; Improved Methods of Building; Uncle Sam's Currency; Antiquity of the Electric Light; Writing Inks; The Rolling Wheel; Military Dovecotes in Europe; Sandstone Industry; Science of Old Age; Diamond Cutting; The North River Tunnel; Notes of the Amazon; Photographic Notes; Science in the Theatre; Edison Dynamo and Motor; Tests for Olive Oils; Supplying Moving Trains with Water; Mammoth Cave of Indiana; Licorice; Locust Visitations.

The above list includes only the names of the longer articles. Little comment is necessary after such an array of titles. They include almost every subject of science. If your boy is of a scientific turn of mind let him have the Scientific American to read. He will await its weekly visits with great interest and will there find suggestions enough to keep himself busy for a long time in trying to make rude models of the machines described; or he will be incited to hunt up the flora of his native town; or to supply the house with electric bells, etc.

A mine of information is here furnished in such sized pieces, as to be carefully examined and treasured up.

Austin G. Fitch.

This gentleman died in Watertown, Mass., Monday, July 20th. He was born in Guilford, Vt, in 1813 and he married in Worcester, Sept. 24, 1840, Miss Mary Charlotte March. His death is of special interest to Worcester people, in that it was through his influence that the teaching of music was introduced into our public schools.

Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Halloran returned Sunday from a very enjoyable trip of two weeks' duration to Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands and St. Lawrence River.

Dr. A. Z. Conrad is off taking his annual outing at Pigeon Cove, and White Mountains. So hard a worker deserves a respite.

Hereafter, C. I. Rice will confine his musical teaching to Worcester schools, having resigned his instructorship in Ware.

Osgood Plummer, wife and daughter, Miss Stella, are at Weirs, N. H.

Walter S. Bliss and George R. Bliss, Jr., will spend the month of August at the Bliss homestead, in Gill. Mrs. George R. Bliss will join them the latter part of the month.

Mrs. J. Frank Quinn and Miss Kate Fitzgerald left Monday for a two weeks' visit to friends in Brooklyn.

Harry S. Davis will take charge of the Y. M. C. A. boat house at the Lake Aug. 1st. Harry Wentworth, who has been in charge, will enter the training school at Springfield.

Allie J. Doon and Thomas Simons of Natick have been in town.

Misses May and Edith Mecorney, daughters of Charles L. Mecorney, are in Hillsborough, N. H., visiting friends.

Faces and Pictures.

In Memory's Hall.

(Continued from last week.)

It is June, when all nature is in sympathy, and the Heavens, the earth's canopy, fall like a blue gauze over and around the world's frameless space.

We stand as it were before a finished painting, defying the greatest artist in its perfect grandeur of creation.

As we glance here and there, the eye is delighted with some beautiful tint just peeping from under heavier color, which the varying changes have wrought. So do our delicate-traits even more soften and tone down the roughness of our nature. Just as the high colors are relieved by the gentler tints, O, so many times are we forgiven the boldness of our presence, when instinctively a glimpse is caught of the more refined shadings of our character. To-day the breath upon our cheeks inspires the soul.

We seem to live a life; and as the thought comes to us, we marvel at the words, "Eye hath seen nor ear heard—" O, Thou greatest of all artists, who hast made this wonderful panorama in which is seen the beginning of real life, wherein the brick-a-brack of man's ingenuity is builded but put away by an unseen hand!

Here and there through the fields are seen the wild flowers nodding and courtesying before the gentle breeze with the air of, "My face is my fortune," gazing innocently upwards. Prompted by our inconsistent nature, we put forth the covetous hand and snatch one after another from its stem, and with fond admiration drink in the faint aroma of our charms, as they slowly and silently droop on our bosom. But soon the ruthless hand removes the little dagger that has pinned these things of beauty to their resting place, and with fond touch turned fiendish, casts away the once cherished emblems of love. The birds are joyous: singing I am so happy, so happy.

Every-thing is happy now.

'Tis as easy now for the heart to be true,

As the grass to be green and the sky to be blue.

'Tis the natural way of living.

But ah! One half the world little knows how the other half is living.

The sun may give its warmth and light to one half the people while the other may be hid under the threatening clouds of despair, which ravage the soul and bury the people in a deluge of tears. But to-day we are in the sunshine. And what a revelry to be enjoyed while under those delightful trees, whose outstretched branches are beckoning us on!

But time thou art a thief or the present has swift wings.

'Tis Noon!

The great orb has reached its meridian.

The zenith of life is soon reached and is very short, but short as it is, our thoughts can reconnoitre in the past and measure the breadth of the future.

And we see Ruth and David as they are coming down Lover's Lane. We leave them here, and looking down the vista of years we see the sweet face of little Ruth now rounding out into womanly beauty. Not long ago was it, that with dinner pail swinging in one hand, and sun-bonnet forgetting its duty, chasing in the other, little Ruth tripped merrily to school.

No jumping of fences, or runs from plaguing boys disturb that dainty lunch for mamma's hand piled those beautiful slices of butter and bread.

Between the two hard boiled eggs, so carefully is laid that mysterious paper parcel pinched at both ends, containing the salt and pepper well mixed; and last but not least lies temptingly, the savory morsel that school girls so delight in, which some-how finds its way from under the basket cover and goes slyly into school under the shelter of a little white apron, too often leaving traces of its route, although soon confined beneath the desk.

But when the sums get to be puzzling, the pickle is brought out and while vainly attempting to stifle the smacks, the brain works out the problem, but— After school the sun-bonnet is not swinging but is tied tightly under the chin, to screen from the fast setting sun, those tear stained eyes. And the pickle! Where is it?

After visiting the next neighbor for her to take one delicious bite, it is carried home, and at night when mamma clears out the dinner pail she throws away the lasting emblem of a school-girl's days.

No finishing touches at Smith or Wellesley; no dish washing or bed-making at Mt. Holyoke; but a private tutor had Ruth, with whom skillful training in physical culture was gained at the bread-board; and the general affray in the dish-pan sounded like some musical strain from the touch of dear little hands.

And 'tis "The mother's hour" that can best fit her child for one of the noblest walks in life, and as Ruth stands at the entrance gazing pensively off, a youth appears.

There are the ringlets; there are those same beautiful eyes: the same unrestful spirit burns within, and still to look is to be conquered; but they bear another character now.

The boy is not there.

He has left his college life behind him too, and unconsciously the poetry within him now and then warms his soul into a burst of eloquence.

With what gentleness the branches are pushed aside, while with the gentle breeze, we listen and catch the words, spoken in reverential voice, "My people"—

"Their guide;" and in that time of bliss, like the gentle zephyr's whisper we hear the answer, as it comes wafted upon the breeze—the words of Ruth "Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God." And now they disappear amidst the toils of life, their private griefs cementing the spring time to that perfect season, which so soon is followed by the hand of time; when "The grass withereth" and "The flowers fade."

The sun has gone down and night is stealing upon us, leaving in its trail sweet and sad memories of the past. Time, we would say, is gone like a shadow; only that the dial designates its travel on to Eternity. So it has passed with our friends, till many years have flown and we return once more to the country.

The cottage stands the same.

There on the steps in vividness of imagination are seen the stains of mud pies made by little hands, and although leading not to a palatial residence, it has been the stage on which real life has been acted.

How we think we hear the echo of childish glee and the murmur of gentle tongues, then the beauty of summer comes before us, and love and maturity are blended in our dreams. But that awful noise of these angry waves seems to swallow up the past and the present stands before us cold and cheerless.

With a feeling of fear we look up to the windows, and instead of the pictured faces, we find they are frames to emptiness.

But the present urges us on, and gaining the front room in this cottage by the sea, we sit with the mourners, by the bedside of him who is waiting for the sentence "Dust to dust."

The storm comes with its wreck at sea, making desolate homes and hearts.

Death is partial, for sometimes while one may cling to this world, fighting the enemy with his last and only weapon, Hope, he comes to another and gently stills the breath of mortal life.

As his grim presence is felt in this cottage, a sad joy is visible on the faces around the dying, for "There is never a cloud without its silver lining;" and a rent is seen in the clouds—the fury of nature is turned to gentle tears.

As the sun peeps from behind the now fast breaking clouds and comes as if to bid farewell to the dying, in that front room in the cottage by the sea, little David, in an old man's garb and crown of snowy white hair, looks out and sees a speck of Heaven.

He hears the "Come" and the holy light that shines and illumines those fine features of a face calm and serene is the index of a soul which points to where life's sunshine, love, is soon to be perfected.

The sun rises clear on a mellow autumn day, when the air is perfumed with falling leaves and the sky hangs like a drapery resplendent with autumn shades. The winds whisper "Peace, be still," to the ocean whose bosom heaves only to breath out repose.

The sandy beach lies basking in the sun, which shines upon a newly made grave; where with loving hands they lowered and laid away earth's casket by the side of his companion, who was "Not dead, but gone before."
BERTHA BRIDGMAN.

Mrs. H. W. Eklund.

This estimable lady, the wife of the Rev. H. W. Eklund was very pleasantly remembered Friday night, the 24th, ult., by her friends who invaded the home circle, fully fifty in number, mostly from the Thomas Street Church. In behalf of the friends, Mr. John F. Lundborg presented Mrs. E. with two sums of money, one from the young ladies society of the church, the other from the older ladies. Refreshments, music and social pleasure occupied the evening. The day itself was Christina's day and her friends made it doubly for Mrs. Eklund, for Christina is the Christian name of the pastor's wife.

Mrs. DeWitt Clinton Wheeler, Jr., née Mary Davenport, is with her family at 72 Pleasant Street, for two or three weeks.

Success of Wm. A. Howland.

Review of his past Season's Work.

Mr. William A. Howland, the youngest son of Dr. A. A. Howland, of this city, has been studying music for the last two years in New York City. Mr. Howland had always lived here until he was graduated from the Worcester High School, 'Class of '89. He then began the study of music, his first year being passed in laying a careful and thorough foundation.

The past season, which has also been one of hard study, has had a sufficient amount of successful concert work, to prove that his choice of the musical profession was no mistake.

Perhaps there is nothing so encouraging as success, and while Mr. Howland realizes that he has made only a beginning, yet he has been already so successful that his future appears very bright. Besides studying the art of singing, he has also continued his study of the piano and harmony, with the intention of becoming a thorough musician.

Mr. Howland not only holds the position of bass soloist in one of the leading Episcopal Churches in New York City, but he sings in a Jewish Synagogue Friday evenings and Saturday mornings, and also in a quartet at the Bloomingdale Asylum every Sunday afternoon. Last November, he was engaged as bass soloist of the Beethoven Concert Company, signing a six months' contract, and on January 1st, 1881, was chosen its musical director. The company consisted of a solo quartet, reader and harpist, and gave concerts only in New York, Brooklyn and vicinity. In speaking of the formation of the company, the Brooklyn Citizen (Nov. 20, 1890) said:

"A preliminary rehearsal of the recently organized Beethoven Concert Company, was held yesterday. It was somewhat premature to enter into particulars on the merits of this company, though sufficient was heard to warrant the prediction that it will prove one of the most attractive there has been for years. * * * Mr. Howland, though quite a young man, possesses a resonant and sympathetic voice, of ample range."

Mr. Howland's concert work, however, has not been limited to this company. He has been helped a great deal through the kindness of Mr. Ericsson Bushnell, basso of the famous choir at Dr. Paxton's church, where Mlle. Dever, Mme. Baron-Anderson and Mr. Charles Herbert Clarke are the singers. Mr. Bushnell, who was taken suddenly ill, telegraphed Mr. Howland (December 8th) to learn the cantata, "Rose Maiden" by Cowen, and sing it in Waterbury, Ct., the following night, as his substitute. To learn the bass rôle of an entire cantata and sing it, in one days' notice, is not an easy task, and had Mr. Howland not had a good knowledge of music, he could not have done it. Among the other soloists were Mr. Whitney Mockridge, the famous tenor, well known to all who have attended the Worcester Festivals. To make the concert still more difficult, Mr. Howland had never sung with orchestral accompaniments, they being furnished by the Boston Germania Orchestra (30 pieces) Emil Mollenbauer, concert master. However the concert was a great success, which must have been very encouraging to Mr. Howland, especially when the press notices a stranger as well as it did him. The following is from the Waterbury Republican:

"The rendition of the baritone solos by Mr. William A. Howland, of New York, was excellent. He has a voice that will one day be heard of more. It is a voice pure and rich in tone, of generous volume, is sufficient to fill any hall, and controlled with such skill and perfection, as to show the true artist in every note."

As Mr. Howland's substituting was so satisfactory, Mr. Bushnell, who was still indisposed, gave him two more engagements, equally important. One was the following week, when he learned and sang the sacred cantata, "The Ten Virgins," by Gaul, in Elizabeth, N. J., with the Amphion Musical Society. The other soloists were Mrs. Chas. Herbert Clark, Mme. Baron-Anderson and Mr. Clarke. The following is a notice from the Elizabeth Daily Journal:

"Mr. Bushnell, who was on the program as the baritone, was unable to appear, and Mr. Howland, a young singer from New York, was called, upon short notice to take his place. He has for so young a man, a phenomenal voice. It is under excellent cultivation and is managed with positive musical skill and intelligence. There was much work for him and hard work, and he did it all satisfactorily." Also from the Herald: * * *

"Mr. Howland's good nature in taking Mr. Bushnell's part at so short notice, would of itself remove him from criticism. But, by his quiet, unassuming, self-effacement as the 'Narrator' in Dr. Gaul's cantata, and the tasteful, truthful, and harmonious rendering of his part in the various quartets he proved himself a thorough artist."

Wednesday, December 17, 1890, the following night Mr. Howland sang with the Cecelia Society, Brooklyn. The first part of the program was miscellaneous, while in the second part, Mr. Howland took the bass solos in the cantata given. The Brooklyn Daily Eagle said: "Mr. E. F. Bushnell was to have sung the part of the Prince, but owing to his sudden illness, Mr. William A. Howland took the rôle upon short notice, yet scored a pronounced success."

The New York Herald said: "Mr. W. A. Howland sang—which drew a hearty recall."

The following February, he sang at a miscellaneous concert at the Hyperion Theater in New Haven, and received a hearty welcome. May 1, Mr. Howland was re-engaged at the same church where he had been singing, at a generous advance in salary, receiving this year more than the church has ever paid any singer, a fact which shows their appreciation. On June 1st, Mr. Howland, with his teacher, Mr. Bristol and party, started on a concert trip of three weeks, which included the cities of Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis. Following is one of the notices he received, taken from the Minneapolis Tribune:

"It is a great treat to hear Mr. William A. Howland, who accompanied Mr. Bristol from New York. He is quite a young man, with a good basso-cantante voice. He sings with intelligence, and the good taste of a musician. * * * Mr. Howland sang the Aria, 'Honour and Arms,' from Handel's 'Samson' with such vim and expression, as to win him a vigorous encore. * * * Mr. Howland also played two accompaniments, and did it tastefully."

Returning East, Mr. Howland sang in New Haven, June 30th, at the Musical Convention of the Teachers of Connecticut. In describing the concert in which he sang, the New Haven papers said:

"Mr. Wm. A. Howland, of New York, also came in for a large share of the applause, his smooth, pleasing baritone voice being heard to great effect."—Morning Courier

"Mr. Howland sang his selections in excellent style, and made a particularly good impression in the Aria from Samson, 'Honour and Arms.'"—New Haven News

"The popular young baritone from New York, Mr. Wm. A. Howland, rendered two solos. * * * His voice is of that full resonant quality, that is always so pleasant to hear, and he was heartily encored."—New Haven Palladium.

Besides studying and concertizing, Mr. Howland has had several pupils in voice and piano during the winter and spring. He will remain in New York until his church vacation, and then will spend a month at his home in Worcester, and several weeks at the summer residence of his vocal teacher, Mr. F. E. Bristol, at Martha's Vineyard.

Mrs. H. W. Ware and son, Master Carl, accompanied by Mrs. M. B. Lane and Miss Sears of North Attleboro, left Tuesday for Lake Memphremagog and Quebec, to remain one month.

Major William T. Harlow, first assistant clerk of the courts, is at Plymouth for a few days.

Miss Annie G. Thompson has returned from a week's visit to New York, and will spend the rest of her vacation at West Falmouth.

John Barber and James G. Colles take vacation at Centre Harbor, N. H.

Dr. Trowbridge and family have returned from a trip to Maine.

Mrs. Henry A. Marsh and daughters are at the Sea Cliff, Nantucket.

Mrs. E. M. Caslar and daughter, Minnie, and the Misses Josephine and Ethel MacCall of New Jersey are visiting friends in Worcester.

Mr. W. C. Breed left last Monday on his vacation to Block Island.

Misses Lina and Arolin Johnson, Carrie Williams and Helen D. Marshall left, Thursday, for a month's stay at Bailey's Island, Me. Miss Marshall will improve the opportunity for sketching.

Mr. Ernest W. Marshall is at the Long Point Hotel, Seneca Lake, New York. He is the leader of the Elberon Orchestra, a Worcester organization that combines business with pleasure in this vacation season.

Charles E. Black, book-keeper for the Ware, Pratt Company, is spending his vacation at Holden, accompanied by Mrs. Black and Miss Kitty Black.

Will F. Burbank is off to the beach at Salisbury, the guest of George E. Howe and family. He deserves a week of all the enjoyment that can be crowded into that time.

English Beggars of Today.

Every town has its beggars. Whether it has reached maturer years, attained intellectual eminence, is famous for its moral excellence, or religious institutions, the vagrant class is there. At home or abroad, on the land or the sea, the traveller is greeted with the "I beg your pardon sir, but would you give me —." I am an Englishman, recently arrived from "mi ain countrie," and being accosted on the street of this my adopted city by a doubtful character, who asked for two cents towards a five cent meal, it did not seem amiss for me to describe to the readers of LIGHT, the amateur and professional beggars of the land of my nativity.

As the halfway house between two populous and contending cities,—Manchester and Liverpool—the link between two important counties—Lancashire and Cheshire, and a stage of halt upon a national highway, Warrington receives, retains, and sustains more than its full quota of beggars. Whether from the gullibility, the soft-heartedness, or the timidity of its inhabitants, certain it is that in this busy and expanding town of 45,000 inhabitants, beggars thrive to such an extent that they are loathe to leave its hospitable boundaries. The critic who troubles himself to watch the four main avenues leading into the borough any evening, Summer or Winter, may see entering the town with every conceivable variety of gait, such a motley assortment of weather beaten, travel stained individuals, that will fill him with astonishment as to how they find food or shelter. The astonishment, however, will be of short duration if the observer carefully follows any one of these weary wayfarers.

The old hands, of course, have visited the town before, and with the familiarity born of previous acquaintance, they betake themselves direct to the tramp's haven of rest, where they report their arrival. If in possession of money they sit about preparing their evening meal. If without funds, they learn the residences of the regularly generous, and are not long in obtaining sufficient "browns" to provide themselves with a night's "doss," and a good supply of victuals.

The English beggars are divided into two classes, the amateurs and professionals. In the evening about six o'clock, the "greenborns" may be seen in Indian file along the outer wall of the Police Parade Room, waiting their turn for tickets of admission to the vagrant ward of the public workhouse. Being insufficiently versed in the arts of "cadging," and loving liberty too much to court being "bagged," these junior members of the begging fraternity think discretion the better part of valor, and consequently seek a night's lodging, gratis, in the local workhouse supported by the rates. The granting of tickets is a severely business like affair. As if afraid of making too close acquaintance with the official establishment, the applicants steal suspiciously into the spotlessly clean public office, polluting its very atmosphere with their unwashed clothes and unkept persons. The idlers! On the counter of the office lies the ticket book, and over it stands the stern officer in charge with as forbidding a countenance as he can command. Scant ceremony is shown to the dusty travellers, as may well be imagined, and in applying for tickets a dialogue somewhat after the following outline ensues:

- Officer (gruffly) "What's your name?"
 Applicant (fearfully) "Michael Muldoon."
 O. "What's your age?"
 A. "Thirty-five years."
 O. "What's your height?"
 A. "Five feet, six inches."
 O. "What's your complexion?"
 A. "Fresh."
 O. "Color of your hair?"
 A. "Brown."
 O. "What's your occupation?"
 A. "Laborer."
 O. "Where were you born?"
 A. "Koscommon."
 O. "Where are you last from?"
 A. "Manchester."
 O. "Where are you for?"
 A. "Liverpool."

All being apparently satisfactory, the ticket is granted to the applicant, who hastens out of the presence of his benefactor, and with quickened steps makes for the "Union."

Professional Cadgers.

The real professionals amongst these migratory people avoid the Union, and the stone breaking in the morning, by means of which, compensation for a bed and breakfast is returned. Formerly their haunting places were the low lodging houses on the town hill where many amazing examples of the hypocrisy practised by these hardened deceivers were to be witnessed. The whole company would congregate in the back yard of the house, and display to the edification of their confrères the rôles by which they avoided work, while the Sabbath bells were ringing. How many times have we chuckled over the "hard" lot of the one-armed man who maimed himself daily by first inserting his elbow into his sleeve instead of his hand! How we have laughed, too, over the trials of the "poor cripple" as he has hobbled round the yard with a sympathy moving limp, which has periodically changed legs! What mariners we have come across who have never been on board a ship in their lives; and what miners who are shut out in hard times yet have never seen the inside of a coal-pit! Town-hill swarmed with men "on the road" on Saturday night, and afforded splendid opportunities for the study of human nature. They squatted in scattered groups on the doorsteps and side-walks, or leaned lazily against dilapidated buildings, drawing all the possible sweetness from their short black clay pipes. Here were located the lodging-houses, where a bed and shelter could be obtained for six or eight cents. From these seething dens, which, to their patrons, were perfect homes of philanthropy, emanated far-reaching, stuffy odors, betraying the good times the birds of prey were having inside—times far superior to those of the genuine poor, who too often fail to elicit the substantial sympathy the professional beggar knows so well how to obtain.

As town improvements have swept away this nest of dwellings on town-hill, the vagrants colony has migrated to a narrow lane, the officer's happy hunting ground, off one of the main streets. Here, any morning from nine to twelve o'clock, may be seen the gentry who are "working the town" taking a pleasant airing previous to beginning the day's employment. The men lean lazily against the pillar that blocks the entrance of the lane against teams, and take whiffs from stumpy clays with the air of self-satisfied persons. The women hang in groups about the corner, or stand about the side-walk gossiping with the vivacity of people who have a lot to say, and little time to say it in. After dinner the companies are impressed with the necessity of sallying forth to earn their living; lest, perchance, the closing eve should find them unprovided with means for a resting place. Having no authentic reasons for following the vagrant life they resort to numerous artificers and innumerable lies. One man declares that he is "just a half-penny short of his night's lodging money" with such persistence that, even meeting with a negative reply from nineteen houses, ventures to try the twentieth. So successful has this wail proved, that the man has been known to unblushingly commence collecting his half-pence at breakfast time!

Then another will try the confidence trick as follows: "May I speak to you a moment, sir?" "Yes, as long as you like!" "Well, sir, I am sorry to trouble you, or to take up any of your precious time, but begging is a thing I am totally unaccustomed to; but, sir, through lack of work I have been forced to it." In this strain he continues until he shows unmistakably to those who "know the runs" that he is a transparent fraud. Another man professes to be at the end of his tether. He has no money, no acquaintances, his physique is weak, he knows not where to go. His whole make-up is woe-begone, and calculated to excite pity. He puts on the most fetching facial aspect he can possibly contract. This individual generally turns out on a wet day, and not unusually has a couple of ill-clad children with him, whom he has hired from the central depot. "Nowhere to go on this wet day, and no shelter for the bairns." I repeat after his appeal, "Where all the tradesmen of the town contribute their share towards providing such as you with food and lodging?" "The Union I suppose you mean?" "Yes." "Well go there yourself," savagely exclaims the man, at the same time preparing to depart, half fearing lest I should become mad with his remark.

Others have a peculiar mania for walking. (Of course this is one of the characteristic features of an Englishman.) They will tell you they have tramped an impossible number of miles, and nothing has passed their lips during the preceding twelve hours, whilst at the same time abominable fumes of liquor and tobacco give the statement the lie, as also does the absence of any signs of fatigue. A female pedestrian met a friend of mine one day, and told him most earnestly that she had walked all the way from Warrington. "Is that so?" he replied. "It is indeed," responded the old hypocrite. "Why you are in Warrington now," he said. "Oh excuse me, I meant Liverpool."

Of all the beggars in the world women are the most persistent. They set out determined to gain their end, no matter what it necessitates. A very plausible old lady used to haunt the streets, attired in a dirty grey shawl and dress, shabby bonnet and white apron. She invariably carried a bag containing a number of knitted articles. Her's was a tale of former gentility, but since her husband's death she had been reduced in circumstances. She saw a wily old creature, and completely got over a gentleman who takes a friendly interest in the deserving poor. For weeks together, she kept in the good graces of this benefactor, until the latter happening to mention her to a relieving officer, found to his disgust that she was a rank imposter.

This little, smooth-tongued woman would button-hole any respectable woman, and would pour out her piteous story. Failing to obtain money, she would produce her wares, asserting that she had obtained an order for some knitting from a lady. She had been to take the work home, but the customer was not in, and she consequently did not know where to turn for the next meal as all her money was exhausted. She would beg the lady to advance her a trifle on the articles which she would leave in her charge until next morning. If the vagrant obtained money enough she failed to return, as the bag and its contents were only worth a few coppers. Some of the fraternity are perpetually under bereavement. Usually their children are dead and they have nothing to bury them in. The gift of an old garment would be thankfully received, which, when once obtained, is forthwith packed off to the loan office.

Now what is the conclusion that may be drawn from the preceding facts? It is a simple one, viz., charity is practically wasted on beggars. Begging would almost choke an honest and industrious man, who has sufficient pride to make him noble; and if people who have any clothing or money to spare for their poorer neighbors would send it to someone they know to be deserving, and not bestow it on the first person that asks, greater good would be achieved. It is the dissolute and shiftless who usually get the gifts of the benevolent, as they have implicit confidence in the scriptural injunction—"Ask, and ye shall receive." J. E.

Miss Lydia Saunders and Charlie Smedley returned Monday from a two week's sojourn at A. Smedley's summer home in Halifax, Vt.

Miss Julia Davenport is spending ten days' with Mr. and Mrs. Clark at their summer cottage in Webster.

John Daesen, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, '89, of the Fitchburg Machine Company, is visiting his home in this city.

Mrs. J. R. Black left Tuesday for a visit to New Haven, Birmingham and Thompsonville, Conn.

The faculty of Holy Cross College have returned from their villa at Woodstock, where they have been passing the vacation.

Forrest E. Beal and family have returned from Lawrence.

Mr. and Mrs. John Timon are at home from Newport, where they have been spending a couple of weeks.

Miss Anna Ryan and Wm. J. Ryan went to Nahant Wednesday for a two-weeks' vacation.

Joseph King, head dyer of the Adriatic mills went to Block Island, Thursday, to spend his vacation.

Clark Mahan of the State Department, Washington, D. C., is the guest of Felix Belisle of this city.

Public Library Additions.

Books added during the first part of May. I indicates that the book is in the Intermediate department and may be taken out if specially called for.

ABBOTT, M. The Beverleys; a story of Calcutta - - - - - 34006
 AINSWORTH, W. H. The Spanish Match; or Charles Stuart at Madrid; new ed. - - - - - 34026
 ALCOCK, D. The Spanish Brothers; tale of the 16th century - - - - - 34027
 BALCH, F. H. The Bridge of the Gods; a romance of Indian Oregon 34007
 BALDY, A. M. Romance of a Spanish Nun - - - - - 34008
 BANDELLO, M. Novels; done into English by J. Payne, vol. 4 6 - - - - - 1
 BOSANQUET, B. "In Darkest England;" on the wrong track - - - - - 33987
 BOWDITCH, H. P. Hints for teachers of physiology, (Guides for science teaching, No. 14) - - - - - 34046
 BRABAZON, E. J. Historical Tales; from History of the Muslims in Spain - - - - - 34028
 BRAY, A. E. The Talba; historical romance - - - - - 34029
 BURGESS, J. W. Political Science and Comparative Constitutional Law, 2 vols. - - - - - 33996-7
 BURKE, U. R. The Great Captain; chapter in Spanish history - - - - - 34030
 CALL, A. P. Power through Repose 34005
 CARPENTER, J. E. The first three Gospels; their origin and relation, 2nd ed. - - - - - 33988
 CHITTENDEN, L. E. Recollections of President Lincoln and his Administration - - - - - 34009
 CLAPP, H. L. Thirty-six observation lessons on minerals (Guides for science teaching, No. 15) - - - - - 34047
 CLARKE, J. F. Autobiography, Diary, etc.; ed. by E. E. Hale - - - - - 34010
 CLARK, L. Development (Amateur photographer's lib., No. 5) - - - - - 34045
 COMEGGS, B. B., ed. Primer of Ethics 34011
 DAVIS, V. J. Jefferson Davis; memoir, 2 vols. - - - - - 33985 6
 DOWNING, R. F. & Co. New Tariff of U. S. Customs, Duties, etc. - - - - - 1
 DUNCAN, S. J. An American Girl in London - - - - - 34001
 DWYER, P. General Booth's "Submerged tenth;" wrong way to do the right thing - - - - - 33989
 ELBERTON, W. A. Maps and map drawing (Macmillan's geog. ser.) 34034
 FALCONER, L. Madmoiselle Ixe ("Unknown" Lib.) - - - - - 34012
 FARJEON, B. L. A Very Young Couple 33992
 GALLWEY, R. P. Letters to Young Shooters; ser. 1 - - - - - 34032
 GENUNG, J. F. The Epic of the Inner Life; Book of Job, trans. anew, with notes - - - - - 33984
 GILBERT, W. S. Songs of a Savoyard 34013
 GODWIN, M. W. A Vindication of the Rights of Woman, etc. - - - - - 34042
 GONCOURT, E. and J. de. Sister Philomène; tr. by L. Ensor - - - - - 34014 GOSSE, E. Northern Studies (Camelot ser.) - - - - - 34031

 GRIBAYEDOFF, V. The French Invasion of Ireland in '98; leaves of unwritten history - - - - - 33993
 HALLIBURTON, W. D. Text-book of chemical physiology and pathology 34035
 HARRISON, Mrs. W. (ps. Lucas Malet) The Wages of Sin - - - - - 34002
 HENTY, G. A. A Hidden Foe - - - - - 34015
 The Young Buglers; tale of the Peninsula War - - - - - 34036
 HOUSTON, WM. Documents illust. of the Canadian Constitution; with notes, etc. - - - - - 1
 HUBERT, J. The Art of Retouching, etc. (Amateur photographer's Lib. No. 6) - - - - - 34037
 HUDSON, W. C. (ps. Barclay North) The Man with a Thumb - - - - - 34016
 HYATT, A. and Arms, J. M. Insecta (Guides for science teaching) - - - - - 34017
 KEENAN, H. F. The Iron Game; a tale of the War - - - - - 34018
 KNIGHT, E. F. The Cruise of the Alerte - - - - - 34038
 KOBBE, G. New York and its environs; maps, etc. - - - - - 34019
 KULP, G. B. Families of the Wyoming Valley, vol. 2-3 - - - - - 1
 LANG, A. Essays in Little - - - - - 34003
 LILLIE, L. C. Phil and the Baby; and False Witness - - - - - 34020
 LOCH, C. S. Examination of Gen. Booth's social scheme - - - - - 33990
 LYALL, SIR A. C. Asiatic Studies; religious and social - - - - - 33991
 MARTINEAN, J. Essays, reviews and addresses, 2 vols. - - - - - 34039-40
 MEREDITH, G. One of our Conquerors - - - - - 33995
 OMAN, C. W. Warwick the King-maker (Eng. men of action) - - - - - 34021
 POLITIKOS, pseud. Sovereigns and Courts of Europe; with portraits 34024
 PRATT, M. L. The Fairyland of Flowers; popular illus. botany - - - - - 33994
 Society for Psychological Research, Proceedings, vol. 5-6, 1888-90 - - - - - 1
 SONNENSCHN, W. S. The best Books; a reader's guide, 2nd ed. - - - - - 1
 TILLIER, C. My Uncle Benjamin; tr. by B. R. Tucker; with sketches from life by L. Pfan - - - - - 34022
 United Australia; public opinion in England as expressed in leading journals - - - - - 34044
 WARNER, C. D. Our Italy - - - - - 34023
 Washington Cook Book; autographic receipts by Mrs. Benj. Harrison and others - - - - - 34025
 WILKINS, M. E. A New England Nun; and other stories - - - - - 34004
 WRIGHT, L. Optical Projection; treatise on the use of the lantern - - - - - 34043

Rev. C. H. Pendleton's family will spend the month of August on Lake Champlain, at a point beyond Vergennes, Vt. They left town Wednesday.

Mrs. Charles E. Grover of 5 Chatham Place is at Saratoga Springs.

George C. Whitney, Esq., and family are at the Springfield House, Nantucket, till Aug. 4.

Arthur S. Longley, who was attacked with a severe hemorrhage Monday, is now convalescent.

FOR THE LAUNDRY.
BRUSSELS
 SOAP.

HENRY A. BOWMAN & CO.

MANUFACTURERS OF

AWNINGS,
 TENTS,
 FLAGS.

HORSE, WAGONS,

AND ALL KINDS OF

Canvas Covers.

Tents for Sale and To Rent. Waterproof Tents by our new process guaranteed not to leak. The above cut represents our popular lawn tent, in Stock and made to order, 418 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

GUNS!

All grades, from all the popular Manufacturers, both IMPORTED and DOMESTIC. FISHING TACKLE---Everything an Angler wants. SPORTSMEN'S CLOTHING. Ammunition of all kinds BLASTING

MATERIALS and a Complete Line of SPORTSMEN'S SUPPLIES. In the future as in the past my friends will receive a cordial welcome, with goods at the lowest prices, at the SPORTSMEN'S EMPORIUM.

E. S. KNOWLES, 416 MAIN STREET.

No one is a hero to his valet.—French.

Rev. John Brown of Haddington was in the habit of proposing on festive occasions a certain young lady as his toast. Having abandoned the practice he was asked for a reason. "Because," said he. "I have toasted her for sixteen years without making her Brown, and so I've resolved to toast her no more."

Nothing succeeds like success.

A young minister was preaching in Seabrook a short time since from "I am the light of the world," and made poor work of it, stammering and stuttering and almost stopping, when an indignant huckleberry picker, a sort of masculine woman, shouted out: "If you are the light o' the world, you need snuffing."

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place at an early day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of

Fine Monumental Work,

131 Central Street,

near Summer.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

W. A. ENGLAND,

DEALER IN

FINE WATCHES,

CLOCKS, JEWELRY

& OPTICAL GOODS.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

394 Main Street.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,

Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, *

NO. 156 MAIN STREET,

H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

THE CLARK-
SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

The nights are growing longer and you will need more light. When you buy a lamp get a "CENTRAL DRAFT" you will be surprised at the amount of light you get.

You can get more comfort and satisfaction from a piano lamp than from any other style of lamp and you would be surprised to know how cheap you can purchase them.

It pays to buy a good reliable article.

A poorly made imitation is a source of continual annoyance and disappointment, and its use invariably results in condemning an article of merit.

We can give you a Good Brass Piano Lamp "CENTRAL DRAFT" all complete with linen shade and holder for $7.75.

Other Brass Piano Lamps $11.75, $12, $14 $15 50, 16.

Silvered Piano Lamps, complete with linen shade and holder from $13 to $40.

Banquet Lamps "CENTRAL DRAFT" Complete with linen shade and holder, $4.50, $5, $5.50 $7, $7.50, $8.75, $11, $13.50, $15, $17, $18, $20, $25.

"CENTRAL DRAFT" Table Lamps $2.25, $2.75, $3.75, $4, $5, $7, $8, $10.

TABLE LAMPS with shade to match all complete $2.00 $2.50 $2.75 $3.50 $4.50 $5.00 $7.00 $8.00.

The "MAMMOTH CENTRAL DRAFT" HANGING LAMP 300 candle power—suitable for Halls, Stores, Restaurants etc.

We have also a nice line of Hall and Library Lamps—with colored globes and Decorated Shades.

Also Kerosene Chandeliers, in any number of lights.

THE CLARK-SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

Household.

Mrs. Ewing, who is now giving lectures on cooking before the Summer Chautauqua at Glen Echo, has something to say of hot rather than iced lemonade; of hot water always, rather than iced water. One great hindrance to the success of the hot water gospel,—for, indeed, it is quite entitled to that appellation,—is that people do not understand how and when to take it. Prevention is traditionally said to be better than cure, and any excessive thirst, and almost, one might well say any thirst at all, can be prevented by drinking the pure hot water on rising,—two glasses full—and it can be taken almost bubbling from the urn, by slowly sipping it. A spoon placed in a glass will prevent its breaking when pouring the hot water into it, and it is more palatable in a glass than in a cup. A pint of hot water drank an hour before breakfast will almost, if not entirely, prevent any thirst for the day.

Hot water, externally and internally, is the salvation of health and energy in the extremely warm weather, and it is such an absolute gospel of enlightenment that too much cannot be said by way of commending it to the general public.

Try eggs as to freshness before you boil them; put them into cold water and if they sink to the bottom they are fresh. An egg more than a week old will not sink but swim on top. Wash and clean them before boiling. This is very particular, because the dirt clinging to them will enter inside through the many small pores of the shell. When eggs are doubtful it is best to open them and use them, as long as they are not spoiled, for poaching, frying, scrambling etc.—Advertiser.

Bathing the nose with water in which there has been put a few drops of camphor is said to whiten it. But as redness of the nose usually results from some stomach trouble, it would be wise to search for the cause and get rid of it before you apply external remedies.—Boston Budget.

To remove scratches and bruises from furniture, rub them gently with a fresh walnut, butternut or hickory nut kernel, and they will disappear as if by magic.

To remove the unsightly marks caused by drippings from the faucets in marble basins, or in the water-closet bowl, nothing equals pulverized chalk, moistened with a few drops of ammonia. Apply with an old tooth-brush and they quickly disappear.

In cooking vegetables, always remember that boiling water evaporates rapidly on the approach of a storm or when it is raining.—From the Ladies' Home Journal.

Commissioners Sale of Real Estate.

Will be sold at Public Auction on or near the premises on Norfolk Street, on Oak hill, so-called, in the City of Worcester, Mass., on Monday, the Seventeenth day of August next, at Eleven o'clock in the forenoon two certain tracts or parcels of land containing twenty thousand square feet more or less, and being all of lot No. (2) excepting two feet on the Northernly side thereof and all of lot No. (3) on a plan of lots recorded in the Worcester District Registry of Deeds for the County of Worcester, Book 455, Page 654, to which plan and record thereof reference is hereby made for a more particular description of the premises.

WILLIS E. SIBLEY,
HENRY M. CLEMENCE, } Commissioners.
WILLIS F. PHELPS,
WORCESTER, July 23, 1891.

Offer Special Bargains in all Lines of
HOUSE---FURNISHINGS!

and those who buy now can save money.

CHAMBER SETS,

From $18 upwards.

PARLOR SUITS,

From $40 upwards.

SIDEBOARDS,

ODD EASY CHAIRS

Reduced in price to close.

Plush 16th Century

Oak Platform Rockers,

$8.50, WORTH $10.00.

Carpets

AT LOW PRICES.

Ranges!

We sell the Crawford Ranges—none better—they always give perfect satisfaction, and the only range in the market that will bake in the lower oven, which we guarantee.

ANDES RANGES.

This is the best 8-inch Range in the market for $25.

We sell a good Range for $15.

Call and examine our

DINNER SETS, 112 pcs., for $8.98

IT CAN'T BE BEAT.

Liberal Terms of Credit at
Cash Prices.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,

355 MAIN STREET.

JACKETS

THE BALANCE OF OUR MEDIUM AND LIGHT WEIGHT JACKETS WILL BE OFFERED FOR

HALF REGULAR PRICE

BEFORE STOCKING.

RICHARD HEALY, 512 MAIN STREET.

GEORGE W. PICKUP,

(SUCCESSOR TO SAMUEL CLARK.)

TIN PLATE, SHEET IRON and COPPER Worker,

Stove, Range and Furnace Repairer. Conductors and Ash Chutes. Refrigerators Lined and Repaired. Tin Roofing and General Jobbing. 23 years' experience in the employ of Worcester's oldest business man, Henry W. Miller. All orders promptly attended to. Shop, 16 Pleasant St., up one flight, residence, 31 Laurel St.

TRY Bronner's

ICE CREAM! Delivered to all parts of the City. Supplying Parties, Lodges, etc., a specialty. No. 131 Pleasant Street.

ALL DISEASES

Of the SCALP Successfully Treated at
MISS C. KENNARD'S

HAIR-DRESSING PARLORS

387 MAIN ST., GROUT BLOCK.

Ladies' and Children's Hair Cutting, Curling, Singeing and Shampooing. All kinds of Hair Work to order; Wig Making a Specialty.

THE CRITERION

Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.

231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SHREWSBURY ST.

J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

THE : RESERVE

The only Weekly Paper published in the interest of the

Sons and Daughters of Veterans.

$1.00 PER YEAR.

Our standing offer:

A HOUSE LOT

near a growing city, for 20 subscribers. KELLEY & FORD, Publishers, 367 Washington St., Boston, Mass. CAPT. C. F. KELLEY, Camp 97, Brookline, Mass.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To WARREN J. CUTTING of Worcester, in the County and Commonwealth aforesaid, GREETING: TRUSTING in your care and fidelity, I, WILLIAM T. FORBES, Esquire, Judge of the Probate Court in and for said County of Worcester, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me, do hereby ordain, constitute and appoint you to be administrator of the estate of ASA R. COLLIER late of Blackstone in said County of Worcester, deceased, intestate:

And you are ordered to make and return to said Probate Court, within three months after your appointment, a true inventory of all the real and personal estate of said deceased, which, at the time of the making of such inventory, shall have come to your possession or knowledge.

To administer, according to law, all the personal estate of said deceased which may come to your possession, or of any person for you, and also the proceeds of any of the real estate of said deceased that may be sold or mortgaged by you.

To render, upon oath, a true account of your administration at least once a year, until your trust is fulfilled, unless excused therefrom in any year by said Court; and also render such account at such other times as said Court may order.

To pay to such persons as said Court may direct, any balance remaining in your hands upon the settlement of your accounts;

To deliver your letters of administration into said Court in case any will of said deceased is hereafter duly proved and allowed;

And also, within three months, to cause notice of your appointment to be posted in two or more public places in the city or town in which said deceased last dwelt, or cause the same to be published three weeks successively in the LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester and within one year return your affidavit of having given such notice, with a copy thereof, to the Probate Office.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of said Court to be affixed at Worcester, this Seventh day of July in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

WILLIAM T. FORBES Judge of Probate Court.
Countersigned, F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, Creditors, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of ALMIRA WILSON, late of Worcester, in said county, deceased, intestate: Greeting:

Upon the Petition of Martin Wilson of said Worcester, you are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the first Tuesday of September next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased should not be granted to said petitioner, without the giving of surety or sureties, on his official bond pursuant to the statute.

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester the last publication to be two days, at least, before said court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioner, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-seventh day of July in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

LAWRENCE,

PHOTOGRAPHER.

492 Main Street.

TAKE ELEVATOR.

J. W. GREENE, PLUMBER.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,

Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

J. S. WESBY & SONS,

BOOK * BINDING ***

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

387 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand,) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

PHOTOGRAPHER.

Children's
Portraits
A Specialty

326 MAIN ST.,

Opp. Mechanics Hall.

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,

* PRINTERS. ***

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,

DEALER IN

Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

Boston & Albany Railroad.

ONLY
First-Class Through Car Route
TO THE
WEST!

Commencing June 7, 1891,

Through Trains Leave Worcester:

- 9 50 A. M. (ex. Sunday) Day Express.
- 11 40 A. M. Daily, "Chicago Special."
- 3 25 P. M. Daily, North Shore Limited.
- 4 17 P. M. Daily, Cincinnati and St. Louis Express.
- 8 00 P. M. Daily, Pacific Express.

SPRINGFIELD LINE

FOR

HARTFORD, NEW HAVEN AND NEW YORK.

LEAVE BOSTON.	AR. NEW YORK.
10 13 A. M.	3 30 P. M.
12 12 A. M.	5 30 P. M.
5 06 P. M.*	10 00 P. M.
12 29 A. M.*	6 45 A. M.

*Run Daily.

For tickets, information, time tables, etc., apply to JAMES CUNNINGHAM, Ticket Agent, Union Station.
A. S. HANSON, Gen. Pass. Agent.

FIITCHBURG RAILROAD.

Reduced Rates of Fare.

For Round Trip Tickets on Account of Summer

VACATION EXCURSIONS.

On Sale June 1st to September 30th, and good October until 31st, 1891.

FROM BOSTON TO THE

Popular Resorts of New England, New York and Canada.

Including local excursions to places in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont. The only line running Quick Trains, Superb Equipment and Through Cars via

HOOSAC TUNNEL ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO TROY, ALBANY, SARATOGA AND NIAGARA FALLS, AND VIA LAKE

CHAMPLAIN ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO

WEST PORT, PORT HENRY, PLATTSBURG, BRANDON, BURLINGTON, ST. ALBANS, ADIRONDACKS and MONTREAL.

Summer Excursion Book

giving information in regard to routes, rates of fare and list of Hotels and Boarding Houses, can be obtained at the Company's office, 250 Washington Street, and mailed free on application to J. R. WATSON, General Passenger Agent, Boston, Mass.

Good to Eat.

Whole Eggs Fried.

Boil eggs hard, and when cold remove the shells. Beat two raw eggs, dip each boiled egg in the beaten egg, then in cracker dust in which a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and the same quantity of pepper has been mixed. Repeat the dipping and rolling a second time, then lay the eggs away to dry. Half-fill a small skillet with boiling lard, boil one egg at a time. They will brown quickly, and are then done. Serve hot, garnished with water cress, to be eaten with the eggs.

For a Luncheon Dish.

Cut six large tomatoes and two small green peppers into thick slices. Put butter the size of an egg into a hot gratin dish and when melted add the tomatoes and peppers. Simmer for an hour or until thoroughly cooked; then drop enough eggs to cover the tomatoes and peppers; dust with a little salt and pepper and put the dish into the oven long enough to set the eggs nicely.

Old Fashioned Gingerbread.

One cup butter, two cups molasses, one tablespoon of ginger, one-half a teaspoon salt, and a handful of flour; heat a cup of sweet milk in which two teaspoons of soda have been dissolved, and pour hot over the other ingredients; stir well; add flour till quite stiff, then dredge flour over it; turn out on the moldingboard, roll out, cut into shapes, and bake in a hot oven.—California.

An Economical and Dainty Dessert.

Every housewife knows that when she comes to fill her jars with the preserved fruits of the season, there is always a quantity of the liquid in excess of the solid fruit. This liquid can be utilized as a sauce for various kinds of puddings, but a still more attractive way of serving it is to add to it a sufficient quantity of gelatine to give it solidity, and set it aside to cool in a mould. When ready to serve, turn out on a small platter, and serve with whipped cream poured around it. Any kind of fruit juice will be palatable served in this way; but the most spicy dish is made from that of the small, yellow, plum-tomato preserve, flavored with lemon juice and vinegar.—Housekeeper's Weekly.

To Preserve Green Peas for Winter Use.

Shell the peas, wash and scald them in hot water. Drain them and put into bottles, filling each bottle with a strong brine of salt, or into close-covered earthen crocks; at the top of each bottle pour a thin layer of salad oil. Cork and seal the bottles, which must be quite full, and stand upright. String beans, which of course should be left in the pod, merely stringed, and butter beans can be preserved in the same way; but be sure to ascertain if it is necessary to steep them in fresh water before boiling them and serving them in winter, or the grimaces may be direful.

Cocoonut Macaroons.

Beat the whites of five eggs until light, not stiff; then add by degrees one pound of powdered sugar; add a teaspoonful of rose water and a half-pound of shredded cocoonut; mix carefully and thoroughly together, and place by teaspoonfuls on greased paper. Bake in a moderate oven until light brown. They should be first dusted with powdered sugar and placed at least two inches apart on the paper.—Boston Budget.

Breakfast Fruit Cake

BY MARION HARLAND.

1 quart of flour, 2 cups of milk, 2 tablespoonfuls of butter, 1 tablespoonful of lard, ½ teaspoonful salt, 1 quart of strawberries, huckleberries, blackberries or raspberries, ½ cup of sugar, 2 teaspoonfuls of Cleveland's baking powder.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together, chop in the shortening, stir in the milk with a wooden spoon. The dough should be just stiff enough to handle. Roll into two sheets, line a baking pan with one, put in the berries, strew with sugar, lay the other sheet and bake. Cut into squares, split and eat hot with sugar and butter.

Use only Cleveland's baking powder, the proportions are made for that.

The leavening power of Cleveland's Baking Powder comes from cream of tartar with soda, nothing else; that is why Cleveland's is perfectly wholesome, leavens most, and leavens best.

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H. Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists.

11 Pleasant St., Worcester, Mass.
Residence, 61 West Street.
Office open during the summer.

The Readers of Light
I most cordially invite
To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything
They would expect to find
In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,
Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,
10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL,

Gold, Silver and Nickel
Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.
13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St.,
Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework,
Done to Order.
Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.
MRS. S. M. KEYES.

CHARLES L. WRIGHT.

CHARLES H. WOODCOCK.

"WEST SIDE MACHINE CO.,"

Manufacturers of the improved "Wright Drill," embracing features not applied to other drills.

The "Wright Counter Shaft and Clutch," just patented. The cheapest, most positive in its action, with scarcely perceptible shock or jar, and decidedly the best device for the purpose ever in the market. Every one interested is cordially invited to come and see it. The "Woodcock Universal Door Opener." By simply pressing a button on either side of the door, it causes the door to swing open. Can be quickly and cheaply applied to the door. Must be seen to be appreciated. A Carpenter's Gauge for Hanging Doors accurately and very quickly. No carpenter can afford to be without it. "The Swivel Crotch Center." No more broken drills by work catching. Hundreds of dollars saved. "A Cuff Holder." The cheapest and best ever seen. We are prepared to make the most reasonable terms for all kinds of special machinery. Repairs promptly done and satisfaction guaranteed. Factory less than two minutes' walk from Pleasant-street cars.

No. 28 Bellevue Street, Worcester, Mass.

New * York STORE.

Great closing out sale.

Everything marked down.

Special Bargains in Perfumes, Toilet Soap, Tooth Powder, etc.

All Dress Goods at Cost and many lots at less. Come and see if you want bargains.

Z. F. Little & Co.,

234 and 238 Main St.

BOOKS AND BOOKMEN.

Lippincott's Magazine for August 1891. Contents.

A Daughter's Heart, Mrs. H. Lovett Cameron; Thoreau and his Biographers, Samuel Arthur Jones; A Damascus Blade, Clinton Scollard; Walt Whitman's Birthday, Horace L. Traubel; At a Poet's Funeral, Anna Reeve Aldrich; My Adventure with Edgar Allan Poe, Julian Hawthorne; Fancy, Daniel L. Dawson; A Culprit, Charles Henry Lüders; A Plea for Patriotism, Mary Elizabeth Blake; Roasted Chestnuts, George Grantham Bain; The Slav and the Indian Empire, Clarence Bloomfield Moore; Walt Whitman's Last,— "Good-bye, my Fancy," Walt Whitman.

The novel for this month is accompanied with a picture of the author.

Walt Whitman is minutely reported on the occasion of his 72d birthday; he also contributes a short article concerning his last book, Good Bye, my Fancy.

He tersely sets forth the theory of his "Leaves of Grass," of which he calls his last book the "Concluding Annex." Speaking of this "Annex" he says, "The book is garrulous, irascible (like old Lear), and has serious breaks and even tricks to avoid monotony. It will have to be ciphered and ciphered out long, and is probably in some respects the most curious part of its author's baffling works."

The writer of Thoreau and his Biographers reviews four of the Lives of Thoreau, and then gives his own opinion as follows: "He is no longer considered a misanthrope or a cranky hermit, who masqueraded at Walden Pond; the seriousness of his life is being recognized, and the wisdom of his philosophy is becoming more apparent."

The adventure with Edgar Allan Poe is a curious story by Julian Hawthorne.

The Worcester Athletic Club's grounds at Lake View will be a lively place this Fall. At a meeting of the board of managers, held this week, it was decided to hold three or four weekly games during September. The events will all be handicaps and will be open to club members only, the object being to develop the club's athletes. Cups and medals will be given as prizes. There will be four or five events at each meeting and no two programs will be alike. The first of the series will probably be held the second Saturday in September. These games will also serve to get the athletes into good condition for the open handicap games which the club will hold October 10.

During September, too, base ball will be carried on more systematically. There is material in the club for a first class amateur team, and one will be organized after the vacation season is over. The attempts at the game during the Summer have not been very successful as many of the best players were away. But September will see an improvement.

Special endeavors are now being made to increase the membership of the club. There are now three hundred members and it is hoped that when the next meeting of the board of managers is held, which will be in about ten days, that there will be a sufficient number of applicants to raise the membership to five or six hundred. If every member brings in a new member the desired result will be accomplished.

J. H. Adams, Frank Ellis, W. H. Partridge and Walter Allison will represent the Worcester Athletic Club at the Riverside Boat Club's handicap games at Spy Pond Grove, Arlington, today.

Miss Annie Athy.

This young lady, whose first public appearance, last season, was so successful is to play the coming season with the Miss Effie Ellsworth Company. They will play Miss Manning and Hazel Kirke.

At the Lake.

The Lakeview Rod and Gun Club is to have a Championship Shoot, beginning next Tuesday at 6.45 p. m. Entries must be made on or before August 31. Entrance fee, 50cts.

Thomas V. Phelps.

Thomas V. Phelps, who died Tuesday, was buried from his late residence, 59 Prescott Street, Thursday, the Rev. H. J. White, officiating. Buried in Hope Cemetery.

Weddings.

In the Church of the Sacred Heart, Thursday, by the Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, Patrick T. Conlon of 109 Ward street was married to Miss Minnie A. McIntyre of 7 Worth street.

At St. John's church, Thursday, Mr. Louis A. Madaus of 48 Vernon street was wedded to Miss Mary J. Ronayne of 176 Washington street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. M. C. O'Brien.

Charles Augustus Stiles.

This gentleman, born and reared in Worcester, died in Philadelphia, for many years his home, last Wednesday. He was a brother of Major F. G. Stiles and a son of the late Charles and Lucy M. Stiles. He learned the painting business from his brother, the Major, and was long employed by the Adams Express Company of the Quaker City doing their ornamental lettering. He was fifty years old at his death, which resulted from dropsy and rheumatism.

Misses Lightbourne, Amy Todd and Belle Smith are helping represent Worcester at Cottage City.

Misses Alice, Effie and Lizette Draper leave Monday for Bridgeport, Conn., to be gone the remainder of August.

Rain interfered with the arrangements made by the Worcester Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, for their lawn party Thursday at James Draper's, at Bloomingdale. Early in the afternoon it rained and then later it cleared. Consequently some came but more staid away. For the benefit of those who did come the program was carried out. There was singing, dancing, bowling, croquet, etc. A novel feature of the entertainment was a war dance in which twenty people took part. The party was repeated yesterday afternoon and evening.

The Davis Art Co., 18 Pearl street, opposite Post Office keeps nothing but fresh choice goods but until Sept. 1, framed pictures, novelties, low cost unframed etchings, photographs and pastels, will be sold at greatly reduced prices. Another advantage is offered to prudent buyers. They are forced to remove their factory to more spacious quarters, which necessitates going over the entire stock of mouldings on hand. They will mark them all at low prices. This will be just the time for patrons having pictures awaiting framing to secure a rare bargain in some dainty combination.

To the Land of Evangeline.

Through the courtesy, primarily, of Hon. L. E. Baker, president of the Yarmouth Steamship Company and later of the superintendents of the Western Counties and Windsor & Annapolis Railways, I enjoyed a few weeks ago, a very pleasant trip through Nova Scotia. I found it an intensely interesting country. It is larger too than I had thought. Though I was there nearly two weeks and traversed but a little more than one-half of the peninsula, I felt, when about to return home that I had not even done that half justice. There was so much to be seen; an entire week could have been very enjoyably spent at every one of the places visited. Yet, I succeeded in getting a very good general idea of the country and in removing some false notions of it which I had.

Nova Scotia is increasing rapidly in favor as a summer resort. Every year the number of visitors is increasing. This has been especially noticeable during the past four years since the Yarmouth Steamship Company put on its magnificent, new, fast, steel steamships.

Before the "Yarmouth" began its regular trips in 1887, a trip to Nova Scotia was considerable of an undertaking. A long weary-some journey of several days by rail through New Brunswick and across the isthmus or a tiresome sail of two days in small steamers confronted the tourist who desired to see Nova Scotia. Consequently in those days tourist in Nova Scotia were somewhat of a rarity. But all this has changed now.

Five or six years ago the Yarmouth Steamship Company owned several steamers which ran between Yarmouth and Boston, St. John, N. B., and various Nova Scotian ports. The largest of these was the "Dominion." There were not many passengers but the freight business was good. In 1886 the demands for passenger service had increased so that the company decided to add to its fleet a boat better adapted to that service. An order was given to one of the most famous of the builders of the Clyde for such a boat.

In 1887, the "Yarmouth," as the new boat was christened, began regular weekly trips between Boston and Yarmouth. The public appreciated the improvement at once. Though the old "Dominion" was and is today a good boat, the "Yarmouth" was so much better that the change was very noticeable. The new boat made the trip in about seventeen hours, while the old ones required nearly thirty. In the building of the boat nothing was left undone which would add to the comfort and safety of the passengers. All the modern improvements in machinery were to be found in the engine-room, the hull was fitted with improvements to prevent excessive rolling, the boat was lighted by electric lights, the saloon was splendidly furnished, the state-rooms were large and comfortable and the table service was to be excellent.

For several summers the "Yarmouth" and the "Dominion" were equal to the demands, though the number of passengers was constantly and rapidly increasing, until in 1889 it was apparent that another boat was needed.

Accordingly the Scotch ship-builders received another order. This boat was to be even faster than the "Yarmouth" as well as more palatial. The builders carried out the the wishes of the company to perfection and the "Boston" began regular trips between Boston and Yarmouth early in 1890. It covers the distance generally in fifteen hours though it has done it in thirteen when all the conditions were favorable. It is built like the large trans-Atlantic steamers and is the fastest boat of its size afloat. It is as comfortable living on the "Boston" as in the best of the hotels.

This summer the number of passengers carried is larger than ever. The "Yarmouth" and the "Boston" each make two trips each way per week. During July, these two boats have carried to Nova Scotia each week more than nine-hundred passengers. People have begun to realize that the only true way to see Nova Scotia is by taking this line to Yarmouth and then going over the Western Counties and Windsor & Annapolis Railways to Halifax.

To anyone who desires a pleasant Summer tour simply for sight-seeing and recreation, this route offers special attractions. In the first place there is the delightful ocean sail, differing only from a trip across the Atlantic in time. It is of just the right length to give all the pleasures of ocean travel and yet not become tedious. Then when the country itself is reached there is a sufficient variety of scenery to please all tastes. Mountain, hill, valley, forest, meadow, lake, river, bay, ocean—all are found in the ever beautiful and ever changing landscapes which greet you as you ride toward Halifax.

The Nova Scotian summer resorts by the seaside are surpassed by none in the world. No matter how hot it may be elsewhere it is always cool there.

The geologist or mineralogist finds in Nova Scotia rich plunder in the way of specimens. Fossil remains are so numerous that in nearly every home are found large numbers of splendid specimens, most of them picked up on the surface of the ground. Gold, iron, coal, copper, gypsum and many other minerals, agates, emeralds, amethysts and other gems are found in abundance.

The sportsman, also, whether hunter or angler, has a rich field. Ducks and other water-fowl abound along the entire coast and numerous varieties of birds are found inland. It is said also that bears and caribou are frequently shot in the forests. In the lakes and rivers the finest trout and other fresh-water fish are caught and Nova Scotia's sea fisheries are second only to those of Newfoundland.

Nova Scotia is also interesting historically, but I will speak of this further on. Now as to my visit.

I started from Boston July 3d at noon on the steamship "Yarmouth." There was the usual enjoyable sail down the harbor and then the boat was headed directly for Yarmouth. The popularity of the boat was indicated by the large number of passengers aboard, every state-room being taking. Throughout the afternoon the weather was perfect, though a brisk breeze was blowing, increasing constantly in force until tea time, when the water was quite rough. Consequently a number of the passengers were sea sick. Just before the sun set we ran into a dense fog which continued during the remainder of the journey. My enjoyment of the voyage was increased by the courtesies extended by Mr. Stockdale, the chief steward, and Mr. Smith, the purser. Both these officers have held their positions since the "Yarmouth" began its trips and both are very popular with the patrons of the line.

Saturday morning, I awoke about three o'clock and went on deck. It was still foggy and the boat was running slow, stopping occasionally to take soundings. We were nearing Yarmouth, but it was impossible to see more than fifty yards ahead. At last a fog-horn was heard in the distance ahead and the captain, taking his bearings from this, ran the boat safely into harbor. We reached the wharf shortly after six o'clock.

As I first saw it from the deck of the steamer, Yarmouth did not look very inviting. My opinion of it changed later.

I remained in Yarmouth until Tuesday morning. A friend in Worcester who has relatives here, had informed them of my proposed visit and they were of invaluable assistance to me in seeing the city.

Yarmouth is the second largest city in Nova Scotia and is the centre of a considerable maritime trade. It also has a number of manufacturing industries. Located as it is on the extreme southern end of Nova Scotia it receives the cool breeze from both the ocean and the Bay of Fundy. It is seldom excessively hot there. The winds from the west and southwest generally bring fogs, but these are not of the disagreeable kind except perhaps when they prevent visitors from seeing the lovely views about the city.

Yarmouth is noticeable for the great numbers of large houses, most of which are surrounded by well-kept grounds. During a ride around the city, to which I was treated by Mr. Moody, one of the directors of the steamship company, I was shown through some of the gardens. They were models of neatness and the crops were as far advanced as many I had seen at home.

I would like to speak further of my stay here but I am already taking too much space and must hasten.

Tuesday morning I took the train on the Western Counties Railway for Digby. The route runs northward parallel with the Bay of Fundy coast-line, but several miles inland. It runs for nearly the whole distance through forest region, where a large lumbering business is carried on. The country between the railway and the coast is settled principally by descendants of the early Acadians. Until within a few years their methods of life were practically the same as those of their ancestors. Just before reaching Weymouth the road crosses the Sissipou River on a high bridge. Here one of those beautiful views, of which I saw so many, was presented.

While in Yarmouth I had become acquainted with the baggage-master of the train and so on his invitation I rode in the baggage-car from which a more extensive view could be had than from a car window. But when we reached Weymouth, he introduced me to the engineer who allowed me to ride on the engine the remainder of the way to Digby, twenty-two miles. This was an improvement on the baggage-car even, as I could see on both sides of the track.

Just before reaching Digby, I enjoyed a view than which I never expect to see a more beautiful one. If the famous Bay of Naples can be more beautiful than was the Annapolis Basin that day, it must be indeed a sight worth traveling far to see.

At this point in the coast-line the bay breaks through a narrow gap in the range of mountains which run the whole length of the western coast and a basin is formed. At the southern end of the basin is Digby and at the northern end is Annapolis a short distance up the Annapolis River.

As we rode along through the forest we suddenly emerged on a side hill overlooking the basin. The day was like one of those rare days in June that Lowell speaks of. In the centre of the picture lay the beautiful blue sheet of water sparkling with white-caps; on the right the dark mountains loomed up; on the left the country, dotted with farms, sloped gently upwards to distant hills; in the foreground at the foot of the hill nestled Digby; in the background the mountains and the basin faded away on the horizon, fifteen miles away. It was a picture not soon to be forgotten.

Until within a week or two there has been no railroad between Digby and Annapolis, but a small steamer named "Evangeline" ran across the basin connecting the two railway termini. To the tourist this sail of an hour and a half is a pleasant incident in the day's journey but to other travelers the delay and bother of changing is not very agreeable. But the Western Counties Railway has now completed its line through to Annapolis and "the missing link" was opened the week after my visit. The traveler may now go by rail from Yarmouth to Halifax without any change.

I was glad however that the link was still missing that Tuesday, for the sail was so much pleasanter than a ride could have been.

A splendid view of the country surrounding the basin was had from the deck of the "Evangeline." Annapolis is not situated directly on the basin but is several miles up the Annapolis River. As we went up the river and just before reaching the wharf we passed the old French fort, which still remains in excellent condition. In Annapolis there was just time for dinner before foretaking the train on the Windsor & Annapolis Railway for Halifax.

Next week I will tell about the ride through the Annapolis Valley, the visit to Halifax, and my historical researches in Grand Prè and Annapolis where I stopped several days on my return.

Mr. J. Allen Tailby of Wellesley, who recently resigned his position at Clark University, has been spending a week in the city at the residence of J. N. Alton, 80 Woodland Street. Mr. Tailby has accepted a position as assistant in the chemical department at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, Boston. He graduated from this college in 1887. He was presented on leaving the University with a spatula made from platinum by Dr. Morris Loeb of the department of chemistry. A large circle of Worcester friends wish Mr. Tailby much success in his new position.

Beggars should be no choosers.—Heywood.

I HAVE THE LARGEST
CARRIAGE :-: REPOSITORY

In New England. You can see over 200 elegant Carriages on one floor. GREAT BARGAINS in Carriages during the present month. This is my twenty-fifth year in business in this city, and my stock is the most extensive I have ever carried.

GEORGE C. DEWHURST,
Nos. 17 and 19 Park Street. OPPOSITE COMMON.

WHENEVER GOOD
Eatables
are desired they will always
be found at
John A. Hartigan's
47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

THE HOME SCHOOL
MAY ST., COR. OF WOODLAND, will re-open September 23. Miss Kimball will be at the School after August 1, where she will be glad to talk with any interested in her work.
An excellent school home for your daughter.
Call or send for circular.

An impatient boy, while waiting for the grist at the mill, said to the miller: "I could eat the meal as fast as your mill grinds it." "How long could you do so?" asked the miller. "Till I was starved to death," retorted the boy.

THE BOSTON HERALD
Is clean, reliable, independent, bright. The best newspaper for the family.
Subscription 50 cents a month, postage paid.
LARGEST CIRCULATION
C. REBOLI,
Confectioner * and * Caterer,
6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

The Ware-Pratt Company

Invite attention to an extensive display of

Fine Clothing for Men, Boys and Children.

The Latest Fashions, Exclusive Styles from our own workshops, Honest Goods and the Lowest Prices, Grade and Quality considered.

Our Custom Department is teeming with the Newest styles, Colorings and Materials, which go to make up the finest lines we have ever shown.

The Ware-Pratt Company,

MANUFACTURERS AND RETAILERS,

408 and 412 Main Street,

Worcester.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts. State of the order March 18, 1891: Membership, 4915. Amount loaned for Relief, $15,290; Reserve Fund, $22,922.40; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,750.68; Total, $44,975.48. Men and women admitted upon the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600. Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organizer wanted. Address NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester, Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

LATHROP * BROTHERS,

LADIES', MEN'S AND CHILDREN'S

FINE AND MEDIUM SHOES

Of the most approved process of manufacture, meeting every requirement of Quality, Comfort and Style.

564 MAIN STREET, Franklin Square.

LEADING SAFETY BICYCLES.

Solid, Cushion and Pneumatic Tires. Full line of Supplies. Repairing a Specialty.

LEMONT & WHITTEMORE, 39 PEARL ST.

Open evenings.

E. W. COFFIN,

Store Fixtures

310 Main Street, Worcester.

Name this Paper.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES

at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

Larkin's, 395 Main St., Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps, Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.

Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Gate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD. Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main St.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LIGHT

---

VOL. III. No. 23. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, AUGUST 8, 1891. FIVE CENTS.

---

W. ANSEL WASHBURN,
Chief Marshal, City of Worcester.

JULY 25.

PUTNAM &amp; SPRAGUE CO.

FURNITURE and UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

We offer everything at a discount. SEE IN OUR WINDOWS samples of the best Refrigerators, and the best Baby Carriages marked in plain figures at prices that will ensure the sale of every one. We shall not carry them over. If you want one NOW is the time to buy.

247 and 249 Main Street, Corner of Central.

YARMOUTH S. S. CO.,

(Limited) Shortest and Most Direct Route Between United States & Nova Scotia, via the favorite sea-going and new steamships "Boston" and "Yarmouth." Sea voyage only 15 to 17 hours. Tickets sold to all parts of Nova Scotia.

Steamer will leave Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston, for Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 12 M. Noon.

Returning will leave Yarmouth for Boston every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Close connections made at Yarmouth with all Railway, Steamboat and Stage lines to all points in N. S.

For further information write for folder or apply to G. Y. Lancaster, M. H. Church & Co., O. F. Rawson, Worcester; or J. F. Spinney, Agent, Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the

ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,

92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

C. H. DRAPER,
Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

Three Large Moving Wagons. Baggage Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!

It saves Time,
Labor and Fuel.
(two thirds cent
per hr. for fuel.)

Manufacturers
Guarantee every
Iron.

TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, M'g. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

OXYGEN

We have the genuine

Oxygen Treatment

FOR THE CURE AND PREVENTION
OF DISEASE.

It is not a Drug, but Nature's true Restorative in debility and all disordered conditions of the system.

Our Oxygen is fresh every day.

Prepared and administered with the utmost care by a Physician of large experience.

It will pay to investigate our METHODS and PRICES.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

LINCOLN BLOCK,

368 1-2 Main, Cor. Elm.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

Quinsigamond Lake ICE

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Especial attention given to the family trade.

Garfield &amp; Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 143-4.

N. G. TUCKER.

W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER &amp; SON,

SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street,

Worcester, Mass.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always
be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

THE HOME SCHOOL

MAY ST., COR. OF WOODLAND,

will re-open September 23. Miss Kimbal will be at the School after August 1, where she will be glad to talk with any interested in her work.

An excellent school home for your daughter.

Call or send for circular.

Worcester Coal Company,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, AUGUST 8, 1891.

No. 23

"It seems a shame to come so near light and never see it shine."—George McDonald, "There and Back."

During this summer season, happiness and comfort are the items chiefly sought.

At the seaside; among the hills and mountains; in foreign parts; men and women are staying and hurrying, desirous of change and pleasure.

Some find what they seek. More do not. Meagre furnishings with an almost utter absence of the conveniences of home do not give the ease and rest that home possesses.

Sometimes a trip away from home is needful that the comforts of the latter may be appreciated, and it becomes all the more attractive on returning.

Then some folks go just to have it said that they have been here or there. They are glad to get home that they may rehearse their perils, adventures and discomforts. They are thus enabled to give the much vexed servant girl question a rest.

One little girl discoursing most vivaciously on the approaching vacation as to where she and all the family, save papa, were going was asked if papa wasn't going. "Oh, no," is the frank reply "He's got to stay at home and earn money to send us."

There is no use comparing the present with the past and saying, "Folks didn't take vacations then." Our grandfathers, though they may have lived out more than the Scriptural measure, did not see the life that today is crowded into one-third of that period. True enough, they needed no respite.

But the man of these times, who does not take a day or week off, at times, is doomed. Flesh and blood cannot endure the strain. He must play, occasionally, or he will go to the wall, a physical wreck. He need not take a long trip, nor make an extended excursion, but he can, at least one day in the week, vary his program and allow tired nature to rest. A play day a week will add years to his life.

A Kentucky correspondent of the New York Voice has found a queer item in his state. It seems that George R. Washburne, editor of The Wine and Spirit Bulletin of Louisville, has entered into a real estate speculation. This is simple enough; but when we find that rum makers and sellers are banding themselves together to exclude saloons from their Paradise, then does wonder arise. They actually stipulate in their deeds of sale that no saloon shall be founded in their midst. They prefer making hells to living in them.

Meanwhile our "Hurry up Wagon" continues its rapid movements. The city may be taking a vacation but not so the rum seller and mischief maker. He is here and here for business. The signals are constantly ringing in. When the wagon and driver with one or more policemen are rushing at full speed one cannot help wondering what they will get. With what load of vice, will they return? The ambulance is driven with all haste to rescue the wounded or suddenly stricken; the fire engines and patrol are off with breathless hurry to save life and property from the flames; but the police wagon is off to help an officer impound a drunken being, made so, now-a-days by a business that our citizens have voted to legalize. Could we vote again, today, the record would be different.

The Mail and Express of New York, under the management of Col. Shepard is obviously prospering, for invitations are out for the corner stone laying of a new building on August 19, "At High Noon." It is probable that noon is no higher in Gotham than elsewhere, but the buildings do run up tremendously. If this edifice climbs up to rival the Tribune's tall tower or the World building it will get dangerously near the stars, and Col. S. with Horace may fear lest he knock his head against those lofty luminaries. LIGHT certainly rejoices that the paper succeeds despite the sneers of many of its contemporaries.

Sioux City, Iowa, is again preparing for a corn festival. Montreal may have her ice palace; but to this prairie city is reserved the glory of a festival wherein a life preserver, not a killer is celebrated. From October 1st to the 17th, the honors of King Corn will be commemorated. Not corn as Europeans understand the word; but corn as Americans use the word. Indian corn or maize, the most beautiful of crops, when in the tassel and one of the most delightful sights when in the ear. Sioux City is no novice in this line of exhibition for this is to be the fifth annual showing. Every inducement, possible, is offered to the tourist to attend.

"The short and simple annals of the poor" must not be overlooked. When the state of affairs, indicated in the following, from the New England Farmer, exists, it is high time, that something was done.

"If a Massachusetts woman commits a crime, and is sent to the house of correction, she will probably be given a daily stint of eight pairs of overalls to make. She has wholesome food and a shelter over her head. Let her go back into the world to try to live honestly and she must make twelve pairs of overalls a day in order to pay for food and her room rent, and she must sit up half the night in order to complete her task. This is because the competition of the state or city with the sewing women is so great it drives her to the severest labor, to charity, or once more to crime."

To have planted a tree or a flower, to have done anything to brighten the way for any of God's creatures, is to have served one of the chief ends of living. Few people pass the houseless lot on Chestnut Street without glancing at the superb effect of colors there displayed. Elsewhere on the estate, in regal magnificence, other flowers bloom, not to waste all their blushes unseen as many a recipient can testify. All the varieties of the sweet pea, and what flower is lovelier, are found. To a bewildering array of clustered loveliness, gracious to all the senses these lines are dedicated.

Fair Summer had too many colors
Left in her workshop bright,
Such tangles of beautiful sunbeams,
Such shimmers of wonderful light.
So she gathered them all in her apron
And emptied them out one day,
And it happened this beauty all lighted
On a bed of sweet peas in the way.
And that is the reason the blossoms
Have all of the colors we know,
From the rosy flush of the dawning,
To the purple of afterglow.
And that is the reason at twilight
Such fragrance my senses greet,
'Tis the rose and the lily and Columbine,
Joined with the violet sweet.

We have had our regular Post Office ebullition and now matters will be quiet, till they are stirred up again. Meanwhile, the hole at Franklin Square is just as unsightly as ever; Salem Square still affords weighing facilities for hay and exhibition space for wood; the Rink continues available; but all this does not help the crowded employees on Pearl Street. Between the contests of North and South ends, postal prospects in Worcester are not beaming.

HOW NAMES GROW.

Mr. Crapo.

If certain political prophets be correct, the Republican nominee for Governor, this Fall will be Mr. Crapo of New Bedford. Whether he be nominated or not, the following concerning his origin and name is interesting:—

It is currently related in New Bedford that several generations ago a ship was wrecked near there and only one boy saved. As they did not know his name, they called him Johnny Crapaud, and the descendent of this boy was congressman from Massachusetts, Hon. Mr. Crapo. To these may be added, says American Notes and Queries, the case of Judge Poland, of Vermont, of whom the story is told that his family were Poles and bore an unpronounceable surname; they were called the "Poles" and the "Polanders," so that the name gradually crystallized into "Poland." There is also the name common in the south, "Dabney," which is supposed by the aristocratic owners to be a corruption of the French "D'Aubigne," and probably first imported by some noble Huguenot exile.

Habit is second nature.

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.

Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building, Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, AUGUST 8, 1891.

Every failure to receive LIGHT promptly should be, at once, reported at this office.

All scraps of informations concerning persons and events, thankfully received.

Friends sending in manuscripts will not complain if they are not printed at once. There are many waiting. Yet LIGHT is always glad to receive communications and, if meritorious, to print them.

Hereafter, it will be understood that all articles in LIGHT, not ascribed, save receipts, squibbs, fashion and household notes were written for this paper.

The N. H. C. has now appeared in four numbers. It is every way highly creditable to camp and editors; and printers too. This is an age of initials else this fine pamphlet would have words instead of letters at its head.

"The Reserve" is the name of a new paper published in Boston in the interests of the Sons of Veterans. It is clean and full of interest to those who like to discuss the battles waged by the fathers. See the advertisement in another column.

The Safety Bicycle, contested for during the months of July and August, has been earned by F. Robert Caswell of 15 Dix street. Master Robbie was born in Fitchburg, November, 1882 and he is a hard worker. He has sold in the ten Saturdays, 317 papers. He will make his way in the world sure. The machine is the Tremont, 24 inch wheel, for boys, from 8 to 11 years. It is from the sales-rooms of Lemont & Whittemore on Pearl street.

Two noteworthy deaths. Friday, July 30, at Seabright, N. J., Mr. C. B. Metcalf, long a resident of this city.

Sunday, the 2d, at his home on State street, Judge Hamilton B. Staples.

Next week LIGHT will have portraits and extended sketches of both of these eminent citizens.

Do you read LIGHT'S advertisements? No one thing better proclaims the character of a paper than the quality of the advertisements in it. Says one gentleman, qualified to speak, "I note, especially, the high grade of your advertisements." From first to last, every one is worthy of your reading and study.

Church Notes.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Pilgrim Church have arranged for a "Pilgrimage" to Rocky Point and Newport, Aug. 13th, next Thursday. To those who have had no vacation, and those who avoid excursions as a rule, this will prove an attraction well worth considering. It is designed to be a church party, and as such, the ladies invite members and friends of churches of every name to join them. A special train will be provided and we pity the person that cannot have a good time in such company.

Rev. Dr. J. L. Withrow of Chicago occupied the Piedmont Church pulpit last Sunday. Large audiences heard the eminent clergyman at both services. He will preach from the same pulpit tomorrow.

During August the evening services at Pilgrim Church will be held at five o'clock. This is so that the people may attend evening services in other churches and yet not miss their own. Rev. Geo. W. Phillips, D. D., of Rutland, Vt., occupied the pulpit last Sunday.

Large audiences were in attendance at Park Church last Sunday when the new pastor Rev. I. L. Wilcox began his work there.

At Plymouth Church tomorrow the pastor, Rev. Dr. Archibald McCullagh, will preach at the usual hours. The subject of the evening sermon will be "The Life and Times of John the Baptist."

At the Central Church meeting Wednesday evening the committee appointed to look for a new assistant pastor in place of Rev. Leon Bliss, who has resigned, recommended Rev. A. M. Hitchcock for the position. The report was accepted and action will be taken next Wednesday.

Y. P. S. C. E.

The September meeting of the Local Union will be held at the Pleasant Street Baptist Church. The principal speaker of the evening will be Rev. I. J. Lansing, who will give an account of the recent national convention at Minneapolis. The October meeting, at which the annual election of officers will take place, will be held at Park Congregational Church.

METHODIST.

Grace.—Last Sunday morning the pulpit was occupied by H. E. Chapman, a son-in-law of G. W. Coffin. Mr. Chapman is a student in the Newton (Baptist) Theological Seminary and completes his course this fall. His sermon was on "Faith."

The evening meeting was led by the Christian Crusaders. The fervor displayed reminded one of the accounts of the early meetings conducted by John Wesley. They are reaching a class of people that the churches do not.

Y. M. C. A.

Mr. W. H. Griffin will lead the morning prayer meeting tomorrow and Mr. Charles F. Rugg, president of the Association, will address the afternoon meeting at four o'clock.

There are now 180 members in the athletic club, the largest number since it was started three years ago.

At the monthly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Bicycle Club this week it was voted to hold a club run every Thursday evening through the remainder of the season. A new membership committee was appointed and efforts will be made to increase the membership.

A Quiet Retreat.

While Worcester people are enjoying themselves at home, a few have sought the cool breezes from the Mt. Pleasant Hotel, situated at a place of the same name, near the mouth of the Sheepscott. Here from the head piazza one looks upon a bay of water, not unlike Lake Quinsigamond, while farther out lies the broad ocean.

The hotel is filled, there being at present over one hundred boarders.

The scenery here is indeed superb, as, near at hand are Squirrel Islands, Spruce Point, Bayville and Murray Hill, while in the evening are to be seen the friendly beacons of Seguin, Monhegan and Pemaquid lights. There are a large number of young people at the hotel, who, besides rowing, sailing and swimming, also enjoy lawn tennis and croquet. In the evening dancing is in order. The accommodations are ample for a large party and as the steamboat company offer reduced rates during September, a large number are expected later. Were any reader of LIGHT to come to the hotel he would think himself almost at home, for among others here at present are Miss Emma Averill, Mrs. W. B. Weston, Mrs. Harriet Spaulding, Miss Elizabeth W. Spaulding, Mrs. Dr. Esterbrook, Mr. Harry and Miss Nettie Esterbrook, and Mr. Clarence Smith W. H. S., '92. These, with others yet to come, will form quite a Worcester delegation.

G. T. W.

Henry J. Gross returns from Watch Hill, R. I., next week.

Miss Lillian J. Pierce.

Dix Street dwellers will miss the face and voice of this young lady who died suddenly, Sunday, the 2d inst. She was buried from her late home, No. 19 Dix Street, Tuesday, at 3 p.m. The services were conducted by the Rev. F. J. Fairbanks of West Boylston where Miss Pierce once resided. Rev. Leon D. Bliss of Central Church, of which she was a member, assisted.

THE MUSIC FESTIVAL.

Campanini and Rummel Engaged.

Interest in the Music Festival continues to increase and the outcome bids fair to draw out an attendance unexcelled at any previous festival.

Orders for tickets began to come in a month ago which is unusual.

Signor Itato Campanini, the famous tenor, has been engaged and also Franz Rummel, the popular pianist.

The engagement of Campanini will prove a wise move by the management as there is more interest in this great tenor than in any other mole singer who has sung in America for many years.

Entertainments.

Lothrop's Opera House.

Lothrop's new Opera House will be opened on Monday, August 17, with the well known and popular drama, "Queenena," which will be presented by Lothrop's Boston stock company, headed by H. Perry Meldon and Miss Ethel Tucker. Ladies are invited to visit the opera house, which is pronounced by critics to be one of the finest low priced theatres in its appointments and art decorations in the country, between the hours of 10 and 12 a. m. on the day of opening.

"Queenena" will be run for a week, a new production being put on each succeeding week. Two performances a day will be given. That of the afternoon will begin at 2 o'clock, the doors being opened half an hour earlier. The drama will be preceded by a short farce. Orchestral music will be furnished by Madam Percival's ladies' orchestra, which will give a promenade concert during the reception to ladies on the morning of the 17th.

The box office will be open for the sale of seats on Thursday, August 13.

Mr. Dale Armstrong, the manager of the new house, is a man of wide experience in theatrical matters, having successfully managed theatres in New Haven, Providence, Boston and Portland during the last dozen years. He comes directly from Lothrop's Opera House in Portland, and will give his whole attention to the enterprise.

Mechanics Hall.

Miss Nettie Morris, Educated Horses, Ponies and Dogs, will give a series of grand exhibitions, commencing Monday August 10

Every evening during the week and every afternoon except Monday these wonderful animals will perform their wondrous feats. The Fitchburg Mail says:—

The tricks and evolutions of the horses, dogs and goats seemed out of all proportion with the amount of intelligence, however great which men commonly attribute to the animal kingdom.

What particularly impressed those present was the great leaping of the handsome greyhound, Folyetta. This animal with very little apparent effort cleared a height of 20 feet and with better conditions can better even that phenomenal record.

There is lots of fun in the show, too, and the wrestling match between the pony, Banner and a colored lad provoked long lasting laughter. The military drill was finely executed, and numerous other special features brought out great applause.

The work of the Devene brothers, who have just left Barnum's circus, was as fine an exhibition of acrobatic skill as was ever witnessed in the city. The concert given by members of the company was more than excellent.

LEICESTER.

A party of fourteen left town Thursday, at 10.30 a.m., for Asnebumskit, in honor of Miss Nellie Gladstone of Riedsville, N. C. The party enjoyed the ride in new mown hay, on a dead axle wagon. Bumskit was reached at mid-day, in time for a good lunch, after which all had the pleasure of seeing the grand panorama of lakes, woods, mountains, towns and the beautiful city of Worcester. Among the prominent friends of Miss Gladstone may be mentioned: Messrs. John N. Coolidge, Boston; Everett O. White, Walpole; William H. Davis, Springfield; Horace McFarland, Providence, R. I.; Misses Lillian O. Bigelow, Webster; Blanche Bubier, Lynn; Anna Denny, St. Paul, Minn.; Lulu H. Stone, Mandana E. Snow, N. Olive Knight and Ida F. Warren, Mrs. David Reeves and Mrs. Walter Warren, Leicester. Mrs. Reeves and Mrs. Warren were agreeable chaperons. All were inspired to thoughts of sentiment and this is what the party desired, however much they may deny it. Mr. Davis had the ability to photograph the party several times, as they posed equipped to please each other. Hickory walking sticks were secured as souvenirs of the fact that "life is worth living" when one realizes whatsoever state they are in, therewith to be content. Mid-summer social parties are at full tide and long before they begin to ebb, many a heart will be made glad in pastimes that will float, like the memory of a "pond lily."

BETTINA.

Mrs. Charles Aiken and Miss Agnes Davis of North Grafton, have returned from a visit to Providence, R. I.

Rev. Dr. J. D. Pickles and family have returned from their vacation and he will resume his pastorate at Trinity Church, Sunday.

W. H. Blanchard and daughter, Miss Mabel B. Blanchard, have gone to New York for a trip up the Hudson as far as Albany.

Mrs. J. Donohue and daughter, Addie, of Penn Avenue, are spending a month's vacation at Block Island, after which they sail up the Hudson.

Miss Anna Wall is spending two weeks at Martha's Vineyard, after which she will spend the remainder of the month at Marlboro.

Thomas H. Dodge and wife have gone for a two weeks' sojourn at Boyd Mansion, Londonderry, N. H.

Lake Glazier.

Mr. J. C. Crane of Millbury with the party intent on reaching the head waters of the Mississippi is now in St. Paul and the Dispatch of that city, July 31, has an excellent article describing the outfit and the party.

In and Out of Court.

The tennis season is about at its height, and all eyes are now turned toward Newport, where in less than two weeks the tournament which will settle the American Championship will be held.

The season has been more than usually full of surprises, and the number of players who have made records which require them to be classed among possible winners of the All-Comers at Newport is four or five times that of any previous year.

Probably the most promising aspirant for first place is Mr. F. H. Hovey of Harvard, who won the Intercollegiate championship last fall, by defeating Campbell. Mr. Hovey has won the Wellesley, Wentworth and Saratoga tournaments in brilliant style, and met with his only defeat at Longwood where Mr. E. L. Hall of New York beat him and won the tourney by remarkably fine playing. Mr. Hovey is regarded by many as a sure winner, at Newport, but LIGHT ventures to prophesy that he will not reach the finals.

Mr. E. L. Hall, whose victory over Hovey was just mentioned has won the Southern Championship, and some minor tourneys and reached the finals at Saratoga. He will make a good showing at the National.

Mr. Clarence Hobart of New York is another player who is liable to surprise people.

W. P. Knapp, last year "runner up," S. T. Chase, J. A. Ryerson and I. W. Carver of Chicago have been heard from but little but will all fight till well along in the tournament. H. A. Taylor, Q. A. Shaw and H. W. Slocum, Jr., will probably not play.

The invitation tournament at Nahant this week, and the matches at Narragansett next week will settle pretty definitely how matters stand and when Newport opens it will doubtless be easy to predict the winner.

Champion Campbell is keeping very quiet and no one knows what sort of a game he is playing. LIGHT predicts however, that the championship trophy will be his for another year.

In local tennis circles, interest this week centers in the club tournament on the Winslow Tennis club grounds on Pleasant street. There are fifteen entries in the singles and some interesting contests are sure to result. All the club's best players are entered except Southgate, Tatman and Bemis. The former will play the winner, to defend the championship trophy. The other men are out of town.

The date of the Invitation tournament to be given at Mariemont by Messrs. George and Randolph Crompton has not yet been announced.

August 24th the Winslow Club will give an open tournament, with valuable prizes. Entries are already being received and the tournament will probably be a large one.

The tournament for the county championship will be held on the Worcester grounds, the second week of September. Entries are assured from Worcester, Fitchburg, Millbury and Westboro.

The Worcester Athletic Club may have a tennis tournament in the Fall.

The members tournament of the Winslow Tennis Club began this week. Up to Thursday night the games were as follows: Archibald McCullagh, Jr., beat Dr. Howland, 6-2, 6-0, 6-3; A. F. White beat A. M. Van Dusen 6-2, 6-4, 6-0; Jesse Coburn beat W. D. Clegg, 6-3, 6-0, 6-1; J. Nourse beat A. Titus, 4-6, 6-0, 6-1, 6-4; Dr. A. C. White beat Charles Landry, 5-7, 6-1, 6-0; Coburn beat Ware, 6-0, 6-2, 6-3; Dr. George Buttler beat G. O. Bridges 6-0, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2; Harry Foster beat Arthur Burtelle, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4; A. F. White beat Dr. A. C. White, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2, 9-7.

Doubles—Dr. Howland and J. Nourse vs. Dr. Geo. Buttler and L. E. Ware have played two sets in which the score was 5-7, 4-6.

W. Ansel Washburn.

In the machinery, essential to the proper management of a city, the marshal plays an important part. This officer must have incorruptible honesty, decision, firmness, knowledge of human nature and great experience in dealing with the criminal classes. The people of Worcester are pretty well satisfied that these characteristics are possessed in a decided degree by the man who is now serving his thirteenth year as City Marshal. The office was created, here, when Worcester became a city, viz., in 1848. Besides Mr. Washburn the following gentlemen have held the office: George Jones '48-52, Alvan Allen '53, Jonathan Day '54, Lovell Baker, '55, Frederick Warren '56-'58, J. Waldo Denny '58, Wm. S. Lincoln '59, Ivers Phillips '60, Levi Barker, '61, Wm. E. Starr '62, Charles B. Pratt '63-'65, Jos. B. Knox '66, A. B. R. Sprague '67, James M. Drennan, '67-'71 and '80-82, Jon. B. Sibley '72, A. Davis Pratt '74, Amos Akinson '84-'85. Of these officers, Messrs. Jones, Allen, Day, Warren, Lincoln and Sibley are dead. Marshall Allen was run over and killed by the cars, Nov. 29, 1859, on the old Norwich road between Mechanic and Front streets, where now stands the structure adjacent to the Chase building. Marshal Warren was accidentally shot Nov. 10, 1858, and he died on the 13th. The remainder of his term was completed by J. Waldo Denny, his first assistant. The latter was an officer in the 25th Regt. and is now in the Boston Custom House. General Wm. S. Lincoln was long a prominent Worcester figure. Of the survivors, Col. Lovell Baker dwells on Laurel street, a real estate dealer; Ivers Phillips is living in Boulder, Colorado, and, even now is reckoning on a visit from the Worcester Commandery of Knight Templars in 1892. Levi Barker is still active in affairs with home on Main Street. Wm. E. Starr is our respected Ex-High School teacher and Life Insurance Actuary. Charles B. Pratt has been mayor repeatedly and is now prominent in insurance and street railway matters. Jos. B. Knox is also an insurance man. Gen. A. B. R. Sprague served only a short time, being promoted to be Collector of Int. Rev. and was succeeded by our present Deputy Sheriff, Col. James M. Drennan, both gentlemen too well known in Worcester to need introduction. A. Davis Pratt is an instructor in a Reform School in Waupan, Mich. Amos Akinson is still on the Police Force. The summary, then, reads like this: Forty-three years of city existence; eighteen different marshals, an average of less than two and a half years each. Colonel Drennan held the position eight years, but Mr. Washburn's term very much exceeds even Col. D.'s large number.

Our marshal has a figure considerably larger than the average, and as he passes, the stranger will be quite likely to remark, "I wonder who that is." At any rate, LIGHT pleads guilty to the query, during the marshal's second term. In Europe, an officer of his dignity and importance would be radiant with tinsel and trapping but, aside from shoulder straps and brass buttons, when on duty, his only token is a black rosette worn upon his hat.

William Ansel Washburn was born in Leicester Aug. 14, 1837, the son of John and Nancy (Bemis) Washburn. His twin sister, Alice, is a resident of Rochdale, the widow of John Lamb. There are other sisters, Julia, Mrs. Erastus Woodis of this city and Delia, Mrs. Wm. F. Browning of Spencer. The elder Washburn was a blacksmith and later a farmer. During the childhood of our marshal, the family moved to Paxton where Mr. W. was reared and where his education was acquired.

He came to Worcester in 1857 and for four years was an attendant at the State Lunatic Hospital. The next four years he was in business. In 1865 he entered the Police Force and from that date to the present, excepting seven years, he has continued his connection. He was made day captain in 1867, but he held the position only six weeks, being promoted then, to the second assistant marshalship.

During Mayor Jillson's first term 1873, he made Mr. Washburn marshal, and again in 1875 he restored him to the place which he continued to hold till the end of 1879. He was in again in 1883 with Mayor Hildreth. He returned to office with Mayor Winslow and here he is today. He has recollections of the cramped quarters in the old City Hall, of the very much improved location in the new Police Headquarters and is the first occupant of the offices, recently arranged, adjoining the Headquarters and connected with them.

The City Marshal, to the running gear of the local government is very much what the governor is to an engine. He has a steadying effect. His opinion is sought in all emergencies. Upon his discretion rests the weal or woe of thousands. To be sure Mr. Washburn has not been called upon to quell riots as some of his predecessors were, but he has directed the Police Force through the exacting days of No License and, again, in the times of strict interpretation of the License law.

Mr. Washburn married Miss Emily Delano of Provincetown and they have had three children one only of whom survives. She, Edith, is a pupil in our public schools. Their home is on May Street and they are attendants at the First Universalist church.

During the years that Mr. Washburn was out of office, he engaged in business, his last venture being in the Fruit and Provision line with Mr. T. R. Norcross on Maia street. It should be remarked, in passing, that Mr. Washburn, with the exception of Ex-Marshal Atkinson, is the only holder of his office who was promoted from a patrolman. Perhaps this is a reason why he makes so excellent an officer. Aside from his Worcester duties, he is a member of the Massachusetts Society of Chief of Police and in 1888 was its president.

He is a member of Worcester Lodge, No. 56, Odd Fellows and with his wife belongs to the Daughters of Rebecca. He is also a Mason, being in Montacute Lodge, Eureka Chapter, Hiram Council Lodge of Perfection, Worcester County Commandery and with Mrs. Washburn, in Stella Chapter of the Eastern Star.

Here then is our City Marshal, the chief of Police in some cities. He knows his duties thoroughly and he aims to use all the engineering of his position to enforce the law. While the rogue may fear him he cannot help respecting him for his absolute impartiality. He is one of a long line of honest, capable and devoted officials. Few, if any cities, can produce a better array.

THE FIFTH ANNUAL FESTIVAL.

Sioux City Prides Itself on Another Magnificent Corn Palace.

The people of Sioux City have furnished many evidences of enterprise and progressiveness, but in no way have they shown greater individuality than in the inauguration and realization of the Corn Palace idea. The project was entirely original with Sioux City, and there has never been a Corn Palace anywhere else. The enterprising people of Sioux City have erected four successive temples to Mondamin and a fifth Corn Palace is now being constructed on a larger and grander scale than ever before. The building will be 380 by 150 feet and the center tower rises 200 feet above the pavement. It will be thrown open to the world amid great pomp and splendor on the 1st day of October and remain open for seventeen days thereafter. The Mexican National Band from the City of Mexico has been secured as one of the attractions; a mammoth exhibit from Central and South America will be another, besides the county displays from the states of Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota, Iowa, etc.

The railroads, recognizing the vast number of people who annually visit the Corn Palace, have arranged to make very low excursion rates.

As to the Fifteenth.

Thanks are hereby rendered to comrade Wilder for the following letter, containing valuable data.

A. S. ROE.

To the Editor of Light:

Seeing the inquiry of the Seventh Regiment Gazette, in your issue of July 18th, in regard to a Capt. of the 15th Mass., Regiment who was killed at Antietam would say:—

We went into the fight the morning of the 17th, of Sept., 1862, passing over the ground over which Hooker had just fought, we passed through a piece of woods and found the rebels awaiting us on the other side. After a sharp engagement in which we left more than half our men dead and wounded on that fatal field in less than twenty minutes, we were obliged to fall back and form in a new line. Just as we had got into our new position, a rebel shell exploded in the air just in front of us, a piece of it struck the ground and just passed over the heads of the men, striking Capt. Clark S. Simons of Co. B., full in the breast killing him instantly, though the men who carried him from the field, said that the skin was not broken. I do not know whether this was the man referred to in the inquiry, but these are the facts in regard to his death.

J. W. WILDER.

Formerly member of Co. B., 15th Reg't.
29 Salem St. Worcester, Mass.

Orthodoxy is my doxy, Heterodoxy is another man's doxy.

In connection with time and tide, the elevator boy comes in for some recognition for waiting for no man.

VOLAPÜK.

Here is one practical use of volapük :

Postal Card From Finland.

Uträ lä Joensan Finän,
1891, VII, 12.

Utra near Joensan, Finland,
1891, July 12.

O Söl päillestimölin !

Sa zülag divik ola elogob ladeti ola e sumob atoso libi säköna va vilol tökön potamäkis Pebaltatsäna kol potamäks finänik. Ab bi potamäks finänik nu binoms remo delidik (potamäks obas podejafoms suno), etökob a. s. ko mäks täänik in mod suköl. Edagetob mäkis balmil (1000) in sots divik bals (10), efe samäds baltum (100) de sot alik, kol mäks finänik mältum (600) efe suköls :

1875	ä	penni	20	sam	50
1885	"	"	5	"	100
"	"	"	10	"	50
"	"	"	20	"	100
"	"	"	25	"	25
1890	"	"	5	"	100
"	"	"	10	"	50
"	"	"	20	"	100
"	"	"	25	"	25

Suam samädas 600

If kanol tökön me stips at, potolös obe samädis balmil (1000) potamäkas (no kövas u kadas) pebaltatsänik efe sotis divik neselede-lis bals e samädis baltum (100) de sot alik, ed opotob ole foviko in pened peninpenöl sotis at sa zu nogo sotis bals (10) seledikumis, ye no umo ka samödiabol de sot alik.

Labolos fienöfi gepüköna obe. If ol it no kouletol, komedolös obi kouletele sembal usik.

D. O. D.

VEISELL, Y.

Ever most esteemed Sir :

According to your treasured circular I have seen your address and I thus take the liberty of asking whether you will exchange postage stamps of United States with postage stamps of Finland. But because Finland postage stamps are very costly (our postage stamps will soon be abrogated) I have exchanged as for example with Italian stamps in following manner. I have obtained one thousand stamps (1,000) in ten (10) different kinds, that is one hundred (100) of each kind, for Finland stamps six hundred (600) as follows:

1875	penni	20	number	50
1885	"	5	"	100
"	"	10	"	50
"	"	20	"	100
"	"	25	"	25
1890	"	5	"	100
"	"	10	"	50
"	"	20	"	100
"	"	25	"	25

Number samples 600

If you can exchange by these stipulations, you will please mail me one thousand (1000) samples postage stamps (not envelope or card) of United States of ten different common kinds, and one hundred (100) samples of each sort, I will mail to you immediately in a letter containing these kinds together with, yet furthermore, ten (10) kinds more rare, yet not more than your samples of each sort.

Please have the friendliness to reply to me. If you yourself do not collect please recommend me to some other collector there.

D. O. D.

VEISELL Y.

The C. T. A. Union.

The Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America which holds its annual convention at Washington, D. C., on the 5th and 6th of this month was organized at Baltimore, Md., February 22, 1871.

At that time the union comprised the benefit organizations of Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia representing 177 societies and comprising over 26,000 members.

At this convention it is expected that the national secretary will report an increase in membership to over 100,000.

This union represents the first organized Catholic movement in America against intemperance, and its rapid growth and extension during the past twenty years are wonderful.

This success is not so wonderful in numbers but in overcoming prejudices and customs.

The line of advance of the union is but an extension of that which the Rev. Theobald Mathew began in 1838. The movement is under the direction of the church and many of the clergy are active in its advancement.

The union is composed of subordinate state and diocesan unions and these are composed of local societies.

Article IV, section I of the constitution reads: "This union shall be a union of subordinate unions that are recognized by ecclesiastical authority."

Section II of the same article reads: "No question of national or local politics shall ever be brought up or entertained in the deliberations of the union or of its convention boards, or committees; and any officer or member of a board or committee violating or attempting to violate the provisions of this article shall immediately forfeit his office or position on our board or committee."

Article VII gives the pledge: "I promise with Divine assistance to abstain from all intoxicating drinks, to prevent as much as possible by advice and example the sin of intemperance in others and to discountenance the drinking customs of society."

In the teachings of the Catholic Church temperance is regarded as a cardinal virtue and essentially necessary to a Christian life. The church does not teach that the sin is in drink, but in drunkenness. Recognizing the fact that a large number of people abuse drink to their own detriment and the detriment of society, the church calls upon these to take the only safe course, total abstinence.

The leaders in the present movement, as also many in the ranks, are men who have ever been total abstainers or very moderate drinkers. Seeing the increasing curse of intemperance among their people, they practice self-denial and do unenumerated labor for the common good.

An extract from the pastoral letter of the Archbishops and Bishops of the United States assembled in the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore and dated December 7, 1884, reads:

"These temperance societies should be encouraged and aided by all who deplore the scandal given and the spiritual ruins wrought by intemperance. They should be and we trust are everywhere largely composed of those who were never tainted by that vice but who mourn over the great evil and are energetically endeavoring to correct it."

An attempt will be made at this convention to have the next annual session held at Springfield, Mass.

The only local societies represented at the Washington convention are those of the Church of the Sacred Heart whose delegates are Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, D. D., and Richard H. Mooney.

UNIFORM SIR KNIGHTS

Order Sons of St. George. Second Annual Excursion August 15, to Mystic Island, Watch Hill and Block Island. An excursion full of pleasure, only $1.25, $1.50 and $1.75. For tickets and other information call on George Y. Lancaster, Agent, at 434 Main Street, opposite Front Street, Worcester.

LEICESTER.

A delightful reception in honor of Miss Nellie Gladstone of Reidsville, N. C., was given Friday evening, July 31st, by Miss N. Olive Knight. Games were played with a great deal of merriment. Miss Knight, Mr. E. Lester Marsh and Mr. Horace McFarland favored the guests with pleasing instrumental music. Refreshments from Rebboli's were served and the evening was most enjoyably spent in good cheer.

BETTINA.

August 7, 1891.

Miss Hattie S. Putnam will spend a part of August in Bennington, Vt., with her sister, Mrs. Sibley. Just in time for the great celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Lapham of Millbury are the parents of a little girl baby that arrived at their house at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Comrade Alfred S. Smedley has obeyed the old injunction and gone to Halifax i. e., Vermont, where every prospect pleases and man is far from vile. He writes glowingly of his surroundings.

Miss Fannie Reed of Sycamore St. is visiting in North Brookfield.

Mrs. Thomas Bemis and son of Dix St. are visiting in East Boston.

Rev. Hugh Montgomery of Woburn gave a vigorous reply to his critics last Sunday. He knows how to express his sentiments.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther M. Lovell and daughter leave today for a visit to Claremont, N. H.

About Folks.

Mr. John T. Magee, formerly business manager of the late Worcester Daily Times, has been secured by Mr. A. H. Hinman to represent Hinman's Business College in looking after the details of the rapidly increasing business of the college. Mr. Magee is well equipped for this special line of work by his many years' experience in the business departments of some of the leading newspapers of New England, and will prove a valuable acquisition to Mr. Hinman's efficient corps of workers.

Miss Jennie B. McIver, a graduate of the Worcester High School, class of '85, and also of Wellesley College, class of '90, has accepted a position in Forest Park University, St. Louis, Mo., as instructor in science and will enter upon her duties the first week in September.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Oxley will sympathize with them in the death of their infant daughter, Maybelle, which took place Monday. She was nine weeks old.

John B. Tallman and wife of Syracuse, N. Y., are the guests of L. C. Lawrence, No. 15 Wachusett Street.

Harry W. Smith will visit A. S. Cushman at his cottage at Guy's Cliff, Bar Harbor, for about ten days.

Miss Clara Moore and Miss Cora A. Baldwin are at the Adams House, Old Orchard Beach.

Dr. J. O. Marble's family have returned from Princeton, and are now at Watch Hill, R. I., where they will remain till the first of September.

Walter and Cora Earle attended the wedding of George D. Baker and Abbie L. Brooks at Springfield, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. O. W. Norcross, Miss Alice Norcross, Miss Mabel Norcross, Miss Edith Norcross and Miss Martha Sibley have gone to the Norcross House, Monument Beach, for an indefinite stay.

Mr. James J. Donnelly and Owen A. McGee are home from Brighton Seminary, and spending the vacation at Newport, R. I.

Mrs. N. J. Mooney and family are visiting relatives at Cambridge.

Miss Annie Mellen and Master James and Richard Mellen are spending their vacation with their uncle, Alderman Mellen, of Chicopee.

Mr. C. W. Bowker, Master Harry Bowker and Mr. J. B. Bowker left Worcester Thursday for Detroit and other points in Michigan.

The family of E. S. Knowles is with the family of Charles I. Rice in the famous Pearl house at Orr's Island. Miss Fanny Lightburn and Miss Grace Baker are also at the island.

Out in Chicago, they refer to their mayor as "Hemp" Washburn. His first name is Hempstead. There is something too suggestive in that word of Kentucky's chief product and the purposes for which it is used.

The Rev. Henry Dorr, late of the Webster Sq. M. E. Church, now of East Saugus, has been suffering from rheumatic fever, but is now better.

Mr. Andrew F. O'Connor has finished his bust of Cyrus Hamlin, D. D., and it will soon be on exhibition in Peck's Art Rooms.

Rev. Fayette Nichols, once of the Laurel Street M. E. Church, is travelling in Ireland.

Mr. John Wenzel, of Ashland, Boston University, class of '91, is passing some time in this city.

W. A. Gile, Esq., oscillates between Worcester and Franklin Falls, N. H. Pleasure calls him to the old home while work and duty require his presence here.

Charles E. Black, book-keeper for the Ware, Pratt Company, Mrs. Black and daughter, Miss Kittie Black, are at the Ocean House, Rock Beach, Me.

John L. Wyman is at Fryeburg, Me., for two weeks.

Miss Luella Flagg, contralto at Piedmont Church, and Miss Emily G. Whittemore, the well known pianist, have gone to Newport to spend their vacation.

Dr. D. F. Estabrook's family are at East Boothbay and vicinity, Maine.

H. B. Lincoln and family are at Kennebunkport for an outing. They have visited this place before.

Misses Emma D. Gates, Nellie G. Jerome, Addie M. Harthan of Worcester; Bertha Macurdy, Y. W. C. A. Secretary of Scranton, Pa.; Sarah J. Dawes and Fanny Green of Easton, Pa., form a party attending the conference at Northfield, Mass.

Misses Mary and Norah Sullivan start Tuesday, for a two weeks' vacation at Nahant.

Baldwinville Fair.

A fair and Children's Day will be held at the Hospital Cottages for Children, Baldwinville, Thursday, Aug. 13. Reduced rates will be given at all stations on Fitchburg R.R. from Fitchburg to Orange, and from Worcester to Wichendon. This day is especially to afford the children, who have so often given their assistance to the support of the hospital an opportunity to visit the new building. Parents and friends are all cordially invited. Visitors will bring a basket lunch, but a table will be provided where dinner can be obtained at moderate price. Friends are invited to contribute articles to be sold at the fair. A conveyance will be provided from the depot for all who wish it. Mrs. W. S. Clark, 23 John Street, Worcester, is chairman of the committee of arrangements and inquiries may be addressed to her. It is earnestly hoped that all interested friends will take this opportunity.

There is no revenge more heroic, than that which torments envy, by doing good.

We promise according to our hopes, and perform according to our fears.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Mr. Ernest L. Pettes, collecting agent, gives personal attention to the collection of bills. No. 24 Pearl Street.
Geo. E. Kirby & Co., Dealers in Umbrellas and Parasols. Repairing and re-covering a specialty. 397 Main St.

Boston Store.

Established 1870.

Sole Agency } Centemeri Gloves.
Butterick's Paper Patterns.
E. C. Burt's Shoes.
Foster Kid Gloves.

Special sale of Domestic for August.

We can only mention a few of the bargains that will make business boom in this department, 3000 yds. 4-4 Unbleached Cotton Remnants, 5c.

2 bales 4-4 Unbleached Cotton, 6 1-4c; 16 yards for $1.

2 bales 4-4 Unbleached Cotton, 7c; extra weight.

2 bales 9-8 Unbleached Cotton, 7c.

2 bales 9-8 Unbleached Cotton, 8c.

1 case 10-4 Brown Sheeting, 20c; worth 25c.

1 case 9-4 Bleached Sheeting, 18c.

Special prices to clean up our Outing Flannels: 25c goods for 17c; 30, 33, 37 1-2c goods for 25c.

1 case Scarlet Shaker Flannel, 20c; worth 30c.

1 case Brown Cotton Flannel, 8c; always 10c.

Special line of Turkey Red Damasks, 33c; fast colors.

10 pieces 66 in. Cream Linen Damask, 37 1-2c; regular 50c

10 pieces 58 in. Bleached Linen Damask, 50c.

10 pieces Toilenette Stripe, 37 1-2c; half price.

Big lot of Russia Crash, 8c to close out.

Big lot of Glass Towelling, 8c. and 9c to close out.

20 in. Bleached Linen Towelling, 8c; a bargain.

50 doz. All Linen Kitchen Towels, 9c.

50 doz. All Linen Huck Towels, 10c.

50 doz. All Linen Huck Towels, 20x40, 12 1-2c.

70 doz. Fine Damask Towels, knotted fringes, 2 rows of insertion, 17c; marked down from 25c.

DENHOLM & MCKAY COMPANY.

Upton's Historic Houses.

NO. 1.

The Isaac Johnson House.

One of the dozen or more houses of historic interest in Upton is that now occupied by Deacon Isaac T. Johnson and his family. The farm is situated on the easterly side of Pratt pond. The dwelling itself stands beneath the wide spreading branches of two enormous trees. One is reminded in looking at the house so picturesquely situated, of Longfellow's village blacksmith's shop "under the spreading chestnut trees;" only these trees are elms and the house has that quaint, attractive form with low, drooping, double-pitch roof—the eaves are but seven feet and three inches from the sills—which makes it look the best place in the world for a home.

It is situated about three-fourths of a mile from Upton Center, on the west side of the road leading to Hopkinton. This was always the Hopkinton road until the "turnpike" was made on the west side of the pond.

Road engineers of fifty to one hundred years ago made turnpike roads straight, that is, as the crow flies. Up hill and down, through swamps and over steep ledges, it was all the same to them so long as the road did not deviate to the right nor left. The result was, one is often apt to violate a principle of geometry and travel farther in a straight line between two points than in going in a semi-circle. The men, probably the town's road commissioners, had not discovered that a bail to a bucket is no shorter when standing upright over the center than it is when lying along the edge of the bucket. These old "straight" roads have a knack of going up a long ways and then going down just as far, then when you get to the foot of one hill there is another one right in front of you.

That is the way with the turnpike between Upton and Hopkinton now. It is a part of what was originally designed to be a public way between Douglas and Boston. That between Douglas and Providence was completed. I have travelled the "old Douglas 'pike" from Douglas to Smithfield, R. I. The variations from a horizontal line are frequent and painful. The Douglas and Boston 'pike was in process of construction when the railroad from Providence to Worcester was built. The railroads stopped the turnpike business all over the country.

The man who built the Johnson house showed good sense in putting his house where the road goes around a hill instead of over it. Between the house and pond there is first, the open field and then the pine grove which reaches to the shore.

Calling one day at the house, I was given many facts relative to the house and family which seem of interest to all lovers of local history.

The house now measures thirty-eight feet front by twenty-eight feet in depth, with an ell at the rear. The front is very low, seven feet high. The entrance is at the middle of the front side. A very tall man like the Deacon,—somehow such houses always produce tall men,—must stoop to enter. The roof rises to a section which is more gradual in its ascent to the ridge pole, so that the middle part of the house is almost a two story one. From a distance, except for its being so hidden by the two trees, there would seem to be more roof than house. Originally the house was smaller, about one-third of its western end having been added by a later generation as the increase of children demanded. It at first consisted of two rooms only. The chimney, a huge stone one, formed a part of the west wall of the house. What is now seen of it above the roof shows the massive size of the stones. On the chimney is carved the date, 1750, with the initials "W. H." the house having been built by William Howard in that year. The beams and rafters are of hewn white oak of the old style and very large, some of them being twelve inches square. Some of the doors are of heavy boards, cleated, and hung with heavy old fashioned wrought iron hinges. The front door used to be of heavy plank, but four years ago, (1887) a modern door was put in its place. The cellar is under the original part only.

Rev. Benjamin Wood, more familiarly known as "Priest" Wood, came here and was settled as pastor over the Congregational Church in 1796. Shortly after Priest Wood came here, Tyrus Newton came from Southboro and bought this place. His daughter, Hannah, married Rufus Johnson, the father of Deacon Isaac, the present owner. Before Tyrus Newton came, the place was owned by an aunt of his.

Rufus Johnson and Hannah Newton, his wife, settled in what is now Millbury, then a part of Sutton. Subsequently, Tyrus and his wife becoming enfeebled by age, invited their daughter Hannah and her husband to come and care for them during the remainder of their lives and receive the gift of the homestead as compensation. They came May 6, 1809, bringing their three children who had been born to them in Sutton. Six other children came to bless them. Of these three are now living, Mrs. Hannah Goddard, (mother of Charles S. Goddard of the firm of Goddard, Stone & Co. of Worcester), Mrs. Sophia Ann Chamberlain, Rufus Johnson, (now in Douglas), Isaac T. Johnson and Mrs. Lydia H. Bancroft. There were in all four sons and five daughters. All the five daughters, Sarah, Eleanor, Hannah, Sophia and Lydia were married in the house.

This family history was given me by Mrs. Bancroft, who, with her sisters, Mrs. Chamberlain and Mrs. Goddard, live in close proximity to their old home.

A very old lady who used to visit in the Johnson family, used to say in the presence of Lydia, (Mrs. Bancroft), when she was a small girl that she, the old lady, saw those two elm trees set out when they were saplings, she being then quite young. Estimating at least sixty-five years for each one from girlhood to the idea of old age, which is very advanced, it would make the trees not less than one hundred and thirty-three years old, allowing them to be only three years old when set out. More than likely the trees are as old as the house, one hundred and forty-one years. The larger one measures, at one foot from the ground, twenty feet, six inches in circumference; at six feet, twelve feet, six inches. Its mate is nearly as large. In the trunk are buried many hitching irons driven there long ago, others being driven in as the bark covered them over. The place always attracts attention from passers-by.

AARON F. GREENE.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

It has become a fad with wealthy people to engage a cast of elevated actors and have an out-door performance of "As You Like It," on the grounds of their summer residences. No less than six similar productions have been given since July 1.

Maude Banks is collaborating with Nym Crinkle the New York critic, in writing a play which Miss Banks will appear in next season.

George Frothingham visited his cottage, named "Oar and Line," in Bridgton, Me., last week, only to find that thieves were ahead of him, and had gotten away with everything of value it contained.

J. K. Emmet Jr., is going to imitate Henry Chanfrau and star in a repertoire of his father's plays.

Isabelle Urquhart and Sylvia Gerrish have taken a beautifully furnished house in London, and write to friends on this side that they may remain there permanently. Their establishment is a great headquarters for Americans abroad.

Evangeline is a tremendous success in Australia. The natives never saw anything like it before.

There is talk of having Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show in Chicago during the World's Fair.

The actors have a new association. A number of them are said to have met recently in a New York hotel and to have organized themselves into the "Ancient Order of Divorced and Discarded Husbands." At present there is a great deal of mystery connected with the society, but its objects and purposes are told by the name. It is the intention to have all the unsuccessful married men in the profession banded together for offensive and defensive purposes. No single men will be allowed to join, and those actors who belong to the order and break the rules by recognizing wives who have dropped them from the cast, will be instantly expelled. The main design of the scheme is humorous and is probably based on the old idea of the "Alimony Club," which created no end of fun in its time.

Here is a little story that is just beginning to go the rounds. A pretty tough song-and-dance man was living at a dime museum boarding-house in Boston recently, when one day a particular durable turkey was served at dinner. The song-and-dance man was cutting away at his drumstick without making any visible impression upon it and was muttering a lot of incoherent comments upon the quality of the bird, when his eye chanced to light upon a bottle of horse-radish standing on the other end of the table. Turning to the land-lady's daughter, he exclaimed, in saturnine tones, "Hey, Kittie, send up de linament, dis eagle's got the rheumatism."

Fred—Why, Charlie, I thought you were getting on so well with rich Miss DeHoofe! She's cut you dead.

Charlie—Yaas; she told me at Christmas I might send her enough candy to fill her slipper; I sent her four pounds, and she's never spoken to me since.—Funny Folks.

Books and Bookmen.

Thoreau's Pencil.

Not one of his using but one of his making. The sword of Washington, and the staff of Franklin inspired most eloquent words in the halls of Congress. The pen with which Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation is a precious souvenir, and so on. Scores of noted men and objects with which they were associated might be named, and when a friend intimidated that he possessed two lead pencils made by Thoreau, the poet naturalist, I was at once moved, Yankee like, to suggest a dicker that I might possess one of these precious objects, for surely no man would be miserly enough to insist on keeping two such rare relics. "I will give you a piece of the Charter Oak for one of them," is the proposition made and accepted and from Indiana, the curiosity comes, for strange to say these articles, made in Concord had been carried to the prairies of the West. "Pack it most securely in sending it, so that no harm may come to it" is my direction to the owner. He heeds me well. He fully appreciated the need of care and arose equal to the occasion for, by post, the pencil comes like the lead in a pencil itself. He had bored a hole in a pine stick, pushed the object in and it was perfectly safe. Thoreau's father had made pencils; but the American article was not equal to the foreign. Henry D. Thoreau, Harvard bred, had said that as good a pencil could be made here as elsewhere. He applied himself and demonstrated the truth of his statement. But when he had succeeded, he had no further interest. He would never make another, "Why should I? I would not do again what I have done once." The casual observer might say of Thoreau's pencil in effect what Jim Smiley's "feller" said out in Calaveras County, "Well I don't see no pint's about that pencil that's any better'n any other pencil." Comparisons are not instituted. Very likely, this small, black, round compound of cedar and plumbago, judged by the side of an Eagle or Dixon would fare badly. The best Dixon in the country is only one of millions. My Thoreau pencil is one of, possibly, a half dozen. Save the renewing of the paint upon it and possibly a little warping, it is as it left the maker's hand. Unused and never to be used, it remains a reminder of the man who gave a new gloss to out-of-door life, who imparted a charm to Walden Pond and to rural Concord that even Hawthorne and Emerson had failed to create. The history of the pencil is authentic. It comes to me, third handed from him who made it. With it in one's pocket, "Cape Cod" should be more instructive than ever. "A week on the Concord and Merrimack" would not be long enough. "Excursions" would be more enjoyable than ever. "Maine Woods" would reveal more of nature than we had ever dreamed of before. "Walden" would become clear as crystal, while "A Yankee in Canada" could not help thinking more often and more frequently of peaceful Concord and her thousand memories.

The Century for August. Contents: Portraits of the Emperor and Empress of Germany, frontispieces; the German Emperor, pictures by W. Taber, H. D. Nichols, O. H. Bacher, Harry Fenn, after photographs by Frith & Co., Sophus Williams, and the Photographic Company of Berlin. Poultney Bigelow; Thou Reignest Still, Louise Chandler Moulton; Thumb-Nail Sketches, Moglashen, pictures by the author, George Wharton Edwards; A Common Story, Wolcott Balestier; Two Kings, William H. Hayne; On the Study of Tennyson, Henry van Dyke; The Squirrel Inn, IV., pictures by A. B. Frost, Frank R. Stockton; The Press as a News Gatherer, by the Manager of the Associated Press, William Henry Smith; The Eleventh-Hour Laborer, L. Gray Noble; Life on the South Shoal Lightship, pictures by W. Taber, Gustav Kobbé; Play in Provence, The Grand Arrival of the Bulls, pictures by the author, Joseph Pennell; Alone We Come into the World, Stuart Sterne; The Little Renault, pictures by Kenyon Cox, Mary Hartwell Catherwood; On Elkhorn, Robert Burns Wilson; Our Summer Migration, a Social Study, Edward Hungerford; Le Crépuscule, from a painting by Alexander Harrison; Cape Horn and Co-operative Mining in '49, pictures by M. Burns, E. R. Butler, W. Taber, H. Fenn, W. L. Dodge, Willard B. Farwell; Gray Rocks and Grayer Sea, Charles G. D. Roberts; The White Crown, Herbert D. Ward; The Faith Doctor, VII., Edward Eggleston; The Clown and the Missionary, Viola Roseboro'. Topics of the Time: The Argentine Cheap Money Paradise, The Lottery's Last Ditch, "Orthodoxy and Liberty." Open Letters: "Valor and Skill in the Civil War," J. T. Derry T. A. Dodge; "Does Vivisection Help?" E. Berdoe, M. D.; Alexander Harrison, with full page picture, William A. Coffin; The Treatment of Inebriates, L. Edwin Dudley; "The Confederate Diplomats;" The Steamboat "Ariel." Bric-à-Brac: Reflections, J. A. Macon; Cour d'Amour—Cupid, J., C. F. Coburn; Two Seasons. E. W. McGlassom; The Thoughtless Thinker, J. K. Bangs; Patience Ceased to be a Virtue, Edith M. Thomas; An Indian Uprising, drawn by P. Newell; To an English Sparrow, G. Horton; From the Women's Quarters; Sweet Mistress Nance, W. P. Carter; Positively Pretty, E. B. Ripley.

Even the heartiest of eaters could not be expected to make way with all there is on a well filled table, and no more can the most omnivorous of readers do justice to the contents of all the monthly magazine visitors. He must sample and select for himself. One reader's favorites will not be those of another's necessarily. That person who is pleased to keep up with contemporary history will read first "The German Emperor." With the illustrations, the article is very instructive. The lover of quaint humor, will delight in "Thumb Nail Sketches," a very pleasant bit of Scottish life. The Student will feast "On the Study of Tennyson." "The Press as a News Gatherer" explains to the public the intricate system necessary to supply the world with its daily literary food. "Life on the South Shoal Lightship" describes the means taken to protect navigation along the coast of Nantucket. "Play in Provence" takes us to the south of France and charms us with pictures of living in that smiling region. California is again remembered in "Cape Horn and Co-operative Mining in '49." The theme seems to be a long one yet it never fails in interest. "The Clown and the Missionary" is good enough to be true.

Popular subjects are considered in "The Argentine Cheap Money Paradise," and its reading is commended to the Farmer reformer who just at present is following "Sockless Jerry Simpson." "The Lottery's Last Ditch" is a good statement of affairs in Louisiana. In the open letter department there is a debate between a Northern and a Southern officer as to the relative forces in the Rebellion. After all, such discussions never settle any thing. All the letters are timely. Bric-à-brac is the part of the magazine to be read when only a few minutes can be spared.

The Cottage Hearth, from the Cottage Hearth Company, Boston, Mass.

An instructive article on "The Alaskan Indians" opens the book. There is an illustration and descriptive article on Mrs. John A. Logan. The stories are good, and all the departments are fully up to their usual standard.

Good Housekeeping, published by Clark Bryan & Co., Springfield, Mass.

Miss Parloa's paper deals with things in season. "Out Door Entertainments" is a good article, and one that will be welcomed by many. We think "Yankee Gumption" is most too economical in its closeness. The servant problem deals with the mistress in this number. The sick room and the spare room, and then back to the kitchen for jelly making. Then the stories, we believe they should always end to the satisfaction of the reader, but "Canned Housekeeping" does not end well. An article on home entertainments and numberless recipes and bits of information fill the magazine so full that we wonder every body does not go at once and subscribe. Its price is only $2.40 per year.

A Little Rebel, Rand, McNally & Co., Chicago.

We expect a novel from the pen of "The Duchess" to be light and "The Little Rebel" is no exception. A young girl is left without friends. Her Aunt and Guardian, the latter a student, and the former rather stiff and prim in all matters of decorum, have more than they can look after when she rebels as she does often. She finally leaves her Aunt and appears in the Professor's room declaring that she has come to stay. Toward the end of the book his brother dies and to him falls the estate and title. Then he may fall in love with his ward and solve the questions easily as to who shall take care of her and her money. A book to while away a Summer hour.

In France, says Harper's Bazar, a fondness for cats is evidently not confined to old maids. Paul de Koch, Théophile Gautier, and François Coppée are among some of the celebrated authors who cherish pet cats, while Taine, the critic has composed a sonnet in honor of the beautiful Angora puss who is Renan's feline favorite.

Harriet Hosmer, who is about to go abroad again for three or four months, is as bright and energetic as though forty years' constant work at her art did not lie behind her. She has a deep interest in woman's intellectual work, and is an honorary member of Sorosis.

A monument to the memory of Elizabeth Barrett Browning is to be erected at Ledbury, England, the town where she spent much of her childhood life. The memorial will probably take the shape of a clock tower in brick and stone. In a niche below the clock will stand a bronze bust of the poetess. A quotation from "Aurora Leigh" and some other suitable inscription will be placed upon the monument. It will stand in the market place.

A magazine that has a right to exist and a claim to be read in this, our land of reputed liberty, a publication that, in every page, is what its name implies, all this is the New England Magazine. The August number is unusually New English, for if any thing in it, in fact or fancy, is located out of our boundaries, it has a flavor of New England principles as in the excellent article by W. D. McCracken on "The Rise of the Swiss Confederation." If not in New England nor America, the Swiss are permeated by the spirit that has made our part of America synonymous with truth and liberty, the world over.

This August magazine is timeliness itself, for when so many people are looking towards Vermont in her centennial year, here is a comprehensive and instructive article on the state. Then, too, in the month of the dedication of the Bennington monument we should expect a description of the battle and we have it, excellently well done. In the same connection is a fine story of Burgoyne's march and final overthrow. The Literature of the White Mountains is in place, where so many, not all New Englanders, are seeking health and recreation in America's Switzerland. Hannibal Hamlin comes in for a brief though entertaining account. The stories, too, savor of New England. "Commonplace Carrie" is well enough drawn to end differently. Let us hope, that there will be a sequel in which situations will be reversed.

John Prescott Guild has left upon the desk of LIGHT a small pamphlet containing an address prepared by him and given on Memorial Day. Perhaps we do not read aright, but it does seem as though the merits of the book would be enhanced if all flings at religion and preachers had been omitted. Certainly for such audiences as gather to hear words about the war and the nation, there should not be sentiments that would grate on popular feelings. Comrade Guild expresses tersely and eloquently, his thoughts concerning slavery, public schools, the saloon and other issues of the day and in all these we are with him heart and hand, but we can see no good in fighting what many believe to be their most precious heritage, viz, religion. The pamphlet is nicely printed at Tyngsboro in 1890, though as the author has it, the year is A. D. 1175, i. e., the year of American Independence. Suppose all nations should adopt such a standard, history and biography would be in an indistinguishable tangle.

Outing for August, Outing Publishing Co., New York and London.

This number makes very entertaining Summer reading. The contents are as follows: Big Game in Colorado, Ernest Ingersoll; Canoeing on the Miramichi, Part 1, Rev. Wm. C. Gaynor; Four Days' Swordfishing, John Z. Rogers; Down Hill with a Star, Dr. Alfred C. Stokes; Running High Jumping, Part 1, Malcolm W. Ford; A Day with the Woodcock, E. W. Sandys; Yacht Clubs of the East, Capt. A. J. Kenealy; The Sylvan Sanctuary, a poem by Fred. Le Roy Sargent; Photographing in the White Mountains, Ellerslie Wallace; The Pool, a poem by Ella Higgenson; A Beggar on Horseback, "Gip Sey;" The Mystery of University Oval, Howard Keeler; Grouse Shooting in Ireland, Capt. T. S. Blackwell; The Theory and Introduction of Curve Pitching, O. P. Caylor; The Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, Part 111, Capt.

Daniel Morgan Taylor, U. S. A.; Polo, Part 11, Lawrence Timpson; Camping Out, a poem by Mary A. Mason; Camping in the Woods, Helen S. Clark; Harry's Career at Yale, continued, John Seymour Wood; A Chapter in Lacrosse, Part 11, Lionel Moses, Jr.; Scientific Tennis Strokes, Part 111, Lobbing and Smashing, J. Parmly Paret; Outing Monthly Record.

Vicks Magazine for August.

Sent out from Rochester, N. Y., this little visitor is very valuable in many ways. Its reading matter is first-class and the suggestions as to flowers and kindred matter are of great aid to those who wish to make home happy.

A Bit of Heavenly Blue.

When clouds o'erhang your pathway, friend,
And many are your cares,
And, with discouraged heart, you find
No answer to your prayers,
Remember there are always flowers,
Somewhere, of lovely hue,
And somewhere, shining in the sky,
A bit of heavenly blue.

Our world would be a dreary place
If this, friend, were not so,
And even Hope would droop her wings
Beneath a weight of woe;
But, thank God, there are always flowers,
Somewhere, of lovely hue,
And, somewhere, shining in the sky,
A bit of heavenly blue.

—Vick's Magazine for August.

ABOUT FOLKS.

Mrs. J. S. Wetherby has been visiting in Turner's Falls, called there by a serious accident to her father.

Miss Mary L. Putnam of Leicester, and Mrs. F. L. R. Coes started Saturday for Centre Harbor, N. H., to join the family of their brother, Samuel H. Putnam, of the firm of Putnam, Davis & Co.

Misses Katie McLaughlin, Julia Riley, Mary Sullivan and Nellie Dower leave Tuesday for a two-weeks' vacation at Camden, Me.

Patrick N. Sullivan of Suffolk Street sailed from New York Wednesday on the City of New York, in company with Patrolman Eneas Lombard, for a visit to relatives and friends in Ireland.

Mrs. W. Ansel Washburn and Miss Edith Washburn will spend the month of August in Falmouth.

Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Conaty and M. J. Guerin have been in Washington this week, delegates to the C. T. A. U. of America.

Hon J. H. Walker, W. M. Spaulding and wife were at Saratoga last week.

Dr. J. T. Duggan returned last week from a trip to Saratoga and northern New York, and started again early this week to finish his vacation. He arrives this evening.

Miss C. E. Kemp and Miss Idelle Edwards have recently been to Saratoga.

Miss Gertrude L. March, organist at Grace Church, left Tuesday for a two-weeks' vacation, going to Chelsea, Mass.

Nova Scotia is more populous by the two months presence of John C. Beyer.

Misses Katie A. Collins and Ella E. Roche are spending their vacation at Providence, the guest of Mrs. C. H. Graton.

Miss Mary Jillson, a High School teacher, has been away a week in Lexington.

Mr. Ben T. Hammond sailed for Liverpool on the White Star steamer Britanic last Wednesday. Just for a brief visit.

Mr. Thomas F. Kernan has accepted a position in the composing room of LIGHT. He is a brother of Mr. R. F. Kernan, foreman in the same office.

Mr. Charles E. Miller, salesman in the dry goods house of Edward L. Smith & Co., was married Thursday in Ogdensburg, N. Y., to Miss Sadie E. McLean, a well known young lady of that city. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will probably make Worcester their future home.

Mr. W. L. Noble, salesman with Edward L. Smith and Co., and Mr. A. N. Slater of Springfield, left Monday morning for Moosehead Lake, intending to spend a week in hunting and camping out.

Rev. Fr. J. F. X. Teehan, of St. Paul's Catholic Church, is paying a brief visit to his parents, in Holyoke.

F. L. Hutchins attended the second annual convention of Volapukans at Chautauqua Aug 5th and 6th.

Mrs. A. H. Burton and Mrs. Edward T. Smith left Tuesday for a month's trip to Montreal and Quebec.

Mrs. W. H. Seaver and daughter Linda are at Falmouth Heights. They occupy a cottage in company with the family of L. A. Hastings of this city.

Mrs. Mary A. Lathe is at Strawberry Hill, Hotel Bethlehem, N. H.

H. S. Haskell Esq., is at Monhegan Island, Me.

Special Deputy Hart and family are at the Pickwick House, Falmouth Heights.

Miss Minnie Adams and Miss Cora Durgin have gone to Pawtuxet, R. I., from which place they will go on a yachting party with Miss Alice H. Armington.

Miss Marion J. Blood, assistant secretary of the young Womens's Christian association, returned from her vacation Monday.

Many a closet shelf is burdened with unframed engravings and etchings, the gifts of friends whose thoughtfulness or poverty left the framing to be done by the recipient. You may grumble at the expense thus involved, but you have much to be thankful for in being permitted to use your own judgement in the selection of a frame. The Davis Art Co., 18 Pearl street are offering a reduction on mouldings the present month. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Otto Burton, the elevator boy of the Burnside Building, spent this week at Oakdale. Next week he will visit Providence and Boston.

Sea or Desert.

A Legend of the Great Colorado Desert.

Some twenty-three years ago Dr. Wozencraft conceived the idea of diverting the waters of the Colorado river from their course and filling up the great desert of Southern California, converting the basin into a great inland sea. General Stoneman was then in command at Drum Barracks, Wilmington, and as there were no Indian wars out in Arizona he had some spare time on his hands. In these leisure hours he figured out the volume in the river and the evaporation that would take place over such an area as that of the great desert, coming to the conclusion that Dr. Wozencraft's great scheme was not feasible for the reasons that the waters would evaporate as fast as they ran in. The present flow of the Colorado or of the Gulf tides into the desert, and the accumulation of the waters in the desert appear to abrogate in favor of the civilian as against the military man in this matter.

There never has been any question in the mind of any intelligent person who has studied the desert with its depression of 300 feet below the level of the sea and the many marks of ancient sea line around the rim that this basin was at one time an arm of the sea. The only question has been how long a period has elapsed since the formation of the embankment by the debris carried down by the river, cutting off the supply of water from the desert basin and changed its character. In those days persons who crossed the basins averred that the hull of an old ship was still plainly discernable at a certain point in the desert, and from this it was argued that not many centuries could have passed since the desert, had been a sea. As late as ten years ago this mythical ship was heard of, but since the desert has come to be so much less of a terra incognita one hears no more of the stranded hull.

But there are other ships often seen to this day at many points in the Colorado desert. The best point to get a sight of these is from the northeastern corner of the desert. Stationed there under certain peculiar atmospheric influences, and with the sun in the proper direction, one may see not only a single ship, but at times a small fleet in full sail scudding before the breeze away to the southwest. About sunrise is the best time to see this. The desert lies below you spread out like a vast sea; its waves seem to pulsate, and on its bosom float these fleets of the desert. Hull, masts, sails, and cordage are all there, and briskly they seem to sail. The spectacle is the finest case of mirage ever witnessed by human eyes.

At the time Dr. Wozencraft made public his scheme there was as much talk about the desert as there is now under the impetus of the floods that seem to be once more taking possession of the basin. At the time a miner who had been in the habit of visiting the mountains near there for many years told the writer a curious Indian legend of the desert, which may not be without interest. He said he was told by an old Indian who claimed when he saw him on his first visit to the desert fifty years ago, to be 125 years old. He described this old inhabitant of the hills by the edge of the desert as having hair a foot long and as white as snow. He was like a mummy so parched and thin he was. This Indian said he came of a family noted in the tribe for longevity, and that from father to sire the legend had been handed down for 500 years. It long antedated the Spanish occupation of the country. This is the way it was told:

Ages ago the desert was a sea. The waters of the Colorado emptied into it far north of where they now reach the Gulf. It was a wide and placid sea rarely vexed by storms, as few heavy winds came from the northeast or west owing to the mountains that hemmed it around. From the south up the gulf sometimes came a storm driving a great tide before it; and then the sea was dangerous to navigate. But this was rare, and as it came only in the rainy season on a south wind precautions were easily taken.

The north and east shores of the sea were peopled by a tribe of Indians noted for their high civilization, thrift and prosperity; but they were very exclusive, having very little intercourse with other people. So fertile were the shores of the sea that everything desirable grew with almost no cultivation, and the inhabitants had no need of anything from the outside world. The mountains were very rich in minerals, gold and silver abounding. These metals and the fruits of the grounds constantly tempted the surrounding tribes to make war on the inhabitants, and to repel these invasions the arts of war were carefully cultivated, and few battles were fought in which this tribe was not victorious. The mountains between this sea and where San Diego now is was peopled by a fierce mountain tribe, subsisting by hunting and fishing. Having little of the fertile lands of those who lived on the other side of the lake, they often made war to obtain them. In one of these two young men were taken captive and carried across the lake, where they were held in bondage. Two dusky maidens of the tribe conceived pity and then love for the bondsmen, and like Medea and Jason, the lovers planned for an escape. In a secluded spot amid a dense wood a boat was secretly constructed, and on a given night the two captives and their loving liberators set sail and successfully reached their homes in the mountains west of the sea, eluding all pursuit across the waters that separated the two tribes. Here the escaped men told marvelous stories of the wealth of their captors. The temple of the god of the tribe was almost a mass of pure gold and silver. The altar was one mass of fine gold. The idol was a solid mass of gold. The temple was piled with gold and silver. The homes of the tribe were adorned with gold, and all the houses were full of the glittering metal.

These tales fired the spirits of the western tribe to sack the temple of this hostile god, carry the image captive, and make all this wealth their own. Then they might enslave the other tribe, compel the captives to do all the work, and they might live on the fat of the conquered land, and enjoy their dolce far niente without cessation. To this end a fleet was built and launched on the western shore of the inland sea. It sailed the waters blue and in due time arrived at the other side. A fierce battle was waged, first on sea and afterward ashore. The western tribe was victorious all along the line. The very temple was sacked and stripped of its decorations and treasures. The god was taken captive to the ships of the enemy, and then the houses were looted. The defeated tribe knew too well what all this meant. If their god was carried captive across the sea and set up bound in fetters at the feet of the deity of the other tribe their hope was gone forever. There would then be nothing to prevent the enemy from returning and making slaves of every man, woman, and child in the tribe. Their enemy would come and dwell forever in their city. They would plant and sow, harvest and garner under the lash of taskmasters who would enjoy all the fruit of their labors.

It was almost sunset of a summer evening when the victorious fleet set sail to cross to the western shore. The surface of the waters lay placid beneath the clear blue sky. The sun was sinking behind the far mountain tops into the ocean beyond. Pale opalescent lights were blending softly in the peaceful sky, and the mountains, the woods and orchards were mirrored in perfect outline beneath the crystal waves. The high priest of the captive tribe, followed by a long line of inferior hierarchy, marched mournfully to the shore, chanting a doleful litany to their god. All the people old, and young, the tribe from the oldest person to the babe an hour old, were assembled there weeping around that placid sea, under that clear and peaceful sky in which stars were faintly beginning to burn. The fleet was slowly heading to the west. The aged priest lifted his suppliant hands and and tearful eyes to heaven and begged for any interposition that might display the supreme power of their god and save his children from slavery forever. Suddenly the winds began to sigh in the trees; the bosom of the sea began to heave; the face of nature became black as eternal night; the tempest gathered strength; the winds increased in fury; the waves rose like mountains that stood around the sea. All night the storm raged, and when the sun rose it looked down on a scene of desolation. The fleet had been driven back; it lay wrecked upon a rock-bound part of the coast. The gold image of the captive god was found upon the shore near his own ruined temple. He lay on his face, his hands reaching inward, as if to lay hold on the land. At his feet lay the dead bodies of the two faithless women who had betrayed their country, as if the prostrate god in anger had spurned even their lifeless forms back into the waves. The strand was strewn with dead bodies of the foe; the dull roar of the angry waves still thundered on the rocks or swept in violence along the sand. The sea was blue again and the sun smiled. But the song of the birds was hushed in the trees; the leaves seemed sick, and the fruit was dropping overripe to the ground. The sea began slowly to recede from the shore, and never stopped until the bottom of his ancient bed was laid bare. All around was the abomination of desolation. The bed of the sea became the valley of death. Nothing ever went right with the tribe after that, but it melted away as the sea had dried up—more slowly, but quite as surely. Their god avenged himself; but they must be punished for allowing his temple to be sacked and he taken captive. They were pusillanimous and their country must be destroyed, their sea dried up, and they left to wither slowly from the face of the earth.

On certain days the ancient deity revisits the scene where once his people lived so happily and burned incense to his name. Then the days are peaceful. The lightest breezes play over the arid sands. Phantom waters fill the old basin, and a sea spreads wide and blue from shore to shore. Phantom ships with sails all set, manned by phantom sailors skim over the surface of the inland sea. The domes of glittering cities rise proudly on the shore, and thick-leaved orchards dip their branches in the peaceful waves. The ghosts of the past are there and live over their simple lives as they did of yore, in a land as rich and idle as that of the lotus eaters themselves.—California.

When Ismail Pasha, the extravagant Khedive of Egypt, reigned over that historical land, he had in his garden a large cage of African lions. One day, while he was walking in the garden, the keeper, accompanied by a little girl, entered, carrying a basket of meat for the lions. The Khedive walked toward the cage to watch the beasts eat. They were hungry and pounced upon their food with ravenous fury. Standing close by the cage, with her hands resting upon the bars, was the little child. "Why do you permit your daughter to go so near the lions?" the Khedive asked of the keeper. "Oh," replied the keeper, "they are so accustomed to her that they would not harm her." "Then open the door and put her inside," said the Khedive. The keeper, with the submissiveness of those who know their lives will pay forfeit if they disobey their ruler, made with his eyes an appeal for mercy. But, seeing none in the Khedive's face, he kissed the little one tenderly, lifted her up, opened the door, placed her inside, and, as the door swung to, he turned his face away and groaned. The little one, though she did not stir, seemed not afraid. The lions appeared surprised, and the largest and fiercest rose and walked toward her. The Khedive stood gazing at the scene calmly, with a curious smile. The lion went up to the child, smelled of her, looked at her for fully half a minute, then lay down at her feet and beat the floor with his tail. Another lion approached. The first one gave an ominous growl, and the second lion went back. The others crouched low, as if prepared to spring, but they did not. This continued for about five minutes, the big lion never taking his eyes from the girl, and ceaselessly lashing the floor. The Khedive by this was satisfied, and turned to the keeper and commanded him to thrust a live lamb into the cage through another door. The keeper quickly caught a straying lamb and obeyed. As he did so, every lion sprang upon the lamb. "Take out the child," the Khedive commanded, and scarce had the words escaped him, before the keeper, who had already run to that end of the cage, jerked open the door, snatched the little one out, and clasped her in his arms. The Khedive laughed, tossed the keeper a coin, and walked on.

Whatever is, is right.—Pope.

The Lottery Ticket.

About thirty years ago, when lotteries were in fashion in the State of New Hampshire, one was granted to certain individuals in the town of Portsmouth, for some specific object, not now recollected. The scheme was published in such an imposing form, that the tickets met with a rapid sale among the good honest farmers of the state, who deemed it a fine chance to make a fortune, at the risk only of a five dollar bill. Although lotteries, in their best condition, and faithful management, are but a legal and fashionable mode of gambling, and although the probable result to each individual is to draw a blank, yet the temptation has been found too great to be withstood by the steady and sober minded yeomanry of the country, who would shrink at once from the usual, more direct and palpable games of chance. The pernicious and immoral tendency of them has caused their prohibition by law, and none have been granted in the state, for a number of years.

But whatever may be the tendency of lotteries, and however fairly they may have been conducted by managers and agents, it is well known that some instances have occurred among the ticket holders, successful or otherwise, to cheat and defraud each other. Viewing them as mere gambling transactions, men have descended to acts of meanness and dishonesty that they would have scorned to commit in other and ordinary transactions of life. A remarkable instance of the kind occurred in the progress of the lottery we have mentioned.

Three farmers in the country, whom we shall designate by the initials of A. B. & C. severally bought lottery tickets, and waited with a good deal of anxiety for the day of drawing, when the blind god was to dispense his favors with a liberal hand. When the drawing commenced, Mr. A. and B. who lived farther in the country than Mr. C., went in company together to Portsmouth, to gain some intelligence of the result. They soon found, they had both, in due form, drawn nothing more or less than a—blank! They stared at each other—and "looked unutterable things" at this sudden, and to them, unexpected blight to their high hopes of wealth; but they looked still more blank, when they saw fortune's wheel turn up a prize of five hundred dollars for their neighbor C. Their eyes had become satisfied with seeing—they started home, with heavier hearts and lighter purses than when they came.

As they travelled along, they could not forget the five hundred dollar prize drawn by their neighbor C., and, at last, concluded, that as it was all a gambling business, it would be well enough to devise some plan to divert the money from his pocket to their own. They soon hit upon one, and it operated to a charm. What this plan was, the sequel will sufficiently show.

As they approached within half a dozen miles of Mr. C.'s house, Mr. A. left the main road, took a circuitous route, and came into the same road again, four or five miles beyond it. In the meantime, Mr. B. continued on, in the direct road, and as he passed Mr. C. in the course of their conversation together, he informed him that he had been to Portsmouth; the lottery had been drawn, and their tickets had, both of them, come out blanks. This information was given in such a manner as to leave no doubt in the mind of Mr. C. that he had won nothing, but had positively lost the price of his ticket. Mr. B., however, passed on, and left him to his own reflections.

While he was pondering over in his mind his actual lost and disappointed expectation, Mr. A. having faced about, was leisurely riding along in the direct road by his house, toward Portsmouth. Happening to be out at the door, he saw Mr. A. approach, and supposing he was on his way to learn something of the lottery, concluded he might manage to sell him his blank drawn ticket, and shave him out of the five he had lost. They met, and although the one was determined to sell, and the other to buy, yet they broached the subject with much caution, and with the usual Yankee tact at driving a good bargain, as will be seen by the following dialogue between them.

Mr. C. Good morning Mr. A. For Portsmouth, I suppose, to see about the lottery drawing.

Mr. A. I am.

Mr. C. You and I both have tickets, but I declare I have got almost sick of mine.

Mr. A. Do you wish to sell it, Sir?

Mr. C. Not exactly, I wish I had never bought it. I have a good mind to get rid of it.

Mr. A. But you have heard from Portsmouth, or you would not want to sell your ticket while the lottery is drawing, or perhaps, already drawn.

Mr. C. O, no I have not heard a word, but ill luck is usually my luck; and I think upon the whole, it would be better to sell, and get rid of all anxiety about it.

Mr. A. I can hardly believe, but that you have received some information respecting the drawing of your ticket; however, if you will say positively, and upon honor, that you have received none, I will take it at the original price.

This assurance was readily and positively given; the bargain was closed, and Mr. A. passed on. Mr. C. chuckled a little among his friends at his own good management, in shuffling off his blank-drawn ticket to Mr. A. Meanwhile Mr. A. went to Portsmouth, received the five hundred dollar prize, and he and Mr. B. shared the spoils between them. It was, however, too good a joke to keep. Mr. A. and B. began, in their turn, to boast of their prowess and adroit management in shaving neighbor C. out of his prize ticket. This soon reached the ears of Mr. C. and he had to twist round his mouth to laugh out of the other corner, with the best grace he could. He found, to his chagrin and mortification, that the boot was on the other leg, and he had lent a willing hand to help put it on. He raved—threatened a lawsuit; but being reminded of his own solemn falsehood in the matter, he concluded the least said about it the better. He pocketed the insults and jeers of his adroit neighbors, bore the loss of his prize ticket in silence, and came to the wise conclusion, that honesty is indeed the best policy.

A. A. PARKER.

Fitzwilliam, N. H., 1847.

Public Library Additions.

Remainder of books added during May.
 I indicates that the book is in the Intermediate department and may be taken out if specially called for.

American Ancestry, vol. 6, [by T. P. Hughes] - - - - - I

Annual reports of U. S. Office of Chief of Engineers, 1875 to 1890, 52 volumes - - - - - 34068-34119

BADLAM, Wonders of Alaska, 2nd ed. rev. - - - - - 34066

BEALE, C. E. Gately's World's Progress - - - - - I

BROOKS, W. K. The Oyster; popular summary of a scientific study - - - - - 34048

BROTHERHEAD, W. Forty years among the Booksellers of Philadelphia - - - - - 34049

CAYLEY, A. Collected Mathematical Papers, vols. 1-3 - - - - - I

CHESTER, W. T. Complete trotting and pacing record, suppl. for 1890 - - - - - I

COCHAYNE, O. Leechdoms, wart cunning and statecraft in early England, vols. 1-3 - - - - - I

CRAWFORD, —. Bibliotheca Lindesiana; catalogue of a coll. of Eng. ballads - - - - - I

DEMANS, R. William Tyndale; biography, new ed. rev. by R. Lovett - - - - - I

DONJOL, H. Historie de la participation de la France á l'établissement des Etats Unis d'Amérique, tome 4 - - - - - I

EMERSON, C. W. Physical Culture - - - - - 34067

FISKE, J. The American Revolution 2 vols. - - - - - 34064 5

GIDDINGS, E. J. American Christian Rulers; or Religion and Men of Government - - - - - 34050

GLANVILLE, E. The Lost Heiress - - - - - 34051

GRISWOLD, W. M. Descriptive list of novels and tales dealing with American City Life - - - - - I

HOFMEISTER, W. Germination, development, etc. of the higher cryptogamia, tr. by F. Curtey - - - - - I

HOLLAND, Society of New York, Year book 1888-89 - - - - - I

JELF, W. E. Grammar of the Greek Language, 5th ed. with add. and corr. 2 vols. - - - - - I

KAUFMANN, R. Paris of Today; tr. by O. Flinch - - - - - 34052

LAW, B. G. The two move chess problem; with diagrams - - - - - 34053

LEDUC, H. Historie des decorations en France - - - - - I

L'Exposition des Beaux Arts; Salon de 1880-82, compr. planches en photogravure par Gonfil et Cie - - - - - I

MARSH, F. T. Annals of the Hospital of S. Wulstan, etc. - - - - - I

MERIMEE, P. Diane; Chronicle of the Reign of Charles IX; tr. by G. Saintsbury - - - - - I

MONOD, E. L'Exposition Universelle de 1889, tome 2 - - - - - I

NEVILL, R. Old Cottage and Domestic Architecture in south west Surrey, 2nd ed. - - - - - I

OVINGTON, I. H. Helps for Home Nursing - - - - - 34054

PUBLIC Schools Year Book (2nd Year) 1890-91 - - - - - I

RILEY, J. W. Sketches in Prose; and occasional verses - - - - - 34063

RONTGEN, R. Principles of Thermodynamics; tr. rev. and enlarg. by A. J. Du Bois - - - - - 34061

SARGENT, C. S. The sylvia of North America; illust. by C. E. Faxon, vol. 2. - - - - - I

SCHAFF, P. Select Library of the Nicene and Post-Nicene Fathers of the Christian Church, ser. 1, vol. 1-14 - - - - - I

SCHAFF, P. AND WACE, H. Select Library of the Nicene and Post Nicene Fathers of the Christian Church, ser. 2, vols. 1-2 - - - - - I

SHIELDS, G. O. (ps. Coquina) American Book of the Dog - - - - - I

SMILES, S. A Publisher and his friends; memoir, etc. by John Murray, 1768-1843, 2 vols. - - - - - 34055-6

STEPHEN, L. and LEE, S. Dictionary of National Biography, vol. 26 - - - - - I

STEVENSON, R. L. Father Damian; letter to Dr. Hyde of Honolulu - - - - - 34062

TAYLOR, T. The Eleusinian and Bacchic Mysteries; ed. by A. Wilder, 4th ed. - - - - - I

THORPE, T. E. Dictionary of applied Chemistry, vol. 2 - - - - - I

TOWNSEND, G. A. (ps. Gath) The Entailed Hat; or Patty Cannon's Times - - - - - 34057

VAN DYKE, T. S. Millionaires of a Day; the Southern California Boom - - - - - 34059

VIRGILIUS MARO, P. Opera; with introd. and Eng. notes by A. Sidgwick, 2 vols. - - - - - 34059 60

Worcester County Press.

"It is precisely at the time when the most vehement struggles for the success of a party have been crowned by victory that danger is to be apprehended. We become indifferent to our political duties and imagine no further effort necessary. The opposition work actively and astonish us by a victory due to our carelessness."—Spencer Sun.

"A license law enforced is probably not what many expect when they vote for license, but the terms on which the licenses are granted, are printed plainly on the license issued by the city clerk and the contract should be lived up to by the licensed dealers. With the extra police force the illegal "bottle business" can be largely curtailed, and it will not be difficult to discover where the liquor comes from that is sold in the so called "kitchen dives."—Fitchburg Sentinel.

"It appears, now that the truth is out, it was a woman that was at the bottom of Secretary Blaine's serious illness. She is a descendant of Hamm."—Webster Times.

"The Boston Record hints that Editor Crispy of the Worcester Telegram, contributes to newspaperial discordance by writing Sunday articles in accordance with a biblical concordance."—Clinton Courant.

"The question is, then, What is to become of Nevada? Will it become a political pocket borough, sold to the party that has the largest barrel? There are great possibilities for evil in the present condition, for the state is steadily losing ground. Nearly 16,000 of the whole population was lost in the last decade of its existence."—Southbridge Press.

"The Houghton & Coolidge boot factory of Ashland will go where the best inducements are offered, which at present seems to be Milford or Marlboro, and then by and by we presume, it will have still better offers and go somewhere else. That is the result naturally to follow buying business into a town. It is the modern way of booming a town or city nevertheless, but many believe the time will come and that it is not a great way off, when business firms will be obliged to stand on their merits."—Westboro Chronotype.

"A list of 100 representative cities issued by the census department gives several cities with a population less than Fitchburg, but Fitchburg appears not on the list. Neither does Nashua and three or four other places. Where, oh where are they? Places having only 18,000 inhabitants are named."—Town Talk.

The Census Department hasn't heard of Fitchburg.

ABOUT FOLKS.

Miss Crompton is visiting Mrs. Bergen of New York at Newport this week.

Mrs. Charles G. Washburn and her son Reginald left Princeton Monday for Narragansett Pier.

Mrs. Edwin Brown and family are at Seal Harbor, Mt. Desert, Maine.

Mrs. H. W. Boyden and daughter are at the Bradford Springs Hotel, East Washington, N. H., for two weeks.

Albert S. Brown and wife are at Jackson, N. H.

The family of John E. Day, Esq., will sojourn at Harvard during the rest of this month

Mr. C. H. Holden is spending the present week in Hopkinton.

Harry C. Boyden, W. H. S. '91, is off for New Haven, Conn., where he will have as good a time with relatives as that land of Steady Habits will admit.

Wm. B. Hoyt and sister Miss Eugenie E. are enjoying ocean breezes at Belfast, Me.

R. N. Daniels who resigned his B. & A. conductorship to become depot master at the Union Station, will resume his old position, being succeeded by conductor Frank Davis. The changes seem agreeable to all parties, and will go into effect August 20th.

The marriage of Charles D. Wheeler and Miss Fannie L. Foster, daughter of Calvin Foster, is announced to take place September 9.

Mrs. Jennie Abbott Mattoon is at the Sunset House, North Conway, N. H.

Worcester Veterans.

Charles M. Smith.

In pursuance of our plan to portray the veterans of our city, veterans in years, and veterans in service, we present, this week the face and record of Charles Mather Smith, not so old in years as many who have been or will be described here, but one who did good service in war times and who is, consequently, a veteran volunteer.

The middle name of Mr. Smith proclaims one line of ancestry going back to those stern Puritans whose lives have excited such diverse sentiments in later generations. He was born April 19, 1842, in Hawley, Franklin County, Massachusetts, but when young his parents moved to Charlemont and later to Shelburne Falls. In the schools of these towns, Comrade Smith received his education, save some time spent at Conway Academy and one term ber of Company E, 1st Massachusetts Cavalry, and saw all the hard fighting in which that regiment participated until his imprisonment. He was at Pocatigo, S. C., Williams-town, Md., South Mountain, Antietam, Martinsburg, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Brandy Station, Rapidan Station, Aldie, Bristol Station, Gettysburg, Jones' Cross Roads and Mine Run, where he was taken prisoner in November, 1863. The battle of Aldie was a 17th of June celebration, 1863. In it, the 1st Massachusetts Cavalry did valiant work and Comrade Smith captured a member of the 3d Virginia Cavalry, thereby, he claims, settling the score in advance. First and last he had a taste of three Southern prisons, viz., Belle Isle, Pemberton, in Richmond, and Andersonville. For nearly a year he was a prisoner, succeeding, finally in escaping from the last named place. The narrative of this escape with two comrades, forms the material of a most entertaining address, "From Anderson-

CHARLES M. SMITH.

First Massachusetts Cavalry.

at Williston Seminary, East Hampton. Subsequent reading, study and reflection in home and field have richly supplemented these early advantages. His parents were William W. and Anna P. (Mather) Smith. The father, a native of Vermont, was a farmer. His mother was born in Ashfield, Massachusetts. Her father was a soldier in the war of 1812 and Selah Norton, her maternal grandfather was a Revolutionary soldier from Hartford.

Mr. Smith was an only child, but nevertheless when the signal for recruits came, he went from the farm to the camp and more than three years had elapsed ere he saw his home again. Nothing less could be expected from a boy who was born on the anniversary of Concord and Lexington. In the record that Post 10, G. A. R., is making of those belonging, there are few that excite more interest than that of C. M. Smith. He was a member of Company E, 1st Massachusetts Cavalry, and saw all the hard fighting in which that regiment participated until his imprisonment. He was at Pocatigo, S. C., Williams-town, Md., South Mountain, Antietam, Martinsburg, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Brandy Station, Rapidan Station, Aldie, Bristol Station, Gettysburg, Jones' Cross Roads and Mine Run, where he was taken prisoner in November, 1863. The battle of Aldie was a 17th of June celebration, 1863. In it, the 1st Massachusetts Cavalry did valiant work and Comrade Smith captured a member of the 3d Virginia Cavalry, thereby, he claims, settling the score in advance. First and last he had a taste of three Southern prisons, viz., Belle Isle, Pemberton, in Richmond, and Andersonville. For nearly a year he was a prisoner, succeeding, finally in escaping from the last named place. The narrative of this escape with two comrades, forms the material of a most entertaining address, "From Andersonville to Freedom," that he has given more than one hundred times through New England. After the war, he was for thirteen years a salesman for a Rochester, (New York,) Nursery Company, selling stock chiefly in New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts. Then for five years he represented D. Appleton & Co., in soliciting subscriptions for the American Cyclopædia. It was in this way that he came to Worcester. Later, he took up insurance soliciting and is now the accredited Worcester representative of the Travelers Life and Accident Company of Hartford, with office in the Burnside Building.

When twenty-four years old our comrade was married to Miss Lois S. Allis. She died in 1874, leaving one child, Lucelia, now a pupil in the High School. Mrs. Smith was a member of one of the oldest families in the good old town of Conway. Subsequently Mr. Smith was married to Miss Martha Fuller Woodward of Ashford, Conn., and they have three children. Two children by his first marriage died in infancy. It is noteworthy that Mr. Smith's six children were all girls.

Post 10 has no more loyal member than our comrade who has repeatedly served as chaplain. Any honorable thing that will advance the interests of a fellow veteran, he is ready to do. He has long been a member of Salem Street Congregational Church, and in all respects walks and acts consistently before men. The story of his escape from Confederate bondage is a thrilling recital and one that never wearies his listeners. It forms a link in the historic chain forged by the War of the Rebellion.

ABOUT FOLKS.

Councilman Geo. S. Dixon and family will spend the month of August in Enfield, Mass.

Fred H. Daniels is dangerously ill with typhoid fever. His condition excites much anxiety.

Chandler Bullock, Harvard '94 has returned from a visit to Lake Sunapee N. H.

Col. Ivers Phillips, referred to in the sketch of Marshal Washburn as one of his predecessors, lately celebrated his 86th birth-day at his home in Boulder, Colorado. The oldest man in his county he is an excellent specimen of New England's hardy products.

Among Nantucket visitors is Lindlord Charles Brown of the Bay State House.

Edward Whitney and family are at Princeton.

Cottage City reckons F. L. Durkee and family among its visitors.

D. Osborne Earle and Ernest H. Wood both Harvard boys, have been having an outing at Sunapee, N. H.

Some folks deserve long vacations because of their vigorous labor when at work. This applies to E. H. Warren, W. H. S. '91 who has gone to Block Island for a play spell.

George W. Wilder, Esq., of the office of Tracy & Catlin, Brooklyn, N. Y., is having a long vacation, dividing his time between Worcester and East Rindge N. H., where his father has a valuable estate.

Dr. A. C. Hull the dentist, left Monday for Ackworth, N. H., where he will spend his vacation. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Hull and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Rice. It is the intention of the party to ride the whole distance in a carriage, driving through Barre, Petersham and other Northern towns, Dr. Hull's office in Walker Building will be closed until his return, August 31st.

Said the flaxen-haired maiden to the dapper young man behind the counter— "Have you any nice, soft muslin, that will suit my complexion and hair?" Bleached or unbleached?"

FOR THE LAUNDRY.

BRUSSELS

SOAP.

HENRY A. BOWMAN &amp; CO.

MANUFACTURERS OF

AWNINGS,

TENTS,

FLAGS.

HORSE, WAGONS,

AND ALL KINDS OF

Canvas Covers.

Tents for Sale and To Rent. Waterproof Tents by our new process guaranteed not to leak. The above cut represents our popular lawn tent, in Stock and made to order, 418 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

GUNS!

All grades, from all the popular Manufacturers, both IMPORTED and DOMESTIC.—FISHING TACKLE—Everything an Angler wants. SPORTSMEN'S CLOTHING. Ammunition of all kinds. BLASTING

MATERIALS and a Complete Line of SPORTSMEN'S SUPPLIES. In the future as in the past my friends will receive a cordial welcome, with goods at the lowest prices, at the SPORTSMEN'S EMPORIUM.

E. S. KNOWLES, 416 MAIN STREET.

A Gratifying Endorsement.

"John, Charles, William!" cried the boy's mother, "where are those peaches I left here?"

"In our midst," returned the boys; and when the doctor called that night the mother knew that her little darlings had spoken truthfully, as well as with grammatical accuracy that is not universal.—New York Sun.

"There goes a young fellow who lives on the fat of the land, and yet doesn't do a stroke of work."

"How does he do it?"

"Well, you see his mother is the fat woman in the dime museum."

Goslin—Dolly, what's a ring worm?
Dolly—Don't know. Never studied natural history much.—Yenowine's News.

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place at an early day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of

Fine Monumental Work,

131 Central Street,

near Summer.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

W. A. ENGLAND,

DEALER IN

FINE WATCHES,

CLOCKS, JEWELRY

& OPTICAL GOODS.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

394 Main Street.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,

Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, ***

NO. 156 MAIN STREET,

H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

SUCCESS IN BUSINESS!

That young man or woman who succeeds in getting employment at reasonable compensation and can give satisfaction is said to be successful. Thousands of young people, and older ones too for that matter, are drudging along from year to year, receiving for their work a miserable pittance, when by the expenditure of a little time and money in the right direction they might rank among those known as the "lucky" ones.

TO BE SUCCESSFUL IN BUSINESS YOU MUST KNOW YOUR BUSINESS.

Of the hundreds of young people who have received their training at Becker's Business College there are but very few who do not to-day occupy responsible, paying positions. No institution can make a success of a person who is born a failure, but in every case where our pupils have natural aptness or judgement they succeed.

RECORD OF THE PAST.

Of all our graduates sent out to situations of responsibility and trust in past years not three have proved unable to succeed. If you would command success in business you must EDUCATE FOR BUSINESS, and in choosing a school in which to educate, it would hardly be reasonable to look for success if you patronize a school that is not a success; in other words:

IF YOU WISH TO BE SUCCESSFUL LEARN AT A SUCCESSFUL INSTITUTION.

The success of Becker's Business College since it was established has rivaled that of any institution in New England, and during the past year every graduate placed in position is now engaged.

EVERY YOUNG MAN AND WOMAN WHO WAS SENT

to a situation as Stenographer has given satisfaction. We could have placed twenty more young men if we had had them to place. Young men to-day cannot make a more certain investment for success than to learn Shorthand at Becker's. There are lots of young men and women who pretend to be stenographers and yet fail, but they don't come from Becker's.

WE CHALLENGE ANY ONE TO SHOW

where one of our graduates in stenography ever failed. Remember,—If you look for success go to a successful institution. A school that is in disrepute and on the decline cannot teach success.

Send to Becker's Business College, 492 Main Street, for our elegant catalogue and circular.

GEORGE W. PICKUP,

(SUCCESSOR TO SAMUEL CLARK.)

TIN PLATE, SHEET IRON and COPPER Worker,

Stove, Range and Furnace Repairer. Conductors and Ash Chutes. Refrigerators Lined and Repaired. Tin Roofing and General Jobbing. 23 years' experience in the employ of Worcester's oldest business man, Henry W. Miller. All orders promptly attended to. Shop, 16 Pleasant St., up one flight, residence, 31 Laurel St.

TRY Bronner's

ICE CREAM! Delivered to all parts of the City. Supplying Parties, Lodges, etc., a specialty. No. 131 Pleasant Street.

THE : RESERVE

The only Weekly Paper published in the interest of the

Sons and Daughters of Veterans.

$1.00 PER YEAR.

Our standing offer:

A HOUSE LOT

near a growing city, for 20 subscribers. KELLEY & FORD, Publishers, 367 Washington St., Boston, Mass. CAPT. C. F. KELLEY, Camp 97, Brookline, Mass.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, Creditors, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of ALMIRA WILSON, late of Worcester, in said county, deceased, intestate. Greeting.

Upon the Petition of Martin Wilson of said Worcester, you are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the first Tuesday of September next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased should not be granted to said petitioner, without the giving of surety or securities, on his official bond pursuant to the statute.

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester the last publication to be two days, at least, before said court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioner, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-eighth day of July in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

Commissioners Sale of Real Estate.

Will be sold at Public Auction on or near the premises on Norfolk Street, on Oak Hill, so-called, in the City of Worcester, Mass., on Monday, the Seventeenth day of August next, at Eleven o'clock in the forenoon two certain tracts or parcels of land containing twenty thousand square feet more or less, and being all of lot No. (2) excepting two feet on the Northern side thereof and all of lot No. (3) on a plan of lots recorded in the Worcester District Registry of Deeds for the County of Worcester. Book 455, Page 654, to which plan and record thereof reference is hereby made for a more particular description of the premises.

WILLIS E. SIBLEY,
HENRY M. CLEMENCE, } Commissioners.
WILLIS F. PHELPS,
WORCESTER, July 23, 1891.

LAWRENCE,

PHOTOGRAPHER.

492 Main Street.

TAKE ELEVATOR.

The Poet's Song.

Dark sea, I leap to thee,
That—tho' I know not how—
Some jewel rare may be
For me to find,
And finding, bin I
That pearl on each man's brow.

What matter if I drown
Beneath thy angry frown,
If men new joy may see
Forgetting me?

Great hills, I climb to peer
From off thy peaks, cloud high,
That by the vision clear
I sights may grasp,
And grasping, clasp
That dream in each man's eye.

What matter if I fall,
If in my dying call
That vision is my song
And men are strong?

Grim Pain, I bare my heart,
That on its quivering thread,
Tho' rough may be thy Art—
Some song may grow,
And growing, flow
That souls of men be fed.

What matter if my blood
Shall ebb before its flood
If men from out the string
New Peace may bring?
—Helen Worthington Rogers.

Peck's Art Store.

That veteran in the line of Art goods is having a grand transformation scene in his quarters at 368 Main street. In the first place the gallery in the rear of the store is being made over completely. When finished, it will be quite square with admirable lighting from above. Then the salesroom is to be worked over. To get ready for that, i. e. for painters and paperers it is desirable to lessen his stock. If not sold it must be moved. He prefers to sell and, as an inducement, goods have been marked down to so low a figure that, even in these summer days, people cannot resist the temptation to purchase. Many choice works are now offered at fully one third less than regular prices. Economical people will make some of their Christmas selections now. Art lovers cannot call too soon to inspect the treasures thus offered.

Prof. T. E. N. Eaton.

Our friend, late of the Institute, writes that his health is, already, very much improved by his removal to California. His settlement in his new home, however, was deeply saddened by the death of his mother who scarcely more than reached the land of the setting sun ere she found in it a final resting place.

THE CRITERION
Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.

231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SHREWSBURY ST.
J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

C. REBOLI,

Confectioner * and * Caterer,

6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

J. W. GREENE,
P L U M B E R.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,

Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

J. S. WESBY &amp; SONS,

BOOK * BINDING ***

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

387 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand,) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

PHOTOGRAPHER.

Children's
Portraits
A Specialty326 MAIN ST.,
Opp. Mechanics Hall.

F. S. BLANCHARD &amp; CO.,

* PRINTERS. ***

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,

DEALER IN

Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

Boston & Albany Railroad.

ONLY
First-Class Through Car Route
TO THE
WEST!

Commencing June 7, 1891,

Through Trains Leave Worcester:

- 9.50 A. M. (ex. Sunday) Day Express.
- 11.40 A. M. Daily, "Chicago Special."
- 3.25 P. M. Daily, North Shore Limited.
- 4.17 P. M. Daily, Cincinnati and St. Louis Express.
- 8.00 P. M. Daily, Pacific Express.

SPRINGFIELD LINE

FOR

HARTFORD, NEW HAVEN AND NEW YORK.

LEAVE BOSTON.	AR. NEW YORK.
10.13 A. M.	3.30 P. M.
12.12 A. M.	5.30 P. M.
5.06 P. M.*	10.00 P. M.
12.29 A. M.*	6.45 A. M.

*Run Daily.

For tickets, information, time tables, etc., apply to JAMES CUNNINGHAM, Ticket Agent, Union Station.
A. S. HANSON, Gen. Pass. Agent.

FIICHBURG RAILROAD.

Reduced Rates of Fare

For Round Trip Tickets on Account of Summer

VACATION EXCURSIONS.

On Sale June 1st to September 30th, and good October until 31st, 1891.

FROM BOSTON TO THE

Popular Resorts of New England, New York and Canada.

Including local excursions to places in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont. The only line running Quick Trains, Superb Equipment and Through Cars via

HOOSAC TUNNEL ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO TROY, ALBANY, SARATOGA AND NIAGARA FALLS, AND VIA LAKE CHAMPLAIN ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO

WEST PORT, PORT HENRY, PLATTSBURG, BRANDON, BURLINGTON, ST. ALBANS, ADIRONDACKS and MONTREAL.

Summer Excursion Book

giving information in regard to routes, rates of fare and list of Hotels and Boarding Houses, can be obtained at the Company's office, 250 Washington Street, and mailed free on application to J. R. WATSON, General Passenger Agent, Boston, Mass.

Good to Eat.

Baked Cheese.

One and one-half cups grated cheese, one-half cup fine bread crumbs, one cup milk, one egg beaten very light, a pinch—very small—cayenne pepper, and salt to taste. Put in buttered dish and bake fifteen minutes—Home Magazine.

Dutch Apple Pie.

Many people dislike apple because they say the distinctive flavor of the fruit is lost, and it just seems as if they were eating a pie-crust shell filled in with apple sauce. This is not so with the pies which the Pennsylvania Dutch make. They do not cut the apples into little pieces, only slicing them down like tomatoes, occasionally cutting the slices in half. These are laid on the bottom crust, with a little milk or water poured over them sugared down well, and sprinkled with cinnamon, and then put in the oven to bake. There is no top crust, and the pie comes out of the oven brown and delicious and rich, and with milk or cream poured over it would be a dainty dish to set before the king. SUSAN P. E. Philadelphia.—Housekeeper's Weekly.

For egg sandwiches, chop the white of hard-boiled eggs very fine. Mash the yolks and mix them with melted butter, salt and pepper. Then mix all with the chopped whites and spread it on the bread. Take a long, narrow loaf bread, shave off the crust till the loaf is shaped like a cylinder. Then slice as thin as possible from the end. Spread with the egg mixture; put two together and arrange them on a plate, one overlapping the other.

For stewed codfish, cut a small cod into three or four equal sized pieces, wash them in salt and water, and put them into a kettle with no more water than will cling to them. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter divided in halves, one of them having a scant tablespoonful of flour rubbed into it. Add salt to taste and a little white pepper (powdered) at the very last. Let it cook slowly and well covered for fifteen to twenty minutes, and serve the fish and sauce in the same dish.—Northern Advocate.

Housekeepers who live in the country oftentimes do not realize what a bonanza they have in their tomato patch. Is there nothing in the house for breakfast? Just a few steps down the garden walk and you may choose half a dozen great luscious, ripe—but not too ripe, tomatoes. They are cool and fresh, for in the country you breakfast early, and these have the dew still glistening on their ruddy skins. Cut them in thick slices—probably three to each tomato; roll in flour and fry in sweet dripping, or better still, butter, which is so cheap now that you can afford it. Just let them brown lightly on each side and lift with a pan-cake turner to a hot dish. Stir a large tablespoonful of flour into the fat in the pan and add slowly a pint of rich milk, which has been brought to the boiling point. Season with salt and pepper and pour over the tomatoes. You will not fare badly this hot weather if you have nothing else except toast and coffee.—Boston Budget.

Before we passionately desire any thing which another enjoys, we should examine into the happiness of its possessor.

Hominy Gems.

BY MRS. D. A. LINCOLN,
Author Boston Cook Book.

Mix 2 table-sp. fine, uncooked hominy, ½ tea-sp. salt, 1 table-sp. butter, and ¼ cup boiling water. Place this over the tea kettle until the hominy absorbs all the water. Pour 1 cup boiling milk on 1 scant cup fine yellow corn meal; add 2 table-sp. sugar and the hominy. Let it cool slightly, then add the yolks of 2 eggs beaten to a light froth, then the whites beaten stiff. Stir in 1 level tea-sp. Cleveland's baking powder and bake 15 min. in hot buttered gem pans, about 20 minutes. A scant cup of cold foiled hominy may be used instead of the fresh hominy. It should be sifted through a squash strainer, to free it from lumps.—(Copyright, 1891, by Cleveland Baking Powder Co.)

Use only Cleveland's baking powder, the proportions are made for that.

"Cleveland's Baking Powder; the best in quality, highest in leavening power and perfectly wholesome." A. F. Underwood, U. S. Government Chemist, 1891.

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H. Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists.

Residence, 61 West Street.

Office open during the summer.

The Readers of Light
I most cordially invite
To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything
They would expect to find

In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,

Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,

10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL,

Gold, Silver and Nickel
Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.

13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St.,
Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework,
Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

Removed to Larger Quarters.
44 Front St.
Take Elevator.

Hinman's College

A New, Separate
Shorthand and Typewriting
Department.

HINMAN'S COLLEGE OF BUSINESS and SHORTHAND

Begins its Fall Term September 1. The New Rooms now required are double the size of those vacated. Tuition for 6 months, $60. For 10 months, $78. Students in Shorthand will by the NEW RAPID SYSTEM, be qualified for business in 3 to 5 months, complete tuition, $50, and be offered positions in Worcester or elsewhere. Read the following:

REMINGTON STANDARD TYPE WRITER }
WYCKOFF, SEAMANS & BENEDICT, }
BOSTON, MASS., JULY 30, 1891.

MR. A. H. HINMAN, Worcester, Mass., Dear Sir:—

The demand for Remington Typewriter operators has become so great that we have been obliged to open in connection with our Boston office a department for securing and placing operators who use our machines. The result has been that through our Boston office alone during the past year from July to July we have placed 612 young men and women in good business positions. This does not include any placed by our thirty odd agents in New England. In no case, either from the person placed or from the employer have we received one cent for our services. So great has been the demand from business men that we have been almost constantly embarrassed in our efforts to find a sufficient number of young men and women qualified to fill positions. To be a candidate for our strictly gratuitous services to young men and women, we require that our operators shall be able to write shorthand at the rate of 90 words per minute and transcribe the matter upon the Remington Typewriter at 30 words per minute. As you in line with leading business colleges have decided to use our machines exclusively, we propose to LOOK TO YOUR COLLEGE FOR REMINGTON OPERATORS. We shall instruct our Boston, Worcester and New England Agents to do all we can in placing your graduates in business offices as you qualify them. Yours very truly,

WYCKOFF, SEAMANS & BENEDICT.

Hinman's College can qualify shorthand students for business and PLACE THEM IN POSITIONS IN HALF THE TIME AND FOR HALF THE MONEY required by the other shorthand school in Worcester, whose circulars say:—"We will in no case and under no circumstance agree to furnish a position for any pupil, we would rather not receive that pupil at all than to guarantee to furnish a position.

Grand Inaugural Opening
Monday, August 17.

MATINEE AT 2. EVENING AT 8

Admission 10, 20, and 25c.

Box Office open for the sale of reserved seats THURSDAY, AUG. 13, at 10 a. m. For opening attractions and further particulars see later announcements.

SPECIAL.

THE LADY ORCHESTRA

Under the direction of Mme. Percival, will give a

GRAND PROMENADE CONCERT

MONDAY MORNING, AUG. 17, from 10 to 12, when this beautiful house will be thrown open for the free inspection of ladies only.

MECHANICS HALL,

One Week. Commencing Monday Aug. 10. Matinee Every Day Except Monday.

GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH.

NOTHING LIKE IT EVER HERE BEFORE.

MISS NETTIE MORRIS' EQUINE AND CANINE PARADOX CO.

50 DOGS AND PONIES 50

See Them! It Will Pay You. The Only Show of the Kind in the World.

A world of wonder! The grandest display of animal sagacity in the whole range of nature! People turned away! Houses not large enough! Endorsed by press and clergy.

GRAND STREET PARADE.

See the Wonderful Ponies. The Ladies and Children are delighted. Remember the Date.

Admission, 25, 35 and 50c.

Reserved seats on sale at box office, Mechanics Hall, every day, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

W. H. Warren.

Sometimes Worcester loses, but as often she gains. The machine shops of Mr. Warren give our city a wide reputation. Mr. Warren has lately received an order for five heavy radical machines for the U. S. Government at the Watervliet arsenal. The contract covers $25,000.

Up in Saratoga county, N. Y., they have a panorama of the Holy Land, which is enlivened by sparring matches, conducted by two eminent bruisers between the scenes. A few evenings ago the pugilistic contest became unnecessarily warm and was prolonged to such an extent that the boy at the crank became disgusted and turned on the next picture, just as the ninth round was about to conclude. The consequence was that one of the combatants was knocked clear through the ruins of Solomon's Temple, and took refuge behind the Sea of Galilee just as his adversary kicked through that sheet of water. The panorama is now closed for repairs.

We are never made so ridiculous by the qualities we have, as by those we effect to have.

THE CLARK-

SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

MOJELICA

NEW INVOICE OF

MAJOLICA WARE

Just Received. Fresh and Bright Goods.

- Cream Pitchers . . . 10c each
- Dessert Plates . . . " "
- Pickle Dishes . . . " "
- Mugs . . . . . " "
- Enamelled Cream
Pitchers . . . . . 30c each
- Enamelled Water
Pitchers . . . . . 25c 35c 42c each
- Bread or cake plates 25c "
- Cuspadores 37c and 50c "
- Butter Dishes . . . 42c "
- Umbrella Stands $5.00 "

THE CLARK-SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

Household.

Flowers should be gathered early in the morning, while wet with dew, or late in the evening after sundown. It is better for the plants and for the flowers cut that they may be removed by scissors or a sharp knife than wrenched off with the hand. It is far better if they are kept for some time to change the water daily and clip off the tips of the stems each time. Rare roses and valuable flowers should be covered with paper and set in the ice box at night. A few drops of ammonia or a little salt in the water is said to materially assist in keeping flowers fresh.

Sweet clover, picked when in bloom, gives a fresh and dainty odor to clothes among which it is placed; and rose and geranium leaves dried, give also a pleasant fragrance. —Waverly Magazine.

In washing blinds and dark paint always add several tablespoonfuls of ammonia to the water, and when dry rub the paint with kerosene oil.

Fruit stains of long standing on white goods or fresh stains that refuse to yield to ordinary treatment, may be removed by dipping into a very weak solution of chloride of lime, and spreading in the sun or on the grass, if possible to bleach. As soon as the stains disappear, rinse thoroughly, as the lime is apt to injure the fabric. Use soft water both in making the solution and in rinsing afterward. —Boston Budget.

The beneficent power of hot water is a theme on which this department has before touched, but it is a question if it can ever be too prominently brought to the notice of the general public, or if there is any one subject relating to physical well-being that touches so absolute and so universal a need. In such a heated term as that through which we have passed this last week, the prevalent use of ice-water and iced drinks was such—it is always such—as to incite the most serious attention. The "deadly ice-water" it is sometimes termed, with the utmost truth. It is more than an open question if all the discomfort, of severe heat, and even severe work added, is as disastrous in its effects as is the constant resort to iced drinks, which, so far from being "cooling," merely add fuel to the flame. —Spectator.

A hammock swung indoors is a convenience and a luxury to those compelled to stay in the city in the summer. The hammocks of gray or soft-toned blue, with valance at each side of some harmonizing material, does not detract from the summer appearance of a city room, and is much cooler for an afternoon or early evening nap than the finest upholstered lounge.

It is an easy matter to make one of those useful little affairs for keeping the tea hot called a "cosy," and it affords a nice gift for a housekeeper. Shape a piece of cotton batting over your teapot, and line it with thin silk. Baste around the edge, to hold in proper form. Cover the outside with plush, quilted silk, embroidered velvet, on any material you may fancy, and bind the lower edge with ribbon. An ordinary-size tea cosy may be made about twelve inches long.

Offer Special Bargains in all Lines of

HOUSE---FURNISHINGS !

and those who buy now can save money.

CHAMBER SETS,

From $18 upwards.

PARLOR SUITS,

From $40 upwards.

SIDEBOARDS,

ODD EASY CHAIRS

Reduced in price to close.

Plush 16th Century

Oak Platform Rockers,

$8.50, WORTH $10.00.

Carpets

AT LOW PRICES.

Ranges!

We sell the Crawford Ranges—none better—they always give perfect satisfaction, and the only range in the market that will bake in the lower oven, which we guarantee.

ANDES RANGES.

This is the best 8-inch Range in the market for $25.

We sell a good Range for $15.

Call and examine our

DINNER SETS, 112 pcs., for $8.98

IT CAN'T BE BEAT.

Liberal Terms of Credit at Cash Prices.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,

355 MAIN STREET.

Over on Our Street.

Though not heard from recently, our street is still here. Since our new license law went into effect, things have not been quite so salubrious as heretofore. The time was when a drunken man was never seen in these parts; but now the tale is different.

Only recently a Swede steered a brother Scandinavian into a side court, and laid him out on the grass to lie there while the steersman went off to get a hack and thus get him home without the aid of the police. This was on a Sunday morning. Such tangle feet were never seen on our street before. This was just as people were going to church and what a lesson for those who sought the sanctuary. On that very holy morning one of our citizens saw a drunken man trying to walk out of a second story window and, later, another man, imbecile with drink, nauseatingly exhibiting himself. Is it any wonder that we do not fancy the license law? When was an intoxicated Swede seen, on our side, before the Union Street place was legalized?

So many say they cannot have a garden for there is no room, but if you will come over on our street, I will show you a fine display where there is very little room. I have never seen so much, obtained from so little. I do not know how much was expended on seeds or potted plants, but there are sixteen varieties of wild flowers costing only the time taken to visit their haunts and transplant them. These plants from the woods are set under the shadow of a wall several feet in height, where but little sun reaches them. On this bare, blank, stone wall a Japanese ivy has been trained, and bids fair to cover it in a short time. On top of the wall there are wooden boxes painted and filled with geraniums, all in full bloom, and of many colors, both double and single. Under the wall a place about a foot wide is filled with the wild plants mentioned, and ferns. There are ten varieties of ferns. As an instance of the way in which space is utilized take the dining room window. On the window ledge is a pot of bogonia in full blossom. Just under the window on a shelf is a red box also full, and still lower down there is a tiny strip of ground in which are planted nasturtiums. On a table at one end of the piazza are potted plants, and one maiden hair fern, very luxuriant. There are fifteen kinds of begonias, for they can grow without much sunlight. An immense fuchsia, with I don't know how many blossoms, stands on the piazza and a big hydrangea which has delighted passers-by, all the spring and summer. This is not one hired for the season. A box of begonias at the other end on the shady side, and things that climb are growing on trellises up the sunny side. I was shown one sort of plant that was said to be a new begonia, called the edible begonia, but which looked to me very like a fine head of lettuce, or an old plant with a new name. I said: "Well, now you will have next green corn and tomatoes, though I'm sure I don't know where you will put them unless you hang them out the chamber windows." I look at the top of the piazza every time I pass, thinking they will have a garden made up there. You may think the space is too crowded, but the beds are all very narrow, and between the windows and the wall is a piece of fine grass, kept closely shaven and always fresh and cool to the eye. There is, too, a white lilac that has just been set out. Nothing seems to be crowded or out place, and though the space is small it shows what may be done if people are inclined to spread beauty around their homes.

I have not enumerated all the plants, for there are so many, but I assure you that notwithstanding the number, if a spot is found where anything can grow it will be filled at once. Will not the children of the house be unconsciously learning lessons from the growing beauty at their doors? If it be true that we grow like our surroundings, as I think it is, then you will not wonder when I tell you that house contains only bright and cheerful faces.

"Many people of many minds, many fishes of many kinds" was a rhyme of boyhood's days and it comes forcibly to mind when I find a resident on our street of middle life who has never drunken a cup of tea or coffee and still another who has been through college, yet never caught a fish nor fired a gun. What stacks of enjoyment these people have missed! I suppose they would say that we cannot miss what we never have had and that they have had plenty of fun and comfort in their own way. A grand thing it is that we do not all seek pleasure and creature comforts in the same channels. This is the way we avoid crowding.

One family of little folks near us is full of grief over the death of a pet dog. The little boy whose property the small canine was has decorated the grave in a cheerful manner and holds at least one funeral a day assisted by the neighboring children. In addition to a song, sung to the tune of "My Bonnie lies over the Ocean" he reads every time, these lines written for him by his mother. He never gets through his reading without a trembling voice and a falling tear. Does any one blame him?

ONLY A DOG.

Only a dog! Today under the pine tree tall,
Lieth the pet of the years, never to come at our call.

Only a dog—a mound covered with pansy and fern,
Over the soft silken head, Oh how the little hearts yearn.

Only a dog—and yet how could the children know
She had no soul to save, they only "Loved her, su."

Only a dog I know, but little hearts are true,
And scalding tears drop fast over "Only a dog" to you

THE 15th IN BALTIMORE.

At one of the 15th reunions, Capt. T. J. Hastings of Worcester read a poem, describing the passage of the regiment through Baltimore on its way to the front, written by a lady of New Jersey, who was present in Baltimore when the regiment passed through August 10th 1861, and was the lady referred to as leaning on the old gentlemen's arm on that occasion. The poem is as follows:

It was our hour of trial, when loyal hearts, astray,
Seeing their country's peril, sprang up to rescue her;
When all the North was moving, as it were but one brave man.
And Massachusetts, bless her! led, as of old, the van.
Her sons had borne our banner thro' many a fearful fray,
The starry flag of freedom, on many a fateful day
Had seen that glorious standard with their life-blood sprinkled o'er;
And again the cry came ringing: "300,000 more."

And we gave them—gave our loved ones, as we would have given our life;
God knows it had been easier to dare, with them, the strife.

No matter what the fates may bring, no other future day
Can be so dark as that one on which they marched away.

The old 15th—what memories the very name inspires!
How our boys' eyes flash and sparkle, and how the smouldering fires

Time never can extinguish, flame into fresher life,
Again in fancy sharing long march and deadly strife.

The old 15th! Its partings (the hardest ta-k) were o'er,
And home lay far behind them, in front was Baltimore.

"Look to your guns, my comrades," their gallant Colonel said;

"If rebels strike, remember our Massachusetts dead!"

"Remember how our vanguard, our own brave Sixth,
was met;

Remember that the spirit which slew them rankles yet
In many a rebel bosom;—if they show fight to lay,
Be ready, and we'll teach them that's a game which two can play."

With a cheer the soldiers answer—a loyal ringing cheer—
Such as only true men give, such as stirs the blood to hear;

Then, with their foes about them, in patient silence stand

On guard, alert, awaiting the next word of command.

Around them traitors gather, hating the flag they bear;
Hating their very presence, and the uniform they wear;
Dark, scowling faces lower, and angry threat and sneer
Fall upon ears that listen, tho' they do not seem to hear.

Amid the crowding rabble who would gladly do them harm,

Stands a venerable man, with a lady on his arm;
Of calm and stately presence, with snow white beard and hair,

It seems a thousand pities one so noble should be there,

"If men like that turn rebel, why wonder at the rest?
He looks like one," our soldiers think, "who might stand any test."

And, thinking thus, a Captain of the 15th chanced to ride

Close by where he was standing, with the lady by his side.

Making a quick step forward, as the Captain drew his rein,

As if for this they waited—upon the horse's mane,
The old man laid a trembling hand, and, lifting up his head

"May I ask what regiment is this?" in courteous tones
he said.

"The 15th Massachusetts," was the soldier's proud reply,

"We come from Worcester, sir," Tears dimmed the old man's eye

"God bless old Massachusetts!" were the only words
he said.

As reverently he raised his hat, and bent his good gray
head.

"Amen!" the Captain answered, and his cap was lifted, too,—

The old man's benediction fell on his heart like dew, Amid the oaths and jeering of that howling rebel throng,

That unexpected blessing was like an angel's song.

The call to march was sounded, and, with no other word
The old man and his daughter fell back amid the horde,
And the 15th Massachusetts moved down the city street, Strengthened by that one blessing, for the conflicts they must meet.

"God bless old Massachusetts!" we echo it today—
God bless her, now and ever, from the mountains to the bay!

May her laurels never wither, may her sons be ever true,

And every year her vigor and her freshness but renew.

And the old 15th! may blessings descend upon it, too!
As year by year, it gathers, be its vacant places few!
And, earth's reunions over and earthly conflicts past,
May it join, with ranks unbroken, Heaven's grand review at last!

The tramps talk of forming themselves into a college. We suppose their class yell will be V-I-C-T-U-A-L-S!

Our Markets.

While many people are away in all sorts of places, the "stay at homes" are not altogether to be pitied, especially when one sees what choice luxuries the markets afford.

Suppose we go into Geo. C. Blanchard's at 218 Main Street. What cannot be found there in its season is not worth finding. Do you wish substantials, here they are in the shape of all the meats that ever grew; but in hot weather, we turn rather to the products of the garden and here in prolusion are potatoes, ripe and large, warranted to cook as mealy and as dry as starch itself; summer squash with the crookedest of necks; tomatoes as red as the veriest crimson; green corn that would start an Indian into his greatest dance; shell beans that the biggest ignoramus couldn't help knowing; green peas, the most toothsome of summer delicacies; water melons, warranted to be cholera proof; cantaloupes that will make one thankful for a palate; beets that can't be beat; turnips that are tender and succulent; apples that are harbingers of better ones to come; berries of every description; in fine, living itself is a luxury when such spreads are made, and it is a luxury right here in Worcester.

Hiram Lovell with sisters Annie and Margaret will spend several days in Millbury.

Mr. W. T. Rogers left Thursday morning for Nova Scotia. He will spend his vacation of two weeks at Brier Island near Yarmouth.

Miss Alice Warren returned from New Hampshire Tuesday and left Thursday for Falmouth Heights and Cottage City.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

Worth considering.

A week ago we made you a special offer in Black Silks.

We took three of our popular qualities and decided to sell them at quite a reduction from regular prices.

We are in the habit of doing this during August of each year, and we find that our ladies appreciate the advantage we give them.

For a week this offer has been open, and we are very proud of the fact that you have accepted it so freely.

The offer is on the three grades of Gros-grain Black Silks, each of them reduced 25c a yard.

The prices now are $1.00, $1.25 and $1 50 a yard.

We warrant these Silks; you'll not find anything in the market so handsomely finished at anything like these prices.

With the gros-grain there is another bargain in black Faille Francaise, 24 inches wide, at $1 00 and $1.25.

You can't get anything like it in this or any other city, even though you put 25c a yard more to it.

We can give you a black Surah, 24 inches wide, swivel weave effect, that will charm you at $1.00 a yard.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

I HAVE THE LARGEST
CARRIAGE :-: REPOSITORY

In New England. You can see over 200 elegant Carriages on one floor. GREAT BARGAINS in Carriages during the present month. This is my twenty-fifth year in business in this city, and my stock is the most extensive I have ever carried.

GEORGE C. DEWHURST,
Nos. 17 and 19 Park Street. OPPOSITE COMMON.

Smith's

401-403 Main Street.

If you will look in our south display window you will see 2,000 yards of desirable Ruchings marked 10c and 12½c a yard that are worth from 15c to 25c a yard. A grand chance to get your supply of neck ruchings.

EDW. L. SMITH & CO.

New * York
STORE.

Great closing out sale.

Everything marked down.

Special Bargains in Pertumes, Toilet Soap, Tooth
Powder, etc.

All Dress Goods at Cost and many lots at less. Come and see if you want bargains.

Going Out of Business on September 1st.

Z. F. Little & Co.,

234 and 238 Main St.

The Ware-Pratt Company

Invite attention to an extensive display of

Fine Clothing for Men, Boys and Children.

The Latest Fashions, Exclusive Styles from our own workshops, Honest Goods and the Lowest Prices, Grade and Quality considered.

Our Custom Department is teeming with the Newest styles, Colorings and Materials, which go to make up the finest lines we have ever shown.

The Ware-Pratt Company,

MANUFACTURERS AND RETAILERS,

408 and 412 Main Street,

Worcester.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts, State of the order March 18, 1891; Membership, 4915; Amount loaned for Relief, $15,299; Reserve Fund, $22,972.40; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,759.08; Total, $44,975.48. Men and women admitted on the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600.

Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organizations wanted. Address NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester, Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.
Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Grate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD. Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main St.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LEADING SAFETY BICYCLES.

Solid, Cushion and Pneumatic Tires. Full line of Supplies. Repairing a Specialty.

LEMONT & WHITTEMORE, 39 PEARL ST.
Open evenings.

E. W. COFFIN, Store Fixtures

310 Main Street, Worcester.
Name this Paper.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

Larkin's, 395 Main St., Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps. Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

Late one evening a doctor received a note from a couple of fellow practitioners, saying: "Pray step across to the club; we are one short for a rubber." "Emily dear," he then said to his wife. "I am called away again. It appears to be a very serious case, for there are two doctors already in attendance."

When our hatred is violent, it sinks us beneath those we hate.

—Tramp (to partner): "Did the old man give you anythin', Bill?" Partner "No." "What did you say to him?" "I asked him if he couldn't help a poor man who was out of work, and he said he could give me some work. Times seem to be gettin' wuss every day."

A contented mind, and a good conscience, will make a man happy in all conditions.

LIGHT

---

VOL. III. No. 24. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, AUGUST 15, 1891. FIVE CENTS.

---

HON. HAMILTON B. STAPLES,

Late Justice of the Superior Court, Massachusetts.

[ENGRAVED EXPRESSLY FOR LIGHT.]

JULY 25.

PUTNAM &amp; SPRAGUE CO.

FURNITURE and UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

We offer everything at a discount. SEE IN OUR WINDOWS samples of the best Refrigerators, and the best Baby Carriages marked in plain figures at prices that will ensure the sale of every one. We shall not carry them over. If you want one NOW is the time to buy.

247 and 249 Main Street, Corner of Central.

YARMOUTH S. S. CO.,

(Limited) Shortest and Most Direct Route Between United States & Nova Scotia, via the favorite sea-going and new steamships "Boston" and "Yarmouth." Sea voyage only 15 to 17 hours. Tickets sold to all parts of Nova Scotia.

Steamer will leave Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston, for Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 12 M. Noon.

Returning will leave Yarmouth for Boston every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Close connections made at Yarmouth with all Railway, Steamboat and Stage lines to all points in N. S.

For further information write for folder or apply to G. Y. Lancaster, M. H. Church & Co., O. F. Rawson, Worcester; or J. F. Spinney, Agent, Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the

ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,

92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

C. H. DRAPER,

Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

Three Large Moving Wagons. Baggage Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!
It saves Time,
Labor and Fuel,
(two thirds cent
per hr. for fuel)
Manufacturers
Guarantee every
Iron.
TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, Mfg. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester,

OXYGEN

We have the genuine

Oxygen Treatment

FOR THE CURE AND PREVENTION OF DISEASE.

It is not a Drug, but Nature's true Restorative in debility and all disordered conditions of the system.

Our Oxygen is fresh every day.

Prepared and administered with the utmost care by a Physician of large experience.

It will pay to investigate our METHODS and PRICES.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

LINCOLN BLOCK,

368 1-2 Main, Cor. Elm.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

COAL! COAL!

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Especial attention given to the family trade.

Garfield &amp; Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 143-4.

N. G. TUCKER.

W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER &amp; SON,

SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street,

Worcester, Mass.

GRAND OPENING!

MONDAY, AUG. 17.

Every Afternoon and Evening During Week.

MISS * ETHEL * TUCKER,

Supported by Lothrop's Stock Company, in the Beautiful Comedy Drama, O U F E N A, preceded by the Laughable Farce, THE SUFFRAGE BRIDEGROOM!
Doors Open at 1:30 and 7 p. m. Curtain rises at 2 and 7:30.

PRICES:

Orchestra, 25c. Balcony, 20c. Gallery, 10c

Seats can be secured for any performance one week in advance. Box office open daily at 10 A. M.

NOTE: This beautiful house will be open for the inspection of Ladies Only MONDAY morning, Aug. 17, from 10 to 12, when a GRAND PROMENADE CONCERT WILL BE GIVEN BY THE LADY ORCHESTRA.

Gold was first discovered in California in July, 1848.

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, AUGUST 15, 1891.

No. 24

True to all truth the world denies,
Not tongue-tied for its gilded sin;
Not always right in all men's eyes,
But faithful to the light within.

—O. W. Holmes.

The "Boys in Blue" have had their annual gathering, this time in Detroit.

Some extra utilitarian will ask, "What is the good of this annual running together of delegates from Maine to California?"

It is not a money making scheme for any one. It is purely and simply, sentimental. But sentiment is one of the strongest prompts in life.

Whether in youth or age it is sentiment that prompts a man to imperil his life to satisfy the caprice of his mistress or to march up to a cannon's mouth in following the flag.

Whether we know it or not we are all subjects of sentiment and though, unlike Sterne, we may not write a book about it we are all taking a "Sentimental Journey."

The more amenities of life that we receive or give, the more sentiment. We are certainly going out of our way to do some act, unrewarded save by a "Thank you" yet that very recompense is more precious than gold.

But to our "Boys" at Detroit. Not necessarily, those of Post 10, but by common consent they were an honor to Worcester; but all the Veterans who from Casco to the Golden Gate assembled in the City of the Straits. What possible good comes from such an assemblage?

Not to mention the individual good, in the way of a change, there is a positive advantage in this yearly assembling of men from all parts of this nation. So long as such gatherings prevail, there will be little danger of provincialism in America. East, West, North and South, with all the intermediate directions meet and a homogenous character results.

Sometimes the strongest differences are brought out and occasionally adjusted as in the late discussion of the Color line. Worcester had a battle on that very issue, years ago and settled it conclusively; but it came up in a new shape from the extreme South. Our Southern G. A. R. men in their anxiety to maintain social relations with their late foes, make too many concessions.

On the walls of a New Orleans Post of the G. A. R., bearing the name of a brave Union General, slain in the Rebellion, might have been seen, five years ago, a picture of Robert E. Lee along side of that of U. S. Grant and worse still, the Stars and Bars were crossed with the Stars and Stripes. That is carrying conciliation too far. If from such Veterans, there comes a request that the privileges of the order shall be denied to the Negroes who keep green over heroes graves in Southern cemeteries, then lets give to sentiment full sway and say, "We'll stick to the men, black or white, who stay by us." We fought a war to tear down one line of barriers. Let us be the last to erect others.

It is sentiment again, that will compel thousands of men and women, in this hot August weather to repair to Bennington next week. Sentiment that has survived the intervening hundred and fourteen years and that will live on in fadeless youth, when centuries have elapsed. "Green Mountain Boys." What heart does not exult at their deeds. Whether Vermonters or Georgians, all Americans grow young again as they think of Bennington and its heroic deeds.

The flag for which so many have died was, on that August day, scarcely more than two weeks old but in its infancy it was dear. The poet may be guilty of his peculiar license as to time and place, but how many school boys have with thrilling earnestness recited

"Now at Bunker see it billow
"Now at Bennington it waves
"Ticonderoga swells beneath
"And Saratoga's graves."

Under our flag, as we knew it, Bunker and Ticonderoga could hardly appear and it is possible that the Continental resolves had not reached Colonels Stark and Warren.

Be this as it may, those stern farmers followed something and they fought with a determination not excelled at Thermopylae, nor Sempach, nor Naseby nor at any of the places in all time where brave men have made their stand, resolved to win or die. The imputed words of Stark on that day show well what was uppermost in his mind. "We'll whip the enemy today or Molly Stark's a widow." He was not thinking of some Westminster as an offset to death, but bright and beautiful arose the picture of his home, with its bright genius ruling there.

But General Stark was not the only one thus resolved. From the hills of Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, men like minded had gathered, till their name was legion. That was the reason when the hireling Baum with his German followers, though they were brave men, advanced, that they were met with such a strong resistance. There was no sentiment in the paltry compensation those soldiers received. They were following no flag of their own. No visions of homes protected rose before their eyes; but back of every death dealing rifle in the American ranks was the personification of home and country.

It is meet, then, that in this, Vermont's Centennial year, on the anniversary of her greatest battle that the President of the United States, with his Cabinet, with thousands more whom the world delights to honor, should repair to this town, close to New York's border, and there dedicate the monument that commemorates the events of that 16th of July, 1777. Another grand object lesson for American youth. Would that the monument were high enough, that from the pinnacle, one might look over to Saratoga and salute the shaft which there marks the complete dissolution of the proud array which moved southward from Canada to cut in halves the Colonies. It was a case where the biter was bitten and where he who went to shear came back shorn.

ABOUT FOLKS.

Lewis Hammond having returned from the sea side, has resumed work in the bank.

Councilman Irving E. Comins, Mrs. Comins and Master Edward I. Comins left Friday for the Stanley House, Southwest Harbor, Mt. Desert, Maine.

Mrs. Thomas Plunkett is at Salisbury Beach, Mass.

Mrs. E. M. Stockwell and Miss Lizzie Stockwell left Thursday for Saratoga and Vermont state on a vacation trip.

Miss Lottie M. Taft went, Wednesday, to Sandwich, N. H., for a short vacation.

Mr. Prentiss Howard's new cottage on one of the islands in Lake Chau—, Webster, is to be occupied next week by a party of Worcester people: Mrs. N. A. Thayer, Miss Florence M. Sears, Miss Mabel Wood, Miss Anna Colles, Miss Grace Colles, Mrs. Ellen Wheelock, Miss Flora Clark, Miss Blanche Kelley, Miss Edna Thayer, Miss Myra Thayer, Mrs. Bowditch and Mrs. Leonard E. Thayer of Oxford.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Normand have gone to New York state for a three weeks' vacation, where Mrs. N. will visit her old home. They will return via New York City and the Hudson River.

Mrs. L. W. Benson and family are at the mountains rusticated. Her address is Blandford, Mass.

The annual reunion of the Johnson family will occur in Upton, Thursday, August 20. An account of the family homestead appeared in last week's LIGHT.

F. F. Sprague, A. E. Sprague and H. S. Knowlton pass their vacation at Falmouth Heights.

Mr. Alex. Miller and Miss Etta Miller are at Cottage City.

Miss A. E. Millett goes to Spencer for a much needed rest.

Miss F. Maude Howe is visiting at the home of Ex-Secretary Shelton of Y. M. C. A. at Hampton, N. H.

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND
HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.

Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building,
Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as
second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, AUGUST 15, 1891.

Every failure to receive LIGHT promptly
should be, at once, reported at this office.

All scraps of informations concerning persons and events, thankfully received.

Friends sending in manuscripts will not complain if they are not printed at once. There are many waiting. Yet LIGHT is always glad to receive communications and, if meritorious,
to print them.

Hereafter, it will be understood that all articles in LIGHT, not ascribed, save receipts,
squibs, fashion and household notes were
written for this paper.

Next week, LIGHT will print the first part of a poem by Thomas C. Rice, entitled,
"Whom do Men say that I am."

The Week.

CITY.

- July 31—Josie Sullivan rescued from drowning at the Lake by Charles O'Neil.
Lawyer C. W. Wood taken suddenly and seriously ill.
- Aug. 1—Annual banquet and reception at the Natural History Camp.
Post 10 G. A. R. tourists with friends start for Detroit.
United States Treasury Agent, Col. Jas.
P. Low in the City to see about new Post Office location.
- 2—Judge Hamilton B. Staples dies. 62 years Probation officer, Col. E. J. Russell, addresses the Reform Club.
- 3—At the Lincoln House, arguments, pro. and con., concerning the Post Office site are heard by the Chief Supervisor. He said nothing; but kept Low all the time.
- 4—Races at the Driving Park begins.
Caleb B. Metcalf buried from Central Church.
Thos. G. Stoddard, Post Office Inspector looks over the Rink with reference to occupying for local office.
- 5—Judge Hamilton B. Staples' funeral at Central Church. Burial in Northampton.
Henry W. Jordan drowned in Stillwater
Pond, 15 years.
Large attendance at Driving Park races.
6—Best attendance yet at the Driving Park.
The races very successful.

Herbert H. Steele arrested for passing a forged check. He is well named.

7—Races at the Driving Park, end up gloriously, many beholders and excellent time.
Battery B., 4th U. S. Artillery, passes through Worcester on its way to Bennington.

Steele, the alleged forger, arraigned and held for the grand jury. Here is a strange mixture. To forge Steele is common, but to reverse is rare.

8—Mayor Harrington receives a letter from Raleigh, N. C., asking for Worcester exhibitions in approaching southern exposition in that city.

Miss Alice L. Houghton, daughter of the late J. P. Houghton, dies. 36 years.

9—Rum reduces a Worcester family named
Donovan, on Bridge Street, to a condition as bad as anything described by "General" Booth. Oh yes, we have a submerged fraction drowned in licensed beer.

One hundred bicyclists ride to Sutton.
Purgatory. It wouldn't be strange if such desecration lead to even a worse place.

Charles L. Gorham, music dealer, returns from a fourteen months European trip.

10—If not the hottest, the most uncomfortable day of the season, thus far.

Census of school children reveals a net gain of 319 over last year.

The dog and pony show in Mechanics
Hall pleases a large audience.

11—Boys at Natural History Camp start on a tramp to Wachusett. They have a hot time.

Masonic excursion to Block Island.

12—Michael J. Brazile of this city, drowned while on an excursion to Nantasket.

C. A. Hynes of 102 Austin street, dies suddenly on returning from Lowell where he had attended an army reunion.

13—City's valuation increased $4,000,000.
Tax rate decreased $1.00 per $1,000. It stands at $14.60.

Hon. A. S. Pinkerton elected Representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows.

COUNTY.

July—Gardner thinks a murder mystery of 50 years ago revealed by the finding of certain bones. A certain Jewell was lost and now the casket is thought to be found.

Aug. 1—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gibbs of Leicester started West, Saturday.

2—House and barn on the Parmenter place,
Shrewsbury, burned.

3—Mrs. Susan Norberry, commits suicide in Uxbridge, 70 years.

Willie Murphy, aged 6 years, drowned in Webster.

4—Judge A. A. Putnam is having a vacation in Nantucket.

5—Leominster's Superintendent of Schools, J.
F. Hall goes to Natick.

Oxford's High School principal will be E.
L. Willard of Leominster, a recent graduate of Brown University.

5—Attempt made to rob Mrs. Louise Scarlett in West Boylston.

The axe business in East Douglas is booming.

6—Fitchburg stirred up over the shortcomings of a short term Endowment Order. The President thereof arrested and held in $5000.
bonds.

The Hunt family of Grafton holds 19th
Annual Reunion.

7—Miss Huldah Adams celebrates her 100th birthday in Milford. She was born in Leicester, but has spent most of her long life in Uxbridge.

8—Rev. Geo. T. Babbitt gives notice of his resignation from pastorate of Baptist Church, Westboro.

Leominster Leather Board Factory sold to English Syndicate.

Mrs. Lucy Hunt, widow of the late Adin
Ballou dies in Hopedale. 81 years.

9—Rev. William Mitchell, formerly of Westboro and recently indicted for theft in Texas has been pronounced insane.

10—Tenement house burned in Whitinsville.
13 families homeless. When owners rebuild, may they spread out and not crowd so much humanity into one structure.

11—Westboro people are hoping that the 'Cycle works will start again.

Principal S. J. Blanpied of the Millbury
High School resigns. Will go to Montpelier, Vermont.

Robert Miller dies, in Clinton, from sun stroke.

12—Leicester much excited over troubles in short term endowment orders.

Timothy J. Judge killed on the R. R. at Blackstone. 30 years.

13—Sutton much disturbed over depredations in the Old Marble burying ground. Ghouls abroad.

COMMONWEALTH.

July 31—Congressmen Cogswell, Rockwell and Walker refuse to serve on committee on resolution at Republican Convention. Much surprise.

Aug. 1—In Springfield, some one loads up and fires a cannon, thereby shattering the windows of the Chapin Memorial Chapel.

2—The colored Baptists, on Phillips Street, Boston, in a state of quarrel. The Gospel of Peace preached amidst frowning worshippers. More practice and less preaching needed.

3—The Weeks House, a hotel in Palmer destroyed by fire. The Rev. Francis E. Williams burned in it.

The Spring Farm, near Whittier's Danvers' Home, purchased by the Roman Catholics for a church school.

4—Lynn is just entering upon the Government building project. If she fares like Worcester, she will wait a long while.

5—Franklin G. Fessenden of Greenfield nominated to succeed Judge Staples. "The King is dead, long live the king." Less haste would have been more seemly.
Representative Greenhalge will be chairman of Republican Convention.

Rev. John Brady consecrated as co-adjutor Bishop of Boston diocese.

6—Boot and shoe organizations in Lynn to be worked over. A closer union desired.

7—James Russell Lowell is seriously ill at his Elmwood Home, Cambridge.

Convention of Christian Workers progressing at Northfield.

A short term endowment order lodge in Malden votes to disband.

8—Mr. Dwight Moody, Evangelist, memorialized to make another tour of Scotland.

U. S. Senate Financial Committee leave
Boston for Narragansett Pier.

Attempts at bribery unearthed in Boston
City Government.

9—Numerous drowning accidents. In Boston harbor a yacht overturns, whereby six lives are lost.

10—Mrs. Lelia Robinson Sawtelle, lawyer and authoress, dies in Amherst.

Earthquake shock in Connecticut. To much politics in that small state.

11—Boston Marine Society receives bequest of $100,000 from the late Captain Wm. S. Adams of Kingston.

The youngest of the Adams children in Ashland dies of Hydrophobia. He had received the Pasteur treatment; but too late.

12—Hoodlums at Boston North End threaten Mission Workers.

The Royal Ark troubles still bothering Boston.

13—James Mitchie killed on the R. R. track Natick.

Ex-Mayor Stone of Charlestown, dies. 81 years.

NATION.

July 31—Another railroad disaster in Ohio. Bellair is the place. One man killed, many seriously injured.

Wheat gambling rife in Chicago.

In Seabright, N. J., Caleb B. Metcalf, of Worcester and the founder of the Highland Military school dies, aged 77 years.

Ex-United States Senator F. A. Sawyer dies in Sewanee, Tenn. Born in Bolton, Mass. 69 years.

Aug. 1—G. A. R. men from all parts of the country centering on Detroit.

The tunnel beneath the Hudson River, connecting New York and Jersey City nearly completed.

2—Drunken Italians in Wayne Co., West Va., murder a family of five members. Where is Consul Fava now?

General Morgan, Indian Commissioner, arranges matters with Cardinal Gibbons and Bishop Ireland, concerning Catholic schools.

3—A million dollar fire in Chicago.

At the Lick Observatory, it is claimed that Encke's Comet has been re-discovered. Detroit filled with G. A. R. visitors with their friends.

Kentucky goes Democratic as usual. The Alliance has a good hold on the Legislature.

4—In the Detroit G. A. R. parade, the Worcester delegation takes no second place.

The affair noteworthy in that Ex-President Hayes marches in the lines.

Veterans discharged from New York Custom House and consequent complaints. They may be returned.

5—At Detroit, Commander Pinkham of Post 10 G. A. R., taken suddenly ill.

National Encampment hears Commander Veazey's report.

Second Annual Temperance Congress in session at Port Richmond, Staten Island.

6—At Detroit, Capt. John Palmer of Albany elected Commander of the G. A. R. for ensuing year. Next encampment to be at Washington, D. C.

7—Great preparations making in Vermont to receive the President. An attachment put on the Bennington monument. When dollars are concerned, sentiment goes to the wall.

Secretary Blaine is surely in better health.

The President refuses to pardon E. H. Heywood of Princeton.

8—Bishop Elect Phillips Brooks given an elegant reception at Bar Harbor.

Bold robbery and murder in Lima, Ohio. Unknown desperado, who escapes.

Balmacida makes offer for U. S. Cruise Baltimore. Not for sale.

9—Five people drowned in a lake near Milwaukee.

Eighty yachts are at Cottage City.

10—Commander John Palmer of the G. A. R. received with great enthusiasm in Albany. Mercury ranges about 100° in New York.

11—Forty cases of prostration by the heat in New York.

Tax payers in Kansas City, Kan., threaten to lynch Mayor and Council. Trouble about taxes.

12—Gov. Senator Hill of New York denies another Connecticut requisition.

Highwaymen in Central Park New York, getting in their harmful work.

13—More Chinese lepers discovered in New York.

The nation mourns the death of James Russell Lowell.

WORLD.

July 31—Dillon & O'Brien refuse absolutely to act with Parnell.

Aug. 1—Emperor thinks he can suppress drunkenness. Perhaps so, but he will have to make over the whole German nature.

The Pope, through proposing to withdraw $2,000,000 from the Bank of Rome causes a panic. The Pope asked to delay his demand.

Sexto—Centennial exercises begun in Schwyz, Switzerland.

2—Mr. Spurgeon said to be a little better.

Parnell is still in the field. He seems to have the many lives of a cat. At any rate he does not stay killed.

3—The Queen of the Belgians said to be dying.

French Jews approve Baron Hirsch's plans. It would be very queer if they didn't 4—George W. Williams, formerly of Worcester, dies in England.

The Earl of Dartmouth dies in England, 68 years.

5—It is claimed that Mark Twain contemplates establishing a funny paper in London to rival Punch.

"Punch brothers, punch with care, etc."

Queen Victoria thanks Commissioners for album of photographs sent from Chicago.

6—The Christian World has long told of the "Unspeakable Turk." What will it say of the Russians who drive Jews from their territory at the point of the bayonet, having first stripped them all but naked. Germany feeds them, but sends them back. Talk about "The Devil and the deep sea." They have no rest but die some of them by the cold steel, yet Russia is nominally Christian. It would require a Shelly, however, to properly define such religion.

7—Another White Chapel murder.

Floods in Australia render thousands homeless.

8—At Windsor, Canada, citizens compelled to remove U. S. decorations. This begins to look like confederation.

It is possible that European royalty may visit our Columbian Fair.

Parnellites in Parliament deserting to McCarthy.

9—Spain may arbitrate in the Chilian affair. Wm. M. Fullerton, a Harvard man, to succeed to the Paris office of the London Times.

10—Emperor William declared to be in robust health. Is Germany to have a Blaine case? British exports to the United States decline.

11—Russia prohibits exportation of rye and rye meal.

Grand Duke Alexis in Paris.

12—And now Berlin cloak makers are suffering on account of the McKinley bill.

Emperor William suffering from an injury to his leg.

James Russell Lowell dies in Cambridge, 72 years.

George Jones, chief owner of New York Times, dies in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., 79 years.

13—Y. M. C. A. of the World in session in Amsterdam.

All France greeting Prince Alexis. There is a big fight in prospect.

Rev. W. V. W. Davis preached in Manchester, N. H., last Sunday. With his family he is still at Marblehead.

Rev. Thos. J. Conaty has returned from his trip to Washington, D. C., and reports a very satisfactory meeting of the C. T. A. U.

If there is anyone who has not seen the show which has been presented by the Nettie Morris' Equine and Canine Paradox Co., at Mechanics Hall this week, he should not fail to avail himself of the last opportunity which will be given this afternoon and evening, of seeing the wonderful performance. It has to be seen to be appreciated. Children are delighted with it.

New England Fair.

Be sure to read the advertisement of the Fair. No one event of the entire year is of more moment to Worcester. It brings throngs to our city and, in a most desirable manner, makes the world know our worth.

Mrs. H. O. Hudson.

Mrs. Lylie L. Hudson, wife of L. O. Hudson, died Sunday evening at the family residence, 132 Park Avenue, after a brief illness. A husband and a son and daughter survive her. Mrs. Hudson was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, and possessed a large circle of friends. The funeral was held Wednesday, at 10 a.m., Rev. W. Pentecost officiating. There were many floral tributes. Music was furnished by Miss Nellie Layng and Miss Flora Minor and Messrs O. W. Farwell and F. J. Metcalf.

Amateur base-ball games are now in order. Two clubs, representing the Quinsigamond and Lakeside Boat Clubs, played a game last Saturday on the Lake View athletic grounds, the former winning with a score of 13 to 8.

The national championship games of the Amateur Athletic Union will be held at St. Louis, Mo., this Fall.

Do not forget that you can get any summer Excursion ticket at lowest rates or any other kind of ticket from Geo. Y. Lancaster's Ticket Agency, 434 Main street, opposite Front street. It pays to go there. Try it and see.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Mr. Ernest L. Pettes, collecting agent, gives personal attention to the collection of bills. No. 24 Pearl Street.

Geo. E. Kirby & Co., Dealers in Umbrellas and Parasols. Repairing and re-covering a specialty. 307 Main St.

Judge H. B. Staples.

To have been a just and honorable judge, and to be universally acknowledged as such, is a record that any man might be proud of and one that becomes a precious legacy to friends. Worcester's line of judicial representatives has ever been an excellent one and when, in 1881, Judge Francis H. Dewey resigned, there seemed to be no question as to the propriety of selecting as his successor, the, then, District Attorney of Worcester County. The succeeding ten years of duty have passed into the annals of the Commonwealth.

The name of Judge Staples is another one added to the long roll of distinguished men who were born and reared in Worcester county. The son of Welcome and Susan Staples, he was born in Mendon, February 14, 1829, receiving the christian names Hamilton Barclay. His common school advantages were supplemented by a course at the Worcester Co. Manual Labor High School, the predecessor of the present Worcester Academy. He entered Brown University and was graduated in 1851, taking the Latin Salutatory, the second honor of his class. One of the most distinguished of his classmates was the late Professor Diman. He never lost his interest in college nor in his college fraternity, the Alpha Delta Phi, always responding readily to the calls of both.

In 1884, his Alma Mater honored him with the Degree of LL.D. His law studies were pursued in Providence with the late Judge Ames and afterwards with Peter C. Bacon of this city. He was admitted to the Bar, here, in April, 1854 and opened his first office in Milford in company with the late General A. B. Underwood. Afterwards he had as law partners John C. Scannell, Judge Charles A. Dewey who was his subsequent brother-in-law and William F. Slocum of Boston. During the latter part of his Milford residence he had, also, an office in Boston.

In 1869, he came to Worcester, and here he has been since. Very soon after coming, he entered into partnership with Frank P. Goulding, now city solicitor, the same continuing till 1881, when he was appointed to the Supreme Court. Their offices were in the Brinley Block, second floor, now occupied by Flag Brothers. For three years, Mr. Staples' former Boston partner, Mr. Wm. F. Slocum, was a member of the firm. His public office, excepting one term, '74-75 in the Common Councils, began in 1874, when he was appointed District Attorney to fill a vacancy. Later he was elected by the people, and he continued to hold the office till his promotion to the Bench. During his holding the District Attorneyship, he presented some noteworthy cases, as those of Frost, the Petersham murderer, Hayden, the Fitchburg man whom Geo. Verry's eloquence cleared and Murphy, the Shrewsbury homicide, whom John R. Thayer saved from the gallows. It is interesting to note that Frost's defender is now Judge Hopkins of the Superior Court. The Grafton bank robbery case came under his direction also.

Judge Staples received his appointment from Governor John D. Long in January, 1881, his commission bears date of February 16. During these more than ten years no more honored Judge sat upon the Supreme Bench in this State of acknowledged superiority in judiciary representation. It is now remarked of him, that he presided in many criminal cases and that his rulings were singularly fair, he always desiring to have justice done. Notwithstanding long continued ill health, he was nearly always in his place, only absolute inability to be present, preventing.

Judge Staples was married twice. In 1858 June 15, he was married to Mrs. Elizabeth A. Godfrey, step daughter of the Hon. Benjamin Davenport. She died in Milford July 1, 1867. His second marriage Oct. 8, 1868 was with Miss Mary Clinton Dewey of Northampton. She was the daughter of the Supreme Court Judge, Charles A. Dewey and Caroline H., a daughter of General James Clinton of New York. Their children were Chas. Dewey, who died in infancy and Francis Hamilton, just through his first year in Brown University.

Of local societies and orders, he was a member of the Antiquarian Society before whose meetings he has read several valuable papers as "A day at Mt. Vernon in 1797," "The origin of the names of the states," "The Province laws," "The Winthrop sword," and "The Monument to La Salle at Rouen."

He was also connected with the Worcester Club and the St. Wulstan Society of which he was a director. In Boston, he belonged to the Union Club. In Masonic circles, he had advanced to the Commandery though his affiliations were with Milford, never having transferred his membership. So arduous had been his duties that he had found little time for travel though he was twice in Europe, the last time after having been made a judge, when his son accompanied him.

The illness which resulted in the death of Judge Staples continued about seven weeks. At first it was called nervous prostration with subsequent complications, including kidney trouble. Up to a very recent date, his condition was such that he rode out at times, taking to his bed finally, July 20. His death followed Sunday, Aug. 2, at 7.30 p.m.

At 12 m. Wednesday, members of the Worcester County Bar met at the Court House and, directed by Sheriff Samuel D. Nye, proceeded to the Central Church of which the Judge, when living, was an attendant. Those present were as follows:

Hon. Geo. F. Hoar,
Hon. H. L. Parker,
Col. T. S. Johnson,
Col. W. A. Williams,
Frank P. Goulding,
J. Everts Green,
Maj. W. T. Harlow,
T. H. Dodge,
H. F. Harris,
F. J. Barnard,
E. H. Peabody,
Geo. M. Woodward,
C. R. Johnson,
Henry W. King,
Thomas G. Kent,
Arthur P. Rugg,
Francis Plunkett,
Hollis W. Cobb,
George S. Tait,
John A. Thayer,
H. E. Hill,
B. T. Hill,
John A. Dana,

Hon. Amasa Norcross, of Fitchburg, ex-congressman.
Hon. William T. Forbes, judge of Probate.
Hon. Charles Field, of Athol, judge of the District Court.

Hon. Chas. A. Dewey, of Milford, judge of the District Court.

Hon. Charles Haggerty, of Southbridge, State Senator.

Assistant District Attorney Herbert Parker, of Lancaster.

J. S. Gould, of Webster.

George G. Parker, of Milford.

The occasion was rendered specially noteworthy by the presence of the following members of the Supreme and Superior Courts.

Supreme Court.

Hon. Marcus P. Knowlton, Springfield.

Hon. John Lathrop, Boston.

Hon. James M. Barker, Pittsfield.

Superior Court.

Hon. Albert Mason, Brookline, Chief Justice.

Hon. P. Emory Aldrich, Worcester.

Hon. Chas. P. Thompson, Gloucester.

Hon. John W. Hammond, Cambridge.

Hon. Justin Dewey, Springfield.

Hon. Edward J. Sherman, of Lawrence.

Hon. Daniel W. Bond, Northampton.

Hon. John Hopkins, Millbury.

Hon. E. B. Maynard, of Springfield.

In addition to these distinguished gentlemen, the church was filled by the many friends and neighbors of this city who have known him so long and so favorably. Many relatives of the deceased and his wife also were present. In addition, from distant places were Hon. Asa French of Braintree, judge of the courts of Alabama claims; John P. Manning of Boston, clerk of the criminal session of the Superior Court of Suffolk county; George H. Ball of Boston, Major B. D. Dwinell of Fitchburg, Rev. Carlton A. Staples of Lexington, Rev. James C. Alvord of Hamilton.

The honorary pall bearers were Chief Justice Albert Mason, Judge Emory P. Aldrich, Judge James M. Barker, Judge Justin Dewey, Frank P. Goulding, Hon. E. B. Stoddard, Col. J. W. Wetherell and Thomas G. Kent.

Those in charge of the church were Col. T. S. Johnson, Geo. W. Mackintire, Chas. F. Aldrich and Thomas H. Gage, Jr., George T. Dewey and Francis H. Dewey.

The exercises were conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Daniel Merriam, D. D., whose words and thoughts were specially happy and appropriate for the occasion. The burial was at Northampton in the cemetery where rests the late Judge Charles A. Dewey.

"This is the end of earth."

"The Princess of Wales," said Ward Mc Allister the other day, "is the best dressed woman in the world. I don't believe she ever wears the same dress twice, and she has her hair dressed in Paris every day. She wears false hair, you know, and she sends her wigs over to Paris daily. While one wig is going across the channel to France to be dressed the other is coming to London."

Mrs. G. W. Scripps, of Detroit, discussing her defeat at the polls for election to the school board, says: "Probably if I had taken off my white ribbon and spent a few ten and twenty-dollar bills for drinks for voters I would have been elected." This observation indicates that women are gradually grasping the fundamental principle of politics, and further along may be able to apply to it "getting there."

Caleb B. Metcalf, A. M.

For more than forty years the form of Mr. Metcalf was a familiar one in our city. Worcester was only a large village when he came, in the early days of the Thomas Street Grammar School. Then in the prime of early manhood, he lived on and continued to teach in our midst till the infirmities of age came upon him.

He was Worcester County born, a native of that northerly town of Royalston, which gave to Worcester and the Commonwealth, Alexander H. Bullock, Mayor and Governor. He was born February 13, 1814, and received the name Caleb Buffum, the second being that of his mother before marriage. His father was Enoch Metcalf, the son of Captain Pelatiah who had migrated to Royalston from the town of Wrentham, thereby proclaiming his kinship state of Maine and one of the most eminent jurists of his day, and Theodore Runyon, equally distinguished in New Jersey where he held the chief judicial position, under the title of Chancellor. There were one hundred and seven members of the class and today, after forty-nine years, nearly all the names are starred. They have been graduated into another world.

Very soon after graduation, I have been told that it was the very next day, he was married to Miss Roxanna C. Barnes of New Haven, a sister of the subsequently famous publisher, A. S. Barnes. This married life was a good example of marital happiness till ended by the death of Mrs. M., March 7, 1890, leaving our friend with only a remnant of enjoyment in this world. At the time, their home was at No. 36 Lincoln street and this city was nominally Mr. Metcalf's abode till the end,

C. B. METCALF, A. M.,

Late Superintendent Highland Military Academy.

to the descendants of Michael Metcalf who was one of the first settlers in Dedham and the first schoolmaster there. His mother was Elizabeth Buffum and she survived till February 1883, dying at the home of her son. She was a half sister of the late Tilley Raymond of George Street.

Of good agricultural antecedents, the future schoolmaster had the very best of starts in life. He prepared for college at Phillips' Andover where it is possible he had some of the earliest instruction given by that great master, Samuel Taylor. He went thence to Yale college, whence he was graduated in 1842. That class was a good one, and included James Hadley, that Master of Greek, whose Grammar has given so much trouble to "snail paced" school boys, the whole country over; John A. Peters, Chief Justice of the though he was, much of the time, away from it. A daughter, Anna, grew to womanhood and is now the wife of Percy McElrath of New York City, a son of that Thomas McElrath who with Horace Greeley, founded the New York Tribune. It was at his daughter's summer home in Seabright, N. J., that he died July 31st. In Rural Cemetery, there is a tombstone to the memory of a son, Alfred, who died at the age of four years.

Mr. Metcalf had a brother Isaac N., long resident in this city and well known as a teacher of music. He died in 1887. A sister, Mrs. Hunt, lived in Lowell.

From college, Mr. Metcalf went to Boston, where he taught till he came to this city, which was in 1846. The American Antiquarian Society has the books in which he recorded the names of those pupils who were in his schools. On the fly leaf of one volume are these words in his handwriting, "Began to teach in the Thomas Street School April 16, 1846, and finished teaching in the same at the end of the 10th year in 1856. C. B. Metcalf."

This settles, pretty conclusively, the date of his coming to Worcester. This was less than a year after the opening of the, then, new High School building on Walnut Street, that event taking place Aug. 5, 1845. Of his beginning in this new field, the committee of the Central District, have the following to state, through the Chairman, Stephen Salisbury and the Secretary A. H. Bullock, May 2, 1846.

"The Boys' English School was not submitted to the usual examination in consequence of its recent interruption and the shortness of the period in which it has been in the hands of the present instructor, Mr. Metcalf, a gentleman whom the board have employed after a careful canvass of his experience and qualifications, and whom they commend to the district as, they trust, a kind, gentlemanly, faithful and efficient instructor of youth. Such a character, he has brought with him to this place; such we trust will be its development in the beneficent fruits of his instruction to the youth of this district."

Mr. Metcalf, as a master, was determined and devoted. He came at a time when 125 boys were committed to his trust. It was no sinecure position. Neat, orderly and scholarly himself, he demanded these qualities in those whom he taught. The boys of those days tell tales out of school, how the master stood over the offending and recalcitrant youth till he was willing to yield. It is said, illustrating Mr. Metcalf's persistency, that a boy, called up to be flogged, ran out of the schoolhouse and, thinking to circumvent the master, who hotly pursued, jumped into a muddy ditch, but the teacher was not to be balked, for he went in after him, and brought him back, all dripping and soil covered, and the same could be said of himself. Then he proceeded to dry that boy in a most effectual manner.

After ten years of this sort of work, though in the meantime he had declined an election to the principalship of the High School of Worcester, he resigned his position and going out to the confines of the city on Salisbury Street established his subsequently famous Highland Military School. Here he remained till the end of the school year of 1888, June 14, though from that time his name has been carried in the annual catalogue of the school as Superintendent, emeritus. The school was given over into the hands of Mr. Joseph A. Shaw, who had been, for many years, an associate in the same.

During these thirty-two years, Mr. Metcalf had had as pupils young men from all parts of the Union. At the dawn of the Rebellion, its military character gave it a great popularity, and many a man, subsequently famous in the annals of the War, obtained his foundation of military training here. Of home names, we might mention Lieut. J. Willie Grout who fell at Balls Bluff, E. T. Raymond Major in the 36th Mass. and Levi Lincoln a captain in the 34th.

All this, however, is past and gone. The boys with their grey coats and brass buttons make their way to and from the school as of more. They look not unlike those of the days before and during the War, but the Master is at rest. His remains were brought back to this city and were buried from the Central Church of which he was a member, Wednesday, the 5th inst. A large number of former pupils and friends gathered to listen to Dr. Merriman's words and to pay a last tribute of respect to a long and useful life. He came to Worcester in the full flush of vigorous manhood. He grew aged in our midst and now, with his kindred, he sleeps in our beautiful Rural Cemetery.

Mr. Metcalf was never a politician but from 1869 to 1881, both dates inclusive, he was a member of the School Board, the most of that time, being assigned to the High School Committee. With one other, he conducted an examination in 1865 that LIGHT recalls vividly and with pleasure. There never was a more faithful member of the Board. At least, once a month, he visited the schools assigned to his care, and was always ready to report on them at the regular meetings of the fall Committee. In all that he undertook, he was thorough and faithful. What more could we ask for any one?

Sanderson—Demings.

The wedding of Rev. Clyde W. Demings of Dingman's Ferry and Miss Harriet Sanderson, formerly of Worcester, and niece of the late Asa R. Collier occurred publicly in the First M. E. Church of Woonsocket Wednesday afternoon August 5th. All available space was filled. The organist Earl W. French rendered popular ballad melodies previous to the ceremony. The decorations were original and tasteful, consisting of a tripart arch covered with laurel and interspersed with the color of wild flowers, white and gold especially. A large marriage bell was suspended from the central arch. At precisely 3.30 the organist began Mendelssohn's Wedding March and two minutes later the bridal train passed down the north aisle in the following order: The groom upon the arm of Usher Henry A. Pierce; the bride with Usher John W. Bennet; W. E. Sanderson, groomsman and brother of the bride, with Miss Demings, bridesmaid and sister of the groom. They took positions at the altar. At the same time the pastor, Rev. Howard E. Cook, proceeded, ritual in hand, from the side to his position in the altar under the central arch. The full church ritual form was used. The groom was dressed in clerical suit with coat buttoned to the neck. The other gentlemen in black but not full dress. The bride wore one of the shades of violet cashmere trimmed with darker shade of velvet, white hat, and carried a pair of tan gloves in her hand, with a handsome bouquet of white pinks, tied with long loops of white ribbon. The bridesmaid wore a light shade of grey, grey hat and gloves to match and carried a bouquet of pink pinks tied with long loops of pink ribbons. At the close of the ceremony, the exit was by the south aisle and vestibule to Wagner's Tannhauser March. The newly married couple repaired to the church parlor, where they received invited friends, after which they took the 4.40 train for Boston carrying among other baggage a pint of rice more or less done up in their umbrella. They remained in Boston over night and started Thursday for a tour in the provinces, visiting scenes and friends of Mr. Deming's youth. After the wedding tour Rev. and Mrs. Demings will return and enter upon life at his charge in the Methodist Episcopal church Dingman's Ferry, Penn.

Mrs. Deming was, for two years, a bright and successful member of the Worcester High School, in the class of 1893. The removal of her uncle from the city compelled her withdrawal from her associations here where she merited and won the highest respect.

"Good Americans, when they die, go to Paris."—Appleton.

VOLAPÜK.

WORCESTER, MASS., August 12, 1891.
EDITOR OF LIGHT:—

DEAR SIR: The second annual convention of the delegates from the various states, of those interested in the spreading of the new international language, Volapük, has been held. "If it is possible to hold two conventions, it is possible to hold six, and if six a hundred and the establishment of a central association for the promotion of Volapük is assured." So writes an enthusiastic Volapükian who was unable to attend the convention.

It appears that the time of ridicule and amusement in regard to the language is past, and it is receiving more respectful and earnest attention from the people in general. Prominent educators are giving it their endorsement and support. Measures looking to the spread of intelligence in regard to the language through the press and by means of lectures were taken, and committees appointed for that purpose, and arrangements were made looking to the creation of a fund for the vigorous pushing of the language.

A prominent educator of New Brunswick contributed an earnest paper in support of the admission of the language as one of the studies in the public schools, more especially with regard to its value as a bi-lingual study, its perfect regularity and extreme simplicity rendering it the best counterpart to the English language, a comparison between which serves to fix the latter in the mind of the child.

Good progress was reported from all over the country, and some new literature was promised. The variety and amount of Volapük literature brought by the delegates and offered for the examination by all interested, was surprisingly large and very interesting, and received a great deal of attention from people at Chautauqua.

The public session on the morning of Aug. 6, conducted by the Lecif colonel Charles E. Sprague of New York, was largely attended and great interest was manifested, the colonel being plied with pertinent questions at the close of his lecture. The delegates parted with an arranged programme of earnest work for the ensuing year, and we may look forward to an increased interest in the language during the coming winter. Arrangements were made to furnish any society or other parties desiring to provide for a lecture or course of lessons during the winter, with competent instructors.

These can be obtained upon application to

F. L. HUTCHINS.

Lepenādan.

Valhok vokobs "volapüki lifonjöz."

About Folks.

William Daniels is home from New Haven, where he has been practicing dentistry.

Edward J. Daniels of Fox Street is home from New York, where he has been studying for the past ten months.

Mrs. S. S. Sweetser and her daughter, Carrie M. Sweetser, are at Charlton City, at the summer home of Mrs. James O. Copp.

Chief Engineer Edwin L. Vaughn and Second Assistant Engineer Clifford O. Lamb, of the fire department, and Capt. Hiram R. Williamson, of the Insurance Fire Patrol, attended the National Convention of fire engineers at Springfield.

Thomas O'Gara and wife arrived home from Detroit, Wednesday, after a stop of several days at Montreal.

Joseph Towsley, foreman at Wesby's book bindery is away at Block Island, for two weeks.

Rev. J. D. Pickles went to Cottage City to preach today at the camp meeting in progress there.

Arthur K. Stowell, Fred J. Slaney and W. P. Thayer are off for a vacation at Brant Rock and Chatham on the Cape.

Miss Linda J. Metcalf is visiting her cousin, Miss Annabel C. Roe at 5 Dix Street.

William M. Freeman and family are away for a two weeks' absence at South Duxbury, Mass.

Mr. John J. Heron, late of Leland's Music Store, but more recently of the Metropolitan College of Music in New York, has returned to this city and about Sept. 1st will open a studio in Crompton Block. Mr. Heron's well known talents in the musical way, coupled with his large High School acquaintance should insure him success in his venture.

Mrs. W. H., Miss Gertrude and Master Charles Dennis are at Cottage City, for a week or two.

Mrs. Edward Saunders of Nashua, N. H., is the guest of Miss Elizabeth S. King, in Worcester.

Mr. Joseph Jackson gave the boys at Natural History Camp Monday evening, a profitable talk on Botany. No man knows the Worcester County Flora any better than the Woodland Street Principal.

Mrs. J. L. Shorey and her two daughters spend their vacation in Littleton, Mass.

Becker's Business College.

The prospects for this school, during the coming year are more than usually encouraging. Joined to Mr. B.'s well known interest in securing places for his graduates is the pertinent fact that his teachers stick by him. Next year, he will have his old corps intact. It looks as though his rooms would be more than filled, as they ought to be.

To the Land of Evangeline.

(Continued from last week.)

In Annapolis there are many reminders of the early Acadians, some of which may be seen by simply passing through the city but more of them require some time. As I preferred to go through to Halifax that day and to make all my stops on the return trip I was in Annapolis only long enough for dinner. On my return I made a little longer stay here, which I will mention later.

It had seemed fitting that the boat which carried us from Digby to Annapolis should be named "Evangeline" and again it seemed fitting when I noticed as I boarded the train for Halifax that the engine which was to draw us through the country which was the scene of the story of Evangeline was named "Basil." For nearly sixty miles the Windsor & Annapolis Railway runs through the valley of Annapolis, the great apple growing country. For the first fifteen miles of the way the road lies directly along the left bank of the Annapolis River. From the car windows we could look across the river to the fertile plains covered with beautiful gardens and orchards and dotted with the prosperous looking homes of the farmers, and to the uncleared mountains beyond. Occasionally on the opposite shore were seen ships in various stages of construction.

After about an hour's ride, Middleton is reached. Various excursions might be made from here. The traveler may cross the peninsula to Bridgewater and Lunenburg by the Nova Scotia Central Railway or he may visit the falls on the Nictaux River or the Iron Mines, close by, or a day might be taken for a drive over the mountains to the Bay shore visiting on the way the famous Wilmot Spa Springs.

Continuing our ride northward for another hour, still in the Annapolis Valley, we reach Kentville, where the railroad has its offices. Here again the traveler might well stop for numerous pleasant trips. He might ride down to Canning and Kingsport, on the western shore of the Basin of Minas, by the Cornwallis Valley Railway, from which the famous Blomidon may be readily reached, or, if fond of hunting and fishing, he will find in the streams about Kentville, salmon and trout and in the woods and meadows, woodcock, partridge, snipe and duck.

Very soon after leaving Kentville we enter the famous region surrounding Grand Pré. At Wolfville several miles west of Grand Pré proper, the Basin of Minas first came in view. Looking across the Basin we could see the great Blomidon. Soon after, the great meadows are reached and finally Grand Pré itself. It was with a thrill of pleasure that I realized that I was then on the very scene of the story which Longfellow immortalized by his verses. It was with no little excitement that I looked about the station during the few moments the train stopped. On the right of the track were hills, on the left the broad meadows, crossed by dikes, extended for over a mile to the shore of the Basin and over the top of a narrow strip of woods which lay near the shore Blomidon was seen. I anticipated with great pleasure my stop here on my return.

For fifteen miles the Basin of Minas and Blomidon were in view. Just after leaving Grand Pré the railroad crosses Muddy Creek on a high bridge. Its appearance at that time indicated that it was appropriately named for there was more mud than there was creek. It was low tide, which means more in the Basin of Minas and its tributaries than it does anywhere else in the world. Muddy Creek as we saw it then was a gully over one hundred feet wide and about fifty feet deep. Flowing down through the center was a small stream of muddy water. The greater part of the creek was bare and was covered with a reddish-colored mud which must have been several feet deep. Later I saw this stream at high tide and it was filled nearly to the brim, or in other words the water level was forty feet higher than at low tide. I mention this only a sample for we crossed several such streams.

From Hantsport to Windsor we ran along parallel with the banks of the Avon River. Along the river bed were great ships stranded with the edge of the water perhaps fifty or more feet away. Just before reaching Windsor we crossed the Avon which presented the same appearance as Muddy Creek, only on a larger scale. Though it is here at the head of the Bay of Fundy that the highest tides are to be seen, yet even down as far as Annapolis the difference between high and low tides is greater than usual, but as it happened to be high tide while I was there at noon I had not noticed the difference.

Windsor is a pleasant place to make a brief stop. It is situated on a high hill commanding an extensive view of the Basin of Minas and the neighboring country. The oldest university of the province, King's College, is situated here and here also may be seen "Clifton," the residence of the noted humorist, Sam Slick (Judge Halliburton). Not far away are extensive gypsum quarries.

From Windsor, nearly to Halifax, about sixty miles, the railroad runs directly across the peninsula through a mountainous forest region. But commencing at Bedford, nine miles from Halifax there is a charming ride around the beautiful Bedford basin and we finally reached Halifax early in the evening after an all-day ride. A brief walk about the city after tea completed the day's sight-seeing.

Wednesday forenoon rain spoiled my plans, but in the afternoon and the following forenoon I succeeded in seeing considerable of the city. Though not more half as large as Worcester, yet Halifax is an interesting place. Its history in brief is as follows: About 1720, a party of nearly four thousand English emigrants started a settlement here changing the name of the place from Chebucto to Halifax in honor of a nobleman of that name who did much toward the success of the colony. After the English had captured Louisburg from the French in 1758, Halifax was made the seat of government for the Province and remains so today. Among the objects of interest to be seen in Halifax are the citadel and the barracks, where a regiment of British regulars are constantly quartered; the navy yard; the public gardens, said to be the finest on the continent and the various public buildings. There are many pleasant drives about the city also. A sail down the harbor in a small sailboat was included in the pleasures of my stay.

There happened to be at the time three men-of-war in the harbor, the smallest of which, the "Thrush," was commanded by Prince George. We sailed around these several times and also went along near the navy yard wharves, getting a close view of two torpedo boats. Any one visiting Halifax should not fail to spend a few moments in the museum on the third floor of the post office building. The nucleus of the collection was formed by Rev. Dr. Honeyman, formerly the province geologist. At present the collection is not displayed to its greatest advantage on account of the lack of space but the lady who has charge of the museum and who is a daughter of Dr. Honeyman, told me that efforts are being made to have the government give them larger rooms. It certainly deserves greater recognition than it now receives. The collection of minerals and of fossils is especially fine.

In talking with a number of the government officials at the parliament building, about the governments of Canada and United States, the subject of annexation was introduced. I was informed, much to my surprise, that there was very little annexation talk except among a few dissatisfied ones who are to be found in every country. The people practically govern themselves and they are satisfied with things as they are.

I left Halifax on the return trip Thursday afternoon and early in the evening stepped off the cars on to the platform at the little Grand Pré station.

(Concluded next week.)

Miss E. Cassandra Nason who, for some time, has been studying music in London, has been engaged to sing in the Second Presbyterian Church, Germantown, Penn. While her many Worcester friends congratulate her on the position, they will regret her leaving the city. In addition to her church duties, she will teach vocal culture and music in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Dr. George E. Francis and daughter, Mrs. M. L. Bacon, Lincoln L. Kinnicutt, Dr. S. B. Woodward have registered at resorts at Prout's Neck, Me.

James L. Estey and Geo. L. Estey left Monday for a two weeks' stay at East Sullivan, Me.

Miss Ella Stickney and Mrs. T. M. Lamb returned from Hardwick one week ago, having spent a pleasant week with Misses Clara and Jennie Manley of this city, who are entertaining their friends at their old home this summer.

Even Christian Crusaders take a change if not a vacation for Capt. Mattie Webster accompanied by several members of the band, returned Saturday from Field's point, R. I., where they had been taking a weeks' outing. They took their instruments with them, and played and sang as usual, by the seaside, all having an excellent time.

William F. and George Hogg, sons of Wm. J. Hogg, are enjoying their vacation at the Waumbek, Jefferson, White Mountains, N. H. They will return about September 1st.

Books and Bookmen.

John Auburntop Novelist by Anson Urial Hancock. Charles H. Kerr & Co., Chicago, Unity Library No. 5, cloth $1.25, paper 50 cents.

A further statement on the title page is that the book portrays "His development in the atmosphere of a fresh water college." As Nebraska boasts the exact territorial center of the United States it is evident that a college in Lincoln, the capital, would be about as far from salt water as any institution in America could be. To eastern readers some of the situations are peculiar. We are first introduced to a party of young men who are preparing for an evening at their literary society. At the University of Nebraska, co-education is, of course, in vogue. In Palladian Aula, ladies hold office as well as the men. It is evident that the book savors of the surroundings which to people used to seaboard variety are just a trifle strange. It is a story of college life, yet very different from the Tom Brown books, Verdant Green, Fair Harvard or A Senior at Andover. There is not incident enough. There is too much love making, if this is to be considered an actual picture of life at an interior college where the two sexes are educated in common. In fact its situations might furnish an argument against the opening of the doors of the older eastern colleges to both boys and girls. Here is a college full of young people and the boys, just once, go on a rampage and capture a cannon, in some way involved in their military drill against which they thus protest, but they are forever talking Geology and Literature. If this be a true picture, then the Millennium in college behavior has surely been reached, west of the Missouri. If it be a true presentation, we can only state that it differs much from life in eastern colleges.

But when we come to love making, that is just the same the world over. Cupid is just as pretty and just as remorseless on the prairies of the West as in the cities of the East and a novelty in his career it is difficult to find. It is doubtful whether so much introduction of didactic matter, whether of science or Art, adds to the value and interest of the book. No one reads novels for instruction. We read for diversion, and nine-tenths of those who peruse John Auburntop will simply skip the instructional parts. John Auburntop early falls in love with Minerva Jackson and the love scenes are exceedingly well done. In college and at her Elm Creek home, the phases of love life are well wrought, but why the author should consign both parties to hopeless misery in marrying, not each other, but those whom they do not love is inexplicable. George Eliot had a way of drowning or in some murderous manner disposing of her best people, all because she, personally, had found life unhappy, but we may suppose that this writer is more like the rest of folks, fairly well satisfied with life as it comes. Instead of uniting the Nebraska lovers, he consigns one to the embrace of a groceryman, very commonplace, and sends the man to Boston to win his way at the Hub. Some one commenting, remarks that perhaps it is the more common way, to thus separate and lacerate; but it is doubtful. The book has this charm for Eastern people that it introduces new characters, new scenes and novel conditions. The same charm that Edward Eggleston's books afforded twenty years ago and those of W. E. Howe, at a more recent date. The Unity Library is sending out an excellent variety of reading matter. We shall be glad to hear from the author of John Auburntop again.

The August number of the Scientific American, Builder's and Architect's edition, is received and, like all its predecessors, shows us what may be done with little as well as with much money. The most expensive structure is a church at New Rochelle, costing $47,000. Then a dwelling house on Riverside Park, N. Y., is shown whose cost is away up. Lower priced ones are found as low as $1500. Intervening prices are numerous. The cottage at the smallest cost is a beauty, built on Staten Island.

Table Talk, edited by Mrs. S. T. Korer, Philadelphia, Penn.

We think the most important things are the new menus for every day which are such a boon to the housekeeper who has had everything she could think of twice over. There is an article of some length on Lemons, and nine pages of questions and answers on all subjects. So many different things are written about in the magazine, that we wonder more do not purchase it every month in preference to the higher priced publications. It is only one dollar and it is worth that if only the receipts were given.

A Midsummer Madness, by Ellen Olney Kirk, Houghton Mifflin & Co., Boston, Mass. 50 cts.

Mr. Haxtoun is distinctly a student, and is writing a book that requires much research. He calls upon his wife and daughter so often for help that they finally persuade him that he ought to have a secretary. Mr. Medhurst takes the position offered him, and of course falls in love with pretty Cecil. Mr. Heriot, a man of thirty-five who has had all that life in the way of travel, pleasure, and folly of all kinds, wishes to make Cecil his wife, and under her mother's commands she engages herself to him, but when Medhurst declares his love she cannot resist it, though afterwards she acknowledges her engagement, and then Medhurst leaves the place. After trying in vain to make Cecil care for him, and seeing how very unhappy she is, Heriot brings about a meeting of the lovers and renounces all claim to her hand. Such is the thread of the story, but there are studies of character in the book that one might spend some time over. Cecil Haxtoun in a good type of a fresh girlish woman, and when compared with other women in the book seems a child almost. The student makes himself a bore by always harping on one subject, and we wonder if there are many like tired worn out Mrs. Heriot. Mr. Medhurst is strong, steady, always true to conviction, willing to sacrifice himself that his friend's life may be the more full. That the book is interesting need not be said, for the scene is in the country and carries a spice of out-of-doors all through its pages that is very pleasant to the reader.

The London Spectator commended this novel very heartily, by saying: "This book is most refreshing. The scene of the story is laid on the banks of the great river Delaware, and a delicious sense of open air, of trees and flowers, of the many tinted lights of sunset, tingeing the broad river and the sky above, pervades the book. The story is, of course, the old, old story, but the interest never flags from the first page to the last."

The Pansy, Isabella M. & G. R. Alden, editors. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Mass.

The Pansy is one of the most delightful of the Sunday magazines that comes to us. Every one of its stories has some lesson to be learned or some thought to be treasured. Dorothy's Sermon is especially sweet. We find another installment of "Twenty minutes late" and a little more of "The Frisbie school." There are many illustrations, some of them full page, and lots of poems to please the little ones. Price $1.00 per year.

Ingalls' Home and Art Magazine. Published by J. F. Ingalls', Lynn, Mass.

This number has one of the lovely colored plates of which there are four during the year. This one is pond lillies and no doubt many painters will try to copy it. This magazine deals with art in all its forms, taking up water color, oil, china painting, modeling, needle work, crochet, and artistic house furnishing.

The pages of letters are not the least pleasing of the number, and probably many readers will turn first to the King's Daughter page. The price of the magazine is only $1.00 per year.

"About an Old New England Church, an address on the 'Good Old Days,' published as a souvenir of the One Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of the Congregational Church of Sharon, Connecticut, by the Rev. Gerald Stanley Lee." Congregational Sunday School & Publishing Society, Boston and Chicago. 89 pages; gilt top. Fifty cents (in stamps or postal note); clergymen 35 cents. For sale by dealers or postpaid by W. W. Knight & Co., Sharon, Conn.

Here is something rich and racy, notwithstanding the age and dryness of the theme. Mr. Lee has not given us a history, very far from it, but he has thrown enough of it into his memorial discourse to give the latter a historic flavor. This town of Sharon is one of the extreme western towns in the State of Connecticut, so near the border, in fact, that one has to leave the cars in the State of New York and to ride in a stage over hills and through valleys to reach it. It is in Litchfield County and Sharon station is on the Harlem railroad. The tourist who goes to the town will wish to go again. There is abundance of material in the records of the town and church for a veritable history, but were such prepared, it would in no way impair the value of this most readable little book. The preacher evidently is a humorist and his fancy gives us delightful pictures of the "long ago." From the book, we may gather the names of successive pastors and something about their characteristics; but the address is, better, a comment on the ways of the fathers and a running contrast with the manners of today. All of this is given in such an exceptionally bright and humorous style that, once opened, the book is seldom closed, till finished. We are carried back to the opening of the town and church and then, with our preacher we come along down the century and a half of time, getting here and there, very bright side lights on all sorts of matters pertaining to that good old Connecticut town. One feels, on finishing the reading, that he has nearly "been there;" that he has seen the Rev. John Cotton Smith and he inwardly rejoices that the present pastor was prompted to look up "ye past" that he might the better direct the present. Irrespective of denominational lines, there are very few readers who would not be delighted with this elegantly printed little book. It is a valuable addition to that most interesting of collections, the history of the New England Churches.

The Complete Music Reader for High and Normal Schools, Academies and Seminaries by Charles E. Whiting, formerly teacher of Music in the Boston Public Schools. Boston, D. C. Heath & Co., 1891.

In a book of 224 pages, Mr. Whiting has placed 119 selections. These are divided as follows: 12 two-part songs, 25 three-part songs, 30 four-part, 12 anthems and choruses, 32 hymn tunes and 8 patriotic tunes. Every piece is of a high order and represents a wide range of musical authorship. The first forty-eight pages are given to a very clear and comprehensive discussion of the principles of music. Among the authors represented are Silcher, Spohr, Abt, Beethoven, Handel, Adams, Smart, Mr. Whiting, himself, Russell, Schumann and many others, known to fame, besides many tunes arranged from old German and English airs. The hymn tunes are, of course, adapted to devotional exercises in school and are of a quality to prompt the highest appreciation.

The number of patriotic selections might have been increased without impairment. Too much music of a national character is impossible. The time is coming when all the "linked sweetness, long drawn out" that can be had will be needed to hold together this mass of unassimilated material that we call the American people.

The name of Mr. Whiting is worthily mentioned in connection with those of Lowell Mason and Jules Eichberg who have done so much for the teaching of music in our public schools, and not the least pleasing feature in this book is the number of times that the author's name appears as composer or arranger. The publishers have done the music loving public a grateful service by presenting this excellent work. It deserves a wide popularity.

Magazine of New England History, July 1891. Newport, R. I., R. H. Tilly.

Nothing more thoroughly indicates the growing importance of historical studies in our land than the multiplication of periodicals devoted to this subject and, further, the localizing of the publications themselves. The magazine of American History has an exceedingly wide scope, too wide, some may think. Our New England pamphlet confines itself as indicated; but this theme is broad enough.

In this current number, there is an extended genealogy of the John Pearce family of Portsmouth, R. I.; Record of Marriages by Rev. Gardner Thurston, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, Newport, R. I., 1759—1800; some Indian names of places on Long Island, N. Y., and their correspondence in Virginia;

Notes and Queries: Extracts from Letter Book of Samuel Hubbard arranged by Ray Greene Huling; Masonian Proprietor's Record, New Hampshire; Early New England Patents; Record of Marriages, by Rev. Rozel Cook, Montville, Conn., 1794; Book Notes and Announcements. That party who wishes to get all possible, concerning New England will find the Magazine of New England History invaluable.

Alfred Tennyson on Thursday the 6th inst, observed the 82d anniversary of his birth at Haslemere, surrounded by relatives and friends. The poet laureate bears his years well, and seems strong and well, as, indeed, he says he is. He was deluged with letters and telegrams of congratulation, among the most cordial of the messages being one from the queen.

Many readers will be interested to learn that Jerome K. Jerome wrote his first book, "On the Stage—And Off," when he was but nineteen years old.

D. C. Heath & Co., have just published a Manual of Plane Geometry, on the Heuristic plan, with numerous extra exercises, both Theorems and Problems, for advanced work, by G. Irving Hopkins, instructor in Mathematics and Physics, Manchester High School, N. H., with an introduction by Prof. Safford, of Williams College.

The book is designed primarily for the author's pupils, and secondarily for the constantly increasing number of teachers who are getting more and more dissatisfied with the old methods of teaching geometry.

Cosmopolitan for August. Cosmopolitan Publishing Co., New York.

The most prominent feature of this number is the first installment of Amélie Rives' new story "According to St. John." This will be read with great interest on account of its being the first work by this young writer after a silence of two years. The story is illustrated by Kate Greator, a promising young American artist in Paris. Valerian Gribayedoff, who is called the "father of pictorial journalism" contributes to this number an article on Pictorial Journalism and Fannie A. Matthews writes about "The Woman's Press Club of New York." Gen. Adam Badeau of Grant's staff, afterwards Secretary of Legation in London tells about "Gambling in High Life"; President Gilman of Johns Hopkins writes about that great school; and Murat Halstead makes the cartoons which have been published of Bismarck the subject of his monthly contribution. Other articles are "The Ducal Town of Uzès" by T. A. Janvier; "Placer Mining" by J. P. Reed; "Dissected Emotions" by J. B. Roberts; "The Dukeries" by C. S. Pelham—Clinton; "The Court Jesters of England" by Esther Singleton; "The Romance of an Hour" by John Bowles; "Emigration from Cities" by E. E. Hale; "Books about Four Great Cities" by Brander Matthews. There are also poems as follows: "Environment" by Edgar Fawcett; "A Bal-lade of Lovers" by Marion M. Miller; "The Bridal Dress" by Isabel Gordon; "The Long Ago" by J. V. Cheney; "The Refiner's Fire" by Willis B. Allen.

No Fishing on the Sabbath.

Why Hannibal Hamlin did not Fish on this Day.

Since the death of ex-Vice-President Hannibal Hamlin the papers throughout the country have contained many items of personal interest concerning this great man. Mr. Hamlin, among other things, was particularly fond of out door sports, and nothing in this line afforded him so much pleasure as a fishing trip. He was what the sportsmen would term "a born angler," and within a few years of his death no mountain brook was impassable to him, and he had fished in nearly every lake and pond in his own State.

An incident comes to the writer's mind concerning Mr. Hamlin on one of these expeditions which may not be without interest to the readers of the Amateur Sportsman.

We had been in the wilds of Maine for several days, and had great sport in fishing. To look back over this trip there is no more pleasant remembrance than that of viewing the late Vice-President seated on some huge boulder or on the edge of an old dam, rod in hand and waiting patiently for a bite. When Sunday morning came he issued from the tent in company with the others. After looking over the lake, and taking in with pleasure the view of the landscape—for he was an admirer of nature's works—he turned to us and said:

"Boys, to-day is the Sabbath. I don't know as I object very strongly to fishing Sunday, and if you want to cast a line, all right. For myself I think I will 'stay here at camp. I like to spend Sunday in a quite manner."

It was long after this—if I remember rightly, soon after breakfast—when Mr. Hamlin related the following incident, and it may be said here that after he had done none of the party had any desire for fishing that day, or, if the desire prevailed, respect for this hero made them abstain:

"Some of you may think it a little strange that I like to fish on weekdays, but Sundays do not care for the sport. When I was a lad I was very fond of hunting, and whenever an opportunity afforded, which was not very often, was off for a tramp through the wood. One Sunday, I remember well the day, I left the house unbeknown to anyone, taking with me the old flint-lock gun which always rested on a rack in front of the fireplace. I don't know why it was, but I had an unusual good luck and killed thirteen partridges. On nearing the house I hid them in the bushes. Early the next morning I took the gun down again and told mother I was going off for a short walk. Well, I tramped all that forenoon and did not see a single bird. When I entered the kitchen I had the string of partridges I had shot the day before, and throwing them on the floor, said I guess they would make a good stew for dinner. My mother at once commenced picking the birds. It was not long before she looked up at me and said: 'Han, seems to me these birds are rather cold for those shot to-day.' That was all she said, boys, but it taught me a lesson, and I have never since fired a gun Sunday or dropped a fish-line on that day."—W. Stanhope Huston in Amateur Sportsman July, 1891.

A Selfish Man.

SCENE.—A pleasant drawing-room Gertie, seated in a cozy arm-chair. Cecil, in devoted attitude, on ottoman near her.

Gertie—But do you love me unselfishly, just for myself alone—my soul, my spirit?

Cecil (to the ceiling)—Oh, she asks me this after my long worship—my utter—

Gertie—Ah, man's love is nearly always selfish. It is so different from a woman's sacrificing enduring affection.

Cecil—Only let me prove to you in some way how dearly, how sincerely I love—

Gertie (suddenly decisive)—I will, Cecil I consent to marry you—

Cecil (breathlessly)—Oh, Ger—

Gertie—Yes, gladly, delightedly—for I am very fond of you—on one condition. You know how I love music?

Cecil (faintly)—Ye-es.

Gertie—That you will send me abroad for three years to study—to perfect my voice?

Cecil (bewildered)—Send you?

Gertie—It has been my dream—my ambition. I know I have a voice, and, Cecil, you know that I have.

Cecil (with deep feeling)—Indeed, I do.

Gertie—I have no right to ignore this gift. It is my duty to cultivate it, and if I should become a famous prima donna, Cecil, think how you would feel.

Cecil (forlornly)—I can just imagine it, dear.

Gertie—But I should need three years of earnest study. This is the middle of July. I could be ready to start about the first of August.

Cecil (grasping the situation)—Then you mean that I shall marry you and send you abroad for three years alone?

Gertie—Or come with me, if you like. (Magnanimously.) I am perfectly willing you should come with me.

Cecil—My dear girl! Leave my business for three years? I could not leave it for three months, much less—

Gertie (with gracious concession)—Well, I would come over every year or so to see you.

Cecil—Every year or so? But, Gertie, darling, I should like to have my wife beside me in my house—not at the other side of the world.

Gertie (sadly)—How selfish—how very, very like a man!

Cecil (calmly)—It is—rather.

Gertie—And knowing my aspirations, would you let me sacrifice this dear dream of my heart, just to be with you, to make you happy? And you call that love? That poor, grasping selfishness, love?

Cecil (reasoningly)—Wouldn't it strike you, Gertie, that you—er—ah—might seem—a little bit—selfish—too?

Gertie (in amazement)—I selfish? I?

Cecil (humbly)—Well, you certainly—appear to have your own way. But, now, dear (as if a sudden thought had flashed on him), let us look at this matter rationally—let us examine it just as it is. Ahem! You have made me an offer of marriage—

Gertie (gasping)—Oh, fri-i-ghtful thing to say!

Cecil—I mean you have proposed to me—

Gertie—Proposed to you?

Cecil—But, you have surrounded your proposal with conditions that make it simply impossible for me to accept. I realize, of course, that you have bestowed on me the highest honor a woman can bestow on a man—

Gertie Cecil? Mr. Clington!

Cecil (entreatingly)—I beg you will not urge me. The circumstances that compel me to refuse to be your husband need not wholly estrange us. Think of me as a broth—

Gertie (rising indignantly)—Sir, this is an insult! How dare you?

Cecil (aside)—I really don't know, except that I have tried every other method. (To Gertie, gently, and looking at her with a compassionate gaze.) Because I must, because it would be cruel to allow you to hope. (Aside.) I wonder if she recognizes her own words? She's said them often enough. (To Gertie.) I shall always remember you most kindly, and I will pray that you may yet find a love more worthy of your true noble heart. (Aside.) That, I think, was rather neatly done; but I mustn't spin it out. (To Gertie.) Good-bye Miss Holdoff. It is useless to prolong this painful interview. Good-bye! (Exit Cecil, hurriedly.)

Gertie (flinging herself on a couch and sobbing wildly)—Oh, how horrible of him to say that I made him an of-of-offer! But I did, and and he—can tell people! Oh, he wouldn't do that! But he can! And to believe that I'd go abroad—and leave—him? I wouldn't go if I was beaten there. But they'll believe anything? And he'll never come again—and I can't—can't tell him. Oh he has no sense—they never have. But he does know that I love him. He does—the outrageous thing? The miserable hateful— Oh, you poor, splendid fellow! I never did deserve you!

But she did deserve him, and he did come again and in due time Miss Holdoff became Mrs. Clington.—Argonaut.

B. F. P. Cory, Geo. P. Mattoon and James Dolan were registered recently at the Eagle, Charlestown, N. H.

Rev. H. W. Lathe, who retired from the pastorate of the First Church, Northampton, July 1, and has since been residing in this city, sails for Europe from New York today, and, with his wife, will spend a year abroad, which will include a trip to the Holy Land.

Harry Parker, son of Hon. Henry L. Parker, is in Worcester, and will remain here for several weeks.

Miss Florence Crosby of Miss Kimball's Home School has been entertaining Miss Gertrude O'Neil of Newport, R. I., and Miss Georgia Bates of Webster, former school friends, at her home in Brookfield.

Mrs. Mary A. Lathe and daughter, Miss Martha Lathe, represent Worcester at Bethlem, N. H.

Ephraim Whitman and party were recent guests at the Thorndike, Rockland, Me.

Rev. Rufus M. Taft and family are occupying the Kimball cottage at Ocean Bluff.

Hon. Chas. B. Pratt, wife and granddaughter, Lucy A., have been taking a carriage drive to Newton and Boston.

Miss Lizzie Allen after a yachting trip along the Maine coast with friends will return to Cottage City for a few weeks.

Mrs. Catherine Hart and Miss Katie J. Hart started Monday for Salisbury Beach for two weeks.

Mrs. Jennie Abbott Mattoon figured in recent Boston Sunday papers as being present at a hop at North Conway, N. H., last Wednesday, the 5th, attired "in an elaborate costume of lavender and pink."

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus B. Fowler, Miss Susie B. Fowler and H. W. Fowler were among the participants in a tally-ho coach ride to the Flume, from Bethlehem, N. H., last week.

Frank Roe Batchelder, private Secretary of Hon. Joseph H. Walker was at Winthrop Beach, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Blair one week ago.

Walter S. Bliss and George R. Bliss, Jr., left Monday for a month's vacation. They will divide up their time between Lake Ellis at Athol, Westfield, and the Bliss homestead at Gill, Mass.

Mr. Albert Tuson and family are spending the month of August at the Sea View Hotel, Cottage City.

Miss Florence M. Dodge is visiting friends at Putnam and Danielsonville, Conn.

Mrs. Annette E. Hubbard has returned to the city from her stay at Wellesley.

Addison E. McGaffey is the bass soloist in the First Unitarian Church choir during Mr. Hammond's absence in Europe.

Robert L. Ward left Tuesday for a vacation at the Webster House, at Green Harbor, Marshfield.

David Boyden and family are at Wales, Mass.

W. F. Dearborn and wife are at Tower House, Falmouth Heights.

Walter M. Hunt will spend a week's vacation with his friends in Boston and vicinity.

Miss Minnie Crompton and Miss Mildred Crompton are at Newport.

Mr. Charles H. Draper will forget dull care for a time, having left the City last Monday for a two weeks trip to Casco Bay and surrounding happy spots in Maine. Mr. E. F. Remington bears him company.

Mr. Henry P. Murray, teller of the Quinsigamond Bank is away for a fortnight at Monhegan, Island, Me.

Miss Madge Keyes and Annie Boswell will spend their vacation at Block Island, beginning August 17.

Misses Mary E. Convery and Josie Convery are enjoying a few weeks' rest at Block Island.

The Misses Athy of Green street and Miss Mary McCoy of Westboro are at Nantasket.

The Festival of Bayreuth.

(From a private letter by a Worcester lady)

In a little town in the middle of Germany, and in a curious, moderate-sized theatre, with no aisles and many side entrances, a buzz of anticipation had been increasing for an hour; now, almost every one was on his feet, looking for friends or watching the crowd.

It is, perhaps, proper to say here, that this theatre was built for the performance of Wagner's Operas, during the seventies, by Ludwig II, who, poor fellow, did lay the foundation of much good and enjoyment, if he was demented and a spendthrift. Wagner designed the theatre himself and it can be cleared of its occupants in three minutes in case of fire, which you know is a great bugbear with some people. There is only the smallest apology for a gallery and every seat in the house is a good one.

At 4 o'clock, precisely, a long soft tone from a horn is heard; the buzz subsides a little; in a minute more another louder and longer horn-note and the audience begins to seat itself; the lights are suddenly lowered and instantly, the people are so hushed that the silence is intense.

Then begins the slow solemn notes of the Introduction to "Parsifal." This and two others of Wagner's Operas "Tristan" and "Tannhauser," are the only ones given this year, twenty performances in all. Between every two acts an interval of an hour is allowed, when every one goes out, and either strolls off into the beautiful country walks on the hill, or resorts to the large café on the grounds. The Opera lasts, including the waits, from four o'clock till nearly ten p. m. No applause is allowed, and any attempt in that direction, by unaccustomed spectators, is instantly hissed down. Even at the close, the expression of approval is not great, though perfectly definite in character. The singing is finely dramatic in most instances. In the case of some of the older singers, one can see or rather hear, expressions of impatience, or sharp criticism, as in the case of Winkelmann who sang Tannhauser, and also in the cases of some of the very young artists. But one should remember that underneath, "behind the scenes" are so many hard things for the actors to bear, that certainly they merit our sympathy instead of our censure. One of the traditions of Tannhauser is, that Elizabeth, the heroine, who really dies of a broken heart, must be a quite young person. One of the young girls who sang a minor part in "Parsifal" was appointed to sing the "Elizabeth" and only two hours before the performance was to begin, she had to give up and another one must take the part at so short notice that she was frightened nearly to death, poor creature. She did very well, however, and only after people had expressed themselves as freely as they chose, did they learn that it was not the singer whom they thought they had under fire. The stage setting is usually beyond criticism. Never before this year has Tannhauser been given in Bayreuth, because "it could not be afforded." Now you must try and imagine a scene half an hour long where not a word is spoken, but where the eye has to flash from one lovely setting to another change and the description of the subject is only in pantomime. Imagine, if you can, the whole stage, or a part of it, as is necessary, walking off sideways. Trap doors are nothing; nearly all the flooring may be engulfed at one touch, and another appear in its place. The tales are nearly all from old Arthurian legends; Wagner had dressed them in his own words, but he did not by any means originate them.

This morning it has been my privilege to go to the Royal Library at Munich and look at the originals from the Meistersinger Wolfram von Eschenbach, of the four books of Parsifal, one book of Tristan, and the two or three of the Nibelungen Lied. They are kept as religiously in their cases, as is the first old Wurttemberg Bible of forty-two lines, in its case across the room. One may call the Germans a most solid and practical people, if one pleases, I believe them to be a most romantic people.

Tristan was sung by Alvary, the tenor who roused America to such enthusiasm two years ago. He is now under ten years contract at Hamburg, and I think rather disappointed his friends in Tristan until he came to the last act where he dies quite frantically. Alvary is certainly not a good lover. Sucher, the Isolde, is a Berlin singer, and a great favorite. She is a great friend of the people where we are staying, and one really wouldn't dare, even if so inclined, to say anything against her.

Madam Wagner directs every detail of the stage from a high chair in one of the wings, and although there are two orchestra leaders, one can easily understand that she is the presiding genius. On days when there is no opera, she has a home reception, to which all strangers are welcomed. There were many familiar American faces in the audience. Nikisch and his wife and Walter Damrosch and his wife, were, of course there and some of our own Worcester people who got their tickets almost by sheer force of pluck, probably enjoyed the performances all the more for their determined persistence. If one is not a Wagnerite at all, one of the pleasantest bits out of a summer in Europe, that could be desired, is a week for the traveller at one of the future "stage festivals." E. H. M.

Mrs. George Burrage is with her sons in Ithaca, N. Y.

Henry F. Harris, Esq., and family are at the Bass Rock House, Gloucester.

By the Squirrel Island Squid, it appears that our irrepressible friend, George Woodward is picking up items "Way down in Maine." George is bound to find facts where there are any and if, by any chance, they don't exist, why George isn't going away empty, not at all.

Mr. Louie E. Ware, Cornell, '92, had made up his mind to return to college for the remainder of his vacation, when the Telegram offered such superior attraction that he yielded and will aid that enterprising journal the rest of the summer.

Walter L. Sprague of the W. H. S., Class of '93, is taking an outing in New York State, visiting his cousin, E. A. Sprague of Rochester and taking in The Thousand Islands, Niagara Falls and Watkins Glen. New York has samples of all the wonders of the world.

A Rollway.

Muskegan River.

Like bulwarks built to check a savage foe,
The trim-cut logs are piled, and crowned with snow,
Deep and hard crusted, like a massive mail
Bent on to turn the foeman's leaden hail.

Beside the silent ice-bound river stand
These frozen piles; around the stumpy land
Marks where the pine trees, barons of this wood,
In ranks primeval an unbroken stood.

The spring tides of the river swiftly run.
In w. olen garb of many colors spun,
Come stalwart men with swinging hooks of steel
That make these bastions of old winter reel.

The huge logs roll before the wood-men's lunge,
And deep within the leaping waters plunge;
Then rise, their summer journeying to make
To where great mills range by the le ser lake.

- C. L. Cleveland.

Charles E. Dunbar, who has been for the past two weeks down the Maine coast, was in the city recently.

Miss Cora Forbes of Providence is the guest of Col. and Mrs. A. S. Taft for a few days. She will visit Princeton before returning home.

John J. Riordan and Dr. James R. Fitzpatrick are having their vacation on Block Island.

Mr. Harry H. Allen of this city, a graduate of the W. P. I., Class of '87 and for the past three years principal of the Union Grammar School, Millbury, left today for Washington, D. C., where he will take the position of Fourth Assistant Examiner in the United States Patent Office.

Rev. Dr. McGiffert of Cincinnati, who occupied the pulpit at Old South Sunday is an intimate friend and classmate of the pastor, Rev. Dr. Conrad.

Rev. Robert Walsh, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, will sail from New York Wednesday, August 19, for a months' trip to Ireland.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ingraham, Miss Nellie L. Ingraham, Mrs. Mary L. Adams and Master Arthur I. Adams of North Brookfield are at Provincetown.

Harry S. Myrick left the city Friday, the 7th, for Monhegan, Island, Maine.

A. N. Currier left Saturday last for the Goodnow House, Franconia, White Mountains.

Miss Bella Devlin is spending a few days at Cambridge, Lowell and Nantucket.

Walter L. Brown and wife left the city Monday for Bar Harbor. They will be gone two weeks.

Annie M. Alton has returned home from a two weeks' vacation at Providence and Newport.

Annie E. Crawford will spend August in Michigan.

Fred A. Bigelow, a recent graduate of the Institute, sailed for Antwerp in the Red Star Steamer, Waisland, last Wednesday. He will spend a year in study and travel.

Our Schools.

CHAPTER IV.

Politics and Natural History.

That there is need of a radical reform in our entire school management is painfully apparent to every intelligent citizen: that this reform is a matter of great difficulty, has been shown by the slow progress or no progress of the past year. There are several reasons to be given for this delay in the progress of reform, and among the most powerful is the political influence which has been heretofore referred to. As a result of it there is a class of committee men, which under certain persistent manipulation, weighs like a millstone about the neck of the committee and is a constant obstacle to any progress or reform that may be attempted by the more thoughtful and intelligent members of the committee.

Some of the class referred to have for many years been able to foist themselves upon the board by means of the political "pull" they have adroitly worked upon their not too intelligent constituency.

The ease with which they have achieved and held their places on the board, through political maneuvering, has given them an audacity and arrogance of demeanor towards their associates, so ungentlemanly and offensive as to go far towards disgusting the gentlemen on the committee—making their duties irksome and disagreeable; yet they persist in sticking to their seats on the board with the tenacity of a mollusk on a rock—a sort of "Tite Barnacle" and like all barnacles they are obstructive of all progress.

There is yet another class of committee men who belong to the family of mollusks—entirely invertebrate and with shells so soft as to be susceptible to any outside pressure, if applied with sufficient flattery and persistence; they acquire a place on the committee through the mistaken confidence of their constituents, whom they desert after they have been sufficiently manipulated. In alluding to these aquatic animals—if animals they may be called—one is reminded of the octopus, the most mischievous of the species. This monster has eight long arms, which, when he can use them, possess the singular power of paralyzing the creatures that come within their reach; possibly the imbecility of certain soft-shells may have been owing to some such influence.

Another peculiarity of this creature is his power of concealing himself in his own ink and thus for the time escaping his pursuers; but sometimes a too free use of this fluid renders it so "thin" that it does not serve his purpose and only makes the monster appear more hideous and disgusting.

Last year's city election demonstrated that most of these "Tite Barnacles" may be dislodged by earnest work on the part of the voters, but there is some danger that they may be replaced by mollusks quite as dangerous, whose soft shells cannot resist certain solvents, when applied to them by a practised manipulator.

Both these classes will eventually be eliminated and it is hoped that the work so well begun last year will be followed up at the next election, in which case there will be few or no obstructionists left, except a few of the "Tite Barnacles" which can only be ground out by the slow-grinding "mills of God."

From present indications it is safe to predict that both soft shells and barnacles, whose terms expire this year will nearly all be swept from the board and their places supplied by live men, who will help to reorganize the committee on a basis more in accordance with the needs of the schools and the views and wishes of the people.

H. H. C.

The Girls' Revenge.

Edith—My dear, I had more fun last evening than I ever had before. Some of my proposals have had a tinge of the ludicrous, but yesterday's was simply delicious! He was in earnest; he pawed the earth like a grizzly bear; he vowed great big cast-iron vows, and all together was grand.

Helen—Well, dear, you didn't accept, of course?

Edith—Well, no, hardly, after what I have said; but he was so desperately in love I couldn't refuse him with a bang, and I wouldn't dare say sister to him, so I said I would let him know to-day, but not to hope. Isn't it funny to feel you are the one and only chance of another's happiness?

Helen—Yes, dear; but it's a great responsibility.

Edith—I know it is. I wonder what he'll do when I tell him he must forget me and learn to love another. I hope he won't do some stupid, rash thing.

Helen—By-the-bye, dear, aren't you going to tell me who it was?

Edith—I don't think I ought to, do you?

Helen—Well, I had a proposal yesterday afternoon, and if you will tell me who made yours, I'll tell you about mine.

Edith—All right. Mine was made by Jack Rivers.

"Wh-a-a at!" fairly screamed Helen, "Jack Rivers! The brute! the beast! the hypocrite! Why, he is the man who proposed to me yesterday, and I gave him the same answer that you did. I told him I would let him know to-day, and he was just as much in earnest with me, as he pawed the earth like a grizzly bear, and he vowed vows and was altogether grand. Oh, this is too much."

Edith looked as if she had lost the power of speech forever. At last she gasped: "Do you mean to say that—"

Helen—Yes; I mean to say that he has proposed to both of us on the same day—made fools of us both on the same day, and probably thinks it a huge joke.

Edith (recovering, with a look of vengeance in her eye)—He must be punished.

Helen—He shall be punished!

Edith—There is but one way. He proposed to us, knowing he would be refused. Let us disappoint him; let us both accept.

Helen—But, Edith, you're crazy! Of course it would put him in an awful hole, but when you're engaged to a man, he thinks he has a right to—that is—well, suppose he should try to ki—kiss you?

Edith—Oh, we can postpone that. We will only be engaged to him twenty-four hours. He will worry himself to death in that time.

And they did it, and Jack Rivers grew ten years older in that one day.

The girls think they got even. So does Jack.—Emily Norton in Truth.

Old Times.

DEAR LIGHT:—Reading of a tremendous thunder shower recalls to my mind an anecdote of a famous character of Worcester's olden times, whose name—Theo. Weston—will recall to the minds of the older inhabitants, a great humorist, a keen wit and practical joker, but to the later generations will be but a name, which has already been mentioned in LIGHT by H. H. C., and nothing more.

Weston happened in at the United States Hotel—the great stage tavern of the days before the Rail Roads—as he was apt to do at about eleven o'clock to "see a friend through a glass darkly," and while there, there came up a tremendous thunder shower, in the midst of which a stage load of passengers came in from Springfield en route for Boston, and stopped at the hotel for dinner. Just as they alighted and gathered in the bar room there came a terrific peal of thunder and a vivid flash of lightning, which was received with many an oh! my! ah!

A sedate looking man of ministerial appearance turned to Weston and said, "Most terrific thunder, sir!" "Yes," said Weston, with face as solemn as an owl's, "It is generally considered that Worcester has the most terrific thunder and the most vivid lightning of any place in the country according to the population."

Here is another anecdote in which a son of Worcester, who afterward wrote his name on the history of Massachusetts as one of the brightest ornaments of her judiciary, was a party.

Hon. B. F. Thomas, when a boy, lived with his grandfather, Isaiah Thomas, the greatest publisher and printer of his day, who lived on Court Hill and had a fine garden. "Benny," being anxious to make a few pennies for himself picked some cherries and went out to sell them, and he wandered into Weston's paint shop on Mechanic street and Weston was there. Benny said to him, "Want to buy some cherries, Mr. Weston?" "I don't know Benny, lets see" and Benny held up his basket and Weston took a good handful and began to eat, and to praise the cherries. "Very fine cherries Benny, very fine indeed," and so he kept talking and eating till Benny's patience became nearly exhausted, and he said, "Well, Mr. Weston you want to buy some?" "No, I guess not today, Benny" said Weston. Benny's patience could bear the strain no longer and gave away, and he blurted out, "Too gor ram bad, Weston to keep tasting, and tasting, and then not buy any!" And so perhaps this first failure as a merchant turned him to the law and made the brilliant lawyer, the elegant orator, and the learned judge he became; but the genial spirit of his boyhood survived the dignity of the judge, and the ermine that covered a soul of spotless purity, could not smother his love of the beautiful, nor the enjoyment of a good story, nor a joke, and his generous laugh was but the index of the heart whence it came, and now, years away, when the sod on his grave has been grassed by many a springtime, comes to me, and thousands more, the sweet proud memory that I could call him "my friend." H.

Worcester, Aug. 1891.

Public Library Additions.

Books added during the first part of June. I indicates that the book is in the Intermediate department and may be taken out if specially called for.

ADAMS, J. C. Christian types of heroism - - - - - 34164
 ALLEN, J. L. Flute and violin; and other Kentucky tales - - - 34165
 BACON, A. M. Japanese girls and women - - - - - 34166
 BATES, A. A book o' nine tales - 34167
 BAZAN, E. P. A Christian Woman; tr. by M. Springer - - - - 34168
 BARRIE, J. M. When a man's single - 34161
 BEHRENS, B. (ps. W. Heimburg) A sister's love; tr. by M. P. Waterman - - - - - 34169
 BRENTANO, L. The relation of labor to the law of today; tr. by P. Sherman - - - - - 34222
 BUCHANAN, R. The wedding ring; tale of today - - - - - 34223
 BUNNER, H. C. Zadoc Pine and other stories - - - - - 34224
 BUTTERWORTH, H. The log school-house on the Columbia - - - 34225
 CALKINS, W. Keystones of faith or What and why we believe - - 34155
 CHURCH, R. W. The Oxford movement, twelve years, 1833-1845 - 34226
 CLARK, D. K. The Steam Engine, 4 vols. - - - - - 34156-9
 CLOWES, W. L. Black America; the ex-slave and his late master - 34227
 CROSBY, M. A violin obligato and other stories - - - - - 34228
 DAVIS, R. H. Gallegher and other stories - - - - - 34229
 DEGEN, von. A mystery of the Campagna; and A shadow on a wave - 34230
 DINIZ, J. pseud. The fidalgos of Casa Mourisca; tr. by R. L. Dabney - - - - - 34231
 EGGLESTON, G. C. and MARBOURG, D. Juggernaut; a veiled record - 34232
 FINCH, H. T. Spain and Morocco; studies in local color - - - - 34233
 FRENCH, A. (ps. O. Thanet) Otto the knight and other trans-Mississippi stories - - - - - 34234
 FURNISS, G. L. A box of monkeys and other farce comedies - - - 34235
 GLADDEN, W. Who wrote the Bible? a book for the people - - - - 34236
 GRANT, J. B. Our common birds and how to know them - - - - - 34237
 GRAY, A. Elements of Botany for beginners and schools (Lessons in Botany, rev. ed.) - - - - - 34153
 Elements of Botany for beginners and schools; and manual of botany, rev. ed. - - - - - 34154
 GRIFFIS, W. E. Honda the Samurai; story of modern Japan - - - - 34238
 GUTHRIE, F. A. (ps. F. Austey) Tourmalin's time cheques - - - - 34160
 HARRIS, J. C. Balaam and his master; and other stories - - - - 34239
 HARRISON, S. F. Pine, rose and fleur de lis - - - - - 34240
 HIGGINSON, T. W. Life of Francis Higginson (Makers of America) 34241

HOLDER, C. F. Charles Darwin, his life and work (Leaders in Science) 34242
 HOLLAND, F. M. Frederick Douglass; the colored orator - - - - - 34243
 HOWELLS, W. D. Criticism and fiction - - - - - 34244
 IMBERT, de St. ARMAND, A. L. Marie Louise; the island of Elba and the hundred days, tr. - - - - 34245
 ISHAM, A. B. and others. Prisoners of war and military prisons - - 34152
 JEROME, J. K. Diary of a pilgrimage; and six essays - - - - - 34246
 JOHNSTON, R. M. The Primes and their neighbors; tales of Georgia - 34247
 KEEP, R. P. Essential uses of the modes in Greek and Latin; rev. ed. 34248
 KIRSCHNER, L. (ps. O. Schubin) "O Thou, My Austria!" tr. by A. L. Wister - - - - - 34249
 KNIGHT, W. Essays in philosophy, old and new - - - - - 34250
 LANGTON, R. The childhood and youth of Charles Dickens - - - 34251
 LARCHEY, L. Ancien armorial equestre de la Toison d'or et de l'Europe au 15e siècle; fac similé - I
 LOWELL, P. Noto, an unexplored corner of Japan - - - - - 34252
 MAHAFFY, J. P. The Greek world under Roman sway from Polybius to Plutarch - - - - - 34254
 MCKAY, F. E. ed. Vignettes; real and ideal stories by American authors - - - - - 34253
 MEREDITH, G. The case of General Ople and Lady Camper - - - - 34150
 MORRISON, L. A. Among the Scotch, Irish, etc., - - - - - 34151
 NEW England Magazine, vol. 4 - 34170
 ORR, A. Life and letters of Robert Browning, 2 vols. - - - - - 34148-9
 OXFORD, Eng. City documents 1268-1665; select. and ed. by J. E. T. Rogers (Oxford Hist. Soc. Pubs.) I
 PARSONS, T. The professor's letters - 34255
 PERRY, T. S. A history of Greek literature - - - - - 34256
 QUERARD, J. M. Les supercheries litteraires dévoillées, 3 vols. - I
 SMOCK, J. C. Building stone in New York (New York State Museum Bull. Sept. 1890) - - - - - I
 WEISS, B. Biblical theology of the New Testament; tr. by D. Eaton, 2 vols. - - - - - 34162-3
 Year-book of scientific and learned societies of Gr. Britain and Ireland, 1891 - - - - - I

OVER ON OUR STREET.

We hear much about flower missions and a beautiful institution they are, bringing rays of happiness into otherwise darkened lives. Just at present there are many possessing more of nature's bright colors than their neighbors, so they are carrying some about to gladden gardenless homes. It was a pretty sight to see Mrs. — with a well filled basket upon her arm leaving nice little bouquets of Nasturiums at homes where they didn't grow. That was a practical way of dealing with the surplus that should be emulated. With others, LIGHT renders thanks.

Then, too, from a garden which has been the delight and diversion of a grand old gentleman, for many a year, there came a nosegay with more hues than those of the rainbow. What thoughts arose, on seeing it, of that companion of the sender who along life's way had journeyed with him. Rude Death has surrendered their pathways only for a season.

"It never rains but it pours." Our street was generous, last week, and such generous donations. Here's something for nothing" is the boyish remark accompanying an assortment of beauties, culled from a collection which affords great enjoyment to the cultivator and to those who pass. We are proud of our street.

Still speaking of flowers, we have some little folks who, recently, have been turning an honest penny. Dear little boy and girl! They appear regularly, morning, noon and night to meet the people going to work or returning home and offer such pretty little button hole bouquets for sale. "Only a penny," or possibly, if extra large, two cents. The children are so innocent, clean and pretty that they sell many a bunch of Nastursiums and Sweet Peas. Several days since, their sales had made them richer to the extent of nearly $2. How much better than roaming the streets purposeless or seeking chances for depredation.

"Take it home with you, perhaps it will please the good wife" is the remark of a gentleman who knows all about flowers as he leaves a potted plant of the Zinnia order. True enough, it did please and now it blooms apace with a neighborly geranium. The donors nmesake who was England's greatest caricaturist, scarcely gave more delight by any single act than this quiet deed afforded.

One of the pleasures of summer is hearing all the music that your neighbors make. Of course, their windows and yours are open. If there are no cornet practicers in the vicinity this is safe and then when the bustle of trade has subsided, it is delightful to hear the embryonic prima donna touch the high notes and perhaps away up to the hours when we woo the drowsy god we may be soothed by combinations of violin, horn and piano. Life is worth living yet.

How relative is happiness. Passing by the homes of wealth, where may be found all that wealth can buy, yet it was not toward them that LIGHT turned for an example of perfect bliss. That was found, rather, in the street, on a load of wood, with a clay pipe in its mouth. It may have been fifteen years old. Care will catch him yet and then good by to the supreme content that just ran out and all over that youngster. For one, LIGHT is glad that few of us are as happy as that wood seller looked. The world would stagnate. There must be some discomfort, some discontent, just to stir us up. No! Better unrest and progress, than content and retreat or a bare holding on.

Citizen (pointing out college buildings)— "There's Matthews, Gray's Weld, Thayer—"

Visitor (interrupting)— "Yes but these are all dormitories; where do the students get their education?"

Citizen—"Oh in Boston, sir, in Boston,"— Harvard Lampoon.

FOR THE LAUNDRY.
BRUSSELS
 SOAP.

HENRY A. BOWMAN & CO.

MANUFACTURERS OF

AWNINGS,
 TENTS,
 FLAGS.

HORSE, WAGONS,

AND ALL KINDS OF

Canvas Covers.

Tents for Sale and To Rent. Waterproof Tents by our new process guaranteed not to leak. The above cut represents our popular lawn tent, in Stock and made to order, 418 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

GUNS!

All grades, from all the popular Manufacturers, both IMPORTED and DOMESTIC.-----FISHING TACKLE---Everything an Angler wants. SPORTSMEN'S CLOTHING. Ammunition of all kinds. BLASTING

MATERIALS and a Complete Line of SPORTSMEN'S SUPPLIES. In the future as in the past my friends will receive a cordial welcome, with goods at the lowest prices, at the SPORTSMEN'S EMPORIUM.

E. S. KNOWLES, 416 MAIN STREET.

THE CRITERION
 Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.

231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SHREWSBURY ST.
 J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

Worcester Coal Company,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place at an early day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of

Fine Monumental Work,

131 Central Street,

near Summer.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

W. A. ENGLAND,

DEALER IN

FINE WATCHES,

CLOCKS, JEWELRY

& OPTICAL GOODS.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

394 Main Street.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,
 Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, *

NO. 156 MAIN STREET,

H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

Entertainments.

Lothrop's Opera House.

Messrs. H. Percy Meldon and Dale Armstrong, director and manager respectively of Lothrop's theatrical enterprises, have completed arrangements for the opening of the new Opera House on Pleasant Street Monday, August 17. As stated last week, the new theater is a model of neatness and beauty, and far surpasses the expectations of local critics. The scenery, which has been painted by prominent Boston artists, is very fine, showing excellent taste in the selection of designs. Messrs. Meldon and Armstrong are highly pleased with the thorough manner in which the work of building the theater has been accomplished, and say that its central location will make it a very popular resort.

The opening play selected by Mr. Meldon will be "Queenena," a society comedy-drama, in four acts, and from the success attained elsewhere will doubtless prove a powerful attraction. Miss Ethel Tucker, a young emotional actress of great talent, will appear in the role of Queenena. She is an actress for whom is predicted a great future. The following is an extract from the Portland Press, and pays a high compliment to Miss Tucker:

"Lothrop's stock company last night began their third and last week to a very large house and this too, on one of the hottest nights of the season. It is safe to say a better pleased or more enthusiastic audience never left the theater. The piece selected for their farewell appearance was the beautiful comedy-drama "Queenena," by J. K. Tillotson. It is a very pretty, simple love story written in a masterly manner, with comedy and pathos most delightfully intermingled. Interest of course centered in the appearance of Miss Ethel Tucker in the title role. During her engagement here Miss Tucker has won her way into the hearts of our theatre-goers. Her conscientious artistic work has made her many friends. Her performance last night, however, was a perfect surprise. As the simple loving wife, and as the renowned prima donna she was equally artistic and effective, but at the end of the third act, where the suffering she endures causes her to lose her reason, she scored a merited triumph. Her performance is one that will not soon be forgotten. Her costuming was very effective, in fact the dresses of all the ladies are deserving of more than passing mention. The members of the company all did excellent work. Same bill tonight and tomorrow night."

The company throughout is excellent and includes a local aspirant for histrionic fame, Miss E. Frances Newhall, who will sustain a minor part. The young lady modestly wishes to begin at the bottom of the ladder.

There will be two performances daily at 2 and 7:30 p. m., each opening with a laughable farce entitled "The Spectre Bridgroom."

The furniture used on the stage is of excellent quality. Coming from the ware-rooms of Pinkham & Willis. Also a grand piano from the music store of S. R. Leland and Son.

On Monday morning, from 10 to 12 o'clock, there will be a promenade concert for ladies only. Music will be furnished by Mme. Percival's female orchestra which is an organization of considerable note,

J. G. Folsom and Mrs. Folsom are spending their vacation at Monhegan Island.

Boston Store Vacation Notes.

Mr. J. J. Hughes and family are stopping at Old Orchard for two weeks.

Newport seems to have lost none of its attractions to those employed in the store, as the following persons will spend their vacation there: Miss Jennie Judge, Miss Mary Quinn, Miss Mary Powers, the Misses Conery, Eaton, Daniels and Spencer.

Block Island is another favorite outing place and will be the home for the next two weeks of Miss Nellie McMahon, Miss Mary McHugh and Mr. Frank Howard.

Mr. James Hartford is having a fine time in New York. Jim reports the bleaching boards a fine place to view his favorite game. He thinks the New Yorks are not in it.

Miss Maud Allen and mother go to Ohio to spend the coming three weeks.

Miss Katie McKeon will take a trip through Rhode Island.

A. M. Brownell goes to Cottage City.

Miss Pauline Beeber visits friends in Boston and vicinity, for two weeks.

Frank Clark and wife make Falmouth Heights their summer stopping place.

Miss Mary Joyce stops at Beverly, Mass.

Miss Chandler is enjoying herself at Lake Quinsigamond.

Rose Marlowe takes in Saratoga and New York in her outing.

Katie Kiley is at Newport.

Peter Muir takes the coming two weeks for his outing.

James Wilson, Jr., starts out for a two weeks trip on his new safety. Too many headers was the cause of Jim's losing faith in the old machine.

Miss Teresa Brosnihan will spend her vacation at New London, Conn.

Charles A. Hoppin, Jr., manager of the advertising department, has returned from a two weeks' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bemis with baby boy are to spend a week in Ashland and Hopkinton.

Miss Addie E. Hubbard is the guest of her friend, Miss Louise Easton, at Bar Rock Cottage, North Scituate beach for a week.

Miss Ella Tisdale of Boston Highlands is a guest at No. 3 Dix Street.

Mr. Chas. A. Smith of Smith & Nihill, the new clothing firm in the Burnside Building, has just returned from a few days business trip to New York City, and has some of the latest styles to be found in the metropolis.

Lake Park.

What Boston has long coveted, Worcester has, viz. a water park. It was LIGHT's privilege, a few days ago, to ride through the same with Mr. James Draper that member of the Parks Commission into whose special care this park has been committed. The hour or so was a period of unrivaled pleasure, for Mr. Draper has succeeded in laying out and building roads that afford the prettiest drives in the city of Worcester. Of course, the roads that bound the park are straight but no others are. They wind through the acres as blind as those of a labyrinth, were it not for the guide-boards that direct us at proper intervals. Here are roads, turf covered, as smooth and soft as velvet. The way along the lake shore reveals the beauties of that matchless jewel. The work that Mr. Draper is doing merits the highest praise and gratitude of our city.

New York & New England Railroad.

Last excursion of the season to Newport on the Steamer "City of Worcester," Wednesday, Aug. 19, '91. Round Trip Tickets only $1.75.

Train leaves Worcester at 6:20 a. m., South Worcester at 6:23. Arrives at New London 9:20 a. m., connecting with Steamer for Newport. Returning, Steamer connects at New London with Special Train for above stations.

The Steamer "City of Worcester" Elegant in all its appointments. Has two Hundred Staterooms, Large and Commodious Cabins, Saloons, and Decks.

Refreshments Served on Steamer at all Hours. State-Rooms Secured at Clerk's Office. Orchestra for Dancing. A Fine Band of Music.

Seven Hours' Sail on Long Island Sound and the Ocean! Three Hours' Stop at Fashionable Newport to visit the most Noted Resorts of the Atlantic Coast. Embrace this opportunity for enjoying a Delightful Excursion. Tickets on Sale in Worcester at City Office, 434 Main Street, G. Y. LANCASTER. Agent. D. H. Nichols, General Superintendent. A. C. Kendall, General Passenger Agent.

E. W. COFFIN,
Store Fixtures

310 Main Street, Worcester.
Name this Paper.

LEADING SAFETY BICYCLES.

Solid, Cushion and Pneumatic Tires. Full line of Supplies. Repairing a Specialty.

LEMONT & WHITTEMORE, 39 P. ARL ST.
Open evenings.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.
PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, Creditors, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of THOMAS NOLAN, late of Leicester, in said County, deceased, intestate: Greeting.

Upon the Petition of PATRICK J. QUINN, you are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the first Tuesday of September next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased should not be granted to said petitioner, without the given of surety or surties on his official bond pursuant to the statute.

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively in LIGHT a newspaper printed at Worcester the last publication to be two days, at least, before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioner, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, WILLIAM T. FORBES, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twelfth day of August in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

GEORGE W. PICKUP,

(SUCCESSOR TO SAMUEL CLARK.)

TIN PLATE, SHEET IRON and COPPER Worker,

Stove, Range and Furnace Repairer. Conductors and Ash Chutes. Refrigerators Lined and Repaired. Tin Roofing and General Jobbing. 23 years' experience in the employ of Worcester's oldest business man, Henry W. Miller. All orders promptly attended to. Shop, 10 Pleasant St., up one flight, residence, 31 Lamel St.

TRY Bronner's

ICE CREAM! Delivered to all parts of the City. Supplying Parties, Lodges, etc., a specialty. No. 131 Pleasant Street.

THE : RESERVE

The only Weekly Paper published in the interest of the Sons and Daughters of Veterans.

$1.00 PER YEAR.

Our standing offer:

A HOUSE LOT

near a growing city, for 20 subscribers. KELLEY & FORD, Publishers, 367 Washington St., Boston, Mass. CAPT. C. F. KELLEY, Camp 97, Brookline, Mass.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.
PROBATE COURT.
To the Next of Kin, Creditors, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of ALMIRA WILSON, late of Worcester, in said county, deceased, intestate: Greeting.

Upon the Petition of Martin Wilson of said Worcester, you are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the first Tuesday of September next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased should not be granted to said petitioner, without the giving of surety or securities, on his official bond pursuant to the statute.

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively in LIGHT, a newspaper printed at Worcester the last publication to be two days, at least, before said court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioner, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, William T. Forbes, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-eighth day of July in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always
be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

C. REBOLI,

Confectioner * and * Caterer,

6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

Barnard, Sumner, & Co., Vacation Notes.

Geo. D. Gifford is at his summer residence at Westport Point.

Chas. H. Muzzy has returned from Provincetown.

Miss Agnes Brosnihan and Miss Mary Kourke are seeking pleasure at Block Island.

F. D. Hickey is spending his vacation with friends in Portland.

H. A. Howe is enjoying life at his summer home in Paxton.

Miss Lizzie Burgess is visiting friends in Hardwick.

Miss Laura Tyler has returned from Detroit where she has been attending the encampment of the G. A. R.

P. Pouque has gone on an extended trip through Canada. He will return by way of Niagara Falls and Saratoga.

Miss Annie Wilson is with relatives at Spencer.

Among Worcester representatives at Newport are P. D. Sullivan, J. W. Carroll, Geo. Morreau and W. J. Gannon.

Frank Hutchins is traveling in the South, visiting historic places through Tennessee and Virginia.

Miss Margaret Reagan is at Newport.

Miss Mary Alden is stopping with friends in Pittsfield.

Geo. H. Noe has been spending his vacation in Fall River.

W. A. Lilean is in Boston for a short time.

Miss Hilma Engstrum is traveling with friends through Maine.

Miss Nora Mack is at "The Maples," Oakdale.

Miss Mary Smith is summering down Providence River.

Peter Hood has been enjoying old Ocean at Nantasket Beach.

Mrs. C. A. Browne is with a party at Newport.

A party including Mr. O. J. Wakefield and wife, Mrs. L. Bellows, Miss Nettie Tibbetts and A. H. Bellows of this city and Mr. Frank E. Vinton and wife, Miss Anna L. Dunn and Miss Flora Frost of Grafton are to spend the next two weeks at Orr's Island, Maine.

Irving H. Sawtelle will rusticate at his home in Shrewsbury.

Miss Ida E. Metcalf of Ashland has been for several days the guest of her sister, Mrs. Alfred S. Roe.

Ex-Alderman P. F. White and wife are at the old home of the Peregrim Whites in Marshfield.

Commander Chas. H. Pinkham, Post 10, G. A. R. is taking his own time coming home. He has had a three days' stay in Montreal and will have some notion of the White Mountains before he sees Worcester. He is accompanied by Mrs. Pinkham.

Masters Lee F. and Harry F. Barnes of Uxbridge are spending a portion of their school vacation with their grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Barnes at No. 16 Walnut Street.

Miss Mary A. Midgeley of LIGHT office is spending a week at home.

J. W. GREENE,
PLUMBER.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,

Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

WESBY

HAS DONE
BOOK BINDING
SINCE 1845.

387 MAIN ST. WORCESTER.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand,) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

PHOTOGRAPHER.

Children's
Portraits
A Specialty

326 MAIN ST.,
Opp. Mechanics Hall.

Underwood

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,

* PRINTERS. ***

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,

DEALER IN

Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

Boston & Albany Railroad.

ONLY
First-Class Through Car Route
TO THE
WEST!

Commencing June 7, 1891,

Through Trains Leave Worcester :

- 9 50 A. M. (ex. Sunday) Day Express.
- 11.40 A. M. Daily, "Chicago Special."
- 3.25 P. M. Daily, North Shore Limited.
- 4.17 P. M. Daily, Cincinnati and St. Louis Express.
- 8 00 P. M. Daily, Pacific Express.

SPRINGFIELD LINE

FOR

HARTFORD, NEW HAVEN AND NEW YORK.

LEAVE BOSTON.	AR. NEW YORK.
10 13 A. M.	3 30 P. M.
12.12 A. M.	5.30 P. M.
5.06 P. M.*	10 00 P. M.
12.29 A. M.*	6.45 A. M.

*Run Daily.

For tickets, information, time tables, etc., apply to JAMES CUNNINGHAM, Ticket Agent, Union Station.

A. S. HANSON, Gen. Pass. Agent.

FIICHBURG RAILROAD.

Reduced Rates of Fare

For Round Trip Tickets on Account of Summer

VACATION EXCURSIONS.

On Sale June 1st to September 30th, and good October until 31st, 1891.

FROM BOSTON TO THE

Popular Resorts of New England, New York and Canada.

Including local excursions to places in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont. The only line running Quick Trains, Superb Equipment and Through Cars via

HOOSAC TUNNEL ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO

TROY, ALBANY, SARATOGA AND NIAGARA FALLS, AND VIA LAKE

CHAMPLAIN ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO

WEST PORT, PORT HENRY, PLATTSBURG, BRANDON, BURLINGTON, ST. ALBANS, ADIRONDACKS and MONTREAL.

Summer Excursion Book

giving information in regard to routes, rates of fare and list of Hotels and Boarding Houses, can be obtained at the Company's office, 250 Washington Street, and mailed free on application to J. R. WATSON, General Passenger Agent, Boston, Mass.

Good to Eat.

Sandwiches like charity, never fail. They are always acceptable in all sorts of weather. Some sandwiches described in a recent article in the Country Gentleman may be new to many.

Whip a gill of thick sweet cream, and add to it sufficient grated Parmesan cheese to make a stiff paste; spread bread with this, and sprinkle thickly with very finely-minced white stalks of celery. These must be made just before serving, and the Parmesan must be freshly grated. If exposed to the air, it quickly becomes tasteless. If Parmesan is not obtainable, they will be found very nice made with any sharp, well-flavored American cheese that can be grated. Indeed, sapsago cheese is by no means to be despised for this purpose, but only a very thin layer of it will be required.

Is the dinner a scanty one? Bake a great dishful of tomatoes to help it out. Butter a dish and sprinkle with fine, dry crumbs; cover with slices of ripe tomatoes, which you have peeled by plunging in boiling water; season with pepper, salt and a scant half-teaspoonful of sugar; cover thickly with bread crumbs and scatter two table-spoonfuls of minced salt pork or ham over; repeat this until the dish is two-thirds full. Have the top layer of crumbs. Cover with an inverted dish and bake half an hour; remove the cover and brown. If you have no ham or pork, use a gill of nice gravy.

Devilled tomatoes are a nice accompaniment to any kind of cold meat, and help out a dinner wonderfully. Slice large, firm tomatoes, half an inch thick, and broil on a close-barred double gridiron. Before broiling make a dressing of the yolk of a hard-boiled egg, smoothly mashed with a table-spoonful each of melted butter and vinegar, with salt, pepper, sugar and made mustard to taste; heat this to a boil; take from the fire and pour slowly over a well beaten egg; beat to a smooth cream and pour over the slices of tomatoes.—Poultry Monthly.

Choose perfect, sound peaches of medium size; brush them all over with a soft brush. Boil together six quarts of water and a pint of coarse salt, and skim it until it is clear; then cool it; the quantity may be increased or diminished to suit the quantity of peaches; but this proportion of salt water must be observed. When the brine is cold, put the peaches into it and let them stand forty-eight hours. Then rinse them in cold water, dry them on a soft towel, and stick a half dozen cloves in each one. Boil and skim, till clear, as much vinegar as will well cover the peaches—the quantity may be gauged by measuring the brine—allowing for each quart of vinegar four blades of mace and a quarter of an ounce of stick cinnamon. When the vinegar has boiled about fifteen minutes put in the peaches and remove the preserving kettle containing them to the back of the fire, where its contents will not boil; let the peaches stand in the hot vinegar for five minutes, then put both peaches and vinegar at once into air-tight glass jars.

One secret act of self denial, one sacrifice of inclination to duty, is worth all the mere good thoughts, warm feelings, passionate prayers, in which idle people indulge themselves.—J. H. Newman.

Pot Pie Dumplings

ORIGINAL. No. 43.
BY MRS. DEARBORN,
Principal Boston Cooking School.

Mix and sift together 1 pint pastry flour, 1 neaping tea sp. Cleveland's Baking Powder and 1/2 tea sp. salt. Beat 1 egg until thick and light, add 1/2 cup cold water, stir this into the dry mixture, and enough more water to make a dough stiff enough to hold its shape when dropped from the spoon.

Drop the dumplings on a plate a little distance apart and cook in a closely covered steamer for fifteen minutes; or, drop them on top of the boiling stew and cook for the same length of time.

The secret of having them light and tender lies in their not being disturbed while cooking, and in not having much liquid around them, if cooked on top of the stew. (Copyright, 1891, by Cleveland Baking Powder Co.)

Use only Cleveland's baking powder, the proportions are made for that.

Cleveland's Baking Powder,
Wholesome,
Leavens Most,
Leavens Best.
Try a can,
Cleveland's.

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H. Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists.

11 Pleasant St.,

Worcester, Mass

Residence, 61 West Street.

Office open during the summer.

The Readers of Light
I most cordially invite
To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything
They would expect to find

In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,

Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,

10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL,

Gold, Silver and Nickel
Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.

13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St.,
Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework,
Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

Removed to Larger Quarters.
44 Front St.
Take Elevator.

Hinman's College

A New, Separate
Shorthand and Typewriting
Department.

HINMAN'S COLLEGE OF BUSINESS and SHORTHAND

Begins its Fall Term September 1. The New Rooms now required are double the size of those vacated. Tuition for 6 months, $60. For 10 months, $78. Students in Shorthand will by the NEW RAPID SYSTEM, be qualified for business in 3 to 5 months, complete tuition, $50, and be offered positions in Worcester or elsewhere. Read the following:

REMINGTON STANDARD TYPE WRITER }
WYCKOFF, SEAMANS & BENEDICT, }
BOSTON, MASS., JULY 30, 1891.

MR. A. H. HINMAN, Worcester, Mass., Dear Sir:—

The demand for Remington Typewriter operators has become so great that we have been obliged to open in connection with our Boston office a department for securing and placing operators who use our machines. The result has been that through our Boston office alone during the past year from July to July we have placed 612 young men and women in good business positions. This does not include any placed by our thirty odd agents in New England. In no case, either from the person placed or from the employer have we received one cent for our services. So great has been the demand from business men that we have been almost constantly embarrassed in our efforts to find a sufficient number of young men and women qualified to fill positions. To be a candidate for our strictly gratuitous services to young men and women, we require that our operators shall be able to write shorthand at the rate of 90 words per minute and transcribe the matter upon the Remington Typewriter at 30 words per minute. As you in line with leading business colleges have decided to use our machines exclusively, we propose to LOOK TO YOUR COLLEGE FOR REMINGTON OPERATORS. We shall instruct our Boston, Worcester and New England Agents to do all we can in placing your graduates in business offices as you qualify them. Yours very truly,

WYCKOFF, SEAMANS & BENEDICT.

Hinman's College can qualify shorthand students for business and PLACE THEM IN POSITIONS IN HALF THE TIME AND FOR HALF THE MONEY required by the other shorthand school in Worcester, whose circulars say:—"We will in no case and under no circumstance agree to furnish a position for any pupil, we would rather not receive that pupil at all than to guarantee to furnish a position.

NEW ENGLAND FAIR

— AT —

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 1, 2, 3 and 4, 1891

GRAND EXHIBITION

— OF —

HORSES, CATTLE, SHEEP, SWINE,
POULTRY, FRUIT, FLOWERS,
VEGETABLES, ETC.

SPEED.

Splendid Races Each Day. Good Horses
and Fast Track.

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

will excel anything ever offered.

MARANTETTE

will give daily exhibitions upon the track. This is the finest exhibition of Horsemanship ever shown on a race course. It includes—
The great Five-Horse Tandem Ride over Hurdles.

Woodlawn, the famous Park and Saddle Horse.
Filemaker, the highest Jumping Horse in the World.

Thrilling Parachute Leaps

Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday by JEWELL BROTHERS.

TARIFF DISCUSSIONS, HOOK AND LADDER
TOURNAMENT, COMPETITIVE DRILL OF
MILITARY COMPANIES, BAND
CONCERTS, and a Thousand
and other Attractions.

GRANGE DAY.

WEDNESDAY will be Grange Day. Special exercises, prominent speakers. All Grangers invited to meet in Grange Tent.

Governors' Day.

Governors and Representative Men of the New England States and of the United States will be present and address the multitude.

EXHIBITION HALLS FILLED WITH SPLENDID EXHIBITS.

Entertainments

EACH EVENING, with balls, grounds and track brilliantly lighted by Electricity.

EXCURSION RATES

ON ALL RAILROADS. Entries of Live Stock close August 15.

Dr. GEORGE B. LORING,
President of the New England Society.
Hon. DANIEL NEEDHAM,
Secretary of the New England Society.
J. LEWIS ELLSWORTH,
President of the Worcester Society.
F. H. CHAMBERLAIN,
Secretary of the Worcester Society.

THE CLARK-

SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

Summery Goods.

Porcelain Lined

PRESERVING KETTLES,

ALL SIZES, NOW IN STOCK.

2 qt.	3 qt.	3 1-2 qt.	4 qt.	5 qt.
20 cts.	22 cts.	24 cts.	26 cts.	30 cts.
6 qt.	7 qt.	8 qt.	10 qt.	12 qt.
35 cts.	40 cts.	45 cts.	50 cts.	55 cts.

Plenty of Fruit Jars—of all sizes—"Lightning" and Masons.

The Gem Ice Cream Freezers.

2qt.	$1.57
3qt.	$1.89.
4qt.	$2.31.
6qt.	$2.98.

Fly Killers 15cts.

Fly Drivers, "good ones," 10cts.

Callapsion Drinking Cups—25, 38, 42, 50, 75cts.

Brass Tea Kettles and Heaters.
Lemon Juice Extractors.

Gas Stoves.

The Yale.

Price Reduced.

- Single Stoves $1.50.
- Double Stoves $3.50.
- Florence Oil Stoves.
- Fruit Weighing Scales.
- Alcohol cooking Lamps for home and camp.

THE CLARK-SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

Amateur Sport.

It is not unlikely that a large number of Worcester runners will compete in the amateur foot races which will take place during the Rhode Island State Fair at Narragansett Park, Sept. 21, 22, 23, 24, 25. There are to be six events, all handicap, as follows: 100 yards, 120 yards, 300 yards, 440 yards, half mile and mile. The prizes, which are very costly, are as follows:—

100 Yards—1st. Swinging Water Freezer in satin finish with chased Gold Slop bowl and gold lined Cup, value $29.50; 2nd. Water Cooler 15 1-2 inches high, with satin center polished base and cover separated by a heavy silver border, value $14.50; 3rd, Goblet, gold lined plain satin bright cut, engraved with polished base, value $6.00.

120 Yards—1st. Swinging Acme Cooler, with stationary catch bowl in gilt Etruscan border, Goblet satin gilt, with narrow border around the bottom, of same design as that on pitcher, value $26.00; 2nd. Chamber Pitcher in satin finish, bright cut, engraved double silver lining, Le Louvre border, value $11.00; 3rd. Plain satin Gold lined Goblet, value $6.00.

1st. 300 Yards—Large Ice Urn and Goblet, standing 18 inches high, with elaborate handles and ivory trimmings, mounted on a plain satin standard 5 1-2 inches, value $33.25; 2nd. Water Cooler, porcelain lining with 2 inch Assyrian band encircling base and cover and straight fluted spout, value $18.00; 3rd. Plain pearl finish Loving Cup, gold lined, with burnished stand, value $6.00.

Quarter Mile—1st. Water set of four pieces. Pitcher, two Goblets and Waiter in pearl finish, with wide Gadroon border, value $42.00; 2nd. Water Freezer, in silver 14 inches high, value $18.00; 3rd. Gold lined Goblet, value $6.00.

Half Mile—1st. Large Swinging Water Cooler double silver lining with wave fluting running from base to cover, value $38.75; 2nd. Ice Pitcher double silver lining with wave fluting running from base to cover, value $14.50. 3rd. Gold lined Prize Cup, satin finish, bright cut engraved, value $6.00.

One Mile—1st. Heavily embossed double tilting Water Pitcher in satin finish silver, with gold lined goblets, value $56.00. 2nd. Porcelain lined Water Cooler with pearl finish body and repousse base, spout and cover, value $24.75. 3rd. Plain satin Mug with fluted base and cover, and plate glass bottom, value $7.25.

The games will be registered with the Amateur Athletic Union and will be conducted under the Union rules. The entrance fee is fifty cents for each event. In sending entries the full name and post-office address must be given, together with the last performance and colors in which the competitor will run. Entries should be sent before September 8th to James W. Cooper, Thornton R. I.

Arrangements for the Lakeside Boat Club's regatta August 29th are progressing under the management of the regatta committee, which consists of H. F. Blood, C. D. Parker and W. C. Habberly. There are to be five races and the prizes will be silver cups. The steamer Apollo will follow the races. Anyone desiring tickets for the steamer can obtain them from the committee. The races will be started at four o'clock.

Offer Special Bargains in all Lines of

HOUSE---FURNISHINGS!

and those who buy now can save money.

CHAMBER SETS,

From $18 upwards.

PARLOR SUITS,

From $40 upwards.

SIDEBOARDS,

ODD EASY CHAIRS

Reduced in price to close.

Plush 16th Century

Oak Platform Rockers,

$8.50, WORTH $10.00.

Carpets

AT LOW PRICES.

Ranges!

We sell the Crawford Ranges—none better—they always give perfect satisfaction, and the only range in the market that will bake in the lower oven, which we guarantee.

ANDES RANGES.

This is the best 8-inch Range in the market for $25.

We sell a good Range for $15.
Call and examine our

DINNER SETS, 112 pcs., for $8.98

IT CAN'T BE BEAT.

Liberal Terms of Credit at
Cash Prices.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,

355 MAIN STREET.

SUCCESS IN BUSINESS!

That young man or woman who succeeds in getting employment at reasonable compensation and can give satisfaction is said to be successful. Thousands of young people, and older ones too for that matter, are drudging along from year to year, receiving for their work a miserable pittance, when by the expenditure of a little time and money in the right direction they might rank among those known as the "lucky" ones.

TO BE SUCCESSFUL IN BUSINESS YOU MUST KNOW YOUR BUSINESS.

Of the hundreds of young people who have received their training at Becker's Business College there are but very few who do not to-day occupy responsible, paying positions. No institution can make a success of a person who is born a failure, but in every case where our pupils have natural aptness or judgement they succeed.

RECORD OF THE PAST.

Of all our graduates sent out to situations of responsibility and trust in past years not three have proved unable to succeed. If you would command success in business you must EDUCATE FOR BUSINESS, and in choosing a school in which to educate, it would hardly be reasonable to look for success if you patronize a school that is not a success; in other words:

IF YOU WISH TO BE SUCCESSFUL LEARN AT A SUCCESSFUL INSTITUTION.

The success of Becker's Business College since it was established has rivaled that of any institution in New England, and during the past year every graduate placed in position is now engaged.

EVERY YOUNG MAN AND WOMAN WHO WAS SENT

to a situation as Stenographer has given satisfaction. We could have placed twenty more young men if we had had them to place. Young men to-day cannot make a more certain investment for success than to learn Shorthand at Becker's. There are lots of young men and women who pretend to be stenographers and yet fail, but they don't come from Becker's.

WE CHALLENGE ANY ONE TO SHOW

where one of our graduates in stenography ever failed. Remember,—If you look for success go to a successful institution. A school that is in disrepute and on the decline cannot teach success.

Send to Becker's Business College, 492 Main Street, for our elegant catalogue and circular.

About Folks.

Rev. H. Jerome White preaches, tomorrow, in the Merrimack Street Baptist Church, Manchester, N. H.

Harrington Avenue seems to be a good street for pears. A large basketful made its way to LIGHT's home a few night's ago. Of course, the Major came too. He is an accomplished judge of fruit.

Rev. A. S. Garver was a recent speaker at the Plymouth School of Ethics. "Value of the School to the Ministry."

Our enthusiastic Volapükian contributor, F. L. Hutchins, was elected General Secretary of the North American Organization at Lake Chautauqua, last week.

Dr. J. J. Rafferty spent his vacation in Portland, Boston and at Nantasket.

Mr. H. N. Gleason, who was seriously injured by an elevator accident at his place of business, No. 9 Bridge street Saturday last, is reported as improving slowly. It is a wonder that he was not killed outright.

Dr. Thos. J. Barrett has gone to Chicago, with Gen. John W. Corcoran, a World's Fair Commissioner for Massachusetts.

A. Bowman Wood has just returned from a yachting trip on the Great Lakes.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Spencer are at Princeton on a short vacation.

Smith's

401-403 Main Street.

CORNER MECHANIC, WALKER BUILDING.

We will be pleased to send you samples of our New Black Faille Silks at $1.00 and $1.25 a yard for comparison. Our warrant on these silks is—that they will not break, crack or wear greasy, and we agree to make good any reasonable claim made within six months from date of purchase.

EDW. L. SMITH & CO.

Visit Our Stationery Department.

I HAVE THE LARGEST
CARRIAGE :-: REPOSITORY

In New England. You can see over 200 elegant Carriages on one floor. GREAT BARGAINS in Carriages during the present month. This is my twenty-fifth year in business in this city, and my stock is the most extensive I have ever carried.

GEORGE C. DEWHURST,
Nos. 17 and 19 Park Street. OPPOSITE COMMON.

New * York
STORE.

Great closing out sale.
Everything marked down.
Special Bargains in Perfumes, Toilet Soap, Tooth Powder, etc.

All Dress Goods at Cost and many lots at less. Come and see if you want bargains.

Going Out of Business on September 1st.

Z. F. Little & Co.,
234 and 238 Main St.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

There is a loud call for Handkerchiefs, and plenty of them.

The past week you have found them a luxury.

Not once a day, but two or three times a day you've gone to the drawer and taken out a fresh one.

You had to do it for comfort. The children need them even more than you do, they want "lots" of them.

We received, yesterday, 100 dozen of the kind that usually sells for 10c. The August price is 5c each. They are good, full size, with 1-2 inch hems.

For men and boys we have a pure linen kerchief, full size, good quality, 1-2 inch hem, 12 1-2 cents instead of 25c.

A new lot of hemstitched lawns, with colored polka dots, 45 inches wide, just what you expect to pay 50c for. The price now 12 1-2c.

Tourist Rufflings in pretty styles and pretty boxes, 6 yards in each, 12 1-2c, 20c, 25c a box, and very convenient to take with you on your outing.

3000 yards of Cambrics and Nainsooks in small checks, really good at 25c and 37 1-2c, the August price 12 1-2c.

Regular 10c Gingham, that is to say a Gingham quality that sells for 10c, can be had here for 7c.

4x1 New York mills bleached cotton 10c a yard.

We are sure that we have the very best Quilt in the market ever sold for $1.00.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

The Ware, Pratt Company.

BOYS' CLOTHING

THE BOYS ALL COME TO US.

You would not doubt it if you could know the number of suits we have sold them the past two months.

You would not doubt it if you knew the number of pairs of "Extra Pants" we have sold during the same time.

You would not doubt it if you had seen more than 100 pairs done up last Saturday, and carried home by jolly, happy, healthy boys.

BOYS, WE ARE WITH YOU.

We know what you want,

And we have it, every time.

We have "bang-up" Suits for you.

We have them during this month at "dandy" prices.

Whatever you want you can have at a big reduction from regular prices.

Low prices belong to August, and you get them "just like the men."

The summer season has only begun FOR YOU. It is over, almost, with the merchants.

We want to close out our summer goods.

We make price to lead you to buy quickly.

We don't give you JOB LOTS.

We do give you

THE SAME GOODS,

NOBBY GOODS,

SEWED TO STAY.

THE VERY BEST SUITS,

THE VERY BEST JACKETS,

THE VERY BEST PANTS,

Anything you want at August low prices.

Boys, we are with you.

All your chums get their clothes here.

If you want to be in the racket with them, you must come here for your outfit.

The Ware, Pratt Company.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts. State of the order July 18, 1891. Membership, 5,443. Amount loaned for Relief, $24,500; Reserve Fund, $32,210.51; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,507.68; Total, $63,450.08. Men and women admitted upon the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600.

Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organizers wanted. Address NON SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester, Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

THE HOME SCHOOL

MAY ST., COR. OF WOODLAND,

will re-open September 23. Miss Kimbal will be at the School after August 1, where she will be glad to talk with any interested in her work.

An excellent school home for your daughter.

Call or send for circular.

Brown & Simpson Piano!

Sold direct from factory. Cash or Installments.

9 May Street, Worcester.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES

at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

Larkin's, 395 Main St., Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps. Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

LAWRENCE, PHOTOGRAPHER.

492 Main Street.

TAKE ELEVATOR.

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.

Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Grate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD. Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main ST.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LIGHT

VOL. III. No. 25. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, AUGUST 22, 1891. FIVE CENTS.

REV. GEORGE S. BALL, OF UPTON,

Chaplain of the 21st Massachusetts Infantry.

[ENGRAVED EXPRESSLY FOR LIGHT.]

PUTNAM & SPRAGUE CO.

✿ * Folding Beds * ✿

We are Sole Agents for the best makers of CANET BEDS. The goods we control in this line are superior to any others, and the prices are the lowest. Our store is Headquarters for OFFICE FURNITURE! We are agents for the best ROLL-TOP DESKS in the market. A good 5-ft., Roll Desk for Fifty Dollars. You find our desks in the best offices in the city. OFFICE CHAIRS in great variety. Cane and upholstered seats. 'DWARF' BOOKCASES. The CELEBRATED DANNER REVOLVING CASES in stock, as well as everything else needed to completely furnish your office. See our goods and get prices before purchasing.

247 and 249 Main Street, Corner of Central.

YARMOUTH S. S. CO.,

(Limited) Shortest and Most Direct Route Between United States & Nova Scotia, via the favorite sea-going and new steamships "Boston" and "Yarmouth." Sea voyage only 15 to 17 hours. Tickets sold to all parts of Nova Scotia.

Steamer will leave Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston, for Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 12 M. Noon.

Returning will leave Yarmouth for Boston every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Close connections made at Yarmouth with all Railway, Steamboat and Stage lines to all points in N. S. For further information write for folder or apply to G. Y. Lancaster, M. H. Church & Co., O. F. Rawson, Worcester; or J. F. Spinney, Agent, Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE permanently eradicated by the ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR, 92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

C. H. DRAPER, Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

Three Large Moving Wagons. Baggage Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!

It saves Time, Labor and Fuel, (two-thirds cost per hr. for fuel)

Manufacturers Guarantee Iron.

TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, M'G. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

OXYGEN

We have the genuine

Oxygen Treatment

FOR THE CURE AND PREVENTION OF DISEASE.

It is not a Drug, but Nature's true Restorative in debility and all disordered conditions of the system.

Our Oxygen is fresh every day.

Prepared and administered with the utmost care by a Physician of large experience.

It will pay to investigate our METHODS and PRICES.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

LINCOLN BLOCK,

368 1-2 Main, Cor. Elm.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

COAL! COAL!

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Especial attention given to the family trade.

Garfield & Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 1434.

N. G. TUCKER.

W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER & SON, SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street.

Worcester, Mass.

"A HIT, A PALPABLE HIT!"

Thronged daily by the Elite of the city.

Week Commencing MONDAY, AUG. 24th.

Every Afternoon and Evening During the Week.

First appearance of the talented and favorite actress,

Miss KATHERINE ROBER

Who will appear in the title role of the beautiful domestic drama in five acts, made famous by MISS MAGGIE MITCHELL, entitled

FANCHON THE CRICKET

Supported by LOTHROP'S STOCK COMPANY No 2. A FUNNY FARCE will precede the drama at 2 and 7.30.

Immense success of

MME. PERCIVAL'S LADY ORCHESTRA!

Two performances daily. Every afternoon at 2. Every evening at 7.30. Doors open at 1.30 and 7 p. m. Prices Orchestra 25c; Balcony 20c., Gallery 10c. Seats secured one week in advance.

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, AUGUST 22, 1891.

No. 25

"Every clod feels a stir of might,
An instinct within it that reaches and towers,
And groping blindly above it for light,
Climbs to a soul in grass and flowers."
James Russell Lowell—Vision of Sir Launfal.

Lowell, dead!

There was a galaxy of Massachusetts stars that shone with almost equal splendor.

Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes and Lowell. The first, full of years, was gathered to his fathers and we mourned him as one who had fought the battle bravely; but his time for activity was past.

We had seen Whittier and Holmes celebrate their four score years and more and had heard them proclaim their determination to do little more of work, but Lowell! He was young. In him, were yet many possibilities.

Many a boy and girl and those, too, of older growth as they remarked the ageing of the older poets have said, "But we shall have Lowell with us for many a day." Alas! how little we know of the future. Those far older than himself write his panegyrics.

The upper seats in our temple of American Poets have not been crowded. However many anxiously expectant ones there are and may have been, the public have recognized only a few occupants.

Just who those chosen ones are, all will not agree, some naming one list, others another; but however divergent the selections, it is hardly possible that any American would fail to include him, over whom the grave in Mount Auburn has just closed.

Bryant, Longfellow, and Lowell! What American critic would name any departed poet of our country before them? There have been meteor like instances, but no one has maintained a steadier nor more constant flame. Their light is unquenchable.

In this Worcester, of ours, where in the High School, hundreds of young people have made a thorough study of Lowell, his death comes with the effect of an almost personal loss. Few of us, have met him, yet his face, through his pictures, is so familiar, we feel as though we actually knew him.

That letter, written to the school when he was the U. S. minister in London will be read o'er and o'er, for it is framed along with his genial face in the High School hall and now new inspiration will be gathered for the study of his writings.

Lowell ever dealt in terse expressions which will now find new significance, when he who made them has ceased from life. The vision of Sir Launfal will be conned more earnestly than ever. Children will learn his "Autograph" as well they may for no better lesson was ever set.

"Greatly begin, though thou have time
But for a line, be that sublime
Not failure but low aim is crime."

It was Lowell's "First Snow Fall" that awakened a love for him in many hearts and when Worcester boys and girls went to Cambridge once, on a school excursion, all wished to stand where he stood when he looked over to Mount Auburn and saw where a little "headstone stood." He now sleeps beside the loved child, so long ago, "Folded close under deepening snow."

There is that in Lowell's verse, that forbids our associating age with our thoughts of him. "The Biglow Papers," "The Fable for Critics," "The Courtin," all are of that lively nature that we must think of the writer as ever young. The same characteristics abound in "My Study Window" and "Among my Books." Fresh, hopeful, vigorous, can it be that the writer was seventy-two years old when he died?

J. Lowell

Edwin Arnold, an English Critic, ranks him after Longfellow, Poe and Walt Whitman. We Americans fail utterly to catch the inspiration that Englishmen claim to derive from Whitman, and such association to the most of us is little short of folly, but we do agree with Arnold that Lowell was one of the first of his day as a writer and as a critic. As a user of English his reputation is, by no means, confined to our continent. The English Speaking World laments him.

Nelson gained both Westminster and his coveted victory. Longfellow is honored by a bust in the Poet's Corner in that famous edifice and Lowell has his merits recited in that Pantheon of English dead by the greatest of England's living preachers, Canon Farrar. It must be that his merits will, ere long, secure for him some permanent memorial along with those who in verse and prose have charmed the readers of expressive English. Like Britains drum call, a wave of regret for Lowell, dead, rolls round the world.

Here is the life, in brief, of our great American. Born, Feb. 22, 1819, in Cambridge. Harvard College, 1838, poet of his class. Studied law and admitted to the bar 1840. Preferred letters. First volume of verse in 1841 "A Year's Life." 1843, with Robert Carter starts "The Pioneer," a short lived magazine. 1844, marries Maria White of Watertown. Contributes to various Anti-Slavery publications. 1851, travels in Europe. 1853, his wife dies. 1885, succeeds Longfellow as professor of modern languages and literature at Harvard, though he spends this and the following year preparing in Europe. 1857, married Miss Francis Dunlap of Portland, Me. 1857-65, editor of Atlantic Monthly. 1863-72, joint editor with Charles Eliot Norton of North American Review. 1872-74, in Europe receiving the degree of D. C. L. from Oxford and LL. D. from Cambridge. Republican Elector in 1876. 1877, appointed United States minister to Spain. In 1880, transferred to London. Came back to America in 1885. Was rector of St. Andrew's University in 1883. In 1885, spoke at the unveiling of Cole-ridge's bust in Westminster; in the same year his second wife died and was buried in England. On coming home, he resumed his lectures in Cambridge. 1887, again visits England. His has been a busy and productive life. His works, poetical and prose, are published by Houghton Mifflin & Co., Boston, who kindly loan his portrait. In addition to his volume of verse, he published in prose, 1845, "Conversations on some of the Old Poets;" 1864, "The President's Policy" and "Fireside Travels;" 1880, "Among My Books" and "My Study Windows;" 1876, "Among My Books" 2d series; 1887, "Democracy and other Addresses;" 1888, "Political Essays" and "The English Poets." His Commemoration ode must live as long as Harvard College exists whose patriotic dead it commemorates. From the date of return to America, his health has been failing and finally at Elmwood, in his loved home, he dies Aug. 12, 1891.

Longing is God's fresh heavenward will,
With our poor earthward striving;
We quench it that we may be still
Content with merely living;
But would we learn that heart's full scope
Which we are hourly wronging,
Our lives must climb from hope to hope,
And realize our longing.

—J. R. Lowell.

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND
HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.

Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building,
Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as
second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, AUGUST 22, 1891.

Every failure to receive LIGHT promptly
should be, at once, reported at this office.

All scraps of informations concerning persons and events, thankfully received.

Friends sending in manuscripts will not complain if they are not printed at once. There are many waiting. Yet LIGHT is always glad to receive communications and, if meritorious,
to print them.

Hereafter, it will be understood that all articles in LIGHT, not ascribed, save receipts, squibbs, fashion and household notes were written for this paper.

About Folks

A recent call on Dr. Edwin T. Painter at Sterling found him better than was expected.
Good Massachusetts air and mother's care are doing much for our esteemed friend, but it will take time to recover from all the mishaps of that trip beyond seas. One of the attractions that salute the Doctor's gaze as he looks forth from his summer home is the schoolhouse to which the lamb followed Mary one day or if not the very house its successor. The view is a delightful one any way and should have an inspiring effect on any one, sick or well.

Well, it did rain but LIGHT insisted on carrying out the program and so visited Sterling last Saturday. In fact all the LIGHTS went and were most cordially greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Newton and their daughter, Mrs.
Clemence. The woods were delightfully green, but just a little damp. Jock seems to have recovered his High School spirits. Mr.
Newton can look out from the pleasantest piazza in the entire camp and close at hand are woods and fields where, with gun and dog, he can pursue his favorite sport. Hard by are the Kennedy's, Mrs. Geo. R. Kennedy is Mrs. Newton's daughter, and all, from the oldest to the Baby Clemence seem supremely happy.

A party of fourteen young men, nearly all members of the Commonwealth Club, were entertained Tuesday evening by A. S. Lowell at his home at North Worcester. The occasion was the dedication of Mr. Lowell's addition to his house including a billiard room, gymnasium and bowling alley. After partaking of a generous supper provided by the host, the party spent the evening in playing cards and billiards and in bowling. The return trip was made late in the evening in carriages.

The Home School.

This excellent institution under the able management of Miss Ellen A. Kimball grows more successful each year. One year ago the school moved from its old location on Woodland street to the remodeled residence of Mr.
Estabrook at the corner of May and Woodland streets. The object of the removal was to secure more room. It was expected that this new home would be large enough to meet the demands for several years ahead.
But, as the school was filled to its utmost capacity last year and as an increase is expected this year, Miss Kimball has leased the house adjoining and it is now undergoing repairs to fit it for school purposes.

A glance over the course of instruction and the names of the teachers will quickly convince anyone that in this department the school is fully abreast the times. The German, French and art departments will be made a strong feature this year. They will be in charge of Fraulein Fabermeyer of Berlin.
The teacher of Latin and mathematics is from Wellesley college. Prof. Geerish of Boston, who has been an instructor in the school since it began, will continue to give piano lessons and Prof. Truda and Prof. Kennedy will continue in charge of the violin and voice departments. Miss Kimball will teach history and literature and Miss Laughton will teach elocution and physical culture. For the latter department Miss Kimball has secured the use of the Pilgrim church gymnasium. Miss Kimball is now at the school where she will be pleased to talk with any who would like further information about her work.

Mrs. M. A. Tourtellotte and daughter have just returned from a vacation trip which included the White Mountains, Niagara, St.
Lawrence River, Montreal and Quebec, Concord, N. H., and the Green Mountains.

Mr. John C. Crane favors LIGHT with western papers containing articles on the progress of the Mississippi expedition.

Wm. R. Smith, in the employ of Jerome
Wheelock will have a song published by Oliver, Ditson & Co. Its title is "Mother is a Mother till Gone."

Seth Richards and family left Friday for Bay View, near Saco, Me., remaining till
Sept. 1.

C. C. Webster and wife and Miss Mabel
Blanchard left Thursday for a trip through Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, the lower
St. Lawrence region, Quebec and Montreal.
They will return home by the White Mount ains.

The Boot and Shoe Recorder of this week has a portrait and biographical sketch of Charles E. Davis of this city.

Charles Rebboli and son, Augustus, left Thursday for Saratoga. Mrs. Rebboli is at St. Johns, N. B., visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Mirick with Bert. C. are at York beach for a week.

Miss Grace Solomon, from Becker's Business College, has been selected as book keeper of the New Electric road with office in Leicester.

Cheap Trips to Nova Scotia.

Two very tempting excursions are announced by the Yarmouth Steamship Company for this and next month. The first is a round trip at one fare of $5 to Yarmouth, N.
S., and return, good going Aug. 31 and Sept.
1, and returning Sept. 5. The second is an excursion to Halifax, Sept. 28 and 29, returning Oct. 6, on account of the big provincial exhibition to be held there that week. Either trip offers a splendid opportunity to see the picturesque province at its very best, and enjoy a bracing sea trip of nearly five hundred miles.

CHURCH NOTES.

MEHODIST.

Grace:—A very pretty piece of work has just been completed at Grace church. The rooms occupied by the Sunday School have been painted and the ceiling frescoed. The fres-coing is in three sections and each section is divided into panels, the panels having beautiful corner ornamentations. Behind the altar are hung lace curtains, and two beautiful banners;
one the banner of the Epworth League, with its badge, a Maltese cross, and its three mottoes:—the other has on a scroll this motto:—
"The extent of my opportunity is the measure of my responsibility." The room at the right, occupied by the Young Men's Class cannot fail to be attractive to those who occupy it.
The ladies parlor on the other side, has been painted also and pictures hung on the walls.
All of the chandeliers have been gilded also.
The outside doors have received a new coat of paint and both the upper and lower vestibules. It is a fine piece of work and Grace church has now one of the prettiest vestries in the city.

The Rev. Wm. Pentecost did a big day's work last week Sunday, preaching morning and evening, besides conducting a Bible Class at noon. In his 73d year, this was the 51st anniversary of his first sermon. All his hearers enjoyed much his gospel utterances.

Rev. H. C. Chapman preached last Sunday morning. Subject, "Godliness is profitable unto all things."

CONGREGATIONAL.

The young people of Plymouth Church have been doing practical Christian work by giving poor children outings in the country.

During the vacation of Mr. Gaylord, organist at the Old South Church his brother, Mr.
C. Walter Gaylord is officiating at the organ.

Central church parish has concurred with the church in extending a call to Rev. A. M.
Hitchcock of Kalamazoo, Michigan, to become the assistant pastor of the church.

Dr. McCullagh will continue tomorrow evening his series of sermons on the "Martyrdom of John the Baptist."

He who tells you the faults of others, intends to tell others of your faults.

The Triumph of Leicester.

"But now the hand of fate is on the curtain, and brings the scene to light."

Trembling with excitement, as I feel the electric current running through my veins, it gives me pleasure to believe that the electric cars have entered upon a triumphant career in the history of Leicester.

The enthusiasm and delight of this wonderful event makes it difficult to sit quietly down and write calmly. It is only timid people that cry "give me a lodge in some vast wilderness," while the brave and courageous exclaim "let us go forth, somewhere, anywhere on an electric car." The day has come when all must rise up and call the electric railway blessed. Hon. Samuel Winslow has pressed the button and the people will hum.

Very soon stage coaches will be found in the back woods, with families living in them. Where do the cars go? Sometimes they seem to disappear off the face of the earth. Home comforts are born of kindly interest. They are the enterprises that help to make the music of the world, and we must believe that the electric railway is contemporaneous with those that are deeply engaged in the progressing invention of the day, that are certainly for the good of the people. Who hesitates to enter the electric car and join the festive throng?

It is hoped that all will deeply appreciate the courage and courtesy of the management and consider Friday (thought by some to be an unlucky day) August 14, 1891, the day that the first electric car rolled majestically over the rails through the village of Leicester, was indeed a very lucky day and all must consider it an event to be ever cherished in most pleasurable reminiscence.

The electric cars give the best evidence of prosperity in this beautiful hill town, though it has in the course of its history had its ups and downs; but it seems now, that its greatest and most wonderful development was to spend itself in the year of '91. A large and most profitable business is anticipated by the electric railroad company, whose fine enterprise will literally aid in making everybody happy, beside being of inestimable benefit to the land owners. It will prove a great boon to the town which is so much like a city that is set on a hill.

Our out of town friends can now so easily and agreeably visit us in this picturesque old place in reality, such as heretofore was seen only in dreams.

We have been crazy to see something old, but now we are anxious to see something new. This subject is so inexhaustible that I surely cannot embody it in this short letter. I shall however, have another opportunity to return to it some time in the future.

As woman is declared to be a necessity in state affairs, I take this opportunity in behalf of the invited guests, to express our delight and gratitude to the Directors of the Worcester, Leicester and Spencer Street Railway, for the honor and pleasure afforded us at the grand formal opening of their road on Tuesday, August 18, 1891. The trip and the banquet reminded us of a truism from Emerson:

"Every great and commanding movement in the annals of the world is the triumph of enthusiasm."

I have the honor to subscribe myself your humble servant,
BETTINA.
Leicester, Mass., Aug. 21st, 1891.

AMATEUR SPORT.

The intense rivalry between the New York athletic clubs and the consequent competition to secure the best athletes for members has caused certain bad practices to creep in, which the Amateur Athletic Union has now decided are not good for amateur athletics. Though these clubs consist nominally of New Yorkers, it has become customary to vote into membership without any cost to the new member, any promising athlete, who can be secured, without regard to his place of residence. The club which offered the greatest inducements generally secured the best athletes. To put an end to this, the Amateur Athletic Union has made a new rule, that no club in the metropolitan district, which consist of all places within a radius of fifty miles of New York, shall in the future be allowed to have athletes compete under its colors who do not reside in the district. The effect of this rule will be to decrease the prestige of the New York clubs and to increase that of the local clubs. It also carries amateur sport another step away from professionalism.

Some time ago it was announced in these columns that W. W. Windle, of Millbury, the champion bicyclist of America, had renounced the race-track forever and would devote his energies this summer to an attempt to break the American record for a mile, made by himself. But he has now altered his mind. The inducements which are being offered for prize winning this season are too great to be resisted. He is now training on his private track in West Millbury under the care of W. G. Class of the New York Athletic Club, who will be remembered as the winner of the two mile safety, lap race at the tournament of the Bay State Bicycle Club, Memorial Day. The races at Rochester August 19th and 20th are the ones in which Windle will first compete. Then September 7th and 8th he will be entered in the races at Hartford held under the auspices of the Hartford Wheel Club. But the greatest races will be at Springfield, September 10th and 11th, when, in the mile open, a prize valued at $1000 is offered the winner, provided he beats the present world's record. LIGHT is not informed whether the world's record referred to is the one which stood at the beginning of the season or the one made recently in England by F. J. Osmond. The best mile record before this Summer was that of Jones, an Englishman, of 2 minutes, 20 3/5 seconds. But recently Osmond wheeled a mile in 2 minutes, 16 seconds. Windle's record, which is also the American record, is 2 minutes, 25 3/5 seconds. However, Windle rode a hard-tired machine while Osmond's was a pneumatic. Windle is now riding a pneumatic safety and is said to have covered a mile on his own track in 2 minutes, 18 seconds and that, too, without a pace-maker. It will not be a surprise if he breaks even Osmond's record.

Since the above was written a new American record has been made for a mile. Tuesday, at Springfield, W. F. Murphy of the New York Athletic Club, riding a pneumatic, covered a mile in 2 minutes, 23 3/5 seconds. He also made new records for the quarter, half, and three-quarters, the times being respectively 35 seconds, 1 09 3/5 and 1 45 1/2. The timing was by timers of recognized standing.

The formal announcement has been issued for the annual fall regatta of the New England Amateur Rowing Association which will be held on the Charles River, Boston, on Labor Day, September 7th. The events will be single canoe, double-paddle, best and best boats, junior single sculls, intermediate single, senior single, junior double, junior four-oared shells, senior four-oared shells, junior four-oared working boats, junior eight-oared shells and senior eight-oared shells. All the races, with the exception of the canoe and eights, will be one and one-half miles, three quarters and return. The canoe race will be one mile, half a mile and return, and the eights will be one and a half miles straightaway.

Entries close with James Flannigan, 306 Washington street, August 31.

The annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen took place Tuesday and Wednesday on the Potomac at Washington. The event of greatest interest to Worcester people was the winning by Thomas Higgins of the Wachusett Boat Club of second place in the senior single scull race. The other events and the winners were as follows: Quarter mile dash won by Joseph W. Bergen of the Bradford Club, Caffrey, Lawrence Canoe Club, second and Atherton, Metropolitan, third; senior four-oars won by the Fairmounts of Philadelphia with the Columbias of Washington second; junior single sculls won by Wright of Toronto with Berry of Toronto, second and Dyer of the Crescents, Boston, third; pair oared race won by the Atalanta crew, J. A. and G. E. Dempsey; junior four-oars won by the Arlingtons, with the Ariels of Baltimore second; senior singles won by Caffrey of Lawrence with Higgins second and Hedley of the Vespers, Philadelphia, third; eight-oared won by the New York Athletic Club crew, with the Atalantas second and the Columbias third.

A. A. Zimmerman of New York Athletic club, lowered the half-mile ordinary bicycle record to 1 10 3/4 in a trial against time on Hampden park Springfield, last week Thursday. The best previous record was that made by W. W. Windle in Peoria last fall, and was 1 10 4/5. But Murphy's new record referred to elsewhere is better than this.

At St. Catherine's, Ontario, August 10. Geo. R. Gray of the New York Athletic Club broke the world's record for throwing the sixteen pound hammer by throwing it 146 feet, 3 1/2 inches.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Mr. Ernest L. Pettes, collecting agent, gives personal attention to the collection of bills. No. 24 Pearl Street.

Geo. E. Kirby & Co., Dealers in Umbrellas and Parasols. Repairing and re-covering a specialty. 397 Main St.

Wanted.

Some first class man or woman to canvass for Accident Insurance on account of the largest and best company in the world viz:—The United States Mutual Accident Association of 320—322—324 Broadway, New York. First class references are required. For particulars apply to GEO. Y. LANCASTER, Gen'l Agent 454 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Rev. George S. Ball.

During the War of the Rebellion, there were chaplains and again there were chaplains. There were officers like that clerical gentleman in a certain Middle State regiment at Antietam. The ball had opened merrily when he suddenly bethought himself of his danger, saying, "My, I've no business here. I took medicine this morning." There were still others, like another regimental clergyman, who was always present when and where he was needed. To this latter class, belongs the gentleman from Upton whom all members of the 21st and 36th Regiments delight to honor. A chaplain may make much or little of his office. Should he take a gun and thus fight with carnal weapons, the men will honor him as brave; but if he presses well up to the front to care for the wounded and if he manifests a heart filled with love and sympathy, he will win equal respect and affection. When to William of Orange, a chaplain, at Boyne Water, was reported slain, that stolid prince displayed no sorrow but remarked that he had no business to be at the front. This is true in a military sense, but soldiers always regard with favor that man who dares to risk his own life along with theirs. With or without a gun, if he will venture up where bullets fly, he will be sure of the hearts of his men.

In the 21st Regiment, there is never any doubt as to the sentiment with which Chaplain Ball is regarded. From that 28th of November, 1861, at Annapolis, through the battle fields of Roanoke, Camden and Chantilly, he was ever where duty called.

Blood will tell and a line of virtuous ancestors is something to be proud of. Our chaplain was born in Leominster, May 22, 1822. His father was Micah R., a native of old Boylston and a man of great vigor and enterprise. A harness maker by trade, he was for ten years a deputy sheriff and he was the very first to run a regular stage from Worcester to Fitchburg. He was an uncle of Phineas Ball, one of Worcester's early mayors. His wife was Rachel Lincoln of Leominster, though the family goes back through Leicester to the old Hingham stock which gave a General to the Revolution and Governors to Massachusetts and Maine. Thus we see that Mr. Ball had the very best lineage possible.

Like the majority of successful men, he can tell the whole story of early hard work and deprivations. Aside from the common school, he received but little instruction till at the age of sixteen he secured, from his father, a release of his time and he proceeded to work and study by and for himself. Working and studying, he managed to get ready to enter the Meadville Theological School in whose first class he was graduated in 1847. For a portion of that time he was a classmate of the Rev. Rush R. Shippen, who was afterwards the pastor of the Church of the Unity in this city. From the seminary, he went to Ware, where he was ordained in October, the 13th, 1847. His stay there was two years, when he went to Upton. Though he was away from the latter place two years at Plymouth and though he was away in the army, Upton has been counted as his home ever since. It has been a long and useful pastorate reminding us of those stays of years ago, when the spirit of big salaries had not taken possession of so many souls. He was regularly installed in February, 1850. From the beginning, he has taken an important part in town affairs and in 1853 was a member of the Constitutional Convention. In 1861 he was elected to the House of Representatives and he came home from the army and was present at the organization of the House in '62 but then presented his resignation. Later, in 1863, he served as chaplain of the House, was a member of it in 1864, and was in the Senate in 1866 and '67. He has ever maintained the thorough respect of all his townsmen regardless of creed. When the 21st Regiment was raised, Dr. Paine of Holden was chosen chaplain but he declining to serve, Governor Andrew appointed the Upton minister and that it was a wise act every man in the organization will testify. In camp, on the march, and amid shot and shell, he was ever present and active, the true chaplain in thought and deed.

But his long living in Upton, had given him certain business relations that only he could carry out. Home demands were urgent. A slight wound, taking off a part of the fore finger of the left hand at Sulphur Springs, Va., had not healed well and it seemed best for him to go home and his resignation was given and accepted. In what respect he was held by his associates, the following words from the Regimental Historian, General Charles F. Walcott, will bear ample testimony. And further than this, from the rank and file come similar words of respect and affection. He was a worthy officer of an excellent body of men.

These are the words:

"In the thirteen months that he had been with us he had shared with the regiment every peril and hardship which it had been called on to face and endure, and had won the lasting respect and love of every man in it, of whatever creed. Never losing sight of his duty as a Christian gentleman, he had been far more than a chaplain to us. Ardently patriotic, always hopeful, manly, and courageous, he exerted a strong and lasting influence in keeping up the tone of the regiment in its soldierly as well as its moral duties. As our postmaster, no matter at what inconvenience to himself, the mail was never left to take care of itself when by his energy it could be forced to come or go. To our sick and wounded he had been, with unflinching devotion, a brave, tender, and skillful nurse. An honor and grace to his calling and the service, it was a sad day in the regiment when he left us."

Nor is this regard confined to the men of the 21st, for those of the 36th also think they have a claim upon him. He was an efficient aid in raising this latter body and when the war was over and a veteran association was formed they very naturally made him an honorary member. It makes little difference though, how many organizations he belongs to he has regard and affection enough to go around.

Our chaplain has been particularly happy in his home relations. When in Ware he was married June 18, 1848 to Miss Hannah B. Nourse, of Bolton, a daughter of Caleb and Orissa (Holman) Nourse. To them, have been born eight children; seven, four sons and three daughters, are still living. One of these daughters, Lydia Walker Ball, is a teacher in our public schools and her name is the very first one borne on the roll of the Normal School, she being a graduate of the first class in 1876. His youngest son, Walter S., was prepared for the Technical School in our High School and was graduated from the Institute in 1889. Till ill health compelled his resignation, he was an appreciated employee, as assistant foreman, with the Dean Steam Pump Company in Holyoke.

This is only a brief resumé of the life of our honored chaplain. This year, when the annual reunion comes in Upton, his long abode, it is meet and proper that some unusual recognition should be made of his life and services. Worcester and Worcester County contain many survivors of that grand regiment upon whose battle flags are emblazoned the names of twenty-two engagements. There are Roanoke Island, 2d Bull Run, Chantilly, Antietam, Knoxville, Wilderness and many more. It was a glorious history that the regiment made and now that the strife is over and around the fireside or on reunion occasions, the battles are fought over, all honor and toast the chaplain, while he in turn, with recollections of deeds of prowess that have become a part of our national pride, gives all survivors a cordial greeting and in turn honors them.

The Twenty-First.

The following are the officers of the 21st Massachusetts Regimental Association at the annual reunion at Upton, Aug. 26, '91: President, Charles E. Simmons, Worcester; vice presidents, Henry M. Harper, Boston; Frank B. Potter, Worcester; secretary, George P. Hawkes, Templeton; treasurer, Luther E. Stewart, Royalston; executive committee, Waldo Vinton, John W. Warren, Worcester; L. W. Libby, Boston; Wm. Lombard, Paxton; John F. Green, Gilbertville; George S. Ball, Upton.

LIFT UP THINE EYES.

BY CORNELIA WESSON BOYDEN.

Lift up thine eyes my darling,
Lift up thine eyes and pray
That He who guides the starling
Through its most devious way,
Will keep our souls from straying,
Aside from truth and right,
Ah! never cease thy praying
For wisdom, faith and light.

Lift up thine eyes, and seeking
To do God's gracious will,
His every precept keeping,
His blessed laws fulfill,
Though life seems just a groping,
With weary, tear-blind eyes,
Do not despair, but hoping,
Still watch for brighter skies.

Lift up thine eyes, for weeping
O'er earthly treasures lost,
Through nights God made for sleeping,
We do not count the cost,
Nor dream we are but wasting
The strength to tread life's ways,
Or selfishly are hastening
The close of useful days.

So lift thine eyes my darling,
Look up and strive to see
Amid life's conflict whirling,
The blessings sent to thee.
And while thy faith is growing,
And peace thy bosom fill,
A tender love yet glowing,
Shall shed its halo still.

BECKER'S * BUSINESS * COLLEGE.

Main Study Room, Business Department.

Type Writing and Active Business Room, West View.

Short Hand and Type Writing Room, East View.

Principal's Office.

Reception Room, Looking Towards Office.

SECTIONAL VIEWS.

One of Worcester's Successful Enterprises.

The subject of this sketch, Becker's Business College, was established a little over three years ago. At that time Mr. Becker recognizing the popular demand for an institution centrally located, properly furnished and equipped and of high grade decided to lead the way, and engaged a portion of his present quarters in which to establish his College. Although the beginning was small, having enrolled, on the first day of April, one pupil, the second day added one more, the third two and so on until at the end of eight days the attendance was over thirty. The College was successful from the start.

The principal knowing that there is always a demand for the higher grades of ability, had determined that no school should outdo his in thoroughness or progressive methods and his school soon took a front rank.

The College is located on the second floor of Clark's Block on Main St. and is reached by two of the widest and easiest stairways in the city and by the largest passenger elevator in Worcester. The rooms are pleasant, light, well ventilated, heated by steam and supplied with water, marble bowls, mantle, etc. A strong point made by Mr. Becker in the arrangement of his school-rooms is to have departments of medium size in preference to the larger rooms so often found in colleges. The advantage in discipline and bringing the teachers into close contact with the pupils is readily understood by every experienced teacher. This plan also requires the service of a larger corps of teachers but the work is enough better to compensate. In the decoration of the rooms and the furnishing of the same, Mr. Becker has made no effort at elegance. While the rooms are handsomely adorned and well furnished, it has been the object of the principal to have convenience, utility and practical value to students first. The furniture is substantial and adapted to its purpose. No commercial school in New England is better equipped with apparatus for the pupil's benefit.

Among the equipments especially calculated for the benefit of pupils are a large number of type-writers of latest design and the best makes. Not a machine is allowed to remain in the school after it once begins to do poor work. There is also a copying-press of standard make and pattern, filing cabinet, the mimeograph for duplicating, enabling the writer to make from one to a thousand copies from a single writing, either type-written or autograph copy—also stationary pencil sharpeners etc., etc. The principal seems to be ever on the alert to add anything for the advantage of his pupils. When it is considered that from 250 to 300 pencils are sharpened daily in the Shorthand School alone, one can realize the immense saving of time and labor by use of this device alone.

The course of study was especially designed for this college and all the leading textbooks published were examined before one was selected. This book has been bought by a large number of practicing accountants throughout the city to use as a reference book. It contains more sense and less nonsense than any book extant. In Arithmetic, Correspondence, Law etc., only the best books are used.

The Principal.

A slight sketch of the principal, Mr. E. C. A. Becker, whose portrait appears in connection with this article, may be of interest to our readers. He was born on the thirtieth day of April, 1855, at Peoria, Ill., where he received his common school education. He entered the Peoria High School at the age of 14. At the age of 19, having become thoroughly convinced of the importance of a business education he entered the Peoria Bryant & Stratton Business College under Principal A. J. Cole and took a thorough course in both Business and Telegraph Departments. After completing his course of study Mr. Becker refused to accept a diploma, although offered him, until he had secured the privilege of assisting in teaching, thus proving to himself that he had fairly earned and merited this testimonial. It may here be said that he was the first student in the college to take a diploma for both departments at once. After graduating, Mr. Becker kept books for awhile and in the fall of 1874 distinguished himself in Mathematics by solving several problems which the principal of the College and a class of 30 pupils, many of them teachers, had tried daily for two weeks and failed to solve. He was at once called to supervise the study of mathematics at the college and soon after he took entire charge of the school.

Mr. Cole had discovered that practical ability which has since made the subject of this sketch successful. After conducting this school for awhile, Mr. Becker severed his connection and purchased the Rockford Business College at Rockford, Ill. This school he conducted successfully for five years acquiring in the meantime the Freeport Business College which was conducted as a branch under the name of Becker's Business College. Another branch was established at Elgin, Ill. In 1871, Mr. Becker sold out his entire interests and after a season of rest was engaged to conduct Hinman's Business College, Pottsville, Penn. It may seem strange, but it was several months after taking charge of this college, before Mr. Becker ever saw his employer. After conducting this school two years, Mr. Becker asked for a letter of recommendation, expecting to sever his connection with Mr. H. This testimonial was of such nature that when copies were sent out, letters and telegrams were immediately received and Mr. B. was on the point of going to the Trenton Business College when he was engaged as head teacher at Hinman's Business College, Worcester. He occupied this position for five years, making many friends and gaining local reputation.

In 1888, he established Beckers' Business College here and has made it a point to personally superintend every department of his school. He is usually in the school every hour in the school day and takes personal charge of the higher Mathematics, Book-keeping and Law. Since he has established his school he has had charge, out of his regular school hours, of the Penmanship at the Worcester Academy and the Young Men's Christian Association, also of the Book-keeping and Arithmetic classes at the Y. M. C. A. His teachers have had charge of the writing at the Boys' Club and the Book-keeping at the Y. W. C. A. He has drawn around him a large corps of efficient and experienced teachers, retained from year to year and he proposes in the future as in the past to give his patrons the best.

At any other time than this, the death of the wife of an ex-president would occasion more than passing notice, but the departure of Lowell overshadows everything. The widow of James K. Polk has long been an interesting figure in her Nashville retirement. From 1845 to 1849, she was the Lady of the White House, and from June 15, 1849 has been the widow of the Eleventh President of the United States. During all the troubles incident to the War between the States, she was a respected neutral, a long survivor of a time and people who long since ceased to be interested in events of today. Few active participants in the affairs of state in the Forties are now living. The late George Bancroft was Secretary of the Navy in her husband's cabinet and he has only just gone. Mrs. Grant has now the priority among surviving White House dwellers.

"Does she love him?" "I should say so! Why, she gave up a sixty-dollar-per-month position to marry him, and he's earning only forty dollars."—Chicago Times.

Entertainments.

LOTHROP'S OPERA HOUSE.

Monday Red Letter Day—Miss Tucker's Great Success.

Manager George E. Lothrop threw open the doors of his new and elegant Opera House Monday morning at 10 o'clock, and from that time till noon more than 2,000 ladies inspected the house and tasted the delights of a grand promenade concert, rendered by the ladies' orchestra, under the supervision of Mme. Percival. Monday proved red letter day. Mr. Armstrong, the local manager, in a short speech stated that the house was intended as a resort for ladies, and that it was the intention of the management to produce only such plays as would meet the commendation of the fair sex. He also stated that the rule of the house in regard to the right of refusing admission to all objectionable characters would be rigidly enforced.

The afternoon performance opened with the laughable farce, "The Spectre Bridegroom," which was followed by "Queenena," a romantic society drama, in which Miss Ethel Tucker and H. Percy Meldon acted the leading parts. Miss Tucker deserves the praise showered on her for the painstaking and conscientious manner in which she portrayed the character of Queenena. It is her original creation and affords a grand opportunity to display the wide scope of her remarkable abilities. To fully appreciate her wonderful talent one must see her. The third act represents the House of the American Legation in Paris. Patriotic allusion is made to the Star Spangled Banner which overhangs the entrance to the parlor in an appropriate manner. In this act, Queenena, beset by her manifold troubles, but ever true to her husband, loses her reason, and becomes a raving maniac. Miss Tucker's acting is a grand sight, and one long to be remembered. Mr. Meldon as Lord Walter Huntingdon, the husband of Queenena, showed unmistakable signs of genius. He is at his best in pathetic passages. Mr. Chipman, as Clarence St. Clair, the brother of Alice St. Clair, who seeks matrimonial connection with the house of Huntingdon, was all that could be desired. Edwin Barry as the Earl of Chandos, the father of Walter, who wishes to destroy his son's happiness in having him marry for money instead of love, displayed a lack of honor which was quite natural. Miss Josie DeVoy as Florence Nightingale Fletcher, a giddy gusher, who is on the lookout for a combination of nobility and a healthy looking pocketbook, is a gay and sprightly little actress. Mrs. Desda Barry was ever a kind and loving mother to her suffering daughter; Miss S. Frances Newhall as Anna, Queenena's cousin, was good, considering the fact that it was her first appearance on the stage; Cameron Clemens as John Henry Wilkins, looked and acted as sensible as possible for a quack doctor; Leonard Rowe, as Frank Horton, a society young man, made a manly appearance. The stage setting was very fine and included many elegant pieces of stage furniture. The costumes of the ladies were very handsome, particularly those of Miss Tucker.

In the evening people were turned away, unable to obtain even standing room. Crowded houses have been the rule every night this week.

Proprietor Lothrop and Manager Armstrong are highly pleased at the excellent quality of the audiences, which have included many of the best people of the city. A great measure of the phenomenal success achieved is due Mr. Armstrong for the energetic and thorough style in which he does business.

Lothrop's stock company, headed by Miss Katherine Rober, will produce, next week, "Fanchon, the Cricket," which Maggie Mitchell has made famous. This will be Miss Rober's first appearance in this city. She is said to be an actress possessing remarkable strength in her special line.

Mrs. Maria Kendall.

This estimable lady died one week ago today, aged 88 years. She was born in Westminster coming to Worcester when about one year old. She was the wife of the late Smith Kendall and a sister of Henry W. Miller, so recently deceased.

The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon at 72 Pearl street. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. McCullagh of Plymouth Church, of which the deceased was a member. The burial was in the family lot at Rural cemetery. Her sole surviving sister, Miss Lucy Miller still resides at No. 29 Main Street.

New England Fair.

Experience has proved, conclusively, that Worcester is the best place in New England for the fair. Centrally located with the fair grounds right in the city, not only is the city accessible, but the grounds themselves are easily reached. Two or three times, the fair has gone to other places, but every time it comes back to Worcester with an exceedingly restful feeling as much as to say, "Here is success." The prospects for this year are better than ever before.

School and College.

The many people in Worcester who appreciate the Kindergarten will read with interest the advertisement of the Darrah-Marsh School to be opened on Sever Street, September 7th. We cannot do too much in this direction.

George T. Woodward has returned from his Maine wanderings and is, now, resting. Strange how tired some folks get in a vacation trip.

Miss Kate Rafferty of Prescott Street is enjoying a short vacation at Newport and Block Island.

Charles H. Bemis of The Telegram and wife are spending two weeks at Fiskdale.

Miss Gertrude March, organist at Grace Church, has returned from her vacation.

Miss Mary Jillson is spending a part of her vacation in Maine.

On dit, while many wives are having excellent times abroad, their husbands are equally happy at home, keeping house all by themselves.

A Souvenir Spoon.

They had flirted a couple of weeks or so,
The youth and the maiden shy;
But the time had arrived for him to go,
And he came to say good-by.
And he said: "Ere we part will you give me a kiss?
Refuse not, I pray, the boon,
For I should like to remember this
As a sort of souvenir spoon."

—Daily Spray.

Worcester at Bennington.

Our City was well represented in the Vermont celebration by the Grand Canton Worcester No 3, Patriarchs Militant, I. O. O. F., and their friends who left in three of the Worcester Excursion Car Company's cars at 7:35 p.m. Tuesday. The cars were the Charles B. Pratt, Yellowstone and Jerome Marble, and were attached to the regular 7:35 on the Fitchburg Railroad.

The list of the party is:—Capt. John A. Sears, commandant; Capt. E. E. Francis, Lieut. E. W. Platt, Lieut. H. D. Hannant, Ensign George Kingston, Accountant George W. Carr, Maj. A. W. Rose, Ensign George W. Dickinson, Capt. D. N. Pratt, D. A. Harrington.

Chevaliers H. A. Hoyt, Elmer Hewitt, P. H. Stearns, A. F. Ballou, John Brusco, Alpheus Jones, Jacob North, George H. Amsden, E. O. Knight, F. P. Edwards, B. W. Hiscox, J. L. Briery, Edward Hudson, S. H. Elliot, George Green, John G. Smith, George G. Hildreth, W. N. Holbrook, H. B. Belcher, F. W. Grout, Clifford Mahoney, L. R. Spooner, W. W. Sanderson, G. C. C. Fuller, Horace S. Briggs, B. F. Parkhurst, D. M. Waterman, F. E. Marshall, Capt. J. C. Bennett, Lowell; His Honor Mayor Francis A. Harrington, Alderman A. Frank Gates, William L. Davis, Frank D. Perry, Nelson Stark, C. A. Thwing, Mrs. John Sears, Mrs. H. A. Hoyt, Mrs. John Brusco, Mrs. E. O. Knight, Mrs. H. D. Hannant, Mrs. John G. Smith, Mrs. E. E. Francis, Mrs. D. A. Harrington, Mrs. W. L. Davis, Mrs. F. E. Marshall, Mrs. C. A. Thwing, Miss Sarah Church, Miss H. E. Strong, Mrs. Frank D. Perry, Mrs. D. M. Waterman.

The cars were profusely bedecked and nothing could be happier, than the start, unless it were the trip itself which was pleasant throughout, ending Thursday night in the return of the party. Caterer Frank E. Marshall looked out for the creature wants of the company.

Miss Florence B. Dally is visiting relatives in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Major F. G. Stiles and wife attended the 27th reunion of the 42d Regiment at Melville Gardens, Downer's Landing, Thursday. This is the Major's old regiment and he is one of the vice presidents of the Veteran Association.

Mrs. Henry Phelps and her son, Edwin S., are visiting in Petersham.

Mr. Herbert A. Stiles from Chicago has been visiting his father, Major F. G. Stile on Harrington Avenue. This is the first visit in six years. He left for his western home, Monday last.

Mrs. E. D. Roe of Elmira, N. Y., is the guest of Mrs. A. W. Walker, Grove Street.

Bennington.

Now that the Battle has been properly remembered and the towering shaft is in place to keep its memory bright, the following words taken from "The Annual Register" for 1777 may be read with interest. This book was begun in 1758 by Dodsley in Pall Mall London and gave an epitome of the world's history for each year. After describing the project of Burgoyne in trying to separate the colonies the advances of Baum and Breyman were named and their object in marching upon Bennington. Then comes the description verbatim "A General Starke, who commanded the militia at Bennington, determined not to wait for the junction of the two parties, advanced in the morning, whilst Breyman was yet struggling with the difficulties of his march, to attack Baum in his post which he had intrenched, and rendered as defensible as time and its nature would permit. The loyal provincials who were along with him, were so eager in their hopes to find what they wished to be real, that when the enemy were surrounding his post on all sides, they for some time persuaded him, that they were bodies of armed friends who were coming to his assistance. The colonel soon discovered the error, and made a brave defence. His small works being at length carried on every side, and his two pieces of cannon taken, most of the Indians with several of the provincials, Canadians, and British marksmen, escaped in the woods. The German dragoons still kept together, and when their ammunition was expended, were bravely led by their Colonel to charge with their swords. They were soon overwhelmed, and the survivors, among whom was their wounded Colonel, were made prisoners.

Breyman who had the hard fortune not to receive the smallest information of this engagement, arrived near the same ground about four in the afternoon, where instead of meeting his friends, he found his detachment attacked on all sides by the enemy. Notwithstanding the severe fatigue they had undergone, his troops behaved with great vigour and resolution, and drove the Americans in the beginning from two or three different hills on which they had posts. They were however at length overpowered, and their ammunition being unfortunately expended, although each soldier had brought out forty rounds in his pouch, they were obliged with great reluctance to retreat in the best manner they could; a circumstance to which the lateness of the evening was very favourable.

The loss of men sustained in these two engagements could not be less than five or six hundred, of whom however, the greater part were prisoners. But this was not the only or the greatest loss. The reputation and the courage it afforded to the militia, to find that they were able to defeat regular forces; that neither Englishmen nor Germans were invincible, nor invulnerable to their impression; and the hope and confidence inspired by the artillery, and other trophies of victory, were of much greater consequence. This was the first turn that fortune had taken in favour of the Americans in the northern war, since some time before the death of Montgomery; misfortune had succeeded misfortune and defeat had trodden upon the heel of defeat, since that period. This was the first instance in the present campaign, in which she seemed even wavering, much less that she for a moment quitted the royal standard. The exultation was accordingly great on the one side; nor could the other avoid feeling some damp to that eagerness of hope, and receiving some check to that assured confidence of success, which an unmixed series of fortunate events must naturally excite."

Good and Old.

The Spy's Leominster Correspondent sends the following item, good enough to be true:—

A well known lady in town thought she would devote a leisure hour a few days ago in examining the contents of an old bureau in the attic. It was filled with old papers, deeds, letters, bills, receipts, etc., that the lady's ancestor had filed many years ago.

Among other queer documents, the following letter was discovered, written in quite a good but odd handwriting, and some time-worn was the paper it was quite impossible to decipher some of it. The letter was dated in Leominster, but the time is faded out:—

Dear, Good John:—We shall have to put off our marriage, mother is making such an awful fuss about it. I don't want to a bit now we are published, but I have to. She says you ain't old enough and I don't know anything, and there is so much expense about it.

Now, John, just think of it My dress will be only nine shillings ($1.50) and my new calfskin shoes would do. She says you shan't marry me until you can keep two cows of your own. Father is willing and says he will give us the sheep, but mother says he shan't and you know she always carries the day. Darn it, I wish she could never have got married herself.

Now, John, let us stick to each other. I shall be 18 in about 10 months more. Now you will hold on, won't you, John? Come Sunday night with the gray horse and shay and we will ride out and talk it over. Good night. MARY."

Mary was the finder's great great grandmother.

A Musical Creed.

There are not many men who sit down and formulate a musical creed. One man has done so and has consented to the publication of it. As the gentleman's name is not for publication the comment may be added that it is a very good creed. Here it is: "I am a Wagnerite.

"I believe in the glorious trinity—Bach, Beethoven and Wagner; father, son and spirit of music.

"I believe in Bach as the master of musical science, the apostle of musical form, the prophet of musical thought.

"I believe in Beethoven as the epitome of all that was and all that is to be in absolute music. He wrote what all may read, but none can solve.

"I believe in Richard Wagner as the dramatizer of the human soul.

"I believe in Mozart's Don Juan as the greatest opera (not music drama) ever written.

"I believe in Robert Schumann with all my heart, for in his symphonies is the bread of musical life for many generations.

"I believe in Franz Schubert when I am alone.

"I believe in Frederick Chopin at dawn and at dusk and by starlight, but not when the sun marks high noon.

"I believe in the present; but it is a transition period. Music stands in the ante-chamber of the new palace which Wagner built for her.

"I believe in the future. What has been done is but an earnest of what can be done. Music has but stretched her wings to try their strength; her flight has not begun."—Exchange.

Harry E. Hosley, for the past two years in the office of the Bay State Shoe & Leather Company, leaves Sept. 1 to study dentistry. He will spend one year in the office of a well known dentist, and finish his education at the Philadelphia Dental College.

Mrs. Helen Pevey Gould returned from an extended trip in the West Saturday last.

Miss Annie H. Gray of Danvers is visiting her brother, Rev. Francis H. Gray, pastor of All Souls Universalist Church.

J. Brainard Hall and wife have been to Washington. Pension and G. A. R. matters receive attention.

City Marshal W. Ansel Washburn is away on a vacation.

Frank B. Hall and Harry S. Dadmun have returned from Falmouth Heights, where they passed a two weeks' vacation.

Stanley C. Rood, assistant instructor in physics at the Polytechnic Institute, has returned home after a six weeks' stay in New Braintree.

Lieut. John E. Lancaster was the guest of Frank Hopewell of Boston, at Marblehead, last week.

Henry A. Gross has returned from his trip to Niagara Falls and Detroit, having been absent two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Rawson and Mrs. Waldo A. Simpson left Saturday for a two weeks' stay at York Beach.

Dr. D. B. Lovell of Oakdale, but a W. H. S. graduate, is enjoying a well earned vacation. He will return to Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York, where he has been for the past year.

Alderman Ely left Saturday afternoon for a fortnight's vacation, a portion of which will be spent in driving in New Hampshire and Vermont.

Mr. Thomas M. Burke, the genial manager of the Royal Steam Heater Company, has just returned from a short business trip to Miller-ton, N. Y.

Fitchburg R. R.

This road advertises an excursion to Saratoga, via Hoosac Tunnel, Friday, Aug. 18th, fare from Worcester and return, $2.00, giving five hours at the Springs. This is certainly an excellent opportunity for Worcester people to behold the unrivaled scenery of the Deerfield Valley, to pass through the Big Bore and to see what they do at the Springs.

Books and Bookmen.

What's Bred in the Bone, by Grant Allen, a prize story, Rand, McNally & Co., Chicago and New York, Globe Library.

If to weave into one narrative incident enough for five be the test of a great novel, then this one must surely bear the palm. The plot is not of the away off hidden character that we always expected in Wilkie Collins, but there is plot enough. From the opening to the closing page there is no preaching nor teaching, but the interest is absolutely unflagging. To be sure there are some absurdities as when we are called to believe that some actors in the story have more than mortal powers in reading character and thoughts, on account of some Roumanian ancestry we remember that we are living in the 19th century and do not believe, to any great extent, in the supernatural. Obviously, Mr. Allen is a master of the art of novel writing and he directs his characters with all the skill and precision of an accomplished chess player. No matter where or how far they may wander, we may be sure that they will return in time for the next move. There are moments of thrilling interest; moments when the reader follows the theme almost breathlessly. Doubtless, the culmination is reached when Judge Gilder sleeve proclaims himself the slayer of Montague Neville. What a subject for the dramatist. There is little wonder that this is a prize story. Anything better would be a marvel. The representations of English life and manners are excellent and so vivid that the book seems a series of living scenes, not merely printed pages.

Lee & Shepard, of Boston, have in press a handsomely illustrated volume by the Rev. Louis Albert Banks. The book is a series of realistic studies of the Sweating, Tenement House, and kindred wrongs of the working people of our great cities. Dr. Banks' extensive personal investigations eminently qualify him for this task. Dr. Lyman Abbott writing of Dr. Banks' recent series of discourses on the Condition of The Boston Poor, which has attracted attention from the Atlantic to the Pacific, says: "Since Kingsley's 'Alton Locke,' there has been no indictment more severely just of present industrial conditions."

D. C. Heath & Co., Boston, will issue this month Folk and Fairy Tales in French for Young or Old Children. Selected and edited, with notes and vocabulary, by Prof. E. S. Joynes, of the University of South Carolina. The edition will contain a number of favorite fairy tales by Perrault, Mme. d'Aulnoy, etc., offering easy and entertaining reading, with helpful notes and vocabulary.

D. C. Heath & Co., Boston, will issue this month Andersen's Bilderbuch ohne Bilder, an illustrated edition, with notes and vocabulary, by Dr. Wilhelm Bernhardt. Readers of this charming work will welcome an edition by this well-known teacher and editor.

A gentleman in Portland has become the possessor of the desk on which John G. Whittier wrote his earliest poem. He received it from the poet himself. It is described as a very old piece of furniture, being an heirloom in the Whittier family, and having seen, possibly, 200 years of service. For perhaps forty years it has been out of service, a newer piece of furniture taking its place in the "garden room" at Amesbury. The ancient desk has been renovated at Portland without changing any of its characteristic features.

Andrew Lang is some years older than the majority of his readers suppose him to be. He has reached forty-seven and his hair is turning gray and growing scant. He is tall, thin and dark, and has an unpleasant laugh. He talks slowly and with an effort, his conversation frequently falling into what they call in England the Oxford drawl. Lang is said to be working at a tremendous pace. He earns a large income, but there is little of it left for the bank after his heavy household expenses have been paid. Some of his American admirers are inclined to think that he writes too much, for there are evidences of dilution in his later prose productions.

T. W. Higginson, Julia Ward Howe, John G. Whittier, James Russell Lowell, George Kennan, William Lloyd Garrison, Phillips Brooks,—these are some of the names attached to a circular stating the intention of the signers to organize a society similar to that in England having for its organ the journal Free Russia. Its object will be "to obtain and spread authentic information about the condition of Russia, to organize lectures, meetings, debating societies, and to use all other legal and honorable means of influencing public opinion in America."

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett is occupied in training her little son as a journalist, and he already occupies the editorial chair of a little paper which chronicles the worthy doings of little boys in "knickers" and little girls in short frocks.

The lectures delivered in this country by Amelia B. Edwards have been revised and rewritten, with additions, for publication in a volume entitled "Pharaohs, Fellahs, and Explorers."

The grand-daughter of Charles Dickens, Miss Mary Dickens, has gone on the stage. She has lately made a provincial tour in "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

Thirty thousand persons are said to have witnessed the recent unveiling of a statue to Burns at Ayr.

The August Inland Printer from Chicago is here and as attractive as ever. If some of the early printers could only come back to life and see what marvels the types can accomplish, what a pleasure there would be in their faces. Nor is there any locality that contains a monopoly of this most useful art. This number is crowded full of matter useful to every man who wishes to know the full magnitude of the printing business.

Our Little Men and Women, D. Lothrop & Co. Boston.

The stories of this number are more delightful than usual if that were possible, and we are sure will be read with closest attention. From cover to cover there is only the cleanest, sweetest, reading for the little ones and the publishers are to be thanked for such a magazine, that will help to make our children pure and true.

Babyland, D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

The new version of Hickory dickory dock ought to tickle the babies with all its illustrations of the mouse. Besides these pictures there are many others. Some more from the toy closet and a page from dot's house fill the pages of the charming book for the babies.

The Home Magazine, conducted by Mrs. John A. Logan, The Brodix Publishing Co., Washington, D. C.

This number comes with so many things fresh and good that it is hard to single out any. The letter from Mrs. Logan dated London, and describing the races at Epsom is one of the good things, and the talks so valuable to the mothers of the family is another of the noticeable features. Then the stories, of which there are several, will attract all. A quaint story of a doll, for the little ones and a portion of the continued story for the adults of the household, must be read and it is only when the magazine has been entirely read through that we cease to find articles of interest and value. Price only fifty cents a year, surely within reach of all.

"Osborne of Arrochar" by Amanda M. Douglas, Lee & Shepard Publishers, Boston, Mass.

"If Leighton Osborne does not come back within seven years, Mrs. Jermaine and her four daughters are to consider the estate their own," so the will reads, but after five of those years pass and they feel quite secure in their home he does appear and demands his own. Clyde, the oldest of the four girls, overhears the heir tell the lawyer that he does not wish to see any of them and can make no terms with any of them, and her anger is so roused that when he does wish to meet her with the rest, she will not see him. She is the chief character aside from Osborne himself, and the reader is carried along with her in her struggles. She steps out of her usual rut and obtains office work thus bringing in a little money for her poverty stricken household. Do all he may, Osborne cannot overcome the hatred Clyde seems to have towards him, neither will she tell him wherein she has offended. There is plenty of action, and though the book has four hundred and forty-nine pages each one is so full of incident that no one wearies. Of the many books written by this author we think this is one of the best if not most excellent of them all. It is issued in the Good company series. As a bound volume its price is $1.50.

The Providence Journal says this of the book:

"Osborne of Arrochar" is the nineteenth novel of Miss Douglas' list, and yet her hand has not lost its cunning, nor her imagination its power to create. This popular writer embodies in her latest romance the same ingenuity in the construction of the plot, the same abundant resources in its development and the same power to arouse an absorbing interest that mark all her work. She occupies a field entirely her own. Her command of language is marvellous, her style is earnest and realistic and her characters play their parts with an individuality so pronounced that no confusion arises on account of the large number that mingle in the action. Miss Douglas has done no better work than this book bears witness too. It is strong, earnest, intensely interesting, graphic in portraiture and vivid in description.

Eye and Ear Lessons for children and youth. No. 1. Cities of Palestine. A Sunday Substitute for Week Day Games, C. F. Marston, 20 Lagrange Street, Worcester Mass.

The compiler has succeeded in getting up something new for Sunday diversion., Children find the cities of Palestine an excellent method of verifying their knowledge of Bible matters. By a system of numbers, the zest of a game is maintained. LIGHT is able to state from actual observation that the children like it. Sent post paid for ten cents.

For Sale.

The following books and pamphlets may be had at this office at prices stated.

Reminiscences of the Rev. George Allen of Worcester, with a Biographical Sketch and Notes by Franklin P. Rice. A very handsome, 8vo volume of 127 pages, gilt top, with portrait. $2.00.

A Biographical Sketch of A. Carey Field, class of 1874, Amherst College, and for thirteen years a teacher in the Worcester High School, by Alfred S. Roe. Elegantly printed and bound by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $75

These pamphlets, uniform in style, viz., 8vo, can be furnished at 15 cents each.

1. The Wellington Collection of Rebellion Relics, (121 pages.)
2. Greek and its Latest Critic, (20 pages.)
3. The Youth in the Rebellion, Address before George H. Ward Post 10, G. A. R., June 3, 1883, (27 pages.)
4. Three April Days, April 19, 1689, 1775, 1861, (19 pages.)
5. Dorothea Lynde Dix, a sketch of her life in Worcester, (20 pages.)
6. John Brown, A Retrospect, (25 pages) All by Alfred S. Roe.
7. The Early Settlements of Worcester (33 pages,) by Francis E. Blake.
8. Discovery of a Mastodon's Remains in Northborough, Mass., (18 pages,) by Franklin P. Rice.
9. The Beginnings of Methodism in Worcester, with picture of the first church, (31 pages,) by Alfred S. Roe, in cloth 60 cents, paper 15 cents.

[From a private letter by George B. Churchill to home friends.]

YORK, ENGLAND, July 12, 1891.

Here in old York, having a few minutes to dispose of, I begin a letter that may not be finished before I reach London.

There is so much to tell about our journeyings since leaving Liverpool that I can scarcely tell anything. Description is impossible and outlines so unsatisfying. We got into Liverpool about 1 o'clock Wednesday, but were not landed and out of the custom-house till about four, for the ship, instead of landing passengers by tender, took advantage of the tide and went into the dock. This gave us an opportunity to see the far famed Liverpool docks, and we hardly regretted the delay. As it was now too late to go on our chosen way, we went down to Chester for the night. We took the lovely walk around the walls and along the Dee, in the evening and Thursday morning, looked over the Cathedral a little and went on our way, by Manchester and Leeds. We had about an hour's wait at each of these places, and so strolled out a little in them. They are both great manufacturing places, using the vast amount of cotton that comes from America. The buildings are all turned black by the soot in the air, which gives them an appearance that is after all not unpleasing. They both have some very fine massive buildings, such as the Exchange, Town-hall etc. At Leeds we saw the picture gallery, which has over 1000 good pictures. From Leeds we sped on up Wharfedale to Olley, an old agricultural town. I wish I could describe the time we had here. It was sport from beginning to end. In the first place we lost our way going to the Summer Cross Hotel and travelled along all sorts of winding lanes and back alley-ways, under people's clothes hanging on the lines in back yards, tumbling over squalling children at every second step, stared at by old grannies from every window of the little stone, slate-roofed houses, as we passed, and from the door-steps as we approached or had passed by, and finally reached the house of our destination by the henney and back door. The hostess wabbed out. To our inquiry for lodgings she replied something like "oh a coodn't put ye oop the night! a've only one bed-room and a lady friend has just come to visit us. A've only four rooms, me and me husband sleep in one, me two sons sleeps in the second, me lady friend has the third, and me girl has the fourth so ye see a coodn't put ye oop!" But we got "put oop" all the same. The shillings we represented were not to be turned away. So the hostess (Mrs. Walker) slept with her lady friend and the old man had the sofa.

When we went into the smoking room we got our first taste of the Yorkshire dialect. Some men were smoking and drinking there including Mr. Walker, clothed in his shirt-sleeves so to speak, and a pair of breeches twice too big in some parts and as much too small in others. There was a young lady visiting Mrs. Walker, as I have said and she turned out to be the fiancée of one of Mrs. Walker's sons, a very pretty girl from Scotland. The son turned up late in the evening, and it proved that he was studying music in Leeds and he sang and—sang and we had a "high old time." One or two friends of the family dropped in and talked, Mrs. Walker talked without ceasing, the pretty girl from Scotland got over her first shyness and talked and from it all we got plenty of information about Wharfedale and Yorkshire in general. We sang some of our old Glee Club songs which delighted them immensely, and for jolly good fellowship and opportunity to study types of English country people, the evening couldn't have been better.

John Devlin of the Wilmington, Del., bridge works and an Institute and W. H. S. graduate is home for a rest.

Col. A. George Bullock and Jerome Wheelock of this city were among the New Englanders who recently registered at the New York Herald office, in Paris.

Smith & Adams, successors to Henry W. Miller, are making extensive changes and improvements in the old stand.

Ballads of Blue and Gray.

PLANCIANNOIS' REPORT.

A Tale of the Corps D'Afrique.

'Tis break of day and far away the muttered thunder growls,
As eager for his scented prey the unchained war-wolf prowls.
'Tis break of day and Blue and Grey are struggling in the East,
They'll struggle so on earth below when the upper strife hath ceased.
The colonel rides his sorrel mare adown the serried ranks,
And at his side as he doth ride his crooked sabre clanks;
And like a braod in his right hand a banner he doth bear,
Free fluttering the breezes fling the silk folds on the air.
And as from nostrils red and thin the mare her challenge rings,
The rein throws he to an orderly and from the saddle springs;
"Two paces forward colour-guard, and listen while I speak!"
The colonel cries, nor voice replies from the Corps de Afrique.
But one steps out before the line and he wears chevrons three,
The sergeant of the color-guard of negro blood is he,
Who stands there mute as in salute his black palm to his cap
He thinks to hazard life and limb to wear a shoulder strap.
"Honor, protect and die for this!" Into that hand he gave
The starry flag that flung its folds above the quondam s'ave.
"Honor, protect and die for this but let no foeman's hand Tear from your grasp the staff you clasp and this is my command!"
Twice on the sacred stripes and stars his eye the negro cast,
Twice heaved his chest before the tide of veneration past,
Then clear spake he on bended knee with hand up-lifted high
"I'll bring dese colors safely back or report to God de why."

Port Hudson lieth silent now beneath the far off stars
And pale the ghastly moon swings low to view earth's battle scars,
And constellations dot the hills where cheerless bivouac fires,
Burn coldly in the gloomy camp like soldiers' funeral pyres.
The night had sealed the cannons lip and rent its bel-lowing breath,
The crash and roar of smoky war are lost in hush of death;
And on the field where foemen reeled when that last charge was made,
They're thickly sown as the mailed cone in the murk pine forests' shade;
And one there lies with sightless eyes from whence the soul is sped,
There's a bayonet wound in the pulseless chest and a minie in the head;
And Planciannois could not bring back his colors from the fight,
But God accepted his report when he brought it up that night.

—Francis Zuri Stone.

Petersham, Mass.

Edgar E. Putnam is resting at Juniper Point, Salem.

Mrs. S. H. Howard, now in England with her son, Frederick, will soon come home. Her daughter, Mrs. Helen Campbell of North Carolina returned to her southern home in July.

Abduction by an Indian.

WRITTEN BY A. A. PARKER 1847.

Previous to the Revolution, when a few ordinary looking buildings occupied the present site of the pleasant village of Exeter, N. H. it is well known that the country around was, generally, a wilderness, inhabited by numerous tribes of Indians. The intercourse between them and the early settlers was frequent, though not always of a friendly nature. The natives, improvident, indolent and idle, were continually begging or stealing from their more frugal and industrious neighbors. As the benefit of such an intercourse was all on one side, and to the serious inconvenience and injury of the other, it was suffered to continue by the whites, only because they were the weaker party, and did not possess the power to discontinue it.

At this time, an elderly farmer, by the name of Rowe, lived on the south bank of Exeter river a short distance below the falls, and near the present site of Capt. Furnald's tannery. Among the numerous natives that used to frequent his house was a young Indian from the borders of the Cochecho river. Mr. Rowe had a daughter by the name of Caroline, a comely lass of seventeen, to whom this Indian became much attached; and wished to take her home with him, and make her his squaw. The young lady treated all his overtures with scorn and derision; for she had no particular fancy for the Indian character, or his precarious mode of life. Whether the Indian was capable of the most refined and delicate sensations of love, it is not necessary to determine; but it is certain, that he exhibited all the frenzy of some of our modern lovers, on being so decidedly rejected and forbidden the hospitalities of the house. Finding entreaties vain, he did not give up in despair; but formed the resolution, forcibly to possess himself of the object of his wishes, willing or unwilling. This was a bold hazardous undertaking, and in which, if detected, his life would be the forfeit; but his ungovernable feelings prompted him forward at all hazards.

One day, at early dawn, he glided up the river in his canoe, unperceived; and to prevent giving alarm, hid it on the shore, and concealed himself near the house of Mr. Rowe. The family had not yet risen; and he waited there sometime, in breathless anxiety for a favorable moment to seize his intended victim. At length he heard the family stirring in the house; and soon after, saw Mr. Rowe come out at the door, and pass on to his rude built barn, to feed his cattle. When he was fairly out of sight, the Indian rushed into the kitchen, and to his great joy, found Miss Caroline there alone. He did not stop to parley, but folded her in his arms at once; and, notwithstanding her screams and resistance, he triumphantly bore her to the river, and, put her into the boat. Her father heard her cries, seized his pitcherfork, the only weapon he had at hand, and pursued the Indian; but he only arrived on the bank just as they leaped into the boat. The father ran some distance up stream for a boat; he luckily found one, jumped into it, and started off in pursuit. Meanwhile the Indian with his fair one, in his bark canoe, paddled off down the stream as fast as he could. The father, as he turned around the bend of the river, came in full view of the fugitives, and paddled after them with all his strength. There was an interesting aquatic race; and the light boats glided along on the surface of the water, with the swiftness of an arrow. The Indian labored under some disadvantages—he had two in his canoe, and propelled it with the paddle—the old gentleman was alone in his boat, had rowlocks, and two good oars; and would beyond question shortly have won the race, had not the Indian bolted. His keen eye soon perceived that the other boat neared him fast, in spite of all his efforts, and that he must soon be caught if he continued on the water. He found a small creek, on the west side of the river, ran his boat into it, and trusted to the swiftness of his feet, and the dense forest of trees, to elude his pursuer. The father followed on, but after trying the forest awhile, he found it was now a losing race to him. He could ply the oar with more effect than he could the foot. He lost sight of the fugitives; but as he found no difficulty in tracing their foot steps in the frost, and in the occasional patches of snow, he resolutely pushed forward.

The pursuit had continued for some hours, the day was far spent:—the father was an elderly man and somewhat infirm: he became weary and began to falter. There seemed to be no prospect of his overtaking the Indian, or of rescuing his daughter; but as he could not think of returning without her, he still continued on, even against hope.

At this critical juncture of severe trial and utter despondency, the welcome form of a youthful hunter met his eye. He was on his return home, from a short excursion in the woods. To him he unfolded his tale of woe, and the vigorous youth, fired at the outrage committed by a son of the forest, upon the peace and dignity of a daughter of civilized life, started off with zeal in the pursuit. Night had already commenced its reign; but the moon wheeled its broad disk in the sky, and shone almost as bright as day. He could follow their trail without much difficulty; and a few hours of active pursuit brought him in sight of them. The Indian had kept a good look out, and was aware of his approach; but was artful enough to make the young lady his shield of defence. He made her walk between himself and the hunter, so that he could not fire without endangering her life. The hunter followed on at a distance, for some time; but the vigilance of the Indian thwarted every attempt to attack him.

At length the young hunter, determined at all events to rescue the young lady, hit upon an expedient which proved successful. He lingered behind as though he became fatigued, and let the Indian pass on out of sight. He then took a sweep round the line of their march, as fast as he could, came out ahead on their route, concealed himself behind a tree, and shot the Indian through the head as he passed along. They were then in what is now the town of Madbury; but they had travelled a long distance, as the Indian took a circuitous route in order to elude his pursuers.

Thus, was the young lady rescued, and relieved at once from her tedious flight and from her fearful apprehensions of a life of wretchedness and woe among the natives of the forest; and thus, the rash and passionate Indian rightfully paid the forfeit of his life for his bold and unjustifiable abduction of a maiden, who had a positive dislike to himself and his nation. The grateful maiden and her generous deliverer, immediately started on their return home. After travelling a short distance, they met her father, who still had continued on the track, notwithstanding his severe fatigue. The chivalrous young hunter, as he surrendered his interesting charge to the arms of her father, and heard their warm-hearted acknowledgments for the signal service he had rendered in their behalf, felt more true joy than ever actuated the breast of the great Conqueror of the world. Who might not be prompted to great and noble deeds of daring, even with a faint hope of obtaining such an interesting trophy of victory, and hearing from the lips of innocence and beauty, the soul-stirring breathings of a grateful heart!

They all passed on to the house of the hunter, and the strangers partook of his hospitality, and rested awhile their weary limbs. On taking leave the next day, the parting scene between the youthful hunter and the rescued daughter was too interesting to be mistaken. It plainly indicated that their acquaintance, so suddenly and, and under such strange and peculiar circumstances commenced, might not be doomed to an evanescent existence. The old gentleman and his daughter soon reached home in safety, to relieve the anxiety, and gladden the hearts of his family and friends.

How strangely change the scenes of life! Our greatest afflictions are often the very means by which we receive our greatest blessings. Six months after this event, the interesting Caroline was seen riding along, a willing bride, by the side of her gallant hunter, to bless his home and gladden his heart. The rash abduction by the Indian, only hastened her on to the arms of a kind affectionate husband, and in his safe keeping, we may be allowed most respectfully, to take our leave.

Natural History Camp.

Under the care and guidance of Charles E. Burbank who wears the title of Colonel, this institution is accomplishing a good work. There are also woods and waters near at hand and what more can the juvenile ask for? Drums, too, with the ear splitting fife call the lads to drill wherein they may use a gun, the delight of every youthful soul. The camp is arranged to give boys a chance to work off surplus vitality and it is abundantly successful in this direction. They march, drill, row, swim, play lawn-tennis and how they do eat. There is a Doctor's call daily; but is quite superfluous. Even a barrel of apples, all eaten in one day did not produce a single demand for pain-killer. They are a happy lot, those lads, and even if they don't study systematically five hours a day, they are getting something. Every day, somebody tells them something that has a practical bearing on life.

Two weeks ago Comrade Chas. M. Smith, went down and told the lads how he escaped from Andersonville and walked pathless swamps and rode on alligator haunted waters till he reached the land of Freedom. If these boys don't recall this summer with delight, it will be because they have no memories. It is a paradise for boys.

"Whom Do Men Say that I Am?"

BY T. C. RICE.

PERSONAL INVOCATION.

Vishnu—Odin—Mexit—Thor—
Thou, Oh deep unwritten Law,
God, or Boodh, or Jove, or Brahme,
Spirit of whatever name,
Here, and there, and everywhere
Far as infinity may fare
Potency in all excess,
Nor in sight nor wisdom less,
Let thy suppliant creature see
Who in heart confesses thee.

While the vision I behold,
Of thy devotees enrolled,
While for all within my reach
I affect to utter speech,
Let me for that hour be
A light and type of equity.
If so be, Oh Spirit, God!
Types of all this brotherhood
See thee, but in varied light,
See thee, but with different sight,
Own thee, Master none the less,
Through appeal's ambiguous dress
Pagan plea or Christian prayer,
Shall in fervent speech declare.

CHAPTER I.

Spirit, Manito, Most High,
In the earth or in the sky,
Watching at the blaze of noon,
Watching by the pallid moon,
Heedful of us in the light,
Mindful in the darkest night,
Hear thy needy children call,
Master Spirit—Soul of all.
If the sun should bow to thee,
If the moon yield fealty,
Bid the Sun to burst the cloud
That weekly folds him like a shroud;
The changing moon to lead away
The dripping rain and drenching spray
That drowning herbs and rotting maize
Their waited, wished-for spires may raise.

Then Manito the mighty, bring
The tardy red deer to the spring,
The turkeys to the groves of pine,
The bear within the howstring's line,
The coon from out his long kept lair,
The wily partridge to the snare,
The quail and squirrels from the hill,
Till squaw and warrior feast their fill.

Then bring O Manito, Most High
My stoutest enemies to die,
To die by tomahawk or spear,
By scalp, knife, dart, or warclub here,
By any means or any way,
So friends and foeman all shall say,
As of my sires the warriors tell,
"With scalps he filled his girdle well."

Spirit, Manito, Most High!
Where my warrior fathers lie,
In the forest by the sea,
Guide and keep and honor me,
Give me wealth of wampum bead,
And strings of wampum to my need,
For never charm nor ever spell,
Was potent like the wampum shell.

CHAPTER II.

Wasting herds and starving flocks,
Meadows barren as the rocks,
Parched earth and burning sky,
Wreck and devastation lie
Like a blight o'er all the land.
Ruin upon every hand,
So the suffering nomads cry,
Smarting from thy scourge, Most High,
Hear us, thou whose blinding light!
Hides Omnipotence from sight,
Not as once the changing moon,
Brings the dry mouthed soil its boon,
Boon of dew and boon of shower,
Boon of sweet life-giving power,
But wax and wane as ever will,
The yellow turf is gasping still,
And will thine anger ne'er be spent,
God of gods—Pre-eminent.

Source of light, we bow to thee!
Surplice of Infinity,
And conjure thee by all we know
Of human penance here below,
By bleeding wound and smarting burn,
By fasting that to tortures turn,
By nightly vigil, daily toil,
Thy children spare from further spoil.

Oh! hide from us thy sweltering beams,
But for a day, till pool and streams,
Till brook and lake again shall laugh,
And living things thy bounty quaff,
Till Nature from its burning bed,
Redeemed shall lift its smiling head,
And full mouthed peons to thy praise,
Eternal, and All Potent raise.

CHAPTER III.

Image of the Great Unknown,
Sculptured in the soulless stone,
I who can no farther see,
Into deep Divinity,
Into means or into cause,
Into fixed eternal laws,
Thou this feeble eye detects
Causes in observed effects,
I—a worshiper of God—
Shrinking from his chastening rod,
Bow me low and worship thee,
Image of Infinity.

Who can find thine awful face,
In the soundless depths of space,
Save he make the senses bear
Burthen of his praise and prayer?
Father, God, Thou Great Unknown!
Sculptured in the soulless stone,
O'er thy creatures everywhere,
Cast the mantle of thy care,
Bless our tribe with unity,
Bless the children born to me,
Even though they scoff at thee,
Pour thy blessings far and free,
Last of all, Oh! bless thou me.

CHAPTER IV.

Buddha—in the pearly west,
With the sunlight gone to rest,
Buddha from the Orient,
Where the drowsy night was spent,
Buddha from the perfumed isles,
Where an endless summer smiles,
Buddha from the icy north,
Pouring an effulgence forth,
Gilding of thy sleep supreme,
Brightness of that rapturous dream,
Streaming from thy couch afar,
Slumbering Buddha—Guadama.
Must thy votaries longer wait,
Sighing at the blissful gate?
Waiting for the year and day
When as Buddhist prophets say
Fallen man regenerate,
Shall regain his lost estate,
And our race divorced from sin,
Like ripened grain be garnered in?

Buddha, thou of all, the soul
Essence—Spirit of the whole,
From the farthest world we ken
To these nites—these atoms—men.
Buddha—we have heard the law,
Help to keep it without flaw.
Thou art law, and thou hast said
Repentance is to virtue wed.
Though we walk in sensual ways,
Give us, Buddha, length of days,
Till through penance day by day,
We learn to walk in virtue's way,
Till walking thus, we bring again,
"Peace on Earth—good will to men,"
Bury now the passing year,
With the new, Oh! Boodh, appear
And bring at last that promised bliss,
Sweet, semi-conscious nothingness.

(To be continued next week.)

ABOUT FOLKS.

Master Lawrence Powers of Home Street brings to LIGHT a peculiar freak of nature in the shape of a fuchsia blossom that has become identified with the leaf. The merging has not conduced to the good of either, but it certainly is a queer sight to see the brilliant red of the blossom running along the middle rib of the leaf. A sting from some visiting insect may have been the cause of the phenomenon.

F. O. Bushnell, Jr., has had a few days at Concord, Mass. He rode there on his bicycle, and made a few runs around the surrounding country besides.

Frank B. Hall left Monday for his vacation at Mt. Desert.

J. K. Churchill and wife returned from Michigan Sunday evening, having devoted a week to visiting friends, after attending the Grand Army encampment.

Thomas O'Gara went to Bennington, Vt., Monday, to visit comrades of the 7th regiment, Vermont volunteers, of which he was a member.

Col. John W. Wetherell is taking an outing at the Isles of Shoals.

Joseph Young and F. A. Keyes went to the Bennington celebration.

H. Spencer Haskell, Esq., has returned from his summer's outing, well tanned and showing plainly that the sun struck him.

Cyrus P. Grovesnor and family left Worcester Monday for Denver, Col. Mr. Grovesnor was employed for a number of years by the Union Water Meter Company. He goes West to benefit his health.

Rev. J. J. Power, D. D., is at Nantasket.

Mrs. Patrick Ronayne and children went Monday to Newport, where they will spend a few weeks.

Charles R. Clemence, superintendent of Darling Brothers' shops, joined his wife and young son at Meredith village, N. H., Monday.

Alfred S. Roe and family were the guests, Saturday last, of Tyler Newton and wife, at Sterling camp ground.

Frank A. Richardson, Mrs. Helen S. Richardson and Miss Minnie Fay left for Rye, N. H., Monday.

Miss Mabel Brooks of Ashland has been visiting at William Forsyth's, 20 Preston Street.

Senator Hoar and family have gone to Bar Harbor.

Judge P. Emory Aldrich has gone to the Isle of Shoals.

Mrs. J. A. Davis has returned to the city from her vacation at Cottage City.

Councilman Irving E. Comins, accompanied by his family, has gone for a vacation to Southwest Harbor, Me.

Col. Fred W. Wellington took a ride with Cushing's Battery. Joining the same at Whitinsville he went with it to Brattleborough, Vt. That was a fine thing to do, enjoyable for all parties. Then too, the Colonel knows, now, what a march is, though it did not have the zest of hostile surroundings.

Public Library Additions.

More books added during June.

I indicates that the book is in the Intermediate department and may be taken out if specially called for.

- ARISTOTLE. On the Constitution of Athens; ed. by F. G. Kenyon, 2nd ed. - - - - - 34273
- Association of Municipal and Sanitary Engineers, Proceedings, vol. 16, 1889-90 - - - - - I
- BARRIE, J. M. An Edinburgh eleven; ports. from college life - - - - - 34274
- BATTY, J. Spirit and influence of chivalry - - - - - 34275
- BEAN, W. W. Parliamentary representation of the six northern counties of England, 1603-1886 - - - - - I
- BELL, MRS. H. Chamber comedies - - - - - 34276
- BLATER, J. Table of quarter-squares of whole numbers from 1 to 200,000 - - - - - I
- BOWES, J. L. Japanese pottery - - - - - I
- BRIGHT, W. Ancient Collects, etc.; select. with app. 6th ed. - - - - - 34277
- BROWNING, R. Asolando; fancies and facts (vol. 7 of rev. ed.) - - - - - I
- BURTON, J. R. History of Kidderminster, with neighboring parishes - - - - - I
- CALPURNIUS SICULUS, T. Eclogues, rendered into Eng. verse by E. J. L. Scott - - - - - 34278
- CHESTERFIELD, LORD. Worldly wisdom; select. from his letters, etc.; ed. by G. B. Hill - - - - - 34279
- CUNDALL, F. Landscape and pastoral painters of Holland; Rinsdael, Hobberna, etc., (Gr. artists, new ser.) - - - - - 34280
- DIXON, J. M. Dictionary of idiomatic English phrases - - - - - I
- DUNLAP, W. History of the American theater - - - - - I
- GARDINER, S. R. Student's history of England to 1885, vols. 1-2 - - - - - 34281-2
- GIBBINS, H. de B. Industrial history of England (Univ. extens. ser.) - - - - - 34291
- GODWIN, M. W. Vindication of the rights of woman. New ed.; introd. by Mrs. Fawcett - - - - - I
- GUILLEMARD, F. H. H. Life of Ferdinand Magellan, etc., 1480-1521 (World's gr. explorers) - - - - - 34292
- HECTOR, A. F. (ps. Mrs. Alexander) Blind Fate - - - - - 34293
- HJELT, E. Principles of general organic chemistry; tr. by J. B. Tingle - - - - - 34294
- JARVES, J. J. Pepero, the boy artist; memoir of J. J. Jarves, Jr., with portrait and illust. - - - - - I
- JOHNSON, E. Rise of Christendom - - - - - I
- KOVALEVSKY, M. Modern customs and ancient laws of Russia; Ilchester lect. 1889-90 - - - - - 34295
- LESLIE, R. C. Old sea wings, ways and words - - - - - 34296
- LEWIS, A. J. (ps. Prof. Hoffman) ed. Magic at home; tr. and ed. from "Science amusante" by A. Good - - - - - 34297
- LORIMER, J. Studies, national and international; lects. 1864-89; with biog. notice - - - - - 34298
- LOWE, R. W. Thomas Betterton (Eminent actors) - - - - - 34299

- MACKAIL, J. W. ed. Select epigrams from Greek anthology; with rev. text, notes, trans., etc. - - - - - 34300
- MEYER, H. Across East African glaciers; ascent of Kilimanjaro - - - - - I
- MIDDLETON, J. H. Engraved gems of classical times; with catalogue of gems in the Fitzwilliam Museum - - - - - I
- MILES, W. A. Correspondence on the French Revolution 1789-1817; ed. by C. P. Miles, 2 vols. - - - - - 34301-2
- Palestine Pilgrims' Text Society, publications, no. 2 17 - - - - - I
- PHELPS, A. My Note-book; fragmentary studies in theology, etc., - - - - - 34257
- PHELPS, E. S. Fourteen to one - - - - - 34258
- RICE, D. H. Protective philosophy; the American system, McKinley bill - - - - - 34259
- ROBERTS, C. H. "Down the Ohio" - - - - - 34260
- SHAKESPEARE, W. Works; ed. by W. A. Wright, vols. 1-2 (Cambridge ed.) - - - - - I
- SMITH, F. H. Colonel Carter of Cartersville - - - - - 34261
- STICKNEY, A. B. The railway problem - - - - - 34262
- STOCKTON, F. R. The Rudder Grangers abroad; and other stories - - - - - 34263
- STODDARD, R. H. The lion's cub; with other verses - - - - - 34264
- STORY, W. W. Excursions in art and letters - - - - - 34265
- TAYLOR, B. G. The sardonyx seal; a romance of Normandy - - - - - 34266
- THURSFIELD, J. R. Peel (Twelve English Statesmen) - - - - - 34267
- VALERA, J. Dona Luz; tr. by M. J. Serrano - - - - - 34268
- WEIR, R. Riding; with Polo, by J. M. Brown (Badminton lib.) - - - - - I
- WIGGIN, K. D. The story of Patsy - - - - - 34269
- WINTER, W. Gray days and gold - - - - - 34270
- WRIGHT, G. F. Charles Grandison Finney (Amer. Religious leaders) - - - - - 34271
- YOUNG, C. A. Lessons in astronomy; including uranography - - - - - 34272

The grandfather of the Hon. Hannibal Hamlin had, an exchange asserts, seventeen children. The eldest were named respectively Europe, Asia, Africa, and America. Asia died an infant, and the fifth son was named Asia. Then followed daughters and sons to the number of seventeen, by two wives, and a third wife was a widow with two children. Europe settled in New Hampshire, Asia in Massachusetts, America and Africa in Maine, as did Cyrus, Senator Hamlin's father. This Cyrus, had a twin brother, Hannibal. The former named a son Hannibal (the Senator), and the latter named a son Cyrus, the distinguished missionary and philanthropist, so many years in Turkey. Senator Hamlin's father had seven children, Elijah, Cyrus, Eliza, Annie, Vesta, Hannibal, and Hannah. Hannibal was the last survivor of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Munroe have been at Falmouth Heights. Mr. Munroe will devote the remainder of the summer to Festival affairs.

Frank L. Stetson and James M. Hoey, employes of the Clark-Sawyer company, are enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Curious Corner.

"Old Hundred."

The most frequently sung of all the tunes in Christian use, how many know its origin? It was written by William Frank, a composer, 1520-1570. It is also ascribed to Louis Bourgeois, a Frenchman, who was slain in the massacre of St. Bartholomew's Day, 1572. It is also claimed that Martin Luther, in some way, changed or modified the tune. Its present name, however, came from English sources. The 100th Psalm, in verse, was adapted to it and it was known as the Hundredth. It was also called "Savoy" from its use by the French Congregation that worshipped at the Savoy in London. The prefix "old" was first given in Tate and Brady's Version of the Psalms. Bishop Ken's version of the 150th Psalm has, gradually, grown to be associated with the tune, and most people, today, know it as the Long Meter Doxology. "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

The Judges of Israel.

By S. Cruikshank, author of lays of S. Africa. Predestination—Arthur Wyld's Discovery, etc.

The chosen rulers of the sacred tribes
In line correct, as holy writ describes—
My rhyme shall tell commencing with the chief,
Who to the serfs in Goshen brought relief,
First heaven appointed Moses, Anran's son;
The second—Joshua, the Son of Nun.
Third—Othniel the Seat Judicial fills;
And Ehud fourth, who Moab's monarch kills;
The fifth is Shamgar, who in battle shows
His keen ox-goad—and kills six hundred foes.
Sixth Deborah with Barak rules the state
Excels alike in war and wise debate.
The seventh—Gideon, surnamed Jerubbaal.
The eighth Abimelech, who fights with Gaall.
Ninth—Tola, Puah's valiant son is chief.
Tenth—Jair, the Gileadite, whose tale is brief.
Eleventh—Jephthah, warlike, bold, and now
Alternate praised and blamed for his rash vow.
Twelfth Judge is Ibazan—Eilon, thirteenth rules—
Abdon, fourteenth—whose children ride on mules.
Herculean Samson—fifteenth judge holds sway,
But to his mistress falls an easy prey!
The sixteenth judge, in Eli does appear—
And Samuel lastly rules as judge and seer;
His sons assist—but Israel murmuring,
"Like other nations," wish to have a king.

Two Scotch sugar-planters in Demerara were boasting about their indifference to the bites of mosquitoes. The dispute got so warm that Mac bet Allister that he was the better man. Both agreed to lie down on the veranda, in puris naturalibus. Smoking and drinking were permissible, but the first man who complained of the bites was to lose a case of whiskey. For a long time each endured the onslaught of the blood-suckers; but at last, Allister could stand it no longer. He turned over preparatory to capitulating, and noticed Mac's back was toward him. Allister was smoking a cigar, and carefully removing the ash, he applied the butt to Mac's back. "Eh Mon?" yelled Mac. "that was a hull of a gallinipper." "Ye'll send me the case of whuskey in the morning," was the only remark of Allister, who tumbled into his clothes as quickly as possible.

Still the world forgets
That God knows best what hearts are counted His,
Still men deny the thing whose sign they miss;
And slowly learn, with outcries and complaints,
That publicans and sinners may be saints.

—Helen Hunt.

School and College.

Clark University.

DEPARTMENT OF PSYCHOLOGY.

Course for the Academic year beginning September 29, 1891.

I. General Practice Course. This course is intended for those unacquainted with laboratory manipulations, psychological apparatus, and methods of experimentations, and also for those making psychology a minor subject for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. It will be conducted by Dr. Sanford and Mr. H. T. Bolton, and will be individual with each student. The course will consist of about three hundred experiments, covering all the fields in which experimental methods are now applied to the solution of psychological problems, and will occupy probably three sessions per week throughout the year. Among the subjects thus treated will be the Physiology and Psychology of the Senses (Contact, Temperature, Pressure, Sensations of Motion and Position, Taste, Smell, Hearing, Color-vision, Visual Perception of Space), Simple Reaction-times. Reaction with Discrimination and Choice, Association-times, Reflex Action, Psycho-physic Law, Memory, and Attention. References for reading will be given in connection with each experiment.

It is intended that each student shall perform for himself all the more important experiments under each heading, and it is expected that before the end of the year he will be so far at home in psychological experimentation that he can be entrusted with some original problem for experimental solution under the direction of the Instructor.

In 1872, Wesleyan first admitted ladies. In 1876, their names were inscribed with the graduates. The young men feared this change would kill the college and cause their own premature demise. At the last commencement it was found that not a member of the class had died and that the College was more prosperous than ever. The ladies who graduated in the Country's Centennial at Wesleyan were Miss Ada T. Wells, (Haverhill) Miss Angie W. Perkins, (Bryn Mawr, Penn.) Miss Jennie Learned, (Buffalo, N. Y.) and Miss Phoebe Stone Beeman, (West Bridgewater, Mass.)

Vice-Principal Pray of the State Normal School at Whitewater, Wis., has been showing a party of teachers from his state the historic places of Boston.

If the Wisconsin school authorities only knew how baleful school excursions for pupils or teachers were, they would call those Normal School folks right home. The idea of getting history in any other way than from books! They should have some recent Worcester reports sent to them.

"The University of Pennsylvania has just come into possession of several handsome bequests through the energy of Prof. Francis N. Thorpe for a new institution to be known as the School of American History and Institutions. Everything that pertains to America in the way of history, literature, law and lore of any kind is to be studied. Prof. Thorpe is to be the dean of the new school, and he has spent over five years in perfecting his plans and elaborating his ideas. The library will be one of the finest on this continent, containing over 50,000 volumes. It will be very complete in every line bearing on American history, literature and law."

This is a move in the right direction. No department in school or college should outrank in importance American History.

"One of the three daughters of John D. Rockefeller, while a student at Vassar, had a handsome allowance from home. Instead of spending this on rich gowns she paid for two years the tuition and expenses of a girl from the country who was not able to pay for herself."

May her tribe increase. Such rich people will do. How many are like her?

Fatal Masterpieces.

Many musicians and composers have died young. This fact has resulted at times from irregularity of life and habits, at times also from the severity of the struggle with the wolf at the door. These unfortunate victims of the frenzy of genius seem to burn themselves out before they reach their prime.

"The fatal thirties" has come to be a familiar expression among musical historians, so many composers have died between their thirtieth and fortieth year. Pergolisi was the youngest of martyrs among the masters, dying at twenty-six years of age. Schubert was not much older, however, at the time of his death, which occurred at thirty-one. Mozart was thirty-five years old when he died; Mendelssohn lived to thirty-eight only; Purcell, the greatest genius that England ever produced in the art of music, died at thirty-seven; the list might be extended indefinitely. It seems however, that when this dangerous age is past the composer has a good chance of longevity. Possibly this is because the world begins to recognize the work of the veteran and his trials become fewer and less severe. Cherubini lived to eighty-two; Handel to seventy-four; Gluck to seventy-three; Haydn died at seventy-seven; Rossini at seventy-four; and an equally long list of septagenarians and octogenarians might readily be compiled from the musical annals.

Often some special work was the direct cause of the death of some great composer. Thus Mozart's work on the Requiem, the superstitions it caused to arise in him and the funereal thoughts consequent upon it, were the chief causes of his death. "Elijah" is said to have killed Mendelssohn. Haydn said on his death-bed, "The Seasons" gave me the finishing stroke." "Zampa" was the cause of the early decease of Herold, or at least hastened his death and "Carmen" caused Bizet, the most promising composer of the French school, to die at thirty-seven years of age. It is melancholy list and one which proves that art is a severe mistress. The world cannot help the composer as regards the dire results which sometimes follow upon the extreme tension of creation, but at least something can be done, as in France, to secure to him all the possible benefits of his works, so that popular composers such as Mozart, Schubert, Lortzing, and others were in their time, need not at present have poverty to bear in addition to their death-dealing heritage of genius.—Boston Musical Herald.

Fort Snelling.

I stand on Snelling's heights,
The river rolls below,
Long years have passed since here I stood
And watched its waters flow.

The plain that reaches far away,
Few homes did then enfold;
Today, a thousand hearthstones stand,
Where tales of yore are told.

I see St. Peter's river come,
And note its waters glide,
To give its tribute up to swell
The Mississippi tide.

The smoke of Indian camps no more
Floats on the balmy air,
But legends live and oft do speak
Of braves and dusky fair.

Grand and historic, Snelling stands,
A relic of the past,
Its guns are silent midst the peace,
That's welcome here at last.

From out her port-holes I behold,
A wealth of water glide,
To bear from Minnesota fields
A harvest on its tide.

—John C. Crane.

Fort Snelling, Minnesota, Aug. 5, 1891.

Vacation Notes from E. L. Smith & Co.'s Store.

Miss Maggie Doyle is at "Sconset" for the month.

Miss Rourke has just returned from the country.

Miss Josie Dandlin has gone to the mountains for two weeks.

Mr. Wm. J. Cosgrove has gone to Block Island of course.

Miss Bel Kelly is at Newport.

Miss Maggie Dorsey is at Newport.

Miss Kitty O'Neil is expected to register at Springfield.

Miss Marion Currie is stopping near Boston.

Miss Lizzie Mulvaney is looking plumper than ever, the result of her recent trip abroad.

Miss M. Foley is also improved in looks by her two weeks' outing.

Mr. Chas. E. Miller comes back with a grin on his face "like a Cheshire cat." The pretty like girl he brought back with him is the cause of it.

Mr. W. L. Noble found Moosehead all right. His "cutting" remarks are very pat.

Miss A. Millette is in New York city. So is Peter.

Mr. William Kernan has been at Barber's Crossing where he has been practising to take "Carmencita" Ewing's place on the New York team.

Miss Lilla Guertin is with her "cousin" in Barre.

Miss Julia Millette is supposed to be in Lancaster.

Mr. Charles O'Brien is taking a journey North.

Miss Nellie Callahan is at Block Island with her new bathing suit. The suit is not intended to be wet.

Miss Minnie Callahan is perfectly satisfied with Nantasket.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason A. Boyden are passing a week in Princeton.

FOR THE LAUNDRY.
BRUSSELS
 SOAP.

HENRY A. BOWMAN & CO.
 MANUFACTURERS OF

AWNINGS,
 TENTS,
 FLAGS.

HORSE, WAGONS,
 AND ALL KINDS OF
 Canvas Covers.

Tents for Sale and To Rent. Waterproof Tents by our new process guaranteed not to leak. The above cut represents our popular lawn tent, in Stock and made to order, 418 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

GUNS! All grades, from all the popular Manufacturers, both IMPORTED and DOMESTIC.—FISHING TACKLE—Everything an Angler wants. SPORTSMEN'S CLOTHING. Ammunition of all kinds. BLASTING

MATERIALS and a Complete Line of SPORTSMEN'S SUPPLIES. In the future as in the past my friends will receive a cordial welcome, with goods at the lowest prices, at the SPORTSMEN'S EMPORIUM.

E. S. KNOWLES, 416 MAIN STREET.

THE CRITERION
 Bakery and Restaurant.

Nothing but first-class material used. Table board at reasonable prices.
 231 MAIN ST. AND 36 SHREWSBURY ST.
 J. & T. CALDER, Proprietors.

Worcester Coal Company,
 Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Mauchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place at an early day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of
 Fine Monumental Work,
 131 Central Street, near Summer.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

W. A. ENGLAND,

DEALER IN

FINE WATCHES,
 CLOCKS, JEWELRY
 & OPTICAL GOODS.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

394 Main Street.

HARD WOOD MANTELS,
 Birch, Cherry, Oak, Etc.

* SMITH & ADAMS, *

NO. 156 MAIN STREET,
 H. W. Miller's Old Stand.

Offer Special Bargains in all Lines of
HOUSE---FURNISHINGS !
and those who buy now can save money.

CHAMBER SETS,
From $18 upwards.
PARLOR SUITS,
From $40 upwards.
SIDEBOARDS,
ODD EASY CHAIRS

Reduced in price to close.
Plush 16th Century
Oak Platform Rockers,
$8.50, WORTH $10.00.

Carpets

AT LOW PRICES.

Ranges!

We sell the Crawford Ranges—none better—they always give perfect satisfaction, and the only range in the market that will bake in the lower oven, which we guarantee.

ANDES RANGES.

This is the best 8-inch Range in the market for $25.

We sell a good Range for $15.
Call and examine our

DINNER SETS, 112 pcs., for $8.98

IT CAN'T BE BEAT.

Liberal Terms of Credit at
Cash Prices.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,

355 MAIN STREET.

Household.

Scarlet Fever.—An eminent physician says that if he were confined to one single remedy in case of scarlet fever, he should choose lard. Rub the little sufferer with it thoroughly and often. It allays the fever and softens the parched skin. The amount thus absorbed is simply astonishing.—Washington Home Magazine.

To improve the complexion make a thin paste of glycerine and sulphur and apply before retiring. In the morning wash off with clear, soft water, using no soap. Wash again in water with a few drops of ammonia in it, and rub briskly, but not too hard, with a soft linen towel. Sulphur is also a preservative of the teeth used once or twice a week. It can be mixed with one's favorite dentrifice or used with clear water as one prefers.

A good way to discover the presence of moths, and also to destroy them, is to place a lighted candle in a basin of water: the moths will be attracted by the bright flame and will drop into the water. The burning of camphor gum or sulphur will destroy insects. The basin of water is always necessary as a safeguard against fire. In that place your little iron pot, half filled with ashes, and the camphor or sulphur. Saturate this well with alcohol and set it afire. Have the room closed tightly while the smoking is going on, and be sure no one inhales the fumes.—Waverly Magazine.

When a year old a child should have bread and milk, hominy, oatmeal porridge, a soft-boiled egg three times a week, cracked wheat, or any of the cereals; bread and butter, oatmeal bread and a little treacle, or molasses if it likes it. When the double teeth are through it should have beef-steak, mutton-chops or chicken finely minced. The juice from rare roast beef, or mutton, on bread, is good for it. Baked or stewed apples, boiled custard, bread pudding, rice and stewed prunes, rice pudding figs, etc., may be gradually added, as well as potato, and any well-prepared soup.

Oilcloth can be kept bright for years if properly varnished each season with any good siccativ.

To make a cup of coffee or chocolate look most inviting it is only necessary to whip up the whites of eggs with a tablespoonful of powdered sugar. They must be beaten until stiff. Then put a large spoonful upon the top of the beverage and serve. If you have cream so much the better; in that case add the white of one egg, the same amount of sugar, and whip until it is stiff before putting on the chocolate or coffee.—Boston Budget.

Don't say: "I shall be glad when that child is grown up. What trouble he makes." No; enjoy his cunning ways; revel in his affectionate hugs and kisses; they will not be so plentiful by and by. Enjoy his childhood; it will look sweet to you when he is gone forever. Enjoy the littles of every day. The great favors of fortune come but to few, and those who have them tell us that the quite homely joys which are within the reach of all are infinitely better. Let us not cast them away, but treasure every sunbeam and get the light and warmth from it that the blessings hold.

THE CLARK-SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

Down Stairs Department.

WOODEN WARE.

Clothes Frames	75 cts.
Clothes Baskets	35 cts.
Clothes Wringers	$2.25 cts.
Wash Benches	75 cts.
Sugar Buckets	25 cts.
Chopping Bowls	10 to 35 cts.
Chopping Trays	25 to 55 cts.

DOOR MATS

Every sort of common mats.

IRON WARE.

Fry Pans	10 to 50 cts.
Iron Kettles	20 to 60 cts.
Porcelain Kettles

LOWEST PRICES IN WORCESTER

Clothes Reels
Wash Tubs	50 and 75 cts.
Moulding Boards	35 to 50 cts.
Skirt Boards	35 to 85 cts.
Bosom Boards	20 to 45 cts.
Indurated Fibre Ware.
Empire Roasting Pans
Ladies and Misses Brooms
Clothes Hampers	85 cts. to $4.00
Window Brushes and Poles.
Sewing Tables	$1.00 to 2.50
Combination Chair & Step Ladders
Waffle Irons,	Wash Boilers
Infant Baths,	Home Griddles

All the larger kitchen articles will be found in the

BASEMENT DEPARTMENT.

THE CLARK-SAWYER Co.

472 to 482 Main Street.

E. W. COFFIN,
Store Fixtures
310 Main Street, Worcester.
Name this Paper.

THE : RESERVE

The only Weekly Paper published in the interest of the Sons and Daughters of Veterans.

$1.00 PER YEAR.

Our standing offer:

A HOUSE LOT

near a growing city, for 20 subscribers. KELLEY & FORD, Publishers, 367 Washington St., Boston, Mass. CAPT. C. F. KELLEY, Camp 97, Brookline, Mass.

THE HOMESCHOOL

MAY ST., COR. OF WOODLAND,

will re-open September 23. Miss Kimball will be at the School after August 1, where she will be glad to talk with any interested in her work.

An excellent school home for your daughter.

Call or send for circular.

Mrs. Frank J. Darrah

- AND -

Miss Winifred Marsh

WILL RE-OPEN THE

SEVER STREET KINDERGARTEN

SEPTEMBER 7.

No. 4 Sever Street.

TRY Bronner's

ICE CREAM! Delivered to all parts of the City. Supplying Parties, Lodges, etc., a specialty. No. 131 Pleasant Street.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.
PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, Creditors, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of THOMAS NOLAN, late of Leicester, in said County, deceased, intestate: Greeting.

Upon the Petition of PATRICK J. QUINN, you are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the first Tuesday of September next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased should not be granted to said petitioner, without the given of surety or surties on his official bond pursuant to the statute.

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively in LIGHT a newspaper printed at Worcester the last publication to be two days, at least, before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioner, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, WILLIAM T. FURBES, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twelfth day of August in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

About Folks.

Mrs. J. P. Rand has returned from a prolonged stay at the home of her parents in Monson.

Miss Kate Coonan has returned from a week spent at Savin Rock and New Haven.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Prentice arrived this week from Old Orchard Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hayden of Fall River have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Chas M. Roe, Newbury Street.

Miss Bertha Day is away for two weeks visiting Springfield, Chester and other points of interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wood of Madison Street are off to Meriden, Conn., for a three weeks' vacation.

Miss Maud Wilson of E. L. Smith's & Co., goes to Boston for her outing.

Mrs. Henry W. Reed and daughter of Mt. Airy, N. C., are guests of Ex-Mayor Chas. G. Reed. Mrs. Reed is the wife of the first Captain of Battery B. and last Wednesday night, she and her daughter were guests of the company.

Dr. C. H. Davis (dentist) and family have returned from a five weeks' trip in New Hampshire.

Charles A. Merrill, Esq., has been visiting in New Hampshire, his boyhood's home.

Miss Flora and A. L. Clifford, formerly of this city, now of Somerville, figured in a concert at Oakland Beach Hotel a week ago. They gained merited applause.

Rev. Dr. J. O. Knowles of Coral Street Church is announced to assist at the Methodist camp meeting at Anson, Me., which begins Monday. If the Doctor doesn't look out, he will get a reputation as great as that of "Camp Meeting" John Allen.

Fred J. Doon of Boston, a Polytechnic graduate, is visiting his parents in Worcester.

A. A. Gordon, Tech '85, will leave for St. Paul about Sept. 1 to take charge of the St. Paul Manual Training School.

Miss Annie Athy left Sunday evening for New York to join the Effie Ellsler Company for the coming season.

H. F. Stedman and family, George W. Ward and wife and J. P. Eaton and wife drove to Purgatory for the day Wednesday.

Frank Rogers, a Worcester boy, leaves for St. Paul in about two weeks to take a position as teacher in the St. Paul Manual Training School.

Charles H. Pinkham and wife returned to the city Wednesday from a three weeks' vacation, spent at Detroit, Montreal and North Conway.

Mrs. J. F. Joyce, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Mary, are at the Central House, Newport.

J. W. GREENE, P L U M B E R.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,

Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

WESBY

HAS DONE
BOOK BINDING
SINCE 1845.

387 MAIN ST. WORCESTER.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand.) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

PHOTOGRAPHER.

Children's
Portraits

A Specialty

326 MAIN ST.,
Opp. Mechanics Hall.

Underwood

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,

* PRINTERS. *

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,

DEALER IN

Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

Boston & Albany Railroad.

ONLY
First-Class Through Car Route
TO THE
WEST!

Commencing June 7, 1891,
Through Trains Leave Worcester:

- 9.50 A. M. (ex. Sunday) Day Express.
- 11.40 A. M. Daily, "Chicago Special."
- 3.25 P. M. Daily, North Shore Limited.
- 4.17 P. M. Daily, Cincinnati and St. Louis Express.
- 8.00 P. M. Daily, Pacific Express.

SPRINGFIELD LINE

FOR

HARTFORD, NEW HAVEN AND NEW YORK.

LEAVE BOSTON.	AR. NEW YORK.
10.13 A. M.	3.30 P. M.
12.12 A. M.	5.30 P. M.
5.06 P. M.*	10.00 P. M.
12.29 A. M.*	6.45 A. M.

*Run Daily.

For tickets, information, time tables, etc., apply to JAMES CUNNINGHAM, Ticket Agent, Union Station.
A. S. HANSON, Gen. Pass. Agent.

FIICHBURG RAILROAD.

Reduced Rates of Fare

For Round Trip Tickets on Account of Summer

VACATION EXCURSIONS.

On Sale June 1st to September 30th, and good October until 31st, 1891.

FROM BOSTON TO THE

Popular Resorts of New England, New York and Canada.

Including local excursions to places in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont. The only line running Quick Trains, Superb Equipment and Through Cars via

HOOSAC TUNNEL ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO TROY, ALBANY, SARATOGA AND NIAGARA FALLS, AND VIA LAKE CHAMPLAIN ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO

WEST PORT, PORT HENRY, PLATTSBURG, BRANDON, BURLINGTON, ST. ALBANS, ADIRONDACKS and MONTREAL.

Summer Excursion Book

giving information in regard to routes, rates of fare and list of Hotels and Boarding Houses, can be obtained at the Company's office, 250 Washington Street, and mailed free on application to J. R. WATSON, General Passenger Agent, Boston, Mass.

Good to Eat.

Light crisp wafers of molasses, or made largely of butter and sugar, make an excellent substitute for loaf cake in summer. By many they are liked for breakfast, with the cup of coffee or at luncheon with cocoa. A good-size batch of sugar cookies may be made from the following recipe:—Mix one cup butter with two cups of sugar, and when they are creamy add two well-beaten eggs, one-half cup of milk, three cups of flour and one teaspoonful of soda. Flavor with vanilla or almond. Roll the dough very thin. These are very good and rich enough to keep two weeks.—American Cultivator.

Chicken and Tomato Sandwiches.

Take firm ripe tomatoes, and slice them very thin with a sharp knife. Have ready half a pound of very finely-minced chicken, mixed with two tablespoonfuls of mayonnaise sauce; spread the bread with butter, cover with a layer of chicken, add a slice of tomato, nicely seasoned; lay on the other half slice of buttered bread, and cut into narrow strips. Sardine Sandwiches.

Bone a number of sardines and divide them into halves. Cut also a number of thin slices of buttered brown bread. Have some finely-minced hard-boiled egg, mixed with finely chopped cresses, and enough mayonnaise to make them adhere. Spread the bread first, with a little of this mixture; then add fillets of sardines, lay on the top slice, press them gently together, and cut into squares. White bread may be used if preferred, and Durkee's salad dressing makes a very good substitute for mayonnaise.

An inner leaf of fresh, crisp lettuce adds a delightful relish to a sandwich, if it can be added just before serving, so that it does not have time to wilt.—Housekeeper's Weekly.

Peach Dessert.

Peaches cut up, left a few hours in sugar, and then scalded, and added when cold to thick boiled custard, made rather sweet, are a delicious dessert.

Steamed dumplings, with stewed chicken or veal, are an acquisition. Cook both these meats until nearly done, then make the dumplings, like baking-powder biscuits; pour all but a little of the water from the meats into another vessel for gravy, and put the dumplings in the pot on the meat so they will not touch the water, and cook until all the water is boiled away.

Twins.

When the late Exhibition of Portrait's was in progress at the Public Library, two ladies were heard discussing the pictures of the two Daniel Waldo's, as follows:—"Well I declare," says one, "here are two pictures of the same man but they don't seem to look alike," "Oh" says the other, "Don't you see there is a difference, this one was born in Shrewsbury." She must have noticed the "Senior" on the picture of the Elder. "Sure enough is the astute reply of No. 1, they must have been twins," and they moved on perfectly satisfied with their explanation.

"Plato is dear, but truth still dearer"—Aristotle.

Luncheon Muffins.

ORIGINAL. No. 53.

BY MARIA PARLOA.

For one dozen muffins use one pint of flour, a generous half pint of milk, two teaspoonfuls of Cleveland's Baking Powder, half a teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of butter and two eggs. Mix the dry ingredients together and rub through a sieve. Melt the butter. Beat the eggs till light and add the milk to them. Add this mixture to the dry ingredients; then stir in the melted butter. Beat the batter vigorously for a few seconds and then put in buttered muffin pans and bake for about twenty minutes in a quick oven.—(Copyright, 1891, by Cleveland Baking Powder Co.)

Use only Cleveland's baking powder, the proportions are made for that.

Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder is perfectly wholesome. It leavens most and leavens best. Try a can.

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H. Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists.

11 Pleasant St.,

Residence, 61 West Street.

Office open during the summer.

The Readers of Light
I most cordially invite
To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything
They would expect to find
In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,

Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,

10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL, Gold, Silver and Nickel Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.

13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Burnside Building, 339 Main St.,
Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework,
Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

To the Land of Evangeline.

(Concluded.)

Friday was devoted to Grand Pré. A brief bit of history will add to the interest of my story.

Nova Scotia or Acadia, as it was first called, was originally settled by the French. Port Royal, now Annapolis, was settled in 1605, two years before the settlement of Jamestown, Virginia, and was the first permanent French settlement in America. Other settlements soon followed, one of the most important being that on the Basin of Minas, of which Grand Pré was one of the villages. The name Acadia was given to the territory now included in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and the eastern half of Maine. It was not long before the great struggle between England and France commenced, lasting with several interims of peace, until 1763, when, at the close of the French and Indian War, Canada was ceded to England. The history of these wars is familiar to most readers. They were simply a strife for the possession of North America. The English claimed all of the continent on account of the discoveries of the Cabots; the French claimed Canada because they had settled it.

Acadia, being easily reached from New England, was subject to very frequent attacks from the English colonists. But the English never held the country long, abandoning it after they had robbed and murdered the inhabitants. Port Royal was repeatedly taken, abandoned and retaken by the English, changing hands no less than fourteen times within a century. Finally in 1710 it was again taken and has remained in British possession ever since. Soon after the whole of Acadia was ceded to Great Britain.

Though it was now British territory, the population was almost entirely French, the only Englishmen in the country being those stationed in the garrisons. An effort was made to compel the French to take the oath of allegiance, but it was not successful until 1719, when Governor Phipps allowed them to take the oath with the reservation that they should not be compelled to bear arms against their own countrymen and should be permitted the free exercise of their religion. On account of this oath they were called the "Neutral French." Some of them desired to leave the country and go to Canada, or to the West Indies, or to return to France, but they were informed that "they could not depart in English built vessels, and French vessels would not be permitted to enter their harbors." No attempts were made by the English to settle the country and the population continued largely French. They were a quiet, industrious people, who had transformed the wilderness into fertile gardens.

The commanders of the garrisons were tyrannical, compelling the inhabitants to support the soldiers and depriving them of all civil rights, including even the right of justice. Under this harsh treatment the Acadians remained very submissive. But they prospered in spite of their losses at the hands of the soldiers. The fact that they were allowed no redress in the courts for their grievances only aided them in becoming more prosperous, for the time that would have been wasted in attempting to secure the restoration of their property was devoted to their farms.

After a while a new governor was appointed who demanded that the "Neutrals" take an unreserved oath of allegiance. This they refused to do. The question now arose, what was to be done with them? The persecutions were increased with the hope that they would rebel and thus furnish an excuse for their extermination or their expulsion. But the "Neutrals" remained as submissive as ever. The government did not consider it safe for the country to remain inhabited by a people whose sympathies were with its enemies and English colonists could not be induced to settle among the French.

At last it was decided to transport them to the English colonies, scattering them along the coast. A force was raised in New England for this purpose. The accusations brought against them were as follows:

1. "That they would not take the oath of allegiance without the qualification that they should not be compelled to bear arms; which qualification although it had been accepted by Governor Phipps, was disapproved of by the king.

2. "That though affecting the character of neutrals, they had been guilty of furnishing the French and Indians with intelligence, quarter, provisions and assistance, in annoying the government of the province.

3. "That three hundred of them had been found in arms at the taking of Fort Beau Séjour.

4. "That, notwithstanding an offer was made those who had never been openly in arms to be allowed to continue in possession of their land if they would take their oath of allegiance without any qualifications whatever, they unanimously refused."

This brings the story up to the point at which Longfellow's poem begins. It is not in the least likely that any of LIGHT's readers are unfamiliar with that poem and so it would be useless to repeat the account here. But a word in relation to the poem may not be out of place.

To those who have been at Grand Pré and consequently know how well Longfellow has described the scenery there, it will probably be a surprise when it is said that he never was in Nova Scotia. But such is the fact. The following story is told of the way in which he obtained his material for the poem. One day when Nathaniel Hawthorne, with his friend H. L. Connolly, was dining with the poet, Hawthorne told the story which Connolly had obtained from a French Canadian "of a young couple in Acadie. On their marriage day all the men of the village were summoned to assemble in the church to hear a proclamation. When assembled they were all seized and shipped off to be distributed through New England, among them the new bridegroom. His bride set off in search of him, wandered about New England all her lifetime and at last, when she was old she found her bridegroom on his death-bed. The shock was so great that it killed her likewise."

Hawthorne thought it would make a better poem than romance and so offered it to Longfellow. With this, alone, as his foundation, he wrote the poem, giving the characters names selected from the list of those exiled from Grand Pré. He ascertained the main characteristics of the scenery and with his knowledge of similar scenery in Maine he was able to draw his picture of Grand Pré with remarkable accuracy. There are a few slight errors but they are very unimportant.

If any reader desires another account of the embarkation at Grand Pré, I would recommend Mrs. Williams' entertaining story "The Neutral French." Now as to the Grand Pré of today.

I started out early Friday morning to see what traces remained of the Acadians. All I found was a few cellar holes and wells, numbers of their trees, their dikes and a few rusty implements which have been dug up, most of them in the possession of a Mr. Duncan. The villagers point out to visitors the supposed sites of the church and of Basil's blacksmith shop. The church is said to have been located directly opposite the railway station because several coffins have been exhumed there. The site of Basil's blacksmith shop is located on a hill in the rear of the station. There is no doubt that there was a blacksmith's shop there but, as others have been located in other places and as Basil was a fictitious character, it is absurd to say that this was the site of his forge.

Several years ago there remained many old French cellars but they are being rapidly filled. Their old trees are the principal relics the Acadians left, "the apple trees—moss grown and worn out and gnarled and decaying; the broad spreading willows, giving a grateful shade by the side of brooks; and the tall poplars, dear to the old Acadian, whose long rows may be seen from afar, rising like so many monuments over the graves of an extinct race." But even these are being destroyed by the farmers because they furnish a living for caterpillars.

But, though these are all that remains of the French village of Grand Pré, the scenery is just as it ever was. A writer has described it as follows: "There is this peculiarity about the scenery of Grand Pré, it is not possible for it to become familiar in the common sense of the word. That scene is forever varying and the variations are so great, that every day has some new prospect to offer. Land, sea and sky, all undergo incessant changes. There is the Basin of Minas, which is ever changing from red to blue, from a broad sea to a contracted strait, hemmed in by mud flats. There is the sky with its changes from deepest azure to dreamy haze, or impenetrable mist. There are rivers which change from fullness to emptiness, majestic at the flow of tide, indistinguishable at the ebb. There is Blomidon which every day is arrayed in some new robe; sometimes pale green, at other times deep purple; now light gray, again dark blue; and thus it goes through innumerable changes, from the pale neutral tints which it catches from the overhanging fogs, down through all possible gradations, to a darkness and a gloom, and a savage grandeur, which threw around it something almost of terror." "Nowhere out of Italy can be seen such surprises and sunsets as those of Grand Pré. You may traverse the Apennines or wander by the Mediterranean shore or look over the waste Campagna and yet never find anything that can surpass those atmospheric effects which may be witnessed along the shores that surround the Basin of Minas."

I brought away as souvenirs of Grand Pré a stick, from which a cane will be made, cut from the willows on the site of the church, a stick from the old apple tree from which a cane was made and presented to Longfellow, an agate from Blomidon and a number of photographic views.

Saturday morning I continued my journey, reaching Annapolis at noon. Historically, this was the most interesting place visited. I was very fortunate in having a letter of introduction to Rev. Henry Howe, rector of St. Luke's church, for there was probably no other person who knew as well as he where the most interesting relics were to be found. Though he had lived in Annapolis but a few months he had done more in that time to arouse the interest of the people in the history of their town than had been done in years before. He found that nearly every family had large numbers of relics, the value of which they did not appreciate. Dominion Day, July 1, an exhibition was held in the powder magazine of the old fort, of all the curiosities that could be gotten together. As Mr. Howe had been the prime mover in this, he knew where all the curiosities were and very kindly devoted considerable time showing me about. There is material enough scattered about the town for a very large and exceedingly valuable collection. Many of the families living there now are descendants of Royalists who fled to Nova Scotia during the Revolution and interesting papers and curiosities still remain in their possession. With Mr. Howe's energetic spirit to lead, measures will probably be soon taken towards having all these deposited in a museum.

The principal object of interest is the old French fort, standing in as good condition as ever it was. Within its walls are a stone powder magazine built in 1707 by the French commander, Subercasse, and the officers quarters built by the English. Of the relics and of the beautiful scenery about Annapolis lack of space, only, prevents me from speaking. From here also I carried away several souvenirs, including a bullet taken from the block house, which formerly stood at one corner of fort but now destroyed, and pieces taken from the powder magazine.

Monday noon I resumed my journey, repeating the pleasant trip across Annapolis basin and the ride over the Western Counties Railway, reaching Yarmouth in the evening where for one more day I enjoyed the hospitality of her people. Tuesday evening I saw the last of Yarmouth as I sailed out of the harbor on the steamship "Boston." During the night it was quite rough sailing but the following forenoon it was as pleasant as could be desired. At noon the steamship reached its wharf in Boston and with a sigh of regret I realized that my trip to the Land of Evangeline had reached its end.

WHO KNOWS?

From out the crushed rose
The sweetest fragrance blows
And from the bruised heart there grows
The greatest good—who knows?
—Helen Worthington Rogers.

The Week.

CITY.

Aug. 14—G. G. Kilburn, of the Greendale omnibus line, who was severely injured some days since by the collapse of his bus, generously presented with $137 by his friends and admirers. Life is worth living yet.

15—Rain, rain from 8.30 a.m. to 4 p.m. While it did lots of good, it destroyed no end of plans.

Low, not the poor Indian, but the Treasury agent, decides that the Post Office must go up on the Franklin Square site.

16—Corner stone of St. John's Parochial School laid, Winter Street.

District Attorney F. A. Gaskill reaches home from Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Marble arrive after a seven weeks trip abroad.

17—Lothrop's New Opera House on Pleasant Street, successfully opened

Sale at City Hall, by auction, of real estate for unpaid taxes.

18—First excursion from Worcester over the new electric railway.

19—Leicester sends a large number of visitors to town on the new electric railway. The band played "Ain't I glad I'm getting out of the Wilderness."

Capt. Williamson of the Fire Patrol finds that some clever thief has robbed him of his purse, and the Captain is a wakeful man, too.

20—Burglars about. They enter the house of the Hon. Joseph H. Walker.

Christian Crusaders baptize in Salisbury's pond.

Odd Fellows get home from Bennington.

COUNTY.

14—First trial of car on new electric railroad in Leicester. It works well.

Mrs. Ann Richards dies in Webster, 67 years.

17—Attempt made to blow open the safe in Brookfield Post Office. Burglars in Massachusetts are very active.

18—Barre is to have a new plush mill, to be run by J. Edwin Smith of Worcester.

19—Mrs. James Boyd of Paxton falls and breaks her leg at the hip.

20—Unknown colored man killed on the railroad at East Douglas.

COMMONWEALTH.

14—The body of James Russell Lowell laid at rest in Mt. Auburn.

15—Republican politicians meet in Boston to further the interests of Ex-Congressman Allen of Lowell for Republican nomination for governor.

16—Boston agitators now want municipal coal yards.

17—John G. Whittier is visiting at Newburyport.

Prof. Albert Tolman dies in Pittsfield, 67 years.

Jesse Pomeroy again attempts to escape from prison.

18—The council confirms the governor's nomination of F. G. Fessenden to be Justice of the Supreme Court in place of H. B. Staples, deceased.

19—Semi-annual meeting of the British American Association in Boston.

The White Squadron again drops anchor in Boston Harbor.

James Russell Lowell wills a part of his books to Harvard.

20—Springfield races draw great crowds of spectators.

NATION.

14—Governor Abbett of New Jersey will not honor a requisition by our Governor Russell. Is Abbett emulating Hill.

Ex-Speaker Reed receives a rousing reception in Portland.

The widow of Ex-President Polk dies in Nashville, 88th year.

15—The historic Stevens House, 21 to 27 Broadway, sold, $1,000,000.

16—Rev. Samuel Kramer dies in Washington, 82 years. Though a Baltimorean he helped defend the Massachusetts 6th in '61.

17—Yacht Glorianna wins in the Newport races.

Another balloon accident in Colorado, fell 1,000 feet, but were not killed.

18—President Harrison reaches Bennington to take part in the celebration.

19—The Bennington monument dedicated with great applause.

Pennsylvania Republicans nominate state officers.

20—Almy, the murderer of Christie Warden, captured in Hanover, N. H.

The President visits Mount McGregor, the place where General Grant died.

WORLD.

14—Great Britain experiencing great depression in trade.

Baron Hirsch buying extensive tracts of land in the Argentine Republic for his exiled Jews.

15—Memorial exercises to James Russell Lowell in Westminster Abbey.

16—A Socialist Congress in session in Brussels.

17—Another horrible railway calamity in Switzerland, near Zollikafen.

The city of Treves getting ready to receive those who journey to see the Holy coat.

18—At Swansea, Wales, during a singing festival, 10,000 people narrowly escape a stampede owing to a sudden storm and destruction of the covering tent.

19—Turkish brigands plying their nefarious business.

In Brussels, the Labor Congress is told by an American, that America is a hell for the laborer. It is to be hoped that his hearers believe him.

20—The Holy coat exhibited in Treves.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

LAWRENCE,

PHOTOGRAPHER.

492 Main Street.

TAKE ELEVATOR.

Removed to Larger Quarters.
44 Front St.
Take Elevator.

Hinman's College

A New, Separate
Shorthand and Typewriting
Department.

HINMAN'S COLLEGE OF BUSINESS and SHORTHAND

Begins its Fall Term September 1. The New Rooms now required are double the size of those vacated. Tuition for 6 months, $60. For 10 months, $78. Students in Shorthand will by the NEW RAPID SYSTEM, be qualified for business in 3 to 5 months, complete tuition, $50, and be offered positions in Worcester or elsewhere. Read the following:

REMINGTON STANDARD TYPE WRITER }
WYCKOFF, SEAMANS & BENEDICT, }
BOSTON, MASS., JULY 30, 1891.

MR. A. H. HINMAN, Worcester, Mass., Dear Sir:—

The demand for Remington Typewriter operators has become so great that we have been obliged to open in connection with our Boston office a department for securing and placing operators who use our machines. The result has been that through our Boston office alone during the past year from July to July we have placed 612 young men and women in good business positions. This does not include any placed by our thirty odd agents in New England. In no case, either from the person placed or from the employer have we received one cent for our services. So great has been the demand from business men that we have been almost constantly embarrassed in our efforts to find a sufficient number of young men and women qualified to fill positions. To be a candidate for our strictly gratuitous services to young men and women, we require that our operators shall be able to write shorthand at the rate of 90 words per minute and transcribe the matter upon the Remington Typewriter at 30 words per minute. As you in line with leading business colleges have decided to use our machines exclusively, we propose to LOOK TO YOUR COLLEGE FOR REMINGTON OPERATORS. We shall instruct our Boston, Worcester and New England Agents to do all we can in placing your graduates in business offices as you qualify them. Yours very truly,

WYCKOFF, SEAMANS & BENEDICT.

Hinman's College can qualify shorthand students for business and PLACE THEM IN POSITIONS IN HALF THE TIME AND FOR HALF THE MONEY required by the other shorthand school in Worcester, whose circulars say:—"We will in no case and under no circumstance agree to furnish a position for any pupil, we would rather not receive that pupil at all than to guarantee to furnish a position.

NEW ENGLAND FAIR

— : AT : —

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 1, 2, 3 and 4, 1891

GRAND EXHIBITION

— OF —

HORSES, CATTLE, SHEEP, SWINE,
POULTRY, FRUIT, FLOWERS,
VEGETABLES, ETC.

SPEED.

Splendid Races Each Day. Good Horses
and Fast Track.

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

will excel anything ever offered.

MARANTETTE

will give daily exhibitions upon the track. This is the finest exhibition of Horsemanship ever shown on a race course. It includes—
The great Five-Horse Tandem Ride over Hurdles.

Woodlawn, the famous Park and Saddle Horse.

Filemaker, the highest Jumping Horse in the World.

Thrilling Parachute Leaps

Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday by JEWELL BROTHERS.

TARIFF DISCUSSIONS, HOOK AND LADDER
TOURNAMENT, COMPETITIVE DRILL OF
MILITARY COMPANIES, BAND
CONCERTS, and a Thousand
and other Attractions.

GRANGE DAY.

WEDNESDAY will be Grange Day. Special exercises, prominent speakers. All Grangers invited to meet in Grange Tent.

Governors' Day.

Governors and Representative Men of the New England States and of the United States will be present and address the multitude.

EXHIBITION HALLS FILLED WITH SPLENDID EXHIBITS.

Entertainments

EACH EVENING, with halls, grounds and track brilliantly lighted by Electricity.

EXCURSION RATES

ON ALL RAILROADS. Entries of Live Stock close August 15.

Dr. GEORGE B. LORING,
President of the New England Society.
Hon. DANIEL NEEDHAM,
Secretary of the New England Society.
J. LEWIS ELLSWORTH,
President of the Worcester Society.
F. H. CHAMBERLAIN,
Secretary of the Worcester Society

Edward L. Smith & Co., Vacations, No. 2,

Miss Josephine Daley has returned from a two weeks' stay at Narragansett Pier.

Miss Maud I. Wilson and Marie A. Sullivan start Monday for Nantucket.

Miss Agnes V. Briden leaves tonight. Aggie prefers the country air and will make North Conway, N. H., her home for the next two weeks.

Mr. H. Charles O'Brien is having a good time at New York. Charlie is quite a comedian and is sure to enjoy himself.

Miss Ellen G. Troy leaves Monday for Westfield to visit friends.

Miss Annie McCormack joins her cousin, Miss Alison Browne, of Augusta, Me., on Monday. They will visit Mrs. Marion Harte at New York.

Miss Marguerite J. Dorsey of the glove department, is at Newport this week and will make Providence her home during next.

Mr. H. S. R. Holbrook is making an extended tour through the West. He will, on his return trip, look over the World's Fair Site.

Miss Annie Crosby is at North Grafton visiting scenes and associations of former years.

Miss Florence Eldredge has just returned from Long Branch.

Miss Julie Osene comes back Monday from a ten days outing on the Hudson.

Very Latest.

Miss Josie Dodlin is at Putnam, Conn., visiting Monsieur Joseph Peloquin.

Mr. Wm. N. Keenan is at the Mountain House, Princeton, where he will stay (as usual) during the present month.

Miss Albena E. Millett has returned from Spencer and will start for Nahant Monday to remain one week.

Miss Marion Currie is at Boston and adjoining summer resorts. Marion will be a few days at Shrewsbury before her return Sept. 1st.

Boston Store Vacation Notes.

James Wilson, Jr., and family are sojourning at Block Island for two weeks.

F. J. Houston and wife have returned from a very enjoyable stay at Rutland.

Miss Mary Sheedy starts on her vacation Monday, visiting several of the seaside resorts.

John Kennedy is off for a week at Crescent Park, R. I.

Miss Mildred Day returns very much improved in health after her five weeks vacation.

Miss Collins is visiting at Riverside, R. I.

Miss Carroll is away down in Jersey for her outing.

Miss Daniels has returned from New London, Ct., and reports an elegant time spent in sight seeing.

Peter Gagnon goes for two weeks to Springfield and Chicopee.

Louis Gagnon and family are to pass the coming two weeks in making excursions to different summer resorts.

James McDermott, the genial manager of the print department is looking much better for his weeks rest with friends in Clinton.

Austy Bradshaw with several friends will make Cottage City their home next week.

I HAVE THE LARGEST
CARRIAGE :-: REPOSITORY

In New England. You can see over 200 elegant Carriages on one floor. GREAT BARGAINS in Carriages during the present month. This is my twenty-fifth year in business in this city, and my stock is the most extensive I have ever carried.

GEORGE C. DEWHURST,
Nos. 17 and 19 Park Street, OPPOSITE COMMON.

Kabo Corsets.

This is the way with the Kabo corset: if you want ease and shapeliness, you buy it—but you don't keep it unless you like it.

After two or three weeks' wear you can return it and have your money if you are not satisfied.

Comfort isn't all of it though. Soft eyelets, and "bones" that can't break or kink—Kabo corsets have both these.

EDW. L. SMITH & CO.

Visit Our Stationery Department.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

Let's see—where are we?

Unless we are mistaken, we are still in the dear old State of Massachusetts.

Yankee land is all about us.

All sorts of foreign names may be tagged to all kinds of goods, but, all the same, the Yankee brain conceived them and Yankee skill wrought them out.

There's a new dress goods out this season. They are going under different names. Our name for them is the maker's name, "Camels Hair Suitings."

They cost 17c a yard; not a thread of them ever saw Finland or Greenland.

They are in fall shades, in various combinations, upon which are bunches of color, in sharp contrast, that look exactly like Camel's-hair. Of course the whole effect is the result of the printer's skill.

With these are Yankee Homespuns made in our own state, lots of patterns, and the best medium dress goods in America to-day.

The best Broadcloth made in this country is produced in our own state also.

We have it, 50 inches wide, 75c a yard.

If you doubt it, let us show this splendid quality to-day or to-morrow, or whenever you can come to us for a half hour.

There's a bargain in Lawns that has been sufficient to crowd that section all the week.

It is a bargain and one that is' seasonable.

The price is unusually low, in fact it is the lowest price you ever had in such quality.

The quality will satisfy you.

And the price—Seven cents a yard.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

THE WARE-PRATT CO.

OUR INVITATION FOR FALL 1891, MONDAY, AUG. 24TH.

The Fall season is at hand, and we have the greatest pleasure in sending out this invitation to our formal opening of Foreign and Domestic Suitings for custom-made garments.

We have made unusual efforts to secure all that was worthy attention either at home or abroad.

Among the new arrivals are
SCOTCH CHEVIOTS,
WORSTED CHEVIOTS,
ENGLISH TWEEDS,
ENGLISH DIAGONALS.

There are also
American MIXTURES,
American WORSTEDS,
American TWEEDS,
American CHEVIOTS.

There are all the plain and effective shades possible to secure in

Smoke BROWNS,
Blue GREYS,
Novel TANS,
Brown and White Checks.

For Trousers you can see piles of special novelties in single patterns; no two alike; from the modest dark shades up to the most effective known.

These cloths we believe will represent the largest and the best ever displayed by any merchant in this section.

Beginning next Monday, Aug. 24th, we will have them on exhibition, to which you are cordially invited.

Gentlemen can have whatever they prefer kept for them until they want it.

We promise our friends a rare sight in perfect suitings

In Splendid Cloths for Fall of 1891.

THE WARE, PRATT CO.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts, State of the order July 18, 1891: Membership, 5,443. Amount loaned for Relief, $24,500; Reserve Fund, $32,210.51; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,567.68; Total, $63,400.00. Men and women admitted upon the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600.

Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organizer wanted. Address NON SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester, Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

LEADING SAFETY BICYCLES.

Solid, Cushion and Pneumatic Tires. Full line of Supplies. Repairing a Specialty.

LEMONT & WHITTEMORE, 39 PEARL ST.
 Open evenings.

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES

at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

Brown &
 Simpson
 Piano!

Sold direct from factory. Cash or Installments.

9 May Street, Worcester.

Larkin's, 395 Main St., Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps, Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

C. REBOLI,

Confectioner * and * Caterer,

6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences.

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.
 Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Grate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours, F. E. BARNARD, Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main St.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LIGHT

VOL. III. No. 26. WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, AUGUST 29, 1891. FIVE CENTS.

House of the Lakeside Boat Club.

[ENGRAVED EXPRESSLY FOR LIGHT.]

Blair, Photographer.

PUTNAM & SPRAGUE CO.

—*— Folding-Beds —*—

We are Sole Agents for the best makers of CABINET BEDS. The goods we control in this line are superior to any others, and the prices are the lowest. Our store is Headquarters for OFFICE FURNITURE! We are agents for the best ROLL-TOP DESKS in the market. A good 5-ft., Roll-Desk for Fifty Dollars. You find our desks in the best offices in the city. OFFICE CHAIRS in great variety. Cane and upholstered seats. 'DWARF' BOOKCASES. The CELEBRATED DANNER REVOLVING CASES in stock, as well as everything else needed to completely furnish your office. See our goods and get prices before purchasing.

247 and 249 Main Street, Corner of Central.

YARMOUTH S. S. CO.,

(Limited) Shortest and Most Direct Route Between United States & Nova Scotia, via the favorite sea-going and new steamships "Boston" and "Yarmouth." Sea voyage only 15 to 17 hours. Tickets sold to all parts of Nova Scotia.

Steamer will leave Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston, for Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 12 M. Noon.

Returning will leave Yarmouth for Boston every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Close connections made at Yarmouth with all Railway, Steamboat and Stage lines to all points in N. S. For further information write for folder or apply to G. Y. Lancaster, M. H. Church & Co., O. F. Rawson, Worcester; or J. F. Spinney, Agent, Pier 1, Lewis Wharf, Boston.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CAN BE

permanently eradicated by the

ELECTRIC NEEDLE

Process. No scarring or other injury. There is now no excuse for any lady to allow a growth of hair to remain upon her face to mar her personal beauty and to make her friends unhappy. Moles are also permanently removed. Hours: 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m.

Miss H. M. PROCTOR,

92 SUMMER STREET, WORCESTER, MASS.

C. H. DRAPER,

Livery, Feed and Truck Stable.

Three Large Moving Wagons. Baggage Wagon always ready. Furniture and Piano Moving. Telephone 308-5.

161 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

Simple!
Durable!
Odorless!
Clean!

It saves Time,
Labor and Fuel,
(two-thirds cent
per hr. for fuel.)

Manufacturers
Guarantee every
Iron.

TRY ONE.

With this Iron, no fire is needed in the stove. Don't suffer from heat. It can be used anywhere. Agents wanted. Also on sale at retail by SQUIER & BEALS, My'g. Ag'ts, 311 Main St., Room 13, Worcester.

OXYGEN

We have the genuine

Oxygen Treatment

FOR THE CURE AND PREVENTION
OF DISEASE.

It is not a Drug, but Nature's true Restorative in debility and all disordered conditions of the system.

Our Oxygen is fresh every day.

Prepared and administered with the utmost care by a Physician of large experience.

It will pay to investigate our METHODS and PRICES.

WORCESTER OXYGEN CO.

LINCOLN BLOCK,

368 1-2 Main, Cor. Elm.

DR. J. W. GOULD. T. D. BRISTOL, M. D.

COAL! COAL!

Delivered in any quantity throughout the city. Especial attention given to the family trade.

Garfield & Harrington,

92, 94 and 96 School St. Telephone 143-4.

N. G. TUCKER.

W. F. TUCKER.

N. G. TUCKER & SON,

SANITARY PLUMBING AND VENTILATION.

Dealers in Plumbing Materials.

56 Pleasant Street,

Worcester, Mass.

Week Commencing MONDAY, AUG. 31st.

Every Afternoon and Evening During the Week.

First appearance here of the Celebrated Equestrienne,

MISS KATE PURSSELL.

Presenting, in four acts, her powerful Western drama,

"Queen of the Plains,"

Introducing her trained horse, and supported by I. O. THROPS' STOCK COMPANY.

THE EUREKA QUARTET,

Late of Cleveland's Minstrels, appear in the drama, and give their delightful melodies. GRAND LADIES' ORCHESTRA. A laughable Farce by the Comedy Company. Two performances daily. Afternoons at 2; Evenings at 7.30. No advance in prices. Orchestra 25c., Balcony 20c., Gallery 10c. Seats secured one week in advance.

LIGHT

VOL. III.

WORCESTER, MASS., SATURDAY, AUGUST 29, 1891.

No. 26

Sweet smiles to keep forever bright
The sunshine on his lips,
And faith that sees the ring of light
Round nature's last eclipse!

—Dr. Holmes to Lowell.

August 29.

Dr. O. W. Holmes' birthday.

Just eighty two years ago today, Dr. Abiel Holmes, that long time Cambridge preacher, wrote in his almanac, "Boy Born."

And what a fortunate event it was for all of us who have loved that "Boy" whose advent was so laconically recorded by the good preacher!

There never was a better illustration of a boy's education beginning with his grandfather than that which Dr. Holmes' affords. His ancestors on both sides were scholarly people and their minds are reflected in that of the man who is now beyond his four score.

He had that supreme advantage of "knocking around among books" in his boyhood and every line of his subsequent writing gives some indication of that juvenile period of absorption. He is always saying something that sends us off "to look it up."

The old Spanish navigators and explorers wore themselves out in seeking the fountain of perpetual youth; but our lovable Professor has found it right on the banks of the Charles River. Just listen to his quick step as he enters the office of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, to whom we are indebted for his portrait, some day and hear his rapid, clear speech. Surely, this man has not passed his four score years?

But he has and he will not hesitate to tell you so and, moreover, he will tell you that his faculties are yet in prime condition. "The anchor rises a little more slowly, perhaps, but when it is properly stowed and the wind fills the sails, I don't see but the old ship sails along as merrily as ever." What thousands rejoice that the Autocrat and the Professor and the Poet, all in one, is thus strong and happy.

When he passed his seventieth milestone and, as usual, "The Atlantic" made merry for him as it had already done for Whittier, two years before, the latter said, no man should write verse beyond seventy except Dr. Holmes, but he, an exception to all rules, could go right on writing to the last moment for every scrap of his grew better and better. The beautiful sentiment at the head of this column is proof of Whittier's discernment.

Then, too, with all the fun that Dr. Holmes has made, he never hurt, save just once when old Dr. McCosh of Princeton went off in a huff from Harvard's sesqui-centennial, and then it wasn't our Doctor's fault. The trouble began a long time ago when Sidney Smith said a certain nationality couldn't get a joke into its head save by a trepanning operation. Dr. McCosh didn't know when to laugh.

Where breathes the boy who has not learned "The September Gale" for his declamation? To be sure it never pleased the school-master, but it did just suit the lad and his boyish listeners. Next, he was sure to stumble on "Old Ironsides" and he has pulled her tattered ensign down o'er and o'er. He has caught himself wishing that the Doctor would, once more, be just as funny as he could.

In a word, Dr. Holmes has been the poet of youth. Boys and girls have never ceased to love him. He has touched all the responsive chords in their natures. From grave to gay, there is no note in the scale that he has not same table with him when, as Autocrat, Professor or Poet, he gave all shams and hypocrisies such hard raps. In fact, for a great many years, a large part of this American people has been on very intimate terms with the Doctor and, one and all, we congratulate him on his birthday. May he have many more.

Nor are we to remember Dr. Holmes alone by his poetry and his essays. Elsie Venner and The Guardian Angel will come in for a place in recollection. There isn't a young school-master living nor one who was a young school-master who doesn't rejoice that Bernard Langdon won such a glorious victory over the turbulent school-boy. Nor can we forget the "lean streaks" and the "fat streaks" from New Hampshire. We have met people from both sections.

Of course it is not phenomenal that a man should pass beyond eighty, but when we remember the exceeding activity of his life, that he has repeatedly crossed the ocean, that he has been railed at by irreverent Oxford youth on taking his degree, that as a lecturer, he has journeyed far in America, it does seem noteworthy that he still spends his Summers in "Beverly by the Depot."

That is just the way he headed a letter to James T. Fields, for so long a time his publisher. The latter lived down on the coast, and accordingly, one day, dated his missive "Manchester-by-the-Sea." The Doctor fancied he discovered a balloon-like bit of affectation in the words and he, accordingly, shied his puncturing rejoinder. Not a large man, but a grand one, all the same. When he happens in at Williams' book store on Washington Street, not infrequently a crowd of admirers gathers at the window to gaze sung again and again. Nor youth, only! Lincoln found satisfaction in that inexpressibly sad stanza from The Last Leaf.

Oliver Wendell Holmes.

"The mossy marbles rest
On the lips that he has pressed
In their bloom,
And the name he loved to hear,
Has been carved for many a year
On the tomb."

Yet the same pen wrote The Ballad of the Oysterman.

And this is one of the reasons why we love him. He suits all our moods. We laugh when he does and we know where the laughable words are. We have been to every one of those '29 reunions. We are "boys" with those highly favored graduates. "Bill and Joe" are realities to us. We have sat at the

at the Autocrat.

In a recent Lowell Arena occur the following words as to why the Doctor is so well.

"Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes attributes his good health and the remarkable vigor of his mind at eighty-one to the extreme care he has long taken of himself. Never robust, he was nevertheless wiry in his earlier life, and since he reached eighty his hygienic vigilance is unceasing. The rooms that he daily occupies are equipped with barometers, thermometers, aerometers, and other instruments, the observation of which may prevent his incurring the slightest risk of taking cold. He knows that pneumonia is the most formidable foe to old age, and he is determined to keep it at a distance if possible. He never gets up during winter till he knows the temperature, or takes a bath without having the water accurately tested.

A JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORCESTER AND
HER NEIGHBORS.

Published every Saturday. Price $2.00 per annum, 5 cents a copy.

Advertising rates upon application.

ALFRED S. ROE, Editor and Proprietor.

Offices, 339 Main Street, Burnside Building,
Telephone No. 141-5.

Entered at the Post-Office, at Worcester, Mass., as
second-class mail matter.

WORCESTER, SATURDAY, AUGUST 29, 1891.

Every failure to receive LIGHT promptly
should be, at once, reported at this office.

All scraps of informations concerning persons and events, thankfully received.

Friends sending in manuscripts will not complain if they are not printed at once. There are many waiting. Yet LIGHT is always glad to receive communications and, if meritorious,
to print them.

Hereafter, it will be understood that all articles in LIGHT, not ascribed, save receipts,
squibs, fashion and household notes were
written for this paper.

LIGHT, hereby, acknowledges obligations to Houghton, Mifflin & Co., of Boston, for the loan of engravings of Lowell and Holmes.
This firm publishes the works of both of these renowned writers.

Callers at LIGHT Office will take notice that the same is moved to Rooms 33 and 34, one floor higher in the Burnside Building. Our present quarters will be occupied by the Republican City Committee. If all callers will take the elevator, it will make no difference how high we are. Come and see us. On leaving the elevator turn to your left and go to south west corner.

Miss Eva F. Morrison of Chelsea is spending her vacation with Mrs. F. R. Johnson, her sister, in this city.

Miss Mary Hackett, Miss Susie Hackett,
Miss Susie T. Sprout and Miss Alice Sargent are stopping at the Wentworth House, Kennebunk Beach, Maine.

Dr. James R. Fitzpatrick has returned from a two weeks' stay at Block Island.

C. L. Mann has removed to Lyme, Conn., where he has accepted a position as tele-grapher in the office of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad.

Children's day was observed last Friday
(Aug. 21) at the Casino, Cottage City.

Also a praise service Sunday evening in Union Chapel, same city, under the auspices of the Baptist Society, in which Gertrude Inez Buss soprano of the Main St. Baptist church of this city, assisted.

The 21st in Upton.

Wednesday was a day of memories. From the first hearty greeting at the Upton Station, till the final good bys were said at 5 p.m. the air was full of "How are you" and "I'm glad to see you," and so on through the whole range of soldier terms on meeting. But the reunion, really, began in Union Station, Worcester, where the delegates from the remote portions of the county centered to take the 7 and 10 o'clock trains for hilly Upton. The cars were crowded with happy people, veterans with wives and children and when Upton was reached and the G. A. R. Post and the Sons of Veterans and Chaplain Ball were waiting to receive the visitors, every body knew that a good time was ahead. Says one lady to her friend, as she heard the hearty greetings of the veterans, "How I wish I could have gone to the war." Soon Capt. Walker orders the men to form in ranks, but the voice that directs is hardly the same that plainly told Maryland slave catchers in 1861 that he would not return negroes to bondage. It was a sight, that possession to the Town Hall! There were halting and enfeebled forms that, thirty years ago, were erect and stalwart. Battle and time had left ineffaceable scars, but the hearts beat as high and as warm as when first the bugle call was heard. A clarinet at the lips of a veteran, with a drum, beat by a son of a veteran, furnished the music to which the march to the hall was made. It was just eleven o'clock as the visitors filed into that beautiful building and took comfortable seats for the business meeting. On the platform were President Chas. E. Simmons, Secretary
George P. Hawkes, Chaplain George S. Ball with reporters Kimball and Greene for the Worcester Telegram and Milford Daily News.
Later guests, General A. B. R. Sprague and W. F. Draper with A. S. Roe were invited to places there. The exercises were opened with an exceedingly touching address by President Simmons who referred to his many years of deprivation of sight and his restoration; to his pleasure in being able to see his old comrades again and in finding them so much stronger and heartier than he had expected. He began the engagement which proved to be, most emphatically, a Chaplain Ball day, by referring to that gentleman in terms of unmeasured praise, and closed by introducing him to the audience, which happily, was made up not only of visiting veterans and their families but of very many towns people young and old who were thus gaining a lesson in patronism. The Chaplain was received with a round of heartiest applause, and after a few words of kindly greeting he invoked the divine blessing upon the gathering. His words were of the most appropriate character with reference to himself and his townsmen at whose hands the hospitable greeting was afforded. Then
Comrade Albert Davis of J. Orson Fiske Post
G. A. R., extended a welcome to the 21st and guests and told of the banquet that awaited them at one o'clock.

Major John S. Koster who as a sergeant in Co. H. lost an arm at Cold Harbor and is now a manufacturer in Lyon's Falls, New York, offered a resolution that a committee be appointed to report a proper design for a regimental badge. The committee was appointed consisting of Major Koster, H. M. Harper and G. M. Monroe.

At this moment, Major Koster appeared in a new role, none other than that of preferring charges against the venerable Chaplain. Sergeant A. S. Graton was directed by the President to place the Chaplain before the assemblage where he might be clearly seen during the reading of the bill of charges, which were that he had ever been devoted to the sick and wounded, had relieved the wearied soldiers in a hundred ways, though captured in battle had still found means to care for the stricken ones.
To all of these charges the "boys" proclaimed him guilty with a tumult of applause. Whereupon the Major sentenced him to receive as his punishment an elegantly framed life sized crayon picture of himself that the Major, all by himself, had had made and placed upon the platform, closely covered by a flag. A few moments before, the Chaplain had proclaimed himself a "brassy" man but, now, he quite lost his reputation, for he had to turn his back to his friends while he sought to regain his face and voice; but his eyes were not the only ones from which tears flowed freely. In faltering but manly words, he finally managed to thank the donor and to accept the gift, but before he could regain his seat, the President halted him to receive from Colonel Hawkes a cane made for him by Comrade Legare of Peters-ham from wood cut on the Congo river, Africa.
It is a beautiful specimen of handiwork from the comrade's own skill and is of Black Palm.

Once more the Chaplain is obliged to indicate his gratitude and, as ever, he succeeds admirably.

After this an adjournment of one hour is taken and all go down to the basement where a substantial repast is served by the ladies of the Relief Corps.

The Upton people are generous livers if Wednesday's fare be a specimen of what they furnish. The room was cool, the service was perfect and the food all and more than could be asked. After dinner, a few moments were improved in looking about the village and especially in admiring the beautiful soldiers monument which graced the common. The same outlay of money never brought better results. It is a thing of beauty and a joy to all who behold it.

Returning to the hall, business and speaking were resumed. The young people of the town improvised a concert of war music, which was most heartily received, and then the financial report was made, including a bill for $50.00 for souvenir badges worn by the 21st.
At this, General Draper whispered to the President, that he would pay that bill. It was too good to keep and President Simmons was not slow in telling the "boys," who received the news with three rousing cheers.

Dr. J. C. Cutter of Warren was introduced,
he being a son of the regiment's old surgeon,
Dr. Calvin Cutter, and he made some interesting remarks concerning his sister who died as a nurse at Newbern in 1862, aged nineteen and he presented each veteran a photograph of the sweet face from which life faded so long ago. She sleeps in the National Cemetery at Newbern. Her mother, an aged lady was one of the guests of the day.

Officers for the ensuing year were reported as follows: Capt. Addison A. Walker of Ashburnham for President; George F. Thompson of Worcester and Alonzo J. Wetherbee of Westboro for Vice-Presidents; Gen. George P. Hawkes of Templeton for Secretary; Luther E. Stuart of Worcester for treasurer, and Jones R. Davis, B. Bolton, E. W. Stone, Geo. M. Monroe as an executive committee. The list was elected by acclamation. It was voted to meet, next year, at Crystal Lake in Gardner. Then came more speaking, General A. B. R. Sprague leading off in eloquent words recalling the days when the 21st and 27th marched side by side and closing with a beautiful verbal tribute of love and respect for Chaplain Ball. General Draper followed in a way to command and hold the attention of all. He is obviously a favorite with the regiment. His concluding words were drawn from Fox's Regimental losses, recounting the casualties in the 21st during the War.

Dexter Hathaway of the old band then tuned up his clarinet and gave "Hail to the Chief," followed by two encores. His lips and fingers do not forget their cunning, though snow white locks proclaim advancing years.

The committee on resolutions, W. E. Richardson, E. W. Stone and Alonzo J. Wetherbee, reported appropriate resolutions on the death of Amos Adams, Albert Patterson, W. J. Paine, E. Jordan, C. E. Southland, D. C. Morgan and Robert Miller, which were adopted.

Then Alfred S. Roe of Worcester spoke in general terms of the common bond that unites all veterans of the War. After him W. E. Richardson of Boston read a poem replete with wit and allusions which kept his hearers all alert for the points which were many and sharp, concluding with the following lines dedicated to Chaplain George S. Ball.

In vain this world's enticing charms,
Vain its alluring glow;
It cannot blot from memory's page,
When you and I in earlier age
Marched forth responsive to the call
Some thirty years ago.

Some who then marched the cypress wreath
Is o'er them bending low,
The fire-fly lights their lonely bed,
While stars their softest radiance shed
O'er those who bore aloft the blue,
Some thirty years ago.

Behind that banner marched the man,
His face, towards the foe,
Behold that man a sacred cause,
The sanctity of freedom's laws,
For that you boldly marched in faith
Some thirty years ago.

Today we honor one whose voice
Was never pitched too low;
Its clarion tones for truth and right
In camp, in march or thickest fight,
Rang forth in no uncertain sound,
Some thirty years ago.

Here at his home we proudly come,
Our gratitude to show;
Another garland wreath to blend,
Upon the brow of that staunch friend,
Whose every act was love to us
Some thirty years ago.

Time will not lessen our regard,
With years 'twill stronger grow;
'Tis feeble tribute, dull and dim,
Comes true from one who marched with him,
Who knew his worth in darksome hours,
Some thirty years ago.

May coming years their blessings shed,
May gentle breezes blow,

Till wafted sweetly to that clime,
His birthright by a life divine,
He'll welcome those who marched with him,
Some thirty years ago.

An excellent letter was read from Major Wm. T. Harlow whom court duties kept away and thanks were voted to Miss W. E. Alma of Newport, R. I., a niece of the late Gen. Walcott, and an honorary member of the association, for a generous donation to the funds of the Association.

Charles W. Wood, Esq., of Worcester and a veteran of the 36th followed in words that were eminently fitted for the occasion, recalling as he could and did, the many places where he and his hearers had faced the same foe and dangers.

A vote of thanks was given to General Draper for his generous contribution, and then all of the Upton people who had helped to make the day so enjoyable were remembered in like manner. The speaking ended with some rousing words from Col. George F. Thompson of Worcester who recalled some stirring events in the Annapolis career of the 21st. Once more Chaplain Ball comes to the front, this time to give rather than to receive for he presents each comrade with a fine steel plate portrait of himself and then calls attention to the birth cards of the grandson of Lt. Col. Rice, who was killed at Chantilly. The father, Newbern, was born on the very day that the 21st was fighting the North Carolina battle of that name, a son whom the officer never saw. Twenty-eight long years have stretched away since that day, and today, the widow and grandmother comes to recall old associations.

The day is done, and slowly at 5 p. m. the station is sought where the cars take away from the old town many who will never visit it again; but all depart, voting the day one of the most pleasurable in their lives.

The Veterans of the 21st who responded to the roll call were

- |                          |                          |
|--------------------------|--------------------------|
| Geo. George P. Hawkes,   | Maj. Geo. F. Thompson,   |
| Chaplain George S. Ball, | Rev. Charles E. Simmons, |
| Jonas R. Davis,          | Henry J. Marshall,       |
| J. P. Cutting,           | W. E. Stone,             |
| John A. Merritt,         | James A. Carruth,        |
| Herbert Ieland,          | Hubert Clatney,          |
| C. W. Crittenden,        | R. L. Doane,             |
| J. D. Cummins,           | J. E. Grealey,           |
| Jacques Cowan,           | Lennel Whitney,          |
| Lyman D. Mason,          | G. R. Severance,         |
| Wilbur A. Potter,        | George L. Thayer,        |
| C. E. Tatt,              | Alonzo J. Wetherbee,     |
| Eleazer Whiting,         | Harvey Bellamy,          |
| Richard Bryson,          | A. A. Knox,              |
| S. E. Goodnow,           | John Somerville,         |
| Dennis Neaker,           | Dexter Hathaway,         |
| William E. Richardson,   | Alvin S. Graton,         |
| William Lombard,         | S. L. Robbins,           |
| W. W. Scott,             | J. N. Wheeler,           |
| Matthew Webster,         | Ira B. Goodrich,         |
| Julius Whitney,          | George Ward,             |
| A. L. Jaquith,           | A. B. Jaquith,           |
| Timothy Langton,         | William J. Kicketts,     |
| I. Muzzey,               | Alphonso Marsh,          |
| J. T. Marshall,          | J. G. Warner,            |
| E. A. Howe,              | G. A. Whitcomb,          |
| H. O. Nelson,            | Edwin F. Field,          |
| Henry White,             | Preston Warner,          |
| Franklin Sargent,        | B. C. Fawcett,           |
| J. W. Warren,            | W. P. Kenney,            |
| John G. Brewer,          | Horatio McGinnis,        |
| Samuel F. Miles,         | F. B. Potter,            |
| William Hines,           | Edgar Salisbury,         |
| Richard Whaleo,          | Addison A. Walker,       |
| George M. Munroe,        | Bel Bolton,              |
| Samuel C. Lesent,        | S. P. Blanchard,         |
| George A. Corey,         | O. P. Remington,         |
| Frank Litch,             | James Hare,              |
| L. W. Libbey,            | George M. Lawrence,      |

- |                    |                       |
|--------------------|-----------------------|
| Patrick Monaghan,  | Luther E. Stewart,    |
| Lyman Thurston,    | Merrick B. Whitney,   |
| John H. Witherell, | Charles Farrow,       |
| George L. Jaquith, | James M. Garrett,     |
| James H. Damon,    | Frank E. Dickenson,   |
| J. S. Foster,      | Waldo Vinton,         |
| Charles E. Gould,  | W. W. Putnam,         |
| Abner Mott,        | George F. Holt,       |
| Lewis P. Atwood,   | Warren W. Clapp,      |
| John Messinger,    | Thomas McGovern,      |
| W. H. Sawyer,      | E. B. Richardson,     |
| Henry E. Conant,   | Oliver P. Jenkins,    |
| German Legare,     | Charles E. Stowe,     |
| Sidney Seibley,    | George E. Wilson,     |
| Henry M. Harper,   | Augustus T. Barnes,   |
| Edwin Nye,         | Charles A. Courtland, |

Henry W. Howe.

It should not be omitted that each comrade was given a complete Roster of the survivors of the 21st so far as it can be made out. This was done under the direction of H. M. Harper and Ira B. Goodrich.

Lothrop's Opera House.

"Fanchon, the Cricket," that beautiful drama with which Maggie Mitchell won her way to fame and fortune, has occupied the boards of this pretty little play house during the past week, and has proven a great attraction. Miss Katherine Rober, as the star, is beyond reproach. This is her first appearance before a Worcester audience, and her interpretation and acting of "Fanchon" has already won her a warm corner in the hearts of Worcester theatre-goers. During the second act Mr. William Hafford sings an original song, "A Mother's Love is a Blessing," which always brings forth a deserved encore. Messrs. Freeman and Hall, as the twin brothers, are very good, the antics and sayings of the latter creating much laughter. A laughable farce, entitled, "A Hole in the Wall," precedes each performance. The last performances will be given this afternoon and evening. Despite the warm weather there have been crowded houses every evening, and a large number of ladies attend the afternoon matinees.

The attraction next week will be Miss Kate Purssell, in the ever popular Western drama, "The Queen of the Plains." The young lady has an excellent reputation as an actress in border drama. She will introduce her celebrated horse "Firefly" in the play and show her abilities as a daring equestrienne.

Early in the week Miss Hattie Morris, who acts the part of Old Fadet, the witch, in "Fanchon," was severely injured by the falling of the Maypole. Her injuries consisted of a cut on the head, which required three stitches at the hands of Dr. J. Marcus Rice. The young lady deserves much praise for sticking to her work during the week.

Mr. Fred R. Johnson, formerly in the office of the Providence & Worcester Railroad, has been secured by Manager Armstrong as door-keeper for Lothrop's Opera House.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Mr. Ernest L. Pettes, collecting agent, gives personal attention to the collection of bills. No. 24 Pearl Street.
Geo. E. Kirby & Co., Dealers in Umbrellas and Parasols. Repairing and re-covering a specialty, 397 Main St.

INSTRUCTION IN MUSIC AND ELOCUTION. Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Morse resume teaching September 2. Studios, 368 1-2 Main Street.

Boston Slums.

BOSTON, August 22, 1891.

Sometime since, the American people were somewhat surprised to read in the newspapers a despatch from London, saying the large cities of Chicago and Boston equalled White-chapel in respect to squalor and misery. The person who made this statement was Rev. Samuel Barrett, the social reformer of England, who had returned to his native country from a tour of the world, undertaken for the purpose of gathering information of the actual condition of the poor in various countries. Then there is a native clergyman of South Boston, Rev. L. A. Banks who has made many sensational charges concerning "sweaters." These facts, coming as they did from such reliable sources set the Boston Record upon a tour of investigation and so far the results have been marvelous.

The work was all done by Mr. F. H. Cushman of the Record, and whether or not the facts are exaggerated as some people say, it is obvious that underneath the startling headlines of its daily articles there is a substantial basis of truth. During all these investigations, Mr. Cushman was assisted by a policeman, detailed for that work, who escorted him through the slums of the city, and the dark side of life was seen as it really exists. There is misery and filth in Boston if a person takes the pains to go about with open eyes. Letting in daylight here and there upon the darkness,—even if it does disturb some landlords, is a work that certainly does not deserve repute. These people have become so used to their condition that they care little about bettering themselves, but the agitation of the question through the daily press is sure to accomplish some good. The landlords will repair the tenements, the board of health will be more alert in regard to the sanitary condition, and taking everything into consideration such an impetus will be given to the question that these people will find that there is a bright side to life.

The first place visited by the Record man was that portion of the West End lying between Merrimac and Green streets, and more especially the square of Pitts and Normand streets complete the boundary. This section is considered the worst part of the third police district. The property so bounded is rapidly passing into the possession of the Hebrews and the residents are chiefly Italian and Russian Jews, with here and there a sprinkling of Irish. The upper part of the block on the corner of Travers street is inhabited alone by Jews and Italians, who make a living by finishing garments for tailors. Its rooms, about 10 feet by 12 feet, are each occupied by separate families, ranging in number from three to six persons, and in every room piles of clothing may be seen upon which the occupants are at work.

The children sprawling upon the floor are as dirty as can be, and everything is neglected but the work. Above the ground floor there are two stories of tenements separated by narrow passageways, the whole house containing 120 persons. The places are all filthy. In the quarters occupied by Italians, in nearly every room and in all passageways are bunches of bananas ripening for the market, while the closets are used as store-rooms for boxes of lemons and other fruit.

In nearly all of the rooms of these houses will be found bottled lager, of which these people are as fond as the Germans. Everybody drinks; the children even go about with beer bottles in their little hands, either using them as playthings, or raising them to their lips, trying to drain another drop from the apparently dry bottle.

If the denizens of the West End and its environs are filthy in their habits, untidy and shiftless in their housekeeping, the inhabitants of the Jewish quarter are equally so, as a tour through many by-ways will prove. Salem street is the noted Jewish street, the one made famous by the college song of "Solomon Levi" which so many school boys are familiar with. The territory between Salem and Endicott streets is covered by tenement houses, most of which are in a decidedly shaky condition and which are crowded from cellar to attic with large families of Jews who make but little if an effort at cleanliness either of persons or surroundings.

In the first house visited, the women and some of the men are busily engaged in finishing clothing. The little room used as a sleeping apartment at night, contained five such persons so employed, two of them sitting on the unmade bed. On the floor young children scantily clad are rolling about. But the needle goes in and out with the regularity of a shuttle.

The old Wells mansion on Salem street, one of the oldest houses in Boston, now contains an Italian colony, most of whom are musicians—mechanical ones—who use the sheds in the yard as a place of storage for their wheeled instruments, and the yard itself on a pleasant night as a dormitory to accommodate the overflow from the crowded house, blankets and comforters rolled up and placed in odd nooks and corners are brought forth when the weather permits, and the yard transformed into a temporary camp, whose occupants sleep in peace, undisturbed by the surrounding noises and confusion.

Blind alleys and short cuts under ground and over roofs make the region a paradise for thieves eluding the vigilance of the officers. Drunkenness, however, is less observable than in other districts. These people seem to prefer light wine to heavy liquor.

The locality west of the Joy street station, especially that district bounded by Cambridge, Anderson, Grove and Phillips streets, was mentioned by the officers at station 3 as one of the worst localities. The residents are for the most part colored people and are troublesome chiefly for the minor offences committed there, such as drunkenness, assaults, family quarrels and the like.

Perhaps the most notorious place in the whole district is what is known as London Bridge. Why the place is so called no one pretends to say; but after an inspection of it, it was decided that the name was given it because, like its prototype in the nursery songs, it "is falling down."

London Bridge comprises three distinct houses on Anderson street, just above Phillips street, connected at various points by narrow walks or bridges, and in spite of the strict police supervision continues to be the resort of the lowest and vilest of both sexes, and is a sort of rendezvous for returned Islanders, both white and blacks. A person should be something of a gymnast to make an inspection of "London Bridge." The stairs in the buildings have, in many cases broken away from old associations, or else are ready to drop from sheer fatigue. Another feature in regard to the stairs is their faculty for disappearing at critical periods. You ascend them enter a room talk for a moment with the occupants, turn around to descend, and, lo, there are no stairs. The ceilings, also, have bad habits, and will insist upon knocking the crown of your hat to the level of the rim.

London Bridge tenements, although small and scantily furnished, are, as a rule, clean and tidy. The stench from the closets is everywhere noticeable, owing to the closeness of the quarters which allows but poor ventilation. The people manage to exist somehow on the scanty wages earned by the few workers in the hive; and there is a sort of freemasonry among them that makes convictions at court somewhat difficult. It is almost impossible to estimate the population of this resort as the people are continually going and coming, and those who live in the rooms generally keep open house at all hours for their boon companions who are without shelter.

If the North End by daylight is squalid, the North End by gas light is picturesque. From the same old rookeries in front of which during the day half-clad children exhibited their dirt begrimed faces, and whose interior was a veritable sweat-shop, young girls in holiday attire now emerge for their evening promenade.

In the North street quarter everybody, or nearly everybody, eats watermelon; over in Salem street everybody, or nearly everybody, drinks small beer. On North street, with the exception of the dram shop, the stores are closed; on Salem street, and its by-ways, the eye for business is still open. During the investigation on North street, a veritable lodging house was found with rooms at 75 cents per week. Cheap enough, but not exactly sumptuous lodgings. The liquor saloons run full blast and are filled to the doors by patrons, among whom are women and, occasionally, children are quite noticeable. Large quantities of beer and ale are carried out in tins of every description to be quietly drunk in the homes of the buyers. By midnight its effects are shown in numberless family quarrels, and the air is filled with calls for the police. How people can enjoy life in such quarters is hard to understand.

The fourth police district does not offer the chances for slumming that it did a few years ago. Business blocks are fast taking the places of the old rookeries, and the inhabitants have been scattered throughout other districts. There is still "Kerryville," as a portion of Warrenton street is called, and down around the cove it is quite lively. The inhabitants of the tenements of this district are Irish to the back-bone and as clannish as the Hebrews on Salem street, and woe to the newcomer who seeks an abiding place there unless he is one of them.

It is related that a poor misguided Israelite determined to locate in the poor neighborhood despite the warnings of his friends. He remained there just four days. The interior of the "Kerryville" tenements differs but little from those of the ordinary Irish tenements inhabited by the lower class. The same large families occupy the small rooms, and as a rule, the larger the family the smaller the rooms. Poverty stares one in the face on every hand; but it is a semi-respectable poverty, which makes itself prominent more by its general appearance than by appeals for state aid. Down East street, things are entirely different. There poverty and vice walk hand in hand with drunkenness, with the inevitable results. But Shaving street is probably the worst place in the district. Many of its inhabitants are old-time residents of the "Palace" on Federal street, recently pulled down to make room for a fine brick block. "We are prepared for anything in Shaving street," said an officer. "The cries, murder! help! police! are so common that comparatively little notice is taken of them unless the voice is a strange one."

Poverty is so general among the residents of Albany street and vicinity, especially in that portion of the fifth district lying between Dover and Beach streets, that it is difficult to select any particular locality as illustrating its characteristics; but, although the people are poor, with few exceptions they belong to the industrious class who are willing and anxious to work, and cause little or no trouble to the police.

Down on Dover street is the city dumping ground. Here are found on a good day nearly 100 men, women and children picking over the refuse, and many of them get their living by this work alone. The children generally look for coal, and find enough each day to keep the fires going. The older and more experienced dumpers search for rags, bottles, etc. One strange characteristic of these people, is, that they will fight like cats and dogs to get the best of what is in a new heap. Once the stuff is picked and laid aside it is as safe as though it were under lock and key; they will not steal from each other, and often go away for an hour at a time, confident that they will find their heap undisturbed.

"Swanland" in police nomenclature is synonymous with everything evil and troublesome. The geographical centre of "Swanland" is Swan street, a short thoroughfare between Dorchester avenue and Foundry street. This district is notorious as a resort of petty thieves and drunkards. More arrests for these offences are made in this section than elsewhere in South Boston. The short days in winter are the harvest time. The whole neighborhood offers exceptional opportunities for the disposal of stolen goods, and the houses are arranged in many cases, in such a manner as to make a successful pursuit of the offenders an impossibility.

One thing about these squalid houses that is remarkable is, none of the occupants pretend to know who owns the property, and this state of things is observed throughout the Boston slums. Rents are collected and repairs made by agents who are reluctant to name their principals. The police in every district tell the same thing:—"As long as the rent is paid, they do not care who pays it, and, under these conditions, it is an almost hopeless task that is set before the police to keep order in such localities." JAMES H. WALL.

Concerning Lowell.

Aug. 22.

MR. A. S. ROE,

DEAR SIR: In LIGHT of this date, speaking of James Russell Lowell you say "Few of us have met him, yet his face, through his picture, is so familiar, we feel as though we actually knew him."

It was easy to recognize him by the picture, although these fail to give any adequate idea of the wonderful expression of his eyes.

On Saturday, Feb. 19, 1887, having to go West, I took the sleeping car, Linwood, at Worcester, 4 20 p.m. and on going to my place, passed in the seat, ahead of mine, a man of medium size, English in dress, and curled up in the seat. I knew him at sight, and my first thought came in lines of his own,

"There's times when I'm unsoiled ez a stone
An' sort o' suffocate to be alone."

and I wondered if he was then in such a mood; but I soon found out, for, within half an hour, he came back and asking if I knew where we stopped for supper, sat down. The question seemed only an excuse to start conversation, for it was soon evident he was in a talking mood and must talk and that even an entire stranger would answer his purpose. Such a flow of words as came from his lips in the next hour or so, I never listened to before, nor have I since.

Thackeray's Henry Esmond, which I happened to be reading, was the starting point. He spoke of it as Thackeray's best work; from that to Tennyson, who had just published a poem, and then to things literary and poetical, in this country and in England, especially affairs in Ireland. All he seemed to want was a good listener and I did my best in that direction. He told some of his experiences as Minister to Spain and to England, with frequent flashes of wit, reminding one of the Biglow Papers and he seemed,

"All dipt in sunshine like a poet."

Told of waiting years to hear a certain word used, for instance "blowth" which he first heard from a stage driver in Vermont. Spoke of living with his daughter, Mrs. Burnett, at Southboro, and liking to watch the hens; to my remark that I always associated him with Cambridge, he replied, "That is no longer home." He spoke of its being lonely for him there, his only reference to his bereavement, and spoken very tenderly. Being on his way to Chicago to deliver an address on Washington's birthday, he spoke of dreading it and as a political address was expected, he was in doubt how much to say. You will recall the fact that he did, at the last moment, change his mind and gave them a literary instead of a political address, which change was the occasion of some sharp newspaper comments at the time. Later in the evening, he talked to several gentleman in the car defending some of the English landlords from charges of unfairness in their treatment of Irish tenants.

He spoke with great frankness on many subjects, but with perfect good nature, and it is easy to understand that had his remarks, not tended for publication, been printed as seems to have been done on another occasion, considerable newspaper comment might have resulted. During the journey, he spoke of work he was engaged on, and of certain physical troubles, in a way that made me think he was not unmindful of the fact that what work he had to do must be done within a few years.

Why this poet and statesman talked so freely, I cannot say, but I am glad he did and count the 19th of February, '87, a red letter day.

Respectfully,
CHAS. W. GRAY.

10 Oread Street, Worcester.

INSTRUCTION IN MUSIC AND EDUCATION. Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Morse resume teaching September 2. Studios, 368 1-2 Main Street.

Edward L. Smith & Co., Vacation Notes.

Miss Katie McTiernan is with us again. Kitty says the weighing machine now allows her a "higher" number.

Miss Annie Crosby leaves us tonight. Annie's return is "not to be" as she feels called upon to act her part in the solution of the great problem. We all extend our best wishes Annie and sincerely trust yours will be a successful part, well rendered with a hero worthy your steel. We congratulate the "other fellow."

Miss Mar'on Curry came in Monday. Guess Marion didn't stay much in Boston. She looks more like a seashore graduate (as to beneficial results).

Miss Kitty Oneil is back from Springfield. Being quite an enthusiastic admirer of fine horses she attended the Hampden Park races most every day. Kitty considered "Lady Sheridan" about right.

A letter from Miss Agnes Briden dated North Conway, N. H., Aug. 28, speaks volumes in itself about the beauty of scenery and invigorating atmosphere of that popular resort.

Charlie O'Brien has got back. If the color of Charlie's face denotes anything (handsome shade of brown) it means a pretty warm sun in New York City, particularly so where the New Yorks play ball.

Miss Katie Kelly is at her post again and looking well.

Miss M. J. Dorsey reports fine weather and a general good time at Newport (as usual) Maggie always did like Newport.

Miss Lilla Guertin arrived from Barre today. She has been the guest of Mr. Charles H. Follansby since August 10.

Mr. Devillis, who takes charge of our French department leaves today to visit his former home in Montreal. Mrs. and baby Devillis go too.

Mr. Hugh Flack, the popular manager of our domestic department, accompanied by Mrs. Flack and Miss Ruth Flack, will enjoy the cool breezes of Nantasket for two weeks.

Miss Gertrude Cutting will be at Newport during the next two weeks.

A Sad Sight.

"The schoolmaster should always show an example of temperance to his pupils."

"Undoubtedly he should."

"Yes, it is a sad sight to see a pupil going on a tooth with his tutor."

Cushing's Battery.

It was a very happy thought of Col. Wellington and does him infinite credit, to tender a reception to this widely known body. Our citizens have had a chance to see how soldiers really look. Many a veteran looking at the line passing through Worcester, said, "I have seen nothing like it since the War." All the way, up and back, the march of this battery has been an important feature of the Bennington celebration. On coming through Paxton, Tuesday, they were, again, recipients of Mr. Ledyard Bill's hospitality and in Worcester they had a taste of old time Lincoln appreciation in a lunch, tendered by Captain Winslow Lincoln, on Chandler Street. If his father, the Old General, could only have been there!

Through Main and Lincoln Streets to Grant Square, the heavy wheels rumbled and their camp was pitched. It was a sight that Worcester will not see again for many a day, for these were actual, not play, soldiers. The men were the soul of politeness as they answered, or tried to, all the questions that only civilians could think of. In the evening came the crowning glory when Colonel Wellington threw open his spacious home for a reception to the officers of this command, known in Rebellion days as Gibbon's Battery. No. 10 Windsor Street never presented a more brilliant sight than on Tuesday evening when at 8 o'clock the guests began to appear. Probably no gathering in Worcester ever brought together more men to whom military titles attach in some way. The house had been handsomely and appropriately decorated.

The reception committee were: Maj. L. G. White, Gen. Pickett, Gen. Sprague, Col. Johnson, Col. H. E. Smith, Maj. Raymond, Capt. Allen, Capt. Levi Lincoln, Lieut. J. Stewart Brown and Lieut. James Clark. Col. Wellington received with Maj. Cushing, Capt. Anderson and Lieut. Martin of the battery.

At 9 o'clock, refreshments were served by Rebboli, the line to the dining room being led by Major Cushing and General Dalton. The guests of the evening were His Honor Mayor F. A. Harrington, Alderman Francis Plunkett, Alderman Francis W. Grout, Alderman William A. Lytle, Adj. Gen. Samuel Dalton, Boston, Brig. Gen. Nat. Wales, Boston, Gen. Josiah Pickett, Gen. A. B. R. Sprague, Gen. R. H. Chamberlain, Col. T. S. Johnson, Col. Levi Baker, Col. E. J. Russell, Col. W. S. B. Hopkins, Col. E. B. Glasgow, Col. W. A. Williams, Col. H. T. Rockwell, Boston, Col. E. E. Currier, Boston, Col. Sidney M. Hedges, Boston, Lieut. Col. C. S. Childs, Lieut. Col. A. S. Taft, Maj. E. T. Raymond, Maj. F. G. Stiles, Maj. E. R. Shumway, Maj. L. G. White, Capt. J. K. Churchill, Capt. John S. Baldwin, Capt. George L. Allen, Capt. E. A. Wood, Capt. Henry Bacon, Capt. Levi Lincoln, Capt. Winslow Lincoln, Capt. John E. Merrill, Capt. W. D. Preston, Capt. Charles S. Chapin, Capt. H. C. Pease, Capt. D. M. Earle, Capt. J. B. Knox, Capt. John A. Lovell, Capt. H. B. Wilder, Capt. L. G. Bigelow, Capt. Wm. Regan, Capt. W. A. Condy, Capt. elect Harry B. Fairbanks of the Light Infantry, Capt. Thomas J. Hastings, Capt. F. E. Goodwin, Capt. George F. Peck, Lieut. Chas. F. Bigelow, Lieut. W. A. Simpson, Lieut. H.

W. Haynes, Lieut. B. J. Wilmot, Lieut. P. L. Rider, Lieut. elect W. F. Gilman of the Light Infantry, Lieut. M. H. Tisdell, Lieut. E. G. Barrett, Commander Charles H. Pinkham, S. V. C. J. B. Lepire, J. V. C. Fred L. Fuller, O. D. Joseph Midgley, O. G. G. H. Harthan, Chaplain, C. M. Smith and Quartermaster C. W. Gasset of Post 10, Lieut. E. B. Dolliver, Lieut. G. H. Clark, Lieut. W. H. Rice, Lieut. S. L. Shaffer, Lieut. E. H. Trowbridge, Lieut. George H. Harlow, Lieut. J. E. Dennis, Lieut. S. A. Willis, Lieut. N. E. Mansfield, Capt. H. H. Fairbanks, Capt. Moses Gross, Lieut. Charles A. Waite, Lieut. W. B. Harding, Lieut. Charles F. Mann, Lieut. John H. Jewett, Lieut. H. A. Johnson, Lieut. J. Stewart Brown, Lieut. John E. Lancaster, Lieut. Wm. McCready, Lieut. R. L. Ward, Lieut. Fred A. Mann, Lieut. James Clark, Lieut. J. O. Bemis, Surgeons, J. Marcus Rice, W. T. Souther, H. S. Knight, C. H. Davis, F. H. Gifford, Oramel Martin, and Albert Wood. Rev. H. F. A. Hoyt, chaplain of the state fencibles, Philadelphia, Hon. C. B. Pratt, W. S. Barton, John F. Howell, Charles A. Allen, L. B. Stone, George E. Batchelder, Capt. C. H. Peck, F. A. McClure, A. P. Marble, Eugene M. Moriarty, Harrison G. Otis and James C. Coffey.

From the moment, when at Tatnuck, the visitors were met by Capt. Lawrence G. Bigelow, Lieuts. Chas. F. Bigelow, Waldo A. Simpson and H. W. Haynes, Sergt. A. F. Dunkerton, and Corp. H. B. Lee of Battery B, Capt. John E. Merrill, Lieut. W. T. Souther, Lieut. P. L. Rider of the Light Infantry, and Bugler L. W. White of the second regiment, who acted as escort to the camp, no effort was spared to make the visit of the Battery to this city a memorable and pleasant event to every one concerned. Tattoo in camp warned the guests of the lateness of the hour and at 11 o'clock all had gone with most delightful memories of the meeting, of the music furnished by Osborne's Orchestra and, above all, of the wit and zeal that prompted Colonel Wellington to do this thing for his fellow citizens.

Wednesday's dawn was not auspicious; but later the clouds were dispelled and all of stay-at-home Worcester was agog to see the real soldiers drill. The small boy and his sister, and the older folks, too, were out to see the march and the evolutions at the Park. At 2.10 p. m. the Emmett Guards led off, followed by the light Infantry, Post 10, G. A. R. and Battery B. Then came the visitors all in bright array and there were few eyes in Worcester capable of looking that did not take in the glorious sight. General Pickett was, as ever, the perfect marshal assisted by Major E. T. Raymond and staff consisting of Gen. R. H. Chamberlain, Lieut. Col. Aaron S. Taft, Maj. E. R. Shumway, Maj. L. G. White, Capt. Geo. L. Allen, Capt. John E. Merrill, Capt. Levi Lincoln, Surgeon Charles H. Davis, Surgeon F. H. Gifford, Lieut. James W. Clark, Lieut. Fred A. Mann, Lieut. Charles F. Mann.

It is noteworthy that Capt. Lincoln rode in a saddle from which his uncle, Captain Geo. Lincoln was shot in the battle of Buena Vista in the Mexican War, and that General Pickett's steed, Saddler, magnificent as he appeared is 29 years old, quite a veteran, now the property of Colonel Wellington.

On reaching the Park, it was found thronged with a vast assemblage of people who, apparently, did not belong to the Peace society. What attractions have the trappings of war! The drill and movements were all the most exacting could desire and drew from every one loudest applause.

Returning from the Park, the line was reviewed at City Hall by the Mayor, Francis A. Harrington with whom were Aldermen Francis W. Grout, W. C. Jewett, and Francis Plunkett, Hon. A. S. Pinkerton, Deputy Sheriff William Hart, City Engineer Charles A. Allen, H. G. Otis, David H. Hayter, George H. Batchelder, Lieut. John E. Lancaster, Reuben Champion and L. B. Stone.

On getting back to Camp, Colonel Wellington was again the entertainer in a tent erected on the lawn, and Rebboli the caterer. A bright day for many.

Thursday afternoon, the Battery rolled out of the City towards Newport with, we hope, many pleasant recollections of the stay in the Heart of the Commonwealth.

ABOUT FOLKS.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Smith and Master Denholm Smith enjoyed a drive and an "over Sunday" stay at Rutland last week—returning Monday morning.

Mrs. A. B. Dunbar and her daughter, Florence, have just returned from a six weeks' visit to Cleveland, Ohio.

Over in Milford, they are advertising Hotel William. The other name is not given. After all a Hotel "Bill" has a familiar sound. Must have heard it somewhere.

Miss Renna May Ingraham of this city sang at a musicale at the Ocean House, Newport, last Sunday evening. Her singing was very favorably commented upon by the guests among whom were several musical critics. It is considered a great honor, even by experienced artists, to be invited to sing at the Ocean House musicales and Miss Ingraham's success is very gratifying to her friends.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Hoppin of Harvard street have been to Saratoga.

Judge P. Emory Aldrich and Col. W. S. B. Hopkins were elected, Wednesday, members of the American Bar Association at its fourteenth annual meeting at Boston.

Rev. Horace J. White, pastor of the Pleasant Street Baptist church, has returned from a seven weeks' vacation in Maine.

Rev. Daniel T. McGillicuddy returned to his home in Milford, Wednesday, after a short visit to friends in this city.

Mrs. Lillie Wilkinson is the guest of F. A. Easton and wife, at Bar Rock cottage, North Scituate.

Indirectly, Worcester is interested in the Chilian War. Two brothers of Richard W. Green, of the firm of John D. Washburn & Co., are fighting on the side of the Insurgents. Thomas C. who was recently graduated from the Naval School at Valparaiso is on the Esmeralda, while Samuel C. is a Captain of Infantry.

The Lakeside Boat Club.

Walking down the Boulevard toward the south from the Lake station of the Worcester and Shrewsbury railroad, the first building noticed on the left after crossing the railroad is the one which graces LIGHT's front page this week. This is the home of the Lakeside Boat Club. It is hardly possible that we could pass by without noticing it for we are at the first glance impressed with its attractiveness. The grove of oaks, the numerous wide piazzas and the glimpses of the Lake which we get through the trees give it an appearance of coolness and comfort which is very inviting. The whole scene is a realization of the dreams we all have had of the ideal place in which to spend our afternoons and evenings after a hot day in the city.

As visitors are always welcome, let us walk in. But before we enter the house itself, let us sit down a moment on the cool piazza and find out how this ideal summer home happened to be here.

The Lakeside Boat Club was organized Feb. 14, 1887, with the following board of officers: President, Irving E. Bigelow; vice president, Lawrence G. Bigelow; secretary, H. H. Kidd; treasurer, Harry B. Goodell. Under the management of this board the club became at once a decided success. Mr. H. H. Bigelow built the house for the club which has leased it from him ever since. The object sought by the organization was to secure to the members recreation in boating and in social intercourse. How well this has been done will be seen as we go along.

Now that we have a slight idea of how the club was started and what its objects are let us look into its home to see how well it is fitted for accomplishing the desired results. Entering the first door on the right off the piazza, we find ourselves in a prettily furnished reception room. Spread over the floor are Turkish rugs and the walls are adorned with reminders of out door life, including trophies of the hunt, models of boats and pictures of out door scenes as well as standard works of art. Turning to the left and passing by a small toilet room, we enter the parlor, which is both luxuriously and artistically furnished. From the parlor, wide doors open out upon the piazza fronting the Lake and also folding doors on the right give entrance to the reading room, where are found on file all of the leading papers and magazines. From the reading room also doors similar to those of the parlor open upon the piazza. Off the right side of the reading room is the correspondence room fitted with desk and all the other necessities for writing. These two rooms may also be entered directly from the reception room. The game room is at the right of the correspondence room. Still further to the right we push aside some draperies and enter the dressing and locker room and then descend to the basement where the club's boats are housed.

In its fleet the club has considerable pride and well it may for neither in excellence or numbers is it surpassed by that of any other club at the Lake. It includes three club single shells, nine members' shells, a single and double working boat, two sailing and three paddling canoes and six pleasure boats of various sizes.

Returning upstairs we ascend to the second story, which is entirely devoted to a hall. This has been the scene of many an enjoyable dance. Opening out from the north and east sides of the hall are two piazzas. The third floor has but one room, the "bunk" room, where members who desire may place their beds.

We have now made, mentally, the complete tour of the house. If the reader will follow the mental visit with a personal one he will then have some idea of its beauties.

Suppose he walks down there this afternoon. It will soon be evident from the unusual commotion that he is to enjoy something besides the usual pleasures, for this afternoon the annual club regatta takes place. This event was instituted during the club's first season and has been successfully held each succeeding one. Though these regattas have developed no world's champions, yet they have accomplished much towards that true aim of all physical exercises and contests, the increase of bodily health, strength and skill. At four o'clock the first race, the senior single scull, will be started on the south course. The competitors will be Harry A. Adams and S. Frank Gates. This is considered the most important race of the regatta. The first two seasons it was won by Harry Goodell and the last two by Lawrence G. Bigelow. Neither of those entered for today has won a senior race before and it is about an even thing as to which will win. The other races and the entries are junior single scull—A. H. Lange, C. E. Putnam, G. W. Eddy, A. L. Bemis; quarter mile dash, single scull—H. A. Adams, A. H. Lange, C. E. Putnam, A. L. Bemis; hurry-scurry—H. A. Adams, A. H. Lange, C. E. Putnam, G. W. Eddy; canoe upset—H. A. Adams, G. W. Eddy, A. H. Lange, C. E. Putnam, A. L. Bemis. The first prizes are silver cups, the second, ribbon badges. The officers of the day are referee, H. B. Fairbanks; timers, W. W. Hobbs, D. W. Carter; judges, Dr. H. H. Warren, H. J. Kettell, W. S. Lincoln.

This evening the club holds a banquet at the Bay State House. This is also an annual event taking place the evening of the day of the annual regatta.

On the space north of the house, the club has a fine dirt tennis court which has an advantage possessed by but few other courts in the city. It is surrounded by trees so that it is shaded throughout the day and play may be enjoyed at noon as well as at any other time. Last year a members' tournament was held and was won by A. C. Marble. Another was held this year when the winner was H. B. Fairbanks. In the future this is to be included in the annual events.

There still remain two more annual events to be spoken of, the opening and closing receptions. The first is held late in May, the second early in October. On account of the enjoyableness of the occasions and of the high standing of those who attend they rank among the leading society events of each season.

Until last year the club was comparatively inactive during the winter months, but last winter a room was secured in the Burnside Building and was occupied from October to April. Pool and cards were the leading diversions. Also several parties were held. Again this winter the club will have a room in the same building, but it will be the one numbered 15 instead of number 13.

The club was never in a more prosperous condition than it is at present and its future promises continued and increased prosperity. There are rumors that the club will before many seasons, build a new house of its own on the opposite shore of the Lake. The officers are at present, Harry B. Fairbanks, president; J. H. Sykes, vice-president; A. C. Marble, secretary; D. W. Carter, treasurer; Albert H. Lange, captain; S. Frank Gates, lieutenant. There are now fifty-five members as follows:

Harry A. Adams,	William R. Heald,
B. A. Barber,	Arthur C. Higgins,
A. J. Bassett,	Wilbur W. Hobbs,
A. L. Bemis,	W. M. Hunt,
Lawrence G. Bigelow,	Albert F. Hyde,
A. R. Bingham,	F. I. Johnson,
C. L. Blair,	H. Kettell,
Herbert F. Blood,	Nelson C. Keyes,
D. William Carter,	Emile Landry,
B. G. Clapp,	Albert H. Lange,
Edwin S. Clark,	W. L. Lincoln,
Samuel H. Colton,	Chas. M. McFarland,
Charles S. Cook,	Robert J. McKay,
F. H. Davis,	Arthur C. Marble,
George S. Davis,	A. H. Maynard,
George W. Eddy,	C. B. Maynard,
Harry B. Fairbanks,	W. E. Norcross,
William E. Fairbanks,	R. W. Nye,
S. Frank Gates,	John H. Orr,
W. H. Gates,	C. D. Parker,
Foster H. Goodwin,	C. A. Pratt,
Herbert L. Green,	C. E. Putnam,
Henry J. Gross,	Frank A. Richardson,
C. A. Gray,	G. E. Ruggles,
W. C. Habberly,	John H. Sykes,
Charles W. Hall,	Walter H. Twitchell,
Charles M. Harrington,	Herbert H. Warren,
	Lucius W. White.

C. B. Metcalf.

The following is taken from a pamphlet letter, 1891, sent out by the class of '42, Yale, to which Mr. M. belonged. The secretary of the class is N. W. Williams of Providence and LIGHT acknowledges obligations for the copy. Each surviving member seems to have briefly expressed himself for the pleasure of his associates.

"Metcalf. His residence is still at Worcester. In a letter of March 20th he says, 'I have been an invalid for the past four years; and wife and I expected and planned that I should leave earth first, but the dear Lord knows best, and I think I can see good reasons why it was so.' He deeply feels the loss he sustained by the death of his wife a year ago, and sees little to live for now but patiently to wait the summons of his Heavenly Father. It will not be long to wait. The swift years are hurrying us all forward to the termination of our earthly career. Happy indeed, are they who can clearly discern the light that gleams beyond the dark river!"

Rev. W. T. Worth and family have returned from their vacation at Cottage City but they went at once to Sterling.

Miss Janet L. Howard of this city has been re-elected to her position in Weston as teacher of drawing in the public schools. This, however takes only a portion of her time. The Weston people are to be congratulated on securing so capable and faithful a teacher.

Books and Bookmen.

Proceedings of the Second Annual Congress of "The Sons of the American Revolution," held at Hartford, Conn., April 30, 1891. Issued for the information of the members of the state societies, from the Republic Press, New York.

This book of seventy pages sets forth in excellent form the proceedings of the Congress. So far as the printer's work can go, nothing could be better. The proceedings themselves, amount to little more than the eulogies, reports of committees and the election of officers. Among the prominent delegates, LIGHT notices the name of Dr. G. Brown Goode of Washington, a classmate in the years ago and an active worker in whatever he undertakes. He was elected secretary for the national body. This association of descendants of the Revolutionary soldiers is a most desirable plan. We cannot make the perils and tribulations of those early days too prominent. We and our children should learn the story thoroughly. Here in Worcester, we have descendants enough to organize a society which should look after the places and events which couple Worcester's name with the Revolution. It might be made a most enjoyable organization as well as a useful adjunct to the schools.

As usual Ballou's Monthly Magazine is first of the visitors for the ensuing month. September, upon its cover, gives promise of the beginning of the charming Autumn, the finest part of the American year. The table of contents is as attractive as ever. From grave to funny the range is all that we could ask for. One might think that "Ironclad Fights" was written by an ex-Confederate, for the Monitor-Merrimac was not a drawn engagement nor did the Monitor leave it unseaworthy. A little of the peculiar is always found in Ballou's, "Charcoal Bill" is an illustration. The miscellaneous matter that concludes the pamphlet is well selected. Published in Boston by G. M. Studley for $1 50 per year.

The Atlantic Monthly for September, 1891. Contents. The Disturber of Traffic, Rudyard Kipling; Rabiab's Defense, Thomas Wentworth Higginson; Speech as a Barrier Between Man and Beast, E. P. Evans; Song for Setting, inscribed to Karl Pflueger, Melodist, Thomas William Parsons; Dyer's Hollow, Bradford Torrey; The House of Martha, XLIV-XLVII, Frank R. Stockton; Town Life in Arkansas, Octave Thanet; A Study of Analogy, John Burroughs; An Innocent Life, Lillie B. Chace Wyman; The Quest of a Cup, Alice Brown; Europe and Cathay, John Fiske; At the Market of the Dead, Lafcadio Hearn; Forecasting, Philip Bourke Marston; The Lady of Fort St. John, IX-XII, Mary Hartwell Catherwood; Courts of Conciliation, Nicolay Grevstad; The Author Himself, Woodrow Wilson; A Modern Mystic; Comment on New Books; The Contributors' Club.

Damrosch.

Freund's Music and Drama for August 15 has an appreciative article on the return of Walter Damrosch from his European trip, and of the prospects of the Symphony Concerts to be given in Carnegie Hall during the coming season. Mr. Damrosch's constituency is much larger than New York city. The whole country, musically considered, has a deep interest in his work.

Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth's full name is Emma Dorothy Eliza Nevette Southworth, and she explains it by saying that her parents were so poor that they could give her nothing else, so they bestowed upon her all those valuable names.

John Habberton, the novelist, tells with a grim smile that his first story was written behind a locked door at which irate creditors rattled at short intervals throughout the day. He wrote, about this time, many true sketches of western life, which were published under various names he assumed to keep his own name out of print; for some unexplained reason it does not help a man in business to be known as a man who writes stories. Helen's Babies was his first story long enough to aspire to book form; it went the rounds of all the publishers in the United States before it found one who dared to print it. This book sold more than 200,000 copies in the United States and twice as many in England, which is proof positive that Englishmen can take a joke.—Brains.

D. C. Heath & Co., Boston, will issue about the first of September, Andersen's Marchen, selected, arranged and edited, with notes and vocabulary, by Prof. G. B. Super, of Dickinson College, Pa. The selections have been, as far as possible, graded and the phraseology of the earlier selections somewhat simplified, thus adapting the book for first reading. It is also adapted for sight reading by those more advanced. As the selections all deal with matters of every-day life, they are well suited in interest and vocabulary to conversations in class.

A tremendous plethora of novels is reported in Paris. For example 45,000 copies of the last production of a popular writer have been returned to the publisher. It is said that another publisher has 3,000,000 volumes on hand, which are unsalable.

Bjornsen, the Norwegian novelist, writes so abominably that no one but his wife can read his untidy MS.

The task of editing and arranging Victor Hugo's manuscripts is nearly completed. Over three thousand pages have been disposed of. The concluding volume, called "Océan," is now in the hands of the printers; but the correspondence, dating from 1820, remains to be edited. It is probable that a representative collection of letters will be brought out before long.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett is suffering from overwork. She has taken up her residence in a country house in Yorkshire with Miss Hall, a young American singer.

An Ann Street bookseller was asked to describe an édition de luxe. He said: "You know what a rabbit is; well, a donkey is an édition de luxe of a rabbit."—Literary World.

Howells, the novelist, was able to set type with some facility when only seven years old. He was brought up in a printing house.

Thursday, Aug. 6, was the eighty-second anniversary of the birth of Baron Tennyson, the poet laureate of Great Britain. A multitude of the friends of the poet visited him at his residence, Farringford, Freshwater, Isle of Wight, to tender their congratulations. Many letters bearing messages of love and respect were received. A concert was given at the Freshwater Assembly rooms in honor of the anniversary. Lord Tennyson's songs, set to music composed by Lady Tennyson, were the principal attraction. There was a large audience present. Lord Tennyson himself celebrated the anniversary by sending to the London Telegraph an appeal for $200,000 in aid of Gordon's Home for Boys. His letter was short and stirring. Tennyson appears to have taken a new lease of life. He is described as looking remarkably robust and healthy and as driving and walking about energetically. He lately spent a week in London, when he showed uncommon vigor and "did" the picture galleries and other sights with all his old enthusiasm.

New England Magazine for September, 1891. Contents. The Brass Cannon of Campobello,* Kate Gannett Wells; A Pan-Republic Congress, E. P. Powell; My First Love, John Allister Currie; August and September Sketches, Catherine Thayer; Summer Days on the North Shore,* Winfield S. Nevins; The Odor of Sanctity, Ellen Marvin Heaton; The Old Meadow Path, Jean La Rue Burnett; Edward Burgess and His Work,* A. G. McVey; Vacation Days at Aunt Phoebe's, Caroline Sinclair Woodward; The Herons of Elmwood,* Henry W. Longfellow; The New South—A Rising Texas City,* Bob White, Kate Whitney; The Gould Island Mystery,* David Buffum; The University of California,* Charles Howard Shinn; The Growth of a Vegetarian, Mary L. Adams; A Buried City, Arthur L. Salmon; The French Canadian Peasantry, Prosper Bender; Philip, Pontiac and Tecumseh, Caroline Christine Stecker; Two Maidens, Zitella Coker; Editor's Table; Omnibus. * Illustrated.

Our "Artist Printer" for August comes a little late; but it is worth waiting for. It is No. 1 of the 3d volume. Article one is an address by A. C. Cameron before the Missouri Press Association. This bristles with points that all offices should heed. The manufacture of folding boxes is described. There are practical hints on photography and also on other subjects pertinent to every well appointed office. "The Manufacture of Wood Type" is descriptive of the Hamilton Company of Two Rivers, Wisconsin. Volapük lessons are continued. One of the most entertaining items in the paper is a description of the Dickinson Type Foundry in Chelsea with the business offices and sales rooms in Boston. The biographical notes concerning the founder are valuable. Many a reader will thoroughly agree with all the good words said of the firm from the founder to the latest accession, viz., Mr. J. W. Phinney.

Lippincotts Magazine.

The complete novel for September is entitled "Carlotta's Intended." It is a story of New Orleans life in the Italian quarter, and some of the members of the Mafia Society figure as secondary characters. The hero is a jolly, good-natured Irishman, who is in love with a fair young Italian. The story is told with great skill by Ruth McEnery Stuart. There are two other stories, "Murderer for an Hour," and "Mrs. Van Brent's Concert." Alfred Stoddard writes of Julia Marlowe, the young actress, and a fine picture of her forms the frontispiece. W. S. Walsh tells of the difficulties of authors who have portrayed real persons in their stories. The pretty girl comes in for a word of defence in reply to "A Plea for the Ugly Girls," which appeared in a recent number. Mrs. M. E. W. Sherwood writes of "Society in Different Cities," a topic upon which she is eminently well qualified to dilate. She compares the social life of New York, Philadelphia, Washington, and Chicago, and gives a good picture of the lives of the four hundred in each of these representative cities. Other articles of interest are, "Derby Day on Clapham Common;" "Country Roads and Highways;" and "Notes from an Engineer's Camp."

Der Mensch denkt, Gott lenkt, published by Oswald Mutze, Leipzig.

This drama of five acts is written by a German emigrant in this county who cleverly weaves, into a prettily told romance, his political and social views in relation to his Fatherland. The writer is the father of our occasional contributor from North Grafton, E. T. Kirschbaum, a gentleman who wields a very facile and verile pen.

An eccentric Kentuckian, a Methodist preacher, was Father Stribling, a tall, gaunt, long-featured man, of most wonderful gravity, made ludicrous to outsiders by his nasal tone and big words. In no ordinary language did this old oddity ever express himself. The simple requests or answers were by him twisted into a quaint paragraph. Following his plow around his corn-field one day, an unseen visitor heard him address the oxen: "Whoa! haw, Brutus; and Cassius likewise!" Asking for gunpowder at a store, he astonished the lounging strangers by saying, in his peculiar, slow drawing manner: Have you any considerable quantity of that finely pulverized and dark-colored compound which will if placed in a hollow tube of iron or other metal with various other ingredients not necessary to specify at this particular moment of time and which, if ignited by mechanical or other means, will cause a loud detonation, accompanied or preceded by an explosion, often if properly superintended, causing death to man or beast."

A woman named Marie Ceivet has just been sentenced to twenty years' hard labor for the murder of her sister Julia in Paris. While the jury trial was going on, she daily wore a long crape veil. "Why do you wear this veil?" asked one of the officials. To which the sweet girl gently replied, "I am in mourning for my poor sister!" This fairly matches the French parricide who on being asked what he had to say after his condemnation for killing his father and mother, entreated the court to have mercy on a poor orphan!"

It Never Tolded.

An thou must a secret tell,
Hie thee to the churchyard bell.
Never has it tolled a bit
That has not been rung from it.

—Washington Post.

"Whom Do Men Say that I Am?"

BY T. C. RICE.

(Continued from last week.)

CHAPTER V.

Mary, mother, passed from sight;
Seated on the glowing right,
Intercessor, Mother, Friend!
U's thy grace and favor lend,
B-ar unto thy Savior Son,
Sorrow for our evil done,
Sons of men, unworthy all,
Since the fatal, primal fall,
Shall we dare approach the throne,
Unshriven, unvouched for and alone?
Bring no token, bring no sign
Dare to challenge the Divine,
Face to face to hear our prayer?
Mother, this our message bear.

Father, give us bread and peace,
Give of life a lengthened lease,
Spare from sorrow every one,
But be as may,—"Thy will be done."
Bless to us the sacred bread,
Body of the Christ who bled,
Bless us in transmuted wine,
Substance of hi' blood divine,
By the love and blood of Christ,
By the holy Eucharist,
Plead for us, Oh, Mother dear,
E'er we at the throne appear,
But not for us plead thou alone,
That Christ may by his blood atone,
May all mankind through faith and prayer,
His tender loving mercy share,
Through Son to Sire and Holy Ghost,
Plead, Mary, Mother, for the lost,
Mother, this our humble prayer,
To the seat of mercy bear.

CHAPTER VI.

God the Father, God the Son,
Blessed spirit, three in one!
What may mortal hope to win,
From that wreck of primal sin?
What to rescue from that flood
Of entailed ruin, save by blood?
Know we not that all was lost,
In the fatal apple's cost?
E'er the corner stone was laid,
Of the works Thy fiat made,
Thou, Oh Father! shaping all,
Some marked for grace—some doomed to fall,
Yet in the p- rson of thy Son,
Whose sufferings d d our sins atone,
By Father, Son and Holy Ghost
Was promised hope to sinners lost.
Then look! O Saviour from on high,
Hear a hapless sinner's cry.

Burst the bonds that hem me in
To the pleasant walks of sin.
Lead me in the narrow way,
Of bounden duty, day by day.
Teach me others ills to share;
Help a brother's cross to bear;
Though my sins as scarlet be,
From pollution set me free.
Though my faults, than all be worse,
Clean e from sin and primal curse,
Though they be enough to damn,
Shrive me in the Bleeding Lamb.
Thine the glory, power and praise,
Through eternity of days.

Bless, Oh Lord, our children three,
Bless the maid thou gavest me,
Bless thine humble serving man,
His neighbor bless, if in thy plan,
Yet O Lord we humbly still
Bow to thine elective will,
Daring only to suspect,
Our names are numbered "the elect,"
Let us now our voices raise,
Anthems of eternal praise.

CHAPTER VII.

Silent be, and all subdued,
Till with the spirit so imbued,
That faith and wisdom inly taught,
Shall find an utterance for thought.

It moves, and praises on the tongue,
By prophet said and psalmist sung,
Be Thine, with blessing or with rod.
Oh, Spirit of the living God!
Be thou our guide in all our ways,
Teach us so to number days,
That in the brevity of life,
We find no time for greed or strife,
But give in each allotted span,
Some blessing to a fellow man,
My we in wisdom only speak,
May we alone Thy glory seek.

May we so meekly, kindly live,
So readily and freely give,
So humbly and devoutly pray,
The worldly brotherhood shall say,
The Quaker lived not all in vain,
For even loss to him was gain,
He lost a shekle, gained a friend,
So piled up treasures to the end.

Oh, Spirit of the unit three,
So tone the carnal mind in me,
That though my left a brother smite,
Thy servant shall bestow the right.
That though he take my worldly good,
I hold him still in brotherhood,
That though his tongue shall evil say,
Mine act shall teach the better way,
Teach me to be for all in all,
My Master's worthy seneschal.

Spirit moving me to speech,
Spirit moving me to d ,
E'er thou passeth from my reach,
Make me honest, keep me true,
Spirit that till now controlled,
Spirit loosing now thine hold,
Write me in thy doom-day book,
He gave to all, but nothing took.

(Concluded next week.)

2d W. C. T. U.

At the meeting of the 2d W. C. T. U., one week since, arrangements for the fair were perfected. The quarterly convention of the Worcester County South W. C. T. U. will be held in the Baptist Church in North Uxbridge, Sept. 12, for the selection of the county presidents of the different departments, the choice of delegates to the national convention to be held in Boston in November, and the election of the committee on resolutions at the state convention in Haverhill in October.

The members of this body, aside from the Reform Club, seem to be about the only active workers in the Temperance cause left in Worcester. May they lose neither strength nor courage. This is the fifth year that the ladies have undertaken this fair work. They decorate their quarters very tastefully and they also issue a publication called The Fair Advertiser. They will make their tables all that they can be. They have had, in the past, nearly a hundred regular boarders, some of whom, from out of town, have been so well pleased that they have requested the ladies to manage similar enterprises in other places. They do no end of work and all for the good of the Temperance cause. Superintendents are Mrs. Helen De Camp, Mrs. R. D. Oaks, Mrs. S. A. Wheeler.

The Coffee House, till today, located on Front Street near the Viaduct will be discontinued from date till a better location can be found.

The full sea rolls and thunders
In glory and in glee,
Oh, bury me not in the senseless earth,
But in the living sea.

Ay, bury me where it surges
A thousand miles from shore,
And on its brotherly unrest
I'll range for evermore.

—Ernest Henley.

Annie O'Brien.

The Connaught Castle had arrived in New York. The cabin passengers had gone ashore. The steerage people were being carried away by their friends or by the boarding house keepers who always lie in wait for them. Those yet uncalled for sat about the decks. Wistful eyes turned shoreward, anxious to see a familiar face and form among all those strange ones.

Pat Nolan had come aboard in all his bravery—a new blue coat flung open, that it might not conceal the shining watch chain dangling from his vest pocket, his hat, tipped to one side in true Connaught fashion, with a mighty show of white collar and cuffs and blue necktie, and his boots for once polished by an "Eyetalian." He threw his shoulders back and looked his best, "didn't he come aboard to bring his sweetheart, Annie O'Brien, home, and wasn't she the purtiest girl in ten counties, and hadn't she crossed the ocean for his sake?"

Pat felt as though every one who saw him must know his business there.

Standing still he looked about him, expecting to see his little Annie somewhere not far. "Sure an' wouldn't she be as anxious to mate him as he would be to mate her?" But strange to say he could not see her.

He was a little late for there had been a delay of the train in which he came down from the the place where he was working as coachman and gardener. But surely Annie would never have gone ashore without him. He walked about for full ten minutes, looking everywhere, but still missing the face he wanted.

Every now and then a gay ribbon or a bright coil of hair would make his heart dance, but it was never Annie's hair or Annie's bonnet. At last he made up his mind that she had gone ashore; but in that case she had left word for him, of course—word where she had betaken herself.

"I beg pardon, sir," he said, stepping up to a man who wore a gold band upon his cap, and was presumably an officer—"I beg pardon, sir, but I'm Pat Nolan. Is there a bit of message left for me, do you know sir?"

"Not that I am aware," the officer replied.

"It was Annie O'Brien," said Pat. "She came over on this steamer; she expected me to mate her. We're to be married, you know, sir, and sh'ed lave word where she is gone—Annie O'Brien."

The officer turned a curious, startled gaze upon him.

"Annie O'Brien," he repeated. "A steerage passenger?"

"In coorse, sir," said Pat. "She's comin' over to marry me, and she's a workin' girl. We're nayther iv us rich."

The officer looked at him again.

"I know the name," he said.

"You couldn't help noticing the girl," said Pat. "She's a purty crayther, is Annie, wid eyes like the sky and golden hair, and a waist ye could span wid yer two hands—bar-rin' she wouldn't permit ye to do it—and a foot light as a bird's upon the floor. A little jewel is my Annie. You'd not fail to notice her."

"Sit down a moment, Mr. Nolan," said the officer. "I will make some inquiries. Wait here for me."

"A mighty polite gentleman, though he's as solemn as a funeral," said Pat to himself. "I hope he'll not delay long. I'm wild to see Annie. Oh, the devil fly away wid the cars that kept me from her! I wonder is she cryin' her eyes out for not seein' me? It was what she had a right to expect—the first one aboard."

The officer was returning.

He looked more serious than ever.

"Mr. Nolan," he said gravely, "the captain, would like to speak to you. I will take you to him. We have had a very stormy voyage, as winter voyages often are."

"But you've come into port on as pleasant a day as there is in the calendar," Pat said cheerfully. "A Christmas couldn't be brighter."

"But we have had a very unpleasant voyage," said the officer gravely.

He opened the door of the captain's cabin. Pat entered with his hat in his hand.

The captain, a grave bronzed man, with iron gray hair, sat at the table before an open book, on which his hand lay.

"Sit down," he said.

"Thank you, sir. It's as easy standing," said Pat, with a bow.

"You had better sit down," said the captain. "I may have to talk to you for some minutes. I have something very particular to say if you are the right man. Your name is—"

"Pat Nolan," said Pat, beginning to feel astonished, but then perhaps the captain, knowing that he was to be married that evening, wanted to congratulate him, to offer him a glass of something, or perhaps it was the way of the captains of ocean steamers to be slow and solemn, not thinking how he kept people from their sweethearts. So Pat sat down, put his hat on the floor, and not knowing just what to do cracked all his knuckles one after the other as he waited.

"Your name is Patrick," said the captain again, "and you came on board to find a young woman—a friend of yours?"

"My sweetheart promised to me. We are married today," said Pat. "The good Lord above and Father Dunn will help me; but I'll do the best I can to further it myself."

The captain looked down upon the pages of of the book before him.

"And the name of the young girl you are asking for?" he said.

"Annie O'Brien," said Pat, beginning to think the captain very stupid—"Annie O'Brien. She's the Widdy O'Brien's daughter—a dacent woman is the widdy, and well respected. They are neighbors there at home in the ould country."

The captain ran his finger down a long column of names, and stopped at last and looked at Pat again.

"We had a very unpleasant voyage," he said slowly—"a very, very unpleasant voyage."

"The other gentleman was telling that sir," said Pat, wishing that this old gentleman would stop talking about the weather and tell him something about Annie. "Bad weather must be a threat on the say," he said, in order to be polite. "And wid all thim passengers to be watchin' and carin' fer—worse than a stableful of bastes!"

"Yes," said the captain, "we try to care for our passengers, but the steerage is a little crowded. They are often very sick."

"Yes, sir. I was that sick myself I thought I be dyin'," said Pat.

"Some are severely ill," said the captain.

This time Pat made no answer, but stared at him with a hot flush rising to his face.

"Sometimes they are so very ill that they die," the captain went on. "Delicate women, you know—little children and delicate woman."

Pat still looked at him in silence.

"When I said that we had a very unpleasant voyage I meant," said the captain, "that we had a serious illness—that we had death on board. Two steerage passengers died. One was William O'Rourke, an old man coming over to live with his son."

"God rest his soul!" said Pat, crossing his forehead.

"The other, who was very ill was a woman," said the captain, "a young woman, and very pretty. Mr. Nolan, we have to prepare for storms in this life—we have to brace up and bear them as well as we can. They are very hard to bear. I have had a great many myself. At my age that goes without saying; but you are young and full of hope. I am very sorry to say that I am afraid you are about to suffer a terrible shock. It is a painful task to tell you. Brace up, my lad. The other passenger was a young woman, and her name, as we have it written here, was Annie O'Brien."

All the color had gone out of Pat's face by this time. It was white, lips and all. He dropped his arms on the table and hid his face on them, and great sobs shook his frame.

The captain wiped the tears from his own eyes.

"Talk does no good," he said. "Time only can comfort you."

"It seems as if I could not believe it, captain," Pat cried, lifting his tear swollen face. "Annie—my little Annie! Are you sure it was Annie?"

"There was but one Annie O'Brien on our list," said the captain. "She gave her name just before she breathed her last. The only steerage passenger of the name of O'Brien died on the voyage of a fever. The doctor cared for her as well as he knew how. The women nursed her kindly. We buried her at sea, and the burial service was said by a Catholic clergyman who was on board. You might like to know that, so I tell you."

"My Annie—my Annie at the bottom of the say!" moaned poor Nolan. "An' I'll niver see her again; niver kiss her red lips; niver feel her two arms about me neck! Ah, Annie, I won't live after you—I won't live after you! Life is too hard to bear wid that to think of. Its turned me to a woman, sir, I'm thinkin'—but its the worse blow I iver had in me life."

There was a knock at the door just then. Pat hid his tear stained face again.

"No admittance just now," cried the captain.

"I didn't mane to come in, plase sir," said a sweet voice, "but I'd like to spake to ye, captain, af ye'll let me. I'm waitin' this long time till me friend comes aboard to bring me home, and I'm gettin' anxious, fearin' something has happened him. What will I do sir? I know no one in Americay. Perhaps he might be on board and me not know it. He'd be askin' for Annie O'Brien, and he'd be Pat Nolan, that I'm promised to. Would ye?"

But the captain had flung wide the door, and Pat was on his feet, and with a roar like that of a buffalo had flung his arms about her.

"Glory be to God and all the saints!" he cried. "You're not dead at all! You're alive! I've got you safe and sound! They've been tellin' me you were dead. God help the man that put the thrick on me, for I'll lave but the bones av him!"

"Quiet, there!" shouted the captain. "Down with your fist, or I'll put you in irons! What did you mean by asking for Annie O'Brien, a steerage passenger, when you wanted Annie Bailey, a first cabin passenger? That is the girl that stands there. That is the name she gave us—Annie Bailey."

"Captain, dear," cried Annie, clutching her Pat by the coat tails, "captain, darlin', Pat niver knew—he did not. Since writin' him, my mother a widdy—married again wid Mr. Peter Bailey, that kapes a foine tavern in our town. So long as I was goin' from her, and he proposin' to her, why wouldn't she? And he, havin' money to spare, said I should come like a lady, and paid me passage in the foinest place; and out iv compliment to him—being my mother's husband and so generous to me—I sailed as Annie Bailey. That is the way it was, captain; and indade all the trouble arose from it—for I wanted Pat to find me sated in the illegant saloon, and remained there waitin' for him."

"You'll excuse me, sir," said Pat, bowing low, "on account of what I've been through."

"All right my man," the captain answered; and then Pat threw his arm about his Annie and led her away, the happiest fellow alive.—Mary Kyle Dallas in Fireside Companion.

At Sterling.

One week ago tonight, the last lawn party of the season was given near the cottage of C. O. Richardson. As usual, the neighborhood was nicely illuminated. Those taking part in the program were Mr. George H. Van Norman of Springfield, Miss Houghton of Boston, Miss Macurdy of Waltham, George N. Morse of Worcester, Miss Mabel Richardson and Miss Eileen Kennedy of Worcester. No little credit is due for the enjoyable season at the Camp to the unremitting labors of Mrs. A. B. F. Kinney and Mrs. C. A. Richardson.

Reform Club.

Notwithstanding the hot weather, this effective organization keeps up its good work. Last Sunday night, President Robinson directed matters, prayers being offered by Mrs. D. D. Tatman of the first W. C. T. U., Ex-Presidents Weldon and McCullagh spoke as did Joseph A. Green of Boston, Col. E. J. Russell, the probation officer. The latter gave an interesting talk and also read a paper descriptive of a man who was at one time a notable personage in the West, but who fell through drink, but afterwards was reformed, and is now engaged in the God-given work of reforming and assisting others.

Mrs. Thomas Scott of Chicopee is visiting at her brother's on Austin Street.

Public Library Additions.

Remainder of books added during June.

I indicates that the book is in the Intermediate department and may be taken out if specially called for.

ADAMS, W. H. D. The Great Civil War; the accession of Charles II to 1653 - - - - - 34324
 ATKINSON, P. Elements of dynamic electricity and magnetism - - - 34325
 BACON, F. Ld. Verulam, etc., Essays; introd. with notes, etc., by S. H. Reynolds - - - - - 34310
 BALL, W. P. Are the effects of use and disuse inherited? (Nature ser.) 34326
 BATES, K. L. Hermit Island - - - 34327
 BODGE, G. M. Soldiers in King Philip's war, 1675-77; with sketches of officers, etc. - - - - - I
 BOUTMY, E. The English Constitution; tr. by I. M. Eaden, introd. by Sir F. Pollock - - - - - 34328
 CAMPBELL, J. The Hittites; their inscriptions and history, 2 vols. - 34329 30
 CARLIER, A. La République Américaine Etats-Unis, 4 vols. - - - - I
 CARPENTER, H. B. A poet's last songs; introd. by J. J. Roche - - - - 34331
 DAVENPORT, G. F. Homes and hearths of Salem - - - - - 34332
 FORREST, R. E. The Touchstone of peril (Franklin Sq. lib.) - - - 34333
 FULLER A. W. and WHEELER, W. A. Artistic homes, 5th and rev. ed. - I
 GOODWIN, J. J. The Goodwins of Hartford, Conn. - - - - - I
 GOODYEAR, C. A message to china decorators - - - - - I
 GUNSAULUS, F. W. Monk and knight; hist. study in fiction, 2 vols. - 34319 20
 GUNTON, G. Principles of social economics, etc. - - - - - 34334
 HALL, H. Year book of the societies of descendants of the men of the Revolution, 1890 - - - - - I
 HOPPIN, J. M. Sermons upon faith, hope and love, etc. - - - - 34335
 KING, C. Campaigning with Crook; and stories of army life - - - 34344
 KLAUSER, J. The septonate and centralization of the tonal system etc. 34345
 LANCIANI, R. L'itinerario di Einsiedeln e l'Ordine di Benedetto Canonico - - - - - I
 LONGINUS, D. On the sublime; tr. by H. L. Havell; introd. by A. Lang 34336
 McCOSH, J. The prevailing types of philosophy; can they logically reach reality? - - - - - 34337
 MILTON, J. Arcades and Comus with introd. notes, etc. by A. W. Verity (Pitt Press ser.) - - - - - 34393
 MORLEY, J. Studies in literature - 34394
 MOZLEY, T. Letters from Rome; the Oecumenical Council, 1869-70 2 vols. - - - - - 34395 6
 NANSEN, F. First Crossing of Greenland; tr. by H. M. Gepp, 2 vols. 34397 8
 OLIPHANT, M. O. W. Kirsteen; story of a Scotch family seventy years ago - - - - - 34338
 Memoir of Laurence Oliphant and his wife, 2 vols. - - - - 34440 7

O'REILLY, B. John Mac Hale, Alp. of Tuam; life, times, etc., 2 vols. - I
 PARSONS, J. R. JR., Prussian schools through American eyes - - - 34321
 PARSONS, S. JR., Landscape Gardening - - - - - I
 PHILIPS, F. C. Margaret Byng - 34339
 Poems; ed. by M. L. Todd and T. W. Higginson - - - - - 34322
 POOL, S. L. Sir Richard Church - 34399
 PUTNAM, G. H. The question of copyright; summary of the laws in the chief countries (Quest. of the day) 34340
 REDGRAVE, G. R., David Cox; and Peter De Wint (Illust. biog. of great artists, new ser.) - - - 34341
 RIBOT, T. The diseases of personality; trans. - - - - - 34342
 ROUTH, E. J. Treatise on analytical statics, with examples, vol. 1 - 34311
 SHELLEY, P. B. Poetical works - 34314
 SLADEN, D. Younger American poets 1830-1890; with Younger Canadian poets, by G. B. Roberts - - - 34313
 STEPHENS, F. G. Memoir of G. Cruikshank; and essay on C. by Thackeray (Ill. biog. of great artists, new ser.) - - - - - 34319
 STREANE, A. W. Translation of Chagigah from the Babylonian Talmud, with notes, etc. - - - 34315
 TALMAGE, T. DE W. The Marriage ring; discourses - - - - - 34323
 VENABLE, W. H. Beginnings of literary culture in the Ohio valley; sketches - - - - - 34318
 VINCENT, J. M. State and federal government in Switzerland (John Hopkins Univ. studies) - - - - I
 WASHINGTON. Duché letters; from original mss.; with introd. by W. C. Ford - - - - - I
 WASHINGTON, G. Writings; coll. and ed. by W. C. Ford, vol. 10, 1782-85. - I
 WHITE, A. S. Development of Africa; maps by E. G. Ravenstein - 34317
 Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Class of '91. Aftermath; a Log of the class of '91 - - - - - I

A little life that fluttered
 Out when the midnight bell
 Struck over the sleeping city,
 'Tis well,
 For God looking into the future
 Saw wearisome years to come,
 His angel with loving compassion
 Has carried the baby home.

To be sure the home was small but the bright baby that it held was just as dear to mother loves, as if the house it dwelt in were a palace and its father with his thousands instead of one of the toilers of our city. Who is there on our street not a worker? We are proud of it on that account and when the baby lay gasping in the hot, motionless air one kind neighbor sent ice to cool the head and another offered cordial and other help so they need not spend at the drug store, and though nothing could save still the kind deeds show that, on our street hearts are the same, for one touch of Nature, makes brothers of us all.

Miss Davis, Miss Philpot and the Misses Taft left Monday for a short vacation in Westboro, West Upton and West Milford.

About Folks.

Miss Carrie Conant of Washington, D. C., visiting Miss Kate Hobbs at Breezy Point, terling Junction.

Mrs. John A. Smith, who is spending the summer with her son at Paxton, is one of the oldest surviving members of Old South Church, being at present in her ninetieth year.

George L. Estey has had a two weeks' vacation in the state of Maine.

Misses Mary Sullivan, Julia Sullivan and Mary Conly are in Boston on a weeks' vacation.

James L. Estey has been away on a month's vacation, during which he has visited several towns in the eastern part of this state, Bar Harbor, Sullivan, Bangor, Augusta and other towns in Maine.

E. A. Goodnow has recently been in Plymouth.

Nathaniel Paine and wife are at Nantucket.

Mrs. Hamilton B. Staples, Francis H. Staples, Miss M. N. Dewey, Miss E. S. Newton, Miss M. S. Newton and Miss Edith R. Richardson are at Marblehead Neck.

Rev. George T. Craft and family are at North Truro, Cape Cod.

Linwood Robinson and wife, George Day and family, Miss Alice T. Monahan and A. J. Davis have been at Winthrop Beach.

Miss Annie McCormack with her cousin, Miss Alison Brown of Augusta, Me., have one for a visit to Mrs. Marion Harte in New York.

Arthur E. Richardson and Mrs. B. T. Dyer have been passing their vacation at North Scituate beach.

Rev. Alonzo Sanderson preached at the Methodist camp meeting at West Dudley Monday.

Rev. Dr. John D. Pickles preached Wednesday afternoon at the camp meeting at Epping, N. H.

W. H. Vaill and family and Henry J. Kenon are guests at the Churchill, Brant Rock.

Miss Mary McHugh has gone to Philadelphia on a two weeks' vacation.

Miss Annie Leonard of Sterling has been visiting friends in this city.

Hon. John R. Thayer and sons and F. E. Wheeler are at Cottage City.

Mrs. Harriet F. Shellar and daughter, Miss Lottie F. Shellar, are registered at the Stevens House, Vergennes, Vt. After spending a week here they go to St. Albans for a week.

George Y. Lancaster, representing the United States Mutual Accident association of New York, visited J. A. Pierce, grain dealer of Westboro, Saturday, and paid him $150 on account of six weeks' loss of time resulting from his being thrown from his wagon some three months ago.

Charles F. Goddard and wife, Fred Goddard, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Fay, Dr. Rebecca Barnard, Miss Lizzie Holden, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Bishop, Miss Florence Bishop and Miss Marion Bishop started Saturday for a two weeks' trip to Halifax, St. Johns and points of interest in the British provinces. They sailed from Boston direct to Halifax.

Henry L. Parker, Jr., who has spent a three weeks' vacation at home, has returned to his place in the pension bureau at Washington.

H. G. Kendall has gone to Baltimore and Washington on a three weeks' vacation with Milo Harris and wife of Athol.

Miss Henrietta Ager has returned from Saratoga.

Miss S. Christine MacCall, a New York contralto, has been asked to sing next Sunday morning and evening at the Central Church. Miss MacCall is a pupil of the celebrated prima donna Mme. Florenza d'Arona who was student and assistant teacher with the world renowned master Lamperti at Milan, Italy.

Mr. Gustavus A. Gunderson, formerly of this city and a High School boy, now in the employ of the N. Y. P. & B. R. R. has lately visited this city.

Hon. and Mrs. Edward L. Davis, with Miss Theresa Davis, have just returned from Bar Harbor.

Mr. G. Henry Whitcomb and family, Mr. J. J. Wesson and family recently registered in Paris at the New York Herald Office.

J. W. Hadley and wife have returned from their western tour, having devoted the two weeks succeeding the G. A. R. encampment at Detroit to visiting friends at Cleveland, O., Danville, Vt., and Canaan, N. H.

Masters Harry and Frank Perry have left for the White Mountains, intending to go from there to Old Orchard to spend their vacation.

Fred W. Blackmer and family returned from their summer home at Hubbardston Monday and have taken up their winter residence on Forest avenue.

Mrs. Henry Kingley and daughter of Hope-dale and Miss Sadie Howe of South Milford are visiting E. W. Whitmore of Congress street.

William H. Long, of the Turners Falls Cutlery Company, is spending a vacation at his home in this city.

Miss Flora Clifford of Somerville, formerly of this city, is a guest of Miss Bertha R. Houghton of Oread street.

Councilman Eben F. Thompson has returned from a five days' vacation trip at Cottage City.

Miss M. Louisa Lovejoy, daughter of C. E. Lovejoy, of Barber's Crossing, left Tuesday for Waterford, Maine, to spend her vacation with her grandfather, Capt. George Hall. Waterford claims the distinction of being the birthplace of the celebrated humorist, the late Artemas Ward.

Mr. William O'Brien of Cherry Valley has accepted a position with Gately & O'Gorman. He is a recent graduate from Becker's.

Miss Bertha Dunton, a graduate from the shorthand department of Becker's, has been engaged as stenographer by Reed & Prince.

Philip W. Southgate, Tech '89, now assistant examiner in the United States patent office at Washington, D. C., is spending a short vacation at his home in this city.

Miss Mary Waters and Miss Annie Higgins have returned from Peak's Island, Portland harbor, where they were spending their vacation.

W. B. Childs and W. K. Stanley, at Barnard, Sumner & Co.'s, are away for a two weeks' fishing trip on the yacht Maggie, sailing from Gloucester.

A constantly increasing number of people from Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, attend the Worcester music festival each year. There is talk of arranging an excursion this year.

George H. Robbins, for some time assistant secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of this city and who went from us to Pittsburg, is now general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Athens, Penn. He is a good one wherever he is.

Conductor R. N. Daniell, who has resumed his old place on the 7 a.m. train to Boston, was presented Thursday morning, the 20th, with a gold watch, chain and charm by the regular passengers.

Mrs. E. W. Allen of 50 Woodland Street called in many friends and neighbors on the 20th inst., to assist in celebrating the 83d birthday of Miss Mary McFarland, the oldest member of the Old South Church, of which her ancestors for several generations have been members.

A. M. Stone has been elected vice-president of the 34th Regiment Association.

Arthur J. Denny, a week since, received a serious injury in making a dive from a boat at the Lake. He won't swim any more this season.

The rotund form of Captain Charles T. Pratt, business manager of the Holyoke Democrat, was one of the familiar sights on Main Street the past week. The genial captain is enjoying himself at the home of his parents till September 1st.

Mrs. George Harwood has visited Cottage City for a vacation.

S. F. Babbitt takes his outing in New York state. Good taste.

Col. Charles E. Burbank at the N. H. C. has been under the weather. Was the tramp to Wachusett too much?

Capt. J. B. Knox enlightened the N. H. C. boys, one week ago, by a good talk on the Signal Service.

School and College.

College and Cigarettes.

Ex-President Andrew D. White of Cornell is contributing a valuable series of articles to the Youth's Companion. Among other excellent ideas, are those concerning the use of tobacco, etc.:

"I confess to a dislike for the encroachments in our great colleges and universities by the sons of New York and Boston and Chicago and San Francisco millionaires, to say nothing of those from other cities.

Many of them doubtless are fine fellows, but I see in some of our institutions, into which our great cities pour their students, signs of a general influence which I do not at all like; an extravagant use of money, shown in college rooms befitting an actress or a bar keeper; in dress befitting jockeys or bruisers; in suppers of terrapin and champagne; in vealy affectations of club life, and of familiarity with minor theatrical and operatic personages; in the physical dissipation of the cigarette, and in the æsthetic dissipation of the banjo.

Let me say here that I never knew a young student to smoke cigarettes who did not disappoint expectations, or, to use our expressive vernacular, "kinder peter out." I have watched this class of men for thirty years, and cannot now recall an exception to this rule. Cigarette-smoking seems not only to weaken a young man's body, but to undermine his will and weaken his ambition.

In colleges or universities having a large percentage of these futile personages, they too often give the student tone; they sound the key-note; they set the fashion—the fashion of over expenditure, of carelessness as to the real aim and glory of college life.

A very eminent gentleman recently told me that he would not send his second son to the college from which both he and his eldest son had graduated, because he had learned from this eldest son that in his "set" study was voted "rather bad form," and striving for scholarships, prizes, and the like, "not the correct thing."

"The correct thing" was apparently to lounge about the rooms of the various members of the "set," to talk feebly about the aforesaid minor personages of the theater and opera, offer bets upon boating and base-ball, and in fact do everything except that which really goes to the making of a man."

"University Extension" is the title of a new monthly journal "devoted to the interests of popular education." The contents of the first number include articles on "The American Society," "The Fundamental Distinctions between Elementary and Higher Instruction," "The Endowment of University Extension," "The History of a Branch Society," and the Formation of Local Center." The departments are "Notes" and "Current Literature." The magazine is published by J. Haseltine Shinn for the American Society for the extension of University Teaching, Philadelphia.

Worcester in Washington.

At the meetings of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Geological Society of America, lately in session at Washington, D. C., Worcester was represented by President H. T. Fuller and Dr. L. P. Kinnicutt of the Polytechnic Institute, and Prof. J. U. Nef of Clark University. On Friday, the 21st, Dr. Kinnicutt read in the chemical section a paper on Worcester sewage which was warmly commended, and Prof. Nef an able but technical paper on "An aceto-acetic ether." Tuesday Dr. Fuller read before the Geological Society of America a paper on the "Defloration and Deformation of Alluvial Deposits in New England." Dr. George D. Moore of the Institute has been elected a member of the Association.

VOLAPÜK.

Lons.

VOLAPUKAKLUB DE WORCESTER, MASS., U. S. A.

Balid—Klubam at potiadam „Volapükaklub de Worcester, Mass., U. S. A.“ e pokosiadam kopanalas lunno lul, kelas kilans ofomoms dedili zesüdik al slüdüu posi.

Telid—Desän kluba obinom studön, plägön e pakön volapüki.

Kilid—Pösod aikelik, kel odesidom binön kopanal, openom penedi volapükik dilekefe e il at palensumom, pösod okanom binön kopanal dub pelön doabi bal e zepön lonis at.

Folid—Pösod aikelik okanom binön kopanel kluba at dub pelön doabi bal e zepön lonis at.

Lulid—Kopanalas, ab no kopanelas, olaboms valüdi al vögödön dö mobs pemolül komi klubam. Voto, kopanalas e kopanelas olavoms valüdis e plivilegis otik.

Mälid—Calans kluba at potiadoms Cifan, Penädan, Kädan, Bukan, e Dilekans Kil. Poväloms in lasam balid in balul, folul, velul e balsul e odünoms caliko jü sukelefs puväloms.

Velid—Cifan obisiedom lasamis kluba e nämü cal okik obinom cifel dilekanas.

Jölid—Penädan oduinom penami kluba, oplogotom lasamis valik, e oduinom dünis votik äs poflagom natö cal okik.

Zülid—Kädan okipom moni kluba e osepelom oti ven pebüdos fa büdot pepenöl pedisopenöl fa cifan e mödanum dilekefa.

Balsid—Bukan olovesumom bukis, pämis, gasedis e dinis votik lönöl klube.

Balsebalid—Dilekans kil okosiadoms dilekefi. Osulogoms küdadinis valik kluba, okomitoms fegebi mona valik e okomedoms as kopanalas klube utis, kels openoms volapüko penedis säto nepökik.

Balsetelid—Kopanalas e kopanelas opeloms kädane a vig sentabis lul diseinü kätad se kel pelön bonedis gasedas e delidis votik kluba.

Balsekilid—Lasams kluba at ojenoms vavigo düp e plad posludoms fa dilekef.

Balsefolid—Kopanal u kopanel, kel nedunom lasamön u pelön du muls kil, nen sekusad gudik, ofinom binön kluban.

Balselulid—Lons at kanoms paceinoms de ven kildils tel kopanalas usludoms somo na valiko penunoms tefü ot.

The campers on Quinsigamond's shore have good times. Recently, in Winchester's Pavilion, they had a sort of family gathering and Alice Denny quite charmed her listeners by a poem which included the names and foibles of all the dwellers and frequenters of the vicinity

The Electric Car.

When first I rode in the electric car,
From Leicester's peerless height,
It caused emotions such as these:
Joy to the eye, the heart was pleased
As I sallied forth with greatest ease,
Through fields and pastures, meadows fair,
Where gardens blushed in the morning air,
The old stage road seemed shod with steel,
Just waiting for the electric wheel,
While as it rolls with glaring fire,
And lightning's flash through cable wire,
The old stage veterans take their flight
Appalled, dismayed at such a sight;
While all around, and towering high,
Stood fence posts rising towards the sky,
It seemed some one had painted red
A town, just rising from the dead,
It seemed a morn of a gala day,
Of foretold shad was om to stay,
It seemed a dream of rarest light
Dawning forth from deepest night,
It seemed so grand, to say the least,
That Plymouth rock should hold a feast
That Bunker Hill should yield a nod
And shepherds of the hill, praise God.

And as I rode o'er the electric rails,
It did me so enthuse,
It roused my brain to wonderment,
To go on such a cruise,
'Twas marvelous to see the tide,
All else forgot to gain a ride,
The Stones at last seemed growing pale,
And sought for hidings like the snail,
While all seemed anxious for the heights,
Round Dexter's diamond bed,
The electric sparks so blazed and flashed
That Knights seemed at an end,
Then dashing round from south to north,
It rushes o'er the Ston-wall farm;
And up St. Joseph's priestly hill,
My spirits grew more calm,
The spires and domes how quickly fly,
As wrestling thus in azure sky
With all my doubts and fears released
My inmost soul here shared the feast,
All seemed to say with one accord
Why don't the Shepherds praise the Lord?

Soon dawns the city in the East,
Exultant in her joys,
She takes her neighbors nearer home,
And welcomes all her boys;
She binds them to her heart with ties,
And cable wires of steel,
And to the feast of worshipers
Helps roll the electric wheel,
Paternally, she casts her eye,
Beyond where myriads wait,
And bids the poor, the lame, the halt,
"Ride", ride round the shepherd's gate,
Paternally with one accord,
Shout gratitude unto the Lord
For all such blessings needed most,
Should shepherds praise the Lord of hosts."

Leicester.

A Yale student recently handed in his paper to his professor, and was surprised the next day to have it returned, with a note scrawled on the margin. He studied it diligently, but was unable to decipher the note and so he brought his paper back to the professor. "I can't quite make out what this is, if you please," said the student. "That sir?" said the professor; "why, that says I cannot read your handwriting. You write illegibly, sir."

Belle(suddenly)—"I'm afraid all this talk about students is rather frivolous for Sunday." May (easily)—"Oh, but they're all theological students, you know."—Harper's Bazar.

The sure way to be cheated is, to fancy ourselves more cunning than others.

FOR THE LAUNDRY.

BRUSSELS

SOAP.

GUNS!

All grades, from all the popular Manufacturers, both IMPORTED and DOMESTIC.—FISHING TACKLE—Everything an Angler wants. SPORTSMEN'S CLOTHING. Ammunition of all kinds. BLASTING

MATERIALS and a Complete Line of SPORTSMEN'S SUPPLIES. In the future as in the past my friends will receive a cordial welcome, with goods at the lowest prices, at the SPORTSMEN'S EMPORIUM.

E. S. KNOWLES, 416 MAIN STREET.

THE * HOME * SCHOOL,

MAY ST., COR. OF WOODLAND,

will re-open September 23. Miss Kimball will be at the School after August 1, where she will be glad to talk with any interested in her work.

An excellent school home for your daughter. Call or send for circular.

Mrs. Frank J. Darrah

— AND —

Miss Winifred Marsh

WILL RE-OPEN THE

SEVER STREET KINDERGARTEN

SEPTEMBER 7.

No. 4 Sever Street.

TRY Bronner's

ICE CREAM! Delivered to all parts of the City. Supplying Parties, Lodges, etc., a specialty. No. 131 Pleasant Street.

WHENEVER GOOD

Eatables

are desired they will always be found at

John A. Hartigan's

47 and 51 Pleasant Street.

LAWRENCE,

PHOTOGRAPHER.

492 Main Street.

TAKE ELEVATOR.

THE : RESERVE

The only Weekly Paper published in the interest of the

Sons and Daughters of Veterans.

$1.00 PER YEAR.

Our standing offer:

A HOUSE LOT

near a growing city, for 20 subscribers. KELLEY & FORD, Publishers, 367 Washington St., Boston, Mass. CAPT. C. F. KELLEY, Camp 97, Brookline, Mass.

ORDER NOW

and thereby be sure of getting your Monumental work in place at an early day. No better and fairer place to be found than at

EVANS & COMPANY,

Manufacturers of

Fine Monumental Work,

131 Central Street,

near Summer.

ALWAYS ON HAND!

The freshest and best vegetables to be found anywhere, with all kinds of fowls and game in their seasons.

GEORGE C. BLANCHARD,

DEALER IN

Beef, Pork, Veal, Lamb

Poultry, Sausages, Lard, Butter, Vegetables, Etc., Etc.,

No. 218 Main Street, Worcester, Mass

W. A. ENGLAND,

DEALER IN

FINE WATCHES,

CLOCKS, JEWELRY

& OPTICAL GOODS.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

394 Main Street.

Worcester Coal Company,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

COAL. COAL.

General office, 18 Pearl St., Y. M. C. A. Building; Yards, 23 Manchester St. and 319 Southbridge St.

SUCCESS IN BUSINESS!

That young man or woman who succeeds in getting employment at reasonable compensation and can give satisfaction is said to be successful. Thousands of young people, and older ones too for that matter, are drudging along from year to year, receiving for their work a miserable pittance, when by the expenditure of a little time and money in the right direction they might rank among those known as the "lucky" ones.

TO BE SUCCESSFUL IN BUSINESS YOU MUST KNOW YOUR BUSINESS.

Of the hundreds of young people who have received their training at Becker's Business College there are but very few who do not to-day occupy responsible, paying positions. No institution can make a success of a person who is born a failure, but in every case where our pupils have natural aptness or judgement they succeed.

RECORD OF THE PAST.

Of all our graduates sent out to situations of responsibility and trust in past years not three have proved unable to succeed. If you would command success in business you must EDUCATE FOR BUSINESS, and in choosing a school in which to educate, it would hardly be reasonable to look for success if you patronize a school that is not a success; in other words:

IF YOU WISH TO BE SUCCESSFUL LEARN AT A SUCCESSFUL INSTITUTION.

The success of Becker's Business College since it was established has rivaled that of any institution in New England, and during the past year every graduate placed in position is now engaged.

EVERY YOUNG MAN AND WOMAN WHO WAS SENT

to a situation as Stenographer has given satisfaction. We could have placed twenty more young men if we had had them to place. Young men to-day cannot make a more certain investment for success than to learn Shorthand at Becker's. There are lots of young men and women who pretend to be stenographers and yet fail, but they don't come from Becker's.

WE CHALLENGE ANY ONE TO SHOW

where one of our graduates in stenography ever failed. Remember,—If you look for success go to a successful institution. A school that is in disrepute and on the decline cannot teach success.

Send to Becker's Business College, 492 Main Street, for our elegant catalogue and circular.

The Sanatorium is conveniently located on Main Street, accessible from every quarter. Horse cars pass the door direct from Union Depot without change. Every appointment and appliance for the treatment of disease. Each case comes under the direct personal care of the physician.

DR. CONANT'S

Compound * Vapor * Bath

THE * IMPROVED * TURKISH * BATH.

Only a limited number of cases is received, so that all may receive requisite attention. Medicated Baths and Electricity are our weapons and no scientific mind will dispute the power and virtue of said agents, especially when managed intelligently. Massage given thoroughly and scientifically. Baths and Board, $12.00 per week. Baths, Massage and Board, $15.50 per week. Baths, Massage, Board and Electricity, or the whole as indicated, $18.00 per week. Single Sanatory Baths, $1.25. Rheumatism, Blood Diseases, Kidney troubles, Tumors, Paralysis, are diseases we pride ourselves on handling successfully.

W. V. PHILBRICK, M. D.

901 Main St., Cor. Gardner,
WORCESTER.

MRS. MORGAN'S

Private School and Kindergarten

WILL BEGIN SEPT. 11.

Miss Kilham will re-assume charge of the Kindergarten and will be assisted by a competent nurse maid. Mrs. Morgan will be at the school rooms on the mornings of September 11 and 12, and will receive admissions to the Kindergarten and to the Advanced Classes.

E. W. COFFIN,

Store Fixtures

310 Main Street, Worcester.

Name this Paper.

SHREWSBURY.

Although the Summer season is waning, the guests in town are very reluctant in leaving, preferring the cool breezes found here, to the heat of the city. Many at the hotel will remain during the month of September. Among those who are at the hotel and who will remain during the coming month are: Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Evans, Rev. and Mrs. I. J. Lansing, Mr. and Mrs. Rock, Mr. and Mrs. Blodget and family, Mr. Albert Liscomb of Worcester; Mrs. Spurr and daughter of Westboro; Mrs. Dr. Wilder, 505 Columbus Avenue, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hall of Boston; Prof. and Mrs. E. O. Grover and family of the Shepherd School, Arlington; Misses Florence Rice, Grace Skinner, Emma Gass, Lizzie Tole, Cambridge, Mass. Mr. Loring, the genial landlord, says that the season has been more than he could have expected.

The Methodist Church people are looking forward to the time when the alterations on the interior of the church shall have been completed.

The Sterling camp meeting, with its cool retreat and strengthening Christian influence, claims not a few of our people this week, among whom are: Miss Mamie Allen, Mrs. J. P. Allen, Mr. H. A. Maynard, Misses Flora and Mabel Maynard, Mrs. Edward Gleason, Miss Bessie Fales, Miss Harley Davis.

Mr. Edward Rice is still enjoying a cruise on the coast of Maine. His face is missed.

Miss Mamie Hickey is in Boston, on a visit to friends.

Miss Mabel Page is spending her annual vacation with her parents, in town.

The engagement is announced of Miss Mollie Pratt and Mr. Willis Bartlett, both of this town, who have recently returned from Old Orchard, Me.

Mr. Sam Ward has recently purchased a fine span of chestnut ponies, which are the envy of his townsman.

Miss Maud Allen, the postmistress, has recently returned from her vacation tour, spent at Narragansett Pier.

Prof. Charles Tyler gave his charming lecture on the "Jamestown Flood," in the Town Hall, Monday evening. The lecture was illustrated by the use of the stereopticon. The hall was well filled and quite a sum was realized.
G. T. W.

When Emerson said, "Hitch your wagon to a star," did he mean marry an actress?—Exchange.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, SS.
PROBATE COURT.

To the Next of Kin, Creditors, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of THOMAS NOLAN, late of Leicester, in said County, deceased, intestate: Greeting.

Upon the Petition of PATRICK J. QUINN, you are cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Worcester, in said County, on the first Tuesday of September next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a Letter of administration on the estate of said deceased should not be granted to said petitioner, without the given of surety or securities on his official bond pursuant to the statute.

And the said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively in LIGHT a newspaper printed at Worcester the last publication to be two days, at least, before said Court, and to send, or cause to be sent, a written or printed copy of this notice, properly mailed, postage prepaid, to each of the heirs, devisees, or legatees of said estate, or their legal representatives, known to the petitioner, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, WILLIAM T. FORBES, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twelfth day of August in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.
F. W. SOUTHWICK, Register.

J. W. GREENE, PLUMBER.

Dealer in Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces. Steam and Gas Fitting. Jobbing in all its branches promptly attended to. Telephone Connection. 51 Main Street, Cumming's block.

BICYCLES.

Agency for Standard Wheels.

195 FRONT ST.

L. J. ZAHONYI,

Confectioner and Caterer,

348 Main Street, Worcester, Mass.

WESBY

HAS DONE
BOOK BINDING
SINCE 1845.

387 MAIN ST. WORCESTER.

STARKIE'S DYE HOUSE,

12 Layard Place, (Old Stand.) Worcester.

Ladies and Gents' Garments

DYED * AND * CLEANSED

in a Superior Manner.

PHOTOGRAPHER.

Children's
Portraits
A Specialty

Underwood

326 MAIN ST.,
Opp. Mechanics Hall.

F. S. BLANCHARD & CO.,

* PRINTERS. *

Book, Newspaper, Catalogue, Church, Society, Wedding and Commercial Printing of every kind executed in the best modern style.

No orders too large; none too small.

154 FRONT ST.

Horace Kendall,

DEALER IN

Furniture, Ranges, Carpets

AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Goods sold on instalments if desired. Prices as low as any house in New England.

No. 319 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Mechanics Hall Building.

Boston & Albany Railroad.

ONLY
First-Class Through Car Route
TO THE
WEST!

Commencing June 7, 1891,
Through Trains Leave Worcester:

- 9.50 A. M. (ex. Sunday) Day Express.
- 11.40 A. M. Daily, "Chicago Special."
- 3.25 P. M. Daily, North Shore Limited.
- 4.17 P. M. Daily, Cincinnati and St. Louis Express.
- 8.00 P. M. Daily, Pacific Express.

SPRINGFIELD LINE

FOR
HARTFORD, NEW HAVEN AND NEW YORK.

LEAVE BOSTON.	AR. NEW YORK.
10.13 A. M.	3.30 P. M.
12.12 A. M.	5.30 P. M.
5.06 P. M.*	10.00 P. M.
12.29 A. M.*	6.45 A. M.

*Run Daily.
For tickets, information, time tables, etc., apply to JAMES CUNNINGHAM, Ticket Agent, Union Station.
A. S. HANSON, Gen. Pass. Agent.

FITCHBURG RAILROAD.

Reduced Rates of Fare

For Round Trip Tickets on Account of Summer

VACATION EXCURSIONS.

On Sale June 1st to September 30th, and good October until 31st, 1891.

FROM BOSTON TO THE

Popular Resorts of New England, New York and Canada.

Including local excursions to places in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont. The only line running Quick Trains, Superb Equipment and Through Cars via

HOOSAC TUNNEL ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO TROY, ALBANY, SARATOGA AND NIAGARA FALLS, AND VIA LAKE CHAMPLAIN ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO

WEST PORT, PORT HENRY, PLATTSBURG, BRANDON, BURLINGTON, ST. ALBANS, ADIRONDACKS and MONTREAL.

Summer Excursion Book

giving information in regard to routes, rates of fare and list of Hotels and Boarding Houses, can be obtained at the Company's office, 250 Washington Street, and mailed free on application to J. R. WATSON, General Passenger Agent, Boston, Mass.

Good to Eat.

It is better to begin life on Indian meal pudding and salt codfish and rise to roast beef and mince pie than to begin on roast beef and mince pie and get down to Indian meal pudding and salt codfish.

A Cheap Relish.

Take a couple of lamb's hearts and livers, stew them gently till done, then chop them fine, add a few bread crumbs, a little salt, chopped thyme, parsley and onions; put all, with the liquor in which they were cooked boiled down to a gravy, in a pan, and bake half an hour. Garnish with three or four hard-boiled eggs, cut into rings and serve.—Northern Advocate.

Creamed Shortcake.

Make a very short dough,—not as short as for pie-crust, however, roll out, and cut into cakes the size of a slice of bread. When baked, serve soaked in hot milk or cream, exactly as with cream toast. They can be split and buttered before putting in the cream, if preferred.

Peach Sandwiches.

Take very ripe, delicious peaches, pare and cut them up, sugar them well, and pour over them a little cream, just enough to soak into them. Then put them in a large bowl or deep dish, and let them stand for several hours, until they are soft and pulpy. Take light rolls, biscuit, or shortcakes, split in half, and spread thickly with the peaches. These should be eaten cold, and are delicious.—Housekeeper's Weekly.

Chipped Pears.

Take pears not quite ripe, pare and core, and cut them into long, thin strips. To eight pounds of the fruit put eight pounds of sugar, the rind of four lemons cut into strips, the juice of the lemons, one-fourth pound of mace or green ginger and half pint of water. Boil until the fruit is transparent if held to the light. The ginger must first be scraped thoroughly and cut fine, and the lemon peel should be boiled in water until tender, to remove the bitter taste. Or you may use only thin shavings of the outer rind.

Berry Pudding.

Three pints of blueberries, five cups of flour one pint of New Orleans molasses, one teaspoon of soda, one-half teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon cinnamon. Boil in a buttered mold or pail three hours. Half of this receipt is enough for small family.

Summer Squashes.

These are good only when young, fresh and tender. Wash, and cut into quarters or small pieces. The skin and seeds need not be removed. Cook in boiling salted water twenty minutes, or until tender. Place the squash in a strainer-cloth, mash it thoroughly, squeeze the cloth until squash is dry. Add a little cream or butter, salt and pepper, and heat again before serving.—Boston Budget.

O Philanthropy! What noble souls lay in-cense on thy altars—for revenue only; and O Ingratitude! that winks its wicked eye and says "the gang is after our votes, but it won't work."—Lowell Sunday Arena.

Pure is one thing; wholesome, another. Pure arsenic is not wholesome. Pure ammonia, pure white clay, or pure alum cannot make a wholesome baking powder, even if it is called "absolutely pure."

Every housekeeper knows that pure cream of tartar, pure soda, pure flour, are wholesome. These three ingredients, and these three only, are used in Cleveland's Baking Powder. Cleveland's is pure and wholesome; it leavens most, and leavens best, but its special excellence is that it is perfectly wholesome.

Dr. A. A. Howland. Frank H. Howland, D. D. S.

Dentists.

11 Pleasant St., Worcester, Mass.
Residence, 61 West Street.
Office open during the summer.

The Readers of Light
I most cordially invite
To call at my

Model Drug Store

When in want of anything
They would expect to find
In a metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Respectfully,

Geo. E. Fairbanks, Druggist,

10 FRONT STREET.

W. H. TWICHELL, Gold, Silver and Nickel Plater,

Bronzing, Lacquering and Oxidizing. Also job polishing.
13 Mechanic St., Worcester, Mass.

ART NEEDLEWORK AND STAMPING

Room 1, Barnside Building, 339 Main St.,
Mexican Work, Embroidery, Fine Needlework,
Done to Order.

Instruction given and material furnished. Goods sold on commission.

MRS. S. M. KEYES.

Church Notes.

METHODIST.

Thomas Street Church.—The good folks who belong to this church believe in keeping the wheels moving. One week since they had a concert for the benefit of their organist, D. B. Sorlin, at which about 200 people were present. Every body was more than pleased at the quality of the entertainment which was as follows: Organ selections by Mr. Sorlin, selections by the choir and orchestra, solos by Mrs. H. W. Eklund, trio, violin, cornet and piano, J. S. Sorlin, A. Magnuson, and Mrs. Eklund; duet, Mrs. Eklund and Mrs. S. Englund.

Pastor Eklund, whose leaving for Chicago, is possible, does not wish it understood that he prefers the West to the East. The matter is very simple. His five years here will be up in April next. Now, a good man for his place may be had and the work for himself in Chicago is calling. Then, it may not be so easy to change. He loves Worcester and it is safe to say that the city fully reciprocates. He will be a constant power for good wherever he is.

V. P. S. C. E.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational Church at Shrewsbury has invited the local Endeavor Union to a lawn party, next Tuesday evening, Sept. 1. Busses leave City Hall at 6.45.

The September meeting of the local Union will take place at the Pleasant Street Baptist Church Tuesday, the 15th. The principal speaker of the evening will be Rev. I. J. Lansing, who will give an account of the recent national convention at Minneapolis.

Bishop O'Reilly has appointed Rev. Fr. Smith of Westfield to be the successor of the late Rev. Fr. McDermott in the pastorate of the Sacred Heart parish, Springfield, thus removing all fears of the transferral of the Rev. Thomas J. Conaty of this City.

Leicester.

A tea party given by Miss Lulu Stone last Monday evening, to a party of her Leicester friends, was indeed a brilliant event.

The invited guests numbered ten.

After a brief informal reception the party sat down to an elaborate tea.

The table and dining room were exquisitely decorated with flowers.

During the evening, progressive Tiddledy Winks was played with a great deal of enthusiasm. The gentlemen's first prize was presented to Mr. John N. Coolidge, a very handsome oxidized silver match receiver, with a card on which was written "Your Tiddledy lesson so faithfully learned, has secured the prize you've just earned."

Miss Ida F. Warren accepted the ladies first prize, a rich oxidized silver Worcester souvenir spoon, with a card, "You have a noble record won, accept reward for work well done."

Mr. E. Lester Marsh received the gentleman's last prize of a toy donkey, with a card "I would your consolation be, so dry your eyes and 'chum' with me."

Miss Carrie Thurston accepted the ladies consolation prize of a furniture beater, with a card, "You can always win and never miss, if you'll but try and beat with this."

After the prizes were awarded Mr. Coolidge tried to strike a "match" with somebody.

Miss Warren became "spooney." Mr. Marsh was "mulish," and Miss Thurston couldn't "beat" the company.

All provoked much laughter and the whole occasion, characterized by extreme good taste and elegance and kindest hospitality, for which Miss Stone is noted, afforded the guests an evening's enjoyment to be cherished always

Among those present were:—Messrs. Arthur Marsh, Herbert Gould, William Davis and Edwin R. Watson, Misses N. Olive Knight and Annie Denny.

Halifax, Vermont.

Comrade A. S. Smedley of Post 10, G. A. R., of Worcester, who has been spending the Summer on his farm in Halifax, Vt., has finished the Dr. Harrington house and is now at work on the McAllister house, which he moved on the lot he bought of Chester Wilcox; it bids fair to be the prettiest place in the village when completed, from the South and West points the view is lovely, embracing the green mountains in the distance, then the hills which divide the Deerfield and North rivers and nearer are Haystack and Hogback. No finer place can be found for a Summer home than upon these hills; with its dry, pure air, cool breezes and lovely sunsets.

School and College.

Mrs. Morgan advertises the beginning of her excellent school. Miss Kilham will be present to manage the Kindergarten. The value of this form of school cannot be over estimated. The training here tells on every subsequent day of the pupil's life. Send your little ones to the Kindergarten and let them while playing learn to love work.

The campers at the Lake had another enjoyable evening last Wednesday. The Venus took them on a trip around the Lake, returning to the pavilion at Quinsigamond at 9 o'clock when there followed a literary and musical program including a poem on local persons and events by Miss Alice Denny which was highly relished. Then came refreshment and dancing.

The committee of arrangements consisted of Mrs. Charles B. Sartelle, Mrs. Frank Kelley and Miss Alice Denny; on decorations, E. N. Wentworth, Miss M. Eloise Hardy. Charles B. Sartelle was floor manager, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Kelley and Miss Alice Denny officiated as aids.

Joseph Dorris of Liverpool, England, is visiting his brother, John W. Dorris, of this city.

Alexis Halloy died in Denver, Col., Wednesday. He was employed in the store of W. A. England for the last three years. He leaves a widow and three children in this city.

Among Major Cushing's visitors Thursday was Capt. J. H. Baldwin of the 18th Infantry, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Clark, Texas. Capt. Baldwin is home on sick leave, and is with his sister, Mrs. L. B. Witherby, at No. 9 Portland Street.

The Rev. George Whittaker, D. D., of Marshall Texas, has been elected president of Williamette University, Oregon. Dr. Whittaker will be remembered as the pastor of Grace M. E. Church of this city. For the past five years he has been president of Wiley University in Marshall, Texas. He will find Oregon, more congenial.

Lincoln Holland has been at Cottage City.

Senator George F. Hoar and wife and Miss Mary Hoar attended the funeral of Mrs. Sherman Hoar, of Concord, Wednesday afternoon.

Charles Nutt, formerly of the Spy, but now editor of the New Rochelle, N. Y., Paragraph, was married Wednesday night to Miss Ada Sophia Robinson, in Natick, his old home. O. L. Stone of this city was one of the ushers.

James H. Draper made the boys at Natural History Camp happy, a few days since, by the gift of several bushels of pears. As the camp keeps a goodly store of paregoric on hand the lads were allowed to sail in regardless. No harm came and Mr. Draper is solid, not only with the Grange but with the boys.

The Last Excursion of the Season.

George V. Lancaster, General Excursion and Ticket Agent of 434 Main Street offers to the people of Worcester and vicinity their choice of four very attractive excursions for the month of September at unusually low rates. These excursions are as follows:

No. 1 Boston to Yarmouth and return only $5.00. Good to go Monday, Aug. 31st, and Tuesday, Sept. 1st, and to return until Sept. 5th.

No. 2 Worcester to Mystic Island, Watch Hill and Block Island. Round trip tickets, ONLY $1.25, $1.50 and $1.75. Good to go and return Sept. 3rd. This is the last excursion this season.

No. 3 Worcester to Coney Island and return. Round trip tickets ONLY $3.00. Good to go Saturday, 7.40 p.m., Sept. 5th, and to return on Sunday, Sept. 6th, and arrive in Worcester Monday Sept. 7th, early.

No. 4 Boston to Halifax and return ONLY $11.00. Tickets good to go Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 28th and 29th, and to return until Tuesday, October 6th. Tickets and state-rooms for all the above excursions are to be obtained from Ticket Agent, GEORGE V. LANCASTER, 434 Main Street, opp. Front St., Worcester, Mass.

Scarcely a week now passes without an announcement that in some one of the distances a new bicycling record has been made. LIGHT announced two last week and there is another this week. Thursday August 20th, at the Rochester races, W. W. Windle rode the last quarter of a two mile race in 30.45 seconds, beating the former world's record by 4.15 seconds. The two miles were done in the excellent time of 5 minutes 48.15 seconds. The morning papers of the following day erroneously credited the record breaking to A. A. Zimmerman.

Notes.

H. Curtis, the champion English walker, and E. D. Lange of the Manhattan Athletic Club, have started from Liverpool for New York. Mr. Curtis will settle in America and will probably join the Manhattans.

The Worcester Boat Club will enter two crews, a senior and a junior, in the Labor Day regatta at Boston. The senior crew will probably be made up thus: F. Collamore, stroke; E. W. Harrington, 3; R. L. Dyson, 2; H. H. Harrington, bow. The junior crew will consist of C. T. Fletcher, stroke; E. R. Thurstan, 3; E. B. Fish, 2; and John Goulding, bow.

Exceptions prove the rule.

FURNITURE and CARPETS

Ask to see our elegant and luxurious

EASY CHAIRS.

We have an endless variety
Prices reasonable.

Ask to see our RUG PARLOR SUITS in the new light Axminster effects. They are beauties. Those at $100 will be sure to please, and you will say those at less price are perfectly charming.

If you want Parlor Suits that are less expensive, ask to see those at $40, $50 and $60.

Chamber Furniture.

100 Chamber Sets received during the past month at prices ranging from $18.50 to $200.

Ask to see our $35 Antique Set and our $60 Bedroom Set, and you will wonder we can sell such fine sets for so little money.

We have everything in Housefurnishings and can suit the most fastidious.

Goods marked in plain figures, and one price to all.

Goods sold on four months' time at Cash prices.

PINKHAM & WILLIS,

355 MAIN STREET.

All the arrangements for the Worcester Athletic Club's members' games in September have been completed and announcements were sent to the members Wednesday. The dates and events are as follows:—

Sept. 12, 100 yards run, half mile run, 220 yards hurdle, putting 16 pound shot, one mile bicycle race (safety, pneumatic tires barred).

Sept. 19, 220 yards run, one mile run, pole vault for height, running high jump, two mile bicycle race (ordinary).

Sept. 26, Quarter mile run, one mile walk, 120 yard hurdle, running broad jump, throwing 16 pound hammer.

The events will all be handicap and will be governed by the Amateur Athletic Union rules. Silver cups will be given as prizes and points made will score in the competition for the cup given by Mr. H. B. Swart. Entries should be sent to the captain, H. A. Adams, and will close one week before the games in which the events occur. No entrance fee will be charged.

LIGHT ventures to predict that before the close of the present season, Windle will make a mile record that will stand for many years to come. It was stated last week that he had covered a mile in 2 minutes 18 seconds. We now have it on excellent authority that he has, on his private track without pace-makers, accomplished the distance in 2 minutes 13 seconds. This 3 seconds better than the world's record. This does not stand as a record but it does give some idea of what Windle will do when gets into the races this Fall. The next races in which he will take part will be those at Hartford September 7th and 8th. It is not likely that he will make any new records here unless he is pushed to it in order to win. The time when he may be expected to let himself out and do his very best will be in the one mile open which occurs during the Springfield meet, September 10th and 11th. This will be the greatest bicycle race the world has ever seen. To the man who reaches the quarter pole first a one hundred dollar diamond will be awarded; another of equal value will be given the one leading at the half; another to the one first reaching three quarters, and another to the one coming in first at the finish. Also, if the winner breaks the world's record he receives a piano valued at one thousand dollars. As stated last week, LIGHT is not informed whether the record referred to is the one good at the opening of the season or the present record. But we don't think it will make much difference for we have the best of reasons for believing that Windle will surpass anything ever done before. Some who are in a position to know declare that he will even beat Maud S.'s world's trotting record. His recent performance at Rochester certainly warrants such a belief. If he can do a mile at the same pace at which he did the quarter he will make a record of 2 minutes, 3 seconds. Of course it is harder to do a mile at this pace than a quarter but if 1 1/2 seconds more are allowed him on each quarter he will even then come inside the trotting record.

Holland & Havener closed their store at Cottage City this week with an auction sale of bicycles. This season has been very successful. With the machines left from the sale a bicycle livery will be opened on Park Avenue.

THE CLARK-

SAWYER CO.

472 to 482 Main Street.

Last Tuesday we advertised in the daily papers a special sale of Enameled Iron ware.

As a special sale with us means something out of the ordinary course of events, the rain did not keep the people away and the entire lot was, with the few exceptions noted below, closed out.

We offer for SATURDAY ONLY—the remnants—at these prices.

BLUE AND WHITE.

Bread Pans,	35cts.,	worth 75
“ “	42cts.,	“ 90
“ “	60cts.,	“ 1 25
Cooking Pots,	75cts.,	“ 1 62
Pudding Pans,	12cts.,	“ 30
“ “	24cts.,	“ 60
Large Covered Kettles,	$1 00	“ 2 50
Covered Preserving Pans,	50cts.,	“ 1 25
Large Grey Enameled Basins,		33cts.
Small “ “ Kettles,		18cts.
Medium “ “ Pudding Pans,		28cts.

A NEW LOT.

4 fold 5 1/2 foot Japanese Screens in Paper Department, $3 00

DAINTY DECORATIONS

SALTS, PEPPERS, SUGAR SIFTERS, PICK HOLDERS, ROSE BOWLS.

Wholly new in character of their decorations.

PIANO LAMPS.

New Beauties opened this day. Never was the assortment of Chamber Sets so great as today. 10 Piece Sets $2.50, $2.75, $3.00, $3.25 and to $30.00. Beautiful Sets in Cauldon Ware $5.00.

THE ST. LOUIS.

Newest pattern of Dinner Ware $15.00.

THE CLARK-SAWYER CO.

472 to 482 Main Street.

Removed to Larger Quarters.
44 Front St.
Take Elevator.

Hinman's College

A New, Separate
Shorthand and Typewriting
Department.

HINMAN'S COLLEGE OF BUSINESS and SHORTHAND

Begins its Fall Term September 1. The New Rooms now required are double the size of those vacated. Tuition for 6 months, $60. For 10 months, $78. Students in Shorthand will by the NEW RAPID SYSTEM, be qualified for business in 3 to 5 months, complete tuition, $50, and be offered positions in Worcester or elsewhere. Read the following:

REMINGTON STANDARD TYPE WRITER }
WYCKOFF, SEAMANS & BENEDICT, }
BOSTON, MASS., JULY 30, 1891.

MR. A. H. HINMAN, Worcester, Mass., Dear Sir:—

The demand for Remington Typewriter operators has become so great that we have been obliged to open in connection with our Boston office a department for securing and placing operators who use our machines. The result has been that through our Boston office alone during the past year from July to July we have placed 612 young men and women in good business positions. This does not include any placed by our thirty odd agents in New England. In no case, either from the person placed or from the employer have we received one cent for our services. So great has been the demand from business men that we have been almost constantly embarrassed in our efforts to find a sufficient number of young men and women qualified to fill positions. To be a candidate for our strictly gratuitous services to young men and women, we require that our operators shall be able to write shorthand at the rate of 90 words per minute and transcribe the matter upon the Remington Typewriter at 30 words per minute. As you in line with leading business colleges have decided to use our machines exclusively, we propose to LOOK TO YOUR COLLEGE FOR REMINGTON OPERATORS. We shall instruct our Boston, Worcester and New England Agents to do all we can in placing your graduates in business offices as you qualify them. Yours very truly,

WYCKOFF, SEAMANS & BENEDICT.

Hinman's College can qualify shorthand students for business and PLACE THEM IN POSITIONS IN HALF THE TIME AND FOR HALF THE MONEY required by the other shorthand school in Worcester, whose circulars say:—"We will in no case and under no circumstance agree to furnish a position for any pupil, we would rather not receive that pupil at all than to guarantee to furnish a position.

NEW ENGLAND FAIR

— : AT : —

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 1, 2, 3 and 4, 1891

GRAND EXHIBITION

— OF —

HORSES, CATTLE, SHEEP, SWINE,
POULTRY, FRUIT, FLOWERS,
VEGETABLES, ETC.

SPEED.

Splendid Races Each Day. Good Horses
and Fast Track.

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

will excel anything ever offered.

MARANETTE

will give daily exhibitions upon the track. This is the finest exhibition of Horsemanship ever shown on a race course. It includes—

The great Five-Horse Tandem Ride over Hurdles.

Woodlawn, the famous Park and Saddle Horse.

Filemaker, the highest Jumping Horse in the World.

Thrilling Parachute Leaps

Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday by JEWELL BROTHERS.

TARIFF DISCUSSIONS, HOOK AND LADDER
TOURNAMENT, COMPETITIVE DRILL OF
MILITARY COMPANIES, BAND
CONCERTS, and a Thousand
and other Attractions.

GRANGE DAY.

WEDNESDAY will be Grange Day. Special exercises, prominent speakers. All Grangers invited to meet in Grange Tent.

Governors' Day.

Governors and Representative Men of the New England States and of the United States will be present and address the multitude.

EXHIBITION HALLS FILLED WITH SPLENDID EXHIBITS.

Entertainments

EACH EVENING, with halls, grounds and track brilliantly lighted by Electricity.

EXCURSION RATES

ON ALL RAILROADS. Entries of Live Stock close August 15.

Dr. GEORGE B. LORING,
President of the New England Society.
Hon. DANIEL NEEDHAM,
Secretary of the New England Society.
J. LEWIS ELLSWORTH,
President of the Worcester Society.
F. H. CHAMBERLAIN,
Secretary of the Worcester Society.

Miss Willard.

Among the objects of interest to be seen at the W. C. T. U. dining table at the fair will be a fine portrait of Miss Francis E. Willard. This will be on sale, framed and unframed. It is a remarkably good portrait of this lady who is president of the National and World's Associations of W. C. T. U. The conventions of these bodies will be held in Boston in November and here is a good chance to learn how Miss Willard looks at a very small outlay. After the fair the picture will be for sale in Worcester by Miss Sarah Pellet. It is worthy a place in every Worcester home.

Mrs. Frances Shedd Baker.

This lady was long known and respected in our city, where she had done a deal of literary work. The wife of the Rev. Zephaniah Baker, the first librarian of our Free Public Library, she was very prominently identified with its history. She compiled the first catalogue of the same, and was a marked authority on books, without and within. She was also a teacher and a traveller and her initials appended to letters in the local press were quite familiar. At the age of 78 years, she died Tuesday at the residence of Mrs. C. W. Smith, corner of Chestnut and Elm Streets. Prayers were read at the house by the Rev. Calvin Stebbins and the burial was in Vermont, her native state.

Wilbur E. Buck of Brooklyn, N. Y., a brother of Mrs. H. H. Bigelow and Harvey Buck of this city, died the 22d inst., aged 46 years. The burial was at Portland, Ct., Tuesday.

SMITH & ADAMS,

Successors to H. W. Miller.

Look at this picture and read.

A young and pretty woman, pleasantly occupied, is always a pleasant subject for contemplation. Nothing fades the face and spoils the features more than long anxious hours spent over a stove or range which "won't work". None of this unpleasantness is experienced in using the Richmond ranges. They are quick and reliable. We are this season offering unprecedented bargains in these ranges. It is worse than folly, it is positive cruelty to a housekeeper to expect her to use an old stove or range when a moderate investment will procure this marvel of utility.

One of the chief advantages in living today is in having a perfect cooking stove or range. Don't fail to call and see the "Richmond" at the old store of

HENRY W. MILLER, 156 MAIN STREET.

I HAVE THE LARGEST
CARRIAGE :-: REPOSITORY

In New England. You can see over 200 elegant Carriages on one floor. GREAT BARGAINS in Carriages during the present month. This is my twenty-fifth year in business in this city, and my stock is the most extensive I have ever carried.

GEORGE C. DEWHURST,
Nos. 17 and 19 Park Street. OPPOSITE COMMON.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

We were fortunate.

We had a great bargain in Chenille Table Covers early last week.

There were a great many of them, but the price was so low and the quality so good that they were all gone before all who wanted them could be served.

We have secured another large lot, all that are to be had of this kind, and now you can take your pick from among these bright Chenille Table Covers for 75c each, instead of the two dollars everyone pays for them under ordinary conditions.

We want you to take a half-hour to look over the cotton goods made in America to sell at a low price for fall wear.

We call them our American family, and a very interesting family we will make them this season.

There are all sorts of names given them.

Scotch Diagonal,

Flannelettes,

Bannockburn,

Armenian Serge,

Camel's Hair,

Sovereign Serge,

And several others that go at 12 1/2c and 17c, and as you prefer the grade and style.

Of the entire lot we do not think there is one to equal the Flannelettes in delicacy and harmony of design and color.

You are altogether likely to agree with us.

Anyway, we want you to see them.

The styles of the season we'll show you in due time.

BARNARD, SUMNER & Co.

Smith's

Every day adds something fresh to our stock of dress goods.

If your buying thought is not on Dress Goods now, it will be very soon, and you'll want to bring up to the purchase by an examination of what there is, not only here, but in the other stores as well, a comparison of all.

You know how welcome you are to come here and handle and inquire. Anything that we know, you can know, too.

We notice among the new dress goods, the following, because they are especially adapted for early Fall wear.

First, the Broadcloths. Up to the mark in every way; ahead in some. Year by year the dyers master new tints. More this year than ever.

Then come the Vigereaux, Camel's Hairs, Bisons and Mixed Broadcloths, all 51 inches wide.

Novelties and plain weaves costing from 50c to $1.75 a yard. A host of 50c stuffs and as many more at 75c and $1.00. Pattern Robes that are exclusive, and many other fabrics that will please you.

101 and 403 Main Street, Corner of Mechanic Walker Building.

THE WARE-PRATT CO.

ALL ARE DELIGHTED!

We have had a great many callers during the last four days.

The EXHIBITION of new cloths for the fall of 1891 was the special attraction.

That our exhibit is a matter of interest to the gentlemen is proved by the interest they have shown already.

We are still ready to show these elegant cloths to you and again invite you to see them.

Fall Novelties,

The Latest Patterns,

The Standard Weaves,

The Odd Conceits.

SPLENDID CLOTHS to answer every purpose that you may desire,

For Business,

For Traveling,

For Sensible Dress Occasions,

For the Highest Fashion.

We HAVE the Cloths and we HAVE the knowledge requisite to warrant your expectation of the best service and satisfaction.

We anticipate your pleasure in the exhibit we make this week.

YOUNG GENTLEMEN!

Do you want first choice from the handsomest and most extensive line of

TROUSERINGS

Ever brought into the city of Worcester?

THEN COME EARLY AS POSSIBLE.

We have them and you CAN make your choice.

The Ware-Pratt Company.

NON-SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER.--A Great Fraternity.

Do you believe in a system of co-operation in which the whole profit is divided among the members? Then join the Non-Secret Endowment Order. It pays a sick benefit of $20 a week; a death benefit of $400; an endowment benefit of $500; at COST.

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts. State of the order July 18, 1891: Membership, 5,443; Amount loaned for Relief, $24,590; Reserve Fund, $32,210.51; Balance of Relief Fund, $6,567.68; Total, $63,400.68. Men and women admitted upon the same terms. Four local assemblies in the city with a membership of over 600.

Are you protected in case of sickness? Are you making provisions for the future by laying aside small sums of money from time to time?

Organizer wanted. Address NON SECRET ENDOWMENT ORDER, 339 Main St., Worcester Mass. Rooms 10 and 11

LEADING SAFETY BICYCLES.

Solid, Cushion and Pneumatic tires. Full line of Supplies. Repairing a Specialty.

LEMONT & WHITTEMORE, 39 PEARL ST.

Open evenings

FOR

RELIABLE SHOES

at Fair Prices

Go to 16 FRONT STREET,

J. K. BROWN,

W. L. BROWN, Manager.

Brown & Simpson Piano!

Sold direct from factory. Cash or Installments.

9 May Street, Worcester.

Larkin's, 395 Main St., Worcester.

Trunks, Bags, Shawl-straps, Bag-straps. Extension Cases, Etc. Agents Troy Laundry.

C. REBOLI,

Confectioner * and * Caterer,

6 and 8 Pleasant Street, Worcester.

ROYAL STEAM HEATER.

Manufactured from the Finest Steel Plate and possessing all the latest Modern Conveniences

This Heater is unsurpassed for excellence of workmanship and is the best in the market. Now is the time to secure estimates. The following is one of a great number of testimonials from our leading citizens:

WORCESTER, MASS., APRIL 1, 1890.

THE ROYAL STEAM HEATER CO.

Gentlemen:—Having purchased two of your Heaters, one now in use three years, the other 2 years, I can safely say we could hardly keep house without one. I would rather take care of our Heater with 13 radiators attached than one parlor stove where I had to bring coal and carry away the ashes. Anyone intending to heat by steam should examine the Royal and note the working of the Grate, which I think is far ahead of any I have ever seen. I will gladly give information to intending purchasers. Respectfully yours F. E. BARNARD, Barnard Bros., Trunk Manufacturers, 494 Main ST.

Branch Office, 39 Pearl Street, Worcester.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

0 014 079 946 4